1 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

2 Congress finds the following:
(1) In an increasingly interdependent world, the health, prosperity, freedom, and security of the people of the United States are strengthened when the people of all countries can enjoy these same advantages.

(2) The development of a healthier, more peaceful, democratic, just and prosperous world requires the sustained and substantial investment of United States human and financial resources in fostering international cooperation and in building the capacity of other countries to meet the needs of their people and to conduct themselves responsibly in the international system.

(3) Foreign assistance is not only a reflection of the values, generosity, and goodwill of the people of the United States, but also an essential means for achieving United States foreign policy, economic, and national security objectives.

SEC. 3. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It is the policy of the United States to help build and sustain an international community composed of states that meet basic human needs, resolve conflicts peacefully, respect fundamental freedoms, cooperate to address issues that transcend national boundaries, use wisely the world’s limited resources in a sustainable manner, and work toward the achievement of economic well-being for all people.

SEC. 4. PRINCIPLES OF ASSISTANCE.

In order to maximize effectiveness and efficiency, United States foreign assistance should be carried out in accordance with the following principles:

(1) Foreign assistance is not an end in itself.
The purpose of foreign assistance is to create the conditions under which it is no longer needed.

(2) United States foreign assistance should support the development of human, financial, organizational, and technical capacity of partner countries, both within government and among civil society, that is sustainable over the long term and leads to self-reliance.

(3) United States foreign assistance, regardless of type, purpose, or recipient, should respect human rights and democratic processes.

(4) United States embassies and United States Agency for International Development missions in partner countries should be accorded a central role in planning, budgeting, and decisionmaking with respect to United States foreign assistance to those countries.
(5) United States foreign assistance programs should be carried out in collaboration with a wide variety of partners, including multilateral organizations, governments of partner countries at all levels, intermediate representative institutions, and international, United States, and local civil society organizations.

(6) Nonemergency United States foreign assistance should be provided pursuant to well-coordinated strategies with specific goals and measurable objectives, while preserving the flexibility to respond to rapidly changing situations.

(7) Monitoring and evaluation of United States foreign assistance should be conducted systematically to ensure financial accountability, evaluate performance, assess impact, determine lessons learned, disseminate findings, and identify steps for improvement.

(8) Because gender equality is essential to democracy, human rights and economic development, the needs, views, rights, roles, and resources of women should be taken into account in all stages of the foreign assistance process, including strategic planning, budgeting, design, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation.
(9) Because natural resources and a healthy, functioning environment underpin sustainable economic growth, health, and food security, the likely impact of United States foreign assistance policies and programs upon the environment should be taken into account in all stages of the foreign assistance process. Effective action should be taken to mitigate any negative impacts and to ensure that all people enjoy the same degree of protection from environmental and health hazards.

(10) The United States Government should publish timely, detailed, and comprehensive information on the budgeting, delivery, and expenditure of United States foreign assistance in order to enhance transparency and accountability for results and should encourage and facilitate similar transparency by the partner country regarding its national budget, government contracts, and aid-related expenditures.

(11) United States foreign assistance should be conducted within a coherent and coordinated structure that establishes clear lines of authority, delineates responsibilities, rationalizes functions, closes gaps, promotes policy consistency, and ensures civilian leadership.
(12) To ensure that United States foreign assistance achieves its intended objectives and to maximize its impact, the United States Government should design and implement such assistance in partnership with local stakeholders, including as appropriate and feasible, governments, intermediate representative institutions, civil society organizations, and affected communities.

(13) The success of United States foreign assistance in meeting humanitarian, foreign policy, and national security objectives depends on the sustained commitment of adequate and reliable budgetary resources as well as on the development, training, and maintenance of a diverse and experienced corps of professionals to design, manage, implement, and monitor such foreign assistance.

SEC. 5. PURPOSES OF ASSISTANCE.

United States foreign assistance under this Act shall be provided in accordance with the policy set forth in section 3 and the principles set forth in section 4 to achieve the following interrelated and mutually reinforcing purposes:

TITLE I—REDUCING GLOBAL POVERTY AND ALLEVIATING HUMAN SUFFERING

SEC. 1001. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:
(1) The abject and dehumanizing conditions of extreme poverty, which affect more than a billion people around the world, are inimical to the achievement of a healthy, peaceful, democratic, just and prosperous world and an affront to shared human values.

(2) A principal objective of United States foreign policy is reducing global poverty and its worst physical manifestations through the encouragement and sustained support of the people of developing countries in their efforts to acquire the knowledge and resources essential to building the economic, political, and social institutions that will improve the quality of their lives.

(3) Strengthening democratic governance and the political voice of poor and marginalized groups not only directly combats poverty but also helps build responsive, accountable state institutions essential to sustain the positive impact of foreign assistance over the long-term.

(4) United States efforts to reduce global poverty and alleviate human suffering reflect the compassion and generosity of the American people, while also serving United States economic and national security interests. Poor and unstable countries make unreliable trading partners and weak markets for United States goods and services. Violent extremism that threatens United States national security flourishes where democratic governance is weak, justice is uncertain, and legal avenues for change are in short supply.

(5) Complementing the long-term objective of reducing global poverty, the humanitarian concern and tradition of the people of the United States demands a commitment to saving lives and alleviating human suffering resulting from natural and human-caused disasters, and to taking effective action to prevent, prepare for, and mitigate such disasters.

(6) Pursuit of these interrelated objectives requires that development and humanitarian concerns be fully reflected throughout United States foreign policy, and that resources for these purposes be adequately and reliably budgeted and effectively and efficiently utilized.

(7) In order to achieve United States foreign policy and national security objectives, the United States should act in concert with other countries and multilateral institutions to mobilize adequate resources from public and private sources for poverty reduction and humanitarian relief.
SEC. 1002. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It is the policy of the United States to undertake best efforts to—

(1) reduce global poverty, including by establishing and meeting, in cooperation with governments of developing countries, other public and private donors, multilateral institutions, nongovernmental organizations, businesses, and affected communities, international targets for the reduction of poverty; and

(2) prevent, prepare for, mitigate, and respond to humanitarian crises wherever such crises may occur.

SEC. 1003. ENCOURAGEMENT OF UNITED STATES PRIVATE AND VOLUNTARY COOPERATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The sustained participation of United States private and voluntary organizations, community and faith-based organizations, charitable foundations, labor unions, cooperatives, and credit unions in international development and humanitarian relief, rehabilitation, and reconstruction significantly reduces poverty and alleviates human suffering through—

(A) application of accumulated expertise in the discipline of development;
(B) provision of social services in underserved communities;

(C) building the capacity of local organizations to operate with maximum effectiveness, thereby strengthening civil society and advancing self-reliance;

(D) establishing long-term partnerships with and between local communities, civil society organizations and governments of developing countries at all levels, thus helping to strengthen accountability, reduce corruption, build capable institutions, and sustain progress;

(E) empowering marginalized groups through access to information and a leadership role in decisionmaking processes; and

(F) serving as a voice for the poor and bringing best practices and lessons learned to bear on policymaking processes in the United States and worldwide.

(2) Such organizations, foundations, unions, and cooperatives, by mobilizing private United States financial and human resources, reflect the values and goodwill of the people of the United States and embody the American spirit of self-help.
(3) Advocacy groups and organizations that represent American political, legal, academic and business life have developed long-standing relationships with their overseas counterparts, helping to build people-to-people networks that strengthen civil society, protect human rights, support democratic institutions and foster a policy environment conducive to economic development.

(4) Similarly, the sustained participation of United States educational and research institutions in building the scientific, educational, and service capacities of developing countries is vital to the economic and social development of those countries, and at the same time strengthens the faculty and programs available to United States students.

(5) Because of their ability to attract and leverage private contributions, the entities described in paragraphs (1) through (4) are extremely cost-effective partners for providing foreign assistance.

(6) Because such entities, often using their own resources, develop and maintain long-term and independent relationships with their counterparts in foreign countries, they provide great expertise in program implementation, an important source of knowledge about local needs, attitudes, customs, and conditions, and a critical means for building trust and goodwill with local communities.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to—

(1) encourage and facilitate, as appropriate, international activities of United States private and voluntary organizations, community and faith-based organizations, charitable foundations, labor unions, cooperatives, credit unions, and educational and research institutions in furtherance of the goals of this title;

(2) co-design, co-fund, and co-manage projects and strategies with such entities to meet jointly agreed development objectives;

(3) strengthen the capacity of such entities, without compromising their private and independent nature, to undertake effective international assistance efforts; and

(4) streamline and simplify the process by which such entities may compete for resources made available under this title.

SEC. 1004. ENCOURAGEMENT OF UNITED STATES BUSINESS PARTICIPATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:
(1) United States businesses, including international development firms, are significant contributors to humanitarian relief and broad-based economic growth in developing countries, through—

(A) the donation of financial resources, technology, goods, and services;

(B) the sharing of training, technical, managerial, and business skills;

(C) the investment of capital and the development of trade relationships;

(D) the establishment and maintenance of partnerships with the governments of developing countries, local communities, and civil society organizations;

(E) partnering with local businesses and entrepreneurs;

(F) the expansion of job opportunities in impoverished communities; and

(G) the encouragement of private sector development and of the legal and institutional framework to support such development.

(2) Such businesses are often staffed by individuals with a strong commitment to and knowledge of developing countries, many of whom have served overseas, and who bring American values, know-how, and spirit of innovation.

(3) While some United States businesses have a long history of engagement with international development, bringing extensive experience, strong local ties and a proven track record of achievement, many others seek to establish first-time partnerships and new joint ventures.

(4) By leveraging contributions of United States businesses and facilitating public-private partnerships, the United States Government can maximize the impact of its efforts to improve social and economic conditions in developing countries.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to—

(1) encourage and facilitate, to the maximum extent practicable, participation by United States businesses in achieving the purposes of this title;

(2) promote awareness by United States businesses, including small businesses, of opportunities to promote economic growth and expand markets in developing countries;

(3) facilitate partnerships between United States business and international and local non-governmental organizations, including private and voluntary organizations, community and faith-based organizations, charitable foundations, labor unions, cooperatives, credit unions, and educational and research institutions, to reduce poverty and alleviate human suffering;

(4) build strategic alliances with United States businesses, drawing on their unique assets and experience, to solve complex problems in developing countries; and

(5) co-design, co-fund, and co-manage projects and strategies with United States business partners to meet jointly agreed development objectives.

SEC. 1005. DEVELOPMENT PARTNERSHIPS FELLOWS PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator is authorized and encouraged to establish a program of exchanges to strengthen individual and institutional capacity, share knowledge and best practices, build partnering skills and develop networks through professional exchanges between the Agency and the private sector, including businesses and nonprofit institutions.

(b) STRATEGIC FOCUS.—The exchanges authorized under subsection (a) should be designed to fill gaps and build capacity in areas of critical need, as determined by the Administrator and the private sector entity.
(c) COMPETITIVE AWARDS.—The process for selecting individuals for the exchanges authorized under subsection (a) should be open and competitive, while offering opportunities to individuals with varying levels of professional experience.

(d) STATUS OF EMPLOYMENT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, during the period of exchange—

(1) each participating individual (hereinafter referred to as a “Fellow”) shall continue to receive his or her salary, benefits, and rights of employment from the Agency or private sector entity, as the case may be; and

(2) in the case of a Fellow who is an employee of a private sector entity and is working at the Agency, the Fellow shall not be considered to be a Federal employee of the Agency, except for purposes of obtaining necessary access to buildings, office supplies, equipment and facilities.

(e) PARITY IN EXCHANGE.—The Administrator shall ensure that the total number of Fellows who are employees of the Agency and are working at private sector entities is substantially equivalent to the total number of Fellows who are employees of private sector entities and are working at the Agency.
(f) OTHER COSTS AND EXPENSES.—The Administrator shall prescribe policies and procedures regarding costs and expenses for Fellows other than policies and procedures regarding salaries and benefits.

(g) TERM OF SERVICE.—The Administrator shall determine appropriate lengths of service for Fellows, except that such service may not exceed a period of 2 years.

Subtitle A—Reducing Global Poverty

SEC. 1011. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The goal of international development is to improve the quality of life for all people while preserving that opportunity for future generations.

(2) Successful economic development includes the eradication of extreme poverty and its worst physical manifestations.

(3) Abuses of power, failure to respect human rights, exclusion of and discrimination against societal groups, and unchecked violence, particularly against women and girls, are impediments to economic development.

(4) While each country must marshal its own economic and human resources in order to build and maintain the political, social, and economic institutions necessary to reduce poverty and improve the certainty of life for its people, the magnitude of the need far exceeds the resources of most developing countries.

(5) The United States has acknowledged a collective responsibility for, as well as a national interest in, the reduction of global poverty through the promotion of long-term development that is participatory, equitable, self-reliant, and environmentally sustainable.

(6) A human rights-based approach that focuses on empowering women and girls has been shown to maximize development outcomes.

(7) Development is a long-term process that requires sustained attention and resources. Foreign assistance to achieve short-term political objectives or meet emergency humanitarian needs should not come at the expense of efforts to address the root causes of poverty and human suffering.

SEC. 1012. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It is the policy of the United States to reduce global poverty by helping poor people in developing countries to participate in a process of self-sustaining, equitable, and environmentally sound economic growth through productive work and to influence decisions that shape their lives, with the goal of increasing their incomes and their access to public services that will enable them to satisfy their basic needs, exercise their rights, and lead lives of decency, dignity, and hope.

SEC. 1013. PRINCIPLES OF ASSISTANCE.

In order to maximize the reduction of global poverty, assistance under this subtitle should be carried out in accordance with the following principles:

(1) Development is primarily the responsibility of the people of developing countries themselves. Assistance should be used in support of, rather than substitution for, the self-help efforts that are essential to successful economic development.

(2) Assistance should be demand-driven and designed to support partner country ownership by respecting the development goals chosen through an open and inclusive process in the partner country.

(3) The United States Government should work to broaden country-level policy dialogue on development by promoting an open and inclusive process for choosing development goals, and by increasing the capacity of all stakeholders to participate meaningfully in that process.

(4) Persons affected by conflict or disaster—including refugees, stateless persons, and internally displaced persons, particularly those in protracted situations—are among the world’s most vulnerable to poverty, exclusion, exploitation and other abuses. Although they have tremendous potential to contribute to the growth and development of the communities and countries where they reside, these populations often lack access to development resources and programs. Such populations, as well as other marginalized groups, must be explicitly included in country development programs and national development strategies.

(5) Assistance should be concentrated in countries that have the greatest need for outside assistance and that will make the most effective use of such assistance in achieving the purposes of this subtitle.

(6) Program selection and design should be linked to results, by using performance frameworks and indicators that are included in or consistent with a developing country’s national development strategy, where possible, and by strengthening the country’s capacity and demand for results-based management.

(7) When partner country systems are transparent, accountable and effective, the United States Government should use such systems for delivering assistance. Where use of such systems is not feasible, the United States should establish additional safeguards and measures in ways that strengthen rather than undermine country systems.

(8) Even in countries where there is a strong and capable state, civil society should be included in the planning, design, management, delivery, monitoring and evaluation of foreign assistance.

(9) Assistance should focus on building the self-sufficiency of developing countries by upgrading human, technical, and institutional capacity, both inside and outside government, to effectively plan, manage, implement, monitor, and evaluate budgets, policies, and programs in a transparent and accountable manner that supports development objectives.

(10) The United States Government should take all appropriate steps to harmonize its planning, funding, conditionality, disbursement, monitoring, evaluation, and reporting with governments of developing countries and with other donors, including multilateral institutions, in order to simplify and reduce the administrative burdens, achieve a more effective division of labor that builds on donors’ comparative advantages, and improve accountability for results.

(11) In consultation with Congress and in conjunction with the Interagency Policy Committee on Global Development established under section 1020, the Administrator should engage in strategic and budgetary planning over a 3- to 5-year period that will enable the disbursement of assistance in a more timely and predictable manner.

(12) Personnel and management systems of the Agency should incorporate incentives for innovation and experimentation, with tolerance of reasonable risk-taking and training on risk-management.

(13) Poverty reduction efforts should promote a policy environment and legal framework that is conducive to broad-based and sustainable economic growth, including—

(A) respect for the rule of law;

(B) fair, accessible, and timely administration of justice;

(C) representative and accountable institutions of governance;

(D) protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms;
(E) mechanisms of accountability and transparency;

(F) security of person, property and investments;

(G) enforcement of contracts and intellectual property rights;

(H) encouragement of private enterprise, free markets and labor rights; and

(I) a vibrant and informed civil society.

(14) An effective United States strategy to promote global poverty reduction and contribute to broad-based, sustainable economic growth must incorporate all United States policies having an impact on development, which include foreign assistance, debt relief, trade, agriculture, migration and remittances, environmental protection, technology transfer, and arms sales.

(15) Assistance should be provided in a manner that is flexible enough to adapt to the unique needs and capabilities of specific developing countries and changing situations on the ground, while remaining transparent and predictable enough to allow developing countries and other partners to plan and budget efficiently.
(16) Assistance should give priority to undertakings that will directly improve the lives of the poorest, most vulnerable and marginalized groups, and strengthen their capacity to participate in the political, economic, and social development of their countries.

(17) Investments in research, the fostering of innovation and the application of technology are essential to expanding the impact and effectiveness of development policies and programs. To ensure that such research, innovation and technology are appropriately harnessed, development assistance policies and programs should promote data collection and rigorous analysis, evidence-based decisionmaking, a culture of learning, a mechanism for scaling up successful methods and activities, and a process for sharing best practices.

(18) Gender equality is a matter of fundamental human rights, as well as being essential to the reduction of poverty and to the health, education and well-being of families and communities. Assistance should encourage and promote the full participation of women and girls in the decisions that affect their lives, elevate the role of women in their societies, ensure that women are fully integrated into
United States policies and programs, afford women opportunities to support themselves and their families, equip and empower women to serve as leaders and as agents of transformation, and protect women and girls against discrimination and violence.

(19) Assistance should promote the wise and efficient use of natural resources to ensure stable economic growth and a healthy environment in which to live, learn, and work.

(20) Policies and programs carried out under this subtitle should promote, protect, and ensure the full and equal enjoyment of all human rights and fundamental freedoms by all persons with disabilities, respect their inherent dignity, and encourage their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.

(21) International and United Nations-affiliated agencies and multilateral development institutions are essential components of United States poverty reduction efforts. The United States Government should recognize the comparative advantages of such institutions, particularly with respect to investments in capital-intensive projects and in countries and regions where the United States does not have a large physical presence, while supporting reforms to make such institutions more accountable, responsive, and representative. In addition to direct financial contributions, the United States Government should provide technical and logistical assistance to such institutions as appropriate.

(22) Private investment and philanthropy and individual remittances are increasingly important sources of development resources. The United States Government should help to link the United States private sector with appropriate local partners, to encourage private investment in economic and social development programs to which the United States lends support, and to ensure complementarity between public and private development efforts.

(23) Assistance should be planned and utilized to encourage regional cooperation among developing countries in the solution of common problems and the development of shared resources.

SEC. 1014. GOALS OF ASSISTANCE.

In order to reduce poverty in developing countries, assistance under this subtitle shall be designed to further the following goals:

(1) Accelerating economic growth.

(2) Promoting food security.

(3) Advancing health.
(4) Expanding quality education.

(5) Protecting and restoring the natural environment.

(6) Improving access to safe water, sanitation, and housing.

(8) Strengthening democratic governance.

