1 SEC. 2. FINDINGS; POLICY.

2 Section 2 of the International Religious Freedom Act
3 of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6401) is amended—

4 (1) in subsection (a)—

5 (A) in paragraph (4), in the fourth sen-
6 tence, by inserting “prohibitions on ritual ani-
7 mal slaughter, male infant circumcision, censor-
8 ship of religious content, or worship on the 9 Internet,” after “confiscations of property,”;

10 (B) in paragraph (5), by amending the sec-
11 ond sentence to read as follows: “In many coun-
12 tries, religious believers are forced to meet se-
13 cretly, and religious leaders and believers are 14 targeted by national security forces, violent
15 nonstate actors, and hostile mobs.”;

16 (C) by redesignating paragraph (7) as
17 paragraph (9); and

18 (D) by inserting after paragraph (6) the 19 following new paragraphs:

20 “(7) There is growing evidence that dem-
21 onstrates a connection between the absence of reli-
22 gious freedom and increased levels of persecution of

1 religious minorities, religiously motivated conflict,
2 violent extremism, and terrorism, including the kind
3 of terrorism that has reached the United States.

4 “(8) It is increasingly clear that understanding
5 religion and the political and security implications of 6 religious motivation and conviction is critical to the 7 success of United States diplomacy and foreign pol-
8 icy initiatives as there are studies that show—

9 “(A) 75 percent of the world’s population
10 lives in countries where the right to the freedom
11 of religion and belief is severely restricted, ei-
12 ther by the government or violent nonstate ac-
13 tors; and

14 “(B) 84 percent of the world’s population
15 identifies strongly with a specific religious 16 group.”; and

17 (2) in subsection (b), by adding at the end the 18 following new paragraph:

19 “(6) Because the promotion of international re-
20 ligious freedom is a foreign policy strategy that pro-
21 tects other, related human rights, advances democ-
22 racy abroad, and advances United States interests in 23 stability, security, and development globally, the pro-
24 motion of international religious freedom requires
25 new and evolving policies, global religion engagement

1 strategies, and diplomatic responses that are drawn
2 from the expertise of the national security agencies,
3 the diplomatic services, Congress, and other govern-
4 mental agencies and nongovernmental organizations,
5 and are coordinated across and carried out by the 6 entire range of Federal agencies that are engaged
7 with or conduct negotiations or United States Gov-
8 ernment funded programs with governments or vio-
9 lent nonstate actors that engage in or tolerate viola-
10 tions of religious freedom.”.

11 SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

12 Section 3 of the International Religious Freedom Act
13 of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6402) is amended—

14 (1) by amending paragraph (12) to read as fol-
15 lows:

16 “(12) SPECIAL ADVISER.—The term ‘Special
17 Adviser’ means the Special Advisor for Global Reli-
18 gion Engagement and International Religious Free-
19 dom described in section 101 of the National Secu-
20 rity Act of 1947.”; and

21 (2) by adding at the end, the following new 22 paragraphs:

23 “(14) SPECIAL WATCH LIST.—The term ‘Spe-
24 cial Watch List’ means the Special Watch List de-
25 scribed in section 102(b)(1)(F)(iii).

“(15) VIOLENT NONSTATE ACTOR.—The term ‘violent nonstate actor’ means a nonsovereign entity or group that—

“(A) exercises significant political power or influence at a national or international level; and

“(B) engages in, finances, or tolerates violations of religious freedom, terrorism, or violence or discrimination targeting religious minorities.

“(16) INSTITUTION OF HIGHER EDUCATION.—The term ‘institution of higher education’ has the meaning given that term in section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001)”.

(1) in subsection (a), by adding at the end the following new sentence: “The Office shall be located in the Office of the Secretary of State.”;

1 (2) in subsection (b), by adding at the end be-

1 ing any appropriate programs, projects, and activi-

4 Department of the Treasury, and the United States
5 Agency for International Development.”; and

6 (4) in subsection (d), by striking “staff for the 7 Office” and all that follows through the period at 8 the end and inserting “individuals to fill at least 20

21 times, academic freedom and universal rights to the 22 freedoms of religion, speech, assembly, and associa-
23 tion.

5 TITLE I—DEPARTMENT OF
 6 STATE ACTIVITIES

7 SEC. 101. OFFICE ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREE-
 8 DOM; AMBASSADOR AT LARGE FOR INTER-
 9 NATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

10 (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 101 of the International 11 Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6411) is 12 amended—

13 (1) in subsection (b), by adding at the end be-
 14 fore the period the following: “, and shall report di-
 15 rectly to the Secretary of State”;

16 (2) in subsection (c)—

17 (A) in paragraph (1)—

18 (i) by striking “responsibility” and in-
 19 serting “responsibilities”;

20 (ii) by striking “shall be to advance”
 21 and inserting the following: “shall be to—
 22 “(A) advance”;

23 (iii) in subparagraph (A) (as so
 24 added), by striking the period at the end
 25 and inserting “; and”; and

1 (iv) by adding at the end the following
2 new subparagraph:

4 religious freedom policies and strategies into
5 the foreign policy efforts of the United States.”;

6 (B) in paragraph (2), by inserting “the 7 principal adviser to” before “the Secretary of 8 State”;

9 (C) in paragraph (3)—

10 (i) in subparagraph (A), by striking
11 “and” at the end;

12 (ii) in subparagraph (B), by striking
13 the period at the end and inserting “;
14 and”; and

15 (iii) by adding at the end the fol-
16 lowing new subparagraph:

17 “(C) contacts with nongovernmental orga-
18 nizations that have an impact on the state of 19 religious freedom in their respective societies or 20 regions, or internationally.”;

21 (D) by redesignating paragraph (4) as
22 paragraph (5); and

23 (E) by inserting after paragraph (3) the 24 following new paragraph:

1 “(4) COORDINATION RESPONSIBILITIES.—In

8 and

22 conduct of investigations by the Office and for nec-
23 essary travel to carry out the provisions of this Act.
24 The Secretary of State should also provide to the 25 Ambassador at Large funds that are sufficient to

1 carry out the duties described in this section, includ-
2 ing as necessary representation funds, in amounts
3 comparable to those provided to other Ambassadors
4 at Large in the Department of State.”.

5 (b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—Because international re-
6 ligious freedom is a vital foreign policy interest and one
7 that needs coordination across many regional bureaus and 8 among Special Envoys and Special Representatives with 9 overlapping mandates, the Secretary of State should con-
10 sider elevating the office of International Religious Free-
11 dom and the position of the Ambassador-at-Large for 12 International Religious Freedom to the Office of the Sec-
13 retary, similar to other Ambassador-at-Large positions
14 that now report directly to the Secretary. Providing the 15 Office of International Religious Freedom with additional 16 resources and status will demonstrate both the strategic 17 importance of international religious freedom policy within
18 the State Department bureaucracy and show persecuted
19 religious groups globally that the U.S. gives priority to the 20 protection and promotion of international religious free-
21 dom as mandated by the International Religious Freedom
22 Act of 1998.

1 SEC. 102. ANNUAL REPORT ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS
2 FREEDOM.

3 (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 102(b)(1) of the Inter-
4 national Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C.
5 6412(b)(1)) is amended—

15 case of a foreign country with respect to 16 which a government does not exist or the 17 government does not control its territory;

18 “(v) an identification of prisoners in
19 that country pursuant to section 108;

20 “(vi) any action taken by the govern-
21 ment of that country to censor religious
22 content, communications, or worship activi-
23 ties online, including descriptions of the 24 targeted religious group, the content, com-
25 munication, or activities censored, and the 26 means used.”;

1 (3) in subparagraph (B), in the matter pre-
2 ceding clause (i)—

3 (A) by inserting “persecution of lawyers,
4 politicians, or other human rights advocates
5 seeking to defend the rights of members of reli-
6 gious groups or highlight religious freedom vio-
7 lations, prohibitions on ritual animal slaughter
8 or male infant circumcision,” after “entire reli-
9 gions,”; and

10 (B) by inserting “policies that ban or re-
11 strict the public manifestation of religious belief
12 and the peaceful involvement of religious groups
13 or their members in the political life of each
14 such foreign country,” after “such groups,”;

16 (A) by striking “A description” and insert-
17 ing “A comprehensive description”;

18 (B) by striking “policies in support” and 19 inserting “diplomatic and political coordination
20 efforts, and other policies in support”; and

21 (C) by adding at the end before the period
22 the following: “, and a comprehensive and coun-
23 try-specific analysis of the impact of actions by 24 the United States on the status of religious 25 freedom in each such country”; and

1 (5) in subparagraph (F)—
2 (A) in clause (i)—
3 (i) by striking “section 402(b)(1)”
4 and inserting “section 402(b)(1)(B)(i)”;
5 and
6 (ii) by adding at the end the fol-
7 lowing: “Any country in which a non-state
8 actor designated as an entity of particular
9 concern for religious freedom under section
10 301 of the Frank R. Wolf International
11 Religious Freedom Act is located shall be 12 included in this section of the report.”
13 (B) by adding at the end the following new 14 clause:
15 “(iii) SPECIAL WATCH LIST.—A list,
16 to be known as the ‘Special Watch List’,
17 which shall identify each country that en-
18 gages in or tolerates severe violations of re-
19 ligious freedom during the previous year
20 but which the President determines does 21 not meet, at the time of the publication of 22 the Annual Report, all of the criteria de-
23 scribed in section 3(11) for designation
24 under section 402(b)(1).”.

1 (b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Con-
2 gress that—

3 (1) the original intent of the International Reli-
4 gious Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6401 et seq.)
5 was to require annual reports from both the Depart-
6 ment of State and the Commission on International
7 Religious Freedom to be delivered each year, during
8 the same calendar year, and with at least 5 months
9 separating these reports, in order to provide updated
10 information for policy-makers, Members of Congress,
11 and nongovernmental organizations; and

12 (2) given that the annual Country Reports on 13 Human Rights Practices no longer contain updated
14 information on religious freedom conditions globally,
15 it is important that the Department of State and the 16 Commission work together to fulfill the original in-17 tent of the International Religious Freedom Act of 18 1998.

19 SEC. 103. TRAINING FOR FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS; RE-
20 PORT.

21 (a) AMENDMENT TO FOREIGN SERVICE ACT OF

13 value of international religious freedom, how viola-
14 tions of international religious freedom harm funda-
15 mental United States interests, how the advance-
16 ment of international religious freedom can advance
17 such interests, how United States international reli-
18 gious freedom policy should be carried out in prac-
19 tice by United States diplomats and other Foreign
20 Service officers, and the relevance and relationship
21 of international religious freedom to United States
22 defense, diplomacy, development, and public affairs
23 efforts. The Secretary of State shall ensure the 24 availability of sufficient resources to develop and im-
25 plement such curriculum.

1 “(2) ROLE OF OTHER OFFICIALS.—The Sec-
2 retary of State shall carry out paragraph (1)—

3 “(A) with the assistance of the Amba-
4 sador at Large for International Religious 5 Freedom appointed under section 101(b) of the 6 International Religious Freedom Act of 1998;

7 “(B) in coordination with the Director of 8 the George P. Shultz National Foreign Affairs
9 Training Center and other Federal officials as 10 appropriate; and

11 “(C) in consultation with the United

13 Freedom established in section 201(a) of the 14 International Religious Freedom Act of 1998
15 and other relevant stakeholders.

16 “(b) TRAINING PROGRAM.—Not later than the date
17 that is one year after the date of the enactment of the 18 Frank R. Wolf International Religious Freedom Act, the 19 Director of the George P. Shultz National Foreign Affairs
20 Training Center shall begin mandatory training on reli-
21 gious freedom for all Foreign Service officers, including 22 all entry level officers, all officers prior to departure for 23 posting outside the United States, and all outgoing deputy 24 chiefs of mission and ambassadors. Such training shall,

1 at minimum, be a separate, independent, and required
2 segment of each of the following:

3 “(1) The A-100 course attended by all Foreign
4 Service officers.

