The Senate met at 9:45 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable Jim DeMint, a Senator from the State of South Carolina.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.
Eternal Spirit, the skies display Your marvelous craftsmanship. When we consider Your heavens, the works of Your fingers, we become aware of our deficiencies. Lord, we are flawed. People seeking salvation. We are lost people seeking direction. We are doubting people seeking faith. Show us the path to meaningful life. Reveal to us the steps of faith. Quicken our hearts and purify our minds. Broaden our concerns and strengthen our commitments.

Bless our Senators today. Show them the duties left undone. Reveal to them tasks unattended. Lead each of them to a richer and more rewarding experience with You. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The Honorable Jim DeMint led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE
The President pro tempore. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Stevens).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Jim DeMint, a Senator from the State of South Carolina, to perform the duties of the Chair.

Mr. DeMINT thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER
The Acting President pro tempore. The majority whip is recognized.

SCHEDULE
Mr. McConnell. Mr. President, this morning we will resume consideration of the emergency supplemental appropriations bill. Under the consent agreement reached last night, the time until 11:45 this morning will be divided for debate in relation to the two pending AgJOBS amendments. At 11:45, we will proceed to two cloture votes on those amendments. Following those votes, the Senate will recess until 2:15 for the weekly policy luncheons. We will return then to the supplemental bill this afternoon, and as a reminder there will be two additional cloture votes today.

If cloture is not invoked on either of the AgJOBS amendments, then at 4:30 today we will have another cloture vote in relation to the two pending AgJOBS amendments. At 4:30, we will proceed to two cloture votes on those amendments. Following those votes, the Senate will recess until 2:15 for the weekly policy luncheons. We will return then to the supplemental bill this afternoon, and as a reminder there will be two additional cloture votes today.

As the majority leader stated last night, it is hoped that the Senate will invoke cloture this afternoon on the underlying bill. This is the only way of assuring that this important bill will be completed this week. I remind all of our colleagues that if cloture is invoked on the bill, it will still be open for debate and amendments for up to 30 more hours.

It is clear we have a lot of work to do over the course of today and tomorrow. I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 11:45 a.m. shall be equally divided with the Senator from Georgia, Mr. Chambliss, in control of half of the time, and the Senator from Idaho, Mr. Craig, and the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Kennedy, in control of the other half of the time.

Who yields time?

Mr. CRAIG. The Senator from Idaho has?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Idaho has 29 minutes.

Mr. CRAIG. The Senator from Idaho has?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Idaho has 29 minutes.

Mr. CRAIG. And the Senator from Massachusetts has?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts has?

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, first I compliment my colleague from Idaho for bringing to the Nation’s attention a proposal that has been set out by the Senator from Georgia that would provide a way to match these willing employers and employees but to do so without granting amnesty to illegal immigrants. We will then vote on a second alternative of the Senator from Idaho and the Senator from Massachusetts.

The key point I want to make to my colleagues is if both of these propositions are defeated—and they both require votes to pass under the agreement—then we can move on to complete the work on the supplemental appropriations bill and we might be able to finish that bill this week. In fact, hopefully, presumably, ideally, we will finish that bill this week. There is no reason why we cannot do our work and fund our troops. However, if the Craig-Kennedy legislation were to receive 60 votes, we are in for a tough time because that bill is then open for amendment, and we are already aware of numerous amendments that are going to be filed, all of which are going to delay consideration of the supplemental appropriations bill.

Some of my colleagues signed on to this legislation before the bill was actually printed or before they realized it contained amnesty. The point I would make to anybody who is in that position is whether they support the Craig-Kennedy version or the Chambliss-Kyl version of guest worker legislation, it is not the time to be considering that legislation. We voted already not to have that debate but rather to get on to the supplemental appropriation bill. Therefore, anyone wishing to move on should vote literally against the first vote, and we have to deal with the Craig-Kennedy legislation. If either one of them gets 60 votes, then we are in for a long time debate on immigration, with an awful lot of amendments on that subject and delaying the time that we can get back to completing the supplemental appropriations bill.

Even though it argues against an affirmative vote on our proposition, for
Mr. ENSIGN. I ask unanimous consent that the following be an amendment to the underlying bill. It is the purpose of the introduction of an amendment to the supplemental appropriations legislation, and one basis only—because they violated the law when there are not enough visas to allow them to come into our country legally. There will not be any magnet for illegal immigrants to come to the country anymore.

To conclude, there are two reasons to vote against the Craig-Kennedy legislation and one good reason to vote for the Chambliss-Kyl legislation. The reason to vote against both, frankly, is that unless both of these are defeated, we are going to be on this immigration issue for a long, long time. Who knows when we are going to conclude the supplemental appropriation bill, and there will not be any magnet for illegal immigrants to come to the country anymore.

Second, I don't think at the end of the day we are going to pass legislation through this House and have it signed by the President—that grants amnesty to illegal immigrants or invites illegal immigrants back into the United States because of their illegal status. For that reason, we suggest we have a better approach, an approach which can meet our labor needs but do so within the rule of law and without granting a reward to those who have violated our law.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I will yield to the Senator from Nevada for the purpose of the introduction of an amendment to the underlying bill. It will not take time from our vote. I intend then I will claim the floor for a few moments. The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 487

Mr. ENSIGN. I ask unanimous consent the pending business be set aside and Senate amendment No. 487 be called up.
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. ENSEN] proposes an amendment numbered 487.

Mr. ENSEN. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 191, after line 25, insert the following:

CONSTRUCTION

For an additional amount for “Construction”, $41,500,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of the conference report to accompany S. Con. Res. 95 (108th Congress).

REDUCTION IN FUNDING

The amount appropriated by title II for “Contributions to International Peacekeeping activities” is hereby reduced by $146,861,000 and the total amount appropriated by title II is hereby reduced by $146,861,000.

Mr. ENSEN. I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Idaho.

AMENDMENT NO. 432

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, the Senator from Arizona has come up with some fascinating and interesting explanations of why his is not and ours is amnesty. By that I simply mean there are a lot of people who believe that if people have broken the law and that you grant them any forgiveness whatsoever, that is amnesty. But now, according to Mr. CHAMBLISS and Mr. KYL, we have a whole new definition of why theirs is not, even though they grant those who have broken the law a blue card to continue to stay and work. They say there is a difference.

You really is not a difference in this respect. If I am not amnestied by the Chambliss-Kyl amendment, there is no stretch of the imagination that would suggest otherwise about the Craig-Kennedy bill. I do not believe our bill has amnesty, because I think when you ask someone who has broken the law to pay back to society and to limit their rights, then recognizing that they have done so and allowing them to earn that legal status—and certainly that is what we do in the Craig-Kennedy bill. We deplore, if you will, 360 days over 3 to 6 years in the field, working hard, so you gain the right to apply for a green card. I do not call that amnesty; I call that hard-earned, labor-paid-for, to get the ability to stay and work. You can have your own thoughts about amnesty, but nowadays I am finding out anyone can have his or her own definition of amnesty. Amnesty is in the eye of the beholder. The epithet, like calling someone a communist.

In other ways, there is a very real difference between these two approaches. Let me outline it. We have 200-some foreign groups, part of a coalition of 509 groups, supporting our bill. It is very bipartisan. It is a significant reform of the H-2A program. It is not just crafted in the last minutes as a stopgap measure to block and divide. It is not so narrowly crafted that it delivers almost no real benefit. Most important, we say something that is fundamental to Americans who are concerned that our border to the south is now out of control and people are pouring over. It says we say to be here last 90 days for 300 days last year, not just here on April 1 of this year, like the other amendment. So regarding that problem we are all hearing about on our borders to the south, where people are pouring over, if they made it by April 1, the Kyl-Chambliss bill says: You get a blue card. You can stay 3 years, 6 years, 9 years, and in 9 years, if you are capable of developing your job into a supervisory position, you can stay permanently.

That is not what I think I have well established, no matter who tries to interpret what amnesty is, that it is in the mind of the beholder.

The reason I am on the floor today and the reason we have been allowed to come to the floor is because in this particular bill we became germane by an action of the House. I know the Senator from Arizona talks urgency. We have been 3 months producing an urgent supplemental. It has been 3 months since we asked him to respond. That is not the fault of the Senate. The House took 2 of those months. The House turned this appropriations bill into an immigration bill. We can take a few more hours to discuss AgJOBS.

Can’t we take a day and a half to solve what Americans believe is the No. 1 problem in our country, or a problem that is in the top three, and that is uncontrollable immigration and uncontrolled borders? What we are trying to do is the way of our economy and a segment of our workforce that works predominantly in agriculture is to gain control of the process, shape it, identify it, and stop the flood that is coming across our borders.

Let me show you some of the work we have done. I think it better explains to America the urgency of the problem. They hear the reports on the borders. Now let’s look at the statistics as to what we have been doing since 9/11. The running of 9/11, we woke up to a rude awakening, that America had slacked off way too long on its immigration laws and that we had 8 to 12 million undocumented foreign nationals in our country—undocumented. That meant that they were here, by definition, illegal. Most were hard working, and most are hard working. Most are law abiding. But some were here to do us evil. Some were here to kill us. We found that out to our great surprise.

