SENATE RESOLUTION 325

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

November 18, 2005

Resolved, That the Committee on Rules and Administration shall prepare a revised edition of the Senate Election Law Guidebook, Senate Document 106–14, and that such document shall be printed as a Senate document.

SEC. 2. There shall be printed, beyond the usual number, 500 additional copies of the document specified in the first section for the use of the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Attest:

EMILY REYNOLDS,
Secretary.

CAVEAT

It is of paramount importance to consult with the appropriate secretary of state or state board of elections when questions arise about the various state statutory materials contained in this publication. Specifically, dates and filing information should be confirmed by the appropriate secretary of state or state election office because changes in this area of law occur frequently. In addition, due to natural disasters, affected states may alter election dates and filing deadlines.

PREFACE

The 2006 publication contains a comprehensive compilation of constitutional and Federal statutory provisions and State election laws relating to the nomination and election of candidates to the United States Senate.

This Guidebook is designed as a ready reference, providing highlights of provisions of Federal and State laws pertaining to the election of Senators, as well as explanatory legal memoranda. It is anticipated that it will benefit senatorial candidates, the Committee on Rules and Administration, and the public in general. The detailed citations will facilitate opportunity for reference to the statutory provisions if one should require complete information on any given subject.

This revision of the Senate Election Law Guidebook was prepared at the direction of the Committee on Rules and Administration by L. Paige Whitaker and Jack Maskell, Legislative Attorneys, David S. Mao, Section Head, Cassandra Foley and Tara Rainson, Law Librarians, and Stuart Carmody, Reference Assistant, Knowledge Services Group, under the supervision of Richard C. Ehlke, Assistant Director, and Ellen M. Lazarus, Deputy Assistant Director, American Law Division, Congressional Research Service, Library of Congress.

* Source: Federal Election Commission, S indicates a U.S. Senate election. Dates subject to change by the state legislatures.

¹The column Independent Filing Deadline shows the date for the filing of petitions by independent or third/minor party candidates. This is a general reference date for use by the public and voters. Candidates and others seeking specific information should contact the states for other deadlines that may need to be met. For example, the petitions may have to be checked by officials prior to this date. A declaration of candidacy may be due before the petitions are due. New parties may have different deadlines.

²Nominating conventions are held by the state parties prior to the primary.

³Political parties may choose to nominate candidates by convention rather than by primary. Notification of adoption of a primary must be made to the State Board of Elections by March 15, 2000.

¹This date indicates the end of the reporting period. A reporting period always begins the day after the closing date of the last report filed. If the committee is new and has not previously filed a report, the first report must cover all activity that occurred before the committee registered and, if applicable, before the individual became a candidate.

²Reports sent by registered or certified mail must be postmarked by the mailing date. Otherwise, they must be received by the filing date.

³The mailing date is the same as the filing date because the computed mail date would fall one day before the primary was held.

⁵Saturday or Sunday. Because filing dates are not extended when they fall on nonworking days, the report should be received by the appropriate filing offices the Friday before.

⁶The July Quarterly report is waived for committees filing the Georgia pre-primary report. See 11 CFR 104.5(a)(1)(iii)(C) and (c)(1)(i)(C).

Within 5 days after receipt of a complaint, the Commission shall notify, in writing, any person alleged in the complaint to have committed such a violation. Before the Commission conducts any vote on the complaint, other than a vote to dismiss, any person so notified shall have the opportunity to demonstrate, in writing, to the Commission within 15 days after notification that no action should be taken against such person on the basis of the complaint. The Commission may not conduct any investigation or take any other action under this section solely on the basis of a complaint of a person whose identity is not disclosed to the Commission.

(2) If the Commission, upon receiving a complaint under paragraph (1) or on the basis of information ascertained in the normal course of carrying out its supervisory responsibilities, determines, by an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, that it has reason to believe that a person has committed, or is about to commit, a violation of this Act or chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, the Commission shall, through its chairman or vice chairman, notify the person of the alleged violation. Such notification shall set forth the factual basis for such alleged violation. Such briefs shall be filed with the Secretary of the Commission and shall be considered by the Commission before proceeding under paragraph (4).

(4)(A)(i) Except as provided in clauses (ii) and subparagraph (C), if the Commission determines, by an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, that there is probable cause to believe that any person has committed, or is about to commit, a violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, the Commission shall attempt, for a period of at least 30 days, to correct or prevent such violation by informal methods of conference, conciliation, and persuasion, and to enter into a conciliation agreement with any person involved. Such attempt by the Commission to correct or prevent such violation may continue for a period of not more than 90 days. The Commission may not enter into a conciliation agreement under this clause except pursuant to an affirmative vote of 4 of its members. A conciliation agreement, unless violated, is a complete bar to any further action by the Commission, including the bringing of a civil proceeding under paragraph (6)(A).

(ii) If any determination of the Commission under clause (i) occurs during the 45-day period immediately preceding any election, then the Commission shall attempt, for a period of at least 15 days, to correct or prevent the violation involved by the methods specified in clause (i).

(B)(i) No action by the Commission or any person, and no information derived, in connection with any conciliation attempt by the Commission under subparagraph (A) may be made public by the Commission without the written consent of the respondent and the Commission.

(ii) If a conciliation agreement is agreed upon by the Commission and the respondent, the Commission shall make public any conciliation agreement signed by both the Commission and the respondent. If the Commission makes a determination that a person has not violated this Act or chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, the Commission shall make public such determination.

(C)(i) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), in the case of a violation of any requirement of section 304(a) of the Act (2 U.S.C. § 434(a)), the Commission may—

(I) find that a person committed such a violation on the basis of information obtained pursuant to the procedures described in paragraphs (1) and (2); and

(II) based on such finding, require the person to pay a civil money penalty in an amount determined under a schedule of penalties which is established and published by the Commission and which takes into account the amount of the violation involved, the existence of previous violations by the person, and such other factors as the Commission considers appropriate.

(ii) The Commission may not make any determination adverse to a person under clause (i) until the person has been given written notice and an opportunity to be heard before the Commission.

(iii) Any person against whom an adverse determination is made under this subparagraph may obtain a review of such determination in the district court of the United States for the district in which the person resides, or transacts business, by filing in such court (prior to the expiration of the 30-day period which begins on the date the person receives notification of the determination) a written petition requesting that the determination be modified or set aside.

(5)(A) If the Commission believes that a violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26 has been committed, a conciliation agreement entered into by the Commission under paragraph (4)(A) may include a requirement that the person involved in such conciliation agreement shall pay a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation.

(B) If the Commission believes that a knowing and willful violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26 has been committed, a conciliation agreement entered into by the Commission under paragraph (4)(A) may require that the person involved in such conciliation agreement shall pay a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent of any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation (or in the case of a violation of section 320 (2 U.S.C. §441f), which is not less than 300 percent of the amount involved in the violation and is not more than the greater of $50,000 or 1000 percent of the amount involved in the violation).

(C) If the Commission by an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, determines that there is probable cause to believe that a knowing and willful violation of this Act which is subject to subsection (d) of this section, or a knowing and willful violation of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, has occurred or is about to occur, it may refer such apparent violation to the Attorney General of the United States without regard to any limitations set forth in paragraph (4)(A).

(D) In any case in which a person has entered into a conciliation agreement with the Commission under paragraph (4)(A), the Commission may institute a civil action for relief under paragraph (6)(A) if it believes that the person has violated any provision of such conciliation agreement. For the Commission to obtain relief in any civil action, the Commission need only establish that the person has violated, in whole or in part, any requirement of such conciliation agreement.

(6)(A) If the Commission is unable to correct or prevent any violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, by the methods specified in paragraph (4), the Commission may, upon an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, institute a civil action for relief, including a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or any other appropriate order (including an order for a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation) in the district court of the United States for the district in which the person against whom such action is brought is found, resides, or transacts business.

(B) In any civil action instituted by the Commission under subparagraph (A), the court may grant a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or other order, including a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation, upon a proper showing that the person involved has committed, or is about to commit (if the relief sought is a permanent or temporary injunction or a restraining order), a violation of this Act or chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26.

(C) In any civil action for relief instituted by the Commission under subparagraph (A), if the court determines that the Commission has established that the person involved in such civil action has committed a knowing and willful violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, the court may impose a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent of any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation (or in the case of a violation of section 320 (2 U.S.C. § 441f), which is not less than 300 percent of the amount involved in the violation and is not more than the greater of $50,000 or 1000 percent of the amount involved in the violation.

(7) In any action brought under paragraph (5) or (6), subpoenas for witnesses who are required to attend a United States district court may run into any other district.

(8)(A) Any party aggrieved by an order of the Commission dismissing a complaint filed by such party under paragraph (1), or by a failure of the Commission to act on such complaint during the 120-day period beginning on the date the complaint is filed, may file a petition with the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

(B) Any petition under subparagraph (A) shall be filed, in the case of a dismissal of a complaint by the Commission, within 60 days after the date of the dismissal.

(C) In any proceeding under this paragraph the court may declare that the dismissal of the complaint or the failure to act is contrary to law, and may direct the Commission to conform with such declaration within 30 days, failing which the complainant may bring, in the name of such complainant, a civil action to remedy the violation involved in the original complaint.

(9) Any judgment of a district court under this subsection may be appealed to the court of appeals, and the judgment of the court of appeals affirming or setting aside, in whole or in part, any such order of the district court shall be final, subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States upon certiorari or certification as provided in section 1254 of title 28.

(10) Repealed.

(11) If the Commission determines after an investigation that any person has violated an order of the court entered in a proceeding brought under paragraph (6), it may petition the court for an order to hold such person in civil contempt, but if it believes the violation to be knowing and willful it may petition the court for an order to hold such person in criminal contempt.

(12)(A) Any notification or investigation made under this section shall not be made public by the Commission or by any person without the “written consent of the person receiving such notification or the person with respect to whom such investigation is made.

(B) Any member or employee of the Commission, or any other person, who violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) shall be fined not more than $2,000. Any such member, employee, or other person who knowingly and willfully violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) shall be fined not more than $5,000.

(b) Notice to persons not filing required reports prior to institution of enforcement action; publication of identity of persons and unfiled reports. Before taking any action under subsection (a) of this section against any person who has failed to file a report required under section 434(a)(2)(A)(iii) of this title for the calendar quarter immediately preceding the election involved, or in accordance with section 434(a)(2)(A)(i) of this title, the Commission shall notify the person of such failure to file the required reports. If a satisfactory response is not received within 4 business days after the date of notification, the Commission shall, pursuant to section 438(a)(7) of this title, publish before the election the name of the person and the report or reports such person has failed to file.

(c) Reports by Attorney General of apparent violations. Whenever the Commission refers an apparent violation to the Attorney General, the Attorney General shall report to the Commission any action taken by the Attorney General regarding the apparent violation. Each report shall be transmitted within 60 days after the date the Commission refers an apparent violation, and every 30 days thereafter until the final disposition of the apparent violation.

(1)(A). Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of any provision of this Act which involves the making, receiving, or reporting of any contribution, donation or expenditure—

(i) aggregating $25,000 or more during a calendar year shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both; or

(ii) aggregating $2,000 or more (but less than $25,000) during a calendar year shall be fined under such title, or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

(B) In the case of a knowing and willful violation of section 441b(b)(3) of this title, the penalties set forth in this subsection shall apply to a violation involving an amount aggregating $250 or more during a calendar year. Such violation of section 441b(b)(3) of this title may incorporate a violation of section 441c(b), 441f, and 441g of this title.

(C) In the case of a knowing and willful violation of section 441h of this title, the penalties set forth in this subsection shall apply without regard to whether the making, receiving, or reporting of a contribution or expenditure of $1,000 or more is involved.

(D) Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of section 320 (2 U.S.C. §441f) involving an amount aggregating more than $10,000 during a calendar year shall be—

(i) imprisoned for not more than 2 years if the amount is less than $25,000 (and subject to imprisonment under subparagraph (A) if the amount is $25,000 or more);

(ii) fined not less than 300 percent of the amount involved in the violation and not more than the greater of—

(I) $50,000; or

(II) 1,000 percent of the amount involved in the violation; or

(iii) both imprisoned under clause (i) and fined under clause (ii).

(2) In any criminal action brought for a violation of any provision of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of this title 26, any defendant may evidence their lack of knowledge or intent to commit the alleged violation by introducing as evidence a conciliation agreement entered into between the defendant and the Commission under subsection (a)(4)(A) of this section which specifically deals with the act or failure to act constituting such violation and which is still in effect.

(3) In any criminal action brought for a violation of any provision of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26, the court before which such action is brought shall take into account, in weighing the seriousness of the violation and in considering the appropriateness of the penalty to be imposed if the defendant is found guilty, whether—

(A) the specific act or failure to act which constitutes the violation for which the action was brought is the subject of a conciliation agreement entered into between the defendant and the Commission under subparagraph (a)(4)(A);

(B) the conciliation agreement is in effect; and

(C) the defendant is, with respect to the violation involved, in compliance with the conciliation agreement.

2 U.S.C. § 437h. Judicial review

The Commission, the national committee of any political party, or any individual eligible to vote in any election for the office of President may institute such actions in the appropriate district court of the United States, including actions for declaratory judgment, as may be appropriate to construe the constitutionality of any provision of this Act. The district court immediately shall certify all questions of constitutionality of this Act to the United States court of appeals for the circuit involved, which shall hear the matter sitting en banc.

2 U.S.C. § 438. Administrative provisions

(a) Duties of Commission. The Commission shall—

(1) prescribe forms necessary to implement this Act;

(2) prepare, publish, and furnish to all persons required to file reports and statements under this Act a manual recommending uniform methods of bookkeeping and reporting;

(3) develop a filing, coding, and cross-indexing system consistent with the purposes of this Act.

(4) within 48 hours after the time of the receipt by the Commission of reports and statements filed with it, make them available for public inspection, and copying, at the expense of the person requesting such copying, except that any information copied from such reports or statements may not be sold or used by any person for the purpose of soliciting contributions or for commercial purposes, other than using the name and address of any political committee to solicit contributions from such committee. A political committee may submit 10 pseudonyms on each report filed in order to protect against the illegal use of names and addresses of contributors, provided such committee attaches a list of such pseudonyms to the appropriate report. The Secretary or the Commission shall exclude these lists from the public record;

(5) keep such designations, reports, and statements for a period of 10 years from the date of receipt, except that designations, reports, and statements that relate solely to candidates for the House of Representatives shall be kept for 5 years from the date of their receipt;

(6)(A) compile and maintain a cumulative index of designations, reports, and statements filed under this Act, which index shall be published at regular intervals and made available for purchase directly or by mail;

(B) compile, maintain, and revise a separate cumulative index of reports and statements filed by multicandidate committees, including in such index a list of multicandidate committees; and

(C) compile and maintain a list of multicandidate committees, which shall be revised and made available monthly;

(7) prepare and publish periodically lists of authorized committees which fail to file reports as required by this Act;

(8) prescribe rules, regulations, and forms to carry out the provisions of this Act, in accordance with the provisions of subsection (d) of this section;

(9) transmit to the President and to each House of the Congress no later than June 1 of each year, a report which states in detail the activities of the Commission in carrying out its duties under this Act, and any recommendations for any legislative or other action the Commission considers appropriate, and

(10) serve as a national clearinghouse for the compilation of information and review of procedures with respect to the administration of Federal elections. The Commission may enter into contracts for the purpose of conducting studies under this paragraph. Reports or studies made under this paragraph shall be available to the public upon the payment of the cost thereof, except that copies shall be made available without cost, upon request, to agencies and branches of the Federal Government.

(b) Audits and field investigations. The Commission may conduct audits and field investigations of any political committee required to file a report under section 434 of this title. All audits and field investigations concerning the verification for, and receipt and use of, any payments received by a candidate or committee under chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26 shall be given priority. Prior to conducting any audit under this subsection, the Commission shall perform an internal review of reports filed by selected committees to determine if the reports filed by a particular committee meet the threshold requirements for substantial compliance with the Act. Such thresholds for compliance shall be established by the Commission. The Commission may, upon an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, conduct an audit and field investigation of any committee which does meet the threshold requirements established by the Commission. Such audit shall be commenced within 30 days of such vote, except that any audit of an authorized committee of a candidate, under the provisions of this subsection, shall be commenced within 6 months of the election for which such committee is authorized.

(c) Statutory provisions applicable to forms and information gathering activities. Any forms prescribed by the Commission under subsection (a)(1) of this section, and any information-gathering activities of the Commission under this Act, shall not be subject to the provisions of section 3512 of title 44.

(d) Rules, regulations, or forms; issuance, procedures applicable, etc.

(1) Before prescribing any rule, regulation, or form under this section or any other provision of this Act, the Commission shall transmit a statement with respect to such rule, regulation, or form to the Senate and the House of Representatives, in accordance with this subsection. Such statement shall set forth the proposed rule, regulation, or form and shall contain a detailed explanation and justification of it.

(2) If either House of the Congress does not disapprove by resolution any proposed rule or regulation submitted by the Commission under this section within 30 legislative days after the date of the receipt of such proposed rule or regulation or within 10 legislative days after the date of receipt of such proposed form, the Commission may prescribe such rule, regulation, or form.

(3) For purposes of this subsection, the term "legislative day" means, with respect to statements transmitted to the Senate, any calendar day on which the Senate is in session, and with respect to statements transmitted to the House of Representatives, any calendar day on which the House of Representatives is in session.

(4) For purposes of this subsection, the terms "rule" and "regulation" mean a provision or series of interrelated provisions stating a single, separable rule of law.

(5)(A) A motion to discharge a committee of the Senate from the consideration of a resolution relating to any such rule, regulation, or form or a motion to proceed to the consideration of such a resolution, is highly privileged and shall be decided without debate.

(B) Whenever a committee of the House of Representatives reports any resolution relating to any such form, rule or regulation, it is at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) to move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution. The motion is highly privileged and is not debatable. An amendment to the motion is not in order, and is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed with.

(e) Scope of protection for good faith reliance upon rules or regulations. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any person who relies upon any rule or regulation prescribe by the Commission in accordance with the provisions of this section and who acts in good faith in accordance with such rule or regulation shall not, as a result of such act, be subject to any sanction provided by this Act or by chapter 95 or chapter 96 of Title 26.

(f) Promulgation of rules, regulations, and forms by Commission and Internal Revenue Service; report to Congress on cooperative efforts. In prescribing such rules, regulations, and forms under this section, the Commission and the Internal Revenue Service shall consult and work together to promulgate rules, regulations, and forms which are mutually consistent. The Commission shall report to the Congress annually on the steps it has taken to comply with this subsection.

2 U.S.C. §438a. Maintenance of website of election reports

(a) In general. The Federal Election Commission shall maintain a central site on the Internet to make accessible to the public all publicly available election-related reports and information.

(b) Election-related report. In this section, the term ‘election-related report’ means any report, designation, or statement required to be filed under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971.

(c) Coordination with other agencies. Any Federal executive agency receiving election-related information which that agency is required by law to publicly disclose shall cooperate and coordinate with the Federal Election Commission to make such report available through, or for posting on, the site of the Federal Election Commission in a timely manner.

2 U.S.C. §439. Statements filed with State officers; “appropriate State” defined; duties of State officers; waiver of duplicate filing requirements for States with electronic access

(a)(1) A copy of each report and statement required to be filed by any person under this Act shall be filed by such person with the Secretary of State (or equivalent State officer) of the appropriate State, or, if different, the officer of such State who is charged by State law with maintaining State election campaign reports. The chief executive officer of such State shall designate any such officer and notify the Commission of any such designation.

(2) For purposes of this subsection, the term “appropriate State” means—

(A) for statements and reports in connection with the campaign for nomination for election of a candidate to the office of

President or Vice President, each State in which an expenditure is made on behalf of the candidate; and

(B) for statements and reports in connection with the campaign for nomination for election, or election, of a candidate to the office of Senator or Representative in, or Delegate or Resident Commissioner to, the Congress, the State in which the candidate seeks election; except that political committees other than authorized committees are only required to file, and Secretaries of State required to keep, that portion of the report applicable to candidates seeking election in that State.

(b) The Secretary of State (or equivalent State officer), or the officer designated under subsection (a)(1) of this section, shall—

(1) receive and maintain in an orderly manner all reports and statements required by this Act to be filed therewith;

(2) keep such reports and statements (either in original filed form or in facsimile copy by microfilm or otherwise) for 2 years after their date of receipt;

(3) make each report and statement filed therewith available as soon as practicable (but within 48 hours of receipt) for public inspection and copying during regular business hours, and permit copying of any such report or statement by hand or by duplicating machine at the request of any person, except that such copying shall be at the expense of the person making the request; and

(4) compile and maintain a current list of all reports and statements pertaining to each candidate.

(c) Subsections (a) and (b) shall not apply with respect to any State that, as determined by the Commission, has a system that permits electronic access to, and duplication of, reports and statements that are filed with the Commission.

2 U.S.C. §439a. Use of contributed amounts for certain purposes

(a) Permitted uses. A contribution accepted by a candidate, and any other donation received by an individual as support for activities of the individual as a holder of Federal office, may be used by the candidate or individual—

(1) for otherwise authorized expenditures in connection with the campaign for Federal office of the candidate or individual;

(2) for ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with duties of the individual as a holder of Federal office;

(3) for contributions to an organization described in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

(4) for transfers, without limitation, to a national, State, or local committee of a political party.

(b) Prohibited use.

(1) In general. A contribution or donation described in subsection (a) shall not be converted by any person to personal use.

(2) Conversion. For the purposes of paragraph (1), a contribution or donation shall be considered to be converted to personal use if the contribution or amount is used to fulfill any commitment, obligation, or expense of a person that would exist irre-

2 U.S.C. §439c. Authorization of appropriations

2 U.S.C. §440. Repealed.

2 U.S.C. §441. Repealed.

2 U.S.C. §441a. Limitations, contributions, and expenditures

(a) Dollar limits on contributions.

(1) Except as provided in subsection (i) and section 315A (2 U.S.C. §441a-1), no person shall make contributions—

(A) to any candidate and his authorized political committees with respect to any election for Federal office which, in the aggregate, exceed $2,000;

(B) to the political committees established and maintained by a national political party, which are not the authorized political committees of any candidate, in any calendar year which, in the aggregate, exceed $25,000;

(C) to any other political committee (other than a committee described in subparagraph (D)) in any calendar year which, in the aggregate, exceed $5,000; or

(D) to a political committee established and maintained by a State committee of a political party in any calendar year which, in the aggregate, exceed $10,000.

(2) No multicandidate political committee shall make contributions—

(A) to any candidate and his authorized political committees with respect to any election for Federal office which, in the aggregate, exceed $5,000;

(B) to the political committees established and maintained by a national political party, which are not the authorized political committees of any candidate, in any calendar year, which, in the aggregate, exceed $15,000; or

(C) to any other political committee in any calendar year which, in the aggregate, exceed $5,000.

