FOREWORD

This survey was conducted to measure the impact of health insurance coverage on the veterans' demand for hospital care and to determine to what extent veterans, eligible for VA hospital care, preferred care in a community hospital. The results of this survey, which coincides with those conducted in 1967 and 1968, should prove helpful as a guide to future planning. Similar data which were not in the previous surveys relative to outpatient care were also obtained.

The Committee appreciates receiving the cooperation of the many veterans who participated in the survey, and the encouragement given to them by the veterans' service organizations to complete the questionnaire.

The Committee also appreciates the efforts made by those in the Veterans Administration to complete the work required to produce this report. At the request of the Committee the survey was designed and ably coordinated by Bernard Kaufman, Management Services Staff, VA Department of Medicine and Surgery. Theresa D. Billingslea and Gregory Grapsas in the same office ably assisted in developing the computer programs and editing the responses and the final report.

The specifications for the tables for this survey was the work of William Lindsey of the VA Office of the Controller. The printing, control, and distribution of the questionnaires to the veteran respondents were completed by the VA Data Processing Center, St. Paul, Minn. The final programming and tabulations were expertly prepared by John R. Young, Rosina L. Maiers, Kenneth A. Jones and James P. Kasterko of the VA Data Processing Center, Washington, D.C., under the direction of Isaac J. Rosenthal.

To the agency generally, and particularly to the individuals listed, a special vote of thanks and appreciation for a job unusually well done.

OLIN E. TEAGUE, Chairman.

FOREWORD

It is a pleasure to introduce this book to you. The book is a collection of papers presented at the International Conference on the History of Mathematics, held in Moscow, U.S.S.R., in 1968. The papers were written by leading mathematicians from various countries, and they cover a wide range of topics in the history of mathematics. The book is intended for mathematicians and historians of mathematics, and it is hoped that it will be of interest to a wider audience as well.

The book is divided into two parts. The first part contains papers on the history of mathematics in the Soviet Union, and the second part contains papers on the history of mathematics in other countries. The papers are arranged in chronological order, and they provide a comprehensive survey of the history of mathematics from ancient times to the present.

The book is a valuable contribution to the history of mathematics, and it is hoped that it will be of interest to a wide audience. The papers are written in a clear and concise style, and they provide a comprehensive survey of the history of mathematics. The book is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of mathematics.

INTRODUCTION

This survey is the third in a series sponsored by the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs. These have been conducted to obtain health care information for veterans in receipt of VA compensation or VA pension.

The survey provides both retrospective and prospective information as to the consumption of health services by this group of veterans. With respect to the former, it provides data on the use of hospitals during the year prior to the survey, enumerating the extent these veterans utilized either VA or non-VA hospitals, and whether the veteran was covered by some form of health insurance. In addition, the survey queried the respondents on a prospective basis as to whether they would choose to receive hospitalization in a VA or non-VA hospital if the need for such care arose at some future date and the VA would pay its cost. The survey data was obtained via a mail questionnaire to about 33,000 veterans in receipt of either compensation or pension. Of those surveyed, about 24,000 provided responses.

Since the scope of the survey was limited to veterans on the VA compensation or pension rolls, the results of the study may provide insights only into the characteristics of these veterans. There are some 2 million veterans in receipt of compensation for a service-connected disability and slightly more than 1 million in receipt of VA pension. Inferences with respect to the remaining 25 million veterans cannot be drawn.

Twenty-four percent of the respondents (5,684 out of 24,028) reported that they had been hospitalized during the 12 months prior to the date of the survey. Of those who had been hospitalized, 41 percent indicated that they had been VA patients.

The extent of use of VA hospitals rather than non-VA hospitals varied according to the general type of health insurance available to the veteran. The survey attempted to identify the availability of coverage and, in part, its extent.

The following table shows the percent of patients, separately for those with different types of insurance coverage, who were VA or non-VA patients. Public insurance refers to coverage through medicare, or medicaid, or both.

The proportion of the respondents who indicate a preference for VA care is greater than the proportion of those who used VA hospital care during the year prior to the survey.

For planning purposes, the opinion of the population of potential patients is more significant than the use patterns displayed by only those persons who were patients during the year prior to the survey.

The relatively low percentages for past use of VA hospitals by veterans with private insurance more than double when all respondents are queried as to future preference for VA.

The sense of the question providing the responses in the right-hand column is to offer all veterans a common financing method irrespective of conditions of ability to pay.

Since the percentages in these columns are based on different totals, the relation between them must be interpreted carefully:

First Column: VA hospital users as a percent of VA and non-VA hospital users for each insurance group separately.

Second Column: The percent of all respondents, whether hospital users or not, who express a preference for VA hospital care.

Why should 72 percent of users who had no insurance use VA hospitals while only the lower 65 percent of all respondents express a preference for VA care?