That was more than 1,300 days ago, and Congress has done nothing about the laws that were so slack as to create that problem. So over the last 5 years—prior to that and now after that—I have worked with each of groups across the country to come up with a significant change in policy specific to a segment of that larger group—about 1.6 million in that particular workforce. But on this chart is a good example of what we are attempting to do at this moment.

Here is 1994 through the year 2005: total funding level from all sources in the billions of dollars that we are spending on the borders of America today to try to control our borders, and our enforcement of our immigration laws within those borders. Here this red line on this chart goes. Starting in 2001 and up, you see this tremendous increase in what we spend on enforcement. We are now, today, spending $7 billion a year on the borders and on internal enforcement. That is “b,” $7 billion on enforcement. The Senator from Arizona would be the first to admit that the borders south of his State are still like sieves—people are pouring across them in an illegal way. Yet, today, for America’s sake, we are spending $7 billion on our borders and on internal enforcement.

Look at the green line that represents apprehensions in millions of individuals. Last year we apprehended more than 1.2 million individuals and we backed up the fence. These are dramatic increases. Did it stem the tide of illegality? No, it didn’t. The Senator from Arizona is sitting there agreeing with me. They are pouring over the border. Seven billion dollars later, with the same law enforcement people on the borders and with apprehensions up, more people are coming. What is wrong with that picture?

Let me show you what is wrong with that picture. We could build a fence along the border. We could build it high and dig it deep, and we could man it with people every few feet, but if the laws that backed up the fence were not working, somebody would come through. Somebody would get through. They would dig under it. They would go around it. There are more than 7,000 miles of land borders in our country and more than 88,000 miles of tidal shoreline and water inlets. They would come. The reason they would come is that the law is not effective, nor is it deterrent. They know that we are here because our economy and our way of life are a powerful magnet and because our laws provide no reasonable way to match those willing workers with jobs here that would go begging.

Here is another interesting graph. There was a time in our country when the laws did work. Starting in the 1950s we had a program for guest workers to come in and work, and workers were identified and the worker matched to the work. They came and worked, and they went home. As a result of that, this green line represents the developing of the Bracero Program, which took off in 1954 over the Craig-Kennedy legislation.

From a humanitarian point of view, it was not a good program. Many of these people were not well treated. But the side of it that worked was the side that identified the worker and the work, and here is the result. The red line represents apprehensions, those illegally crossing the border who were caught. Look at the drop, the dramatic drop in illegal activity going on in our country in the 1950s. Illegal immigration dropped more than 90 percent starting in the 1950s.

Here we are in 1954: over 1 million apprehensions. What did I say about last year? Over a million apprehensions. Millions were coming across the border illegally before we changed the law. We changed the law in 1953 and 1954, and we implemented it. These crossings stayed law all through the 1950s and into the 1960s, until somebody did not like it anymore because of the way people were being treated, and they repealed it. Each time you repeal a law that works, we are on a downslide.

I think that represents the underlying H–2A program in a way that it produces support of over 500 organizations, 200 of them agricultural organizations, and we do so in a bipartisan way and a broad-based way.

The Kyl-Chambliss bill is very narrow in who benefits from limited changes in the current program, and it does not reflect that bipartisan approach, nor does it reflect a national approach in large part on this issue. Their bill would benefit a few employers and a few labor contractors in some parts of the country. We have brought all stakeholders, all communities of interest to the table with our bill. That is why it is significant for all of us to understand that there are very real differences in these bills. Besides, as long as you just made it here by April 1 of this year, you qualify under the Kyl-Chambliss bill. You get a blue card, and you can stay 3 years, 6 years, 9 years, and if you elevate yourself to a supervisory position, you stay forever. The Craig-Kennedy bill is a much more effective way because we would dramatically change the law, to be able to move back and forth in a continuum and to be, if you will, a permanent employee in this country.

The Senator from Arizona is talking about a quick pathway to citizenship in our bill. I would not suggest that 10 to 15 years of hard work, standing in line and making application is a quick pathway to anything. Americans would not stand in line for 10 years for anything, let alone work at least 360 days in temporary, seasonal farm labor, over several years in 100-degree heat in fields in Yuma, AR, or Twin Falls, Idaho. It is not that the Bill and the way they work very hard to earn that right. But they will work to earn the right, it will not be given to them unconditionally.

There is one thing the Craig-Kennedy and Chambliss-Kyl bills have in common. We do not make a free gift, of citizenship regardless of circumstance, unconditionally. I would call that amnesty. We give people—our legislation gives people—the right to come here and work, to earn the right to stay, and the right to continue to work. So there is a very real difference. Don’t fall off on the idea of this quick fix in the substitute amendment that was just produced in the last few weeks because they know that I knew I was going to be here on the Senate floor with a bill that has been 5 years in the crafting and has literally a nationwide base of support from all groups—from labor, from agriculture, from Hispanic groups, from taxpayer groups, from religious and community groups, and has strong bipartisanship.

Last year, it was cosponsored by 63 Republicans and Democrats alike. This year, we are again building the numbers, and cosponsorship is now nearly 50. Again, Democrats and Republicans alike—supporting this. That is why we are here on the Senate floor. Americans are demanding that we control this immigration problem. We are offering an approach, a solution to a portion of it.

I hope the Congress will then continue to work its will to get to a much broader based, comprehensive program. I retain the remainder of my time.
Under your legislation, it is, in fact, the case that with as little as 21⁄2 weeks but no more than 3½ months a status of legality is granted. After 1 year an application can be made for legal permanent residency. The only question is how much time it takes to complete that process. The Senator from Arizona pointed out that you can apply for it, 1 year. It may take several more months to gain the status. Once the application has been made, you are a legal permanent resident in this country.

Mr. CRAIG. If the Senator will yield, then we both have identification with the background check. We would require a Homeland Security Identifier program. They are working on those kinds of efforts now. We would require the same.

The real difference is your folks could work 1 hour and get a blue card. Ours have to work at least 100 days and have been here prior to January 1. I think we agree on that. I do not know if the Senator from Arizona misspoke when he said we don’t have the control. We are talking about here, matching will workers to employers. If someone showed up and claimed they had worked 1 hour a day for 100 days, that would be a reason to investigate them for fraud.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, let me reclaim my time.

The key difference is how you gain the status of legal permanent resident. Under the Craig-Kennedy bill, you get that after working here doing the very same thing that you are doing illegally today. You are not doing anything different. You are just doing it now under a new status as opposed to the old status. Once you do that, you get legal permanent residency. That is the difference. Under the Chambliss-Kyl legislation, you never get legal permanent residency.

Second, under the Craig-Kennedy legislation, I think the Senator from Idaho misspoke when he said we don’t grant citizenship. I think it is fair to say we don’t grant citizenship, but it is that status of legal permanent residency which entitles you to apply for citizenship under the United States Code—8, United States Code, section 1427(a).

The point is, the granting of the legal permanent status under the Craig-Kennedy legislation automatically entitles you to apply for citizenship. That is the amnesty. You can’t do that under the Chambliss-Kyl legislation. There is no path to citizenship for people who violate the law except to go back to the country of origin and do it just like everybody else—to get in line like everybody else.

The final point I want to make is this: I think it is a very dangerous proposition to argue that we can control the border. I have talked to the Tucson sector chief of the Border Patrol who says if we have enough resources, we can get control of our borders. It has largely been accomplished in California and Texas. It is not accomplished in Arizona because illegal immigrants came to where we don’t have the control. We spent the money in California, we spent the money in Texas, and sure enough they crossed through Arizona. Over half of the illegal immigrants are coming through one sector in the State of Arizona.

The statistic which the Senator from Arizona pointed out is exactly correct in that regard. They are mushrooming. If we do that, we need to devote the resources to do that. We also need enforceable legislation for people who work in this country. We can do that by having a simplified H–2A program and making it go to a point where after all, if the country cannot protect its own borders, it cannot protect its sovereignty. If we do that, we need to devote the resources to do that. We need enforceable legislation for people who work in this country. That is when we are talking about here, matching willing workers and employers within the legal construct, and with combined efforts to control the border and enforce those laws we can end up with a legal regime.

But I think it is a very dangerous proposition for us to say we can’t, under any circumstances, control our borders. We can, and we must.

The PRESIDENT pro tem-

The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, this is going to be a very interesting debate, I hope all of our colleagues are watching this.

I wish to respond to a couple of things my friend said relative to our legislation.

First of all, this is not a stop-gap measure. This is not something we conceived over the last several weeks. The House has actually been working on this issue for the entire 11 years I have served in the House of Representatives and now in this body. In fact, on the floor of the House of Representatives in 1995, Congressman RICHARD Pombo of California and myself proposed a very similar piece of legislation to what the Chambliss-Kyl amendment is today to reform the H–2A program. We weren’t as expansive back then because we didn’t conceive of these concepts. But we had a very similar proposition relative to H–2A because H–2A has been a good program, if it were streamlined. And if it were not so cumbersome for employees to use, it would be used more often than it is today.

Second, I want to talk about this issue relative to the control of the border. Senator KYL is exactly right. I think it is very dangerous for anybody to argue during this process or any other process that we cannot control the border, and we must control the borders. If we don’t control the borders to our country during this process or conceive of some way to make sure that Homeland Security does so during this process, then we are going to accomplish nothing.

