[1] Until within recent years the appointment or election of a President pro tempore was held by the Senate to be for the occasion only, so that more than one appears in several sessions and in others none was chosen. Since Mar. 12, 1890, they have served until "the Senate otherwise ordered."

[2] The Constitution (art. I, sec. 4) provided that "The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year * * * on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day." Pursuant to a resolution of the Continental Congress, the first session of the First Congress convened Mar. 4, 1789. Up to and including May 20, 1820, 18 acts were passed providing for the meeting of Congress on other days in the year. Since that year Congress met regularly on the first Monday in December until 1934, when the twentieth amendment to the Constitution became effective, changing the meeting of Congress to Jan. 3. The first and second sessions of the First Congress were held in New York City; subsequently, including the first session of the Sixth Congress, Philadelphia was the meeting place; since then Congress has convened in Washington.

[3] Elected to count the vote for President and Vice President, which was done Apr. 6, 1789, a quorum of the Senate then appearing for the first time. John Adams, Vice President, appeared Apr. 21, 1789, and took his seat as President of the Senate.

[4] Elected Speaker pro tempore for Apr. 20, 1798, and again for May 28, 1798.

[1] No apportionment was made in 1920.

The following representation was added after the several census apportionments indicated and is included in the above table: First—Tennessee, 1. Second—Ohio, 1. Third—Alabama, 1; Illinois, 1; Indiana, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 7; Mississippi. 1. Fifth—Arkansas, 1; Michigan, 1. Sixth—California, 2; Florida, 1; Iowa, 2; Texas, 2; Wisconsin, 2. Seventh—Massachusetts, 1; Minnesota, 2; Oregon, 1. Eighth—Illinois, 1; Iowa, 1; Kentucky, 1; Minnesota, 1; Nebraska, 1; Nevada, 1; Ohio, 1; Pennsylvania, 1; Rhode Island, 1; Vermont, 1. Ninth—Alabama, 1; Colorado, 1; Florida, 1; Indiana, 1; Louisiana, 1; New Hampshire, 1; New York, 1; Pennsylvania, 3; Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 1. Tenth—Idaho, 1; Montana, 1; North Dakota 1; South Dakota, 2; Washington, 1; Wyoming, 1. Eleventh—Utah, 1. Twelfth—Oklahoma, 5. Thirteenth—Arizona, 1; New Mexico, 1.

NOTE.—The apportionment based on the Sixteenth Census (1940) distributes the 435 seats in the House among the States according to the method of equal proportions. By this method the percent difference between the average number of Representatives per million people in any 2 States is made as small as possible. Also, the percent difference between the average districts, i. e., the average number of persons per Representative, in any 2 States is made as small as possible. By equalizing the representation of all pairs of States, the method gives as nearly equal representation as possible to all States in proportion to their population.

CAPITOL BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

THE CAPITOL

This building is situated on a plateau 88 feet above the level of the Potomac River and covers an area of 153,112 square feet, or approximately 3½ acres. Its length, from north to south, is 751 feet 4 inches; its width, including approaches, is 350 feet; and the geographic position of the head of the Statue of Freedom surmounting the dome is described by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey as latitude 38°53′22.909″ north and longitude 77°00′33.706″ west from Greenwich. Its height above the base line on the east front to the top of the Statue of Freedom is 287 feet 5½ inches. The dome is built of iron, and the aggregate weight of material used in its construction is 8,909,200 pounds.

The Statue of Freedom surmounting the dome is entirely of bronze and weighs 14,985 pounds. It was modeled by Thomas Crawford, father of Francis Marion Crawford, the novelist, in Rome, Italy, and the plaster model shipped to this country. It was cast in bronze at the shops of Clark Mills, on the Bladensburg Road, not far from the city of Washington. The cost of the bronze casting and the expenses in connection therewith were $20,796.82, and, as the sculptor Crawford was paid $3,000 for the plaster model, the entire cost of the statue was $23,796.82. It was erected and placed in its present position December 2, 1863.

SELECTION OF A SITE FOR THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

It may seem strange that, in the selection of the 10 miles square for the territory in which the National Capital should find a home, a locality was selected with but a meager population. It may have been the intent to found a capital which should develop its own particular surroundings instead of attempting to conform with conditions then existing. But the principal reason was the lesson learned from European experiences, where the location of the country's capital in a large city offered an opportunity for the coercion of legislators by the citizens of the capital. From the inception of the Continental Congress, either through necessity or voluntarily, it had moved from Philadelphia to Baltimore, Lancaster, York, Princeton, Annapolis, Trenton, and New York City. Philadelphia seems to have been the favorite location, and it was from this city that the Federal Congress, organized in New York City, took up its abode until its removal to Washington in the year 1800.

The original 10 miles square was formed from territory donated by Virginia and Maryland, and the cornerstone was erected and fixed on April 15, 1791, at Hunters Point, just south of Alexandria, Va. This area remained intact until the year 1846, when the Congress transferred to Virginia the portion furnished by that State.

PLANS FOR THE CAPITOL BUILDING

Following the selection of a site for the Capital, some little time elapsed before advertisements appeared offering a prize of $500, or a medal of the same value, to be awarded for the "most approved plan" for a Capitol Building. Some 14 plans were submitted—some writers claim 16—but of these plans none was wholly satisfactory. In October 1792, Dr. William Thornton, a versatile physician of Tortola, West Indies, requested by letter an opportunity to present a plan as within the terms of the original advertisement. The request was granted and his plan accepted by the commissioners on April 5, 1793.

Affairs seemed to move rapidly in those days, for on September 18, 1793, the cornerstone was laid with Masonic ceremonies in the southeast corner of the north section of the building. Thornton's plan provided for a central section nearly square in area, surmounted by a low dome, this central section to be flanked on the north and south by rectangular buildings, with a length of 126 feet and a width of 120 feet. The northern wing was the first completed, and in this small building the legislative and judicial branches of the Government, as well as the courts of the District of Columbia, were accommodated at the time of the removal of the Government from Philadelphia in the year 1800.

BUILDING OF THE CAPITOL

In the development of the accepted plans of Dr. William Thornton in the erection of the first unit of the building—the previous Supreme Court section—three architects were employed—Stephen H. Hallett, George Hadfield, and James Hoban, the architect of the White House. The erection of the southern section of the Capitol, which is now occupied by Statuary Hall, was under the charge of B. H. Latrobe, and in 1807 the House of Representatives, which had previously met in the former Supreme Court section of the Capitol and in a temporary brick building within the walls of the southern wing, known as the Oven, commenced the occupancy of this new legislative chamber. The north wing was finished in 1800 and the south wing in 1811. A wooden passageway connected the two buildings. This condition existed when the interior of both buildings was burned by the British on August 24, 1814.

The work of reconstruction of the damaged interiors was commenced by B. H. Latrobe, who continued the work of restoration until December 1817, when he resigned, and Charles Bulfinch, a prominent architect of Boston, Mass., continued the work of restoration and the erection of the central portion of the building, commencing in 1818 and continuing until its completion in 1829.

During the period of restoration and completion the Congress met, for its first session after the fire, in Blodget's Hotel at Seventh and E Streets, and soon thereafter in a building erected for that purpose on First Street NE., occupying a portion of the site now occupied by the United States Supreme Court Building. They continued this occupancy until 1819, when the Capitol was again ready for occupancy.

The original Capitol as completed was built of Aquia Creek (Va.) sandstone, procured from quarries owned by the Government. This structure was 352 feet 4 inches in length and 229 feet in depth. The central portion was surmounted by a low dome, and the sandstone interior was unchanged when the new dome was erected in a later period. The cost of this original building, including the grading of the grounds, repairs, etc., up to the year 1827, was $2,433,844.13.

Following the completion of the old Capitol in 1829 and the termination of the services of the architect, Charles Bulfinch, in 1830, such architectural services as were needed were performed by different architects until the year 1851, when the building of the present Senate and House wings was commenced, the plans of Thomas U. Walter having been selected in preference to others submitted. On July 4, 1851, the cornerstone of the extensions was laid in the northeast corner of the House wing. The oration was delivered by Daniel Webster, and his prophetic utterances on that occasion have been quoted many times. In the building of the Senate and House wings the exterior marble came from the quarries of Lee, Mass., and the columns from quarries of Cockeysville, Md.

This work was prosecuted under the architectural direction of Thomas U. Walter from 1851 to 1865 during his tenure as Architect of the Capitol, and thereafter certain uncompleted details were supervised by his successor, Edward Clark, whose term ran from 1865 to 1902. The present House Chamber was occupied for legislative purposes December 16, 1857, and the Senate Chamber January 4, 1859.

The addition of the Senate and House wings made the construction of a new dome necessary for the preservation of architectural symmetry. The dome of the original central building was constructed of wood, covered with copper. This was replaced in 1856 by the present structure of cast iron, completed in 1865. The greatest exterior diameter of the dome is 135 feet 5 inches. The rotunda is 97 feet in diameter, and its height from the floor to where the dome closes in at the base of the lantern is 180 feet 3 inches.

The Capitol has a floor area of 14 acres, and 432 rooms are devoted to office, committee, and storage purposes. There are 16,878 square feet of skylights, 679 windows, and 554 doorways. The dome receives light through 108 windows, and from the Architect's office to the top of the dome there are 365 steps, one for each day of the year.

CAPITOL GROUNDS

The original Capitol grounds were at one time a part of Cern Abby Manor and at an early date occupied by a subtribe of the Algonquin Indians known as the Powhatans, whose council house was then located at the foot of the hill.

These grounds, part of original reservation 2, were acquired under President Washington's proclamations of 1790 and 1797, for use as a site for the United States Capitol Building. These proclamations authorized the appropriation of all of reservation 2 which, in its entirety, included the "Capitol Square and the Mall east of Fifteenth Street West."

Additional ground (squares 687–688) was acquired under appropriations provided by Congress in 1872 and 1873 in order to obtain a better landscape surrounding in keeping with the Senate and House wings which had been added to the building since the acquisition of the original site. The purchase of this additional property completed the acquisition of the area known as the old section of the Capitol Grounds, totaling, in all, 58.8 acres.

In the immediately ensuing years, under a plan developed by Frederick Law Olmsted of New York, the terraces were built on the north, west, and south sides of the building and the entire grounds developed and improved.

During the period 1910–35 the Capitol Grounds were further enlarged and improved by the purchase, annexation, and development of 61.4 additional acres.

Public Law 570, Seventy-ninth Congress, approved July 31, 1946, redefined the boundaries of the Capitol Grounds to include as a part of the Capitol Grounds the areas immediately surrounding the Senate and House Office Buildings and certain border streets and sidewalks, with the result that the area of the Capitol Grounds now totals 131.1 acres.

HOUSE OFFICE BUILDINGS

OLD BUILDING

An increased membership of the Senate and House resulted in a demand for additional rooms for the accommodation of the Senators and Representatives, and on March 3, 1903, the Congress authorized the erection of a fireproof office building for the use of the House Members as office and committee rooms. The first brick was laid July 5, 1905, in square No. 690, and formal exercises were held at the laying of the cornerstone on April 14, 1906, in which President Theodore Roosevelt participated. The building was completed and occupied January 10, 1908. A subsequent change in the basis of congressional representation made necessary the building of an additional story. The total cost of the building, including site, furnishings, equipment, and the subway connecting the House Office Building with the United States Capitol, amounted to $4,860,155. This office building contains 690 rooms, and was considered at the time of its completion fully equipped for all the needs of a modern building for office purposes.

NEW BUILDING

Under legislation contained in authorization act of January 10, 1929, and in the urgent deficiency bill of March 4, 1929, provisions were made for an additional House Office Building, to be located on the west side of New Jersey Avenue (opposite the first House Office Building).

The cornerstone was laid June 24, 1932, and the building was completed and ready for beneficial occupancy April 20, 1933. It contains 251 two-room suites, 16 committee rooms, each suite and committee room being provided with a storeroom. Eight floors are occupied by Members; the basement and sub-basement by shops and mechanics needed for the proper maintenance of the building. The cost of this building, including site, furnishings, and equipment, was $7,805,705.

SENATE OFFICE BUILDING

The demand for a new building to be used for offices was greater for the Representatives, on account of the large number forming the membership of that body, and because the Members of the Senate were supplied with additional office space by the purchase of the Maltby Building, located on the northwest corner of B Street and New Jersey Avenue NW. However, the acquisition of this building supplied but a temporary purpose, and its condemnation as an unsafe structure created on the part of the Senators a desire for safer and more commodious quarters. Accordingly, under authorization of act of April 28, 1904, square 686, on the northeast corner of Delaware Avenue and B Street NE., was purchased as a site for the Senate Office Building, and the plans for the House Office Building were adapted for the Senate Office Building, the only change being the omission of the fourth side of the building fronting on First Street NE., this being planned for but not completed. The cornerstone of this building was laid without special exercises on July 31, 1906, and the building was occupied March 5, 1909. In June 1933 the building was completed by the erection of the First Street wing, construction of which was commenced in 1931, together with alterations to the C Street facade, and construction of terraces, balustrades, and approaches. The cost of the completed building, including site, furnishings, equipment, and the subway connecting the Senate Office Building with the United States Capitol, was $8,390,892.

CAPITOL POWER PLANT

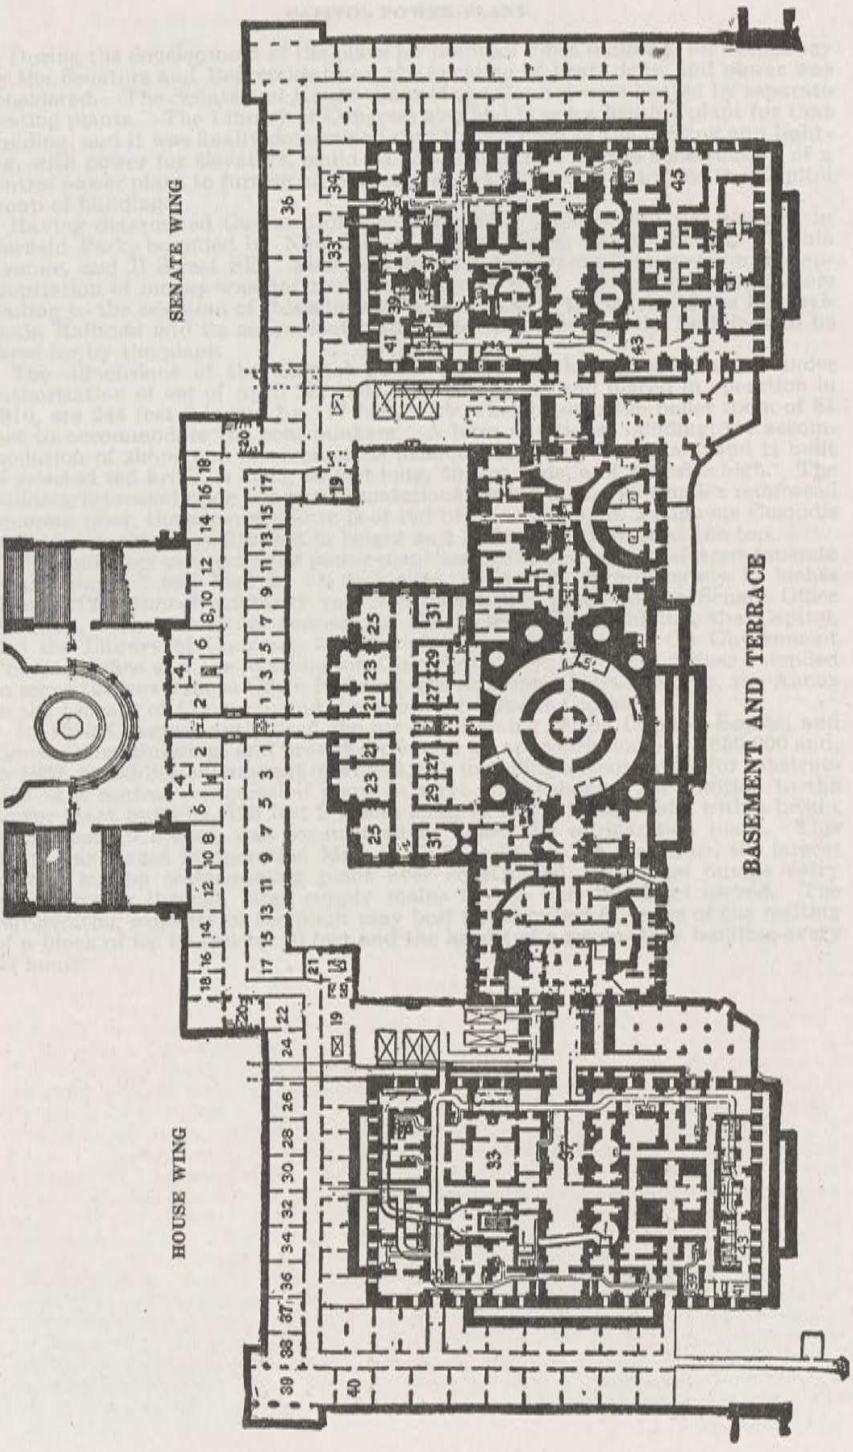

During the development of the plans for fireproof office buildings for occupancy by the Senators and Representatives, the question of heat, light, and power was considered. The Senate and House wings of the Capitol were heated by separate heating plants. The Library of Congress also had in use a heating plant for that building, and it was finally determined that the solution of the heating and lighting, with power for elevators, could be adequately met by the construction of a central power plant to furnish all heat and power, as well as light, for the Capitol group of buildings.

Having determined the need of a central power plant, a site was selected in Garfield Park, bounded by New Jersey Avenue, South Capitol Street, Virginia Avenue, and B Street SE. This park being a Government reservation, an appropriation of money was not required to secure title. The determining factors leading to the selection of this site were its nearness to the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad and its convenient distance to the river and the buildings to be cared for by the plant.

The dimensions of the Capitol power plant, which was constructed under authorization of act of April 28, 1904, and completed and placed in operation in 1910, are 244 feet 8 inches by 117 feet, with a height over the boiler room of 81 feet to accommodate the coal bunkers. A later additional building, for accommodation of shops and storerooms, is located near the power plant and is built of selected red brick, it being 90 feet long, 50 feet wide, and 2 stories high. The building is located upon concrete foundations resting upon 790 simplex reinforced concrete piles; the superstructure is of red brick. There are 2 Alphons Custodis radial brick chimneys 212 feet in height and 11 feet in diameter at the top.

The buildings served by the power plant are connected by a reinforced-concrete steam tunnel 7 feet high by 4½ feet wide, with walls approximately 12 inches thick. This tunnel originally ran from the power plant to the Senate Office Building, with connecting tunnels for the House Office Building, the Capitol, and the Library of Congress, and has since been extended to the Government Printing Office and the Washington City Post Office, with steam lines extended to serve the new House Office Building, the Supreme Court Building, the Annex to the Library of Congress, and the relocated Botanic Garden.

In 1935 Congress authorized the air conditioning of the Capitol, Senate, and House Office Buildings and provided therefor an appropriation of $2,550,000 and, in 1937, an additional amount of $1,672,000, including authorization for construction of a central refrigeration plant to serve the systems. An addition to the power plant building, 123 feet 2 inches long, 79 feet 6 inches wide, with a height of 37 feet 10 inches, was constructed to house the refrigeration plant. This plant was placed in operation May 16, 1938, and was, at that time, the largest central station water-cooling plant ever constructed. Its huge pumps carry chilled water through large supply mains to the four buildings served. The refrigerating capacity of the plant may best be described in terms of the melting of a block of ice 50 feet by 50 feet and the height of a seven-story building every 24 hours.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

ORIGIN AND FORM OF GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia was established under the authority and direction of acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States giving Congress the power—

"To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful buildings;—"

The States of Maryland and Virginia made cessions contemplated by this clause in the years 1788 and 1789, respectively. From the cessions tendered by the two States was selected the territory for the permanent seat of the General Government. This territory was 10 miles square, lying on either side of the Potomac River at the head of navigation. Later, 1846, Congress retroceded to Virginia that portion ceded by it. The Maryland, or retained, portion is approximately 70 square miles.

The seat of government of the United States was first definitely named by the clause in the act entitled "An act providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia," approved June 11, 1878, as follows: "That all territory which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States, for the permanent seat of government of the United States, shall continue to be designated as the District of Columbia" (20 Stat. 102), although it had been incidentally mentioned as such in several preceding statutes.

The land within the ceded territory was owned by a number of people. In Georgetown, President Washington negotiated with the proprietors or landowners of that portion of the ceded territory selected as the site of the city of Washington, which comprised about 10 percent of the area of the present District of Columbia. On the second day, March 30, 1791, he concluded an agreement which was put in writing and signed by the proprietors. By it the President was given sole power to lay off streets as he pleased. These proprietors conveyed their holdings to trustees named by the President to hold title to the same during the laying out of the Federal city and then convey as agreed to the United States and the proprietors respectively. Under this agreement the proprietors donated to the United States all of the lands for the streets and one-half of the city lots throughout the entire city. Sites reserved by the United States for the public buildings, parks, and other public purposes were paid for by the United States in Maryland money the equivalent to $66.66 per acre. Such payment, amounting to $36,099, was made out of the proceeds from the sale of some of the lots which these proprietors had donated to the United States. This was the only purchase price paid by the United States for any part of the entire acquisition of 5,128 acres for the purpose of building the Capital City.

The land within the original city of Washington comprised a total of 6,111 acres and was divided to the United States 4,147 acres—3.606 acres for streets and 541 acres for public purposes. The remaining 1,964 acres was divided into squares and the squares into lots. The whole number of lots was 20,272—10,136 to the United States and the same number to the proprietors.

Thomas Jefferson, then Secretary of State, declared the liberality of the proprietors was "noble."

The United States lots were sold from time to time, chiefly before 1800 and up to 1835, and brought $741,024.45 (S. Doc. 247, 64th Cong., 1st sess., p. 23). This was a considerable sum as compared with the average annual income of the Federal Government during the 12 years from 1789 to 1800, it being about 13 percent of that average of about $5,600,000. The lots which still remain the property of the United States after gifts of them to charitable and literary institutions were sold about September 1865 for a moderate sum.

The proceeds from the sales of the Government lots were largely applied to the erection of the original Government buildings and improvements in their immediate neighborhood. The funds for these buildings were supplemented by grants of $120,000 by the State of Virginia and $72,000 by the State of Maryland (H. R. Report 269, 21st Cong., 1st sess., Doc. No. 5, p. 47). Both President Washington and President Jefferson expected the sale of these lots, if properly conserved, would not only provide ample funds for the erection of the public buildings without charge upon the lean Federal Treasury but would leave what Jefferson termed "the residuary interest of the city" which was intended to be used for streets and other city improvements. The failure of the Government to make these expected improvements so retarded the appreciation of values of the lots that the Government's prospective income from this source fell far short of expectations. The landowners who had so generously given their land to the Government as well as those who had been induced to purchase failed to realize the enhancement of value of their lots because of the failure of expected abutting and community improvements. The faith of Mr. Jefferson and the proprietors matched, but their fond hopes were not realized. The original proprietor of the land whereon is the Capitol Building, Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, in 1837 wrote "that the unfortunate proprietors are generally brought to ruin," who "were so wild as to suppose that the donation was so great the Government might pave the streets with ingots of gold or silver."

The city was planned and partly laid out by Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, a French engineer. This work was perfected and completed by Maj. Andrew Ellicott. The building of the city and the erection of the public buildings were in charge of three commissioners selected by the President and subject to his direction.

When the Government establishment was moved in 1800, there existed within the 10 miles square two municipal corporations: the corporation of the city of Alexandria, incorporated by Virginia, and the corporation of the city of Georgetown, incorporated by Maryland.

The act of February 27, 1801, was the first legislation by Congress for the government of the District of Columbia following the removal to the permanent seat of government. While this act failed to set up a complete local government, it declared all of the laws of the States of Maryland and Virginia as then existing to be in force in the parts of the District ceded by the respective States. It created two counties, Washington County being the area outside of the cities of Washington and Georgetown on the Maryland side of the river, and Alexandria County being the area beyond the limits of the city of Alexandria on the Virginia side of the river. It also created the circuit court, the office of marshal of the District, the office of United States attorney for the District, justices of the peace for the two counties, a register of wills, and a judge of the orphans' court (2 Stat. 103).

The first government of the city of Washington consisted of a mayor appointed by the President of the United States and a city council elected by the people of the city. This was in 1802. The act chartering the city of Washington also created the levy courts, consisting originally of the justices of the peace of the respective counties (2 Stat. 115; 2 Stat. 773; 3 Stat. 195; 9 Stat. 230; 12 Stat. 384). The levy courts were given broad administrative powers over the counties of Washington and Alexandria, but had no judicial functions. At a later date the levy court of Washington County was composed of nine members appointed by the President (12 Stat. 799). Thus, there were within the 10 miles square five distinct local administrative units, namely (1) the corporation of Washington, (2) the corporation of Georgetown, (3) the county of Washington, (4) the corporation of Alexandria, and (5) the county of Alexandria. These were reduced to three units in 1846 with the retrocession of Alexandria city and county to the State of Virginia (9 Stat. 35; 9 Stat. 1000). The members of the city councils of the three municipalities were elected as were the mayors of Georgetown and Alexandria. In 1812 the city council was permitted to elect the mayor of Washington and in 1820 and thereafter the mayor was elected by the people (3 Stat. 583). The term of the mayor of Washington was for 2 years. This government continued until 1871.

By an act of Congress of February 21, 1871, the corporation of Washington, the corporation of Georgetown, and the levy court for Washington County were abolished, and the administration consolidated into a so-called territorial form of government. This government consisted of a governor, a board of public works, a board of health, and a legislative assembly. This legislative assembly consisted of a council of 11 members and a house of delegates of 22 members.

The District then also had a Delegate in the House of Representatives of the United States. The Governor, the board of public works, and council were appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The 22 members of the house of delegates and the Delegate in Congress were elected by the people. The District had a Delegate in Congress until March 4, 1875.

This form of government lasted for 3 years, until June 20, 1874, when Congress provided that the District should be governed by three commissioners, appointed by the President. This was known as the temporary form of government and lasted until July 1, 1878, when the present permanent commission government was set up (18 Stat. 116). In the creation of the temporary commission form of government in 1874 and the permanent form in 1878 no provision was made for the franchise, and for the first time in three-quarters of a century no part of the District exercised the right of suffrage. The present form of government was created by act of Congress approved June 11, 1878 (20 Stat. 102).

The District of Columbia has an area of 69.245 square miles, of which 60.1 square miles are land. The river boundary is high-water mark along the Virginia shore of the Potomac River.

The local government of the District of Columbia is a municipal corporation having jurisdiction over the territory which was "ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States for the permanent seat of the Government of the United States" (20 Stat. 102). This government is administered by a board of three Commissioners having general equal powers and duties (20 Stat. 103).

Two of these Commissioners, who must have been actual residents of the District for 5 years next before their appointment and have during that period claimed residence nowhere else, are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate for the term of 3 years each and until their successors are appointed and qualified.

The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army, and shall not be required to perform any other military duty (ib.). This Commissioner shall be selected from the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least 15 years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States (26 Stat. 1113).

Three officers of the same corps, junior to said Commissioner, may be detailed to assist him by the President of the United States (26 Stat. 246). The senior officer of the Corps of Engineers of the Army, who for the time being is detailed to act as assistant (and in case of his absence from the District, or disability, the junior officer so detailed), shall, in event of the absence from the District or disability of the Commissioner, who shall for the time being be detailed from the Corps of Engineers, perform all the duties imposed by law upon said Commissioner (26 Stat. 1113).

One of said Commissioners shall be chosen president of the Board of Commissioners at their first meeting and annually and whenever a vacancy shall occur (20 Stat. 103).

The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government and are also members of the Zoning Commission (37 Stat. 974).

The expenditures of the District of Columbia are based upon estimates prepared annually by the Commissioners and submitted by them to Congress through the Bureau of the Budget. To the extent to which it shall approve of said estimates, Congress shall appropriate a portion out of the Treasury of the United States. The remainder of the amount of such approved estimates shall be levied and assessed upon the taxable property and privileges in said District other than the property of the United States and of the District of Columbia (act approved June 11, 1878; 20 Stat. 104). "All taxes collected shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and the same as well as the appropriations to be made by the Congress as aforesaid shall be disbursed for the expenses of said District, on itemized vouchers, which have been audited and approved by the auditor of the District of Columbia, certified by said Commissioners or a majority of them" (ib. 105). This act also provided that the cost of operation, development, and maintenance of the District of Columbia should be borne jointly by the United States and the District of Columbia upon a 50–50 basis. This ratio was in 1922 changed to a payment of 60 percent from the revenues of the District of Columbia and 40 percent by the United States and this provision was repealed by act of Congress approved May 16, 1938. The act of July 26, 1939, provided for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, and for each fiscal year thereafter, that there was authorized to be appropriated as the annual payment by the United States toward defraying the expenses of the Government of the District of Columbia, the sum of $6,000,000. The remainder of the local expenses are borne by the revenues of the District of Columbia derived from taxation of private property and privileges.

Congress has by sundry statutes empowered the Commissioners to make building regulations; plumbing regulations; to make and enforce all such reasonable and usual police regulations as they may deem necessary for the protection of lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District, and other regulations of a municipal nature.

While the District has a municipal form of government, Congress by various statutory enactments has treated it as a branch of the United States Government by including it in legislation applying to the executive departments, such as the Budget and Accounting Act, the act classifying the salaries of Federal employees, and the act providing for retirement of Federal employees.

All legislation affecting the District of Columbia must be passed by Congress under the provisions of the Constitution. The advice of the Commissioners is usually asked before such legislation is enacted.

OFFICIAL DUTIES

OFFICIAL DUTIES

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL

The Architect of the Capitol, acting as an agent of the Congress, has charge of the structural and mechanical care of the United States Capitol Building, together with arrangements, in cooperation with the proper authorities, for ceremonies and ceremonials held in the building and on the grounds; is responsible for the care, maintenance, and improvement of the Capitol Grounds, the old and newly enlarged areas comprising approximately 131.1 acres, as well as the care of the grounds, walks, and driveways about the buildings in the legislative group; has the structural and mechanical care of the Library of Congress Buildings, United States Supreme Court Building, Courthouse of the District of Columbia, Court of Appeals Building, Court of Claims Buildings, and Columbia Hospital for Women and Lying-In Asylum; is responsible for the operation of the House of Representatives Restaurants.

In addition to these activities, the duties and responsibilities of the Architect include the following:

Under the direction and approval of the House Office Building Commission, the structural, mechanical, and domestic care and maintenance of the House Office Buildings, including the maintenance and operation of the mechanical equipment, and the care, maintenance, and operation of the Capitol power plant, which supplies heat, light, power, and air conditioning refrigeration for the Capitol, Senate and House Office Buildings, heat, light, and power for the Library of Congress Buildings, United States Botanic Garden, United States Supreme Court Building, and the legislative garage, and steam heat for the Government Printing Office and Washington City Post Office.

Subject to the approval of the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration as to matters of general policy, the structural, mechanical, and domestic care and maintenance of the Senate Office Building, including the maintenance and operation of the mechanical equipment.

Subject to the joint action of the Vice President of the United States and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the jurisdiction and control including the care and maintenance of the legislative garage.

Under the direction and supervision of the Joint Committee on the Library, serves as acting director of the United States Botanic Garden.

In addition to these maintenance and repair activities, the Architect of the Capitol is charged with the planning and construction of such buildings as may be committed to his care by Congress from time to time.

Over and above these functions, the Architect of the Capitol serves as a member of the Capitol Police Board, of the Commission for the Enlarging of the Capitol Grounds, and of the District of Columbia Zoning Commission.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE ECONOMIC REPORT

The Joint Committee on the Economic Report was established under the Employment Act of 1946 as the legislative counterpart of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Executive Office of the President. The Employment Act aims to formulate and promote governmental policies which will create and maintain "in a manner calculated to foster and promote free competitive enterprise and the general welfare, conditions under which there will be afforded useful employment opportunities, including self-employment, for those able, willing, and seeking to work, and to promote maximum employment, production, and purchasing power." It is the function of the Joint Committee:

(1) To make a continuing study of matters relating to the Economic Report;

(2) To study means of coordinating programs in order to further the policy of the act; and

(3) As a guide to the several committees of the Congress dealing with legislation relating to the Economic Report, to file a report with the Senate and the House of Representatives containing its findings and recommendations with respect to each of the main recommendations made by the President in the Economic Report, and from time to time to make such other reports and recommendations to the Senate and House of Representatives as it deems advisable.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON INTERNAL REVENUE TAXATION

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation was established in 1926 under section 1203 of the Revenue Act of 1926. This section is codified in chapters 47 and 48 of the Internal Revenue Code.

The duties imposed upon the committee by statute are as follows:

(1) To investigate the operation and effects of the Federal system of internal-revenue taxes.

(2) To investigate the administration of such taxes by the Bureau of Internal Revenue or any executive department, establishment, or agency charged with their administration.

(3) To make such other investigations in respect of such system of taxes as the Joint Committee may deem necessary.

(4) To investigate measures and methods for the simplification of such taxes, particularly the income tax.

(5) To publish from time to time for public examination and analysis proposed measures and methods for the simplification of such taxes; and

(6) To report from time to time to the Committee on Finance and the Committee on Ways and Means and, in its discretion, to the Senate or the House of Representatives, or both, the results of its investigations, together with such recommendations as it may deem advisable.

To the above, section 710 of the Revenue Act of 1928 added the duty of examining refunds in excess of $75,000 of income, war-profits, excess-profits, estate, and gift taxes and of making annual reports thereof to the Congress. A similar provision had theretofore been enacted in the first deficiency act, fiscal year 1927, approved February 28, 1927 (44 Stat. 1254). Section 3777 of the Internal Revenue Code, derived from section 710 of the Revenue Act of 1928, reads as follows:

"SEC. 3777. Reports of refunds and credits in excess of $75,000.

"(a) By Commissioner to Joint Committee.—No refund or credit of any income, war-profits, excess-profits, estate, or gift tax in excess of $75,000 shall be made until after the expiration of 30 days from the date upon which a report giving the name of the person to whom the refund or credit is to be made, the amount of such refund or credit, and a summary of the facts and the decision of the Commissioner is submitted to the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

"(b) By Joint Committee to Congress.—A report to Congress shall be made annually by such committee of such refunds and credits, including the names of all persons and corporations to whom amounts are credited or payments are made, together with the amounts credited or paid to each."

The statute confers upon the Joint Committee certain powers necessary for the performance of its duties; and by development and direction of the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance the staff acts as a fact-finding and advisory agency for these committees.

The committee is composed of 10 members, of whom 5 are members of the Committee on Finance and 5 of the Committee on Ways and Means. The Committee on Finance and the Committee on Ways and Means each elects its membership on the Joint Committee, 3 from the majority and 2 from the minority party. It has been the custom to elect ranking members.

The committee was organized in 1926 and functions with the aid of a permanent staff, with a chief of staff as administrative head. It is the custom of the Joint Committee to elect a chairman and vice chairman annually, alternating these offices between the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means and the chairman of the Committee on Finance.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON PRINTING

The Joint Committee on Printing, consisting of three Members of the Senate and three Members of the House of Representatives, was created by the act of August 3, 1846, and its principal duties are set forth in the Printing Act approved January 12, 1895. That act gave the committee authority "to remedy any neglect or delay in the public printing and binding." This authority was extended by section 11 of the Legislative Appropriation Act for 1920, empowering the committee "to adopt and employ such measure as, in its discretion, may be deemed necessary to remedy any neglect, delay, duplication, or waste in the public printing and binding and the distribution of Government publications."

The act of 1895 provides that the committee "shall have control of the arrangement and style of the Congressional Record, and, while providing that it shall be substantially a verbatim report of proceedings, shall take all needed action for the reduction of unnecessary bulk." The committee is also authorized to provide for the publication of semimonthly and session indexes to the Record and has general authority over the forms and style of congressional printing and binding.

The CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY, memorial addresses on deceased Senators and Members, statute proceedings, and similar publications are compiled and prepared under the direction of the committee. The Superintendent of Documents publishes the index of public documents upon a plan approved by the committee and indexes such single volumes as it shall direct.

The committee is directed by law to establish rules and regulations for the printing of documents and reports in two or more editions. Orders for subsequent editions after 2 years from date of original order must receive its approval. The committee directs whether extra copies of documents and reports shall be bound in paper or cloth, and prescribes the arrangement and binding of documents for depository libraries.

The cost of printing any document or report which cannot be properly charged to any other appropriation may, upon order of the committee, be charged to the congressional appropriation.

The committee may order additional copies printed of any Government publication within a limit of $200 in cost in any one instance.

The act of 1895 also provides that the committee shall exercise the following functions in regard to the purchase of paper for the public printing and binding: Fix upon standards of quality, receive proposals and award contracts therefor, appoint a member of the board of paper inspection, determine differences of opinion as to quality, act upon defaults, and authorize open-market purchases.

The Legislative Appropriation Act for 1925 authorizes the Public Printer to procure under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing in accordance with the act approved January 12, 1895, and furnish on requisition paper and envelopes (not including envelopes printed in the course of manufacture) in common use by two or more departments, establishments, or services of the Government in the District of Columbia.

The Public Printer is required by law to advertise for bids for material, other than paper, under the direction of the committee, and to make a return to it on all such contracts awarded by him. The committee may authorize the Public Printer to make certain open-market purchases of material, and, by resolution, it has required him to obtain its approval on all purchases of machinery and equipment in excess of $1,000 in any one instance.

Maps and illustration plates for Government publications are purchased under the direction of the committee whenever the probable cost exceeds $1,200; or, whenever the exigencies of the public service do not justify advertisement, the committee may authorize immediate contracts for lithographing and engraving.

Printing for the Patent Office is required by law to be done under such regulations and conditions as the committee may prescribe.

Section 11 of the Legislative Appropriation Act for 1920 requires all printing, binding, and blank-book work for the Government to be done at the Government Printing Office, except such classes of work as shall be deemed by the Joint Committee on Printing to be urgent or necessary to have done elsewhere than in the District of Columbia for the exclusive use of any field service outside of said District.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY

The Joint Committee on the Library was established by law; in 1809 the two Houses by concurrent action supplemented the law, and in 1843 recognized it by joint rule. The joint rules having ceased to exist in 1876, the rules of the House recognized the committee in 1880. In 1902 a law increased the membership of the committee to five in each House. Public Law 601 (79th Congress) provided that the Joint Committee of Congress on the Library shall, on and after January 3, 1947, consist of the Chairman and four members of the Committee on Rules and Administration of the Senate and the Chairman and four members of the Committee on House Administration of the House of Representatives.

The statutes confer on the joint committee certain executive functions, such as the acceptance of works of art for the Capitol, the assignment of the same to such place in the Capitol as they may deem suitable, and control of the Botanic Garden, and provide that its powers shall reside in the Senate portion in the recess after the expiration of a Congress.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE

The Comptroller General of the United States is charged by law with the settlement and adjustment, independently of the executive departments, of all claims and demands whatever by the Government of the United States or against it, and all accounts whatever in which the Government of the United States is concerned, either as debtor or creditor, and is vested with all powers and duties previously conferred or imposed by law upon the former Comptroller of the Treasury and the six Auditors of the Treasury Department; also with the duty of keeping the personal ledger accounts of disbursing and collecting officers; and of certifying balances, which are final and conclusive upon the executive branch of the Government. He may provide for payment of accounts or claims adjusted and settled in the General Accounting Office through disbursing officers of the several departments and establishments instead of by warrant. He prescribes the forms, systems, and procedure for administrative appropriation and fund accounting in the several departments and establishments, and for the administrative examination of fiscal officers' accounts and claims, reporting to Congress upon the adequacy and effectiveness of such administrative examination. He appoints and removes attorneys and other employees in the General Accounting Office, they performing such duties as may be assigned to them by him, all official acts performed by them, when specially designated therefor by the Comptroller General, having the same force and effect as though performed by the Comptroller General in person. He makes such rules and regulations as may be necessary for carrying on the work of the General Accounting Office, including those for the admission of attorneys to practice before it, and furnishes, under the seal of said Office, copies of records from books and proceedings thereof, for use as evidence in accordance with sections 882 and 886 of the Revised Statutes.

Upon the application of disbursing officers, the head of any executive department or other independent establishment not under any of the executive departments, or certifying officers, the Comptroller General is required to render his advance decision upon any question involving a payment to be made by them or under them, or pursuant to their certification, which decision when rendered governs in passing upon the account involving the payment inquired about. He reviews, on his own motion, any settled account when in the interest of the United States to do so. He superintends the recovery of all debts finally certified by audited settlements to be due the United States, and the preservation of all accounts, with their vouchers, etc., which have been finally adjusted, and countersigns all warrants authorized by law to be signed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Comptroller General is required to audit the financial transactions of all Government corporations in accordance with commercial corporate practices and under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe. A report of each such audit for each fiscal year ending on June 30 must be made by him to the Congress not later than the following January 15.

It is also the duty of the Comptroller General to investigate at the seat of government or elsewhere all matters relating to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds and to make recommendations to the President, when requested by him, and to Congress concerning legislation necessary to facilitate the prompt and accurate rendition and settlement of accounts, and concerning such other matters as he may deem advisable in regard to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds and economy or efficiency in public expenditures. He makes investigations for Congress as to revenue, appropriations, and expenditures, furnishing assistants from his office to Congress for that purpose, and specially reports to Congress every expenditure or contract made by any department or establishment in any year in violation of law. He also reports to Congress upon the adequacy and effectiveness of departmental inspection of the offices and accounts of fiscal officers, and, in accordance with law, has access to and examines any books, documents, papers, or records, except those pertaining to certain funds for purposes of intercourse or treaty with foreign nations, of all departments and establishments, for the purpose of securing from time to time information regarding the powers, duties, activities, organization, financial transactions, and methods of business of their respective offices. It is also his duty to furnish to the Bureau of the Budget such information relating to expenditures and accounting as it may request from time to time.

Also, it is the duty of the Comptroller General to conduct an expenditure analysis of each agency of the executive branch of the Government, including Government corporations which, in the opinion of the Comptroller General, will enable Congress to determine whether public funds have been economically and efficiently administered and expended, and to submit reports in connection therewith to the Committees on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, to the Appropriations Committees, and to the legislative committees having jurisdiction over legislation relating to the operations of the respective agencies of the two Houses.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Under authority of the Reorganization Act of 1939 and in accordance with the President's Reorganization Plans No. I and No. II, various agencies were transferred to the Executive Office of the President. The Office comprises the following major divisions: The White House Office, Bureau of the Budget, Liaison Office for Personnel Management, the Office for Emergency Management, and the Council of Economic Advisers. Executive Order No. 8248 of September 8, 1939, established the divisions and defined their functions, with the exception of the Council of Economic Advisers which was established by Public Law 304 of the Seventy-ninth Congress.

THE WHITE HOUSE OFFICE

The functions and duties of the White House Office, as defined in Executive Order No. 8248 of September 8, 1939, are as follows:

In general, to serve the President in an intimate capacity in the performance of the many detailed activities incident to his immediate office. To that end, the White House Office shall be composed of the following principal subdivisions, with particular functions and duties as indicated.

(a) The Secretaries to the President.—To facilitate and maintain quick and easy communication with the Congress, the individual Members of the Congress, the heads of executive departments and agencies, the press, the radio, and the general public.

(b) The executive clerk.—To provide for the orderly handling of documents and correspondence within the White House Office, and to organize and supervise all clerical services and procedure relating thereto.

(c) The administrative assistants to the President.—To assist the President in such matters as he may direct, and, at the specific request of the President, to get information and to condense and summarize it for his use. These administrative assistants shall be personal aides to the President and shall have no authority over anyone in any department or agency, including the Executive Office of the President, other than the personnel assigned to their immediate offices. In no event shall the administrative assistants be interposed between the President and the head of any department or agency, or between the President and any one of the divisions in the Executive Office of the President.

LIAISON OFFICE FOR PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT

The Liaison Office for Personnel Management assists the President in the execution of the duties imposed upon him by the Constitution and by legislation with respect to personnel management and in maintaining closer contact with all Federal departments and agencies in their relation to personnel-management policies.

BUREAU OF THE BUDGET

The Bureau of the Budget was created by the Budget and Accounting Act of June 10, 1921. Although established as a staff agency under the immediate direction of the President, the Bureau was physically located in the Treasury Department. In harmony with proposals made as early as 1924 by the Joint Congressional Committee on Reorganization, the Bureau was transferred to the Executive Office of the President under authority granted in the Reorganization Act of 1939. Simultaneously its functions in the fields of general management and executive coordination were strengthened.

The main functions of the Bureau are:

1. To assist the President in the preparation of the Budget and the formulation of the fiscal program of the Government.
2. To supervise and control the administration of the Budget.
3. To conduct research in the development of improved plans of administrative management and to advise the executive departments and agencies of the Government with respect to improved administrative organization and practice.

4. To aid the President to bring about more efficient and economical conduct of Government service.
5. To assist the President by clearing and coordinating departmental advice on proposed legislation and by making recommendations as to Presidential action on legislative enactments.
6. To assist in the consideration and clearance and, where necessary, in the preparation of proposed Executive orders and proclamations.
7. To plan and promote the improvement, development, and coordination of Federal and other statistical services.
8. To keep the President informed of the progress of activities by agencies of the Government with respect to work proposed, work actually initiated, and work completed, together with the relative timing of work between the several agencies of the Government.

In the exercise of its functions, the Bureau is governed not only by the Budget and Accounting Act but also by various statutory authorizations of a special character. These include the so-called Anti-Deficiency Act of 1905 (as amended in 1906) under which the Director of the Bureau determines apportionments of appropriations; the congressional resolution of May 11, 1922, which requires his approval for the printing of periodicals from appropriated funds; the Federal Reports Act of 1942, which directs him to supervise the use of Government report forms and questionnaires; the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1945, as amended by Public Law 390 (79th Cong., 2d sess.) which charges him with the duties of determining for each quarter the personnel requirements of Federal agencies, of ordering the release of excess personnel, and of establishing budgetary reserves where savings are possible; and the Government Corporation Control Act of 1945, which extended his budgetary functions to wholly owned Government corporations.

FEDERAL BOARD OF HOSPITALIZATION

The Federal Board of Hospitalization is an advisory agency to the Bureau of the Budget. It was organized on November 1, 1921. It is the duty of the Board to initiate studies of and analyze and review the hospital, convalescent, and domiciliary activities and programs developed and operated by all agencies of the Federal Government (except the District of Columbia and Territorial governments) for the purpose of:

1. Preventing the overlapping and duplication of services and overbuilding of facilities.
2. Insuring the most efficient and complete utilization of the total services and facilities of the Federal Government by each agency.
3. Determining the need for existing or additional facilities of each agency.
4. Determining the area or locality in which additional facilities should be provided.
5. Determining the extent to which non-Federal facilities may be utilized in the administration of the hospital activities or programs of any Federal agency.
6. Developing a complete over-all program for providing hospitalization for all veterans, including the veterans of World War II.
7. Furnishing recommendations with respect to such matters as the Director of the Bureau of the Budget may refer to the Board.

COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS

The Council of Economic Advisers, created under and responsible for the administration of certain main features of the Employment Act of 1946, assists the President in the preparation of an annual economic report to Congress; studies national economic developments and trends; appraises activities of the Federal Government bearing upon the Nation's economy and the advancement thereof; develops and recommends to the President national economic policies to maintain employment, production, and purchasing power; and furnishes the President with such other studies and reports relating to Federal economic policy and legislation as the President may request.

OFFICE OF GOVERNMENT REPORTS

The Office of Government Reports, established under provisions of Reorganization Plan I of 1939 and Public Law 107 of the 77th Congress and subsequently transferred to the Office of War Information, was reestablished in the Executive Office of the President by Executive Order 9809 of December 12, 1946. The order transferred to it the functions of the Government Information Service of the Bureau of the Budget and the functions of the Media Programming and the Motion Picture Divisions of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. Subsequent to the enactment of Public Law 269 (80th Cong., 1st sess.), approved July 30, 1947, the functions of the Office of Government Reports were restricted to advertising liaison, motion picture liaison, and the operation of the library.

EMERGENCY AGENCIES

OFFICE FOR EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT

The Office for Emergency Management was established by administrative order of May 25, 1940, in accordance with section I (6) of Executive Order No. 8248, which provides that there shall be, "in the event of a national emergency, or threat of a national emergency, such office for emergency management as the President shall determine."

The Office for Emergency Management as such formerly had certain stated functions which were performed under the direction of the Liaison Officer for Emergency Management. This official existed under the terms of the administrative order issued by the President on January 7, 1941, to the effect that "provision may be made in the Office for Emergency Management for liaison facilities * * *." When the President, by letter of November 3, 1943, accepted the resignation of the Liaison Officer for Emergency Management, he appointed no successor; the effect was to terminate the liaison facilities under the optional provisions of administrative order of January 7, 1941.

The Office for Emergency Management is primarily a framework within the confines of the Executive Office of the President, within which framework various civilian war agencies have been established. It has served as a major device for organizing the war program.

PHILIPPINE ALIEN PROPERTY ADMINISTRATION

The Philippine Alien Property Administration was established in the office for Emergency Management by Executive Order 9789 of October 14, 1946, as amended by Executive Order 9818 of January 7, 1947, issued under authority of Trading with the Enemy Act of October 6, 1917, as amended (40 Stat. 411; 50 App. USC 1), the Philippine Property Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 418; 48 USC 1276), approved July 3, 1946, and the First War Powers Act of 1941 (50 App. USC 601).

The purpose of the Philippine Alien Property Administration is to execute the provisions of the Philippine Property Act of 1946, which provides "for the retention by the United States Government or its agencies or instrumentalities of real and personal property within the Philippines now owned or later acquired and for the administration of the Trading with the Enemy Act of October 6, 1917, as amended, in the Philippines, subsequent to independence." Once such property is vested pursuant to the Trading with the Enemy Act, as amended, it shall be transferred to the Republic of the Philippines under specific statutory conditions.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON VOLUNTARY FOREIGN AID

The Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid was established on May 15, 1946, under authority of similar letters from the President to the Secretaries of State and Agriculture to tie together the governmental and private programs in the field of foreign relief and to continue the liaison, advisory, and consultative functions formerly performed by the President's War Relief Control Board.

The Committee exercises advisory functions to guide the public and agencies seeking support of the public in the solicitation and appropriate and productive use of contributions for voluntary foreign aid. In order to facilitate the programs of the agencies, liaison is maintained with the various Government departments and with United Nations organizations such as the International Children's Emergency Fund and the International Refugee Organization.

PHILIPPINE WAR DAMAGE COMMISSION

The Philippine War Damage Commission was created by Public Law 370 (79th Cong., 2d sess.), approved April 30, 1946. The act authorizes the Commission to make compensation for physical loss or destruction of or damage to certain kinds of property, public and private, in the Philippines occurring after December 7, 1941, and before October 1, 1945, as a result of the war. For these purposes, the act authorizes the appropriation of $400,000,000 for private property claims and $120,000,000 for the restoration of public properties and services. The Commission consists of three members appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

WAR ASSETS ADMINISTRATION

The War Assets Administration was established within the Office for Emergency Management by Executive Order 9689, of January 31, 1946, effective March 25, 1946, to administer domestic surplus disposal functions of the War Assets Corporation and the former Surplus Property Administration.

Reorganization Plan 1 of 1947, effective July 1, 1947, provided that the functions of War Assets Administration as established by Executive Order 9689 be transferred to the Surplus Property Administration created by act of September 18, 1945 (59 Stat. 533, ch. 368), the Surplus Property Administration thereafter to be known as War Assets Administration.

WAR CONTRACTS PRICE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

The War Contracts Price Adjustment Board was created by the Renegotiation Act of 1943 (title VII of the Revenue Act of 1943, approved February 25, 1944, sec. 701 (d) (1); 58 Stat. 85, 50 App. USC 1191). The Board has authority over all renegotiations for fiscal years ending after June 30, 1943, and establishes principles, policies, and procedures with respect to such renegotiations. Actual renegotiation proceedings are conducted by the departments named in the Renegotiation Act under delegated authority from the Board. The Board may review determinations of excessive profits made by such departments.

COMBINED CHIEFS OF STAFF—UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

Establishment of the Combined Chiefs of Staff was announced by the War Department on February 6, 1942. The Combined Chiefs of Staff consider and decide questions deriving from the wartime cooperation of Great Britain and the United States.

COMBINED SHIPPING ADJUSTMENT BOARD—UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

Creation of the Combined Shipping Adjustment Board was announced by the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain on January 26, 1942. The wartime function of the Board was to adjust and concert at Government level in one harmonious policy the work of the British Ministry of War Transport and the War Shipping Administration.

The Board, while presently inactive, remains in being principally because of its affiliation with the Combined Military Transportation Committee. The membership of the Board now comprises the United States Maritime Commission and the British Ministry of Transport.

JOINT BRAZIL-UNITED STATES DEFENSE COMMISSION

The Commission, composed of military delegates—Army, Navy, and the Air Forces—of the two countries was established in May 1942 by agreement between the United States and Brazil.

Meetings are held in Washington for the purpose of making plans for the mutual defense of the Western Hemisphere.

JOINT MEXICAN-UNITED STATES DEFENSE COMMISSION

On January 12, 1942, the Governments of Mexico and the United States announced the organization of a mixed defense commission to study the problems relating to the defense of the two countries and to propose measures which should be adopted.

The United States section was officially established by Executive Order 9080 of February 27, 1942.

PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations officially came into being on October 16, 1945, at the first session of the conference held in Quebec, Canada, succeeding the United Nations Interim Commission on Food and Agriculture. Fifty-seven nations now are members.

The preamble to the constitution states as the purposes for which member nations have agreed to further separate and collective action: "Raising levels of nutrition and standards of living of the peoples under their respective jurisdictions, securing improvements in the efficiency of the production and distribution of all food and agricultural products, bettering the condition of rural populations, and thus contributing toward an expanding world economy." As the central agency through which member countries exchange relevant information, FAO promotes and, where appropriate, recommends national and international action in its fields of activity, furnishes such technical assistance as governments may request, including the organizing of such special missions as may be needed, and furthers the rapid exchange of information. The Council of FAO, consisting of representatives of 18 member nations, serves as the governing body of the organization, and meets between sessions of the Annual Conference to keep the world food and agriculture situation under review and recommend any national or intergovernmental action which may appear necessary.

INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR RECONSTRUCTION AND DEVELOPMENT

Representatives of the 44 nations present at the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference held at Bretton Woods, N. H., in July 1944, formulated the Articles of Agreement of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. The Bank came into existence on December 27, 1945, when the Agreement was signed in Washington on behalf of governments with approximately 80 percent of the total subscriptions.

The purposes of the Bank are: (1) to assist in the reconstruction and development of territories of members by facilitating the investment of capital for productive purposes, including the restoration of economies destroyed or disrupted by war, the reconversion of productive facilities to peacetime needs and the encouragement of the development of productive facilities and resources in less developed countries; (2) to promote private foreign investment by means of guaranties or participations in loans and other investments made by private investors; and when private capital is not available on reasonable terms, to supplement private investment by providing, on suitable conditions, finance for productive purposes out of its own capital, funds raised by it and its other resources; (3) to promote the long-range balanced growth of international trade and the maintenance of equilibrium in balances of payments by encouraging international investment for the development of the productive resources of members, thereby assisting in raising productivity, the standard of living and conditions of labor in their territories; (4) to arrange the loans made or guaranteed by it in relation to international loans through other channels so that the more useful and urgent projects, large and small alike, will be dealt with first and (5) to conduct its operations with due regard to the effect of international investment on business conditions in the territories of members and, in the immediate postwar years, to assist in bringing about a smooth transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR ORGANIZATION

The International Labor Organization, created in 1919, is an association of nations, financed by governments and controlled by representatives of labor, management, and government. Formerly an autonomous part of the League of Nations, the ILO is now a specialized agency of the United Nations under an agreement approved by the General Assembly of the United Nations and the International Labor Conference. The United States became a member of the International Labor Organization in 1934. There are 55 member nations.

The ILO seeks by international action to improve labor conditions, raise living standards, and promote economic and social stability.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

The Bretton Woods Agreements Act (Public Law 171, 79th Cong., 1st sess.), approved July 31, 1945, authorized the President to accept membership for the United States in the International Monetary Fund provided for by the Articles of Agreement of the Fund as set forth in the Final Act of the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference dated July 22, 1944. The Fund came into existence on December 27, 1945, when the Articles of Agreement had been signed on behalf of governments having approximately 80 percent of the total quotas. There are now 46 member governments. On December 18, 1946, official par values were established for 33 of the members of the Fund, and on March 1, 1947, operations commenced.

The purposes of the International Monetary Fund, as stated in the Articles of Agreement, are:

1. To promote international monetary cooperation through a permanent institution which provides the machinery for consultation and collaboration on international monetary problems.

2. To facilitate the expansion and balanced growth of international trade, and to contribute thereby to the promotion and maintenance of high levels of employment and real income and to the development of the productive resources of all members as primary objectives of economic policy.

3. To promote exchange stability, to maintain orderly exchange arrangements among members, and to avoid competitive exchange depreciation.

4. To assist in the establishment of a multilateral system of payments in respect of current transactions between members and in the elimination of foreign exchange restrictions which hamper the growth of world trade.

5. To give confidence to members by making the Fund's resources available to them under adequate safeguards, thus providing them with opportunity to correct maladjustments in their balance of payments without resorting to measures destructive of national or international prosperity.

6. In accordance with the above, to shorten the duration and lessen the degree of disequilibrium in the international balances of payments of members.

UNITED NATIONS

The United Nations is an international organization established by the Governments represented at the United Nations Conference on International Organization through the signing of the Charter of the United Nations in San Francisco on June 26, 1945. The purposes of the United Nations set out in the Charter are: to maintain international peace and security; to develop friendly relations among nations; to achieve international cooperation in solving international problems and in promoting respect for human rights; and to be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends. The principal organs of the United Nations are the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the International Court of Justice, and the Secretariat.

UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ADMINISTRATION

The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is an international agency, composed of 48 United Nations, created to help the victims of the war in liberated areas by providing them with food, clothing, and medicine; by aiding them in the care and repatriation of "displaced persons," and by assisting them in the resumption of urgently needed agricultural and industrial production and essential services. UNRRA's operating expenses, about three and a half billion dollars, were contributed to by those nations which had not been invaded by the enemy. All member nations made contributions to the administrative expenses.

By the end of 1947, UNRRA had delivered over 24,300,000 long tons of supplies to Greece, Albania, Austria, Italy, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, the Byelorussian and Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republics, the Dodecanese Islands, Finland, Hungary, Korea, the Philippines, and China. UNRRA has also assisted the military in the care and repatriation of millions of displaced persons.

Missions to aid relief programs in Europe were closed June 30, 1947. Those in China were closed January 31, 1948. During 1947, UNRRA transferred its major health activities to the World Health Organization; its welfare activities and functions to the International Emergency Children's Fund; its technical and advisory services in connection with agricultural rehabilitation to the Food and Agriculture Organization; and its responsibility for the displaced persons to the Preparatory Commission of the International Refugee Organization; and to implement these transfers sums aggregating approximately ten million dollars were conveyed to the appropriate agencies.

UNRRA's closing activities center largely around the final phases of its accounts.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

THE INSTITUTE OF INTER-AMERICAN AFFAIRS

The Institute of Inter-American Affairs, a United States corporation operating under the authority of the Department of State since the termination of the Office of Inter-American Affairs in 1946, was reincorporated for a period of three years by an act of Congress approved by President Truman, August 5, 1947. The new corporation charter merged the Inter-American Educational Foundation, Inc., into the Institute as its Educational Division.

The purposes of the Institute are to further the general welfare of, and to strengthen friendship and understanding among, the peoples of the American republics through collaboration with other governments and governmental agencies of the American republics in planning, initiating, assisting, financing, administering, and executing technical programs and projects, especially in the field of public health, sanitation, agriculture, and education.

The management of the Institute is vested in a Board of Directors. Each member is appointed by the Secretary of State. The Secretary also appoints the Chairman of the Board.

The programs of the Institute's three divisions—Food Supply, Education, and Health and Sanitation—are carried on in participating Latin-American countries under authority of a cooperative agreement signed by representatives of the United States and of the host government. The corporation cooperates in these three fields in 18 of the other American republics.

CARIBBEAN COMMISSION, UNITED STATES SECTION

See duties under "Independent Offices, Agencies, and Establishments" for a description of the purposes and functions of the Caribbean Commission. It should be noted that while the United States Chairman of the Commission reports directly to the President, for reasons of administrative convenience the United States Section operates as an integral unit of the Department of State.

Roosevelt Library.

In the absence of the Secretary, the Under Secretary acts as Secretary of the Treasury. In the absence of the Secretary and the Under Secretary, the senior Assistant Secretary present acts as Secretary, and in the absence of all of these officers, the General Counsel for the Treasury acts as Secretary.

THE UNDER SECRETARY

The Under Secretary exercises general supervision over the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the Bureau of Customs, the Office of the Technical Staff, the Division of Tax Research, and the United States Savings Bonds Division.

The Under Secretary, in the event of a vacancy in the Office of the Fiscal Assistant Secretary, acts as Fiscal Assistant Secretary and performs all duties and functions assigned to that office.

THE ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF THE TREASURY

An Assistant Secretary exercises general supervision over the work of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Bureau of the Mint, United States Coast Guard, Bureau of Federal Supply, Office of Chief Coordinator-Treasury Enforcement Agencies, the Bureau of Narcotics, the United States Secret Service, and the Committee on Practice.

The Fiscal Assistant Secretary exercises supervision over matters relating to the finances, and supervision of the Fiscal Service established in the Treasury effective June 30, 1940, pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. III, and composed of the Bureau of Accounts, Bureau of the Public Debt, Office of the Treasurer of the United States, and the various divisions subject to their jurisdiction. He maintains contacts with the departments, boards, corporations, and other branches of the Government with respect to their financial operations and the coordination of such operations with those of the Treasury, and represents the Secretary in such contacts in a liaison capacity, keeping the Secretary fully informed at all times. He also has supervision of the preparation of periodical estimates of the future cash position of the Treasury for use of the Department in connection with its financing and the preparation of calls for the withdrawal of funds in special depositaries to meet current expenditures; directs the transfer of governmental funds between the Federal Reserve banks when necessary; and directs fiscal agency functions in general, including deposits of gold certificates in the gold certificate fund for credit with the Federal Reserve banks.

THE GENERAL COUNSEL FOR THE TREASURY

The General Counsel is by statute the chief law officer of the Department and is directly responsible to the Secretary for the work of the Legal Division, and performs such duties in respect of the legal activities as may be assigned to him by the Secretary from time to time, or required by law.

The functions of the General Counsel include supervision and coordination of the legal work done by the larger bureaus which have their own legal staffs, such as the Bureaus of Internal Revenue, Customs, Federal Supply, Public Debt, Narcotics, the Office of International Finance, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and United States Coast Guard. In addition, the Office of the General Counsel performs the legal services required in connection with other major bureaus and offices of the Department including the Secretary and his immediate Office, Office of Administrative Services, Office of the Technical Staff, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Bureau of the Mint, United States Secret Service, Bureau of Accounts, Office of the Treasurer of the United States, United States Savings Bonds Division, and the Committee on Practice. The General Counsel also performs the legal services in connection with the settlement of general compromise claims of the United States, the litigation in which the Secretary of the Treasury may be a defendant or have an interest, the awards of the Special Mexican Claims Commission and the American Mexican Claims Commission, and the administration of the Administrative Procedure Act, and the Federal Tort Claims Act.

The Office of the General Counsel includes the Tax Legislative Counsel which advises the Secretary on all technical and legal aspects of tax policy and legislation and represents the Department before the committees of Congress with respect to the tax legislation considered by them, assists in the consideration of Treasury regulations and rulings dealing with the interpretation of internal-revenue laws, prepares departmental reports on internal-revenue bills, gives assistance in drafting tax legislation and handles departmental correspondence on such legislation.

The General Counsel is also responsible for all other legislation of interest to the Treasury Department, and prepares departmental reports on legislation affecting the Department, assists in drafting legislation for the improvement of the administration of the Department and handles correspondence on all legislative matters.

The General Counsel is charged with the functions of the Secretary of the Treasury under the Contract Settlement Act.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO THE SECRETARY

The Administrative Assistant to the Secretary exercises supervision over all of the Department's matters of administration, including budgetary and personnel matters, and supervision of the Budget Officer, the Office of Administrative Services, and the Division of Personnel.

BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has general supervision of the assessment and collection of all internal-revenue taxes and other miscellaneous taxing acts of Congress; the enforcement of internal-revenue laws; and the preparation and distribution of instructions, regulations, forms, blanks, stamps, etc. An annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury covering the activities of this service is made by the Commissioner.

For the purpose of efficient and effective administration of the internal-revenue laws the duties of the Bureau are assigned to various units, the major ones being: Commissioner and Miscellaneous Unit, Income Tax Unit, Miscellaneous Tax Unit, Accounts and Collections Unit, Alcohol Tax Unit, and the Employment Tax Unit.

The Commissioner and Miscellaneous Unit includes the immediate Office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the Assistant Commissioners, the Personnel Division, the Administrative Division, the Office of the Special Deputy Commissioner, the Technical Staff, the Intelligence Unit, Training Division, Public Relations Division, and Statistical Division.

The Income Tax Unit is the agency of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for administering the Federal income and profits tax provisions of the revenue laws. Its duties are to prepare regulations for the administration of such provisions; to receive, audit, and verify the returns covering such taxes; and to review and dispose of claims for refund.

The Miscellaneous Tax Unit is charged with the administration of all internal-revenue tax laws except income and profits taxes, employment taxes, and alcohol taxes, and is also responsible for adjusting and closing cases involving repealed miscellaneous internal-revenue taxes. This unit is also charged with the administration of taxes imposed under the Silver Purchase Act of June 19, 1934, the Sugar Act of 1937, approved September 1, 1937, the Marihuana Tax Act of 1937, approved August 2, 1937, the National Firearms Act, approved June 26, 1934, the Federal Firearms Act, approved June 30, 1938, and the tax imposed on hydraulic mining under the act of March 1, 1893, as amended June 19, 1934.

The Accounts and Collections Unit is charged with the administration of matters having to do with the organization and management of the offices of collectors of internal revenue, including their field forces; and with the administrative audit of revenue and disbursing accounts in the Internal Revenue Bureau and Service. It also issues stamps to collectors of internal revenue.

The Employment Tax Unit is charged with the administration of the employment taxes imposed under chapter 9 of the Internal Revenue Code; the taxes under subchapter A, Federal Insurance Contributions Act, being with respect to employment by other than carriers, subchapter B with respect to employment by carriers, and subchapter C, Employment Tax Act, with respect to tax on employers of eight or more.

The Alcohol Tax Unit is charged with the administration of the laws relating to the manufacture, warehousing, and distribution of spirituous liquors, wines, fermented liquors, and industrial alcohol; the determination, assertion, and assessment of taxes and penalties on liquors; the inquiry and investigation relative to the filing of returns for occupational and commodity taxes; the regulation of the manufacture and use of liquor bottles and the chemical analysis of liquors and numerous other products to determine their taxable status. It administers the provisions of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act relating to the regulation of interstate and foreign commerce in distilled spirits, wines, and malt beverages, and the labeling and advertising thereof. It is also charged with the investigation, detection, and prevention of willful and fraudulent violations of internal-revenue laws relating to liquors.

The Excess Profits Tax Council is charged with responsibility for the settlement of cases pending in the Internal Revenue Bureau under the provisions of section 722 of the Internal Revenue Code (Excess Profits Tax Relief).

There are four main divisions of the Field Service, as follows: The Collection Service, the Field Audit Service, the Supervisory Field Service of Alcohol Tax Unit, and the Field Divisions of the Technical Staff.

In addition to the four aforementioned major field activities, there are the following field forces, whose activities are supervised from Washington: Intelligence Agents, Supervisors of Accounts and Collections, Miscellaneous Tax Special Squads, and Field Inspection Service.

CUSTOMS SERVICE

During Colonial days each Colony, and under the Articles of Confederation each State, administered its own customs service and fixed the rates of duty. The Federal Customs Service was created under the Constitution by the fifth act of the First Congress, approved July 31, 1789. The act of August 24, 1912, authorized the President to reorganize the Customs Service, abolish ports, and abolish or consolidate districts, and under this authority the present form of field organization was effected by the President's message to Congress of March 3, 1913. The act of August 1, 1914, authorizes the President to rearrange the several customs collection districts, abolish ports of entry, and establish new ports as may appear necessary from time to time, with a limitation that neither the total number of districts nor the total number of ports shall exceed the number which existed on the date of the passage of that act.

The reorganization act approved March 3, 1927, authorized the creation of a Bureau of Customs under a Commissioner of Customs. Under the authority of that act, the Secretary of the Treasury has conferred upon the Commissioner of Customs, subject to the general supervision and direction of the Secretary, the powers and duties relating to the importation and entry of merchandise into, or the exportation of merchandise from, the United States vested in or imposed upon the Secretary of the Treasury by the Tariff Act of 1930 or any other law, with the exception that certain classes of regulations and decisions shall be approved by the Secretary. Under this delegation of authority from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Commissioner of Customs has general authority for the administration of the Customs Service and the conduct of customs business, prescribing customs practice and procedure, and the supervision of the assessment and collection of customs duties, certain taxes, and miscellaneous receipts.

The office of the Commissioner of Customs directs and controls the functioning of the Customs Service throughout (1) the 45 customs collection districts, into which the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico have been divided, with a collector of customs in charge of each; (2) the 7 comptroller districts to which the 45 customs collection districts have been allocated, with a comptroller of customs in charge of each; (3) the 12 active customs agency districts—9 in the United States and 3 in foreign countries; (4) 1 border patrol district established on the Mexican border; and (5) 9 customs laboratory districts.

The principal functions of the Customs Service are to enter and clear vessels; supervise the discharge of cargo; ascertain the quantities of imported merchandise, appraise and classify such merchandise, and assess and collect the duties thereon; control the customs warehousing of imported merchandise; enforce customs and other laws by patrolling the international borders and inspecting international traffic by vessel, highway, railway, and air; review protests against assessments of duties; determine and certify for payment the amount of drawback due upon the exportation of articles manufactured or produced from duty-paid or tax-paid imports; prevent the smuggling of contraband merchandise and the release of prohibited articles; prevent and detect undervaluations and frauds on the customs revenue; apprehend violators of the customs laws; enforce the antidumping act, and perform certain duties under the Foreign Trade Zones Act.

The Bureau of Customs administers the navigation laws and related laws pertaining to the registry, enrollment, and licensing of vessels, including the issuance of commissions to yachts and the assignment of signal letters; the measurement of vessels; the collection of tonnage duties and tolls; the entry and clearance of aircraft; the operation of vessels in the coasting and fishing trades and limitation of the use of foreign vessels in waters under the jurisdiction of the United States; the recording of sales, conveyances, and mortgages of vessels; and the protection of steerage passengers; and the laws governing the remission and mitigation of fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred under laws governing the foregoing matters.

The Customs Service also cooperates with other services in the Treasury Department and other Executive departments and agencies of the Government in the collection of taxes, fees, and other charges, and in the enforcement of preventive, sanitary, and other laws under their respective administrations relating principally to persons and articles coming into this country and in some cases to articles sent out of the country.

OFFICE OF THE TECHNICAL STAFF

The Office of the Technical Staff in the Office of the Secretary of the Treasury has the responsibility of providing technical assistance for the Secretary, the Under Secretary and other Treasury officials on matters relating to Treasury financing, public debt management, and other Treasury matters.

DIVISION OF TAX RESEARCH

The Division of Tax Research serves in a technical capacity, assisting both the Secretary of the Treasury and the congressional committees dealing with taxation by assembling the facts and preparing the analyses (other than legal) needed to formulate tax policy. On request, it provides information on various tax matters for the use of the President, the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee, the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, and officials of the Treasury Department and other Federal agencies. It answers inquiries and analyzes suggestions on taxation submitted by the public. It appraises the operations and results of Federal tax legislation to determine whether congressional objectives are being accomplished and to advise of defects or inadequacies. The Division is also charged with general responsibility with respect to the assembly and publication of statistics pertaining to Federal taxation.

To carry out its functions, the Division is required to make basic surveys of the tax problems of the Federal Government, to devise alternative methods of meeting revenue requirements, and to develop methods of adjusting the tax system to changing economic conditions. The tax system as a whole is analyzed with a view to obtaining revenue yields large enough to meet prospective revenue requirements and to making adjustments in a manner which will be fair to taxpayers and will avoid undesirable economic effects. Individual taxes are studied (1) to determine their effects on the particular groups of taxpayers involved, (2) to avoid inequity among taxpayers within a given group, (3) to ascertain and develop methods of meeting the administrative and compliance problems of the tax, and (4) to devise ways of integrating the particular tax with the tax system as a whole. These studies require economic analyses of the effects of each tax; technical analyses of the more complicated problems inherent in various tax measures; and statistical analyses of the distribution of the burden of specific taxes, of the total Federal tax load, and of the combined Federal, State, and local burden.

UNITED STATES SAVINGS BONDS DIVISION

This Division is charged with the promotional and sales activities relating to United States Savings bonds and savings stamps.

COAST GUARD

The United States Coast Guard, pursuant to the Act of January 28, 1915, as amended, is a military service and at all times constitutes a branch of the land and naval forces of the United States, operating under the Treasury Department in time of peace and as part of the Navy in time of war, or whenever the President shall so direct. It represents, in its historical development from 1790, an amalgamation into one united service of the activities of the old Revenue Cutter Service, the Life-Saving Service, the Lighthouse Service, and the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation. Its normal peacetime functions as the Federal maritime police embrace, in general terms, maritime law enforcement; saving and protecting life and property; providing navigational aids to maritime commerce and to air commerce over the ocean; promoting the efficiency and safety of the American merchant marine; and readiness for military operations.

More specifically the duties of the Coast Guard are as follows:

(a) The prevention, detection, and suppression of violations of the laws of the United States on the high seas and navigable waters of the United States, its Territories, and possessions; protection of the customs revenue; enforcement of navigation laws, including promulgation and enforcement of rules for lights, signals, speed, steering, sailing, passing, anchorage, movement, and towlines of vessels, and lights and signals on bridges; enforcement of vessel-manning requirements including citizenship requirements, and requirements for the mustering and drilling of crews; enforcement of neutrality laws and regulations; the enforcement of the rules and regulations governing the anchorage and movements of vessels; promulgation of regulations governing the transportation of explosives and other dangerous cargoes aboard vessels; the enforcement of the Oil Pollution Act; the maintenance of sea patrols, and the enforcement of law, pursuant to international conventions to which the United States is a party, such as the patrol in the waters frequented by the seal and the sea otter, a patrol for the preservation of the halibut fisheries of Northern Pacific Ocean and Bering Sea, and the enforcement of the provisions of the act giving effect to the convention for the regulation of whaling.

(b) The affording of aid to distressed persons and vessels on the high seas and waters over which the United States has jurisdiction; the saving of life and property from shipwreck; the operation of a system for discharging the function of search and rescue on land, sea, and in the air; the establishment, operation, and maintenance of aids to navigation; the enforcement of the regulations to promote the safety of life on navigable waters during regattas and marine parades; patrolling the North Atlantic steamship lanes against the iceberg peril, and conducting studies of ice conditions in such area; extending medical and surgical aid to the crews of American vessels engaged in deep-sea fisheries; rescuing and safeguarding life and property and distributing food and clothing to marooned people during floodtimes on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers and their tributaries; destruction of derelicts; the collection of statistics and investigation of marine disasters; approval of plans for the construction, repair, and alteration of vessels; approval of materials, equipment, and appliances; inspection of vessels and their equipment and appliances; issuance of certificates of inspection and of permits indicating the approval of vessels for operations which may be hazardous to life and property; administration of load-line requirements; numbering of undocumented vessels; licensing and certificating of officers, pilots, and seamen; suspension and revocation of licenses and certificates; shipment, discharge, protection, and welfare of merchant seamen; licensing of motorboat operators; administration of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, a voluntary organization of owners of motorboats, yachts, aircraft, and radio stations.

To assist the Commandant, who is charged by law with the administration of the Coast Guard, there are established at Headquarters: a Planning and Control Staff; a Merchant Marine Council; Offices of Operations, Merchant Marine Safety, Engineering, Personnel, and Finance and Supply; and Legal, Headquarters Administration, Intelligence and Law Enforcement, Inspection, and Public Information Divisions.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY

The most important functions of the Comptroller of the Currency are those relating to the organization of new national banks; the general supervision over the national banks in operation; the administration, through receivers, of national banks which have failed.

Reports of condition of national banks are required to be made to the Comptroller by the banks not less than three times a year upon a date fixed by the Comptroller. Under the direction of the Comptroller, national-bank examiners make regular examinations of the affairs of the national banks, showing their condition with reference to solvency and observance of the provisions of the National Bank Act. In case of deliberate violation, suit may be brought in the name of the Comptroller against any such bank for the forfeiture of its charter. If it appears to the Comptroller that any national bank is in an insolvent condition he is empowered to appoint a receiver.

The Comptroller of the Currency is an ex officio member of the Board of Directors of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and sits regularly with the Board.

The Comptroller of the Currency is required by law to report directly to Congress annually and to recommend to Congress amendments to the national banking laws.

BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING

This Bureau designs, engraves, and prints for the Federal Government, Federal Reserve Board, and government-owned corporations, all currency, bonds, notes, certificates; checks; revenue, customs, war savings, and postage stamps; military certificates and other forms of engraved documents. It performs a similar function for the insular possessions.

BUREAU OF THE MINT

The Director of the Mint has general supervision of the mints, assay offices, and bullion depositories of the United States; prescribes the rules, subject to approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, for the business transactions of the mints and assay offices, receives daily reports on the operations of the field institutions, directs the coinage, domestic and foreign, to be executed and medals to be made for the armed services and other agencies; reviews the accounts, authorizes expenditures, superintends the annual settlements of the several institutions, and makes special examinations of them when deemed necessary. Appointments, removals, and transfers in the mints, assay offices, and bullion depositories are subject to approval of the Director of the Mint.

The Director of the Mint publishes quarterly an estimate of the value of the standard coins of foreign countries for customhouse use and other public purposes; makes an annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury, covering the operations of the Mint Service for the fiscal year and giving statistics of the production of precious metals in the United States and the world for the calendar year. The Director is responsible for all gold and silver assets of the Government which are in custody of the mint.

BUREAU OF NARCOTICS

The Commissioner of Narcotics, under the direction and supervision of the Secretary of the Treasury, has general supervision of the enforcement of the narcotic and marihuana tax provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, the Opium Poppy Control Act of 1942, and related statutes, including the administration of the permissive features of the Narcotic Drugs Import and Export Act, and cooperates with the Customs Bureau in the enforcement of the prohibitive features of the latter act. The Commissioner also cooperates (1) with the State Department in the discharge of the international obligations of the United States concerning the traffic in narcotic drugs and (2) with the several States in the suppression of the abuse of narcotic drugs in their respective jurisdictions. The Commissioner represents the United States on the United Nations Commission on Narcotic Drugs.

The duties of the Bureau include the investigation and the detection and prevention of violations of the Federal narcotic laws (including the Federal marihuana law and the Opium Poppy Control Act of 1942), the determination, with the cooperation of the Public Health Service, of quantities of crude opium and coca leaves to be imported into the United States for medical and legitimate uses, and the issuance of permits to import the crude narcotic drugs and to export drugs and preparations manufactured therefrom under the law and regulations. An annual report is made to Congress which also serves the purpose of the special report heretofore prepared in the Bureau on behalf of the Government for transmittal through the State Department to the nations signatory to the International Drug Conventions of 1912 and 1931.