It appears that for the veteran with no insurance, the VA is the principal source of hospital care. Thus, it may be hypothesized that he views his VA entitlement as equivalent to fully prepaid insurance. The hypothetical question offers these veterans another fully paid alternate source of care. Some small percent indicate that they might divert.

On the other hand, why do the percentages increase for veterans who currently have some form of health insurance?

In their case it may be hypothesized in reverse of the above that the present ability to pay criteria could have the effect of directing patients elsewhere who, with full prospective financing in either VA or non-VA will opt for care from VA. This is consistent with another survey observation that their full hospital bill was covered by health insurance for only 25 percent of the veterans who used VA hospitals.

The preference of respondents in the present survey indicates an increase over that derived in a similar study 2 years ago.

|                                   | Percent of respondents indicating preference for VA hospitalization |             |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
|                                   | 1971 survey                                                         | 1969 survey |
| All respondents.....              | 52                                                                  | 49          |
| No insurance.....                 | 65                                                                  | 63          |
| Private insurance only.....       | 41                                                                  | 38          |
| Public insurance only.....        | 63                                                                  | 59          |
| Public and private insurance..... | 44                                                                  | 44          |

Lastly, we might reconstruct the experience of past hospital users as this could be considered modified by their preference.

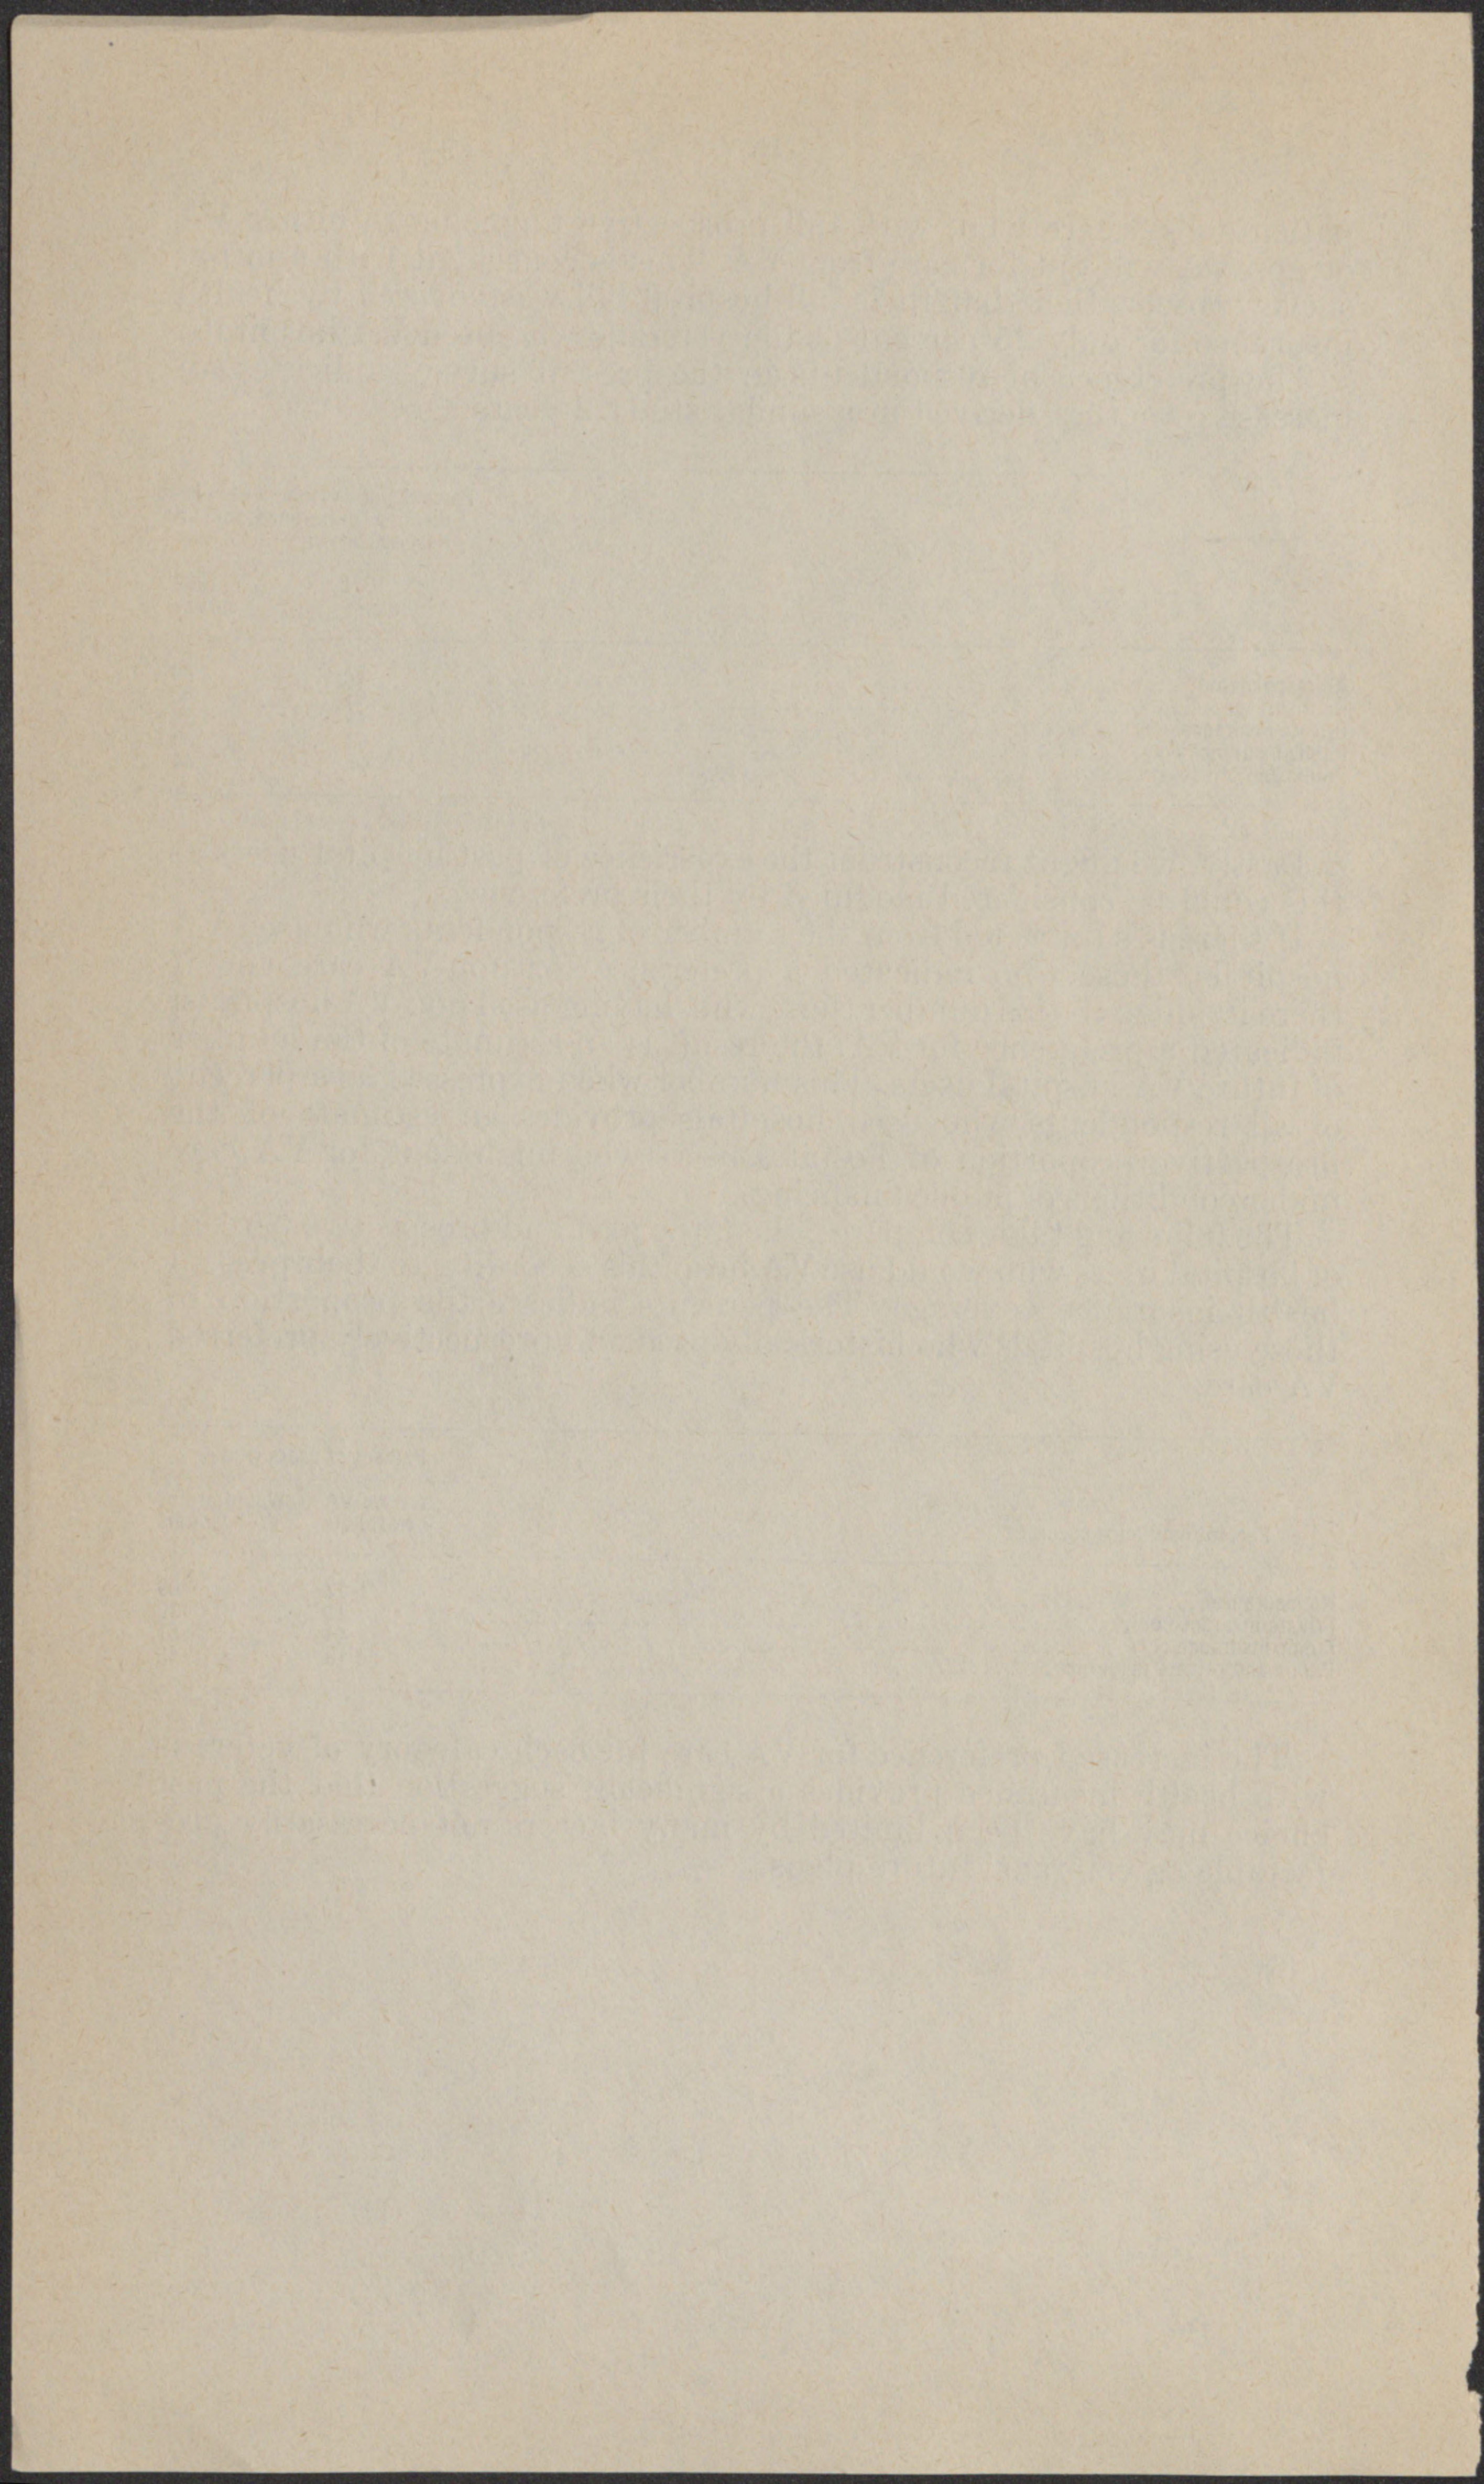

If there is subtracted from the number of respondents who used VA hospitals, those who indicated a preference for non-VA care and if there is added to this number those who, having used non-VA hospitals, indicated a preference for VA, the result is an estimate of the number of future VA hospital users. This number when expressed as a percent of all respondents who used hospitals provides an estimate of the prospective proportion of hospital users who might opt for VA care under conditions of public financing.

The following table compares, then, the past and prospective percent of hospital users who would use VA hospitals according to their present health insurance coverage. The percents indicate the proportion of those using hospitals who historically used and prospectively preferred VA care.

| Percent insurance coverage        | Percent of users who— |                           |
|-----------------------------------|-----------------------|---------------------------|
|                                   | Used VA hospitals     | Would prefer VA hospitals |
| No insurance.....                 | 72                    | 69                        |
| Private insurance only.....       | 19                    | 39                        |
| Public insurance only.....        | 44                    | 61                        |
| Public and private insurance..... | 18                    | 42                        |

The increased preference for VA care for each category of veterans with health insurance provides a significant suggestion that the past choice may have been limited by many factors not necessarily projectable as veterans' future plans.

REPORT OF THE SURVEY

During April of 1971 the House of Representatives' Committee on Veterans Affairs conducted a mail survey among veterans on the Veterans Administration compensation and pension rolls. The purpose of the survey was to determine to what extent such veterans were covered by some form of health insurance and the relationship of such insurance coverage to their preference and demand for VA medical services.

