One can imagine a similar scenario playing out in Iraq today if we make the wrong choice. Let’s say the United States, after getting a new Iraqi government in place, decides to go home and orders Iraq to pay its bills, as some on this side of the aisle want us to do. The results were uncertain. Germany, which decides the debt we are making Iraq repay, who says we only waged the war in order to encumber its oil; and a wave of anti-American sentiment who proceeds to destroy the fledgling democratic system the United States helped to establish in Iraq; and suddenly, a few years down the road, we have a new evil tyrant running Iraq, who is a clear enemy of the United States and could start pursuing polcies similar to those of Saddam Hussein, or even worse. Fortunately, there is another choice. After World War II, we took a very differ-tent approach to postwar Germany. In 1948, after a failed policy of loaning money to war-torn countries in Eu-

10 pare, the United States adopted the Marshall plan, named for Secretary of State George C. Marshall. The Marshall plan was a 4-year initiative to rebuild the economies of 16 countries in Europe, including Germany. The Marshall plan cost $13.3 billion and a lot of effort. Ninety percent of the money spent on the Marshall plan—nearly $12 billion—was grant money, not loan money.

What was the result? At first, the results were uncertain. Germany’s economy looked shaky. But over time, our continued investment paid dividends. A continent that had been fighting for a thousand years became a democracy and became our ally.

In Japan—in another part of the world—our help took a country that had only made it through the war. The results could not have been better after World War II. Our policy was a complete success.

That is why I believe we need a Marshall plan for Iraq. We need a 4- or 5-year plan for reconstructing Iraq, and we need to face up to the cost of the plan. We need to understand it is more for us, the United States, than it is for them. President Bush has laid out the first stages of such a plan.

The Marshall plan was used for a variety of purposes to reconstruct war-torn Europe, including Germany. It paid for the building of railroads and water systems, for needed medicines, modernizing factories, for restoring ports to allow foreign trade, and much more. President Bush’s request for funding will pay for many of the same things: restoring Iraq’s ports on the Persian Gulf, building roads, restoring power and water systems, needed medicines, reopening schools, and much more.

Some say funding Iraq’s reconstruction would be too costly. But the cost of the President’s request for rebuilding Iraq—$203 billion—is actually far less than what we spent on the Marshall plan. That was $13 billion then, between 1948 and 1952, and that would be at least $102 billion in today’s dol-ars.

Another way to compare the cost is percentage of gross domestic product. The Marshall plan cost 1.1 percent of our GDP during the 4 years it was in place. President Bush’s proposal would be only one-fifth of 1 percent. Again, the Marshall plan was five times the cost of President Bush’s plan. Or we can compare the cost as a percentage of the Federal budget. The Marshall plan cost 7 percent of the Federal budget during the years it was enacted. The President’s requested funds, when added to those already spent on reconstruction, were only 1 percent of the Federal budget.

So this idea that we are spending more on Iraq than we did after World War II is totally false.

We can learn a valuable lesson from history. After World War I, we made Germany pay its debts. We left them in ruin. We went home. As a result, we got Adolf Hitler. After World War II, we pursued the Marshall plan, and it did pay. But as a result, we won democratic allies in more parts of the world.

President Kennedy said it best in his 1961 inaugural address. This is what he said:

We will pay any price, bear any burden . . . to assure the survival and success of liberty.

The people of Iraq, like the people of Germany 60 years ago, lived under an evil tyrant who wreaked havoc on his neighbors and his own people. In both cases, the evil tyrant was overthrown by the United States and its allies. America and its allies temporarily took over the administration of Germany and Iraq. We paid for the German reconstruction under the Marshall plan. We should do the same in Iraq and support the President’s request. We cannot afford, in our own interests, to do anything less.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, is there any time left on our side in morning business?

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 3 and a half minutes, including the leader time.

THE CIA LEAK

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I asked for the leader time because I wish to respond to some of the remarks I heard on the floor earlier regarding the CIA leaks.

Mr. President, everyone one of us in this country would be very concerned about a leak regarding someone who was undercover and operating for the CIA, and we would want to get to the bottom of the issue if there were a leak. In fact, that is exactly what is happening. But I think it has been distorted and I think it has been blown way out of proportion before we really know the facts. So I want to set the record straight on a few issues.

First of all, many people on the other side are asking for a special counsel. Right now, the FBI is investigating the routine leak. The CIA Director, George Tenet, according to Bob Novak, did not request the investigation separately in some major way. The CIA Director was not involved because this is in fact routine.

According to Bob Novak, any leak of classified information is routinely passed by the CIA to the Justice Department, averaging one a week. This investigatory request was made in July, shortly after the original column was published. This was a routine investigation of something that appeared to be a leak and which may be a leak. The investigation has been ongoing since July. I think it is certainly premature to start making this a political issue, talking about a special counsel, when we don’t even know the facts yet.

Bob Novak wrote a subsequent column that appeared today in the Washington Post. I think it is very important because it was a column that outed the woman who was a CIA employee. He says very clearly, first: I did not receive a planned leak. Now, it has been accused on television shows across America that the White House somehow leaked information about a CIA operative to the press.

The man who wrote the story said: I did not receive a planned leak. Secondly, the CIA never warned me that the disclosure of an employee’s wife working for the agency would endanger her or anybody else and, third, it was not much of a secret.

According to him, this has been well known around Washington and, in fact, was even reported in the National Review. It is being investigated. The President has said it is important to him that it be investigated. He has said it is important to him that it be investigated. He wants everyone in the White House to be fully cooperative, and the author of the story says no one in the White House was involved. So I think we need to tone it down.

I yield the floor. The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL AP-

PROPRIATIONS FOR IRAQ AND

AFGHANISTAN SECURITY AND

RECONSTRUCTION ACT, 2004

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the prior order, the hour of 10:30 a.m. having arrived, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of S. 1699, which the clerk will report.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
S12221

October 1, 2003

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1689) making emergency supplemental appropriations for Iraq and Afghanistan security and reconstruction for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2004, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until 12:30 p.m. shall be equally divided for debate only.

The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, in behalf of the Committee on Appropriations, I present to the Senate a bill making emergency supplemental appropriations for Iraq and Afghanistan security and reconstruction for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2004.

The bill was reported favorably by the committee by a vote of 29 to 0. During 6 hours of deliberation, the committee considered many amendments and rejected most of them, but I am sure we will have the opportunity to reconsider some of these suggested changes on the floor of the Senate.

This bill is requested by the President and is a matter of some urgency. It is an emergency supplemental appropriation which should be acted upon without delay, but, of course, with the thoughtful and careful consideration which the subject matter clearly requires.

The President’s request has been considered and acted upon by the Appropriations Committee, the Armed Services Committee, the Foreign Relations Committee, and the Banking Committee. During these hearings and through 16 witnesses, the case has been well made that these emergency funds are needed and should be approved.

The funds appropriated by this bill will provide the equipment, fuel, ammunition, and subsistence our troops need as they complete their missions in Iraq and Afghanistan. The bill includes military construction, including imminent danger pay and family separation allowance, at the levels authorized in the fiscal year 2003 emergency supplemental for the duration of fiscal year 2004.

We have also provided funding for equipment needed by our troops. Some of the items for which emergency funds are provided are fuel for military vehicles and aircraft, improved humvees, and body armor to better protect our troops.

We have increased the level of funding requested by the President for operation and maintenance funding for the Army and for replenishment of prepositioned war stocks.

This bill includes appropriations to purchase more electrical generators, moneys for mail service, and improvements in troop housing and facilities.

The bill includes $412 million in military construction funding that will provide support facilities for our soldiers in base camps throughout Iraq, as well as urgently needed runways and taxiways to support Air Force operations in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The Armed Forces and the coalition of nations that are involved are making remarkable progress in Iraq. It has been less than 1 year since we gave the President the authority to use force against the Saddam Hussein regime.

During our review of this bill, Ambassador Bremer pointed out that the coalition has already opened all of Iraq’s 240 hospitals and nearly every health clinic. Almost every university and secondary school in that nation has been reopened, and the Iraqi people have begun to provide the security for their own country. Tens of thousands have been trained as police officers or members of the new Iraqi Army.

We are also providing funding to help rebuild Iraq’s infrastructure. This funding will improve electrical, transportation and telecommunications systems, as well as the infrastructure that will enable Iraq to sustain itself without our assistance in the years ahead. But it is essential that we act now to approve these funds. We should act expeditiously on this bill. Our military needs the funding to carry out their missions. The coalition provisional authority needs the support provided by this bill.

I invite the attention of the Senate to the provisions of the bill. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record the following statement in explanation of the recommendations of the Committee on Appropriations, S. 1689, making emergency supplemental appropriations for Iraq and Afghanistan security and recovery for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2004, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS ON EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR IRAQ AND AFGHANISTAN SECURITY AND RECONSTRUCTION, 2004

The Committee on Appropriations reports the bill (S. 1689) making emergency supplemental appropriations for Iraq and Afghanistan security and reconstruction for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2004, and for other purposes, reports favorably thereon and recommends that the bill do pass.

BACKGROUND

This bill makes appropriations for the military functions of the Department of Defense as it prosecutes the war in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as for relief and reconstruction efforts in Iraq and Afghanistan, and to continue anti-terrorism efforts around the world.

HEARINGS

The Committee held hearings on September 22, 24, and 25, 2003 and heard testimony from Ambassador Paul Bremer; Hon. Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense; General Richard Myers, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff; General J ohn Abizaid, Commanding General United States Central Command; Dr. Dov Zakheim, Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller); Mr. James E. Anderson, Deputy Secretary of Defense, Deputy Deputy Under Secretary of Defense and Commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard; Mr. John B. Hambrick, Under Secretary of the Army; Mr. Donald J. Norcross, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff; General Peter Pace, Vice Chairman, Joint Chief of Staff from the Department of Defense.

SUMMARY OF THE BILL

On September 17, 2003, the President submitted requests for $87,039,804,000 in new budget authority for operations in the Department of Defense, Department of State, United States Agency for International Development, and the Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund. The President recommends $87,004,004,000 in new budget authority.

The President’s supplemental requests are contained in budget estimate No. 17, transmitted on September 17, 2003 (H. Doc. 108-126).

COMMITTEE PRIORITIES

The primary goals of this bill are to fund the ongoing military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan as well as relief and reconstruction activities in those countries. To accomplish the first goal, the Committee is providing $66,950,004,000 to prosecute the war in Iraq and Afghanistan. These funds are for increased operational tempo, military personnel costs, military construction, procurement of equipment, increased maintenance and supply support, and to achieve the second goal, the Committee is providing $21,444,000,000 to help secure the transition to democracy in both Iraq and Afghanistan. These funds are for emergency and reconstruction activities including border enforcement, building a national police service in Iraq, standing up a new Iraqi army and establishing the International Army, reconstituted judicial systems, rehabilitation of Iraq’s oil infrastructure, and provision of basic electricity, water and sanitation services and other reconstruction needs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

TITLE I—NATIONAL SECURITY

CHAPTER 1

SUBCOMMITTEE ON DEFENSE

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

2004 supplemental estimate

Committee recommendation: 66,950,004,000

MILITARY PERSONNEL

SPECIAL PAYS AND ALLOWANCES

The Supplemental request includes $12,625,000 for enhanced Special Pays in- cluded Family Separation Allowance [FSA], Imminent Danger Pay [IDP], and Hostile Duty Pay [HDP]. The Department’s request would fund FSA at the levels authorized in the fiscal year 2003 Emergency Wartime Supplemental Appropriation Act (Public Law 108-11) for the first 3 months of the fiscal year. Beginning January 1, 2004, the Department requests that FSA and IDP return to the levels authorized prior to enactment of Public Law 108-11, and thus the Committee authorize an increase in Hardship Duty Pay to offset the reductions to FSA and IDP. However, the requested increase in HDP would only cover those individuals serving in the support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. The Department’s proposal would not provide a benefit to those servicemembers deployed overseas in support of other contingency operations such as Bosnia and Kosovo. The Committee does not approve the Department’s request, and instead supports the continued use of HDP at the levels authorized in Public Law 108-11 for all of fiscal year 2004. The Committee directs the Department to use the funds requested for the continued use of HDP.

The proposed full year increase to FSA and IDP for all eligible recipients.

Vice Chairman, Joint Chief of Staff from the Department of Defense.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Military Personnel, Army</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$12,858,870,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$12,858,870,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $12,858,870,000 for Military Personnel, Army. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Military Personnel, Navy</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$816,100,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$816,100,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $816,100,000 for Military Personnel, Navy. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Military Personnel, Marine Corps</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$753,190,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$753,190,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $753,190,000 for Military Personnel, Marine Corps. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Operation and Maintenance, Army</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$3,384,700,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$3,384,700,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $3,384,700,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Army. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Operation and Maintenance, Air Force</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$24,190,464,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$24,190,464,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $24,190,464,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Air Force. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$128,600,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$128,600,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $128,600,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Operation and Maintenance, Air National Guard</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$214,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$214,000,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $214,000,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Air National Guard. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$35,500,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$35,500,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $35,500,000 for Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Iraq Freedom Fund</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$1,988,600,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$1,988,600,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $1,988,600,000 for the Iraq Freedom Fund. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Procurement, Army</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2004 supplemental estimate</td>
<td>$6,200,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Committee recommendation</td>
<td>$6,200,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Committee recommends $6,200,000 for Procurement, Army. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

The Committee recommends $1,976,258,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

The Committee is concerned that the estimate does not fully reflect the Army’s contingencies to sustain ongoing operations, or the costs necessary to reset the force. This places the Army at considerable financial risk during fiscal year 2004. Accordingly, the Committee recommends an increase of $756,000,000 above the estimate.

The Committee recommends an increase of $148,000,000 to the estimate as follows:

- Theater stabilization communications:
  - Replacement of Army Prepositioned Stock items destroyed during combat operations: -$1,000,000

- Missiles and Ammunition:
  - Increased operational level maintenance requirements:
    - 800,000,000
  - Second destination transportation for depot maintenance:
    - 150,000,000
  - Excess support to key operating nations:
    - 140,000,000
  - Excess DPM:
    - 100,000,000
  - Excess Increased Operational Tempos:
    - 10,000,000

- Other Procurement, Army:
  - Aircraft Procurement, Navy:
    - 1,078,687,000
  - Undersea Warfare:
    - 1,988,600,000
  - Other Procurement, Navy:
    - 76,357,000
  - Other Procurement, Marine Corps:
    - 123,397,000
  - Missle Procurement, Navy:
    - 128,600,000
  - Other Procurement, Air Force:
    - 40,972,000
  - Other Procurement, Air National Guard:
    - 20,450,000

The Committee recommends $5,516,368,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Air Force. The recommendation is $432,000,000 below the estimate. The Committee recommends a reduction of $432,000,000 to the estimate as follows:

- Unjustified "incremental contingency costs":
  - $200,000,000
- Excess stabilizaton theater with:
  - $150,000,000
- Excess DPM:
  - $100,000,000
- Excess Increased Operational Tempos:
  - $10,000,000

The Committee recommends an additional $756,000,000 above the estimate.

The Committee recommends an additional $148,000,000 to the estimate as follows:

- Theater stabilization communications:
  - Replacement of Army Prepositioned Stock items destroyed during combat operations: +$1,000,000

- Missiles and Ammunition:
  - Increased operational level maintenance requirements:
    - 800,000,000
  - Second destination transportation for depot maintenance:
    - 150,000,000
  - Excess support to key operating nations:
    - 140,000,000
  - Excess DPM:
    - 100,000,000
  - Excess Increased Operational Tempos:
    - 10,000,000

- Other Procurement, Army:
  - Aircraft Procurement, Navy:
    - 1,078,687,000
  - Undersea Warfare:
    - 1,988,600,000
  - Other Procurement, Navy:
    - 76,357,000
  - Other Procurement, Marine Corps:
    - 123,397,000
  - Missle Procurement, Navy:
    - 128,600,000
  - Other Procurement, Air Force:
    - 40,972,000
  - Other Procurement, Air National Guard:
    - 20,450,000

The Committee recommends $5,948,368,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

The Committee recommends $4,618,452,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide. The recommendation is $40,000,000 below the estimate. The Committee recommends a reduction of $40,000,000 to the estimate as follows:

- Excess support to key operating nations:
  - 400,000,000

The Committee recommends $4,618,452,000 for Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.

The Committee recommends $3,441,066,000 for Procurement of Weapons and Tracked Combat Vehicles. The recommendation is $58,000,000 above the estimate. The Committee recommends an increase of $58,000,000 to the estimate as follows:

- Replacement of Army Prepositioned Stock items destroyed during combat operations: +$58,000,000

- Missiles and Ammunition:
  - Increased operational level maintenance requirements:
    - 58,000,000
  - Second destination transportation for depot maintenance:
    - 72,000,000
  - Theater stabilization communications:
    - 72,000,000
  - Excess support to key operating nations:
    - 72,000,000

- Procurement, Defense-Wide:
  - Air National Guard:
    - 123,397,000
  - Other Procurement, Air Force:
    - 40,972,000
  - Other Procurement, Air National Guard:
    - 20,450,000

The Committee recommends $3,441,066,000 for Procurement of Weapons and Tracked Combat Vehicles. The recommendation is equal to the estimate.
The Committee recommends an additional $119,900,000 for Military Construction, Army, to be used as follows:

- Base Camp Support Facilities, Iraq: $115,900,000
- Planning and Design: $4,000,000

The Committee fully supports the administration’s request to provide adequate support facilities for United States soldiers serving in base camps in Iraq, but is concerned that project details and justifications contained in the administration’s request for these facilities were not sufficiently defined. The Committee therefore directs that the Army Secretary brief the Defense committees on its final plans for these facilities before obligating any of the military construction funds appropriated in this Act.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, AIR FORCE

2004 supplemental estimate: $292,550,000
Committee recommendation: $292,550,000

The Committee recommends an additional $292,550,000 for Military Construction, Air Force, to be used as follows:

- Airfield Runway Repair, Bagram, Afghanistan: $48,000,000
- Airfield Terminal, Dover Air Force Base, Delaware: $56,000,000
- AET FOL, Communications Remote Switch Facility, Diego Garcia: $3,450,000
- Manportable Maintenance, Storage, and Wash Pad, Camp Doby, Italy: $5,000,000
- Ramp and Fuel Hydrant System, Al Dhafra, United Arab Emirates: $47,000,000
- Airlift Ramp, Balad Air Base, Iraq: $18,000,000
- Airlift Aprons (Confidential Location): $17,500,000
- Tactical/Strategic Ramp Expansion, Al Udeid Air Base, Qatar: $20,000,000
- Refueler Ramp, Al Udeid Air Base, Qatar: $40,000,000
- Temporary Containment Area, Al Dhafra Air Base, United Arab Emirates: $15,300,000
- Planning and Design: $22,300,000

The Committee supports the administration’s request for additional military construction funds for Air Force facilities in Southwest Asia. However, while the Air Force has provided detail about specific projects, it has provided little information about its overall plan for facilities in the theater of operations and how projects contained in the supplemental request fit into that plan. The Committee therefore directs the Air Force to report to the congressional defense committees, in both classified and unclassified form, on its master plan for facilities in the Central Command area of responsibility, including the planned disposition of aircraft and personnel, no later than December 1, 2003.

CHAPTER 2

SUBCOMMITTEE ON MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY

2004 supplemental estimate: $119,900,000
Committee recommendation: $119,900,000

The Committee recommends a rescission of $35,800,000 from the Military Construction, Army, 2004 budget, to be used as follows:

- Planning and Design: $35,800,000

The Committee recommends a rescission and re-appropriation of $35,800,000 for the costs of security and operations related to the establishment of United States diplomatic presences in Iraq and Afghanistan. The recommendation is $40,500,000 below the request. The problem of Machine Readable Visa (MRV) fee shortfalls is addressed under the Emergency Wartime Supplemental Appropriations for 2003 are subject to the standard reprogramming procedures set forth in section 605, Division B of Public Law 108-7.
The Committee provides $60,500,000 for an additional amount for the Capital Investment Fund for safe and secure facilities in Afghanistan, Iraq, and elsewhere.

OPERATING EXPENSES OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF STATE, AND OTHER U.S. FOREIGN AFFAIRS OPERATIONS (INCLUDING TRANSFERS OF FUNDS)

2004 supplemental estimate ................................. $20,304,000,000

Committee recommendation .................................. 20,304,000,000

The Committee provides $20,304,000,000 for the Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund for security, rehabilitation and reconstruction in Iraq.

The Committee notes that funds appropriated under this heading are subject to the regular notification procedures of the Committee. Appropriations, except that notification shall be transmitted at least 5 days in advance of the obligation of funds. The Committee also provides that funds allocated under this heading for programs and sectors may be reallocated by the President for those programs and sectors.

The Committee provides $40,000,000 for an additional amount for the Capital Investment Fund for safe and secure facilities in Afghanistan, Iraq, and elsewhere.

CAPITAL INVESTMENT FUND

2004 supplemental estimate ................................. $50,000,000

Committee recommendation .................................. 90,500,000

The Committee recommends $90,500,000 for Emergencies in the Diplomatic and Consular Service. The recommendation is $40,500,000 above the President's budget request. Funds provided under this heading will ensure that rewards of up to $25,000,000 may be paid for Osama bin Laden and Saddam Hussein. The recommendation also includes language directing that $2,000,000 of previously appropriated funds be made available for a reward for the person deemed most responsible by the Special Court for Sierra Leone for the war crimes, crimes against humanity, and serious violations of international humanitarian law that took place during Sierra Leone's civil war. The recommendation also includes language directing that $8,451,000 in carryover balances be transferred to and merged with the Diplomatic and Consular Programs account for the Department's consular, or ‘border security,’ operations.

CHAPTER 2

SUBCOMMITTEE ON FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS

BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT

UNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

OPERATING EXPENSES OF THE UNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

2004 supplemental estimate ................................. $40,000,000

Committee recommendation .................................. 40,000,000

The Committee provides $40,000,000 for an additional amount for Operating Expenses of the United States Agency for International Development for costs associated with reconstruction and other activities in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The Committee provides $60,500,000 for an additional amount for the Capital Investment Fund for safe and secure facilities in Afghanistan, Iraq, and elsewhere.

INTERNATIONAL NARCOTICS CONTROL AND LAW ENFORCEMENT

2004 supplemental estimate ................................. $120,000,000

Committee recommendation .................................. 120,000,000

The Committee provides $120,000,000 for an additional amount for Economic Support Fund (ESF) for accelerated assistance for Afghanistan.
The Committee provides $120,000,000 for an additional amount in International Narcotics Control and Law Enforcement assistance for Afghanistan. The Committee expects $110,000,000 to be used to train, equip, and deploy additional police in Afghanistan and $10,000,000 to be used to support the training of prosecutors, public defenders and judges in Afghanistan and to meet infrastructure needs of the Afghan legal sector.

NONPROLIFERATION, ANTI-TERRORISM, DEMINING AND RELATED PROGRAMS
2004 supplemental estimate $35,000,000 Committee recommendation ..................... 35,000,000

The Committee provides $35,000,000 for an additional amount for Nonproliferation, Anti-Terrorism, Demining and Related Programs to support anti-terrorism training and equipment needs in Afghanistan.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT
FOREIGN MILITARY FINANCING PROGRAM
2004 supplemental estimate $222,000,000 Committee recommendation ..................... 222,000,000

The Committee provides $222,000,000 for the Foreign Military Financing Program. The Committee strongly supports the use of these funds to accelerate assistance to build the new Afghan army.

PEACEKEEPING OPERATIONS
2004 supplemental estimate $50,000,000 Committee recommendation ..................... 50,000,000

The Committee provides $50,000,000 for an additional amount for Peacekeeping Operations to support multinational peacekeeping needs in Iraq and other unanticipated peacekeeping crises.

CHAPTER 3
GENERAL PROVISIONS, THIS TITLE
SEC. 2301. The Committee includes transfer authority between accounts in chapter 2 of this title, with the total amount authorized to be transferred not to exceed $200,000,000. The Committee directs that it be consulted before this authority is exercised. The Committee includes the same notification requirement as contained in section 501 of Public Law 108-11.

SEC. 2302. The Committee includes authority permitting assistance or other financing contained in chapter 2 of this title for Iraq notwithstanding any other provision of law.

SEC. 2003. The Committee includes authority to allow appropriations provided in chapter 2 of this title to be made available without specific authorization of such appropriation.

SEC. 2304. The Committee extends section 1503 of Public Law 108-11 through September 30, 2005. The Committee notes that extending the inapplicability of section 307 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 is particularly important as the United States pursues long-range efforts to assist Iraq and marshal resources from the international community.

SEC. 2305. The Committee amends the first proviso of section 1504 of Public Law 108-11 to include Iraqi military, private security force, other official security forces, police force, or forces from other countries in Iraq supporting United States efforts in Iraq. The Committee notes that other official security forces include Ministry of Interior forces, border guards, and civil defense forces. The Committee also notes that a private security force include those providing security services to contractors, nongovernmental organizations or other organizations affiliated with United States forces in Iraq.

SEC. 2306. The Committee extends key provisions of Public Law 107-57 regarding restrictions that would otherwise limit assistance to Pakistan.

SEC. 2307. The Committee includes authority to allow the Overseas Private Investment Corporation to provide political risk insurance, direct loans, and guarantees in Iraq.

SEC. 2308. The Committee includes a notification requirement for certain accounts under chapter 2 of this title.

SEC. 2309. The Committee provides that the Secretary of State shall submit a report on a monthly basis detailing Iraq oil production and oil revenue.

SEC. 2310. The Committee directs that none of the funds in this Act may be used to pay debts incurred by the former government.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISION, THIS ACT
SEC. 2301. The Committee recommends that all the funds in the bill be designated by the Congress as emergency requirements pursuant to section 502 of House Concurrent Resolution 95 (108th Congress), the fiscal year 2004 concurrent resolution on the budget, as proposed by the President.

COMPLIANCE WITH PARAGRAPH 7, RULE XVI OF THE STANDING RULES OF THE SENATE
Paragraph 7 of rule XVI requires that Committee reports on general appropriations bills identify, with particularity, each Committee amendment to the House bill ‘‘which proposes an item of appropriation which is not made to carry out the provisions of an existing law, a treaty stipulation, or an act or resolution previously passed by the Senate during that session.’’

The accompanying bill contains the following items which lack authorization:

COMPLIANCE WITH PARAGRAPH 7(C), RULE XVI OF THE STANDING RULES OF THE SENATE
Pursuant to paragraph 7(c) of rule XXVI, on September 30, 2003, the Committee ordered reported S. 1689, an original bill making emergency appropriations for Iraq and Afghan security and reconstruction for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2004, subject to amendment and subject to the budget allocation, by a recorded vote of 29-0, a quorum being present. The vote was as follows:

YEAS
Chairman Mr. Bennett Mr. Harkin
Mr. Stevens
Mr. Campbell
Mr. Craig
Mr. Specter Mrs. Hutchinson Mr. Kohl
Mr. Domenici Mr. DeWine Mrs. Murray
Mr. Bond
Mr. Brown
Mr. Bond
Mr. McConnell
Mr. Byrd
Mr. Feinstein
Mr. Burns Mr. Inouye Mr. Dorgan
Mr. Shelby Mr. Hollings Mr. Johnson
Mr. Gregg Mr. Leahy Ms. Landrieu

NAY
Mr. Shelby
Mr. Breaux
Mr. Enzi
Mr. Murkowski
Mr. Allen
Mr. Johanns
Mr. Enzi
Mr. Dole
Mr. Johnson
Mr. Breaux
Mr. Inouye
Mr. Allen
Mr. Johanns
Mr. Breaux
Mr. Inouye

BUDGETARY IMPACT
In compliance with section 308(a)(1)(A) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), as amended, requires that the report accompanying a bill providing new budget authority contain a statement detailing how that authority compares with the report submitted under section 302 of the act for the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget for the fiscal year. All the tables in this bill are designated by Congress as emergency requirements.