Our goal is—I know what the goal of Senator CRAIG and Senator KENNEDY is—to provide our agricultural sector with the labor force pool that they need. We demand that the Department of Homeland Security, within 6 months after the effective date of this amendment, come forward to Congress with a proposal as to how they want to seal the border and control it from allowing illegal immigrants to come across that border.

It can be done, it should be done, and it must be done as a part of this process.

I want to go back to the AgJOBS bill and talk about what is truly the major significant difference; that is, the issue of amnesty.

Under the AgJOBS bill that Senator CRAIG and Senator KENNEDY have, first, three items are discriminatory work visas if they have worked in agriculture a minimal amount of time. I will not go through what Senator KYL just said but, basically, if they have been here for 100 days and worked 1 hour each day, then they apply for what is known as “temporary adjustment status” under the Craig-Kennedy bill. That makes them legal. We simply do not do that. We intentionally put the burden on the employer to make sure the employee is who he says he is.

First of all, I need the workers; second, that these workers will be coming here as law-abiding citizens; and, they have not violated the law—as you can do under Senator CHAMBLISS’s and Senator KYL’s legislation not twice, but you can have three misdemeanors on your record and still get the legal adjustment status.

We have zero tolerance. We think folks who come here and say they want to work in the United States must be law-abiding citizens, if that is what they want to do. We say, unlike Craig-Kennedy, that the burden must be on the employer to, first of all, go out and say, I want to hire American workers to fill these jobs. That’s not twice, but you can have three misdemeanors on your record and still get the legal adjustment status.

We have zero tolerance. We think folks who come here and say they want to work in the United States must be law-abiding citizens, if that is what they want to do. or 120-day period of time. In that particular instance, these employers—again, the burden is on the employer—to make the estimation that they need these employees—which individual is here illegally, is law abiding, and that they want to hire for a blue card issued to that individual.

That individual, again, can work only for that employer. When he leaves the employ of that individual, the burden is on the employer to let the Department of Labor know he has left. If he goes to work for another employer, which he can do in the agricultural sector, the employer for whom he goes to work must again file the proper documentation with the Department of Labor as well as with the Department of Homeland Security so they can track that individual. That is critically important.

The major difference in that provision in the Chambliss-Kyl amendment is they grant the temporary adjustment status which says they are here illegally. After a 3½-month period of time, they can then work for a year and get a green card, which means they basically stay in the United States forever with that green card. If they want to apply for citizenship, they can apply for citizenship while they are in the United States.

Under the Chambliss-Kyl, they must comply with current law in order to get a green card. In order to do that, you must go back to your native country. You must stand in line, as everyone else is required to do today, in order to make an application for a green card. They do not get any preferential treatment.

If they want to secure what we think is the most precious asset an American has, and that is American citizenship, that is under the Craig-Kennedy amendment, simply can stay in this country legally with a green card, and while they are here under that green card—even though they came illegally—they can make application for citizenship knowing that within 5, 6, 7 years, but that is immaterial. They can do so outside of what is current law.

Under the Chambliss-Kyl amendment, you cannot do that. If you are going to apply for a green card, you must go back to your native country and stand in line with everyone else and come in under the cap provided for in current law, make application, go through the process, and maybe get your green card. If you want to apply for citizenship, again, you have to follow current law. You have to go back to your native country, you have to make the proper application, and go through the appropriate steps before you can secure citizenship.

That major difference of rewarding those people here illegally in the Craig-Kennedy AgJOBS amendment versus the Craig-Kennedy provision is they grant the temporary adjustment versus the Craig-Kennedy provision is they grant the temporary adjustment versus the Craig-Kennedy provision.

I submit there are significant differences in these two bills but the basic difference is we think the Federal Government has the obligation, No. 1, to control the border. We think you can control the border. We think, if you did not control the border, I don’t care how sophisticated a piece of legislation we pass in this Senate or the House of Representatives, or if we might go to the President’s desk, we will have accomplished nothing.

We do request and mandate the Department of Homeland Security give us that agriculture in 6 months as to how they will control the border. As Senator Kyl said, they have a plan in place in Texas and California that is working better than what we have in place in Arizona, where it simply is not working. It is working much better than what we have in my county of Colquitt County, GA, where it is not working. They are getting into our county somehow. We need a provision to control the border.

Second, the major difference is a question of whether you want to vote to grant somebody who is here illegally, who may have violated our law on three separate occasions with undocumented, a pathway to citizenship or whether you want to give somebody who is here for the right reasons, and that is the current market rate—and you will get a fake Social Security card and other fake documentation that will allow you to stay here.

Because it is illegal for an employer, before he hires somebody, whether it is the agricultural sector or not, to ask that person for further verification of the fact they are here legally in this country. That is a weird provision in our law, but it is a fact, so we don’t know who these people are. The mere fact we have a 5-million gap between 8 million and 13 million tells how serious the problem is. It is serious from the standpoint these people are taxing our education system, our judicial system, and our health care system. We need to identify who these people are.

We are firing the first rifle shot. Again, on this, Senator Craig, Senator Kennedy, and I agree. I applaud them, particularly Senator Craig, for continuing to push this ball forward. We need this debate in the Senate as well as in the House of Representatives.

Once we identify those people who are involved in agriculture and are here illegally, we have to make a fundamental determination, as legislators, and that is are we going to try to round those people up? Are we going to try to hire the hundreds of thousands of additional border patrol agents and INS agents, round those people up, and send them back from where they came and expect them to stay there? Or are we going to be practical, and are we going to identify these people—we will not look at them and say: We will give you permanent status in this country, but we will allow you to stay here legally for a temporary period of time if you are law abiding. As I say, we have zero tolerance.

Third, the bill will allow for three misdemeanors and still allow them to stay here.

Second, ask: Are you displacing an American worker? We agree on that. Both of us say we should not displace an American worker. But if they are not displacing American workers, if they are law abiding, and if their employer—one other critical difference in the two bills—if their employers make the attestation here he has complied with all the laws, he has sought to hire American workers, and he cannot do so, the employer will be granted the right to either have those workers come in under the streamlined H-2-A process or the employer will be the one who secures the blue card for that employee that he needs on more of a full-time basis.

I submit there are significant differences in these two bills but the basic difference is we think the Federal Government has the obligation, No. 1, to control the border. We think you can control the border. We think, if you did not control the border, I don’t care how sophisticated a piece of legislation we pass in this Senate or the House of Representatives, or if we might go to the President’s desk, we will have accomplished nothing.
I understand what you are saying, "greening" versus "blueing," but if you give someone a blue card and he becomes a supervisor, he may not be a permanent resident but he is permanently in this country by your legislation.

We all identify with the green card today because it has been around a long time. When you get a permanent green card, you can become a permanent resident and not a citizen. I suggest, and you may disagree, if you become a U.S. citizen after 9 years of being here with a blue card, it is permanent, is it not?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. I appreciate the question of the Senator from Idaho. That is exactly the opposite from what is the truth. The truth is, he is always a temporary employee, and if he has a supervisory position and if he is granted additional time after 9 years, his temporary status never changes.

Mr. CRAIG. But he is permanently here if he wants to be.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. That is not true because if his employer ever released him from his employment, he has to notify the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Labor, and that individual must go back to where he came from. Or if he secures a—

Mr. CRAIG. So I am right, but under certain conditions I am wrong. Thank you.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. You are wrong, but there are exceptions to everything.

Mr. CRAIG. I thought so.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. He is never a permanent citizen as he becomes under your bill after about 2½ weeks.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I have to come back on that. Not after 2½ weeks. He gets a temporary green card for 360 days or 5 years. Then he applies for permanency. That is the way the bill reads. That is an additional 2 years. Math adds it up and that is 6 years. I am sorry, that is not 2 weeks. It does not work that way. That we disagree on.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. CRAIG. I am happy to yield.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Is it not true, under your bill, an individual can get the temporary adjustment status after working 100 hours?

Mr. CRAIG. As of 2004, not in 2005. January 1, he had to be here last year working, cannot come across the border through Arizona. March 29, before April 1 of this year.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Is it true that 1 hour is defined in the Fair Labor Standards Act, or 1 day's work is defined as 1 hour, and it is actually 100 days?

Mr. CRAIG. I understand it is kind of the semantics we played a few moments ago. Temporary is not permanent, even though they are permanently here temporarily. I understand those semantics, yes.

Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, 1 hour is a day. But I do require not 1 hour, I require 100 days. You require 1 hour.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Is it not true this is a fundamental difference in our two amendments? Under your amendment, the employee or the illegal alien comes in and says: I worked here for those 100 hours last year.

Mr. CRAIG. And must demonstrate through tax returns.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Where under our bill they come in and an employer says: I have this employee, and I want to make application for the H-2A or the blue card.

Mr. CRAIG. That employee must demonstrate tax records and an employment record during that 100-hour period by an employee prior to January 1, 2005.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Would the Senator not agree a fundamental difference is, under your bill, the employee is the one who makes that attestation. Whereas, under our bill, it is the employer—Mr. CHAMBLISS. The American employer—says: I need you.

Under your bill, the employee says: I have been here for this period of time, and therefore I deserve to receive this adjustment?

Mr. CRAIG. In my situation, they must have worked and, of course, they must do that full background check we all go through.