(2) should, to the extent feasible and if cost-effective, procure required goods and services in the partner country, or, if local procurement is not feasible or cost-effective, in another developing country in the same region.

(e) FACTORS.—In determining the amount of assistance to be provided for each country the Administrator shall take into account the following factors:

(1) The absolute number and proportion of people in such country living in poverty.

(2) The country’s ranking on the Human Development Index or other similar measures of living standards and overall well-being.

(3) The country’s per capita income.
(4) The availability of domestic resources for development within such country.

(5) The availability of resources from other donors and investors in such country.

(6) The extent to which there is a political, social, and economic environment in such country that will enable funds to be used effectively and accountably to achieve lasting results.

(7) The performance record of the country in reducing poverty and responsibly using foreign assistance, if any, in the previous three to five-year period.

(8) The country’s demonstrated commitment to its own development, including investments in its people.

(9) Any other factors that the Administrator determines to be appropriate.

(d) CRITERIA AND METHODOLOGY.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall establish the criteria and methodology for determining the amount of assistance to be provided for each country under subsection (a). Such criteria and methodology shall—

(A) be based on the factors listed in subsection (c);
(B) use, to the maximum extent possible, objective and quantifiable indicators; and

(C) ensure that an appropriate proportion of funds are made available for each geographic region of the world.

(2) CONGRESSIONAL CONSULTATION.—The Administrator shall consult with the appropriate congressional committees on the criteria and methodology, including indicators, established pursuant to paragraph (1).

for a project or activity that constitutes an obligation of the full estimated amount of foreign assistance for the life of such project or activity.

CHAPTER 1—ACCELERATING ECONOMIC GROWTH

SEC. 1101. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Broad-based and sustainable economic growth is the most powerful engine for reducing poverty, and is key to advancing human development. It is the surest way for countries to generate the resources they need to address illiteracy, poor health, and other development challenges on their own.

(2) By expanding incomes, economic growth helps families and individuals not only to meet their basic needs, but also to realize their unique capabilities, exercise greater freedom in their lives, and achieve their full human potential.

(3) Economic growth enables countries to offer better markets for United States goods and services and to become more effective partners with the United States in working toward a more stable, healthy, and prosperous world.

(4) Well-functioning, dynamic private markets promote economic activity and accelerate growth, providing increased incomes and employment.

(5) To encourage entrepreneurship and private investment, developing countries must create a favorable legal, policy and regulatory environment; an efficient and accountable system of public financial management; fair, transparent and predictable enforcement of property rights and contracts; effective procedures for resolving economic disputes among firms and individuals; and rigorous efforts to stem bribery and corruption.

(6) Even where markets are functioning well, differential access to education, technology, credit and other resources can cause economic benefits to be uneven. Expanding economic opportunity and access to the tools that help citizens engage in the market economy enables the poor, women and other marginalized groups to participate in and contribute to economic growth.

(7) An abundance of young people in a country with a weak economy and non-responsive government can leave individuals frustrated by the lack of jobs and opportunities. But youth are also key human resources for growth and positive change. When governments embrace policies that promote education, economic opportunities, the empowerment of women, and equitable access to resources, countries can capitalize on the productivity of a growing workforce to boost economic growth.

(8) Expanding trade regionally and internationally is critical for many of the smallest and poorest developing countries, where local demand is too weak to support large-scale expansion of production, employment, and incomes. Building trade capacity and removing trade barriers are essential to lasting economic growth.

(9) Heavy debt burdens, often accumulated under prior, undemocratic regimes, can undermine the ability of developing countries to invest in their people and make progress fighting poverty.

(10) United States international trade and economic policies are often formulated with little recognition or consideration of their impact on developing countries. More active participation by the Agency in interagency decisionmaking processes can help achieve greater balance among competing United States interests, ensuring that development is duly considered as a priority of United States foreign policy.

(b) Statement of Policy.—It is the policy of the United States to work in cooperation with the international community to help partner countries achieve broad-based and sustainable economic growth that—

(1) includes all major income groups, marginalized groups and women;
(2) significantly reduces poverty;
(3) uses natural resources responsibly; and
(4) reduces dependence on foreign assistance.

SEC. 1102. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) Goal.—The goal of assistance under this chapter is to accelerate broad-based and sustainable economic growth.

(b) Objectives.—In furtherance of the goal described in subsection (a), assistance under this chapter shall be designed to help partner countries achieve the following objectives:

(1) Increase income-generating opportunities.
(2) Expand access to markets, capital, credit, land, and other productive resources.

(3) Enhance productivity through education and training.

(4) Improve the legal, regulatory and policy environment for business and trade.

(5) Build human and institutional capacity to compete in the global economy.

SEC. 1103. GLOBAL STRATEGY FOR ECONOMIC GROWTH.

(a) In general.—The strategy required under section 1019 with respect to accelerating economic growth shall be known as the “Global Strategy for Economic Growth”.

(b) Contents.—The Global Strategy for Economic Growth shall include, in addition to the elements required under section 1019(b), plans for achieving the goal and objectives of section 1102.

(c) Guidelines.—The Global Strategy for Economic Growth should—

(1) specify the role of microfinance and microenterprise development, including the resources to be devoted to promoting microenterprise;

(2) identify United States policies relating to trade, agriculture, debt, and other matters that have an impact on economic growth in developing countries, and recommend changes that would enhance development objectives;

(3) plan for long-term sustainability through linkages to regional and international markets and private investment;

(4) include mechanisms for increasing consultation, cooperation, and coordination with the private sector, in order to attract greater private sector participation in development activities;

(5) address the impact of remittances and identify ways that their development impact can be maximized;

(6) recommend methods for reducing illicit outflows of natural resources and capital from developing countries; and

(7) establish mechanisms for improving policy and program coordination among Federal agencies engaged in economic growth activities.

SEC. 1104. ASSISTANCE FOR ECONOMIC GROWTH.

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under section 1015 to further the goal and objectives of this chapter in partner countries.

(b) ACTIVITIES.—Assistance authorized under subsection (a) shall include the following:
(1) Expanding income generating opportunities for the poor, including women.

(2) Enhancing the workforce by, among other things, providing job training and vocational skills appropriate to local needs and conditions.

(3) Improving access, particularly of women and the poor, to markets and productive resources, including credit and financial services, affordable and resource-conserving technologies, technical and market-related information, and property and inheritance rights.

(4) Strengthening the legal, policy, and regulatory framework for broad-based and sustainable economic growth, including the protection of private property and intellectual property.

(5) Supporting the development of cooperatives, credit unions, and labor unions.

(6) Expanding local capacity and demand for collection and analysis of statistical information.

(7) Promoting the development, reform or restructuring, as appropriate, of financial, monetary, fiscal and regulatory systems.

(8) Building and strengthening institutional capacities to plan, analyze, implement, manage, monitor and evaluate economic policies and programs.
(9) Promoting sound financial management practices and budgetary policies, and reducing corruption, waste, fraud and abuse.

(10) Increasing private sector competitiveness, strengthening local and regional markets, building trade capacity, and expanding trade ties.

(11) Promoting collaboration between public and private sector entities for the reduction of poverty and its worst physical manifestations, and encouraging private sector investment in projects benefitting the poor.

(12) Facilitating the development of social safety nets, pension plans, insurance networks, and other mechanisms designed to improve income security.

(13) Protecting internationally recognized worker rights, especially with regard to child labor.

(14) Developing and identifying analytical tools and methodologies to enable effective targeting and measurement of programs for women, the poor and very poor.

(15) Increasing the transparency of budgets and procurement processes, and the effectiveness of oversight, monitoring, accountability and audit mechanisms.
SEC. 1105. FISCAL AND CONTRACT TRANSPARENCY.

(a) Establishment of International Standards.—The United States Government should seek, in appropriate multilateral fora, to establish voluntary international standards of fiscal and contract transparency, such as the public disclosure of budget documentation, including receipts and expenditures by ministry, and government contracts and licenses for natural resource extraction, including bidding and concession allocation practices.

(b) Partnerships for Transparency.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter to support improvements to fiscal and contract transparency in partner countries.

(c) Requirement.—The Administrator shall not provide direct government-to-government assistance under this Act for any government that fails to make its national budget publicly available on an annual basis.

(d) Definition.—In this section, the term “government-to-government assistance” means assistance for a project or activity that is managed directly by a partner government entity using its own financial management and procurement systems.

Subchapter A—Microenterprise Development Assistance

SEC. 1111. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:
(1) Access by women and the poor to financial and business development services is a vital factor in reducing poverty and promoting sustainable economic growth in developing countries.

(2) Microfinance and microenterprise development programs have demonstrated high impact and long-term sustainability because they build capacity for self-help among the poor, especially women, thereby broadening the base for and increasing the inclusiveness of economic growth.

(3) In order to ensure that microenterprise programs promote the maximum financial inclusion of women, gender analysis should be integrated into microenterprise program design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation.

(4) A comprehensive approach to microenterprise development includes support for the provision of credit, savings, insurance, education and training, technical assistance, business development, and other financial services to women, poor people, and other marginalized groups.

(5) Microenterprise development and microfinance are particularly important to enhancing the livelihoods of refugees, displaced persons, and those affected by conflict, whose routine employment op-opportunities and access to productive resources have been reduced or disrupted.

(6) Microenterprise and microfinance activities should be thoroughly integrated into all aspects of development, especially including agriculture and health.

(7) United States Government support for microfinance and microenterprise development should complement private initiatives in this area by focusing on those who lack access to formal financial services, and on countries and sectors that have been underserved by private capital flows.

(8) United States Government funds should be used to catalyze and attract additional resources, including private sector funds, investment funds, and the savings of the poor, such as through matching fund opportunities and challenge grants.

(9) United States Government-supported microfinance lending should accept a higher level of risk than private lending in order to promote innovative products and methodologies and serve poorer and harder-to-reach populations.

(10) United States Government support for microenterprise development and microfinance should build the capacity of local institutions in order to enable them to better meet the credit, savings, and training needs of microfinance and microenterprise clients.

(11) Microfinance and microenterprise activities, especially those benefitting the very poor, should be a significant component of development assistance.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to promote a global strategy of financial inclusion for all, and especially the very poor and women, through support for microfinance and microenterprise development in partner countries.

SEC. 1112. MICROENTERPRISE FUND.

(7) Providing targeted core support for microfinance and microenterprise networks and other practitioners.

(c) Targeting of Assistance.—

(1) Very poor and women.—At least 50 percent of the assistance provided through the Microenterprise Fund shall be targeted to microenterprise clients who are very poor, and a significant proportion of such assistance shall be targeted to women.
(2) Poverty Assessment Tools.—In targeting assistance pursuant to paragraph (1), the Administrator shall identify, field-test, and certify for use no fewer than two low-cost methods to assess the poverty levels of incoming or prospective clients of microenterprise institutions, and shall require that all private partners use one of the certified methods.

(d) Private Partners.—Assistance provided through the Microenterprise Fund shall emphasize the use of private partners who—

(1) match such assistance, to the greatest extent practicable, with non-United States Government resources, including funds from other donors, commercial or concessional borrowing, participant savings, and program income;

(2) maintain low overhead and administrative costs;

(3) are highly technically competitive;

(4) design their programs to meet the needs of women;

(5) target their resources at the very poor;

(6) design their programs for maximum financial sustainability; and
(7) adopt robust client protection principles and incorporate them into their practices.

SEC. 1113. OFFICE OF MICROENTERPRISE DEVELOPMENT.

(a) Establishment.—There is established within the Agency an Office of Microenterprise Development (hereafter in this section referred to as the “Office”), which shall be headed by a Director who shall be appointed by the Administrator and who should possess technical expertise and ability to offer leadership in the field of microenterprise development.

(b) Responsibilities.—The Office shall be responsible for—

(1) administering the Microenterprise Fund established under section 1112;

(2) developing a comprehensive and coherent plan, which shall be made available to the public, for promoting financial inclusion for all through microfinance and microenterprise development programs;

(4) advising and providing technical support to Agency missions regarding the design and implementation of microfinance and microenterprise development programs, including through incorporation of such programs into Country Development Cooperation Strategies;

(5) setting performance goals and indicators to ensure that microfinance and microenterprise development activities benefit the very poor and women; and

Subchapter B—Small and Medium Enterprise Development

SEC. 1121. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Small and medium enterprises (SMEs) are key drivers of competition, growth, and job creation, particularly in developing countries. They make up an estimated 90 percent of businesses and over 50 percent of employment worldwide.

(2) Access to financial services for SMEs remains severely constrained in many emerging markets.

(3) The global financial crisis created a financing gap that particularly affected SMEs, making it more difficult for these enterprises to find the capital to grow their businesses and create jobs.

(4) Even as liquidity is restored to financial institutions, lending volumes remain depressed and SMEs still have limited access to financing.
(5) The lack of agribusinesses in rural areas has contributed to the growth of urban slums and a burgeoning population of disaffected youth.

(6) Increasing access to finance for SMEs is best achieved by increasing the depth and breadth of local financial markets and boosting the competitiveness of the private financial sector.

(7) Enabling growth—and ensuring that poor people can participate—requires an environment where people are able to start and grow businesses, as well as create more jobs.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to encourage entrepreneurship and expand the formal sector in partner countries by—

(1) building the capacity of SMEs;

(2) increasing SME access to financial services, technology, training, and other resources; and

(3) reducing the legal and bureaucratic hurdles to starting a business.

SEC. 1122. ASSISTANCE FOR SMALL AND MEDIUM ENTERPRISES.

The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter for programs to encourage entrepreneurship and strengthen small and medium enterprises in partner countries, including:
(1) Training in entrepreneurship, including basic business management, accounting, bookkeeping, marketing, risk management, and computer skills.

(2) Agriculture entrepreneurship training, particularly to increase employment opportunities in rural areas.

(3) Establishing youth entrepreneurship programs in schools or through community partnerships with business and youth organizations to promote economic skills, ethics, integrity, and healthy life skills among youth.

(4) Strengthening laws, regulations, and enforcement mechanisms to protect national and international intellectual property rights and to protect the people and industries of developing countries against imported counterfeit goods.

(5) Combating anti-competitive, unethical, and corrupt practices.

(6) Improving the technology and information resources of financial institutions and small and medium enterprises.

(7) Promoting the establishment of lending programs of financial institutions for small and medium enterprises.
(8) Developing internal credit rating systems and credit assessment tools that improve the ability of financial institutions to evaluate risk.

(9) Programs specifically targeted to small and medium enterprises owned by women, youth, and displaced persons.

SEC. 1123. DEFINITION.

In this subchapter, the term “small and medium enterprise” means a corporation, sole proprietorship, partnership, or other legal entity that—

(1) has its principal place of business in a partner country;

(2) is owned or controlled by persons who are citizens of such partner country; and

(3) has fewer than 50 employees.

Subchapter C—Other Programs

(d) Terms and Conditions of Credit Assistance.—

(1) In General.—Assistance provided under this section shall be offered on such terms and conditions, including fees charged, as the Administrator may determine.

(3) Fraud and Misrepresentation.—No payment may be made under any guarantee issued under this section for any loss arising out of fraud or misrepresentation for which the party seeking payment is responsible.

(e) Full Faith and Credit.—All guarantees issued under this section shall constitute obligations, in accordance with the terms of such guarantees, of the United States of America and the full faith and credit of the United States of America is hereby pledged for the full payment and performance of such obligations to the ment or risk of the United States in any one development activity may not exceed 80 percent of the total outstanding investment or risk.

(g) Eligible Borrowers.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to be eligible to receive credit assistance under this section, a borrower shall be sufficiently credit worthy so that the esti-

Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990) of the proposed credit assistance for the borrower does not exceed 30 percent of the principal amount of credit assistance to be received.

(2) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENT.—
(A) IN GENERAL.—With respect to the eligibility of a foreign government as an eligible borrower under this section, the Administrator shall make a determination that the additional debt of the government will not exceed the debt repayment capacity of the government.

(B) CONSULTATION.—In making a determination under paragraph (A), the Administrator shall consult, as appropriate, with international financial institutions and other institutions or agencies that assess debt service capacity.

(h) ASSESSMENT OF CREDIT RISK.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall use the Interagency Country Risk Assessment System (ICRAS) and the methodology approved by the Office of Management and Budget to assess the cost of risk credit assistance provided under this section to foreign governments.

(2) CONSULTATION.—With respect to the provision of credit to nongovernmental organizations, the Administrator—

(A) shall consult with appropriate private sector institutions, including large United States private sector debt rating agencies, prior to establishing the risk assessment standards and methodologies to be used; and

(B) shall periodically consult with such institutions in reviewing the performance of such standards and methodologies.

(3) Use of Cost and Risk Assessment Determinations of Private Sector Co-Financing Entities.—In addition, if the anticipated share of financing attributable to public sector owned or controlled entities, including the Agency, exceeds 49 percent, the Administrator shall determine the cost (as defined in section 502(5) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990) of such assistance by using the cost and risk assessment determinations of the pritate sector co-financing entities.

(i) Retention of Receipts Collected.—Receipts collected pursuant to this section, and the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, in an amount not to exceed the amount appropriated for a fiscal year, shall be credited as offsetting collections for Development Support Funds, and shall be used to reduce, on a dollar-for-dollar basis, appropriations for that purpose. Amounts collected in a fiscal year in excess of obligations shall remain available until expended.
SEC. 1132. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT.

U.S.C. 4802)) or of any chief of mission (including the powers or functions described in section 207 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 (22 U.S.C. 3927)).

(g) TERMINATION OF ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall conclude assistance activities for a recipient foreign government or foreign central bank under the program established under subsection (a) if the Secretary of the Treasury, after consultation with the appropriate officers of the United States, determines that such assistance has resulted in the enactment of laws or the establishment of institutions in that country that promote fiscal stability and administrative procedures, efficient resource allocation, transparent and market-oriented processes and private sector growth in a sustainable manner.

(h) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITU-TION.—The term “international financial institution” means the International Monetary Fund, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Develop-

CHAPTER 2—PROMOTING FOOD SECURITY

SEC. 1201. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Hunger robs the poor of a healthy and productive life and stunts the mental and physical development of the next generation. The persistence of widespread hunger and malnutrition constitutes an affront to shared moral values and humanitarian principles.

(2) Food insecurity and chronic hunger are expanding rapidly in developing countries, forcing millions of people into poverty, contributing to political and social instability, eroding economic growth, and undermining investments in basic education, health, environmental protection, and democratic institutions.

(3) Volatility and real increases in food prices, which are expected to grow as grain production fails to keep pace with rising demand, cause food insecurity and hunger for poor people even when sufficient food is available on the market.

(4) The changing global climate, as well as the degradation of land and water resources, threatens food security, livelihoods and the environment worldwide but particularly for those already most vulnerable: the millions of rural poor in developing countries.

(5) The pressures on world food supplies and agricultural land use caused by population growth, rapid urbanization, energy, agricultural and trade policies in industrialized countries, water scarcity, and climate change require a global commitment to sustainable agriculture and the environment.

(6) Lack of transparent regulations, inconsistent and unpredictable public policies in developing and developed countries, and unreliable mechanisms to enforce contracts between businesses serve to undermine development goals, deter private investment, and limit the ability of agricultural producers and businesses to access capital. This situation reduces the incentives for agricultural producers to increase the quantity, quality, and value of their agricultural production.
(7) Reducing chronic hunger is essential to build a foundation for investments in health, education and economic growth. It is critical to the security and productivity of individuals, families, communities, and nations.

