[1] Until within recent years the appointment or election of a President pro tempore was held by the Senate to be for the occasion only, so that more than one appears in several sessions and in others none were chosen. Since Mar. 12, 1890, they have served until "the Senate otherwise ordered."

[2] The Constitution (Art. I, sec. 4) provided that the Congress should assemble Mar. 4, 1789, and thereafter "in every year * * * on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day." Up to and including May 20, 1820, 18 acts were passed providing for the meeting of Congress on other days in the year. Since that year Congress has met regularly on the first Monday in December. The first and second sessions of the First Congress were held in New York; subsequently, until the second session of the Sixth Congress, Philadelphia was the meeting place; since then Congress has convened in Washington.

[3] Elected to count the vote for President and Vice President, which was done Apr. 6, 1789, a quorum of the Senate then appearing for the first time. John Adams, Vice President, appeared Apr. 21, 1789, and took his seat as President of the Senate.

THE CAPITOL BUILDING

The Capitol is situated in latitude 38° 53′ 20.4″ north and longitude 77° 00′ 35.7″ west from Greenwich. It fronts east and stands on a plateau 88 feet above the level of the Potomac.

ORIGINAL BUILDING

The southeast corner stone of the original building was laid on the 18th of September, 1793, by President Washington, with Masonic ceremonies. It is constructed of sandstone from quarries on Aquia Creek, Va. The original designs were prepared by Dr. William Thornton, and the work was done under the direction of Stephen H. Hallet, James Hoban, George Hadfield, and B. H. Latrobe, architects. The north wing was finished in 1800 and the south wing in 1811. A wooden passage way connected them. On the 24th of August, 1814, the interior of both wings was destroyed by fire, set by the British. The damage to the building was immediately repaired. In 1818 the central portion of the building was commenced, under the architectural superintendence of Charles Bulfinch. The original building was finally completed in 1827. Its cost, including the grading of the grounds, alterations, and repairs, up to 1827, was $2,433,844.13.

EXTENSIONS

The corner stone of the extensions was laid on the 4th of July, 1851, by President Fillmore, Daniel Webster officiating as orator. This work was prosecuted under the architectural direction of Thomas U. Walter till 1865, when he resigned, and it was completed under the supervision of Edward Clark. The material used in the walls is white marble from the quarries at Lee, Mass., and that in the columns from the quarries at Cockeysville, Md. The House extension was first occupied for legislative purposes December 16, 1857, and the Senate January 4, 1859.

The value of the Capitol Building and Grounds, October 14, 1911, was as follows: Building, $15,000,000; grounds, $10,400,000; total, $25,400,000.

DIMENSIONS OF THE BUILDING

The entire length of the building from north to south is 751 feet 4 inches, and its greatest dimension from east to west, 350 feet. The area covered by the building is 153,112 square feet.

DOME

The Dome of the original central building was constructed of wood, covered with copper. This was replaced in 1856 by the present structure of cast iron. It was completed in 1865. The entire weight of iron used is 8,909,200 pounds.

The Dome is crowned by a bronze statue of Freedom, which is 19 feet 6 inches high and weighs 12,985 pounds. It was modeled by Crawford. The height of the Dome above the base line of the east front is 287 feet 5 inches. The height from the top of the balustrade of the building is 217 feet 11 inches. The greatest diameter at the base is 135 feet 5 inches.

The Rotunda is 97 feet 6 inches in diameter, and its height from the floor to the top of the canopy is 180 feet 3 inches.

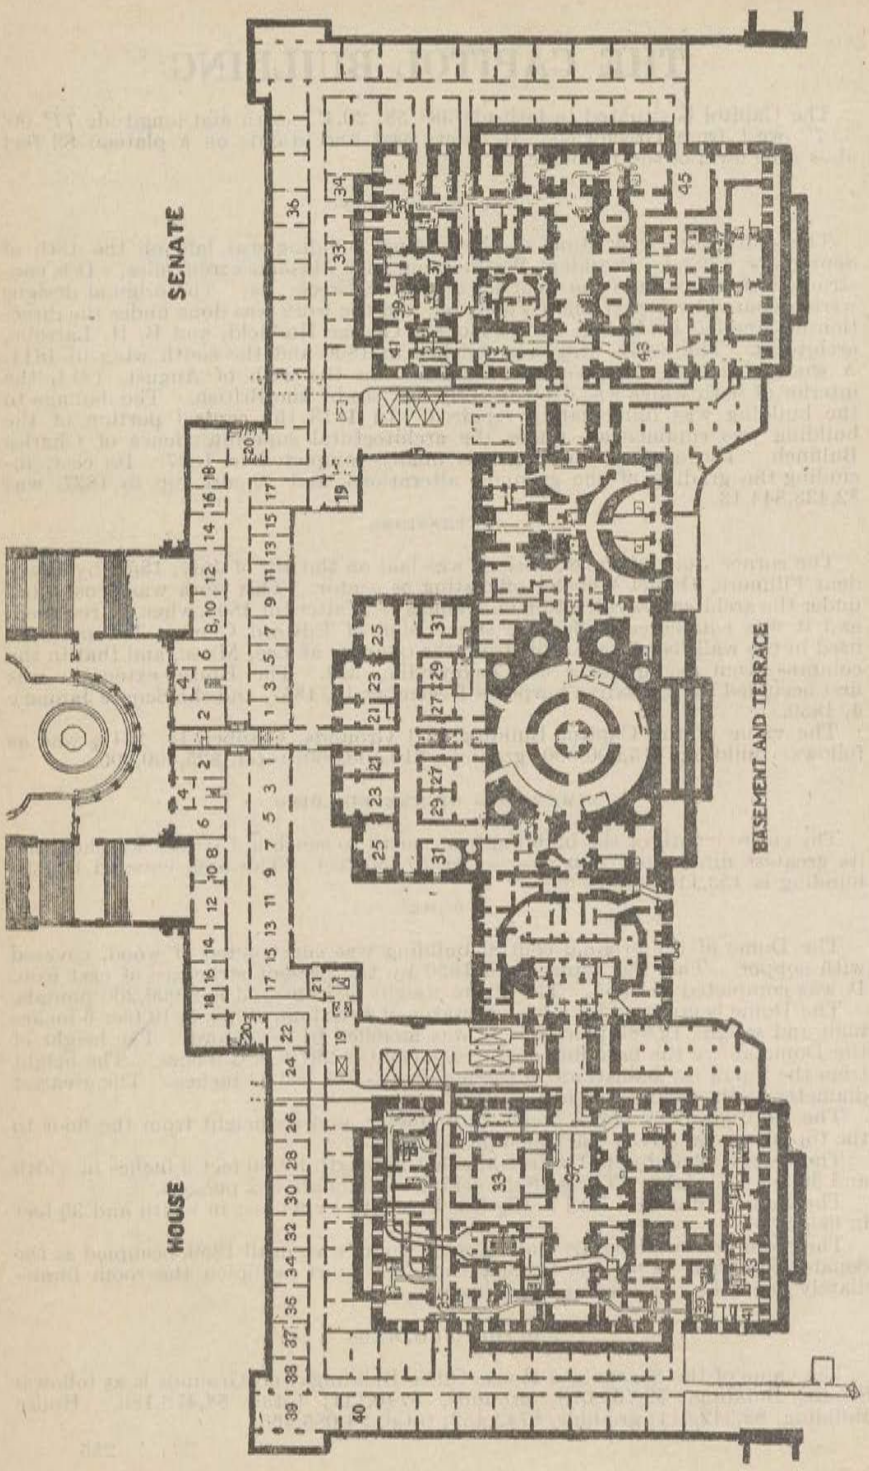

The Senate Chamber is 113 feet 3 inches in length by 80 feet 3 inches in width and 36 feet in height. The galleries will accommodate 682 persons.

The Representatives' Hall is 139 feet in length by 93 feet in width and 36 feet in height.

The room now occupied by the Supreme Court was, until 1859, occupied as the Senate Chamber. Previous to that time the court occupied the room immediately beneath, now used as a law library.

OFFICE BUILDINGS

The value of the Senate and House Office Buildings and Grounds is as follows: Senate Building, $3,732,078; grounds, $746,111; total, $4,478,189. House Building, $3,342,011; grounds, $743,452; total, $4,085,463.

COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY

The Comptroller of the Currency is the chief officer of the Bureau of the Comptroller of the Currency, established under the act of February 25, 1863, known as the national bank act. At the time of its establishment emphasis was placed primarily upon those functions of the bureau concerned with the issue and regulation of the national-bank notes, secured by United States bonds. In the course of time this phase of the work of the bureau decreased in relative importance, and the primary functions of the Comptroller of the Currency now are those relating to the organization of new national banks, the general supervision over the national banks in operation, and the administration through receivers of national banks which have failed.

Under the direction of the comptroller the national-bank examiners make regular examinations of the affairs of all national banks. A report of each of these examinations is made in writing by the examiner to the comptroller. These examinations show the condition of the bank with reference to its solvency and its observance of the provisions of the national bank act. In cases of deliberate violations of law the comptroller may bring suit against any such bank for the forfeiture of its charter.

If it appears to the comptroller that any national bank is in an insolvent condition, it is his duty to appoint a receiver therefor for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the bank.

The reports of condition of all national banks are required to be made to the comptroller by the banks not less than three times a year upon dates fixed by the comptroller.

The Comptroller of the Currency is ex officio a member of the Federal Reserve Board and meets regularly with the board. He also, by virtue of the provisions of the Federal reserve act, executes and issues the charters for the Federal reserve banks.

Studies are made of marketing methods, conditions, and costs, and with regard to the standardization, transportation, handling, and storage of agricultural products. Reports are issued covering the supply, commercial movement, disposition, and market prices of the principal farm products. Information is secured and published concerning the supply of and demand for agricultural products in foreign countries. A market inspection service is available at many of the principal producing and receiving centers of the country on fruits and vegetables, hay, meat grades, butter, and eggs. Regulatory work is performed in connection with the enforcement of the United States cotton futures act, United States cotton standards act, the United States grain standards act, the standard container act, and the United States warehouse act. BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

The Bureau of the Census takes the decennial census of the United States, covering population, agriculture, manufactures, mines and quarries, and is continuously engaged in the compilation of other statistics covering a wide range of subjects. Statistics regarding the dependent, defective, and delinquent classes in institutions; public debt, national wealth and taxation; religious bodies or churches; and transportation by water are compiled every tenth year in the period intervening between the decennial censuses; and statistics of electric light and power plants, electric railways, telephones, and telegraphs every fifth year. A special census of agriculture is taken in the fifth year following the decennial census; and a census of manufactures is taken biennially. Statistics of births, deaths, marriages, and divorces are compiled annually; also financial statistics of cities and States. At quarterly intervals the bureau collects and publishes statistics as to stocks of leaf tobacco in the hands of manufacturers and dealers. At monthly intervals statistics are published relating to cotton supply, consumption, and distribution; to cottonseed and its products; and at approximately semimonthly intervals during the ginning season reports are issued showing the amounts of cotton ginned to specified dates. The bureau also collects monthly or quarterly data regarding the production or supply of many other commodities, including hides, skins, leather and leather goods, clothing, and wool.

The bureau publishes the monthly Survey of Current Business compiling from various sources data regarding the movement of prices, stocks on hand, production, etc., for various lines of trade and industry, together with such other available data as may throw light upon the business situation.

The bureau also published the Official Register of the United States, giving the names, titles, and salaries of all persons occupying administrative and supervisory positions in the executive and judicial departments of the Government.

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE

It is the duty of this bureau to "promote and develop the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States." Included under the obligations with which it is charged by virtue of the various funds now being currently allotted to it by Congress are such duties as (1) "to report upon domestic as well as foreign problems relating to production, distribution, and marketing in so far as they relate to the important export industries of the United States;" (2) "to investigate and report upon such conditions in the manufacturing industries and trade of foreign countries as may be of interest to the United States;" (3) to promote American trade with Europe, Central and South America, and the Far East; (4) "to operate and maintain district and cooperative offices within the United States;" (5) to enforce the China trade act regarding the tax exemptions of American firms doing business in China; (6) to compile and publish statistics on foreign trade; (7) to investigate trade restrictions and regulations of foreign countries in relation to American commerce; (8) to prepare and circulate lists of available foreign agents for American firms.

The bureau maintains commercial attachés abroad whose reports on trade conditions and prospects are widely circulated among American firms. There are attachés at Athens, Berlin, Bogota, Brussels, Bucharest, Buenos Aires, Copenhagen, Habana, The Hague, Lima, London, Madrid, Mexico City, Montevideo, Panama City, Paris, Peking, Prague, Riga, Rio de Janeiro, Rome, Santiago, Stockholm, Tokyo, Vienna, and Warsaw.

There are also resident trade commissioners (juniors in rank to commercial attachés) at Alexandria, Barcelona, Batavia, Bombay, Calcutta, Constantinople, Hamburg, Helsingfors, Johannesburg, Manila, Melbourne, Montreal, Ottawa, San Juan, Sao Paulo, Shanghai, and Sydney.

Reports of the consular service of the Department of State on the trade of foreign countries and opportunities for the sale abroad of articles produced in the United States are transmitted to the Department of Commerce for distribution. This material is edited in the bureau and distributed to the commercial public by means of the weekly magazine Commerce Reports, special monographs, bulletins, pamphlets, and circulars or letters.

Commerce Reports contains authoritative articles on all phases of foreign commerce, industry, and finance, a special feature being the cable reviews of conditions in foreign countries.

Commodity divisions, in charge of technical experts, put the resources of the Government at the disposal of a number of basic industries in the extension of their foreign trade. Services to the following industries are in operation: Agricultural implements, automotive products, chemicals, electrical equipment, foodstuffs, hides and leather, iron, steel, and hardware, lumber, machinery, minerals, paper, rubber and rubber products, shoe and leather manufactures, specialties, and textiles. There is close cooperation with committees of trade associations and other representatives of American industry.

At such times as the need becomes apparent, the bureau conducts special investigations into foreign sources of raw materials essential to American industry.

The division of regional information, consisting of three sections—European Latin American, and Far Eastern—furnishes basic data on economic conditions and broad commercial problems. This division supervises the work of the bureau's oversea representatives and disseminates information received from those representatives, from foreign publications, and from other sources.

In connection with its trade promotion work the bureau maintains a Division of Foreign Tariffs, charged with collecting and disseminating information regarding foreign tariffs and the related conditions of the movement of goods between countries. The division furnishes information and advice regarding foreign commercial treaties and preferential arrangements; foreign conditions of importation (import duties, restrictions, consular documents, customs requirements, internal taxes on imports; temporary admission and reexportation); foreign conditions of exportation (export duties and restrictions, bounties, and export subsidies); shipment of samples and advertising matter abroad; and foreign treatment of commercial travelers and their samples.

A Finance and Investment Division attends to all financial and economic questions that are international in scope and to matters connected with the flotation of foreign securities in the United States, the investment of American capital abroad, and the general aspects of foreign-trade financing.

Statistical information with respect to United States imports and exports is received by the bureau in monthly and quarterly returns from the collectors of customs, showing the articles imported and exported and the countries from which imported and exported. These statistics are printed in monthly and annual publications.

The Statistical Research Division handles the trade statistics of foreign countries. Thus there is concentration of work on United States and foreign trade statistics in the one bureau. The Statistical Abstract of the United States presents in condensed form statements regarding the commerce, production, industries, population, finance, etc., of the United States and a statement of the commerce of the principal foreign countries. The Commerce Yearbook comprises a descriptive and statistical summary of industrial, commercial, and general economic conditions and developments.

The Transportation Division compiles and furnishes to shippers information on freight rates, services, and facilities, both rail and ocean, which will enable them to route shipments economically and to quote c. i. f. prices. The division is prepared to give advice on how to pack shipments for foreign markets. It gathers and distributes data on facilities, regulations, and charges in the ports of the world. This division also deals with telephone, telegraph, cable, radio, and postal communication and is interested in all matters tending to protect and increase American facilities for world communication.

The Division of Commercial Laws furnishes information concerning commercial laws and judicial procedure, patent and trade-mark laws, the taxation of American firms doing business abroad, formalities in connection with bankruptcy proceedings, powers of attorney, the protesting of drafts, the legal aspects of construction enterprises, agency agreements, standardization of bills of exchange, etc.

The Division of Domestic Commerce devotes its attention to the study of merchandising methods, trade movements, and price trends within the boundaries of the United States.

An active trade directory of business houses and prospective buyers and agents all over the world is maintained for the benefit of American manufacturers and exporters. This directory now contains about 100,000 detailed reports, covering data required for a sales contact. The bureau also locates, in foreign markets, exporters of such raw materials as are needed by American manufacturers.

Specific opportunities for the sale of goods abroad and similar matters of this character are presented through Commerce Reports and confidential circulars to those American firms whose names are recorded in the Exporters' Index.

The distribution work of the bureau is facilitated by its district offices in New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Detroit, Portland (Oreg.), Des Moines, Houston, Galveston, Memphis, Louisville, and Minneapolis. These offices expedite the distribution of commercial information and establish closer relations between Government and private agencies interested in the extension of foreign trade. They also aid in the adjustment of disputes; place foreign business men in touch with American firms; promote foreign trade education; and help American firms to obtain competent employees. Through arrangements made between district offices of the bureau and radiotelephone stations, foreign trade information from the bureau is broadcast throughout the United States.

Arrangements have been made with commercial organizations in other cities for the establishment of cooperative branch offices, which serve the same purpose as the bureau's own district offices. Such cooperative offices have been established in Akron, Baltimore, Birmingham, Bridgeport (Conn.), Charleston (S. C.), Chattanooga, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dallas, Dayton, El Paso, Erie, Fort Worth, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Los Angeles, Lowell, Milwaukee, Mobile, Newark (N. J.), Norfolk, Orange (Tex.), Pensacola, Pittsburgh, Providence (R. I.), Richmond, Rochester, San Diego, Syracuse, Tacoma, Toledo, Trenton, and Worcester.

BUREAU OF STANDARDS

The Bureau of Standards is charged by law with the custody of the standards; the comparison of the standards with those used in science, industry, technology, commerce, and educational institutions; the construction of standards and of their multiples and subdivisions; the testing and certification of standard measuring instruments; the solution of problems arising in connection with standards; the determination of physical constants and properties of materials; and other investigations authorized by Congress. The bureau's functions may be exercised for the National Government, State governments, and, subject to reasonable fees, the general public. The Bureau of Standards aids industry directly or through cooperating committees to determine the best standards of dimension, quality, performance, and practice. Its unique research and testing facilities are used to discover and evaluate material standards and to solve basic technical problems of industry.

The bureau's work on standards of measurement is designed to aid accuracy in industry through uniform and correct measures. In this the bureau assists in size standardization of containers and products, in promoting systematic inspection of trade weights and measures to insure justice in daily trade, and finally to facilitate precise research in science and technology through the standardization of measuring instruments.

The work of the bureau on the measured numerical data concerning material and energy; that is, standard constants, furnishes an exact basis for scientific experiment and design. These furnish also the data for the efficient technical control of industrial process.

The bureau's work on standards of quality includes the specification of the numerical magnitude of the property or group of properties which determine the quality. The purpose is to set an attainable standard of quality to assure high utility in the products of industry; to furnish a scientific basis for fair dealing by promoting truthful branding and advertising through suitable standards and methods of test. This work yields large scale economies by eliminating ineffective materials.

The bureau likewise develops standards of performance; that is, specifications for the operative efficiency or accuracy of machines or devices. These are numerical statements of speed, uniformity, durability, output, economy, and other factors which together define the net efficiency of an appliance or machine. The ultimate purpose is to make exact knowledge the basis of the buyer's choice, to clarify the understanding between maker, seller, buyer, and user as to the operative efficiency of appliances and machines. An important outcome of this work is that it stimulates and measures mechanical progress.

A function of the bureau of very general interest is the development of standards of practice; that is, collation of data and formulation of codes of practice for public utilities and other services. These are prepared in cooperation with the technical and commercial agencies concerned and relate to the technical regulation of construction, installation, and operation. They are necessarily based upon standards of measurement, standards of quality, and standards of performance. The purpose of such work is to afford a single impersonal standard of performance mutually agreed upon by all concerned and clearly defined in measurable terms. Incidentally, it insures effective design and installation of service utilities, and promotes safety, efficiency, and convenience in such service.