It is a time-consuming thing. One of the things the American people want that we are both doing is to control the current illegal population, to identify and find out who they are, to make sure they are not bad people, if we are going to grant them the right to stay and work. That we both accomplish.

It is not just, oh, get a card because you got 100 hours or, oh, you get a card because you got 1 hour, in your circumstance. It is because you have submitted yourself to a full background check. That is 14 pages in the current code of this country as it relates to immigration. That is very significant for all of us.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I yield the Senator from Alabama 10 minutes.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator from Georgia. I appreciate the debate that has been going on. It is an important debate. It is something we need to be discussing.

I say, with real conviction, we can improve the immigration system in America. We can make it work better. We must do that.

This is a defense supplemental bill, early in this Senate calendar. We are not ready, in any way, shape or form, to be debating this comprehensive legislation today.

If the American people were to know what is being proposed, they would be very unhappy with us. I certainly hope we are not about to make this law.

I understand, at one point, there were people to support the Craig-Kennedy legislation, which is breathtaking, in a way. But I don't think the American people and Members of this body fully understand the import of it. It is a big deal.

I say to my colleagues, you will be voting on this soon. I urge you to get your mind focused on what we are about to vote on and I urge you to say, I am not ready to vote on such comprehensive legislation—this is a Defense bill—and vote no. That is the first thing we ought to do.

Let me see if I can summarize, from reading this legislation carefully, what I think the Agriculture amendment says without any doubt.

People who are here illegally, for any number of reasons, who should not be here contrary to the law, and, therefore, are who also working illegally and violating American law—under this bill, if they have worked 100 hours in 100 days, meaning 1 hour per day, within 18 months—virtually no real work is required in the 18 months—become, immediately, just like that, a lawful temporary resident. They immediately become able, legally, to stay here. If they have brought their families here unlawfully, their families also get to stay and can not be deported.

Then, in the next 6 years, if they work 2,060 hours—well, that is explained as somehow earning your citizenship. I want to remind us that these people are here voluntarily, they are working and they are being paid what they earn. They are simply doing what they wanted to on such such a basis. This should not earn them a path to citizenship. They are not doing volunteer work in the community. They are earning a living and being paid for their work. Some say they should be earning more than their pay, that they are earning amnesty as well. But if they work 2,060 hours in 6 years—now, 2,060 hours is about 1 year's work for an American worker; that is how much you work a year—if they do that, some say they are then entitled to legal permanent resident status. At this point, they can bring in their family if they are out of the country. They can come into the country with you and also become legal permanent residents—even if you never intended for your family to follow you when you decided to come to the U.S. illegally and work illegally.

Then, if you wait 5 years, as a legal permanent resident in the United States, and you work, and you are not convicted of a felony, you can be convicted of three misdemeanors—three will block you, but two will not. You can be convicted of two misdemeanors. You can be investigated for drug smuggling, for murder, for child exploitation. All of these things. You can even be indicted for those charges. But the statute says, if you are not convicted, the Secretary shall make you a lawful temporary resident and shall make you a legal permanent resident. It is mandatory on the Secretary. They are not going to look at that and say: Well, the FBI is investigating this guy for drug smuggling or being a member of some gang or involved in... child sexual exploitation. It says “conviction” is necessary to keep you from getting amnesty. Otherwise, you shall be approved as a temporary and permanent resident. And being a legal permanent resident puts you on the road to citizenship.

That is what it is all about. If, indeed, a person has in 18 months met this 100-hour work status and has gone back to their home country, maybe without any intention of returning to America, the commission will effectively be a notice to them from Uncle Sam that says: By the way, you once worked here illegally. We know you have left and gone back, but you should come back and become a temporary resident, then a permanent resident, and then a citizen.

So it says: Come on back. They may not even have been intending to do this, but this may be an offer they feel they can’t refuse because they may think: Well, the illegal alien is thinking—Well, I think the U.S. and legal, a lawful temporary resident, and then I can become a legal permanent resident. And, I can bring my family. I will move to the U.S.

That is not the way we want to be doing immigration in America. It is not the way we need to be doing it. There is no dispute that this is amnesty. How can it not be amnesty? If this is not amnesty, what is amnesty? You take someone who violated the law, you give them a path to citizenship, not subject to review by the Department of Homeland Security and the Immigration and Customs Enforcement, ICE, people—a guaranteed path. You shall be made a temporary resident if you meet these qualities. You shall be made a permanent resident if you meet this standard. And if you meet the legal permanent resident status, you are on the road to citizenship. That is what it is all about.

If we create a legal immigration system—and I know we do—that is generous and allows people to come here who will be contributors to our country, that has any integrity whatsoever, we must not adopt this AgJOBS bill. It is a capitulation. It is a total collapse of any attempt to create an enforceable legal system. I must say that. We absolutely do not need to be sneaking it in on a Defense supplemental without the American people knowing what is going on here. They are not going to be happy.

Now, how do these amnesty programs work? My colleague earlier challenged my numbers. I said it could be a million or even more people. He said it would be a half a million, plus children. But Dr. Veipil, my professor in agricultural economics of UC Davis and a member of the Agricultural Workers Commission says that at least 860,000 workers will come, and then their family members on top of that. We know last time we had an agricultural workers amnesty, in 1986, that amnesty drastically underestimated the number that would be approved. I think the number was two or three times as many as expected that were approved. So I think the numbers will be huge.

Now, the commission that was called upon to study the 1986 amnesty said the program legalized “many more workers than expected.” It appears that the number of undocumented workers who had worked in agricultural seasonal services prior to the IRCA was generally underestimated.” The commission said that the 1986 agricultural amnesty, which was similar to the amnesty we are voting on today in fundamental principles, did not solve agriculture worker problems, rather they found that “six years after IRCA was signed into law, the problems within the system of agricultural labor continue to exist.” That was an official finding of a commission created by that act. Additionally, the commission found that “an increasing number of newly arriving undocumented workers were still coming to the U.S.” And finally, they said, “Worker-specific and/or industry-specific legalization programs, as contained in IRCA, should not be the basis of future immigration policy.” That is exactly what we will be doing if we pass this amendment.

Mr. President, I do not know how much time I have.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator has 1 additional minute.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I am going to put this chart up and make a couple of points in relation to some of the details in the act that are really breathtaking in their scope.

I mentioned the amnesty provisions already. The AgJOBS amendment also overrides State law by eliminating “at will” employment, where an employer or employee can leave the employment whenever they chose. This says, if you come here, you are an American citizen, you cannot be terminated, except for just cause. To make sure that happens, this act has about six pages creating an arbitration situation where the Federal Government pays to arbitrate these disputes, an arbitration system that is not made available to an American citizen worker. They do not get that protection. It will also provide illegal aliens with taxpayer-funded legal assistance through the Legal Services Corporation to process their applications for legal status.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Alabama has used 10 minutes.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask if the Senator would not mind if I have 3 additional minutes.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. How about 2?

Mr. SESSIONS. Two minutes.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I yield 2 additional minutes to the Senator from Alabama.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator. By the way, the AgJOBS amendment also provides they shall be given fully paid-for health insurance, which American workers do not get.

It provides that the worker organizations and employers are the ones to receive the information or evidence in the application pertaining to a crime, but, apparently, the sponsors of this amendment are not concerned about that. Instead, they want the applications and the information that is given to the organizations and associations that are authorized to receive them kept from the Department of Homeland Security. As a matter of fact, the only way your application is allowed to go to the Department Homeland Security and its affiliated agencies—the only way it can go there—is if you have a lawyer. If you do not have a lawyer, your application has to go to one of these groups who will send it to DHS for you. These groups are not independent, fair groups.

The employer groups and the worker organizations are groups that have a special interest in promoting this. So this is not protecting the interests of the people of the United States to give this power over to two groups, both of which have a special interest in promoting people coming into this country. And, of course, there are no numerical limits on the number of aliens who would be given amnesty.

Also, finally, I would note, as the Senator from Georgia is well aware, group after group that are said to have been in favor of this legislation have changed their mind or oppose it. The National Farm Bureau no longer supports AgJOBS. The employer groups all over the country are opposed to it. I know that the largest individual H2A employer in the country opposes the AgJOBS amendment. I also know that the largest co-op user of the H2A program—the North Carolina Growers Association—opposes the amendment. I have received letters from Mid-Atlantic Solutions, the Georgia Peach Council, AgWorks, the Georgia Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, the Virginia Agricultural Growers Association, the Georgia Onion Business Council, and the Kentucky-Tennessee Growers Association all of which oppose the passage of AgJOBS.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator has used his additional 2 minutes.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, how much time remains on each side?
Idaho has 9 minutes. The Senator from Massachusetts has 29 minutes.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I believe the Senator from Massachusetts will be arriving soon. His time and my time are for the same purpose. He has given me the ability to use some of that time, and I ask unanimous consent for those purposes because there is no one on the floor from the other side to visit with about that.

Senator CHAMBLISS mentioned year round work in the nursery and landscape industry. The nation’s premiere nursery and landscape association is the co-chair of the vast coalition supporting AgJOBS. Why? Because they know AgJOBS will work. It will provide the security they need. They see a guest card system in the substitute amendment will not. It is written so narrowly that there will be little incentive for workers to come forward and it will be cumbersome to use.