UNITED STATES SECRET SERVICE

Organized in 1865, the U. S. Secret Service has as its principal functions:

The protection of the President of the United States, the members of his immediate family, and the person chosen to be President, at all times and under all conditions, and the protection of the White House and grounds by the White House Police.

The suppression of counterfeiting, forging, or alteration of obligations or securities of the United States (including war savings stamps, internal revenue stamps, postage stamps, and hunting stamps, but not postal money orders) or of foreign governments; the counterfeiting of coins; the investigation of the forgery of endorsements on, or the fraudulent negotiation of, United States Treasury checks; and the investigation of the counterfeiting or altering of Government transportation requests.

Investigations pertaining to certain violations of the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, the Silver Purchase Act, section 12–B of the Banking Act of 1935 covered by subsections (s) to (x), inclusive (sec. 264, title 12, U. S. C.), the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, the Federal Land Bank Act, and the Federal Farm Loan Act.

Investigations pertaining to thefts of Government property under control of the Treasury Department, and loss of valuables in shipments by agencies of the United States (Government Losses in Shipment Act).

Personnel investigations as directed by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Protection by the uniformed force of the Treasury Building, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and certain other buildings housing Treasury Department activities; protection of the production, transportation, and storage of money, stamps, securities, and obligations of the United States; protection of all other valuable papers stored in the Treasury Department vaults and buildings.

Investigations within the Treasury Department of its several branches when directed by the Secretary of the Treasury or his representative.

Performance of such other duties as the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Treasury may direct.

BUREAU OF FEDERAL SUPPLY

The Bureau of Federal Supply, formerly the Procurement Division, was created in the Treasury Department by Executive Order No. 6166, dated June 10, 1933, pursuant to the act of March 3, 1933 (47 Stat. 1517).

The principal functions of the Bureau of Federal Supply are the determination of policies and methods of procurement for all Federal establishments; the procurement and distribution of materials, equipment, and services for Federal establishments; the storing, inspection, and conservation of supplies; and the preparation of purchasing standards, such as Federal Specifications, standard forms of contract, and a catalog system.

The Bureau of Federal Supply—

(a) Makes general term contracts for supplies and services for use by all agencies, as announced through the Federal Supply Schedule, and makes definite quantity purchases and contracts for their use. Prescribes standard forms of Government contracts and purchase orders.

(b) Under the Federal Standard Stock Catalog function, develops standard nomenclature covering commodities used by the Government; provides a standard description of commodities for storage and issue of warehoused stock and for cataloging and recording supplies.

(c) Coordinates procedures and activities relating to movement of Government freight by various agencies, negotiates special rates and other particular freight considerations, supplies information on freight rates and routes, and represents the Government before the Interstate Commerce Commission and other regulatory bodies on traffic problems.

(d) Stores commonly used supplies in warehouses in the District of Columbia and the field, and issues them to Federal agencies as requisitioned. Also operates a fuel yard, a furniture repair shop, a typewriter repair shop, and an automotive repair shop, providing in the District of Columbia solid and liquid fuels and major and minor repairs for the Treasury and other agencies.

(e) Makes quantitative and qualitative inspection of equipment and supplies, and examines items offered under proposed contracts, as to compliance with specifications.

(f) Conducts investigations and studies in connection with the establishment or modification of procedures, organization, and policy concerning procurement, warehousing, and distribution of commodities or services for the Government.

(g) Prepares and maintains currently, by amendments and revision as necessary, Federal specifications which describe minimum requirements of commodities important in Government use, with special reference to elements of quality, performance, measurement, or other factors and with due regard to the requirements of consumers with relation to market limitations.

(h) Pursuant to the act of June 7, 1939, and section 22 of the Surplus Property Act of 1944, and the act of July 23, 1946, is responsible for the procurement, transporting, storing, and maintaining of stock piles of raw materials classified as strategic or critical to emergency requirements of the Nation.

(i) Procures various industrial and other commodities and articles to meet requirements of nations subject to benefits of special purchasing programs authorized by Congress. Operates field services of inspection, expediting, and storage incident to such procurement.

(j) Transacts all the Treasury Department printing and binding business with the Government Printing Office and handles all requisitions for nonmonetary requirements of other agencies for supply by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

(k) Processes net renegotiation rebates pursuant to the provisions and procedures of the Renegotiation Act.

(l) Coordinates purchases by the Federal Government of the blind-made products specified by the Committee on Purchases of Blind-Made Products.

(m) Coordinates and controls as to reassignment for Federal use or other disposition property abandoned or seized and forfeited under the Federal Alcohol Administration Act, the Liquor Law Repeal and Enforcement Act of 1935, etc.

(n) Considers requirements of Federal establishments for electric power, telephone, and other utilities' service; negotiates consolidated contracts and provides assistance toward developing most advantageous practices in use of such service.

FISCAL SERVICE

(Formerly Office of Commissioner of Accounts and Deposits)

The Bureau of Accounts is composed of the Office of the Commissioner of Accounts, Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants, Division of Disbursement, Division of Deposits, Division of Financial Reports, Section of Surety Bonds, Division of Investments, and the Liquidation Division. In addition to the general supervisory duties relating to these activities, the Commissioner of Accounts exercises supervision over the deposit of withheld taxes under the Current Tax Payment Act of 1943; final liquidation of affairs of the Office of Central Administrative Services and certain other war agencies as listed below; and liquidation of matters growing out of the control of the American transportation system, which was exercised through the United States Railroad Administration during the period from December 28, 1917, to February 29, 1920.

Under Reorganization Plan III (54 Stat. 1231), the Commissioner of Accounts also exercises general supervision over the installation of or changes in the accounting procedures of the various Treasury bureaus and offices; the accounting and reporting development work under Executive Order No. 8512; and the preparation of the combined statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Government under the act of July 31, 1894.

The Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants was created by the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. 208; U. S. Code, title 5, sec. 255). Prior to that time it was known as the Division of Warrants, Estimates, and Appropriations. Section 1, paragraph (3) of the third plan on Government Reorganization provides that "the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants and its functions are transferred to the Bureau of Accounts." The act of 1894 provides that upon the books of this Division shall be kept all accounts of receipts and expenditures of public money, except postal. The Division, in the name of the Secretary of the Treasury, issues all warrants on the Treasurer of the United States, makes analyses of acts of Congress carrying appropriations and maintains the appropriation accounts on its ledgers relating to all activities of the Government. It issues warrants for placing disbursing funds to the credit of disbursing officers, for the payment by the Treasury of claims settled by the General Accounting Office, and for covering into the Treasury the revenues and receipts of the Government. It also compiles and publishes an annual digest of the appropriations made by Congress.

The Division of Disbursement was created under Executive Order No. 6166 of June 10, 1933, which provided that the function of disbursement of money of the United States exercised by any agency of the Government is transferred to the Treasury Department and consolidated in that Division. The War and Navy Departments, except with respect to departmental salaries and expenses in the District of Columbia, were exempted from Executive Order No. 6166 by Executive Order No. 6728 of May 29, 1934. The function of disbursement of moneys of the United States in the other executive departments and agencies in Washington and in the field has been taken over and consolidated in this Division with the exception of the Postal Service and United States marshals, which were exempted from Executive Order No. 6166 by Reorganization Plan No. IV, dated April 11, 1940. The Division includes the central office in Washington, D. C., 23 regional offices in the several Federal Reserve districts and 21 offices outside the continental limits of the United States for the purpose of performing the disbursing functions for the various departments and agencies.

The Division of Deposits is charged with the administration of all matters pertaining to designation and supervision of Government depositaries and the deposit of Government funds in such depositaries; i. e., the Federal Reserve banks, member bank depositaries, and special depositaries under the Liberty Loan Acts, foreign depositaries, Territorial depositaries, and Federal land banks; matters pertaining to the qualification of Federal savings and loan associations as fiscal agents of the United States under Treasury Circular 568; and matters pertaining to the functions of the Treasury under the Government Losses in Shipment Act.

The Section of Surety Bonds is responsible for analyzing the financial statements of surety companies authorized to transact business with the United States. It determines the underwriting qualifications of surety companies, audits their quarterly financial statements, makes examinations into their financial condition at the home offices wherever necessary, and performs other duties to determine whether the companies observe the requirements of existing law and regulations of the Treasury. The section has custody of all fidelity bonds in favor of the United States, with a few exceptions, and notifies the accounting offices of the receipt and filing of such official bonds. The section examines and approves as to corporate surety all fidelity and surety bonds taken by Treasury officers, except customs bonds filed in the field, and also examines and approves as to corporate surety the fidelity and surety bonds accepted by practically all of the executive departments and establishments in Washington.

The Division of Investments maintains accounts and makes investments for numerous trust and special funds, including the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Fund, the Unemployment Trust Fund, the Railroad Retirement Account, and Civil Service and other employee retirement funds; handles matters relating to investments and securities held in custody of the Treasurer of the United States and the Federal Reserve banks; receives and supervises the disposition of securities donated to various trust funds; handles investments by Government corporations in special obligations, and handles matters involved in foreign and other obligations owned by the United States and held by the Treasury or turned over to the Treasury.

The Division makes payments on awards under the Settlement of War Claims Act of 1928, under the claims agreement of October 25, 1934, between the United States and Turkey; and under the acts of April 10, 1935, and December 18, 1942, covering claims against the Republic of Mexico.

The Division also administers certain special deposit accounts covering offers in compromise, withheld foreign checks, pay roll savings balances, foreign currency, and other activities.

The Office of the Director General of the Railroads was abolished, effective July 1, 1939, pursuant to section 2 (b) of the President's Reorganization Plan No. II and its functions and duties transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury. This work is performed in the Bureau of Accounts.

The Liquidation Division has administrative and technical responsibility for the liquidation of the residual fiscal affairs of certain discontinued war agencies of the Government. This liquidation of the following agencies has been assumed pursuant to Presidential authorization: Central Administrative Services of the Office for Emergency Management (Executive Order 9471 dated August 25, 1944), Office of Civilian Defense (Executive Order 9562 dated June 4, 1945, and letter from the President dated March 26, 1946, transferring liquidation of property accounting functions of the Office of Civilian Defense from the Department of Commerce), War Refugee Board (Executive Order 9614 dated September 14, 1945), Office of Censorship (Executive Order 9631 dated September 28, 1945), Office of War Information, exclusive of those functions transferred to the Department of State and Bureau of the Budget (Executive Order 9608 dated August 31, 1945), and the Committee on Fair Employment Practice (letter of the President dated May 18, 1946). The winding up of the administrative affairs of the foregoing activities involves generally the termination of contracts for rental or services; the liquidation of obligations incurred including payment of vouchers and certification of claims; the collection of moneys owed to the Government; the clearance of post-audit exceptions taken by the General Accounting Office; the disposition of equipment, supplies, and other property; the separation of remaining war agency personnel; and the submission of final reports on liquidation.

This Division also handles the functions with respect to the maintenance of lend-lease accounts and other fiscal records relating to lend-lease and reverse lend-lease matters which functions were transferred from the Department of State to the Treasury Department by Executive Order 9726, dated May 17, 1946. The lend-lease fiscal operations handled by this Division relate to accounting and reporting in respect to appropriations and allocations, and to billing and collecting for supplies and services furnished foreign governments. All other functions relating to the administration of the Lend-Lease Act, 22 U. S. C., Supp., 411–419, remain with the Office of the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner, Department of State.

BUREAU OF THE PUBLIC DEBT

The Bureau of the Public Debt, under the Commissioner of the Public Debt, exercises general supervision over public debt operations. It also procures and supervises the manufacture of distinctive paper required for printing currency and public-debt securities of the United States and determines the requirements and orders the production of securities and paper currency. As agent, the Bureau also conducts transactions in the interest-bearing issues of the Philippine and Puerto Rican Governments, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, the Federal Housing Administration, the Commodity Credit Corporation, and in the consolidated issues of the Federal land banks and Federal home-loan banks. The Bureau organization consists of the Office of the Commissioner, the Division of Loans and Currency, the Office of the Register of the Treasury, the Division of Public Debt Accounts and Audit, the Division of Savings Bonds, and the Division of Paper Custody.

Office of the Commissioner.—When a new issue of public debt securities is to be offered for subscription, the Office of the Commissioner prepares the necessary documents incident to the offering, directs the handling of subscriptions for and allotments of the securities to be issued. General supervision is exercised over the conduct of transactions in all securities after issue, either by the operating divisions of the Bureau, or by Federal Reserve banks, fiscal agents of the United States.

Division of Loans and Currency.—This Division is the issuing branch. It is charged with the receipt and custody of new securities, and their issuance, directly or to the Federal Reserve banks; with the conduct of transactions in the outstanding debt including exchanges, transfers, conversions, maintenance of registered accounts, and the issuing of checks for interest thereon; and with the verification of canceled redeemed United States paper currency, and mutilated work from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Office of the Register of the Treasury.—This office is the retiring branch. It is charged with the receipt of all paid or redeemed or exchanged public-debt securities, including interest coupons, canceled and retired on any account, and from any sources whatever, their audit, verification, and custody. Regional offices of the Register, established to handle the audit of retired savings bonds, are located in New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, and Los Angeles.

Division of Public Debt Accounts and Audit.—This division maintains administrative control accounts over all transactions with which the Bureau of the Public Debt is charged, and related transactions conducted by the Office of the Treasurer of the United States, and by the Federal Reserve banks acting in their capacities as fiscal agents of the United States. Similar accounts are maintained over transactions in distinctive and nondistinctive paper used in printing public debt and other securities, currency, stamps, etc. It also makes administrative examinations and audits of transactions so conducted and the securities involved. It maintains control accounts over reserve stocks of currency, and conducts administrative examinations and physical audits of such stocks, cash balances in the several divisions of the Treasurer's Office, and collateral securities held in trust by the Treasurer.

Division of Paper Custody.—This Division is charged with the receipt, count, custody, and issue of all distinctive paper used for production of securities and currency by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. In connection with the manufacture of distinctive paper, a small field force is maintained at the mills of the contractors.

Division of Savings Bonds.—This Division is charged with the distribution of publicity literature for the United States Savings Bond Division, the maintenance of mailing lists and the conduct of the regular purchase plan program. The division conducts correspondence with the investing public in connection with the regular purchase plan and the registration of savings bonds.

Chicago office.—All transactions in savings bonds after their issue, except the retirement functions performed in the regional offices of the Register of the Treasury, are conducted in the Chicago Office of the Bureau. Branches of the office of the Commissioner, the Division of Loans and Currency, the Office of the Register of the Treasury, the Division of Public Debt Accounts and Audit, and the Division of Savings Bonds in its entirety, comprise the Chicago office.

OFFICE OF THE TREASURER OF THE UNITED STATES

The Office of the Treasurer of the United States was created under the authority contained in the act of September 2, 1789 (1 Stat. 65; 31 U. S. C. 141). Pursuant to the President's Reorganization Plan III, effective June 30, 1940, the Office of the Treasurer of the United States was established as part of the Fiscal Service of the Treasury Department.

The Office of the Treasurer of the United States is essentially a banking facility for the Government, and is required under law to service practically the entire Federal establishment, being particularly charged with the receipt, disbursement, and accounting for public moneys; the custody, issue, and redemption of United States paper currency and coin; the issue and payment of checks; the safekeeping of securities deposited as collateral and otherwise; and the payment of principal and interest on public-debt obligations.

The Bureau organization consists of the Accounting Division, the Cash Division, the Currency Redemption Division, the Division of General Accounts, and the Division of Securities, together with the Treasurer's staff and the Administrative Division.

Accounting Division.—This Division performs five major functions. (1) Maintains the checking accounts of disbursing officers and Government corporations. (2) Examines and proves the daily transcripts of the Treasurer's account received from the various Federal Reserve banks and branches and general depositaries. (3) Examines and pays the checks drawn on the Treasurer which accompany the transcripts (except those punch-card checks which are payable through certain Federal Reserve banks). (4) Returns checks carrying questionable signatures or improper endorsements, or are not acceptable for other reasons. (5) Coordinates the work of Federal Reserve banks in their operations relating to the payment of checks drawn by the Secretary of the Treasury for interest, by regional disbursing officers of the Treasury, and by certain local disbursing officers of the War and Navy Departments, which checks are drawn on the Treasurer of the United States and are restricted to payment through certain designated Federal Reserve banks. In addition to these general functions, this Division has many related functions such as the handling of stop-payments and correspondence and claims relating to lost, stolen, or fraudulently negotiated checks.

Cash Division.—This Division performs for Government accountable officers and for local banks practically all of the major functions of a general banking institution. Its duties comprise the receipt of funds for deposit to the accounts of the various Government agencies, the payment of Treasury checks as well as processing for collection commercial checks, drafts, and money orders, and the receipt and accounting for coin presented for redemption and exchange locally. In addition it handles over-the-counter and mail-order sales of United States savings bonds, saving stamps, and tax notes. All United States paper currency, upon receipt from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, is immediately placed in the reserve vault maintained by this Division, from which it is issued daily for shipment to the various Federal Reserve banks and branches, and to the local banks.

Currency Redemption Division.—This Division performs for the Treasurer the functions of exchange and redemption of United States, Federal Reserve bank, and national bank currency. It also examines and determines the redemption value of all mutilated and burned paper currency presented, and issues checks in payment therefor.

Division of General Accounts.—In order to comply with the provisions of the various laws governing the operations of the Office of the Treasurer and to prepare the statements of account required of his office, it is necessary that the Treasurer maintain accounts governing a wide range of subjects involved in Government accounting. This Division is responsible for the maintenance of these accounts, the principal of which are Depositary Accounts, Transit Accounts, General Treasury Asset and Liability Accounts, Currency Accounts, Public Debt Accounts, and the Treasurer's Account Current.

In addition to the maintenance of these and numerous other accounts, this Division prepares for the Treasurer authorizations and directions covering the shipments of coin between the Treasury offices and Federal Reserve banks and branches to meet the demand for trade requirements, to dispose of surplus stocks of current coin and the accumulation of lightweight and uncurrent coins.

This Division is responsible for the preparation of the Daily Statement of the United States Treasury, the monthly statement of the classified receipts and expenditures of the Government, the monthly statement of the public debt, and the monthly statement of paper currency outstanding.

Division of Securities.—The principal duties of this Division comprise the payment of principal and interest on public-debt obligations of the United States, Government corporations and agencies, the Philippine Islands, and Puerto Rico; the receipt, examination, and verification of all United States securities purchased for the cumulative sinking fund and various other accounts; and to maintain custody of miscellaneous securities and trust funds, including those held to secure postal savings, and public deposits in national banks, together with safekeeping facilities, for individuals and others, of United States savings bonds.

OFFICE OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCE

The Office of International Finance was established July 15, 1947, by Treasury Department Order No. 86, dated July 10, 1947 which abolished the Division of Monetary Research in the Office of the Secretary and transferred its functions, duties, and personnel as well as those of Foreign Funds Control to the new Office.

The Office of International Finance, through the Director, is responsible for advising and assisting the Secretary of the Treasury in the formulation and execution of policies and programs relating to the international financial and monetary field, including in particular the policies and programs arising in connection with:

A. The Bretton Woods Agreements Act, the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Problems, the International Monetary Fund, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and all other matters related to foreign lending, financial, monetary, or exchange activities;

B. The Anglo-American Financial Agreement and other international loans and financial assistance programs of this Government;

C. The administration of Foreign Funds Control pursuant to sections 3 and 5 (b) of the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended and any proclamations, orders, regulations, or rulings that have been or may be issued thereunder;

D. Administration and operation of the United States Exchange Stabilization Fund;

E. Statutes and regulations relating to gold, silver, exchange rates, exchange stabilization operations and agreements, acquisition and disposition of foreign currencies, international capital movements, monetary policy, the position of the dollar in relation to foreign currencies, and international trade and commercial policy, including trade agreements, anti-dumping measures, and countervailing duties;

F. The financial aspects of international treaties, agreements, organizations, or operations in which the United States Government participates;

G. Foreign areas controlled or administered by the United States Government;

H. Obtaining current information concerning the financial position and exchange and other controls of foreign countries and developments in their financial and economic life having a bearing upon the United States financial or monetary policy, and preparing analyses and recommendations based thereon;

I. Conducting negotiations with foreign governments with respect to the foregoing responsibilities.

J. Maintaining such Treasury representatives abroad as may be required to assist in discharging the foregoing responsibilities, and directing and coordinating their activities.

BUDGET OFFICER

The Budget Officer is responsible for the preparation, presentation and justification of estimates of appropriations necessary for accomplishment of the Department's operations. In cooperation with the bureau heads and bureau budget officers, he directs and coordinates the budgetary programs of the Department, representing the Department before the Bureau of the Budget and the Appropriations Committees of both houses of Congress in matters pertaining to appropriation estimates and related subjects. The Departmental Budget Officer also serves as a member of the Treasury Wage Board.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

The Office of Administrative Services was created October 1, 1947, by Treasury Department Order No. 93, dated September 26, 1947. It manages and coordinates the leasing, assignment and utilization of space occupied by Treasury organizations in Washington and the field. The office has direct responsibility for the maintenance and operation of several buildings occupied and controlled by the Treasury in the District of Columbia. The central services with which it is charged include administration of funds for miscellaneous expenses and for several pay rolls, communications services, supply, duplicating, mail and motor messenger, custody of the Treasury seal and certification of official documents. It is also responsible for the Department's surplus property and records administration program, and is the liaison office between the Treasury and the National Archives. The Office of Administrative Services is composed of three divisions: Treasury Space Control, Treasury Buildings, and Office Services.

DIVISION OF PERSONNEL

The Division of Personnel is charged with the over-all direction and supervision of the personnel program of the Department which is administered through delegation to the heads of the bureaus, offices and divisions of authority to act in accordance with policies, practices and procedures established for their guidance.

Advice and assistance is rendered to the personnel officers of these components in matters relating to recruitment and appointments, reductions in force, reassignments of veterans and career employees, employee grievances and discipline, efficiency ratings and appeals, leave and retirement, wage surveys, the development of standards for position-classification and conduct of classification surveys. The health program is administered under the supervision of the Division.

The Division represents the Department in negotiations with the Civil Service Commission and other central agencies on questions concerning personnel administration.

COMMITTEE ON PRACTICE

The Committee on Practice (formerly the Committee on Enrollment and Disbarment) receives and acts upon applications of attorneys and agents for admission to practice before the Treasury Department; receives and acts upon applications for re-enrollment from attorneys and agents who have been disbarred; conducts hearings; makes inquiries; makes recommendations to the Secretary of the Treasury and performs other duties prescribed by Department Circular 230, revised May 29, 1947.

The Committee on Practice receives and acts upon applications of individuals, corporations, associations, and partnerships for customhouse brokers' licenses, issues customhouse brokers' licenses, makes recommendations to the Secretary of the Treasury, and performs other duties as prescribed by Department Circular 559, revised May 1, 1947.

OFFICE OF CONTRACT SETTLEMENT

The Office of Contract Settlement was established by the Contract Settlement Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 649; 41 U. S. C., Sup., 101 et seq.) to provide for uniform and efficient administration in the settlement of claims arising from terminated war contracts. A Contract Settlement Advisory Board was created by and an Appeal Board established pursuant to the act. By Executive Order No. 9809, dated December 12, 1946, there were transferred to the Treasury Department (a) the functions of the Office of Contract Settlement, (b) the Appeal Board, (c) the Contract Settlement Advisory Board, and (d) the functions of these boards, which under the order are to remain vested in the boards, respectively. Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1947, effective June 30, 1947, abolished the Office of Contract Settlement but left the performance of its remaining duties with the Treasury Department. The Contract Settlement Act regulates the settlement of terminated contracts with the Government. Among the subjects dealt with by the act are the principles governing the determination of fair compensation for the termination of contracts, the prompt clearance from contractors' plants of property connected with terminated contracts, the financing of contractors during the period between the termination of their contracts and their final settlement, and defective, informal, and quasi contracts.

NATIONAL MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

The Secretary of Defense is the executive head of the National Military Establishment, and is the principal assistant to the President in all matters relating to the national security. He establishes general policies and programs for the National Military Establishment and for all of the departments and agencies therein; exercises general direction, authority, and control over such departments and agencies; takes appropriate steps to eliminate unnecessary duplication or overlapping in the fields of procurement, supply, transportation, storage, health, and research; supervises and coordinates the preparation of the budget estimates of the departments and agencies comprising the National Military Establishment; formulates and determines the budget estimates for submittal to the Bureau of the Budget; and supervises the budget programs of such departments and agencies under the applicable appropriation acts.

JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF

Public Law 253, dated July 26, 1947, established within the National Military Establishment, the Joint Chiefs of Staff consisting of the Chief of Staff, United States Army; the Chief of Naval Operations; the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force; and the Chief of Staff to the Commander in Chief, if there be one.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff act as the principal military advisers to the President and the Secretary of Defense with specific responsibility for preparing strategic plans and providing for the strategic direction of the military forces; preparing joint logistic plans and assigning to the military services logistic responsibilities in accordance with such plans; establishing unified commands in strategic areas when such unified commands are in the interest of national security; formulating policies for joint training of the military forces; formulating policies for coordinating the education of members of the military forces; reviewing major material and personnel requirements of the military forces, in accordance with strategic and logistic plans; and providing United States representation on the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are assisted by a Joint Staff consisting of an equal number of officers from each of the three armed services, headed by a Director who is an officer junior in grade to all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

WAR COUNCIL

Established by Public Law 253, dated July 26, 1947, the War Council advises the Secretary of Defense on matters of broad policy relating to the armed forces, and considers and reports on such other matters as the Secretary may direct. The Council is composed of the Secretary of Defense as Chairman with the power of decision; the Secretary of the Army; the Secretary of the Navy; the Secretary of the Air Force; the Chief of Staff, United States Army; the Chief of Naval Operations; and the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force.

MUNITIONS BOARD

This Board was originally organized in 1922 for the purpose of coordinating the plans of the Army and Navy for the procurement of munitions and supplies for national defense. On August 18, 1945, the Board was reconstituted by an order approved by the President as Commander in Chief. On July 26, 1947, Public Law 253 established a "Munitions Board" in the National Military Establishment. As now constituted, the Board comprises a civilian chairman, and an Under Secretary or Assistant Secretary from each of the three departments of the National Military Establishment.

The functions of the Board include the coordination of the appropriate activities within the National Military Establishment with regard to industrial matters, including the procurement, production and distribution plans of the departments and agencies comprising the Establishment; planning for the military aspects of industrial mobilization; recommending assignment of procurement responsibilities among the several military services and planning for standardization of specifications and for the greatest practicable allocation of purchase authority of technical equipment and common use items on the basis of single procurement; preparation of estimates of potential production, procurement, and personnel for use in evaluation of the logistic feasibility of strategic operations; determining relative priorities of the various segments of the military procurement programs; supervising such subordinate agencies as are or may be created to consider the subjects falling within the scope of the Board's responsibilities; making recommendations to regroup, combine, or dissolve existing interservice agencies operating in the fields of procurement, production and distribution in such manner as to promote efficiency and economy; maintaining liaison with other departments and agencies for the proper correlation of military requirements with the civilian economy, particularly in regard to the procurement or disposition of strategic and critical material and the maintenance of adequate reserves of such material, and to make recommendations as to policies in connection therewith; assembling and reviewing material and personnel requirements presented by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and those presented by the production, procurement, and distribution agencies assigned to meet military needs, and to make recommendations thereon to the Secretary of Defense.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD

The Research and Development Board was originally established as the Joint Research and Development Board, operating as a joint board of the Army and Navy, under charter of the Secretaries of War and Navy on June 6, 1946. Public Law 253, dated July 26, 1947, established a "Research and Development Board" in the National Military Establishment for the purpose of advising the Secretary of Defense as to the status of scientific research relative to the national security and to assist him in assuring adequate provision for research and development on scientific problems relating to the national security. The Board operates through a full-time Secretariat which gathers scientific information and plans programs, and a series of committees made up of representatives of the three departments of the National Military Establishment and eminent civilian scientists. The committees review and pass upon matters in their fields of special interest, with ultimate advising and recommending authority vested in the Board.

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY

SECRETARY OF THE ARMY

The Secretary of the Army is head of the Department of the Army, and performs such duties as are required of him by law or may be enjoined upon him by the President and the Secretary of Defense.

He is charged with the supervision of all estimates of appropriations for the expenses of the Department of the Army; of all purchases of Army supplies; of all expenditures for the support, transportation, and maintenance of the Army; and of such expenditures of a civil nature as may be placed by Congress under his direction.

He is held responsible for the protection of our seacoast harbors and cities; for the development of improved weapons and matériel; for the proper instruction of all military personnel; for the discipline and morale of the Army.

He is a member of the National Security Council and the War Council, established by the National Security Act of 1947.

He directs the activities of the Corps of Engineers in the improvement of the waterways of the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, including examinations, surveys, and economic studies of harbors and streams for the formulation of improvement projects. He recommends to Congress definite plans for improvement and makes contracts for the execution of the physical works required to make our waterways capable of meeting the needs of constantly expanding inland, coastwise, and foreign commerce.

He is charged with the formulation and execution of plans for flood control on inland rivers, power and irrigation development, and the survey and charting of the Great Lakes.

He is responsible for surveys of international boundary waters, the interoceanic survey (Nicaragua Canal route), and the construction of national monuments and memorials. He is also charged with the establishment of harbor lines, approval of plans for the construction of bridges, and issue of permits for wharves, piers, and other works upon navigable waters; investigation, in cooperation with the Federal Power Commission, of water-power projects; the removal of wrecks from navigable waters; the regulation of the operation of drawbridges, establishment and regulation of anchorage grounds, regulation of the use of navigable waters of the United States, the preservation of the American Falls of Niagara, and the administration of matters pertaining to the participation of the United States in the Niagara Control Board.

He is responsible for the defense, maintenance, care, and operation of the Panama Canal. This responsibility requires that he not only provide for the transit of ships from one ocean to the other but also for their repair, fueling, supplies, and foodstuffs and the care and hospitalization of ships' personnel and passengers. The organization under his charge has supervision over public health, quarantine, and immigration service, customs, post offices, police and fire protection, hydrographic and meteorological observations, steamboat inspections, aids to navigation, construction and maintenance of roads, streets, water supply, and sewers.

He is president of the National Forest Reservation Commission, which is authorized to purchase such forested cut-over or denuded lands within the watersheds of navigable streams as in its judgment may be necessary to the regulation of stream flow or for the production of timber.

He supervises the maintenance and conduct of the United States Military Academy at West Point and is responsible for all matters relating to leases, revocable licenses, and all other privileges upon lands under the control of the Department of the Army.

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF THE ARMY

Acts as assistant to the Secretary of the Army and to him have been delegated general administrative duties relating to the Department of the Army. He acts as chairman of the Combined Civil Affairs Committee; is the Department of the Army representative on the State-Army-Navy-Air Force Coordinating Committee; and is a member of the Secretary of the Army's War Council. He is responsible for the administration and supervision of civil affairs and military government, and supervises coordination with other Government agencies in matters involving politico-military affairs. He has also been delegated the responsibility of supervision over the interest of minority groups within the Army. Acts as Secretary of the Army in the Secretary's absence.

THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE ARMY

Establishes policies for, directs, and supervises the activities of the Department of the Army with respect to procurement, industrial and related matters including industrial mobilization and demobilization and research and development. Represents the Department of the Army in dealing with other departments and agencies of the Government, the Congress, and the public on these matters and coordinates activities concerning them with interdepartmental and other agencies. Exercises policy supervision over matters pertaining to: Procurement of military supplies; acquisition, management, utilization and disposal of military, non-military, and civil properties; Army Exchange System; Army Audit Agency; Army-Navy Explosives Safety Board; civil functions of the Corps of Engineers; claims; labor relations; and operation of disciplinary barracks and custody of military prisoners. Performs such other duties of a military and non-military nature as are delegated to him by the Secretary of the Army. Is the Department of the Army member of the Munitions Board and President of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice. Acts as Secretary of the Army during the absence or disability of both the Secretary and the Under Secretary.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

Aids the Secretary of the Army in directing the administration of the Department. He advises the Secretary on matters of administrative policy, directs administrative organization and procedures, serves as member of the Board of Directors of the Panama Railroad Company, and acts for the Secretary of the Army on all official matters not requiring his personal attention. As chief executive officer, he is responsible for the Department of the Army Civilian Personnel Program and in conjunction with the Director of Civilian Personnel establishes policy and procedures necessary to the adequate functioning of such program. In addition, he is responsible for various economy measures and administrative services within the Headquarters, Department of the Army. He is further responsible for the administration of the Office, Secretary of the Army, including comprehensive management and personnel programs as carried on through the several divisions of the office in direct liaison with all components of the Department.

CHIEF OF STAFF, UNITED STATES ARMY

The Chief of Staff is the principal Army adviser to the President, to the Secretary of Defense, and to the Secretary of the Army on the conduct of war and the principal military adviser and executive to the Secretary of the Army on the military activities of the Department of the Army. The Chief of Staff has command of all components of the Army of the United States and of the operating forces comprising the Army areas. He also commands the Army component of oversea commands, and the related supply and service establishments of the Army, and is responsible to the Secretary of the Army for their use in war and plans and preparations for their readiness for war. The Chief of Staff, under the direction of the Secretary of the Army, is responsible for the coordination and direction of the General and Special Staffs and the Administrative and Technical Services. The Chief of Staff, by virtue of his position, is the senior Army officer on active duty. The present Chief of Staff holds the permanent rank of General of the Army under the provisions of Public Law 333, Seventy-ninth Congress.

DEPUTY CHIEF OF STAFF, UNITED STATES ARMY

The Deputy Chief of Staff assists the Chief of Staff in the discharge of the latter's duties, in his absence performs his functions, and is charged with the establishment of policies and the supervision and approval of budgetary and legislative matters. He also determines questions of organization and administrative procedure for the Department of the Army.

CHIEF OF INFORMATION

The Chief of Information advises the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff, United States Army, on matters of policy relating to public information and Army information and education; legislative matters, except appropriations bills; and provides policy direction for the Public Information Division, the Legislative and Liaison Division, and the Troop Information and Education Division, Special Staff, United States Army.

ARMY COMPTROLLER

The Army Comptroller is the Budget Officer (sec. 214, Budget and Accounting Act of 1921) (42 Stat. 23; 31 U. S. C. 22), Fiscal Director, and Management Engineer for the Department of the Army. As such he formulates, coordinates, and supervises those matters pertaining to budget, fiscal, statistical, and management engineering activities of the Department of the Army. His duties include:

Development of a plan for the business management of the Department of the Army and the presentation of periodic reports thereon to the Chief of Staff.

Preparation of plans and procedures for, and exercise of general supervision and control over, all budgetary matters of the Department of the Army, under policies established by the Chief of Staff.

Preparation of military and civil budget estimates of the Department of the Army (sec. 214, Budget and Accounting Act of 1921).

Development of systems and procedures for utilization throughout the Army of accounting and auditing for purposes of control of operations and costs.

Formulation, coordination, and general supervision of basic fiscal policy for the Department of the Army.

Establishment and supervision of Department of the Army Fiscal policy with respect to international monetary matters and the use of foreign exchange by the Army overseas.

Continuing survey and development of a Department of the Army cost analysis, reporting and control system.

Continuing survey of the effective utilization of manpower in its relationship to appropriations and to economy.

Continuing survey of the Department of the Army's organization, methods, and procedures in the interest of efficiency and economy.

Coordination of the collection, analysis and presentation of statistical data, including progress reports.

SECRETARY, GENERAL STAFF, UNITED STATES ARMY

The Secretary of the General Staff, United States Army, administers the immediate offices of the Chief of Staff and the Deputy Chief of Staff; maintains continuing liaison between the Office, Chief of Staff, and the White House; provides the channel of communication between the Office, Chief of Staff, and the Joint and Combined Chiefs of Staff; reviews Department of Army papers to be submitted to these agencies as well as papers initiated by them and referred to the Chief of Staff; and prepares or supervises the preparation of correspondence to be signed by the Chief of Staff or the Deputy Chief of Staff.

GENERAL STAFF, UNITED STATES ARMY

The General Staff, United States Army, under the direction of the Chief of Staff, is responsible for the development of the Army and insures the existence of a well-balanced and efficient military team. It is specifically charged with the duty of providing such broad basic policies and plans as will enable the Chief, Army Field Forces; commanding generals, army areas and oversea commands; and the heads of Administrative and Technichal Services to prepare and execute detailed programs. There are five divisions in the General Staff, each under the immediate control of a General Staff Director who reports personally to the Chief of Staff. These divisions are:

PERSONNEL AND ADMINISTRATION DIVISION

The Director of Personnel and Administration is the military personnel manager of the Department of the Army. He has the primary General Staff interest in manpower. He is the adviser and assistant to the Chief of Staff on Army administrative matters and on matters relating to manpower as a whole and to military personnel as individuals throughout the Army. He has over-all Department of the Army responsibility for the procurement, allocation, and reallocation of personnel in bulk in accordance with established requirements and priorities, and for the separation of individuals from the military service. The Director, Women's Army Corps, prepares plans and policies and supervises activities which relate to the WAC.

INTELLIGENCE DIVISION

The Director of Intelligence, General Staff, United States Army, is the responsible Department of the Army instrumentality for the collection and evaluation of information and for the dissemination of intelligence pertaining to foreign countries, their war potential and military forces. He is responsible for the procurement of information and intelligence relating to the activities of individuals or agencies potentially or actually dangerous to the preservation of the military establishment within the zone of interior, for executing counterintelligence measures, and for the collection within the zone of interior of foreign positive intelligence. He is responsible for meeting intelligence requirements of continental and oversea commands, and the Administrative and Technical Services. The Director of Intelligence is also responsible for representing the Department of the Army on intelligence and counterintelligence matters with other Departments of the Government and with foreign governments.

ORGANIZATION AND TRAINING DIVISION

The Director of Organization and Training exercises General Staff direction over the organization, mobilization, demobilization, and training of all components of the Army. Except for individual training, he is primarily concerned with matters relating to units as distinguished from the primary interest of the Director of Personnel and Administration in matters relating to individuals.

LOGISTICS DIVISION

The Director of Logistics is the adviser to the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff on all service, supply, and research and development matters, and to the Assistant Secretary of the Army on procurement and related industrial matters. He has General Staff responsibility for logistical planning; service activities; supply control; distribution, storage, and maintenance of supplies; purchasing; production and other industrial matters; disposal of surplus property; initiation, allocation, coordination, and progress of research and development programs; conduct of research and development activities in consonance with user interest; and for the development of Army service, supply, procurement, research and development plans, policies, objectives, and programs in consonance with Army-wide plans, policies, objectives, and programs.

PLANS AND OPERATIONS DIVISION

The Director of Plans and Operations is responsible for the formulation, development, direction, supervision, and coordination of strategic and operational plans, current and future, for the Army. He exercises General Staff supervision and direction of strategic and operational matters relating to overseas and other commands. Without vitiating the primary interest of other General Staff Directors in their respective fields of responsibility, he coordinates all policies and directives and changes thereto, including allocation of resources, affecting strategic, operational, and political matters relating to overseas and other commands. He estimates the current situation to determine military policy, objectives, and major elements of requirements and means. As Senior Army Planner, he supervises and coordinates the war planning activities of the General Staff and furnishes guidance on current and future plans and operations. He develops and keeps current the future and operational plans involving the Army in conjunction with appropriate joint agencies. He reviews and recommends action to the Chief of Staff on joint and combined papers and initiates Department of the Army execution of approved papers of joint and combined agencies, the State-Army-Navy-Air Force Coordinating Committee, the Air Coordinating Committee, and other similar agencies.

SPECIAL STAFF, UNITED STATES ARMY

The Special Staff, United States Army, under the general direction of the Chief of Staff, serves in an advisory capacity to the Chief of Staff and to the Divisions of the General Staff on matters within the assigned fields of interest of the Special Staff. The Special Staff, United States Army, comprises eight organizations:

PUBLIC INFORMATION DIVISION

The Public Information Division coordinates, processes, and releases all Department of the Army announcements of public interest, including photographs and motion pictures, to news-gathering agencies, radio stations and networks, film producers, and other public and private organizations in the field of public information; supervises Department of the Army contacts with these agencies; and assists outside writers by gathering material and arranging interviews with officials within and outside the Department of the Army.

LEGISLATIVE AND LIAISON DIVISION

The Legislative and Liaison Division formulates, coordinates, and accomplishes the Department of the Army legislative program, except appropriations bills; participates in official Department of the Army contacts with the Congress and its individual Members, except in matters pertaining to appropriations; and coordinates contacts of other Department of the Army agencies with the Congress.

TROOP INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION

The Troop Information and Education Division is charged with developing basic plans and policies for information and education activities for military personnel and supervises the execution of the Army information and education program.

NATIONAL GUARD BUREAU

The National Guard Bureau is the agency through which the Department of the Army maintains relations with the National Guard in the 48 States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico, and is charged with the administration of approved Department of the Army policies, other than those relative to training, for the National Guard not in the service of the United States, and the promulgation of Department of the Army directives and regulations applicable to the National Guard, including those relating to training.

OFFICE OF THE EXECUTIVE FOR RESERVE AND ROTC AFFAIRS

The Executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs advises and assists the Chief of Staff in the exercise of his supervision and control of the Organized Reserves and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, including liaison therewith, and in keeping the Secretary of the Army informed on Reserve and ROTC affairs. He is responsible for maintaining close contact, mutual understanding, and effective cooperation between the Department of the Army and the Reserve component and ROTC, and for necessary staff functions involved in this mission.

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

The Inspector General is charged with coordinating inspector general activities throughout the Department of the Army; assisting the Chief of Staff in keeping the Secretary of the Army informed as to the state of the Army; inquiring into and reporting upon matters which affect the efficiency and economy of the Army; making inspections, investigations, surveys, and studies as prescribed by law or regulations, or as directed by the Secretary, Under Secretary, or Assistant Secretaries of the Army, or the Chief of Staff.

HISTORICAL DIVISION

The Historical Division is responsible for preparing plans and policies for and exercising supervision and direction over Department of the Army and Army historical activities other than current reports.

CIVIL AFFAIRS DIVISION

The Chief, Civil Affairs Division, Special Staff, United States Army, formulates policy, prepares plans, and takes action in coordination with other Department of the Army agencies, other agencies of the Government, and international or voluntary relief and welfare agencies on civil affairs/military government matters, including war crimes, and excluding those functions which are the responsibility of the Food Administrator for Occupied Areas in the Office of the Under Secretary of the Army. He insures that the Secretary of the Army, the Under Secretary of the Army, the Chief of Staff, and interested staff divisions are properly advised on civil affairs/military government matters.

ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT

The Adjutant General is responsible for the administrative procedures and operations connected with the procurement, appointment, assignment, promotion, transfer, retirement, separation, casualties, decorations, and disciplinary custody of all military personnel of the Army of the United States, the publication of the orders and instructions of the Department of the Army, the conduct of correspondence with the general public, the Army postal service, Army recruiting, and the presentation and administration of the permanent records of the Department of the Army, and the Army.

JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT

The Judge Advocate General is the chief law officer of the Department of the Army and the chief legal adviser of the Secretary of the Army and the Department of the Army. He is responsible for supervising the system of military justice throughout the Army; for providing legal advice and services throughout the Department of the Army; and for operating the system of appellate review of records of general courts martial provided by article of war 50½.

CORPS OF CHAPLAINS

The Chief of Chaplains directs matters pertaining to moral and religious welfare of military personnel, including the supervision of the Chaplain School.

PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL'S OFFICE

The Provost Marshal General is responsible for the establishment and training of the Corps of Military Police. He supervises the detention, care, feeding, and housing of prisoners of war and operates the Enemy and American Prisoner of War Information Bureaus. He directs the internal security program of the Department of the Army and the training of officers for military government duty.

SPECIAL SERVICES

The Chief, Special Services, is charged with assisting commanders in developing and maintaining the mental and physical stamina of military personnel by formulating and administering policies and procedures for the efficient operation of Army exchanges, by providing facilities and programs for recreation and entertainment during off-duty hours.

TECHNICAL SERVICES

FINANCE DEPARTMENT

The Chief of Finance initiates, prescribes, and supervises all Department of the Army principles, practices, and procedures relating to accounting and auditing, and the receipt and disbursement of appropriated funds. The Office of Dependency Benefits, operated by the Chief of Finance, administers the payment of family allowances and voluntary allotments of pay to dependents of Army personnel on active duty.

CHEMICAL CORPS

The Chief, Chemical Corps, is charged with the investigation, development, manufacture, procurement, and supply to the Army of all smoke and incendiary materials, toxic gases, and gas-defense appliances, together with the training of the Army in offensive and defensive chemical warfare.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT

JOINT BOARDS

The following boards have been created by act of Congress or by joint agreement of the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy. By military order of the President, effective July 1, 1939, the Aeronautical Board, exercises its functions under the direction and supervision of the President as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States.

In addition to these boards, from time to time the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Navy have created other boards and committees as occasions have arisen.

AERONAUTICAL BOARD

The Aeronautical Board will investigate, study, and report upon all questions affecting jointly the development of aviation of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force referred to it by the Secretary of the Army, by the Secretary of the Navy, by the Secretary of the Air Force, by the Chief of Staff of the Army, by the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, by the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Air), or by the Chief, Bureau of Aeronautics. It is also charged with the duty of originating consideration of such subjects when in its judgment it is deemed necessary, and of recommending such action as it considers essential to the establishment of sufficiency and efficiency of cooperation and coordination of effort between the Army, the Navy and the Air Force as to aviation.

ARLINGTON MEMORIAL AMPHITHEATER COMMISSION

The Arlington Memorial Amphitheater Commission was created by act of Congress approved March 4, 1921 (41 Stat. 1440; 24 U. S. C. 291–95).

Through the President of the United States, the Commission reports annually to Congress as to what inscriptions, tablets, busts, or other memorials (if any) shall be erected, and the bodies of what deceased members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps (if any) shall be entombed during the next ensuing year within the Arlington Memorial Amphitheater in Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia. No such memorial construction or entombment may be made without special authorization by an act of Congress. In making its recommendations to Congress regarding memorials, the Commission is required by law to consult with the Commission of Fine Arts on the artistic aspects of the project under construction.

ARMED SERVICES PETROLEUM BOARD

The Armed Services Petroleum Board is charged with a dual responsibility. It is responsible to the Secretaries of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force for inter-service planning and coordination of effort in matters relating to petroleum, petroleum products, containers, handling equipment and specialized transportation therefor; and it is responsible for making recommendations to and performing such services, duties, and functions in petroleum matters as may be required of it by the Munitions Board, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Research and Development Board as they exercise their respective statutory functions for the Secretary of Defense.

ARMY-NAVY EXPLOSIVES SAFETY BOARD

In accordance with the Act of Congress approved 29 May 1928 (45 Stat. 928), the Board keeps the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Navy advised of storage supplies of ammunition and components thereof for use of the Army and Navy, with special reference to keeping such supplies properly dispersed and stored and to preventing hazardous conditions from arising to endanger life and property within and without storage reservations.

By authority of the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Navy the cognizance of the Board is extended to apply wherever explosives are handled by the Departments of the Army and the Navy within the continental United States and in United States territories and possessions and other areas within which the United States has long term rights such as the Atlantic Bases which the United States has acquired under the Base Lease Agreement.

MILITARY LIAISON COMMITTEE TO THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

The Military Liaison Committee, established by the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 (Public Law 585, 79th Cong.), is charged by the law to represent the Departments of the Army and Navy on matters pertaining to the military application of atomic energy and to review actions, proposed actions, or failure to act of the Atomic Energy Commission in order to maintain the national security. To execute this responsibility the Committee is charged to advise and consult with the Commission on all atomic energy matters which the Committee deems to relate to military applications, including the development, manufacture, use, and storage of bombs, the allocation of fissionable material for military research, and the control of information relating to the manufacture or utilization of atomic weapons. The Committee shall also keep the Atomic Energy Commission fully informed of all atomic energy activities of the Departments of the Army and the Navy.

JOINT SERVICE SCHOOLS

THE NATIONAL WAR COLLEGE

The National War College, organized by authority of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has the mission of preparing selected ground, air, and naval officers, and officers of the State Department, for joint staff and command duties on the highest level in behalf of the national security.

The College devotes some four months of the academic year to a close and systematic examination of international relations and world affairs, of the international consequences of the atomic bomb, of U. S. commitments and responsibilities abroad, and of the formulation of U. S. foreign policy and its implementation through methods short of war. Instruction in this part of the course is conducted by a small group of distinguished resident civilian instructors and an outstanding group of visiting lecturers. The last six months of the school year are devoted to the study of grand strategy, the strategic areas of the world, and the scientific and technological advances which have complicated the task of maintaining the national security.

Certain parts of the course are held in conjunction with the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, located immediately adjacent to the National War College at Fort Lesley J. McNair.

INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE OF THE ARMED FORCES

The Industrial College of the Armed Forces is one of the two colleges on the highest plane of the educational system of the Armed Forces. It prepares officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, and selected civilians, for important command, staff and planning assignments in the National Military Establishment and other Government agencies.

Other important objectives of the College are: the conduct of study in all economic factors of national strategy and the interrelation of these economic factors to the political, military and psychological factors; the conduct of study in all aspects of joint logistic planning and the interrelation of this planning to joint strategic planning and to the economy of the nation; the promotion of understanding and study of all agencies and of economic and joint logistic factors which are important to the Nation and to the Armed Forces; the evaluation of the economic war potential of foreign nations and the conduct of study and research in those fields; and the fostering of close relations between the Armed Forces and civilian engineering, scientific, and educational groups in the study of the social, political, and economic impacts of war.

The regular course extends over a period of ten months and is conducted by using graduate school methods. It is designed to qualify its students to hold positions of the highest responsibility in the Offices of the various Secretaries of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force; Office of the Joint Staff; Office, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army; Office, Chief of Naval Operations; Office, Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Force; the Munitions Board and other joint Army, Navy and Air Force planning and logistics activities; Offices of the Chiefs of the various Technical Services, Material Commands and Bureaus, and Directorates in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

ARMED FORCES STAFF COLLEGE

The mission of the Armed Forces Staff College, located at Norfolk, Va., is to train selected officers of the Army and Navy in joint staff techniques and procedures; the organization, composition, and functions of theaters and major task forces, and the strategical, tactical, and logistical responsibilities of such commanders; and the preparation for amphibious and airborne operations involving the employment of joint forces. Graduate officers are assigned duties in joint operations to include joint overseas expeditions and theater operations.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY

THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

The Secretary of the Navy is responsible, under the President of the United States, and under the Secretary of Defense to the extent prescribed by law, for the supervision of all naval matters.

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

The Under Secretary of the Navy is responsible, in accordance with law and executive orders, for legislative and legal activities of the Naval Establishment; for matters concerning matériel, facilities and civilian personnel; and is the Navy Member of the Munitions Board and the State-Army-Navy-Air Coordinating Committee.

THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY FOR AIR

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air is responsible, in accordance with law and executive orders, for all matters of the Naval Establishment relating to aeronautics (except as otherwise assigned to the Under Secretary), including the coordination of naval aeronautics with other governmental agencies; supervision of naval personnel matters; and broad supervision over research, experimental, test, and development activities.

THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy is responsible, in accordance with law and executive orders, for all matters of the Naval Establishment relating to procurement and production of matériel and facilities; determination of stock levels and replenishment requirements, in collaboration with the Chief of Naval Operations; Administration of inventory control systems; representation of the Navy's procurement requirements before other governmental agencies. Under his direct supervision are the Office of Budget and Reports; Office of Naval Material; Requirements Review Board; Facilities Review Board; Office of the General Counsel; and the Office of Industrial Survey.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

The Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy is responsible, in accordance with law and Executive orders, for general supervision of the fiscal affairs of the Naval Establishment, and the supervision of all matters affecting the administration of the Executive Office of the Secretary.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE, NAVY DEPARTMENT

The Administrative Office, Navy Department, is responsible to the Secretary for the general administration and business management of the Department, and administers certain appropriations and management programs applying to the Naval Establishment.

It is responsible for Departmental civilian personnel administration and for Departmental management services, including building space and maintenance, security of buildings and grounds, mail, telephone, office equipment and supplies, warehousing, duplicating, civilian pay rolls, transportation, and employee health and welfare activities. It also provides personnel, administrative, and general office services for the Secretary's Office and the Executive Office of the Secretary.

Appropriations assigned for fiscal administration include those for travel of civilians, pay of certain civilian employees in Naval Districts, newspapers and periodicals, postage, microfilming, Departmental office supplies and equipment, printing and binding, contingencies of the Navy, and civilian salaries in the Secretary's Office and the Executive Office of the Secretary.

Management programs administered for the Naval Establishment include the reduction and control of reports, forms control, correspondence and records management, records disposal, use and application of microphotography, staff assistance on office systems and procedures, and printing and publications control. It also operates Microfilming Plants, Records Management Centers, District Records Management Offices, District Publications and Printing Offices, and Regional Publications Distribution Centers.

BOARD OF DECORATIONS AND MEDALS

The Navy Department Board of Decorations and Medals makes recommendations to the Secretary of the Navy on the bestowal of honors of all types within the naval service not awarded by delegated authority; on the legislation, Executive orders, and general orders, pertaining to decorations, awards, and campaign medals; and on retirement benefits to personnel with previous commendations. The design of medals and the definition of policies come within the Board's purview.

BOARD OF MEDICAL EXAMINERS

The Board of Medical Examiners conducts the physical examinations of officers of the Line and Staff Corps, United States Navy and Naval Reserve, to determine their physical qualifications for promotion, appointment, and advancement.

BOARD OF REVIEW, DISCHARGES AND DISMISSALS

This board; established July 22, 1944, in compliance with section 301 of Public Law 346, Seventy-eighth Congress, reviews discharges and dismissals of former members of the naval service, except those resulting from the sentence of a general court martial, for purpose of determining whether, under reasonable standards of naval law and discipline, the type and nature of discharge or dismissal of former service personnel should be changed, corrected, or modified. Cases are reviewed either by hearing or documentary review on petitioner's request. After this review they are submitted to the Secretary of the Navy, for and subject only to his final review.

GENERAL BOARD

The General Board acts in an advisory capacity to the Secretary of the Navy considering and reporting upon such subjects as the Secretary may submit to it.

NAVAL EXAMINING BOARD (LINE)

The Naval Examining Board conducts the professional examinations of line officers, including warrant and chief warrant officers, of the United States Navy for promotion, and for appointment, transfer, and promotion of United States Naval Reserve; competitive examinations of warrant and chief warrant officers for appointment to commissioned ranks of ensign, lieutenant (junior grade), and lieutenant, of the Regular Navy; competitive examinations of enlisted personnel for appointment to warrant ranks of the Regular Navy; and examinations of records of chief warrant officers, Regular Navy, and Naval Reserve, for certificates of creditability of record.

NAVAL EXAMINING BOARD (FLAG OFFICERS)

The Naval Examining Board (Flag Officers) conducts the professional examination of line officers and certain staff officers for promotion to Flag rank.

NAVAL EXAMINING BOARD (MEDICAL)

The Naval Examining Board (Medical) conducts the professional examinations of Medical Corps officers of the United States Navy and Naval Reserve for promotion to the grades of commander and captain, Medical Corps. The examinations of officers for promotion to the grade of rear admiral, Medical Corps, are customarily conducted by a special examining board composed of officers of the grade of rear admiral, of which the president of this Board is a member, and the examination records are handled by this office.

NAVAL RETIRING BOARD

The Naval Retiring Board conducts the examinations of such officers of the Line and Staff Corps of the United States Navy and Naval Reserve as may be ordered to appear before it, or whose case may be referred to it, by the Secretary of the Navy, to determine their physical fitness to perform all the duties appropriate to their respective ranks or grades. (Commonly referred to as examinations for physical incapacity retirements.)

NAVAL RETIRING REVIEW BOARD

This Board was established by the Secretary of the Navy in compliance with section 302 of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, Public Law 346, Seventy-eighth Congress, and will review, at the request of any officer retired or released from active service, without pay, for physical disability pursuant to a decision of a retiring board, the findings and decision of such retiring board, and in such a case will ascertain whether such officer incurred such physical disability in line of duty or as an incident of the service.

The Board is authorized to affirm or reverse, in whole or in part, the findings and decision of a retiring board, and to make such findings and decision in lieu thereof as are warranted by the evidence before the Board.

NAVAL SENTENCE REVIEW AND CLEMENCY BOARD

The Naval Sentence Review and Clemency Board was convened by a precept of the Acting Secretary of the Navy dated 17 April 1947. On this same date the functions of the Naval Clemency and Prison Inspection Board were transferred to the above listed Board. The Naval Sentence Review and Clemency Board considers all General Courts-Martial, relative to the appropriateness of the sentence, prior to their approval by the Secretary of the Navy. On each such General Court the Board makes its recommendation, relative to the sentence, and when approved promulgates the Secretary's approval. The Board also considers, at established intervals, requests of all General Courts-Martial confinees for clemency. After considering these requests and recommendations the Board makes its recommendations to the Secretary for his approval. The Board is also assigned the duty of making recommendations to the Secretary regarding Navy and Marine Corps policy on matters of discipline and behavior.

OFFICE OF BUDGET AND REPORTS

The Office of Budget and Reports has charge of the formulation and execution of the Navy Department's budget. It analyzes the estimates of the individual bureaus and offices and correlates them into a well-balanced program in accordance with approved plans and directives of the Secretary of the Navy. After funds have been appropriated by Congress, the Office revises the budgetary program to conform to specific funds and follows up the execution of that program.

OFFICE OF THE FISCAL DIRECTOR

The Office of the Fiscal Director, under the Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy, is charged with the following responsibilities: (a) to formulate, establish, supervise, and coordinate all policies and procedures affecting the finance, accounting, and auditing activities of the Navy; (b) to prescribe the type and content of all accounting and finance records to be maintained; and (c) to prepare or cause to be prepared reports which will provide information relative to commitments, obligations, and expenditures of Navy appropriations and funds.

OFFICE OF THE GENERAL COUNSEL

This Office provides legal services to the Navy Department in the field of commercial law. It is specifically charged with responsibility for all legal matters relating to procurement, contract termination, property disposition, renegotiation and the operations of the Office of the Fiscal Director. It also has other legal duties as from time to time assigned by the Secretary, the Under Secretary, the Assistant Secretary and the Assistant Secretary for Air. Branch offices designated as Office of Counsel are established in each of the contracting bureaus, the Office of Naval Research, the Office of the Fiscal Director, the Navy Purchasing Office, New York City, and the Aviation Supply Office, Philadelphia, Pa.

OFFICE OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

The Office of Industrial Relations is responsible to the Under Secretary of the Navy for the development of the Navy's personnel program for civilian employees and for advising and assisting bureaus, offices, and shore establishments in the application of the program throughout the departmental and field services. Its field of interests includes all matters relating to the employment, assignment, transfer, promotion, separation service rating, and training of civilian employees, as well as those relating to wage administration, classification, employee relations, safety engineering, and publishing The Navy Civilian Personnel Instructions.

The Office acts for the Under Secretary of the Navy in interpreting established civilian personnel policies, and recommends changes in policy. It is responsible for coordinating the Department's over-all program so that uniform standards are maintained throughout the Naval Establishment.

OFFICE OF INDUSTRIAL SURVEY

The Office of Industrial Survey acts to keep the Secretary of the Navy informed as to the efficiency of operation of the industrial activities of the shore establishments of the Navy and the Marine Corps, including the effectiveness of utilization of personnel engaged in industrial work. The mission of this Office is to inspect industrial activities and report the results thereof to the Secretary, with pertinent observations and recommendations.

OFFICE OF THE MANAGEMENT ENGINEER

The Management Engineer acts as consultant and adviser to the Secretary, his Civilian Executive Assistants and their staffs on problems of business administration. He is responsible for advising and assisting them in developing and maintaining efficiency and economy in the operation of the Naval Establishment, with particular regard to matters of organization, staffing, administrative procedures, and the utilization of personnel, materials, and facilities. In this connection the Office of the Management Engineer plans for, reviews and coordinates management programs throughout the Navy Department and Shore Establishment. It also assists the heads of major activities (when required) in developing appropriate management staffs within such activities, and develops criteria and techniques for appraising performance.

OFFICE OF NAVAL MATERIAL

Office of Naval Material.—The Office of Naval Material is headed by the Chief of Naval Material. It is the responsibility of the Chief of Naval Material, under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, to effectuate policies for procurement, contracting, and production of material throughout the Naval Establishment, and plans therefor; to determine the procurement and production policies and methods to be followed by the Naval Establishment in meeting the material requirements of the operating forces, and to coordinate and direct the efforts of the bureaus and offices of the Navy Department in this respect.

The Office of Naval Material is the Staff of the Assistant Secretary in all matters related to the promulgation of policies and general procedures for the determination of stock levels and replenishment requirements, in collaboration with the Chief of Naval Operations; for the administration of inventory control systems; and for the coordination and integration of industrial mobilization planning for the Naval Establishment.

In addition, the Office of Naval Material represents the Navy as regards its material requirements before other government agencies, e. g., the Munitions Board, which control the availability of production, materials, and facilities.

The Office of Naval Material is composed of:

Administrative Services Division.—Provides for all administrative services required by the Office of Naval Material, including assignment and separation of personnel, budget administration, mail distribution and messenger service, files, and related services.

Analysis and Review Division.—Serves as Staff to the Requirements Review Board and Committee and to the Office of Naval Material. The Division makes independent audits and reviews of major programs of the Naval Establishment, and conducts statistical studies and surveys in administrative fields which are of primary concern to top management in the Department.

Procurement Policy Division.—Formulates and issues policies and general procedures governing activities of the Navy with respect to procurement of material and facilities. Reviews and evaluates compliance with such policies and procedures and issues such orders as may be required to assure compliance.

Production Policy Division.—Formulates and issues policies and general procedures governing activities of the Navy with respect to the production of basic and processed material, end items, end products, and components. Reviews and evaluates compliance with such policies and procedures and issues such orders as may be required to assure compliance. Coordinates industrial mobilization planning for the Navy Department.

Field Services Division.—Formulates and promulgates policies and general procedures governing material inspection activities of the Navy. Reviews and evaluates compliance with such policies and procedures and issues such orders as may be required to assure compliance. Exercises management control over the offices of the supervising inspectors and the inspectors of naval material. Exercises coordination control over all offices of the Material Inspection Service, USN.

Material Control Policy Division.—Formulates and promulgates policies and general procedures governing activities of the Navy with respect to facilities, inventory control, and property disposal. Reviews and evaluates compliance with such policies and procedures and issues such orders as may be required to assure compliance.

OFFICE OF NAVAL PETROLEUM AND OIL SHALE RESERVES

The Office of Naval Petroleum Reserves was established in 1927 as a part of the Secretary's office. By a directive dated June 6, 1944, the duties and functions of the Office were redefined. The Office of Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves was established to take custody and charge of the reserves on behalf of the Secretary; to formulate plans and programs for the exploration, prospecting, protection, conservation, development, use and operation of the reserves, and for the production of oil therefrom, and to make recommendations to the Secretary with respect thereto; to execute such plans and programs as are duly approved; and to consult with the bureaus and other offices of the Navy Department and other Government departments and agencies to the extent necessary to obtain assistance to carry on the administration and control of the reserves, and for the production therefrom as authorized.

OFFICE OF NAVAL RESEARCH

This Office was created and established in the Office of the Secretary of the Navy by the Act of 1 August 1946, Public Law 588, 79th Congress, and is charged with such duties relating to the encouragement, promotion, planning, initiation and coordination of naval research; the conduct of naval research in augmentation of and in conjunction with the research and development conducted by the respective bureaus and other agencies and offices of the Navy Department; the supervision, administration, and control of activities within or on behalf of the Department of the Navy relating to patents, inventions, trade-marks, copyrights, royalty payments, and matters connected therewith; advising the Secretary of the Navy on all research matters and such developments as may be expected from research; advising the Chief of Naval Operations of findings, trends, and potentialities in research and disseminating information to interested bureaus and offices within the Navy Department and to other governmental or private agencies as may be appropriate on naval and other research; study and collaborate with the Chief of Naval Operations and the bureaus in the formulation of the principal development programs of the Navy; the undertaking, (1) upon its own initiative or at the direction of the Chief of Naval Operations or at the request of any bureau or office of the Navy Department, the development, design, maintenance, modification, and improvement of training devices and aids and components thereof and (2) at the request of the Chief of Naval Operations or any bureau or office of the Navy Department the production of training devices and aids and components thereof to the extent that appropriations are made available therefor; the operation, etc., of the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, D. C., the Special Devices Center, Sands Point, Port Washington, Long Island, N. Y., and the Underwater Sound Reference Laboratory, Orlando, Fla.

OFFICE OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

The mission of the Director is to develop, execute, and coordinate plans and policies of the Secretary of the Navy relating to the public, in order that the people may understand the position occupied by the Naval Establishment as an instrument of national policy by furnishing, through technical and printed media, a current account of naval progress and scientific development; by stimulating public interest through continuous contact with civilian organizations; and by coordinating and preserving for posterity an historical account of the administrative and operational activities of the Navy and Marine Corps.

REQUIREMENTS REVIEW BOARD

The Requirements Review Board is responsible for assuring that balance is maintained within and between Navy matériel and personnel procurement programs and for keeping procurement levels consistent with actual needs. The Board is to maintain such balance and consistency by direct action of the individual members in those matters for which each is administratively responsible.

REQUIREMENTS REVIEW COMMITTEE

The Requirements Review Committee assists the Requirements Review Board in the discharge of its responsibilities by keeping the major matériel and personnel procurement programs of the Navy under constant audit review. In performing this function the Committee gives consideration to the conformity of these programs to strategic requirements, to rates of use and attrition, to inventory levels, etc.

OFFICE OF CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS

The Office of the Chief of Naval Operations is organized in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 432 of the Eightieth Congress, approved March 5, 1948. The following duties are prescribed for the Chief of Naval Operations by that law:

4. The Chief of Naval Operations—

(f) Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Operations).—Formulation of strategic plans and policies; cognizance of organization, operational development and readiness, plans and operations of seagoing forces, sea frontiers and overseas naval command areas; supervision of the Naval Intelligence Service, including the evaluation of operational information and dissemination thereof; cognizance of Politico-Military Affairs; representation on joint operational agencies; supervision of matters pertaining to the military application of atomic energy.

(g) Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Logistics) [Except for logistic duties which are the responsibility of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Air)].—Initiation, development, and execution of logistic plans and policies; determination of matériel requirements of the Naval Establishment; control of the distribution and disposal of all materials for logistic support including petroleum throughout the Naval Establishment; integration and coordination of logistic plans and programs; coordination and direction of the construction and maintenance of naval vessels and bases; coordination and direction of logistic efforts of the bureaus and offices of the Navy Department; supervision of the Board of Inspection and Survey; coordination of naval logistic efforts with the Army and other Government agencies; representation on joint logistic agencies.

(h) Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Air).—Principal adviser to the Chief of Naval Operations on aviation matters and development of guided missiles; correlation and coordination of military aspects, policies, plans, and logistics of naval aviation and development of guided missiles; representative of the Chief of Naval Operations, when appropriate, in major air matters and guided missile development; preparation, readiness, and logistic support of the aeronautical elements of the Naval Establishment; integration of Marine aviation within the naval aviation program; supervision and direction of policies and programs affecting the Naval Air Transportation Service; and cognizance over lighter-than-air activities; review, formulate requirements for and to guide, coordinate, and evaluate the development of guided missiles and related devices; representation on joint and civil aviation agencies; responsible for plans, readiness, and logistic support of the continental and extracontinental aviation shore establishment.

(i) The Marine Corps and the Coast Guard.—The Marine Corps and the Coast Guard, when under the Secretary of the Navy, are parts of the Naval Establishment. Their functions will be integrated with those of the Chief of Naval Operations. The respective Commandants deal directly with him on matters of common interest between the Marine Corps or the Coast Guard and the Chief of Naval Operations as may be appropriate in the discharge of his prescribed duties. The respective Commandants and their subordinates may deal directly with the Vice Chief of Naval Operations and the Deputy Chiefs of Naval Operations on routine matters within the scope of duties assigned those officers.

(j) The Bureaus and Offices of the Navy Department.—The chiefs of bureaus and offices will have direct access to the Chief of Naval Operations in the same manner as the Deputy Chiefs of Naval Operations. They and their subordinates will deal directly with the Vice Chief and Deputy Chiefs of Naval Operations in such manner as to assist the Chief of Naval Operations in the execution of duties prescribed by Public Law 432 quoted in paragraph 1 of this Chapter. The functions and duties of the bureaus and offices remain as prescribed by statutes, Executive and General Orders.

BUREAU OF AERONAUTICS

The Bureau of Aeronautics is charged with such matters pertaining to naval aeronautics as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy (Sec. 8, act of July 12, 1921; 42 Stat. 140; 5 U. S. C. 455).

The Bureau of Aeronautics makes recommendations to the Chief of Naval Operations as to the technical characteristics and limitations, and the available manufacturing sources, of naval aircraft and naval aviation equipment. Conducts research, makes tests, and participates with other Government agencies and with industry in the design, development, and improvement of such aircraft and equipment. Contracts for naval aircraft and aviation equipment of a technical, specialized nature. Provides for plant facilities as necessary to meet production programs. Schedules, in accordance with requirements, the production of naval aircraft, and naval aviation equipment and assists manufacturers in the production thereof, to the end that the various items may be delivered in the quantities, of the qualities, and at the times required. Collaborates with the Bureau of Yards and Docks, in the design, construction, and alteration of all aeronautics shore establishments. It exercises management control over, and maintains and repairs (within the capacity of station force) all aeronautic shore establishments. These activities are employed for conducting necessary research, tests, investigations, and developments to obtain suitable apparatus and material for naval purposes and for supporting the aviation functions of the Chief of Naval Operations and the aviation operating forces of the Naval Establishment. Initially outfits and thereafter replenishes with aeronautical equipment and material all bases afloat and ashore from which naval aircraft operate. Supervises the service, repair, overhaul, and salvage of naval aircraft and aviation equipment. Redistributes Government-owned material, and settles termination claims under its cognizance.

BUREAU OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

Duties and Responsibilities.—The Bureau is responsible for the following:

(1) Safeguarding the health of personnel in the naval service; providing care for the sick and injured; providing medical and dental attendance to retired naval personnel and transferred members of the Fleet and Fleet Marine Corps Reserve; and all pertinent matters relating thereto.

(2) The preparation of specifications for, and the procurement, inspection, receiving, storage, care, custody, and issue of all medical and dental materials used in the Naval Establishment.

(3) Research in the sciences of medicine and dentistry, including preventive medical procedures, medicinal and dental substances, remedies, materials, devices; the physical and mental characteristics and the endurance capabilities of the human being; and physiological problems pertinent to the naval service.

(4) Evaluation of the performance characteristics, from the physiological standpoint, of equipment designed for use in the naval service, and submission of recommendations thereon.

(5) Providing medical attendance, to the extent authorized by law and by competent authority, to dependents of persons in the naval service, and to civilian employees who suffer injury or become sick while at work; conducting physical or medical examinations of civilian employees, as may be required by law; and providing, outside the continental limits of the United States under circumstances where other facilities are not reasonably accessible, and to the extent prescribed by law, medical attendance to civilian employees of the Federal Government, and employees of contractors with the Federal Government, and their dependents, respectively, and to such other persons as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy.

(6) In coordination with the Bureau of Ships, approving the design of hospital ships insofar as their efficiency for the care of the sick and injured is concerned.

(7) The determination, in collaboration with other bureaus concerned, of standards of environmental sanitation, industrial hygiene, and other measures for the prevention of illness or injury within the Naval Establishment.

(8) Maintaining data regarding all personnel of the Medical Department of the Navy and making recommendations regarding complements, assignments, and duties of such personnel.

(9) Administration of civilian personnel employed at those commands and organizations established as separate activities over which the Bureau exercises management control.

(10) Providing for the organization and administration of the Medical and Dental Departments of shore establishments and vessels.

Technical Control.—The Bureau exercises technical control, in addition to that implicit in the responsibilities enumerated above, of the following:

(1) Physical standards and examinations of persons for entrance into the naval service, and for retention on active service therein.

(2) Professional qualifications of all applicants for transfer to the Hospital Corps, and of all enlisted and warrant candidates for promotion in the Hospital Corps.

(3) Professional education and training of personnel of the Medical, Dental, Medical Service, Hospital, and Nurse Corps.

(4) Professional standards for clinical methods and procedures in medical, dental, and nursing care and treatment, including immunizations and quarantine. The Dental Division of the Bureau is responsible for the study, planning, and direction of dental practices in the Naval Establishment.

(5) Care and preparation of the dead for shipment and interment.

Management Control.—The Bureau exercises management control of those commands and organizations established as separate activities of the Shore Establishment whose primary functions are:

(1) Examination, care, and treatment of the sick and injured.

(2) Dental care and treatment.

(3) Procurement, inspection, receipt, storage, distribution, issue of and accounting for medical and dental materials.

(4) Research, development, and test in the fields of medicine and dentistry.

(5) Technical training and professional education of members of the Medical, Dental, Medical Service, Hospital, and Nurse Corps.

BUREAU OF NAVAL PERSONNEL

1. (a) The Bureau of Naval Personnel is charged with, and responsible for, the procurement, education, training, welfare, discipline, and distribution of officers and enlisted personnel of the Navy, including the Naval Reserve and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, except the professional education of officers, nurses, and enlisted personnel of the Medical Department.

(b) It is responsible for libraries on ships and in shore stations throughout the Naval Establishment.

Naval Academy,
Postgraduate schools,
Naval War College,
Schools for the training of naval personnel,
Training stations,
Naval Home,
Naval Reserve activities except aviation, and with the direction of receiving ships and stations.

2. It issues, records, and enforces the orders of the Secretary of the Navy to the individual officers of the Navy and of the Naval Reserve.

3. It has under its direction recruiting stations, and supervises the enlistment and discharge of all enlisted persons.
4. It has under its direction the organization and administration of the Naval Reserve, and provides for the mobilization of all these Reserves.
5. It has cognizance of transportation for all naval personnel except the Marine Corps.
6. It establishes the complements and allowances of ships and shore activities.
7. It keeps the records of service of all officers and men, and prepares an annual Navy Register and Naval Reserve register for publication.
8. It is charged with all matters pertaining to application for appointments and commissions in the Navy and with the preparation of such appointments and commissions for signature.
9. It is charged with the preparation, revision, and enforcement of all regulations governing uniforms, and with the distribution of general orders and regulations.
10. Questions of naval discipline, rewards, and punishments are submitted by this Bureau for the action of the Secretary of the Navy. The records of all general courts martial and courts of inquiry involving the personnel of the Navy are, before final action, referred to this Bureau for comment and recommendation as to disciplinary features.
11. It receives all reports of services performed by individual officers or enlisted personnel.
12. It is charged with the enforcement of regulations and instructions regarding naval ceremonies and naval etiquette.
13. It is charged with the supervision of the welfare and recreational activities of the naval service except those under the cognizance of the Marine Corps.
14. It is charged with the administration of the Servicemen's Dependents Allowance Act of 1942, as amended.
15. It is charged with the supervision and control of naval places of confinement.

BUREAU OF ORDNANCE

The Bureau of Ordnance shall be responsible for the design, development, procurement, manufacture, distribution, maintenance, including alteration and repair, and material effectiveness of naval ordnance; the research therein; and all pertinent functions relating thereto, including the storage and issue of ammunition and the inventory control of ammunition and technical inert ordnance.

Except as otherwise prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy, the Bureau of Ordnance shall exercise management control of:

(a) Gun factories.
(b) Ordnance plants.
(c) Torpedo stations.
(d) Torpedo testing ranges.
(e) Ordnance proving grounds.
(f) Powder factories.
(g) Ammunition depots.
(h) Mine depots.
(i) Net depots.
(j) Ordnance test stations.
(k) Mine warfare test stations.
(l) Ordnance laboratories.
(m) Degaussing and deperming stations.
(n) Naval magazines on shore.
(o) Offices of Naval Inspectors of Ordnance.

BUREAU OF SHIPS

The duties of the Bureau of Ships are performed under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy, and its orders are considered as emanating from him, and have full force and effect as such (54 Stat. 493; 5 U. S. C. 430). The Chief of the Bureau is appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of four years (54 Stat. 493; 5 U. S. C. 435). The Deputy and Assistant Chief performs the duties of the Chief in the latter's absence (54 Stat. 493; 5 U. S. C. 448).

The Bureau of Ships is charged with and responsible for the general design, structural strength, stability, and seaworthiness of all ships and floating craft of the Navy, except aircraft, and except floating craft under the cognizance of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

It is responsible for the preparation of preliminary plans, approximate data, or both, showing the designs of new ships in accordance with the military characteristics recommended by the General Board and approved by the Secretary of the Navy, and for the preparation of final designs of new vessels in consultation with other bureaus.

It is charged with and responsible for all that relates to details of designing, building, fitting out, repairing, and altering of hulls, permanent fittings, and main machinery, including its related equipment used for propulsion of naval vessels, district craft (except floating craft of the Bureau of Yards and Docks), and small boats.

It has similar responsibility in connection with auxiliary machinery not associated with propulsion equipment, including all pumps, distilling apparatus, refrigerating apparatus, air-conditioning apparatus, steering gear, anchor windlass, deck machinery, air compressors, heating systems, and piping systems.

It has cognizance of all that relates to electric generating sets and storage batteries; the generation and distribution of electric power on board ships for all purposes; all means of interior communication; all electrical methods of signaling, internal and external; all other electrical apparatus on board ship, except fire-control instruments and motors and control appliances used to operate machinery under the specific cognizance of other bureaus; and all appliances and articles of equipage and supplies on its approved allowance list.

It is charged with the design and procurement of all radio, radar, and sonar equipage, radiological instruments, and special devices used by the naval communication service together with research and development thereof, except aircraft and ordnance electronics devices which are responsibilities of the Bureau of Aeronautics and the Bureau of Ordnance respectively. It is responsible for installation and maintenance of radio, radar, and sonar apparatus ashore and afloat.

The Bureau is responsible for the provision of facilities and arrangements for salvaging vessels.

It has administrative supervision of the drydocking of all vessels and district craft and of the operating and cleaning of drydocks and marine railways.

It is charged with the design, development, and procurement planning for materials and appliances for defense against gas attacks, except as specifically assigned to other cognizance; for diving gear and experimental diving units, respiratory protective devices, paravanes and mine-sweeping gear, office labor saving devices for ships and certain shore activities, mess and galley equipment, ground tackle and towing gear, life-saving equipment and navigational equipment.

It is responsible for the quality control of all petroleum products for the fleet. It prepares specifications and recommendations for the purchase on annual contracts of consumable engineering supplies and conducts tests for determining the quality which these supplies must meet. It prepares the specifications for lubricating oil purchased by the Navy.

It prepares specifications and prescribes tests for material, equipment, and machinery under its cognizance. It is represented on many of the national standardization and engineering bodies, and on the various Federal specifications committees.

The Bureau is charged with the management control and the upkeep, operation, and repair (within the capacity of station force) of the following activities:

David W. Taylor Model Basin, Carderock, Md.
Naval Engineering Experiment Station, Annapolis, Md.
Navy Code and Signal Laboratory, Washington, D. C.
Experimental Diving Unit, Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C.
Material Department, Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C.
Navy Underwater Sound Laboratory, New London, Conn.
Office of the Supervisor of Salvage, New York, N. Y.
Material Laboratory, New York Naval Shipyard.
Naval Boiler and Turbine Laboratory, Philadelphia Naval Shipyard.
Industrial Test Laboratory, Philadelphia Naval Shipyard.
Navy Mine Countermeasures Station, Panama City, Fla.
Industrial Department, Naval Station, San Diego, Calif.
Navy Electronics Laboratory, San Diego, Calif.
Radiation Laboratory, San Francisco Naval Shipyard.