(8) Approximately three-quarters of people in developing countries live in rural areas, with the vast majority dependent on agriculture for their livelihoods. Agricultural development is a proven engine of growth that reduces global hunger and poverty.

(9) Women will be a pivotal force behind achieving a food secure world. In many developing countries, farming is done mostly by women. However, women only own 2 percent of land worldwide and often have limited access to agriculture inputs, loans, and opportunities to learn about improved techniques. When gains in income are controlled by women, they are more likely to be spent on food and children’s needs, thus amplifying the benefits of investments in women across families and generations.

(10) The 1,000 days between a woman’s pregnancy and her child’s second birthday offer a unique window of opportunity to help families, communities, and countries break the cycle of poverty. Solutions to improve maternal and child nutrition in the
1,000-day window are readily available, affordable, and cost-effective, including vitamins and minerals and good nutritional practices, such as breastfeeding.

(11) A comprehensive approach to long-term food security should encompass improvements in—

(A) food availability, such that sufficient quantities of appropriate, necessary types of food are consistently available to all persons;

(B) food access, such that individuals have adequate incomes or other resources to consistently maintain an adequate diet, and food is allocated equitably within households;

(C) food utilization and consumption, such that people have the knowledge and basic sanitary conditions to choose, store, prepare and distribute food in a way that results in good nutrition for all family members;

(D) stability, such that the ability to access and utilize food remains stable and sustained over time, regardless of adverse weather conditions, political instability, or economic factors; and

(E) food quality and safety, such that food supplies provide adequate nutritional value, are free of contamination, and are fit for human consumption.

(12) The greatest potential for significantly expanding availability of food for people in rural areas and augmenting world food production at relatively low cost lies in increasing the productivity of small farmers, who constitute a majority of the agricultural producers in developing countries.

(13) However, increasing the efficiency of agricultural producers alone will not result in higher incomes and reduced hunger unless surplus harvest and products can be sold in well-functioning local, national, regional, or international markets. Development of strong, integrated, local, national, and regional agriculture and food markets will increase the availability of safe and nutritious food, decrease local prices, and expand economic growth.

(14) The United States should emphasize policies and programs that assist developing countries to increase their national food security by improving their food policies and management and by strengthening national food reserves, with particular concern for the needs of the poor, through measures encouraging domestic production.
(15) The long-term food security of developing countries requires that adequate legal and procedural mechanisms are in place to protect local rights and the welfare of rural poor people who depend on agriculture for their livelihoods.

(16) While the United States cannot be expected to shoulder the majority of global investments in ending hunger and providing food security, the United States can and should lead the international community by demonstrating a sustained commitment and a comprehensive approach to meeting international goals and targets for reducing hunger and undernutrition.

(17) Partner countries should decide their needs, priorities, and strategies for agricultural development and food security through an open, participatory and inclusive process that takes into account the needs and views of poor people, women, and other marginalized groups. International efforts to improve food security and nutritional status are not sustainable over the long term without robust leadership and ownership by partner countries.

(18) Nongovernmental organizations and cooperatives are particularly important for combating food insecurity and increasing the sustainability of public investments. Given their close ties to local communities, such organizations and cooperatives are often effective at ensuring that people who are very poor and vulnerable are consulted about and benefit from agricultural and nutrition programs.

(19) Educational and research institutions play a key role in developing the institutional capacity and human resources of developing countries, including the establishment and strengthening of agricultural research and extension services, the development of networks for scientific collaboration, the dissemination of improved methods and technologies, and the training of students, teachers, researchers and practitioners.

(20) With their convening authority and technical expertise, multilateral institutions play a central role in efforts to enhance food security by providing emergency assistance, undertaking research and analysis, offering a platform for sector-wide investments in agriculture, and providing a significant portion of the external financing for investment projects and programs in developing countries. They are important not only to mobilizing and coordinating donor country commitments, but also to promoting global mutual accountability among donors, partner countries and other stakeholders.

(21) Public sector investments alone, while important, are not sufficient to sustainably reduce poverty and food insecurity. The private sector brings necessary financial resources, human capital, technological resources, intellectual property, market access, cutting-edge business practices, in-country networks, and other relevant experience.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to recognize the human right to food and to work in cooperation with the international community to end hunger and achieve universal food security.

SEC. 1202. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) GOAL.—The goal of assistance under this chapter is to sustainably reduce global hunger.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—In furtherance of the goal of subsection (a), assistance under this chapter shall be designed to help partner countries achieve the following objectives:

(1) Accelerating inclusive agriculture sector growth.

(2) Improving nutritional status, especially of women and children and other vulnerable populations.
(3) Increasing resilience in vulnerable rural communities.

(a) In General.—The strategy required under section 1019 with respect to food security shall be known as the “Global Strategy for Food Security”.

(b) Contents.—The Global Strategy for Food Security shall include, in addition to the elements required under section 1019(b), plans for achieving the goal and objectives of section 1202.

(c) Guidelines.—The Global Strategy for Food Security should—

(1) address the root causes of hunger that limit the potential of millions of people;

(2) reduce gender inequality and integrate gender concerns;

(3) promote climate-resistant and environmentally sustainable agricultural development;

(4) concentrate efforts and resources on core countries where the Rome Principles (as defined in section 1208) can best be realized;

(5) be tailored to improving the nutritional status of women, infants and children, particularly during the 1,000 day critical window of opportunity between a woman's pregnancy and her child’s second birthday, in which a set of proven nutrition interventions can dramatically improve the child’s chances of surviving and living a healthy and prosperous life;

(6) invest in country-owned plans that are designed through an open, participatory, and inclusive process and support results-based programs and partnerships;

(7) strengthen strategic coordination to mobilize and align the resources of diverse partners and stakeholders;

(8) ensure a comprehensive approach that accelerates inclusive agricultural-led growth and improves nutrition, while also bridging humanitarian relief and sustainable development efforts;

(9) leverage the benefits of multilateral institutions so that priorities and approaches are aligned, investments are coordinated, and financial and tech-ical assistance gaps are filled; and

(10) deliver on sustained and accountable commitments, using benchmarks and targets to measure progress toward shared goals, and hold the United States and other stakeholders publicly accountable for achieving results.

(8) advancing women’s leadership in science and technology through proactive recruitment, mentoring, and targeted research support;

(9) formulating approaches to improving agricultural and nutrition education and extension that is relevant to agricultural producers, their needs, and the local environment;

(10) creating platforms for improving national capacity to collect, develop, analyze, and disseminate agricultural, nutrition, and market data; and

(11) developing mechanisms to hold research institutions accountable for delivering technologies to agricultural producers.

(b) RESEARCH PRIORITIES.—In providing assistance for agricultural research under this section, the Administrator should give priority to research that—

(1) is aimed at improving food security;

(2) specifically addresses the nutritional needs of vulnerable populations;

(3) is appropriate to local conditions and practices;

(4) conserves the environment and natural resources and adapts to and mitigates the impacts of climate change; and

(5) builds local capacity.
SEC. 1206. BOARD FOR INTERNATIONAL FOOD AND AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT.

(3) the International Fund for Agricultural Development;
(4) the Global Agriculture and Food Security Program; and
(5) the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research.

SEC. 1208. DEFINITIONS.

In this chapter:

(1) FOOD PRODUCERS.—The term “food producers” includes farmers, pastoralists, fishers, and other persons who cultivate or harvest plants or raise animals (terrestrial or aquatic) for consumption.

(2) INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION.—The term “institutions of higher education” means—

(A) those colleges or universities in each State, territory, or possession of the United States, or the District of Columbia, now receiving, or which may hereafter receive, benefits under the Act of July 2, 1862 (known as the First Morrill Act), or the Act of August 30, 1890 (known as the Second Morrill Act), which are commonly known as “land-grant” universities;

(B) institutions now designated or which may hereafter be designated as sea-grant colleges under the Act of October 15, 1966 (known as the National Sea Grant College and Program Act), which are commonly known as sea-grant colleges;

(C) Native American land-grant colleges as authorized under the Equity in Educational Land-Grant Status Act of 1994 (7 U.S.C. 301 note); and

(D) other United States colleges and universities which—

(i) have demonstrable capacity in teaching, research, and extension (including outreach) activities in the agricultural sciences; and

(ii) can contribute effectively to the advancement of the goal and objectives of this chapter.

(3) ROME PRINCIPLES.—The term “Rome Principles” means the Rome Principles for Sustainable Food Security, endorsed by 193 countries at the 2009 World Summit on Food Security, which are as follows:

(A) Invest in country-owned plans, aimed at channeling resources to well-designed and results-based programs and partnerships.

(B) Foster strategic coordination at national, regional and global level to improve governance, promote better allocation of resources, avoid duplication of efforts and identify response-gaps.

(C) Strive for a comprehensive twin-track approach to food security that consists of—

(i) direct action to immediately tackle hunger for the most vulnerable, and

(ii) medium- and long-term sustainable agricultural, food security, nutrition and rural development programs to eliminate the root causes of hunger and poverty, including through the progressive realization of the right to adequate food.

(D) Ensure a strong role for the multilateral system by sustained improvements in efficiency, responsiveness, coordination and effectiveness of multilateral institutions.
(E) Ensure sustained and substantial commitment by all partners to investment in agriculture and food security and nutrition, with provision of necessary resources in a timely and reliable fashion, aimed at multi-year plans and programs.

CHAPTER 3—ADVANCING HEALTH

SEC. 1301. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Saving and enhancing lives through better health is a moral imperative that reflects fundamental humanitarian values.

(2) Strategic investments in global health can spur progress in economic development, job creation, education, agricultural development, gender equity and political stability.

(3) Because disease knows no national bounds and can breed hopelessness and despair, support for global health bolsters United States national security. Such support also builds constructive partnerships with other governments, with multilateral institutions, between public and private enterprises, and from people to people.

(4) United States global health programs should prioritize the poorest and most vulnerable segments of the world’s population, including women, newborns and children, persons with disabilities, and marginalized communities, and should be designed with their participation wherever possible.

(5) Research and innovation play a critical role in achieving health objectives worldwide, fostering the development and introduction of new and improved health products and practices and contributing to better policies.

(6) For maximum effectiveness, global health programs must be closely integrated with efforts to advance nutrition, improve hygiene, and expand access to clean water, sanitation, and housing.

(7) To make health investments sustainable over the long term, the United States should help build the capacity of—

(A) governments of partner countries to plan and budget responsibly, allocate and disburse funds equitably, and provide reliable and cost-effective health care; and

(B) civil society to participate in decision-making, carry out activities and monitor service delivery.
(8) In order to provide for sustainable financing of health care, developing countries must create strong economies and stable tax bases.

(9) By setting clear goals and targets and identifying appropriate resources, a comprehensive, multiyear global health strategy can help to ensure policy focus and consistency, promote program integration, strengthen transparency and accountability, build congressional and public support, and accelerate results.

(10) Multilateral approaches offer a vital and necessary complement to bilateral programs. By pooling their resources and harmonizing priorities, the United States and multilateral organizations are better able to meet global challenges, mobilize effective leadership and extend the reach and impact of programs.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to work in cooperation with the international community to save the greatest possible number of lives and to help countries develop their own capacity to improve the health of their own people.
SEC. 1302. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) GOAL.—The goal of assistance under this chapter is to achieve sustained improvements in health status and health systems in partner countries.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—In furtherance of the goal of subsection (a), assistance under this chapter shall be designed to help partner countries achieve the following objectives, including by strengthening health systems:

(1) Saving the lives of mothers and children.

(2) Protecting communities from disease, both infectious and noncommunicable.

(3) Creating an AIDS-free generation.

(4) Preventing unintended pregnancies and improving reproductive health.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The strategy required under section 1019 with respect to advancing health shall be known as the “Global Health Strategy”.

(b) CONTENTS.—The Global Health Strategy shall include, in addition to the elements required under section 1019(b), plans for achieving the goal and objectives of section 1302.

(c) GUIDELINES.—The Global Health Strategy should—

(1) focus on women, girls, and gender equality;
(2) encourage country ownership and invest in country-led plans;

(3) build sustainability through health systems strengthening;

(5) increase impact through strategic coordination and integration, including with efforts in related areas such as nutrition, water, sanitation, and hygiene;

(6) promote learning and accountability through monitoring and evaluation;

(7) accelerate results through research and innovation;

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under section 1015 to further the goal and objectives of this chapter in partner countries.
(b) Activities.—Assistance authorized under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) supporting the development, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of a country’s national health strategy;

(2) supporting the recruitment, training, management, retention, effectiveness and equitable distribution within each country of skilled health workers;

(3) facilitating the development of partnerships and collaboration with educational and research institutions, private corporations, nongovernmental organizations, multilateral institutions and other donors, both public and private;

(4) building the capacity of local nongovernmental organizations to participate effectively in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of health strategies and systems;

(5) strengthening financial management, accounting, auditing and reporting systems;

(6) establishing surveillance systems to detect, identify, and respond to emerging health threats, including monitoring the spread of disease among animal and plant populations;
(7) identifying, preparing for and responding to health-related threats posed by climate change, pollution and other environmental factors;

(12) building government capacity to coordinate and harmonize the delivery of health services provided by various donors;

(13) developing and improving laboratory research and testing capacity; and

(14) promoting a legal, policy and regulatory framework conducive to the advancement of public health and sustainable health care financing.
(c) Programs.—Assistance under this chapter includes programs—

(1) for child survival and maternal health, as described in subchapter A;

(2) to combat disease, as described in subchapter B;

(3) for family planning and reproductive health, as described in subchapter C; and

(4) for research, innovation and development of health technologies, products and practices to advance global health and the objectives of this chapter.

SEC. 1305. HEALTH PRINCIPLES AND RESTRICTIONS.

(a) Principles.—Funds made available to carry out this chapter shall be provided in accordance with the following principles:

(1) Patients shall be provided with evidence-based, high-quality, courteous care that upholds internationally recognized human rights and protects human dignity.

(2) Patients shall have their privacy respected and the confidentiality of their medical information protected to the maximum extent practicable, with free access to their own health records.
(3) Patients shall be provided with accurate health information and quality care on an equitable basis, without discrimination of any kind, coercion or violence, and in a manner that prevents and reduces stigma.

(4) Patients shall have the right to make their own decisions about their health, and shall be provided with relevant, current, medically accurate and understandable information concerning preventive health, diagnosis, all available treatments, and prognosis, including the risks and benefits of each treatment and any costs involved, except in emergency situations where the patient lacks decisionmaking capacity and the need for an intervention is urgent, or where there is an imminent risk to public health.

(5) Patients and individuals participating in biomedical research and experimental treatments shall do so on a strictly voluntary basis, with valid informed consent processes in place, and shall be fully advised of potential risks and benefits.

(b) RESTRICTIONS.—None of the funds made available to carry out this title may be used—

(1) for the performance of abortion as a method of family planning;
(2) to coerce any person to undergo an abortion;

(3) for the performance of involuntary sterilization as a method of family planning;

(4) to coerce any person to undergo sterilization; or

(5) for any biomedical research which relates, in whole or in part, to methods of, or the performance of, abortion or involuntary sterilization as a method of family planning.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) the term “abortion as a method of family planning” does not include—

(A) abortions provided in the case of rape or incest or to protect the life or health of a woman; or

(B) treatment for the complications of induced, spontaneous, or unsafely performed abortions.

(2) the term “all available treatments” means all treatments that are legally available in the partner country; and

(3) the term “patients” includes the legal guardians of minors and persons who are incapacitated.
Subchapter A—Child Survival and Maternal Health

SEC. 1311. CHILD SURVIVAL.

The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding any other provision of law except for this chapter, to use funds made available under this chapter for programs to reduce child mortality, including the following:

(1) Increasing access to and utilization of appropriate interventions to treat life-threatening childhood illnesses, such as polio, measles, diarrhea, and respiratory infections.

(2) Improving child and maternal nutrition, including the delivery of iron, folic acid, zinc, vitamin A, iodine, and other key micronutrients and macronutrients.

(3) Preventing the spread of childhood disease and improving child nutrition by expanding access to clean water, improving sanitation, and promoting good hygiene practices.

(4) Reducing household dangers, including exposure to environmental toxins and indoor smoke from cooking fires.

(5) Strengthening early childhood development, including through early nutrition, parenting programs and early education.
(6) Enhancing the quality, availability and sustainability of key child health interventions by improving health care systems, building local capacity, and promoting positive health policies.

SEC. 1312. MATERNAL AND NEWBORN HEALTH.

The Administrator is authorized, notwithstanding any other provision of law except for this chapter, to use funds made available under this chapter for programs to reduce the mortality of, and improve the health of, mothers and newborns, including the following:

(1) Strengthening preparation for childbirth through education, antenatal care, access to skilled birth attendants, preventing, detecting, and treating infections, and planning for transport.

(2) Improving maternal and child nutritional status through dietary improvements, nutrition education and appropriate micronutrient interventions.

(3) Actively discouraging, preventing and responding to harmful behaviors, such as gender-based violence, child marriage and female genital cutting.

(4) Promoting safe delivery, birth spacing, and postpartum care, including recognition, referral, and treatment of maternal and newborn complications.
(5) Promoting healthy practices such as breastfeeding, proper rest, good hygiene, and nutrition.

(6) Preventing and responding to long-term disability as a result of pregnancy and birth, including obstetric fistula and anemia.

(7) Improving long-term capacity and systems of local institutions to provide quality maternal health care.

SEC. 1313. ASSISTANCE FOR ORPHANS AND OTHER VULNERABLE CHILDREN.

The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter to provide basic care and services for orphans and other vulnerable children, including:

(1) Enabling community-based organizations to provide basic care for orphans and other vulnerable children.

(2) Providing school feeding, including the purchase of local or regional foodstuffs where appropriate.

(3) Increasing primary school enrollment through the elimination of school fees, where appropriate, or other barriers to education while ensuring that adequate resources exist for teacher training and infrastructure.
(4) Providing employment training and related services for orphans and other vulnerable children who are of legal working age.

(5) Protecting and promoting the legal and inheritance rights of orphans, other vulnerable children, and widows, and addressing discrimination they often face.

(9) Increasing access to adequate housing and reliable, safe drinking water, sanitation, and hygiene education and supplies.
(10) Integrating gender to ensure the unique needs of girl and boy orphans and vulnerable children are met.

Subchapter B—Combating Disease

SEC. 1321. ASSISTANCE TO COMBAT HIV/AIDS, TUBERCULOSIS, AND MALARIA.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the global HIV/AIDS pandemic poses a humanitarian, economic and security crisis of unprecedented magnitude that requires urgent and sustained attention;

(2) worldwide, women of childbearing age account for more than half of people living with HIV/AIDS;

(3) tuberculosis is the leading killer of people with HIV/AIDS, and the spread of drug resistant tuberculosis presents a persistent public health threat to the United States;

(4) malaria imposes an enormous burden on the social and economic development of poor countries, can be prevented through cost-effective means, and can be cured if promptly diagnosed and adequately treated;

(5) the creation of the United States President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) in 2003 was the largest commitment by any nation to combat a single disease, establishing and expanding the infrastructure necessary to deliver prevent-tion, care, and treatment services in low-resource settings;

(6) due to PEPFAR and multilateral initiatives such as the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, significant strides have been made in preventing new cases of disease, treating affected persons, training health care workers, and educating families and communities; and

(7) to be most sustainable and have the greatest positive impact, programs to combat HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria should be coordinated and integrated with other global health and health-related programs, including maternal and child health, group planning and reproductive health, nutrition, and water, sanitation, and hygiene.