5 “(2) The courses required of every Foreign
6 Service officer prior to a posting outside the United
7 States, with segments tailored to the particular reli-
8 gious demography, religious freedom conditions, and
9 United States strategies for advancing religious free-
10 dom, in each receiving country.

11 “(3) The courses required of all outgoing dep-
12 uty chiefs of mission and ambassadors.

13 “(c) INFORMATION SHARING.—The curriculum and 14 training materials developed pursuant to subsections (a)
15 and (b) should be made available to all other Federal 16 agencies.”.

17 (b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date
18 of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State, with 19 the assistance of the Ambassador at Large for Inter-
20 national Religious Freedom, and the Director of the 21 George P. Shultz National Foreign Affairs Training Cen-
22 ter, shall submit to the Committee on Foreign Affairs of 23 the House of Representatives and the Committee on For-
24 eign Relations of the Senate a report containing a com-
25 prehensive plan for undertaking training for Foreign Serv-

1 ice officers as required under section 708 of the Foreign
2 Services Act of 1980, as amended by subsection (a) of this
3 section.

4 SEC. 104. PRISONER LISTS AND ISSUE BRIEFS ON RELI-
5 GIUS FREEDOM CONCERNS.

6 Section 108 of the International Religious Freedom
7 Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6417) is amended—

8 (1) in subsection (b), by striking “faith” and 9 inserting “activities, religious freedom advocacy, or 10 efforts to protect and advance the universally-recog-
11 nized right to the freedom of religion,”;

12 (2) in subsection (c), by striking “, as appro-
13 priate, provide” and insert “make available”; and

14 (3) by adding at the end the following new sub-
15 section:

16 “(d) VICTIMS LIST MAINTAINED BY THE UNITED
17 STATES COMMISSION ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS
18 FREEDOM.—

19 “(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission shall
20 make publicly available online and in official publica-

15 TITLE II—NATIONAL SECURITY 16 COUNCIL

17 SEC. 201. SPECIAL ADVISER FOR INTERNATIONAL RELI- 18 GIOUS FREEDOM.

20 U.S.C. 3021) is amended by striking subsection (k) and 21 inserting the following:

22 “(k) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Con-
23 gress that there should be within the staff of the National 24 Security Council a Special Adviser to the President on 25 International Religious Freedom, whose position should be

22 (1) review and identify any non-state actors op-
 23 erating in any such reviewed country or surrounding 24 region that have engaged in particularly severe viola-
 25 tions of religious freedom; and

1 (2) designate, in a manner consistent with such

8 mit to the appropriate congressional committees a report
9 detailing the reasons for such designation.

10 (c) ACTIONS.—The President should take specific ac-
11 tions to address severe violations of religious freedom of 12 non-state actors that are designated under subsection (a),
13 including taking actions commensurate to those actions
14 described in section 405 of the International Religious 15 Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6445).

16 (d) DEPARTMENT OF STATE ANNUAL REPORT.—The 17 Secretary of State should include information detailing the 18 reasons the President designated a non-state actor as an 19 entity of particular concern for religious freedom under 20 subsection (a) in the Annual Report required in section
21 102(b)(1) of the International Religious Freedom Act of 22 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6442(b)(1)).

23 (e) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Con-
24 gress that the Secretary of State should work with Con-
25 gress to create new political, financial, and diplomatic

1 tools to address severe violations of religious freedom by
2 non-state actors and to update the actions the President
3 can take in section 405 of the International Religious
4 Freedom Act of 1998.

5 (f) DETERMINATIONS OF RESPONSIBLE PARTIES.—
6 In order to appropriately target Presidential actions under
7 the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998 in re-
8 sponse, the President shall with respect to each non-state
9 actor designated as an entity of particular concern for reli-
10 gious freedom under subsection (a), seek to determine the 11 specific officials or members thereof that are responsible
12 for the particularly severe violations of religious freedom
13 engaged in or tolerated by that entity.

14 (g) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the terms “appro-
15 priate congressional committees”, “non-state actor”, and 16 “particularly severe violations of religious freedom” have
17 the meanings given such terms in section 3 of the Inter-
18 national Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C.
19 6402), as amended by section 3 of this Act.

20 SEC. 302. PRESIDENTIAL ACTIONS IN RESPONSE TO PAR-

12 (2) in subsection (c)(5), in the second sentence,

21 spect to a country do not fulfill the purposes of this 22 Act; and

24 is a compelling interest of United States foreign pol-
25 icy, the President, the Secretary of State, and other

1 Executive branch officials, in consultation with Con-
 2 gress, should seek to find ways to address existing

 17 RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

18 SEC. 401. ASSISTANCE FOR PROMOTING RELIGIOUS FREE-
 19 DOM.

20 (a) AVAILABILITY OF ASSISTANCE.—It is the sense
 21 of Congress that for each fiscal year that begins on or 22 after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Depart-
 23 ment of State should make available—

24 (1) an amount equal to not less than 10 percent
 25 of the amounts available in that fiscal year for the

1 Human Rights and Democracy Fund for the pro-
2 motion of international religious freedom and for
3 projects to advance United States interests in the 4 protection and advancement of international reli-
5 gious freedom, in particular, through grants to—

6 (A) groups that are able to develop legal
7 protections or promote cultural and societal un-
8 derstanding of international norms of religious
9 freedom;

10 (B) groups that seek to address and miti-
11 gate religiously motivated and sectarian violence
12 and combat violent extremism; and

13 (C) groups that seek to strengthen inves-

17 of amounts available in that fiscal year for the 18 Human Rights and Democracy Fund to be made

9 freedom defenders, and build the capacity of re-
10 ligious communities and rights defenders to 11 protect against religious freedom violations,
12 mitigate societal or sectarian violence, or mini-
13 mize legal or other restrictions of the right to 14 freedom of religion.

15 (b) PREFERENCE.—It is the sense of Congress that,
16 in providing grants under subsection (a), the Ambassador
17 at Large for International Religious Freedom should, as 18 appropriate, give preference to projects targeting religious 19 freedom violations in countries designated as countries of 20 particular concern for religious freedom under section
21 402(b)(1) of the International Religious Freedom Act of 22 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6442(b)(1)) and countries included on

114TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. 3694

To combat trafficking in human organs, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

OCTOBER 6, 2015

Mr. TROTT (for himself and Mr. DEUTCH) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs

A BILL

To combat trafficking in human organs, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4 This Act may be cited as the “Strategy To Oppose
5 Predatory Organ Trafficking Act” or the “STOP Organ
6 Trafficking Act”.

7 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

8 Congress finds the following:

9 (1) The World Health Organization (WHO) es-
10 timates that approximately 10 percent of all trans-
11 planted kidneys worldwide are illegally obtained,

1 often bought from vulnerable impoverished persons
2 or forcibly harvested from prisoners.

3 (2) In 2004, the World Health Assembly passed
4 a resolution urging its member-states to take meas-
5 ures to protect the poorest as well as vulnerable
6 groups from exploitation by organ traffickers.

7 (3) On February 13, 2008, the United Nations
8 Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking
9 (UNGIFT) hosted the “Vienna Forum to Fight
10 Human Trafficking”, and subsequently reported
11 that a lack of adequate illicit organ trafficking laws
12 has provided opportunity for the illegal trade to 13 grow.

14 (4) On March 21, 2011, the Council of the Eu-
15 ropean Union adopted rules supplementing the defi-
16 nition of criminal offenses and the level of sanctions
17 in order to strengthen the prevention of organ traf-
18 ficking and the protection of those victims.

19 (5) In November 2012, Erasmus University
20 Hospital along with institutions in Romania, Swe-
21 den, Bulgaria, and Spain launched a 3-year study
22 backed by Europol into illegal organ trafficking, and 23 released a statement that, “there are more and more
24 indicators of ‘organ tourism’, whereby a patient
25 travels abroad with the aim of receiving a trans-

1 planted organ which may have been bought . . . do-
2 nors are often victims of human trafficking.”.

3 (6) According to organ trafficking specialists at 4 the WIIO, Moldova ranks third as a source of or-
5 gans for sale on the global black market, with such
6 human organs frequently smuggled to underground
7 clinics located in several European Union member-
8 states.

9 (7) Between 2001 and 2003, a South African
10 black market kidney transplant ring coerced over 11 109 people, mostly from Brazil and Romania, to 12 travel to Durban, South Africa, to forfeit a kidney 13 for the promise of approximately $120,000, although 14 payment was frequently withheld following the oper-
15 ation.

16 (8) On May 3, 2004, Afghanistan’s Interior
17 Minister Ali Ahmed Lakali stated that the problem
18 of child abduction was growing and children were 19 being taken to be sold for “sex or labor, or to pro-
20 vide human organs”.

21 (9) In March 2006, a children’s rights expert at 22 the Afghan Independent Human Rights Commission,
23 Hengameh Anwari, stated, “Other reports that 24 cause concern indicate that a number of children are 25 abducted because of their body organs; they become

1 victims of trafficking to foreign countries especially
2 for their kidneys.”.

3 (10) In June 2001, Dr. Wang Guogi testified
4 before the Subcommittee on International Organiza-
5 tions and Human Rights of the Committee on Inter-
6 national Relations of the House of Representatives
7 that Chinese hospitals worked in collusion with state
8 security agencies to extract organs from executed
9 prisoners without written consent of the organ do-
10 nors, and that these transplants were a lucrative
11 source of income.

12 (11) Researcher and journalist Ethan Gutmann
13 estimates that approximately 65,000 Falun Gong
14 adherents may have been killed for their organs
15 from 2000 to 2008, and that a number of other reli-
16 gious and ethnic minorities may also have been tar-
17 geted.

18 (12) On November 20, 2004, Xin Ren from 19 California State University stated to the Inter-
20 national Bureau for Children’s Rights Conference in 21 Montreal, that, “[In India, Pakistan, and some other
22 Asian countries in 2003] [c]hildren were often either
23 sold by their parents for little money or kidnapped
24 and abducted by the traffickers to have their 25 organ(s) removed for transplant purpose . . .

1 [S]ome people were even murdered in the process of
2 forcible removal of their organs.”.

3 (13) The website of the Organ Transplant Cen-
4 ter of the Armed Police General Hospital in Beijing,
5 China touted that, “Our Organ Transplant Center is 6 our main department for making money . . . This 7 year (2004) there is a chance to break through 8 30,000,000 yuan.”.

9 (14) Canadian researchers David Matas, human
10 rights attorney, and David Kilgour, former Cana-
11 dian Secretary of State for Asia-Pacific, conducted
12 an investigation into allegations of organ harvesting
13 from Falun Gong prisoners of conscience in 2006,
14 and based on extensive circumstantial evidence, their 15 report concluded that the allegations were true and 16 that tens of thousands of Falun Gong practitioners
17 may have been killed for their organs.

18 (15) In mid-November 2006, China’s Deputy 19 Health Minister Huang Jiefu acknowledged that 20 condemned prisoners are sources for organ trans-
21 plants, and Asia News reported that Deputy Health
22 Minister Huang had said he was cognizant of the 23 fact that too often organs come from non-consenting
24 parties and are sold for high fees to foreigners.

1 (16) In May 2006, the website for the China
2 International Transplantation Network Assistance
3 Centre posted the following statements in its fre-
4 quently asked questions section: “The First Affili-
5 ated Hospital of China was established in 2003 spe-
6 cifically for our foreign friends . . . Viscera pro-
7 viders can be found immediately! . . . Our organs
8 do not come from brain death victims because the 9 organ may not be good.”.