(3) During the period which begins on January 1 of an odd-numbered year and ends on December 31 of the next even numbered year, no individual may make contributions aggregating more than—

(A) $37,500, in the case of contributions to candidates and the authorized committees of candidates;

(B) $57,500, in the case of any other contributions, of which not more than $37,500 may be attributable to contributions to political committees which are not political committees of national political parties.

(4) The limitations on contributions contained in paragraphs (1) and (2) do not apply to transfers between and among political committees which are national, State, district, or local committees (including any subordinate committee thereof) of the same political party. For purposes of paragraph (2), the term “multicandidate political committee” means a political committee which has been registered under section 433 of this title for a period of not less than 6 months, which has received contributions from more than 50 persons, and, except for any State political party organization, has made contributions to 5 or more candidates for Federal office.

(5) For purposes of the limitations provided by paragraph (1) and paragraph (2), all contributions made by political committees established or financed or maintained or controlled by any corporation, labor organization, or any other person, including any parent, subsidiary, branch, division, department, or local unit of such corporation, labor organization, or any other person, or by any group of such persons, shall be considered to have been made by a single political committee, except that

(ii) the limitations contained in this Act on contributions by persons are not exceeded by such transfer; and

(iii) the candidate has not elected to receive any funds under chapter 95 or chapter 96 of title 26.

(6) The limitations on contributions to a candidate imposed by paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection shall apply separately with respect to each election, except that all elections held in any calendar year for the office of President of the United States (except a general election for such office) shall be considered to be one election.

(7) For purposes of this subsection—

(A) contributions to a named candidate made to any political committee authorized by such candidate to accept contributions on his behalf shall be considered to be contributions made to such candidate;

(C) if—

(i) any person makes, or contracts to make, any disbursement for any electioneering communication (within the meaning of section 304(f)(3)) (2 U.S.C. § 434(f)(3)); and

(ii) such disbursement is coordinated with a candidate or an authorized committee of such candidate, a Federal, State, or local political party or committee thereof, or an agent or official of any such candidate, party, or committee;

such disbursement or contracting shall be treated as a contribution to the candidate supported by the electioneering communication or that candidate's party and as an expenditure by that candidate or that candidate's party; and

(D) contributions made to or for the benefit of any candidate nominated by a political party for election to the office of Vice President of the United States shall be considered to be contributions made to or for the benefit of the candidate of such party for election to the office of President of the United States.

(8) For purposes of the limitations imposed by this section, all contributions made by a person, either directly or indirectly, on behalf of a particular candidate, including contributions which are in any way earmarked or otherwise directed through an intermediary or conduit to such candidate, shall be treated as contributions from such person to such candidate. The intermediary or conduit shall report the original source and the intended recipient of such contribution to the Commission and to the intended recipient.

(b) Dollar limits on expenditures by candidates for office of President of the United States.

(1) No candidate for the office of President of the United States who is eligible under section 9003 of title 26 (relating to condition for eligibility for payments) or under section 9033 of title 26 (relating to eligibility for payments) to receive payments from the Secretary of the Treasury may make expenditures in excess of—

(B) $20,000,000 in the case of a campaign for election to such office.

(2) For purposes of this subsection—

(A) expenditures made by or on behalf of any candidate nominated by a political party for election to the office of Vice President of the United States shall be considered to be expenditures made by or on behalf of the candidate of such party for election to the office of President of the United States; and

(B) an expenditure is made on behalf of a candidate, including a vice presidential candidate, if it is made by—

(i) an authorized committee or any other agent of the candidate for purposes of making any expenditure;

or

(ii) any person authorized or requested by the candidate, an authorized committee of the candidate, or an agent of the candidate, to make the expenditure.

(1)(A) At the beginning of each calendar year (commencing in 1976), as there become available necessary data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor, the Secretary of Labor shall certify to the Commission and publish in the Federal Register the percent difference between the price index for the 12 months preceding the beginning of such calendar year and the price index for the base period.

(B) Except as provided in subparagraph (C), in any calendar year after 2002—

(i) a limitation established by subsections (a)(1)(A), (a)(I)(B), (a)(3), (b), (d), or (h) shall be increased by the percent difference determined under subparagraph (A);

(ii) each amount so increased shall remain in effect for the calendar year; and

(B) If any person, other than the United States Government, paid a nonelected reporting individual compensation in excess of $5,000 in any of the two calendar years prior to the calendar year during which the individual files his first report under this title [5 U.S.C. App. §§ 101 et seq.], the individual shall include in the report—

- (i) the identify of each source of such compensation; and
- (ii) a brief description of the nature of the duties performed or services rendered by the reporting individual for each such source.

The preceding sentence shall not require any individual to include in such report any information which is considered confidential as a result of a privileged relationship, established by law, between such individual and any person nor shall it require an individual to report any information with respect to any person for whom services were provided by any firm or association of which such individual was a member, partner, or employee unless such individual was directly involved in the provision of such services.

(7) A description of the date, parties to, and terms of any agreement or arrangement with respect to (A) future employment; (B) a leave of absence during the period of the reporting individual's Government service; (C) continuation of payments by a former employer other than the United States Government; and (D) continuing participation in an employee welfare or benefit plan maintained by a former employer.

(8) The category of the total cash value of any interest of the reporting individual in a qualified blind trust, unless the trust instrument was executed prior to July 24, 1995 and precludes the beneficiary from receiving information on the total cash value of any interest in the qualified blind trust.

(b)(1) Each report filed pursuant to subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 101 [5 U.S.C. App. § 101(a)–(c)] shall include a full and complete statement with respect to the information required by—

- (A) paragraph (1) of subsection (a) for the year of filing and the preceding calendar year,
- (B) paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (a) as of the date specified in the report but which is less than thirty-one days before the filing date, and
- (C) paragraphs (6) and (7) of subsection (a) as of the filing date but for periods described in such paragraphs.

(2)(A) In lieu of filling out one or more schedules of a financial disclosure form, an individual may supply the required information in an alternative format, pursuant to either rules adopted by the supervising ethics office for the branch in which such individual serves or pursuant to a specific written determination by such office for a reporting individual.

(B) In lieu of indicating the category of amount or value of any item contained in any report filed under this title [5 U.S.C. App. §§ 101 et seq.], a reporting individual may indicate the exact dollar amount of such item.

(c) In the case of any individual described in section 101(e) [5 U.S.C. App. § 101(e)], any reference to the preceding calendar year shall be considered also to include that part of the calendar year of filing up to the date of the termination of employment.

(d)(1) The categories for reporting the amount or value of the items covered in paragraphs (3), (4), (5), and (8) of subsection (a) are as follows:

- (A) not more than $15,000;

- (H) greater than $5,000,000 but not more than $25,000,000;
- (I) greater than $25,000,000 but not more than $50,000,000;

and

- (J) greater than $50,000,000.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (3) of subsection (a) if the current value of an interest in real property (or an interest in a real estate partnership) is not ascertainable without an appraisal, an individual may list (A) the date of purchase and the purchase price of the interest in the real property, or (B) the assessed value of the real property for tax purposes, adjusted to reflect the market value of the property used for the assessment if the assessed value is computed at less than 100 percent of such market value, but such individual shall include in his report a full and complete description of the method used to determine such assessed value, instead of specifying a category of value pursuant (1) of this subsection. If the current value of any other item required to be reported under paragraph (3) of subsection (a) is not ascertainable without an appraisal, such individual may list the book value of a corporation whose stock is not publicly traded, the net worth of a business partnership, the equity value of an individually owned business, or with respect to other holdings, any recognized indication of value, but such individual shall include in his report a full and complete description of the method used in determining such value. In lieu of any value referred to in the preceding sentence, an individual may list the assessed value of the item for tax purposes, adjusted to reflect the market value of the item used for the assessment if the assessed value is computed at less than 100 percent of such market value, but a full and complete description of the method used in determining such assessed value shall be included in the report.

(e)(1) Except as provided in the last sentence of this paragraph, each report required by section 101 shall also contain information listed in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (a) of this section respecting the spouse or dependent child of the reporting individual as follows:

- (A) The source of items of earned income earned by a spouse from any person which exceed $1,000 and the source and amount of any honoraria received by a spouse, except that, with respect to earned income (other than honoraria), if the spouse is self-employed in business or a profession, only the nature of such business or profession need be reported.

(B) All information required to be reported in subsection (a)(1)(B) with respect to income derived by a spouse or dependent child from any asset held by the spouse or dependent child and reported pursuant to subsection (a)(3).

(C) In the case of any gifts received by a spouse or dependent child which are not received totally independent of the relationship of the spouse or dependent child to the reporting individual, the identity of the source and a brief description of gifts of transportation, lodging, food or entertainment and a brief description and the value of other gifts.

(D) In the case of any reimbursements received by a spouse or dependent child which are not received totally independent of the relationship of the spouse or dependent child to the reporting individual, the identity of the source and brief description of each such reimbursement.

(E) In the case of items described in paragraphs (3) through (5) of subsection (a), all information required to be reported under these paragraphs other than items (i) which the reporting individual certifies represent the spouse's or dependent child's sole financial interest or responsibility and which the reporting individual has no knowledge of, (ii) which are not in any way, past or present, derived from the income, assets, or activities of the reporting individual, and (iii) from which the reporting individual neither derives, nor expects to derive, any financial or economic benefit.

(F) For purposes of this section, categories with amounts or values greater than $1,000,000 set forth in sections 102(a)(1)(B) and 102(d)(1) shall apply to the income, assets, or liabilities of spouses and dependent children only if the income, assets, or liabilities are held jointly with the reporting individual. All other income, assets, or liabilities of the spouse or dependent children required to be reported under this section in an amount or value greater than $1,000,000 shall be categorized only as an amount or value greater than $1,000,000.

Reports required by subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 101 shall, with respect to the spouse and dependent child of the reporting individual, only contain information listed in paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of subsection (a), as specified in this paragraph.

(2) No report shall be required with respect to a spouse living separate and apart from the reporting individual with the intention of terminating the marriage or providing for permanent separation; or with respect to any income or obligations of an individual arising from the dissolution of his marriage or the permanent separation from his spouse.

(f)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), each reporting individual shall report the information required to be reported pursuant to subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section with respect to the holdings of and the income from a trust or other financial arrangement from which income is received by, or with respect to which a beneficial interest in principal or income is held by, such individual, his spouse, or any dependent child.

(2) A reporting individual need not report the holdings of the source of income from any of the holdings of—

(A) any qualified blind trust (as defined in paragraph (3));

(B) a trust—

(i) which was not created directly by such individual, his spouse, or any dependent child, and

(ii) the holdings or sources of income of which such individual, his spouse, and any dependent child have no knowledge of; or

(C) an entity described under the provisions of paragraph (8), but such individual shall report the category of the amount of income received by him, his spouse, or any dependent child from the trust or other entity under subsection (a)(1)(B) of this section.

(3) For purposes of this subsection, the term “qualified blind trust” includes any trust in which a reporting individual, his spouse, or any minor or dependent child has a beneficial interest in the principal or income, and which meets the following requirements:

(A)(i) The trustee of the trust and any other entity designated in the trust instrument to perform fiduciary duties is a financial institution, an attorney, a certified public accountant, a broker, or an investment advisor who—

(I) is independent of and not associated with any interested party so that the trustee or other person cannot be controlled or influenced in the administration of the trust by any interested party; and

(II) is not and has not been an employee of or affiliated with any interested party and is not a partner of, or involved in any joint venture or other investment with, any interested party; and

(III) is not a relative of any interested party.

(ii) Any officer or employee of a trustee or other entity who is involved in the management or control of the trust—

(I) is independent of and not associated with any interested party so that such officer or employee cannot be controlled or influenced in the administration of the trust by any interested party;

(II) is not a partner of, or involved in any joint venture or other investment with, any interested party; and

(III) is not a relative of any interested party.

(B) Any asset transferred to the trust by an interested party is free of any restriction with respect to its transfer or sale unless such restriction is expressly approved by the supervising ethics office of the reporting individual.

(C) The trust instrument which establishes the trust provides that—

(i) except to the extent provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, the trustee in the exercise of his authority and discretion to manage and control the assets of the trust shall not consult or notify any interested party;

(ii) the trust shall not contain any asset the holding of which by an interested party is prohibited by any law or regulation;

(iii) the trustee shall promptly notify the reporting individual and his supervising ethics office when the holdings of any particular asset transferred to the trust by any in-

interested party are disposed of or when the value of such holding is less than $1,000;

(iv) the trust tax return shall be prepared by the trustee or his designee, and such return and any information relating thereto (other than the trust income summarized in appropriate categories necessary to complete an interested party's tax return), shall not be disclosed to any interested party;

(v) an interested party shall not receive any report on the holdings and sources of income of the trust, except a report at the end of each calendar quarter with respect to the total cash value of the interest of the interested party in the trust or the net income or loss of the trust or any reports necessary to enable the interested party to complete an individual tax return required by law or to provide the information required by subsection (a)(1) of this section, but such report shall not identify any asset or holding;

(vi) except for communications which solely consist of requests for distributions of cash or other unspecified assets of the trust, there shall be no direct or indirect communication between the trustee and an interested party with respect to the trust unless such communication is in writing and unless it relates only (I) to the general financial interest and needs of the interested party (including, but not limited to, an interest in maximizing income or long-term capital gain), (II) to the notification of the trustee of a law or regulation subsequently applicable to the reporting individual which prohibits the interested party from holding an asset, which notification directs that the asset not be held by the trust, or (III) to directions to the trustee to sell all of an asset initially placed in the trust by an interested party which in the determination of the reporting individual creates a conflict of interest or the appearance thereof due to the subsequent assumption of duties by the reporting individual (but nothing herein shall require any such direction); and

(vii) the interested parties shall make no effort to obtain information with respect to the holdings of the trust, including obtaining a copy of any trust tax return filed or any information relating thereto except as otherwise provided in this subsection.

(D) The proposed trust instrument and the proposed trustee is approved by the reporting individual's supervising ethics office.

(E) For purposes of this subsection, "interested party" means a reporting individual, his spouse, and any minor or dependent child; "broker" has the meaning set forth in section 3(a)(4) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)(4)); and "investment adviser" includes any investment adviser who, as determined under regulations prescribed by the supervising ethics office, is generally involved in his role as such an adviser in the management or control of trusts.

(F) Any trust qualified by a supervising ethics office before the effective date of title II of the Ethics Reform Act of 1989 shall continue to be governed by the law and regulations in effect immediately before such effective date.

(4)(A) An asset placed in a trust by an interested party shall be considered a financial interest of the reporting individual, for the purposes of any applicable conflict of interest statutes, regulations, or rules of the Federal Government (including section 208 of title 18, United States Code), until such time as the reporting individual is notified by the trustee that such asset has been disposed of, or has a value of less than $1,000.

(B)(i) The provisions of subparagraph (A) shall not apply with regard to a trust created for the benefit of a reporting individual, or the spouse, dependent child, or minor child of such a person, if the supervising ethics office for such reporting individual finds that—

(I) the assets placed in the trust consist of a well-diversified portfolio of readily marketable securities;

(II) none of the assets consist of securities of entities having substantial activities in the area of the reporting individual's primary area of responsibility;

(III) the trust instrument prohibits the trustee, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (3)(C) (iii) and (iv) of this subsection, from making public or informing any interested party of the sale of any securities;

(IV) the trustee is given power of attorney, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (3)(C)(v) of this subsection, to prepare on behalf of any interested party the personal income tax returns and similar returns which may contain information relating to the trust; and

(V) except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, the trust instrument provides (or in the case of a trust established prior to the effective date of this Act which by its terms does not permit amendment, the trustee, the reporting individual, and any other interested party agree in writing) that the trust shall be administered in accordance with the requirements of this subsection and the trustee of such trust meets the requirements of paragraph (3)(A).

(ii) In any instance covered by subparagraph (B) in which the reporting individual is an individual whose nomination is being considered by a congressional committee, the reporting individual shall inform the congressional committee considering his nomination before or during the period of such individual's confirmation hearing of his intention to comply with this paragraph.

(5)(A) The reporting individual shall, within thirty days after a qualified blind trust is approved by his supervising ethics office, file with such office a copy of—

(i) the executed trust instrument of such trust (other than those provisions which relate to the testamentary disposition of the trust assets), and

(ii) a list of assets which were transferred to such trust, including the category of value of each asset as determined under subsection (d) of this section.

This subparagraph shall not apply with respect to a trust meeting the requirements for being considered a qualified blind trust under paragraph (7) of this subsection.

(B) The reporting individual shall, within thirty days of transferring an asset (other than cash) to a previously established qualified blind trust, notify his supervising ethics office of the identity of each such asset and the category of value of each asset as determined under subsection (d) of this section.

(C) Within thirty days of the dissolution of a qualified blind trust, a reporting individual shall—

(i) notify his supervising ethics office of such dissolution, and

(ii) file with such office a copy of a list of the assets of the trust at the time of such dissolution and the category of value under subsection (d) of this section of each such asset.

(D) Documents filed under subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of this paragraph and the lists provided by the trustee of assets placed in the trust by an interested party which have been sold shall be made available to the public in the same manner as a report is made available under section 105 [5 U.S.C. App. § 105] and the provisions of that section shall apply with respect to such documents and lists.

(E) A copy of each written communication with respect to the trust under paragraph (3)(C)(vi) shall be filed by the person initiating the communication with the reporting individual's supervising ethics office within five days of the date of the communication.

(6)(A) A trustee of a qualified blind trust shall not knowingly and willfully, or negligently, (i) disclose any information to an interested party with respect to such trust that may not be disclosed under paragraph (3) of this subsection; (ii) acquire any holding the ownership of which is prohibited by the trust instrument; (iii) solicit advice from any interested party with respect to such trust, which solicitation is prohibited by paragraph (3) of this subsection or the trust agreement; or (iv) fail to file any document required by this subsection.

(ii) The Attorney General may bring a civil action in any appropriate United States district court against any individual who negligently violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) or (B) of this paragraph. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such individual a civil penalty in any amount not to exceed $5,000.

(7) Any trust may be considered to be a qualified blind trust if—

(A) the trust instrument is amended to comply with the requirements of paragraph (3) or, in the case of a trust instrument which does not by its terms permit amendment, the trustee, the reporting individual, and any other interested party agree in writing that the trust shall be administered in accordance with the requirements of this subsection and the trustee of such trust meets the requirements of paragraph (3)(A); except that in the case of any interested party who is a dependent child, a parent or guardian of such child may execute the agreement referred to in this subparagraph;

(B) a copy of the trust instrument (except testamentary provisions) and a copy of the agreement referred to in subparagraph (A), and a list of the assets held by the trust at the time of approval by the supervising ethics office, including the category of value of each asset as determined under subsection (d) of this section, are filed with such office and made available to the public as provided under paragraph (5)(D) of this subsection; and

(C) the supervising ethics office determines that approval of the trust arrangement as a qualified blind trust is in the particular case appropriate to assure compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

(8) A reporting individual shall not be required to report the financial interests held by a widely held investment fund (whether such fund is a mutual fund, regulated investment company, pension or deferred compensation plan, or other investment fund), if—

Any member of the Board may sign subpoenas, and members of the Board and its examiners when authorized by the Board may administer oaths, examine witnesses, and receive evidence. The attendance of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence may be required from any place in the United States at the designated place of hearing. In case of disobedience to a subpoena, the Board may invoke the aid of a court of the United States in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. In case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to a person, the United States District Court within whose jurisdiction the inquiry is carried on may issue an order requiring him to appear before the Board, or to produce documentary evidence if so ordered, or to give evidence concerning the matter in question; and any failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt thereof.

(b) The Board may order testimony to be taken by deposition at any stage of a proceeding or investigation before it as a result of this chapter. Depositions may be taken before an individual designated by the Board and having the power to administer oaths. Testimony shall be reduced to writing by the individual taking the deposition, or under his direction, and shall be subscribed by the deponent. Any person may be compelled to appear and depose and to produce documentary evidence before the Board as provided by this section.

(c) A person may not be excused from attending and testifying or from producing documentary evidence or in obedience to a subpoena on the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he is compelled to testify, or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, before the Board in obedience to a subpoena issued by it. A person so testifying is not exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

5 U.S.C. § 1508. Judicial review

A party aggrieved by a determination or order of the Merit Systems Protection Board under section 1504, 1505, or 1506 of this title may, within 30 days after the mailing of notice of the determination or order, institute proceedings for review thereof by filing a petition in the United States District Court for the district in which the State or local officer or employee resides. The institution of the proceedings does not operate as a stay of the determination or order unless—

(1) the court specifically orders a stay; and

(2) the officer or employee is suspended from his office or employment while the proceedings are pending.

A copy of the petition shall immediately be served on the Board, and thereupon the Board shall certify and file in the court a transcript of the record on which the determination or order was made. The court shall review the entire record including questions of fact and questions of law. If application is made to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence, and it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that the additional evidence may materially affect the result of the proceedings and that there were reasonable grounds for failure to adduce this evidence in the hearing before the Board, the court may direct that the additional evidence be taken before the Board in the manner and on the terms and conditions fixed by the court. The Board may modify its findings of fact or its determination or order in view of the additional evidence and shall file with the court the modified findings, determination, or order; and the modified findings of fact, if supported by substantial evidence, are conclusive. The court shall affirm the determination or order, or the modified determination or order, if the court determines that it is in accordance with law. If the court determines that the determination or order, or the modified determination or order, is not in accordance with law, the court shall remand the proceeding to the Board with directions either to make a determination or order determined by the court to be lawful or to take such further proceedings as, in the opinion of the court, the law requires. The judgment and decree of the court are final, subject to review by the appropriate United States Court of Appeals as in other cases, and the judgment and decree of the court of appeals are final, subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States on certiorari or certification as provided by section 1254 of title 28. If a provision of this section is held to be invalid as applied to a party by a determination or order of the Board, the determination or order becomes final and effective as to that party as if the provision had not been enacted.

39 U.S.C. § 3210. Franked mail transmitted by the Vice President, Members of Congress, and congressional officials

(a)(1) It is the policy of the Congress that the privilege of sending mail as franked mail shall be established under this section in order to assist and expedite the conduct of the official business, activities, and duties of the Congress of the United States.

(2) It is the intent of the Congress that such official business, activities, and duties cover all matters which directly or indirectly pertain to the legislative process or to any congressional representative functions generally, or to the functioning, working, or operating of the Congress and the performance of official duties in connection therewith, and shall include, but not be limited to, the conveying of information to the public, and the requesting of the views of the public, or the views and information of other authority of government, as a guide or a means of assistance in the performance of those functions.