The Senator mentioned misdeemeanors. AgJOBS goes beyond current law in the good behavior it requires. We would deport for a single felony, for any of three misdemeanors, however minor, and for any one serious misdemeanor, which involves 6 months jail time. But if you go beyond that, and you have a misdemeanor, you are talking about some truly minor things, like loitering, jaywalking, parking a house trailer in a roadside park, depositing trash from a home or farm in a roadside trash can, having untethered animal stock on a highway, or making known in any manner what library book another person borrowed. These are misdemeanors in different states. We do tighten up the law. We do require better behavior than what we have here on this chart in 1954, apprehending nearly 1.2 million illegals a year and taking them back across the border. Then we created the Bracero Program. Now, the program worked because it matched employee and employer. It received a lot of criticism, and it will not step back from being very clear about it in the way the employee was treated. That is partly what brought the program down. But we literally saw numbers of illegals drop almost to nothing and flat-lined from through the 1950s into the early 1960s, and the Bracero Program worked.

What had we done? We matched Border Patrol along with effective law enforcement along with a guest worker program that worked. Along came the early 1960s. We changed it and eventually wound up with the current law. We flat-lined, by bureaucracy, the number of guest workers we allowed legally into the program on an annual basis.

Here is how it is, as shown on this chart. Abprehensions of illegals and illegal entry began to rise. What happened last year, as this very dysfunctional program all but broke down? We were back at 1.2 million apprehensions. America has asked for a solution. We have brought a solution to the floor. The only experience our country has had on a broad basis with the a legal guest worker program is the one I have outlined. AgJOBS is working. It is ground breaking, necessary part of balancing a realistic approach to solving this problem. American agriculture has boldly stepped forward and admitted they have a problem.

They are not hiding behind lobbyists saying: Lift the lid in a certain program, allow more people in. They are almost in a panicked way saying to us: We have a 70-plus-percent illegal problem that we are dependent upon for the growing of our food. What do we do? It is surrounded by the supplying of the American food shelf with its food. Please do something about it. Please provide a vehicle that allows these people to be legal, and we will agree to work with you in setting up the necessary mechanisms to make sure they are treated right, the housing is there, they are paid well, and all of those kinds of things.

If we don’t have a legal work force in place, and we continue to lock up the border—and we should—and we do all of the other things, such as uncounterfeitable ID cards, we literally could collapse American agriculture. That is something this Congress should not be responsible for doing simply by being negligent.

That is why for the last 5 years and more I have worked on this issue. We have worked cooperatively, Democrat and Republican alike—Congressman GINGRICH, we do this. This time at this moment from the House, Congresswoman CANNON, Senator KENNEDY, and I—for hours and hours, with all the interested groups, over 500 groups, over 200 of them in agriculture. We didn’t come up with this approach. We didn’t come up with it, as my colleagues have, as a blocking measure to stop this legislation by throwing at the last minute something into the mix, by changing the color from green to blue and suggesting that it is new because it is blue. They do a few of the things we do, but ours is a much broader program and bipartisan. That is significant as we try to move legislation forward to solve this problem.

As I have said, the agricultural sector has over the worst problems. Fifty to 75 percent of its farmworkers are undocumented. As internal law enforcement has stepped up, farms large and small are going out of business because they can’t get the workforce at the right time to do the right job, to tend the crop, to harvest the crop. This might machine we call American agriculture, which has fed us so well for half of our history, is at a very dangerous precipice, perhaps the most dangerous point ever in its history.

This year for the first time since records were kept, the United States will be on the verge of becoming a net importer of foodstuffs. Hard to imagine, isn’t it? The great American agricultural machine, and now we are at a point of being a net importer of foodstuffs. We did that with energy. When I came to Congress in 1980, we supplied the majority of our own energy. Now we are a net importer. We are a net importer of minerals. We are a net importer of food. Are we going to let this happen with food because we can’t agree on a reasonable program to have one of the most valuable inputs into agriculture stabilized, secured, and legal, and that is the workforce?

No, we have all come together, Democrats and Republicans, labor, farmworker organizations, Hispanic groups, that is what we have before you in AgJOBS. That is why it got 63 cosponsors last year. We are nearly at 50 today, and building. Its time is now. It is important we have this vote that will occur this morning. It is a critical piece of legislation.

As I said, every year on the Arizona border, the California border, New Mexico, Texas border, over 300 people die trying to get into this country to earn a wage. They do that because of a dysfunctional H-2A labor, because of a system that does not provide for a legal work force, and because of bad people who prey upon them as victims, and they are literally victims of a law and victims of a broken process. We ought not stand idly by and allow that to happen, either. Control our borders? You bet. Create a legal work force? Absolutely. Apprehend illegals after we have created this system that works well? Absolutely. The integrity of a nation is on the line and the security of its borders and the ability to openly and fairly assimilate into its culture immigrants who come here for the purpose of benefiting not only from the American dream but by being a part of us. That is our responsibility to make that do all of those things within the law.

Our strength, energy, and dynamics is the reality. That is the honest figure. We didn’t come up with just those numbers of some 70-plus percent undocumented workers or somewhere in that area. There has been a great effort by the other side to confuse the argument. We believe in the Department of Labor Statistics. The Department of Labor statistics show that, under the Craig-Kennedy provision, about 500,000 workers would be eligible to apply for adjustment, to start the process, and they have about 200,000, maybe 300,000 dependents who would qualify, not millions and millions and millions. That is so unrealistic when we are looking only at a field of 1.6 million to begin with. That is the reality. That is the honest figure. We didn’t come up with it just in the dark of night. This has been 5 years and I’ve been working with the Department of Labor and analyzing and understanding what the workforce is, who would stay and who would go home, who would not come forth to be identified and who would.

That is why it is time now that we allow this legislation to move forward for the purpose of it becoming law. America demands that we respond. Thirteen hundred days after 9/11 and we are here. That is probably one of the most significant challenges the United States as a nation has ever faced—to control our borders, control our destiny, recognize our needs, understand our economy, be humane and fair to people, and do all of those things within the law. That is our responsibility to make that happen. It is without question a very important process.

I ask unanimous consent that time under the quorum call be equally divided.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, we don’t have very much time on our side, and that would mean that we could get out of time without the other side even coming down here until the very end. May I ask the Chair—I would like to pose a parliamentary question—under the agreement that was entered into, the time is not taken equally off of both sides of the conference. The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. No, it is not. That requires unanimous consent.

Mr. KYL. Further reserving the right to object, because there is only about 10 minutes left on this side and a half hour left on the other side, that would mean our time could be wiped out without another word even being spoken. I would not agree to that at this time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Idaho is currently using the time of the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. CRAIG. How much time, then, is left on all the time?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Idaho has consumed his time. The Senator from Massachusetts now has 24 minutes. The Senator from Georgia has 11 minutes.

Mr. CRAIG. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. I will continue to consume time of the Senator from Massachusetts. I understand he is en route to speak on behalf of AgJOBS. We will continue to do that. Over the course of the last day, I have sent to the desk and provided to my colleagues a comprehensive list of over 560 organizations nationwide, some 200 of them in agriculture, that have been a part of this growing broad coalition of Democrats, Republicans, liberals, conservatives, labor, employer, and other groups that have recognized the very critical nature of American agriculture today and the importance of stabilizing its workforce and causing that workforce to become legal. That is exactly why the Senator from Massachusetts and I are here.

We have obviously had other colleagues of ours come forward with legislation proposing another approach. It is nowhere near as broad based, nor does it solve the kinds of very real problems all of us want to solve: that is, clearly creating a legal workforce. Here are some of the frustrations I wish to talk about for a few moments that are important. There is an opinion in this country that if you just throw money at it, the problem will go away. Let me suggest right now that is what we are doing. We are throwing a lot of money at it. In so doing, we are throwing about $7 billion a year at the border and at internal enforcement. $7 billion well spent. In part, it is beginning to build systems that are getting better as they relate to controlling dominantly our southern border, but our northern border, as well, and our shoreline.

We did it for two reasons. Actually, we started doing it after 9/11 for terrorist purposes because we were fearful that we would see terrorists coming up through Mexico and into the southern part of the United States or across our southern border or, for that matter, across our northern border. At the same time we were losing a near flood of people coming across those borders attempting to identify with work in our country. As you can see, the number of apprehensions of illegals peaked in about the year 2000. It was dropping. We started pushing heavy money at it. But it has begun to climb again.

The reality is, we are now putting about $7 billion a year into it and last year apprehended approximately 1.2 million illegals. We are stepping up to that plate now and stepping up aggressively, and we will only move, to keep our economy moving, to keep our workforce and causing that workforce to become legal. That is one side of it.

American agriculture depends on it. American agriculture depends on our workforce and causing that workforce to become legal. That is why it is time now that we allow this legislation to move forward for the purpose of it becoming law.
Mr. President, I want to thank my friend, Senator Craig, for his leadership in this area. As he just mentioned at the end of his comments, Senator Craig and I do not share a great many common positions but we both are engaged in the same goal, which is the recognition that we come to it from different interests, over long periods of time. He may remember, as I very well do, in the early 1960s, when we had what was called the Bracero issue and problem. It was a very deep and painful experience. It was an extraordinary exploitation of workers who came across the border living in these absolutely inhumane conditions and being exploited like workers in no other part of the world.