FIVE-YEAR PROJECTION OF OUTLAYS
In compliance with section 308(a)(1)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), as amended, the following table contains 5-year projections associated with the budget authority provided in the accompanying bill:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Fiscal Year</th>
<th>Outlays</th>
<th>New Budget Authority</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fiscal Year 2004</td>
<td>87,004</td>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fiscal Year 2005</td>
<td>36,695</td>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fiscal Year 2006</td>
<td>33,998</td>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fiscal Year 2007</td>
<td>11,721</td>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fiscal Year 2008 and future years</td>
<td>3,037</td>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: The above table includes only mandatory and discretionary appropriations.

ASSISTANCE TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS
In accordance with section 308(a)(1)(D) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), as amended, the financial assistance to States and local governments is as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Fiscal Year 2004</th>
<th>New Budget Authority</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
<td>$222,000,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Title 1: National Security

Chapter 1: Department of Defense

| Military Personnel, Army (emergency) | 12,858,870 | 12,858,870 |
| Military Personnel, Navy (emergency) | 816,100 | 816,100 |
| Military Personnel, Marine Corps (emergency) | 731,193 | 731,193 |
| Military Personnel, Air Force (emergency) | 3,384,700 | 3,384,700 |
| Total, Military Personnel | 17,812,660 | 17,812,660 |

Operation and Maintenance, Army (emergency) (Contingent emergency appropriations) | 24,190,464 | 24,190,464 |
Operation and Maintenance, Navy (emergency) | 2,196,258 | 1,998,981 |
Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps (emergency) | 5,984,360 | 5,536,230 |
Operation and Maintenance, Air Force (emergency) | 4,618,452 | 4,218,452 |
Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps Reserve (emergency) | 16,000 | 16,000 |
Operation and Maintenance, Air Force Reserve (emergency) | 53,000 | 53,000 |
Operation and Maintenance, Air National Guard (emergency) | 214,000 | 214,000 |
Operation and Maintenance, Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, Civic Aid (emergency) | 35,500 | 35,500 |
Operation and Maintenance, Iraq Freedom Fund (emergency) | 1,988,600 | 1,988,600 |

Total, Operation and Maintenance | 40,369,623 | 40,163,623 |

Rescission (Contingent emergency appropriations) | (90,500) | (90,500) |

Total, Administration of Foreign Affairs | 186,800 | 90,500 |

Total, Title I (Contingent emergency appropriations) | (62,129,151) | (62,129,151) |

Title 2: International Security

Chapter 3: Department of State

| Diplomatic and Consular programs (emergency) | 40,500 | 35,800 |
| Rescission (Contingent emergency appropriations) | 35,800 | 35,800 |

Total, Administration of Foreign Affairs | 186,800 | 90,500 |

Title II: Bilateral Economic Assistance

| Funds Appropriated to the President | 20,304,000 | 20,304,000 |
| Economic Support Fund (emergency) | 422,000 | 422,000 |
| United States Emergency Fund for Complex Foreign Crises (emergency) | 100,000 | 100,000 |

Total, Title II | (60,500) | (60,500) |
Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I wish to take this time to talk about some of the successes that our wonderful military uniformed personnel are having in Iraq. We see a lot on the television that looks like things are in chaos, and in some places they are.

I want to talk about some of the good things because I think as we take up this supplemental appropriation, we are going to be talking about what this money is going for and why we need to put $20 billion into rebuilding Iraq.

This picture illustrates so well what we are going to be doing with this money and why we need that $20 billion to help us rebuild Iraq.

The schools are starting today in Iraq. Millions of schoolchildren are beginning to go to school today. According to Sgt Mark Getsy from the 506th ECES, these children have been climbing the gates for weeks, climbing the gates because they are so excited that they are going to get to go to school. Why are they excited? Why are they able to go to school?

I will give some instances of how successful we are. Air Force and Army volunteers have extended a helping hand to these children for weeks so that their education can be in the best possible facilities. Members of the Air Force's 506th Expeditionary Civil Engineer Squadron at Kirkuk Air Base and the Army's Battle Companies 2nd Battalion, 503rd Airborne, have teamed up to renovate two schools in the local area. The first school is a model for the rest of the Kirkuk schools, and it is opening today.

Said 1SG Richard Weik, the Army project officer: We adopted the schools because they were close to our safe houses. The first thing we did was go around and assess the electrical and plumbing situation. It was a mess.

The Army called in Air Force electricians to help get the school ready for business. TSgt Jack Vollriede, an electrician from the 506th ECES, said Air Force electricians were already working in the area on Army safe houses when they heard about the project.

The Army asked us if we would check out the electrical work being done at the school. I saw the work needing to be done was very similar to what I do in my civilian job back home so I asked others in my shop to volunteer and help out with the project.

Since mid-September, more than 10 electricians have been working daily to get the schools up and running. Vollriede said it was hard at first to find the right parts, but the team managed to accomplish a great deal in a short period of time.

We have completed five electrical service panel replacements, installed emergency lighting, fixed all the interior lighting, and fixed the school bell. We are now working on installing grounded outlets for computers in all the classrooms and offices.

I know the Senator from Montana is in the Chamber and is scheduled to speak. I will yield to him as soon as he is ready, but I first will say how important this is. It is happening all over Iraq. These Army and Air Force volunteers are coming in and fixing the schools so that these children can start learning, not the limited knowledge that they had during Saddam Hussein's time but knowledge of the world, knowledge of freedom, knowledge of other horizons that they will be able to share when they get their education. They know it and they are excited about it. It is something that America is providing.

The $20 billion that we are going to be voting on in the $87 billion package is going to encompass projects like this that will start the process for the Iraqi people to have a better quality of life, educated children—what every person in the world would like to have: quality of life and education for their children—and that is what the money will go for. So we are going to be debating why we need $20 billion to rebuild Iraq. It is for the national security of the United States that these children start school, that our great volunteers help them do it, because if we can get these children educated and a quality of life, and an economy for the people of Iraq, those terrorists will not have a safe haven. Those terrorists will be driven away by the Iraqi people because they will see the difference in their lives when they have freedom versus when they live under a dictatorship.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BURNS. Before the Senator from Texas leaves the floor, I do not know where she got hold of that poster, but I have said ever since the invasion started, and the assault towards Baghdad, the greatest poster, the one that our men and women saw, was the_simple_soldier walking down the road with a backpack and a gun. And what I would like to see is that poster, that simple soldier, that simple soldier who walked up to them, dusty, sandy, dirty, greasy, laden with armor, weapons and goggles on his helmet; yet they reached out the hand of friendship in the form of a bottle of water or a candy bar.

One must remember these young folks were hunkered down in their homes and told how evil this Army was that was attacking their area. When the Army arrived, they found out those things they had been deprived of, the bare essentials to survive the last few days, were available and had come from the hand of an American soldier or marine. That is what many of our military on the ground today telling us to rebuild the infrastructure, bring back the central services so these people can live, improve their quality of life, and rebuild their own country.

To a man, all the military people I have visited with who have come home have said that.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Doc. No.</th>
<th>DEPARTMENT OF STATE</th>
<th>Supplemental estimate</th>
<th>Committee recommendation</th>
<th>Committee recommendation compared with supplemental estimate (+ or -)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>108-126</td>
<td>International narcotics control and law enforcement (emergency)</td>
<td>120,000</td>
<td>120,000</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>108-126</td>
<td>Nonproliferation, antiterrorism, demining and related programs (emergency)</td>
<td>35,000</td>
<td>35,000</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>108-126</td>
<td>Military assistance</td>
<td>222,000</td>
<td>222,000</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>108-126</td>
<td>Peacetime operations (emergency)</td>
<td>50,000</td>
<td>50,000</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total, Chapter 2

Emergency appropriations
Contingent emergency appropriations
Recessions

Total, TITLE II

Emergency appropriations
Contingent emergency appropriations
Recessions

Recessions

GRAND TOTAL (net)

Emergency appropriations
Contingent emergency appropriations
Recessions

87,039,804

87,004,004

(35,800)
Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, responding to the comments of the Senator from Montana, he could not be on target any more. I hear the same thing from the men and women who return, the men and women I talked to when I was in Afghanistan and Pakistan. I agree with the Senator that it is those soft, kind, gentle, clean-cut, all-American soldiers who give the best possible image of our country.

This picture is of a soldier from A Company, 1st Battalion, 502nd Infantry. A Company took a collection in the town of Mosul. They went to the local economy and they bought school supplies for these children to be able to have pencils, erasers, and paper when they go to school. One could not ask for better ambassadors. They did it from their own pockets because they know what we are doing in this country is important for the security of the American people.

Mr. President, that is the genius of our country, when we look at it. We have always lived for the next generation. Our mothers and fathers wanted us to be educated better than they were. I was raised on a small farm in the Midwest. I went to a small high school in a town of Montgomery when I was 18. The generation before us wanted us to be educated better than they were. They wanted us to start up the economic ladder a little bit better than they started. I was a product of the Great Depression in the 1930s. In doing that in the family unit, of living for the next generation, this system has afforded the highest quality of life and standard of living for more of its citizens than any other society that has been developed on the face of this planet. That is what makes this particular mission in Iraq, in the Middle East, very important. Those young people who met and have a very positive view of Americans, who are the young men and women, will have the impressionable years of a young person's life—will never forget that. That will be burned in their brains. There might be a lot of propaganda flying around, but they know. They shook the hand of and met our best ambassadors. We didn't start this fight. We didn't start this fight. Because if 9/11 of the year '01 doesn't mean anything else, it should carry the same significance as Pearl Harbor or any other devastating attack that has come before us against this country. We didn't start this fight, but they brought the fight to the wrong people and the wrong country because of our values and because what we really believe in is that freedom equals opportunity, opportunity equals choices, and choices have consequences.

It is this warrior who cleared the way. The polls now say the majority of the people in Iraq believe they are now better off than they were under the tyrant Saddam Hussein.

Why is $21 billion important? Saddam Hussein had a knack of controlling his people. He did it through the rationing of central services, the very basics of our community. He only had about 60 percent or 70 percent capacity to produce as much electricity for his country as he needed. So if he didn't like you, or you made him mad, or you came from the wrong side of the creek, you wanted centrally controlled health care? He had it. He rationed it. He used it to control. Water, whatever the central services, his infrastructure was in complete disarray. But he liked it like that. So he rationed it—mass graves, history of gassing people, killing people, raiding his neighbors.

So we didn't start this fight. We are sure going to conclude it. We are sure going to develop a country of people who desire to be free and to live, to educate and to raise their kids in a free society. Representative government has already taken over in Iraq. The overwhelming majority of these funds, of course, go to our military in this partnership. But those who would deny them freedoms and opportunities, and control them through fear, understand what this is about. It is about people who are in charge of their country and are not afraid to stand for freedom or die for the next generation. That is what is all about. That is what this President envisioned when we were hit on 9/11. He didn't ask for those planes to fly into the World Trade Center or hit the Pentagon or the plane that crashed in Pennsylvania. He didn't ask for the first attack on the World Trade Center. He didn't ask for the attacks on the USS Cole, Khobar Towers, our embassies around the world.

There is no negotiating with folks who use fear to control. For, if we fail here, the battle line is probably our own country. Since the Civil War, not a shot has been fired here. We have always had the means to keep the enemy's ground. That is what it is all about.

Representative government in small towns and political and units in Iraq and not have already taken hold. We are already establishing an interim government in Baghdad and it will not be long before they have a constitution, they will have elections. Our interest there is in the generation of school kids because it is an investment. Is it an investment? Yes, but it is an investment in the democratic leader. The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, today we begin the most consequential national security debate in a generation. At stake is more than just the fate of Saddam Hussein in spending.

This debate will speak to the lives of hundreds of thousands of our men and women in uniform, who are being asked to risk everything for their country. It will speak to America's taxpayers who are being asked to shoulder the burden of the administration's Iraq policy with little or no help from our friends and allies around the globe. And it will speak to our Nation's responsibilities and its role in the world today. I want to let us begin, though, by talking specifically about what this debate is not about.

Democrats and Republicans are united in our support for all our brave service men and women.

They continue to bring honor to their country. Inspired by their performance of duty to us, we pledge to live up to our duty to them.

Democrats will do everything in our power to ensure that our troops have the tools and the resources they need to do the job we are asking of them. Democrats and Republicans are also united in our commitment to a free, stable, and secure Iraq. Terror must not be the successor to tyranny.

Therefore, Democrats are committed to doing everything possible to keep Saddam Hussein from returning to power and to keep terrorists from exploiting the post-Saddam vacuum in Iraq.

The administration's inadequate post-Saddam planning continues to have gravest consequences.

On a daily basis, we hear of our soldiers follow orders that place them in mortal danger because they understand their work serves a greater purpose and a larger strategy. But when we place them in situations where there is no effective strategy or plan, this danger is greatly increased.

Saddly, this is a lesson our Nation has had several opportunities to learn. Retired General Anthony Zinni put it best. He said in a recent speech:

"Our troops should never be put on a battlefield without a strategic plan, not only for the fighting—our generals will take care of that—but for the aftermath and winning that war."

"Where are we, the American people, if we accept this, if we accept this level of sacrifice without that level of planning?"

"Almost everyone in this room, of my contemporaries—our feelings and our sensitivities were forged on the battlefields of Vietnam; where we heard the garbage and the lies, and we saw the sacrifice."

"We swore never again would we do that. We swore never again would we allow it to happen. And I ask you, is it happening again? And you're going to have to answer that question, just like the American people are. And remember, everyone of those young men and women that do not come back is not only a personal tragedy, it's a national tragedy."

"By making the right questions and making the right changes to the administration's initial request, the Senate can act to correct these mistakes and ensure success in Iraq."

But a supplemental request is not a substitute for a clear plan for Iraq's future. And the American people will not accept a plan that is neither a priority nor sufficient.

The White House's plan for post-Saddam Iraq was either inadequate or altogether non-existent.

In its post-combat report, the Joint Chiefs of Staff concluded that the post-war personnel was not sufficient to some of the most critical challenges we face in post-Saddam Iraq.

I quote from that report:

"Late formation of [post-conflict] organizations limited time available for the development of detailed plans and pre-deployment coordination. . . . Weapons of mass destruction (WMD) elimination and exploitation planning efforts did not occur early enough in the process to allow CentCom to effectively execute the mission." It concludes, "The extent of the planning required was underestimated."

Just yesterday, I learned from Iraq's Governing Council that the administration had failed to consult them when putting together its proposal to rebuild Iraq.

Think about that. At the same time the administration professes its desire to put Iraqis in charge of Iraq, it failed to seek their counsel about Iraq's most urgent needs. Instead, the administration chose to have Ambassador Bremer and its experts here in Washington determine what was best for the citizens of Baghdad and Basra.

The administration's inadequate post-Saddam planning planning cannot be expected to do what is reasonable to obtain their support.

But it is not enough for the President to make speeches or insist on resolutions at the United Nations that essentially restate policy positions that to date have left us working largely alone.

The administration needs to produce a clear plan that demonstrates both to our Armed Forces and to our taxpayers precisely what sacrifices will be expected of them, both now and in the future, in order to accomplish our objectives.

This supplemental budget request does not take either of those steps.

Before the Senate is one bill, but in truth, there are two separate and distinct requests. First, is the $67 billion requested to equip our troops to do their job. Democrats have no objection to this request and we would be willing to approve this funding this very day.

Alongside funding to support our troops stands an additional $20 billion to aid in the rebuilding of Iraq. As I said earlier, Democrats remain committed to doing whatever it takes to provide Iraq with the tools and resources necessary to join the community of nations as a safe, responsible, self-sufficient member.

But a supplemental request is not a plan. And we have serious misgivings about providing the funds requested until we have confidence they will be used in service to a plan that will succeed in achieving our objectives in Iraq.

That confidence is undermined when Americans read reports that firms with close personal and financial ties to the White House are winning no-bid contracts, raising the appearance of impropriety and cronyism.

That confidence is further eroded when Americans learn that many of the items within this supplemental request seem grossly inflated or dubious. The American taxpayer is being asked to pick up the tab for items like pickup trucks at the cost of $33,000 a piece. Iraqi prisoners will be incarcerated at $50,000 per year, more than twice the cost in...
American prisons. And Iraqi entrepreneurs will receive business training costing $10,000 per month, more than two-and-a-half times the cost of an education at the Harvard Business School. To be sure, many investments within this bill are worthwhile. But we should bring the same vigilance to control unnecessary spending that we bring to spending here at home. That is the root of the questions we will ask and the amendments we will offer.

We are not only unprepared to raise important questions such as these since the very beginning of the Iraqi conflict. Unfortunately, upon each occasion, Republicans opted to question our motives and in some cases, even our patriotism. Senate Armed Forces Committee Chairman John Warner said last week of our soldiers, “Their fathers, their uncles, their grandparents have served in previous military conflicts, and they look upon the Congress as that bastion that cares for them.” And I ask, do those comments constitute embracing, as we should, those families, those children? Is that safeguarding those put in harm’s way? I say no.

Senate Intelligence Chairman Roberts even suggested that the posing of questions put the lives of our soldiers at risk. “I’m very concerned that if the criticism is so harsh as to create the impression of lack of resolve, I wonder what the result may be—that not only our men and women serving in uniform, but the very terrorists who are killing our troops and their fellow Iraqis.”

These comments represent a low-point in the Senates proud tradition of deliberation and debate. The right to question our leaders is the foundation of our democracy.

Demanding answers in a time of war strengthens our democracy, rather than weakening it. Senator Harry S. Truman, a hero of our nation, said, “I am bound to the Iraqi people and responsible for their fate.”

We are committed to fulfilling that responsibility by providing the resources and support they need to become fully independent members in the community of nations.

But our vision cannot be clouded by false optimism or blinded by stubborn pride. It is not too late to change course and bring a real plan and real cooperation, to the American rebuilding of Iraq. This opportunity will not last much longer.

We can’t afford to let it, and the future of a secure Middle East, slip through our fingers.

The cost of success is great; the cost of failure is even greater.

Mr. Feingold. About 10 minutes.

Mr. McCaIN. I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Wisconsin be recognized for 10 minutes, and I be recognized for 15 minutes following that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FeINGOLD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Wisconsin who was here before me.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I thank the Senator for his courtesy.

(Comments of Mr. Feingold are printed in todays RECORD under “Morning Business.”)

Mr. FEINGOLD. I thank the Presiding Officer, and I again especially thank the Senator from Arizona for his courtesy.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, we have begun a debate that may ultimately be more consequential than the war debate we had in this Chamber last October, which culminated in the votes of 77 Senators authorizing the President of the United States to go to war against Saddam Husseins Iraq. A negative Senate vote last fall, before our troops was committing and reconstructing Iraq, would have weakened the Presidents leadership and made America less secure. But a vote against reconstructing Iraq now, with 130,000 American forces on the ground, America might find itself, once again, our friends and enemies at stake, and the enormous responsibility of helping the Iraqi people rebuild their country now on our shoulders, would doom Iraqs transformation to failure, with grave consequences for the entire Middle East, and devastate American leadership in a dangerous world.

An extraordinary allied military campaign in Iraq overthrew, in 3 weeks, a Baathist regime that had ruled for three decades. Americans have rightly praised our military’s exemplary performance, but for the cause for which they fought: ending the threat posed by Saddam Husseins regime and liberating the Iraqi people from his tyrannical rule. We owe it to the liberators, those who have the human and material resources and support they need to become fully independent members in the community of nations.

But our vision cannot be clouded by false optimism or blinded by stubborn pride.

An extraordinary allied military campaign in Iraq overthrew, in 3 weeks, a Baathist regime that had ruled for three decades. Americans have rightly praised our military’s exemplary performance, but for the cause for which they fought: ending the threat posed by Saddam Husseins regime and liberating the Iraqi people from his tyrannical rule. We owe it to the liberators, those who have the human and material resources and support they need to become fully independent members in the community of nations.

But our vision cannot be clouded by false optimism or blinded by stubborn pride.

An extraordinary allied military campaign in Iraq overthrew, in 3 weeks, a Baathist regime that had ruled for three decades. Americans have rightly praised our military’s exemplary performance, but for the cause for which they fought: ending the threat posed by Saddam Husseins regime and liberating the Iraqi people from his tyrannical rule. We owe it to the liberators, those who have the human and material resources and support they need to become fully independent members in the community of nations.

But our vision cannot be clouded by false optimism or blinded by stubborn pride.

An extraordinary allied military campaign in Iraq overthrew, in 3 weeks, a Baathist regime that had ruled for three decades. Americans have rightly praised our military’s exemplary performance, but for the cause for which they fought: ending the threat posed by Saddam Husseins regime and liberating the Iraqi people from his tyrannical rule. We owe it to the liberators, those who have the human and material resources and support they need to become fully independent members in the community of nations.
timely United States withdrawal from Iraq, and for the quickest restoration of Iraqi sovereignty, is to maximize our commitment now to providing the security and services that will allow the fragile institutions of democracy to take hold. The United States needs investment in Iraq’s future is the only way we can leave the Iraqi people and their leaders with a functioning, progressive state that will be an example for the region and a future partner and ally of the United States.

Some US military officers on both sides of the aisle accept that Iraq requires substantial and immediate reconstruction funding, but would provide that funding in the form of loans to be repaid to the United States or international financial institutions when the Iraqi economy is up and running again. This would gravely damage America’s reputation and our support within Iraq. Asserting our claim to Iraq’s oil over the next 10 or 20 years would confirm the propaganda of our enemies and the suspicions of skeptics across the Arab world and closer to home: that this was a war for oil. It would also make it impossible for us to encourage countries like Russia, France, Germany, which paid enormous levels of Iraqi debt from Saddam Hussein’s era, to write off some of that debt in order to life its burden from the Iraqi people.

Second, can whether directly or indirectly, over Iraq’s future oil revenue would condemn Iraq to be another ward of the international community by denying the Iraqi people the key to their future prosperity. By making a claim that would prevent future oil revenues from being spent by a representative Iraqi government to meet the needs of the Iraqi people, we would impede the economic development that will be key to a moderate, progressive Iraqi politics. We would make our immediate talk of reconstruction and securing Iraq much more difficult, because collateralizing Iraqi oil revenues would encourage more Iraqis to believe the message of the Baathists and terrorists who oppose us: that we are in Iraq not to help the Iraqi people build a better future but to serve our own narrow ends, at their expense. Ironically, we would also make it more difficult for American forces to leave Iraq by handicapping Iraqis’ ability to reconstruct the country and govern themselves. Providing reconstruction monies in the form of a loan would seriously undermine American national interests in the Middle East.

We will also debate the question of whether to divide this spending bill into military and reconstruction components. Proponents of this approach would substantially trim or vote down reconstruction funding, as if we should pay only for our troop presence in Iraq but spend little to nothing on what our troops are actually there to do: create basic security and enable restoration of services so the Iraqis can govern themselves. The reconstruction and military components of this spending request are inextricably linked. Part of the answer to the security challenges we face in Iraq is restoring basic services and empowering Iraqis to play a greater role in their own security. Voting against the President’s reconstruction request would seriously degrade the security environment as greater numbers of frustrated Iraqis fall prey to the extremists’ appeal to oppose our presence, putting our troops in greater danger and imperiling their core mission of stabilizing Iraq.

At a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing last week, I asked Ambassador Paul Bremer what would happen if Congress did not pass the reconstruction portion of the President’s supplemental spending request. Here is his response: “Well, it would be directly contrary to American’s interest—obviously, it would be contrary to the Iraqis’ interest, but it would be contrary to our interest, because it would create much greater insecurity. I think we would find more of the population turning against us. I think we would find more attacks on coalition forces. Eventually, Iraq would . . . recede into a situation of chaos much like was experienced in Lebanon in the 1970s and 1980s, and we would find another breeding ground for terrorists. So I think it’s a rather grim outlook.” I would ask colleagues who may be considering efforts to split this bill into military and reconstruction components in order to decrease or vote down reconstruction funding to contemplate the prospect of the kind of state collapse and civil war that devastated Lebanon happening in Iraq as a result of our own shortsightedness.

The Senate will also consider proposals to reduce tax cuts for the wealthy in order to pay for Iraqi reconstruction. I voted against the President’s tax cut package in 2003, in part because the costs of this war and its aftermath were unknown at the time. But given what is at stake for the Iraqi people and for America’s national interest, I cannot support proposals to raise taxes to fund our mission in Iraq. Such proposals, if not linked to the Iraq supplemental, would have merit, but were they to pass as part of this package they would endanger its passage, transforming a domestic political dispute into what would quickly become a foreign policy defeat. Our success in Iraq is too important to take that chance.

This bill is not perfect. I intend to offer an amendment to provide for regular auditing of the Coalition Provisional authority’s budget, and I suspect the Senate will add additional reporting requirements to better inform us about how reconstruction money is being spent. But given the urgency of the situation, I will support the President’s budget request, oppose all amendments that could endanger its passage, and do everything I can to see that the United States honors the commitment we have entered into to help the Iraqi people stand up a legitimate, representative government that does not threaten them or their neighbors, and that is a force for good in a dangerous region.

Every so often in this Chamber, we debate an issue that transcends partisan divisions. Providing for Iraq’s democratic future should be such an issue. I encourage my colleagues to gauge carefully the broader national interest, as we consider what I hope will be a long and high-minded debate. To a large extent, or choices will determine the success or failure of what I believe to be the most important foreign policy challenge in a generation.

Failure to make the necessary political and financial commitment to build the new Iraq could endanger American leadership in the world, empower our enemies, and condemn Iraq to renewed tyranny. We must act urgently to transform our military success into political victory. Passage of these supplemental funds will move us meaningfully towards that goal. Stripping reconstruction aid or providing it in the form of a loan that will incite Iraqi and Arab hostility against us will only make the job of our service men and women in Iraq harder and could doom them to failure. After all their sacrifice, and in light of the potential a free and stable Iraq holds for the future of the Middle East and America’s position in the world, it would be disgraceful to turn our back’s now.

Iraq’s transformation into a progressive Arab state could set the region that produced Saddam Hussein, the Taliban, and al-Qaida on a new course in which democratic expression and economic prosperity, rather than a radicalizing mix of humiliation, poverty, and repression, define a new modernity in the Muslim world that does not express itself in ways that threaten its people or other nations. Conversely, a forced United States retreat from Iraq would be the equivalent of an American defeat on the global stage since Vietnam. I don’t make that statement lightly. I repeat: A forced United States retreat from Iraq would be the most serious American defeat on the global stage since Vietnam.

Our mission in Iraq is too important to fail. But it is winnable, because an Iraqi majority shares our vision of a free and progressive Iraq. Our national interest demands that we help them realize this goal.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I am in the majority’s position that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Murkowski). Without objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, we are debating the emergency supplemental bill that deals with the request for funds for our military, as well as for reconstruction in the country of Iraq.

I believe it is necessary to provide the funding that is requested for our military, and I believe the President will find wide support for that on the Senate floor. I believe it is also necessary for reconstruction to occur in Iraq. I don't disagree with that issue at all. However, I disagree as to where the funding should come for this reconstruction. I agree with my colleague who talked about this being an important time and that there are very important questions for the Senate to confront. These are serious questions and need to be dealt with in a serious way. I expect this debate will be respectful, even though we have some disagreements. I think there is more agreement than disagreement on most of these questions. I mentioned that when the President requests funding for our Defense Department, our soldiers who are on a mission this country has asked them to undertake, we have an obligation to provide the necessary funding for them to complete their mission. America cannot ask its soldiers and their families to go to war and then withhold anything that is necessary for them to complete their mission. That which is needed in the Defense Department, that which those who are commanding our soldiers say they need to finish this job, we must provide, and in my judgment, will provide.

This appropriations request, however, includes not only resources for our military, but also resources for the reconstruction of Iraq. I want to talk about that for a bit because we had a long debate in the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday and had several votes. The votes turned out to be one-vote margins. I want to talk about that.