This was the third survey of a series. Related surveys of veterans on the VA compensation and pension rolls were conducted by the Committee in June of 1967 and November of 1968—their results were published in House Committee Print No. 98, September 22, 1967 and House Committee Print No. 2, April 3, 1969. The 1967 survey was mainly limited to the analysis of the relationship between health insurance coverage among such veterans and their demand for VA and non-VA hospital care. The 1968 survey was more extensive in that it went into greater detail about health insurance coverage (e.g., did the benefits cover the veteran's dependents and provide both physician and hospital care). Also it sought to determine the veteran's preference between receiving care in a VA hospital or in a community hospital when paid for by VA.

The results of the 1971 survey are published herein. In addition to the type of questions asked of the respondents in the 1968 survey, information was also sought as to what extent health insurance coverage paid for episodes of non-VA hospital care occurring in the past 12 months (cf. question 5 of the questionnaire), the extent to which outpatient services were provided to patients within the past 30 days (cf. question 7), and the veterans preference between receiving VA-provided outpatient care in VA facilities or elsewhere (cf. question 8).

The questionnaire and the accompanying letter mailed to a sample of veterans on the VA compensation and pension rolls is shown below.

Other information required for this survey concerning age, period of military service, and compensation and pension status of the veterans were already available in VA records and were merged with the information provided by the veteran rather than asking the veteran to furnish them.

APRIL 30, 1971.

DEAR VETERAN:

Under certain conditions you are eligible for hospital and outpatient medical care at the expense of the Veterans' Administration.

The Committee on Veterans' Affairs is concerned with assuring that eligible veterans who receive care for their illness in the VA, receive the best possible care and that the best utilization is made of the VA medical facilities.

With these thoughts in mind, I would appreciate your answering the few, simple questions on the enclosed card and mail it to me as soon as possible. Your doing so will help this Committee evaluate the VA medical program as well as helping you and your fellow veterans to receive the highest quality of medical care in the Veterans' Administration.

The holes in the card identify some of the characteristics of veterans such as period of military service, age, etc., and will aid in processing your response. Let me assure you that under no circumstances will you be identified with your reply.

Please do not sign your name but drop the completed card in the nearest mailbox. Stamps are not required. Thank you for your help.

Sincerely yours,

OLIN E. TEAGUE, Chairman.

SAMPLE SIZE AND DATA RELIABILITY

Questionnaires were mailed to 32,337 veterans—a one percent sample—randomly selected from the 3,233,700 veterans on the VA compensation and pension rolls. The first mailing brought a response of 17,891 replies—a return rate of 55 percent. This percentage approximated the return rate of the two prior surveys—56 percent in 1967 and 58 percent in 1968. However, it was decided to employ a follow-up mailing to the 14,446 non-respondents. This second mailing resulted in obtaining 6,137 additional responses, for a total of 24,028 replies or a response rate of 74 percent. An additional 529 replies were received too late to be included in the computations but with these latter replies an overall response rate of 76 percent was achieved. The characteristics and replies of the respondents to the follow-up mailing when checked against those exhibited by respondents of the first mailing turned out to be practically identical, indicating that an analysis conducted on the basis of the first mailing would have been as reliable statistically as that conducted on the basis of the two mailings. The results of the follow-up also suggest the likelihood that the replies of the non-respondents would bear a similarity to the replies of those who responded.

The observations made in this study are typical of a large number of veterans who presently make a demand on the VA for medical services. Approximately two-thirds of the veterans receiving VA paid hospital care on October 14, 1970 were veterans on the compensation or pension rolls. Also this group represent almost 56 percent of the patients discharged from VA hospitals during fiscal year 1971.

However, 44 percent of the veterans discharged from VA hospital care during fiscal yaer 1971 were not in receipt of compensation or pension. Therefore nothing is known from this survey the extent to which these veterans were covered by health insurance, nor whether they had an alternate choice for their hospital care.

The reader is reminded also that the study excludes the views of the larger segment of the veteran population (about 25 million) since it covers only the 3 million veterans on the compensation and pension rolls. Inferences concerning health insurance coverage and preference for the larger segment of the veteran population would be inappropriate.

CHARACTERISTICS OF VETERANS IN SURVEY AND DEFINITIONS

The responses of the veterans in the survey are tabulated according to (1) health insurance coverage, (2) where hospital care (VA or other) was received in the last 12 months, (3) where outpatient care (VA or other) was received in last 30 days, (4) compensation and pension status, (5) age, (6) period of military service, (7) preference for hospital care (VA or other), and (8) preference for outpatient care (VA or other). Health insurance coverage includes any form of insurance paid for or by the veteran for hospital or physician care. In this survey the social security medicare program, medicaid or other States-aid programs were considered to be forms of health insurance coverage.

