PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 141

WASHINGTON, MONDAY, JANUARY 30, 1995

No. 18

House of Representatives

The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. EWING].

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
January 30, 1995.

I hereby designate the Honorable THOMAS W. EWING to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING BUSINESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 1995, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 30 minutes, and each Member except the majority and minority leader limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER] for 5 minutes.

TIME TO END THE FREEBIE CULTURE

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor today to try and get some answers to a new policy that was announced today in the National Journal's Congressional Daily. In that daily, it says that the Speaker will now be allowing Members of Congress to sleep in their office. This is a new policy and I have a lot of questions as to what is transpiring.

We are now going through this period where we are seeing draconian cuts in all sorts of social service programs, and

I find it a little interesting that at a time we are cutting out some of the poorest of the poor, we have now said that we have to extend compassion to Members of Congress because they are only making $133,000 a year and cannot possibly afford to live in Washington, DC. At least people in my district would find that a little startling in they do not find that that is a poverty wage and are a little shocked by that discrepancy as to what is poor and what is not.

But the other thing that I keep wondering about as apparently we are engaging in this new congressional slumber party, things that we do not know:

Is the House restaurant going to do room service? Are we going to rename the office buildings the House office buildings and dormitories? Does this qualify under the gift rule? Is this a gift from the Speaker to Members who use this? Will there be bed checks? Will staff be allowed to come or is this going to be income tested? Do you have to make at least as much as a Member to be this impoverished? Do we have to report this on our income tax?

Mr. Speaker, as you know, the Members in the last term decided that we would be taxed on our cars, where we park our cars, because that was the only fair thing to do and to treat ourselves like the private sector.

In the private sector, I assume that the IRS would tax us if we were given free room and board. So will the IRS tax us here? And since we are already paying taxes if we have an assigned parking place, what if we sleep in our car? Does that then come in under that? Or do we get a new IRS ruling?

I find this new announcement very confusing, and I hope that we get a clarification as to what all of this is going to entail as we start this new bunk-in-the-House program.

I also hope maybe it gets reconsidered, because I think the average American feels that if you are making what a Member of Congress makes, you can probably afford a little place around here.

Furthermore, most people are paying their staff a whole lot less and they are able to live in Washington, DC, so I do not think it quite passes the straight-faced test.

Mr. Speaker, I also am not too sure that it is the kind of image and decorum that we would like to show for this House and the respect that it has had for over 200 years. It is kind of amazing to me that for over 200 years we have gotten by without Members having to sleep in their office and, suddenly in 1995, things have gotten so tough for Members that this has to be extended.

But I think it also falls into part of the whole gift rule debate that we have been trying to have on this House floor. Suddenly we get this gift, and being able to have free housing here apparently, because the IRS has not spoken, but apparently we are going to be given this gift, but we still do not have time to deal with the gift rule as to what kind of gifts we can get from lobbyists.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is time to end the freebie culture. I think the American people think it is time to end the freebie culture. I think they thought it was time to end it last term when we passed it over and over again, and I hope that we could take time out to get to some of the real core issues before we see even more gifts being dispensed and more perks being dispensed to Members of Congress.

I find it amazing that a lot of people would get very upset about an ice bucket being delivered to different rooms and still not being upset about Members then converting them into an apartment.

Are people going to be able to bring families to the House? If you have your family in Washington, can you convert your office into kind of a family living quarters where they can all stay?

All of these things, I think come from this new pronouncement, and I hope that we get a clarification later in the day from the Speaker, because I find this a very, very interesting new proposal that will probably make wonderful material for new sitcoms. If I were a sitcom writer and I read this, I would think, "Wow. We've been waiting for 200 years for the Congress to do this." Can you imagine? "They eat together, they sleep together, they legislate together." But I do not think that is what I want as the image of this House, and I hope we get some more information on this very soon.

GIVE CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. EHLERS] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, last year the Vice President of the United States, on a national news program, discussed health care reform and why the Democrats were not bothering to speak to the Republicans, and made the statement that "the Republicans didn't vote for Social Security, they didn't vote for Medicare, they're not going to vote for health care, so why should we bother talking to them?"

That refrain was picked up by the then-majority-party of the House, the Democrats, and we heard it on the floor time after time. The gentleman from California [Mr. HORN] dug up the actual facts, and he and I gave several speeches on that last year clarifying the situation, that in fact 83 percent of the House Republicans in 1935 voted for the Social Security Act, contrary to the statement made by the Vice President that none of them had.

Furthermore, 47 percent of Republicans voted for Medicare in 1965. And shame of all shames, more Republicans than Democrats voted for the Civil Rights Act of 1964. In fact, 81 percent of the Republicans in the House at that time voted for it, whereas only 62 percent of the Democrats did.

Mr. Speaker, why do I bring this issue up again? We disposed of it last year immediately after Congressman HORN and I made our comments. The refrain from the other side of the aisle disappeared. But last week once again it emerged as we were discussing Social Security mandates as they relate to the balanced budget amendment and the fear of some people that if we balance the budget, we will cut Social Security.

Once again the Republicans were cast in the role of having opposed Social Security when it originally passed. Comments made by the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary indicate that.

I would like to read just a few statements that were made in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD last week in which the gentleman from Michigan, the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary, stated, "May I remind the gentleman," and he is referring to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], "that Social Security was a Democratic Social Security insurance policy." Furthermore, he goes on to say that it was opposed by the Republicans.

Once again, we have the same strawperson being resurrected to say that the Republicans opposed Social Security, when in fact the record clearly shows that 83 percent of the Republicans in 1935 voted for the Social Security Act.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that we do not have the old false information of last year resurrected again this year. Let us be sure that we deal with the facts. Let us give credit where credit is due.

I have a chart here which I would be happy to give to any Member of the other party who wants to review the facts, pointing out that in fact on such things as the Water Pollution Control Act of 1972, 93 percent of the Republicans voted for it. On the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1970, 99 percent of the Republicans voted for it. I have already given some of the other figures, particularly the Civil Rights Act, where more Republicans than Democrats voted for it.

I think it is clear that the Republicans are not Neanderthals as they are often characterized by Members of the other party. Let us give credit where credit is due. Let us stick with the facts. Let us stick with the actual record and recognize that we must work together to accomplish what is right and what is good for this country.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the chart referred to in my remarks as follows:

VOTES CAST BY DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS ON MAJOR PIECES OF LEGISLATION THIS CENTURY

	House Democrats supporting	House Republicans supporting	House vote
Social Security Act (1935) .....	196	183	372-33

RENEWED CALL FOR INDEPENDENT COUNSEL IN SPEAKER'S ETHICS CASE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BONIOR] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, before I begin my comments, I just want to respond to my good friend, and he is my good friend, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. EHLERS], to say on the Social Security issue, we would not be raising it, except that the Speaker, who raised the issue, said he wants to do away with the CPI index as presently stated. If he does that and they refigure the CPI based upon what Mr. Greenspan and others have suggested, we are talking about a $2,000 hit for Social Security recipients. There is no way around it.

I want the folks to be clear on that. If the Speaker and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY] and the Republicans want to fool around with Social Security and the CPI index, it is going to cost seniors dollars.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today because we saw one more example of why we need an outside counsel to look into the Speaker's ethics problems. The Los Angeles Times ran a story this morning that raises disturbing new questions about GOPAC. GOPAC, of course, is a multi-million-dollar political action committee run by Mr. GRINGRICH which at its very heart is part of the ethics complaint that is being filed against him.

Over the past 9 years, GOPAC has raised between $10 million and $20 million. Its contributors include people who have a direct interest in Federal legislation. Yet we do not know who contributed this money and we do not know how much was spent. We do not know this because GOPAC still refuses to disclose the names of its past contributors and its past expenses.

Let me just read a headline that was in the L.A. Times this morning. "Funding of Gingrich PAC Raises Questions. Key Corporate Donors Have Interests in Pending Federal Action. FEC Alleges Campaign Violations."

The L.A. Times story points out: "GOPAC" has collected contributions from wealthy individuals that far exceed annual Federal election limits."

It points out: "One Wisconsin couple gave over $700,000 to GINGRICH's organization between 1985 and 1993, nearly twice what they could have donated directly to all Federal candidates."

Remember, Mr. Speaker, it was just last month that a top Gingrich ally when asked about GOPAC said that GOPAC was founded "as a way of getting around campaign finance disclosure laws."

We are not just talking about one or two campaigns here.

According to this morning's story in the L.A. Times, "GOPAC boasts that half of the 136 Republican lawmakers elected since 1990 actively used the group's training materials and followed its advice on how to attack Democratic opponents and use powerful issues."

It is not just who they gave to that is the problem, but why.

As the story points out, "The size of the contributions solely to GOPAC from corporate donors with important interests before the Federal Government raises questions about the prospects of preferential treatment."

When asked about GOPAC, the non-partisan director of the government watch dog group, Ellen Miller says, "GOPAC has clearly violated the spirit of laws which govern how much people can give to support politicians. The biggest concern is the fact that is all hidden."

Mr. Speaker, the American people have a right to know who is giving money to GOPAC and how it is being spent.

Clearly any person who has had dealings with GOPAC has a serious conflict of interest in this case. Yet last week we learned that 2 of the 5 members of the Committee on Ethics appointed by Mr. GINGRICH have had past dealings with GOPAC.

Mr. Speaker, this will not do. The only way that we are going to get to the bottom of this case is to have a professional, independent, nonpartisan, outside appointed counsel to come in here and investigate.

That is what this House had done in every high visible ethics case since 1979. It did it in the ABCAM case, it did it in the Diggs case, it did it in the Hansen case, it did it in the St. Germain case, it did it in the case of the former Speaker and several others. In each case we have appointed a nonpartisan outside counsel to investigate.

As Mr. GINGRICH said himself in 1988, "The rules normally applied by the Ethics Committee to an investigation of a typical Member are insufficient in an investigation of the Speaker of the House. Clearly, this investigation has to meet higher standards of public accountability and integrity."

In fact, the new chair of the Committee on Ethics, the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Mrs. JOHNSON], joined Mr. GINGRICH in his campaign for an outside counsel in 1988. The gentlewoman from Connecticut [Mrs. JOHNSON] was one of 71 Republican Members who joined Mr. GINGRICH in sending a letter to the Ethics Committee asking for an investigation of the former Speaker.

She is reported to have supported a call for a special counsel to carry out that investigation in 1988. Now she is backing away from it.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, let me just say, if past Ethics Committees were not fair or tough enough, why would this one be any different? The standard has been set, the precedent is there. It is time for an independent, nonpartisan outside counsel to come in and look at this issue.

GATT PROVISION REDUCES YEARS OF PATENT PROTECTION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, the gentleman from California [Mr. ROHRABACHER] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, before I get into the subject I had in mind this morning, I would like to just suggest that there has been a great double standard in this Congress for many, many years. Whenever conservative Republicans do anything, it is worthy of attack and all sorts of suspicion is being cast on whatever Republicans would do. Especially now that we are in control, we sense this double standard.

For example, NEWT GINGRICH's book deal comes under tremendous attack while the Vice President's book deal, which is not substantially different, ends up, "Well, that's just another book deal." Now we hear attacks on GOPAC, and the fact is that there are organizations around this city, environmental organizations, lawyer organizations, public employee union organizations which have the same sort of activities. But the focus has to be on GOPAC.

I would have to say there is a double standard being applied. I would just ask that when the public hears charges made by political figures, that it be taken into consideration that this is a political city and often charges are made for political reasons.

But what I have to discuss today is concerning a specific piece of legislation. Last year I vigorously opposed the GATT implementation legislation because in it was a provision that I and almost every inventor's organization in this country felt would drastically reduce the number of years of patent protection enjoyed by Americans.

This provision was not required by the GATT but was placed in the implementing legislation by powerful interests who would profit by ripping off American inventors and investors. Read that Japanese and other multinational corporations as well as megadomestic corporations that use technology rather than create it.

Covering this legal larceny, the United States Patent Office and the administration aggressively argued that the changes proposed would not—repeat that—would not decrease patent protection. In fact, they brushed off criticism, claiming terms for most patents would be increased by this change in the law. They used the prestige of their office to lie to us and to dismiss the opposition as not worthy of serious consideration.

Well, now that GATT has been passed, a different tune is being heard. On January 16, the New York Times reported an enlightening statement made by Mike Kirk, Deputy Commissioner of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Once the GATT implementation legislation goes into effect on June 8, Kirk now says that filing a patent after that day "could substantially shorten the term of patent." What? "Shorten the term of patent." This is the opposite of what Congress and the American people were being told before the GATT vote.

Somebody has been lying, which is known to happen when tens of billions of dollars are at stake.

These patent changes, unless corrected will mean billions of dollars in royalties that would be paid to American inventors and investors, will now stay in the bank accounts of foreign corporations. It means technology paid for and invented in the United States will in a few short years be available to our world competitors to use against us for free.

This crime against the American people can be prevented. I have introduced legislation that will restore American patent rights to the guaranteed 17-year term that was in place before passage of the GATT implementation legislation. This bill, H.R. 359 has over 108 cosponsors. These people are protectionist, free traders, pro-GATT, anti-GATT, liberals, conservatives, Democrats, and Republicans. But what ties us all together is our commitment to do what is right by the American people. H.R. 359 is on the side of the little guy versus the big guy.

We are protecting America's rights. When Americans invest something or they invest in new technology, foreign corporations should not be able to use it without paying royalties to use it to out-compete Americans.

This is the travesty that passed through GATT. It was hidden in GATT. Now we are trying to correct that with H.R. 359.

I ask my colleague in both parties to join me as cosponsors for H.R. 359 and set the law right to prevent another crime against the American people, against American inventors and investors.

On the Senate side I am proud to announce that the majority leader, BOB DOLE, has cosponsored similar legislation which will now be known as the Dole-Rohrabacher bill.

APPOINTMENT OF OUTSIDE COUNSEL TO INVESTIGATE SPEAKER GINGRICH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Ms. DELAURO] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, the need for an outside counsel to investigate Speaker GINGRICH's financial empire grows stronger with each passing day.

Today there is an article in the Los Angeles Times which raises new questions about the Speaker's political fund raising organization, an organization known as GOPAC.

Earlier this month there were details of a secret meeting between the Speaker and Rupert Murdoch and that was leaked to the press. The meeting raised some questions because Mr. Murdoch has billions of dollars of business before the Congress, and at that same time there was a $4.5 million book deal that was on the table.

The Speaker dismissed this meeting and its content or its import by saying that, "I never get involved in cases like this," but history in fact tells us otherwise. The Speaker has interceded on behalf of companies in the past, including writing a letter to Chief of Staff Leon Panetta asking the FDA to speed up the approval process of one of his pharmaceutical company's products. Lo and behold, the pharmaceutical company devoted $30,000 or an amount thereabouts to the Progress in Freedom Foundation's conservative think tank organization that does in fact have ties to the Speaker.

Today's Los Angeles Times has an expose on GOPAC. It provides us with some really rather startling information. GOPAC, again a Republican fund-raising machine, has raised millions of dollars without telling us who the donors are. The amount raised, according to the Los Angeles Times, is much higher than that which is allowed by laws governing campaign fund-raising. One couple, it is reported, have given about $715,000 over 8 years, and this was a quote from the L.A. Times, "nearly twice what they could have donated directly to all Federal candidates."

Despite claims to the contrary, GOPAC appears to be very involved in getting Republican candidates elected to the Congress. Again, according to the Los Angeles Times and I quote, "GOPAC boasts that half of the 136 elected Republicans since 1990 actively used the group's training materials and followed its advice on how to attack Democrats."

Quoting the former GOPAC chairman, and I quote, "Of course we couldn't have captured the House without GOPAC." How can this be? We have been told, the American people have been told that GOPAC's multimillion dollar organization did not involve itself in more than 10 percent of the time in Federal election issues.

And the American people need to understand this: We have sent this complex issue to be investigated by the House Ethics Committee, where many of the Members could be recipients of help from the very group that they are in fact going to investigate.

Really never has there been a clearer case for investigation by a non-partisan, nonpartisan outside counsel. GOPAC has been too secretive with its finances. People need to know why. Why are the names of the contributors secret? Is it, as was suggested in the Los Angeles Times by the former GOPAC chair, because their donors say, and again I quote, "what if GOPAC did something wrong and I was associated with it?"

Let us open the books. Let us have an open and fair and honest review. Let us make the American public understand who are the contributors to GOPAC, what are their relationships with the U.S. Congress.

We need to have an outside counsel look at this. That is simple, very clear and open, and without any aforementioned judgment, but let us have a look at what this is all about.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. EWING). Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 57 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 2 p.m.

AFTER RECESS

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

We remember in this our prayer, O gracious God, those who seek to serve people in their concerns and who endeavor to do Your will. We pray also for all those who are burdened by the pressures and tensions of daily living and who struggle where values are weighed and who are immersed in the complexities and priorities of justice. As people face these concerns we pray that they will be comforted by Your presence and sustained by Your good spirit, this day and every day. Amen.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. MASCARA led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Hallen, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed a bill of the following title, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S.1. An act to curb the practice of imposing unfunded Federal mandates on States and local governments, to strengthen the partnership between the Federal Government and State, local and tribal governments; to end the imposition, in the absence of full consideration by Congress, of Federal mandates on State, local, and tribal governments without adequate funding, in a manner that may displace other essential governmental priorities; and to ensure that the Federal Government pays the costs incurred by those governments in complying with certain requirements under Federal statutes and regulations, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that pursuant to Public Law 94-304, as amended by Public Law 99-7, the Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, appoints Mr. D'AMATO, to serve as co-chairman of the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The message also announced that pursuant to Public Law 103-227, the Chair, on behalf of the Republican leader, appoints Mr. GREGG as a member of the National Education Goals Panel, vice Mr. COCHRAN.

The message also announced that pursuant to Senate Resolution 105, adopted April 13, 1989, as amended by Senate Resolution 280, adopted October 8, 1994, the Chair, on behalf of the minority leader, announced the following appointments and designations to the Senate Arms Control Observer Group: Mr. BYRD as minority administrative cochairman; and Mr. NUNN as cochairman for the minority.

REPUBLICAN CONTRACT WITH AMERICA

(Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, our Contract With America states, on the first day of Congress, a Republican house will:

Force Congress to live under the same laws as everyone else, cut one-third of committee staff, and cut the congressional budget.

We have done that.

It goes on to state that in the first 100 days, we will vote on the following items: A balanced budget amendment—we have done this; unfunded mandates legislation; line-item veto; a new crime bill to stop violent criminals; welfare reform to encourage work, not dependence; family reinforcement to crack down on deadbeat dads and protect our children; tax cuts for families to lift government's burden from middle-income Americans; national security restoration to protect our freedoms; Senior Citizens; Equity Act to allow our seniors to work without Government penalty; Government regulation reforms; commonsense legal reform to end frivolous lawsuits; and congressional term limits to make Congress a citizen legislature.

This is our Contract With America.

TRIBUTE TO THE WORLD CHAMPION SAN FRANCISCO 49ERS

(Mr. MINETA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MINETA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the World Champion San Francisco Forty-Niners on their victory in Super Bowl XXIX.

I am especially proud to say that the Forty-Niners' headquarters and practice facility is in the city of Santa Clara, in my district, and that all-pro tight end Brent Jones is a graduate of Santa Clara University.

All season, the Forty-Niners displayed a commitment to teamwork, sportsmanship, and community involvement. Yesterday, in Miami, their dedication paid off and the Forty-Niners proved that they are one of the greatest teams in NFL history.

Mr. Speaker, to Eddie DeBartolo, to Jerry Rice, to Steve Young, to George Seifert, and the rest of the Forty-Niners organization, I say "congratulations and thank you for a great season."

TRIBUTE TO CONGRESSMAN STEVE LARGENT

(Mr. REGULA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Speaker, this past weekend one of our colleagues won yet another election; the gentleman from Oklahoma, Congressman STEVE LARGENT, received football's ultimate honor, election to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, OH, my home district.

Induction into the Hall of Fame is reserved for only the greatest ever to play the game, and STEVE won that honor in his first year of eligibility. He held six major career records at the time of his retirement. STEVE retired 5 years ago with the well-deserved reputation of playing cleanly and with integrity. As a freshman in Washington, our friend STEVE has already developed the same reputation in his new career. I congratulate him on the honor of his induction and look forward to his trip to the 16th District for induction ceremonies in July.

Mr. Speaker, I also want to honor the other four 1995 inductees: Kellen Winslow of the San Diego Chargers, Lee Roy Selmon of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the late Henry Jordan of the Green Bay Packers, and the late Jim Finks, general manager for Minnesota and Chicago during their treks to the Super Bowl. All are outstanding men who richly deserve this honor.

ANNOUNCEMENT ON AMENDMENTS TO LINE-ITEM VETO BILL (H.R. 2)

(Mr. SOLOMON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material.)

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to announce to House Members that the Rules Committee will meet this Wednesday to report an open rule for the consideration of H.R. 2, the Line-Item Veto Act of 1995.

The rule may include a provision giving priority in recognition to Members who have caused their amendments to be printed in the amendment section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD prior to their consideration—though this would not be mandatory.

Since the House is tentatively scheduled to begin consideration of the bill on Thursday of this week, Members wishing to have priority recognition may want to submit their amendments for printing in the RECORD no later than Wednesday. It is not necessary to submit your amendments to the Rules Committee or to testify.

Members should use the Office of Legislative Counsel to ensure that their amendments are properly drafted to an amendment in the nature of a substitute we will make in order that incorporates the changes recommended by the committees of jurisdiction. Amendments should be titled, "Submitted for printing under clause 6 of rule XXIII," signed by the Member, and submitted at the Speaker's table.

For the further convenience of Members, Mr. Speaker, I submit for printing the text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute at this point in the RECORD.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

- (1) determines that—
  - (A) such rescission or veto would help reduce the Federal budget deficit;
  - (B) such rescission or veto will not impair any essential Government functions; and
  - (C) such rescission or veto will not harm the national interest; and
- (2) notifies the Congress of such rescission or veto by a special message not later than ten calendar days (not including Sundays) after the date of enactment of an appropriation Act providing such budget authority or a revenue or reconciliation Act containing a targeted tax benefit.

(b) DEFICIT REDUCTION.—In each special message, the President may also propose to reduce the appropriate discretionary spending limit set forth in section 601(a)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 by an amount that does not exceed the total amount of discretionary budget authority rescinded by that message.

(c) SEPARATE MESSAGES.—The President shall submit a separate special message for each appropriation Act and for each revenue or reconciliation Act under this paragraph.

SEC. 3. LINE ITEM VETO EFFECTIVE UNLESS DISAPPROVED.

(a)(1) Any amount of budget authority rescinded under this Act as set forth in a special message by the President shall be deemed canceled unless, during the period described in subsection (b), a rescission/receipts disapproval bill making available all of the amount rescinded is enacted into law.

(2) Any provision of law vetoed under this Act as set forth in a special message by the President shall be deemed repealed unless, during the period described in subsection (b), a rescission/receipts disapproval bill restoring that provision is enacted into law.

(b) The period referred to in subsection (a) is—

(1) a congressional review period of twenty calendar days of session, beginning on the first calendar day of session after the date of submission of the special message, during which Congress must complete action on the rescission/receipts disapproval bill and present such bill to the President for approval or disapproval;

(2) after the period provided in paragraph (1), an additional ten days (not including Sundays) during which the President may exercise his authority to sign or veto the rescission/receipts disapproval bill; and

(3) if the President vetoes the rescission/receipts disapproval bill during the period provided in paragraph (2), an additional five calendar days of session after the date of the veto.

(c) If a special message is transmitted by the President under this Act and the last session of the Congress adjourns sine die before the expiration of the period described in subsection (b), the rescission or veto, as the case may be, shall not take effect. The message shall be deemed to have been retransmitted on the first Monday in February of the succeeding Congress and the review period referred to in subsection (b) (with respect to such message) shall run beginning after such first day.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this Act:

(1) The term "rescission/receipts disapproval bill" means a bill or joint resolution which only disapproves, in whole, rescissions of discretionary budget authority or only disapproves vetoes of targeted tax benefits in a special message transmitted by the President under this Act and—

(A) which does not have a preamble;

(B)(i) in the case of a special message regarding rescissions, the matter after the enacting clause of which is as follows: "That Congress disapproves each rescission of discretionary budget authority of the President as submitted by the President in a special message on _____", the blank space being filled in with the appropriate date and the public law to which the message relates; and

(ii) in the case of a special message regarding vetoes of targeted tax benefits, the matter after the enacting clause of which is as follows: "That Congress disapproves each veto of targeted tax benefits of the President as submitted by the President in a special message on _____", the blank space being filled in with the appropriate date and the public law to which the message relates; and

(C) the title of which is as follows: "A bill disapproving the recommendations submitted by the President on _____", the blank space being filled in with the date of submission of the relevant special message and the public law to which the message relates.

(2) The term "calendar days of session" shall mean only those days on which both Houses of Congress are in session.

(3) The term "targeted tax benefit" means any provision of a revenue or reconciliation Act determined by the President to provide a Federal tax deduction, credit, exclusion, preference, or other concession to 100 or fewer beneficiaries. Any partnership, limited partnership, trust, or S corporation, and any subsidiary or affiliate of the same parent corporation, shall be deemed and counted as a single beneficiary regardless of the number of partners, limited partners, beneficiaries, shareholders, or affiliated corporate entities.

(4) The term "appropriation Act" means any general or special appropriation Act, and any Act or joint resolution making supplemental, deficiency, or continuing appropriations.

SEC. 5. CONGRESSIONAL CONSIDERATION OF LINE ITEM VEToes.

(a) PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL MESSAGE.—Whenever the President rescinds any budget authority as provided in this Act or vetoes any provision of law as provided in this Act, the President shall transmit to both Houses of Congress a special message specifying—

(1) the amount of budget authority rescinded or the provision vetoed;

(2) any account, department, or establishment of the Government to which such budget authority is available for obligation, and the specific project or governmental functions involved;

(3) the reasons and justifications for the determination to rescind budget authority or veto any provision pursuant to this Act;

(4) to the maximum extent practicable, the estimated fiscal, economic, and budgetary effect of the rescission or veto; and

(5) all actions, circumstances, and considerations relating to or bearing upon the rescission or veto and the decision to effect the rescission or veto, and to the maximum extent practicable, the estimated effect of the rescission upon the objects, purposes, and programs for which the budget authority is provided.

(b) TRANSMISSION OF MESSAGES TO HOUSE AND SENATE.—

(1) Each special message transmitted under this Act shall be transmitted to the House of Representatives and the Senate on the same day, and shall be delivered to the Clerk of the House of Representatives if the House is not in session, and to the Secretary of the Senate if the Senate is not in session. Each special message so transmitted shall be referred to the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate. Each such message shall be printed as a document of each House.

(2) Any special message transmitted under this Act shall be printed in the first issue of the Federal Register published after such transmittal.

(c) INTRODUCTION OF RESCISSION/RECEIPTS DISAPPROVAL BILLS.—The procedures set forth in subsection (d) shall apply to any rescission/receipts disapproval bill introduced in the House of Representatives not later than the third calendar day of session beginning on the day after the date of submission of a special message by the President under section 3.

(d) CONSIDERATION IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—(1) The committee of the House of Representatives to which a rescission/receipts disapproval bill is referred shall report it without amendment, and with or without recommendation, not later than the eighth calendar day of session after the date of its introduction. If the committee fails to report the bill within that period, it is in order to move that the House discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill. A motion to discharge may be made only by an individual favoring the bill (but only after the legislative day on which a Member announces to the House the Member's intention to do so). The motion is highly privileged. Debate thereon shall be limited to not more than one hour, the time to be divided in the House equally between a proponent and an opponent. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the motion to its adoption without intervening motion. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order.

(2) After a rescission/receipts disapproval bill is reported or the committee has been discharged from further consideration, it is in order to move that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for consideration of the bill. All points of order against the bill and against consideration of the bill are waived. The motion is highly privileged. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on that motion to its adoption without intervening motion. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order. During consideration of the bill in the Committee of the Whole, the first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall proceed without intervening motion, shall be confined to the bill, and shall not exceed two hours equally divided and controlled by a proponent and an opponent of the bill. After general debate the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion. A motion to reconsider the vote on passage of the bill shall not be in order.

(3) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the House of Representatives to the procedure relating to a bill described in subsection (a) shall be decided without debate.

(4) It shall not be in order to consider more than one bill described in subsection (c) or more than one motion to discharge described in paragraph (1) with respect to a particular special message.

(5) Consideration of any rescission/receipts disapproval bill under this subsection is governed by the rules of the House of Representatives except to the extent specifically provided by the provisions of this Act.

(e) CONSIDERATION IN THE SENATE.—

(1) Any rescission/receipts disapproval bill received in the Senate pursuant to the provisions of this Act.

(2) Debate in the Senate on any rescission/receipts disapproval bill and debatable motions and appeals in connection therewith, shall be limited to not more than ten hours. The time shall be equally divided between, and controlled by, the majority leader and the minority leader or their designees.

(3) Debate in the Senate on any debatable motions or appeal in connection with such bill shall be limited to one hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by the mover and the manager of the bill, except that in the event the manager of the bill is in favor of any such motion or appeal, the time in opposition thereto shall be controlled by the minority leader or his designee. Such leaders, or either of them, may, from the time under their control on the passage of the bill, allot additional time to any Senator during the consideration of any debatable motion or appeal.

(4) A motion to further limit debate is not debatable. A motion to recommit (except a motion to recommit with instructions to report back within a specified number of days not to exceed one, not counting any day on which the Senate is not in session) is not in order.

(f) POINTS OF ORDER.—

(1) It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any rescission/receipts disapproval bill that relates to any matter other than the rescission of budget authority or veto of the provision of law transmitted by the President under this Act.

(2) It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any amendment to a rescission/receipts disapproval bill.

(3) Paragraphs (1) and (2) may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by a vote of three-fifths of the members duly chosen and sworn.

SEC. 6. REPORTS OF THE GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE.

Beginning on January 6, 1996, and at one-year intervals thereafter, the Comptroller General shall submit a report to each House of Congress which provides the following information:

(1) A list of each proposed Presidential rescission of discretionary budget authority and veto of a targeted tax benefit submitted through special messages for the fiscal year ending during the preceding calendar year, together with their dollar value, and an indication of whether each rescission of discretionary budget authority or veto of a targeted tax benefit was accepted or rejected by Congress.

(2) The total number of proposed Presidential rescissions of discretionary budget authority and vetoes of a targeted tax benefit submitted through special messages for the fiscal year ending during the preceding calendar year, together with their total dollar value.

(3) The total number of Presidential rescissions of discretionary budget authority or vetoes of a targeted tax benefit submitted through special messages for the fiscal year ending during the preceding calendar year, together with their total dollar value.

(3) The total number of Presidential rescissions of discretionary budget authority or vetoes of a targeted tax benefit submitted through special messages for the fiscal year ending during the preceding calendar year and approved by Congress, together with their total dollar value.

(4) A list of rescissions of discretionary budget authority initiated by Congress for the fiscal year ending during the preceding calendar year, together with their dollar value, and an indication of whether each such rescission was accepted or rejected by Congress.

(5) The total number of rescissions of discretionary budget authority initiated and accepted by Congress for the fiscal year ending during the preceding calendar year, together with their total dollar value.

(6) A summary of the information provided by paragraphs (2), (3) and (5) for each of the ten fiscal years ending before the fiscal year during this calendar year.

PLEDGE TO ACCEPT NO GIFTS FROM LOBBYISTS

(Mr. MASCARA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MASCARA. Mr. Speaker, I stand here today to urge my colleagues to take a pledge to accept no gifts from lobbyists and to quickly pass legislation making such a ban the law of the land. The American people are demanding that we break all ties with special interest lobbyists.

The first day of this session I voted with my Democratic colleagues to impose tough gift restrictions. Not one of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle voted for this measure. The President has asked us to voluntarily implement a gift ban. I have taken that pledge and ask my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to join with me in the gift ban pledge.

Mr. Speaker, the American people expect no less from us. Let us band together, both Democrats and Republicans, and pass the gift ban now.

THE CONTRACT WITH AMERICA BOOK

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, the one book that the Democrats are real scared of is the Contract With America. This book is No. 3 on the New York Times best seller list. It is so popular because it is the change the American people have been waiting for. It is the right thing to do, and it is what the Republicans are doing.

Mr. Speaker, I suggest that my colleagues from the other side of the aisle read this book because we are leading the change and they had better learn how to follow. This book changes Congress and the Democrats only want to change the subject.

NO MORE AID TO RUSSIA

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, something does not make sense; Russia used to be our No. 1 enemy and now it must be our No. 1 friend because we give Russia billions of dollars every year now. Advisers come before Congress and tell us Russia has changed. They are now seeking a democratic participatory government that has compassion for human rights, and they walk around like Ronald Reagan and they make speeches like Abraham Lincoln and "Give Russia a chance."

Give me strength, Mr. Speaker, give me strength. What are we doing, giving Russia all this money, then they are using American hard-earned tax dollars to kill Russian people?

I am one Member who says, "Russia may talk. Russian leaders may talk like Thomas Jefferson, but they are acting like Josef Stalin."

I oppose any more money for Russia, especially blood money for Russia, and I think Congress should send that message over to these new freedom fighters.

AN UNFUNDED MANDATE COULD BANKRUPT AND CLOSE THE WATER TREATMENT FACILITY IN GRETNA, NE

(Mr. CHRISTENSEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, last year the city of Gretna, NE, a small town in my district in the eastern part of Nebraska, population a couple thousand, was ordered by the EPA to spend $12,000 above and beyond their normal costs of $2,000 for additional testing to determine if there were any synthetic compounds in their drinking water.

Mr. Speaker, the EPA qualifying limits for synthetic compounds were set so low that one person would have to consume hundreds of thousands of gallons of water in order to show any adverse effect.

The city of Gretna passed with flying colors, but if, by chance, one well had failed the test, the Gretna taxpayers would have faced over $500,000 in additional costs. The entire annual operating budget for the Gretna water treatment facility is only $100,000. To mandate unnecessary costs would have bankrupt and closed the only water treatment facility that Gretna has.

Mr. Speaker, the EPA is a prime example of a big government gone bad. We must protect the taxpayers from these types of unfunded mandates before we break the backs of States, municipalities, and the taxpayers across this country.

INTRODUCTION OF THE WELFARE TO SELF-SUFFICIENCY ACT OF 1995

(Mr. VOLKMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to welcome the Governors of our great Nation who have come to Washington to discuss the problems that are overburdening our Government and our country. Their topic is welfare reform.

To that, Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation that will give Americans a handup instead of a handout. The Welfare to Self-Sufficiency Act will end the quagmire that faces those now on welfare. No longer will men and women be trapped by a welfare system that does not reward work, promote the family, or instill personal responsibility. It will move people from dependence to independence, from a welfare check to a paycheck, and from a sense of hopelessness to one of opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, the President said the other evening that it is time to end welfare as we know it. Let us break this cycle and pass welfare reform legislation that will give every American an opportunity to become self-sufficient.

TRIBUTE TO RICHARD L. ROUDEBUSH, OUR DEPARTED COLLEAGUE

(Mr. MYERS of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MYERS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I rise this afternoon with sorrow to announce the passing of a former Member of Congress and a good friend of many of us, Richard L. Roudebush.

Dick was a veteran of World War II. In 1953, Mr. Speaker, he was elected the State VFW Commander in the State of Indiana. In 1957 he served as National Commander in the Veterans of Foreign Wars. In 1961, he was elected to Congress where he served for 10 years.

Mr. Speaker, here he was known affectionately as "Mayor of the Cloakroom" because of his humor, good sense and friendliness. He sat often back in the corner here with about four or five other associates and always was a person who had something nice to say about everyone else here. While he served in the House, he can be remembered as a friend of the veterans. He also was a farmer himself, so he fought for farmers' legislation. In the House he was one of the sponsors of legislation to establish June 14 as Flag Day, to be recognized as a national holiday. He also fought for many things for the veterans and for patriotism.

He served until 1971 in the House, and since that time he served, as in 1977 he was elected and selected to serve, as Administrator of the Veterans Administration where he served for 3 years.

He will be missed by many of us. He was a great friend. We will miss Dick Roudebush.

SLUMBER PARTIES IN THE HOUSE

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, our new Speaker GINGRICH certainly is not short of compassion.

My colleagues, when I got up this morning and read today's Congress Daily, I was absolutely amazed because, as of today, the House office buildings become the House boarding and office buildings. Yes, Members of Congress can have sleepovers in their office. Now I do not know if the House restaurant is going to be extending room service, or whether the IRS is going to tax us for this, or maybe we have to sleep in our cars, because we have been taxed on that. All these questions have not been answered, and we do not know if we can bring our families, and whether there will be hall monitors for all of that.

But the Speaker says he feels so very sorry that Members cannot live in Washington on $133,000 a year, so he extended this privilege for the first time in over 200 years of the House's existence.

So here we go. I guess we can have a slumber party every night. It certainly is a new House.

CAMPAIGN REFORM

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing a bill which would accomplish real campaign reform. It addresses the true problems with the current system without costly, artificial, and probably unconstitutional provisions like spending limits or public financing. For example, to address the free mailing advantage incumbents enjoy, my bill would cut the franking allowance in half and ban all unsolicited mail 60 days before a primary and general election. Also, in order to get rid of the perceived edge that PAC's have over individual contributors, my bill would limit PAC campaign contributions to $1,000. The President challenged Members to stop taking gifts from lobbyists—my bill would prohibit lobbyist-paid travel for any Member or employee of the House of Representatives. Congress needs campaign reform—but we don't need to reinvent the wheel to achieve it. By applying a little common sense, we can do it. I urge my colleagues to look at my bill.

WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO OUR GIFT BAN?

(Mr. WATT of North Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, what ever happened to our gift ban? Last year the House voted two separate times to stop lobbyists from paying for Members' meals, entertainment and other "gimmies," but the Republicans in the other body stopped the gift ban in its tracks. On the first day of this Congress, Mr. Speaker, House Democrats moved to impose tough gift restrictions and royalty limits, but the effort failed with not a single Republican in support. In the meantime, the image of our Members continues to be battered by book deals and other appearances of impropriety.

If we are looking for respect, let us pass the gift ban. Mr. Speaker, give our image a break. Let us pass a gift ban.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BOEHNER). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, our colleague, IKE SKELTON, is the recipient of the 1995 Minuteman of the Year Award from the Reserve Officers Association. He was honored this past week at the ROA's midwinter meeting in Washington.

I want to share with my colleagues the speech IKE made in accepting this deserving award.

COMMENTS OF REPRESENTATIVE IKE SKELTON

There are magic, memorable moments within one's life, and being here with you this evening is truly one of them. I have neither the mastery of words nor the eloquence of diction to express my gratitude on receiving this honor. It is a particular thrill to join the ranks of colleagues such as Greg Laughlin, Daniel Inouye, Jack Murtha, Sam Nunn, Sonny Montgomery, Strom Thurmond, and others who have received this award.

Through the years, I have had many friends among the Reserves, particularly those from Missouri, such as Capt. Mike Nolan. I feel a close kinship to those present.

I am indeed proud of the Reserve forces of our country. From the battle at Lexington, MA in 1775 to the Persian Gulf in 1991, where Bronze Star recipient Jim Ahrens from Lexington, MO served with distinction, reservists have been prepared and ready to heed our country's call to arms.

As we speak, there are over 13,000 American reservists serving in 34 countries, including 800 in Operation Uphold Democracy in Haiti; over 600 with Operation Deny Flight in Bosnia; and over 1,500 reservists supporting counter-drug operations along our borders.

This past November, two of my colleagues—Chet Edwards and Jim Chapman of Texas—and I visited NATO headquarters in Brussels, where we were told by Brig. Gen. John Dallegger, "If we didn't have the Guard and Reserve 'to spell us', we couldn't do our mission over the long haul." At the Aviano Air Base in Italy, whose mission is Operation Deny Flight, Col. Dick Brenner said, "We fly about 600 sorties a month. And Reserve air units are completely integral to our flight operations. They are darn good pilots, and I am proud to fly with them." In Zagreb, Croatia, where the U.S. Navy operates the field hospital, Col. Jack Fitzgerald of the UNPROFOR forces told us, "We operate a hospital for the United Nations protection force. Reservists contribute special skills we need to support the operation. They come from everywhere in the United States—Virginia, Missouri, Texas—everywhere." And it was an Army Reserve helicopter unit placing huge boulders along the Missouri River which successfully kept that river from cutting a new channel during the flood of 1993. In short, the Reserve forces of our country live up to the finest traditions of the words, "citizen soldiers."

Unfortunately, those who wear the uniform are not always appreciated. Historically, the gratitude of the public does not always extend to those whose duty it is to defend them. This is reflected by the words from Rudyard Kipling's 1890 poem "Tommy:" Then it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that, and "Tommy, 'ow's yer soul?" But it's "Thin red line of 'eroes" when the drums begin to roll—

But appreciation or not, I know full well those who wear the American uniform will always do their duty.

Congressmen Edwards and Chapman and I also visited the Flanders Field American Cemetery in Waregram, Belgium. The village mayor came out to thank us for the American efforts on behalf of his country in two World Wars. We laid a wreath in memory of those 368 Americans who were killed in World War I. All of the men buried in that cemetery were soldiers of three National Guard divisions and one Army Reserve division. Citizen soldiers all. Four were from Missouri, and sadly, the crosses note that seven were killed in combat on November 11, 1918, just hours before the armistice.

During the wreath laying ceremony, a member of the cemetery staff read the poem that came out of that war, titled "In Flanders Fields." In the poem is the phrase "to you from failing hands we throw the torch, be yours to hold it high." The author, prophetically, was killed in battle later in the war, and through the poem spoke to succeeding generations of those who value freedom.

The memory of our visit to that American cemetery in Flanders shall long remain with me.

This is a dangerous world in which we live. The long twilight struggle, the bitter contest against Communist expansion, has come to an end. With the fall of the Berlin Wall, and the implosion of the Soviet Union, a certain euphoria swept across our land, only to be replaced with the reality of Saddam Hussein and others whose values and designs are not the same as ours.

Few realize that during 1994, this country came close to armed conflict three times—in North Korea, Haiti, and Kuwait. The first two were diffused by the diplomacy of former President Jimmy Carter, and one was blocked by American forces being rushed to the Middle East once again. Conflicts and threats rage throughout the globe, and those involving our vital interests are of concern not only to those who wear American uniforms, but to every citizen of the United States.

Our country, historically, has made the mistake of disarming after every major conflict. This fact was decried by an Army major in 1923, when he noted "The regular cycle in the doing and undoing of measures for the national defense." He added, "We start in the making of adequate provisions and then turn abruptly in the opposite direction and abolish what has just been done." Maj. George C. Marshall's words are as applicable to today's military downsizing as they were 72 years ago.

We should not allow the post-cold-war era to be one where we slash our national security as we have done heretofore in our history. We should learn from the past, and heed the warning of General Marshall.

The protection of freedom and American vital interests is no small thing. A ready and able military is our national defense insurance policy. In time of conflict, it allows us to be successful. It gives strength to our international diplomacy. In other times, it prevents the clash of arms. Every American should understand these basic truths regarding national security.

In 1935, Winston Churchill warned his countrymen that, "wars come very suddenly." This warning is worth keeping in mind in 1995. In other words, the ordeal of the 20th century is not over.

In 1939, we were surprised by the signing of the non-aggression pact between the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany. The consequences were horrific.

In 1941, we were surprised by the attack of the Empire of Japan on United States naval forces at Pearl Harbor.

In 1946, we were surprised by the Iron Curtain and the cold war.

In 1950, we were surprised by the attack of North Korea against the South.

In 1961, we were surprised when the Berlin Wall went up.

In 1962, we were surprised when Khrushchev put missiles in Cuba.

In 1968, we were surprised by the Tet offensive by the North Vietnamese.

In 1979, we were surprised by the fall of the Shah of Iran.

In 1980, we were surprised by the attack of Iraq against Iran.

In 1990, we were surprised by the attack and occupation of Kuwait by Iraq.

And just last fall, we were surprised by the sudden movement of Iraq forces toward Kuwait.

Truly, this is an uncertain world. Unpredictable, like the patterns we see in the turning of a child's kaleidoscope. There are those in this audience who will once again hear the rattle of musketry, the crash of artillery, the roar of the jet engine, and the klaxon call to battle stations. No one seeks this, but until mankind finds a better way to solve disputes and conflicts, this prediction will come to pass.

The late President Harry Truman, who, coincidentally had both Army National Guard and Reserve careers, had a sign on his desk that stated, "the buck stops here." The Constitution states, without any further explanation, that the President is the Commander in Chief of our military forces. By contrast, that document sets forth in detail in article one, section eight the duties of the Congress, as representatives of the American people, to raise and maintain the military, and set the regulations that govern it.

Thus, the same could be said of Congress regarding our national security duties, "the buck stops here." It is the job of the Congress to make sure that the Nation's insurance policy is paid in full and that we have an adequate, fully trained properly educated, well-equipped, and highly motivated military.

This Congress should heed the necessity to fully fund the Bottom-Up Review, which is designed to successfully fight two major regional conflicts nearly simultaneously; to maintain a high level of readiness; to give adequate pay raises to uniformed personnel; to allow our forces to have the quality of life they so well deserve; and to have continued modernization of equipment and weapons systems.

I say to you, Members of this distinguished organization: Your visits to Capitol Hill, and communications with Members of Congress, are extremely important. Never underestimate the impact of your presence as Congress debates our national defense policy. When the history of this new post-cold-war era is written, I hope the history books will say that the Americans in uniform stood tall and had the strong support of the Congress of the United States.

Let me share with you a magic, memorable moment from yesteryear. I remember it so clearly. I was 9 years of age, attending the fifth grade at Central School in Lexington. My father, a veteran of the First World War, trial lawyer, and well-known orator in Lafayette County, was invited to speak at the Armistice Day ceremonies at the Odessa High School, just a few miles from Lexington. That was November 11, 1941. He took me from my class and we drove to the Odessa High School, where I sat in the back of the student body, listening and watching the Armistice Day program. On the stage, students portraying soldiers were dressed in World War uniforms, and the beating of a bass drum simulated artillery fire.

Then my father gave his speech. He told of the freedoms of America, and how those in uniform had defended our country through the years. He also stated that there were those in that audience who might well have to defend our freedoms once again. How prophetic he was, for less than a month later, the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, and our Nation was engulfed in what became known as World War II. Two young men from that Odessa graduating class of May, 1942 were killed in action.

My father concluded his speech to the student body by reciting—

"In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

"We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders Fields.

"Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields."

Let those inscriptions on the crosses of Flanders Field be more than forgotten names. Let those men be remembered for their patriotism, courage, and dedication. Let those citizen soldiers who lie there ever cause us to remember that we, in our day and time, have the duty to hold high the touch of freedom in this dangerous and unstable world.

Thank you, and God bless you.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. EHLERS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. EHLERS addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. DORNAN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. DORNAN addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SHUSTER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I submit for Members attention the following letter from myself and the chairman of the Committee on National Security, Mr. SPENCE, regarding jurisdiction.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, January 4, 1995
Hon. NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: As Chairmen of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on National Security, we wanted to advise you of our mutual agreement concerning the division of jurisdiction over the merchant marine due to the dissolution of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. Rule X, clause 1(k) of the Rules of the House for the 104th Congress provides jurisdiction to the Committee on National Security over:

"(7) National security aspects of merchant marine, including financial assistance for the construction and operation of vessels, the maintenance of the U.S. shipbuilding and ship repair industrial base, cabotage, cargo preference, and merchant marine officers and seamen as these matters relate to the national security."

The new Rule X, clause 1(q) provides the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure with jurisdiction over:

"(12) Measures relating to merchant marine, except for national security aspects of merchant marine."

This split in jurisdiction in what was previously entirely within the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries is based on the fact that, while various aspects of the merchant marine and related activities are transportation matters that are handled in the executive branch by the Department of Transportation, certain aspects are so closely tied to national security that primary jurisdiction should be within the Committee on National Security. For example, the maintenance and control of the National Defense Reserve Fleet and the Ready Reserve Fleet would be within the jurisdiction of the Committee on National Security.

However, it may not be clear in all cases to which of the two Committees a particular bill should be referred. In general, matters relating to merchant marine activities will be referred to the National Security Committee if the national security aspects of the matter predominate over transportation and other merchant marine aspects.

While present programs of the Maritime Administration have both national security and transportation implications, we agree that primary jurisdiction over the annual authorization for the Maritime Administration would be in the Committee on National Security. Primary jurisdiction over the annual authorization for the Federal Maritime Commission would be in the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Shipbuilding is a subject that has a particularly strong connection with national security because of the implications for our defense industrial base. We agree that the National Shipbuilding Initiative, including the loan guarantee program under Title XI, would be within the primary jurisdiction of the Committee on National Security. In addition, the Congress likely will be requested to approve legislation to implement an international agreement to eliminate shipbuilding subsidies worldwide. While this is generally a laudable goal, the contents of this agreement must be examined in the context of its long-term effect on the shipbuilding industrial base. Of particular concern is the question of whether U.S.-based shipyards are disadvantaged by this agreement to the point that a transition from naval construction to commercial construction is impossible. We agree that, as between the Committees on National Security and Transportation and Infrastructure, primary jurisdiction over implementing legislation for this agreement should reside with the Committee on National Security.

Jurisdiction over the State and Federal Maritime Training Academies is granted in the rule specifically to the Committee on National Security. With respect to the provision in Rule X, clause 1(k)(9) concerning merchant marine officers and seamen, it is understood that measures whose predominant purpose is the maintenance of a well trained merchant mariner manpower pool capable of meeting sustainment and surge sealift requirements will be within the jurisdiction of the Committee on National Security. Shortages of qualified U.S. mariners to serve during the mobilization for Desert Storm highlighted the need to consider these problems from a national security standpoint.

Jurisdiction over the Coast Guard is provided to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure by Rule X, clause 1(q)(1). This confers upon the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee authority over all matters handled by the Coast Guard that were previously within the jurisdiction of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

This letter may not address all merchant marine issues that will come before you. We will continue to work with you toward resolution of other issues as they arise.

Finally, it is understood that this agreement does not in any way alter or limit the jurisdiction of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure or of the Committee on National Security over matters discussed herein which were properly within the respective Committees' jurisdiction prior to the dissolution of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Sincerely,

FLOYD D. SPENCE,
Chairman, Committee
on National Security.

BUD SHUSTER,
Chairman, Committee
on Transportation and Infrastructure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. CHABOT addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

GOPAC AND ITS ROLE IN THE CAMPAIGN TO END THE FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DURBIN] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the Chair for recognizing me for 1 hour under the special order of business of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Speaker, in 1984 our Speaker published a book entitled "Window of Opportunity." I would like to quote from Speaker GINGRICH's book in reference to political action committees, as follows:

As a citizen you need to keep track of your elected officials' promises and their actual behavior. I strongly favor PAC's because they tie candidates' promises to their performances by keeping records more effectively than do individuals. By linking their contributions to performance in areas of interest to the contributors, the PAC system encourages more people to be involved because it makes their contributions and their endorsement more effective.

Let me quote again from Speaker GINGRICH's book of 1984: "This proliferation of open publicly registered and publicly monitored support is in the best tradition of participatory democracy."

That observation is especially timely in light of two publications this weekend. On Sunday, in the Denver Post, there was a question raised about the Speaker's personal PAC, GOPAC, and links with the cable television industry.

Today in the Los Angeles Times is another article raising a question about the same PAC, GOPAC, which is Speaker GINGRICH's PAC, and why they have refused, those who are running the PAC and the Speaker, to make a full disclosure of all the contributors to the PAC. Some of the contributors to the $7 million political action committee have been disclosed. For example, one Wisconsin couple, Terry and Mary Kohler, of Sheboygan, WI, have been disclosed as having contributed $715,000 to Speaker GINGRICH's political action committee between 1985 and 1993. That is nearly twice the amount that they could have legally donated directly to all Federal candidates.

This $7 million political action committee which the Speaker has not disclosed in detail also includes executives and lobbyists for seven companies regulated by the Food and Drug Administration. These executives, the seven that are named in the Los Angeles Times article, are among, in their words, "GOPAC's heavy hitters."

So, Mr. Speaker, we have an unusual situation here where the Speaker of the House in 1984 had called for public monitoring and public registration of those who were involved in political action committees and then, beginning a year later, with the creation of GOPAC, the GOP Action Committee, there has been a refusal of that same Speaker to make this information known to the public.

Those who are listening might ask a very basic question. So what? What difference does it make? Why should the Speaker have to disclose the names of his contributors to this $7 million political action committee and the expenses and disbursements that were made by that political action committee?

I think it gets back to a point the Speaker made in his book. This is a way to make sure that there is accountability and, in his words, "in the best tradition of participatory democracy."

Those who have been following the news lately know that the Speaker has not been unsparing in his criticism of the Food and Drug Administration. I have some familiarity with this agency. It is one which is funded by the subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations which I chaired over the last 2 years. By Federal standards it is a pretty small agency. We appropriate about $1 billion a year to the Food and Drug Administration and give them an awesome responsibility. We say to this small agency, "Make sure as best as humanly possible that every drug, every medical device, and many of the foods that come into the households of American families are not only safe to be used but in fact can be used for their stated purpose effectively."

That is a big task, and when you consider the giants of American industry that watch closely over this small agency, it is no wonder that from time to time they come under criticism. In fact, in years gone by much of that criticism has been warranted. The agency fell behind in drug approvals, in medical-device approvals, and in other areas of responsibility. I am happy to report, though, that over the last several years, under the leadership of Dr. Kessler, who is the only holdover from the Bush administration serving under President Clinton as the head of the Food and Drug Administration as well, remarkable progress has been made in the Food and Drug Administration. In fact, they have come up with a much more expedited schedule for the approval of drugs and medical devices, something which every American and every American family wants to see.

But despite this, some of the critics of the Food and Drug Administration are running advertisements now suggesting that we should turn out the lights and close the door on the Food and Drug Administration. They have suggested that it has too much power. In the words of one of their critics, they have been characterized as "thugs."

Stepping aside from this type of lurid rhetoric and looking at the fact, I think that it is critically important that the Food and Drug Administration maintain its independence, not only for its credibility within its own industry but for its credibility in helping American industry. Let me give two specific examples of what I am talking about.

Most Americans can recall that not too long ago we had a scare when people discovered hypodermic syringes in the cans of Diet Pepsi. That was a little over a year ago. As a result of that scare, a couple of these syringes popped up across the United States and people were genuinely concerned about this product and its safety. As a result of that scare, Pepsi Cola stock plummeted in value because of the concern as to whether this scare might have some impact on their sales. In step, the Food and Drug Administration conducted a quick and thorough investigation, reported to the American people that it was a hoax that was being copycatted by others around the country, and within a very short period of time this scare was gone. Pepsi Cola stock started to rebound. People were buying the product without concern for its safety. Why? Because of the credibility of this independent Federal agency, an agency which is not beholden to anyone in industry but is only beholden to taxpayers and consumers.

Let me give a second example. In my part of the world, in the Midwestern United States, there is a distributor of frozen-food products known as Schwan Foods. This is an unusual operation to most other parts of the country because they usually drive refrigerated trucks around the Midwest and sell frozen foods door to door to their loyal subscribers. They sell everything from ice cream to frozen meats and all sorts of other frozen foods for homemakers in my part of the world.

A few months ago there was a scare over some of the ice cream which they sold which appeared contaminated. It hit all the newspapers. There was a genuine fear that Schwan's as a company would not be able to survive because of this disclosure. In came the Food and Drug Administration. They conducted an investigation of their operation. They found what they considered to be the cause of the problem and suggested to the Schwan food company what they could do to ameliorate the situation and to allay any fears of consumers. Their trucks are still on the road today. Schwan's is still doing business. It appears now the Food and Drug Administration has come in and added credibility to the situation and helped this company get back on its feet.

Despite these examples, we still have people calling for an end to the Food and Drug Administration. Some of them will be companies, which, quite frankly, do not like to see this type of Government regulation, a regulation which requires that their advertising of their products be truthful, that what they say the products will do they can actually do, that they do not overstate their case, and that in fact doctors can prescribe a drug knowing that it is safe.

The Speaker has led the criticism, along with some very conservative groups, of the Food and Drug Administration and suggested at one point that we should even privatize the Food and Drug Administration. I think this is a valid policy debate which should take place. I for one oppose the idea of privatization of the Food and Drug Administration. I think as an independent Government agency they are doing a good job. They can certainly improve on it. All of us can improve on our performance. But I would hate to see an agency as important as the Food and Drug Administration go by the way-side.

The relevance of the FDA issue to the GOPAC issue is brought in clear focus by this Los Angeles Times piece. Why would the executives or lobbyists for seven companies regulated by FDA be major donors to the Speaker's political action committee and then the Speaker take the position that the Food and Drug Administration should be disbanded?

This is a legitimate inquiry. It could be the Speaker has good reason, and he can make that case known to the American people in detail. But at least now there is a suggestion that there may be a link between this political action committee and the political position taken by the Speaker.

I started in politics working for a fellow by the name of Paul Douglas, who was a Senator from Illinois who served between 1948 and 1966. He was my mentor and inspiration when it came to the question of ethics. I may serve in this body the remainder of this term and maybe longer. I will certainly never reach his level of ethical standards. He set one that very few people will ever be able to reach. But he was very, very mindful of the need to make full disclosure.

He used to say, "Sunshine is the best antiseptic. Put it all on the table." My friend, Senator PAUL SIMON from Illinois and I took him to heart. We make public disclosure each year far beyond the requirements of the Federal law. It does not guarantee that a public servant will be honest, but at least it shows we are prepared to open our books.

I think that is the best thing now for the Speaker to consider when it comes to GOPAC. Open the books. Let us see what is in there. Let us get it behind us. Let us make full disclosure, so any future debate over the Food and Drug Administration or any other agency is not tainted by the question of whether contributions to the $7 million political action committee had anything to do with the Republican agenda.

This is part of what I consider openness in Government. We have heard a lot said over the last 3 weeks about a new standard of openness coming from the Republican leadership in the House of Representatives. Let me say at the outset, and probably to the surprise of the Speaker and others, that I salute the Republicans for many of the changes they have made in this Institution. On the opening day of the session I voted for most of them, and I feel they were steps in the right direction, ending proxy voting, making committee hearings open to the public, something I had done in my own subcommittee for the last 2 years. I think that instills new confidence in what we are about here.

This House of Representatives, this Institution, needs to have more approval from the voters across America. Certainly openness in disclosure is a good step in that process. I think the same is true for political action committees. I think the same is certainly true for the Speaker's GOP action committee, GOPAC. Full disclosure will help to restore confidence not only in the Speaker's activities, but in this institution. What the Los Angeles Times said in its article today, what the Denver Post raised in its article yesterday, certainly leave a lot of people questioning what the agenda is from the Republican side and how it has been influenced.

We have a long way to go. I think disclosure as the Speaker called for in his 1984 book is a step in the right direction.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BOEHNER). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 1995, the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

[Mr. OWENS addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 5 p.m. today.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 33 minutes p.m.) the House stood in recess until 5 p.m.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. EHLERS) at 5 o'clock and 4 minutes p.m.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the House by Mr. Edwin Thomas, one of his secretaries.

UNFUNDED MANDATE REFORM ACT OF 1995

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 38 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 5.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 5) to curb the practice of imposing unfunded Federal mandates on States and local governments, to ensure that the Federal Government pays the costs incurred by those governments in complying with certain requirements under Federal statutes and regulations, and to provide information on the cost of Federal mandates on the private sector, and for other purposes, with Mr. EMERSON in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Friday, January 27, 1995, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. MASCARA] had been disposed of, and section 4 was open for amendment at any point.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, we are about to start our fifth day of dealing with H.R. 5, the unfunded mandates legislation. By my calculations we have spent, thus far, about 15 hours, almost 16 hours, on amendments, 16 amendments to H.R. 5, and we are still on section 4. So we are averaging almost 60 minutes per amendment. Many of these are duplicative or very similar in nature.

Mr. Chairman, I am totally supportive of the open rule process which we have been operating under, but I think at this hour, at this point in time, if we continue with the 130 or so amendments that are still pending, we are talking about maybe 150 hours of deliberation to complete debate on all these amendments.

I think that most Members on both sides of the aisle are eager to get to consider some of the other issues that are in debate, or in controversy, on this legislation other than the exemption issue. So at this point, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate on each amendment, and all amendments thereto, to section 4 and to titles I, II, and III be limited to 2 hours per title.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, first of all we are told we are going to have an open rule, and we are trying to get through the amendments that we have here. I think we have done so rather expeditiously, if my colleagues will agree.

Mr. Chairman, I certainly appreciate the fact that the other side of the aisle has been more than cordial and has not tried to throw up any roadblocks to that, and I hope they will not try to do that sort of thing right now.

I object, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. CLINGER. At this point, Mr. Chairman, I would then ask unanimous consent that debate on amendments to section 4, and this is the exemption section, be limited to 20 minutes, with the time to be equally divided on each amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that we are being offered a gag rule.

All we are asking for is a chance to explain our amendments and talk about them in depth. We did not have the opportunity when we were in committee, and I think now is the only time. As a matter of fact, when we tried to offer our amendments in committee, we were told to bring them to the floor. Now, that is what we are doing.

What do they want us to do; not bring them to the floor?

I object, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, if the gentlewoman will yield, I am not saying that the amendments could not be brought to the floor and debated. I am just trying to get some, perhaps, limitation on debate time.

Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that neither of my unanimous-consent requests was agreed to, I now move that debate on each amendment to section 4, and any amendment thereto, be limited to 10 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] moves that on all amendments to section 4, all debate thereto be limited to 10 minutes on either side.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chairman, is this motion subject to debate?

The CHAIRMAN. No, it is not.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote, and pending that, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. Evidently a quorum is not present.

Pursuant to the provisions of clause 2, rule XXIII, the Chair announced that he will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device, if ordered, will be taken on the pending question following the quorum call. Members will record their presence by electronic device.

The following Members responded to their names:

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. EMERSON). Four hundred and six Members have answered to their names, a quorum is present, and the Committee will resume its business.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] for a recorded vote.

The question before the Committee is the demand of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] to limit debate on all amendments to section 4 to 10 minutes, and all amendments thereto within that time limitation.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. I have a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman will state her parliamentary inquiry.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, it was my understanding that the motion was to limit debate on each amendment to section 4 to 5 minutes on each side.

The CHAIRMAN. And all amendments thereto.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Is that correct, Mr. Chairman, all amendments thereto in section 4 only, only in section 4?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. I thank the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. This is a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 233, noes 181, not voting 20, as follows:

So the motion was agreed to.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, due to a delay in my flight from California, I missed the quorum call and the motion to limit debate on the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act of 1995. Had this flight delay not prevented me from being here, I would have voted "no" on the motion to limit debate.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 237, noes 181, not voting 16, as follows:

So the motion to rise was agreed to. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. HEFLEY) having assumed the chair, Mr. EMERSON, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that the Committee, having had under consideration the Bill (H.R. 5) to curb the practice of imposing unfunded Federal mandates on States and local governments, to ensure that the Federal Government pays the costs incurred by those governments in complying with certain requirements under Federal statutes and regulations, and to provide information on the cost of Federal mandates on the private sector, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

REQUEST FOR PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS TO SIT TODAY AND TOMORROW DURING 5-MINUTE RULE

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on International Relations be allowed to sit today and tomorrow during the 5-minute rule.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. BONIOR. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, just a few minutes ago we voted in this Chamber to limit the debate on the unfunded mandated bill to amendments, 5 minutes on a side. This motion would allow the Committee on International Relations to go upstairs in the Rayburn Building and debate the defense bill and specifically the peacekeeping issue that is before it.

It makes no sense whatsoever to have a process where the Committee on International Relations is meeting in the Rayburn Building and we are voting ever 15 minutes on the House floor, 5 minutes on a side. It was your motion; it was not our motion. Members will not have a chance to warm their seats over there.

At some point the American people are going to ask, "Do you people really know how to run this institution?"

Continuing my reservation, Mr. Speaker, we have had a disturbing pattern occur on the floor of this institution. This is the fourth rule, unfunded mandates is the fourth rule that we have had. The first two were closed. The rules package on the compliance bill was closed. The rule on the balanced budget amendment was restrictive. And now we have an open rule but it is convenient to close it. It is convenient to close it so we are going to run roughshod over the minority and close the rule.

We are concerned about the narrowing of voices in this institution and it is real. I am reserving my right to object, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. I will yield in a second, but let me just develop that for a second. We have had four rules; two of them have been closed; one of them has been restricted; and the one we are debating now has been restricted once again.

The Republicans on this side of the aisle have closed down our legislative service organizations so our women, the African-Americans, our Hispanics have had their voices shut. We have had the Democratic Study Group moved off of the Hill; we have had public broadcasting attacks; we have had voices across this country and in this institution attacked; and we will not stand for a gag rule on this bill.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. Does the gentleman object to the unanimous consent request for the Committee on International Relations to continue its work on the measure before us? We are near the end of the completion of that debate and we should be able to wind it up either tonight or tomorrow.

I am merely trying to accommodate the Members on both sides of the aisle, and I would welcome the gentleman consenting to the request.

Mr. BONIOR. I appreciate my colleague's comments.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, further reserving my right to object, I yield to my friend, the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I would say that the same pattern has developed in committee after committee, that we on the International Relations Committee are now discussing fundamental changes in our role in the United Nations and NATO. Time after time, as amendments are just barely brought forward, there is a motion that the majority carries to cut off debate.

And we are deciding whether we are going to be in the United Nations or out, whether we are going to expand NATO without full and proper debate. The same pattern is occurring in committee after committee.

Mr. GILMAN. If the gentleman will yield further, at this time, Mr. Speaker, I would—

Mr. SOLOMON. Regular order, and demand it now.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I object; I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HEFLEY). Regular order has been demanded. Do 10 Members stand to object?

Mr. GILMAN. Since we cannot have consent with regard to the request, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The request is withdrawn.

UNFUNDED MANDATE REFORM ACT OF 1995

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 38 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 5.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 5) to curb the practice of imposing unfunded Federal mandates on States and local governments, to ensure that the Federal Government pays the costs incurred by those governments in complying with certain requirements under Federal statutes and regulations, and to provide information on the cost of Federal mandates on the private sector, and for other purposes, with Mr. EMERSON in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole arose earlier today, the motion to limit debate on each amendment to section 4, and any amendment thereto, to 10 minutes, offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER], had been agreed to.

Are there further amendments to section 4?

MOTION TO RISE OFFERED BY MR. VOLKMER

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. VOLKMER].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

NOT VOTING—9

Bass	Hefner	Neal
Brown (CA)	Jefferson	Rush
Hastert	Leach	Weldon (PA)

□ 1820

Mr. MINGE changed his vote from "no" to "aye."