First, let me say I believe that, while I have not visited Iraq, there are many important and positive things happening in the country of Iraq. Yesterday one of my colleagues asked the question: Why are those positive developments not being reported? I expect, based on talking to folks who have visited there, and from Ambassador Bremer's testimony, and others, including colleagues who have visited there, that there are things happening in that country which are very positive. I agree with that. Those who ask the question "why are they not being reported?" might watch the television news tonight in Washington, DC, and they would see what is reported. What is reported is negative. It is not just with what is happening in Iraq, it is what is happening everywhere. That is the way the business works. Turn on the television tonight in Washington, DC, and one will see what the lead story will be: It will be a murder, or a kidnapping, or a robbery, or an accident. That is just the way it works.

That is what is happening in Iraq. The media is reporting the bad news. That is what they will report tonight here in Washington, DC. There is an old saying, "bad news travels halfway around the world before good news gets there." This has been manifested more relentlessly than in our media. I understand that. It is not just happening with Iraq.

But from eyewitnesses and those who have been on the ground in Iraq, we know that there are positive things happening there.

Having said that, we cannot dismiss the fact there are some significant problems and challenges in Iraq as well. It is, and it is not something we should ever become accustomed to, to wake up in the morning and turn on the news and hear of another American soldier who was killed, or more American soldiers wounded. That is the type of thing we will become accustomed to in this country.

I also believe, as I indicated, that as we consider a piece of legislation with a price tag of $87 billion to support the troops, we must also consider the resources necessary for the troops and also to provide for the reconstruction of Iraq. It is an appropriate and important time to ask some questions about especially the portion dealing with reconstruction. That is what I focused on yesterday in the Appropriations Committee.

Let me talk about this reconstruction. This is a new subject that is offered us by the President—reconstruction. We understand what the President planned. We understand the long campaign called shock and awe, which was a military campaign, would be devastating in its consequences to the Iraqi troops, but not devastating to the country of Iraq in terms of infrastructure. That is what we focused on yesterday in the Appropriations Committee.

Let me talk about this reconstruction. This is a new subject that is offered us by the President—reconstruction. We understand what the President planned. We understand the long campaign called shock and awe, which was a military campaign, would be devastating in its consequences to the Iraqi troops, but not devastating to the country of Iraq in terms of infrastructure. That is what we focused on yesterday in the Appropriations Committee.

The requirement for reconstruction, by and large, stems from a long-term deterioration of the assets of Iraq under Saddam Hussein, No. 1; and No. 2, from a type of guerrilla activity by insurgents inside the country of Iraq—Iraqis themselves, among others—to destroy property and infrastructure in Iraq. That is what caused this administration to ask us for nearly $21 billion to reconstruct the country of Iraq.

Let me say that the request for the reconstruction of Iraq is a request for grants, where we will take the money from our Treasury—or borrow the money, as will be the case, because we are very deeply in debt in this country at this point and our annual budget deficit is roughly in the $475 billion range. We will borrow money to provide it to the Iraqis for reconstruction. This is not that there is a Treasury—or money, as will be the case, because we are very deeply in debt in this country at this point and our annual budget deficit is roughly in the $475 billion range. We will borrow money to provide it to the Iraqis for reconstruction. This is not that there is a Treasury—or money.
other countries who already made pledges, Britain, Germany, Norway, Japan, Canada, and Iraqi oil revenues...

Will be used eventually in several years when it is up and running and when a new government, democratically elected, will finish the job with new revenues.

They are going to get $20 billion a year in oil revenues. But the American part of this will be $1.7 billion. We have no plans for any further funding for this.

This is 5 months ago from the point person in this administration with respect to Iraq's reconstruction, saying $1.7 billion.

Ted Koppel comes back to him again on the same program and says: You're saying the, the top cost for the U.S. taxpayer will be $1.7 billion. No more than that?

Mr. Natsios: For the reconstruction...

Ted Koppel: But as far as the reconstruction goes, the American taxpayer will not be hit by more than $1.7 billion no matter how long the process takes?

Mr. Natsios: That is our plan and that is our intention. And these figures... I have to say, there's a little bit of hoopla involved in this.

I guess he was referring to something else. There sure isn't a lot of hoopla involved in his figures.

Later in the program, Mr. Natsios says, responding to Ted Koppel:

That's correct, $1.7 billion is the limit on reconstruction for Iraq.

The fact is, there is very little tradable between $9 billion and $12 billion. Why did they change so quickly? Why was it decided that the obligation for the reconstruction of this country—not an impoverished country, I might say, a country with the second largest reserves of oil in the entire world—why was it decided the American taxpayers should bear this burden exclusively?

Amr Moussa, who testified before our Appropriations Committee, I asked him about this issue.

I said: Mr. Ambassador, Iraq has very substantial oil reserves. They have liquid gold under that sand. They have the capability of pumping a lot of oil.

He said: Yes.

In fact, when I asked about how much they would pump, he said: By July of next year, we expect Iraq will be pumping 3 million barrels of oil a day and, using their figures, we expect, when you take out of that the amount necessary to be used in Iraq by Iraqis, the amount of money that they will sell on the export market will produce $16 billion a year of revenue—$16 billion a year of revenue.

Yesterday, members of the Iraqi Governing Council were in town, and they said they are going to be producing 6 million barrels of oil—double that.

Let's use the more conservative figure of 3 million barrels of oil produced a day by next July. This then is a country that has the capability of producing $160 billion in 10 years from oil revenue exports only or $320 billion in 20 years. Securitizing that oil production would be relatively easy for Iraq in order to raise the funds to reconstruct what is needed to be reconstructed in Iraq.

I asked Ambassador Bremer, why then, shouldn't we propose that Iraqi oil be used to reconstruct Iraq? He said: Because Iraq has substantial foreign indebtedness, they will not be able to encumber their oil revenue; they will have to repay foreign indebtedness first.

I asked Ambassador Bremer to whom Iraq owed money. He said, France—I believe he said Russia first—Russia, France, Germany.

Following that hearing, I began to do some research on Iraq's indebtedness. It turns out that the largest of Iraq's creditors are Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. The best estimates are that Iraq owes somewhere else to $25 billion to Saudi Arabia. And they owe somewhere else to $25 billion to Kuwait. They owe somewhere else $4 billion to France, $4 billion to Germany, and $30 billion to the other Gulf States. They owe between $4 billion and $8 billion to France, $4 billion to Germany, and somewhere between $9 billion and $12 billion to Russia. But as one can see, the largest creditor of the country of Iraq are Kuwait and Saudi Arabia.

Now, I find it strange that anyone would suggest that the debts of Saddam's regime must be honored, but the current Iraqi Governing Council is not favoring that.

Some make the point that the Iraqi Governing Council has not been democratically elected. Well, does anyone think that Saddam Hussein was duly elected? Let's just remember the last couple of elections. In 1995, Saddam Hussein ran for President of Iraq. He ran unopposed and won 99.96 percent of the vote. Out of 8 million ballots, supposedly only 3,000 people voted against Saddam Hussein.

Then in August of 2000, they had another election in Iraq and Saddam Hussein ran again for President. He again ran unopposed. This time, the official election count was better, actually. With a 100 percent voter turnout, Saddam Hussein received 100 percent of the vote. That was actually the official count.

They provided no real polling booths. Voters were required to parade down a street and vote. We provided 28 portraits of Saddam Hussein. They were required to hold their ballots over their heads as they walked down this gallery so that everyone could see how they voted. Before the election, the Iraqi phone company rigged their telephones so when a person picked up the phone to make a phone call, they heard the message that they had a requirement to go out and vote for Saddam Hussein.

The fact is, there is very little tradeable. They are trying to sell securities against future oil revenues of Iraq through some mechanism. I believe, has ample authority to create an Iraq postal service, including issuing ZIP Codes. Well, that is not part of an urgent supplemental, in my judgment.

Then there is $54 million for a comprehensive consulting technical study for the Iraqi postal system. That is not urgent, in my judgment.

Restoring marshlands; two 4,000-bed hospitals for $50,000 a bed; $50,000 a bed, testing and training centers, and open job centers, and so on. I think some of this is likely urgent, some of it not, but all of it can and should be paid for with Iraqi oil.

I will describe how that could work and how it should work.

I offered an amendment in committee yesterday that would create an Iraq Reconstruction Finance Agency. I lost that amendment by one vote. Following that, I offered a second amendment, which is a choice I do not particularly favor but one that is better than a series of grants. That amendment would provide that instead of grants, we extend loans.

Both amendments were defeated in the committee, and I will offer both on the Senate floor as we proceed to have a debate about the reconstruction portion of this package.

The Iraqi Governing Council, I believe, has ample authority to create an Iraq Reconstruction Finance Authority and do so in a way that obligates future oil revenues of Iraq through some securitization, by which they would sell securities against future oil revenue and raise the money for reconstruction of Iraq. As one of my colleagues earlier today suggested, that is not in some way having the United States get their hands on Iraqi oil. It is nothing of the sort. This is the people in Iraq making use of their resources, by securitizing the future, future oil reserves. Understand, they have the second largest reserves in the world. This is not an impoverished country. They have dramatic and valuable resources. This is about Iraqi citizens using Iraqi oil to reconstruct the country of Iraq. Why would someone choose the alternative of saying, let’s have the American taxpayer pay for the reconstruction of that war that Iraq has and that it had to resolve. I think it ought to be resolved this way: I believe Ambassador Bremer and the Iraq authority ought to go to the donor conference and ought to be involved in bilateral and multilateral talks in which they seek debt forgiveness. After all, Saddam Hussein should not have been able to obligate the Iraqi people to mortgage their future. Saddam Hussein is gone. His government does not exist. Why do we believe that loans from the Saudis to Iraq back in the 1980s ought to be repaid now when those loans were made to Saddam Hussein? Let Saddam Hussein repay those loans, not the Iraqi people.

This was not a duly constituted government in the first instance. I just described the mechanism by which he was in power.

This is not a case, as my colleague earlier suggested, of just treating this in a nonserious way, believing that somehow the money is not needed for Iraq. I believe the military appropriations that the President has requested for our troops are related to reconstruction, but I believe very strongly that much of what is requested for reconstruction is, A, not urgent and, B, certainly not reconstruction that ought to be paid for by the American people.

Let me come again to this point: we were told time and time again that the U.S. taxpayer would have, at most, a minimal financial burden in terms of reconstruction.

The representations to us all along, all year, have been that Iraqi oil would bear the burden for reconstruction. Vice President Cheney said on March 16 of this year—I am quoting directly:

In Iraq, you’ve got a nation that’s got the second largest oil reserves in the world, second only to Saudi Arabia. It will generate billions of dollars a year in cash flow.

Ari Fleischer at the White House said:

Iraq, unlike Afghanistan, is a rather wealthy country. It has tremendous resources that belong to the Iraqi people.

He is talking about Iraq has to be able to shoulder much of the burden for their own reconstruction.

Paul Wolfowitz, Deputy Secretary of Defense said:

On a rough recollection, the oil revenues of that country could bring between $50 billion to $100 billion over the course of the next few years. We’re dealing with a country that can really pay for its own reconstruction, and relatively soon.

Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense, on March 27, said:

I don’t believe that the United States has the responsibility for reconstruction, in a sense . . . And the funds can come from those various sources I mentioned: frozen assets, oil revenues, and a variety of other things.

The fact is, just months ago we were told by Secretary Rumsfeld, by Deputy Secretary Wolfowitz, by Vice President Cheney, and many others that the U.S. taxpayer would not have to foot the bill.

We have not had anyone come to us to explain to us the reason for the change.

We had Ambassador Bremer explain to us why he believes the proceeds from Iraqi oil are going to have to be committed to repay Iraq’s foreign debt. Translated to the language from my hometown, it would be: Iraqi oil should produce some revenue so the Iraqi people can pay off Saddam’s debts to some of the richest countries in the world, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

But nobody came forward to say, we did tell you all these things 4 or 5 months ago, and did tell the American people and tell you in Congress you are not going to pay for reconstruction of Iraq because Iraqi oil is going to pay for it—no one has come forward to say, I was wrong then, or I have changed my mind.

The question is, Has the Vice President changed his mind? I am guessing no. Has Secretary Rumsfeld changed his mind? Has Mr. Wolfowitz changed his mind? Has Mr. Armitage changed his mind?

I think it is important to ask the question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, are we under a time limit at this point? Could I have explained to me the time on the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time until 12:30 has been divided. All time remains for the majority at this point.

Mr. DORGAN. This time for debate was apparently evenly divided until 12:30; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. DORGAN. What will be the circumstances of the floor this afternoon, could I ask the manager?

Mr. STEVENS. Madam President, if I might respond, the bill will be subject to amendment at any time. We are hopeful there will be amendments. Neither Senator Byrd nor I have spoken on the bill yet.

Once Senator Byrd has finished his comments, we will be back on the bill. Of course the Senator could speak at any time.

Mr. DORGAN. I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Madam President, I think at this time I should point out what we have brought to the floor the President’s emergency supplemental request for Iraq. Last evening, the President signed the 2004 Defense Appropriations Committee bill. At the request of the Congress, specifically the Senate, the President did not include in that bill any funding for the war in Iraq or Afghanistan, and the funding for that and we will consider this supplemental that is before us now.

Many have asked for a great many things in connection with this supplemental that is before us. I think it is good to review history because we have had the history studied by the Congressional Research Service, and I am informed that no President before has asked, in advance, for money to conduct a war. This President did that. He had a supplemental before that carried us through fiscal year 2003. And this bill is theoretically to pick up on October 4 and carry forward the activities in Iraq and Afghanistan and the war on global terrorism following that time.

The bill does contain a substantial amount of money for the intelligence community, which is classified. This afternoon we will hold a hearing in our classified hearing room in the Capitol to explore some of the ramifications of that. We have closed out the hearings which concern this bill and of themselves, they are unique because I know of no hearing on a supplemental request of this type during my time in the Senate. The request was made for hearings by my good friend from West Virginia. We have not held those hearings, but I believe we have explored the proposals that have been presented to us as a Special Emergency Supplemental by the President, under these circumstances, as much as is possible because we have some time frames involved. The moneys for defense activities in Iraq are in this bill.

We have an enormous number of people involved in this activity now, and this bill asks for about $66 billion to continue these activities through the fiscal year of 2004; that is, until September 30, 2004.

We have had presentations to us, in addition to that Defense supplemental, the request for $20.3 billion to carry out the activities of our Government in connection with the reconstruction and rehabilitation of Iraq during this period ahead of us. Many will ask—demand that the money in this second category be strictly loans.

There is no government of Iraq yet. There is no one we can really have obligated to repay it. We are exploring mechanisms that might be possible to set up ways in which a portion of the money would be required to be repaid. But the testimony before our committee was that these two sums are intrinsically entwined. They represent the best effort of the military department, our Department of Defense, and of our State Department and other departments of the executive branch to present to Congress what we need to try to move through the process of having an army of occupation in Iraq and move to establishing a new form of government in Iraq, supported by their people, and provide the security for that government, provide the security for the people who will be running the oilfields, as have been mentioned here, with the power stations, and the schools and other activities that are still subject to some opposition by terrorists in Iraq.

I believe Ambassador Bremer and his people have presented a coherent outline of what we are going to do. But the demand is to know in advance what is going to happen, almost on a daily basis: What are you going to do? Really, the contingencies in advance of us, now, of our Government, are unique.

If you look at Germany or look at Japan, we had a military government of occupation. We provided the complete security. We provided the complete government in the past when we accomplished the objectives they have set for the government in Iraq, supported by their people, and provide the security for the people who will be running the oilfields, as have been mentioned here, with the power stations, and the schools and other activities that are still subject to some opposition by terrorists in Iraq.

I believe Ambassador Bremer and his people have presented a coherent outline of what we are going to do. But the demand is to know in advance what is going to happen, almost on a daily basis: What are you going to do? Really, the contingencies in advance of us, now, of our Government, are unique.

We have been involved in this area less than a year. The proposal now is to carry into the next year a plan, which was presented to us in the Senate, in our inquiry in July. Some people didn't get a copy of that. That is unfortunate. But it was being presented to us during our hearings. That plan clearly sets forth the plan that was developed by Ambassador Bremer and the State Department and our Department of Defense, to proceed now and not have an army in occupation, that we do not want to be an occupier.

We want to continue our work to secure the area for the purpose of building this new government, but we have actually had some of our military people withdrawn from the areas of Iraq which have been completely pacified now and are normally operating. The local police are maintaining security. A police and a new army is what it is called, securing those areas. Still, it is a very volatile area and that is primarily the area of concern.

It is that area that depends so much on the money that is in the second part of this bill. Ambassador Bremer personally told me a number of times the oil pipelines have been bombed, sabotaged. While they are repairing those oil lines, the power stations have been brought back into operation. As oil lines were completely restored, the power stations have been blown up again. As they are trying to bring both of them back, there are sniper activities in the Baghdad area, destabilizing the situation as far as restoring tranquility in this area.

This is a time and a place that the forces of the United States, both military and civilian, need guidance on a daily basis by the Commander in Chief and his representatives. This bill contains a sizable amount of money and the discretion to use that money to accomplish the objectives they have set out. I, for one, endorse those objectives wholly because I believe they will bring our people home sooner and have us have a friendly Iraq, rebuilding itself out of its oil income, once we are able to stop this terrorist activity that is impeding the flow of oil.

The Senator from North Dakota mentioned the oil we were told to be there next July. That is true. It will be there unless the pipelines are blown up again. It will be there unless the power stations are blown up again. It takes power to run these pipelines. The power stations are there. They have been blown up also.

The problem with stability in this area is a very acute one. We have been warned of that. I think the plan they have presented, in the judgment of majority of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is such that we should give the President's people this discretion. It is a lot of money. No one questions it is a lot of money. In the first place, we separate the $66 billion for defense. We don't argue about that amount. In terms of carrying forth our commitments to our men and women in uniform to see to it they have the supplies, the materials, the backup, the rest and recreation, all of the things that are in this bill, to assure them we are with them every step of the way, we support them in every way possible to get this job done. But the main thing we want to do for them is to get them home. The way to get them home is to assure that Iraq once more can run its own affairs, defend itself, and can have a reasonable success in dealing with terrorism. We can't eliminate terrorism completely from Iraq any more than we can completely eliminate terrorism right now. We face terrorism at home. But the real problem is how soon can they know they have the capability of meeting terrorism and trying to deal with it as they try to impede the reconstruction and rehabilitation of that country. We are going to have some differences of opinion. There are differences really in philosophy, as far as I am concerned.

I think we ought to listen more to the generals who are over there in uniform, as I have yet to hear complaints from any of the people who have gone over there and who have been part of this tremendous success militarily. They report they are proud of what they have done, and they believe we are right, that we should as soon as possible have the Iraqis run this country. That is the goal.

We have had this monstrous success militarily. Normally, any country before in history has sent in an occupation force, set up a government, tried to find out who should be the new leaders of the government, worked with them for a number of years, and then eventually withdrawn their forces. Of course, as I think the world knows, we have yet to withdraw all of our forces from Europe from World War II. They stayed there for most of a permanent force over there almost, although I do think we ought to reexamine that, and we will in the near future. The future for this area is not to have an occupation force. We still have forces in Kosovo and we still have forces in Bosnia. That is not the goal of this activity. The goal of this activity is to liberate Iraq and give it the ability to store its government under a concept of free men and women determining their own future.

That means to me that we respond to the request of the President of the United States and give his people the discretion to use this money to the extent it is necessary.

I believe it is now time that we call up the bill. Is it pending?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is pending.

Mr. STEVENS. Madam President, I would like to address my friend. I don't believe we need control of time now, if the Senator agrees. I will finish my remarks and then yield to Senator Byrd, if that is agreeable. Is there any pending motion which I should make?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is none.

Mr. STEVENS. Madam President, I will close.

It is my hope the Senate will also realize the request we have made—I have made it to the leadership on both sides—to take the defense portion of this bill first. The House has not acted upon this bill yet. We will go on recess on Monday. While we are gone, the House will act on it. It is my opinion that the House should know how we feel about the defense side, the $66 billion. We should await their action on the $20.3 billion.

That is to me sort of a division of labor, you might say. We have worked very hard on the defense side of the bill. I believe we have a general agreement of where we are going to come out with it. We presented what we call the chairman's mark in the bill that is before the Senate today. It will be subject to some amendments. I hope Members will cooperate by looking at that portion of the bill first. We will deal with the $20.3 billion when we believe we have completed that review.

I would like to be able to tell the House that we have finished the defense portion and we await your consideration of what you think we should do with the $20.3 billion. They have had some substantial hearings on that side, too. The House held hearings on both portions of this request from the President.

I believe this is a new approach to funding this kind of an operation. It is a new operation. We would be wise to proceed, and when we come back from our recess I have to tell before us then the House bill, to look at what the House bill has done and put some action of the bill pertaining to the $20.3 billion. Some people may disagree, and some people think we should separate the bill—I know there is that feeling—and delete from the consideration anything that is more strictly defense. I disagree with that.

General Abizaid, who is our commander in chief there in the region, stated very clearly that he needs both portions of this bill. If we don't have the money for the people of Iraq to proceed to establish their own security, their own military, and deal with their own reconstruction problems immediately, we can't do more missions. I hope they will be able to do some of their work with the money we have left. This is a transitional phase which we have in the $20.3 billion. As I have said publicly, it is risky. The President has taken a short period of time. It is for the remainder of fiscal year 2004, for the period of time after the bill becomes law, sometime in October, until the following September. We will know during that period whether their approach will succeed.

One thing is very clear: this Congress will not walk away from Iraq. This President will not walk away from Iraq. We will not withdraw our people from Iraq and leave chaos in Iraq. Clearly, we have the obligation to finish what we started. This is the plan to finish what we started.

Some people have a roadmap, daily report, with every single aspect of what is going on, producing another request for another report. Do you know what happens to the reports? They get filed in some filing cabinet somewhere, some computer, and no one pays any attention to them.

I will oppose a great many of these reports because we have provided in the bill for quarterly reports, we provided in the bill for continuation of the reports requested in the supplemental for 2003. That is sufficient. To my knowledge, no one raised an objection to what we received so far. I don't know why we should add to that number of reports we require from the people who represent us in both military and civilian agencies in Iraq.

I look forward to debate. It has been strenuous so far. I expect it to get a little more strenuous. Clearly, it is a turning point in the history of the United States. We have followed the pattern of the Caesars. We have gone in and been a liberator and then occupied area and stayed there. Look at Germany, how long we stayed there, and Japan, how long we stayed there: 40 years and 60 years in Japan.

Do we want to do that in Iraq? We believe we can reduce that time our military people are there if we follow the proposals before the Senate from Ambassador Bremer who funnels both the recommendations of the State Department and the Department of Defense to the Congress through the President's request in the supplemental.

I remind Members of the Senate Appropriations Committee there will be a hearing in S. 407 at 5 p.m. and we do expect amendments to be filed. I hope there will be an opportunity to have a vote on some of them today although that may not be possible. The President of the United States is signing the Homeland Security bill within an hour to hour and a half. Many of the Members of Congress have been invited to be present. It is my intention to ask the Senate to withhold voting while they are gone. They are at the new Department of Homeland Security. We expect to have a vote sometime around 3:30, between that and the time of the hearing in S. 407. We would not object to a vote during that hearing. We are just upstairs. From 5 p.m. we will be in the hearing. I request we have no votes during that time.

We will not have votes too late because we have an understanding with our colleagues from the Democratic Party who have an event tonight that we have agreed we will not have votes during the time they are at that dinner.

Again, I am asking people to come forward and offer amendments. I urge Members to present amendments to the Defense bill first, if at all possible. We are prepared, however, for any amendments offered. I yield to my friend from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, the Senate today takes up the President's $87 billion Iraq war supplemental. This is a massive spending bill that holds vast implications for American long-term foreign policy objectives. It will have an enormous impact on American taxpayers for years to come.

It is a measure that deserves our full attention, our thoughtful consideration, our thorough scrutiny. This is not an issue to be measured by the standard of party loyalty. This is a matter that cries out for solemn deliberation, personal integrity, and intellectual honesty.

I remain concerned that the Senate is acting with unnecessary haste in calling up this bill today, less than 24 hours since it was reported out of the committee, but I compliment the leaders and especially the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Senator STEVENS, for responding to concerns that I and other Senators have raised. In fact, there is no need for the Senate to act too quickly. The House has not yet even taken up its version of the supplemental. While it is not a concern that the House act first, it has been customary for many years that the House of Representatives acts first. It is smoother and more thorough. It is more reasonable to go about legislating if the Senate lets the House act first so the House bill can be before Senators for their debate and amendment.

The House has not taken up its version of the supplemental. Senators are being asked to legislate on measures spending bill without the benefit of a comprehensive report, without the benefit of printed committee hearing, without the benefit of the input by other committees such as the Armed Services.
Services Committee, the Intelligence Committee, and the Foreign Relations Committee. The Senate ought to have the printed hearings of the Senate Appropriations Committee. We ought to have the printed hearings containing the testimony of the Ambassador to Iraq, containing the testimony of Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld, containing the testimony of other witnesses. Why do we spend all of our time in Senate hearings if we do not intend to make those printed hearings available to our colleagues and to ourselves as we go forward with Senate debate? That is one of the tremendous benefits in having hearings so that they will be printed. Why have them? Because they will be printed then, for our colleagues to scrutinize and to help bring back memories of those Members on the Senate Appropriations Committee as to what the testimony was, what the answers were to the questions that were asked.

But here we have been rushed. We have had hearings—some hearings. I asked for more hearings, more than once, more than twice. Several times I asked for more hearings. But even with the hearings that we had, we do not have printed copies of hearings before us.

No, there has been a rush, a mad rush to move forward on this bill. There was some talk about even having the final action on the bill by the end of this week, with the aid of the distinguished chairman, and others, that press for action by the end of this week is no longer upon us. That was an unreasonable expectation. It did not measure up to common sense. And it certainly was not the best thing. Fortunately, that is no longer the goal of the party in control here.

There are many aspects of this bill that trouble me, but what concerns me as much as anything else, or perhaps most important, is the fundamental reason that this measure is before the Senate today. American taxpayers have been presented with an $87 billion bill for the military occupation and reconstruction of Iraq. That is a big, big bill—$87 billion. That is $87 for every minute since Jesus Christ was born, $87 for every minute since the water was changed into wine, $87 for every minute since Jesus Christ was born. That is a lot of money. That is more than $3,000 for every Iraqi man, woman, boy, and girl. Now, think about that. The taxpayers are being asked—the taxpayers of this country are being asked—to shell out more than $3,000 for every Iraqi man, woman, boy, and girl. That is what this bill does.

There are roughly 25 million, we will say, Iraqis. One thousand dollars per each Iraqi is $25 billion. Pretty easy to compute. So $75 billion would be $3,000 per every Iraqi. And $87 billion is roughly, let’s say, $3,500 for every Iraqi—every man, woman, boy, and girl.

Now, this is $87 billion on top of the $79 billion which was appropriated in the fiscal year 2003 supplemental passed by the Senate in April of this year.

We are putting upon the American taxpayers a load. This administration, in this bill that we are being asked to pass, is asking the American taxpayers to shell out—in this bill—over $3,000 per Iraqi man, woman, boy, and girl, on top of the $79 billion in the fiscal year 2003 supplemental.

So when you add both of these together, this house will have—if we pass this bill hook, line, and sinker—we will, in the Senate, have passed legislation requiring the American taxpayers to shell out $6,600 per Iraqi—$6,600 per Iraqi.

Well, the American taxpayers have been presented with an $87 billion bill for the military occupation and reconstruction of Iraq. Why? Because the President decided 6 months ago to launch a preemptive strike on Iraq in the face of very shaky evidence and worldwide opposition—strong worldwide opposition.

We have seen the lengths to which some in this administration will go. Now we learn of retribution efforts aimed at those who tried to correct theadulterous, previous proceedings that drove this Nation into war. Now the taxpayer is asked to pay the Piper—pay the Piper. It is a steep price, indeed, in treasure and in blood.