(3) It is the intent of the Congress that mail matter which is frankable specifically includes, but is not limited to—

(A) mail matter to any person and to all agencies and officials of Federal, State, and local governments regarding programs, decisions, and other related matters of public concern or public service, including any matter relating to actions of a past or current Congress;

(B) the usual and customary congressional newsletter or press release which may deal with such matters as the impact of laws and decisions on State and local governments and individual citizens; reports on public and official actions taken by Members of Congress; and discussions of proposed or pending legislation or governmental actions and the positions of the Members of Congress on, and arguments for or against, such matters;

(C) the usual and customary congressional questionnaire seeking public opinion on any law, pending or proposed legislation, public issue, or subject;

(D) mail matter dispatched by a Member of Congress between his Washington office and any congressional district offices, or between his district offices;

(E) mail matter directed by one Member of Congress to another Member of Congress or to representatives of the legislative bodies of State and local governments;

(F) mail matter expressing congratulations to a person who has achieved some public distinction;

(G) mail matter, including general mass mailings, which consists of Federal laws, Federal regulations, other Federal publications, publications purchased with Federal funds, or publications containing items of general information;

(H) mail matter which consists of voter registration or election information or assistance prepared and mailed in a non-partisan manner;

(I) mail matter which constitutes or includes a biography or autobiography of any Member of, or Member-elect to, Congress or any biographical or autobiographical material concerning such Member or Member-elect or the spouse or other members of the family of such Member or Member-elect, and which is so mailed as a part of a Federal publication or in response to a specific request therefor and is not included for publicity purposes in a newsletter or other general mass mailing of the Member or Member-elect under the franking privilege; or

(J) mail matter which contains a picture, sketch, or other likeness of any Member or Member-elect and which is so mailed as a part of a Federal publication or in response to a specific request therefor and, when contained in a newsletter or other general mass mailing of any Member or Member-elect, is not of such size, or does not occur with such frequency in the mail matter concerned, as to lead to the conclusion that the purpose of such picture, sketch, or likeness is to advertise the Member or Member-elect rather than to illustrate accompanying text.

(4) It is the intent of the Congress that the franking privilege under this section shall not permit, and may not be used for, the transmission through the mails as franked mail, of matter which in its nature is purely personal to the sender or to any other person and is unrelated to the official business, activities, and duties of the public officials covered by subsection (b)(1) of this section.

(5) It is the intent of the Congress that a Member of or Member-elect to Congress may not mail as franked mail—

(A) mail matter which constitutes or includes any article, account, sketch, narration, or other text laudatory and complimentary of any Member of, or Member-elect to, Congress on a purely personal or political basis rather than on the basis of performance of official duties as a Member or on the basis of activities as a Member-elect;

(B) mail matter which constitutes or includes—

(i) greetings from the spouse or other members of the family of such Member or Member-elect unless it is a brief reference in otherwise frankable mail;

(ii) reports of how or when such Member or Member-elect, or the spouse or any other member of the family of such Member or Member-elect, spends time other than in the performance of, or in connection with, the legislative, representative, and other official functions of such Member or the activities of such Member-elect as a Member-elect;

or

(iii) any card expressing holiday greetings from such Member or Member-elect; or

(C) mail matter which specifically solicits political support for the sender or any other person or any political party, or a vote or financial assistance for any candidate for any public office.

The House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards and the Select Committee on Standards and Conduct of the Senate shall prescribe for their respective Houses such rules and regulations and shall take such other action, as the Commission or Committee considers necessary and proper for the Members and Members-elect to conform to the provisions of this clause and applicable rules and regulations. Such rules and regulations shall include, but not be limited to, provisions prescribing the time within which such mailings shall be mailed at or delivered to any postal facility to attain compliance with this clause and the time when such mailings shall be deemed to have been so mailed or delivered and such compliance attained.

(6)(A) It is the intent of Congress that a Member of, or Member-elect to, Congress may not mail any mass mailing as franked mail—

(i) if the mass mailing is postmarked fewer than 60 days (or, in the case of a Member of the House, fewer than 90 days) immediately before the date of any primary election or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) in which the Member is a candidate for reelection; or

(ii) in the case of a Member of, or Member-elect to, the House who is a candidate for any other public office, if the mass mailing—

(I) is prepared for delivery within any portion of the jurisdiction of or the area covered by the public office which is outside the area constituting the congressional district from which the Member or Member-elect was elected; or

(II) is postmarked fewer than 90 days immediately before the date of any primary election or general election

(whether regular, special, or runoff) in which the Member or Member-elect is a candidate for any other public office.

(B) Any mass mailing which is mailed by the chairman of any organization referred to in the last sentence of section 3215 of this title which relates to the normal and regular business of the organization may be mailed without regard to the provisions of this paragraph.

(C) No Member of the Senate may mail any mass mailing as franked mail if such mass mailing is postmarked fewer than 60 days immediately before the date of any primary election or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) for any national, State or local office in which such Member is a candidate for election.

(D) The Select Committee on Ethics of the Senate and the House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards shall prescribe for their respective House rules and regulations, and shall take other action as the Committee or the Commission considers necessary and proper for Members and Members-elect to comply with the provisions of this paragraph and applicable rules and regulations. The rules and regulations shall include provisions prescribing the time within which mailings shall be mailed at or delivered to any postal facility and the time when the mailings shall be deemed to have been mailed or delivered to comply with the provisions of this paragraph.

(E) As used in this section, the term "mass mailing" means, with respect to a session of Congress, any mailing of newsletters or other pieces of mail with substantially identical content (whether such mail is deposited singly or in bulk, or at the same time or different times), totaling more than 500 pieces in that session, except that such term does not include any mailing—

- (i) of matter in direct response to a communication from a person to whom the matter is mailed;
- (ii) from a Member of Congress to other Members of Congress, or to Federal, State, or local government officials; or

(F) For purposes of subparagraphs (A) and (C) if mail matter is of a type which is not customarily postmarked, the date on which such matter would have been postmarked if it were of a type customarily postmarked shall apply.

(7) A Member of the House of Representatives may not send any mass mailing outside the congressional district from which the Member was elected.

(b)(1) The Vice President, each Member of or Member-elect to Congress, the Secretary of the Senate, the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate, each of the elected officers of the House of Representatives (other than a Member of the House), the Legislative Counsels of the House of Representatives and the Senate, the Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives, and the Senate Legal Counsel, may send, as franked mail, matter relating to their official business, activities, and duties, as intended by Congress to be mailable as franked mail under subsection (a)(2) and (3) of this section.

(2) If a vacancy occurs in the Office of the Secretary of the Senate, the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate, an elected officer of the House of Representatives (other than a Member of the House), the Legislative Counsel of the House of Representatives or the Senate, the Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives, or the Senate Legal Counsel, any authorized person may exercise the franking privilege in the officer's name during the period of the vacancy.

(3) The Vice President, each Member of Congress, the Secretary of the Senate, the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate, and each of the elected officers of the House (other than a Member of the House), during the 90-day period immediately following the date on which they leave office, may send, as franked mail, matter on official business relating to the closing of their respective offices. The House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards and the Select Committee on Standards and Conduct of the Senate shall prescribe for their respective Houses such rules and regulations, and shall take such other action as the Commission or Committee considers necessary and proper, to carry out the provisions of this paragraph.

(c) Franked mail may be in any form appropriate for mail matter, including, but not limited to, correspondence, newsletters, questionnaires, recordings, facsimiles, reprints, and reproductions. Franked mail shall not include matter which is intended by Congress to be nonmailable as franked mail under subsection (a)(4) and (5) of this section.

(5) The Senate Committee on Rules and Administration and the House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards shall prescribe for their respective Houses rules and regulations governing any franked mail which is mailed under this subsection and shall by regulation limit the number of such mailings allowed under this subsection.

(6)(A) Any Member of, or Member-elect to, the House of Representatives entitled to make any mailing as franked mail under this subsection shall, before making any mailing, submit a sample or description of the mail matter involved to the House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards for an advisory opinion as to whether the proposed mailing is in compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(B) The Senate Select Committee on Ethics may require any Member of, or Member-elect to, the Senate entitled to make any mailings as franked mail under this subsection to submit a sample or description of the mail matter to the Committee for an advisory opinion as to whether the proposed mailing is in compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(7) Franked mail mailed with a simplified form of address under this subsection—

(8) For the purposes of this subsection, a congressional district includes, in the case of a Representative at Large or Representative at Large-elect, the State from which he was elected.

(e) The frankability of mail matter shall be determined under the provisions of this section by the type and content of the mail sent, or to be sent.

(f) Any mass mailing which otherwise would be permitted to be mailed as franked mail under this section shall not be so mailed unless the cost of preparing and printing the mail matter is paid exclusively from funds appropriated by Congress, except that an otherwise frankable mass mailing may contain, as an enclosure or supplement, any public service material which is purely instructional or informational in nature, and which in content is frankable under this section.

(g) Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal, State, or local law, or any regulation thereunder, the equivalent amount of postage determined under section 3216 of this title on franked mail mailed under the frank of the Vice President or a Member of Congress, and the cost of preparing or printing such frankable matter for such mailing under the frank, shall not be considered as a contribution to, or an expenditure by, the Vice President or a Member of Congress for the purpose of determining any limitation on expenditures or contributions with respect to any such official, imposed by any Federal, State, or local law or regulation, in connection with any campaign of such official for election to any Federal office.

COST DETERMINATION AND REPORTING

Franked Mail, Mass Mail, Mail Prepared Pursuant to Section 9 of These Regulations

SEC. 5. (a)(1) The postage on all franked mail shall be determined by the Senate Customer Service Records Section and reported to the U.S. Postal Service. State offices must advise their D.C. offices of their frank mail counts on a monthly basis. By the 5th of each month, the D.C. offices will inform the Service Department of these counts. Timely and accurate reports are required to ensure proper accounting of franked mail.

(2) Not more than 250 extra copies of a mass mailing printed with the frank may be returned to an office for distribution in reception rooms and at town meetings. Additional copies, printed without the frank, may be requested on a separate workorder.

(3) No mass mailing and no mailing prepared pursuant to section 9 shall be mailed until the density analysis, indicating the total number of pieces to be mailed and the locations to which they will be mailed, has been approved by the office for which the mail is being sent. Such approval shall be signified by signing a statement of approval on the density analysis sheet. The approved copy of the density analysis shall be retained by the Customer Service Records Section with the work order and a copy of the mail matter.

(4) Before processing a request for a mass mailing submitted by a Member office, the Sergeant at Arms shall determine: (1) the postage cost of the mailing, and (2) that the postage cost of the request, when added to costs incurred or encumbered for mass mailings by that Member in the fiscal year, will not exceed the amount ($50,000) allowed for mass mailings by each Member each fiscal year. (Pub.L. 103-283) If the requested mailing exceeds that amount, the Sergeant at Arms shall notify the Member and take no further action on the request.

Record Keeping

(b)(1) The Sergeant at Arms shall maintain records of the following information for each Senate office to which postage allocations are applicable:

(A) the amount of the allocation for franked mail costs;

(B) each amount of franked mail cost determined pursuant to this section;

(C) the amount of the allocation for franked mail costs for such Senate office which remains after the amounts described in paragraph (B) is added to or subtracted from, as appropriate, the amount described in paragraph (A).

(2) The Sergeant at Arms shall provide offices with monthly reports on the status of their postal allocations.

(3) The Sergeant at Arms shall provide to each Member a monthly report detailing the postage costs associated with franked mailings and mass mailings, and shall provide the office of the Financial Clerk of the Senate a monthly certification of franked mailing and mass mailing costs for each Member. The Financial Clerk of the Senate shall debit these costs from the respective expense accounts for such franked mailing and mass mailing, and issue a check in payment.

Publication of Mass Mail Costs

(c) Two weeks after the close of each calendar quarter, or as soon as practicable thereafter, the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate shall send to each Senate office a statement of the cost of postage and paper and of the other operating expenses incurred as a result of mass mailings processed for such Senate office during such quarter. The statement shall provide information regarding the cost of postage and paper and other costs, and shall distinguish the costs attributable to mass mailings. The statement shall also include the total cost per capita in the State. A compilation of all such statements shall be sent to the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration. A summary tabulation of such information shall be published quarterly in the Congressional Record and included in the semiannual Report of the Secretary of the Senate. Such summary tabulation shall set forth for each Senate office the following information: the Senate office's name, the total number of pieces of mass mail mailed during the quarter, the total cost of such mail, and, in the case of Senators, the cost of such mail divided by the total population of the State from which the Senator was elected, the total number of pieces of mass mail divided by the total population of the State from which the Senator was elected, and the allocation made to each Senator from the appropriation for official mail expenses.

PREPARATION OF OFFICIAL MAIL

SEC. 6. (a) All mass mailings shall be submitted to and mailed by the Sergeant at Arms and shall be charged against the Senator's Official Personnel and Office Expense Account, pursuant to the Legislative Appropriations Act, 1995 (Pub.L. 103-283). All mailings are to be presented to the Sergeant at Arms for accountability prior to mailing. Such mailings shall not exceed total postage cost of $50,000 in any fiscal year, and must adhere to all regulations pertaining to mass mailings.

Two Sheet Limit

(b) A mass mailing by a Senator shall not exceed two sheets of legal size paper (or their equivalent), including any enclosure that—

- (1) is prepared by or for the Senator who makes the mailing;
- or
- (2) contains information concerning, expresses the views of, or otherwise relates to the Senator who makes the mailing.

Taxpayer Expense Notice

(c) Each mass mailing by a Senate office shall contain the following notice in a prominent place on the bottom of the cover page of the document: "PREPARED, PUBLISHED, AND MAILED AT TAXPAYER EXPENSE." The notice shall be printed in a type size not smaller than 7 points.

- (2) all mail prepared pursuant to section 9 of these regulations.

Town Meeting Notices

(3) Town meeting notices shall be processed as postal patron mail, unless sending name addressed mail to selected persons in the area served by the town meeting would be more economical, or the town meeting is to be on a subject or subjects that would not be of interest to all the people who would receive a postal patron mailing. Town meeting notices may not be mailed in franked envelopes.

(4) All franked and mass mail sent from Washington, DC offices, including flats and parcels, and constituent response mail and comparable mail prepared through an office's Office Automation System, shall be picked up by the Senate Post Office and delivered by the Senate Post Office to the Sergeant at Arms.

(5) Constituent response mail mailed through the Sergeant at Arms shall be sorted and bundled by zip code and endorsed with the most economical rate unless otherwise specified by the Senator for whom the mail is mailed. Senators may specify that such mail be endorsed "AUTO PRESORT" or "BLK. RATE."

Survey Questionnaires

(f) Mass mailings, other than opinion surveys, shall not contain franked response cards or forms. Any mass mailing containing a questionnaire shall contain instructions to the recipients on how properly to return their responses.

Rates and Endorsements

(g)(1) Name addressed mass mailings shall be sent at the lowest postal rate for which the mail qualifies, unless the office for whom the mail is being mailed directs, in writing, that it be mailed at a higher rate.

(2) Bulk rate mail will have no endorsement other than "BLK. RATE" or "AUTO PRESORT."

Pictures of Missing Children

(h)(1) Unless (A) a Senator, committee chairman, or other office head for whom a mass mailing or automated mail system mailing is being sent directs that such picture and information not be printed on a particular mailing, or (B) the Sergeant at Arms finds, with respect to any or all of the mass mailings in a period of time, that the printing of such pictures and information will significantly slow the processing of the mail, all mass mailings that are mailed as self-mailers shall bear on the address panel a picture of and information about a missing child in accordance with this subsection, and all letters prepared, folded, inserted in envelopes, and mailed by the Sergeant at Arms shall be inserted in window envelopes bearing the picture of and information about the same missing child whose picture appears on mass mailings during the same work-week. No other official mail of the Senate shall be used for the mass dissemination of pictures of, and information about, missing children.

(2) Only pictures of, and information about, missing children that are provided by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (hereinafter in this section referred to as the Center) are to be printed on mass mail and envelopes subject to this section. Sergeant at Arms shall be the liaison with the Center for obtaining such pictures and information.

(3) The Sergeant at Arms and the Director of the Center or his or her designee shall make arrangements for the Sergeant at Arms to periodically receive photographs of and information about a missing child from each State from which the Center has such photographs and information.

(4) The pictures of, and information about, missing children shall be made part of the printing plates prepared for mailings subject to this section. To the greatest extent possible, mail prepared for a Senator shall bear the photograph of, and information about, a missing child from the Senator's State.

(5) Whenever information is received from the Center that a child has been found whose picture and information are currently being printed on Senate mail, the Sergeant at Arms shall determine whether or not printing plates currently in use or awaiting use shall be discarded and new plates prepared. Whenever information is received from the Center that a child has been found whose picture and information were previously printed on Senate mail, the Sergeant at Arms shall notify offices on whose mail such picture and information were printed, and such offices shall destroy any extra copies of such mail that are on hand.

(6) The Sergeant at Arms shall transmit to the Center at the end of each month a list of the mass mailings and automated mail system letters mailed that month indicating for each mailing the State to which mailed, the number of pieces, and the child whose picture appeared thereon.

ORANGE BAG MAIL AND EXPRESS MAIL

Orange Bag Mail

SEC. 7. (a) Orange bags are used by offices only for intra-office mail from Washington, DC to State offices. These bags are charged at priority rates. (Orange bags used by State offices are only for transportation of franked mail to the Post Office.)

Express Mail

(b) The frank may not be used for Express mail. Expenses for non-frankable official mail, such as Express mail, Overseas mail, Registered and Certified mail, etc., may be defrayed from any source of funds only as provided by subsections (d) and (I) of section 311 of the Legislative Branch Appropriations Act, 1991 (Pub.L. 101-520). Offices are advised that the Senate Post Office has created a system through which offices may present Express mail, together with an authorization card similar to the cards used to purchase office supplies from the Keeper of Stationery, and have the cost of the Express mail charged to the office's official office expense account. Offices choosing to use Express mail originating outside Washington, DC may establish commercial accounts with the U.S. Postal Service instead of pre-paying each mailing.

RESTRICTION ON THE USE OF MASS MAIL AND TOWN MEETING NOTICES PRIOR TO A PRIMARY OR BIENNIAL FEDERAL GENERAL ELECTION

SEC. 8. (a) No Senator may send mass mailings during the period beginning 60 days before the date of any biennial Federal general election. The 60-day pre-election moratorium on mass mailings does not apply to a committee when such mass mailings are mailed under the frank of the Chairman and relate to the normal and regular business of the committee.

Use of mass mail by Senators who are candidates is further restricted (unless the Senator's candidacy has been certified as uncontested pursuant to procedures of the Committee on Rules and Administration):

(b) Mass mailings may not be sent fewer than 60 days immediately before the date of any primary or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) for any Federal, State, or local office in which a Member of the Senate is a candidate for election, unless the candidacy of the Senator in such elections is uncontested.

(c) Town meeting notices in excess of 500 notices per town meeting may not be sent fewer than 60 days immediately before the date of any primary or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) for any Federal, State, or local office in which a Member of the Senate is a candidate for election. There is no exception for uncontested candidacies. (Pub.L. 103-283)

(d) Solicitation forms provided by a Member through a mass mailing which are intended to be mailed back by constituents, may not be responded to during the 60 days immediately before the date of any primary or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) for any Federal, State, or local office in which a Member of the Senate is a candidate for election.

RESPONSES TO ORGANIZED MAIL CAMPAIGNS

SEC. 9. (a) Whenever a Senator determines that he or she is the recipient of mail generated by an organized mail campaign and that the resources of his or her office are not sufficient to enter the names and addresses into the office's mail management system, the Senator may use the services of commercial vendors under contracts approved by the Committee on Rules and Administration. This service converts names and addresses to machine readable media which then may be added to such Senator's mail management system. The Sergeant at Arms has the responsibility for the processing and administrative support for this service.

(b) Expenses for work performed in accordance with this section shall be paid from funds from a Senator's Official Personnel and Office Expense Account and shall be reported to offices with their quarterly mass mail cost reports required by section 5(c).

CHANGE OF ADDRESS PROGRAMS

SEC. 10. Offices may have names and addresses on their mail files processed through the National Change of Address (NCOA) Program. A Senator may use any of the vendors certified by the U.S. Postal Service to provide NCOA service. A current list of vendors can be obtained from the Senate Computer Center. Processing costs charged by the NCOA vendor and transportation costs charged by the delivery service shall be billed, to, and paid by, such Senator from his or her Official Personnel and Office Expense Account.

(a) Such Senator shall request the Senate Computer Center to prepare his or her mail file for shipment to the vendor selected by the Senator, using the delivery service selected by the Senator. A Sergeant at Arms "Request for Assistance" form shall be used for this purpose, and shall include a statement in the following format:

Processing and shipping costs will be paid by the Office of Senator _____ (insert name).
Bills are to be submitted to _____ (insert address).

Senator's Signature

(b) The Senate Computer Center will provide the Senator with information about the mail file that will assist the Senator in estimating processing costs that will be incurred. Please contact the Sergeant at Arms for other options regarding change of address.

(c) The Computer Center will prepare the Senator's file for processing, and arrange for transportation, using the delivery service designated by the Senator. The NCOA vendor and the delivery service will be provided with copies of the "Request for Assistance" for their use in billing the Senator for their services. On receipt of the corrected file from the NCOA vendor, the Senate Computer Center will restore it to the Senate Mail File System or provide the updated file to the appropriate vendor.

LOUISIANA

Unless otherwise designated, references are to the Louisiana Statutes Annotated, Title 18 (2004) and to the 2005 Cumulative Annual Pocket Part.

Primary Elections, when held.

First Saturday in October. (§§ 402(B)(1), 1272(A)). (October 7, 2006; see court decision below). The primary election involves all candidates; the two candidates with the highest number of votes appear on the general election ballot on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November (November 7, 2006) (§§ 402(B)(2), 481, 482, 1272). No election of any kind shall be held on any of the days of Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur, Sukkoth, Shimini Atzereth, Simchas Torah, the first two days and the last two days of Passover, Shavuoth, Fast of AV, or the three days preceding Easter. If the date of any election falls on any of the above named days, the election shall be held on the same weekday of the preceding week (§ 402(G)).

Nominating Papers, Petitions, Etc.

A person who desires to become a candidate in a primary election shall qualify as a candidate by timely filing notice of his candidacy, which shall be accompanied either by the qualifying fee and any additional fee imposed or by a nominating petition (§ 461).

Fall primary

According to statute, Louisiana has a fall primary on October 7, 2006, which is a one-ballot primary in which all candidates appear (§ 401). The candidate who receives a majority of the votes in the primary is elected (§511). The general election on November 7, 2006, serves as a runoff for the two top vote-getting candidates without a majority of the votes (§481).

In Foster v. Love, the U.S. Supreme Court held that Louisiana statutes (§§18:402(B)(1), 18:401(B), 18:481 and 18:511(A)), providing for an “open primary” in October for election of Members of Congress and specifying that any candidate receiving a majority vote in that primary “is elected,” conflicts with federal law, 2 U.S.C. §§1 and 7, providing for a uniform federal election day in November, and is void to the extent of the conflict.