10 (17) In November 2008, the United Nations
11 Committee on Torture reported concern over the al-
12 legations of organ harvesting from Falun Gong pris-
13 oners and called on the Government of the People’s 14 Republic of China to increase accountability and 15 transparency in the organ transplant system and 16 punish those individuals responsible for abuses.

17 (18) In 2005, the United States ratified the 18 Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Traf-
19 ficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children,
20 a supplement to the United Nations Convention
21 against Transnational Organized Crime, which in-
22 cludes the removal of organs as a form of exploi-
23 tation under the definition of “trafficking in per-24 sons”.

1 (19) On March 30, 2006, the Police Super-
2 intendent of Paranaque, Philippines, arrested a sus-
3 pect alleged to have ties to a regional kidnapping
4 syndicate involved with abducting children in order
5 to remove their organs and sell them on the global
6 black market, as in the case of a child discovered
7 dead in Cavite, Philippines, with his internal organs
8 missing.

9 (20) On April 12, 2008, police raided a black
10 market organ transplant house near Manila, Phil-
11 ippines, arresting three traffickers and discovering 12 nine donors in the house, one of whom stated to au-
13 thorities that he had been promised $2,800 for his 14 kidney, and he was doing it because, “I can barely 15 provide for my wife and children.”.

16 (21) In November 2008, the National Bureau
17 of Investigation’s Human Trafficking Division in the 18 Philippines reported, “the abducted children are 19 housed somewhere in Mindanao where victims are 20 supplied with vitamin supplements to keep their in-
21 ternal organs healthy, and are then transported out-
22 side the country to undergo surgery for organ trans-23 plants”.

1 (22) In 2007, Pakistan was identified by the
2 WHO as one of the top destinations for “transplant
3 tourism”.

4 (23) Pakistani authorities in April 2007 raided
5 a black market organ ring in Lahore that consisted 6 of doctors, officials, and middlemen who had ab-
7 ducted potential donors, drugged them and removed 8 their kidneys without consent to then sell for profit.

9 (24) Dr. Zafar ul Ahsan, a top urologist at 10 Fatima Jinnah Hospital in Lahore, Pakistan, stated
11 in September 2007, “A mafia is running Pakistan’s
12 kidney transplant business with agents paying
13 $1,000 to poor donors and then selling their kidneys
14 on the black market for thousands of dollars.”.

15 (25) In 2007, five employees of the tissue bank
16 at the Faculty Hospital in Brno-Bohunice, the Czech
17 Republic, were arrested and charged with illegal
18 organ trafficking for selling more than $340,000
19 worth of illegally obtained skin grafts to a tissue
20 bank in the Netherlands.

21 (26) In January 2008, the Government of In-
22 dia’s Health Ministry released an estimate that more
23 than 100,000 kidney transplants are needed in India
24 each year, but only 5,000 are performed legally.

1 (27) A February 2008 police raid on an organ
2 trafficking ring in Gurgaon, India, found that men
3 posed as doctors to remove kidneys from migrant la-
4 borers, and conducted approximately 500 illegal kid-
5 ney transplants over nine years.

6 (28) On April 8, 2009, the Global Post in Cairo
7 reported that the Egyptian Government was consid-
8 ering measures to increase the number of legal 9 organ donations to meet demand, which included a
10 proposal to harvest organs from executed criminals,
11 with or without their consent, as then Ministry of 12 Health spokesman, Dr. Abdel Rahman Shahin stat-
13 ed, “They are saying that when [convicts’] organs
14 are taken, they’re compensating for the bad they 15 did.”.

16 (29) In November 2010, Netcare KwaZulu, a
17 hospital in South Africa’s eastern KwaZulu-Natal
18 province, pleaded guilty to illegally removing kidneys
19 from five minors between 2001 and 2003.

20 (30) On January 12, 2011, Doctor Yusuf
21 Sonmez, who has been dubbed the “Turkish Frank-22 enstein”, was arrested in Pristina for his alleged
23 participation in illegal organ trafficking in Kosovo
24 and Azerbaijan.

1 (31) In April 2013, a Kosovo court convicted
2 five defendants for conducting over 30 illegal harvest

14 ians to finance their operations.

15 (34) According to a 2013 United Nations re-
16 port from the Special Rapporteur on trafficking in 17 persons, especially women and children, the eco-
18 nomic and social divisions within and among coun-

8 violation of the human rights of the child and is a

10 standards described in WHO Assembly Resolution
11 57.18 (May 22, 2004);

12 (3) the illegal harvesting and trafficking of 13 human organs violates the Universal Declaration of 14 Human Rights, in Article 3 which states that “Ev-
15 eryone has the right to life, liberty and security of 16 person.”, and in Article 4 which states that “No one 17 shall be held in slavery or servitude.”; and

18 (4) efficient national organ donation systems
19 with effective enforcement mechanisms that ensure
20 voluntary organ donations are the most effective way
21 to combat trafficking in human organs.

22 SEC. 4. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

23 It shall be the policy of the United States to—

24 (1) combat the international trafficking in 25 human organs;

 2 tation systems that ensure voluntary organ donation
 3 processes in bilateral diplomatic meetings, as well as 4 in international health forums; and

5 (3) promote the dignity and security of human 6 life in accordance to the Universal Declaration of 7 Human Rights.

7 (1) The World Health Organization (WHO) es-

10 often bought from vulnerable impoverished persons
11 or forcibly harvested from prisoners.

12 (2) In 2004, the World Health Assembly passed
13 a resolution urging its member-states to take meas-

17 Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking
18 (UNGIFT) hosted the “Vienna Forum to Fight

1 Human Trafficking”, and subsequently reported
2 that a lack of adequate illicit organ trafficking laws
3 has provided opportunity for the illegal trade to
4 grow.

5 (4) On March 21, 2011, the Council of the Eu-
6 ropean Union adopted rules supplementing the defi-
7 nition of criminal offenses and the level of sanctions
8 in order to strengthen the prevention of organ traf-
9 ficking and the protection of those victims.

16 the definition of “trafficking in persons”.

16 in slavery or servitude.”; and

2 organ donation systems with effective enforcement

1ST SESSION

H. CON. RES. 88

Reaffirming the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as the cornerstone of United States–Taiwan relations.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

OCTOBER 28, 2015

Mr. CHABOT submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Reaffirming the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as the cornerstone of United States–Taiwan relations.

Whereas for more than 50 years, a close relationship has existed between the United States and Taiwan, which has been of major economic, cultural, and strategic advantage to both countries;

Whereas over the past two decades, the people of Taiwan have worked hard to establish a vibrant and pluralistic democracy in their country and conducted 5 successful Presidential elections, successive elections for members of their national legislature, numerous local elections, and 2 national referendums;

Whereas the United States has vital security and strategic interests in the Taiwan Strait, with United States troops stationed in countries within the Taiwan Strait region;

Whereas April 10, 2015, marked the 36th anniversary of the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act (Public Law 96–8), codifying into law the basis for continued commercial, cultural, and other relations between the United States and Taiwan;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act has been instrumental in maintaining peace, security, and stability in the Taiwan Strait since its enactment in 1979;

Whereas when the Taiwan Relations Act was enacted, it affirmed that the United States decision to establish diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China was based on the expectation that the future of Taiwan would be determined by peaceful means;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act declares that peace and stability in the area are in the political, security, and economic interests of the United States, and are matters of international concern;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act states that it is the policy of the United States to provide Taiwan with arms of a defensive character to maintain the capacity to resist any resort to force or other forms of coercion that would jeopardize the security, or the social or economic system, of the people on Taiwan;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act also states that “it is the policy of the United States to preserve and promote extensive, close, and friendly commercial, cultural and other relations between the people on Taiwan, as well as the people on the China mainland”;

Whereas in 1982, President Ronald Reagan wanted to reinforce United States support for Taiwan and therefore issued the Six Assurances; and

Whereas the Six Assurances are guidelines to conduct relations between the United States and Taiwan and stipulate that the United States would not—

- (1) set a date for termination of arms sales to Taiwan;
- (2) alter the terms of the Taiwan Relations Act;
- (3) consult with China in advance before making decisions about United States arms sales to Taiwan;
- (4) mediate between Taiwan and China;
- (5) alter its position about the sovereignty of Taiwan which was, that the question was one to be decided peacefully by the Chinese themselves, and would not pressure Taiwan to enter into negotiations with China; and
- (6) formally recognize Chinese sovereignty over Taiwan: Now, therefore, be it

1 Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate
 2 concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that the
 3 United States hereby affirm that the Taiwan Relations
 4 Act and the Six Assurances together form the cornerstone
 5 of United States relations with Taiwan.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE
TO H.CON.RES. 88
OFFERED BY MR. CHABOT OF OHIO

Strike the preamble and insert the following:

Whereas the Cold War years cemented the close friendship between the United States and Taiwan, with Taiwan as an anti-Communist ally in the Asia-Pacific;

Whereas United States economic aid prevented Taiwan from sliding into an economic depression in the 1950s and greatly contributed to the island's later economic takeoff;

Whereas Taiwan has flourished to become a beacon of democracy in Asia and leading trade partner for the United States, and the relationship has endured for more than 65 years through many shifts in Asia's geopolitical landscape;

Whereas the strong relationship between the United States and Taiwan is based on mutually beneficial security, commercial, and cultural ties;

Whereas Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Susan Thornton stated in her testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on February 11, 2016, that "the people on Taiwan have built a prosperous, free, and orderly society with strong institutions, worthy of emulation and envy";

Whereas Deputy Secretary of State Antony J. Blinken stated on March 29, 2016, that with Taiwan's January 2016 elections, “the people of Taiwan showed the world again what a mature, Chinese-speaking democracy looks like”;

Whereas on January 1, 1979, when the Carter Administration established diplomatic relations with the People’s Republic of China (PRC), it ended formal diplomatic ties with the Republic of China on Taiwan;

Whereas, the United States Congress acted swiftly to reaffirm the United States-Taiwan relationship with the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act just 100 days later, ensuring the United States maintained a robust and enduring relationship with Taiwan;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act (Public Law 96–8) was enacted on April 10, 1979, codifying into law the basis for continued commercial, cultural, and other relations between the United States and Taiwan;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act was enacted “to help maintain peace, security, and stability in the Western Pacific,” all of which “are in the political, security, and economic interests of the United States and are matters of international concern”;

Whereas then-Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Kin Moy stated in his testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on March 14, 2014, that, “Our enduring relationship under the Taiwan Relations Act represents a unique asset for the United States and is an important multiplier of our influence in the region,” and credited the Taiwan Relations Act for having “played such a key part in protecting Taiwan’s freedom of action and U.S. interests the last 35 years in the Asia-Pacific area”;

Whereas then-Special Assistant to the President and National Security Council Senior Director for Asian Affairs Evan

Medeiros noted in March 2014 that, “The Taiwan Relations Act is an important and it’s an enduring expression to the people of Taiwan about our commitment to their well-being, their security, their economic autonomy, and their international space.”;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act states “the United States decision to establish diplomatic relations with the People’s Republic of China rests upon the expectation that the future of Taiwan will be determined by peaceful means”;

Whereas the Taiwan Relations Act states that it is the policy of the United States to “provide Taiwan with arms of a defensive character and to maintain the capacity of the United States to resist any resort to force or other forms of coercion that would jeopardize the security, or the social or economic system, of the people on Taiwan”;

Whereas each successive United States Administration since the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act has provided arms of a defensive character to Taiwan;

Whereas a 2015 Department of Defense report to Congress on Military and Security Developments Involving the People’s Republic of China stated that, “Preparing for potential conflict in the Taiwan Strait remains the focus and primary driver of China’s military investment”;