Much has been made of the fact that we must pass this bill quickly and without question to show our support for the troops. I do not agree. "Support the Troops" is a bumper sticker. "Support the Troops" is a bumper sticker, a bumper sticker. That is what it is: "Support the Troops"—a bumper sticker. It is not a foreign policy. Rubber stamping this bill is not—N-O-T—an expression of support for our troops except in the most simplistic of ways. Rubber stamping this bill merely means that thousands of American soldiers will be sentenced to another year in Iraq, without the Senate even demanding to know why so many United States soldiers need to remain there, how long they are going to be there, or why this President has failed to persuade more nations to send troops to help.

Are we to ask our troops to shoulder this burden alone for another year? Are we to ask our troops to shoulder this burden alone for another year? When is this administration going to face the fact that we need international help? We want to help our troops. Let’s get other nations to send their troops there and, thus, help our troops and help us to bring our troops home. We are certainly not serving the long-term interests of the military by rushing to embrace this bill.

The headline in yesterday’s USA Today newspaper sums up the situation succinctly: "Army Reserve Fears Troop Exodus." That was the headline: "Army Reserve Fears Troop Exodus." According to the article in yesterday’s USA Today, the chief of the Army Reserve is concerned that the excessive demands on the Guard and Reserves as a result of the war in Iraq could wreak havoc on military retention rates. That is a serious matter.

Last week, another report documented the plans in the United States occupation in Iraq recruiting rates. The military decisions this administration is making in Iraq today will have serious long-term consequences on the viability of America’s All-Volunteer Armed Forces in the future. It is time to move to counter future threats to our own national security.

It is time to face these facts. We are stretched thin. We are stretched thin, and a long United States occupation in Iraq is not wise. Moreover, how are we to exercise proper oversight of $87 billion?

The Wall Street Journal of September 26th states: "In a United Nations imprimatur, the Administration has constructed its so-called coalition of the willing in piecemeal fashion, cutting open-ended, individual deals with every country that will—save Britain, which is picking up its own tab. Officials who have seen these agreements acknowledge the deals are notably short on specifics. In most cases, the U.S. is demanding to know why so many United States soldiers need to remain there, how long they are going to be there, or why this President has failed to persuade more nations to send troops to help."

That was the headline: "Army Reserve Fears Troop Exodus." According to the article in yesterday’s USA Today, the chief of the Army Reserve is concerned that the excessive demands on the Guard and Reserves as a result of the war in Iraq could wreak havoc on military retention rates. That is a serious matter.

Last week, another report documented the plans in the United States occupation in Iraq recruiting rates. The military decisions this administration is making in Iraq today will have serious long-term consequences on the viability of America’s All-Volunteer Armed Forces in the future. It is time to move to counter future threats to our own national security.

It is time to face these facts. We are stretched thin. We are stretched thin, and a long United States occupation in Iraq is not wise. Moreover, how are we to exercise proper oversight of $87 billion? of that nation by plunging our own country deeper into debt. Every dollar we spend in Iraq to avoid increasing our debt is an IOU we are passing on to our children. Think of it. We are writing a $20.3 billion IOU for this year alone for building a massive new infrastructure in Iraq.

The money the President wants to borrow for Iraq will come directly out of American taxpayers' wallets in the form of Medicare and Social Security surtaxes paid by American workers. We have collected that money from the pockets of American workers, the American workers who gave their sweat in the factories, in the mines, in the fields, on the oceans—the American workers. No one told them they were paying to rebuild Iraq. We don't even know how much of the $20 billion in reconstruction funds will flow to government contractors in Iraq. Estimates range from one-third of the reconstruction funds to almost all of them. Whatever the amount is, we know that the size and scope of the profits being made will be enormous.

Former Bush administration officials are even setting up consulting firms. Listen to that. Former Bush administration officials are even setting up consulting firms to act as middlemen for contractors hoping to take part in the Iraqbonanza. Are we turning the U.S. Treasury into a grab bag for favorite campaign contributors to be financed by taxpayer expense? Is that why the administration is so reluctant to make concessions that would bring other countries on board? Instead of redoubling our efforts to spread the burden of rebuilding Iraq among the international community, the President appears content to simply present the bill to the American taxpayers, and to their children.

The stability of Iraq is of concern to nations other than the United States. Could we be helping out because they resent the President's high-handed decision to spurn the United Nations and attack Iraq on his own terms, with only meager international support? There is a donors conference in Madrid later this month. Could we be overbilling the American taxpayers by rushing this package through the Senate and signing up for $20.3 billion in debt before we even try to make the real, at taxpayer expense? Is that why the administration is so reluctant to make concessions that would bring other countries on board?

The package before the Senate goes far beyond asking the Senate to write a check on the taxpayers' account for $20 billion. The package before us asks the Senate to underwrite the long-term democratization of Iraq as some sort of catalyst for triggering the democratization of the entire Middle East. One cannot help but wonder how the United States would actually precipitate the democratization of the entire Middle East when, with all our will and all our might, we cannot even budge the stalled Israeli-Palestinian peace process. How are we going to do it? Where is the muscle?

I expect there will be a number of amendments offered to this supplemental package. I have several I intend to offer. If they are adopted, they will, in this bill, Whether they will improve it enough to win my endorsement remains to be seen.

I was opposed to the President's war in Iraq before it began. I am strongly opposed to the doctrine of preemption, the doctrine of preemption, unilateralism, preemption, strike-first, invade first.

I support unconditionally the men and the women in uniform and their families—they are bearing the most direct burden of the war in Iraq—but I remain unconvicted that this bill is the best way to offer those troops our support. The most meaningful support would be to take the diplomatic steps needed to get help from other nations which will result in getting our troops out of the quicksands of Iraq. That is the way to support the troops and the nations in. This bill does not do that.

This bill, in my opinion, sets the United States up for what could well be a prolonged military and financial investment in Iraq. It ignores the hard realities of democratization of totally different cultures. It ignores the religious divisions which inflame the Middle East.

Again, I thank Senator STEVENS for his willingness to accommodate me and others who have expressed concerns with this bill. I appreciate the difficult conditions under which he is working. I look forward to a full and robust debate. I encourage all Senators to focus on this bill, listen carefully to the debate, and draw their own conclusions in the fullness of time based on a dispassionate evaluation of the merits of individual amendments, as I will have at a later time. For now, I ask my colleagues to consider carefully the implications of the policies implied in the funding of the bill before us and to give this measure the full time and attention it deserves.

Mr. President, I yield the floor. The PRESIDING OFFICER, the Senator from Alaska is recognized.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, we have a Senator who is on the way now to offer an amendment. I will be happy to receive that

In response to my good friend, our senior Member of the Senate, I understand his position fully and I appreciate that he understands mine.

Having been involved in my lifetime in service overseas, I have, since I have been in the Senate, traveled many places in the world to talk to our men and women in uniform. I find that today's group of young men and women who serve in my opinion, America's military service are the finest I have ever known. I think the job they did in Iraq was outstanding.

I have been privileged to read a whole series of letters that have been written to families by those young men and women. As I have said before today, I have not seen one that indicated any doubt about the work they have done or lack of any sense of real commitment to that job. I have just been really tremendous letters.

It is a different experience to go overseas now and visit these people. They have the Internet. They have tents or buildings where they can listen to their own concerts of their days. They have telephone service. They have mail service quite frequently—I am sure not as frequently as they would like.

Going back to my day, I didn't have a telephone call from the time I left home until the time I got back to Hawaii, having spent the better part of 2 years roaming the world. We didn't have the Internet, obviously. We didn't have much mail. Yet we came back with the feeling that what we had done was the right thing.

I think these people, when they come home, will tell us that. I think the world will see a new generation of Americans, a different group, educated in a different era, in terms of war, knowing what they are capable of and knowing the horrors of war.

The impact of those people in the future is going to have a great deal to do with the foreign policy we believe they know now what it takes to follow on after a war. I can tell you, since I was coming home, I am sure most people from my generation would say the same thing: We didn't think about who was going to rule Germany, or we didn't think about terrorists in Germany or who was going to run Japan; we knew the military was going to do it. They were sending military replacements at the time.

This is not that world. This is a different world now. Those kids of ours are going to come home when we have replaced them with Iraqis who are capable of defending themselves. We are going to move into that age, a rapid reconstruction of that country. This is the way to do it.

It is a lot of money, no question about it. But the supplemental we put up before was primarily for defense. Two-thirds of this money is for defense. I don't know any argument about really the total amount of this. We didn't have arguments in terms of providing for our men and women who were dispatched to win the war. The problem is too often people talking about the whole amount as being the whole amount.
As I said in the committee and before the press, in World War I, manpower was expendable. In World War II, manpower was expendable. Even in Korea, manpower was expendable. We do not do that now. We do not have that philosophy. I am happy to come to the Chamber will not come back to us and ask for more money than the $20 billion being requested for reconstruction in this appropriations?

He said: That's it, $20 billion; that's it. That is all the United States needs to come up with.

I said: The difference, obviously, of $40 billion is unresolved at this moment. Where will it come from?

Ambassador Bremer told us it would come from donor countries that would give money to this effort to rebuild Iraq. I have to tell you in all candor, as I said to him, all of the coalition of the willing, all of the countries in the world have pledged less than $2 billion. Where are you going to find the remainder?

He said we have to work on that. Again, we find the Bush administration without a real plan and a real budget for the reconstruction of Iraq. I said to Ambassador Bremer at this point: Can you give me your word and the word of this administration that you will not come back to us and ask for more money than the $20 billion being requested for reconstruction in this appropriations?

He said: That's it, $20 billion; that's it. That is all the United States needs to come up with.

I said: It strikes me as unusual that we are pushing through this $87 billion supplementary budget on such an expedited schedule that we have not taken the time to ask the hard questions. Keep in mind the $87 billion included in this bill is a sum total of taxpayer spending over and above the total we spend each year on Federal aid to education and foreign aid. So we are putting in this one bill $87 billion and bringing it for consideration by the Senate in a matter of days, when these other items—foreign aid and education—take weeks and months of review and preparation before they come to the floor.

Of course, Senator Byrd has raised that point. Once we have invested the first $20 billion, are we likely to leave? The next argument would be: Come on, you don't want to stop. You can't change horses in midstream. Let's finish it out. Let's finish the job, which means more demands on the American people. I hope you understand the skepticism that many of us bring to this debate is based primarily on actual statements made by the Bush administration about the reconstruction of Iraq. Our colleagues recall last year, when economic adviser at the White House Lawrence Lindsey, on September 15, said he estimated that the cost of the war, military and reconstruction, would be between $100 billion and $200 billion. Remember when he said that? As a result of that statement, he was admonished by Mitch Daniels, then Budget Director, who said:

I have to tell you in all candor, as I said to him, all of the coalition of the willing, all of the countries in the world have pledged less than $2 billion. Where are you going to find the remainder?
$100 billion to $200 billion is likely very, very high, if it’s meant to apply to the cost to taxpayers.

So Mitch Daniels was sent out to admonish Larry Lindsey to not use figures like $100 billion to $200 billion. I would ask Senator Byrd: If I am not mistaken, did we not first appropriate $79 billion in a supplemental appropriation for Iraq and now we are coming back with the second supplemental request of $87 billion and more to follow? Are we not talking already over $166 billion that is being spent through these supplemental appropriations?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. In response to the Senator, if I may say, the first action by the Senate was in April of this year when the Congress passed the 2003 supplemental appropriations bill. That appropriated $79 billion. The Senate is now being asked to enact an additional 2004 supplemental appropriation. That is before the Senate today.

Mr. DURBIN. At the moment, the sum total of those bills, if I am not mistaken, if this turns out to be $87 billion, is somewhere in the range of $166 billion?

Mr. BYRD. It is indeed.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator, our Democratic leader and ranking member on the Appropriations Committee, for pointing out that Larry Lindsey was right. He said it was going to cost about $100 billion to $200 billion. He lost his job over that statement. He was asked to leave the administration.

Mitch Daniels, then Director of the Office of Management and Budget, was quoted on December 31, 2002, in the New York Times, as having said then:

The administration said we cannot wait; we have to create a coalition. The administration said we have to create our own coalition. The administration said we cannot wait; we have to create our own coalition.

Paul Wolfowitz, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Defense, the man who is credited with being the architect of this Iraq strategy, the man who was pushing harder than most for the invasion of Iraq even if the United States had to go it alone, stated on March 27, 2003:

The Marshall Plan was $97 billion. The Marshall Plan for the rebuilding of Europe after World War II.

Natsios replied:

No, no. This doesn’t even compare remotely with the size of the Marshall Plan.

Koppel:

The Marshall Plan was $97 billion.

Natsios:
I think the American public out there is going to be confused about this business, the $66 billion. Is the Senator from Illinois talking about $66 billion? I thought he said he was going to support that.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator for asking that question, allowing me to clarify, because I want to make it clear, as I thought I had. When it comes to the money to support the troops, I am there for every dollar. That is why I think Senator Byrd’s amendment is so important, so we can—

Mr. STEVENS. Why does the Senator mention $87 billion?

Mr. DURBIN. That is the total cost of this bill, if I am not mistaken. The difference, of course, the $20.3 billion, or $21 billion, for reconstruction. I concede we have to add to our deficit and borrow from the trust fund to support the troops. I will do that and go home and defend it. But when it comes to the $20 billion for reconstruction, this administration is asking 15 or 16 times more than they were asking 6 months ago.

So let’s be very clear to the American people. The reconstruction of Iraq, and it is that point we have reached, the total of $87 billion, is just getting started with this bill. We are in for the long haul, if we pass this bill as written.

Senator BYRD has an appropriate amendment he offered in committee. Let’s separate the vote for the support of troops. Let’s make that clear and get it done. But then, to go beyond that and the reconstruction, let’s address that in the specific terms it deserves.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I sought, in the Appropriations Committee on yesterday, to sever the title that involved the reconstruction, money for Iraq and send to the Senate the two bills, one dealing with the military funding and one dealing with the reconstruction. I failed on a party line vote.

I am trying, at this time, to do virtually the same thing. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be divided into two freestanding bills, the first including funds for our military in Iraq and Afghanistan and the funds for rebuilding the Iraqi security forces and the emergency designation included in title III, the second bill including the funds for Iraq’s reconstruction and the emergency designation included in title III, and that the second bill be laid aside immediately upon the disposition of the first bill dealing with costs for our military.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I wish to state the Senator from West Virginia did offer this amendment. It would have the impact of splitting these two portions of our programs that deal with Iraq and leaving just a portion of the money. As I understand, it would leave $5-plus billion in the fund from the $20.3 billion.

So I really am compelled to tell the Senator that I don’t think we can be by troop support the troops, and be against the $20.3 billion. So I am compelled to object, and I do object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. BYRD. Would the Senator withdraw his objection temporarily?

Mr. STEVENS. I do withdraw the objection. I am happy to have a dialogue on this matter.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is withdrawn.

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the manager of the bill and chairman of the committee.

Mr. President, the President has asked Congress to appropriate a great deal of money for the occupation and reconstruction of Iraq. But the American people have not yet been convinced that spending this money is the right thing to do. One poll conducted by the Washington Post that 61 percent opposed spending $87 billion for Iraq and that 85 percent were concerned about our country becoming bogged down in a long and costly peacekeeping mission.

One of the most contentious parts of the President’s request is $20.3 billion in reconstruction aid for Iraq. The more details that come out about this aid, the more the American people are uncomfortable with this spending. They are seeking important answers to fair questions. Why can’t our allies bear some of the cost? How much money will the administration seek for Iraq after this aid package? What about our needs for reconstruction here at home?

In the 34 days we have had in which to examine the President’s supplemental appropriations package, I do not think anyone has come up with the answers to those questions. What we do know is that this reconstruction money did not cover all that is needed to be done in Iraq. Ambassador Bremer, in his testimony to the Appropriations Committee, stated there were $60 billion to $70 billion in reconstruction needs in Iraq over the next 4 to 5 years. Spending on foreign aid now could leave us on the hook to spend billions more later.

Before we commit our country to this path, we would be wise to seek a consensus and common understanding of the appropriate roles for the United States, our allies, and the Iraqi people in building that country.

I am offering a unanimous consent request to divide the bill that is before the Senate so we may give close scrutiny to the two distinct issues that are addressed in it, to remove in defense funding that is contained in title I, plus the $5.1 billion for Iraq’s security forces; and the remaining $15.2 billion in foreign aid spending in title
Il for Iraqi reconstruction. Each of these elements is deserving of debate on its own right.

The administration is sure to oppose dividing the content of this bill so that the Senate may consider independently the various components of reconstruction and reconstruction funds. But, why? Perhaps the White House is afraid that its $15.2 billion for Iraqi reconstruction cannot withstand the scrutiny of the full Senate until it is wrapped up in the guise of support for our troops.

But that has been administration's argument. We have heard again and again from Ambassador Bremer and Secretary Rumsfeld that the administration views this reconstruction and restoration of Iraq going on concomitantly so we don't have to go into a period of military occupation.

I think the Senator's amendment is sort of a dangerous thing because it always gets put in an operation but we won't give you any money to help to stand up the Iraqi military, or to stand up the Iraqi security force, or to take action to assure the power lines are working because we think we ought to wait until there is a government. You cannot get a new government without some reconstruction and without some security and without some mechanism to assist our forces so our forces can draw back and not take over the whole thing.

I object to the Senator's request. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I respect my colleague greatly, and I respect his reasons for objecting to my unanimous consent request.

I have already offered the unanimous consent request to divide the President's supplemental request into portions, one for $1 billion for military and for Iraq's own security force, and one for $15.2 billion in reconstruction aid. Although there was objection to my request, the American people understand why the issue of security and reconstruction must be argued separately instead of in a lump sum. The amendment that I will now offer would strike $15.2 billion in reconstruction aid from the supplemental appropriations bill. This would allow the Senate to proceed with its consideration of $70.7 billion in security-related funding to aid the Iraq, $5.6 billion for the Department of Defense, $5.1 billion for building the new Iraqi army and a national police force, and $1 billion for aid to Afghanistan, and State Department operations. Adopting my amendment would allow the Senate to return to the issue of reconstruction after completing action on the President's request for security-related funding.

In the meantime, the Senate should give more careful consideration to the administration's plan for rebuilding Iraq. We should take a closer look at the plan for postwar Iraq. The plan distributed by Ambassador Bremer to the Appropriations Committee on September 22 and the 28 pages. The plan provides few details, and it only looks out on the next 5 months of our occupation. However, in the same hearing, Ambassador Bremer said he had a plan that ran to 86 pages and containing 300 or 400 individual action items. That does not sound like the plan he gave to the Appropriations Committee. It sounds as if the Senate does not even have the full version of the administration's plan for the reconstruction of Iraq.

Surely if we are to commit the United States to spending $15.2 billion over the next 12 months, Congress should be able to see the full plan for rebuilding Iraq. We should also have a say on formulating that plan. By waiting to approve the $15.2 billion in reconstruction funding, Congress could take advantage of that time to debate the proper role of the United States, our allies, and the Iraqi people in sharing the cost of reconstruction.

The cost of acting without a solid plan for rebuilding Iraq could be very high—well beyond the $15.2 billion in reconstruction funds the President has requested for the next year. We could end up wasting billions more and losing even greater numbers of American troops. In the words of Publius Cyrus, nothing can be done at once hastily and prudently.

I urge my colleagues to vote to give Congress more time to consider this $15.2 billion in rebuilding aid, and I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 1794

MR. BYRD. Mr. President, I send my amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. BYRD] proposes an amendment numbered 1794.

(Purpose: Strike $15.2 billion of the $20.3 billion in Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Funds, leaving $5.1 billion for training and equipping the Iraqi Defense Corps and Iraqi national security forces and other public safety and justice purposes.)

On page 25, line 7, strike "rehabilitation and reconstruction in Iraq" and all that follows through page 28, line 23, strike "in the amount of $5,136,000,000, to remain available until expended, for security, including public safety requirements, national security and justice purposes: Provided, That these funds may be transferred to any Federal account for any Federal government activity to accomplish the purposes provided herein: Provided further, That notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, none of the funds appropriated under this heading may be made available to enter into any contract or follow-on contract other than full and open competitive contracting procedures as defined in 41 U.S.C. 403(6)."

MR. STEVENS. Mr. President, there are Senators who are at the signing ceremony. Can we get an agreement on a time to vote on the Senator's amendment? I would like to see us vote on the Senator's amendment sometime around 4 o'clock. Is that possible?

MR. BYRD. I am not in a position at the moment to respond to that request, I will respond to that request.

MR. STEVENS. I thank the Senator. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from West Virginia for his courtesy in VerDate jul 14 2003 01:06 Oct 02, 2003 Jkt 029060 PO 00000 Frm 00031 Fmt 0624 Sfmt 0634 E:\CR\FM\G01OC6.062 S01PT1

BYRD tried to do in his previous unan-

I am compelled to say I oppose this amendment. It is my hope we can get an agreement that will be significant to the portion of the problem. Many people came to me as chairman and asked, why don’t you take the defense portion separately and take the rest in a separate bill? That is what Senator Byrd tried to do in his previous unani-

I firmly believe that if we can get this plan going and have the recon-

I hope we have the dialogue as to when the vote will take place in the near future.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. DOLE). The Senator from West Virginia.

I rise to indicate my sup-

I firmly believe that if we can get this plan going and have the recon-

Mr. REED. I will make a statement and also concur with the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. KENNEDY. After the Senator from Rhode Island, I would like to speak on the Byrd amendment for 15 minutes. I am happy to accommodate the floor managers if we want to rotate back and forth.

Mr. STEVENS. Is he not speaking on the Senator’s amendment, but has his own statement?

Mr. REED. I will use about 20 min-

Mr. REED. I rise to indicate my sup-

I will take a broader view at this time of the process before the Senate. As we debate the administration’s request for a supplemental appropriation of $87 billion for operations in Iraq, a salient fact emerges. We are commit-

This is the intertwining of these two proposals. I tell my friend I must op-

I do not know if the Senator is willing to talk of a time certain. Because of the problem of the signing ceremony for the Homeland Security bill, it will not be possible to have the vote before 4, but I am happy to have the vote at any time after 4.

How long would the Senator from Rhode Island like to speak?

Mr. REED. I will ask for the vote to occur sometime soon, I hope, because we ought to get this subject behind us as quickly as possible. I don’t know if the Senator is willing to talk of a time certain. Because of the problem of the signing ceremony for the Homeland Security bill, it will not be possible to have the vote before 4.

Mr. REED. I will use about 20 min-

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. DOLE). The Senator from West Virginia.

I am happy to yield the floor. I hope we have the dialogue as to when the vote will take place in the near future.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. DOLE). The Senator from West Virginia.

I rise to indicate my sup-

I firmly believe that if we can get this plan going and have the recon-

I firmly believe that if we can get this plan going and have the recon-

In addition, the administration is increasingly aware of these problems. Last week, Secretary Rumsfeld indicated the Pen-

This reality should also shape our views on force structure. The nature of this insurgency places significant de-

There is another greater question that has been brought before our committee is the problem of thou-

I firmly believe that if we can get this plan going and have the recon-

I firmly believe that if we can get this plan going and have the recon-

If it worked, it would be the first time in history this has been done. But there is a substantial chance it will work.

There is another greater question ahead, a question of whether a portion of the moneys should be repaid. We will have to address that question in the course of the time and the opportunity to look care-

The President has presented is a plan that could work. I am not here to say I know it will work; it could work. If it worked, it would be the first time
When Secretary Wolfowitz testified before the Armed Services Committee, he displayed for the cameras entry documents for jihadists killed in Iraq. He was, once again, trying to make the terrorism argument. However, the vast majority of these documents showed that the individuals entered Iraq after March 19, the date hostilities commenced. Now a new rationale may be emerging from the administration: Our operations in Iraq are a giant trap to lure in Islamic terrorists so that they can be destroyed. But this logic misses the point. The jihadists racing to engage us in Iraq are not necessarily the same people who are plotting to strike us here at home. In fact, our actions may have fermented new legions of jihadists with ready access to Iraq. I posed the following question to General Abizaid when he appeared before the Armed Services Committee last week: If there is another attack on the United States, is it more likely to emanate from Baghdad or from the Afghan-Pakistan border? His answer was instructive:

Senator, if there is another attack on the United States, it would be organized, planned, and executed through a worldwide network of connections that are borderless. It would be difficult to say where its geographic center would be. There are certainly places on the Afghan-Pakistan border that are semi-havens for terrorists, in the Wazirist area, that the Pakistanis are working to clean up. There are other ungoverned spaces where this is also possible. It is possible that a terrorist group working in Baghdad, or New York for that matter, could authorize the attack, so there is no geographic center that I would point to. This is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington today. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress. The authorization was for $13 billion. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

The next column is Haiti, a situation that demonstrated to significant sectors in Iraq the scope of the defeat of the Saddam Hussein regime. While we focus on Iraq, both the Afghan-Pakistan border and the destruction of the Taliban provide a textbook definition of poor strategy. Our occupation in Iraq is anything but comprehensive and has yet to demonstrate to significant sectors in Iraq the scope of the defeat of the Saddam Hussein regime. The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the Nation, an event with a catastrophic impact on the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.

The administration has placed us in a predicament where we cannot afford to lose, but winning may have a negligible effect on the existential threat to the United States. This could be a textbook definition of poor strategy. Now the administration comes before us promoting this appropriations bill as a Marshall plan for Iraq. Many of my colleagues have pointed out that this is revisionist history, a term that is frequently used in Washington. The Marshall plan was not whisked through Congress in a few weeks. It was subject to what the Congressional Research Service described as “perhaps the most thorough examination prior to launching of any program.” The CRS added that President Truman “closely consulted with Congress.” The authorization was for $13 billion. It was closely consulted with Congress.

I think this comment is in the spirit of the Byrd amendment because the Byrd amendment will allow us at least a small opportunity for that implementation, that oversight, that review that was so present in the Marshall plan.

The Marshall plan differed in significant details from its predecessor. The Byrd amendment would provide us an opportunity to oversee the Plan’s implementation and consider additional funding. Three more times during the life of the Plan, Congress would have authorized and appropriated funds. In each year, Congress would have held hearings, debated, and further amended the legislation.
As a result, there was none of the violence that we anticipated. We have actually made progress, limited I would add, to ensure that there is at least a growing economy and a growing civic culture in these countries—a remarkable thing in light of the financial levels relative to those we have in Iraq.

The final column is Afghanistan, another situation in which the administration has deliberately kept our forces low. Again, we are reaping some of those costs today as we see heightened terror, a rebounding Taliban, the largest increase in production of opium and heroin in the world, at least getting to those proportions, and that is another example.

We can see throughout the course of the next 3 years projected forward where these troops sizes are significant. It raises the question: If the economic policy is the right policy, if this is a Marshall plan, where is the Marshall-like support in terms of troops on the ground?

The administration repeatedly makes the point that stability and reconstruction go hand in hand. They have seized on the Marshall plan to justify this request for billions of dollars but ignore the reality that is hard to come by with insufficient forces.

For example, The New York Times reported just yesterday “that as much as 650,000 tons of ammunition remains at thousands of facilities owned by the former Iraqi security forces and that much of it has not been secured and will take years to destroy. Meanwhile, insurgents are obtaining huge amounts of weapons and explosives to attack our troops each day. While we wait for international forces or Iraqi security forces, these attacks go on.

Indeed, in the same article, General Abizaid sounded a cautionary note about reliance on Iraqi security. He said:

There's probably places where we have put Iraqi guards that may be vulnerable to people that would come in and bribe the guards.

There are respected voices that say we do not need more American troops. They say we need better intelligence and international reinforcements to change the appearance of the occupation. While we wait for our intelligence apparatus to mature and for the arrival of international reinforcements, who will secure the ammunition dumps and the pipelines? Efforts to train Iraqis are underway, but the availability and reliability of these troops is today uncertain.

The administration is quick to brandish the Marshall plan to justify this appropriation. It is not a Marshall Plan. It is a belated attempt to provide resources for a thinly stretched occupation force while throwing huge amounts of money at reconstruction with the hope that some of it will stick. This appropriation is the second payment. Congress has already appropriated $74.8 billion in emergency funds for Iraq this year. The demands in Iraq will be significant and persistent. There are more payments to come.

