TIME AND PLACE OF MEETING

The Constitution (Art. I, sec. 4) provided that "The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year * * * on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day." Pursuant to a resolution of the Continental Congress the first session of the First Congress convened March 4, 1789. Up to and including May 20, 1820, eighteen acts were passed providing for the meeting of Congress on other days in the year. Since that year Congress met regularly on the first Monday in December until January 1934. The date for convening of Congress was changed by the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution in 1933 to the 3d day of January unless a different day shall be appointed by law. The first and second sessions of the First Congress were held in New York City; subsequently, including the first session of the Sixth Congress, Philadelphia was the meeting place; since then Congress has convened in Washington, D.C.

[1] Neither a quorum of the Senate nor of the House of Representatives appeared in their respective chambers on Wednesday, March 4, 1789. Eight Senators appeared and the minority adjourned from day to day until Monday, April 6, when a quorum of the Senate was first present. Thirteen Members of the House of Representatives appeared on March 4, and a quorum was not present until April 1, when the body proceeded to the transaction of business. When both Houses were organized on April 6, they met in joint convention in the hall of the Senate and proceeded to open and count the electoral votes for President and Vice President. John Adams, the Vice President-elect, appeared in the Senate Chamber and assumed the duties of the chair on Tuesday, April 21, 1789. On May 15, 1789, the Senate determined by lot the classes into which the membership should be divided agreeably to paragraph 2, section 3, of Article I of the Constitution, as follows: Class 1, term expires March 3, 1791 - Messrs. Carroll, Dalton, Ellsworth, Elmer, Maclay, Read, and Grayson. Class 2, term expires March 3, 1793 - Messrs. Bassett, Butler, Few, Lee, Strong, Paterson, and Wingate. Class 3, term expires March 3, 1795 - Messrs. Gunn, Henry, Johnson, Izard, Langdon, and Morris.

[2] Elected April 6, 1789.

[3] Elected April 8, 1789.

[4] Elected April 7, 1789.

[5] Elected April 1, 1789.

[6] Elected April 1, 1789.

[7] Elected May 12, 1789.

[8] Resigned August 14, 1790.

[9] Resigned November 13, 1790, having been elected governor.

[10] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Paterson, and took his seat December 6, 1790.

[11] The election of all four Representatives was contested, but owing to the burning of the papers and documents from the First to the Sixth Congress, by the British in 1814, it is not possible to ascertain the grounds upon which the contest was based. It is known that it related to questions of regularity and procedure, and that the decision was favorable to the sitting Members.

[12] Took his seat July 25, 1789; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1795.

[13] Took his seat July 27, 1789; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1791.

[26] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of George Cabot, and took his seat December 6, 1796.
[27] Resigned in June 1796, having been elected Senator.
[28] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Benjamin Goodhue, and took his seat December 7, 1796.
[29] Resigned in June 1796, having been elected Senator.
[30] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Theodore Sedgwick, and took his seat January 27, 1797.
[31] Election contested by petition from sundry citizens of Massachusetts; Committee on Elections reported favorably for him, and added "that the attempt to deprive him of his seat was rather the act of malevolence than a desire to promote the public good." On January 25, 1797, these words were stricken out and expressions of compliment to the sitting Member were substituted, and the report was agreed to.
[32] Resigned November 12, 1796.
[33] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Frederick Frelinghuysen, and took his seat December 6, 1796.
[34] Resigned May 23, 1796, having been appointed minister to England.
[35] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Rufus King, and took his seat December 8, 1796.
[36] Resigned June 1, 1796.
[37] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Absalom Tatom, and took his seat December 13, 1796.
[38] Election of David Bard investigated on account of informality in time of making return; committee reported that Mr. Bard was entitled to the seat and the House agreed to the report.
[39] Resigned July 1, 1796.
[40] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Daniel Hiester, and took his seat December 8, 1796.
[41] Presented a memorial on December 10, 1795, claiming election, the governor having declined to issue a certificate to either candidate; the committee of election reported that James Morris had been duly elected, but having died subsequent to the election, the seat had become vacant; this report was recommitted and subsequently a resolution was reported that John Richards was entitled to the seat, which was adopted by the House on January 18, 1796, and Mr. Richards took his seat the same day.
[42] Resigned in 1796, before the commencement of the Fifth Congress, to which he had been reelected.
[43] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Benjamin Bourn, and took his seat December 19, 1796.
[44] Resigned October 25, 1796.
[45] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Pierce Butler, and took his seat January 27, 1797.
[46] Admitted as a State into the Union June 1, 1796, formerly known as "Territory South of the River Ohio."
[47] Took his seat December 5, 1796; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1799.
[48] Took his seat December 5, 1796; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1797.
[49] Took his seat December 5, 1796.
[50] Resigned October 15, 1796.
[51] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Moses Robinson, and took his seat December 6, 1796.
[52] Election unsuccessfully contested by Matthew Lyon.
[53] Election unsuccessfully contested by Burwell Bassett.

[22] Resigned November 26, 1798.
[23] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John Rutherfurd, and took his seat December 19, 1798.
[24] Elected on February 14, 1799, to fill vacancy in Senate caused by resignation of John Rutherfurd, but did not take his seat until the following Congress, finishing out his term in the House.
[25] Resigned January 3, 1798.
[26] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Philip Schuyler, and took his seat February 2, 1798; resigned April 16, 1798, having been appointed judge of the United States district court of New York.
[27] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John Sloss Hobart, and took his seat May 21, 1798.
[28] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John Sloss Hobart, and took his seat December 11, 1798.
[29] Died June 4, 1798.
[30] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Nathan Bryan, and took his seat December 10, 1798.
[31] Resigned in 1798, having been appointed commissioner to Great Britain.
[32] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Samuel Sitgreaves, and took his seat December 4, 1798.
[33] Resigned in October 1797.
[34] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of George Ege, and took his seat December 1, 1797.