In the decision of the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, affirmed by the Supreme Court, it remanded with directions that the plaintiffs’ request for injunctive relief be reconsidered if the Louisiana Legislature failed to act timely to resolve the conflict occasioned by the October primary. The Legislature declined to act in a 1998 special session called by the Governor and the district court did as directed and ordered elections consistent with the provisions of the Louisiana election code, federal statutes, and the holdings of the appellate court and the Supreme Court. The appellate court affirmed the orders of the district court in Love v. Foster, 147 F.3d 383 (5th Cir. 1998). The district court ordered that the upcoming congressional election and, absent intervening action by the Legislature, future elections for members of Congress shall be held on federal election day, the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November. In 2000, that date will be November 7. In the event no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast, the court ordered a runoff election on the next available election date contained in Louisiana law, §512(C), the third Saturday after the date on which the results of the election resulting in a tie were promulgated. The election results are promulgated by the Secretary of State on the twelfth day after the election day, unless that day is a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday, in which case the results are promulgated on the next day which is not a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday (§574(C)). In 2000, the runoff date would be December 9. Otherwise, the elections are to be conducted in full accordance with the Louisiana election code as currently written.

Notice of candidacy

A notice of candidacy shall be in writing and shall state the candidate’s name, the office he seeks, the address of his domicile, the parish, ward, and precinct where he is registered to vote, and the political party, if any, with which he is registered as being affiliated. The notice of candidacy shall also include a certificate, signed by the candidate, certifying that he had read the notice of his candidacy and that all the statements contained in it are true and correct, and shall be executed before a notary public or witnessed by two persons who are registered to vote on the office the candidate seeks. The notice of candidacy shall also include a certificate, signed by the candidate, certifying that he is knowledgeable of certain prohibitions regarding the posting of political campaign signs (§463). ginning on the third Wednesday in August and ending on the following Friday (§§ 462(A), 467, 468).

For a partisan primary in a jurisdiction using the physically separate ballot format, a voter may write in on a party ballot only the names of write-in candidates who affiliate with that major political party. No write-in vote made for any person who has not filed a declaration of candidacy pursuant to RCW 29A.24.311 is valid if that person filed for the same office, either as a regular candidate or a write-in candidate, at the preceding primary. If the vacancy occurs on or after the first day for filing under RCW 29A.24.050 and on or before the second Friday following the close of the filing period, a special filing period of 3 normal business days shall be fixed by the governor and notice thereof given to all media, including press, radio, and television within the area in which the vacancy election is to be held, to the end

CAMPAIGN ACTIVITIES BY CONGRESSIONAL EMPLOYEES

CAMPAIGN ACTIVITIES BY CONGRESSIONAL EMPLOYEES¹

A. GENERAL CAMPAIGN ACTIVITIES

There are no Federal statutes, regulations, or rules of Congress which specifically prohibit congressional employees from voluntarily engaging in general campaign activity. The broad prohibition against partisan political campaigning, even on one's own free time, which had been in effect for most executive branch employees in the federal civil service under what was commonly known as the "Hatch Act," has not been applicable to the staff of elected federal officials, such as congressional employees.² Apart from certain restrictions in the area of campaign funds and finances,³ Senate staffers may continue to participate in political campaign activities during their free time.

Although there are no broad prohibitions on campaign activities by congressional staff on their own free time, there do exist general guidelines, ethical standards, and rules in Congress which indicate that official congressional staff, since they are federal employees paid by monies appropriated from the United States Treasury, are considered to be compensated for services rendered for public purposes, that is, for the performance of "official" congressional duties,⁴ rather than for personal campaigning for a Member. It is a general principle of federal appropriations law that federal monies are to be used only for the purposes for which they were appropriated.⁵ These various standards and principles have been generally interpreted in Congress to mean that employees may not engage in campaign activities on behalf of a Member to the neglect of their official duties; but that once employees have fulfilled their official congressional duties for which they are compensated from public funds, they may then generally engage in partisan campaign activities on their own "free time" or "off-duty" hours.⁶

In addition to congressional ethical standards and rulings, there may be potential legal implications if salaries are claimed from public appropriations for individuals merely for their performance of non-official, campaign services on behalf of a Member, or anyone else. Although federal court decisions have shown that there may be questions of justiciability of civil liability claims under the specific provisions of the federal False Claims Act,⁷ criminal liability might possibly attach in certain severe factual circumstances where schemes to compensate individuals from public monies merely for campaign services rendered to a Member, or to another, are considered to constitute a fraud against the government,⁸ or a “theft” of government salary or services.⁹

Even though an individual is on a Member’s official payroll and receiving salary for official duties, there is no flat prohibition upon an employee of a Member of Congress receiving outside compensation from a campaign committee for campaign related duties during such person’s non-congressional and non-official time.¹⁰ In fact, if a staffer is to perform extensive campaign activities for the Member, such person might have his or her official salary reduced commensurate with the decrease in official duties to be performed during this period, or be removed from the official payroll, and have the campaign committee compensate that person for the outside political campaign duties performed, to assist in avoiding any implication that official funds are compensating one for political activities.

Finally, at any time, but particularly during a campaign, the public’s perception of the conduct of an elected official and his or her staff may have significance beyond the mere conformity with the technical requirements of rules or statutes. When official staff are involved in a Member’s reelection campaign, such activity may be an easy target for political opponents seeking media attention by charging that official government personnel are being used for private political campaigning, raising the specter of appearances of impropriety. Although one can not insulate a Member of Congress/candidate completely from specious and unfair political attacks, sufficiently precise and accurate record keeping and time logs of one’s official congressional work and duties, for which one receives a salary from the government, may be useful for documentation during a period when the staffer is also working on the campaign during his or her “free” or “non-official” time.

1. CAMPAIGNING AND OFFICIAL DUTIES

A. Congressional Standards and Rulings

Congressional standards and rulings on campaign activities by staffers, and on the use of staff appropriations to pay individuals for campaign services, have established a clear ethical principle and rule to be observed in both Houses of Congress: Congressional staff are compensated from public funds for the performance of official congressional duties; that is, to assist a Member with his official legislative and representative duties, rather than merely for services rendered to the Member's reelection campaign. In a federal court decision concerning the congressional franking privilege, the United States District Court for the District of Columbia noted Congress' recognition of the principle that public funds are to be used for official congressional, and not for campaign purposes: "It is clear from the record that Congress has recognized the basic principle that government funds should not be spent to help incumbents gain reelection."¹¹ However, a congressional staffer may engage in campaign activities on his own "free time" or "off duty" hours as long as the staffer fulfills, and does not neglect those official duties required of him.

Since congressional staff may work irregular hours often depending upon the time the Senate or House stays in session, and since a staffer's specific official duties are assigned by the Member within his discretion, it is generally recognized that a staffer's "free time" or "off-duty" hours might occur in what is typically considered the conventional work day. It is also recognized that in the practical operation of a Member's office some minimal campaign related activities might unavoidably be performed by a Member's staff in the course of their official congressional duties for a Member. It has been suggested that although some minimal "overlap" may reasonably exist, it is the Member's responsibility to keep such campaign related activities by staff during duty hours to a "de minimis" amount, and to observe the general principle that staff are compensated from public funds for their assistance in the Member's official legislative and representative duties, rather than merely for services to the Member's own political campaign.

B. Senate Rulings and Interpretations

The use of staff on political campaigns was reviewed during the 95th Congress by various committees in the Senate. In recommending changes in the Senate Rules, the Special Committee on Official Conduct of the 95th Congress had proposed a rule which would have specifically required Senate employees who engaged "substantially" in campaign work to be removed from the Senate payroll. The proposal was dropped from the final measure, however, and as a compromise the measure directed the Senate Rules and Administration Committee to study this issue and to report proposals concerning the use of official staff by holders of public office.¹² The Special Committee had been desirous of some specific rule to express the existing general standard with regard to Senate employees since it felt that "the public is entitled to know that those employees in the Senate, receiving government salaries, are doing the public's business and not working directly for the reelection of their employer."¹³

In its report on the rules, standards, and laws governing the use of Senate staff for political campaigns, as directed by S. Res. 110, 95th Congress, the Senate Rules and Administration Committee found that the standard and practice in the Senate was that staffers may engage in political campaign activities on behalf of their employer as long as they fulfill the official congressional duties required of them. That report states in part as follows:

. . . [T]he general rule . . . which has been relied on to date by Senators and officers and employees of the Senate for guidance [is]: that members of the Senator's staff are permitted to engage in the reelection campaign of a Senator, as long as that staff member does not neglect his or her Senate duties. The nature and scope of a staff member's Senate duties are determined by each Member of the Senate. Such duties necessarily encompass political and representational responsibilities, as well as legislative, administrative, or clerical ones, and are often performed during irregular and unconventional work hours. A similar rule of practice has been followed in the House of Representatives, and would be generally applicable to other Federal employees not covered by the Hatch Act.¹⁴

The report of the Senate Rules and Administration Committee on a 1977 amendment to the Senate Rule restricting campaign fund activity of Senate staff (now Rule XLI) is further illustrative of the standards in the Senate concerning campaigning by staff employees. The Committee concluded that Senate employees may participate in campaign activities on behalf of a Senator "so long as they don't neglect their Senate duties"; and may do so during vacation time, annual leave or on a leave of absence:

The committee is not aware of any laws which prohibit individuals who are part of a Senator's staff from participating in a Senator's reelection campaign as long as they do not neglect their Senate duties, and the committee does not feel there should be such proscriptions. Furthermore, it is neither illegal nor a violation of Senate Rules for a member of a Senator's staff to work full time in political campaigns while on annual leave or vacation time or while on leave of absence from his or her Senate duties, and the committee feels there should not be any proscription of such actions.¹⁵

Subsequent interpretative rulings by the Senate Select Committee on Ethics have similarly expressed the ethical principle and rule to be observed in the Senate. Although the Senate Rules do not specifically require it, the Senate Select Committee on Ethics has advised Members and staff that to assure that a staffer is performing official duties commensurate with his congressional salary, a staffer who is to engage in political campaign activities on behalf of a Member for any "extended period" should be removed from the public payrolls, or have his salary reduced to reflect his reduction in official duties. Some of these rulings are excerpted below:

Interpretative Ruling No. 3, May 5, 1977:

No provision of the Code of Official Conduct prohibits staff from attending a campaign fundraising event outside office hours or while on recorded vacation leave. The interim position of this Committee is that Senators should encourage staff to remove themselves from the payroll during periods which they expect to be heavily involved in campaign activities. Routine participation after hours or an annual leave time is not now prohibited by the Code of Conduct.

Interpretative Ruling No. 59, September 13, 1977:

. . . Members can and should remove staff from the Senate payroll when they are to participate for an extended period in substantial campaign activities. One is not removed from the payroll by being placed in a "terminal vacation leave" status.

Interpretative Ruling No. 88, November 16, 1977:

Although the staff member cannot make a direct contribution to a Member of Congress (and thus cannot attend as a paying guest), nothing in the Code of Official Conduct prohibits the staff member from attending the fundraiser on his own time

Interpretative Ruling No. 154, June 22, 1978:

As to the possibility of minimal involvement by a staff assistant with campaign-related business, the Select Committee believes that in a Senator's reelection campaign there might be some inadvertent and minimal overlap between the duties of a Senator's staff with respect to the Senator's representational function and his reelection campaign. However, a Senator has the responsibility to insure that such an overlap is of a de minimis nature and that staff duties do not conflict with campaign responsibilities.

Interpretative Ruling No. 194, October 8, 1978:

. . . [T]he Select Committee ruled that it is preferable for a Senator to either reduce the salary or remove an employee from the Senate payroll when the employee intends to spend additional time on campaign activities, over and above leave or vacation time. The Committee recognizes that staff members ought to be able to use bona fide vacation time for political campaign activity. As long as an office has an established and reasonable annual leave policy, and as long as an employee takes no more than the amount of time normally allowed for such leave, the Committee believes that an employee may engage in campaign activities during that time.

Interpretative Ruling No. 263, June 12, 1979:

Other than the restrictions on political fund activity in Senate Rule 49 [now Rule 41], no rule expressly prohibits campaign activity by staff during off-duty hours or during established and reasonable annual leave time. In addition, the Committee believes that Senate employees may engage in limited campaign-related activities during Senate hours, provided that the time involved is de minimis and such activity does not interfere with the employee's official Senate duties. However, if an employee intends to spend a substantial amount of time on campaign activities, the Committee has ruled that a Senator should use his or her best judgment in determining whether to remove the staff member from the Senate payroll or reduce his or her salary commensurately.

Interpretative Ruling No. 302, February 21, 1980:

It is a Member's prerogative in staffing his or her office to prescribe an employee's duties and hours, and to consent to certain outside activities. Other than the restrictions on political fund activity in Senate Rule 41, no rule expressly prohibits political activity by staff during off-duty hours or during established and reasonable annual leave time. However, if an employee intends to spend a substantial amount of time on campaign activities, the Committee has ruled that a Senator should use his or her best judgment in determining whether to remove the staff member from the Senate payroll or reduce his or her Senate salary commensurately.

Interpretative Ruling No. 326, July 1, 1980:

There is no provision of the Code of Official Conduct which prohibits such service [as a political party's National Committee Chairwoman from staffer's home state during off-hours and without compensation] by a member of the personal staff of a Senator. As S. Rept. 95-241 (95th Cong.) indicated, except for prohibitions of Rule 41 with respect to the handling of campaign funds, "it is neither illegal nor a violation of Senate Rules for a member of a Senator's staff to work full-time in political campaigns while on annual leave or vacation time or while on leave of absence from his or her Senate duties. . . ."

If involvement in any campaign activity becomes extensive, however, the supervising Member may find it wise to remove the employee from the payroll for the period of extensive campaign involvement. See for example, Interpretative Ruling No. 3 (May 5, 1977); Interpretative Ruling No. 309 (February 21, 1980). This is important for the supervising Senator to recognize, because the position of National Committeeman or Committeewoman for a political party is an important position which could conceivably require a great deal of time on the part of the Senate employee.

Interpretative Ruling No. 402, October 18, 1985

In light of the Senator's apparent determination that his secretary's services for his campaign committees do not conflict with her Senate duties, her receipt of compensation is not prohibited by Senate Rules.

C. Official Duties Versus Campaign Activities

Although the ethical standards, guidelines and rules in Congress discussed above generally permit "campaign" activities on behalf of a Member once staffers have fulfilled their "official" duties, there are generally no specific job descriptions for committee or Member staff which are comparable to the job descriptions currently in force in the civil service. There is therefore no detailing of what a staffer's "official" duties may entail, or precisely what activities are involved in or excluded from assisting a Member with his "official and representative" duties. Traditionally, the specific duties of a Member's staff are within the discretion of the employing Member to best meet the Member's needs and those of his or her constituents. As to the exercise of this discretion, however, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, in upholding a conviction of a Member of Congress for using clerk hire appropriations to compensate individuals who performed mostly non-congressional duties, agreed with expert testimony that it is "within a congressman's discretion to define the parameters of an employee's responsibilities as long as those responsibilities relate to the congressman's 'official and representative' duties."¹⁶

The general distinction between "official" legislative and representative duties on the one hand, and "campaign" activities on the other, is a traditional distinction of long-standing in Congress. For example, in the use of the Member's franking (free mailing) privilege Members may frank "official" mail matter but may not send "political" campaign material under the frank. The franking statute and regulations instruct Members and staff that it is permissible to frank materials relating to "the conduct of the official business, activities, and duties of the Congress" . . . covering "all matters which directly or indirectly pertain to the legislative process or to any congressional representative functions generally, or to the functioning, working or operating of the Congress and the performance of official duties in connection therewith. . . ."¹⁷ but that the frank is not available for sending material complimentary or laudatory of a Member on a purely "political basis rather than on the basis or performance of official duties" nor material "which specifically solicits political support for the sender or any other person or any political party, or a vote or financial assistance for any candidate for any public office."¹⁸ In upholding the franking statute against a constitutional challenge, a three judge panel of the District Court for the District of Columbia noted that Congress had drawn a statutory distinction between "official mailings, those related directly to the legislative and representative functions of Congress," and "unofficial" mailings such as political material.¹⁹ The Court stated: "It is clear from the record that Congress has recognized the basic principle that government funds should not be spent to help incumbents gain reelection. The details of the franking scheme, including its distinction between official and unofficial mailings, appear to be rationally designed to work for that end." Id. This distinction between campaign activities and official duties is also recognized and inherent in congressional rules and regulations such as the Senate rule on unofficial office accounts,²⁰ computer facilities,²¹ and in other statutory provisions such as the Federal Election Campaign Act (see 2 U.S.C. § 439a) and the provision of the franking law on "mass mailings" of newsletters and similar material.²²

Although the distinction between "official" duties and "campaign" activities is a common one in congressional matters, because of the various public, political, and official roles which a Member may assume in connection with his position in Congress, there may be instances where this distinction is less clear than in others, or where one area may intrude into the other. As noted by the United States District Court in the franking case: "To state the obvious, it is simply impossible to draw and enforce a perfect line between the official and political business of Members of Congress.”²³

Some confusion may initially be caused by the labelling of some of the official representational duties of a Member of Congress as “political” in nature. The Supreme Court in a case concerning the immunity of Members from prosecution under the constitutional “Speech or Debate Clause”, noted that in addition to the “purely legislative activities protected by the Speech or Debate Clause,” there are representational duties of a Member of Congress which, although “appropriate” and “legitimate,” might be characterized as “political in nature . . . because they are a means of developing continuing support for future elections,” and which do not have “the protection afforded by the Speech or Debate Clause.”²⁴ These “appropriate” representational duties of Members of Congress may include “legitimate errands performed for constituents, the making of appointments with Government agencies, assistance in securing Government contracts, preparing so-called ‘newsletters’ to constituents, news releases, and speeches delivered outside of Congress.”²⁵ This distinction made by the Supreme Court, it should be noted, was for purposes only of coverage of the Speech or Debate Clause immunity, which the Court said extends to the official legislative duties of a Member, but not necessarily to all of the official representative functions of the Member.

Even though these constituent services and communications to constituents, which are part of the Member’s legitimate representative duties, might arguably be characterized as “political in nature,” they are generally distinguishable, as far as the congressional ethical principle involved, from those activities typically understood by congressional rule, statute, and practice to be political “campaign” activities, such as the solicitation of political contributions, canvassing votes for a candidate in a primary or general election, organizing a political fundraiser, coordinating campaign volunteer lists, etc. The Supreme Court in Buckley v. Valeo,²⁶ noted that a particular statute in the federal campaign laws is specifically directed at Congress’ accommodating this distinction “between the legitimate and necessary efforts of legislators to communicate with their constituents” on the one hand, and “activities designed to win elections by legislators in their other role as politicians,” on the other.²⁷

There is some practical concern, however, expressed over the potential and arguably unavoidable, “overlap” or intrusion of some minimal campaign related activities into the official operation of a Member’s office. In responding to official inquiries from the press or inquiries from constituents, congressional staffers may need to respond to questions dealing with issues or matters which relate to or bear upon a Member’s political campaign as well as his official legislative and representative duties.²⁸ Similarly, scheduling assistance and information from the Member's official staff may be requested by the campaign staff to assure that the Member's campaign schedule does not conflict with his official agenda. Both ethics committees in Congress realize that some of this minimal overlapping may exist in the practical operation of a Member's office, and thus the Senate Select Committee on Ethics has noted that "there might be some inadvertent and minimal overlap" between the staff's official duties and activities related to a Member's campaign but that "a Senator has the responsibility to insure that such an overlap is of a de minimis nature and that staff duties do not conflict with campaign responsibilities."²⁹ Similarly, the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct has recognized that in a practical sense it may not be possible to have an absolute separation of duties during the work day but that the "Committee expects Members of the House to abide by the general proposition" that staffers are to work on campaign related matters during their "free time" after the completion of their official duties.³⁰

To avoid some of the more serious problems which may arise by the performance of regular campaign responsibilities by a staff employee on the public payroll, the Senate Select Committee on Ethics has recommended on various occasions that when a staffer is to engage in campaign activities on behalf of the Member for any "extended" period or to any "substantial" degree that the Member either remove the staffer from the Senate payroll for that period and compensate the staffer with campaign funds, or reduce the staffer's compensation from public funds commensurately with the reduction in official duties of the staffer during his time of increased campaign activities.³¹ Congressional employees may also campaign on behalf of a Member of Congress while on established annual leave or other vacation time.³² There is no general prohibition in the House or the Senate on a congressional staffer receiving reimbursement or compensation from a campaign committee for campaign work performed on off-duty, non-official time, even while still on the congressional payroll and being compensated from official funds for the performance of official congressional duties.³³

2. FALSE CLAIMS, FRAUD AND THEFT: FEDERAL CRIMINAL LAW

In addition to the congressional ethical standards and guidelines discussed, it is possible that legal implications may arise for Members and staff if individuals, compensated from public funds, perform no congressional duties or only a nominal percentage of official duties for such compensation, but rather mainly provide campaign services to the Member. It has been argued that since a Member makes a claim to the United States Government for the staffer's salary, and that since such salary is intended as compensation for assisting the Member in his "official" duties, then turn such explanations into campaign activities." Senate Select Committee on Ethics, Interpretative Ruling No. 419, September 22, 1987.

using that individual for other than the official purposes contemplated might involve a false claim, a false statement, or a fraud upon the government. This may be particularly relevant where the employing Member or committee chairman must certify in writing that the employee is regularly performing official duties.

There have been several civil suits initiated by private citizens under the False Claims Act (31 U.S.C. §§ 3729, 3730) against Members of Congress for compensating individuals from the clerk-hire or other staff allowances when those individuals allegedly did not perform any, or did not mainly perform, official congressional duties for such compensation. These civil suits, however, have generally been dismissed on jurisdictional or procedural grounds without a trial on the merits of the facts alleged.³⁴

In United States ex rel. Joseph v. Cannon,³⁵ a three judge panel of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia dismissed as a non-justiciable “political question” a civil suit under the False Claims Act initiated by a private citizen against a Member of Congress for making claims for a staffer’s official salary when that staffer allegedly worked extensively and exclusively on the Member’s reelection campaign for a period of time while continuing to receive a salary from appropriated funds. The Court of Appeals noted that “political questions are denied judicial scrutiny” because the courts are “underequipped to formulate national policies or develop standards of conduct for matters not legal in nature.”³⁶ The courts might thus find a non-justiciable political question where there is a “lack of judicially discoverable and manageable standards” for resolving an issue. As to the use of senatorial staff on a Member’s reelection campaign, the court found that the lack of specificity in the ethical guidelines existing in 1976 concerning “official” duties of Senate staff, and the failure of the Senate to promulgate a specific rule on campaigning by staffers at that time “reveals the lack of firm standard during that period relevant to this case, and vividly portrays the keen difficulties with which courts would be faced were they to attempt to design guidelines on their own.”³⁷ Thus, the Court found that “in the absence of any discernible legal standard . . . we are loathe to give the False Claims Act an interpretation that would require the judiciary to develop rules of behavior for the Legislative Branch.”³⁸ In dismissing the action, the Court of Appeals warned that “[i]n doing so, we do not, of course, say that Members of Congress or their aides may defraud the Government without subjecting themselves to statutory liabilities.”