These activities are employed for conducting necessary research, tests, investigations, and developments to obtain suitable apparatus and material for naval purposes.

The Bureau participates in the operation of the Army-Navy Electronic and Electrical Standards Agency, Fort Monmouth, N. J., and maintains a liaison office with the Army laboratories at Fort Monmouth. It administers the Air Navigation and Electronics Project.

It is charged with management control of all United States Naval Shipyards.

It nominates to the Bureau of Naval Personnel specially qualified officers for engineering duty at sea and on shore, including naval shipyards, and for duty as supervisors of shipbuilding and inspectors of machinery.

It compiles and issues instructions for the care, operation, and maintenance of material, equipment, and machinery under its cognizance and prepares and issues bulletins of official information on these subjects.

The Bureau of Ships maintains in the field Supervisors of Shipbuilding, Industrial Managers and Assistant Industrial Managers, and Inspectors of Machinery. In the Offices of Supervisors of Shipbuilding and Inspectors of Machinery, a force of trained naval and civilian experts is maintained for the inspection of machinery and materials generally entering into the construction or repair of vessels. This force interprets and enforces strict compliance with the specifications and other contractual obligations for the construction of vessels as regard characteristics of materials used, the methods of installation of the completed parts, and completion dates. The Industrial Managers and Assistant Industrial Managers are responsible for the inspection of naval ships being overhauled or converted in private shipyards where there are no Supervisors of Shipbuilding.

To perform the functions for which the Chief of the Bureau is responsible, the Bureau is organized as follows:

Chief of the Bureau.
  Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau.
    Administrative Division.
    Contract Division.
    Finance Division.
    Electronics Division.
    Naval Shipyards Division.
    Ships Division.

THE BUREAU OF SUPPLIES AND ACCOUNTS

The duties of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts are performed under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy, and its orders are considered as emanating from him and have full force and effect as such. The Bureau is directed by a Chief who has the additional title of Paymaster General and who is appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of 4 years. The Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau performs the duties of the Chief in the latter's absence.

The Bureau develops plans, conducts research, formulates policies, and specifies procedures to be followed in the performance of supply and fiscal functions afloat and ashore.

The Bureau's detailed functions are as follows:

Supervising the operation of supply, disbursing, and accounting activities. This includes naval supply centers, supply depots, storehouses, clothing factory, coffee-roasting plants, fuel plants, supply piers, market offices, commissary and ship's store activities, purchasing offices, cost-inspection offices, property-transportation offices, supply corps schools, material redistribution and disposal activities, cargo handling battalions, and supply activities.

Establishing operating procedures and furnishing to naval activities, technical direction on matters concerning handling, warehousing, carloading, and stevedoring to the end that naval materials may be expeditiously handled into and through naval activities at a minimum cost and with the least expenditure of manpower, storage and shipping space.

Recommending to the Bureau of Yards and Docks action relative to the location, design, construction, and equipment of storehouses and other facilities ashore.

Recommending to the Bureau of Ships action relative to space and equipment requirements of supply activities afloat.

Coordinating the assembly of the supplies and materials required for the initial establishment of advance bases and determining storage and space requirements in connection with the movement of such bases.

Coordinating the compilation and arranging for the printing of Catalog of Navy Material and Navy Department specifications, and supervising the upkeep of stocks of these specifications and of the Navy stock of Federal specifications.

Preparing budget estimates and controlling the expenditure of sums required for freight, fuel, clothing, subsistence of naval personnel, and for the maintenance of supply, disbursing, and accounting activities ashore.

Controlling the Naval Stock Fund, Naval Working Fund, Clothing and Small Stores Fund, and Naval Procurement Fund and the stocks of supplies and materials procured with these funds.

Developing fiscal and accounting policies and procedures relative to the possession and operating of private plants by the Navy, and their return to private ownership.

Recommending to the Bureau of Naval Personnel action relative to the education and training of officers of the Supply Corps and their assignment to duty.

Supervising the reporting of the inventories, the usage, and the requirements for materials including those of a critical and strategic nature needed by the Navy, except for technical items which are procured directly by the technical bureau concerned.

Supervising the receipt, custody, warehousing, and issuance of Navy supplies and materials, exclusive of medical items, and of ammunition, projectiles, mines and explosives.

Administering a centralized storage program for the Navy shore establishment, involving the reporting as required of the use of all storage space, the allocation of storage space in naval supply depots, and naval supply centers, and recommendations for the increase, decrease, and transfer of storage facilities to meet over-all Navy requirements. Recommending to the field action relative to modifications of lay-out and operation to meet changing requirements and to increase efficiency.

Developing new containers and the preservation packing and packaging methods for the Navy and Marine Corps.

Authorizing and supervising the transportation of Navy property, civilian personnel, and the household effects of naval personnel, both military and civilian; procuring cargoes, loading and discharging supply ships and tankers, and chartering merchant vessels for the transportation of supplies.

Determining allowable costs under all types of Navy contracts wherein cost is the basis for compensation.

Paying for all articles and services procured for the Navy; paying payrolls, military and civilian; paying allotments of Navy personnel and family allowances to their dependents; and arranging for funds required by Navy disbursing officers.

Supervising the issuance of United States Savings Bonds purchased by naval personnel, both military and civilian.

Preparing instructions and disseminating regulations regarding income tax.

Exercising material cognizance over all food products and their development and use in the Navy, and exercising technical controls over general messes of the Navy (except naval hospital messes).

Keeping and auditing the property and money accounts of the Naval Establishment, including accounts of all manufacturing and operating expenses at yards and stations; keeping inventory records relating to the plant properties, facilities and capital equipment owned in whole or in part by the Navy and Marine Corps; directing naval cost accounting; and rendering the periodic and special reports involved.

BUREAU OF YARDS AND DOCKS

The Bureau of Yards and Docks is the Navy Department's "Public Works Agency" for the entire Naval Shore Establishment. It is the function and responsibility of the Bureau of Yards and Docks and its field organizations to assist all Bureaus and Offices of the Navy Department in development planning and to administer directly the design, construction, and major repairs of the public works and public utilities including: Navy Yard facilities, such as floating and graving drydocks, marine railways, building ways, hammerhead cranes; harbor structures, such as moorings, quay walls, piers, wharves, slips (including dredging), landings, floating cranes; utilities, such as power plants, railroads, and systems for heat, light, telephone, water, and sewer services; all types of buildings, including structural and machine shops, and such accessories as roads, walks, bridges, and radio towers. It also is charged with responsibility for research pertaining to naval requirements and special features of design and construction of the aforementioned.

The Bureau is charged with responsibility for, and execution of, the annual inspection as to structural condition and all major repairs of such naval public works and utilities. It provides for their general and routine maintenance except such minor routine work as can be accomplished by station forces, at ordnance stations, air stations, training stations, hospitals, marine posts, and the Naval Academy. The Bureau is also responsible for the operation of all central power plants and distribution systems and the provision and operation of land transportation and weight-handling equipment, including locomotives, locomotive cranes, cars, derricks (both shore and floating), shears, motortrucks, passenger automobiles, etc.

The Bureau consults fully on new projects with those departmental bureaus or offices for whose use they are primarily intended; prepares designs that will be mutually satisfactory as to location, lay-out, and operating features; makes cost estimates; and supervises construction.

The Bureau of Yards and Docks is charged with all functions, both legal and administrative, respecting the acquisition and disposition of real estate, or any interest therein, for the Navy Department, and is custodian of all naval real estate which is not in active use.

The Bureau of Yards and Docks is a direct construction agency, one of its major ultimate objectives being the construction of all shore facilities for the use of the Navy. Its work of design and construction is broad in nature and embraces nearly all forms of engineering, and all types of structures mentioned above. The Bureau's present practice is the accomplishment of construction work coming under its cognizance through the medium of general contracts awarded on a competitive lump-sum-bid basis. However, enacted legislation allows the award of contracts on a negotiated, cost-plus-a-fixed-fee basis, and this type of contract was extensively used during the period immediately prior to and during the early stages of the war, in the interests of satisfying the construction demands of the Navy in the shortest time. The use of this type of contract has been largely discontinued, since March 1943, in favor of the lump-sum form of contract.

In order to accomplish the design, construction, repair, and operation of public works facilities at advanced bases, the Bureau has been instrumental in organizing and placing in service naval personnel known as Construction Battalions (Seabees). A Construction Battalion consists of approximately 32 officers and 1,100 enlisted men who are all qualified engineering and construction personnel, with a sufficient diversity of ratings to perform any and all tasks, the accomplishment of which is a responsibility of this Bureau.

Members of the Construction Battalions are trained in military tactics and have participated in and experienced combat in every theater of war.

Construction Battalion Detachments, composed of 7 officers and 270 men, usually take over the base maintenance work from those regular battalions which have completed the base construction, and which have been assigned to other construction work or have been inactivated.

Construction Battalion Detachments may also comprise smaller groups of men specially organized for particular assignments and may be transferred immediately to other destinations upon completion of the task. The complement of such units is not constant.

The work of the Bureau and its attendant field activities is administered by officers of the Civil Engineer Corps, United States Navy, headed by the Chief of the Bureau, who is an officer of the Civil Engineer Corps, United States Navy, and also Chief of Civil Engineers, United States Navy, appointed for a term of 4 years, who now holds the temporary rank of rear admiral, and an Assistant Chief of the Bureau, also an officer of the Civil Engineer Corps, United States Navy.

For administrative purposes the work of the Bureau is divided into four organizational components, each headed and administered by a commissioned officer of the Civil Engineer Corps, United States Navy, with following titles: Assistant Chief for Administrative Management; Assistant Chief for Business Management; Assistant Chief for Operations; Assistant Chief for Plans and Research. In addition there is a Chief Inspector, Bureau of Yards and Docks.

OFFICE OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL OF THE NAVY

The Judge Advocate General is the legal advisor to the Secretary of the Navy and exercises cognizance over all matters of law arising in the administration of the Naval Establishment (except procurement legal matters).

The Office of the Judge Advocate General is composed of:

Military Law Division.—Exercises general supervision over the legal aspects of the administration of naval justice; reviews for legal sufficiency the records of all courts-martial and of naval boards; prepares opinions thereon and initiates action to correct errors of law.

Administrative Law Division.—Handles legal matters, including determination of legal questions, arising out of the application of law to the administration of personnel, uniformed and civilian, with special reference to their appointment, promotion, retirement and separation, pay and allowances, housing and quarters, travel allowances, and dependency benefits; to the administration of insular possessions under naval government; and to the disposition of matters relating to orders of the civil courts, the appearance of witnesses in civil cases involving the government, and the extradition and delivery of naval personnel to civil authority.

General Law Division.—Handles all matters of admiralty law and negotiates the settlement of claims for damages caused by naval vessels; adjudicates or prepares for litigation tort claims for or against the Navy; advises offices of the Navy Department affected by international law problems and handles matters relating to the operation of foreign claims commissions, leased-base agreements and military government; supervises and coordinates legal assistance for naval personnel and dependents throughout the naval service; prepares and proposes action to anticipate, adjust and settle tax problems arising from liabilities affecting the Navy Department asserted by federal, state and local tax authorities.

Legislative Counsel.—Drafts proposed legislation, and conducts legislative liaison (except as to appropriations) for the Navy Department. Prepares or coordinates reports and communications to Congress; supplies information of Congressional activities to bureaus and offices of the Navy Department.

Special Counsel and Special Legal Projects.—Plans the organization for the procurement, training and assignment of law officers in the Navy; provides legal review for revision of proposed changes in Navy Regulations, General Orders, and Bureau Manuals; prepares revisions of Naval Law Manuals and Annotations of Laws Relating to the Navy; provides legal counsel for the Navy on matters pertaining to petroleum reserves.

HEADQUARTERS UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS

The Commandant of the Marine Corps, who is appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of four years, is charged with and responsible for the procurement, discharge, education, training, discipline, and distribution of officers and enlisted personnel of the Marine Corps, including the Marine Corps Reserve, and its equipment, supply, administration, and general efficiency.

The Assistant to the Commandant is the Commandant's principal adviser and performs the duties of Chief of Staff. He also assists in coordinating the work of the separate divisions and staff departments and performs the duties of the Commandant in the latter's absence.

Headquarters Marine Corps, under the direction of the Commandant, is composed of the following agencies:

Offices of the Commandant:
- Administrative Division.
- Division of Plans and Policies.
- Division of Public Information.
- Division of Aviation.
- Division of Reserve.
- Division of Recruiting.
- Inspection Division.

Personnel Department.

Supply Department.

These agencies, under the direction of the below designated officer-heads, perform the functions as indicated.

The Administrative Officer is responsible for administration of civilian personnel and placement of enlisted personnel at Headquarters, operation of services affecting Headquarters as a whole, and operation of Headquarters communications office.

The Director, Division of Plans and Policies, under the direction of the Commandant, formulates Marine Corps policy and develops plans for personnel, intelligence, operations, supply, equipment and training, maintains liaison regarding these matters with other agencies, and is responsible for the organization and training of all Marine Corps elements other than Marine Corps aviation.

The Director of Public Information, acting for the Commandant of the Marine Corps, has supervision over and is responsible for all public relations of the Marine Corps.

The Director of Aviation, as Assistant Commandant (Air) of the Marine Corps, is adviser to the Commandant of the Marine Corps on aviation matters; as Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Marine Corps Aviation) is liaison officer between the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Air) and the Commandant of the Marine Corps; is responsible for planning, organization, equipment, training, deployment, promotions, and distribution of personnel, and for budgetary matters for Marine Corps Aviation.

The Director, Marine Corps Reserve, has supervision over matters relating to ground units of the Organized Marine Corps Reserve and all classes of the Volunteer Marine Corps Reserve.

The Director of Recruiting carries out the policies of the Commandant respecting entry into the service and administers the various recruiting activities of the Marine Corps.

The Inspector General makes periodic inspections and special investigations when ordered by the Commandant, making written reports containing findings of fact and recommendations concerning irregularities or for the improvement of the efficiency of the activity inspected. The Inspector General is further required to direct the audit of all nonappropriated funds of the Marine Corps.

The Director of Personnel, Marine Corps, under the direction of the Commandant of the Marine Corps, is charged with the procurement and appointment of officer personnel; with the classification, assignment, promotion, military histories, separation, and retirement of officer and enlisted personnel. The Director of Personnel is also charged in like manner with the administration of discipline; decorations and medals; morale; welfare; recreation; post exchanges; civil readjustment; casualties; family allowances; target practice; and settlement of claims for terminal leave pay; with the adjudication of claims; with the preparation, revision, and issue of regulations and instructions to the service; with the keeping of records and reports and furnishing returns and reports in connection with the administration of the personnel and organization of the Marine Corps. He is charged with the determination of responsibility for overpayments and loss, damage, or destruction of Government property and funds; and with such other duties as may be prescribed by the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

The Quartermaster General of the Marine Corps is head of the Supply Department.

The Supply Department has the responsibility of procuring, storing, and distributing all supplies for the Marine Corps. In addition to combat material, it provides for subsistence, construction material and labor; has jurisdiction over quarters, barracks, and other public buildings provided for officers and enlisted personnel, and repairs, alterations and improvements thereto; vehicles for the transportation of troops and supplies; furnishes means of transportation for movement of troops; and prints and issues blank forms for the Marine Corps.

Likewise, this department has cognizance over all matters relating to the payment of pay and allowances of Marine Corps and attached Navy personnel and to the administrative audit and analyses of accounts and returns of Disbursing Officers, and the issuance of Savings Bonds. This Department has the responsibility for the disbursement of all monies necessary for the payment for all equipment, supplies, maintenance and services from funds appropriated by the Congress for the Marine Corps.

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE

SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE

The Secretary of the Air Force is the head of the Department of the Air Force and is responsible for the supervision of all matters pertaining to its operation, and for the performance of such duties as may be prescribed by law or enjoined upon him by the President and the Secretary of Defense.

UNDER SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE

The Under Secretary is responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force for the formulation and general supervision, within the Department of the Air Force, of policies relating to: research and development, production, procurement, establishment of matériel requirements, industrial mobilization, and matters involving the aircraft industries.

The Under Secretary represents the Department of the Air Force in a liaison capacity with the Atomic Energy Commission, Research and Development Board, and as a member of the Munitions Board.

In the absence or disability of the Secretary of the Air Force, the Under Secretary acts as the Secretary of the Air Force.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE

(Civil and Military-Diplomatic)

The Assistant Secretary is responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force for the formulation and the general supervision, within the Department of the Air Force, of policies relating to: the role of air power as an instrument of National Policy, the coordination of civil and military air matters in the national interest, matters involving other countries, including the coordination of those matters with the State Department and other appropriate Government agencies; the United States Air Force Reserve, the Air National Guard, the Air Reserve Officers Training Corps, and Air Force participation in the Civil Air Patrol.

The Assistant Secretary represents the Department of the Air Force on the State-Army-Navy Air Force Coordinating Committee and the Air Coordinating Committee and will represent the Department of the Air Force on such other boards and committees to which the Secretary of the Air Force may appoint him.

In the absence or disability of both the Secretary and the Under Secretary of the Air Force, the Assistant Secretary acts as the Secretary of the Air Force.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE

(Management)

The Assistant Secretary is responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force for the formulation and general supervision, within the Department of the Air Force, of the policies relating to the business management of the Department, including those matters with respect to program control, management control through cost control, civilian personnel, organizational planning, mobilization, and the budget of the Department.

In the absence or the disability of the Secretary, Under Secretary and the other Assistant Secretary, acts as the Secretary of the Air Force.

DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

The Director of Public Relations is responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force for the dissemination of information concerning the Department of the Air Force to the public, civil organizations, and to the Congress through all appropriate media.

He supervises and coordinates the preparation of proposed legislation and Executive orders affecting the Department of the Air Force, and provides reports, and studies and conducts projects incident thereto, when required. He maintains liaison with the Executive Office of the President, the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Congress, and other Governmental agencies in connection with the aforementioned matters.

GENERAL COUNSEL

The General Counsel is the final authority on all legal questions arising within or referred to the Department of the Air Force. When considered advisable, he represents the Secretary at departmental and interdepartmental conferences and meetings involving matters of law and advises the Secretary on the legal aspects of policy decisions. The Office of the General Counsel furnishes legal advice upon request to all levels in connection with all aspects of procurement activities.

THE SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE PERSONNEL COUNCIL

The Secretary of the Air Force Personnel Council consists of the Air Force Personnel Board, the Air Force Disability Review Board, and the Air Force Discharge Review Board.

Responsible for determining such military personnel actions as may be directed by the Secretary or enjoined by Public Law; such action being taken for and in the name of the Secretary of the Air Force.

HEADQUARTERS

CHIEF OF STAFF

The Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, is the head of the Air Staff, United States Air Force. He is the principal military adviser to the President and to the Secretary of the Air Force on the employment of the Air Force in war and the principal military adviser and executive to the Secretary of the Air Force on the activities of the United States Air Force. The Chief of Staff has command of all components of the United States Air Force and is responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force for the operation of the Air Force in war and for the plans and preparation for the readiness of all components of the Air Force for war. Under the direction of the Secretary of the Air Force the Chief of Staff is responsible for the coordination and direction of the Air Staff. The Chief of Staff by virtue of his position is the senior Air Force officer on active duty.

VICE CHIEF OF STAFF

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

ATTORNEY GENERAL (TOM C. CLARK)

The Attorney General is the head of the Department of Justice (see sec. 346, R. S.) and as such is the chief law officer of the Federal Government. He represents the United States in legal matters generally and gives legal advice and opinions to the President and to the heads of the executive departments.

He appears in the Supreme Court of the United States in cases of exceptional gravity and importance, exercises general superintendence and direction over United States district attorneys and marshals in the various judicial districts of the United States, and provides special counsel for the United States in cases of exceptional importance or when the character of the interests involved requires such action.

The duties of the Assistant to the Attorney General, the Assistant Attorneys General, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, and of the heads of the other major divisions and bureaus are performed under the direction of the Attorney General.

SOLICITOR GENERAL (PHILIP B. PERLMAN)

The Solicitor General assists the Attorney General in the execution of his duties and, by special provision of law, exercises all such duties in case of a vacancy in the office of the Attorney General, or his absence or disability.

Under the direction of the Attorney General, the Solicitor General has special charge of the business of and appears for and represents the Government in the Supreme Court of the United States.

When requested by the Attorney General, the Solicitor General may conduct and argue any case in which the United States is interested, in any court of the United States, or may attend to the interests of the Government in any State court or elsewhere, conferring with and directing the law officers of the Government throughout the country in the performance of their duties when occasion requires. No appeal is taken by the United States to any appellate court without his authorization.

THE ASSISTANT TO THE ATTORNEY GENERAL (PEYTON FORD)

The Assistant to the Attorney General has primary responsibility, under the Attorney General, for the over-all supervision and administrative management of the Department of Justice, the formulation of major departmental policies and programs, the improvement of administrative practice, the formulation and supervision of the Department's personnel policy, the coordination of the work of the various divisions of the Department, and the supervision of the United States attorneys and marshals. In addition, he acts as liaison officer between the Attorney General and the Congress and other departments and agencies of the Government; prepares recommendations for presidential appointments; drafts department legislation and reports on legislative proposals and enrolled bills; exercises administrative supervision over the Board of Immigration Appeals, the United States Board of Parole and the Library; and directs the handling of conscientious objector cases (other than criminal) under the Selective Service and Training Act.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (THERON LAMAR CAUDLE)

The Assistant Attorney General who heads the Tax Division has charge of the prosecution and defense in all courts of civil suits arising out of the internal revenue laws including appellate proceedings in connection therewith, briefs and arguments in the Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals of petitions to review decisions of the Tax Court of the United States and appellate proceedings in the Supreme Court of the United States upon assignment by and under the supervision of the Solicitor General of the United States. He also has charge of criminal prosecutions of violations of the internal revenue laws except criminal prosecutions arising out of the liquor tax laws; the enforcement of tax liens, the conduct of mandamus, injunctions, and other specific writs and all general matters relating to taxes including jurisdiction over questions of intergovernmental tax immunity. He also has charge of special assignments by the Attorney General.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (H. GRAHAM MORISON)

This Assistant has charge of all civil suits and claims for and against the Government or its officers not otherwise specially assigned, patent and copyright cases, cases arising out of war transactions including civil war frauds matters, civil bankruptcy matters, civil proceedings under the National Bank Act, admiralty and shipping matters, and veterans' claims and litigation. He also has charge of civil matters arising out of military control measures over the civil population of the United States and its territorial possessions, habeas corpus matters and other civil litigation relating to alien enemies. He also has charge of briefs and arguments in the Supreme Court on assignment by the Solicitor General, and of special assignments by the Attorney General.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (A. DEVITT VANECH)

This Assistant has charge of all civil suits and matters relating to the title, possession and use of lands, oil reserves, mineral leases, water rights and other natural resources, and the prosecution and defense of suits affecting those matters. This includes the acquisition of lands by condemnation and the examination of titles to lands being acquired by the United States, suits to remove and quiet title, recover possession or damages, to determine boundaries, cancel patents, and to establish rights in natural resources. He also has charge of the representation of the interests of the United States in all civil litigation pertaining to Indians and Indian affairs; insular and territorial affairs except those specifically assigned, other than criminal; and briefs and arguments in the Supreme Court on assignment made by the Solicitor General, as well as matters specially assigned to him by the Attorney General.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (VACANCY)

This Assistant is in charge of all suits and other matters arising under the Sherman Act and all other antitrust laws.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (T. VINCENT QUINN)

This Assistant has charge of all Federal criminal matters except those specially assigned to the Antitrust and Tax Divisions of the Department, including the giving of advice and assistance to United States Attorneys relative to trial and pretrial procedure, indictments, grand jury proceedings, search warrants, etc., and supervises certain civil matters such as those arising under the immigration and naturalization laws, including expatriation and cancellation of citizenship proceedings; extradition proceedings; habeas corpus proceedings; the acceptance or rejection of compromises of criminal liability under current liquor laws; consideration of petitions for the mitigation or remission of civil forfeitures under current liquor laws, and the collection of outstanding bail bond judgments and unpaid fines; libel actions under the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and the gold hoarding laws; proceedings to recover penalties in civil actions under the Hours of Service Act, the Safety Appliance Act, the Signal Inspection Act, and similar statutes; determination of whether the Federal Government has exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction over offenses committed on lands acquired by the United States; administration of the Voorhis Act and administration of the Foreign Agent Registration Act of 1938, as amended. He also has charge of legal matters pertaining to prisoners and parole, and briefs and arguments in the Supreme Court on assignment made by the Solicitor General, as well as matters specially assigned to him by the Attorney General.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (DAVID L. BAZELON)

The Assistant Attorney General is director of the office of Alien Property and exercises the functions of the Attorney General in controlling or vesting foreign-owned property, whether the ownership rests with a foreign government, with an individual who is a national of a foreign government, or with a business enterprise which is a national of a foreign government. Once vested, such property shall be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold, or otherwise dealt with in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States. The payment of debt claims, title claims, and taxes out of vested property is authorized under specific statutory conditions. This Assistant Attorney General also has charge of litigation in which the office of Alien Property is interested and of litigation arising from the foreign funds program of the Treasury Department. He prepares informal legal opinions to the Treasury Department involving problems relating to alien property or foreign funds control and on matters of legal policy in the administration of the foregoing programs under the Trading With the Enemy Act.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL (PAUL P. RAO)

This Assistant has charge of protecting the interests of the Government in matters of reappraisement and classification of imported goods, and all litigation incident thereto. He also has charge of briefs and arguments in the Supreme Court on assignment by the Solicitor General, and of matters specially assigned to him by the Attorney General.

ASSISTANT SOLICITOR GENERAL (GEORGE T. WASHINGTON)

The Assistant Solicitor General has charge for the Attorney General of the preparation of legal opinions and the rendition of informal legal advice to executive agencies, as well as of the review and revision, as to their form and legality, of proposed Executive orders and proclamations submitted to him by direction of the President. He appears for and represents the Government in such cases as may be designated by the Solicitor General and performs such additional duties as may be required of him by the Attorney General and the Solicitor General. He also handles matters arising out of trusts, bequests and gifts to the United States. In the absence of the Solicitor General, or in the event of a vacancy in that office, he serves as Acting Solicitor General.

ATTORNEY IN CHARGE OF PARDONS (DANIEL M. LYONS)

Under the direction of the Attorney General, the Pardon Attorney has charge of applications for pardon and other forms of executive clemency.

DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (J. EDGAR HOOVER)

The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation has general charge of the investigation of offenses against the laws of the United States with the exception of those involving immigration and naturalization matters, counterfeiting, narcotics, or other matters not within the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice; directs the acquisition, collection, classification, preservation, and exchange of identification records; directs personnel investigations requisite to the work of the Department of Justice or when required by acts of Congress or Executive order, and loyalty investigations of Federal employees decreed by Executive order. The FBI has jurisdiction over violations of espionage, sabotage, treason, and other matters pertaining to the internal security of the United States, and violations of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946; trains law enforcement agencies in the handling of security matters, and conducts the operation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy.

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE (WATSON B. MILLER, COMMISSIONER)

Under the act of March 3, 1933 (Public, No. 428, 47 Stat. 1517), and the Executive order issued pursuant to the statute, dated June 10, 1933 (6166, sec. 14), the Immigration and Naturalization Service was formed through the consolidation of the former Bureaus of Immigration and Naturalization, effective August 10, 1933. On June 14, 1940, under Reorganization Plan No. V (5 F. R. 2132, June 5, 1940), the Service and its functions were transferred to the Department of Justice, to be administered under the direction and supervision of the Attorney General. All functions and powers of the Secretary of Labor relating to the administration of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and its functions or to the administration of the immigration and naturalization laws were transferred by such plan to the Attorney General.

The functions of the Service are the administration of the laws relating to the admission, exclusion, and deportation of aliens, the registration and fingerprinting of aliens, and the naturalization of aliens lawfully resident in the United States; the investigation of alleged violations of said laws, and when prosecution is deemed advisable, the submission of evidence for that purpose to the appropriate United States district attorneys. The Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, under the direction of the Attorney General, has charge of the administration of such laws. The primary function of the Immigration Border Patrol, which operates as a part of the immigration force, is to detect and prevent the smuggling and surreptitious entry of aliens into the United States in violation of the immigration laws, and to apprehend smugglers of aliens and aliens who have effected unlawful entry.

Under the provisions of the Nationality Act of 1940 (Public, No. 853, 76th Cong.), naturalization jurisdiction was conferred upon certain specified United States and State courts. The Service exercises administrative supervision over the clerks of these courts in naturalization matters, requiring an accounting for all naturalization fees collected by them, and cooperates with the public schools in the education of applicants for naturalization for their citizenship duties and responsibilities. Through its field officers, located in various cities in the United States, the Service investigates the qualifications of candidates for citizenship and represents the Government at the hearings of petitions for naturalization.

DIRECTOR, BUREAU OF PRISONS (JAMES V. BENNETT)

The Director of the Bureau of Prisons has general charge of the administration of the Federal Government's penal and correctional activities. He is vested with the control and management of all Federal penal and correctional institutions save those maintained by the Army and Navy, and has the responsibility for providing suitable quarters for the safekeeping, care, protection, instruction, and discipline of all persons charged with or convicted of offenses against the United States. He also has charge of special assignments by the Attorney General.

BOARD OF PAROLE

The Board of Parole consists of three members, appointed directly by the Attorney General, whose sole duties are to grant and revoke paroles of Federal prisoners.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO THE ATTORNEY GENERAL (S. A. ANDRETTA)

The administrative assistant to the Attorney General directs the Administrative Division of the Department of Justice, which handles all administrative and organization matters, including those relating to United States attorneys, marshals, and other field officers except matters of policy which are under the supervision of the Assistant to the Attorney General. He supervises the Division of Accounts, Budget and Planning Section, office of the Chief Clerk, the Personnel Office, the Division of Communications and Records, the Supply Division, and the Statistical Unit. He directs all budget, accounting, and auditing matters; controls expenditures from all appropriations of the Department and approves all financial transactions; he directs the examination of field and judicial offices and the compilation of statistics for the Department; supervises the appointment of clerical and subclerical forces of the Department, exclusive of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and all personnel matters regarding civil-service employees; has charge of the enforcement of general departmental regulations, the designation of space requirements throughout the country, and the handling of all fiscal matters and business operations of the Department of Justice.

FEDERAL PRISON INDUSTRIES, INC.

The Federal Prison Industries Corporation was authorized by act of Congress approved June 23, 1934 (Public, No. 461), and created by Executive Order No. 6917 of December 11, 1934. Under the general direction and supervision of the Attorney General it manages and operates all industrial enterprises in Federal penal and correctional institutions, and provides vocational and trade training for the inmates of such institutions. Its board of directors is charged by law with the duty of determining in what manner and to what extent industrial operations shall be carried on in Federal penal and correctional institutions, and is required to diversify, so far as practicable, prison industrial operations and so operate the prison shops that no single private industry shall be forced to bear an undue burden of competition from the products of the prison workshops. The Corporation is governed by a board of directors of five persons—a representative of labor, a representative of industry, a representative of agriculture, a representative of retailers and consumers, and a representative of the Attorney General. They serve at the will of the President and without compensation. The principal office of the Corporation is in the city of Washington, with branch offices at the several penal and correctional institutions. The officers of the Corporation are a president, a vice president, a secretary, and a Commissioner of Prison Industries. The Commissioner of Prison Industries is the acting executive officer of the Corporation. The products of the industries are sold only to other Government departments and agencies at current market prices. No goods or articles made in the Federal penal and correctional system are sold to the public.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

POSTMASTER GENERAL

The Postmaster General is the executive head of the postal service. He appoints all officers and employees under his supervision, except the four Assistant Postmasters General, the purchasing agent, the comptroller, and postmasters of the first, second, and third classes, who are appointed by the President of the United States. Subject to the approval of the President, he makes postal treaties with foreign governments. He is the executive head of Postal Savings and ex officio chairman of the board of trustees.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL'S STAFF

The Postmaster General's staff was established January 22, 1946, by an order of the Postmaster General. It is the coordinating body of the Post Office Department, insuring uniformity of policy among the several bureaus and offices of the Department.

Members are: The First, Second, Third, and Fourth Assistant Postmasters General, the Executive Assistant to the Postmaster General, the Chief Inspector, and the Chief Clerk and Director of Personnel. The First Assistant Postmaster General is chairman.

OFFICE OF BUDGET AND ADMINISTRATIVE PLANNING

The Office of Budget and Administrative Planning is charged with the budgeting and the administrative and management planning activities of the Post Office Department. The Office is under the supervision of the Director who, with the Commissioner of the Budget and the Commissioner of Administrative Planning, is directly responsible to the Postmaster General. The Office also is charged with the duty of studying the operations of the Postal Establishment and of analyzing, planning, and devising management, operating, and financial procedures; of submitting recommendations to the Postmaster General in collaboration with bureaus and offices of the Department with respect thereto; of keeping informed of developments and improvements in government and business management and in operating and financial systems and practices; of studying such developments and improvements in the light of the Postal Establishment and submitting recommendations to the Postmaster General; of advising with and assisting the Department official in charge of legislative matters, and preparing data and information for legislative purposes; of participating in hearings before the Bureau of the Budget, Appropriation and other committees of Congress, for the purpose of explaining the Postal Establishment's financial and operating policies; of maintaining a check on the execution of the budget program and general operations and recommending such changes in administration and operations as may appear necessary; of collecting, analyzing and preparing material and data for annual and special public and confidential reports; and such other duties as the Postmaster General may direct.

CHIEF CLERK AND DIRECTOR OF PERSONNEL

The Chief Clerk and Director of Personnel has responsibility for personnel administration and the management functions of the Department. He coordinates and exercises control over position classification, recruitment, selection, placement, training, promotions, discipline, efficiency ratings, employee relations, health and safety, the proper administration of the Retirement and Employees' Compensation Acts and other personnel matters. He is chairman of the Board of Appeals for the hearing of employee grievances throughout the Postal Establishment, and is also chairman of the Loyalty Board of the Postal Establishment. He represents the Department in its relations with the Civil Service Commission, The Federal Personnel Council, and with other agencies where personnel functions are concerned.

The Chief Clerk and Director of Personnel is also charged with the administrative management and control of activities and operating services at the departmental level, including the printing and binding required in the Department and field service; the receipt and inspection of supplies for the Department and field service delivered in Washington; the care and maintenance of public property located in the Department building; the preparation and certification of pay rolls; the compilation, publication, and distribution of the Official Postal Guide and other postal publications; the preparation of estimates for and control of expenditures from appropriations covering contingent and miscellaneous expenses, travel expenses of the Postmaster General and Assistant Postmasters General, and salaries, Office of the Postmaster General; the custody of the journals, order books, correspondence, and files. The Chief Clerk and Director of Personnel is the Security Officer, the Clearance Officer, and the Surplus Property Officer for the departmental and the field service.

PURCHASING AGENT

The Purchasing Agent contracts for and purchases all equipment, materials, and supplies for the Post Office Department proper and for all branches of the Postal Service. He reviews all requisitions and authorizations for equipment, materials, and supplies and, if proper, honors them. He passes upon all emergency purchases made locally by the field service. He determines the sufficiency and propriety of all specifications for equipment, materials, and supplies; prepares the advertisements and forms for proposals necessary to the making of the contracts; and enters into contracts for such equipment, materials, and supplies for the Postmaster General. The Purchasing Agent also enters into contracts for the Postmaster General for the procurement of all envelopes for the executive departments, Government bureaus and establishments and the branches of the service coming under their jurisdiction, except plain envelopes for use in the District of Columbia.

SOLICITOR FOR THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

The Solicitor is the chief legal adviser to the Postmaster General and to the other administrative officers of the Department. He renders formal and informal opinions upon questions of law arising in the course of business in the postal service. He drafts legislation to be presented to Congress by the Department, and also drafts all reports on legislation requested by the Congress or the Bureau of the Budget. He also takes part in drafting, examining, and construing administrative rules and regulations, orders, contracts, permits, leases, and other documents.

The Solicitor is the legislative official for the Post Office Department and the representative of the Postmaster General at congressional hearings or conferences with the Bureau of the Budget on proposed legislation. He is the representative of the Postmaster General in proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board on matters involving the postal service.

Other duties of the Solicitor include the supervision of all proceedings before the Department arising out of the enforcement of the postal fraud, lottery, and fictitious statutes; the consideration of all questions involving the mailability of alleged indecent, obscene, scurrilous, defamatory, or extortionate matter; the determination of questions arising from the application of the private express statutes (Government monopoly of carrying letters); the consideration of claims for damage done to persons or property through the operation of the Post Office Department, and of all claims of postmasters for losses by fire, burglary, or other unavoidable casualty; the determination of questions as to the delivery of mail the ownership of which is in dispute; the consideration of applications for Executive clemency for crimes committed against the postal laws which may be referred to the Department; the determination of all questions arising under the Administrative Procedure Act; and the consideration of the legal acceptability of securities offered by banks to secure postal-savings deposits. He also has charge of the admission of attorneys to practice before the Department, and of all disbarment proceedings.

The Fourth Assistant Postmaster General has charge of the following divisions to which are assigned the duties specified:

Division of Engineering and Research.—Planning of postal quarters in new or remodeled Federal post office buildings and Government-owned garages and extension of such buildings or any changes in postal-occupied space; the design and lay-out of mechanical equipment, including conveyors and other labor-saving machinery; all general engineering problems affecting the activities of the postal service and the consideration of the practicability of devices and inventions for use in the postal service.

Division of Traffic.—Relative to shipment of freight, express, drayage, crating, routing, and billing shipments of equipment, material, and supplies for the Department and postal service, and for expenses incurred in the transfer of household goods and effects of certain postal employees.

Division of Post Office Quarters.—The selection, leasing, and equipment of quarters for post offices of the first, second, and third classes, and stations thereof (except those located in Federal buildings); the leasing of quarters for the railway mail service; the leasing and equipment of post-office garages, and the fixing of allowances for rent, light, power, fuel, and water at offices of the first, second, and third classes, and stations thereof.

Division of Motor Vehicle Service.—The authorization, operation, and maintenance of the Government-owned motor vehicle service, including the appointment and discipline of the personnel employed in connection therewith; requisitions for materials, supplies, and garage equipment and correspondence pertaining thereto; requests for allowances for rent, light, fuel, power, water, telephone service, etc.; the monthly and quarterly reports and correspondence pertaining to the accounting system; the preparation of advertisements inviting proposals for the transportation of the mails in cities by means of screen wagons and pneumatic tubes, and the drafting of orders awarding such service, including the preparation of contracts therefor; the fixing of allowances for the hire of vehicles used in the delivery and collection service; the examination of reports and the preparation of orders making deductions and imposing fines for nonperformance of service and other delinquencies on the part of contractors.

Division of Topography.—The compilation, revision, printing, and distribution of post-route State maps and rural delivery county and local maps.

Division of Equipment and Supplies.—The preparation of specifications for equipment and supplies for the Postal Service, and the custody, distribution, and transportation of such equipment and supplies; the distribution of parcel-post zone keys; the maintenance of a record of expenditures for equipment and supplies by appropriations.

Mail Equipment Shops.—The manufacture and repair of mail bags and other mail containers and attachments, mail locks, keys, chains, tools, dies, and such other equipment for the Postal Service as may be deemed expedient; the issuance of letter-box locks, mail keys, key chains, etc., to postmasters and other officials entitled thereto, and the maintenance of a record thereof.

Division of Federal Building Operations.—The operation and maintenance of Federal buildings under the administration of the Post Office Department; the procurement and distribution of supplies therefor; the appointment and supervision of personnel necessary for the maintenance of these buildings.

CHIEF INSPECTOR

The Chief Inspector is charged with the duty of keeping the Postmaster General and his assistants advised as to the condition and needs of the entire Postal Service: the inspection, audit, and inventory of finances, valuables, equipment, supplies, and property, and the examination of procedures relating thereto in every Bureau or agency of the Postal Establishment in Washington and in the field; and the certification of the results to the Postmaster General or the Assistant Postmaster General in charge of the unit inspected. He is charged with the selection, government, and assignment to duty of post-office inspectors in charge, post-office inspectors and clerks at division headquarters and field domiciles of post-office inspectors. He authorizes and directs all investigations by inspectors and generally supervises the business of the post-office inspection service. He is charged with the coordination and supervision of plans and arrangements for the handling of the President's mail while he is traveling and advising with White House officials on matters connected therewith. He also has jurisdiction in all matters relating to depredations upon the mails, both domestic and international, and losses therein; reported violations of the postal laws such as the alleged use of the mails in schemes to defraud and in the promotion of lotteries; violations of the private express statutes (Government monopoly of the transportation of letter mail); mailing of explosives, poisons, firearms, intoxicants, and of letters of extortion containing threats to injure the reputation of any person, or to accuse him of a crime; forgery of money orders and postal-savings certificates; mailing of obscene, scurrilous, and other matter prohibited transmission in the mails, and complaints of the interception of and tampering with the mails. He supervises the development of evidence and the preparation for prosecution of criminal offenses arising in connection with the operation of the Postal Service and maintains examiners of questioned documents located at strategic places in the United States. He considers claims for payment of rewards for the detection, arrest, and conviction of post-office burglars, robbers, highway mail robbers, and mailers of bombs. He is charged with the custody of money and property collected or received by inspectors, and with the restoration thereof to the United States or to the public, as their interests shall appear. He is charged also with the installation and instruction of postmasters and the consideration of miscellaneous complaints against the service rendered at post offices of all classes. Administrative matters such as charges against postal employees of all classes (except inspectors and clerks at division headquarters), and the establishment of or changes in rural or star routes should be addressed to the proper bureau of the Department, and if an investigation by an inspector is necessary, such bureau will make request therefor on the Chief Inspector. Applications for permission to take the examination for the position of post-office inspector and the correspondence in connection with the appointment, promotion, and the character of service rendered by inspectors should be addressed to the Chief Inspector.

BUREAU OF ACCOUNTS

The Comptroller of the Post Office Department is in charge of the Bureau of Accounts, created in the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921. To the Comptroller,

Bureau of Accounts, is assigned the administrative examination of all postal, money-order, and postal-note accounts of postmasters at direct and central accounting offices and the accounts of foreign administrations; the prescribing of and supervising the administrative examination of district office accounts at central accounting offices; the administrative examination of the accounts and conducting of physical audits of the cash and accountability of the philatelic agent and the superintendent, Division of Finance and Disbursing Officer; the instructing of postmasters relative to the maintenance of financial records and the preparation and rendition of their accounts; the supervising of the quarterly counts of penalty mail and determining the quantity of penalty matter procured and mailed by each department, agency, or organization of the Government and the cost of handling such mail; the work of ascertaining the revenues derived from the cost of carrying and handling the several classes of mail matter and of performing the special postal and nonpostal services; the keeping of administrative appropriation and cost accounts; the maintenance of control accounts of appropriations, apportionments, allotments, obligations, revenues, receipts, and expenditures; the maintenance of records of gross postal receipts, by calendar years, of post offices; the compilation of statistical reports, monthly operating statements, and other financial data for the information of the Postmaster General and other officers of the Post Office Department; the ascertainment of the facts and the preparation of certifications relating to proposed compromise of liabilities to the Department under section 306; the general supervision of the administration of the Retirement Act; and, in collaboration with the Office of Budget and Administrative Planning, the conducting of surveys and research necessary to the development of improved cost accounting and control procedures and the formulation of policies with respect to the financial accounting and statistical systems of the postal establishment.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

The Department of the Interior is responsible for the management, conservation, and development of the natural resources of the United States. These resources include the public lands and the Federal range, water, and power resources, oil and gas and other mineral resources, certain forest resources, fish and wildlife resources, and the national park system. In addition, the Department of the Interior has specialized responsibilities to the Indians and to the territories and island possessions of the United States. The Secretary of the Interior during and for a period following World War II was charged with special duties concerning solid fuels and coal mines under Government control.

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR

The Secretary of the Interior is the head of the Department and is charged with the supervision and direction of the functions performed and activities carried on by the offices and employees throughout the Department. All bureaus and offices of the Department are responsible directly to the Secretary.

UNDER SECRETARY AND ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF THE INTERIOR

The Under Secretary and the two Assistant Secretaries are the chief administrative officials of the Department under the Secretary of the Interior. The following bureaus and offices are assigned for direct supervisory purposes to the Secretary and the Under Secretary: Office of the Solicitor, Office of Information, Division of Budget and Administrative Management, Division of Personnel Supervision and Management, Division of Administrative Services, Program Division, Oil and Gas Division, Division of Power, Office of Land Utilization, Division of Territories and Island Possessions, Board on Geographic Names, Bonneville Power Administration, Southwestern Power Administration, and power activities of other bureaus.

The following bureaus are assigned to Assistant Secretary Davidson: Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Mines, Geological Survey, and the National Park Service.

The following bureaus are assigned to Assistant Secretary Warne: Bureau of Indian Affairs, Bureau of Reclamation, and the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Under Secretary and the Assistant Secretaries perform such other duties as are prescribed by the Secretary, and are authorized to exercise the powers of the Secretary with respect to matters which come before them.

DIVISION OF BUDGET AND ADMINISTRATIVE MANAGEMENT

The Division of Budget and Administrative Management is responsible to the Secretary for Department-wide direction and supervision of the budgetary, financial, and administrative management functions of the Department. The Director of the Division acts as Budget Officer for the Department.

The Division is responsible for:

1. The development of standards and requirements for the conduct of budgetary and fiscal operations of the bureaus and offices;
2. The review and departmental action upon all budget requests of the bureaus and offices;
3. The supervision of the preparation and submission of all budget requests to the Bureau of the Budget and to the Congress;
4. The apportionment of funds for all approved activities of the bureaus and offices;
5. The conduct of surveys and the preparation of recommendations for the improvement of budgetary, fiscal, and administrative management functions of the bureaus and offices;
6. The provision of an investigative service to examine and recommend appropriate action covering all alleged irregularities which occur in the conduct of programs of the Department; and

The Division is responsible for Department-wide liaison with other Federal agencies and with the Congress upon matters which fall within its jurisdiction.

CHIEF CLERK

The Chief Clerk of the Department initiates, promulgates, and enforces regulations affecting the operational management and coordination of the departmental, bureau, and divisional offices under the Secretary of the Interior; controls space occupied by the departmental offices; has direct supervision over purchasing, duplicating, accounts, mail, files, communications, emergency room, museum, and garage. He is responsible for conservation and utilization of property; is contact officer for the Department in matters relating to the Division of Disbursement, Treasury Department; handles such official mail as the Secretary of the Interior may direct and various miscellaneous matters of the Secretary's office not otherwise assigned, and is custodian of the official seal of the Department.

OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR

The Solicitor is the chief law officer of the Department and the principal adviser on legal matters to the Secretary and other departmental officials. He exercises professional supervision and direction over all the legal work of the Department and over all the legal personnel employed by the Department and its several agencies.

The Office of the Solicitor, which consists of the Solicitor and his staff of assistants, takes final legal action for the Department with respect to: appeals to the Secretary from decisions of bureau officials; questions affecting more than one bureau of the Department or other Departments; patents; the issuance of regulations by the Secretary; tort claims; prospective or pending Federal legislation; the regulation of practitioners before the Department; personnel problems; fiscal matters; and other subjects which involve novel or important questions of law. Other legal matters are handled by attorneys who are assigned to the bureaus of the Department but who are responsible professionally to the Solicitor.

OFFICE OF LAND UTILIZATION

The Office of Land Utilization is charged, under Administrative Order 1466, dated April 15, 1940, with the responsibility of coordinating and integrating the land-classification, land-use, and land-management activities of the several bureaus and agencies of the Department, the establishment and development of sound forestry practices, the general administration of the soil and moisture conservation work, and the maintenance of cooperative relations with Federal, State, and private agencies concerned with the protection, conservation, and prudent use of the lands and natural resources of the United States and Alaska. The Assistant to the Secretary in Charge of Land Utilization is chairman of the Department's Water Resources Committee and cooperates with the executive Officer of that committee in the coordination of the water development programs of the Department.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management was established on July 16, 1946, through the consolidation of the General Land Office and the Grazing Service in accordance with provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1946.

The Director of the Bureau of Land Management is charged with the survey, management, and distribution of the public lands and the resources therein; the execution of all laws relating to the surveying, prospecting, locating, appropriating, entering, reconveying, and patenting of all public lands within national forests and other reservations and the conduct of scientific and professional work in the fields of land and mineral economics. He administers the mining and mineral leasing laws on lands under the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture and supervises grazing on 153,000,000 acres of Federal range in 10 Western States under the Taylor Grazing Act of June 28, 1934, in order to protect the lands, permit the highest use of the forage and other resources and at the same time retard soil erosion and facilitate flood control.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs is, under direction of the Secretary of the Interior, responsible for the management of all Indian affairs and of matters arising out of Indian relations. This includes the economic development and relief of the Indian, both tribally and as an individual; the organization of Indian tribes, including credit organizations; Indian education in boarding schools, day schools, and community centers operated by the Government, and in public schools and other nongovernmental institutions; the health, medical, and sanitation activities; the land program, involving land acquisition and adjustment, tribal enrollment, land sales, and contracts; forestry, involving forest management, fire protection, grazing; the furtherance of an agricultural extension program; irrigation, both construction and maintenance and operation; the construction and upkeep of buildings at field units; the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges on Indian lands; also health, education, and other activities in behalf of the natives of Alaska.

INDIAN ARTS AND CRAFTS BOARD

The Indian Arts and Crafts Board was created by the act of Congress approved August 27, 1935, and is composed of five members appointed by the Secretary of the Interior. Executive officers and other personnel are employed by the Board. The function of the Board is "to promote the economic welfare of the Indian tribes and the Indian wards of the Government through the development of Indian arts and crafts and the expansion of the market for the products of Indian art and craftsmanship." Broad powers are given the Board in the execution of this function, among which are the powers to engage in marketing and technical research, to engage in experimentation, to correlate activities of various governmental and private agencies in the field, to create Government trade-marks of genuineness and quality for Indian products, to establish standards and regulations for the use of such trade-marks, to license groups or individuals to use them, and to charge a fee for their use.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

The organic act of the Geological Survey, approved on March 3, 1879 (20 Stat. 377), established the office of Director of the Geological Survey under the Interior Department. Under this act it is provided that the Director shall have the direction of the Geological Survey, the classification of the public lands, and the examination of the geological structure and the mineral resources and products of the national domain. In conformity with its organic act and later legislation the Geological Survey is engaged in the preparation and publication of reports upon the geology and mineral resources of the United States and Alaska, in the investigation of strategic and deficient minerals in Latin America, and in the chemical and physical research incident to this work; in the preparation, publication, and sale of topographic maps of the United States and its dependencies; in investigating and reporting upon water resources, both surface and underground; in classifying the public lands as to their mineral and power value and in supervising the technical phases of mineral leasing on lands in which the title to the mineral resources remains in the United States.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau of Reclamation was established as an agency of the Federal Government under the Department of the Interior following the passage of the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902. This act established the "reclamation fund" from the sale of public lands "to be used in the examination and survey for and the construction and maintenance of irrigation works for the storage, diversion, and development of waters for the reclamation of arid and semiarid lands in the States and Territories * * *." As accretions from the sale of public lands diminished, the fund has been augmented by receipts from oil and mineral royalties and supplemented by direct appropriations from the General Treasury.

Under subsequent legislation, the activities of the Bureau have been expanded to include in addition to irrigation the construction and operation of hydroelectric power plants to assure more complete utilization, through multiple-purpose projects, of the water resources of the arid and semiarid areas in the 17 States bisected by or west of the 97th meridian. Municipal, industrial, and military water supplies are also augmented by reclamation projects.

The Commissioner, under the supervision of the Secretary, is in administrative charge of all the activities of the Bureau of Reclamation, including preliminary surveys and investigations of proposed projects, the preparation of plans, the construction of irrigation works and multiple-purpose dams, power development, the administration of funds provided for reclamation, the operation and maintenance of completed projects, the settlement and development of project areas, repayments from irrigation districts and water users' associations of the cost of the construction works allocated to irrigation, and return of the investment in power facilities.

Denver, Colo., is headquarters of the Branch of Design and Construction. The Bureau also has seven regional field offices: at Boise, Idaho; Sacramento, Calif.; Boulder City, Nev.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Amarillo, Tex.; Billings, Mont.; and Denver, Colo.

Bureau of Reclamation projects now operating, or under construction and authorized, will make a full or supplemental supply of irrigation water available to about 11,000,000 acres of land in the 17 Western States. Construction is proceeding on 50 projects as rapidly as available funds and materials permit.

Under way are the Colorado-Big Thompson, the vast Missouri Basin, the Central Valley, and the Columbia Basin projects, and such features as 22 dams and reservoirs, 12 power plants, 2 major pumping plants, more than 940 miles of transmission line, and several hundred miles of canals, tunnels, and siphons.

Some 31,500 acres of public lands were opened to veterans' settlement by homesteading during calendar year 1947 and work toward additional larger-scale openings in 1948 is being vigorously prosecuted.

Farmers on irrigated lands served by Reclamation projects harvested crops in 1947 with a gross value of $527,000,000, the second consecutive year that crop values exceeded a half-billion dollars. Gross crop income for 1946 and 1947 was equal to more than two-thirds the total appropriations made by the Federal Government for Reclamation in 46 years. The crops in 1947 were produced from approximately 4,460,000 acres supplied with irrigation water from Reclamation Bureau systems. Additional lands on 8 projects were being supplied with water for the first time from irrigation projects and systems completed after the close of the war.

Work is in progress on the first units of the Missouri Basin project which will ultimately make available to veterans and others more than 4,700,000 acres of new land and provide additional water for 500,000 acres now inadequately supplied. Under construction are Kortes Dam in Wyoming, Angostura Dam in South Dakota, the Boysen Dam in Wyoming, Enders Dam and Medicine Creek Dam in Nebraska, and Heart Butte Dam in North Dakota, with several other dams approaching the construction stage.

Construction progress is being made on Davis Dam on the Colorado River below Hoover Dam. Anderson Ranch Dam in Idaho is more than 94 percent complete. South Coulee, Long Lake, and Potholes Dams are under construction on the Columbia Basin project in Washington; Shadow Mountain Dam of the Colorado-Big Thompson has been completed; and construction is continuing on Horsetooth Reservoir, Granby Dam and Dike, and Mary's Lake Reservoir.

Power plant construction now under way includes installation of 324,000 kilowatts of additional capacity at Grand Coulee Dam, addition of 225,000 kilowatts capacity at Shasta Dam, the 75,000-kilowatt plant at Keswick Dam, continued work on the 225,000-kilowatt Davis Dam plant, the 45,000-kilowatt Estes plant, the 8,100-kilowatt Mary's Lake plant, the 36,000-kilowatt Kortes Dam plant, the 5,000-kilowatt Heart Mountain power plant, the 27,000-kilowatt plant at Anderson Ranch Dam, and the 15,000-kilowatt plant at Boysen Dam. Preliminary work is under way at the 30,000-kilowatt plant at Palisades Dam, the 300,000-kilowatt plant at Hungry Horse Dam, the 12,000-kilowatt plant at Glendo, and the 36,000-kilowatt plant at Canyon Ferry. In addition, plans are under way to install the last group of three 108,000-kilowatt units at Grand Coulee power plant and two additional 82,500-kilowatt units at Hoover power plant.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

Under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior the national park system is administered in accordance with the act of August 25, 1916, as amended; the act of June 8, 1906; the Executive order of June 10, 1933; the act of August 21, 1935; the act of June 23, 1936, and the act of July 19, 1940; formulates policies and directs protective work from standpoint of preservation and of enjoyment by visitors; directs construction from engineering, architectural, and landscape viewpoints; directs public interpretive service in natural sciences, history, and archeology, and provides for museum developments and is responsible for the investigation of proposed national parks, monuments, historic sites, and other park projects. Through the Office of National Capital Parks, maintains the Executive mansion and grounds. The Director is executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and is a member of the National Park Trust Fund Board, the District of Columbia Zoning Commission, and of various other commissions and committees.

NATIONAL PARK TRUST FUND BOARD

The National Park Trust Fund Board was created by the act of July 10, 1935 (49 Stat. 477), which authorizes the Board to accept, receive, hold, and administer such gifts or bequests of personal property for the benefit of, or in connection with, the National Park Service, its activities or its service, as may be approved by the Board.

ADVISORY BOARD ON NATIONAL PARKS, HISTORIC SITES, BUILDINGS, AND MONUMENTS

The Advisory Board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings, and Monuments was established by the Historic Sites Act of August 21, 1935 (49 Stat. 666). The act provides that it shall be the duty of such Board to advise on any matter regarding national parks and the administration of the Historic Sites Act submitted to it for consideration by the Secretary of the Interior. From time to time, it also may recommend policies to the Secretary pertaining to national parks and to the restoration, reconstruction, conservation, and general administration of historic and archeologic sites, buildings, and properties.

BUREAU OF MINES

The Director of the Bureau of Mines is charged with the investigation of methods of mining, especially in relation to the safety of miners, the appliances best adapted to prevent accidents, and the possible improvement of conditions under which mining operations are carried on; the treatment of ores and other mineral substances; the use of explosives and electricity; the prevention of accidents; the prevention of waste; the improvements of method in the production of petroleum and natural gas; and other inquiries and technological investigations pertinent to such industries. He has charge of tests and analyses of ores, coals, lignites, and other mineral fuel substances belonging to or for use of the United States; has charge of the collection of statistics on mineral resources and economic studies of metals and minerals produced or consumed in the United States and of statistical and other economic information pertaining to world production, distribution, and consumption of all mineral commodities; supervises all work relating to the production and conservation of helium; he has charge of issuance of licenses covering the manufacture, distribution, storage, use, or possession of all nonmilitary explosives and their ingredients. Under the provisions of section 7 (a) of the Strategic Materials Act, approved June 7, 1939 (53 Stat. 812), he is directed to investigate the extent and mode of occurrence, the development, mining, preparation, treatment, and utilization of ores and other mineral substances found in the United States or its Territories or insular possessions, which are essential to the common defense or the industrial needs of the United States and the quantities or grades of which are inadequate from known domestic sources, in order to develop domestic sources of supply, and to determine the extent and quality of deposits of such minerals, the most suitable methods of mining and beneficiating them, and the cost at which the minerals or metals may be produced. Under the provisions of the Coal Mine Inspection Act of May 7, 1941 (Public Law 49, 77th Cong.), he is authorized and empowered to make or cause to be made annual or necessary inspections and investigations in coal mines, for the purpose of obtaining information relative to health and safety conditions in such mines and of disseminating information concerning them with a view to reducing accident occurrence and ill health among those employed in coal mining. The act of April 5, 1944 (Public Law 290, 78th Cong.), authorizes him to conduct research and operate plants to demonstrate the production of synthetic liquid fuels from coal and other substances.

FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

The functions of the Fish and Wildlife Service are concerned with the conservation of the Nation's natural resources in the field of vertebrate wildlife, including the land and water mammals and birds and the fishes, reptiles, and amphibians, and also shellfishes and crustaceans. Research is undertaken to learn the habits, needs, and economic utilization of the various forms and the results are published and otherwise made available for practical application in fishery and wildlife management, including preservation and restoration in natural habitat; propagation, as of birds and fishes, under controlled conditions; demonstrations and cooperation in local suppression of injurious species; and protection and restoration by conservation-law administration.

The activities of this agency include such lines of work as (1) business administration; (2) wildlife research; (3) fishery biology; (4) Federal aid to States in wildlife restoration; (5) land acquisitions; (6) wildlife-refuge administration and management; (7) game management and conservation-law enforcement; (8) fishery industries; (9) fish culture; (10) Alaska fisheries; (11) predator and rodent control; (12) foreign activities relating to international agreements concerning fish and wildlife, including the Whaling Treaty Act; (13) river basin studies; and (14) public relations, in the dissemination of information developed through research and management and to facilitate law enforcement by acquainting the public with the nature and need of regulatory action. Most of the field work other than research is conducted throughout the United States and Alaska by a regional organization under six regional directors.

The Fish and Wildlife Service was formed on June 30, 1940, by consolidation of the former Bureaus of Fisheries and Biological Survey, both of which were transferred to the Department of the Interior on July 1, 1939—the Bureau of Fisheries, which was established in 1871, from the Department of Commerce; and the Biological Survey, established in 1885, from the Department of Agriculture. Both bureaus were originally established for research purposes, and in the course of years both had been charged with work associated with the management of the resources in their respective fields and with conservation-law enforcement.

Laws administered by the consolidated agency include the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Migratory Bird Conservation Act, and the Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp Act, which were passed to carry out treaty obligations with Canada and Mexico; the Bald Eagle Act; laws regulating interstate transportation of black bass, prohibiting illegal shipments in interstate commerce of bodies or parts of bodies of wild animals, and regulating importations of foreign species of wild birds and mammals; the Federal Aid to Wildlife Restoration Act; the Fisheries Cooperative Marketing Act; laws for the conservation under international agreement of sea otters, fur seals, walruses, and sea lions, and part of the Whaling Treaty Act; and laws for the maintenance of the fish, fur, and game resources of Alaska, and for the protection of wildlife and property on national wildlife refuges.

The fishery functions of the Service involve the promotion of trade and commerce in fishery products, as well as the conservation of fishery resources. This includes the inquiry into the causes of fluctuations in abundance of food fishes in the lakes, rivers, and coastal waters of the United States, the development of methods of husbanding these resources, including improvements in methods of fish culture and investigation of important fisheries of the Atlantic, Gulf, and Pacific coasts, with a view to determining the condition of these resources; the propagation and distribution of food fishes; the rescuing of fishes from overflowed lands and the distribution of such fishes to suitable waters; the study of the methods of the fisheries and of the preservation, utilization, and merchandising of fishery products; the collection and compilation of statistics of the fisheries; and the protection and conservation of the salmon and other fisheries of Alaska.

The Service is responsible for the administration of the fur-seal herd of the Pribilof Islands and the care of the natives of these islands. Through the agency of the Alaska Game Commission it also regulates hunting and trapping in the Territory, for the protection of big-game and fur mammals and of game and other birds.

DIVISION OF TERRITORIES AND ISLAND POSSESSIONS

By the act of March 1, 1873 (17 Stat. 484, 5 U. S. C., sec. 486), the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to exercise all the powers and perform all the duties in relation to United States Territories then exercised by law or custom by the Secretary of State. Thus the Department acquired jurisdiction over the Territory of Alaska, and later, in 1898, over Hawaii. Executive Order No. 5566 of February 27, 1931, transferred supervision over the Virgin Islands from the Navy Department to Interior; jurisdiction over certain equatorial islands in the South Pacific was added by Executive Order No. 7368 of May 13, 1936 (Baker, Howland and Jarvis) and Executive Order No. 7828 of March 3, 1938 (Canton and Enderbury). The Division of Territories and Island Possessions was created by Executive Order No. 6726, dated May 29, 1934, which simultaneously transferred to it all functions pertaining to the civil government of Puerto Rico then performed by the War Department's Bureau of Insular Affairs. Reorganization Plan No. II, effective July 1, 1939 (Pub. Res. No. 20, 76th Cong.), transferred all remaining functions, including those with respect to the Philippines, from the War Department to the Division. The responsibility with respect to the Philippines ceased with the independence of the islands on July 4, 1946. In order to concentrate all responsibility for civil government in the territories and possessions in a single division, the Secretary of the Interior issued on February 13, 1936, Order No. 1040, vesting in the Division of Territories the Department's responsibility for government in Alaska, Hawaii, and the Virgin Islands.

Under these statutes and Executive and departmental orders the Division performs a variety of services and has many duties. It is the Federal bureau with responsibility for advising the President and the Congress on all aspects of territorial policy. It acts as liaison between the Territories and all branches of the Federal Government and the general public, explaining the territorial viewpoint, protecting the territorial interests insofar as they do not conflict with Federal interests, encouraging industrial development and acting as an informational clearing house for Federal officials and private persons, associations, and organizations interested in business, commerce, trade, or travel. It assists the territorial areas in working out plans and policies for a stable economy and a political status satisfactory to the inhabitants. It aids in the drafting of legislation to be introduced in the territorial legislature or in Congress. It represents the Territories in litigation on appeal in the Federal courts, and in proceedings before Federal administrative agencies. It supplies financial and administrative services for the territorial governments in connection with personnel records and with the preparation of annual budget estimates to the Congress.

The Division carries out the duties assigned by Congress to the Secretary for the care and maintenance of the Alaska insane. It supervises the operation and administration of such federally sponsored agencies, operating in the Territories, as the Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration, which has conducted a program of relief projects; the Virgin Islands Company, which produces rum, cultivates and grinds sugarcane, and engages in other activities beneficial to the economy of the Virgin Islands; the Alaska Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, devoted to the furtherance of agricultural enterprises; the Alaska Railroad; and the Alaska Road Commission.

OIL AND GAS DIVISION

Established under authority of letter from the President of May 3, 1946, and order of the Secretary of the Interior dated May 6, 1946, to coordinate and unify Federal petroleum policy and administration with a view to the conservation of the oil and gas resources of the Nation and the achievement of petroleum security.

Under direction of the Secretary of the Interior to coordinate and unify policy and administration in respect to the functions and activities relative to oil and gas carried on by the several departments and agencies of the Federal Government; to serve as the channel of communication between the Federal Government and the petroleum industry; to serve as liaison agency of the Federal Government in its relations with the appropriate State oil and gas bodies; and to review technological developments in the field of petroleum and synthetic hydrocarbon fuels and coordinate Federal policy with respect thereto.

By Executive Order No. 9732, dated June 3, 1946, the President designated the Oil and Gas Division, in lieu of the Petroleum Conservation Division, to assist the Secretary of the Interior in administering the act of February 22, 1935 (49 Stat. 30; 15 U. S. C. 715), as amended, known as the Connally law, which prohibits the shipment in interstate and foreign commerce of petroleum or its products produced in excess of the amount permitted by State law.

DIVISION OF POWER

This Division has supervision over all functions in the Department of the Interior relating to electric power matters, including the study of power problems in those areas served by the Department's multipurpose developments and by the developments constructed and operated by the War Department from which the Secretary of the Interior has been directed by Congress to dispose of the surplus power. The Division is responsible for the supervision and coordination of the power phases of the work of the various bureaus of the Department, including the Bonneville Power Administration, Bureau of Reclamation, Office of Indian Affairs, National Park Service, the Division of Territories and Island Possessions, and the Southwestern Power Administration. This responsibility includes review of budgetary problems relating to electric power matters and correlation of the power construction programs of the Department.

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

The Bonneville Power Administration was created by act of Congress approved August 20, 1937 (50 Stat. 731; 16 U. S. C. 832), to market power generated at the Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River in Oregon and Washington. It is directed by statute to encourage the widest possible use of electric energy generated at Federal projects and to provide market outlets therefor by constructing, operating, maintaining, and improving such electric transmission lines and substations as may be necessary. By Executive order of the President issued pursuant to the authority of the act of August 30, 1935, the Administration was made the marketing agency for energy generated at the Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River in Washington. By order of the Secretary of the Interior it has also been designated as the marketing agency for energy generated at the Hungry Horse Dam on the South Fork of the Flathead River in western Montana which will be constructed and operated by the Bureau of Reclamation. In addition, the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1945 provides that power generated at the McNary Dam project and at the Snake River navigation and power project shall be marketed in accordance with existing laws covering the disposition of power generated at the Bonneville Dam. By order of the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to the Flood Control Act of 1944, the Bonneville Power Administration has since been further designated as power marketing agent for energy generated at the Foster Creek Dam to be constructed on the Columbia River and Detroit, Lookout Point, and Quartz Dams to be constructed in the Willamette River Basin.

The Bonneville and Grand Coulee Dams are operated, respectively, by the United States Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation. Power generated at the dams is sold by the Administration over a network of high voltage transmission lines in Oregon and Washington. The Grand Coulee and Bonneville power plants are capable of expansion to an aggregate installed capacity in excess of two and one-half million kilowatts.

SOUTHWESTERN POWER ADMINISTRATION

The Southwestern Power Administration was created on September 1, 1943, by order of the Secretary of the Interior, to effect the provisions of Executive Orders 9366 of July 30, 1943, and 9373 of August 30, 1943, designating the Secretary as the agent for the operation of the facilities of the Grand River Dam Authority and for the sale and distribution of all electrical energy generated at the Pensacola, Denison, and Norfork Dams in the States of Oklahoma, Texas, and Arkansas.

The Pensacola Dam was built by the Grand River Dam Authority of the State of Oklahoma, for purposes of flood control and the generation of power, on the Grand (Neosho) River out of funds provided by the Public Works Administration by way of loans and grants. The Federal Government assumed complete control of the project under Executive Order 8944 on November 21, 1941, and retained this control until September 1, 1946, at which time under Public Law 573, Seventy-ninth Congress, second session, the Pensacola project was turned back to the State authority.

The Denison and Norfork Dams were built under the direction of the Secretary of War and under the supervision of Chief of Engineers of the War Department for the purpose of improving navigation, regulation of the flow of the Red River and North Fork of the White River, controlling floods, and other beneficial uses. The Denison and Norfork Dams are being operated by the United States Corps of Engineers.

The Southwestern Power Administration has been designated by the Secretary of the Interior as the marketing agent for power and energy produced by the multi-purpose dams constructed by the War Department in the area including all of the States of Arkansas and Louisiana, all of Texas and Oklahoma east of the 99th meridian and north of the San Antonio River Basin, and all of Missouri and Kansas east of the 98th meridian and south of the Missouri River Basin.

Section 5 of the Flood Control Act of December 1944, Public Law 534, Seventy-eighth Congress, second session, provides: "Electric power and energy generated at reservoir projects under the control of the War Department and in the opinion of the Secretary of War not required in the operation of such projects shall be delivered to the Secretary of the Interior, who shall transmit and dispose of such power and energy in such manner as to encourage the most widespread use thereof at the lowest possible rates to consumers consistent with sound business principles, the rate schedules to become effective upon confirmation and approval by the Federal Power Commission. * * *"

Under the provisions of section 5, there are at present assigned to the Southwestern Power Administration 14 constructed and authorized multipurpose dams and 15 additional proposed multipurpose dams. The Administration is developing and prosecuting a comprehensive plan for distributing and marketing power from these multipurpose dams.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The Department of Agriculture is charged by the law which created it with acquiring and diffusing among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with agriculture, in the most general and comprehensive sense of the term. For that purpose it conducts a comprehensive research and educational program. It is also required to administer many other Federal laws which relate to marketing and distribution of agricultural products; the regulation of interstate commerce in food, fiber, and related products; the protection and management of the national forests, farm credit, agricultural adjustment, conservation and land use, farm tenancy, and rural rehabilitation; rural electrification; and other phases of agriculture.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics is the primary agency in the Department of Agriculture for the collection and dissemination of agricultural statistics, for economic research, and for the dissemination of the results thereof. As a staff agency of the Secretary, the Bureau also coordinates the statistical work and economic research of the Department.

The Bureau is directly responsible for: (a) acquiring, analyzing, interpreting, and diffusing useful economic information relative to agricultural production and distribution, land utilization and conservation in their broadest aspects, including farm management and practice, utilization of farm and food products, purchasing of farm supplies, farm population and rural life, farm labor, farm finance, insurance and taxation, adjustments in production to probable demands for the different farm and food products, land ownership and values, costs, prices, and income in their relation to agriculture, including causes for their variations and trends; and (b) collecting, compiling, abstracting, analyzing, summarizing, interpreting, and publishing economic and statistical data relating to agriculture and food, including crop and livestock estimates, acreage, yield, grades, staples of cotton, stocks, and value of farm crops and numbers, grades, and value of livestock and livestock products on farms.

LIBRARY

The Department library contains approximately 750,000 volumes on agriculture and the related sciences, technology, and economics, and receives currently more than 13,000 periodical and serial publications.

The dictionary card catalog of the library, containing more than a million cards, is a record of the book resources of the whole Department. It is supplemented by several extensive special indexes. These together form the most comprehensive bibliography of agriculture and the related sciences available in the United States. A Bibliography of Agriculture in printed form is issued monthly by the library. Miscellaneous bibliographies on special subjects are issued from time to time.

OFFICE OF BUDGET AND FINANCE

The Office of Budget and Finance, under the supervision of the Director of Finance, who is also the Budget Officer of the Department, functions as a staff office of the Secretary for the general direction, coordination, and supervision of the budgetary and financial affairs of the Department, including acquisition, allotment, and apportionment of funds, accounting, auditing, budgetary and financial reporting, budgetary, fiscal and procurement organization and management, purchasing, sales, warehousing, and related activities; formulation and promulgation of departmental budgetary, financial and procurement policies and procedures; review and evaluation of the budgetary, financial, and legislative aspects of program proposals; and, in cooperation with staff and program agencies, provides leadership in the development of improvements in the management and operation of departmental activities; acts as the central point of contact on budgetary, fiscal, procurement, legislative, and related matters, including organization and methods work pertaining to these activities, with the Budget Bureau, General Accounting Office, Treasury Department, the Congressional Committees on Appropriations, and other agencies concerned; and coordinates in the field the activities of Area Agricultural Equipment Committees to insure maximum effective utilization of administrative supplies and equipment owned and procured by the Department.

OFFICE FOR FOOD AND FEED CONSERVATION

The Office for Food and Feed Conservation, acting under Public Law 395 (80th Congress), is carrying forward a program aimed at protecting, extending, and enlarging supplies of food and feed. Its programs deal with proper management of food and feed resources to meet domestic needs and commitments to aid hungry nations abroad.

OFFICE OF FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL RELATIONS

The Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations is responsible for the collection, analysis, and dissemination of information relating to the foreign competition with and demand for agricultural commodities. This includes the compilation of foreign production and marketing data and statistics. It includes also investigation of agricultural and trade policies of foreign governments affecting United States agricultural interests. Such information is disseminated, through the extension service and otherwise, to farmers, farm organization leaders, officials of government, business interests, and research and educational workers.

The acquisition of such information is basic to the responsibilities of the Office in advising the Secretary on policy matters with respect to foreign relations generally, and in coordinating the activities of the Department of Agriculture with the Department of State and other agencies of the Federal Government, with respect to foreign trade.

The Office makes technical commodity and regional investigations and analyses required by the Department of Agriculture and other agencies of the Government, and collaborates with other governmental agencies in studies of foreign economic developments.

In cooperation with the Department of State, the Office also directs the program of technical collaboration with other countries for the development of strategic and complementary agricultural commodities, such as rubber, hard fibers, drugs, insecticides, beverages, and flavorings. Collaboration with other countries is carried on through exchange of experts and students for observation and training, formation of joint agricultural missions, establishment of agricultural stations in the collaborating countries, and the supplying of technical experts for service in cooperating countries.

OFFICE OF HEARING EXAMINERS

The Office of Hearing Examiners was established by Secretary's Memorandum 1180, December 9, 1946, to conform to the regulations of the Administrative Procedures Act of 1946 (Public Law 404, 79th Cong.). The Hearing Examiners hold hearings and perform related duties required by sections 7 and 8 of that act, including proceedings arising under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (7 U. S. C. 1940 ed. 601 et seq.), rate making and disciplinary proceedings under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U. S. C. 1940 ed. 181 et seq.), and disciplinary proceedings under the Commodity Exchange Act (42 Stat. 998, 49 Stat. 1941, 54 Stat. 1059), the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (7 U. S. C. 1940 ed. 499a et seq.), the Federal Seed Act (53 Stat. 1275), and the Grain Standards Act (39 Stat. 482, 54 Stat. 765).

OFFICE OF INFORMATION

The Office of Information is responsible to and acts for the Secretary in managing the total information work and related activities of the Department in Washington and the field so as to insure the preparation and dissemination of information that will enable citizens to keep informed on the purpose of the entire Department's work and to make most effective use of the governmental services administered by the Department. The Office establishes and controls over-all basic and operating policies for information work, including final responsibility for printing and processing policies, and supervises the expenditure of funds appropriated for printing and binding; it directs, integrates, and coordinates information work with the Department's basic planning, research, and action programs; it coordinates the Department's information activities with those of other Federal and State agencies; it cooperates with commercial, industrial, and other nongovernmental agencies and concerns as required in the execution of the Department's information programs; it plans, formulates, and coordinates policies for bureau, administration, and agency information programs and operations.

All available media of communication are used by the Office of Information in the execution of the Department's information programs. Department facilities are maintained in the Office of Information for the preparation, review, editing, and distribution of publications, special articles, special reports, speeches, and press releases; for the production and distribution of motion pictures; for the preparation and broadcasting of radio programs, including the production of transcriptions; and for the production and display of exhibits and other visual materials. Related activities carried on and facilities maintained by the bureaus of the Department are coordinated by the Office of Information and are under its general guidance.

OFFICE OF PERSONNEL

This Office has responsibility for the program of personnel management which aids officials in making the most effective use of the human resources in the Department; develops and promulgates Department personnel policies, and establishes and directs the maintenance of standards for position classification, salary administration, recruitment and selection, transfer and promotion, organization, training, employee relations, safety, health, and investigations. This Office represents the Department in its relations with the U. S. Civil Service Commission and, where personnel matters are concerned, acts as the liaison office with all governmental or private agencies concerned with the work of this Department.

OFFICE OF PLANT AND OPERATIONS

The Office of Plant and Operations is responsible for the housing of departmental activities; communications and records management services and programs; technical and engineering advisory services pertaining to the acquisition, utilization, and maintenance of equipment involving the application of engineering principles; general coordination of technical operations in connection with aerial photographic, planimetric, topographic, cadastral, and mosaic mapping projects and liaison with the Department of National Defense and the Bureau of the Budget on mapping and aerial survey operations; administrative and budgetary service functions for the Office of the Secretary; and certain departmental services in the District of Columbia, including telephone and telegraph, photographic, duplicating, addressing and mailing, central storage and distribution of supplies and forms, motor transport and service garage. and Department post office.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATOR, RESEARCH AND MARKETING ACT

The Research and Marketing Act of 1946 (Public Law 733) was passed by the Congress in August of 1946, and funds for carrying out its provisions became available July 30, 1947. Research which the act authorizes got under way in August, 1947. It is "An Act to provide for further research into basic laws and principles relating to agriculture, and to improve and facilitate the marketing and distribution of agricultural products." Responsibility for carrying out provisions of the act is given to the Secretary of Agriculture, or an administrator appointed by him.

The act authorizes broad research by Federal, State, and private agencies into problems of agriculture, with special emphasis on development of new uses for agricultural products, on expansion of present uses, and on improvement of marketing practices and facilities. It sets up an innovation in agricultural research, a National Advisory Committee of 11 members, at least 6 of whom are to represent producers. This Committee is to "consult with the Secretary and other officials of the Department of Agriculture * * *, make recommendations relative to research and service work authorized, and * * * assist in obtaining the cooperation of producers, farm organizations, industry groups and Federal and State agencies" in carrying out authorized research. The Committee meets at least once every 3 months.

The act also authorizes advisory committees dealing with separate commodities, such as grains, fruit, vegetables, livestock, wool, tobacco, tree nuts, and cotton. Nineteen such committees have been named. Their members represent producers, industry, government, and science. These committees meet as often as necessary.

About a fourth of funds appropriated for the fiscal year 1948 under the Research and Marketing Act goes by direct grant to States, provided they match these funds. More than half the appropriation is for research on (1) new and wider uses of agricultural commodities and their byproducts; and (2) developing a more efficient system of marketing agricultural products. About one-sixth of the money is for cooperative research with the State experiment stations. There are about a dozen broad continuing fields of activity being undertaken under the act for the 1948 fiscal year with the funds available for use by the Department. These are being pursued through many lines of work.

OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR

The Solicitor is the chief law officer of the Department. He is assisted by an Associate Solicitor on Litigation and by five Associate Solicitors in charge of the legal work arising under the various programs administered in the Department, together with their staffs, consisting of divisions under the supervision of division chiefs. The regional attorneys on the staff of the Solicitor act as legal advisers to the field offices of the Department.

The Solicitor represents the Secretary of Agriculture and the Administrator of the Farmers Home Administration in civil actions arising under the Farmers Home Administration Act of 1946 and also represents the Secretary in proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission involving freight rates on farm commodities and in appeals to the courts from the decisions of the Commission. By special assignment of the Attorney General, the Associate Solicitor on Litigation represents the Department in certain classes of cases before the United States Circuit Courts of Appeals. All other civil litigation affecting the Department is under the direction and control of the Department of Justice, with the Office of the Solicitor assisting in the preparation and trial of such cases. Criminal cases arising under the programs of the Department are reviewed for the purpose of referring them to the Department of Justice. The Solicitor also represents the Department in administrative proceedings for the promulgation of rules having the force and effect of law and in quasi-judicial hearings held in connection with the administration of various programs.

The Solicitor issues both formal and informal opinions on legal questions arising in the administration of the Department's programs and performs a variety of other legal services, such as the preparation and review of administrative rules and regulations applicable to the public, the drafting of proposed legislation, the preparation and interpretation of contracts, mortgages, leases, deeds, and similar documents, the prosecution of patent applications for employees of the Department, the examination of titles to lands to be purchased by the Department or accepted as security for loans, and the disposition of claims by and against the United States arising out of the Department's activities.

The Solicitor is also general counsel for the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, agencies within the Department.

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH ADMINISTRATION

The Administrator of Agricultural Research is responsible for the direction and integration of activities conducted by the Bureau of Agricultural and Industrial Chemistry, the Bureau of Animal Industry, the Bureau of Dairy Industry, the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils, and Agricultural Engineering, the Office of Experiment Stations, and the Agricultural Research Center. The administration was established by Executive Order 9069 of February 25, 1942, to promote economy and efficiency and to concentrate the Department's scientific work on problems that are most vital to the production and utilization of agricultural commodities. On March 19, 1947 (Secretary's Memorandum No. 1187), the Research Administrator was given the additional responsibility of coordinating all research activities of the Department, other than economic research.

Functions of agencies of the Agricultural Research Administration:

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH CENTER

The administrative organization of the Agricultural Research Center provides for the general supervision of the entire plant and the development and operation of the common facilities required by the organizations of the Department engaged in fundamental agricultural research. The reservation comprises an area of approximately 11,700 acres on which scientific research and experimental activities are conducted by 9 bureaus of the Department and by several other governmental agencies.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL CHEMISTRY

The Bureau of Agricultural and Industrial Chemistry conducts investigations and experiments in the fields of chemistry and related physical sciences, technology, and chemical engineering on problems related to the conservation and industrial utilization of agricultural commodities and wastes for foods, feeds, drugs, and nonedible products. It comprises the four large regional research laboratories, each having seven research divisions, and nine other research divisions, almost all of which are outside of the Washington area. The regional research laboratories are located at Peoria, Ill., New Orleans, La., Wyndmoor, Pa., and Albany, Calif. The administrative offices of the Bureau and the divisions of administrative services, personnel, information, and allergen research are located in the South Building of the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

The regional research laboratories are working to develop new and expand industrial uses for the principal farm commodities of their respective regions. In other divisions applied research is being directed toward the problems of processing and utilizing the products and by products of pine gum, tung nuts, sugar plants, and citrus and other fruits, the preservation of vegetables by brining or fermentation, the extraction and processing of rubber from plants, and the production of liquid motor fuels from crop wastes. Fundamental research is conducted on the chemistry and immunology of allergenic components in substances of agricultural origin, on the nature and control of enzyme action, on the toxic and other physiological effects of substances that might be considered for medicinal uses or that contaminate or exist in foods and feeds, on substances that exhibit special biological activity in or toward plants, and on the survival of pathogenic micro-organisms in processed foods.

BUREAU OF ANIMAL INDUSTRY

The Bureau of Animal Industry conducts research and administers programs primarily concerned with the protection and the development of the livestock industry of the United States; conducts scientific investigations of causes, prevention, and treatment of diseases and parasites of domestic animals, investigates the existence of such maladies, and directs or aids in their control or eradication; carries on experiments in breeding and feeding livestock, poultry, and fur-bearing animals raised in captivity and studies methods of improving the quality and the usefulness of their products: administers Federal acts regarding animal quarantine, diseased animal transportation, humane handling of livestock while in the course of interstate transportation, the production and the distribution of veterinary biological products, meat inspection, and inspection and certification of certain canned animal foods.

BUREAU OF DAIRY INDUSTRY

The Bureau of Dairy Industry devises methods for improving the producing efficiency of dairy cows through research in dairy cattle breeding, feeding and management; applies the results of such research to farmers' herds through the medium of dairy herd improvement associations; determines the nutritional requirements of dairy cattle for maintaining optimum levels of usefulness, and the value of feeds, feed constituents, and feeding regimes as sources of nutrients; the nutritional value of milk and the effect of nutrition of the cow upon the milk produced, and the physiological factors affecting the general economic usefulness of dairy cattle; improves the quality of dairy products and develops methods of manufacturing new dairy products through chemical, bacteriological, and technological research in the production and handling of milk to preserve its palatability and nutritive and sanitary qualities.

The Bureau enforces the regulations issued pursuant to law relating to the sanitary inspection of process or renovated butter.

BUREAU OF ENTOMOLOGY AND PLANT QUARANTINE

The Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine carries on investigations on insects, gives advice on how to control or use them, cooperates with State and local agencies to control and prevent the spread of injurious insects and plant diseases, advises the Secretary of Agriculture on matters relating to plant quarantines, and is responsible for the enforcement of Federal plant quarantines and regulatory orders to prevent the introduction into or spread within the United States of injurious insect pests and plant diseases, and diseases dangerous to the adult honeybee.

The research it does on insects includes studies on their classification, anatomy, physiology, habits, and responses under normal and artificial conditions. The investigations are conducted to develop information on how insects which are injurious to agriculture, forestry, animals, or annoy or injure man or destroy his possessions may be eliminated or controlled. This involves research on chemicals or other substances that may be used to prevent, destroy, attract, repel, or mitigate the severity of attacks of insects which infest vegetation, attack or annoy animals, or may be present in households or any environment whatsoever, including the study of problems relating to the composition, action, and application of such materials and the development of methods for their manufacture and use. Investigations are made on diseases and natural enemies of insects to determine ways of utilizing those which may aid in the control of injurious insect pests. Studies are made on the culture and use of honeybees and of beekeeping practices.

Under general and special authorization and in cooperation with State and local agencies, the Bureau carries on operations to eradicate, suppress, or control incipient outbreaks of insect pests and plant diseases, including those which may have gained a more or less limited foothold within the United States. It cooperates with State and local agencies in combating insects or plant diseases which occur in emergency outbreaks which unless controlled would cause extreme losses over wide areas within their normal distribution. It cooperates with agencies of the Federal Government responsible for the management of lands under control of the United States in operations to combat insect pests and plant diseases.

To prevent the entry or spread within the United States of injurious insects and plant diseases it enforces quarantines and restrictive orders, issued under authority provided in various acts of Congress, which prohibit or regulate the importation or interstate movement of injurious insects and of plants and plant products that may introduce or spread insect pests or plant diseases new to or not widely prevalent within the United States. To carry out this work it regulates and inspects the entry into the United States of railway cars and other vehicles, freight, express, and baggage from Mexico, and when necessary cleans or disinfects them. In compliance with plant-quarantine regulations it inspects at ports of entry plants and plant products that may be brought to the United States.

The Bureau inspects plants and plant products offered for export and certifies to shippers and interested parties such products in accordance with the sanitary requirements of the country to which they may be exported.

BUREAU OF HUMAN NUTRITION AND HOME ECONOMICS

The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics conducts research relating to the utility and economy of food, textiles, and other agricultural products used in the home, makes economic investigations, including housing and household buying, and disseminates information to help families use their resources advantageously.

Research of the Bureau falls into several broad fields: (1) Foods and nutrition—Facts needed by homemakers, dietitians, nutrition workers, and planning agencies are determined and assembled through studies of food values, of nutritional needs of the human body, and of methods of food preparation and preservation, including the effect of such methods on the nutritive value of foods. (2) Family economics—Research is conducted to obtain basic information on family buying habits and needs for consumer goods. The data are used in developing diet plans and other aids to the wise management of family income, also in national planning by Government agencies. (3) Textiles and clothing—Information is developed to make possible more effective use of textile fibers and fabrics for clothing and household purposes, and to assist families in the selection and care of clothing and household textiles. (4) Housing and household equipment—Studies are made of family requirements for household equipment and of the housing facilities needed for efficient housekeeping and comfortable living. These form the basis for publications to aid consumers in the intelligent buying, operating, and conserving of household equipment, and in house planning.

Research results are made available through technical and popular publications, visual educational material, and press and radio releases. The Bureau works closely with the Extension Service and other field organizations of the Department of Agriculture, and with other Government agencies, such as the Office of Education, in their programs of educating homemakers in regard to nutrition, and ways of using available goods more effectively for the well-being of their families and for the Nation's good.

BUREAU OF PLANT INDUSTRY, SOILS, AND AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING

The activities of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils, and Agricultural Engineering include investigation of plants, principally those of economic importance, soils, fertilizers, cropping methods, and engineering problems concerned with production, transportation, harvesting, and storing of crops.

Soils investigations center around the relationship between the soil and crops that grow in it. This involves a study of soils from the standpoint of their origin and their classification into main groups, of which there are more than 8,000 types. The job of classifying all of the agricultural soils of the United States—done in cooperation with State agricultural experiment stations—is now about half completed.

In addition the work with soils includes studies of their basic physical and chemical properties, studies of the microscopic plant and animal life in the soil and its effect on crops, methods of cultivation, crop rotations, and studies of materials that are added to the soil to make it more productive. The latter may include certain crops that are grown to be plowed into the soil, animal manure, lime, or commercial fertilizers. The fertilizer investigations also seek more efficient methods of manufacture and more effective ways of using these materials.

Research with plants is concerned chiefly with reducing the hazards of production and improving the quality of all crops. One of the principal ways of doing this is by breeding new strains or varieties that are resistant to diseases, insects, heat, drought, or cold. Representatives of the Bureau have visited most foreign countries and brought back thousands of plants that have been useful here, either in their original form or as breeding material.

Other important work with plants includes studies of weed control and of methods of planting, harvesting, transportation, and storage of crop plants. Efforts to control diseases involve studies of organisms that cause the disease, their life histories, and a knowledge of how they are spread to new territory. With this information it is often possible to work out practical control measures such as seed treatment, spraying, dusting of crops, or fumigation of the soil, the last for control of nematodes.

Research on agricultural engineering includes problems concerned with the handling of soils for growing crops, problems dealing with sowing, cultivating, harvesting, storing, and otherwise handling plants and plant products, including production and processing machinery and farm structures, together with other engineering problems of direct concern to agriculture, such as the development of new applications of electricity in farm living, production and handling of farm crops, and the care and feeding of farm livestock.

In addition to the experimental activities of the Bureau at the Plant Industry Station at the Agricultural Research Center, the Bureau operates field stations or laboratories in practically all the major cropping regions of the United States, a majority of its activities being in direct cooperation with the State agricultural experiment stations.

The development of the National Arboretum was begun under the act of March 4, 1927 (Public, No. 799, 69th Cong.), and funds for its operation are appropriated through the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils, and Agricultural Engineering. Pursuant to authority contained in this act, the Secretary of Agriculture created the Advisory Council of the National Arboretum. The council makes recommendations concerning the establishment and maintenance of the National Arboretum for purposes of research and education regarding tree and plant life.

OFFICE OF EXPERIMENT STATIONS

The Office of Experiment Stations administers the funds for research in agriculture and rural life made available to the experiment stations of the States, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico through annual congressional appropriations under the provisions of the Hatch, Adams, and Purnell Acts, title I of the Bankhead-Jones

Act of June 29, 1935, title I, section 9 of the Research and Marketing Act of 1946, and the supplementary acts. In administering these Federal grants the Office evaluates and approves new and revised research proposals, reviews and approves annual programs and budget allotments, and examines, in the field, the work and expenditures. An annual report on the work and expenditures of the stations is published, as required by law. The general administrative direction and supervision of the experiment station of the Department of Agriculture in Puerto Rico is a responsibility of the Office.

The Office participates in the planning and coordination of research among the experiment stations, and between the stations and the Department through advisory relationships and supervisory activities which include the examination and approval of regional research programs and of memoranda of understanding covering cooperative research. It also collects and disseminates information designed to enhance the productiveness and soundness of agricultural research programs.

COMMODITY EXCHANGE AUTHORITY

The Commodity Exchange Authority administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended.

Its functions are designed to prevent price manipulation and corners affecting agricultural commodities under the act; prevent dissemination of false and misleading crop and market information affecting prices; protect hedgers and other users of the commodity futures markets against cheating, fraud, and manipulative practices; insure the benefits of membership privileges on contract markets to cooperative associations of producers; insure trust-fund treatment of margin moneys and equities of hedgers and other traders and prevent the misuse of such funds by brokers; and provide information to the public regarding trading operations on contract markets.

The Commodity Exchange Authority supervises trading on 18 commodity exchanges designated as contract markets under the act. The following commodities are subject to regulation under the act: wheat, cotton, corn, oats, rye, barley, flaxseed, grain sorghums, millfeeds, rice, butter, eggs, Irish potatoes, wool tops, fats and oils, cottonseed, cottonseed meal, peanuts, soybeans, and soybean meal.

EXTENSION SERVICE

The Extension Service carries on the general educational work in agriculture and home economics of the Department of Agriculture and aids in making available the results of research and investigation in agriculture and home economics to those who can put the information into practice. It coordinates the extension activities of the bureaus of the Department and of the State agricultural colleges and deals with emergency situations involving Department assistance to farmers. It represents the Department in the conduct of cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics by the State agricultural colleges and the Department under the Smith-Lever, Capper-Ketcham, Bankhead-Jones, and supplementary acts of Congress. Each of the 48 States, and the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska and Puerto Rico, has a director of extension who represents jointly the Department and the State agricultural college in the administration of extension work. In each State the organization consists of a State administrative and supervisory staff, with headquarters in most cases at the State agricultural college, and county agricultural agents, county home demonstration agents, and county club agents, who have their offices usually at the county seats. The distinguishing feature of extension teaching is the field demonstration, carried on through voluntary local leaders, although other educational methods are also utilized to teach the best farm and home practices to farm and rural men, women, boys, and girls.

FARM CREDIT ADMINISTRATION

The Farm Credit Administration provides a coordinated credit system which makes available to farmers and stockmen and their cooperative organizations both long-term and short-term credit. It was created by an Executive order dated March 27, 1933, issued pursuant to the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1933, as amended by the act of March 3, 1933. The order provided for the consolidation within the Farm Credit Administration of the powers and functions of all Federal agencies dealing primarily with agricultural credit. In July 1939 the Farm Credit Administration became a part of the Department of Agriculture.

The United States is divided into 12 farm credit districts. In each district are four major credit units located in one central office. These are:

1. A Federal land bank which makes long-term mortgage loans through local cooperatives known as national farm loan associations. About 1,000 association offices serve all parts of the Nation.

2. A production credit corporation which supervises local cooperatives known as production credit associations. There are more than 500 production credit associations located at convenient points throughout the United States.

3. A district bank for cooperatives which makes loans to farmers' marketing, purchasing, and business service cooperatives.

4. A Federal intermediate credit bank which acts as a bank of discount in supplying short-term funds required by production credit associations, bank for cooperatives, other financial institutions making loans to farmers, and farmers' cooperatives.

Each unit of the Farm Credit Administration serves a distinct purpose. The local associations make and service loans; the district institutions supervise and provide funds and, in the case of the bank for cooperatives, make loans; and the headquarters office supervises and coordinates the work of the entire system. A central bank for cooperatives makes loans to large regional or national cooperatives and assists district banks for cooperatives in handling large loans. The Cooperative Research and Service Division of the Farm Credit Administration conducts research studies and service activities relating to problems of farmers' cooperatives.

Some additional functions are performed by the Farm Credit Administration. These include the limited financing program of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Washington, D. C., and the liquidation of the joint stock land banks.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION

The Farmers Home Administration provides small farmers with credit to improve farming operations or to become owners, and supplements its loans with individual guidance in farm and home management when necessary. It was established in 1946 through a merger of functions of two former agencies—the Farm Security Administration and the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Division of the Farm Credit Administration. (Public Law 731, 79th Cong.)

For farmers who cannot obtain the credit they need, at interest not exceeding 5 percent, from banks, cooperative lending agencies or other sources in their communities, the following types of financial assistance are authorized: Operating loans for buying livestock, seed, feed, fertilizer, farm equipment, supplies and other farm needs, for refinancing chattel indebtedness, and for family subsistence; 40-year farm ownership loans to buy, improve or enlarge family-type farms; and mortgage insurance for loans advanced by private lenders for the same purposes as direct farm-ownership loans. Loans are also made in the 17 Western States for water facilities. Veterans have preference for real-estate loans, and disabled veterans may obtain loans for farms smaller than economic family-type units if earned farm income plus disability benefits will provide adequate family living while repaying the loan.

FEDERAL CROP INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation was created as an agency within the Department of Agriculture under title V of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, cited as the Federal Crop Insurance Act, approved February 16, 1938. This act provided for the insurance of wheat crops and was amended June 21, 1941, to extend insurance protection to cotton crops. The 1944 agricultural appropriation acts provided that funds appropriated for the Corporation could be used for no other purpose than to liquidate existing contracts. The act was further amended December 23, 1944, to authorize the Corporation to offer crop insurance on wheat, cotton, and flax crops on a national basis beginning in 1945. The amendment also authorized trial insurance on corn and tobacco in 1945 and other crops in subsequent years in not to exceed 20 representative counties for each crop. The act was further amended August 1, 1947, to establish a maximum number of counties in which crop insurance on each commodity could be offered on 1948 and subsequent crops. These maximums are 200 counties for wheat, 56 for cotton, 50 for flax, 50 for corn, 35 for tobacco, and 20 for new trial programs.

The Corporation is now authorized to provide insurance protection against crop losses due to unavoidable hazards. The protection may not exceed 75 percent of the average yield established for the farm or the general level of the investment in the crop in the area. The Corporation may try any plans of insurance which the Board of Directors determines to be adapted to the commodity and may reinsure in 20 counties private insurance companies offering plans approved by the Board of Directors. The cash-equivalent price for premiums and indemnities may be fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture. The Board of Directors is to be composed of three Department representatives, including the Manager of the Corporation, and two members from outside Government experienced in the insurance business.

Premiums sufficient to pay indemnities and to establish a reserve for unforeseen losses are to be collected from the insured growers. To assure payment of indemnities during years of adverse insurance experience, the Corporation was provided in the orginal act with an authorized capital stock of $100,000,000 to be subscribed by the United States of America, which has been subscribed and paid in by the Secretary of the Treasury. The costs of administration are paid by direct annual appropriations.

FOREST SERVICE

Congress has designated the Forest Service as the agency of the Federal Government specifically responsible for protecting, developing, and administering certain public lands and their living resources. The job of the Forest Service also has to do with forest land in private ownership, for Congress has authorized it to help States and farm, industrial, and other owners to protect and develop such of their lands as are more valuable in forest growth than as plowland or pasture.

Broadly, responsibilities of the Forest Service are: (1) To initiate and, in cooperation with the States and with private owners, conduct programs looking to the protection, improvement, and sound management of forests in State and private ownership; (2) to protect, develop, and administer in the public interest the national-forest system and its resources, products, values, and services; (3) to conduct research in problems involving protection, development, management, renewal, and continuous use of all resources, products, values, and services of forest lands; (4) to make research and administrative findings and results available to individuals, industries, and public and private agencies generally.

The national-forest system comprises 180,069,994 acres of Government land. On these public properties forestry methods are applied in growing and harvesting timber. Grazing by livestock and big game is scientifically regulated. Sustained and, where possible, increased yields of timber, forage, and wildlife are obtained. Watersheds are managed to safeguard the supply of water for domestic, agricultural, and industrial purposes. Simple, democratic, and inexpensive forms of recreation are encouraged. Provision is also made for other forms of land and resource use.

In research, in national-forest administration, and in cooperation with States and private timberland owners, the Forest Service works in close cooperation with other branches and bureaus of the Department; its policy is guided by the Department's basic purpose of building and maintaining communities and promoting social and economic welfare locally and nationally.

PRODUCTION AND MARKETING ADMINISTRATION

The Production and Marketing Administration, established within the Department of Agriculture by Secretary's Memorandum No. 1118 of August 18, 1945, is headed by an Administrator who is also President of Commodity Credit Corporation. The three functional areas of production, Commodity Credit Corporation programs, and marketing, and PMA activities within those areas are under the direction of and coordinated by assistant administrators who are Vice Presidents of CCC. The Production and Marketing Administration branches and field offices provide the facilities for this functional coordination.

Under the general direction of the Administrator, responsibility for providing technical guidance and assistance in the formulation and administration of policies, programs, and procedures assigned to the Administration is vested in the Commodity Credit Corporation, State and county offices and committees, and staff, functional, and commodity branches, as follows:

COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION

The Commodity Credit Corporation, which was created as an agency of the United States in 1933 pursuant to the National Industrial Recovery Act and Executive Order 6340, is the financial agency whose services are used in carrying out lending, buying, selling, storage, transportation, subsidy, and price support activities of the Department of Agriculture with respect to agricultural commodities and foods. Loans are made available to producers of basic commodities—cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, rice, and peanuts—under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended and supplemented, and prices of certain other nonbasic commodities are supported under authority of the Act of July 1, 1941, as amended, and the charter powers of the Corporation. The Corporation buys, stores, and ships agricultural commodities and foods to meet the needs of foreign supply programs. It has an authorized paid-in capital of $100,000,000 and is authorized by the Act of March 8, 1938, as amended, to borrow not exceeding $4,750,000,000 at any one time on the credit of the United States. Working within the framework of the Production and Marketing Administration, the Commodity Credit Corporation has field offices in nine key cities that are responsible for execution of CCC programs, coordinating the work of the CCC field office with the complementary work of the Production and Marketing Administration, State and county committees, and the field offices of the PMA branches, establishing and maintaining working liaison with banks, warehousemen, vendors, carriers, and others participating in CCC programs, and rendering fiscal and accounting services for the field offices of PMA branches.

STATE AND COUNTY OFFICES AND COMMITTEES

Production and Marketing Administration State Offices and Committees assist in the formulation of policies and programs and are responsible for carrying out in the field certain programs requiring farmer participation, including: The agricultural conservation and adjustment program, farm marketing quotas, price support operations (as assigned), commodity loans, Sugar Act payments, and other programs of PMA which require direct dealings with farmers. They determine the production and marketing needs of the State, make recommendations as a basis for formulating and modifying policies, programs, and procedures; adapt programs to State needs; assist, as directed, in coordinating all PMA programs within the State; and work with State and local officials, other Federal agencies, farm organizations, farmers, the food processing industry, and the food trade in regard to assigned PMA programs and policies and their local implications, and provide information with respect thereto.

AUDIT BRANCH

Formulates the audit policies and directs the audit and examining activities of the Production and Marketing Administration, its agents and others financed with PMA funds, including preparation of reports and recommendations of its findings; and conducts cost analyses of commercial organizations or individuals contracting with PMA to provide financial data for use in renegotiation or termination of contracts.

BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT BRANCH

In collaboration with other Production and Marketing Administration officials this branch is responsible for the formulation of plans and policies covering all phases of administration and management, and provides the office of the Administrator and operating units of PMA in Washington and the field with the necessary administrative management assistance, including budget, personnel, administrative services, and organization and management analysis.

COMPLIANCE AND INVESTIGATION BRANCH

Investigates violations involving procurement, sales, price support, school lunch, surplus property disposal, agricultural adjustment and conservation, regulatory, and food order programs of PMA; conducts accounting investigations, and installs and services accounting systems for market administrators and others as required; and analyzes vendor's cost and profit data.

INFORMATION BRANCH

Prepares and issues current releases, background statements, and other informational material; plans and conducts informational programs on PMA activities; collaborates on issuance of technical and popular publications and plans and issues periodical publications regarding activities of PMA; arranges necessary radio coverage on PMA activities; and plans visual information work.

AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAMS BRANCH

This branch formulates and executes agricultural conservation programs concerned with all measures essential to the prevention of erosion and the maintenance and restoration of productivity of crop lands, pastures, and ranges as provided for in sections 7 to 17 of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act and the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 as amended and supplemented, based on recommendations and determinations of the PMA State Committees.

FISCAL BRANCH

Formulates policy and procedures with respect to the fiscal and related activities of PMA, CCC, its agents, and others financed with Administration funds; maintains control accounts and records, and prepares fiscal reports on financial operations; maintains detailed accounts and records of administrative and program operations of PMA and CCC as assigned; acts as Treasurer of CCC, and performs such duties as prescribed by the President, CCC.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION PROGRAMS BRANCH

Plans and directs operations under the National School Lunch Act and of the direct distribution, food preservation, and marketing programs for abundant and surplus foods; and coordinates efforts of national, State, and local officials in the improvement of nutritional standards and food habits.

MARKETING FACILITIES BRANCH

Administers the United States Warehouse Act and section 201 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 involving adjustments in freight rates and services for farm products; plans for the conservation and more efficient use of transportation equipment; recommends methods of dealing with shortages of transportation equipment; plans and assists in improving marketing facilities and methods of physical handling of food products; and issues cold storage reports.

MARKETING RESEARCH BRANCH

This branch conducts research which cuts across commodity lines, including transportation methods and development of new techniques and equipment, packing, packaging, and processing, wholesale and retail market and distribution practices; assists the Assistant Administrator for Marketing in marketing research coordination and program development and review and in serving as PMA liaison on marketing research.

PRICE SUPPORT AND FOREIGN SUPPLY BRANCH

Coordinates the development, operation, and review of Commodity Credit Corporation programs, policies, and procedures, including foreign supply programs; provides specialized economic advice and assistance on PMA and CCC policies and programs; establishes and maintains liaison with other agencies and claimants on supply program matters; and collaborates with other PMA branches and claimants to insure fulfillment of contractual and fiscal arrangements.

SHIPPING AND STORAGE BRANCH

Develops and executes, or directs the execution of a comprehensive program for shipping, storing, and delivering agricultural commodities and foods in accordance with export and domestic delivery programs; develops, recommends, and oversees the application for policies for handling shipping and storage of agricultural commodities, including contractual matters, claims determinations on losses resulting from shipping and storage, inventory management, and commodity care, and serves as liaison with Federal agencies, associations of carriers and warehousemen, and other groups on transportation and warehousing matters.

COMMODITY BRANCHES

Cotton Branch, Dairy Branch, Fats and Oils Branch, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Grain Branch, Livestock Branch, Poultry Branch, Sugar Branch, Tobacco Branch.

Each of the commodity branches has, with respect to the commodities over which it has jurisdiction, responsibility as assigned for (1) formulating programs, policies, procedures and modifications thereof, for final action by the Administrator in connection with production, adjustment, marketing, loan, purchase, subsidy, diversion, export, import, price support, farm marketing quotas, processing, distribution and other programs assigned to the Production and Marketing Administration; (2) conducting marketing research, investigations, and development work including activities assigned under the Research and Marketing Act of 1946 and other statutes, to effect improvements in handling, packaging, standardization, processing, inspection, and the development of new products, processes, and uses; (3) conducting inspection, grading, market news and other programs to effect improvements in marketing of farm products; (4) administering regulatory and marketing service acts, including marketing agreement and order programs; and (5) formulating supply estimates and allocation recommendations.

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION

The Rural Electrification Administration administers a program, established by the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, of providing central station electric service for farms, residences, and other establishments in rural areas that are without such service. As the principal means of accomplishing this, Rural Electrification Administration makes loans on a self-liquidating basis to local groups, public bodies, and utilities organized under State laws, with preference accorded to farmers' cooperatives and other nonprofit organizations, to finance the construction and operation of rural power systems. These loans are made on a maximum 35-year amortization basis for financing electrical facilities. Supplementary loans also are made to system borrowers for relending to consumers to finance the wiring of premises and acquisition of certain electrical equipment.

In the execution of this program, Rural Electrification Administration renders assistance to borrowers in the organization of cooperatives and on problems involved in the design, construction, and operation of their systems in order to achieve maximum efficiency in providing adequate electric service to their communities at a reasonable cost and protect the Government funds which are secured by mortgages on the facilities. Borrowers are assisted in extending electric service to farms and other rural establishments and in helping consumers obtain maximum benefits of electricity on the farm and in the home. In connection with these activities the Rural Electrification Administration makes studies and disseminates information concerning the progress of rural electrification.

Though the Administration does not maintain field offices, it has a field staff of engineers, auditors, and other specialists to assist borrowers on problems involved in construction, engineering, and operation of their systems.

The Rural Electrification Administration was created by Executive Order No. 7037 on May 11, 1935, as an independent agency under the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of that year. The Rural Electrification Act of 1936, approved May 20, 1936, established the present agency and made provision for a 10-year program for rural electrification loans. Under Reorganization Plan No. II the Administration became a part of the Department of Agriculture in July 1939. The Department of Agriculture Organic Act of 1944 removed the time limitation from the lending program and liberalized the loan terms.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

The Soil Conservation Service was established by the Soil Conservation Act of 1935 as a permanent agency to combat the wastage of soil and moisture resources on the farm and grazing lands of the Nation, resulting from soil erosion. Thus, the basic purpose of the Service is to aid in bringing about physical adjustments in proper land use that will better human welfare, conserve natural resources, establish a permanent and balanced agriculture, and reduce the hazards of floods, drought, and sedimentation. Work toward this objective is carried on through a coordinated program of soil and water conservation and land use. This program involves the conservation planning of individual farms and ranches, the development of group facilities for the use and disposal of water as it affects the land, and work with soil conservation districts. It also involves research and investigations into the causes and remedies of soil erosion.

Primarily, the Soil Conservation Service furnishes technical assistance to farmers and ranchers through soil conservation districts, upon the request of the districts. These districts are local units of State government, organized and managed under State law, by landowners and operators. The technical assistance is given to help landowners and operators in districts treat each acre according to its needs and use each acre according to its individual capabilities. The complete conservation farm plan which the farmer and technician work out together is patterned to fit the individual problems and conditions on each acre of the entire farm, as determined by slope, soil, degree of erosion, climate, and other physical and economic factors. The plan takes into account the beneficial use to which water should be put, and the development of a sound use for each land unit or area. It must suit the economic and other needs of the individual farmer.

Under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, the service administers the Land Utilization Program, which deals with the conservation and utilization of submarginal lands acquired by the Federal Government. As part of the functions authorized by the Case-Wheeler Act of 1939, the Service handles the agricultural aspects of the development of irrigation projects constructed under the authorities of this act which include acquiring and preparing project land for irrigation, selling such land in economic, family-size units to qualified veterans and others, and supplying technical advice and assistance to project farmers.

Under the Flood Control Acts, the Soil Conservation Service conducts preliminary examinations and surveys for the retardation of runoff and water flow and the prevention of erosion on watersheds designated by Congress and assigned to the Service by the Department of Agriculture. Watershed areas which are chiefly agricultural have been assigned to the Soil Conservation Service. The survey reports which recommend watershed treatment serve as a basis for congressional authorization to carry out works of improvement in general conformity with the recommendations contained in the reports. The Service carries out that part of flood control operations concerned primarily with the farmlands and with related water and sediment controls. These operations are carried out over a designated period of time, varying in accordance with congressional authorizations.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE

The Secretary directs the activities of the Department, which include population, agricultural, and other censuses; collection, analysis, and dissemination of commercial statistics; promotion of foreign and domestic commerce; coastal and geodetic surveys; establishment of commodity weights, measures, and standards; supervision of the issuance of patents and the registration of trade-marks; the establishment and maintenance of aids to air navigation, the certification of airmen, the inspection and registration of aircraft; supervision of the issuance of weather forecasts and warnings; development of inland waterway transportation; supervision of the operation of Government-owned barge lines; declassification and dissemination of scientific and technical data.

The Secretary is responsible for the direction and coordination of all the activities of the Department.

UNDER SECRETARY OF COMMERCE

The Under Secretary serves as the principal deputy of the Secretary in all matters affecting the Department of Commerce and exercises general supervision over its several bureaus and offices.

ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF COMMERCE

The Assistant Secretary for Foreign and Domestic Commerce exercises immediate direction and supervision over the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. He directs the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and performs all the duties and assumes all the responsibilities required by law in that connection.

The Assistant Secretary for Aeronautics is responsible for the immediate direction and supervision of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the Weather Bureau, and performs such other duties as may be prescribed by the Secretary.

EXECUTIVE ASSISTANT TO THE SECRETARY

The executive assistant to the Secretary serves as general assistant to the Secretary on executive matters, and is responsible for the over-all administrative management of the Department, including the coordination of the functions of the several offices and bureaus, and the supervision of the Offices of Budget and Management, Personnel Administration and Administrative Services.

SOLICITOR

The Solicitor is the chief law officer of the Department of Commerce. He acts as legal adviser to the Secretary, the Under Secretary, and the Assistant Secretaries and directs and supervisers all legal activities of the Department.

OFFICE OF BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT

The Office of Budget and Management is responsible for advising and assisting the Secretary and other officials of the Department in developing broad management and budget policies and programs necessary to achieve the various objectives, and develop the organization through which the Secretary can most effectively direct and coordinate the activities of the Department of Commerce; developing budget programs designed to assure the provision of funds necessary effectively to discharge the functions and responsibilities of the Department; developing and coordinating all administrative practices and procedures of the Department; developing systems to insure the most economical use of manpower, equipment, travel, communications, and printing services and other facilities of the Department in the performance of its essential functions; establishing accounting and auditing policies for the Department and providing fiscal services for the Office of the Secretary and Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

OFFICE OF PUBLICATIONS

The Office of Publications serves as a medium through which information concerning the program and facilities of the Department to aid business and industry will be transmitted to the public; establishes policies for the distribution of economic, scientific, and other technical materials developed through research and analysis in the various bureaus and offices of the Department; reviews material prepared in the bureaus and offices of the Department for conformity with general policy; conducts relations with the press, and issues releases to the public.

OFFICE OF PROGRAM PLANNING

The Office of Program Planning serves as a staff office to the Secretary on matters relating to the program and policy of the Department. Upon its establishment in October 1945 the Office assumed functions previously performed by the Program Committee, which was appointed by the Secretary of Commerce in April 1945 to review and make recommendations on the existing functions and policies of the Department.

OFFICE OF PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

The Office of Personnel Administration is charged with the administration of the personnel program of the Department, including recruitment, placement and appointments, classification of positions, promotion of employees, initiation and supervision of personnel training programs, maintenance of service ratings, direction of programs of personnel relations, hearing of grievances, and counseling of employees, reviewing of recommendations for disciplinary actions and dismissals, promotion and supervision of safety and health programs and other functions of a related nature.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

The Office of Administrative Services is responsible for directing the application of administrative service policies throughout the Department; providing the several service facilities of the Office of the Secretary and the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce; and exercising administrative supervision over the buildings occupied by the Department, the care of all vehicles under the Office of the Secretary, the receipt, distribution, and transmission of the mail, and the custody of the Department's seal and the records and files of the Secretary's office.

OFFICE OF TECHNICAL SERVICES

The Office of Technical Services promotes the foreign and domestic commerce by providing business and industry with technical information and services designed to increase the technological productivity of the Nation. To this end, it serves as the focal point within the Department of Commerce for the handling of all technological inquiries from business and the general public, except those specifically concerned with the programs of the other scientific agencies of the Department. In discharging this responsibility the Office of Technical Services collects, compiles, and disseminates scientific and technological data of value to industry, including information available from enemy countries, reciprocating foreign governments, other Government agencies, and public and private agencies performing technical and scientific research either under Government sponsorship or otherwise; assists the Secretary in discharging his responsibilities under Executive Order 9865, or subsequent orders or statutes covering the same subject, providing for the protection abroad of inventions resulting from Government-sponsored research; brings to the attention of American inventors in cooperation with the National Inventors Council and representatives of the National Military Establishment and such other Federal agencies as may wish representation, the technical problems of Government groups with the aim of stimulating speedier solutions; and liquidates all existing research contracts entered into under the authority contained in the Department of Commerce Appropriation Act for 1947 (P. L. 490—79th Cong.) as rapidly as possible.

INLAND WATERWAYS CORPORATION

The Inland Waterways Corporation is charged with the development of national inland waterway transportation under the Transportation Act of 1920 and Public, No. 185, Sixty-eighth Congress, approved June 3, 1924, as amended by Public, No. 601, Seventieth Congress, approved May 29, 1928. By virtue of Reorganization Plan No. II issued pursuant to the Reorganization Act of 1939, approved April 3, 1939, the direction and supervision of the Corporation was transferred, effective July 1, 1939, from the Secretary of War to the Secretary of Commerce.

The Corporation operates barge lines on several important water routes. It is charged with investigating types of floating and terminal equipment suitable for various waterways and operates such equipment. It is required to establish tariff and interchange arrangements between rail and water carriers, and to promote and encourage waterway traffic, and otherwise function generally as the official Government inland waterways transportation agency.

DIVISION OF LIQUIDATION

The Division of Liquidation was established on June 1, 1947, for the purpose of providing an organization to carry out functions transferred to the Secretary of Commerce in connection with liquidating the activities of various wartime agencies.

BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

The Bureau of the Census collects and publishes data on the characteristics and activities of the people of the United States in the fields of population, housing, agriculture, manufactures, business, mineral industries, State and local governments, foreign trade, and other subjects. The data collected are basic to the work of public agencies, business, and research groups, as well as others, and are extensively used as primary source material. From the information gathered by the Bureau of the Census, a factual record of conditions in the United States can be constructed. In addition, the technical staff of the Bureau acts in an advisory capacity for other Government agencies that have their statistical inquiries edited, coded, and tabulated by the Bureau of the Census on a reimbursable basis. Complete tabulating equipment facilities maintained to perform the machine work required in carrying out the Bureau's programs are available to other governmental agencies also, for specialized work or overflow jobs beyond their capacity. A complete file of maps covering all of the counties of the United States and all incorporated places of 2,500 or more population is maintained. These maps are used currently in planning for census surveys.

The decennial census includes most of the subjects mentioned above. Many of these inquiries are also conducted at more frequent intervals. Because the Bureau has this vast amount of basic data, special studies are constantly in progress for specific purposes. Research utilizing these data is conducted along with research in the techniques involved in conducting the various major censuses and surveys covering the United States.

Through cooperative arrangements with foreign governments the Bureau provides source materials in the United States on foreign censuses, gives foreign students and visiting technicians assistance in their studies of American statistical methods, and assists other governments with plans for censuses and large-scale collection and compilation of statistics.

Population and housing.—Beginning with 1790, a census of population has been taken every 10 years. From a very simple questionnaire in the earlier censuses, the schedule of inquiries has been expanded to meet changing conditions and increasing demands for basic population data. The sixteenth decennial population census (1940) showed the number of people classified not only by such basic items as age, sex, color or race, marital status, place of birth, and farm residence, but also provided data on such subjects as education, migration, employment status, occupation, and wage and salary income. The first census of housing, taken together with the census of population in 1940, enumerated the number of occupied and vacant dwelling units and such characteristics of these units as value or rent, occupancy status, number of rooms, facilities and equipment, utilities, and mortgage data, and the type of structure, exterior material, and year built.

Special censuses are made at the request of local communities and population estimates are prepared from time to time within the Bureau. Monthly surveys of the population are made to provide current information on employment, unemployment, migration, and other subjects. Other current surveys and studies are made by the Bureau of the Census at the request of other governmental agencies.

The Bureau's files of population census records provide evidence concerning age, place of birth, and other personal data often needed for use in obtaining employment, old age assistance, insurance, and other benefits. Records of these facts in the census are obtainable only by the person concerned or his authorized representative.

Agriculture.—In the field of agriculture a census is taken every 5 years. The characteristics enumerated for each farm include tenure, acreage, values, farm employment, and facilities, with detailed information on livestock and crops. Once every 10 years censuses of irrigation and drainage enterprises are taken. Statistics on cotton ginned are issued currently.

Industry.—The manufactures statistics program provides information on the production of manufactured commodities, as well as the movement of materials from the mine, farm and forest through the various stages of manufacturing. This information is obtained through comprehensive censuses of manufacturing and mineral industries, covering all industries and commodities, and a system of monthly, quarterly, and annual commodity surveys, covering the output of the most important products.

Although provided for by law on a biennial basis, the Census of Manufactures was not taken between 1939 and 1947, having been set aside under the authority contained in the Second War Powers Act. The next biennial census of manufactures is being resumed in 1948, covering the year 1947. The census of mineral industries is now authorized to be taken in 1950 covering 1949. These censuses furnish statistical information on the output of commodities, the consumption of materials, the number of persons employed, the man-hours worked, the wages paid, the value of production, the costs of materials, supplies, etc., the value of inventories, and the expenditures for plant and equipment, etc.

The current manufacturing statistics program presently includes about 85 carefully selected monthly, quarterly, and annual surveys needed to measure the more important aspects of industrial operations. Data are obtained on measures of activity, production, or shipments and, items for selected commodities such as the volume of new and unfilled orders and inventories.

Business.—The business statistics program includes censuses of business, the previous ones having been taken in 1929, 1933, 1935, and 1939, and monthly and annual surveys of business activity. The 1939 Census of Business covered retail and wholesale trade, the service trades, and contract construction. For various kinds of business, classified by legal form of organization and type of operation, information as to number of establishments, volume of business, employment, and payroll generally is made available for small geographic areas—counties and most cities—as well as for States, census regions, and the entire country. Information for such items as analysis of sales, operating costs, credit operations, inventories and occupational classification of employees is made available for the entire country and, generally, for the larger geographic areas, such as census regions and States.

Current business statistics are published for the independent retail trades and include monthly figures on sales trends, classified by kind of business for the United States and for a number of large cities and other local areas; over-all retail trade figures also are made available for a large number of additional localities. For retail chain stores and mail-order houses, monthly dollar volume figures by kind of business are provided on a national basis. Annual inventory trends in the retail field are also made available nationally by kind of business.

Other currently published business statistics include monthly figures on trends in receipts of the major personal service trades for the United States and for selected urban areas. Also monthly figures on trends in sales, inventories, accounts receivable, and collections are published for the United States and for major geographic divisions for each of the important wholesale trades. Other information published monthly includes (1) figures on wholesaler and packer stocks of a selected list of foods, (2) data on trends in public warehouse occupancy nationally and in selected cities, and (3) data on trends in manufacturers' sales of confectionery and competitive chocolate products.

Governments.—Statistics on such subjects as taxes and other revenue, expenditure, debt, number of employees, pay rolls, and organization are compiled and published for States and the various types of local governments in the United States. Every 10 years a census of governments is taken that covers all governmental units, the most recent having been for the year 1942. Annual publications on governmental finances include reports on States, counties, and cities over 25,000, and on total (including Federal as well as State and local) governmental revenue and debt. Similar totals on governmental employment are published quarterly, and supplemented annually by more detailed figures regarding State distribution of public employment, and State, city, and county employment.

Foreign trade.—Statistical information on United States imports and exports is compiled by the Bureau from information contained in shipper's export declarations and import entries, filed with Collectors of Customs by exporters and importers and transmitted to the Bureau. The statistics compiled include information on the dollar value, and net quantity (bales, square yards, gallons, etc.) of United States imports and exports by commodities, countries of origin and destination, and customs districts through which the merchandise enters and leaves the United States. In addition, information is compiled on the shipping weight of vessel imports and exports, the domestic to foreign port routing of the shipments by vessel and the nationality of the carrier for shipments by vessel. Information is also compiled on exports under lend-lease, UNRRA, Greek-Turkish aid, and the foreign relief and foreign aid programs. Information is also available on the number and tonnage of vessels entering and clearing in the foreign trade of the United States. Publication of statistics of foreign trade was suspended for security reasons during the war period. This restriction has now been removed except for information on trade in uranium and thorium.

Statistical abstract.—The Statistical Abstract of the United States, published annually by the Bureau, is the official compendium of the Federal Government. Assembled in one compact volume is information selected from publications and special reports of all Government agencies as well as material from nongovernmental sources on most of the important phases of the social, economic, and industrial life of the Nation. Supplements to the abstract furnish more details for more specialized uses.

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce was created by the act of August 23, 1912 (37 Stat. 407; 5 U. S. C. 597), to foster, promote and develop the Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States.

The Bureau now consists of the Office of International Trade; the Office of Small Business; the Office of Domestic Commerce; the Office of Business Economics, the Office of Field Service, and the Office of Materials Distribution.

In carrying out its functions, the Bureau offers the businessmen personal and published aids in the field of International and Domestic Commerce and Industry. These aids are based on (1) the intimate knowledge of business both at home and abroad; (2) the storehouse of information and statistics of interest and value to business which are evaluated, interpreted, and analyzed for easy assimilation; and (3) a constant scrutiny of trends through which the changing needs of business are anticipated and special helps are created.

The Bureau maintains detailed information on over 750,000 foreign firms and individuals engaged in International Trade and prepares trade list classifications by commodities and by countries covering both distributors and suppliers. It offers on request special service reports and information as to trade opportunities for both exporters and importers. It assists in settling trade disputes and is a source of information on reciprocal trade agreements, tariff rates, and requested shipping documents.

The Bureau is the major source in Government for data on foreign exchange developments, foreign trade finance, foreign public finance and banking and the currency situation abroad. It prepares an official annual report on the balance of international payments in the United States.

The Bureau's efforts in serving the domestic economy are directed toward (1) studying the broad trends and developments in the national economy, and (2) devising specific and practical plans to help solve business problems.

Included among the regular statistical reports are: monthly estimates of income payments to individuals; industry survey on new orders, shipments, and inventories in manufacturing; retail sales and consumer expenditures; and transportation activity. On a quarterly basis reports are prepared on national income and national product and corporation profits. The Bureau also makes annual estimates of the indebtedness of the United States and of income payments by States.

Individual service in the form of advice, suggestions, or pertinent information on business operations is available either from the Bureau in Washington or from any of the field offices of the Department of Commerce. To insure the widest possible distribution the results of Bureau statistical and economic research are made available in published form.

Foreign Commerce Weekly and the Survey of Current Business are the chief periodic publications of the Bureau. Numerous occasional publications and informational circulars covering a wide range of business activity are issued, of which the following are typical. Small Business and Regulation of Pricing Practices (Econ. Series No. 61, 15¢); Transportation Factors in the Location of the Cast Iron Pipe Industry (Econ. Series No. 63, 25¢); Foreign Marks-of-Origin Regulations (Econ. Series No. 62, 35¢); State and Regional Market Indicators, 1939–45 (Econ. The six major offices, the fixed objective of each, and their constituent divisions follow:

OFFICE OF INDUSTRY COOPERATION

The Office of Industry Cooperation was established in January 1948, pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 395, Eightieth Congress, and Executive Order 9919, to serve as the principal agent of the Department of Commerce in the preparation, negotiation, presentation for approval by the Secretary, and submission to the Attorney General, of proposed voluntary agreements with representatives of business and industry.

OFFICE OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE

The purpose of this Office is to foster and promote the foreign commerce of the United States. More specifically, its objectives are to promote United States trade interests in exports and imports in the interest of maintaining full production and full employment; to encourage and facilitate the expansion and balanced growth of international trade; to promote the stability of international economic relations; to cooperate with other nations in the solving of trade and exchange problems through international organizations and conferences and otherwise; to facilitate United States participation in peacetime trade with former enemy and other areas in which normal channels of trade do not exist; to reduce obstacles to and restrictions upon international trade; and, through the extension of the Second Decontrol Act, to control the exports of the United States as an adjustment to the problem of world economic recovery.

OFFICE OF SMALL BUSINESS

This Office was established to ascertain the specific needs of small business; to represent small business before other Government agencies both at the policy and operating levels; to cooperate in the protection of small business opportunities for development and growth; and to furnish small businesses with business and economic information available within the Department of Commerce and other Federal agencies, and from other public and private sources; all for the purpose of strengthening and perpetuating small business in a free enterprise system which will stimulate full production and full employment.

OFFICE OF DOMESTIC COMMERCE

The purpose of this Office is to develop and carry out activities, programs, and policies which will foster and promote domestic commerce. More specifically its objectives are to stimulate the profitable operation of industry in order to achieve full and efficient production and employment; to assist domestic industry and business in its problems relating to production, construction, distribution, marketing, and transportation; to provide commodity, industry, and marketing analysis and information as basic guides for industry and business in trade maintenance and expansion programs; to maintain close contact with trade associations and other groups representing industry; to assist official State planning and development agencies and other organized groups of a local and regional character in the assembly, analysis and application of economic data for purposes of economic development of areas and regions; to assist domestic industry in its relations with other Government departments and agencies; and to advocate such Government policies, procedures, and laws as will stimulate industry and commerce.

OFFICE OF BUSINESS ECONOMICS

This Office provides basic indicators of the condition of the national economy, current analyses of the business situation and trends, and technical research in the functioning of the economy—including the development and analysis of measures of the national income, gross national product, and international balance of payments of the United States—thus establishing a factual groundwork for use in business operations and in policy formulation by the Department with respect to Government activities insofar as they affect economic movements and tendencies.

OFFICE OF FIELD SERVICE

The field programs of the Office of International Trade, the Office of Small Business, the Office of Domestic Commerce, the Office of Business Economics, the Office of Publications, and the Office of Technical Services in the Secretary's Office are carried out by the Office of Field Service at the regional and district levels throughout the United States. The Department Field Offices are also responsible for the dissemination in the field of the reports, data, and statistical statements published by the Bureau of the Census and for making available to the business community the facilities of other primary organization units of the Department of Commerce.

The office of Field Service directs the activities of the following field offices:

OFFICE OF MATERIALS DISTRIBUTION

The Office of Materials Distribution was established on May 4, 1947, to carry out certain functions transferred to the Secretary of Commerce by Executive Order 9841 and assigned to the Office of Materials Distribution, including functions under the provisions of the Second Decontrol Act of 1947 as they apply to priorities assistance in production and delivery for export, and to tin and tin products, and antimony; cinchona bark, quinine and quinidine; and functions under the provisions of Public Law 469, Eightieth Congress, to strengthen the common defense by maintaining an adequate domestic rubber-producing industry.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

Established by act of Congress approved March 3, 1901, The National Bureau of Standards is the principal agency of the Federal Government for fundamental research in physics, mathematics, chemistry, and engineering. It has the custody of the national standards of physical measurement in terms of which all working standards in research laboratories and industry are calibrated, and carries on necessary research leading to improvement in such standards and methods of measurement. It also has a general responsibility for basic research in physics, applied mathematics, chemistry, and engineering, and for development of improved methods for testing materials and equipment. It determines physical constants and properties of materials, tests and calibrates standard measuring apparatus and reference standards, and studies technical processes.

A large part of the work of the Bureau is concerned with the development of specifications for the purchase of supplies (other than foods and drugs) for the Federal Government and with rendering advisory service to Government agencies on scientific and technical matters. Cooperation is extended to States, industries, and national organizations in the development of specifications and engineering and safety codes.

Generally speaking, each Section of the Bureau is engaged in basic research, in testing, in instrument calibration, in aiding in the preparation of specifications and codes, in rendering advisory service to other Government agencies, and in supplying information in its field to the public. An indication of the scope of the Bureau's activities is seen in the fourteen component technical divisions: electricity and optics, metrology, heat and power, atomic physics, chemistry, mechanics, organic and fibrous materials, metallurgy, mineral products, building technology, applied mathematics, electronics, radio propagation, and commodity standards.

The Bureau's functions are exercised for the National Government, State governments, and under certain conditions (as in tests involving comparison with the national standards), and subject to reasonable fees, the general public. Its unique research and testing facilities are used to discover and evaluate material standards and to solve basic technical problems. In connection with its work on standards of measurement, the Bureau assists in size standardization of containers and products, in promoting systematic inspection of trade weights and measures, and facilitates research in science and technology through the standardization of techniques of measurement and measuring instruments. The establishment of more precise values for the standard constants furnishes an exact basis for scientific experiment and design and makes possible the efficient technical control of industrial processes. It cooperates with tax-supported purchasing agencies, industries, and national organizations in developing specifications and facilitating their use; it encourages the application of the latest developments in the utilization and standardization of building materials and in the development of engineering and safety codes, simplified practice recommendations, and commercial standards of quality and performance. The Bureau's work on standards of quality sets up attainable standards to assure high utility in the products of industry and furnishes a scientific basis for fair dealing by promoting truthful branding and advertising. Standards of performance are usually specifications for the operative efficiency of machines or devices; their ultimate purpose is to make exact knowledge the basis of the buyer's choice and to clarify the understanding between the manufacturer, distributor, retailer, and consumer. To establish standards of practice the Bureau collates data and formulates codes of practice for public utilities and other services. This work makes possible a single impersonal standard of practice mutually agreed upon by all concerned and clearly defined in measurable terms.

Special attention is at present devoted to the fields of building materials and structures, metallurgy, high polymers, thermodynamics, electronics, radio propagation, nuclear physics, applied mathematics, and hydraulics. Typical current projects include high voltage and X-ray research; microwave studies, measurements, and standardizations; electronic computers; radio communication in relation to ionosphere conditions all over the world, as recorded by a chain of observing stations working under Bureau direction; motor vehicle and airplane fuels and lubricants; spectroscopic analysis of metals and alloys; the use of the mass spectrometer for the rapid and precise determination of the composition of complex materials, such as hydrocarbons; electroplating and vitreous enamels; control of active acidity through the development and standardization of pH indicators; strength of airplane and other structures; the development of standard methods of test for synthetic rubbers and organic plastics; properties of metals and alloys at high and low temperatures and under conditions of stress and corrosion; the development of improved varieties of optical glass, and the control of the properties of glass through heat treatment; and numerous problems connected with the building industry, including the efficiency of heating plants and of insulating materials.

Under a research associate plan, industrial groups can send to the Bureau qualified technical men to work on problems of mutual interest to the Government and industry. The results are published by the Bureau. Sixty-eight research associates are stationed in the laboratories at the present time.

The results of the Bureau's work are made available through its monthly Journal of Research, Technical News Bulletin, and several series of nonperiodical publications.

UNITED STATES COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY

The Coast and Geodetic Survey is charged with (1) the survey of the coasts of the United States and its possessions, to insure the safe navigation of coastal and intracoastal waters; (2) the determination of geographical positions and elevations in the interior of the country, to coordinate the coastal surveys and provide a framework for mapping and other engineering work; (3) observations of tides and currents, to furnish datum planes to engineers and tide and current tables to mariners; (4) the compilation and publishing of nautical charts to meet the needs of marine commerce; (5) the compilation and publishing of aeronautical charts for use in air navigation; (6) observations of the earth's magnetism in all parts of the country, to furnish magnetic information essential to the mariner, aviator, land surveyor, radio engineer and others; and (7) seismological observations and investigations, to supply data required in designing structures to reduce the earthquake hazard.

These duties require hydrographic, topographic, and air-photographic surveys along the coasts, including the rivers to the head of tidewater, for determining the depths of the waters and the configuration of the adjacent land, tide observations for determination of basic datum planes for elevations and for prediction of high and low waters in tide tables; current observations for determining water movements and for prediction of slacks and strengths in current tables; base measurements; determination of latitudes, longitudes, and azimuths by astronomical observations, triangulation, and traverse; determination of elevations by spirit leveling or by vertical angles; magnetic surveys in all parts of the country, including the operation of magnetic observatories; the operation of instruments recording building vibrations and strong earthquake motions, and cooperation with non-Federal agencies engaged in this work; and gravity measurements throughout the country.

The results of these surveys and studies are analyzed in the Washington office and published as nautical and aeronautical charts; annual tables of tide and current predictions; charts showing magnetic declination; annual lists of United States earthquakes; publications of geographic positions and elevations; Coast Pilots; and as annual and special publications covering all of its other activities, including comprehensive manuals prescribing the methods which obtain for its various classes of surveying.

PATENT OFFICE

The Commissioner of Patents is charged with the administration of the patent laws and supervision of all matters relating to the granting of letters patent for inventions, and the registration of trade-marks.

WEATHER BUREAU

The Weather Bureau, in keeping with organic legislation, renders the following services: (1) Observes and reports the weather in more than 400 fully manned stations in the United States, Alaska, and other possessions, and coordinates and makes available the weather reports and records received from about 9,300 additional cooperating stations and individuals in the same areas. (2) Coordinates and assists with the international exchange of weather reports and information for domestic and international purposes. (3) Forecasts the weather throughout the United States and its possessions and over the adjacent oceans; issues and broadly disseminates frost, cold wave, storm and hurricane warnings for the benefit of all affected thereby. (Specialized arrangements are maintained for prompt dissemination and effective application of hurricane and storm warnings, and for cold wave and blizzard forecasts, with general and localized coverage through the free cooperation of commercial radio stations.) (4) Maintains a crop weather reporting and agricultural weather advisory service closely coordinated with agricultural producers and with agencies estimating and guiding the course of farm production, and develops and makes available a vast amount of weather and climatic data adapted to these and other uses; maintains specialized fruit-frost protection and fire-weather forecasting services in areas where these needs are concentrated. (5) Maintains airway weather reporting and flight weather advisory and forecasting services for the air routes of the United States, and for international air commerce in conformity with the provisions of the International Civil Aviation Organization, and provides weather information on request for the individual (nonscheduled) airplane pilot contemplating flight. (6) Operates a river and flood warning service for major streams of the United States, and advises the public extensively regarding hazards to life and property when floods occur or threaten; informs irrigation and water-power interests regarding seasonal prospects for water supply from snow. (7) Pursues and fosters investigations in meteorological science and makes practical tests of new techniques and theories in weather forecasting and in improved methods for measuring atmospheric conditions; develops climatic statistics and investigates the climatic factors in various economic and scientific fields.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS AUTHORITY

The Civil Aeronautics Authority was created by the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, approved June 23, 1938, "to promote the development and safety and to provide for the regulation of civil aeronautics." As originally established it was composed of the five-member Authority, the Administrator, and the three-member Air Safety Board.

By Reorganization Plans Nos. III and IV, effective June 30, 1940, issued pursuant to the Reorganization Act of 1939, the name of the five-member Authority was changed to the Civil Aeronautics Board and certain of its functions were transferred to the Administrator. The Air Safety Board was abolished and its functions were transferred to the Civil Aeronautics Board. The Civil Aeronautics Board and the Administrator were transferred to the Department of Commerce, with the proviso that the Board should exercise its functions of rule-making, adjudication, and investigation independently of the Secretary of Commerce. Reorganization Plan IV further provided that the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics, whose functions would be administered under the direction and supervision of the Secretary of Commerce, and the Civil Aeronautics Board would constitute the Civil Aeronautics Authority. However, the Civil Aeronautics Authority performs no functions, all of its responsibilities being discharged by either the Civil Aeronautics Administration or the Civil Aeronautics Board.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS ADMINISTRATION

The Administrator of Civil Aeronautics is appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The organization through which the Administrator exercises his functions is designated as the Civil Aeronautics Administration by Departmental Order No. 52 of the Secretary of Commerce.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF ADMINISTRATOR

In accordance with the provisions of the Civil Aeronautics Act, as amended, the Administrator is empowered and directed to encourage and foster the development of civil aeronautics and air commerce in the United States and abroad, to encourage and make plans for the orderly development of civil airways and the establishment thereof and landing areas, to install and maintain air navigation facilities, to perform the functions of aircraft registration and safety regulation described in titles V and VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 (except the functions of prescribing safety standards, rules, and regulations and of suspending and revoking certificates after hearing), to exercise the power contained in section 1101 of the Civil Aeronautics Act relating to air hazards, and to exercise the powers and perform the duties contained in the Washington National Airport Act of 1940; is responsible for the enforcement of safety rules, regulations, and standards; the emergency suspension of certificates, and the compromise of civil penalties for violations of titles V and VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act; recommends to the Civil Aeronautics Board proposed standards, rules, and regulations designed to promote safety in air commerce.

ACTIVITIES

Safety regulations.—Determines original and continuing compliance with applicable safety standards and issues appropriate airman, aircraft, air carrier operating, air navigation facility, and air agency certificates and ratings and other aeronautical documents; registration of aircraft, recordation of aircraft conveyances, maintenance of records of persons and things subject to regulation; issuance of permits for operation of foreign civil aircraft into and within the United States; enforcement of civil aviation rules and regulations; examination and inspection of interstate, overseas, and foreign scheduled air carrier operations; examination of persons and material for rating and certification; issuance of emergency suspension of safety certificates subject to ratification by the Administrator.

Aviation information.—Collection and dissemination of information relative to civil aeronautics; compilation and publication of statistics and other data pertinent to the development of air commerce and the aeronautical industry; compilation and distribution to civilian airmen, service airmen, and other interested persons of current information pertaining to airports and air navigation facilities on civil airways; editorial review of material used in aeronautical education; preparation and distribution of visual and other types of safety educational materials; the maintenance of a comprehensive aeronautical research library.

Federal airways.—This activity covers the planning, construction, maintenance, and operation of the Federal Airways System, which has been extended throughout Alaska and other United States possessions and now totals 45,393 miles of airways implemented with air navigation facilities for day and night contact and instrument operations, not including the transoceanic routes. The duties include aerial and ground surveys for lay-out of new routes; selection of sites; preparation of plans and specifications for facilities; supervision of construction, negotiation of power, communication, and telephone contracts; purchase and installation of radio range and communication equipment; operates the airways traffic control system; maintains and operates Government-owned air navigation facilities on the Federal Airways System.

Technical development.—Engages in development work, engineering, flight, and service testing in the fields of aircraft components and accessories, air navigation devices, airports, and radio navigation and communication.

Staff Programs Office.—Serves the Administrator in planning and coordinating activities involving program planning, the Air Coordinating Committee, the International Civil Aviation Organization, and aeronautical standardization.

Aviation training.—This office, through its Education Division, brings to schools and colleges the benefit of the Administration's technical services and experiences in all phases of aviation with the primary aim of promoting understanding of and participation in aviation activities. It also administers and supervises Government programs involving the aeronautical training of foreign nationals in this country. It encourages and assists the widespread development of civilian flight training. This office also conducts such training and educational programs as are required to serve the needs of the Administration for qualified personnel.

Federal airport program.—The Administrator formulates broad policies, develops and presents plans for, directs and coordinates the execution of a national system of airports suitable and adaptable to the future needs of civil aviation and national security. The Administrator makes plans for the orderly development of airports throughout the United States, Territories, and possessions, renders airport advisory services to public agencies and civic groups, prepares and distributes bulletins and publications on airport planning and design, collects and maintains information on facilities available at all civil airports. The Administrator directs and supervises the Federal airport program and fosters State and local legislation needed to facilitate airport development and protect the approaches to airports by zoning and property acquisition.

Washington National Airport.—The Administrator has control over, and responsibility for, the care, operation, maintenance, and protection of the Washington National Airport located at Gravelly Point, together with the power to make and amend such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary in the operation of this airport. The Administrator is also empowered to lease, upon such terms as he may deem proper, space or property within or upon the airport for purposes essential or appropriate to the operation of the airport.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

THE SECRETARY OF LABOR

The Secretary of Labor is charged with the duty of fostering, promoting, and developing the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, improving their working conditions, and advancing their opportunities for profitable employment. The Secretary has authority to direct the collecting and collating of full and complete statistics of the conditions of labor and the products and distribution of the products of the same and to call upon other departments of the Government for statistical data and results obtained by them and to collate, arrange, and publish such statistical information so obtained in such manner as may seem wise. The Secretary's duties also comprise the gathering and publication of information regarding labor interest and labor controversies in this and other countries; the promulgation and supervision of the enforcement of certain maximum hour, minimum wage, child labor, safety and health stipulations in connection with Government supply contracts; and to cause to be published such results of these investigations as may seem wise and appropriate.

The law creating the Department of Labor provides that all duties performed and all power and authority possessed or exercised by the head of any executive department at the time of the passage of the said law, in and over any bureau, office, officer, board, branch, or division of the public service by said act transferred to the Department of Labor, or any business arising therefrom or pertaining thereto, or in relation to the duties performed by and authority conferred by law upon such bureau, officer, office, board, branch, or division of the public service, whether of an appellate or advisory character or otherwise, are vested in and exercised by the head of the said Department of Labor. The Secretary of Labor is also given authority to make such special investigations and reports to the President or Congress as may be required by them or which may be deemed necessary, and to report annually to Congress upon the work of the Department of Labor.

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF LABOR

The Under Secretary performs such duties as shall be prescribed by the Secretary or may be required by law. He becomes the Acting Secretary of Labor in the absence of the Secretary.

ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF LABOR

The three Assistant Secretaries of Labor perform such duties as shall be prescribed by the Secretary or may be required by law.

SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE SECRETARY OF LABOR

The Special Assistant to the Secretary of Labor performs such duties as shall be prescribed by the Secretary.

OFFICE OF INTERNATIONAL LABOR AFFAIRS

The Office of International Labor Affairs is responsible for the supervision, direction, policy formulation, and coordination of the international activities of the Department, subject to the over-all policy guidance of the Under Secretary.

OFFICE OF INFORMATION

The Office of Information supervises all editing, illustrating, printing, and distribution of publications and reports. It acts as a liaison between the Department and the press, radio, and picture services, and other Government agencies concerned with the collection and dissemination of information and facts in which the Department has an interest. It acts as a clearing house for information prepared for the press and for labor and management groups as a result of the research, service, and regulatory programs of the Department. It correlates information on the results of specialized work along different lines and presents material so that it will be of the most practical value to wage earners and the general public.

LIBRARY

The duties of the librarian are to obtain and circulate currently to the staffs of the different bureaus such books and periodicals as they need in their investigations, to supply reference material and bibliographical assistance in connection with special inquiries, to prepare selected annotated bibliographies on special subjects, and to aid students of labor problems through reading-room service and correspondence.

OFFICE OF PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

The Director of Personnel Administration serves as advisor to the Secretary of Labor and the Under Secretary on personnel matters and represents them with the bureaus of the Department, the Civil Service Commission, the Bureau of the Budget, the Federal Personnel Council, other Government agencies, and the public in general on personnel and related matters; is responsible for the preparation of correspondence on major personnel policies, for Congressional relationships on personnel matters; formulates policies, rules, regulations, standards and procedures governing personnel administration in the Department, and administers the personnel program; represents the Department in conferences with officers and employees and with employee organizations on personnel and related matters; performs such other functions as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Labor.

OFFICE OF BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT

The Office of Budget and Management, under the supervision of the Director of the office, who is also the Chief Clerk and Budget Officer of the Department, is responsible for budgetary, administrative planning, accounting and auditing functions, the coordination of current programs of the several bureaus, the control of expenditutes from departmental appropriations, the procurement of supplies, equipment and printing and binding, and over-all service functions of the Department.

OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR

The Solicitor is the chief law officer of the Department of Labor. Responsible to him are an immediate staff of assistants and various attorneys stationed in field offices of the Department throughout the United States and in Puerto Rico.

The Solicitor acts as legal adviser to the Secretary of Labor and to the other administrative officers of the Department. The Solicitor and attorneys on his staff perform legal services for the Wage and Hour Division and its Child Labor Branch, the Public Contracts Division, the Bureau of Labor Standards, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Women's Bureau, the United States Employment Service, the Bureau of Apprenticeship, the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights, and for other bureaus within the Department, and assist in the preparation of administrative rules and regulations and interpretations of statutes administered by the Department. They assist also in the preparation of and reports on proposed legislation. His staff prepares or reviews all contracts and bonds entered into by or with the Department.

The Solicitor's Office supervises the predetermination of prevailing rates of wages on Federal contracts pursuant to the Davis-Bacon law and the Federal Airport Act.

The Solicitor is in charge of the litigation of the Department in the courts. He represents the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division and the Secretary of Labor in all court actions involving the Fair Labor Standards Act. In litigation involving departmental activities handled by the Department of Justice, the Solicitor's Office assists in the preparation, trial, and briefing of the cases. Members of the staff of the Solicitor's Office prosecute complaints of violations of the Public Contracts Act, and represent the Department officials in administrative hearings.

The regional attorneys on the staff of the Solicitor act as legal advisers to the regional offices of the Department. Their principal activity relates to the administration and enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Public Contracts Act, and other laws under the jurisdiction of the Department.

BUREAU OF APPRENTICESHIP

The Bureau of Apprenticeship functions under the provisions of an act of August 16, 1937, "to enable the Department of Labor to formulate and promote the furtherance of labor standards necessary to safeguard the welfare of apprentices and to cooperate with the States in the promotion of such standards."

In cooperation with national advisory committees appointed by the Secretary of Labor, the Bureau develops and formulates standards of apprenticeship for the training of skilled workers by industry. Such standards deal primarily with the welfare of the apprentice as an employed worker and cover such matters as adequate work experience, length of apprenticeship, provisions for supervision of apprentices, related technical instruction, and employer-employee participation in the training.

Through its field staff the Bureau, in cooperation with State apprenticeship agencies, endeavors to extend the application of these standards by bringing together employer and labor for the formulation of programs of apprenticeship and by giving technical and advisory service in the development of programs and in their maintenance and operation.

The office of the Director is responsible for the application of national policies with respect to apprenticeship through direction of the headquarters and field organization of the agency; for the encouragement of State apprentices activities; and for the maintenance of liaison with established State apprenticeship agencies.

The headquarters staff acts as a clearing house for the national apprenticeship program. This is done by providing services for the review of apprenticeship programs with regard to conformity with accepted standards and practices and for the registration of apprentices and apprenticeship programs; by conducting research on matters affecting apprenticeship and compiling statistics regarding apprentices and apprenticeship programs; and by the preparation, publication, and dissemination of information for the advancement of understanding of apprenticeship and the creation of general interest in the training of skilled workers through apprenticeship.

BUREAU OF LABOR STANDARDS

To develop desirable labor standards in labor law administration, and labor legislation; to make specific recommendations concerning methods and measures designed to improve the working conditions of wage-earners; to promote amicable industrial relations and labor-management cooperation; in so doing to make directly available to interested organizations and persons the existing resources of the Department of Labor and pertinent material obtainable from public or private sources.

To strengthen State labor departments and through them assist industry and labor in reducing industrial accidents and occupational diseases; to promote Federal-State cooperation in labor-law administration and in the implementation of international labor standards; to exercise the authority and perform the functions conferred on the Secretary of Labor by the Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947 pertaining to the filing of certain data by labor organizations.

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS

The statutory functions of the Bureau of Labor Statistics are "to acquire and diffuse among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with labor, in the most general and comprehensive sense of that word, and especially upon its relation to capital, the hours of labor, the earnings of laboring men and women, and the means of promoting their material, social, intellectual, and moral prosperity." Other specific continuing duties have been added from time to time by acts or resolutions of Congress, by Executive order, and by the Secretary of Labor.

The Bureau collects data and publishes reports on employment, pay rolls, earnings, and hours of labor in manufacturing, trade, public service, building construction, and other industries; labor turn-over; labor supply; occupational outlook; productivity of labor; union wages and the wage situation in particular industries; industrial relations; industrial hazards; conditions of labor in foreign countries; consumers' cooperation; consumer and industrial prices; and changes in prices paid by families of wage earners and moderate-income workers in large cities of the United States. Special studies are made from time to time of a large number of other subjects affecting the welfare of workers.

The information acquired by the Bureau in the discharge of its duties is disseminated by means of special bulletins on specific subjects and the Monthly Labor Review.

BUREAU OF VETERANS' REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

The Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights was established by the Secretary of Labor under the acts of March 31, 1947 (Public Law 26, 80th Cong., ch. 26), and July 30, 1947 (Public Law 271, 80th Cong., ch. 361). Its function is to assist former members of the armed forces and of the merchant marine to exercise their reemployment rights as provided by section 8 of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, and related reemployment statutes. The Director of the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights is responsible to the Under Secretary of Labor for the administration of the program. An Assistant for Field Liaison is responsible to the Director for the operation of field offices which are located in thirty-six principal cities.

Assistance to veterans and employers on reemployment problems is provided in local communities by local Veterans' Reemployment Rights committeemen who serve on a voluntary basis under the guidance of the Division's field representatives. Local offices of the State employment services affiliated with the United States Employment Service also serve as the initial points of contact for veterans seeking advice with respect to statutory reemployment rights. These local employment offices furnish published information and, when necessary, refer veterans to local Volunteer Reemployment committeemen, who in turn aid in resolving controversies with employers over reemployment rights by negotiation and voluntary settlement.

These procedures are designed to promote the expeditious settlement within the local community of controversies between veterans and employers. Controversies not so resolved are forwarded by the Volunteer Reemployment committeemen to the nearest field representative of the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights, who makes further efforts to negotiate amicable settlement. In those cases where a settlement is not reached, the matter is referred to the local United States Attorney, if the veteran so requests. The veteran is entitled to be represented by the United States Attorney in court action if the latter is reasonably satisfied that the veteran is entitled to the benefits of the reemployment statutes.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

The United States Employment Service was established in the Department of Labor by act of Congress approved June 6, 1933. Its functions were to promote and develop a national system of public employment offices, to maintain a veterans' service to be devoted to securing employment for veterans, to maintain a farm placement service, to maintain a public employment service for the District of Columbia, and to assist in establishing and maintaining systems of public employment offices in the several States, and to assist in coordinating such systems throughout the country and in increasing their usefulness by developing and prescribing minimum standards of efficiency, promoting uniformity in administrative and statistical procedure, furnishing information as to opportunities for employment, and other information of value in the operation of the system, and maintaining a system for clearing labor between the several States.

Under the Reorganization Plan No. I, effective July 1, 1939, the United States Employment Service was consolidated with the unemployment compensation functions in the Social Security Board. As of January 1, 1942, the State employment services were brought directly under Federal operation, and a few months later the entire United States Employment Service was made a part of the War Manpower Commission. During the war period the United States Employment Service was the main operating arm of the War Manpower Commission, and carried the major burden of the manpower program. At that time, by War Manpower Commission directive, the farm placement service of the United States Employment Service, was transferred to the Department of Agriculture, as an emergency war measure.

By Executive order of September 19, 1945, the War Manpower Commission was liquidated, and the United States Employment Service was transferred to the Department of Labor. Subsequently, effective November 16, 1946, the local public employment offices were returned to State operation under the act of July 26, 1946, Public Law 549, Seventy-ninth Congress.

On January 1, 1948, the farm placement service was returned from the Department of Agriculture to the United States Employment Service, by the act of April 28, 1947, Public Law No. 40, Eightieth Congress.

WAGE AND HOUR AND PUBLIC CONTRACTS DIVISIONS

Under the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (act of June 25, 1938, Public No. 718, 75th Cong.), the Wage and Hour Division, headed by an administrator appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, was established in the Department of Labor to enforce the wage and hour provisions of the act. The Division of Public Contracts was created by order of the Secretary of Labor on October 6, 1936, to administer the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (act of June 30, 1936, Public No. 846, 74th Cong.), which requires Government supply contracts over $10,000 to contain certain minimum wage, hour, child labor, convict labor, safety and health stipulations, and charges the Secretary of Labor with the duty of enforcing these standards. The Wage and Hour Division and the Division of Public Contracts were combined and consolidated by administrative order of the Secretary of Labor on October 15, 1942.

The duties and responsibilities of the Divisions in administering the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 are to see that employees engaged in interstate commerce or in producing goods for interstate commerce, or in any process or occupation necessary to the production of goods for interstate commerce, are compensated in conformity with the wage-and-hour standards. The Divisions are authorized to bring suit to enjoin employers who do not meet these standards from further violations of the act and also to bring suit to enjoin the shipment in interstate commerce of goods produced in violation of the act.

Under the general direction and control of the Attorney General, criminal proceedings may be instituted against willful violators of the wage-and-hour standards and a fine of not more than $10,000 imposed upon conviction for a first offense, and a prison sentence of not more than 6 months may be imposed upon conviction for a second or subsequent offense.

The minimum wage of 40 cents an hour, which was to go into effect not later than October 24, 1945, for all covered workers not specifically exempt, was reached for all industries more than a year in advance of the date set through industry committee procedure provided by the Congress. About 20,500,000 workers are covered under the act.

Overtime pay at the rate of time and one-half the employee's regular hourly rate must be paid to covered workers for all hours worked over 40 in a workweek unless they are wholly or partially exempt from the overtime provisions of the statute. Employers subject to the statute are prohibited from shipping in interstate commerce any goods produced in an establishment in or about which oppressive child labor was employed within 30 days prior to the removal of such goods from the establishment.

Under the Walsh-Healey Act, the minimum wages required are those which have been determined by the Secretary of Labor to be the prevailing minimum wage rates for specific industries. Overtime pay at the rate of at least time and one-half the employee's basic hourly rate is required to be paid for all hours worked over 8 in a day or 40 in a week, whichever yields the greater compensation. Child labor is restricted and convict labor prohibited. The act imposes severe liabilities for violation, including cancellation of contract, liability for liquidated damages, for unpaid wages, and for violations of the child labor provisions, and possible "blacklisting" of firms for 3 years to prevent their obtaining further Government contracts.

By General Order of the Secretary of Labor dated June 30, 1947, pursuant to his authority under the President's Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1946, the functions, personnel, property, and records of the Child Labor and Youth Employment Branch of the Division of Labor Standards were transferred to the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions. Assignment of these functions requires the Divisions to engage in the promotion of better working conditions for minors, the development and promotion of standards for their employment protection, measures for advancing their opportunities for suitable employment, and the determination of which occupations are hazardous. In connection therewith, the Divisions also advise with other Bureaus in the Department, and with State and other public and private agencies, and with individuals on these and other matters affecting young workers; collect information on these matters, and make available through consultation and otherwise, their special resources, information and experience in meeting problems involving working minors or arising in the promotion and administration of laws for their protection, and perform such other related duties as the Secretary of Labor may by regulation or order require.

WOMEN'S BUREAU

This Bureau was established as a statutory bureau under act of June 5, 1920, "An act to establish in the Department of Labor a bureau to be known as the Women's Bureau." Its functions are to formulate standards and policies to promote the welfare of wage-earning women, to improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency, and advance their opportunities for profitable employment. The Bureau has authority to investigate and report to the Department upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of women in industry. The Director of the Bureau publishes the results of these investigations in the manner and to such extent as the Secretary of Labor may prescribe.

The Bureau is devoting its attention to the problems of employment and readjustment women face in the period of reconversion and in this connection is conducting research, holding conferences with interested agencies, and formulating plans and policies to integrate women workers into a peacetime economy designed for the best good of the whole people. The basic work of the Bureau is concerned with the occupations and conditions of work for the employment of women, and advising on labor legislation for women.

INDEPENDENT OFFICES, AGENCIES, AND ESTABLISHMENTS

AMERICAN BATTLE MONUMENTS COMMISSION

The American Battle Monuments Commission was created by act of Congress approved March 4, 1923. It derives its authority from this and subsequent acts and Executive orders (U. S. C. title 36, ch. 8; 48 Stat., pp. 284–285; Executive Orders Nos. 6614, 6690, 9704, and 9873; Public Law 456, June 26, 1946).

