STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself, Mr. Smith, Mr. Baucus, Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Feinstein, Mr. Feingold, Mrs. Murray, Mr. Salazar, Ms. Cantwell, and Mr. Inouye): S. 2643. A bill to amend the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to clarify that Indian tribes are eligible to receive grants for confronting the use of methamphetamine; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Native American Meth Enforcement and Treatment Act of 2006.

Unfortunately, when Congress passed the Combat Methamphetamine Epidemic Act, tribes were unintentionally left out as eligible applicants in some of the newly-authorized grant programs. The bill I am introducing today, along with Senators Smith, Baucus, Cantwell, Inouye, Johnson, Feinstein, Feingold, Murray, and Salazar, would simply ensure that tribes are able to apply for these funds and give Native American communities the resources they need to combat the scourge of methamphetamine use.

The recently-enacted Combat Methamphetamine Epidemic Act of 2005 authorized new funding for three grant programs. The Act authorized $89 million in new funding for the COPS Hot Spots program, which helps local law enforcement agencies obtain the tools they need reduce the production, distribution, and use of meth. Funding may also be used to clean up meth labs, support health and environmental agencies, and to purchase equipment and support systems.

The Act also authorized $20 million for a Drug-Endangered Children grant program to provide comprehensive services to assist children who live in a home in which meth has been used, manufactured, or sold. Under this program, law enforcement agencies, prosecutors, child protective services, social services, and health care services, work together to ensure that these children get the help they need.

In addition, the Combat Meth Act authorized grants to be made to address the use of meth among pregnant and parenting women offenders. The Pregnant and Parenting Offenders program, which is authorized under the legislation to increase collaboration between the criminal justice, child welfare, and State substance abuse systems in order to reduce the use of drugs by pregnant women and those with dependent children.

Although tribes are eligible applicants under the Pregnant and Parenting Offenders program, they were not included as eligible applicants under either the Hot Spots program or the Drug-Endangered Children program. I see no reason why tribes should not be able to access all of these funds.

Meth use has had a devastating impact in communities throughout the country, and Indian Country is no exception. Last month there was an article in the Gallup Independent newspaper about a Navajo grandmother, her daughter, and granddaughter, who were all arrested for selling meth. There was also a one-year-old child in the home when police executed the arrest warrant. It is absolutely disheartening to hear about cases such as this, with three generations of a family destroyed by meth.

I strongly believe that we need to do everything we can to assist communities as they struggle to deal with the consequences of meth, and ensuring that Native American communities are able to access these funds is an important first step. I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this important measure.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mr. Graham, and Mr. Frist):
S. 2644. A bill to harmonize rate setting standards for copyright licenses under sections 112 and 114 of title 17, United States Code, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to introduce the Platform Equality and Remedies for Rights-holders in Music Act, or the PERFORM Act, along with Senators GRAHAM and FRIST.

The need to protect creative works has been an important principle recognized in our country since its inception.

The founding fathers accurately understood the importance of intellectual property by including protective language in our Constitution, and in doing so they established a principle that would stand the test of time.

However, they could not have predicted that the path of innovation would produce the kind of new technologies that we now take for granted.

While many of us still enjoy traditional analog radio, this, too, is rapidly changing. Some have music radio programs provided over the Internet, cable, and satellites. Even traditional radio is changing with the advent of new digital radio.

With the entry into the marketplace of these new music providers consumers are receiving the songs and artists they enjoy in new and innovative ways.

Yet, as these new business models and technologies are developed we must ensure that the artists and musicians who create and perform the music continue to be fairly compensated for their work.

Unfortunately, some of the new innovations have been used to supplant music sales and avoid fair compensation to the songwriters and performers.

From 1999 to 2004, total music sales have declined by 30 percent. Over the same years, sales declined 18 percent. The decline continued in 2005 as total album sales fell 7.2 percent year-over-year.

Some of this decline is due to outdated business models and competition from other entertainment products, some due to illegal actions and piracy, and some is due to outdated music licensing laws.

I believe our laws must strike the proper balance between fostering new business models and technologies and protecting the property rights of the artists whose music is being broadcast.

I strongly support advancements in technology and I encourage ingenuity. The birth of the digital music place has been a boon for businesses and consumers. It is important that these new forums succeed and grow.

However, these new technologies and business models have become so advanced that the clear lines between a listening service and a reproduction and copying service has been blurred.

Historically, a radio service simply allowed music to be performed and listened to by an audience. However, many new services using the new digital transmissions and new technological devices have allowed consumers to also record, manipulate, and collect individual music play-lists off their radio-like services.