The Court of Appeals’ warning concerning statutory liability for fraud is well taken considering past criminal actions against former Members of the House of Representatives for false statements and fraud involving the compensation of individuals from clerk-hire appropriations when such individuals performed few or no official congressional duties in return for that compensation. In an appeal of a criminal case,³⁹ the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the conviction of a Member of the House for false statements (18 U.S.C. § 1001) and mail fraud (18 U.S.C. § 1341) for a scheme whereby individuals were being compensated from public funds, that is, clerk hire appropriations, but were performing only nominal official congressional duties. The Court of Appeals found that although the “employees” involved may have performed some official congressional services for the Member, “only a nominal percentage of [the employees’] responsibilities were congressionally related,” and thus there was sufficient evidence for a jury to conclude that the employees were paid from the clerk hire allowance “with the intention of compensating them for services rendered to the [defendant’s private business concern] or the defendant.”⁴⁰ Although it might be argued that “it was a matter of [the Member’s] discretion to fix their duties and salaries as congressional employees,” the “defendant’s representations to the House Office of Finance that [the employees] were bona fide congressional employees were fraudulent and material in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1001.”⁴¹

United States v. Pintar,⁴² did not involve Members of Congress and congressional employees, but did involve a fact situation where federal monies in a federal program were being used to pay persons for political campaign activities. In that case the court upheld a charge of a conspiracy to defraud the United States (18 U.S.C. § 371) where there was “strong evidence that the Pintars used [their authority] to direct employees whose salaries were funded by federal grants to perform political work during office hours,”⁴³ and that such concerted activities constituted a “scheme to impair, obstruct, defeat or interfere with lawful governmental functions.”⁴⁴

In a criminal action specifically involving campaign activities by congressional employees compensated from clerk-hire funds, the Department of Justice in 1978 obtained a criminal indictment against a former Member of the House of Representatives, charging that the former Member while in Congress had defrauded the United States by placing 11 persons on his congressional payroll to pay them for operating and staffing various campaign headquarters in the former Member’s reelection campaign.⁴⁵ The indictment specifically charged violations of the mail fraud statute (18 U.S.C. § 1341), among other violations, for using the mails to send payroll checks in executing “a scheme and artifice to defraud the United States of America, and to obtain money and property by means of false and fraudulent pretenses, representations and promises. . . .”⁴⁶ The “scheme,” as charged in the indictment, was that the defendant “would prepare and submit . . . clerk-hire allowance and payroll authorization forms to the Office of Finance of the House of Representatives which falsely represented that [certain named individuals] were bona fide employees of the defendant's congressional staff and that they were performing the type of services which entitled them to salaries stated in the clerk-hire forms," while willfully concealing that those named individuals were in fact placed on the House payroll "in order to pay them for their work in maintaining, staffing, and operating various campaign headquarters opened for the purpose of reelecting the defendant to Congress."⁴⁷ On February 13, 1979, the defendant/former Member of Congress pleaded guilty to the mail fraud and income tax evasion charges in this indictment in connection with those activities charged, and on June 12, 1979 was sentenced to two years in prison and fined $11,000.

A congressional employee has also pleaded guilty in United States District Court to a criminal information in United States v. Bresnahan,⁴⁸ concerning the receipt of a government salary and expenses for performing campaign duties in a congressional campaign. The criminal information charged that the defendant, an Administrative Assistant to a Member of Congress, "traveled and caused other employees" of the Congressman "to travel from Washington, D.C., to Long Beach, California to work on the primary and general election campaign of a Congressional candidate. The defendant, at the direction of another, made it appear and directed the other employees to make it appear, that they were conducting official business. In fact, they worked on a Congressional campaign." During the time they worked on the congressional campaign, the employees "claimed to be performing official business, [and] the United States House of Representatives reimbursed the defendant and the other employees for diem expenses . . . [and they] also received money in the form of salary paid for the time that they campaigned." The congressional staffer pleaded guilty to 18 U.S.C. § 641, theft of government property, that is, the "salary and expenses paid to them by the United States House of Representatives. . . ."

The substantial conformance by Members and staff to the general ethical guidelines and principles established by the rulings and opinions of the Senate Select Committee on Ethics regarding the limitation of regular campaigning by congressional staff to their own "free time" or "off-duty" hours may thus work to assist a Member in assuring that public appropriations are not being utilized merely to finance one's own political campaign, and that persons compensated from staff appropriations are in fact "bona fide" congressional employees, performing the official congressional duties contemplated in the appropriation of their salaries, to which the Member may have certified in writing. This would apparently prevent the types of abuses and misrepresentations concerning the misuse of staff appropriations and public funds which have led to criminal fraud and theft charges against Members and staff in the past.

3. RUNNING FOR ELECTIVE OFFICE

As noted above, congressional employees do not come within the restrictions of the so-called "Hatch Act." Thus, unlike executive branch employees who are still barred from running for partisan elective office,⁴⁹ the permissible campaign activities by staff employees of Members of Congress include running as a candidate for partisan elective office. A congressional employee is thus not prohibited by statute, or by congressional rule from running for such positions as delegate to party conventions, or for elective state, local or federal office. The considerations discussed above concerning electioneering or campaigning during "free time," as opposed to "working hours" for which compensation is derived from the United States Treasury, would, of course, apply to running and campaigning for elective office in one's own campaign, as well as to campaign activity for another. Furthermore, any specific rules or guidelines of a particular Member's office should be examined and considered before undertaking any such outside endeavors.

Although congressional employees are not expressly prohibited from running for elective office, they may effectively be barred from simultaneously holding a full-time elective office and retaining their congressional employment. Federal statutes such as those dealing with dual pay and dual employment, and precedents and constitutional provisions with regard to "incompatible offices" would eliminate the possibility of holding two, full-time paid positions or offices with the federal government.

As far as State, local, or any other outside positions, various Senate Rules concerning outside employment and conflicts of interest, may severely restrict, and effectively prohibit, a congressional employee from holding an outside, full-time position. When a State or local elective position, however, is intended merely to be a part-time position, entailing only evening and weekend hours or intermittent duties, the potential "time" conflict with one's congressional employment may be eliminated. In such an instance, when there is no apparent incompatibility or "subject matter" conflict of interest between the State or local office and one's congressional employment, a congressional employee might be able to hold such a position when approval is received from his or her employing congressional office.

Interpretative Rulings by the Senate Select Committee on Ethics have, for example, expressly permitted a full-time employee of a Member (the Member's press relations coordinator) to serve as a city council member at a salary of less than $200 a month.⁵⁰ Similarly, the Select Committee ruled that if adjustments were made in the official congressional salary of a staff member to reflect the decrease in the congressional work performed by the staffer because of a new position held, and if a restriction on Senate duties were imposed if necessary to avoid conflicts of interest, the staffer could run for and hold a compensated elected office in the state legislature and still remain a Senate employee in the district office of the Member.⁵¹

Although federal laws and rules might not prohibit such office-holding, state and local statutes and ordinances of the jurisdiction concerned should be examined, as those provisions often expressly prohibit an elected or appointed officer of the jurisdiction from simultaneously holding federal office or employment.

B. CAMPAIGN FUNDS AND FINANCES

1. POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS

There are specific restrictions within current federal law upon congressional employees in the area of soliciting or making political contributions. Federal criminal statutes presently prohibit a congressional employee from: (a) soliciting a political contribution for a federal campaign from any other federal officer, employee, or person receiving a salary or compensation for services from the United States Treasury (18 U.S.C. § 602); and (b) making any political contribution to a federal officer, employee, person receiving a salary from the United States Treasury, or Member of Congress who is the employer or employing authority of the congressional staffer (now 18 U.S.C. § 603).

The relevant statutory language of these provisions reads as follows:

§ 602. Solicitation of Political Contributions

(a) It shall be unlawful for—

- (1) a candidate for the Congress;
- (2) an individual elected to or serving in the office of Senator or Representative in, or Delegate or Resident Commissioner to, the Congress;
- (3) an officer or employee of the United States or any Department or agency thereof; or
- (4) a person receiving any salary or compensation for services from money derived from the Treasury of the United States; to knowingly solicit, any contributions within the meaning of section 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 from any other such officer, employee, or person. Any person who violates this section shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

§ 603. Making Political Contributions

(a) It shall be unlawful for an officer or employee of the United States or any department or agency thereof, or a person receiving any salary or compensation for services from money derived from the Treasury of the United States, to make any contribution within the meaning of section 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to any other such officer, employee or person or to any Senator or Representative in, or Delegate or Resident Commissioner to, the Congress, if the person receiving such contribution is the employer or employing authority of the person making the contribution. Any person who violates this section shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years or both.

(b) For purposes of this section, a contribution to an authorized committee as defined in section 302(e)(1) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 shall be considered a contribution to the individual who has authorized such committee.

A. Soliciting Political Contributions from Federal Employees

The statute at 18 U.S.C. § 602, as amended, prohibits congressional employees from “knowingly” soliciting political contributions from any other federal employee, officer, or person receiving salary for services from the United States Treasury.⁵² Inadvertent solicitations of federal employees, therefore, such as when part of a general fund raising campaign aimed at the general public, was not intended to be a violation of this provision or its predecessor.⁵³ As stated in the House Report on the Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1979, amending § 602:

In order for a solicitation to be a violation of this section, it must be actually known that the person who is being solicited is a federal employee. Merely mailing to a list will no doubt contain names of federal employees [and] is not a violation of this section.⁵⁴

Unlike the statute prior to the amendments in 1979 (Pub.L. 96-187) the current § 602 prohibits only the “solicitation” of political contributions from other federal employees and does not prohibit the “receipt” of such contributions. The House Report on the changes to § 602 noted: “The provision prohibiting receipt of contributions by federal employees has been eliminated.”⁵⁵ It would not appear to violate the criminal statute at § 602, therefore, for congressional employees to receive unsolicited political contributions from other federal employees, although Senate employees who are not political fund designees are prohibited from such activity under Senate Rule 41, discussed below.

Since the term “contribution” is defined for purposes of this restriction as that term is defined in § 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, the prohibition on soliciting contributions from fellow federal employees will apparently not reach political contributions to support only state or local candidates. Section 301(8) of the FECA of 1971 is now codified at 2 U.S.C. § 431(8) and defines “contribution” to mean “any gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit or money or anything of value made by any person for the purpose of influencing any election for Federal office.” Similarly, since Senate Rule 41 restricts political fund activity relating only to federal elections, Senate staffers would not be barred from soliciting and receiving voluntary contributions strictly for state or local candidates from fellow staffers or from other federal employees.

In addition to prohibiting congressional employees from soliciting political contributions for federal elections from other federal employees, the statute likewise prohibits Members of and candidates for Congress from soliciting such contributions from federal employees. Members of Congress may therefore not “solicit,” but may now apparently accept unsolicited, voluntary contributions from federal employees. However, it should be noted that congressional staffers who are the Member's employees or under the employing authority of that Member are specifically prohibited from making even unsolicited, voluntary contributions to that Member of Congress, under 18 U.S.C. § 603. As a practical matter, then, Members of Congress should not accept such contributions from their own employees.⁵⁶

The intent of the prohibition on solicitations, as discussed by its sponsors, was to prevent federal employees from being "subject to any form of political assessment."⁵⁷ Since the statute is directed at protecting employees who, because of their employment and positions may be subject to coercion, the prohibition of § 602, as noted in the discussion prior to the adoption of the 1979 amendments, "does not apply to solicitation of Members of Congress."⁵⁸ This interpretation is consistent with the interpretation of the predecessor statute to 18 U.S.C. § 602 which, as noted in a resolution adopted by the House in the 63rd Congress, 2d Session (1913), "should not be construed to prohibit one Senator or Member of Congress from soliciting campaign contributions from another Senator or Member of Congress."⁵⁹

The Department of Justice has also indicated in the past that in the exercise of prosecutorial discretion, the application of the statute in a criminal context would focus on "coercive" contributions, and indications of political "shakedowns."⁶⁰ It should be emphasized, however, that the plain language of the statutory prohibition does not expressly require this element of the offense, that is, does not expressly require coercion, and no judicial interpretation of the law has as yet expressly added such an element as being required in the indictment or proof to establish a violation, although cases have indicated that the underlying intent and ultimate objective of the statute was to protect employees from less-than-voluntary political conduct.⁶¹ Finally, in this regard, it should be noted that an employer-employee, or supervisor-supervisee relationship, might in itself arguably provide an initial presumption or indication of a coerced political solicitation; and even where solicitations are made by non-supervisory co-workers, if made during working time, fellow employees might conclude that the solicitation represented the interests of those higher in the organization and thus the element of coercion could be present.⁶² In light of these factors, and the express language of the criminal statute prohibiting such activity, the more cautious course of conduct for congressional employees would be to avoid any knowing and intentional solicitation of political contributions for a federal election from any other federal employee.

⁵⁶ Under the former statute, Members of Congress were also prohibited from receiving contributions from federal employees, including their staff, even where no solicitation of the contribution was shown. See Brehm v. United States, 196 F.2d 769 (D.C. Cir.), cert. denied, 344 U.S. 838 (1952), upholding conviction of Member of Congress for receiving campaign contribution from staff even without specific finding of solicitation. Id. at 770.

B. Making Political Contributions

Prior to the Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1979, effective January 8, 1980, congressional employees and other employees of the federal government were prohibited from making political contributions to any other federal officer, employee, or Member of Congress, regardless of whether such individual was the contributor's employer or employing authority.⁶³ Although in practice there was no strict enforcement of the statute,⁶⁴ such a restriction on employees had been on the statute books in some form since 1883. See section 14 of the Pendleton Act, 22 Stat. 403.⁶⁵

Under the current statutory provision now codified at 18 U.S.C. § 603, however, congressional employees are only prohibited from making political contributions to their "boss," that is, their employer or employing authority. As explained in the House Report on the Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1979, Pub.L. 96-187, political contributions would be barred from a Member's staff to that Member, and from committee staff to the chairman of that committee. Persons employed by the minority of a committee are also barred from contributing to the ranking minority member of the committee, as well as to the chairman.

Section 603 has been amended to allow voluntary contributions from federal employees to other federal employees. If, however, the individual is employed by a Senator, Representative, or Delegate or Resident Commissioner to Congress that employee cannot contribute to his or her employer although voluntary contributions to other Members of Congress would be allowed. An individual employed by a congressional committee cannot contribute to the chairman of that particular committee. If the individual is employed by the minority that individual cannot contribute to the ranking minority member of the committee or the chairman of the committee.⁶⁶ ⁶²See as an analogy "Hatch Act" cases on coerced political contributions from federal and state employees, for example, In the Matter of Hawkins (CSC No. S-7-42), and Wolfstein (CSC No. S-11-42), 2 P.A.R. 23, 26 (1942); In the Matter of Mulhair (CSC No. F-1349-52), 1 P.A.R. 607, 609 (1952). The threat of depriving any federal job or any federal benefit or appropriation to coerce political contributions is a specific violation of 18 U.S.C. § 601.

⁶³See 18 U.S.C. § 607, (1976); note letter from Attorney General to House Judiciary Committee, October 14, 1952, discussed in "Congressional Quarterly Weekly Report", Oct. 19, 1952, at 1021; S. ⁶⁴See letter from Assistant Attorney General, Criminal Division, Fraud Section, Department of Justice, August 12, 1974. Available from Congressional Research Service files.

⁶⁵Similar restrictions on some federal employees have been upheld against constitutional challenges alleging interference with employees' political rights (Ex Parte Curtis, supra, and United States v. Wurzbach, supra), as have those restrictions on general campaign activities by executive branch employees who come within the "Hatch Act" (United Public Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75 (1946); United States Civil Service Commission v. National Association of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO, 413 U.S. 458 (1973)).

⁶⁶H. Rept. 96-422, 96th Cong., 1st Sess. p. 26.

In addition to permissible contributions by congressional staff to a candidate, including a Member of Congress, who is not the employer or employing authority of the staffer, congressional employees may contribute to a committee or an organization which is not an "authorized committee" of the staffer's employer or employing authority. An "authorized committee" of a candidate is one which is designated in writing by the candidate to accept contributions and make expenditure on his behalf (see 18 U.S.C. § 603(b), 2 U.S.C. § 432(e)(1)), and includes the candidate's principal campaign committee. Generally, under federal campaign law, a multi-candidate committee, that is, one which supports more than one federal candidate, may not be designated as an "authorized committee" of a candidate (2 U.S.C. § 432(e)(3)). Therefore, congressional staffers may generally make political contributions to multi-candidate political committees, such as the Democratic or Republican Congressional Campaign Committees or the Republican or Democratic National Committee, even though some of the proceeds received by such committees may eventually be expended for the benefit of the contributor's employer. In making such contributions to multi-candidate committees, however, the staffer should not specifically " earmark" the contribution for use only in the campaign of his employer, since such " earmarking" of a contribution may be considered as a contribution from the staffer/contributor to that Member/candidate (see Regulations of Federal Election Commission, 11 C.F.R. § 110.6), and thus a potential violation of the criminal prohibition on contributions to one's employer or employing authority.

For purposes of the current restrictions on contributions by congressional staffers, the term "contribution" is defined as in 2 U.S.C. § 431(8) (§ 301(8) of the F.E.C.A., as amended). Specifically excluded from the term "contribution" is the value of voluntary services by an individual provided a candidate or committee.⁶⁷ Congressional staffers may, therefore, voluntarily provide services, their own free time, and their assistance to a Member's campaign, even their employer's campaign, without violating the prohibition on making campaign "contributions" to one's employer.

The definition of the term "contribution" under federal campaign law also demonstrates that the prohibition goes only to the contribution of things of value in connection with a federal election campaign (2 U.S.C. § 431, § 301(8)(A)(i) of the FECA as amended). A staffer might, therefore, make a political contribution to an officer or employee of the federal government for a candidate to state or local office.

2. FUNDRAISING DINNERS AND TESTIMONIALS

Fundraising dinners and testimonials are common methods for candidates to raise money for an upcoming political campaign, or to pay off previous campaign debts. The money paid for a ticket to such an event is generally considered under federal law as a campaigned contribution from the purchaser of the ticket to the candidate on whose behalf the event is being held.⁶⁸

Since the purchase of a ticket to a fundraiser or testimonial would generally be considered a political contribution to the candidate involved, a congressional employee should not under the provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 603, as amended, purchase such a ticket or contribute money to a fundraiser or testimonial given for the Member who is the staffer's employer or employing authority.

Although a congressional employee should not attend such a fundraiser or testimonial as a paying guest, the employee could apparently attend as a nonpaying guest without violating provisions against making political contributions to one's employer. Furthermore, a congressional employee may also volunteer his or her own free time to work on the fundraiser or testimonial for the Member's campaign since voluntary services are not considered "contributions" under federal campaign law.⁶⁹ Senate employees, however, are prohibited from being involved in the solicitation, receipt, disbursement, or in being the custodian of any campaign funds for use in a federal election unless such employee is one of two persons specifically designated by a Senator to handle campaign funds. Unless so designated, a Senate employee should not be involved in that part of a fundraiser, but may be involved in the planning, arrangement making, etc., of the event.⁷⁰

Finally, although a congressional employee could not contribute to a fundraiser or testimonial on behalf of his or her boss, or purchase a ticket to it, the employee might arguably be permitted to "host" such a fundraiser or dinner at his or her residence without violating the federal campaign laws. The definition of the term "contribution" within the campaign laws exempts certain costs in connection with a fundraising event on behalf of a candidate held on an individual's residential premises, up to an amount of $1,000 per any election. Expenses included in the $1,000 exemption are the cost of invitations, food, and beverages.⁷¹

3. CAMPAIGN FUND ACTIVITY BY SENATE EMPLOYEES

As discussed briefly above, Senate Rules restrict campaign fund activity by Senate officers and employees. Senate Rule XLI prohibits most Senate officers and employees from "handling" any campaign funds for a federal election. An employee or officer of the Senate may therefore not receive, solicit, be the custodian of, or distribute campaign funds of any federal candidate, except that three assistants may be designated by the Senator to perform such activities on behalf of that Senator, or for a committee or organization established and controlled by a Senator or a group of Senators. The Select Committee on Ethics has found under the Rule that Senate employees may not "solicit others to solicit funds or otherwise become involved to any substantial degree in political fund activity.”⁷²

The relevant portion of Rule XLI states as follows:

RULE XLI

POLITICAL FUND ACTIVITY; DEFINITIONS

1. No officer or employee of the Senate may receive, solicit, be a custodian of, or distribute any funds in connection with any campaign for the nomination for election, or the election, of any individual to be a Member of the Senate or to any other Federal office. This prohibition does not apply to three assistants to a Senator, at least one of whom is in Washington, District of Columbia, who have been designated by that Senator to perform any of the functions described in the first sentence of this paragraph and who are compensated at an annual rate in excess of $10,000 if such designation has been made in writing and filed with the Secretary of the Senate and if each such assistant files a financial statement in the form provided under rule XXXIV for each year during which he is designated under this rule. The Majority Leader and the Minority Leader may each designate an employee of their respective leadership office staff as one of the 3 designees referred to in the second sentence. The Secretary of the Senate shall make the designation available for public inspection.

The Senate Rule on campaign fund activities by Senate employees had originally been interpreted to permit the designated employees of the Senator to handle campaign funds for a federal campaign only on behalf of the Senator designating them.⁷³ However, the rule is now interpreted to permit the three designated employees of the Senator to handle campaign funds on behalf of a committee for any individual for elective federal office, as long as the committee is controlled by a Senator or a group of Senators, and the employing Senator gives his permission.⁷⁴ The three designated employees, with the permission of their employing Senator, could therefore be involved in the solicitation, receipt, distribution, or in being the custodian of campaign funds on behalf of a Senator's principal campaign committee, or for multi-candidate political committees or political action committees which are involved in the federal campaigns of persons other than their employing Senator, as long as the committees are established and controlled by a Senator or group of Senators. Employees may not handle funds for committees set up by trade associations, interest groups, corporations or labor organizations.