Congress has made special provision for research and testing in specific fields involved in the five kinds of standards described above. Some examples of such functions may be cited.

BUREAU OF LIGHTHOUSES

The United States Lighthouse Service is charged with the establishment and maintenance of aids to navigation, and with all equipment and work incident thereto, on the sea and lake coasts of the United States, and on the rivers of the United States so far as specifically authorized by law, and on the coasts of all other territory under the jurisdiction of the United States, with the exception of the Philippine Islands and Panama.

The bureau publishes Light Lists and Buoy Lists giving information regarding all aids to navigation maintained by the Lighthouse Service; it also publishes each week, jointly with the Coast and Geodetic Survey, Notices to Mariners, giving the changes in lights, buoys, etc.

COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY

The Coast and Geodetic Survey is charged with the survey of the coasts of the United States and coasts under the jurisdiction thereof and the publication of charts covering said coasts. This includes base measure, triangulation, topography, and hydrography along said coasts; the survey of rivers to the head of tidewater or ship navigation; deep-sea soundings, temperature, and current observations along said coasts and throughout the Gulf and Japan streams; magnetic and seismological observations and researches, and the publication of maps showing the variations of terrestrial magnetism; seismological investigations; gravity research; determination of heights; the determination of geographic positions by astronomic observations for latitude, longitude, and azimuth, and by triangulation, to furnish reference points for State surveys.

The results obtained are published in annual reports and in special publications; charts upon various scales, including sailing charts, general charts of the coast, and harbor charts; tide tables issued annually in advance; Coast Pilots, with sailing directions covering the navigable waters; Notices to Mariners (published jointly by Coast and Geodetic Survey and Bureau of Lighthouses), issued weekly and containing current information necessary for safe navigation; catalogues of charts and publications; and such other special publications as may be required to carry out the organic law governing the survey.

BUREAU OF NAVIGATION

The Bureau of Navigation is charged with general superintendence of the commercial marine and merchant seamen of the United States, except so far as supervision is lodged with other officers of the Government. It is specially charged with the decision of all questions relating to the issue of registers, enrollments, and licenses of vessels and the filing of those documents, with the supervision of laws relating to the admeasurement, letters, and numbers of vessels, and with the final decision of questions concerning the collection and refund of tonnage taxes. It is empowered to change the names of vessels, and prepares annually a list of vessels of the United States. The commissioner also investigates the operation of the laws relative to navigation and annually reports to the Secretary of Commerce such particulars as may in his judgment admit of improvement or require amendment.

In addition to the above statutory duties the bureau is charged, under direction of the Secretary of Commerce, with the enforcement, through collectors and surveyors of customs and radio inspectors, of the navigation and steamboat inspection laws, and the laws governing radio communication, and the consideration of action to be taken on fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred under those laws; administrative examination of accounts of collectors, surveyors of customs, and shipping commissioners covering fines, penalties, and forfeitures; services to vessels; navigation fees; amounts collected on account of decease of passengers, tonnage tax collections, refunds; shipment and discharge of seamen, etc.

STEAMBOAT INSPECTION SERVICE

The Steamboat Inspection Service is charged with the duty of inspecting vessels, the licensing of the officers of vessels, and the administration of the laws relating to such vessels and their officers for the protection of life and property.

The blue prints or drawings of water tube and coil boilers used in vessels of the American merchant marine are passed upon by the board of supervising inspectors, while designs of marine boilers of other types are passed upon by the local inspectors having original jurisdiction. All material subject to tensile strain used in the construction of marine boilers is required to be tested by an inspector of the Steamboat Inspection Service, so that not only is the material but the design of a boiler under the closest scrutiny. The inspectors of hulls look after the examination of the hulls of vessels and of life-saving equipment, such as life preservers, lifeboats, life rafts, davits, etc., and once at least in each year vessels of the American merchant marine are required by law to be inspected by the Steamboat Inspection Service, and excursion steamers are reinspected not less than three times during the year in addition to the regular annual inspection. The local inspectors are the officers who examine applicants for licenses for the deck department and engineer department of merchant ships. These examinations are conducted frequently, and at such times as to be most convenient to the applicants for licenses, and, as the result of this close supervision over the licensing of officers, a very high standard is maintained. The Steamboat Inspection Service also is required by law to certificate the able seamen who form the crew of merchant vessels, and the inspectors of the service, together with other Government officers especially detailed for that purpose, also certificate the lifeboat men. Not the least important of the work of the local inspectors is the investigation of violations of the steamboat inspection laws. In such instances the boards of local inspectors have quasi judicial authority, and these boards have conferred upon them the authority and the right to suspend or revoke the licenses of officers who have been found guilty of violating these laws, negligence, inattention to duty, etc. The traveling inspectors of the service, in addition to following up vessel inspections made by local inspectors, conduct stability tests of the larger class of passenger and ferry vessels.

COMMISSIONER OF PATENTS

The Commissioner of Patents is charged with the administration of the patent laws and supervision of all matters relating to the granting of letters patent for inventions, and the registration of trade-marks. He is by statute made the tribunal of last resort in the Patent Office, and has appellate jurisdiction in the trial of interference cases, of the patentability of inventions, and of registration of trade-marks.[1]

[1] Appeals lie from his decisions to the United States Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

DIRECTOR OF THE BUREAU OF MINES

He has charge of tests and analyses of ores, coals, lignites, and other mineral fuel substances belonging to or for use of the United States; has charge of the collection of statistics on mineral resources, and economic studies of metals and minerals produced or consumed in the United States; supervises all work relating to the production and conservation of helium. He also has charge of the Government fuel yards for the storage and distribution of fuel for the use of and delivery to all branches of the Federal service and the municipal government in the District of Columbia and such parts thereof as may be situated immediately without the District of Columbia.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

THE SECRETARY OF LABOR

The Secretary of Labor is charged with the duty of fostering, promoting, and developing the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, improving their working conditions, and advancing their opportunities for profitable employment. He has power under the law to act as mediator and to appoint commissioners of conciliation in labor disputes whenever in his judgment the interests of industrial peace may require it to be done. BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS

The Bureau of Labor Statistics is charged with the duty of acquiring and diffusing among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with labor in the most general and comprehensive sense of that word, and especially upon its relations to capital, the hours of labor, the earnings of laboring men and women, and the means of promoting their material, social, intellectual, and moral prosperity.

It is especially charged to investigate the causes of and facts relating to controversies and disputes between employers and employees as they may occur, and which may happen to interfere with the welfare of the people of the several States.

It is also authorized, by act of March 2, 1895, to publish a bulletin on the condition of labor in this and other countries, condensations of State and foreign labor reports, facts as to conditions of employment, and such other facts as may be deemed of value to the industrial interests of the United States. This bulletin is issued in a number of series, each dealing with a single subject or closely related group of subjects, and the bulletin is published at irregular intervals as matter becomes available for publication.

By the act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii, as amended, it is made the duty of the bureau to collect and present in quinquennial reports statistical details relating to all departments of labor in the Territory of Hawaii, especially those statistics which relate to the commercial, industrial, social, educational, and sanitary condition of the laboring classes.

BUREAU OF IMMIGRATION

The Bureau of Immigration is charged with the administration of the laws relating to immigration and of the Chinese exclusion laws. The act establishing the bureau provides that it shall investigate and report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life among all classes of our people, and shall especially investigate the questions of infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanage, juvenile courts, desertion, dangerous occupations, accidents, and diseases of children, employment, and legislation affecting children in the several States and Territories. The bureau is also empowered to publish the results of these investigations in such manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Labor. The bureau is charged with the Federal administration of the Sheppard-Towner Act for the promotion of the welfare and hygiene of maternity and infancy. Under this act the Federal and State Governments are cooperating in their efforts to reduce maternal and infant mortality.

BUREAU OF NATURALIZATION

The act approved March 4, 1913, creating the Department of Labor, provided a Bureau of Naturalization, and that the Commissioner of Naturalization, or, in his absence, the Deputy Commissioner of Naturalization, shall be the administrative officer in charge of the Bureau of Naturalization and of the administration of the naturalization laws under the immediate direction of the Secretary of Labor. Under the provisions of the act of June 29, 1906, naturalization jurisdiction was conferred upon approximately 3,500 United States and State courts. The duties of the Bureau of Naturalization are to supervise the work of these courts in naturalization matters, to require an accounting from the clerks of courts for all naturalization fees collected by them, examine and audit these accounts, deposit them in the Treasury of the United States through the disbursing clerk of the department, and render an accounting therefor quarterly to the Auditor for the State and other Departments, to conduct all correspondence relating to naturalization, and, through its field officers located in various cities of the United States, to investigate the qualifications of the candidates for citizenship and represent the Government at the hearings of petitions for naturalization. In the archives of the bureau are filed duplicates of all certificates of naturalization granted since September 26, 1906, as well as the preliminary papers of all candidates for citizenship filed since that date.

WOMEN'S BUREAU

This bureau was established as a statutory bureau under act of June 5, 1920, "An act to establish in the Department of Labor a bureau to be known as the Women's Bureau." Its functions are to formulate standards and policies to promote the welfare of wage-earning women, to improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency, and advance their opportunity for profitable employment. The bureau has authority to investigate and report to the department upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of women in industry.

The director of the bureau publishes the results of these investigations in the manner and to such extent as the Secretary of Labor may prescribe.

This bureau, formerly known as the Women in Industry Service, organized in July, 1918, was established by an appropriation in the act providing for the sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1919, its function being to serve as a policy-forming and advisory body during the war emergency, whose special duty was to develop in the industries of the country policies and methods for the most effective use of women's services in production, and safeguarding such employment from injurious conditions. This service was continued by appropriation during the following year and until it became a statutory bureau by the act of Congress above quoted.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

The purpose of the United States Employment Service is to foster, promote, and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States by so conserving and distributing their industrial activities as to improve their working conditions and advance their opportunities for profitable employment, in harmony with the general good, with the necessities of war, with the just interests of employers, and with the development in practice of the recognized principle of a common responsibility for production and a common interest in distribution.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON PRINTING

The Joint Committee on Printing, consisting of three Members of the Senate and three Members of the House of Representatives, was created by the act of August 3, 1846, and its principal duties are set forth in the printing act approved January 12, 1895. That act gave the committee authority "to remedy any neglect or delay in the public printing and binding." This authority was extended by section 11 of the legislative appropriation act for 1920, empowering the committee "to adopt and employ such measures as, in its discretion, may be deemed necessary to remedy any neglect, delay, duplication, or waste in the public printing and binding and the distribution of Government publications."

The act of 1895 provides that the committee "shall have control of the arrangement and style of the Congressional Record, and, while providing that it shall be substantially a verbatim report of proceedings, shall take all needed action for the reduction of unnecessary bulk." The committee is also authorized to provide for the publication of semimonthly and session indexes to the Record. The Congressional Directory, addresses on deceased Senators and Members, statute proceedings, and similar publications are compiled and prepared under the direction of the committee. The Superintendent of Documents publishes the index of public documents upon a plan approved by the committee and indexes such single volumes as it shall direct.

The committee is directed by law to establish rules and regulations for the printing of documents and reports in two or more editions. Orders for subsequent editions after two years from date of original order must receive its approval. The committee directs whether extra copies of documents and reports shall be bound in paper or cloth, and prescribes the arrangement and binding of documents for depository libraries.

The cost of printing any document or report which can not be properly charged to any other appropriation may, upon order of the committee, be charged to the congressional allotment.

The committee may order additional copies printed of Government publications within a limit of $200 in cost in any one instance.

The act of 1895 also provides that the committee shall exercise the following functions in regard to the purchase of paper for the public printing and binding: Fix upon standards of quality, receive proposals and award contracts therefor, appoint a member of the board of paper inspection, determine differences of opinion as to quality, act upon defaults, and authorize open-market purchases.

The legislative appropriation act for 1925 authorizes the Public Printer to procure under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing in accordance with the act approved January 12, 1895, and furnish, on requisition, paper and envelopes (not including envelopes printed in the course of manufacture) in common use by two or more departments, establishments, or services of the Government in the District of Columbia.

The Public Printer is required by law to advertise for bids for material, other than paper, under the direction of the committee, and to make a return to it on all such contracts awarded by him. The committee may authorize the Public Printer to make certain open-market purchases of material, and, by resolution, it has required him to obtain its approval on all purchases of machinery and equipment in excess of $1,000 in any one instance.

Maps and illustration plates for Government publications are purchased under the direction of the committee whenever the probable cost exceeds $1,200; or, whenever the exigencies of the public service do not justify advertisement, the committee may authorize immediate contracts for lithographing and engraving.

Printing for the Patent Office is required by law to be done under such regulations and conditions as the committee may prescribe.

Section 11 of the legislative appropriation act for 1920 requires all printing, binding, and blank-book work for the Government to be done at the Government Printing Office, except such classes of work as shall be deemed by the Joint Committee on Printing to be urgent or necessary to have done elsewhere than in the District of Columbia for the exclusive use of any field service outside of said District.

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

The Smithsonian Institution was created by act of Congress in 1846, under the terms of the will of James Smithson, an Englishman, who in 1826 bequeathed his fortune to the United States to found, at Washington, under the name of the "Smithsonian Institution," an establishment for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The Institution is legally an establishment, having as its members the President of the United States, the Vice President, the Chief Justice, and the President's Cabinet. It is governed by a Board of Regents, consisting of the Vice President, the Chief Justice, three Members of the United States Senate, three Members of the House of Representatives, and six citizens of the United States appointed by joint resolution of Congress. The Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution is its executive officer and the director of its activities.

Through the Hodgkins fund, the income of $100,000 of which is for the increase and diffusion of knowledge in regard to the nature and properties of atmospheric air in connection with the welfare of man, grants have been made, publications issued, and medals and prizes awarded.

The library of the Smithsonian Institution (including the Smithsonian Deposit in the Library of Congress) consists mainly of the transactions of learned societies and scientific books and periodicals, and numbers more than 675,000 volumes, pamphlets, and charts.

THE PAN AMERICAN UNION

(Formerly International Bureau of American Republics)

The Pan American Union is the official international organization of all the Republics of the Western Hemisphere, founded and maintained by them for the purpose of exchanging mutually useful information and fostering commerce, intercourse, friendship, and peace. It is supported through their joint contributions, each nation annually paying that part of the budget of expenses which its population bears to the total population of all the Republics. Its general control is vested in a governing board made up of the diplomatic representatives in Washington of all the Latin-American Governments and the Secretary of State of the United States. Its executive officers are a Director General and an Assistant Director, elected by the board. They in turn are assisted by a trained staff of editors, statisticians, compilers, trade experts, translators, librarians, and clerks. It is strictly international in its scope, purpose, and control, and each nation has equal authority in its administration. Its activities and facilities include the following: Publication in English, Spanish, Portuguese, with separate editions, of an illustrated monthly bulletin, which is a record of the progress of all the Republics; publication of handbooks, descriptive pamphlets, commercial statements, maps, and special reports relating to each country; correspondence covering all phases of Pan American activities; distribution of every variety of information helpful in the promotion of Pan American commerce, acquaintance, cooperation, and solidarity of interests. It also sets the date, selects the place of meeting, and prepares the programs for the International Conferences of the American States known as the Pan American Conferences, and is custodian of their archives. Its library, known as the Columbus Memorial Library, contains nearly 65,000 volumes, including the official publications, documents, and laws of all the Republics, together with a large collection of maps. The Union also possesses a collection of more than 25,000 photographs, lantern slides, and negatives. Its reading room has upon its tables the representative magazines and newspapers of Latin America. Both are open to the public for consultation and study. It occupies and owns buildings and grounds facing Seventeenth Street, between B and C Streets, overlooking Potomac Park on the south and the White House Park on the east. These buildings and grounds, representing an outlay of $1,100,000, of which Mr. Andrew Carnegie contributed $850,000 and the American Republics $250,000, are dedicated forever to the use of the Pan American Union as an international organization. The Pan American Union was founded in 1890, under the name of the International Bureau of American Republics, in accordance with the action of the First Pan American Conference, held in Washington in 1889–90 and presided over by James G. Blaine, then Secretary of State. It was reorganized in 1907 by action of the Third Pan American Conference, held in Rio de Janeiro in 1906, and upon the initiative of Elihu Root, then Secretary of State. At the fourth conference, held at Buenos Aires in 1910, its name was changed from the International Bureau of American Republics to the Pan American Union. The fifth conference, held at Santiago, Chile, in 1923, considerably enlarged the functions of the Pan American Union. All communications should be addressed to the Director General, Pan American Union, Washington, D. C.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE

The Comptroller General of the United States is charged by law with the settlement and adjustment, independently of the executive departments, of all claims and demands whatever by the Government of the United States or against it, and all accounts whatever in which the Government of the United States is concerned, either as debtor or creditor, and is vested with all powers and duties previously conferred or imposed by law upon the former Comptroller of the Treasury and the six Auditors of the Treasury Department; also with the duty of keeping the personal ledger accounts of disbursing and collecting officers; of reporting to Congress delinquency in rendering accounts; and of certifying balances, which are final and conclusive, upon the executive branch of the Government. He may provide for payment of accounts or claims adjusted and settled in the General Accounting Office, through disbursing officers of the several departments and establishments instead of by warrant, and prescribes the forms, systems, and procedure for administrative appropriation and fund accounting in the several departments and establishments and for the administrative examination of fiscal officers' accounts and claims, reporting to Congress upon the adequacy and efficiency of such administrative examination. He appoints and removes attorneys and other employees in the General Accounting Office, they performing such duties as may be assigned to them by him, all official acts performed by them, when specially designated therefor by the Comptroller General, having the same force and effect as though performed by the Comptroller General in person. He makes such rules and regulations as may be necessary for carrying on the work of the General Accounting Office, including those for the admission of attorneys to practice before it, and furnishes, under the seal of said office for use as evidence, copies of records from books and proceedings thereof in accordance with sections 882 and 886 of the Revised Statutes.

Upon the application of disbursing officers, the head of any executive department or other independent establishment not under any of the executive departments, the Comptroller General is required to render his advance decision upon any question involving a payment to be made by them or under them, which decision when rendered governs in the settlement of the account involving the payment inquired about. He reviews, on his own motion, any settled account when in the interest of the United States to do so. He superintends the recovery of all debts finally certified by audited settlements to be due the United States, exclusive of those arising under the Postal Service, and the preservation of all accounts, with their vouchers, etc., which have been finally adjusted, and countersigns all warrants authorized by law to be signed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

It is also the duty of the Comptroller General to investigate at the seat of government or elsewhere all matters relating to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds and to make recommendations to the President, when requested by him, and to Congress concerning legislation necessary to facilitate the prompt and accurate rendition and settlement of accounts, and concerning such other matters as he may deem advisable in regard to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds and economy or efficiency in public expenditures. He makes investigations for Congress as to revenue, appropriations, and expenditures, furnishing assistants from his office to Congress for that purpose, and specially reports to Congress every expenditure or contract made by any department or establishment in any year in violation of law. He also reports to Congress upon the adequacy and effectiveness of departmental inspection of the offices and accounts of fiscal officers, and, in accordance with law, has access to and examines any books, documents, papers, or records, except those pertaining to certain funds for purposes of intercourse or treaty with foreign nations, of all departments and establishments for the purpose of securing from time to time information regarding the powers, duties, activities, organization, financial transactions, and methods of business of their respective offices. It is also his duty to furnish to the Bureau of the Budget such information relating to expenditures and accounting as it may request from time to time.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

The original act to regulate commerce, approved February 4, 1887, provided for a commission consisting of five members. By various amendatory and supplementary enactments the powers of the commission have been increased and the scope of the regulating statute materially widened. Among the more important of these enactments are the acts of March 2, 1889; the Elkins Act, approved February 19, 1903; the Hepburn Act, approved June 29, 1906; the Mann-Elkins Act of June 18, 1910; the acts of August 24, 1912, and May 29 and August 9, 1917; and the transportation act, 1920. The number of commissioners was increased under the act of June 29, 1906, to 7 members; under the act of August 9, 1917, to 9 members; and under the transportation act, 1920, to 11 members.

The commission appoints a secretary (who is its general administrative and executive officer), an assistant secretary, a chief counsel, and such attorneys, examiners, special agents, and clerks as are necessary to the proper performance of its duties.

