S. 1 will require enhanced disclosure of the activities of groups lobbying Congress so that the public can easily find out which interests are trying to influence the decisions we make.

S. 1 will slow the revolving door between the Hill and the private sector by limiting the ability of departing Members and staff to lobby their former colleagues.

While I am pleased to be a cosponsor of this bill, I also believe strongly that it would be improved by the addition of an independent Office of Public Integrity within the Legislative Branch. This Office would be able to conduct nonpartisan investigations of possible ethics violations. These investigations would help to promote public confidence in the enforcement of any laws that we pass to enhance congressional ethics. During debate on this bill last year, an amendment that Senator Lieberman, Senator McCain, and I offered to create this Office was defeated. However, I hope my colleagues have taken the lessons of the recent elections to heart and that the idea of an Office of Public Integrity will be approved this year. To that end, I am also cosponsoring Senator McCain's lobbying reform package, which he has introduced today and which contains a number of the provisions of S. 1 as well as creating an Independent Office of Public Integrity.

I once again commend my colleagues on recognizing the importance of this issue by making it our first priority in the 110th Congress. I urge the Senate to work quickly to get this legislation finished so that we can move on from the task of governing ourselves and get down to the business of governing our Nation.

The Congress finds as follows:

(1) Healthy People 2010 sets forth a reduction of unintended pregnancies as an important health objective for the Nation to achieve over the first decade of the new century, a goal first articulated in the 1979 Surgeon General's Report, Healthy People, and included in Healthy People 10—National Health Promotion and Disease Prevention Objectives.

(2) Although the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (referred to in this section as the "CDC") included family planning in its published list of the Ten Great Public Health Achievements in the 20th Century, the United States still has one of the highest rates of unintended pregnancies among industrialized nations.

(3) In 2004, 34,400,000 births of all women of reproductive age, were in need of contraceptive services and supplies to help prevent unintended pregnancy, and nearly half of those were in need of public support for such care.

(4) The United States has the highest rate of infection with sexually transmitted diseases of any industrialized country. In 2005, there were approximately 19,000,000 new cases of sexually transmitted diseases, almost half of them occurring in young people aged 24 and under. According to the CDC, these sexually transmitted diseases impose a tremendous economic burden with direct medical costs of $14,000 per year.

(5) Increasing access to family planning services will improve women's health and reduce the rates of unintended pregnancy, abortion, and infection with sexually transmitted diseases. Contraceptive use saves public health dollars. For every dollar spent to increase funding for family planning programs under title X of the Public Health Service Act, $3.80 is saved.

(6) Contraception is basic health care that improves the health of women and children by enabling women to plan and space births.

(7) Women experiencing unintended pregnancy are at greater risk for physical abuse and women leaving sparsely spaced births are at greater risk of maternal death.

(8) Women experiencing unintended pregnancy are at greater risk for physical abuse and women leaving sparsely spaced births are at greater risk of maternal death.

(9) A child born from an unintended pregnancy is at greater risk than a child born from an intended pregnancy of low birth weight, dying in the first year of life, being abused, and not receiving sufficient resources for healthy development.

(10) The ability to choose pregnancy prevents a child born from an unintended pregnancy of low birth weight, dying in the first year of life, being abused, and not receiving sufficient resources for healthy development.

(11) With increased access to contraception, sexually active women has an 85 percent chance of becoming pregnant within a year.

(12) The percentage of sexually active women ages 15 through 44 who were not using contraception increased from 5.4 percent to 7.4 percent in 2002, an increase of 37 percent, according to the CDC. This represents an apparent increase of 50,000 women and could raise the rate of unintended pregnancy.

(13) Many poor and low-income women cannot afford to purchase contraceptive services and supplies on their own. In 2003, 20.5 percent of all women ages 15 through 44 were uninsured.

(14) Public health programs, such as the Medicaid program and family planning programs under title X of the Public Health Service Act, provide high-quality family planning services and other preventive health care to underinsured or uninsured individuals who may otherwise lack access to health care.

The Medicaid program is the single largest source of public funding for family planning services and HIV/AIDS care in the United States. Half of all public dollars spent on contraceptive services and supplies in the United States are provided through the Medicaid program and more than 6,000,000 low-income, income-eligible, and Medicaid women use emergency contraception annually. Not covering contraceptives in employer-sponsored health insurance plans increases coverage for other out-patient contraceptive services, described in sub-section (a), in accordance with this section; or

(24) The available evidence shows that many women do not know about emergency contraception, do not know where to get it, or are unable to access it. Overcoming these gaps in knowledge among women using emergency contraception consistently and correctly.

(25) A November 2006 study of declining pregnancy rates concluded that the reduction in teen pregnancy between 1995 and 2002 is primarily the result of increased use of contraceptives. As such, it is critically important to ensure that information, unbiased and comprehensive, is accurately communicated to pregnant adolescents about failure rates. An October 2006 report by the Government Accountability Office found that the Department of Health and Human Services does not review the materials of recipients of grants administered by the Department for scientific accuracy and requires grantees to review their own materials for scientific accuracy. The GAO also reported on the Department’s total lack of controls and oversight of grantees to determine if funded programs are effective. In addition, a separate letter from the Government Accountability Office found that the Department of Health and Human Services is in violates of Federal law by failing to enforce a requirement under the Public Health Service Act that Federally-funded grantees working to address the prevention of sexually transmitted diseases, including abstinence-only-until-marriage programs, must provide medically accurate information about the effectiveness of these programs. The new law also provides additional flexibility for grantees to determine if funded programs are effective. The new law also provides additional flexibility for grantees to determine if funded programs are effective.

(26) Comprehensive sexuality education programs respect the diversity of values and beliefs represented in the community and will complement and augment the sexuality education children receive from their families.

(27) Nearly half of the 40,000 annual new cases of HIV infections in the United States occur in youth ages 13 through 24. African American and Latino youth have been disproportionately affected by the HIV/AIDS epidemic. Although African American adolescents, ages 13 through 19, represent only 15 percent of the adolescent population in the United States, they accounted for 73 percent of new AIDS cases reported among adolescents in 2001. Latino adolescents, ages 13 through 19, accounted for 16 percent of all adolescents in the United States, in 2004. Teens in the United States contract an estimated 9.1 million sexually transmitted infections each year. By age 24, at least one in four sexually active people between the ages of 15 and 24 will have contracted a sexually transmitted disease.

(28) Nearly half of the 40,000 annual new cases of HIV infections in the United States occur in youth ages 13 through 24. By age 24, at least one in four sexually active people between the ages of 15 and 24 will have contracted a sexually transmitted disease.

(29) Approximately 50 young people a day, an average of two young people every hour of every day, are infected with HIV in the United States. Title X of the Public Health Service Act

By Mr. WEBB:

S. 22. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to establish a program of educational assistance for members of the Armed Forces who serve in the Armed Forces after September 11, 2001, and for other purposes, S. 22.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in support of a bill that I am introducing, entitled the Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007. This bill is designed to expand the educational benefits that our Nation offers to the brave men and women who have served us so honorably since the terrorist attacks of September 11.

As a veteran who hauls from a family with a long history of military service, I am proud to offer this bill as my first piece of legislation in the United States Senate.

Most of us know that our country has a tradition—since World War II—of offering educational assistance to returning veterans. In the 1940s, the first G.I. bill helped transform notions of equality in American society. The G.I. bill program was designed to help veterans readjust to civilian life, avoid high levels of unemployment, and give veterans the opportunity to receive the education and training that they missed while bravely serving in the military.

Since World War II, the post-World War II G.I. bill paid for veterans’ tuition, books, fees, and other training costs, and also gave a monthly stipend. After World War II, 7.8 million veterans used the benefits given under the original Post-War II G.I. bill to serve as a war-time veteran population of 15 million.

Over the last several decades, Congress subsequently passed several other G.I. bills, which also gave educational benefits to veterans. However, benefits under these bills have not been as generous as our Nation’s original G.I. bill.

Currently, veterans’ educational benefits are administered under the Montgomery G.I. bill. This program periodically adjusts veterans’ educational benefits, but the program is designed primarily for peacetime—not wartime—service.

Yet, now our Nation is fighting a worldwide war against terrorism. Since 2001, we have witnessed a sharp increase in the demands placed upon our military. Many of our military members are serving two or three tours of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan. In light of these immense hardships, it is now time to implement a more robust educational assistance program for our heroic veterans who have sacrificed so much for our great Nation.

The Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007 does just that. The Post-9/11 G.I. bill provides educational support of up to $1,000 per month for four years, totaling $9,000 for each academic year. This benefit simply is insufficient after 9/11.

For example, costs of tuition, room, and board for an in-state student at George Mason University, located in...
Fairfax, Virginia, add up to approximately $14,000 per year. In addition, existing law requires participating service members to pay $1,200 during their first year of service in order to even qualify for the benefit.

Let me briefly summarize some of the main points that are contained in the bill I am introducing today.

First, these increased educational benefits will be available to those members of the military who have served active duty since September 11, 2001. In general, to qualify, veterans must have served at least two years of active duty, with at least some period of active duty time served beginning on or after September 11, 2001.

Next, the bill provides for educational benefits to be paid for a duration of time that is linked to time served in the military. Generally, veterans will not receive assistance for more than a total of 36 months, which equals four academic years.

Third, as I mentioned a moment ago, my bill would allow veterans pursuing an approved program of education to receive payments covering the established charges of their program, room and board, and a monthly stipend of $1,000. Moreover, the bill would allow additional payments for tutorial assistance, as well as licensure and certification tests.

Fourth, veterans would have up to 15 years to use their educational assistance benefits, as described in subsection (d)(1). But veterans would be barred from receiving concurrent assistance from this program and another similar program, such as the Montgomery G.I. bill program.

Finally, under this bill, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs would administer the program, promulgate rules to carry out the new law, and pay for the program from funds made available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for the payment of readjustment benefits.

Again, I note that the benefits I have outlined today essentially mirror the benefits allowed under the G.I. bill enacted after World War II. That bill helped spark economic growth and expansion for a whole generation of Americans. The bill I introduce today likely will have similar beneficial effects. As the post-World War II experience so clearly indicated, better educated veterans have a more positive effect on military recruitment, broadening the socio-economic base of the military and reducing the direct costs of recruitment.

Perhaps more importantly, better-educated veterans have a more positive readjustment experience. This experience lowers the costs of treating post-traumatic stress disorder and other readjustment-related difficulties.

The United States has never erred when it has made sustained new investments in higher education and job training. Enacting the Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007 is not only the right thing to do for our men and women in uniform, but it also is a strong tonic for an economy plagued by growing disparities in wealth, stagnant wages, and the outsourcing of American jobs.

Mr. President, I am a proud veteran who is honored to serve this great Nation. As long as I represent Virginians in the United States Senate, I will make it a priority to help protect our brave men and women in uniform.

As the post-World War II experience indicated, the people of the United States greatly value military service and recognize the difficult challenges involved in readjusting to civilian life after wartime service in the Armed Forces. Together we can provide the deserving veterans of the 9/11 with the same program of benefits that our fathers and grandfathers received after World War II.

Mr. President, I ask that the bill I introduce today—the Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007—be printed in the Record along with this statement.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the "Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007".

(1) On September 11, 2001, terrorists attacked the United States, and the brave members of the Armed Forces of the United States were called to the defense of the Nation.

(2) Service on active duty in the Armed Forces has been especially arduous for the members of the Armed Forces since September 11, 2001.

(3) The United States has a proud history of offering educational assistance to millions of veterans, as demonstrated by the many "G.I. Bills" enacted since World War II. Educational assistance for veterans helps reduce the costs of war, assist veterans in readjusting to civilian life after wartime service, and boost the United States economy, and has a positive effect on recruitment for the Armed Forces.

(4) The current educational assistance program for veterans is outdated and designed for peacetime service in the Armed Forces.

(5) The people of the United States greatly value military service and recognize the difficult challenges involved in readjusting to civilian life after wartime service in the Armed Forces.

(6) It is in the national interest for the United States to provide veterans who served on active duty in the Armed Forces after September 11, 2001, with enhanced educational assistance benefits that are worthy of such service and are commensurate with the educational assistance benefits provided by a grateful Nation to veterans of World War II.

By Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. BIDEN, and Mr. OBAMA):

S. 23. A bill to promote renewable fuel and energy security of the United States, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, over the past several years, our national energy security has deteriorated rapidly. Petroleum and natural gas prices have gone up and appear to be staying up. Almost daily, we hear projections of increased electricity bills for our families and for our country. The environmental impacts of energy use, especially from autos and power plants, are still a major health concern.

The evidence of climate change is absolutely clear and very ominous, especially in the disappearance of the Arctic ice sheets and the increasing intensity of storms. We know that combustion of fossil fuels is the primary contributor of the anthropogenic greenhouse gases that drive this global warming.

Despite these negative consequences, our dependence on petroleum is rising steadily, and we are importing over 60 percent of that petroleum from foreign sources, many of whom are politically unstable or unfriendly to the United States. In short, we need to initiate a major transition of our energy sector, to one that is far more efficient, is much less reliant on fossil fuels and imported oil, and is utilizing vastly more domestically produced renewable energy.

We have seen waxing and waning concerns about our national energy economy now for over 30 years. Many of us have believed all along that we should be doing more to promote energy efficiency and to accelerate the development and use of clean, domestic renewable energy, but during most of that time, cheap energy supplies have lulled us into relatively minimal actions. Over the past three years, however, there has been an increasingly acute awareness of the dire nature of our overall energy situation. It is now clear that our energy situation is a serious threat not only to our economy but to our national security.

We can no longer postpone action.
OBAMA of Illinois, in introducing the Biofuels Security Act of 2007. This bill directly addresses one of the most critical pieces of a sound national energy transition policy. It charts a clear path forward for significantly increasing our national renewable fuels over the next 24 years, reaching a total of 30 billion gallons per year by 2020, and 60 billion gallons per year by 2030. That latter figure represents about one-third of our nation’s current annual fuel use for transportation. The production of the two most common forms of biofuels, ethanol and biodiesel, is expanding rapidly. We have reason to believe that this provision will provide strong impetus to increasing biofuels’ production and use because it is an extension of the renewable fuels standard that I promoted in the Energy Policy Act of 2005. That standard mandates using a total of 7.5 billion gallons of renewable fuels by 2012, and already we are on a path to exceed that requirement by 2008. Thus, we can be very optimistic about the success of setting these longer term and more aggressive targets.

The bill also will ensure that the vehicles to use these renewable fuels are readily available by requiring auto manufacturers over time to produce and sell increasing numbers of dual-fuel vehicles—that is, vehicles that can be fueled by gasoline or gasoline/ethanol blends. Because the turnover of vehicles on the highway takes many years, our bill requires the fraction of dual-fuel vehicles to increase from 10 percent in 2008 up to 100 percent in 2017 and beyond. In order to assure availability of alternative fuels, our bill requires installation of increasing numbers of E-85 pumps by major oil companies at fueling stations that they own or license under their brand. These pumps will dispense E-85, a blend of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline, which is a very popular renewable fuel because of its high ethanol content. The bill will require 50 percent of such owned and licensed stations to have pumps dispensing E-85 fuel by 2017. In addition, the bill includes a clause to ensure geographic distribution of such E-85 marketing stations.

Today I urge my Senate colleagues to join us in taking action to boost the transition to a cleaner, more resilient, and more secure energy economy. I request your support for this bill and its rapid enactment.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself, Mr. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. LAUTENBERG):

S. 21. A bill to amend the Safe Drinking Water Act to require a health advisory and monitoring of drinking water for perchlorate; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I am introducing a bill that would require that tap water be tested for perchlorate, and would ensure the public’s right to know about perchlorate in their drinking water. I am pleased that the senior Senator from California, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and the senior Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG, have joined as original sponsors of this measure.

This toxin is a clear and present danger to California’s and much of America’s health, and EPA needs to get moving and protect our drinking water now. But until a perchlorate tap water standard is set, something must be done.

Therefore, my perchlorate monitoring and right to know bill will require that: EPA first swiftly set a health advisory for perchlorate that protects pregnant women, infants and children; second, that EPA order monitoring of drinking water for perchlorate until an enforceable standard is set; and, third, that the public be told about perchlorate and its health effects, if it is detected in their drinking water supply.

Drinking water sources for more than 20 million Americans are contaminated with perchlorate. The Government Accountability Office (GAO) says that perchlorate contamination has been found in water and soil at almost 400 sites in the U.S., with levels ranging from 4 parts per billion to millions of parts per billion. Perchlorate has polluted 35 States and the District of Columbia, and is known to have contaminated 133 public water systems in 26 States.

As we know, perchlorate can harm human health, especially that of pregnant women and children. Therefore, all citizens whose tap water system contains perchlorate have a right to know about that contamination, and to its potential health consequences. Only if they are tested, and only if all systems are obligated to disclose the contamination and its health effects, will we be assured that the public is given the information that they deserve to protect themselves and their families.

EPA’s original 1999 rule for monitoring of tap water for unregulated contaminants ordered testing for perchlorate. Just last year, on August 22, 2005, EPA proposed to extend the requirement that perchlorate be monitored in drinking water. However, on December 20, 2006, the Administrator reversed himself and signed a final rule removing perchlorate from the list of contaminants for which monitoring is required under the Unregulated Contaminant Monitoring Regulation. I was shocked by this action.

As a result of this new rule, Americans will not be assured of up-to-date information on whether their tap water is contaminated with this toxin. Until EPA sets a tap water standard for perchlorate, at the very least we should know if it’s in our drinking water.

My bill will ensure that EPA acts swiftly to require water systems to test for and to inform the public about this threat to our health and welfare. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
PERCHLORATE

§ 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.
(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) perchlorate is a chemical that is commonly called perchlorate; (A) is a chemical used as the primary ingredient of solid rocket propellant; (B) is also used in firework, road flares, and other applications;

(2) waste from the manufacture and improper disposal of chemicals containing perchlorate is increasingly being discovered in soil and water;

(3) according to the Government Accountability Office, perchlorate contamination has been detected in water and soil at almost 400 sites in the United States, with concentration levels ranging from 4 parts per billion to millions of parts per billion;

(4) the Government Accountability Office has determined that the Environmental Protection Agency does not centrally track or monitor perchlorate detections or the status of perchlorate cleanup, so a greater number of contaminated sites may already exist;

(5) according to the Government Accountability Office, limited Environmental Protection Agency policies show that perchlorate has been found in 35 States and the District of Columbia, and it is known to have contaminated 130 public water systems in 26 States;

(6) these are likely underestimates of total drinking water exposure, as illustrated by the finding of the California Department of Health Services that perchlorate contamination sites have affected approximately 276 drinking water sources and 77 drinking water systems in the State of California alone;

(7) Food and Drug Administration scientists and other scientific researchers have detected perchlorate in the United States food supply, including in lettuce, milk, cucumbers, tomatoes, carrots, cantaloupe, wheat, and spinach, and in human breast milk;

(8)(A) perchlorate can harm human health, especially in pregnant women and children, by interfering with uptake of iodide by the thyroid gland, which is necessary to produce important hormones that help control human health and development; (B) in adults, the thyroid helps to regulate metabolism;

(C) in children, the thyroid helps to ensure proper mental and physical development; and

(D) impairment of thyroid function in expectant mothers or infants may result in effects including delayed development and decreased learning capability;

(9)(A) in October 2006, researchers from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention published the largest, most comprehensive study to date of low levels of perchlorate exposure in women, finding that— (i) significant changes existed in thyroid hormone levels in iodine-deficient women; (ii) persons who were exposed to perchlorate; and

(B) in the United States, about 36 percent of women have iodine levels equivalent to or below the levels of the women in the study described in paragraph (A);

(10) the Environmental Protection Agency has not established a health advisory or national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate; instead, established a “Drinking Water Equivalent Level” of 21.5 parts per billion for perchlorate, which— (A) does not take into consideration all routes of exposure to perchlorate; (B) has been criticized by experts as failing to sufficiently consider the body weight, age, and health status of certain pregnant women and fetuses, infants, and children; and

(C) is based primarily on a small study and does not take into account larger studies of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or other data indicating potential effects at lower perchlorate levels than previously found;

(11) on August 22, 2005 (70 Fed. Reg. 40904), the Administrator proposed to extend the requirement that perchlorate be monitored in drinking water and the final rule entitled “Unregulated Contaminant Monitoring Regulation (UCMR) for Public Water Systems Revisions” promulgated pursuant to section 1414(a)(2) of the Safe Drinking Water Act (42 U.S.C. 300(a)(2)) and

(12) on December 20, 2006, the Administrator signed a final rule removing perchlorate from the list of contaminants for which monitoring is required under the final rule entitled “Unregulated Contaminant Monitoring Regulation (UCMR) for Public Water System Revisions” (72 Fed. Reg. 368 (January 4, 2007)).

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to require the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency—

(1) to establish, not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, a health advisory that— (i)(A) is fully protective of, and considers, the body weight and exposure patterns of pregnant women, fetuses, newborns, and children;

(ii) provides an adequate margin of safety; and

(C) takes into account all routes of exposure to perchlorate;

(2) to promulgate, not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, a final regulation requiring monitoring for perchlorate in drinking water; and

(3) to ensure the right of the public to know about perchlorate in drinking water by requiring that consumer confidence reports disclose the presence of any perchlorate in drinking water, and the potential health risks of exposure to perchlorate in drinking water, consistent with guidance issued by the Administrator.

SEC. 3. MONITORING AND HEALTH ADVISORY FOR PERCHLORATE.
Section 1412(b)(12) of the Safe Drinking Water Act (42 U.S.C. 300g-11(b)(12)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(3) (C) Perchlorate.—

(i) Health Advisory.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this subparagraph, the Administrator shall publish a health advisory for perchlorate that fully protects, with an adequate margin of safety, the health of vulnerable persons (including pregnant women, fetuses, newborns, and children), considering body weight and exposure patterns and all routes of exposure.

(ii) Monitoring.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall propose (not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this subparagraph) and promulgate (not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this subparagraph) a final regulation requiring—

(aa) each public water system serving more than 10,000 individuals to monitor for perchlorate beginning not later than October 31, 2007; and

(bb) the collection of a representative sample of public water systems serving 10,000 or fewer individuals or fewer to monitor for perchlorate in accordance with section 1414(a)(2).

(iii) Disclosure.—The regulation shall be in effect unless and until monitoring for perchlorate is required under a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate.

(2) Consumer confidence reports.—Each consumer confidence report issued under section 1414(g) shall disclose the presence of any perchlorate in drinking water, and the potential health risks of exposure to perchlorate in drinking water, consistent with guidance issued by the Administrator.

By Mr. KOHL (for himself and Mr. LEAHY):
S. 25. A bill to amend the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to establish requirements for certain petitions submitted to the Food and Drug Administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.
Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise today on the first day of this new Congress to introduce the Citizen Petition Fairness and Accuracy Act of 2007. This legislation will help speed the introduction of cost-saving generic drugs by preventing abuses of the Food and Drug Administration citizen petition process.
Consumers continue to suffer all across our country from the high—and ever-rising—costs of prescription drugs. A recent independent study found that prescription drug spending has more than quadrupled since 1990, and now accounts for 11 percent of all health care spending. At the same time, the pharmaceutical industry is one of the most profitable industries in the world, returning more than 15 percent on their investments.

One key method to bring prescription drug prices down is to promote the introduction of generic alternatives to expensive brand name drugs. Consumers realize substantial savings once generic drugs enter the market. Generic drugs cost on average 63 percent less than their brand-name equivalents. One study estimates that every 1 percent increase in the use of generic drugs could save $4 billion in health care costs.

This is why I have been so active in pursuing legislation designed to combat practices which impede the introduction of generic drugs. The legislation I introduce today, which I first introduced last year with Senator LEAHY in last Congress, targets one particularly pernicious practice by brand name drug companies to impede or block the marketing of generic drugs—the abuse of the FDA citizen petition process.

FDA rules permit any person to file a so-called “citizen petition” to raise concerns about the safety or efficacy of a generic drug that a manufacturer is seeking FDA approval to bring to market. While this citizen petition process was put in place for a laudable purpose, unfortunately in recent years it has been abused by frivolous petitions submitted by brand name drug manufacturers (or individuals or their behest) whose only purpose is to delay the introduction of generic competition. The FDA has a policy of not granting any new generic manufacturer's drug application until after it has considered and evaluated any citizen petitions regarding that drug. The process of resolving a citizen petition (even if ultimately found to be groundless) can delay the approval by months or years. Indeed, brand-name drug manufacturers often wait to file citizen petitions until just before the FDA is about to grant the application to market the new generic drug solely for the purpose of delaying the introduction of the generic competitor for the maximum amount of time possible. This gaming of the system should not be tolerated.

In recent years FDA officials have expressed serious concerns about the abuse of the citizen petition process. In 2005, FDA Chief Counsel Sheldon Bradshaw noted that “[t]he citizen petition process is in some cases being abused. Sometimes, stakeholders try to use this mechanism to unnecessarily delay approval of a petition or the petitioner’s product.” He added that he found it “particularly troublesome” that he had seen several examples of citizen petitions that appear designed not to raise timely concerns with respect to the legality or science of approval of a drug application, but rather to delay approval by compelling the agency to take the time to consider the arguments raised in the petition, regardless of their merits, and regardless of whether the requester could have made those very arguments months and months before.”

And a simple look at the statistics gives credence to these concerns. Of the 21 citizen petitions for which the FDA has reached a decision since 2003, 20—or 95 percent of them—have been found to be without merit. Of these, ten were identified as “eleventh hour petitions”, defined as those filed less than 6 months prior to the estimated entry of the generic drug into the market. Of these ten “eleventh hour petitions” were found to have merit, but each caused unnecessary delays in the marketing of the generic drug by months or over a year, causing consumers to spend millions and millions of dollars for their prescription drugs than they would have spent without these abusive filings.

Despite the expense these frivolous citizen petitions cause consumers and the FDA under current law the government has absolutely no ability to sanction or penalize those who abuse the citizen petition process, or who file citizen petitions simply to keep competition off the market. Our legislation will correct this obvious shortcoming and give the Department of Health and Human Services—the FDA’s parent agency the power to sanction those who abuse the process.