The principal functions of the Commission are (1) to administer and maintain World War I American national cemeteries and memorials in Europe; (2) to prepare plans and estimates for the erection of suitable memorials to mark and commemorate the services of the American armed forces and to erect and maintain memorials in the United States and at such places outside the United States where the American armed forces have served (World War II) or shall hereafter serve as the Commission shall determine; (3) to erect and maintain works of architecture and art in permanent American military cemeteries located outside the United States, its Territories and possessions; (4) to control as to materials and design, provide regulations for, and supervise the erection of, all memorial monuments and buildings in American military cemeteries located outside of the United States and its Territories and possessions; (5) to control as to materials and design, provide regulations for, and supervise the erection of, all memorial monuments and buildings commemorating the services of the American armed forces erected in any foreign country or political division thereof which may authorize the Commission to perform such functions, or upon federally owned or controlled property in the United States or in its Territories and possessions, except national cemeteries; and (6) to administer and maintain the Mexico City National Cemetery, Mexico City, Mexico.

CARIBBEAN COMMISSION

As a result of an exchange of notes between the Governments of the United States and the United Kingdom, a joint communiqué was issued March 9, 1942, announcing the creation of the Anglo-American Caribbean Commission. In 1945 the Governments of France and the Netherlands accepted invitations extended to them by the United States and the United Kingdom to become full members of the Commission, now known as the Caribbean Commission. An agreement establishing the expanded Caribbean Commission was signed at Washington on October 30, 1946. Legislation authorizing participation by the United States in the Commission was passed by Congress and approved by the President on March 4, 1948.

The purpose of the Commission is to encourage and strengthen social and economic cooperation among the four member nations and their possessions and colonies in the Caribbean, and to avoid unnecessary duplication of research. It is concerned primarily with matters pertaining to labor, agriculture, housing, health, education, social welfare, finance, economics, and related subjects in the territories under the United States, British, French, and Netherlands flags within the Caribbean area. In its studies and in the formulation of its recommendations, the Commission is charged with bearing in mind the desirability of close cooperation in social and economic matters between all regions adjacent to the Caribbean. It serves as an advisory and expediting body and works with the appropriate United States, British, French, and Netherlands agencies that have administrative responsibility in regard to the problem in question.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

The Civil Aeronautics Board, as distinguished from the Civil Aeronautics Administration, is an independent agency composed of five members, appointed by the President with the confirmation of the Senate. The President annually designates one of the members as chairman and another as vice-chairman. The Board, established effective June 30, 1940, pursuant to Reorganization Plans III and IV, exercises the functions of rule making (including the prescription of rules, regulations, and standards), adjudication, and investigation as prescribed in the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938.

In expressing the purpose of the Congress to protect the public by providing for economic stability in the air transport industry, and in order that the public might have the continuing enjoyment of adequate and sufficient air transportation services and, at the same time, be assured of the maintenance of high standards of safety, the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 sets forth the basic principles which guide the Board and prescribes the authority pursuant to which it discharges its responsibilities.

The mission of the Board is to foster and encourage the development of an air transportation system which will be adequate to the present and future needs of the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States, the postal service, and the national defense; to preserve the inherent advantages of air transportation, and to regard as in the public interest competition to the extent necessary to assure the sound development of an air transportation system adjusted to the national needs; and to regulate air commerce in such manner as to best promote its development and safety.

In general, the Board performs four chief functions: (1) regulation of the economic aspects of United States air carrier operation, both domestic and international; (2) promulgation of safety standards in the form of civil air regulations; (3) investigation and analysis of aircraft accidents; (4) cooperation and assistance in establishing an international air transportation pattern mutually advantageous to the nations of the world. These functions are briefly described as follows:

Economic Regulation.—The Board grants or denies "certificates of public convenience and necessity" to American flag carriers for both domestic and international operation and "permits" to foreign carriers; prescribes or approves rates and rate practices of air carriers and fixes mail rate compensation; fosters the safe and expeditious transportation of mail and seeks to insure that reasonable and adequate service to the public is rendered by air carriers; prevents unfair methods of competition or discrimination; approves or disapproves business relationships between air carriers, including contracts, agreements, interlocking relationships, consolidations, mergers, and acquisitions of control. The Board investigates upon complaint or upon its own initiative anything done or omitted to be done by any person or group in contravention of the provisions of the Civil Aeronautics Act; takes appropriate action to enforce the Act.

Safety Regulation.—The Board prescribes safety rules and regulations; including standards for the issuance of airman certificates, aircraft type, production and airworthiness certificates, and air carrier operating certificates; and has the power to suspend or revoke such certificates.

Accident Investigation and Analysis.—The Board prescribes rules of notification and report of accidents involving civil aircraft; reviews reports of all accidents and investigates certain classes of accidents, ascertaining the facts, circumstances, and determining the probable causes. Formal reports by the Board are made public when deemed to be in the public interest. The Board conducts special studies and research, establishing basic causative and statistical factors and prepares air safety bulletins for the purpose of reducing aircraft accidents and preventing their recurrence.

International Civil Aviation.—The Board consults with and assists the State Department in the negotiation of agreements with foreign governments for the establishment or development of air transportation, air navigation, air routes, and services; keeps informed with respect to operations of foreign air lines and foreign aviation policies. The Board provides information for and coordinates with the International Civil Aviation Organization in the development of all international safety and operational standards. The Board contributes to the expense and personnel requirements of the Air Coordinating Committee, the chairman of the Board serving as cochairman of the Committee; provides information and advice in the Committee's examination of aviation problems and in its recommendations establishing the United States viewpoint on international aviation.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

The purpose of the Civil Service Act (Jan. 16, 1883), as declared in its title, is "to regulate and improve the civil service of the United States." It provides for the appointment of three commissioners, not more than two of whom shall be adherents of the same political party, and makes it the duty of the Commission to aid the President, as he may request, in preparing suitable rules for carrying the act into effect. The act requires that, as nearly as the conditions of good administration will warrant, the rules shall provide, among other things, for open competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the classified service, the making of appointments from among those passing with highest grades, and apportionment of appointments in the departments at Washington among the States and Territories, and a period of probation before absolute appointment. It prohibits the use of official authority to coerce the political action of any person or body. The act also provides for investigations touching the enforcement of the rules, and forbids, under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or both, the solicitation by any person in the service of the United States of contributions to be used for political purposes from persons in such service, or the collection of such contributions by any person in a Government building.

The Retirement Act of May 22, 1920, as amended, places under the Commission the entire administration of that act. The Commission also administers the Canal Zone Retirement Act and the Alaska Railroad Retirement Act.

The Commission was organized on March 9, 1883. The first classification of the service applied to the departments at Washington and to post offices and customhouses having as many as 50 employees, embracing 13,924 employees.

During the calendar year ending December 31, 1947, 609,700 appointments to full-time positions throughout the United States were made. At the end of December 1947, there were 1,766,100 employees in the executive branch of the Federal Government in continental United States. Of this number, 195,700 were employed in the Washington, D. C., metropolitan area.

Examinations are held in the principal cities throughout the country through the agency of local boards of examiners, of which there are approximately 5,000. The members of these boards are detailed from other branches of the service.

The Commission also holds examinations in the Canal Zone, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR AND CHIEF EXAMINER

Serves as the chief technical and executive officer of the Commission; plans, directs, controls, and is responsible for the technical and administrative work of the various divisions, field offices, and local boards of examiners, and the Commission's business and fiscal operations; serves as the principal consultant to the Commissioners and formulates and develops matters of policy, interpretation, and procedure.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

Responsible for general administrative direction over the Budget and Finance Division, Office Services Division, and the Library, as well as the management planning functions of the Commission.

EXAMINING AND PLACEMENT DIVISION

Through examinations and recruiting programs, develops and maintains a supply of personnel qualified for Federal employment; furnishes lists of qualified eligibles to Federal agencies; approves and cooperates in carrying out joint recruiting agreements with Federal agencies; assists Federal agencies in improving work standards and skills of personnel; administers the system for reinstatement, transfer, and promotion of Federal employees under Civil Service Regulations; reviews examination ratings for accuracy and compliance with established procedure upon request of competitors; passes on qualifications necessary for persons proposed for promotion, transfer, reinstatement, and status classification; interviews applicants for Federal employment or transfer; provides an information center for answering public inquiries; directs and supervises the work of agency Committees of Expert Examiners established for the purpose of conducting examinations for filling scientific, professional, and technical positions in the departmental service in Washington, D. C.

BUDGET AND FINANCE DIVISION

Responsible for the preparation of estimates, statements, and auditing of expenditures; conduct of all budgetary matters, including analysis of work reports to appraise activities and work loads; has charge of accounts covering general business operations of the main office and field offices.

BOARD OF APPEALS AND REVIEW

Reviews the record and passes upon the merit of appeals from ratings in postmaster examinations; appeals from debarment from examination on account of unsuitability, or other unfavorable action on suitability; appeals from action taken in retirement cases; appeals under Section 14 of the Veterans' Preference Act.

PERSONNEL CLASSIFICATION DIVISION

Investigates the duties and responsibilities of positions within the scope of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, and allocates them into services, classes, and grades; prepares class specifications setting forth classification standards; investigates problems relative to the extension of the Classification Act to positions in the field service and administers classification following extensions made thereto under the provisions of the Ramspeck Act of November 26, 1940 (54 Stat. 1211); organizes and supervises the operation and procedures of efficiency rating boards of review established in Federal agencies under authority of the Ramspeck Act; administers laws relating to retention preference in reductions in force and decides appeals from proposed actions in reductions in force.

SERVICE RECORD DIVISION

Maintains service records of employees in the executive civil service; acts on cases involving the granting of classified status; acts on cases of violation of the civil-service law or rules by administrative officers or employees; maintains statistics on the apportionment of positions among the States and Territories and prepares reports showing condition of the apportionment.

INFORMATION DIVISION

Disseminates information to press and public on activities of the Federal classified service; prepares public-address material for use by Commission officials and others; prepares the Commission's annual report; compiles the Official Register of the United States.

INSPECTION DIVISION

Inspects and reviews, in the offices of the various agencies, the functioning of delegated personnel operations, and secures adherence to required standards and procedures; inspects and reviews the operations of Civil Service Committees of Expert Examiners.

RETIREMENT DIVISION

Administers all civil retirement systems under the Commission's jurisdiction involving the granting of annuities, refund of employees' contributions in cases of separation from the service or death, the maintenance and control of retirement accounts, and the preparation of actuarial data required for the proper operation of the retirement acts.

INVESTIGATIONS DIVISION

Studies and analyzes, with a view to its development and improvement, the Commission's investigative program, under which investigations are conducted; maintains confidential investigative files and releases information therefrom to other Federal agencies in order to prevent duplication of investigations; administers system for fingerprinting Federal employees; prepares training and instructional material for investigators.

MEDICAL DIVISION

Determines physical requirements for employment in the classified civil service; passes on physical fitness of applicants; plans physical examination procedures; recruits and examines personnel in medical and related fields; conducts research studies pertaining to disability retirement and sick leave, with particular reference to their bearing on the adequacy of (a) physical requirements for entering the Government service and (b) measures for promoting the health and safety of Government employees; advises the Commission on the medical aspects of disability retirement cases; renders advisory service to other Government agencies on medical matters; provides for physical examinations of disability retirement applicants and annuitants and determines whether such individuals are totally disabled for useful and efficient service in the positions held or previously occupied.

OFFICE SERVICES DIVISION

Supervises procurement and maintenance of supplies and equipment, provision and assignment of space, and provision of mail, files, telephone, messenger, and processing services.

PERSONNEL DIVISION

Has general direction and supervision of personnel matters in the Commission's organization, such as appointments, transfers, promotions, reductions, removals, position classifications, retirement, and efficiency ratings. Supervises programs for improving employee morale and hears grievances; consults with administrative heads with respect to organization problems.

LOYALTY REVIEW BOARD

Makes rules and regulations to implement and coordinate the Federal employees loyalty program; reviews and decides appeals where persons are refused employment or removed from employment on grounds relating to loyalty; disseminates information pertinent to employee loyalty programs; makes reports and submits recommendations to the Civil Service Commission for transmission to the President relating to the employee loyalty program.

COMMISSION OF FINE ARTS

By act approved May 17, 1910, Congress created as a permanent body the National Commission of Fine Arts. The Commission is "composed of seven well-qualified judges of the fine arts," who are appointed by the President and serve for a period of 4 years each, and until their successors are appointed and qualified.

Under the provisions of this organic act Congress directs that "It shall be the duty of the Commission to advise upon the location of statues, fountains, and monuments in the public squares, streets, and parks in the District of Columbia, and upon the selection of models for statues, fountains, and monuments erected under the authority of the United States and upon the selection of the artists for the execution of same. It shall be the duty of the officer charged by law to determine such questions in each case to call for such advice. The foregoing provisions of this act shall not apply to the Capitol Building of the United States and the building of the Library of Congress. The Commission shall also advise generally upon questions of art when required to do so by the President or by any committee of either House of Congress."

By Executive order dated October 25, 1910, the President directed that "Plans for no public building to be erected in the District of Columbia for the General Government shall be hereafter finally approved by the officer duly authorized until after such officer shall have submitted the plans to the Commission of Fine Arts created under the act of Congress of May 17, 1910, for its comment and advice."

On February 2, 1912, the President directed the Commission to advise the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds in regard to the improvement of any of the grounds in the city of Washington under his charge whenever such advice is asked for by that officer. That officer now uniformly consults the Commission regarding details of the development of all the parks and reservations under his control.

On November 28, 1913, the President issued the following Executive order: "It is hereby ordered that whenever new structures are to be erected in the District of Columbia under the direction of the Federal Government which affect in any important way the appearance of the city, or whenever questions involving matters of art and with which the Federal Government is concerned are to be determined, final action shall not be taken until such plans and questions have been submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts designated under the act of Congress of May 17, 1910, for comment and advice."

On July 28, 1921, the President issued the following Executive order: "It is hereby ordered that essential matters relating to the design of medals, insignia, and coins produced by the executive departments, also the design of statues, fountains, and monuments, and all important plans for parks and all public buildings, constructed by the executive departments or the District of Columbia, which in any essential way affect the appearance of the city of Washington, or the District of Columbia, shall be submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts for advice as to the merits of such designs before the executive officer having charge of the same shall approve thereof."

In order that the development of the District of Columbia may proceed harmoniously both under Federal and District jurisdictions, the President has requested the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia to consult the Commission of Fine Arts on matters of art falling under their jurisdiction and control.

The duties of the Commission, therefore, now embrace advising upon the location of statues, fountains, and monuments in the public squares, streets, and parks in the District of Columbia; upon the selection of models for statues, fountains, and monuments erected under the authority of the United States, and the selection of the artists for their execution; also for medals, insignia, and coins; upon the plans and designs for public structures and parks in the District of Columbia, as well as upon all questions involving matters of art with which the Federal Government is concerned. In addition the Commission advises upon general questions of art whenever requested to do so by the President or any committee of Congress.

The creation of the National Commission of Fine Arts in 1910 was the outcome of the Senate Park Commission of 1901, which presented plans for the development of the park system of the District of Columbia and the location of future Government buildings and memorials. These plans of 1901 were based on the plan of the National Capital prepared by Pierre Charles L'Enfant in 1792 under the direction of President Washington. The Commission of Fine Arts has been guided by the fundamental plan of 1901, which aims to secure the progressive development of Washington as the well-ordered, unified, and grand capital of a great Nation.

The height, color, and design of private buildings facing public buildings and public parks in certain mapped areas in the District of Columbia are subject to the advice of the Commission, as provided in the act of May 16, 1930, known as the Shipstead-Luce Act.

The advice of the Commission of Fine Arts must be requested in the selection of lands to be acquired, under the act of Congress approved June 6, 1924, as amended, by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for the park, parkway, and playground system in the District of Columbia and adjacent areas in Maryland and Virginia.

In the will of Charles L. Freer, giving the Smithsonian Institution the building for the Freer Gallery, together with his collections of Far Eastern art, and an endowment for the increase thereof, it is stipulated that purchases shall have the approval of the National Commission of Fine Arts.

The Congress in various legislation has required the advice of the Commission on the design and location of special monuments, memorials, and other works of commemorative art.

COMMITTEE ON PURCHASES OF BLIND-MADE PRODUCTS

The Committee on Purchases of Blind-made Products was created by the act of June 25, 1938, and is composed of a private citizen conversant with the problems incident to the employment of the blind and a representative of each of the following Government Departments: the Navy Department, the War Department, the Treasury Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Department of the Interior. The members of the Committee are appointed by the President, serve without additional compensation, and designate one of their number as chairman.

It is the duty of the Committee to determine the fair market price of commodities manufactured by the blind and offered for sale to the Federal Government by any non-profit-making agency for the blind organized under the laws of the United States or of any State, to revise such prices from time to time in accordance with changing market conditions, to make such rules and regulations regarding specifications, time of delivery, authorization of a central non-profit-making agency to facilitate the distribution of orders among the agencies for the blind, and other relevant matters of procedure as shall be necessary to carry out the purposes of the act.

The act also provides that all brooms and mops and other suitable commodities hereafter procured in accordance with applicable Federal specifications by or for any Federal department or agency shall be procured from such non-profit-making agencies for the blind where such articles are available within the time specified at the price determined by the Committee to be the fair market price for the article or articles so procured.

It is further provided by the act that it shall not apply in any case where brooms and mops are available for procurement from any Federal department or agency and procurement therefrom is required under the provisions of any law in effect on the date of enactment of this act, or in any case where brooms and mops are procured for use outside continental United States.

COMMITTEE FOR RECIPROCITY INFORMATION

The Committee for Reciprocity Information was created by Executive order in June 1934 (amended by Executive Order 9647 of October 25, 1945) to carry out the provisions of section 4 of the act entitled "Promotion of Foreign Trade," under which the President is authorized to enter into trade agreements with foreign countries. This section provides that before any foreign-trade agreement is concluded public notice of the negotiations shall be given in order that any interested person may have the opportunity of presenting his views to the President or to such agency as the President may designate.

The President designated the Committee for Reciprocity Information as the body to receive the views of interested parties. This Committee is composed of representatives from those Government departments or agencies concerned with the operation of the Trade Agreements Act. Its Chairman is one of the members of the Committee and is named by the Secretary of State.

Under the rules promulgated by the Committee for Reciprocity Information, those wishing to present information or requests for consideration in connection with announcements as to proposed negotiations may file their material with the Committee, and may request permission to present supplementary information at the hearing which the Committee holds on each trade agreement.

The Committee also receives information on any phase of the trade-agreements program, whether relating to the operation of an agreement already made or to one under consideration, and such views may be presented verbally or by letter. However, Executive Order 9832, February 25, 1947, imposes upon the Tariff Commission the function of investigating alleged injuries to domestic producers, resulting from concessions in trade agreements and, in appropriate cases, of recommending remedial action to the President.

The type of data that should be supplied in written and oral material presented to the Committee is explained in a pamphlet entitled "Suggestions as to the Methods and Character of Representations to the Committee for Reciprocity Information." Copies are available from the Committee.

COURT OF CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

This court was established by act of Congress February 24, 1855 (10 Stat. L. 612). It has general jurisdiction (36 Stat. L. 1135) of all "claims founded upon the Constitution of the United States or any law of Congress, except for pensions, or upon any regulations of an executive department, or upon any contract, express or implied, with the Government of the United States, or for damages, liquidated or unliquidated, in cases not sounding in tort, in respect of which claims the party would be entitled to redress against the United States, either in a court of law, equity, or admiralty, if the United States were suable, except claims growing out of the late Civil War and commonly known as war claims," and certain rejected claims.

It has jurisdiction also of claims of like character which may be referred to it by the head of any executive department involving controverted questions of fact or law. In all the above-mentioned cases the court, when it finds for the claimant, may enter judgment against the United States, payable out of the Public Treasury.

Under section 3 of the act of February 13, 1925, the Court of Claims may certify to the Supreme Court any definite and distinct questions of law concerning which instructions are desired for the proper disposition of the cause; and also in any case the Supreme Court upon the petition of either party may require by certiorari that the cause be certified to it for review and determination.

It also has jurisdiction of the claims of disbursing officers of the United States for relief from responsibility for losses of Government funds and property by capture or otherwise, without negligence, while in the line of duty.

There is a statute of limitations which prevents parties from bringing actions on their own motion beyond 6 years after the cause of action accrued, but the departments may refer claims at any time if they were pending therein within the 6 years.

By the act of March 2, 1919 (40 Stat. 772), known as the Dent Act, the Court of Claims is given jurisdiction of the class of war claims therein specified. In these cases the action of the Secretary of War upon the claim, or his failure to act thereon, is a condition precedent to the right of the claimant to commence an action in the Court of Claims.

The court also has jurisdiction of actions provided for by certain statutes passed during the first world war permitting the seizure of property by the Government.

By section 151, Judicial Code (36 Stat. L. 1135), whenever any bill, except for a pension, is pending in either House of Congress providing for the payment of a claim against the United States, legal or equitable, or for a grant, gift, or bounty to any person, the House in which such bill is pending may, for the investigation and determination of facts, refer the same to the Court of Claims, which shall proceed with the same in accordance with such rules as it may adopt and report to such House the facts in the case and the amount, where the same can be liquidated, including any facts bearing upon the question whether there has been delay or laches in presenting such claim or applying for such grant, gift, or bounty, and any facts bearing upon the question whether the bar of any statute of limitation should be removed or which shall be claimed to excuse the claimant for not having resorted to any established legal remedy, together with such conclusions as shall be sufficient to inform Congress of the nature and character of the demand, either as a claim, legal or equitable, or as a gratuity against the United States, and the amount, if any, legally or equitably due from the United States to the claimant: Provided, however, That if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court upon the facts established that under existing laws or the provisions of this chapter, the subject matter of the bill is such that it has jurisdiction to render judgment or decree thereon, it shall proceed to do so, giving to either party such further opportunity for hearing as in its judgment justice shall require, and it shall report its proceedings therein to the House of Congress by which the same was referred to said court.

Section 5, act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 996), provides: "That from and after the passage and approval of this act the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims shall not extend to or include any claim against the United States based upon or growing out of the destruction of any property or damage done to any property by the military or naval forces of the United States during the war for the suppression of the rebellion, nor to any claim for stores and supplies taken by or furnished to or for the use of the military or naval forces of the United States, nor to any claim for the value of any use and occupation of any real estate by the military or naval forces of the United States during said war; nor shall said Court of Claims have jurisdiction of any claim which is now barred by the provisions of any law of the United States."

The act of June 25, 1910, chapter 423 (36 Stat. L. 851–852), "An act to provide additional protection for owners of patents of the United States, and for other purposes," conferred a new jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of the Court of Claims was extended by Section 13 (b) of the Act approved July 1, 1944 (58 Stat. 649) to cases involving appeals by contractors from findings of contracting agencies on their claims under terminated war contracts. Also, under the Federal Tort Claims Act (60 Stat. 842) there is a further extension of the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims subject to the limitations prescribed in the act. The court is given jurisdiction concurrent with that of the Circuit Courts of Appeals in suits of certain types of claims against the United States for money only based on torts.

There are five judges who sit together in the hearing of cases, the concurrence of three of whom is necessary for the decision of any case.

All claims are prosecuted in the Court of Claims by an action commenced by the filing of a petition and prosecuted in accordance with the rules of the court, copies of which rules can be obtained upon application to the clerk of the court.

The court is located at Washington, D. C., in the old Corcoran Art Building, Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. The term begins on the first Monday in December each year and continues until the Saturday before the first Monday in December. Cases may be commenced and entered at any time, whether the court be in session or not.

ECONOMIC COOPERATION ADMINISTRATION

The Economic Cooperation Administration was created by title I of an Act of Congress approved April 3, 1948 (Public Law 472, 80th Cong.), for the purpose of assisting certain foreign countries in their individual and cooperative programs for achieving economic stability and independence through the promotion of increased agricultural and industrial productivity, sound financial systems, and the growth of international trade.

The Administration is headed by an Administrator for Economic Cooperation, assisted by a Deputy Administrator, and a United States Special Representative in Europe, all appointed by the President.

Also authorized by the Act are a bipartisan Public Advisory Board of no more than 12 members; a Joint (Congressional) Committee on Foreign Economic Cooperation; and special ECA missions abroad, all to advise and assist in carrying out the purposes of the Administration.

In carrying out his functions, the Administrator is expected to cooperate closely with all established government agencies whose services or facilities have a bearing on the recovery program (known as the "European Recovery Program") and with such functioning international organizations as the United Nations, the Committee (Office) of European Economic Cooperation, and the Economic Commission for Europe.

In supplying material and financial assistance to the countries participating in the recovery program, the Administrator is directed to use private channels of trade whenever possible.

For the purposes of the Act, a participating country is one which signed the Report of the Committee of European Economic Cooperation at Paris on September 22, 1947, or any other country wholly or partly in Europe (including any of the occupied zones of Germany, any areas under international administration and control, and the Free Territory of Trieste or its zones) which agrees and adheres to the principles of the joint program for European Recovery.

Assistance may be rendered to participating countries on any of the following terms: grants (the participating country will provide a commensurate amount of money in its own currency to be deposited locally and expended within the country on approved projects designed to promote recovery); on the basis of cash payments from the participating country; on credit terms; in exchange for strategic materials in short supply in the United States; or on any other terms approved by the Administrator in consultation with his advisors and the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Problems.

Title IV of the Act authorizes aid to China under applicable provisions of title I.

EXPORT-IMPORT BANK OF WASHINGTON

The Export-Import Bank of Washington was organized as a District of Columbia banking corporation pursuant to Executive Order 6851, of February 2, 1934, and was continued as an agency of the United States by Acts of Congress in 1935, 1937, 1939, and 1940, and was made an independent agency of Government by the Export-Import Bank Act of July 31, 1945, as amended. (59 Stat. 526, as amended by Public Law 89, 80th Cong., 12 U. S. C. Sup. 635–635h.)

The purpose of the Bank, as laid down by Congress, is to aid in "financing and facilitating of exports and imports and the exchange of commodities between the United States or any of its Territories or insular possessions and any foreign country as the agencies or nationals thereof."

The management of the Bank is vested in a Board of Directors consisting of four full-time directors appointed by the President of the United States by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and the Secretary of State. Not more than three of the five members of the Board shall be members of any one political party.

The capital stock of the Bank, in the amount of $1,000,000,000, is held by the United States Treasury and the Bank is authorized to borrow from the Treasury up to two and one-half times the amount of its capital stock. The Bank may not have outstanding at any one time loans and guaranties in an aggregate amount in excess of $3,500,000,000.

In accordance with the statutes governing its activities, the Bank makes only loans and guaranties which serve to promote the export and import trade of the United States. The loans are made for specific purposes and must offer reasonable assurance of repayment. As a general rule, the Bank extends credit only to finance purchases of materials and equipment produced or manufactured in the United States and the technical services of American firms and individuals as distinguished from outlays for materials and labor in the borrowing country or purchases in third countries. The facilities of the Bank are open to United States exporters either of goods or of engineering and other technical services, to United States importers, and to foreign governments, the agencies of foreign governments, and to foreign firms and individuals.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

The Federal Communications Commission was created by an act of Congress approved June 19, 1934, as subsequently amended, for the purpose of regulating interstate and foreign commerce in communication by wire and radio so as to make available, so far as possible, to all people of the United States a rapid, efficient, Nation-wide, and world-wide wire and radio communication service with adequate facilities at reasonable charges, for the purpose of the national defense, for the purpose of promoting safety of life and property through the use of wire and radio communication, and for the purpose of securing a more effective execution of this policy by centralizing authority heretofore granted by law to several agencies and by granting additional authority with respect to interstate and foreign commerce in wire and radio communication.

The Commission exercises functions previously vested in the Federal Radio Commission which was abolished by the Communications Act, certain functions previously exercised by the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to telegraph operation, powers formerly exercised by the Postmaster General with respect to Government telegraph rates, and powers formerly exercised by the State Department under the Cable Landing License Act. The powers of the Commission extend beyond those previously vested in these other agencies in the communications field. The powers conferred by the Communications Act also include authority for the Commission to exercise additional powers derived under many international agreements relating to communications.

The Commission is composed of seven members and functions as a unit. The Commission makes all important policy determinations. From time to time committees of the Commission, consisting usually of three members, are delegated to make special studies and supervise particular undertakings. The performance of specified functions is delegated to individual commissioners, and to the heads of certain departments and divisions as individuals.

Title I of the Communications Act contains provisions defining the purposes of the statute, fixing the terms and compensation of Commissioners, and conferring general powers. The statute provides that with certain exceptions employees of the Commission shall be appointed subject to the provisions of the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923.

Title II applies to all common carriers engaged in interstate or foreign communication by wire or radio. The act specifically provides that persons engaged in radio broadcasting shall not be deemed common carriers. Common carriers are required by title II to furnish communication service upon reasonable request, to establish physical connections with other carriers, to establish through routes and charges and the divisions thereof, and to establish and provide facilities. All charges and practices are required to be just and reasonable, and it is declared unlawful for any carrier to make unjust or unreasonable discriminations or to extend undue or unreasonable preferences or advantages in connection with communication service. Carriers are required to publish and file with the Commission tariffs for all charges showing the practices affecting such charges. The Commission is given powers to hold hearings as to the lawfulness of charges, to suspend tariffs, and to prescribe just and reasonable rates. Persons claiming to suffer damages as a result of action by common carriers subject to the act may make complaint to the Commission, and the Commission is required to investigate such complaints and may make an award of damages. Carriers are required to file their contracts with the Commission. Persons seeking to hold office in more than one carrier company subject to the act must obtain the Commission's consent. The Commission has power to make valuations of carrier property, to make inquiries into management, to require the filing of annual reports, to prescribe systems of account, to authorize consolidations of telephone companies, and to authorize extension or reduction of lines.

Title III contains provisions relating to radio and is divided into two parts. Part I contains provisions respecting radio licensing and regulation. The purpose of the act is declared to be to maintain the control by the United States over all channels of interstate and foreign radio transmission; and to provide for the use of such channels, but not the ownership thereof, by persons for limited periods of time, under licenses granted by Federal authority. It is made unlawful for any person to operate any apparatus for the transmission of energy or communications or signals by radio within any State, Territory, or possession when the effects of such use extend beyond the borders thereof, or upon vessels or aircraft of the United States, except in accordance with a license issued by the Commission. The statute requires that the operation of radio transmitting apparatus shall be carried on only by persons holding operators' licenses issued by the Commission. The radio license requirements do not apply to the Philippine Islands or to the Canal Zone. The Commission does not have jurisdiction with respect to radio stations belonging to and operated by the United States which may use such frequencies as may be assigned by the President.

The Commission is authorized to classify radio stations, prescribe the nature of their service, assign frequencies, and make regulations to carry out the purposes of the act. It also has authority to revoke or modify licenses. Broadcast licenses may not be for a longer term than 3 years, and the Commission rules and regulations provide for a 3-year term for standard broadcast licenses.

With a few minor exceptions, the statute provides that no license shall be issued unless a permit for the construction of the station has first been issued. Applications for construction permits and licenses must be in writing and sworn to by the applicant. The act contains provisions against the holding of licenses by aliens, foreign corporations, representatives of foreign governments, domestic corporations in which an alien is an officer or director or in which an alien owns or votes more than one-fifth of the stock, or by any person whose license has been revoked by a court for violation of the antitrust laws.

The standard governing the granting of licenses is public interest, convenience, or necessity. If the Commission is able to determine from an examination of an application that public interest, convenience, or necessity would be served by a grant thereof, it is required to grant such application without a hearing. If it cannot so determine, it must afford the applicant notice and opportunity to be heard.

The act prohibits assignment of licenses and transfer of control of licensee corporations except upon written consent of the Commission.

The statute provides that if a person who is a legally qualified candidate for public office is permitted to use a broadcast station, equal opportunity shall be afforded to all other candidates for that office in the use of the broadcast station. The broadcasting of information concerning lotteries, gift enterprises, and similar schemes, and the utterance of obscene, indecent, or profane language by means of radio are prohibited. The act provides that the Commission shall have no power of censorship over radio communications.

Part II of title III requires the use of radio for safety purposes on board certain classes of ships of the United States and also confers powers on the Commission to carry out the provisions of the Safety of Life at Sea Convention (London, 1929).

Title IV contains procedural and administrative provisions. It confers jurisdiction on three-judge district courts to enforce, enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend any order of the Commission under the act (except any order granting or refusing an application for a construction permit for a radio station, or for a radio station license, or for renewal of an existing radio station license, or for modification of an existing radio station license, or suspending a radio operator's license). Orders so excepted are subject to review by appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, by the applicant whose application is denied, by any other person aggrieved or whose interests are adversely affected by the action of the Commission granting or refusing an application, or by a radio operator whose license is suspended.

The Commission is also given power to make investigations on its own motion and to issue subpenas and to receive depositions. The statute provides for cooperation by the Commission with State commissions with respect to common carrier matters.

Title V contains penal and forfeiture provisions. In general, violations of the statute are punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 2 years, or both. Violation of a rule of the Commission is punishable by a fine of not more than $500 for each day during which the offense occurs. Forfeitures are recoverable in United States courts and the Commission is given powers in certain cases to remit and mitigate forfeitures.

Title VI prohibits the unauthorized interception and publication of communications. During the continuance of a war in which the United States is engaged, or upon proclamation by the President that there exists war or a threat of war, or a state of public peril or disaster, or other national emergency, special powers are conferred upon the President in connection with communications.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was organized under authority of the Banking Act of 1933, approved by the President on June 16, 1933 (Public, No. 66, 73d Cong.). This act was amended by Public, No. 362, approved June 16, 1934 (73 Cong.); by Public Resolution No. 38, approved June 28, 1935 (74th Cong.); by the Banking Act of 1935, approved August 23, 1935 (Public, No. 305, 74th Cong.); by Public Resolution No. 83, approved April 21, 1936 (74th Cong.); by Public, No. 544, approved May 25, 1938 (75th Cong., 3d sess.); by Public Resolution No. 116, approved June 16, 1938 (75th Cong., 3d sess.); by Public, No. 135, approved June 20, 1939 (76th Cong., 1st sess.); by Public Law 603, approved June 11, 1942 (77th Cong., 2d sess.); and by Public Law 37, approved April 13, 1943 (78th Cong., 1st sess.); and by Public Law 363, approved August 5, 1947 (80th Cong., 1st sess.).

The management of the Corporation is vested in a board of directors of three members, two of whom are appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the third member being the Comptroller of the Currency.

The capital stock of the Corporation, according to the requirements of law, was as follows: The Treasury of the United States subscribed $150,000,000. Each Federal Reserve bank subscribed to stock in an amount equal to one-half of the surplus of such bank on January 1, 1933, the total amount of such subscription being $139,299,556.99. Pursuant to Public Law 363, all of the stock subscribed to by the 12 Federal Reserve banks, and $7,395,693.42 of the stock held by the U. S. was retired as of September 8, 1947. Additional payments in multiples of $10 million are made to the Secretary of the Treasury, from time to time as funds are available for the retirement of capital, in accordance with the act. Through March 31, 1948, such payments aggregated $70,000,000.

The chief function of the Corporation is to insure the deposits of all banks which are entitled to the benefits of insurance under the law, to the maximum of $5,000 for each depositor. All national banks in the continental United States, and all national banks located in Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands which are members of the Federal Reserve System, are insured banks; all State banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System are insured banks; and all other national banks located in the territories and possessions mentioned upon application and certification by the Comptroller of the Currency, and all other State banks (including those operating in the District of Columbia) upon application to and examination by the Corporation and the approval of the Board of Directors, may become insured. The law provides for a Permanent Insurance Fund for insuring deposits into which each insured bank pays assessments at the rate of one-twelfth of 1 percent per annum upon its average daily deposits, less authorized deductions. The assessments are computed and paid semiannually.

The Corporation also acts as receiver for insured banks which are closed on account of inability to meet the demands of their depositors. Under the Federal Deposit Insurance law, the Corporation is appointed receiver for every insured national bank or District bank which is closed by action of its Board of Directors or the Comptroller of the Currency on account of inability to meet the demands of its depositors. In addition, it is authorized to act as receiver of any insured State bank which is closed on account of inability to meet the demands of its depositors, if an appointment as receiver is extended by the authority having supervision of such bank, and is authorized or permitted by State law. Upon the closing of an insured bank, the Corporation promptly pays to depositors the amount of their insured deposits. In lieu of paying insured deposits directly to depositors, the Corporation, if it finds that it is advisable and in the interest of the depositors of the closed insured bank or the public, may organize a new national bank to assume the insured deposits of such closed bank and to perform temporarily certain other functions prescribed by law. The Corporation also may pay insured deposits by making available to each depositor a transferred deposit in a new bank in the same community or in another insured bank in an amount equal to the insured deposit of such depositor and subject to withdrawal on demand. Upon payment of the insured deposits to depositors of a closed insured bank, the Corporation becomes subrogated to all rights of the insured depositors against the closed bank, to the extent of such payment, by express provisions of law, by allowance of claims by the authority having supervision of the closed bank or by assignment of claims by depositors.

Further, the Corporation may make loans secured by assets of an open or closed insured bank, or may purchase such assets, or may guarantee any other insured bank against loss by reason of its assuming the liabilities of another open or closed insured bank, whenever, in the judgment of the Board of Directors, such action will reduce the risk or avert threatened loss to the Corporation and facilitate a merger or consolidation of an insured bank with another insured bank.

Of the 14,766 operating banks in the United States and possessions on December 31, 1947, deposits in 13,597 banks, including 194 mutual savings banks, were insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. As of that date 6,923 banks, members of the Federal Reserve System, had been automatically admitted to membership, and 6,674 nonmember banks had made application and had been accepted for membership.

Pursuant to Executive Order 9148 of April 27, 1942, the supervision of Federal credit unions including the functions, powers, and duties vested in the Farm Credit Administration and the Governor thereof under the Federal Credit Union Act, as amended (12 U. S. C. 1751–1771), were temporarily transferred to the Corporation. The transfer of these functions was made permanent by Part IV of Reorganization Plan No. I of 1947, which became effective July 1, 1947. Federal credit unions are not insured under the Federal Deposit Insurance Law.

FEDERAL MEDIATION AND CONCILIATION SERVICE

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service was created by the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947 (29 U. S. C. 171–182). The same Act provided for the transfer to the Service of all mediation and conciliation functions of the Secretary of Labor and the United States Conciliation Service.

Under the terms of the Act the principal objective and duty of the Service is to prevent or minimize interruptions of the free flow of commerce growing out of labor disputes in industries affecting commerce by assisting the parties to settle such disputes through conciliation and mediation.

In carrying out its duties the Service places primary emphasis upon the prevention of disputes and the promotion of the collective bargaining process. Normally, the Service provides mediation and conciliation services in specific disputes only when there is threatened such a significant interruption of commerce as clearly to require Federal intercession. Employers and unions are encouraged to resolve industrial differences by themselves without the aid of the Federal Government.

Under section 8 (d) of the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947, employers and unions are required to file with the Service a notice of every dispute affecting commerce not settled within 30 days after prior service of a notice to terminate or modify an existing contract. The parties are required at the same time to notify the respective State or Territorial agency of the existence of such a dispute. The Service cooperates fully with State and other conciliation agencies and suggests to the parties the utilization of such facilities to the greatest possible extent.

The Labor Management Relations Act, 1947, also established the National Labor-Management Panel, the duty of which is to advise the Director of the Service on the avoidance of industrial controversies and the manner in which mediation and voluntary adjustment shall be administered, particularly with reference to controversies affecting the general welfare of the country.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

Creation and authority.—The Federal Power Commission was organized as an independent commission in its present form by the act approved June 23, 1930 (46 Stat. 797). The Commission was originally created in 1920 by the Federal Water Power Act, approved June 10, 1920 (41 Stat. 1063, 16 U. S. C. 791–823), providing for the licensing by the Commission of hydroelectric projects on United States Government lands or on navigable waters of the United States. The Federal Water Power Act was amended March 3, 1921, to exclude water power projects in national parks or national monuments (41 Stat. 1353). By title II of the Public Utility Act of 1935, approved August 26, 1935 (49 Stat.

838, 16 U. S. C., Sup. IV, 791a–825r), the original Federal Water Power Act with certain amendments was made part I of the Federal Power Act and parts II and III were added vesting the Commission with jurisdiction over the transmission and sale at wholesale of electric energy in interstate commerce and public utilities engaged therein.

Other jurisdictional statutes of the Commission.—Natural Gas Act, approved June 21, 1938 (52 Stat. 821, 15 U. S. C. 717–717w), giving jurisdiction over the transportation and sale of natural gas in interstate commerce for resale and natural-gas companies engaged therein, as amended February 7, 1942 (56 Stat. 83, 15 U. S. C. 717f) and July 25, 1947 (P. L. 245—80th Cong., 1st sess.).

Tennessee Valley Authority Act, approved May 18, 1933 (48 Stat. 58, 16 U. S. C. 831–831dd), sections 12a, 14, 15, 15a, 15c, 26a, as added or amended (49 Stat. 1076, 1077, 1078, 1079, 53 Stat. 1083, 16 U. S. C. 831k, 831m, 831n, 831n–1, 831n–3, 831–1).

Fort Peck Act, approved May 18, 1938 (52 Stat. 403, 16 U. S. C. 833–833k).

Flood Control Act of 1938, approved June 28, 1938 (52 Stat. 1215, 1216, 33 U. S. C. 701j).

Flood Control Act of 1939, approved August 11, 1939 (53 Stat. 1415, 33 U. S. C. 701b–4).

Flood Control Act of 1941, approved August 18, 1941 (55 Stat. 639, 33 U. S. C. 701j).

Flood Control Act of 1944, approved December 22, 1944 (secs. 5, 10, and 12, 58 Stat. 890, 891, 904, 16 U. S. C. 825s, 33 U. S. C. 709).

Flood Control Act of 1946, approved July 24, 1946 (60 Stat. 641).

River and Harbor Act, approved March 2, 1945 (secs. 2 and 6, 59 Stat. 23, 33 U. S. C. 603a).

River and Harbor Act, approved July 24, 1946 (60 Stat. 634).

Boulder Canyon Project Act, approved December 21, 1928 (45 Stat. 1057, 43 U. S. C. 617–617t).

Act Relating to Fort Apache and White Mountain Indian Reservations, approved February 28, 1929 (45 Stat. 1344).

Acts Relating to Flathead Indian Reservation, approved March 7, 1928 (45 Stat. 200, 212–213), and amended March 4, 1929 (45 Stat. 1623, 1639–1640).

Act of August 14, 1946 (60 Stat. 1080).

Act of August 30, 1943 (57 Stat. 270).

Executive orders.—Executive Order No. 8202, dated July 13, 1939, authorizing and requesting the Federal Power Commission to perform certain functions relating to the transmission of electric energy between the United States and foreign countries and to the exportation and importation of natural gas from and into the United States.

Executive Order No. 9373, dated August 30, 1943, required approval by the Federal Power Commission of rates for sale of electric energy from the Grand River, Denison, and Norfork projects by the Secretary of the Interior. (See modification as to Grand River Dam contained in Act of July 31, 1946, 60 Stat. 743.)

FEDERAL POWER ACT

Part I.—Part I of the Federal Power Act represents the declared policy of Congress to provide for the development and improvement of navigation and the development, transmission, and utilization of power on streams subject to Federal jurisdiction, upon lands of the United States, and at Government dams, by private and public agencies acting under licenses issued by the Commission. Such licenses may be issued after satisfactory evidence has been submitted by applicant of compliance with the requirements of specified State laws; and if the navigable capacity of any navigable waters of the United States will be affected, upon the approval of the plans for the project by the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War; or if a reservation is affected, upon such conditions as the Secretary of the department under whose supervision it falls shall deem necessary for its adequate protection and utilization.

Licenses so issued are subject to the following conditions: To effectuate the foregoing policies; to protect reservations of the United States; to adapt each project to a comprehensive plan for improving or developing a waterway or waterways for interstate or foreign commerce, for the improvement and utilization of water power, and for other beneficial uses, including recreational purposes; to reimburse the United States for the cost of administration of part I of the act and to recompense it for the use of lands; to expropriate excessive profits until the States shall make provision for their prevention or expropriation; to provide for the payment of assessments for benefits from headwater improvements; to give the United States the option to recapture licensed projects at the expiration of the licenses; to obtain the maintenance and operation of navigation facilities and fishways; and to provide for reasonable regulation of rates, services, and security issues of parties involved, in the absence of State regulation. The act also provides for investigations of unlicensed projects subject to Federal regulation and the issuance of orders in the public interest to conserve and utilize navigation and water power resources.

Part II.—Part II embodies a comprehensive scheme for the regulation of electric utilities engaged in interstate commerce. The policy is to extend Federal regulation to matters which cannot be regulated by the States and also to exert Federal authority to strengthen and assist the States in the exercise of their regulatory powers. In general, the regulatory provisions of the act apply to persons owning and operating facilities for the transmission of electric energy in interstate commerce or for the sale of electric energy at wholesale in interstate commerce, with certain exceptions—for example, facilities used in local distribution. Provision is made for the encouragement of voluntary interconnection and coordination of facilities; for compulsory interconnections under certain circumstances; for authorizing transmission of electric energy from the United States to a foreign country when it will not impair the sufficiency of electric supply within the United States or impede or tend to impede coordination of facilities; for the approval of the transfer of assets, under certain conditions, involving companies subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission; for the approval of the issuance of long-term securities in accordance with specified standards, and for the scrutiny of the issuance of short-term securities, involving companies subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission where the companies are not organized and operating in a State under the laws of which its security issues are regulated by a State commission.

Further provisions apply to the charging of just, reasonable, nondiscriminatory and nonpreferential rates in connection with the transmission or sale of electric energy subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission; and for the furnishing of proper, adequate, and sufficient service in the interstate transmission or sale of electric energy.

Part III.—Part III provides for the prescribing and enforcement of compliance with a uniform system of accounts by licenses and interstate electric utilities, reclassification of accounts, regulation of depreciation, and like accounting matters. It also requires approval of the holding of interlocking positions in the companies subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, in security underwriting companies, and in electrical equipment supply companies when neither public nor private interests will be adversely affected thereby. It contains provisions for the hearing of complaint cases, the instituting of investigations, conduct of hearings, and the review of Commission orders by the courts. Provision is also made for investigations regarding the generation, transmission, distribution, and sale of electric energy, however produced, throughout the United States. The Commission is directed to secure and keep current information on these and other aspects of the electric utility industry and their relation to the development of navigation, industry, commerce, and the national defense.

Organization.—The Commission is composed of five members, one of whom is elected Chairman and another Vice Chairman. The Chairman is designated by statute as the principal executive officer of the Commission. The principal administrative subdivisions in the Commission are the Office of the Secretary; the Division of Personnel and Administrative Services; the Division of Budget and Finance; and the Division of Publications. The Commission's technical staff is subdivided into the Bureau of Power, which, through its various divisions, handles power requirements and supply, flood control, licensed project and project cost work; the Office of the Chief Engineer, which advises the Commission on engineering matters; the Bureau of Accounts, Finance, and Rates, which supervises the preparation of systems of accounts, auditing and accounting, rate investigation, natural gas activities, and related work, with various divisions which handle specific portions of the general work of the Bureau; the Division of Examiners, which presides at hearings in Commission proceedings; and the Bureau of Law, which advises the Commission on all legal questions. The Commission has five field offices under the Bureau of Power, headed by regional engineers.

Declarations of intention.—Upon the filing of declarations of intention to construct project works on streams or their parts, other than those defined as navigable waters, and over which Congress has jurisdiction, the Commission makes investigations and adopts findings as to whether the interests of interstate or foreign commerce would be affected by the proposed construction.

Preliminary permits.—Upon applications filed, the Commission, in proper cases, issues preliminary permits and renewals for the purpose of maintaining priority of application for a license for a total of not more than 3 years.

Licenses.—Upon application, the Commission, in proper cases, issues licenses and amendments thereto, approves their transfer, and fixes and collects annual charges for them.

Cost determination cases.—The Commission is required by the act to determine the net investment in and actual legitimate original cost of every licensed project for use in event of acquisition of the project by the United States as well as in connection with various phases of regulation such as rate regulation.

Acquisition of licensed projects.—The act provides that the United States shall have the right to acquire licensed projects upon or after expiration of any license.

Surplus earnings.—The proportion of surplus earnings in excess of a specified reasonable rate of return is determined by the Commission and is to be held until the termination of the license or to be applied from time to time in reduction of the net investment of the licensee. The Commission fixes the specified rate of return in each license.

Rates, services, and securities of licensees.—Licensees and their customers and subsidiaries which are interstate public utility companies are subject to the provisions of part II.

The Commission, under part II, has jurisdiction over the transmission of electrical energy in interstate commerce and over the sale of electrical energy at wholesale in interstate commerce. This part provides for close cooperation with State agencies with respect to the rates and services of electric utilities.

Headwater benefits.—In cases where a licensee or other power developer benefits directly from a headwater improvement of another licensee, a permittee, or of the United States, the Commission determines the equitable part of the annual charges for interest, maintenance, and depreciation to be paid to the owner thereof by the power developer benefited.

Reservations of United States lands for power purposes.—Upon application for a license, any lands of the United States included are reserved for power purposes from entry, location, or other disposal, unless the Commission determines that the lands so reserved will not be injured or destroyed for the purposes of power development by location, entry, or selection under the public land laws and so notifies the Secretary of the Interior, who then declares such lands open to location, entry, or selection in accordance with the provisions of the act.

Investigations of water-power resources.—The Commission conducts general investigations of water-power resources and their relation to interstate and foreign commerce, and of the water-power industry and its relation to other industries, cooperating with State and federal agencies in its investigations and publishing the results of its work in special and annual reports.

Power market surveys.—Commencing with the National Power Survey, which was initiated in 1933 by direction of the President, the preparation of power market surveys has been one of the long-standing activities of the Commission. Surveys have been and are being made in all sections of the country regarding the utilization and marketing of electric power from existing and proposed hydroelectric developments, as provided by section 4, part I, of the Federal Power Act. Reports on these surveys are being published for distribution to interested agencies and the general public.

Federal interagency agreement.—The Commission is party to an agreement entered into jointly with the Departments of War, Interior, and Agriculture, under date of December 29, 1943, to permit agencies of these departments and the Commission to cooperate more completely in the preparation of reports on multiple-purpose reservoir projects and to correlate the results to the greatest practicable extent. The Department of Commerce also became a party to the agreement in 1946. The Chairman represents the Commission on the Federal Interagency River Basin Committee, the body formed to carry out the purposes of this agreement. The Committee meets in Washington monthly to discuss the results of studies and investigations, to adjust differences of opinion, and to promote ways and means for the implementation of this agreement. Through its staff the Commission has participated during the year in several cooperative studies with other members of the Committee. Through its regional offices the Commission is constantly engaged in many cooperative river basin investigations with the field staffs of the other agencies that are parties to the agreement.

Authorizations and orders under parts II and III.—In accordance with provisions of parts II and III of the Federal Power Act, the Commission receives and passes on applications for compulsory interconnections; authorizes and approves the sale, lease, merger, or consolidation of facilities or purchase of securities; and authorizes the issue of securities or assumption of obligation or liability as guarantor, endorser, surety, or otherwise, in respect to any security of another person.

The Commission receives and considers reports of the issue or renewal of, or assumption of liability on, short-term notes or drafts. It also receives and considers schedules of rates and charges concerning transmission or sale of electric energy subject to its jurisdiction and conducts inquiries into the lawfulness of rates and service, and in connection therewith may suspend the operation of new rate schedules for a limited period of time. Upon complaint, or its own motion, it investigates rates and charges involved in any transmission or sale subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, or service rendered, and may issue orders prescribing the rates, charges, or service.

State cooperation.—For the purpose of facilitating cooperation with State commissions in accordance with the provisions of the act authorizing the establishment of joint hearings and procedure, and authorizing conferences with State commissions, the Commission has adopted a cooperative procedure of a flexible nature with provision for special procedure in particular cases. The State commission or commissions affected are notified of proceedings instituted under the Federal Power Act or the Natural Gas Act, and are furnished copies of applications, petitions, complaints, or orders instituting proceedings.

Uniform systems of accounts.—The Commission has prescribed uniform systems of accounts for public utilities subject to its jurisdiction and for its licenses.

Reports to the Commission.—The Commission prescribes, receives, and compiles data from periodical reports as follows:

1. Annual reports, rendered by every electric utility, setting forth complete financial and statistical data as to assets, liabilities, revenues, generating capacity, number of consumers, and similar information.
2. Power system reports rendered by every electric utility system, setting forth information with respect to generating and transmission facilities, load, and load characteristics.
3. Monthly and annual reports containing such information as production of electricity for public use, fuel consumed, and stocks of fuel on hand.
4. Reports from electric utilities and industrial corporations with respect to their electric power requirements and supply.

Special reports are prescribed, received, and compiled from time to time, as, for example, reports on areas served by each electric utility.

Enforcement of Federal Power Act.—Upon complaint or on its own initiative, the Commission conducts investigations with respect to possible violations of the Federal Power Act or of any license, rule, regulation, or order thereunder. It either refers court proceedings under the act to the Attorney General or is represented by its own attorneys.

Recommendations to Congress.—The Commission conducts investigations to secure information to serve as a basis for recommending to Congress further legislation concerning the matters to which the Federal Power Act relates.

Reports by the Commission.—The Commission publishes annual reports to Congress; annual reports of electric rates throughout the United States, a National Electric Rate Book; monthly reports of production of electric energy in the United States, and annual reports of electric power statistics covering financial, production, and generating data. In addition, special reports on power market surveys and other power matters are published from time to time.

Regional districts.—For the purpose of assuring an abundant supply of electric energy throughout the United States with the greatest possible economy and with regard to the proper utilization and conservation of natural resources, the Commission has tentatively divided the country into regional districts for the voluntary interconnection and coordination of facilities for the generation, transmission, and sale of electric energy, and has so informed all State commissions and other interested parties, whose views and recommendations on the subject are invited.

FLOOD CONTROL ACTS

Authorizations under Flood Control Acts.—Under the Flood Control Acts of 1938 and subsequent years the Commission is authorized to investigate power potentialities in the flood-control projects to be constructed by the Department of the Army, and is charged with the responsibility of making recommendations to the Secretary of the Army with regard to the installation of penstocks or similar facilities adapted to possible future use in the development of hydroelectric power in any flood-control or navigation dam to be constructed by the Department of the Army. Section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944 requires approval by the Federal Power Commission of rates for the sale of electric power and energy generated at reservoir projects under the control of the Department of the Army.

The Flood Control Act of 1938 authorized the sum of $1,500,000 to be appropriated and expended by the Commission for carrying out any examinations or surveys provided for in that act, or any other acts of Congress, to be prosecuted by the Commission. Under the Flood Control Act of 1944, an additional $1,500,000 was authorized for continuing these activities.

Extension of authority by River and Harbor Acts.—Duties similar to those authorized by flood control acts with respect to navigation or flood-control dams to be constructed by the Department of the Army are imposed on the Commission by provisions of the River and Harbor Acts of 1945 and 1946.

NATURAL GAS ACT

Purpose of Natural Gas Act.—The Natural Gas Act is intended to regulate those engaged in the transportation of natural gas in interstate commerce or the sale in interstate commerce of such gas for resale for ultimate public consumption for domestic, commercial, industrial, or any other purpose.

The policy of the Congress in this connection is to extend Federal regulation to certain phases of the business of transporting and selling natural gas for ultimate distribution to the public which cannot be regulated by the States, also to assert Federal authority to strengthen and assist the States in the exercise of their regulatory powers.

Natural gas investigation.—By its order of September 22, 1944, the Commission instituted an investigation into the extent and probable life of the Nation's natural gas reserves; the present and probable future utilization of natural gas for domestic, commercial, and industrial purposes; the extent, character, and results of the competition of natural gas with other fuels, and such related matters as may be helpful to the Commission in its administration of the Natural Gas Act or in determining what additional legislation, if any, should be recommended to the Congress.

The Commission directed that a copy of the order be sent to the Governors, regulatory commissions, and conservation commissions of each of the States, to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, to the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, to each natural gas company, and to coal, railroad, and labor organizations and other interested parties. Beginning in September 1945, public hearings were held in various regions throughout the country with a final hearing in Washington, D. C., in July and August 1946. Following the hearings, various interested parties on October 15, 1946, filed summary statements of their position and recommendations. Reports on the investigation were submitted to the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committees of the Senate and the House in February 1948.

Exportation or importation of natural gas.—Exportations from the United States to a foreign country or importations from a foreign country to the United States must be authorized by the Commission, when found to be consistent with the public interest.

Control over rates and charges.—Natural gas companies are required to file schedules showing the rates charged for any transportation or sale subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, and may not change such rates or charges without its approval. The Commission may order changes in rates, but may not order an increase in the rate charged by any natural gas company unless the increase is embodied in a new schedule filed by the company.

Cost of property.—The Commission is authorized to ascertain the actual legitimate cost of the property of every natural gas company and the depreciation in such property.

Extension of facilities; abandonment of service.—The Commission may order a natural gas company to extend or improve its transportation facilities and to establish physical connection of its transportation facilities with the facilities of, or sell natural gas to, any persons or municipalities engaged, or legally authorized to engage, in the local distribution of natural or artificial gas to the public, if the Commission finds that no undue burden will be placed upon the natural gas company. In ordering such an extension of facilities, the Commission may not impair the ability of the company to render adequate service to its customers.

Natural gas companies may not abandon interstate facilities or service without the approval of the Commission.

Certificates.—An amendment to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, made February 7, 1942, requires "grandfather clause" certificates covering bona fide operation as of the date of the amendment and certificates of public convenience and necessity for all new construction, operation, extensions, and acquisitions thereafter. The authorization of service areas is also provided for.

State compacts.—The Commission is required to report to Congress information in connection with any compacts proposed by two or more States dealing with the conservation, production, transportation, or distribution of natural gas.

Joint procedure.—Provision is made for joint hearings and cooperative procedure with State utility commissions concerned in connection with any matter coming before the Commission, and full cooperation is available to State commissions.

Officials dealing in securities.—Personal profit by an official or director of a natural gas company through the negotiation, hypothecation, or sale of any security issued by the company is unlawful.

Uniform system of accounts.—The Commission has prescribed a uniform system of accounts, effective January 1, 1940, for natural gas companies subject to the provisions of the Natural Gas Act, which covers accounting details of the property and operations of such companies for the production, transportation, or sale of natural gas.

Incidental powers.—The Commission may require such reports as may be necessary in the administration of the act. In general, it is given administrative powers similar to those provided in the Federal Power Act.

Natural gas rate regulation.—The Commission in its rate regulation, as in its system of accounts, has taken actual legitimate cost or prudent investment as its basis; and, in the cases of Natural Gas Pipe Line Company of America et al. v. Federal Power Commission, 315 U. S. 575, Federal Power Commission v. Hope Natural Gas Company, 315 U. S. 591, Colorado Interstate Gas Co. et al. v. Federal Power Commission, 324 U. S. 581, Colorado-Wyoming Gas Co. v. Federal Power Commission, 324 U. S. 626, and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. v. Federal Power Commission, 324 U. S. 635, it has obtained rulings from the Supreme Court of the United States sustaining rate orders determined on an actual legitimate cost or prudent investment rate base.

EMERGENCY AUTHORITY

In addition the Commission has the following emergency authority:

1. During the continuance of any war in which the United States is engaged or whenever the Commission determines that an emergency exists by reason of a sudden increase in the demand for electric energy, or shortage of electric energy or of facilities for the generation of electric energy, or other causes, either upon its own motion or upon complaint, with or without notice, hearing or report, to require by order such temporary connections of facilities and such generation, delivery, interchange, or transmission of electric energy as in its judgment will best meet the emergency and serve the public interest (sec. 202 (c)).

2. During the continuance of any emergency requiring immediate action, persons not otherwise subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission may make temporary connections with public utilities or may construct temporary facilities for the interstate transmission of electric energy as may be necessary or appropriate to meet the emergency, without thereby becoming subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. The section requires that such connections be discontinued and such construction removed or otherwise disposed of at the termination of the emergency, but permits permanent connections for emergency use only upon approval by the Commission (sec. 202 (d)). Many persons have requested and obtained appropriate assurances from the Commission that such temporary connections or construction would not subject them to jurisdiction of the Commission. The Commission also receives and grants requests for approval of permanent interconnections for emergency use under section 202 (d).

3. The Federal Power Act also provides that the United States may take over and operate any licensed hydroelectric project upon a written order of the President stating that the safety of the United States demands it "for the purpose of manufacturing nitrates, explosives or munitions of war, or for any other purpose involving the safety of the United States" (sec. 16).

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

The Federal Reserve System was established pursuant to authority contained in the act of Congress approved December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act, the purposes of which, as stated in the preamble, are "To provide for the establishment of Federal Reserve Banks, to furnish an elastic currency, to afford means of rediscounting commercial paper, to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States, and for other purposes." The System comprises the Board of Governors, which exercises supervisory functions; the Federal Open Market Committee, consisting of the members of the Board of Governors and five representatives of the Federal Reserve banks, which directs the System's open-market operations; the 12 Federal Reserve banks situated in different sections of the United States; the Federal Advisory Council, which acts in an advisory capacity to the Board of Governors; and about 6,900 member banks, which include all national banks in the United States and such State banks, trust companies, Morris Plan banks, and mutual savings banks as have voluntarily applied to the Board of Governors for membership and have been admitted to the System.

Broad supervisory powers are vested in the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, which has its offices in Washington. The Board of Governors is composed of seven members appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. In selecting these seven members, the President is required to have due regard to a fair representation of the financial, agricultural, industrial, and commercial interests, and geographical divisions of the country. No two members may be from the same Federal Reserve district.

Each member of the Board of Governors is also a member of the Federal Open Market Committee, whose membership, in addition, includes five representatives of the Federal Reserve banks, each such representative being elected annually by the boards of directors of certain specified Federal Reserve banks. Open-market operations of the Federal Reserve banks are conducted under regulations adopted by the committee with a view to accommodating commerce and business and with regard "to their bearing upon the general credit situation of the country; and no Federal Reserve Bank may engage or decline to engage in open-market operations except in accordance with the direction of and regulations adopted by the committee."

The Board of Governors may, within certain limitations and in order to prevent injurious credit expansion or contraction, change the requirements as to reserves to be maintained by member banks against deposits.

For the purpose of preventing the excessive use of credit for the purchase or carrying of securities, the Board of Governors is authorized to regulate the amount of credit that may be initially extended and subsequently maintained on any security (with certain exceptions) registered on a national securities exchange. Certain other powers have been conferred upon the Board which are likewise designed to enable it to prevent an undue diversion of funds into speculative operations.

Another duty of the Board of Governors is the review and determination of discount rates charged by the Federal Reserve banks on their discounts and advances.

In connection with its supervision of Federal Reserve banks, the Board of Governors is also authorized to make examinations of such banks; to require statements and reports from such banks; to require the establishment or discontinuance of branches of such banks; to supervise the issue and retirement of Federal Reserve notes; and to exercise special supervision over all relationships and transactions of the Federal Reserve banks with foreign banks or bankers.

The Board of Governors also passes on the admission of State banks, trust companies, Morris Plan banks, and mutual savings banks to membership in the Federal Reserve System, and on the termination of membership of such banks; it has the power to examine member banks and affiliates of member banks; it receives condition reports from State member banks and their affiliates; it limits by regulation the rate of interest which may be paid by member banks on time and savings deposits; it is authorized, in its discretion, to issue voting permits to holding-company affiliates of member banks entitling them to vote the stock of such banks at any or all meetings of shareholders of the member banks; it may issue general regulations permitting interlocking relationships in certain circumstances between member banks and organizations dealing in securities or, under the Clayton Antitrust Act, between member banks and other banks; it has the power to remove officers and directors of a member bank for continued violations of law or unsafe or unsound practices in conducting the business of such banks; it may, in its discretion, suspend member banks from the use of the credit facilities of the Federal Reserve System, for making undue use of bank credit for speculative purposes or for any other purpose inconsistent with the maintenance of sound credit conditions; it passes on applications of State member banks to establish out-of-town branches; it passes on applications of national banks for authority to exercise trust powers or to act in fiduciary capacities; it may grant authority to national banks to establish branches in foreign countries or dependencies or insular possessions of the United States, or to invest in the stock of banks or corporations engaged in international or foreign banking; and it supervises the organization and activities of corporations organized under Federal law to engage in international or foreign banking. Another function of the Board is the operation of a settlement fund, by which balances due to and from the various Federal Reserve Banks arising out of their own transactions or transactions of their member banks or of the United States Government are settled in Washington through telegraphic transfer of funds without physical shipments of currency.

In exercising its supervisory functions over the Federal Reserve banks and member banks, the Board of Governors promulgates regulations, pursuant to authority granted by the law, governing certain of the above-mentioned activities of Federal Reserve banks and member banks. To meet its expenses and to pay the salaries of its members and its employees, the Board makes semiannual assessments upon the Federal Reserve banks in proportion to their capital stock and surplus. The Board keeps a complete record of all action taken by it and by the Federal Open Market Committee on any question of policy, and in the annual report which it makes to the Speaker of the House of Representatives for the information of Congress as required by law, it includes a full account of all such action and also a copy of the records required to be kept in that connection.

The Federal Reserve banks are located in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, and San Francisco. There are also in operation 24 branches of the Federal Reserve banks, all of which are located in other cities of the United States.

The capital stock of the Federal Reserve banks is entirely owned by the member banks and may not be transferred or hypothecated. Every national bank in existence in the United States at the time of the establishment of the Federal Reserve System was required to subscribe to the capital stock of the Federal Reserve bank of its district in an amount equal to 6 percent of the subscribing bank's paid-up capital and surplus. A like amount of Federal Reserve bank stock must be subscribed for by every national bank in the United States organized since that time and by every State bank or trust company (except mutual savings banks) upon becoming a member of the Federal Reserve System; and, when a member bank increases or decreases its capital or surplus, it is required to alter its holdings of Federal Reserve bank stock in the same proportion. A mutual savings bank which is admitted to membership in the Federal Reserve System must subscribe for Federal Reserve bank stock in an amount equal to six-tenths of 1 per centum of its total deposit liabilities; and thereafter such subscription must be adjusted semiannually on the same percentage basis. One-half of the subscription of each member bank must be fully paid and the remainder is subject to call by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System; but call for payment of the remainder has not been made.

After all necessary expenses of a Federal Reserve bank have been paid or provided for, its stockholding member banks are entitled to receive an annual dividend of 6 percent on the paid-in capital stock, which dividend is cumulative. After these dividend claims have been fully met, the net earnings are paid into the surplus fund of the Federal Reserve bank. In case of liquidation or dissolution of a Federal Reserve bank, any surplus remaining after payment of all debts, dividends, and the par value of its capital stock becomes the property of the United States Government. Federal Reserve banks are exempt from Federal, State, and local taxation, except taxes upon real estate.

The board of directors of each Federal Reserve bank is composed of nine members, equally divided into three classes, designated class A, class B, and class C. Directors of class A are representative of the stockholding member banks. Directors of class B must be actively engaged in their district in commerce, agriculture, or some other industrial pursuit, and may not be officers, directors, or employees of any bank. Class C directors may not be officers, directors, employees, or stockholders of any bank. The six class A and B directors are elected by the stockholding member banks, while the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System appoints the three class C directors. The term of office of each director is 3 years, so arranged that the term of one director of each class expires each year.

One of the class C directors appointed by the Board of Governors is designated as chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve bank and as Federal Reserve agent, and in the latter capacity he is required to maintain a local office of the Board of Governors on the premises of the Federal Reserve bank. Another class C director is appointed by the Board of Governors as deputy chairman.

Each Federal Reserve bank has as its chief executive officer a president appointed for a term of 5 years by its board of directors with the approval of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. There is also a first vice president appointed in the same manner and for the same term.

Federal Reserve banks are authorized, among other things, to receive and hold on deposit the reserve balances of member banks; to issue Federal Reserve notes; to discount for their member banks notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and bankers' acceptances of short maturities arising out of commercial, industrial, or agricultural transactions, and short-term paper secured by obligations of the United States; to make advances to their member banks upon their promissory notes for periods not exceeding 90 days upon the security of paper eligible for discount or purchase or upon direct obligations of the United States, and for periods not exceeding 15 days upon certain other securities; to make advances upon security satisfactory to the Federal Reserve banks to member banks for periods not exceeding 4 months at a rate of interest at least one-half of 1 percent higher than that applicable to discounts and advances of the kinds mentioned above; in certain exceptional circumstances and under certain prescribed conditions, to make advances to groups of member banks; under certain prescribed conditions, to grant credit accommodations to furnish working capital for established industrial or commercial businesses for periods not exceeding 5 years, either through the medium of financing institutions or, in exceptional circumstances, directly to such businesses, and to make commitments with respect to the granting of such accommodations; in unusual and exigent circumstances, when authority has been granted by at least five members of the Board of Governors, to discount for individuals, partnerships, or corporations, under certain prescribed conditions, notes, drafts, and bills of exchange of the kinds and maturities made eligible for discount for member banks; to make advances to individuals, partnerships, or corporations upon their promissory notes secured by direct obligations of the United States for periods not exceeding 90 days; at the direction of the Federal Open Market Committee, to purchase and sell in the open market bankers' acceptances and bills of exchange of the kinds and maturities eligible for discount, obligations of the United States, and certain other securities; to act as clearing houses and as collecting agents for their member banks, and under certain conditions for nonmember banks, in the collection of checks and other instruments; to act as depositaries and fiscal agents of the United States; and to exercise other banking functions specified in the Federal Reserve Act.

Federal Reserve notes are a first and paramount lien on all the assets of the Federal Reserve banks through which they are issued and are also obligations of the United States. They are issued against the security of gold certificates, commercial and agricultural paper discounted or purchased by Federal Reserve banks, and direct obligations of the United States. Every Federal Reserve bank is required to maintain reserves in gold certificates of not less than 25 percent against its Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation and against its deposits.

The Federal Advisory Council acts in an advisory capacity, conferring with the Board of Governors on general business conditions and making recommendations concerning matters within the Board's jurisdiction and the general affairs of the Federal Reserve System. The Council is composed of 12 members, 1 from each Federal Reserve district being selected annually by the board of directors of the Federal Reserve bank of the district. The Council is required to meet in Washington at least four times each year, and oftener if called by the Board of Governors.

FEDERAL SECURITY AGENCY

As presently constituted the Federal Security Agency consists of the following units: Food and Drug Administration, Office of Education, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Public Health Service (including Freedmen's Hospital), Social Security Administration, Bureau of Employees' Compensation, Employees' Compensation Appeals Board, and St. Elizabeths Hospital. The Agency discharges certain duties prescribed by law in connection with the American Printing House for the Blind, Columbia Institution for the Deaf, and Howard University.

The Federal Security Agency was created by Executive order of the President, dated April 25, 1939, putting into effect the President's First Plan on Government Reorganization in accordance with the provisions of the Reorganization

Act of 1939. The Federal Security Agency was established to carry out the purposes of this act which were: (1) To reduce expenditures; (2) to increase efficiency; (3) to consolidate agencies according to major purposes; (4) to reduce the number of agencies by consolidating those having similar functions and by abolishing such as may not be necessary; (5) to eliminate overlapping and duplication of effort. Grouped in the Federal Security Agency are those agencies of the Government, the major purposes of which are to promote social and economic security, educational opportunity, and the health of the citizens of the Nation.

The organizations grouped in the Federal Security Agency under the First Plan were the Social Security Board, the United States Employment Service, the Office of Education, the Public Health Service, the National Youth Administration, and the Civilian Conservation Corps. The National Youth Administration and the United States Employment Service were transferred to the War Manpower Commission by Executive Order No. 9247, dated September 17, 1942. The Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration are both now substantially liquidated. The Second Plan on Government Reorganization transferred to the Federal Security Agency Government participation in the work of the American Printing House for the Blind. The Fourth Plan on Government Reorganization transferred to the Federal Security Agency the Food and Drug Administration from the Department of Agriculture, and St. Elizabeths Hospital, Freedmen's Hospital, Howard University, and Columbia Institution for the Deaf from the Department of the Interior.

Executive Order No. 9338, dated April 29, 1943, transferred to the Federal Security Agency from the Office for Emergency Management the functions of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services. Under this order and a Federal Security Agency order implementing it, the Office of Community War Services and a Committee on Physical Fitness were established as integral parts of the Office of the Administrator, Federal Security Agency. The Committee on Physical Fitness was terminated June 30, 1945. The Office of Community War Service was terminated on June 30, 1946.

Under a Federal Security Agency order dated September 4, 1943, there was established in the Agency an Office of Vocational Rehabilitation to carry out the provisions of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act amendments of 1943.

The President's Second Reorganization Plan, effective July 16, 1946, pursuant to the Reorganization Act of 1945, transferred to the Federal Security Agency the functions of the Employees' Compensation Commission (the Commission being abolished), the Children's Bureau (with the exception of its child labor functions, which remain in the Department of Labor), and the Division of Vital Statistics. It provided for establishment of a board of three persons to make final decisions on appeals from determinations with reference to compensation claims of employees of the Federal Government or the District of Columbia. This plan also abolished the three-member Social Security Board and transferred its functions to the Federal Security Administrator.

Pursuant to provisions of this plan, the Federal Security Administrator established the Bureau of Employees' Compensation and the Employees' Compensation Appeals Board. The Administrator also established the Social Security Administration to carry on the functions formerly discharged by the Social Security Board and the Children's Bureau.

OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR

The affairs of the Federal Security Agency are under the direction and supervision of the Federal Security Administrator. In addition to an Assistant Federal Security Administrator, the Assistant Administrator for Program, and a small staff of assistants, the Office of the Administrator consists of the following units which aid in the supervision and coordination of the various programs and organizations within the Agency:

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATION

This office, under the direction of the Executive Assistant to the Administrator and consisting of the divisions listed below, is responsible for the development and establishment of standards and procedures, and for the general direction, coordination, and review of all management functions of the Agency:

Division of Budget and Finance.
Division of Library Services.
Division of Personnel Management.
Division of Service Operations.
Division of Administrative Planning.

OFFICE OF GENERAL COUNSEL

This office, under the direction of the General Counsel, is responsible for the direction and supervision of all legal activities of the Agency.

OFFICE OF RESEARCH

This office, under the Director of Research, is responsible for the general direction and coordination of all research activities of the Agency.

OFFICE OF PUBLICATIONS AND REPORTS

This office, under the Director of Publications and Reports, is responsible for the general direction and coordination of all information activities of the Agency.

OFFICE OF FEDERAL-STATE RELATIONS

This office, under the Director of Federal-State Relations, is responsible for the development and coordination of policies, methods, and procedures concerning Federal-State relations involved in the various grant-in-aid and other programs of the Agency.

OFFICE OF INTER-AGENCY AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

This office, under the Director of Inter-Agency and International Relations, is responsible for the development and coordination of policies concerning relationships of the Agency with other Federal agencies, international agencies, representatives of foreign governments, and organized groups in the fields of health, education, and security.

AMERICAN PRINTING HOUSE FOR THE BLIND

The American Printing House for the Blind, located at Louisville, Ky., assists public institutions in the education of the blind youth of America. The institution receives the revenue from a perpetual trust fund of $250,000 set aside by Congress in 1879, as well as an annual Federal appropriation of $115,000. These funds are used for labor, materials, and other expenses incident to the embossing of books, the recording of talking books, and the manufacture of apparatus for schools for the blind. These are distributed without cost to public institutions for the education of the blind.

BUREAU OF EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION

The Bureau of Employees' Compensation was created by the Federal Security Administrator under the authority of Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1946, to perform the functions formerly vested in the United States Employees' Compensation Commission. Such reorganization plan abolished the Commission and transferred its functions to the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency. The Bureau administers workmen's compensation laws providing benefits for civil employees of the United States, and workmen's compensation protection for other employments within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government. Such laws include the Federal Employees' Compensation Act approved September 7, 1916 (5 U. S. C. ch. 5); the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act approved March 4, 1927 (33 U. S. C. secs. 901–950); the District of Columbia Workmen's Compensation Law of May 17, 1928 (45 Stat. 600); the act approved August 16, 1941 (Public, No. 208, 77th Cong.); and the act approved December 2, 1942 (Public, No. 784, 77th Cong.).

The benefits provided by the act of September 7, 1916, originally applicable to civil employees of the United States, have subsequently been extended to (a) Employees of the Government of the District of Columbia (except firemen and police). (b) In time of peace to members of the Reserve Corps of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, for injuries sustained in line of duty while on active duty or authorized training. (c) The Coast Guard Reserve. (d) Commissioned personnel of the United States Public Health Service. (e) Student nurses in training in Federal hospitals.

The act of September 7, 1916, subject to certain modifications prescribed in the act of February 15, 1934 (5 U. S. C. 796), which limit the circumstances under which compensation benefits may be extended and reduce the scale of such benefits, has been made applicable to (a) Employees of the Civil Works Administration. (b) Enrollees in the Civilian Conservation Corps. (c) Persons employed as employees of the United States on projects financed by the Federal Emergency Relief Appropriation Acts. (d) Certain persons receiving assistance from the National Youth Administration. (e) Persons attached to the work corps established by the War Relocation Authority and other persons receiving compensation from such Authority for work performed.

The act of September 7, 1916, provides compensation including medical, surgical, and hospital services made necessary by reason of a personal injury sustained while in the performance of duty. In case such injury causes death, compensation is authorized for certain surviving dependents and provision is made for payment of reasonable burial expenses. No benefits may be authorized if the injury is caused by the willful misconduct of the injured person or by his intention to bring about the injury or death of himself or another, or if intoxication of the injured person is the proximate cause of the injury or death.

Compensation under the basic law of September 7, 1916, may be extended to eligible persons for disability or death resulting from an injury by accident or a disease proximately caused by the employment. Persons engaged in employments to which the limitations in the act of February 15, 1934, are applicable may receive benefits only for the effects of a traumatic injury which under a statutory definition is limited to injury by accident. Claims for compensation must be filed within 1 year, but under certain conditions the time limit may be extended in the discretion of the Bureau.

Medical and hospital treatment must be obtained from a United States medical officer or hospital. However, if this is not practicable, treatment must be obtained from a physician or hospital designated by the Bureau of Employees' Compensation. When neither of these is available treatment may be obtained from the nearest physician or hospital.

The monthly compensation for total disability may not be more than $116.66 nor less than $58.33, unless the employee's monthly pay is less than the latter amount, in which case his compensation shall be the full amount of his monthly pay. The minimum rate of $58.33 is not applicable in the case of an employee who is not a citizen of the United States and who is injured outside the continental limits of the United States. Beneficiaries receiving compensation under an award for permanent total disability, which renders them so helpless as to require the constant services of an attendant, may receive additional compensation at a rate not in excess of $50 per month. The maximum monthly compensation for persons employed on work-relief projects was increased from $25 to $30 on June 29, 1937, and to $50 on June 21, 1938. There is no minimum rate applicable to such cases.

Compensation for partial disability is payable at a rate equal to 66⅔ percent of the difference between the employee's monthly pay and his earning capacity after the beginning of such disability. Employees on relief projects are entitled to compensation for partial disability in accordance with a special schedule covering specific injuries. Special provision is made for adjustment of rates in cases of noncitizens outside the United States.

In case of death, compensation is payable to the widow or dependent widower, to children under the age of 18 years, to dependent parents or grandparents, and to other dependents under certain conditions.

Effective January 1, 1947, administration of the Civilian War Benefits program was placed under the Bureau of Employees' Compensation. Authority for continuation of such benefits presently rests upon authorization in annual appropriation acts.

By Executive order the administration of the Compensation Act so far as it relates to Panama Canal employees has been placed under the Governor of the Panama Canal.