[36] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of John Swanwick, and took his seat December 3, 1798.
[37] Resigned in October 1797.
[38] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Bradford, and took his seat November 22, 1797.
[39] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect Benjamin Bourn in the preceding Congress; resigned in 1797.
[40] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Elisha R. Potter, and took his seat November 13, 1797.
[41] Resigned November 26, 1798.
[42] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John Hunter, and took his seat February 16, 1799.
[43] Resigned July 10, 1797, having been appointed minister plenipotentiary to Portugal.
[44] Many biographical errors have resulted from the fact that Smith of Charleston district and Smith of Spartan district both formerly were known as "William Smith." It was about this time that Smith of Charleston district changed his name to "William Loughton Smith."
[45] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William L. Smith, and took his seat November 23, 1797.
[46] Expelled for "high misdemeanor" July 8, 1797.
[47] Elected to fill vacancy caused by expulsion of William Blount, and took his seat November 22, 1797, for the term ending March 3, 1799. (See footnote 50.)
[48] Appointed to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797 (the legislature having failed to elect his successor), and took his seat May 15, 1797.
[49] Elected to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797, and took his seat November 22, 1797; resigned in April 1798.
[50] Appointed to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797, caused by the resignation of Andrew Jackson, and took his seat December 6, 1798; vacancy in this class from April 1798, to October 5, 1798. Joseph Anderson was elected December 12, 1798, to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797, caused by resignation of Andrew Jackson, but did not present his credentials under this election until the Sixth Congress, continuing to serve in the other class, and on December 31, 1798, obtained leave of absence for Daniel Smith for the remainder of the session; technically, the term of Smith expired on the election of Anderson.
[51] Took his seat November 23, 1797.
[52] Resigned October 17, 1797, having been elected governor.
[53] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Isaac Tichenor, and took his seat November 22, 1797.
[54] Died January 24, 1799. Letter from governor of Virginia (Senate Journal, p. 584) stating appointment would be deferred until legislature meets.

[18] Admitted as a State into the Union March 15, 1820. Previous to March 3, 1820, Maine was a part of Massachusetts, and was called the "District of Maine" and its Representatives were numbered with those of Massachusetts; by compact between the two States, Maine became a separate and independent State, and by act of Congress of March 3, 1820, was admitted into the Union as such the admission to date from the 15th of the same month.

[19] Took his seat November 13, 1820; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1823.

[20] Took his seat November 13, 1820; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1821.

[21] The act of Congress approved April 7, 1820, provided "That in the election of Representatives in the Seventeenth Congress, the State of Massachusetts shall be entitled to choose 13 Representatives only; and the State of Maine shall be entitled to choose seven Representatives, That if the seat of any of the Representatives in the present Congress (Sixteenth), who were elected in and under the authority of the State of Massachusetts, and who are now inhabitants of the State of Maine, shall be vacated by death, resignation, or otherwise, such vacancy shall be supplied by a successor, who shall, at the time of his election, be an inhabitant of the State of Maine."

[22] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John Holmes, a Representative from Massachusetts, but residing in the new State of Maine, and took his seat December 11, 1820. (See footnote 21.)

[23] Died April 23, 1819.

[24] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Alexander C. Hanson, and took his seat January 4, 1820.

[25] Elected for the term beginning March 4, 1819, and took his seat December 27, 1819; vacancy in this class from March 4, 1819, to December 20, 1819.

[26] Resigned May 15, 1820.

[27] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Prentiss Mellen, and took his seat December 1, 1820.

[28] The act of Congress approved April 7, 1820, provided "That in the election of Representatives in the Seventeenth Congress, the State of Massachusetts shall be entitled to choose 13 Representatives only; and the State of Maine shall be entitled to choose seven Representatives, That if the seat of any of the Representatives in the present Congress (Sixteenth), who were elected in and under the authority of the State of Massachusetts, and who are now inhabitants of the State of Maine, shall be vacated by death, resignation, or otherwise, such vacancy shall be supplied by a successor, who shall, at the time of his election, be an inhabitant of the State of Maine."

[29] Resigned May 26, 1820.

[30] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Edward Dowse, and took his seat November 13, 1820.

[31] Resigned March 15, 1820; subsequently elected Senator from Maine. (See footnote 28.)

Vacant

---

[41] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect John C. Wright (March 3, 1821, before the beginning of the congressional term), and took his seat December 3, 1821.

[42] In previous issues of this publication this name appears as "John Vance." It is believed that this is an error arising through a printer's blunder in the first issue of the Congressional Directory for the Seventeenth Congress, caused by the typesetter carrying the name of "John" of Sloane's down to that of "Vance." The House Journal does not show that a "John Vance" was ever a Representative from Ohio, but in the same directory, under "Alphabetical List of Boarding Houses with the Members in each," the list of boarders at Miss Polk's home included "Joseph" Vance, but no "John."

[43] Elected for term beginning March 4, 1821, and took his seat December 17, 1821; vacancy in this class from March 4, 1821, to December 9, 1821.

[44] Resigned May 8, 1822.

[45] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Henry Baldwin, and took his seat December 2, 1822.

[46] Resigned before Congress assembled.

[47] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of James Duncan, and took his seat December 12, 1821.

[48] Resigned before Congress assembled.

[49] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Cox Ellis, and took his seat December 12, 1821.

[50] Resigned May 8, 1822.

[51] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Milnor, and took his seat December 2, 1822.

[52] Resigned May 20, 1822.

[53] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Samuel Moore, and took his seat December 2, 1822.

[54] Died October 17, 1822.

[55] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Ludwig Worman, and took his seat December 23, 1822.