Our bill will, for the first time, require all those who file citizen petitions to affirm certain basic facts about the truthfulness and good faith of the petition, similar to what is required of every litigant who makes a filing in court. The party filing the citizen petition will be required to affirm that the petition is well grounded in fact and warranted by law; is not submitted for an improper purpose, such as to harass or cause unnecessary delay in approval of competing drugs; does not contain a materially false, misleading, or fraudulent statement. The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services is empowered to investigate a citizen petition to determine if any of these principles were violated. If any of these principles were violated, a petition is submitted for an improper purpose, contained false or misleading statements. Further, the Secretary is authorized to penalize anyone found to have submitted an abusive citizen petition. Possible sanctions include a fine up to one million dollars, a suspension or permanent revocation of the right of the violator to file future citizens’ petition, and a dismissal of the petition at issue. HHS is also authorized to refer the matter to the Federal Trade Commission so that the FTC can undertake its own investigation as to the competitive consequences of the frivolous petition and take any action it finds appropriate. Finally, the legislation gives credence to these concerns. Of the 21 citizen petitions be adjudicated within six months of filing, which will put an end to excessive delays in bringing needed generic drugs to market because of the filings of these petitions.

While our bill will not have any effect on any person filing a truly meritorious citizen petition, this legislation will serve as a strong deterrent to attempts by brand name drug manufacturers or any other party that seeks to abuse the citizen petition process to thwart competition. It will thereby remove one significant obstacle exploiting by brand name drug companies to prevent or delay the introduction of generic drugs. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself and Mr. BOXER):

S. A bill to authorize the implementation of the San Joaquin River Restoration Settlement; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that will bring to a close 18 years of litigation between the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Friant Water Users Federation, and the U.S. Department of the Interior. It is identical to the bill that we introduced in the waning days of the 106th Congress.

This historic bill will enact a settlement that restores California’s second longest river, the San Joaquin, while maintaining a stable water supply for the farmers who have made the Valley the richest agricultural area in the world.

Without this consensus resolution to a long-running western water battle the parties will continue the fight, resulting in a court imposed settlement.

To my knowledge, every farmer and every environmentalist who has considered the possibility of continued litigation believes that an outcome imposed by a judge is likely to be worse for everyone on all counts: more costly, riskier for the farmers, and less beneficial for the environment.

The settlement provides a framework that the affected interests can accept. As a result, this legislation has the strong support of the Bush Administration, the Schwarzenegger Administration, the environmental and fishing communities and numerous California water districts, including all 22 Friant water districts that have been part of the litigation.

In announcing the signing of this San Joaquin River settlement in September, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior praised it as a “monumental agreement.” And when the Federal Court then approved the settlement in late October, Secretary of the Interior Dirk Kempthorne further praised Settlement for launching “one of the largest environmental restoration projects in California’s history.” The Secretary further observed that, “This settlement closes a long chapter of conflict and uncertainty in California’s San Joaquin Valley... and open[s] a new chapter of environmental restoration and water supply certainty for the farmers and their communities.”

I share the Secretary’s strong support for this balanced and historic agreement, and it is my honor to join with Senator Boxer and a bipartisan group of California House Members in introducing legislation to approve and authorize this Settlement.

The legislation indicates how the settlement forges a compromise that is going to be implemented. It involves the Departments of the Interior and Commerce, and essentially gives the Secretary of the Interior the additional authority to: take the actions to restore the San Joaquin River; reintroduce the California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook Salmon; minimize water supply impacts on Friant water districts; and avoid reductions in water supply for third-party water contractors.

One of the major benefits of this settlement is the restoration of a long-lost salmon fishery. The return of one of California’s most important salmon runs will create significant benefits for local communities in the San Joaquin Valley, allowing beleaguered fishing industry while improving recreation and quality of life.

The legislation provides for improvements to the San Joaquin river channel to allow salmon restoration to begin in 2002. Beginning that year, the river would see an annual flow regime mandated by the Settlement, with pulses of additional water in the spring and greater flows available in wetter years. There is flexibility to add or subtract up to 10 percent from the annual flows, as the best science dictates.

A visitor to the revitalized river channel in a decade will find an entirely different place providing recreation, with full towns like Mendota, and a refuge for residents of larger cities like Fresno.

The legislation I am introducing today includes provisions to benefit the farmers of the San Joaquin Valley as well as the salmon. In wet years, Friant contractors can purchase surplus flows at $10 per acre-foot for use in dry years, far less than the approximately $35 per acre-foot that they would otherwise pay for this water.

The new water they will be authorized to recirculate new restoration flows from the Delta via the California aqueduct and the Cross-Valley Canal to provide additional supply for Friant. Today’s legislation also includes substantial protections for other water districts in California who were not party to the original settlement negotiations. These other water contractors will be able to avoid all but the smallest water impacts as a result of the settlement, except on a voluntary basis.

I would like to emphasize that the Federal funding in the bill is for implementation of both the Restoration Goal to reestablish a salmon fishery in the river, and the Water Management Goal to avoid or minimize water supply impacts on other water districts. It is critical to recognize that these efforts are of equal importance.

At the end of the day, I believe that this agreement is something that we can all feel very proud of, and I urge my colleagues in the Senate to move quickly to approve this legislation and provide the Administration the authority it needs to fully carry out its... legal obligations and the extensive restoration opportunities under the settlement. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Everywhere I go in Wisconsin, I see how prescription drug costs are a drain on seniors, families, and businesses that are struggling to pay their health care bills. They want help now and we can respond by expanding access to generic drugs. Generics, which on average cost 80 percent less than the brand-name counterparts, are a big part of the solution to health care costs that are spiraling out of control.

The private and public sectors, as well as individuals, are seeking relief from high drug costs, and Senate Committee on Finance Chairman Ron Wyden and I have heard some remarkable success stories from some who have turned to generic drugs.

Last year, General Motors testified that, in 2005, they spent $1.9 billion dollars on prescription drugs, 40 percent of their total health care spending. Their program to use generics first, when a generic drug is available, saves GM nearly $400 million a year.

Last year, millions of seniors exceeded the initial $2,250 Medicare drug benefit and fell into the “donut hole,” where they had to pay the full price of their drugs. Using generics as a first-line solution with equally effective, generic drugs will keep seniors out of the “donut hole” longer and help them survive the gap in coverage.

Generic drugs approved by the FDA must meet the same rigorous standards for safety and effectiveness as brand-name drugs. In addition to being safe and effective, the generic must have the same active ingredient or ingredients, be the same strength, and have the same labeling for the approved uses as the brand drug. Generics perform the same as their respective brand name product.

Modeled after similar provisions in many state-administered Medicaid programs, this measure would reduce the high costs of the new prescription drug program and keep seniors from reaching the current $2,250 “donut hole” by guiding beneficiaries toward cost-saving generic drug alternatives.

We know generic drugs have the potential to save seniors thousands of dollars, and curb health spending for the Federal Government, employers, and families. And every year, more blockbuster drugs are coming off patent, setting up the potential for billions of dollars in savings. This legislation is one piece of a larger agenda I’m pushing to remove the obstacles that prevent generics from getting to market, and making sure that every senior, every family, every business, and every government program knows the value of generics and uses them to bring costs down. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
It is true that the “Generics First Act of 2007” was passed.

SEC. 2. REQUIRED USE OF GENERIC DRUGS UNDER THE MEDICARE PART D PRESCRIPTION DRUG PROGRAM.

(a) In general.—Section 1860D-2(e)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-102(e)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(C) NON-GENERIC DRUGS UNLESS CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ARE MET.—

(1) In general.—Such term does not include a drug that is a non-generic drug unless—

(II) the nongeneric drug is determined to be medically necessary by the individual prescribing the drug and prior authorization for the drug is obtained from the Secretary.

(2) Definitions.—In this subparagraph:

(I) GENERIC DRUG.—The term ‘generic drug’ means a drug that is the subject of an application approved under subsection (b)(2) or (j) of section 505 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, for which the Secretary has made a determination that the drug is the therapeutic equivalent of a listed drug under section 505(k)(7) of such Act.

(II) NONGENERIC DRUG.—The term “nongeneric drug” means a drug that is the subject of an application approved under—

(aa) section 505(b)(1) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; or

(bb) section 505(b)(2) of such Act and that has been determined to be not therapeutically equivalent to any listed drug.”.

(b) Effective date.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to drugs dispensed on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

By Ms. LANDRIEU:

S. 29. A bill to clarify the tax treatment of certain payments made to homeowners by the Louisiana Recovery Authority and the Mississippi Development Authority; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, at the end of the 109th Congress, I learned that the Internal Revenue Service had a tax surprise for citizens in my state of Louisiana and in Mississippi who are trying to rebuild after Katrina. This tax surprise will set back our recovery and discourage our citizens from coming home.

Let me explain to my colleagues what I am talking about. Both Louisiana and Mississippi have established programs to help families rebuild their homes and their lives after Katrina and Rita. Congress appropriated the money for these initiatives—more than $10 billion in all, and we are very grateful for the assistance. The Louisiana program is called the “Road Home” and it is administered by the Louisiana Recovery Authority (LRA). The program is now starting to get going. Homeowners are eligible to receive grants from the Road Home of up to $150,000 to help them rebuild or repair their homes. Rental properties are also eligible. Grants can also be used to buy out homes. The Louisianians who were displaced by the storms want to go home and the Road Home program will get them there.

But the IRS has dug a big pothole in the middle of the Road Home by making some of these payments taxable. The worst tax surprise works by requiring that if a hurricane victim who claimed a casualty loss deduction for damage to their home on their tax return for 2005 will have to reduce that loss by the amount of any payment from the LRA. So if they had their taxes reduced by more than $10,000 they have to essentially eliminate any benefit of the earlier casualty loss deduction. Their taxes will go up.

Now I realize that under normal circumstances, when a person’s home burns down, the roof caves in, or they are a victim of theft, they can take a casualty loss deduction, provided it meets certain requirements. The loss must exceed ten percent of the taxpayer’s adjusted gross income with a per loss floor of $100. In some circumstances, taxpayers are permitted to include a current-year casualty loss on an amended prior year return.

Immediately after Katrina, we enacted the Katrina Emergency Tax Relief Act (KETRA) that suspended the ten percent floor for casualty losses incurred in the Hurricane Katrina disaster area, including those claimed on amended returns. The purpose of the change in KETRA was simple: we wanted to put money in the hands of Katrina victims as quickly as possible. We essentially encouraged taxpayers to take this casualty loss, even by amending a past return. The IRS would then provide them with a refund.

This was a very helpful proposal in the days immediately following Katrina. Mr. President. Hurricane victims needed that money. If you had lost your home, that money could help you pay for a place to live. Many hurricane victims lost their jobs and needed the money to see them through until they started working again. They used the money to begin the rebuilding of their lives.

Congress encouraged people to take the new deduction by changing the law. Now the IRS wants to take it back.

I fully understand the policy behind what the IRS is doing. Casualty loss deductions are normally reduced by any insurance or other recovery they make on the loss. In fact, at the time the taxpayer makes the deduction he or she is supposed to reduce the amount of the loss by any insurance recovery they reasonably expect to receive. If you receive a large payment before you expected it, you must claim it on your income tax return when you receive it.

The problem is that this policy will encourage people to leave Louisiana. If you took the casualty loss on your return and you receive a $100,000 Road Home payment to rebuild your house, you will have a tax consequence. But if you took the casualty loss and sold your house to the LRA for the $150,000 payment, it is treated like a home sale and there is no tax. This policy creates a disincentive to recovery. The Road Home will become the Road Out.

Congress has done a tremendous job passing legislation to help victims recover and the rebuilding of the Gulf Coast. At the end of the last session we passed a tax extenders bill that contained a two-year extension of the bonus depreciation for investment in the most seriously damaged areas in the GO Zone. That investment is supposed to attract businesses and people to Louisiana and the Gulf. The IRS’s actions will only keep people away. We should not put road blocks in the way of the Road Home.

Today, I am introducing legislation to eliminate this road block to our recovery and to clarify that Road Home payments are not to be taxed. The hurricanes in 2005 were remarkable events causing unprecedented damage. As Congress has done in the past, we must continue to respond in unprecedented and innovative ways. I encourage my colleagues to support this bill.

By Mr. BAUCUS:

S. 41. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide incentives to improve America’s research competitiveness, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, back in 1998, I worked with my colleague Senator Thomson and other members of Congress to include a current-year casualty loss floor in KETRA. Today, I am introducing legislation to improve our tax laws to encourage innovation and R&D investment, similar to what we did in 1998 to help the victims of Hurricane Katrina and Rita.

Mr. President, back in 1992, Marshall McLuhan wrote that the new electronic interdependence recreates the world in the image of a global village. Certainly, 40 years later, that concept is truer than ever. As we prepare for the future in this global village, we need to affirm America’s leadership role in the world.

The United States accounts for one-third of the world’s spending on scientific research and development, ranking first among all countries. While this is impressive, relative to GDP, though, the United States falls to sixth place. And the trends show that maintaining American leadership in the future depends on increased commitment to research and science.

Asia has recognized this. Asia is plowing more funding into science and education. China, in particular, understands that technological advancement means security, independence, and economic growth. Spending on research and development has increased by 140 percent in China, Korea and Taiwan. In America, it has increased by only 34 percent.

Asia’s commitment is already paying off. More than a hundred Fortune 500 companies have opened research centers in India and China. I have visited some of them. I was impressed with the level of skill of the workers I met there.

China’s commitment to research, at $60 billion in expenditures, is dramatic. In the last few years, China has doubled the share of its economy that it invests in research. China intends to double the amount committed to basic research in the next decade. Currently, only America beats out China in numbers of researchers in the workforce.

Today, I am pleased to introduce the Research Competitiveness Act of 2007. This legislation will impact our research competitiveness in four major areas. All four address incentives in our tax code. Government also supports research through federal spending. But I am not addressing those areas today.

First, it improves and simplifies the credit for applied research in section 41 of the tax code. This credit has grown to be overly complex, both for taxpayers and the IRS. Beginning in 2008, my bill would create a simpler 20 percent credit for qualifying research expenses that exceed 50 percent of the average expenses for the prior 3 years.

And just as important: The bill makes the credit permanent. Because the credit has been temporary, it has simply not been as effective as it could be. Since its creation in 1981, it has been extended 11 times. Congress even allowed it to lapse during one period.

The credit last expired in December of 2005. After much consternation and delay, Congress passed a two-year extension just last month, extending the credit for 2006 and 2007. These temporary extensions have taken their toll on taxpayers. In 2005, the experts at the Joint Committee on Taxation wrote: "Perpetual credit only, known as the R&E credit, is among taxpayers regards its temporary nature." Joint Tax went on to say, "A credit of longer duration may more successfully induce additional research than would a temporary credit, even if the temporary credit is periodically renewed."

Currently, there are three different ways to claim a tax credit for qualifying research expenses. First, the "traditional" credit relies on incremental expenses compared to a mid-1980s base period. Second, the "alternative incremental" credit measures the increase in research over the average of the prior 4 years.

Both of these credits have base periods involving gross receipts. Under the new tax bill enacted last month, a third formula was created, which does not rely on gross receipts and is available only for 2007. My bill simplifies these credits by using this new credit only, known as the "Alternative Simplified Credit," based on research spending without reference to gross receipts. The current formulas hurt companies that have fluctuating sales. And it hurts companies that take on a new line of business not dependent on research.

This new, simpler formula in my bill would not start until 2008. That start date would give companies plenty of time to adjust their accounting.

The main complaint about the existing credits is that they are very complex, particularly the reference to the 20-year-old base period. This base period creates problems for the taxpayer in trying to calculate the credit. And it creates problems for the IRS in trying to administer and audit those claims.

The new credit focuses only on expenses, not gross receipts. And it is still an incremental credit, so that companies that stuck to increase research spending over time. Further, this bill adds a mandate for a Treasury study to look at substantiation issues and ensure that current recordkeeping requirements assist the IRS without unduly burdening the taxpayer.

A tax credit is an effective way to promote R&E. A report by the Congressional Research Service finds that without government support, investment in R&E would fall short of the socially optimal amount. Thus CRS endorses Government policies to boost private sector R&E.

Also, American workers who are engaged in R&E activities benefit from some of the most intellectually stimulating, high-paying, high-skilled jobs in the economy. My own State of Montana has excellent examples of this economic activity. During the 1990s, about 400 establishments in Montana provided high-technology services, at an average of 3,000 jobs. These R&E jobs paid nearly 80 percent more than the average private sector wage, which was less than $20,000 a year during the same period. Many of these jobs would never have been created without the assistance of the R&E credit.

My research bill would also establish a uniform reimbursement rate for all contract and consortia R&E. It would provide that 80 percent of expenses for research performed for the taxpayer by other parties count as qualifying research expenses under the regular credit.

Currently, when a taxpayer pays someone else to perform research for the taxpayer, the taxpayer can claim the R&E credit on only a portion of the expenses, based on how much the taxpayer can include for the research credit. The lower amount is meant to assure overhead expenses that normally do not qualify for the R&E credit are not counted. Different rates, however, create unnecessary complexity. Therefore, my bill creates a uniform rate of 80 percent.

The second major research area that this bill addresses is the need to enhance and simplify the credit for basic research performed by universities and other entities committed to basic research. And it benefits the companies or individuals who donate to them. My bill provides that payments under the university basic research credit would count as contractor expenses at the 80 percent rate.

The current formula for calculating the university basic research credit—defined as research "for the advancement of science with no specific commercial objective"—is more complex than the regular traditional R&E credit. Because of this complexity, this credit costs less than one-half of 1 percent of the cost of the regular R&E credit. It is completely underutilized. It needs to be simplified to encourage businesses to give more for basic research.

American universities have been powerful engines of scientific discovery. To maintain our preeminent global position in basic research, America relies on sustained high levels of basic research funding and the ability to recruit the most talented students in the world. The gestation of scientific discovery takes a long time. We cannot know the commercial applications of a discovery. But America leads the world in biotechnology today because of support for basic research in chemistry and physics in the 1960s. Maintaining a commitment to scientific inquiry, therefore, must be part of our vision for sustained competitiveness.

Translating university discoveries into commercial products also takes innovation, capital, and risk. The Center for Strategic and International Studies has asked what kind of government intervention can maintain technological leadership. One source of technological innovation that provides America with comparative advantage is the combination of university research programs, entrepreneurs, and risk capital from venture capitalists, corporations, or governments. Research clusters around Silicon Valley and North Carolina's Research Triangle exemplify this sort of combination.

The National Academies reached a similar conclusion in a 2002 review of the National Nanotechnology Initiative. In a report, they wrote: "To enhance the transition from basic to applied research, the committee recommends that industrial partnerships be stimulated and nurtured to help accelerate the commercialization of national nanotechnology developments."

To further this goal, the third major area my bill addresses is the creation of research parks. This part of the bill would benefit state and local governments and universities that want to create research centers for businesses incubating scientific discoveries with promise for commercial development.

Stanford created the nation's first high-tech research park in 1951, in response to the demand for industrial land near the university and an emerging electronics industry tied closely to the School of Engineering. The Stanford Research Park traces its origins to a business started with $538 in a Palo Alto garage by two men named Bill Hewlett and Dave Packard. The Park is now home to 140 companies in electronics, software, biotechnology, and other high tech fields.

Similarly, the North Carolina Research Triangle was founded in 1959 by universities, government, and business leaders with money from private contributions. It now has 112 research and development organizations, 37,600 employees, and capital investment of more than $2.7 billion. More recently, Virginia has fostered a research park now housing 53 private-sector companies, nonprofits, VCU research institutes, and state laboratories. The Virginia park employs more than 1,300 people.

The creation of these parks would seem to be an obvious choice. But it takes a significant commitment from a range of sources to bring them into being. To foster the creation and expansion of these successful parks, my bill will encourage their creation through the use of tax-exempt bond financing. Allowing tax-exempt bond authority would bring down the cost to establish such parks.

Foreign countries are emulating this successful formula. They are establishing high-tech clusters through government and university partnerships with private industry.

Back in 2000, a partnership was formed to foster TechRanch to assist Montana-based research institutions in their efforts to commercialize research. But TechRanch is desperately in need of some new high-tech facilities. Counsel have notified their states to see how my bill could be helpful in fostering more successful ventures.

A related item is a small fix to help universities that use tax-exempt bonds to build research facilities primarily for federal research in the basic or fundamental research area. Some of these facilities housing federal research—mostly NIH and NSF funded projects—are in danger of losing their tax-exempt bond status. Counsel have notified some state officials that they may be running afoul of a prohibition on “private use” in the tax code, because one private party has a superior claim to others in the use of inventions that result from federal research.

The complication comes from a 1980 law. In 1980, Congress enacted the Patent and Trademark Law Amendments Act, also known as the Bayh-Dole Act. The Bayh-Dole Act requires the Federal Government to retain a non-exclusive, royalty-right free right on any discovery. In order to foster more basic research through Federal-state-university partnerships, we need to clarify that this provision of the Bayh-Dole act does not apply to these bonds to lose their tax-exempt status. And my bill directs the Treasury Department to do so. I understand that the Treasury Department is aware of this significant concern. Whether or not Congress enacts my legislation, I hope that the Treasury Department will clarify the situation soon.

The fourth major area that my bill addresses is innovation at the small business level. Last year, representatives from several nanotechnology companies came to visit me. They told me that their greatest problem was surviving what they called the “valley of death.”

That’s what they called the first few years of business, when an entrepreneur has a promising technology but little money to test or develop it. Many businesses simply do not survive the “valley of death.” I believe that Congress should find a way to assist these businesses with promising technology.

Nanotechnology, for instance, shows much promise. According to research, over the next decade, nanotechnology will affect most manufactured goods. As stated in Senate testimony by one National Science Foundation official last year, “Nanotechnology is truly our next great frontier in science and engineering.” It took me a while to understand just what nanotechnology is. But it is basically the control of things at very, very small dimensions. By understanding and controlling at that dimension, people can find new and unique applications. These applications range from common consumer products—such as making our sunblocks better—to improving disease-fighting medicines—to designing more fuel-efficient cars.

So, to help these small businesses convert their promising science into successful businesses, my bill would establish tax credits for investments in qualifying small technology innovation companies. These struggling start-up ventures often cannot utilize existing incentives in the tax code—like the R&E tax credit—because they have no tax liability and may have little income for the first few years. They need access to cheap capital to get through those first few research-intensive years.

The credit in my bill would be similar to the existing and successful New Markets Tax Credit. The New Markets Credit allows dollars of investment to low-income communities across the country. In my bill, entities with some expertise and knowledge of research would receive an allocation from Treasury to analyze and select promising research investments. These investment entities would then target small business with promising technologies that focus the majority of their expenditures on activity qualifying as research expenses under the R&E credit.

In sum, my bill would boost both applied and basic research. It would boost research by businesses big and small. And it would foster research by for-profit and non-profits alike. McLaughan’s quote about the global village was taken by many at the time as a wake-up call to a changing world. Since then, many more leaders in this village have emerged. Let us work to see that the scientific and technological advancement is discovered here in America. Only through continued commitment to research can We ensure that it is.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 53. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide health care practitioners in rural areas with tax credits to develop preventive health care, including both physical and mental care, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Rural Preventive Health Care Training Act, a bill that responds to the dire need of our rural communities for quality health care and disease prevention programs. Almost one fourth of Americans live in rural areas and frequently lack access to adequate physical and mental health care. As many as 21 million of the 34 million people living in underserved rural areas are without access to a primary care provider. Even in areas where providers do exist, numerous limits to access, such as geography, distance, lack of transportation, and lack of knowledge about available resources. Due to the diversity of rural populations, language and cultural obstacles are often a factor in the access to medical care.

Compound these problems with limited financial resources, and the result is that many Americans living in rural communities go without vital health care, especially preventive health care. Children fail to receive immunizations and routine checkups. Preventable illnesses and injuries occur needlessly, and lead to expensive hospitalizations. Early symptoms of emotional problems and substance abuse go undetected, and often develop into full-blown disorders.

An Institute of Medicine (IOM) report entitled, “Reducing Risks for Mental Disorders: Frontiers for Preventive Intervention Research,” highlights the need for preventive care for all health problems. The training of health care providers in prevention is crucial in order to meet the demand for care in underserved areas. Currently, rural health care providers lack preventive care training opportunities.

Interdisciplinary preventive training of rural health care providers must be encouraged. Through such training, rural health care providers can build a strong educational foundation from the behavioral, biological, and psychological sciences. Interdisciplinary team prevention training will also facilitate operations at sites with both health and mental health clinics by facilitating routine consultation between groups and therefore making the mental health disciplines and their services as part of the health care team will contribute to the overall health of rural communities. The Rural Preventive Health Care Training Act would implement the risk-reduction model described in the IOM study. This model is based on the identification of risk factors and targets specific interventions for those risk factors. The human suffering caused by these risk factors is immense, and places a huge financial burden on communities, families, and individuals. By implementing preventive measures to reduce this suffering, the potential psychological and financial savings are enormous.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 54. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to provide for coverage of services provided by nursing school clinics under State Medicaid programs; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Nursing School Clinics Act. This measure builds on our concerted efforts to provide access to quality health care in America by offering grants and incentives for nursing schools to establish primary care clinics in underserved areas where additional medical services are most needed. In addition, this measure provides additional incentive for nursing schools to enhance the scope of student training and education by providing firsthand clinical experience in primary care facilities.

Primary care clinics administered by nursing schools in a university or non-profit primary care centers developed mainly in collaboration with university schools of nursing and the communities they serve. These centers are staffed by faculty and staff who are nurse practitioners and public health nurses. Students supplement patient care while receiving preceptorships provided by college of nursing faculty and primary care physicians, often associated with academic institutions, who serve as advisors with nurse practitioners. To date, the comprehensive models of care provided by nursing clinics have yielded excellent results, including significantly fewer emergency room visits, fewer hospital inpatient days, and less use of specialists, as compared to conventional primary health care.