Whereas the United States has an abiding interest in the preservation of cross-Strait peace and stability, and in peace and stability in the entire Asia-Pacific region;

Whereas on July 14, 1982, as the United States negotiated with the People’s Republic of China over the wording of a joint communiqué related to United States arms sales to Taiwan, President Ronald Reagan instructed his rep-representative in Taiwan, American Institute in Taiwan (AIT) Director James R. Lilley, to relay a set of assurances orally to Taiwan's then-President Chiang Ching-kuo;

Whereas in House and Senate testimony immediately after the issuance of the August 17, 1982, Joint Communiqué with the PRC, then-Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs John H. Holdridge stated on behalf of the Executive Branch that—

- (1) “. . . [W]e did not agree to set a date certain for ending arms sales to Taiwan”;
- (2) “. . . [W]e see no mediation role for the United States” between Taiwan and the PRC”;
- (3) “. . . [N]or will we attempt to exert pressure on Taiwan to enter into negotiations with the PRC”;
- (4) “. . . [T]here has been no change in our longstanding position on the issue of sovereignty over Taiwan”;
- (5) “We have no plans to seek” revisions to the Taiwan Relations Act; and
- (6) the August 17 Communiqué, “should not be read to imply that we have agreed to engage in prior consultations with Beijing on arms sales to Taiwan.”;

Whereas these assurances, first delivered to Taiwan's president by AIT Director Lilley, have come to be known as the Six Assurances;

Whereas in testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on October 4, 2011, then-Assistant Secretary of State Kurt Campbell stated that, “[The] Taiwan Relations Act, plus the so-called Six Assurances and Three

Communiqués, form the foundation of our overall approach,” to relations with Taiwan; and

Whereas in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on April 3, 2014, Assistant Secretary of State Daniel Russel stated that the Six Assurances “continue to play an important part as an element of our approach to Taiwan and the situation across the strait.”: Now, therefore, be it

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

That Congress—

- 1 (1) affirms that the Taiwan Relations Act and
- 2 the Six Assurances are both cornerstones of United
- 3 States relations with Taiwan; and
- 4 (2) urges the President and Department of
- 5 State to affirm the Six Assurances publicly,
- 6 proactively, and consistently as a cornerstone of
- 7 United States-Taiwan relations.

Amend the title so as to read: “A resolution reaffirming the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as cornerstones of United States–Taiwan relations.”.

AMENDMENT TO THE AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE TO H.CON.RES.88
OFFERED BY MR. CONNOLLY OF VIRGINIA

After the 10th clause of the preamble, insert the following:

Whereas the U.S. Congress significantly strengthened the draft legislation originally submitted by the Executive Branch to include provisions concerning Taiwan's security in the Taiwan Relations Act;

Attest: JULIE E. ADAMS,
Secretary.

Chairman ROYCE. And after recognizing myself and the ranking member, I will be pleased to recognize any member seeking recognition to speak once on any of these measures.

I want to thank our Subcommittee Chairman Smith and his more than 100 bipartisan cosponsors on their work on H.R. 1150, the Frank Wolf International Religious Freedom Act. Inspired by years of oversight and multiple hearings, this bill updates the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998 to improve the coordination and effectiveness of U.S. efforts to promote religious liberty worldwide.

Eighteen years after that law was passed, freedom of religion remains under threat not only by authoritarian regimes obsessed with control, but also by new nonstate actors. ISIS, Boko Haram, al-Shabaab have turned religious intolerance into a murderous force of global instability. The right to believe and practice according to the dictates of conscience is a direct challenge to their very ideologies. And thus, it is not just a human rights issue. It has become a global security issue.

By improving coordination, confronting nonstate actors, and bettering reporting and training, this bill, 1150, is a helpful refinement of our statutory commitment to combat religious persecution around the world.

Moving on to House Concurrent Resolution 88, a resolution reaffirming the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as the cornerstone of U.S.-Taiwan relations. Congress has long championed a strong relationship with Taiwan through landmark measures like the Taiwan Relations Act and through pressing successive administrations to fulfill their obligation to sell defensive arms to Taiwan.

Today, our committee is once again reaffirming the U.S. commitment to Taiwan by upholding the Six Assurances as one of the cornerstones of U.S.-Taiwan policy, right alongside the Taiwan Relations Act. And I want to thank Representative Steve Chabot for offering this important measure and Representative Connolly for his amendment stressing the role Congress has played in fostering this critical relationship.

I also want to thank and recognize Representatives Trott and Deutch for introducing H.R. 3694, the STOP Organ Trafficking Act.

Organ trafficking has been reported in over 20 countries in all regions of the world. Criminal organizations and terrorist groups are increasingly engaging in this black market industry. It is valued today as an industry at over $1 billion. ISIS recently issued a "fatwa" sanctioning forced organ harvesting from its captives and from apostates, that would be Yazidis or Christians or Kurds or others who they believe are apostates to their ideology. And traffickers smuggling refugees into Europe have reportedly coerced organ donations as the payment now for travel.

The U.S. has led the fight against human trafficking with help from this committee and its members. This bill continues that leadership by closing the gap in U.S. law that currently fails to recognize organ trafficking as a form of human trafficking. The legislation also supports voluntary organ donation systems, authorizes the President to revoke passports or deny visas for anyone convicted of organ trafficking crimes, and requires annual reporting to Congress on actions by the U.S. and other countries to combat organ trafficking.

And I want to address H.R. 4939, the United States-Caribbean Strategic Engagement Act of 2016, and thank Ranking Member Engel and Chairman Emeritus Ros-Lehtinen for their leadership in advancing U.S. interests in the Western Hemisphere.

For over a decade, countries in the Caribbean have been largely beholden to Venezuelan oil subsidies in exchange for their support of the authoritarian Venezuelan Government of Hugo Chavez and now Nicolas Maduro. The United States has not developed a comprehensive strategy of how best to engage this region to enhance diplomatic relations, to help the region improve energy security, to reduce violence and curb drug trafficking, and advance cooperation on democracy and human rights.

So this bill will require the State Department and USAID to develop a comprehensive and clear strategy on best engaging the Caribbean region. And the bill also requires the Government Accountability Office to evaluate the Caribbean Basin Security Initiative so that we can be sure we are advancing our interests in the region using the best and most efficient approach.

Lastly, we consider S. 2143, the Starr-Camargo Bridge Act. Two weeks ago, the Senate unanimously passed this measure, which was introduced by Senator Cornyn. And Representative Cuellar here, of Texas, on the House side, has introduced an identical version in this body.

This bill, the Senate bill 2143, will grant the Starr-Camargo Bridge Company the permanent authority to operate and maintain the international bridge that connects via the Rio Grande City, Texas, and Monterrey, Mexico. This will give Starr-Camargo the same authorities Congress has previously given to other privately owned international bridges.

The bridge has seen continued growth in commercial traffic since 2009, and it plays an important role in facilitating trade and travel in the region. By granting this authority, we are incentivizing Starr-Camargo to continue maintaining and expanding the bridge's capacity to keep up with the growing trade and commerce along the Texas border with Mexico.

And I want to thank both Representative Cuellar and Representative Castro for their leadership in bringing this measure forward for consideration here today.

I now recognize the ranking member for his remarks.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, thank you for convening this markup. We have a slate of good bipartisan measures that we are taking up today. And thank you especially for calling up the Caribbean Strategic Engagement Act, which I was proud to introduce recently with Representative Ros-Lehtinen.

As this committee well knows, it is a big world with a lot of challenges. Some are getting more attention than others. So it is important to stay focused on our neighbors in the Caribbean. These countries are profoundly important to the United States. My own district in New York has a sizable diaspora population from Caribbean countries, and I hear from these proud and engaged communities very often.

This bill makes it clear that U.S.-Caribbean relations are a major priority. It directs the State Department and USAID to devise a multiyear strategy for engaging with Caribbean governments. We want to put a particular focus on improving energy security, strengthening the rule of law, reducing drug trafficking, and enhancing economic cooperation.

We want to ramp up diplomatic engagement, especially when it comes to key issues at the United Nations and the Organization of American States and with the five Caribbean countries where the United States still doesn't have Embassies, and, I might add, should have Embassies as soon as possible.

We will end up with the best policy if we shape it in consultation with many Caribbean American citizens in the United States. It is a strength for us to have such a strong and vibrant diaspora community. So this bill also calls for revitalized outreach to this community, seeking greater input on ideas for economic development and citizen security.

Mr. Chairman, again, thank you for moving this legislation so quickly. I ask that all members support it.

Next, I will turn to Mr. Smith's International Religious Freedom Act. I want to thank him for all his hard work on this issue. Thank you, Mr. Smith.

The freedoms of thought, conscience, and religion are enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Yet, around the world, religious communities are subjected to escalating violence and persecution. In the 21st century, it is unacceptable for anyone to suffer discrimination because of how they worship or, for that matter, if they choose not to worship at all.

The United States has a responsibility to speak out when we see basic freedoms under threat, and this bill will help the administration promote religious freedom around the world. So I support this bill, and I also support continuing to fully fund the Human Rights and Democracy Fund for all human rights abuses.

I will now turn to the bill offered by Mr. Trott and Mr. Deutch aimed at cracking down on predatory organ trafficking. This legislation would change our human trafficking law to include the trafficking of persons for the removal of their organs.

We don't know much about this crime. Who are the victims? How do they get trapped by this illegal trade? What are governments doing to halt the practice, track down those responsible, and provide services to survivors? If this is a pervasive problem, then, yes, of course, we must act.

This bill calls for a report on this crime so that we gain a fuller understanding of the problem. While I have questions about including these provisions as part of our global effort to confront modern slavery, I am glad that we are working on the issue.

Moving to Mr. Chabot's measure, I am happy to support his resolution reaffirming the close ties between the United States and Taiwan. This is an exciting time for the Taiwanese people. Next month, a new President will be sworn in, the first woman to be elected President there. I could add, so that the Taiwanese are ahead of us by a few months. I had the pleasure of meeting with her several times before the election, and I am very hopeful for her success.

As Taiwan's democracy prepares for a political transition, it is important that the United States signal our unwavering support for Taiwan, for Taiwan's defense, for its participation on the global stage, for its robust democracy. And so this resolution reaffirms our commitment to the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances.

These are the measures that have underpinned our relationship with the Taiwanese people since we normalized relations with the People's Republic of China. Those ties remain deeply important to this day, and I am glad to support this resolution. The chairman and I have talked about this a great time, and we both believe it is important for the United States to stand squarely with our friend and ally Taiwan.

Lastly, I am glad to support this bill from my good friend Representative Cuellar, which would allow the Starr-Camargo Bridge to continue as an important connection between the United States and Mexico. I have to say, at a time when we hear so much about building walls, it feels pretty good to talk about strengthening bridges.

The Starr-Camargo Bridge connects Rio Grande, Texas, with Monterrey and Ciudad Camargo in Mexico. Under current law, the authority to operate this bridge will expire in 16 years. Though it seems like a long way off, that end date has already started to constrain investments in long-term improvements. This legislation would eliminate that expiration date, just as we have done for the Weslaco-Progreso International Bridge.

This bill doesn't cost U.S. taxpayers a penny. And in the midst of a lot of ugly rhetoric, it sends a clear signal: Mexico is an extremely important partner to the United States and bridges, not barriers, will help that friendship to thrive.

So I agree with the chairman. I urge support for this measure and all the things contained in this measure.

And I thank you again, Mr. Chairman. I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Engel.

Any other members seeking recognition?

Mr. Smith.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Chairman, thank you very much.