The act to regulate commerce applies to all common carriers engaged in the transportation of oil or other commodities, except water, and except natural or artificial gas, by means of pipe lines, or partly by pipe lines and partly by railroad, or partly by pipe lines and partly by water, and to telegraph, telephone, and cable companies (whether wire or wireless) engaged in sending messages from one State, Territory, or District of the United States to any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, or to any foreign country, and to common carriers engaged in interstate transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad (or partly by railroad and partly by water when both are used under a common control, management, or arrangement for a continuous carriage or shipment); also to express companies and sleeping-car companies, to bridges, ferries, car floats, and lighters, and all terminal and transportation facilities used or necessary in the interstate transportation of persons and property, and all instrumentalities and facilities used in connection with the transmission of intelligence and messages by the use of electric energy.

The act to regulate commerce requires all rates to be just and reasonable and prohibits unjust discrimination and undue or unreasonable preference or advantage in transportation rates or facilities. As amended by the transportation act, 1920, the act provides that whenever in any investigation, including one instituted upon petition of the carriers concerned, there shall be brought in issue any rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice made or imposed by any State authority, or by the President, during the period of Federal control, the authorities of the State or States interested must be notified of the hearings in such cases, and the commission may confer and hold joint hearings with the authorities of the interested States. If, after hearing, the commission finds such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice causes undue or unreasonable advantage, preference, or prejudice as between persons or localities in intrastate commerce on the one hand and interstate or foreign commerce on the other hand, or any undue, unreasonable, or unjust discrimination against interstate or foreign commerce which is forbidden, it is authorized to prescribe the rate, fare, or charge, or the maximum or minimum, or maximum and minimum, thereafter to be charged, and the classification, regulation, or practice thereafter to be observed, in such manner as, in its judgment, will remove such advantage, preference, prejudice, or discrimination.

The act as amended prohibits the charging of a higher rate for a shorter than for a longer haul over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer haul, or the charging of any greater compensation as a through route than the aggregate of the intermediate rates subject to the act. It is provided, however, that the commission may, in special cases, after investigation, authorize carriers to charge less for longer than for shorter distances, and from time to time prescribe the extent to which such carriers may be relieved, subject, however, to the further proviso that in so doing the commission shall not permit the establishment of any charge to or from the more distant point that is not reasonably compensatory, or authorize a circuitous rail line, because of such circuity, to meet the charges of a more direct line to or from competitive points, and to maintain higher charges to or from an intermediate point on its line where the length of the haul on the petitioning line is not longer than that of the direct line between the competitive points, or authorize any such relief because of merely potential water competition not actually in existence.

The commission is authorized to require carriers to establish through routes and joint rates, and it may act summarily in itself establishing, temporarily, through routes when, in its opinion, shortage of equipment, congestion of traffic, or other emergency exists. The amended act requires that divisions of joint rates shall be just, reasonable, and equitable, and authorizes the commission, upon complaint or upon its own initiative, after hearing, to prescribe the just, reasonable, and equitable divisions of such rates, and it may require readjustment of such divisions if it finds they have been unjust, unreasonable, or inequitable in the past. The commission is also authorized to require carriers subject to the act to construct switch connections with lateral branch lines of railroads and private sidetracks. The act provides that where two or more through routes and through rates shall have been established shippers shall have the right to designate in writing via which of such through routes the property shall be transported to destination. The act as amended February 28, 1920, gives the commission authority over the routing of traffic after it arrives at the terminus or a junction point of a carrier and is to be there delivered to another carrier in cases where routing instructions have not been given by the shipper. Where diversion of routed freight occurs which is not in compliance with an order, rule, or regulation of the commission, the carrier or carriers so diverting the traffic are jointly and severally liable to the carrier deprived of its right to participate in the haul of the property.

The act as amended February 28, 1920, authorizes the commission, under certain circumstances, upon such terms and conditions, and subject to such rules and regulations as it may think just and reasonable, to permit the pooling of freights of different and competing railroads, and to divide the aggregate or net proceeds of the earnings of such railroads, and to permit the acquisition by one carrier of the control of another carrier in any manner not involving the consolidation of such carriers into a single system for ownership and operation. It requires the commission to prepare and adopt, as soon as practicable, a plan for the consolidation of railway properties of the continental United States into a limited number of systems. It authorizes carriers, with the approval of the commission and subject to certain restrictions, to consolidate their properties or any part thereof. It authorizes a consolidation of four express companies, and relieves carriers, when permission is so granted, from the restraints of the antitrust laws so far as may be necessary to effect such consolidations. The commission is required to make rates which will yield the carriers as a whole, or as a whole in each group or territory designated by the commission, a fair return upon the aggregate value of the property used by them in serving the public, and to fix such aggregate values from time to time as may be necessary. The rate of return is fixed at 5½ per cent, to which may be added, in the discretion of the commission, not exceeding one-half of 1 per cent for improvements, betterments, or equipment, for the two years beginning March 1, 1920, and provides for the disposition of any earnings in excess thereof by distributing one-half of them to a reserve fund to be established and maintained by the carrier, the other half of such excess to be paid to the commission for the purpose of establishing and creating a contingent fund. The carrier is authorized to make certain uses of its reserve fund. The contingent fund created by the commission is to be used as a revolving fund to be administered by the commission, out of which loans may be made to carriers, or transportation equipment and facilities purchased by the commission and leased to the carriers, in accordance with prescribed terms and conditions.

The commission has jurisdiction, upon complaint or in a proceeding instituted upon its own initiative, and after full hearing, to determine and prescribe reasonable rates, regulations, and practices, including minimum, and maximum and minimum, rates; and also minimum, and maximum and minimum, proportional rates to and from ports, and to award reparation to injured shippers. The transportation act also provides that actions at law by carriers to recover their charges shall be begun within three years from the time the cause of action accrues and not thereafter, and that complaints seeking reparation shall be instituted within two years from the time the cause of action accrues, except that where the carrier begins an action after the expiration of two years for the recovery of charges in respect of the same service, or within 90 days before such expiration, the proceeding before the commission may be begun within 90 days after such action by the carrier is begun. The act also provides that a cause of action against the carrier shall be deemed to accrue upon delivery or tender of delivery by the carrier of the property involved. The commission may also require carriers to cease and desist from unjust discrimination or undue or unreasonable preferences. By the act as amended February 28, 1920, it is provided that an order of the commission shall continue in force until its further order, or for a specified period of time, according as shall be prescribed in the order, unless modified or set aside by the commission, or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Carriers are required to publish and file rates, rules, and regulations applying to interstate traffic and are prohibited from engaging in interstate transportation unless such rates, rules, and regulations are published and filed. Severe penalties are provided in the statute for failure to observe the rates and regulations shown in the published tariffs.

By the act of May 29, 1917, as amended on February 28, 1920, the commission is given extensive jurisdiction over the use, control, supply, movement, distribution, exchange, interchange, and return of locomotives, cars, and other vehicles, including special types of equipment and the supply of trains.

The commission may inquire into the management of the business of all common carriers subject to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce, and may prescribe the accounts, records, and memoranda which shall be kept by the carriers, which shall be open to examination by the commission through its authorized agents or examiners. Carriers are required to file annual reports with the commission and such other reports as the commission may from time to time require.

By the act of June 18, 1910 (Mann-Elkins law), the jurisdiction of the commission was increased as to through routes and joint rates, freight classification, switch connections, long and short hauls, filing or rejection of rate schedules, investigations on own motion, determining reasonable rates, suspension of proposed rates, and other matters. By the transportation act, 1920, the maximum period during which the commission may suspend the operation of proposed schedules is fixed at 150 days, and it is provided that if the proceeding upon suspension is not concluded within that time the proposed schedule shall go into effect at the end of such period, but that the commission may require the carriers to keep account in detail of all amounts received by reason of increases in such rates and charges and, if the decision of the commission be adverse, require the carrier or carriers to refund with interest such portions of such increased rates or charges as by its decision shall be found not justified.

By act approved August 24, 1912 (sec. 11), a new paragraph was added to section 5 of the act to regulate commerce by which it is made unlawful after July 1, 1914, for any common carrier subject to the act to regulate commerce to own, lease, operate, control, or have any interest in any competing carrier by water. Jurisdiction is conferred upon the commission to determine questions of fact as to competition, after full hearing, on the application of any railroad company or other carrier and to extend beyond July 1, 1914, the time during which such ownership or operation of vessels plying elsewhere than through the Panama Canal may continue, when it is found to be in the interest of the public and of advantage to the convenience and commerce of the people and not in restraint of competition.

At the same time section 6 of the act was amended by adding a new paragraph conferring upon the commission jurisdiction over transportation of property from point to point in the United States by rail and water, whether through the Panama Canal or otherwise, and not entirely within the limits of a single State, this jurisdiction, under certain conditions, including power to establish physical connection between lines of the rail carrier and the dock of the water carrier by directing the rail carrier to make such connection, to establish through routes and maximum joint rates over such rail and water lines, and to determine the conditions thereof, and to determine to what traffic and in connection with what vessels, and upon what terms and conditions such rates shall apply; and to require rail carriers entering into through routing arrangements with any water carrier to extend the privileges of such arrangements to other water carriers.

By the act approved March 1, 1913, as amended by act approved June 7, 1922, amending the act to regulate commerce, the commission is directed to investigate, ascertain, and report the value of all the property owned or used by every common carrier subject to the provisions of the act.

The act approved March 4, 1915, which became effective June 2, 1915, as amended August 9, 1916, makes common carriers liable for all loss, damage, or injury to property caused by them, and forbids, with certain exceptions, limitations of liability. As amended February 28, 1920, it is provided that where the loss, damage, or injury occurs while the property is in the custody of a carrier by water, the liability of such carrier shall be determined by and under the laws and regulations applicable to transportation by water, and that the liability of the initial carrier shall be the same as that of such carrier by water, except in connection with shipments to foreign destinations by water carriers whose vessels are registered under the laws of the United States, in which case it is made the duty of the carrier by railroad to deliver such shipments to the vessel as a part of its undertaking as a common carrier, but it is provided in this connection that the rail carrier shall not be liable after its delivery to the vessel.

It is further provided that the two-year period for the institution of suits against carriers for loss, damage, or injury shall be computed from the day when notice is given by the carrier to the claimant that the carrier has disallowed the claim or any part thereof.

The act as amended February 28, 1920, prohibits a carrier from issuing securities or from assuming obligations or liabilities as lessor, lessee, guarantor, indorser, surety, or otherwise, in respect of the securities of others from and after 120 days after the provision takes effect, except after having been authorized by the commission so to do; prescribes the conditions under which the commission may grant authorities to the carriers; the form and contents of applications which shall be made to the commission for such purposes; provides for the giving of notice by the commission of such applications to the governor of each State in which the applicant carrier operates; for hearings by the commission in respect of such applications; that carriers may issue certificates and assume obligations or liabilites without obtaining authority other than that of the commission, and for the issuance by the carrier without the consent of the commission of short-term notes in limited amounts, reports of which are, however, required to be filed with the commission. It is further provided that nothing in the act shall be construed to imply any guaranty or obligation as to such securities on the part of the United States. The act also provides for a right of action in favor of investors or purchasers in good faith and without notice of securities which, if not legally issued, are void, and for penalties against directors, officers, attorneys, or agents of carriers who knowingly assent to or concur in the issuance of securities, etc., contrary to the provisions of the commission's orders or grants of authority.

By the act approved August 18, 1922, the commission is required to direct, after notice and hearing, each carrier by rail, subject to this act, to issue at such offices as may be prescribed by the commission interchangeable mileage or scrip coupon tickets. The commission may in its discretion except from the provisions of this amendatory act, either in whole or in part, any carrier where the particular circumstances shown to the commission shall justify such exemption to be made.

As amended February 28, 1920, the act also requires every common carrier by water in foreign commerce whose vessels are registered under the laws of the United States to file with the commission within 30 days after the provision becomes effective, and regularly thereafter as changes are made, a schedule, or schedules, showing for each of its steam vessels intended to load general cargo at ports in the United States for foreign destinations (a) the port of loading, (b) the dates upon which such vessels will commence to receive freight and dates of sailing, (c) the route and itinerary such vessels will follow and the ports of call for which cargo will be carried. It provides that such carriers by water shall, upon request, state their specific rates on any designated commodities and for any scheduled sailing and shall state any port charges not absorbed in the railroad rate to the port. The act provides, also, for the publication and dissemination in compact form, for the information of shippers throughout the country, of the substance of such schedules and the furnishing of such publications to all railway carriers for distribution in such towns and cities as may be specified by the commission.

The amended act further provides for the issuance of through export bills of lading, in connection with such water carriers, to the point of destination; that such bills of lading shall name separately the charges to be paid for railway transportation, water transportation, and port charges, if any, not included in the rail or water transportation charges, and that the commission shall, in such manner as will preserve for the carrier by water the protection of limited liability provided by law, make rules and regulations and prescribe the form of such through bills of lading; it provides that the issuance of such through bills of lading shall not be held to constitute "an arrangement for continuous carriage or shipment" within the meaning of this act.

RELATED ACTS AFFECTING INTERSTATE COMMERCE

Elkins Act.—The act of February 19, 1903, commonly called the Elkins law, prohibits rebating, allows proceedings in the courts by injunction to restrain departures from published rates, and provides that cases prosecuted under the direction of the Attorney General in the name of the commission shall be included within the expediting act of February 11, 1903.

District court jurisdiction act.—The urgent deficiency appropriation act approved October 22, 1913, provided that the Commerce Court should be abolished from and after December 31, 1913, and that the jurisdiction theretofore vested in the Commerce Court under act approved June 18, 1910, be transferred to and vested in the several district courts of the United States.

Expediting act.—The act of February 11, 1903, provides that suits in equity brought under the act to regulate commerce wherein the United States is complainant may be expedited and given precedence over other suits, and that appeals from the circuit court (district court) lie only to the Supreme Court.

Federal control act.—The act known as the Federal control act, approved March 21, 1918, provides that the commission shall ascertain and certify to the President the average annual railway operating income, to be used by the President in making agreements for compensation for the use of the transportation systems of the country; that in case the amount of compensation is not adjusted, claims may be submitted to boards of referees appointed by the commission and the finding of such boards shall be a maximum of compensation which may be paid to the carriers; that the President, in executing the Federal control act may avail himself of the advice, assistance, and cooperation of the commission, its members, and its employees; that the President may initiate rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, and practices by filing same with the commission; that the commission shall upon complaint enter upon a hearing and determine the justness and reasonableness of any rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice initiated by the President, taking into consideration the fact that the railroads are operated under unified control and such recommendations as the President may make as to the necessity of increasing railway revenues.

Transportation act, 1920.—The transportation act, 1920, as amended by act approved February 24, 1922, provides for the termination of Federal control and limits the powers the President may thereafter exercise under the Federal control act to those necessary to wind up and settle matters arising out of Federal control; for the turning over to the Secretary of War for operation and settling up of all matters arising out of Federal control in connection with boats, barges, tugs, and other facilities on the inland, canal, and coastwise waterways acquired by the United States under the Federal control act, and requiring him to provide terminal facilities for the interchange of traffic with carriers, and renders the operation of the boats and facilities subject to the provisions of the interstate commerce act to the same extent they would be if not owned by the United States. This act also authorizes the President to advance moneys to the carriers for certain purposes out of the revolving fund created by the Federal control act, and requires the commission to ascertain and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amounts to be thus advanced to the carriers. It also provides for the appointment by the President of an agent to act as defendant in actions at law, suits in equity, proceedings in admiralty, and before the commission, based on matters arising out of Federal control, and confers upon the commission jurisdiction over all claims for reparation pertaining to the Federal control period, whether arising in respect of intrastate or interstate traffic; that pending actions, suits, proceedings, and reparation claims shall not abate, but that reparation awards in such cases shall be paid out of the revolving fund; that the period of Federal control shall not be computed as a part of the periods of limitation in actions against carriers or in claims for reparation based on causes of action arising out of matters pertaining to Federal control; and that a judgment in favor of the United States is the only one that may be levied against the property of the carrier where the judgment is based upon such matters.

The transportation act also continues in force until changed by lawful authority all rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, and practices in effect on February 29, 1920, and prohibits reductions of such rates, fares, and charges prior to September 1, 1920, except with the approval of the commission. It provides certain guaranties of compensation for a period of six months from March 1, 1920, to all carriers which were entitled to the same under the Federal control act, and which on or before March 15, 1920, filed with the commission a written statement that they accepted the provisions and conditions upon which such guaranties are made. A similar guaranty under the same conditions of acceptance is made to the American Railway Express Co. that the contract between it and the Director General of Railroads shall remain in effect during the guaranty period in so far as the said contract constitutes a guaranty to the express company against a deficit in operating income. It provides for advances to the express company and the carriers to meet operating expenses and fixed charges, and that the commission after the expiration of the guaranty period shall ascertain and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount due any carrier under the guaranty, and the amount of and the times at which such loans or advances shall be made to any carrier. The transportation act also provides for the inspection of carriers' records by the President or his agents until the affairs of Federal control are concluded, and for the refunding of carriers' indebtedness to the United States. It also authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to make new loans to carriers upon certain conditions and upon favorable certification by the commission and creates a revolving fund of $300,000,000 out of which said loans are to be made and out of which certain judgments, decrees, and awards are to be paid.

The transportation act also provides a plan for the settlement of controversies between carriers and their employees and subordinate officials through the medium of railroad boards of labor adjustment and a Railroad Labor Board. The latter consists of nine members, three of whom, representing the labor group, are to be chosen from not less than six nominees designated by the employees; three, representing the management, are to be chosen from not less than six nominees designated by the carriers. All nominations in both groups are made under rules and regulations prescribed by the commission. Three members, representing the public, are chosen directly by the President. All appointments are made by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Clayton Antitrust Act.—Jurisdiction is conferred upon the commission to enforce certain provisions of the act approved October 15, 1914, to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies in so far as such provisions relate to carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce. The act prohibits, with certain exceptions, carriers from discriminating between purchasers in sales of commodities, and from making leases or sales of commodities and from acquiring stock or capital of other corporations engaged in commerce tending to substantially lessen competition or create a monopoly; makes it a felony for a president or other specified officers to misappropriate a carrier's funds; and, as amended by act approved January 12, 1918, provides that, effective January 1, 1919, no carrier shall have dealings in securities or supplies, or contract for construction or maintenance to the amount of more than $50,000 in the aggregate in any one year, with another corporation or organization when, by reason of common officers or otherwise, there exists a community of interest between the carrier and such other corporation or organization, except as a result of free competitive bidding under regulations to be prescribed by the commission. The commission is further authorized to investigate violations of the act by carriers and to require the guilty parties to cease therefrom, and its findings of fact in such investigations shall be conclusive when supported by testimony.

Government-aided railroad and telegraph act.—Under the act of August 7, 1888, all Government-aided railroad and telegraph companies are required to file certain reports and contracts with the commission, and it is the commission's duty to decide questions relating to the interchange of business between such Government-aided telegraph company and any connecting telegraph company. The act provides penalties for failure to comply with the act or the orders of the commission.

Railway Mail Service pay act.—The act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department approved July 28, 1916, empowers the commission to fix and determine fair and reasonable rates and compensation for the transportation of mail matter by railway common carriers and services connected therewith, prescribing the method by weight or space, or both, or otherwise.

The act making appropriations for the services of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, empowers the commission to fix and determine fair and reasonable rates and compensation for the transportation of mail matter by urban and interurban electric railway common carriers.

Standard time act.—By the act approved March 19, 1918, the commission is authorized to fix the limits of the standard time zones established for the continental United States and Alaska, having due regard, in doing so, to the convenience of commerce and the junction and division points of common carriers whose movements are to be governed by the standard time of the zones so fixed.

Safety-appliance acts.—The act of March 2, 1893, known as the safety-appliance act, provides that railroad cars used in interstate commerce must be equipped with automatic couplers, and drawbars of a standard height for freight cars, and have grab irons or handholds in the ends and sides of each car; and that locomotive engines used in moving interstate traffic shall be equipped with a power driving-wheel brake and appliances for operating the train-brake system. The act directs the commission to lodge with the proper district attorneys information of such violations as may come to its knowledge. The act of March 2, 1903, amended this act so as to make its provisions apply to Territories and the District of Columbia, to all cases when couplers of whatever design are brought together, and to all locomotives, cars, and other equipment of any railroad engaged in interstate traffic, except logging cars and cars used upon street railways; and provides for a minimum number of air-braked cars in trains.