[56] Resigned May 8, 1822.

[57] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of James Blair, and took his seat December 11, 1822.

[58] Died May 24, 1822.

[59] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of James Overstreet, and took his seat December 4, 1822.

[60] Resigned May 8, 1822.

[61] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Lowndes, and took his seat January 6, 1823.

[62] Reelected for the term commencing March 4, 1821, and took his seat December 3, 1821; vacancy in this class from March 4, 1821, to September 26, 1821, caused by recess of legislature.

[63] Committee on Elections reported on February 17, 1823, that he had been duly elected, but appears never to have taken his seat.

[64] Resigned December 15, 1822.

[65] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of James Pleasants, and took his seat December 30, 1822.

[66] Resigned January 14, 1823.

[67] Died August 19, 1822.

[68] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Thomas Van Sweringen, and took his seat December 2, 1822.

[69] Election unsuccessfully contested by Matthew Lyon.

[70] Formed March 30, 1822, from lands ceded by Spain to the United States by treaty of Washington of February 22, 1819, and therefore known as "East and West Florida," and granted a Delegate in Congress.

[71] Took his seat January 3, 1823.

[72] Granted statehood August 10, 1821.

[16] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Thomas Metcalfe, and took his seat December 1, 1828.
[17] Resigned August 26, 1828.
[18] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Albion K. Parris, and took his seat January 26, 1829.
[19] Died July 2, 1827, before Congress assembled.
[20] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of William Burleigh, and took his seat December 3, 1827.
[21] Reelected to the Twenty-first Congress, but resigned, having been elected Senator.
[22] Elected to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1827, caused by failure of legislature to elect, and took his seat December 17, 1827.
[23] Resigned May 30, 1827, before Congress assembled, having been elected Senator.
[24] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Daniel Webster, and took his seat December 3, 1827.
[25] Resigned September 12, 1828.
[26] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Haile, and took his seat December 8, 1828.
[27] A remonstrance against the legality of his election was considered by a select committee of five Senators; it revealed that, as chairman of the joint convention of the general assembly of New Jersey, Mr. Bateman had voted for himself for Senator, had broken a tie vote thereby, and upon such state of facts the certificate had been issued to him; May 22, 1828, the committee reported, that, in its opinion, he had only exercised a legal right by thus voting, and, upon its request, was discharged; resigned January 12, 1829.
[28] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Ephraim Bateman, and took his seat February 9, 1829; resigned January 30, 1829 (see footnote 27); vacancy in this class from January 30, 1829, to March 3, 1829.
[29] Died January 14, 1828.
[30] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of George Holcombe, and took his seat December 1, 1828.
[31] Died July 23, 1828.
[32] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Hedge Thompson, and took his seat December 1, 1828.
[33] Resigned December 20, 1828.
[34] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Martin Van Buren, and took his seat January 29, 1829.
[35] Resigned May 2, 1827, before Congress assembled.
[36] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of David E. Evans, and took his seat December 3, 1827.
[37] Resigned May 9, 1828.
[38] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Thomas J. Oakley, and took his seat December 1, 1828.
[39] Resigned February 16, 1829.
[40] Resigned November 14, 1828.
[41] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Nathaniel Macon, and took his seat December 23, 1828.

[8] A protest of certain members of the legislature was presented in the preceding Congress against the legality of the election of both Mr. Fitch and Mr. Bright, setting out "they were not elected by the legislature, but by a convocation of a portion of the members thereof, not authorized by State law, legislative resolution, or constitutional provision"; both the Senators were seated upon their credentials, and the credentials and protest were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary; the committee reported May 24, 1858, that the sitting Senators were entitled to their seats, and this report was agreed to June 12, 1858. On January 24, 1859, a memorial of the State of Indiana was presented representing that it was the wish of the State that Henry S. Lane and William M. McCarty be admitted to seats as the only legally chosen Senators; February 3, 1859, the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the memorial, reported there was no vacancy in the Senate from the State of Indiana, and that the election of Messrs. Lane and McCarty was void; the Senate agreed to this report February 14, 1859.

[9] Died September 7, 1857, before Congress assembled.

[10] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of James Lockhart, and took his seat December 7, 1857.

[11] Died March 29, 1857.

[12] Elected to fill vacancy caused by the death of Samuel Brenton, and took his seat December 7, 1857.

[13] Election unsuccessfully contested by William Pinkney Whyte.

[14] Election unsuccessfully contested by Henry P. Brooks.

[15] Owing to ill health Charles Sumner was present in this Congress but one day (December 7, 1857).

[16] Resigned December 24, 1857, having been elected governor of Massachusetts.

[17] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Nathaniel P. Banks, and took his seat January 21, 1858.

[18] Admitted as a State into the Union May 11, 1858.

[19] Took his seat May 12, 1858; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1863.

[20] Took his seat May 12, 1858; term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1859.

[21] Credentials of James M. Cavanaugh and William W. Phelps were presented on May 13, 1858, and referred to the Committee on Elections "to inquire into and report upon the right of these gentlemen to be admitted and sworn as Members of this House," and on May 22, 1858, the committee resolution "that they be admitted and sworn" was adopted, and took their seats the same day.

[22] Died July 17, 1858.

[23] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of John A. Quitman, and took his seat December 7, 1858.

[24] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect James S. Green (before the beginning of the congressional term), who had later been elected Senator, and took his seat December 7, 1857.

[25] Died May 26, 1857.

[26] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of James Bell, and took his seat December 7, 1857.

[25] Took his seat July 2, 1868; term to expire March 3, 1869.

[26] Took his seat July 1, 1868.

[27] Although Georgia was not formally readmitted to representation until July 15, 1870 (in the succeeding Congress), the Representatives elected to this Congress qualified as indicated.