(b) AUTHORIZATION.—The President is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter to—

(1) carry out the United States Leadership Against HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria Act of 2003 (Public Law 108–25), as amended by this Act, and other related laws, including the Tom Lan-tos and Henry J. Hyde United States Global Leadership Against HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria Reauthorization Act of 2008 (Public Law 110–293), the Global AIDS and Tuberculosis Relief Act of 2000 (Public Law 106–264), and the International Malaria Control Act of 2000 (Public Law 106–570); and

(2) contribute to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria and the GAVI Alliance.

(c) OTHER LAWS SUPERSEDED.—The President may exercise the authority of subsection (b) notwithstanding any other provision of law, except the United States Leadership Against HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria Act of 2003 (Public Law 108–25), as amended by this Act.

(d) COORDINATION.—Assistance provided under the authorities of this section or the United States Leadership Against HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria Act of 2003 (Public Law 108–25) shall be coordinated with all other health-related programs under this chapter and chapter 6, and shall be included in the Global Health Strategy required under section 1303.

SEC. 1322. ASSISTANCE TO COMBAT NEGLLECTED TROPICAL DISEASES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—
(1) more than 1,000,000,000 people worldwide suffer from one or more painful, debilitating tropical diseases, which disproportionately impact poor and rural populations, cause severe sickness and disability, compromise mental and physical development, contribute to childhood malnutrition, reduce school enrollment, and hinder economic productivity;

(2) many of these neglected tropical diseases (NTDs) can be controlled and treated by providing safe and effective drug treatments, improving access to clean water and improved sanitation, and promoting good hygiene practices for individuals in affected communities; and

(3) an integrated approach to controlling NTDs will address a root cause of poverty that affects a significant proportion of the world’s population.

(b) AUTHORIZATION.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter for the prevention, treatment, control, and elimination of, and research on, neglected tropical diseases.

SEC. 1323. ASSISTANCE FOR DISEASE PREVENTION, CONTROL, AND TREATMENT.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) infectious diseases such as avian and pandemic influenza not only cause death and debilitating illness in the countries where new strains originate, but can quickly spread around the world;

(2) the development and spread of antimicrobial resistance threatens to undermine global efforts to control tuberculosis and other bacterial diseases;

(3) developing countries are undergoing a rapid epidemiological transition from infectious diseases such as diarrhea and pneumonia to noncommunicable diseases such as cardiovascular disease, cancer and diabetes, which threatens to overwhelm their strapped health systems and cripple their fragile economies;

(4) mental health is an important but frequently overlooked or stigmatized aspect of health that requires effective and compassionate treatment and care;

(5) improvement in the capacity of developing countries to obtain and use good quality data for surveillance and effective response to emerging health threats helps to protect the health of United States citizens as well as that of local populations; and

(6) disease-focused interventions are most effective when they—

(A) reflect an evidence-based approach;
(B) are integrated across health programs through a common delivery platform; and

(C) support increased collaboration and coordination among country-level stakeholders, including partner country governments, other public and private donors, and international and nongovernmental organizations.

(b) Authorization.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter to provide assistance for the prevention, treatment, control, and elimination of, and research on, infectious and noncommunicable diseases in partner countries.

Subchapter C—Family Planning and Reproductive Health

SEC. 1331. ASSISTANCE FOR FAMILY PLANNING AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds that—

(1) reproductive health care is essential to reducing poverty, improving living standards and protecting human dignity;

(2) throughout much of the world, the lack of access by women, particularly poor women, to reproductive health care contributes to death and suffering, limits women’s ability to make decisions that affect their lives, and undermines the efforts of families to lift themselves out of poverty;

(3) access to reproductive health care, including voluntary family planning, has a direct and important impact on child mortality, especially infant mortality;

(4) closely spaced and ill-timed pregnancies and births contribute to high infant mortality rates, and when mothers die as a result of giving birth, their surviving infants have a greater risk of mortality and poor health status;

(5) in many developing countries where there are few hospitals, few doctors, and poor transportation systems, and where women are not highly valued, complications of labor often result in death of the mother;

(6) lack of availability of emergency obstetric care, along with delays in seeking medical attention, in reaching a medical facility, and in receiving medical care once arriving at a facility, contribute to the development of obstetric fistula, increasing the risk of death for both mother and child;

(7) voluntary family planning allows women and couples to freely choose the number, timing and spacing of pregnancies, giving families and individuals greater control over their lives;

(8) young people are particularly at risk of engaging in unsafe sexual practices, and should be provided with clear and evidence-based information to help them make informed decisions about their sexual and reproductive health and human rights, including their right to be free from all forms of violence, coercion and discrimination;

(9) practices such as child marriage and female genital cutting can harm the health of young people and deprive them of their dignity and human rights. Reproductive health care can play an important role in educating people about the dangers of these practices, and is often the entry point for identification of gender-based violence and sexual abuse;

(10) integrating reproductive health care, including voluntary family planning, with HIV prevention programs is critical to combating HIV/AIDS, and can assist in decreasing the stigma associated with a seropositive HIV status;

(11) integration of reproductive health care with other health-care and related social services increases the effectiveness and efficiency of the health system and meets people’s needs for accessible, acceptable, convenient, client-centered care;

(12) international goals and targets for reducing poverty and improving maternal health require a significant investment in family planning and reproductive health care;

(13) international partnerships are required to provide adequate financing for family planning and reproductive health care;

(14) cooperating with multilateral and bilateral donors and the private sector can make commodities such as antiretrovirals, maternal health equipment, and contraceptive supplies more accessible for hard-to-reach populations; and

(15) by investing in reproductive health care, including voluntary family planning, the United States can improve maternal and child health, lower HIV infection rates, reduce poverty and hunger, advance girls’ education, promote gender equality, broaden civic participation in the development process, and slow the depletion of natural resources.

(b) AUTHORIZATION.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter for reproductive health care programs, including voluntary family planning, in partner countries.
SEC. 1332. REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH CARE IN EMERGENCIES.

The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this subchapter and under subtitle B for programs to provide reproductive health care during humanitarian emergencies and complex crises, including:

(1) Life-saving priority activities set out in the Sphere Project’s Humanitarian Charter and Minimum Standards in Disaster Response.

(2) Preventing sexual violence and providing medical care and psychosocial services to survivors of sexual violence.

(3) Voluntary family planning for the duration of displacement.

CHAPTER 4—EXPANDING QUALITY EDUCATION

SEC. 1401. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Education is a basic human right, indispensable for human capacity development and poverty eradication.

(2) Basic education is fundamental to development. No country has reached sustained economic growth without achieving near universal primary education.
(3) Quality education reduces poverty and inequity, lays the foundation for sound governance, civic participation, and strong institutions, and equips people with the knowledge, skills, and self-reliance they need to increase income and expand opportunities for employment.

(4) While developing countries bear the ultimate responsibility for educating their children, the United States and others donors can and should do more to help developing countries address their education needs.

(5) Investing in girls’ education delivers substantial returns not only in educational attainment but also in increasing women’s and household incomes, delaying the start of sexual activity, reducing infant mortality, increasing women’s political participation, spurring economic growth, and delaying marriage.

(6) Lack of access to adequate housing, safe drinking water close to home, and to private latrines near home and at school significantly impact girls’ attendance and retention at school.

(7) Education can help to protect children in conflict situations from physical harm, exploitation, and sexual abuse, as well as to avoid the recruitment of children into armed groups and gangs.

(8) The large number of children who are not enrolled in school or who receive a poor quality education not only results in a loss of human potential, but undermines stability and progress within communities and across nations.

(9) Expanded access to primary and secondary education will increase the need for qualified teachers, and the demand for quality colleges and universities.

(10) Exchange programs which bring citizens of developing countries to the United States for training, while helpful in expanding individual opportunities for growth, will not by themselves reach enough students and scholars to have a transformational effect on the economies and human resources of developing countries.

(11) Partnerships between educational institutions in the United States and developing countries are an important means for sharing knowledge, experience and lessons learned for the benefit of all students.

(12) Resources to expand global education will be most effective and efficient if they are transparent, increase coordination among governments, private sector and civil society, support national plans and hold all stakeholders accountable.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to work in cooperation with the international community to achieve quality universal basic education.

SEC. 1402. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) GOAL.—The goal of assistance under this chapter is to increase access to quality education in partner countries.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—In furtherance of the goal of subsection (a), assistance under this chapter shall be designed to help partner countries achieve the following objectives:

(1) Expanding access to basic education for all children, particularly marginalized and vulnerable groups.

(2) Improving the quality of basic education.

(3) Raising adult literacy, especially for women.

(4) Reducing gender disparities in primary and secondary education.

(5) Strengthening higher education partnerships and networks.
SEC. 1403. GLOBAL EDUCATION STRATEGY.

(a) In General.—The strategy required under section 1019 with respect to expanding education shall be known as the “Global Education Strategy”.

(b) Contents.—The Global Education Strategy shall include, in addition to the elements required under section 1019(b), plans for achieving the goal and objectives of section 1402.

(c) Guidelines.—The Global Education Strategy should—

(1) contribute to meeting internationally agreed education goals and targets;

(2) be directly responsive to partner country needs, capacity, and commitment, strengthen partner countries’ educational systems, and be coordinated, where possible, with national education plans;

(3) pay particular attention to expanding educational opportunities for marginalized and vulnerable groups, including girls, children affected by or emerging from armed conflict or humanitarian crises, disabled children, children in remote or rural areas, religious or ethnic minorities, indigenous peoples, orphans and children impacted by HIV/AIDS, child laborers, and victims of trafficking;

(4) identify ways to reduce the adverse impact of HIV/AIDS on education systems;
(5) address the challenges posed by large numbers of out-of-school, unemployed youth;

(6) encourage and integrate contributions of strategic direction and financial resources from local and international private sector and civil society organizations, including organizations that represent teachers, students, and parents, interested in supporting quality universal basic education efforts;

(7) outline plans for ensuring a transition and continuity of educational activities in countries affected by or emerging from armed conflict or humanitarian crises;

(8) expand public-private partnerships in order to leverage resources;

(9) promote gender equity and improve educational opportunities for women and girls, and strive to ensure safe schools, equal access, workforce opportunities, leadership role development, and the preservation of dignity and respect;

(10) explain how basic education, higher education, vocational and technical education, literacy instruction, and other formal and nonformal training will be integrated with other activities under this title; and
(11) address the problem of financing education.

SEC. 1404. BASIC EDUCATION ASSISTANCE.

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under section 1015 for basic education in accordance with the goal and objectives of this chapter.

(b) ACTIVITIES.—Assistance authorized under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) increasing the supply of trained quality teachers, and building systems for the continuing support, training and professional development of all educators;

(2) developing and implementing effective, relvant curricula;

(3) building the institutional capacity of a country to manage basic education systems and measure results;

(4) increasing parent and community involvement in schools;

(5) providing learning materials;

(6) working with communities to achieve equity in schools and address gender norms to build support for girls’ education;
(7) promoting the development and effective use of systems for data collection, monitoring and evaluation of student-learning outcomes;

(8) improving and expanding educational infrastructure;

(9) reducing or eliminating fees for tuition, uniforms and school materials, as well as other barriers to school attendance, for poor and marginalized children;

(10) improving young children’s capacity to learn through early childhood development programs;

(11) supporting interventions that increase school attendance and performance, such as scholarships, school lunch, school health, and water and sanitation programs;

(12) ensuring that schools are not incubators for violent extremism;

(13) providing life skills training and civic education, including on human rights, gender equity, and conflict resolution;

(14) making schools safe and secure places for learning, free of violence, harassment, exploitation, or intimidation;
(15) increasing access to education, improving learning outcomes and increasing educational opportunities for the most disadvantaged populations;

(16) ensuring continuation or reestablishment of educational programs and the provision of safe spaces for children in areas of armed conflict or humanitarian crisis;

(17) increasing the relevance of formal education systems to the needs of the poor and to disaffected youth, through reform of curricula, teaching materials, and teaching methods, and improved teacher training;

(18) expanding vocational and entrepreneurship skills and opportunities, especially for out-of-school youth, in close linkage with the private sector and in response to market needs;

(19) supporting multilateral coordination and financing initiatives for education; and

(20) promoting the value of education and increasing community and family awareness of the positive impact of education.

(c) DEFINITION.—In this chapter, the term “basic education” means an education, generally consisting of completion of 9–10 years of schooling, including efforts to improve early childhood development, primary education, secondary education, literacy and numeracy training, and life-skills training that prepares an individual to be an active, productive member of society and the workforce.

SEC. 1405. HIGHER EDUCATION PARTNERSHIPS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) basic and higher education are interrelated and together play a critical role in reducing poverty, promoting economic growth, strengthening democracy, stemming corruption, alleviating ethnic tensions, and enhancing stability;

(2) higher education institutions foster critical thinking, scientific discovery, entrepreneurship and innovation in local communities as well as at the national and international level;

(3) higher education is essential for developing human capacity to create the next generation of political, professional and business leadership, build an effective and accountable civil service, improve the quality and availability of social services, and strengthen the rule of law;

(4) partnerships between institutions of higher education in the United States and developing countries can—
(A) increase the quality and availability of, and access to, higher education for secondary school graduates;

(B) support the professional development of faculty and staff, strengthen institutional and financial management, and streamline administrative procedures;

(C) expand course offerings, academic resources and research opportunities for students and faculty;

(D) foster continuing professional relationships that build international understanding and collaboration; and

(E) facilitate the sharing of knowledge, the identification of common research interests and challenges, and the resolution of complex problems; and

(5) partnerships between businesses and higher education institutions in developing countries can help to meet the significant and growing demand for business professionals within both the private and public sectors in developing countries.

CHAPTER 5—PROTECTING AND RESTORING THE NATURAL ENVIRONMENT

SEC. 1501. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

1. Sound natural resource management, healthy levels of species diversity, and functioning natural ecosystems are vital to sustainably reducing poverty in developing countries.

2. Natural ecosystems, when properly managed, provide economic value to local communities in the form of water, food, medicine, energy, household products, tourism and trade, as well as contributing to the global common good.

3. Nature provides important services for human well-being. For example, forests, floodplains, and wetlands are a natural bulwark against catastrophic flooding and severe drought, and coral reefs and mangroves reduce the impact of large storms on coastal populations, thereby reducing damages from extreme weather and the need for disaster assistance.

4. Natural ecosystems serve as a buffer between wildlife and human populations, minimizing the transmission of highly infectious diseases from animals to people.
(5) Many of the most commonly prescribed medicines in the United States are derived directly from natural compounds or patterned after them. The preservation of natural areas and wild species offers the world a rich source of potential cures and treatments for disease and pain.

(6) The survival of many animal and plant species is endangered by poaching and excessive harvesting, by the presence of toxic chemicals in water, air and soil, and by the destruction of habitats.

(7) Degradation of land and water resources impedes efforts to improve agricultural productivity, which will be critical to feeding the world’s growing population and is a key engine of economic growth in developing countries.

(8) The construction of dams and expansion in biofuel production in developing countries without the necessary environmental safeguards or consultation with the local populations threatens the sustainability of aquatic ecosystems and the services they provide for purifying, storing, and delivering water.

(9) The continuing and accelerating alteration, destruction, and loss of forests and other natural habitats in developing countries can result in—

(A) shortages of fuel;
(B) loss of biologically productive wetlands;
(C) siltation of lakes, reservoirs, and irrigation systems;
(D) floods, soil erosion and landslides;
(E) decimation and dislocation of indigenous peoples;
(F) extinction of plant and animal species;
(G) reduced capacity for food production;
(H) loss of genetic resources;
(I) desertification;
(J) increased greenhouse gas emissions;

and

(K) destabilization of the earth’s climate.

(10) Women often are especially vulnerable to the impact of natural resource degradation and climate change because they produce most of the food and collect most of the water and firewood in many countries.

(11) Mismanagement and unregulated exploitation of natural resources has fueled conflict and corruption in many developing countries.

(12) Illicit trade in natural resources not only robs poor countries of valuable economic and environmental resources, but often perpetuates political instability and human rights abuses, including sexual violence and the use of children as soldiers, bonded labor and sex slaves.

(13) Illegal logging, fishing, and mining in developing countries flood the international market with low-cost products that undercut the competitiveness of responsible companies in the United States.

(14) Economic growth generally raises energy consumption, and often results in increased emissions of greenhouse gases as well as greater pollution of air, land, and water.

(15) If current trends in the degradation of natural resources in developing countries continue, they will severely undermine the best efforts to meet basic human needs, to achieve sustained economic growth, and to prevent international tension and conflict.

(16) Animals, including livestock, companion animals, and wildlife, are important to human economic, environmental, and social development as well as to human quality of life. Animals and the people who depend upon them in developing countries will be particularly vulnerable to climate-related natural disasters unless adaptation and mitigation measures are utilized.
The world faces enormous, urgent, and complex challenges in conserving and protecting natural resources while fostering economic development, requiring extensive and sustained cooperation between the United States, developing countries and the international community as a whole.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to work in cooperation with the international community to reduce biodiversity loss and the degradation of natural ecosystems, adapt to and mitigate climate change, and integrate principles of environmental sustainability into policies and programs for international development.

(D) Developing public awareness campaigns and promoting civic participation in environmental stewardship.

SEC. 1505. ASSISTANCE FOR SUSTAINABLE ENERGY AND NATURAL RESOURCE MANAGEMENT.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Access to energy is essential for economic growth, public health, clean water, sanitation, transportation, communication, agricultural activities, and the overall progress of developing countries.

(2) Many developing countries lack access to the financial resources and technology necessary to locate, explore, and develop indigenous natural resources.

(3) Black carbon contributes to pollution, health concerns, and significantly warms the Earth’s climate system by absorbing radiation, converting it into heat, and releasing heat energy into the atmosphere.

(4) Clean, efficient and renewable energy sources are vital to sustain economic growth and protect human health.

(5) Energy must be accessible to the poor in order to ensure that basic human needs are met.

(6) Title V of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act of 1978 (22 U.S.C. 3261 et seq.) requires the United States to work with developing countries in assessing and finding ways to meet their energy needs through alternatives to nuclear energy that are consistent with economic factors, material resources, and environmental protection.

(7) Proper management of natural resources can provide the basis for sustainable development while the mismanagement and unregulated exploitation of natural resources has fueled conflict and corruption in many countries around the world.

(b) Authorization.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter for programs to promote clean energy technologies, responsible stewardship of natural resources, and reliable access by the poor to energy.
(c) Activities.—Assistance authorized under subsection (b) shall include the following:

1. Increasing energy efficiency.—

SEC. 1506. ENVIRONMENTAL RESTRICTIONS.

(a) RESTRICTION.—Assistance authorized under this subtitle shall not be provided for programs, projects, and activities that—
(1) introduce invasive and nonnative plant species;

(2) cause the destruction or degradation of existing natural ecosystems, natural parks, or similar protected areas; determines that compliance with those requirements would be seriously detrimental to the foreign policy interests of the United States.

feasible, all environmental assessments shall be translated into the local language(s) of the affected communities and made available to the partner government, local and international nongovernmental organizations, and affected communities.

SEC. 1508. DEFINITIONS.

In this chapter:

(1) NATURAL ECOSYSTEM.—The term “natural ecosystem” means a dynamic set of living organisms, including plants, animals, and microorganisms interacting among themselves and with the environment in which they live, and includes tropical forests, freshwater, coastal, estuarian and fisheries habitats, coral reefs, natural grasslands, and mangrove forests.

