7 such failures do not take place in following
8 years.

9 (c) SCOPE OF INFORMATION.—The online publication
10 required by subsection (a) shall, at a minimum, provide

12 (1) in each fiscal year from 2016 through 2019,
13 such information for fiscal years 2012 through the 14 current fiscal year; and

15 (2) for fiscal year 2020 and each fiscal year

10 (22 U.S.C. 7701 et seq.); and 11 (D) the Food for Peace Act (7 U.S.C.
12 1721 et seq.).

Chairman ROYCE. And after recognizing myself and the ranking member, I will be pleased to recognize any member seeking recognition to speak on these measures.

So we begin with the AGOA Enhancement Act markup. And I will just tell you, just as a reminder, we recently passed AGOA and gave it a 10-year extension. And I thank the members for their help on that and thank Congresswoman Karen Bass in particular. We have been involved in this committee since 1998 when we wrote the original measure here, part of it, as cosponsors.

AGOA, obviously, allows qualified sub-Saharan African countries to export thousands and thousands of goods, like apparel and energy and other products, to the United States on a duty-free basis, but it is done in conjunction with changes made that help civil society in these African countries with respect to the rule of law and developing independent courts.

So it has helped draw hundreds of millions of dollars in foreign investment into the subcontinent, and it has helped put thousands of Africans into much needed work. It is good for exporters too. As you know, about two-thirds of the countries in Africa qualify for AGOA. But to qualify you have to take certain steps toward rule of law.

In May of this year, Congress successfully reauthorized AGOA, as I shared with you, for 10 years. This bill, the AGOA Enhancement Act, contains provisions that will improve trade capacity and relations between African companies and companies here in the United States. Namely, the Millennium Challenge Corporation, or MCC, will be allowed to enter into a second compact in an eligible country for purposes of promoting economic integration and trade, helping to unlock a region's full potential for growth. And the bill also modernizes AGOA's implementation by getting more information about its trade preferences online, so that companies on both sides of the Atlantic can better understand and utilize AGOA's benefits.

So I, again, want to thank our ranking member, Mr. Engel, and the Africa Subcommittee Chairman Smith for his work on this, and Ranking Member Bass, for their support.

Second, we have H.R. 3766, the Foreign Aid Transparency and Accountability Act, which will enhance—well, the bill will ensure that many Federal departments and agencies that implement these programs, these foreign aid programs, coordinate and not duplicate efforts and apply the lessons learned from evaluations so we can do more of what works in development and less of what doesn't work. And the bill is the result of years of consultation and collaboration between Congress and the administration and experts and advocates.

And I want to thank the bill's sponsor, Judge Poe, and his co-author, Mr. Connolly, for their steadfast work and leadership in bringing this before us today.

Third, we have H.R. 3750, the First Responders Passport Act. This will allow the Secretary of State to waive passport fees for individuals working with the U.S. Government to respond to natural disasters abroad.

Many of us represent teams that deploy around the globe just hours after a disaster hits. This makes us very proud. But every year, brave Americans volunteer to be on call for this duty, but as a result must bear the expense of ensuring their passports are up to date. And this act will provide a small but important benefit for those who represent us so well, such as the team that deployed to Nepal.

Lastly, H.R. 2241, the Global Health Innovation Act, directs the Administrator of U.S. Agency for International Development to provide Congress with five annual reports on the Agency's efforts to develop and apply new, innovative health technologies within U.S. Global Health Programs.

The reason that is of interest to us is because through USAID, through the Global Development Lab and the Center for Accelerating Innovation and Impact, they have partnered with a lot of private sector groups to develop and bring to scale low-cost, high-impact health technologies. We are seeing that impact particularly in maternal health.

So these reports will improve our oversight of this important effort. And I thank Mr. Sires for bringing this forward in a timely measure.

And I want to turn to Ranking Member Karen Bass of the Africa Subcommittee for her opening remarks.

Ms. BASS. Thank you, Mr. Chair.

In true fashion, the AGOA Enhancement Act is bipartisan. And I want to thank Chairman Royce, Ranking Member Engel, and the Africa Subcommittee chair, Chris Smith, for their longstanding and consistent support of AGOA and their foresight regarding the need to ensure that the reauthorized AGOA is implemented in a transparent and effective manner and supported by complementary legislation, such as the AGOA Enhancement Act.

I also want to thank the HFAC committee staffers who worked long and hard and creatively on this bill to ensure its relevancy and complementary support of AGOA.