A Senate employee, even a political fund designee, could not hold a position of chief executive officer of a state political party committee, since the duties of the position would entail in the normal course of business “the acceptance, solicitation, retention or expenditures of funds in connection with federal elections” and for federal candidates other than the employee's supervising Senator (Interpretative Ruling No. 291, November 26, 1979), and such committee is not established and controlled by a Senator. However, the Senate Select Ethics Committee found that a campaign fund designee could hold a position as a national party chairperson for one's state when the duties concerning political funds were not of a similar nature to those described above.⁷⁵

The restriction on employees of the Senate in Rule 41 does not extend to fundraising activity or campaign finance activity in relation to strictly state or local political contests.⁷⁶ The Senate Select Committee on Ethics has made it clear, however, that "the State and local political fund activity must be clearly separate and distinct from any activities in connection with a Federal election in order to be permitted under the Rule."⁷⁷

4. CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY IN A FEDERAL BUILDING

When congressional employees become involved in campaign financing activities, an important consideration is a provision now codified at 18 U.S.C. § 607, which restricts the solicitation or receipt of political contributions in federal buildings or other federal facilities. The amended and renumbered version of the prohibition states as follows:

Section 607. Place of Solicitation

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person to solicit or receive any contribution within the meaning of section 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 in any room or building occupied in the discharge of official duties by any person mentioned in section 603, or in any navy yard, fort, or arsenal. Any person who violates this section shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

Although prohibiting the receipt or solicitation of campaign contributions in a federal building, the amended statute recognizes that it is often unavoidable that unsolicited campaign contributions will be received through the mail or a contribution by a supporter will be tendered in person, within a congressional office. When this situation occurs the statute specifically provides that a staff employee of a Member of Congress may accept the contribution as a transmittal for subsequent forwarding, within seven days of receipt, to an appropriate campaign organization outside of the congressional office. This provision of 18 U.S.C. § 607 states as follows:

Section 607.

(b) The prohibition in subsection (a) shall not apply to the receipt of contributions by persons on the staff of a Senator or Representative in, or Delegate or Resident Commissioner to, the Congress, provided that such contributions have not been solicited in any manner which directs the contributor to mail or deliver a contribution to any room, building, or other facility referred to in subsection (a), and provided that such contributions are transferred within seven days of receipt to a political committee within the meaning of section 302(e) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971.

⁷⁵ Interpretative Ruling No. 326, July 1, 1980.

⁷⁶ Interpretative Ruling No. 204, December 5, 1978; and No. 182, September 29, 1978.

⁷⁷ Interpretative Ruling No. 291, November 26, 1979; see also Interpretative Ruling No. 326, July 1, 1980.

The prohibition of this statute and the exception to it were discussed on the floor of the Senate prior to the adoption of this provision as part of the Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1979:

Solicitation or receipt of contributions in any room or building occupied by a Federal employee in the course of official duties is prohibited. The sole exception is for contributions received by an individual on the staff of a Member of Congress, provided the contributions are transferred to the Member's political committee within 7 days. This exception is intended to cover situations in which a contributor, although not requested to, mails or delivers a contribution to a Federal office. The exception does not authorize solicitations from a Federal office, nor does it permit receipt of contributions in a Federal office where such contributions have been solicited in any manner which directs the contributor to return contributions to a Federal office.⁷⁸

As for the act of soliciting contributions from a congressional office, it should be noted that while this criminal prohibition has thus far not specifically been construed by the courts to prohibit the solicitation of campaign contributions from a federal building by letter or telephone to persons who are not located in a federal building, such activities would be barred by other provisions of law and regulation relating to appropriations and official allowances. The criminal prohibition at section 607 was originally intended and was historically construed to prohibit anyone from soliciting contributions from federal clerks or employees while such persons were in a federal building.⁷⁹ In the rare judicial interpretations of this provision, the focus of the prohibition has been directed to the location of the individual from whom a contribution was requested, rather than the location from which the solicitation had originated. In 1908 the Supreme Court had occasion to interpret the statute which was the predecessor of the current §607. The Court in United States v. Thayer, stated that the act of "solicitation" is completed, and therefore, arises, at the location where the request for a contribution is received by the person to whom the request is made. The Court stated: ". . . the solicitation was in the place where the letter was received."⁸⁰ The Department of Justice has noted that the statute was intended to fill a gap in protecting federal employees from assessment by prohibiting all persons from soliciting such employees while they are in a federal building.⁸¹

⁸¹ Federal Prosecution of Election Offenses, Sixth Ed., at 68 (January 1995), Attorney General Reno explained that the Justice Department's "long-standing" policy was not to prosecute under §607 "unless certain aggravating factors are present, such as coercion, knowing disregard of the law, a substantial number of violations, or a significant disruption of government functions." Washington Post, Dec. 3, 1997, at A32. Although questions might be raised as to the criminal provision's enforcement of solicitations from a congressional office directed to persons not in a federal building, the House Standards Committee has stated that regardless of the target of the solicitation or its coercive nature, "no activities of a political solicitation nature should occur with the support of any federal resources (staff or space) in order to avoid any question that a violation of 18 U.S.C. §607 has occurred." "Dear Colleague" letter from Committee on Standards, November 21, 1985, at 2.

The use of federal office space, including congressional office space, official government equipment and supplies paid for from federal tax dollars for purposes of soliciting campaign contributions or for other clearly political campaign activities could involve violations of other federal laws, congressional regulations and standards. Provisions of the United States Code, congressional regulations governing allowances, and appropriations provisions specify that amounts provided a Member of Congress from appropriated funds for such items as telephone, mail, office space, stationery, etc., are for the use of such items only for "official" or "strictly official" purposes.⁸² These provisions would thus apparently work to bar the use or conversion of such supplies, equipment, or facilities for "campaign" purposes, rather than for "official" congressional business. As discussed earlier in this report with respect to the official allowances for congressional staff, the use of official allowances or supplies, services, or goods secured by such allowances, for other than the official purposes for which the appropriations were made, or for other purposes than those which the Member had certified or documented in vouchers, might potentially subject someone to legal liabilities concerning false claims, fraud or possibly even conversion or theft. The ethics committees in both the House and the Senate have thus found that general campaign or campaign fund activities should be conducted outside of the official office space provided Members of Congress, and should generally be conducted with equipment, supplies or other facilities which are secured by private funds or contributions and not official congressional allowances or appropriations.⁸³

PART V
QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS OF CONGRESS FOR ELIGIBILITY FOR OFFICE

QUALIFICATIONS OF MEMBERS OF CONGRESS FOR ELIGIBILITY FOR OFFICE*

A. Introduction and Background

Under Article I, section 1 of the U.S. Constitution, the Congress is organized into a bicameral legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives.¹ Article I, section 2 prescribes the qualifications for Members of the House: (1) twenty-five years of age, (2) a citizen for seven years, and (3) inhabitancy in the state from which the Member is to be chosen.² For Members of the Senate, Article I, section 3 prescribes the following qualifications: (1) thirty years of age, (2) a citizen for nine years, and (3) inhabitancy in the state from which the Member is to be chosen.³

Other qualifications for Members of Congress were considered by delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1787 requiring: (1) a freehold or other property of a certain value including, (2) the payment of taxes, (3) and a certain period of residency.⁴ Ultimately, the Convention decided that the qualifications for both the House and Senate should be few and simple reflecting only age, citizenship, and inhabitancy.⁵

With regard to age, it was decided after much debate that Representatives must have attained twenty-five years and Senators thirty years. The delegates agreed that some qualifications of age for Members of Congress was proper. The age of twenty-one was dismissed because persons of this age are often inexperienced and need more time to “try their virtues, develop their talents, enlarge their resources, and give them a practical insight into the business of life adequate to their own immediate wants and duties.”⁶ The age of Senators was set at thirty, an additional five years more than the age qualification for Representative, because it was thought that the nature of the duties of a Senator require more experience, knowledge, and maturity than that of a Representative.⁷

³U.S. Const., art I, § 3 provides: “No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty Years, and been nine Years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.”

As to citizenship, Representatives must have been citizens for seven years, while for Senators the requirement was set at nine years. The obvious reasons for the citizenship requirement were (1) to negate foreign influence, (2) to allow sufficient time for foreigners to acquire knowledge of the institutions and interests of the Country,⁸ and (3) to avoid situations whereby U.S. citizens would be represented by foreign Representatives who may not have their best interests in mind.⁹ Originally, the delegates to the Convention proposed a three year citizenship requirement for Representatives, but later changed it to seven years.¹⁰ For Senators, a term of four years' citizenship was originally proposed, but it was later changed to nine years.¹¹

With regard to inhabitancy, the constitutional requirement for them are both Representatives and Senators is that, when elected, inhabitants of the state in which they are chosen. The purpose of this qualification was to secure an attachment to the state so that its interests would be properly represented. The inhabitancy required of Representatives and Senators is merely within a state, not in any particular district of the state in which a Member is chosen. A one year residence requirement was considered at the Convention, but failed to pass.¹²

The age, citizenship, and inhabitancy requirements are the only qualifications for Members of Congress. They are paramount and exclusive qualifications, and state constitutions, as well as state and federal laws can, neither add to nor take away from these qualifications.¹³ The Constitution has not delegated any authority to the states or the Congress to add to or diminish such qualifications of Members of Congress as prescribed by Article I of the Constitution. In case of a conflict between a state's laws or constitutional provisions relating to the qualifications of Members of Congress, the provisions of the U.S. Constitution prevail. Thus, the mere possession of such qualifications would make a person eligible for election to the Congress.¹⁴ As Alexander Hamilton observed, "[t]he qualifications of the persons who . . . may . . . be chosen . . . are defined and fixed in the Constitution, and are unalterable by the legislature."¹⁵

Even though the qualifications for Members of Congress were made quite few and simple by the Authors of the Constitution, on several occasions, Congress seemed to add additional qualifications

Moreover, Article 1, section 6, clause 2 would disqualify a Member of Congress "during the time for which he was elected" from being appointed "to any civil Office under the Authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the Emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time. . . ."

including the enactment of the 1862 disloyalty oath and the exclusion in 1900 of a Member-elect for polygamy. The issue of whether Congress could add additional qualifications for Members of Congress was not clarified until the 1969 Supreme Court decision, Powell v. McCormack, in which the Court conclusively established that the constitutional qualifications for Members of Congress under Article I were exclusive and that Congress could not add to them.¹⁶ While such qualifications appear to be quite clear, a number of issues regarding them have arisen nonetheless.

B. State Residency Requirements

Questions have arisen concerning whether a state has a right to prescribe residence requirements for Members of Congress and, more particularly, congressional district residence requirements for Members of the House. For example, a 1790 Maryland law required a Member to be an inhabitant of the district at the time of election and to have resided there twelve months immediately prior to the election. In 1807, a House contested election case arose concerning whether an elected candidate to the House of Representatives has met the residence requirements of the State of Maryland. After much debate in the House, a report was issued that asserted: (1) that the qualifications for Members of Congress should be national in character and uniform throughout the nation, (2) that neither the States nor the Congress could add to or diminish such qualifications, and (3) that the States could not reserve a power to add to the qualifications of members.¹⁷

In a 1958 Maryland Court of Appeals decision, Hellmann v. Collier,¹⁸ involving a Maryland statute that required every candidate for the House of Representatives to be a resident of the congressional district in which the candidate sought election,¹⁹ the court held the statute invalid because the state does not have any power to fix the qualifications for Representatives in Congress. Moreover, the congressional district residency requirement was an attempt by the state to impose an additional qualification to the provision of Article I, section 2 which establishes the qualifications for Representatives of Congress. The Maryland Court of Appeals decision was based on the ground that the state cannot in any manner impose additional qualifications for Members of the House of Representatives²⁰ despite the fact that Congress has enacted laws providing for the reapportionment and redistricting for Members of the House.²¹

By custom and precedent, however, it has become the norm that Representatives are residents of the congressional districts that they are elected to represent. For a state to require this by a law, though, as the State of Maryland did, would present immediate constitutional problems as it is a well settled principle that states cannot add to the qualifications for Members of Congress.²²

C. Definition of Inhabitancy

The constitutional qualifications of Articles 1, section 2 and 3 for members of the House and Senate require inhabitancy in the state in which a Member is chosen, but these provisions do not use the terms “residency” or “domicile.” Black’s Law Dictionary defines an inhabitant as: “One who resides actually and permanently in a given place, and has his domicile there.”²³ The terms “resident” and “inhabitant” are not necessarily synonymous. Inhabitancy implies a more fixed and permanent abode and imparts certain privileges and responsibilities that residency would not have.²⁴ “Residence” is defined as the “[P]ersonal presence at some place of abode with no present intention of definite or early removal and with purpose to remain for undetermined period, not infrequently, but not necessarily combined with design to stay permanently.”²⁵ And “domicile” is “[T]hat place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning.”²⁶

What are the criteria that would establish inhabitancy for the purpose of meeting that qualification under Article I, sections 2 and 3 of the Constitution? Some of the early contested election cases in the House of Representatives concerning the issue of inhabitancy provide us with certain criteria. To determine inhabitancy of House Members, the following factors were considered:

- (1) citizen of the state involved;
- (2) native of state involved;
- (3) residence in state involved;
- (4) residence in other states;
- (5) type of home in state (vacation home or permanent home);
- (6) professional licensure in state (e.g., license to practice law in state);
- (7) pension from a foreign country;²⁷
- (8) residence abroad;
- (9) property in state—both real and personal;
- (10) intention to return to state if outside of state;²⁸

²⁸ Factors numbered 8, 9, and 10 were considered in the House contested election case of John Bailey in 1824 who was elected from Massachusetts to the Eighteenth Congress, but Congress concluded that, since he held an office and resided with his family for a series of years in the District of Columbia exclusively, he was disqualified to sit as a Member from Massachusetts. 1 Hinds’ Precedents of the House of Representatives § 434, at 419–422 (1907). However, in the 1824 contested election case of John Forsyth of Georgia, the House held that residence abroad in the service of the Government does not constitute a disqualification. 1 Hinds’ Precedents supra § 433 at 419.

(11) state usage of the term “inhabitant”.²⁹

The House has used a number of these factors to establish the inhabitancy of a Member when it has been questioned. In the 1824 election contest case of John Bailey, who was elected from Massachusetts and found disqualified to sit because of insufficient indices of inhabitancy, the House Committee on Elections observed that the term “resident” had first been proposed by the Framers of the Constitution but was later changed to “inhabitant” because it was thought that the latter would express more clearly their intention that Members of Congress should be completely identified with the state they represent.³⁰ The Committee also observed that the inhabitancy qualification in Article I of the Constitution did not necessarily mean that a Member must be actually residing in the state at the time of election.³¹

The Senate election contest cases concerning the issue of inhabitancy generally have not analyzed the inhabitancy qualification as much as the pertinent House election contest cases have. For example, in the 1809 Senate election contest case of Stanley Griswold from Ohio, the Senate found that, because the term of residence to entitle a person to become an inhabitant of the State was not defined by either the Ohio Constitution or the laws of the State of Ohio, the certificate of the Governor that Griswold was a citizen of Ohio was sufficient to entitle him to a seat.³² In the 1870 Senate election contest case of Adelbert Ames from Mississippi, the Senate Judiciary Committee determined that he was not, when elected, an inhabitant of the State as he only went to Mississippi due to military orders stationing him there and because only shortly before the election did he decide to become a senatorial candidate and remain and reside in Mississippi. Despite the Judiciary Committee’s report, the Senate, after a long debate, allowed Mr. Ames to take the oath to office after resolving that he was eligible to be a Member of the Senate.³³ In a 1992 unpublished decision of the Louisiana Court of Appeals, (Doc. No. 92 CA 1768), it was held that “inhabitancy” is a requirement only at the time of election and that allegations concerning inhabitancy cannot state a cause of action prior to the election.

D. Holding Public Office and Eligibility for Congressional Office

When state constitutional or statutory provisions have disqualified certain Members-elect because they held certain state offices, both the House and the Senate have nevertheless seated these Members-elect. Such state provisions have almost universally been held by Congress, in contested election cases, and by the courts,

For example, in an 1852 Senate election contest case, the Senate voted to seat Lyman Trumbull of Illinois, who was a judge of the Supreme Court of Illinois, despite the Constitution of Illinois having a provision that would disqualify him.³⁵ The Senate concluded that the State of Illinois could not add qualifications for eligibility to the Senate to those as defined by Article I, section 3, clause 3 of the United States Constitution.³⁶ Moreover, in an 1887 Senate election contest case involving a Senator-elect from West Virginia, who at the time of his election was a judge of the 13th Judicial Circuit, it was alleged that the Senator-elect was ineligible because of a state disqualification of eligibility in the West Virginia Constitution (Art. VIII, § 16) providing that a judge could not, during his continuance in office, be eligible to any political office. The Senate concluded that the Senator-elect could be seated since the West Virginia constitutional provision constituted an additional qualification to those set forth in the United States Constitution and was thus unconstitutional.³⁷

Likewise, a number of state court holdings provide that states cannot add to qualifications for Members of Congress that appear in sections 2 and 3 of Article I of the Constitution. In a 1918 decision, the Supreme Court of the State of Washington held that the state cannot change the qualifications for either House of Congress as fixed by the United States Constitution by the Constitution of Washington (Article 4, § 15), which requires that judges of the Supreme Court and superior courts shall be ineligible for any other office during their term.³⁸ In 1940, the Arizona Supreme Court similarly held that the provision of the Constitution of Arizona (Constitution of Arizona, Article 6, section 11), providing that the judges of the Supreme and Superior courts shall not be eligible to any office of public employment other than a judicial office of employment during the time for which they have been elected, does not affect the qualifications of a candidate for Congress either in a primary or a general election. And, when there is a conflict between state and federal constitutional provisions relating to the qualifications of Members of Congress, the provisions of the United States Constitution prevail.³⁹

³⁴See generally 1 Hinds' Precedents of the House of Representatives, §§ 414–417, at 381–389.

See also the following decisions which held that similar state disqualifications would not prevent candidates for Congress from running for office, being nominated for office, and being eligible for office because they would be additional qualifications to those prescribed by the United States Constitution: *State ex rel. Fla. 1970), interim relief granted, 400 U.S. 1205 (1970) (Justice Black in Chambers).

In a 1970 federal court decision regarding congressional elections in the State of Florida, a three-judge district court held that a Florida election statute, which required a condition precedent to qualification that a person resign from any state public office, violated Article I, section 2, clause 2 of the United States Constitution setting forth the qualifications for such office.⁴⁰ The district court asserted that the qualifications prescribed in the United States Constitution are exclusive and that state constitutional and statutory provisions can neither add to nor take away from them. The court further noted that this proposition is universally accepted and recognized and that state courts with singular unanimity have arrived at the same holding.⁴¹

E. Subversive Activities and Eligibility for Congress

A congressional candidate cannot be required to file an affidavit stating that he or she is not a subversive seeking the forcible overthrow of the Government.⁴² In 1950, for example, the Court of Appeals of Maryland held that the statute requiring candidates for public office to file with their nomination certificates affidavits stating that they are not subversive persons was operative for candidates for state office but not for candidates for congressional office.⁴³ The Maryland Court of Appeals made the following findings: (1) that the qualifications for a Representative in Congress are set out in Section 2 of Article I of the Federal Constitution, (2) that there are no other qualifications prescribed by the Constitution, (3) that Section 5 of Article I of the Constitution provides that each House of Congress shall be the judge of the qualifications of its own Members, and (4) that Members of Congress take the oath prescribed by Article VI of the Constitution and not the oath prescribed by Maryland statutory and constitutional provisions.

Consequently, the Maryland Court of Appeals concluded that there is nothing in the Federal Constitution preventing a Member of Congress from being a subversive seeking to overthrow the Government by force or violence. And, if that is to constitute a disqualification, it must be determined by Congress, and not by a state court or a state legislature.⁴⁴ Moreover, a 1940 New York decision held that where a candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives was otherwise qualified, the fact that he was a leader of the Communist Party in America and openly espoused international communism did not render him ineligible.⁴⁵

F. Felony Conviction and Eligibility for Congress

Generally, the conviction of or pleading guilty to a crime, which constitutes a felony offense, does not automatically affect the eligibility to be a Member of Congress or to be a candidate for a future Congress, unless the conviction is for insurrection or rebellion against the United States or for aiding or abetting the enemies of the United States. [See, United States Constitution, Fourteenth Amendment, Section 3, which would disqualify one who would commit such offenses after holding public office and swearing to uphold the Constitution.] This issue was addressed in a 1918 Minnesota Supreme Court decision holding that the State constitutional provisions disqualifying convicted felons can have no application to the office of United States Senator.⁴⁶ The Court further held that the qualifications of those aspiring to or holding congressional office are prescribed by the Federal Constitution, which the State cannot modify or enlarge in any way. Consequently, the candidate who was a convicted felon was not disqualified under the provisions of the United States Constitution.⁴⁷

G. Eligibility of Congressional Candidates After Defeat in Primary Election

On occasion, the issue arises as to whether a candidate for Congress can run in a general election for congressional office, after a primary election defeat, despite a state election law prohibiting defeated primary candidates from running in the general election. Generally, state ballot access provisions, which are merely regulatory and are concerned only with the manner of holding elections, do not impose additional qualifications for holding congressional office.

For example, a 1902 decision by the Supreme Court of Minnesota held that a statute prohibiting an unsuccessful congressional candidate at a primary election from having his name printed on the general election ballot as an independent candidate for the same congressional office was a reasonable and valid regulation that did not affect his eligibility for congressional office because the official ballot had a provision for write-in votes.⁴⁸ Thus, when state election laws prohibit congressional candidates defeated in primary elections from having their names printed on general election ballots, these provisions do not affect their eligibility to congressional office as defined by the Constitution. The presence of a write-in provision protects congressional eligibility and enables congressional candidates to be elected if the requisite number of write-in votes are received. Likewise, a 1934 Nebraska Supreme Court decision held that a candidate who was defeated at a primary election for the office of governor could not, by petition, become a candidate for the office of United States Senator.⁵⁰ The Court concluded that the candidate was not entitled to have his name printed on the ballot, even though he was seeking the office of U.S. Senator, since he may still be a write-in candidate and win the election if a sufficient number of voters wrote in his name on the ballot.⁵¹ According to the court, the state statute prohibiting defeated primary candidates from being on the general election ballot by petition did not impose an additional qualification to be a United States Senator and did not prevent him from being a candidate in the general election due to the write-in provisions.⁵²

However, a 1942 North Dakota Supreme Court decision held that a statute prohibiting a defeated primary candidate from being a candidate for the same office at the general election was inapplicable to congressional candidates because it was not regulatory and added a qualification for holding congressional office in addition to those fixed by the Federal Constitution.⁵³ The court concluded that, when a state election law bars the placement of a candidate's name on a general election ballot after a primary election defeat, it consequently makes the congressional candidate ineligible for said office. Thus, according to the court, this ineligibility to general election ballot access, whether as a candidate of another political party or as an independent candidate, imposes an additional qualification for congressional office in violation of the U.S. Constitution.⁵⁴ However, the current state of the law appears to indicate that, as long as write-in access is available to the congressional candidate, such a bar would not be absolute and therefore, would not constitute an added qualification to Federal office.