The Director of the Bureau is the final authority within the Bureau in the adjudication of claims arising under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act. There is a separate Board of Appeals which functions as an appellate body to hear and decide appeals from the decision of the Director of the Bureau in cases arising under such act.

The Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, approved March 4, 1927, covers employees in private industry engaged in maritime employment on the navigable waters of the United States (including drydocks) who sustain injury or death arising out of, and in course of, employment. These employees are mostly longshoremen and men engaged in repair work on vessels. It does not include the master or members of the crews of vessels, nor persons engaged by the master to load or unload or repair vessels under 18 tons. The compensation features of the act were effective July 1, 1927. Compensation is paid by the employer and the cost of administration by the United States.

On and after July 1, 1927, every employer having employees coming under the provisions of the act is required to secure payment of compensation by insurance in a company authorized by the Bureau or self-insurance authorized by the Bureau. A heavy penalty is provided for failure to secure compensation. A severe penalty is also provided for the employing of any stevedoring firm which does not present a certificate of compliance.

The Bureau is required to make the rules and regulations under this act, prescribe forms, establish compensation districts, and appoint and assign deputy commissioners to such districts. The deputy commissioners are required to issue certificates of compliance with insurance provisions, enforce requirementr as to reports and penalties, regulate medical and legal fees, hold hearings when necessary or demanded by either party, make investigations, allow or disallow claims, examine settlements when hearings are not required to see that the injured employee has received the benefits of the law, take action in case of default in payment, and certify records upon appeal to the courts. Appeal to the Federal courts from the decision of the deputy commissioner may be had upon questions of law.

Compensation for total disability is two-thirds of the average weekly pay, not to exceed a maximum of $25 per week, with a minimum of $8 per week. There is a schedule of benefits for permanent partial disability. Death benefits are payable to the widow until remarriage and to children until they reach the age of 18, also to other dependents under certain circumstances. Reasonable funeral expenses not to exceed $200 are provided. The total compensation payable for injury or death in any one case shall not exceed the sum of $7,500.

The act approved May 17, 1928, which became effective July 1, 1928, made applicable to employers and employees in the District of Columbia the provisions of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, thus extending the principles of workmen's compensation to employment in the District of Columbia.

The act excludes from its benefits the master and a member of a crew of any vessel, such men having the rights known as maintenance and cure and the rights given by the Federal Employers' Liability Act; the employees of railroads when engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, who are also specifically provided for by the Federal Employers' Liability Act; and employees engaged in domestic service or agriculture; and those engaged in casual employment not in the usual course of the trade, business, occupation, or profession of the employer.

Compensation is paid by the employer through an insurance carrier authorized by the Bureau or direct as a self-insurer under conditions prescribed by the Bureau.

By the act approved August 16, 1941, as amended by the act of December 2, 1942 (Public Law 784, 77th Cong.), the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, with certain modifications, has been made applicable in respect to the injury or death of any employee engaged in any employment at any military, air, or naval base acquired after January 1, 1940, by the United States from any foreign government or upon lands occupied or used by the United States for military or naval purposes in any Territory or possession outside the continental United States, including Alaska, the Naval Operating Base, Guantanamo, Cuba, the Philippine Islands, and the Canal Zone, irrespective of the place where the injury or death occurs, and employees of contractors with the United States engaged in any public works to be performed outside the continental limits of the United States. The effect of the act of August 16, 1941, as amended, is to provide workmen's compensation coverage under a Federal law for all employments in connection with construction work at national defense bases and other public works outside the continental United States. In the administration of this act the Bureau is authorized to establish compensation districts to include any areas to which the act applies, and to assign personnel to administer the law locally within such districts.

Public Law 784, approved December 2, 1942, also provides certain benefits in the nature of workmen's compensation for persons missing as a result of enemy action or captured by an enemy while in the employ of contractors with the United States in operations under such contract outside the continental limits of the United States. Such benefits also extend to certain persons engaged by the United States under a personal service contract and to civilian employees of a post exchange or ship-service store outside the United States. Provision is also made for the payment of allowances to the dependents of such missing persons and for repatriation upon release from custody. The Bureau is authorized to make rules and regulations for the administration of such benefits which are payable from the annual appropriation to the Bureau for the Employees' Compensation Fund.

Public Law 784 also provides for reimbursement to employers, insurance carriers, and compensation funds for benefits paid under a workmen's compensation law in certain cases of injury or death occurring outside the United States as a result of a war risk hazard. Reimbursement is also provided for payments made with respect to the death of certain persons where such payments are in pursuance of an agreement made in accordance with a contract between the United States and the contractor employer and for benefits paid in respect to the failure of the United States or its contractor to furnish return transportation upon the completion of the employment of an employee. Such reimbursement is to be made from the Employees' Compensation Fund under such awards as the Bureau may approve.

The several Federal workmen's compensation laws include statutory provisions relating to the prevention of injuries in the employments covered by such laws. The Bureau is directed to make studies and investigations with respect to safety provisions and the causes of injuries in such employments and to make to the Congress and to the Federal agencies, private employers, and insurance carriers such recommendations as it may deem proper as to the best means of preventing such injuries.

COLUMBIA INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF

The aim of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf is the physical and mental advancement of the deaf of the various States and the District of Columbia. Established by Congress in 1857, it provides for the education of deaf children and young people.

Kendall School, for younger children, approximates the work of the first 10 or 11 grades of the public schools.

Gallaudet College is the only institution in the world offering advanced education especially for deaf students. Courses provide a general cultural background as well as special training in teaching, psychology, printing, drawing, chemistry, agriculture, bacteriology, domestic science, domestic art, and business practice.

There are also a Normal Department which trains hearing teachers of the deaf, and a Research Department which studies problems of the deaf and hard of hearing.

EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION APPEALS BOARD

The Administrator of the Federal Security Agency pursuant to direction and under the authority contained in Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1946, effective July 16, 1946, established in the Office of Special Services, Federal Security Agency, an Employees' Compensation Appeals Board.

The Board has jurisdiction to consider and decide appeals from the final decision, with findings of fact and award, of the Bureau of Employees' Compensation of the Agency, in any case arising under the United States Employees' Compensation Act, or arising under any statutory extension or application of such act. The decision of the Board is final and such decision is not subject to review except by the Board.

The jurisdiction of the Board shall extend to review of questions of law and fact within the purview of the United States Employees' Compensation Act, or extension thereof, and the review of a case shall be made upon the findings of fact and the action of the Director of the Bureau of Employees' Compensation taken pursuant to section 36 of such act (5 U. S. C. 786), and upon the particular case record in such Bureau of Employees' Compensation.

The Regulations Governing Appeals were published in the Federal Register, September 7, 1946, Title 20, Employees' Benefits, Chapter IV, Employees' Compensation Appeals Board, Federal Security Agency, Part 501. The Rules of Procedure were published in the Federal Register, Tuesday, October 8, 1946, Title 20 and Chapter IV same as above, Part 502.

The Board is located in the Federal Security Building, Fourth and Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D. C., and is authorized to perform its work at any place deemed necessary.

FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION

The Food and Drug Administration enforces the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, Tea Importation Act, Import Milk Act, Caustic Poison Act, and Filled Milk Act.

This Administration inspects and analyzes samples of the various products coming under its jurisdiction, both at its field stations and in its laboratories at Washington, to the end that it may detect and cause to be removed from the channels of trade all those products which fail to comply with the terms of the regulatory acts which it administers. It assists manufacturers to keep their products in compliance with these acts and institutes legal action against those who violate the law. Its primary function is to protect the consuming public against misbranded or adulterated foods, drugs, and cosmetics, and honest manufacturers against unfair competition with such goods.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY

Howard University, established under a law passed by Congress in 1867, "for the education of youth in the liberal arts and sciences," today offers undergraduate, graduate, and professional training; it provides education of the highest academic standing available to Negro Americans in any institution organized primarily for their benefit.

The university has made its greatest progress since 1928, aided by increased appropriations from the Federal Government and substantial grants from leading educational foundations. Located in the District of Columbia, it operates an undergraduate college, a graduate school, and eight professional schools as follows: medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, engineering, music, law, religion, and social work. Its major professional schools are now developed to a point of approval by official accrediting agencies, with the exception of engineering which is still short of necessary building and equipment. The college of dentistry is provisionally accredited pending the acquisition of the proper building and equipment.

OFFICE OF EDUCATION

The Commissioner of Education, under the direction of the Federal Security Administrator, has charge of the Office of Education, which was established by an act of Congress in 1867 "for the purpose of collecting such statistics and facts as shall show the condition and progress of education in the several States and Territories, and of diffusing such information respecting the organization and management of schools and school systems, and methods of teaching, as shall aid the people of the United States in the establishment and maintenance of efficient school systems, and otherwise promote the cause of education throughout the country." Additional duties have been placed upon the Office of Education in accordance with provisions in later acts of Congress and with executive regulations made under the same. Responsibilities are undertaken for all phases and all levels of education, from the beginning grades through the university, and relate to such major functions as are described below:

1. Administration of laws of Congress relating to colleges.—This responsibility includes: (a) The supervision of expenditure of funds appropriated by Congress for land-grant colleges by the act of 1862 (first Morrill Act) donating lands for colleges of agriculture and the mechanic arts; the act of 1890 (second Morrill Act) for the further endowment of land-grant colleges; the Nelson amendment of 1907, still further endowing the land-grant colleges; and the Bankhead-Jones Act of 1935, title II (sec. 22), providing for the more complete endowment and support of land-grant colleges. The Federal Security Administrator is required annually to ascertain and to certify to the Secretary of the Treasury as to each State and Territory whether it is entitled to receive its share of the annual appropriations. To do this it is necessary to collect and compile for each institution information on expenditures and the purposes for which they were made. (b) The inspection of Howard University and the issuance of a report on the same. Acts of Congress require that the university be inspected by the Office of Education at least once each year and that an annual report making a full exhibit of the affairs of the university shall be presented to Congress each year in the report of the Office of Education.

2. Administration of Federal vocational education laws.—The Office of Education is responsible for administering the national vocational education acts. These are: (a) The Smith-Hughes Act, approved February 23, 1917. This act provides appropriation of approximately $7,285,100 per year for grants to the States for the development of vocational education programs in agriculture, trades and industry, home economics, and teacher training. (b) The George-Barden Act, approved August 1, 1946. This act authorizes an annual appropriation of $29,-301,740.22 for the purpose of assisting the several States and Territories in the further development of vocational education in agriculture, home economics, trades and industry, and distributive occupations. (Of the amount authorized, $19,333,942 was appropriated for the fiscal year 1948, to be apportioned on the basis of not to exceed $19,842,759.97.)

The Smith-Hughes Act and the George-Barden Act stipulate that States and Territories shall be required to match Federal funds, dollar for dollar, with State and local funds. States and Territories are required to submit State plans through which they propose to utilize the Federal funds granted to them.

The Office of Education performs three major responsibilities in carrying out the purposes of the national vocational education acts. (1) It examines the plans submitted by the State Boards for Vocational Education and approves those plans found to be in conformity with the acts. It ascertains annually if the States are using the granted funds in accordance with the stipulations of the acts and certifies to the Secretary of the Treasury the States which have complied with the acts, together with the amount which each State is entitled to receive. (2) It conducts studies and investigations and makes reports in the professional field of vocational education aimed to assist the States in improving their State and local programs. (3) The Division of Vocational Education, as the Federal Government's representative in vocational education, cooperates with State boards, assisting them to promote the cause of vocational education.

3. Educational research and investigation.—(a) Studies of current problems in all phases and at all levels of education regularly carried on by specialists in various fields of education. (b) Biennial surveys of education, including both statistical and descriptive forms of information on the status of education in all fields. (c) Surveys in definite phases of education authorized by special appropriations of Congress.

4. Consultative and advisory services.—(a) On surveys of State and local school systems and of educational institutions. (b) Cooperative studies with representatives of educational systems and organizations. (c) Services on educational committees and through conference groups. (d) Participation in programs of educational organizations. (e) Advisory services to school officials. (f) Advisory and informational services to other Government agencies.

5. Publications and their distribution.—The Office, by means of its appropriation for printing, publishes bulletins, pamphlets, and other forms of materials for distribution through a limited free stock and a sales stock. The Office also publishes two periodicals: School Life, issued monthly, except August and September, and Higher Education, issued semimonthly, for 9 months (September through May).

6. Activities carried on by allotments from special funds appropriated by Congress.—The Office of Education, under authority delegated to it by War Assets Administration under Public Law 457, Seventy-eighth Congress, the Surplus Property Act of 1944, provides consultative and advisory technical services to the War Assets Administration, the Army, and the Navy, in the disposal of property, both real and personal, which is excess to the needs of the Federal Government, to eligible educational institutions in the United States in order to assure an orderly and equitable distribution of such property. The Office, under Public Law 697, Seventy-ninth Congress, has been given the responsibility for certifying the nature and extent of existing or impending shortages of educational facilities, other than housing, required for persons engaged in the pursuit of courses of training or education under title II of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 as amended.

The office promotes inter-American educational relations through programs made possible by funds received from the Interdepartmental Committee on Cooperation with the American Republics and the State Department.

7. Collection student war loans.—The Office is responsible for supervising the repayment of approximately $3,000,000 in Federal loans which were made to certain professional and technical students during the fiscal years 1943 and 1944, to assist them in completing their accelerated courses in shortage fields. The loans were authorized under authority of Public Law 647, Seventy-eighth Congress, second session.

OFFICE OF VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION

The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation was established in the Federal Security Agency by the Federal Security Administrator on September 4, 1943, under the direction and control of a Director of Vocational Rehabilitation. The Director has been delegated authority, under the supervision of the Federal Security Administrator, to exercise, with certain exceptions, the authority, duties, functions, and powers granted to the Federal Security Administrator in the Vocational Rehabilitation Act amendments of 1943 (Public Law 113), approved July 6, 1943.

The 1943 act amends the act of June 2, 1920, which provided for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry or otherwise and their return to civil employment.

The Federal Board for Vocational Education was designated by the 1920 act as the agency to administer the Federal program in cooperation with the States.

Under Executive order of June 10, 1933, the functions of the Federal Board for Vocational Education were transferred to the Department of the Interior. These functions were assigned to the Commissioner of Education on October 10, 1933, and established as the vocational division of the Office of Education.

The act of July 6, 1943, defines "vocational rehabilitation" and "vocational rehabilitation services" as any services necessary to render a disabled individual fit to engage in a remunerative occupation. The 1943 act made basic changes in the act of 1920 with reference to the scope of services to be rendered, the groups of disabled individuals to be served, and the method to be followed in financing the program.

The 1943 act provides for an expanded Federal-State program of rehabilitation by including physical restoration services for disabled individuals, necessary hospitalization to effect these services; transportation; occupational licenses and necessary occupational tools and equipment; prosthetic devices essential to obtaining or retaining employment; and maintenance not exceeding the estimated cost of subsistence during training. These provisions may be contrasted with those of the 1920 act, which practically limited the use of Federal funds to the guidance and training phases of the program and to the furnishing of prosthetic devices.

In addition to the groups of disabled individuals served under the provisions of the original act, provision is made in the 1943 act for the rehabilitation of the blind and persons with mental disabilities, and for the rehabilitation of war-disabled civilians defined as individuals disabled in civilian defense activities or while serving with the Merchant Marine.

The act of July 6, 1943, provides that appropriations for grants-in-aid to the States will be allotted on the basis of the needs of the States and their ability to match Federal funds. The original Rehabilitation Act limited the authorization for Federal appropriations and provided that allotments to the States be made on the basis of general population.

While the 1920 act provided that all expenditures made by a State from Federal allotments must be matched by a like amount of State funds, the 1943 act provides that the entire cost of the administration of the State programs and the cost of guidance and placement of handicapped persons will be paid wholly from Federal funds. The 1943 act likewise provides that 100 percent of the cost of rehabilitating war-disabled civilians will be borne by the Federal Government. One-half of the cost of services (other than guidance and placement) rendered to other disabled individuals will be paid from Federal funds.

Moneys made available for the purpose pursuant to the act of July 6, 1943, are used for making payments to the States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, provided they have submitted and had approved by the Federal Security Administrator State plans for vocational rehabilitation of disabled persons. For residents of the District of Columbia the program is administered by the Federal Security Agency through the District of Columbia Rehabilitation Service.

Under the President's Reorganization Plan No. 2, which became effective July 16, 1946, the responsibilities and functions of the Commissioner of Education as provided for in the Randolph-Sheppard Act of June 20, 1936, were transferred to the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency and the Administrator delegated the responsibility for the administration of the act to the Director of the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. The Randolph-Sheppard Act authorizes the operation of stands in Federal buildings by blind persons. The act also provides for enlarging the economic opportunities of the blind, the making of surveys of industries with a view to obtaining information that will assist blind persons to obtain employment, and the making available to the public, and especially to persons and organizations engaged in work for the blind, information obtained as the result of such surveys. The Federal functions authorized by the Randolph-Sheppard Act now are administered in conjunction with vocational rehabilitation services for the blind.

The Business Enterprises Program for the Blind, authorized by the Labor-Federal Security Agency appropriation acts, is also administered by the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. This makes Federal funds available for part of the costs of vending stands and other equipment controlled by State agencies for the use of blind persons.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

The U. S. Public Health Service is the principal Federal agency concerned with the health of the Nation. Its basic organization and functions are described in the Public Health Service Act (Public Law No. 410, 78th Cong.), and its amendments.

The headquarters of the Public Health Service at Washington comprise the Office of the Surgeon General, the National Institute of Health, the Bureau of Medical Services, and the Bureau of State Services. The Surgeon General, assisted by the Deputy Surgeon General and executive officer, exercises general supervision over the administration and operations of the Public Health Service, including the assignment of the officers detailed for duty with other governmental agencies; conducts the relations of the Public Health Service with international organizations having public health functions; and supervises the Office of the Surgeon General.

The Office of the Surgeon General carries out general administration and includes the following units:

1. The Division of Commissioned Officers is responsible for recruitment, appointments, promotions, assignments, training, retirement, and other matters relating to commissioned personnel, and also for the recruitment and assignment of internes to marine hospitals.

2. The Dental Division supervises dental activities of the Public Health Service, and advises the Surgeon General regarding plans, programs, and policies for the Service in relation to dental health.

3. The Sanitary Engineering Division supervises all sanitary engineering and sanitation operations carried on by the Service, including sanitation problems related to domestic quarantine; administers the Stream Pollution Laboratory at Cincinnati, Ohio; and advises the Surgeon General regarding plans, programs, and policies for the Service in relation to sanitary engineering and sanitation activities.

4. The Division of Nursing has general supervision over all nursing operations carried on by the Public Health Service and professional supervision over all nursing personnel of the Public Health Service, including personnel assigned for duty with other governmental agencies. Responsibilities are in three main groups: Public Health Nursing, Hospital Nursing, and Nurse Education. This Division also administers all activities under provisions of the act of June 15, 1943 (Public Law No. 74, 78th Cong.), known as the Bolton Nurse Training Act.

5. The Division of Public Health Methods is responsible for the study and definition of public health problems; evaluation and perfection of procedures; collection of information regarding the prevalence of diseases dangerous to the public health; analysis of health statistics; scientific and informational publications of the Service; and cooperative health activities.

6. The International Health Relations Office collects and distributes global epidemiological information, represents the Service at international health conventions, and promotes personnel exchange between nations; supervises the Liberian Health Mission, and public health fellowship program for the Philippines under the Philippine Rehabilitation Act; develops public health attaché work in selected foreign areas; does research on over-all world health conditions; supervises all international aspects of the Public Health Service work in cooperation with the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, the Food and Agricultural Organization, the International Labor Organization, and the Interim Commission of the World Health Organization. This office cooperates closely with the Department of State in all of these functions.

7. The National Office of Vital Statistics was formerly the Division of Vital Statistics in the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. Under Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1946, the functions of the Bureau of the Census with respect to vital statistics were transferred to the Federal Security Agency for administration by the Public Health Service. This office collects, analyzes, and publishes statistics on births, deaths, marriages, divorces and annulments, and related data; maintains the U. S. Death Registration Area and the U. S. Birth Registration Area in cooperation with State, territorial, and insular governments; works closely with State and local registrars of vital statistics and provides them with consultative and technical assistance for the purpose of maintaining high standards of performance in registration procedures; and also conducts an international vital statistics program, in cooperation with the State Department, for the purpose of promoting the collection and interchange of comparable statistical information among nations.

8. The Chief Medical Officer of the United States Coast Guard is responsible to the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, as well as to the Commandant of the Coast Guard, for the medical and dental care of Coast Guard personnel.

The National Institute of Health is the scientific research bureau of the Public Health Service. Through the Institute, the Service also administers the provisions of the Public Health Service Act concerning the regulation of the sale of viruses, serums, toxins, and analogous products, including arsphenamine. The Institute includes the National Cancer Institute and Experimental Biology and Medicine Institute (comprised of Division of Physiology and Laboratories of Chemistry and Pathology); the Divisions of Infectious Diseases, of Tropical Diseases, and of Research Grants and Fellowships and the Laboratories of Biologics Control and Physical Biology.

The Bureau of Medical Services is responsible for all foreign and insular quarantine activities; medical services rendered to beneficiaries of the Public Health Service; administrative supervision of officers assigned to certain government agencies, including medical and psychiatric services in Federal penal and correctional institutions under the control of the Department of Justice; and the administration of the National Mental Health Act (Public Law No. 487, 79th Cong.) and of the Federal Employee Health Act (Public Law No. 659, 79th Cong.).

The Bureau comprises four units:

1. The Hospital Division is responsible for the administration of 23 marine hospitals, including the National Leprosarium and two tuberculosis sanatoria, health and medical activities within the Service which are carried out for the benefit of the United States Coast Guard, and the supervision of Freedmen's Hospital (see below).

2. The Mental Hygiene Division administers the National Mental Health Act (Public Law No. 487, 79th Cong.), approved July 3, 1946. The act provides for the establishment of a National Mental Health Institute to carry on research and provide training in the causes and treatment of mental and nervous diseases; authorizes grants-in-aid for research to public and private institutions and to individual scientists; grants-in-aid to public and other non-profit institutions and to individuals for training in mental hygiene; and grants-in-aid to the States for work in mental health.

The Division also administers the two hospitals for the treatment of drug addicts and for mentally ill beneficiaries of the Public Health Service and of other Federal agencies, including the armed forces.

3. The Foreign Quarantine Division administers the quarantine laws and regulations of the United States to prevent the introduction of quarantinable diseases—cholera, plague, smallpox, typhus, yellow fever—from foreign ports into the United States, its territories and insular possessions. The Division also furnishes technical advice to the immigration service at home and abroad as to the eligibility of aliens for entrance into the country.

4. Federal Employee Health Division reviews and makes recommendations on the health service program for government employees authorized by Public Law 658, approved August 8, 1946.

The Bureau of State Services is responsible for Federal grants to States for the several types of public health activities, other cooperative work with State and local health departments, interstate quarantine functions and such emergency health and sanitation activities as are not specifically assigned elsewhere, and supervision of the work of the district offices and of the Communicable Disease Center, Atlanta, Ga. The Bureau comprises five units:

1. The States Relations Division administers the general health-services part of the Federal-State cooperative health program and the acute communicable disease control activities of the Service, including interstate quarantine. This includes demonstrations of new technics in public health control of disease, training of personnel employed by State and local agencies, cooperation with State health authorities in preventing the spread of epidemic and endemic diseases, and conducting an annual conference of the Public Health Service with State and territorial health officers.

2. The Venereal Disease Division is authorized by Public Law No. 410 to make grants-in-aid to the States for developing venereal-disease-control programs in health departments throughout the country. This Division also administers a broad program of research, education, training, advisory services, and demonstrations in the control of syphilis and gonorrhea to prevent their spread from State to State.

3. The Industrial Hygiene Division develops methods for the protection of industrial workers through field and laboratory investigations and demonstrations. It promotes the adoption and practice of health standards in industry through the administration of the grant-in-aid program, through technical and administrative consultation, through information services, and cooperative relationships.

4. The Tuberculosis Control Division has responsibility for developing more effective measures for the prevention, treatment, and control of tuberculosis.

Grants-in-aid to the States for control of tuberculosis are made under the authority of section 314 (b) of Public Law No. 410. This Division conducts research, training, surveys, and demonstrations in the control of tuberculosis and provides consultant service in a variety of related fields.

5. The Hospital Facilities Division, established in 1946, administers the provisions of the Hospital Survey and Construction Act of August 13, 1946 (Public Law No. 725, 79th Cong.), which authorizes the appropriation of Federal funds to be allotted to the States as grants-in-aid for the conduct of State-wide surveys of the needs for hospitals and related facilities, and for construction of such facilities. This Division also conducts fact-finding studies with respect to hospital services and related facilities, and it provides consultation and technical aid to the States in the various phases of their hospital survey and construction programs.

The advisory boards established by law to assist the Surgeon General in the administration of the Public Health Service are: National Advisory Health Council, Federal Hospital Council, National Advisory Cancer Council, National Advisory Mental Health Council, and Advisory Committee to the Surgeon General for Nurse Education. The Federal Hospital Council is unique in that the law gives it administrative, as well as advisory, duties. In addition, the Surgeon General, from time to time, appoints advisory committees of experts to make recommendations on particular subjects.

Freedmen's Hospital was established by Congress in 1865 for the care of Negro patients. It has become primarily a general hospital for the treatment of acute medical and surgical patients. Since the establishment of Howard University College of Medicine, it has provided clinical facilities and training for students at that institution. Formal training for nurses and interns was instituted in 1894, and a residency program in 1940.

ST. ELIZABETHS HOSPITAL

St. Elizabeths Hospital was founded by act of Congress in 1855 under the name of The Government Hospital for the Insane. Its purpose, in the words of Dorothea Lynde Dix who wrote the bill, was to provide "the most humane care and enlightened curative treatment of the insane of the Army and Navy of the United States and of the District of Columbia." Subsequent acts of Congress authorized the care of numerous classifications of Federal charges. By provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1946 admission of patients from the Army and Navy was discontinued.

In 1916 the name was changed by act of Congress to St. Elizabeths Hospital, thus confirming a custom which had grown up through the years of applying to the hospital the name of the tract of land upon which it was erected, the tract having been indicated as St. Elizabeths from the days of the early Maryland settlers.

The institution was administered under the supervision of the Department of the Interior until 1940, when by the Fourth Plan on Government Reorganization under the Reorganization Act of 1939 it was transferred to the Federal Security Agency. It is now a Bureau of that Agency.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Under Reorganization Plan II, effective July 16, 1946, the three-member Social Security Board established pursuant to the Social Security Act of August 14, 1935, was abolished and its functions transferred to the Federal Security Administrator, who also received, by transfer from the Department of Labor, the functions of the Children's Bureau and the functions of the Secretary of Labor relating thereto except those under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938. The Federal Security Administrator, as of that date, established the Social Security Administration under a Commissioner to whom he delegated most of the functions carried by the former Social Security Board for old-age and survivors insurance, unemployment insurance, and public assistance, and most of those for maternal and child welfare programs.

Except for certain functions which remain with the Federal Security Administrator, the Commissioner for Social Security carries responsibilities for all existing programs under the Social Security Act, as amended, including determination of policies and specific action in: (1) Administering Federal old-age and survivors insurance and certifying to the Secretary of the Treasury amounts to be paid to entitled persons as monthly benefits or lump sums under that program. (2) Approving State unemployment insurance laws; determining and certifying to the Secretary of the Treasury Federal grants to States for administration of such laws; reviewing the laws and their administration to determine compliance with Federal requirements; and certifying State laws to the Secretary of the Treasury to permit employers to credit against the Federal unemployment tax amounts that they have paid—or would have paid in the absence of approved rate variations—to State unemployment funds. (3) Approving State plans for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, and aid to the blind; determining and certifying to the Secretary of the Treasury Federal grants to States for such plans; and reviewing State plans and administration to determine compliance with Federal requirements. (4) Determining and certifying to the Secretary of the Treasury grants to States for maternal and child health services, services for crippled children, and child welfare services; and reviewing, for compliance with Federal requirements, the operation and administration of these programs in the States. (5) Conducting studies and making recommendations on the most effective methods of providing economic security through social insurance and related measures, on legislation and matters of administrative policy concerning public assistance and related subjects, and on matters pertaining to children and child life.

In addition, the Commissioner for Social Security participates with the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs in certifying to the Secretary of the Treasury amounts to be paid for administrative expenses incurred or to be incurred by States in connection with their responsibilities under title V of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944.

The Social Security Administration includes four program bureaus—the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, the Bureau of Employment Security, the Bureau of Public Assistance, and the Children's Bureau; three staff bureaus—the Bureau of Accounts and Audits, the Bureau of Research and Statistics, and the Informational Service; the Office of the Actuary; the Office of Appeals Council; and certain staff and service units in the Office of the Commissioner. Regional and field offices provide decentralized services.

BUREAU OF OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE

Under title II of the Social Security Act, as amended, the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance administers a program to provide benefits to wage earners and their families, which replace, in part, wages lost because of old age or death of the wage earner. Monthly retirement benefits are payable to insured workers who have reached age 65 and retire, and to their wives who have reached age 65 and their children under age 18. Monthly survivor benefits are payable to children under age 18 of deceased insured workers and to widows with such children in their care; to aged widows; and, if no widow or unmarried child under age 18 is immediately or potentially eligible for benefits, to dependent parents aged 65 or over. If no monthly benefits are payable for the month in which the insured worker dies, a lump sum is payable to the spouse or, in the absence of such survivor, to a person who paid his burial expenses. The provisions of the original old-age benefits program became effective in January 1937. Monthly retirement and survivor benefits under the Social Security Act amendments of 1939 began in 1940. The 1946 amendments provide protection under the program to survivors of World War II veterans who meet certain service requirements and who die or have died within 3 years after their discharge; this benefit is not payable if the survivor is receiving or eligible for payments under other veterans' legislation.

The Bureau is responsible for the establishment and maintenance of individual accounts in which are recorded the amounts of reported wages of workers in industrial and commercial employment. Account numbers are assigned in the field offices of the Bureau, which also furnish information to workers and employers as to their rights and obligations under the program. The Bureau's field representatives assist potential claimants in filing applications for benefits and in developing the evidence necessary for determining their claims. They also determine eligibility for benefits and compute the amount of the benefits on the basis of wages in covered employment. Responsibility for reviewing field-office determinations and for making certifications to the Treasury Department for payment of benefits, from the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, is decentralized to six area offices.

The Bureau conducts such actuarial, economic, and administrative studies as are necessary to the administration of title II of the Social Security Act; it also tabulates, from its wage and claims records, statistical data needed in analyzing and supervising the operation of the old-age and survivors insurance provisions of the act. On the basis of its experience and studies, the Bureau recommends to the Commissioner for Social Security action to establish and improve policies and procedures.

The Treasury Department determines liability for the contributions assessed under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (Internal Revenue Code, Chapter 9, Subchapter A, formerly title VIII of the Social Security Act). The amounts collected from employers and employees under this tax are automatically appropriated to the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, of which the Secretary of the Treasury is Managing Trustee and the Federal Security Administrator and the Secretary of Labor are members. Since the program started, employers and their employees have been liable for 1 percent each of the first $3,000 a year in wages paid to an individual worker for services in employment covered under the program. Under amendments to the Social Security Act in 1947, the rate is scheduled to rise to 1.5 percent each at the beginning of 1950 and to 2 percent each at the beginning of 1952.

BUREAU OF EMPLOYMENT SECURITY

Titles III and IX of the Social Security Act of 1935 enabled the States and the Federal Government to establish a Nation-wide system of unemployment insurance, whereby the individual States would administer their own unemployment insurance laws and the Federal Government would grant funds necessary for administrative costs. The States record wage credits toward unemployment benefits, collect contributions, determine rights and eligibility for benefits, and pay benefits. To obtain the funds necessary for administration, the State laws must meet certain requirements set forth in title III and in chapter 9, subchapter C, of the Internal Revenue Code (formerly title IX of the Social Security Act).

The Bureau of Employment Security has primary responsibility for assisting the Commissioner for Social Security in discharging the Federal functions concerned with administering this program. This responsibility entails ascertaining that State laws include provisions that benefits be paid through public employment offices or other approved agencies; that a worker's rights to benefits, when he refuses a job which fails to meet certain labor standards, be safeguarded; that all contributions collected by the State be deposited in the unemployment trust fund established in the Federal Treasury; that State funds withdrawn from their accounts in that fund be used only to pay benefits; and that State administration assure prompt payment of benefits to insured unemployed workers and afford an opportunity for a fair hearing before an impartial tribunal to workers whose claims for benefits are denied. State laws—within the conditions for approval—differ widely in coverage, benefit provisions, eligibility and disqualification requirements, and contribution rates and other financial factors.

The Bureau reviews and makes recommendations concerning individual State budgets before Federal grants for administration are certified. The determination of proper administrative costs takes into account differences among States in coverage, compensable unemployment, and administrative and legislative provisions. Other responsibilities of the Bureau entail reviewing State administrative operations and expenditures of Federal funds and assisting State agencies in applying or adapting more effective administrative procedures developed by individual States or by the Bureau; analyzing statistical reports that States submit on the administration and operations of their programs for the purpose of estimating trends in coverage, contributions, benefit rights, and benefit payments; and studying and recommending methods of improving the unemployment insurance program through State and Federal legislation. The Bureau also coordinates financial and administrative relations with the United States Employment Service of the Department of Labor and assists the States in matters relating to their part in the program for Federal readjustment allowances to veterans.

Under the Social Security Act Amendments of 1946, the Federal Security Administrator administers provisions for temporary reconversion benefits (through June 30, 1949) for seamen whose maritime employment has been technically Federal employment. The Bureau of Employment Security carries primary reponsibility in connection with these benefits, which are to be paid by the State employment security agencies under agreements entered into with the Federal Security Administrator.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

The Bureau of Public Assistance is concerned with the administration of grants to the States for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, and aid to the needy blind under the provisions of titles I, IV, and X of the Social Security Act. The programs are State-initiated and State-administered and reflect State differences in historical background, administrative structure, and legislative framework and appropriations.

The Bureau advises the States in the preparation of their public assistance plans and, in cooperation with the appropriate bureaus and offices in the Social Security Administration and with the office of the general counsel of the Federal Security Agency, examines these plans (and modifications thereof) for conformity with the requirements of the Social Security Act and established Federal standards and policies. It is on the basis of approval of these plans that certifications of grants-in-aid are made to the States to assist them in financing their programs for aid to the needy aged, to children deprived of parental support or care, and to the needy blind. The Bureau reviews the operation of these plans periodically for continuing conformity with the act, and offers to the States technical consultative services on public assistance administration. It also serves the States as a clearing house for the exchange of public assistance information and experience.

The Social Security Act merely defines the limits and scope of Federal financial participation; the State plan may be broader. Federal participation is restricted to administrative costs of the programs and money payments (as distinct from services or payments in grocery orders and the like) to persons who are needy, who are not inmates of public institutions, and who meet certain eligibility conditions. The eligibility conditions preclude Federal sharing in old-age assistance to persons under age 65, or to children age 18 and over (or age 16 and over if not attending school), or to children who are living with someone not included in a specified list of relatives in a residence maintained by such relative as a private home. In all other respects, Federal sharing, within the maximums specified, is conditioned on the State's action in determining eligibility for assistance under its plans and in providing funds for the operation of the program. Until July 1, 1950, the Federal contribution will be more than one-half and as much as two-thirds of the State's assistance payments, depending on the average amount of the payments made by the State. The Federal Government does not participate in that portion of an assistance payment that is in excess of $45 in old-age assistance and aid to the blind, or in that portion of the payment for aid to dependent children in excess of $24 for the first child aided and $15 for each additional child in the home.

CHILDREN'S BUREAU

The Children's Bureau was created on April 9, 1912, by act of Congress (37 Stat. 79) and was placed in the Department of Labor by act of March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 736). By the President's Reorganization Plan No. 2, effective July 16, 1946, the Bureau was transferred to the Federal Security Agency, except for its Industrial Division (through which the Bureau had exercised its functions under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938), which remained in the Department of Labor. Under an Agency order, the Bureau is now placed in the Social Security Administration, where it continues to exercise all the functions for which it was previously responsible under title V of the Social Security Act.

In carrying out the responsibilities assigned by its organic act, namely, to study and report on all that pertains to the welfare of children, the Bureau makes studies, compiles statistics, develops standards, gives advisory service, and issues publications, both technical and popular. Three of the Bureau's most widely used publications for parents are Prenatal Care, Infant Care, and Your Child from One to Six.

The Bureau administers grants to State health agencies for extending and improving health services for mothers and children authorized by title V, part 1, of the Social Security Act. Among these services are maternity clinics for prenatal and postnatal care of mothers; child-health conferences for supervision of the health of children under school age by physicians, assisted by public health nurses and other professional and technical workers in the health field; health services for school children, including health supervision by physicians, dentists, public health nurses, and nutritionists; dental care for children; nutrition education; inspection and licensing of hospital maternity services. The Bureau provides medical (obstetric, pediatric, and orthopedic), dental, nursing, and medical-social consultation services to State health agencies administering the program.

Since 1943, Congress has appropriated funds, administered by the Bureau, for a temporary program of emergency care of wives and babies of men in the lowest four pay grades of the armed forces and of aviation cadets. This program is now being concluded, and funds appropriated by Congress for the fiscal years 1948 and 1949 provide for the completion of all cases for which care was authorized before June 30, 1947, and for the authorization of new cases that were otherwise eligible as of that date.

The Bureau administers grants to State agencies for extending and improving services for crippled children authorized by title V, part 2, of the Social Security Act. These agencies, usually in the health or welfare departments, use the funds to provide medical, surgical, corrective, and other services and care for children who are crippled or suffering from conditions that may lead to crippling, and to provide facilities for diagnosis, hospitalization, and aftercare for these children. Each State maintains a register of the crippled children found within its borders. The Bureau provides consultation service to the State agencies on methods and procedures, on standards for the selection of physicians, surgeons, and hospitals participating in the care of crippled children, and on provision of medical and social aftercare services.

Grants to State public welfare agencies, authorized by title V, part 3, of the Social Security Act, are administered by the Children's Bureau to extend and strengthen, especially in predominantly rural areas, public welfare services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children and children in danger of becoming delinquent. For each State public welfare agency, the Bureau plans and directs the program for child welfare services. Federal funds are used in part to provide State personnel to supervise the development of county or other local child welfare programs. Most of the State agencies use Federal funds to pay part of the cost of a child welfare program within the selected counties or other local subdivisions. In the administration of these grants the regional staff participates in the joint development of plans and gives advisory and consultant service to the State agencies.

The Bureau receives information and responds to requests for information and advice on services for children and youth from agencies in other countries and from international organizations such as United Nations agencies. The Bureau cooperates with the other American Republics under a program sponsored by the Department of State through the Interdepartmental Committee on Scientific and Cultural Cooperation. Consultants on maternal and child health and social services are assigned to the other countries on request, and administrators of health and social services are invited to the United States for observation and training. Spanish, Portuguese, and French editions of the Bureau's publications for parents, translated by the Department of State, are distributed in the other American Republics by the diplomatic missions of the United States.

BUREAU OF ACCOUNTS AND AUDITS

The Bureau of Accounts and Audits is responsible for the conduct of accounting, financial reporting, auditing, and fiscal advisory functions relating to the departmental and field activities of the Social Security Administration with respect to social insurance and public assistance. The Bureau reviews the fiscal aspects of State public assistance plans and requests for grants, conducts audits of State public assistance agencies, and furnishes constructive accounting services to such agencies. In unemployment insurance it conducts audits of administrative expenditures of State employment security agencies. The Bureau's duties include processing the budget of the Social Security Administration, keeping continuous control over expenditures, and maintaining accounts covering all funds collected and expended by the Administration. It is also responsible for the preaudit and certification for payment of administrative expenses of the Administration and furnishing advisory services to its bureaus and offices on accounting and fiscal matters.

BUREAU OF RESEARCH AND STATISTICS

The Bureau of Research and Statistics conducts studies of factors causing economic insecurity, the adequacy of existing social security measures, and problems connected with the development of a comprehensive and coordinated social security program covering all appropriate groups and risks. In this connection, it is charged with the development of new fields of study in social security, such as health and disability insurance and the provision of medical care, arising out of the responsibility imposed by section 702 of the Social Security Act. The Bureau is responsible for research and statistical activities beyond the immediate fields of the Administration's operating programs, such as the over-all financial and economic aspects of the social security program and the characteristics or effects of the interrelations of programs under the Social Security Act and other social insurance and welfare programs. The Bureau's duties include a continuing review of the research and statistical programs of the several bureaus and offices of the Administration to determine their integration with a broad research program and responsibility for coordinating related statistical and research activities of the operating bureaus and for reviewing research and statistical materials.

INFORMATIONAL SERVICE

The Informational Service is responsible for giving workers, employers, and the general public information on the provisions of the Social Security Act, particularly the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program. Information is disseminated through various channels of public information and education, so that persons affected may obtain the benefits the law provides, may meet their responsibilities under the law, and may comply with the necessary administrative procedures and regulations. The Informational Service advises and assists State agencies administering public assistance and unemployment insurance in planning and maintaining their informational programs.

OFFICE OF THE ACTUARY

The Actuarial Consultant and his staff advise the Commissioner for Social Security on technical, actuarial, and long-range factors needed in planning operations under the Social Security Act, in determining costs, and in considering proposals concerning the social security program.

OFFICE OF APPEALS COUNCIL

The Office of Appeals Council, which is independent of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, hears and reviews appeals on claims for wage credits, monthly benefits, and lump-sum payments under programs administered by that Bureau. The Office consists of the 3 members of the Council, 12 regional referees, and a consulting referee.

OTHER OFFICES

Units in the Office of the Commissioner assist State agencies administering approved unemployment insurance and public assistance programs to conform with the merit-system requirements of the Social Security Act and to achieve maximum economy and efficiency in the operation of personnel programs, and review the operations of the merit systems for their compliance with the Social Security Act; perform for components of the Administration in Washington functions with respect to personnel, files, centralized stenographic and typing services, travel and space; and are responsible for services with respect to budget, general coordination and procedures, communications, publications (including the monthly Social Security Bulletin and its annual supplement, the Social Security Yearbook), and training.

LEGAL SERVICES

The General Counsel of the Federal Security Agency provides legal services, including legal advice concerning proposed and enacted State laws and plans for programs under the Social Security Act, and all legal aspects of the old-age and survivors insurance program; cooperates with the Department of Justice in litigation involving the Social Security Act and with States in litigation involving the State laws enacted to carry out the terms of the act; and renders advice on the legal aspects of methods proposed for improving social security provisions.

REGIONAL OFFICES

For effective and uniform administration, operations of the Administration are decentralized to provide local and regional services to workers covered by old-age and survivors insurance, to claimants for benefits under that program, and to State agencies administering laws and plans under the Social Security Act. Each of the regional offices—11 continental and 2 Territorial (Alaska and Hawaii)—is under the supervision of a regional director representing the Commissioner, with a staff including representatives of the various bureaus and offices.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

The Federal Trade Commission was created by an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, in which the powers and duties of the Commission were defined. The Commission is an administrative tribunal with its five members appointed by the President of the United States, with the approval of the Senate, for a term of 7 years each. No more than three of its members may be of the same political party.

Further powers were conferred upon this Commission by Public, No. 447, Seventy-fifth Congress, third session, "An act to amend the act creating the Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved March 21, 1938 (Wheeler-Lea Act); by "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (Clayton Act), and by Public, No. 692, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved June 19, 1936, amending section 2 of said act of October 15, 1914 (Robinson-Patman Act); by "An act to promote export trade, and for other purposes," approved April 10, 1918 (Webb-Pomerene Export Trade Act); and by Public, No. 850, Seventy-sixth Congress, third session, approved October 14, 1940 (Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939); and by Public, No. 489, Seventy-ninth Congress, first session, approved July 5, 1946 (Lanham Trade-Mark Act), effective July 5, 1947.

FUNCTIONS AND PROCEDURE OF THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION UNDER STATUTES WHICH IT ADMINISTERS

The Commission's legal functions include prevention of unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce, and of certain violations of the Clayton and other acts. Economic functions include general investigations and economic studies of domestic industry and interstate and foreign commerce.

The proceedings of the Commission under its organic act fall into two major categories: (1) Antimonopoly cases, and (2) false and misleading advertising and unfair acts and practices. The first category deals with price fixing, conspiracy, and restraints of trade, which may be reached by the Commission in their incipiency, thereby preserving the economy from the evils attendant upon the operation of a fully developed monopoly. In this category also appear such practices as boycotting, collusive bidding, control and limitation of supply, intimidation, operation of delivered price and zoning systems designed to eliminate competition, misuse of patents and licensing agreements and a variety of similar practices. In addition to a wide variety of false and misleading advertising and misbranding cases, the second category deals with such practices as appropriation or simulation of trade names or identifying marks, commercial bribery, disparaging of competitors' products, passing off, fictitious price marking, simulation of competitors' products or package, threats of infringement suits not made in good faith, use of lottery devices in the sale of merchandise and similar practices, the variety and scope of which are limited only by the ingenuity of those who seek to take unfair advantage of their competitors and the purchasing public.

THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ACT

Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act provides that "unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce, are hereby declared unlawful" and empowers and directs the Commission to prevent "persons, partnerships, or corporations, except banks, common carriers subject to the acts to regulate commerce, air carriers and foreign air carriers subject to the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, and persons, partnerships, or corporations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, except as provided in section 406 (b) of said act, from using unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce."

The Commission is empowered and directed whenever it shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership, or corporation has been or is using any unfair method of competition in commerce or any unfair or deceptive act or practice in commerce, and if it shall appear to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, to issue and serve upon such person, partnership, or corporation a complaint stating its charges in that respect. Provision is made for hearings, the taking of testimony and oral argument before the Commission upon request therefor. If the Commission shall then be of the opinion that the method of competition or the act or practice in question is prohibited by this act, it shall issue and cause to be served upon the person or organization against whom complaint is made its findings of fact and an order to cease and desist from such unfair method of competition or such unfair or deceptive act or practice.

Provision is made for petition to a circuit court of appeals of the United States, within any circuit where the method of competition or the act or practice in question was used or where such person, partnership, or corporation resides or carries on business, within 60 days from the date of the service of such order to modify or set aside such order of the Commission. Upon such petition the court has power to affirm, modify, or set aside such order, and to enforce the same to the extent that such order is affirmed. An order of the Commission to cease and desist becomes final upon the expiration of the time allowed for filing a petition for review, if no such petition has been duly filed within such time; and, in case petition for review has been duly filed within the time allowed, the order of the Commission becomes final when the time for filing petition for certiorari has expired after such order has been affirmed or modified by a circuit court of appeals and no such petition has been filed, or, if certiorari has been granted, at such time as the decision has been affirmed by the Supreme Court.

Section 5, as amended, also provides that "any person, partnership, or corporation who violates an order of the Commission to cease and desist after it has become final, and while such order is in effect, shall forfeit and pay to the United States a civil penalty of not more than $5,000 for each violation, which shall accrue to the United States and may be recovered by a civil action brought by the United States."

Generally, a letter to the Commission stating the employment of unfair practices by some concern is sufficient to institute the Commission's consideration of a proceeding. If the letter clearly discloses that nothing is charged within the jurisdiction of the Commission, it is filed without further action. If it appears, however, that there may have been such a violation of law, the matter is settled, after further investigation, by stipulation and agreement with the concern named in the letter, or by the issuance of a formal complaint followed by a formal trial of the charges, or by closing the file without action, or by dismissal of the charges, as required by the facts of the particular case and by the public interest.

In cases where stipulations are authorized, voluntary agreements are entered into between the Commission and the individual or concern named. Such stipulations recite the particular offense or violation charged and include an agreement to cease and desist from the practice in question. Stipulations are extended by the Commission as a matter of privilege and not of right, in instances where formal action appears unnecessary in the public interest. All such stipulations are a part of the public records of the Commission and digests thereof are published. It is the policy of the Commission not to thus dispose of matters involving intent to defraud or mislead; false advertisement of food, drugs, devices, or cosmetics which may be injurious to health; suppression or restraint of competition through conspiracy or monopolistic practices; violations of the Clayton Act; or where the Commission is of the opinion that such procedure will not be effective in preventing continued use of the unlawful method, act, or practice.

A formal proceeding, instituted by a formal complaint and followed by the taking of testimony, filing of briefs, and oral argument, is terminated by the entry of a formal order to cease and desist or by order dismissing or closing the case. Such a proceeding is prosecuted in the name of the Commission by the Bureau of Litigation, and testimony and evidence in such proceeding are proffered before a member of the Bureau of Trial Examiners, who is charged with the duty of passing upon the testimony and evidence and with other details incident to the trial of the case.

Procedure and internal organization of the Commission, specific methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices condemned by the Commission, are set forth in detail in its annual report.

Section 6 of the act empowers the Commission to gather and compile information concerning, and to investigate from time to time, the organization, business, conduct, practices, and management of corporations engaged in commerce, except banks and common carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce, and vests the Commission with authority to require reports and answers to specific questions in the compilation of such information in the public interest.

The Commission also has power under section 6 to investigate alleged violations of the antitrust acts by any corporation, upon the direction of the President or Congress, and, at the request of the Attorney General, to make such investigations and recommendations for changes in the corporation's methods so as to conform to the law.

The Commission is also empowered under section 6 to investigate the manner in which final decrees that have been entered in suits to restrain violations of said decrees have been carried out, either upon its own initiative or at the request of the Attorney General, to whom it must report in the matter; to make such reports public; to investigate from time to time trade conditions in and with foreign countries where associations, combinations, or practices of manufacturers, merchants, or traders, or other conditions may affect the foreign trade of the United States; and to make public from time to time such portions of the information obtained by it as it shall deem expedient in the public interest, except trade secrets and names of customers.

Under section 6 the Commission derives its authority for conducting general economic investigations into the business practices of industry throughout the country. Under such authority the Commission has conducted many economic inquiries, chiefly at the request of the President, the Senate, or the House, to whom reports have been made, and has gathered and published for the use of the Congress, the executive departments and agencies, and the public, a great deal of information regarding many of the essential industries of the country.

Important laws to which some of the Commission's general investigations above referred to have led, directly or indirectly, include, among others, the Export Trade Act, the Packers and Stockyards Act, the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1938, the Public Utilities Holding Company Act of 1935, the Natural Gas Act of 1938, the present Federal Power Commission Act and the Robinson-Patman Antidiscrimination Act of 1936, which amended section 2 of the Clayton Act.

Important inquiries recently completed and also in progress under section 6 are described on page 679 et. seq.

Section 7 of the organic act provides that in any suit in equity brought by or under the direction of the Attorney General, as provided in the antitrust acts, the court may refer said suit to the Commission, as a master in chancery, to ascertain and report an appropriate form of decree therein.

Other sections of the act give to the Commission authorization for such investigations and the compilation of data, with provisions for procedure under the act, and penalties prescribed for refusal of persons, partnerships, or corporations to furnish such material or to comply with orders of the Commission to testify, produce evidence, or file reports, as required.

Section 12 makes unlawful the dissemination or the causing of the dissemination of any false advertisement "by United States mails, or in commerce by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of food, drugs, devices, or cosmetics; or by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce of any food, drugs, devices, or cosmetics." It also provides that the dissemination or the causing of the dissemination of any such false advertisement shall be an unfair or deceptive act in commerce within the meaning of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Section 13 authorizes the Commission to apply to any district court of the United States or in the United States Court of any Territory for a temporary injunction to enjoin the dissemination or the causing of the dissemination of any false advertisement of food, drugs, devices, or cosmetics whenever it has reason to believe that such injunction, pending final action upon a complaint issued by the Commission under section 5, would be to the interest of the public.

Section 14 provides that any person, partnership, or corporation violating any provision of section 12 (a) shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment if the use of the commodity so advertised may be injurious to health because of results from such use under the conditions prescribed in the advertisement thereof, or under such conditions as are customary or usual, or if such violation is with intent to defraud or mislead.

Section 15 defines the term "false advertisement" and also defines "food," "drug," "devices," and "cosmetics."

Section 16 provides that whenever the Commission has reason to believe that any person, partnership, or corporation is liable to the penalty under section 14 or under subsection (l) of section 5, it shall certify the facts to the Attorney General, whose duty it shall be to cause appropriate proceedings to be brought for the enforcement of the provisions of such section or subsection.

THE CLAYTON ACT

The Commission is vested with jurisdiction with respect to sections 2, 3, 7, and 8 of the Clayton Act. Procedure under this act is, with some exceptions, identical with procedure under the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Antidiscrimination Act, declares that it shall be unlawful for any person engaged in commerce, either directly or indirectly to discriminate in price between different purchasers of commodities of like grade and quality, where such commodities are sold for use, consumption, or resale within the United States or any Territory thereof, or the District of Columbia, where the effect of such discrimination may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce or to injure, destroy, or prevent competition. This section outlaws discriminations in price, services, and facilities and prohibits the payment or receipt of certain brokerage fees and allowances or other compensations, with certain limitations and statutory exceptions provided.

Section 3 prohibits, in certain cases, so-called tying contracts, or contracts whereby, as a condition of sale or lease, the seller or lessor exacts from the purchaser or lessee an agreement that he shall not use or deal in the goods or other commodities of a competitor of the lessor or seller, where the effect of such agreement may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce.

Section 7 prohibits acquisition by one corporation of the share capital of another corporation engaged in commerce, or acquisition by one corporation of the share capital of two or more corporations engaged in commerce, where the effect, in either case, may be to substantially lessen competition between the acquiring and acquired companies, or to restrain commerce or tend to create a monopoly.

Section 8 prohibits so-called interlocking directorates in cases where one person shall at the same time be a director in any two or more corporations (any one of which has capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $1,000,000) engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, other than banks, banking associations, trust companies, and common carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce, if such corporations are or have been competitors, so that the elimination of competition by agreement between them would constitute a violation of any of the provisions of any of the antitrust laws.

THE EXPORT TRADE ACT

This law permits the formation of export associations which are required to file with the Federal Trade Commission copies of their organization papers and current reports as to their operation. Under the terms of the act, such a group shall be engaged solely in export trade, and shall not restrain the trade of a domestic competitor, artificially or intentionally enhance or depress prices in this country, or substantially lessen competition or otherwise restrain trade within the United States.

THE WOOL PRODUCTS LABELING ACT OF 1939

This act provides, in substance, that purchasers shall be informed as to the true content of articles which are made or appear to be made in whole or in part of woolen fiber, and that producers, manufacturers, merchants, and the public generally shall be safeguarded against the deception and unscrupulous competition arising from misbranding or nondisclosure of content. The act, approved by the President October 14, 1940, and effective July 14, 1941, is enforced and administered by the Federal Trade Commission. Wool products coming under the act are required to be labeled so as to disclose the kind and percentage of each different fiber contained therein including the respective percentages of "wool," "reprocessed wool," and "reused wool." Disclosure of the maximum percentage of loading and adulterating material, if any, and the name of the manufacturer of the wool product or the name of a qualified distributor or reseller must also appear as part of the required information. The label or a proper substitute specified by the statute is to remain on the merchandise through the channels of trade until sold or delivered to the purchaser-consumer. Products covered by the act include in general all articles of clothing, blankets, etc., containing or purporting to contain woolen fibers; also the yarns and fabrics of the wool textile industry and the products of manufacturing industries using such yarns and fabrics. General compliance work is conducted throughout the United States by field inspectors of the Commission. Under the act, false and deceptive labeling and failure to properly label products subject to the act is unlawful. Likewise unlawful is the removal or mutilation of required labels from wool products with intent to violate provisions of the act. The Commission is authorized, through its regular procedure, to issue cease and desist orders prohibiting such practices. Under specific authority the Commission is empowered to petition an appropriate United States district court for an injunction to restrain the sale and shipment of misbranded wool products, and is further empowered to invoke the aid of the courts in condemnation proceedings involving merchandise misbranded under the terms of the act. Willful violations are punishable as misdemeanors and may be reported to the Attorney General for prosecution.

THE LANHAM TRADE-MARK ACT OF 1946

Under the Lanham Trade-Mark Act of July 5, 1946, which became effective July 5, 1947, the various trade-mark laws of the United States are incorporated within a single statute. The Federal Trade Commission is given the duty of making applications for the cancellation of registered trade-marks under certain specified conditions as set forth in subsections (c) and (d) of section 14 of said act and in the administration of the provisions of the act committed to it must maintain liaison with the Patent Office, the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice, and other Government agencies so as to enable the Commission to properly prepare, submit and prosecute applications for cancellation of those registered trade-marks which have been or are being used contrary to the public interest. The Commission, as applicant, must secure the proper evidence upon which the application for cancellation is based, prepare the application, stating the grounds relied on, and be represented at the hearing before a Patent Office examiner for the purpose of presenting the evidence relied upon and to otherwise prosecute the matter to a conclusion.

THE REORGANIZATION PLAN AND PROGRAM

In February 1946 the Commission submitted to the President a reorganization plan which was designed to expand the cooperative phases of its work and thereby improve and expedite observance of the laws under its jurisdiction, and which the President approved.

The program, put in effect in August 1946 following the provision of funds by the Congress to initiate the same and implement its aims and ideals, contemplates—

The undertaking, in appropriate situations, of investigations and the taking of uniform corrective action on an industry-wide basis;

The undertaking of simultaneous formal proceedings against those members of an industry in which unfair practices are found to be prevalent who do not voluntarily agree, either through trade-practice conferences or through stipulations, to abandon such unfair practices;

The placing of greater emphasis on the elimination of unfair trade practices through cooperative means by broadening and strengthening the trade-practice conference procedure and the initiation in appropriate situations of such proceedings by the Commission itself;

The improvement of the informal stipulation procedure in the correction, in proper cases, of unlawful trade practices; and

The avoidance of conflicting action or duplication with the work of the Food and Drug Administration and continued cooperation with it in the seeking of common objectives under the respective statutes.

TRADE PRACTICE CONFERENCE WORK OF THE COMMISSION

Under the reorganization program the trade-practice conference provides the means whereby law enforcement is accomplished on an industry-wide basis and through voluntary cooperation, as opposed to compulsory proceedings against individual offenders. Upon its own motion, or pursuant to industry request filed with it, the Commission invites all of the members of an industry to attend an industry conference to consider practices in the industry and adopt rules covering such practices as are deemed unfair. After further hearing of interested parties, rules are promulgated for the industry and the members thereof given opportunity to indicate their willingness to observe such rules in the conduct of their business. By agreeing to abide by the rules for their industry they, in effect, agree to abandon or refrain from using the unfair practices covered therein. After rules are established for an industry, the same principle of cooperation is applied under the rule administration program to the problem of maintaining continued observance of the provisions against unfair practices.

Trade-practice rules established under this procedure provide for the elimination and prevention of unfair methods of competition, unfair or deceptive acts or practices, and other illegal business methods. There may also be included in the rules provisions for otherwise fostering and promoting fair competitive conditions and ethical standards of business conduct in harmony with the public interest. Rules established for an industry are classified as group I and group II rules. In group I are placed all rules which proscribe practices that are illegal as constituting unfair methods of competition, unfair or deceptive acts or practices, or are otherwise within the inhibitions of laws administered by the Commission. Appropriate proceedings in the public interest will be instituted by the Commission to prevent the use of such unlawful practices in commerce. Group II rules embrace the wholly voluntary or recommended industry practices. However, no such rule is received by the Commission unless the provision is in harmony with law and the public interest and is constructively in support of the maintenance of fair competitive conditions in the industry.

FALSE AND MISLEADING ADVERTISING CASES

For the purpose of effecting a more direct and expeditious method of handling certain cases involving false and misleading advertising, violative of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, as amended, the Commission maintains its Division of Radio and Periodical Advertising and its Bureau of Stipulations. Advertisers, publishers, broadcasting stations, and advertising agencies may confer directly with the heads of these divisions, with a view to reaching an agreement in such cases as are appropriate for negotiating a stipulation, thereby disposing of the issues involved and obviating the necessity of formal trial.

By this procedure the advertisers are afforded an opportunity informally to present for consideration such evidence relating to the advertising claims questioned by the Commission as they may care to submit, with a view to determining whether or not a revision of their advertising is required, and to stipulate the discontinuance of any representations which, after a consideration of all the evidence, are determined to be false or misleading. In most cases the results obtained by this procedure are as effective as those that could be accomplished by the issuance of cease and desist orders; and litigation expensive to both the advertisers and the Government is thereby avoided.

INDUSTRIAL ECONOMICS

Since its inception in 1914, the Federal Trade Commission has been engaged in general investigations into broad economic problems. The Commission is empowered by Sec. 6 of the Federal Trade Commission Act to make such investigations and reports upon the direction of the President or either House of Congress, or upon application of the Attorney General, or upon the initiative of the Commission. Many of these reports have contributed significantly to the subsequent development and passage of important pieces of legislation, including the Webb-Pomerene Act of 1918, the Packers' and Stock Yards Act of 1921, the Grain Futures Act of 1921, the Perishable Commodities Act of 1930, the Radio Act of 1927, the Federal Communications Act of 1934, the Securities Act of 1933, the Public Utilities Holding Company Act of 1935, the Federal Power Act of 1935, the Robinson-Patman Anti-Price Discrimination Act of 1936, and the amendment of the Perishable Agriculture Commodities Act of 1937.

In the fiscal year of 1947, the Commission completed and transmitted to Congress the following reports which presented the results of general investigations: Present Trend of Corporate Mergers and Acquisitions, the Copper Industry, the Sulfur Industry and International Cartels, the Wholesale Baking Industry, Growth and Concentration in the Flour Milling Industry, and Economic Effects of Grain Exchange Actions Affecting Futures Trading During the First Six Months of 1946.

In the current fiscal year, the Commission is making general investigations into such subjects as the continuing trend of mergers and acquisitions, the cost structure of the fertilizer industry, the trends of prices and profits of selected identical companies between 1940 and 1948, and distribution practices of large corporations affecting small business.

In addition, a considerable body of economic information has been presented by the Commission to the Congress in the form of hearings before subcommittees of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees which have been considering proposed amendments to Sec. 7 of the Clayton Act, to give the Commission power to prevent acquisitions of assets, generally similar to its present power over acquisitions of stock. Detailed information has been presented on the extent and character of mergers in a wide variety of different industries. [The material presented to the House of Representatives has been printed as Hearings before Subcommittee No. 2 of the House Judiciary Committee, Eightieth Congress, First Session, on H. R. 515, "Amending Sec. 7 and 11 of the Clayton Act." Insofar as the Senate is concerned, the hearings have not as yet been printed, but the material presented is available at the Senate Judiciary Committee in the form of transcripts of the record.]

In addition to making general investigations into broad economic problems, economic work is involved in the Commission's price-fixing cases, its price discrimination cases, its compliance work, and its trade practice conferences.

Price-fixing cases require an analysis, from an economic viewpoint, of pricing policies and distribution practices in relation to the legal issues of monopolistic practices, price-fixing, and restraints of trade. Such studies frequently examine pricing "systems" which result in identical prices to a buyer from different producers, regardless of where those producers are located and regardless of the amount of the transportation cost from the producing point to the buyer's location.

Market research frequently discloses the use of a variety of devices such as: (1) books of standard factors for computing freight charges which actually have little or no relation to the real freight charges, but result in identical delivered price quotations from all sellers; and (2) standard commodity classifications and price factors by means of which prices of a wide variety of products are arbitrarily tied to some common base with the result of securing price uniformity. In many instances, it is found that such systems and practices are designed for and result in the avoidance of price competition and in gross discriminations, which may be of such importance as to doom to failure one enterprise in favor of another; and to restrict the growth of industry in one geographical region in favor of another.

Economic and accounting work is involved not only in price fixing and conspiracy cases but also in many of the Commission's actions against price discrimination under the Robinson-Patman amendment to the Clayton Act. Such cases may require appraisal of the effects of quantity discounts made by producers to various types of distributors, the nature and extent of price discrimination, and the extent to which the discrimination is justified, as provided in the Robinson-Patman Act, by lower costs associated with greater volume.

In those price discrimination cases in which the Commission makes an industry-wide investigation looking toward a proceeding for the fixing of maximum quantity limits, as provided under Sec. 2 (a) of the Clayton Act, the company may offer in defense statistical studies showing a decline in cost with increasing volume. This necessitates an accounting analysis of these data by the Commission to determine their reliability and validity. Extensive economic analysis is involved in making the determination, which is required by the law, as to whether or not the price discriminations practiced are of such a character as to be unjustly discriminatory and promotive of monopoly.

Economic and accounting information is also involved in the Commission's trade practice conference work, specifically on such questions as the extent to which a particular practice is followed by the various segments of an industry; the probable economic implications of the various proposed solutions; the character of a particular practice in one industry as compared with similar practices in other industries; the ways in which a practice prevalent in one industry has been modified or eliminated in other industries, etc.

Finally, the Commission must keep itself currently informed on the occurrence and prevalence of significant economic developments, such as the spread of particular types of unfair trade practices, the occurrence of restraints of trade, the development of monopolistic tendencies, and the existence of discriminatory policies, which are susceptible of action under the laws administered by the Commission.

INDUSTRIAL FINANCIAL REPORTS

Under section 6 of its organic act the Federal Trade Commission is empowered to collect annual or special reports from corporations engaged in commerce (except banks, common carriers, and other corporations specifically exempted by law). The Commission performed this function prior to the war but discontinued the work after the Office of Price Administration obtained similar authority and commenced performing this function.

On December 12, 1946, the President, by Executive Order No. 9809, returned the financial reporting function from the Office of Price Administration to the Federal Trade Commission. Accordingly, the Commission thereupon resumed its peacetime work in this field.

The plan for resumption of the work was carefully developed after intensive work by an interagency committee on financial statistics, representing nine Government agencies. This committee operated through the Bureau of the Budget as provided for by the Federal Reports Act of 1942, in order to determine the needs of the Government for these data. This committee on financial statistics recommended a program of quarterly and annual financial reports. The work was assigned jointly to the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The latter is responsible for the collection and compilation of information for corporations with securities listed on a national stock exchange, and the Federal Trade Commission is responsible for the collection of information from a sufficient number of large, medium and small corporations that do not report to Securities and Exchange Commission so as to effectively fill out a sample that is representative of all manufacturing corporations. The combined data provide the basis for national estimates of all manufacturing corporations.

The reports in this series of quarterly reports for 1947 have been released. A copy can be obtained upon application to either the Federal Trade Commission or the Securities and Exchange Commission. Whether an annual report for 1947 will be compiled and released is dependent upon availability of funds therefor.

INTERDEPARTMENTAL SERVICE

For almost 40 years the Commission (and its predecessor, the Bureau of Corporations) has been collecting and establishing a vast fund of information concerning the Nation's important industries. The Commission has been called upon to furnish to other Government departments, and especially to the agencies created during the war emergency, an increasing amount of these data, and frequently it has been requested to prepare special reports as the basis for the actions of the war agencies responsible for economic controls.

FEDERAL WORKS AGENCY

The Federal Works Agency was created by the first plan for Government reorganization submitted to Congress by the President on April 25, 1939, under authority of the Reorganization Act of 1939, and began to function as an agency of the Federal Government on July 1, 1939.

Two organizations which, prior to July 1, 1939, were operating either as independent establishments or as parts of departments, are now operating as constituent administrations of FWA. These organizations are: The Public Roads Administration (PRA), formerly the Bureau of Public Roads in the Department of Agriculture; and the Public Buildings Administration (PBA), in which was combined the Branch of Public Buildings, Procurement Division, Treasury Department, and the Branch of Buildings Management, National Park Service, Interior Department. A third organization, established January 3, 1945, is the Bureau of Community Facilities. Each of the organizations is headed by a commissioner.

The organizations grouped in the Federal Works Agency are those dealing with public works, not incidental to the normal work of other departments, and which administer Federal grants or loans to State and local governments or other agencies for the purposes of construction.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS ADMINISTRATION

The Public Buildings Administration was established as a part of the Federal Works Agency by Reorganization Plan No. 1, section 303, under the provisions of the Reorganization Act of 1939, approved April 3, 1939.

The Public Buildings Administration is responsible for the design, construction, maintenance, and repair of Federal buildings; control of space; and the operation and protection of buildings in the District of Columbia and certain buildings outside of the District of Columbia.

PUBLIC ROADS ADMINISTRATION

The Public Roads Administration is the principal road-building agency of the Federal Government. It administers Federal funds made available to aid the States in improvement of highways and constructs roads or supervises road construction in national forests, national parks, and certain other Federal areas.

The organization administers the large postwar highway program authorized by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1944, which authorizes $500,000,000 as aid to the States in highway construction in each of the first three postwar fiscal years. The yearly amount is assigned $225,000,000 for the Federal-aid system, $150,000,000 for farm-to-market or secondary roads, and $125,000,000 for urban sections of the Federal-aid system. An important feature of the new program was the designation of a national system of interstate highways 37,681 miles in extent. This system is included in the Federal-aid system and is eligible for improvement with Federal-aid system funds. Planning of this system and of a system of secondary or farm-to-market roads and actual launching of construction of the three classes of work were carried on in cooperation with the States.

Construction of roads in national forests, national parks, and other Federal areas has been resumed.

BUREAU OF COMMUNITY FACILITIES

The Bureau of Community Facilities is responsible for the Advance Planning Program authorized under title V of the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of October 3, 1944 (Public Law 458, 78th Cong.), whereby loans or advances of funds were made to States and other non-Federal public agencies to assist in the plan preparation of their proposed public works. The funds are repayable if and when construction of the public works so planned is undertaken. The authority to make advances expired on June 30, 1947.

Under the Lanham Act, approved June 28, 1941 (55 Stat. 361), as amended, the Bureau operated the War Public Works Program whereby it constructed, provided, maintained, and operated certain public works in the interest of national defense. This program is now in the process of liquidation.

Public Law 510, Seventy-eighth Congress, authorizes a public works program in the Virgin Islands and the municipalities and inhabitants thereof. It includes such public works as hospitals, sewers, water systems, schools, markets, recreational facilities, and other projects.

Under Public Law 697, Seventy-ninth Congress, the Bureau operates the Veterans' Educational Facilities Program. This program provides educational facilities, such as classrooms, laboratories, cafeterias, offices, etc., to universities, colleges, junior colleges, and other institutions of higher learning engaged in training or educating veterans under the GI bill of rights. These facilities and equipment therefor come from Government surplus only.

Under Public Law 233, Eightieth Congress, the Bureau, under the Disaster Surplus Property Program, makes surplus personal property available to non-Federal public agencies to alleviate damage, hardship, and suffering caused by floods and other catastrophes.

By Public Law 394, Seventy-ninth Congress, grants-in-aid are made to assist in the repair and reconstruction of public works in Hawaii damaged by the seismic waves which struck the Territory in April 1946.

FEDERAL FIRE COUNCIL

The Federal Fire Council was established by Executive Order No. 7397 of June 20, 1936, as an official advisory agency on the protection of Federal employees and property from fire. Executive Order No. 8194 of July 6, 1939, placed the Council under the jurisdiction of the Federal Works Agency.

The Council is authorized to develop standards, procedures, and forms; and, on request, to conduct surveys or such other investigations as may be necessary to determine what measures should be taken to safeguard life and property from the hazards of fire. The council is also authorized to make such independent studies of Federal buildings and property as it may deem desirable from the standpoint of fire protection; to maintain a record of fire losses on Government property; and to review plans for new construction.

Reports and other informative material are distributed to the membership, to the heads of bureaus and establishments, and to other interested Federal, State, and city officials. A manual covering the general subject of fire-loss prevention has been issued together with a fire report and self-inspection forms, the latter for use within departments and establishments in connection with inspections.

FOREIGN-TRADE ZONES BOARD

The Foreign-Trade Zones Board was created by an act of Congress approved June 18, 1934. The Board is composed of the Secretary of Commerce, chairman, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of the Army.

Its duties are (1) after careful analysis of applications and investigations, to issue grants to public and private corporations for the privilege of establishing, operating, and maintaining foreign-trade zones in ports of entry of the United States for the purpose of expediting and encouraging foreign commerce, and (2) to administer the law governing the operation of such zones.

Within the foreign-trade zone, which is a segregated, enclosed, and policed area, commodities are substantially free from usual customs regulations, and a considerable degree of freedom is allowed in the handling of such goods within the zone, as, for example, repacking, resorting, mixing, and other types of manipulation.

On January 30, 1936, the Board issued a grant to the municipality of New York, permitting the establishment and operation of a foreign-trade zone at Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y. This zone was placed in operation on February 1, 1937, and comprises a water area of approximately 66 acres, including 18 acres occupied by five piers, and adjacent upland of about 26 acres, a total of approximately 92 acres. It is maintained within a land and water barrier, with a total length of about 8,375 lineal feet and constantly policed by United States customs guards.

On July 16, 1946, the Foreign-Trade Zones Board issued a grant to the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans to establish a foreign-trade zone in that city. This zone, designated as Foreign Trade Zone No. 2, occupies a part of the Public Cotton Warehouse on the Mississippi River within the city limits of New Orleans. This zone was placed in operation on May 1, 1947.

On March 10, 1948, the Foreign-Trade Zones Board issued a grant to the Board of State Harbor Commissioners for the Port of San Francisco to establish a foreign-trade zone in that city. This zone, designated as Foreign-Trade Zone No. 3, is scheduled to be opened during the summer of 1948, and will occupy sheds B and D of Pier No. 45 on the Embarcadero.

At the outbreak of hostilities, the War Department acquired a considerable portion of the New York Foreign-Trade Zone. As an emergency measure, the Board authorized the grantee to use North River Piers as temporary sites where operations could be continued. Following the release by the War Department of Piers 15 and 16, Stapleton, Staten Island, units of the original New York zone site, the Board authorized the return of zone activities from the North River piers, Manhattan, to Piers 15 and 16, Staten Island.

A partial list of manipulations performed in the New York Foreign-Trade Zone include: Labeling and repacking canned food products; filtering and canning olive oil; splitting, skinning, polishing, and rebagging Chinese peas; cleaning, grading, and rebagging chick peas and mustard seed; cleaning and drying crude drugs; drying, ridging, culling, and bagging Brazil nuts; refining, mixing, cleaning, sampling, and rebagging tungsten ore; maturing, sampling, and sale by auction of Sumatra leaf tobacco.

Disturbed international shipping conditions have resulted in the extended use of the zone for the transshipment of many Latin American products, as well as for commodities from other world areas.

A number of other ports are studying the possibility of establishing foreign-trade zone facilities in their respective harbors.

HOUSING AND HOME FINANCE AGENCY

The Housing and Home Finance Agency was established on July 27, 1947, under Reorganization Plan No. III of 1947, submitted by the President and approved by the Senate. The reorganization plan grouped the principal permanent housing functions of the Government in a single agency. The HHFA covers housing functions that before the war were scattered among 13 agencies in 7 departments and independent establishments of the Government.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency includes the Office of the Administrator and the following constituent agencies: the Home Loan Bank Board, the Federal Housing Administration, and the Public Housing Administration.

The Office of the Administrator, under the reorganization plan, has responsibility for coordination and general supervision of the functions of the three constituent units making up the new agency. In addition the Administrator is charged by law with the responsibility for the direction and supervision of the management and disposition of Federally owned war housing, and for completing the temporary housing program for veterans.

The Plan also created within the Housing and Home Finance Agency a National Housing Council on which the Administrator, the constituent agencies, and other departments and agencies with direct housing functions are represented. The Council includes the Housing and Home Finance Administrator as Chairman, the Chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board, the Federal Housing Commissioner, the Public Housing Commissioner, and representatives of the Veterans' Administration, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Department of Agriculture. The National Housing Council serves as a medium for securing the most effective use of all the housing activities and functions of the Federal Government, for obtaining consistency between these activities and the general economic and fiscal policies of the Government, and for avoiding duplication and overlapping of activities.

HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

The Home Loan Bank Board is one of three constituent agencies in the Housing and Home Finance Agency. As such a constituent agency it conducts the functions authorized by the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended; the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, as amended; and title IV of the National Housing Act, as amended, which were administered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Administration during the period from February 24, 1942, to July 27, 1947, under Executive Order No. 9070. These functions include direction of (1) the Federal Home Loan Bank System, which serves as a credit reservoir for savings and home-financing institutions; (2) the system of Federal savings and loan associations; (3) the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, which insures the safety of funds invested in savings and loan associations and (4) the Home Owners' Loan Corporation (in liquidation).

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK SYSTEM

The Federal Home Loan Bank System was established by authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, approved July 22, 1932, to provide a national medium of reserve credit for savings and home-financing institutions through the operations of Federal home loan banks, each serving two or more States. The Federal Home Loan Bank Act was subsequently amended by the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, approved June 13, 1933; by the National Housing Act, approved June 27, 1934; and by acts of Congress approved April 27, 1934, May 28, 1935, March 28, 1941, and August 1, 1947.

There are 11 Federal home loan banks, located as follows: Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Winston-Salem, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, Des Moines, Little Rock, Topeka, and San Francisco. The San Francisco Bank maintains offices in Los Angeles, and Portland, Oreg. The Pittsburgh Bank also maintains an office in Philadelphia. The chief function of the Federal home loan banks is to advance funds to their member institutions, enabling them to expand their services when there is an unusual demand for mortgage loans in their localities and to augment their resources to meet abnormal withdrawals of their investors' accounts. Advances by the regional banks are made on a long- or short-term basis, usually secured by obligations of the United States or home mortgages.

Each district bank has 12 directors, 4 appointed by the Home Loan Bank Board, and 8 elected by the member institutions. Pursuant to law, member institutions have been divided into three classes for purposes of electing directors—A, B, and C. These groups represent: A, the large; B, the medium-sized; and C, the small-sized member institutions, the classification being determined according to the aggregate unpaid principal of the member's home mortgage loans. Each of these classes elects 2 of the 8 directors, who must be officers or directors of member institutions in the class selecting them. The remaining 2 directors are elected by all the member institutions without regard to classes.

The capital stock of the 11 Federal home loan banks is subscribed by institutions which have been admitted into membership, except $124,741,000 of such stock which was originally subscribed for by the Secretary of the Treasury and now held by him. Of this amount $4,949,800 had been retired as of February 29, 1948, thus reducing the amount of such Government-owned stock outstanding to $119,791,200. The original and minimum stock subscription for each member institution is an amount equal to 1 percent of the aggregate of the unpaid principal of the subscriber's home mortgage loans, but not less than $500. Other sources of funds for Federal home loan banks include deposits accepted from member institutions, deposits from other Federal home loan banks, advances discounted with other Federal home loan banks, and by borrowing money, including the issuance of bonds, debentures, and other obligations.

Any savings and loan association, building and loan association, cooperative bank, homestead association, insurance company, or savings bank is eligible to become a member of a Federal home loan bank if it is (1) duly organized under the laws of any State or of the United States, (2) subject to inspection and regulation under the banking laws or similar laws of the State or of the United States, and (3) makes such home mortgage loans as, in the judgment of the Home Loan Bank Board, are long-term loans (and, in the case of a savings bank, if, in the judgment of the Bank Board, its time deposits warrant making such loans).

No institution is eligible to become a member of a Federal home loan bank if, in the judgment of the Bank Board, its financial condition is such that advances may not safely be made to such institution, or the character of its management, or its home-financing policy is inconsistent with sound and economical home financing or the purposes of the act. The Board may promulgate such rules, regulations, and orders as shall be necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act.

The total amount of advances outstanding from a bank to any member can at no time exceed 12 times the amount of the member's holdings in capital stock of its regional bank. The schedule of interest rates charged by the banks to members must be approved by the Bank Board. The Federal home loan banks also may make advances to nonmember lending institutions approved under title II of the National Housing Act upon the security of mortgages insured under title II of that act. The banks are not authorized to make loans to individuals.