The AGOA Enhancement Act does exactly what its title suggests, it enhances AGOA by strengthening transparency and common-sense priorities aimed at enabling eligible AGOA countries to utilize AGOA benefits more effectively by obtaining greater access to information about AGOA, developing trade capacity building, and expanding regional economic coordination.

Transparency is addressed by requiring the administration to, for example, create an AGOA Web site for the collection and dissemination of information regarding AGOA. Trade capacity building is addressed by requiring that the administration encourage and facilitate transboundary cooperation among eligible African countries in order to facilitate trade and encourage the provision of technical assistance to eligible African countries.

H.R. 2845 also recognizes the unique role played by the U.S. Millennium Challenge Corporation, or MCC—and I want to take a moment to acknowledge MCC's leadership and their stellar staff—in economic development and its success working with nations to improve economic growth and address regional integration. MCC is enabled to work with partner countries on a regional basis. The MCC requested this authority as a way to better leverage and facilitate economic growth through its investments and supports this provision being included.

Over the next 10 years, Africa will become an even more important part of the world economy with a large youthful population that is increasingly university educated, tech savvy, and entrepreneurial. Without question, it is in the interest of the United States and the countries of Africa, the world's new economic frontier, that we work together toward a stronger and mutually beneficial economic relationship that will stand the test of time.

Thank you, and I yield back my time.

Chairman ROYCE. The ranking member, Mr. Eliot Engel.

Mr. ENGEL. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Thank you for calling up these bipartisan measures. It is good, as always, to see our committee working together to advance legislation and getting it to the House floor.

Let me begin with Chairman Royce's measure, the African Growth and Opportunity Act Enhancement Act of 2015. Earlier this year, Congress authorized the African Growth and Opportunity Act through 2025. That bill seeks to promote trade between Africa and the United States, but it has become clear that a number of eligible countries lack sufficient capacity to reap the program's benefits.

H.R. 2845, which I am proud to cosponsor along with Rep. Bass and Rep. Smith, would encourage the United States to work with sub-Saharan African governments to improve the rule of law, strengthen and expand the private sector, reduce bureaucratic barriers to trade, and promote the role of women on the continent.

In short, this bill seeks to improve investment, trade, and job growth in the region. This, in turn, would strengthen the global economy and encourage development in sub-Saharan Africa, two priorities for this committee.

Let me next thank my friend, Albio Sires, for introducing H.R. 2241, the Global Health Innovation Act of 2015. The Ebola epidemic and other public health crises remind us there is a vital need for the United States to maintain our research and development efforts and response capabilities in the health field.

Over the years, USAID has made some major advances in health research and development. We have seen that through innovative programs such as the Malaria Vaccine Development Program. And successive administrations have rightly supported a significant expansion of those efforts.

H.R. 2241 directs USAID to report annually to Congress on its new programs, projects, and activities related to global health. It is important that the Agency continues to focus on innovation, and it is important for the Congress to make sure that the resources it receives are spent in the most effective way possible.

Next, I would like to thank Rep. Issa for introducing H.R. 3750, and I am proud to be a cosponsor of this measure. This bill would authorize the Secretary of State to waive passport fees for the brave Americans who help other countries in times of natural disaster.

USAID search-and-rescue teams based in Fairfax County, Virginia, Miami-Dade County, Florida, and Los Angeles County, California, have played an essential role in the aftermath of many overseas natural disasters, including earthquakes that have struck Nepal, Haiti, Japan, and New Zealand. These teams provide specialized capabilities and demonstrate our commitment to international partners during times of need.

We need to be ready to respond, and waiving passport fees is the least we can do for Americans who risk life and limb to help other countries during times of despair. The State Department and USAID support this measure, and I urge my colleagues to do so as well.

And finally, let me thank Congressman Poe for introducing the Foreign Aid Transparency and Accountability Act, along with Congressman Connolly for his hard work on this measure. The State Department, under Secretary Hillary Clinton, and USAID, under the leadership of Raj Shah, took major steps to improve monitoring, evaluation, and transparency in our foreign assistance programs.

These improvements include the first-ever Presidential policy directive on development in the Foreign Assistance Dashboard, an initiative that collects information from across the Federal Government, increasing transparency in foreign assistance programs.

This legislation seeks to double down on these groundbreaking efforts to help the government and the American people better understand how their development investments improve lives around the world.

So again, Mr. Chairman, thank you for your work, as usual, to move forward with these bills and on all these subjects. And, as always, thank you for working with us in a bipartisan manner. I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Engel.