So the motion to rise was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

□ 1820

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman and my colleagues, I rise to express my concern and my sense of frustration in regard to the procedure that is now being followed in reference to this debate, and I rise as the cochairman of the Unfunded Mandates Caucus. I am not a member of the committee of jurisdiction, but I rise with a deep-seated feeling that a great majority in this House wants to finish this bill, and I would hope that we could do that.

So, in discussing this matter, Mr. Chairman, I wanted to bring to the attention of my colleagues a draft memo that came to my office last January 11. It says, "From the Democrat leadership": You may want to change your faxes. It says, "First and foremost, our actions and statements must comport with and amplify our overall thematic characterizations of the Republican legislative agenda and congressional management. The arrogance and unfairness of the Republican approach during the markup has led to a shoddy product and one that may (though not all)" not all of your caucus, "and the members of our caucus believe contains unfair and unsound policies.

"Anger and consternation about this procedural abuse should be restated repeatedly, "—and goodness knows my colleagues have done that—" in the days leading up to the floor action by the leadership, using letters to the Speaker and complaining about the mistreatment of the minority, press conferences and discussions with key press people, floor statements, 1-minute, op-eds, and other communications and techniques."

Mr. Chairman, I know my colleagues' concerns. I know they are concerned about a gag rule and fairness. Lord knows I have been concerned during my tenure when I have been a member of the minority, more especially as a member of the House Administration Committee. I remember times when we were ruled out of order and we could not even speak. I remember one time when the doors were locked and we could not even get in to conduct a hearing.

All of the debate, as of right now, is on establishing the purpose and the scope of the bill. Thirty amendments remain. Even if my colleagues do not offer amendments in the second degree, that is 5 hours of debate, 7½ hours of voting.

Now how long is long? We have not got to title I. That is the commission. That is where we go back over existing unfunded mandates and we take care of that, and that deserves debate.

Now title II is the regulatory section. Title III is the point of order section. We have not even got there yet.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BORSKI] has an amendment pending on clean water. We have eight. That is between seven and nine, eight amendments on clean water. The first amendment by Mr. TAYLOR was on clean water.

Now, Mr. Chairman, to date we have had 5 days, including 1 day of general debate, 20 hours, 168 amendments have been proposed, 16 amendments have been considered, and 2 amendments have been passed.

We need to settle this bill. The delay, the crisis, is throughout this country in regard to the city councils, and the school boards, and every business and every farm, every entity that we have out there suffering from unfunded mandates. The Senate has passed the bill, and I must tell my colleagues, which I share their concern about minority rights and the gag rule—my word, people: 30 more amendments, 7½ hours of voting, 5 hours and we are not even to the 3 titles. How long is long?

With all due respect, with all due respect, and I mean this very sincerely, people crawl out of train wrecks faster than you people consider bills.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I will not take 5 minutes as I announce to the Members of this body and their families that everybody should be prepared to remain here tonight in session until we complete this section of the bill irrespective of the number of votes, procedural or substantive. We will remain here tonight until we finish this section of the bill.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I just want to point out that we are debating this piece of legislation. We are moving along very judiciously. We have had Members, as a matter of fact, who have several amendments; they have offered to put those amendments en bloc, as the other side very well knows. We have been cooperative in any way that we can.

The interesting thing about this is that we are going to rush to judgment about the amendments that we have. We have a gag rule that has been imposed upon us tonight. We find ourselves without the ability—we found ourselves without the ability in committee to offer amendments, and now we have the gag rule.

Now everybody is talking about, "Why don't we go on?" It is because we want to get this thing done, and we want to do it right. We want to be able to deliberate in the fashion that everybody is supposed to be accustomed to in this House of Representatives.

This is a deliberative body, not one that is not deliberative. I say to my colleagues, "When you can't deliberate in committee, you have to deliberate on the floor."

Further, this bill will not become effective until October 1995. If they were in such a hurry to get this done, why are they making the effective date 10 months from now?

It seems to me something is wrong with that kind of thinking, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, with all due respect to the gentlemen on the other side of the aisle who raised the question about why we are moving the way we are, I want to go back to the comment made by the gentlewoman from Illinois: This is a deliberative body.

We have been on this bill 2 weeks. There is no national emergency that says that we have to finish this in another week. What they are are national imperatives that are reflected in the amendments by the people who have been duly represented from constituencies across this country.

Now, if in fact we are going to play games about how long we take to do a bill, then perhaps we ought to do as the distinguished gentleman from Texas said. Let us just go on ad infinitum. I mean that is why we are here anyway. It was not this side's decision to start at 5 p.m., and quite frankly, as my colleagues know, I hear the debate on both sides of the aisle regarding this. I think we ought to move forward, and I would sincerely appreciate if the minority would stop suggesting that Members in the minority should have no rights at all to offer amendments, or to debate those amendments, or to debate aspects of the bill.

Mr. Chairman, this is a process that has been going on long before any Member in this body ever got here, it will go on long afterward, and I would hope and expect that we could move forward with some sense of fairness and some sense of understanding that people on this side of the aisle have a right to offer amendments and have every right to expect that those amendments are going to be debated. The constituencies that sent them here expect that also.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MFUME. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, it appeared to me to be quite obvious that, if the gentleman from Pennsylvania who made the earlier motion would now move that there be no limitation on amendments, that we could proceed with the amendments in order, and I do not think we would have any of this stuff, and we could get out of here a lot earlier than otherwise.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MFUME. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CLINGER. There is no limitation on amendments. All we have said is that there is a limitation on debate time.

Mr. VOLKMER. Ten minutes on each amendment. If the gentleman would withdraw that and make a motion that there would be no limitation on amendments, on time limits on amendments, then I think we—we have already spent over an hour and have not got through the first amendment.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I know we are all trying to be as fair as we possibly can.

With all sincerity, we put out an open rule on this bill because we did not want it to be a closed rule. We did not want to gag Members on either side of the aisle. Regardless of whether you are a Republican or Democrat, conservative or liberal, you are entitled to be heard. And in putting the open rule out, we have given you the opportunity to offer whatever amendments you want to. But there is a time constraint, and I will say to my good friend the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. MFUME], and he is a good friend, we have a contract to abide by. We are going to get these rules through this Congress.

With 5 days acting on the bill, significant amendments on both sides of the aisle can be offered to these four sections, and there has been ample opportunity. All we are saying now is we have to move on. We cannot continue another 5 days on this issue.

The suggestion was made to me that we go upstairs and put out a closed rule, because we have spent 5 days on this issue. And I personally opposed that. I do not think we should do that, because you should have ample opportunity to be heard.

But as we progress now, after 5 days, we are going to move on to title I probably at 2 o'clock in the morning, and then we will give ample debate on title I. But at some point you will have to limit debate on title I. We have to move through this bill because we have other important issues to come before us.

It does not matter that this bill has an effective date of next October. The fact is the American people want us to pass this bill. The Governors' Association, the school boards, as the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. ROBERTS] has mentioned, the local governments that I served in, they wanted to know that we are going to pass this before final action is taken on the balanced budget amendment.

All Members know that and are very much aware of that. So time is of the essence. We have to pass this bill, and we are going to do it one way or another. We will do it all with your cooperation.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SOLOMON. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I would submit the debate that has gone on has been on both sides of the aisle here in terms of Republicans using their time. Furthermore, I would suggest my information was there was no discussion with the minority when the motion was made today with regard to limiting amendments and the time for amendments on title IV. There is no consultation here, there is no bipartisan effort to work on this bill; that is, both in the actions of the committee and on this House floor tonight. When you start at 5 p.m., who starts at 5 p.m. with their workday and expects to get their job done?

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, the gentleman knows for several days negotiations have been going on between myself, the manager of the bill, between the minority leader on your side, trying to get you to come up with the significant amendments and have you offer them, but we have not been able to get anyplace. We have been trying. But we are going to remain as open and fair and accountable as we can, but it is up to you. It is up to you. If you want to cooperate, we will stay that way. If you do not, again I have to remind you, we are going to put this bill through in the next 48 hours.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I understand guerrilla tactics. See, some of my good friends are smiling on that side of the aisle. I remember when we were in the minority. Sometimes there were closed rules and sometimes the rights of the minority—we were then the minority—were violated, and we had to do something. So I understand that. I understand that.

But our side has pledged and the Committee on Rules chairman has just stated that we wanted to be as fair as possible and have open rules. And toward that end, you have an open rule before you right now and there has been debate going on ad infinitum on this particular piece of legislation.

But let me just tell you, I serve not only on the old Committee on Government Operations, but also the Committee on International Operations, the former Committee on Foreign Affairs, and it has been my observation, and I think the observation of everybody in the majority, that every single dilatory tactic that can be employed is being employed to slow down the progress on the Contract With America. It is very evident. And I think anybody who watches the deliberations of this body knows that every one of these tactics are being employed. Every one of these tactics are being employed, not because you have alternative ideas that are good for America but because you do not want the Contract With America, which is supported by probably 75 percent of Americans, to be heard on this floor. The American people need to know that, and they will know that, the people of this country will see that very, very clearly.

So I would just like to say to those of you who suffered in this last election and do not apparently have any ideas with which to do combat with the Contract With America that it would be in your interests to let open rules come down in an orderly manner, and conduct the business of this House. If you do not do that, we are going to get the Contract With America to this floor, and they are going to be voted on. If we have to stay here every night for months on end, we are going to get that done. And the American people, when they see the tactics you are employing to slow down what they wanted and what they elected us to do, it is going to cost you even more dearly in 1996.

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Indiana for yielding, and I appreciate his remarks and certainly appreciate the remarks of the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON]. I recognize that to a large extent his desire to not go back and close this rule is sincere, and I appreciate that. But we have engaged in a process of who can out-talk who, and we have not done one amendment.

When the other side won the vote to allow us to move ahead with the 10-minute procedure, that would have taken place, had not the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. ROBERTS] gotten up and began to read and suggest over here we were doing something. I would think after this maybe we could go into the next amendment.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, that was a great speech, but actions speak louder than words, and anybody watching these proceedings knows what you are doing.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further substantive amendments to section 4?

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. BORSKI

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments which were printed in the RECORD as amendments numbered 35 and 36.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. BORSKI:

In section 4, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph:

(8) establishes or enforces any condition or limitation on the addition into waters of the United States of pollutants that are—

(A) known to cause or can reasonably be anticipated to cause significant adverse acute human health effects; or

(B) known to cause or can reasonably be anticipated to cause in humans—

(i) cancer or teratogenic effects; or

(ii) serious or irreversible—

(I) reproductive dysfunctions;

(II) neurological disorders;

(III) heritable genetic mutations; or

(IV) other chronic health effects.

In section 301, in the proposed section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph:

"(8) establishes or enforces any condition or limitation on the addition into waters of the United States of pollutants that are—

"(A) known to cause or can reasonably be anticipated to cause significant adverse acute human health effects; or

"(B) known to cause or can reasonably be anticipated to cause in humans—

"(i) cancer or teratogenic effects; or

"(ii) serious or irreversible—

"(I) reproductive dysfunctions;

"(II) neurological disorders;

"(III) heritable genetic mutations; or

"(IV) other chronic health effects.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendments be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BORSKI] is recognized for 5 minutes, and a Member opposed is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BORSKI asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I believe unreasonable unfunded mandates should not be sent to local governments.

Congress should not require unfunded mandates without careful consideration and deliberation.

But there are issues—major and significant issues—on which the Federal Government has a truly legitimate role in setting nation-wide standards.

Mr. Chairman, the Clean Water Act has been one of the great successes of modern America in cleaning up our Nation's waters and in protecting the health of the American people.

Is it unreasonable for us to set limits and restrictions on the dumping of pollution in our Nation's waterways?

The Federal Government for more than two decades has paid part of the costs of cleaning up the waters.

It is true that we have set standards and only paid part of the cost. We have not paid all of the hundreds of billions of dollars needed to protect the American people. It has been a cost-sharing program.

The alternatives to Federal action to limit water pollution are unacceptable. Local governments could also set the standards necessary to protect human health and then pay 100 percent of the cost.

It would be cheaper for local governments to set standards that do not protect the health of the American people, but I do not believe that local governments officials would choose a policy that would not protect the health of their residents. However, if local governments might choose to set lower standards for water pollution to save money, shouldn't the Federal Government have some role in protecting human health?

My amendment would exempt any bill establishing limits on the addition of health-threatening pollutants into the waters.

These health effects would be only the most serious, such as cancer, birth and young infant defects, major reproductive problems, nerve system damage, and genetic damage.

Mr. Chairman, there is truly widespread support to reduce unfunded mandates but there is no evidence the American people want to increase the risk of the serious health problems caused by water pollution.

The Clean Water Act was passed in 1972 because of the urgent and immediate need to begin a national program of cleaning up our rivers, lakes, and streams.

We were faced with a national crisis of polluted waters that threatened the Health of the American public.

The Clean Water Act has shown a solid record of achievement as we have successfully reduced pollution into the waters. The Environmental Protection Agency's water quality inventories show an ever-increasing percentage of waters that have achieved their clean-up goals.

I urge the Members of this House not to place the Clean Water Act—and the health of the American people—on the chopping block.

We should be cutting back on unfunded mandates but we should not destroy our ability to protect the health of the American people.

I appreciate the committee chairman's concern to keep this law as simple as possible. But that doesn't mean there shouldn't be any exceptions. The bill as reported by the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight already has seven exceptions.

Why do we have those seven exceptions that are already in the bill if we want no exceptions?

We have those exceptions because the authors of the bill believe those purposes are important enough that bills on those subjects should not be delayed with an additional point of order.

I am saying that laws concerning the control of water pollution that could have a serious and adverse impact on human health should also be exempted from this special new requirement.

We are creating two different rules for legislation on this House floor. Some bills face tougher requirements than others.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment attempts to get legislation protecting human health into the easier category for floor consideration that has already been established by the Government Reform and Oversight Committee.

We must act like legislators—Members of the United States House of Representatives—and stand behind legislation that will protect the health of the American people. I urge my colleagues to support my amendment to exempt water pollution laws that protect human health from this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I represent Punxsatawney, PA, and in about 3 or 4 days we will be celebrating Groundhog Day. And some years ago there was a movie called Groundhog Day in which the same day was repeated over and over and over again.

Mr. Chairman, I would suggest there is an analogy here to what we have been doing in the Committee of the Whole, because a number of these amendments are in fact repetitive. We have dealt with at least one amendment having to do with the Clean Water Act and with its reauthorization, and that was earlier in our debate. There are at least eight more pending in that regard.

So, Mr. Chairman, I would call the attention of the Members, particularly on the other side of the aisle, to a statement by President Clinton made to the Governors just within the last 2 or 3 days in which he said,

We are strongly supporting the move to get unfunded mandates legislation passed in the Congress, and we are encouraged by the work that was done in the United States Senate where, as I remember, the bill passed 86 to 10. After a really open and honest discussion of all appropriate amendments, the legislation is now moving through the House.

I am not sure that he was aware how slowly it was moving. I think there are about 100 amendments pending, he said, but I think they will move through it in a fairly expeditious way, just as the Senate did.

So I would urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to heed the suggestion of their President to move this bill as expeditiously as possible. This, again, is an amendment that deals with a very, very important piece of legislation. It deals with a very important issue. The only question is, does it rise to any higher level of concern than all of the other exemptions that we have been considering.

Again, this is not a retrospective look. It is only prospective. It will not affect anything that is presently on the books, nor should it. But it does say that if we are going to enact additional requirements under the Clean Water Act, then we should at least consider the cost to those who are going to be imposed upon.

Mr. Chairman, I would plead with the Members to defeat this amendment and recognize that the Governors, the county commissioners, all of our State and local officials are crying out for relief from unfunded mandates.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I yield 45 seconds to the gentlewoman from Oregon [Ms. FURSE].

Ms. FURSE. Mr. Chairman, I want to talk a little bit about the Portland metropolitan area which has a problem with combined sewer overflows and the cost of clean-up is estimated at $1 billion. But Portland area residents, the State and the city governments are not urging us to roll back the Clean Water Act. In contrast to what heard today, public opinion poll after public opinion poll ranks clean water as the top priority for the northwest.

The answer does not lie in forsaking fundamental values. Instead we must update and reprioritize our budget priorities.

We should spend, in my opinion, less on cold war weapons and more on domestic priorities.

I support the Borski amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, under this bill the Congress will still have the authority to pass the legislation that the gentleman from Pennsylvania wants. We still have that authority. We have not given that up at all. We will simply have the cost in front of us before we move ahead and, before we say to our localities that we are going to pass the bill to them and shift the tax burden from the progressive income tax to local property taxes, we are going to understand what that bill is. Before we say that this amendment is more important than local education projects, than local police protection, we are going to have a cost done so that this body can appropriately consider it.

We can still address the clean water that the gentleman is concerned about. This does not affect any existing mandate whatsoever. I think that needs to be clarified. We still have that flexibility, but we are going to know the cost first.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I yield 45 seconds to the distinguished gentleman from California [Mr. MINETA], who is wearing the pride of the Super Bowl victors on his shirt. I would remind the gentleman that the Eagles defeated the 49ers 40 to 8.

(Mr. MINETA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MINETA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Borski amendment. This amendment assures that we do not cripple our future efforts at protecting the basic rights of our constituents.

As we learned so dramatically in Milwaukee, when over 100 individuals died because of waterborne bacteria, pollutants in our water can have serious adverse health effects. If we support the Borski amendment, we will be able to respond to new and serious threats to human health.

If we do not adopt this amendment, government will be far less able to respond and will be far slower in responding to new and serious waterborne threats to human health.

To me, this is what the amendment is all about. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to support the Borski amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to rise in support of Mr. BORSKI's amendment.

The Borski amendment assures that we do not cripple our future efforts at protecting the basic health rights of our constituents. As we learned so dramatically in Milwaukee when over 100 individuals died because of waterborne bacteria, pollutants in our water can have serious adverse health effects.

I congratulate my colleague for having the foresight to be willing to assure our ability to continue to protect our constituents from water pollution which may cause significant and serious health problems.

Both this floor and the Transportation Committee have been the scene of spirited debate over what is the proper level of protection of the environment. Although we Members may differ on how we answer that question, I do not believe that we have ever differed on the need to preserve basic human health from the most serious adverse effects of pollution.

The protection of human health should not be considered an unfunded mandate. In fact, one of the primary responsibilities of State and local government is to assure the protection of the health of their citizens. Fortunately, in the area of clean water, Congress has been funding the efforts of State and local governments in protecting citizens from pollution. Over $60 billion has been provided to date and I fully expect funding to continue.

However, we should not be so foolish to believe that State and local governments would not take steps to protect human health but for the requirements of the Clean Water Act. For example, 100 years ago Chicago took steps as bold as to reverse the flow of the Chicago River in support of public health.

The world we live in is more complex than that which existed in the last century, we do not know what the next century will bring. If we support the Borski amendment, we will be able to respond to new and serious threats to human health. If we do not adopt this amendment, government will be far less able to respond, and will be far slower in responding, to new and serious waterborne threats to human health. That is what this amendment is all about.

I urge my colleagues to support the Borski amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to who has the right to close.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] has the right to close.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I yield 45 seconds to the distinguished gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER].

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased the gentleman did not reference the Redskins' performance this year, but we are coming back.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania providing this legislation not apply to regulations protecting U.S. waters and pollutants of toxic waste.

Day after day after day, like groundhog day in that movie, we are having the Chesapeake Bay polluted, one of the greatest estuaries of this world. We need to stop it. The Federal Government has taken substantial steps toward that end.

I think it is appropriate to say in this instance, because of the critical nature of the problem that we confront with respect to the pollution of the Chesapeake Bay and other waterways of this Nation, that this is not the type of unfunded mandate, that, in fact, yes, it is costly to clean up our waste, but it is not so costly that the cost downstream and in the long run is not far greater.

Mr. Chairman, I think that is what the gentleman's amendment speaks to, and I rise in its support.

Mr. Chairman, do we need to curb the ease by which we pass unfunded mandates on to State and local governments? Yes we do.

However, it is important to recognize that there are many present mandates which the Federal Government imposes and which my constituents would not want abolished.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania providing that this legislation not apply to regulations protecting U.S. waters from pollutants and toxic waste.

The transformation of the Chesapeake Bay from its dismal state a decade ago into the more healthy estuary in the world is a perfect example of what the shortsighted impact of this legislation could be. We cannot move backward on the Chesapeake Bay.

We must guarantee that individual localities not be able to dump waste into waters and destroy the very environment that is enjoyed by people across the entire mid-Atlantic region and whose health our coastal economics depend upon.

It is imperative that the future impact of H.R. 5 not jeopardize the successes of several environmental, safety, and health standards that the American people depend upon and support.

Unfunded mandate legislation cannot and should not result in unintended consequences.

Mr. Chairman, we have a Contract With America. It is the contract that we have made together to provide protections and safeguards for our environment, our workers, and our health.

I agree with my colleagues who support this measure that we must more carefully judge the requirements we impose. However, in the rush to legislate we must ensure that we are not rushing to abdicate important protections that the American people want and expect.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I would ask if I have any time remaining.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BORSKI] has 15 seconds remaining.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the remainder of my time.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment attempts to get legislation protecting human health in an easier category for floor consideration than has already been established by the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

I urge my colleagues to support my amendment to exempt water pollution laws to protect human health from this bill.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. SCHIFF], chairman of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. SCHIFF] is recognized for 1½ minutes.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I have here a copy of a water bill and sewer bill from the city of Albuquerque from this month that was sent to a constituent. For his sewer charge, it shows: base charge, $13.08; unfunded Federal mandate to remove ammonia, $12.15. In other words, a Federal requirement to remove one product from the sewer system is equal in cost, to the residents I represent, to their whole base charge for all of the other costs of running the sewer system.

Is it possible, Mr. Chairman, that in this or in other instances, upon a careful analysis, costs like this must be borne? I think the possibility certainly exists. I do agree with the other side, of course, on the importance of cleaning up our water, but who has measured this? Who has measured from the Federal Government whether in fact doubling the cost of the sewer rates to the residents of Albuquerque is, in fact, what is needed to keep this water at an appropriate level of toxic pollution control?

Mr. Chairman, my point is that this bill would require that kind of accounting, that kind of accountability, and that is why the gentleman's amendment should be rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. VOLKMER TO THE AMENDMENTS EN BLOC OFFERED BY MR. BORSKI

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendments.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. CLAY

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments, amendment No. 39 and amendment No. 41.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. CLAY: At the end of paragraph (6) of section 4 strike "or", at the end of paragraph (7) strike the period and insert "; or", and add after paragraph (7) the following:

(8) is necessary to protect children from hunger or homelessness.

In section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period and insert "; or", at the end of paragraph (7), and add after paragraph (7) the following:

(8) is necessary to protect children from hunger or homelessness.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendments be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY].

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to offer these amendments along with the gentleman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I am very proud today to offer this amendment today with my good friend and colleague from Missouri [Mr. CLAY].

As chairman of Houston's task force on homelessness, for many years I have worked on the issues of hunger and homelessness in the State of Texas. In my home city of Houston, we have over 10,000 homeless and many thousands of families who are perhaps only one paycheck away from losing their homes.

On any given night in this country, even though we have a roof over our head, we will find 600,000 people are homeless in the United States. Ne'er-do-wells? I do not think so. People who want a chance or an opportunity, people who have been one paycheck away from maintaining their home and are now out on the street; these people have children. It is estimated that 10 times that number have been homeless at some time during the past 5 years. Clearly homelessness is increasing, impacting more and more lives.

I think it is important for this body to acknowledge that homelessness in the United States has reached epidemic proportions. We must, as Members of Congress and as private citizens, take time to look beyond our own experience so that we may fully understand the magnitude of the crisis.

The majority in this new Congress have said the community at large can handle this problem of homelessness. Oh, I truly appreciate charitable institutions in my district, but we all must break the cycle of homelessness. The Children's Defense Fund estimates over 5 million children go hungry at some point during the month, and over 6 million children live in severely inadequate housing. Clearly a child's nutritional, educational, and overall general health needs are all compromised when subjected to a life that shuffles them from shelter to shelter.

By ignoring the need for greater Federal involvement, we are placing more children at risk for abuse and neglect. The time is now, and I am very grateful to have joined with the gentleman from Missouri in order to effect a bipartisan effort in fashioning a program to address the issue of child hunger and homelessness that should not be eliminated through unfunded mandates.

Although I support abolishing unfunded mandates, I think we must protect our children. I urge my colleagues to seriously consider the ramifications this legislation will have on homeless children and their families.

Realize that literally 10,000 homeless are in the city of Houston; 1,500 of them are children; 150,000 are marginally homeless, doubling up, living with families, friends, and relatives; 30,000 are children; 250,000 are at risk of becoming homeless, living paycheck to paycheck. Any layoff, downsizing, or illness will affect them, and throw a family into a homeless condition. Without safeguards such as our amendment, we put at risk every program that is designed to help the homeless and near homeless to self-sufficiency. Remember, what we are looking forward to is unfunded mandates not to burden our cities, counties, and towns. Then we need to look forward to assisting those who are seeking independence to go from dependence in order to make sure we avoid the homeless cycle.

Mr. Chairman, I am proud to offer this amendment today with my friend and colleague from Missouri, Mr. CLAY. As chairman of Houston's task force on homelessness, for many years I have worked on the issues of hunger and homelessness in the State of Texas. In my home city of Houston, we have over 10,000 homeless and many thousands of families who are perhaps only one paycheck away from losing their homes.

On any given night, as many as 600,000 people are homeless in the United States. It is also estimated that 10 times that number have been homeless at some time during the past 5 years. Clearly, homelessness is increasingly impacting more and more lives. For this Congress to acknowledge that homelessness in the United States has reached epidemic proportions is only a small step in the right direction. We must, as Members of Congress and as private citizens, take time to look beyond our own experiences so that we may fully understand the magnitude of their crisis.

The majority in this new Congress has said that the community at large can handle the problem of homelessness. I respectfully disagree with my colleagues on the other side of the aisle. As the chairperson of the task force on homelessness for the city of Houston, I have learned first hand that the Federal Government must play a greater role in breaking the cycle of poverty and homelessness. I have great admiration for the charitable institutions of my district. However, even with the good-heartedness of local communities, our cities cannot and should not be expected to respond to a problem of this magnitude.

More importantly, no longer can we overlook the fact that far too many children are affected by hunger and homelessness. The Children's Defense Fund estimates that over 5 million children go hungry at some point during the month, and over 6 million children live in severely inadequate housing. Clearly, a child's nutritional, educational, and overall general health needs are all compromised when subjected to a life that shuffles them from shelter to shelter. By ignoring the need for greater Federal involvement, we are placing more children at risk of abuse and neglect.

The time is now—we must work together in a bipartisan fashion in addressing the issue of child hunger and homelessness. We must work together to assist our communities in their efforts. We must work to provide a coordinated effort to create a system that will help move homeless people from the street, to transitional support, and then to permanent housing.

I urge my colleagues to seriously consider the ramifications that this legislation will have on homeless children and their families. Without safeguards such as our amendment, we put at risk every program that is designed to help the homeless and near homeless to self-sufficiency.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on this important issue and strongly urge their support for this amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendments for the same reasons that I opposed the amendment by the gentleman from Vermont. [Mr. SANDERS], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KANJORSKI], and the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY], all of which dealt with some phase of children's concern.

So I must oppose the amendments.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD].

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Chairman, on any given night there are 9,000 hungry and homeless children in California.

I rise in strong support of the Jackson-Lee/Clay amendments.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. CLAY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to offer this amendment along with the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE]. Sponsors of the unfunded mandates bill wisely decided that certain laws and regulations are too vital to the national interest to be subjected to the cost-benefit and procedural hurdles mandated under this bill. The exclusions already in section 4 acknowledge that we should not engaged in cost-benefit analysis and procedural fights when it comes to civil rights, national emergencies, or international treaties.

Well I think America's children deserve the same protection from the cost-benefit analysis that lies at the heart of this bill. The Federal Government has the responsibility to ensure that the States protect America's children from malnutrition and homelessness. A point of order should not stand in the way of Federal laws that protect our children. America's children are at least as important as international treaties.

One out of four children in this country live in poverty. Millions of children go to bed at night hungry. Too many children have no home to go to. The problems generated by the way this society treats children cross State lines; there are national problems that require national solutions, as set forth in Federal laws. There are housing problems that demand Federal solutions. When we consider laws designed to protect our children from these harms, let us not subject those laws to the obstacles created by this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED MS. JACKSON-LEE TO THE AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. CLAY

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

NOT VOTING—6

Brown (CA)	Hefner	Neal
Hastert	Houghton	Weldon (PA)

□ 1954

So the amendments were rejected. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to section 4?

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. CLAY

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments, numbered 40 and 42, and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. CLAY: At the end of paragraph (6) of section 4 strike "or", at the end of paragraph (7) strike the period and insert "; or", and add after paragraph (7) the following:

(8) is necessary to protect the health and safety of those, including children and discouraged workers, who, through no fault of their own, receive welfare assistance.

In section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period and insert "; or", at the end of paragraph (7), and add after paragraph (7) the following:

(8) is necessary to protect the health and safety of those, including children and discouraged workers, who, through no fault of their own, receive welfare assistance.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY] that the amendments numbered 40 and 42 be considered en bloc?

There was no objection. The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment adds a much needed exemption to this bill. It provides that this act shall not apply to Federal laws or regulations that protect the health and welfare of children, discouraged workers, and others, who, through no fault of their own, need welfare assistance.

We as a nation have a duty to ensure that no one is left without the means to provide for the basic necessities of life. In a society as wealthy as ours, we have a moral responsibility to lend aid to the most vulnerable members of our society, including those who cannot find decent work for decent pay.

Our Nation's unemployment rate is approximately 5½ percent, and while that rate signifies better times for many, it still leaves almost 8 million unemployed. Hidden from that number are half a million others who no longer are counted as unemployed because they have given up hope of finding gainful employment. They have become discouraged workers.

There are tens of millions of others, including children, the aged, and the infirm, who cannot work. They don't have organized lobbyists pressing their case before Congress. They don't have the resources to contribute to political campaigns. And, too often, when they are not being ignored and forgotten, they are being blamed for circumstances which are as much of our making as their own. The best way to protect these vulnerable members of our society from the onerous and cost-benefit provisions under this bill is to shield them from these provisions.

I disagree with those who claim that this welfare crisis is the fault of the poor. We have a minimum wage today that does not support a family of three above the poverty line. We have a fiscal policy that encourages unemployment to curb inflation. We have a trade policy that encourages the exporting of low skilled jobs.

Solving this crisis is the greatest challenge we face today.

Without my amendment, H.R. 5 will discourage the Congress from meeting its moral and constitutional responsibilities to "provide for the general welfare" of the poor, the infirm, and the helpless. While the Federal Government clearly has a large role in solving the welfare crisis, State and local governments have significant responsibilities as well. We, as elected Representatives to the national Government, are ultimately responsible for ensuring that governments at all levels meet their responsibilities to the weak and the poor.

Hubert Humphrey said "The moral test of government is how it treats those in the dawn of life—the children; those in the twilight of life—the old; those in the shadow of life—the sick and the handicapped." To adopt H.R. 5 without this amendment is to turn our backs on our highest responsibility.

Mr. Chairman, I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I must oppose this amendment for the reasons that have been repeated here so often this evening and over the last 5 days.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. PORTMAN].

□ 2000

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Chairman, it will not come as a surprise that I rise again to oppose yet another amendment excluding whole areas of the law from the very reasonable cost analysis provided in the legislation, H.R. 5.

It might be of interest to know this is the eighth amendment to section 4 relating to health, the fifth amendment relating to safety, and the seventh amendment relating to child welfare.

The reason these amendments went down, they were all voted down with solid bipartisan votes, the last one was 277 to 155, is that the bill before us in no way precludes Congress from acting responsibly in these areas to protect the very important national interests that are the subject of these amendments.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I have no further requests for time, Mr. Chairman. One of the reasons that those amendments have been going down is precisely what I said in my remarks, that the people that we are attempting to protect here do not have the benefit of lobbyists and other organizational protections on their side. It does not have to be that it is a bipartisan effort that is defeating this. It is a lack of compassion, in my opinion, on the part of some who do not realize the suffering of the people that we are trying to exempt.

Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Just in closing, I would say that I think the reason that those amendments have gone down is not for the reason the gentleman stated but because the majority of this body recognized that all of the interest groups that have been the subject of these amendments are not going to be affected by this law adversely.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY]

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

□ 2017

Mr. WISE changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

So the amendments were rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to section 4?

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Chairman, I was unavoidably detained during rollcall No. 64. Had I been present I would have voted "aye."

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. CLAY

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments which are numbered 43 and 44, and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

Mr. VOLKMER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, and I do not plan to object, but I rise to ask the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY] to explain briefly why he is wishing to put these amendments en bloc, together.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. VOLKMER. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, I would just say this is a very important amendment that would exempt the schoolchildren of this Nation, some 44,000 of them who are suffering from or endangered by asbestos.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, the gentleman has two amendments to two sections or titles of the bill.

□ 2020

Mr. CLAY. Yes, one of them is purely a technical amendment.

Mr. VOLKMER. But if the gentleman really wanted to delay this bill, he could not offer to put them together and could offer them separately as the bill progresses as other Members could have done who have put their amendments together; is that correct?

Mr. CLAY. That is correct. One of the reasons I might say to the gentleman that it is necessary for us to offer these amendments on the floor is that individuals who were going to offer them in committee were precluded from offering those amendments. There were no public hearings on these and, as I understand, only one public witness was permitted to testify. That is why we are going through the procedure that we are going through, and Members of Congress who want to be heard on important issues like this have to and are forced to rely on these kinds of procedures.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, with that understanding, and with the clear understanding that the gentleman by offering these amendments en bloc is not trying to delay the progress of this bill, I withdraw my reservation.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. CLAY: At the end of paragraph (6) of section 4 strike "or", at the end of paragraph (7) strike the period and insert "; or", and add after paragraph (7) the following: (8) is necessary to protect school children from exposure to dangerous conditions in schools, including exposure to asbestos and lead paint.

In section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period and insert "; or", at the end of paragraph (7), and add after paragraph (7) the following: (8) is necessary to protect school children from exposure to dangerous conditions in schools, including exposure to asbestos and lead paint.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and a Member opposed, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY].

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. CLAY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, this amendment exempts from the requirements of the unfunded mandates bill protections for children from exposure to environmental hazards in school.

We have heard an awful lot these past few days about concerns Members have about the future and especially about the future of our young people. We have been told that we have to reduce the deficit because if we do not, our children and grandchildren will bear a terrible price.

I think this concern about our young and their future is legitimate. The amendment I offer goes right to the heart of that concern.

This amendment is a children's protection amendment. It is based on the simplest of objectives, namely that our children within the classroom deserve the safest possible environment in which to learn. That means clean water to drink, clean air to breathe. It means not being exposed to asbestos, lead and radon. Exposure to these contaminants is making our children sick from one end of this Nation to the other. As many as 15 million children attend more than 44,000 schools containing friable asbestos. Children who are exposed to asbestos on a daily basis are up to 10 times more likely to develop lung cancer and other diseases than an adult.

The terrible effects that lead exposure has on children have been well-documented. They are much more vulnerable to lead exposure than adults and lead-related losses of intellectual capacity is irreversible. Lead exposure can damage the brain and the central nervous system. It is estimated, Mr. Chairman, that 3 million children, one out of every six, have significant blood lead levels.

The Centers for Disease Control found that 67 percent of the children tested in Oakland schools were lead poisoned. Sixty percent of low-income children tested in Chicago were lead-poisoned. In Philadelphia, 29 percent of the children tested at inner-city hospital emergency rooms had blood levels that were 50 percent above the lead poisoning threshold. Six Midwestern States alone have close to 200,000 children who suffer from lead poisoning.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, my amendment addresses the issue of radon. This is a radioactive gas which has been linked to numerous lung cancer deaths. Young people are more susceptible than adults to the risks of cancer caused by radon, and the sad reality is that the source of much of this radon is in the public schools. Half of the schools recently surveyed by the EPA contained radon that exceeded acceptable levels.

Mr. Chairman, if that notorious butcher of Baghdad, Saddam Hussein, invaded our country and contaminated our schools with poisonous levels of lead, asbestos and radon, we would be up in arms. It is no less of a threat because it is happening unintentionally.

All unfunded mandates are not inherently bad. Some of them are worth standing up and fighting for. To me an unfunded mandate that rids our schools of poison is worth that fight.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to stand up for children and our future and support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in opposition to this amendment as well. But I want to first of all express my appreciation to the other side and the gentleman for the expeditious way in which we handled the previous amendment without an amendment to the amendment and also to the gentleman for offering his amendments en bloc. I think that is very helpful.

But again I would oppose the amendment because of the reasons previously stated.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague from Pennsylvania for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, first of all by defeating this amendment, we do not affect in any way the current law and current regulations affecting lead paint or asbestos. Those regulations, those rules, stay intact. This amendment does not even prohibit this House or this Congress from affecting future mandates and future laws governing these areas as well. We maintain that flexibility. All we do is we get those costs in front of us before we act, so that we can understand what the true costs of the regulations are going to be before we send the bills down to our State and local governments who are going to have to carry them out.

Let me give a couple of examples of how sometimes the best intentions from this body end up having the opposite effect that we intend by the time they filter down to the State and local governments who we are supposedly trying to work with and help.

On asbestos removal we had a project over in my county and it cost the county $7 million in renovations of an old school because of the asbestos removal, that we had originally hoped to put up as a senior citizens activity center and a home for the elderly. But the costs became very, very high in stretching that out. In one case we were able to build the center. In the other we had to abandon our plans to build housing for seniors. We could not do it because the costs were so great that had been sent down to us.

Asbestos removal, unleaded paint, we will have the flexibility under this law to move ahead, but the unintended effects have been that we have put untold costs on localities, we have made construction of homeless shelters, senior housing, community centers too expensive in many cases because of these removal costs that we have put onto the localities. So in an adverse and unintended way, instead of protecting our children, it hampers local and State governments' ability to provide these services.

I have been in local government for 15 years, Mr. Chairman. This sounds great but I can tell you it holds so many unintended consequences that have the adverse effects that work contrary to how we want them to by the time it gets down to local governments.

I think this is an amendment that should be defeated.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is important. Without the kind of protection that this amendment offers, while we will be debating points of order under the legislation, children will continue to be exposed to life-threatening conditions. Under the language of this bill, we will not be able to reauthorize legislation to protect the children if we do not pass this kind of legislation without going through the dilatory kinds of things that are required and the time-consuming estimation of costs. We will not be able to reauthorize those protections that we now have in the law for children who are exposed to these kinds of contaminants.

I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CLAY. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, in listening to the gentleman and the gentleman on the other side, I come to a conclusion that concerns me a great deal. That is, under the provisions of the bill which is said that if a reauthorization for one of these matters comes up and it costs a certain amount, that it is very likely that those people who are now voting against children and the handicapped and everybody else, that they probably would not vote in the future for those same people, and as a result you would not see anything. Is that your concern?

Mr. CLAY. I agree; that is my concern.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY] has expired.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. COBURN].

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment for the very clear reason that had this bill been in fact in force, the problems with asbestos removal as we know today would not be there. We have in fact come close to $100 billion in the costs associated with asbestos removal.

There are some very significant studies now coming forth in the medical community that would say that we have in fact increased the risks to the children through our removal programs with asbestos rather than decreased their risks. As a physician, my concern is for the children in the schools and the results of that.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLAY].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Messrs. MOLLOHAN, BALDACCI, and OLVER changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

So the amendments were rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to section 4?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE: In section 4, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph:

(8) pertains to Medicaid.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes in opposition.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment because for those who are the least among us, they have little voice sometimes in the halls of Congress. The Medicaid program fulfills a promise to provide much needed health services to over 20 million Americans. This is a promise that must be honored. Without question, we must reduce waste and inefficiency in this program. I support that. I want efficiency and no waste. But I fear that as we visit this legitimate concern this Congress will use a tactic of not fully funding the program as an excuse to extremely limit its scope and potential. In effect, such tactics could even serve to paralyze the program under the current unfunded mandates legislation.

Medicaid serves the crucial health needs of children, disabled adults, families and the elderly, all of whom may be indigent. I do not expect this to be a popular issue, yet it is one that cannot be ignored.

Many State Governors have voiced dissatisfaction with the Medicaid program. I want to work with them to make it better. I think their dissatisfaction stems from the frustration surrounding the inability to control the costs of health care and the continued increase in the number of people who are not covered by insurance.

What I fear though, is the notion that Medicaid could crumble under the tide of programs that are unable to be fully funded. The success of this program is directly tied to the idea of cost sharing between the Federal Government, States and localities. We cannot let the indigent down. It is not an unrealistic idea to expect the States to financially contribute to a program which serves the health needs of its citizens.

The States should realize that Medicaid is an investment into the value of the health of its people and Medicaid helps to serve the indigent. Healthier citizens translate into to more hours worked on the job, if able, more income generated and higher productivity rate.

In sum, everyone in the State becomes better served when the health of its residents, including the indigent, becomes a priority.

Let us today make the health of America's economically disadvantaged a national priority and vote in favor of the Jackson-Lee amendment to H.R. 5.

Mr. Chairman, the Medicaid program fulfills a promise to provide much needed services to over 20 million Americans. This is a promise that must be honored. rounding the inability to control the costs of health care and the continual increase in the number of people who are not covered by insurance. I am not unsympathetic to their frustrations. What I fear, though, is the notion that Medicaid could crumble under the tide of programs that are unable to be fully funded.

The success of this program is directly tied to the idea of cost-sharing between the Federal Government and the States and localities. It is not an unrealistic idea to expect the States to financially contribute to a program which serves the needs of its citizens. The States should realize that Medicare is an investment into the value of the health of its people. Healthier citizens translates into more hours worked on the job, more income generated, and higher productivity rates. In sum, everyone in the State becomes better served when the health of its residents becomes a priority.

Let us today make the health of America's economically disadvantaged a national priority and vote in favor of the Jackson-Lee amendment to H.R. 5.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I must rise in opposition to the gentlewoman's amendment. This is a sweeping amendment which would exempt all of Medicaid from any future consideration of what the costs might be.

But again I would stress it is not in any sense retroactive, will not affect Medicare or Medicaid as it exists today.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to a Member who has had a great many dealings with this matter, the gentleman and former governor from Delaware, Mr. CASTLE.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, I have listened carefully to the argument of the gentlewoman from Texas. She makes, I think, some valid points. But the bottom line is that of all the unfunded mandates that probably are a source of a problem for the governors of the various States and some local officials, Medicaid probably tops the list. As the gentlewoman has stated so clearly, there is a great deal of dissatisfaction with this program as it comes from Washington. There is huge inflexibility in the Medicaid program as you deal with the indigent, long-term care. There are a lot of problems that need to be addressed, that we are asked to address more than possibly could be. This is a shared program with the States depending on the wealth of the States. It is a budget breaker.

There is tremendous inflation built into Medicaid to begin with, probably more than any other Federal program that exists out there. In addition to that, you add the new coverage to it and you mandate it back to the States, and governors trying to put together their budgets have one after another gone broke dealing with this particular issue. The medical needs in particular differ by States. Some States need to take care of children because they are not doing a very good job. Other States have particular procedures they are concerned about. The States may be adjusting some of these procedures by a charity or some other way, and yet the Federal Government comes along and mandates that this is "what you must do." It adds to the cost unnecessarily. It is very much like the Safe Drinking Water Act and others which are getting to the point beyond the reasonable in the requests that we are making back to the States.

I think it also important to assert the arguments made all along here on the other amendments which we have heard. We are not going back and undoing anything at this point. In time of real need we could waive a point of order and enact measures if indeed other Medicaid procedures are found which are not yet discovered. But this is another unfunded mandate, this is a number one unfunded mandate out there, and this is probably the one that has triggered this bill as much as anything else. While we need to continue to work together as the gentlewoman from Texas has stated, the States and the Federal Government to provide medical care, unfunded mandates are not the answer.

I would urge defeat of this amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 45 seconds to the gentleman from California [Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD].

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding this time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Jackson-Lee amendment. Medicaid is the Nation's safety net for our children and families throughout this country. One-half of all Medicaid recipients are children and three-fourths of Medicaid recipients are mothers of children who depend on Medicaid for important health services such as prenatal care.

Mr. Chairman, in 1994, Medicaid helped meet the medical care needs of an estimated 34 million men, women, and children in this country. Protecting Medicaid is critical to low-income people in this country because without it they would be unable to receive necessary and critical health care.

Mr. Chairman, I ask my colleagues to support the Jackson-Lee amendment.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I simply ask the question of my colleagues whether or not they have gone out into the nursing homes of this country and seen the elderly indigent not being able to represent themselves, needing Medicaid and Medicare in particular, and finding the frustration when some, without any family support, for the slightest of reasons have been denied their Medicaid benefits.

Mr. Chairman, I respect the gentleman from Delaware [Mr. CASTLE] and appreciate that sometimes we must fix a broken system. I welcome that. But I clearly think that as the States begin to address this issue of Medicaid they must look into the nursing homes of this Nation and look at the indigent elderly who have no one to speak on their behalf but this Congress who can protect a Medicaid system that can be fixed. I support fixing the Medicaid system, but I am clearly concerned about the potential of not having a system to protect the indigent elderly and the children in need, the indigent poor, as health care is something we have advocated in this Congress and yet today we are asking for those individuals to be abandoned.

Look into the Nation's nursing homes, look at the elderly indigent; they cannot speak for themselves. They need our support. They need the support of Medicaid for their health needs. I ask my colleagues to support the Jackson-Lee amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] has the right to close. If the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE] has further speakers, she should yield at this time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, again I would offer to say that Medicaid serves now some 20 million Americans. The wide range of those constituents and those individuals cross all States in this country, and in particular it hits those who are least able to speak for themselves, the children and the elderly.

Mr. Chairman, I ask for support of this amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I think we all agree that the Medicaid system is broken and certainly needs fixing. I think we are all committed to doing that. That is going to happen, I think, because we have general recognition that there are egregious problems with the Medicaid system.

But 20 million people will continue to be served when this bill passes. We are not in any way affecting existing law with respect to Medicaid.

Mr. Chairman, I would again urge a no vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

□ 2116

Mr. MOLLOHAN changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to section 4?

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. BECERRA

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments, numbered 28 and 29, and I ask unanimous consent to have the two amendments considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. BECERRA: At the end of paragraph (6) of section 4 strike "or", at the end of paragraph (7) strike the period and insert "; or", and add after paragraph (7) the following: (8) is necessary to protect children from exploitation in the workplace.

In section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period and insert "; or" at the end of paragraph (7), and add after paragraph (7) the following:

(8) is necessary to protect children from exploitation in the workplace.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA] that the amendments be considered en bloc?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA] is recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] is recognized for 5 minutes in opposition.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, we have been debating for quite some time amendments that would try to protect children from all sorts of calamity that may result from this unfunded mandate legislation unless we exempt certain laws and regulations from this particular bill's enforcement.

My amendments merely do the following: They would exempt laws that we currently have on our books that are there to protect our children who work right now. They are there to protect our labor laws that protect children from aggressive employers who would work them beyond the 8 hours. It is to protect them against employers who would have them working under conditions that would amount to what many would consider slave conditions. It is an effort to keep us from going back to the bad old days when we saw children doing the work of adults, not going to school, not having an opportunity to learn, and ultimately not being productive members of society once they became adults.

This is an effort to make sure that in passing reasonable unfunded mandates legislation, that we do protect our children from enforcement of a law that I do not believe has the intention of denying children basic rights of protection. That unattended consequence of denying protections to our children in the workplace is something that we must fear in this legislation because as of now it does not provide those protections. So I would urge Members to consider this amendment closely and ultimately vote for it.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I, again, rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment for the same reason, which is that this should not be exempt anymore than any of these others should be exempt from consideration of what costs would be involved.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute and 30 seconds to a prime cosponsor of this legislation, the gentleman from California [Mr. CONDIT].

Mr. CONDIT. Mr. Chairman, I just rise to hopefully once again add a little perspective to this debate in the quick 1-minute time I have here.

This amendment I oppose and all amendments that come on this floor to weaken this bill I want Members to know, I oppose, and I am encouraging my colleagues to oppose. Not because we are against this amendment or a lot of the amendments that have been offered in terms of their substance. We think they are good programs, and we ought to have an opportunity to look at those programs in a more lengthy and substantive way.

We can do that with this bill, by the way. This bill does not say we cannot do these things. It just simply says that we have to pay for them if we mandate the costs on local and state government.

Once again, this bill is prospective. It does not do anything to these past programs. Does not mean we cannot do these good programs. It just says that we have to take the responsibility and accountability to pay for them. So let us not weaken this bill. Let us keep this bill strong. And let us defeat these amendments.

I want to say, if Members look at the tally up here tonight, there is a bipartisan support in defeat of these amendments. We have 60 to 70 Democrats voting with my colleagues, the Republicans, in defeating these amendments. This is a bipartisan effort.

Let me tell Members, we need to be at the business of putting a stop to unfunded mandates. We do not need to send out of this House a weak version. We need to have a strong bill. We can still do the kinds of things we want to do, but we just need to take the accountability and responsibility for them.

Let me tell Members, let us bring this thing to a close.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from California [Ms. PELOSI].

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me and commend him for his leadership in bringing this very reasonable amendment to this legislation to the floor.

Indeed, the gentleman from California, [Mr. CONDIT] deserves a great deal of credit for his leadership in subjecting this legislation and the mandates, the unfunded mandates to the scrutiny which they are receiving by this House of Representatives.

And he has a chance for us to give him exactly what he wants, a stronger unfunded mandate bill. Stronger because it protects the rights of children. It makes children a first priority.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania, [Mr. CLINGER] in his remarks contended that he rose in opposition to this amendment "for the same reason as I have opposed all the others," the gentleman from Pennsylvania, [Mr. CLINGER] said, the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania. He said, it should not be exempt anymore, the children in the work place should not be exempt any more than any other amendment should be exempted.

I say children should be our first priority. Let me read Members what this amendment says. The amendment says, and I read from the bill so they see where it fits in, "this act shall not apply to any provision in a Federal statute or a proposed or final Federal regulation that is necessary to protect children from exploitation in the work place."

"That is necessary to protect children from exploitation in the work place."

This is not preferred, better, this or that, is necessary to protect children in the work place.

So, my colleagues, I urge support for the Becerra amendment, because exploitation of children in the work place is a real and present danger in our country. We, the United States of America, should be the leader on this issue. Indeed, the Governors themselves asked for Federal child labor protection laws. That is how they got on the books in the first place.

Child labor violations have been on the rise in our country each year. Work related injuries to children cause more than 100 deaths and 20,000 compensation claims. Children often skip school to work 12 hours a day as migrant farm workers or in sweatshops. Since 1983, there has been a 150 percent increase in reported child labor violations.

The unfunded mandate legislation takes away the mechanism for regulating and prohibiting these violations. The amendment of the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA] does indeed strengthen the legislation of the gentleman from California [Mr. CONDIT] the unfunded mandate bill. It does indeed improve it, because it says, no, when it is necessary, as the amendment says, to protect children from exploitation in the workplace, then we the Congress of the United States will not, will not prohibit that from happening.

In the course of this debate on unfunded mandates there has been a great deal of discussion about the impact on children. And really, it is just always great to hear the Members rise to their feet to protect children in this body. But this one should not even be a debate because this legislation calls for what is necessary. It has been requested originally by the Governors. It would improve the legislation.

I commend the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA] for offering it.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX].

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, all Members of this body, Republicans and Democrats alike, are concerned about the exploitation of children. Existing State and Federal laws provide protection and H.R. 5 will in no way abrogate those laws.

As a former prosecutor, I can tell my colleagues there are outstanding prevention programs like child lawyers, which address this issue, as well as those sponsored by the National DA's Association and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

We want to protect children not only from problems that could happen in the workplace or in schools but from mandating them into oblivion.

The H.R. 5 unfunded mandates bill will give State and local governments the kind of relief they deserve and under that bill we will know up front the costs of any new program, and then the Congress can agree to pay for them instead of passing the buck onto other governments.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] is recognized for 2½ minutes.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of any legislation that would prevent the exploitation of children. I also rise in support of the unfunded mandate bill and in opposition to this amendment. I rise in opposition to this amendment because it simply is not needed, because the concerns of the gentleman from California and the gentlewoman from California have been addressed.

This bill, the mandate bill, says very simply that there has to be an estimate of cost to the private sector and to the public sector. If there is not an estimate of cost, then a point of order can be raised.

If there is an estimate of cost, and it is over $100 million for the private sector and $50 million for the public sector, a point of order can be raised if no money is provided, but a simple majority can override the point of order. The same majority that is needed to pass the bill, the same simple majority, can also be the same simple majority that can override the point of order.

This amendment is not needed, Mr. Chairman, as were many of the amendments that preceded this. The concerns of the gentleman have been protected in this mandate bill.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

So the amendments were rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to section 4?

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. KANJORSKI

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment No. 78, which has been printed in the RECORD pursuant to clause 6, rule XXIII.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KANJORSKI: In section 4, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph: (8) pertains to Medicare.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KANJORSKI] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and a Member in opposition, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KANJORSKI].

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Chairman, in order to expedite the work of the House, I ask unanimous consent that it be considered en bloc with an identical amendment to section 301 of the bill which creates an identical section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The CHAIRMAN. Would the gentleman indicate which numbered amendment he refers to?

Mr. KANJORSKI. Seventy-eight.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair had reference to the other one.

Mr. KANJORSKI. I ask that this be considered as an identical amendment to the other action. In other words, I am trying to facilitate a single amendment to apply to all sections of the bill where appropriate.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the second amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KANJORSKI: In section 301, in the proposed section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" after the semicolon in paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following: (8) pertains to medicare.

Mr. KANJORSKI (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD, and that they be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this is an important amendment. It was brought up at committee but not brought to a vote because at committee we ran the first amendment which was exempting Social Security, and that amendment received a vote of 39 yeases and 3 noes, and as a result is part of this bill as it appears on the floor. And now what I would like to do is have Medicare exempted as Social Security is exempted from the implications of this bill.

I am particularly asking that because we all know that the Medicare fund is in difficulty. As the bill is presently constituted, if we are called upon to increase taxes to shore up the Medicare fund, this bill will say to the States and municipalities that this is an unfunded mandate.

If on the one hand the Congress does not provide the funds or override the point of order, the increase in funding would not apply to the States and municipal governments across this land and they would not have to contribute to the Medicare fund, and that additional taxation necessary to bring the Medicare fund up to its actuarial soundness would thereby fall on the private sector of our economy.

In order to see that that does not happen, and further in order to see that each individual State or municipality could not ask for judicial review to hold up the promulgation of the rules and regulations, I ask that we now exempt Medicare as we have exempted Social Security so this question cannot arise.

Mr. Chairman, I think we all know why we should exempt Medicare, and I can only assume that we will have opposition on the other side, as we have had to every amendment thus far on the floor.

I am not going to prolong this debate other than the fact that I am suggesting this: What it appears to me tonight, and we have heard several statements from the majority that we are being dilatory and taking up the time of this Chamber in what appears on our side to be legitimate debate, but as it appears as each amendment has been offered I do not think we have had the benefit of even one Member of the majority breaking, so it is very clear that 230 votes reside on the majority side of the House, and they will be able to accomplish all of the legislation they have intact.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, will my good friend yield on that point?

Mr. KANJORSKI. Surely; I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, I think it is necessary to point out that maybe 230 Republicans did vote the same, but a great number of Democrats voted with us, and that is worth mentioning here. I think it says something about the November 8 election.

Mr. KANJORSKI. I do not want to suggest it is only, but we do have a solid block that is clearly a majority. They are going to prevail.

Let me suggest maybe we can save a lot of frustration and time, and that is why do we not take the next 2 weeks on the entire Contract With America, bring it here on the floor. Why should we offer any amendments if they are not going to be considered as substantive and changing the legislation to perhaps meet the needs of the American people, but recognize the power of the majority, and it is all here and we have that majority, why do not we just run through the entire contract for America in 2 weeks, get that behind us, and then get to the substantive action?

I would like to suggest to my friends in the majority that they set aside, maybe beginning next week, a 10-day period, bring every piece of legislation that they have to the floor, let us put it up to a vote. And I would recommend to my friends on the Democratic side who may think they can make a substantial contribution that they can offer their substantial contribution as a matter of extension in the RECORD so the RECORD is quite clear where Members stand on these issues, but we move by this incredible piece of legislation that we are about to enact anyway, but probably are boring the devil out of people who may persevere and may be seeing this. But I think we are making a record that a deliberative body does not have to be deliberative once an election is held. If, in fact, we can come to the conclusion that the contract for America should be put into legislation, and passed as statute in its entirety, let us do it, let us save time. Maybe we can do it to all of the appropriations bills and maybe we can get out of here and adjourn by March 1 and let the Government operate.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, and I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. TAUZIN].

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Chairman, I thank my friend for yielding me this time. I too have read the Contract With America. I want to tell my friend on the other side, while it did talk about doing all of this in 100 days, it did not mention 100 nights; and this may take more than 100 nights if we continually debate the same issue over and over again and again.

The issue is not the merits of a particular Federal program. You can bring to this floor an amendment that tries to exempt the most meritorious of Federal mandates. That is not the issue. That is not the issue at all.

The issue is whether or not in the future this Congress decides to continue mandating programs upon local governments and State governments, whether we believe in those mandates or not enough to fund them. And if we do not believe in them enough to fund them, this legislation asked us to think seriously about whether we ought to mandate them in the first place. That is what this is all about.

The reason why my good friend GARY CONDIT rose to the floor tonight is, this has been his issue for some many years. And the reason why so many Democrats are rising in opposition to all of these amendments that address indeed good and meritorious programs is because to exempt these programs with the coverage of this act is to say in the future it is OK to continue mandating whatever program they think is important and necessary on State and local government and worry about somebody else raising the money to pay for them.

Let me tell you the taxpayers of America have had enough of this business of one government telling another government what to do and also instructing another government to raise their taxes to pay for it. That is wrong, it ought to end.

That is what this unfunded mandate bill will end and we ought to adopt it right tonight.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TAUZIN. If I have additional time, I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman from Louisiana has a good idea. Over the weekend I saw where the Governors unanimously agreed with the proposition we should bail out Mexico. I think since they think that is so great, my suggestion is let us not have the Congress take up that resolution, let us ask the 50 States to bail out Mexico.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. TAUZIN. My time has expired, but I will agree with the gentleman.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Mrs. JOHNSON].

(Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Chairman, there is not anything in this bill that will prevent us from passing unfunded mandate legislation. Nothing in this bill prevent us from passing laws that will mandate costs on States that we do not pay for. The only difference is that 51 percent of us will have to vote to do that. But this bill is about accountability.

It will force us to write good law that says specifically whose responsibility is what and who is going to pay. I, for one, am going to be perfectly proud to stand on this floor and force States to pay 10 percent of a child-support system; absolutely, we pay 90, they pay 10, and we all benefit. I will vote to force States to pay 25 percent of water-treatment plant costs; absolutely a good deal.

But I ought to be voting for that. I ought to be accountable for that, and I ought to go home and take the rap for that and argue with my folks about that being a square deal and a sound partnership.

Now, on Medicare, frankly, if the unfunded-mandate law had been in place, our Congress would not have been able to underfund Medicare payments to hospitals and physicians. Do you know who takes the rap because we do not fund Medicare? It is all of those little guys out there who pay their own health care premiums.

Their premiums in Connecticut are one-third higher because we underfund Medicaid and Medicare reimbursement rates. That is a disgrace.

All this bill will do is make us publicly accountable to say what is important, who is going to pay, and what portion we are going to take and what portion we are going to push on anybody else.

This is just honesty.

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. KANJORSKI. I think the gentlewoman from Connecticut has clearly said what my amendment will do. Suppose, if you will, when Medicare has to be refunded, the point or order is overcome here. It is directed that the proper Federal agency promulgate rules and regulations to increase Medicare. It will go on all employers across America, but under this bill, if the States or any municipality in America disagrees with the promulgation of that rule or regulation, they will have because they have judicial review the capacity to go in and tie up that portion of the increased funding for Medicare for years in court, and what that would necessitate is to make the fund sound, that the increase would have to go out to the private employers of America to make up for those 3 million employees.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Reclaiming my time, if we write legislation as sloppily as we have been writing legislation in the last few years, you bet they will be in court and they will tie it up forever. But if we write precise law, that clarifies responsibilities on both sides, if we do our job well, then it will be perfectly clear who is to pay for what, and I for one will be proud to stand on that territory.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KANJORSKI].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. MARTINEZ

Mr. MARTINEZ. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments, numbered 93 and 19, which have been printed in the RECORD, and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. MARTINEZ:

In section 4, before "This Act" insert "(a) IN GENERAL.—", and at the end of the section add the following:

(b) REQUIREMENTS UNDER OTHER LAWS.— This Act shall not apply to any requirement in effect on December 31, 1994, under—

(2) the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5601 et seq.).

In section 301, in the proposed section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, before "This part" insert "(a) IN GENERAL.—", and at the end of the section add the following:

(b) REQUIREMENTS UNDER OTHER LAWS.— This part shall not apply to any requirement in effect on December 31, 1994, under—

"(1) the older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3001 et seq.); or

"(2) the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5601 et seq.).

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California [Mr. MARTINEZ] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes in opposition.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California [Mr. MARTINEZ].

(Mr. MARTINEZ asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MARTINEZ. Mr. Chairman, I rise not because I have a great hope for success but because I have great hope. The people on this side have raised a lot of concerns about what we are doing here. I have many of the same concerns for the thing that we are doing and the way we are doing it, not necessarily for the concept.

Mr. Chairman, I am one who comes from local government and have had to suffer under unfunded mandates. Let me tell my colleagues the reality of serving at a local level?

When you have to deal with budgets, especially in California after the devastation of Proposition 13, when you have a constrained budget like that, you have a tendency to want to do those things that you feel are of the highest priorities and of the greatest necessity to your constituency, and so if there are some things that should be done and are mandated by the Federal Government because of the responsibility of doing it, we would rather not do it, and if it were not mandated, we would not do it.

That is one of the concerns that I have, and the way we pass this legislation has not taken into consideration those things that deal with particular issues concerning people's civil rights, concerning the well-being of those people. Those protections and medications, I believe, far outweigh—the benefit far outweighs the cost. The problem is in many of those instances they are humane, compassionate things and responsible things to do, but there is no way to measure the benefit other than if we have a sense of compassion.

My amendment would specifically exempt from this legislation and any current or future requirement of this law anything that would nullify the protections of the health, and safety and well-being of senior citizens under two specific acts: The Older Americans Act and juveniles under the Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention Act.

Mr. Chairman, today, out of concern for my bill, I called the legislative counsel's office and asked for an opinion. I raised the questions that I just raised. I raised the question about the provisions to establish new points of order in H.R. 5. He told me, "As H.R. 5 stands now, when the measure comes up for reauthorization," and these two acts that I am referring to do come up for reauthorizations and, at some point in time, have to be adjusted in those reauthorizations. When he said that they would come up, they would be subject to a point of order if there would be a net increase in duties mandated by the legislation, or there is a net decrease in funding, or assistance, or if in any way that bill is changed. "What it does in effect," he said, "is that if the bill is changed in any way in any one part of the bill, the whole bill is open to that same point of order."

Now I understand that we can, by a simple majority, waive the point of order. The problem is that we allow for a lot of mischief to be done if we do not exempt these two things.

In the case of nutrition programs for children and a nutrition program for the older Americans in the Older Americans Act, these things have to be adjusted on a regular basis because of the cost of living increases. If we were to then adjust it, we would subject the whole act to the point of order.

Additionally, I have some concern for how we are going to determine that benefit of that particular cost. Like I said before, it is very hard to determine a cost, a benefit—rather it is very hard to establish what the value of a benefit of a compassion to act is versus the cost of it.

Mr. Chairman, let me tell my colleagues about the Older Americans Act. Not too long ago we passed the Older Americans Act off this floor without one dissenting vote. That means that almost every Member—well, in fact it means every Member in this legislature who was here at the time voted in the affirmative for the Older Americans Act, improving the conditions of that act. In there, there was an ombudsman. I doubt very much that that ombudsman could stand the scrutiny of this bill as we are passing it today, and we know what that ombudsman was for. It was to protect the frail and the elderly in the Older Americans Act.

For many years the frail and elderly have been abused in nursing homes where they are there for long-term care. Just last Friday ABC, the program "20-20," contained a piece on the continuing abuse that has taken place in care facilities across the Nation, and over the past 30 years this body, in the past 30 years this body, has developed a significant array of programs and protections for senior citizens. I, for one, would hate to see those damaged in any way. In 1992 that Older Americans Act was signed into law by Bush, and, like I say, it went on without a dissenting vote.

I am equally concerned about, Mr. Chairman, the Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention Act. When I was chairman of the Human Resources Subcommittee we conducted a wide range of hearings all over the country. In fact we visited—at the request of the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. BARRETT], my colleague on the other side—Nebraska, and held a hearing there.

Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight because I, like others on this side, have real concerns about what we are doing here. H.R. 5 is a concept that I generally support.

Having served as a councilman, mayor, and in the State legislature, I know how Federal mandates that are not accompanied by Federal funding can wreak havoc on already strained local budgets.

But there are some protections that are mandated by the Federal Government that are necessary for the protection of specific classes of people, and I believe that the costs of such protections are far outweighed by the benefit.

Specifically, my amendment would exempt from this legislation any current or future requirement that nullifies any rule or law that protects the health, safety, or well being of senior citizens under the Older Americans Act, and juveniles, under the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act.

Mr. Chairman, under the Older Americans Act, there is a mandate that States establish a State ombudsman to handle complaints about treatment of the elderly who are in long-term care in nursing homes.

The ombudsman is there to ensure that complaints of abuse and negligence are handled.

In the past, we have seen that they have been shrugged off, and frail elderly have been subjected to inhuman treatment.

Just last Friday, the ABC program "20/20" contained a piece on the continuing problem of elder abuse taking place in some long-term care facilities.

Over the past 30 years, this body has developed a significant array of programs and protections for senior citizens.

In 1992, in reauthorizing the Older Americans Act, an act that passed this Congress on its first vote on the floor without a dissenting vote, Congress added the ombudsman requirements.

While I am sure that this particular section would meet the terms of the legislation under consideration today, how do you fix the value of a humane compassionate act.

Mr. Chairman, I am equally sure that changes in the reauthorization will open it to a point of order at which time we will see a demise of this program and others like it.