Veterans in receipt of VA compensation were classified into three service-connected disability groups: (1) 0 to 40 percent, (2) 50 to 90 percent, and 100 percent impairment. Veterans in receipt of VA pension for non-service-connected disability were also classified into three groups: (1) housebound, (2) aid and attendance, and (3) other beneficiaries. The last group includes the great majority of veterans on the pension rolls.

For purposes of this paper the term "VA hospitals" will refer not only to the 165 VA hospitals but will also encompass hospital care in non-VA hospitals provided to beneficiaries at VA's expense. The term "other hospitals" is used to designate all non-VA hospitals where care was provided at other than VA expense.

"VA clinics" will include all outpatient care provided by VA, whether in VA staff facilities or by private professional personnel on a fee basis. "Non-VA clinics" will include all outpatient care not provided at the VA's expense.

HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE

Almost 74 percent of the respondents are covered by some form of health insurance aside from their entitlement to VA hospital care. This coverage includes private and public insurance such as medicare, medicaid or other State aid programs. In comparison, less than 71 percent of the adult males 21 years of age and over in the U.S.

population were covered by health insurance at the end of 1969 according to data derived from "1970 Source Book of Health Insurance Data" published by the Health Insurance Institute.

The respondents have access to the VA hospitals for many of their ailments at no expense to themselves. Veterans in receipt of compensation have absolute entitlement to VA inpatient and outpatient care for service connected disabilities and a high priority entitlement to hospital care, on a bed-available basis, for their non-service connected disabilities. Those with 100 percent compensable disability or in receipt of VA aid and attendance or housebound benefits may receive outpatient care for their non-service connected disabilities. Veterans on the VA pension rolls also have relatively free access to VA inpatient care on a bed-available basis, being required only to sign a statement of inability to defray their hospital expense. All VA hospital patients are entitled to outpatient care on a pre-bed care and post-hospital care basis for the conditions which required hospitalization.

Compensation

More than seven out of ten veterans (73 percent) in receipt of compensation reported being covered by some form of health insurance. This proportion approximates the 74 percent reported in the 1968 survey. The proportion of veterans insured varied inversely with the degree of their disabilities, as follows:

| Percent of compensable impairment : | Percent with health insurance |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 0 to 40-----                        | 77                            |
| 50 to 90-----                       | 62                            |
| 100 -----                           | 37                            |

Thus, it appears that the more severely disabled veterans on the compensation rolls have less health insurance and therefore tend to be more dependent on the VA for their health care. This thought is supported by other evidence in the survey (i.e., VA hospital and outpatient use rates). The fact that the less severely disabled are more likely to be employed, and thereby receive some form of health insurance as part of their employment benefits, probably contributes to their greater insurance coverage.

Since most of the veterans on the compensation rolls are under age 65, the percent on medicare (alone or in combination with other insurance) is small. An even smaller percent is on medicaid. The type of insurance coverage for these veterans has changed very little since the 1968 survey.

Slightly over one-half of those on medicare carry some supplemental insurance in the form of medicaid or other coverage. Almost two-thirds of the compensation group carried some form of other insurance, and this for the most part, was in the form of a family coverage plan. Also coverage, where it did exist, was likely to be comprehensive to the extent of including both some hospital and physician care.

Pension

While more than three-fourths of the pension group (76 percent) reported having some form of health insurance, this proportion was less than the 83 percent reported in the 1968 survey. The decline was mainly due to the fact that the percent of pensioners aged 65 and over, and therefore eligible for medicare, decreased from 77 percent in 1968 to 68 percent in 1971. Both the 1968 and the 1971 surveys indicated that most of the pensioners' coverage was due to medicare. Therefore, the declining proportion of insured persons in this group does raise a question as to whether the rising costs of medicare premiums and payments are influencing some VA pensioners to abandon reliance on medicare in favor of VA care. The fact that the hospital patient is liable, at the least, for the first day of hospitalization and the deductibles for physician care may result in medicare by itself, not being a feasible alternative for many of these veterans whose incomes are in the poverty category. However, as shown in our subsequent tables, most of the insurance coverage still possessed by this group was based on the medicare program.

As in the case of the compensation group, the more severely disabled on the pension rolls tended to have a lower percentage of coverage. The rates for those classified as "housebound" or requiring "aid and attendance" were somewhat lower than for "other" pensioners.

| Pension category:        | Percent with health insurance |
|--------------------------|-------------------------------|
| Housebound .....         | 67                            |
| Aid and attendance ..... | 75                            |
| Other .....              | 76                            |

Altogether, 68 percent of the pensioners had medicare coverage, either by itself or in combination with medicaid or other insurance. About 14 percent were covered by medicaid, most in combination with medicare. About 28 percent has other insurance, most in combination with medicare and medicaid.