First of all, let me thank you for scheduling all of these bills, including the International Religious Freedom Act, the Frank Wolf bill, which honors a tremendous advocate for religious freedom and the author of the landmark 1998 International Religious Freedom Act.

I want to thank Eliot Engel as well, the ranking member, for working so closely with us on this important legislation.

And I would like to thank Anna Eshoo, who is the original Democratic cosponsor of the bill and a great supporter of religious freedom, especially in the Middle East. Her work has been greatly appreciated, and we have come up, I think, with a bill that will make a significant difference.

The world is experiencing an unprecedented crisis of international religious freedom, a crisis that continues to create millions of victims, a crisis that undermines liberty, prosperity, and peace, a crisis that poses a direct challenge to the U.S. interests in the Middle East, North Korea, China, and in sub-Saharan Africa.

The bill we passed almost 18 years ago needs to be updated to match the challenges of the 21st century. And, again, that is what we are doing with the legislation: Provide tools, training, and resources used by the administration to advance this universally recognized human right.

Among its many provisions—and they are mutually reinforcing provisions—it clarifies that the Ambassador-at-Large will report to the Secretary of State. Sometimes there has been a little glitch there over the years in terms of that information going right to the ears of the Secretary of State.

It creates a special watch list, not unlike what we did with the Trafficking Victims Protection Act. When a country doesn't rise to the level of a Country of Particular Concern but is a bad actor, this gives the President a way to say we are watching. And the special watch list will provide that very useful utility.

Curricula for training Foreign Service Officers so that they really do understand before deployment, especially overseas, exactly what the lay of the land is and what international religious freedom is all about.

We also include, as you pointed out, Mr. Chairman, a new designation of nonstate actors. We call them entities of particular concern. They are not countries. Boko Haram, ISIS, al-Shabaab, and others need to be focused upon for their nefarious deeds and individuals held to account to the greatest extent practicable for their horrible deeds.

CPC designations need to be made annually. There were a number of years where they were not made. And this will at least clarify that those Country of Particular Concern designations do need to be made every single year.

And then there are a number of other provisions that will, I think, significantly strengthen.

And I would ask unanimous consent that my full statement be made a part of the record, Mr. Chairman.

Chairman ROYCE. Without objection.

Mr. SMITH. And I would just finally say how grateful I think we all are that Mr. Trott and Mr. Deutch have really stepped up to the plate with their H.R. 3694, the Strategy to Oppose Organ Trafficking Act.

Twenty years-plus ago, I held a hearing on organ trafficking, and we actually had a man who was a part of that testify about this horrific practice of killing people in order to steal their organs and to make money for the regime in China and elsewhere. That has gotten worse and is particularly focused on the Falun Gong who have suffered disproportionately from this very shocking abuse of human rights.

So, again, I want to thank them for their wonderful bill, and it will make a difference.

I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Mr. Sherman.

Mr. SHERMAN. I yield a minute-and-a-half to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. CONNOLLY. I thank my friend from California for his graciousness. I have to run to another hearing.

Mr. Chairman, I want to associate myself with the remarks both of yourself and of the ranking member with respect to the Taiwan resolution we have here. And I want to ask unanimous consent to assert in the record an interesting document, pages 44 through 48 of the Department of State Bulletin from March 1979, which was their draft for what we ought to do with respect to Taiwan.

And you can see that it does not address security at all. And it took Congress to take the initiative in rewriting this into the vibrant, dynamic Taiwan Relations Act that now undergirds our relationship with that island and that was the basis for the defensive military assistance we currently provide and have provided to Taiwan. It is a great example of actually congressional foreign policy-making that was desperately needed. A vacuum had been created, and we rose to the occasion.

So I would ask unanimous consent to enter this into the record. It is a rather rare document. And I think it underscores—

Chairman ROYCE. It is often referenced, this piece of history, in textbooks about Congress' role. And without objection, we will put it in the record.

Mr. CONNOLLY. I thank the chair. And I thank Mr. Sherman so much for his courtesy.

Mr. SHERMAN. Thank you.

I want to thank the chairman for holding these hearings. I am a cosponsor of H.R. 1150, the Frank Wolf International Religious Freedom Act; H.R. 4939, the United States-Caribbean Strategic Engagement Act; and the H. Con. Res. 88, the Taiwan Relations and Six Assurances resolution.

I want to focus on Taiwan, as the gentleman from Virginia did as well. I am the lead Democratic cosponsor of this resolution, which affirms the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as the cornerstone of United States-Taiwan relations.

The Taiwan Relations Act is critical to the U.S.-Taiwan relationship. On January 1, 1979, when the Carter administration established diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China, it ended formal ties with the Republic of China on Taiwan. However, the United States Congress acted swiftly to reaffirm the United States-Taiwan relationship with the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act just 100 days later, ensuring that the United States would maintain a robust and enduring relationship with Taiwan.

Since 1979, we have seen Taiwan develop into a strong democracy. We are in the process of seeing a peaceful and orderly transition of power from one political party to another. Taiwan is an important ally, and we need to do everything possible to make sure that it remains so.

The Six Assurances to Taiwan have been a verbal U.S. pledge since 1982. This bill is important because it solidifies this commitment in legislation for the first time. Three of those Six Assurances are a commitment to continued arm sales to Taiwan, a commitment to not consult with Beijing on U.S.-Taiwan relations, and a commitment to stand by the Taiwan Relations Act, which was passed 3 years before the Six Assurances in 1979 and which Mr. Connolly has already referenced.

This resolution not only affirms that the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances are the cornerstone of U.S. relations with Taiwan, but it also urges the President and the State Department to affirm the Six Assurances publicly, proactively, and consistently as a cornerstone of United States-Taiwan relations.

Mr. Chairman, I think Congress not only has been doing good work on the U.S.-Taiwan relationship for a long time, the Taiwan Relations Act, which was mentioned by Mr. Connolly, but also just recently our committee. Back in December we passed a resolution saying it was time to transfer the frigates to Taiwan. And 5 days later, they finally transferred the friggin' frigates.

And it was good to join with you in that bill and to join with Mr. Salmon in the bill on Interpol, which was signed into law recently, and which will be causing us to develop a strategy to get Taiwan into Interpol, because after all, who is in favor of the international criminals that Interpol is trying to incarcerate.

So, Mr. Chairman, I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I did have the pleasure of going aboard one of those frigates as we were trying to expedite the process with my legislation. But it is now done, and this legislation will now, after our vote, go to the floor.

But in the meantime, I think Ileana Ros-Lehtinen was seeking time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Thank you so much, Mr. Chairman, thank you, Ranking Member Engel, for convening this markup and bringing up all of these important measures in front of our committee in a bipartisan manner as always.

I am going to briefly speak about two of the bills. I am proud to be the Republican lead, alongside my good friend and the ranking member, Eliot Engel, on the U.S.-Caribbean Strategic Engagement Act, a bill which would help push the State Department to prioritize U.S.-Caribbean relationships. That is so important.

When not sharing the national stage with Hillary Clinton, Ranking Member Engel has long made the Caribbean one of his top priorities, and I want to thank him for his tremendous leadership on this issue.

This bill would require the State Department to develop a strategy to partner with our Caribbean neighbors on everything from counternarcotics to energy security and to broaden our outreach to the Caribbean diaspora community in our Nation. South Florida makes up a large segment of this diaspora, and I understand well the importance of both the Caribbean and the need for increased engagement by the United States with those countries.

Too often Caribbean nations are either taken for granted or are neglected by the State Department, leaving them with little to no presence of the U.S. or diplomatic engagement, and this course must and should be corrected. Deepening our strategic relationship with the Caribbean represents an extraordinary opportunity to expand our economic ties, cooperate on security issues, and advance our values and interests at places like the OAS and the U.N.

So I fully support this measure. I thank Mr. Engel for sponsoring it. I urge my colleagues to give this bill their full support as well.

And I would also like to offer my support for my dear friend Steve Chabot's resolution, which would reaffirm the importance of the Taiwan Relations Act and President Reagan's Six Assurances to the U.S.-Taiwan relationship. I am proud to be a cosponsor because I continue to believe that the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances should be unequivocal guidelines to which the United States must remain fully and firmly committed.

Taiwan is and remains an important ally, a friend, a strategic, economic, and security partner of the United States, and there should be no doubt about this commitment to her, and as the Taiwanese people continue to prove, their vibrant democracy, Taiwan must have the capability to defend herself from aggression from China, whether political, economic, or military in nature.

And it is critical that both China and Taiwan know that our commitment to Taiwan, to the Taiwan Relations Act, and to the Six Assurances, has not wavered one bit. Taiwan must be allowed to peacefully determine its own future, and I urge my colleagues to reaffirm this principle by passing this important Steve Chabot resolution here today.

I thank the chairman.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Ileana.

Mr. Ted Deutch from Florida.

Mr. DEUTCH. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. And I appreciate the opportunity to have all these bills before us today.

I would like to speak about the Strategy to Oppose Predatory Organ Trafficking Act. I want to thank Mr. Trott for his leadership on this issue.

And thanks to Mr. Smith as well for your longstanding attention to the issue of organ trafficking.

This bill, H.R. 3694, addresses an important but often under-acknowledged global trafficking issue. In places all over the world, amid the millions of people enslaved into the various forms of human trafficking, are individuals trafficked specifically for the illicit purpose of removing their organs. This black market of organ trafficking finds at-risk people and entices them with money in exchange for their organs. Often these victims are poor and vulnerable to offers of money that they can then use to pay for food and basic necessities for their families.

A 2013 United Nations report found that the economic and social divisions within and among countries is similarly reflected in the most common victims of illegal organ trafficking, specifically in poor and unemployed populations. The sad reality is the people most in need of help are the easiest to fall prey by extortion by traffickers.

But this problem is global, and while victims may come from lower-income countries, the demand that keeps the illegal organ trafficking market so profitable comes from higher-income countries, including the United States. Many of our allies already list trafficking of persons for the removal of their organs as a form of human trafficking, and a number of international protocols and agreements urge countries to do more to restrict the market. These illicit activities are simply unacceptable and are against our American values.

So I am thrilled that this bill will allow our government to do its part to work against this illicit black market, including empowering the Secretary of State to deny or revoke passports to anyone convicted of organ trafficking offense and asking the State Department to keep Congress informed of what our government and other governments are doing to address this problem.

We have received support from a number of groups advocating for stronger laws against illicit trafficking of organs and better protection of victims. And I would like to specifically thank the Coalition for Organ Failure Solutions for their support.

I am proud of the attention that this committee has given to human trafficking, and I ask that we continue our strong record by acknowledging that trafficking of persons for the removal of their organs is a violation of our American values.

And I yield back the balance of my time. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Deutch.
Mr. Rohrabacher of California.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. I will make this short. I just would like to thank you, Mr. Chairman, and thank Ranking Member Engel. One needs only to take a look at the issues that are being discussed today to note that you are reaffirming this committee's traditional positioning and support for human rights throughout the world.

You obviously are taking up where Henry Hyde and others who before you sat in that chair, you are building upon what they created as a foundation for freedom and justice and liberty and human rights as being values that this committee will uphold. And I appreciate every one of these bills reflects that. So thank you, Ranking Member, and thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Rohrabacher.
Mr. Keating from Massachusetts.

Mr. KEATING. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I want to thank Mr. Trott and Mr. Deutch for their leadership in introducing the Strategy to Oppose Predatory Organ Trafficking Act. Too often vulnerable individuals are coerced or forced into supporting this illicit trade. And just in a world where you think things can't get much worse, you see this kind of coerced or forced activity really hurt victims who are typically poor or unemployed. Some of them indeed were known to include children.