H. State Requirements for Obtaining Ballot Access

All state election laws have certain regulatory provisions requiring both state and Federal candidates to do all or some of the following: (1) file a declaration of candidacy, (2) file a nominating petition with a requisite number of signatures, and (3) pay a filing fee in certain jurisdictions.⁵⁵ As such requirements are regulatory and are concerned with the formation of the ballots of the primary and general elections and the procedure and conduct of such elections, they do not impose additional qualifications for holding congressional offices.⁵⁶

The filing fee requirements in a couple of states have been challenged on the ground that they impose an additional qualification on the right to hold a certain office in violation of constitutional provisions setting forth elective office qualifications. This issue was addressed by a 1961 Florida Supreme Court decision which upheld an $875.00 filing fee for the office of Supreme Court Justice. The Court asserted that the filing fee requirement imposed no additional qualification upon the right to hold office and that it dealt only with the requirements to become a candidate for the office.⁵⁷ As long as such filing fee provisions are not arbitrary or unreasonable, they are valid legislative enactments that help defray the costs of nomination and election procedures and help maintain a reasonably limited ballot size for the sake of insuring the efficiency of the election process.⁵⁸ In a 1905 Court of Appeals decision in Maryland, it was similarly held that the exaction of a filing fee was not an imposition of a property qualification on the candidates.⁵⁹ However, it should be noted that the United States Supreme Court on two occasions in 1972 and 1974, in *Bullock v. Carter*⁶⁰ and Lubin v. Panish,⁶¹ held that when state election statutes provide for filing fee requirements without providing for reasonable alternative means of access to the ballot, they are unconstitutional by denying equal protection of the laws to indigent candidates who are unable to pay.

In 1974, the Supreme Court in Storer v. Brown upheld the ballot access requirements of the California Elections Code for independent candidates for the U.S. Congress and concluded that such provisions do not add to the qualifications for the office of U.S. Representative and therefore, do not conflict with Article I, section 2, clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution.⁶² The provisions of the California Elections Code denied ballot access to all independent candidates for state or Federal office who voted in the immediately preceding primary election or who had a registered affiliation with a political party at any time within one year prior to the immediately preceding primary election.⁶³ Moreover, the ballot access provisions required all independent candidates (even those for federal office) to file nomination papers signed by at least 5 percent of the vote cast at the preceding general election for the office which the candidate seeks to run and filed with the secretary of state 60 days before the general election.⁶⁴

The Storer Court held that the independent congressional candidates were properly barred from ballot positions for failing to comply with the California Election Code's party disaffiliation requirement. Moreover, the court found that the ballot access provisions for independent congressional candidates were not unconstitutional as adding qualifications to the office of U.S. Representative.⁶⁵ The party disaffiliation requirement, according to Storer, was supported by California's compelling interests in preserving the direct primary process and in maintaining the stability of its political system and involved no discrimination against independent candidates.⁶⁶ Thus, the procedural and regulatory requirements for independent congressional candidates to attain general election ballot access were not unconstitutional under Article I, section 2, clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution. That is, such requirements were not found to establish an additional qualification for the office of U.S. Representative as the procedural requirements for independent congressional candidates are no more an additional qualification for Congress than the primary election requirements would be in order to be placed on the general election ballot.⁶⁷ In addition, an independent congressional candidate barred from the general election ballot for failing to comply with mandatory ballot access procedural requirements for independent candidates would still have a chance to be elected to the U.S. Congress as a write-in alternative under the California Elections Code.⁶⁸

Arguably if in Storer, if certain congressional candidates were absolutely barred from running for Congress by stringent and exclusive state procedural and regulatory laws governing general election ballot access by preventing placement on the general election ballot, (either as a party nominee through the primary election process or as an independent candidate or even as a write-in candidate), then such election laws might be invalid as providing an additional qualification for U.S. congressional office. It appears that the absolute bar feature would render a state election code provision unconstitutional as an additional qualification. This was not the case in Storer because if the independent congressional candidates had timely complied with the procedures for independent candidacies under the California Elections Code, they could have been on the general election ballot as independent candidates or could they have chosen to be write-in candidates on the general election ballot.

I. Recall of Members of Congress

There is no Federal statute providing for the recall of U.S. Senators and Representatives, nor does the Constitution provide for any recall of Members of Congress. Before a U.S. Senator or Representative could be recalled, a constitutional amendment providing for recall would have to be adopted by two-thirds of both houses of Congress and ratified by three-fourths of the States in accordance with Article V.⁷¹

Senators and Representatives may lose their congressional seats—aside from death or resignation—in the following ways: (1) if they are appointed to a civil office during the time for which they are elected;⁷² (2) if they are elected to an incompatible office such as governor of a state;⁷³ (3) if they are expelled, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members, by the respective House,⁷⁴ and (4) if they are disqualified if after having previously taken an oath to support the Constitution, they shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States or given aid or comfort to the enemies of the United States.⁷⁵ These are the only removal procedures that are set forth in the Constitution for involuntary removal from offices of Senator and Representative.

In the Articles of Confederation, state legislatures were authorized to recall their delegates to Congress.⁷⁶ However, no such provisions were incorporated into the U.S. Constitution. Some states have recall provisions that arguably may apply to Members of Congress because the scope of the recall of many provisions apply to ed officials. Michigan specifically includes Members of Congress within the recall statute.⁷⁷ In Arizona, candidates for the United States Senate or House of Representatives may file a pre-primary statement or pledge promising to resign if not re-elected in a recall vote.⁷⁸ In Wisconsin, the qualified electors of any congressional district may petition for the recall of any elective officer.⁷⁹

In Article I, section 5, clause 1, the Constitution provides that "Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own Members. . . ." Also, under Article I, section 5, clause 2, each House of the Congress, and not the States, determines the rules of its proceedings, punishes its Members for disorderly behavior, and with the concurrence of two-thirds, expels a Member. Accordingly, states cannot judge the qualifications of Senators and Representatives as this is left to each respective House under Article I, section 5, clauses 1 and 2.⁸⁰ States cannot prescribe qualifications for Members of Congress other than those set forth in the Constitution under Article I, section 2, clause 2⁸¹ for United States Representatives and under Article I, section 3, clause 3⁸² for United States Senators. Such constitutional provisions manifest three distinct qualifications for Members of Congress: age, citizenship, and inhabitancy. Such provisions have been construed by the courts as being exclusive and as setting the only qualifications that may validly be required for congressional candidates.

The constitutional qualifications are paramount and exclusive, and state constitutions and laws can neither add to nor take away from them. In case of a conflict, provisions in the Federal Constitution prevail, so that mere possession of such qualifications prescribed in the Constitution makes one eligible for election to Congress.⁸³ Thus, making a United States Senator or United States Representative subject to removal by a state recall election would constitute an additional qualification for office, which the states do not have the constitutional authority to enact. Under the Supremacy Clause of the Federal Constitution,⁸⁴ the provisions of the U.S. Constitution prevail over state constitutional and statutory provisions. Also, United States Senators and Representatives are Federal and not state officers, and states cannot exercise the same jurisdiction over them as their own officers.⁸⁵

United States Senator from Idaho. The judge, in dismissing the suit, found that a state recall of a United States Senator would violate Article I, Section 5, clause 1 of the Constitution which provides that each House of Congress “shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members. . . .”

J. The Issue of Term Limitations for Members of Congress

Certain states, either by state statutory or constitutional provisions or by popularly enacted initiative measures, have limited the number of terms their legislators may hold office. When these states enact statutes or initiative measures attempting to limit the number of terms of their U.S. Representatives and U.S. Senators, serious constitutional problems are raised. Under Article I, sections 2 and 3 of the U.S. Constitution the specific qualifications of Members of the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate are set forth. Article I, section 2 specifies the qualifications of Members of the House of Representatives—age 25, U.S. citizenship for 7 years, and inhabitancy in the state. Article I, section 3 specifies the qualifications for Members of the U.S. Senate—age 30, U.S. citizenship for 9 years, and inhabitancy in the state. These constitutional qualifications are defined and fixed by the U.S. Constitution and are thus unalterable by State statutes or initiative measures.⁸⁶

The Framers of the U.S. Constitution at the Constitutional Convention of 1787 debated the issue of the qualifications for Representatives and Senators and arrived at the above-mentioned age, citizenship, and inhabitancy qualifications for eligibility for U.S. congressional office. In the drafting and the markup of the U.S. Constitution, the Convention delegates on June 12, 1787 in the Committee of the Whole rejected and expunged a clause forbidding reelection for several years to the House of Representatives.⁸⁷ On June 23, 1787, the Convention delegates rejected a provision making Members of Congress ineligible for office for one year after the expiration of their terms.⁸⁸ After considerable debate, the delegates also rejected the concept of rotation of Members of Congress⁸⁹ similar to the rotation of the delegates to Congress under the Articles of Confederation.⁹⁰ Consequently, it appears that the Framers of the U.S. Constitution did not intend term limitations for Members of Congress as they expressly rejected similar term limit concepts.

Any change in the term limitations for Members of Congress can only occur by the passage and ratification of a constitutional amendment in accordance with Article V of the Constitution. Neither an act of Congress nor an act of a state by statute or initiative measure can change or add to the prescribed constitutional qualifications of Members of Congress. Only a U.S. constitutional amendment can change or add to such qualifications. The prescribed constitutional qualifications for Members of the House of Representatives and the Senate are paramount and exclusive qualifications which cannot be amended, changed, diminished, altered or added to by any state laws or constitutional provisions.⁹¹

The Supreme Court in the 1969 landmark decision Powell v. McCormack held that the constitutional qualifications for Members of Congress under Article I, sections 2 and 3 were exclusive and that Congress could not add to them.⁹² The Court in Powell found that the House of Representatives had no power to exclude from its membership any person who was duly elected and who met the age, citizenship, and residence requirements of Article I, sections 2 and 3 of the Constitution. According to the Court, under the Constitution, Congress is authorized to judge the qualifications of its members, but not to prescribe the qualifications for Members of the U.S. House and Senate.⁹³

In 1995, the Supreme Court in U.S. Term Limits, Inc. v. Thornton concluded that a state-imposed limitation on congressional terms of office was unconstitutional because it established an additional qualification for congressional office in violation of Article I, sections 2 and 3, setting forth the three basic congressional qualifications of age, citizenship, and inhabitancy.⁹⁴ The Court reaffirmed its holdings in Powell that the qualifications for service in Congress set forth in the Constitution are fixed and cannot be supplemented by the States nor by Congress. Changing these qualifications would require a constitutional amendment ratified by three-quarters of the States.⁹⁵

PART VI
DISQUALIFICATION, DEATH, OR INELIGIBILITY OF THE WINNER OF A CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION

DISQUALIFICATION, DEATH, OR INELIGIBILITY OF THE WINNER OF A CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION¹

A. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

If a candidate who has been elected to the United States House of Representatives or the United States Senate subsequently dies (prior to taking the oath of office), or later acquires or has discovered a legal disability such that he or she is no longer eligible to serve or to be seated in the House or the Senate, then precedent and practice indicate that a “vacancy” in that office would be established. Such a vacancy would then be filled according to the United States Constitution.

However, if a candidate dies prior to a general election for the House or Senate, but because of the imminence of the election the candidate’s name remains on the ballot under State election law procedures, and that deceased candidate then receives the most votes in the election, should this be treated as other than a “vacancy” in the office which will occur at the beginning of the congressional session?

As expressly provided in the United States Constitution, at Article I, Section 5, cl. 1, the House and the Senate each “shall be the Judge of the Elections, Returns and Qualifications of its own Members” In judging congressional elections, the overwhelming weight of precedent in both the House and the Senate has been to follow the so-called “American Rule,” whereby an absolute disability or ineligibility of a candidate receiving the most votes in an election (the “majority candidate”) creates a “vacancy” in the office, which is then filled according to the Constitution. The next highest qualified vote-getter in such an election is not deemed by the House or Senate to be entitled to the seat under this “American Rule” (unlike under the so-called “British Rule”), nor is the entire election considered a “nullity” (such that a new election or “do-over” must proceed immediately).² Under congressional precedent and practice, it has not mattered whether the majority candidate was actually ineligible or not qualified before or after the time of the election, or whether the voters knew of such ineligibility, death or disqualification before or at the time of the election—the “vacancy” was deemed created, and filled in the manner prescribed in the United States Constitution.

Brown* (40th Cong.), Rowell’s Digest of Contested Election Cases, 220–221.

As to vacancies in the United States Senate, the Seventeenth Amendment to the Constitution provides that when there are vacancies in the representation of any State in the Senate, the Governor of the State “shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies”; however, in the alternative, if expressly authorized by that State’s legislature, Governors may make “temporary appointments” to fill a Senate seat until an election is held to fill the remainder of the term, as directed by State law.³ In the case of vacancies in the House of Representatives, the Constitution does not authorize the Governor of a State to fill a seat on an interim basis, but rather instructs only that “Writs of Election” for a special election shall be issued by the Governor.⁴ The timing of the election to fill vacancies for Representative or Delegate, and thus how long the vacancy will continue, is generally within the discretion of the individual States as a matter of State law.⁵

On the several occasions of the death of a candidate for the United States House of Representatives so close to the election that a new candidate could not qualify in time to be printed on the general election ballot under applicable State election administration laws—and that deceased candidate subsequently received the most votes in the election (or when the majority candidate on the ballot was otherwise constitutionally ineligible for the office)—the so-called “American Rule” was applied. That is, the receipt of the most votes by the deceased or otherwise ineligible candidate on the ballot was deemed to have created a vacancy in the office of Representative, which was then filled as prescribed under the United States Constitution for vacancies in House seats, that is, through the issuance of “writs of election” for a special election. Representatives Hale Boggs (Louisiana) and Nick Begich (Alaska) were lost and presumed dead in an airplane crash in Alaska on October 16, 1972, less than a month before their general elections. Under State election procedures, their names remained on the ballot, and they received the most votes in their respective general elections, whereupon vacancies were declared, and special elections to fill the vacancies were held.⁶ The living candidate with the next highest vote total, that is, the “runner-up” in the regular general election on the ballot, or from write-ins (Representative Boggs was unopposed), was not declared the winner. On October 7, 1962, Representative Clement Miller of California died also in a plane crash shortly before the 1962 general congressional election. As reported, “[u]nder California law, it was too late for the Democratic party to place a new nominee on the ballot for the November 6 election,” and Rep-representative Miller's name remained on the ballot.⁷ When he received the most votes, a "vacancy" was declared in the seat, and filled according to the Constitution.

Similarly, in the one instance in the Senate when a candidate who had qualified for the ballot as a major party candidate for the Senate died prior to the time of the general election, but after the time established by State law for finalization of the ballot, and who then received the most votes in the election, a "vacancy" in the office of United States Senator was deemed to have occurred in that State, and such vacancy was filled as prescribed in the United States Constitution and State law, that is, by an interim appointment by the Governor. Former Governor Mel Carnahan of Missouri, the Democratic nominee for Senator, died in a plane crash on October 16, 2000, three weeks before the general election. Under Missouri election law, the names of deceased candidates remain on the ballot if they die so close to the election that the filing deadline, or the time for political parties to submit substitute candidates, has passed.⁸ The Missouri statute then states expressly what is understood as the so-called "American Rule," that is, "if a sufficient number of votes are cast for the deceased candidate to entitle the candidate to . . . election had the candidate not died, a vacancy shall exist . . . in the office to be filled in the manner provided by law."⁹ The acting Missouri Governor had indicated after the candidate's death that if the deceased candidate received the most votes, the Governor intended to appoint the candidate's wife, Jean Carnahan, to fill the vacancy such election result would create.¹⁰ After the Missouri Board of Canvassers certified that the deceased candidate, Mr. Carnahan, had in fact received the most votes in the election, the Governor formally announced on December 4, 2000, that he was appointing, effective January 3, 2001, the deceased candidate's widow, Mrs. Jean Carnahan, to fill the vacant seat until the next general election for the remainder of the term.¹¹ The credentials of the Governor's appointee, Mrs. Carnahan, were accepted by the Senate, and she was given the oath of office and seated without objection in the Senate on January 3, 2001.¹²

B. ISSUES RAISED CONCERNING DECEASED CANDIDATE ON THE BALLOT, AND SUCH CANDIDATE RECEIVING THE MOST VOTES

During the most recent case of the 2000 Senate race in Missouri, there were arguments raised in certain quarters that it was in some way unconstitutional for the State to allow the name of a deceased candidate to remain on the ballot for United States Senator, regardless of the timing of the candidate's demise in relation to the election; and that because the deceased candidate on the ballot could not actually hold the office of United States Senator (being deceased, he was not an “inhabitant” of the State as required by Article I, Section 3, cl. 3), that either the election in which the deceased candidate received the most votes should be ignored or set aside and a new election held immediately, or that the minority candidate, as being the qualified candidate who received the most votes, should win.¹³

These arguments, in the first instance, would appear to call into question the viability and constitutionality of a State’s authority to set a specific deadline for finalizing the ballot, that is, a certain time or date prior to the day of an election, after which the ballot for that election could not be changed to add, remove or substitute the names of candidates. Secondly, these arguments would appear to press the so-called “British Rule” upon the Senate in judging the elections and qualifications of its Members, whereby the will of the plurality or majority of the voters of the State would be disregarded either by acting as if the election did not occur, or by not counting the votes cast for the deceased or otherwise ineligible candidate and seating the minority candidate.

Finally, certain arguments were forwarded that even if it had not been improper to allow the deceased candidate’s name to remain on the ballot when the death of the candidate occurred in such proximity to the election, the State should not be allowed to treat as a “prospective vacancy” the death of the candidate who remains on the ballot. Under such argument, if the deceased candidate received the most votes, the Governor would not be able to make a temporary appointment to fill the “vacant” seat under the Seventeenth Amendment, even if expressly authorized under the laws of the State as specifically provided for in the Seventeenth Amendment, but rather could only issue writs of election for a special election to fill vacancies in the office of United States Senator which occur by virtue of the election of a disqualified candidate.¹⁴

C. STATE AUTHORITY OVER ELECTION PROCEDURES, ADMINISTRATION

As to a State’s authority to establish a deadline where the ballot is “fixed” such that no new or substitute candidates could be added immediately prior to an election, it should be noted initially that a division of jurisdiction under our federal system occurs in the case of elections to federal office. In the first instance, the terms of federal offices and the qualifications of candidates eligible for federal offices are established and fixed by the agreement of the States within the instrument which created those federal offices, that is, the United States Constitution, and are unalterable by the Congress or by any State unilaterally.¹⁵ The Constitution expressly provides, however, that the individual States generally have the authority to administer elections, even ones for federal congress-sional office,¹⁶ while at the same time expressly providing that each House of Congress has the authority to be the final judge of the results of those elections.¹⁷ Furthermore, the Constitution expressly provides that each House of Congress is to be the judge of the three constitutional qualifications for office of the Members-elect in those elections, that is, the age, citizenship and inhabitancy in the State of the Members-elect.

Under the States' "Times, Places and Manner" authority in the Constitution, the States may promulgate regulatory and administrative provisions over the mechanics and procedures even for federal elections within their States regarding such things as forms of the ballots, "ballot access" by candidates (including new party or independent candidates), voting procedures, and the nominating and electoral process generally, to prevent election fraud, voter confusion, ballot overcrowding, the proliferation of frivolous candidates, and to facilitate proper election administration.¹⁸ Legitimate "ballot access" procedures, including filing requirements, filing deadlines, a show of qualifying support by new or minor party or independent candidates, "sore loser" laws and other restrictions on cross-filing, are generally within the State's purview to "regulate[] election procedures" to serve the State interest of "protecting the integrity and regularity of the election process. . . ." and are not impermissible additional qualifications for federal office.¹⁹

As part of these administrative duties involving ballot access, preparation and printing of the ballots, a State must by necessity, because of the exigencies of time and duties, limit or establish a time-frame or deadline by which the ballot must be "set" or finalized, that is, a reasonable time before the general or primary election when no more candidates may be placed on the ballot or programmed into the voting machines. Courts have noted that States have a "compelling interest" in setting deadlines and in finalizing the ballot "so that general election ballots can be properly and timely prepared and distributed."²⁰ One of the consequences of not having a "set" ballot at some reasonable point prior to an election (and of allowing last-minute changes in the candidates on the printed ballot and on voting machines), would be the disenfranchisement of military and other absentee voters, since such last-minute changes would not allow sufficient time before election day

¹⁶ Article I, Section 4, cl. 1: "The Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by Law make or alter such Regulations, except as to the Places of chusing Senators."

Requirements for "ballot access," in addition to the requirement that they impose no substantive, new qualifications to federal office, must not violate equal protection provisions of the Constitution by impermissibly discriminating against new or independent candidates, nor impermissibly infringe upon First Amendment rights of voters to associate freely and express their political opinions through support of their chosen candidates.

to prepare, print, mail out and then to receive back by mail new absentee ballots with such changes.

As found by one federal court, with an election a “mere five weeks away” even if plaintiffs had prevailed on the merits of their arguments against their exclusion from the ballot, the court would have still refused to require the State to change its ballots by including petitioners’ names, since the court recognized the overriding administrative necessities of deadlines to insure “time available for election officials to complete their election preparations” before the election.²¹ The court noted the “risk [of] substantial disruption of the electoral process” that could ensue by changing a ballot after the State-established administrative deadline for finalization of those ballots, and noted the “tight schedule” of election officials, and the myriad duties and responsibilities that are valid administrative reasons for reasonable deadlines for finalizing ballots:

Last minute voter registration, processing of many absentee ballot requests, supervising the printing of voting machine ballots, sample ballots, tally sheets, and instruction sheets, instruction classes for election judges and clerks [footnote: mailing of absentee ballots and classes for election judges and clerks have already begun], final preparation of voter lists and signature cards, and distribution of voting machines and supplies remain to be accomplished before [the] November [election].²²

Courts have thus been loathe to require or allow parties to force changes to ballots close to an election, that is, at the “eleventh hour,” with an election “close at hand,” or with “the imminence of election,” because of “the potential for seriously disrupting the State’s electoral process.”²³ With an election “less than three weeks away,” a federal court refused to require the changing of a ballot to add petitioners’ names, even on a strong First Amendment showing by petitioners, since “much of the ballot and voting machine preparation” had already taken place, and there needed to be a balancing and a proper weight given to the State’s needs and interests in an “orderly” election, including the prevention of the “possible disenfranchisement of absentee and military voters caused by eleventh hour changes to the ballot.”²⁴ Justice Marshall, on circuit, turned down on October 1 a request to order names to be printed on a ballot for an upcoming November election citing, among other reasons, the State’s concern for the potential “chaotic and disruptive effect upon the electoral process,” since the “Presidential and overseas ballots have already been printed; some have been distributed. The general absentee ballots are currently being printed.”²⁵

The length of time before the election of a deadline which fixes the ballot, in relation to the administrative tasks that must be accomplished during that time, is generally relevant in judging the reasonableness and necessity of such deadline. The courts have noted that overly long deadlines for the filing of petitions by candidates, such as March or April deadlines for a November election, may not be of such a necessity as to overcome Fourteenth Amendment and First Amendment complaints of unfair treatment of supporters of those candidates who must file petitions to gain ballot access (as opposed to nominated party candidates who had much later deadlines).²⁶ In the context of a deceased candidate, it is conceivable or at least arguable, that an issue of this nature could arise, for example, if a deceased Senatorial candidate whose name remains on the ballot is of a different political party from that of the Governor of the State, and if there is an unusually long period of time before the general election when the ballot is “fixed” by State law. In such a situation voters affiliated with the deceased candidate’s party might argue that they have no choice on the ballot to select someone of their own political persuasion for Senator, at least for the “temporary” period before the next election to fill the term. That is, just as a vote for the other candidate on the ballot is a vote for someone from the other party, a vote for the deceased candidate of their own party may also be choosing someone from the other party, since the Governor would most likely appoint someone from his own political party to fill the “vacancy.” There may in such cases be a need to balance the constitutional rights and interests of voters and supporters of the political party of the deceased candidate,²⁷ with the right of the State to finalize its ballot for administrative purposes and the reasonableness and necessity of those time deadlines to perform such administrative duties as printing and distribution of ballots, including absentee and overseas ballots, preparing and programming voting machines, preparing voter instructions and sample ballots, and training of poll workers and officials.²⁸

In sum, there has been found no legal or constitutional problem with a State “finalizing” its ballot and refusing to add, substitute or withdraw names from the ballot within a “reasonable” timeframe in proximity to an election. Such ballot deadlines are not only common in the States, but are seen as absolute administrative necessities for fairness and orderly elections, and for the prevention of disenfranchisement of military and other absentee voters, all of which the courts have recognized as compelling State interests. Unfortunately, it is therefore not unprecedented nor uncommon for a candidate to die in such proximity to an election that the ballots Kirkpatrick*, 420 F. Supp. 366, 374 (W.D. Austin*, 423 F. Supp. 990, 999 (W.D. Mich. 1976), ordering the placement of a name on the ballot on August 27 would not “seriously disrupt [State] preparations for the general election” in November.