Each bank may issue bonds, debentures, or other obligations when authorized by the Board. Consolidated debentures and consolidated bonds, which are the joint and several obligations of all the banks, may be issued by the Board as provided in the Federal Home Loan Bank Act. Consolidated debentures were formerly issued, but more recently funds have been raised through the issuance of consolidated bonds.

The great bulk of the membership of the Federal home loan banks is made up of institutions of the savings and loan type. As of February 29, 1948, the 11 Federal home loan banks embraced 3,715 members, having aggregate assets of $11,459,000,000. Of these, 3,679 were savings and loan and similar associations, with assets totaling $10,439,000,000. In numbers, these institutions include about 60 percent of all savings and loan associations in the Nation, and they hold nearly 90 percent of the assets of the entire industry. Ten of the remaining member institutions of the Bank System were insurance companies and 26 were savings banks.

The Federal home loan banks are self-sustaining and do not require or receive appropriations from Government funds.

FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

The chartering and regulation of Federal savings and loan associations is authorized by section 5 of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, approved June 13, 1933, as amended by acts of Congress approved April 27, 1934, May 28, 1935, August 10, 1939, October 24, 1942, December 28, 1945, and August 6, 1947. The purpose was to encourage sound and economical home financing by providing for the establishment of private mutual thrift institutions in areas where a need for such services existed.

Federal savings and loan associations may also be established by conversion of State-chartered associations which apply and are approved for Federal charter.

Each Federal savings and loan association, upon its establishment, automatically becomes a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and must obtain insurance of its investors' accounts by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Supervision of these institutions is exercised through the officers of the district Federal home loan banks in accordance with regulations promulgated by the Board.

Federal savings and loan associations raise their capital only in the form of payments on share accounts. They may not accept deposits from the public and may not issue certificates of indebtedness except for borrowed money when authorized by regulations of the Home Loan Bank Board. They lend their funds primarily upon the security of monthly repayment first mortgages on homes or combination home and business properties located within 50 miles of their home offices.

These associations can be organized anywhere in the United States or its territories upon a petition by citizens for a charter. The Home Loan Bank Board, however, before it can grant a charter, must find that the incorporators are of good character and responsible, that there is a need for the proposed institution in its community, that the institution will, in all probability, be useful and successful, and that its incorporation will not unduly injure properly conducted existing thrift and home-financing institutions.

As of February 29, 1948, there were 1,478 Federal savings and loan associations in operation, with combined assets of $5,514,000,000.

FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was created under title IV of the National Housing Act, which has been amended by acts of Congress approved May 28, 1935, and February 3, 1938. The protection of savings by insurance, authorized under the act, was designed to strengthen the confidence of investors in local home-financing institutions of the savings and loan type. The safety of investment provided by such insurance also contributes to the national economy by increasing the supply of capital for financing the ownership of homes.

Insurance is mandatory for Federal savings and loan associations; State-chartered institutions of the savings, building and loan type may become insured upon application and approval. By law the Insurance Corporation's capital, in the amount of $100,000,000, was obtained by sale of its stock to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. Funds for operating expenses and reserves are obtained from premiums paid by insured institutions, earnings from investments, and admission fees paid by newly insured associations.

Each holder of a withdrawable (repurchasable) share account, deposit account, or investment certificate in an institution insured by the Corporation is insured against loss up to the amount of his investment and credited earnings not in excess of $5,000. Each insured institution pays an annual premium charge equivalent to one-eighth of 1 percent of the total amount of all accounts of its insured members, plus any creditor obligations. When the reserve fund of the Corporation equals 5 percent of all insured accounts and creditor obligations of all insured institutions the regular premiums will be suspended unless and until the reserve fund falls below 5 percent. Institutions applying for insurance are required to pay, upon acceptance, an admission fee, based on the amount of the Corporation's reserves.

Insurance may be terminated by the Insurance Corporation for violation by an insured institution of any law applicable to insurance of accounts, or the regulations of or agreements with the Corporation, provided for in the statutes. Insurance of accounts can be voluntarily terminated by any insured institution, except a federally chartered savings and loan association, upon adequate notice of its intention to the Corporation and to its members.

In order to prevent a default in an insured institution or in order to restore an insured institution in default to normal operation, the Corporation is authorized, in its discretion and within prescribed limits, to make loans to, purchase the assets of, or make contributions to the insured institution.

In the event an insured institution is taken over for liquidation by properly constituted authority, the Corporation is required to make available to the holder of an insured account either a new insured account of equal amount in a normally operating insured institution, or, at the option of the insured investor, 10 percent of his account in cash and the remainder in non-interest-bearing debentures of the Corporation, payable one half within 1 year and the other half within 3 years from the date the insured institution was taken over for liquidation. The total amount of insurance payable to any member or investor in any one insured institution, however, may not exceed $5,000. If a federally chartered savings and loan association is taken over for liquidation, the Insurance Corporation must serve as receiver. In the event the institution to be liquidated is State chartered, the services of the Insurance Corporation as conservator, receiver, or other legal custodian are tendered to the State.

As of February 29, 1948, there were 2,541 insured savings and loan associations with assets totaling approximately $8,659,000,000.

HOME OWNERS' LOAN CORPORATION

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation was created by the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, which has been amended by acts approved June 27, 1934 (the National Housing Act), April 27, 1934, May 28, 1935, August 11, 1939, and June 30, 1947. Provided with $200,000,000 initial capital, the Corporation was authorized to issue United States guaranteed bonds in an aggregate amount not to exceed $4,750,000,000. The total issued was $3,489,453,550, of which $421,340,750 was outstanding on February 29, 1948.

The general purpose of the HOLC was to refinance home mortgages of distressed home owners by exchanging its bonds for such mortgages, which were then taken over by the Corporation as long-term, monthly repayment loans. Loans could be made only to those who were unable to procure needed financing through normal channels. Loans were made on the security of dwellings for not more than four families valued at not more than $20,000. In accordance with law, the Corporation ceased lending on June 12, 1936, after making 1,017,821 loans to a total of $3,093,000,000.

Since then the Corporation has been engaged in the collection of its loans and the orderly liquidation of the houses it was forced to acquire. Up to February 29, 1948, total loans, subsequent advances, and other investments of the Corporation in its loans, sales contracts, and properties reached a cumulative total of $3,494,000,000. On the same date $3,029,000,000, or 86.7 percent of this amount, had been liquidated.

Under the original Home Owners' Loan Act, loans of the Corporation were written for a term not to exceed 15 years, with interest at 5 percent. On August 11, 1939, the act was amended to permit the Corporation to extend its loans to a maximum of 25 years where it considers that the borrower's circumstances and the condition of the security justify such an extension.

In 1939 the Corporation made provision to accept, until further notice, interest at the rate of 4½ percent per annum on all payments due on and after October 16, 1939, on the indebtedness of home owners to the Corporation arising from any loan, advance, or sale of property. On all purchase-money obligations taken on or after October 1, 1939, in connection with the sale of real property by the Corporation, interest is to be charged at the 4½ percent rate until otherwise directed by the Home Loan Bank Board.

In addition, the Corporation is authorized to purchase obligations of the Federal home loan banks, shares of federally chartered savings and loan associations, and shares and other securities of other qualified applying institutions which are members of a Federal home loan bank or whose accounts are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, up to a total of $300,000,000. An aggregate of $223,856,710 was so invested in shares of associations (chiefly from 1936 to 1938); $6,704,650 remained outstanding on February 29, 1948. An additional $100,000,000 of the Corporation's authorized bond issue has been used for the purchase of the entire capital stock of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Although the amount which the Corporation may spend for administrative expenditures is fixed pursuant to an authorization by Congress, all the money expended by the Corporation is paid out of its funds and in no part from regular governmental funds.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

Established in June 1934, under the National Housing Act, the Federal Housing Administration was directed by Congress "to encourage improvement in housing standards and conditions, to create a sound mortgage market, and to provide a system of mutual mortgage insurance."

The FHA lends no money and builds no houses. Its function is to insure approved private financial institutions against loss on loans made for the construction, purchase, repair, and improvement of houses where FHA standards and conditions are met. In addition, FHA is authorized to insure mortgages on large-scale rental projects.

Chief innovation of the FHA insured mortgage system was the single, long-term mortgage, repayable monthly over a period of years. Payments include reduction of principal, interest at not more than 4½ percent on reducing balances, mortgage insurance premium at one-half of 1 percent on reducing balances, taxes, fire and hazard insurance.

The National Housing Act provides several loan insurance programs under titles, I, II, and VI.

Insurance coverage under title I amounts to 10 percent of the aggregate loans made by qualified lenders for property improvements, alterations, and repairs. Most such loans are limited to a maximum of $2,500, repayable in monthly installments. An annual insurance premium of three-fourths of 1 percent is charged and the rate of discount, covering all charges, may not exceed the equivalent of $5 per $100 on a 1-year note.

Another class of title I loans may be used to finance new home construction. The maximum amount of these loans is $3,000, the maximum term 20 years and 5 months, the maximum interest rate 4½ percent per annum on outstanding balances, and the FHA insurance premium, ½ of 1 percent of the principal amount.

Total liability which may be outstanding at any time under present provisions of title I is $165,000,000, and authority to insure loans under the title runs to June 30, 1949. Through December 31, 1947, insuring operations under title I involved a total of 7,375,844 loans, with net proceeds of $2,716,937,804. Gross claims paid through that same date amounted to 2.22 percent of the net proceeds of the loans, while net claims after collections and repossessions of security amounted to 1.04 percent.

Normally, principal FHA operations are under section 203 of title II, which provides for insurance of mortgage loans up to $16,000 and for monthly amortization periods up to 20 to 25 years on one-to-four family dwellings. Such loans may cover either new or existing houses. Insured loans on existing homes may not exceed 80 percent of the value of the property, land and building, as appraised by FHA. Where the mortgage loans are for not more than $5,400 and cover new, single-family houses built for owner-occupancy and under FHA inspection, the insured mortgage may be for 90 percent of the appraised value and may run for 25 years. On new owner-occupied homes valued at not more than $10,000, the FHA may insure a mortgage covering 90 percent of the first $6,000 and 80 percent of the remainder, up to a maximum mortgage of $8,600. The maximum term of repayment of such loans is 20 years.

Through December 31, 1947, a total of 1,271,785 mortgages on one- to four-family dwellings had been insured under section 203 of title II for a total of $5,747,711,735. Of this amount $2,770,389,066 had been terminated and an additional $539,632,506 of the original face amount of insured mortgages outstanding was estimated to have been amortized.

Provision is made under section 207 for the insurance of mortgages up to $5,000,000 on apartment houses, or groups of single or multiple-family houses. Such mortgages are limited to 80 percent of the estimated value of the property when the proposed improvements are completed, but in no event may a mortgage insured under this section exceed the estimated cost of completed physical improvements. However, the insurance may cover advances made during the course of construction. Strict regulation of the mortgagor is provided for under section 207. Insurance has been issued for 379 mortgages, amounting to $160,972,004. In the 359 projects built under this program, 37,964 units have been provided.

The total amount of principal obligations of all mortgages insured under title II outstanding at any one time may not exceed $4,000,000,000, except that this maximum may be increased to $5,000,000,000 by Presidential action.

During the period of housing shortage FHA operations under title II are limited largely to insuring mortgages on existing houses. New construction during this period is being provided under title VI. On all title VI mortgages the maximum interest rate is 4 percent and the mortgage insurance premium one-half of 1 percent, both on reducing balances.

Congress added title VI to the National Housing Act in March 1941. This title authorized the FHA to insure wartime and postwar risks undertaken by private lenders and builders which might not have been assumed under normal peacetime operations. Whereas war workers were formerly given occupancy priority, veterans of World War II now have preference in buying and renting housing accommodations made available under title VI. The authority to insure under this title is of limited duration and maximum mortgage amounts were based on the Commissioner's estimate of necessary current cost. By act approved March 31, 1948, section 603 of title VI was amended so that maximum mortgage amounts with respect to applications received after such date are based on the Commissioner's estimate of "value."

Mortgages insured under section 603 of title VI are limited to a maximum of $5,400 on a single-family dwelling, $7,500 on a two-family, $9,500 on a three-family, and $12,000 on a four-family dwelling. However, in areas where it is not feasible to construct homes under these maximum limitations without sacrificing sound standards of construction, design, or livability, the Commissioner may increase mortgage maximums up to $8,100 on a single-family home, $12,500 on a two-family, $15,750 on a three-family, and $18,000 on a four-family home.

As of December 31, 1947, a total of 461,896 dwelling units had been financed under section 603 with mortgages totaling $2,067,896,242.

Mortgages on large-scale housing projects also are insured under section 608 of title VI. These may not exceed $5,000,000 and 90 percent of the necessary current cost of the completed project, including the land and proposed physical improvements but exclusive of off-site public utilities and streets and organization and legal expenses.

The mortgagor must be approved by the FHA Commissioner and may be regulated as to rents or sales, charges, capital structure, and methods of operation. As of December 31, 1947, 1,496 mortgages totaling $534,838,928 on large-scale housing projects, which provided 84,865 new dwelling units, had been insured under section 608. The maximum interest rate on section 608 mortgages is 4 percent and the mortgage insurance rate is one-half of 1 percent, both on reducing balances.

Two new sections have been added to title VI: Section 609 authorizes the insurance of short-term loans made by private financial institutions to finance the manufacture of housing. Section 610 authorizes the insurance of mortgages executed in connection with the sale by the Government of public war housing to individuals or corporations. As of December 31, 1947, there had been no contracts for insurance executed under section 609. Pursuant to section 610, four mortgages, totaling $21,100, had been insured under section 603.

FHA is self-sustaining and for the past 7 fiscal years has paid all operating expenses out of income derived chiefly from premiums and fees. In addition, net resources of nearly $163,000,000 have been accumulated in its insuring funds for payment of future expenses, losses, and the payment of dividends with respect to loans insured under section 203 of title II, and placed in group accounts which develop credit balances at time of prepayment of mortgage or upon termination of the group account.

Gross income during the fiscal year 1947 under all insuring operations was greater than in any previous year and amounted to $42,639,631. Expenses of administering all titles and sections of the act during the period amounted to $16,030,982, leaving an excess of income of $26,608,649 to be added to the various insurance funds.

PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

The Public Housing Administration was established July 27, 1947, under the provisions of the President's Reorganization Plan No. 3. It assumed the responsibilities and functions previously administered by the Federal Public Housing Authority.

The PHA has four principal areas of responsibility, the last three of which are carried out under policies determined by the HHFA Administrator.

(1) The administration of the low-rent housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(2) The provision of temporary emergency housing for veterans, by relocating and converting surplus war housing and military structures;

(3) The management of public war housing during the period of reconversion and demobilization according preference to distressed families of veterans and servicemen;

(4) The disposal of federally owned war housing determined to be surplus to the above needs.

The basic peacetime program administered by the PHA is the provision of Federal aid to local authorities to make available low-rent housing for families of low income, under the United States Housing Act. Before the problems of the defense and war periods interrupted construction of low-rent housing, local housing authorities in 173 communities built 334 projects containing 105,600 units for low-income families. Such housing has been predominantly urban, but a small number of farm housing units were constructed under a rural program started shortly before the war.

To keep rents within the means of low-income families, the PHA makes an annual contribution, or subsidy amounting to the difference between income and necessary expenses, including capital retirement. For the fiscal year 1947 these payments totaled $5,666,629. Through June 30, 1947, these Federal subsidy payments totaled $56,211,611. In addition, the local community is required to make an annual contribution equivalent to at least one-fifth of the Federal contribution. The communities commonly make this contribution by exempting the projects from State and local taxes.

As of June 30, 1947, the total housing built or awaiting construction under the United States Housing Act comprised 216,779 dwellings in 801 projects. This included some 52,000 units under Public Law 671, which authorized the wartime use of low-rent housing funds for war-housing construction. In accordance with the law, most of the Public Law 671 projects were transferred to low-rent status after Presidential findings that they were no longer needed to serve war housing purposes. Projects with about 3,000 units remained in war use on June 30. Some 21,000 low-rent units scheduled in areas not requiring them for war housing were deferred in order to save critical materials and labor for the war program.

The low-rent housing program also includes 50 projects (22,000 units), originally built by PWA, and transferred to PHA administration.

Title V of the Lanham Act (as amended by the Mead-Lanham resolution of December 1945 and March 1946) authorized appropriations of $445,627,000 to pay certain costs of relocating and remodeling surplus temporary structures to provide emergency homes for veterans and their families. Under the program, the local community pays for site acquisition and preparation, including on-site utilities, while the Federal Government pays the cost of demounting, transportation, reerection, and connecting to site utility systems. The act also authorized additional surplus temporary structures to be transferred to local bodies for remodeling and conversion at their expense. As of June 30, 1947, some 173,000 accommodations to be completed with the use of Federal funds had been allocated of which 168,000 were completed and 5,000 were under construction. In June 1947, the Congress appropriated $35,500,000 to permit the completion of some 8,000 additional units on which construction had been suspended due to exhaustion of funds. Including those accommodations on which local bodies and schools are bearing all conversion expenses, the temporary re-use program is expected to provide veterans with more than a quarter of a million dwelling accommodations.

In addition to veterans accommodated by the relocation of surplus facilities, at the end of June 1947 about 300,000 veterans' and servicemen's families were living in public housing not relocated or remodeled under the reuse program. Such families accounted for over 50 percent of all occupied war and low-rent housing units in programs administered by the PHA. Veterans receive preference in the turnover of all units in such projects, and consequently the percentage of veteran occupancy continues to rise.

The major wartime function of PHA was to provide publicly financed housing for in-migrant war workers and their families in areas where a lack of housing was handicapping or threatened to handicap war production. The PHA was responsible for the construction and management of about four-fifths of the total so provided, the remainder being provided principally by the War and Navy Departments and the United States Maritime Commission.

Some 850,000 public accommodations were made available for in-migrant war workers and their families. This figure includes accommodations supplied by re-use of trailers and temporary or demountable units that were moved from one location to another.

The PHA on June 30, 1947, had some 410,000 units in the public war-housing (Lanham constructed) program to dispose of when surplus to veterans and other demobilization needs. These include:

About 200,000 temporary family units, 32,000 dormitory units and 14,000 stop gap units, including portable shelter units unsuitable for long-term use as housing. These must be removed by July 25, 1949, except where the Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, in consultations with communities determines that there is a continued need in connection with orderly demobilization.

About 164,000 permanent family units, including 94,000 of standard construction, and 70,000 demountables, which will be sold to veterans, occupants and other private purchasers unless sold or transferred to other Federal agencies or State and local governments.

In addition, there remained some 38,000 family and dormitory units converted from existing structures during the war to house essential war workers. These are mostly under seven-year leases, and will be returned to private owners at the expiration of the lease term or sooner if the owners purchase the unexpired lease term.

PHA also has disposition responsibility for 13 subsistence homesteads projects, which were transferred from the Farm Security Administration and 3 Greenbelt towns, which were transferred to the PHA in 1942.

INDIAN CLAIMS COMMISSION

Creation and purpose.—The Indian Claims Commission was created by act of August 13, 1946 (Public Law 726, 79th Cong., 2d sess.), to hear and determine claims against the United States on behalf of any Indian tribe, band, or other identifiable group of American Indians residing within the territorial limits of the United States or Alaska. The Commission consists of a Chief Commissioner and two Associate Commissioners, appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

INTER-AMERICAN DEFENSE BOARD

The Inter-American Defense Board is a permanently constituted organization composed of military, naval, and aviation technical delegates appointed by each of the governments of the 21 American Republics. It was established in accordance with Resolution XXXIX of the Meeting of Foreign Ministers at Rio de Janeiro in January 1942. The Board, which is an autonomous international organization under the auspices of the Pan American Union, meets regularly in the city of Washington.

The purpose of the Board is to study and recommend to the Governments of the American Republics measures necessary for the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION, UNITED STATES, ALASKA, AND CANADA

(For defining, marking, and maintaining the boundary between the United States, Alaska, and Canada)

The International Boundary Commission, United States, Alaska, and Canada, was created under the provisions of the several boundary treaties between the United States and Great Britain, for the purpose of defining, marking, and maintaining the demarcation of the international boundary line between the United States and Canada and between Alaska and Canada, as follows:

1. Southeastern Alaska, or the boundary between Alaska and British Columbia. Length, 893 miles.

Article VI of the convention between the United States and Great Britain, providing for the settlement of questions between the two countries with respect to the boundary line between the Territory of Alaska and the British possessions in North America, signed at Washington, January 24, 1903, stipulated that when the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the tribunal upon the questions submitted as provided in the foregoing articles, which decision shall be final and binding upon all parties, they will at once appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts, who shall with all convenient speed proceed to lay down the boundary line in conformity with such decision.

2. The boundary between Alaska and Canada, along the one hundred and forty-first meridian. Length, 647 miles.

The convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at Washington, April 21, 1906, provided for the surveying and marking out upon the ground of the one hundred and forty-first meridian of west longitude where said meridian forms the boundary line between Alaska and the British possessions of North America. The convention stipulated that each Government shall appoint one commissioner, with whom may be associated such surveyors, astronomers, and other assistants as each Government may elect, who shall locate the boundary line, erect the necessary boundary marks, make the necessary surveys, and file duplicate records with their respective Governments.

3. The United States and Canada boundary from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, with the exception of the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes. Length, 2,697 miles.

Articles I, II, III, V, VI, VII, and VIII, of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, entitled "Canadian International Boundary," signed at Washington, April 11, 1908, stipulated that each of the high contracting parties shall appoint without delay an expert geographer or surveyor as Commissioner, and the Commissioners so appointed shall jointly execute the necessary surveys, repair existing boundary marks, erect additional boundary marks, and lay down the boundary line in accordance with the existing treaties upon quadruplicate sets of accurate modern charts, prepared or adopted by them for that purpose, and that said charts so marked shall be filed with each Government, and said Commissioners shall also prepare, in duplicate, and file with each Government a joint report or reports, describing in detail the course of the boundary so marked by them, and the character and location of the several monuments and boundary marks and ranges marking it.

4. Article IV of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain in respect to Canada, signed at Washington, February 24, 1925, which provides for the maintenance of an effective boundary line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and between Alaska and the Dominion of Canada, authorizes and directs the Commissioners appointed under the provisions of the treaty of April 11, 1908, to inspect the various portions of the boundary line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and between Alaska and the Dominion of Canada at such times as they shall deem necessary; to repair all damaged monuments and buoys; to relocate and rebuild monuments which have been destroyed; to keep the boundary vistas open; to move boundary monuments to new sites and establish such additional monuments and buoys as they shall deem desirable; to maintain at all times an effective boundary line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and between Alaska and the Dominion of Canada as defined by the present treaty and treaties heretofore concluded or hereafter to be concluded; and to determine the location of any point of the boundary line which may become necessary in the settlement of any question that may arise between the two Governments.

INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY AND WATER COMMISSION, UNITED STATES AND MEXICO

The International Boundary and Water Commission, United States and Mexico (formerly the International Boundary Commission, United States and Mexico), was created pursuant to the provisions of the treaty concluded March 1, 1889, with exclusive jurisdiction to examine and decide all questions arising on the fluvial boundary between the United States of America and the United Mexican States and growing out of the changes in the beds of the boundary streams, works constructed in these streams, or of any other cause affecting the boundary. The fluvial boundary, consisting of portions of the Rio Grande, 1,240 miles, and of the Colorado River, 20 miles, was originally established under the treaties of 1848 and 1853, and has been further regulated by the treaties of 1884, 1889, 1905, 1933, and 1944.

The Commission's jurisdiction was extended by the water treaty concluded February 3, 1944, to the overland boundary, a distance of 675 miles westward from El Paso, Tex., to the Pacific Ocean, over which the Commission formerly exercised jurisdiction only in such matters pertaining to the practical monumentation of the boundary and engineering problems arising thereon as were submitted to it upon concurrence of the two Governments through exchange of notes in each case. This treaty also extends the Commission's jurisdiction to works located on the boundary, both land and fluvial, each section of the Commission retaining jurisdiction over that part of the works located within the limits of its own country.

The Commission is empowered to suspend the construction of works of any character in the Rio Grande or the Colorado River that contravene existing treaties; erect and maintain monuments along the boundary; make necessary surveys of changes in the bed of either river resulting from force of the current; mark and eliminate bancos caused by such changes; survey, place, and maintain monuments on all international bridges between the two countries. The Commission is authorized to call for papers and information relative to boundary matters, hold meetings at any point where boundary questions arise; summon witnesses and take testimony. If both commissioners agree to a decision, their judgment is binding on both Governments, unless one of them shall disapprove it within one month from the date on which it shall have been pronounced.

The Commission was charged by the treaty of 1933 with the construction and maintenance of the Rio Grande Rectification Project in the El Paso-Juarez Valley.

The treaty concluded February 3, 1944, effective November 8, 1945, provides for the equitable distribution between the two countries of waters of the Colorado River and of the Rio Grande below Fort Quitman, Tex., construction of storage dams and other works on these streams for the maximum utilization of the waters thereof by the two countries, including the generation of hydroelectric energy at the international storage dams on the Rio Grande, and for the control of floods; and provides for studies and investigations in connection with the equitable distribution between the two countries of waters of the Tijuana River system and for storage and flood control of such waters. Under the treaty the two Governments also agree to give preferential attention to the solution of border sanitation problems. The application of the treaty, regulation, and exercise of the rights and obligations assumed thereunder by the two Governments, and settlement of all disputes to which its observance and execution may give rise are entrusted to the Commission. The protocol to the treaty, signed November 14, 1944, further defines the jurisdiction of the Commission and each section thereof and of the interior agencies of each country, with respect to the construction, operation, and maintenance of treaty works. The treaty specifies the Department of State of the United States of America and the Ministry of Foreign Relations of Mexico as the agencies to represent the two Governments in all cases in which joint action or joint agreement by the Governments is required under the treaty. The same agencies exercise supervision as to policy over their respective sections of the Commission.

Supervisory administration of the terms of the convention of May 21, 1906, under which the United States delivers to Mexico at a point opposite El Paso, Tex., 60,000 acre-feet of water annually and in accordance with an agreed delivery schedule, has been exercised by the United States section of the Commission since the act of June 30, 1932 (47 Stat. 417) transferred to that section the powers, duties, and functions of the United States section of the former International Water Commission, United States and Mexico. Jurisdiction of the United States section over the administration of the convention has been further provided by subsequent legislation. The act approved August 29, 1935 (49 Stat. 961) authorized the construction, operation, and maintenance by the United States section of a diversion dam on the Rio Grande just above El Paso, Tex., and wholly within the United States, among other purposes to facilitate compliance with the convention of May 21, 1906, and properly to regulate and control the water supply as provided by that convention. Construction, operation, and maintenance by the United States section of the Rio Grande Canalization Project, consisting of the canalization of almost 100 miles of the river between Caballo Dam, in New Mexico, and the American Dam, was authorized by the act of June 4, 1936 (49 Stat. 1463).

The act approved August 19, 1935 (49 Stat. 660; amended 49 Stat. 1370), authorizing the President to designate the United States Commissioner of the then International Boundary Commission to cooperate with representatives of Mexico in studies for the development of information for the negotiation of the water treaty with Mexico, also authorized the Secretary of State, acting through the United States Commissioner, to conduct investigations relating to the defining, demarcation, fencing, or monumentation of the land and water boundary between the United States and Mexico, flood control, water resources, conservation and utilization of water, sanitation and prevention of pollution, channel rectification and stabilization, and other related matters upon the international boundary; and to construct and maintain fences, monuments, and other demarcations of the boundary, and sewer systems, water systems, and electric light, power, and gas systems crossing the international border, and to continue such work and operations as were then in progress and authorized by law. The act contains an authorization to construct, operate, and maintain on the Rio Grande below Fort Quitman, Tex., such works as are recommended to the President as the result of said investigations and are deemed by him to be necessary and proper; to construct any works which might be provided for in a treaty with Mexico; to repair, protect, maintain, or complete works then existing or under construction; and to construct any works designed to facilitate compliance with the provisions of treaties between the United States and Mexico. Provision is also made for the acquisition of the necessary lands and easements.

INTERNATIONAL JOINT COMMISSION, THE

The International Joint Commission was created by the treaty between the United States and Great Britain signed January 11, 1909, the object of which is "to prevent disputes regarding the use of boundary waters and to settle all questions which are now pending between the United States and the Dominion of Canada involving the rights, obligations, or interests of either in relation to the other or to the inhabitants of the other, along their common frontier, and to make provision for the adjustment and settlement of all such questions as may hereafter arise."

The Commission consists of six members, three appointed by the President of the United States and three appointed by His Majesty on recommendation of the Government of Canada. It was organized in 1911, adopted rules of procedure, and established permanent offices in Washington and Ottawa. It has jurisdiction over all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of boundary waters between the United States and Canada, of waters flowing from boundary waters, and of waters at a lower level than the boundary in rivers flowing across the boundary.

Under article IX of the treaty the International Joint Commission also is constituted an investigatory body for the purpose of examining into and reporting upon any questions or matters of difference arising along the common frontier that shall be referred to it from time to time whenever either the Government of the United States or the Government of Canada shall request that such questions or matters of difference be so referred.

Under article X of the treaty any questions or matters of difference arising between the high contracting parties involving the rights, obligations, or interests of the United States or of the Dominion of Canada, either in relation to each other or to their respective inhabitants, may be referred for decision to the International Joint Commission, it being understood that on the part of the United States such action will be by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and on the part of Great Britain with the consent of the Government of Canada.

Under article VI of the treaty the Commission is charged with the measurement and apportionment from time to time of the waters of the St. Mary and Milk Rivers and their tributaries, these rivers lying partly in Montana and partly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and being largely used for irrigation purposes in both countries.

Under article IV of the treaty it is agreed that the waters herein defined as boundary waters and waters flowing across the boundary shall not be polluted on either side to the injury of health or property on the other.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

The original act to regulate commerce, approved February 4, 1887, provided for a commission consisting of five members. By various amendatory and supplementary enactments the powers of the Commission have been increased and the scope of the regulating statute materially widened. Among the more important of these enactments are the acts of March 2, 1889; the Elkins Act, approved February 19, 1903; the Hepburn Act, approved June 29, 1906; the Mann-Elkins Act of June 18, 1910; the acts of August 24, 1912, and May 29 and August 9, 1917; the Transportation Act, 1920; the Emergency Railroad Transportation Act, 1933; the Motor Carrier Act, 1935; the Transportation Act, 1940, and part IV of the Interstate Commerce Act, for the regulation of freight forwarders, approved May 16, 1942. The number of commissioners was increased under the act of June 29, 1906, to 7 members; under the act of August 9, 1917, to 9 members; and under the Transportation Act, 1920, to 11 members.

The Commission appoints a secretary, an assistant secretary, a chief counsel, and such attorneys, examiners, special agents, and clerks as are necessary to the proper performance of its duties.

Jurisdiction over motor carriers was conferred upon the Commission by the Motor Carrier Act, 1935, by the addition of part II of the Interstate Commerce Act, over water carriers by the Transportation Act of 1940, by the addition of part III thereof, and over freight forwarders by the act of May 16, 1942. Each of these parts will be separately described later.

The Interstate Commerce Act, part I, applies to all common carriers engaged in the transportation of oil or other commodities, except water, and except natural or artificial gas, by means of pipe lines, or partly by pipe lines and partly by railroad, or partly by pipe lines and partly by water, from one State, Territory, or District of the United States to any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, or to any foreign country, and to common carriers engaged in interstate transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad (or partly by railroad and partly by water when both are used under a common control, management, or arrangement for a continuous carriage or shipment); also to express companies and sleeping-car companies, to bridges, ferries, car floats and lighters, used by carriers subject to part I, and all terminal and transportation facilities used or necessary in the interstate transportation of persons or property.

The Interstate Commerce Act requires all rates to be just and reasonable and prohibits unjust discrimination and undue or unreasonable preference or advantage in transportation rates or facilities. The act provides that whenever in any investigation, including one instituted upon petition of the carriers concerned, there shall be brought in issue any rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice made or imposed by any State authority, the authorities of the State or States interested must be notified of the hearings in such cases, and the Commission may confer and hold joint hearings with the authorities of the interested States. If, after hearing, the Commission finds such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice causes undue or unreasonable advantage, preference, or prejudice as between persons or localities in intrastate commerce on the one hand and interstate or foreign commerce on the other hand, or any undue, unreasonable, or unjust discrimination against interstate or foreign commerce which is forbidden, it is authorized to prescribe the rate, fare, or charge, or the maximum or minimum, or maximum and minimum, thereafter to be charged, and the classification, regulation, or practice thereafter to be observed, in such manner as, in its judgment, will remove such advantage, preference, prejudice, or discrimination.

The Interstate Commerce Act prohibits any carrier subject to part I, and any water carrier subject to part III, from charging a higher rate for a shorter than for a longer haul over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer haul, or the charging of any greater compensation as a through rate than the aggregate of the intermediate rates subject to the act. It is provided, however, that the Commission may, in special cases, after investigation, authorize carriers to charge less for longer than for shorter distances, and from time to time prescribe the extent to which such carriers may be relieved, subject, however, to the further proviso that in so doing the Commission shall not permit the establishment of any charge to or from the more distant point that is not reasonably compensatory. Insofar as carriers by railroad are concerned, the Commission is precluded from granting relief under the fourth section to carriers by railroad, or other carriers subject to part I, because of merely potential water competition not actually in existence.

The Commission is authorized to require rail carriers to establish through routes and joint rates, and it may act summarily in itself establishing, temporarily, through routes when, in its opinion, shortage of equipment, congestion of traffic, or other emergency exists. The act requires that divisions of joint rates shall be just, reasonable, and equitable, and authorizes the Commission, upon complaint or upon its own initiative, after hearing, to prescribe the just, reasonable, and equitable divisions of such rates, and it may require readjustment of such divisions if it finds they have been unjust, unreasonable, or inequitable in the past, and if the joint rates, the divisions of which are in issue, were themselves prescribed pursuant to a finding or order of the Commission. The Commission is also authorized to require rail carriers subject to the act to construct switch connections with lateral branch lines of railroads and private sidetracks. Part I of the act forbids the construction of new, and the abandonment of old, lines of railroad without Commission approval, except "spur, industrial, team, switching, or sidetracks, located or to be located wholly within one State." Part I of the act provides that where two or more through routes and through rates shall have been established shippers shall have the right to designate in writing via which of such through routes the property shall be transported to destination, and gives the Commission authority over the routing of traffic after it arrives at the terminus or a junction point of a carrier and is to be there delivered to another carrier in cases where routing instructions have not been given by the shipper. Where diversion of routed freight occurs which is not in compliance with an order, rule, or regulation of the Commission, the carrier or carriers so diverting the traffic are jointly and severally liable to the carrier deprived of its right to participate in the haul of the property.

The act authorizes the Commission under certain circumstances, upon such terms and conditions and subject to such rules and regulations as it may think just and reasonable, to permit for any common carrier subject to part I, II, or III the pooling or division of traffic, or of service, or of gross or net earnings, or of any portion thereof.

It permits the carriers, with Commission approval, to merge as well as consolidate their properties, or any part thereof, and to purchase, lease, or contract to operate the properties, or any part thereof, of other carriers, or acquire stock control of other carriers; a noncarrier corporation may acquire stock control of one or more carriers, and when so authorized by the Commission such noncarrier corporations are to be considered and treated as carriers subject to the act for the purposes of its provisions relating to reports, accounts, and issuance of securities. The act relieves carriers, when permission is so granted, from the restraints of the antitrust laws so far as may be necessary to effect such consolidations. In all cases of consolidations, mergers, unifications, etc., of carriers by railroad subject to the act, the Commission must impose conditions that are fair and equitable to protect the interests of the railroad employees affected. In abandonment cases the Commission has discretionary authority to determine whether it will impose conditions for the protection of the interests of rail labor adversely affected by the abandonment.

The Commission has jurisdiction, upon complaint or in a proceeding instituted upon its own initiative, and, after full hearing, to determine and prescribe reasonable rates, regulations, and practices, including minimum, and maximum and minimum, rates; and to award reparation to injured shippers. The Interstate Commerce Act also provides that actions at law by carriers to recover their charges shall be begun within 2 years from the time the cause of action accrues and not thereafter, and that complaints seeking reparation shall be instituted within 2 years from the time the cause of action accrues, except that if on or before expiration of the 2-year period of limitation in subdivision (b) of section 16 or of the 2-year period of limitation in subdivision (c), a carrier subject to this act begins action for recovery of charges in respect of the same transportation service or, without beginning action, collects charges in respect of that service, said period of limitation shall be extended to include 90 days from the time such action is begun or such charges are collected by the carrier. The act also provides that a cause of action against the carrier shall be deemed to accrue upon delivery or tender of delivery by the carrier of the property involved. The Commission may also require carriers to cease and desist from unjust discrimination or undue or unreasonable preferences. By the Transportation Act of 1920 the statute was amended to provide that an order of the Commission shall continue in force until its further order, or for a specified period of time, according as shall be prescribed in the order, unless modified or set aside by the Commission, or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Carriers are required to publish and file rates, rules, and regulations applying to interstate traffic and are prohibited from engaging in interstate transportation unless such rates, rules, and regulations are published and filed. Severe penalties are provided in the statute for failure to observe the rates and regulations as shown in the published tariffs.

By the act of May 29, 1917, as amended on February 28, 1920, the Commission is given extensive jurisdiction over the use, control, supply, movement, distribution, exchange, interchange, and return of locomotives, cars, and other vehicles, including special types of equipment and the supply of trains.

The Commission may inquire into the management of the business of all common carriers subject to the provisions of the act, and may prescribe the accounts, records, and memoranda which shall be kept by the carriers, which shall be open to examination by the Commission through its authorized agents or examiners. Carriers are required to file annual reports with the Commission and such other reports as the Commission may from time to time require. By the amendments of February 28, 1920, and September 18, 1940, the Commission was directed to prescribe, for carriers subject to parts I and III of the act, the classes of property for which depreciation charges may be included in operating expenses and the percentages of depreciation chargeable for each such class of property, with authority to modify such classes and percentages so prescribed when deemed necessary.

By the amendment of September 18, 1940, it is made unlawful for any common carrier by railroad or express company to enter into any contract, etc., with any person for the furnishing of protective service against heat or cold to property transported in interstate commerce, unless such contract, etc., has been submitted to and approved by the Commission as just, reasonable, and consistent with the public interest. The Commission was given access also by this act into the records of persons furnishing such cars or protective service.

By the act of June 18, 1910 (Mann-Elkins law), the jurisdiction of the Commission was increased as to through routes and joint rates, freight classifications, switch connections, long and short hauls, filing or rejection of rate schedules, investigations on own motion, determining reasonable rates, suspension of proposed rates, and other matters, with respect to rail carriers. By the act of March 4, 1927, the maximum period during which the Commission may suspend the operation of proposed schedules is fixed at not more than 7 months, and it is provided that if the proceeding upon suspension is not concluded within that time the proposed schedule shall go into effect at the end of such period, but that the Commission may require the rail carriers to keep account in detail of all amounts received by reason of increases in such rates and charges and, if the decision of the Commission be adverse, require such carrier or carriers to refund with interest such portions of such increased rates or charges as by its decision shall be found not justified.

By act approved August 24, 1912, amended by the Transportation Act of 1940, a new paragraph was added to section 5 of the act to regulate commerce by which it is made unlawful after July 1, 1914, for any common carrier by railroad or person controlling, controlled by, or under common control with such a carrier to own, lease, operate, control, or have any interest in any competing carrier by water. Jurisdiction is conferred upon the Commission to determine questions of fact as to competition, after full hearing, on the application of any railroad company or other carrier and to extend beyond July 1, 1914, the time during which such ownership or operation of vessels plying through the Panama Canal or elsewhere, may continue, when it is found to be in the interest of the public and of advantage to the convenience and commerce of the people, and such extension will neither exclude, prevent, nor reduce competition on the route by water.

At the same time section 6 of the act was amended by adding a new paragraph conferring upon the Commission jurisdiction over transportation of property from point to point in the United States by rail and water, whether through the Panama Canal or otherwise and not entirely within the limits of a single State, this jurisdiction, under certain conditions, including power to establish physical connection between lines of the rail carrier and the dock of the water carrier by directing the rail carrier to make such connection, and to determine to what traffic and in connection with what vessels, and upon what terms and conditions proportional, or maximum, or minimum, or maximum and minimum, proportional rates shall apply; and to require rail carriers entering into through routing arrangements with any water carrier to extend the privileges of such arrangements to other water carriers.

By the act approved March 1, 1913, as amended by act approved June 7, 1922, amending the act to regulate commerce, the Commission is directed to investigate, ascertain, and report the value of all property owned or used by every common carrier subject to the provisions of part I of the act, except street, suburban, or interurban electric railways not operated as a part of a general steam railroad system of transportation.

Section 19a provides that the Commission shall keep informed of current changes in the property, its condition, use, the investment therein, its cost and values and related matters, in order to enable it to revise and correct its basic valuations and underlying data as needed.

The act approved March 4, 1915, which became effective June 2, 1915, as amended August 9, 1916, makes common carriers liable for all loss, damage, or injury to property caused by them, and forbids, with certain exceptions, limitations of liability. As amended February 28, 1920, and by the Transportation Act of 1940, it is provided that where the loss, damage, or injury occurs while the property is in the custody of a carrier by water, the liability of such carrier shall be determined by the bill of lading of the carrier by water and by and under the laws and regulations applicable to transportation by water, and that the liability of the initial carrier shall be the same as that of such carrier by water, except in connection with shipments to foreign destinations by water carriers whose vessels are registered under the laws of the United States, in which case it is made the duty of the carrier by railroad to deliver such shipments to the vessel as a part of its undertaking as a common carrier, but it is provided in this connection that the rail carrier shall not be liable after its delivery to the vessel.

It is further provided that the 2-year period for the institution of suits against carriers for loss, damage, or injury shall be computed from the day when notice is given by the carrier to the claimant that the carrier has disallowed the claim or any part thereof.

The act approved April 23, 1930, modifies the requirements of this section as to notice and filing of claims.

Part I of the act as amended February 28, 1920, prohibits a carrier from issuing securities or from assuming obligations or liabilities as lessor, lessee, guarantor, indorser, surety, or otherwise, in respect of the securities of others from and after 120 days after the provision takes effect, except after having been authorized by the Commission so to do; prescribes the conditions under which the Commission may grant authorities to the carriers; the form and contents of applications which shall be made to the Commission for such purposes; provides for the giving of notice by the Commission of such applications to the Governor of each State in which the applicant carrier operates; for hearings by the Commission in respect of such applications; that carriers may issue certificates and assume obligations or liabilities without obtaining authority other than that of the Commission, and for the issuance by the carrier without the consent of the Commission of short-term notes in limited amounts, reports of which are, however, required to be filed with the Commission. It is further provided that nothing in the act shall be construed to imply any guaranty or obligation as to such securities on the part of the United States. Part I of the act also provides for a right of action in favor of investors or purchasers in good faith and without notice of securities which, if not legally issued, are void, and for penalties against directors, officers, attorneys, or agents of carriers who knowingly assent to or concur in the issuance of securities, etc., contrary to the provisions of the Commission's orders or grants of authority.

An act approved February 28, 1933, amends section 17 so as to authorize the Commission to assign certain of its duties to an individual Commissioner or to a board composed of employees. This section was further amended on September 18, 1940, with respect to the assignment of duties to individual Commissioners, divisions of the Commission, and boards of employees, subject to a right of review of such decisions, by the entire Commission or appropriate appellate divisions thereof.

An act approved March 3, 1933, as amended by an act approved August 27, 1935, amends the Bankruptcy Act by providing for proceedings for the reorganization of railroads, which proceedings may be instituted either by a petition of a railroad, filed in the appropriate Federal court, stating that the carrier is "insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature and that it desires to effect a reorganization," or by the filing of a similar petition, after Commission approval, by the creditors of a railroad whose claim aggregates not less than 5 percent of its indebtedness. Many duties are imposed upon the Commission by these amendatory acts, including the approval, after hearing of plans of reorganization, the regulation of protective committees, the ratification of the selection of trustees, and the fixing of maximum allowances, expenses, and attorneys' fees for the trustees, their counsel, or organization managers, or others entitled thereto.

By amendment of June 22, 1938, the bankruptcy law was further amended to provide that any commission created by any law of the United States or of any State having regulatory jurisdiction over a public-utility corporation should have submitted to it a plan approved and given opportunity to suggest amendments or offer objections to the plan, and after approval of the plan such corporation shall comply with the provisions of the plan and orders relative thereto, including procuring of authorization, approval, or consent of such commissions.

The Emergency Railroad Transportation Act, 1933, provided for the termination of proceedings for recapture of excess income, and substituted a new rule of rate making, under which the Commission is required to give due consideration to the effect of rates on the movement of traffic; to the need in the public interest of adequate and efficient railroad transportation service at the lowest cost consistent with the furnishing of such service; and to the need of revenues sufficient to enable carriers under honest, economical, and efficient management to provide such service. The Transportation Act of 1940 contained a new declaration of policy providing for fair and impartial regulation of all modes of transportation subject to the act, so administered as to recognize and preserve the inherent advantages of each; to promote safe, adequate, economical, and efficient service and foster sound economic conditions in transportation and among the several carriers; to encourage the establishment and maintenance of reasonable charges for transportation services, without unjust discriminations, undue preferences, or advantages, or unfair or destructive competitive practices; to cooperate with the several States and the duly authorized officials thereof; and to encourage fair wages and equitable working conditions—all to the end of developing, coordinating, and preserving a national transportation system by water, highway, and rail, as well as other means, adequate to meet the needs of the commerce of the United States, of the Postal Service, and of the national defense. All of the provisions of this act shall be administered and enforced with a view to carrying out the above declaration of policy.

By the Civil Aeronautics Act, approved June 23, 1938, the Commission's jurisdiction over air transportation was transferred to the Civil Aeronautics Authority, except that orders made by the Commission in proceedings instituted before it, either prior or subsequent to said June 23, are to be controlled by the act of June 12, 1934, as amended by act of August 14, 1935, until changed by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Under said act of June 23, 1938, the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Interstate Commerce Commission are required to direct their respective chairmen to designate, from time to time, a like number of members of each to act as a joint board to consider and pass upon matters relating to through service and joint rates, fares, or charges of air carriers and other carriers, in accordance with power conferred upon said Authority by the Civil Aeronautics Act.

By an act approved July 5, 1937, section 22 of said part I was further amended to authorize a carrier to transport a totally blind person accompanied by a guide or seeing-eye dog or other guide dog specially trained and educated for that purpose at the usual and ordinary fare charged to one person.

By an act approved August 25, 1937, section 22 of said part I was so amended as to authorize carriers subject to said part to accord reduced rates for the transportation of property to or from any section of the country with the object of providing relief in case of earthquake, flood, fire, famine, drought, epidemic, pestilence, or other calamitous visitation or disaster, if such reduced rates have first been authorized by order of the Commission.

By section 201 (a) of the act of February 16, 1938, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to institute and prosecute before the Commission complaints concerning charges, etc., pertaining to the transportation of farm products; and, when like complaints are filed by parties other than the Secretary, the Commission is required to give him notice concerning the fact and accord him an opportunity to be heard in the premises.

Under the Motor Carrier Act, 1935 (part II of the Interstate Commerce Act), as amended June 29, 1938, and September 18, 1940, the Commission is charged with the duty of regulating common carriers by motor vehicle, contract carriers by motor vehicle, private carriers of property by motor vehicle, and transportation brokers, who engage in interstate or foreign commerce. The regulation of private carriers of property by motor vehicle is confined to reasonable requirements to promote safety of operation, including qualifications and maximum hours of service of employees and standards of equipment, to be established by the Commission if need therefor is found.

Authority from the Commission to do business is required in the form of certificates of public convenience and necessity for common carriers, permits for contract carriers, and licenses for transportation brokers. Such certificates, permits, and licenses may be suspended, revoked, or changed by the Commission after notice and hearing for willful violation of the act or of any lawful order, rule, or regulation of the Commission, or of any term, condition, or limitation of any such certificate, permit, or license.

Similar authority was conferred upon the Commission, with respect to common and contract carriers by water, by the Transportation Act of 1940. Such provisions are contained in part III of the Interstate Commerce Act.

Common carriers are required to establish just and reasonable rates and fares, and to file tariffs thereof with the Commission. The authority of the Commission over rates is not that of initiation in the first instance, but of regulation. It may suspend a rate and, after hearing and upon proper findings, may prescribe a lawful rate. It also has jurisdiction over divisions of rates and fares as between joint carriers and other related matters. The Commission is directed, in determining the justness of any rate, to take into consideration the elements of the inherent advantages of each form of transportation, the effect of rates upon traffic movement, the need in the public interest of adequate and efficient transportation service by such carriers at the lowest cost consistent with the furnishing of such service, and the need of sufficient revenues to enable such carriers to provide such service under honest, economical, and efficient management, etc., as contained in the declaration of policy heretofore set out. The Commission may not consider good will, earning power, or certificate value in rate determinations.

Common carriers of passengers are required to establish through routes and join rates with other such carriers; and, if they choose, may make such arrangements with common carriers by rail or water. In the case of common carriers of property by motor, the establishment of joint rates and through routes is optional with the carriers.

Contract carriers must file schedules or, in the discretion of the Commission their transportation contracts, showing their minimum charges, below which they are directed not to go, either directly or indirectly. If the Commission finds after hearing that any charge made by a contract carrier contravenes the policy of the act, it may prescribe a minimum charge in an amount found necessary or desirable in the public interest and to promote that policy.

All motor carriers must comply with the rules and regulations of the Commission concerning security for public protection. This may take the form of insurance surety bonds, qualifications as a self-insurer, or some other form of security insuring against injury or death resulting from negligent operation or for loss or damage to property of others. Cargo insurance, or its equivalent, may be required of common carriers of property in the discretion of the Commission.

The Commission may require annual, periodical, or special reports from motor carriers and water carriers, and the submission of true copies of traffic contracts between any such carrier and any other carrier. It may prescribe the forms of accounts, records, and memoranda of such carriers, and has the right of inspection of such records and of the premises of such carriers.

As to common carriers by motor vehicle, the Commission, in addition to the general powers above mentioned, may establish reasonable requirements with respect to continuous and adequate service, transportation of baggage and express, uniform systems of accounts, records and reports, preservation of records, qualifications and maximum hours of service of employees, and safety of operation and equipment.

As to contract carriers, the Commission may also establish reasonable requirements with respect to uniform systems of accounts, records and reports, preservation of records, qualifications and maximum hours of service of employees, and safety of operation and equipment.

The Commission, by rules and regulations, may require the display of identification plates upon each motor vehicle operated by such carriers.

Part III of the Interstate Commerce Act, approved September 18, 1940, gives the Commission extensive authority over common carriers and contract carriers by water, quite similar to its authority over motor vehicle common and contract carriers, above discussed. The act in part III permits the Commission to make numerous exemptions from its provisions, such as bulk carriers on the Great Lakes who can transport bulk commodities so cheaply that they cannot be said to compete with other forms of transportation, and also permits exemptions where necessary to permit United States carriers to compete on equal terms with their foreign competitors. Equality of regulation between competing forms of transportation, insofar as it was possible to achieve this equality, was the purpose of this legislation.

Part IV of the Interstate Commerce Act, approved May 16, 1942, gives the Commission extensive authority over freight forwarders. The term freight forwarder means any person (other than a carrier subject to parts I, II, or III of the act) who holds itself out to the general public to transport or provide transportation of property for compensation, assumes responsibility for the transportation, and utilizes in whole or in part of the transportation the services of a carrier or carriers subject to parts I, II, or III of the act.

The act excludes from regulation cooperative associations where the property consists of ordinary livestock, fish, agricultural commodities, or used household goods if the person engages in this service subject to this part with respect to not more than one of the classifications of such property.

The act also vests the Commission with authority to administer its provisions and issue necessary rules and regulations, authority to prescribe reasonable rules and regulations for the filing of surety bonds, policies of insurance, etc. The Commission may obtain information concerning operations of the forwarder, make necessary recommendations for further legislation, and investigate complaints as to whether the forwarders have observed the provisions of the act. Freight forwarders must furnish service upon reasonable request therefor and provide just and reasonable rates as well as reasonable practices as to the issuance of receipts and bills of lading and for the pick-up and delivery of freight subject to this part of the act. Unreasonable preferences or advantages are forbidden. The Commission is also given extensive authority over the rates and practices of freight forwarders; the act requires the filing of tariffs, suspension, etc., and permits common carriers subject to parts I, II, and III of the act to establish assembly or distribution rates on less-than-carload and less-than-truckload shipments. The act provides an adjustment period pending the establishment of assembly and distribution rates, provides for the issuance of permits for anyone to engage in the freight forwarding business, and forbids a freight forwarder from acquiring control of any carrier subject to parts I, II, or III of the act. The Commission may prescribe uniform systems of accounts for freight forwarders and require annual and periodical reports, and its agents may have access to forwarder records. The act contains provisions for bills of lading and delivery of property by freight forwarders, requires them to collect lawful freight-forwarder charges, and permits allowances to shippers for transportation services performed for the forwarder. The act contains provisions for notices, orders, and service of process; provides for enforcement of its provisions and the procedure thereunder, and prescribes penalties for violation. It contains provisions for the services of other carriers whose services may be utilized by the freight forwarders. The act contains provisions also relating to when its various requirements are to become effective.

On February 20, 1946, part IV was amended by an act requiring the Commission at the earliest practicable date to determine and prescribe the just, reasonable, and equitable terms under which freight forwarders may utilize the services of motor carriers subject to part II, in furtherance of the national transportation policy, and authorizes the Commission, after investigation, to modify or rescind such terms and conditions. This amendatory act also permits freight forwarders and common carriers by motor vehicle to operate under joint rates or charges subject to authority in the Commission to terminate by order the requirements of this subsection. The amendment also contains provisions as to how joint rates or charges and concurrences between freight forwarders and common carriers by motor vehicle shall become effective, and provides for the manner in which tariffs covering such rates and charges shall be filed.

RELATED ACTS AFFECTING INTERSTATE COMMERCE

Elkins Act.—The act of February 19, 1903, commonly called the Elkins law, prohibits rebating, allows proceedings in the courts by injunction to restrain departures from published rates, and provides that cases prosecuted under the direction of the Attorney General in the name of the Commission shall be included within the expediting act of February 11, 1903.

District Court Jurisdiction Act.—The Urgent Deficiency Appropriation Act, approved October 22, 1913, provided that the Commerce Court should be abolished from and after December 31, 1913, and that the jurisdiction theretofore vested in the Commerce Court under act approved June 18, 1910, be transferred to and vested in the several district courts of the United States.

Expediting Act.—The act of February 11, 1903, provides that suits in equity brought under the act to regulate commerce wherein the United States is complainant may be expedited and given precedence over other suits, and that appeals from the circuit court (district court) lie only to the Supreme Court.

Clayton Antitrust Act.—Jurisdiction is conferred upon the Commission to enforce certain provisions of the act approved October 15, 1914, to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, insofar as such provisions relate to carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce. The act prohibits, with certain exceptions, carriers from discriminating between purchasers in sales of commodities, and from making leases or sales of commodities and from acquiring stock or capital of other corporations engaging in commerce tending to substantially lessen competition or create a monopoly; makes it a felony for a president or other specified officers to misappropriate a carrier's funds; and, as amended by act approved January 12, 1918, provides that, effective January 1, 1919, no carrier shall have dealings in securities or supplies, or contract for construction or maintenance, to the amount of more than $50,000, in the aggregate, in any one year, with another corporation or organization, when, by reason of common officers or otherwise, there exists a community of interest between the carrier and such other corporation or organization, except as a result of free competitive bidding under regulations to be prescribed by the Commission. The Commission is further authorized to investigate violations of the act by carriers and to require the guilty parties to cease therefrom, and its findings of fact in such investigations shall be conclusive when supported by testimony.

Railway Mail Service Pay Act.—The act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department, approved July 28, 1916, empowers the Commission to fix and determine fair and reasonable rates and compensation for the transportation of mail matter by railway common carriers and services connected therewith, prescribing the method by weight or space, or both, or otherwise.

The act making appropriations for the services of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, empowers the Commission to fix and determine fair and reasonable rates and compensation for the transportation of mail matter by urban and interurban electric railway common carriers.

Standard Time Act.—By the act approved March 19, 1918, the Commission is authorized to fix the limits of the standard time zones established for the continental United States and Alaska, having due regard, in doing so, to the convenience of commerce and the junction and division points of common carriers whose movements are to be governed by the standard time of the zones so fixed.

Safety Appliance Acts.—The act of March 2, 1893, known as the Safety Appliance Act, provides that railroad cars used in interstate commerce must be equipped with automatic couplers, and drawbars of a standard height for freight cars, and have grabirons or handholds on the ends and sides of each car; and that locomotive engines used in moving interstate traffic shall be equipped with a power driving-wheel brake and appliances for operating the train-brake system. The act directs the Commission to lodge with the proper district attorneys information of such violations as may come to its knowledge. The act of March 2, 1903, amended this act so as to make its provisions apply to Territories and the District of Columbia, to all cases when couplers of whatever design are brought together, and to all locomotives, cars, and other equipment of any railroad engaged in interstate traffic, except logging cars and cars used upon street railways; and provides for a minimum number of air-braked cars in trains.

By act of April 14, 1910, the safety appliance acts were supplemented so as to require railroads to equip their cars with sill steps, hand brakes, ladders, running boards, and roof handholds, and the Commission was authorized to designate the number, dimensions, location, and manner of application of appliances.

Accident Reports Act.—By act of May 6, 1910, the prior accident reports law was repealed and a new statute enacted requiring carriers to make full reports of all accidents to the Commission and increasing the scope of the Commission's authority in making investigations of all accidents resulting to persons or the property of the carrier.

Hours of Service Act.—The act of March 4, 1907, makes it the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of the act wherein it is made unlawful to require or permit employees engaged in or connected with the movement of trains to be on duty more than a specified number of hours in any 24.

Ash Pan Act.—The act of May 30, 1908, makes it the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of the act wherein it is provided that after a certain date no locomotive shall be used in moving interstate or foreign traffic, etc., not equipped with an ash pan which can be emptied without requiring a man to go under such locomotive. Penalties are provided for violations of this act.

Transportation of Explosives Act.—The act of May 30, 1908, as amended by act approved March 4, 1921, directed the Interstate Commerce Commission to make regulations for the safe transportation of explosives and dangerous articles by common carriers engaged in interstate commerce. Penalties are provided for violations of such regulations. By act approved October 9, 1940, jurisdiction over transportation by common carriers by water of explosives and other dangerous articles was transferred to the Secretary of Commerce, effective April 9, 1941. Jurisdiction in the Commission with respect to requirements on shippers of such articles by common carriers by water was undisturbed.

Locomotive and Boiler Inspection Acts.—The act of February 17, 1911, confers jurisdiction upon the Commission to enforce certain provisions compelling railroad companies to equip their locomotives with safe and suitable boilers and appurtenances thereto.

By amendatory acts approved March 4, 1915, June 7, 1924, and June 27, 1930, the powers of the Commission to inspect and to prescribe standards of safety for locomotive boilers and appurtenances thereto was extended to include "all parts and appurtenances of the locomotive and tender."

Block signal and automatic train-control safety devices.—The Urgent Deficiency Appropriation Act approved October 22, 1913, contained an appropriation of $25,000 to enable the Commission to investigate and test block signals and appliances for the automatic control of railway trains and appliances or systems intended to promote the safety of railway operation, including experimental tests of such systems and appliances as shall be furnished in completed shape to the Commission for investigation and test, free of cost to the Government, in accordance with the provisions of joint resolution approved June 30, 1916, and Sundry Civil Appropriation Act approved May 27, 1908. Provision was made in the Sundry Civil Appropriation Acts approved August 1, 1914, March 3, 1915, July 1, 1916, June 12, 1917, and July 1, 1918, for continuing the investigation and testing of these systems and appliances.

By an act approved August 26, 1937, section 26 of part I of the Interstate Commerce Act, changed to section 25 by the Transportation Act of 1940, was so amended as to authorize the Commission to require any carrier by railroad subject to that part (including any terminal or station company), and any receiver or any other individual or body, when in the possession of the business of a carrier subject to the section, to install the block-signal system, interlocking, automatic or similar appliances, methods and systems intended to promote the safety of railroad operation, which comply with specifications and requirements prescribed by the Commission, upon the whole or any part of its railroad, and thereafter to make such changes in the requirements, and in requirements concerning pertinent reports and records of the carriers, as the Commission might find necessary.

Railroad Retirement Act.—This act, approved August 29, 1935, as amended by the act of June 24, 1937, creates a Railroad Retirement Board of three members, and it directs the Commission, upon request of the Board or upon complaint of any party interested, to determine after hearing whether any line of railroad operated by electric power is in fact a street, interurban, or suburban electric railway, exempt from the terms of the act.

Railroad Labor Act.—By act approved June 21, 1934, a National Railroad Adjustment Board and a National Mediation Board, to provide for the prompt disposition of disputes between carriers and their employees, is provided for, and by the terms of the act, the Commission is directed, upon request of the Board or upon complaint of any interested party, to determine after hearing whether any line of railroad operated by electric power is a street, interurban, or suburban electric railway, exempt from the provisions of the act.

By the Carriers Taxing Act, approved June 29, 1937, which provides for the payment of excise taxes by certain carriers and the payment of income taxes by the carriers' employees, but does not apply to either street, suburban, or interurban electric railways, unless such railways are operated as parts of general steam-railroad systems of transportation, the Interstate Commerce Commission is authorized and directed, upon request of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, or upon complaint of any party interested, to determine, after hearing, whether any line operated by electric power falls within the terms of said exception.

Under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, approved June 25, 1938, the Commission is required to determine after hearing whether any line operated by electric power falls within the terms of the exemption proviso included in section 1 (a) of that act, when requested to do so by the Railroad Retirement Board or in a complaint filed by an interested party.

Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938.—The first sentence of subsection (b) of section 1003 of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, is further amended by act of May 16, 1942, to permit air carriers to establish reasonable through service and joint rates with other common carriers, except that with respect to transportation of property, air carriers not directly engaged in the operation of aircraft in air transportation (other than companies engaged in the air express business), may not establish joint rates with common carriers subject to the Interstate Commerce Act.

Section 1003 (b) of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, was further amended on August 4, 1947, to provide that in case of through service by air carriers and common carriers subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, it shall be the duty of the carriers parties thereto to establish just and reasonable rates, fares, or charges and just and reasonable classifications, rules, regulations, and practices affecting such rates, fares, or charges, or the value of the service thereunder, and if joint rates, fares, or charges shall have been established with respect to such through service, just, reasonable and equitable divisions of such rates. This amendment further requires the carriers participating in such through service and joint rates to include in tariffs filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board or the Interstate Commerce Commission, a statement showing such through service and joint rates, fares, or charges.

Subsection (b) of section 412 of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, is amended by act of May 16, 1942, to provide that the Authority shall by order disapprove any such contract or agreement, whether or not previously approved by it, that it finds to be adverse to the public interest, or in violation of this act, and shall by order approve any such contract or agreement that it does not find to be adverse to the public interest, or in violation of this act; except that the Authority may not approve any contract or agreement between an air carrier not directly engaged in the operation of aircraft in air transportation and a common carrier subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, governing the compensation to be received by such common carrier for performing transportation services.

MARITIME COMMISSION, UNITED STATES

NOTE.—On February 7, 1942, under authority of the First War Powers Act (Public Law 354, 77th Cong.) by Executive Order 9054 (7 F. R. 837), the President established the War Shipping Administration within the Office of Emergency Management. Certain functions, duties, and powers set forth below were transferred by that order from the Maritime Commission to the War Shipping Administration. The functions of the War Shipping Administration as of August 30, 1946, were transferred to the Maritime Commission, and the War Shipping Administration ceased to exist as of September 1, 1946, under Section 202 of Public Law 492, 79th Congress.

The United States Maritime Commission was created by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, approved June 29, 1936 (49 Stat. 1985), which is entitled "An act to further the development and maintenance of an adequate and well-balanced American merchant marine, to promote the commerce of the United States, to aid in the national defense, to repeal certain former legislation, and for other purposes." The Commission is an independent establishment of the executive branch of the Government, charged with the determination and administration of certain governmental financial aids to private citizens for the construction and operation of vessels in the commerce of the United States. It also exercises other business functions. In addition to its business functions, the Commission possesses regulatory powers over common carriers in the foreign water-borne commerce of the United States and over persons carrying on the business of forwarding or furnishing terminal facilities in connection with the common carriers by water.

The act directs that the Commission shall be composed of five members, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The chairman is designated by the President. The Commission may elect one of its members as vice chairman and is authorized to appoint and fix the salaries of a secretary, a general counsel, and other officials and employees.

The terms of office of the Commissioners first appointed were fixed at 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 years; their successors are appointed for terms of 6 years. Three Commissioners were appointed and took office on September 26, 1936. A full Commission was appointed and took office on April 16, 1937.

By the terms of the act, the United States Shipping Board Merchant Fleet Corporation was dissolved and all its records, books, papers, and property were taken over by the Commission. Likewise, all money, notes, bonds, mortgages, contracts, lands, vessels, terminals, property, and interests of every kind, owned by the United States and controlled by the Department of Commerce as the successor to the powers and functions of the former Shipping Board, were transferred to the Commission by the act.

Ocean mail contracts made by the Postmaster General were terminated effective June 30, 1937. The holder of any such contract was authorized to file an application with the Commission to adjust and settle all the rights of the parties under the contract, subject to appeal by the Attorney General.

Under the act the Commission, as successor to the powers and functions originally vested in the United States Shipping Board and later transferred by Executive Order No. 6166, issued on June 10, 1933, to the Department of Commerce, possesses all the powers and functions delegated in the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended, the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, as amended, and the Intercoastal Shipping Act, 1933, as amended. The Commission's powers have been extended or clarified by acts of Congress on several occasions since enactment of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936.

The duties of the Commission include the investigation and determination of the ocean services, routes, and lines from points in the United States to foreign markets essential for the development and maintenance of the foreign commerce of the United States and the determination of what additions and replacements of the American merchant marine are required to create an adequate and well-balanced merchant fleet to provide shipping service on all routes essential for the flow of the foreign commerce of the United States, the vessels to be so designed as to be capable of serving as naval or military auxiliaries in time of war or national emergency; and investigation of other maritime problems arising under the act.

To aid the citizen of the United States in the construction of a new vessel to be used on a service, route, or line in the foreign commerce of the United States determined to be essential, the Commission is empowered to have the vessel constructed in a shipyard in the United States, to pay such construction cost, and to sell the vessel to the applicant for an amount equal to the estimated cost of the construction of the vessel if it were constructed in a foreign shipyard. The plans and specifications are required to be approved by the Secretary of the Navy, the Commission being directed to cooperate with the Navy Department as to national-defense needs and the adaptation of the merchant fleet to national-defense requirements. The difference between the cost of constructing the vessel in the United States and the estimated cost of constructing the vessel in a foreign shipyard is termed a construction-differential subsidy, but in no case may such subsidy exceed 50 percent of the cost of the vessel. The applicant is required to pay 25 percent of the price at which a vessel is sold to the applicant, and the balance, payable within 20 years at 3½-percent interest per annum, must be secured by a first preferred mortgage upon the vessel.

Aid may be extended to any citizen of the United States in the construction of a new vessel to be operated in the foreign or domestic trade (excepting vessels engaged solely in the transportation of property on inland rivers and canals exclusively), in cases where no construction-differential subsidy is to be allowed, although the Commission is authorized to pay the cost of any national defense features incorporated in such new vessels. The applicant is required, in case the vessel has a gross tonnage of 3,500 or more tons and a speed of 16 knots or more, to pay not less than 12½ per centum of the cost of the vessel, and in case of a vessel of less tonnage or less speed, not less than 25 per centum of the cost of the vessel; and the balance, payable within 20 years at 3½-percent interest per annum, must be secured by a first preferred mortgage and otherwise as the Commission may direct.

If it is found that the national policy declared in the act and the building program contemplated by the act cannot be realized within a reasonable time, after approval by the President, the Commission may have new vessels constructed and old ones reconditioned. Such vessels may be chartered or sold under the Merchant Marine Act, 1936.

The Commission is empowered to grant an operating-differential subsidy to aid a citizen of the United States in the operation of a vessel to be used in an essential service, route, or line in the foreign commerce of the United States. The operating-differential subsidy, which is intended to place the proposed operations of such vessels on a parity with those of foreign competitors, is the excess of the cost of items of operating expense in which it is found the applicant is at a substantial disadvantage in competition with foreign vessels over the estimated cost of the same items of expense if the vessels were operated under registry of a foreign country whose vessels are substantial competitors of the vessels covered by the contract. Certain reserve funds are required to be set up by the vessel operators, and no operating-differential subsidy may be paid for coastwise or intercoastal vessel operations.

The Commission is authorized (under the 1939 amendments to the act) to acquire any obsolete vessel or vessels not less than 17 years old, which have been owned by citizens of the United States for at least 3 years prior to the date of such acquisition, in exchange for credit on the purchase of a new vessel or vessels from the Commission or on a new vessel or vessels constructed in a domestic shipyard and documented under the laws of the United States. The allowance is to be the fair and reasonable value of the old vessel as determined by the Commission after consideration of the scrap value, the depreciated value, and the market value for operation.

The Commission administers, under regulations prescribed jointly with the Treasury Department, construction reserve funds established by American shipowners who may deposit therein proceeds from the sales or indemnity for loss of vessels and earnings from operations of vessels, for use in the construction or acquisition of new vessels. Any deposits so used which represent gain on the sale or loss of a vessel are exempt from the taxes on capital gain, but the tax basis of the new vessel will be reduced by the amount of such gain not taxed.

During a national emergency proclaimed by the President, or whenever the President proclaims that the security of the national defense makes it advisable, the Commission may terminate charters on vessels owned by the Commission, and may requisition any vessel or other watercraft owned by citizens of the United States, or under construction in the United States, subject to provisions for the payment of just compensation.

The Commission regulates the sales to aliens, and the transfer to foreign registry, of vessels owned in whole or in part by citizens of the United States and documented under the laws of the United States and, in time of war or national emergency proclaimed by the President, of vessels so owned without regard to documentation.

The 1938 amendments added a new title to the act which provides for a Federal ship mortgage insurance fund to be administered by the Commission. Under authority conferred by this new title the Commission may, upon application of a mortgagee, insure mortgages on all types of passenger, cargo, and fishing vessels, vessels and tugs, towboats, barges, and dredges of not less than 200 gross tons, owned by citizens of the United States. To be eligible for such insurance the mortgage must be to secure a new loan or advance to aid in the construction, reconstruction, or reconditioning of a vessel and the amount of the mortgage insured may not exceed 75 percent of the cost of such new construction, reconstruction, or reconditioning. The premium charge for the mortgage insurance is fixed by the Commission but shall not be less than one-half of 1 percent per annum nor more than 1 percent per annum of the amount of the mortgage obligation outstanding at any time. The premium charge is to be paid by the mortgagee.

The Commission is directed to investigate employment and wage conditions in ocean shipping and to incorporate in contracts for operating differential subsidies minimum-manning scales, minimum-wage scales, and reasonable working conditions for all officers and crews employed on vessels receiving an operating differential subsidy. All licensed officers of vessels documented under the laws of the United States must be citizens of the United States, and the act contains provisions in respect to the citizenship of members of crews of subsidized vessels. Citizenship requirements of officers and crews are enforced by the Coast Guard.

The regulatory powers possessed by the Commission extend to all common carriers by water engaged in foreign commerce of the United States and to all persons carrying on the business of forwarding or furnishing wharfage, dock, warehouse, or other terminal facilities in connection with common carriers by water. These powers are principally in relation to rates, fares, charges, regulations, and practices. The Commission possesses quasi-judicial authority to receive and determine complaints of shippers, passengers, and others alleging unreasonableness or unjust discrimination by common carriers by water and others subject to its regulatory authority and the method for the enforcement of orders of the Commission, including orders directing the payment of money in reparation for violation of statutory provisions, as prescribed in the Shipping Acts. An important regulatory power vested in the Commission is the approval, disapproval, or modification of agreements entered into between common carriers by water subject to its jurisdiction respecting cooperative working arrangements. The Commission's approval of such agreements, commonly referred to as conference agreements, excepts the parties thereto from the operation of the Sherman Antitrust Act, Wilson Tariff Act, Clayton Act, and supplementary acts and amendments directed at monopolies in restraint of trade.

The Commission conducts a training program established in 1938, as provided by sections 101 and 216 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, for the training of licensed and unlicensed personnel to serve on merchant vessels of the United States. It includes the United States Maritime Service and the United States Merchant Marine Cadet Corps, and supervision over the Federal functions of the five State Maritime Academies of California, Maine, Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania. It also conducts the United States Maritime Service Institute offering correspondence and extension courses to merchant seamen, and has jurisdiction over the medical program for trainees and merchant seamen, preventive medical activities, and medals and awards for seamen.

Under the 1936 act the Commission adopted, prior to the outbreak of World War II, and has been carrying out the long-range ship construction program of 500 ships in 10 years. This program placed the ship construction industry on a sound basis capable of wartime expansion. From January 1, 1942, through the year 1945, the Commission carried out the greatest shipbuilding program in history. The total output for this period was 5,592 vessels, which aggregated 54,153,000 tons deadweight. Included in this accelerated program were cargo vessels of the Liberty, Victory, and Standard "C" types, and tankers, as well as various types of military and naval auxiliaries.

Under section 10 (b) of the Surplus Property Act of 1944 the Commission is the sole disposal agency for surplus merchant ships.

The Commission, under the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946 (Public Law 321, 79th Cong.), approved March 8, 1946, is authorized (until March 1, 1948) to sell or charter certain war-built merchant vessels, and to place in a national defense reserve fleet vessels necessary for the national defense.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR AERONAUTICS

Creation and authority.—The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics was created by act of Congress approved March 3, 1915 (38 Stat. 930; 49 U. S. C. 241), as amended by the act approved March 2, 1929 (45 Stat. 1451; 49 U. S. C. 241), as amended by the act approved June 23, 1938 (52 Stat. 1027; 49 U. S. C. 241).

Purpose.—The law provides that the Committee shall "supervise and direct the scientific study of the problems of flight, with a view to their practical solution, * * *" and also "direct and conduct research and experiment in aeronautics," in such laboratory or laboratories, either in whole or in part, as may be placed under its direction.

The general purposes of the Committee are to—

1. Coordinate the research needs of aviation, civil and military.
2. Prevent duplication in the field of aeronautical research.
3. Conduct, under unified control of the Committee, scientific aeronautical research, including:

(a) Fundamental researches instituted by the Committee on its own initiative or authorized upon request of the Army, Navy, or Civil Aeronautics Authority, to increase speed, safety, and economy of operation of aircraft, military and civil.

(b) Special investigations in the nature of applied research on problems submitted by the Army and Navy for immediate improvement in performance of military and naval aircraft.

4. Advise the War and Navy Departments, the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and the aviation industry as to the latest research information.

5. On request of the President, the Congress, or any executive department, to advise upon any special problem in aeronautics which may be referred to it.

Organization.—The Committee is composed of 15 members appointed by the President, and consists of 2 representatives each of the War and Navy Departments (from the offices in charge of military and naval aeronautics) and Civil Aeronautics Authority, 1 representative each of the Smithsonian Institution, the United States Weather Bureau, and the National Bureau of Standards, together with 6 additional persons who are "acquainted with the needs of aeronautical science, either civil or military, or skilled in aeronautical engineering or its allied sciences." All the members serve as such without compensation.

Under rules and regulations formulated by the Committee and approved by the President, technical subcommittees, organized along lines similar to the main Committee, and with members serving as such without compensation, prepare programs of fundamental research in aeronautics. Applied research is also conducted to answer immediate and pressing problems in military and civil aeronautics. In order that research programs may be of maximum value, provision is made to keep the subcommittees informed as far as possible as to aeronautical researches conducted by foreign nations.

Executive Secretary.—The Executive Secretary at the headquarters office exercises functions required to be performed by "head of department or agency;" directs the administration of the organization, its public relations and intelligence activities, and coordinates its administrative relations with other Federal agencies and industry.

Directorate.—The Director of Aeronautical Research at the headquarters office directs the research activities of the Committee's laboratories; coordinates the Committee's research activities by means of effectiye liaison service with scientific and educational institutions, aircraft and allied industries, and with agencies of the Federal Government concerned with aeronautics; and supervises the program of research contracts with scientific and educational institutions.

Laboratories.—The Langley Memorial Aeronautical Laboratory at the Army's Langley Field, Va., the Ames Aeronautical Laboratory at the Navy's Moffett Field, Calif., and the Flight Propulsion Research Laboratory at the Municipal Airport, Cleveland, Ohio, are the principal aeronautical research laboratories of the Government, where the Committee carries on fundamental scientific research on which the War and Navy Departments, the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and the aircraft industry rely for new knowledge underlying progress in improving the performance, efficiency, and safety of American aircraft.

Office of Aeronautical Intelligence.—This Office was established in the early part of 1918. It serves as the depository and distributing agency for the scientific and technical data on aeronautics comprising the results of Committee researches, and for similar information collected by the Committee from governmental and private agencies in this country and abroad.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES

The National Archives was established under an act of Congress approved June 19, 1934 (48 Stat. 1122-1124), which created the Office of Archivist of the United States and prescribed his duties. The primary objective of the National Archives is to make the experience of the Government and the people of the United States as it is embodied in the records of the Federal Government and related materials available to guide and assist the Government and the people in planning and conducting their activities. It endeavors to attain that objective by assembling, preserving, arranging, and describing such of the noncurrent records of agencies of the Federal Government as have sufficient administrative, legal, research, or other value to warrant their permanent preservation and by making such records available for use by Government officials, scholars, and others who have occasion to consult them. "Motion-picture films and sound recordings pertaining to and illustrative of historical activities of the United States" are also accepted, preserved, and made available.

Another function of the National Archives is the appraisal of records believed to be appropriate for disposal in order that the Archivist may report to Congress such of them as in his opinion lack sufficient value to warrant their continued preservation by the Government.

The Division of the Federal Register of the National Archives was created by a separate law approved July 26, 1935 (49 Stat. 500–503). Under this law and subsequent amendments thereto this Division receives and publishes in daily issues of the Federal Register the text of Presidential proclamations, Executive orders, and documents of general or particular applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or to describe the organization, procedure, or practice requirements of any executive agency. It also prepares for publication codifications of all such documents that are still in force and effect, and annual supplements to these codifications.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES COUNCIL

The National Archives Council was established by the National Archives Act (48 Stat. 1122–1124), which provides that the Council "shall define the classes of material which shall be transferred to the National Archives Building and establish regulations governing such transfer; and shall have power to advise the Archivist in respect to regulations governing the disposition and use of the archives and records transferred to his custody." An act of July 7, 1943, as amended July 6, 1945, concerning the disposal of records (57 Stat. 380–383; 59 Stat. 434), assigned to the Council the duties of "establishing (1) procedures for the compiling and submitting to the Archivist of the United States of lists and schedules of records proposed for disposal, (2) procedures for the disposal of records authorized for disposal, and (3) standards for the reproduction of records by photographic or microphotographic processes with a view to the disposal of the original records." Such regulations, when approved by the President, are binding on all agencies of the United States Government.

NATIONAL HISTORICAL PUBLICATIONS COMMISSION

The National Historical Publications Commission was created by the National Archives Act (48 Stat. 1122–1124).