By act of April 14, 1910, the safety-appliance acts were supplemented so as to require railroads to equip their cars with sill steps, hand brakes, ladders, running boards, and roof handholds, and the commission was authorized to designate the number, dimensions, location, and manner of application of appliances.

Accident reports act.—By act of May 6, 1910, the prior accident reports law was repealed and a new statute enacted requiring carriers to make full reports of all accidents to the commission and increasing the scope of the commission's authority in making investigations of all accidents resulting to person or the property of the carrier.

Hours of service act.—The act of March 4, 1907, makes it the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of the act wherein it is made unlawful to require or permit employees engaged in or connected with the movement of trains to be on duty more than a specified number of hours in any 24.

Ash-pan act.—The act of May 30, 1908, makes it the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of the act wherein it is provided that after a certain date no locomotive shall be used in moving interstate or foreign traffic, etc., not equipped with an ash pan which can be emptied without requiring a man to go under such locomotive. Penalties are provided for violations of this act.

Transportation of explosives act.—The act of May 30, 1908, as amended by act approved March 4, 1921, directs the Interstate Commerce Commission to make regulations for the safe transportation of explosives by common carriers engaged in interstate commerce. Penalties are provided for violations of such regulations.

Locomotive and boiler inspection acts.—The act of February 17, 1911, confers jurisdiction upon the commission to enforce certain provisions compelling railroad companies to equip their locomotives with safe and suitable boilers and appurtenances thereto.

By an amendatory act approved March 4, 1915, the powers of the commission to inspect and to prescribe standards of safety for locomotive boilers and appurtenances thereto was extended to include "all parts and appurtenances of the locomotive and tender."

Block signal and automatic train-control safety devices.—The urgent deficiency appropriation act approved October 22, 1913, contained an appropriation of $25,000 to enable the commission to investigate and test block signals and appliances for the automatic control of railway trains and appliances or systems intended to promote the safety of railway operation, including experimental tests of such systems and appliances as shall be furnished in completed shape to the commission for investigation and test, free of cost to the Government, in accordance with the provisions of joint resolution approved June 30, 1916, and sundry civil appropriation act approved May 27, 1908. Provision was made in the sundry civil appropriation acts approved August 1, 1914, March 3, 1915, July 1, 1916, June 12, 1917, and July 1, 1918, for continuing the investigation and testing of these systems and appliances.

By the amendment approved February 28, 1920, the commission is authorized to require carriers to install automatic train-stop or train-control devices or other safety devices in compliance with specifications upon the whole or any part of the carrier's railroad, but it is provided that any order made by the commission in the premises shall be issued and published at least two years before the date specified for its fulfillment.

UNITED STATES BOARD OF MEDIATION

The United States Board of Mediation was organized under the provisions of Public Act No. 257, Sixty-ninth Congress, approved May 20, 1926, entitled, "An act to provide for the prompt disposition of disputes between carriers and their employees, and for other purposes," known as the railway labor act. It is an independent agency in the executive branch of the Government and is composed of five members appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The board annually designates a member to act as chairman and maintains its principal office in the District of Columbia, but it may meet at any other place.

The railway labor act applies to express companies, sleeping-car companies, and carriers by railroad subject to the interstate commerce act, and provides that such carriers, their officers, agents, and employees shall exert every reasonable effort to make and maintain agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, and working conditions, and to settle all disputes whether arising out of the application of such agreements or otherwise. All disputes between a carrier and its employees shall be considered and, if possible, decided with all expedition, in conference between representatives designated and authorized so to confer, respectively, by the carriers and by the employees thereof interested in the dispute.

The act also provides that representatives for the purposes of the act shall be designated by the respective parties; that boards of adjustment shall be created by agreement between any carrier or group of carriers or the carriers as a whole and its or their employees to handle disputes growing out of grievances or out of the interpretation or application of agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, or working conditions.

The parties, or either party, to a dispute may invoke the services of the Board of Mediation or the Board of Mediation may proffer its services in any of the following cases: (a) A dispute arising out of grievances or out of the interpretation or application of agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, or working conditions not adjusted by the parties in conference and not decided by the appropriate adjustment boards; (b) a dispute which is not settled in conference between the parties, in respect to changes in rates of pay, rules, or working conditions; (c) any other dispute not decided in conference between the parties.

When mediation services are requested or proffered the board is authorized to promptly put itself in communication with the parties to the controversy and use its best efforts by mediation to bring the parties to agreement. When unsuccessful in bringing about an adjustment through mediation the board shall at once endeavor to induce the parties to submit the controversy to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the act. The failure or refusal of either party to submit a controversy to arbitration shall not be construed as a violation of any legal obligation imposed upon such party by the terms of the railway labor act or otherwise.

When an agreement to arbitrate has been filed with the Board of Mediation a board of arbitration shall be chosen in the following manner:

The representatives of the carrier or carriers and of the employees shall each name one arbitrator (or two if the agreement to arbitrate so designates); the arbitrators thus chosen shall select the remaining arbitrator or arbitrators. On failure of the arbitrators named by the parties to agree on the remaining arbitrators during a period stipulated in the act, it shall be the duty of the Board of Mediation to name such remaining arbitrator or arbitrators.

The agreement to arbitrate shall be in writing and shall stipulate, among other things, that the respective parties to the award will each faithfully execute the same. Copies of arbitration awards shall be furnished to the respective parties to the controversy, to the clerk's office of the district court of the United States for the district wherein the controversy arose or the arbitration is entered into, to the Board of Mediation, and to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

If a dispute between a carrier and its employees is not adjusted under the foregoing provisions of the act and should, in the judgment of the Board of Mediation, threaten substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive any section of the country of essential transportation service, the Board of Mediation shall notify the President, who may thereupon in his discretion create a board to investigate and report respecting such dispute. The act also provides that after the creation of such board no change in the conditions out of which the dispute arose shall be made by either party to the controversy during a period of 60 days.

The Board of Mediation makes an annual report of its activities to Congress.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

The purpose of the civil service act, as declared in its title, is "to regulate and improve the civil service of the United States." It provides for the appointment of three commissioners, not more than two of whom shall be adherents of the same political party, and makes it the duty of the commission to aid the President, as he may request, in preparing suitable rules for carrying the act into effect. The act requires that the rules shall provide, among other things, for open competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the classified service, the making of appointments from among those passing with highest grades, an apportionment of appointments in the departments at Washington among the States and Territories, a period of probation before absolute appointment, and the prohibition of the use of official authority to coerce the political action of any person or body. The act also provides for investigations touching the enforcement of the rules, and forbids, under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or both, the solicitation by any person in the service of the United States of contributions to be used for political purposes from persons in such service, or the collection of such contributions by any person in a Government building.

The retirement act of July 3, 1926, authorizes the commission to issue certificates permitting the retention of employees beyond retirement age upon official request of the department concerned. The commission is also required to keep such information concerning individual service as may be deemed necessary to a proper determination of rights under the retirement act, and furnish the Commissioner of Pensions such reports as he shall from time to time request as necessary to the proper adjustment of any claim for annuity; and also to keep needful tables and records required for carrying out the provisions of the retirement act, including data showing mortality, experience of the employees in the service, and the percentage of withdrawals from the service.

The commission was organized on March 9, 1883. The first classification of the service applied to the departments at Washington and to post offices and customhouses having as many as 50 employees, embracing 13,294 employees. On June 30, 1926, there were 560,705 officers and employees in the executive civil service. Examinations were held in the principal cities throughout the country through the agency of local boards of examiners, of which there are approximately 4,000. The members of these boards are detailed from other branches of the service. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1926, the commission examined 221,658 persons, and of this number 44,147 were appointed. The present force of the commission consists of 285 clerks and examiners and 25 subclerical employees at Washington and 142 employees in the field service.

The commission also holds examinations in Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands. Under the rules, it is required to render all practical assistance to the Philippine Civil Service Board.

Appointments of unskilled laborers in the departments at Washington and in all branches of the service in certain other cities and certain branches of the service in all cities are required to be made in accordance with regulations promulgated by the President, restricting appointments to applicants who are rated highest in physical condition. This system is outside the civil service act, and is auxiliary to the civil-service rules.

CHIEF EXAMINER

The chief examiner has supervision of the system of examinations and the procedure of examining boards. The Examining Division, the Division of Investigation and Review, the Application Division, the Research Section, and the 13 district offices are under his supervision.

SECRETARY

The secretary is the administrative officer of the commission and has charge of matters relating to the enforcement of the civil service act, rules, and regulations. The Appointment Division is under his supervision.

APPLICATION DIVISION

Issues announcements of examinations; distributes information concerning examinations; receives and passes upon applications; prepares correspondence respecting admission to examinations; and supervises the holding of examinations by local civil-service boards. It maintains a record of applications.

EXAMINING DIVISION

Prepares examinations, rates the papers, issues notices of markings, and passes upon the qualifications of applicants.

APPOINTMENT DIVISION

Maintains registers of eligibles and issues certifications for appointments; records appointments and changes in the personnel of the executive civil service, and maintains service records of all employees in the classified service; handles retirement matters, matters relating to reinstatements, transfers, promotions, and irregularities arising under the civil service law and rules and of Executive orders; and conducts the general correspondence of the commission, except that relating to applications and examinations.

DIVISION OF INVESTIGATION AND REVIEW

Investigates alleged frauds and irregularities in examinations, decides on requirements in changes of designations of Government employees, conducts oral examinations, makes personal investigations in the field, and acts as an appellate board for the consideration and review of ratings on appeal.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION

This bureau answers telephonic and personal inquiries regarding dates and places of examinations; supplies applications and other printed matter concerning the examinations; maintains a complete index of examination announcements; records the names and addresses of persons to be notified of future examinations; and gives other general information.

UNITED STATES BUREAU OF EFFICIENCY

The duties of the Bureau of Efficiency are to establish and maintain a system of efficiency ratings for the executive departments in the District of Columbia; to investigate the needs of the several executive departments and independent establishments with respect to personnel; to investigate duplication of statistical and other work and methods of business in the various branches of the Government service; and to aid the Personnel Classification Board in the classification of positions in the departmental service.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

Generally speaking, the functions of the board are to exercise a broad supervision over the affairs and conduct of 12 Federal reserve banks established in accordance with the terms of the Federal reserve act in different parts of the country and invested with authority to discount paper for member banks, issue Federal reserve notes to member banks, and perform the various banking functions described in the act itself. The board has full power to appoint its own staff of employees and officers and to regulate the conditions of their employment. Its support is derived from the several reserve banks from assessments levied by its half yearly pro rata. The board is responsible to Congress and reports annually to that body. Certain functions in connection with the national banking system are also assigned to it under the legislation, although the Comptroller of the Currency, who is a member of the board, exercises the same general administrative and supervisory authority over the national banks that has been in his hands in the past. It also passes upon applications under the Clayton Act as amended.

Some of the more important duties of the Federal Reserve Board are set forth in section 11 of the Federal reserve act, which provides that the Federal Reserve Board shall be authorized to examine at its discretion the accounts, books, and affairs of each Federal reserve bank and of each member bank, and to require such statements and reports as it may deem necessary; to permit, or, on the affirmative vote of at least five members of the Reserve Board, to require Federal reserve banks to rediscount the discounted paper of other Federal reserve banks at rates of interest to be fixed by the Federal Reserve Board; to suspend for a period not exceeding 30 days, and from time to time to renew such suspension for periods not exceeding 15 days, any reserve requirements specified in this act; to supervise and regulate through the bureau under the charge of the Comptroller of the Currency the issue and retirement of Federal reserve notes, and to prescribe rules and regulations under which such notes may be delivered by the comptroller to the Federal reserve agents applying therefor; to add to the number of cities classified as reserve and central reserve cities under existing law in which national banking associations are subject to the reserve requirements set forth in section 20 of this act; to suspend or remove any officer or director of any Federal reserve bank, the cause of such removal to be forthwith communicated in writing by the Federal Reserve Board to the removed officer or director and to said bank; to require the writing off of doubtful or worthless assets upon the books and balance sheets of Federal reserve banks; to suspend, for the violation of any of the provisions of this act, the operations of any Federal reserve bank, to take possession thereof, administer the same during the period of suspension, and, when deemed advisable, to liquidate or reorganize such bank; to require bonds of Federal reserve agents; to exercise general supervision over said Federal reserve banks; to grant by special permit to national banks applying therefor, when not in contravention of State or local law, the right to exercise fiduciary powers.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

The Federal Trade Commission was created by an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, in which the commission's powers and duties were defined. The commission is an independent agency, with its five members appointed for a term of seven years each by the President of the United States with the approval of the Senate. No more than three members may be of one political party.

Further powers are conferred upon this commission by "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (Clayton Act), and by "An act to promote export trade, and for other purposes," approved April 10, 1918, known as the export trade act (Webb-Pomerene law).

FUNCTIONS AND PROCEDURE UNDER THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ACT

Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission act states that "unfair methods of competition in commerce are hereby declared unlawful" and empowers and directs the commission to prevent "persons, partnerships, or corporations, except banks, and common carriers subject to the acts to regulate commerce, from using unfair methods of competition in commerce."

Whenever the commission shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership, or corporation has been or is using any unfair method of competition in commerce, and if it shall appear to the commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, it shall issue and serve upon such person, partnership, or corporation a complaint stating its charges in that respect. Provision is made for hearings and the taking of testimony. If the commission shall then be of the opinion that the method of competition in question is prohibited by this act, it shall issue and cause to be served upon the person or organization against whom complaint is made an order to cease and desist from using such unfair method of competition as shown to be sustained by the proof submitted.

Provision is made for appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States to enforce, set aside, or modify orders of the commission. The judgment and decree of the court shall be final, except that the same shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court upon certiorari as provided in the Judicial Code.

A letter to the commission stating what the writer believes to constitute the employment of unfair practices by some concern is sufficient to institute a possible proceeding under section 5 before the commission. If the letter clearly discloses that nothing is charged within the jurisdiction of the commission, it is filed without further action. If it appears, however, that there may have been such a violation of law, the matter is settled, after further investigation, by dismissal of the charges, or by stipulation and agreement with the concern named in the letter, or by the issuance of a formal complaint followed by a formal trial of the charges, as required by the facts of the particular case and by the public interest. Stipulations setting forth the unfair practices used by the concern named and agreements to discontinue their use voluntarily are entered into where the public interest does not require formal action, for example, where the concern in question shows a disposition to discontinue the unlawful practices. Stipulations and agreements are not entered into in those cases where a fraudulent business is concerned, where the conduct of a legitimate business in a fraudulent manner is concerned, where the circumstances are such that there is reason to believe that an agreement entered into with the concern involved will not be kept, or where for any reason it is believed that the public interest will be better served by the institution of a formal complaint and proceeding.

A formal proceeding, instituted by a formal complaint and followed by the taking of testimony, filing of briefs, and oral argument, is terminated by the entry of a formal order to cease and desist or by a formal order of dismissal. Such a proceeding is prosecuted in the name of the commission by the chief counsel's division and testimony and evidence in such proceeding are proferred before a member of the trial examiner's division, who is charged with passing upon the testimony and evidence and with other details incident to the trial of the case. No formal complaint is issued until the concern named in the complaint has been given an opportunity to appear before the board of review of the commission and present its side of the case and in certain cases to stipulate the facts and have matter dismissed without publicity. Investigation in the preliminary stages is largely the function of the chief examiner's office. Procedure and internal organization of the commission, and methods of competition condemned by the commission under section 5, are set forth in detail in its annual reports.

OTHER SECTIONS OF THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ACT

Under section 6 the Federal Trade Commission derives its authority for making economic investigations. It is provided that the commission shall have power to gather and compile information concerning, and to investigate from time to time, the organization, business, conduct, practices, and management of any corporation engaged in commerce, excepting banks, and common carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce; that it may require reports and answers to specific questions in the compilation of such information.

The commission has already gathered and published for the use of the Congress, the departments, and the public, a great deal of information regarding many of the essential industries of the country. Most of the economic inquiries have been made at the request of the Congress or the President, to whom reports have been or are now being made.

Among the more important inquiries under way in 1926, which were directed to be made by Congress or by the President, were the following: (1) Bread and flour industries, (2) electric power industry, (3) open price associations, and (4) gasoline industry.

The commission may (under sec. 6) investigate, from time to time, trade conditions in and with foreign countries where associations, combinations, or practices of manufacturers, merchants, or traders, or other conditions, may affect the foreign trade of the United States.

Further investigating powers are given the commission in connection with (a) violations of the antitrust acts by corporations, upon the direction of the President or either House of Congress. Examples of such investigations now proceeding are covering the work of all cooperative buying and selling organizations. (b) The manner in which final decrees that have been entered in suits to restrain such violations have been carried out, which latter investigations are undertaken at the request of the Attorney General and reports thereon made to him.

The commission may make public from time to time such portions of the information obtained by it as it shall deem expedient in the public interest, except trade secrets and names of customers.

Section 7 of the Federal Trade Commisson act provides that in any suit in equity brought by or under the direction of the Attorney General, as provided in the antitrust acts, the court may refer said suit to the commission, as a master in chancery, to ascertain and report in appropriate form of decree therein.

Other sections of the act give to the commission authorization for such investigations and the compilation of data, with provision for procedure under the act, and penalties prescribed for refusal of persons, partnerships, or corporations to furnish such material or to comply with orders of the commission to testify, produce evidence, or file reports, as required.

FUNCTIONS OF THE COMMISSION BOTH LEGAL AND ECONOMIC

It will be seen that under the Federal Trade Commission act the powers and duties of the commission are both legal and economic. These powers include measures for the prevention of unfair competition and violation of the Clayton law. Investigatory powers include economic studies of domestic industry and interstate and foreign commerce. Such economic inquiries may be inaugurated by the commission of its own initiative, but are more frequently undertaken by direction of the President or the United States Senate or the House of Representatives.

POWERS OF THE COMMISSION UNDER THE CLAYTON ANTITRUST ACT

The commission is given jurisdiction over violations of sections 2, 3, 7 and 8, of the Clayton Act, which prohibit:

(1) Certain discriminations in prices betweem different purchasers of commodities where the effect of such discrimination may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce.

(2) In certain cases, so-called "tying contracts," or contracts whereby, as a condition of sale or lease, the seller or lessor exacts from the purchaser or lessee an agreement that he shall not use or deal in the goods or other commodities of a competitor of the lessor or seller, where the effect of such agreement may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce.

(3) In certain cases so-called "holding companies," or the ownership by one company of the stock of another, where the effect may be to substantially lessen competition, to restrain commerce, or tend to create a monopoly.

(4) So-called "interlocking directorates" in cases where one person shall at the same time be a director in any two or more corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, other than banks, banking associations, trust companies, and common carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce, if such corporations are or have been competitors, so that the elimination of competition by agreement between them would constitute a violation of any of the provisions of any of the antitrust laws.

Procedure under the Clayton Act is, with some exceptions, identical with that under the Federal Trade Commission act.

FUNCTIONS OF THE COMMISSION UNDER THE EXPORT TRADE ACT (WEBB-FOMERENE LAW)

The export trade act authorizes the formation of "associations" entered into for the sole purpose of engaging in export trade, these associations to be exempt from the antitrust laws of the United States, with the proviso that there shall be through the association no restraint of the export trade of any domestic competitor, no enhancing or depression of prices, or substantial lessening of competition within the United States.

Section 1 of the act defines "export trade" and "association."

Sections 2 and 3 provide exemption from the antitrust laws under certain conditions.

Section 4 extends the jurisdiction of the commission under the Federal Trade Commission act to "unfair methods of competition used in export trade against competitors engaged in export trade even though the acts constituting such unfair methods are done without the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."

Section 5 provides for the filing of papers by such export trade associations with the Federal Trade Commission, and other details of administration.

UNITED STATES SHIPPING BOARD

The United States Shipping Board was created by an act of Congress approved September 7, 1916, entitled "An act to establish a United States Shipping Board for the purpose of encouraging, developing, and creating a naval auxiliary and naval reserve and a merchant marine to meet the requirements of the commerce of the United States with its territories and possessions and with foreign countries; to regulate carriers by water engaged in the foreign and interstate commerce of the United States, and for other purposes," generally known as the shipping act, 1916. It is an independent establishment of the executive branch of the Government, similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Trade Commission, and under the shipping act, 1916, was composed of five members, who chose their own chairman and vice chairman and secretary.