Yet, most Members of Congress who considered that issue found it worthy of support and the 1992 amendments were approved by a wide margin and signed by President Bush in September 1992.

Mr. Chairman, similarly, in reauthorizing the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act in the 102d Congress, the Human Resources Subcommittee conducted a wide ranging series of hearings around the country with respect to the needs of vulnerable children in the juvenile justice system, and especially those who are homeless or have run away from home.

In fact, we held a hearing in Nebraska at the request of my colleague, Mr. BARRETT, and we visited Boy's Town while we were in Nebraska * * * authorizing legislation were developed in consultation with community groups serving these vulnerable children, with local juvenile authorities with the Department of Justice's office of juvenile justice programs, with the National Association of Family Court Judges and others, knowledgeable in dealing with children at risk of delinquency or other problems.

Under the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, States and localities are mandated to provide 'sight and sound' separation for juveniles in the justice system.

Prior to the imposition of that mandate, young children who were in the juvenile justice system—regardless of the reason for being there—were housed in the same facilities as hardened adult criminals and, we were told, subjected to abuse by those adult prisoners.

Very often, the reason a child is in custody is for his or her protection, in cases such as child abuse, desertion, or abandonment by a parent or guardian.

Such protective incarceration must be in a safe environment, and the additional costs to ensure that are certainly worth the effort.

In addition, certain activities and programs are required to be put in place to assist vulnerable children.

Whether the cost of those programs is a significant burden on the State or locality, and the extent to which those costs are not being met by Federal dollars allocated to those programs, is not the issue.

The question is, "Do we and the States have a moral obligation and a responsibility for these children?"

If we do, should we mandate specific actions?

I say the answer is yes.

Further, I would point out that the great majority of the juvenile justice cases are non-Federal cases, and, therefore, the expense is a State expense, not a Federal responsibility.

I believe that the need for protecting these vulnerable children is so great, and the potential for inaction is so significant, that specific exception to the terms of the unfunded mandate legislation should be modified to specifically exclude mandates under this particular legislation.

I would also point out that these mandates were not as strict as some would have us believe—because States were allowed to request waivers for implementation, and where it was shown that the State had justification for a waiver, such as in Nebraska, those waivers were granted.

I urge all of my colleagues, as we rush to judgment on the issue of unfunded mandates, to consider whether the specifics of a mandate are not such that the benefit to the specific population on whose behalf the mandate exists do not outweigh the need for lessening the restrictions on local and State government or on private concerns.

These are people without an effective voice at the ballot box or in the budget committees of State or local legislative bodies.

These are people, who, without federally mandated protections, will suffer the most in our society.

I urge an aye vote and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I contacted the Legislative Council office regarding the concerns we raised about the provisions to establish new points of order, in H.R. 5.

As H.R. 5 stands now, when measures come up for reauthorization, they would be subject to a point of order if there is a net increase of duties mandated by the legislation, if there is a net decrease in the funding or assistance authorized for the legislation, and if they did not have the required CBO analysis. The legislation would not be subject to this point of order if it contains increased funding for the newly mandated duties. If the authorizing legislation passed with the increased funding, but the appropriations legislation did not contain the required funding, then the mandate would be reduced to match the provided funding.

In the case of children's nutrition programs and senior programs where we know there has to be increased funding to keep up with inflation, then if there is funding the act is subject to a point of order in fact. If any part of the legislation is adjusted in any way that does increase net duties or decrease net funding then the whole bill would be subject to a point of order, not just that particular section.

Additionally, there is some concern that the legislation that will be coming up for reauthorization has never been subject to a CBO cost analysis. This could be quite a time-consuming process for some of the major programs such as OAA.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MARTINEZ].

Mr. Chairman, the definition of Federal intergovernmental mandate contained in H.R. 5 would not apply to voluntary nontitlement programs. Both of the programs which the gentleman seeks to exempt here are voluntary, nontitlement programs.

Mr. Chairman, State participation in the Older Americans Act or in the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, which the gentleman seeks to exempt, is voluntary, and funding for this program is provided through annual appropriations which are made on a discretionary basis. The bill that we have before us, H.R. 5, clearly defines a Federal intergovernmental mandate to mean a provision that, and I am quoting, would impose an enforceable duty upon States, local governments or private governments except, except, a condition of Federal assistance or duty arising from participation on a voluntary Federal program.

Mr. Chairman, specifically these two programs fall within that definition. Therefore, H.R. 5 does not apply to the Older Americans Act or the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Act. The amendment is really rhetorical in nature, and I think it is misleading as to what the intent of this bill is.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING], chairman of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I, too, want to indicate that this amendment is not necessary because these programs are already exempt. I have worked with the gentleman who has offered the amendment this evening to perfect these programs and to enact these programs and certainly would not be here today trying to do anything to take away from the programs. They are voluntary on the basis of the State participation and, therefore, are not mandates as this legislation calls for.

I would not want the public to think that we are trying to do something in H.R. 5 that would erode protection for vulnerable populations. Therefore, I believe, and sincerely believe, that the amendment is unnecessary, because they are already protected.

Mr. MARTINEZ. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOODLING. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MARTINEZ. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, there are two particular things in each of those programs that I will remind the gentleman of that are unfunded mandates. One is a sight and sound separation of juveniles in adult lockups. Recently we passed that because there were young people being put in the same cell with and in the same area with, even at times people who had committed crimes against juveniles, and that is why they were in. Some of these juveniles were taken into custody because they were deserted by their parents, not necessarily because they did anything wrong.

The only thing I am telling the gentleman is there is an unfunded mandate within the juvenile justice delinquency program, and there is one within the Older Americans Act. The ombudsman was an unfunded mandate.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, our colloquy will make it clear they are not unfunded mandates and therefore will not be part of H.R. 5.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, in conclusion it is the opinion of this gentleman and the chairman of the committee that these would not be covered by H.R. 5. But if in fact there might be some exception that would cover them, they would still be subject to debate in terms of what are the costs we are imposing. We could well decide that we might want to pass that through without paying for it.

Mr. Chairman, yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MARTINEZ].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. PELOSI

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. PELOSI of California: In section 4, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph:

(8) establishes a minimum wage.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from California [Ms. PELOSI] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes in opposition.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California [Ms. PELOSI].

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I have submitted this amendment for the consideration of our colleagues because I think it is very important. Even though the hour is late, and the debate has gone on a long time, and indeed, we have even addressed the minimum wage in the course of debating some other amendments en bloc, I think it is very important that the House speak to this issue.

What my amendment does, and I will read it, it says "This act shall not apply to any provision in a Federal statute or proposed for final Federal regulation that establishes a minimum wage." That is what the amendment is.

The purpose of the amendment, Mr. Chairman, is to remove all doubt from where we go from here in establishing a minimum wage.

I will not go into, because the hour is late, all the reasons why we need an increase in the minimum wage and how low the purchasing power is. However, Mr. Chairman, I think it is important for Members to know that if this amendment does not pass, a situation will exist that includes the following.

Mr. Chairman, just to reiterate for a moment the purpose of this amendment, what this amendment does is to say that unfunded mandate legislation will not affect the establishment of a minimum wage. The purpose of the amendment is to remove all doubt that when this body addresses the subject of an increase in the minimum wage, there will not be an additional barrier to increasing that minimum wage.

If this legislation, the unfunded mandate legislation, passes without this amendment, the following situation will prevail: When we come to the floor with an increase in the minimum wage, it will be necessary for us to have a point of order called on the bill. We would have to have a majority to override the point of order, and therefore throw up a higher bar for an increase in the minimum wage.

Mr. Chairman, we are sent here to make tough decisions about how we legislate. We are not sent here to hide behind process.

The simple fact of the matter is that without this amendment, if the unfunded mandate legislation wins, which it appears to do, we can count; and if we strive to increase the minimum wage on this floor, and we do not win on the point of order, and so far we have not had the votes to win on any of them, then the Federal Government cannot increase the minimum wage unless the Federal Government pays for the entire increase in the minimum wage, because it most certainly will exceed $50 million, point No. 1.

Point No. 2 is that this is an inter-governmental mandate. That would mean that what I just described would apply to the public sector, but the private sector would not be affected by the legislation, so it would differentiate between the public and private sector, giving an increased burden to the private sector, something I do not think any of our colleagues want to do.

So, Mr. Chairman, I think this amendment is very important because it says in order to increase the minimum wage: First, we do not have the additional barrier of a point of order vote requiring a majority; and, second, we do not assume all of the cost of the increase in that minimum wage.

The working poor in our country deserve this opportunity. The minimum wage, people working full time, they make less than $9,000 a year. We are all familiar with those figures. I just bring them to the floor to once again demonstrate: A, how necessary it is to raise the minimum wage; B, to not throw up any further obstacles to doing so; and, C, to not increase the cost to the Federal taxpayer for the increase in that minimum wage.

Right now today States have that responsibility. Some States, as Members know, including the State of New Jersey, which was pointed out by Governor Whitman, have a minimum wage of $5.10 which they enforce. Therefore, why are we making it more difficult for the working poor in our country to earn a living wage by hiding behind process?

The fact, Mr. Chairman, is that last week we voted for one of the mandates. Almost every Republican except the gentleman from Alaska [Mr. YOUNG], and every Democrat voted for the amendment addressing age discrimination, so we did exempt already one amendment that was presented. I am sorry that we could not say children are a priority, too, in addition to the elderly. I hope that the working poor will be given a fair shot by this body as well.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment. The gentlewoman is right, Mr. Chairman, this issue has been discussed prior to this time, on the 23d, in the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Vermont [Mr. SANDERS] which included minimum wage along with occupational safety and others. We did fully debate the matter at that time for about 1 hour and 20 minutes, and the vote was 161 in favor and 263 opposed.

The only point I would make to the gentlewoman is that she did indicate that we would not be able to do this under this existing legislation. There is nothing, nothing in this bill that would prevent us from in fact imposing the mandate without funding that.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CLINGER. I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman I appreciate the gentleman yielding to me.

First of all, Mr. Chairman, I said we had debated on this issue as part of an en bloc amendment before. We did not vote on this particular minimum wage amendment alone, because I believe that there were Members in the body who did not want to support some of the other amendments.

Mr. CLINGER. I understand, Mr. Chairman.

Ms. PELOSI. It was in the interest of saving time that we rolled some of those amendments.

Mr. CLINGER. I understand. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, we will not this evening have a vote on this specific issue. The gentlewoman is right.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PETE GEREN].

Mr. GEREN of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, the debate tonight is not about the merits of the programs that are the subject of these amendments. The debate is about a very simple principle, the principle that any program that is important enough to pass is important enough to pay for. On the last amendment I am pleased to report that 72 Democrats voted to uphold that principle.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to vote no on this amendment, and continue to vote against unfunded mandates.

The CHAIRMAN. All the time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California [Ms. PELOSI].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Mr. Chairman, this is a relatively straightforward amendment. It applies to life-threatening public health and safety matters. I am certain that the Members of the House can enumerate many examples of life-threatening health and safety actions and laws that we might be called upon to consider in this House.

Second, of course, while the proponents of this bill have argued that this is entirely prospective, they are not looking at the entirety of the legislation they have before them because indeed on page 16 through page 22 it requires any new rules that are put out that come within the scope of the language. The point I am trying to make is that it is not just a matter of information on unfunded mandates. Much like the CBO process that we would go through today, I think there would be much less controversy and, in fact, I think I would laud the fact of having more information before the House on measures that we are considering.

Indeed, I think that very often we are subjected or are left with subjective information concerning unfunded mandates, much as we are with other issues about the impacts of legislation.

Unfortunately, we have no track record to guide us with regards to what the nature of the quality of that information will be on unfunded mandates. But this bill reaches far further than most bills we have considered.

For instance, although we require a CBO report, we have no separate vote on that with regards to authorizing legislation. And I might add, ironically this legislation completely exempts the appropriations measures from its consideration, Mr. Chairman, so there are many facets to this that concern me.

I think the issue with regard to the straightforward basis with regards to unfunded mandates is that whenever we have any matter that would be of any controversy we would be subjected to a process vote. That is to say that the vote would not come on the issue before us, but simply on the discussion or on the debate of an unfunded mandate clearly building a hurdle to the consideration of important legislation.

Here again I would point out that my amendment deals with life-threatening health and safety, Mr. Chairman.

Furthermore, of course, the legislation reaches into laws already enacted, puts in place a procedure whereas new rules or modifications have to be considered under the scope of this particular bill. So it does affect every law that affects life-threatening health and safety.

I would not enumerate. I could point out the safety laws that affect auto traffic, helmet laws, laws that affect health and safety such as water treatment systems in terms of microsporin or other micronisms which have in fact caused problems or the myriad of new problems we have had with infectious agents that have appeared on the scene sadly in the last many decades, Mr. Chairman.

I think this is a sensible amendment that speaks really to circumstances that should not be subjected to an extra vote, that should not be subjected to a whole new rule and regulation process as is outlined in this bill.

This bill is not just prospective. It is retroactive, affecting many of the rules and regulations and the laws we would pass.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, I think this cuts at the heart of what the Federal Government does in terms of reaching out. This legislation proposes to build in confrontation rather than building on cooperation, which I think should be the hallmark of the Federal system, the States and the National Government working together.

The fact of the matter is the Federal Government did not take these actions independently. Many of the States, many political subdivisions, had decades, hundreds of years, to deal with some of the problems they did not deal with through compacts, through their States, because they could not deal with them. We need a national policy.

Mr. Chairman and Members, one of the things that I think should come to our attention is we live in a country that has the strongest economy the world has ever seen. It has great advances in terms of culture and education and the sciences and has made great strides, greater than almost any other nation on the face of this Earth. We are taking that Government today, the Federal Government, that has been a part of that particular system and putting it at great risk. I know the greatness of this country is in the people of this country, Mr. Chairman, but I also understand that the governing structure that we have had has served us quite well.

I think we should be very careful in moving to make the modifications such as we see in this legislation and on an experimental basis. I think it is an experiment that may well go awry, and I think in the end cause great injustice and great harm to the people we represent.

Mr. Chairman, this is a good amendment. Eliminating health and safety is a sensible and common step, and a thread that has run through many of the amendments we have heard on this floor.

I hope we could vote for it and I think we could move on from this section of the bill.

Amidst the current fervor to pass the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act of 1995 (H.R. 5) important impacts—often passed off as just information that we should be mindful of—have been trivialized. The advocates are either naive or misinformed because this proposed law before the House will significantly impair the Federal Government's ability to govern.

The traditional cooperative relationship between State, local and Federal Governments would be dramatically altered by the bill before us, replaced with confrontation and denial. This legislation will leave the Federal Government without the ability to enact laws to protect workers in the workplace, to stop pollution from transcending the boundaries of one State to pollute the air and water of another, to help the elderly receive proper care in nursing homes, and to protect the health and safety of the people and of this Nation. These are but a small sample of the changes inherent in the policy espoused by this measure.

H.R. 5 as now drafted will unravel decades of public policy that established common national standards and intergovernmental cooperation with regards to public health and safety and the environment. If enacted, State and local governments could no longer be obligated to follow national programs unless 100 percent of the funding is assured. That is the goal and most likely the result. Regardless of common sense and the benefits of these programs and policies for a local area they would be frustrated by the provision of this measure. In the absence of national standards, State and local governments will establish, or worse yet, not establish, their own health, safety and pollution standards possibly without even the consideration of their neighboring States. In short, the Federal Government would be hamstrung in its ability to respond to the needs of the people we represent, and subject them to an untested and unverified policy prescription. Now the proponents suggest that a single vote requirement would save the essence of this Federal-State fabric of law so carefully woven throughout our history. This belies the dynamics and impact of the required votes in the congressional process. Today it is difficult to pass a bill, tomorrow this measure's design is to make it far more difficult and darn near impossible to pass legislation steeped in controversy, as without doubt proposed life threatening law and policy would be. If it were simple, the States acting alone or collectively would have accomplished many of these policies—the fact is that Federal law and policy in such arena in by necessity, default, or denial by the States and political subdivisions.

But, the unintended consequences of H.R. 5 are worsened by the quick pace at which it is being pushed, and the lack of deliberation and proper consideration by the House today and the Congress. This bill has reached the floor of the House without one hearing being held on its merit, intent, or consequence. This is a very significant piece of legislation and should be considered with careful analysis—but politics and instant gratification seem to be the order of the day and the demand by the majority Republicans in this House.

For these reasons, I am offering an amendment to H.R. 5 to address one of the problems that has been both overlooked and continues to be ignored by the proponents of this bill. My amendment will exempt legislation applying to "life threatening" public health and safety matters. I have carefully chosen this language, "life threatening," which addresses health and safety matters of the utmost significance. "Life threatening" is very specific—it means that which endangers one's life.

Surely the Federal Government, the Congress, must be able to fulfill its obligation to protect "life threatening" health and safety matters of the people we represent without being subject to the limitations inherent in this proposal. Look at the list of exceptions already in this bill: President declared emergency, individuals constitutional rights, discrimination laws, accounting and auditing procedures, and national security. Certainly "life threatening" health and safety matters could and should be a recognized exception.

This amendment will ensure that the Members of this chamber will be able to carry out the responsibility that our constituents have entrusted to us. I strongly urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. VENTO] has expired.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, which is truly a gutting amendment.

I think all of the measures we have had considered as possible exemptions under this bill throughout the last 5 days could easily be considered encompassed within the parameters of this particular amendment. It is a much broader amendment than anything we have dealt with thus far. I think it would truly gut the essence of the bill, because it could be argued it could be exempting everything out from under the coverage of this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. CONDIT].

Mr. CONDIT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, with all due respect to my colleague from Minnesota.

This amendment, above all the amendments we have heard here this evening, will destroy this bill, and once again, this bill is about accountability. It is about if we want to do the kinds of things that the gentleman from Minnesota wants to do, it is fine and well, and I probably would support many of those things.

This just puts some accountability in it and simply says if we are going to do these things, then we ought to figure out a way to pay for it.

I would urge, once again, all of my colleagues, my Democratic colleagues who have been so faithful in opposing these amendments, to oppose this amendment.

We have one more after this, and then we move hopefully to the next section of the bill. I ask for a no vote on the amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. VENTO].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

So the amendments were rejected. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Chairman, because of a serious fire at my father's home in Illinois, I was unable to return to Washington earlier today and missed a series of votes. Had I been present I would have voted: Present on rollcall No. 56; "yes" on rollcall No. 57; "yes" on rollcall No. 58; "no" on rollcall No. 59; "no" on rollcall No. 60; "no" on rollcall No. 61; "no" on rollcall No. 62; "no" on rollcall No. 63; "no" on rollcall No. 64; "no" on rollcall No. 65; "no" on rollcall No. 66; "no" on rollcall No. 67; "no" on rollcall No. 68; "no" on rollcall No. 69; "no" on rollcall No. 70; and "no" on rollcall No. 71.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to section 4?

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. FIELDS OF LOUISIANA

Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments, numbered 151 and 152, which were printed in the RECORD, and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendments.

The text of the amendments is as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana: In section 4, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph:

(8) establishes standards for the education or safety of students in elementary or secondary public schools.

In section 301, in the proposed section 422 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, strike "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (6), strike the period at the end of paragraph (7) and insert "; or", and after paragraph (7) add the following new paragraph:

"(8) establishes standards for the education or safety of students in elementary or secondary public schools.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 5 minutes in opposition.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS].

Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana. Mr. Chairman, this amendment simply provides for an exemption to be made by any Federal statute or regulation which establishes standards or standards for safety for students in elementary and secondary education. Today I offer this amendment out of concern for many children in our country who walk into unsafe schools on a day-to-day basis. There are schools in this country that do not have the proper tools for writing, much less the proper conditions to ensure their safety. We need to work hard to bring the standard of safety in our educational system across the country, bring it up to par with the rest of the world. Today our students are falling behind. We must look within our system and find ways to improve our Nation as a whole. State by State, Mr. Chairman, we need to ensure that our children are receiving the best possible education, and the buildings in which they learn must be safe.

Thousands of schools open each day, Mr. Chairman, without proper ventilation, without air conditioning during the heat of summer, without heat during the middle of winter. Thousands of schools, Mr. Chairman, open with leaking ceilings. Many of them have lead paint. Many schools in our Nation, Mr. Chairman and Members of the Congress, have asbestos. I urge that the Members of this body adopt this amendment because our schools are in bad, bad shape all across America. Our jails are in better condition than our schools.

This is a good amendment. I commend it to the rest of the body, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, let me, first of all, say I am sure I speak for all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle in congratulating the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS] on the birth of his son.

So, Mr. Chairman, it is with reluctance that I must rise with opposition to the gentleman's amendment, knowing, as I do, that he will have a son in school in not too many years, but again I have to say that this amendment, as most of the amendments we have seen before, really must not be exempt because it would not allow us to have the kind of cost adjustments, cost considerations, that we have.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER].

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I hesitate to rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS], my good friend, and being one of the more diplomatic Members of the House of Representatives, I feel compelled to say that I have watched for a long time around this body when the Republicans were in the minority. I used to watch the Republicans bring forth amendments, and I could see the commercial coming out, and all of a sudden we see the same thing on the Democratic side, my side. I think that this type of situation in which we find ourselves hurts this body, and I think the American people look upon us, and they say, "You are not doing what you should be doing."

I personally want a clean unfunded mandates bill. I think it is what we need, and I believe the American people have let us know that time and time again. Join with me in defeating this amendment.

Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the distinguished gentleman from the State of Florida [Mr. HASTINGS].

Mr. HASTINGS. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say to the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania that I, too, join him in congratulating the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS] for he and his wife having a son, but I would urge the gentleman from Pennsylvania to recognize, as another gentleman from Pennsylvania said, that what we need for his son is safe schools, and that is what this measure is about. To ask for regulations and standards for our children is not asking much.

Unfunded mandates? The Republicans say the American people want us to pass this bill. I say, Cheer, if you will. The American people, the American people, can't possibly want rat-infested schools, asbestos-laden schools, leaky roofs, broken windows, drug-ridden schools, broken toilets, water fountains that don't work and scared children and teachers.

When we voted to exempt the older Americans from discrimination, it was because we were afraid of their votes, and here we have a situation where we are asking to exempt children, and, as my colleagues know, they do not vote, so they find themselves in the position of not wanting to support it.

Let me go a step further because somebody in this building needs to clear the air on this Contract With America. Let me tell my colleagues what elementary contract law says: Black's Dictionary says an agreement between two or more parties for the doing or not doing something specified is a contract.

I say to my colleagues, the American people, whoever you all keep talking about, or the mandate that you claim that you got 20 percent of 39 percent of, is not a mandate in the sense of what the American people want, and for my Democratic colleagues who have been about the business of being bipartisan, I commend you and respect you for your bipartisan efforts, but I remind you that it should be a two-way street.

Let me tell my colleagues something: People, you have the votes in the House to pass the legislation that you want unilaterally, but don't you go around saying that my constituents signed on to your contract. They did not.

And let me also make it clear, let me make it clear for everybody in here, that the Republicans do not know all of what the American people want, and the Democrats do not either.

Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I, too, yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were ayes 135, noes 282, not voting 17, as follows:

(1) Investigate and review the role of unfunded Federal mandates in intergovernmental relations and their impact on State, local, tribal, and Federal government objectives and responsibilities; and

(2) make recommendations to the President and the Congress regarding—

(A) allowing flexibility for State, local, and tribal governments in complying with specific unfunded Federal mandates for which terms of compliance are unnecessarily rigid or complex;

(B) reconciling any 2 or more unfunded Federal mandates which impose contradictory or inconsistent requirements;

(C) terminating unfunded Federal mandates which are duplicative, obsolete, or lacking in practical utility;

(D) suspending, on a temporary basis, unfunded Federal mandates which are not vital to public health and safety and which compound the fiscal difficulties of State, local, and tribal governments, including recommendations for triggering such suspension;

(E) consolidating or simplifying unfunded Federal mandates, or the planning or reporting requirements of such mandates, in order to reduce duplication and facilitate compliance by State, local, and tribal governments with those mandates; and

(F) establishing common Federal definitions or standards to be used by State, local, and tribal governments in complying with unfunded Federal mandates that use different definitions or standards for the same terms or principles.

(3) IDENTIFICATION OF RELEVANT UNFUNDED FEDERAL MANDATES.—Each recommendation under paragraph (2) shall, to the extent practicable, identify the specific unfunded Federal mandates to which the recommendation applies.

(b) CRITERIA.—

(e) STAFF OF FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Upon request of the Director, the head of any Federal department or agency may detail, on a reimbursable basis, any of the personnel of that department or agency to the Commission to assist it in carrying out its duties under this title.

SEC. 105. POWER OF COMMISSION.

(a) HEARINGS AND SESSIONS.—The Commission may, for the purpose of carrying out this title, hold hearings, sit and act at times and places, take testimony, and receive evidence as the Commission considers appropriate.

(b) POWERS OF MEMBERS AND AGENTS.—Any member or agent of the Commission may, if authorized by the Commission, take any action which the Commission is authorized to take by this section.

(c) OBTAINING OFFICIAL DATA.—The Commission may secure directly from any department or agency of the United States information necessary to enable it to carry out this title, except information—

(1) which is specifically exempted from disclosure by law; or

(2) which that department or agency determines will disclose—

(A) matters necessary to be kept secret in the interests of national defense or the confidential conduct of the foreign relations of the United States.

(B) information relating to trade secrets or financial or commercial information pertaining specifically to a given person if the information has been obtained by the Government on a confidential basis, other than through an application by such person for a specific financial or other benefit, and is required to be kept secret in order to prevent undue injury to the competitive position of such person; or

(C) personnel or medical data or similar data the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; unless the portions containing such matters, information, or data have been excised.

Upon request of the Chairperson of the Commission, the head of that department or agency shall furnish that information to the Commission.

(d) MAILS.—The Commission may use the United States mail in the same manner and under the same conditions as other departments and agencies of the United States.

(e) ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT SERVICES.—Upon the request of the Commission, the Administrator of General Services shall provide to the Commission, on a reimbursable basis, the administrative support services necessary for the Commission to carry out its duties under this title.

(f) CONTRACT AUTHORITY.—The Commission may, subject to appropriations, contract with and compensate government and private agencies or persons for property and services used to carry out its duties under this title.

SEC. 106. TERMINATION.

The Commission shall terminate 90 days after submitting its final report pursuant to section 102(d).

SEC. 107. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated to the Commission $1,000,000 to carry out this title.

SEC. 108. DEFINITION.

As used in this title, the term "Federal mandate" means any provision in statute or regulation or any Federal court ruling that imposes an enforceable duty upon States, local governments, or tribal governments including a condition of Federal assistance or a duty arising from participation in a voluntary Federal program.

SEC. 109. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title shall take effect 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. POMBO. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to see that the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act we are debating today is moving steadily toward passage in the House of Representatives. This measure, H.R. 5, is long overdue. For too many years, the Federal Government has been forcing regulations down the throats of State and local government officials without providing them with the necessary resources to pay for them.

To give an idea of how outrageous this practice has become, the Environmental Protection Agency's own figures state that its rules and regulations cost this Nation $140 billion last year—that is 2.2 percent of our entire gross domestic product. Let me remind my colleagues that this represents the cost of mandates from just one single agency of the Federal Government. The successful passage of H.R. 5 will once-and-for-all end this outrageous, and arrogant, Federal Government practice.

While I am disappointed that some in this House have tried to slow down the progress of H.R. 5, I am confident that the overwhelming bipartisan support it enjoys will enable us to make good on our promise with the American people. H.R. 5 is a top priority for those of us who have signed the Contract With America—and we intend to deliver.

Mr. Chairman, we are not the only ones who have been eagerly waiting for this legislation. State and local officials around the country are so disgusted with the Federal Government's penchant for establishing new programs without paying for them, they established an official Unfunded Mandates Day to make their concerns felt here in Washington. They have done this because it is the simple fact that the burden of paying for unfunded mandates is minimizing the effectiveness of State and local governments to provide even the most basic local services. Let me make one thing clear—we have heard their voices, and are dedicated to making a real difference.

What good do unfunded mandates serve if they require city officials to seriously consider buying and passing out bottled water to residents rather than comply with the strict Federal water testing requirements set forth in the Safe Drinking Water Act? How effective is requiring a city to spend over $250,000 over 3 years to remove petroleum-contaminated soil so that an asphalt parking lot could be put on top of it—when asphalt is a petroleum-based product? Mandates like these serve no one—except the Federal bureaucrats, of course.

Once again, Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my strong support for the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act and urge its passage in the House of Representatives as well as the other body. We owe the American people nothing less.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, legislative mandates made by the Federal Government have placed a significant financial burden on communities in California. The city of Los Angeles estimates that Federal mandates will cost approximately $2.2 billion over 5 years (1993–94 through 1997–98). In recent years, many Federal mandates have been placed on cities like Los Angeles without Federal funding required for implementing and enforcing these mandates.

Despite the attention to this issue, these Federal mandates have not subsided. The National Committee on Uniform Traffic Control Devices is currently in the process of recommending improvements in traffic-control devices, including street signs, to the Federal Highway Administration. In its present form, the National Committee's proposal recommends new Federal guidelines that would require communities to:

First, increase the size of the street sign lettering from 4 inches to 6 inches high; and second, modify street name signs to be reflective or illuminated.

The proposed guidelines do not contain any provisions for cities to fund these changes.

The city's department of transportation has reviewed this proposal and believes that the suggested requirements are extreme and unnecessary. The cost to change the more than 150,000 street name signs in the city would be approximately $10 to $15 million.

Without financial assistance, the city of Los Angeles is not in a position to comply with the proposed new guidelines for street signs. Furthermore, in an urban area such as Los Angeles, many intersections are sufficiently illuminated and often feature additional identifying signs for drivers of motor vehicles.

While this is one small example of a much larger problem, it is indicative of the costly

Federal mandates imposed on local governments. With this in mind, I respectfully urge House Members to support H.R. 5, the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act of 1995.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. EHLERS) having assumed the chair, Mr. EMERSON, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to curb the practice of imposing unfunded Federal mandates on States and local governments, to ensure that the Federal Government pays the costs incurred by those governments in complying with certain requirements under Federal statutes and regulations, and to provide information on the cost of Federal mandates on the private sector, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 607

Mr. RAMSTAD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my name be withdrawn as a cosponsor of H.R. 607.

The Speaker pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

There was no objection.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, last week I missed a series of votes because, on January 22, at 7:14 p.m., my wife gave birth to our first child, Cleo Brandon Fields, who weighed 7 lbs., 1 oz. and was 20 inches long.

Had I been present, I would have voted "yes" on rollcall votes 25 through 28, 32 and 33, 35, 36, 40, 43 through 48, and 50 through 55. I would have voted "no" on rollcall votes 29, 30, 37, 38, 39, 41, 49, and 51.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE FAMILY OF CLEO FIELDS OF LOUISIANA ON THE BIRTH OF THEIR FIRST CHILD

(Mr. ARMEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, let me preface my comments by offering my congratulations to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. FIELDS] and his wife on the birth of their first child. I hope it is every bit as much a joy in their life as mine was and is in my life.

PERMISSION FOR CERTAIN COMMITTEES TO SIT TODAY DURING THE 5-MINUTE RULE

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the following committees, and their subcommittees be permitted to sit today while the House is meeting in the Committee of the Whole House under the 5-minute rule: The Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the Committee on National Security, the Committee on Science, the Committee on the Judiciary, the Committee on Resources, the Committee on International Relations, and the Committee on Small Business.

Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that the minority has been consulted and that there is no objection to these requests.

Mr. BONIOR. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I will not object. I rise to suggest that this is a reasonable request that my friend, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY], has made this evening. We were given adequate time to consult with the ranking members of each of the various committees he has just read off to the body.

Mr. Chairman, the ranking members of those committees have no objection to the request, and the request does not contain a blanket waiver of the rule, but it specifies the particular committees that would be affected, and it is only for one day. We want to reassure the majority that we want to work with their leadership to make this institution work better, and as long as we are notified in advance so we can check with our appropriate people, and they think it is a request that will move this institution forward, we will not object.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. EHLERS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection./

REPORT ON DEVELOPMENTS CONCERNING NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO LIBYA DECLARED IN EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 12543 OF JANUARY 7, 1986—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. Doc. No. 104-24)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby report to the Congress on the developments since my last report of July 18, 1994, concerning the national emergency with respect to Libya that was declared in Executive Order No. 12543 of January 7, 1986. This report is submitted pursuant to section 401(c) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C. 1641(c); section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (IEEPA), 50 U.S.C. 1703(c); and section 505(c) of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985, 22 U.S.C. 2349aa-9(c).

1. On December 22, 1994, I renewed for another year the national emergency with respect to Libya pursuant to IEEPA. This renewal extended the current comprehensive financial and trade embargo against Libya in effect since 1986. Under these sanctions, all trade with Libya is prohibited, and all assets owned or controlled by the Libyan government in the United States or in the possession or control of U.S. persons are blocked.

2. There has been one amendment to the Libyan Sanctions Regulations, 31 C.F.R. Part 550 (the "Regulations"), administered by the Office of Foreign Assets Control (FAC) of the Department of the Treasury, since my last report on July 18, 1994. The amendment (59 Fed. Reg. 51106, October 7, 1994) identified Arab Hellenic Bank (AHB), an Athens-based financial institution, 4 other entities, and 10 individuals as Specially Designated Nationals (SDNs) of Libya. (In addition to the recent SDN action against AHB, the Greek central bank has recently announced that AHB's banking license has been revoked.) Included among the individuals are three Italian shareholders in Oilinvest (Netherlands) B.V., who increased their positions in the Libyan government-controlled firm shortly before United Nations Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 883 directed a freeze on certain Libyan assets owned or controlled by the Government or public authorities of Libya.

Pursuant to section 550.304(a) of the Regulations, FAC has determined that these entities and individuals designated as SDNs are owned or controlled by, or acting or purporting to act directly or indirectly on behalf of, the Government of Libya, or are agencies, instrumentalities, or entities of that government. By virtue of this determination, all property and interests in property of these entities or persons that are in the United States or in the possession or control of U.S. persons are blocked. Further, U.S. persons are prohibited from engaging in transactions with these individuals or entities unless the transactions are licensed by FAC. The designations were made in consultation with the Department of State and announced by FAC in notices issued on June 17 and July 22 and 25, 1994. A copy of the amendment is attached to this report.

3. During the current 6-month period, FAC made numerous decisions with respect to applications for licenses to engage in transactions under the Regulations, issuing 136 licensing determinations—both approvals and denials. Consistent with FAC's ongoing scrutiny of banking transactions, the largest category of license approvals (73) concerned requests by non-Libyan persons or entities to unblock bank accounts initially blocked because of an apparent Government of Libya interest. The largest category of denials (41) was for banking transactions in which FAC found a Government of Libya interest. Three licenses were issued authorizing intellectual property protection in Libya.

In addition, FAC issued eight determinations with respect to applications from attorneys to receive fees and reimbursement of expenses for provision of legal services to the Government of Libya in connection with wrongful death civil actions arising from the Pan Am 103 bombing. Civil suits have been filed in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia and in the Southern District of New York. Representation of the Government of Libya when named as a defendant in or otherwise made a party to domestic U.S. legal proceedings is authorized by section 550.517(b)(2) of the Regulations under certain conditions.

4. During the current 6-month period, FAC continued to emphasize to the international banking community in the United States the importance of identifying and blocking payments made by or on behalf of Libya. The FAC worked closely with the banks to implement new interdiction software systems to identify such payments. As a result, during the reporting period, more than 210 transactions involving Libya, totaling more than $14.8 million, were blocked. As of December 9, 1994, 13 of these transactions had been licensed to be released, leaving a net amount of more than $14.5 million blocked.

Since my last report, FAC collected 15 civil monetary penalties totaling more than $76,000 for violations of the U.S. sanctions against Libya. Nine of the violations involved the failure of banks to block funds transfers to Libyan-owned or -controlled banks. Two other penalties were received for corporate export violations. Four additional penalties were paid by U.S. citizens engaging in Libyan oilfield-related transactions while another 76 cases of similar violations are in active penalty processing.

In October 1994, two U.S. businessmen, two U.S. corporations, and several foreign corporations were indicted by a Federal grand jury in Connecticut on three counts of violating the Regulations and IEEPA for their roles in the illegal exportation of U.S. origin fuel pumps to Libya. Various enforcement actions carried over from previous reporting periods have continued to be aggressively pursued. The FAC has continued its efforts under the Operation Roadblock initiative. This ongoing program seeks to identify U.S. persons who travel to and/or work in Libya in violation of U.S. law.

Several new investigations of potentially significant violations of the Libyan sanctions have been initiated by FAC and cooperating U.S. law enforcement agencies, primarily the U.S. Customs Service. Many of these cases are believed to involve complex conspiracies to circumvent the various prohibitions of the Libyan sanctions, as well as the utilization of international diversionary shipping routes to and from Libya. The FAC has continued to work closely with the Departments of State and Justice to identify U.S. persons who enter into contracts or agreements with the Government of Libya, or other third-country parties, to lobby United States Government officials or to engage in public relations work on behalf of the Government of Libya without FAC authorization. In addition, during the period FAC hosted or attended several bilateral and multilateral meetings with foreign sanctions authorities, as well as with private foreign institutions, to consult on issues of mutual interest and to encourage strict adherence to the U.N.-mandated sanctions.

5. The expenses incurred by the Federal Government in the 6-month period from July 7, 1994, through January 6, 1995, that are directly attributable to the exercise of powers and authorities conferred by the declaration of the Libyan national emergency are estimated at approximately $1.4 million. Personnel costs were largely centered in the Department of the Treasury (particularly in the Office of Foreign Assets Control, the Office of the General Counsel, and the U.S. Customs Service), the Department of State, and the Department of Commerce.

6. The policies and actions of the Government of Libya continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. In adopting UNSCR 883 in November 1993, the Security Council determined that the continued failure of the Government of Libya to demonstrate by concrete actions its renunciation of terrorism, and in particular its continued failure to respond fully and effectively to the requests and decisions of the Security Council in UNSCRs 731 and 748, concerning the bombing of the Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 flights, constituted a threat to international peace and security. The United States continues to believe that still stronger international measures than those mandated by UNSCR 883, possibly including a worldwide oil embargo, should be imposed if Libya continues to defy the will of the international community as expressed in UNSCR 731. We remain determined to ensure that the perpetrators of the terrorist acts against Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 are brought to justice. The families of the victims in the murderous Lockerbie bombing and other acts of Libyan terrorism deserve nothing less. I shall continue to exercise the powers at my disposal to apply economic sanctions against Libya fully and effectively, so long as those measures are appropriate, and will continue to report periodically to the Congress on significant developments as required by law.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, JANUARY 30, 1995.

REPORT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES REGARDING ADMINISTRATION OF RADIATION CONTROL FOR HEALTH AND SAFETY ACT OF 1968 DURING CALENDAR YEAR 1993—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on Commerce and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with section 540 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360qq) (previously section 360D of the Public Health Service Act), I am submitting the report of the Department of Health and Human Services regarding the administration of the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act of 1968 during calendar year 1993.

The report recommends the repeal of section 540 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act that requires the completion of this annual report. All the information found in this report is available to the Congress on a more immediate basis through the Center for Devices and Radiological Health technical reports, the Radiological Health Bulletin, and other publicly available sources. This annual report serves little useful purpose and diverts Agency resources from more productive activities.

RULES OF PROCEDURE FOR THE COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE FOR THE 104TH CONGRESS

(Mr. SHUSTER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 2(a) of House rule XI, I submit a copy of the Rules of The Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

RULE I.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

(a) Applicability of House Rules.—(1) The Rules of the House are the rules of the Committee and its subcommittees so far as applicable, except that a motion to recess from day to day, and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, are non-debatable motions of high privilege in the Committee and its subcommittees.

(2) Each subcommittee is part of the Committee, and is subject to the authority and direction of the Committee and its rules so far as applicable.

(3) Rule XI of the Rules of the House, which pertains entirely to Committee procedure, is incorporated and made a part of the rules of the Committee to the extent applicable.

(b) Authority to Conduct Investigations.—The Committee is authorized at any time to conduct such investigations and studies as it may consider necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under Rule X of the Rules of the House and (subject to the adoption of expense resolutions as required by Rule XI, clause 5 of the Rules of the House) to incur expenses (including travel expenses) in connection therewith.

(c) Authority to Print.—The Committee is authorized to have printed and bound testimony and other data presented at hearings held by the Committee. All costs of stenographic services and transcripts in connection with any meeting or hearing of the Committee shall be paid from the contingent fund of the House.

(d) Activities Report.—(1) The Committee shall submit to the House, not later than January 2 of each odd-numbered year, a report on the activities of the Committee under Rules X and XI of the Rules of the House during the Congress ending on January 3 of such year.

(2) Such report shall include separate sections summarizing the legislative and oversight activities of the Committee during that Congress.

(3) The oversight section of such report shall include a summary of the oversight plans submitted by the Committee pursuant to clause 2(d) of Rule X of the Rules of the House, a summary of the actions taken and recommendations made with respect to each such plan, and a summary of any additional oversight activities undertaken by the Committee, and any recommendations made or actions taken thereon.

(e) Publication of Rules.—The Committee's rules shall be published in the Congressional Record not later than 30 days after the Committee is elected in each odd-numbered year.

RULE II.—REGULAR, ADDITIONAL AND SPECIAL MEETINGS

(a) Regular Meetings.—Regular meetings of the Committee shall be held on the first Wednesday of every month to transact its business unless such day is a holiday, or Congress is in recess or is adjourned, in which case the Chairman shall determine the regular meeting day of the Committee for that month. The Chairman shall give each member of the Committee, as far in advance of the day of the regular meeting as the circumstances make practicable, a written notice of such meeting and the matters to be considered at such meeting. If the Chairman believes that the Committee will not be considering any bill or resolution before the full Committee and that there is no other business to be transacted at a regular meeting, the meeting may be canceled or it may be deferred until such time as, in the judgment of the Chairman, there may be matters which require the Committee's consideration. This paragraph shall not apply to meetings of any subcommittee.

(b) Additional Meetings.—The Chairman may call and convene, as he or she considers necessary, additional meetings of the Committee for the consideration of any bill or resolution pending before the Committee or for the conduct of other committee business. The Committee shall meet for such purpose pursuant to the call of the Chairman.

(c) Special Meetings.—If at least three members of the Committee desire that a special meeting of the Committee be called by the Chairman, those members may file in the offices of the Committee their written request to the Chairman for that special meeting. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the Committee shall notify the Chairman of the filing of the request. If, within three calendar days after the filing of the request, the Chairman does not call the requested special meeting to be held within 7 calendar days after the filing of the request, a majority of the members of the Committee may file in the offices of the Committee their written notice that a special meeting of the Committee will be held, specifying the date and hour thereof, and the measures or matter to be considered at that special meeting. The Committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the clerk of the Committee shall notify all members of the Committee that such meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered; and only the measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.

(d) Vice Chairman.—The Chairman shall appoint a vice chairman of the Committee and of each subcommittee. If the Chairman of the Committee or subcommittee is not present at any meeting of the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, the vice chairman shall preside. If the vice chairman is not present, the ranking member of the majority party on the Committee or subcommittee who is present shall preside at that meeting.

(e) Prohibition on Sitting During 5-Minute Rule.—The Committee may not sit, without special leave, while the House is reading a measure for amendment under the 5-minute rule. The Committee may not sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess when a joint meeting of the House and Senate is in progress.

(f) Addressing the Committee.—A Committee member may address the Committee or a subcommittee on any bill, motion, or other matter under consideration or may question a witness at a hearing only when recognized by the Chairman for that purpose. The time a member may address the Committee or subcommittee for any such purpose or to question a witness shall be limited to 5 minutes, except that this time limit may be waived by the Chairman, and a member shall be limited in his or her remarks to the subject matter under consideration. The Chairman shall enforce the preceding sentence.

(g) Meetings to Begin Promptly.—Each meeting or hearing of the Committee shall begin promptly at the time so stipulated in the public announcement of the meeting or hearing.

RULE III.—OPEN MEETINGS AND HEARINGS; BROADCASTING

(a) Open meetings.—Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, and each hearing of the Committee or a subcommittee shall be open to the public, except as provided by clause 2(g) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House.

(b) Broadcasting.—Whenever a meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, or a hearing is open to the public, that meeting or hearing shall be open to coverage by television, radio, and still photography in accordance with clause 3 of Rule XI of the Rules of the House.

RULE IV.—RECORDS AND ROLL CALLS

(a) Keeping of Records.—The Committee shall keep a complete record of all Committee action which shall include—

(1) in the case of any meeting or hearing transcripts, a substantially verbatim account of remarks actually made during the proceedings, subject only to technical, grammatical and typographical corrections authorized by the person making the remarks involved, and

(2) a record of the votes on any question on which a roll call is demanded.

The result of each such roll call vote shall be made available by the Committee for inspection by the public at reasonable times in the offices of the Committee. Information so available for public inspection shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order or other proposition and the name of each member voting for and each member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and the names of those members present but not voting. A record vote may be demanded by one-fifth of the members present.

(b) Property of the House.—All Committee hearings, records, data, charts, and files shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the member serving as Chairman of the Committee; and such records shall be the property of the House and all Members of the House shall have access thereto.

(c) Availability of Archived Records.—The records of the Committee at the National Archives and Records Administration shall be made available for public use in accordance with Rule XXXVI of the Rules of the House. The Chairman shall notify the ranking minority member of the Committee of any decision, pursuant to clause 3(b)(3) or clause 4(b) of such rule, to withhold a record otherwise available, and the matter shall be presented to the Committee for a determination on written request of any member of the Committee.

RULE V.—POWER TO SIT AND ACT; SUBPOENA POWER

(a) Authority to Sit and Act.—For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions and duties under Rules X and XI of the Rules of the House, the Committee and each of its subcommittees, is authorized (subject to paragraph (b)(1) of this Rule)—

(1) to sit and act at such times and places within the United States whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned and to hold such hearings, and

(2) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memorandums, papers, and documents, as it deems necessary. The Chairman of the Committee, or any member designated by the Chairman, may administer oaths to any witness.

(b) Issuance of Subpoenas.—(1) A subpoena may be issued by the Committee or subcommittee under paragraph (a)(2) in the conduct of any investigation or activity or series of investigations or activities, only when authorized by a majority of the members voting, a majority being present. Such authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the Chairman of the Committee or by any member designated by the Committee. If a specific request for a subpoena has not been previously rejected by either the Committee or subcommittee, the Chairman of the Committee, after consultation with the ranking minority member of the Committee, may authorize and issue a subpoena under paragraph (a)(2) in the conduct of any investigation or activity or series of investigations or activities, and such subpoena shall for all purposes be deemed a subpoena issued by the Committee. As soon as practicable after a subpoena is issued under this Rule, the Chairman shall notify all members of the Committee of such action.

(2) Compliance with any subpoena issued by the Committee or subcommittee under paragraph (a)(2) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

(c) Expenses of Subpoenaed Witnesses.—Each witness who has been subpoenaed, upon the completion of his or her testimony before the Committee or any subcommittee, may report to the offices of the Committee, and there sign appropriate vouchers for travel allowances and attendance fees. If hearings are held in cities other than Washington, DC, the witness may contact the counsel of the Committee, or his or her representative, before leaving the hearing room.

RULE VI.—QUORUMS

(a) Working Quorum.—One-third of the members of the Committee or a subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for taking any action other than the closing of a meeting pursuant to clauses 2(g) and 2(k)(5) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House, the authorizing of a subpoena pursuant to paragraph (b) of Committee Rule V, the reporting of a measure or recommendation pursuant to paragraph (b)(1) of Committee Rule VIII, and the actions described in paragraphs (b), (c) and (d) of this Rule.

(b) Quorum for Reporting.—A majority of the members of the Committee or a subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for the reporting of a measure or recommendation.

(c) Approval of Certain Matters.—A majority of the members of the Committee or a subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for approval of a resolution concerning any of the following actions:

(1) A prospectus for construction, alteration, purchase or acquisition of a public building or the lease of space as required by section 7 of the Public Buildings Act of 1959.

(2) Survey investigation of a proposed project for navigation, flood control, and other purposes by the Corps of Engineers (section 4 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of March 4, 1913, 33 U.S.C. 542).

(3) Construction of a water resources development project by the Corps of Engineers with an estimated Federal cost not exceeding $15,000,000 (section 201 of the Flood Control Act of 1965).

(4) Deletion of water quality storage in a Federal reservoir project where the benefits attributable to water quality are 15 percent or more but not greater than 25 percent of the total project benefits (section 65 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974).

(5) Authorization of a Natural Resources Conservation Service watershed project involving any single structure of more than 4,000 acre feet of total capacity (section 2 of P.L. 566, 83rd Congress).

(d) Quorum for Taking Testimony.—Two members of the Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for the purpose of taking testimony and receiving evidence.

RULE VII.—HEARING PROCEDURES

(a) Announcement.—The Chairman, in the case of a hearing to be conducted by the Committee, and the appropriate subcommittee Chairman, in the case of a hearing to be conducted by a subcommittee, shall make public announcement of the date, place, and subject matter of such hearing at least one week before the hearing unless the Committee determines that there is good cause to begin the hearing at an earlier date. In the latter event the Chairman or the subcommittee chairman, as the case may be, shall make such public announcement at the earliest possible date. The clerk of the Committee shall promptly notify the Daily Digest Clerk of the Congressional Record and shall promptly enter the appropriate information into the Committee scheduling service of the House Information Systems as soon as possible after such public announcement is made.

(b) Written Statement; Oral Testimony.—So far as practicable, each witness who is to appear before the Committee or a subcommittee shall file with the clerk of the Committee or subcommittee, at least 2 working days before the day of his or her appearance, a written statement of proposed testimony and shall limit his or her oral presentation to a summary of the written statement.

(c) Minority Witnesses.—When any hearing is conducted by the Committee or any subcommittee upon any measure or matter, the minority party members on the Committee or subcommittee shall be entitled, upon request to the Chairman by a majority of those minority members before the completion of such hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(d) Summary of Subject Matter.—Upon announcement of a hearing, to the extent practicable, the Committee shall make available immediately to all members of the Committee a concise summary of the subject matter (including legislative reports and other material) under consideration. In addition, upon announcement of a hearing and subsequently as they are received, the Chairman shall make available to the members of the Committee any official reports from departments and agencies on such matter.

(e) Participation of Committee Members in Subcommittees.—All members of the Committee may sit with any subcommittee during any hearing or deliberations and may participate in such hearing or deliberations, but a member who is not a member of the subcommittee may not vote on any matter before such subcommittee.

(f) Questioning of Witnesses.—The questioning of witnesses in Committee and subcommittee hearings shall be initiated by the Chairman, followed by the ranking minority member and all other members alternating between the majority and minority parties. In recognizing members to question witnesses in this fashion, the Chairman shall take into consideration the ratio of the majority to minority members present and shall establish the order of recognition for questioning in such a manner as not to disadvantage the members of the majority nor the members of the minority. The Chairman may accomplish this by recognizing two majority members for each minority member recognized.

(g) Investigative Hearings.—(1) Clause 2(k) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House (relating to additional rules for investigative hearings) applies to investigative hearings of the Committee and its subcommittees.

(2) A subcommittee may not begin a major investigation without approval of a majority of such subcommittee.

RULE VIII.—PROCEDURES FOR REPORTING BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

(a) Filing of Reports.—(1) The Chairman of the Committee shall report promptly to the House any measure or matter approved by the Committee and take necessary steps to bring the measure or matter to a vote.

(2) The report of the Committee on a measure or matter which has been approved by the Committee shall be filed within 7 calendar days (exclusive of days on which the House is not in session) after the day on which there has been filed with the clerk of the Committee a written request, signed by a majority of the members of the Committee, for the reporting of that measure or matter. Upon the filing of any such request, the clerk of the Committee shall transmit immediately to the Chairman of the Committee notice of the filing of that request.

(b) Quorum; Roll Call Votes.—(1) No measure, matter or recommendation shall be reported from the Committee unless a majority of the Committee was actually present.

(2) With respect to each roll call vote on a motion to report any measure or matter of a public character, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, and the names of those members voting for and against, shall be included in the Committee report on the measure or matter.

(c) Required Matters.—The report of the Committee on a measure or matter which has been approved by the Committee shall include the items required to be included by clause 2(l)(3) of Rule XI and clause 7 of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House.

(d) Inflation Impact.—Each report of the Committee on a bill or joint resolution of a public character reported by the Committee shall contain a detailed analytical statement as to whether the enactment of such bill or joint resolution into law may have an inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy.

(e) Additional Views.—If, at the time of approval of any measure or matter by the Committee, any member of the Committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views, that member shall be entitled to not less than three calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays) in which to file such views in accordance with clause 2(l)(5) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House.

(f)(1) Approval of Committee Views.—All Committee and subcommittee prints, reports, documents, or other materials, not otherwise provided for under this Rule, that purport to express publicly the views of the Committee or any of its subcommittees or members of the Committee or its subcommittees shall be approved by the Committee or the subcommittee prior to printing and distribution and any member shall be given an opportunity to have views included as part of such material prior to printing, release and distribution in accordance with subparagraph (e) of this rule.

(2) A Committee or subcommittee document containing views other than those of members of the Committee or subcommittee shall not be published without approval of the Committee or subcommittee.

RULE IX.—OVERSIGHT

(a) Purpose.—The Committee shall carry out oversight responsibilities as provided in this Rule in order to assist the House in—

(1) its analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of (A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of the laws enacted by the Congress, or (B) conditions and circumstances which may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation, and

(2) its formulation, consideration, and enactment of such modifications or changes in those laws, and of such additional legislation, as may be necessary or appropriate.

(b) Oversight Plan.—Not later than February 15 of the first session of each Congress, the Committee shall adopt its oversight plans for that Congress in accordance with clause 2(d)(1) of Rule X of the Rules of the House.

(c) Review of Laws and Programs.—The Committee and the appropriate legislative subcommittees shall cooperatively review and study, on a continuing basis, the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of those laws, or parts of laws, the subject matter of which is within the jurisdiction of the Committee, and the organization and operation of the Federal agencies and entities having responsibilities in or for the administration and execution thereof, in order to determine whether such laws and the programs thereunder are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of the Congress and whether such programs should be continued, curtailed, or eliminated. In addition, the Committee and the appropriate legislative subcommittees shall cooperatively review and study any conditions or circumstances which may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation within the jurisdiction of the Committee (whether or not any bill or resolution has been introduced with respect thereto), and shall on a continuing basis undertake future research and forecasting on matters within the jurisdiction of the Committee.

(d) Review of Tax Policies.—The Committee and the appropriate legislative subcommittees shall cooperatively review and study on a continuing basis the impact or probable impact of tax policies affecting subjects within the jurisdiction of the Committee.

RULE X.—REVIEW OF CONTINUING PROGRAMS; BUDGET ACT PROVISIONS

(a) Ensuring Annual Appropriations.—The Committee shall, in its consideration of all bills and joint resolutions of a public character within its jurisdiction, ensure that appropriations for continuing programs and activities of the Federal Government and the District of Columbia government will be made annually to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the nature, requirements, and objectives of the programs and activities involved. For the purposes of this paragraph, a Government agency includes the organizational units of government listed in clause 7(d) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House.

(b) Review of Multi-year Appropriations.—The Committee shall review, from time to time, each continuing program within its jurisdiction for which appropriations are not made annually in order to ascertain whether such program could be modified so that appropriations therefore would be made annually.

(c) Views and Estimates.—The Committee shall, on or before February 25 of each year, submit to the Committee on the Budget (1) its views and estimates with respect to all matters to be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year which are within its jurisdiction or functions, and (2) an estimate of the total amount of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions within its jurisdiction which it intends to be effective during that fiscal year.

(d) Budget Allocations.—As soon as practicable after a concurrent resolution on the budget for any fiscal year is agreed to the Committee (after consulting with the appropriate committee or committees of the Senate) shall subdivide any allocations made to it in the joint explanatory statement accompanying the conference report on such resolution, and promptly report such subdivisions to the House, in the manner provided by section 302 or section 602 (in the case of fiscal years 1991 through 1995) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(e) Reconciliation.—Whenever the Committee is directed in a concurrent resolution on the budget to determine and recommend changes in laws, bills, or resolutions under the reconciliation process, it shall promptly make such determination and recommendations, and report a reconciliation bill or resolution (or both) to the House or submit such recommendations to the Committee on the Budget, in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

RULE XI.—COMMITTEE BUDGETS

(a) Biennial Budget.—The Chairman, in consultation with the chairman of each subcommittee, the majority members of the Committee and the minority members of the Committee, shall, for each Congress, prepare a consolidated Committee budget. Such budget shall include necessary amounts for staff personnel, necessary travel, investigation, and other expenses of the Committee.

(b) Additional Expenses.—Authorization for the payment of additional or unforeseen Committee expenses may be procured by one or more additional expense resolutions processed in the same manner as set out herein.

(c) Travel Requests.—The Chairman or any chairman of a subcommittee may initiate necessary travel requests as provided in Committee Rule XIII within the limits of the consolidated budget as approved by the House and the Chairman may execute necessary vouchers thereof.

(d) Monthly Reports.—Once monthly, the Chairman shall submit to the Committee on House Oversight, in writing, a full and detailed accounting of all expenditures made during the period since the last such accounting from the amount budgeted to the Committee. Such report shall show the amount and purpose of such expenditure and the budget to which such expenditure is attributed. A copy of such monthly report shall be available in the Committee office for review by members of the Committee.

RULE XII.—COMMITTEE STAFF

(a) Appointment by Chairman.—The Chairman shall appoint and determine the remuneration of, and may remove, the professional and clerical employees of the Committee not assigned to the minority. The professional and clerical staff of the Committee not assigned to the minority shall be under the general supervision and direction of the Chairman, who shall establish and assign the duties and responsibilities of such staff members and delegate such authority as he or she determines appropriate.

(b) Appointment by Ranking Minority Member.—The ranking minority member of the Committee shall appoint and determine the remuneration of, and may remove, the professional and clerical staff assigned to the minority within the budget approved for such purposes; except, that no minority staff person shall be compensated at a rate which exceeds that paid his or her majority party staff counterpart. The professional and clerical staff assigned to the minority shall be under the general supervision and direction of the ranking minority member of the Committee who may delegate such authority as he or she determines appropriate.

(c) Intention Regarding Staff.—It is intended that the skills and experience of all members of the Committee staff shall be available to all members of the Committee.

RULE XIII.—TRAVEL OF MEMBERS AND STAFF

Travel to be reimbursed from funds set aside for the Committee for any member or any staff member shall be paid only upon the prior authorization of the Chairman. Travel shall be authorized by the chairman for any member and any staff member in connection with the attendance of hearings conducted by the Committee or any subcommittee and meetings, conferences, and investigations which involve activities or subject matter under the general jurisdiction of the Committee. (b) Subcommittee Travel.—In the case of travel of members and staff of a subcommittee to hearings, meetings, conferences, and investigations involving activities or subject matter under the legislative assignment of such subcommittee, prior authorization must be obtained from the subcommittee chairman and the Chairman. Such prior authorization shall be given by the Chairman only upon the representation by the chairman of such subcommittee in writing setting forth those items enumerated in subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) of paragraph (a) and that there has been a compliance where applicable with Committee Rule VII.

(c) Travel Outside the United States.—(1) In the case of travel outside the United States of members and staff of the Committee or of a subcommittee for the purpose of conducting hearings, investigations, studies, or attending meetings and conferences involving activities or subject matter under the legislative assignment of the Committee or pertinent subcommittee, prior authorization must be obtained from the Chairman, or, in the case of a subcommittee from the subcommittee chairman and the Chairman. Before such authorization is given there shall be submitted to the Chairman, in writing, a request for such authorization. Each request, which shall be filed in a manner that allows for a reasonable period of time for review before such travel is scheduled to begin, shall include the following:

- (A) the purpose of the travel;
- (B) the dates during which the travel will occur;
- (C) the names of the countries to be visited and the length of time to be spent in each;
- (D) an agenda of anticipated activities for each country for which travel is authorized together with a description of the purpose to be served and the areas of Committee jurisdiction involved; and
- (E) the names of members and staff for whom authorization is sought.

(2) Requests for travel outside the United States may be initiated by the Chairman or the chairman of a subcommittee (except that individuals may submit a request to the Chairman for the purpose of attending a conference or meeting) and shall be limited to members and permanent employees of the Committee.

(3) At the conclusion of any hearing, investigation, study, meeting or conference for which travel has been authorized pursuant to this rule, each staff member involved in such travel shall submit a written report to the Chairman covering the activities and other pertinent observations or information gained as a result of such travel.

(d) Applicability of Laws, Rules, Policies.—Members and staff of the Committee performing authorized travel on official business shall be governed by applicable laws, resolutions, or regulations of the House and of the Committee on House Oversight pertaining to such travel, and by the travel policy of the Committee as set forth in the Committee Travel Manual.

RULE XV.—POWERS AND DUTIES OF SUBCOMMITTEES

(a) Authority to Sit.—Each subcommittee is authorized to meet, hold hearings, receive evidence, and report to the full Committee on all matters referred to it or under its jurisdiction. (b) Disclaimer.—All Committee or subcommittee reports printed pursuant to legislative study or investigation and not approved by a majority vote of the Committee or subcommittee, as appropriate, shall contain the following disclaimer on the cover of such report:

"This report has not been officially adopted by the Committee on (or pertinent subcommittee thereof) and may not therefore necessarily reflect the views of its members."

(c) Consideration by Committee.—Each bill, resolution, or other matter favorably reported by a subcommittee shall automatically be placed upon the agenda of the Committee. Any such matter reported by a subcommittee shall not be considered by the Committee unless it has been delivered to the offices of all members of the Committee at least 48 hours before the meeting, unless the Chairman determines that the matter is of such urgency that it should be given early consideration. Where practicable, such matters shall be accompanied by a comparison with present law and a section-by-section analysis.

RULE XVI.—REFERRAL OF LEGISLATION TO SUBCOMMITTEES

(a) General Requirement.—Except where the Chairman of the Committee determines, in consultation with the majority members of the Committee, that consideration is to be by the full Committee, each bill, resolution, investigation, or other matter which relates to a subject listed under the jurisdiction of any subcommittee established in Rule XIV referred to or initiated by the full Committee shall be referred by the Chairman to all subcommittees of appropriate jurisdiction within two weeks. All bills shall be referred to the subcommittee of proper jurisdiction without regard to whether the author is or is not a member of the subcommittee.

(b) Recall from Subcommittee.—A bill, resolution, or other matter referred to a subcommittee in accordance with this rule may be recalled therefrom at any time by a vote of the majority members of the Committee for the Committee's direct consideration or for reference to another subcommittee.

(c) Multiple Referrals.—In carrying out this Rule with respect to any matter, the Chairman may refer the matter simultaneously to two or more subcommittees for concurrent consideration or for consideration in sequence (subject to appropriate time limitations in the case of any subcommittee after the first), or divide the matter into two or more parts (reflecting different subjects and jurisdictions) and refer each such part to a different subcommittee, or make such other provisions as he or she considers appropriate.

Vol. 141

WASHINGTON, MONDAY, JANUARY 30, 1995

No. 18

Senate

The Senate met at 1 p.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Richard C. Halverson, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Let us pray:

Tomorrow morning, Officer David Agner will have surgery near his brain—very serious. In a moment of silence, let us remember the officer and his family.

Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.—Revelation 4:11.

Gracious God and Father, the Founders of our Republic understood this fundamental truth and, upon it, based their conviction of human equality, human rights, and a government whose purpose was to secure these rights and whose authority was derived from the people. Grant us to see, O God, that if we undermine this foundation of our Government, we, sooner or later, jeopardize the superstructure which was built upon it. As we forsake the root of our national uniqueness, we forfeit the fruit.

Help us to comprehend, dear God, that this is one explanation for the futility of our best human efforts today. We are struggling to preserve the benefits of a belief which we no longer hold to be true. We have smashed the foundation and are striving to prevent the superstructure from collapsing.

Forgive the secularism, the antisupernaturalism which we have exchanged for faith in a Creator God which motivated our Founding Fathers. Restore unto us their beliefs that we may recover the riches of the legacy they transmitted to us before it is too late.

We pray this in the name of Him who is the Light of the world. Amen.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

At 2 o'clock begins the consideration of House Joint Resolution 1, the balanced budget constitutional amendment. There will be debate only today. And by order of the majority leader, there will be no rollcall votes for today.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 2 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak therein for not to exceed 10 minutes each. Under the previous order, the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD] is to be recognized to speak for up to 15 minutes.

Mr. GORTON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). The Senator from Washington is recognized.

CONGRESSMAN STEVE LARGENT

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, late last week, the Member of Congress from the First District in the State of Oklahoma [STEVE LARGENT] was voted into the National Football League's Hall of Fame in the first year during which he was eligible for that honor.

While Mr. LARGENT represents a State a long way from my own State of Washington, his entire National Football League career was, of course, as a member of the Seattle Seahawks. And so for many years, for more than half of the year he was a resident of the Puget Sound region.

Very rarely have so many distinctions come to a person of the age of STEVE LARGENT, as an outstanding football player, both in college and in the National Football League, as an elected Member of the Congress of the United States, and as a person with a great deal of fame. Rarely, I may say, has anyone so deserved those honors.

I think STEVE LARGENT would be the first to say that he was far from the fastest or the most gifted person playing in the National Football League, but due to a tremendous amount of self-discipline and dedication, he became one of the most outstanding persons in our generation to play that fascinating game.

But I believe that Mr. LARGENT and all of us would say that more important than his fame as a football player, more important than his membership in the Congress of the United States, has been the example he has presented to those who have come to know him through those activities as a human being: As a husband, as a father, as an activist Christian. With those as his No. 1 goals, he has nonetheless been professionally successful, now, in two dramatically different professions.

We speak often of the role model nature of professional athletes. In STEVE LARGENT, we have an athlete who is truly a role model for our society; an individual who has shown that fame and high income is not inconsistent with the finest possible family and citizen leadership that it is possible for us to imagine. Last week, Congressman LARGENT was a part of the debate in the House of Representatives over a balanced budget amendment on which debate will begin in this body in less than an hour. So he is now serving in as distinguished a fashion as a Member of this Congress as he did as a member of the Seattle Seahawks and the National Football League. But most of all, our friend and exemplar, STEVE LARGENT, is a person who shows what citizenship and membership in a family ought to be in the United States of America.