The duties of the Commission are to "make plans, estimates, and recommendations for such historical works and collections of sources as seem appropriate for publication and/or otherwise recording at the public expense." The Archivist of the United States is the chairman of the Commission and is required by the act to transmit its recommendations to Congress.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES TRUST FUND BOARD

The National Archives Trust Fund Board was created by an act of July 9, 1941 (55 Stat. 581), which authorizes the Board "to accept, receive, hold, and administer such gifts or bequests of money, securities, or other personal property, for the benefit of or in connection with the National Archives, its collections, or its services, as may be approved by the Board."

ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE OF THE FEDERAL REGISTER

The permanent Administrative Committee of the Federal Register was established by section 6 of the Federal Register Act, approved July 26, 1935 (49 Stat. 501), which provides in part that "the committee shall prescribe, with the approval of the President, regulations for carrying out the provisions of this Act."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT LIBRARY

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Library was created by a joint resolution approved July 18, 1939 (53 Stat. 1062–1066), to preserve and administer collections of historical material donated to it by Franklin D. Roosevelt and such other material related to and contemporary with this material as may be acquired from other sources by gift, purchase, or loan. The administration of the Library is vested in the Archivist of the United States.

TRUSTEES OF THE FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT LIBRARY

A Board known as the Trustees of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library was created by the joint resolution establishing the Library (53 Stat. 1062–1066), which authorizes the Board to "receive gifts and bequests of personal property and to hold and administer the same as trust funds for the benefit of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library."

NATIONAL CAPITAL HOUSING AUTHORITY

The National Capital Housing Authority is the public housing agency for the District of Columbia. In normal times, its dual objective is to reclaim the slums of Washington and to assure an adequate supply of dwellings for families of low income whose housing needs are not adequately met by private enterprise. Its wartime objective is to provide, when properly designated as a Federal agency to do so, dwellings for war workers whose services are needed in Washington and for their immediate families. Its activities, in wartime, extend to the metropolitan area of Washington. The Authority presently is engaged in housing veterans of World War II and the families of servicemen, in dwellings originally provided for occupancy by war workers.

The Authority was established under the terms of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act, approved June 12, 1934 (48 Stat. 930); amendments to this act were approved on June 25, 1938 (Public Law No. 733, 75th Cong.).

Members of the Authority were designated, and their duties generally outlined pursuant to Executive Order No. 6868, October 9, 1934, which was amended by Executive Order No. 7784–A, January 5, 1938, Executive Order No. 8033, dated January 11, 1939, and Executive Order No. 9916, December 31, 1947. The Authority consists of the chairman of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, the director of planning of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the chairman of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency, the President of the District of Columbia Board of Education, and the urban planning officer of the Federal Works Agency.

As the Alley Dwelling Act authorized the President to designate "an Authority," without further specifying the title of the proposed agency, Executive Order No. 6868, above referred to, conferred the name of "The Alley Dwelling Authority" on the organization designated to act for the President in carrying out the provisions of the act. This title was used until June 1, 1943, when, under the terms of Executive Order No. 9344, the President redesignated the agency as the "National Capital Housing Authority."

The Authority's operations originally were restricted to squares containing inhabited alleys, so that these hidden communities—the characteristic slums of Washington—could be eliminated and their sites reclaimed. Amendments to the Alley Dwelling Act enlarge the alley slum reclamation program and permit the Authority to acquire sites in the District elsewhere than in "alley" squares, for the purpose of providing dwellings for persons or families substantially equal in number to those whose houses the Authority may demolish. The District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1946 (Public Law 592, 79th Cong.) provides that the Authority shall acquire sites only through the Redevelopment Land Agency created by the Act, on and after August 2, 1947.

The Authority is authorized to replat land so acquired, to install public services, and to make such use of the sites as may be necessary; to lease, rent, maintain, equip, manage, exchange, sell, or convey any of its holdings—land or buildings—for such amounts and on such terms and conditions as it may determine.

The Authority may transfer to the Federal Government or the District government for public use any of its holdings on the payment to the Authority of their reasonable value. The Authority also may make loans to limited-dividend corporations or to home owners to enable them to acquire and develop sites on the property.

For the purposes of slum reclamation, the Authority was empowered to borrow an aggregate of $5,000,000 from the Treasury of the United States in five equal annual installments, beginning with the fiscal year 1939, such loans to bear interest at the going Federal rate, but received no funds from this source during the 5-year period. The Authority also may accept gifts of money from private sources, and may borrow funds from individuals or private corporations on the security of property and assets acquired under the act.

The act also permits the Authority to receive financial assistance from the United States Housing Authority—the functions of which have since been transferred to the Public Housing Administration, Housing and Home Finance Agency—to construct low-rent housing projects in accordance with the provisions of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

In addition to the foregoing, the United States Housing Act authorizes the President to make allocations of United States Housing Authority funds to the National Capital Housing Authority for the purposes of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

NATIONAL CAPITAL PARK AND PLANNING COMMISSION

The National Capital Park Commission was created by the act approved June 6, 1924 (Public, No. 202, 68th Cong.), for the purpose of preserving the flow of water in Rock Creek, preventing the pollution of Rock Creek and the Potomac and Anacostia Rivers, preserving forests and natural scenery in and about Washington, and to provide for the comprehensive, systematic, and continuous development of the park, parkway, and playground system of the National Capital. The Director of National Park Service is executive officer of the Commission.

The Commission was authorized and directed to acquire such lands as in its judgment shall be necessary and desirable in the District of Columbia and (by agreement with Maryland and Virginia authorities) adjacent areas in Maryland and Virginia, for suitable development of the National Capital park, parkway, and playground system.

By act of April 30, 1926, the name of the Commission was changed to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The same officials named in the former act were retained as ex officio members and the President was authorized to add "four eminent citizens well qualified and experienced in city planning, one of whom shall be a bona fide resident of the District of Columbia," to be appointed, after the original appointments, for the term of 6 years, to serve without compensation. The new Commission retained all the powers of the Park Commission and was given further important advisory powers. It was charged with the duty of preparing, developing, and maintaining a comprehensive, consistent, and coordinated plan for the National Capital and its environs, which plan shall include recommendations to the proper executive authorities as to traffic and transportation; plants and subdivisions; highways, parks, and parkways, school and library sites; playgrounds; drainage, sewer, and water supply; housing; building and zoning regulations; public and private buildings; bridges and water fronts; commerce and industry; and other proper elements of city and regional planning. Paragraph (c) transfers to this Commission the power previously vested in the highway commission, namely, the approval of revision of the recommendations of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for changes in the existing highway plan. Paragraph (d) vested the new commission with all the powers of the original National Capital Park Commission.

By act of May 29, 1930, establishing the George Washington Memorial Parkway and for other purposes, a regional park system for Washington and its environs was approved, including a basis for cooperation with the States of Maryland and Virginia and authorizing an advance of funds to the District of Columbia for use by the Commission in accelerating park purchases within the District.

NATIONAL MEDIATION BOARD

The National Mediation Board was organized under the provisions of Public Act No. 442, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 21, 1934, entitled "An act to provide for the prompt disposition of disputes between carriers and their employees, and for other purposes," known as "the Railway Labor Act." It is an independent agency in the executive branch of the Government and is composed of three members appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Board annually designates a member to act as chairman and maintains its principal office in the District of Columbia, but it may meet at any other place.

The Railway Labor Act applies to express companies, sleeping-car companies, and carriers by railroad subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, provides that such carriers, their officers, agents, and employees shall exert every reasonable effort to make and maintain agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, and working conditions, and to settle all disputes, whether arising out of the application of such agreements or otherwise. All disputes between a carrier and its employees shall be considered, and, if possible, decided with all expedition, in conference between representatives designated and authorized so to confer, respectively, by the carriers and by the employees thereof interested in the dispute.

The Railway Labor Act also applies to every common carrier by air engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, and every carrier by air transporting mail for or under contract with the United States Government, and every air pilot or other person who performs any work as an employee or subordinate official of such carrier or carriers, subject to its or their continuing authority to supervise and direct the manner of rendition of his service.

The act also provides that representatives for the purpose of the act shall be designated by the respective parties. The Mediation Board investigates and certifies disputes arising among a carrier's employees as to who are the representatives designated and authorized in accordance with the requirements of the act. The Board may take a secret ballot of the employees involved or utilize any other appropriate method of ascertaining the names of the representatives.

The act established the National Railroad Adjustment Board, composed of 36 members, 18 of whom are selected by the carriers and 18 by such labor organizations as have been or may be organized in accordance with section 2 of the act. The Adjustment Board, located at Chicago, Ill., was created to handle disputes growing out of grievances or out of the interpretation or application of agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, or working conditions. The Adjustment Board is divided into four divisions, as outlined in section 3 (h) of the act.

In deadlocked cases the National Mediation Board is authorized to appoint a referee to sit with the members of the Division for the purpose of making an award.

The parties, or either party, to a dispute may invoke the services of the National Mediation Board in any of the following cases: (a) A dispute covering changes in rates of pay, rules, or working conditions not adjusted by the parties in conference; (b) any other dispute not referable to the National Railroad Adjustment Board and not adjusted in conference between the parties or where conferences are refused.

The Mediation Board may proffer its services in case any labor emergency is found by it to exist at any time.

When mediation services are requested or proffered, the Board is authorized to put itself promptly in communication with the parties to the controversy and use its best efforts by mediation to bring the parties to agreement. When unsuccessful in bringing about an adjustment through mediation, the Board shall at once endeavor to induce the parties to submit the controversy to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the act. The failure or refusal of either party to submit a controversy to arbitration shall not be construed as a violation of any legal obligation imposed upon such party by the terms of the Railway Labor Act or otherwise.

When an agreement to arbitrate has been filed with the Mediation Board a board of arbitration shall be chosen in the following manner:

The representatives of the carrier or carriers and of the employees shall each name one arbitrator (or two if the agreement to arbitrate so designates); the arbitrators thus chosen shall select the remaining arbitrator or arbitrators. On failure of the arbitrators named by the parties to agree on the remaining arbitrators during a period stipulated in the act, it shall be the duty of the Mediation Board to name such remaining arbitrator or arbitrators.

The agreement to arbitrate shall be in writing and shall stipulate, among other things, that the respective parties to the award will each faithfully execute the same. Copies of arbitration awards shall be furnished to the respective parties to the controversy, to the clerk's office of the district court of the United States for the district wherein the controversy arose or the arbitration is entered into, to the Mediation Board, and to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

If a dispute between a carrier and its employees is not adjusted under the foregoing provisions of the act and should, in the judgment of the Mediation Board, threaten substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive any section of the country of essential transportation service, the Mediation Board shall notify the President, who may thereupon in his discretion create a board to investigate and report respecting such dispute. The act also provides that after the creation of such board no change in the conditions out of which the dispute arose shall be made by either party to the controversy during a period of 60 days.

The Mediation Board makes an annual report to Congress of its activities and of the activities of each of the four divisions of the National Railroad Adjustment Board.

NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

The National Security Council was established, pursuant to Public Law 253, title I, section 101, Eightieth Congress, July 26, 1947, to advise the President with respect to the integration of domestic, foreign, and military policies relating to the national security so as to enable the military services and the other departments and agencies of the Government to cooperate more effectively in matters involving the national security. In addition to performing such other functions as the President may direct, it is the duty of the Council, subject to the direction of the President—

(1) to assess and appraise the objectives, commitments, and risks of the United States in relation to our actual and potential military power, in the interest of national security, for the purpose of making recommendations to the President in connection therewith; and

(2) to consider policies on matters of common interest to the departments and agencies of the Government concerned with the national security, and to make recommendations to the President in connection therewith.

The Council makes such recommendations and such other reports to the President as it deems appropriate or as the President may require.

Under the direction of the National Security Council is a Central Intelligence Agency headed by a Director of Central Intelligence.

The Council is composed of the President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of the Air Force, the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board and such of the following officers as the President may designate from time to time: The Secretaries of the executive departments, the Chairman of the Munitions Board, and the Chairman of the Research and Development Board.

The Council is assisted by a Staff headed by a civilian executive secretary, appointed by the President.

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

The Central Intelligence Agency was established on September 20, 1947, pursuant to section 102 of the National Security Act of 1947, (Public Law 253, 80th Congress). The Director of Central Intelligence is the head of the Agency, which is under the direction of the National Security Council. The Agency is charged with coordinating the intelligence activities of the Government, in the interest of national security.

The law specifically provides that the Agency shall have no police, subpoena, or law enforcement powers, or internal security functions. However, the Director is responsible for protecting intelligence sources and methods from unauthorized disclosure.

NATIONAL SECURITY RESOURCES BOARD

The National Security Resources Board was created by the National Security Act of 1947, Public Law 253. It is a permanent civilian agency of the United States Government and reports directly to the President. As outlined by the Act, the function of the Board is to advise the President concerning the coordination of military, industrial, and civilian mobilization, including:

Policies concerning industrial and civilian mobilization in order to assure the most effective mobilization and maximum utilization of the Nation's manpower in the event of war.

Programs for the effective use in time of war of the Nation's natural and industrial resources for military and civilian needs, for the maintenance and stabilization of the civilian economy in time of war, and for the adjustment of such economy to war needs and conditions.

Policies for unifying, in time of war, the activities of Federal agencies and departments engaged in or concerned with production, procurement, distribution, or transportation of military or civilian supplies, materials, and products.

The relationship between potential supplies of, and potential requirements for, manpower, resources, and productive facilities in time of war.

Policies for establishing adequate reserves of strategic and critical material, and for the conservation of these reserves.

The strategic relocation of industries, services, government, and economic activities, the continuous operation of which is essential to the Nation's security.

PAN AMERICAN SANITARY BUREAU

The Pan American Sanitary Bureau is the central coordinating sanitary agency as well as the general collection and distribution center of sanitary information of the American Republics. It was created by the Second International Conference of American Republics (1901–2), and organized by the First Pan American Sanitary Conference (1902). Its functions and duties are fixed by the Pan American Sanitary Code (1924) and modified and amplified by the various international sanitary and other conferences of the American Republics. The Bureau is concerned in maintaining and improving the health, the medical care, and social security of the people of the Americas, and in preventing the international spread of communicable diseases. It acts as a consulting office for the national directors of health of the American Republics, prepares the programs and publishes the proceedings of the Pan American Sanitary Conferences and the Conferences of the National Directors of Health, and carries out epidemiological and other scientific studies and investigations. It grants and obtains fellowships both from its own funds and from funds obtained from other sources for Latin American graduates in medicine and allied sciences. It publishes in four languages a monthly Pan American Sanitary Bulletin, weekly and monthly reports on disease prevalence, and other publications on sanitary subjects, including special material for Pan American Health Day, which is celebrated annually on December 2 in all the American Republics. The Bureau is governed by the Conference and by a Directing Council on which all member states are represented. The director is elected for a four-year term. The necessary personnel is assigned or employed by the Director to attend to the various duties imposed on the Bureau by the Pan American Sanitary Code and the Pan American Sanitary Conferences. The Bureau is supported by contributions of all the American Republics. Address all correspondence to the Director, Pan American Sanitary Bureau, 2001 Connecticut Avenue, Washington 8, D. C.

PAN AMERICAN UNION

The Pan American Union is the official international organization of the 21 Republics of the Western Hemisphere. It was established with a view to developing closer cooperation between the nations of America, the fostering of inter-American commerce, the strengthening of intellectual and cultural ties, and the interchange of information on all problems affecting the welfare of the nations of this continent. It is supported through their joint contributions, each nation annually paying that part of the budget of expenses which its population bears to the total population of all the Republics. Its general control is vested in a governing board made up of the 21 representatives of the American Governments. Its executive officers are a Director General and an Assistant Director, elected by the board. They in turn are assisted by a trained staff of editors, statisticians, compilers, trade experts, translators, librarians, and clerks. It is strictly international in its scope, purpose, and control, and each nation has equal authority in its administration. Its activities and facilities include the following: Publication in English, Spanish, Portuguese, with separate editions, of an illustrated monthly bulletin, which is the record of the progress of all the Republics; publication of handbooks, descriptive pamphlets, commercial statements, and special reports relating to each country; correspondence covering all phases of pan-American activities; distribution of every variety of information helpful in the promotion of pan-American commerce, acquaintance, cooperation, and solidarity of interests. It also sets the date and prepares the programs for the International Conferences of the American States, known as the Pan American Conferences, and is custodian of their archives. Its library, known as the Columbus Memorial Library, contains 123,570 volumes, including the official publications, documents, and laws of all the Republics, together with a large collection of maps. The Union also possesses a collection of more than 25,000 photographs. Its reading room has upon its tables the representative magazines and newspapers of Latin America, and is open to the public for consultation and study. It occupies and owns buildings and grounds facing Seventeenth Street, between Constitution Avenue and C Street, overlooking Potomac Park on the south and the White House Park on the east. These buildings and grounds, representing an outlay of $1,100,000, of which Mr. Andrew Carnegie contributed $850,000 and the American Republics $250,000, are dedicated forever to the use of the Pan American Union as an international organization. The Pan American Union was founded in 1890, under the name of the International Bureau of American Republics, in accordance with the action of the First Pan American Conference, held at Washington in 1889–90 and presided over by James G. Blaine, then Secretary of State. It was reorganized in 1907 by action of the Third Pan American Conference, held in Rio de Janeiro in 1906, and upon the initiative of Elihu Root, then Secretary of State. At the fourth conference, held at Buenos Aires in 1910, its name was changed from the International Bureau of American Republics to the Pan American Union. The fifth conference, held at Santiago, Chile, in 1923; the sixth conference, which met at Habana, Cuba, in 1928; the seventh conference, held at Montevideo, Uruguay, in 1933, and the eighth conference, held at Lima, Peru, in 1938, considerably enlarged the functions of the Pan American Union. All communications should be addressed to the Pan American Union, Washington 6, D. C.

PERMANENT JOINT BOARD ON DEFENSE

The Permanent Joint Board on Defense was set up by the United States and Canada for the purpose of undertaking studies relating to sea, land, and air problems, including personnel and matériel, in connection with the defenses of the United States and Canada.

RAILROAD RETIREMENT BOARD, THE

Creation, authority, and purpose.—The Railroad Retirement Board was established by the Railroad Retirement Act of 1935 (49 Stat. 967), approved August 29, 1935, which, as amended by part I of the act of June 24, 1937 (50 Stat. 307) and by Public Law No. 572, Seventy-ninth Congress, second session, approved July 31, 1946, is cited as the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937. Additional responsibility is derived from the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act (52 Stat. 1094), approved June 25, 1938, as amended by the act approved June 20, 1939 (Public, No. 141, 76th Cong.), and by act approved October 10, 1940 (Public, No. 833, 76th Cong., 3d sess.), from Public Resolution No. 102, Seventy-sixth Congress, third session, and by acts approved April 8, 1942 (56 Stat. 204), and July 31, 1946 (Public No. 572, 79th Cong., 2d sess.). Under the authority of these acts, the Board administers two related social insurance systems. One system provides for the payment of annuities to aged or disabled railroad employees; of annuities and lump-sum payments to certain widows, minor children, and parents of deceased railroad employees and of deceased annuitants and pensioners under the Railroad Retirement Act; and of pensions to former railroad pensioners. The other system provides for the payment of unemployment insurance benefits to railroad employees who become unemployed by reason of lack of work, or by reason of sickness, including maternity sickness. The retirement and unemployment insurance acts cover employees (other than those engaged in the physical operation of mining coal) of any carrier by railroad, express company, or sleeping-car company, subject to part I of the Interstate Commerce Act (with the exception of certain electric lines), and companies owned or controlled by or under common control with one or more of them and performing any service (except casual, trucking, or mining coal) in connection with the transportation of passengers or property by railroad; employees of associations, bureaus, and agencies controlled and maintained by carrier or carrier subsidiary employers and engaged in the performance of services in connection with or incidental to transportation by railroad; and employees of railway labor organizations national in scope and organized in accordance with the Railway Labor Act, their State and national legislative committees, and their insurance departments. Employees of local lodges and divisions of railway labor organizations and employee representatives are, under certain circumstances, covered by the retirement acts, but not by the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Organization.—The Board is composed of three members appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate—one upon recommendations of representatives of employees, one upon recommendations of representatives of carriers, and one, the chairman, without designated recommendations.

Directly responsible to the Board are the secretary, the chief executive officer, and the general auditor. The chief executive officer is responsible to the Board for the operation of the bureaus of Retirement Claims, Wage and Service Records, and Employment and Claims, the field offices, the offices of the directors of Personnel, Supply and Service, Finance, and Research, the offices of the General Counsel, and of Administrative Planning and Analysis, and the Appeals Council. The Appeals Council functions as an independent unit in hearing and deciding claims appealed from the Bureau of Retirement Claims.

Claims for annuities and death benefits under the Railroad Retirement Act are adjudicated in the Bureau of Retirement Claims. The adjudication and certification for payment of claims for benefits under the Unemployment Insurance Act are performed in nine regional offices. An auxiliary administrative service is performed, under contract and for an agreed compensation, by covered employers who designate certain of their employees to receive under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act unemployment insurance claims and registrations and forward them through a higher placed employee to the appropriate regional office of the Board. An employment service is operated in close coordination with the operations involving the receipt and processing of unemployment insurance claims.

RAILROAD RETIREMENT ACT OF 1937

Railroad Retirement Act of 1937.—The Railroad Retirement Act of 1937 provides for the payment of employee annuities to individuals who qualify because they are (1) 65 years of age or over; (2) 60 years of age or over and have completed 30 years of service (in this case there is a reduction of 1/180 for each month the employee is under age 65, except that there is no such reduction in the case of a woman; (3) 60 years of age or over, are permanently disabled for work in their regular occupations and are currently connected with the railroad industry; (4) less than 60 years of age, are permanently disabled for work in their regular occupations, have completed 20 years of service, and are currently connected with the railroad industry; (5) 60 years of age and are permanently disabled for work in any regular, gainful employment; (6) less than 60 years of age, are permanently disabled for work in any regular gainful employment, and have completed 10 years of service. The act also provides monthly pensions not in excess of $120 to individuals who were on the pension rolls of covered employers on specified dates, one preceding and one immediately following the enactment of the act. The annuities are computed by a formula set out in the act based on years of service and average compensation not in excess of $300 for any month. Service in covered employment subsequent to December 31, 1936, except service rendered after June 30, 1937, and after the end of the calendar year in which the individual attained age 65, is creditable toward annuities. Service prior to January 1, 1937, is creditable up to an over-all aggregate of 30 years' service for individuals who had an "employee" status on August 29, 1935. An "employee" status existed on that date if an individual was then either in the active service of, or in an employment relation to, an employer under the act, or was an employee representative. Under certain circumstances active service in the land or naval forces of the United States is also creditable. When so creditable, there is attributable as compensation paid for each calendar month of such service, the amount of $160 in addition to other compensation, if any, paid to the individual with respect to such month. The maximum annuity payable, based in whole or in part on service prior to January 1, 1937, is $120; a minimum annuity provision operates to provide an annuity which is equal to whichever of the following three amounts is the least: $3 times the number of years of service, or $50, or the average monthly compensation.

Death benefits.—The following benefits are payable to the survivors of an employee who died completely insured: (1) a monthly annuity to the widow, beginning at age 65 and ending at death or remarriage; (2) a monthly annuity to the widow regardless of age as long as she does not remarry and has in her care unmarried children of the employee who are under 18 and were dependent on the employee at the time of his death; (3) a monthly annuity to each unmarried child who was dependent on the employee at the time of his death, as long as the child remains unmarried and is under age 18; (4) a monthly annuity to each dependent parent beginning at age 65 and ending at death or remarriage (a parent's annuity is payable only if the employee leaves no widow or dependent, unmarried children under age 18; the parent must file proof of his dependency within 2 years after the employee's death, but if the employee died before July 1, 1945, the parent has until July 1, 1947, to file such proof); (5) a lump-sum death benefit payable to the widow, or children, parents, or payers of the funeral expenses (in the order named), if the employee dies after 1946 and leaves no survivor entitled to an immediate monthly annuity. The payment of a lump-sum death benefit to a widow or parent does not affect the subsequent payment of a monthly annuity to the same survivor when that person reaches age 65. If the employee died partially, but not completely, insured, only the benefits described in (2), (3), and (5) may be payable. An employee is completely insured at the time of his death if he has "a current connection with the railroad industry" and (1) has forty quarters of coverage, or (2) has quarters of coverage, not less than six, equal to one-half the elapsed quarters (other than those in which a retirement annuity was payable to him) after 1936 or after the quarter in which he attained age twenty-one, if later, and up to but excluding the quarter in which he died or attained age sixty-five, whichever is first. An employee is also completely insured if (1) a pension was payable to him under the Railroad Retirement Act, or (2) a railroad retirement annuity based on not less than ten years of service began to accrue to him before 1948. An employee is partially insured if at the time of his death he has "a current connection with the railroad industry" and at least six quarters of coverage in the period beginning with the third calendar year next preceding the calendar year in which he died and ending with the calendar quarter next preceding the calendar quarter in which he died. In determining an insured status, quarters of coverage earned in employment under the Social Security Act are combined with quarters of coverage earned in service under the Railroad Retirement Act. A lump-sum death benefit equal to 4 percent of an employee's creditable compensation after 1936 is payable with respect to his death occurring before 1947. However, such payments are deducted from any monthly insurance benefits which may later become payable.

Source of annuities, pensions, and death benefits.—The act created an account in the Treasury of the United States known as the Railroad Retirement Account and authorized the appropriation to the account in each fiscal year of an amount actuarially determined by the Board to be sufficient as a premium to provide for the payment of all annuities, pensions, and death benefits under the Railroad Retirement Acts of 1935 and 1937. That part of the premium which is not immediately required for the payment of annuities, pensions, and death benefits is invested in obligations of or guaranteed by the United States to bear interest at the rate of 3 percent per annum.

The Railroad Retirement Tax Act, Public Law No. 572, approved July 31, 1946 (formerly the Carriers Taxing Act, subchapter B of Chapter 9 of the Internal Revenue Code), provides that the tax on employees and employers subject to the act on compensation paid to employees not in excess of $300 a month, shall be 5¾ percent for 1947 and 1948; 6 percent for 1949, 1950, and 1951; and 6¼ percent after December 31, 1951. The tax act also provides a tax on employee representatives with respect to compensation paid to such representatives after December 31, 1946, not in excess of $300 a month at the following rates: 1947 and 1948, 11½ percent; 1949 through 1951, 12 percent; after December 31, 1951, 12½ percent. The taxes are collected by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and are paid into the Treasury of the United States as internal-revenue collections.

RAILROAD UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE ACT

Effective date.—The original act, as amended June 20, 1939, became effective on July 1, 1939, both with respect to the payment of benefits and the collection of contributions. The amendments to the act approved October 10, 1940, became effective, with minor exceptions, on November 1, 1940. The act was further amended on July 31, 1946, by Public Law No. 572, Seventy-ninth Congress, second session.

Exclusive coverage.—The act makes exclusive provision for the payment of unemployment benefits based upon the employment covered by the act. However, the Board may enter into agreements with State agencies for the payment of benefits to individuals who perform services covered by either or both the railroad and the respective State acts. The 1946 amendments make provisions for the payment of cash benefits, effective July 1, 1947, in the case of unemployment due to sickness, including maternity sickness. Benefits for days of unemployment due to sickness (except maternity sickness) are payable for the same number of days, in a benefit year, and at the same daily benefit rates, as for days of unemployment due to lack of work. Maternity benefits are provided for a 116-day period and in an over-all amount not exceeding $650 in addition to the benefits, if any, payable with respect to days of sickness and unemployment in the same benefit year in which maternity benefits are payable.

Benefit basis.—Benefits within the uniform benefit year beginning July 1 of each year are payable on the basis of earnings (excluding that in excess of $300 in one month) in covered employment in the calendar year, termed the "base year," preceding the beginning of the benefit year. To be eligible for benefits in any benefit year, an individual must have earned at least $150 in covered employment in the corresponding base year. Benefits are payable with respect to days of unemployment or sickness in periods—termed registration periods—of 14 days except that, with respect to days of unemployment, if an employee changes his place of registration, he begins a new registration period with the first day for which he registers at an employment office other than the one at which he last registered. Benefits are not payable with respect to days of unemployment in a benefit year until an individual has had 7 days of unemployment in a registration period; and in the first such registration period in a benefit year, benefits are payable for all days of unemployment in excess of 7, and in all other such registration periods beginning in the same benefit year, benefits are payable for all days of unemployment in excess of 4. Benefits are not payable with respect to days of sickness in a benefit year until an individual has had 7 days of sickness in a registration period; and in the first such registration period in a benefit year, benefits are payable for all days of sickness in excess of 7, and in all other such registration periods beginning in the same benefit year, benefits are payable for all days of sickness in excess of 4. In computing benefits to be paid, days of unemployment will not be combined with days of sickness in the same registration period. A day of unemployment is a day on which an individual is able to work and is available for work and with respect to which (1) he has earned no "remuneration" as defined in the act, and (2) he has registered at an employment office as required by regulations prescribed by the Board. A day of sickness is a day on which, because of any physical, mental, psychological, or nervous injury, illness, sickness, or disease an employee is not able to work or which is included in a maternity period and with respect to which (1) no remuneration is payable or accrues and (2) in accordance with such regulations as the Board may prescribe, a statement of sickness is filed within such reasonable period, not in excess of 10 days, as the Board may prescribe.

Disqualifications.—Days of unemployment of any individual do not include any day in any period with respect to which period the Board finds that he is receiving or will have received payments under the Railroad Retirement Acts, insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act, or unemployment, maternity, or sickness benefits under an unemployment, maternity, or sickness compensation law of any State or of the United States other than the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act or any other social-insurance payments under a law of any State or of the United States except that, if the payments, other than unemployment, maternity, or sickness benefits, under such other acts are less than the payments which would otherwise be payable under this act, this restriction does not apply to the payment of the difference under this act. Individuals are disqualified for varying numbers of days for several reasons, including leaving work voluntarily without good cause, refusing to accept suitable work offered, failing without good cause to comply with directions of the Board to apply for suitable work or to report to an employment office, and knowingly making or aiding in making a fraudulent claim for benefits. Furthermore, with respect to any individual, days of unemployment do not include any Sunday or holiday or two or more such successive days unless such day is, or days are immediately preceded and, if the registration period does not end with such day or days, also followed by a day of unemployment. Individuals may not receive both unemployment and sickness benefits under the act with respect to the same day.

Benefit scale.—The daily benefit rate is scaled from $1.75 to $5 according to the total amount of earnings in the base year. As benefits are payable for a maximum of 10 days in a registration period of 14 days, the maximum benefits for any such period vary from 10 times $1.75 to 10 times $5, or from $17.50 to $50, according to base-year earnings. The maximum amount of benefits payable in a benefit year is 130 times the daily benefit rate, or from $227.50 to $650.

Columns I and II of the following table show, respectively, the several compensation ranges in the base year and the resulting daily benefit rates, as set forth in the act. Columns III and IV show, respectively, the maximum benefits payable with respect to a registration period of 14 days and a benefit year.

Total compensation in base year	Daily benefit rate	Maximum benefits payable in a—
		Registration period of 14 days	Benefit year
I	II	III	IV
$150 to $199.99	$1.75	$17.50	$227.50
$200 to $474.99	2.00	20.00	260.00

Source of benefits and administrative expenses.—To support the unemployment-sickness-insurance system, the act levies on covered employers a contribution, which is collected by the Railroad Retirement Board, equal to 3 percent of the compensation, excluding any excess over $300 a month, payable to an employee. Of the proceeds, 90 percent is credited, for the payment of benefits, to a special account designated as the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account, maintained in the Unemployment Trust Fund established by section 904 of the Social Security Act. The remaining 10 percent is deposited, to meet the expenses of administering the act, in a special fund designated as the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Administration Fund.

Under the act, transfers have been and are being made to the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account from the State accounts maintained in the Unemployment Trust Fund of (a) a share of the balance in the State-pooled funds as of June 30, 1939, equal to the ratio of contributions from employers and employees covered by the act to total contributions collected and credited to such fund as of that date; (b) balances in reserve accounts of covered employers as of June 30, 1939; and (c) all contributions from covered employers and employees collected in the second half of 1939. Similarly, the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Administration Fund is credited with the amounts collected or collectible by the Treasurer under title IX of the Social Security Act from covered employers with respect to the calendar years 1936, 1937, 1938, and the first half of 1939, less certain amounts. Also, there is transferred to the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account so much of the balance of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Administration Fund as of June 30 of each year as is in excess of $6,000,000.

RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION

CREATION AND PURPOSE

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was created by Act of Congress approved January 22, 1932. Its functions have been changed from time to time by amendatory and supplemental legislation. Pursuant to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended by title I of Joint Resolution approved June 30, 1947 (Public Law 132—80th Cong.), the Corporation has succession to June 30, 1948, and is authorized—

(1) To purchase the obligations of, and make loans to any business enterprise organized or operating under the laws of any State or of the United States;

(2) To make loans to any financial institution organized under the laws of any State or of the United States;

(3) To purchase the securities and obligations of, or to make loans to, (a) municipalities and political subdivisions of States, (b) public agencies and instrumentalities of one or more States, municipalities, and political subdivisions of States, and (c) public corporations, boards, and commissions, to aid in financing projects authorized under Federal, State, or municipal law;

(4) To make such loans, in an aggregate amount not to exceed $25,000,000 outstanding at any one time, as it may determine to be necessary or appropriate because of floods or other catastrophes;

(5) To exercise the functions, powers, duties, and authority of the Defense Plant Corporation, Metals Reserve Company, Rubber Reserve Company, Defense Supplies Corporation and Disaster Loan Corporation, which were transferred to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by Public Law 109, Seventy-ninth Congress, but only with respect to programs, projects, or commitments outstanding at June 30, 1947.

Pursuant to Title II of Joint Resolution approved June 30, 1947 (Public Law 132—80th Cong.), the Corporation is directed to liquidate the affairs of Smaller War Plants Corporation, and is authorized to purchase any surplus property for resale to small business, subject to regulations of the War Assets Administrator or his successor. Such sales may be made on a credit or time basis.

The Act, as amended June 30, 1947, also provides that the total amount of investments, loans, purchases, and commitments covering items (1), (2), (3), and (4) above, shall not exceed $2,000,000,000 outstanding at any one time.

In addition to the foregoing, the Corporation is authorized—

(a) To continue until June 30, 1949, or until such earlier time as the Congress shall otherwise provide, (1) to buy, sell, and transport, tin and tin ore and concentrates; (2) to improve, develop, maintain, and operate by lease or otherwise the Government-owned tin smelter at Texas City, Tex.; (3) to finance research in tin smelting and processing; and (4) to do all other things necessary to the accomplishment of the foregoing; and

(b) To continue the manufacture and sale of synthetic rubber until March 31, 1948.

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

The Federal National Mortgage Association (formerly the National Mortgage Association of Washington) was organized and established February 10, 1938, pursuant to the provisions of title III of the National Housing Act, as amended. The capital stock of the Association is owned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The Association is staffed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and functions through a principal office in Washington, D. C., and agents stationed in the various loan agencies of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The Association purchases, from mortgagees approved by the Federal Housing Administration, mortgages insured under sections 203, 207, 603, and 608 of the National Housing Act, as amended. The Association also makes loans secured by mortgages insured under section 207 of the National Housing Act, as amended.

WAR DAMAGE CORPORATION

(In Liquidation)

Organization.—War Damage Corporation was created by Reconstruction Finance Corporation pursuant to Section 4 (b) of the Act approved June 10, 1941 (55 Stat. 249), and Section 2 of the Act approved March 27, 1942 (56 Stat. 175). It is managed by a Board of Directors appointed by Reconstruction Finance Corporation and by officers and agents appointed by War Damage Corporation. Its principal office is located at Washington, D. C.

Functions.—The function of War Damage Corporation was to provide, through insurance, reinsurance, and otherwise, reasonable protection against loss of or damage to real and personal property in the United States and its territories and possessions, resulting from enemy attack.

The Corporation discontinued the issuance of policies of insurance on March 15, 1946. The corporate powers of War Damage Corporation terminated on January 22, 1947, except for purposes of liquidation, including the adjustment and payment not later than June 30, 1947, of claims duly presented under Section 5g (b) of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act of January 22, 1932, as added by Section 2 of the Act of March 27, 1942 (56 Stat. 176).

Pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 268, Eightieth Congress, the Corporation on August 29, 1947, paid into the Treasury of the United States the sum of $209,827,810.45 to be applied to the reduction of the national debt.

U. S. COMMERCIAL COMPANY

Organization.—The U. S. Commercial Company was created March 27, 1942, by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, pursuant to section 5d of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act as amended. During the period July 15, 1943, to October 20, 1945, control of the U. S. Commercial Company was vested in Foreign Economic Administration by virtue of Executive Order 9361 of July 15, 1943. Pursuant to Executive Order 9630 of September 27, 1945, control of the U. S. Commercial Company was returned to Reconstruction Finance Corporation on October 21, 1945. The capital stock of U. S. Commercial Company is owned by, and it is further financed through, loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It is managed by a Board of Directors appointed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and by officers and agents appointed by U. S. Commercial Company. The principal office of the Company is located in Washington, D. C.

Functions.—The life of the Company expires on June 30, 1948. The activities of the Company included facilitating the resumption of American trade with areas with which direct commercial dealings had been cut off or restricted by reason of the war and the operation of certain special projects for the Army, the Navy, the Department of State, and other sponsoring agencies in liberated and occupied areas.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

Creation and Authority.—The Securities and Exchange Commission was created under its organic act, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (Public, No. 291, 73d Cong.), approved June 6, 1934, for the purpose of administering that act and the Securities Act of 1933 (Public, No. 22, 73d Cong.), approved May 27, 1933, theretofore administered by the Federal Trade Commission. The scope of duties and powers of the Commission was extended through the passage of subsequent legislative enactments, namely, the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (Public, No. 333, 74th Cong.), approved August 26, 1935; Chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended (Public, No. 696, 75th Cong.), approved June 22, 1938; the Trust Indenture Act of 1939 (Public, No. 253, 76th Cong.), approved August 3, 1939; the Investment Company Act of 1940 (title I, Public, No. 768, 76th Cong.), approved August 22, 1940; and the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (title II, Public, No. 768, 76th Cong.), approved August 22, 1940. The objectives of these acts, and the Commission's functions thereunder, are discussed below.

Securities Act of 1933.—This "truth in securities" law, designed by the Congress for the protection of the interests of investors and the public, requires registration with the Commission of securities (other than exempt securities or offerings) proposed to be publicly offered and sold in interstate commerce or through the mails. The objective of registration is to make available to investors pertinent financial and other information necessary for their exercise of an informed judgment whether to purchase the securities being offered.

Registration is effected through the filing of a registration statement with the Commission; for this purpose, the Commission has promulgated registration forms applicable to particular types of issuing companies and prescribing the nature and extent of information to be disclosed by each such company registering securities. The prospectus or selling circular, which must be made available to purchasers or persons receiving offers through the mails, must contain an accurate summarization of the ultimate facts contained in the registration statement.

The registration statement and prospectus are subjected to detailed examination by the Commission as to the adequacy and accuracy of the information disclosed therein. If disclosures in the registration statement are found to be deficient in material respects, the Commission may give the registrant an opportunity to file correcting amendments or, if the circumstances warrant, may institute proceedings to deny or suspend effectiveness of the registration statement. The issuance of such a "stop order" operates to bar public offering of the securities until the registration statement has been corrected.

It is to be noted that nothing in the act empowers the Commission to disapprove or otherwise pass upon the merits of securities offerings. Accordingly, registration is not to be taken as a guaranty against loss. Instead, investors must judge for themselves, in light of the information disclosed, whether the merits of the securities are such as to justify their purchase. However, severe penalties attach to the filing of false information. Also, if a loss is suffered through the purchase of registered securities, the purchaser has a right of recovery against the company and the management and other responsible officials if he can prove that representations as to material facts contained in the registration statement and prospectus are false or misleading.

Among the exemptions from the registration requirements of the act is one permitting the issuance and sale, without registration, of securities in an amount not exceeding $300,000; in connection therewith, a simple letter of notification, together with sales literature, must be filed with the Commission.

In addition to the registration requirements applicable to public securities offerings, other provisions of the act prohibit misrepresentation, deceit, and other fraudulent acts and practices in connection with securities transactions generally; and the Commission is given important powers of investigation and enforcement with respect thereto. In the exercise of these functions, facts developed in investigations which evidence fraudulent or other unlawful acts or practices may be used (1) in connection with court applications seeking an injunction against the continuance of such conduct; or (2) in criminal prosecutions (conducted through the Department of Justice) for willful violations.

Securities Exchange Act of 1934.—By this law Congress extended to securities listed and registered upon national securities exchanges the principle of disclosure of information necessary for the protection of investors in their securities transactions. The prescribed information is obtained through the filing of reports with the exchanges and the Commission by companies whose securities are so listed and registered. These are subject to examination by the Commission as to the accuracy and adequacy of the disclosures. Additional protective provisions of the act require disclosure by corporate "insiders" of their holdings and transactions in equity securities of companies with listed equity securities; make their short-term trading profits in equity securities recoverable by the issuing company; and prohibit short selling by them. The solicitation of proxies in respect of listed securities is subject to regulation by the Commission in the interest of disclosing pertinent information bearing upon the subject matter of the solicitation. And the act directs the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to prescribe rules to prevent the excessive use of credit in securities trading; these margin rules are administered by the Commission.

In addition, the act sets up a comprehensive system for the regulation of trading in securities, both on the organized exchanges and in the over-the-counter markets, in the interest of protecting investors and the public. Exchanges must register with the Commission; their rules and trade practices must be conformed to provisions of the act designed to eliminate abuses and to assure the maintenance of just and equitable principles of trade; and the activities of the exchanges and their memberships are subject to Commission surveillance to the end that there shall be strict adherence to the law.

The provisions for disclosure of information previously discussed do not apply to securities traded in the over-the-counter markets. However, as part of the regulatory process prescribed by the act, brokers and dealers engaged in an over-the-counter securities business must register with the Commission; and their business activities must conform to the prescribed standards of conduct. The National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., an association of over-the-counter brokers and dealers, was organized and registered with the Commission under the so-called Maloney Act, passed in 1938 as section 15A of the Securities Exchange Act for the purpose of establishing and maintaining improved standards of conduct within the industry under the general aegis of the Commission.

This system of regulation is buttressed by prohibitions against market manipulations, misrepresentation or deceit, and other fraudulent acts and practices in securities transactions, whether in the exchange or the over-the-counter markets. In addition to the remedies of court injunction or criminal prosecution previously mentioned, the Commission is empowered by this act to impose disciplinary measures against brokers or dealers who violate the acts. These include suspension or expulsion of a broker's or dealer's registration with the Commission or, in the case of members of exchanges or of the dealers' association, suspension or expulsion from such membership. Such action operates to deny, temporarily or permanently, the privilege of conducting their securities business in interstate commerce.

Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.—This act, which provides for the regulation of electric and gas public utility holding companies and their subsidiaries, was designed by the Congress for the protection of the interests of investors, consumers, and the public. It has a twofold objective: (1) it provides for the regulation of the financial and other related activities of holding company systems in the interest of eliminating the abuses therein which gave rise to passage of the law; and (2), it directs the adjustment of the incongruous results of past abuses by integration of physical properties, simplification of holding-company systems and capital structures, and equitable redistribution of voting power among security holders.

In passing upon the issuance and sale of securities (if not exempt by virtue of State commission jurisdiction), the Commission is directed to disapprove such issuance and sale if the security is not reasonably adapted to the security structure and earning power of the issuing company, or is not necessary or appropriate to the economical and efficient operation of the issuer's business; if fees, commissions, or other remuneration, are not reasonable; or if other terms and conditions of the issuance and sale are detrimental to the interests of investors, consumers or the public. The purchase of utility securities and assets also requires approval by the Commission unless a State commission has approved. Such an acquisition cannot be approved if it tends toward interlocking relations or concentration of control not in the public interest; if the consideration, fees, commissions, etc., are not reasonable; or if it unduly complicates the capital structure of the holding-company system or is detrimental to the integration requirements of the act. Other provisions of the act subject to Commission regulation such matters as service, sales and construction contracts; intercompany loans; dividends; sale of utility assets; proxies.

The second objective, constituting one of the most important Congressional mandates contained in the act, is the requirement for simplification and integration. The Commission is directed to take such action as may be necessary to limit the operations of holding-company systems to a single integrated public utility system (except where special circumstances may permit the retention of one or more additional systems or incidental businesses), the utility properties of which are physically interconnected or capable of such and which may be economically operated as a coordinated system confined in its operations to a single area or region, and not so large as to impair the advantages of localized management, efficient operation, and the effectiveness of regulation. Companies, properties, and interests found by the Commission not to be retainable as part of such a system must be divested from the system. Provision is made for voluntary company action to comply with the integration requirements of the act, as well as with the simplification requirements.

The requirements of simplification direct action to ensure that the corporate structure or continued existence of any company in the holding-company system does not unduly or unnecessarily complicate the system structure, or unfairly or inequitably distribute voting power among security holders of such system. To this end, useless and uneconomical holding companies must be liquidated and dissolved; simple capital structures must be substituted for multiple-security structures; and voting power must be redistributed upon a fair and equitable basis in light of existing equities.

Bankruptcy Act, Chapter X.—Under chapter X, the Commission has the duty to serve as adviser to United States District Courts in connection with proceedings for the reorganization of debtor corporations in which there is a substantial public interest. Participating as a party to these proceedings at the request or with the approval of the courts, the Commission renders independent expert advice and assistance not previously available to courts because they do not maintain their own staffs of expert consultants.

Of primary importance is the Commission's contribution to the formulation of reorganization plans for debtor corporations which will meet the test of feasibility by placing the surviving corporation in a sound financial position to continue as a going concern, and the test of fair and equitable treatment of creditors and security holders. The latter calls for a determination of the value of the assets of the debtor, and of the rank and priority of claims thereagainst. The claimants must be accorded full recognition in order of the legal and contractual priority of their claims, junior interests participating only if the value of the assets exceeds the amount of prior claims. In addition to assisting the trustees and other interested parties in the formulation of reorganization plans, the Commission's views on the feasibility and fairness of reorganization plans are conveyed to the courts, either orally in the case of smaller cases or by means of advisory reports in the case of debtors with scheduled liabilities exceeding $3,000,000.

The Commission also participates in such matters as the qualifications and independence of trustees and their counsel, problems involving the administration of the estate such as the sale of properties and interim distributions to security holders, reasonableness of fee allowances to parties and their counsel, and similar matters.

Trust Indenture Act of 1939.—This act provides that issues of bonds, notes, debentures, and similar debt securities exceeding $1,000,000 in principal amount, may not be offered for sale to the public unless they are issued under a trust indenture which conforms to specific statutory standards prescribed in the act to safeguard the rights and interests of the purchasers. In addition to requirements for conformance of indentures to these standards, the act contains provisions governing the eligibility and qualification of the indenture trustee, who as the representative of the security holders has the duty to see that the covenants of the indenture are adhered to by the issuing company. Among these is a requirement that the trustee shall be "independent" and free of any conflicting interests which might interfere with the faithful exercise of his duties. Applications for qualification of indentures are examined by the Commission for conformance to the act's requirements.

Investment Company Act of 1940.—Under this act, companies engaged primarily in the business of investing, reinvesting, and trading in securities must register with the Commission; and certain of their activities are subject to regulation by the Commission in accordance with standards prescribed as necessary for the protection of investors and the public. Transactions between affiliates, for example, are prohibited or made subject to prior Commission approval. Gross misconduct or gross abuse of trust by management officials may subject the individuals to removal by court order upon application by the Commission. Advisory reports upon plans or reorganization, merger, or consolidation may be prepared by the Commission for the information and guidance of security holders affected.

Investment Advisers Act of 1940.—Persons or firms engaged in the business of advising others with respect to their security transactions must register with the Commission under this act. Their acts and practices must be conformed to prescribed standards, including a requirement for disclosing the adviser's interest in transactions executed for his clients; and various acts and practices which would constitute fraud or deceit are made unlawful.

Corporation Reports.—The Commission's files and records, made up of reports from more than 2,000 corporations in 180 industry groups having in excess of 11,000 subsidiaries, contain financial and other information concerning such companies of great value to government, business, and industry as well as investors and the public. These companies by asset size represent over 50 percent of the corresponding national total, and their reports are filed with the Commission under severe sanctions against false reporting.

In addition, the Commission regularly publishes quarterly balance sheet and income account data for all United States manufacturing corporations, working capital data for all corporations, information on plant and equipment expenditures of business (both actual and planned), and information on individuals' savings. Monthly data on new securities offered for cash and securities traded on exchanges also are compiled and published.

Under a project entitled "Survey of American Listed Corporations," these data are tabulated by the Commission with the objective of making them more readily accessible. Among the reports thus published, both for individual corporations and by industry groups, are studies of the Return on Invested Capital, Balance Sheet Data, important items making up the profit and loss statements, quarterly sales data, and investment company data.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, THE

The Smithsonian Institution was created by act of Congress in 1846, under the terms of the will of James Smithson, an Englishman, who in 1826 bequeathed his fortune to the United States to found, at Washington, under the name of the "Smithsonian Institution," an establishment for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The Institution is legally an establishment, having as its members the President of the United States, the Vice President, the Chief Justice, and the President's Cabinet. It is governed by a Board of Regents, consisting of the Vice President, the Chief Justice, three Members of the United States Senate, three Members of the House of Representatives, and six citizens of the United States appointed by joint resolution of Congress. The Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution is its executive officer and the director of its activities. In addition to its own activities and researches, the Institution administers several government bureaus supported by Federal funds.

To increase knowledge the Institution conducts fundamental scientific investigations in the fields of biology, geology, anthropology, and astrophysics. Many thousands of new life forms have been discovered and described through study of the vast collections of mammals, birds, fishes, insects, and other groups in the National Museum. The actual specimens from which new species are described become the type specimens, and because of the very large number of these type specimens in the Museum, it is a national center for the identification and study of animal and plant material, both living and fossil. Researches on the American Indians and other aboriginal races have led to a fuller knowledge of the peoples who preceded our present civilization. Such investigations, by revealing primitive man's reactions to problems of environment, human relationships, and religious beliefs, provide a basis for understanding our own problems in the realms of sociology and psychology. The Smithsonian's study of the sun has yielded a reliable record of the variations in the radiation coming to earth from the sun since 1923. As all life on earth depends on the sun's radiation, these data are of use in a number of studies affecting man's welfare and they will be of ever increasing value in future years for new researches as well as in determining whether the sun is maintaining its radiation output.

Another phase of the increase of knowledge is scientific exploration. In most of the subjects covered by Smithsonian researches, field work is essential for the procurement of needed specimens and information. Smithsonian expeditions have penetrated the far corners of the earth in the search for new knowledge, and in normal times some 20 to 25 Smithsonian field parties go out from Washington in search of scientific knowledge each year.

For the diffusion of knowledge the Institution depends on a number of methods, among them museum, art gallery, and zoological park exhibits which are viewed by more than 6,000,000 visitors each year, the International Exchange Service, for the interchange of governmental, scientific, and literary publications, a very extensive correspondence on scientific matters, and a scientific library of nearly a million volumes, but the primary means employed consists of a number of series of publications, which present the results of original scientific researches. These include the Smithsonian Annual Reports, the Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections, the National Museum Bulletins and Proceedings, the Contributions from the National Herbarium, the Bulletins of the Bureau of American Ethnology, and several others issued less frequently. They are distributed free to some 1,500 libraries and scientific and educational organizations throughout the world.

The work of the parent Institution is supported by the income of the original Smithson bequest plus numerous other gifts and later bequests. The government bureaus listed below which have developed from the early activities of the Institution are supported by congressional appropriations.

The Library of the Smithsonian Institution (of which the Smithsonian Deposit in the Library of Congress and the libraries of the United States National Museum and the Bureau of American Ethnology are the chief units) consists mainly of scientific publications, including especially the reports, proceedings, and transactions of the learned societies and institutions of the world, and numbers over 900,000 volumes.

Branches Under the Direction of the Smithsonian Institution

UNITED STATES NATIONAL MUSEUM

The United States National Museum is the depository of the national collections. It is especially rich in the natural science of America, including zoology, entomology, botany, geology, paleontology, archaeology, ethnology, and physical anthropology, and has extensive series relating to the arts and industries, the fine arts, and history. The great study series in the various fields of natural science form the basis for fundamental researches in pure science upon which the structure of applied science is built. The collections in the field of history comprise art, antiquarian, military, naval, numismatic, and philatelic materials, and include many historic objects relating to the period of World War I. The arts and industries collections consist of objects relating to inventions and the progress and developments in engineering, technology, crafts, industries, graphic arts, and medicine.

NATIONAL AIR MUSEUM

The National Air Museum is the depository of those portions of the national collections which relate to aviation. Its purpose is to memorialize the national development of aviation through the collection, preservation, and display of aeronautical equipment of historical interest and significance; to serve as a repository for scientific equipment and data pertaining to the development of aviation; and to provide educational material for the historical study of aviation.

NATIONAL COLLECTION OF FINE ARTS

The National Collection of Fine Arts is the depository for those portions of the national collections relating to the fine arts, including principally paintings and sculpture such as the George P. Marsh collection of etchings, engravings, and books on art; the Harriet Lane Johnston collection, including a number of portraits by British masters; the Ralph Cross Johnson collection of paintings by Italian, French, English, Flemish, and Dutch masters; the William T. Evans collection of paintings by contemporary American artists; and the gifts of Mr. John Gellatly, of New York, of his notable art collection, containing more than 150 pictures by eminent American and foreign artists, large collections of glass, jewels, oriental specimens, antique furnitue, and other valuable and interesting material. By the terms of the gift, the collection was brought to Washington on April 30, 1933.

The Freer Gallery of Art is devoted principally to oriental fine arts. The building, the collections which it houses, and an endowment fund, were the gift of the late Charles L. Freer of Detroit. Since their installation in 1920, the collections of Chinese bronzes, jades, paintings and pottery, and East Indian and Islamic arts have been importantly augmented, and field work and other research work pursued. A large collection of the works of James McNeill Whistler and a limited group by other American painters is also present in the Freer Gallery.

BUREAU OF AMERICAN ETHNOLOGY

The Bureau of American Ethnology is engaged in the collection and publication of information relating to the American Indians and the natives of Hawaii.

INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE SERVICE

The International Exchange Service is the agency of the United States Government for the exchange of scientific, literary, and governmental publications with foreign governments, institutions, and investigators. Under normal conditions it receives and dispatches about 700,000 pounds of printed matter annually.

NATIONAL ZOOLOGICAL PARK

The National Zoological Park has an area of 175 acres, and is located in the Rock Creek Valley, 2 miles north of the center of Washington. Its collection comprises about 2,600 animals.

ASTROPHYSICAL OBSERVATORY

The Division of Astrophysical Research investigates solar radiation and other solar phenomena. The work of this observatory is carried on partly in Washington, D. C., and partly at stations on Table Mountain, in California; Mount Montezuma, near Calama, Chile; and in Miami, Fla.

The Division of Radiation and Organisms was established during the year 1929 for the purpose of making scientific investigations relating to the effect of radiation on the growth and life of plants and animals.

CANAL ZONE BIOLOGICAL AREA

The act of July 2, 1940, authorized and directed that there be set aside within the Canal Zone an area in Gatun Lake known as Barro Colorado Island whereon the natural features are, except in the advent of some necessity for use under a declared national emergency, to be left in their original state for observation and investigation by scientists, particularly those from North, Central, and South America. Under Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1946, this Island, designated in the original enabling act as the Canal Zone Biological Area, was transferred to the Smithsonian Institution. The Canal Zone Biological Area is the only tropical scientific research station of its kind available in the new world to scientists and students of the Americas. Its location in the Canal Zone is strategic, since it occupies a position on the land bridge between North and South America.

NATIONAL GALLERY OF ART

[Under the direction of the Board of Trustees of the National Gallery of Art]

The National Gallery of Art, a bureau of the Smithsonian Institution, was established by joint resolution of Congress approved March 24, 1937, as a result of the late Andrew W. Mellon's gift to the Nation of his art collection and a monumental gallery building. The above act accepting Mr. Mellon's gift provided that the art collections then in possession of the Smithsonian Institution and theretofore designated the National Gallery of Art should thereafter be known as the National Collection of Fine Arts.

The National Gallery of Art is administered for the Smithsonian Institution, in which title is vested, by a board of nine trustees.

The National Gallery building, costing about $15,000,000, was the gift of the late Andrew W. Mellon, and was erected under the direction and guidance of Paul Mellon, Donald D. Shepard, and David K. E. Bruce, surviving trustees of The A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust. It was designed by John Russell Pope (1874–1937), architect, Otto R. Eggers, Daniel Paul Higgins, associates, and was dedicated by the President of the United States on March 17, 1941. It is visited by about 2,000,000 persons annually.

The building contains, in addition to the Mellon collection, the notable collection of Italian and French paintings and sculpture given to the Nation by Samuel H. Kress; also, the famous collection of paintings, sculpture, and decorative arts given by Joseph E. Widener in memory of his father, the late Peter A. B. Widener, and a number of paintings given by Chester Dale, who has also placed on indefinite loan his outstanding collection of paintings by French Nineteenth-Century artists. Lessing J. Rosenwald has given to the Gallery his important collection of more than 10,000 prints and drawings, and additional prints and drawings have been given by Ellen T. Bullard, Elisabeth Achelis, Myron A. Hofer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Watson Webb, Mrs. George Nichols, David Keppel, Mrs. Walter B. James, Mrs. Addie Burr Clark, George Matthew Adams, and others. Other gifts of paintings have been received from Duncan Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Felix Warburg, Mrs. John W. Simpson, Mrs. Gordon Dexter, Mrs. Ralph Harman Booth, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Davison, Frederic A. Delano, Mrs. Robert Noyes, Ethelyn McKinney, Harris Whittemore, the children of the late Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, Dr. Horace Binney, the W. L. and May T. Mellon Foundation, Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. Huttleston Rogers, Mrs. Robert W. Schuette, Mrs. Earle E. Bessey, Mrs. Barbara Hutton, Mr. and Mrs. John Ridgely of Hampton, Mrs. Georg Vetlesen, Stephen C. Clark, Samuel Fuller, and Clarence Van Dyke Tiers. Gifts of sculpture have been received from Mrs. Ralph Harman Booth, Mrs. Jesse Isidor Straus, Stanley Mortimer, and Mrs. John W. Simpson. The Gallery has also received, as a gift from the Works Progress Administration, the Index of American Design, consisting of more than 20,000 drawings and water colors made under the auspices of the United States Government as a pictorial record of American source material in design and craftsmanship from early colonial days to the close of the Nineteenth Century. Another gift to the Gallery is the Richter Archive of Illustrations on Art containing more than 60,000 reproductions of paintings of all schools. This gift was made by Solomon R. Guggenheim of New York. In addition, important loans of paintings from the Harris Whittemore Collection are on exhibition. On the ground floor frequent exhibitions are held in the central gallery.

TARIFF COMMISSION, UNITED STATES

The United States Tariff Commission is an independent establishment of the Government created by the provisions of title VII of the Revenue Act of September 8, 1916.

As originally created, the Tariff Commission was designed to fill the long-felt need for an independent organization to supply factual information to the President, the Congress, and the Committees of Congress which handle tariff legislation. From time to time particular tariff and related problems are assigned by Congress to the Commission for investigation, and special functions and duties of a continuing nature were added to the Commission's other functions and duties by the Tariff Acts of 1922 and 1930, and other acts. Because of the experience and store of technical and economic information acquired by the Tariff Commission through the exercise of its various functions and duties, it was called upon to assist in the late war effort by supplying essential information and analysis. The principal activities of the Tariff Commission at present are preparation of special reports on postwar foreign-trade problems requested by the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, and the Finance Committee of the Senate; assistance to Congressional committees dealing with commodity problems; and work on special interdepartmental committees concerned with problems of international economic collaboration.

MEMBERSHIP AND ORGANIZATION

The membership consists of six commissioners appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. These appointments are for 6 years, one term expiring each year. No more than three members may be of one political party. The principal office is in Washington, and an office is also maintained in the customhouse at the port of New York. The Commission has a seal which is judicially noticed. The staff consists of the secretary, who is appointed by the Commission, a planning and reviewing committee, economists, commodity and technical experts, accountants, and a clerical force.

GENERAL FUNCTIONS

General powers and duties (sec. 332).—The powers conferred on the Commission under section 332 of the Tariff Act of 1930, and the duties imposed thereunder are as follows:

(1) To investigate the administration and the fiscal and industrial effects of the customs laws of the United States and in general the operation of such laws, including their relation to the Federal revenues and the industries and labor of the country; the relations between rates of duty on raw materials and on finished or partly finished products; the effects of specific and ad valorem duties and of compound specific and ad valorem duties; and questions relating to the arrangement of the schedules of the tariff act and the classifications of the articles under the schedules.

(2) To investigate the tariff relations between the United States and foreign countries; commercial treaties; preferential provisions; economic alliances; the effect of export bounties and preferential transportation rates; and organizations and arrangements in Europe similar to the Paris Economy Pact.

(3) To investigate the volume of importations compared with domestic production and consumption and conditions, causes, and effects of competition between foreign industries and those of the United States, including dumping and costs of production.

(4) To ascertain, whenever practicable, conversion costs and costs of production in the United States and in the principal producing centers of the United States; to ascertain similar costs in foreign countries for comparison with costs obtained in the United States whenever in the opinion of the Commission foreign costs are necessary and can be reasonably obtained; and to ascertain other data affecting competition between domestic and imported articles in the principal markets of the United States.

(5) To select and describe articles representative of the classes and the kinds of articles imported into the United States and similar or comparable articles of domestic production; to obtain samples of such articles when deemed advisable; to ascertain the import costs of such foreign articles and to ascertain the selling prices of such domestic articles in the principal growing, producing, or manufacturing centers of the United States.

SPECIAL FUNCTIONS

Sections 336, 337, and 338 of the tariff act approved June 17, 1930, contain special provisions for the modification of existing duties and for the imposition of special duties or orders of exclusion from entry by Presidential proclamation under specified conditions, within stated limitations; and, in accordance with the legislative principles defined in those sections, all such Executive actions require previous investigation by the Tariff Commission.

Tariff adjustments (sec. 336).—Section 336 provides that the Commission, under such reasonable procedure, rules, and regulations as it may deem necessary, shall investigate the differences in the cost of production of any domestic article and of any like or similar foreign article in the principal competing country and shall report to the President the results of such investigation and its findings with respect to such differences. If the Commission finds that the duties fixed by the statute do not equalize the differences in costs as ascertained by its investigation, it shall specify in its report such increase or decrease, not exceeding 50 percent, of the statutory rate (including any necessary change in classification) as the investigation may show to be necessary to equalize such differences. If the Commission shall find, however, that a 50-percent increase in an ad valorem rate of duty will not equalize the ascertained differences, it shall so state in its report to the President and shall specify therein such ad valorem rate based on the American selling price, as elsewhere defined in the act, of the domestic article as the investigation may show to be necessary to equalize such difference; no such rate, however, may exceed the statutory rate nor may any such rate be decreased by more than 50 percent. Any specified increase or decrease of a rate or change in valuation so reported by the Commission, if approved and proclaimed by the President, shall take effect commencing 30 days after such proclamation. The section prescribes the elements to be taken into consideration in ascertaining such differences in costs of production; prohibits the transfer of an article from the dutiable list to the free list or from the free list to the dutiable list; and provides for the modification or termination of any increase or decrease so proclaimed.

The Commission is required to hold hearings in the course of its investigations under section 336, to give reasonable public notice thereof and to afford reasonable opportunity for parties interested to be present, to produce evidence, and to be heard at such hearings.

Under the Trade Agreements Act of 1934, commodities which become the subject of concessions changing the rates of duty are exempted from the operation of tariff adjustments under section 336.

Investigation of unfair practices in import trade (sec. 337).—The Commission is authorized under section 337 to investigate unfair methods of competition and unfair acts in the importation of articles into the United States, or in their sale after importation. When the findings and recommendations of the Commission, based on its investigation, justify the President in doing so, he is authorized to exclude such articles from entry into the United States, the exclusion to remain in effect until otherwise ordered by the President. The testimony in every investigation under the provisions of this section is required to be reduced to writing, and with the findings of the Commission constitutes the official record in each case. A copy of the findings is required to be sent to the importer or consignee of the articles affected thereby and shall be conclusive, subject only to rehearing by consent of the Commission or to appeal on questions of law only to the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, whose judgment shall be final.

Ascertainment of discrimination against United States trade (sec. 338).—Under the provisions of section 338 the Commission is required to ascertain and at all times to be informed whether any foreign country discriminates against the commerce of the United States, in any one of several ways specified in the section. The Commission is required to report to the President with its recommendations any such discriminations which it may find to exist, and the President is authorized to specify and declare upon articles wholly or in part the growth or product of any such discriminating country such new and additional duties as will offset such burdens, or he may exclude from importation articles from such country. Such new or additional duties, however, may not exceed 50 percent ad valorem.

Work under the Trade Agreements Act.—Section 350 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended June 12, 1934, assigned new work to the Tariff Commission by naming it a source of information and advice for the President in conducting reciprocal trade negotiations. The special function of the Commission with respect to such negotiations is to supply facts regarding possible concessions by the United States. In cooperation with the Department of State and other agencies of the Government, it also analyzes data on all commodities under consideration, and appraises the effect of import quotas, exchange controls, preferential tariffs, and other trade restrictions of foreign countries as they relate to these negotiations. In practice, the Commission has found that its regular organization for the collection of tariff information can be utilized for the numerous phases of trade-agreement work.

The Commission is represented on various interdepartmental committees concerned with the reciprocal trade agreements program.

Work under Executive order, on results of trade agreements program.—Executive Order 9832 (Feb. 25, 1947), safeguarding American producers in the administration of the trade agreements program, directs the Tariff Commission to (1) report annually to Congress and the President on the operation of the trade agreements program; (2) investigate threatening or injurious imports resulting from concessions, hold public hearings, and recommend action; (3) publish commodity digests in advance of each new trade-agreement negotiation undertaken; (4) keep informed on the effects of trade-agreement concessions; and (5) keep current on competitive strength of American industries against import competition. The Executive order also provides that a Commissioner of the Tariff Commission serve on the Interdepartmental Committee on Trade Agreements which, under the President, manages the program and watches for discrimination.

Work under import control section of Agricultural Adjustment Act.—Section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, as amended (49 Stat. 773, sec. 31; 49 Stat. 1152, sec. 5; 50 Stat. 246, sec. 1; 54 Stat. 17), authorizes the President to direct the Tariff Commission to make an investigation when he has reason to believe that articles are being imported into the United States under such conditions and in sufficient quantities to render ineffective, or to interfere materially with, a program of benefits to agriculture under several laws; and he has authority, on the basis of the Tariff Commission's report, to limit, if necessary, the imports of the article by imposing either quantitative limitations or import fees.

Import quotas on Philippine articles.—The Philippine Trade Act of 1946 (Public Law 371, 79th Cong.) grants preferential tariff treatment to Philippine articles imported into the United States for a certain period after the Philippines become independent. To safeguard the interests of domestic industries, however, the Congress has provided absolute quotas (effective immediately) on important Philippine articles (sugar, cordage, rice, cigars, scrap and filler tobacco, coconut oil, and pearl buttons) and has reserved to the United States the right to impose absolute quotas on other articles after a finding by the President that such articles are coming or are likely to come into substantial competition with like articles produced in the United States. Section 504 of the Philippine Trade Act directs the Tariff Commission to make investigations, including public hearings, to assist the President in carrying out this function.

Cooperation with other agencies (sec. 334).—Section 334 provides that the Commission shall act in appropriate matters in conjunction and cooperation with the Treasury Department, the Department of Commerce, the Federal Trade Commission, or any other departments, or independent establishments of the Government.

Current work of the Commission.—Most of the current work of the Tariff Commission is in response to requests from committees of Congress, particularly the Senate Finance Committee, and the House Committee on Ways and Means. Among these projects are (1) revision of the Summaries of Tariff Information on thousands of commodities; (2) revision of the Dictionary of Tariff Information, (3) reports on the effects of the war on important domestic industries; (4) reports on the international trade policies of foreign countries and their effect on the industry and trade of the United States; (5) analysis of the provisions of the charter for the International Trade Organization under the United Nations, and how those provisions affect present United States legislation, practices, and policies.

Technical assistance on the trade agreements program continues.

TAX COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, THE

The Tax Court of the United States (see 56 Stat. 798, sec. 504) was formerly the Board of Tax Appeals. The latter was created by the Revenue Act of 1924 (43 Stat. 253, title IX), and continued by the Revenue Act of 1926 (44 Stat. 9, title X) and Chapter 5, Internal Revenue Code, 1939.

The principal office of the Court is at Washington, D. C.

Its function is to adjudicate, after trial, controversies involving the existence of deficiencies or overpayments in income, excess profits, estate, gift and unjust enrichment taxes, and personal holding company surtaxes in cases where deficiencies have been determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; similarly to adjudicate controversies relating to excess profits on Navy contracts and Army Aircraft contracts; to hear and decide proceedings for the refund of excess profits tax based upon the rejection of claims for refund of such taxes under section 722 of the Internal Revenue Code; and to hear and decide proceedings for the refund of processing taxes. Effective as of the close of business on December 31, 1942, the United States Processing Tax Board of Review was abolished (see title V, sec. 510, of Revenue Act of 1942, 56 Stat. 967; 7 U. S. C. 648 and note), and jurisdiction vested in said Board was transferred to and vested in the Tax Court of the United States. Under the Revenue Act of 1943 (sec. 701), the Court has jurisdiction over proceedings to redetermine the amount, if any, of excessive profits realized by contractors on war contracts in cases where a determination of excessive profits has been made against such contractor by the War Contracts Price Adjustment Board or other authorized agency or department of the Government.

Proceedings are public and are conducted judicially, in accordance with its Rules and Practice and the rules of evidence applicable in the courts of equity of the District of Columbia. A fee of $10 is prescribed for the filing of a petition. Hearings are held for the convenience of taxpayers at about 50 different cities in the United States. Practice before the Court is limited to those enrolled under the Rules.

The Court's published reports are printed and bound by the Government Printing Office and are available, separately or in bound volumes, as public documents, at quoted prices.

In cases arising under section 721 (a) (2) (C) and section 722 of the Internal Revenue Code and those arising under the Renegotiation Act, the decisions of the Tax Court are final. All other decisions are subject to review by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the prescribed circuit, or, by agreement, by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, and thereafter by the Supreme Court of the United States upon the granting of a writ of certiorari.

The Court is composed of 16 judges, who are appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for terms of 12 years each. They are removable by the President, after public hearing, for inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office, but for no other cause. Each judge comprises a division to hear and decide cases.

The presiding judge is designated at least biannually by election of the judges.

Decisions of the divisions become decisions of the Court unless the presiding judge, within 30 days of their receipt, directs review by the Court.

VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

The Veterans' Administration was established as an independent agency under the President by Executive Order 5398, July 21, 1930, in accordance with the act of July 3, 1930 (46 Stat. 1016; 38 U. S. C. 11). This act authorized the President to consolidate and coordinate Federal agencies concerned in the administration of laws providing relief and other benefits for veterans. The Executive Order consolidated the following agencies into the Veterans' Administration: the United States Veterans' Bureau, the Bureau of Pensions, and the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers.

The Veterans' Administration, headed by the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, consists of the following classes of organizational units: (1) the central office, (2) the 13 branch offices, and (3) the field stations consisting of regional offices, Veterans' Administration offices, centers, hospitals, supply depots, forms depots, and a records center.

The Veterans' Administration, under the direction and supervision of the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, administers laws providing relief and other benefits to former members of the armed forces of the United States and to the dependents of deceased former members of such forces. The benefits include the following: Compensation; pension; education and training; vocational rehabilitation; Government life insurance; medical care; hospital and out-patient treatment; domiciliary care; guaranty and insurance of loans for the purchase or construction of homes, or for the purchase of farms or business property; readjustment allowance for unemployed veterans; emergency and other officers' retirement pay; adjusted compensation; and burial and funeral expenses. The Veterans' Administration also administers the insurance sections of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 for persons in active service of the armed forces of the United States.

HOUSE PRESS GALLERY

William J. Donaldson, Jr., superintendent, 3730 Brandywine Street.

Anthony P. Demma, 2847 Brentwood Road NE., and Richard L. Embly, 606 East Capitol Street, assistant superintendents.

SENATE PRESS GALLERY

Harold R. Beckley, superintendent, 7 Normandy Drive, Silver Spring, Md.

Joseph E. Wills, 1714 North Troy Street, Arlington, Va., and Howard C. Dawes, Congress Hotel, assistant superintendents.

RULES GOVERNING PRESS GALLERIES

1. Persons desiring admission to the Press Galleries of Congress shall make application to the Speaker, as required by rule XXXV of the House of Representatives, and to the Committee on Rules and Administration of the Senate, as required by rule IV for the regulation of the Senate Wing of the Capitol; and shall state in writing the names of all newspapers or publications or news associations by which they are employed, and what other occupation or employment they may have, if any; and they shall further declare that they are not engaged in the prosecution of claims pending before Congress or the departments, and will not become so engaged while allowed admission to the galleries; that they are not employed in any legislative or executive department of the Government, or by any foreign Government or any representative thereof; and that they are not employed, directly or indirectly, by any stock exchange, board of trade, or other organization, or member thereof, or brokerage house, or broker, engaged in the buying and selling of any security or commodity or by any person or corporation having legislation before Congress, and will not become so engaged while retaining membership in the galleries. Holders of visitor's cards who may be allowed temporary admission to the galleries must conform to the restrictions of this rule.

2. The applications required by the above rule shall be authenticated in a manner that shall be satisfactory to the standing committee of correspondents who shall see that the occupation of the galleries is confined to bona fide correspondents of reputable standing in their business, who represent daily newspapers or newspaper associations requiring telegraphic service: Provided, however, That there may be admitted one, or on a substantial showing of need to the Standing Committee of Correspondents not to exceed two, permanent Washington correspondents each for bona fide news associations which regularly service news of national affairs to a substantial number of weekly newspapers, and which weekly newspapers are entitled to second-class mailing privileges, are sold regularly for profit, and pay said association for the service provided. Nothing in this proviso shall be taken to mean that admission shall be granted to any representatives of associations or publications for special economic, labor or business interests. And it shall be the duty of the standing committee, at their discretion, to report violation of the privileges of the galleries to the Speaker, or to the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, and pending action thereon the offending correspondent may be suspended.

3. Persons engaged in other occupations whose chief attention is not given to newspaper correspondence or to newspaper associations requiring telegraphic service shall not be entitled to admission to the Press Galleries; and the Press List in the CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY shall be a list only of persons whose chief attention is given to telegraphic correspondence for daily newspapers or newspaper associations requiring telegraphic service.

4. Members of the families of correspondents are not entitled to the privileges of the galleries.

5. The Press Galleries shall be under the control of the standing committee of correspondents, subject to the approval and supervision of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.

Approved.

JOSEPH W. MARTIN, Jr.
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Approved by the Committee on Rules and Administration of the Senate.

RULES GOVERNING RADIO CORRESPONDENTS' GALLERIES

1. Persons desiring admission to the Radio Galleries of Congress shall make application to the Speaker, as required by rule XXXV of the House of Representatives, as amended, and to the Committee on Rules and Administration of the Senate, as required by rule IV, as amended, for the regulation of the Senate wing of the Capitol. Applicants shall state in writing the names of all radio stations, systems, or news-gathering organizations by which they are employed and what other occupation or employment they may have, if any. Applicants shall further declare that they are not engaged in the prosecution of claims or the promotion of legislation pending before Congress, the Departments, or the independent agencies, and that they will not become so employed without resigning from the galleries. They shall further declare that they are not employed in any legislative or executive department or independent agency of the Government, or by any foreign government or representative thereof; that they are not engaged in any lobbying activities; that they do not and will not, directly or indirectly, furnish special information to any organization, individual, or group of individuals for the influencing of prices on any commodity or stock exchange; that they will not do so during the time they retain membership in the galleries. Holders of visitors' cards who may be allowed temporary admission to the galleries must conform to all the restrictions of this paragraph.

2. It shall be prerequisite to membership that the radio station, system, or news-gathering agency which the applicant represents shall certify in writing to the Radio Correspondents' Association that the applicant conforms to the regulations of paragraph 1.

3. The applications required by paragraph 1 shall be authenticated in a manner that shall be satisfactory to the executive committee of the Radio Correspondents' Association, who shall see that the occupation of the galleries is confined to bona fide news gatherers and/or reporters of reputable standing in their business who represent radio stations, systems, or news-gathering agencies engaged primarily in serving radio stations or systems. It shall be the duty of the executive committee of the Radio Correspondents' Association to report, at their discretion, violation of the privileges of the galleries to the Speaker or to the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, and, pending action thereon, the offending individual may be suspended.

4. Persons engaged in other occupations, whose chief attention is not given to the gathering or reporting of news for radio stations, systems, or news-gathering agencies primarily serving radio stations or systems, shall not be entitled to admission to the Radio Gallery. The Radio Correspondents' List in the CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY shall be a list only of persons whose chief attention is given to the gathering and reporting of news for radio stations and systems engaged in the daily dissemination of news, and of representatives of news-gathering agencies engaged in the daily service of news to such radio stations or systems.

5. Members of the families of correspondents are not entitled to the privileges of the galleries.

6. The Radio Galleries shall be under the control of the executive committee of the Radio Correspondents' Association, subject to the approval and supervision of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.

Approved.

JOSEPH W. MARTIN, JR.

RULES GOVERNING PERIODICAL PRESS GALLERIES

1. Persons desiring admission to the Periodical Press Galleries of Congress shall make application to the Speaker, as required by rule XXXV of the House of Representatives, and to the Committee on Rules and Administration of the Senate, as required by rule IV for the regulation of the Senate wing of the Capitol; and shall state in writing the names of all newspapers or publications or news associations by which they are employed, and what other occupation or employment they may have, if any; and they shall further declare that they are not engaged in the prosecution of claims pending before Congress or the departments, and will not become so engaged while allowed admission to the galleries; that they are not employed in any legislative or executive department of the Government, or by any foreign government or any representative thereof; and that they are not employed, directly or indirectly, by any stock exchange, board of trade, or other organization, or member thereof, or brokerage house or broker, engaged in the buying and selling of any security or commodity, or by any person or corporation having legislation before Congress, and will not become so engaged while retaining membership in the galleries. Holders of visitor's cards who may be allowed temporary admission to the galleries must conform to the restrictions of this rule.

2. The applications required by rule 1 shall be authenticated in a manner that shall be satisfactory to the executive committee of the Periodical Correspondents' Association who shall see that the occupation of the galleries is confined to bona fide and accredited resident correspondents, news gatherers, or reporters of reputable standing who represent one or more periodicals which regularly publish a substantial volume of news material of either general or of an economic, industrial, technical, or trade character, published for profit and supported chiefly by advertising, and owned and operated independently of any industry, business, association, or institution; and it shall be the duty of the executive committee at their discretion to report violation of the privileges of the galleries to the Speaker, or to the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, and pending action thereon the offending correspondent may be suspended.

3. Persons engaged in other occupations whose chief attention is not given to the gathering or reporting of news for periodicals requiring such continuous service shall not be entitled to admission to the Periodical Press Galleries. The Periodical Correspondents' list in the CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY shall be a list only of persons whose chief attention is given to such service for news periodicals, as described in rule 2, except that admission shall not be denied if his other work is such as to make him eligible to the Press Galleries or Radio Correspondents' Galleries.

4. Members of the families of correspondents are not entitled to the privileges of the galleries.

5. The Periodical Press Galleries shall be under the control of an executive committee elected by members of the Periodical Correspondents' Association, subject to the approval and supervision of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.