[28] On December 7, 1868, the credentials of Joshua Hill, elected by the legislature to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1867, were presented and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary; on January 11, 1869, the credentials of Homer V. M. Miller, elected in the same manner, for the term beginning March 4, 1865, were presented and were similarly referred; on January 25, 1869, the committee reported that the State of Georgia had not complied with the conditions of an act providing for her admission to representation and that Mr. Hill "ought not now to be admitted"; February 17, 1869, the committee reported against admitting Mr. Miller to his seat, and the case remained undisposed of.

[29] John A. Wimpy and John H. Cristy both claimed election from the sixth district, but neither was seated.

[30] Took his seat July 25, 1868.

[31] Resigned February 7, 1868.

[32] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of James Guthrie, and took his seat February 28, 1868.

[33] On July 3, 1867, it was proposed to seat all the Members-elect from Kentucky, but protests against the manner of holding the election and charges of disloyal acts by certain individual members of the delegation were presented and a resolution was adopted directing an investigation and referring to the Committee on Elections the credentials of Messrs. Lawrence S. Trimble, John Y. Brown, J. Proctor Knott, Asa P. Grover, Thomas L. Jones, James B. Beck, and John D. Young, who were not permitted to qualify pending this investigation; Samuel E. Smith contested the election of John Y. Brown, but the House, on February 15, 1868, decided that neither was entitled to the seat, which remained vacant throughout the Congress.

[34] Election unsuccessfully contested by G. G. Symes; took his seat January 10, 1868.

[35] Died May 8, 1867, never having qualified; the election of Mr. Hise was subsequently unsuccessfully contested by George D. Blakey.

[36] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Elijah Hise, and took his seat December 5, 1867; George D. Blakey, claiming to have been elected from this district instead of Mr. Hise, filed a protest against the seating of Mr. Golladay, but this protest was not allowed.

[37] Charges of disloyalty were unsustained, and took his seat December 3, 1867.

[38] Charges of disloyalty were unsustained, and took his seat December 4, 1867.

[39] Took his seat July 8, 1867.

[40] Successfully contested the election of John D. Young, and took his seat June 22, 1868.

[41] Readmitted to representation July 9, 1868.

[42] Took his seat July 17, 1868; term to expire March 3, 1871.

[43] Took his seat July 17, 1868; term to expire March 3, 1873.

[44] Took his seat July 18, 1868.

[45] Took his seat July 18, 1868; died August 26, 1868; Caleb S. Hunt and J. Willis Menard claimed to have been elected to fill the vacancy, and Simon Jones claimed he was elected, instead of Mann, in the first instance. The House decided against all claimants, and the seat remained vacant for the remainder of the session.

[46] Resigned July 10, 1868.

[47] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Reverdy Johnson, and took his seat July 14, 1868.

[48] Elected for term beginning March 4, 1867, and took his seat March 9, 1868. The credentials of Senator-elect Philip F. Thomas were presented March 18, 1867, but he was not permitted to qualify; on February 19, 1868, the Senate adopted a resolution that he was not entitled to qualify as he had "voluntarily given aid, countenance, and encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility to the United States."

[75] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Charles Denison, and took his seat November 21, 1867.
[76] Died August 25, 1868.
[77] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Darwin A. Finney, and took his seat December 7, 1868.
[78] Readmitted to representation July 9, 1868.
[79] Took his seat July 20, 1868; term to expire March 3, 1871.

[81] Took his seat July 18, 1868.
[82] Took his seat July 20, 1868.
[83] Took his seat July 25, 1868.
[84] The credentials of Thomas A. Hamilton, claiming to be an at large Member-elect, were presented; claimant held that, inasmuch as Tennessee had voluntarily emancipated and enfranchised her slaves, she had added to her representative population a sufficient number to give her nine, instead of eight, Representatives, and he had been elected as such ninth Member. It was the first of many similar claims made by other readmitted States; the majority report was adverse to the claimant and, although the House took no formal action, he was not seated.
[85] Qualified under act of June 19, 1868, and took his seat June 26, 1868.
[86] Took his seat November 21, 1867.
[87] Took his seat November 25, 1867.
[88] George M. Chilcott and A. C. Hunt each presented credentials on March 5, 1867, which were referred to the Committee on Elections; the committee reported that neither was entitled to the seat; Chilcott was seated March 20, 1867, and Hunt subsequently abandoned the contest.
[89] Credentials certifying his election on September 2, 1867, were presented November 21, 1867, and referred to the Committee on Elections, together with letter of secretary of New Mexico claiming fraud in election; was seated on December 19, 1867, and served until February 20, 1869; succeeded by J. Francisco Chaves, who contested his election.
[90] Successfully contested the election of Charles P. Clever, and took his seat February 20, 1869.
[91] Election unsuccessfully contested by William McGrorty.

[4] Reelected March 5, 1869.
[5] Elected August 3, 1869.
[6] Elected April 5, 1869.
[7] Formally readmitted to representation by act of July 15, 1870.
[8] The credentials of Mr. Hill and Mr. Miller, presented in the Fortieth Congress and undisposed of on the files of the Senate, were referred again to the Committee on the Judiciary March 9, 1869; they were reported back without recommendation and ordered to lie on the table March 17, 1869; they were again referred to the committee February 14, 1870. A new election was held in Georgia, and on July 15, 1870, the credentials of Richard H. Whiteley and Henry P. Farrow were presented and ordered to lie on the table, but were subsequently referred; on the same day of their presentation the act was approved readmitting Georgia to representation in Congress. The committee reported upon all the credentials January 23, 1871, resolving that Messrs. Hill and Miller were duly elected; that Mr. Hill should be permitted to take his seat, but that Mr. Miller was disqualified by reason of his service in the Confederate Army; this report was adopted February 1, 1871. A joint resolution prescribing a qualification oath for Mr. Miller was approved February 24, 1871; took his seat the same day.