So it is that we, from the State of Washington, are grateful for his long association with us. We wish, along with the people of Oklahoma, and especially of his First Congressional District, to congratulate him on an honor well earned and to wish him long years of success in his new career and a lifetime of success as a leader of the people he represents.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized. I might suggest the Senator from North Dakota is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. CONRAD pertaining to the introduction of S. 293 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. SIMON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

MONTHLY REPORT TO THE SENATE

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, and my colleagues in the Senate. On November 14, I announced that I will not be a candidate for reelection to the Senate nor for any other office. I will be leaving with great respect for this body and with great appreciation to the people of Illinois who made it possible for me to serve here.

The evening of my announcement, President Clinton called me from Jakarta, Indonesia, to wish me the best. He made a suggestion: Once a month I should report to the public on what is happening and what should happen in Congress. He indicated that since I will not be a candidate for reelection, my words might take on added significance and not be viewed as another partisan speech.

I am making the first of my monthly comments today, the 113th anniversary of the birth of Franklin D. Roosevelt, a President who has been praised recently by both President Clinton and

Speaker NEWT GINGRICH. FDR and Congress worked together on the huge problems the Nation then faced.

A glance at the policy landscape provides these recent positive developments, from my perspective:

First, a peaceful change in the majority party in both Houses of Congress. While I personally would have preferred retaining Democratic majorities in the House and Senate, I also recognize that for a free system to thrive, peaceful change must occur from time to time.

Second, Congress has voted to place the laws and regulations that govern our private sector counterparts on itself, and the President has signed that measure. That will protect our employees better and make us more sensitive to the difficulties others face.

Third, the Senate Judiciary Committee—and now the full House of Representatives—have approved a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. The passage of the amendment first urged by Thomas Jefferson come none too soon as we careen down the fiscal hill toward the fate of far too many nations: monetizing the debt, meeting our obligations by printing more and more money that is worth less and less.

There are negative developments also. I would include:

First, excessive partisanship in Congress by both political parties as we adjust to the new status each has. That we will differ on issues is both natural and healthy; that we are sometime petty in our differences may be natural for all of us who have above-average egos, but it is not healthy.

Second, a mean-spiritedness toward the poor surfaces in too much discussion of welfare reform, sometimes bordering on racism. We need genuine welfare reform. The danger is that we will move organizational boxes around on a chart and try to convince the public and ourselves that we have done something constructive. Even worse, there is talk of taking punitive action against poor people.

Third, the two parties have entered into a bidding war on tax cuts. Many of the Republicans promised one in their Contract With America, and President Clinton pledged the same in altered form. Both sides are wrong. If I may personalize this, I face a choice of giving myself a small tax cut and imposing a further burden on my three grandchildren, or sacrificing a little and providing a better future for my grandchildren. I do not have a difficult time making that choice, and I do not believe most Americans do. We should pledge a reduction in the deficit instead of a tax cut.

Others can provide additional pluses and minuses.

But one issue that dominated the political landscape only a few months ago is almost absent: health care. Yes, the President—to his credit—mentioned it in his State of the Union Message, but little is said on the floors of the House and Senate about this massive problem. Television and radio news programs rarely mention it. What once was a dominant issue at town meetings in my State has almost staged a disappearing act.

But it will not disappear, not as long as almost 40 million Americans remain unprotected, the only citizens of any modern industrial nation with that status. It will not disappear as long as Americans are added to the lists of uninsured at the rate of more than 91,000 every month, 3,055 every day.

Since the day President Clinton waved his pen at us in a joint session of Congress on January 25, 1994, 1.1 million more Americans have lost their health insurance coverage, bringing the total to 39.7 million. And costs continue to escalate. Medicare spending, for example, will double in the next 7 years and will then consume 16 percent of our total Federal spending. But we cannot tackle Medicare costs without tackling the health care costs in the rest of our economy. As we cut from Medicare, we shift the burden to the private sector—and every private-paying patient makes up the difference when Medicare underpays hospitals by about $13 billion every year, as it does now.

Seven days ago marked 56 years since Franklin Roosevelt sent a message to Congress for a national health program. But early in 1931, as Governor of New York, he reported to the legislature of that State: "The success or failure of any government in the final analysis must be measured by the well-being of its citizens. Nothing can be more important [than] * * * the health of its people." Since then, Harry Truman and Richard Nixon and Bill Clinton have called upon us to protect our citizens better, and Congress has failed to respond.

This issue will not go away. It is more than grim statistics. It is my former staff member, now a consultant with the Federal Government but without health insurance coverage because she is technically not an employee. At a dinner with two friends, she suddenly experienced chest pains, paleness, perspiration, and nausea—often symptoms of a heart attack. She refused to go to a hospital for fear of the cost. It turned out she has a problem with food poisoning that was not serious. But how many people have died who actually have had heart attacks in that situation? A woman in McHenry, IL, wrote to me about the health coverage horrors her daughter and son-in-law have gone through, facing the loss of their home and car. And then this woman who wrote to me added:

I have had cancer, so I can never quit my job as no one else will give me insurance. My husband has had ileitis and two types of diabetes so no one will give him insurance. We are trapped in our jobs and could not afford to pay for our own insurance if we ever got permanently laid off or had to switch jobs. We are 48 and 53 years old and this is a scary thought.

Or listen to this man from Oak Lawn, IL:

I am a Republican and will continue to vote Republican. However * * * during some lean times I had to let my health insurance lapse. It was not, as some politicians and demagogos so smugly suggest, because I spent the money on recreation. I spent the money on food, rent, and bills. But I was forced to stay in the hospital a while. Now I am completely financially ruined. I'm 41 years old and I'm ruined.

Or the mother in Ottawa, IL, injured in an automobile accident, whose husband suffered injury in a work-related accident and must find different work. She writes

My husband and I and three children ages 18, 12, and 10 are now without health benefits. Due to our disabilities and unfair treatment by insurance companies our financial situation is dire.

The stories go on and on.

Those stories will multiply if we do not act. And other changes in health care delivery are emerging. Each week fewer and fewer Americans have an independent choice of physician. Each week, for-profit corporations are taking over not-for-profit hospitals, reducing the number of nurses on duty and requiring resident physicians to see more patients in less time, diminishing the quality of health delivery. At least one physician in Illinois has decided to give up the practice rather than provide care that uses mass production techniques.

And Medicaid patients—poor people—routinely are given the cold shoulder for nonemergency care by many hospitals who prefer patients with insurance coverage.

The United States is the wealthiest nation but not the healthiest nation. Twenty-one nations have lower infant mortality rates than we do, and 23 industrialized nations have fewer low-birthweights babies. Yet these countries spend far less on health care than we do, and many have a longer average lifespan. That is not because of an act of God but because of flawed policy. Our poor health record did not come as some divine edict from above but emerged from the indifference of men and women in this very room.

Why? Part of the reason was complexity and delay on the part of those of us who supported a health coverage program. But that is only a part of the picture. What primarily caused the confusion and opposition was the greed on the part of those who profit from their cut in this trillion-dollar business. Newsweek reported that opponents spend $400 million, more than twice what the two major Presidential candidates spend in the last two elections combined. When CEO's who are engaged in the present system pocket as much as $10 million in 1 year, do you think they will be anxious to alter the present procedures which help them and hurt millions of Americans? The Wall Street Journal recently stated that Health Systems International of Colorado has $475 million in cash, and the amount is growing by $500,000 a day, and the Journal reports they are "hunting for new ways to park the money." Do they want to change the system? The same article quotes Margo Vignola of Salomon Brothers saying that the top nine HMO's have $9.5 billion in cash, "way beyond what HMO's need." Do they want to change the system? Pfizer, the pharmaceutical company, gave $221,235 to the Republican national committees in soft money before the election. Did they do that because they want to change the system?

The common assumption is that with a Democratic President and a Republican Congress, no significant progress in health care can be made. I challenge that assumption.

The greatest contribution of Harry Truman's Presidency—one of many significant contributions he made—was the creation of the Marshall plan. To many it seemed doomed when offered. The first Gallup Poll after its proposal showed only 14 percent of the American people supported it. On top of that, after the 1946 election, President Truman had to work with a Republican Congress. But one man, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, a key Republican, stood up strongly and supported the Marshall plan and helped to save Western Europe. The Republicans in the Senate have designated as their new leader on health care Senator ROBERT BENNETT of Utah, one of the more thoughtful Members of this body. Is it possible that he, together with the new chair of the Finance Committee, BOB PACKWOOD, can be the Arthur Vandenberg of our generation?

It is politically understandable that Republican Senators might have been reluctant to work with Democrats on health care reform in the 103d Congress, for fear that they would hand Democrats a legislative victory. But now, that is behind us. With Republicans in control of both Chambers of Congress, there is no question that bipartisan agreement on health care will be of benefit to the broad public and not simply a political victory for one party at the expense of the other.

Could we, for example, at least provide coverage for all pregnant women and children age 6 and under? Do we have the courage to stand up to the profiteers to at least do that?

Let me add that it is not enough for Senators to stand up. They are not likely to do it in splendid isolation. Business and labor leaders, professional people and those who have been abused by this system must join in a chorus for action. Their voices will not be as strong as the decibel level of those who speak from greed, but Senators and House Members should know that there are at least some Americans who know and understand the dimensions and the importance of the issue.

There are occasions when we, in the Senate, must ask ourselves: Why are we here? Let us look in the faces of 39 million Americans without health care coverage and ask ourselves that question. Let us look at the millions more who will lose their coverage if they lose their jobs or change jobs. Let us not be silent and unresponsive to their pleas for help. Let us not be so eager to hold public office that we violate the public trust, not by disobeying the law, but by following the shifting winds of public opinion and the pressures of big campaign donors.

There are no Americans who today look to their forebears and say with pride, "He or she voted against creating Social Security." There are no Americans who look to their grandparents or great-grandparents and say with pride, "He or she voted against Medicare."

We are not here in the Senate simply to assume an exalted title and let the media message our egos. We are here to create a better future for our people and for generations to come. In the last session, the Senate did not even vote on health care. That will not happen again. But we should do more than give ourselves an opportunity to vote. We should, in a fiscally prudent, pay-as-you-go way, give all Americans what we as legislators and Federal employees have: health care protection. We should give future generations the ability to look back upon us with pride and say, "They were the first political leaders to guarantee health care coverage for all our citizens."

Mr. THOMAS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

THE PASSING OF LORNA KOOI SIMPSON

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I rise today for a short tribute to a lady from Wyoming who passed away last week, a lady who certainly was a rare and wonderful gem, not only for Wyoming but for this country as well. She was someone that I had the great privilege of knowing and admiring, Lorna Kooi Simpson.

My friend AL SIMPSON and the entire Simpson family lost a wonderful mother and caregiver last week. We all have lost one of the greatest ladies of Wyoming and the dearest of souls. Her devotion to her family, community, State and Nation are a legacy. Indeed she is part of the very fabric of Wyoming.

Lorna Simpson began her long distinguished life on August 19, 1900—the daughter of a Dutch immigrant. With her family Lorna Simpson moved West. In 1929 Lorna married an exceptional young man, a lawyer, from Cody, WY—Milward Simpson. He was a State legislator for Wyoming and a man destined to lead his State. Together they had two sons, Peter and ALAN. In Lorna, Milward found an equally dedicated soul and a partner to do the work few of us have the means to accomplish.

Lorna, like the rest of her family, went on to do great things. She was a stalwart of her community and State; active in community service, business, the war effort and of course politics.

She was a special young woman who, along with her husband, made up one of the most successful and respected teams Wyoming has ever known.

In 1954 Lorna became the First Lady of Wyoming after helping her husband become Wyoming's Governor. There in Cheyenne her reputation only grew as a caring compassionate person who put so much of her time and spirit into the youth of Wyoming.

Milward Simpson and his dear wife gave their unique talents and thoughtful style to Washington in 1962 when Milward served Wyoming until 1966 as a Member of this body. During her time here Lorna was named by the Senate to be the representative of the Women of the United States to the Organization of American States. In addition, she worked tirelessly to refurbish and extend the use of the Senate Chapel.

Their sons, Pete and AL, have gone on to great things. Pete Simpson as the University of Wyoming's vice president for development and alumni and university relations, AL SIMPSON, like his father, of course, as one of the most respected Members of this body.

As a wife, mother, First Lady, adviser, grandmother, and great-grandmother Lorna Simpson touched countless lives and helped so many people. Her accomplishments, the people she touched could never really be fully listed.

Susan and I join so many in grieving the passage of a lady who was truly the very best of Wyoming.

Thank you, Mr. President.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

SECOND READING OF A BILL—S.
290

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the bill for the second time.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 290), relating to the treatment of Social Security under any constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. President, I object to further consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Maine is recognized.

Mr. COHEN. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. COHEN pertaining to the introduction of S. 294 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. MURKOWSKI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I thank the Chair. I ask how much time remains for morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business continues until the hour of 2 o'clock. The Senator is being recognized for up to 10 minutes.

UNITED STATES-NORTH KOREA
FRAMEWORK AGREEMENT

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I intend to make a brief statement on the status of the joint United States-North Korea agreed framework covering nuclear issues.

I had the pleasure of visiting North Korea, along with Senator SIMON, who is here on the floor today. As a consequence of that particular visit, the framework agreement has been an issue of great concern to me and an issue worthy of congressional scrutiny.

There have been a number of hearings on the agreed framework. The Intelligence Committee, the Energy Committee, the Foreign Relations Committee, and the Armed Services Committee have addressed this subject. I had an opportunity to speak before the Armed Services Committee just the other day. I want to commend that committee for its important role in reviewing the agreement, because there are some 37,000 American troops on the demilitarized zone in South Korea. They are certainly exposed to harm should any conflict arise on the Korean Peninsula.

It is interesting to note that under Armed Services Committee oversight, the Department of Defense has seen fit to fund the purchase of approximately 50,000 tons of oil. The first shipment called for under the agreed framework.

Now, Mr. President, I would like to briefly raise three specific areas of concern about the framework agreement. The first is the fate of 8,177 Americans still unaccounted for in North Korea following the Korean war north of the 38th parallel. I find it interesting to reflect on that staggering figure, when we recognize that currently today in Vietnam, we have somewhat less than 1,700 unaccounted for.

We have an obligation, Mr. President, to get the answers. How do we get the answers? Well, it is certainly a matter of access. The North Koreans must allow the United States access, including joint recovery teams that proved so successful in Vietnam. In fact, in North Korea, unlike Vietnam, we know the precise location of over 2,000 grave sites and prisoner-of-war camps. We simply cannot get in.

During our visit to Pyongyang, Senator SIMON and I delivered a letter to President Kim Jong Il. The letter was given to the Foreign Minister and he assured us it had been delivered to President Kim Jong Il.

At the conclusion of my remarks, I will ask unanimous consent that a copy of that letter be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. President, to my knowledge we have received no answer to the letter delivered to President Kim Jong Il.

I call on the North Korean leadership to respond favorably to our request for joint recovery teams and further cooperation. It is fair to say that the few remains repatriated thus far have not been well handled. Moreover, there appears to be a profit motive associated with those remains. We have had unofficial indications that the DPRK wants up to $30,000 U.S. per remain. This is an outrageous sum compared to the $2,000 figure used for reimbursement in Vietnam.

It is inconceivable to me, Mr. President, that as to the lack of cooperation in fullest possible accounting for those Americans lost in the Korean conflict, there has not been a demand by the administration in the framework agreement that this matter be addressed. I think this is the highest requirement of Government—fullest possible accounting of those who gave so much for our freedoms. Why has it not been included if the framework agreement? Moreover, the administration has not yet seen fit to respond to the inquiries that this Senator has made in that regard.

I would also like to call this body's attention to the comparison between Vietnam and North Korea. The administration has moved faster in 3 months with North Korea than in the last 3 years with Vietnam toward diplomatic and trade relation, despite the fact that Vietnam has taken many good-faith steps by providing cooperation, including joint recovery teams.

One other interesting comparison, not related to the MIA issue, is the fact that we have agreed to provide the North Koreans with light-water. Yet, we are prohibited from selling that same technology to China.

The second issue I want to talk about is the lack of dialog between North and South Korea. One of the requirements of the framework agreement is that there be a dialog. Without a meaningful dialog between the North and South, it will be impossible to implement the agreed framework. Based on administration representations, we anticipate that South Korea and Japan will pick up substantial costs associated with the delivery of the light-water reactors—at least $4 billion. We also anticipate other countries to cover the delivery of a significant amount of oil, approximately 500,000 tons per year over a period of years.

I do not believe that South Korea can make such a commitment to the North without a political dialog. But at this point, there is no such dialog. The North is still demanding an apology from President Kim Young-sam for the alleged insensitivity on the death of Kim Il-song, and yet the North continues with propaganda against the South.

Mr. President, section three of the framework agreement between the United States and North Korean requires that the North Koreans will engage in a North-South dialog and that the North Koreans will consistently take steps to implement the North-South declaration on the demilitarization of the Korean Peninsula.

I am gratified that references to North-South issues were included in the agreed framework, but I am concerned that the references do not have specificity. For example, at what point will the United States stop fulfilling its commitments under the agreement framework if there has not been progress in the North-South relations? Just a few days ago, I introduced a resolution, Senate Concurrent Resolution 4 that calls on the executive branch to take steps to ensure that implementation of the agreed framework is linked to the substantive and rapid progress in the dialog between the North and the South.

I hope this resolution is a step in the right direction.

Finally, Mr. President, I think it is appropriate to comment on one of the administration's defenses of the agreed framework. In response to any criticism of the deal itself, the administration response that it was this agreement or war.

Although I know that this is second-guessing, I maintain we could have negotiated a better deal. The agreed framework is a bad deal because we left out the inspections of the two suspected nuclear waste sites. What does North Korea have to hide? We still do not know. The administration walked up to the line with sanctions because of North Korea's refusal to agree to the IAEA inspections of the two suspected nuclear sites.

But then, if you will recall, President Carter went to North Korea and got Kim Il-song to agree to a freeze, which the Clinton administration apparently felt compelled to accept. We lost leverage with our allies, such as China and Japan, to go ahead with the sanctions at a time when, in my opinion, North Korea was ready to collapse from within. It could not depend on the Soviet Union anymore; it could not depend on the Chinese for subsidized oil. They were totally isolated.

Although I readily agree that the North Koreans were desparate and dangerous, I would like my colleague to reflect on the comparison to the Soviet Union. During the cold war, the Soviets were a documented nuclear threat. The Reagan administration, rather than backing down, chose to bring the Soviet Union to its knees in an arms race.

So today we have an isolated and broke North Korea. Moreover, Mr. President, I believe there is a leadership vacuum after the death of Kim Il-song. So who are we helping?

Perhaps we should wait to see if a moderate regime will come forward rather than giving the current totalitarian regime a new life? I believe we are rewarding North Korea's bad behavior, and it sets an unfortunate precedent.

I have indicated previously that I believe that we are bound by agreements executed by our executive branch, even though it is an agreement that, in my judgment, is a poor agreement because it carries a scent of appeasement. But if the administration has to come back to the Congress to fund it—if South Korea and Japan do not come forward—then as far as this Senator is concerned, all bets are off for this agreement.

I ask unanimous consent that a letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
December 9, 1994.

His Excellency KIM JONG IL,
Supreme Leader of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

EXCELLENCY: As guests in your country, we are writing to express our hopes concerning the evolving relationship between the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the United States of America. It is our hope that this will lead to the resolution of questions concerning the fate of the 8,177 Americans and thousands of other United Nations personnel still unaccounted for following the conflict of 1950-1953 and believed to be missing north of the 38th parallel.

We recognize that determining the fate of these missing service-members will be difficult, as we have seen in attempting to obtain the fullest possible accounting in other countries. Progress will require constant effort and a sincere commitment to resolve this sensitive issue. In this regard, we encourage the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to agree to joint participation by the United States in the recovery of remains of servicemembers still unaccounted for north of the 38th parallel.

The American people take most seriously the obligation for the fullest possible accounting of those who are still missing in action. As senior members of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the United States Senate, we appreciate the opportunity to communicate directly with you and we urge your best efforts and decisive leadership on this important and serious humanitarian matter.

Sincerely,

PAUL SIMON,
U.S. Senator.
FRANK H. MURKOWSKI,
U.S. Senator.

"MAJOR MOM"—A TRIBUTE TO MAJOR DEBRA BIELY, USMC

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, Congressional fellows are an integral part of our business here on Capitol Hill. They come from throughout the executive branch and bring a wealth of expertise and perspective to their work.

The most recent fellow to serve in my office was not only an outstanding addition to the staff for nearly 2 years, but was rather unique to us in that she was a major in the U.S. Marine Corps. She was also a dedicated mother of two, and became affectionately known among the staff as "Major Mom."

Maj. Debra Biely is a dedicated, intelligent, and extremely articulate professional who quickly became a valued and trusted member of my legislative staff. As a military LA, she worked on the full range of issues relating to national defense and the space program. Her years of experience as a Marine officer, together with her in-depth understanding of the programming and budgeting process, were always evident in the quality, accuracy, and timeliness of her work.

Major Biely always provided me and my permanent staff with sound, thoughtful analysis of often complex national security issues. She briefed me on such issues as United Nations peacekeeping efforts, the use of Armed Forces in Bosnia, the Marines in Somalia, and the operational control of American forces in international coalitions.

I learned to completely trust her judgment. She often represented me in meetings with constituents, defense contractors, veterans groups, and military program managers. In so doing, Debra was an impressive representative of the Marine Corps to a broad spectrum of people, both within and outside the Government.

She is an excellent writer and researcher. Debra's work during the 1993 Base Closure Commission hearings proved invaluable as she helped prepare me to protect the Nation's only live-agent chemical training facility. She assisted in getting several major programs through the authorization and appropriations processes.

Yes, Maj. Debra Biely is the consummate military professional, and conducted herself as such while serving in my office. But she is also a warm, friendly, and outgoing person, who come to be emulated by the rest of my staff. This "Major Mom" is also thoroughly and completely devoted to her husband and children, and we often marveled at how she could do such a superb job in the office and still devote so much of herself to her family. She was also a tremendous follower of current events, and often was the first to know of major stories in the news. I should add that "Major Mom" only recently completed her master of business administration degree. She truly is one of those modern women who manage to do it all and do all of it well.

Perhaps what we will remember most about Debra's work, and what I personally appreciate the most, is her leadership in the battle to save the International Space Station. She proved to be a committed and tireless worker on this important cause. Her persistent efforts helped pave the way for an overwhelming vote of support for the station in this body. She was recognized by Vice President GORE for her efforts in this regard.

In short, we were fortunate to have Debra on our staff, and, frankly, I wish she could have stayed longer. Her demonstration of loyalty, integrity, and commitment all reflected well on the U.S. Marine Corps, indeed on the entire Armed Forces of our country. Major Biely is a shining example of the quality and professionalism that characterize the ranks of our military personnel today, as well as a significant reminder of the important role that women play in our national defense.

TRIBUTE TO DR. LESLIE S.
WRIGHT

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, the Rotary Club of Birmingham, AL honored Dr. Leslie S. Wright on Wednesday, January 25 for his outstanding leadership during the 1985-88 term as Rotary International's PolioPlus campaign chairman. During his 3-year tenure as leader of this worldwide fundraising effort, Dr. Wright inspired and motivated Rotarians around the globe to more than double their original goal of $120 million. To date, Rotarians, companies, and individuals have donated over $247 million to rid the world of polio by the year 2005.

Not only has the money been raised, but thousands of Rotarians have volunteered countless hours toward 1 billion children being immunized. Our own hemisphere has been declared free of polio and we are well on our way to seeing an end to this dreaded disease before the target date of 2005. Altogether, 141 countries are now polio free. It is a grand understatement to say that the response to Dr. Wright's dynamic leadership was overwhelming.

A native of Birmingham, Leslie S. Wright earned two degrees from the University of Louisville. He has been awarded honorary doctoral degrees by Auburn University, the University of Alabama, Troy State University, Samford University, and the University of Louisville. In 1983, he retired as president of Samford University, having served there since 1958. He remains the university's chancellor.

A Rotarian since 1947, Dr. Wright is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Birmingham. He has served Rotary International as district governor, International assembly instructor, committee member and chairman, and director. He has received the Citation for Meritorious Service and the Distinguished Service Award from the Rotary foundation for his support of its international humanitarian and educational programs. He was appointed a charter member of the Alabama State Ethics Commission in 1973, serving a total of 6 years. He was twice chairman of the commission.

Perhaps more than anyone else, Dr. Wright led the way in the drive to eradicate polio. I can think of no one more deserving of this honor and praise than was recently bestowed by his fellow Rotarians in Birmingham.

I applaud his vision and congratulate him on his many achievements.

THE UAB COMPREHENSIVE CANCER CENTER VACCINE TRIALS

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, as we know, a vaccine against cancer is one of the most eagerly sought objectives of medical science. Preclinical studies and patient trials of several potential vaccines are under way in the United States and Europe.

At the University of Alabama at Birmingham's [UAB] Comprehensive Cancer Center, at least four cancer vaccine strategies are being developed. Two of these approaches are now in clinical trials open to patients. The other two are in development in preclinical animal studies.

In 1993, the National Cancer Institute [NCI] and the UAB Cancer Center entered into a cooperative agreement which provided the center with $1.5 million in support over 5 years to conduct a series of cancer vaccine trials.

The UAB Cancer Center is one of 27 such centers in the Nation that meets the high standards for comprehensive designation by the NCI, and it was one of the first eight so designated in 1973. Now in its 23d year of core grant support by the NCI, the UAB center was renewed this year for core funding over the next 5 years in the range of $27 million. After meticulous review, the NCI also gave the center its highest priority rating based on program excellence.

The trials currently under way at UAB include those for breast cancer, colon cancer, and melanoma. The traditional concept of vaccination is to protect against future exposure to disease. Through work such as that being done at UAB, this concept is now being extended to include therapeutic applications to stimulate the immune system to kill tumor cells or infections like AIDS that already are established in the body.

I want to commend and congratulate the outstanding physicians and scientists at UAB who are working so hard to make the hope of a cancer vaccine a reality. I ask unanimous consent that an article detailing the colon cancer vaccine trials from the Birmingham Post-Herald be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

NEW VACCINE USED TO FIGHT COLON CANCER
(By John Staed)

Birmingham scientists successfully used a vaccine to get the body's immune system to fight colon cancer cells, marking the first time in the world the therapy has worked on human patients.

The University of Alabama at Birmingham researchers also reported plans to test a genetic vaccine for breast cancer in women. The vaccine causes the immune system to recognize and attack breast cancer tumor cells.

Until now, vaccines have normally been used to prevent diseases such as polio or mumps. This new approach by scientists enhances the body's immune system responses to existing diseases, said Dr. Albert LoBuglio, director of the UAB Comprehensive Cancer Center. LoBuglio spoke yesterday during a briefing on developments at the center and UAB's new Vaccine Center.

Among its projects, the vaccine center is examining ways to develop immunizations for bugs that cause pneumonia, to introduce vaccine doses in foods to lower immunization costs, and to find new vaccines for infectious diseases that are increasingly resistant to modern antibiotics.

In the colon cancer research, four patients who had colon cancer tumors surgically removed but who had a 60 percent chance of recurrence were treated over 16 weeks with the new vaccine.

"Two of the four have developed substantial immune responses," LoBuglio said.

"We're hoping it translates into an anti-tumor effect."

Colon cancer, or cancer of the large bowel and rectum, is expected to be diagnosed in 149,000 people this year in the United States. Together, the cancers of the colon and rectum are second only to lung cancer as a cause of cancer deaths.

About half of the colon cancers are cured by traditional treatments. The genetic treatments came after patients had gone through surgery alone or chemotherapy and surgery.

Dr. Robert Conry, co-investigator with LoBuglio, said if the vaccine proved successful through expanded studies, it might be available for clinical use after five years. But, he said, many more safety and reliability studies are needed.

Scientists' expanding knowledge of the body's immune system has been critical in development of the new treatments, Conry said. This information "is allowing us to, in a more informed way, develop vaccines for infectious disease as well as tumors," he said.

The vaccines could help doctors "harness the potential of the immune system" to treat cancers, Conry said. "Since these vaccines have little or no side effects, it will provide a welcome alternative to chemotherapy, which has significant side effects."

Cancer develops from the uncontrolled growth of cells within the body. Normally, the body's immune system would destroy disease, but cancer, because it developed from the body's own cells, goes undetected.

To trick the immune system into attacking the colon cancer cells, scientists enlisted the help of the virus used to eliminate smallpox, the vaccinia virus, and a protein called carcinoembryonic antigen (CEA).

Scientists found a way to use insect cells to safely produce the CEA protein.

The smallpox vaccine with the CEA protein genetically added to it triggers an immune response to malignant cells. The scientists' goal is to prevent recurrence of colon cancer by destroying remaining cancer cell "floaters" that are left circulating in the body after surgery.

In the breast cancer research, scientists will be using a genetically engineered vaccine to both produce an immune response to breast cancer cells and eradicate cancer cells.

One woman has been selected to soon begin the anti-tumor vaccine pilot study, and cancer center officials hope to include 30 women in the trial.

The women must have breast cancer that has spread, but that is responding to hormonal treatments, said Janis Zeanah, a spokeswoman for the cancer center.

Women will be injected with a vaccine containing the CEA protein. Scientists hope that it will cause the immune system to respond the same way as it has in the colon cancer test and destroy the cancerous cells.

MEXICAN LOAN GUARANTEE

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, the New York Times report this morning about the American job losses that may result from Mexico's currency crisis is sobering.

The loss of jobs as the economy of Mexico responds to the peso devaluation is a price that will be paid by American workers and their families. The past 2 years of strong export sales to Mexico have helped create about 770,000 American jobs directly tied to that export market. When that market collapses, those jobs are placed in jeopardy.

That is why we should recognize that the proposed loan guarantee to address Mexico's economic situation is in our national interest. The loan guarantee has been called a bailout and worse, but those who like to throw such terms around don't take into account that real working people's jobs are also at stake.

The loan guarantee is not a foreign aid package.

It is structured to avoid placing Government funds at risk. Mexico would be required to pay loan guarantee fees up front—before the guarantee took effect and before loans would be extended. Those fees would indemnify American taxpayers in exchange for Mexico's right to use our guarantee.

In addition, Mexico would provide security in the form of proceeds from the state-owned petroleum company, guaranteeing that America would be repaid if the loan guarantees were ever activated.

As a result, the extension of loan guarantees would not implicate any Treasury costs in taxpayer dollars. And the risk of exposing tax dollars to possible future loss would be protected by our access to Mexico's export oil earnings.

Even today, the Mexican economy is fundamentally sound. It will rebound and grow. The question for Americans to consider is how long the rebound will take and what potential depths of turmoil the country is likely to encounter in the meantime.

Both those questions matter to Americans because turmoil and joblessness in Mexico will inevitably lead to even greater pressures on our southern border, as people search for a way to earn a living and feed their families.

How long it will take for a Mexican economic recovery matters very much to workers whose products are sold in the Mexican market. They are the Americans whose jobs are at risk today, particularly in the southern border States.

Not only are States like Texas, Arizona, and California the ones to which illegal entrants are first drawn, these are also the States with some of the highest export sales to Mexico.

California sells $5 billion worth of products to Mexico each year. Nearly 20 percent of Arizona's export sales are made in Mexico. Texas relies on the Mexican market for more than one-third of all its overseas sales—$13 billion per year.

So, while the jobs of American workers will be placed at risk because of the collapse of the Mexican market for their goods, those border States will also face the pressures of increased illegal entrants.

But the job and income losses will not be limited to the southern border States. States all over the country sell products to Mexico, and residents of practically every State are employed in the process. Even South Dakota, which is one of the Nation's smaller States in terms of population, had sales of $4 million per year to the Mexican market.

I know $4 million doesn't sound like much compared to $13 billion from Texas, but, in a small State, we take our millions very seriously.

Changes in traditional export relationships are occurring very quickly in today's new global marketplace. Our premier trading partners are Canada and Japan. However, last year our sales to Mexico practically equalled our sales to Japan.

More American exports mean more American jobs. Export-related jobs are relatively high-wage jobs, typically paying between 10 and 20 percent more than the average American job. So, export jobs are among the most desirable in the economy. When they're placed at risk, more income is jeopardized, and a replacement job at a similar income is harder to find.

The growth of our Mexican exports to a total of $41 billion in 1993 is estimated to have reached more than 10 percent in 1994. In all, since 1987, American sales to Mexico have almost doubled. It's not surprising that private economic forecasters are predicting the potential for significantly large American job losses if this market is allowed to crumble.

We cannot change what has already happened. The peso devaluation that caused the temporary economic reaction in Mexico is a fact of history. But we can help determine how severe its fallout will be for Americans by the speed and firmness with which we act now.

This should not be an opportunity for partisan posturing. We are not talking about the loss of Republican jobs or Democratic jobs. We are talking about the loss of American jobs. Those workers ought to be able to rely on their Congress to set partisanship aside when their livelihood is at stake.

The former President of the United States, President Bush, on January 19, agreed that it is vital for Congress to move promptly on the loan guarantee package.

President Bush stated,

The plan is not a giveaway. * * * In my view, the guarantees will never have to be called.

On January 18, President Clinton said,

The guarantees we will provide are not foreign aid. They are not a gift. They are not a bailout. They are not U.S. Government loans. And they will not affect our current budget deficit. * * * no guarantees will be issued unless we are satisfied that Mexico can provide assured means of repayment.

Both Presidents are right. The plan is not a giveaway. It is the loan of a hose to a neighbor whose house is on fire. We're not proposing to build a fire station and equip it. We're just passing the hose across the fence.

I hope the Congress can agree to set aside partisan bickering and do the right thing now. It's never easy to stand up and vote for something when the polls indicate that people may not understand it, or might draw the wrong conclusions.

But it is the task of leaders to lead. This is the right thing to do—not just for our neighbor and trading partner to the south, but for America. I hope my colleagues in the Senate—on both sides of the aisle—will work with the administration to approve the proposed loan guarantee legislation as quickly as possible.

THE PATH TO A BUDGET PACKAGE

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, there will be much discussion about what will be in the budget package this year. The President will present his list of program terminations, reforms, and money saving proposals. The Congress working with Governors, State and local officials, and many others will start work on a fiscal blueprint for the country's future. And newspapers every day for the next few weeks will be filled with stories about various money saving ideas that are under consideration.

I want to describe the decision-making process that will be going on over the next few months. I also want to tell you why these budget proposals are under consideration in the first place, and how they fit into the bigger picture—the future prosperity of our country. Most important, keep in mind that these are only preliminary proposals and final decisions won't be made until a great deal of fact finding has been done.

The United States currently has $4.8 trillion in outstanding debt. Just paying the interest on the debt takes 14 cents out of every dollar Americans are paying in Federal income taxes. Every man, woman, and child's share of the national debt is more than $18,000. Current estimates show our annual deficit increasing every year, growing from $175 billion this year to over $250 billion in the year 2000. We are mortgaging our children's and grandchildren's future.

This premise was eloquently stated by Laurence Tribe of Harvard Law School:

Given the centrality in our revolutionary origins of the precept that there should be no taxation without representation, it seems especially fitting in principle that we cannot spend our children's legacy.

Deficit spending and adding to the national debt cannot go on. Governments are no different than families. We all know friends who have let their personal finances get out of hand. Some of us have experienced it ourselves. At some point the out-of-control spending catches up and the credit cards have to be cut up or the family goes bankrupt.

When governments let their deficit spending get out of control, citizens suffer. The economy produces fewer and lower paying jobs. This relationship between our Nation's spending habits and their impact on our economy's ability to create good jobs gives every American an important stake in putting our fiscal house in order.

To achieve this goal, every Federal program and expenditure, except Social Security, is being evaluated in a bottom-up and top-down review. During the next few months Congress will be considering how to best reduce the size of the Federal Government and implement fiscal policies that will create a strong economy and good jobs. There are hundreds of proposals that are under consideration. Some are sound, others less so. Some are fair, others are not.

One of the best fiscal policies for a prosperous future is a balanced budget. A balanced budget constitutional amendment requires the Federal Government to spend $1.1 trillion less than it is currently projected to spend over the next 7 years, and yet total Federal spending will still increase every year. In the year 2002—if we reach balance—the Federal Government will expend $1.9 trillion; this year the Federal Government will expend $1.5 trillion.

Part of the task is to establish the appropriate metes and bounds of the Federal Government. We need to determine how and on what programs the Government in Washington should be spending our taxpayers' money. There will be a philosophical discussion about the role of the Federal Government in our daily lives. Important questions will be answered. How can taxpayer dollars best and most efficiently be spent? How can we make programs work better and save money? Are there better ways to provide Government services? Are there lessons Congress could learn from State and local governments? Could the private sector do a better job in providing those services that are not quintessential government functions?

There is a feeling that the Government in Washington has been trying to micromanage everyone's lives. And while the Federal Government has been attempting to run everyone else's business, there is a sense that no one has been adequately managing the Government in Washington. Reversing this trend is part of putting our fiscal house in order by developing this year's budget plan.

It would be more consistent with our Founding Fathers' vision of a limited Federal Government with enumerated powers if the Federal Government did less.

Our country would be a better country if some services were provided by the State and local governments instead of the Federal Government. I believe the Federal Government should enter into a new partnership with the States so that the Federal Government imposes fewer strings, fewer rules, and fewer regulations. In addition to achieving more sensible Government, this new Federal-State and local government partnership could provide the same level of service with fewer taxpayers' dollars. If the strings attached to Federal funding were cut, fewer Federal dollars would be needed to do the same job and fewer taxes being paid by hard working families. This is a win-win solution.

In New Mexico, the Governor and I are eager to forge this new partnership so that government, at all levels, sets the right priorities.

We already know what some of the priorities are; improving crime prevention, detection, and prosecution; preserving the national laboratories; and, making sure New Mexico's military bases maximize their contribution to our national defense.

If the future means lower taxes and less Washington-dictated Government, this evaluation needs to take place. This is what will be going on in the Senate Budget Committee.

On the first day of the new Congress, the Senate cut the size of congressional committee budgets by 15 percent. We are going to lead by example. We are also going to proceed with caution and compassion. I want you to know that throughout this process, it is my intention for everyone to be treated fairly. In making the Federal Government more responsive to its citizens, we must keep in mind the neediest among us. We are a great nation founded on the notion of equal opportunity. Unfortunately, too many of our programs create unintended dependency traps. Part of this Congress' work program is to provide more intelligent programs that provide choices and restore opportunity.

I hope the budget we produce will reflect the priorities of the American people, forge a new partnership with the States, meet the requirements of the balanced budget constitutional amendment, and most important, put into law responsible fiscal policies that will let the economy create good paying jobs and a brighter future for our children and grandchildren.

IS CONGRESS IRRESPONSIBLE? YOU BE THE JUDGE OF THAT

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, the incredibly enormous Federal debt is a lot like television's well-known energizer bunny—it keeps going and going—at the expense, of course, of the American taxpayer.

A lot of politicians talk a good game, when they are back home, about bringing Federal deficits and the Federal debt under control. But so many of these same politicians regularly voted in support of bloated spending bills during the 103d Congress—which perhaps is a primary factor in the new configuration of U.S. Senators.

This is a rather distressing fact as the 104th Congress gets down to business. As of Friday, January 27, 1995, the Federal debt stood—down to the penny—at exactly $4,805,320,933,038.83 or $18,241.08 per person.

Mr. President, it is important that all of us monitor, closely and constantly the incredible cost of merely paying the interest on this debt. Last year, the interest on the Federal debt totaled $190 billion.

Mr. President, my hope is that the 104th Congress can bring under control the outrageous spending that created this outrageous debt. If the party now controlling both Houses of Congress, as a result of the November elections last year, does not do a better job of getting a handle on this enormous debt, the American people are not likely to overlook it in 1996.

THE LATE LORNA SIMPSON

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, the Senate is a place of great camaraderie and congeniality, and over the past four decades, I have been fortunate to have made a number of very good friends here. Regrettably, I rise today to memorialize one of them, Mrs. Lorna Simpson.

Lorna is known to all of us as the mother of our colleague, Senator AL SIMPSON, the dedicated and gregarious senior Senator from Wyoming. While most Members probably had the opportunity to meet this kind and warm woman, few are fortunate to have known her as well as I.

I first came to know Lorna in 1962 when her husband was elected to the U.S. Senate and he moved into an office near mine. The Simpsons quickly became my close friends and I very much enjoyed spending time with Al and Lorna.

While Lorna was a consummate entertainer, she was a woman who was civically active and took a strong role in supporting her husband's business enterprises. Every community in which the Simpsons lived benefited from the efforts of Lorna as she contributed her time and efforts to numerous causes including the Red Cross and programs that restored various historic sites. During World War II, Lorna contributed to the war effort by chairing Cody Wyoming's black and scrap metal committees and even served as the acting editor of the local paper. Among her many other activities in the subsequent years, she assisted her husband in negotiations with the Israeli Government concerning gas and oil exploration in that country, and later she served as the representative of the women of the United States to the Organization of American States.

Mr. President, I know everyone will agree with me that Lorna Simpson was a unique woman and a lady in every respect. She possessed high ideals, a lovely character, a friendly personality and all the good qualities that signify the perfect lady. She was a woman who was devoted to her husband and family and she added much to the lives of those whom she touched. Senator AL SIMPSON and his lovely wife Ann have my deepest sympathies and they, along with AL's brother Peter and the entire Simpson family, are in my thoughts and prayers.

BUDGET SCOREKEEPING REPORT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I hereby submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report prepared by the Congressional Budget Office under section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended. This report meets the requirements for Senate scorekeeping of section 5 of Senate Concurrent Resolution 32, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for 1986.

This report shows the effects of congressional action on the budget through January 27, 1995. The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues, which are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of the concurrent resolution on the budget, House Concurrent Resolution 218, show that current level spending is below the budget resolution by $2.3 billion in budget authority and $0.4 billion in outlays. Current level is $0.8 billion over the revenue floor in 1995 and below by $8.2 billion over the 5 years 1995-99. The current estimate of the deficit for purposes of calculating the maximum deficit amount is $238.7 billion, $2.3 billion below the maximum deficit amount for 1995 of $241.0 billion.

Since my last report, dated January 17, 1995, there has been no action that affects the current level of budget authority, outlays, or revenues.

There being no objection, the report was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, January 30, 1995.

Hon. PETE DOMENICI,

Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The attached report for fiscal year 1995 shows the effects of Congressional action on the 1995 budget and is current through January 27, 1995. Res. 32, the 1986 First Concurrent Resolution on the Budget.

Since my last report, dated January 17, 1995, there has been no action that affects the current level of budget authority, outlays, or revenues.

Sincerely,
JAMES L. BLUM,

ON THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE LIBERATION OF AUSCHWITZ

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise to solemnize the 50th anniversary last Friday of the liberation of Auschwitz, the concentration camp where nearly 1½ million innocents were exterminated by the Nazi regime, most of them for the simple reason that they were Jews.

The Nazi Holocaust represents one of the blackest eras of the 20th century, a time which casts a shadow across the landscape of the entire second half of this century.

I quote Paul Johnson, one of our eminent living historians, from one of his many great books, "A History of the Jews":

Hitler had wiped out a third of all Jews, especially the pious and the poor, from whom

Judaism had drawn its peculiar strength. The loss could be seen in secular terms. In the nineteenth century and early twentieth century the world had been immeasurably enriched by the liberated talent streaming out of the old ghettos, which had proved a principal creative force in modern European and North American civilization. The supply continued until Hitler destroyed the source forever. No one will ever know what the world thereby sacrificed. For Israel the deprivation was devastating. It was felt at a personal level, for so many of its citizens had lost virtually all their families and childhood friends, and it was felt collectively: one in three of those who might have built the state was not there. It was felt spiritually perhaps most of all.

"No one will ever know what the world sacrificed." We will always live with that absence; we will always live with the darkness of what was lost.

Churchill called it "the crime without a name." Last Friday at the ceremonies in Poland, Lech Walesa spoke of "the martyrdom of all nations, especially the Jewish Nation." And in Germany Helmut Kohl said it was "the darkest and most terrible chapter in German history." They were all correct.

Civilized men and women are fortunate today that the lands where the Holocaust occurred are free. But the truly free societies must bear burdens, and a burden of freedom is to examine one's past—for the purpose of recognizing the most brutal of realities; for the purpose, perhaps, of understanding; but most importantly, for the purpose of never forgetting. I submit that nations are never completely free until they have the ability, will, and courage to examine their pasts free of censorship, free of cant, free of willful neglect.

The Holocaust Museum in Washington provides a somber, moving, and dramatic memorial to man's most evil capabilities, and it draws thousands to pay homage to the millions of victims of genocide. There is strength in a society that can bear such witness.

Fifty years later, we still live in the shadow of the Holocaust, and indeed, until we can say that all men will respond instinctively and courageously with the highest outrage against genocide, we can never stray far from this darkness.

Last week we commemorated the liberation of Auschwitz. In the same week, 19 Israeli men were killed in a terrorist attack by one of the extremist groups dedicated to the destruction of Israel. In the same week, more intelligence reports surfaced about Iran's nerve gas production, which, combined with its current ballistic missile capabilities, puts it in a position to threaten Israel with gas attacks.

Again, I will quote Paul Johnson:

The overwhelming lesson the Jews learned from the Holocaust was the imperative need to secure for themselves a permanent, self-contained and above all sovereign refuge where if necessary the whole of world Jewry could find safety from its enemies. The First World War made the Zionist state possible. The Second World War made it essential.

It is a bitter realization to know that 50 years after the Nazi Holocaust, the Jewish State remains under attack; anti-Semitism is growing in certain parts of the world, as in Russia; genocide is practiced and ignored, as in Rwanda and, on the European Continent drenched in Jewish blood, in Bosnia.

The Nazi Holocaust demonstrated a human depravity that many refused to believe was possible. We must never forget that men are capable of the most heinous destruction of their fellow men. The name of Auschwitz should forever echo in the memories and consciences of civilized people as one of the pinnacles of evil achieved in the 20th century. For it was in Auschwitz and the other concentration camps of the Nazi era that genocide was practiced as a tool of nationalism. And if we ever choose to ignore the shadows of such a loss, of such a despicable past, we do so at the risk of blindly allowing it to happen again.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). Morning business is closed.

BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now proceed to the consideration of House Joint Resolution 1, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (H.J. Res. 1) proposing a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

Mr. HATCH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah is recognized.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, we are happy at this point to have Senate Joint Resolution 1, the Hatch-Simon balanced budget constitutional amendment brought up. It is in the form of the House-passed amendment which is absolutely identical to the amendment that the distinguished Senator from Illinois and I and Members of the House, including CHARLES STENHOLM, from Texas, and, at that time, LARRY CRAIG back in the early days over in the House, who is now one of the leaders on the Senate floor, have been working on for years, ever since the 1982 balanced budget fight.

When I was chairman of the Constitution Subcommittee, we brought it to the floor and then to the leadership of Senator THURMOND, Senator DOLE, and Senator Baker at that time. We were able to pass it through the Senate.

This is slightly changed from then, but the basic principles are the same. Basically, there are three things that the general public needs to know are very worthy reasons for passing this balanced budget amendment that is now in the form of the House resolution that was passed by 300 votes to 132 last Thursday evening.

No. 1 is that if this amendment is passed by the requisite two-thirds vote of the Senate and is ratified by the requisite three-quarters of the States, then from that point on, it will take three-fifths of both bodies in order to increase the deficit.

That is a supermajority vote, and the reason we have done that on the deficit is because the deficit is going out of control and we would have to have a supermajority vote in order to have real considerations as to whether or not we want to continue to expand the deficit.

So, No. 1, you would have to have a three-fifths vote if you want to increase deficit spending. No. 2, if you want to increase taxes to pay for the costs of Government, then you no longer can do it by a simple majority vote.

Some of the media in this country have had the idea that this amendment just has a simple majority vote. It is not true. It has what is called—and we put it into the 1982 amendment that passed the Senate by 60 percent but died in the House, then led by Tip O'Neill; he beat us over there—but we came up with the idea of a constitutional majority requisite vote in order to increase taxes.

Let me just explain that a little bit more. If this amendment becomes the 28th amendment to the Constitution, then in order to increase taxes, you are going to have to have 51 percent—a majority of the whole body of both the House and the Senate. So to put that in perspective, we could pass anything in this body as a general rule by a majority vote if we have a quorum of 51 Senators. We can pass anything by a vote of 26 to 25, if that is how close it was.

Under a constitutional majority, we cannot increase taxes without, No. 1, a vote and, No. 2, without getting at least, no less, than 51 U.S. Senators to vote for it and in the House at least no less than 218 Members of the House.

So those are two very important reasons for voting for this: No. 1, in order to increase the deficit, this amendment says you are going to have to have a three-fifths vote of both bodies, the Senate and the House. No. 2, if you want to increase taxes, you are going to have to have a constitutional majority to do so. And No. 3, you have to vote.

Right now, many times when we increase the deficit in this country, we do not vote at all. We just have a voice vote. Nobody knows who are the people that have put us into debt or put us into further debt. From here on in, in both cases, that of increasing the debt or increasing taxes, we are going to have to have rollcall votes. Those are the three pivotal and most important aspects of this amendment.

Let me just put it in further perspective, with regard to the constitutional majority necessary to raise taxes. If the President's fiscal stimulus bill had come up, as it came up last year, was passed the way it was, the Senate was equally divided 50-50. There were 50 who voted for it and 50 who voted against it. It took the Vice President to break the tie, and it passed 51 to 50.

If this amendment passes, my contention is it will take at least 51 Senators, regardless of the way the Vice President votes, in order to increase taxes.

So it will not be easy to increase taxes, although we have had many votes in the history of this body where we have had 51 votes for taxes.

I believe it will become the focal point from that point on. I believe the three-fifths vote will become the focal point on increasing the deficit.

Why are we even talking about a balanced budget amendment? I have talked to many of my constituents and there was more than one person who came to me and who said: "What kind of a legacy are we leaving to our children? How can I and my generation continue to spend us into bankruptcy and leave our children high and dry?"

I have had a number of people on Social Security all over my State come to me and say, "Look, Senator, if you don't get spending under control, our Social Security isn't going to be worth anything. We won't be able to survive because that is all we have to live on."

If we do not get spending under control, they say, they are going to not get many benefits out of Social Security.

These people put the correct issue first: Are we going to live within our means so that our dollar is worth something, so that we do not ultimately have to monetize the debt, devalue the dollar, and make even Social Security less worthwhile for people? And they are the first to admit that we need a balanced budget constitutional amendment to make it necessary for Congress to choose among competing programs.

I have had people in the military say, "What are we going to do? Military spending keeps going down." If we start getting into a range of inflation, because interest against the national debt is now over $300 billion a year and going up exponentially and will be over $400 billion, according to the Congressional Budget Office, after the first of the year, how are we going to keep our country safe and clear? And that is based on current interest rates. Will inflation not go up even more? The answer to that is probably so.

They said to me, as much as we want the military to be strong and our Nation to be secure, you are going to have to pass the balanced budget amendment.

The average person out there understands this. They do not get all caught up in the special interest concerns of the day. People who think clearly know that we have to do something about this profligate Federal spending.

So I rise today with a very strong feeling that this is one of the most important debates in this country's history that has ever taken place in the Senate.

The subject matter goes to the heart of our Founding Fathers' hope for our constitutional system, a system that has and will protect individual freedoms to the maxim of limited Government.

In the latter half of this century, however, the intention of the Framers of the Constitution has been betrayed by Congress' inability to control its own spending habits. The size of the Federal leviathan has grown to such an extent that the very liberties of our American people are threatened.

History has already been made in the House of Representatives; 300 of our courageous colleagues in the House, both Democrats and Republicans, approved this balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, which parallels word for word Senate Joint Resolution 1, the Hatch-Simon-Thurmond-Heflin-Craig balanced budget amendment, under the leadership of the distinguished majority leader, ROBERT DOLE.

The eyes of the people, 85 percent of whom favor a balanced budget amendment, now turn to us in the Senate. They know this is the battleground. They know this is where the real battle is going to occur. We need to follow the example of the House and pass this balanced budget amendment.

This amendment has broad support in the country, and among Democrats and Republicans who believe we need to get this Nation's fiscal house in order so that we can leave a legacy of strong national economy and a responsible national Government to our children and our grandchildren.

THE PROBLEM: THE WORSENING DEBT CRISIS

We have a tremendous debt problem, and it is worsening. Mr. President, our Nation is faced with a $4.8 trillion national debt that gets worse and worse every year that we run a budget deficit. The Government is using capital that would otherwise be available to the private sector to create jobs and to invest in our future. Increased amounts of capital are being wasted on merely financing the debt because of spiraling interest costs. This problem presents risks to our long-term economic growth and endangers the well-being of our elderly, our working people, and especially our children and grandchildren. The debt burden is a mortgage on our children and grandchildren's future.

The trend is clear and uninterrupted. The magnitude of the annual deficits has increased enormously and continues to do so. During the 1960's, deficits averaged $6 billion per year. In the 1970's, the deficits averaged $38 billion per year. In the 1980's, the deficits averaged $156 billion per year, and in the 1990's so far deficits have averaged $259 billion per year.

The total national debt now stands at almost $5 trillion. That means that every man, woman and child in America has an individual debt burden of $18,500. We each owe that much money. Well, it took us over 200 years to acquire our first trillion dollars of debt, 200 years of history before we got to $1 trillion. We have recently been adding another trillion dollars of debt about every 5 years and will continue to do so under current projections at a slightly faster rate as we approach the end of the decade—$18,500 each of us owes. Back in 1975, we thought it was outrageous that we each owed $2,500.

When I ran for the Senate in 1976, it was a little higher than $2,500, and we just thought that was unbelievable. Here it is $18,500, caused by both parties, caused by Presidents, whether Republican or Democrat, caused by a profligate Congress mainly that has not been willing to get spending under control.

Well, it comes as no surprise that these increases in our national debt are mirrored by increases in Federal spending. The first $100 billion budget in the history of our Nation occurred as recently as fiscal year 1962. It took us until then to spend the first $100 billion a year. That was more than 179 years after the founding of the Republic.

The first $200 billion budget, however, followed only 9 years later in fiscal year 1971. The first $300 billion budget occurred only 4 years later in fiscal year 1975, the first $400 billion budget 2 years later in fiscal 1977, the first $500 billion budget in fiscal year 1981, the first $700 billion budget in fiscal 1982, $800 billion in 1983, $900 billion in 1985, and the first $1 trillion budget in fiscal year 1987. The budget for fiscal year 1995 has been projected to exceed $1.5 trillion.

And yet, Mr. President, opponents of the balanced budget amendment claim there is no problem. They repeatedly point to the marginal slowdown in the growth of the debt last year as though all of our problems are solved. They say that President Clinton has dealt with this problem.

But they are dead wrong. Only inside the beltway can people claim that with a debt approaching $5 trillion we are on the right track. Everyone on Capitol Hill knows that starting in 1996, President Clinton's budget leads us on a path of steadily increasing deficits, beyond anything that we have ever seen before. The simple fact is that with every additional dollar we borrow, we throw more coal into the fire of the runaway train on which we are all riding.

INTEREST ON THE DEBT: A TIME BOMB

Mr. President, one of the most pernicious effects of the enormous deficit beast is the interest costs required to feed it. Interest on the national debt in 1993, the last year for which we have a full actual set of budget figures, amounted to nearly $293 billion.

Now, that is more than the total revenues to the Federal Government were back in 1975—just interest against the debt. In 1993, interest took 26 percent of all Federal revenues and 57 percent of all individual income tax revenues.

The Office of Management and Budget projected last year that interest on the debt will rise substantially over the next 5 years. It is now going up exponentially. OMB projected that interest costs will pass the $300 billion mark in 1995 and reach $373 billion in 1999.

Opponents of the balanced budget amendment suggest that we cannot afford to cut the deficit because decreased social spending will have severe adverse effects on our economy. But think of how much we could do in crime control, disaster relief, health, science and education if we had that $300 billion available that we are spending on interest each year.

I do not understand the logic of continuing to waste over 20 percent of our entire budget on interest on the rationale that we cannot afford to cut spending. What we cannot afford to do is to continue to throw away one-fifth of our national budget on interest payments.

Now, my colleagues, to put this in even better perspective, gross interest on the debt in 1993 amounted to more than the entire defense budget, which was $292.4 billion. It was 97 percent of Social Security payments, which were $302 billion—it will probably be more than Social Security this year—55 percent of all discretionary outlays, which were $542.5 billion; and 44 percent of all mandatory programs, which amounted to $666.9 billion.

The nearly $293 billion of gross interest costs in 1993 could have covered our entire health spending, including Medicare and Medicaid, $207.6 billion; all veterans' benefits and services, $19.3 billion; unemployment compensation, $35.5 billion; our entire international discretionary spending, $21.6 billion; and also covered the costs of the earned income tax credit, $8.8 billion. All of that could have been paid for just out of the interest on the national debt we have been paying.

Without the gross interest on the debt, we would not have even had a deficit last year; in fact, we would have run a budget surplus of $93 billion.

Interest on the debt is wasted money. Over the 5 years of so-called deficit reduction under President Clinton's plan, OMB's own calculation last year was that interest on the public debt will total roughly $1.7 trillion. This amount could have fully funded the entire 1994 budget, with money left over.

Interest compounds and gets larger by itself, even without new deficits. And, if interest rates go back up, the problem will be increased exponentially. Self-propelled interest costs will continue to eat a larger share of our national treasury, destroying our choices to fund new programs and eroding our ability to keep the commitments we have already made.

You can see how interest on the Federal debt through the year 2005 from 1994, which is a little less than $300 billion, will go up because of the exponential increase of compounded interest. Look at how it just shoots up in the air until, in 2005 it is somewhere over $520 billion. It is really a problem. And we have to face it. The only way I know to face it is to enact this balanced budget amendment. I do not know of anybody who has a better idea.

THE NEED FOR A BALANCED BUDGET

Mr. President, if one thing is crystal clear, it is that we need to move toward a balanced budget. During this debate, both sides will cite lots of numbers and figures. One such figure is our current $4.8 trillion national debt. But how does one communicate the implications of our staggering debt?

In 1975, before this recent borrowing spree, the Federal debt amounted to approximately $2,500 per person, and the annual interest charges were roughly $250 per taxpayer. At the present, the Federal debt amounts to about $18,500 per person, with annual interest charges exceeding $2,575 per taxpayer. And that is at today's interest rates, which could go even higher.

The Congressional Budget Office predicts that in 1999, total Federal debt will be nearly $6.4 trillion. That means $23,700 of debt per person, with annual interest costs projected to be over $3,500 per taxpayer. We would each owe that much in annual costs.

These last figures would mean a tenfold increase in per-capita debt, and a nearly fourteenfold increase in annual interest charges per taxpayer, since 1975.

Over time, the disproportionate burdens imposed on today's children and their children by a continuing pattern of deficits could include some combination of the following: Increased taxes; reduced public welfare benefits; reduced public pensions; reduced expenditures on infrastructure and other public investments; diminished capital formation, job creation, productivity enhancement, and real wage growth in the private economy; higher interest rates; higher inflation; increased indebtedness to and economic dependence on foreign creditors; and increased risk of default on the Federal debt.

Mr. President, this is fiscal child abuse, and it must end. We have to end it. We have to end it.

This sociopathic economic policy is continued under the Clinton so-called deficit reduction plan, which does not really reduce the deficit in an absolute sense and does not reduce our staggering $4.8 trillion national debt one penny. It only slows the growth in the national debt; it does not reverse its upward climb. And, it reduces annual deficits only in the sense that deficits are smaller than what were previously projected. It still has substantial annual deficits which get bigger as time goes on. Even OMB's estimates from last year's budget, which predict lower debt totals than CBO, projects that gross Federal debt will top $6.3 trillion, exceeding 72 percent of our gross domestic product, by 1999. That is only 4 years away.

In other words, the so-called Clinton deficit reduction plan only cuts the deficit in the Washington sense of not going as far into the red as we earlier expected. I do not believe that kind of math works outside the beltway. As one commentator suggested, try explaining to your bank after your check bounces that you saved $300 by buying a $200 suit instead of a $500 television. Put another way, it is like putting a 400-pound man on diet and claiming he lost weight when he only goes up to 500 pounds instead of the 600 that was contemplated.

What's more, even under the current plan, the Congressional Budget Office's 10-year projections show that after an initial relative slowdown in its growth, the deficit roars back up. As I mentioned, the deficit in 1994 was $203 billion. It dips to $176 billion in 1995. But that is as low as it goes. Starting in 1996, it shoots up again, topping $253 billion in 1999 and hitting all time highs of $351 billion in 2003, $383 billion in 2004, and $421 billion in 2005.

Think about it. That is what is happening even if we give all of the benefit of the doubt to what President Clinton has tried to do. And he has tried.

A milestone of sorts will be passed in 2004 when we will rack up over $1 billion in debt every day. Personally, I do not think that this is a milestone any one of us should be too proud of.

That means the Clinton deficit reduction plan will add over $1 trillion to the national debt in the next 5 years and over $2.7 trillion in the next 10 years.

Look, who is to blame for this? Why, we all are, every last one of us. If I had to lay real blame why it be on the Congress more than any other group, because this is where the money bills originate. This is where the decisions are made. This is where we have allowed entitlements to run out of control.

I do not particularly blame any of the Presidents and I certainly am not blaming President Clinton who is trying his best within the framework of his political philosophy to do his best. I do not blame President Bush or President Reagan or President Carter either. The fact is, a lot of the buck stops right here in Congress.

Really can you blame Congress, too? The polls showed that 85 percent of the American people were for the balanced budget amendment. They want us to pass it. They believe it is critical to this country. They understand deep down. Viscerally, people know we are going to have to do this kind of fiscal restraint. But when you go and ask questions on individual programs, while they want us to pass a balanced budget amendment they want us to reduce taxes and they want us to increase spending on special interest programs.

So all of us have faults in this area. How do you overcome it? It seems to me you overcome it by putting a fiscal restraint into the Constitution that was implied by the Founding Fathers but was not put there. Jefferson thought it should have been in there and I think Jefferson was right. But, really, he was wrong through most of this country's history until the 1960's. Whenever we ran a deficit it was generally during time of war or depression. The minute we got back on top of things they would get the budget balanced. But in the last 30 years the Congress has run us into the ground and it is very difficult, unless we are forced to make priority choices among competing programs. It is very, very difficult to get this under control.

BENEFITS OF A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

I might add that I think it is time for the Congress to pass this joint resolution, this constitutional amendment to permanently restore the linkage between Federal spending and taxing decisions. My friend from Illinois, the prime sponsor of this amendment, probably believes that taxes will be increased to help pay for these things. I do not. I think it will be tougher to increase taxes than it will be to increase the deficit. But I think both will be more difficult, and there will be votes so the American people know who voted which way.

I probably would prefer to cut spending. We are from two opposite poles—the two leaders in the Senate. We care a great deal for each other. And I have tremendous respect for Senator SIMON for being willing to lead the fight. He is much more liberal than I in leading this fight for a balanced budget amendment. He is doing it for the right reason. He believes that we will have to be more fiscally responsible. I believe that. That is why we are fighting side by side as we have for a number of items, but certainly on this amendment. I respect him for it.

On the proposed amendment that we have here—the House-passed amendment, which is identical to the Senate one we have been pushing—we have worked together on both sides of this Hill. We have done it for years. We have massaged this thing, and worked on it. It is a true bipartisan consensus amendment. It is a Democrat-Republican amendment. It is a Republican-Democrat amendment. We have worked together. Any one of us thinks we could write it better. This is the consensus amendment. That is the only one that has a chance of being passed. I could write a much tougher constitutional amendment than this. So could the distinguished Senator from Illinois. But this is what we have been able to negotiate, and as you can see by the first time in history, the only one that could pass the House of Representatives. Now we have the job of trying to get it through the important U.S. Senate.

I believe we can, if the people out there will speak to their Senators. But it is going to be very close. There is no giving here. This is something we have to earn on the floor. We are going to do everything we can do. But the proposed amendment that we have before us does not propose to read any specific level of spending or taxing forever into the Constitution, and it does not propose to insert the Constitution into the day-to-day spending and taxing decisions of the representative branch of the Government. It merely proposes to create a fiscal environment in which the competition between the tax spenders and the taxpayers is a more equal one—one in which spending decisions will once more be constrained by available revenues.

Mr. President, the time has come for a solution strong enough that it cannot be evaded in the short term. We need a constitutional requirement to balance our budget. Mr. President, Senate Joint Resolution 1, and the House resolution which is before us, the Dole-Hatch-Simon consensus balanced budget amendment, is that solution. It is reasonable. It is enforceable, and necessary to force us to get our fiscal house in order.

There are those who oppose the balanced budget amendment because they say we can balance the budget right now. As a matter of law, that is true. But as a matter of real life, real-world politics, it is clear that Congress does not possess the courage to do it. They have been saying this for 30 years without any avail, without any success. Even if one extraordinary Congress does come along and manages to stop deficit spending, there would be nothing to prevent the next Congress from spending irresponsibly once again. We need a constitutional amendment if we are truly interested in solving this problem.

RESTORATION OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL BALANCE

Mr. President, the proposed constitutional amendment will help us end this dangerous deficit habit in a way that past efforts have not. It will do this by correcting a bias in the present political process which favors ever-increasing levels of Federal Government spending.

In seeking to reduce the spending bias in our present system—fueled largely by the unlimited availability of deficit spending—the major purpose of this constitutional balanced budget amendment is to ensure that, under normal circumstances, votes by Congress for increased spending will be accompanied either by votes to reduce other spending programs or to increase taxes to pay for such programs. For the first time since the abandonment of our historical norm of the balanced budgets, Congress will be required to cast a politically difficult vote as a precondition to a politically attractive vote to increase spending. We will be forced to do it so the American people will know, and it is about time.

ACCOUNTABILITY

While it is true that much of the enormous growth in Federal Government spending over the past two decades may be a response to evolving notions that the role of the public sector on the part of the American citizenry—that is, a genuine shift in the will and desire of the people—it is my contention that a substantial part of this growth stems from far less benign factors.

In short, the American political process is defective insofar as it is skewed toward artificially high levels of spending, that is, levels of spending that do not result from a genuine will and desire on the part of the people. It is skewed in part because the people often do not have complete information about the cost of programs or about the potential for cost growth of many programs. It is skewed in this direction because Members of Congress have every political incentive to spend money and almost no incentive to forego such spending. It is a fiscal order in which spending decisions have become increasingly divorced from the availability of revenues.

In fact, when I was on the Budget Committee I was shocked that we never began with how much we had in revenues available to spend. We always began with what we want to spend, and then we would massage the revenues to try to get them up to where we were spending. I just thought it was a backward way of going toward the budget.

The balanced budget amendment seeks to restore Government accountability for spending and taxing decisions by forcing Congress to prioritize spending projects within the available resources and by requiring tax increases to be done on the record. In this way, Congress will be accountable to the people who pay for the programs and the American people—including the future generations who must pay for our debts—will be represented in a way they are not now. Congress will be forced to justify its spending and taxing decisions as the Framers intended, but as Congress no longer does.