(2) GREENHOUSE GAS.—The term “greenhouse gas” means carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, sulfur hexafluoride, hydrofluorocarbons emitted from a chemical manufacturing process at an industrial stationary source, any perfluorocarbon, nitrogen trifluoride, any other anthropogenic gas designated as a greenhouse gas by the Administrator for purposes of this chapter.

(3) HIGHLY VULNERABLE COMMUNITIES AND POPULATIONS.—The term “highly vulnerable communities and populations” means communities and populations that are at risk of substantial adverse impacts of climate change and have limited capacity to respond to such impacts, including impoverished communities, children, women, and indigenous peoples.

(4) MOST VULNERABLE DEVELOPING COUNTRIES.—The term “most vulnerable developing countries” means, as determined by the Administrator, developing countries that are at risk of substantial adverse impacts of climate change and have limited capacity to respond to such impacts, considering the approaches included in any international treaties and agreements.

CHAPTER 6—IMPROVING ACCESS TO SAFE WATER, SANITATION, AND HOUSING

SEC. 1601. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Clean water and sanitation are among the most powerful drivers for human development. They extend opportunity, enhance dignity, and help create a virtuous cycle of improving health and rising wealth.

(2) Unsafe drinking water, inadequate sanitation, and unsuitable and unhygienic living conditions exact an enormous toll on human health in developing countries, particularly for infants and children.

(3) Diseases linked to unsafe water and poor sanitation, as well as the time and energy women often devote to collecting water, significantly reduce economic productivity in less developed countries and promote lifecycles of disadvantage.

(4) Water scarcity has negative consequences for agricultural productivity and food security, and seriously threatens international ability to increase food production at the rate required to meet the needs of the world’s growing population.

(5) The underlying cause of water scarcity in the large majority of cases is institutional and political, and requires sustainable and effective water resource management.

(6) Demand for water resources has contributed to armed conflict in many parts of the world, while conflict and civil strife often reduce access to clean water and sanitation for displaced persons and other innocent victims.

(7) The continued degradation of watersheds threatens the benefits that healthy natural systems provide, and on which people rely.
(8) The effects of climate change are expected to produce severe consequences for water availability and resource management in many developing countries, which could result in severe and chronic water shortages.

(9) Unsuitable and unhygienic living conditions can exact a heavy toll on human health and productivity. Adequate housing is often a precondition for the enjoyment of various civic and human rights, including the rights to work, vote, obtain education, receive health care, and access other social services.

(10) Rapid urbanization and future population growth are expected to exacerbate already limited access to water, as well as to adequate housing.

(11) Approximately half the world’s population lives in cities, often in slums characterized by unsafe water, poor sanitation, lack of basic services, overcrowding, inferior construction and insecure tenure. Because slum populations are growing rapidly, they require increased attention and better integrated programming.

(12) Inadequate laws, policies and enforcement mechanisms to protect real property use, lease, and ownership rights often subject slum dwellers to arbitrary, often supra-market rents, forced evictions, threats, and harassment.

(13) Insecurity of tenure severely inhibits economic development by undermining investment incentives and constraining the growth of credit markets, imperils the ability of families to achieve sustainable livelihoods and assured access to housing, and often contributes to conflict over property rights.

(14) Women are affected disproportionately by forced evictions and insecure tenure as a result of gender discrimination, often including gender-biased laws that define women as legal minors or otherwise prevent them from owning or leasing land, property, and housing, making them more vulnerable to poverty, violence, and sexual abuse.

(15) Expanding access to clean water, sanitation, and housing is essential for reducing the global burden of disease, advancing economic and social development, protecting basic human rights, and mitigating sources of conflict.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to recognize the human right to water and adequate housing, and to work in cooperation with the international community to ensure access to safe water, sanitation and adequate housing for all people.

SEC. 1602. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) GOAL.—The goal of assistance under this chapter is to improve living conditions and basic human dignity for the world’s poorest people.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—In furtherance of the goal of subsection (a), assistance under this chapter shall be designed to help partner countries achieve the following objectives:

(1) Expanding access to sufficient, safe, and affordable water for personal and domestic use.

(2) Upgrading and expanding basic sanitation.

(3) Increasing access to adequate housing.

(4) Improving the management of water and related resources for greater sustainability.

sanitation, and housing shall be known as the “Global Water, Sanitation and Housing Strategy”.

(b) CONTENTS.—The Global Water, Sanitation and Housing Strategy shall include, in addition to the elements required under section 1019(b), plans for achieving the goal and objectives of section 1602.

(c) GUIDELINES.—The Global Water, Sanitation and Housing Strategy should—

(1) include targets for providing, on a sustainable basis, first-time access to safe water, basic sanitation, and adequate housing;

(2) prioritize improvements for the poorest people living under the most inadequate conditions;

(3) explain how policies and programs relating to water, sanitation and housing will be integrated with other policies and programs under this title;

(4) explain how programs and policies under the strategy will contribute to meeting internationally agreed targets relating to access to safe drinking water and basic sanitation and improving the lives of slum dwellers;

(5) maximize efficiency in water use and sustainability of water supplies;

(6) identify and promote best practices for moibilizing and leveraging public-private partnerships;

(7) address the effects of climate change on achieving the goal of this chapter;
(8) evaluate the impact of urbanization and general migration trends on water, sanitation, and housing;

(9) utilize expertise within the United States Government by improving policy and program coordination among relevant Federal agencies, including the Department of State, the United States Agency for International Development, the Millennium Challenge Corporation, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the United States Geological Survey, and the Environmental Protection Agency; and

(10) strengthen strategic coordination with, build on the expertise of, and encourage contributions from, a wide variety of stakeholders, including partner governments, the private sector and non-governmental organizations.

(E) Enhancing recognition and protection of legal rights to the ownership, lease and use of real property.
(F) Reducing gender and other discrimination in housing, property ownership, and municipal services.

(G) Developing and enforcing reasonable housing and construction codes to protect low-income residents and buyers.

(H) Encouraging the development and expansion of commercially oriented housing markets in partner countries, including home mortgage and insurance markets and financing for municipal infrastructure.

(I) Building the capacity of partner countries for improved urban planning and management.

SEC. 1605. DEFINITIONS.

In this chapter—

(1) the term “adequate housing” means housing that meets international humanitarian standards and includes—

(A) legal security of tenure;

(B) availability of services, materials, facilities, and infrastructure;

(C) affordability;

(D) habitability;

(E) accessibility;
(F) location; and

(G) cultural adequacy; and

(2) the term “living conditions” means the adequacy of water, sanitation, and housing for human habitation.

CHAPTER 7—FOSTERING GENDER EQUALITY

SEC. 1701. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Women and girls are the majority of the world’s poor, unschooled, unhealthy, and underfed.

(2) Women around the world often work under substandard conditions, for longer hours, and with lower compensation, less income stability and fewer economic opportunities than men.

(3) Women are often excluded by law or practice from participating fully and equally in the political, economic, and social life of their country.

(4) Women own significantly less land than men and experience numerous barriers to ownership. Access to land and property rights offers women greater economic opportunity and security, greater protection from physical harm, better access to health, education, and financial services, and improved social status.
(5) Displaced, refugee, and stateless women and girls in humanitarian emergencies, conflict settings, and natural disasters are at extreme risk of violence, exploitation and intimidation.

(6) Violence against women dramatically impedes progress in meeting global health goals, including efforts to reduce maternal mortality and reverse the spread of HIV/AIDS.

(7) Ensuring that women have the ability to effectively plan families is one of the keys to expanding their economic opportunities. Yet hundreds of millions of women lack access to affordable, effective, and appropriate contraceptive methods and reproductive health care, putting them at greater risk of unintended pregnancies and serious health complications.

(8) Studies have shown that investments in women and girls have broad multiplier effects, particularly in the areas of health and education, which over the long run can significantly improve the future of communities and countries.

(9) Investments in women and girls can play a key role in reducing poverty, countering violent extremism, promoting stability, fostering tolerance and reconciliation, and building strong and vibrant civil societies.

(10) Increasing women’s access to economic opportunities is crucial to preventing and responding to domestic and sexual violence.

(11) Fostering gender equality requires strengthening rules, practices, and institutions that protect the rights of women and men, girls and boys, as well as including them in the design, implementation, and monitoring of programs to reduce poverty and alleviate human suffering.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to—

(1) invest in women and girls in partner countries as a matter of justice and human rights as well as to promote sustainable development and achieve internationally agreed development goals;

(2) include women and the organizations that represent them in the design, implementation, and monitoring of programs under this title;

(3) mainstream into the design, implementation, and evaluation of policies and programs at all levels an understanding of the distinctive impact that such policies and programs may have on women and girls, men and boys; and
(4) promote equal opportunities for all people, regardless of sex, to achieve their personal potential and maximize their contributions to the development of their families, communities, and countries.

SEC. 1702. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) GOAL.—The goal of assistance under this chapter is to promote women’s empowerment, gender equality, and gender integration.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—In furtherance of the goal of subsection (a), assistance under this chapter shall be designed to help partner countries achieve the following objectives:

(1) Increasing educational, economic, and political opportunities for women and girls.

(2) Building the capacity of women and girls to participate fully in decisions that affect their lives.

(3) Reducing legal and social barriers to women’s participation in economic activity and political processes.

(4) Expanding the collection of sex-disaggregated data and the use of gender analysis.

(5) Integrating gender considerations into all international development policies and programs, including those carried out by all USAID bureaus, offices, and missions.
SEC. 1703. GLOBAL STRATEGY FOR GENDER EQUALITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The strategy required under section 1019 with respect to fostering gender equality shall be known as the “Global Strategy for Gender Equality”.

(b) CONTENTS.—The Global Strategy for Gender Equality shall include, in addition to the elements required under section 1019(b), plans for achieving the goal and objectives in section 1702.

(c) GUIDELINES.—The Global Strategy for Gender Equality should—

(1) be coordinated and integrated with the comprehensive international strategy to prevent and respond to violence against women and girls, as required under section 3203, and with each sector strategy of development, as described in section 1019;

(2) include plans for preventing child marriage;

(3) address the ways in which the exclusion of, and discrimination against, women hinders economic growth and heightens the risks of conflict and instability;

(4) discuss exclusionary and discriminatory practices that are particularly harmful for the achievement of United States development goals and identify the countries in which such practices occur;
(5) include plans for hiring, training, deploying and retaining a diverse USAID workforce with appropriate expertise and responsibility for promoting women’s empowerment, gender equality and gender integration around the world;

(6) establish policy and guidance for integrating gender considerations into all other international development strategies and programs;

(7) ensure that the goal and objectives of this chapter are reflected in the USAID’s procurement regulations and procedures; and

(8) build accountability for gender integration into monitoring and evaluation systems.

SEC. 1706. PREVENTION OF CHILD MARRIAGE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Child marriage, also known as “forced marriage” or “early marriage”, is a harmful traditional practice that deprives girls of their dignity and human rights.

(2) Child marriage as a traditional practice, as well as through coercion or force, is a violation of article 16 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which states, “Marriage shall be entered into only with the free and full consent of intending spouses”.
(3) Factors perpetuating child marriage include poverty, a lack of educational or employment opportunities for girls, parental concerns to ensure sexual relations within marriage, the dowry system, and the perceived lack of value of girls.

(4) Child marriage has negative effects on the health of girls, including significantly increased risk of maternal death and morbidity, infant mortality and morbidity, obstetric fistula, and sexually transmitted diseases, including HIV/AIDS.

(5) Most countries with high rates of child marriage have a legally established minimum age of marriage, yet child marriage persists due to strong traditional norms and the failure to enforce existing laws.

(6) Investments in girls’ schooling, creating safe community spaces for girls, and programs to build skills for out-of-school girls are all effective and demonstrated strategies for preventing child marriage by addressing conditions of poverty, low status, and social norms that contribute to child marriage.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to seek the elimination of the practice of child marriage.
(c) AUTHORIZATION.—The Administrator is authorized to use funds made available under this chapter for programs to prevent the incidence of child marriage in partner countries through the promotion of educational, health, economic, social, and legal rights of girls and women.

(d) PRIORITY.—In providing assistance authorized under subsection (c), the Administrator should give priority to—

(1) areas or regions in developing countries in which 40 percent or more of girls under the age of 18 are married; and

(2) activities to—

(A) expand and replicate existing community-based programs that are successful in preventing the incidence of child marriage;

(B) establish pilot projects to prevent child marriage; and

(C) share evaluations of successful programs, program designs, experiences, and lessons.
SEC. 1707. COORDINATION OF EFFORTS TO PREVENT CHILD MARRIAGE.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The Administrator shall designate an official to lead and coordinate policies and programs of the Agency to prevent child marriage.

(b) ADDITIONAL DUTIES.—In addition to the responsibilities described in subsection (a), the official designated under subsection (a) shall—

(1) ensure that efforts to prevent child marriage are integrated into the relevant country and sector strategies prepared in accordance with sections 1018 and 1019; and

(2) collect and disseminate information on—

(A) best practices for preventing and reducing the incidence of child marriage;

(B) the incidence of child marriage in partner countries where the practice of child marriage is prevalent; and

(C) the relationship between prevalence of child marriage and the achievement of development goals.

(c) CONSULTATION.—In carrying out the duties under this section, the official designated under subsection (a) shall consult with a wide range of relevant stakeholders.
SEC. 1708. DEFINITIONS.

In this chapter:

(1) Child marriage.—The term “child marriage” means the marriage of a girl or a boy who has not reached the minimum legal age for marriage in the country of residence, or where there is no such law, under the age of 18.

(2) Gender analysis.—The term “gender analysis” means the systematic examination of the different roles, rights, resources, constraints, and opportunities of men and women, boys and girls, in a society, economy, community or family.

(3) Gender equality.—The term “gender equality” means equal opportunities for all people, regardless of sex, to achieve their personal potential and maximize their contributions to the development of their families, communities, and countries.

(4) Gender integration.—The term “gender integration” means incorporating gender analysis and the resulting recommendations in all policies, budgets, programming, and performance monitoring and evaluation.

CHAPTER 8—STRENGTHENING DEMOCRATIC GOVERNANCE

SEC. 1801. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:
(1) Democratic development, political pluralism, and respect for internationally recognized human rights are intrinsically linked to economic and social progress. Efforts to reduce poverty and promote broad-based economic growth are more effective and sustainable in a political environment in which fundamental freedoms and the rule of law are respected, government institutions are broadly representative, and corruption is held to a minimum.

(2) Violent extremism that threatens United States national security flourishes where democratic governance is weak, justice uncertain, and legal avenues for change in short supply.

(3) Democracy can only be sustained in a society in which the legitimacy of the government rests firmly on the expressed consent of the governed; the rights of all citizens, including minorities, are respected and protected; and there is effective civilian control over the military and security forces.

(4) There is a growing worldwide movement toward more open, just and democratic societies. This trend is essential to achieving the United States ultimate objective of worldwide respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms without distinction as to race, sex, language, religion, sexual orientation, or gender identity. At the same time, this trend holds great promise for promoting the peace of the world and the foreign policy, security, and general welfare of the United States.

(5) Preventing mass atrocities is a core national security interest and a core moral responsibility of the United States. Governmental engagement on atrocities too often arrives too late, when opportunities for prevention or low-cost, low-risk action have been missed. By helping partner countries to strengthen democratic institutions and practices and to manage diversity peacefully, responsibly and equitably, USAID can address many of the structural conditions that give rise to mass atrocities.

(6) Persons belonging to racial, ethnic, religious, and linguistic minorities, as well as lesbians, gays, bisexuals, and transgender individuals, and persons with disabilities are often subjected to discrimination, harassment, exploitation, intimidation, and exclusion. United States policies and programs should seek to foster equal opportunity and equal access to justice for all people, including marginalized groups.

(7) Civil society organizations and activists worldwide contribute in unique and essential ways to development as innovative agents of change and social transformation. In particular, such organizations have an important role to play in bringing the voices of the poor to influence government policies, and to hold governments and other powerful actors to account for their actions. A diverse, strong, and independent civil society sector is critical for the sustainable reduction of poverty.

(8) Democracy cannot be imposed from without. However, the United States should encourage all states to meet their obligations under international law to uphold and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms, and should support the aspirations of those who seek through peaceful means to make their governments more democratic and accountable.

(9) Democracy takes time to become firmly rooted in society and in the political system. While short-term interventions can be important and effective means for preventing abuses and opening windows of opportunity, democratic development generally requires sustained effort and a comprehensive approach.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to—
(1) support democratic aspirations and values, foster the spread of democratic institutions, and encourage universal respect for internationally recognized human rights, including civil and political liberties;

(2) recognize that, to be successful, such support must not be defined narrowly in terms of parties and elections and government institutional capacity building, but must include other, equally important, aspects of democratic development, including—

   (A) independent and balanced media;
   (B) impartial and competent judicial processes that deliver access to justice;
   (C) respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms; and
   (D) a vibrant civil society that engages meaningfully with government; and

(3) take into consideration a country’s commitment to good governance, respect for the rule of law and protection of internationally recognized human rights in providing assistance under this subtitle.

(17) Strengthening the capacity of civil society organizations to participate effectively in public life and provide input into government decisions.

(18) Increasing citizen awareness of rights and responsibilities, and encouraging greater participation in political processes.

(e) DUTIES.—The duties of the Advisory Committee shall include consulting with, providing information to, and advising the Secretary and the Administrator on issues relating to democracy promotion in the formulation and implementation of United States foreign policy and foreign assistance, including such matters as—

(1) the means by which the United States Government should promote democracy, depending on circumstances in foreign countries;

(2) the integration of democracy considerations into United States diplomatic and development efforts;

governance;

(4) lessons learned and best practices in international democracy promotion;

(5) the balance between strengthening civil society and strengthening governance;

(6) the application of principles of country own-rules to democracy programs;

(8) the consistency of democracy policies and programs across Federal agencies; and

(9) the parameters for operating in undemocratic and conflict settings.
(d) Membership.—

(1) Number and Appointment.—The Advisory Committee shall be composed of 8 individuals appointed by the Secretary and 7 individuals appointed by the Administrator who are experts in various aspects of the field of international democracy, human rights, and good governance.

(2) Terms.—Members of the Advisory Committee shall serve a term of 2 years, and may be appointed to consecutive terms.

SEC. 1805. FOREIGN GOVERNMENT APPROVAL AND CONDITIONALITY.

(a) Foreign Government Approval.—The Administrator shall not require the approval or agreement of a foreign government for—

(1) specific programs, projects, or activities authorized under this chapter; or

(2) specific organizations carrying out assistance authorized under this chapter.

(A) do not violate the laws of the country in which they are being provided, and
(B) would not violate United States Federal law if provided in the United States; and

(2) shall not be subject to requirements relating to the use of non-United States Government funds for advocacy and lobbying activities other than those that apply to United States nongovernmental organizations receiving assistance under this title.

Subtitle B—Alleviating Human Suffering

SEC. 1901. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Natural disasters can temporarily overwhelm the capacity of countries, regardless of wealth and technological advancement, to meet basic human needs and protect people from harm. Such disasters are likely to increase in number and severity along with the changes in the world’s climate, the degradation of the environment, and the expansion of the world’s population.