An inducement for carrying insurance, other than medicare, is to provide care for dependents. However, the pensioner group has far less coverage for dependents than the compensation group. This is probably due to the fact that the pensioners had a higher proportion of elderly persons who not only qualified for medicare themselves but also had less dependents. Furthermore, characterized by lower incomes, they were less likely to afford family coverage outside of medicaid. Also the dependents themselves may be entitled to medicare in their own right.

HOSPITAL USAGE

Of the 24,028 respondents, 5,432 or 23 percent indicated that they had been hospitalized for inpatient care during the last 12 months.

This percent compares with the 22 percent noted in the 1968 study. Of those hospitalized, the majority—69 percent—had some form of health insurance coverage.

Of the total respondents hospitalized, 43 percent were treated in VA hospitals and 61 percent were treated in non-VA hospital. The percentages add up to more than 100 because 4 percent were treated in both VA and non-VA facilities.

The majority of these veterans treated in VA hospitals (55 percent) had no insurance coverage, whereas of those treated in non-VA hospitals, only 15 percent had no insurance coverage. The respondents with no insurance coverage were three times as likely to go to a VA hospital for their care as those with insurance. Respondents with no health insurance coverage had a higher rate of hospitalization during the 12 months prior to receiving the questionnaire (27 percent) as compared with those having health insurance (21 percent). There was no significant changes in these percentages as compared with the 1968 survey.

It is emphasized that hospital care provided in the VA is complete without any time restriction and at absolutely no cost to the veteran. On the other side of the coin most public and private health insurance carriers have some restriction as to time, cost and extent or degree of coverage.

Of the respondents with health insurance who went to non-VA hospitals for their care, 25 percent reported that their insurance covered all incurred expense, 69 percent reported that their insurance covered only part of the expense, and 6 percent reported that their policies failed to cover any of the expense.

Compensation

The proportion of respondents on the compensation rolls hospitalized in the last 12 months was 19 percent—the same percentage that was reported in the 1968 survey. As expected, veterans with more severe disabilities required more hospital care than those with less severe ailments. Also, those with severe disabilities and requiring medical care were less likely to be insured and more likely to go to a VA hospital for their care.

Veterans with 100 percent compensable disability were three times as likely to enter a VA hospital for their care as those with 0–40 percent disability. Overall, of the veterans in the compensation group hospitalized during the year, 37 percent entered VA hospitals and 67 percent entered non-VA hospitals.

Of the compensable veterans with health insurance who did go to non-VA hospitals, the majority did have to pay for either part or all of their care. Of the 100 percent disabled, 65 percent in this insured group had to make partial payment, and 12 percent had to pay for the entire cost of care.

Pension

Since most VA pensioners are in the older age groups, they tend to require hospital care more frequently and on a more prolonged basis than the compensation group. It should be noted that they receive a pension because they not only have total and permanent disabilities but are in need of financial assistance. As indicated heretofore, they are less likely than others to be able to afford to pay for private health insurance and yet more likely to require expensive hospitalization. As in the case of the compensation group, the more severely disabled among the pensioners had less insurance but higher rates of hospitalization than the less severely disabled.

Again as with the compensation group, the more severely disabled were more likely to go to the VA, rather than to non-VA hospitals for their care.

As expected, the larger proportions of pensioners not covered by health insurance received their care from the VA in comparison with those covered by health insurance, and larger proportions of the more severely disabled received care from VA in comparison with the less severely disabled. This was similar to the experience of the compensation group.

Of the pensioners who did receive treatment in non-VA hospitals, the great majority had to pay for either all or part of their care. Only 21 percent had no payments, as compared with 28 percent in the compensation group.

VETERANS HOSPITAL PREFERENCE

The veterans in the last two surveys were asked, if they required hospital care and knew that the care would be paid for by the VA, whether they would prefer to receive it in a nearby VA hospital or in a community hospital.

Slightly more than one-half of the respondents—52 percent—chose the VA hospital in the 1971 survey as compared with 49 percent in the 1968 survey. The 1971 survey did not seek to ascertain the reasons for choosing a community hospital in preference to the VA. However, on the basis of the 1968 survey, it was ascertained that 92 percent of those who preferred a community hospital did so because the VA hospital was not as near to their home. It is believed the same reason would apply to those in the 1971 survey.

Forty-eight percent of the compensation group (compared with 45 percent in 1968) and 60 percent of the pension group (compared with 54 percent in 1968) indicated their preference for VA hospital care. The more severely disabled in both groups had a higher preference for VA care than those less severely disabled. Also the older the veteran, the greater was his proclivity for VA care. Strong preference for VA care was indicated by veterans having no health insurance or insured by medicare or medicaid as compared with those carrying other forms of insurance. Veterans whose insurance policies covered dependents, as well as themselves, were less likely to prefer VA care than those whose policies covered only themselves.