Thus, what was once a passive listening experience has turned into a forum where consumers can record, manipulate, reprogram and save songs to create their own personalized playlists.

As the law of distribution and the technological change, so must our laws change. The government granted a compulsory license for radio-like services by Internet, cable, and satellite providers in order to encourage competition and new products.

However, as new innovations alter their services from a performance to a distribution the law must respond.

In addition, as the changing technology evolves, the distinctions between bandwidth and royalties and the differences in how they are treated under the statutory license make less sense.

Therefore I am introducing a bill that will begin to fix the inequities currently in the statute and open the door to further debate about additional issues that need to be addressed.

The bill I am introducing today with Senators GRAHAM and FRIST would: create rate parity—all companies covered by the government license created in Section 114 of Title 17 would be required to pay a fair market value for use of music libraries rather than having different rate standards apply based on what medium is being used to transmit the music; and establish content protection—all companies would be required to use reasonably available, technologically feasible, and economically reasonable means to prevent music theft. In addition, a company may not provide a recording device to a customer unless it will allow him or her to create their own personalized music library that can be manipulated and maintained without paying a reproduction royalty.

This does not mean such devices cannot be made or distributed. It simply means that the business must negotiate the payment for the music through the market rather than under the statutory license.

The bill also contains language to make sure music users’ current recording habits are not inhibited. Therefore, any recording the consumer chooses to do manually will still be allowed. In addition, if the device allows the consumer to manipulate music by program, channel, or time period that would still be allowable under the statutory license.

For example, if a listener chooses to automatically record a news station every morning at 9:00; a jazz station every afternoon at 2:00; a blues station every Friday at 3:00; and a talk radio show every Saturday at 4:00; that would be allowable. In addition, that listener could then use their recording device to move these programs to create their own personalized playlists.

What a listener cannot do is set a recording device to find all the Frank Sinatra songs being played on the radio-like service and only record those songs. By making these distinctions, this bill supports new business models and technologies without harming the songwriters and performers in the process.

Unfortunately, anytime legislation is introduced there is a lot of misinformation about what it does. Often criticisms are lobbed without reviewing the actual text of the bill. So, let me be clear about some of the concerns I have heard.

The bill would not apply to over-the-air broadcasting. Terrestrial radio, i.e., traditional radio distributed by the broadcasters is not covered under this bill. This legislation only covers businesses that are under the 114 license—Internet, cable, and satellite.

The only applicable to broadcasters would be if they were to act as webcasters and simulcast their programs over the Internet, in which case they would be treated the same as all other Internet radio providers.

As I have said, this bill would not inhibit technological advances. It would place limits on the types of recording devices cable, Internet and satellite providers may offer. If they want to enjoy the benefit of a government license.

The bill simply states that if a company wants to offer new technologies that allow for manipulation of music so that a consumer can create their own music libraries, similar to a downloading service, they may. There is nothing in this bill prohibiting the use or creation of new technologies the company would simply lose the benefit of a government license.

The bill simply states that if a company wants to change its service from a listening service to a performance service then they no longer are covered by the government license and must go to the record companies directly to negotiate a licensing agreement through the market.

The bill would not be discriminatory. Some argue that changing the rates or establishing content protection is discriminatory. However, under current law some businesses are required to pay higher licensing rates than others even though they provide essentially the same service.

In addition, if a new satellite company were to be formed today they would be required to pay a higher rate than the current two companies in the market—that is not fair. Instead this bill would establish the same rates and protections for all companies.

The argument that this bill is discriminatory ignores the inequities of current law as it applies to Internet, cable, and new satellite providers and instead focuses on the differences between these new radio providers versus terrestrial or traditional over-the-air radio.
The argument is that there are already devices available and new technologies that allow consumers to capture and manipulate music being played by over-the-air broadcasters. Yet this bill does not apply to broadcasters and instead only applies to Internet, cable, and satellite services.

The conclusion being that by not covering broadcasters we are giving them a free pass and being unfair to the new businesses.

What is the obvious argument is that the Judiciary Committee does not have jurisdiction to regulate over-the-air broadcasters. I think it is important to acknowledge that the Commerce Committee is actively looking into this issue right now. In addition, I am aware that there are active negotiations occurring between broadcasters and the record labels to develop similar protections for their services.