The real question before us is not whether this legislation will pass. The real question is whether the United States can sustain this effort in Iraq over many years. The United States must set a defined, decisive, and obtainable objective in Iraq. Then we must sustain the effort to achieve that objective. To sustain such an objective and such a development, our attempt to obtain significant military and financial assistance from the world community will be futile.

To sustain such an effort, we must expand our military forces, particularly the National Guard. There is an urgent need to redeploy more aggressively and quickly to secure international support, both military and financial support. This means giving the United Nations a meaningful role in Iraq without ceding our leadership. Without such a development, our attempt to obtain significant military and financial assistance from the world community will be futile.

To sustain such an effort, we must pay for it. It is simply irresponsible to run huge deficits to pay for the operation in Iraq. The cost to our economy in the inevitability of higher interest rates and the dampening of growth and the cost to our society in the deterioration of social investment will not go unnoticed and will be particularly resented if scarce American resources are siphoned away from the Iraqi economy and improving the quality of life of the Iraqi people.

If we fail in these tasks, money alone, the money in this bill, will not allow us to stay the course. Finally, we must place the objective and effort in Iraq in context. We must recognize that the existential threats to America are not in Iraq. They are worldwide. Al-Qaeda has global reach, and we have not yet finished hunting down and destroying their operatives. The proliferation of nuclear weapons is a worldwide problem with both Iran and North Korea on the precipice. We have yet to develop an effective strategy to counter such ambitions.

The protection of our homeland is an ongoing challenge. The title of a recent report of the Council on Foreign Relations actively conveyed these challenges: “Emergency Responder: Dangerously Understood, Dangerously Unprepared.” The bill for these dangers still must be paid regardless of what we do with this legislation. We must be mindful of this as we go forward, and we must be honest and candid with the American people. To sustain this effort, we must follow through on the tasks I have suggested. This bill is just part of that effort.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, today, as has been stated by my colleague, the most important debates that we will have in this Congress or any Congress, I believe. And the decision that is going to be made over the next 2 weeks will, in all consequence, be as important as the decisions that were made in October a year ago when this body voted to grant the authority to the President to bring us to war, a resolution which I voted against.

At the outset, I want to speak briefly to the amendment before the Senate: that is, the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia separating those items that could be considered reconstruction and rehabilitation, and those items which are directly related to the support of our troops and say why I believe this is so important. That is because we do not have a good idea about what the administration’s policy is on the issues of rehabilitation and the reconstruction in Iraq. We don’t have the policy of the administration.

I don’t say that lightly. I am a member of the Armed Services Committee. Just a week ago we had Ambassador Bremer before us. The members of our committee were sent this document which is called the “Coalition Provisional Authority, Achieving the Vision to Restore Full Sovereignty to the Iraqi People.” It is 28 pages long. The cover page says:

A working document of July 23. We are now on the 1st of October. We had hearings a week ago. We were given the working document of July 23, these 28 pages. If you review this document about our strategy in Iraq, you will find out on the various pages—take page nine—we will, on the issues of security and giving the goals, August to October, they say in item 4 on that page, locate, secure, and eliminate weapons of mass destruction, from August to October. From November to January, continue to locate and eliminate the weapons of mass destruction. Then, February on, it says continue to locate and secure and eliminate the weapons of mass destruction.

That is the plan. This program is full of those kinds of platitudinous, empty statements and is basically an insult to those of us and to our Congress. During the course of that hearing, the Senator from Michigan asked Mr. Bremer when we would have a more comprehensive document as to what the plan is on the reconstruction and rehabilitation of Iraq. This is his quote on September 22:

I will keep you informed, but I want to keep my hands free as to how I do that.

That was an answer to Senator LEVIN, the ranking minority member of the Armed Services Committee, when Ambassador Bremer was here. You have submitted this document to us, which is a working document, July 23. When is this going to be updated? When are we going to get the plan?
He said: “I will keep you informed, but I want to keep my hands free as to how I do that.

And we have not had anything since that time. We had one document and that is the 58 or 59 pages that lists the items that leave. It is not a plan. It is a budget. It is a budget on various items that are going to be necessary, but no plan.

The administration and the military knew how to win the war. That was never going to be the challenge or the question. But they have had no plan on how to win the peace. They still don’t have a plan to win the peace. The Byrd amendment is trying to separate what is called for in terms of the support for our troops to this rehabilitation and reconstruction, to try to get the administration prior to the time we are going to have a final vote to say what is the plan on rehabilitation, what is the plan in terms of reconstruction. But we have not had that. We have not had it in the Armed Services Committee.

We have the long list of items, some of which I will refer to in my comments, but we still don’t have the plan. The fact is, it is being made up every single day over in Iraq. As we consider those reports we all see every evening or morning on the Americans who lose their lives every time, we also haven’t got a real understanding of what security is like in the major populated areas of that community. As we are reminded in the excellent study that has been done by Dobbins, Dobbins and ARABAT talks about how historically those individuals who are subject to occupation view those who occupy their country. Perhaps some start off and support them as liberators, but others will never forgive them for occupying their country.

But there is one powerful factor and force, and that is the issue of security. It is security not just out in the streets and in those areas, but also in those communities, but it is what is happening in downtown Baghdad every single day and night. The number of people who are getting killed, the numbers who are coming into the morgues, the break-ins taking place in people’s houses, and the rapes taking place in those communities have given a sense of insecurity to the people in Baghdad and many other communities. We don’t have a plan about how we are going to deal with this. We are told we are training Iraqi police, and we have heard some extraordinary impressive young Americans who just came from Faluja. I talked with them in Massachusetts, and they pointed out that the Iraqi police trained in this area did not leave the barracks. They are frightened that if they are seen leaving the barracks, something will happen to them or their families.

As we know, as the very important Dobbins document points out, whether you are talking about Algeria, Northern Ireland, or Malaysia in 1958, or the West Bank, or Kosovo—any of these areas—what you need to do is start to train a disciplined police force, and it takes time. It takes an adequate force and highly motivated and that can move toward the security issues. That is not the case. We are asked to pour billions of dollars in taxpayers funds into Iraq.

I think the understanding of these requests would have to say the overall strategy—whatever it is—is a top-down strategy, not a bottom-up one. What we are seeing in the initial reports coming from Iraq is the areas where they are having the greatest progress, where the stakeholders are buying into the efforts in these local communities. Most of the positive reports are coming as a result of the leadership of the military, many of whom have gone through this as two and even other parts of the world, where they have seen what can work and what is necessary.

So it is appropriate that we have some opportunity to talk about and ask about how resources that are being requested to go to Iraq. There are a number of questions, obviously, that are going to be raised, such as the whole issue of contracting and those who are getting the contracting. What we need to know about those contracts—what is the kind of transparency is there over there? Are we taking these contracts with single-bid contracts, with those who have a questionable record in terms of the performance, and overcharging the Defense Department? Are we giving opportunities for contracts to other countries around the world who have had a relationship and know how to be able to reconstruct and rebuild? Are we excluding them? What are the circumstances of this?

These issues are going to be raised, as they should be. It is not clear from what is coming out from the Appropriations Committee that many of these issues have been addressed. I know they will be by my colleagues. It is not just about the administration’s policy and its conduct in Iraq. It is about the way we pursue American interests in a dangerous world, about the way our Government makes one of the most important decisions, whether to send American soldiers to war. It is wrong to put American lives on the line for a dubious cause. Many of us continue to believe the war in Iraq was the wrong war at the wrong time. There were alternatives short of a pre-mature run to a unilateral war, alternatives that could have accomplished our goals in Iraq with far fewer casualties and far less damage to our goals in the war against terrorism.

I commend my friend and colleague, the Senator from Rhode Island, for the whole issue of contracting and the byzantine nature of which I will refer to in my comments. The administration must tell the country in much greater detail what it intends to do with the $87 billion and its plans for sharing the burden with our allies and the United Nations to achieve our goals. The American people are entitled to know whether, with all the current difficulties, the administration has a plausible plan for the future instead of digging the current hole even deeper.

Our soldiers’ lives are constantly at stake. Patriotism is not the issue. The safety of our 140,000 American service men and women serving in Iraq today is the immediate issue. It is our solemn responsibility to question, and question vigorously, the administration’s current request for funds. So far, the administration has not been willing to provide a plausible plan for the future of Iraq and ensure the safety of our troops.

In its rush to war, the administration failed to recognize the danger and the complexity of the occupation. They repeatedly underestimated the likely cost of this enormous undertaking. Opposing voices in the administration were ignored.

Last September, the chief Presidential economic adviser, Lawrence Lindsey, said that the total cost of the Iraqi involvement might be as much as $200 billion. His estimate was quickly rejected by White House Budget Director Mitch Daniels who said Mr. Lindsey’s estimate was “very, very high” and suggested the cost to be a more manageable $50 billion or $60 billion.

I raise this history because in many instances the people who are making the recommendations on the rehabilitation of Iraq are the very ones who miscalculated and misdirected the policy for months in the past. If we are going to take a look at this policy today, it is only appropriate to see what they had suggested over the past months.

As I mentioned, when Mr. Lindsey was corrected by Mitch Daniels who said Mr. Lindsey's estimate was "very, very high," I suggest the cost would be a more reasonable $50 billion or $60 billion, the independent analysis indicated the cost might approach $300 billion, and Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld called that "baloney." I say this against the background of what Ambassador Bremer, when he was asked, when he was before the Armed Services Committee, about this $21 billion or $23 billion, whether we could expect they would be back before the appropriators and asking for more billions of dollars, and said: Don't count us out; don't count us out.

The American people ought to understand this is a downpayment for the administration. This isn't the beginning and the end. This is just the downpayment. We have to ask ourselves, What is the policy?

Last spring, as part of a broader coalition in an effort to win the support of the American people for the military, the administration began to argue that Iraq has its own reconstruction. The war might be costly, we were told, but it would be quick and decisive. The financial obligation of the United States would be limited because the liberated Iraqi people would use their own extraordinary wealth from the world's second largest reserves of oil to finance the reconstruction.

What the Nation heard from the Bush administration was clear: Don't worry about the cost. Iraq can pay for their own reconstruction.

Here they are a few weeks later with the $23 billion request. People ought to ask: Is this the beginning, the middle, or the end? What is the plan?

As the Congress debates the administration's requests, it should be looking for better answers from the administration, insisting on at least minimal accountability. Before the war, the administration said, "Trust us," and Congress did. We should have followed President Reagan's wise counsel from years ago: "Trust but verify." Hopefully, it is not too late to verify.

Until this month, no one in the administration, other than Larry Lindsey, who is no longer in the administration, said the war with Iraq and its aftermath would be expensive. The administration's numbers were worse than fuzzy math, and the American people have a right to be furious about the gross disparity with the true costs. And they will be even more furious as they learn more and more about what we are being asked to fund.

The administration, obviously, did at least have one clearly thought-out plan—they didn't have a plan for peace. They had a plan for the cost of security prisons. That is $50,000 a bed. They want $800 million for international police training for 1,500 officers. That is $350,000 per officer. Ask any mayor what it costs them to train a police officer in their community.

They want a fund for consultants at $200,000 a year. That is double normal pay. They want $1.4 billion to reimburse cooperating nations for support provided in military operations. I would love to find out how that money is going to be spent. For what is that $1.4 billion intended?

The Bush administration went to the United Nations for help last week, hat in hand. We have to ask: Are they learning more about what they want $400 million for maximum security prisons. That is $50,000 a bed. They want $800 million for international police training for 1,500 officers. That is $350,000 per officer. Ask any mayor what it costs them to train a police officer in their community.

They want a fund for consultants at $200,000 a year. That is double normal pay. They want $1.4 billion to reimburse cooperating nations for support provided in military operations. I would love to find out how that money is going to be spent. For what is that $1.4 billion intended?

The Bush administration went to the United Nations for help last week, hat in hand. We have to ask: Are they learning more about what they wanted? The answer is probably a failed lot.

The United Nations has one job: We have to ask: Is this the beginning, the middle, or the end? What is the plan?

Last spring, as part of a broader coalition in an effort to win the support of the American people for the military, the administration began to argue that Iraq has its own reconstruction. The war might be costly, we were told, but it would be quick and decisive. The financial obligation of the United States would be limited because the liberated Iraqi people would use their extraordinary wealth from the world's second largest reserves of oil to finance the reconstruction.

What the Nation heard from the Bush administration was clear: Don't worry about the cost. Iraq can pay for their own reconstruction.

Here they are a few weeks later with the $23 billion request. People ought to ask: Is this the beginning, the middle, or the end? What is the plan?

As the Congress debates the administration's requests, it should be looking for better answers from the administration, insisting on at least minimal accountability. Before the war, the administration said, "Trust us," and Congress did. We should have followed President Reagan's wise counsel from years ago: "Trust but verify." Hopefully, it is not too late to verify.

Until this month, no one in the administration, other than Larry Lindsey, who is no longer in the administration, said the war with Iraq and its aftermath would be expensive. The administration's numbers were worse than fuzzy math, and the American people have a right to be furious about the gross disparity with the true costs. And they will be even more furious as they learn more and more about what we are being asked to fund.

The administration, obviously, did at least have one clearly thought-out plan—they didn't have a plan for peace. They had a plan for the cost of security prisons. That is $50,000 a bed. They want $800 million for international police training for 1,500 officers. That is $350,000 per officer. Ask any mayor what it costs them to train a police officer in their community.

They want a fund for consultants at $200,000 a year. That is double normal pay. They want $1.4 billion to reimburse cooperating nations for support provided in military operations. I would love to find out how that money is going to be spent. For what is that $1.4 billion intended?

The Bush administration went to the United Nations for help last week, hat in hand. We have to ask: Are they learning more about what they wanted? The answer is probably a failed lot.
important investment. It is a lot of money, but when we look at the costs of 9/11, the cost was horrifying in human terms. Over 3,000 people killed, some of them horrible deaths. It is a day and a picture that none of us will ever forget and we never should forget. These terrorists operated out of safe havens, in countries which were ruled by authoritarian tyrants. We are wiping out those governments. Under President Bush’s leadership, we wiped the Taliban out of Afghanistan, and that is no longer a safe haven for terrorists. By a vote of 77 to 23, we said clean out the terrorists in Iraq, get rid of the Saddam Hussein government. That is the most important step.

Some people want to go back and fight the war. If we want to get back into it and say, why did we go, we can go back into that, but I think it is time we started looking ahead to see what we want to do. We have built a police force in post-war Ger- many. We have 5,500 police officers, they are doing a great job, they are making progress. Some of the first ones are graduating the end of this month. We have training to get them over that first hump. Un- doubtedly against future oil revenue, and they get a government, then they can pay. The interest on those loans would be our loan. We would be making that national loan. If we called it a loan, we would be establishing a constitution, which is a nec- essary precedent for making an inter- national loan. If we called it a loan, Ambassador Bremer, our representa- tives, will know there is not a practical way to collateralize. Well, that does not really work because there is no government in Iraq that can sign a loan. They cannot take out a loan at the World Bank. They have not estab- lished a constitution, which is a nec- essary precedent for making an inter- national loan. If we called it a loan, Ambassador Bremer, our representa- tives, will know there is not a practical way that they can repay that.

Chalabi tell us what they plan to do, how they want to move forward, and how the participation by the United States in this next step is vitally im- portant.

To date, our coalition has provided 50% of all financial assistance with their assistance, and we are making progress towards showing the Iraqis and the people in the neighboring countries that there is a better way to do it than to have a Saddam Hussein regime. The reason I can read it, it is in English. The other side, I will just read a 5 dinar note from the Central Bank of Iraq. The reason I can read it, it is in English. The other side, I will just read. It took them 3 years in Germany to do it.

The Iraqi Governing Council is mak- ing decisions. We listened to Dr. Chalabi tell us what they plan to do, how they want to move forward, and how the participation by the United States in this next step is vitally im- portant.

To date, our coalition has provided 50% of all financial assistance with their assistance, and we are making progress towards showing the Iraqis and the people in the neighboring countries that there is a better way to do it than to have a Saddam Hussein regime.
on our territory on their terms. This is a mark of genius. This is tremendous leadership that this administration has shown. I am proud that three-quarters of this body supported the President when he said we needed to go in and clean out this nest of vipers, this fountainhead of weapons of mass destruction. Iran, Iraq, and North Korea are part of an international network of nations that have used the acquisition of nuclear weapons to secure their own freedom. It is fine for each of us to contend that he or she is a better choice to be a special forces guy with night vision goggles who is going to come down, son of a reservoir in a city or about to be a cop in the subway, or an airman who is going to do after we brought him down. We have to win first in Iraq and then in the West could be won, I quote him: ‘For Iraqis, news of America in the streets of Baghdad and in Iraq, the war on terrorism it is the peace the United States of America. That is not the reason I rose to speak today, but I wish we would get it straight about terror. In the larger sense, we have to deal with the war on terror by dealing with the situation in the Middle East. I don’t disagree with that.’

In the broad sense of the word, it is affected by what happens in Iraq. But the idea that because we are fighting in Baghdad, we are not likely to be attacked again in the subway, or an aircraft, or whatever, because they are preoccupied is as our British friend says: ‘poppycock.’

Many Members in this Chamber and millions of Americans did not support the war in Iraq. The same goes for the millions of people around the world. But I did. I voted to give Bush the authority to use force in Iraq. For me, the question was not whether we had to deal with Saddam Hussein but when and how, and what we were going to do after we brought him down. I believed then and I believe now it was his responsibility of the United States and the international community to enforce the solemn obligation Saddam Hussein made when he sued for peace in the gulf war in 1991. Those of us who understand the value of international institutions and rules must also understand that when rules and institutions are flouted, they must be defended, and by force if necessary. That was, in my view, the underlying rationale to go to war in Iraq, a rationale enhanced by the fact that the one flouting the rules was a homicidal tyrant who murdered hundreds of thousands of people and who, if left alone, would have eventually acquired weapons of... mass destruction, although he had none and there was no evidence he had any. But he would have gotten those weapons. That was the reason—not some idea of preemption. We didn’t need a new doctrine of preemption to go after Saddam Hussein. He violated the resolutions of the UN. It was signed in 1991. Had it been 1919 when he was defeated in Kuwait, he would have been in Versailles, in France, signing a peace agreement. Instead, he was representing the United Nations and he signed the resolutions, none of which he kept and I believe needed to be enforced.

But I also believed then, as I believe now, that this administration got the when and the how and the what we do the day after dangerously wrong in Iraq. This administration wrongly painted Iraq as an imminent threat to our society, something many of us at the time—not just now—said was not the case. It hyped the intelligence most likely and all the bells of the American people. In speech after speech, television appearance after television appearance, the most senior administration officials told us Iraq was on the verge of possessing a nuclear weapon.

Indeed, at the same time I was on a show, the Vice President on a similar show on a Sunday told us Iraq had reconstituted its nuclear weapons program. I didn’t believe then, and I don’t believe now, and there is no evidence that that is true.

We are told that Iraq had UAVs—unmanned aerial vehicles—that could drop lethal payloads on our shores—payloads of chemical and biological weapons; that Iraq could weaponize its chemical and biological arsenal in just 45 minutes; that the regime had a clear will to act immediately and that as a result there was a sense of urgency about the need to move quickly; that is true.

So we went to war with the Brits and a coalition—a coalition which was the most amicable coalition with whom we have ever gone to war, after the Brits; the one without the rest of the world. And as many of us said at the time—and I wasn’t the only one. Senator Lugar said it; Senator Hagel said it; a number of other Republicans said it at the time; it was only one member of the Senate who was calling for the war, but we needed tens of thousands of soldiers to secure the peace—tens of thousands.

The chief of the Army got sacked because he didn’t think we were going to need a couple hundred thousand troops to secure the peace when Mr. Rumsfeld—or at least the administration—was implying we wouldn’t need more than 30,000 folks and we would be out of there in 6 months.

Just as bad, we went without a plan for the day after.

Don’t just take my word for this. Keep in mind that I have been supporting the President, and I will support this appropriation. But there was no serious planning. General Garner said he didn’t begin planning and wasn’t asked until January 6. I was chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and we held hearings in July of 2002. And witness after witness—former Commanders of NATO, former Commanders of CENTCOM—said the plan for peace should be running parallel with the plan for war. During those hearings, we wanted to know what was going to happen not just the day after but the decade after.

The President, I am told, has told people and I have told people. He asked me in front of a half dozen of my colleagues in the Cabinet Room back in September why I wasn’t with him enthusiastically about going in and why I was insisting on him going to the United Nations. I went in the Oval Office with him and said, Mr. President, I want to remind you there is a reason why your father didn’t go to Baghdad and called me a week beforehand, you are not going to insult his father, for whom I have great respect. I said, Mr. President, the reason your father didn’t go to Baghdad, he didn’t want to stay for 5 years. Are you ready to stay? Obviously, I did not say it in that tone to the President but I asked, Are you ready to stay, Mr. President?

What was the impression given to the American people? The impression was Johnny and Jane were going to come marching home by Christmas. Why are you National Guard folks so angry? Is it because you are not patriotic? Why are the reservists so angry? Is it because they are not patriotic? Heck, no, they are angry because they were led to believe it was not going to cost much, it was not going to take long, and we would be out of there.

Mr. BOND. May I ask if the distinguished Senator from Delaware will yield for a unanimous consent request? Mr. BIDEN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. BOND. I ask unanimous consent the vote in relation to the Byrd amendment No. 1794 occur at 3:45 today; provided further that following the vote, Senator McConnell be recognized to offer an amendment; I further ask consent that following the disposition of the McConnell Amendment, the next amendment in order to the bill be offered by Senator BIDEN.

Mr. BIDEN. Reserving the right to object, I was told it would be 4:45. I’ve been waiting for 4 hours to speak and I have at least another 30 minutes to speak. If it is 3:45, I would object.

Mr. REID. How about if we made it 4 o’clock.

Mr. BIDEN. This is fine.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask the distinguished Senator from Missouri amend his request to that effect.

I know Senator SMITH is here to speak. How long do you wish to speak? Mr. SMITH. Ten minutes.

Mr. BIDEN. I don’t think I will take this long, but so I don’t get called on it, I will say half an hour.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, that will be 10 minutes before 4 o’clock. I so ask if my friend would be further kind enough to allow Senator BIDEN another 30 minutes, Senator SMITH 10 minutes, Senator Boxer 8 minutes, and then we would vote.

Mr. BOND. Madam President, I so amend the request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the modified request? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, my committee, the Foreign Relations Committee, pleaded with the administration, month after month, beginning well over a year ago, to share with us plans for reconstruction. We got obfuscation upon obfuscation, a rosy scenario about all our troops being greeted as liberators, with most of our troops coming home by Christmas.

When we really pressed—a certain word has worked its way into the lexicon of this administration—we were told the answer was “unknowable.” I have never heard that word used as many times anywhere, let alone by the administration.
In fact, the problems and prescriptions of postwar Iraq were absolutely knowable. From the many hearings Senator Lugar and I convened over this year as well as the Armed Services Committee, and the work of our leading and policy experts from within the administration itself, thanks to the State Department Future of Iraq Project, whose detailed postwar plans were apparently ignored by the Department of Defense, much of this was obvious.

We are paying a very high price for those mistakes now. I share the widespread dismay at the miscalculations of this administration. I share the shock of the reason the administration says it took us to war, weapons of mass destruction, no longer is of any apparent interest to the most senior administration officials. I share the frustration of Members of Congress that the administration has made so many miscalculations leading up to war, the good options are gone and we are now left to find the least bad of the remaining options.

I understand that sticker shock many of my colleagues feel about the $87 billion. I suspect my friend from Oregon, who was on this committee, I know for my friend Senator Lugar, I know for my friend Senator Hagel, I know for my friend Senate McCain, it came as no shock, none whatever.

To be blunt, the reason there is such consternation in the Congress and the country at the moment is not about the $87 billion, notwithstanding that is an event. It is that we have lost faith in the President. It is that we lost our confidence in his ability to prosecute the peace. It is that we have great doubts since there were so many fundamental miscalculations made about what would happen after the regime fell. There is reason people are upset in the Senate. They doubt this administration has its act together.

My Republican friends will deny what the whole world knows publicly and privately acknowledge there is a giant rift in this administration as broad and as deep as the San Andreas Fault. On one side of the administration there is Mr. Cheney, a fine man, Mr. Rumsfeld, Mr. Wolfowitz, Mr. Feith; on the other side there is the State Department and the uniformed military.

Think about this one little piece, talking about the plan. What was the plan? What was the great detail? Mr. Rumsfeld as to what would happen immediately after Saddam fell? There was a guy named Jake Garner, a retired general, who was going to be dropped into Iraq along with a guy named Ahmed Chalabi, whom I know well, I spent an hour with him alone in my office last night, the head of the Iraqi National Congress, that Garner announced when he hit the ground there would be elections within a couple of months and that he was going to run the show.

How long did it take the President to figure out that was a gigantic mistake? About 2 weeks. And he should be complimented for it.

All this malarkey about the planning, where is Garner? Where did he go? What happened to the election that was going to take place in a couple months?

The administration got on the ground and realized they did not have a plan. So they got a guy named Bremer, first-rate guy, diplomat. Guess what. That diplomat does not report to the Secretary of State, he reports to the Secretary of Defense. Isn't that kind of interesting?

Assume we have gone in and the planning post-Saddam was as successful as the planning to take down Saddam. Assume we had gone in and the international community was doing what they do in every other circumstance where we are building the peace: We usually supply 25 percent of the money, they supply 75 percent of the money. They did in Kosovo, the Afghanist, NATO is now in. Assume we were not losing Americans at the rate we are losing now. Assume this guy named Bremer, a former official at the State Department, former comptroller, sent to Iraq by the Secretary of Defense, and someone not in the White House, says the window of opportunity to win the peace is closing rapidly in Iraq. Assume he came back and said, the window is wide open. We have time and things are moving. Would people in the Senate be f hyperspeaking?

My friend from Missouri has been in politics as long as I have. Presidents get pretty broad support when what they propose is working. What is happening here—and again, keep in mind, I'm for this money. But I am angry about what happened. I am angry about the refusal to listen. I am angry that we are there alone when we did not have to be.

The administration's assumptions were dead wrong, and the President told the American people our mission was accomplished when he landed on that aircraft carrier. And it had not even begun. It has not even begun. And you wonder why the American people are mad. You wonder why, when you go home—and those of us who supported it going in are getting our brains kicked in at home—Democrat and Republican, we are wondering why the polls show—what?—57, 58, 60 percent of the American people say: Don't vote for this money.

The reason is, they were not leveled with. It seems to me that explains why there is so much concern on both sides of the aisle about this supplemental. That explains why it is so important that we do more than simply vote yes or no on this $87 billion, why we need to have clear assurances from this administration that it understands—not acknowledges—just understands its mistakes to date and has a sensible plan to rectify them.

So for all the errors of the past, we may able to confront the reality of the present and the imperative of the future. The reality of the present is that the window of opportunity is closing on our ability to bring peace to Iraq.

As I said, that is not just my conclusion. It is the conclusion of the former Deputy Defense Secretary, John Ashcroft; who was second in the Defense Department. The imperative of the future is that we cannot afford to lose the peace in Iraq.

Losing the peace in Iraq is not about terror alone. It is so much bigger than that. Losing the peace in Iraq would condemn the United States to deal with the consequences of Iraq: chaos, not just in more terrorism but what will happen.

If we lose Iraq, Iran becomes an incredibly empowered nation; Syria becomes more emboldened; Turkey, an Islamic government, seeing a failed state on their border, becomes more radicalized; Iran, surrounded by the failed states of Iraq and Afghanistan, puts in jeopardy the very existence of Pakistan.

Doesn't it occur to you a little bit why all of a sudden the accusations are the ISI is cooperating with the Pastun warlords in southern Afghanistan? These guys have figured out. They are hedging their bets. And if the Musharraf falls in Pakistan, we are not talking about an Iran, we are not talking about an Afghanistan, we are talking about a nuclear power that my friend on the Intelligence Committee knows, as well as I do, is seething—seething—with terror. There is a whole province in northwestern Pakistan that is totally uncontrollable, where most people think bin Laden is and Omar is, that they will not go in and we cannot go in.