[10] Qualified under the terms of the joint resolution approved February 24, 1871, and took his seat on that date; term to expire March 3, 1871.

[11] Pierce M. B. Young, Nelson Tift, W. P. Edwards, J. W. Clift, Samuel F. Gove, and C. H. Prince presented credentials alleging their election as Representatives, April 20, 1868, the same election in which they were elected to the Fortieth Congress; by resolution of January 28, 1870, the House declared they were not entitled to seats. Pierce M. B. Young subsequently presented credentials under a later election and was seated.

[12] Qualified under act of July 11, 1868, and took his seat January 23, 1871.

[13] Qualified under act of July 11, 1868, and took his seat February 9, 1871; election unsuccessfully contested by Nelson Tift.

[14] Qualified under act of July 11, 1868, and took his seat January 16, 1871.

[15] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat January 16, 1871.

[19] Reelected to the Forty-second Congress but resigned, having been elected Senator.

[20] Election unsuccessfully contested by John S. Reid.

[21] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect Daniel D. Pratt (January 27, 1869), before the beginning of the congressional term, who had been elected Senator, and took his seat March 4, 1869.

[22] Resigned December 6, 1869.

[23] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of James W. Grimes, and took his seat January 26, 1870.

[24] Died September 30, 1870.

[25] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of William Smyth, and took his seat December 6, 1870.

[26] Resigned February 28, 1870; the governor of Kentucky peremptorily refused to accept the resignation and requested its withdrawal; the request was complied with; on March 7, 1870, a resolution was presented in the House as a question of privilege, citing these facts and granting him the right to resume his seat; the House refused to entertain it.

[27] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of J. S. Golladay, and took his seat May 10, 1870.

[28] Election unsuccessfully contested by Sidney M. Barnes.

[29] Seated by resolution of March 5, 1869; election unsuccessfully contested by John T. Zeigler.

[30] The governor of Louisiana having officially declared that the election held in the State of Louisiana on November 3, 1868, "Did not elicit an honest will of the people, … ," a resolution was adopted on March 9, 1869, directing the Committee on Elections to inquire into the validity of the elections of those presenting credentials; all seats were contested, and the Members-elect were not sworn pending the contests.

[31] Contested the election of Louis St. Martin; committee reported in favor of seating Mr. Sypher, and House adopted the report by a vote of 78 to 73, moved to reconsider by a vote of 86 to 79, then adopted a substitute resolution declaring the seat vacant by a vote of 96 to 68 (April 20, 1870); subsequently elected, and took his seat December 5, 1870.

[32] Election unsuccessfully contested by Caleb S. Hunt, and took his seat April 8, 1869.

[33] Election unsuccessfully contested by Adolphe Bailey, and took his seat July 6, 1870.

[34] Successfully contested the election of Michael Ryan (who had not been permitted to qualify), and took his seat May 23, 1870.

[35] Frank Morey, G. W. McCranie, and P. J. Kennedy each presented credentials claiming to be the Member-elect from the fifth congressional district; by resolution of April 28, 1870, it was declared there was no lawful election in the district. Morey presented credentials under a subsequent election, and took his seat December 6, 1870.

[36] Died September 9, 1869.

[37] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by death of William Pitt Fessenden, and took his seat December 6, 1869; subsequently elected.

[38] Resigned March 12, 1869, having been appointed Secretary of the Treasury.

[39] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of George S. Boutwell, and took his seat December 6, 1869.

[67] Died February 5, 1870.

[68] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Truman H. Hoag, and took his seat April 23, 1870.

[69] Served until April 9, 1869; succeeded by Leonard Myers who contested his election.

[70] Successfully contested the election of John Moffet, and took his seat April 9, 1869.

[71] Served until April 13, 1870; succeeded by Caleb N. Taylor who contested his election.

[72] Successfully contested the election of John R. Reading, and took his seat April 13, 1870.

[73] Both John Covode and Henry D. Foster claimed to have been elected, while the governor refused to sign a certificate or declare either elected; the House at first refused admission to either; case was recommitted for investigation, and on February 9, 1870, the House declared Mr. Covode entitled to the seat; took his seat the same day; died January 11, 1871.

[74] February 21, 1870, the Committee on Military Affairs presented a report showing he had been "influenced by improper pecuniary considerations in making appointments to the Military and Naval Academies," and a resolution for his expulsion; pending action he resigned February 24, 1870; following the announcement, the House adopted a resolution, without a dissenting vote, declaring he had made such appointments in violation of law, that they were influenced by pecuniary considerations, that he was unworthy of a seat in the body, and condemning his conduct. June 18, 1870, credentials of his reelection were presented; on June 21, 1870, the House passed a resolution citing its previous action, declining to allow him to be sworn, and directing the return of his credentials.

[75] Elected to fill vacancy caused by the House's refusal to allow B. F. Whittemore to be sworn, and took his seat December 12, 1870.

[76] Successfully contested the election of J. P. Reed, and took his seat April 8, 1869; the House had refused to permit Mr. Reed to qualify upon the ground of disloyalty.

[77] Successfully contested the election of William D. Simpson, who was not permitted to qualify on his credentials, and took his seat May 27, 1870.

[78] John B. Rogers claimed a seat as Representative at large, but claim was not seriously considered.

[79] Election unsuccessfully contested by C. A. Sheafe.

[80] Readmitted to representation by act of March 30, 1870.

[81] Took his seat March 31, 1870; term to expire March 3, 1871.

[82] Took his seat March 31, 1870; term to expire March 3, 1875.

[83] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat March 31, 1870.

[84] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat March 31, 1870; election unsuccessfully contested by Benjamin F. Grafton.

