7       Renters are spending more than one-third of their

1 find affordable housing. Our housing stock is short
2 by millions. No State has been left untouched.

3 (2) The role of regulating the various factors
4 that contribute to the affordable housing crisis large-
5 ly rests with States.

6 (3) States have engaged in a variety of efforts
7 to address this crisis including reforming zoning
8 rules.

9 (4) To best determine how the Federal Govern-
10 ment can support effective solutions to the crisis,
11 Congress must identify which State efforts are suc-
12 cessfully addressing the crisis.

13 (5) The regulatory barriers clearinghouse serves 14 as a national repository for information regarding 15 State and local laws, regulations and policies related 16 to affordable housing and the effects of those laws, 17 regulations, and policies on affordable housing. The 18 clearinghouse also collects State and local efforts
19 that promote affordable housing.

20 (6) The clearinghouse currently is geared to-21 ward providing such information to and for use by 22 State and local governments.

23 (7) Congress could utilize the information pro-
24 vided in the clearinghouse to support a Federal re-
25 sponse to the affordable housing crisis.