So I wish to heck we would stop this stuff about: We are fighting terror in Baghdad. We are, but it is so much bigger than that, and the American people have not been told so.

So we cannot afford to lose the peace.

I will make another outrageous prediction. If we lose the peace in Iraq, you will see at least two of the following countries fall—Jordan, Egypt, or Saudi Arabia. How will King Hussein stand with Iraq in shambles? How will that happen? How will any voice of moderation be willing to speak up anywhere in the Middle East if Iraq falls?

And you know why Iraq may fall, beyond our mistakes? Because we have not leveled with the American people, and they may very well say: Bring the boys home.

I know my colleagues think I am a broken record on the Senate floor saying this so many times, but the one thing we all learned from the Vietnam generation—now we are the generation—we were for or against it, went or did not— is that no foreign policy can be sustained without the informed consent of the American people, their informed consent before we act.

In short, losing the peace would reinforce the view held by the extremists in the Arab and Islamic world that while the United States can project power, we have no staying power, and that all they have to do is wait us out. It would confirm the concerns of many moderate Arab regimes expressed before we went to war with Iraq that we would not finish the job. It is by now obvious that I met with every Arab head of state as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. I traveled to the region; I traveled to Afghanistan; I traveled to northern Iraq—all before the war. I did not meet one Arab leader who defended Saddam Hussein. Yet I did not meet a single one who said anything other than what I am about to paraphrase: If you go, make sure you finish the job because if you do not, I am dead.

Our credibility in Iraq and the region and across the globe will be at rock bottom if we do not successfully secure the peace. America and Americans will be far less secure to boot.

We have to show the wisdom and the commitment to help Iraq write a different future. And this supplemental request is critical to that effort. We have to succeed in transforming Iraq into a stable, unified country, with a representative government. And success in that effort can begin the process of redrawing the strategic map of the region. It could boost the reformers in Iran, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and elsewhere who have put Syria and its allies and Hezbollah on the defensive, and improve the climate of Israeli-Palestinian peace. It would deal a significant setback to those who argue that the only future for Arabs and Muslims is one of religious extremism, perpetual conflict, economic stagnation, and autocratic governments.

So we are faced with a real choice. I say to my colleagues who opposed the use of force in the first place, who believe there is nothing this administration can do to win the peace, and who have proclaimed that the dire consequences I have just predicted if we cut and run are outweighed by the consequences of being dragged down into a long, protracted war, I respect their vote to say no. I disagree with them, but I respect it.

I have concluded that the peace is winnable but not without a change of attitude and direction on the part of this administration.

I am convinced that winning the peace is possible. I am convinced that the President is right to the very core of his heart that he can change the course.

Since the President addressed the Nation, I have to admit I have been given many new reasons to be skeptical that the administration has genuinely changed course.

The President’s speech to the U.N. missed a crucial opportunity to rally the world to our side, just as he missed opportunities to get the world with us before the war and in its immediate aftermath.

He should have made clear our willingness to bridge the differences with our allies on a new U.N. resolution and to grant the U.N. real authority. He should have laid out some specifics, and asked—and asked— for help.

So I am left questioning the sincerity of the President’s midcourse correction.

If we want the world to share the burden, we have to share authority in Iraq in meaningful ways.

The President must make us players.

And I can’t believe we can’t find a compromise that meets our rightful concerns about the premature transfer of power. But that also empowers the U.N. and starts to put more power in the hands of the Iraqis.

I am also skeptical that the President will continue to level with the American people about what it is going to take to win the peace. Being open and honest about the commitment we must make to Iraq is the only way to sustain public support. But the administration’s approach to the supplemental concerns me on this account too.

The administration itself estimates the total cost of reconstruction in Iraq to be about $60 to $70 billion over the next 4 to 5 years. And I others predict the final tab will be higher still.

The supplemental request covers $20 billion of that total. That begs a critical question: Where is the remaining $40 to $50 billion coming from? Will it come from the international community? Normally, that would be a reasonable expectation. The United States typically covers about 25 percent of post-conflict reconstruction costs. By that ratio, we could expect about $60 billion from the international community for Iraq.

But we so poisoned the well in the lead up to this war and in its aftermath that it may be difficult to get international support to provide more than $2 to $3 billion at the donors conference next month.

That is a terrible indictment of our foreign policy and a harsh example of the price of unilateralism.

Will the missing money be generated by Iraq’s oil revenues? That is what the administration led the American people to believe, and unfortunately even some Members of Congress now believe that is true.

In fact, if we are lucky, oil exports will generate about $14 billion next year—just enough money to pay for the government’s operating costs and salaries for public sector workers, the police and the army. Forget about oil paying for reconstruction.

Will the missing money be generated by others parts of the Iraqi economy? Secretary Rumsfeld recently promoted the potential of Iraq’s tourism industry. But if banks of the West replace the Outer Banks as a destination of choice someday, but not any day soon.

Or maybe the missing money will come from taxpayers when the administration comes back to Congress next year or the year after to ask for more. If that is the plan, tell us now.

For today, this Congress must deal with the money that is being requested.

Let me be clear, we must invest more in the effort to secure the peace in Iraq. I support the supplemental request. It is necessary and it is in our national security interest.

But that does not mean we should accept it on its face. The large number of proposed amendments are evidence that Republicans and Democrats alike don’t have the confidence to take the administration at its word.

We need to build in strict reporting requirements—the kind Senator Lugar and I tried to add to the original congressional authorization to use force.

We need to know how the administration will pay for this supplemental. We need to know how the money will be spent and we need to see a coherent, detailed plan for success.

The first critical question that must be answered is: How are we going to pay for this $67 billion? It seems to me there are three options: We can turn the money for reconstruction from a grant to a loan, to be recouped from Iraq when its economy gets going again. That sounds attractive. Why shouldn’t the Iraqis pay for their own future?

Or maybe the missing money will come from taxpayers when the administration comes back to Congress next year or the year after to ask for more. If that is the plan, tell us now.

Second, we can do what the President is proposing: add to the deficit, which is already close to $600 billion and pass along the debt Iraq owes them. We are encouraging the very countries we are encouraging to contribute more to Iraq’s reconstruction. And we are lobbying them to forgive or reschedule the debt Iraq owes them.

Or third, we can call on the patriotism of the American people and ask them to help finance the $87 billion the President has asked for. The President was right in saying that success in Iraq requires all of us to sacrifice. But he squandered the opportunity to rally the most fortunate among us to the cause to help provide for our troops and meet the goal of achieving security and stability in Iraq.

The bottom line is: The President does not have a plan to passally troop support and reconstruction in both Afghanistan and Iraq. After squandering an annual Federal budget surplus in excess of $200 billion upon taking office, and running up annual deficits estimated at nearly $500 billion in less than 3 years, it would be financially irresponsible for this administration to pass on the cost of our security to our children and grandchildren. That gets it exactly backwards.

We must step up to pay for our own security and that of future generations. In fact, as the President said in his State of the Union Address:

"This country has many challenges. We will not deny, we will not ignore, we will not pass along our problems to other Congresses, to other presidents, and other generations.

We will confront them with focus and clarity and courage."

In keeping with that view, the most obvious, fiscally responsible approach is to reconsider a small portion of the $690 billion tax cuts targeted for Americans with incomes in the top 2 percent—people with incomes exceeding $300,000 and averaging $900,000 per year. Cutting taxes responsibly in the middle of a jobless recovery, especially for the middle class, makes good sense. But never has any administration squandered the opportunity to war and, at the same time, pushed through the biggest tax cuts in our history, all in the face of already historically high deficits.

The result is a mixed message to the American people, who are left to wonder: How can we wage the fight against terrorism without paying any price? If fact, the Administration’s thinking reflects a woeful misunderstanding of the character of the American people.

I hope the President will support an amendment to do just that—a bipartisan amendment to the supplemental that Senator KERRY and I will offer, along with Senators CHAFFEE, CORZINE, and FEINSTEIN.

I think Americans would support the idea of paying for this mission from the $1.8 trillion in tax cuts enacted in the last 3 years.

Let’s look at the numbers. Americans in this income bracket make, on average, $1 million a year. They are being asked to give up a single year’s worth of their $690 billion 10-year tax cut, and do it gradually.

For example, in a single year, 2008, the tax cuts going to the top 1 percent will total $87.7 billion—virtually the same amount of money the President is requesting.

In my view, the most fortunate Americans surely would respond favorably to such an idea. What will really sting is: They are no less patriotic than anyone else. But also they have the best ability to contribute because their tax cut is so much greater than everyone else’s.

The top 1 percent will get a cumulative 10-year tax cut of nearly $690 billion. What I am proposing leaves them with a $600 billion tax cut. That is clearly not punitive. If someone proposed to tax the richest 1 percent and get a tax cut of $600 billion, it would sound outrageous given the circumstances we now face, with growing deficits, and growing security needs.

In making this proposal, I am not arguing about the fairness of the tax cuts themselves, it is clear which Americans are in the top 1 percent and what they are getting to pay for our mission in Iraq. And that, unfortunately, is the price we have to pay for the unilateral foreign policy and the missed opportunities of this administration.

If we give the administration the money it is seeking for Iraq’s reconstruction, it must give us a clear and coherent plan for succeeding where it has failed so far.

The No. 1 priority must be to inject a sense of urgency to our efforts. I don’t want to minimize how hard this is, or do I want to minimize the successes we have already achieved. Standing up the Government of Iraq, opening schools and hospitals, establishing local councils across the country. But all of this progress is jeopardized by our failure thus far to get it right in two fundamental areas: security and basic services.

If the Iraqi people do not soon see their living conditions improve, they will begin to turn against us. Once that happens, the insecurity we are seeing today will look mild by comparison.

In my view, there are five urgent priorities in Iraq.

We need a detailed gameplan to address them. And that plan should be developed in close consultation with the Iraqi Governing Council.

First, we must improve the security situation on the ground for our soldiers and for the Iraqi people. Over time, an Iraqi army can and should take the place of our troops. But it will take time to train such a force 1, 2, 3 years.

In the meantime, the best way to take some of the heat off of our forces is to bring other countries in on the development.

That is one reason a new U.N. resolution is important. If we had done this right from the start, we would have been able to secure 60,000 or 70,000 foreign troops. I doubt we will get more than another 10,000. But every single foreign soldier helps.

For Iraqis, law and order has broken down in large parts of the country, especially in Baghdad and central Iraq. Murder, carjackings, theft, and rape are rampant throughout. Criminal gangs are organizing at a rate far faster than we are fielding trained Iraqi police.

We have heard a lot of talk about whether the number of foreign military forces on the ground is adequate. What does not receive nearly enough attention is the urgent need to recruit international police forces to train and work alongside the Iraqi police. Our officials tell us that we urgently need over 5,000 international police to train and patrol with Iraqis. We should have deployed them over 5 months ago when Baghdad fell. We should have started recruiting them 12 months ago, just as President Clinton personally got on the phone to world leaders to recruit police months before we went into Haiti. Yet, to my knowledge, less than 10 percent of the international police forces we need are on the ground. They are taking a huge opportunity to place a strange burden on Iraq. They know their country better than any foreigner. But we also know that the police under Saddam were corrupt and sadistic. They maintained order through fear. We have to start from scratch in recruiting and training an Iraqi police force. But that effort can’t occur on a large scale until we get trainers in from abroad. And we can if the President builds an effective coalition, if he reaches out to our allies, and recruits those forces.

The second priority is to restore basic services—particularly electricity, water, and telephone service.

Ambassador Bremer set the end of September as a deadline for restoring electricity to its prewar level of 4,400 megawatts. This is enough to meet about two-thirds of countrywide demand.

While falling temperatures will ease demand in coming weeks, toward the end of October, the month of fasting or Ramadan will begin. Iraqis will expect to have electricity available during the month of Ramadan. They will not want electricity to be turned off. We should expect their discontent to grow. It will take huge investments to bring the electricity grid up to the level where it can meet full demand countrywide. Ambassador Bremer estimates $13 billion. Another official in Baghdad puts the price tag at a total of $21 billion.

The third urgent priority is a strategic communications plan. The United States has the most advanced media industry in the world, yet we are being beaten on Iraqi airwaves by the likes of Al-Jazeera and Iranian TV and radio. The messages these outlets are broadcasting do not cast the United States in a positive light. The quality of our broadcasts in Iraq makes public access TV look good. It is hard to imagine succeeding in Iraq if we cannot succeed at getting our message out.

Few Iraqis have a sense of the priorities, plans, and progress of the United States. We need to communicate effectively and directly with them. They need to hear us acknowledge their problem of 35 years of mismanagement, wars, sanctions, and extensive looting that followed Iraq's liberation. It will take several years to recover.

Unemployment is over 60 percent. By contrast, at the height of the Great Depression, our unemployment was just over 25 percent. A hot, poor, unemployed, and well-armed population is not a good combination. We need to get people off the streets and involved in their country's reconstruction.

The final priority is to establish a clear timeline for handing power back to the Iraqis. There is a legitimate debate going on with the French over the pace of "Iraqization" and the timing of elections. All of us want to see sovereignty restored to Iraq as quickly as possible. But none of us want a process that is so rushed that it ends in failure.

Building a strong, democratic center and the institutions of civil society will take time. We should seek a compromise at the U.N. that creates a representative—perhaps partially elected—body that would draft the new Iraqi constitution by early next year. That constitution should be put before the people of Iraq in a referendum, and elections should follow by next summer.

The administration should submit a detailed plan with specific benchmarks and timelines in each of these areas I have mentioned.

The administration also must show us that, in working toward these goals, it will spend the tax payers' money wisely. I have looked closely at the budget request, as have most of my colleagues. We have a lot of questions. To cite just three examples:

- Why does the administration propose to spend $33,000 apiece for pickup trucks when you can get a new pickup here in the U.S. for $14,000? Our Iraqi friends deserve AC—but not leather seats and a CD changer.
- Why does the administration propose to spend $10,000 per student for a 3-month business course—more than double the monthly cost of Harvard Business School?
- Why does it propose to spend $50,000 per prison bed—double the average cost in the U.S.?

The bottom line is that we have an obligation to closely scrutinize the President's request, to ensure we spend taxpayer dollars wisely and effectively. But we must face up to our foreign policy and national security obligations as well. We cannot meet our national security needs on the cheap, or by playing off domestic constituencies against our need to get it right in Iraq.

The stakes are too high, and an entire region's future—one that is critical to America's security—is in the balance. Let's not take our eye off the ball. Let's do the difficult thing, but the right thing.

Madam President, I just sum up by telling you what is in my heart. We need to hear timetables. It is not that complicated.

Our fourth urgent priority is helping to reconstruct the Iraqi economy. The Iraqi economy is broken. It was destroyed by 35 years of mismanagement, wars, sanctions, and extensive looting that followed Iraq's liberation. It will take several years to recover.

The President asked for $50 to $75 billion more to rebuild Iraq. The Secretary of the Treasury estimated that $75 billion or so is needed to deal with the next 5 or 6 years. The World Bank says $75 billion or so is needed. Few Iraqis have a sense of the prior-

Mr. BOND. Will the Senator from Delaware yield for a question?

Mr. BOND. I am taken with the world view and the view of the peace by the Senator from Delaware, but when he talks about the United States, as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, I wonder if he recalls this discussion with the Secretary of State: Last week you engaged in tireless diplomacy to build international unity against Iraq. Oddly, other members of the Security Council continue to indulge the fantasy that Saddam would suddenly begin listening to reason.
Members of Congress do not share that delusion. We look forward to receiving the President’s recommendations with regard to the need to use force to contain, if not destroy, Iraq’s capability to produce weapons of mass destruction.

It is no longer a speech. It is now a prescription that makes it almost impossible to do what people want. We have to continue this foolish response. The diplomacy has been so incredibly ham-handed that we have to stiff-arm them. I don’t do it.

I do know the result. Whether you agree with me or not, somebody has to pay the bill. All my friends who don’t like international institutions, all my friends who want to eat freedom fries and engage in their little pettiness, have fun, but go home and explain to your people why only Americans are dying. Go home and explain to your people why only American taxpayers are paying the bill. Go home and explain to your people why we have close to 200,000 troops in the region and 140,000 troops there. Bravo. Bravo. Aren’t we tough.

It is about time we wake up. By the way, I ask being the floor later today with an amendment. This President has come along and said: We need $97 billion and, by the way, just add it to the deficit. Add it to our tab. Put it on the tab. Our kids will pay for our security.

So the budget deficit is going to approach $600 billion. Can anybody name a time for me in American history when a President took us to war and, after taking us to war, I supported his going to, said: It is going to be a long sacrifice, and, by the way, here is the largest tax cut in the history of the United States of America, as we go.

Can anybody name any time in American history when that has ever happened? Isn’t it kind of strange?

So, Madam President, I will not take the time to talk about how we should pay for this now. But I will suggest—is there any time left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 2 minutes 24 seconds.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, to me, this is real. It is real for the people to share the burden, we have to be willing to have people share the responsibility. Why does the administration propose to spend $133,000 apiece for pickup trucks when you can get a brand new pickup in the U.S. for $14,000? Our Iraqi friends deserve AC—but not leather seats and a CD changer.

Why does the administration propose to spend $10,000 per student for a month-long business course—more than double the monthly cost of the Harvard Business School?

Why does it propose to spend $50,000 per prisoner when this is double the average cost of a U.S. prison bed?

The bottom line is we have an obligation to closely scrutinize the President’s request, to ensure that taxpayers pay for their garbage. Most importantly, that this administration has changed its course because literally the future of our children is at stake if they don’t get it right.

I thank my colleagues and I yield the floor.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Madam President, today I have voted in support of Senator Byrd’s amendment to strike $15.2 billion in reconstruction aid from the supplemental appropriation. I suppose this amendment not only because I oppose the overall intent of some of this spending—helping Iraqis establish order and setting the country on a path to stability and development—but because it is clear that there has been insufficient planning and no explanation as to how this $15.2 billion in reconstruction assistance would be spent.

This portion of the request needs careful consideration and, frankly, this portion of the policy desperately needs improvement. It makes sense to sever this portion from the rest of the request to allow for that process without delaying action on all of the issues before.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I rise today to explain my support for Senator Byrd’s amendment No. 1794 to S. 1689. While I support funding the reconside of short-term politics, but he is on the right side of history to support the President's request for $87 billion. He has made many points where the administration could have done this or that better. Some of them are valid. I think it is important that we remind ourselves what this is really all about. What are the bigger issues at play here? I have believed throughout my life as a child of the cold war that America's foreign policy is something to be proud of. Born in the early 1950s, I remember the nuclear bomb drills, where we would get under our desks and practice how to survive a nuclear bomb. I remember great leaders such as Eisenhower, Nixon, and then Reagan, standing up for the principles of the American Constitution at home and abroad.

I ask myself, what are the values of the American foreign policy? I believe they are the defense of human rights. I believe they are the expansion of prosperity and engaging in trade. The world doesn't need to fear the United States of America as long as those values are intact. I believe they are very much intact. When I came to this body in 1997, I was privileged to serve on the Foreign Relations Committee with Senator Biden. I remember during the Clinton administration a feeling that our foreign policy was very well intentioned, but there was uncertainty about what to do with it. We were attacked at the World Trade Center; we were attacked at the Khobar Towers; we were attacked in our ship in a port in Yemen; our embassies were blown up. In each case, our response was to hit them with a cruise missile, but not the commitment to actually get them.

I joined Senator Biden and others on the Democratic side in supporting President Clinton in Kosovo, believing that the defense of human rights included stopping genocide on a massive scale in Bosnia. I remember when many criticized President Clinton for not coming to Kosovo. I think he was planning for peace, but I know every time a chief executive, Republican or Democrat, comes here and says I have a plan for the peace, we have many of our colleagues simply say we cannot pay for the peace. We can pay to win a war, but we want to go home when it is time to win the peace.

The American people, I know, are tired of paying, but world leadership requires American leadership, and sometimes, with allies such as the British, they want to fight, it is there, not here, and we have to go and win the peace. It falls to us now to pay for it.

I say Joe Biden is on the wrong side of short-term politics but Joe Biden is on the right side of history, just as Roosevelt and Truman with the Marshall plan. We are being asked to do something that is historic. If the time of the Americans is over with the cold war, vote no. If the time of the Americans and American leadership is still present, vote yes. Vote against the amendments that would gut it because I believe our place in the world, democracy's future on this planet, is in large measure determined by what leadership we give to the world.

I wish I had more confidence in international organizations. I think we should stay in them, but I don't believe we should ever have our interests and our values subordinated to the veto of the Security Council of the United Nations. That would be a mistake. And if we had ever done that, we would never have defended Europe in the cold war, we would never have defended our allies in Asia, because we never could have gotten support of the Security Council for such things. So it does require American leadership, and sometimes, with allies such as the British, we have to go it nearly alone.

I believe the time of the Americans is still now, and I think we need to support President Bush, not withstanding what he said about going to war and even $5 billion of reconstruction. If they want to fight, it is there, not here, and we have to go and win the peace. It falls to us now to pay for it.

I say Joe Biden is on the wrong side of short-term politics but Joe Biden is on the right side of history, just as Roosevelt supported Truman with the Marshall plan. We are being asked to do something that is historic. If the time of the Americans is over with the cold war, vote no. If the time of the Americans and American leadership is still present, vote yes. Vote against the amendments that would gut it because I believe our place in the world, democracy's future on this planet, is in large measure determined by what leadership we give to the world.

I wish I had more confidence in international organizations. I think we should stay in them, but I don't believe we should ever have our interests and our values subordinated to the veto of the Security Council of the United Nations. That would be a mistake. And if we had ever done that, we would never have defended Europe in the cold war, we would never have defended our allies in Asia, because we never could have gotten support of the Security Council for such things. So it does require American leadership, and sometimes, with allies such as the British, we have to go it nearly alone.

I believe the time of the Americans is still now, and I think we need to support President Bush, not withstanding what he said about going to war and even $5 billion of reconstruction.
foolish, because he as well as I and many others are tired of reading in the newspaper comments from the Iraqis.

For example, this is one from USA Today. It tells of an Iraqi businessman who was surprised to see the $100 million a company was charged to build an airport that will house more than 3,000 people. He said: I could build this for $10 million.

If someone comes to the floor and says Senator BYRD is turning his back on America's place in the world because for BYRD wants to protect the people of this country and their taxpayer dollars so that when and if we do build housing or shopping malls in Iraq, it is done in the right way, I say the people who question him are on the wrong track.

I have another quote. A member of the Iraqi Governing Council—appointed by this administration, I might say—saying to WAXMAN staff over on the House side that non-Iraqi contractors had charged about $25 million to refurbish a prison in Basra, a job that he said Iraqis could have done for $5 million. This is a disaster.

My friend talked about President Roosevelt, he said you what FDR said about this during World War II.

I do not want to see a war millionaire created in the U.S. as a result of this world disaster.

He was talking about war profiteering. Maybe my colleagues are sanguine about the scandals we have already seen with no big contracts in the back room to firms that have connections to the Vice President of the United States, I am not sanguine.

The Byrd amendment is saving us from the embarrassments that will flow, because they will flow. I have been in the area of military procurement reform for a very long time.

I served in the House for 10 years. I served on the Armed Services Committee. I discovered a lot of problems with our military procurement, and you all haven't seen nothing yet when you already have Iraqis saying we are charging so much.

What Senator BYRD is saying to us is, before we send hard-earned American tax dollars over there for a rebuilding, if you will—actually, it is not even a rebuilding; it is a building because a lot of the things they never had before—before we do that, we need to look at this situation.

What Senator BYRD wants to do, the administration, the President, is asking for $33,000 apiece for 80 pickup trucks when here they cost $34,000, I say thank you, Senator BYRD.

When I see a $3.6 million request for satellite phones at an average cost of $56,000 and we are told by the Iraqis that they paid on May 12 $900 each, I say thank you, Senator BYRD.

And $2 million for museums and memorials when the Iraqis say they are tired of memorials. That is all Senator BYRD ever gave them. They don't want more memorials. I say thank you, Senator BYRD, for calling attention to the fact that they want to build two prisons at a cost of $50,000 per prison bed where in America it cost $25,000 per prison bed.

Others have talked about the cost of a 4-week business course in Iraq at a cost of $10,000 per student when in Harvard it is $4,000. I say thank you, Senator BYRD.

Where is the money going? Into somebody's pocket where it doesn't belong over there or over here? It doesn't matter; it is taxpayers' dollars.

I look at what one year on drug enforcement, $1.6 billion, and our kids are dying of overdoses, and we don't have the money, and this administration won't give us the money for education.

This President cut afterschool programs in half, throwing 1 million kids out on the street. Thank goodness we restored some of it. I say thank you, Senator BYRD.

You can make the most lofty statements you want about America's leadership. America's leadership doesn't move forward one iota when we are not careful and we don't look at what we are doing.

I think it is extraordinary: $9 million for a state-of-the-art Iraqi postal service. Per capita, this amount is greater than the Federal Government spends on the U.S. Postal Service. Tell that to our constituents who are told they may not get Saturday mail deliveries.

My constituents are perplexed by this request. The President will not pay for it. He is adding to an already overblown deficit. If we do not count the Social Security trust fund, it isulia to $700 billion. He will not pay for it. The numbers do not add up. They do not make sense.

My people want us to do our share to help the Iraq people, but they were told a different story from this administration. Press Secretary Ari Fleischer:

Iraq has tremendous resources that belong to the Iraqi people. And so there are a variety of means that Iraq has to be able to shoulder much of the burden for their own reconstruction.

Ari Fleischer, the spokesman for the President, said that in February of this year. In March of this year, Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz:

There's a lot of money to pay for this that doesn't have to be U.S. taxpayer money, and it starts with the assets of the Iraqi people.

He also said:

We're dealing with a country that can really finance its own reconstruction, and relatively soon.

This is what my constituents were told, and now they are told they are supposed to blink their eye at tens of billions of dollars going for things that cost half the price in this country.

How about Secretary Rumsfeld, the leader of this war:

I don't believe that the United States has the responsibility for reconstruction.

Let me say that again. The top person in the Defense Department, Secretary Donald Rumsfeld. I don't believe that the United States has the responsibility for reconstruction.

That is not BARBARA BOXER speaking. That is not ROBERT BYRD speaking. That is not Senator MURRAY speaking or Senator STABENOW.

This is what the American people were told, and Senator BYRD is saying to this administration that they did not tell us the truth about this.

I agree with Senator BYRD. This administration has been wrong down the line on this policy, and suddenly we are supposed to write this enormous check for this reconstruction. I look at it as a blank check—when one sees the numbers they have put forward, they were wrong on the weapons of mass destruction. They were wrong on what would happen after the war. They were wrong when they failed to predict that the terrorists would move in and fill the void. They were wrong on what the rebuilding would cost. They were wrong on the state of Iraq's ability to recover economically. They were wrong on how many troops would be needed. They were wrong on the oil revenues. They were wrong on how much other countries would contribute.

I know it is hard to listen to this, I know some of my colleagues on the other side do not really want to listen to this, but these are the facts. We are not operating from a lack of experience—Senator BYRD is saying—and he is making a plea to colleagues on both sides of the aisle—is that we need to take a further look at these requests, especially at a point in time when we are told by this administration that they can even meet our homeland defense needs.

I have an amendment to try to protect commercial aircraft from shoulder-fired missiles. Let's support Senator BYRD. He is doing the right thing for America.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Under the previous order, there will now be a period of 16 minutes equally divided between the Senator from West Virginia and the Senator from Alaska.

The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I assume this will be an up-or-down vote. I am pleased to make my statement first and let the Senator close. That would put people on notice that we should be voting in 15 minutes.

I have said repeatedly that the President's supplemental must be considered as a complete package. This is one of the key votes on the bill. If we try to separate even a portion of the package of the $20.3 billion, we will delay the return of our troops.

We are in a situation where the quicker the Iraqi people can get control of their own affairs—or even greater control of their own affairs, I should say—the better off we will be and the sooner we will start bringing our forces home.