This bill reinforces the principle of combining health care delivery in underserved areas with the education of advanced practice nurses. To accomplish these objectives, Title XIX of the Social Security Act would be amended to designate that the services provided in these nursing school clinics are reimbursable under Medicaid. The combination of grants and the provision of Medicaid reimbursement furnishes the financial incentives for clinic operators to establish the clinics.

In order to meet the increasing challenges of bringing cost-effective and quality health care to all Americans, we must consider a wide range of proposals, both large and small. Most importantly, we must approach the issue of health care with creativity and determination, ensuring that all reasonable avenues are pursued. Nurses have always been an integral part of health care delivery. The Nursing School Clinics Act recognizes the central role nurses can perform as care givers to the medically underserved.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. KYL, and Mr. CRAPO):

S. 55. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the individual alternative minimum tax; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, there is a monster in the tax code. Like Frankenstein, the Alternative Minimum Tax brings back to life higher taxes. Higher taxes that families had been told not to worry about because they were ‘‘offset’’ by the personal and family tax credits. It is a monster that really cannot be improved. It cannot be made to work right. It is time to draw the curtain on this monster.

That is why I am pleased to join with my friend Chuck Grassley, and our fellow Committee colleagues, Senators Schumer, Kyl, and Crapo to introduce legislation that will repeal the individual AMT. Our bill simply says that beginning January 1, 2007, individuals will owe zero dollars under the AMT. Further, our bill provides that individuals with AMT credits can continue to use those credits up to 90 percent of their regular tax liability.

If we don't act, in 2007, the family-unfriendly AMT will hit middle-income families earning $61,000 with three children. What was once meant to ensure that a handful of millionaires did not evade taxes, will hit middle-income families. What was once meant to ensure that 14 million children and families pay a higher tax because of the AMT. Further, our bill provides that if we repeal the AMT, the wealthiest individuals will owe zero dollars under the AMT. That is why I am pleased to join with our Committee colleagues, Senators Inouye, Wyden and Snowe to introduce a bill that will repeal the AMT.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 56. A bill to provide relief to the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada for settlement of certain claims against the United States; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, almost twelve years ago, I stood before you to introduce a bill "to provide an opportunity for the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada to have the merits of their claim determined by the United States Court of Federal Claims."

That bill was introduced as Senate Resolution 223, which referred the Pottawatomi's claim to the Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims and required the Chief Judge to report back to the Senate and provide sufficient findings of fact and conclusions of law to enable the Congress to determine whether the claim of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada is legal or equitable in nature, and the amount of damages, if any, which may be legally or equitably due from the United States.

Seven years ago, the Chief Judge of the Court of Federal Claims reported back that the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada has a legitimate and credible legal claim. Thereafter, by settlement stipulation, the United States has worked with the Pottawatomi to make the settlement "fair, just and equitable" to settle the claims of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada for the sum of $1,830,000. This settlement amount was reached by the parties after seven years of extensive, fact-intensive litigation. Independently, the court concluded that the settlement amount is "not a gratuity" and that the "settlement was predicated on a credible legal claim."

The bill I introduce today is to authorize the appropriation of those funds that the United States has concluded would be "fair, just and equitable" to settle the claim. If enacted, this bill will finally achieve a measure of justice for a tribal nation that has far too long been denied.

For the information of our colleagues, this is the historical background that informs the underlying legal claim of the Canadian Pottawatomi.

The members of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada are one of the descendant groups in interest of the historical Pottawatomi Nation and their claim originates in the latter part of the 18th century. The historical Pottawatomi Nation was aboriginal to the United States. They occupied and possessed a vast expanse in what is now the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin. From 1795 to 1833, the United States annexed most of the traditional land of the Pottawatomi Nation through a series of treaties of cession—many of these cessions were made under extreme duress and the threat of military action.

In exchange, the Pottawatomis were repeatedly made promises that the remainder of their lands would be secure and, in addition, that the United States would pay certain annuities to the Pottawatomi.

In 1829, the United States formally adopted a Federal the policy of removal—an effort to remove all Indian tribes from their traditional lands east of the Mississippi River to the west. As part of that effort, the government increasingly pressured the Pottawatomis to cede the remainder of their traditional lands—some five million acres in and around the city of Chicago and relocate themselves west. For years, the Pottawatomis were forced to leave their homes without their horses or any of their possessions other than the clothes on their backs.

In exchange for their land, the Treaty of Chicago provided that the United States would give to the Pottawatomis 5 million acres of comparable land in present-day northern Missouri. The Pottawatomis were familiar with the Missouri land, aware that it was similar to their homeland. But the Senate refused to ratify that negotiated agreement and unilaterally switched the land to five million acres. The Treaty Commissioners were sent back to acquire Pottawatomis land. The Treaty Commissioners were not present and did not assent to the cession.

By the late 1830s, the government refused payment of annuities to any Pottawatomis groups that had not removed west. In the 1860s, members of the Wisconsin Band—those still in their traditional territory and those forced to leave Canada—petitioned the Congress for the payment of their treaty annuities promised under the Treaty of Chicago and other cession treaties. By the Act of June 25, 1864 (13 Stat. 172) the Congress declared that the Wisconsin Band did not forfeit their annuities by not removing and directed that the share of the Pottawatomis Indians who had refused to relocate to the west should be retained for their use in the United States Treasury. (H.R. Rep. No. 470, 64th Cong., p. 5, as quoted on page 3 of memo dated October 7, 1949.) Nevertheless, much of the money was never paid to the Wisconsin Band.

In 1903, the Wisconsin Band—most of whom resided in three areas, the States of Michigan and Wisconsin and the Province of Ontario—petitioned the Senate once again to pay them their fair portion of annuities as required by the law and treaties. (Sen. Doc. No. 185, 57th Cong., 1st Sess.) By the Act of June 21, 1906 (34 Stat. 380), the Congress directed the Secretary of the Interior to investigate claims made by the Wisconsin Band and establish a roll of the Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis that still remained in the East. In addition, the Congress directed that the Secretary determine “the[...] [Wisconsin Bands] proportionate share of the annuities, trust funds, and other moneys paid to or expended for the tribe to which they belong in which the claimant Indians have not shared, [and] the amount of such monies retained in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the claimant Indians as directed the provision of the Act of June 25, 1864.

In order to carry out the 1906 Act, the Secretary directed Dr. W.M. Wooster to conduct an enumeration of Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis in both the United States and Canada. Dr. Wooster documented 2007 Wisconsin Pottawatomis: 457 in Wisconsin and 1,550 in Canada. He also concluded that the proportionate share of annuities for the Pottawatomis in Wisconsin and Michigan was $477,339 and that the proportionate share of annuities due the Pottawatomis in Canada was $475,339. The Secretary thereafter enacted a series of appropriation Acts from June 30, 1913 to May 29, 1928 to satisfy most of money owed to those Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis residing in the United States. However, the Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis who resided in Canada were never paid their share of the tribal funds.

Since that time, the Pottawatomis Nation in Canada has diligently and continuously sought to enforce their treaty rights, although until the congressional reference, they had never been provided their day in court. In 1910, the United States and Great Britain entered into an agreement for the purpose of dealing with claims between both countries, including claims of Indian tribes within their respective jurisdictions, by creating the Pecuniary Claims Tribunal. From 1910 to 1938, the Pottawatomis Nation in Canada diligently pursued the claim heard in this international forum. Overlooked for more pressing international matters of the period, including the intervention of World War I, the Pottawatomis then came to the U.S. Congress for redress of their claim.

In 1946, the Congress waived its sovereign immunity and established the Indian Claims Commission for the purpose of granting tribes their long delayed in court. The Indian Claims Commission Act (ICCA) granted the Commission jurisdiction over claims such as the type involved here. In 1948, the Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis from both sides of the border brought suit together in the Indian Claims Commission for recovery of damages. Hannahville Indian Community v. U.S., No. 28 (Ind. Cl. Comm. Filed May 4, 1948). Unfortunately, the Indian Claims Commission dismissed Pottawatomis Nation in Canada’s part of the claim ruling that the Commission had no jurisdiction to consider claims of Indians living outside territorial limits of the United States. Hannahville Indian Community v. U.S., 115 Ct. Cl. 823 (1950). The claim of the Wisconsin Band residing in the United States that was filed in the Indian Claims Commission was finally decided in favor of the Wisconsin Band in 1963. Hannahville Indian Community v. United States, 4 Ct. Cl. 445 (1963).

The Court of Claims concluded that the Wisconsin Band owed a member’s proportionate share of unpaid annuities due it under various treaties, including the Treaty of 1836 and entered judgment for the American Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis for any monies not paid. Still the Pottawatomis Nation in Canada was denied the jurisdictional limits of the ICCA.

Undaunted, the Pottawatomis Nation in Canada came to the Senate and after careful consideration, we finally gave them their long-awaited day in court through the congressional reference process. The court has now reported back to us that their claim is meritorious and that the payment that this bill would make constitutes a “fair, just and equitable” resolution to this claim.

The Pottawatomis Nation in Canada has sought justice for over 150 years. They have done all that we asked in order to establish their claim. Now it is gently sought to have their share of a long delayed promise our government made so many years ago. It will not correct all the wrongs of the past, but it is a demonstration that this government is willing to admit when it has left its obligations and that the United States is willing to do what we can to see that justice—so long delayed is not now delayed.
time frame for the independence of the Philippines. Between 1934 and final independence in 1946, the United States retained certain powers over the Philippines including the right to call military forces organized by the newly-formed Commonwealth government into the service of the United States Armed Forces.

The Commonwealth Army of the Philippines was called to serve with the United States Armed Forces in the Far East during World War II under President Roosevelt’s July 26, 1941 military order. The Filipinos who served to full veteran benefits by reason of their active service with our armed forces. Hundreds were wounded in battle and many hundreds more died in battle. Shortly after Japan’s surrender, the Congress enacted the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1945 for the purpose of sending Filipino troops to occupy enemy lands, and to oversee military installations at various overseas locations. These troops were authorized to receive pay and allowances for services performed throughout the Western Pacific. Little recognition has ceased, wartime service of these troops continued as a matter of law until the end of 1946.

Despite all of their sacrifices, on February 18, 1946, the Congress passed the Rescission Act of 1946, now codified as Section 107 of Title 38 of the United States Code. The 1946 Act deemed that the service performed by these Filipino veterans would not be recognized as “active service” for the purpose of any rights, privileges, or benefits. Accordingly, Section 107 denied Filipino veterans access to health care, particularly for non-service-connected disabilities, and pension benefits.

On May 27, 1946, the Congress enacted the Second Supplemental Surplus Appropriations Rescission Act, which duplicated the language that had eliminated Filipino veterans’ benefits under the First Rescission Act. Thus, Filipino veterans who fought in the service of the United States during World War II have been precluded from receiving most of the veterans’ benefits that had been available to them before 1946, and that are available to all other veterans of our armed forces regardless of race, national origin, or citizenship status.

The Filipino Veterans Equity Act, which I introduce today, would restore the benefits due to these veterans by granting full recognition of service for the sacrifices they made during World War II. These benefits include veterans health benefits; non-service connected disability compensation, dependent indemnity compensation, death pension, and full burial benefits. Throughout the years, I have sponsored several measures to rectify the lack of appreciation: America has shown to these gallant men and women who stood in harm’s way with our American soldiers and fought the common enemy during World War II. It is time that we as a Nation recognize our long-standing history and friendship with the Philippines. Of the 120,000 that served in the Commonwealth Army during World War II, there are approximately 60,000 Filipino veterans currently residing in the United States and the Philippines. According to the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Filipino veteran population is expected to decrease to approximately 20,000 or roughly one-third of the current population by 2010.

Heroes should never be forgotten or ignored; let us not turn our backs on those who sacrificed so much. Let us instead work to repay all of these brave men for their sacrifices by providing them the veterans benefits they deserve.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR DANIEL K. INOUYE

BE THE TAX TREATMENT OF CERTAIN HOSPITAL SUPPORT ORGANIZATIONS AS QUALIFIED ORGANIZATIONS FOR PURPOSES OF DETERMINING ACQUISITION INDENTURENESS

Mr. President: The legislation I have introduced will extend to qualified teaching hospital support organizations the existing debt-financed safe harbor rule. Congress enacted that rule to support the public service activities of tax-exempt schools, universities, pension funds, and consortia of such institutions. Our teaching hospitals require similar support.

A New York Times article on June 21, 2002, described the financial problems which nonprofit hospitals are facing to modernize their facilities and meet the growing demand for charitable medical care. The problems have grown more urgent since that article appeared.

On November 22, 2006, the Wall Street Journal noted the rising numbers of uninsured patients who fill hospital emergency rooms without paying their bills. In 2005, 46.6 million Americans had no health insurance. Compounding the growing demand for charitable care, new safety and infection-prevention standards require hospitals to undertake massive improvements.

As a result, the article stated, for-profit hospitals are moving from older areas to affluent locations where residents can afford to pay for treatment. These private hospitals, the reporter pointed out, typically have no mandate for community service. In contrast, nonprofit hospitals must fulfill a community service requirement. They must stretch their resources to provide increased charitable care, update their facilities, and maintain skilled staffing. Both the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times noted the resulting closures of non-profit hospitals due to this financial strain.

Despite their financial problems the Nation’s nonprofit hospitals strive to deliver a very high level of service. A study in the December 2006 issue of Archives of Internal Medicine had surveyed hospitals’ quality of care in four areas of treatment.

It found that nonprofit hospitals consistently outperformed for-profit hospitals. It also found that teaching hospitals had a higher level of performance in treatment and diagnosis. It said that investment in technology and staffing leads to better care. And it recommended that alternative payments and sources of payments be considered to finance these improvements.

The success and financial constraints of nonprofit teaching hospitals is evident in the work of the Queen’s Health Systems in my state. This non-profit organization maintains the largest, private, nonprofit hospital in Hawaii. It serves as the primary clinical teaching facility for the University of Hawaii’s medical residency programs in medicine, general surgery, orthopedic surgery, obstetrics-gynecology, pathology, and psychiatry. It conducts educational and training programs for nurses and allied health personnel. It operates the only trauma unit as well as the chief behavioral...

S. 60. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to authorize means for continued improvement in emergency medical services for children; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. Inouye. Mr. President, today, along with my colleagues; Senators Akaka, Kennedy, Conrad and Dorgan, I introduce the “Wakefield Act,” also known as the “Emergency Medical Services for Children Act of 2007.”

Since Senator Hatch and I worked toward authorization of EMSC in 1994, the leadership introduced, also included the proposal. As the Senate Finance Committee’s recent hearings show, substantial health needs would go unmet if not for our charitable hospitals. It is time for the Congress to assist the Nation’s teaching hospitals in their charitable, educational service.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the Record.

By Mr. Reid (for Mr. Inouye):

S. 59. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to improve access to advanced practice nurses and physician assistants under the Medicaid Programs, to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Inouye. Mr. President, today I introduce the “Medicaid Advanced Practice Nurse and Physician Assistants Access Act of 2007.” This legislation would allow Federal law to permit direct payment for services provided by all nurse practitioners, clinical nurse specialists, and physician assistants. It would ensure all nurse practitioners, certified nurse midwives, and physician assistants are recognized as primary care case managers, and require Medicaid panels to include advanced practice nurses on their managed care panels.

Advanced practice nurses are registered nurses who have attained additional expertise in the clinical management of health conditions. Typically, an advanced practice nurse holds a master’s degree and clinical preparation beyond that of the registered nurse. They are employed in clinics, hospitals, and private practices. While there are many titles given to these advanced practice nurses, such as pediatric nurse practitioners, family nurse practitioners, certified nurse midwives, certified registered nurse anesthetists, and clinical nurse specialists, our current Medicaid law has not kept up with the multiple specialties and titles of these advanced practitioners. The critical role physician assistants play in the delivery of primary care.

I have been a long-time advocate of advanced practice nurses and their ability to extend health care services to communities. They have improved access to health care in Hawaii and throughout the United States by their willingness to practice in what some providers might see as undesirable locations—the rural, frontier, or urban areas. This legislation ensures they are recognized and reimbursed for providing the necessary health care services patients need, and it gives those patients the choice of selecting advanced practice nurses and physician assistants as their primary care providers.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

The previous sectional was printed in the RECORD. The bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

This Act may be cited as the “Medicaid Advanced Practice Nurses and Physician Assistants Access Act of 2007.”

SEC. 2. IMPROVED ACCESS TO SERVICES OF ADVANCED PRACTICE NURSES AND PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS, UNDER STATE MEDICAID PROGRAMS.

(a) PRIMARY CARE CASE MANAGEMENT.—Section 1905(t)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(t)(2)) is amended by striking subparagraph (B) and inserting the following:

"(B) A nurse practitioner (as defined in section 1861(aa)(5)(A))."

(c) PRIMARY CARE CASE MANAGEMENT.—Section 1905(a)(21) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(a)(21)) is amended by adding after “(A)” the following:

"(2) by striking “(A)” after “(21);” and

"(2) by striking “services furnished by a certified pediatric nurse practitioner or certified family nurse practitioner” and inserting “services furnished by a certified pediatric nurse practitioner or certified family nurse practitioner”.
Children, indicated that our Nation is not as well prepared as once we thought. Only 6 percent of all emergency departments have the essential pediatric supplies and equipment necessary to manage pediatric emergencies. Many of the providers of emergency care have received fragmented and little training in the skills necessary to resuscitate this specialized population. Even our disaster preparedness plans have not fully addressed the unique needs posed by children injured in such events.

EMSC remains the only federal program dedicated to examining the best ways to deliver various forms of care to children in emergency settings. Re-authorization of EMSC will ensure that children’s needs will be given the due attention they deserve and that coordination and expansion of services for victims of life-threatening illnesses and injuries will be available throughout the Nation.

I look forward to re-authorization of this important legislation and the continued advances in our emergency healthcare delivery system.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Wakefield Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.
(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:
(1) There are 31,000,000 child and adolescent visits to the nation’s emergency departments every year, with children under the age of 3 years accounting for most of these visits.
(2) Ninety percent of children requiring emergency care are seen in general hospitals, with one-quarter to one-third of the patients being children in the typical general hospital emergency department.
(3) Severe asthma and respiratory distress are the most common emergencies for pediatric patients, representing nearly one-third of all hospitalizations among children under the age of 15 years, while seizures, shock, and airway obstruction are other common pediatric emergencies, followed by cardiac arrest and severe trauma.
(4) Up to 20 percent of children needing emergency care have underlying medical conditions such as asthma, diabetes, sickle cell disease, low birthweight, and broncho-pulmonary dysplasia.
(5) Significant gaps remain in emergency medical care delivered to children, with 43 percent of hospitals lacking cervical collars (used to stabilize spinal injuries) for infants, less than half (47 percent) of hospitals with no pediatric intensive care unit having a written transfer agreement with a hospital that does have such a unit, one-third of States lacking a physician available on-call 24 hours a day to provide medical direction to emergency medical technicians or other non-physician care providers, and even those States with such availability lacking full State coverage.
(6) Providers must be educated and trained to manage children’s unique physical and psychological needs in emergency situations, and emergency systems must be equipped with the resources and personnel needed for this especially vulnerable population.
(7) The Emergency Medical Services for Children (EMSC) Program under section 1910 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300w–9) is the only Federal program that focuses on improving the pediatric components of emergency medical care.
(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this Act to reduce child and youth morbidity and mortality by supporting improvements in the quality of all emergency medical care children receive, through the promotion of projects focused on comparisons and improvements in emergency medical care services, including those in rural areas and those for children with special healthcare needs. In carrying out this purpose, the Secretary shall support emergency medical services for children by supporting projects that—
(1) develop and present scientific evidence;
(2) promote existing and innovative technologies appropriate for the care of children;
(3) provide information on health outcomes and effectiveness and cost-effectiveness;
(4) The program established under this section shall—
(1) strive to enhance the pediatric capability of emergency medical service systems originally designed primarily for adults; and
(2) in order to avoid duplication and ensure that Federal resources are used efficiently and effectively, be coordinated with all research, evaluations, and awards related to emergency medical services for children undertaken and supported by the Federal Government.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE): S. 61. A bill to amend chapter 81 of title 5, United States Code, to authorize the use of clinical social workers to conduct evaluations to determine work-related emotional and mental illnesses; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Clinical Social Workers’ Recognition Act to correct a continuing problem in the Federal Employees Compensation Act. This bill will also provide clinical social workers the recognition they deserve as independent providers of quality mental health care services. Clinical social workers are authorized to independently diagnose and treat mental illnesses through public and private health insurance plans across the Nation. However, Title V of the United States Code, does not permit the use of compensations evaluations conducted by clinical social workers for use as evidence in determining workers’ compensation claims brought by federal employees. The bill I am introducing corrects this problem. It is a sad irony that federal employes may select a clinical social worker through their health plans to provide mental health services, but may not go to this same professional for workers’ compensation evaluations. The failure to expand and improve the quality of evaluations provided by clinical social workers unnecessarily limits federal employees’ selection of a provider to conduct the workers’ compensation mental health evaluations. Lack of this recognition may also impose an undue burden on Federal employees where clinical social workers are the only available providers of mental health care.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 3. REAUTHORIZATION OF EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES FOR CHILDREN PROGRAM.

Section 1910 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300w–9) is amended—
(1) in subsection (a)—
(A) by striking “and such sums” and inserting “and such sums;”;
(B) by striking “—through (d) as subsections (c) through (e), respectively;” and
(C) by striking “and such sums;”;

(B) by striking “such sums” and inserting “such sums;”;
(C) by striking “through (d) as subsections (c) through (e), respectively;” and
(D) by striking “and such sums;”;

The purpose of the program established under this section is to reduce child and youth morbidity and mortality by supporting improvements in the quality of all emergency medical care children receive.

SEC. 4. LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS.

The EMSC Program may not use funds to support—
(1) activities that are set forth in the Strategic Plan for the EMSC Program; or
(2) activities that are set forth in the Annual Work Plan for the EMSC Program.
Despite their financial problem the nation’s nonprofit hospitals strive to deliver a very high level of service. A study in the December 2006 issue of Archives of Internal Medicine had surveyed hospitals’ qualify of care in four areas of treatment. It found that non-profit hospitals to consistently outperformed-for-profit hospitals. It also found that teaching hospitals had a higher level of performance in treatment and diagnosis. It said that investment in technology state so leads to better care. And it recommended that alternative payments and sources of payments be considered to finance these improvements.

The success and financial constraints of nonprofit teaching hospitals is evident in the work of the Queen’s Health Systems in my State. This 146-year-old organization maintains the largest, private, nonprofit hospital in Hawaii. It serves as the primary clinical teaching facility for the University of Hawaii’s programs in medicine, general surgery, orthopedic surgery, obstetrics-gynecology, pathology, and psychiatry. It conducts educational and training programs for nurses and allied health personnel. It is leading hospital unit as well as the behavioral health program in the State. It maintains clinics throughout Hawaii, health programs for Native Hawaiians, and a small hospital on a rural, economically depressed island. Its medical reference library is the largest in the State. Not the least, it annually provides millions of dollars in uncompensated health services. To help pay for some community benefits, the Queen’s Health Systems, as other nonprofit teaching hospitals, relies significantly on income from its endowment.

In the past, the Congress has allowed tax-exempt schools, colleges, universities, and pension funds to invest their endowment so as to better meet their financial needs. Under the tax code these organizations can incur debt for real estate investments without triggering the tax on unrelated business activities. If the Queen’s Health Systems were part of a university, it could borrow without incurring an unrelated business income tax. Not being part of a university, however, a teaching hospital and its support organization runs the risk of being incurring a debt financing prohibition. Nonprofit teaching hospitals have the same as not more pressing needs as universities, school, and pension trusts. The same safe harbor rule should be extended to teaching hospitals.

My bill would allow the support organizations for qualified teaching hospitals to engage in limited borrowing to enhance their endowment income. The proposal for teaching hospitals is actually more restricted than current Section 1225(c) and Section 3121(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 amended by adding at the end the following new sub-paragraph:

(1) qualified hospital support organization (as defined in subparagraph (I)),

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking ‘‘—’’.

(3) in paragraph (3), by striking ‘‘—’’.

(4) in paragraph (4), by striking ‘‘—’’.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE): S. 62. A bill to treat certain hospital support organizations as qualified organizations for purposes of determining acquisition indebtedness; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, the legislature I have introduced will extend to qualified teaching hospital support organizations the existing debt-financed safe harbor rule. Congress enacted that rule to support the public service activities of tax-exempt schools, universities, pension funds, and consortia of such institutions. Our teaching hospitals require similar support.

A New York Times article on June 21, 2002, described the financial problems which nonprofit hospitals are facing to modernize their facilities and meet the growing demand for charitable medical care. The problems have grown more urgent since that article appeared.

On November 22, 2006, the Wall Street Journal noted the rising numbers of uninsured patients who fill hospital emergency rooms without paying their bills. In 2005, 46.6 million Americans had no health insurance. Compounding the growing demand for charitable care, new safety and infection-prevention standards require hospitals to undertake massive improvements.

These private hospitals, the reporter pointed out, typically have no mandate for community service. In contrast, nonprofit hospitals must fulfill a community requirement. They must stretch their resources to provide increased charitable care, update their facilities, and maintain skilled staffing. Both the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times noted the resulting closures of nonprofit hospitals due to this financial strain.

The problem is particularly severe for teaching hospitals. As the Times article said, nonprofit hospitals provide nearly all the postgraduate medical education in the United States. Postgraduate instruction by nature not profitable. Instruction in the treatment of mental disorders and trauma is especially costly.
prior to the time that the eligible indebtedness was incurred.