Mr. President, we have an opportunity in the Senate now to take a dramatic step forward toward true, meaningful, significant immigration reform. Agricultural business is only about 10 or 12 percent of the total problem. But should the Senate of the United States, in a bipartisan way, come to grips with this issue in a meaningful way, it will open the path for further action in these next few weeks and months so we can have a total kind of different view and way of handling immigration in our country.

The current system is a disaster. It is enormously costly and unworkable. We have spent more than $24 billion over the period of the last 6 years, and the problem has gotten worse and worse. We hear talk about extending a fence across the borders in southern California for a number of miles. We have to be reminded the total border in the South is 1,880 miles. Are we going to have a fence that is going to extend that far, that long, over the period of time? We have to be reminded the total border in the South is 1,880 miles. Are we going to have a fence that is going to extend that far, that long, over the period of time? We have to be reminded the total border in the South is 1,880 miles. Are we going to have a fence that is going to extend that far, that long, over the period of time?

We have learned that lesson. Now we have an opportunity, under the proposal Senator Craig and I have proposed, and in a bipartisan way, to try a different way.

With all respect to those who oppose this, we believe this is absolutely consistent in terms of our national security issues. The dangers to national security are what happens in the shadows, the alleyways. What is happening in the shadows and alleyways is happening among the undocumented. People are able to hide in those areas. If we bring the sunlight of legality to an immigration policy, we are going to make it much more difficult. We are going to free up border guards to be able to go after those who might be terrorists, instead of constantly looking out for the undocumented that are traveling back and forth across the border. If we have learned something over the period of time, it is immigration policy is not the problem is the terrorists. The best way to deal with that is to focus both manpower and technology to be able to deal with that.

Now, our effort also responds to and rebuts the idea that this is amnesty. That is the quickest way to kill the legislation. People can say, look, this is amnesty, and then go back to their offices, and that shakes people up and they have to have done it some time ago. We are not talking over the last year; we are talking about people who have worked and have a part of the communities a number of years ago, to permit them a long period of time, probably stretched over a period of 7 to 9 years before they would even be eligible to start down the path toward citizenship—a long period of time.

Mr. President. It just seems to me that these issues have been debated and discussed. Some have been misrepresented.

Finally, this has a dramatic impact in terms of both working conditions and labor conditions for those who are going to be impacted by this issue. It is going to have a similar kind of impact in terms of American workers. You have undocumented, you have illegal workers; they are going to be exploited, and they are going to drive wages down, they are going to fear their boss or their employer might tell them. Therefore, they are going to settle for less in terms of payment. That is not natural. We can understand that. We have the figures and statistics to demonstrate that. But when you drive those wages down, you drive the wages down for American workers in related industries in those areas, and we have the figures to show that, too. This has a depressing impact in terms of legitimate American workers as well.

So I think this is an enormously important issue that we are able to support for this legislation, this will be a pathway to try to deal with the rest of the scene on immigration. If we are able to get the downpayment, which this is, this will open a new day and new era.

I don’t often agree with the President of the United States, but he has at least addressed this issue. We come to different conclusions with regard to the ability to be able to earn their way into legitimacy on this issue. Nonetheless, he understands. We can understand why; he has been a Governor of a border State. I hope we can find a way of developing a common ground here—Republicans and Democrats, those who have been interested and have followed the course of events in terms of the busyness, those of us who have been proud to represent the workers who, over a long period of time, have been exploited in too many instances and who have suffered. All they are looking for is respect and support and ability to rejoin with members of their families. Not long ago, the Senate considered fast-track legislation regarding those individuals who were serving in the Armed Forces overseas—a number of them actually lost their lives—those who have been permanent resident aliens—not even citizens, but were permanent resident aliens who served in our Armed Forces. The President gave citizenship to some who were killed in Iraq. We were able to try to provide for those going into the military at least some ability to faster citizenship. They were prepared to go to Iraq to die and fight for this country. All they wanted to do was to be able to live in this country as well. If they were going to do that, they were going to understand and respect their service to this Nation. We provided an opportunity to move their process toward citizenship faster, if they were going to serve in the Armed Forces or be in the Guard and Reserve, with the real prospects of going to Iraq. Are we going to say to those individuals, they are going to be able to get consideration, and their brothers and sisters who may not have gone into the service are still going to have to live in the shadows?

It seems to me we ought to be able to find common ground. We ought to be able to provide common ground here when we recognize the current process and system is a disaster.

We have an unregulated system where illegality is running rampant and, quite frankly, those who are opposed to us and offer alternatives are offering more of the same. This is an opportunity for a breakthrough. It is an opportunity for a new start. This is an opportunity for a bipartisan effort that is going to do something significant about the challenges we are facing with immigration. I hope it will be successful.

I withhold the remainder of our time.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am a cosponsor of the AgJOBS bill, which will do a world of good for farmers and farmworkers in Vermont and around our Nation.

First, this amendment would reform the H2A program for temporary agricultural labor. As it currently exists, this program is cumbersome and deeply unpopular with farmers. As a result, it is underused and promotes the widespread use of illegal labor on our Nation’s farms. Indeed, experts estimate that more than half of our Nation’s farmworkers are here illegally.

Second, this amendment would provide an opportunity for that illegal workforce to come out of the shadows and obtain legal permanent residency in return for the contributions they have made and will make to American agriculture, both before and after enactment. It would allow undocumented aliens who can demonstrate that they have worked in agriculture for 100 or more days in a 12-month period during the last 18 months to apply for legal status. Eligible applicants would be granted temporary resident status. If the farmworker then works at least 360 days in agriculture during the next 6 years, he or she may apply for permanent resident status. Workers would be free to choose from any employer. These provisions would create a substantially larger legal, stable workforce from which farmers around the country could hire. And without these provisions, it is difficult to see why farmworkers currently here illegally would come forward and announce their presence.

The AgJOBS bill is supported by a broad coalition of the agriculture industry and farmworker union and advocacy groups. It has broad bipartisan support in the Senate, and I urge all Senators to vote for this amendment.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, what is the time remaining?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Georgia has 11 minutes. The Senator from Massachusetts has 2 minutes 45 seconds.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I yield myself 5½ minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, we are coming to the close of the debate on this issue. I think it is important that we review for those of our colleagues who are listening, as well as to the American people who are listening relative to this issue, concerning whether we should grant amnesty to illegal aliens who are in this country, who are working in the agricultural field and have been here, or should we grant to those individuals an accommodation to stay here, assuming they are law abiding, assuming they are working in agriculture for an employer who needs them and they are not displacing an American worker, and where they will always be categorized as a temporary worker. That is the fundamental difference between the two bills.

I say to the Senator from Idaho, as well as the Senator from Massachusetts, again, I appreciate the debate we have had this morning because we have stood at the nerve center relative to the agricultural sector.

The Senator from Massachusetts is right. This is, in all probability, going to lay the groundwork for the broader overall issue we will deal with relative to immigration. I hope we could have dealt with this issue in a broader immigration bill, but with the rules of the Senate being what they are, we are here today talking about the supplemental for the Iraq war, and this is an issue that we do need—that stable, quality supply of agricultural employees for our farmers and ranchers around America, and they agree with Senator KYL and myself that we need to do it in a way that gives these workers a temporary status, does not subsidize American workers, allows our employers—our farmers and ranchers—to only hire those individuals who have had a background check by the Department of Homeland Security and have no criminal record whatsoever, as we provide for in the Chambliss-Kyl amendment. They have sent letters to each Member of the Senate. They have sent letters to all of their membership around the country, as well as being on the telephone calling those folks today asking them to contact their Senators and request that they vote for the Chambliss-Kyl amendment.

The reason the American Farm Bureau has done that is the American Farm Bureau knows and understands that they contact their Senators and ask them to vote for the Chambliss-Kyl amendment. They have a number of organizations on both sides that have come out in favor of the AgJOBS bill, as well as the Senator from Massachusetts is right. We have had this morning because we have stood at the nerve center relative to the agricultural sector.

have worked very hard on this measure over the last several months to try to ensure that we accommodate all of our farmers’ and ranchers’ needs across America. Today we think streamlining the H-2A process, which will give us a prevailing wage rate that our employees can pay to their agricultural employers, will provide a streamlined paperwork process to allow our H-2A employees to have that ready supply of labor in a short period of time and to make sure that when they complete the job, they have been allowed to come here to do, they go back to their country as available to our farmers and ranchers.

Also, with the blue card provision we have in our bill, farmers and ranchers who need employees for a period in excess of a small window will have available to them employees who can be here for up to 3 years provided the Department of Homeland Security has done a background check and determined they have never violated the law in this country, provided that those employees never be given anything but a temporary status, and provided that those employees agree and acknowledge that they will never be allowed to apply for a green card for permanent status or for citizenship in any way whatsoever, other than under what is existing law today.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and reserve the remainder of my time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?
Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, what is the time situation again?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts has 2 minutes 45 seconds.

Mr. KENNEDY. The other side?
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Four minutes 51 seconds.