The shipping act, 1916, provides for the regulation of the operations of common carriers by water in both interstate and foreign commerce, defines certain terms used in connection therwith, and provides penalties for the violation of its provisions. Carriers are required to file with the board copies of such agreements, or memorandums of oral understandings as each may have with other carriers or persons subject to the act relating to the regulation of rates, pooling of earnings, number and character of sailings between various ports, the volume or character of traffic, etc. Certain conduct by carriers or other persons subject to the act is declared to be unlawful and punishable by penalties set forth in the act. Sworn complaints setting forth violations of the act may be filed with the board by a common carrier by water or other person subject to the act, and a method is provided for the adjudication of such complaints.

The board is further empowered to investigate the action of foreign Governments with respect to privileges afforded and burdens imposed on vessels of the United States, and to make a report of the result of such investigations to the President, who is authorized to secure by diplomatic action equal privileges for United States vessels.

Methods of enforcing the orders of the board, whether for the performance of certain acts or for the payment of money awarded as damages by the board, are also provided.

The act expressly provides that the board does not have concurrent jurisdiction with the Interstate Commerce Commission over acts within the latter's power or jurisdiction, and that its provisions do not apply to interstate commerce.

The board is further empowered by the shipping act to regulate the sale of a vessel owned by a citizen of the United States to aliens. The board's approval must be obtained to put a vessel owned by a citizen of the United States under a foreign registry or flag. The board may also organize one or more corporations under the laws of the District of Columbia, for the purchase, operation, lease, charter, or sale of the merchant vessels acquired under the act, and there was placed at the disposal of the board for this purpose a fund of $50,000,000, to be raised through the sale of Panama Canal bonds. Under this authority the board on April 16, 1917, organized the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, all the stock of which has been fully paid up and is now owned by the United States of America through the United States Shipping Board.

The board is directed to investigate the relative cost of constructing vessels at home and abroad; to examine the rules under which vessels are constructed at home and abroad; to investigate matters relating to marine insurance, the classification and rating of vessels, and the navigation laws of the United States, and to make such recommendations to Congress as it may deem best for the improvement and revision of such laws.

The shipping act, 1916, was amended by an act approved July 15, 1918, which more particularly defined the various terms used and provisions contained in the shipping act, and added eight sections at the end of the act whereby the board was granted more complete control over the use or sale, particularly to aliens, of marine property during the existence of a state of war or any national emergency declared to exist by proclamation of the President, and providing punishment for violations of certain provisions of the act as amended.

The shipping act, 1916, as amended by the act approved July 15, 1918, was further amended by the act of June 5, 1920, known as the merchant marine act, 1920, which transferred to the Shipping Board certain specified authority granted during the war by Congress to the President and by him delegated by various Executive orders to the Shipping Board and the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation. This act in section 1 sets forth in the following language the general merchant marine policy to be followed by the board in its administration of the merchant marine acquired by the United States as a result of its European war activities: "That it is necessary for the national defense and for the proper growth of its foreign and domestic commerce that the United States shall have a merchant marine of the best equipped and most suitable types of vessels sufficient to carry the greater portion of its commerce and serve as a naval or military auxiliary in time of war or national emergency, ultimately to be owned and operated privately by citizens of the United States; and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage the maintenance of such a merchant marine, and, in so far as may not be inconsistent with the express provisions of this act, the United States Shipping Board shall, in the disposition of vessels and shipping property as hereinafter provided, in the making of rules and regulations, and in the administration of the shipping laws keep always in view this purpose and object as the primary end to be obtained."

By this act the membership of the board is increased from five to seven, the sections of the country from which they are to be appointed are designated, and the President is directed to designate the member to act as chairman of the board, the board electing its vice chairman.

General conditions to govern the board in its disposition of vessel property of the United States both to citizens of the United States and to aliens are set forth, and the board is authorized to sell to aliens only when, after diligent effort, it has been unable to sell to American citizens, and then only upon the affirmative vote of not less than five members, with the reasons for such action spread on the minutes of the board.

Other duties of the board under the merchant marine act, 1920, are as follows:

To investigate and determine what steamship lines should be established and operated between the United States and foreign ports for the development and maintenance of the foreign and coastwise trade of the United States and an adequate postal service; to sell vessels under its control to responsible citizens of the United States who will agree to maintain such lines under such terms as the board may deem advisable.

To cooperate with the Secretary of War in encouraging the development of ports and transportation facilities in connection with the water commerce over which the board has jurisdiction, to investigate the cause of congestion of commerce at ports and any other matters tending to promote and encourage the use by vessels of ports adequate to care for the freight which would naturally pass through such ports, the result of such investigations to be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for such action as that commission may consider appropriate under existing law in case the board decides that rates, charges, rules, or regulations of common carriers by rail subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission are detrimental to the promotion and development of such ports.

To set aside annually for five years from the approval of the act, from revenues from sales and operations, a construction loan fund of not exceeding $25,000,000, for use in aiding the construction of vessels of the best and most efficient type for operation on the steamship lines deemed necessary and desirable by the board, no aid from such fund, however, being for a greater sum than two-thirds of the cost of the vessel or vessels to be constructed.

To recondition and keep in suitable repair and operate until sold all vessels under its control either directly or through the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, which is authorized to continue in existence until all vessels are sold regardless of the provision of the shipping act, 1916, limiting the life of said corporation to not to exceed five years after the declaration of peace between the United States and Germany as evidenced by proclamation of the President.

To create out of net revenue from operations and sales and to administer an insurance fund to insure any interest of the United States in vessels constructed or under construction and in any plants or materials acquired by the board.

To continue the operation of housing projects acquired by the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation until the interest of the United States in such properties is disposed of consistent with good business and the best interest of the United States.

To take over on January 1, 1921, the possession, control, operation, and development of the terminal facilities acquired by the President by or under the act entitled "An act making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and prior fiscal years, on account of war expenses, and for other purposes," approved March 28, 1918.

To make all necessary rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the act, with authority to request the head of any department, board, bureau, or agency of the Government to suspend, modify, or annul rules or regulations affecting shipping in the foreign trade, except such rules or regulations relating to the Public Health Service, the Consular Service, and the Steamboat Inspection Service, which have been established by such department, board, bureau, or agency, or to make new rules or regulations affecting such shipping.

To approve before issuance rules or regulations thereafter established by any other branch of the Government affecting foreign trade, except rules or regulations affecting the Public Health Service, the Consular Service, and the Steamboat Inspection Service.

To approve the type and kind of new vessels to be constructed by citizens of the United States out of trust funds set aside for investment therein, in order that the owner of such vessel may be allowed as a deduction for the purpose of ascertaining his net income subject to the war profits and excess profits taxes imposed by Title III of the revenue act of 1918, an amount equivalent to the net earnings of a vessel owned by such person operated in the foreign trade during such taxable year, but two-thirds of the cost of any such new vessel shall be paid for out of ordinary funds or capital of the person having such vessel constructed.

The act further provides that after February 1, 1922, the coastwise laws of the United States shall extend to its island territories and possessions not now covered thereby, and directs the board to establish adequate steamship service at reasonable rates to accommodate the commerce and passenger travel of such islands, but if such adequate shipping service is not established by February, 1922, the President is directed to extend the period within which such service may be established for such time as may be necessary therefor.

The act further provides that all mails of the United States shipped or carried on vessels shall, if practicable, be shipped or carried on American-built vessels documented under the laws of the United States, and directs the board and the Postmaster General in aid of the development of an adequate merchant marine to determine from time to time the just and reasonable rate of compensation to be paid for carrying the mails on such vessels.

The American Bureau of Shipping is directed to be recognized by all departments, boards, bureaus, or commissions of the Government for the classification of vessels owned by the United States so long as the American Bureau of Shipping is maintained as an organization with no capital stock and paying no dividends. The Secretary of Commerce and the chairman of the board are each directed to appoint one representative to represent the Government on the executive committee of the American Bureau of Shipping.

The act further provides that not to exceed 16 persons in addition to the crew may be carried on cargo vessels documented under the laws of the United States without thereby subjecting such vessel to the provisions of laws governing passenger vessels. The act further exempts from the provisions of the antitrust laws associations entered into by marine insurance companies for the purpose of transacting marine insurance and reinsurance business in the United States and foreign countries.

Section 30 of the merchant marine act, 1920, contains what is known as the ship-mortgage act, 1920, and materially alters the provisions of prior laws and judicial decisions relating to the status of mortgage liens on vessel property. This section creates what is known as a "preferred mortgage" by providing that mortgages on vessel property, recorded and indorsed in accordance with the provisions of the ship-mortgage act, shall be known as preferred mortgages and that upon the sale of a vessel subject to a preferred mortgage lien by order of a district court in suit brought by one having a maritime lien all preexisting claims in the vessel are terminated and attached in like amounts and priorities to the proceeds of the sale except that the lien arising under the preferred mortgage is given precedence over all such claims except expenses and fees allowed and costs taxed by the court, and liens for damages arising out of tort, for wages of a stevedore when employed by the owner, operator, master, ship's husband, or agent of the vessel, for wages of the crew of the vessel, for general average, and for salvage, including contract salvage.

The act further provides that such preferred mortgage may be foreclosed by a suit in rem in admiralty, the original jurisdiction of such suits being granted exclusively to the district courts of the United States. The act also regulates transfers of mortgaged vessels and the assignment of vessel mortgages and rights thereunder, and repeals the maritime lien act, 1910, which, however, is reenacted with amendments to make its provisions consistent with the provisions of the ship-mortgage act, 1920.

Section 4530 of the Revised Statutes is amended so as to provide that a seaman on a vessel of the United States may not make the demand for wages provided for therein more often than once in the same harbor on the same entry.

Section 20 of the act of March 4, 1915, relating to suits for damages for personal injuries suffered on board a vessel or in its service is amended so as to extend to seamen who are given a right of trial by jury in such cases and further provides that where death ensues the personal representative of a deceased seaman is authorized to maintain an action for damages at law with the right of trial by jury, in both of which cases statutes of the United States modifying or extending the common-law right or remedy in actions for personal injury or death of railway employees are declared to be applicable.

The act further provides that in the judgment of Congress treaties or conventions to which the United States is a party which contain provisions restricting the right of the United States to impose discriminating customs duties on imports entering the United States in foreign vessels and restricting the right of the United States to impose discriminatory tonnage dues on foreign vessels should be terminated and directs the President to give notice to the several Governments parties to such treaties so in force terminating such restrictions at the expiration of the period provided for in such treaties for the giving of such notice.

The act, by section 38, amends section 2 of the shipping act, 1916, so as to more clearly define within the meaning of the shipping act, 1916, the citizenship of a corporation, partnership, or association.

UNITED STATES SHIPPING BOARD EMERGENCY FLEET CORPORATION

The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation was incorporated April 16, 1917, by the United States Shipping Board under the authority of section 11 of the act of Congress approved September 7, 1916, generally known as the shipping act, 1916.

The corporation is capitalized at $50,000,000, divided into shares of a par value of $100 each. All the stock of the corporation is owned by the United States of America, represented by the United States Shipping Board.

The object for which the corporation was organized is stated in the articles of incorporation, as follows: "That the corporate name of this company shall be United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, and the object for which it is formed is the purchase, construction, equipment, lease, charter, maintenance, and operation of merchant vessels in the commerce of the United States, and in general to do and to perform every lawful act and thing necessary or expedient to be done or performed for the efficient and profitable conducting of said business, as authorized by the laws of Congress, and to have and to exercise all the powers conferred by the laws of the District of Columbia upon corporations under said subchapter 4 of the incorporation laws of the District of Columbia."

The board of trustees of the corporation consists of seven members. The general officers consist of a president, a vice president, several directors of departments, secretary, treasurer, general comptroller, and general counsel.

The proceeds received by the corporation from the sale of its capital stock and appropriations made by Congress have been used for the construction by contract of steel, wood, composite, and concrete vessels for overseas commerce and for the completion of steel vessels over 2,500 dead-weight tons capacity requisitioned by direction of the United States Shipping Board on August 3, 1917, and for the operation of vessels on essential trade routes.

By the emergency shipping fund provision of the urgent deficiencies appropriation act approved June 15, 1917, as amended by an act approved April 22, 1918, and by an act approved November 4, 1918, certain extensive war powers in connection with the construction, requisition, and operation of vessels were conferred on the President and by him by Executive orders of various dates conferred on the corporation. The merchant marine act, 1920, transferred all the power and authority thus delegated to the corporation to the United States Shipping Board, which, however, is authorized to perform such of its duties as it may deem advisable through or by the corporation as its agent.

In accordance with the authority granted by section 25 of the merchant marine act, 1920, the United States Shipping Board, by resolution adopted on October 1, 1925, conferred certain powers on the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

By proclamation of the President issued February 28, 1920, under authority of an act of Congress approved February 28, 1920, Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads, was authorized, either personally or through such divisions, agencies, or persons as he might appoint, to exercise and perform all of the powers and duties conferred upon the President by the provisions of that act except the designation of the agent under section 206 thereof. In a proclamation dated March 11, 1920, Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads, was also designated agent under section 206 of the act.

Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads, resigned that position, effective May 18, 1920, and by proclamation of the President of the United States John Barton Payne, Secretary of the Interior, was designated to take over and perform all of the duties previously designated to be performed by the Director General of Railroads; the latter resigned and, effective March 28, 1921, James C. Davis, was appointed. Mr. Davis resigned January 1, 1926, and Mr. Andrew W. Mellon was appointed director general and agent of the President as of that date.

The act of February 28, 1920, authorizes the President to adjust, settle, liquidate, and wind up all of the matters, including compensation, and all questions in dispute of whatsoever nature arising out of or incident to Federal control. The act provides that the President shall have the right at all reasonable times until the affairs of Federal control are concluded to inspect the property and records of all carriers whose railroads or systems of transportation were at any time under Federal control. It also provides that the carriers, at their own expense, upon the request of the President or those duly authorized by him, shall furnish all necessary and proper information and reports compiled upon the records made or kept during the period of Federal control affecting their respective lines. The act provides that any carrier which refuses or obstructs such inspection or which willfully fails to provide reasonable facilities therefor or to furnish such information or reports shall be liable to a penalty of $500 for each day of the continuance of such offense.

UNITED STATES COUNCIL OF NATIONAL DEFENSE

The Council of National Defense is directed by the act of August 29, 1916, to nominate to the President, to be appointed by him, an advisory commission consisting of not more than seven persons, each of whom possesses special knowledge of some industry, public utility, or the development of some natural resource, or is otherwise specially qualified for the performance of such duties as shall come within their jurisdiction.

It is the duty of the Council of National Defense to supervise and direct investigations and make recommendations to the President and the heads of executive departments as to the location of railroads with reference to the frontier of the United States so as to render possible expeditious concentration of troops and supplies to points of defense; the coordination of military, industrial, and commercial purposes in the location of extensive highways and branch lines of railroad; the utilization of waterways; the mobilization of military and naval resources for defense; the increase of domestic production of articles and materials essential to the support of armies and of the people during the interruption of foreign commerce; the development of sea-going transportation, data as to amounts, location, methods and means of production and availability of military supplies; the giving of information to producers and manufacturers as to the class of supplies needed by the military and other services of the Government, the requirements relating thereto, and the creation of relations which will render possible in time of need the immediate concentration and utilization of the resources of the Nation.

The records of the Council of National Defense, as well as those of the War Industries Board and the Committee on Public Information, are now under the jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretary of War, who is charged by law (act of June 4, 1920) with supervision of the procurement of all military supplies and other business of the War Department pertaining thereto and the assurance of adequate provision for the mobilization of matériel and industrial organizations essential to war-time needs.

BOARD OF TAX APPEALS

The Board of Tax Appeals was created by the act of June 2, 1924 (Pub. No. 178, 68th Cong.), and is under the immediate direction of the President. That act provided that the board and its divisions should hear and determine appeals filed under sections 274, 279, 308, and 312. Under the provisions of that act the President might appoint such number of members, not more than 28, as he might determine to be necessary to serve for a period of two years after the enactment of the act. The terms of all members expired at the end of such two-year period, when seven members might be appointed for terms expiring—two at the end of the fourth year, two at the end of the sixth year, two at the end of the eighth year, and one at the end of the tenth year after the expiration of such two-year period. Twelve members were appointed on June 2, 1924, for the two-year term ending June 1, 1926, and entered on duty July 16, 1924. On March 23, 1925, four additional members were appointed, and on August 7, 1925, one additional appointment was made. Two resignations, one effective on April 1, 1925, the other on September 9, 1925, reduced the membership to 15, at which number it remained until June 1, 1926.

The revenue act of 1926 (Feb. 26, 1926, Pub. No. 20, 69th Cong.), continued the board, and under its provisions the membership is confined to 16, who are appointed by the President. The terms of office of the members expire—four at the end of the sixth year, four at the end of the eighth year, four at the end of the tenth year, and four at the end of the twelfth year. The terms of office of all successors expire 12 years after the expiration of the terms for which their predecessors were appointed, but any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of his predecessor. On May 26, 1926, the President appointed 16 members, who entered on duty June 8, 1926.

For administrative purposes the members are divided into 16 divisions for the hearing of cases. The board sits on each office day (except Fridays and Saturdays) to hear proceedings which have been called from the day calendar at 9.30 a. m. of each day and assigned to the respective divisions by the chairman.

The board functions in the manner of a court. The statute provides that its proceedings shall be conducted in accordance with the rules of evidence applicable in courts of equity of the District of Columbia. Its hearings are open to the public and its reports are public records, open to the inspection of the public. The statute authorizes, and the board's rules prescribe, a fee of $10 for the filing of any petition after the enactment of the revenue act of 1926. The decisions of the board are reviewable by the United States circuit courts of appeals on a petition for review. Such decisions may be reviewed (a) in the case of an individual, by the circuit court of appeals for the circuit whereof he is an inhabitant, or if not an inhabitant of any circuit, then by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia; (b) in the case of a person other than an individual, by the circuit court of appeals for the circuit in which is located the office of the collector to whom such person made the return, or in case such person made no return, then by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia; (c) in the case of a corporation which had no principal place of business or principal office or agency in the United States, then by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia; (d) in the case of an agreement between the commissioner and the taxpayer, then by the circuit court of appeals for the circuit, or the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, as stipulated in such agreement.

The principal office of the board is at Washington, but provision has been made for hearings at certain points within the United States with a view to securing reasonable opportunity to taxpayers to appear before the board or any of its divisions with as little inconvenience and expense as is practicable.

The reports of the board are published at the Government Printing Office, and such authorized publication, under the act, becomes competent evidence thereof in all courts of the United States and of the several States without any further proof or authentication thereof. These publications are subject to sale in the same manner and upon the same terms as other public documents.

WAR FINANCE CORPORATION

The War Finance Corporation was created by the act approved April 5, 1918. Its original purpose was to give financial support to industries whose operations were "necessary or contributory to the prosecution of the war" and to banking institutions that aided in financing such industries. It was also authorized to make advances to savings banks and building loan associations, to buy and sell obligations of the United States Government, and to issue bonds.

The corporation was in existence only six months before the armistice was signed. When hostilities ceased its operations were contracted automatically, but in the spring of 1919 it was called upon to undertake the burden of financing the railroads, then under Federal control, because no appropriation had been made for the maintenance of their operations.

AUTHORITY TO FINANCE EXPORTS

By act approved March 3, 1919, the powers of the corporation were extended to embrace an entirely new line of activity. In order to assist in the transition from conditions of war to conditions of peace, the corporation was given authority to make advances to the extent of $1,000,000,000 to American exporters and American banking institutions which extended credits to finance American exports. The activities of the corporation under this authority were discontinued in May, 1920, at the request of the then Secretary of the Treasury. In January, 1921, the Congress passed a joint resolution directing the corporation to resume operations in accordance with the provisions of the act of March 3, 1919.

AGRICULTURAL CREDITS

By act approved August 24, 1921, commonly known as the agricultural credits act of 1921, the corporation's powers were further extended and it was authorized to make loans for agricultural purposes to banking and financing institutions, including livestock loan companies, and to cooperative marketing associations. The act required the corporation to obtain in every case "full and adequate security by indorsement, guaranty, pledge, or otherwise" and provided that the aggregate of advances made by the corporation remaining unpaid at any one time may not exceed $1,000,000,000. It contained a provision limiting to June 30, 1922, the period during which the corporation was authorized to make new advances. This period, however, was extended to June 30, 1923, by the act approved June 10, 1922; to March 31, 1924, by the agricultural credits act of 1923; and to December 31, 1924, by the act approved February 20, 1924.