For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘eligible indebtedness’ means indebtedness secured by real property acquired by the organization, directly or indirectly, by gift or devise, the proceeds of which are used exclusively to acquire any leasehold interest in such property or improvements on, or repairs to, such real property. A determination under clauses (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph shall be made each time such an eligible indebtedness (or the qualified refinancing of such an eligible indebtedness) is incurred. For purposes of this subparagraph, a refinancing of such an eligible indebtedness shall be treated as occurring on the date of the refinancing if the refinancing does not exceed the amount of the refinanced eligible indebtedness immediately before the refinancing.”.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to indebtedness incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 63. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to remove the restriction that a clinical psychologist or clinical social worker provide services in a comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility to a patient only under the care of a physician; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce legislation to authorize the autonomous functioning of clinical psychologists and clinical social workers within the Medicare comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility program.

In my judgment, it is unfortunate that Medicare requires clinical supervision of the services provided by certain health professionals and does not allow them to function to the full extent of their state practice licenses. Those who need the services of outpatient rehabilitation facilities should have access to a wide range of social and behavioral science expertise. Clinical psychologists and clinical social workers are recognized as independent providers of mental health care services under the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program, the TRICARE Military Health Program of the Uniformed Services, the Medicare (Part B) Program, and numerous private insurance plans. This legislation will ensure that these qualified professionals achieve the same recognition under the Medicare comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility program.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. REMOVAL OF RESTRICTION THAT A CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGIST OR CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER PROVIDE SERVICES IN A COMPREHENSIVE OUTPATIENT REHABILITATION FACILITY TO A PATIENT ONLY UNDER THE CARE OF A PHYSICIAN.

(a) In General.—Section 1861(cc)(2)(E) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396x(cc)(2)(E)) is amended by striking ‘‘physician’’ and inserting ‘‘clinical psychologist, or clinical social worker,’’.

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to services provided on or after January 1, 2008.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 64. A bill to amend title VII of the Public Health Service Act to ensure that social work students or social work schools are eligible for support under certain programs to assist individuals in pursuing health careers and programs to grants for training and education to establish a social work training program to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, on behalf of our Nation’s clinical social workers, I introduce legislation to amend the Public Health Service Act. This legislation would: 1. establish a new social work training program, 2. ensure that social work students are eligible for support under the Minority Centers of Excellence programs, 3. permit schools offering degrees in social work to obtain grants for training and education, and 4. ensure that social work is recognized as a profession under the Public Health Maintenance Organization Act.

Despite the impressive range of services social workers provide to people of this nation, few federal programs exist to provide opportunities for social work training in health and mental health care.

Social workers have long provided quality mental health services to our citizens and continue to be at the forefront of innovative programs to serve our disadvantaged populations. I believe it is important to ensure that the special expertise social workers possess continues to be available to the citizens of this nation. This bill, by providing financial assistance to schools of social work and social work students, acknowledges the long history and critical importance of the services provided by social work professionals. I believe it is time to provide them with the recognition they deserve.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

space.”

Many of these great American pilots are veterans who have served our country and the flying public for decades. Many of them have suffered wage concessions and lost their pensions as the airline industry has faced hard times and bankruptcies. But these American pilots are not asking for a handout. They are just saying to the FAA: “Give me the same right you granted our foreign counterparts with the stroke of a pen this November. Let us continue to fly, continue to work, continue to contribute to the tax rolls for another 5 years.” We join them and echo their sentiments to FAA Administrator Blakey. As far as we are concerned, that is the least we can do for America’s pilots, who are considered the best and the safest pilots in the world.

Most nations have abolished mandatory age 60 retirement rules. Many countries, including Canada, Australia, and New Zealand have no upper age limits and consider an age-based retirement rule discriminatory. Sadly though, the United States was one of only four member countries of ICAO, along with Pakistan, Colombia, and France, to dissent to the ICAO decision to increase the retirement age to 65 last year.

The Age 60 Rule has no basis in science or safety and never has. The Aerospace Medical Association says that “There is insufficient medical evidence to support restriction of pilot certification based upon age alone.” Similarly, the American Association of Retired Persons, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Seniors Coalition, and the National Institute of Aging of NIH all agree that the Age 60 Rule is simply age discrimination and should end. My colleagues and I agree.

When the rule was implemented in 1960 life expectancies were much lower at just over 69 and a half years. Today they are much higher at more than 77 years. The FAA’s own data shows that pilots over age 60 are as safe as, and in some cases safer than, their younger counterparts. In the process of adopting the new international standard, ICAO studied more than 3,000 over-60 pilots from 64 nations, totaling at least 15,000 pilot-years of flying experience and found the risk of medical incapacitation “a risk so low that it can be safely disregarded.”

Furthermore, the recent economic study shows that allowing pilots to fly to age 65 would save almost $1 billion per year in added Social Security, Medicare, and tax payments and delayed Pension Benefit Guarantee Corporation (PBGC) payments.

I am encouraged by the progress that has been made. In the 109th Congress, the Senate Commerce Committee reported the modified bill with the ICAO standard favorably and the Senate Transportation, Treasury, the Judiciary, Housing and Urban Development, and Related Agencies Appropriations Committee included a version of S. 65 in its bill. The FAA recently convened an Aviation Rulemaking Committee to study the issue of extended retirement. We have yet to see that report but it is our understanding the report was persuasive enough that the Administrator is considering a change in the rule now. We are encouraged by that, but we also know that legislation will be needed to direct the FAA to pursue these changes in a timely manner and in a way that will protect companies and their unions from new lawsuits that might arise as a result of the changes. Our legislation accomplishes that. Whether the FAA decides to change the rule on its own or not, Congress needs to do the right thing and pass S. 65 to fully ensure that our own American pilots have the same rights and privileges to work at least until age 65 that were accorded to foreign pilots over the age of 60 this fall.

I urge the rest of my colleagues to support the Freedom to Fly Act and help us keep America’s most experienced pilots in the air.

S. 66. A bill to require the Secretary of the Army to determine the validity of the claims of certain Filipinos that they performed military service on behalf of the United States during World War II; to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.

Mr. INOUYE, Mr. President, I am reintroducing legislation today that would require the Secretary of the Army to determine whether certain nationals of the Philippine Islands performed military service on behalf of the United States during World War II.

Our Filipino veterans fought side by side with Americans and sacrificed their lives on behalf of the United States. This legislation would confirm the validity of their claims and further allow qualified individuals the opportunity to apply for military and veterans benefits that, I believe, they are entitled to. As this population becomes older, it is important for our Nation to extend its firm commitment to the Filipinio veterans and their families who participated in making us the great Nation that we are today.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

Any entitlement of a person to receive veterans’ benefits by reason of this Act shall be administered by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs.

S. 67. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to permit former members of the Armed Forces who have a service-connected disability rated as total to travel on military aircraft in the same manner and to the same extent as retired members of the Armed Forces, entitled to travel on military aircraft.

By Mr. KOHL (for himself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 69. A bill to authorize appropriations for the South Carolina Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. INOUYE, Mr. President, today I am reintroducing a bill which is of great importance to a group of patriotic Americans. This legislation is designed to provide space-available travel privileges on military aircraft to those who have been totally disabled in the service of our country.

Currently, retired members of the Armed Forces are permitted to travel on a space-available basis on non-scheduled military flights within the continental United States, and on scheduled overseas flights operated by the Military Airlift Command. My bill would extend such travel privileges for veterans with 100 percent service-connected disabilities.

We owe these heroic men and women who have given so much to our country a debt of gratitude. Of course, we can never fully recapture the sacrifices they have made on behalf of our Nation, but we can surely try to make their lives more pleasant and fulfilling. One way in which we can help is to extend military travel privileges to these distinguished American veterans.

I have received numerous letters from all over the country attesting to the importance attached to this issue by veterans. Therefore, I ask that my colleagues show their concern and join me in saying ‘‘thank you’’ by supporting this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill is ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. TRAVEL ON MILITARY AIRCRAFT OF CERTAIN DISABLED FORMER MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 55 of title 10, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 1060b the following new section:

"1060c. Travel on military aircraft: certain disabled former members of the armed forces.

"The Secretary of Defense shall permit any former member of the armed forces who is entitled to compensation under the laws administered by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs for a service-connected disability rated as total to travel, in the same manner and to the same extent as retired members of the armed forces, on unscheduled military flights within the continental United States and on scheduled overseas flights operated by the Air Mobility Command. The Secretary of Defense shall permit such travel on a space-available basis.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections at the beginning of such chapter is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 1060b the following new item:

"1060c. Travel on military aircraft: certain disabled former members of the armed forces."

By Mr. KOHL (for himself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 69. A bill to authorize appropriations for the South Carolina Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. KOHL, Mr. President, I rise in support of the Kohl-Snowe legislation which would fund the Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, or MEP, for fiscal year 2008-fiscal year 2012. I am a long-time supporter of the MEP program and believe manufacturing is crucial to the U.S. economy. American manufacturers are a cornerstone of the American economy and embody the best in American values. A healthy manufacturing sector is key to better jobs, rising productivity and higher standards of living in the United States. Every manufacturer operates on manufactured goods. In addition, innovations and productivity gains in the manufacturing sector provide benefits far beyond the products themselves. Small- and medium-sized manufacturers face unprecedented challenges in today’s global economy which threaten the existence of manufacturing jobs in the United States. If it isn’t China pirating our technologies and promising a low-wage workforce, it is soaring health care and energy costs that cut into profits. Manufacturers today are seeking ways to level the playing field so they can compete globally.

One way to level the playing field—and increase the competitiveness of American manufacturers—is to fund the Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, MEP. MEP streamlines operations, integrates new technologies, shortens production times and lowers costs, leading to improved efficiency by offering resources to manufacturers, including organized workshops and consulting projects. In Wisconsin, three of our largest corporations—John Deere, Harley-Davidson, and Oshkosh Truck—are working with Wisconsin MEP centers to develop domestic supply chains. In addition, MEP has helped companies find it more profitable to work with small- and medium-sized Wisconsin firms than to look overseas for cheap labor.

You would be hard pressed to find another program that has produced the results that MEP has. In Wisconsin alone in fiscal year 2006, WMEP reported 2,696 new or retained workers, sales of $163 million, cost savings of $33 million, and plant and equipment investments of $37 million.

Manufacturing is an integral part of a web of inter-industry relationships that create a stronger economy. Manufacturing sells goods to other sectors in the economy and, in turn, buys products and services from them. Manufacturing spurs demand for everything from raw materials to intermediate components to software to financial, legal, health, accounting, transportation, and other services in the course of doing business.

The future of manufacturing in the United States will be largely determined by how well small- and medium-sized companies cope with the changes in today’s global economy. To be successful, businesses need state-of-the-art technology to craft products more efficiently, a skilled workforce to meet the demands of modern manufacturers and a commitment from the government to provide the resources to allow companies to remain competitive.

At a time when economic recovery and global competitiveness are national priorities, I believe MEP continues to be a wise investment.

S. 70. A bill to restore the traditional day of observance of Memorial Day, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, in our efforts to celebrate many Americans by making Memorial Day the last Monday in May, we have lost sight of the significance of this day to our Nation. My bill would restore Memorial Day to May 30 and authorize our flag to fly at half mast on that day. In addition, this legislation would authorize the President to issue a proclamation designating Memorial Day and Veterans Day as days for prayer and ceremonies. This legislation would help restore the recognition our veterans deserve for the sacrifices they have made on behalf of our nation.

S. 71. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to authorize certain disabled former prisoners of war to use Department of Defense commissary and exchange stores; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing legislation to enable those former prisoners of war who have been separated honorably from their respective services and who have been rated as having a 30 percent service-connected disability to have the use of both the military commissary and post exchange privileges. While I realize it is impossible to adequately compensate one who has endured long periods of incarceration at the hands of our Nation’s enemies, I do feel this gesture is both meaningful and important to those concerned because it serves as a reminder that our Nation has not forgotten their sacrifices.

“§ 1064a. Use of commissary and exchange stores by certain disabled former prisoners of war.

“(a) In General.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, former prisoners of war described in subsection (b) may use commissary and exchange stores.

“(1) separated from active duty in the armed forces under honorable conditions; and

“(2) has a service-connected disability rated as having a 30 percent or more.

“(c) Definitions.—In this section:

S. 73. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for improved reimbursement for clinical social worker services under the Medicare program; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to amend Title XVIII of the Social Security Act to correct discrepancies in the reimbursement of clinical social workers covered through Medicare, Part B. The three proposed changes contained in this legislation clarify the current payment process for clinical social workers and establish a reimbursement methodology for the profession that is similar to other health care professionals reimbursed through the Medicare program.

First, this legislation sets payment for clinical social worker services according to a fee schedule established by the Secretary. Second, it explicitly states that services and supplies furnished by a clinical social worker are a covered Medicare expense, just as these services are covered for other mental health professionals in Medicare. Third, the bill allows clinical social workers to be reimbursed for services provided to a client who is hospitalized.

Clinical social workers are valued members of our health care provider network. They are legally regulated in every state of the country and are recognized as independent providers of mental health care throughout the health care system. It is time to correct the disparate reimbursement treatment of this profession under Medicare.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Equity for Clinical Social Workers Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. IMPROVED REIMBURSEMENT FOR CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER SERVICES UNDER MEDICARE.

(a) In General.—Section 1833(a)(1)(F)(ii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395l(a)(1)(F)(ii)) is amended to read as follows:

“(ii) the amount determined by a fee schedule established by the Secretary,”;

(b) Definition of clinical social worker services expanded.—Section 1861(b)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395l(b)(2)) is amended by striking “services performed by a clinical social worker (as defined in paragraph (1))” and inserting “such services and such services and supplies furnished as an incident to such services performed by a clinical social worker (as defined in paragraph (1))’.

(c) Clinical social worker services not to be included.—Section 1861(b)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395l(b)(4)) is amended by striking “and services” and inserting “clinical social worker services, and services”;

(d) Treatment of services furnished in inpatient setting.—Section 1832(a)(2)(B)(ii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395t(a)(2)(B)(ii)) is amended—

(2) by adding “and” at the end.

(e) Effective date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to payments made for clinical social worker services furnished on or after January 1, 2008.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 73. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for patient protection by establishing minimum nurse staffing ratios at certain Medicare providers, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Registered Nurse Safe Staffing Act. For over four decades I have been a committed supporter of nurses and the delivery of safe patient care. While enacting protections will help to ensure patient safety, the complexity and variability of today’s hospitals require that staffing patterns be determined at the hospital and unit level, with the professional input of registered nurses. More than a decade of research demonstrates that nurse staff levels and the skill mix of nursing staff directly affect the clinical outcomes of hospitalized patients. Studies show that where there are inadequately staffed nurses, there are lower mortality rates, shorter lengths of stay, reduced costs, and fewer complications.

A study published in the Journal of The American Medical Association found that risks of patient mortality rose by 7 percent for every additional patient added to the average nurse’s workload. In the midst of a nursing shortage and increasing financial pressures, hospitals often find it difficult to maintain adequate staffing.

While nursing research indicates that adequate registered nurse staffing is vital to the health and safety of patients, there is no standardized public reporting mechanism, nor enforcement of adequate staffing plans. The only regulations addressing nursing staff exist vagely in Medicare Conditions of Participation which states: “The nursing service must have an adequate number of licensed registered nurses, licensed practice (vocational) nurse, and other personnel to provide nursing care to all patients as needed.”

This bill will require Medicare Participating Hospitals to develop and maintain reliable and valid systems to determine the proper staffing level of registered nurse staffing. Given the demands that the healthcare industry faces today, it is our responsibility to ensure that patients have access to adequate nursing care. However, we must ensure that the decisions by which care is provided are made by the clinical experts, the registered nurses caring for these patients. Support of this bill supports our registration nurses, working in the United States that have inadequate staffing levels, creating a public health crisis.

(5) Registered nurses are being required to perform professional services under conditions that do not support quality health care or a healthful work environment for registered nurses.

(7) As a payer for inpatient and outpatient hospital services for individuals entitled to benefits under the Medicare program established by title XVIII of the Social Security Act, the Federal Government has a compelling interest in promoting the safety of such individuals by requiring any hospital participating in the Medicare program to establish and maintain minimum safe staffing levels for registered nurses.

SEC. 3. ESTABLISHMENT OF MINIMUM STAFFING RATIOS BY MEDICARE PARTICIPATING HOSPITALS.

(a) REQUIREMENT OF MEDICARE PROVIDER AGREEMENT—Section 1866(a)(1) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(a)(1)) is amended—

(1) by inserting after subparagraph (U), by striking “and” at the end;

(2) in subparagraph (V), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”;

(3) by inserting after subparagraph (V) the following new subparagraph:

“(W) in the case of a hospital, to meet the requirements of section 1900;”;

(b) Requiring Notice of Minimum Safely Staffing Levels—Title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after section 1890 the following new section: “STAFFING REQUIREMENTS FOR INPATIENT HOSPITALS—Subject to paragraph (3), a staffing system adopted and implemented under this section shall—

(A) be based upon input from the direct care-giving registered nurse staff or their exclusive representatives, as well as the chief nurse executive;

(B) be based upon the number of patients and the level and variability of intensity of care to be provided, with appropriate consideration given to national criteria, discharges, and transfers during each shift;

(C) account for contextual issues affecting staffing, including nursing staff information described in subparagraph (A) through electronic data submission and validation, including by publication of such information on the Internet site of the Department of Health and Human Services; and

(D) provide for the auditing of such information for accuracy as a part of the process of determining whether an institution is a hospital for purposes of this title.

(b) REPORTING; DATA COLLECTION; EVALUATION.—

(1) RECORDKEEPING.—Each participating hospital shall maintain for a period of at least five years (or, if longer, any extension of pending enforcement activities) such records as the Secretary deems necessary to determine whether the hospital has adopted and implemented a staffing system pursuant to subsection (a).

“(A) patient acuity from maintenance of acuity data through entries on patients’ charts;

“(B) patient outcomes that are nursing sensitive, such as patient falls, adverse drug events, injuries to patients, skin breakdown, pneumonia, infection rates, upper gastrointestinal bleeding, shock, cardiac arrest, length of stay, and patient readmissions;

“(C) operational outcomes, such as workload, injury or illness, vacancy and turnover rates, nursing care hours per patient day, on-call use, overtime rates, and needlestick injuries; and

“(D) patient complaints related to staffing levels.

(2) EVALUATION.—Each participating hospital shall annually evaluate its staffing system and establish minimum registered nurse staffing ratios to assure ongoing reliability and validity of the system and ratios. The evaluation shall be conducted by a joint nursing management staff committee comprised of at least 50 percent of registered nurses who provide direct patient care.

(3) RESPONSIBILITY.—The Secretary shall enforce the requirements and prohibitions of this section in accordance with the procedures for the investigation and review of claims under such enforcement procedures.

(4) PROCEDURES FOR THE INVESTIGATION AND ISSUANCE OF DETERMINATIONS.—The Secretary shall establish procedures under which—
“(A) any person may file a complaint that a participating hospital has violated a requirement or a prohibition of this section; and

“(B) such complaints are investigated by the Secretary.

“(3) REMEDIES.—If the Secretary determines that a participating hospital has violated a requirement of this section, the Secretary—

“(A) shall require the facility to establish a corrective action plan to prevent the recurrence of such violation; and “(B) may impose civil money penalties under paragraph (4).

“(4) CIVIL MONETARY PENALTIES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any other penalties prescribed by law, the Secretary may impose a civil money penalty of not more than $10,000 for each such violation in the case of a participating hospital that the Secretary determines has a pattern or practice of such violations (with the amount of such additional penalties being determined in accordance with a schedule or methodology specified in regulations).

“(B) PROCEDURES.—The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under this paragraph in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A.

“(C) PUBLIC NOTICE OF VIOLATIONS.—

“(1) INTERNET SITE.—The Secretary shall publish on the Internet site of the Department of Health and Human Services the names of participating hospitals on which such civil money penalties have been imposed under this paragraph in violation for which the penalty was imposed, and such additional information as the Secretary determines appropriate.

“(2) CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP.—With respect to a participating hospital that had a change in ownership, as determined by the Secretary, penalties imposed on the hospital while under previous ownership shall no longer be published by the Secretary of such Internet site after the 1-year period beginning on the date of change in ownership.

“(3) PROHIBITION OF DISCRIMINATION AND RETALIATION.—A participating hospital shall not discharge, demote, or otherwise discipline an employee in any manner against any patient or employee of the hospital because that patient or employee, or any other person, has presented a grievance or complaint, or refused to participate or cooperate in any investigation or proceeding of any kind, relating to the staffing system or other requirements and prohibitions of this section.

“(4) RELIEF FOR PREVAILING EMPLOYEES.—An employee of a participating hospital who has been discriminated against or retaliated against in violation of this subsection may initiate judicial action in a United States district court and shall be entitled to reinstatement, reimbursement for lost wages, and work benefits caused by the unlawful acts of the employing hospital. Prevailing employees are entitled to reasonable attorney’s fees and costs associated with pursuing the case.

“(5) RELIEF FOR PREVAILING PATIENTS.—A patient who has been discriminated against or retaliated against in violation of this subsection may initiate judicial action in a United States district court. A prevailing patient shall be entitled to liquidated damages of $5,000 for a violation of this statute in addition to any other damages under applicable statutes, regulations, or common law. Prevailing patients are entitled to reasonable attorney’s fees and costs associated with pursuing the case.

“(6) LIMITATION ON ACTIONS.—No action may be brought under paragraph (2) or (3) more than 2 years after the discrimination or retaliation with respect to which the action is brought.

“(7) TREATMENT OF ADVERSE EMPLOYMENT ACTIONS.—In subsection (a) of section 1128B—

“(A) an adverse employment action shall be treated as retaliation or discrimination; and

“(B) the term ‘adverse employment action’ includes—

“(i) the failure to promote an individual or provide any other employment-related benefit for which the individual would otherwise be eligible;

“(ii) an adverse evaluation or decision made in relation to accreditation, credentialing, or licensing of the individual; and

“(iii) a personnel action that is adverse to the individual concerned.

“(8) RELATIONSHIPS TO STATE LAWS.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as exempting or relieving any person from any liability, duty, penalty, or punishment provided by any present or future law of any State or political subdivision of a State, other than such any such law which purports to require, control, or punish the doing of any act which would be an unlawful practice under this title.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself and Mr. LAUTENBERG):

S. 82. A bill to reaffirm the authority of the Comptroller General to audit and evaluate the programs, activities, and financial transactions of the intelligence community, and for other purposes; to the Select Committee on Intelligence.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise to introduce “The Intelligence Community

nity Audit Act of 2007,” with Senator Lautenberg. This legislation reaffirms the authority of the Comptroller General of the United States and head of the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to audit the financial transactions and evaluate the programs and financial activities of the intelligence community (IC).

Our bill is identical to S. 3968, introduced in the last Congress by Senator Lautenberg and myself, and to H.R. 6252, introduced in the House by Representative Barney Frank.

The need for more effective oversight and accountability of our intelligence community has never been greater. In the war against terrorism, intelligence agencies are both the spear and the shield: the first line of our attack and that of our defense. Failure can bear terrrible consequences.

Congress has two responsibilities: the first is to ensure that our intelligence community is performing its mission effectively, and the second is to ensure that in performing its mission, the Intelligence Community is not infringing on the constitutional rights of individual Americans.

Yet the ability of Congress to ensure that the intelligence community has sufficient resources and capability to perform its mission has never been more in question. The establishment of the Department of Homeland Security and the passage of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 created a new institutional landscape littered by new intelligence agencies with ever increasing demands and responsibilities. These new agencies became members of an already populated club of organizations performing intelligence related functions.

The intelligence community today consists of 19 different agencies or components: the Office of National Intelligence; Central Intel-

tional Security Agency; Departments of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; Department of Treasury; Department of the Interior; Department of Energy; Department of Justice; Federal Bureau of Investigation; National Reconnaissance Office; National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency; Coast Guard; Department of Homeland Security, and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Congress too has increased its oversight responsibilities. Committees other than the intelligence committees of the House and Senate have jurisdiction over such departments as Home-

But all of these “non-intelligence” committees are restricted in their ability to conduct effective oversight of intelligence functions of such agencies under their jurisdictions because of the Intelligence Community's non-responsive nature.

Unfortunately, the intelligence community stonewals the Government Accountability Office (GAO) when committees of jurisdiction request that GAO investigate problems. This is happening despite the clear responsibility of Congress to ensure that these agencies are operating effectively to protect America.

It is inconceivable that the GAO—the audit arm of the U.S. Congress—has been unable to conduct evaluations of the CIA for over 40 years. If the GAO had been able to conduct basic auditing functions of the CIA, perhaps some of the problems that were so clearly exposed following the terrorist attacks in September 2001 would have been resolved. And yet, it is extraordinary that five years after 9-11, the same problems persist.

Two recent incidents have made this situation disturbingly clear. At a hearing entitled, “Access Delayed: Fixing the Security Clearance Process, Part II,” before my Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, the Federal Workforce, and the District of Columbia, on November 9, 2005, GAO was asked about steps it would take to ensure that the Office of Personnel Management (OPM), the Office of Management and Budget, and the intelligence community met the goals and objectives outlined in the OPM security clearance strategic plan. Fixing the security clearance process, which is on GAO’s high-risk list, is essential to our national security. But as GAO observed in a written response to a question raised by Senator Voinovich, “while we have the authority to do such work, we lack the cooperation we need to get our job done in that area.”

A similar case arose in response to a GAO investigation for the Senate Homeland Security Committee and the House Government Reform Committee on how agencies are sharing terrorism-related and sensitive but unclassified information. The report, entitled “Information Sharing, the Federal Government Needs to Establish Policies and Processes for Sharing Terrorism-Related and Sensitive but Unclassified Information,” was released in March 2006.

At a time when Congress is criticized by members of the 9-11 Commission for failing to implement its recommendations, we should remember that improving terrorism information sharing among agencies was one of the critical recommendations of the Commission.

Moreover, the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 mandated the creation of the Intelligence Sharing Environment through the creation of an Information Sharing Environment. Yet, when asked by GAO for comments on the GAO report, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence refused, stating that it had “no comment.” The GAO review of Intelligence activities is beyond GAO’s purview.

A Congressional Research Service memorandum entitled, “Overview of ‘Classified’ and ‘Sensitive but Unclassified’ Information,” concludes, “It appears that OPM’s review of intelligence information, in some instances, had the effect of deterring information sharing for homeland security.”