Countries must have an effective law on the books if we are to protect against future victims of this trade, and it is crucial that countries then enforce these laws so that perpetrators do not continue to target vulnerable individuals with impunity. My amendment adds to the bill a report on host country enforcement of these laws against trafficking of persons for the removal of organs.

Finally, I would like to thank all the sponsors of the four additional bills being considered this morning, all of which I support. These pieces of legislation will have important consequences in advancing human rights, security policy, and U.S. engagement abroad.

And I do want to say, in a Congress that is often stymied on its ability to act, this committee continues to move forward and stands out in that regard for working cooperatively and in a bipartisan fashion to really address very important issues. I want to thank Chairman Royce and Ranking Member Engel for that as well.

And I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. I want to just respond if I could, Mr. Keating. I thank you for this amendment and support its inclusion in the bill.

Having adequate laws on the books without strong enforcement, frankly, is meaningless, so amending the annual report to highlight a country's implementation and enforcement efforts will send this clear message, and it is going to enhance our efforts to stop organ trafficking. So we thank you for your improvement to the legislation.

Mr. Salmon of Arizona.

Mr. SALMON. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I am very pleased to support Mr. Chabot's legislation, H. Con. Res. 88, Reaffirming the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as the cornerstone of United States-Taiwan relations.

Mr. Chairman, I was a missionary in 1979 when Jimmy Carter was President and severed diplomatic ties with Taiwan. It was a very dark time for me personally. It was something I was very, very frustrated about at the time. But then Congress kind of came to the rescue. I think it was the leadership of the Senator from my State, Barry Goldwater, that put forth the Taiwan Relations Act.

And I think us reaffirming our commitment to that—and Mr. Chabot, you are just to be congratulated—this is so very, very important, not just to our relationship with Taiwan, but I think to the world at large. Taiwan's vibrant democracy is so incredibly important to the region as a guidepost for other nations to follow, and many are following suit with Taiwan's leadership in the world.

I was fortunate to go to Lee Teng-hui's swearing-in, President Chen Shui-bian's, and I will be going in just a couple weeks to the swearing-in of Tsai Ing-wen, the newly elected President of Taiwan. And I am just really excited that we are doing the right thing today.

America's commitment to Taiwan was so important that Ronald Reagan led the way toward this country's policies and commitment to Taiwan that have been in place for several decades now. I strongly support this resolution and urge my colleagues to support its passage.

I would also like to speak in support of Mr. Trott's legislation, the Stop Organ Trafficking Act. The illegal trafficking of human organs is despicable. The World Health Organization estimates that 10 percent of all transplanted organs worldwide are illegally obtained, coerced from vulnerable populations and prisoners, and it is long past time for the U.S. to make a policy to combat this brutal activity that seeks only to terrorize defenseless individuals. Terrorists and doctrinal regimes use this practice to fund their activities and to brutally punish those they seek to control, and this bill will put a stop to it.

And finally, I would like to speak in support of Chairman Smith's legislation, H.R. 1150, the Frank R. Wolf International Religious Freedom Act of 2015. I am a cosponsor of this legislation and I am proud to support international religious freedom.

As a man of faith, one of the greatest freedoms we enjoy in this, the greatest Nation on the Earth, is the ability to worship as we please. Our Founding Fathers fought for this principle, and Congress has a responsibility to continue that fight for others. And I really appreciate Representative Smith constantly being a reminder of this important truth and this important responsibility that we have in Congress and constantly standing up for the fight for human rights.

God is going to have a special place for you, for all the great work you have done, my friend.

So thank you, and I will yield back my time.

Chairman ROYCE. We will go to Mr. Cicilline from Rhode Island.

Mr. CICILLINE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I want to thank you and Ranking Member Engel for holding this markup and for once again conducting the business of this committee in a bipartisan way.

I want to thank the sponsors of the bills that we are considering this morning, and I support all of the bills before us. But I want to spend a few moments to speak about H.R. 1150, the Frank Wolf International Religious Freedom Act.

This legislation has special significance to people in my home State, the State of Rhode Island founded by Roger Williams, because of his desire for religious liberty that he didn't think he could quite enjoy in the neighboring Commonwealth of Massachusetts. I waited until Mr. Keating left to say that.

But I strongly support the goals of this legislation to protect and promote religious freedom around the world. Our former colleague, Frank Wolf, dedicated his career to fighting for basic human rights, and it is fitting that this legislation honors the extraordinary work that he has done in this area.

Religious minorities around the world face discrimination, harassment, persecution, and worse. Today, the Islamic State is engaged in systemic persecution against religious minorities as part of their bloody campaign in the Middle East that targets any group that doesn't fit within its radical ideology. Just last month, the House and the Obama administration found that ISIS has engaged in acts of crimes against humanity, war crimes, and genocide against religious and ethnic minorities in the region.

I do want to use this occasion to remind my colleagues that there are widespread abuses taking place in the world right now, in Syria, Sudan, Nigeria, DRC, and many other countries. Governments, terrorist groups, and other actors are engaged in horrific campaigns that encompass women, children, minorities, and other vulnerable populations. And it is incredibly important that we are careful not to seem to be elevating abuses against one particular group above others.

For example, around the world, those perceived to be part of the LGBT community are facing absolutely horrific violence, especially today in territories controlled by the Islamic State. ISIS has proudly advertised its crimes against allegedly LGBT individuals through gruesome social media, videos, and photos.

Groups such as OutRight Action International have compiled dozens of incidents in which people, usually men, have been blindfolded, tortured, thrown off tall buildings, and brutally murdered by crowds incited by anti-LGBT slurs. I have a list here that details some of these particular instances of violence against those perceived to be LGBT, and they are horrific.

Last summer, BBC magazine ran a heartbreaking story entitled, “Why My Own Father Would Have Let IS Kill Me,” which detailed a young man who had to flee Iraq undercover after his own father agreed to turn him over to ISIS for being gay.

I raise these issues not to suggest that those within the Islamic State territory or elsewhere who are being persecuted for being LGBT are more deserving of our attention than those suffering any other type of persecution, but I do want to ensure that LGBT people and other vulnerable groups who are being persecuted around the world are not forgotten and that we raise our voices in condemnation of all abuses of basic human rights and refrain from creating a hierarchy of human rights and I look forward to our consideration of legislation intended to do just that.

I hope we can learn from the important example of U.S. efforts to combat religious persecution and use lessons learned and best practices to inform the work we do as a country to combat the persecution of all vulnerable groups around the world, including women, children, and LGBT individuals.

I thank you, and I yield back.

Chairman ROYCE. Thank you, Mr. Cicilline.

We go now to Mr. Chabot of Ohio.

Mr. CHABOT. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

As one of the founding Members of the Congressional Taiwan Caucus, I have been actively involved in all Taiwan-U.S. issues for many years now and chaired the Asia and the Pacific Subcommittee as well, and I have been to Taiwan many times. That is why I am honored to have introduced House Concurrent Resolution 88, which reaffirms the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as cornerstones of U.S.-Taiwan relations.

Our relationship has been an enduring one. Taiwan is a close ally of ours, one that truly believes in and practices freedom and democracy. And the people of Taiwan proved that yet again this past January with the election of President Tsai, and I want to wish her and all the people of Taiwan the best of luck in her new role as President of Taiwan. I want to restate our support, just as this committee has for many, many years, and Congress has as well, our support of Taiwan.

As most of my colleagues are aware, Taiwan faces an unrelenting threat from China, which has nearly 1,600 ballistic missiles aimed at her. And although Taiwan enjoys—let’s face it—de facto independence, China’s ultimate goal is to take the island, if by force or over time. China has made no bones about this. They have been pretty open about it for a long time. Unfortunately, the Taiwan Strait remains one of the potentially most dangerous flashpoints in the world.

April 10, 2016, marked the 37th anniversary of the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act, codifying into law an institutional framework and a legal basis for continued cooperation between the U.S. and Taiwan that would serve to maintain peace and stability in the western Pacific. However, when President Reagan agreed to sign the so-called U.S.-China Third Communique in 1982, he was aware of the communique’s possible effect on Taiwan and recognized that Taiwan needed and deserved reassurance that the United States would be there whenever Taiwan needed us.

So to reinforce American support for Taiwan, the United States issued the Six Assurances, which are guidelines to conduct relations between the U.S. and Taiwan, and they are as valid today as they were in 1982. They rightfully function, along with the Taiwan Relations Act, as cornerstones of the U.S.-Taiwan relations.

And this is a relationship that has been a very strong one over the years. It is one of the reasons that I think it is very important that this administration reconsider the military cutbacks which have been proposed, and the fact that when Ronald Reagan was President his goal was to build up a 600-ship Navy, and we are down 250-some ships at this time.

And a lot of those ships need to be in the Pacific and particularly in and around China, which clearly has plans. It is building up its navy. It is building islands and militarizing them. It is bullying its neighbors from the Philippines to Vietnam to Taiwan, you name it.

And so it is very important for the U.S. to have the strength and for Taiwan also to continue to build up its military. The one thing that would make an armed conflict more likely is if Taiwan appears to be weak or the United States is weak. That is when there is a real danger of military action occurring. As long as Taiwan and the United States are strong, I don't think China would ever take any overt hostile military action.

But I am afraid that the message that is being sent out worldwide is that the U.S. is pulling back, and that is a message that must change. We ought to have just the opposite. The United States needs to be actively engaged around the world, particularly in the Pacific.

So I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and thank them for their support and yield back the balance of my time.

Chairman ROYCE. Mr. Trott.

Mr. TROTT. I would like to thank Chairman Royce for scheduling H.R. 3694 for consideration, and also my colleague, Representative Deutch, for his partnership and leadership on the Stop Organ Trafficking Act. I also want to thank Mr. Smith for his commitment and years of work on this important issue and Representative Keating for his helpful amendment.

The illegal trafficking of human organs has long been a terrible and heinous crime, but, unfortunately, the United States policies and laws have not kept pace. China has inexplicably been targeting Falun Gong for years. And more recently, ISIS has reportedly been resorting to this brutal practice to finance their nefarious activities and strike fear in the hearts of innocent people.

Late last year, ISIS released a religious edict stating that taking organs from a living captive to save a Muslim's life was permissible, making religious minorities in Iraq, like the Chaldeans and the Assyrians, even more vulnerable targets.

Mr. Chairman, it is time the United States shine a bright light on this problem and take a leading role in combating this heinous crime, standing with the world's most vulnerable. I urge my colleagues to vote in support of this timely and necessary legislation.

Thank you, and I yield back my time.

Chairman ROYCE. Any additional members seeking recognition?

Hearing no further requests for recognition, the question occurs on the items considered en bloc.

All those in favor, say aye.

All those opposed, no.

In the opinion of the Chair, the ayes have it and the measures considered en bloc are agreed to. And without objection, the measures considered en bloc are ordered favorably reported, as amended, and staff is directed to make any technical and conforming changes. Also without objection, the Chair is authorized to seek House consideration of those measures under suspension of the rules.

And that concludes our business for today.

I again want to thank Ranking Member Engel. I want to thank all of our committee members for their contributions and assistance with today's markup.

This committee stands adjourned, and these measures are passed.

[Whereupon, at 10:55 a.m., the committee was adjourned.]

The Frank Wolf International Religious Freedom Act (H.R. 1150)

*Excerpts of Remarks by Rep. Chris Smith
HCFR Markup of H.R. 1150
April 20, 2016*

Eighteen years ago, Congress had the foresight to make advancing the right to religious freedom a U.S. foreign policy priority. Eighteen years have passed and religion is even more relevant today as a foreign policy issue than it was when the original International Religious Freedom Act was signed into law.

The world is experiencing an unprecedented crisis of international religious freedom, a crisis that continues to create millions of victims; a crisis that undermines liberty, prosperity and peace; a crisis that poses a direct challenge to the U.S. interests in the Middle East, Russia, China and sub-Saharan Africa.