Support for our forces is directly linked to having the funds for security, infrastructure repair, and freedom in Iraq. All of the witnesses who appeared before us from the military, the State Department, and Ambassador Bremer,
Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, first I thank my colleague, Senator STEVENS, for his courtesy. I want to tell him again that my association with him is not so fragile as to be injured by any differences we may have over this amendment or any other question.

The American people have only recently been exposed to some of the details of the $15.2 billion in funds that the President has requested for the reconstruction of Iraq. As the public learns about this request, the more the people will want Congress to take a closer look at this request.

My amendment would strike $15.2 billion in reconstruction funding for Iraq. But it does not touch 1 cent of the security-related funding in this $87 billion appropriations bill. My amendment would allow the Senate to go back to the drawing board and consider an entirely new bill that would only contain funds for rebuilding Iraq.

A vote for the Byrd amendment is a vote for taking a fresh look at $15.2 billion in Iraqi reconstruction spending. A vote for the Byrd amendment is a vote for more hearings, more hearings about why these funds are needed, more hearings about what they have done and how proud they are of what they have done and how proud they are to be helping these people have permanent freedom in their own country.

I urge that this amendment be defeated.

I do want to point out that what we are dealing with is the question of splitting this supplemental. The supplemental is in two parts. One is military, and one is for reconstruction and restoration of the Iraqi people. To split off any part of it is to defeat the purpose of the administration and to defeat the goals we sought to achieve by committing our forces to the cause of liberating Iraq.

I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. How much time do I have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 8 minutes.
Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from Florida (Mr. GRAHAM), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KERRY), and the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN) are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KERRY) would vote “yea.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 59, as follows: [Rollcall Vote No. 371 Leg.]

YEAS—38

NAYS—59

The amendment (No. 1794) was rejected.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. REID. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, under the previous order Senator MCCONNELL will be offering a sense-of-the-Senate amendment on the table. We are currently working on an agreement to set up the vote for that for tomorrow morning. Therefore, we will have no more votes tonight. Senator BIDEN tonight will also be offering an amendment later. There will be no more votes tonight. We will be announcing when we will be voting tomorrow morning a little bit later this evening.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. COLINS). The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I know the Senator from Louisiana is interested in talking for a few minutes as in morning business. I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Louisiana be recognized for 4 minutes as in morning business, after which I be allowed to send my amendment to the desk. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I will shortly offer an amendment that should be supported by everyone in the Senate. It seems to me it is time we had such a vote. It is an opportunity to set aside the rancor that has occasionally occurred during the consideration of this underlying measure, both in the Appropriations Committee and since, and agree that the Armed Forces of the United States have performed brilliantly in Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and in Operation Iraqi Freedom in, of course, Iraq.

Since October 7, 2001, when our Armed Forces of the United States and its coalition allies launched military operations in Afghanistan, designated as Operation Enduring Freedom, our soldiers and allies have removed the Taliban regime, eliminated Afghanistan's terrorist infrastructure, and captured significant and also important and numerous members of al-Qaida.

Since March 19, 2003, when the Armed Forces of our country and its coalition allies launched military operations, designated as Operation Iraqi Freedom, our soldiers have removed Saddam Hussein's regime, eliminated Iraq's terrorist infrastructure, ended Iraq's illicit and illegal programs to acquire weapons of mass destruction, and captured significant international terrorists.
Whereas the support, love, and commitment from the families of United States service personnel participating in those two operations, as well as that of the communities and civil organizations which provided support through the United States Organization (USO), Operation Dear Abby, and Operation UpLink, helped to sustain those service members and enabled them to mitigate significant threats to United States national security while liberating oppressed peoples from dictatorial regimes;

Whereas the military of the United Statesomore than 16 million service members and contractor personnel were deployed worldwide, and a majority of those deployed were deployed to the United States military missions in Afghanistan and Iraq;

Whereas the commitment of companies making their employees available for military service, the creativity and initiative of contractors equipping the Nation’s Armed Forces with the best and most modern equipment, and the ingenuity of service companies assisting with the global overseas deployment of the Armed Forces demonstrates that the entrepreneurial spirit of the United States is an extraordinary valuable defense asset; and

Whereas the Nation should pause to recognize tributes and days of remembrance the sacrifice of members of the Armed Forces who died or were wounded in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom, as well as all who served in or supported military operations of those operations: Now, therefore, be it

Therefore, the Senate

(1) conveys its deepest sympathy and condolences to the families and friends of the members of United States and coalition forces who have been injured, wounded, or killed during Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom;

(2) commends President George W. Bush, Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld, and commander General Tommy Franks, United States Army, for their planning and execution of enormously successful military campaigns in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom;

(3) expresses its highest commendation and most sincere appreciation to the members of the United States Armed Forces who participated in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom;

(4) commends the Department of Defense civilian leaders and the defense contractor personnel whose skills made possible the equipping of the greatest Armed Forces in the annals of modern military endeavor;

(5) supports the efforts of communities across the Nation—

(A) to prepare appropriate homecoming ceremonies to honor and welcome home the members of the United States Armed Forces participating in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom, and to recognize their contributions to United States homeland and security and to the Global War on Terrorism; and

(B) to prepare appropriate ceremonies to commemorate with tributes and days of remembrance the service and sacrifice of those service members killed or wounded during those operations.

(6) expresses the deep gratitude of the Nation to the 21steadfast allies in Operation Enduring Freedom and to the 49 coalition members in Operation Iraqi Freedom, especially the United Kingdom, Australia, and Poland, whose forces, support, and contributions were invaluable and unforgettable; and

(7) recommits the United States to ensuring the United States homeland, to preventing weapons of mass destruction from reaching the hands of terrorists, and to helping the people of Iraq and Afghanistan build free and vibrant democratic societies.

Mr. McConnell. Madam President, we will have further debate and a vote on that amendment in the morning.

I suggest the previous question on the cloture on the motion to proceed to the consideration of the presidential proclamation. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Biden. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent so that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The quorum call is rescinded.

Mr. Biden. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be temporarily laid aside so I may offer an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 1796

Mr. Biden. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is as follows:

SEC. 1. (a) PROVISION OF FUNDS FOR SECURITY AND STABILIZATION OF IRAQ THROUGH PARTIAL SUSPENSION OF REDUCTIONS IN HIGHEST INCOME TAX RATE.

(b) ADJUSTMENT OF TABLES.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.

The amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning in 2005.

Mr. Biden. Madam President, I promise I am not going to keep you long. I plan on speaking in more detail to this amendment tomorrow. I wanted to lay this amendment down tonight.

With the help of Senator Kerry, Senator Chafee, Senator Corzine, and Senator Feinsteints, we have a simple and we believe a very commonsense amendment to pay for the President’s request for funding the supplemental for the war in Iraq. For my bona fides here, I want to make it clear at the outset. No. 1, I gave the President the authority to go to Iraq, and I believe it was the correct vote. I am not at all happy with the way the administration failed to plan for the fall of Saddam, notwithstanding the importuning on the part of myself and many others—Republican and Democratic alike—but nonetheless, I do not come at this as someone who is opposed to the idea the American public is going to be asked to spend more money to win the peace in Iraq. We are going to be asked to spend more money. It is inevitable. I might add, even if we had every other nation in the world with us, our share would still be in the tens of billions of dollars to win the peace in Iraq. We would still have tens of thousands of American troops there.

I am, as I stated earlier today, very angry with the failure of this administration to abandon the assumptions they had which were wrong. It is understandable; we were taken by taking, and we were wrong. We would find in Iraq after Saddam fell.

My colleague from Maine knows a great deal about American foreign policy. He is both in the military as a general staff person and now as a serious United States Senator. She knows from her experience on the Armed Services Committee and she knows from her experience on intelligence matters of what I speak. I am not suggesting she agrees with me; I am just suggesting she knows how much is at stake in winning the peace in Iraq.

What I am about to say some will use an ad hominem argument and say the reason Biden is doing this is because he is against funding the war in Iraq. Wrong. I want to amend what the President sent us. I want to refine it.

For example, I voted against the Byrd amendment. The Byrd amendment really was designed to say we should deal with getting the money to the troops right away and then let’s talk about the remainder for rebuilding. I was likely to support that when it looked like we were not going to be allowed to offer any amendments. I will have amendments to this legislation.

For example, we are spending something like $500,000 per day to house one prisoner in Iraq. We need to build in Iraq. They need to build prisons. It is in our interest; they do that. We spend half that in the United States. Why in the devil should we be spending twice as much in Iraq? One of three things: We either have not calculated correctly or we are padding contractors because the President is going to work, and do the job. Or Bremer and others are looking for some cushion to have money to do other things. In any of the three cases, it is the wrong way to go about it.
I will be offering an amendment that says we are going to cut part of the money for rebuilding Iraq; that we are only going to pay $30,000 per prison bed like we do here. We are talking about spending on education programs twice what we spent to go to Harvard Business School. There are a lot of things in the supplemental that require accountability. I am going to try to hold the administration accountable—not accountable for their sins, accountable so the American public and we know they are doing.

My friend from Maine—I do not want to get her in trouble, but I think she and her colleagues were empathetic at least to the initial proposal, the so-called Biden-Lugar amendment before the war as to what the conditions of going to war were. On the amendment, which we never got to, because Mr. GEPHARDT reached a deal with the President and the House of Representatives and rendered our efforts moot, we had, 20 Republicans prepared to vote for it. 20 Democrats to vote for it.

What did that amendment have in it that the authorization we finally passed did not have? It had reporting requirements. The President was required to report on a regular basis what he was doing, how the war was going, whether or not we were doing the following things. So I think there should be reporting requirements tied to the bill. And more. I will not bore you with what else.

The point I am trying to make is this is not a veiled attempt to somehow undercut or defeat the President’s request for significant economic and military aid in Iraq. We have to do it, in my view.

The second point I want to make at the outset is I voted against the President’s tax cuts. I think they were excessive. I think they were dangerous. I think they did not take into account the exigencies which we are facing. I said so at the time. And I think they massively contribute to the deficit. A lot of us disagree. Half a dozen of my Democratic friends voted for it and most of my Republican friends voted for it. I am not in any way impugning their vote with what I am about to try to do.

Further, the fact I was against the amendment—this is not a back-door way around the tax cut. My colleagues at this point will have to take that on faith, and hopefully, as I debate my amendment, you will understand what I am trying to do. Some will say the Biden, Kerry, Chafee, et cetera, amendment is designed to rescind the President’s tax cut. That is not what this is about.

I was listening to the President and, I might add, the President, I think, were he to be asked—and there is no reason why a student be—a Harvard administration, including Dr. Rice and the Secretary of State, will tell you the last 6 months I have been saying to the President: Tell the American people what it is going to cost. Tell them it is going to be billions of dollars. Tell them it is going to take tens of thousands of troops for an extended period of time because, Mr. President, if you don’t, you are going to lose their support. They are going to be angry when they find out Johny and Jane are not going to be marching home by Christmas. They are going to be angry when they find out we are going to have to devote billions of dollars—tens of billions—to secure the peace, as we have already spent tens of billions of dollars, over $70 billion, to prosecute “the war.” And the President was reluctant to do that. I think his failure to listen to the American people early on is a serious mistake.

By the way, conservative senior Republicans, such as my friend Senator DOMENICI, have used words such as “level with the American people,” or “leveling.” Senator LUGAR has been saying that for 6, 8, 10 months. So this is not a partisan attack on the President. This is just pointing out the President has to, to keep these folks in the deal so we don’t over there stranded, in effect, so we don’t divide this Nation—the only similarity between this and Vietnam, in my view, is this has the potential to divide the Nation. Not in the sense it is a quagmire. It is in a sense that it will divide the Nation, and we cannot afford a divided Nation because if we lose the peace in Iraq—in a sense it is silly me saying this to you, Madam President, because you know this better than most—if we lose the peace in Iraq, we will significantly strengthen Iran.

We will significantly undermine the moderates in Iran. We will put incredible pressure on Musharraf in Pakistan, and nuclear powers. We will put incredible pressure on the new Islamic party in Turkey that wants to become part of the European Union. We will probably cause every moderate and modernizing voice in the Middle East to shut down. That is a big problem well beyond terror.

If tonight the Lord Almighty came down and sat in this chair and said: I guarantee all of you Senators there will not be a single additional terrorist attack anywhere against American or American interests in the world for the next 10 years, does anybody think we still do not have a multibillion dollar problem in Iraq? Does anybody think we still do not have a multibillion troop problem in Iraq?

This is a country that has never been governed as a participatory republic, ever. This is a country that is not a country. This is not the old Babylon. This is not the old Persian Empire. This is a polyglot of elements of the Middle East that were put together by the colonial powers, Mr. Churchill, after World War I. It has never been a country.

Look how long it took to rebuild Germany, a unified, ethnically coherent country—as a matter of fact, too ethnically coherent in a sense.

So this is going to take a long time. My effort is like that of Senator Reed of Rhode Island. We have to do more, not less. So this is not designed to undercut the effort to rebuild Iraq. Nor is it designed as a back-door way of undercutting the President’s tax cut. Let me tell my colleagues what it is designed to do. It is designed to pay for what we need to do. There is the $87 billion we are about to—I believe, I predict—at least the bulk of that will be necessary. The President will sign it into law. The question is: What happens? How is that $87 billion, in effect, recorded on the books? Well, the President’s proposal is very simple and straightforward. It increases the deficit to almost $600 billion. I just add the $87 billion on top of the roughly $500 billion deficit for next year, and that is it.

Put another way, my grandchildren in 20 years, their children in 20 years, will pay for my security. They will pay for reconstructing Iraq. Now where I come from, I thought it was the other way around. I thought we were supposed to pay for our children’s and our grandchildren’s security and education.

It is really simple. This is not hyperbole. This is not some great insight. If it is added to the deficit, our children and grandchildren pay for it. The pages will pay for our security, if we succeed in Iraq.

So that is one thing we can do. We can do the President’s proposal. The other way we can do it is some Members of both parties—I believe, although I am not certain, but I think the Senator from Texas still has the view and some colleagues on my side, Senator DORGAN and others, believe there is so much oil in Iraq we can have them pay us back for this $87 billion. So we can make it in the form of a loan.

There will be a vote on that. Some one will offer an amendment saying this is a loan, not a grant. That is going to be very appealing to everybody listening to this little talk of mine. All my folks back home are saying: Joe, why would you not be for that? That is just fair. They have all this money, all this oil. They should pay for the reconstruction. They should pay for liberating them.

Well, if they could, they should, but the fact of the matter is Iraq already owes in hard debt and reparations well over $100 billion to the international community. We have a debt to Saddam Hussein. People lent them money. There were claims against their assets by those who were hurt by the invasion into Kuwait. There are indemnification claims against them, multi-billion dollar claims.

Everybody is big these days on using historical analogies, historical examples, and as hopefully a relatively informed student of history, I will use a couple. We abolished the World War I model of reconstruction or the World War II model. In World War I, the world defeated Germany and concluded at Versailles that the whole war was Germany's fault and Germany should pay for its own reconstruction and Germany should pay reparations to France, England, and others for the damage they did.

So the new government came along and we said, have at it, establish a democracy, rebuild your economy but, by the way, pay this overwhelming debt first.

What happened? We ended up with Germany collapsing, the economy collapsing, people using wheelbarrows full of deutsche marks to buy bread, and Hitler, the demagog, racist, no good son of a gun, playing on the angers, fears, and frustrations of the Germans, and we had World War II.

We can use the World War II model. The World War II model, to vastly oversimplify it—thank God your mother and father and me and my mother and father were a lot smarter than their mothers and fathers were—Germany came, and said, the leadership of Republicans like Vandenberg and Democrats like Truman, the World War I model did not work. If we try to set up a new government in Germany and in other parts of Europe, and we say to them, first of all, you Germans caused 400,000 Americans to die and over a million to be wounded and the debt, all of which is accurate, and you have to pay us off for the war. First, does anybody believe we would have a democratic republic in Germany now?

What did we do? We did the exact opposite. After over a year of debate, we did the exact opposite. A guy named Marshal Plan. Some little bit of that was loans, but the vast majority was grants, to give this fledging new democracy of the world, the opportunity to grow, because there has never been a place where democracy has been able to take root without economic growth. It has never happened.

So we did the opposite. We rebuilt Germany. Guess who benefited the most. The United States. It started the greatest economic expansion in the history of the United States of America.

There is a third model—a fourth model we can use. That is instead of indemnifying them, how do we go out and say to the rest of the world, look, here is the deal? The deal is we want our $20 billion back. We are putting in, we are going to indemnify against Iraqi oil, but not you.

That is what they call in some parts of my State being a penny wise and a pound foolish. We may indemnify our $20 billion back. We are sure not going to get anyone else to put in any money.

So this a very appealing bad idea. This is the "painted, tainted rose" of the song. This is not a good idea. This is the siren song. It sounds great. I am going to have to trouble explaining at home why I would not vote to have Iraq pay their way. The reason I won't is it will cost the American taxpayers two or three times more. In essence no one else will get to play the game if we do it and we will have to do it all.

The last way we can do this is we can pay for it. The President himself used these words in the State of the Union. He said:

This country has many challenges. We will not deny, we will not ignore, we will not pass along our problems to other Congresses, other Presidents, or other generations.

This is a sentiment that is a principle we can all support with regard to Iraq. I would like to hold the President to his commitment. Mr. President, do not pass on to my children and grandchildren the cost of this war. Let us pay for it.

How do you pay for it? The amendment I have sent to the desk would take a small share, less than 5 percent of the $1.8 trillion tax cut we enacted in the last 3 years, to cover the $87 billion emergency supplemental for Iraq.

That would put the burden of paying for our war on Americans today, not our grandchildren, which, despite the fine words I just quoted, is exactly what the President is doing.

This $87 billion request will be added to the astounding debt we have already piled up. From a projected 10-year surplus of $5.6 trillion when the President came to office, this administration has, by a kind of reverse alchemy, turned gold into lead. We face a $480 billion deficit this year alone, and that is not counting the $304 billion we will borrow from Social Security. There is no one in this Chamber who is a better expert on Social Security than the Presiding Officer, so she knows the real deficit is actually $644 billion.

So I think it is the right thing to do. They know it is the right thing to do. They know it is the right thing to do. They know it is the right thing to do. They know it is the right thing to do.

So tomorrow, when we actually bring this up for debate, I will have much more detail to say. I promised you I would not keep you long. But I believe—and I sincerely believe this—is the right thing to do. The wealthiest people I am talking about I believe think it is the right thing to do. I hope we have the courage to do it.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Alexander). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, just over 2 years ago, our lives were forever changed when terrorists attacked the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, claiming the lives of nearly 3,000 Americans and declaring war on freedom and democracy everywhere.

In the aftermath of the tragic events of September 11, it became very clear that we would be engaged in a war against terrorism that would span years rather than months and require the full attention of the United States and our allies.

On September 12, 2001, I spoke on the Senate floor regarding the challenge before America. I said:

"Our determination to winning the war on terror is as high priority that we gave to winning World War II, and we must engage our allies in this war. We should make the same preparations that we made for D-day in the world's entry into the Persian Gulf war."

I also said:

"Our actions must be ongoing and relentless, and be dedicated to excising the cancer of terrorism in a way that raises its ugly head. Our efforts cannot be another catharsis after a national tragedy, and they must not fade away with time and business as usual. We owe it to yesterday's victims and their families, especially their children and grandchildren, most of all we owe it to the American people and the world community, to bring an end to terrorism everywhere and forever.

Exactly one year ago this week, I spoke in the Senate as we considered a resolution authorizing the President to use military force to disarm Saddam Hussein and liberate the Iraqi people should his intransigent efforts to quash diplomatic efforts fail. At that time, I said:

"Saddam Hussein poses a clear threat to peace in the world, to America and our interests, to regional stability and to his own people.

That is why I voted in favor of a resolution expressing the conviction of Congress that the United States should exhaust all diplomatic options first, but if Iraq resisted diplomatic solutions, the President would be authorized to use all necessary means to enforce U.N. Security Council resolutions in Iraq.

Though we all hoped and prayed the growing crisis would not have to be settled with military action, Iraq's 12-year cycle of服 from around the world coming ultimately left no other action. Joined by members of the international community, a United States-led coalition engaged in a campaign against the Iraqi dictator, and as I stand before you 12 months later, the reign of terror of Saddam Hussein is no more. People in Iraq and people in the world can breathe easier now that Iraq is rid of a tyrant who used weapons of mass destruction to kill thousands of his own people, an enemy of humanity who should be shunned democracy and balked at the rule of law. Saddam Hussein was a dangerous threat to his own people, his regional neighbors, and the international community.

In an effort to perpetuate the fear on which his power was based, he used his own people as test subjects for the development of weapons of mass destruction. He depended on torture chambers as a method of coercion. Operation Iraqi Freedom has annihilated this vile oppression. This is significant not only for the future of the Iraqi people, but it is also crucial for our national security and the future of our children and grandchildren.

This is as much about us, our war against terrorism, and the security of the American people, as it is about Iraq. I repeat: This is as much about us, our war against terrorism and the security of the American people, as it is about Iraq.

We now have a chance of a lifetime to create a new paradigm of democracy in the Middle East and to do for this part of the world what we did for Germany and Japan in the aftermath of World War II. If we could defeat the Second World War, Japan is a strong ally in Asia, and Germany is no longer a threat but instead our partner in NATO and partners with its neighbors in the European Union.

We spent billions of dollars during the Cold War in anticipation that one day our brothers and sisters behind the Iron Curtain and the Berlin Wall would enjoy the freedom we have now enjoyed. Now the Wall is down, the Curtain is torn, and we see democracy growing in that part of the world. Many of us believed it would never happen.

Today we find ourselves with another historic opportunity to promote a new era of peace, stability, and democracy in Iraq and the Middle East. As Ken Pollack writes in his book "The Threatening Storm":

"This is our one opportunity to create a stable, prosperous, self-sufficient Arab state that could serve as a model for the region. This is our one opportunity to turn Iraq from a malign growth helping to poison the Middle East into an engine for change for the entire region, and we must not let it slip away from us.

I could not agree more. We have a chance to cultivate an important friendship in the Middle East. By helping Iraq, we send an important message not only to those who seek to undermine stability in Iraq but to the entire world. By extending support to help stabilize and strengthen a new democratic Iraq, we can demonstrate more than any rhetoric could that we are genuinely interested in supporting humane reconstruction in Iraq as we did following World War II. It will show that we will take the necessary steps and devote the resources required to secure a bright future for Iraq, especially for the young people, and stabilize that part of the world.

Today we begin discussion of the President's critical request for additional funding for security and infrastructure projects, we also have urgent spending needs here at home. Congress and the administration should address these priorities for the State of Ohio, my State, and cities and towns across America and make a renewed commitment to invest in our Nation's critical infrastructure, including our highways, bridges, drinking water, wastewater treatment facilities, and other water resources.

As a member of the Senate, I believe Congress should work to move critical infrastructure bills such as reauthorization of the surface transportation program, water infrastructure funding legislation, the Water Resources Development Act.

I have also urged the administration to create an emergency jobs bill much like the emergency jobs bill that President Reagan created in 1983 while I was mayor of the city of Cleveland and lobbying the Reagan administration to help cities, county, and State.

But while action on these items is important, it should not keep us from doing what we need to do to finish the job in Iraq. We must address the spending request before us today as a separate issue. They are disconnected.

From the very beginning, it has been my belief that it will take a considerable amount of time, manpower, and money to do what must be done to truly secure a better future for the Iraqi people.

Again, I just want to mention, the money we spent in Japan, the money we spent in Germany after World War II, and the money spent during the Cold War—we spent billions of dollars. These were grants; these were not loans. We did it because we thought it was important to our national security. And we did it because we thought it was important for world peace.

Our military campaign to topple the Iraqi regime was accomplished swiftly and successfully. However, much of our work, as I said, has just begun, and it is not going to be done overnight, nor is it best done piecemeal. In the buildup, prior to the onset of military action to disarm Saddam Hussein, I raised this point as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee with Under Secretary of State Marc Grossman and Under Secretary of Defense Douglasrer, I was asking for our committee. I said then, and I believe now, if we are going to be successful in our efforts in Iraq, it will require not only the long-term commitment of the United States but our partners in the United Nations and other members of the international community.

At that time, I underscored the importance of building the broadest international coalition possible, and I urged the administration to lay the groundwork with the American people regarding the number of troops that would be required to win the peace in the aftermath of a military campaign, how long they might be needed, and what this would cost the U.S. taxpayers.

Those questions are becoming even more critical as we find ourselves assessing the resources that will be required now to finish the job in Iraq. Our men and women in uniform are serving their country proudly, but they are spending increasing amounts of time away from their families. We must do everything we can to give them the tools they need to do what we have asked them to do, and then bring them home as quickly as possible.

One way we can do that is to improve the Iraqi civil defense operations themselves. We have some 55,000 people in place, and we are trying to train another 20,000. I think, as Paul Wolfowitz said to us, they are now taking over the border patrol and other civil and security functions in Iraq. We need to move on that. Part of the funding included in the $20.3 billion is to be used for that purpose.

I am pleased President Bush addressed this bill during a recent appearance on FOX News this past Tuesday. And I am delighted that we have the opportunity to address this important issue this afternoon. I submit to the desk an amendment and will call it up later.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is submitted.

Mr. Voinovich. I thank the Chair.
Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I spoke yesterday on the floor and also in the Appropriations Committee in support of having the $20 billion which the administration has asked for the reconstruction of Iraq to be in the form of loans or loan guarantees instead of grants. I have made that suggestion in an effort to be helpful to the administration.

I analogize the situation in Iraq to a company, an enterprise, an entity in bankruptcy. Iraq is supposed to have some oil revenues. By analogy to a bankruptcy proceeding, those obligations are to be discharged. General creditors come last in line and, in the absence of any assets, they receive nothing.

The situation for the United States in advancing funds for the reconstruction of Iraq, it seems to me, ought to be in loans or loan guarantees because Iraq has substantial potential for its oil revenues, sitting on the second largest oil pool of oil in the world. I reject the contention that this would discourage other donor nations from helping Iraq. It seems to me if the United States is to come in and make a gift, a grant, that just encourages other nations to say: Well, let’s let the United States do it.

If we at least refrain from taking a position until the donors conference on October 23 in Madrid, then we might use our situation to leverage funds from other countries.

The argument has also been advanced that if we make a loan or a loan guarantee, it will confirm to the Arab nations the contention that we are just there for Iraq oil. But that is a specious contention because we are not taking the money for ourselves or our military operations and but using it only for the rebuilding of Iraq which is for the benefit of the people of Iraq.

Since I made the statements yesterday, a very able staff member, my general counsel David Brog, has researched the subject and has found a Security Council resolution which is very relevant to this proposition, a resolution which was enacted on May 21 of this year. The resolution is No. 1483, and it provides that there is to be a fund created. And the fund, under the control of the United States and the United Kingdom, may be used to pay for the rebuilding of Iraq. So that when we are searching for moral authority and when we are seeking for United Nations approval, not just what the United States might want to do or the United States and Great Britain might want to do, this U.N. Resolution 1483 provides that authority.

It also is of substantial assistance in answering a legal question which I had raised yesterday, which posed some difficulty, and that is: To whom would the United States loan the money? Would be the contract party when there’s no government in Iraq at the present time?

The U.N. resolution which establishes this fund has a reference to U.N. participation, International Monetary Fund participation, World Bank participation, and auditing which is to be done by many countries, including Arab countries, so that the fund, in and of itself, it seems to me, as a legal proposition, has sufficient status as an entity to be a grant or a gift. So that when the revenues are realized from Iraqi oil, or they go into the fund, the United States may deal with the fund, with the other parties present— as I say, the World Bank, International Monetary Fund, the U.N., and auditing countries—having some status with the fund to give extra assurances of fairness that the contract is really in the interest of the Iraqi people.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of U.N. Resolution 1483 be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD following my statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have further extracted an analysis of this U.N. resolution, which is hard to follow if you just pick up the resolution and read it. The analysis establishes the approach I have just summarized. One conclusion of which is clearly stated in the italicized Roman numeral I—first, I ask unanimous consent that this addendum be printed in the RECORD following my statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (See exhibit 2.)