Unfortunately I have more examples that predate the post 9-11 reforms. Indeed, in July 2001, in testimony, entitled “Central Intelligence Agency, Observations on GAO Access to Information on CIA Programs and Activities” (GAO-01-757T) before the House Committee on Government Reform, the GAO noted, as a practical manner, “our access is generally limited to obtaining information on threat assessments when the CIA does not perceive [sic] our audits as oversights of its activities.”

The bill I introduce today does not detract from the authority of the intelligence committees. In fact, the language makes explicit that the Comptroller General may conduct an audit or evaluation of intelligence sources and methods or covert actions only upon the request of the intelligence committees or at the request of the congressional majority or minority leaders. The measure also prescribes for the security of the information collected by the General.

As both House Rule 48 and Senate Resolution 400 establishing the intelligence oversight committees state, “Nothing in this charter shall be construed as amending, limiting, or otherwise changing the authority of any standing committee of the House/Senate, to obtain full and prompt access to the product of the intelligence activities of any department or agency of the Government relevant to a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of such committees.”

Despite this clear and unambiguous statement, the ability of non-intelligence committees to obtain information, no matter what vital to improving the security of our nation, has been restricted by the various elements of the intelligence community.

My bill reaffirms the authority of the Comptroller General to conduct audits and evaluations—other than those relating to sources and methods, or covert actions—relating to the management and administration of elements of the intelligence community in areas such as strategic planning, financial management, information technology, human capital, knowledge management, information sharing, and change management for other relevant committees of Congress.

As I mentioned earlier in my statement, Congress also has the responsibility of ensuring that unfettered intelligence collection does not trample civil liberties. New technologies and new personal information data bases threaten our individual right to a secure private life, free from unlawful government invasion. We must ensure that private information collected by the intelligence community is not misused and is secure. Intelligence agencies have a legitimate mission to protect our citizens from potential threats. However, Congress’ role is to ensure that their mission remains legitimate.

Attached is a detailed description of the legislation that I ask unanimous consent be printed in the RECORD.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation I am introducing be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Section 1 of the Act provides that the Act may be cited as the “Intelligence Community Audit Act of 2007.”

Section 2(a) of the Act adds a new Section (3523a) to title 31, United States Code, with respect to the Comptroller General’s authority to audit or evaluate activities of the intelligence community. New Section 3523a(b)(1) reaffirms that the Comptroller General possesses, under his existing statutory authority, the authority to perform audits and evaluations of financial transactions, programs, and activities of elements of the intelligence community and to obtain access to records for the purposes of such audits and evaluations. Such work would be done at the request of the intelligence committees or any committee of jurisdiction of the House of Representatives or Senate (including committees on Homeland Security of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate), or at the Comptroller General’s initiative, pursuant to the existing authorities referenced in new Section 3523a(b)(1). New Section 3523a(b)(2) further provides that these audits and evaluations under the Comptroller General’s existing authority may include, but are not limited to, matters relating to the management and administration of elements of the intelligence community in areas such as strategic planning, financial management, information technology, human capital, knowledge management, information sharing, and change management. These audits and evaluations would be accompanied by the safeguards that the Government Accountability Office (GAO) has in place to protect classified and other sensitive information, including physical security arrangements, classification and sensitivity reviews, and restricted distribution of certain products.

This reaffirmation is designed to respond to recent criticism by the Creative Branch that GAO does not have the authority to review activities of the intelligence community. To the contrary, GAO’s current statutory audit and access authorities permit it to evaluate a wide range of activities in the intelligence community. To further ensure that GAO’s authorities are appropriately construed in this manner, the new Section (3523a) which is described below, makes clear that nothing in this or any other provision of law shall be construed as limiting the Comptroller General’s authority to conduct and evaluate, or obtain access to the records of, elements of the intelligence community absent specific statutory language restricting or limiting such audits, evaluations, or access to records.

New Section 3523a(c)(1) provides that Comptroller General’s audits of elements of the intelligence community and to obtain access to records of intelligence sources and methods, or covert actions may be undertaken only upon the request of the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate, or the Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives, or the majority or the minority leader of the Senate or the House of Representatives. This is intended to recognize the heightened sensitivity of audits and evaluations relating to intelligence sources and methods, or covert actions.

The new Section 3523a(c)(2)(A) provides that the results of such audits or evaluations under Section 3523a(c) shall be furnished to the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community. Since the means GAO uses to communicate the results of its audits or evaluations vary, this provision restricts the dissemination of such information under Section 3523a(c), whether through testimony, oral briefings, or written reports, to only the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community. Similarly, under new Section 3523a(c)(2)(B), the Comptroller General may only provide information in response to an audit or evaluation request to, or are in the possession and control of, the original requestor, the Director of the National Intelligence Community, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community. Similarly, under new Section 3523a(c)(3)(B), the Comptroller General may only provide information in response to an audit or evaluation request to, or are in the possession and control of, the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community.

The new Section 3523a(c)(3)(A) provides that notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Comptroller General may inspect records of the intelligence community relating to intelligence sources and methods, or covert actions in order to perform the duties furnished under Section 3523a(c). The provisions of this subsection do not extend to records which belong to, or are in the possession and control of, the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community

The new Section 3523a(c)(4)(D), prior to initiating an audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c), the Comptroller General shall consult with the Director of National Intelligence and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community with the name of each officer or employee of the Government Accountability Office who has obtained appropriate security clearances.

The new Section 3523a(e) provides that elements of the intelligence community shall cooperate fully with the Comptroller General and provide timely responses to Comptroller General requests for documentation and information.

The new Section 3523a(e) makes clear that nothing in this or any other provision of law shall be construed as restricting or limiting such audits, evaluations, or access to records of, elements of the intelligence community absent specific statutory language restricting or limiting such audits, evaluations, or access to records of, elements of the intelligence community.
changing world conditions: the democratization of many eastern European countries, the demise of the Soviet Union, and the end of the Cold War. Accountability and cost consideration also signaled significant reductions. In 1985, the temporary Department of Defense (DOD) Security Review Commission, chaired by retired General Richard G. Stilwell, declared that there were no verifiable figures as to the amount of classified material produced in DOD and in defense industry each year. Nonetheless, it concluded that information should be classified and much at higher levels than is warranted. In October 1983, the cost of the information governance system became clearer when the General Accounting Office (GAO) reported that it was “able to identify government-wide costs directly applicable to the secrecy information generated and estimated at $350 million for 1982.” After breaking this figure down—it included only $6 million for declassification work—the report added that “the U.S. government also spends additional billions of dollars annually to safeguard information, personnel, and property.” E.O. 12858 sets limits for the duration of classification and requires the reclassification of properly declassified records, authorized government employees to challenge the classification status of records, reestablished the legal status of secret and top secret status, established the need to protect information via public interest in its disclosure, and created the ability to designate recipients as well as classification and declassification actions and one to advise on policy and procedure.

Most recently, in March 2003, President George W. Bush issued E.O. 13292, amending E.O. 12858. Among the changes made by this order were adding infrastructure vulnerabilities or capabilities, protection services relating to national security, and weapons of mass destruction to the categories of classified information; easing the reclassification of declassified records; postponing the automatic declassification of protected records 25 or more years old, beginning in mid-April 2003 to the end of December 2006, eliminating the requirement that agencies prepare plans for declassifying records; and permitting the Director of Central Intelligence to block declassification actions of the Interagency Security Classification Appeals Panel, unless overruled by the President.

The security classification program has evolved over almost 56 years. Agencies do not agree with all of its rules and requirements, but attention to detail in its policy and procedure result in a significant management and operational order, as amended, identifies its principal terms. Those who are authorized to exercise original classification authority are identified. Exceptions to the categories of classified information are specified, as are the terms of the duration of classification, as well as classification prohibitions and limitations. Classification and mandatory declassification reviews are also authorized to determine if protected records merit continued classification at their present level, a lower level, or at all. Mandatory declassification reviews and mandatory declassification reviews are subject to review by the Interagency Security Classification Appeals Panel. General restrictions on the handling of classified information are prescribed, as are distribution controls for classified information. The Information Security Oversight Office (ISOO) within the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) is mandated to provide central management and oversight of the security classification program. A review of this entity finds that a violation of the order or its implementing directives has occurred, it must be reported to the head of the agency, or the Office of the Secretary of Defense, and to ISOO, so that corrective steps, if appropriate, may be taken.

While Congress, thus far, has elected not to treat the information governance clearly and simply, the IC has grown in size, complexity, and cost. In March 1972 when a subcommittee of what is now the House Committee on Government Reform launched the first oversight hearings, it was on the Administration’s Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Enacted in 1966, FOIA had become operative in July 1967. In the early months of 1972, the Nixon Administration sought to place security classification policy and procedure, and have been tested by GAO regarding SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED INFORMATION

The widespread existence and use of information control markings other than those prescribed for the security classification of information came to congressional attention in March 1972 when a subcommittee of what is now the House Committee on Government Reform launched the first oversight hearings, it was on the Administration’s Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Enacted in 1966, FOIA had become operative in July 1967. It has acknowledged that agencies prepare plans for declassifying classified data in FY 2003 to the end of December 2006, eliminating the requirement that agencies prepare plans for declassifying records; and permitting the Director of Central Intelligence to block declassification actions of the Interagency Security Classification Appeals Panel, unless overruled by the President. numbers are important in terms of the variety of such markings. GAO explained this dimension of the management problem. [There are at least 15 agencies that use the term “sensitive but unclassified” (SBU) or “limited public access” (LPA), but there are at least five different definitions of SBU. At least seven agencies or agencies use the term “Law Enforcement Sensitive” (LES), including the U.S. Marshals Service, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), the Department of Justice (DOJ), and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). Some of these agencies have differing definitions for the term. While DHS does not formally define the designation, the Department of Justice defines it to include information pertaining to the protection of senior government officials, and OMB defines it as unclassified information used by law enforcement agencies and the government protection against unauthorized disclosure to protect the sources and methods of investigative activity, evidence, and the integrity of pretrial investigative reports.

Apart from the numbers, however, is another aspect of the management problem, which GAO described in the following terms:

There are no government-wide policies or procedures that describe the basis on which agencies should use most of these sensitive but unclassified designations, explain what the different designations mean across agencies, or ensure that they will be used consistently from one agency to another. In this absence of traceability, the different designations to apply to the sensitive but unclassified information it develops or shares.

These markings also have implications in another regard. The importance of information sharing for combating terrorism and re- alizing homeland security was emphasized by the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks upon the United States. That commission identified and marked forms of sensitive but unclassified (SBU) information could be problematic with regard to information sharing was recognized by Congress when fashioning the Homeland Security Act of 2002. Section 892 of that statute specifically directed the President to prescribe and implement procedures for sharing of information by relevant federal agencies, including the accommodation of “homeland security information that is sensitive but unclassified.” This Section 892, the President had assigned this responsibility largely to the Secretary of Homeland Security. Nothing resulted. The importance of information sharing was recognized by the Intelligence Capabilities Act of the United States Regarding Weapons of Mass Destruction, Congress again responded by mandating the creation of an Information Sharing Environment (ISE) when legislating the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004. Preparatory to implementing the ISE provisions, the President issued a December 16, 2005, memorandum recognizing the need for standards for SBU information and directing department and agency officials to take certain actions relative to that objective. In May 2006, the newly appointed manager of the ISE agreed with a March 2005 GAO assessment that, oftentimes, SBU information, designated as such with some marking, was not being shared due to concerns about their designation as SBU. The manager denied that these markings were or would be used to protect it. In brief, it appears that pseudo-classification markings have, in some instances, had the effect of deterring information sharing and security.

Congressional overseers have probed executive use and management of information control markings other than those prescribed by the classification of national security sharing for homeland security purposes. Classification markings have, in some instances, served to prevent it. In brief, it appears that pseudo-classification or a form of overclassification. Relevant remedial legislation proposed during the 109th Congress includes two bills (H.R. 2331 and H.R. 512) containing sections which would require the committees to institute procedures to prepare a detailed report regarding the number, use, and management of these information control markings and submit it to specified congressional committees, among other responsibilities, to promulgate regulations banning the use of these markings and otherwise establish standards for information control designations established by different agencies relating to the classification of national security information. A section in the Department of Homeland Security Act of 2002 (H.R. 5441), as approved by the House, would require the Secretary of Homeland Security to revise DHS MD (Management Directives) 8566 to include (1) provision that information that is three years old and not incorporated in a current, active transportation security directive or security plan shall be determined automatically to be releasable unless, for each specific document, the Secretary makes a written determina- tion that identifies a compelling reason why the information is Sensitive Security Information (SSI); (2) common and extensive examples of the individual categories of SSI cited in order to minimize and standardize judicial interpretation of SSI marking; and (3) provision that, in all judicial proceedings where the judge over- seeing the proceedings has adjudicated that a party needs access to SSI, the party shall be deemed a covered person for purposes of access to the SSI at issue in the case unless TSA or DHS demonstrates a compelling reason why the specific individual presents a risk of harm to the nation. A May 25, 2006, statement of administration policy mentioned in the section, saying it “would jeopardize an important program that protects Sensitive Security Information (SSI) from public release by deeming it automatically releasable in three years, potentially conflict with requirements of the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts, and negate statutory provisions providing original jurisdiction for lawsuits challenging the designation of SSI materials in the U.S. Courts of Appeals.” The statement further indicated that the section would “delegitimize the review process” for the Secretary of Homeland Security and would result in different statutory requirements being applied to SSI programs administered by the Department of Homeland Security and Transportation.”

From: Alfred Cumming, Specialist in Intelligence and National Security, Foreign Affairs, Defense, and Trade Division. Subject: Congressional Oversight of Intelligence

This memorandum examines the intelligence community that was established by Congress in the 1970s, including the creation of the congressional select intelligence committees by the U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate, respectively. It also looks at the intelligence oversight role that Congress currently plays in overseeing the intelligence community. The intelligence committees are responsible for over- seeing the intelligence community. Although willing to cede primary jurisdiction over the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to the two new select intelligence committees, these congressional standing committees wanted to retain jurisdiction over the intelligence activities of the other departments and agencies they oversee. According to one observer, the standing committees asserted their jurisdictional prerogatives for two reasons—to protect “ turf,” but also to provide “a hedge against the possibility that the newly launched experiment in oversight might go bad.”

Intelligence Committees; Statutory Obligations

BG Under current statute, the President is required to ensure that the congressional intelligence committees are kept “fully and currently informed” of the intelligence activities, including any “significant anticipated intelligence activity,” and that the President and the intelligence committees are required to establish any procedures as may be necessary to carry out these provisions.

The statute, however, stipulates that the intelligence committees in turn are responsible for alerting the respective chambers or congressional standing committees of any intelligence activities requiring further attention. The intelligence committees are to carry out this responsibility in accordance with procedures established by the House of Representatives and the Senate, in consulta- tion with the Director of National Intelligence, in order to protect against unauthorized disclosure of classified information, and all information relating to sources and methods.

The statute stipulates that “each of the congressional intelligence committees shall promptly call to the attention of its respective chamber, or to any committee or committees of its respective House, any matter relating to intelligence activities requiring the attention of such House or such committee or committees.”

This provision was included in statute after being specifically requested in a letter from then Senate Foreign Relations Chair Frank Church and Majority Member Jacob Javits in an Apr. 30, 1980 letter to then-intelligence committee Chairman Birch Bayh and Vice Chairman Barry Gold- wasser.

Intelligence Committee Obligations Under Resolution

In an apparent effort to address various concerns relating to committee jurisdiction, the House of Representatives and the Senate, in the resolutions establishing each of the intelligence committees, included language preserving oversight roles for those standing committees with jurisdiction over matters affected by intelligence activities. Specifically, each intelligence committee’s resolution states that this [Charter] shall be construed as prohibiting or otherwise restricting the authority of any other committee to study and review any intelligence activity. For example, such activity directly affects a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of such committee.” committees determine that they require further committees and the respective chambers if the determination.

ever, do not specify what role, if any, these committees in the 1970s. The resolutions, how-to the establishment of the intelligence committees provide for the desing committees, to the extent that certain intelligence activities affect matters that fall under the jurisdiction of a committee other than the intelligence committees.

Finally, the resolutions establishing the intelligence committees make clear that the intelligence committees share intelligence oversight responsibilities with other standing committees, to the extent that certain intelligence activities affect matters that fall under the jurisdiction of a committee other than the intelligence committees.

SUMMARY CONCLUSIONS

Although the President is statutorily obligated to keep the congressional intelligence committees fully and currently informed of intelligence activities, the statutes otherwise give the intelligence committees to inform the respective chambers, or standing committees, of such activities, if either of the two committees determine that further oversight attention is required.

Further, resolutions establishing the two intelligence committees make clear that the intelligence committees share intelligence oversight responsibilities with other standing committees, to the extent that certain intelligence activities affect matters that fall under the jurisdiction of a committee other than the intelligence committees.

Finally, the resolutions establishing the intelligence committees provide for the designation of “cross-over” members representing certain standing committees that played a role in intelligence oversight prior to the establishment of the intelligence committees in the 1970s. The resolutions, however, do not specify what role, if any, these “cross-over” members play in keeping standing committees on which they serve informed of certain intelligence activities. Rather, each statute establishes that each respective intelligence committee shall make that determination.

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Ms. SNOWE, MR. BIDEN, and MR. LIEBERMAN):

S. 83. A bill to provide increased rail transportation security; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined today by Senators SNOWE, BIDEN, and LIEBERMAN in introducing the Rail Security Act of 2007. This legislation is nearly identical to the rail security measures approved by the Senate during both the 106th and 109th Congresses. Unfortunately, the House of Representatives has yet to act on rail security legislation. I remain hopeful that rail security will be made a top priority for the 110th Congress.

We have taken important steps and expended considerable resources to secure the homeland since 9/11. I think all would agree that air travel is safer than it was five years ago. And all have worked to address port security in a comprehensive manner. However, we need to do more to better secure other transportation modes, a fact well documented by the 9/11 Commission. Unfortunately, only relatively modest new resources have been dedicated to rail security in recent years. As a result, our Nation’s transit system, Amtrak, and the freight railroads remain vulnerable to terrorist attacks.

The Rail Security Act would authorize a total of almost $1.2 billion dollars for rail security. More than half of this funding would be authorized to complete tunnel safety and security improvements at New York’s Penn Station and over 500,000 transit, commuter, and intercity passenger stations. The legislation would also establish a grant program to encourage security enhancements by the freight railroads, Amtrak, shippers of hazardous materials, and local governments with responsibility for passenger stations. It would help to address identified security weaknesses in a manner that also seeks to protect the taxpayers’ interests.

As we continue to fight the War on Terror, we need to do all we can to address our vulnerabilities. We have witnessed the tragic attacks on rail systems in other countries, including the cities of London, Munich and Madrid, and the devastating consequences of those attacks. It is essential that we move expeditiously to protect all the modes of transportation from potential attack, and this legislation will help to do just that.

As I mentioned earlier, the Senate has consistently supported legislation to promote rail security. Most recently, rail security provisions were adopted last Fall as part of the port security legislation. But again, the House failed to allow these important security provisions to move ahead, and the provisions were stripped from the conference agreement. As a result, our rail network continues to remain vulnerable to terrorist attack. That is unacceptable in my judgement.

I urge the Senate to move quickly to again pass this important legislation.

Mr. McCcAIN (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, and Mr. DORGAN):

S. 94. A bill to establish the United States Boxing Commission to administer the Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to be joined by Senators STEVENS and DORGAN in introducing the Professional Boxing Amendments Act of 2007. This legislation is virtually identical to a measure approved unanimously by the Senate in 2005. I remain committed to moving the Professional Boxing Amendments Act through the Senate and I trust that my colleagues will once again vote favorably on this important legislation. Simply put, this legislation would better protect professional boxing, that is, with respect to flying, corruption, and ineffective regulation that have plagued the sport for far too many years, and that have devastated physically and financially many of our Nation’s professional boxers.

For the past several years, Congress has made efforts to improve the sport of professional boxing and for very good reason. With rare exception, professional boxers come from the lowest rung on our economic ladder. Often they are the least educated and most exploited athletes in our nation. The Professional Boxing Safety Act of 1996 and the Muhammad Ali Boxing Reform Act of 2000 established uniform health and safety standards for professional boxers, both as well as basic protections for boxers against the sometimes coercive, exploitive, and unethical business practices of promoters, managers, and sanctioning organizations. But further action is needed.

The Professional Boxing Amendments Act would strengthen existing Federal boxing law by improving the basic health and safety standards for professional boxers, establishing a centralized medical registry to be used by local commissions, reducing the arbitrary practices of sanctioning organizations, and enhancing the uniformity and basic standards for professional boxing contracts. Most importantly, this legislation would establish a Federal regulatory entity to oversee professional boxing and set basic uniform standards for certain aspects of the sport.

Current law has improved to some extent the state of professional boxing. However, as do many others, that the sport remains at risk. In 2003, the Government Accountability Office (GAO) spent more than six months studying ten of the country’s busiest State and tribal boxing commissions. Government auditors found that many State and tribal boxing commissions still do not comply with Federal boxing law, and that there is a troubling lack of enforcement by both Federal and State officers.

Ineffective and inconsistent oversight of professional boxing has contributed to the continuing scandals, controversies, unethical practices, and unnecessary deaths in the sport. These problems have led many in professional boxing to conclude that the only solution is an effective and accountable Federal boxing commission. The Professional Boxing Amendments Act would create such an entity.

Professional boxing is the only major sport in United States that does not have a strong, centralized association, league, or other regulatory body to establish and enforce uniform rules and practices. Because a powerful few benefit greatly from the current system of patchwork compliance and enforcement of Federal boxing law, a national self-regulating organization though preferable to Federal government oversight is not a realistic option.

This bill would establish the United States Boxing Commission, USBC or Commission. The Commission would be responsible for protecting the health, safety, and general interests of professional boxers. The Commission would also be responsible for ensuring uniformity, fairness, and integrity in professional boxing. More specifically, the Commission would administer Federal boxing law and coordinate with other Federal regulatory agencies to ensure that this law is enforced; oversee all professional boxing matches in the United States; and work with the boxing industry and local commissions to improve the safety, integrity, and professionalism of professional boxing in the United States.

The USBC would also license boxers, promoters, managers, and sanctioning organizations. The Commission would have the authority to revoke such a license for violations of Federal boxing law, to stop unethical or illegal conduct, to protect the health and safety of a boxer, or if the revocation is otherwise in the public interest.

Mr. President, it is important to state clearly and plainly for the record that the purpose of the USBC is not to interfere with the daily operations of State and tribal boxing commissions. Instead, the Commission would work in consultation with local commissions, and it would only exercise its authority when reasonable grounds exist for such intervention. In point of fact, the Professional Boxing Act of 1996 and the Muhammad Ali Boxing Reform Act of 2000 states explicitly that it would not prohibit any boxing commission from exercising any of its powers, duties, or functions with respect to the regulation or supervision of professional boxing to the extent not inconsistent with the provisions of Federal law.

Let there be no doubt, however, of the very basic and pressing need in professional boxing for a Federal boxing commission. The establishment of the USBC would address that need. The problems that plague the sport of professional boxing undermine the credibility of the sport in the eyes of the public and—more importantly—compromise the safety of boxers. The Professional Boxing Amendments Act provides an effective approach to curbing these problems. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

S. 85. A bill to amend the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to clarify that territories and Indian tribes are eligible to receive grants for confronting the use of methamphetamine; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Indian Tribes Methamphetamine Reduction Grants Act of 2007. This bill is H.R. 4113, a bipartisan measure that was passed by unanimous consent in the Senate on December 8, 2006, the last day of the 109th Congress. The legislation would allow Indian tribes to be eligible for funding through the Department of Justice to eradicate the scourge of methamphetamine use, sale and manufacture in Native American communities. I am pleased to be joined by Senators Dorgan, Baucus, Grassley, Reid, Feinsteins, and Feingold in introducing this important legislation.

The impacts of methamphetamine use on communities across the Nation are well known and cannot be overstated. Methamphetamine is the leading illegal drug enforcement problem in the country. Unfortunately, the meth crisis is affecting Indian Country most severely. Very serious concerns have been raised by the U.S. Department of Justice, States, and other non-tribal law enforcement agencies over the rapidly growing levels of methamphetamine production and trafficking on reservations with large geographic areas or tribes adjacent to the U.S.-Mexico border. But because of the sovereign status of the tribes, criminal actions are often not subject to state jurisdiction in many cases. As a result, local law enforcement often has no jurisdiction in Indian country, and tribal law enforcement agencies bear the brunt of most law enforcement functions.

The problem of meth in Indian country, which the National Congress of American Indians identified last year as its top priority, is ubiquitous, and has strained already overburdened law enforcement resources. Drug dozing, health, social dislocation, and child protective and placement services on Indian reservations. Last year a former tribal judge on the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming pled guilty to conspiracy to distribute, methamphetamine and other drugs. The day before, the Navajo Nation police arrested an 81 year old grandmother, her daughter, and her granddaughter, for selling meth. One tribe in Arizona had over 60 babies born with meth in their systems. In 2005, the National Indian Housing Council expanded its training for dealing with meth in tribal housing; the average cost of decontaminating a single residence that has been used a meth lab is $10,000.

During the 109th Congress, as the Chairman of the Senate Indian Affairs Committee, I held hearings on this serious matter. Committee witnesses testified that the methamphetamine epidemic in Indian country has contributed to a rise in child abuse and neglect cases, among other social ills, and some tribes reported dramatic increases in suicide rates among young people linked to methamphetamine use. Following our hearings, I was pleased to work with Senators Dorgan, Sessions, Bingaman and others in improving upon our legislation to assist Indian Country in fighting this terrible drug crisis.