Mr. KENNEDY. I yield myself 2 minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, one of the favorite techniques around here is people misstate what is in a particular proposal and then differ with it. I do not accuse anyone of doing that on this particular legislation, but I do believe they ought to listen to Senator CRAIG and myself as to exactly what our bill does and what it is intended to do. If there is any difference that will make these points clear, we are glad to do it. We want to free ourselves from distortions and misrepresentations.

Opponents of reform continually mislabel any initiative they oppose as amnesty in a desperate attempt to stop any significant reform. Instead of proposing ways to fix our current broken system, they are calling for more of the same—increased enforcement of broken laws. However, enforcing a dysfunctional system only leads to greater dysfunction.

To be eligible for legal status, applicants must present no criminal or national security problems. All applicants will be required to undergo rigorous security clearances. Their names and birth dates have to be checked against our Government’s criminal and terrorist databases. Applicants’ fingerprints will be sent to the FBI for a criminal background check which includes checking fingerprints with all arrest records in the FBI’s database.

Contrary to arguments made by detractors of AgJOBS, terrorists will not be able to exploit this program to obtain legal status under current immigration laws and would be ineligible under the AgJOBS bill. Our proposal has no loopholes for terrorists.

Opponents of AgJOBS claim this bill is soft on criminals. Wrong again. AgJOBS has the toughest provisions against those who commit crimes—tougher than current immigration law. Convictions for most crimes will make the person ineligible. Moreover, a person convicted of a single misdemeanor who served a sentence of 6 months or more would also be ineligible.

Finally, opponents of the AgJOBS bill also claim it will be a magnet for further illegal immigration. Once again, they are wrong. To be eligible for the AgJOBS program, farmworkers must establish that they worked in agriculture in the past. Farmworkers must have entered the United States prior to October 2004; otherwise, they are not eligible. The magnet argument is false. New entrants who have worked in agriculture will not qualify for this program.

This is a sensible, responsible, well-thought-out program that has had days of hearings and weeks and months of negotiations. It is a sensible answer, a downpayment to a problem this country needs to address. I believe, with all respect to my friends and colleagues on the other side, their proposal is more of the same. I hope the Senate will support our amendment.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator’s time has expired. Who yields the time?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time to the Senator from Arizona, Mr. KYL.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, let me try to summarize the status of this debate over the last couple of hours as pertinent to both of these propositions.

The first to be voted on is the Chambliss-Kyl proposal, and then the second will be the Craig-Kennedy proposal. Both need 60 votes to pass.

The first point I make to my colleagues is that we voted in this body on a sense-of-the-Senate resolution saying we should have this immigration deto be a law that matches willing employer and willing employee and does not do so with amnesty, and until we are ready to do that, I suggest we should defer that debate, get on with our supplemental appropriations bill, and have that debate when we consider it in the context of overall immigration reform.

Therefore, how do people vote on the first vote? As I said, the first vote is on the Chambliss-Kyl proposal. We urge a ‘yes’ vote on that proposal. The second vote is on the Kennedy-Craig proposal. We urge a ‘no’ vote on that. If they both fail, then we can get on with the business of the supplemental appropriations bill to fund our troops in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Mr. President, if there is no other speaker, I suggest we yield back all time and proceed with the votes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CLOTURE MOTION

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Chamber desiring to vote?

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on the pending bill, to which the clerk will state.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 21, the nays are 77.

Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected.

Mr. COCHRAN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. KYL. I move to lay the motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Mr. FRIST. Before we vote, I have 10 unanimous consent requests for committees to meet. The request has been cleared on both sides, and I ask for these requests and ask that the request be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object, does this include—

Mr. FRIST. This is for 10 requests for committees to meet, other than the Committee on Foreign Relations. I add that there was one committee left out of this request due to an objection on the other side of the aisle. Chairman LUGAR is holding a business meeting in the Foreign Relations Committee at 2:15, and there is an objection. I ask unanimous consent that committee request be granted and the committee be allowed to meet at 2:15.

Mr. REID. I object.

Mr. FRIST. I am disappointed there is an objection to allowing this important committee to do its work. That will make it necessary to recess for a period this afternoon to give Chairman LUGAR an opportunity to have his committee meet. I understand there may be a request from the other side for a vote on the motion to recess. Senators should be on notice that if we are unable to work out this objection, we will vote at 2:15 this afternoon. Unfortunately, this recess will not allow debate and votes on additional amendments to the underlying emergency appropriations prior to this afternoon’s cloture vote.

I yield the floor.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the clerk will report the motion to invoke cloture.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that the debate on amendment No. 375, offered by the Senator from Idaho, Mr. CRAIG, shall be brought to a close? The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 576

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 476 on behalf of Mr. BYRD regarding the Upper Tygart Watershed project.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. COCHRAN], for Mr. BYRD, proposes an amendment numbered 476.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

PURPOSE OF THE UPPER TYGART WATERSHED PROJECT

On page 198, between lines 21 and 22, insert the following:

SEC. 5134. Of the amount provided to the Secretary of Agriculture under the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2005 [(Public Law 108–447)] for the Lost River Watershed project, West Virginia, $4,000,000 shall be transferred to the Upper Tygart Watershed project, West Virginia, to be used under the same terms and conditions under which funds for that project were appropriated in section 735 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2004 [(Public Law 108–199), 118 Stat. 36].

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the amendment I am offering today is technical in nature in that it will provide for the transfer of previously appropriated funds from one ongoing Natural Resource Conservation Service, NRCS, project in West Virginia to another. The two projects involved are the Upper Tygart Valley Watershed project and the Walker River Watershed project. The Upper Tygart project will, once completed, provide water service to at least 16,000 residents in Randolph County, WV. The Lost River project is a series of dams that were designed to provide flood control, water supply, and recreation in Hardy County, WV.

The Upper Tygart Valley Watershed project requires a final $14 million in funding to initiate construction. The additional funds are necessary due to the fact that the project design was not yet completed when cost estimates for the project were formed. There has also been a dramatic rise in the cost of building materials for the project.

Funding in the amount of $4.2 million was provided to the Lost River Watershed project in the fiscal year 2005 Agriculture Appropriations bill. However, the project cannot proceed to construction in the current fiscal year due to a change in the project purpose requested by the project sponsor and subsequent requirements for the NRCS to reevaluate the project. Due to these circumstances, I am offering this amendment which will provide the Natural Resources Conservation Service authority to transfer the previously appropriated construction funds from the Lost River Watershed project to the Upper Tygart Valley Watershed project. This action will enable the NRCS to initiate construction of the Upper Tygart project during the coming months. Again, I would like to reemphasize to my colleagues that this amendment does not appropriate new funds but instead transfers previously appropriated funds between two existing Natural Resources Conservation Service projects in West Virginia.

I thank my colleagues for their support of my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 476) was agreed to.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 548

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I send to the desk an amendment on behalf of Mr. LEAHY regarding the protection of the Galapagos.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. COCHRAN], for Mr. LEAHY, proposes an amendment numbered 548.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

PROTECTION OF THE GALAPAGOS

SEC. 519. (a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The Galapagos Islands are a global treasure and World Heritage Site, and the future of the Galapagos is in the hands of the Government of Ecuador.

(2) The world depends on the Government of Ecuador to implement the necessary policies and programs to ensure the long-term protection of the biodiversity of the Galapagos, including enforcing the Galapagos Special Law.

(3) There are concerns with the current leadership of the Galapagos National Park Service and that the biodiversity of the Galapagos and the Marine Reserve are not being properly managed or adequately protected; and

(4) The Government of Ecuador has reportedly given its approval for commercial airplane flights to the Island of Isabela, which may cause irreparable harm to the biodiversity of the Galapagos, and has allowed the export of fins from sharks caught accidentally in the Marine Reserve, which encourages illegal fishing.

(b) Whereas, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That—

(1) The Senate strongly encourages the Government of Ecuador to—

(A) refrain from taking any action that could cause harm to the biodiversity of the Galapagos or encourage illegal fishing in the Marine Reserve;

(B) abide by the agreement to select the Director of the Galapagos National Park Service through a transparent process based on merit as previously agreed by the Government of Ecuador, international donors, and nongovernmental organizations; and

(C) enforce the Galapagos Special Law in its entirety, including the governance structure defined by the law to ensure effective control of migration to the Galapagos and sustainable fishing practices, and prohibit long-line fishing which threatens the survival of shark and marine turtle populations.

(2) The Department of State should—

(A) emphasize to the Government of Ecuador the importance the United States gives to these issues; and

(B) offer assistance to implement the necessary policies and programs to ensure the long-term protection of the biodiversity of the Galapagos and the Marine Reserve and to sustain the livelihoods of the Galapagos population who depend on the marine ecosystem for survival.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 548.

The amendment (No. 548) was agreed to.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I have no further amendments to present to the Senate at this time.

I yield the floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 499

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the senior Senator from Virginia, Mr. WARNER, of which I am a cosponsor as well as the two Senators from Florida. The Department of Defense is on an ill-timed course to weaken our military strength by reducing the number of aircraft carriers from 12 to 11 and maybe even more. This decision is completely inconsistent with recent past statements on the absolute number of carriers needed to conduct operations.

According to ADM Vernon Clark, Chief of Naval Operations, just a little over 2 years ago:

The current force of 12 carriers and 12 amphibious groups is the force we can have and sustain the kind of operations we are in.