(2) Conflict, weak and poor governance, corruption, and repression increase vulnerability to humanitarian crisis, aggravate the impact of physical and environmental shocks, complicate the ability to respond effectively, and lengthen the recovery period.
(3) Conflicts, human rights violations, and natural disasters often uproot people within their own countries. Forced to abandon their homes and livelihoods, and without access to the rights and resources available to those who cross an international border, these internally displaced persons are among the world’s most vulnerable and neglected people.

(4) Persons affected by conflict are at greatly heightened risk of sexual and gender-based violence. Such risk can be mitigated through proper design and implementation of humanitarian programs, especially those relating to water and sanitation, health, shelter, food, education, energy, and livelihoods, as well as through specific protection measures.

(5) In protracted crises, humanitarian resources are often exhausted before the essential conditions are in place for long-term, sustainable development. In addition, lack of expertise and training, inadequate coordination, and unclear or narrow mandates often leave programming gaps. Coordinated action is required to address basic human needs at every stage of the transition, from emergency relief to recovery, rehabilitation, reconstruction, and development.
(6) Continuity of educational activities for all children is an essential humanitarian need. Assistance to countries affected by conflict or crisis should include formal and informal education services to ensure that children are able to continue their schooling and are protected from physical harm, psychological and social distress, recruitment into armed groups, family separation, and abuses related to their displacement.

(7) Nongovernmental organizations play a leading role in humanitarian action, not only by delivering relief in underserved areas, but also by contributing a significant proportion of the international resources, by developing effective and innovative techniques and methodologies, by maintaining long-term relationships of trust with affected communities, by establishing reputations for independence, impartiality and neutrality, by integrating knowledge and expertise about local languages, customs, conditions, and needs, by bridging the gaps between relief and development, and by advocating for those in greatest need.

(8) The United Nations plays a central, unique, and vital role in leading and coordinating international humanitarian assistance. Its organs and affiliated agencies have capabilities and expertise that far exceed the ability of any single donor to respond to humanitarian needs. The collective voice of these partners frequently enhances United States bilateral efforts and often plays a useful role in gaining access and achieving results where United States influence might otherwise be limited.

(9) Multilateralism allows the United States to leverage its humanitarian contributions as part of a wider international donor effort and helps ensure that United States efforts complement those of other donors. To be effective, United States engagement with multilateral humanitarian organizations requires predictable funding and strong diplomatic engagement in policy development and institutional management.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to save lives, alleviate human suffering wherever possible, and protect vulnerable populations, taking action solely on the basis of need, without discrimination between or within affected populations, without regard to diplomatic, economic, military, or other objectives of the United States, and without favoring any side in an armed conflict or other dispute.
SEC. 1902. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

(a) GOAL.—The goal of assistance under this subtitle is to save lives, alleviate suffering, maintain human dignity, and protect and uphold the rights of extremely vulnerable people.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—In furtherance of the goal of subsection (a), assistance under this subtitle shall be designed to achieve the following objectives:

1. Provide quick and effective relief in the aftermath of disasters, whether natural or human-caused.

2. Facilitate the transition to self-sufficiency and safe lives and livelihoods.

3. Protect civilians affected by conflict, disaster, and displacement from physical harm, persecution, exploitation, abuse, malnutrition and disease, family separation, gender-based violence, forcible recruitment and other threats to human rights.

4. Build capacity to prevent and mitigate the effects of conflict, disasters, and displacement.

SEC. 1903. HUMANITARIAN PRINCIPLES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—United States humanitarian action shall be carried out in accordance with the following principles:
(1) The central purpose of humanitarian action is to save lives, alleviate human suffering, and protect vulnerable population wherever possible.

(2) Humanitarian action should be impartial, based solely on and in proportion to need, without discrimination between or within affected populations, and without regard to the political views, national origin, or religious affiliation of the beneficiaries.

(3) Humanitarian action should be neutral, without furthering a political or religious agenda or favoring any side in an armed conflict or other dispute where such humanitarian action is carried out.

(4) Humanitarian action should be independent, without regard to the political, economic, military, or other objectives that any actor may hold in relation to the affected areas and populations.

(5) Humanitarian action should be undertaken in accordance with international human rights law, international humanitarian law, refugee law, and the United Nations Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement.

(6) Humanitarian action should meet international standards, using the SPHERE Minimum Standards for Disaster Response and the Inter-Agency Standing Committee guidelines as benchmarks, should be informed by the INEE Minimum Standards, and should promote the principles and practices of Good Humanitarian Donorship.

(7) Protection of civilians affected by conflict, disaster, and displacement from physical harm, persecution, exploitation, abuse, malnutrition and disease, family separation, sexual and gender-based violence, forcible recruitment, and other threats to human rights is a core element of humanitarian action.

(8) Humanitarian action should be primarily civilian in nature. The Department of Defense should provide humanitarian assistance overseas only as a last resort when there is no comparable civilian alternative and when the use of military or civil defense assets can uniquely meet a critical humanitarian need.

(9) When the military is required to support a humanitarian response, its participation should be subject to the overall leadership, coordination and policy guidance of civilian agencies, who must be provided the requisite resources and authorities to perform this leadership role.
(10) The United States should adopt, between the Department of State and USAID, a lead-agency approach with a clear division of leadership and responsibility for humanitarian response. Under the guidance of the President, the Secretary should lead for operations responding to political and security crises, while the Administrator should lead for operations in response to humanitarian crises resulting from large-scale natural or industrial disasters, famines, disease outbreaks, and other natural phenomena.

(11) Humanitarian action should be undertaken in a timely, flexible, and efficient manner on the basis of assessed needs.

(12) In addition to providing funding for relief efforts, the United States should use its leverage to assist humanitarian agencies in obtaining secure, unfettered access to survivors in crisis situations.

(13) To ensure impartiality, neutrality, independence, and the appearance thereof, humanitarian action should be implemented by intergovernmental and nongovernmental international humanitarian organizations, in partnership with local communities, indigenous organizations, and affected governments whenever possible.
(14) Individuals affected by conflict, disaster, persecution, and displacement have the greatest stake in the performance of humanitarian programs and should, to the greatest possible extent, be involved in the design, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of such programs.

(15) Humanitarian, reconstruction, and development programs should be coordinated, planned, and funded to ensure continuity of life-sustaining services during transition phases.

(16) Humanitarian, development, and other economic assistance programs should be designed with an eye toward reducing the risk and impact of future conflict and crisis and building resiliency among the most vulnerable populations.

(17) United States humanitarian action should strive to ensure that refugees, internally displaced persons, and other conflict-affected individuals and communities are treated equally in the application of policy and the allocation of resources.

(18) To promote learning, accountability, transparency, and the efficient use of resources, the United States should support independent monitoring and evaluation of all humanitarian assistance.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section—
(1) the term “United States humanitarian action” or “humanitarian action” means—

   (A) humanitarian assistance as defined in section 6;

   (B) assistance under any provision of law to save lives, alleviate human suffering, and protect vulnerable populations in an international disaster; and

   (C) diplomatic and military activities in support of the goal and objectives of this chapter; and

(2) the term “INEE Minimum Standards” means the standards for education developed by the Inter-Agency Network on Education in Emergencies for use in emergency response, emergency preparedness, and humanitarian advocacy.

Amounts subsequently made available under this section may be used to reimburse any account under which obligations were incurred under this subsection.

SEC. 1905. EMERGENCY HUMANITARIAN RESPONSE FUND.

(a) Authority.—Whenever the Administrator determines it to be important to the national interest of the United States, the Administrator is authorized to provide, on such terms and conditions as the Administrator may determine, assistance under this section for the purpose of meeting unexpected urgent humanitarian and food assistance needs, notwithstanding any other provision of law.

(c) Transfer Authority; Availability of Funds.—In addition to amounts otherwise available to carry out this section, the President is authorized to transfer to the Fund from amounts made available under any other provision of this Act such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section, except that the total amount in the Fund at any time shall not exceed $500,000,000. Amounts in the Fund are authorized to remain available until expended.

SEC. 1906. Definitions.

In this subtitle:

(1) Disaster.—The term “disaster” means a human-caused or natural occurrence that causes loss of life, health, property, or livelihood, inflicting severe destruction and distress.

(2) International disaster relief, recovery, and reconstruction.—The term “international disaster relief, recovery, and reconstruction” means—

(A) disaster planning and preparedness, disaster risk reduction, and other actions to mitigate death and destruction in the event of a disaster;

(B) immediate actions intended to save lives, alleviate human suffering, and protect vulnerable populations during and after a disaster;

(C) short-term measures to facilitate the transition to self-sufficiency and safe lives and livelihoods following a disaster; and

AND MITIGATING CONFLICT

SEC. 2001. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Peacebuilding involves the full range of approaches, processes, and stages of transforming violent conflict into stable, peaceful relationships.

(2) Because many of the greatest threats to United States national security have emerged from failed states, it is in the national security interest of the United States to support peacebuilding efforts to stabilize and secure fragile states and states under stress.

(3) United States peacebuilding efforts are most effective when they are undertaken in cooperation with the international community, and when they build local capacity to prevent and stop violence and mass atrocities.

(4) In the event that prevention fails, the United States has an obligation to work both multilaterally and bilaterally to mobilize diplomatic, humanitarian, financial, and when necessary and appropriate, military resources to save lives and protect civilian populations.
(5) Civil society organizations, including international nongovernmental organizations and local community groups, play an important role in promoting nonviolent conflict resolution, fostering harmony among religions, ethnic groups, communities, and factions, and facilitating second-track diplomacy. By coordinating with and working through such organizations, the United States can strengthen the effectiveness of its peacebuilding programs.

(b) Statement of Policy.—It is the policy of the United States to promote civilian security and long-term sustainable, secure, and stable communities.

SEC. 2002. DEFINITION.

In this title, the term “peacebuilding” means activities to prevent armed conflict, prevent and respond to mass atrocities, stabilize weak and fragile states, protect civilians in conflict zones, mitigate crises, help countries to rebuild and recover after conflict, and support transitions to peace, stability, and democracy.

Subtitle A—General Authorities

SEC. 2011. PEACEKEEPING.

(d) DETERMINATION.—If the President determines that, as the result of an unforeseen emergency, the provision of assistance under this section in amounts in excess of amounts otherwise made available for such assistance is important to the national interests of the United States, the President may—

(1) exercise the authority of section 10602 to transfer amounts made available to carry out section 4103 for use under this section without regard to the 20 percent increase limitation contained in section 10602, except that the total amount so transferred in any fiscal year may not exceed $15,000,000; and

(2) in the event the President also determines that such unforeseen emergency requires the immediate provision of assistance under this section, direct the drawdown of commodities and services from the inventory and resources of any agency of the United States Government of an aggregate value not to exceed $25,000,000 in any fiscal year.

SEC. 2012. TRANSITION INITIATIVES.

Subtitle B—Strategies, Assessments, and Reports

SEC. 2021. REGIONAL CONFLICT RISK ASSESSMENT AND CONFLICT MITIGATION STRATEGY.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:
(1) Armed conflict and civil strife often stem from dynamics that transcend traditional state borders and require cross-border and regional approaches.

(2) United States diplomacy is often conducted on a bilateral, state-centric basis that fails to address problems comprehensively or to identify and assess the full range of issues and opportunities.

(3) A comprehensive approach towards conflict prevention is required, incorporating cross-border and regional dynamics and non-state actors.

(b) CONFLICT ASSESSMENT.—The Secretary, acting through the Under Secretary for Civilian Security, Democracy, and Human Rights and in consultation with the Administrator, shall be responsible for ensuring that an annual regional conflict risk assessment is conducted for each geographic region represented by an Assistant Secretary. Each assessment shall include the following:

(1) An identification of ongoing violent conflicts in the region.

(2) An evaluation of the potential for outbreaks of violent conflict in the region.

(3) A list of those conflicts determined to be at high risk of outbreak of escalation.
(4) A description of new opportunities and challenges for conflict mitigation in the region.

SEC. 2023. PEACE ON CYPRUS AND IN THE EASTERN MEDI-TERRANEAN.

(a) POLICY AND PRINCIPLES.—United States policy regarding Cyprus, Greece, and Turkey shall be directed toward the establishment of stability and peace in the Eastern Mediterranean region and shall therefore be governed by the following principles:

(1) The United States shall actively support the resolution of differences in the Eastern Mediterranean region through negotiations, encourage all parties to avoid provocative actions, and strongly oppose any attempt to resolve disputes through force or threat of force.

(2) The United States shall provide defense articles to Greece and Turkey only with full consideration for maintaining balance and stability in the Eastern Mediterranean.

(3) Sustained improvement in Greek-Turkish bilateral relations is in the interests of the United States, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and the countries of the Eastern Mediterranean region.

(4) Consistent with longstanding United States policy, the United States recognizes and shall continue to recognize the sovereignty of the Republic of Cyprus over the whole of Cyprus, other than the British Sovereign Base Areas. Accordingly, the United States recognizes the Republic of Cyprus’ rights to its territorial seas and economic exclusion zone (EEZ).
(5) The near-term achievement of a just and lasting settlement to the Cyprus problem is a central objective of United States foreign policy.

(6) A just settlement on Cyprus must involve the re-unification of the island based on a bi-zonal, bi-communal federation with a single sovereignty, international personality, and citizenship, with its independence and territorial integrity safeguarded, and comprising two politically equal communities, as provided for in relevant United Nations Security Council resolutions.

(7) Freedom of religion and respect for the cultural and religious heritage of all Cypriot communities shall be protected and promoted throughout the island.

(8) Agreement on the near-term return of Greek Cypriot refugees to Famagusta (Varosha) would constitute an important confidence-building measure.

(9) The United States shall use its influence to ensure the continuation of the ceasefire on Cyprus until an equitable negotiated settlement is reached.

(10) The United States shall use its influence to achieve the withdrawal of Turkish military forces from Cyprus and to effect an end to Turkey’s illegal transfer of its citizens to Cyprus.

(b) QUARTERLY REPORT.—

(1) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—Because progress toward a Cyprus settlement is a high priority of United States policy in the Eastern Mediterranean region, it is the sense of Congress that the President should continually review that progress and should determine United States policy in the region accordingly.

(2) REPORT.—To facilitate such a review, the President shall, not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and at the end of each succeeding 90-day period thereafter, transmit to the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate a report describing efforts to achieve the demilitarization of Cyprus and a negotiated solution to the Cyprus problem.

(c) CERTIFICATION.—In order to ensure that security assistance to Greece and Turkey is provided consistent with the policies established in this section, the Secretary shall, whenever transmitting a certification pursuant to section 4382 for Greece or Turkey, include in that certifiation a full explanation of how the proposed sale accords with the principles set forth in subsection (a).

(d) Restriction.—

(1) In general.—Beginning on the day after the date of the enactment of this Act, no articles, information, technology or services controlled for export pursuant to this Act, the former authority of the Arms Export Control Act, or the Export Admin-

the International Emergency Economic Powers Act) may be exported, re-exported, transferred, or provided to a military end-user, or for a military end-use, in the internationally recognized territory of the Republic of Cyprus, including Turkish-occupied northern Cyprus.

(2) Report.—The President shall submit to Congress a report on any credible information that articles, information, technology, or services have been used in a manner inconsistent with this subsection.

(e) Limitation on Funds.—Funds made available for Cyprus under this Act shall be provided only for programs and activities that are consistent with the goal of reunification of Cyprus and the achievement of a bi-communal, bi-zonal federation.
Subtitle C—Organizations and Personnel

SEC. 2031. ATROCITIES PREVENTION BOARD.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Non-combatants comprise most of the casualties in modern conflict.

(2) In many cases, civilian deaths are the result of belligerents deliberately targeting civilians on a wide scale.

(3) Civilians are vulnerable both during interstate conflict and intrastate situations, such as civil wars, insurgencies, and anarchic conditions associated with failed states.

(4) There are common variables to situations giving rise to atrocities, including past history of such occurrences, persistence of articulated and non-articulated tensions, and poor or malevolent leadership.

(5) Most tellingly, atrocities—including genocide—often occur when displaced persons attempt to flee conflict.

(6) The United States is committed to working with our allies, and to strengthening our own internal capabilities, in order to ensure that the United States and the international community are proactively engaged in a strategic effort to prevent mass atrocities and genocide. In the event that prevention fails, the United States will work both multilaterally and bilaterally to mobilize diplomatic, humanitarian, financial, and—in certain instances—military means to prevent and respond to genocide and mass atrocities.

(7) Preventing mass atrocities and genocide is a core national security interest and a core moral responsibility of the United States.

(8) United States security is affected when masses of civilians are slaughtered, refugees flow across borders, and murderers wreak havoc on regional stability and livelihoods.

(9) Governmental engagement on atrocities and genocide too often arrives too late, when opportunities for prevention or low-cost, low-risk action have been missed.

(10) Ensuring that a full range of options is available to senior policy makers requires a level of governmental organization that matches the methodical organization characteristic of mass killings.

(b) Establishment of Interagency Atrocities Prevention Board.—The President shall establish an Interagency Atrocities Prevention Board (in this section referred to as the “Board”) with the following responsibilities:

(1) Coordinate and synchronize a whole of government approach to preventing mass atrocities.

(2) Integrate the early warning systems of national security agencies, including intelligence agencies, with respect to incidents of mass atrocities and coordinate the policy response to such incidents.

(3) Conduct gaming and contingency planning exercises regarding atrocities prevention and response.

(4) Oversee the development and implementation of comprehensive atrocities prevention and response strategies.

(5) Identify available resources and policy options necessary to prevent the emergence or escalation of mass atrocities, including—

(A) foreign assistance;

(B) diplomatic initiatives;

(C) deployment of civilian expertise;

(D) use of sanctions; and

(E) military options.
(6) Identify and close gaps in expertise, readiness, and planning for atrocities prevention and early action across Federal agencies.

(7) Ensure that risk assessments and policies to mitigate identified risks are communicated in a timely fashion to the relevant Federal agencies and integrated into activities.

(c) Leadership.—

(1) In general.—The Board shall be headed by a senior director selected by the President, and who shall report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs (commonly referred to as the “National Security Advisor”).

(2) Responsibilities.—The senior director shall have primary responsibility for promoting United States Government policies to protect individuals affected by conflict and atrocities and carrying out the responsibilities identified in subsection (b).

(d) Composition.—The Board shall be composed of representatives from the following agencies, and such others as the President determines appropriate:

(1) The Department of Defense.

(2) The United States Agency for International Development.
(3) The Department of State.
(4) The Department of Justice.
(5) The Department of the Treasury.
(7) The Central Intelligence Agency.
(8) The Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

TITLE IV—BUILDING AND REINFORCING STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIPS

SEC. 4001. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The ultimate goal of the United States continues to be a world which is free from the scourge of war and the dangers and burdens of armaments, in which the use of force has been subordinated to the rule of law, and in which international adjustments to a changing world are achieved peacefully.
(2) In furtherance of that goal, it remains the policy of the United States to encourage regional arms control and disarmament agreements; discourage arms races; and encourage restraint in the provision of armaments, especially small arms and light weapons and advanced conventional weapons, to countries in regions of instability.

(3) The efforts of the United States and other friendly countries to promote peace and security continue to require measures of support based upon the principle of effective self-help and mutual aid.

(4) The peace of the world and the security of the United States are endangered so long as hostile countries continue by threat of military action, by the use of economic pressure, by their active or permissive support of terrorists, terrorist organizations and extremism, and by internal subversion, or other means to attempt to undermine the peace, security, human rights, political freedoms, civil rights, or prosperity of others.