Thus, while some may be frustrated that jurisdiction may lie in different committees and are on-going in each to address these issues, I do not believe, in the Judiciary Committee, should wait and do nothing to protect artists and songwriters simply because the Commerce Committee has not yet concluded its work. The same concern for terrestrial radio.

Having said that, let me be clear, this is the beginning of a process to address a very specific problem. I believe that as the process unfolds there will be additional improvements or deal with other issues that may need to be added.

Already, some have raised questions about language in the bill and additional modifications to Section 114 that I believe should be looked at more closely.

I understand there is some concern about what fair market value means, especially under a government licensing scheme where there is not an actual competitive market. I think it makes no sense to look into this issue and see if there is a definition that can be developed.

In doing this, I believe we should look at all the different models that have been used. We should look at what the courts have held, what the copyright office has used, what a real competitive market would entail, as well as other factors that may not have been considered.

The bill as introduced does not address the improvements or deal with Internet, cable, and satellite services in order for them to get the benefit of the statutory license. The one that I am most concerned with is interactivity.

I think there is real confusion about what is and what is not allowed under the current statute. How much personalization and customization may these new services offer?

Currently licensing rates are higher for interactive services. However, there are concerns as to what constitutes an interactive service.

I tried to have the parties meet to negotiate a solution to this issue so that we could include new language in this bill. However, after two weeks and hours and hours of negotiations the parties were so far apart that a solution could not be reached. Despite this, I still believe this is an important issue that must be addressed.

Therefore, I put a placeholder in the bill that calls for the copyright office to make recommendations to Congress, but I am hopeful that through the process of moving this bill through the Senate we can develop a solution sooner rather than later.

I am hopeful that the parties will again meet and try to develop a compromise, however, if that does not occur I may try to work with my colleagues to develop a legislative solution independently.

Finally, some have raised concerns that applying content protection to all providers is unfair. They argue that if there is no connection between the distributor of the music and the technology provider that allows for copying and manipulating of performances then they should not be required to protect the music that they broadcast.

In general, I do not agree. I know that there are websites out there now that provide so-called stream-ripping services that allow an individual to steal music off an Internet webcast. It is not enough to turn a blind eye to this type of piracy and do nothing simply because there is no formal connection between the businesses.

At the same time, I am sympathetic to the concerns that if the type of technology a company uses is inadequate or ineffective, through no fault of their own, they can be saddled with huge mandatory penalties. I am willing to look at this issue more closely and see if there is some way to address this concern and find a compromise solution.

As I have said, this is the beginning of the process. I think this legislation is a good step forward in addressing a real problem that is occurring in the music industry.

Changes or additions may be necessary as the bill moves forward, but I believe we need to address the music that must be done to all involved.

Music is an invaluable part of all our lives. The new technologies and changing delivery systems provide extensive choices and recordings for the consumers. As we continue to move forward into new frontiers we must ensure that our laws can stand the test of time.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this legislation.

If I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record along with letters of support for the legislation.

NATIONAL MUSIC PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION WELCOMES INTRODUCTION OF THE PERFORM ACT

April 25, 2006—National Music Publishers’ Association (NMPA) President and CEO David Israelite today released the following statement regarding the Platform Equality and Remedies for Rights-holders in Music Act, or PERFORM Act, introduced today by Sens. DIANNE FEINSTEIN (D-CA) and Sen. LINDSEY GRAHAM (R-SC)—would reform the copyright laws to harmonize the current protections and rate regimes that make for the hap-hazard patchwork covering digital music services today,” said RIAA Chairman and CEO Mitch Bainwander. “This legislation is allowing satellite radio to morph into something altogether different—a digital distribution service—with the creators of music left in the lurch. This legislation seeks to right that wrong and ensure a marketplace where fair competition can thrive. We’re extremely grateful for the leadership of Senators Feinstein and Graham. This bill moves us far closer to achieving the platform parity that is so key to the health of the music industry in years to come.

The digital music marketplace is undergoing a convergence across all platforms—a convergence creating arbitrary advantages for certain services over others at the expense of creators. While offering great opportunities for the music community, satellite broadcasters and music fans, the convergence of radio-like services and downloading opportunities requires changes in the law to protect against a satellite company transforming its model into a download service without the appropriate license.

The RIAA and others in the music community have made it clear that satellite radio services should be required to obtain a license in the marketplace to offer the capability to cherry pick individual songs and then permanently store them in a digital library. Legislation—such as the Graham bill—is needed to ensure that satellite services play by the same rules as Internet music services—both in rate setting and content protection standards.