The bill we passed almost eighteen years ago needs to be updated to match the challenges of the 21st century. That is what we are doing with this bill—the Frank Wolf International Religious Freedom Act. We honor the author of the landmark 1998 legislation and upgrade the tools, training, and resources used by the Administration to advance this fundamental freedom.

It is increasingly clear that a robust religious freedom diplomacy is necessary to advance U.S. interest in stability, security, and economic development. Research shows that where there is more religious freedom, there is more economic freedom, more women's empowerment, more political stability, more freedom of speech, and less terrorism.

This legislation was co-sponsored by a bipartisan group of more than 100 Members of Congress. It is also supported by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops and the International Religious Freedom Roundtable, a diverse and ecumenical group of religious communities, ethnic groups and nongovernmental organizations.

In a letter sent to all members of Congress, the Roundtable endorsed the legislation, saying, “While there is very little we agree on theologically, or politically, we all agree that ... the passage and implementation of HR 1150 ... will send a clear and urgent message regarding the inherent dignity of every human being, as well as our common global security in the fight against religious persecution, extremism, and terrorism.”

I want to thank Rep. Anna Eshoo for being an original cosponsor and strong supporter of this bill. Her advocacy on behalf of religious minorities in the Middle East is important and critical work. I value her partnership on this legislation.

I also want to thank Chairman Royce and his staff for helping to move this legislation to markup and thank you also to ranking member Engel and his staff for engaging on this legislation and making it an effort of bipartisan cooperation.

Statement for the Record
Submitted by Rep. Joe Wilson

Thank you Mr. Chairman. Today this committee is considering five important pieces of legislation with regards to the United States foreign policy priorities.

First, the Frank R. Wolfe International Religious Freedom Act of 2015 ensures that our nation's Foreign Service Officers are well trained to promote religious freedom and have the ability to recognize instances where it is being violated. Honoring Congressman Frank Wolfe is so appropriate for Congressman Wolfe established a legacy of protecting freedom. This bill also extends the important Commission on International Religious Freedom. With the continued threat of religious violence in the Middle East, North Africa, and Europe, this legislation could not be more timely.

Next, H.Con. Res. 88, "Reaffirming the Taiwan Relations Act and the Six Assurances as the cornerstone of U.S. – Taiwan relations" is important in reaffirming the commitment of Congress to the prosperity of Taiwan. The Six Assurances, originally given by Ronald Reagan, include promises that the United States must keep to ensure a strong and continued relationship with Taiwan. I appreciate Congressman Steve Chabot's leadership on this legislation.

I also look forward to the consideration of H.R. 3694 "Strategy to Oppose Predatory Organ Trafficking Act", H.R 4939 "U.S. – Caribbean Strategic Engagement Act of 2016" and S. 2143 "Starr – Camargo Bridge Act". I once again applaud Chairman Ed Royce and Ranking Member Elliott Engel for their bipartisan cooperation

MATERIAL SUBMITTED FOR THE RECORD BY THE HONORABLE GERALD E. CONNOLLY, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

To submit for the record:

Mr. Chairman, I would like to submit for the record, pages 44 through 48 of the Department of State Bulletin from March 1979. This excerpt includes the original draft legislation proposed by the Executive Branch for the maintenance of our unofficial relations with Taiwan. You will find that the proposal bears little resemblance to the Taiwan Relations Act, and clearly demonstrates the significant role Congress played in crafting the legal authority for our enduring commitment to Taiwan.

EAST ASIA: Relations With the People on Taiwan

Following is a statement by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on February 5, 1979, President Carter's message to Congress transmitting proposed legislation concerning Taiwan on January 26, and texts of the legislation and section-by-section analysis.

DEPUTY SECRETARY CHRISTOPHER'S STATEMENT¹

I am pleased to appear before this committee today to speak for the Administration, in support of S. 245, which provides the framework for maintaining commercial, cultural, and other relations with the people of Taiwan on an unofficial basis.

Normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China is obviously a matter of great importance to the United States. In taking that step, we have followed the example of all of our NATO allies and more than 100 other countries which had previously recognized the People's Republic of China. As last week's visit by Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping vividly demonstrated (see p. 1), the normalization and improvement of relations between our two countries holds great potential for the long-term benefit of the United States and China, and the peoples of the world.

Full and normal relations will allow us to work more effectively toward a stable system of independent nations in Asia. It will permit us to encourage an outward-looking China to play a constructive role in the world generally. And it will enable American business to deal on an equal footing with other suppliers as China moves toward modernization.

This Administration has consistently maintained that normalization must be carried out in ways which do not jeopardize the well-being of the people on Taiwan. Toward that end, the President has repeatedly affirmed our commitment to maintain commercial, cultural, and other relations with the people on Taiwan on an unofficial basis. To implement that commitment, we have taken the following steps:

First, we have moved to assure that with the exception of the Mutual Defense Treaty and related agreements, our many treaties and other agreements with Taiwan—more than 55 in all—will remain in force. When I went to Taiwan in December, I was instructed to seek confirmation from the Taiwan authorities that they too would regard all existing agreements as continuing in force after January 1, 1979. The Taiwan authorities did provide such confirmation.

Second, The President issued a memorandum on December 30 directing all departments and agencies to continue their current programs and other relations with Taiwan on an unofficial basis.² The purpose of the memorandum was to insure that our relations with the people on Taiwan will continue pending the enactment of legislation.

Third, on January 16 the American Institute in Taiwan was incorporated as a nonprofit District of Columbia corporation. The institute, which is governed by three trustees appointed by the Secretary of State, is the unofficial body through which we will conduct relations with the people on Taiwan. As set forth in its articles of incorporation, the basic purpose of the institute is to enable the American people and the people on Taiwan to maintain commercial, cultural, or other relations without official government representation or diplomatic relations.

Fourth, the President has transmitted to the Congress the bill now before you. This bill has three fundamental purposes:

- It will confirm the continued eligibility of the people of Taiwan for participation in programs and activities that, under U.S. law, are to be carried out with foreign governments.

- It will provide for the carrying out of such programs and activities on an unofficial basis through the American Institute in Taiwan and the corresponding instrumentality to be established by the people on Taiwan.

- It will establish funding, staffing, and administrative relationships of the institute.

Future Security of Taiwan

Before getting into the details of the bill, I want to comment on the future security of Taiwan and its 17 million people. I know how important this issue is to the members of this committee. It is equally important to us.

In normalizing relations with the People's Republic of China, we have not by any means abandoned our role as a Pacific power, or our interest in the peace and security of Taiwan. Indeed, a peaceful resolution of the Taiwan issue is a fundamental part of the structure of normalization.

During the negotiations that preceded President Carter's December 15 announcement, we impressed upon the People's Republic of China our interest in the peaceful resolution of the Taiwan issue and our expectation that this issue will be settled peacefully by the Chinese themselves. It is significant that as part of normalization, the People's Republic of China agreed not to contradict our position on this central point.

In addition, Vice Premier Deng has made a number of statements since normalization, including statements made to members of this committee, which clearly indicate a desire by the People's Republic of China to settle the Taiwan issue peacefully. As he put it to Senator Glenn in Peking: "You can say that the social system on Taiwan will be decided by the people of Taiwan. Changes might take a hundred years or a thousand years; by which I mean a long time. We will not change the society by forceful means."

In addition, any effort by the People's Republic of China to resolve the Taiwan issue by other than peaceful means would be inconsistent with its evident desire to have better relations with the United States and our allies and friends. China has established an ambitious program of industrial modernization and economic growth. The success of this program depends on good relations with the United States and other industrialized nations that both recognize the People's Republic of China and maintain commercial relations with the people on Taiwan. A decision by China to use force against Taiwan would, in effect, be a decision to renounce good relations with these nations and hence to abandon the program of modernization and growth. Such a sharp reversal of policy would appear to be highly unlikely.

Finally, the fact is that Taiwan is strong militarily, and we will continue to sell Taiwan selected defensive weapons, as we have done in the past. By contrast, the People's Republic of China does not have the military capability to invade Taiwan and has not attempted to acquire that capability. The Secretary of Defense will testify before this committee about the security of Taiwan from a military standpoint, I shall, therefore, only note the improbability of an attack across 100 miles of water against strong forces and well-prepared defensive positions, as well as the military problems that China faces from other quarters.

The Proposed Legislation

Let me now comment on the bill in greater detail. The bill has three titles. Title I, in its first three sections, provides that our laws and regulations will continue to apply to the people on Taiwan as they have in the past. Thus, section 101 preserves Taiwan's eligibility to participate in any U.S. program for which recognition or diplomatic relations is otherwise required. Section 102 provides that such terms as "foreign country," "nation," "state," as used in U.S. legislation, will include the people on Taiwan. And section 103 authorizes the executive branch to carry out with respect to the people on Taiwan programs and other relations which are authorized or required under U.S. law to be carried out with respect to foreign countries.

Thus, taken together, sections 101, 102, and 103 provide for continuation of our programs with the people on Taiwan under U.S. law, notwithstanding the normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China.

Section 104 provides for our use of the American Institute in Taiwan to conduct relations with the people on Taiwan. Section 105 provides that whenever the U.S. Government is authorized or required to enter into an agreement relative to the people on Taiwan, the agreement may be entered into by the institute. Similarly, section 106 provides that actions by an instrumentality established by the people on Taiwan will satisfy U.S. legal requirements for actions by a foreign country.

Practical Aspects

These sections permit important relationships to continue on an unofficial basis. Let me take a moment to describe what this will mean in practice. Basically, the American Institute in Taiwan will carry out the functions in the commercial, cultural, and other areas previously performed by our Embassy in Taipei. For example, as the Embassy has done, the American Institute in Taiwan will perform the normal range of services for American businessmen in Taiwan, such as providing data and responding to inquiries concerning economic conditions and investment opportunities.

In addition, the institute will process

applications for visas and passports, just as the Embassy has done. (The actual issuance of visas will, of course, have to be done by consular officers, probably in posts near Taiwan, such as our Consulate General in Hong Kong. We are still working out the technicalities of this matter.)

As for trade, to the extent that trade agreements, such as orderly marketing arrangements, are deemed desirable, they would be entered into between the American Institute in Taiwan and its Taiwan counterpart. Taiwan will continue to enjoy most-favored-nation treatment and there is every reason to believe that trade between the United States and Taiwan will continue to flourish.

As another example, I would note that the Arms Export Control Act authorizes the President to sell arms to foreign countries and requires certain undertakings from the purchasing government, such as a promise to provide funds for timely payment of contractors. The American Institute in Taiwan will make sales under the Arms Export Control Act to its counterpart instrumentality created by the people on Taiwan and will accept undertakings from that instrumentality which will satisfy the statute.

In sum, the picture I want to give you is one of relations continuing without interruption but on an unofficial basis through nongovernmental means. It must be said, of course, that it takes two parties to conduct a relationship. It will not be possible for us to maintain relations unless Taiwan agrees to establish an unofficial instrumentality with which the American Institute in Taiwan may deal. Should Taiwan choose not to create such an instrumentality, then the picture I have painted becomes very unclear indeed, and the prospect of a hiatus in our relations as of March 1 becomes real.

Turning back to title I of the legislation, I would note that under section 107, when U.S. law requires that foreign law be considered, the law applied by the people on Taiwan will be considered foreign law. This clarification will be important, for example, in determining the validity of marriages and divorces, the distribution of decedents' estates, and similar matters. It is also important for public law purposes such as the application of trade laws.

Title II of the bill permits government agencies to provide support for the institute. It thus enables the institute to make maximum use of existing U.S. Government resources rather than establish costly and duplicative independent capabilities.