(5) Peace and security for all is endangered by the failure of countries to live up to their sovereign responsibilities to protect civilian populations from violence, reduce terrorism, halt the spread of dangerous materials, and control transnational crime.
(6) It is in the interest of the United States to help foreign countries build capable and accountable military, police, customs, and other security forces, under civilian democratic control, in order to exercise their sovereign responsibilities.

(7) Extreme poverty and underdevelopment are threats to peace. The provision of foreign assistance under this title to developing countries must take into account how the foreign assistance will affect such countries’ social and economic development and whether the foreign assistance is diverting resources away from development efforts that meet basic needs of the population and address root causes of instability.

(8) Weapons and weapons systems are not and should not be considered to be normal commodities for international trade, and the United States should permit such sales only to the extent that such sales directly support United States foreign policy and national security objectives.

(9) Foreign assistance under this title should not be provided if such foreign assistance will likely—

(A) contribute to an arms race or regional instability;
(B) increase the possibility of outbreak or escalation of conflict, either within or across the borders of the recipient country;

(C) support international terrorism;

(D) prejudice the development of bilateral or multilateral arms control arrangements;

(E) adversely affect the arms control or nonproliferation policy of the United States;

(F) be in excess to the legitimate defense needs of the recipient country in terms of the actual threats to its national security it faces; or

(G) undermine the objectives and purposes to promote and protect human rights and democracy under title III.

SEC. 4002. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It is the policy of the United States—

(1) to promote the peace of the world and the foreign policy, security, and general welfare of the United States by fostering an improved climate of security, political independence and individual liberty, improving the ability of friendly countries and international organizations to deter or, if necessary, defeat aggression in whatever form, facilitating arrangements for individual and collective security, assisting friendly countries to provide for their legiti-mate defense needs, and creating an environment of security and stability in the developing friendly countries essential to their more rapid social, economic, and political progress;

(2) to exert leadership in the world community to bring about arrangements for reducing the international trade in implements of war and to lessen the danger of outbreak of regional conflict and the burdens of armaments;

(3) to exert maximum efforts to achieve universal control of weapons of mass destruction, the securing and control of the means to produce and deliver them, and universal regulation and reduction of armaments, including armed forces, under adequate safeguards to protect complying countries against violation, aggression, and invasion;

(4) to administer United States programs for or procedures governing the export, sale, and grant of defense articles and defense services to foreign countries and international organizations in a manner consistent with the goals described in section 4003;

(5) to achieve international peace and security through the United Nations and the diplomatic settlement of disputes so that armed force shall not be used except for individual or collective self-defense;
(6) to encourage all other countries to join in a common undertaking to meet the goals described in section 4003; and (7) to give priority for the provision of foreign assistance under this title to the needs of those countries in danger of becoming victims of aggression, terrorism, or intimidation by conventional or non-conventional military means.

SEC. 4003. GOALS OF ASSISTANCE.
(a) IN GENERAL.—The provision of foreign assistance under this title to any country or organization shall be furnished solely to achieve the following goals:
(1) To improve the ability of the country or or-organization to meet its legitimate defense and internal security needs.
(2) To assist and encourage the country or or-organization to recognize and effectively address problems that threaten United States security, including terrorism, proliferation of weapons and dangerous technologies, environmental destruction, the spread of deadly disease, and transnational crime.
(3) To protect civilian populations from vioence, including criminal violence.
(4) To permit the country or organization to participate in regional or collective arrangements or measures requested by the United Nations, or consistent with the Charter of the United Nations, for the purpose of maintaining or restoring international peace and security.

(5) To increase the professionalization, transparency, accountability, humanitarian and disaster response capacity, or human rights record of the security forces of the country or organization, and the effective control of such security forces by civilian democratic authorities.

(6) To promote a social, economic, and political environment conducive to stable peace in the country or region.

(b) BIENNIAL REVIEW AND REPORT.—

(1) REVIEW.—In carrying out the requirements of section 9201 with respect to security assistance, the Secretary shall, for each country to which such assistance is provided—

(A) review the extent to which such assistance is achieving the goals of subsection (a);

(B) review the impact of such assistance on internationally recognized human rights; and
(C) incorporate the results of such review into decisions regarding the provision and design of security assistance.

(2) BIENNIAL REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, and every 2 years thereafter, the President shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on the result of the review required under paragraph (1) and the steps taken to incorporate the results of such review into security assistance decisionmaking.

Subtitle A—Economic Support Fund

SEC. 4101. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Conflict, violence, anarchy, and instability, fueled by problems such as tyranny and oppression, corruption and financial mismanagement, ethnic and religious discrimination and discord, competition over resources, and other sources of tension, are among the greatest threats to United States national security.

(2) Terrorism and violent extremism undermine the stability and survival of states, the protection of democratic freedoms, the vitality of economies and markets, and the lives of civilian populations.
(3) United States leadership is essential to countering terrorism and violent extremism, fostering political and economic stability, and reaching comprehensive, just and lasting peace agreements.

(4) To reduce the need for military force, the United States must develop and maintain a broad range of efficient and effective diplomatic and economic tools to promote peaceful resolution of conflict and to prevent the collapse of weak and fragile states.

(5) Efforts to promote international peace and stability are most effective when undertaken on a multilateral basis, in concert with strategic partners.

(6) Prudent investment of United States resources to assist, through bilateral and collective efforts, in preventing or containing armed conflict, in restoring peace and stability, and in addressing the sources of conflict, is essential for achieving a peaceful world.

(7) While stability is a necessary precursor to long-term development, stabilization programming often has different objectives, beneficiaries, modalities, and measurement tools than long-term development programming, and should be justified, budgeted, and evaluated according to different criteria.
(b) Statement of Policy.—It is the policy of the United States to deepen engagement with close allies and partners, and to develop relations with new partners, to prevent violent conflict, resolve underlying grievances fairly, and build sustainable peace.

SEC. 4102. GOAL AND OBJECTIVES.

The Secretary shall exercise this responsibility in coordination with the Administrator.

(d) Information To Be Provided.—The annual congressional budget justification required under section 9302 and the database required under section 9301 shall include information concerning the amounts and kinds of cash grant transfers, the amounts and kinds of budgetary and balance-of-payments support provided, and the amounts and kinds of project assistance provided with funds made available under this subtitle.

A lease or loan of such a vessel under such a law may be made only in accordance with the provisions of this title. SEC. 4311. GENERAL AUTHORITY.

(a) Sales From Defense Articles and Defense Services.—The President may sell defense articles and defense services from the stocks of the Department of Defense and the Coast Guard, or design and construction services, to a foreign country or international organization if the country or international organization agrees to pay in United States dollars—

(1) in the case of a defense article not intended to be replaced at the time such agreement is entered into, not less than the actual value thereof;

(2) in the case of a defense article intended to be replaced at the time such agreement is entered into, the estimated cost of replacement of such article, including the contract or production costs less any depreciation in the value of such article; or

(b) Training.—

(1) In General.—In the case of training sold to a foreign country or international organization that is concurrently receiving international military education and training assistance under this title, the country or international organization agrees to pay in United States dollars only those additional costs that are incurred by the United States Govern-

(2) Other Countries.—The President may provide training to a foreign country not receiving assistance under chapter 6 of subtitle B if the Presi-such training is to be provided that providing such training to the country is in the national interest of the United States and the reasons for such determination.

SALES.

(a) In General.—

(1) Contracts.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, the President may, without requirement for charge to any appropriation or contract authorization otherwise provided, enter into contracts for the procurement of defense articles or defense services or design and construction services for sale for United States dollars to any foreign country or international organization if such country or international organization provides the United States Government with a dependable undertaking—

(A) to pay the full amount of such contract which will assure the United States Government against any loss on the contract; and

(B) to make funds available in such amounts and at such times as may be required to meet the payments required by the contract and any damages and costs that may accrue from the cancellation of such contract, in advance of the time such payments, damages, or costs are due.

(2) INTEREST.—Interest shall be charged on any net amount by which any such country or international organization is in arrears under all of its outstanding unliquidated dependable undertakings, considered collectively. The rate of interest charged shall be a rate not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding short-term obligations of the United States as of the last day of the month preceding the net arrearage and shall be computed from the date of net arrearage.
(b) LETTERS OF OFFER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The President may, if the President determines it to be in the national interest of the United States, issue letters of offer under this section that provide for billing upon delivery of the defense article or rendering of the defense service and for payment within 120 days after the date of billing.

(2) REQUIREMENT.—The authority of paragraph (1) may be exercised only if the President determines that the emergency requirements of the purchaser for acquisition of such defense articles and defense services exceed the ready availability to the purchaser of funds sufficient to make payments on a dependable undertaking basis and submits both determinations to Congress together with a special emergency request for authorization and appropriation of additional funds to finance such purchases under this Act.

(3) APPROPRIATIONS.—Appropriations available to the Department of Defense may be used to meet the payments required by the contracts for the procurement of defense articles and defense services and shall be reimbursed by the amounts subseorganization to whom articles or services are sold.

(c) Renegotiation Act of 1951.—The provisions of the Renegotiation Act of 1951 do not apply to procure-the enactment of this Act.

(d) Competitive Pricing.—

(1) Procurement Contracts.—Procurement contracts made in implementation of sales under this section for defense articles and defense services wholly paid for from funds made available on a non-research and development, bid and proposal, and other costing elements, as is applicable to procurements of like items purchased by the Department of Defense for its own use.

(2) Direct Costs.—Direct costs associated with meeting additional or unique requirements of the purchaser shall be allowable under contracts described in paragraph (1). Loadings applicable to such direct costs shall be permitted at the same rates applicable to procurement of like items purchased by the Department of Defense for its own use.

SEC. 4313. PAYMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), payment for defense articles or defense services under this chapter shall be made in advance or, if the President determines it to be in the national interest of the United States, upon delivery of the defense article or rendering of the defense service.

(b) EXCEPTION.—If the President determines it to be in the national interest of the United States pursuant to subsection (a), billings for sales made under letters of offer issued under this section after the date of the enactment of this subsection may be dated and issued upon delivery of the defense article or rendering of the defense service and shall be due and payable upon receipt thereof by the purchasing country or international organization.

(c) INTEREST.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Interest shall be charged on any net amount due and payable which is not paid within 60 days after the date of such billing. The rate of interest charged shall be a rate not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding short-term obligations of the United States Treasury.
United States as of the last day of the month preceding the billing and shall be computed from the date of billing.

(2) Extension.—The President may extend such 60-day period to 120 days if the President determines that emergency requirements of the purchaser for acquisition of such defense articles or defense services exceed the ready availability to the purchaser of funds sufficient to pay the United States in full for such articles or services within such 60-day period and submits that determination to the Congress together with a special emergency request for the authorization and appropriation of additional funds to finance such purchases under this Act.

SEC. 4314. CHARGES.

(a) In General.—Letters of offer for the sale of defense articles or defense services that are issued pursuant to section 4311 or 4312 shall include appropriate charges for—

(1) administrative services, calculated on an average percentage basis to recover the full estimated costs (excluding a pro rata share of fixed base operations costs) of administration of sales made under this Act to all purchasers of such articles and services as specified in section 4402(b) and (e);

(2) a proportionate amount of any nonrecurring costs of research, development, and production of major defense equipment (except for equipment wholly paid for either from funds transferred under section 4211(b)(3) or from funds made available on a nonrepayable basis under section 4251; and

(3) the recovery of ordinary inventory losses associated with the sale from stock of defense articles that are being stored at the expense of the purchaser of such articles.

(b) Waiver.—

(1) Administrative charges.—The President may waive the charges for administrative services that would otherwise be required by—

(A) subsection (a)(1) in connection with any sale to a foreign country, if the President determines that a waiver—

(i) is in the national security interests of the United States; and

(ii) will facilitate the ability of that country to detect, deter, prevent, defeat, or counter terrorist activities, or participate in, or support, military operations, coalition operations, or stability operations of the United States; or

(B) subsection (a)(2) in connection with any sale to the Maintenance and Supply Agency of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in support of—

(i) a weapon system partnership agreement; or

(ii) a NATO/SHAPE project.

(2) MAJOR DEFENSE EQUIPMENT.—The President may reduce or waive the charge or charges that would otherwise be considered appropriate under subsection (a)(2) for a particular sale or for sales if the President determines that—

(A) the reduction or waiver would significantly advance United States Government interest in standardization with the armed forces of a foreign country that is a strategic United States ally, or would promote foreign procurement in the United States under coproduction arrangements;

(B) imposition of the charge or charges likely would result in the loss of the sale; or

(C) in the case of a sale of major defense equipment that is also being procured for the use of the United States Armed Forces, the waiver of the charge or charges would (through a resulting increase in the total quantity of the equipment purchased from the source of the equipment that causes a reduction in the unit cost of the equipment) result in a savings to the United States on the cost of the equipment procured for the use of the United States Armed Forces that substantially offsets the revenue foregone by reason of the waiver of the charge or charges.

(3) INCREASE IN CHARGES.—The President may waive, for particular sales of major defense equipment, any increase in a charge or charges previously considered appropriate under paragraph (2) of subsection (a) if the increase results from a correction of an estimate (reasonable when made) of the production quantity base that was used for calculating the charge or charges for purposes of such paragraph.

(a) IN GENERAL.—United States personnel performing defense services sold under this title may not per-

(b) REPORT.—Within 48 hours of the existence of, or a change in status of significant hostilities or terrorist acts or a series of such acts, that may endanger lives or property of United States personnel, involving a country in which United States personnel are performing defense services pursuant to this title, the President shall submit to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and to the President pro tempore of the Senate a report, in writing, classified if necessary, setting forth—

(b) Reimbursement.—Each agreement shall include reimbursement for all direct costs but may exclude reimbursement for indirect costs, administrative surcharges, and costs of billeting of trainees (except to the extent that members of the United States Armed Forces occupying comparable accommodations are charged for such accommodations by the United States).

(e) Congressional Notification.—Each agreement shall be transmitted promptly to—

(1) the export of spare and replacement parts or components supports a defense item previously lawfully exported;

(2) the spare and replacement parts or components will be transferred to a defense agency of the country that is a previously approved end-user of the defense item and not to a distributor or a foreign consignee of the defense item;

(3) the spare and replacement parts or components will not to be used to materially enhance, opti-

(A) with respect to which—

   (i) United States-origin content costs constitute at least 85 percent of the total content costs;

   (ii) United States manufacturing costs constitute at least 85 percent of the total manufacturing costs; and

   (iii) foreign content, if any, is limited to content from countries eligible to receive exports of items on the United States Munitions List (other than de minimis foreign content);

      (i) classified as significant military equipment; or

      (ii) listed on the MTCR Annex.

(2) ADDITIONAL RULE.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)(i) and (ii), the costs of non-United States-origin content and the costs of non-United States manufacturing shall be determined using the final price or final cost associated with the non-United States-origin content and non-United States manufacturing.

(1) the President determines that there are compelling foreign policy and national security reasons for providing such articles on a lease basis rather than on a sales basis under this subtitle;

(2) the President determines that the articles are not for the time needed for public use;

(3) the President first considers the effects of the lease of the articles on the national technology and industrial base, particularly the extent, if any,
to which the lease reduces the opportunities of entities in the national technology and industrial base to sell new equipment to the country or countries to which the articles are leased; and

(4) the country or international organization has agreed to pay in United States dollars all costs incurred by the United States Government in leasing such articles, including reimbursement for depreciation of such articles while leased, the costs of rest-toration or replacement if the articles are damaged while leased, and, if the articles are lost or destroyed while leased—

   (A) in the event the United States intends to replace the articles lost or destroyed, the replacement cost (less any depreciation in the value) of the articles; or

   (B) in the event the United States does not intend to replace the articles lost or destroyed, an amount not less than the actual value (less any depreciation in the value) specified in the lease agreement.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The requirement of subsection (a)(4) shall not apply to leases entered into for purposes of cooperative research or development, military exercises, or communications or electronics interface projects.

(2) WAIVERS.—The President may waive the requirement of subsection (a)(4)—

(A) for reimbursement of depreciation for any defense article which has passed three-quarters of its normal service life if the President determines that to do so is important to the national security interest of the United States;

(B) with respect to a lease which is made in exchange with the lessee for a lease on substantially reciprocal terms of defense articles for the Department of Defense, except that this waiver authority—

(i) may be exercised only if the President submits to the appropriate congressional committees, and in addition the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate, a detailed notification for each lease with respect to which the authority is exercised; and

(ii) may be exercised only—

(I) on a fiscal year basis; and
II) with respect to one country or international organization for each lease.

(3) Rule of Construction.—Paragraph (2) does not constitute authorization of appropriations for payments by the United States for leased articles.

(c) Duration.—

(1) In General.—Each lease agreement under this section shall be for a fixed duration which may not exceed—

(A) 5 years; and

(B) a specified period of time required to complete major refurbishment work of the leased articles to be performed prior to the delivery of the leased articles, of not to exceed 5 years.

(2) Termination.—Each lease agreement under this section shall provide that, at any time during the duration of the lease, the President may terminate the lease and require the immediate return of the leased articles.

(3) Definition.—In this subsection, the term “major refurbishment work” means work for which the period of performance is 6 months or more.
(d) LIMITATION.—Defense articles in the stocks of the Department of Defense may be leased or loaned to a foreign country or international organization only under the authority of this chapter or chapter 3 of subtitle B, and may not be leased to a foreign country or international organization under the authority of section 2667 of title 10, United States Code.

(1) the country or international organization to which the article is to be leased or loaned;

(2) the type, quantity, and value (in terms of replacement cost) of the article to be leased or loaned;

(3) the terms and duration of the lease or loan; and
(4) a justification for the lease or loan, including an explanation of why the article is being leased rather than sold under this subtitle.

(b) Waiver.—

(1) In general.—The President may waive the requirements of this section (and in the case of an agreement described in section 4353, may waive the provisions of that section) if the President states in the certification required by subsection (a) that an emergency exists which requires that it is in the national security interests of the United States to enter into the lease or loan immediately.

(2) Justification.—If the President states in the certification that such an emergency exists, the President shall set forth in the certification a detailed justification for the President’s determination, including a description of the emergency circumstances that necessitate that the lease be entered into immediately and a discussion of the national security interests involved.

(c) Deadline.—The certification required by subsection (a) shall be transmitted—

(1) not less than 15 calendar days before the agreement is entered into or renewed in the case of an agreement with a strategic United States ally; or
(2) not less than 30 calendar days before the agreement is entered into or renewed in the case of an agreement with any other country or organization.

SEC. 4353. CONGRESSIONAL REVIEW AND DISAPPROVAL.

(A) major defense equipment valued (in terms of its replacement cost less any depreciation in its value) at $14,000,000 or more, or

(B) defense articles valued (in terms of their replacement cost less any depreciation in their value) at $50,000,000 or more, the agreement may not be entered into or renewed if Congress, within the 15-day or 30-day period specified in section 4384(a)(1) or (2), as the case may be, enacts a joint resolution prohibiting the proposed lease or loan.

(2) Certain agreements.—In the case of an agreement described in paragraph (1) that is entered into with a strategic United States ally, the limitations in paragraph (1) shall apply only if the agreement involves a lease or loan of—

(A) major defense equipment valued (in terms of its replacement cost less any depreciation in its value) at $25,000,000 or more; or

(B) defense articles valued (in terms of

(c) Information Sharing.—The Secretary shall establish a procedure for sharing information with appropriate officials of the intelligence community, as determined by the Director of National Intelligence, and with other appropriate Federal departments and agencies, that will ensure effective monitoring of transfers of MTCR equipment or technology and other missile technology.