Mr. SPECTER. Roman numeral I is the clause which recognizes the United States and the United Kingdom as the authority.

Roman numeral II establishes the Development Fund for Iraq, including establishing the International Advisory and Monitoring Board to audit in the Development Fund.

Roman numeral III from the U.N. resolution gives the authority and power to disburse the funds in the Development Fund for Iraq.

Roman numeral IV establishes that the Development Fund for Iraq must be used, among other things, for the economic reconstruction and repair of Iraq’s infrastructure.

Roman numeral V mandates that 95 percent of the proceeds received from export sales of petroleum, petroleum products, and natural gas must be deposited into the Development Fund for Iraq until an Iraqi government is properly constituted. The other 5 percent is to be deposited into the Compensation Fund, which was set up, per U.N. Resolution 687 in 1993, to compensate those who suffered losses or damages as a result of Iraq’s invasion and occupation of Kuwait.

In effect, this Security Council resolution anticipates the precise issue which the Congress is now facing. It is necessary to have these funds for the rebuilding of Iraq, but there is no good moral basis to think that the United States ought to be a grant or a gift. When Iraq has the resources—the oil—to pay for the reconstruction of Iraq and to take care of the rebuilding of...
Iraq; and with the authority of the U.N. it eliminates any concern about the United States acting unilaterally or in conjunction with the United Kingdom—acting with the two countries unilaterally—because this has been the U.N. United Kingdom—acting with the two countries unilaterally—because this has been the United Kingdom. Creating this fund, there is an entity to look to, to provide the repayment, as the U.N. resolution calls for 95 percent of the fund to be used for the rebuilding of Iraq.

There is significant concern in the Congress—I have heard it among my colleagues in other States, the American people are very concerned about what is going on in Iraq, generally, they are very concerned about the casualties and fatalities.

We honor and respect and praise the Armed Forces for the military victory which has been achieved. We are concerned about our military personnel there not really being police officials, hopeful that there will be U.N. assistance on other forces being there, looking for an Iraqi police force to be trained. But when it comes to the issue of the advancement of funds, this Security Council resolution sets parameters, sets the procedures, which authorizes and authenticates the propriety of having the loans made or loan guarantees so that the United States can be repaid.

I hear considerable concern among my constituents, and I hear it from my colleagues in the Senate, about the tightness of our budget, the anxiety of providing important discretionary funding. In September, I managed the bill on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education. Notwithstanding that $136.6 billion is really insufficient funds to take care of all of our educational and health needs, I think it is appropriate and reassuring to the American people that where we can avoid adding to the deficit and to the national debt, we take steps to do just that.

Exhibit 1

Analysis of the UN Resolution 1484 as it pertains to the Development Fund for Iraq

(adopted by the United Nations on May 21, 2003 by a vote of 14-0, with Syria not participating)

I. THE FOLLOWING CLAUSE RECOGNIZES THE UNITED STATES AND THE UNITED KINGDOM AS THE "AUTHORITY" (UN RESOLUTION 1484, PG. 2 *3)

Noting the letter of 8 May 2003 from the Permanent Representatives of the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland to the President of the Security Council (S/2003/538) and recognizing the specific authorities, responsibilities, and obligations under applicable international law of these states as occupying powers under unified command (the "Authority").

II. THE FOLLOWING CLAUSE ESTABLISHES THE DEVELOPMENT FUND FOR IRAQ, INCLUDING ESTABLISHING THE INTERNATIONAL ADVISORY AND MONITORING BOARD TO AUDIT THE DEVELOPMENT FUND. (UN RESOLUTION 1484, PG. 4, ¶ 12)

12. Notes the establishment of a Development Fund for Iraq to be held by the Central Bank of Iraq and administered by independent public accountants approved by the International Advisory and Monitoring Board of the Development Fund for Iraq and looks forward to the early meeting of that International Advisory and Monitoring Board, whose members shall include duly qualified representatives of the Secretary-General, the General Director of the International Monetary Fund, of the Director-General of the Arab Fund for Social and Economic Development, and of the President of the World Bank;

III. THE FOLLOWING CLAUSE GIVES THE "AUTHORITY" THE POWER TO DISBURSE THE FUNDS IN THE DEVELOPMENT FUND FOR IRAQ. (UN RESOLUTION 1484, PG. 4, ¶ 13)

13. Notes further that the funds in the Development Fund for Iraq shall be disbursed at the direction of the Authority, in consultation with the Iraqi interim administration, for the purposes set out in paragraph 14 below;

IV. THE FOLLOWING CLAUSE ESTABLISHES THAT THE DEVELOPMENT FUND FOR IRAQ MUST BE USED, AMONG OTHER THINGS, FOR THE ECONOMIC RECONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR OF THE IRAQI INFRASTRUCTURE. (UN RESOLUTION 1484, PG. 4, ¶ 14)

14. Underlines that the Development Fund for Iraq shall be used in a transparent manner to meet the humanitarian needs of the Iraqi people, for the economic reconstruction and repair of Iraq's infrastructure, for the continued disarmament of Iraq, and for other purposes benefiting the people of Iraq;

V. THE FOLLOWING CLAUSE MANDATES THAT 99% OF THE PROCEEDS RECEIVED FROM EXPORT SALES OF PETROLEUM, PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, AND NATURAL GAS MUST BE DEPOSITED INTO THE DEVELOPMENT FUND FOR IRAQ. (UN RESOLUTION 1484, PG. 4, ¶ 15)

20. Decides that all export sales of petroleum, petroleum products, and natural gas from Iraq following the date of the adoption of this resolution shall be made consistent with prevailing international market best practices, to be audited by independent public accountants reporting to the International Advisory and Monitoring Board referred to in paragraph 12 above in order to ensure transparency, and decides further that, except as provided in paragraph 21 below, all proceeds from such sales shall be deposited into the Development Fund for Iraq until such time as an internationally recognized and accountable government of Iraq is properly constituted;

Exhibit 2

(From the United Nations Security Council, May 21, 2003)

SPAIN, UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND AND UNITED STATES OF AMERICA: DRAFT RESOLUTION

The Security Council,

Recalling all its previous relevant resolutions,

Reaffirming the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iraq,

Reaffirming also the importance of the disarmament of Iraqi weapons of mass destruction and of eventual confirmation of the disarmament of Iraq,

Stressing the right of the Iraqi people freely to determine their own political future and control their own natural resources, welcoming the commitment of the United Nations in that connection, and expressing resolve that the day when Iraqis govern themselves must come quickly.

Encouraging efforts by the people of Iraq to form a representative government based on the rule of law, human rights and justice and to all Iraqi citizens without regard to ethnicity, religion, or gender, and, in this connection, recalls resolution 1325 (2000) of October 2000.

Welcoming the first steps of the Iraqi people in this regard, and noting in this connection the 15 April 2003 Nasiriyah statement and the 29 April 2003 Baghdad statement.

Resolved that the United Nations should play a vital role in humanitarian relief, the reconstruction of Iraq, and the restoration and establishment of national and local institutions for representative governance.

Noting the statement of 12 April 2003 by the Ministers of Finance of the Group of Seven Industrialized Nations in which they recognized the need for a multilateral effort to rebuild and develop Iraq and for the need for assistance from the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank in these efforts, Welcoming also the resumption of humanitarian assistance and the continuing efforts of the Secretary-General and the specialized agencies to provide food and medicine to the people of Iraq.

Welcoming the appointment by the Secretary-General of his Special Adviser on Iraq,

Affirming the need for accountability for crimes and atrocities committed by the previous Iraqi regime,

Recognizing the need for respect for the archaeological, historical, cultural, and religious heritage of Iraq, and for the continued protection of archaeological, historical, cultural, and religious sites, museums, libraries, and monuments.

Noting the letter of 8 May 2003 from the Permanent Representatives of the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland to the President of the Security Council (S/2003/538) and recognizing the specific authorities, responsibilities, and obligations under applicable international law of these states as occupying powers under unified command (the "Authority").

Noting further that other States are not occupying powers and are working now or in the future may work under the Authority, welcoming further the recommendation of the Member States to contribute to stability and security in Iraq by contributing personnel, equipment, and other resources under the Authority.

Concerned that many Kuwaitis and Third-

1. Appeals to Member States and concerned organizations to assist the people of Iraq in their efforts to reform their institutions and rebuild their country, and to contribute to conditions of stability and security in Iraq in accordance with this resolution.

2. Calls upon all Member States in a position to do so to respond immediately to the humanitarian appeals of the United Nations and other international organizations for Iraq and to help meet the humanitarian and other needs of the Iraqi people by providing food, water, medicine, and other necessary assistance; and
(5) facilitating the reconstruction of key infrastructure, in cooperation with other international organizations;
(e) promoting economic reconstruction and the creation of conditions for sustainable development, including through coordination with national and regional organizations, as appropriate, civil society, donors, and the international financial institutions; and
(f) encouraging international efforts to contribute to basic civilian administration functions;
(i) promoting the protection of human rights;
(h) encouraging international efforts to rebuild the capacity of the Iraqi civilian police force; and
(f) encouraging international efforts to promote legal and judicial reform;
(2) half the total responsibility for the people of Iraq with the help of the Authority and working with the Special Representative, of an Iraqi interim administration as a transitional administration run by Iraqis, until an internationally recognized, representative government is established by the people of Iraq and assumes the responsibilities of the Authority;
10. Decides that, with the exception of prohibitions related to the sale or supply to Iraq of arms and related materiel, including those arms and related material required by the Authority to serve the purposes of this and other related resolutions, all prohibitions related to trade with Iraq and the protection of financial resources in Iraq established by resolution 661 (1990) and subsequent relevant resolutions, including resolution 778 (1992) of 2 October 1992, shall no longer apply;
12. Notes the establishment of a Development Fund for Iraq, to be managed by the Central Bank of Iraq and to be audited by independent public accountants approved by the United Nations, and any international organizations, as appropriate, to assist in the implementation of this paragraph;
13. Requests the Secretary-General to appoint a Special Representative for Iraq, whose independent responsibilities shall involve reporting regularly to the Council on his activities under this resolution, coordinating the work of the United Nations and international and regional organizations, including non-governmental organizations, in post-conflict processes in Iraq, coordinating among United Nations and international agencies engaged in humanitarian assistance and relief activities in Iraq, in coordination with the Authority, assisting the people of Iraq through:
(a) coordinating humanitarian and reconstruction assistance by United Nations agencies and non-governmental organizations;
(b) coordinating the safe, orderly, and voluntary return of refugees and displaced persons;
(c) working intensively with the Authority, the United Nations, and others concerned to advance efforts to restore and establish national and local institutions for representative governance, including by working together in the process leading to an internationally recognized, representative government of Iraq;
accounts established pursuant to paragraphs 8(a) and 8(b) of resolution 986 (1995), with those parties that previously have entered into contractual obligations with the Secretary-General under the Programme. To determine, in coordination with the Authority and the Iraqi interim administration, the future tasks and objectives of the United Nations and related United Nations agencies under the accounts established pursuant to paragraphs 8 (b) and 8 (d) of resolution 986 (1995);

9) to provide the Security Council, 30 days prior to the termination of the Programme, with a comprehensive strategy developed in close consultation with the Authority and the Iraqi interim administration that would lead to the delivery of all relevant documentation and the transfer of all operational responsibility of the Programme to the Authority;

17. Requests further that the Secretary-General transfer as soon as possible to the Development Fund for Iraq, 1 billion United States dollars from unencumbered funds in the accounts established pursuant to paragraphs 8(a) and 8(b) of resolution 986 (1995), to restore Government of Iraq funds that were provided by Member States to the Secretary-General as requested in paragraph 1 of resolution 702 (1991) and subsequent relevant resolutions, and any other financial assets associated with the shipment of authorized contracts and costs to the Programme outlined in paragraphs 8(a), 8(b), 8(d), and 8(f) of resolution 687 (1991) and subsequent relevant resolutions, all surplus funds in the escrow accounts established pursuant to paragraphs 8(a), 8(b), 8(d), and 8(f) of resolution 687 (1991) and subsequent relevant resolutions, as promptly as possible, in the earliest possible time to the Development Fund for Iraq;

18. Decides to terminate effective on the adoption of this resolution the functions related to the observation and monitoring activities undertaken by the Secretary-General under the Programme, including the monitoring of the export of petroleum and petroleum products from Iraq;

19. Decides to terminate the Committee established pursuant to paragraph 6 of resolution 660 (1990) at the conclusion of the six month period called for in paragraph 16 above and that the Committee shall identify individuals and entities referred to in paragraph 23 below;

20. Decides that all export sales of petroleum, gasoline, diesel and natural gas from Iraq following the date of the adoption of this resolution shall be made consistent with prevailing international market best practices and, in close coordination with the authorities, obligations, all surplus funds in the escrow accounts established pursuant to paragraph 8(a), 8(b), 8(d), and 8(f) of resolution 687 (1991), shall be transferred as soon as possible to the Development Fund for Iraq; restituting Government of Iraq funds that were previously removed to and from Iraq or its state bodies, corporations, or agencies, local and outside Iraq, as of the date of this resolution, or funds or other financial assets or economic resources that have been removed from Iraq, or acquired, by Saddam Hussein, or other senior officials of the former Iraqi regime and their immediate family members, including entities owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by individuals or persons acting on behalf or at their direction, shall freeze without delay these funds or other financial assets or economic resources and, including all of those transferred funds or other financial assets or economic resources are themselves the subject of a prior judicial, administrative, or arbitral lien or judgment, immediately shall cause their transfer to the Development Fund for Iraq, it being understood that, unless otherwise addressed, claims made by private individuals or non-governmental organizations on those transferred funds or other financial assets may be presented to the internationally recognized, representative government of Iraq; and decides further that all such financial assets or economic resources shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities, and protections as provided under paragraph 22;

21. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to report to the Council at regular intervals on the work of the Special Representative with respect to the implementation of this resolution and on the work of the International Advisory and Monitoring Board and encourages the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the International Advisory and Monitoring Board to report to the Council at regular intervals of their efforts under this resolution;

22. Noting the relevance of the establishment of an internationally recognized, representative government of Iraq and the desirability of prompt completion of the restructuring of Iraq’s debt as referred to in paragraph 15 above, further decides that, until the Security Council decides otherwise, petroleum products, and natural gas originating in Iraq shall be immune, until title passes to the initial purchaser, against any_settlement or action against them and not be subject to any form of attachment, garnishment, or execution, and that all States shall take any steps that may be necessary to prevent or take appropriate domestic legal systems to assure this protection, and that proceeds and obligations arising from sales thereof, as well as the Development Fund for Iraq, including all claims, liabilities, and immunities equivalent to those enjoyed by the United Nations except that the above-mentioned privileges and immunities will not apply with respect to any legal proceeding in which recourse to such proceeds or obligations is necessary to satisfy liability for damages assessed in connection with an ecological accident, including an oil spill, that occurs after the date of adoption of this resolution;

23. Decides that all Member States in which there are:

(a) funds or other financial assets or economic resources of the previous Government of Iraq or its state bodies, corporations, or agencies, local and outside Iraq, as of the date of this resolution;

(b) funds or other financial assets or economic resources that have been removed from Iraq, or acquired, by Saddam Hussein, or other senior officials of the former Iraqi regime and their immediate family members, including entities owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by individuals or persons acting on behalf or at their direction, shall freeze without delay these funds or other financial assets or economic resources and, including all of those transferred funds or other financial assets or economic resources are themselves the subject of a prior judicial, administrative, or arbitral lien or judgment, immediately shall cause their transfer to the Development Fund for Iraq, it being understood that, unless otherwise addressed, claims made by private individuals or non-governmental organizations on those transferred funds or other financial assets may be presented to the internationally recognized, representative government of Iraq; and decides further that all such financial assets or economic resources shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities, and protections as provided under paragraph 22;

24. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to report to the Council at regular intervals on the work of the Special Representative with respect to the implementation of this resolution and on the work of the International Advisory and Monitoring Board and encourages the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the International Advisory and Monitoring Board to report to the Council at regular intervals of their efforts under this resolution;

25. Decides to review the implementation of this resolution within twelve months of adoption and to consider further steps that might be necessary.

26. Calls upon Member States and international and regional organizations to con contribute to the implementation of this resolution;

27. Decides to remain seized of this matter.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, a conclusion is necessary to satisfy liability for damages assessed in connection with a ecological accident, including an oil spill, that occurs after the date of adoption of this resolution, except that the above-mentioned privileges and immunities will not apply with respect to any legal proceeding in which recourse to such proceeds or obligations is necessary to satisfy liability for damages assessed in connection with an ecological accident, including an oil spill, that occurs after the date of adoption of this resolution. been known to be independent and professional. Former FBI Director Louis Freeh had considerable disagreements with President Clinton and refused to give information to the White House at a time when Director Freeh concluded there was a criminal investigation which might involve President Clinton.

So we have a standard for professionalism by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and we have a standard of professionalism by the career people in the Department of Justice.

There is oversight by the Judiciary Committee. This is a matter where we took considerable interest in what Independent Counsel Ken Starr did. It is worth noting that there are many members of the Judiciary Committee who have experience as prosecuting attorneys with the attendant responsibilities for investigation.

I was district attorney of Philadelphia for some 8 years. We have on the committee staff other former DAs, attorneys, who have experience with the investigation.

The oversight by the Judiciary Committee is in a position to have oversight, our constitutional responsibility, to see to it that the investigation is appropriately carried out.

And then may come a time when special counsel would be warranted, but it seems to me that at this stage, there ought not to be politicization of the matter, although I understand the ways of Washington, but it is anomalous, that those who are now calling for special counsel had no interest in institutionalizing the independent counsel except, as I say, for Senator Lieberman and Senator Levin.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we know there is concern on the other side of the aisle, and certainly at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, regarding problems with the White House. We have heard from the news, the press, information from the White House or someplace in the administration to Robert Novak. We know that causes concern, as it should.

To try to cloud this with a lot of legal jargon that there are other lawyers looking at it, that Democrats didn’t support this independent counsel statute is evading the question.

We don’t have to support an independent counsel statute to have the law as it now applies which allows the appointment of a special counsel. It seems to me common sense that if an independent counsel was selected to look at Secretaries and Agriculture, because he accepted tickets to a football game, which he was not supposed to do, and President Clinton—by the way, an independent counsel was not ordered; he agreed to an independent counsel to investigate his real estate transaction in Arkansas—It seems to me certainly we should have a special counsel look at what has taken place.

We know a crime has been committed by a person or persons. We know that Robert Novak, who I think is an honorable person, identified from where that information came. So we know there are criminals there. We know there are people there who have committed crimes. So it seems to me this is a much more direct case than some of the other issues that have taken place in the independent counsel issue with President Clinton and the situation with Secretary Espy.

The situation here is very clear: Someone leaked the name of a CIA operative, a Central Intelligence Agency interrogator who was a leaky spy. They leaked the name of that person to the press by name.

Everyone—I agree—should take a deep breath and let this process go forward. The White House should want a special counsel. In Government, we not only have to do away with what is bad but what looks bad. The American people clearly know this.

ABC and the Washington Post are going to report a poll tomorrow. I will not go into a lot of the details, but one question they asked is: Do you think this investigation should be handled by the U.S. Department of Justice, part of the Bush administration, or should it be handled by an outside investigator or special counsel who is not part of the Bush administration?

About 70 percent of the people believe it should be handled outside the White House, outside the Justice Department. Another question: If the investigation finds that someone in the White House leaked classified information, do you think that person should or should not lose his job?

Ninety-one percent of the people believe that person or those people should lose their jobs—91 percent of the people.

Another question that will be reported by the American Broadcasting Company in the morning: If the investigation finds that someone in the White House leaked classified information, do you think that person should or should not face criminal charges?

About 85 percent of the people believe that person should face criminal charges.

It is very clear to me this is an effort to cover up a problem. This is not something that I brought up just to be talking. If people are going to come here and try to cover this up, anytime anyone does that, and I am on the Senate floor, I am going to talk about it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I agree with the Senate from Nevada that this is a serious matter. When he quotes the poll, I would say it would go beyond losing jobs. If someone has violated the law, there is a very substantial jail sentence which is proposed. But my comments I do not think constituted legal jargon at all. I think there were a look at the fact that the Congress has decided we would not have an independent counsel procedure when we did not renew the law. I fought hard to have that done as a principal position, regardless of which party is involved.

Now there is an immediate call for special counsel only after this matter becomes highly publicized, only after it becomes an opportunity for political gossip. Then it is too late. This is pending since July when the CIA and part of the administration asked the Department of Justice for an investigation, and the investigation was going forward. Now it has been the subject of a demand for a special prosecutor by people who were the instigators of the consideration when independent counsel was considered for renewal.

We have a Department of Justice with professionals. We have an FBI with a Director who has a 10-year term. To repeat, his term will not expire until 2½ years after the end of the prospective second term for President Bush. So far, we have allegations, and they are serious allegations, and they need to be investigated. The White House should not proceed without an immediate attempt for politicization, once it becomes a matter of high visibility as it has been since last Sunday. It only took until Monday to have a call for the independent counsel, and here we are on Wednesday.

Mr. President, I have been asked to handle the wrapup material on behalf of the majority leader as the sole remaining standing Republican present on the Senate floor.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that amendment No. 1795 be modified with the language at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 2. COMMENDING THE ARMED FORCES FOR EFFORTS IN OPERATION ENDURING FREEDOM AND OPERATION IRAQI FREEDOM.

(a) PURPOSE.—Recognizing and commending the members of the United States Armed Forces and their leaders, and the allies of the United States and their armed forces, who participated in Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and Operation Iraqi Freedom in Iraq and recognizing the continuing dedication of military families and employers and defense civilians and contractors and the countless communities and patriotic organizations that lent their support to the Armed Forces during those operations.

(b) The Senate finds that the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the United States, which killed thousands of people from the United States and other countries in New York, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, inaugurated the Global War on Terrorism;

That the intelligence community quickly identified Al Qaeda as a terrorist organization with global reach and determined that United States national security required the elimination of the Al Qaeda terrorist organization;

That the Taliban regime of Afghanistan had long harbored Al Qaeda, providing members of that organization a safe haven from

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
S12269

October 1, 2003

Robert Novak, who I think is an honorable person, identified from where that information came. So we know there are criminals there. We know there are people there who have committed crimes. So it seems to me this is a much more direct case than some of the other issues that have taken place in the independent counsel issue with President Clinton and the situation with Secretary Espy.

The situation here is very clear: Someone leaked the name of a CIA operative, a Central Intelligence Agency interrogator who was a leaky spy. They leaked the name of that person to the press by name.

Everyone—I agree—should take a deep breath and let this process go forward. The White House should want a special counsel. In Government, we not only have to do away with what is bad but what looks bad. The American people clearly know this.

ABC and the Washington Post are going to report a poll tomorrow. I will not go into a lot of the details, but one question they asked is: Do you think this investigation should be handled by the U.S. Department of Justice, part of the Bush administration, or should it be handled by an outside investigator or special counsel who is not part of the Bush administration?

About 70 percent of the people believe it should be handled outside the White House, outside the Justice Department. Another question: If the investigation finds that someone in the White House leaked classified information, do you think that person should or should not lose his job?

Ninety-one percent of the people believe that person or those people should lose their jobs—91 percent of the people.

Another question that will be reported by the American Broadcasting Company in the morning: If the investigation finds that someone in the White House leaked classified information, do you think that person should or should not face criminal charges?

About 85 percent of the people believe that person should face criminal charges.

It is very clear to me this is an effort to cover up a problem. This is not something that I brought up just to be talking. If people are going to come here and try to cover this up, anytime anyone does that, and I am on the Senate floor, I am going to talk about it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I agree with the Senate from Nevada that this is a serious matter. When he quotes the poll, I would say it would go beyond losing jobs. If someone has violated the law, there is a very substantial jail sentence which is proposed. But my comments I do not think constituted legal jargon at all. I think there were a look at the fact that the Congress has decided we would not have an independent counsel procedure when we did not renew the law. I fought hard to have that done as a principal position, regardless of which party is involved.

Now there is an immediate call for special counsel only after this matter becomes highly publicized, only after it becomes an opportunity for political gossip. Then it is too late. This is pending since July when the CIA and part of the administration asked the Department of Justice for an investigation, and the investigation was going forward. Now it has been the subject of a demand for a special prosecutor by people who were the instigators of the consideration when independent counsel was considered for renewal.

We have a Department of Justice with professionals. We have an FBI with a Director who has a 10-year term. To repeat, his term will not expire until 2½ years after the end of the prospective second term for President Bush. So far, we have allegations, and they are serious allegations, and they need to be investigated. The White House should not proceed without an immediate attempt for politicization, once it becomes a matter of high visibility as it has been since last Sunday. It only took until Monday to have a call for the independent counsel, and here we are on Wednesday.

Mr. President, I have been asked to handle the wrapup material on behalf of the majority leader as the sole remaining standing Republican present on the Senate floor.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that amendment No. 1795 be modified with the language at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 2. COMMENDING THE ARMED FORCES FOR EFFORTS IN OPERATION ENDURING FREEDOM AND OPERATION IRAQI FREEDOM.

(a) PURPOSE.—Recognizing and commending the members of the United States Armed Forces and their leaders, and the allies of the United States and their armed forces, who participated in Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and Operation Iraqi Freedom in Iraq and recognizing the continuing dedication of military families and employers and defense civilians and contractors and the countless communities and patriotic organizations that lent their support to the Armed Forces during those operations.

(b) The Senate finds that the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the United States, which killed thousands of people from the United States and other countries in New York, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, inaugurated the Global War on Terrorism;

That the intelligence community quickly identified Al Qaeda as a terrorist organization with global reach and determined that United States national security required the elimination of the Al Qaeda terrorist organization;

That the Taliban regime of Afghanistan had long harbored Al Qaeda, providing members of that organization a safe haven from
SUPPORTING AMERICAN JOBS & THE BUY AMERICAN ACT

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today for the second in a series of statements that I plan to deliver about the hemorrhaging of American manufacturing jobs and the steps that I think that we ought to take to stem the flow of manufacturing jobs abroad and to strengthen our deteriorating manufacturing base.

I talked about how tax policy can help to strengthen American manufacturing. Today, I want to discuss the role of Federal procurement policy in supporting American businesses and American jobs. The Buy American Act of 1933 is the primary statute that governs procurement by the Federal Government. The name of the act accurately and succinctly describes its purpose: to ensure that the Federal Government supports domestic companies and domestic workers by buying American-made goods.

It only makes sense for the Federal Government to make every effort to purchase goods that are made in America. A law requiring this commonsense approach should not be necessary. Unfortunately, this law is necessary and, even more unfortunately, the law contains a number of loopholes that make it too easy for government agencies to buy foreign-manufactured goods.

I have often heard my colleagues say on this floor that American-made goods are the best in the world. I could not agree more. For generations, Wisconsin has had an economy dominated by manufacturing, and Wisconsin companies have proudly made goods under name brands that are known around the country and even around the world brands such as Oshkosh B’Gosh, Harley-Davidson, Snap-On Tools, Masterlock, and S.C. Johnson. Many Wisconsin factories have churned out products for the Federal Government, including for the Department of Defense.

Regrettably, thousands of good-paying manufacturing jobs have left my State—77,000 jobs of this kind in the last 2 1/2 years. Those companies that remain in my State often struggle to compete with cheaper foreign goods that flood into U.S. markets—even when they may be competing for contracts to supply our own Federal Government.

This Congress should do more to ensure that the Federal Government makes every effort to buy American-made goods. I am working on strengthening the provisions of the Buy American Act.

Some argue that the Buy American Act has outlived its usefulness in today’s global economy. I could not disagree more. I strongly disagree. The Buy American Act is relevant today as it was when it was enacted in 1933. The passage of 70 years has not diminished the importance of this act for American manufacturing companies or for those who are employed in this crucial sector of our economy.

In fact, a strong argument can be made that this act is even more necessary today than it was 70 years ago. With American jobs heading overseas...