In accordance with the act of February 20, 1924, the corporation ceased to receive applications on November 30, 1924, and discontinued the making of new loans on December 31, 1924. It entered the period of liquidation on January 1, 1925, and since that date only expense advances incident to the liquidation of its assets and the winding up of its affairs have been made.

The capital stock of the corporation was fixed by the act of April 5, 1918, at $500,000,000, all of it to be held by the Government. On November 30, 1919, the entire amount had been subscribed, and on January 5, 1925, the corporation, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, canceled and retired $499,000,000 of its capital stock, leaving $1,000,000 outstanding. In April, 1919, the corporation issued for public sale $200,000,000 one-year 5 per cent bonds which matured on April 1, 1920. All of these bonds, with the exception of a few not yet presented for payment, have been retired.

The funds of the corporation are kept on deposit with the Treasurer of the United States.

ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN

The President was authorized under the provisions of the "trading with the enemy act" to appoint an official, to be known as the Alien Property Custodian who shall be empowered to receive all the moneys and property in the United States due or belonging to an enemy or ally of an enemy, which may be paid, conveyed, transferred, assigned or delivered to the said custodian under the provisions of the act, and to hold, administer, and account for the same under the general direction of the President and as provided in the act.

The President has delegated to the Alien Property Custodian the following powers and duties under the trading with the enemy act:

The executive administration of all the provisions of section 7 (a), section 7 (c), and section 7 (d), including power to require reports and extend the time for filing the same, conferred upon the President by the provisions of section 7 (a), and including the power conferred upon the President by the provisions of section 7 (c), to require the conveyance, etc., to the Alien Property Custodian at such time and in such manner as he shall require, of any money or other properties owing to or belonging to or held for or on account of any enemy or ally of an enemy not holding a license granted under the provisions of the trading with the enemy act which, after investigation, said Alien Property Custodian shall determine is so owing, etc.

The property seized and demanded by the Alien Property Custodian is scattered throughout the United States and its Territories, including the Philippine Islands and Hawaii, and consists of industrial plants, such as chemical and woolen mills, steamship lines, banks, land and cattle companies, salmon factories, gold and silver and other mines of metal and other miscellaneous industrial plants, and thousands of parcels of real estate, and trusts represented by securities and liquid assets.

The Alien Property Custodian is required by the trading with the enemy act to deposit all moneys coming into his hands in the Treasury of the United States, to be invested by the Secretary of the Treasury in United States bonds or certificates of indebtedness. With respect to all other property the Alien Property Custodian has all the powers of a common-law trustee, and the further power of management and sale under the direction of the President. All moneys or properties after the end of the war will be disposed of as Congress shall direct.

The treaties of peace between the United States of America and Germany and Austria provide that—

"All property of the Imperial German Government, or its successor or successors, and of all German nationals, which was, on April 6, 1917, in or has since that date come into the possession or under control of, or has been the subject of a demand by the United States of America or of any of its officers, agents, or employees, from any source or by any agency whatsoever, and all property of the Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Government, or its successor or successors, and of all Austro-Hungarian nationals which was on December 7, 1917, in or has since that date come into the possession or under control of, or has been the subject of a demand by the United States of America or any of its officers, agents, or employees, from any source or by any agency whatsoever, shall be retained by the United States of America and no disposition thereof made, except as shall have been heretofore or specifically hereafter shall be provided by law until such time as the Imperial German Government and the Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Government, or their successor or successors, shall have, respectively, made suitable provision for the satisfaction of all claims against said Governments, respectively, of all persons, wheresoever domiciled, who owe permanent allegiance to the United States of America and who have suffered, through the acts of the Imperial German Government, or its agents, or the Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Government, or its agents, since July 31, 1914, loss, damage, or injury to their persons or property, directly or indirectly, whether through the ownership of shares of stock in German, Austro-Hungarian, American, or other corporations, or in consequence of hostilities or of any operations of war, or otherwise" * * *.

Under an amendment to the trading with the enemy act approved March 4, 1923, the President was authorized to return an amount of property or money not to exceed in value the sum of $10,000 to individuals, partnerships, unincorporated associations, and corporations whose property was seized or demanded by the Alien Property Custodian during the existence of the war.

The President, by an Executive order dated May 16, 1923, has vested in the Alien Property Custodian all the power and authority conferred upon him by the said amendment pertaining to every claim in which the amount to be paid does not exceed in money or other property the value of $10,000.

UNITED STATES TARIFF COMMISSION

The commission was created by act of Congress approved September 8, 1916. It has authority to investigate the administration, operation, and effects of the customs laws and their relation to the Federal revenues.

The law directs that the commission shall put at the disposal of the President, the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, and the Finance Committee of the Senate, whenever requested, all of the information at its command, and shall make such investigations and reports as may be requested by the President or either branch of Congress.

The commission has power to investigate the tariff relations between the United States and foreign countries, commercial treaties, preferential provisions, economic alliances, the effect of export bounties and preferential transportation rates, the volume of importations compared with domestic production and consumption, and conditions, causes, and effects relating to competition of foreign industries with those of the United States, including dumping and cost of production.

Under the provisions of sections 315, 316, and 317 of Title III of the tariff act approved September 21, 1922, the commission is authorized to conduct investigations to assist the President to modify the rates of duties and the classifications fixed in the dutiable schedules of that act.

Section 315 provides that the commission shall make, under such reasonable procedure, rules, and regulations as it may deem necessary, investigations to assist the President in ascertaining the differences in costs of production in the United States and in foreign countries of articles covered by the dutiable schedules of the tariff act. The findings of the commission as the results of such investigations shall be reported to the President, who is authorized, when he finds that such differences are not equalized by the rates of duties prescribed, to determine and proclaim such changes in classification, or increases or decreases of duties, within a limitation of 50 per cent thereof, as will effectuate such equalization. When the President shall find, however, that such proceeding will not equalize the said differences in costs of production, he is authorized to direct that ad valorem duties upon the articles covered by such findings shall be based upon the American selling price thereof as defined in section 402 of the act. Ascertainment of such differences in costs of production shall take into consideration differences in wages, costs of materials, and other items in costs; differences in wholesale selling prices of domestic and foreign articles in the principal American markets; advantages given foreign producers by foreign governments or others; and any other advantages or disadvantages in competition.

The commission is authorized under section 316 to investigate unfair methods of competition and unfair acts in the importation of articles into the United States, or in their sale after importation. When the findings and recommendations of the commission, upon its investigation of such acts, justify the President in doing so, he is authorized to determine and assess additional duties within prescribed limits upon articles covered by such findings or, in extreme cases, to exclude such articles from entry into the United States, such additional duties or refusal of entry to remain in effect until otherwise ordered by the President.

The testimony in every investigation under the provisions of this section is required to be reduced to writing, and with the findings of the commission constitutes the official record in each case. A copy of the findings is required to be sent to the importer or consignee of the articles affected thereby and shall be conclusive, subject only to rehearing by consent of the commission or to appeal on questions of law only to the United States Court of Customs Appeals or to review by the United States Supreme Court on certiorari.

Under the provisions of section 317 the commission is required to ascertain and at all times to be informed whether any foreign country discriminates against the commerce of the United States, whether by imposing upon it unreasonable charges or regulations not equally imposed upon other countries, or by laws, administrative regulations, or practices in regard to customs, port charges, classifications, or other like requirements which may be to the disadvantage of the commerce of the United States in such country or in any other foreign country. The commission is required to report to the President with its recommendations any such discriminations which it may find to exist, and upon such findings, when confirmed by him, the President is authorized to specify and declare upon articles wholly or in part the growth or product of any such country such new and additional duties as will offset such burdens, or he may exclude from importation articles from such country. Such new or additional duties are limited, however, to not to exceed 50 per cent ad valorem. Articles imported contrary to the provisions of this section are made subject to seizure and forfeiture to the United States.

Section 318 of the tariff act approved September 21, 1922, provides that, in addition to the duties previously imposed upon it by law, the commission shall ascertain conversion costs and costs of production of articles in the principal growing, producing, or manufacturing centers of the United States, whenever in the opinion of the commission it is practicable, and shall ascertain such costs in foreign countries whenever in the opinion of the commission such costs are necessary for comparison with the costs in the United States and can be reasonably ascertained.

The commission is also directed to describe and keep on file samples of imported articles and articles of the United States which are comparable; to ascertain the import costs of such foreign articles, and the selling prices in the United States of such articles of the United States, and to ascertain all other facts affecting competition between domestic and imported articles in the principal markets of the United States. This section authorizes the commission to establish and maintain an office at the port of New York for executing any of its functions, and authorizes the commission to adopt an official seal which shall be judicially noticed.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION COMMISSION

(Created by the act of Congress approved September 7, 1916)

The act of Congress creating the United States Employees' Compensation Commission assures compensation, including reasonable medical and hospital treatment, to all civil employees (unclassified as well as classified) of the Federal Government, employees of the District of Columbia except firemen and policemen, and officers and enlisted men of the Naval Reserve on authorized training duty in time of peace, who sustain personal injuries while in the performance of their duties, but no compensation shall be paid if the injury is caused by the willful misconduct of the employee or by his intention to bring about the injury or death of himself or of another, or if intoxication of the injured employee is the proximate cause of the injury or death. To obtain the medical and hospital treatment, the employee shall be sent to the nearest United States medical officer or hospital, but if this is not practicable, to the nearest physician or hospital designated by the United States Employees' Compensation Commission, or when neither of these is available, to the nearest physician or hospital.

The monthly compensation for total disability shall not be more than $66.67 nor less than $33.33, unless the employee's monthly pay is less than the latter amount, in which case his compensation shall be the full amount of his monthly pay.

Payment shall be made for partial disability equal to 66⅔ per cent of the difference between the employee's monthly pay and his earning capacity after the disability.

In case of death the compensation shall be paid the widow or widower, to dependent children under the age of 18 years, to dependent parents or grandparents, and to other dependents under certain conditions. All claims for compensation must be filed within one year.

By Executive orders the administration of the compensation act so far as it relates to the Panama Canal employees and employees of the Alaskan Engineering Commission has been placed under the heads of those organizations.

NATIONAL SCREW THREAD COMMISSION

The National Screw Thread Commission was appointed in accordance with H. R. 10852, approved July 18, 1918. It is composed of nine members, two of whom are commissioned officers of the Army, appointed by the Secretary of War; two commissioned officers of the Navy, appointed by the Secretary of the Navy; and four appointed by the Secretary of Commerce, two of whom are chosen from nominations made by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and two from nominations made by the Society of Automotive Engineers. The Director of the Bureau of Standards is ex-officio chairman of the commission. The duties of the commission as set forth in the act by which it was authorized are to ascertain and establish standards for screw threads which shall be submitted to the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Commerce for their acceptance and approval. Such standards, when thus accepted and approved, shall be adopted and used in the several manufacturing plants under the control of the War and Navy Departments, and, so far as practicable, in all specifications for screw threads in proposals for manufactured articles, parts, or materials to be used under the direction of these departments. The commission has made an extensive study of the production and use of screw threads in the United States and has established standards and tolerances for various classes of this product. A report was issued under date of January 4, 1921, setting forth the standards agreed upon by the commission up to that date. Since the issuance of the original report, other closely allied problems have been taken up and a revised report containing several new sections was issued under date of February 11, 1925. (Misc. Pub. Bur. of Stds., No. 61.) The life of the commission has been three times extended, and on April 16, 1926, the commission was made a permanent body by the approval of Public Act No. 125 (H. R. 264, 69th Cong.).

UNITED STATES VETERANS' BUREAU

The United States Veterans' Bureau was established by an act of Congress approved August 9, 1921, by which act the bureau was established as an independent bureau under the President. The Bureau of War Risk Insurance was abolished by said act and the powers and duties pertaining to the Director of the War Risk Insurance under the Treasury Department were transferred to the Veterans' Bureau, together with the functions, powers, and duties conferred upon the Federal Board for Vocational Education by the act of June 27, 1918, known as the vocational rehabilitation act, and all personnel, properties, etc., of the United States Public Health Service as prescribed and provided in a written order of the Secretary of the Treasury on April 19, 1921, designated "Order relative to the transfer of certain activities of the United States Public Health Service, relating to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, including the trainees of the Rehabilitation Division of the Federal Board for Vocational Education." Effective May 1, 1922, those hospitals of the Public Health Service having to do with the care of ex-service men, together with their personnel, were transferred to the Veterans' Bureau and are now known as United States veterans' hospitals.

The Bureau of War Risk Insurance was created by act of Congress approved September 2, 1914, to insure American vessels and their cargoes against the risks of war. By an act approved June 12, 1917, Congress added the duty of insuring the lives of masters and crews of American vessels. On October 6, 1917, the most important provisions of the war-risk act were added. These provided for payment of allotments and allowances to the dependent families of members of the military forces of the United States, payment of compensation for death or disability, and the writing of term policies of insurance by the Federal Government against death or total disability. Important amendments to the act have subsequently been made. The amendments approved December 24, 1919, provided for an optional payment in lump sum of the converted forms of insurance and substantial increases in the amount of compensation payable on account of death or disability. They made possible the making of agreements with allied foreign countries to furnish benefits to their disabled veterans and increased the permitted class of beneficiaries in the payment of insurance claims.

By the act of August 9, 1921, the Veterans' Bureau was established and the administration of soldiers' relief activities became coordinated and consolidated in one agency. The district offices of the bureau were established under this authority. The time limit for reinstatement of lapsed insurance by disabled ex-service men was extended. A two-year presumptive period for tuberculous and neuropsychiatric disabilities was established which enabled any case developing a 10 per cent disability in these classes within two years from discharge to become automatically service connected and therefore compensable. By amendments in December, 1922, the allowance for nurse was increased from $20 to $50 per month for the blind, legless, and armless in need of such attendants. On March 4, 1923, the presumptive period for tuberculous and neuropsychiatric diseases was increased to three years and hospital facilities of the Veterans' Bureau were extended to care for veterans of the Spanish American War, the Philippine Insurrection, and the Boxer Rebellion, suffering from neuropsychiatric and tubercular diseases.

Probably the most important amendments were those included in the World War veterans' act approved June 7, 1924. This act increased the presumptive period for automatic service connection in cases of tuberculosis and for neuropsychiatric diseases to January 1, 1925. Death compensation to widows and children was increased. It was provided that in instances where a beneficiary of the bureau suffering from tuberculosis had been hospitalized for more than one year and was discharged with the disease completely arrested, temporary total compensation should be paid for six months after discharge. Furthermore, if a patient were hospitalized for one year on account of tuberculosis and would not reach a condition of arrest by further hospitalization, he should be rated and paid as temporarily and totally disabled for a period of three years. Compensation for totally blind veterans was increased to $150 per month. Allowances for all attendants were increased from $20 to $50 per month. It also provided that after June 30, 1927, no person (other than those totally and permanently disabled) who is being maintained in an institution by the bureau and who is without wife, child, or dependent parents, shall be paid compensation exceeding $40 per month. It provided that no reduction in compensation should be made retroactive and that no discontinuance or reduction should be put into effect until the first day of the third calendar month after the new rating has been made. This amendment further made available all hospital facilities under the control and jurisdiction of the Veterans' Bureau to every honorably discharged veteran of the Spanish American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the Boxer Rebellion, or the World War, suffering from neuropsychiatric or tubercular ailments or diseases and to certain other specified conditions, regardless of whether such ailments or diseases were due to military service, and further authorized, so far as existing Government facilities permit, the hospitalization and necessary traveling expenses to veterans of any war, military occupation, or military expedition since 1897 not dishonorably discharged, without regard to the nature or origin of their disability. This amendment also provided for the placing of all field offices of the bureau on a common basis, thus decentralizing from the 14 district offices the adjudication of claims and dispensing relief to 54 field offices of the bureau known as regional offices.

Under Title IV of this act, affecting rehabilitation, the last dates for application, induction, and training were established as June 30, 1923, June 30, 1925, and June 30, 1926, respectively; and additional allowance of two months' training pay was provided for the two months' period immediately following rehabilitation, with the provision, however, that following this two months' period "all duty and obligation of the United States with respect to vocational rehabilitation shall cease and terminate." This act also placed stronger emphasis on the obligation of training for employability than in past enactments.

On June 5, 1924, the original functions of the United States Veterans' Bureau were augmented through the enactment of the World War adjusted compensation act, which placed the administration of dispensing benefits provided by this act under the Veterans' Bureau.

An amendment to the act of June 7, 1924, was made by the act of March 4, 1925, the most important provisions of which were: (1) The consolidation in one section of the various provisions of the existing act relative to forfeiture of rights to compensation and insurance, and the liberalization of these provisions, with particular respect to insurance; (2) the providing of compensation and hospitalization for all men whose disability incurred in service has resulted in practically permanent and total disability, irrespective of misconduct; (3) the restoration of many important insurance provisions essential to the insurance contract, which were not incorporated in the act of June 7, 1924; (4) the provision for the immediate distribution of insurance payable to the veterans' estate, thus eliminating the necessity for endless administration of those acts by the bureau; and (5) making the embezzlement of funds received from the bureau by guardians a Federal offense.

On June 2, 1926, an amendment was passed which extended the date on which all yearly renewable term insurance must be reinstated and converted to July 2, 1927, and authorized the issuance of a five-year level premium term insurance policy.

On July 2, 1926, the World War veterans' act was further amended, the principal provisions of the amendment being: (1) The director is authorized to limit the number of guardianship cases in the District of Columbia in which one person may act as fiduciary and is further empowered to appear by authorized attorney and make proper presentations to any court when it appears that the fiduciary is not properly executing his trust, and is also authorized to suspend payments to such fiduciary who shall neglect or refuse to render any accounting the director may request; (2) authority is granted for the hospitalization of female beneficiaries in other than Government hospitals, and the hospitalization of nurses who served as Army nurses under contract during the period April 21, 1898, to February 2, 1901, is also authorized; (3) any ex-service persons suffering from a tubercular disease who has reached a condition of complete arrest shall receive compensation at the rate of $50 per month; (4) the date for the discontinuance of vocational training to placement trainees is extended to January 1, 1927, and to those receiving institutional training to July 2, 1928; (5) the director is authorized to provide courses of instruction for the professional personnel of the bureau, and may detail not more than 2 per cent of the professional personnel to attend professional courses conducted by other than bureau agencies.

The World War adjusted compensation act was also amended on July 3, 1926. The most important provisions were: (1) That an application may be filed by a representative of the veteran in the event of physical or mental incapacity of the veteran, and in the event of death between May 19, 1924, and July 1, 1924, the application may be filed by the surviving widow; (2) that no sum payable under this act shall be subject to deduction because of any indebtedness of the veterans to the United States; (3) that decisions of the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy on matters under this act shall be final and conclusive; (4) that a widow or widower is entitled to benefits if unmarried when making application or if not living apart from the veteran at the time of his death by reason of her own willful misconduct; (5) that if a veteran died in service prior to July 1, 1919, and if the adjusted service certificate credit be certified to the director, the sum of $60 shall be paid in a lump sum to dependents of such veteran; (6) that when an adjusted service certificate has been lost, destroyed, or defaced so as to impair its value and is identified by number and description, a duplicate shall be issued upon the execution of a bond in the penal sum of the face value of the certificate with two good securities.

FEDERAL BOARD FOR VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

The Federal Board for Vocational Education was created by act of Congress approved February 23, 1917. This act makes appropriations to be used in cooperation with the States in the promotion of vocational education. For the fiscal year 1917–18 the amount appropriated was $1,860,000, but the appropriation increases each year until in 1925–26 it reaches $7,367,000, which sum is provided annually thereafter. The money appropriated is to be given to various States for the purpose of stimulating vocational education in agriculture and the trades and industries and in the preparation of teachers of vocational subjects. Its allotment is upon condition that for each dollar of Federal money expended the State or local community, or both, in which schools are established shall expend an equal amount for the same purpose.