(d) Exports to Space Launch Vehicle Programs.—Not later than 15 days after the issuance of a license (including any brokering license) for the export of items valued at less than $50,000,000 that are controlled under this Act pursuant to United States obligations under the MTCR and are goods or services that are intended to support the design, utilization, development, or production of a space launch vehicle system listed in Category I of the MTCR Annex, the Secretary shall transmit to the Congress a report describing the licensed export and rationale for approving such export, including the consistency of such export with United States missile non-proliferation policy. The requirement contained in the preceding sentence shall not apply to licenses for exports to countries that were members of the MTCR as of April 17, 1987.

SEC. 5122. DENIAL OF THE TRANSFER OF MISSILE EQUIPMENT OR TECHNOLOGY BY UNITED STATES PERSONS.

(a) SANCTIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the President determines that a United States person knowingly—

(A) exports, transfers, or otherwise engages in the trade of any item on the MTCR Annex, in violation of the provisions of section 4311 of this Act, section 5 or 6 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (as continued in effect under the International Emergency ECO-issued under any such provisions of law,

(B) conspires to or attempts to engage in trade by any other person,

then the President shall impose the applicable sanc-

(2) APPLICABLE SANCTIONS.—The sanctions which apply to a United States person under para-

(A) If the item on the MTCR Annex in-equipment or technology controlled under this Act.

(c) PRESUMPTION.—In determining whether to apply sanctions under subsection (a) to a United States person involved in the export, transfer, or trade of an item on the MTCR Annex, it should be a rebuttable presumption that such item is designed for use in a missile listed in the MTCR Annex if the President determines that the final destination of the item is a country the government of which the Secretary has determined, for purposes of 6(j)(1)(A) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (as continued in effect under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act), has repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism (as such term is defined in section 10401(h)).
(d) Waiver.—The President may waive the imposition of sanctions under subsection (a) with respect to a product or service if the President certifies to Congress that—

(1) the product or service is essential to the national security of the United States; and

(2) such person is a sole source supplier of the product or service, the product or service is not available from any alternative reliable supplier, and the need for the product or service cannot be met in a timely manner by improved manufacturing processes or technological developments.

SEC. 5123. TRANSFERS OF MISSILE EQUIPMENT OR TECHNOLOGY BY FOREIGN PERSONS.

(a) Sanctions.—

(1) In general.—Subject to subsections (e) through (g), if the President determines that a foreign person, after the date of the enactment of this Act, knowingly—

(A) exports, transfers, or otherwise engages in the trade of any MTCR equipment or technology that contributes to the acquisition, design, development, or production of missiles in a country that is not an MTCR adherent and would be, if it were United States-origin equipment or technology, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States under this Act,

(B) conspires to or attempts to engage in such export, transfer, or trade, or

(C) facilitates such export, transfer, or trade by any other person, or if the President has made a determination with respect to a foreign person under section 11B(b)(1) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (as continued in effect under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act), then the President shall impose on that foreign person the applicable sanctions described in paragraph (2).

(2) APPLICABLE SANCTIONS.—The sanctions which apply to a foreign person under paragraph (1) are the following:

(A) If the item involved in the export, transfer, or trade is within category II of the MTCR Annex, then the President shall deny, for a period of 2 years—

(i) United States Government contracts relating to missile equipment or technology; and
(ii) licenses for the transfer to such foreign person of missile equipment or technology controlled under this Act.

(B) If the item involved in the export, transfer, or trade is within category I of the MTCR Annex, then the President shall deny, for a period of not less than 2 years—

(i) all United States Government contracts with such foreign person; and

(ii) licenses for the transfer to such foreign person of all items on the United States Munitions List.

(C) If, in addition to actions taken under subparagraphs (A) and (B), the President determines that the export, transfer, or trade has substantially contributed to the design, development, or production of missiles in a country that is not an MTCR adherent, then the President shall prohibit, for a period of not less than 2 years, the importation into the United States of products produced by that foreign person.

(b) INAPPLICABILITY WITH RESPECT TO MTCR ADHERENTS.—Subsection (a) does not apply with respect to—
(1) any export, transfer, or trading activity that is authorized by the laws of an MTCR adherent, if such authorization is not obtained by misrepresentation or fraud; or

(2) any export, transfer, or trade of an item to an end user in a country that is an MTCR adherent.

(e) Effect of Enforcement Actions by MTCR Adherents.—Sanctions set forth in subsection (a) may not be imposed under this section on a person with respect to acts described in such subsection or, if such sanctions are in effect against a person on account of such acts, such sanctions shall be terminated, if an MTCR adherent is taking judicial or other enforcement action against that person with respect to such acts, or that person has been found by the government of an MTCR adherent to be innocent of wrongdoing with respect to such acts, and if the President certifies to the appropriate congressional committees that—

(1) for any judicial or other enforcement action taken by the MTCR adherent, such action has—

(A) been comprehensive; and

(B) been performed to the satisfaction of the United States; and
(2) with respect to any finding of innocence of wrongdoing, the United States is satisfied with the basis for such finding.

(d) ADVISORY OPINIONS.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Commerce, may, upon the request of any person, issue an advisory opinion to that person as to whether a proposed activity by that person would subject that person to sanctions under this section. Any person who relies in good faith on such an advisory opinion which states that the proposed activity would not subject a person to such sanctions, and any person who thereafter engages in such activity, may not be made subject to such sanctions on account of such activity.

(e) WAIVER AND REPORT TO CONGRESS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In any case other than one in which an advisory opinion has been issued under subsection (d) stating that a proposed activity would not subject a person to sanctions under this section, the President may waive the application of subsection (a) to a foreign person if the President determines that such waiver is essential to the national security of the United States.

(2) NOTIFICATION.—In the event that the President decides to apply the waiver described in paragraph (1), the President shall so notify the Committee on Armed Services and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Armed Services and the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives not less than 45 working days before issuing the waiver. Such notification shall include a report fully articulating the rationale and circumstances which led the President to apply the waiver.

(f) PRESUMPTION.—In determining whether to apply sanctions under subsection (a) to a foreign person involved in the export, transfer, or trade of an item on the MTCR Annex, it should be a rebuttable presumption that such item is designed for use in a missile listed in the MTCR Annex if the President determines that the final destination of the item is a country the government of which the Secretary has determined, for purposes of 6(j)(1)(A) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (as continued in effect under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act), has repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism (as such term is defined in section 10401(h)).

(g) ADDITIONAL WAIVER.—The President may waive the imposition of sanctions under subsection (a) on a person with respect to a product or service if the President certifies to the Congress that—

(1) the product or service is essential to the national security of the United States; and

(2) such person is a sole source supplier of the product or service, the product or service is not available from any alternative reliable supplier, and the need for the product or service cannot be met in a timely manner by improved manufacturing processes or technological developments.

(h) EXCEPTIONS.—The President shall not apply the sanction under this section prohibiting the importation of the products of a foreign person—

(1) in the case of procurement of defense articles or defense services—

(A) under existing contracts or sub-contracts, including the exercise of options for production quantities to satisfy requirements essential to the national security of the United States;

(B) if the President determines that the person to which the sanctions would be applied is a sole source supplier of the defense articles and defense services, that the defense articles or defense services are essential to the national security of the United States, and that alternative sources are not readily or reasonably available; or

(C) if the President determines that such articles or services are essential to the national security of the United States under defense co-production agreements or NATO Programs of Cooperation;

(2) to products or services provided under contracts entered into before the date on which the President publishes his intention to impose the sanctions; or

(3) to—

(A) spare parts,

(B) component parts, but not finished products, essential to United States products or production,

(C) routine services and maintenance of products, to the extent that alternative sources are not readily or reasonably available; or

(D) information and technology essential to United States products or production.
SEC. 5124. NOTIFICATION OF ADMITTANCE OF MTCR ADHERENTS.

(a) Policy Report.—Following any action by the United States that results in a country becoming a MTCR adherent, the President shall transmit promptly to the Congress a report which describes the rationale for such action, together with an assessment of that country's non-proliferation policies, practices, and commitments. Such report shall also include the text of any agreements or understandings between the United States and such country regarding the terms and conditions of the country’s adherence to the MTCR.

(b) Intelligence Assessment Report.—At such times that a report is transmitted pursuant to subsection (a), the Director of National Intelligence shall promptly prepare and submit to Congress a separate report containing any credible information indicating that the country described in subsection (a) has engaged in any activity identified under subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of section 5123(a)(1) within the previous two years.

SEC. 5125. AUTHORITY RELATING TO MTCR ADHERENTS.

Subtitle B—Counter-Narcotics Authorities

SEC. 5201. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) International narcotics trafficking poses a major transnational threat in today’s world, and its suppression is among the most important foreign policy objectives of the United States.

(2) International criminal activities, particularly international narcotics trafficking, money laundering, and corruption, endanger political and economic stability and democratic development, and assistance for the prevention and suppression of international criminal activities should be a priority for the United States.

(3) Effective international cooperation is necessary to control the illicit cultivation, production, and smuggling of, trafficking in, and abuse of narcotic and psychotropic drugs and other controlled substances.

(4) In order for countries to effectively combat narcotics trafficking and other transnational crimes, they must have a strong rule of law system, to include an honest police force, independent courts, and effective prisons.

(5) Given the magnitude of United States counter-narcotics efforts, as well as its impact and significance on other dimensions of United States bilateral relations, it is essential that a process be put into place that allows the periodic, comprehensive evaluation of these efforts and their foreign policy implications.

SEC. 5202. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It shall be the policy of the United States to—

(1) support international narcotics control programs that have, as priority goals, the suppression of the illicit manufacture of and trafficking in narcotic and psychotropic drugs and other controlled substances, money laundering, and the diversion of precursor chemicals, and the progressive elimination of the illicit cultivation of the crops from which narcotic and psychotropic drugs and other controlled substances are derived;

(2) encourage the international community to provide assistance, where appropriate, to those producer and transit countries that require assistance in discharging these primary obligations;

(3) use its voice and vote in multilateral development banks to promote the development and implementation in the major illicit drug producing countries of programs for the reduction and eventual eradication of narcotic drugs and other controlled substances, including appropriate assistance in conjunction with effective programs of illicit crop eradication;
(4) ensure that countries adopt comprehensive domestic measures against money laundering and cooperate with each other in money laundering investigations, prosecutions, and related forfeiture actions; and

(5) endeavor to develop and promote global, regional, sub-regional, and bilateral cooperation among judicial, law enforcement and financial regulatory authorities in order to combat money-laundering, narcotics trafficking, and other transnational crimes.

TITLE VI—SUSTAINING THE GLOBAL ENVIRONMENT

SEC. 6001. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Sound natural resource management, healthy ecosystems, and biological diversity are vital to alleviating poverty in developing countries that depend on natural resources for water, food, medicine, energy, household products, and tourism and trade.

(2) Proper management and protection of natural resources can mitigate instability, conflict, and corruption in many developing countries.

(3) Poaching and the illegal trafficking of wildlife represent significant threats to preserving biological diversity and can lead to crime and corruption.

(4) Establishing protected areas can preserve wildlife and plant species from degradation and guard against the illegal wildlife trade.

(5) Strengthening the indigenous capacity of partner countries to manage their natural resources improves the long-term sustainability of conservation programs and is essential for economic growth in developing countries.

(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to work in cooperation with the international community, including nongovernmental organizations, to reduce biodiversity loss, adapt to and mitigate climate change, and integrate principles of environmental sustainability into policies and programs for international development.

Subtitle A—Debt-for-Nature Exchanges

SEC. 6101. FINDINGS AND STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Poverty and economic pressures on the populations of developing countries have led to environmental degradation that exacerbate existing challenges and imperil long-term, sustainable development.

(2) Debt reduction can reduce economic pressures on developing countries and provide funds for environmental conservation and development.

(3) Identifying and developing economic benefits to local communities from sustainable use of the environment is critical to the protection of ecosystems and to overall development.

(4) Tropical forests provide a wide range of benefits to humankind by—

(A) harboring a major share of the Earth’s biological and terrestrial resources, which are the basis for developing pharmaceutical products and revitalizing agricultural crops;

(B) playing a critical role as carbon sinks in reducing greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, thus moderating potential global climate change; and

(C) regulating hydrological cycles on which far-flung agricultural and coastal resources depend.

(5) Coral reefs and associated coastal marine ecosystems provide a wide range of benefits to humankind by—
(A) harboring more species per unit area than any other marine habitat, providing the basis for developing pharmaceutical products and fostering a growing marine tourism sector;

(B) providing a major source of food and jobs for hundreds of millions of coastal residents; and

(C) serving as natural storm barriers, thus protecting vulnerable shorelines and communities from storm waves and erosion.

(b) Statement of Policy.—It is the policy of the United States to work in cooperation with partner countries and nongovernmental organizations to protect and sustainably manage tropical forests, coral reefs, and other natural ecosystems, including through debt-for-nature exchanges.

TITLE VII—EXPANDING PROSP-ERITY THROUGH TRADE AND INVESTMENT

SEC. 7001. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Fostering economic growth is essential to sustaining the impact of United States development assistance.

(2) United States development assistance must be supplemented by developmentally beneficial private investment, which can be stimulated by United States-sponsored programs.

(3) Attracting and retaining private investment requires improvements in the investment climate of developing countries, which require United States technical assistance.
(4) Increasing exports is necessary for sustained economic growth in most developing countries, because domestic consumption is usually inadequate to stimulate and sustain increases in gross domestic product, employment, and personal income.

(5) For most developing countries, receipt of additional loans would be counterproductive, exacerbating existing high debt levels that consume scarce domestic financial resources.

SEC. 7002. AUTHORITY FOR COORDINATION.

(a) Identification of Priority Countries.—In preparing the United States Strategy for Global Development under section 1017, the Interagency Policy Committee on Global Development shall identify a list of priority countries which would substantially benefit from United States programs to stimulate private investment flows and to provide technical assistance to attract and sustain such investment, taking into account each country’s—

(1) high-level political leadership and commitment to development progress;

(2) potential for rapid and sustained economic growth; and

(3) importance to United States national interests and development goals.
(b) JOINT COUNTRY ACTION PLAN.—For each country identified as a priority country under subsection (a), the Interagency Policy Committee on Global Development shall—

(1) undertake a rigorous joint analysis of constraints to growth, in partnership with the priority country and in consultation with the United States, international, and local private sectors, the donor community, civil society organizations, and relevant experts;

(2) develop a joint country action plan that outlines potential tools, reforms, technical assistance, and resources that can be applied over the next five years to address the highest-priority constraints to growth;

(3) coordinate and integrate the joint country action plan with Country Development Cooperation Strategies and related policies and programs; and

(4) establish high-level mutual accountability for implementation, including through transparency and fact-based monitoring and evaluation.

(c) DIRECTION OF RESOURCES.—The Interagency Policy Committee on Global Development may direct the resources of the Department of State, the United States Agency for International Development, the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, the Trade and Development Agency, and the Millennium Challenge Corporation to be made available to carry out the country plan.

Subtitle A—Overseas Private Investment Corporation

SEC. 7101. CREATION AND PURPOSE.

(a) Creation.—There is established the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (in this subtitle referred to as the “Corporation”), which shall be an agency of the United States under the policy guidance of the Secretary of State and the Interagency Policy Committee on Global Development.

(b) Purpose.—

(1) In general.—The primary purpose of the Corporation shall be to mobilize and facilitate the participation of United States private capital in the economic and social development of less developed countries, thereby complementing the foreign policy and development assistance objectives of the United States.

(2) Responsibilities.—In carrying out its purpose, the Corporation shall undertake—

(A) to conduct financing, insurance, and reinsurance operations on a self-sustaining basis, taking into account in its financing operations the economic and financial soundness of projects;

(B) to use private credit and investment institutions and the Corporation’s guaranty authority as the principal means of mobilizing capital investment funds;

(C) to broaden private participation and revolve its funds through selling its direct loans to private investors whenever it can appropriately do so on satisfactory terms;

(D) to conduct its insurance operations with due regard to principles of risk management, including efforts to share its insurance risks and reinsurance risks;

(E) to support the expansion of private enterprise and market-based economies;

(F) to conduct its activities in coordination with the Interagency Policy Committee on Global Development, so as to carry out the foreign policy and development strategy of the United States; and

(G) to advise and assist agencies of the United States and other organizations, both public and private, national and international, with respect to projects and programs relating to the development of private enterprise in less developed countries.

SEC. 7102. PROHIBITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS.

(a) PROHIBITIONS.—The Corporation shall—

(1) decline to issue any contract of insurance or reinsurance, or any guaranty, or to enter into any agreement to provide financing for a proposed investment, if the Corporation determines that such investment is likely to cause a reduction in the employment of United States persons;

(2) decline to insure, reinsure, guarantee, or finance any investment that would reduce exports of goods or services of United States origin or otherwise negatively affect the balance of trade of the United States;

(3) decline to insure, reinsure, guarantee, or finance any investment in connection with a project that the Corporation determines will negatively afflect the environment, or cause a health or safety hazard; and

(4) decline to insure, reinsure, guarantee, or finance any investment in connection with a project that the Corporation determines will negatively affect the human rights, employment, living standard, social welfare, or culture of any persons in the country where the project is to be located.

(b) Worker Rights.—

(1) Protection of Worker Rights.—The Corporation may insure, reinsure, guarantee, or finance a project only if the country in which the project is to be undertaken is taking steps to adopt and implement laws that extend internationally recognized worker rights, as defined in section 507(4) of the Trade Act of 1974, to workers in that country (including any designated zone in that country). The Corporation shall also include the following language, in substantially the following form, in all contracts that the Corporation enters into with eligible investors to provide financial support under this subtitle:

“The investor and all parties involved in the project agree to protect the right of employees of the foreign enterprise to exercise their right of association and their right to organize and bargain collectively. The investor and all parties involved in the project further agree to comply with core labor standards of the International Labor Organization and United Nations declarations on workers and worker rights relating to a minimum age for employment of children, acceptable conditions of work with respect to minimum wages, hours of work, and occuppational health and safety, and a prohibition on the use of forced labor.’’.

(2) Use of Annual Reports on Workers Rights.—The Corporation shall, in making its determinations under paragraph (1), use the reports submitted to the Congress pursuant to section 504 of the Trade Act of 1974.

(3) Waiver.—Paragraph (1) shall not prohibit the Corporation from providing any insurance, reinsurance, guaranty, or financing with respect to a

Any period during which the United States Government is in possession of a written claim under subsection (b) before mailing a notice of denial of that claim does not count in computing the six years. In any such suit, the United States Government may plead any defense that may be pleaded by a private person in such an action. The last paragraph of section 1498(a) of title 28 of the United States Code shall apply to inventions and information covered by this section.

(c) PHARMACEUTICAL PRODUCTS.—No assistance under this Act may be made available for the acquisition of any drug product or pharmaceutical product manufacan unexpired patent of the United States which has not previously been held invalid by an unappealed or unappealable judgment or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, unless—

(1) such manufacture is expressly authorized by the owner of such patent; or

(2) the President determines, on a case-by-case

SEC. 11411. PRIVATE AND VOLUNTARY ORGANIZATIONS AND COOPERATIVES.

Prohibitions on assistance to countries contained in

(d) EXCEPTIONS.—The prohibition contained in subsection (c) shall not apply—