According to the 2002 Naval Posture Statement:

Aircraft carrier force levels have been set at 12 ships as a result of fiscal constraints;
however, real-world experience and analysis indicate that a carrier force level of 15 ships is necessary to meet the warfighting Commander in Chief’s requirements for carrier presence in all regions of importance to the United States.

I am not convinced that reducing our carrier fleet is the best strategic decision in the midst of our global war against terrorism. Realistically, it looks like the Department of Defense and the Navy are maneuvering quickly to negate any legislative oversight. But we in Congress should make sure that all considerations are taken into account. As far as I can discern, the deterrent power that may hamper our military’s ability to fight this global war on terrorism. That is why this amendment is being offered.

What does this amendment achieve? First, the amendment ensures that the Navy proceeds on the scheduled necessary maintenance of the USS John F. Kennedy so that the carrier is kept in active status. In addition, this amendment orders the Navy to keep the aircraft carriers until the latter of the following: 180 days after the quadrennial defense review comes before Congress or that the Secretary of Defense has certified to Congress that agreements have been entered into for the permanent forward deployment of such aircraft carriers that are necessary in the Pacific Command Area of Responsibility to fulfill the roles and missions of that command.

Moreover, it is important that we keep the Kennedy available because Adm. Clark stated that it is essential to have a carrier home ported in Japan. However, we know that Japan has serious reservations—in fact, prohibitions—about allowing us to port a nuclear carrier there, and currently there is no sign that that prohibition would be removed for nuclear carriers. Therefore, for the nuclear aircraft carriers, the option is the Kitty Hawk, which is actually older than the JFK.

The bottom line is that the United States must have maximum flexibility in protecting our security interests in the Pacific and the Indian oceans. I believe any plan to mothball the Kennedy is shortsighted, especially during this time of war and with China’s rapid naval buildup. In addition, as far as China is concerned, with the continued tension between China and Taiwan, it is imperative that we have a carrier in the region that can respond quickly to any possible conflict that may arise.

In that regard, the Washington Post published a story written by Edward Cody on April 12, 2005, entitled “China Builds a Smaller, Stronger Military: Modernization Could Alter Regional Balance of Power, Raising Stakes For U.S.”

(From the Washington Post, Apr. 12, 2005)

CHINA BUILDS A SMALLER, STRONGER MILITARY: MODERNIZATION COULD ALTER REGIONAL BALANCE OF POWER, RAISING STAKES FOR U.S.

(Edward Cody)

A top-to-bottom modernization is transforming the Chinese military, raising the stakes for U.S. forces long dominant in the Pacific.

Several programs to improve China’s armed forces could soon produce a stronger nuclear deterrent against the United States, soldiers better trained to use high-technology weapons and capable of cruise and anti-ship missiles for use in the waters around Taiwan, according to foreign specialists and U.S. officials.

In the past few weeks, President Bush and his senior aides, including Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld, Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and Director of Central Intelligence Porter J. Goss, have expressed concern over the recent pace of China’s military progress and its effect on the regional balance of power.

Their comments suggested the modernization program might be on the brink of reaching one of its principal goals. For the last decade—less, if the two air carrier battle groups steamed in to show resolve during a moment of high tension over Taiwan in 1996—Chinese leaders have sought to field enough strategic aircraft for any U.S. decision to intervene again would be painful and fraught with risk.

As far as is known, China’s military has not completely abandoned the system that suddenly changes the equation in the Taiwan Strait or surrounding waters where Japanese and U.S. forces deploy, the specialists said. But the trend toward the modernization of China’s defense has continued, and China’s military has started to take on the appearance of a people’s army into the 21st-century world of computers, satellites and electronic weapons.

Although results have been slow in coming, they added, several programs will come to fruition simultaneously in the next few years, promising a new level of firepower in one of the world’s most volatile regions.

“This is the harvest time,” said Lin Chong-pin, a former Taiwanese deputy defense minister and an expert on the Chinese military, at the Foundation on International and Cross-Strait Studies in Taipei.

U.S. and Taiwanese military officials pointed to reports of rapid development of cruise and other antiship missiles designed to pierce the electronic defenses of U.S. vessels that might be dispatched to the Taiwan Strait in case of conflict.

The Chinese navy has taken delivery of two Russian-built Sovremenny-class guided missile destroyers and has six more on order, equipped with Sunburn missiles able to skim 4½ feet above the water at a speed of Mach 2.5 to evade radar. In addition, it has contracted for 12 Kilo-class diesel submarines that carry Club anti-ship missiles with a range of 145 miles.

“These systems will present significant challenges to the U.S. naval forces’ response to a Taiwan crisis,” Vice Adm. Lowell E. Jacoby, director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, told the Senate Armed Services Committee on March 17.

Strategically, China’s military is also close to achieving an improved nuclear deterrent against the United States, according to foreign and U.S. specialists.

The Type 094 nuclear missile submarine, launched last July to replace a troublesome Xian-class vessel, can carry 16 intercontinental ballistic missiles equipped with the newly developed Julang-2 missile, which has a range of more than 5,000 miles and the ability to carry independently targeted warheads, the 094 will give China a survivable nuclear deterrent against the continental United States, according to “Modernizing China’s Military,” written by David Shambaugh of George Washington University.

In addition, the Dongfeng-11 solid-fuel missile is a land-based equivalent of the Julang-2, has been deployed in recent years to augment the approximately 20 Dongfeng-5 liquid-fuel missiles already in service, according to academic specialists citing U.S. intelligence reports.

It will be joined in coming years by an 8,000-mile Dongfeng-41 missile, said, putting the entire United States within range of land-based Chinese ICBMs as well.

“The main purpose of that is not to attack the United States,” Lin said. “The main purpose is to throw a monkey wrench into the decision-making process in Washington, to make the Americans think, and think again, about intervening in Taiwan, and by then the Chinese have moved in.”

With a $1.3 trillion economy growing at more than 9 percent a year, China has accumulated enough wealth to make the investments in a modern military. The announced defense budget has risen by double digits in most recent years. For 2005, it jumped 12.6 percent to hit nearly $30 billion.

The Pentagon estimates that real military expenditures, including weapons acquisitions and research tucked into other budgets, should be calculated at two or three times the announced figure. That would make China’s defense expenditures among the world’s largest, but still far behind the $400 billion budgeted this year by the United States.

Taiwan, the self-ruled island that China insists must reunite with the mainland, has long been at the center of this growth in military spending; one of the military’s chief missions is to project a threat of force should Taiwan’s rulers take steps toward formal independence.

Embodying the threat, the 2nd Artillery Corps has deployed more than 600 short-range ballistic missiles aimed at Taiwan from southeastern China’s Fujian and Jiangxi provinces, according to Taiwan’s deputy defense minister, Michael M. Teai. Medium-range missiles have also been deployed, and much of China’s modernization campaign is directed at acquiring weapons and support systems that would give it air and sea superiority in any conflict over the 100-mile-wide Taiwan Strait.

Taiwan’s expansion of military interests abroad, particularly energy needs, has also broadened the military’s mission in recent years. Increasingly, according to foreign specialists and Chinese commentators, China’s navy and air force have set out to project power in the South China Sea, where several islands are under dispute and vital oil sup- ply lines pass through, as well as in the Indian Ocean, where China and Japan are at loggerheads over mineral rights and several contested islands.

China has acquired signals-monitoring facilities on Burma’s Coco Islands and, according to U.S. reports, at a port it is building in cooperation with Pakistan near the Iranian border at Gwadar, which looks out over tankers exiting the Persian Gulf. According to a report prepared for Rumsfeld’s office by Booz Allen Hamilton, the consulting firm, China has developed a “string of pearls” strategy, seeking military-related agreements with Bangladesh, Cambodia and Thailand in addition to those with Burma and Pakistan.

Against this background, unifying Taiwan with the mainland has become more than just a nationalist goal. The 13,500-square-mile territory has also become a platform that China needs to protect southern sea lanes, through which pass 80 percent of its import of other important raw materials. It could serve as a base for Chinese submarines to have unfettered access to the deep Pacific, according to Tsai, Taiwan’s defense minister. “Taiwan for them now is a strategic must and no longer just a sacred mission,” Lin said.

Traditionally, China’s threat against Taiwan has been envisaged as a Normandy-style assault by troops hitting the beaches. French, German, British and Mexican military attachés were invited to observe such landing exercises by specialized Chinese troops last September. But U.S. and Taiwanese officials noted that Chinese forces had never had the capability to move across the strait solely on armored division—about 12,000 men with their vehicles. That would be enough to occupy an outlying Taiwanese island as a gesture, they said, but not to seize the main island.

Instead, Taiwanese officials said, if a conflict arose, they would expect a graduated campaign of high-technology weapons. Buying such equipment would be China’s most likely objective if the European Union goes ahead with plans to lift its arms sales embargo despite objections from Russia. China has remained at the beginning stages of its effort to acquire the equipment and skills necessary for midair refueling, space-based information systems, and airborne reconnaissance and battle management platforms.

A senior Taiwanese military source said Chinese pilots started training on refueling without airmanship security in the mid-1990s, but so far have neither the equipment nor the technique to integrate such operations into their order of battle. Similarly, he said, China is still using Global Positioning System devices to guide its cruise missiles but remains some time away from deploying such technology.