We go now to Judge Poe.

Mr. POE. I want to thank the chairman and the ranking member for moving this legislation forward. And I also want to thank my friend from Virginia, Mr. Connolly, for his work on the foreign aid bill that we are talking about today. H.R. 3766.

Foreign assistance has been around 50 years-plus. And what this legislation does is make that assistance transparent, let the American public and everyone else know what we are doing all over the world, and make it easy to understand. Some of the postings by government agencies regarding what they are doing are so complicated you can't figure out what that means.

So the transparency aspect is the first aspect of this legislation, transparent about foreign assistance, and make it easy for everyone to understand what we are doing, the good that we are doing throughout the world.

The second half of this legislation is to evaluate those programs. One would think that we have over the years evaluated foreign assistance, but we haven't really evaluated it to see whether it is working or not. So an evaluation is required of departments that give American money as assistance, evaluate those programs to see, first of all, if they are reaching the goal of the program and the assistance. And if it is not reaching that goal, then we need to evaluate whether we should continue that type of assistance.

We continue to give money to certain programs and we really don't know whether it is working to solve the problem of hunger or water or whatever it is somewhere in the world. So the evaluation must take place by all these departments, evaluate the things that are working, things that continue to work and are doing good assistance. We may continue those. And if it is not working, then we need to stop that program.

So it is an audit, I would call it an audit of foreign assistance that we are doing. If it works, continue to do it. If not, then re-evaluate it, maybe we should not. One percent of the budget goes to foreign assistance. Therefore, with the limited money, we certainly should find out what we are doing, transparency, and we should also find out and evaluate all of the programs to see whether they are a success or not.

And thank you, Mr. Chairman. I will yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Poe.

Mr. Connolly, I want to recognize Mr. Connolly. He looks apprehensive here.

Mr. CONNOLLY. No. No. I wasn't quite sure what you were looking at.

I thank the chair and the ranking member for putting this on the agenda today. And I want to thank Judge Poe for his leadership. We have been doing this together for a couple of years now and we are so glad to have it.

This bill directs the President to establish monitoring and evaluation guidelines for the 22 Federal agencies charged with implementing development and economic assistance programs abroad, chief among them, of course, USAID. The guidelines will require M&E plans as part of the project development process and agencies will be encouraged to incorporate the findings of project evaluations and impact studies.

Aid programs that are held accountable for their performance and results can be made more effective, as Judge Poe just indicated, and their impact on communities and countries abroad more easily measured. And if we do that, as Judge Poe just said, we can dispel the notion in public polling that, apparently, foreign assistance is 26 percent of the Federal budget, when, of course, it is less than 1 percent.

The U.S. foreign assistance operation does not lack passion. The men and women who put themselves in harm's way in often very remote parts of the globe or take their families to those parts of the world in the interest of helping vulnerable populations certainly aren't seeking glory, fame, or fortune. They do it because they envision a path to prosperity for others even in the most poverty-stricken areas of the world.

While our passion is well defined, our mission and metrics are not. Regarding the mission, I was a staffer on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that wrote the last foreign aid authorization bill passed by Congress back in 1986. In that time, we had, like, five principal goals. Today, we have 260.

And the mission is not clear. The mission statement just a year ago for USAID read: "USAID accelerates human progress in developing countries by reducing poverty, advancing democracy, building market economies, promoting security, responding to crises, and improving quality of life. Working with governance institutions and civil society, we assist individuals to build their own futures by mobilizing the full range of American public and private resources through our expert presence overseas." That is not a clear mission.

So I am hopeful, Mr. Chairman, this bill will help focus—refocus—U.S. foreign assistance programs in a more efficacious way. And I am proud to call myself a cosponsor of this legislation and am, again, grateful for Judge Poe for his leadership. I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Connolly.

We are going to go to Mr. Issa and then to Mr. Sires.

Mr. ISSA. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. And in the case of H.R. 3750, I will be very brief.

The State Department has needed this authority for a long time, although on a routine basis there are as few as 450 individuals that this would cover in the way of first responders, and at any given time, with a typical 10-year passport, only a few would need it.

However, if there is a catastrophic event somewhere within the world and we call on a large number of first responders, many of whom may not have current passports, the ability to quickly waive it is a capability the State Department would want and need if the United States Government is directing these first responders to go to the distressed area.