²⁷Note, e.g., arguments of supporters of minor party candidates left off ballot in Williams v. Rhodes, 393 U.S. 23 (1968).

²⁸Such constitutional considerations were not present in the case of the 2000 Missouri Senate race, however, as the Governor was of the same political party as the deceased candidate and indicated that he would appoint a member of that party (the candidate’s spouse) if the deceased candidate received the most votes.

have already been finalized, and to have that deceased candidate's name remain on the ballot for the election. Under the majority "American Rule," recognized and followed by both the House and the Senate for judging the elections of their Members, as well as most of the States for their own non-federal offices,²⁹ votes for the deceased candidate are not illegal, improper, "thrown away," or otherwise deemed to be nullities, nor is the election considered a non-event, but rather, if the deceased candidate receives the most votes, such expression is considered indicative that the majority or plurality of the voters favored the creation of a temporary "vacancy" in the office, to be filled according to the Constitution and the laws of the State.

The issue, in an imminent federal election, concerning the remaining on the ballot of the name of a deceased candidate is clearly not whether the candidate who has died is, or is not now, "qualified" to "be a Senator" under Article I, Section 3, clause 3, or a Representative under Article I, Section 2, clause 2 of the United States Constitution. Obviously, the deceased candidate could not and will not serve in or hold the office to which he or she had aspired while alive; nor has it ever been suggested that a State intended to issue "credentials" to the deceased candidate from the State to present the issue of "qualifications" to the House or Senate in an effort to seat the deceased candidate. As far as the State's participation in the process is concerned, however, the candidate was qualified (as certified) when placed on the ballot, no timely contests were filed to challenge the candidate's qualifications and ballot access at that time, and the deadline established by State law for finalizing the ballots or for substituting candidates on the ballot by political parties had passed. In this context, the issue of "qualifications" for a candidate receiving the most votes in a congressional election would arise at the time a Member-elect, with credentials from the State (as a result of either a special election or an interim appointment in the case of a Senator-elect), presents himself or herself to the House or to the Senate for being sworn in and seated to fill the vacancy created by the death of the original majority candidate in the general election.³⁰

D. SENATE AND HOUSE DECISIONS ON "QUALIFICATIONS"

As noted, while the States administer federal elections, including such administrative, housekeeping, and procedural matters as ballot access and placement on the ballot, the question of the qualifications of a candidate for the United States Congress is decided, in the first instance exclusively as provided for in the United States Constitution, and then, as to whether a person has met such constitutional qualifications, by each House of Congress judging the elections, returns and qualifications of its own Members.³¹ Although there had been in the history of our country some debate over the nature of the authority of Congress to judge general “qualifications” and/or suitability of a Member-elect for office, the extent of the authority to exclude a Member-elect by majority vote based on the Member-elect’s “qualifications,” was expressly and narrowly delineated by the Supreme Court in 1969 in Powell v. McCormack.³² The Supreme Court in that case clearly stated that “in judging the qualifications of its members Congress is limited to the standing qualifications prescribed in the Constitution,”³³ that is, the Member-elect’s age, citizenship, and inhabitancy in the State from where elected.³⁴ The Court noted that the House is “without authority to exclude any person, duly elected by his constituents, who meets all the requirements for membership expressly prescribed in the Constitution.”³⁵

Modern decisions in the House or Senate on determining “qualifications” are fairly rare, in part because of the clarification by the Supreme Court in Powell v. McCormack delineating Congress’ authority in judging qualifications to judge only the three express constitutional “qualifications” for office,³⁶ and because modern communications and media coverage make it more likely that an actual disqualifying condition (such as a candidate’s age or lack of citizenship) would be revealed before nominations by a major political party are made. It should be noted that an appointment by the Governor of California under the Seventeenth Amendment and the laws of California was challenged in 1964 on the basis of “qualifications” of the appointee, Pierre Salinger. Under the laws of the State of California one needed to be a “qualified elector” to be a candidate for United States Senate, which would have required one to have resided in the State for a particular amount of time. Some Senators argued that Salinger was not qualified to be chosen to fill the unexpired term of a Senator from California because, under the laws of the State of California, he had not resided in California long enough to meet the State’s qualifications of being an “elector,” as required by State law for candidacy.³⁷ The Senate found, in accordance with the findings of the Privileges and Elections Subcommittee of the Committee on Rules, however, that such a State law would have force and effect only as to State and local offices, and could not disqualify one from being chosen as a United States Senator. State provisions cannot bind the Senate in determining the constitutional qualifications for office of those presenting credentials for seating, nor can State law add a “durational” residency requirement to the inhabitancy qualification for Senator set out in the United States Constitution—that is, to be an “inhabitant” of the State “when elected.”³⁸

In the Senate, there has since the adoption of the Seventeenth Amendment been one other case (in addition to the 2000 Missouri election) in which an ineligible candidate was on the ballot, and then received the most votes in the election. In that instance, the Senate candidate receiving the most votes was not yet eligible to serve in the Senate at the time he was on the ballot for the general election, nor at the time of the beginning of the new congressional session, because he was only 29 years of age. The Senate found that since the issue of “qualifications” arises when the candidate or Member-elect presents his credentials to the Senate for seating, the Senate could and did allow the candidate/Member-elect to delay presenting his credentials until the time he was 30 years old, and thus qualified.³⁹ The precedents in the House similarly indicate that the issue of qualifications would arise at the time a Member-elect presents his or her credentials for seating, generally at the commencement of the session, and that the Member-elect would have to meet the “age” and “citizenship” requirements at that time (but must meet the “inhabitancy” requirement at the time of the election, that is, “when elected”). The House has in the past also allowed a Member-elect to defer taking the oath of office until the beginning of the second session of the Congress (even though Congress was called into session earlier by a Presidential proclamation), at which time the Member-elect had met the seven-year citizenship requirement, notwithstanding the fact that he was “ineligible,” that is, he was not a citizen for seven years at the time he was on the ballot and elected in the November congressional election, nor at the beginning of the first session of the new Congress.⁴⁰ The House earlier, in 1859, had apparently also allowed a Member-elect, Mr. John Y. Brown of Kentucky, to defer taking the oath of office beyond the opening of the Congress, until the beginning of the next session in December of 1860, at which time Mr. Brown met the constitutional age requirement.⁴¹

E. JUDGING ELECTIONS IN CONGRESS AND THE “AMERICAN RULE”

As expressly provided in the Constitution, the House or the Senate as an institution, in addition to judging “qualifications” of its Members, is empowered to examine the “elections” and “returns” of its own Members beyond a limited examination of a Member-elect’s three constitutional “qualifications.” That is, as stated by the Supreme Court, each House may inquire and judge as to whether a member-elect was “duly elected by his constituents.”⁴² The Supreme Court in Roudebush v. Hartke, affirmed the Senate’s authority to be the final judge of the elections and returns of its own Members, and expressly recognized the constitutional authority for “an independent evaluation by the Senate” of an election and the election returns for the United States Senate: “The Senate is free to accept or reject the apparent winner in either count [original or recount], and, if it chooses, to conduct its own recount.”⁴³

Given the express textual commitment within the Constitution to each House of Congress to be the judge of its own Members’ elections, the congressional precedent and practice in this area, although not technically binding on a future Congress, is of primary importance.⁴⁴ Furthermore, given this express textual commitment within the Constitution, it is not surprising that there is no apparent judicial authority on the question of whether Congress should seat the next-highest vote-getter when the majority candidate is ineligible, dead, or otherwise disqualified, or declare the election a “non-event” and require an immediate “do-over,” since it is not at all clear that the federal courts, absent any apparent violation of another express constitutional provision, would have entertained challenges to review congressional determinations on the elections of their own Members.⁴⁵

The practice and experience in both the House and the Senate on elections of “ineligible” candidates is clear, and is remarkably consistent given the great potential for partisan division on this issue when it arises with respect to a particular Member-elect. The overwhelming weight of authority in both the Senate and the House, as well as the express statements of official Senate and House procedural and parliamentary guides, clearly indicate that the ineligibility of the majority candidate in a congressional election, whether because of death, disability or other incapacity before or after the election, gives no title or right to the office to the runner-up candidate, but rather merely creates a “vacancy” in the office from that State.⁴⁶ This has been the case whether or not the law of the particular State in which the election was held would have, under express State law or practice, given the election to the runner-up. In the Indiana election case of Lowery v. White in the Fiftieth Congress, notwithstanding the fact that Indiana law at that time followed the minority “English Rule” and would have awarded the election to the runner-up if the majority candidate was ineligible, the majority of the Committee on Elections found that the clear and long line of congressional precedent follows the so-called “American Rule,” and that despite the State law the run-

The recognition of the so-called “British Rule” by the majority of the Committee on Elections was not, however, dispositive nor relevant to the final decision of the Committee, nor expressly approved by the House in this case, as the majority candidate was found to possess the requisite citizenship qualifications and was seated.

ner-up is not entitled to a congressional seat upon the disqualification of the majority candidate.⁴⁷

As early as 1868 the House had under its consideration a challenge to a “vacancy” where the contesting candidate claimed a seat by virtue of the fact that the winning candidate on the ballot in the original election had been constitutionally disqualified because he was not an “inhabitant” of the State. The House explained that the constitutional disqualification of the candidate on the ballot because of a lack of “inhabitancy” in the State was immaterial to the challenger’s claim to the seat, since the disqualification of the majority candidate on the ballot for lack of inhabitancy would merely create a “vacancy” in the office, and would not elect the minority or second place vote-getter:

Contestant further contended that Mr. Mann was not at the time of his election an inhabitant of the State, and was therefore ineligible. . . . [T]he committee held that it was immaterial whether he was ineligible or not, as under the principles already settled by the decisions of other cases the ineligibility of the majority candidate would give no title to the minority candidate. The committee were therefore unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Jones was not elected, and that the death of Mr. Mann had caused a vacancy.⁴⁸

In the Senate, it is plainly noted in the Senate’s procedural treatise that: “In election cases the ineligibility of a majority candidate, for a seat in the Congress gives no title to the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes.”⁴⁹ Senate precedents, citing similar rulings in the House of Representatives, have stated the “well-established Senate rule that the ineligibility of the winning candidate gives no title to the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes.”⁵⁰ In the Senate election case of Henry D. Hatfield v. Rush D. Holt, where the candidate on the ballot who had been elected by the people was only twenty-nine years old, “the Senate . . . reaffirmed that even if a winning candidate was ruled ineligible, the runner-up in the election would not be declared elected.”⁵¹ The Committee on Privileges and Elections in the 74th Congress explained as follows:

Also, that the said Henry D. Hatfield, by virtue of his having received the next highest number of eligible votes for United States Senator in the general election held in and for the State of West Virginia in November 1934, is not the duly elected Senator from the State of West Virginia. The rule is well settled that in election cases the ineligibility of a majority candidate for a seat in the Congress gives no title to the minority candidate or to the candidate receiv-

It should be noted that one early authority on parliaments and legislative assemblies, Luther Stearns Cushing, had suggested that, although it would be a "harsh" result, votes cast for a candidate whom the electors knew to be disqualified should be considered "thrown away" and "the opposing candidate elected."⁵³ In the early election case of Smith v. Brown (1861) in the House, however, Cushing's opinion, based on English parliamentary practice and called the "English Rule," was criticized and expressly rejected in favor of the "American Rule" of representative democracy. As explained in Rowell's Digest, the committee in that case found:

But the English rule had never been applied in this country and was hostile to the genius of our institutions. Mr. Cushing, in stating the English parliamentary rule, states that in his opinion the same rule applies in this country, but he gives no case to sustain his statement, which is the best of evidence that there are none. There had been numerous cases in the House and Senate where members were deprived of their seats because of ineligibility, but in no case had it ever been claimed that any title was thereby given to the minority candidate.⁵⁴

The so-called "American Rule" is based on principles of representative democracy, that in such a system the overriding issue in an election contest in the House or Senate is to attempt to effectuate the will of the majority (or plurality) of the voters of that State or district, usually in determining who was "actually elected" or "duly elected" by the people to represent them, that is, who has received the most votes.⁵⁵ Under these principles, one who has, in fact, lost an election, that is, has received fewer votes than someone else on the ballot, is therefore not seated by the legislature in contravention of the choice of the people of the State or district upon a finding by the legislature of an ineligibility and disqualification of the actual winner of the election. When, under the American Rule, a majority or plurality of voters vote for a candidate widely known to be ineligible (such as in the case of a candidate who dies shortly before the election but whose name remains on the ballot), it is assumed that the will of the majority or plurality of voters was to choose a "vacancy." In the case of Senate races, if the Governor has already indicated the person whom he will appoint to fill the vacancy should the deceased candidate receive the most votes, then the will of the electorate, in giving the most votes to the deceased candidate, would arguably have been expressed in favor of that proposed appointee over the other candidates on the ballot. In one case in the Senate concerning an “anticipatory appointment,” where there arose an issue as to which Governor (the outgoing or incoming) had the authority to appoint an interim Senator to the vacancy created by the in-coming Governor who was giving up his Senate seat to be Governor, the Senate precedent indicates that the decision was made, in part, on a recognition that “the voters had known when they elected Matthew Neely governor that he intended to name his Senate successor, since he made his plan clear during the campaign.”⁵⁶

F. SEVENTEENTH AMENDMENT

It was argued during the 2000 Senate race in Missouri that the Seventeenth Amendment, adopted principally to provide for popular election of United States Senators, should limit a Governor’s authority (and the authority of the State legislatures in empowering the Governor) to require a Governor to issue only “writs of election” for a special election when there is a vacancy which has been created by the election of a candidate known to be disqualified or ineligible at the time of the election, rather than making a “temporary appointment” to fill such vacancy until a later scheduled election.⁵⁷ Although there are some interesting policy arguments concerning such proposed limitations on State Governors’ authority to make “temporary appointments” in these circumstances, particularly where the Governor is of the same major political party as the surviving candidate,⁵⁸ there is nothing on the face of the language of the Seventeenth Amendment, its enactment history, nor any judicial interpretations or congressional precedents which support such a restrictive construction of State authority under the Amendment.

The language of the vacancy clause of the Seventeenth Amendment clearly provides no distinctions as to when or how the “vacancy” in the office has been created:

When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the legislature of any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

The text and the actual language of the Amendment clearly show, therefore, that there is no express restriction on a State legislature’s or Governor’s authority which is dependent or based upon any distinctions in the nature or the timing of how or when the Senate vacancy occurs. Rather, the language of the Amendment appears to provide on its face two alternate ways for a State to fill ⁵⁷ Viet D. Dinh, “Dead Men Can’t Win,” The Wall Street Journal, November 9, 2000, at A26.

⁵⁸ Some States require the Governor to select someone from the same political party as the deceased Member to fill a vacancy, but such additional requirement might prove difficult to enforce in court, as it may be seen as a qualification for the Senate additional to those established in the Constitution.

any vacancy in the State's representation in the Senate: either the executive of the State shall issue writs of election for a special election to fill the vacancy, or, if expressly authorized by the legislature of the State, the Governor may make a "temporary appointment" to fill the vacancy until the people select a replacement for the remainder of the term in a future election as the State "legislature may direct." As noted in dicta by the Supreme Court, "the Seventeenth Amendment permits a state, if it chooses, to forgo a special election in favor of a temporary appointment to the United States Senate. . . ." ⁵⁹ In practice, most of the States provide for a temporary appointment by the Governor until the next regularly scheduled biennial congressional election, but a State might also provide for a more immediate "special election" and authorize an appointment by the Governor until the time of such election. ⁶⁰

Generally speaking, in provisions such as the Seventeenth Amendment, the "plain meaning" of the text and the words of the provision should be employed in discerning its import and intent, unless there is some clear and express countervailing enactment history. ⁶¹ Furthermore, under long-established principles of constitutional interpretation, meaning must be given to all the words in a provision, and thus phrases and words in the text of the Constitution may not be ignored. ⁶² Thus, while the principal purpose of the Seventeenth Amendment was certainly to provide for the popular election of Senators, the express discretion and authority delegated to the State legislatures to allow the Governor of the State to make temporary appointments to fill Senate vacancies can not be disregarded. ⁶³

In the enactment history of the Seventeenth Amendment there is no express indication that a State is required to hold a more immediate "special election" to fill a vacancy created by the death or other ineligibility of the majority candidate in a general election, as opposed to using the alternative method of allowing a temporary appointment by the Governor until a later election is held, as directed by the State legislature. In fact, in the earliest formulations of the vacancy language used in what became the Seventeenth Amendment, the drafter was cognizant of the expense of State-wide elections, and expressly intended to allow the State to be spared the expense of having to hold another State-wide “special election” soon after or before a regular State-wide election.⁶⁴

There is also no express indication in the enactment history that the Amendment, contrary to its express language, was intended to limit or restrict the authority or power of a State legislature over the details of the procedures of elections in their respective States to fill vacancies. The enactment history of the Seventeenth Amendment in the United States Congress shows a serious debate and division concerning “States” rights,” with one of the major contentions in the debate being over a provision, adopted in one House, which went so far as to remove entirely Congress’ residual authority over the “Times, Places and Manners” of federal elections in the States under Article I, Section 4, clause 1 of the Constitution.⁶⁵ The author of the substitute amendment eventually adopted by Congress, Senator Bristow, noted explicitly that the direct election provisions were not intended to “add new powers of control to the Federal Government” at the expense of the authority of the State legislatures over such elections.⁶⁶ The constitutional provision adopted expressly provides as to vacancies, in fact, that after a temporary appointment, the people of the State will fill the vacancy by election “as the legislature may direct.” This is a direct grant in the United States Constitution of authority and discretion to the State legislatures,⁶⁷ limited only by the requirement that the Governor’s appointment be “temporary,” and there is no indication of a silent or implicit agenda to limit that authority or discretion when vacancies arise from the death of a candidate, or otherwise, at the beginning of the term.

Federal courts looking at the issue of whether the Seventeenth Amendment requires a State to hold a “special election” to fill a Senate vacancy have concluded that the Constitution delegated to the State legislatures significant discretion and authority as to the mechanics and procedures of how and when vacancies in the Senate from their respective States are to be filled. In Valenti v. Rockefeller, a federal court, in a case expressly affirmed by the United States Supreme Court, found that there is nothing in the Seventeenth Amendment, nor its history, that requires the State to hold a special election to fill a vacancy, rather than to have a temporary gubernatorial appointment, even if such appointment extends, because of the State’s statutory nominating procedures, more than two years and thus beyond the next immediate State-wide election.⁶⁸ The court noted there that the pre-Seventeenth Amendment history, as well as the Amendment’s enactment history, “provides ⁶⁴ Representative Tucker of Virginia originally drafted and offered in 1892 the vacancy provision eventually adopted in 1912. As reported in the House, one reason discretion was given to the State legislatures to allow a “temporary appointment” until a later election, such as a regularly scheduled state-wide election, was that mandatory special elections might be a “hardship” on the State which recently had or soon will have a state election, since “to add another State election would be imposing an unnecessary expense on the people.” H.R. Rep. No. 368, 52d Cong., 1st Sess. 5 (1892).

no support for plaintiff's contention that special elections are required to fill vacancies under the Seventeenth Amendment."⁶⁹ Noting the discretion expressly given in the text of the Constitution to the State legislatures over this issue, the court found:

The Seventeenth Amendment's vacancy provision explicitly confers upon the state legislatures discretion concerning the timing of vacancy elections. If the legislature authorizes the governor to make a temporary appointment, the appointee may hold office "until the people fill the vacanc[y] by election as the legislature may direct." . . . [W]e believe that we must give effect to the natural reading of the Seventeenth Amendment as adopted since there is no indication that the Congress which proposed the Amendment, or the state legislatures which ratified it, intended a different meaning. This natural reading grants to the states some reasonable discretion concerning both the timing of vacancy elections and the procedures to be used in selecting candidates for such elections. This interpretation gains support from Art. I, §4 of the Constitution which gives to the state legislatures the initial power to prescribe the "Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives. . . ." If the drafters of the Seventeenth Amendment had intended to bring about a radical departure from this normal rule of state discretion in the instance of the timing and manner of holding vacancy elections, such as by requiring special elections, it is likely that they would have employed clear language to that effect. . . .⁷⁰

The court found that the Seventeenth Amendment did place "some limit on the discretion of the states" by requiring that the Governor's appointment be "temporary" until an election is held.⁷¹ The majority of the court did not, however, attempt to set an outer limit to that time. In the case of the New York statutory provisions in effect and reviewed in Valenti v. Rockefeller, the "temporary appointment" by Governor Rockefeller after the death of Senator Robert Kennedy worked out to 29 months.⁷²

In a similar manner, in Trinsey v. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,⁷³ the United States Court of Appeals found that the discretion granted to the State legislatures in the Seventeenth Amendment to establish the details of the procedures and timing of vacancy elections for the Senate was so broad and significant that, even though the Seventeenth Amendment itself required popular general elections for the Senate, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania was within its authority under the vacancy clause to provide by statute that nominations for a special election to fill a Senate vacancy may be made without a popular primary election. The court noted that the legislative history of the Seventeenth Amendment indicated that the Congress "was resistant to any change that would decrease the power and authority of the states and enlarge