[85] Readmitted to representation by act of January 26, 1870.

[86] Took his seat January 27, 1870; term to expire March 3, 1871.

[87] Took his seat January 27, 1870; term to expire March 3, 1875.

[88] The Virginia constitutional convention called under reconstruction laws passed an ordinance providing for a ninth Representative at large; credentials of Joseph Segar as such Representative were presented January 25, 1870; on July 11, 1870, the House adopted a resolution, without division, declaring him not entitled to a seat.

[89] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat January 31, 1870.

[90] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat January 27, 1870.

[91] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat February 1, 1870; election unsuccessfully contested by George Tucker.

[92] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat January 27, 1870; died October 16, 1870.

[93] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Robert Ridgway, qualified under act of July 11, 1868, and took his seat December 5, 1870.

[94] Qualified under act of July 2, 1862, and took his seat January 31, 1870; election unsuccessfully contested by Charles Whittlesey.

[95] Qualified under act of July 11, 1868, and took his seat January 28, 1870.

[96] Died January 1, 1870.

---

[14] Took his seat December 19, 1871; Foster Blodgett presented credentials as a Senator-elect, but the Senate declared him not elected in accordance with the Constitution; vacancy in this class from March 4, 1871, to November 13, 1871.

[15] Election unsuccessfully contested by Virgil Hilyer.

[16] Election unsuccessfully contested by Nelson Tift.

[17] Died August 18, 1872.

[18] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Thomas J. Speer, and took his seat December 2, 1872.

[19] Election unsuccessfully contested by Isham S. Fannin.

[20] Resigned August 26, 1871.

[21] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Burton C. Cook, and took his seat December 4, 1871.

[22] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect John A. Logan in preceding Congress, and took his seat December 4, 1871; resigned January 4, 1873.

[23] Election unsuccessfully contested by David S. Gooding.

[24] May 11, 1872, the Committee on Privileges and Elections was authorized to investigate charges of bribery and corruption in connection with the election of both the sitting Senators; June 3, 1872, it reported that in the case of Mr. Pomeroy such charges were totally unsustained; in the case of Mr. Caldwell the report was directly to the contrary, and on February 17, 1873, it reported a resolution declaring him "not duly and legally elected"; this report was not acted upon during the Congress, but early in the succeeding Congress, during the special session of the Senate, while the report was pending and under discussion, Mr. Caldwell resigned (March 24, 1873).

[25] Died September 22, 1872.

[26] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by death of Garrett Davis, and took his seat December 2, 1872.

[27] Resigned November 1, 1872; on January 22, 1873, credentials of John Ray and William L. McMillen, each claiming to have been elected to fill the vacancy, were presented and referred; February 20, 1873, the committee reported that neither of the claimants was entitled to a seat, as no State government existed at the time in Louisiana, and recommended the passage of a bill ordering a new election; such a bill was rejected February 27, 1873; no further action was taken on the credentials and the seat remained vacant to the close of the Congress.

[28] Died November 5, 1871, never having qualified.

[29] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of James McCleery, and took his seat December 3, 1872.

[30] Resigned March 3, 1873, having been elected Vice President.

[31] Resigned May 13, 1872, to become judge of probate court.

[32] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of George M. Brooks, and took his seat December 2, 1872.

[33] Resigned December 5, 1871, having been elected governor of Massachusetts.

[34] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William B. Washburn, and took his seat February 14, 1872.

[35] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect Thomas W. Ferry in preceding Congress, and took his seat December 4, 1871.

[36] Elected January 18, 1870, for the term beginning March 4, 1871, but did not accept or qualify until December 4, 1871, preferring to retain the governorship.

[37] February 5, 1873, a select committee was appointed to consider matters presented in a communication from the House of Representatives and accompanying testimony, reflecting upon the conduct of certain Senators in connection with the "Credit Mobilier of America"; February 27, 1873, the committee reported, exonerating other Senators mentioned in the report, and a resolution favoring the expulsion of Mr. Patterson; as the Congress and Mr. Patterson's term expired simultaneously on March 3, 1873, no final action was reached.

[38] Joseph C. Abbott was a claimant for this seat; the Committee on Privileges and Elections reported February 28, 1872, that Zebulon B. Vance had received "a majority of the whole number of votes cast in each house," and Mr. Abbott received the next highest number of votes; the next day Mr. Vance was declared duly elected. Mr. Abbott rested his claim on what he assumed to be the legal result of the conceded ineligibility of Mr. Vance, who was barred by the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment; Mr. Vance made no claim to the seat; on February 5, 1872, credentials of Mr. Ransom were presented, certifying he had been elected January 30, 1872, "to fill a vacancy existing by reason of the resignation of Zebulon B. Vance"; April 23, 1872, Senate declared, by resolution, that Mr. Abbott had not been elected, and the day following that Mr. Ransom was declared entitled to the seat; took his seat April 24, 1872; resolutions were subsequently adopted allowing mileage and salary to Mr. Abbott from March 4, 1871, to April 23, 1872, and fixing Mr. Ransom's term and pay as beginning March 4, 1871.

[39] Took his seat May 23, 1872; election unsuccessfully contested by James H. Harris.

[40] Resigned in 1872.

[41] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Aaron F. Perry, and took his seat December 2, 1872.

[42] Election unsuccessfully contested by R. C. Schenck.