And as CBO has scored it as narrowly targeted, fixed, and it will be a negligible amount and can be paid out of existing funds, it has no CBO score. It is something the State Department very much believes is in their best interest to have in the case of a major event and will have a de minimus cost compared to the cost of transporting those individuals and the benefit to America of having first responders go to the scene of a catastrophe.

And so I urge the support. And I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Issa.

We go now to Mr. Sires.

Mr. SIRES. I want to start by thanking Chairman Royce, Ranking Member Engel for their work on global health and their efforts to mark up this bill. I would also like to thank the many members of this committee who have cosponsored this bill and all the staff that worked on this bill.

H.R. 2241, the Global Health Innovation Act, is a bill that will provide the oversight needed to gain a clearer picture of USAID's global health research and development. Over the years, research and development projects have greatly expanded at USAID in searching for advancement toward an HIV- and AIDS-free generation, in preventable maternal and childhood death, and preventable infectious disease.

This legislation is an effort to keep up with the scope of USAID's expanded effort and ensure their research and development activities reflect their goals and priorities. This report asks them to provide clarity on their goals and metrics to better understand their work. H.R. 2241 directs the USAID's Administrator to report annually to Congress on the development and use of global health innovations in USAID's programs, projects, and activities.

The report must also include how the Agency measures progress, investment, and development toward their health-related goals. Lastly, the amendment I introduced will sunset this requirement after five reports.

I thank the committee for their time and urge my colleagues to support this legislation. I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Sires.

And I will remind members, you can put statements into the record. We are in the last 7 minutes of the vote or so. And if there are any necessary statements, I think we have covered those who are authors or coauthors of amendments.

Any other members seek time? If not, hearing no further requests for recognition, the question occurs on the items considered en bloc.

All those in favor, say aye.

All those opposed, no.

In the opinion of the Chair, the ayes have it and the measures considered en bloc are agreed to.

So, without objection, the measures considered en bloc are ordered favorably reported as amended and staff is directed to make any technical and conforming changes. And also, without objection, the chair is authorized to seek House consideration of these measures under suspension of the rules.

That concludes our business today. And I want to thank Ranking Member Engel and all of our committee members for their contributions and assistance with this markup today. We stand adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 11:41 a.m., the committee was adjourned.]

STATEMENT SUBMITTED BY THE HONORABLE CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY

HCFA Mark-Up Statements
November 5, 2015

H.R. 2845 – AGOA Enhancement Act

This Committee, and our Chairman specifically, has worked on improving the process of U.S. –Africa trade diligently over the past few years. Congress passed a 10-year extension of the African Growth and Opportunity Act, or AGOA, but we felt there was more to be done to enable AGOA.

H.R. 2845 – the AGOA Enhancement Act – provides for an online site for all information on AGOA. Fifteen years after AGOA was first signed into law, too many people still don't have a full picture of the opportunities this trade process can provide. It is past time for this gap to be closed.

In concert with more information is the mandate to engage in more robust training of current and potential AGOA producers in Africa. Capacity building for these businesses and trade associations will be vital if AGOA is to function effectively. The United States is a complex market, and if we are serious about facilitating African exports to this country, we must give producers all the information they need to be successful.

Finally, this bill allows the Millennium Challenge Corporation to combine compacts in the same region so that their effect with to beyond any one country's borders. Not only would this increase the attractiveness of African markets by providing for easier and broader access, but it also would encourage regional trade, which has been far below levels necessary for development and regional integration.

Mr. Chairman, I appreciate having worked with you, Mr. Engel and Ms. Bass to promote this worthy bill, which I believe will make a significant difference in the level of successful African participation in AGOA. I urge my colleagues to support it.

I would like to thank my good friend and fellow member of the New Jersey delegation, Albio Sires, for his Global Health Innovation Act of 2015, H.R. 2241, of which I am a cosponsor.

I applaud Congressman Sires for introducing this bipartisan legislation which will allow us to exercise greater oversight over USAID programs and to gauge how effectively USAID is developing and utilizing innovations in health programs. By requiring USAID to report on its activities, his bill will enable us to better ascertain whether and how USAID is leveraging its interventions with other stakeholders, including via public-private partnerships.

I would like to thank Congressman Sires for reaching out and working with my staff both in this Congress and the last. [In particular I would like to acknowledge the work of Sadaf Khan from Mr. Sires staff, Mark Iozzi from Ranking Member Engel's staff, and Piero Tozzi from my own for their work on this bill, pushing USAID for clarification and accountability.]

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation.

Thank you.