Because traditional terrestrial radio is not covered by the government license or this private market negotiation, new legislation or regulatory measures to similarly protect high-definition (HD) radio are currently in progress. The RIAA has also praised the introduction of the Satellite Radio Act by Sens. DINO RUDOLPH (R-NJ) and Sen. ROBERT MENENDEZ (D-NJ) that requires users of free government spectrum to protect content delivered through HD radio receivers through private market agreements.

By Mr. KERRY:

S. 2646. A bill to create a 3-year pilot program that makes small, nonprofit community radio available under title V of the Small Business Investment Act of 1958; to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, as Congress comes back in for our great five-week work period, it is high time we put partisan bickering aside and take up real issues that will improve the lives of America’s hard-working families. Today, I rise to address one such problem—the growing shortage of qualified health care for future generations. Over the past 50 years, the United States has witnessed a 43 percent increase in the number of dual-
In recent years, the Children’s Defense Fund estimated that in all but one State, the average annual cost of child care in urban area child care centers is more than the average annual cost of public college tuition. Additionally, they projected that child care can easily cost between $4,000 to $10,000 per year in cities and States across the Nation. Clearly, these high costs pose a virtual barrier to quality care for low-income families in need of quality care for their children. Although many States have implemented grant and loan programs to help these child care small businesses, more must be done to ensure quality care, but also the overall supply of child care facilities for the Nation’s neediest families.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation and allow non-profit child care providers to access SBA 504 financing for their facilities and the children they serve. Funded entirely through fees, this legislation requires no appropriation. Additionally, it is consistent with the three-year reauthorization cycle. This legislation is the product of work on this issue in both the 107th and 108th Congresses. Similar legislation was introduced in 2002, S. 2891, however the four year provision made this program inconsistent with the cycle of SBA reauthorization. To remedy this, I reintroduced the measure in 2003 as S. 822, making the act a three-year pilot program consistent with the cycle of reauthorization. This pilot program was also part of the larger Senate Small Business reauthorization legislation in the last Congress, S. 1375. Unfortunately, this innovative proposal to expand child care, which had bipartisan support, was cut out of the final authorization package when a scaled-back version of the reauthorization legislation, without most Democratic initiatives, was added to the FY2005 omnibus appropriations bill.

Although there is no quick-fix solution for the Nation’s child care shortage, this bill marks an important step in the right direction by allowing non-profit child care centers to receive SBA loans. I hope that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle will recognize the vital role that early education plays in the development of fine minds and productive citizens, and realize that in this great Nation, child care should be available to all families in all income brackets. The Child Care Lending Pilot Act of 2006 is a sound investment in our Nation’s future—our children.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the joint resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. J. Res. 34

WHEREAS there has been a strong consensus among the United States military commanders that a broad-based political settlement involving the three main Iraqi groups is essential for defeating the insurgency;

WHEREAS the two parts of that political settlement are (1) agreement on a national unity government and (2) ensuring the interests of all Iraqis, and (2) compromises to amend the Iraq Constitution to make it an inclusive document;

WHEREAS such a two-part political settlement is also essential to prevent all-out civil war and is a critical element of our exit strategy for United States military forces in Iraq;

WHEREAS the Iraqi Council of Representatives’ approval on April 22, 2006, of the Presidency Council consisting of Jalal Talabani as President, Jalawat al-Said as Vice President, and the election of a Speaker and two Deputy Speakers is a significant step, as is the decision by the Iraqi political leadership to select Jawad al-Maliki as the Prime Minister designate;

WHEREAS the Council of Representatives still needs to consider the nomination of Jawad al-Maliki, his still-to-be-form Cabinet, including an Interior Minister and a Defense Minister, and still needs to form a committee to recommend changes to the Iraq Constitution;

WHEREAS under the Iraq Constitution, Prime Minister designate Jawad al-Maliki has 30 days from April 22, 2006, to choose and present to the Council of Representatives for its approval;

WHEREAS under the Iraq Constitution, the Council of Representatives, at the start of its functioning, is required to appoint a committee from its members which will have four months to present recommendations to the Council for necessary amendments to the Iraq Constitution;

WHEREAS while the three main Iraqi groups have differing views about the duration of the period set for the United States and Coalition forces, none of them favor the immediate withdrawal of United States military forces from Iraq;

WHEREAS section 2277 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006 (Public Law 109–163; 119 Stat. 3465; 50 U.S.C. 1541 note) provides in part that “[t]he Administration should tell the leaders of all groups and political parties in Iraq that they need to make the compromises necessary to achieve the broad-based and sustainable political settlement that is essential for defeating the insurgency in Iraq, within the timetable they set for themselves’’;