[1] Elected March 12, 1873, and March 26, 1873 (special session of the Senate); December 11, 1873; December 23, 1874.
[2] Elected January 25, 1875, and February 15, 1875.
[3] Reelected December 1, 1873.
[4] Reelected December 1, 1873.
[5] Appeared on March 6, 1873, to take oath of office, having presented credentials in the preceding Congress; objection was made, as a memorial was on file from Francis W. Sykes, claiming the seat; on March 7, 1873, a motion to refer the credentials and memorial to the Committee on Privileges and Elections was not agreed to, and Mr. Spencer was permitted to qualify; December 8, 1873, the memorial of Mr. Sykes was referred, and April 20, 1874, the committee, upon its motion, was discharged from further consideration thereof.
[6] Credentials as Member-elect, together with notice of contest by Lucien C. Gause, were presented and referred to Committee on Elections on December 2, 1873; the House adopted resolution reported by committee that Mr. Hodges was entitled prima facie to the seat without prejudice to the right of Mr. Gause to contest; took his seat February 4, 1874; the Committee reported unfavorably on the contest.
[7] Election unsuccessfully contested by Marcus L. Bell.
[8] Credentials as Member-elect, together with notice of contest by Thomas M. Gunter, were presented and referred to Committee on Elections on December 2, 1873; on recommendation of the committee he was seated on February 18, 1874; served until June 16, 1874, when the House decided that Mr. Gunter was entitled to the seat.

[30] Elected on January 12, 1876, for the term beginning March 4, 1873, but as his rights were not finally determined until December 10, 1877, the seat remained vacant throughout the Congress. The contest of Pinckney B. S. Pinchback and William L. McMillen was continued from the preceding Congress, but on December 14, 1875, McMillen was permitted to withdraw his credentials, and on March 8, 1876, the Senate adopted a resolution that Pinchback "be not admitted to a seat."

[31] Election unsuccessfully contested by J. A. Preux.

[32] Served until June 8, 1876; succeeded by William B. Spencer who contested his election.

[33] Successfully contested the election of Frank Morey, and took his seat June 8, 1876; resigned January 8, 1877.

[34] Resigned July 7, 1876, having been appointed Secretary of the Treasury.

[35] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by the resignation of Lot M. Morrill, and took his seat December 4, 1876; subsequently elected.

[36] Resigned July 10, 1876.

[37] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of James G. Blaine, and took his seat December 4, 1876.

[38] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Representative-elect Samuel F. Hersey in preceding Congress, and took his seat December 6, 1875.

[39] Died March 7, 1875, before Congress assembled.

[40] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of James Buffinton, and took his seat December 6, 1875.

---

[11] Died January 8, 1879.

[12] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Julian Hartridge, and took his seat February 17, 1879.

[13] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect Benjamin H. Hill in preceding Congress, and took his seat October 15, 1877.

[14] Died November 1, 1877.

[15] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by death of Oliver H. P. T. Morton, and took his seat November 12, 1877; subsequently elected.

[16] This seat was claimed by Henry M. Spofford; March 5, 1877 (in the special session of the Senate), Mr. Kellogg presented himself to be sworn, but objection was made and his credentials were ordered to lie on the table; October 17, 1877, the credentials of Mr. Spofford were presented, and they, with the credentials of Mr. Kellogg, were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections; November 26, 1877, the committee reported in favor of Mr. Kellogg; the report was adopted November 30, 1877; took his seat the same day. In the succeeding Congress the case was reopened upon petition of Mr. Spofford and a report was made in his favor, but he died August 20, 1880, before action was taken.

[17] In the preceding Congress the Committee on Privileges and Elections twice reported that Pinckney B. S. Pinchback was entitled to the seat upon credentials presented from two elections; the committee, after these decisions, was instructed to pass upon credentials of James B. Eustis and held that, inasmuch as Mr. Pinchback had a clear title, there was no vacancy; the Senate refused to adopt the report of the committee and declared Mr. Pinchback "not entitled to the seat" by a vote of 32 to 29. March 9, 1877 (in the special session of the Senate), the credentials of Mr. Eustis were taken from the files and again referred the committee reported December 1, 1877, holding that the Senate's action in the case of Mr. Pinchback was a final adjudication, and a resolution declaring Mr. Eustis entitled to his seat, his term of service to date from January 12, 1876; this report and resolution were adopted December 10, 1877, and Mr. Eustis appeared, qualified, and took his seat the same day.

[18] Served until February 20, 1878; succeeded by Joseph H. Acklen who contested his election.

[19] Successfully contested the election of C. B. Darrall, and took his seat February 20, 1878.

[20] Election unsuccessfully contested by George L. Smith.

[21] Died March 15, 1878.

[22] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of J. E. Leonard, and took his seat December 2, 1878.

[23] Election unsuccessfully contested by Charles E. Nash.

[24] Served until March 28, 1878; succeeded by Benjamin Dean who contested his election.

[25] Successfully contested the election of Walbridge A. Field, and took his seat March 28, 1878.

[40] Election unsuccessfully contested by Samuel W. McDowell.
[41] Resigned effective March 12, 1877.
[42] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Simon Cameron, and took his seat October 15, 1877.
[43] David T. Corbin claimed this seat; his credentials, with those of Mr. Butler, were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections; November 26, 1877, the committee, upon its request, was discharged from further consideration of Mr. Butler's credentials; November 30, 1877, a resolution that Mr. Butler be sworn in was agreed to by a vote of 29 to 28, the Vice President voting to break a tie; appeared and qualified the same day. On February 4, 1879, the committee reported that Mr. Corbin was entitled to the seat, and a resolution that he be sworn; the Senate refused to consider this report February 25, 1879, and on February 28 following the Vice President laid before the Senate a letter from Mr. Corbin withdrawing his claim, and no further action was taken.
[44] Election unsuccessfully contested by John S. Richardson.
[45] Died January 10, 1879, before the commencement of the Forty-sixth Congress, to which he had been reelected.
[46] Died December 22, 1878.
[47] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of B. B. Douglas, and took his seat February 8, 1879.

[16] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John B. Gordon, and took his seat May 26, 1880; subsequently elected.

[17] Election unsuccessfully contested by James McCabe.