Title II also provides equitable treatment for those who interrupt their government careers to accept temporary employment with the institute. It permits Federal employees who leave government service for employment at the institute to continue to participate in Federal employee benefit programs and to return to Federal service at a later date without damage to their careers.

Finally, title II provides that the institute will be tax exempt and that the salaries and allowances paid to employees of the institute will be taxed in the same way as comparable payments the government makes to its own employees.

Title III of the bill authorizes the appropriation of funds for the institute. This will permit the consolidation of the institute's costs into a single budget account, which will facilitate executive branch and congressional oversight.

For the current fiscal year, we intend to finance a contract with the institute by reprogramming funds appropriated to the Department of State and other agencies.

On behalf of the Administration, I commend this legislation to you and urge its prompt enactment. The Congress will thereby insure that the substance of our many important relations with the people on Taiwan will be preserved and that these relations will prosper.

PRESIDENT CARTER'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS¹

The United States of America has recognized the Government of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China and is establishing diplomatic relations with that government. The Joint Communiqué issued by the United States and the People's Republic of China was the culmination of a long process begun by President Nixon and continued by President Ford and me.

I have also announced that, in the future, the American people will maintain commercial, cultural, and other relations with the people on Taiwan without official government representation and without diplomatic relations. In furtherance of that policy, and pending enactment of legislation on the subject, I have directed all departments and agencies to continue unofficially to conduct programs, transactions and other relations with Taiwan.

To authorize legally the permanent implementation of that policy, I am today transmitting to the Congress a bill. To promote the foreign policy of the United States through the maintenance of commercial, cultural and other relations with the people on Taiwan on an unofficial basis, and for other purposes.

This bill will confirm the continued eligibility of the people on Taiwan for participation in programs and activities that under United States law are to be carried out with foreign governments, provide for the carrying out of such programs and activities on an unofficial basis through the American Institute in Taiwan, a non-profit corporation, and the corresponding instrumentality being established by the people on Taiwan, and establish funding, staffing and administrative relationships of the Institute. It also contains other authorizations and provisions relating to the foregoing matters.

I am confident the Congress shares my view that it is in the national interest that these unofficial relations between the American people and the people on Taiwan be maintained. It is highly desirable that this legislation be enacted as promptly as possible. I look forward to working with the Congress on this important project.

JIMMY CARTER

ANALYSIS*

SECTION BY SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE PROPOSED ACT TO PROMOTE THE FOREIGN POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES THROUGH THE MAINTENANCE OF COMMERCIAL, CULTURAL AND OTHER RELATIONS WITH THE PEOPLE ON TAIWAN ON AN UNOFFICIAL BASIS, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

I. INTRODUCTION

The legislation (hereinafter "the Bill") is being proposed as the result of the recognition by the United States of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China and the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China. Its purpose is to facilitate continuation of commercial, cultural and other relations between the American people and the people on Taiwan on an unofficial basis.

The Bill clarifies the application of laws of the United States to the people on Taiwan in light of the changed diplomatic situation, and provides for the continued conduct of programs and transactions with the people on Taiwan. It also contains a number of provisions on administrative, financial and related subjects which will facilitate this new non-governmental relationship with the people on Taiwan.

The term "people on Taiwan," as used in the Bill, reflects the non-existence of a government-to-government relationship, and encompasses both the authorities and the inhabants on the islands of Taiwan and the Pescadores.

II. PROVISIONS OF THE BILL

Section 101

This section provides that legal requirements for the maintenance of diplomatic relations with the United States or recognition of a foreign government by the United States will not be a bar to eligibility of the people on Taiwan for participation in programs, transactions or other relations under U.S. law. This will avoid questions under provisions of law such as section 620(c) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2370(c)), which refers explicitly to severance of diplomatic relations. It is also intended to satisfy requirements for diplomatic relations with or recognition by the United States which might be implied by terms such as "friendly country" contained in various statutes.

Section 102

This section specifies that laws, regulations and orders which refer or relate to "foreign countries," or use similar terms, shall continue to include and apply to the people on Taiwan. The President has directed the heads of all departments and agencies to construe such laws as continuing to apply to the people on Taiwan. This directive has facilitated maintenance of unofficial relations pending action by the Congress. This section is intended to confirm continued eligibility of the people of Taiwan under such important legislation as the Arms Export Control Act, Atomic Energy Act of 1954, the Export-Import Bank Act, the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 and the Trade Act of 1974.

Section 103

This section expressly confirms the authority of the President and departments and agencies to carry out programs, transactions and other relations with the people on Taiwan under laws which provide for such programs, transactions and relations with respect to foreign countries.

Section 104

This section provides that programs, transactions and relations with respect to the people on Taiwan will be conducted by or through the American Institute in Taiwan, in the manner and to the extent directed by the President. This provision implements the President's statement of December 15, 1978 that the American people and the people on Taiwan "will maintain commercial, cultural, and other relations without official government representation." The American Institute in Taiwan is a nonprofit corporation organized under the laws of the District of Columbia, which has been established for this purpose.

Section 105

This section provides for the performance and enforcement of existing agreements, and the making of new agreements, with the people on Taiwan by or through the Institute, to satisfy authorizations or requirements for agreements or arrangements with the people on Taiwan. If, for example, an agreement with a "foreign country" is a condition of eligibility for participation in a program, with respect to the people on Taiwan such a condition will be satisfied by an agreement entered into or performed through the Institute. This section applies not only to new agreements, but also to previous agreements, which remain in force unless terminated.

Section 106

This section provides for dealing with the people on Taiwan through an instrumentality acting on their behalf. It makes clear that provisions for dealing with a "foreign government" will be satisfied with respect to the people on Taiwan by dealing with that instrumentality. Section 104 and 105 and this section provide for the conduct of nongovernmental relations through the Institute and the counterpart instrumentality of the people on Taiwan.

Section 107

This section provides that when the application of United States law depends upon foreign law, the law applied by the people on Taiwan shall be looked to for that purpose.

Section 201

This section authorizes departments and agencies to provide support for the Institute's internal operations through transfers of property and the performance of functions and services. This will provide access by the Institute to existing federal resources in order to reduce costs and increase the efficiency of operations. It is expected that such support usually will be provided on a reimbursable basis.

Section 202

This section authorizes departments and agencies to acquire and accept services from the Institute. Although the initial arrangements with the Institute are on a conventional contractual basis, this section authorizes the President to disregard normally applicable laws and regulations, such as limitations in procurement regulations, in order to permit the development of appropriate arrangements in these unique circumstances.

Section 203

This section authorizes the transfer to the Institute of alien employees of the U.S. Government and preserves their benefits under the local compensation plan applicable in Taiwan under section 444 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 889). It is expected that the Institute will adopt this plan for its alien employees. This section also authorizes the continued participation in U.S. Government retirement systems by those transferred alien employees who have heretofore been covered by such systems, subject to continued payment of contributions and deductions to the appropriate fund.

Section 204

This section, consisting of five subsections, provides authority for the separation of federal employees for employment with the Institute, preservation of their federal benefits, and reemployment rights in the federal service. It is contemplated that such separated federal personnel will make up the staff of the Institute.

Subsection (a) provides that a federal officer or employee who accepts employment with the Institute may be separated from his or her agency.

Subsection (b) provides that any officer or employee so separated is entitled, upon termination of employment with the Institute, to be reemployed or reinstated in the federal service. Normally, reemployment for an employee in the classified service will be to the position from which the employee was separated. However, the President is authorized to determine the appropriateness of the position for reemployment. It is anticipated that, especially in personnel systems based on the rank in person concept, reemployment could be in a higher class.

Subsection (c) provides for continuity of federal benefits during service with the Institute, including compensation for job-related death, illness or injury, health and life insurance, leave, and retirement. Contributions, where required, must be paid in order to preserve these benefits. This section also provides that death or retirement by a federal employee separated under subsection (a) while employed by the Institute shall be considered a death in or retirement from the federal service for purposes of benefit entitlement.

Subsection (d) authorizes the extension of the benefits of Title U of the Bill to federal employees serving with the Institute on leave without pay prior to the Bill's enactment.

Section 205

This section addresses several questions relating to the status of the Institute and its employees. It specifies that the Institute shall be exempt from federal taxation and shall not be an agency or instrumentality of the United States. With respect to the Institute's employees, this section provides that they shall not be employees of the United States, and that they shall be exempt from the statutory prohibition against dealing with their former agencies in representing the Institute. It also provides that the salaries and allowances of Institute employees shall be taxable in the same way as salaries and allowances of federal employees.

Section 301

This section authorizes appropriations to the Secretary of State of funds necessary to carry out the Bill. It is contemplated that the funds necessary for the operation and support of the Institute on behalf of all departments and agencies will be consolidated into a single account. However, this section preserves the continued ability of departments and agencies to utilize the Institute for the performance of functions involving the use of funds appropriated to the department or agency concerned. Funds appropriated under this section could be made available and expended.

MIDDLE EAST: Challenges and Opportunities for Peace in the Middle East

by Harold H. Saunders

Address before a conference sponsored by the Department of State, the World Affairs Council of Boston, and the Ford-Hall Forum in Boston on January 29, 1979.

There are few areas in the world today where so many different and important American interests come together as is the case in the Middle East. This is an area where fundamental changes are taking place at a dramatic rate. It embraces some of the most resource-rich and rapidly modernizing nations of the world as well as some of the poorest and most traditional. We must expect instability. At the same time we must recognize that the changes we are witnessing across this strategic area contain not only the causes of instability and crisis but also the seeds of progress.

Because of the importance of all our interests, the only sensible American policy toward this area is one which permits us to pursue all of those interests at the same time in conditions of orderly change. Only when we are actively engaged in the search for peace can we pursue the full range of our interests with all the principal nations of the Middle East.

In this session, I want to concentrate on the process of achieving an Arab-Israeli peace and on how this relates to our broader strategy toward the region. For three decades the Middle East has been subjected to the tragic course of conflict, tension, stalemate, terror, and renewed conflict. This recurrent cycle affecting both Israelis and Arabs has contributed to instability in the region—and has impaired the hopes for peace and prosperity for the world at large.

Over the past year we have witnessed dramatic advances, building on the historic visit of President Sadat to Jerusalem and on significant decisions by Prime Minister Begin. The framework for peace produced at Camp David by President Sadat, Prime Minister Begin, and President Carter—and now the treaty package almost completed in the hard but rewarding negotiations which began in Washington October 12, [1978] provide an unprecedented opportunity for the people of the Middle East to turn away from the long cycle of violence and move toward the new challenges of peace.

My purpose here is to assure to the extent possible that this opportunity—and what is at stake should it be lost—is fully understood. The framework for peace agreed at Camp

Section 302

This section authorizes the Secretary of State to use the funds made available under the Bill to further the maintenance of commercial, cultural, and other relations with the people on Taiwan on an unofficial basis. In particular, it authorizes the Secretary to provide these funds to the Institute for this purpose. The use of appropriated funds by the Institute will be governed by an appropriate contractual arrangement with the Secretary of State, which will contain limitations on agencies, such as limitations on the compensation of Institute employees. The Institute will be required under this arrangement to adhere generally to its limitations applicable to federal employees.

Section 303

This section requires that departments and agencies assure access by the Comptroller General to the Institute's books and records, and that they provide the Comptroller General the opportunity to audit the Institute's operations.

Section 304

This section approves and confirms the U.S. Government actions taken since January 1, 1979, and prior to the Bill's enactment with respect to the people on Taiwan.

Section 305

This section authorizes the President to prescribe the appropriate rules and regulations to carry out the Bill's purposes.

The complete transcript of the hearings will be published by the committee and will be available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.