THE SOLUTION: A BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT

Mr. President, Senate Joint Resolution 1 represents both responsible fiscal policy and responsible constitutional policy. Passage of this resolution would constitute an appropriate response by Congress to the pending applications by nearly two-thirds of the States for a constitutional convention on this issue.

Mr. President, the Senate must approve Senate Joint Resolution 1, the balanced budget amendment. It is the right thing to do for ourselves, our children, and our grandchildren, and it will give us back responsible and accountable constitutional government. The faithful stewardship of public funds that was so prized by our Founding Fathers can be restored for 21st century Americans. The virtues of thrift and accountability can be rekindled by this very 104th Congress.

Mr. President, we have to do something about our irresponsible debt approaches—the runaway spending that is eating this country alive; destructive welfare which is really not doing any good for the average citizen; our antisaving Tax Code that really destroys savings in this country; the Washington bureaucracy that is eating us alive by mandating more and more on the States and on small business. We have to eliminate these things. We have to send Washington back home. We have to restore the American dream. We have to give our children a future that, and if we keep going the way we are going they will not have.

We have to put Government on a diet. At least that is my belief. We have to make the Federal Government afford to live within its means. Frankly, I think the Federal Government could afford to be anorexic for a while. It is far too fat, and it needs to be brought down to a more diet-conscious methodology. We have to cut the waste, cut the fat, and get people to work instead of depending upon the Government. And I think we have to just get together as a group and call our Senators to tell them they need to support this; create a groundswell of force for this balanced budget amendment. And, if we do, we will save our country for generations to come; for your children, my children, your grandchildren, my grandchildren.

In talking about that, I have thought very often. Elaine and I have six children, and our 15th grandchild is on its way. It will be here in another few months. I have to tell you, I just pity these kids and what they have to face if we do not make this decision now. We can no longer afford to listen to those who say we should have the will to do what we have to do. It just is not happening and is not going to happen. The will is not there. We have not had a President who is willing to say: This is what we have to do, and blame me if we cannot get it done, but this is what we have to do to help put our fiscal house in order.

Pass this balanced budget amendment and you will find there will be a renewed effort to try to get us to live within our means. Your grandchildren and my grandchildren will have a future like we had when we were raised.

When I was born in 1934, my folks had just lost their home in the Depression. My dad built our home out of a torn-down building. In fact, I thought for years afterwards that all homes should be brown like ours was, with burned lumber, and that one side should have a Pillsbury Flour sign on it. We did not have indoor facilities, but we were happy people. We raised our own chickens, eggs, and we had our own little garden that kept us alive. We did not have a lot, but we were able to survive. I have to tell you that those were tough days, but I would not trade them for anything.

My future was a sure future. There was no question that I was going to go to school and have the opportunity to grow. My dad taught me his trade. I worked in the building construction trade union for 10 years, with my bare hands, and I was proud of it. I could do that work today if I had to. We used to hang suspended ceilings and build partitions, and other things. I did all of that, and I can still do it.

There was no limit to our future. We were able to do it. This Government was living within its means. At least, it was just at the throes of starting to not live within its means. Today you have to say, with interest exponentially rising, with the debt rising so fast, in the future we might have to monetize the debt and devalue the American dollar in order to pay off debts with worthless money—which could be done, by the way, but the United States will never recover from it. We would never again have the recognition financially that we have throughout the world, nor would we be as powerful again, or be as great again, if we have to go to that methodology—which we will do if we do not pass this amendment.

I want the future of your children and my children, your grandchildren and my grandchildren, to be secure. That is what we are fighting for here today. There is no question that there are many wonderful programs all of us would like to have. But there still is a necessity to live within our means, which we are not doing.

Mr. President, we are going to do everything we can, the distinguished Senator from Illinois, myself, and others, and I urge Senators to join with us—Senators DOLE, SIMON, THURMOND, HEFLIN, CRAIG, and so many others—in supporting this resolution, the balanced budget constitutional amendment, this bicameral, bipartisan consensus balanced budget amendment. If we do, this country will be much better off in 5 years, 7 years, 10 years from today, and our children will have the future we would like them to have.

I yield the floor.

[Applause in the galleries]

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair advises all in the galleries to refrain from any form of approval or disapproval.

Mr. KENNEDY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. [KENNEDY] is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the so-called balanced budget constitutional amendment. I strongly support deficit reduction to achieve the goal of a balanced budget. But it is unnecessary, unwise, and destructive of principles at the core of our constitutional democracy to adopt this proposed constitutional amendment.

As the Senate begins this debate, let us consider some recent history. For 12 years, during the Reagan and Bush administrations, the deficit soared out of control—largely because of the excessive 1981 tax cut, which was described at the time by Senate Republican majority leader Howard Baker as a "riverboat gamble."

Not every Senator supported that riverboat gamble. I am proud to be among 11 Senators who voted against it.

The budget deficit we face today is the result of that failed gamble. The entire deficit for the current fiscal year represents the interest owed on the $2.4 trillion of debt run up during the Reagan-Bush years. The rest of the budget is already balanced, and it did not require a constitutional amendment to do it.

What it did require was the courage to make tough decisions. In 1993, under President Clinton's leadership, Congress passed a reconciliation bill that will reduce the debt by approximately $600 billion for fiscal years 1994 through 1998. For the first time since the Truman administration, deficits will fall 3 years in a row.

That landmark deficit reduction package was passed by Congress without a single Republican vote in either the House or the Senate. Indeed, Democrats in the House and Senate were attacked for supporting the deficit reduction bill.

For years, we heard charges from the Republican party that Democrats in control of Congress were responsible for the Federal budget deficit. For years, Republican Presidents refused to make the tough decisions necessary to reduce the Federal deficit, choosing instead to blame Congress. "Give us a Republican Congress," they said, "and we will reduce the budget deficit."

In November, the voters gave the Republican Party the majority it sought. And now, without even so much as presenting a single budget bill before either House of Congress, the Republican Party is saying to the American people that the Republican Congress lacks the political will to make the tough decisions necessary to continue the deficit reduction achieved during the past 2 years. Before offering a single piece of legislation to reduce the deficit, the Republican majority in Congress is saying that they need a constitutional amendment to get the job done.

We do not need a constitutional amendment to balance the budget. All we need is leadership. If Congress is not willing to balance the budget, the Constitution can not do it for us.

The refusal of the Republican Party to spell out for the American people the specific changes needed to balance the budget is a failure of leadership. The American people have a right to know what this proposed constitutional amendment would require.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that a total of $1.2 trillion in deficit reduction will be required to balance the budget by the year 2002. And that is not including the defense increases called for by the Republicans' Contract With America.

If Social Security, defense, and interest on the national debt are excluded from the calculations, all other Federal programs will have to be cut by 22 percent to achieve a balanced budget in 2002. That is a 22 percent cut in spending on Medicare, Medicaid, veterans benefits, student loans, farm benefits, and all of the other Federal programs. If the tax cuts called for in the Republicans' Contract With America are also included, the across-the-board cut needed to balance the budget will be 30 percent.

The Treasury Department has estimated the impact of these cuts on the States. It predicts that that an across-the-board deficit reduction package that excluded Social Security and Defense would require cuts in Federal grants to States of $71 billion, and cuts of an additional $176 billion in other Federal spending that directly benefits States in programs such as Medicaid, highway funds, aid to families with dependent children, education, job training, environment, housing, and other areas.

The Treasury Department also estimated how much each State's taxes would have to be raised for the State to offset the reduction in Federal grants under the proposed constitutional amendment. State taxes would have to increase an average of 12 percent just to offset the loss of Federal grants.

The American people have a right to know if that is how the Republican majority will balance the budget. Why will they not tell us? What have they got to hide. They are using the smoke-screen of this constitutional amendment as a trick to hide the scheme of deep cuts in basic social programs that the country will not accept if the reality is known.

Amending the Constitution could well make all our problems worse. Adopting this proposed amendment could jeopardize our economy, diminish the Constitution, distort its system of checks and balances, and undermine the principle of majority rule that is at the core of our democracy.

The proposed constitutional amendment could jeopardize our economy by requiring that the Federal budget be balanced each fiscal year, regardless of the state of the economy, unless three-fifths of the Senate and House vote to approve a specific deficit.

All of us know that when the economy is in a recession, revenues fall, and outlays increase. Fewer people hold jobs and pay taxes, so revenues go down.

Costs for unemployment insurance, food stamps, and public assistance go up.

These so-called countercyclical actions maintain demand for goods and services during recessionary times. They help to prevent mild downturns from becoming recessions, and they help prevent recessions from turning into depressions. We have not had a depression in over 50 years.

This proposed constitutional amendment could well prevent the operation of the countercyclical effects needed to help keep the economy on an even keel. Supporters of the amendment argue that the existing budget deficit has made countercyclical deficit spending ineffective as a way to stimulate demand and avoid recessions, because the deficit is already so large. But they neglect to mention that the constitutional amendment would require the Government to engage in fiscal practices that will make any recession worse.

Section 1 of the amendment prohibits total outlays from exceeding total receipts unless three-fifths of the House and Senate vote to authorize a specific deficit. When a recession causes revenues to fall below estimates during a fiscal year, the proposed constitutional amendment would require the Government to reduce outlays to avoid an unauthorized deficit.

This fundamental point was stated by Alice Rivlin, Director of the Office of Management and Budget, during her testimony before the Judiciary Committee.

[E]nforcing a rule that we must balance the budget every year, regardless of the state of the economy, would be a big economic mistake. Now one can think that, and still think that budget deficits ought to be much smaller than they are now, and I do believe that.

But if we were living in a world in which the budget had to be balanced every year, when a recession threatened * * *, and people were laid off, they would naturally be paying less taxes. So there would be an automatic deficit in the Federal budget. Now, if the Congress were then required to rectify that by either cutting spending, or raising taxes, the recession would be worse. People would have less income. More people would be laid off. The Congress might have to cut back on unemployment benefits, and things like that.

So you would have exactly the wrong kind of fiscal policy in a recession. Now, you might say three-fifths of the Congress could be wise enough to foresee that, and do something about it, even if the amendment were in place.

But forecasting is very uncertain. Even people who do it professionally, full time, are not very good at it, and the Congress of the United States is unlikely to be very good at it.

So I think we would have worse recessions, and it would just exaggerate the boom/bust cycle if we had to balance every year.

The proposed constitutional amendment is unwise economic policy for another reason—because it would prohibit capital budgeting. Capital budgeting is the commonsense practice of paying for the cost of capital assets over their useful lives. If Congress intends to require a balanced budget, at least the calculation of the balance should be made sensibly, not irrationally.

American families engage in capital budgeting when they borrow money to pay the cost of purchasing a home. They spread the payments over many years. This same logic applies to paying for college education or purchasing a car. Millions of American businesses use capital budgets as well. They depreciate the cost of buildings over many years. They do the same for many other types of long-term assets.

We also hear a lot of Republican rhetoric about how States are able to live under balanced budget requirements in their State constitutions. But 42 States rely on capital budgets to calculate the balance.

Supporters of the proposed Federal constitutional amendment say that a future Congress will be able to pass implementing legislation that allows capital budgeting to be used in meeting the balanced-budget requirement. They should read their own amendment.

Section 7 of the amendment states that:

Total receipts shall include all receipts of the United States Government except those derived from borrowing. Total outlays shall include all outlays of the United States Government except for those for repayment of debt principal.

“All” means “all.” If the balanced budget constitutional amendment is adopted, Congress cannot pass legislation exempting capital budgets.

The language of section 1 also means Congress cannot pass legislation exempting Social Security. Adopting this proposed constitutional amendment would force Congress to include the Social Security trust fund in its balanced-budget calculations.

As many observers have pointed out, the amendment would enable Congress to use the existing surplus in the Social Security trust fund to avoid the tough decisions needed to achieve a balanced budget in the near term. The Social Security trust fund will essentially be raided to achieve a phony budget balance. As a result, the solemn commitment between the American people and their Government to keep the Social Security trust fund separate from the operating expenses of the Federal Government would be broken.

The proposed amendment is also unwise as a matter of basic constitutional principle in our federal system.

First, the amendment would embroil State and Federal courts in complex, endless litigation. It would require them to resolve sensitive budget issues that should be left to the elected branches of Government. It would empower them to cut spending and raise taxes in order to achieve a balanced budget.

In The Federalist No. 78, Alexander Hamilton described the judiciary as “the least dangerous branch” because it “has no influence over either the sword or the purse.” He then warned “that there is no liberty, if the power of judging be not separated from the legislative and executive powers.”

Yet the proposed constitutional amendment would do exactly that—place the power of the purse in the hands of unelected judges. Supporters of the amendment argue that judges would only rarely have occasion to use these powers. That view is not shared by legal scholars from across the philosophical spectrum. Former Judge Robert Bork predicted:

The result * * * would likely be hundreds, if not thousands, of lawsuits around the country, many of them on inconsistent theories and providing inconsistent results. By the time the Supreme Court straightened the whole matter out, the budget in question would be at least four years out of date, and lawsuits involving the next three fiscal years would be slowly climbing toward the Supreme Court.

Supporters argue that few people would have standing in court to assert claims under the amendment. But the Supreme Court has upheld taxpayer standing to challenge Government action that violates specific constitutional limitations imposed upon the exercise of the congressional taxing and spending power.

Even if taxpayers are not given standing to sue, it is easy to imagine numerous situations where individuals will suffer actual injury as a result of violations of the proposed amendment.

If a President impounds Social Security benefits to avoid an unauthorized deficit, Social Security recipients will have standing to sue.

If a President withholds a pay increase due Federal workers in order to avoid an unauthorized deficit, the workers will have standing to sue.

When courts do hear cases under this constitutional amendment, they will be forced to resolve complex issues in trials that could take months or even years. What are the total outlays by the entire Federal Government for a particular year? Are loan guarantees included in those outlays? How many home mortgages and student loans did the Government insure? For how much? How many defaulted?

Even in the markup in the past week, we inquired of the proponents whether the loan for Mexico, for example, would be included, whether that would be covered or not covered by the proposed constitutional amendment. And the response we got from the proponents was, “Well, it depends whether there is a default or not.”

Well, with the proposed loan, $40 billion, are we supposed to say that $40 billion loan guarantee must be authorized by a three-fifths vote of each House of Congress under the terms of the balanced budget amendment? How are we going to be able to make those kinds of judgments now that kind of emergency loan guarantee—of which both the administration and a bipartisan group have indicated support—how would that affect all of these deficit calculations? Clearly that has not been thought through.

Just one of the cases that will arise under the proposed amendment would make the O.J. Simpson case look simple.

And when a court finds that a constitutional violation has occurred, what relief should it order? Five years ago, in Missouri versus Jenkins, the Supreme Court ruled that a Federal court could order a local government to raise taxes to pay for court-ordered desegregation. Will Federal courts order Congress to raise taxes to cure an unauthorized deficit? Will they order the Treasury to stop paying interest on Treasury bonds? Will they order the President to stop spending Federal funds? What future constitutional crises will we face because of this foolish constitutional amendment.

Last year, the supporters of this amendment accepted a proposal offered by Senator Danforth that would have prevented the courts from raising taxes or cutting spending. The failure to include a similar limitation in this year's amendment means that Federal courts will sit as super budget committees under the amendment.

The proposed amendment would also give the President unprecedented authority to impound appropriated funds when a deficit occurs. The President has a sworn duty to uphold the Constitution. When an unauthorized deficit takes place, the President will have a duty to take action, including impounding appropriated funds, to prevent a constitutional violation.

That is not just my opinion. That is the option of the President's own legal advisor, Assistant Attorney General Walter Dellinger. And it is the opinion of a wide range of constitutional scholars from Reagan administration Solicitor General Charles Fried to Johnson administration Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, and many, many others.

So, basically, this is the second key area of concern, Mr. President, and that is the question of enforcement. Who will have the powers of enforcement? We had during the course certainly of the hearings that were held last year by Senator BYRD and others, the direct testimony about whether the President would have the power to impound. The overwhelming constitutional authority was that the President would have that kind of power under this amendment. Which means that if the President made the judgment that the receipts and revenues were out of balance, that they probably have a responsibility to impound funds to avoid the deficit.

Is that what we are saying, that we want the President of the United States to make those judgments, without any instruction as to what particular area we want them to impound? Do we want to give him all of that authority and all of that power? Well, we tried to address that in the Judiciary Committee. I offered an amendment to say that we do not want to do that. We do not want to grant that kind of a power to the executive. That amendment was defeated. That was defeated in the Judiciary Committee.

Then we come back and say are we going to leave enforcement up to the courts and give them the authority and the power? Under the Missouri versus Jenkins case, we have seen the consternation that was raised about that order that required the raising of certain funds in order to move ahead to enforce the court's desegregation orders. We heard the roar that came from across the country that we do not want our courts to be making the judgments about raising taxes.

Quite clearly that outcome would be in complete conflict with what our Founding Fathers said ought to be the responsibility of the courts.

Are we prepared to say, well, all right, we will not let the President of the United States move ahead on impoundment? We will not let our courts move ahead on enforcement. Who does that leave? What it leaves is the legislative branch. That leaves us, which goes just back to our point from the very beginning: ultimately the question comes back to us. If it ultimately comes back to us, why go through the whole amendment process? If we believe ultimately that we must deal with these tough issues, why are we not prepared to deal with them now? Why go through these kind of gymnastics and say, "OK, maybe we will give enforcement authority to the President." The supporters say, "We do not want to give it to the President so we will leave it indefinite." Do we say we will give it to the courts, or say we will not give it to the courts. If the President and the courts are excluded, the only other enforcement is the Members of the Congress and the Senate.

That is what our Founding Fathers intended. That is what the Constitution points out. That is what the principal constitutional authorities from Republican and Democratic administrations and thoughtful men and women who have not been a part of administrations have felt. And that, I think, raises some the very, very, important weaknesses of this amendment—that there is no certainty on enforcement. We do not know.

Those proposing are not prepared to tell the American people where the necessary cuts would come. They are not prepared to lay that out before them prior to the time of the passage of this amendment. They are not prepared to tell them how the amendment will be enforced. And that is against a background where the Congress had taken action to see important reductions in the Federal deficit in the recent times. And where there certainly can be additional attention to the deficit in the future.

But we are being denied, and the American people are being denied, the right to know what they really intend. What expenditures they intend to reduce, what taxes they intend to impose, and they are unwilling to state what their position is in terms of the enforcement mechanism. Wait down the road, wait another several years. Well, what will happen in the meantime? The problem is that the deficit will be going up again. Why have we not gotten the balanced budgets coming forward from the Budget Committee in the House and the Senate to let the American people understand where they are going, to challenge us to take responsible positions on this deficit? But they are not even prepared to do that. They are not prepared to wait and see whether there will be some action in that area. They are just saying go ahead and pass this and send it out to the States.

I support giving the President statutory line-item veto authority. But the impoundment authority given the President by the balanced budget amendment is far broader. As Professor Dellinger testified, it would enable the President to order across-the-board cuts, or specific cuts affecting specific programs or specific areas of the country.

The amendment could also be read to give future Presidents power to impose taxes, duties, or fees to avoid an unconstitutional deficit.

Supporters of the amendment deny any intention to give the President authority to impound funds or raise taxes. But they rejected the straightforward amendment I offered in the Judiciary Committee to prevent it.

Supporters of the amendment argue that all questions on enforcement of the amendment will be answered when Congress passes the enforcement legislation required by section 6. But although balanced budget constitutional amendments have been before the Judiciary Committee and the Congress for many years, year after year, we will hear the proponents of that balanced budget talk about how they have supported this for 10, 15 years, and still we do not have any recommendation on how we are going to achieve it. The only one that had the courage to do it was Republican Congressman GERALD SOLOMON, from the State of New York, and that was overwhelmingly defeated in the House of Representatives a year ago. And many of those who are talking about the balanced budget voted against it and said, well, we can wait. It is not necessary to address that issue at that time.

Where is it? We have written budget laws for years in the Congress—Gramm-Rudman, the 1990 and 1993 budget deficit laws. Why won't the proponents of this amendment show us the enforcement legislation.

Finally, the proposed constitutional amendment will severely undermine the principle of majority rule enshrined in our Constitution. By requiring a three-fifths vote to authorize a deficit or raise the debt limit, the amendment would give unprecedented power to a minority in either House of Congress.

Alexander Hamilton painted an alarming picture in The Federalist No. 22 of the destructive consequences of these supermajority voting requirements:

[W]hat at first sight may seem a remedy, is in reality a poison. To give a minority a negative upon the majority (which is always the case where more than a majority is requisite to a decision) is, in its tendency, to subject the sense of the greater number to that of the lesser number. * * * This is one of those refinements which, in practice, has an effect the reverse of what is expected from it in theory. * * * The necessity of unanimity in public bodies, or of something approaching towards it, has been founded upon a supposition that it would contribute to security. But its real operation is to embarrass the administration, to destroy the energy of the government, and to substitute the pleasure, caprice, or artifices of an insignificant, turbulent, or corrupt junta to the regular deliberations and decisions of a respectable majority.

We should heed Hamilton's warning. The filibuster is bad enough as a rule of the Senate. Enacting a supermajority requirement as part of this amendment will enshrine gridlock in the Constitution. It will enable a willful minority to prevent any action they wish in connection with the deficit, or to demand unacceptable conditions from the majority as the price of their agreement.

For over 200 years, the principle of majority rule established in the Constitution has served this Nation well in wars, depressions, and a vast range of domestic and international crises. We should not abandon it now, simply because the elected Members of Congress at this moment lack the political courage to balance the budget.

There is nothing wrong with the Constitution. Let us act responsibly to deal with the deficit, not irresponsibly by tampering with the Constitution. This proposal is a sham and a gimmick, and it deserves no place in the Constitution.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I would like to respond to certain arguments presented by Senator KENNEDY. These include issues involving: First, implementation and enforcement; second, judicial taxation; and third, Presidential impoundment.

I. IMPLEMENTATION AND ENFORCEMENT ISSUES

Mr. President, opponents of the balanced budget amendment, including Senator KENNEDY, have over the past decade carefully crafted Machiavellian arguments designed to place opponents of the amendment between, what Abraham Lincoln termed, "the devil and the deep blue sea." One of the most pernicious is the contention that on the one hand the balanced budget amendment is a sham because it is unenforceable, and on the other hand that there will be too much enforcement—particularly that courts will themselves balance the budget by ordering the cutting of spending programs, by placing the budgetary process into judicial receivership, or by ordering that taxes be raised. This contention is, of course, so exaggerated, so contradictory, that it almost refutes itself. Yet it has become so pervasive that it gives new life to Shakespeare's aphorism that, "foolery, sir, does walk about the orb like the sun; it shines everywhere."

IMPLEMENTATION AND ENFORCEMENT

I want to first address the false notion advanced by opponents of the balanced budget amendment that it is a paper tiger—that Congress will flout its constitutional authority to balance the budget. These notions are simply wrong. First, the amendment has sharp teeth. It is self-enforcing. Because, historically, it has been easier for Congress to raise the debt ceiling, rather than reduce spending or raise taxes, the primary enforcement mechanism of House Joint Resolution 1 is section 2, which requires a three-fifths vote to increase the debt ceiling. This provision is a steel curtain that will shield the American public from an ill-disciplined and profligate Congress.

Furthermore, Members of Congress overwhelmingly conform their actions to constitutional precepts out of fidelity to the Constitution itself. We are bound by article VI of the Constitution to "support this Constitution." I fully expect fidelity by Members of Congress to the oath to uphold the Constitution. Honoring this pledge requires respecting the provisions of the proposed amendment. Flagrant disregard of the proposed amendment's clear and simple provisions would constitute nothing less than a betrayal of the public trust. In their campaigns for reelection, elected officials who flout their responsibilities under this amendment will find that the political process will provide the ultimate enforcement mechanism.

JUDICIAL ENFORCEMENT

I would like at this point to address the contention of opponents of the balanced budget amendment like Senator KENNEDY that there will be too much enforcement—specifically by the courts. They march out a veritable judicial parade of horrors where courts strike down spending measures, put the budgetary process under judicial receivership, and like Charles I of England, raise taxes without the consent of the people's representatives. All of this is a gross exaggeration. This parade has no permit.

I believe that House Joint Resolution 1 strikes the right balance in terms of judicial review. By remaining silent about judicial review in the amendment itself, its authors have refused to establish congressional sanction for the Federal courts to involve themselves in fundamental macroeconomic and budgetary questions, while not undermining their equally fundamental obligation to say what the law is, Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch 137, 177 (1803). I also strongly agree with former Attorney General William P. Barr who stated that there is:

*** little risk that the amendment will become the basis for judicial micromanagement or superintendence of the Federal budget process. Furthermore, to the extent such judicial intrusion does arise, the amendment itself equips Congress to correct the problem by statute. On balance, moreover, whatever remote risk there may be that courts will play an overly intrusive role in enforcing the amendment, that risk is, in my opinion, vastly outweighed by the benefits of such an amendment.

There exists three basic constraints that prevents the courts from becoming unduly involved in the budgetary process: First, limitations on Federal courts contained in article III of the Constitution, primarily the doctrine of "standing," particularly as enunciated by the Supreme Court in Lujan v. De- fenders of Wildlife, 112 S.Ct. 2130 (1992); second, the deference courts owe to Congress under both the political question doctrine and section 6 of the amendment itself, which confers enforcement authority in Congress; and third, the limits on judicial remedies to be imposed on a coordinate branch of government—limitations on remedies that are self-imposed by courts and that, in appropriate circumstances, may be imposed on the courts by Congress. These limitations, such as separation of power concerns, prohibit courts from raising taxes, a power exclusively delegated to Congress by the Constitution and not altered by the balanced budget amendment. Consequently, contrary to the contention of opponents of the balanced budget amendment, separation of power concerns further the purpose of the amendment in that it assures that the burden to balance the budget falls squarely on the shoulders of Congress—which is consistent with the intent of the Framers of the Constitution that all budgetary matters be placed in the hands of Congress.

Concerning the doctrine of "standing," it is beyond dispute that to succeed in any lawsuit, a litigant must demonstrate standing to sue. To demonstrate article III standing, a litigant at a minimum must meet three requirements: First, injury in fact—that the litigant suffered some concrete and particularized injury; second, traceability—that the concrete injury was both caused by and is traceable to the unlawful conduct; and third, redressibility—that the relief sought will redress the alleged injury. This is the test enunciated by the Supreme Court in the fairly recent and seminal case of Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 112 S.Ct. 2130, 2136, (1992). (See, e.g., Valley Forge Christian College v. Americans United for Separation of Church & State, Inc., 454 U.S. 464, 482-83 (1982)). In challenging measures enacted by Congress under a balanced budget regime, it would be an extremely difficult hurdle for a litigant to demonstrate something more concrete than a generalized grievance and burden shared by all citizens and taxpayers, the injury in fact requirement. I want to emphasize that this is hardly a new concept. (See Frothingham v. Mellon, 262 U.S. 447, 487 (1923)). Furthermore, courts are extremely unlikely to overrule this doctrine since standing has been held to be an article III requirement. (See Simon v. Eastern Ky. Welfare Rights Org., 426 U.S. 26, 41 n.22 (1976)).

Even in the vastly improbable case where an injury in fact was established, a litigant would find it near impossible to establish the traceability and redressibility requirements of the article III standing test. Litigants would have a difficult time in showing that any alleged unlawful conduct—the unbalancing of the budget or the shattering of the debt ceiling—caused or is traceable to a particular spending measure that harmed them. Furthermore, because the Congress would have numerous options to achieve balanced budget compliance, there would be no legitimate basis for a court to nullify the specific spending measure objected to by the litigant.

As to the redressibility prong, this requirement would be difficult to meet simply because courts are wary of becoming involved in the budget process—which is legislative in nature—and separation of power concerns will prevent courts from specifying adjustments to any Federal program or expenditures. Thus, for this reason, Missouri v. Jenkins, 495 U.S. 33 (1990), where the Supreme Court upheld the district court's power to order a local school district to levy taxes to support a desegregation plan, is inapposite because it is a 14th amendment case not involving, as the Court noted, an instance of one branch of the Federal Government invading the province of another. Jenkins at 67. Plainly put, the Jenkins case is not applicable to the balanced budget amendment because the 14th amendment—from which the judiciary derives its power to rule against the States in equal protection claims—does not apply to the Federal Government and because the separation of powers doctrine prevents judicial encroachments on Congress' bailiwick. Courts simply will not have the authority to order Congress to raise taxes.

Furthermore, the well-established political question and justiciability doctrines will mandate that courts give the greatest deference to congressional budgetary measures, particularly since section 6 of House Joint Resolution 1 explicitly confers on Congress the responsibility of enforcing the amendment, and the amendment allows Congress to rely on estimates of outlays and receipts. (See Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 217 (1962)). Under these circumstances, it is unlikely that a court would substitute its judgment for that of Congress.

Moreover, despite the argument of some opponents of the balanced budget amendment, the taxpayer standing case, Flast v. Cohen, 392 U.S. 83 (1968), is not applicable to enforcement of the balanced budget amendment. First, the Flast case has been limited by the Supreme Court to Establishment Clause cases. This has been made clear by the Supreme Court in Valley Forge Christian College, 454 U.S. at 480. Second, by its terms, Flast is limited to cases challenging legislation promulgated under Congress' constitutional tax and spend powers when the expenditure of the tax was made for an illicit purpose. Sections 1 and 2 of House Joint Resolution 1, limit Congress' borrowing power and the amendment contains no restriction on the purposes of the expenditures. Finally, in subsequent cases, particularly the Lujan case, the Supreme Court has reaffirmed the need for a litigant to demonstrate particularized injury, thus casting doubt on the vitality of Flast. (See Lujan, 112 S. Ct. at 2136.)

I also believe that there would be no so-called congressional standing for Members of Congress to commence actions under the balanced budget amendment. Although the Supreme Court has never addressed the question of congressional standing, the D.C. Circuit has recognized congressional standing, but only in the following circumstances: First, the traditional standing tests of the Supreme Court are met; second, there must be a deprivation within the zone of interest protected by the Constitution or a statute—generally, the right to vote on a given issue or the protection of the efficacy of a vote; and third, substantial relief cannot be obtained from fellow legislators through the enactment, repeal, or amendment of a statute—the so-called equitable discretion doctrine. (See Melcher v. Open Market Comm., 836 F.2d 561 (D.C. Cir. 1987); Reigle v. Federal Open Market Committee, 656 F.2d 873 (D.C. Cir.), cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1082 (1981)). Because Members of Congress would not be able to demonstrate that they were harmed in fact by any dilution or nullification of their vote—and because under the doctrine of equitable discretion, Members would not be able to show that substantial relief could not otherwise be obtained from fellow legislators through the enactment, repeal, or amendment of a statute—it is hardly likely that Members of Congress would have standing to challenge actions under the balanced budget amendment.

Finally, a further limitation on judicial interference is section 6 of House Joint Resolution 1 itself. Under this section, Congress must adopt statutory remedies and mechanisms for any purported budgetary shortfall, such as sequestration, rescission, or the establishment of a contingency fund. Pursuant to section 6, it is clear that Congress, if it finds it necessary, could limit the type of remedies a court may grant or limit courts' jurisdiction in some other manner to proscribe judicial overreaching. This is nothing new. Congress has adopted such limitations in other circumstances pursuant to its article III authority. Here are a few: First, the Norris-LaGuardia Act, 29 U.S.C. secs. 101-115, where the courts were denied the use of injunctive powers to restrain labor disputes; second, the Federal Tax Injunction Act, 28 U.S.C. sec. 2283, where a prohibition on State court proceedings by Federal courts was legislated; and third, the Tax Injunction Act, 26 U.S.C. sec. 7421(a), where Federal courts were prohibited from enjoining the collection of taxes.

In fact, Congress may also limit judicial review to particular special tribunals with limited authority to grant relief. For instance, the Supreme Court in Yakus v. United States, 319 U.S. 182 (1943), upheld the constitutionality of a special Emergency Court of Appeals vested with exclusive authority to determine the validity of claims under the World War II Emergency Price Control Act. In more recent times, the Supreme Court, in Dames & Moore v. Reagan, 453 U.S. 654 (1981), upheld the legality of the Iranian-United States Claims Tribunal as the exclusive forum to settle claims to Iranian assets.

Mr. President, it is clear from the above discussion that the enforcement issues propounded by our opponents do not amount to a hill of beans.

II. JUDICIAL TAXATION

The contention that the balanced budget amendment would allow Federal courts to order the raising of taxes is absolutely without merit. This belief is based on a misunderstanding of the Supreme Court's opinion in Missouri v. Jenkins, 495 U.S. 33 (1990).

In this case, the Supreme Court in essence approved of a lower court remedial remedy of ordering local State or county political subdivisions to raise taxes to support a court ordered school desegregation order. Intentional segregation, in violation of the 14th amendment's equal protection clause, had been found by the lower court in a prior case against the school district.

The concern that the balanced budget amendment would allow a Federal court to order Congress to raise taxes to reduce the budget is without merit. This is true for the following reasons: First, Jenkins is a 14th amendment case. Under 14th amendment jurisprudence, Federal courts may perhaps issue this type of remedial relief against the States, but not against Congress—a coequal branch of Government. The 14th amendment, of course, does not apply to the Federal Government; second, separation of powers concerns would prohibit the judiciary from interfering with budgetary taxing, borrowing, and spending powers that are exclusively delegated to Congress by the Constitution; and third, Congress cannot simply be made a party defendant. To order taxes to be raised, Congress must be named defendant. Presumably, suits to enforce the balanced budget amendment would arise when an official or agency of the executive branch seeks to enforce or administer a statute whose funding is in question in light of the amendment. Thus, the court in Reigle v. Federal Open Market Committee, 656 F.2d 873, 879 n.6 (D.C. Cir. 1981), noted that "[w]hen a plaintiff alleges injury by unconstitutional action taken pursuant to a statute, his proper defendants are those acting under the law * * * and not the legislature which enacted the statute."

III. IMPOUNDMENT RESPONSE

Mr. President, I also wish to respond to the impoundment argument. In each of the years the balanced budget amendment has been debated, I have noticed that one spacious argument is presented as a scarce tactic by the opponents of the amendment. This year the vampire rising from the grave is Presidential impoundment. Supposedly, a President, doing his best Charles I of England impersonation, when faced with the possibility of budgetary shortfalls after ratification of the balanced budget amendment, will somehow have the constitutional authority—nay duty—to arbitrarily cut social spending programs or even raise taxes. Well, Charles Stuart literally lost his head when he claimed as a prerogative the powers of the Commons. So too, a President may not claim authority delegated by the Constitution to the people's representatives. The law is our Cromwell that will prevent impoundment.

I want to emphasize that there is nothing in House Joint Resolution 1 that allows for impoundment. It is not the intent of the amendment to grant the President any impoundment authority under House Joint Resolution 1. In fact, there is a ripeness problem to any attempted impoundment: indeed up to the end of the fiscal year the President has nothing to impound because Congress in the amendment has the power to ameliorate any budget shortfalls or ratify or specify the amount of deficit spending that may occur in that fiscal year.

Moreover, under section 6 of the amendment, Congress must—and I emphasize must—mandate exactly what type of enforcement mechanism it wants, whether it be sequestration, rescission, or the establishment of a contingency fund. The President, as Chief Executive, is duty bound to enforce a particular requisite congressional scheme to the exclusion of impoundment. That the President must enforce a mandatory congressional budgetary measure has been the established law since the 19th century case of Kendall v. United States ex rel. Stokes, 37 U.S. (12 Pet.) 542 (1838). In Kendall, Congress had passed a private act ordering the Postmaster General to pay Kendall for services rendered. The Supreme Court rejected the argument that Kendall could not sue in mandamus because the Postmaster General was subject only to the orders of the President and not to the directives of Congress. The Court held that the President must enforce any mandated—as opposed to discretionary—congressional spending measure pursuant to his duty to faithfully execute the law pursuant to article II, section 3 of the Constitution. The Kendall case was given new vitality in the 1970's, when lower Federal courts, as a matter of statutory construction, rejected attempts by President Nixon to impound funds where Congress did not give the President discretion to withhold funding. E.g., State Highway Commission v. Volpe, 479 F.2d 1099 (8th Cir. 1973).

The position that section 6 implementing legislation would preclude Presidential impoundment was seconded by Attorney General Barr at the recent Judiciary Committee hearing on the balanced budget amendment. Testifying that the impoundment issue was in reality incomprehensible, General Barr concluded that "the whip hand is in Congress' hand, so to speak; under section 6 [the] Congress can provide the enforcement mechanism that the courts will defer to and that the President will be bound by."

What we have here then, is an argument based on a mere possibility. Under the mere possibility scenario of an impoundment we would have to include any possibility, however remote, in the amendment. The amendment would look like an insurance policy. Why place something in the Constitution that in all probability could never happen, especially if Congress could preclude impoundment by legislation?

Mr. CRAIG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ABRAHAM). The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, this afternoon, the issue that brings Senators to the floor is the beginning of what I believe will be a historic debate in this Chamber, as it has been in the House the last several days of last week, and that is to debate and consider House Joint Resolution 1, a balanced budget resolution to the Constitution of our country.

If I could, for a few brief moments, read to you, Mr. President, and to those who might be listening, the actual resolution. The reason I believe it is so fundamentally important that the American people and my colleagues in the Senate hear and understand what the resolution itself says is because a great deal will be said over the course of the next 3 weeks about this single 2-page document that will simply not be true.

By the time we are through debating it, it will appear to some who might listen to be an overburdening action that this Government should not take. I think what is important in the processes of our constitutional requirement is for all of the Senate, and certainly for the American people, to understand that the Congress of the United States is only proposing—is only proposing—to the American people and to the 50 States a resolution that would establish a process to cause this Congress to begin to construct a budget for our country that would come into balance.

Let me read:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within 7 years after the date of its submission to the States for ratification:

Therein itself is a very clear statement, Mr. President, that this Senate begins today only the debate that would cause us to agree by a two-thirds vote to send forth to the States this simple document for them to consider, and by three-fourths to ratify, for it to become the 28th amendment to the Constitution of this country.

Article—

One article, not article I, not article II, not article III, but one article with eight sections, 1½ pages in total.

SECTION 1. Total outlays for any fiscal year shall not exceed total receipts for that fiscal year, unless three-fifths of the whole number of each House of Congress shall provide by law for a specific excess of outlays over receipts by a rollcall vote.

SECTION 2. The limit of the debt of the United States held by the public shall not be increased, unless three-fifths of the whole number of each House shall provide by law for such an increase by a rollcall vote.

SECTION 3. Prior to each fiscal year, the President shall transmit to the Congress a proposed budget for the United States Government for that fiscal year in which total outlays do not exceed receipts.

SECTION 4. No bill to increase revenue shall become law unless approved by a majority of the whole number of each House by a rollcall vote.

SECTION 5. The Congress may waive the provisions of this article for any fiscal year in which a declaration of war is in effect. The provisions of this article may be waived for any fiscal year in which the United States is engaged in military conflict which causes an imminent and serious military threat to national security and is so declared by a joint resolution, adopted by a majority of the whole number of each House, which becomes law.

SECTION 6. The Congress shall enforce and implement this article by appropriate legislation, which may rely on estimates of outlays and receipts.

SECTION 7. Total receipts shall include all receipts of the United States Government except those derived from borrowing. Total outlays shall include all outlays of the United States Government except for those for repayment of debt principal.

SECTION 8.

And the last section.

This article shall take effect beginning with fiscal year 2002 or with the second fiscal year beginning after its ratification, whichever is later.

Passed by the U.S. House of Representatives January 26, 1995.

And, of course, introduced into the Senate and brought to this floor today for the purposes of beginning the debate.

Mr. President, the reason I read this document and the reason it is important that the RECORD show that it is but 1½ pages in length, it is 8 sections and only 1 article, as proposed as the 28th amendment to the Constitution of our country, is because if the average citizen just listened to the debate, they would think that the magnitude of this statement, so defined and so articulated by the opposition to it, surely must be 1,000 pages in length, or it must be one of those 1,700- or 2,000-page bills, like the health care bill of a year ago. If it is to cause for this country all of the dire predictions that the Senator from Massachusetts just proposed, how could a document so simple cause so much problem? In fact, how could a document so simple even suggest after it were ratified by the States that the Congress shall enforce and implement this article by appropriate legislation?

In fact, what we are hearing and what we will hear for 3 or 4 weeks, and potentially hundreds of amendments later, is that the Congress itself has the cart before the horse; that we, the Senators, must see in great detail every item that will be cut, every change in the budget that will be proposed over the next 7-year period, and yet the constitutional amendment itself, as proposed, says that:

The Congress shall enforce and implement this article by appropriate legislation—

And that will come logically, at least, only after we find out if three-fourths of the States of our Nation are willing to ratify it.

I think myself and the Senator from Utah and the Senator from Illinois know that we will try to do better than that. We will work at explaining and trying to articulate what we believe this process, this procedure would require as it relates to changes in budget and changes in budgetary practices.

But I think for all of us who will become involved in this debate over the next several weeks, it is constantly important that we remember that it is but a simple document proposed to the States and, yes, out of that simplicity will probably come one of the most significant changes in the way the central Government of this country operates than ever in the history of its central Government since the Constitutional Convention and the proposed Constitution that this would become an amendment of as it was proposed some 208 years ago.

The Senator from Utah, who leads the debate on this side, has clearly spelled out the efforts and the work that has gone into the crafting of this amendment. Certainly, the Senator from Illinois, who is here in the Chamber this afternoon, and the Senator from South Carolina know, because they have been involved in this issue for a good many years, as have I, that it is not a partisan issue, that it cannot be a partisan issue. By the very nature of the two-thirds vote that is required in this body, it is uniquely bipartisan. And over the years we have worked hard to accomplish that.

The vote in the House of last week demonstrates very clearly that it was again a uniquely bipartisan debate and vote, with many members of both parties voting for it, to acquire that two-thirds vote.

The gravity and the magnitude of changing the Constitution of this country must be something that a majority, a very large majority, of the American people agree with, two-thirds in the Senate and the three-fourths of the States. It is so critically necessary.

I have mentioned PAUL SIMON of Illinois, former chairman of the Constitution Subcommittee, leader on the Democrat side on this issue. STROM THURMOND, who is here to speak this afternoon, from South Carolina, President pro tempore of the Senate and former Judiciary chairman who introduced this issue in the 1950's; ORRIN HATCH, who now chairs the Judiciary Committee, who spoke and opened up this debate as he brought the House resolution to the floor; and HOWELL HEFLIN, CAROL MOSELEY-BRAUN, PETE DOMENICI, and many other Senators including myself have been involved in this issue for well over a decade now.

The reason I mentioned breadth of time and all of those from a bipartisan point of view that have been involved in this issue is because, as attitude and ideas change here in this body or in the other about how we govern our country, one idea that has been around now for well over two decades has been this idea. I think it has met the test of change and time. And I think all of us recognize that, if we truly are going to bring about the kind of changes in the central Government of this country that many of us believe the American people spoke to on November 8, this is the issue, this is the resolution, that can bring that change because while all of those ideas change about how we change our Government and how we look at it, this one has not changed.

Interestingly enough, it was not just one of those items in the Contract With America that Republican candidates for the House of Representatives ran on last year and now work on as Members of the Congress. It was the centerpiece. The reason it was the centerpiece, and the reason we know why it should be, was the importance it plays in what it will cause this Congress and this Senate to do differently.

The Senator from Massachusetts was talking about a variety of very important programs. Many of us call them Great Society welfare programs, ideas of the past, ideas that appeared to be good in their day, ideas that would have solved a great many problems for our country. But when you look at the breadth of time that they have been funded and have been operating, have they addressed our problems? Have they solved the problems they set out to solve?

The answer is quite simply no, because if they had and had there have been no more poverty and been no more people on welfare, if the budget had been balanced, I doubt that the election last November would have been the way it was, that our American people would have spoken so strongly to this issue and to other issues and would have demanded the change.

So it is not in spite of them; it is largely because of a variety of ideas that have transformed our Government that have caused us to have a $4.6 trillion debt and on average $200 billion deficit and a $300 billion annualized interest payment. The American people are saying in a very loud way and in a very clear way, Congress, pass a balanced budget amendment and in so doing transform our Government for us and do as you will to change it. Be kind. Use good priority. Recognize those in need. But do not continue to fund it by deficit in the manner that you have.

This year in a Wirthlin poll, 70 percent of the American people said that, or said some form of what I have just said, and 19 percent disagreed. A Washington Post-ABC poll beginning this year showed that 80 percent of the American people agreed or said something like that when asked the question. Even when the question was asked, well, what about, or if, or this might be changed, they said, we want a balanced budget because we fear that the Government and those who govern us have lost sight of the impact of a debt and a deficit of the kind we have as a country and its potential impact on future generations.

Well, those polls were taken in 1994 and 1995, just this year. But in September 1992, again, 81 percent of the American people spoke out and said change, balance the budget, pass a balanced budget amendment, begin to restrict yourselves, begin to control yourselves as a government.

So it is an issue that has withstood the test of time. It is not something new, nor is it unique or different. You will hear in the course of this debate quotes from our Founding Fathers. You have heard the Senator from Massachusetts refer to the Federalist papers.

Let the new Federalist papers of 1995 be crafted by this Congress to speak to the States of our Nation and to tell them the virtues of a balanced budget amendment and what it will do to change the powerful central Government and what it will do to bring back the 10th amendment and the 14th amendment and the power to the States and the power to the citizens to once again control themselves. Yes, this is a most critical time in our Nation's history, and, yes, I believe this is a most historic debate we begin this afternoon.

Coincidentally, as we meet here in the Chamber of the Senate today, Governors from all 50 States are meeting in this Capital City, and they are gathered around preparing to convene a national conference of Governors in the coming months to develop a dialog and a presentation to the central Government, to the Congress of the United States, cajoling, arguing, emphatically stating that it is time the States began to reclaim some of their power under the 10th and 14th amendments.

A Democrat Governor this morning from Indiana said on national television: And if the Congress does not listen, then maybe we will have to do what States did when they brought about a Constitutional Convention as a result of a meeting in Annapolis, as a result of a failing document called the Articles of Confederation. That was a Democrat Governor that said that this morning in a mild but direct way.

A Republican Governor sitting right beside him said, yes; it is absolutely true. If the arrogance of power today in the central Government and here in this Senate and in the House is to say to our States, we do not hear you and we do not care; we will continue to put down upon you one Federal law after another that will erode your power and your ability to govern under a Constitution that puts States in a pre-eminent power position and put the central Government second in almost all, if you do not do that—and that is what those Governors were saying this morning—we will speak even louder to transform our Government once again like the States over 200 years ago had to do because of a central Government that was not working.

If we pass this resolution, if we send to the States the 28th amendment to the Constitution of this country, and if it is ratified, then we will begin a historic dialog with those Governors and State legislatures to decide what of these programs that make up this huge Federal budget have priority to the States and to the citizens of those States, which should be paid for by the State legislatures and the taxpayers of States and which should be funded by the Federal Government. And I sincerely believe until we pass this amendment, that kind of debate, that kind of dialog, that kind of cooperative relationship between the States and their central Government will really never begin.

Last Friday night we passed another historic piece of legislation, the unfunded mandates legislation. My colleague from Idaho authored that and brought it to the floor of the U.S. Senate. There is no doubt that was a phenomenally important step. But, still, there is adequate room for the Federal Government to create great havoc with State governments and their ability to control. That unfunded mandates bill, coupled with a constitutional amendment to balance the Federal Government's budget would for the first time in the life and the history of this Government under this Constitution create a dialog and debate that will go on for a long, long while as we begin the process I have just outlined: A sorting out of our differences and deciding what we can do and what we cannot do and what is within the fiscal means of our country to do.

Yes, to the Senator from Massachusetts, we would establish a lot of unique and new priorities. You see what he was saying a few moments ago when he talked about all those cuts, is that his vision of America is a Government like the one we currently have, only bigger and bigger and bigger. Not changed, not rejuvenated, not redistributed, not redesigned and reenvisioned and recreated. But that is what the American people are saying. And that is why we began this debate this afternoon.

Over the course of the next several weeks I am sure all of my colleagues who are joined in this debate in favor of a balanced budget amendment will work overtime to explain to our colleagues here in the Senate and to the American people how the processes will work. But one thing we know is clear. We must pass a clean amendment, because it is nothing but a prescription, a process, a procedure placed in the Constitution which mandates to the Congress of the United States that they will bring their receipts and expenditures into balance on an annual basis and they will do so in a certain manner.

And if they find it impossible to do they will offer it up in another different manner under a different prescription. But it will be so required and the American people will know why we are spending in deficit if we must. But more important, that in the good years we will pay it off. We will get back in balance. We will do what our Founding Fathers did for well over 100 years during the history of this country, the first 100 years, when a balanced budget was an ethic. It was believed to be the responsibility of a central Government. Slowly but surely we have walked away from that. Slowly but surely our debt began to mount. Slowly but surely we began to lose control of our Government to an autopilot that now many will argue we must retain. I do not believe that is what our Governors are saying. It is most certainly not what the citizens are speaking to. And it is something this Congress should never agree to again.

So we begin this debate with the recognition that House Joint Resolution 1 that is before us as a resolution proposed to the States to provide a balanced budget amendment to our Constitution can bring about profound change. But it will bring about change so designed in the image of the citizens of this country, as they envision their central Government.

I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina is recognized.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, today, we begin consideration of a proposed constitutional amendment to require the Federal Government to achieve and maintain a balanced budget. We are pleased that the House acted with wide bipartisan support as it adopted the balanced budget amendment by a vote of 300 to 132.

Also, before we have extended debate on this proposed amendment in the Senate, I want to commend the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Senator HATCH. He is to be congratulated on the manner in which he handled this matter in the Judiciary Committee and bringing it to the floor for consideration. I have worked over the years with Senator HATCH on the balanced budget amendment and due in large part to his tireless efforts we are close to sending this proposal to the American people for ratification. I also wish to commend Senator LARRY CRAIG of Idaho for his fine leadership on this matter. He has been a stalwart in this fight. Also, I wish to commend Senator PAUL SIMON of Illinois, who has been a leader in this cause for a number of years.

Mandating balanced Federal budgets is not a new idea. The first constitutional amendment to balance the budget was proposed in 1936 by Minnesota Representative Harold Knutson. Then came World War II and attention was distracted from efforts to secure annual balanced budgets, although Senator Tydings and Representative Disney introduced several balanced budget amendments during that period.

Following World War II, a Senate joint resolution on balanced budgets was introduced by Senators Tydings of Maryland and Bridges and reported out by the Committee on Appropriations in 1947 but received no further action. During the 1950's, an increasing number of constitutional initiatives for balanced budgets came to be introduced regularly in Congress. It was during that time that I supported legislation such as that offered by Senators Bridges, Curtis, and Harry Byrd to require the submission by the President of an annual balanced budget and to prevent Congress from adjourning without having enacted such a budget. No action was taken on these measures. Yet, since the beginning of the 84th Congress in 1955, an average of four constitutional amendments to require a balanced Federal budget have been proposed during each Congress. There was little substantive action in the 1960's and 1970's on our proposals. But finally, in 1982 while I was chairman of the Judiciary Committee, the Senate passed a balanced budget amendment which I authored. Our victory was short-lived, however, because the Speaker and the majority leader at that time led the movement to kill it in the House of Representatives. That was our high water mark as we fell one vote short in 1986 and four votes short last year. With the recent action in the House of Representatives and wide bipartisan support in the Senate, I am ever optimistic that this is the year the Congress will deliver to the American people a balanced budget amendment.

Simply stated, this legislation calls for a constitutional amendment requiring that outlays not exceed receipts during any fiscal year. Also, the Congress would be allowed by a three-fifths vote to adopt a specific level of deficit spending. Further, there is language to allow the Congress to waive the amendment during time of war or imminent military threat. Finally, the amendment requires that any bill to increase taxes be approved by a majority of the whole number of both Houses.

This legislation would provide an important step to reduce and ultimately eliminate the Federal deficit. The American people have expressed their strong opinion that we focus our efforts on reducing the deficit. Making a balanced budget amendment part of the Constitution is appropriate action for addressing our Nation's runaway fiscal policy.

Over the past half-century, the Federal Government has become jeopardized by an irrational and irresponsible pattern of spending. As a result, this firmly entrenched fiscal policy is a threat to the liberties and opportunities of our present and future citizens.

The national debt as of December 30, 1994 was $4.65 trillion. The Federal deficit in fiscal year 1993 was $225 billion. Mr. President, in 1957, my third year in the Senate, the entire national debt was less than $275 billion and there was not a deficit, but rather a $3 billion surplus.

Today, the payment of interest on the debt is the second largest item in the budget. That accounts for the estimate that this year it will take over 40 percent of all personal income tax receipts to pay the interest on the debt.

The tax dollars that go to pay interest on the debt are purely to service a voracious congressional appetite for spending. Payment of interest on the debt does not build roads, it does not fund medical research, it does not provide educational opportunities, it does not provide job opportunities, and it does not speak well for the Federal Government. Payment of interest on the debt merely allows the Federal Government to carry a debt which has been growing at an alarming rate. It is deficit spending which has brought us to these crossroads. Congress has balanced the Federal budget only once in the last 32 years and only 8 times in the last 64 years. A balanced budget amendment as part of the Constitution will mandate the Congress to adhere to a responsible fiscal policy.

The American businessmen and businesswomen have become incredulous as they witness year in and year out the spending habits of the Congress. Anyone who runs a business clearly understands that they cannot survive by continuing to spend more money than they take in. It is time the Congress understands this simple yet compelling principle.

For many years, I have believed, as have many Members of Congress, that the way to reverse this misguided direction of the Federal Government's fiscal policy is by amending the Constitution to mandate, except in extraordinary circumstances, balanced Federal budgets. The Congress should adopt this proposal and send it to the American people for ratification. The balanced budget amendment is a much needed addition to the Constitution and it would establish balanced budgets as a fiscal norm, rather than a fiscal abnormality.

The tax burdens which today's deficits will place on future generations of American workers is staggering. Future American workers are our children and our children's children. We are mortgaging the future for generations yet unborn. This is a terrible injustice we are imposing on America's future and it has been appropriately referred to as fiscal child abuse.

Our third President, Thomas Jefferson, stated: The question whether one generation has the right to bind another by the deficit it imposes is a question of such consequence as to place it among the fundamental principles of government. We should consider ourselves unauthorized to saddle posterity with our debts, and morally bound to pay them ourselves.

It is time we show the fiscal discipline advocated by Thomas Jefferson and adopt a balanced budget amendment. I yield the floor.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, as the Senate begins to debate the resolution to send to the States a proposed constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget, I am hopeful it can also be an educational experience for both participants and spectators. Like the gulf war debate, I hope it will lead to an informed judgment for all of us. For it has been a debate that has gone on for centuries.

The words of Andrew Jackson and Thomas Jefferson have always made sense to me. They did not believe in permanent debt. Jackson said,

I am one of those who do not believe a national debt is a national blessing, but rather a curse to a republic; inasmuch as it is calculated to raise around the administration a moneyed aristocracy dangerous to the liberties of the country.

I am sensitive to the significance of amending our Constitution and the care we should exercise when we propose to do so. In more than 200 years, the Constitution has been amended 27 times. Two of those occasions reflect the effort to annul with the 21st amendment the problems created by the 18th, prohibition.

Passage of the repeal amendment could no more undo the damage caused by Prohibition than it could turn back the clock.

Throughout most of our history, the discipline of balanced budgets was part of our tradition. It was so much a part of the culture of government that no external discipline was necessary to enforce it.

That has not been true for the last quarter century. The discipline of strong political parties has eroded. In the last quarter-century, self-styled conservatives got tired of preaching fiscal austerity. The free lunch theory of politics was born. It proved successful, and we are its heirs.

History is unforgiving. What has been done changes the world, whether or not, in hindsight, we think it should have been done. We are forced to deal with the changed world. We can no more return to the tradition-inspired fiscal discipline that ruled our Nation's first 150 years than we could undo the damage of Prohibition by repealing it.

In this changed world, proponents argue that the only institution in American life that still commands the respect necessary to impose discipline in the face of competing demands is the Constitution.

So I have supported the idea of amending the Constitution. I have done so in the hope that it would have a salutary effect on smoke-and-mirrors budgeting that has won all too many of the battles while the Nation is steadily losing the war.

From the beginning of the American constitutional system in 1789, the Federal budget was in rough balance in most of its first 150 years.

Following the end of the Second World War, that has not been the case. Until the end of the 1960's, deficits were small, relative to the gross national product, and some fiscal years showed small surpluses. The oil price shocks of the 1970's and other factors began to fuel the ominous upward drift of deficits.

Even then, despite the efforts by some to rewrite history, the growth of the national debt was not exponential. Deficits reflected economic stress, not an out-of-control budget.

That changed dramatically in 1981.

Fourteen years ago, with the first Reagan budget, deficits exploded and the national debt began its upward spiral.

The combination of supply-side economics in the form of a massive tax cut and a trillion-dollar defense buildup led to record-setting deficits.

In the 12 years of Reagan-Bush economics, a national debt that had taken two centuries to reach $1 trillion was quadrupled.

If your family built up a $9,000 debt over 5 years and your feckless brother-in-law ran up $27,000 on your credit card in 45 days, you'd be facing the equivalent of what happened at the Federal level. Your monthly interest charges would go sky high. That happened to Federal interest charges, too.

Today the interest payment on our debt is $212 billion. If it were not for the Reagan-Bush portion of the debt, our budget would be virtually in balance today.

High deficits that persist in good economic times as well as bad damage our economy. They sap economic growth by diverting resources from productive investments. They add to the debt burden and its servicing cost, the interest we pay on the debt each year. That diverts resources from longer range investment in infrastructure and education.

Everyone knows what must be done to balance the budget. Revenues have to equal or exceed outlays. you can reach that result by increasing revenues or reducing outlays or both.

But you can't do it with mirrors.

Despite three versions of the Gramm-Rudman Act since 1985, each of which was supposed to produce a balanced budget, the budget, as we all know, is far from balanced.

The first real action to get the deficits under control occurred in 1990, when Congress and President Bush agreed on $500 billion in deficit reduction.

Again in 1993, Congress and President Clinton agreed on another $500 billion in deficit reduction that has given us the first 3 consecutive years of declining deficits in half a century. Yet the 1993 action, which has been enormously beneficial to our economy, was fiercely resisted on a partisan basis. Not one Republican voted for that deficit reduction package.

We were warned that passing the President's budget would throw the country into recession, cost countless jobs, put Americans into the poorhouse through tax hikes, and make the deficit go through the roof.

Exactly the opposite happened. The economy grew stronger and expanded; more than 5 million new jobs were created; 20 million working Americans were taken off the tax rolls; and the deficit has come down for 3 years in succession.

The dire warnings in 1993 weren't qualified. They were presented as factual conclusions, predictions so sound they were without possibility of error. So supremely confident was the partisan opposition that the President's plan passed by just a single-vote margin in the House and the Senate.

Today, the same people whose confident predictions of economic disaster have been proven so totally wrong are making confident assertions about how easy it will be to balance the budget.

We are hearing with increased frequency that nothing but a freeze is needed to balance the budget by the year 2002, so States and cities need not worry that programs that target funds for them will be seriously affected.

The same people who so confidently predicted in 1993 that the President's budget plan would lead to economic disaster, and who have been proven so totally wrong, are now asking us to have confidence in their claims that balancing the budget won't be difficult because it can be done by freezing spending.

The same people who want Americans to believe this are hoping no one will notice that they're using the exact opposite argument about defense spending.

The defense budget has been frozen since 1987. It has been about $280 billion a year. According to the logic of those who say balancing the budget will be painless if you just freeze all spending, we should expect defense resources to be what they were in 1987.

But that is not what you are hearing. What you are hearing is that defense has suffered deep cuts, that spending reductions have done all sorts of damage, and, to the contrary, that we must increase spending for the military if we are to avert imminent disaster.

But in freeze terms, there haven't been any spending reductions. There just hasn't been inflation-adjusted growth. That, we are told, isn't a cut—it's a freeze.

Since 1987, the dollar amounts available to the Pentagon have remained steady in nominal dollars—and that's exactly what a freeze is.

Since 1987, the number of Army divisions has fallen from 28 to 20, Air Force fighter wings have fallen from 36 to 22, the Navy fleet has been trimmed from 568 ships to 387, and the number of men and women in uniform has fallen from 2.2 million to 1.6 million.

The military has discovered that a freeze is not a freeze because resources do not stay frozen. Instead, divisions and fighter wings melt away. That is because $280 billion just does not go as far in 1995 as it did in 1987.

It does not take a mathematical genius to figure this out.

I do not think anyone in America would have much trouble figuring out that living in 1995 on what they earned in 1987 would mean some cutbacks. I do not think most Americans have trouble figuring out that if they had exactly the same dollar amounts to spend on rent and food and clothing today that they spent in 1987, they would be buying a lot less of everything.

This is why our city mayors and our Governors are wondering what will happen to their budgets and the services they are responsible for under this freeze theory. No wonder they are concerned. They should be.

The proposed balanced budget amendment sets very strong conditions and standards to be applied to the budget.

It would require a three-fifths majority, not a simple majority, to raise the debt ceiling or adopt a budget that is out of balance.

This so-called supermajority is the Senate's filibuster rule. All of America had a good taste of how the filibuster rule worked in the 103d Congress. It brought work to a full stop. It put into the hands of a minority the power to bargain for, hold hostage, blackmail, or simply block anything they wanted.

The Constitution is straightforward about the few instances in which more than a majority of the Congress must vote: A veto override, a treaty, and a finding of guilt in an impeachment proceeding. Every other action by the Congress is taken by majority vote.

The Founders debated the idea of requiring more than a majority to approve legislation. They concluded that putting such immense power into the hands of a minority ran squarely against the democratic principle. Democracy means majority rule, not minority gridlock.

Even the Senate, with its veneration for the filibuster rule, limits its reach when it comes to the budget. The Senate has specifically protected the reconciliation process against manipulation by a minority. You cannot filibuster a reconciliation bill.

When we seek to override a veto or ratify a treaty, two-thirds of those present and voting decide the issue. If 10 Senators are absent, a veto can be overridden by 60 votes instead of the 67 needed when there's full attendance. If 15 Senators are absent, we can ratify a treaty with 57 votes.

But when an absolute number of 60 "yes" votes is needed, absent Members—Senators who don't even show up to vote—have the same power to affect the outcome as if they were present to cast a "no" vote.

In addition, the proposal before us requires that a majority of the entire body, not of those present and voting, is required for the approval of any revenue increase and that such approval shall require a rollcall vote.

I do not understand why we would permit 47 of 88 Senators on the floor to vote the country into war—as we would, if that were the issue and 12 Senators were absent—but we should never allow fewer than 51 Senators to vote for the smallest revenue increase.

This means accelerated gridlock. The Senate could not act on anything that involved revenues, no matter how trivial, if the outcome were close, if just one Senator were absent—not an uncommon occurrence. If one Senator is absent, and the body is evenly split on an issue, a 50-vote win would not suffice. I need not remind anyone how often we legislate with more than one absentee.

The proposal requires that this vote be taken by a rollcall. That means the end of any voice-voted conference reports that include any revenues, no matter how trivial, and no matter how broadly supported.

These will strike some as minimal objections to a grand scheme, but it is often over the most trivial things that grand schemes come to an unhappy end.

A failure to observe the requirement would open any law to challenge in the courts, as having been enacted unconstitutionally.

There are already many Americans, including well-respected economists and nonpartisan political observers, who think the effect of a constitutional commandment to balance the budget will be a series of ever-moreingenious evasions by the Congress.

They believe that as the difficulties and inconveniences of living up to the promise are encountered in the real world, Congress will create loopholes just as it has changed other budgeting laws when they became inconvenient in past years.

But it is one thing to change statutory budget law. It is quite another to play fix-up games with the Constitution.

I support a constitutional amendment to balance the budget because only the Constitution commands universal respect. But I am seriously concerned that the amendment must be crafted carefully. Otherwise, it will invite tampering with a constitutional requirement that will undermine that universal respect which we all now recognize.

Perhaps we should consider adopting, as a Senate rule, the requirements on voting that are now embodied in the measure.

Let us see on a practical basis whether it makes sense to give a minority the right to block this year's budget resolution.

If this is a good idea to impose on a Congress in which many of today's Members will not serve, let us consider imposing it on this Congress, in which we are all serving. And if not, let us at least consider modifying this language to more closely conform to the constitutional standards for voting on other important legislation.

In the present climate of contract-induced hysteria, I suppose many are ready to pledge their lives and sacred honor on their willingness to be present and vote for each and every cent of revenue that may ever be raised in the unknowable future.

But how strongly will new Congresses, not in the grip of hysteria, feel about this provision?

I note that the House does not intend to apply this requirement as a House rule when it considers the contract's tax cut bill. I wonder if that is because it is expected that bill will contain some revenue-raising offsets as well as spending cuts?

The proposal before us has little in the way of interpretative language. It is unclear what constitutes a revenue increase. If a tax benefit expires, for example, does that constitute a revenue increase within the meaning of this language? Does it mean we cannot simply allow it to expire but must take affirmative action to vote in favor of doing what an earlier Congress already determined should be done? Would a taxpayer have standing to sue if a tax benefit expired without an affirmative vote?

I hope this facet of the proposal can be clarified. I think Americans have a right to know what this language means.

We are often told that if the average family can balance its budget, we ought to be able to balance the Federal budget. I do not know how many American families pay for their houses with a single cash payment or buy their cars cash down. I know that is not too common in South Dakota.

Likewise, we are told the States balance their budgets each year, and so the Federal Government should balance its budget each year.

But this is not true, either. States balance their books each year. They do not balance their budgets. State debt has, in fact, been rising. State debt rose by $26 billion from 1991 to 1992—8 percent. State debt has been rising because States are not balancing their budgets. They are balancing their books.

That is what families with mortgages, car payments, and credit card debt to. It is what every business in the country does.

Today, the only entity for which investment and operating costs are considered interchangeable is the Federal Government. That is something that deserves more attention than it has received so far.

Another popular idea floating about is that the Consumer Price Index so greatly overstates the inflation rate that it could be taken at a third of its value, thus saving enormous amounts of money.

The only thing wrong with this is that is not true. It is wishful thinking. The measurement of all economic statistics undergoes a continuous process of refinement, regardless of which political party is in power. The Consumer Price Index is in the process of being reviewed in this fashion, and the process ought to be left alone. We do not need hopeful economic statistics. We need accurate ones.

The thing supporters of this convenient theory do not want Americans to remember is that if the value of the consumer price index were halved, the indexing of tax deductions would also be halved.

