Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I hereby transmit a report including my reasons for determining that continuation of the waiver currently in effect for the Republic of Belarus under subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended (the "Act"), will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

REPORT TO THE CONGRESS CONCERNING THE EXTENSION OF WAIVER
AUTHORITY FOR BELARUS

Pursuant to subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended ("the Act"), I have recommended further extension of the waiver authority granted by subsection 402(c) of the Act for twelve months. I have determined that such extension will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act, and that continuation of the waiver currently applicable to the Republic of Belarus will also substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act. My determination is attached and is incorporated herein.

The waiver authority conferred by section 402 of the Act has permitted the United States to conclude and maintain in force, or to seek to conclude, bilateral commercial agreements with countries subject to Title IV of the Act, and has encouraged freedom of emigration in these countries. The reciprocal normal trade relations (NTR) trade treatment and other provisions of the commercial agreement with Belarus enhance the ability of U.S. companies to compete in the Belarusian market. (Waiver authority would also allow U.S. Government credit and investment activities in Belarus, but those programs have been suspended in Belarus due to the government's economic and human rights policies.)

Freedom of Emigration Determination

Soviet-era restrictions on emigration in Belarus have (with one exception, noted below) been dismantled, and existing restrictions are applied in a manner that allows free emigration. A law on entry and exit came into effect on January 1, 1994, that abolishes the former Soviet requirement of mandatory official permission for each trip abroad by authorizing Belarusians to receive passports containing "global" exit visas valid for one to five years and for travel to all countries. The Belarusian constitution of November 1996, although illegitimately adopted, nevertheless specifically grants citizens the right to leave and return as they wish. Applicants generally receive a passport and exit visa within two to three months of application, although widespread petty bribery often accelerates the processing period.

Soviet-era legislation restricting emigration by those with access to "state secrets" remains in force in Belarus. Citizens denied permission to emigrate on this basis are informed at the time of denial when they may reapply (usually two years). However, this restriction does not discriminate on the basis of ethnic identity. None of the human rights or Jewish organizations in Belarus reports excessive restrictions on the ability of citizens to emigrate.

I have concluded that continuing the waiver under section 402 of the Act in effect for Belarus will help preserve the gains already achieved on freedom of emigration and encourage further progress.

[Presidential Determination No. 2000-22]

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, June 2, 2000.

Memorandum for the Secretary of State.

Subject: Determination Under Subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, as Amended: Continuation of Waiver Authority for Belarus.

Pursuant to the authority vested in me under the Trade Act of 1974, as amended, Public Law 93-618, 88 Stat. 1978 (the "Act"), I have determined, pursuant to subsection 402(d)(1) of the Act, 19 U.S.C. 2432(d)(1), that the further extension of the waiver authority granted by subsection 402(c) of the Act will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act. I further determine that continuation of the waiver applicable to the Republic of Belarus will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act.

You are authorized and directed to publish this determination in the Federal Register.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.