To avoid any potential misinterpretation of the intent of this legislation, this bill includes language developed and agreed to during the last Congress that is designed to clarify the intent of the bill. This clarifying language, provided in section 2(a)(4) of the bill, is intended to make it clear that by authorizing the Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Assistance to award grant funds to a state, territory or Indian tribe to "investigate, arrest and prosecute individuals" involved in illegal methamphetamine activities, the legislation does not somehow authorize a grantee state, territory or Indian tribe to pursue law enforcement activities that it otherwise has no jurisdiction to pursue. Similarly, this provision also clarifies that an award or denial of a grant by the Bureau of Justice Assistance does not somehow allow a state, territory or Indian tribe to pursue law enforcement activities that it otherwise lacks jurisdiction to pursue. For example, a law enforcement agency in one state, territory or Indian reservation is not somehow enabled by this section, or by an award made pursuant to this section, to prosecute a methamphetamine crime arising in some other jurisdiction unless that agency already has such jurisdiction.

The legislation further clarifies that authority under the bill to award grants would have no effect beyond simply authorizing, awarding or denying a grant of funds to a state, territory or Indian tribe. So, for example, if a state, territory or Indian tribe is awarded or denied a grant of funds under this section, that award or denial has no relevance to or effect on the eligibility of the state, territory or Indian tribe to participate in any other program or activity unrelated to the award or denial of grants as permitted under this legislation. The award or denial of a grant under this section, in other words, is relevant only to the award or denial of the grant under this subsection, and nothing else.

The measure I am introducing today takes but a small step on the long journey toward our fight against methamphetamine. I encourage my colleagues to support it.

S. 86. A bill to designate segments of Fossil Creek, a tributary to the Verde River in the State of Arizona, as wild and scenic rivers; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to present the American Indian Policy Advisory Committee, Senator KYL, in reintroducing a bill to designate Fossil Creek as a Wild and Scenic River. A companion measure is being introduced today by Congressman RENZI and other members of the Arizona congressional delegation.

Fossil Creek is a thing of beauty. With its picturesque scenery, lush riparian ecosystem, unique geological features, and deep blue pools and waterfalls, this tributary to the Wild and Scenic Verde River and Lower Colorado River Watershed stretches 14 miles through east central Arizona. It is home to a wide variety of wildlife, some of which are threatened or endangered species. Over 100 bird species inhabit the Fossil Creek area and use it to migrate between the range lowlands and the Mogollon-Colorado Plateau highlands. Fossil Creek also supports a variety of aquatic species and is one of the few perennial streams in Arizona with multiple native fish.

Fossil Creek was named in the 1800's when early explorers described the fossil-like appearance of creek-side rocks and vegetation coated with calcium carbonate deposits from the creek's water. In the early 1900's, pioneers recognized the potential for hydroelectric power generation in the creek's constant and abundant spring fed baseflow. They claimed the channel's water rights and built a dam system and generating facilities known as the Childs-Irving hydro-project. Over time, the project was acquired by Arizona Public Service (APS), one of the state's largest electric utility serving providers than a major water user. Because Childs-Irving produced less than half of 1 percent of the total power generated by APS, the decision was made ultimately to decommission the aging dam and restore Fossil Creek to its pre-settlement conditions.

APS has partnered with various environmental groups, federal land managers, and state, tribal and local governments to safely remove the Childs-Irving power generating facilities and restore the riparian environment. In 2005, APS removed the dam system and returned full flows to Fossil Creek. Researchers predict Fossil Creek will soon become a fully regenerated Southwestern native fishery providing a valuable opportunity to reintroduce at least six Threatened and Endangered native fish species as well as rebuild the native populations presently living in the creek.

There is a growing need to provide additional protection and adequate staffing and management at Fossil Creek. Recreational visitation to the riverbed is expected to increase dramatically, and by the Forest Service's own admission, they aren't able to manage current levels of visitation or the pressures of increased use. While responsible recreation and other activities at Fossil Creek are to be encouraged, we must also ensure the long-term success of the ongoing restoration efforts. Designation under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act would ensure the appropriate level of protection and resources are devoted to Fossil Creek. Already, Fossil Creek has been found eligible for Wild and Scenic designation by the Forest Service and the proposal has widespread support from surrounding communities. All of the lands potentially affected by a designation are owned and managed by the Forest Service and will not affect private property.

Fossil Creek is a unique Arizona treasure, and would benefit greatly from the protection and recognition offered through Wild and Scenic designation. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Ms. CANTWELL, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LAUTENBERG, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 95. A bill to amend titles XIX and XXI of the Social Security Act to ensure that every uninsured child in America has health insurance coverage, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today the first bill I am introducing in the 110th Congress is the Kids Come First Act, legislation that would ensure every child in America has health care coverage. The Kids Come First Act was also the first bill I introduced in the 109th Congress and I feel just as strongly today as I did at the beginning of the last Congress that insuring all children must be a top agenda item. In the two years since I last introduced this bill, I have seen our country, the world, children in this nation actually worsened.

The 110th Congress faces many challenges, from the war in Iraq to lobbying reform. But perhaps no issue bears more directly on the lives of more Americans than health care reform. Today 47 million Americans are uninsured, including 11 million under age 21. Health care has become a slow-motion Katrina that is ruining lives and bankrupting families all over the country. We cannot stand by as the ranks of the uninsured rise and American families find themselves in peril.

A recent Census Bureau report revealed that for the first time in almost a decade the number of uninsured children increased. In 2005 there were 361,000 children under the age of 18 added to the uninsured rolls. And the number of Americans without health care continues to rise.

The Kids Come First Act calls for a Federal-State partnership to mandate health care coverage to every child in America. The proposal makes the states an offer they can’t refuse. The federal government will pay for the most expensive part: enrolling all low-income children in Medicaid, automatically. The states will pay to expand coverage to higher income children. In the end, states across the country will save more than $6 billion a year, and every child will have health care.

It is totally unacceptable that, in the greatest country in the world, millions of children are not getting the health care they need. The Kids Come First Act expands coverage for children up to age of 21. Through expanding the programs that work, such as Medicaid and SCHIP, we can cover all eleven million children uninsured children.

Insuring children improves their health and helps families cover the spiraling costs of treating them. Covering all kids will reduce avoidable hospitalizations by 22 percent and replace expensive critical care with inexpensive preventative care. Also, when children get the medical attention they need, they pay much better attention in the classroom. Studies show their performance improves.

To pay for the expansion of health insurance for children, the Kids Come First Act includes a provision that provides the Secretary of Treasury with the authority to raise the highest income tax rate to 36.9 percent in order to offset the costs. Prior to the enactment of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Act Reconciliation Act of 2001, the top marginal rate was 36 percent. Less than one percent of taxpayers pay the top rate and for 2007, this rate only affects individual with income above $349,700.

The health care of our children is a priority that we must address and it can be done in a fiscally responsible manner. I will continue to work to find ways to offset the cost of my proposal. The wealthiest of all Americans do not need a tax cut when 11 million children are without health insurance. President Bush has called for this rate cut to be made permanent, but I believe it would be a better use of our resources to invest in our future by improving health care for children.

Since I first introduced the Kids Come First Act in the 109th Congress, more than 500,000 people have shown their support for the bill by becoming Citizen Cosponsors and another 20,000 Americans called into our “Give Voices to Our Children” hotline to share their personal stories. In addition, a coalition of 24 non-profit organizations representing 20 million people from across the country have endorsed Kids Come First, including the National Association of Children’s Hospitals, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Academy of Family Physicians, March of Dimes, the Small Business Service Bureau, AFL-CIO, SEIU, and AFSCME.

It is clear that providing health care coverage for our uninsured children is a priority for our nation’s workers, businesses, and health care community. They know, as do I, that further delay only results in graver health problems for America’s children. Their future, and ours, depends on us doing better. I urge my colleagues to support and help enacting the Kids Come First Act of 2007 during this Congress.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the Kids Come First Act of 2007 be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) NEED FOR UNIVERSAL COVERAGE.—

(a) Currently, there are 9,000,000 children under the age of 19 that are uninsured. One out of every 8 children are uninsured while 1 in 5 Hispanic children and 1 in 7 African American children are uninsured. Three-quarters, approximately 6,800,000, of these uninsured live in poverty. They are eligible for Medicaid or SCHIP. Among children under 18, about one out of five do not have health insurance.

Sec. 2—Partial repeal of rate reduction in the highest income tax bracket.

The Medicaid program and SCHIP.

1. The number of uninsured children fell due to the Medicaid program and SCHIP offset the Medicaid expansion of coverage for children and pregnant women under the Medicaid program and SCHIP.

2. During the recent economic downturn, the Medicaid program and SCHIP expansions to date have done much to offset what otherwise would have been a significant loss of coverage among children because of declining access to employer coverage, the shortcomings of previous expansions, such as the failure to enroll all eligible children and a high percentage of children in SCHIP because of under-funding, also are clear.

3. Title I—Expanded Coverage of Children under Medicaid and SCHIP

4. The Medicaid program and SCHIP serve as a crucial health safety net for 30,000,000 children in the United States. In the Northeast, 9.4 times more likely to be uninsured than children in the rest of the United States were nearly 1.7 times more likely to be uninsured than children in the Midwest. 8.3 percent are uninsured. The South's rate of uninsured children is 14.3 percent while the West has an uninsured rate of 15 percent.

5. Children's health care needs are neglected in the United States. One out of every 5 children has problems accessing needed medical care, 0.4 of all uninsured children have not had a well-child visit in the past year. One in 6 uninsured children has a delayed or unmet medical need in the past year. Children are less likely to receive proven treatments such as prescription medications to treat chronic disease.

6. There are 7,600,000 young adults between the ages of 19 and 20. In the United States, approximately 28 percent, or 2,100,000 individuals, of this group are uninsured.

7. Children without health insurance are twice as likely as insured children to not receive any medical care in a given year. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly 1⁄3 of all uninsured children have not had a well-child visit in the past year. One in 6 uninsured children had a delayed or unmet medical need in the past year. Children are less likely to receive proven treatments such as prescription medications to treat chronic disease.

By Mr. KERRY:

S. 96. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to ensure a fairer and simpler method of taxing controlled foreign corporations of United States shareholders, to treat certain foreign corporations managed and controlled in the United States as domestic corporations, to codify the economic substance doctrine, and to eliminate the top corporate income tax rate, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing the “Export Products Not Jobs Act of 2007,” a bill that would greatly simplify the tax code. And our tax reform should be based upon the following three principles: fairness, simplicity, and opportunity for economic growth.

Citizens and businesses struggle to comply with rules governing taxation of business income, capital gains, income phase-outs, extenders, the myriad

Recent press articles have revealed examples of companies taking advantage of this perverse incentive in our tax code. For instance, some companies have taken advantage of this initiative by opening subsidiaries to serve markets throughout Europe. Much of the profit earned by these subsidiaries will stay in the European countries and the companies therefore avoid paying U.S. taxes. Other companies have announced the expansion of jobs in India. This reflects a common pattern among some U.S. multinational companies of shifting software development and call centers to India, and this trend is starting to expand include the shifting critical functions like design and research and development to India as well. Some companies are even outsourcing the preparation of U.S. tax returns.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act would put an end to these practices by eliminating tax credits that encourage companies to move investment and jobs overseas and by using the savings to create jobs in the United States by repealing the top corporate rate. This legislation leads tax breaks that encourage companies that move investment and jobs overseas to move jobs overseas, but to reinvest profits permanently, as opposed to bringing the profits back to re-invest in the United States.

Although some U.S. multinational companies shifting software development and call centers to India, and this trend is starting to expand include the shifting critical functions like design and research and development to India as well. Some companies are even outsourcing the preparation of U.S. tax returns.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act would put an end to these practices by eliminating tax credits that encourage companies to move investment and jobs overseas and by using the savings to create jobs in the United States by repealing the top corporate rate. This legislation leads tax breaks that encourage companies that move investment and jobs overseas to move jobs overseas, but to reinvest profits permanently, as opposed to bringing the profits back to re-invest in the United States.
Last Congress, the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Revenue held a hearing on international tax laws. Stephen Shay, a former Reagan Treasury official, testified that our tax rules "provide incentives to locate business activity outside the United States." Furthermore, he contended that the tax system punishes U.S. companies that choose to create and maintain jobs in the United States. These companies pay higher taxes and suffer a competitive disadvantage with a company that chooses to move jobs to a foreign tax haven. There is no reason why our tax code should provide an incentive that encourages investment and job creation overseas. Under my legislation, companies would be taxed the same whether they invest abroad or at home. They will be taxed on their foreign subsidiary profits just like they are taxed on their domestic profits.

This legislation reflects the most sweeping simplification of international taxes in over 40 years. Our economy has grown over the last 40 years and our tax laws need to be updated to keep pace. Our current global economy was not even envisioned when existing law was written.

My Export Products Not Jobs Act will in no way hinder our global competitiveness. Companies will be able to continue to defer income they earn when they locate production in a foreign country that serves that foreign country's markets. For example, if a U.S. company wants to open a hotel in Bermuda or a car factory in India to sell cars, foreign income can still be deferred. But if a company wants to open a call center in India to answer calls from outside India or relocate abroad to answer back to the United States or Canada, the company must pay taxes just like call centers and auto manufacturers located in the United States.

Currently, American companies allocate their revenue not in search of the highest return, but in search of lower taxes. Eliminating deferral will improve the efficiency of the economy by making taxes neutral so that they do not encourage companies to overinvest abroad purely for tax reasons.

The Congressional Research Service stated in a 2003 report that, "[a]ccording to traditional economic theory, deferral thus reduces economic welfare by encouraging firms to undertake overseas investments that are less productive—before taxes are considered—than alternative investments in the United States." Additionally, a 2000 Department of Treasury study on deferral stated, "[a]mong all of the options considered, ending deferral would also have the most positive long-term effect on economic efficiency and welfare because it would do the most to eliminate tax considerations from decisions regarding the location of investment."

The "Export Products Not Jobs Act," would modify the rules for determining residency for publicly-traded companies by basing a corporation's residency on the primary place of management and control. This will prevent companies from locating in tax havens, but basically maintaining their operations in the United States. This provision should not hinder foreign investment in the United States. As foreign corporations that are incorporated in foreign countries with a comprehensive tax treaty with the United States will not be affected by this provision.

Massachusetts is an example of a state that benefits from foreign investment. Two foreign companies have recently expanded investment in Massachusetts. Our tax system should not discourage foreign investment, but it should not encourage companies to locate in tax havens.

The revenue raised from the repeal of deferral and closing corporate loopholes would be used to repeal the top corporate tax rate of 35 percent. The tax differential between U.S. corporate rates and foreign corporate rates has grown over the last two decades and the repeal of the top corporate rate is a start in narrowing this gap.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act would promote equity among U.S. taxpayers by ensuring that corporations that could not eliminate foreign income by separately incorporating their foreign operations. This legislation will eliminate the tax incentives to encourage U.S. companies to invest abroad and reward those companies that have chosen to invest in the United States. I urge my colleagues to join me in this effort, and I ask unanimous consent that summary of the Export Products Not Jobs Act, as well as the text of the legislation, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXPORT PRODUCTS NOT JOBS ACT OVERVIEW

The Export Products Not Jobs Act makes sweeping changes to the current international tax laws by: (1) ending tax breaks that encourage companies to move jobs overseas by eliminating the ability of companies to defer or delay paying U.S. taxes on foreign income; (2) simplifying current-law Subpart F rules; (3) closing abusive corporate tax loopholes; and (4) repealing the top corporate tax rate. Currently, foreign companies that defer or delay paying U.S. taxes on income earned by their foreign subsidiaries, providing a substantial tax break for companies to move investment and jobs overseas. Except as provided under the Subpart F rules, American companies generally do not have to pay taxes on their active foreign income until they repatriate it to the United States.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act eliminates deferral so companies will be taxed on their foreign subsidiary profits in the same manner they are taxed on domestic profits. This new system will apply to profits in future years. In order to ensure that American companies can compete in international markets, income companies earn when they locate production in a foreign country that serves that foreign country's home markets can still be deferred.

The Subpart F rules which govern the taxation of foreign subsidiaries controlled by American companies have increasingly complicated over time, adding to the overall complexity of the tax code and making it easier for companies to exploit loopholes to escape paying taxes. Under this bill, the complexity created by the current Subpart F rules will be eliminated and a simpler, more transparent system will be put into place.

In a tax system without deferral, U.S.-based multinational corporations might be tempted to locate their top-tiered entity overseas to avoid taxation on the income of a foreign subsidiary. This legislation would strengthen the corporate residency test by preventing companies from incorporating in a foreign jurisdiction to avoid U.S. taxation on a worldwide basis. The current law test that is based solely on where the company is incorporated is artificial, and allows foreign corporations that are economically similar to American companies to avoid being taxed like American companies. Determining residency based on the location of a company's primary place of management and control will provide a more meaningful standard.

In order to prevent abusive tax transactions, the legislation contains a provision that would codify the judicially-developed economic substance test, which disallows transactions where the profit potential is insufficient compared to the tax benefits. This proposal is identical to the economic substance provisions that have been passed repeatedly by the Senate.

This revenue saving from ending deferral, strengthening the corporate residency test, and shutting down abusive tax shelters will be used to lower the top corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 34 percent. The tax differential between U.S. corporations and foreign corporate rates has grown over the last two decades. This proposal, in combination with the deduction for domestic manufacturing activity when fully phased-in in 2009, will result in a corporate tax rate of 31 percent for domestic manufacturing activity. The "Export Products Not Jobs Act" moves in the right direction towards narrowing this gap.

SUMMARY OF PROVISIONS

I. Reform and Simplification of Subpart F Income

Subpart F Income Defined

Present law

Generally within the U.S., 10-percent shareholders of a controlled foreign corporation (CFC) are taxed on the pro rata shares of certain income referred to as Subpart F income. A CFC generally is defined as any foreign corporation that is owned (directly, indirectly, or constructively) own more than 50 percent of the corporation's stock (measured by vote or value), taking into account only those U.S. persons that own at least 10 percent of the stock (measured by vote only). Typically, Subpart F income is passive income or income that is readily movable from one taxing jurisdiction to another. Subpart F income is defined in code section 952 as foreign base company income, insurance income, and certain income relating to international boycotts and other violations of public policy.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

This legislation strikes code section 952 and replaces it with a new definition of Subpart F income. Generally, Subpart F income is defined as all gross income of the controlled foreign corporation with exceptions... for certain types of income. Subpart F income of a CFC for any taxable year is limited to the earnings and profits of the CFC for that taxable year. Subpart F will continue to include income related to international boycotts.

Exceptions to Subpart F Income

Present law

Subpart F income is defined in the code rather narrowly and the definition lists the income that includes Subpart F income. The income derived in connection with the provision of services, which is located in the home country. Servicemen who, at the time the services are provided, are located in the home country. This temporary exception expires at the end of 2008. Under current law, there are temporary exceptions from the Subpart F provisions for certain active financing income, which is income derived in the active conduct of a banking, financing, or similar business, or in the conduct of an insurance business. This temporary exception expires at the end of 2008.

Temporary Active Financing Exception

Under current law, there are temporary exceptions from the Subpart F provisions for certain active financing income, which is income derived in the active conduct of a banking, financing, or similar business, or in the conduct of an insurance business. This temporary exception expires at the end of 2008.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

Under the legislation, Subpart F income is generally defined as income of a CFC except for active home country income of the CFC. Active home country income constitutes qualified property income or qualified service income and is treated as active and incidental conduct of one or more trades or businesses within the home country. The home country is defined as the country in which the CFC is created or organized.

Qualified property income is defined as income derived in connection with: (1) the manufacture, production, growth, or extraction of property within the home country of the CFC; or (2) the resale in the home country of the CFC of personal property that is manufactured, produced, grown, or extracted within the home country of such corporation for the resale of such property by the CFC in the home country. The property has to be sole for that consumption within the home country in either case. Qualified services income is defined as income derived in connection with the providing of services with customers who, at the time the services are provided, are located in the home country. Services are required: (1) to be used in the home country; (2) to be used in the active conduct of trade or business by the recipient where substantially all of the activities in connection with the trade or business are conducted by the recipient in the home country.

Under the “Export Products Not Jobs Act,” the current-law temporary active financing exception is repealed. The legislation includes a de minimis exception providing that if the Subpart F income of a CFC is less than the lesser of five percent of gross income, the Subpart F income of the CFC is zero for that taxable year.

For purposes of calculating the Subpart F income of a CFC, properly allocated deductions are allowed. A CFC can elect to be treated as a domestic corporation. The election will apply to the taxable year for which it is made and all subsequent taxable years unless revoked within the home country of the CFC is treated as a domestic corporation, pre-2008 earnings and profits are not included in gross income.

Captive Insurance Income

Present Law

Under current law, special rules apply to captive insurance companies that have related person insurance income which is defined as any insurance income attributable to a policy of insurance or reinsurance with respect to which the person (directly or indirectly) has a substantial ownership interest in the foreign corporation or a related person to such a shareholder. These companies are formed to insure the risks of the owners. Under current law, this lower ownership threshold applies to determine whether a captive insurance company is treated as a CFC subject to the current-law income inclusion rules of Subpart F. Under this lower ownership threshold, a captive insurance company is treated as a CFC if 25 percent or more of the stock is owned by U.S. persons.

The special rules for captive insurance companies were added in 1986 because Congress was concerned that the ownership of these companies was often dispersed widely and that these companies were not covered by the otherwise applicable ownership threshold for a CFC.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

The bill retains, in simplified form, the present-law concept of related person insurance income, and also retains the lower ownership threshold for captive insurance companies that are treated as CFCs. Captive insurance income that meets the requirements of the active and incidental exception to the active home country services income, however, can be deferred.

Effective Date

The above described provisions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2007.

II. Corporate Residency Definition

Present Law

The place of incorporation or organization determines whether a corporation is treated as foreign or domestic for purposes of U.S. tax law. Captive insurance income that meets the requirements of the active and incidental exception, like other active home country services income, however, can be deferred.

Effective Date

The above described provisions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2007.

III. Shutdown of Abusive Tax Shelters

Clarification of Economic Substance Doctrine

Present Law

Under current law, there are specific rules regarding the computation of taxable income. In addition to these statutory provisions, courts have developed several doctrines that can be applied to deny the tax benefits of motivated transactions, even though the transaction meets the requirements of a specific tax provision. Generally, courts have denied the tax benefits of transactions lack economic substance independent of tax considerations.

Present Law

The bill imposes a 40 percent penalty on any understatement attributable to any transaction that lacks economic substance (“nongeographic tax shelter”). The rate is reduced to 20 percent if the taxpaying corporation discloses the transaction and the transaction is a reasonable means of accomplishing such purpose. This proposal applies to transactions entered into after the date of enactment.

Penalty for Understatements Attributable to Transactions Lacking Economic Substance

Present Law

Under current law, there are various penalties for understatements. There is a 20 percent accuracy-related penalty imposed on any understatement attributable to any adequately disclosed listed transaction or certain reportable transactions (“reportable transaction understatements”). The penalty is increased to 30 percent if the transaction is not adequately disclosed in accordance with regulations.

Penalty for Understatements Attributable to Transactions Lacking Economic Substance

Present Law

Under current law, no deduction for interest is allowed for interest paid or accrued on the portion of any reportable transaction understatements. The proposal applies to transactions entered into after the date of enactment.

Penalty for Understatements Attributable to Nongeographic Substances

Present Law

Under current law, no deduction for interest is allowed for interest paid or accrued on the portion of any reportable transaction understatements. The proposal applies to transactions entered into after the date of enactment.

Penalty for Understatements Attributable to Nongeographic Substances

Present Law

The maximum corporate rate is 35 percent and the maximum rate of tax on corporate net capital gains will also be 34 percent. The 34 percent rate applies to income in excess of $75,000. The proposal applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2007.

Present Law

The bill amends the rules for determining corporate residency for publicly-traded companies or $1 million, the Subpart F income of a CFC is less than the lesser of five percent of gross income, the Subpart F income of a CFC is zero for that taxable year.

week’s Finance Committee hearing. My legislation creates a new credit that replaces the existing HOPE credit and Lifetime Learning credit and ultimately makes these benefits more generous.

The COTC has two components. The first provides a refundable tax credit for a student enrolled in a degree program at least on a half-time basis. It would provide a 100 percent tax credit for the first $1,000 of eligible expenses and a 50 percent tax credit for the next $3,000 of expenses. The maximum credit would be $2,500 each year per student.

The second provides a nonrefundable tax credit for part-time students, graduate students, and other students that do not qualify for the refundable tax credit. It provides a 40 percent credit for the first $1,000 of eligible expenses and a 20 percent credit for the next $3,000 of expenses.

Both of these credits can be used for expenses associated with tuition and fees. Income limits that apply to the HOPE credit and the Lifetime Learning credit apply to the COTC; the COTC will be phased out ratably for taxpayers with income between $45,000 and $55,000 ($90,000 and $110,000 for married taxpayers). Those amounts are indexed for inflation, as are the eligible amounts of expenses.

The College Opportunity Tax Credit Act of 2007 simplifies the existing credits that make higher education more affordable and will enable more students to be tax credit eligible. I understand that many of my colleagues are interested in making college more affordable. I look forward to working with my colleagues to make a refundable tax credit for college education a reality this Congress. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Ms. LANDRIEU):
Entrepreneurship Development Act of 2007. At the beginning of a new Congress it is important to set priorities for the nation because every new Congress brings with it the hope for a brighter future. One of the ways that this spirit of entrepreneurship can be harnessed is by fostering new opportunities for more Americans to pursue the American dream. As incoming Chair of the Small Business and Entrepreneurship Committee, I hope to help in that effort by fostering the development of entrepreneurship in minority communities. It’s vital that current and future entrepreneurs from minority communities are given the opportunity to build their own piece of the American dream. I believe that this legislation the Minority Entrepreneurship Development Act of 2007 will help in that effort.