The duties imposed upon the board are of a twofold character: First, it is the representative of the Government appointed to cooperate with boards appointed by the States in promoting vocational education; and, second, it is required to make, or cause to have made, reports on vocational subjects. As representative of the Government it examines the plans submitted by the various State boards containing the scheme of vocational education to be conducted by the States, and approves the same if found to be in conformity with the provisions and purposes of the act. It ascertains annually whether the several States are using or prepared to use the money received by them in accordance with the provisions of the statute and each year it certifies to the Secretary of the Treasury the States which have complied with the provisions of the act, together with the amount which each State is entitled to receive. In the preparation of reports it is charged with the duty of making studies and investigations relating to the establishment of vocational schools or classes and the courses and studies to be taught therein. It is also required to make studies, investigations, and reports upon agriculture and agricultural processes and requirements upon agricultural workers; trades, industries, and apprenticeships; trade and industrial requirements upon industrial workers and classification of industrial processes and pursuits; commerce and commercial pursuits and requirements upon commercial workers; home management, domestic science, and related facts and principles; and problems of administration of vocational schools and of courses of study and instruction in vocational subjects.

By the passage of the Federal vocational rehabilitation act, approved June 27, 1918, and the amendment thereto of July 11, 1919, the board was charged with the duty of furnishing vocational rehabilitation to every member of the military or naval forces of the United States discharged with a disability incurred, increased, or aggravated while a member of such forces or traceable to service therein, needing vocational rehabilitation to overcome the handicap of such disability. In furnishing training under the act no limitations were imposed by the board with respect to the courses to be pursued, and all careers were opened to the disabled men, much of it being given directly in the trades and industries. The board carried out this work of training the disabled soldiers, sailors, and marines and placing them in employment in their particular line of endeavor until the passage of the bill on August 9, 1921, creating the Veterans' Bureau, which consolidated all the agencies dealing with the disabled soldiers, sailors, and marines.

The civilian vocational rehabilitation act was approved on June 2, 1920. By this act the Federal Government agrees to cooperate with the States in rehabilitating and restoring to remunerative occupations any persons disabled in industry or otherwise, and names the Federal Board for Vocational Education as the administrative agency. The duties imposed upon the Federal board include the making of such rules and regulations as may be appropriate to carry out the purposes of the act; the provisions, through cooperation with the States, for vocational rehabilitation for disabled persons; the examination of State plans and their approval, if in conformity with the provisions of the act; the cooperation with such public and private agencies as may be deemed advisable for this purpose. The Federal board must ascertain annually whether the States are properly using Federal funds and must certify, on or before the 1st day of January of each year, to the Secretary of the Treasury those States which have accepted and complied with the provisions of the law, naming the amount of money which each State is entitled to receive. The Federal board is authorized to make such studies and investigations of the vocational rehabilitation of disabled persons and their placement in suitable or gainful occupations as are needed to carry out the intention of the act. An act continuing appropriations for this purpose was approved June 5, 1924.

BOARD OF ROAD COMMISSIONERS FOR ALASKA

The Board of Road Commissioners for Alaska was created by the act of Congress approved January 27, 1905 (sec. 2), amended by the act approved May 14, 1906. Funds for the work are derived from a tax fund collected in Alaska and from special appropriations made by Congress through military committees. The work is carried on under the direction of the board and the general supervision of the Chief of Engineers. The organization of the board is as follows:

The senior officer on duty, to be designated as the president, shall have general charge of the operations of the board, and shall approve and certify, on behalf of the board, all vouchers and expenditures.

The engineer officer shall supervise the work of construction in the field, as provided in the act of Congress creating the board.

The third officer shall, upon designation by the Secretary of War, as provided in the law as amended, act as disbursing officer of the board.

The board is charged by law with the construction, repair, and maintenance of roads, tramways, ferries, bridges, and trails in the Territory of Alaska.

Under the act of June 30, 1921, the Secretary of War is authorized to receive from the Territory of Alaska or other source funds contributed for the construction, repair, and maintenance of roads, bridges, trails, and related works, said funds to be deposited in the United States Treasury and expended by the Board of Road Commissioners in accordance with the purpose for which they were contributed.

COMMISSION ON NAVY YARDS AND NAVAL STATIONS

Appointed by direction of the President to carry out provisions of the act of Congress, approved August 29, 1916, relative to the establishment of navy yards, naval stations, and submarine and aviation bases.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR AERONAUTICS

The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics was appointed by the President, pursuant to act of Congress approved March 3, 1915 (naval appropriations act, public No. 273, Sixty-third Congress). Its membership consists of two officers of the Army, two officers of the Navy, a representative each of the Smithsonian Institution, the United States Weather Bureau, and the United States Bureau of Standards, together with five additional citizens acquainted with the needs of aeronautical science, or skilled in aeronautical engineering or its allied sciences. All the members, as such, serve without compensation.

The duties of the committee, as provided by Congress, are to supervise and direct the scientific study of the problems of flight, with a view to their practical solution, and to determine the problems which should be experimentally attacked, and to discuss their solution and their application to practical questions; also to direct and conduct research and experiment on the more fundamental problems of aeronautics in such laboratories as may in whole or in part be placed under the direction of the committee.

Under the rules and regulations formulated by the committee and approved by the President, technical subcommittees have been established whose general duties are to aid in determining the problems in their respective branches of the aeronautical field to be scientifically attacked, bringing to bear the knowledge derived from experimental investigations conducted in all parts of the world, and to endeavor to coordinate the research and experimental work involved in the study of the problems agreed upon. These subcommittees are composed in part of specially appointed representatives of the Army and Navy air organizations, who are in immediate charge of various phases of aeronautical development.

By virtue of the character of its membership, including as it does the heads of the Army and Navy air organizations, the committee also serves in an advisory capacity for the determination of questions of general policy in aeronautical matters.

In addition to the functions specifically defined for the various subcommittees, the general functions of the advisory committee may be stated as follows:

First. Under the law the committee holds itself at the service of any department or agency of the Government interested in aeronautics for the furnishing of information or assistance in regard to scientific or technical matters relating to aeronautics, and in particular for the investigation and study of problems in this field with a view to their practical solution.

Second. The committee may also exercise its functions for any individual, firm, association, or corporation within the United States, provided that such individual, firm, association, or corporation defray the actual cost involved.

Third. The committee institutes research, investigation, and study of the problems which, in the judgment of its members or of the members of its various subcommittees, are needful and timely for the advance of the science and art of aeronautics in its various branches.

Fourth. The committee keeps itself advised of the progress made in research and experimental work in aeronautics in all parts of the world, particularly in England, France, Italy, Germany, Holland, and Belgium.

Fifth. The information thus gathered is brought to the attention of the various subcommittees for consideration in connection with the preparation of programs for research and experimental work in this country. This information is also made available promptly to the military and naval air organizations and other branches of the Government, university laboratories, and aircraft manufacturers interested in the study of specific problems.

Sixth. The committee holds itself at the service of the President, the Congress, and the executive departments of the Government for the consideration of any special problem which may be referred to it. It has in this way made special reports and recommendations regarding the Air Mail Service, the development of a system of transcontinental airways and landing fields, the extension of aerological and weather report service, the Federal regulation of air navigation, and the development of aviation generally for military and civil purposes.

The committee has established an office of aeronautical intelligence, which serves as the depository and distributing agency of the scientific and technical data on aeronautics collected by the committee from governmental and private agencies in this country and abroad, and maintains an office in Paris to collect and exchange scientific and technical data on aeronautics in France, England, Italy, Germany, Holland, and Belgium.

The committee directly conducts scientific research and experiment on the more fundamental problems of aeronautics at the Langley Memorial Aeronautical Laboratory, at Langley Field, Va., a section of the field having been set aside by the War Department for the committee's use.

Section 10 (r) of the act of Congress approved July 2, 1926 (Public No. 446, 69th Cong.), creating an aeronautical patents and design board, consisting of Assistant Secretaries of War, Navy, and Commerce, gave to the committee the additional duty of considering the merits of aeronautical inventions submitted to any branch of the Government and of making recommendations for final action in such cases by the aeronautical patents and design board.

THE INTERNATIONAL JOINT COMMISSION

The International Joint Commission was created by the treaty between the United States and Great Britain signed January 11, 1909, the object of which is "to prevent disputes regarding the use of boundary waters and to settle all questions which are now pending between the United States and the Dominion of Canada involving the rights, obligations, or interests of either in relation to the other or to the inhabitants of the other, along their common frontier, and to make provision for the adjustment and settlement of all such questions as may hereafter arise."

The commission consists of six members, three appointed by the President of the United States, and three appointed by His Majesty on recommendation of the Government of Canada. It was organized in 1911, adopted rules of procedure, and established permanent offices in Washington and Ottawa. It has jurisdiction over all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of boundary waters between the United States and Canada, of waters flowing from boundary waters, and of waters at a lower level than the boundary in rivers flowing across the boundary.

Under Article IX of the treaty the International Joint Commission also is constituted an investigatory body, for the purpose of examining into and reporting upon any questions or matters of difference arising along the common frontier that shall be referred to it from time to time by either the Government of the United States or the Government of Canada.

Under Article X of the treaty any questions or matters of difference arising between the high contracting parties involving the rights, obligations, or interests of the United States or of the Dominion of Canada, either in relation to each other or to their respective inhabitants, may be referred for decision to the International Joint Commission, it being understood that on the part of the United States such action will be by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and on the part of Great Britain with the consent of the Government of Canada.

Under Article VI of the treaty the commission is charged with the measurement and apportionment from time to time of the waters of the St. Mary and Milk Rivers and their tributaries, these rivers lying partly in Montana and partly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and being largely used for irrigation purposes in both countries.

INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION, UNITED STATES, ALASKA, AND CANADA

Article VI of the convention between the United States and Great Britain, providing for the settlement of questions between the two countries with respect to the boundary line between the Territory of Alaska and the British possessions in North America, signed at Washington January 24, 1903, stipulated that when the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the tribunal upon the questions submitted as provided in the foregoing articles, which decision shall be final and binding upon all parties, they will at once appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts, who shall with all convenient speed proceed to lay down the boundary line in conformity with such decision.

2. The boundary between Alaska and Canada, along the one hundred and forty-first meridian. Length, 647 miles.

The convention between the United States and Great Britain providing for the surveying and marking out upon the ground of the one hundred and forty-first degree of west longitude where said meridian forms the boundary line between Alaska and the British possessions in North America, signed at Washington April 21, 1906, stipulated that each Government shall appoint one commissioner, with whom may be associated such surveyors, astronomers, and other assistants as each Government may elect, who shall locate the boundary line, erect the necessary boundary marks, make the necessary surveys, and file duplicate records with their respective Governments.

Articles I, II, III, V, VI, VII, and VIII of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, entitled "Canadian International Boundary," signed at Washington April 11, 1908, stipulated that each of the high contracting parties shall appoint without delay an expert geographer or surveyor as commissioner, and the commissioners so appointed shall jointly execute the necessary surveys, repair existing boundary marks, erect additional boundary marks, and lay down the boundary line in accordance with the existing treaties upon quadruplicate sets of accurate modern charts, prepared or adopted by them for that purpose, and that said charts so marked shall be filed with each Government, and said commissioners shall also prepare, in duplicate, and file with each Government a joint report or reports, describing in detail the course of the boundary so marked by them, and the character and location of the several monuments and boundary marks and ranges marking it.

4. Article IV of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain in respect of Canada, signed at Washington, February 24, 1925, authorizes and directs the commissioners appointed under the provisions of the treaty of April 11, 1908, to inspect the various portions of the boundary line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and between Alaska and the Dominion of Canada at such times as they shall deem necessary; to repair all damaged monuments and buoys; to relocate and rebuild monuments which have been destroyed; to keep the boundary vistas open; to move boundary monuments to new sites and establish such additional monuments and buoys as they shall deem desirable; to maintain at all times an effective boundary line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and between Alaska and the Dominion of Canada, as defined by the present treaty and treaties heretofore concluded or hereafter to be concluded; and to determine the location of any point of the boundary line which may become necessary in the settlement of any question that may arise between the two Governments.

INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION, UNITED STATES AND MEXICO

The International Boundary Commission, United States and Mexico, was created to carry out the provisions of conventions or treaties of 1848, 1853, 1882, 1884, 1889, and 1905 between United States and Mexico. The commission has exclusive jurisdiction of all differences or questions that may arise on boundary between United States and Mexico from Gulf of Mexico to Pacific Ocean, approximately 2,000 miles, consisting of some 1,300 miles along the Rio Grande and 25 miles along Colorado River. Also 680 miles overland boundary between El Paso, Tex., and Pacific Ocean. The commission is empowered to suspend the construction of works of any character along the Rio Grande and Colorado Rivers that contravene with existing treaties; erect and maintain monuments along boundary; make necessary surveys of changes brought by force of current in both rivers caused by either avulsion, accretion, or erosion; mark and eliminate bancos caused by such changes; supervise maintenance of gauging stations along both rivers and their tributaries for proper measurement of the water flow; survey, place and maintain monuments on all international bridges between the two countries. The commission is authorized to call for papers of information relative to boundary matters from either country; hold meetings at any point questions may arise; summon witnesses and take testimony in accordance with rules of the courts of the respective countries. If both commissioners shall agree to a decision their judgment shall be binding on both Governments, unless one of them shall disapprove it within one month from the date it shall have been pronounced.

BOARD OF SURVEYS AND MAPS OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The Board of Surveys and Maps of the Federal Government was created by Executive order of December 30, 1919, for the purpose of making recommendations to the several departments or to the President for coordinating all map making and surveying activities of the Government and to settle all questions at issue between executive departments relating to surveys and maps in so far as their decisions do not conflict with existing laws. Meetings are held at stated intervals, to which representatives of the map-using public are invited for conference and advice. A central information office has been established in the United States Geological Survey for collecting, classifying, and furnishing information concerning all map and survey data available in the several Government departments and from other sources.

THE UNITED STATES SECTION OF THE INTER-AMERICAN HIGH COMMISSION

The United States section of the Inter-American High Commission received legal recognition in an act approved February 7, 1916. It consists of the eight representatives of the United States on the commission. There are corresponding sections in the Republics of Central and South America and the West Indies. The commission was organized on the recommendation of the First Pan American Financial Conference held in Washington May 24–29, 1915. It aims to bring about substantial uniformity in the commercial law and administrative regulations of the American Republics and more stable financial relations between Latin America and the United States, and, in general, to carry out the recommendations of the First and Second Pan American Financial Conferences, and cooperate in the formulation and effectuation of the program of the international conferences of American States in so far as it bears directly on the purposes and work of the commission. The Second Financial Conference took place in Washington January 19–24, 1920. The commission's work is directed by a central executive council, which is composed of the chairman, vice chairman, and secretary of the section which represents the country selected as headquarters of the commission for the interval between any two meetings. The meeting held at Buenos Aires April 3–12, 1916, selected Washington as headquarters until the second meeting of the entire commission would take place. The officers of the United States section, therefore, now constitute the central executive council.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

The act of Congress approved June 10, 1920 (41 Stat., 1063), entitled "The Federal Water Power Act," created the Federal Power Commission, to be composed of the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Secretary of Agriculture. The operations of the commission are conducted under the supervision of an executive secretary, assisted by an engineer officer detailed from the United States Engineer Corps and by other individuals assigned to the work of the commission by the Departments of War, Interior, and Agriculture.

The commission has general administrative control over all power sites on the navigable waters and on the public lands and reservations of the United States, and over the location, design, construction, maintenance, and operation of power projects upon such sites, an investigation being required in the case of every application to determine whether the project proposed is best adapted to a comprehensive scheme of development of the water resources of the region, not only for power development, but also for such related uses as irrigation, navigation, flood control, and water supply. The act requires that there shall be sufficient inspection and supervision of project works to assure their adequate maintenance and efficient operation, and that the commission shall ascertain the amounts necessary to be set aside to cover depreciation and to make necessary renewals and replacements. The act requires the establishment by the commission of a system of public-utility accounting, to be made applicable to all licensees, with provisions for determining and reporting cost of projects, for creation and disposition of depreciation and amortization reserves, for allocation of earnings to project and other property, and for all the other items which enter into modern utility accounting practice. The commission is charged with the duty of regulating rates, service, and securities in intrastate business wherever the several States have not provided agencies for undertaking such duties themselves and in interstate business whenever the individual States have not the power to act or can not agree.

The commission is required to classify some 2,500,000 acres of public land within power reserves; to determine the value of power available at Government dams, and the advisability of its development for public purposes; and to fix annual rental charges for reimbursing the costs of administration and for recompensing the United States for the use of its lands and other property.

In cases where a licensee makes use of a headwater improvement, the commission determines the proper share of the annual costs to be paid by the licensee benefited; and when any project already constructed is brought under license, the commission determines its fair value.

The commission is authorized to conduct general investigations of power resources and of their relation to interstate and foreign commerce, cooperating with State and National Governments in its investigations, and to publish the results of its work in special and annual reports; and it is required to make certain special investigations and report thereon to Congress.

UNITED STATES GEOGRAPHIC BOARD

The United States Board on Geographic Names was created by Executive order of September 4, 1890; by Executive order of August 10, 1906, the official title was changed to United States Geographic Board. That part of the latter order enlarging duties was rescinded by Executive order, December 30, 1919.

The board passes on all unsettled questions concerning geographic names which arise in the departments, as well as determines, changes, and fixes place names within the United States and its insular possessions, and all names suggested by any officer or employee of the Government shall be referred to the board for consideration and approval before publication. The decisions of the board are to be accepted by all the departments of the Government as standard authority.

THE COMMISSION OF FINE ARTS

By act approved May 17, 1910, Congress created as a permanent body the national Commission of Fine Arts. The commission is "composed of seven well-qualified judges of the fine arts," who are appointed by the President and serve for a period of four years each, and until their successors are appointed and qualified.

Under the provisions of this organic act Congress directs that "It shall be the duty of the commission to advise upon the location of statues, fountains, and monuments in the public squares, streets, and parks in the District of Columbia, and upon the selection of models for statues, fountains, and monuments erected under the authority of the United States and upon the selection of the artists for the execution of same. It shall be the duty of the officer charged by law to determine such questions in each case to call for such advice. The foregoing provisions of this act shall not apply to the Capitol Building of the United States and the building of the Library of Congress. The commission shall also advise generally upon questions of art when required to do so by the President or by any committee of either House of Congress."

By Executive order dated October 25, 1910, the President directed that "Plans for no public building to be erected in the District of Columbia for the General Government shall be hereafter finally approved by the officer duly authorized until after such officer shall have submitted the plans to the Commission of Fine Arts created under the act of Congress of May 17, 1910, for its comment and advice."

On February 2, 1912, the President directed the commission to advise the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds in regard to the improvement of any of the grounds in the city of Washington under his charge whenever such advice is asked for by that officer. That officer now uniformly consults the commission regarding details of the development of all the parks and reservations under his control.

On November 28, 1913, the President issued the following Executive order: "It is hereby ordered that whenever new structures are to be erected in the District of Columbia under the direction of the Federal Government which affect in any important way the appearance of the city, or whenever questions involving matters of art and with which the Federal Government is concerned are to be determined, final action shall not be taken until such plans and questions have been submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts designated under the act of Congress of May 17, 1910, for comment and advice."

On July 28, 1921, the President issued the following Executive order: "It is hereby ordered that essential matters relating to the design of medals, insignia, and coins produced by the executive departments, also the design of statues, fountains, and monuments, and all important plans for parks and all public buildings, constructed by the executive departments or the District of Columbia, which in any essential way affect the appearance of the city of Washington, or the District of Columbia, shall be submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts for advice as to the merits of such designs before the executive officer having charge of the same shall approve thereof."

In order that the development of the District of Columbia may proceed harmoniously both under Federal and District jurisdictions, the President has requested the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia to consult the Commission of Fine Arts on matters of art falling under their jurisdiction and control.

The duties of the commission, therefore, now embrace advising upon the location of statues, fountains, and monuments in the public squares, streets, and parks in the District of Columbia; upon the selection of models for statues, fountains, and monuments erected under the authority of the United States, and the selection of the artists for their execution; also for medals, insignia, and coins; upon the plans and designs for public structures and parks in the District of Columbia, as well as upon all questions involving matters of art with which the Federal Government is concerned. In addition, the commission advises upon general questions of art whenever requested to do so by the President or any committee of Congress.

Congress has stipulated in many recent enactments that the plans for certain designated buildings, monuments, etc., must be approved by the commission before they can be accepted by the Government.

