THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, July 29, 2024.

Hon. MIKE JOHNSON,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I am pleased to transmit to the Congress, pursuant to section 123 d. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended (42 U.S.C. 2153(d)), the text of an amendment (the "Amendment") to the Agreement Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland for Cooperation on the Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defense Purposes of July 3, 1958, as amended (the "1958 Agreement").

I am also pleased to transmit my written approval, authorization, and determination concerning the Amendment. The joint memorandum submitted to me by the Secretaries of Defense and Energy providing their position on the Amendment is also enclosed. A separate classified addendum with additional material is being provided under appropriate security arrangements.

The Amendment removes the expiration date of certain provisions of the 1958 Agreement that permit the transfer of certain equipment and material between the United States and the United Kingdom, to enable broad and enduring cooperation and make all provisions of the 1958 Agreement indefinite in duration.

The Amendment also clarifies that Article II(A) of the 1958 Agreement provides for the exchange of atomic information and other related classified information, controlled unclassified information, technical data and technology subject to either Party's export control requirements, sensitive nuclear technology, and controlled nuclear information, as is jointly determined to be necessary for the development of defense plans; the training of personnel in the employment of defense against atomic weapons; the evaluation of capabilities of potential enemies in the employment of atomic weapons and other military applications of atomic energy; the development of delivery systems compatible with atomic weapons; and the research, development, or design of military reactors.

The Amendment's revisions to Article II(B) of the 1958 Agreement clarify that these same types of information may be exchanged related to atomic weapons, including special nuclear materials properties and production or processing technology, as is determined necessary to improve the recipient's atomic weapon design, development, or fabrication capability.

The Amendment also consolidates reciprocal transfers of equipment, information, and material associated with naval nuclear propulsion cooperation, including information designated as naval nuclear propulsion information in Article III of the 1958 Agreement, and makes corresponding changes in that Article needed to provide for reciprocity.

The Amendment's additional revisions to the 1958 Agreement ensure consistency with the above-described changes as well as current United States and United Kingdom policies and practices regarding nuclear threat reduction, naval nuclear propulsion, and the security of the nuclear security enterprise, including personnel security.

In my judgment, the Amendment meets all statutory requirements. The United Kingdom intends to continue to maintain viable nuclear forces into the foreseeable future. The provisions of the 1958 Agreement, as amended by the Amendment, are consistent in every respect with United States commitments to the United Kingdom regarding the development and deployment of the United Kingdom TRIDENT Strategic Weapon System, continued cooperation in nuclear propulsion programs, and support for the United Kingdom atomic weapon and nuclear threat reduction programs.

Based on our steadfast partnership with the United Kingdom, and the United Kingdom's continued commitment of nuclear forces to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), I have concluded it is in the national interest of the United States to continue to assist the United Kingdom in maintaining a credible nuclear deterrent, which will further improve our mutual defense posture and support our collective interests under NATO.

I have considered the views and recommendations of the interested departments and agencies and have determined that the performance of the Amendment will promote, and will not constitute an unreasonable risk to, the common defense and security. Further, I have approved the program outlined in the Amendment and have determined that such program will promote, and will not constitute an unreasonable risk to, the common defense and security. Accordingly, I have approved the Amendment, authorized its execution, and urge that the Congress give it favorable consideration.

Sincerely,

JOSEPH R. BIDEN, Jr.

territory of the originating Party. Enriched uranium recovered in reprocessing such materials by either Party may be purchased by the originating Party under terms and conditions to be agreed. Special nuclear material recovered in reprocessing such materials and not purchased by the originating Party may be returned to or retained by the recipient Party.

- C. Each Party shall be compensated for enriched uranium sold by it pursuant to this Article at a price based on the fair market price of comparable enriched uranium at the time of the sale. For types of enriched uranium that do not have a commercial market, compensation for sale will be made at a price to be agreed by both Parties.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: LLOYD AUSTIN
SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

JENNIFER GRANHOLM
SECRETARY OF ENERGY

SUBJECT: Proposed Amendment to the Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland for Cooperation on the Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defense Purposes

Hereby submitted for your consideration and approval is a proposed Amendment to the 1958 Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland for Cooperation on the Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defense Purposes, as amended (the 1958 Agreement).

Article III bis of the 1958 Agreement permits certain transfers of materials and equipment to and from the United Kingdom prior to December 31, 2024. The proposed Amendment indefinitely extends the period for such transfers in order to enable broad and enduring cooperation. Further information on the materials and equipment to be transferred, or authorized for transfer, by the United States on an enduring basis under the 1958 Agreement are addressed in a supplementary classified memorandum. Under the 1958 Agreement, the terms and conditions of individual transfers of these materials and equipment must be further agreed by the Parties.

The proposed Amendment clarifies that Article II(A) of the 1958 Agreement provides for the exchange of Atomic Information and other related: Classified Information, Controlled Unclassified Information, technical data and technology subject to either Party's export control requirements, Sensitive Nuclear Technology, and Controlled Nuclear Information, as is jointly determined to be necessary for the development of defense plans; training of personnel in the employment of and defense against atomic weapons; evaluation of capabilities of potential enemies in the employment of atomic weapons and other military applications of atomic energy; development of delivery systems compatible with atomic weapons; and the research, development or design of military reactors. Amendments to Article II(B) clarify that these same types of information may be exchanged related to atomic weapons, including special nuclear materials properties and production or processing technology, as is determined necessary to improve the recipient's atomic weapon design, development, or fabrication capability.

The proposed Amendment also consolidates provisions enabling reciprocal transfers of equipment, information, and material associated with naval nuclear propulsion cooperation, including information designated as naval nuclear propulsion information in Article III. In connection with this change, the proposed Amendment would also amend the Agreement to provide for cross-waiver of claims for liability, rather than the current indemnification of the United States by the United Kingdom.

Additional revisions to the 1958 Agreement ensure consistency with current U.S. and UK policies and practice regarding nuclear threat reduction, naval nuclear propulsion, and the security of the nuclear security enterprise, including personnel security. These revisions reflect the current transfer practices, classification policies, and security policies of the U.S. and UK Governments, while also allowing for changes to such practices and policies over time.

The provisions of the 1958 Agreement, as proposed to be amended, are consistent in every respect with U.S. commitments to the United Kingdom regarding the development and deployment of the UK TRIDENT Strategic Weapon System, continued cooperation in nuclear propulsion programs, and support for the UK atomic weapon and nuclear threat reduction programs.

We recommend that you determine that the United Kingdom, by participating with the United States pursuant to an international arrangement, is making substantial and material contributions to the mutual defense and security. The United Kingdom's nuclear forces have been and continue to be committed to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Recommendation:

That you further:

- a. approve the proposed Amendment to the 1958 Agreement;
- b. determine that performance of the proposed Amendment will promote and will not constitute an unreasonable risk to the common defense and security;
- c. approve the program outlined in the proposed Amendment and determine that such program will promote and will not constitute an unreasonable risk to the common defense and security; and
- d. authorize the execution of the proposed Amendment for the Government of the United States of America in a manner specified by the Secretary of State.

The Department of State concurs with these recommendations.