I want to take a moment and tell you why it’s so important to expand the numbers of entrepreneurs in the minority community. As a member of the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I have received firsthand testimony and countless reports documenting the positive economic impact that occurs when we foster entrepreneurship in under-served communities. These reports are signs of significant economic returns when minority businesses are created and are able to grow in size and capacity. Between 1987 and 1997, revenue from minority owned firms rose by 22.5 percent, an increase that was 3.7 times greater than the national average. Also, these firms increased their employment opportunities, with a 10 percent rate of 10 percent. Employment opportunities within minority owned firms increased by 23 percent during that same period. There is a clear correlation between the growth of minority owned firms and the economic viability of the minority community.

Although these economic numbers tell a significant part of the story they don’t tell the whole story of what these firms mean to the minority communities. For example, the services provided by many of these business leaders are first generation immigrants; many are first generation business owners and many represent, for those in their communities, what hard work, determination and patience can do. We must encourage those kinds of values in our minority communities and, quite frankly, in our nation as a whole. For generations, millions have come to our shores in search of a better life. Many of these were here by force and for years were not given a voice in how their lives would turn out. But, how ever we got here, we have all become branches of this great tree we call America. This tree is still nourished by roots planted by our forefathers more than 200 years ago. Those men and women planted the roots of hard work, innovation, faith and risk taking.

When you think about it, those words are the perfect description of an entrepreneur. We must create an environment that gives the spirit of entrepreneurship that has made our nation great. And that is why it is absolutely imperative that we continue to support and develop that spirit in our minority communities. To that end, this legislation provides several tools to help minority entrepreneurs as they develop and grow their businesses.

First, this legislation will create an Office of Minority Entrepreneurship Development at the Small Business Administration. One of its primary functions will be to increase the number of small business loans that minority businesses receive. Latinos, African-Americans, Asian-Americans and women have been receiving far fewer small business loans than they reasonably should.

To ensure that this trend is reversed and minorities begin to get a greater share of loan dollars, venture capital investments, counseling, and contracting opportunities, this bill will give the new office the authority to monitor the outcomes for SBA’s Capitol Access, Entrepreneurial Development, and Government Contracting programs. In the short term, the Office to work with SBA’s partners, trade associations and business groups to identify more effective ways to market to minority business owners, and to work with the head of SBA’s Field Operations to ensure that SBA’s field offices have staff and resources to market to minorities.

Second, this legislation will create the Minority Entrepreneurship and Innovation Pilot Program. This program will offer competitive grants to Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Tribal Colleges, and Hispanic-Serving Institutions to create an entrepreneurship curriculum at these institutions and to open Small Business Development Centers on those campuses to serve local businesses.

The goal of this program is to target students in highly skilled fields such as engineering, manufacturing, science and technology, and guide them to pursue and make a career of business ownership. Traditionally, minority-owned businesses are disproportionately represented in the service sectors. Promoting entrepreneurial education to undergraduate students will help expand opportunities for these businesses.

Third, this legislation will create the Minority Access to Information Distance Learning Pilot Program. This program will offer competitive grants to well established national minority non-profit and business organizations to create distance learning programs for small business owners who are interested in doing business with the federal government.

The goal of this program is to provide low cost training to the many small business owners who cannot afford to pay a consultant thousands of dollars for advice or training on how to prepare themselves to contract with the Federal Government. There are thousands of small businesses in this country that are excellent and efficient. They are primed to provide the goods and services that this nation needs to stay competitive. This program will help prepare them to do just that.

Finally, this legislation will extend the Socially and Economically Disadvantaged Business Program which expired in 2007. This program provides a price evaluation adjustment for socially and economically disadvantaged businesses as a way of increasing their competitiveness when bidding against larger firms. This is one more tool to increase opportunities for our minority small business owners.

I have outlined several ways that we can create a more positive environment for our minority small business community. These are reasonable steps that we ought to take without delay. Moreover, these are important steps that will help bolster a movement that is already underway. According to U.S. Census data, Hispanics are opening businesses 3 times faster than the national average. Also, business development and entrepreneurship have played a significant role in the expansion of the black middle class in this country over a century. These business owners are embodying the entrepreneurial spirit that our forefathers carried with them as they established this nation.

With this legislation and in my role as incoming Chair of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I hope to play a part in helping to extend that spirit to the next generation of entrepreneurs. Not only is this vital for our minority communities, but it is vital for America. I urge my colleagues to join with me in support of the Minority Entrepreneurship Development Act of 2007. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. KERRY:

S. 99. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a refundable credit for small business employee health insurance expenses: to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Small Business Health Care Tax Credit Act which would provide small businesses with a refundable credit to help with the cost of providing employees with health insurance. Recent studies show that certain groups of individuals are less likely to have employer-provided health insurance. The 2006 Kaiser Family Foundation Employer Health Benefits Survey showed that in 2006 the number of firms offering health benefits has declined from 69 percent to 61 percent in 2006. This decline in coverage is more prevalent in small businesses. Only 48 percent of the firms with fewer than 10 employees offer health insurance whereas, 90 percent of the firms with 50 or more employees offer health benefits. Approximately 32 million Americans work for firms with fewer than 50 employees. The April 2006 Commonwealth Fund Biennial Health Insurance Survey concluded that 41 percent of working-age Americans with incomes between $20,000 and $40,000 were uninsured for at least part of the past year. This reflects a dramatic increase in the uninsured. From 1997 to 2001, the survey found that of the 48 million American adults who were uninsured in the past year, 67 percent were in families where at least one person worked full time.

My legislation provides a refundable tax credit to small businesses designed to help provide coverage to those who are currently uninsured. Small businesses with less than 50 employees will be eligible for tax credits to help with the cost of health care premiums for employees making more than $5,000 and less than $50,000 a year. To be eligible for the credit, the employer has to pay at least 50 percent of the credit for employees with fewer than 10 employees will be capped at 50 percent of the cost of the premium, and the credit amount decreases for larger businesses.

Last year, Leonard Burman, Director of the Tax Policy Center, testified before the Senate Finance Committee and suggested a refundable tax credit as an incremental option to help defray higher administrative costs faced by small employers in purchasing health care. This credit will help small businesses afford health care premiums. It is a refundable credit, so that it will help new businesses that do not have taxable income be able to offer health care to their struggling businesses with assistance so that they can offer health care.

This tax credit will cut the cost of health insurance by up to 50 percent for small business owners. It will enable small businesses to provide health insurance for their low- and moderate-income employees. Until we can agree on a comprehensive proposal that will help reduce the cost of health care premiums for small businesses, this legislation provides an appropriate option for increasing health insurance coverage for small businesses and their employees.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

lunch program. This hands-on approach educates students on healthy eating—from planting, to harvesting, to their plates. By teaching kids about the connection between what they eat and where it comes from, we can help them develop good nutrition habits that will last a lifetime.

Third, the bill creates a “Healthy Hour” pilot program that provides funding for an additional hour to the school day either before, after or during school—set aside specifically for physical activity. As more and more schools have cut recess and physical education classes, the bill provides funding for programs that extend physical activity time and highlight the importance of exercise for children in schools across the country.

Fourth, to make sure that children have the equipment they need, the bill provides tax incentives to individuals and businesses to donate exercise and gymnasium equipment to schools and organizing students.

And fifth, to address the shortage of qualified health care professionals in schools, the bill creates a tuition loan forgiveness program for those who earn a degree in nursing and make a minimum commitment to serve in a public elementary or secondary school. We are saying to prospective nurses: If you make an investment in helping kids, then we will make an investment in you.

Childhood obesity is a growing epidemic that we must address now. I urge my colleagues to support the Healthy Students Act to ensure that all children have the health they need to achieve their dreams.

By Mr. KERRY:

S. 102. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend and expand relief from the alternative minimum tax and to repeal the extension of the individual AMT exemption for 2006. The bill introduces legislation which addresses the individual alternative minimum tax (AMT) for 2007. Last Congress, a choice was made to extend lower capital gains and dividends rates for 2009 and 2010; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation which addresses the individual alternative minimum tax (AMT) for 2007. Last Congress, a choice was made to extend lower capital gains and dividends rates that do not expire until the end of 2008 rather than address the AMT for 2007. My preference was to address the AMT for 2007 and I believe we still must take action to prevent taxpayers never intended to pay the AMT from being penalized this year.

I opposed the Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 because it contained the wrong priorities for America leaving behind working families and substantially adding to the deficit. This law extended the lower rates on capital gains and dividends for 2009 and 2010, but only addressed the individual AMT for 2006.

Actual costs of the Joint Committee on Taxation, those earning $200,000 or more will receive 84 percent of the benefit of the capital gains tax cut and 63 percent of the benefit of the dividends tax cuts. According to the Congressional Budget Office, 42.8 percent of taxpayers with income between $50,000 and $100,000 will be impacted by the AMT if the AMT is not fixed for 2007 and 38 percent if it is fixed for 2010. The Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 extends a tax cut that does not expire to the end of 2008 with a price tag of $50 billion, but fails to protect the hard working families that will be impacted by the AMT. These families were never intended to be impacted by the AMT, a tax originally designed to prevent a small number of high-income taxpayers from avoiding taxation.

Today, I am introducing legislation that will address the AMT for 2007 and repeal the lower tax rates on capital dividends for 2009 and 2010. To calculate the AMT, individuals add back certain “preference items” to their regular tax liability. These include personal exemptions, standard deduction, and the itemized deduction for state and local taxes. From this amount, taxpayers subtract the AMT exemption amount, commonly referred to as the “patch” which reverted to lower levels at the end of 2005. The Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 increased and extended the patch for 2006. The patch was increased in order to hold the same number of taxpayers harmless from the AMT in 2006 as in 2005.

The problem with the AMT is that while the regular tax system is indexed for inflation, the AMT exemption amounts and tax brackets remain constant. This has the perverse consequence of punishing taxpayers for the mere fact their incomes rose due to inflation.

In 2001 Congress opted to provide more tax cuts to those with incomes of over $1 million rather than fix a looming tax problem for the middle class. The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 did include a small adjustment to the AMT, but it was not enough. And we knew then that the number of taxpayers subject to the AMT would continue to rise steadily because the combination of tax cuts and a minor adjustment to the AMT would cause the AMT to explode. We are rapidly approaching this explosion and without immediate action the number of taxpayers subject to the AMT will continue to rise.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle have argued that the extension of the capital gains and dividends benefits is necessary to provide investor certainty. But I believe that the certainty of working families worried about paying the AMT should come first.

About a third of long-term capital gains are reported by taxpayers who are impacted by the AMT and due to the interaction of the AMT, they do not fully benefit from the lower rates. That is, taxpayers forced to carry the AMT burden will not benefit from the lower capital gains and dividends rate.

The AMT is a looming problem that is impacting hard-working families and for each year that we fail to address the AMT, it gets worse and more expensive. At a minimum we must address the AMT for 2007. My legislation is not a long-term cure to the AMT crisis, but it will provide certainty for 2007 to hard working families who will be impacted by the AMT just because of where they live and the number of children they have, and it will address the AMT in a revenue neutral manner for 2007 as well.

We agree that the AMT should not be impacting families with incomes below $100,000. My bill fixes the AMT for 2007 in a timely and fiscally responsible manner and gives Congress time to work in a bipartisan manner to find a fiscally responsible permanent solution to the AMT.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

(1) by striking “2006” in the heading thereof and inserting “2007”, and

By Mr. KERRY (for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. WYDEN):

S. 103. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide that major oil and gas companies will not be eligible for the effective rate reductions enacted in 2004 for domestic manufactured goods companies.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today, I am introducing the Restore a Rational Tax Rate on Petroleum Production Act of 2007. This legislation repeals the manufacturing deduction for big oil and gas companies that was enacted by Congress in 2004. I introduced this legislation in the 109th Congress and Congressman McDermott introduced companion legislation in the House.

The domestic manufacturing deduction was designed to replace export-related tax benefits that were successfully challenged by the European Union. Producers of oil and gas did not benefit from this tax break. Initial legislation proposed to address the repeal of the export-related tax benefits and to replace them with a new domestic manufacturing deduction. That legislation only provided the deduction to industries that benefited from the export-related tax benefits. However, the final product extended the deduction to include the oil and gas industry as well.

My bill repeals the manufacturing deduction for oil and gas companies because these industries suffered no detriment from the repeal of export-related tax benefits. At a time when oil companies are reporting mind-boggling record profits, there is no reason to reward them with a tax deduction.

Like me, many Members of Congress support a windfall profits tax on big oil and gas companies. Providing the deduction to oil and gas companies actually functions as a reverse windfall profits tax. This deduction lowers the tax rates on the windfall profits that they are currently enjoying. And without Congressional action this benefit will increase: upon enactment, the domestic manufacturing deduction was three percent, but it increased to six percent in 2007 and is scheduled to increase to nine percent in 2010.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation. We owe it to the American people to eliminate tax benefits to the oil industry at a time of record profits, record gas prices, and record deficits.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 103

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Restore a Rational Tax Rate on Petroleum Production Act of 2007."

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) like many other countries, the United States has long enjoyed export-related benefits under its tax law,

(2) producers and refiners of oil and natural gas were specifically denied the benefits of those export-related tax provisions,

(3) those export-related tax provisions were successfully challenged by the European Union as being inconsistent with our trade agreements,

(4) the Congress responded by repealing the export-related benefits and enacting a substitute benefit that was an effective rate reduction for United States manufacturers,

(5) producers and refiners of oil and natural gas were made eligible for the rate reduction even though they suffered no detriment from repeal of the export-related benefits, and

(6) the decision to provide the effective rate reduction to producers and refiners of oil and natural gas has operated as a reverse windfall profit tax on the windfall profits they are currently enjoying.

SEC. 3. DENIAL OF DEDUCTION FOR INCOME ATTRIBUTABLE TO DOMESTIC PRODUCTION OF OIL, NATURAL GAS, OR PRIMARY PRODUCTS THEREOF.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (B) of section 199(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to exceptions) is amended by striking "or" at the end of clause (ii), by striking period at the end of clause (iii), and inserting ";", and by inserting after clause (iii) the following new clause:

(iv) in the case of any major integrated oil company in each taxable year described in section 167(h)(5)(B), the production, refining, processing, transportation, or distribution of oil, natural gas, or any primary product thereof during any taxable year described in section 167(h)(A).''

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 199(c)(4) of such Code is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A)(III) by striking "electricity, natural gas," and inserting "electricity, and natural gas;" and

(2) in subparagraph (B)(II) by striking "electricity, and natural gas," and inserting "electricity;" and

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2006.

S. 106. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide for the establishment of a National Center for Social Work Research; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation to amend the Public Health Service Act for the establishment of a National Center for Social Work Research. Social workers provide a multitude of health care delivery services throughout America to our children, families, the elderly, and persons suffering from various forms of abuse and neglect. The purpose of this center is to support and disseminate information about basic and clinical social work research, and training, with emphasis on service to underserved and rural populations.

While the Federal Government provides funding for various social work research activities through the National Institutes of Health and other Federal agencies, there presently is no coordination or direction of these critical activities and no overall assessment of needs and priorities for empirical knowledge development. The establishment of a Center for Social Work Research would result in improved behavioral and mental health care outcomes for our nation’s children, families, the elderly, and others.

In order to meet the increasing challenges of bringing cost-effective, research-based, quality health care to all Americans, we must recognize the important contributions of social work researchers to healing and the central role that the Center for Social Work can provide in facilitating their work.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 106

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "National Center for Social Work Research Act."

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) social workers focus on the improvement of individual and family functioning and the creation of effective health and mental health prevention and treatment interventions in order for individuals to become more productive members of society;

(2) social workers provide front line prevention and treatment services in the areas of school violence, addiction, teen pregnancy, child abuse, domestic violence, juvenile crime, and substance abuse, particularly in rural and underserved communities; and

(3) social workers are in a unique position to provide valuable research information on these complex social concerns, taking into account a wide range of social, medical, economic, and educational opportunities, from an interdisciplinary, family-centered and community-based approach.

SEC. 3. ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL CENTER FOR SOCIAL WORK RESEARCH.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 601(a) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 281(a)), as

"SEC. 485M. BIENNIAL REPORT.

"(1) REQUIREMENT.—By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

"S. 107. A bill to amend title VII of the Public Health Service Act to make certain graduate programs in professional public policy eligible for direct loans under the programs for federal loans for graduate students, and for other purposes; to amend section 463A of title VII of the Public Health Service Act to provide for the establishment of a program of loan repayments for professional public policy students who graduate from an accredited institution of higher education and enter employment in a health profession, and for other purposes; and for other purposes:

"(2) REAPPOINTMENTS.—A member of the advisory council who has been appointed under subsection (b)(3) for a term of 4 years may not be reappointed to the advisory council for a second term, unless it is the successor to the member’s term until the date of the expiration of the member’s term until a successor has been appointed.
Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation today to modify Title VII of the U.S. Public Health Service Act in order to provide students enrolled in graduate psychology programs with the opportunity to participate in various health professions loan programs.

Providing students enrolled in graduate psychology programs with eligibility for financial assistance in the form of loans, loan guarantees, and scholarships will facilitate a much-needed infusion of behavioral science expertise into our community of public health providers. There is a growing recognition of the valuable contribution being made by psychologists toward solving some of our Nation’s most distressing problems.

The participation of students from all backgrounds and clinical disciplines is vital to the success of health care training. The Title VII programs play a significant role in providing financial support for the enrollment of minority, women, and individuals from economically disadvantaged backgrounds. Minority therapists have an advantage in the provision of critical services to minority populations because they are more likely to work with clients in their own language and cultural framework. Minority therapists are more likely to work in community settings where ethnic minority and economically disadvantaged individuals are most likely to seek care. It is critical that support be provided for the training of individuals who provide health care services to underserved communities.

S. 110. A bill to allow the psychiatric or psychological examinations required under chapter 313 of title 18, United States Code, relating to offenders with mental disease or defect, to be conducted by a clinical social worker, to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce legislation to amend title 18 of the United States Code to allow our Nation’s clinical social workers to use their mental health expertise on behalf of the Federal judiciary by conducting psychological and psychiatric exams.

I feel that the time has come to allow our Nation’s judicial system to have access to a wide range of behavioral science and mental health expertise. I am confident that the enactment of this legislation would be very much in our Nation’s best interest.

S. 112. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to provide 100 percent reimbursement for medical assistance provided to a Native Hawaiian through a federally-qualified health center or a Native Hawaiian health care system; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Native Hawaiian Medicaid Coverage Act of 2004. This legislation would authorize a Federal Medicaid Assistance Percent, FMAP, of 100 percent for the payment of health care costs of Native Hawaiians who receive health care from Federally Qualified Health Centers or the Native Hawaiian Health Care System. This bill was originally a provision within the Medicare Prescription Drug Bill, which the Senate passed by an overwhelming majority of 76 to 21, but was dropped from the final Medicare Prescription Drug Conference Report. This bill is modeled on the Native Alaskan Health Care Act, which provides for a Federal Medicaid Assistance Percent, FMAP, of 100 percent for payment of health care costs for Native Alaskans by the Indian Health Service, an Indian tribe, or a tribal organization.

Community health centers serve as the “safety net” for uninsured and medically underserved Native Hawaiians and other United States citizens, providing comprehensive primary and preventive health services to the entire family. Outpatient services offered to the entire family include comprehensive primary care, preventive health maintenance, and education outreach in the local community. Community health centers, with their distinctive role in health care delivery, offer cost-effective integration of health promotion and wellness with chronic disease management and primary care focused on serving vulnerable populations.

By Mr. OBAMA (for himself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 117. A bill to amend titles 10 and 38, United States Code, to improve benefits and services for members of the Armed Forces, veterans of the Global War on Terrorism, and other veterans, to require reports on the effects of the Armed Forces, veterans of the Global War on Terrorism, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that is significant both in the problems it seeks to address and the man it seeks to honor.

Since the day he arrived in Congress more than two decades ago, Lane Evans was a tireless advocate for the men and women with whom he served. When Vietnam veterans started falling ill from Agent Orange, he led the effort to get them compensation. Lane was one of the first in Congress to speak out about the health problems facing Persian Gulf War veterans. He worked to help Vietnam veterans with chronic mental health problems. He also helped make sure thousands of homeless veterans in our country have a place to sleep. Lane Evans fought these battles for more than 20 years, and even in the face of his own debilitating disease, he kept fighting. Today, veterans across America have Lane Evans to thank for reminding this country of its duty to take care of those who have risked their lives to defend ours.

Today I introduce the Lane Evans Veterans Healthcare and Benefits Improvement Act of 2007. This bill honors a legislator who left behind an enduring legacy of service to our veterans. The legislation also is an important step towards caring for our men and women who are currently fighting for us.

I am being joined today by Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE, the lead cosponsor of this bill. Senator SNOWE has long been an advocate in her home state. And I have been honored to work with her in the past on veterans issues. We have fought to reduce the backlog of disability claims at the Veterans Benefits Administration and to improve the military's ability to identify and treat Traumatic Brain Injury. Our introduction of the Lane Evans Bill is a continuation of these efforts.

Today, more than 1.5 million American troops have been deployed overseas as part of the Global War on Terror. Those who have been protected are us beginning to return home. Six hundred thousand people who served in Iraq and Afghanistan are now veterans, and more than 185,000 have already received treatment at the VA. That number is increasing every day. Many of these fighting men and women are coming home with major injuries. As a country, we are only beginning to understand the true costs of the Global War on Terror.

The Government Accountability Office reported that VA has faced $3 billion in budget shortfalls since 2005 because it underestimated the costs of caring for veterans of the Global War on Terror. The VA wasn't getting the information it needed from the Pentagon and was relying on outdated data and incorrect forecasting models. We cannot let these kinds of bureaucratic blunders get in the way of the care and support we owe our servicemembers.

To avoid these costly shortfalls in the future, we have to do a better job keeping track of veterans. That's why the first thing the Lane Evans Act does is to establish a system to track Global War on Terror veterans. The VA established a similar data system following the Persian Gulf War. That effort has been invaluable in budget planning as well as in monitoring emerging health trends and diseases linked to the Gulf War. The VA's Health Informatics and Data System also has been important to medical research and improved care for veterans. The sooner we begin keeping accurate track of our fighting men and women in Iraq, Afghanistan and beyond, the better and more efficiently we will be able to care for them.

The Lane Evans Act also tackles Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder. Mental health patients account for about one-third of the new veterans seeking care at the VA. The VA's National Center for PTSD reports that "the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq are the most sustained combat operations since the Vietnam War, and initial signs imply that these ongoing wars are likely to affect the mental health of veterans with chronic mental health problems."

This bill addresses PTSD in two ways. First, it extends the window during which new veterans can automatically get care for mental health from two years to five years. Right now, any servicemember discharged from the military has up to two years to walk into a VA facility and get care, no questions asked. After that, vets have to prove they are disabled because of service in Afghanistan or Iraq, or they have to prove their income is below threshold levels. Unfortunately, it can take years for symptoms of PTSD to manifest. The time it takes to prove service-connection for mental health illness is valuable time lost during which veterans are not receiving critically needed treatment. The Lane Evans Act allows veterans to walk into a VA facility any time five years after discharge and get assessed for mental health care. This both extends the window now and shortens the wait for vets to get care.

Second, the legislation makes face-to-face physical and mental health screening mandatory 30 to 90 days after a soldier is deployed in a war zone. This will ensure that our fighting force is ready for battle, and that we can identify and treat those at risk for PTSD. By making the exams mandatory, we can help reduce the stigma associated with mental health screening and treatment.

Another problem veterans face is that the VA and DoD do not effectively share medical records. Older veterans often have to wait years for their benefits as the Department of Defense recovers aging and lost paper records. Under the Lane Evans Act, the Department of Defense would provide each separating service member at the time of discharge with a secure full electronic copy of all military and medical records to help them apply for healthcare and benefits. DoD possesses the technology to do this now. The ingathering VA healthcare useful medical records.

I am being joined today by Senator SNOWE to quickly and accurately document receipt of vaccinations or deployment to a war zone. The electronic data will also be helpful in future generations when family members of veterans seek information about their service, awards, and wartime deployment that go well beyond the existing single-sheet DD-214 discharge certificate, which is all veterans currently receive.

Finally, the legislation improves the transition assistance that National Guard and military reservists receive when they return from deployment. A 2005 GAO report found that because demobilization for guard and reservists is inextricably linked to the reserve units get abbreviated and perfunctory transition assistance including limited employment training. VA should provide equal briefings and transition services for all service members regardless of their duty status.

Lane Evans dedicated his life to serving this country and serving veterans. The legislation Senator SNOWE and I are introducing today honors both the man and his mission, and will continue his legacy to the next generation of American veterans.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today as a proud cosponsor of S. 3988, the Lane Evans Veterans Healthcare and Benefits Improvement Act of 2007. After serving with Lane Evans in the House of Representatives for over a decade, I am honored to help introduce legislation that serves as a fitting tribute to a man whose unfaltering efforts to honor.

I also applaud Senator OBAMA for introducing this vital legislation at a time when so many men and women have returned from combat in both Iraq and Afghanistan. In the past, Senator OBAMA and I have worked in a bipartisan manner to bolster the military's ability to detect and treat traumatic brain injury, and most recently, we have fought to reduce the backlog of claims at the Veterans Benefits Administration, VBA. Once again,
I thank Senator Obama for his continuing resoluteness and advocacy for our veterans.

Since the beginning of conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, nearly 1.5 million brave Americans have deployed overseas in the global war on terror. Of those 1.5 million Americans, at least 184,400 have already received medical treatment from the Department of Veterans Affairs, VA. It is time the VA and the Department of Defense embrace the capability to provide incoming veterans with timely and efficient medical treatment and postdeployment services. For too long now, provision of these critical services has been hampered by a lack of resources and policy restructuring.

In 2005, the Government Accountability Office revealed that the VA faced a budget shortfall of $3 billion, due to the agency’s inability to correctly gauge the benefits for Iraq and Afghanistan veterans. As a result of spending shortfalls, the VA was forced to dip into contingency funds that could have compromised the funding for other vital veterans programs. In order to remedy these unacceptable deficiencies within the veterans’ benefit system, the legislation will significantly enhance the ability of the DOD and the VA to accurately track veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan, by creating a data registry that will hold a comprehensive list of VA health care and disability compensation, and other benefits, regardless of status. Often veterans suffer from PTSD as quickly as possible in order to detect, diagnose, and treat our veterans suffering from PTSD as quickly as possible, in order to help our veterans and their families move beyond the psychological trauma of war and lead healthy, productive lives.