Today, because of the 1986 tax reform bill, the amount of income that is excluded from taxes rises along with the cost of living each year.

If the Consumer Price Index is devalued, what you get is a backdoor tax hike. It will cause taxes to rise significantly, compared to inflation. No surprise, the people paying the bulk of the increased taxes will be working, middle-class people whose income comes from salaries and wages, not interest earnings and investments.

I said at the outset that there is no magic to balancing the budget. You do it by cutting spending or increasing revenues. Those who are relying on spending freezes or understated consumer price indexes plan to use revenues. They just do not want to admit it.

The reality is that, if we are going to balance the budget by 2002, we ought to face up to the fact that it will be a difficult process. It will be difficult, because it will mean asking people to give up services and benefits they are used to receiving.

That is why I so strongly believe that if we're going to do this, people deserve to find out what is involved.

The State officers who deal with State budgets have produced estimates of the cost to every State of a balanced Federal budget, based on the funds that States receive today from the Federal Government. Although the degree of dependence on Federal benefits varies, on average, at least one-fifth of State budgets is now comprised of Federal funds.

These are the so-called "discretionary domestic spending" funds that are the target of the freeze idea. They are the programs directly at risk if we decide to balance the budget by not taking inflation into account and simply keeping all programs level in nominal dollars for the next 7 years.

Some say the success of the President's budget plan of 1993 means there is no need to amend the Constitution. I would like to be able to agree. But the razor-thin, one-vote margins by which we succeeded in 1993 are a slender reed on which to rest our prosperity in the next century.

At the same time, the deficit of today and the politics of today are not what they were in 1979, when I first proposed a constitutional amendment to balance the budget.

In the intervening years, we have been subjected to free-lunch promises, to tax hikes called "revenue enhancements" and "user fees," to budgets with magical asterisks that stand for spending cuts that cannot be outlined, and prophecies of one disaster after another. We reinvented our Tax Code with the 1986 Tax Reform Act. The 1986 reform is not even a decade old, and it's already being denounced by some who voted for it. The Speaker of the House says we must now scrap the income tax and turn instead to a national sales tax.

It is not surprising that Americans don't know what to think or whom to trust. I doubt that anyone casting a ballot last November thought he or she had just voted to impose a national sales tax on themselves. Because of the speed with which these ideas flash in and out of the political spotlight, and because each reappearance of an old discredited idea tricked out in brand-new slogans adds to the general confusion, I have concluded that it is no longer enough to establish a simple constitutional command to balance the budget.

This time, I believe the American people have a right to know what it is that we are proposing to do. So I have introduced and, with the support of over 40 of my colleagues, will be fighting for, the Right to Know Act, a resolution whose adoption should precede passage of the constitutional balanced budget amendment.

I had always hoped that if the Senate ever were to undertake a debate on a constitutional amendment to balance the budget, our debate would be characterized by seriousness and honesty, not slogans and sound bites.

I hoped that because it seems to me that what the elected officials of Government say and do about the taxes that citizens pay to Government is as important as anything we do. People work hard for their wages. Families in my State of South Dakota do not earn the kinds of salaries that the aristocracy of wealth here in Washington considers normal. They deserve to have their taxes taken seriously.

That is why I am concerned about the freeze hoax and the other issue—dodging that is going on around here. It sounds too much like the stuff we have been hearing for years.

It does not matter whether you quote David Stockman, Reagan's first Budget Director, who concluded, "After 4 years, I'm convinced a large share of the problem is us. By that I mean Republicans," or you quote Ronald Reagan, who said, "This administration is committed to a balanced budget and we will fight to the last blow to achieve it in 1984."

The bottom line is that, when they had the power, they did not fight to cut the deficit. When President Clinton proposed to cut the deficit, they fought, all right. They fought him.

I have tried to play by the rules. That is why I began with a constitutional amendment to balance the budget when I was first elected to Congress. But it seems that the rules keep changing.

When the President offers real cuts, fight him, misrepresent his program, predict disaster, obstruct, vote no. Then, when you are proven wrong, stick to your guns. When you are asked to be specific, duck the question. Say it will not be too tough. Talk about a national sales tax. Change the subject.

That is not my idea of responsible legislating.

This year—again, no surprise—we have the new House majority leader announcing that he is not about to present an honest accounting of what you have to cut to balance the budget, because, and I quote him directly, “The fact of the matter is that once Members of Congress know exactly, chapter and verse, the pain that the Government must live with in order to get a balanced budget, their knees will buckle.”

He knows his membership better than I do. But none of us, including House Republicans, were sent here to do the easy stuff. We were sent here to do the work. We are being paid to do it, and it is about time we buckled down and did it.

I have listened to much talk, on and off the Senate floor, for many years now about the balanced budget. The longer I am here, the more obvious it is that those who talk the most act the least.

That is why this year I say, no more. I have had enough. We have heard the evasions, the hypocrisies, the half-truths and all the rest.

I sincerely believe that people on both sides of the aisle truly want to achieve a meaningful way with which to accomplish a balance Federal budget by the year 2002. This year, I say Americans cannot accept simply our promise to do so. They cannot accept simply our version of Trust us. Americans have the right to know what this means. They have a right to know how we will spell it out, how we will set it out, how we will let the people share in our decisionmaking. That is now up to us.

What I propose is that we trigger the reconciliation process, the process that does not let a minority hold us hostage, and start now on how we might go about reducing the deficit for the next 7 years. Let Members set the budget path to a balanced Federal budget by the year 2002. That is the heart of the right-to-know amendment. It is not just hot air or empty talk about people's knees buckling.

I want to know and the American people ought to know what all this talk means. If they cannot answer that question for the American people, they cannot answer it for me or anyone else. So today, let the Senate begin this debate with high expectations, with a realization that we cannot fail, with appreciation of what we must do to make this an honest debate. Let Senators make an informed judgment, and let Senators let the American people be a part of it.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Laurence Block, Victor Cabral, Michael O'Neill, Steven Schlesinger, and Elizabeth Kessler, detailees, be granted floor privileges for the remainder of this calendar year.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ASHCROFT). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today to advocate passage of the balanced budget amendment, a measure which will fundamentally change the direction our Government has taken in the last 25 years.

Mr. President, if the people of this country said anything last November, it is that we should change the course of this country. The most important thing we can do to show the American people that we heard their call and that we are acting on it is to pass this balanced budget amendment.

During the last 25 years, Congress has become desensitized to the enormity of the fiscal and moral harm its habitual deficit spending is causing this country. Those of us who support the balanced budget amendment believe that, contrary to the thrust of many arguments that we will be hearing in the next few days, weeks, or even months, budget deficits of this magnitude are not the norm. With the exception of deficit spending during wartime, this country grew to be the most powerful on Earth while enjoying increasingly high standards of living without spending excessively.

But during the last few decades, we have accumulated a national debt of $4.4 trillion, nearly $18,000 for every man, woman, and child in this country. In fact, every child that is born today owes $18,000. That is not a birthright; that is a birth-wrong. Our per capita debt has increased more than sevenfold in the last 18 years. I do not think it is coincidence that at the same time there has arisen a crisis of confidence in the Government among many segments of our society.

We have now become the largest debtor nation in history, and a large portion of that debt is held by foreign interests. We have mortgaged our children's future in the very way Thomas Jefferson feared and warned us about 200 years ago.

He said:

The question whether one generation has the right to bind another by the deficit it imposes is a question of such consequence as to place it among the fundamental principles of government. We should consider ourselves unauthorized to saddle posterity with our debts and morally bound to pay them ourselves.

Since the beginning of our slide down the slippery slope of deficit spending 25 years ago, it has become more and more evident that the problem is due in part to an inherent weakness in the way Congress goes about its business.

The deficit is a result of the fact that it has become harder and harder to raise taxes but all too easy to increase spending.

The voters made themselves perfectly clear on this matter last November. To them, the deficit is not a result of the Government taxing too little. It is the result of Government spending too much. That is a simple concept instinctively grasped by our people but until now has seemed beyond the reach of Congress.

It is at this critical juncture that a balanced budget amendment would inject the element of accountability into the process. It should be just as hard for the Government to borrow as it is for the Government to raise taxes.

The balanced budget amendment would set up a tension in Congress when we deliberate over borrowing, taxing, and spending. And we need that tension, Mr. President. Other less drastic attempts to accomplish this change in attitude have failed. Gramm-Rudman was not allowed to function as its authors had planned. Too much was exempted from it. And every time its mandatory sequester treatment came into play, Congress backed down. The 1990 budget agreement did not hold water. We raised taxes, but real budget cuts never followed.

Budget deficits are doing enormous harm. Aside from the selfishly shortsighted way in which we are treating future generations, the impact of deficit spending already has begun to sap our economy. The Government is borrowing and spending money that would otherwise serve as capital needed for economic growth and job creation. Our standard of living no longer continues to rise in this country.

Our parents used to think that it was a matter of course that their children would have a better standard of living than they did. That is no longer the case. We are crippling the productive engine of our society and cheating those who make it run. Wealth that should be available as seed corn for the creation of new wealth and jobs is instead being consumed.

Opponents of the balanced budget amendment are now demanding that its supporters first reveal exactly how they plan to balance the budget. I would ask instead, when were the American people ever told precisely how they would be driven into a $4.4 trillion debt?

Did we ask the American people every time we forced them into this drastic debt? Was it explained to them that the Government was imposing such a burden on their children and grandchildren? How does every other government entity in America except Congress manage to write a balanced budget?

They determine what they have to spend, and then they set their spending priorities. That is how they do it. They set a balanced budget and then they say, OK, that is what we have to spend.

Here is how we are going to do it. They figure it out.

Every business, every household, every city, every county, and every State government in America does it. There is only one entity in this country that does not have a balanced budget and continues to function, and that has been the Congress of the United States.

Mr. President, this is the budget of Henderson, TX. It is a lot of computer pages. Henderson is a town of 11,000 people. They are very proud that they have a balanced budget. That is why they put this sign on the front of their budget.

The balanced budget for Henderson, TX, is $8 million; one-quarter of this budget is from unfunded Federal mandates. So 11,139 people in the city of Henderson, TX, have to split $2 million of unfunded mandates to pay for it—$2 million extra over 11,000 people.

Mr. President, I am pleased that this Congress has made some progress on unfunded mandates. But as we proceed to give relief to the people of Henderson, TX, and cities like it all across America, I hope we are also going to learn a lesson from cities that know how to balance their budget. The city council says to itself, we have $8 million in revenue, and we are going to spend no more than $8 million.

Many of the strongest voices being raised in opposition to this measure are the very ones, Mr. President, who are afraid that the balanced budget will work. They are unwilling to make the hard choices it will force on those in Congress. I can understand their reluctance even if I do not sympathize with it. In fact, the harm we are causing with continued deficit spending is precisely the kind of Government folly which the Constitution ought to prevent. We ought to prevent it in the Constitution, and that is what we are trying to do today.

I would like to close my remarks with another warning from Thomas Jefferson. He saw all too well the potential for tragedy if the young Republic were to taste the forbidden fruit of borrowing against its future. He said:

There does not exist an engine so corruptive of the Government and so demoralizing of the Nation as a public debt. It will bring us more ruin at home than all the enemies from abroad.

Mr. President, he could say those words today, and it would be even more fitting.

Now, I do not think that Thomas Jefferson and the other Founding Fathers could ever have dreamed of a $4.4 trillion debt, but I will say this. Had they known that this was possible, I think they would have taken steps to prevent it in the Constitution.

I think it is incumbent upon us to say to the future generations of our country we are going to take the steps that will assure that every child born in this country will not be born with an $18,000 debt hanging over his or her head.

Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Utah, who is leading the charge for this balanced budget amendment. We must pass this constitutional amendment so that Congress can no longer, by majority vote, encumber our children and future generations with what we want to spend today as a matter of convenience.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Texas for her excellent remarks and for her valiant efforts in trying to pass a balanced budget amendment. Without people like Senator HUTCHISON, I do not think we would be as far along as we are.

I have to say, when she arrived in the Congress, it gave a lot of us hope that we might be able to get this far. Now we have to see that we get far enough to pass the balanced budget amendment by the requisite, at least 67, votes in the Senate. That is not easy to do, but we are going to be about doing it and going to do everything we can.

Thanks to our distinguished friend from Texas for the work she is doing in trying to help bring this about.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I would like to compliment the distinguished Senator from Idaho, Senator CRAIG, and, of course, our friend and colleague, the President pro tempore of the Senate, Senator THURMOND, for the excellent remarks they made earlier in the day.

When I think of Senator THURMOND, I think of 40 years here in the U.S. Senate, 38 of which have been spent trying to pass a balanced budget amendment. If we do finally pass this amendment through the Senate in the exact form that the House sent it over, I think Senator THURMOND will deserve a great deal of credit for all of his work through all of those years.

I also would like to praise Senator CRAIG for his excellent work. He is one of the leaders on this bill. He has been ever since he was the leader in the House. He does an awful lot of the coordination and the work behind the scenes to see that we all get where we want to be.

Mr. President, I yield the floor to my distinguished friend and colleague from Washington.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, we are, of course, at the outset of a debate on a profound and important issue to the future of the United States, a debate on the Constitution itself and on whether or not it should be amended to require or to encourage balanced budgets and, if so, how.

I hope to have a number of occasions on which to speak on this amendment, but in this first try, rather than to outline what is in it or even to deal with the important reasons for its passage which have already been explained with considerable eloquence by previous speakers this afternoon, I would like to share a few observations on the nature of the debate on which we are embarking.

First, we will be faced with a demand during the course of this debate that its proponents outline precisely and specifically, perhaps even to the extent of a specific bill with various mandatory requirements included in it how a balanced budget will be reached by the year 2002. And during the course of that debate, what is likely to be obscured will be the alternatives to this constitutional amendment.

It seems to me—and I stand to be corrected by my good friend from Utah if he has any addition to this group—that Members of the Senate will be divided essentially into three groups during the course of this debate.

First is that group represented by the Senator from Utah himself and the other sponsors, which will include those Members who feel that it is vitally important for the future of this country that the budget of the United States, in most years, absent emergencies, be balanced; that a continuation of the fiscal policies of the past, not just the recent past but almost the entire past since the end of World War II, of increasing budget deficits, of passing on a greater and greater debt to our children and grandchildren must be brought to an end and are unlikely to be brought to an end by any course of action less drastic than certain constitutional requirements. I believe, and I am sure my friend from Utah joins me in this belief, that a significant majority of the Members of this body hold to that belief.

The other two groups are less likely, it seems to me, to speak candidly and directly to their fundamental philosophies, but I suspect that there are some Members of this body who believe that it is important to reach a balanced budget but that we should try some method other than a constitutional amendment by which to attain that goal. I can speak rather fervently with respect to that group because 10 years ago that was the group to which I belonged. I voted against predecessor proposals of this nature on the basis that the Congress itself should act responsibly enough to balance the budget without the constraints of a constitutional amendment. And in fact, I played some minor role in the passage of the Gramm-Rudman Act in the mid 1980's, which was a statutory attempt to reach the goal now sought by this constitutional amendment. And in fact, Gramm-Rudman for 2 or 3 years was effective, at least in leading to smaller deficits.

But once the requirements of Gramm-Rudman required real sacrifice, real spending cuts, Gramm-Rudman was effectively abandoned by the Congress and budget deficits once again increased. As a consequence, it is my perspective, at least, that a statutory approach, a year-by-year approach simply will not result in our reaching a goal of a balanced budget.

I hope, however, that if there are Members of this body who stand for a balanced budget but against this constitutional amendment, they will clearly and emphatically say this is their goal, and since they are asking for a particular, specific blueprint of how we should reach that goal under the constitutional amendment, those Members should share with us their viewpoint of when and how they believe we should balance the budget without the constraints of this amendment.

To this point, Mr. President, while I have heard many pious statements about the necessity for fiscal responsibility on the part of opponents to this amendment, not one, to the best of my ability to judge, either inside this body or outside this body, has told us how we reach that goal without this constraint.

The third group, and I believe firmly that this group of Members will embody the great bulk of those who will vote against the constitutional amendment in any event and the great bulk of those who will set up the smoke-screen that we must set out exactly the road by which we are going to reach this constitutional amendment, Mr. President, I believe the great bulk of those Members do not believe a balanced budget either to be a desirable goal for the United States of America or at least, if it is a goal, it is only a secondary or tertiary one that does not amount to much and is not nearly as important as the spending programs which they advocate increasing or protecting from reductions. And, as far as I can tell, the debate, at least in this body among its 100 Members, will divide all of us among those three groups and among no others.

I predict that the great majority—not all, the great majority of those who want this blueprint want this blueprint not to guide us to a balanced budget but to buttress their arguments that we never should balance the budget under any circumstances, that the pain is simply too great and that for one reason or another, at least during our careers, we can continue to put on the cuff $150 billion, $200 billion, $400 billion a year.

We have in this liberal administration great pride expressed as recently as last week in the State of the Union Address, over the reduction in budget deficits during the course of the last 2 or 3 years. We are rarely told, and then only in footnotes or in the back pages of long dusty dry documents, that current policies will result in a turnaround of those budgeted deficit reductions and increases in the deficit to $200, $250, $300, $350, $400 billion a year by and after the turn of the century.

So there really are no easy answers. You either believe that a balanced budget is a socially desirable goal, a goal worth sacrificing for, or you do not. If you do not, you ought to be willing to say, expressly, that you do not, that it simply is not as important. That it is more important to carry on with present spending policies than it is to balance the budget.

I believe that this grouping of three even applies to those who believe in a balanced budget but believe that it should be attained not primarily or exclusively by cutting spending but primarily or exclusively by increasing tax rates. It is certainly appropriate for a Member here to vote for this constitutional amendment on the basis that he or she will increase taxes to reach those goals in the year 2002 as it is to hold the opposite point of view, that the goal should be reached by reductions in spending, if those Members are willing to stand up and say this is the way, if my ideas are in power, I will reach that goal.

In fact, I believe that to be the best argument, the overwhelming argument, against anyone attempting to provide a 7- or 8-year blueprint today on the way in which a balanced budget will be reached. This Congress can bind this Congress, that is the next 2 years. It cannot bind the Congress which will take office in 1997 or in 1999 or in the year 2001. In fact, if we were to pass an express blueprint it would undoubtedly be changed by each of those Congresses. If those of a liberal persuasion who are today in the minority once again take over a majority and operate under the constraints of this constitutional amendment, they may very well decide to reach its goals by increasing taxes on the American people over the objection of those of us who do not believe that is the way to go. If so, let them say so. Let them give us their blueprint for reaching the goals which are set by this constitutional amendment itself.

It seems to me, therefore, that this is the argument. Does one believe, against all history, that a balanced budget is a desirable goal, a vitally important goal, but that we can do it by engaging in business as usual? Does one believe that it is not a goal at all? Does one, as many will on the liberal side of this body, believe that business as usual is just fine and we should go on in the future in exactly the way we have gone on in the past, spending more money than we take in, passing new programs that are not paid for? Let them stand up eloquently and firmly for the status quo. But I do not believe the status quo, either with respect to the Constitution or promises that Congress will somehow automatically act differently in the future than it has in the past, are what the people of this country want. I think they want us to change the very way in which we are doing business. I believe they want imposed on us constraints that are, by their very nature, imposed on them in their daily lives, on their families, on them as individuals, and are imposed by the very fact we control the money supply on our local governments and on our State governments, which now must balance their budgets.

I am convinced that the vast majority of the American people want imposed on us those individual and local and State government constraints which have been a part of their lives as long as any of them or us have been around, and that the real debate here is between the status quo and a different way of doing business. I believe that those who are promoting this constitutional amendment are not satisfied with the record of Congress for years, for decades, and want a new and different way of doing business.

One point which I think is often overlooked is to a certain extent even the title balanced budget amendment is in part a misnomer. This constitutional amendment, when it is in full force and effect, will not mandate a balanced budget in any given year or over a period of years. It will, however, make unbalanced budgets much more difficult to pass in the future. It will require, to pass an unbalanced budget, that the affirmative votes of 60 percent of the Members of this body and of the House of Representatives must be secured. That is to say under most circumstances—under all circumstances, for the better part of the last two decades—it will require a bipartisan majority to create an unbalanced budget. It will not be something which takes place as a result of a narrow partisan party-line vote. It will require the thoughts and the assent of Members of both major political parties in the country and, therefore, almost automatically will be accomplished in a more thoughtful and broadminded fashion when it is accomplished.

It will also, however, greatly constrain the ability of Members to begin new, unfunded spending programs. And that is its goal. When there is a crisis, however, it will be possible by that 60 percent majority vote to make an exception and not to balance the budget. It is a flexible and not a rigid constitutional amendment.

My final thought in these opening remarks is that I firmly believe that the men who wrote our Constitution in 1787 would have included a supermajority requirement themselves if they had been able to foresee the dynamics of politics in the late 20th century.

How many people asking for action by the Government who come into your office come into that office asking for financial restraint, for general responsibility? How many in comparison with those who come into your office asking for a favor from the Federal Government, an appropriation, the protection of an existing program, an increase in an existing program, or the creation of a new one? One to two?

Probably not that many. This is not to criticize those who come to us asking us to support one of the thousands of programs financed by the Federal Government. In many cases, in almost all cases, these are sincere, hardworking, and dedicated citizens to a certain end and the programs for which they ask, the program they support, has genuine positive social ends. They may not be well administered, but the goal which they seek is a good one. Therefore, it is easier for Members to say yes than it is to say no, and infinitely easier when we can put the costs on the cut, when we do not have to cut something else, when we do not have to increase taxes, when we can just borrow for that program.

This supermajority requirement will make that decision on our part somewhat more difficult because we will be unable to say yes unless we are willing to vote for more taxes at the same time or find a better program which can be cut at the same time. And it will provide a balance between the special interests, the specific interests of the individuals who lobby us and the general interests in a responsible and fiscally sound Federal Government which is I believe exactly the balance that the Founding Fathers wished when they created the Constitution in the first place without any ability to predict the way in which we communicate and deal with issues like this today.

So in the finest sense of the word this constitutional amendment is a conservative move. It desires to conserve what is best in our country and in its Government and its governmental programs. It will make us more responsible. It will require us to weigh one desirable program against another in a far better and more evenhanded fashion than we were able to do in the past.

As we go through this debate, Mr. President, I hope those who are watching it across the country will remember that there are really only three points of view being expressed here no matter how eloquent or how well those views are given. One is a balanced budget is not a particularly good idea. We do not need it. The status quo is just fine. The way this country has been run in the past is just fine, and we just need more of the same thing.

No. 2 is, yes, a balanced budget is a good idea but there are easier ways to get to it, less painful ways to get to it than to do it through the Constitution of the United States. Those people need to explain to us how it is they can do in the future what they have been unable or unwilling to do in the past.

The third is we need to do things differently. We need to make changes in this country. We need to require the Congress of the United States to act in a fiscally responsible fashion. Those who hold that point of view will be supporting this constitutional amendment.

Mr. HEFLIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

A BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I rise today as an original cosponsor and strong supporter of the resolution calling for a constitutional amendment mandating a balanced budget. It appears that in the next few days, the Senate will get still another opportunity to demonstrate to the American public that we are serious about deficit reduction and economic stability. The 300 to 132 bipartisan vote in the House of Representatives on January 26—12 more than what was needed—gives this resolution momentum that we cannot ignore.

I think that the momentum is also given by the selection of this resolution to be labeled—No. 1. It shows that this is a top priority of this Congress. Additional momentum has been given to the consideration of this resolution by the fact that the Judiciary Committee has moved rapidly and in an unprecedented manner to bring this resolution to the floor of the Senate. Additional momentum was given in that the staff worked diligently to report this bill with a written report in just a matter of a few short days.

I congratulate Chairman HATCH for his leadership in giving this momentum to bring forward to the Senate this very important resolution.

When Congress passed the largest deficit-reduction package in history in August 1993, it was a clear signal that most Members have finally come to terms with the reality that something must be done to bring our national debt and yearly deficits under control. While this legislation was an important first step in the long road toward a balanced budget, it was just that: a first step.

We know that reducing the deficit is important in the short term. But if we are going to ensure a stable economic future for our children and grandchildren, these deficits must be completely eliminated in the long term. That is precisely the goal of this resolution to add a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution.

I do not take amending the Constitution lightly. I wish that the U.S. Congress had the discipline as an institution to take the steps necessary on our own to eliminate the deficit without having to resort to such drastic action. But as we all know, that fiscal discipline and will power simply are not there. We tried it with the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings approach and we had to give in, at least some gave in regard to that. The bottom line is clear: Fiscal responsibility should and must be dictated by the Constitution.

Congress has made attempts in the past to bring the budget under control, only to see them compromised away when the momentum shifted to another issue, or another crisis. We have the momentum on our side once again. It is important that we seize that momentum, submit approval of this important amendment to the States, and finally put into place a mechanism by which our economic health will no longer be subject to the shifting currents of the day. We will know, first and foremost, that our budget priorities must be formulated under the dictates of our cherished Constitution. This amendment will provide the teeth we need to balance the Federal budget.

Since coming to the Senate, I have supported and advocated a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. It was the first piece of legislation I introduced as a first-term Senator in 1979. Since then, the first bill I have introduced at the beginning of each new Congress—including the 104th—has been the balanced budget amendment.

Passage of this legislation has come close before. During the 97th Congress, a measure was passed with 69 votes in the Senate, but failed to garner the two-thirds necessary in the House of Representatives. In the 99th Congress, after extended debate, passage in the Senate failed by only one vote. Just 1 year ago, the Senate narrowly defeated this legislation by a vote of 63 to 37, only 4 short of the 67 required for passage.

I believe that it would have passed at that time, if the House had not previously to that voted not to pass the resolution.

Now, in the 104th Congress, we have seen a series of political and fiscal developments that make the chances of passage greater than at any other time. The overwhelming vote in the House on January 26 gave the amendment even greater momentum. The ever-increasing concern to do something about the deficit is intense. Our national debt is on the mind of every person who thinks about America's future.

For much of our history, a balanced budget at the national level of Government was a part of our "unwritten constitution." A balanced or surplus budget was the norm for the first 100 years of the republic. In recent decades, however, Americans have witnessed a continuing cycle of deficits, taxes, and spending. And neither political party has a monopoly on virtue here: these fiscal policies have been pursued with equal fervor by Republicans and Democrats.

I have used the Thomas Jefferson quote on budget deficits before during debates on this amendment, but it is worth mentioning again. He warned, "The public debt is the greatest of dangers to be feared by a republican government." Over the course of time, we have lost sight of Jefferson's warning.

Some argue that if we possessed and practiced stronger discipline as a legislative body, then such an amendment would be unnecessary. As I said before, I do not dispute that sentiment, only its reality. The last balanced budget we had was under President Lyndon Johnson. The last 18 years or so indicate that the problem goes much deeper than individual and collective resolve. Rather, it is the institutional structure of Government that encourages short-term responses to problems instead of a focus on the greater good and the future.

There is no doubt about what our responsibilities as national leaders are. There is also no question as to what the American people want and deserve. There is a question as to whether the Congress will respond affirmatively by accepting this challenge. We have the momentum and the opportunity to finally stop mortgaging the future and saddling our children with unconscionable debts.

I look forward to the debate in the coming days. I hope we will find the strength and determination to do what we know must be done in order to restore our economic health.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE CORPORATION FOR PUBLIC BROADCASTING

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I have spoken critically of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the whole system of public broadcasting with which it is associated on this floor on some occasions, but I would like to compliment CPB for something its board did last week.

The board decided to begin to require that the CPB will receive a percentage of income from sales exceeding $25,000 of toys, books, clothing, and other products related to shows funded by the CPB. I hope that this will begin immediately to substitute for taxpayers' payments to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Mr. President, I have been one who has advocated reinventing or possibly privatizing the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. That means the corporation here in Washington, DC. Each State has its State public broadcasting system and a lot of them do a great deal of good in terms of education, and in terms of providing unique programming.

Indeed, it is my opinion that public broadcasting in South Dakota would be better off under a privatized or a reinvented system of public broadcasting.

I also want to commend the Corporation for Public Broadcasting in that the executives, I understand, are starting some meetings with at least one regional Bell operating company. I hope they meet with several cable companies and others to see how they can interact with the information superhighway and perhaps provide other income and enrich programming in public broadcasting in the United States.

Last Friday, I had a fascinating conversation with Glen Jones, of Jones Intercable of Colorado. He is privately providing educational materials and educational programming across the United States and around the world. He wants to expand upon this and finds it is a very marketable and useful thing to do for public service, as well as in terms of promoting his own company.

In addition, there are many privately run cable channels elsewhere which are making a great contribution in terms of quality educational programming. Nickelodeon is making a great contribution to children's programming and is even marketing children's programming in France. The Learning Channel, the History Channel, Arts and Entertainment, the Disney Channel, and many more, are providing good programming with which our public TV friends could interact and could achieve a great deal of income in some cases.

Earlier, I observed on this floor that we could privatize the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and other entities in public broadcasting; that if a private company would take a percentage of the program rights that the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the Public Broadcasting Service or National Public Radio just give away, it would more than replenish the $300 million a year that the Congress gives the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. That has been verified by many corporate leaders who have told me they would like to buy public broadcasting entities or they would like to participate in partnerships for public broadcasting. These private sector leaders assured me they would accept conditions requiring preservation of a certain amount of rural service or small city service or children's programming.

I have compared the situation to a local telephone company which is a private company but which has public service requirements such as universal telephone service.

So, Mr. President, I think it is very appropriate that we should be working on reinventing and privatizing the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and public broadcasting in general. The Vice President, after all, asks that Government be reinvented and that we try to privatize certain agencies.

But I would strongly disagree with those who say we are trying to kill Barney or we are trying to kill children's programming. That is just not true. Or that we are trying to kill individual States' public broadcast programs. That is simply not true. What we are trying to do is to be inventive.

We are facing a budgetary crisis of profound proportions. Let's face it: the Corporation for Public Broadcasting most likely at least will receive a cut. We are in a situation where I think they would be grateful for ideas on how they could make more money. One of those is getting a percentage of the program revenues. Presently we have a lot of people making a lot of money from public broadcasting while the taxpayers don't share the wealth.

Also, Mr. President, the corporation has to look at its distribution of funds. I do not think my State of South Dakota gets a very good deal, very frankly. Much is made of $1.7 million in Federal funds that is sent to South Dakota. But the State legislature, individual contributors, and corporate grants provide an overwhelming majority of the funding.

If we take a look at where some of the money goes, one station in New York gets about $20 million from Federal taxpayers. That is not the State of New York, that is one station. That station has executives earning between $200,000 and $400,000 a year.

We have the so-called Children's Television Workshop, which has, as Senator DOLE has pointed out on this floor, paid salaries of between $400,000 and $600,000 a year. Those are taxpayers funds.

"Well," they say, "we take that money out of what is contributed." But it all comes out of the same pot.

Now, I am not against people getting rich. I am not against people in the private sector getting high salaries, but these folks wrap themselves in the cloak of public service. They wrap themselves in the clothes of one serving the public and then collect taxpayers' money. Meanwhile, our States that are told, "You are so lucky to get $1.7 million, you are so lucky, you should be so grateful."

If you really look into it, most of the money is going to a small public broadcasting clique—an east coast and inside-the-beltway gang.

I think the board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting acted correctly the other day when it voted to start getting a percentage of profits from the programs and related products. They should have done it long ago. I do not think they would have done it if it were not for the pressure from people such as myself on the Senate floor and elsewhere. The taxpayers should get some relief. I am going to make sure they do.

There was a 1981-to-1984 study about privatizing public broadcasting and getting revenue from more commercial advertising. Make no mistake about it, there are ads today on public radio and television. Granted, they are called by the code word, "underwriting," but they are ads just the same. This study found that the viewers were not offended by having ads at the beginning and end of programming or even more extensive ads. This is one source of revenue.

There are the programming rights. That is another source of revenue. There is the chance to interact with the information highway. That is still another potential source of revenue. So, I think the public broadcasting executives should be creative in going out and finding new sources of revenue and new sources of opportunity and, also, new sources of material.

I have been troubled by the fact that I think taxpayers' money is being used to lobby for more taxpayers' money. There is a nationwide grassroots program to contact your Congressman to be sure to continue full funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. This is being done, in part, with Federal money, in my opinion. If you ask, they say, these are our affiliates doing this and they are doing it with money that is contributed in these beg-a-thons, money being contributed privately. But the contributors are not told that. They are told this is listener-supported radio and TV. They are not told part of their money will be used to lobby for Federal money. They should be told, "This is a taxpayer-supported channel. We get some private contributions but much of it is taxpayer supported, both State and Federal." There should be honesty in these beg-a-thons.

But, also, let us be very careful about this business of lobbying for more Federal money with Federal money. Here we have a very sophisticated group concentrated in Boston, New York, and Washington, DC, that is doing so. They are not saying, "Senator PRESSLER wants to keep public radio and TV at the State level." They are saying, "Anybody who wants to change anything is trying to kill public radio and TV."

I submit that public broadcasting will be stronger when it is reinvented and privatized. I submit that the entire public broadcasting system has become bureaucratic, inefficient, and wasteful. Taxpayers around the country would be amazed at how much money is being wasted.

The 20th Century Fund did a study in which they found that 75 cents of every $1 in public TV is spent on overhead. That has not been rebutted. So those who serve on the oversight committees—and I chair the Commerce Committee, which has a duty to conduct oversight over the Corporation for Public Broadcasting—it is our job to dig into things, to make suggestions, maybe to take some heat. But it is not the job of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the other public broadcasting entities to put false information out across the country. They are wrong when they say that people who are required to make budget cuts and suggest ways to reinvent the system are trying to kill local public broadcasting. That is not the case.

There was local public broadcasting before the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and its glut of Federal funding ever came along. In fact, some people feel we would have a stronger set of local public stations had the national Corporation for Public Broadcasting never been created in 1967.

We should think about that. Here we have a very intelligent, sophisticated, lobbying campaign that has people scared that their public broadcasting channels will be shut off if this group here in Washington, DC, does not get their Federal money. That is not true. That is not true at all. In fact, my State may well be better off in a reinvented or privatized system of public broadcasting. That is true of most States.

Again, I congratulate the CPB board for doing what they should have done long ago, getting a percentage of the program and product profits. That will provide them with a good deal of revenue. It might provide more revenue than they have ever gotten from the Federal Government, and that would not bother me a bit. I hope they continue to make such steps.

I hope public broadcasting executives have many meetings with the companies that are on the information superhighway, ranging from local telephone companies to cable companies to long distance companies to computer companies, to see what interrelation there can be.

Finally, I would like to know what is public broadcasting's own plan to reinvent itself? So far it seems only to be to get more Federal money, to stay just as things are, not to make any changes, and of course to be the self-appointed arbiters of American culture. But I am asking them to roll up their sleeves, get out, listen to a few people, and not expect increases in Federal funding because it will not be coming.

Mr. President, I yield the floor. I thank the chairman for allowing me to speak at this point.

REPORT RELATIVE TO THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO LIBYA—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 5

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby report to the Congress on the developments since my last report of July 18, 1994, concerning the national emergency with respect to Libya that was declared in Executive Order No. 12543 of January 7, 1986. This report is submitted pursuant to section 401(c) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C. 1641(c); section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (IEEPA), 50 U.S.C. 1703(c); and section 505(c) of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985, 22 U.S.C. 2349aa-9(c).

1. On December 22, 1994, I renewed for another year the national emergency with respect to Libya pursuant to IEEPA. This renewal extended the current comprehensive financial and trade embargo against Libya in effect since 1986. Under these sanctions, all trade with Libya is prohibited, and all assets owned or controlled by the Libyan government in the United States or in the possession or control of U.S. persons are blocked.

2. There has been one amendment to the Libyan Sanctions Regulations, 31 C.F.R. Part 550 (the "Regulations"), administered by the Office of Foreign Assets Control (FAC) of the Department of the Treasury, since my last report on July 18, 1994. The amendment (59 Fed. Reg. 51106, October 7, 1994) identified Arab Hellenic Bank (AHB), an Athens-based financial institution, 4 other entities, and 10 individuals as Specially Designated Nationals (SDNs) of Libya. (In addition to the recent SDN action against AHB, the Greek central bank has recently announced that AHB's banking license has been revoked.) Included among the individuals are three Italian shareholders in Oilinvest (Netherlands) B.V., who increased their positions in the Libyan government-controlled firm shortly before United Nations Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 883 directed a freeze on certain Libyan assets owned or controlled by the Government or public authorities of Libya.

Pursuant to section 550.304(a) of the Regulations, FAC has determined that these entities and individuals designated as SDNs are owned or controlled by, or acting or purporting to act directly or indirectly on behalf of, the Government of Libya, or are agencies, instrumentalities, or entities of that government. By virtue of this determination, all property and interests in property of these entities or persons that are in the United States or in the possession or control of U.S. persons are blocked. Further, U.S. persons are prohibited from engaging in transactions with these individuals or entities unless the transactions are licensed by FAC. The designations were made in consultation with the Department of State and announced by FAC in notices issued on June 17 and July 22 and 25, 1994. A copy of the amendment is attached to this report.

3. During the current 6-month period, FAC made numerous decisions with respect to applications for licenses to engage in transactions under the Regulations, issuing 136 licensing determinations—both approvals and denials. Consistent with FAC's ongoing scrutiny of banking transactions, the largest category of license approvals (73) concerned requests by non-Libyan persons or entities to unblock bank accounts initially blocked because of an apparent Government of Libya interest. The largest category of denials (41) was for banking transactions in which FAC found a Government of Libya interest. Three licenses were issued authorizing intellectual property protection in Libya.

In addition, FAC issued eight determinations with respect to applications from attorneys to receive fees and reimbursement of expenses for provision of legal services to the Government of Libya in connection with wrongful death civil actions arising from the Pan Am 103 bombing. Civil suits have been filed in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia and in the Southern District of New York. Representation of the Government of Libya when named as a defendant in or otherwise made a party to domestic U.S. legal proceedings is authorized by section 550.517(b)(2) of the Regulations under certain conditions.

4. During the current 6-month period, FAC continued to emphasize to the international banking community in the United States the importance of identifying and blocking payments made by or on behalf of Libya. The FAC worked closely with the banks to implement new interdiction software systems to identify such payments. As a result, during the reporting period, more than 210 transactions involving Libya, totaling more than $14.8 million, were blocked. As of December 9, 1994, 13 of these transactions had been licensed to be released, leaving a net amount of more than $14.5 million blocked.

Since my last report, FAC collected 15 civil monetary penalties totaling more than $76,000 for violations of the U.S. sanctions against Libya. Nine of the violations involved the failure of banks to block funds transfers to Libyan-owned or -controlled banks. Two other penalties were received for corporate export violations. Four additional penalties were paid by U.S. citizens engaging in Libyan oilfield-related transactions while another 76 cases of similar violations are in active penalty processing.

In October 1994, two U.S. businessmen, two U.S. corporations, and several foreign corporations were indicted by a Federal grand jury in Connecticut on three counts of violating the Regulations and IEEPA for their roles in the illegal exportation of U.S. origin fuel pumps to Libya. Various enforcement actions carried over from previous reporting periods have continued to be aggressively pursued. The FAC has continued its efforts under the Operation Roadblock initiative. This ongoing program seeks to identify U.S. persons who travel to and/or work in Libya in violation of U.S. law.

Several new investigations of potentially significant violations of the Libyan sanctions have been initiated by FAC and cooperating U.S. law enforcement agencies, primarily the U.S. Customs Service. Many of these cases are believed to involve complex conspiracies to circumvent the various prohibitions of the Libyan sanctions, as well as the utilization of international diversionary shipping routes to and from Libya. The FAC has continued to work closely with the Departments of State and Justice to identify U.S. persons who enter into contracts or agreements with the Government of Libya, or other third-country parties, to lobby United States Government officials or to engage in public relations work on behalf of the Government of Libya without FAC authorization. In addition, during the period FAC hosted or attended several bilateral and multilateral meetings with foreign sanctions authorities, as well as with private institutions, to consult on issues of mutual interest and to encourage strict adherence to the U.N.-mandated sanctions.

5. The expenses incurred by the Federal Government in the 6-month period from July 7, 1994, through January 6, 1995, that are directly attributable to the exercise of powers and authorities conferred by the declaration of the Libyan national emergency are estimated at approximately $1.4 million. Personnel costs were largely centered in the Department of the Treasury (particularly in the Office of Foreign Assets Control, the Office of the General Counsel, and the U.S. Customs Service), the Department of State, and the Department of Commerce.

6. The policies and actions of the Government of Libya continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. In adopting UNSCR 883 in November 1993, the Security Council determined that the continued failure of the Government of Libya to demonstrate by concrete actions its renunciation of terrorism, and in particular its continued failure to respond fully and effectively to the requests and decisions of the Security Council in UNSCRs 731 and 748, concerning the bombing of the Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 flights, constituted a threat to international peace and security. The United States continues to believe that still stronger international measures than those mandated by UNSCR 883, possibly including a worldwide oil embargo, should be imposed if Libya continues to defy the will of the international community as expressed in UNSCR 731. We remain determined to ensure that the perpetrators of the terrorist acts against Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 are brought to justice. The families of the victims in the murderous Lockerbie bombing and other acts of Libyan terrorism deserve nothing less. I shall continue to exercise the powers at my disposal to apply economic sanctions against Libya fully and effectively, so long as those measures are appropriate, and will continue to report periodically to the Congress on significant developments as required by law.

REPORT OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE RADIATION CONTROL FOR HEALTH AND SAFETY ACT OF 1968 FOR CALENDAR YEAR 1993—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 7

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with section 540 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360qq) (previously section 360D of the Public Health Service Act), I am submitting the report of the Department of Health and Human Services regarding the administration of the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act of 1968 during calendar year 1993.

The report recommends the repeal of section 540 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act that requires the completion of this annual report. All the information found in this report is available to the Congress on a more immediate basis through the Center for Devices and Radiological Health technical reports, the Radiological Health Bulletin, and other publicly available sources. This annual report serves little useful purpose and diverts Agency resources from more productive activities.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, January 30, 1995.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 2:43 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hays, one of its reading clerks, announced that the Speaker has signed the following enrolled bill:

S. 273. An act to amend section 61h-6, of title 2, United States Code.

MEASURES PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

The following bill was read the second time and placed on the calendar:

S. 209. A bill to replace the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program under title IV of the Social Security Act and a portion of the food stamp program under the Food Stamp Act of 1977 with a block grant to give the States the flexibility to create innovative welfare-to-work programs, to reduce the rate of out-of-wedlock births, and for other purposes.

ENROLLED BILLS PRESENTED

The Secretary of the Senate reported that on today, January 30, 1995, she had presented to the President of the United States the following enrolled bill:

S. 273. An act to amend section 61h-6, of title 2, United States Code.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-26. A resolution adopted by the House of the Legislature of the State of Alabama; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

"HR 27

"Whereas, with each passing year, this nation becomes more deeply in debt as its expenditures grossly and repeatedly exceed available revenues; and

"Whereas, as the federal debt grows, the stability of our national and world economy weakens, and the burden placed on future generations of Americans become more onerous; and

"Whereas, conjunctively with a required balancing of the federal budget is a necessary prohibition against the imposition of unfunded federal mandates and other cost reallocation to the several states; and

"Whereas, believing that fiscal uncertainties at the federal level is the greatest threat that our nation faces, and cognizant that statutory budget balancing remedies have failed, we firmly believe that constitutional restraint is vital to bring the fiscal discipline needed to restore financial responsibility;" Now therefore be it

"Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Legislature of Alabama, That the Legislature urges the United States Congress to adopt an amendment to the United States Constitution which both requires the balancing of the federal budget and prohibits transferring the costs and burdens of federal responsibilities and inclinations to the states by unfunded mandates or similar means.

"Be it Further Resolved, that certified copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the President of the United States Senate, the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Minority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, and to every member of the State's Congressional Delegation."

POM-27. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

"SENATE RESOLUTION

"Whereas, for far too many years, Congress has recklessly and repeatedly enacted federal budgets in which government expenditures have grossly exceeded available revenues, resulting in unparalleled federal budgetary deficits that unjustly mortgage the future of our nation's children; and

"Whereas, Congress has taken far too little action on its own initiative to implement responsible budgetary controls through the reduction or elimination of the need for federal spending for certain governmental programs or the imposition of sufficient tax levies that would generate adequate revenue to fund necessary federal government programs; and

"Whereas, Congressional attempts to control the federal budget deficit over the last decade have resulted in shifting the planning, operational, and funding responsibilities for many federally-mandated programs to the states and their local governments, while at the same time reducing federal financial support for those programs; and

"Whereas, those short-sighted budget deficit control efforts have forced some states and local governments to reduce budget expenditures for their own necessary programs and to raise taxes to fund the additional financial burden imposed by Congress; and

"Whereas, approximately eighty percent of the nation's state legislatures are currently required to enact a balanced state budget, either by their state constitutions, state statutes, or legislative rules, proving that this is a task that can be accomplished by fiscally responsible elected officials; and

"Whereas, fiscal restraint imposed by an amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America is necessary to curtail federal spending to conform to available federal revenues; and

"Whereas, Article V of the Constitution of the United States of America provides that amendments to the Constitution may be proposed by the Congress for submission to the states for their ratification when two-thirds of both houses deem it necessary;

"Now, therefore, be it

"Resolved by the Senate of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

"Section 1. That the Congress of the United States is hereby requested and petitioned to adopt an amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America, for submission to the states for their ratification, requiring that each federal budget enacted by the Congress and signed by the President of the United States be in balance.

"Section 2. That, notwithstanding the submission of a balanced budget amendment to the states, each Congress convened prior to the amendment's ratification should make every reasonable effort on its own initiative to enact a balanced federal budget prior to being subject to the amendment's mandate that it do so.

"Section 3. That the Congress, in striving to enact a balanced federal budget and to reduce the federal budget deficit, must begin by addressing spending needs and revenue generation possibilities at the federal level and by funding only what the federal government itself can afford instead of unjustly shifting the financial responsibility for continuing federally-mandated programs and services onto the overburdened back of state and local governments.

"Section 4. That the Clerk of the Senate is directed to send copies of this resolution to the Clerk of the United States House of Representatives, the Secretary of the United States Senate, and the members of Congress elected from the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. CONRAD (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. PELL, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Mr. GRAHAM):

S. 293. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to authorize the payment to States of per diem for veterans receiving adult day health care, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans Affairs.

By Mr. COHEN:

S. 294. A bill to increase the availability and affordability of health care coverage for individuals and their families, to reduce paperwork and simplify the administration of health care claims, to increase access to care in rural and underserved areas, to improve quality and protect consumers from health care fraud and abuse, to promote preventive care, to make long-term care more affordable, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mrs. KASSEBAUM (for herself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. GREGG, and Mr. GORTON):

S. 295. A bill to permit labor management cooperative efforts that improve America's economic competitiveness to continue to thrive, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

By Mr. KENNEDY (for himself, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. DODD, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. INOUE, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. LEAHY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. PACKWOOD, Mr. PELL, Mr. ROBB, Mr. SIMON, and Mr. WELLSTONE):

S. 296. A bill to amend section 1977A of the Revised Statutes to equalize the remedies available to all victims of intentional employment discrimination, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. BINGAMAN):

S. 297. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the exclusion from gross income for veterans' benefits; to the Committee on Finance.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. CONRAD (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. PELL, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Mr. GRAHAM):

S. 293. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to authorize the payment to States of per diem for veterans receiving adult day health care, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

STATE VETERANS HOME ACT

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce the State Veterans Home Act of 1995. The bill extends discretionary authority to the Department of Veterans Affairs to provide a per diem payment for adult day health care for veterans. The bill also authorizes the use of funds from the Extended Care Facilities Grants Program, section 8131, to construct or renovate existing facilities to provide adult day care for veterans.

The legislation I am introducing today is similar to S. 852 introduced at the beginning of the 103d Congress. In the last Congress, S. 852 was reported to the Senate as section 205 of S. 1030—Veterans Health Programs Improvement Act of 1993—and passed by the Senate on May 25, 1994. Regrettably due to the legislative log-jam at the end of the 103d Congress, it was not incorporated into the veterans health benefits measure, H.R. 3313, that passed the House in the closing days of the 103d Congress.

I am very pleased that the bill I am introducing today is cosponsored by Senators DASCHLE, DORGAN, AKAKA, JEFFORDS, PELL, and GRAHAM.

This legislation received support in the 103d Congress from veterans and their families in North Dakota, and from all major national veterans organizations during a hearing by the Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs on June 23, 1993. I am hoping the 104th Congress will act expeditiously to pass this important health care measure for veterans. I am enclosing a letter of support from the National Association of State Veterans Homes.

Currently, under section 1741, the Department of Veterans Affairs is required to pay a per diem to States for each veteran that is assisted through the State Home Facilities Program with hospital, nursing home, or domiciliary care. The per diem payment is $15.11 for domiciliary care, and $35.37 for nursing home and hospital care. Under section 8131, State home facilities, the Department of Veterans Affairs is also authorized to provide matching grant assistance for the construction, expansion, or remodeling of existing facilities for domiciliary, nursing home, or hospital care for veterans who are eligible to reside in State veterans facilities.

Under the legislation that I am introducing today, the State Veterans Home Program would be amended to authorize a per diem payment for veterans that are assisted by States who provide adult day care including health care as needed. States would also be authorized to apply for matching grant assistance to provide facilities for adult day care. In fiscal year 1995, Congress appropriated $47.3 million under the State Home Facilities Program for the construction or expansion of State extended care facilities for veterans.

Mr. President, I have discussed the proposed legislation to amend the State Veterans Home Program relating to adult day care health care with State veterans officials in North Dakota and representatives of the National Association of State Veterans Homes. The arguments in support of amending the State Veterans Home Program to authorize adult day health care are compelling.

The opportunity for adult day health care services for veterans during the daytime hours in a community setting would enable many veterans to remain at home with their families in a supportive environment as an alternative to nursing home placement.

I ask my colleagues, how many people do each of us know who are in this circumstance? If the family could get relief during the day for a veteran who is ill or who is starting to fail, and would have a chance to have a place to go during the day, the family could take care of that individual at night, thereby preventing nursing home placement.

For a veteran who may be in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease or require limited supervision in a postoperative period, the opportunity for adult day health care would meet the requirements of a growing number of our veterans population, and at less cost than nursing and residential home care. Equally important, adult day health care would provide respite for the primary care givers of veterans.

People have often said to me: Senator, if we just had a chance to have a break, if we just had a chance to be able to go to work and have our loved one be able to be at home with us in the evening, we would be able to take care of him. We would be able to save a lot of money for the Government. There is no sense putting all these people in nursing homes. Our family would love to be able to take care of our grandfather or our father. We would love to have him at home but we work during the day, both spouses work during the day. The kids are at school. Nobody is home.

If we had a chance to have that veteran in a setting where he could be cared for during the day we would take care of him at night and save lots of money—save money for the families, save money for the Government.

Mr. President, as the health care requirements of our veterans population change, and the demands on limited Department of Veterans Affairs resources increase, I believe it important that States have the flexibility to provide adult day health care services for veterans.

We have heard a lot in the last 24 hours about State flexibility. Why should they not have flexibility with respect to a program like this? They are asking for it. Why do we not give it to them?

The 71 State veterans homes across the country have a proven record of providing excellent domiciliary, nursing home, and hospital care. They also have the expertise in geriatrics, and specialized health care that is required to provide the adult day health care services.

I urge the Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs to support these amendments to the State Veterans Home Program, and to report legislation to authorize adult day health care services for veterans as soon as possible.

I ask unanimous consent Mr. President, that the full text of my bill along with a letter in support of this initiative from the National Association of State Veterans Homes be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF
STATE VETERANS HOMES,

Marquette, MI, December 16, 1994.

Hon. KENT CONRAD,
U.S. Senator, Hart Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CONRAD: This letter is in response to your recent inquiry regarding the National Association of State Veterans Homes (NASVH) position on re-introduction of proposed legislation to allow State Homes to develop an Adult Day Health Program.

As noted in Mr. Jack Dack's previous letter dated April 26, 1993, a 1993 survey had 38 State Homes respond positively out of 48 responses from 52 homes surveyed. We again recommend that Section 1741 be amended to authorize State Homes Adult Day Health Care. The section should be amended to provide for a per diem payment for Adult Day Health Care and additional construction grant monies to support expansion/remodeling to permit States to provide Adult Day Health Care.

This letter is offered as a reaffirmation of the NASVH commitment to providing this needed service to veterans pursuant to the aforementioned changes in Title 38 United States Code, Section 1741.

If you have any questions, please let me know.

Sincerely,
CLIFFORD A. KINNEY, II, MPA, NHA,
Chairperson, NASVH,
Legislative Committee.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF
STATE VETERANS HOMES,
Marshalltown, IA, April 26, 1993.

Hon. KENT CONRAD,
U.S. Senate, Hart Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CONRAD: This is to express the views of the National Association of State Veterans Homes pertinent to proposed legislation to improve (3) the State Home Program.

(A) Title 38 United States Code, Section 1741, authorizes per diem to State Homes for domiciliary, nursing home care and hospital care. We endorse legislation to provide authority to the Secretary, Department of Veterans Affairs, to provide a per diem payment for adult day health care and construction grant support for expansion, remodeling or alteration of existing buildings to permit provision of adult day health care.

A survey conducted by the National Association of State Veterans Homes in 1984 overwhelmingly supported an adult day health care initiative if an appropriate reimbursement system through the Veterans Administration could be developed for State Homes. Of the 48 responses from 52 Homes surveyed, 38 responded positively.

It is recommended that Section 1741 be amended to include authorization for State Home Adult Day Health Care.

Often times, family and loved ones are the primary caregivers for adult persons. Trying to maintain adults in the home can be very stressful and care can be difficult to provide both physically and psychologically. Resources can be extremely limited, especially in rural communities and families may not be aware of what resources are available. Adult "day care" has been one concept implemented to address dependent adult care.

The seventy-one State Veterans Homes in forty-one states being long-term care facilities employ clinicians with expertise in geriatrics and staff with years of experience in working with dependent, infirm, and/or handicapped individuals. The Homes have the potential to offer adult day health care in a safe, structured environment with trained, caring staff. There could be provisions for meals and nutritious snacks, medication dispensing, exercise programming and the offering of health assessment and patient/family teaching. There could be planned activities and social interactions for adult participation.

Such a program would be an ideal option for the elderly veterans who are: in need of social stimulation to combat depression; in need of supervision and/or personal care; post-operative in need of supervision or medication; victims of early Alzheimer's Disease.

Involvement in adult day health care would provide a peace of mind and respite for the working and non-working caregivers.

The provisions of these services during daytime hours in a congregate setting would enable veterans to be maintained at home in a supportive environment and be an alternative to a nursing home placement. Participation in an Adult Day Health Care Program could possibly prolong the ability of the veteran to stay in his home thereby lowering the demands on the Department of Veterans Affairs system.

Besides providing respite for the primary caregivers, veterans could be screened and referred for medical and/or community resources, including Department of Veteran's Affairs medical care facilities. Pre-assessment for admission could take place if the veteran desires to make application for permanent living in the State Home. Other advantages to the individuals and family members are networking with family members and professionals, participation in support groups, gaining knowledge about community resources and how to access the system.

The National Association of State Veterans Homes supports that provisions in United States Code 38, Section 1741, be amended to authorize State Home Adult Day Health Care; per diem payments to states for providing same; and to permit the Department of Veterans Affairs to provide grants for expansion, remodeling or alteration of existing buildings to permit provision of such care.

We in the State Home Program do not know the level of participation by the states at this time; however, it is anticipated there would be activity initially by five to ten Homes in this area. Since the Department of Veterans is unable to approve requests for construction grants totaling more than the amount specifically appropriated by the Congress for that fiscal year, any additional grant requests for construction for adult day health care over the specified funding allowed would probably require a waiting period. This waiting period would allow an opportunity for the Department of Veterans Affairs and State Home Program to bring the increased need for additional construction funds to the attention of the Veterans Affairs' Committees for consideration.

The State Home Program has a proven track record of being able to blend Federal, State and private resources to maximize the resources available for providing care for the veterans of this Nation. Because of this track record, it is always wise to look for opportunities to expand the relationship, so as to further enhance the efficient use of the Department of Veterans Affairs' resources in its provision of care for veterans. The establishment of a per diem for these services is an expansion of the already successful State Home Program with the Department of Veterans Affairs. With this per diem as a starting point, the State Home Program in partnership with the Department of Veterans Affairs has the potential to move towards an efficient, effective means of providing this necessary service for its constituents.

(B) Sharing: While the United States Congress has been generous in providing for its veterans, and the Department of Veterans Affairs has done a commendable job within the confines of the budgeted amounts in taking care of the Nation's veterans, the resources to do so are becoming more limited. We must continue to work closer together, share ideas, stretch and share resources and assist one another if we are going to fulfill our mutual obligation to provide the necessary health care services for the Nation's veterans. This sharing proposal is an initiative to formalize a closer-working relationship between the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Centers in states where State Veterans Homes presently exist. It will strengthen the long and successful partnership between the Department of Veterans Affairs and State Homes which has long been recognized as a vital resource for the Department of Veterans Affairs in providing care for the chronically ill, elderly veterans.

Since many State Homes are located within a radius of one hundred miles of a Department of Veterans Affairs medical facility, it is felt that sharing of services would result in service, efficiency and economy in provision of care. The ability to have Department of Veterans Affairs clinics, such as Urology, Psychiatric Consultation, Physical Medicine/Rehabilitation Consultation, etc., located within a State Veterans Home, would enhance continuity of care for the benefit of the veterans in State Homes. Chronically ill, debilitated, infirm veterans would not have to experience traveling to and from the medical centers for some clinics if such a sharing was possible. Other areas of sharing could be in non-clinical services such as laundry, Life/Safety, Quality Assurance programming, housekeeping, etc.

It is felt that by permitting the Department of Veterans Affairs and the State Home Program to expand, their sharing will result in greater efficiencies and enhance care for veterans. The National Association of State Veterans Homes supports enactment of the concept of sharing in this proposed legislation and believes it to be a benefit to veterans, the Department of Veterans Affairs and the State Home Program.

On behalf of the National Association of State Veterans Homes, thank you for the opportunity to support legislation to improve the State Veterans Home Program.

Sincerely,

JACK J. DACK,
Chairperson, Legislative Committee.

By Mr. COHEN:

S. 294. A bill to increase the availability and affordability of health care coverage for individuals and their families, to reduce paperwork and simplify the administration of health care claims, to increase access to care in rural and underserved areas, to improve quality and protect consumers from health care fraud and abuse, to promote preventive care, to make long-term care more affordable, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

ACCESS TO AFFORDABLE HEALTH CARE ACT

Mr. COHEN. Mr. President, as the 104th Congress opened, it did so with a great deal of fanfare this month. Much of the discussion has been devoted to congressional reform, tax cuts, the balanced budget amendment, unfunded mandates, and welfare reform, but on one issue our colleagues have been notably silent.

I say that with one notable exception, my colleague from Illinois, who has just spoken rather eloquently on the whole subject of health care reform, which is what I would like to talk about this afternoon.

Health care reform was a dominant topic on everyone's mind during the last Congress. As I mentioned just a moment ago, today it is barely a whisper. I believe that this is a mistake. I think it is time for the Senate to put the issue back on the front burner of the public agenda.

Health care reform may not be a major clause in the House Republican's Contract With America, but rising health care costs and expanding gaps in coverage are still very much on the minds of the American people. In fact, postelection polls conducted for the Health Care Leadership Council and by the Washington Post and ABC News show that health care remains a top priority—as important even as cutting taxes, passing a balanced budget amendment, or enacting welfare reform.

Abraham Lincoln once observed that "with public sentiment nothing can fail, and without it nothing can succeed."

I think the American people wisely rejected the big-government approach advocated last year by the administration. More Government is clearly not the way to lower health care costs.

And when I say they rejected big government, this is a copy of the bill that in fact was being debated last year, some 1,443 pages long. The public did not understand it. They felt also that we were moving toward, if I can use that Tofflerian phrase, demasification of the centralized health care system. The fact is, they rejected it.

The fact is that Government spending on health care, with all of its bureaucratic endeavors and controls, has risen much faster than private health care spending. In fact, between 1970 and 1991 Medicare and Medicaid grew 427 percent, more than double the amount of 165 percent in the private sector. So we have seen a real disparity in terms of Government sponsored and funded programs versus that of the private sector.

But the public rejection of the Clinton health care plan does not mean that American people do not want health care reform.

As my colleague from California, Senator DIANE FEINSTEIN, observed, the main reason the President's health care reform efforts collapsed was that the "Democrats listened to the 15 percent of the public who had no coverage, while the Republicans listened to the 85 percent who did." What some Democrats in Washington derided as merely incremental was, to the American public, essential.

Susan Sontag wrote:

Illness is the night-side of life, a more onerous citizenship. Everyone who is born holds dual citizenship, in the kingdom of the well and the kingdom of the sick. Although we all prefer to use only the good passport, sooner or later each of us is obliged, at least for a spell, to identify ourselves as citizens of that other place.

As such, the flaws in our health care system are ones that will—sooner or later—touch every American family.

The American people want health care reform, but they want something they can understand and afford. They want a program that gives them some reassurance against their growing sense of financial insecurity against potential illness—a program that gives them some protection should they cross over into that kingdom of the sick.

When the American people say they want reform, they mean: "If I lose my job or get sick, I want to keep my health insurance and I do not want it to cost so much." They want Congress to enact targeted reforms to contain health care costs and to ensure that they do not lose the health care coverage that they have.

Health care reform, I think, as my colleague from Illinois has pointed out, is pretty familiar to most of us now. We have spent over 4 years studying the problem, countless hours of staff researching the issue, debating the issue, drafting legislation, negotiating compromise. We have something, I think, very valuable to show for that effort.

Despite the partisan and sometimes bitter debate in the last Congress, there is broad-based, bipartisan agreement on some key steps that can and should be taken to contain health care costs and increase access for millions of Americans. In fact, I believe that action could have been taken on these changes 3 years ago if some had not insisted that there be comprehensive reform, or no reform at all.

Today I am introducing legislation outlining a blueprint for reform that is based on principles upon which I believe a bipartisan majority in Congress could agree. The plan takes significant strides toward the goal of universal coverage by bringing millions more Americans into the system. While some might characterize these reforms as incremental, they are by no means insignificant.

They would include insurance market reforms to make insurance portable and prohibit insurers from denying, canceling, or limiting coverage or otherwise discriminating against individuals on the basis of their health status.

They would include refundable tax credits for low-income families and full tax deductibility for the self-employed to make insurance coverage more affordable.

They would include voluntary purchasing cooperatives to give individuals and small businesses access to more affordable coverage; administrative reforms to reduce costs and paperwork and make the system more efficient.

They would include malpractice reforms to reduce the costly practice of defensive medicine; expanded access to care in rural areas; more affordable long-term care; and, finally, stronger efforts to combat fraud and abuse, which currently rob our system of as much as $100 billion every year.

Many of my colleagues have heard me take the floor time and time again to complain about health care fraud in this country. In fact, just last week I introduced separate legislation dealing with health care fraud, because we are losing $100 billion every year to health care fraud. It amounts to $275 million a day, $11.5 million every single hour.

We could have taken action last year. We did not take action last year. The said wait until health care reform comes. Health care reform did not come. So by the time this legislation or some variation of this legislation is finally adopted, we will lost another $100 billion to health care fraud and abuse.

Many of the principles involved in this legislation—and, by the way, Mr. President, this contains about 200 typewritten pages—could have been adopted more than 4½ years ago when I first introduced it. In fact, it could have been adopted when Senator Lloyd Bentsen passed his version of the bill back in 1992.

Although action on health care reform has been deferred in the past. It simply cannot be deferred any longer.

The new Republican-controlled Congress has both the obligation and the political opportunity to enact health care reform, but the window of opportunity will not be open long. We simply cannot afford to repeat past mistakes and allow the issue to become complicated or obfuscated by election-year politics.

I listened with great interest to my colleagues from Illinois outline some of the letters he has received from constituents and others pointing out it is not a Republican or Democratic issue, it is an American problem.

Last month, one of my constituents, Leslie Mansfield, of Bar Harbor, testified before the Maine Health Care Reform Commission about the importance of health care reform for her family. Since her son was diagnosed with juvenile diabetes 6 years ago, the family has faced mounting insurance and medical bills. Even though the rest of the family is healthy, in 3 short years they have seen their insurance premiums jump from $190 to $600 a month, and they fear that they will soon be either dropped by their insurer or priced out of the market entirely.

If the new Congress does not move quickly on health care reform, millions of Americans like Leslie Mansfield and her family will be worse off, not better off.

Health care costs, which last year topped $1 trillion, will continue to rise, placing an increasing strain on families, employers, and governments alike, and pricing millions more Americans out of the market. Insurers and businesses will be able to continue to cut costs by avoiding customers at greater risk. People with preexisting medical conditions like heart disease and diabetes will face even steeper premiums or could lose their coverage entirely. And we will continue to lose an estimated $275 million a day—that is $11.5 million every hour—to health care fraud.

Health care reform does not have to be an all-or-nothing proposition. That mistake was made both in 1992 and in 1994 and should not be repeated. By building upon our areas of agreement, we can take major steps to contain costs, expand choice and extend access to care to millions more Americans.

We have come a long way to reach this point in the health care debate and we should move forward. While to do nothing may not be a breach of the Contract With America, it most certainly would be a breach of trust with the American people.

I urge my colleagues to join me in co-sponsoring the Access to Affordable Health Care Act and ask unanimous consent that a section-by-section summary as well as the full text of the bill be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for 30 seconds? I want to commend the Senator for his statement.

Mr. COHEN. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. SIMON. I, obviously, have not read the bill. But if we recognize the problem and work together, we can do something for the American people in this session of Congress. I commend him for his leadership.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. President, I thank my friend for his comments. Let me conclude with a few observations.

There has been so much partisanship discussed in the House and the Senate on various other issues. There was a great deal of partisanship on the health care debate as well. I remember when Senator DOLE asked the committee to put together a task force headed up by JOHN CHAFEE to meet with our Democratic counterpart; we ran into a stone-wall.

It was not open to negotiation. There was no compromise. It was all-or-nothing, comprehensive or nothing at all. As a result, we had nothing at all. One of the members of the Democratic task force came to me just a couple of days ago and said, "You know, if we had done what you had suggested 2 years ago, it would have been a great step forward." We did not do it then. We ought to do it now.

Let Senators put aside the partisanship and reach across the aisle and do something the American people will support—Republican, Democrat, independent, it does not matter. We need the relief. We need the reform. We ought not to defer this any longer. I yield the floor.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Subtitle D—Effective Date

SEC. 8401. EFFECTIVE DATE OF TAX PROVISIONS.

