Whereas the men and women working in our Nation's health care facilities are putting their lives on the line to protect their fellow Americans who are suffering from COVID–19;

Whereas despite the shortage of protective gear in many of our Nation's hospitals, health care workers continue to show up and risk their lives to save the lives of others;

Whereas these men and women continue to go above and beyond the call of duty to serve citizens across the Nation;

Whereas law enforcement officers continue to check in on their neighbors and keep our communities safe;

Whereas no part of our Nation could successfully battle this pandemic without the coordination and assistance of our first responders and health care providers;

Whereas first responders serve as key sources of information to community and national leaders; and

Whereas when people need help, these first responders are always counted upon to assist: Now, therefore, be it