WHEREAS the United States Ambassador to Iraq, Zalmay Khalilzad, has done an exceptional job in working with Iraqi political, religious, and tribal leaders in an effort to achieve consensus on the prompt formation of a national unity government; and

WHEREAS the American public has become increasingly and understandably impatient with the failure of the Iraqis to form a national unity government; and

WHEREAS the American public has become increasingly and understandably impatient with the failure of the Iraqis to form a national unity government; and

WHEREAS, since February 2005, King Gyanendra has promulgated dozens of ordinances without parliamentary process that violate basic freedoms of expression and association, including a Decree of Conduct that seeks to limit media freedom in covering elections and the Code of Conduct for Social Organizations that bars staff from governmental organizations from having political affiliations;

WHEREAS King Gyanendra ordered the arrest of hundreds of political demonstrators during January 2006 before holding municipal elections on February 8, 2006, which the Department of State characterized as “a hollow attempt by the King to legitimize his power’’;

WHEREAS the people of Nepal have been peacefully protesting since April 6, 2006, in an attempt to restore the democratic political process;

WHEREAS on April 10, 2006, the Department of State declared that King Gyanendra’s February 2005 decision to “impose direct palace rule in Nepal has failed in every regard” and called on the King to restore democracy immediately and to begin a dialogue with Nepal’s political and civil society because of the prevailing political crisis;

WHEREAS King Gyanendra announced on April 21, 2006, that the executive power of Nepal shall be returned to the people and called on the seven-party alliance to name a new prime minister to govern the country in accordance with the 1990 Constitution of Nepal;

WHEREAS the seven-party alliance subsequently rejected King Gyanendra’s April 21, 2006 statement and called on the seven-party alliance to name a new prime minister to govern the country in accordance with the 1990 Constitution of Nepal;

WHEREAS on April 24, 2006, King Gyanendra announced that he would reinstate the Parliament of Nepal on April 29, 2006, and apologized for the deaths and injuries that occurred during the recent demonstrations, but did not address the issue of constitutional revision;

WHEREAS some political party leaders have welcomed King Gyanendra’s April 24th announcement and stated that the first action of the reconvened parliament will be the scheduling of elections for a constituent assembly to redraft the Constitution of Nepal.

Resolved, That the Senate—

(6) calls on security forces of Nepal to exert maximum restraint and to uphold the highest standards of conduct in their response to the protests.

Mr. LUGAR (for himself, Mr. BIDEN, and Mr. LEAHY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res. 441

Whereas, in 1990, Nepal adopted a constitution that enshrined multi-party democracy under a constitutional monarchy, ending 3 decades of absolute monarchal rule;

Whereas, since 1996, Maoist insurgents have waged a violent campaign to replace the constitutional monarchy with a communist republic, which has resulted in widespread human rights violations by both sides and the loss of an estimated 12,000 lives;

Whereas the Maoist insurgency grew out of the radicalization and fragmentation of left wing parties following Nepal’s transition to democracy in 1990;

Whereas, on June 1, 2001, King Birendra, Queen Ashwarya and other members of the Royal family were murdered, leaving the throne to the slain King’s brother, the current King Gyanendra;

Whereas, in May 2002, in the face of increasing Maoist violence, Prime Minister Deuba dismissed Prime Minister Deuba dissolved the Parliament of Nepal;

Whereas, in October 2002, King Gyanendra dismissed Prime Minister Deuba and mandated that he hold general elections by April 2005;

Whereas, on February 1, 2005, King Gyanendra accused Nepali political leaders of failing to solve the Maoist problem, seized absolute control of Nepal by dismissing and detaining Prime Minister Deuba and declaring an emergency; temporarily shut down Nepal’s communications, detained hundreds of politicians and political workers, and limited press and other constitutional freedoms; and

Whereas, in November 2005, the mainsteam political parties formed a seven-party alliance with the Maoists and agreed to a new constitution that restructured the government of Nepal to include an end to absolute monarchal rule and the formation of an interim all-party government with limited terms for a constituent assembly to rewrite the Constitution of Nepal;

Whereas, in April 2006, King Gyanendra has promulgated dozens of ordinances without parliamentary process that violate basic freedoms of expression and association, including the Decree of Conduct that seeks to limit media freedom in covering elections and the Code of Conduct for Social Organizations that bars staff from governmental organizations from having political affiliations;