[18] Died April 29, 1879.

[19] Elected to fill vacancy caused by the death of Rush Clark, and took his seat December 1, 1879.

[20] The credentials of Thomas C. Manning, appointed to fill vacancy caused by the death of Henry M. Spofford (August 20, 1880), contestant for this seat in the preceding Congress, were presented December 7, 1880; inasmuch as the Senate had taken no action upon the report that was favorable to Mr. Spofford, no action was taken upon Mr. Manning's credentials beyond referring them to the committee.

[21] Election unsuccessfully contested by E. Moody Boynton.

[22] Died November 1, 1879.

[23] Appointed to fill vacancy caused by death of Zachariah Chandler, and took his seat December 3, 1879; subsequently elected.

[24] Resigned March 3, 1881, before the commencement of the Forty-seventh Congress to which he had been reelected, having been elected Senator.

[1] Vice President Thomas A. Hendricks died in preceding Congress; Vice Presidency remained vacant until March 4, 1889.
[2] Reelected December 5, 1887.
[3] Reelected December 5, 1887.
[4] Election unsuccessfully contested by John V. McDuffie.
[5] Election unsuccessfully contested by Joseph D. Lynch.
[6] Elected May 19, 1887, and took his seat December 5, 1887; Jesse J. Finley was appointed by the governor on February 28, 1887, to fill the vacancy existing after March 4, 1887, until the next meeting of the legislature, but never qualified. Upon the request of the financial clerk of the Senate for an opinion as to his authority to pay Mr. Finley the salary due him as a Senator-designate, President pro tempore Ingalls held that it should not be done, as the appointment "was in anticipation of a vacancy, and not to fill a vacancy that existed, as contemplated by article 3 of the Constitution"; subsequently the Senate adopted a resolution to pay Mr. Finley for services rendered from March 4 to May 19, 1887.

[24] Election unsuccessfully contested by Robert Smalls.

[25] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect John H. Reagan in preceding Congress, and took his seat December 5, 1887.

[26] The Legislature of West Virginia had met and adjourned without electing a Senator for the term beginning March 4, 1887; on March 5, 1887, the governor appointed Daniel B. Lucas to fill such vacancy; on the same day he issued a proclamation calling the legislature in extraordinary session for eight specific purposes, the election of Senator not being named as one of them; the legislature proceeded to choose a Senator, and Charles J. Faulkner was elected; credentials of both Mr. Lucas and Mr. Faulkner were presented on December 5, 1887, and Mr. Faulkner appeared to be sworn, but objection was made and he was not permitted to qualify; December 14, 1887, the Senate adopted a report from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, to whom all papers were referred on the 12th, declaring Mr. Faulkner duly elected and entitled to the seat; appeared, qualified, and took his seat the same day.

[27] Elected on January 18, 1887, to fill vacancy caused by death of Representative-elect William T. Price in preceding Congress, but on account of illness did not take his seat until January 4, 1888.

[76] Election unsuccessfully contested by P. H. Thrasher.

[77] Resigned December 28, 1893, having been elected governor of Virginia.

[78] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Charles T. O'Ferrall, and took his seat February 12, 1894.

[79] Elected to fill vacancy in the term commencing March 4, 1893, and took his seat February 19, 1895. John B. Allen was appointed to fill such vacancy, the legislature having adjourned without electing his successor; credentials presented March 20, 1893 (special session of the Senate), but he was not permitted to qualify; on August 28, 1893, the Senate decided he was not entitled to the seat. Vacancy in this class from March 4, 1893, to January 31, 1895.

[80] Resigned, effective February 18, 1895, having been elected Senator.

[81] Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect John L. Mitchell in preceding Congress, and took his seat August 27, 1893.

[82] Died August 27, 1894.

[83] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of George B. Shaw, and took his seat December 3, 1894.

[84] Elected to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1893, caused by failure of legislature to elect, and took his seat February 6, 1895. Asahel C. Beckwith presented credentials as a Senator-designate March 15, 1893 (special session of the Senate), but was not sworn pending investigation of his right to the seat; resigned July 11, 1893, before final action by Senate; vacancy in this class from March 4, 1893, to January 22, 1895.

[62] Elected to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 1, 1899, caused by failure of legislature to elect, and took his seat February 4, 1901; vacancy in this class from March 4, 1899, to January 22, 1901.

[63] Brigham H. Roberts presented credentials as a Member-elect December 5, 1899, but was not sworn owing to protests against his eligibility; the House, on January 5, 1900, adopted a resolution declaring he "ought not to have or hold a seat, and the seat to which he was elected is hereby declared vacant." Mr. King was elected to fill vacancy caused by action of the House, and took his seat April 25, 1900.

[64] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Justin S. Morrill in preceding Congress, and took his seat December 3, 1900.

[65] Served until March 12, 1900; succeeded by Richard A. Wise who contested his election.

[66] Successfully contested the election of William A. Young, and took his seat March 12, 1900; died December 21, 1900.

[67] Died March 3, 1900.

[68] Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Sydney P. Epes, and took his seat April 28, 1900.

[69] In the preceding Congress memorials were filed remonstrating against the seating of Mr. Scott; December 5, 1899, appeared, qualified, and took his seat without objection; subsequently other memorials were filed and a resolution was introduced declaring him not entitled to a seat; the Committee on Privileges and Elections was directed to investigate the election, and reported, March 20, 1900, with a resolution declaring Mr. Scott duly elected and entitled to retain the seat; this resolution was agreed to April 27, 1900, by a vote of 52 to 3.

[70] Formed from the territory of the Republic of Hawaii, annexed to the United States by act of July 7, 1898, and granted a Delegate in Congress by act of April 30, 1900.

[71] Took his seat December 15, 1900, after the investigation of charges preferred against him as to eligibility.