Except as otherwise provided in this title, the amendments made by this title to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

TITLE IX—BUDGET NEUTRALITY

SEC. 9001. ASSURANCE OF BUDGET NEUTRALITY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, this Act and the amendments made by this Act shall not become effective until the date of the enactment of a provision of law, specifically referring to this section, that by its terms provides for the Federal budget neutrality of this Act.

THE ACCESS TO AFFORDABLE HEALTH CARE ACT OF 1995—SECTION-BY-SECTION

A bill to increase the availability and affordability of health care coverage for individuals and their families, to reduce paperwork and simplify the administration of health care claims, to increase access to care in rural and underserved areas, to improve quality and protect consumers from health care fraud and abuse, to promote preventive care, to make long-term care more affordable, and for other purposes.

TITLE I—HEALTH INSURANCE MARKET REFORM

a. Non-discrimination based on health status

In general, a health plan may not deny, limit, or condition the coverage under the plan (or vary the premium) for an individual on the basis of their health status, medical condition, claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, anticipated need for services, disability, or lack of insurability.

The plan may limit or exclude benefits relating to a pre-existing condition that was diagnosed or treated during the 3-month period prior to enrollment in that plan for up to 6 months. However, if the individual had been in a period of continuous coverage under another health plan prior to enrollment, the exclusion period would be reduced by 1 month for each month of continuous coverage.

b. Guaranteed issue and renewal

Health plans offering coverage in the small group market shall guarantee each individual purchaser and small employer (and each employee of that small employer) access to the plan. In addition, health plans must be renewed at the option of the employer or individual if they remain eligible for coverage under the plan. Plans may refuse to renew a policy in the case of: nonpayment of premiums; fraud on the part of the employer or individual related to the plan; or misrepresentation by the employer or individual of material facts relating to an application for coverage of a claim or benefit.

c. Rating limitations

The Secretary of HHS shall request that the National Association of Insurance Commissioners develop specific standards in the form of a model Act and model regulations to implement rating stands for the small group market. Factors that health plans may use to vary premium rates include age (not to exceed a 3:1 ratio), family type and geography. Health plans would be prohibited from using gender, health status or health expenditures to vary rates. These factors would be phased out within three years in order to minimize market disruption and maximize coverage rates. The standards developed would also permit health plans to provide premium discounts based on workplace health promotion activities.

d. Encouragement of State efforts

None of the provisions of the bill shall be construed as preempting State law unless that State law directly conflicts with the bills' requirements. In addition, the following state consumer protection laws shall not be considered to directly conflict with any such requirement and are specifically not preempted: laws that limit the exclusions or limitations for preexisting medical conditions to periods that are less than those provided in this title; laws that limit variations in premium rates beyond the variations permitted in this title; and laws that would expand the small group market in excess of that provided for under this title. In addition, nothing in this bill shall be construed as prohibiting States from enacting health care reform measures that exceed the measures established in the bill, including reforms that expand access to health care services, control health care costs, and enhance quality of care.

TITLE II—GRANTS TO STATES FOR SMALL GROUP HEALTH INSURANCE PURCHASING ARRANGEMENTS

Authorizes the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make grants to States for the establishment and operation of small group health insurance purchasing arrangements to increase access to more affordable coverage for small businesses and individuals.

TITLE III—TAX INCENTIVES TO ENCOURAGE THE PURCHASE OF HEALTH INSURANCE

Insurance would be made more affordable for low and middle-income individuals (individuals with incomes up to $23,000 and families with incomes up to $33,000) by providing a refundable tax credit to those without employer-provided insurance. A credit of 60 percent would apply to premiums of up to $1,200 a year for individuals and $2,400 for families. Individuals with adjusted gross incomes of less than $18,000 and families with adjusted gross incomes of less than $28,000 would be eligible for the full credit. The credit would be phased out for individuals with incomes between $18,000 and $23,000 and families with incomes between $28,000 and $33,000.

Also makes the tax deduction for health insurance costs for self-employed individuals permanent (retroactive to 1994) and phases it up from the current 25% level to 100% by 2000.

TITLE VI—INCENTIVES TO INCREASE THE ACCESS OF RURAL AND UNDERSERVED AREAS TO HEALTH CARE

Provides a special tax credit and other incentives for physicians and other primary care providers serving in rural and other underserved areas. Increased funding is also provided to expand the National Health Service Corps and Area Health Education Centers, which will also help to increase the number of health care professionals in medically underserved areas. Increased grant funding would also be available to expand the number of community health centers, which provide comprehensive health services in rural and inner-city neighborhoods to millions of Americans who need care regardless of their ability to pay.

TITLE V—QUALITY AND CONSUMER PROTECTION

Authorizes the Secretary of Health and Human Services to award demonstration grants for the establishment and operation of regional Quality Improvement Foundations.

Improves the efficiency and effectiveness of the health care system by encouraging the development of a national health information network to reduce administrative complexity, paperwork, and costs; to provide information on cost and quality; and to provide information tools that allow improved fraud detection, outcomes research, and quality of care.

Establishes a stronger, better coordinated federal effort to combat fraud and abuse in our health care system. This section expands criminal and civil penalties for health care fraud to provide a stronger deterrent to the billing of fraudulent claims and to deter fraudulent utilization of health care services.

TITLE VI—MALPRACTICE REFORM

Encourages states to establish alternative dispute resolution mechanisms like prelitigation screening panels, which have had great success in a number of states in reducing medical malpractice costs. Also allows health care providers to use practice guidelines approved by the Secretary of HHS as a rebuttable defense in medical liability cases.

TITLE VII—HEALTH PROMOTION AND DISEASE PREVENTION

Encourages participation in qualified health promotion and prevention programs by clarifying that expenditures for these programs are considered amounts paid for medical care for tax purposes. Also establishes a new grant program for states to provide assistance to small businesses in the establishment and operation of worksite wellness programs for their employees. And finally, expands the comprehensive school health education programs administered by the Centers for Disease Control.

TITLE VIII—ACCESS TO AFFORDABLE LONG-TERM CARE

Removes tax barriers and creates incentives for individuals and their families to finance their future long-term care needs. Long-term care policies that meet federal consumer protection standards would receive favorable tax treatment. Like health insurance, business expenditures on premiums would be deductible as a business expense and employer-provided long-term care insurance would be excluded from an employee's taxable income. Also allows States to develop programs under which individuals can keep more of their assets and still qualify for Medicaid if they take steps to finance their own long-term care needs. And finally, provides various incentives, such as tax-free withdrawals from IRAs, 401(k) plans, and other qualified pension plans to promote the purchase of private long-term care insurance.

TITLE IX—ASSURANCE OF BUDGET NEUTRALITY

No amendment or provision made by the bill will take effect until legislation is enacted which provides for budget neutrality.

By Mrs. KASSEBAUM (for herself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. GREGG, and Mr. GORTON):

S. 295. A bill to permit labor management cooperative efforts that improve America's economic competitiveness to continue to thrive, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

TEAMWORK FOR EMPLOYEES AND MANAGEMENT ACT

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce, along with Senators JEFFORDS, GREGG, and GORTON, the Teamwork for Employees And Management [TEAM] Act, a bill to encourage worker-management cooperation.

Mr. President, when I served many years ago on the school board in Maize, KS, we frequently met on an informal basis with teachers to discuss problems the teachers faced in the classroom. The teachers had an important perspective to share, and we addressed their concerns. Sometimes we agreed with them and implemented their recommendations, and sometimes we agreed to disagree. But the important thing was that we felt free to exchange information.

School boards and teachers are governed by State law and not Federal law, so we did not face the problems on the school board that private sector workers and supervisors face today. We had the benefit of being able to work cooperatively with our teachers, and I continue to believe that we improved the quality of education for our students and enhanced the quality of work life for our teachers.

Mr. President, our current Federal labor laws do not allow this sort of cooperative effort, because our labor laws assume that labor and management have an adversarial relationship. This may have been true 50 years ago, but today, employers recognize that productivity and efficiency improve when workers operate in partnership with management, and that partnership occurs best in a cooperative rather than an adversarial environment. Yet our labor laws currently prohibit these cooperative efforts.

Mr. President, the TEAM Act responds to a National Labor Relations Board [NLRB] decision in 1992 called Electromation that has had significant consequences for attempts to improve cooperation between workers and employers. Specifically, the NLRB held that employer-employee committees, where workers met with management to discuss attendance, compensation and no-smoking policies, violated the National Labor Relations Act's [NLRA] prohibition against "employer-dominated" labor organizations.

The TEAM Act amends our Federal labor laws to permit these types of voluntary programs to continue. The legislation allows employers and employees to meet together to address issues of mutual interest, including issues related to quality, productivity, and efficiency, as long as the committees or other joint programs do not engage in collective bargaining.

I believe that our Federal labor laws should not stand in the way of workplace cooperative efforts, such as quality circles and employee involvement programs. Our workers like to have input on their working conditions and our international competitors use employee involvement to improve plant productivity.

I urge my colleagues to support the TEAM Act.

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 295

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Teamwork for Employees And Management Act of 1995".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the escalating demands of global competition have compelled an increasing number of American employers to make dramatic changes in workplace and employer-employee relationships;

(2) these changes involve an enhanced role for the employee in workplace decisionmaking, often referred to as "employee involvement", which has taken many forms, including self-managed work teams, quality-of-worklife, quality circles, and joint labor-management committees;

(3) employee involvement structures, which operate successfully in both unionized and non-unionized settings, have been established by over 80 percent of the largest employers of the United States and exist in an estimated 30,000 workplaces;

(4) in addition to enhancing the productivity and competitiveness of American businesses, employee involvement structures have had a positive impact on the lives of those employees, better enabling them to reach their potential in their working lives;

(5) recognizing that foreign competitors have successfully utilized employee involvement techniques, Congress has consistently joined business, labor and academic leaders in encouraging and recognizing successful employee involvement structures in the workplace through such incentives as the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award;

(6) employers who have instituted legitimate employee involvement structures have not done so to interfere with the collective bargaining rights guaranteed by the labor laws, as was the case in the 1930s when employers established deceptive sham "company unions" to avoid unionization; and

(7) employee involvement is currently threatened by interpretations of the prohibition against employer-dominated "company unions".

(b) PURPOSES.—It is the purpose of this Act to—

(1) protect legitimate employee involvement structures against governmental interference;

(2) preserve existing protections against deceptive, coercive employer practices; and

(3) permit legitimate employee involvement structures where workers may discuss issues involving terms and conditions of employment, to continue to evolve and proliferate.

SEC. 3. AMENDMENT TO SECTION 8(a)(2) OF THE NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS ACT.

SEC. 4. CONSTRUCTION CLAUSE LIMITING EFFECT OF ACT.

Nothing in the amendment made by section 3 shall be construed as affecting employee rights and responsibilities under the National Labor Relations Act other than those contained in section 8(a)(2) of such Act.

By Mr. KENNEDY (for himself, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. BRADLEY, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. DODD, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. INOUE, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. LEAHY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. PACKWOOD, Mr. PELL, Mr. ROBB, Mr. SIMON, and Mr. WELLSTONE):

S. 296. A bill to amend section 1977A of the Revised Statutes to equalize the remedies available to all victims of intentional employment discrimination, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

EQUAL REMEDIES ACT

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, on behalf of myself and 20 other Senators, it is an honor to reintroduce the Equal Remedies Act to repeal the caps on the amount of damages available in employment discrimination cases brought under the Civil Rights Act of 1991.

The Civil Rights Act of 1991 for the first time gave women, religious minorities, and the disabled the right to recover compensatory and punitive damages when they suffer intentional discrimination on the job—but only up to specified limits. Victims of discrimination on the basis of race or national origin, by contrast, can recover such damages without such limits. No similar caps on damages exist in other civil rights laws, and they are not appropriate in this instance.

The Equal Remedies Act will end this double standard by removing the caps on damages for victims of intentional discrimination on the basis of sex, religion, or disability.

The caps on damages deny an adequate remedy to the most severely injured victims of discrimination. For example, if a woman proves that as a result of discrimination or sexual harassment she needs extensive medical treatment exceeding the caps, she will be limited to receiving only partial compensation for her injury.

In addition, the caps on punitive damages limit the extent to which employers who intentionally discriminate—particularly the worst violators—are punished for their discriminatory acts and deterred from engaging in such conduct in the future. The more offensive the conduct and the greater the damages inflicted, the more the employer benefits from the caps.

The caps on damages in the Civil Rights Act of 1991 were a compromise necessitated by concern about passing a bill that President Bush would sign. The issue was only one of the important issues covered in that piece of legislation, which also reversed a series of Supreme Court decisions that had made it far more difficult for working Americans to challenge discrimination.

The bill as a whole represented a significant advance in the ongoing battle to overcome discrimination in the workplace. In order to guarantee that the bill would become law, the unfortunate compromise on damages was included. However, many of us made clear that we intended to work for enactment of separate legislation to remove the caps. By reintroducing the Equal Remedies Act today, we reaffirm our commitment. We must end the double standard that relegates women, religious minorities, and the disabled to second-class remedies under the civil rights laws.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 296

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Equal Remedies Act of 1995".

SEC. 2. EQUALIZATION OF REMEDIES.

Section 1977A of the Revised Statutes (42 U.S.C. 1981a), as added by section 102 of the Civil Rights Act of 1991, is amended—

- (1) in subsection (b)—
  - (A) by striking paragraph (3), and
  - (B) by redesignating paragraph (4) as paragraph (3), and
- (2) in subsection (c), by striking "section—" and all that follows through the period and inserting "section, any party may demand a jury trial."

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. BINGAMAN):

S. 297. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the exclusion from gross income for veterans' benefits; to the Committee on Finance.

VETERANS' TAX FAIRNESS ACT

• Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, as the ranking minority member of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, I am introducing today the proposed Veterans' Tax Fairness Act of 1995. I am enormously pleased that a number of my colleagues, both members of the committee and others, have joined me as original cosponsors of this important measure—Senators TOM DASCHLE, BOB GRAHAM, DANIEL AKAKA, BEN NIGHTHORSE CAMPBELL, JIM JEFFORDS, PAT LEAHY, and JEFF BINGAMAN. This bill would clarify and reiterate the longstanding rule that veterans benefits are not taxable—a rule that, until action taken in 1992 by the Internal Revenue Service, had never been questioned.

On February 27, 1992, the Internal Revenue Service, in a letter to the general counsel of the Department of Veterans Affairs, reinterpreted a 1986 law and reached a conclusion that could jeopardize the historical tax-exempt status of many veterans benefits, including various benefits provided to service-disabled veterans, dependency and indemnity compensation for survivors, veterans and survivors pensions, education benefits under the Montgomery GI bill, and veterans medical care.

The IRS ruling addressed a narrow issue of whether veterans must pay taxes when VA forgives a debt the veteran owes to the Federal Government after VA pays a guaranty on the Veteran's home loan. Congress liberalized the criteria for VA debt waivers in 1989. In the February 1992 opinion, IRS interpreted a 1986 tax code provision as requiring taxation of any debt waiver granted under the 1989 law that would not have been granted under the old law. IRS concluded that any modification or adjustment of a veterans benefit would make the benefit taxable.

Mr. President, our committee strongly disagreed with the IRS interpretation, for reasons stated in a May 13, 1992, letter from then-Chairman Alan Cranston to then-Secretary of the Treasury Nicholas F. Brady.

Mr. President, although the IRS opinion attempts to address only the narrow question of the taxability of VA debt waivers, its conclusions could support IRS assessing taxes for many other veterans benefits that have been modified or adjusted after September 9, 1986.

Since 1986, for example, Congress has expanded and increased education benefits paid under the GI bill on rehabilitation benefits provided to disabled veterans; adjusted the categories of eligibility for VA medical care; overhauled the survivors Dependency and Indemnity Compensation [DIC] Program and made several adjustments in the rates of DIC; expanded various health care services; and increased other benefits, such as housing and automobile grants for certain veterans with every severe service-connected disabilities. The IRS interpretation would exempt adjustment based on an inflation index, but fails to protect the many VA benefits that are adjusted without reference to an index. Under the February 27, 1992 IRS opinion, any of these modifications or adjustments might have made the benefits involved taxable.

Section 5301 of title 38, United States Code, explicitly exempts veterans benefits and services from taxation. The provision of the tax code interpreted by IRS concerns military benefits, and it seems clear to me that Congress did not intend to make veterans benefits taxable for the first time in our Nation's history through enactment of a tax code provision addressing military benefits. Veterans benefits, provided to veterans and their survivors under laws administered by VA, always have been distinct from military pay and benefits provided to active-duty or retired servicemembers under laws administered by the Department of Defense.

In fact, Mr. President, another tax code provision, section 136, explicitly references the title 38 provision exempting veterans benefits from taxation. I am not aware of any previous suggestion that the tax code section that IRS has interpreted was intended to make veterans benefits taxable. If Congress had wanted to make such a radical change in the tax-exempt status of veterans benefits, it certainly would have done so much more explicitly than through an ambiguously worded provision that does not even mention veterans or the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Mr. President, it is clear that, before February 1992, in previous administration had interpreted this tax code provision to require taxation of veterans benefits. During the almost 7 years since the provision took effect, IRS has not collected or attempted to collect any taxes based on the receipt of VA-administered benefits—even in connection with VA debt waivers, which the IRS opinion had concluded could be subject to taxation in certain circumstances.

In fact, every official IRS publication of which I am aware that mentions veterans benefits, including "Publication 17—Your Income Taxes" and a 1988 IRS private letter ruling, explicitly states that veterans benefits are not taxable. Many IRS publications even list all available veterans benefits to indicate that each is nontaxable.

Mr. President, in 1992, the committee found a very receptive ally in then-Senator Lloyd Bentsen, who chaired the Finance Committee. Senator Bentsen successfully inserted a version of our clarifying legislation into 1992's tax bill, H.R. 11. Unfortunately, President Bush vetoed H.R. 11.

Mr. President, during the last Congress, efforts were made, both by the administration—where Senator Bentsen was then serving as Secretary of Treasury—which submitted proposed legislation substantively identical to H.R. 11, and by me in the introduction of such legislation in S. 1083, to replicate the success we had with H.R. 11. Unfortunately, no action was taken on that legislation during the 103d Congress.

The legislation I am introducing today is substantively identical to H.R. 11, the legislation recommended by the administration last Congress, and to S. 1083, and I am hopeful that action will be taken on it in the first appropriate tax legislation.

I believe it is vitally important to reiterate and clarify by statute the tax-exempt status of all veterans benefits and services, in order to preclude any future tinkering with these most fundamental benefits, particularly in the current climate of anything goes in the name of deficit reduction.

Mr. President, it is obvious that, since IRS previously has not collected or attempted to collect taxes on veterans benefits, this legislation will not affect Federal revenues.

Mr. President, in closing, I acknowledge and thank Senator MOYNIHAN and the fine Finance Committee staff for the technical assistance provided in connection with the development of this measure. I urge my colleagues to support this bill and pledge to do all I can to see it enacted quickly.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AS A HEALTH CARE ISSUE

• Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, one of the finest things that has happened in the U.S. Senate since I've been here was the election of PAUL WELLSTONE.

I was reminded of that the other day when I was catching up on my reading and read in the magazine Tikkun his article on domestic violence as a health care issue.

It really goes beyond discussing it as a health care issue.

He talks about the necessity to have education and be sensitive and to protect all of our citizens better than we are now protecting them.

I ask to insert into the RECORD the Paul Wellstone article.

The article follows:

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AS A HEALTH-CARE ISSUE
(Paul Wellstone)

Domestic violence is a crime. Surely this statement is not a matter of contention or debate anymore—or it certainly should not be.

But it wasn't too long ago that we did have to make the argument, because domestic violence was a secret, something that happened behind closed doors, a "family matter." Police would be called; they would arrive; and they would leave. And then they would be called again. And again.

Now, of course, it's different, because everyone knows that domestic violence is a crime as pervasive—if not more so—than murder, armed robbery, or drug dealing. The only argument now involves what to do about this seemingly intractable problem.

Domestic violence is a health-care issue. Now this is something new. Once this perspective on the problem is introduced, however, informed opinion-makers pause a moment, think about it, and say, "Oh, yes, of course it is."

But what are the implications of approaching domestic violence in this way?

Evidence indicates that domestic violence is the leading cause of injury to women, more common than auto accidents, muggings, and rapes by strangers combined. Indeed, it is the most frequent cause for women to seek attention at hospital emergency rooms. Not surprisingly, the health consequences of domestic violence include bruises, broken bones, birth defects, miscarriages, and emotional distress, as well as long-term mental health problems.

Although domestic violence touches men as well as women, we know that women and children are the primary victims. We know that the very place in which a woman and her children should feel the safest and most protected—their home—is all too often the most violent, dangerous, and even deadly place. The emotional and physical well-being of women and children is compromised when they suffer or witness abuse. And the costs are staggering.

As a member of Congress, steeped in the current health-care debate, I can't and won't let this information simply be stored away to be trotted out as factoids for rhetorical purposes: Congress is on the threshold of actually doing something to address the domestic violence health issue.

In the course of the national debate over health care, we have been hearing the arguments for comprehensive reform. The prevalence of domestic violence and the toll it takes on the nation's health are two of the reasons we need health-care reform that includes universal coverage, and a good, affordable package of benefits.

The victims of domestic violence are living, breathing, suffering women and children. They, along with other Americans who need care, give a soul to this debate that goes beyond technical discussions of "employer mandates," "hard and soft triggers," and all the other process jargon that so easily takes center stage in a Washington debate.

Health-care reform—to meet the needs of victims of domestic violence—needs to include universal coverage, elimination of pre-existing condition clauses, public-health efforts to prevent domestic violence, and training for health-care providers to identify, treat, and refer victims. It should contain a benefits package that includes a visit to a doctor who will routinely ask about abuse and violence in the family just as she asks about a history of smoking or heart disease.

Universal coverage would mean that a woman who stays in a relationship because she is dependent on an intimate partner for health coverage for herself and her children would know that coverage was guaranteed even if she left the relationship.

Leaving an abusive relationship is already terribly difficult; many of the women involved worry about not being able to support their children or themselves. Many are ashamed to let relatives know of the abuse. And, when women do leave abusive partners, they must worry that the rage behind the abuse will become homicidal. A woman seeking to leave an abusive relationship should not have to worry about loss of health insurance for herself and her children—especially when experience shows that victims of abuse are heavy users of the health-care system.

When congressional discussion turns to "universal coverage" as being only a goal, or meaning 95 percent (or so) of the population, I will be reminding my colleagues about these women and their children.

Along with universal coverage, we need to prohibit insurance companies from denying coverage to people because of preexisting conditions. Eliminating preexisting condition clauses would protect women who are now denied coverage because their medical records explicitly indicate they have been battered, or because of repeated health problems that have occurred as a result of domestic abuse and violence.

The federal government should be a leader in developing and implementing innovative community-based strategies to provide health promotion and disease prevention activities for the prevention of violence by training providers and other health-care professionals to identify victims of domestic violence, to provide appropriate examination and treatment, and to refer the victims to available community resources.

This should include the development and implementation of training curricula that teach health-care providers to identify and name the symptoms, the promotion and importance of developing a plan of action should the abuser return, and how to refer their patients to safe and effective resources. Already we have taken some steps in this direction by adopting my Violence Reduction Training Act, which is now being implemented by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

A comprehensive benefits package would include clinic visits that gather a complete medical history and entail an appropriate physical exam and risk assessment, including the screening for victims of domestic violence, targeted health advice and counseling, and the administration of age-appropriate immunizations and tests.

This type of clinic visit would mean that a doctor would ask about a history or incidents of violence as part of her regular medical history interview. Doctors already ask about their patients' medical history with cancer, smoking, diet, or heart disease. Sadly, family violence is not something about which doctors, or other health professionals, often inquire.

Some of my congressional colleagues and my constituents will continue to remind me that passing this type of health-care reform is going to be expensive. Of course it is. But we are already spending the money one way or the other. The annual medical costs alone of reported domestic violence injuries are astounding: A study conducted at Chicago's Rush Medical Center found that the average charge for medical services provided to abused women, children, and older people is $1,633 per person per year. This would amount to a national cost of $857.3 million. Many of these costs are borne by emergency departments—the most expensive way to provide these services.

As with the current discussion surrounding the criminal nature of domestic violence, we are now at the point of asking: given that domestic violence is a health issue, what do we do?

One of the important things that we can do is to pass comprehensive health-care reform that is universal, comprehensive, and affordable. By passing comprehensive reform, Congress will be taking an important step to prevent and reduce the incidence of domestic violence.

Passing health-care reform will not be a panacea for the victims of family violence. In the same way that police cannot solve the crime of domestic violence, health-care professionals are not going to solve this problem.

If we are to break this cycle of violence, we must recognize that all of us in the community are stakeholders. We all need to be involved: health-care providers, educators, business people, clergy, law enforcement officers, advocates, judges, media, and community residents.

But there is another level in this debate. Even if Congress enacts health-care reform and even if communities start to deal with this escalating problem, as a country we are still faced with a whole host of problems that we are only beginning to comprehend. For instance, we now have to ask about the responsibility of the healthcare community to provide leadership for community collaboration. And how should the role of health-care providers intersect with others in the community?

Furthermore, the provider is now confronted with serious ethical questions such as whether physicians should be mandated to report information about abuse and if so, to whom? Is the obligation to notify the law enforcement or legal systems greater than the responsibility to respect the victim's autonomy? If a victim asks that there be no action, should a doctor or nurse or therapist honor the request? And what are the responsibilities of health professionals with regard to the perpetrators? What is the role of neighbors who hear much too much through thin walls?

I don't have all the answers to these types of questions. Indeed, since we have just opened the door to this discussion, I'm not sure anyone does. But that, in part, is the point. We have now initiated this debate, and we have begun talking as a community—knowing full well that because of this conversation we will begin solving one of the most devastating social and medical problems facing every one of us.

For the last two years, my wife Shelia and I have been traveling throughout Minnesota, convening gatherings and attending events where such issues are being discussed. The conversations are having an impact. We are seeing community action throughout the state, and we are seeing a tremendous number of providers, judges, and police getting involved. My own experience in Minnesota makes me believe that similar efforts nationwide will also be successful.

We must begin this discussion with a sense of urgency—peoples' lives and safety are at stake. ●

ON ECONOMIST ARTICLE

● Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, a few months ago, we passed the dubious milestone of having 1 million inmates serving time in prison. That number is expected to soar further as Congress and the States respond to the public's fear of crime by enacting longer prison terms for drug offenders and other criminals.

Before we head full-steam down this prison-building path, I think we need to consider carefully whether we are being smart about how we punish criminals. Last year, I asked my staff to survey prison wardens around the Nation for their views on our crime policies. The results were surprising. Only 39 percent recommended building more prisons. But 65 percent said we should use our existing prison space more efficiently, by imposing shorter sentences on nonviolent offenders, and longer prison terms on violent ones.

A few States, such as Florida and Georgia, have begun to respond in this way. They have begun to look at innovative ways to free up prison space by sentencing nonviolent criminals to "intermediate sanctions," such as home detention and work release. As a recent article in the Economist noted, these programs are highly cost-efficient. In Florida, for example, these alternative programs cost only $6.49 per day per felon, compared with nearly $40 per day for prison.

And, the programs don't compromise public safety. As the Economist reported, "A 6 year survey by the National Council on Crime and Delinquency shows that in Florida, people sentenced to such penalties are less likely to be arrested within 18 months of their release than similar offenders who had been sentenced to between 12 and 30 months in jail."

That is what I call being both tough on crime and smart. It is an approach Congress should consider before it spends billions more on another incarceration binge. I ask that the full text of the Economist article be reprinted in the RECORD.

The article follows:

[From the Economist, Nov. 19, 1994]

ALTERNATIVES TO PRISON—CHEAPER IS BETTER

RICHMOND, VA.—Self-preservation requires American politicians to be slap-'em-inside tough on crime these days. The argument for toughness stands on uncertain ground: the number of Americans in prison has more than doubled since 1982, now standing at over 1m, and yet notified violent crime has risen by two-fifths, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Still, the voters want to lock the villains up, and the politicians reckon they had better get on with it. The next question is how much it will cost the taxpayer.

In Virginia, whose capital has the country's second-highest homicide rate, the General Assembly recently met in extraordinary session to lengthen prison terms for violent criminals and—like 13 other states and the federal government—to abolish discretionary parole for newly convicted felons. That needs nearly 30 new prisons. Some say this could cost $2 billion. The new Republican governor, George Allen, says that the true cost is closer to $1 billion, and that the state's prison population would anyway have doubled, without the new measures, by 2005.

But the Democrats who control the legislature balked even at that figure, and have given Mr. Allen only about $40m to erect a handful of the work camps needed to accommodate the queue of prisoners waiting for space in the local jails. Mr. Allen, who has promised not to raise taxes, will have to go back to the Assembly next year and try to find the rest of the $370m that he describes as a down-payment for safer streets. It costs $19,800 a year to keep an inmate behind bars. It is doubtful whether the governor can raise what he needs by cutting expenditure elsewhere and selling off surplus state properties. Many state agencies are still operating on recession budgets. The sale of state land and equipment is expected to net a paltry $26m.

On the other side of the country, in Oregon, where parole was abolished in 1989, a cheaper way of coping with over-full prisons is being tried. Oregon's voters are not keen on paying more, either: the advocates of tougher penalties for crimes against property failed to get enough signatures to put their proposal on the ballot last year, presumably because it would have cost $300m a year. So the state legislature, in providing more money for the corrections department, said that most of it should go into alternatives to prison for non-violent offenders.

That would free some existing prison space for more dangerous criminals.

This approach has already been tried in states with some of the highest incarceration rates in the nation, among them Florida and Georgia. So-called "intermediate sanctions" for non-violent felons—for instance, house arrest or work programmes—are cheap. In Florida, they cost only $6.49 per day per felon, compared with prison's near-$40 a day. They may also be working. A six-year study by the National Council on Crime and Delinquency shows that in Florida people sentenced to such penalties are less likely to be arrested within 18 months of their release than similar offenders who had been sentenced to between 12 and 30 months in jail.

Texas, though, stays old-fashioned about its prison problem: it throws money at it. Twice this year, the Texas legislature has taken $100m from other parts of the state government to pay for more prisons. The voters, who rejected a $750m bond issue for schools, backed $1 billion for the Corrections Department. The trouble is that new parole restrictions look like further increasing the demand for Texan prison space. In the Lone Star state, getting into prison may prove tougher than getting out of it. ●

ON PRISON WARDEN SURVEY

● Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, there has been much talk recently about rewriting last year's Federal crime bill. That talk has focused on spending billions more for prison construction and longer sentences, while drastically reducing funds for prevention programs.

I urge my colleagues to think hard about whether these changes represent smart policy. Last month, I conducted a survey of 157 wardens, and I asked them to comment on our present crime policies. By large margins, the wardens warned that our overwhelming emphasis on building prisons just isn't working. They urged a far more balanced approach to crime-fighting, that mixes punishment, prevention, and treatment.

The Daily Southtown, in a recent editorial, called on Congress to listen to the advice of these experts, rather than moving rapidly ahead with policies that may be politically popular, but ultimately shortsighted. That is a message we would all do well to heed.

I ask that this editorial be reprinted following my remarks.

The editorial follows:

[From the Daily Southtown, Dec. 8, 1994]

WARDENS' VIEW ON CRIME: MANDATORY SENTENCING WON'T SOLVE PROBLEM

Is "locking them up and throwing away the key" the most effective approach to reducing crime? Not if you listen to the prison wardens across the country who are in charge of the nation's inmates.

Some 157 prison wardens were surveyed by a U.S. Senate subcommittee, and 85 percent of them said the politically popular approach—mandatory, longer incarceration—didn't work.

The survey was conducted at the request of Sen. Paul Simon (D-Ill.). The survey showed that "the idea we can solve our crime problem by putting more people in prison just has not worked," Simon said. The senator said most of the wardens favored approaches that mixed prevention, treatment and punishment. Sixty-five percent said they preferred increasing sentences for violent criminals and cutting sentences for non-violent inmates.

Some 92 percent favored placing non-violent drug offenders in residential treatment programs, halfway houses, home detention and boot camps rather than prisons. And contrary to the rhetoric that proved so popular in the November election, the wardens said they wanted programs in prison for drug treatment, vocational training and educational programs.

Simon said he asked for the survey because he feared the new Republican majority in Congress would rewrite the 1994 crime bill to remove prevention and treatment programs and replace them with more costly punishment approaches.

Our elected officials ought to give some serious thought to the recommendations of the experts—the people who run our prisons—rather than setting new policies based on what would serve the politicians best in future elections. ●

ORDERS FOR TOMORROW

Mr. HATCH. #### HEINZ AWARDS

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, this April will mark the fourth anniversary of the untimely passing of our friend and colleague, John Heinz. And those of us who were privileged to serve with this remarkable public servant continue to miss his friendship and his leadership.

Many of John's friends gathered last Thursday in Statuary Hall for the presentation of the first Heinz Awards. These awards were established by Teresa Heinz and the Heinz Family Foundation, and will be awarded to individuals who have made a difference in five issue areas where John was most active.

It was a very moving and inspiring ceremony, and it reminded us again that, as John Heinz proved throughout his career, good people can do great things.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the very eloquent remarks delivered at the ceremony by Teresa Heinz be printed in the RECORD, and that they be followed by brief biographies of the six Heinz Award recipients.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

REMARKS OF TERESA HEINZ AT THE HEINZ AWARDS, STATUARY HALL, JANUARY 26, 1995

Thank you.

This is a deeply gratifying and poignant day. It is the culmination of nearly four years of careful thought about how to pay tribute to the memory and spirit of my late husband John Heinz. And it is the culmination of four years of hard work toward that goal. I know John would be greatly honored that we are all here today in this hallowed hall, to celebrate his memory in a place that meant so much to him. I want to thank Speaker Gingrich and our sponsor, Congressman Curt Weldon, for making this possible. And I especially want thank all of you for being here.

If you have ever done it, you know that the making of a tribute is a terribly difficult matter. That is especially true when the goal is to honor someone as complex and multifaceted as my late husband. I realized early on that, for John Heinz, no static monument or self-serving exercise in sentimentality would do. He would have wanted no part of such things. The only tribute befitting him would be one that celebrated his spirit by honoring those who live and work as he did.

To me, the value of remembering John Heinz is and always will be in remembering what he stood for and how he stood for it. His life said something important about how life can be lived, and should be lived. I wanted to remember him in a way that would inspire not just me, but the rest of us.

And so the Heinz Awards were born. They are intended to recognize outstanding achievers in five areas in which John was particularly active. But they are meant less as a reward for the people we will honor here today, than as a reminder for the rest of us—a reminder of what can happen when good people, regardless of who they are or where they come from, set out to make a difference.

There is a saying in the Heinz family that dates back to my husband's great-grandfather, the founder of the Heinz Company. Quite aside from his business acumen, H.J. Heinz was an exceptional man who battled his food industry peers on behalf of food purity laws, created the most progressive workplace of his day, and fostered in his offspring an abiding sense of social responsibility. And yet H.J. Heinz dismissed the notion that he was truly exceptional. His aim, he said humbly, was merely "to do a common thing uncommonly well."

In much the same way, H.J. Heinz's great-grandson never saw greatness in his great accomplishments. For John Heinz, public service was a common thing, one that he wanted to do uncommonly well. He was a dedicated achiever, but he was distinguished mostly by intangible qualities—qualities of mind and spirit: intellectual curiosity; a love of people; an informed optimism; a willingness to take risks; a passion for excellence; a belief that he could make the world a better place; the stubborn determination to make it so. And, above all, a contagious, effervescent joy in life.

These are the qualities celebrated by the Heinz Awards. They are, in fact, in addition to excellence, the criteria. In our first year, our nominators sent us some two hundred nominations from across the country. And as we began culling through these, we took excellence as a given. But then we looked beyond achievement. We looked for vision, and character and intent.

And finally, after our jurors and board of directors had met, we had settled on six remarkable individuals. They are an eclectic group. To the extent they share world views, that is more by accident than design. Their underlying spirit was what we asked our nominators and jurors to assess. And it is that spirit, a spirit that I regard as uniquely American, that we are here today to salute.

Many people in our society wish that they could make the world a better place. Too few believe that they actually can. And fewer still act on that belief.

Many people have dreams. Too few pursue those dreams. And, tragically, fewer still persist until dream becomes reality.

We live in cynical times, and one aspect of that cynicism is the corrosive notion that individuals are powerless to make a difference. But history is still made by people, one person at a time. Our first recipients of the Heinz Awards illustrate just how much we can do when we apply ourselves and care enough to try.

They are an antidote, if you will, not just to cynicism, but to the culture of powerlessness so ascendant now in our society. These six have believed in the power of one. They have dreamed great dreams. And they have made that belief and that dreaming the basis of their life's work, to the betterment of us all.

Their stories, I hope, will remind Americans that we really do have power as individuals, that good people still can achieve great things. Our world has been improved by the six individuals you are about to meet. But the secret of their impact transcends their films, their books, their programs, their treatises, and their microchips. These things were made great by the qualities of the people who made them, by their joy, their love of people, their optimism, their willingness to take risks, their passion for excellence, their belief that they can improve the world, their gritty determination. Their work, accomplished as it is, has been the product of something internal—an incandescence that burns brightly in the human spirit.

Our faith in luminous qualities of heart and mind made this a great country. And if there is to be any future for this thing we so blithely call the American spirit, we must embrace those qualities again. Can it be done? Is it important? As evidence and proof, I offer you six extraordinary people.

Thank you.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES OF THE SIX HEINZ AWARD WINNERS

PAUL AND ANNE EHRLICH

Paul and Anne Ehrlich receive the Heinz Award in the Environment in recognition of their thoughtful study of difficult environmental issues, their commitment to bringing their findings to the attention of policy makers and the public, and their willingness to suggest solutions.

Anne and Paul Ehrlich have been producing important scientific research for over three decades. But they are distinguished by their passionate determination to communicate their findings to non-scientific audiences. They have long seen it as their responsibility to alert humanity to the dangers of ecological carelessness and arrogance. This perspective, uncommon among scientists, has made them the target of sometimes strident criticism, which they accept with grace as the price of forthrightness.

They are distinguished as well by their willingness to offer and seek solutions to the problems they identify. Their prescriptions, sometimes misrepresented as draconian, are rooted in the same Judeo-Christian principles that are the source of the Ehrlich's profound ethic of stewardship. It would be difficult to name any other couple who have made such a long-standing and substantive contribution to scientific and policy understanding of population, environment, and resource issues.

As scientists, authors and educators, Paul and Anne Ehrlich have for 30 years devoted themselves to enhancing public understanding of a wide range of environmental issues, including conservation biology, biodiversity and habitat preservation.

The basis of the Ehrlichs work has always been their science, and they have compiled an important body of scientific research over the years. But it is for their environmental advocacy, particularly in the area of population, that the Ehrlichs are most well known to the general public, and little wonder. Paul Ehrlich made a memorable debut on the world scene with the publication of his 1968 book, The Population Bomb, in which he warned that the Earth's resources could not indefinitely support the planet's growing population. In a 1990 sequel, The Population Explosion, Anne and Paul Ehrlich provided an unflinching update.

Setting forth challenging but prescient work was to become a hallmark of the Ehrlich's careers. Several decades ago, the Ehrlichs were the first to raise the alarm about a possible resurgence of infectious diseases, another controversial theory now taken seriously.

Paul Ehrlich, who is Bing Professor of Population Studies in the Department of Biological Sciences at Stanford University, and Anne Ehrlich, senior research associate in biology and policy coordination at Stanford's Center for Conservation Biology, which the couple founded, have never suggested that population issues represent the whole of the planet's problems. In fact they have been forceful advocates for broadening the agenda of the environmental movement to include such issues as biodiversity, poverty, consumption, carrying capacity, energy supplies, agriculture and food, global warming, nuclear weapons, international economics, environmental ethics, and sustainable development.

The Ehrlichs have displayed rare leadership in seeking to translate meaningful science into workable policy. Far from being prophets of doom, they are spirited optimists, whose unrivaled contributions have flowed from a belief that the future is still ours to make.

GEOFFREY CANADA

Geoffrey Canada receives the Heinz Award for the Human Condition in recognition of his battle against what he calls the "monsters" preying on the children of the depressed inner-city. As President and CEO of the New York-based Rheedlen Centers for Children and Families, he not only has created model programs, but sets an example for all adults wanting to protect children from crime, drugs, lawlessness and despair.

Geoffrey Canada knows life in the inner city at first hand. It's where he grew up, and he remembers what it's like to be a child there. "I haven't forgotten about the monsters," he says. "I remember being small, vulnerable and scared."

Geoffrey Canada was one of those rare and fortunate young men and women who are able to rise above and move beyond the inner city. Once they leave, they rarely return. But Canada did return, motivated by a desire to save young people whose lives might otherwise be snuffed out by bullets or smothered by hopelessness. He decided to live in Harlem, the community in which he works, in order to provide what, in his own youth, he so wished for: a role model. He is optimistic in seeking practical answers to what pessimists view as intractable problems. The fact that he has no illusions is the very thing that makes him so effective.

Geoffrey Canada grew up poor on welfare, in a household headed by a single woman in the blighted tenements of New York's South Bronx. Despite the many things he did not have, he realized what he did have: a hard-working and loving mother who gave him a strong set of values, a deep sense of responsibility, a belief in the importance of education, and an almost ardent commitment to make things better not only for himself, but for those around him.

In 1963, having completed his graduate education, he joined the staff of the New York-based Rheedlen Centers for Children and Families. He was named its President/CEO in 1990. At Rheedlen, he has been instrumental in creating or developing such programs as Rheedlen's Beacon School, Community Pride, the Harlem Freedom Schools, and Peacemakers.

The Beacon Schools program uses public school buildings to provide inner-city families with safe shelters and constructive activities 17 hours a day, 365 days a year. There are now 37 Beacon Schools in New York. The program has been replicated in Connecticut, Illinois, and California.

To combat the culture of violence in the inner-city, Canada conceived of the Peacemakers Program. He was concerned by the media's easy promotion of violence as a way of settling disputes, and he set out to develop an alternative: a program to teach children how to use communication to resolve conflicts. His Peacemakers curriculum trains young people in conflict resolution, mediation, and violence prevention and reduction techniques. He is the author of the forthcoming Fist Stick Knife Gun, a book on conflict resolution.

Geoffrey Canada believes that, if today's urban youth are to be convinced that a disadvantaged background does not demand despair or dictate defeat, they must have real role models and real heroes. And they need them on the spot: successful, educated men and women who continue to live alongside them in their communities, shop at their stores, play in their parks, and ride the buses and subways just as they do. Geoffrey Canada's life teaches by example.

AMBASSADOR JAMES GOODBY

Ambassador James Goodby receives the Heinz Award for Public Policy. Virtually unknown to his countrymen or to the world, Ambassador Goodby is a quiet titan in the delicate, high stakes arena of international nuclear weapons negotiations.

Both the esoteric and security-sensitive nature of his specialty have required him to work almost entirely behind the scenes. But for more than four decades, under nine Presidents, James Goodby has made the world a safer place, beginning with his leadership of the effort to achieve a nuclear test ban treaty in the 1950s and 1960s. After retiring from the foreign service in 1989, Ambassador Goodby was called back into service in 1993 to serve as Chief U.S. Negotiator for the Safe and Secure Dismantlement of Nuclear Weapons. He negotiated over 30 agreements with several former Soviet Republics to assist in the dismantling of nuclear weapons, preventing weapons proliferation and converting military facilities to civilian enterprises.

As Secretary of Defense William Perry has written, "Jim's life has been dedicated to serving the public and humanity. He is an unselfish individual who is touched by the needs of others and responds in a vigorous way to bring about change."

James Goodby came of age in the shadow of the atomic bomb. The post-war years—the late 1940s and early 1950s—saw the disintegration of wartime alliances and the escalation of East-West tensions. Goodby graduated from Harvard in 1951 and entered the foreign service in 1952. With the exception of the two years he served as U.S. Ambassador to Finland (1980-1981), most of his career has dealt with international peace and security negotiations.

His reputation as a negotiator quickly spread through foreign policy and government circles: he was strong and dependable; he was smart; and he seemed to have the knack for devising creative solutions to complicated questions. While assigned to the U.S. Mission to NATO in the early 1970s, he negotiated alliance positions on human rights and security provisions for the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, many of which became part of the Helsinki Final Act. After a stint as vice chairman of the U.S. delegation to the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START), he became head of the U.S. delegation to the Stockholm Conference on Confidence and Security Building Measures and Disarmament in Europe in 1984. In that position, he negotiated the framework that laid the basis for negotiations on conventional force reductions in Europe. Former Secretary of State George Shultz, who describes Goodby as a "thoroughly laudable person," has written that "Ambassador Goodby got the ball rolling very effectively, standing up to the Soviets and rallying our allies."

Praise for his accomplishments makes James Goodby, now a Distinguished Service Professor at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa., uncomfortable. A native New Englander, he modestly demurs: "Where I come from, we don't feel comfortable with such talk * * * I had a lot of people to help me do it."

It may surprise some that a single individual, bucking modern media worship by purposely eschewing publicity, could make such a difference to the fate of the world. But James Goodby, compelled to a life of public service by a desire to make the world a safer place, offers reassurance that there still exist in America men and women with brilliant minds and distinguished careers who need nothing more than the inner satisfaction of a vision fulfilled and the knowledge that they have truly made a difference.

ANDREW S. GROVE

Andrew Grove receives the Heinz Award for Technology and the Economy in recognition not just of his astounding technological and business accomplishments, but also of his determination and vision. In a story as old as America, those traits transformed him from a young immigrant into a leading figure in the birth of the information society.

His accomplishments range from the technical to the commercial, from contributing to the development of the microprocessor chip—perhaps the most important advancement in the history of computing—to helping create the personal computer industry. As more Americans start traveling down the information highway, at speeds and prices to their liking, a tip of their symbolic hats to Andy Grove would be in order.

More than an engineering genius, he is an enlightened corporate executive and employer whose ability to nurture talent is legendary. His peers as well as his employees call him Andy, and that speaks volumes about the man's character, about his approach to business and, most certainly, about his approach to life.

A native of Hungary, Andrew Grove fled during the 1956 Soviet invasion. When he arrived in New York, he was twenty years old, had only a few dollars in his pocket, and knew even fewer words of English.

The boy from Budapest has lived the quintessential American success story. By working any job he could find, he put himself through New York's City College, earning a BS. in Chemical Engineering. He received his masters and Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley.

Andrew Grove has played perhaps the pivotal role in the development and popularization of the 20th century's most remarkable innovation—the personal computer. The technologies pioneered by Grove and his associates, first at Fairchild Semiconductor and then at Intel, which he co-founded in 1968, made the entire personal computing revolution possible. The world has barely begun to scratch the surface of the technological and economic benefits that revolution can bring.

No stranger to controversy, Andrew Grove has shown an ability to learn from experience. And, while others panicked over problems or setbacks, he has always managed to maintain his focus on what is important and what he does best: developing even faster, more affordable and more powerful technology.

Thanks in large measure to Andrew Grove's genius and vision, millions of people now have instant and inexpensive access to the kinds of information and entertainment about which even the elites of previous generations could only dream.

HENRY HAMPTON

Henry Hampton receives the Heinz Award in Arts and Humanities for his creativity, his curiosity and his seriousness of purpose, as manifested in the outstanding contributions of Blackside, Inc., the independent film and television company he founded in 1968.

From modest beginnings, Blackside has become one of the successful independent production companies in the world. But success hasn't changed Henry Hampton, who, remembering his early struggles, regularly mentors young minority filmmakers.

Among Blackside's productions are the landmark television series Eyes on the Prize I and II. Other Blackside documentaries have included The Great Depression, Malcolm X, and the recently-broadcast America's War on Poverty.

Hampton's work and that of his producing team, has been described as "history as poetry"—but it is not the kind of poetry that sugar-coats difficult and divisive issues. He believes that Americans of all races must truly understand their past before they can deal with the present, much less master the future.

Henry Hampton grew up in St. Louis. After deciding against a career in medicine, he went to work as an editor, and later as director of information, for the Unitarian Universalist Church. When a Unitarian minister was killed in Selma, Alabama, the churchleaders, including Hampton, went to the South to join Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s march.

During this first visit to the deep south, Hampton started to think about capturing the struggle for civil rights on film. He had no experience, but he set about learning. Questioning the conventional approaches, he and his colleagues slowly began devising a unique style for Blackside's work. Finally he was ready to make exactly the kinds of documentaries he envisioned.

Eyes on the Prize has received six Emmys, a Peabody, and an Academy Award nomination. It has been broadcast around the world, and is used as a teaching tool on as many as half of four-year college campuses in the U.S.

Henry Hampton pushes his company to deal with what he calls "messy history"—the kind that doesn't supply the neat conclusion the public so often wants. He believes that media can help people use the perspective history offers as they deal with contemporary problems.

Despite the weighty issues with which his films deal, Henry Hampton remains an optimistic man. He is undeterred by the effects of both childhood polio and of a more-recent cancer. His vision of a just and compassionate future for all Americans fuels his spirit and permeates his work.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

DRUNK DRIVING PREVENTION ACT

HON. BILL K. BREWSTER

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. Speaker, the last decade has witnessed great strides in the battle against drunk driving. The facts speak for themselves: Alcohol-related traffic fatalities in 1993 were 21 percent below the 1990 level. The original drunk driving target for the year 2000 set by the Federal Government was met and exceeded by 19 percent in 1992, and the number of teenage drunk drivers involved in fatal accidents in down 62 percent since 1982.

The reduction in drunk driving is due to an effective comprehensive approach combining sound laws, strict enforcement, even-handed adjudication, education, and treatment. To continue to address the problem and prevent the abuse of beverage alcohol products we must continue a two-pronged effort that ensures strict and consistent law enforcement for those who break the law and education concerning the responsible consumption of beverage alcohol products.

While recognizing that there is certainly still much to be done, the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States [DISCUS], a leader in the beverage alcohol industry and a proponent of responsible initiatives to combat drunk driving, has developed a model State law, the Drunk Driving Prevention Act. The strong provisions contained in this model State legislation will deter and penalize those who drive while under the influence. DISCUS is to be commended for its exemplary effort to build a working partnership at the Federal, State and local community levels in an effort to enact passage of this measure. The Drunk Driving Prevention Act will help ensure that progress continues in the fight to stop alcohol-related fatalities on our Nation's highways.

The following is a synopsis of the act's provisions:

Alcohol and drug education for drivers: Every first-time applicant for a driver's license would complete a mandatory course of instruction that provides alcohol and drug education concerning the effects of consumption of beverage alcohol products; the use of illegal, prescription and nonprescription drugs; the ability to operate a motor vehicle, and the financial and legal consequences of driving while under the influence. The driver's license test would also include written questions on these issues.

Open container: Drivers and passengers would be prohibited from carrying or possessing any beverage alcohol product in the passenger area, except in the original container with the seal unbroken. Partially filled containers must be stored in the trunk or lacking a trunk, in the compartment area least accessible to the driver. This provision does not apply to passengers in chartered buses, taxis, limousines for hire, or motor vehicles with a contract driver.

Administrative license revocation: Administrative license revocation for drivers who refuse to submit to the State's implied consent chemical testing, or who are arrested for the violation of the State's driving while under the influence law prior to court appearance. This provides for the arresting officer to physically take possession of the offender's driver's license and issue a temporary license with a notice of revocation. The driver would then have 15 days to request a hearing. If no hearing was requested, immediate revocation would take effect. Upon the expiration of the revocation period, the party would be eligible to apply for another driver's license upon payment of all applicable fees. It would be unlawful for the individual to drive while his/her license is revoked and for any person to knowingly permit his/her motor vehicle to be driven by an individual with a revoked license.

Tough laws against underage drinking: Administrative license revocation penalties for minors who drive with any measurable and detectable alcohol concentration, or who illegally purchase or possess beverage alcohol products. A minor may not enter premises licensed for the retail sale of beverage alcohol for the purpose of purchasing, being served, or having delivered to him/her any beverage alcohol product. A minor may not consume beverage alcohol on premises licensed for the retail sale of beverage alcohol, may not purchase, attempt to purchase, or have another purchase for him/her any beverage alcohol product, and may not misrepresent or misstate his/her age, or the age of any person, for the purpose of purchasing or having served or delivered to him/her any beverage alcohol product.

Mandatory alcohol and drug testing of drivers involved in fatal motor vehicle accidents: Chemical testing is required of every driver involved in an accident resulting in loss of human life where there exists probable cause to believe that the driver is guilty of violating the State's driving while under the influence law. It would also require the establishment and maintenance of a database of the number of fatal motor vehicle accidents that are alcohol-related with the percentage of alcohol concentration involved, and/or drug-related involvement and list the class of drugs so found and their amount.

Mr. Speaker, there are no easy answers or quick remedies to drunk driving. What is evident, however, is this country would greatly benefit from a cooperative partnership between the U.S. Government, the beverage alcohol industry, and the American public. Let us set aside any differences in our quest for a common goal. We must recognize personal responsibility as the first step toward the ultimate end to drunk driving. Drunk driving is everyone's problem, the solution must be as well.

MURLI DEORA, INDIAN M.P.,
ELECTED PRESIDENT OF PARLIAMENTARIANS FOR GLOBAL ACTION

HON. GARY L. ACKERMAN

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Speaker, earlier this week Parliamentarians for Global Action unanimously elected Murli Deora as its international president. Parliamentarians for Global Action is an association of more than 1,000 legislators from more than 80 countries who are committed to solving global problems in a spirit of cooperation that transcends national and ideological boundaries.

Murli Deora's election to this position marks the first time a parliamentarian from Asia has been voted to head this prestigious organization. It also is a recognition of Murli's many years as a staunch advocate of a strong relationship between the United States and India. Murli has been a key leader in promoting United States-Indo ties while he served as a Member of Parliament representing the financial center of Bombay. Murli has worked diligently both in his capacity as a Member of Parliament and as the chairman of the Congress Party in Bombay to make certain that the economic bonds between the United States and India grow stronger every year. He has offered invaluable advice and assistance to me and many other Members of Congress who share his vision of a vibrant Indo-United States relationship.

Mr. Speaker, India is the world's largest democracy. The United States is not only India's friend and ally, but also its largest trading partner. Therefore, I believe it is entirely appropriate for my colleagues and I to join together in congratulating Murli on this high honor which he so richly deserves. As we move toward the beginning of the 21st century I am certain that the Congress can continue to look to Murli for guidance and leadership as the relationship between the United States and India grows even stronger. He will be a dynamic president of Parliamentarians for Global Action at a time when his creative leadership and expansive vision will be utilized to the fullest. I know every member of this body joins me in wishing him continued success as he undertakes this important new responsibility.

TRIBUTE TO ED MADIGAN

SPEECH OF

HON. CHARLES W. STENHOLM

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 11, 1995

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to the Honorable Ed Madigan. In the Congress, we use the term "honorable" as a matter of decorum and protocol; but when I think of my friend and colleague Ed Madigan, the word "honorable" is truly appropriate.

Having served with Ed since coming to Congress, I invariably found him to be a shining example of decency and civility in an environment that, all too often, can be adversarial and contentious. He was a consensus builder—one who warranted respect on both sides of the aisle as a reliable, sincere, and extremely capable statesman who stood tall and proud on behalf of his fundamental values, his constituents, and his country.

As a fellow member of the House Agriculture Committee, Ed was a joy to work with in developing and deliberating our Nation's agriculture policy. He worked tirelessly on behalf of farmers and ranchers and all that rural America represents. Having earned the respect and admiration for his years of service in Congress, he was suitably appointed to the President's Cabinet as this Nation's 24th Secretary of Agriculture, where he again served with dignity and honor on behalf of the agriculture community and consumers of food and fiber. Without question, Ed has left an indelible legacy and high standard for which all of us should strive to follow.

Although I join the countless many in expressing regret and sorrow for a tremendous loss, I consider us all to be extremely blessed with the opportunity to have known and worked with the Honorable Ed Madigan.

TRIBUTE TO RON ESAU

HON. NORMAN Y. MINETA

OF CALIFORNIA

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. MINETA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in tribute to a dedicated public servant and a personal friend. As Ron Esau retires from his position as general manager of the Santa Clara Water District, in San Jose, CA, this month, he caps a remarkable career as a major water resources force in Santa Clara County. This is a man whose interest in public service is so important to him that he made it his duty for more than half of his life.

Since 1957, Ron Esau has been serving the citizens of Santa Clara County. He first joined the Santa Clara Valley Water District as an assistant civil engineer and has held various posts, including assistant general manager, until appointment to his present position as general manager.

During his 37 years of dedicated service, Ron Esau has been appointed to numerous directorships on water boards across the State including the State Water Contractors, the Central Valley Project Water Association, the California Water Resources Association, the California Urban Water Agencies, the Western Urban Water Coalition, the Bay Policy Board, and others.

Aside from his prestige as a high-ranking water resources and community official, Mr. Esau has also been praised for the substantial contributions he has made as a hard-working volunteer. He is known for the work he has done as a cabinet member of the United Way of Santa Clara County, and for his extensive work with his church.

Despite the water wars that raged in our State for years, Ron Esau has been a voice of reason with an eye to the future for how we work well to develop a reliable water supply for Santa Clara County. One of the greatest strengths Mr. Esau brought to our valley was the need to expand the diversity of our water supply base to deal with the growth of our county and the realities of drought. His thoughtful approach of developing a mix of water supplies led this county through the recent critical drought experience relatively unscathed in a much stronger position than many areas around us. This feat is a testament to his leadership and vision.

Ron Esau is a principled and honest leader and a devoted father and husband. I know that whatever area of endeavor he chooses next, he will excel. I want to wish Ron and Connie and the rest of his family all the best in the future, and thank him for the wonderful achievements and progress he has left for us to remember him by.

HON. WILLIAM F. CLINGER, JR.

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Speaker, official business kept me from the Chamber during the vote on the amendment offered by my colleague from Pennsylvania, Mr. KANJORSKI. Had I been present, I would have voted "no" on rollcall No. 53.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL

HON. JOHN J. LaFALCE

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, I am today introducing the National Commission on Professional Baseball Act of 1995. The legislation creates a temporary regulatory authority to oversee the conduct of professional baseball to assure that our national pastime will remain available and responsive to the American public.

Like all baseball fans, I have found the events of the past year extremely disheartening. We witnessed labor negotiations that focused more on outlandish demands by both owners and players that on tangible objectives, a baseball strike that halted all major league play after August 12 and, for the first time in 90 years, the cancellation of a World Series. Recently, the major league team owners unilaterally imposed a cap on player salaries that could also jeopardize the 1995 baseball season. All these events have taken place behind closed doors, in secret negotiations without representation of, and little apparent regard for, the interests of those who pay the cost of professional baseball—baseball fans and taxpayers.

These events tend to confirm the most negative images of major league baseball in the press as big business dominated by the interests of obstinate team owners and overpaid players. But baseball has always been more than just a business. Last year's PBS special on the history of baseball by Ken Burns offered a timely reminder that baseball is an important American institution and an historic national treasure. For more than 100 years, baseball has been one of the few constants in a changing American society. It has been the measure by which generations of Americans have recalled their past, identified their heroes and defined their values and aspirations.

Today, the values and traditions of baseball are at risk for future generations. In the struggle for financial dominance between major league owners and players, nowhere are the interests of baseball fans represented in any negotiation. Ticket and concession prices are now so high that the Nation's pastime, if available at all locally, is priced out of the reach of growing numbers of American families. Even watching baseball on commercial television, the only way many families now enjoy major league games, could be eliminated if broadcast rights are sold to pay-per-view television.

It is clear that baseball owners and players will continue to look out only for their own needs. But there is a crying need for someone to look out for the interests of fans, of taxpayers and of the communities in which both major league and minor league baseball is played. It is time for Congress to take steps to return baseball to the American people.

The legislation I am introducing today seeks to accomplish this by creating an independent National Commission on Professional Baseball. The Commission would serve as a temporary regulatory body and impartial arbitrator to oversee the conduct of professional baseball until the legal status of major league baseball can be redefined either by negotiation or by congressional legislation. Its purpose is simple—to provide a measure of protection for the interests of baseball fans and taxpayers against the near absolute control over baseball exercised by the major league baseball owners.

Major league baseball is unique among professional sports and American business in the broad exemption it enjoys from legal challenge under the Nation's antitrust laws. Major league team owners have, in effect, the ability to write all their own rules and to impose these rules on the public. No outside regulatory authority, nor any form of internal self-regulatory control, now exists to check this exercise of take-it-or-leave-it market power by major league baseball.

The current player strike is the most obvious result of this unchecked exercise of market power. Where once baseball's antitrust exemption was instrumental in allowing baseball to expand and create playing opportunities, it now encourages labor disputes and deadlock. In every renegotiation of the major league players agreement since 1972—in eight separate negotiations in 22 years—agreement was not reached without either a strike or a lock-out.

But the problems created by the major league's exemption from legal challenge go beyond the labor disputes it fosters between owners and players and its exclusiveness and expense for consumers. There are equally adverse consequences for minor league baseball teams, local governments and taxpayers.

The relationship between major league and minor league baseball teams has become extremely imbalanced, to the extent that minor league teams appear analogous to closely controlled franchises with little independent control or discretion. The key assets of minor league teams—their players, managers, and coaches—are owned and controlled by major league teams, leaving minor league owners with authority to undertake largely financial management and marketing responsibilities for their team. Rights to operate as a minor league team, together with players and coaches, can be revoked for almost any reason, and with little or no recourse.

Major league owners have also learned that by threatening to move a team to another city they can extract hundreds of millions of dollars from local governments to renovate existing ball parks or build extravagant new stadiums. Teams have attracted new fans and generated substantial windfalls in the first few years after moving into new stadiums. Local taxpayers end up paying most of the costs. The major leagues have also required smaller communities to invest substantial sums to renovate playing facilities in order to retain their minor league teams, offering few, if any, guarantees that these teams will not be moved in future years. In my own State of New York, for example, the cost imposed on smaller towns to meet these facility requirements has amounted to nearly $30 million. Once again, the taxpayers pay the bill.

It has become clear that we really need Federal legislation to solve some of the major problems faced by baseball. Since baseball is a national sport and, indeed, is known as our national pastime, I believe Federal legislation is the best way to address this need.

Proposals have been introduced in the House by Representatives MICHAEL BILIRAKIS and JIM TRAFICANT, and in the Senate by Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN, to repeal baseball's antitrust exemption. I fear this may be too simplistic an answer that does not come to grips with the totality of the problems of professional baseball. Repeal would certainly benefit major league players, and perhaps even consumers, if it results in team expansion and lower ticket costs. But it could be extremely disruptive of baseball operations generally and potentially devastating for many minor league teams. To resume play for fans in 28 major league cities could mean losing far more affordable access to baseball for fans in many of the 170 minor league parks across North America.

The major alternative to this approach is incorporated in bills sponsored by Representatives JIM BUNNING and CHARLES SCHUMER and seeks only partial repeal of baseball's exemption to subject labor issues and negotiations to Federal antitrust law. These proposals suffer from the opposite problem of addressing only impediments to resolution of the current players strike while offering little to address the broader problems for baseball fans, local governments and taxpayers, and minor league teams.

The legislation I am introducing today offers a middle ground between these alternatives. It creates a seven-member national commission with representatives of all the principal parties in professional baseball, together with a chairman and two members representing the general public. The commission would serve as a temporary oversight and mediation body that could act immediately to help resolve an impasse between baseball owners and players and also protect the rights and interests of baseball fans, minor league teams, local governments and taxpayers. It would also facilitate a longer term, more thoughtful and balanced approach to resolving the broader problems created by baseball's antitrust exemption.

The legislation does not take a definitive position on the repeal of the antitrust exemption. A major duty of the commission would be to undertake a multi-year study of the antitrust exemption, taking into account all interests and perspectives, and to submit to Congress its findings and any recommendations for legislative remedies. The commission would be required to analyze the major proposals for modifying baseball's antitrust exemption, including total repeal of the exemption, partial repeal for purposes of subjecting labor relations issues to antitrust jurisdiction, and repeal of the exemption with protections to exempt long-standing contractual arrangements between major league and minor league teams from the antitrust laws.

My legislation does take the position that baseball's antitrust exemption is, in effect, a government-granted monopoly in much the same manner as a local public utility or transportation authority. And like any other publicly-sanctioned monopoly, my bill would require public oversight to assure that self-interest is not put above the interests of the public and consumers.

In this regard, the proposed commission would be similar to the Federal Communications Commission, or any other public body with oversight over a restricted industry or market. An important difference, however, is the fact that the authority of the proposed commission is intended to be temporary during a period of deregulation of baseball from the current market restrictions imposed by baseball's current antitrust exemption. Since Federal law has permitted a restricted national market for major league baseball, the Federal Government has both the right and the responsibility to regulate this market, just as we regulate other monopolies, to assure that the public's interests are protected.

The primary purpose of the commission is to provide a forum for public scrutiny over the conduct of professional baseball at both the major league and minor league levels. It would have the authority to investigate many aspects of baseball, including the setting of ticket prices, expansion or relocation of team franchises, terms and conditions of major and minor league player contracts, relationships between major and minor league teams, structural requirements and financing for stadiums, television broadcast rights, and licensing and marketing of baseball merchandise. The commission could intervene in these areas upon a determination that an action or policy is potentially harmful to the public's interests or the best interests of baseball.

The commission also would have authority to conduct binding arbitration in the event of a labor impasse between major league owners and players. It could also provide for mediation or arbitration of disputes between the major leagues and minor league teams owners. In these areas, the legislation accords players and minor league team owners an opportunity to resolve disputes with major league team owners where no means of viable recourse are currently available.

A key power of the commission would be its authority to hold public hearings and to obtain, if necessary through court action, all relevant information and documents needed for its public investigations. Major decisions in baseball that affect baseball fans, teams, and taxpayers are made routinely in complete secrecy without any public representation or disclosure. Major league baseball's financial statements are accorded the status of State secrets. And secrecy and distrust between owners and players have created major barriers to settlement of labor disputes. The commission would lift this veil of secrecy in baseball and permit public disclosure of all relevant information pertaining to actions that affect the public.

The commission would also have authority to issue orders, and to obtain injunctions if necessary, to delay or halt actions or policies by major league team owners until it has had sufficient opportunity to hold public hearings and obtain relevant information.

Finally, the legislation requires that the commission be self-funding through payment of fees by the major league baseball owners. Major league baseball has reaped enormous benefits as a result of its protected market status under Federal antitrust law and has an obligation to pay most of the cost of regulating this market to protect the public's interests. Funding would be in the form of annual fees paid by major league baseball calculated as a fraction-of-a-percentage—.002 percent—of combined annual team revenues. The manner and allocation of these fee payments among major league teams would be determined by the commission after consultation with major league team owners.