Consistent with the findings in the 1968 survey, the respondents who had been in a VA hospital during the past year had a greater preference for VA care than those who had been in community hospitals. Thus, 76 percent of those hospitalized in VA hospitals preferred VA care, whereas 61 percent of those who had been in community hospitals preferred community care.

OUTPATIENT CARE

The 1971 survey, for the first time, sought to determine the extent of outpatient services, VA and non-VA, used by veterans receiving compensation or pension. Accordingly, they were asked whether they had received outpatient services within the 30-day period prior to their completion of the questionnaire.

One-fourth of these disabled veteran respondents indicated receiving some outpatient care during that time. As expected, the more severely disabled showed a higher usage rate than those with less severe disabilities. Thus, more than 40 percent of the 100 percent compensable group had received outpatient care.

The total number of outpatient visits made by these veterans during the 30-day period numbered 20,273. Since there were 24,028 respondents, this was equivalent to a monthly visit rate of .84 per respondent. This monthly rate is considerably higher than the monthly visit rate of .31 for all American adult males computed from the National Health Statistics data for 1969. However, it is logical to expect that these disabled veterans would require significantly more outpatient treatment than males in the general population.

There was practically no difference in the outpatient treatment rate between veterans on the compensation rolls and those receiving pension. As expected, the veterans with progressively more severe service-connected disabilities had progressively higher visit rates—from .72 for the 0-40 percent disabled to 1.36 for the 100 percent disabled.

The following table provides data by age of respondent. Older veterans would be expected to receive more medical care, and while this appears to be generally true for the service connected population, insofar as their monthly outpatient rates are concerned, the rates for the pension group peaks at ages 45-54. However, while the pensioners at all ages are a severely disabled group, the pensioners who are well advanced in age generally require less disability to qualify for a VA pension than do the younger veterans. Influencing the statistical results is the fact that non-service connected veterans can get free VA hospital treatment at age 65 and above, but only limited outpatient (pre-bed and post-hospital) care. Also the VA nursing home and domiciliary programs make care available to some elderly veterans who otherwise might have to seek such care on a combined home treatment and outpatient basis. Furthermore, most veterans age 65 and above have access to medicare as an alternative expedient.

Although the veterans on the compensation and pension rolls are generally considered to be VA clientele, it should be noted that their outpatient care for the most part is restricted to treatment for service connected disabilities and pre-bed care and post-hospital care. Consequently, it should not be surprising to find that, except for the 100 percent disabled compensable group who are entitled to VA outpatient care on an unrestricted basis and the severely disabled housebound pension group, that the greater portion of outpatient treatment was secured from non-VA sources.

| Age group        | Monthly outpatient visit rates per respondent on— |                  |                                      |

Of those veterans who received outpatient services during the month, 28 percent indicated that such services were for treatment of a service connected condition. This included 36 percent of the compensation group and 12 percent of the pension group. (It should be noted that some pensioners are service connected but have elected to receive pension in lieu of compensation because the pension for their overall disability exceeded the compensation for their service connected disability.) Of all those treated for service connected disabilities, 39 percent received such care from non-VA sources, as compared with 70 percent of all those treated for non-service connected disabilities. (The foregoing percentages include 9 percent who received treatment for service connected and non-service connected disabilities.)

VA OUTPATIENT SERVICE PREFERENCE

The veterans in the survey were asked to indicate, if they required outpatient care and knew that such care would be paid for by the VA, whether they would prefer to receive it in the VA or elsewhere. The answers to this question generally followed the same pattern as the responses to the similar question provided in regard to hospital care.

Slightly more than one-half of the respondents—53 percent—indicated that they would prefer VA outpatient treatment to non-VA outpatient care. Forty-nine percent of the compensation group and 60 percent of the pension group stated their preference for VA care. It should be noted that about one-fifth of all compensable cases provided outpatient treatment by the VA are treated by private physicians on a fee basis, primarily for the purpose of providing nearly “home-town” care, and this factor of VA provided community outpatient services may have influenced the slightly higher percentage indicating preference for non-VA services in the compensation group. Another factor probably is the veteran’s desire to continue presently on-going specific physician-patient relationships.

Again, the more severely disabled veterans in the compensation group voiced a higher preference for VA care than those less severely disabled. Also the older veterans indicated a stronger preference for VA care. Veterans with no health insurance showed a stronger preference for VA care than those with insurance, and veterans insured by medicare or medicaid showed a stronger preference for VA care than those having other types of insurance. Those whose insurance covered only themselves had a higher preference for VA care than those whose insurance covered dependents as well as themselves.

As in the case of hospital preference, those respondents who experienced recent treatment under VA auspices had a greater preference for VA care than those treated in non-VA facilities. Thus, 65 percent of those treated by VA preferred VA care whereas 57 percent of those treated by non-VA elements preferred non-VA care.