FEDERAL NARCOTICS CONTROL BOARD

REGULATIONS [1]

Pursuant to the provisions of the narcotic drugs import and export act, approved May 26, 1922, published in Treasury Decision 39154 of June 12, 1922, the Federal Narcotics Control Board hereby prescribes the following regulations:

(1) Definitions.—(a) The term "crude opium" shall be understood to mean the spontaneously coagulated sap obtained from the soporific poppy (Papaver somniferum and related species), and which may or may not have been subjected to further drying or other treatment, thus covering all forms of opium known to the trade, such as gum opium, granulated opium, powdered opium, and deodorized (denarcotized) opium, except "smoking opium" or "opium prepared for smoking."

(b) By coca leaves shall be understood the leaves of Erythroxylon coca, known commercially as Huanuco coca, or the leaves of Erythroxylon truxillense, known commercially as Truxillo coca, or the leaves of any other species of Erythroxylon yielding cocaine.

(c) The term "cocaine" shall be understood to cover all forms of cocaine or its salts known to the trade.

(d) The term "derivative" shall be understood to mean any alkaloid, or salt of an alkaloid, or combination thereof, or any chemical compound prepared either directly or indirectly from the alkaloids of opium or from cocaine. It shall include morphine, codeine, ethylmorphine hydrochloride (known as dionin), or diacetyl morphine hydrochloride (known as heroin), their salts or combinations and any new derivative of morphine or cocaine, or of any salts of morphine or cocaine, or any other alkaloid of opium.

(e) The term "preparation" shall mean any product, mixture, or compound containing or representing any quantity of opium or coca leaves or any derivative thereof.

IMPORTS

(2) Ports designated for imports.—Crude opium and coca leaves (which are the only "narcotic drugs" as defined in the act that are admissible) may be imported only at the ports of Detroit, Mich., Indianapolis, Ind., New York, N. Y., Philadelphia, Pa., St. Louis, Mo., and San Francisco, Calif.

(3) Who may import.—Crude opium and coca leaves may be entered only by manufacturers actually engaged in manufacturing from such crude opium or coca leaves products for the wholesale trade for medical or other legitimate uses.

(4) Applications required.—Applications in triplicate for permission to import crude opium or coca leaves shall be made under oath on an approved form, stating all material facts, and addressed to the collector of customs at the proposed port of importation, who, after careful consideration thereof and any investigation deemed necessary, shall forward the application with his recommendation to the Federal Narcotics Control Board, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. Such application must state the amount of the stock on hand, the usual requirements for the ensuing six months, and the necessity for the proposed importation.

Upon request the collector of customs may furnish to the applicant a certified copy of the approved application for use under the laws or regulations of the exporting country.

(5) Procedure on arrival and delivery from the appraiser's warehouse.—Immediately upon the unlading of crude opium from the importing vessel the customs officer shall carefully examine the packages, note their condition, seal the packages, and cause them to be transported under customs guard and by bonded cartmen to the appraiser's warehouse, where they shall be placed in a separate and specially protected inclosure.

The appraiser shall issue such special regulations to his employees as will insure the safe-keeping of the packages while in the warehouse.

No delivery of crude opium to the importer from the appraiser's warehouse shall be permitted until the deputy collector of customs in charge of the building and an assistant appraiser shall be satisfied and so note on the delivery permit, after personal examination, that the importer has taken all proper precautions for the safe transportation of the crude opium from the appraiser's warehouse to the importer's premises, or to the premises of the common carrier if shipment is to be made.

Until otherwise ordered, however, the procedure now followed in the case of shipments of crude opium in bond between the ports designated in regulation 2 for imports will not be disturbed.

Except as specially provided in these regulations, the procedure in the case of coca leaves shall be the same as in the case of merchandise generally.

(6) Entries.—Crude opium may be entered only for consumption or for transportation in bond between the ports designated in regulation 2 for imports. Entry of either crude opium or coca leaves shall not be permitted unless the application to import has been approved by the Federal Narcotics Control Board, nor unless the merchandise has been properly described in the manifest of the importing vessel or carrier.

Coca leaves, however, may be entered, either for consumption or warehouse, or for transportation in bond to any of the ports designated in regulation 2.

(7) Importations of unusual amounts.—No amount of crude opium or coca leaves which may be imported within any certain period as necessary to provide for medical and legitimate uses only will be fixed by the board at present, but special explanation of importations of unusual amounts of such articles, either in single shipments or in the aggregate, will be required and carefully investigated by the board.

(8) Reports of stocks on hand and probable future requirements.—Importers shall render to the board, as soon as practicable after December 31 of each year, or oftener if specially required, a report of the stocks of narcotic drugs on hand and an estimate of the probable requirements for medical and legitimate uses for the next year or any other period that may hereafter be specially designated.

EXPORTS

(9) No exportation without previous approval.—No person shall take out of the United States on his person or in his baggage or offer to any carrier for transportation out of the United States, nor shall any carrier receive for exportation or export out of the United States, any narcotic drug unless and until an application for permission to export shall have been approved by the Federal Narcotics Control Board.

(10) Applications.—Applications in triplicate for permission to export narcotic drugs shall be made under oath on an approved form, stating all the material facts, and addressed to the nearest collector of customs sufficiently early to permit of orderly procedure and any necessary investigation. With this application, the shippers' export declaration in due form shall also be submitted, together with any import license (and a translation thereof if in a foreign language) or a certified copy of any such license, that may have been issued by the country of destination, or other evidence that the merchandise is consigned to an authorized permittee.

Verification by an American consular officer of signatures on foreign import licenses will not be necessary if such licenses bear the official seal of the officer signing them.

After careful consideration of such application, and after any investigation deemed necessary, the collector shall forward the application to the board with his recommendation.

(11) Labeling of packages.—In lieu of the marking on the outside of the packages required in the previous regulations (T. D. 38381), the inner packages shall be labeled in a legible and conspicuous manner to show the narcotic character of the contents.

(12) Opening and inspection of packages.—The collector of customs may require packages offered for export to be opened and may inspect the contents thereof.

IN-TRANSIT SHIPMENTS

(13) In-transit shipments transferred in the United States or remaining on board the transporting vessel.—Each in-transit shipment under section 2 (subsection 5) of the act, will be considered by the board on its individual merits, but in general the regulations governing exports will be applied so far as practicable, except that the collector of customs may permit narcotic drugs, other than smoking opium or opium prepared for smoking, to be retained on board a vessel arriving from a foreign port which are shown on the manifest to be destined to another foreign port.

Articles in transit manifested merely as drugs, medicines, or chemicals, without evidence to satisfy the collector that they are nonnarcotic, shall be detained and subjected at the carrier's risk and expense to such examination as may be necessary to satisfy the collector whether they are of a narcotic character. With a view to avoiding such inconvenience, the carrier should not accept in-transit shipments of such articles unless accompanied by properly verified certificates of the shippers, specifying the items in the shipment and stating whether narcotic or not.

GENERAL

(14) Importations or exportations by mail prohibited.—The importation or exportation of narcotic drugs in the regular mails or by parcel post will not be permitted.

(15) Vessels' stores.—Collectors may permit narcotic drugs in reasonable quantity and properly listed as medical stores of vessels to remain on such vessels if satisfied that such drugs are adequately safe-guarded and used only for medical purposes. Smoking opium or opium prepared for smoking shall be seized, however, whenever and wherever found.

(16) Custody and disposition of narcotic drugs forfeited or not claimed.—All narcotic drugs which are forfeited in proceedings for condemnation, or not claimed as provided by law, or which are summarily forfeited as provided in subdivision (d), subsection 2, section 1, of the act, shall be reported to the secretary of the board on a form provided by the Treasury Department for that purpose, and retained by the officer reporting the same as custodian for the board pending their disposition. AMERICAN BATTLE MONUMENTS COMMISSION

The American Battle Monuments Commission was created by an act of Congress approved March 4, 1923, for the purpose of preparing plans for, and erecting suitable memorials to mark and commemorate the services of the American forces in Europe, including works of architecture and art in the American cemeteries in Europe. The act creating the commission charges it with the duties of controlling as to materials and design, providing regulations for, and supervising the erection of all memorial monuments and buildings in the American cemeteries in Europe. To the commission is given the function of photographing the battle fields of Europe upon which American forces were engaged, in order to complete the historical records of these forces.

The commission is directed to cooperate, in such manner as it shall determine, with American citizens, States, municipalities, and associations desiring to erect war memorials in Europe, providing that the plans for such memorials have been approved by the commission in accordance with the provisions of the act.

The act requires that the National Commission of Fine Arts have supervision over all designs or materials for memorials used by the commission.

public parks succeeded to the duties and prerogatives of the Office of Superintendent, State, War, and Navy Department Building, and the Office of Public Buildings and Grounds.

The director has charge of the maintenance and operation of the buildings under his custody, including the care of the grounds, heating, lighting, repairing, altering and cleaning the buildings, and the forces provided therefor. He is also responsible for the safety of the buildings and the personnel housed therein and has charge of the guarding and fire-fighting force authorized by Congress.

ROCK CREEK AND POTOMAC PARKWAY COMMISSION

The Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway Commission was created by section 22 of the public buildings act approved March 4, 1913, for the purpose of preventing the pollution and obstruction of Rock Creek and of connecting Potomac Park with the Zoological Park and Rock Creek Park, and were authorized and directed to acquire by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, such land and premises in the District of Columbia shown on the map on file in the office of the Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia, dated May 17, 1911, and lying on both sides of Rock Creek, including such portion of the creek bed as may be in private ownership between the Zoological Park and Potomac Park. Said map was subsequently revised and is now on file in the office of the executive and disbursing officer, and known as the map of the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, dated May, 1923.

The land when acquired becomes part of the park system of the District of Columbia, under the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks. It is estimated that six-sevenths of the land within the taking lines has been acquired.

The commission was authorized and directed to acquire such lands as in its judgment shall be necessary and desirable in the District of Columbia, and (by agreement with Maryland and Virginia authorities), adjacent areas in Maryland and Virginia, for suitable development of the National Capital park, parkway, and playground system. The act provides that the advice of the Commission of Fine Arts shall be requested in connection with the selection of lands to be acquired.

Although the above-mentioned act of 1913 authorized the expenditure of $25,000, it was not until nine years later that an appropriation was made in the executive and independent offices appropriation act approved June 12, 1922.

The act approved February 24, 1925, authorized and directed the commission to proceed at once with the construction of a memorial bridge across the Potomac River from the vicinity of the Lincoln Memorial, in the city of Washington, to an appropriate point in the State of Virginia, including appropriate approaches, roads, streets, boulevards, avenues, and walks leading thereto on both sides of said river, together with the landscape features appertaining thereto, all in accordance with the design, surveys, and estimates of cost transmitted by said commission to Congress under date of April 22, 1924, and authorized the total sum not to exceed $14,750,000.

The deficiency act approved March 4, 1925 (Public, No. 631, 68th Cong.), appropriated the sum of $500,000 to enable the commission to proceed with, the construction of the bridge.

The Meade Memorial Commission was created by Public Resolution No. 63, Sixty-third Congress, approved January 21, 1915, for the purpose of selecting a site on property belonging to the United States in the city of Washington, at or near the intersection of Third Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, and erect thereon a suitable memorial or statue to the memory of Maj. Gen. The site selected is in the northwest corner of the Botanic Garden Grounds, Third Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. The erection of the memorial has been practically completed with the exception of some of the architectural features surrounding it.

COURT OF CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

This court was established by act of Congress February 24, 1855 (10 Stat. L. 612). It has general jurisdiction (36 Stat. L. 1135) of all "claims founded upon the Constitution of the United States or any law of Congress, except for pensions, or upon any regulations of an executive department, or upon any contract, express or implied, with the Government of the United States, or for damages, liquidated or unliquidated, in cases not sounding in tort, in respect of which claims the party would be entitled to redress against the United States, either in a court of law, equity, or admiralty, if the United States were suable, except claims growing out of the late Civil War and commonly known as war claims," and certain rejected claims.

It has jurisdiction also of claims of like character which may be referred to it by the head of any executive department involving controverted questions of fact or law. In all the above-mentioned cases the court, when it finds for the claimant, may enter judgment against the United States, payable out of the Public Treasury.

Under section 3 of the act of February 13, 1925, the Court of Claims may certify to the Supreme Court any definite and distinct questions of law concerning which instructions are desired for the proper disposition of the cause; and also in any case the Supreme Court upon the petition of either party may require by certiorari that the cause be certified to it for review and determination.

It also has jurisdiction of the claims of disbursing officers of the United States for relief from responsibility for losses of Government funds and property by capture or otherwise, without negligence, while in the line of duty.

There is a statute of limitations which prevents parties from bringing actions on their own motion beyond six years after the cause of action accrued, but the departments may refer claims at any time if they were pending therein within the six years.

By the act of March 2, 1919 (40 Stat., 772), known as the Dent Act, the Court of Claims is given jurisdiction of the class of war claims therein specified. In these cases the action of the Secretary of War upon the claim, or his failure to act thereon, is a condition precedent to the right of the claimant to commence an action in the Court of Claims.

The court also has jurisdiction of actions provided for by certain statutes passed during the last war permitting the seizure of property by the Government.

By section 151, Judicial Code (36 Stat. L., 1135), whenever any bill, except for a pension, is pending in either House of Congress providing for the payment of a claim against the United States, legal or equitable, or for a grant, gift, or bounty to any person, the House in which such bill is pending may, for the investigation and determination of facts, refer the same to the Court of Claims, which shall proceed with the same in accordance with such rules as it may adopt and report to such House the facts in the case and the amount, where the same can be liquidated, including any facts bearing upon the question whether there has been delay or laches in presenting such claim or applying for such grant, gift, or bounty, and any facts bearing upon the question whether the bar of any statute of limitation should be removed or which shall be claimed to excuse the claimant for not having resorted to any established legal remedy, together with such conclusions as shall be sufficient to inform Congress of the nature and character of the demand, either as a claim, legal or equitable, or as a gratuity against the United States, and the amount, if any, legally or equitably due from the United States to the claimant: Provided, however, That if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court upon the facts established that under existing laws or the provisions of this chapter, the subject matter of the bill is such that it has jurisdiction to render judgment or decree thereon, it shall proceed to do so, giving to either party such further opportunity for hearing as in its judgment justice shall require, and it shall report its proceedings therein to the House of Congress by which the same was referred to said court.

Section 5, act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat., 996), provides: "That from and after the passage and approval of this act the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims shall not extend to or include any claim against the United States based upon or growing out of the destruction of any property or damage done to any property by the military or naval forces of the United States during the war for the suppression of the rebellion, nor to any claim for stores and supplies taken by or furnished to or for the use of the military or naval forces of the United States, nor to any claim for the value of any use and occupation of any real estate by the military or naval forces of the United States during said war; nor shall said Court of Claims have jurisdiction of any claim which is now barred by the provisions of any law of the United States."

By act of March 3, 1891, chapter 538 (26 Stat. L., 851, and Supplement to R. S., 2d ed., p. 913), the court is vested with jurisdiction of certain Indian depredation claims.

The act of June 25, 1910, chapter 423 (36 Stat. L., 851–852), "An act to provide additional protection for owners of patents of the United States, and for other purposes," conferred a new jurisdiction.

There are five judges, who sit together in the hearing of cases, the concurrence of three of whom is necessary for the decision of any case.

All claims are prosecuted in the Court of Claims by an action commenced by the filing of a petition and prosecuted in accordance with the rules of the court, copies of which rules can be obtained upon application to the clerk of the court.

The court is located at Washington, D. C., in the old Corcoran Art Building, Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. The term begins on the first Monday in December each year and continues until the Saturday before the first Monday in December. Cases may be commenced and entered at any time, whether the court be in session or not.

ORIGIN AND FORM OF GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia was established under the authority and direction of acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, giving Congress the power—

"To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the Government of the United States; and to exercise like authority over all places purchased, by the consent of the legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings."

The seat of Government of the United States was first definitely named by the following clause in the act entitled "An act providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia," approved June 11, 1878, as follows: "That all territory which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States, for the permanent seat of Government of the United States, shall continue to be designated as the District of Columbia" (20 Stat. 102), although it had been incidentally mentioned as such in several preceding statutes.

It embraces an area of 69.245 square miles, of which 60.01 square miles are land. The river boundary is high-water mark along the Virginia shore of the Potomac River.

The local government of the District of Columbia is a municipal corporation having jurisdiction over the territory which "was ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States for the permanent seat of the Government of the United States." (20 Stat. 102.)

This government is administered by a board of three commissioners having in general equal powers and duties. (20 Stat. 103.)

Two of these commissioners, who must have been actual residents of the District for three years next before their appointment and have during that period claimed residence nowhere else, are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate of the United States for a term of three years each and until their successors are appointed and qualified.

The other commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, and shall not be required to perform any other duty. (Ib.) This commissioner shall be selected from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least 15 years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. (26 Stat. 1113.)

Three officers of the same corps, junior to said commissioner, may be detailed to assist him by the President of the United States. (28 Stat. 246.)

The senior officer of the Corps of Engineers of the Army, who shall for the time being be detailed to act as assistant (and in case of his absence from the District, or disability, the junior officer so detailed), shall, in the event of the absence from the District, or disability, of the commissioner, who shall for the time being be detailed from the Corps of Engineers, perform all the duties imposed by law upon said commissioner. (26 Stat. 1113.)

One of said commissioners shall be chosen president of the board of commissioners at their first meeting and annually and whenever a vacancy shall occur. (20 Stat. 103.)

The commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government and are also ex officio the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia and the Zoning Commission. (37 Stat. 974.)

The expenditures of the District of Columbia are based upon estimates annually prepared by the commissioners and submitted by them to Congress through the Bureau of the Budget. To the extent to which it shall approve of said estimates, Congress shall appropriate a proportion out of the Treasury of the United States. The remainder of the amount of such approved estimates shall be levied and assessed upon the taxable property and privileges in said District other than the property of the United States and of the District of Columbia. (Act approved June 11, 1878; 20 Stat. 104.) At present $9,000,000 is paid out of the Treasury of the United States and the remainder out of the revenues derived from taxation of private property and privileges. "All taxes collected shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and the same, as well as appropriations to be made by Congress as aforesaid, shall be disbursed for the expenses of said District, on itemized vouchers, which shall have been audited and approved by the auditor of the District of Columbia, certified by said commissioners or a majority of them." (Ib. 105.)

Congress has by sundry statutes empowered the commissioners to make building regulations; plumbing regulations; to make and enforce all such reasonable and usual police regulations as they may deem necessary for the protection of lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District, and other regulations of a municipal nature.

RULES GOVERNING PRESS GALLERIES

1. Persons desiring admission to the press galleries of Congress shall make application to the Speaker, as required by Rule XXXV of the House of Representatives, and to the Committee on Rules of the Senate, as required by Rule VI for the regulation of the Senate Wing of the Capitol; and shall state in writing the names of all newspapers or publications or news associations by which they are employed, and what other occupation or employment they may have, if any; and they shall further declare that they are not engaged in the prosecution of claims pending before Congress or the departments, and will not become so engaged while allowed admission to the galleries; that they are not employed in any legislative or executive department of the Government, or by any foreign Government or any representative thereof, and that they are not employed, directly or indirectly, by any stock exchange, board of trade, or other organization, or member thereof, or brokerage house, or broker, engaged in the buying and selling of any security or commodity or by any person or corporation having legislation before Congress, and will not become so engaged while retaining membership in the galleries. Holders of visitor's cards who may be allowed temporary admission to the galleries must conform to the restrictions of this rule.

2. The applications required by the above rule shall be authenticated in a manner that shall be satisfactory to the standing committee of correspondents, who shall see that the occupation of the galleries is confined to bona fide correspondents of reputable standing in their business, who represent daily newspapers or newspaper associations requiring telegraphic service; and it shall be the duty of the standing committee, at their discretion, to report violation of the privileges of the galleries to the Speaker, or to the Senate Committee on Rules, and pending action thereon the offending correspondent may be suspended.

3. Persons engaged in other occupations whose chief attention is not given to newspaper correspondence or to newspaper associations requiring telegraphic service shall not be entitled to admission to the press galleries; and the Press List in the Congressional Directory shall be a list only of persons whose chief attention is given to telegraphic correspondence for daily newspapers or newspaper associations requiring telegraphic service.

4. Members of the families of correspondents are not entitled to the privileges of the galleries.

5. The press galleries shall be under the control of the standing committee of correspondents, subject to the approval and supervision of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Senate Committee on Rules.