Mr. Speaker, the single most important issue of economic policy and legal principle that every Member of Congress must consider is whether baseball owners should retain their unique prerogative to write all the rules of our Nation's pastime themselves. The events of the past year, and the cancellation of the World Series for the first time in 90 years, strongly suggest that major changes are needed.

I am particularly pleased about the recent statements by both President Clinton and Senate Majority Leader DOLE urging the players and owners to reach agreement as quickly as possible. I hope that these and other efforts are successful, and that the strike ends forthwith. But that alone is not enough, or should not be, because history shows that further work stoppages in the future are highly likely to occur. So Congress should act on this whether or not a settlement is reached.

Everyone involved in seeking a solution to this is doing so principally for emotional reasons—reviving our national pastime. But as the President pointed out, there are serious economic consequences as well. Spring training communities will lose $1 million for each canceled game; major league cities will lose $1.2 million and some 2,000 jobs for each canceled game, according to the U.S. Conference of Mayors. This means that the strike has already cost our economy some $2 billion. We must not forget that it isn't just the owners and players who are losing money in this dispute—we are all losing, one way or another.

The many bills that have been introduced demonstrate the wide ideological and geographic extent of the interest in dealing with the baseball crisis. But the complete or partial repeal of the antitrust exemption is too simplistic an answer and will not get to the nub of the problem, which is to protect fans, taxpayers, and communities. My proposal offers a broader alternative. Under my bill, we will have the equivalent of compulsory arbitration to resolve the short-term problems and get major league baseball on the fields once again, followed by an in-depth study of how we can best organize baseball at all levels under conditions that provide future stability for all concerned: players, owners, fans, communities and taxpayers throughout the United States.

I think this is good legislation and sound public policy. I do not expect baseball owners to support my proposal; I do not expect major league players to support it; but I do hope that fans and taxpayers across America will support it, for it is the only proposal designed first and foremost for baseball fans and taxpayers. I urge the Congress to consider this legislation at the earliest opportunity.

BOYS CHOIR OF HARLEM: DOING IT RIGHT FOR 25 YEARS

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to your attention and to the attention of my colleagues here in the House, a group of young men who have been doing it right for the past 25 years.

An outstanding article which appeared in the Daily News, December 11, 1994, speaks of the choir's humble beginnings to the celebrated musical success they take pride in today.

Please enjoy.

QUITE A CHOIR

(By Sharline Chiang)

"Guys, it's pianissimo," the burly choir director bellowed. Then, clapping twice, he ordered: "Don't half do it. It must be right!"

Doing it right. That's what the Boys Choir of Harlem has been specializing in for the past 25 years.

It hasn't always been easy.

"It's been a long process of convincing people—classical purists—that we were real," said Walter Turnbull, choir founder and director.

Evidence of real musicianship and diversity can be found on the choir's first solo album, "The Sound of Hope," which celebrates the group's silver anniversary.

The album, released in October by EastWest Records America, offers everything from pop and R&B to jazz and gospel.

In 25 years, the choir has been turned from a group of rambunctious boys in the basement of Ephesus Church in Central Harlem to a major international attraction.

In 1987, the Choir Academy of Harlem, a satellite of Community School District 5, was born. Today, the academy teaches youngsters ages 8 to 18 and offers a Regents high school program.

More than a year ago the academy moved from a smaller building in Harlem to its first permanent home—the former Intermediate School 201 building at Madison Ave. and 127th St.

Aside from proving itself to critics, keeping the school financially stable through the years has been a challenge, Turnbull said.

Performances for royalty and Presidents alone don't cover the costs of tutors, pianos and more than 100 worldwide tours each year. Ticket revenues cover only half its $2.7 million budget.

Despite generous patrons, cutbacks in city and corporate funding have made some tours impossible.

Nevertheless, as funding shrinks, the number of young people who audition continues to grow. Last year 2,000 hopefuls tried out for 200 seats in music, dance and drama.

The school's population also is growing. Six years ago the choir reinstated its program for girls. Now the choir consists of 300 students.

The 35 to 40 boys who make up the touring choir are chosen from the 150-member concert choir on a rotating basis.

Although more than 90% of the students go on to college, Turnbull said, not everyone reaches graduation day. He loses some students to the lure of the streets.

"It's hard," the director said. "Some you can't reach."

But for many, like 12-year-old Nilelijah Scott, the Boys Choir of Harlem is a sanctuary, a place to get into music and off the streets.

"Instead of hanging out with friends and getting into trouble, I just come here after school and go to rehearsal," said Scott, a two-year veteran soprano and an aspiring accountant. "When you graduate from here, you gain a sense of self-esteem."

Osman Armstrong, 14, sings first alto. A choir member since age 9, his favorite song in the program is Haydn's "Te Deum."

"My mother loves it that I'm here because I get to travel," said Armstrong. "And I'm getting away from the city."

Some graduates, like William Byrd, return.

A Boys Choir assistant conductor and music theory teacher, Byrd, 26, graduated in 1986. After earning his computer science degree from Hunter College next spring, Byrd hopes to attend Westminster Choir College in Princeton, N.J.

"The school helped me home in on my ambitions and skills," Byrd said, "to become my own person."

Looking ahead, Turnbull dreams of helping others set up similar choir schools in major U.S. cities. Music teachers from Houston and Detroit have expressed interest.

But for now, creating an endowment through fund-raising and corporate projects is the Boys Choir's main goal, Turnbull said.

He said an endowment will allow the Boys Choir of Harlem to celebrate the tradition of "doing it right" for another 25 years.

"It's not just about the choir, it's about discipline," he said. "It's about feeling good about yourself—that's hope."

PROPOSING A BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

SPEECH OF

HON. DONALD A. MANZULLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, January 27, 1995

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 1) proposing a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States:

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Chairman, a balanced budget is the best way to ensure the future economic prosperity of the United States. It is a long-term solution to a long-term problem. Congress, over the past 40 years, has been full of big spenders who couldn't restrain their proclivity to spend. A balanced budget limits the powers of Government and brings stability to the budget-making process.

Deficits are not a short-term trend. The Federal Government has run a deficit for 56 of the last 64 years, and the last 24 years in a row. Congress has tried to change its free-spending ways, but countless budget deals have done very little. In the 1920's, Federal spending as a percentage of GNP was 3 percent; in 1940 it was 10 percent; and in 1992 it was 22.4 percent. Eliminating the deficit is one of the most urgent priorities facing the country. We can't begin to tackle our near $5 trillion national debt until the Federal budget runs a surplus. And unless we begin to repay our debt soon, this country will be headed for a deep and prolonged economic crisis.

When it comes to balancing the budget, the deficit is a convenient target for election year attacks. But when it comes to getting re-elected, deficit spending is the key. Why? First, intense pressure for spending tends to override a generalized preference for fiscal restraint and balanced budgets. In the short run, deficit spending is the most painless political option and the path of least resistance. In other words, wasteful spending has a curious appeal to deficit-hostile constituents when it is in their own district. Second, intense pressure for spending tends to override the general, diffused targets of most tax increases. Tax increases are purposely spread out enough so they don't spark a Boston tea party. For Congress, it's easy to tax and easier to spend, making it almost impossible to balance the budget.

Mr. Chairman, a long-term, structural response is needed to reverse a long-term, structural problem. The solution is a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. I don't take this step lightly, but it's one that Thomas Jefferson endorsed. An amendment reestablishes a level playing field, forcing Congress to place higher priority on balancing the budget rather than spending and taxing. It restores the Constitution's goal of limited government.

Some critics of this legislation contend that it will unfairly impact Social Security. Nothing could be further from the truth. These critics say that Social Security is not part of the deficit problem. I agree completely. Social Security is soundly financed and runs a surplus every year. However, a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget does not change Social Security in any way.

Current laws on the books that protect Social Security would not be changed by the amendment. For example, Social Security is exempt from across-the-board budget cuts. The trust fund is already excluded from deficit calculations. The amendment does not change those laws in any way.

Taking Social Security and other worthy problems off-budget under the amendment would open up a loophole to evade the intent of the proposal. It would set a precedent for other Government programs to simply by shifting enough Government programs into off-budget accounts. This would only make matters worse. I'm sure you wouldn't do this with your own check book. That's why I don't want to make an exception for the Government.

In fact, a constitutional amendment to the Constitution requiring a balanced budget is critical to the long-term health of Social Security, forcing Congress to bring the deficit to zero so future politicians will not be tempted to cover our Nation's huge debt with the Social Security surplus set aside for the baby-boomer generation.

Mr. Chairman, since I took office, I have had the courage to consistently vote against wasteful spending over 300 times to cut $175 billion. Unfortunately, most of Congress did not agree. If we do not respond to our long-term problem with a long-term solution, large Federal deficits and low private saving will lead to increasingly costly and precarious dependence on foreign capital, and less investment to modernize and expand the economy. All this will result in smaller gains in productivity and a lower standard of living for our children and grandchildren. Mr. Chairman, Congress must vote for the balanced budget amendment to save future generations from this unconscionable economic burden.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO CONVEY SURPLUS REAL PROPERTY BY SALE AT THE FORT ORD MILITARY COMPLEX

HON. SAM FARR

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing important legislation to convey surplus real property at the former Fort Ord Army reservation, by sale to the city of Seaside, CA. This legislation would, among other things, help implement the 1993 recommendation of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. In the Commission's 1993 report to the President, the Commission made specific recommendations for parcels of property to be disposed of by the Department of the Army, while recognizing the unique needs for supporting the military personnel remaining on the Monterey Peninsula. Specifically, the Commission directed the Department to dispose of all property, including the golf courses, not required to support the Presidio of Monterey and the Naval Postgraduate School. Accordingly, in 1993, the Acting Secretary of the Army decided to sell the two Fort Ord golf courses to the city of Seaside, CA.

Unfortunately, the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act does not permit the Commission to take into account the nonappropriated fund revenue needs which are supported by the golf course revenues. Accordingly, this legislation would address that need by allowing funds received by the Army for the sale of the golf courses to be deposited into the Army morale, welfare, and recreation account.

The sale of the two Fort Ord golf courses to the city of Seaside is in accord with the Fort Ord preferred reuse alternative prepared by the federally recognized local redevelopment authority, the Fort Ord Reuse Authority [FORA]. As such, the Seaside purchase of the two Fort Ord golf courses will implement the community redevelopment plan as endorsed by S.B. 899, the State of California legislation creating the Fort Ord Reuse Authority.

The legislation conveys approximately 477 acres, which consists of the two Fort Ord golf courses, Black Horse and Bayonet, and the surplus Hayes housing facilities which have been excessed and appropriately screened according to the Pryor process. The city of Seaside will be required to pay fair market value for the property. The legislation directs the proceeds from the sale of the golf courses to be deposited in the Department of the Army morale, welfare and recreation fund, and the proceeds from the sale of the housing into the DOD BRAC account.

In the 103d Congress I authored legislation to convey certain surplus real property at Fort Ord to the California State University, and the University of California, the centerpieces of the community revitalization strategy. The legislation I am introducing today is another step in the community development reuse plan which is now falling into place. A single local governing entity has been formed, the 21st campus of the California State University is about to open, the BLM land at Fort Ord is being cleaned up by AmeriCorps participants, and the University of California's Science, Technology, Education, Policy Center is attracting investors.

My legislation will move the process forward again by assisting the Army in divesting itself of the golf courses vis-a-vis the 1993 BRAC recommendation, at the same time it helps foster economic development in the city of Seaside, which has been adversely impacted by the closure of Fort Ord.

FIRST-TIME HOMEBUYER AFFORDABILITY ACT

HON. BILL ORTON

OF UTAH

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. ORTON. Mr. Speaker, today I am re-introducing my First-time Homebuyer Affordability Act of 1995. I would like to take this opportunity to explain the need for this legislation and to summarize its provisions.

Study after study has demonstrated that the most significant barrier to home ownership in this country is the high level of downpayment generally required to secure approval of a mortgage loan. Yet, because of our current tax laws, the $850 billion currently invested in individual retirement accounts [IRA's] is effectively precluded from being used for such downpayment purposes, either directly by a homebuyer or through a parental loan. I believe we must change our IRA tax laws to dynamically open up these funds to promote home ownership.

The First-time Homebuyer Affordability Act accomplishes this objective. It is substantially identical to legislation I introduced in both the 102d and 103d Congress. Last year's bill, H.R. 1149, was a bipartisan effort, with 28 cosponsors, about equally split between Republicans and Democrats. H.R. 1149 was formally endorsed last year by both the National Association of Home Builders and the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

First, let me explain the need for this legislation. Current IRA statutes prohibit an IRA account holder from engaging in a number of prohibited transactions, including loans to family members and use of one's own IRA funds for personal use. If anyone uses IRA funds for a prohibited transaction, the penalties are severe. The money that is used is subjected to full Federal and State income taxes. In addition, a 10-percent premature withdrawal or distribution penalty is assessed on the amount withdrawn. Combined, an IRA account holder may be forced to pay over 50 percent of the amount withdrawn in taxes and penalties. The result is that under current law, individuals are effectively precluded from using IRA funds to make a downpayment to buy a home.

My legislation overcomes this barrier by providing a targeted exemption from prohibited transaction rules to allow individuals to access IRA accounts to make a downpayment on a first-time home purchase. By structuring the use of funds as an economic transaction entered into by a self-directed IRA account, the tax and premature withdrawal penalties are avoided—resulting in a substantial savings to the homebuyer. By eliminating barriers to the use of IRA funds, this change would have a significant impact in increasing homeownership. Finally, this approach is prosavings. By structuring use of IRA funds as an economic transaction within an IRA, the moneys used to buy a home are eventually restored to the IRA, available for continued tax-deferred reinvestment.

Specifically, my bill: One, permits individuals to borrow money from their own IRA account to make all or part of a downpayment for a first-time home purchase of a primary residence. This is similar to loans permitted from one's 401(k) account; two, permits parents to lend money within their IRA account to their children for use as a downpayment on a first-time home purchase of a primary residence, and three, permits the transactions permitted in one and two above to be structured as an equity investment; that is, a home equity participation agreement.

IRA account holders are currently permitted to invest in a Ginnie Mae mutual fund, which consists of thousands and thousands of single family mortgages—on other people's homes. However, IRA funds may not be used to pay for or finance your own home, nor for the home of a family member. In other words, your IRA account can be used for the purchase of any home in the country except your own home or the home of a family member.

This policy is unfair, anti-home-ownership, and antifamily.

Moreover, consider the purpose of IRA's. IRA's are intended to promote long-term productive investments to provide a nest egg for retirees. Historical studies have shown that one's home is generally the largest and most important asset people have. It is probably also the best investment they will ever make. Shouldn't IRA funds be available for this important purpose?

Consider, finally, that we do permit individuals to borrow from their 401(k) retirement accounts to purchase a home. A 401(k) plan is nothing more than a self-directed retirement plan—in much the same way an IRA account is. If we allow people to borrow money from a 401(k) plan for this purpose, shouldn't we also allow borrowing from an IRA account?

I believe we should. My legislation allows this to be done in a flexible, but responsible manner. My bill allows 100 percent of the funds in one's IRA account to be used for a first-time home purchase, structured either as a loan or an equity sharing investment.

Under my bill, IRA advances structured as a loan may be flexible. Any loan from an IRA can be for a term of up to 15 years. The loan may be interest only—no principal amortization. And, interest on the loan may be deferred until repayment of the loan. These two options increase flexibility with respect to cash flow. Finally, the loan may be unsecured or may be secured—typically by a second lien on the home. This increases flexibility with respect to second mortgage limitations typically imposed by secondary market mortgage lenders like Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

IRA advances structured as an equity sharing agreement are intended to mirror current free market practices, in which homebuyers give up part of the appreciation of value of their home in return for vital down payment assistance. To preserve the concept of having the IRA engage in economic transactions, my bill requires that equity sharing arrangements be structured under terms similar to those made in arms-length transactions.

While flexible, the bill is also structured in a careful, targeted manner. The public policy purpose of the bill is to promote entry into the housing market. Therefore, the home buyer must be a first-time home buyer. In addition, the home purchase must be a principal residence. Finally, the loan or equity investment must be repaid upon the sale of the home.

My bill also contains provisions to prevent self-dealing or tax-gaming. For example, the interest rate on the loan must be no less than 200 basis points below and not more than 200 basis points above comparable Treasury rates. In this way, the IRA earns at least a fair rate of return, but individuals cannot funnel excessive tax-deferred funds into an account. Perhaps most importantly, my bill provides that forgiveness or default on loan or equity repayment subjects an IRA to premature distribution treatment—making the funds subject to tax and withdrawal penalty. This effectively prevents individuals or parents from converting IRA funds tax-free to personal use through a fabricated default.

Finally, I would like to compare this approach to the so-called penalty waiver approach. This approach was included in H.R. 4210, a major tax bill approved in the 102d Congress, but vetoed by the President. The penalty waiver provision was also included in the super-IRA bills introduced last year by Senator ROTH in the Senate and Representatives THOMAS and Pickle in the House. Many Members of both the House and Senate have introduced legislation incorporating this concept.

Quite simply, the penalty waiver approach provides for a waiver of the 10-percent penalty on premature IRA withdrawals for certain identified purposes. Typically, qualified purposes in legislative proposals include first-time home purchase, higher education expenses, and emergency medical bills.

Clearly, adoption of this type of proposal would make it easier to access IRA's for these purposes. However, penalty waiver advocates generally fail to emphasize that the IRA account holder would still owe Federal and State income taxes. At best, a penalty waiver would marginally reduce the huge disincentive against using IRA funds to buy a home.

Let me illustrate this point. Take a hypothetical case in which a young couple plans on buying a house, requiring a downpayment of $10,000. Let's assume the couple's sole source of long-term savings is the $10,000 they have in their IRA account. Let's also assume that this couple is in a marginal 28 percent Federal tax bracket, and a 6-percent marginal State tax bracket. Even under a penalty waiver approach, this couple would still forfeit almost one-third of the amount in their IRA account to State and Federal taxes. Moreover, they would have less than $7,000 left to invest, not enough to make the required downpayment. In contrast, under my legislation, the couple could lend themselves all of the $10,000, with no tax or penalty consequences.

This difference is especially important when considering parental loans. It is true that certain penalty waiver proposals permit parental withdrawals to assist their children with a downpayment. But I think it would be a very rare case in which a parent would be willing to take $10,000 from their IRA account, suffering an unnecessary tax of from $3,000 to $4,000, to assist their children with a downpayment.

Thus, a penalty waiver sounds like a good public policy change. However, in practice, it would have only a marginal impact—reducing one's tax penalty by only around 20 percent of the amount otherwise owed. This incentive will induce relatively few people to actually take money out of their account to buy a house, compared to current law. As a result, it will produce a very small increase in the level of homeownership in this country.

We need to do more to access IRA funds for home ownership. Adoption of the First-time Homebuyer Affordability Act would make it much easier for many Americans struggling to meet downpayment requirements and enter the housing market. I would welcome cosponsors for this bill, and urge its consideration in the House.

PROPOSING A BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

SPEECH OF

HON. JACK QUINN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, January 26, 1995

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.J. Res. 1) proposing a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States:

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong agreement with my colleague from New York, Congressman JERRY SOLOMON, who yesterday called the balanced budget amendment, "the most important matter the House will address during the 104th Congress."

The important thing to remember today is that I am here at the request of my constituents who overwhelmingly support this historic legislation.

As an advocate of fiscal responsibility, I have been fighting for a balanced budget amendment since I ran for Congress more than 2 years ago.

Implicit in this legislation is a measure to require that a balanced budget is achieved without touching the Social Security trust fund. We must leave Social Security alone.

Time and time again, Congress has failed to summon up the courage to attack spending. This constitutional amendment makes courage the law and forces us to get our financial house in order.

In addition to the balanced budget amendment, we also need the line-item veto and legislation prohibiting unfunded mandates. By enacting all of these proposals, we can help reduce the deficit and make a start on balancing the budget.

I supported the Barton substitute with the three-fifths tax limitation provision because I think it is the best approach to make it as difficult as possible to raise taxes to balance the budget. Raising taxes simply lifts the burden off of Congress and places it on the backs of hard-working, American taxpayers.

As the Hamburg town supervisor, I was required by law and by my constituents to balance the town budget each and every year. The American people are calling on us to balance the Federal budget, and we can respond with this law requiring us to do just that.

Local governments are forced to balance their budget. State governments are forced to balance their budget. Yet the Federal Government has failed to balance the budget since the Johnson administration.

We must always keep in mind that we are the representatives of the people. As such, we must listen to the voices of Americans. Their voices are loud and clear. Pass the balanced budget amendment.

TRIBUTE TO MARC HAKEN

HON. NITA M. LOWEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a man whose contributions to his community speak volumes for the ability of one human being to have a positive impact on the lives of others. In a time when individuals seem to be focusing increasingly on their own welfare, Marc Haken, who already has made significant contributions to the Queens community as a teacher and community activist, has discovered yet another way to have a profound impact on his fellow New Yorkers.

For the last 3 years, Marc has made at least 1 monthly donation to the Queens Library Foundation's Buy-a-Book program to help expand the library's collection. You see, Marc learned at a young age that the ability and desire to read opens the door to a world of ideas and opportunities. The 37 books that Marc has donated to this point, each dedicated to a deserving individual, will enrich the lives of Queens residents for years to come, leaving behind a legacy of commitment to community in which we can all share. I hope it serves as an example to others.

Mr. Speaker, I'm inserting into the RECORD a January 8, 1995, article published in the Queens Library newsletter which elaborates on the meaningful contributions made by this fine citizen:

COMMUNITY LEADER CHAMPIONS BUY-A-BOOK CAMPAIGN

Contributing to the Queens Library Foundation's Buy-a-Book program has become something of an obsession for Marc Haken. Since first learning about the opportunity to put new books into the Library's collection through Buy-a-Book, Mr. Haken, a teacher, community activist and lifelong Queens resident, has been the program's most enthusiastic supporter. Each month for the past two years, he has faithfully contributed at least one $25 donation to purchase a book. In all, his donations have enabled the Library to acquire 37 new books—books that Queens Library would otherwise have been unable to offer.

While some might consider his generosity unusual or excessive, Mr. Haken knows well the great value of books and libraries, and believes that contributing to Buy-a-Book is the last he can do to repay the Library which helped make him a success. As a junior high school teacher, vice chair of Community Board 8, president of a housing association, political lobbyist and member of countless community organizations, Mr. Haken leads a full and contented life. However, he realizes that if Queens Library's limitless resources had not been available to him as a child, his life may have taken a much different course.

"It's frightening to think back on it today, but I almost slipped through elementary school without learning to read," Mr. Haken said. "Thankfully, my sixth grade teacher recognized the problem and insisted that I begin learning to read and taking my education seriously." That was just the push Mr. Haken needed. Each day following school, he walked directly to Queens Library's Central Library, then located on Parsons Boulevard, and spent all afternoon devouring books, determine to compensate for lost time.

"I wasn't even concerned with subject matter at the time, I only wanted to improve my reading skills," Mr. Haken related. "I'd simply pick a shelf in the library and return every day until I'd read every book on that shelf. Somewhere in the process, I began appreciating all the wonders of reading. I realized my mind was opening and new worlds were presenting themselves."

Mr. Haken believes that the voracious appetite he developed for reading led directly to his desire to teach, and his commitment to community service. He considers himself fortunate to have built a rich and satisfying life, and feels that he can best express his gratitude by providing opportunities for others, particularly young people.

The Buy-a-Book program, he said, offers a simple but ideal way for him to have a meaningful impact in the community. "I'm not a wealthy guy financially. I don't have the means to donate thousands of dollars. The beauty of this program is that for $25, I can give a gift that will last for years and enrich the minds of dozens, maybe hundreds of people. Surely I can find $25 for that."

Mr. Haken also enjoys the fact that Buy-a-Book contributors are invited to dedicate each donated book, with an inscription inside the bookcover, to a person of their choice. "I've found that people are absolutely thrilled to be recognized in this way. They consider it a wonderful gesture," he said. "One young man to whom I dedicated a book continually visits the Library just to see the book and ensure that it's in good condition."

For the first 20 or so books, deciding who to honor was simple: his sister Clair, colleagues, neighbors, and the memory of his parents and other relatives who have passed away. Having donated 37 books at this point, he has been forced to become more inventive in conceiving dedications. "For my last book," he laughed, "I simply drew a blank, so I figured why not pay tribute to myself."

That, certainly, was an indulgence he richly deserved.

To become a Buy-a-Book donor, send a check payable to Queens Library Foundation to: Queens Library Foundation, 89-11 Merrick Boulevard, Jamaica, NY, 11432. Donors may indicate the name of the person to whom they wish to dedicate the book and the branch library or Central Library division where they would like the book to be shelved. For more information, call the Queens Library Foundation at (718) 990-0849.

IN HONOR OF REV. ARNOLD MCKINNEY

HON. JACK KINGSTON

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor Rev. Arnold McKinney. Reverend McKinney is the pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church in Waycross, GA. He has made many contributions not only in his capacity as a Baptist minister, but also as a concerned citizen. Reverend McKinney is a teacher, husband, and father, and his accomplishments are being honored this Friday by the members of his church and community.

Reverend McKinney received the Benjamin E. Mays Fellowship to attend theological training at the Morehouse School of Religion/Interdenominational Theological Center. Before attending seminary, he served for several years as associate dean of students at Middlebury College where he received his undergraduate degree.

Reverend McKinney's commitment goes beyond Waycross, GA. He is an active participant across the entire State, and serves on a variety of boards and organizations that are aimed at improving the lives of children and families. Currently, he serves as vice president of the General Missionary Baptist Convention, Inc., the State's largest organization of African-Americans who are active in ministerial training, community service, christian education, and home and foreign missions. He also serves on the boards of the Maternal and Child Health Institute, Ware County Health Coalition, and the Southern Governor's Ecumenical Council on Infant Mortality. He has served on the Governor's Special Council on Family Planning, the Governor's Commission on Children and Youth, the Grady Hospital Board of Visitors, and the Georgia Welfare Reform Taskforce.

Reverend McKinney frequently lectures on Christian education and holds workshops on church organization and leadership. He is a great leader, husband, and father, and I am proud to have such a devoted individual living in the First Congressional District of Georgia.

FEDERAL POLICIES ON CITIES AND STATES WITH RESPECT TO THE PROBLEM OF POVERTY

HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Speaker, fixing a broken welfare system is one of the most significant challenges this Congress will face. As a newly-elected Member of Congress, I come to Washington with a background in city government. As a former councilmember and former vice-chair of the National League of Cities Task Force on Federal Policy and Family Policy, I am intimately familiar with effects that Federal policies have on cities and States as they grapple with the problem of poverty.

I am deeply concerned that sweeping budget and block grant proposals before the new Congress will have devastating long-term consequences for children and families as well as for the Nation's cities. Mr. Speaker, as you well know, welfare reform is fundamentally a children's issue as two-thirds of recipients are children—70 percent in Texas. In my district alone, 51,957 children are living in poverty with 35 percent of these children being under 18 years of age. In fact, of all 435 congressional districts, mine ranks 30th for the number of poor children.

Proposals which would convert welfare [AFDC], food stamps, SSI disability, or other survival programs for children and families into block grants to States would strip these programs of their entitlement status and thereby strip State and local governments of their ability to respond to increasing needs. In entitlement programs, more Federal money flows into cities through AFDC, food stamps, and SSI disability programs. This automatic influx of Federal funds designed to meet the increased need to meet the needs of our communities would cease under the block grant. Cities and States would be left holding the bag in the almost inevitable event that recession hits again and caseloads rise.

The Department of Health and Human Services has found that if these proposals were implemented, today, some 5 million children would be denied benefits. Interestingly enough, while the Personal Responsibility Act suggests orphanages and foster homes as the solution to families that cannot care for their children, it falls far short when it comes to funding these facilities. Under the Personal Responsibility Act, of the 541,000 children who are currently receiving AFDC benefits in Texas, 288,000 would be denied benefits and only 310 federal orphanage slots would be funded.

Furthermore, the USDA has recently calculated that the Personal Responsibility Act would decrease funding for USDA food assistance programs in Texas by over $1 billion per year. That is a cut of almost one-third from current levels of funding.

Despite some claims to the contrary, the facts show that the vast majority of AFDC families are clearly not having additional children to increase their benefits. In Texas, nearly 72 percent of AFDC families have only one or two children. The national average is even higher—73 percent. Others claim that most poor people are not, and choose not to be, employed. The facts, again, prove otherwise. The vast majority of poor Americans—four out of five—are children, elderly, ill or disabled, or already working full- or part-time at below-poverty wages. And for those who are not employed, they are not alone. More than 7 million Americans from all walks of life were out of work and actively looking for jobs by the end of 1994. Another 4.8 million either were working part-time because they could not find full-time jobs, or had grown too discouraged to continue searching. The truth of the matter is, adults, and particularly family heads, want to work. However, as in the children's game of musical chairs, there simply are not enough seats for everyone.

An effective welfare reform effort must include major new investments in real job creation. The bottom line is that work should pay and working more should pay more. Full-time work should provide enough earnings combined with earnings supplements such as an expanded Earned Income Tax Credit [EITC] to help get families out of poverty. Individuals who can work should have access to full-time work and community service jobs should be offered as a last resort to those who, after an aggressive job search, still cannot find work in the regular economy.

Sufficient funds must also be invested in child care, if we are truly committed to finding gainful employment for the poor. A survey of Illinois AFDC recipients found that child care problems kept 42 percent of those surveyed from working full-time—and 39 percent reported that child care problems kept them from going to school. These results should not be surprising. Census Bureau data tells us that non-poor families spend an average of 6 percent of their income on child care, while low-income parents are forced to pay roughly a quarter of their income for child care. Effective welfare reform must address these significant impediments to employment.

In addition, for welfare reform to succeed, families must be guaranteed comprehensive health insurance that they cannot lose. Lack of decent health insurance in low-wage employment is a major barrier for recipients who are trying to leave welfare for work, but are legitimately concerned about their own health, and that of their children.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you to consider what will happen to children and families if cities and States exhaust their Federal funding under these circumstances. Children facing imminent danger of abuse or neglect could be placed on waiting list instead of being removed immediately from their homes. Needy mothers and children might be turned away from a county or city welfare office simply because AFDC funds for that month or year already had been spent. Or in the best-care scenario for children and families, cities and States would be forced to pay 100 percent of the costs of continuing aid to eligible families after Federal funds run out. And of course the States would have to deal with the human suffering, social problems, and costs of emergency services that will result from greater destitution among children and families.

All of you know that eliminating the entitlement status of these key child survival programs will not cause the needs of poor children to disappear. The consequences of pending block grant proposals are all the more troubling because they are likely to be accompanied by new responsibilities placed on States and countries that will deny basic cash assistance to as many as 5 to 6 million needy children, including up to two-thirds of all children now receiving AFDC. Children born to unmarried teenage mothers, those for whom paternity has not been established, and those whose parents have received AFDC for more than 5 years could lose all benefits under this welfare reform proposal.

This is not genuine welfare reform, but rather welfare punishment. What many congressional leaders are calling welfare reform, many children will call empty stomachs * * * and Texas will call a fiscal disaster. Genuine reform would be lifting poor children and families out of poverty and by creating real jobs, providing quality child care, good health care, expanding education and training, and strengthening child support enforcement—taking the tough and sometimes costly, but nonetheless necessary, steps to make the system work in the long-term for poor families and for all Americans.

C-17'S READY TO TACKLE THE WORLD

HON. STEPHEN HORN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I am very proud to announce to my colleagues that the United States has a military force projection capability today that is unprecedented in the history of airlift.

The reason for this unparalleled capability is simple. The U.S. Air Force's first C-17 Globemaster III squadron at Charleston Air Force Base, SC, was declared operational a week ago. This is the first major step in overhauling America's ability to carry out the Air Force's Global Reach missions.

This event is all the more significant to me, since this great milestone is really a tribute to the over 10,000 employees at McDonnell Douglas in Long Beach, most of whom I represent in these Chambers and whose magnificent efforts have been essential to making the C-17 the best, most capable airlifter ever built.

Critically needed oversized equipment for humanitarian aid, such as water purification systems, can now be airlifted to previously inaccessible runways in remote areas of the world. America's ability to airlift heavy, oversized combat equipment and firepower into short, austere airfields to support U.S. and allied ground forces during a security crisis is now a reality. It is essential that equipment be delivered directly to the troops in the field, and because of the C-17's unique on-load/off-load capability, it now can be.

The declaration of initial operational capability means that the C-17 has passed all flight tests and is ready for any type of military or humanitarian mission. The 12 aircraft will be shared by the 17th Airlift Squadron, assigned to the 437th Airlift Wing, and the Air Force Reserve's 317th Airlift Squadron, assigned to the 315th Airlift Wing, both at Charleston.

All of you who joined last year in supporting the amendment I introduced along with my colleague and neighbor, Representative JANE HARMAN—to provide full funding for the President's request for the C-17—can take pride in your vote and in your role toward providing this essential airlift capability. The C-17 is the most flexible, most capable airlifter ever produced. Its entry into fully operational status is an important landmark which will benefit our troops in the field and those in need throughout the world for years to come.

At this point in the record, I would like to include an article, "C-17s Ready to Tackle the World," from the January 18 Long Beach Press-Telegram and news releases by the Department of Defense and Air Mobility Command about this historic declaration.

[From the Long Beach (CA) Press-Telegram, Jan. 18, 1995]

C-17S READY TO TACKLE THE WORLD

(By Lindsay Chaney)

LONG BEACH.—The U.S. Air Force on Tuesday declared its squadron of a dozen C-17 transports ready for worldwide service.

The declaration of "Initial Operation Capability" means that the C-17 has passed all flight tests and is ready for any type of military or humanitarian mission.

Also Tuesday, McDonnell Douglas delivered a 13th plane to the Air Force.

The C-17 will be operated by the 17th Squadron of the 437th Airlift Wing, based at Charleston Air Force Base in South Carolina.

Built by McDonnell Douglas in Long Beach, the C-17 is designed as a three-in-one airplane to replace the aging C-141 Starlifter fleet as the military's core transport plane. The C-17 can carry twice the payload of a C-141, but more importantly can carry oversized equipment such as tanks, helicopters and missile batteries, such as the C-5 Galaxy. Like the much smaller C-130 Hercules, it can also take off and land at small airstrips.

Its contract with the Air Force required McDonnell Douglas to have 12 operational C-17s delivered to the Charleston wing by midnight New Year's Eve. The 12th plane was delivered to the Air Force on Dec. 22, but because an earlier plane was being modified, this made only 11 operational planes on the flight line at Charleston.

Modification crews began working around the clock after Christmas to meet the delivery deadline and finished on the afternoon of Dec. 31. The Air Force accepted delivery of the modified plane at 6:25 p.m.

Because of past problems with cost overruns and production delays, the C-17 program is on probation with the Department of Defense. The government has committed to buying 40 planes, and will make a decision in November whether to order up to an additional 80. An important consideration in making the decision will be how well the C-17 performs this July during a 30-day test called a "reliability, maintainability and availability" evaluation.

FIRST C-17 SQUADRON DECLARED OPERATIONAL

The commander of the Air Force's Air Mobility Command declared the Initial Operational Capability (IOC) of the first C-17 Globemaster III squadron today. Gen. Robert L. Rutherford's decision is a significant milestone for America's newest airlifter. It means the 17th Airlift Squadron, assigned to the 437th Airlift Wing, and the Air Force Reserve's 317th Airlift Squadron, assigned to the 315th Airlift Wing, both at Charleston Air Force Base, S.C., will officially begin flying operational AMC "Global Reach" missions.

The first C-17 arrived at Charleston AFB in June 1993. By December 1994, the 437th was fully equipped with a fleet of 12 aircraft and 48 crews. The 12 aircraft will be shared with the Air Force Reserve unit. Together, both active duty and reserve aircrews have already demonstrated the C-17's ability to airlift personnel and equipment with missions to Southwest Asia, Central America and the Caribbean basin.

IOC declaration is a major step in modernizing the nation's strategic airlift fleet. The C-17, designed to replace the aging C-141 Starlifter fleet as the nation's core airlift aircraft, combines the best features of older airlifters within a single airframe. The C-17 is about the size of the C-141, but can carry twice the Starlifter's payload. It can also carry outsized equipment strategic distances like the C-5 Galaxy, yet land on airstrips normally accessible only to the C-130 Hercules.

Built by McDonnell Douglas at Long Beach, Calif., the C-17 can carry 160,000 pounds of cargo, unrefueled, 2,400 nautical miles at a cruise speed of 450 knots. With a maximum payload of 169,000 pounds, the aircraft is designed to carry every air transportable piece of equipment in the U.S. Army inventory, from Patriot air defense missile batteries and Bradley fighting vehicles to M1A1 Abrams main battle tanks.

The C-17 can be aerial refueled, land on airstrips as short as 3,000 feet, back up, rapidly offload cargo, and is designed to airdrop equipment, cargo or paratroopers. The aircraft completed developmental testing of these capabilities on Dec. 16, 1994. During these tests, the C-17 set 21 world performance records in three weight classes of the heavy aircraft category and one additional world record in the short takeoff and landing category.

The Air Force has contracted to buy 40 C-17s from McDonnell Douglas. A Defense Acquisition Board decision on extending the buy beyond 40 aircraft is scheduled for November 1995.

FIRST C-17 SQUADRON DECLARED OPERATIONAL

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, IL.—The commander of Air Mobility Command declared the Initial Operational Capability of the Air Force's first C-17 squadron today. Gen. Robert L. It means the 17th Airlift Squadron, assigned to the 437th Airlift Wing at Charleston AFB, S.C., and the Air Force Reserve's 317th Airlift Squadron, assigned to the 315th Airlift Wing (Associate), will officially begin flying operational AMC "Global Reach" missions.

The first C-17 arrived at Charleston in June 1993. By December 1994 the unit was fully equipped with a fleet of 12 aircraft and 48 crews. Together, both active duty and associate reserve aircrews have already demonstrated the C-17's ability to airlift personnel and equipment with missions to Southwest Asia, Central America and the Caribbean basin.

The Air Force has contracted to buy 40 C-17s from McDonnell Douglas. A Defense Acquisition Board decision on extending the buy beyond 40 is scheduled for November 1995. Based on demonstrated improvements in aircraft and contractor performance, a favorable decision is expected, thus fulfilling America's requirement for strategic airlift.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF LEGISLATION TO AMEND THE FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT

HON. NORMAN D. DICKS

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to introduce legislation today which will make small changes in the current Federal Advisory Committee Act [FACA] statute, but will have significant and important consequences for those the bill is intended to provide relief.

Specifically, my bill will limit the application of FACA with regard to meetings held Federal officials and representatives of State, county, local governments, and Indian tribes. This will enable Federal representatives to proceed with legitimate contact with local governmental officials and tribes for purposes of implementing cooperative programs such as the President's forest plan.

In the Pacific Northwest, we have been moving forward diligently in an effort to implement the President's forest plan, particularly with regard to economic assistance to dislocated workers, businesses, and timber-dependent communities. The Northwest was hit very hard by the listing of the northern spotted owl as a threatened species. The owl's listing and subsequent injunctive relief ordered by the courts reduced harvest levels in the region on Federal lands by over 80 percent.

The $1.2 billion promised through the forest plan is a key means to mitigate for job losses, mill closures, and associated impacts from reductions in timber harvest. However, in order to ensure that the forest plan's economic assistance reaches those individuals and communities it is intended to reach, there must be involvement by local and county officials in the planning process for these funds.

Currently, an unintended consequence of FACA is that it makes it difficult for Federal officials to meet with local governmental officials and tribes to plan for the dissemination of economic assistance. However, the FACA problem isn't simply limited to the use of the economic assistance, it also creates problems for elements of the plan such as adaptive management areas, which hinge on local and community input in order to be effective.

Numerous States and counties in the West have expressed concern with the current FACA law, and its unintended prohibition of official contact between Federal officials and legitimate representatives of tribes and local governments. Concern never intended FACA to prohibit legitimate and appropriate contact in order to carry out Federal objectives that require interaction at the State and local levels.

These changes will make FACA more reasonable, tolerant, and palatable. The bill will help ensure the smooth implementation of the President's forest plan, but will also aide other States who have similarly expressed concerns with the current FACA statute.

I urge my colleagues support for this important legislation.

NUCLEAR TERRORISM JURISDICTION EXTENSION AND CONTROL ACT, H.R. 730

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, today, I introduce another in a series of legislative proposals intended to strengthen America's defenses against the terrorist threat. I am particularly pleased to introduce the Nuclear Terrorism Jurisdictional Extension and Control Act of 1995, H.R. 730.

This bill is an important step in our Nation's continuing and aggressive battle against international terrorism. It is especially important as relates to the latest and most alarming possibility, the nuclear terrorist threat.

Since the collapse of the former Soviet Union, we are all familiar with the many news reports of that region, and in Europe on the possible black market sale of cold war missile nuclear material. The most recent account involved the arrests of smugglers and the seizure of almost three kilograms—6.6 pounds—of highly enriched uranium in the Czech Republic last December. This is a new challenge that cannot be ignored by either our allies in the region, or ourselves.

The serious threat these new black market nuclear material sales pose, especially when made by common criminals, or organized crime figures from the former Soviet Union, possibly even to terrorists, or other unsavory individuals, is something to be taken seriously.

We, here in the United States must act now, in order to be prepared for this new and possibly deadly nuclear challenge, before it is too late. We need to give our U.S. law enforcement agencies all the tools and authority they will need to fight this emerging new nuclear material criminal threat.

The American law enforcement community needs new tools and statutory authority, especially following the collapse of the Soviet Union and the long-established strict state nuclear material controls, which once existed in the region. Controls and nuclear material stability, which today we can no longer take for granted or count on in many instances. The chances for trafficking in these nuclear materials is much greater today in light of these developments and the breakdown in traditional controls and state security arrangements in the region.

While there is no need to panic, we must be prepared to act responsibly to insure that the United States can meet any nuclear material criminal threat, especially from terrorists, if one were to materialize. I note that the Secretary of State Mr. Christopher himself in an interview with the Washington Times on January 17, 1995, addressed some of the concerns over the nuclear material problem in the former Soviet Union, and the terrorist threat. While noting that the military facilities in the region maybe relatively safe from nuclear proliferation problems, unlike civilian laboratories, he went on to say "That's a problem for the entire world. It's a problem that we focus on in Russia because it has a great deal of this nuclear material."

Accordingly, we must review and revise our own criminal laws directed at the threat from the newest nuclear proliferation, especially in this unstable black market criminal climate in Eastern Europe today, where everything and anything, may be for sale. We must meet these new circumstances and challenges, many have not anticipated, nor even scarcely envisioned, just a few years ago.

After review it is evident to me and others that there are some loopholes in U.S. criminal laws in this area that must be closed as soon as possible. In order to be prepared for such a new and more deadly threat, which no one could ever have imagined before the end of the cold war, we must act now and have our Federal criminal laws meet the new challenges.

The bill I am introducing today, starts the process. It makes needed changes to help address this whole unanticipated new area of the criminal law and activity involving the unauthorized trade in dangerous nuclear materials for criminal purposes, including possible terrorism.

This criminal threat, including this new phenomena of black market dealings in dangerous nuclear materials, requires even greater cooperation and international efforts by our law enforcement agencies in this post-cold-war era. Law enforcement both here and abroad, must be given the tools and authority in this new area of the criminal law to do the job, and protect all our citizens, whether at home or while they are abroad from a new nuclear threat.

The bill I am introducing today provides the Attorney General and the FBI the necessary long arm jurisdiction to reach nuclear based crimes targeted against Americans anywhere in the world if the victim is the U.S. Government, an American citizen, or an American company; or alternatively, if those committing the offense are either U.S. citizens or U.S. companies, they are covered as well. The location of the offense in such circumstances anywhere in the world should not be a bar to U.S. jurisdiction over these crimes that may well threaten international stability and order today. The threat in such cases justifies this extraordinary criminal remedy.

The bill also adds new forms of nuclear material to the coverage of our criminal laws as relates to prohibited transactions in explosives and dangerous materials, particularly nuclear byproduct material. It closes any possible loopholes under which those black market criminals might claim protection under U.S. law with regard to these dangerous nuclear materials, for example byproduct materials, including certain radioactive isotopes created in the operation of a nuclear reactor or accelerator, source, and/or other special nuclear materials.

If these criminals may be dealing in, or contemplating dealing in such dangerous nuclear related materials in this unstable and uncertain time in the former Soviet Union, they will be covered by United States law under my new bill. Any possible loophole, will be closed.

Accordingly I urge my colleagues to support this urgently needed legislation. I invite my colleagues to join me in helping American law enforcement take on the newest dangers from the nuclear terrorist threat, which we must face in this new and sometimes more dangerous, post-cold-war era.

I ask that the full text of this bill be printed at this point in the RECORD.

H.R. 730

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Nuclear Terrorism Jurisdiction Extension and Control Act of 1995".

SEC. 2. NUCLEAR TERRORISM JURISDICTION.

(a) EXTRATERRITORIAL JURISDICTION.—Paragraph (2) of section 831(c) of title 18, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

INTRODUCTION OF TEAMWORK FOR EMPLOYEES AND MANAGERS ACT

HON. STEVE GUNDERSON

OF WISCONSIN

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Speaker, one of the visible issues in the 104th Congress is how we as a nation can develop and maintain a competitive, motivated, and involved workforce. This is particularly important today because we now live and compete in the global market. As the global market has expanded, successful American companies of all types have learned that cooperation between employees and managers is vital to staying competitive both domestically and internationally.

Unfortunately, the employee involvement programs across the country are legally threatened. Under the National Labor Relations Act, employee involvement programs have been disbanded because of inconsistencies between the purposes of the act when written, and the realities of the modern workplace. Two recent decisions by the National Labor Relations Board in particular, the Electromation and DuPont decisions, refocused attention on the act, calling into question virtually every current employee involvement program in the Nation.

WHAT ARE EMPLOYEE INVOLVEMENT PROGRAMS?

Employee involvement [EI] programs have no set formula or structure, although they are referred to by many different names—quality circles, self-managed work teams, employee involvement committees, etc. Flexibility is essential. It allows employers and employees to construct a program which makes the most sense in the context of their particular workplace.

Through involvement programs, employees voice their opinions in the decisionmaking process and therefore have a greater stake in the success or failure of the company. Likewise, managers receive vital information from the people who have the most knowledge about detailed workplace operations—the employees. These programs often drive decision-making down the lowest level possible and open up the flow of information in the workplace, creating much more cooperative atmosphere.

WHO USES EI

Currently, well over 30,000 companies are using some form of employee involvement structures, from large to small, unionized to nonunionized firms. A 1994 survey performed by four business groups found that 75 percent of employers responding had incorporated employee involvement to some extent. Among employers of 5,000 or more, 96 percent of surveyed companies used it. The survey also found that the most growth in EI occurred in small companies, defined as those with less than 50 employees, 60 percent of which had instituted their EI program within the last 3 years.

Two years ago, in a survey my office conducted of companies in my rural western Wisconsin district, we found that 40 percent of the more than 100 companies that responded used EI. Among the respondents using it were a drug store with 10 employees and a radio station with 26 employees.

DO EMPLOYEES WANT EI?

A survey just finished by the Princeton Survey Research Associates on behalf of Profs. Richard Freeman and Joel Rogers indicates that employees want more involvement in decisions affecting them in the workplace. For example, the survey demonstrates that employees believe that joint worker-management committees are the best way to increase employee influence. In fact, such committees are preferred to unions or union-like employee organizations by a 2-to-1 margin, and much preferred over additional legal mandates from Washington.

The survey indicates that the majority of employees also believe that by using Employee Involvement structures and pushing decisions to the lowest possible level, their company would be more competitive, the effectiveness of EI structures would increase; and the effectiveness of problem solving would improve.

WHY A CHANGE IS NEEDED

Employee involvement structures are a recent development relative to the passage of the original National Labor Relations Act, also known as the Wagner Act. The Wagner Act was written in the 1930's—a very turbulent time in labor-management relations. At that time, it was common for companies to create management-dominated or sham unions to prevent employees from forming independent unions. The National Labor Relations Act included a very broad proscription on company dominated unions. There is no doubt this section worked—companies stopped creating sham unions. But the same section of the act which prevents sham unions, also acts as a barrier to legitimate workplace cooperation.

In the past 20 years, the use of employee involvement has expanded dramatically. Organizations from the most prestigious of the Fortune 500 down to the local drug store have successfully used cooperative programs to empower their employees. However, section 8(a)(2), the pertinent section of the Wagner Act, has never been amended, and it certainly did not contemplate managers and employees cooperating for mutual gain. At the present time, companies that have legitimate EI programs are always subject to sanctions by the National Labor Relations Board. In the wake of the Electromation decision, it has become painfully obvious that it is extremely difficult to apply a 1930's law to a 1990's workplace.

THE TEAM ACT WOULD FIX THE PROBLEM

The bill which will be introduced in the House and Senate today, the Teamwork for Employees and Managers Act, would amend the National Labor Relations Act by adding a provision to section 8(a)(2) to allow legitimate employee involvement programs. As long as the programs were not created for the purpose of collective bargaining or to establish a sham union, they would be presumed not to have violated the act. The bill leaves intact the prohibition against company dominated unions, and in no way reduces the right of employees to form a union.

CONCLUSION

America's greatest economic challenges will not be overcome in Washington. They will be met and overcome in American workplaces by the creativity of American workers and managers. Our task must be to nurture that creativity, not stifle it. I look forward to working with my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to move this initiative forward. Clearly, it is in the interest of our companies, our workers, and our competitive ability to pass the TEAM Act as soon as possible.

TRIBUTE TO MOLLY MERRY—COLORADO'S TEACHER OF THE YEAR

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Molly Merry on the occasion of her being named Colorado Teacher of the Year. Her positive contributions on behalf of educating children have enabled her to win this award.

Molly is responsible for designing, planning, and teaching an alternative education program known as the Madison Exploratory School, located in Canon City. The curriculum at the school is designed for students who have not reached their full potential in traditional classrooms. Her lesson plan's increase the amount of time spent with hands-on projects to bolster traditional lessons.

When Madison Exploratory School opened 2 years ago, there were 30 fifth-grade students. The program has been such a success, in large part due to Molly Merry's work, that it has been expanded to include 82 students in grades fourth through sixth. Molly's ability to identify problems, build children's self-esteem and provide an encouraging voice make her the logical choice to receive Colorado's Teacher of the Year Award.

Molly Merry has not only met the criteria needed to win this award, but she has exceeded those expectations. Her dedication, and selfless service to her students has not gone unnoticed.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of my home State of Colorado, I respectfully ask that my fellow colleagues join me in saluting Molly Merry, Colorado's teacher of the year.

TRIBUTE TO THE HIGHBRIDGE-WOODYCREST CENTER

HON. JOSÉ E. SERRANO

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the Highbridge-Woodycrest Center, a community-based organization in the Bronx, which, at a ceremony tomorrow in the Cannon Caucus Room, will receive a $50,000 Women's Health Initiative grant from the Fannie Mae Foundation.

The Highbridge-Woodycrest Center is dedicated to educating AIDS-infected and HIV-positive women in shelters and prison to help them reduce high-risk behavior and seek appropriate health care support. In an expansion of its activities, the center is also creating a day treatment center for women with HIV and AIDS.

Mr. Speaker, more than 1,000 organizations from around the country applied for this grant. A national advisory committee of women's health experts selected the Highbridge-Woodycrest Center and nine other programs to receive this award under Fannie Mae's women's health initiative, which will provide $1 million over the next 5 years to support women's health services in underserved communities throughout the United States.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating the Highbridge-Woodycrest Center, whose vital contributions to women's health have earned it the generous support of the Fannie Mae Foundation.

TRIBUTE TO VICTOR MELENDY

HON. JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a man who was a hero in every sense of the word. Victor Melendy was a firefighter in Stoughton, MA for 23 years. He died in the line of duty on January 28, and his courage will not be forgotten.

Victor Melendy's life represents all of the best qualities of the human spirit. His gift was to do ordinary things in an extraordinary way. Victor's courage was only surpassed by his compassion. Above all, he loved his family. Stoughton Fire Chief John Soave said it best when he described him as "the best definition of the word firefighter"—a characterization to which all who served with him readily attest.

Victor Melendy led a life of public service. He served his country in the U.S. Navy and then his community as a member of the Stoughton Fire Department. As we reflect on his life, we can learn from his example. Victor's spirit will live on through his beloved wife

Carol, his children Christopher, Lisa, and Kerry, and all of those who have had the honor to know him.

Mr. Speaker, we have lost a true hero.

A TRIBUTE TO THE HONORABLE
THOMAS D. LAMBROS

HON. JAMES A. TRAFICANT, JR.

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I rise here today to pay tribute to the Honorable Thomas D. Lambros upon his retirement. Chief Judge Lambros was born to parents Demetrios and Panagoula Lambros in Ashtabula, OH, on February 4, 1930. Chief Judge Lambros was the youngest of five brothers. He graduated from Ashtabula High School in 1948, and received his law degree from Cleveland-Marshall Law School in 1952. He was admitted to the practice of law that same year at the age of 22.

Chief Judge Lambros' illustrious career started in 1960, when he was elected to his first judgeship. From 1960 through 1967, Chief Judge Lambros served on the Court of Common Pleas for the State of Ohio, Ashtabula County. In 1966, Judge Lambros was re-elected without opposition. As a common pleas judge, Judge Lambros established a voluntary public defender program to provide free counsel to indigent criminal defendants. The establishment of this innovative program preceded the landmark Supreme Court decision in Gideon versus Wainwright, which held that the Constitution guarantees free counsel to indigent defendants.

Also as a common pleas judge, Chief Judge Lambros instituted mandatory domestic relations conciliation programs. This program established a 3-month cooling-off period before formal divorce proceedings would take place. Through the passage of time and the efforts of skilled social workers, this program saved many marriages and served to adjust family relationships.

On June 3, 1967, Chief Judge Lambros, at the age of 37, was nominated United States District Judge for the Northern District of Ohio by President Lyndon Baines Johnson. Confirmation by the Senate took place on August 18, 1967, and Judge Lambros took office on August 28, 1967. On January 16, 1990, he became Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio.

While serving as a Federal judge, Chief Judge Lambros has had numerous judicial accomplishments. One very successful achievement was founding the "summary jury trial." This innovative judicial procedure is an effective method of resolving cases by promoting settlement, thus avoiding lengthy and expensive court trials. The summary jury trial is a short jury trial which helps to settle cases on the basis of a jury's advisory opinion. The procedures has received widespread acceptance in both Federal and State courts throughout the country.

The policymaking arm of the Federal judiciary, the Judicial Conference of the United States, in 1984 adopted a resolution endorsing the use of the summary jury trial in Federal courts nationwide. In 1983, 1984, and 1985, Chief Judge Lambros was commended by the Chief Justice of the United States, the Honorable Warren E. Burger, in the "Year End Reports on the Judiciary," for developing the summary jury trial process. These reports represent the Chief Justice's perspective on the most important developments in the judiciary and on its current and future needs. Chief Judge Lambros' invention, the summary jury trial, received formal statutory recognition by the U.S. Congress in the Judicial Reform Act of 1990. By this legislative enactment, Federal judges are now authorized to utilize the summary jury trials throughout the Nation.

Today, Mr. Speaker, I would like to personally recognize Thomas Lambros, both as a wise and compassionate officer of the court who has made an enormously positive impression on our justice system, and as a personal friend. His selfless dedication to both his community and his family is commended. May God bless Thomas with health, happiness, and continued success in his retirement. All friends of justice will surely miss him.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MILES B.
BORDEN, KINGS PARK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, INC. 1994 MAN OF
THE YEAR

HON. GARY L. ACKERMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer my congratulations to Miles B. Borden on being named the Kings Park Chamber of Commerce 1994 Man of the Year.

Miles Borden, whose family settled in the community in the 1890's is a lifelong resident of Kings Park. His family was among the founding members of the Lucien Memorial United Methodist Church of Kings Park, where he is an active member of the board of trustees.

He has been a member of the Kings Park Fire Department for 40 years and served as president of the department for 6 years. In 1956 he chaired the committee which established the ambulance squad.

On December 31, 1994, he retired after serving 20 years as a volunteer trustee of the Smithtown Library boards of trustees. He is retired from a career as an assistant superintendent of the Amityville School District after 34 years in public education.

An accomplished author and historian, he has researched and published two histories of Kings Park, "The History of the Kings Park Fire Department" and "The First 100 Years—1892—1992: Lucien Memorial United Methodist Church." He is currently writing a history of Kings Park.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in saluting Miles Borden for his outstanding and selfless dedication and commitment to enriching the lives of the folks in the Kings Park community. And to extend our best wishes and congratulations for being named the 1994 Man of the Year.

SOLID WASTE INCINERATION

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to bring to the attention of my colleagues the facts surrounding solid waste incineration. While the reauthorization of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) may not be on the top of the agenda for this Congress, I believe the importance of the issue warrants some immediate discussion.

I have long been a vocal opponent of solid waste incinerators in my community. While incinerators may make some small dent in our garbage problem, they also create severe environmental and health concerns we cannot afford to ignore.

During combustion, an incinerator emits significant quantities of heavy metals like mercury, cadmium and lead, and complex organic compounds, including dioxins. Equally important, incineration transforms many toxic substances in solid waste into highly volatile compounds more easily absorbed into the food chain or inhaled or ingested by humans. Lead can cause mental retardation, learning disabilities and kidney damage. It is especially toxic to children and pregnant women. Cadmium has been linked to lung cancer and kidney disorders. High levels of dioxins can result in altered liver function. These toxins are not rare—they are common emissions of solid waste incinerators. Burning garbage is a dangerous and costly proposal.

Research has shown that air pollution by tiny particles, even within current legal limits, can raise the risk of early death from heart or lung disease. As a result, I have urged the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) to review and update the Federal health based standard for particulate air pollution. This is an issue of great concern for me and my constituents since we must already cope with a number of polluting industries in Chicago and the surrounding suburbs. Fortunately, the USEPA has initiated the process of revising air quality criteria for particle pollution. I welcome this action.

Last year, the USEPA released its report on the dangers of dioxins. Dioxins, one of the most toxic manmade chemicals, are chlorinated hydrocarbons that are byproducts of a number of combustion processes, including solid waste incineration. In its report, the USEPA concluded that dioxins are probable cancer causing agents. Dioxins have also been associated with weakened immune systems, birth defects and damage to the reproductive system.

Dioxins are extremely pervasive in the environment. Much of dioxin comes from incinerators that emit the chemicals through the air, which is deposited on grass and trees. The chemical is then consumed by cows and other animals. Dioxin is also deposited in lakes and streams and ingested by fish. The highest concentrations of dioxins are found in plants and animals, thus contaminating the food supply.

As required under the 1990 Clean Air Act Amendments, the USEPA last year announced tougher new air standards for municipal solid waste incinerators. These regulations are designed to cut harmful emissions from incinerators by requiring the installation of more pollution control equipment. While I am encouraged by these new requirements, I remain opposed to the construction of any new solid waste incinerators. The costs of complying with new standards, along with the health risks of the incineration process, are simply not worth it.

At this time, I wish to insert into the RECORD comments made by one of my constituents, Michael Turlek of the Lyons Incineration Opponent Network (LION) in Illinois. These comments were submitted in response to the USEPA's proposed rules on incinerator emissions and the reassessment of dioxin.

I would also like to take this opportunity to recognize and commend Mr. Turlek for his commitment to the environment. Mr. Turlek has been a leading force in fighting solid waste incinerator projects proposed for my congressional district. I thank Mr. Turlek for his tireless efforts on behalf of public health.

LYONS INCINERATOR OPPONENT NETWORK
(LION)

(by Michael W. Turlek)

The disclosures of the Federal EPA Health Assessment Document for dioxin (TCDD) and Related Compounds call for re-assessment of corrective measures for primary sources of major dioxin emissions.

We are dealing with extremely poisonous, stable compounds with environmental persistence measured in decades. Compounds that can be passed from the expectant mother's system to the growing fetus, then, post-natally, through the mother's milk to the infant who is then subject to a lifetime of additional exposure and health hazards. Following absorption, a half-life for 2-3-7-8-TCDF elimination was estimated from 5.8 years to 11.3 years.

The current report reveals the average human intake exposure rate to be more than 500-fold HIGHER than the 1985 EPA report data. Upper-bound risk estimates for general population dioxin exposure could be as high as one in 10,000 to 1 in 1,000. This is frightening data and the FEPA must look closely towards recommendations for the cure rather than the band-aid.

We, as responsible adults cannot accept the associated health risks for the current or future generations.

REPRODUCTIVE AND DEVELOPMENTAL EFFECTS

Hormonal changes, reproductive dysfunction, under-developed organs and impaired organ function. Developmental toxicity found in fish, birds and mammals is likely to occur in humans.

IMMUNE TOXICITY

Alterations in specific immune defector functions and increased susceptibility to infectious disease.

CANCER

TCDD has been clearly shown to increase malignant tumor incidence in laboratory animals.

The peer panel that met in September of 1993 found that results from human studies were largely consistent with observations from laboratory studies of dioxin-induced cancer and therefore should not be dismissed or ignored.

Major, qualitative, environmental release sources have been identified as: Medical Waste Incinerators, Municipal Waste Incinerators, Cement Kilns, and Industrial wood burning.

Dioxin, being a by-product of incineration merely transfers the dioxin to land-fills via the bottom-ash if emission standards are reduced to keep dioxins out of the atmosphere.

The problem continues.

It behooves the EPA to recommend a ban on medical municipal, wood-burning and other dioxin producing incinerators. Tightening standards is not enough.

Chemical manufacturing process recommendations should call for a phasing out of chlorinated compounds with immediate use of alternate non-dioxin compounds, where available.

Perhaps it's time that we should be talking about BEST KNOWN technologies rather than BEST AVAILABLE. Laser burn technology might prove substantially more efficient.

Part of the study states that you cannot point to the number of the populace affected negatively nor can you point to the individuals; but the facts and data are there.

You never will be able to point to these people. They will continue as needless, obscure casualties, unless you do something about it.

ADDENDUM

The persistent and hazardous nature of dioxin causes us to question the control effectiveness of Waste Incineration Dioxin Standards.

Michael Cooper, Mgr, Environmental Compliance, Foster/Wheeler waste incinerator builder/operator, while describing "carbon injection" as a dioxin emission control system stated the following:

Trapped dioxin particles are released when introduced to fire of lower temperature than the original combustion.

In answer to a question from the Chair, he stated that the dioxin particles do not end up in the fly-ash.

Our comment: Most incinerator operations have identified dioxin in both fly-ash and bottom ash.

In answer to another question from the Chair, Cooper stated that the temperature was not high enough to destroy the dioxin.

Our comment: Carbon injection is not a proven technology for removal and destruction of dioxin.

OTHER QUESTIONS ARISE

1. Can we be comfortable with injecting dioxin particles for destruction while other dioxin particles are being formed? Are we really reducing atmospheric dioxin emission or creating a steadier flow?

2. Do we want dioxin-contaminated fly ash or dioxin-contaminated bottom ash that does not test hazardous to be landfilled with non-hazardous waste?

3. Do we want dioxin-contaminated fly ash or bottom ash used for building products as some burner builder/operator would?

4. Because of the high toxic and persistent nature of dioxin, we should require hazardous waste treatment for ash and filters that show dioxin content.

The preponderance of evidence shows dioxin to be a very dangerous, hazardous compound. How much longer are we going to expose the population to needless hazards, be it dioxin, mercury or any other compound? Haven't we learned yet?

THE LESSONS OF AUSCHWITZ

HON. WILLIAM J. MARTINI

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. MARTINI. Mr. Speaker, I think it is appropriate today to remember the horrible discoveries that were made by Allied forces at Auschwitz 50 years ago.

Words are insufficient to describe one of the blackest and most despicable crimes against humanity ever perpetrated. The actions of Nazi Germany aimed at the utter extermination of European Jews tore apart the collective souls of our parents' and grandparents' generations, tragically reminding them, lest they had forgotten, the depths to which the human character can sink. As the truths about the holocaust emerged, we were forced as a nation to reassess not just the direction of the global community or our country, but to look inside ourselves and face many very difficult questions about the moral direction of our communities, our families, and ourselves. No citizen of good conscience could escape that important self-examination.

Fifty years later, the lessons from Auschwitz are the same. The suffering and anguish is still very real, and continues to act as a constant reminder of our obligations to the pursuit of decency and compassion, both at home and abroad.

But on this occasion I believe a sense of guarded optimism and quiet resolution are in order alongside of the tremendous sense of loss we still feel. For the United States is the leader of the free world. It was the United States that picked up the sword of democracy to defeat the evil hand of the Axis Powers and restore security and prosperity to the world. And since then it has been the United States who has stood firm to make sure that such persecution would never occur again.

As we approach the 21st century, we must constantly bear in mind what America has become: a model of freedom and justice to the world. We strive for peace so that we never have to discuss another Auschwitz again. On this 50th anniversary of the horrible revelations at Auschwitz, let us all pause to reflect on several things. First and foremost, we remember the victims of the Holocaust with great sadness, and the survivors with consolation. We also need to remember how terrible the nature of man can be. But we in America should not lose sight of how far we have come. Most of all, we can never forget how diligent we must remain in the struggle to secure the safety of our posterity, and that of the posterity of our neighbors around the world.

TRIBUTE TO BUD GATES

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, January 30, 1995

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to recognize an outstanding Coloradan, Mr. Bud Gates, on the occasion of his being awarded the Colorado Counties Inc. 1994 Distinguished Service Award.

Each year the CCI board of directors select a Colorado county commissioner who has been a positive influence and an active member of the community to receive this award. Bud Gates is no exception. His innovative approach to solving problems and important work in the community have made him a logical choice to be named this years Distinguished Service Award recipient.

Bud has been an Eagle County Commissioner for 8 years and chairman of the board for 3 years. His work in the community has been extensive. He's been on the Eagle Valley Planning Commission, the Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service Committee, the Conservation Board of Appeals, the Eagle County School Board, and the Agriculture Soil Conservation District Board. He also has been president of the Derby Mesa Irrigation Co., the Burns Hole Livestock Association, and the Eagle County Farm Bureau.

His commitment to the community extends outside his public life. Bud has been a 4-H leader and still actively supports the program. He has also been a classroom assistant at the Eagle Valley and Gypsum Elementary Schools, and works as a mediator in social services cases involving kids with family problems.

Bud Gates has not only met the criteria needed to win the Colorado Counties Award, but he has exceeded the expectations associated with this award. His dedication, professionalism, and selfless service to the people of Eagle County has not gone unnoticed.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in marking this occasion and saluting Bud Gates for his years of devotion to the people of Eagle County.