This legislation’s proposed data registry will further assist the VA with ongoing medical research into mental health, traumatic brain injury, and many other conditions. This legislation will also require the Department of Defense to conduct in-person physical and mental health exams with every service member 30 to 90 days after deployment to war zone, in order to ensure that potential cases of PTSD are identified and treated in a timely manner. By making the exams mandatory, the stigma associated with mental health screening and treatment can be eliminated. Additionally, multiple deployments to combat zones may factor into a higher susceptibility to PTSD, stressing the necessity for mental screening prior to deployment, in order to ensure that no veteran ever experiences symptoms of PTSD is returned to duty without treatment. If the VA and the DOD continues its current mental health screening policy, nondisclosures of PTSD symptoms will continue to deter early intervention and future VA mental health services. This legislation addresses the difficulties associated with PTSD symptoms that develop over prolonged periods of time. Currently, the window for PTSD to manifest at VA health care at the VA is 2 years. However, in many circumstances, it takes years for PTSD symptoms and other problems related to mental health to emerge. Therefore, this legislation will extend the window for veterans to receive VA mental health care from 2 years to 5 years, ensuring the necessary mental health treatment for all veterans who are struggling to recover from the traumas of war.

Furthermore, the legislation will take large steps towards improving the transfer of military and medical records in order for veterans to receive the health care and benefits they deserve. This bill requires DOD to provide each separating service member a full electronic copy of all military and medical records at the time of discharge. By facilitating the enhanced use of electronic records, veterans will be assured the proper access and management of their required care. Currently, transferring military and medical records and medical records has hampered the VA’s ability to treat veterans in need of care in a timely and effective manner.

According to a December 2006 GAO report, while verifying veterans claims of PTSD, regional VA offices are unable to directly access and search an electronic library of medical and service records for all service branches, and therefore, must rely on a DOD research response to meet the need to time regional office requests is nearly 1 year. Clearly, such a processing delay is not only inexcusable, it is potentially harmful to the veteran and his or her family. Increased access to electronic records will allow the VA to quickly identify the occurrences of stressful events or experiences that may lead to the necessary treatment for PTSD.

Finally, this legislation will also require the VA to provide equal briefings and transition services for all service members regarding VA health care, disability compensation, and other benefits, regardless of status. Often times, guardians and reservists receive limited transition assistance and employment training, largely due to their accelerated demobilization. Thus, this legislation will provide equitable and fair transition services for all returning veterans, regardless of their service branch, component or military status.

I have nothing but the utmost respect for those brave Americans who served in uniform with honor, courage, and distinction. The obligation our nation has toward those who serve is unambiguous, and it is an obligation that must be fulfilled every day. Since the attacks of September 11, millions of brave American men and women have answered our nation’s call to service. Congress must now do everything in its power to answer our veterans’ call, to ensure that they receive the medical care and treatment that they rightly earned and rightly deserve.

Once again, I am pleased to join Senator Obama in introducing S. 118, because I believe it is crucial to the welfare of our Nation’s veterans, and I urge my colleagues to voice their support.

By Mr. LEAHY (for himself and Mr. PRYOR):

S. 118. A bill to give investigators and prosecutors the tools they need to combat public corruption; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with Senator Pryor to introduce the “Effective Corruption Prosecutions Act of 2007,” a bill to strengthen the tools available to Federal prosecutors in combating public corruption. This bill gives investigators and prosecutors the statutory tools and the resources they need to ensure that serious and insidious public corruption is detected and punished.

In November, voters sent a strong message that they want to get rid of the culture of corruption. From war profiteers and corrupt officials in Iraq to convicted Administration officials to influence-peddling lobbyists and, regrettably, even Members of Congress, too many supposed public servants were serving their own interests, rather than the public interest. The American people staged an intervention and made it clear that they would not stand for it any longer. They expect Congress to take immediate action to restore the people’s trust by acting to clean up the people’s government.

The Senate’s new leadership is introducing important lobbying reform and ethics legislation. Similar legislation passed the Senate last year, but stalled in the House. This is a vital first step. But the most serious corruption cannot be prevented only by changing our own rules. Bribery and extortion are committed by people bent on getting around the rules and banking that they won’t get caught. These offenses are very difficult to detect and even harder to prove. Because they attack the core of our democracy, these offenses must be found out and punished. Congress must send a signal that it will not tolerate this corruption by providing better tools for federal prosecutors to combat it. This bill will do exactly that.

First, the bill extends the statute of limitations for the most serious public corruption offenses. Specifically, it extends the statute of limitations from five to eight years for bribery, deprivation of honest services, and extortion by a public official. This is an important change because public corruption cases are among the most difficult and time-consuming cases to investigate and prosecute. They often require use of informants and electronic monitoring, as well as review of extensive financial and electronic records, techniques which take time to develop and implement.

Bank fraud, arson, and passport fraud, among other offenses, all have 10-year statutes of limitations. Since public corruption offenses are so important to our democracy and these cases are so difficult to investigate and prove, a more modest extended statute of limitations for these offenses is a reasonable step to help our corruption investigators and prosecutors do their jobs. Corrupt officials should not be able to get away with their ill-gotten gains just by waiting out the investigators.

This bill also facilitates the investigation and prosecution of an important offense known as Federal program bribery, Title 18, United States Code, section 666. Federal program bribery is the key Federal statute for prosecuting bribery involving state and local officials, as well as officials of the many organizations that receive substantial Federal money. This bill would allow agents and prosecutors investigating this important offense to request authority to conduct wiretaps and to use Federal program bribery as a basis for a racketeering charge.

Wiretaps, when appropriately requested and authorized, are an important method for agents and prosecutors to gain evidence of corrupt activities, which can otherwise be next to impossible to prove without an informant. The Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations (RICO) statute is also an important tool which helps prosecutors target organized crime and corruption. Agents and prosecutors may currently request authority to conduct wiretaps to investigate many serious offenses, including bribery of federal officials and even sports bribery, and may predicate RICO charges on these offenses, as well. It is only reasonable that these important tools also be available for investigating the similar and equally important offense of federal program bribery.

Lastly, my bill authorizes $25 million in additional Federal funds for each of the next four years to give federal investigators and prosecutors needed resources to go after public corruption. Last month, FBI Director Mueller in written testimony to the Judiciary Committee called public corruption the FBI's top criminal investigative priority. However, a September 2005 Report by Department of Justice Inspector General Fine found that, from 2000 to 2004, there was an overall reduction in public corruption cases handled by the FBI. The report also found declines in resources dedicated to investigating public corruption, in corruption cases initiated, and in cases forwarded to US Attorney's Offices.

I am heartened by Mueller's assertion that there has recently been an increase in the number of agents investigating public corruption cases and the number of cases investigated, but I remain concerned because the FBI in recent years has diverted resources away from criminal law priorities, including corruption, into counterterrorism. The FBI may need to divert further resources to cover the growing costs of Sentinel, their data management system. The Department of Justice has similarly diverted resources, particularly from United States Attorney's Offices.

Additional funding is important to compensate for this diversion of resources and to ensure that corruption offenses are aggressively pursued. My bill will give the FBI, the United States Attorney's Offices, and the Public Integrity Section of the Department of Justice new resources to hire additional public integrity investigators and prosecutors. They can finally have the manpower they need to track down and make these difficult cases, and to root out the corruption.

If we are serious about addressing the egregious misconduct that we have recently witnessed, Congress must enact meaningful legislation to give investigators and prosecutors the resources they need to enforce our public corruption laws. I strongly urge Congress to do more to restore the public's trust in their government.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

By Mr. LEAHY (for himself, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. WYDEN, Ms. CANTWELL, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. MENENDEZ, and Mr. NELSON of Florida):

S. 119. A bill to prohibit profiteering and fraud relating to military action, relief, and reconstruction efforts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing a bill that creates criminal penalties for war profiteers and cheats who would exploit taxpayer-funded efforts in Iraq and elsewhere around the world. Last year, despite the mounting evidence of widespread contractor fraud and abuse in Iraq, the Republican-controlled Senate would not act on it. Instead, the Congress passed the German-made bill to end the work of the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction. I have been proposing versions of this bill.
since 2003, when it did pass the Senate. Unfortunately, this crucial provision was stripped out of the final version of a bill by a Republican-controlled conference committee.

There is growing evidence of widespread fraud in Iraq. Prosecuting criminal cases against these war profiteers is difficult under current law. We must crack down on this rampant fraud and abuse that squanders American taxpayers’ dollars and jeopardizes the safety of our troops abroad. I renew my efforts for accountability and action with the introduction of the War Profiteering Prevention Act of 2007. I am pleased to join with Senators BINGAMAN, KERRY, HARKIN, ROCKEFELLER, DORGAN, WYDEN, SCHUMER, CANTWELL, BILL NELSON, CLINTON, LAUTENBERG and MENENDEZ to introduce this legislation.

Congress has sent billions upon billions of dollars to Iraq with too little accountability and too few financial controls. In 2003, $50 billion of this money has gone to private contractors hired to guard bases, drive trucks, feed and shelter the troops and rebuild the country. This is more than the annual budget of the Department of Homeland Security.

Instead of results from these companies, we are seeing penalties levied for allegations of fraud and abuse. At least 10 companies with billions of dollars in U.S. contracts for Iraq reconstruction have paid more than $300 million in penalties since 2000, to resolve allegations of bid rigging, fraud, delivery of faulty military parts and environmental damage. Seven other companies with Iraq reconstruction contracts have agreed to pay financial penalties without admitting wrongdoing.

In 2005, Halliburton took in approximately $3.6 billion from contracts to serve U.S. troops and rebuild the oil industry in Iraq. Halliburton executives say that they have already received about $1 billion a month for Iraq work in 2006. In addition, last month, we learned of new plans to spend hundreds of millions more to create jobs in Iraq.

Last year, the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction found that millions of U.S. taxpayer funds appropriated for Iraq reconstruction have been lost and diverted. Yet we continue to send more taxpayer funds to Iraq, without accountability.

' ‘Our money is unaccounted for, and many of the facilities and services that these funds were supposed to pay for are still nonexistent. We in Congress must ask—where did all the money go? We need to press for more accountability over the unaccounted for and abuse of billions of taxpayers’ dollars sent as development aid to Iraq, not less. A new law to combat war profiteering in Iraq and elsewhere is sorely needed and long overdue. Although there are some laws on the books against the waste of U.S. tax dollars at home, no law expressly prohibits war profiteering or expressly confers jurisdiction on U.S. federal courts to hear fraud cases involving war profiteering committed overseas.

The bill I introduced today would criminalize “war profiteering”—overcharging taxpayers in order to defraud them to procure a war, a military action, or reconstruction efforts. It would also prohibit any fraud against the United States involving a contract for the provision of goods or services in connection with a war, military action, or reconstruction activities. This crime would be a felony, subject to criminal penalties of up to 20 years in prison and fines of up to $1 million, or twice the illegal gross profits of the crime.

The bill also prohibits false statements connected with the provision of goods or services in connection with a war or reconstruction effort. This crime would also be a felony, subject to criminal penalties of up to 10 years in prison and fines of up to $1 million, or twice the illegal gross profits of the crime.

The measure also addresses weakness in the existing laws used to combat war profiteering, by providing clear authority for the Government to seek criminal penalties for war profiteering.

- Excessive profits for war profiteering overseas. These are strong and focused sanctions that are narrowly tailored to punish and deter fraud or excessive profiteering in contracts, both at home and abroad.

- The message sent by this bill is clear—any act to exploit the crisis situation in Iraq or elsewhere overseas for exorbitant gain is unacceptable, reprehensible, and criminal. Such deceit demeans and exploits the sacrifices that our military personnel are making in Iraq and Afghanistan, and around the world. This bill also builds on a strong legacy of historical efforts to stem war profiteering. Congress implemented excessive-profits taxes and contract renegotiation laws after both World Wars, and again after the Korean War. Advocating exactly such an approach, President Roosevelt once declared it our duty to ensure that “a few do not gain from the sacrifices of the many.”

Our Government cannot in good faith ask its people to sacrifice for reconstruction efforts that allow some to profit unfairly. When U.S. taxpayers have been called upon to bear the burden of reconstruction contracts—where contracts are awarded in a system that offers little competition and even less accountability—concerns about wartime profiteering are a grave matter.

Combating war profiteering is not a Democratic issue, or a Republican issue. Rather, it is a cause that all Americans can support. When I first introduced this bill in 2003, it came to be cosponsored by 21 Senators. The Senate Appropriations Committee also unanimously approved these provisions during a Senate Appropriations Committee markup of the $87 billion appropriations bill for Iraq and Afghanistan for Fiscal Year 2004, and this provision passed the Senate. Passing bipartisan war profiteering prevention legislation was the right thing to do then, and it is the right thing to do now.

I am hopeful that in a new year, and with a new Congress, we can make a fresh start and forge a bipartisan partnership on this important issue that will result in passage of this bill. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the provisions was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself and Mr. COLEMAN):

S. 122. A bill to amend the Trade Act of 1974 to extend benefits to service sector workers and firms, enhance certain trade adjustment assistance authorities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I am pleased today to introduce the Trade Adjustment Assistance Improvement Act of 2007 with my good friend and colleague from Montana, Mr. WOLF.

In 2006, the United States passed, signed or concluded no fewer than five new free trade agreements. This June, the President’s authority to negotiate trade agreements will expire. Congress should extend the President’s authority to negotiate these deals. But when we do, we must raise the bar higher than before. Each deal must surpass the last, in order to take advantage of and adjust to changes in the global marketplace, especially those affecting American business and workers.

Congress will consider these agreements on their merits. In most cases, these deals will mean more access for American producers and service providers. In some few cases, these agreements could mean more and fiercer competition for producers and providers here at home.

Competition is the engine that drives market economies like ours. It spawns innovation that creates new jobs. But just as jobs are created in new sectors of our economy, jobs are also lost in other sectors which experience sudden or unfair competition from abroad.

Whether and how effectively we help those firms and workers who feel the negative effects of our national trade policy will, in large part, determine whether and how effectively we can move a trade agenda forward this year. During the last several Congresses, we have witnessed unprecedented change in the global marketplace and in our labor market at home. I have worked to raise the bar on our efforts to help workers affected by these changes. Today, I propose again, more urgently than ever, that Congress and the administration work together to adapt our national worker adjustment strategies to the challenges of globalization. The Trade Adjustment Assistance Improvement Act is a first and necessary step in that direction.

The Trade Adjustment Assistance Improvement Act includes many proposals that Congress should consider before the program expires this September. The Act extends coverage to more of the workers who are affected by trade and globalization. And the Act will improve the overall efficiency and effectiveness of the program.

For more than a century, the manufacture of goods has defined our American economy. So, when President Kennedy decided to open the American economy to more trade, he established the Trade Adjustment Assistance program to help workers in the manufacturing sector adjust to change. Today, our economy depends upon service exports. More than 75 percent of the American labor force work in services. While many service sector jobs cannot be outsourced, technology change makes it possible to provide many services remotely, in such fields as accounting, healthcare, and computers and information technology. So when a large call center left Kalispell, Montana, three years ago for Canada, the Montana workers left behind did not have the benefits that workers laid off from the Columbia Falls Aluminum manufacturing plant did. They should have.

Last year, the Department of Labor agreed, for the first time ever, that workers who lose an intangible product, should be eligible for Trade Adjustment Assistance. That was a step in the right direction. We should take the next step this year. We should finally extend coverage to American service workers. That is what my bill proposes.

Trade Adjustment Assistance certification takes place on a case-by-case, plant-by-plant basis. This means that while two factories producing the same products may both experience foreign competition that leads to layoffs, often only one of those factories’ laid off workers get certified as eligible for the program.

Consider the softwood lumber industry. At least 12 out of 35 Trade Adjustment Assistance petitions filed by workers in Montana’s softwood lumber industry over the last 7 years were denied by the Department of Labor. Yet, all of these mills were similarly affected by the same market conditions—dumped and subsidized Canadian imports. The International Trade Commission found that Canadian imports injured or threatened to injure the softwood lumber industry on a national scale.

But the Department of Labor’s certification process does not take into account the bigger—and often more meaningful—picture. It simply relies on data provided by individual companies that lay off the workers to make its case-by-case determination.

The legislation that I introduce today makes industry-wide certification automatic for workers anywhere in the United States if the President, the International Trade Commission, or another qualified Federal agency determines that imports are harming that industry. My bill also authorizes, but does not require, the Secretary of Labor to make industry-wide determinations if she receives three or more petitions in one industry within one 6-month period, or if the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee pass a resolution requiring such an investigation. Yet, small programs that can help prevent displacements and shifts in production to overseas is the TAA for Firms program in the Department of Commerce. The Firms program reaches out to companies that have experienced decreasing sales or production due to import competition and have laid off or expect to lay off workers.

This program is chronically underfunded, and it should also be available to service sector firms. This bill would update current programs to reach more small- and medium-sized businesses across the nation before they are forced to lay off their American workers and close their doors.

This bill also moves the Firms program to the Economic Development Administration at Commerce back into the International Trade Administration. That’s where it was previously. And frankly that’s where it ought to have remained. Despite the Firms program’s proven track record, proposals related to the program under the Economic Development Administration have sought to either defund the program altogether, or to limit eligibility by increasing the profit-loss margin required for participation and arbitrary termination of firms after 2 years.

The Firms program is a trade program and should be administered by an agency whose primary mission is to help American companies to adjust to and benefit from trade.

In 2002, with the passage of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Reform Act, I had great expectations for our first wage insurance demonstration project. In theory, wage insurance—or Alternative Trade Adjustment Assistance—encourages swift re-entry into the workforce by replacing a portion of a worker’s lost wages when a worker accepts a lower paying job within 6 months of a layoff. Workers who enroll in the wage insurance program trade Adjustment Assistance training and income assistance often have less access to good training or simply cannot afford to be out of work during their training. Wage insurance provides an incentive for employers to hire long-term and older workers and train them on the job.

In practice, I have been disappointed with the Department of Labor’s implementation of the wage insurance proposal that we crafted in 2002. In a 2004 review by the Government Accountability Office, the Department of Labor’s implementation of the benefit came up far short of the mark. Last year, the Government Accountability Office once again found that the Department needed to improve its implementation, focusing specifically on its outreach to and direction of state employment service offices. I have worked with the Department of Labor on strategies that will improve its outreach. Wage insurance can help put people back to work, and can even save money over traditional Trade Adjustment Assistance. But it cannot address those things if no one knows about the benefit.

This bill streamlines the process to qualify for wage insurance, and lowers the eligible age from 50 to 40. Wage replacement should be available to younger workers who would re-enter the workforce more quickly if they could afford the often steep wage cut.

Another key component of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Reform Act was the health care tax credit to help displaced workers and some retirees maintain access to health insurance coverage. As health costs grow, losing health insurance can be as financially devastating to workers as losing a job. While I believe that the TAA health care tax credit holds promise, this is clearly an area where reforms are needed to help the credit achieve its purpose.

Today, the TAA health care tax credit helps only a fraction of the hundreds of thousands eligible for assistance. In its first 2 years, less than 6 percent of eligible workers and retirees enrolled. A GAO report released last year studying five major plant closings in 2003 and 2004 found that only 3 to 12 percent of eligible workers enrolled. More than half of the workers studied didn’t sign up for the tax credit because the 65 percent subsidy was too low to make health insurance affordable.

The tax credit also suffers from complexity and administrative red tape. More than half of eligible workers in GAO’s recent study didn’t even know about the benefit. About a third of workers who knew about the benefit decided not to enroll because it was too confusing. Even those who understand it have to navigate complex rules and requirements to get the benefit.

We need to make this program simpler, more affordable, and more seamless so that more workers can take it up in the years ahead. We need to improve the information that workers and retirees get about the program and create safeguards to ensure that they get it. We need to cut down on the red tape. And we need to look at options to make this benefit more affordable so that we can truly reach the hundreds of thousands eligible for this benefit that Congress still believes to help when we enacted these reforms 4 years ago. I plan to introduce a bill later in the year that will achieve these goals for reforming the health care tax credit and will look forward to working with Senator Coleman and other colleagues in this effort.

The forces of globalization, like trade and technology change, have created tremendous opportunities for American businesses and workers, from cutting the cost of living to increasing the margin of profit. Trade accounts for a quarter of our gross domestic product. The adjustments we have made to maximize trade’s benefits save the average American household $9,000 annually.

But we must also make adjustments to respond to the challenges that come with globalization. American businesses in the 21st century face rapidly changing consumer preferences and ever-swifter technological advances. Global competition is fierce. Innovation is the key to these companies’ continued prosperity.

The same holds true for American workers. They know that they must adjust to changes in the labor market if they are to maintain their place in it. Workers must be prepared for one or more career shifts before retirement. They must acquire more skills, and refresh their skills often.

We can help American companies adapt, and regain their competitive edge in the global marketplace. We can help more trade-displaced workers get back into the workforce. We should help these workers adapt not only to trade displacement, but to all the other aspects of globalization as well.

American workers and the companies that employ them must each continually adjust to a changing world marketplace. So too should our worker adjustment programs.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 123. A bill to authorize the project for hurricane and storm damage reduction, Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, Hurricane Katrina and Rita revealed the Gulf Coast’s vulnerability to storms and flooding. With the help of generous Americans, the people of the Gulf Coast have been working hard over the last year and a half to rebuild their economy, their communities, and their lives.

Since these devastating storms struck in 2005, Congress directed the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to better protect the region from future storms. Yet Congress’s failure to pass a Water Resources Development Act WRDA, has delayed much of the needed protection. Of all the many worthy projects throughout the Nation awaiting WRDA passage, there is one hurricane protection project that stands out and cries for immediate congressional authorization with or without a WRDA bill. Accordingly, I am introducing legislation to singularly authorize this long overdue project known as ‘‘Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico Protection’’.

This project includes a series of levees, locks and other systems through Terrebonne and Lafourche Parishes in Louisiana. When complete, the Morganza to the Gulf project will protect about 120,000 people and 1,700 square miles of land from storm surges such as those caused by Hurricane Katrina and Rita.

The Morganza to the Gulf project is distinguished from all other projects awaiting WRDA authorization because it was originally authorized in the last enacted WRDA bill in 2000, with the requirement that the Army Corps of Engineers deliver a favorable feasibility report by December 31 of that year. The Corps eventually submitted its report more than a year late, causing the authorization to expire despite the Corps’ favorable recommendation.

Though repeated attempts have been made, Congress has been unable to deliver a new WRDA bill since 2000. As a result, vital hurricane protection for a portion of southeast Louisiana that the Corps recommends after years of environmental and economic analysis is awaiting congressional action, and an area of America’s gulf coast remains needlessly vulnerable. Notably, every failed WRDA bill that the Senate, the House, and its committees have separately passed since 2000 has authorized the Morganza to the Gulf Hurricane Protection project. Simply stated, there is no other item in WRDA that has been kicked down the road as many times as this.

This bill that I introduce today fully authorizes the Morganza to the Gulf project in accordance with the plans and subject to the conditions of the Corps’ report.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and ask unanimous consent that any copy of my amendment and the bill appear in the RECORD.

SEC. 1. MORGANZA TO THE GULF OF MEXICO PROJECT.

(a) In General.—The Secretary of the Army shall carry out the project for hurricane and storm damage reduction, Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana, substantially in accordance with the plans, and subject to the conditions, described in the Reports of the Chief of Engineers dated August 29, 2002, and July 22, 2002, cost of $886,700,000, with an estimated Federal cost of $576,355,000 and an estimated non-Federal cost of $310,345,000.

(b) Co-Operation.—The Secretary shall credit toward the non-Federal share of the cost of the project the elements of cost of design and construction work carried out by the non-Federal interest before the date of the partnership agreement for the project elements if the Secretary determines that the work is integral to the project elements.

S. 124. A bill to provide certain counties with the ability to receive television broadcast signals of their choice; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, another piece of legislation that I am introducing today addresses an issue important to citizens of southern Colorado.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. MORGANZA TO THE GULF OF MEXICO PROJECT.

(a) In General.—The Secretary of the Army shall carry out the project for hurricane and storm damage reduction, Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana, substantially in accordance with the plans, and subject to the conditions, described in the Reports of the Chief of Engineers dated August 29, 2002, and July 22, 2002, cost of $886,700,000, with an estimated Federal cost of $576,355,000 and an estimated non-Federal cost of $310,345,000.

(b) Co-Operation.—The Secretary shall credit toward the non-Federal share of the cost of the project elements of cost of design and construction work carried out by the non-Federal interest before the date of the partnership agreement for the project elements if the Secretary determines that the work is integral to the project elements.

(c) Operations and Maintenance.—The operation, maintenance, repair, rehabilitation, and replacement of the Houma Navigation Canal lock complex and the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway floodgate features of the project described in subsection (a) that provide for inland waterway transportation shall be Federal in character in accordance with section 102 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2212).

S. 124. A bill to provide certain counties with the ability to receive television broadcast signals of their choice; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, another piece of legislation that I am introducing today addresses an issue important to citizens of southern Colorado.
The problem is this: cable and satellite subscribers in two southern Colorado counties are forced by current law to receive New Mexico television stations. Lately, I hear almost every day from my constituents that they would prefer to receive Colorado television over New Mexico television.

The problem stems from the fact that these two Colorado counties are located in the Albuquerque designated market area, as determined by Nielsen Media Research. As a matter of fairness, this county should be eligible to receive Colorado TV. Consumers should choose which television stations they receive, especially since they are the ones paying for it.

The bill I am introducing does just that. It makes a commonsense change to the law that allows citizens of La Plata and Montezuma Counties to receive television stations from Denver, not Albuquerque.

I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting this bill that is nearly identical to laws enacted in previous Congresses that addressed similar problems in other states.

S. 125. A bill to establish the Granada Relocation Center National Historic Site as an affiliated unit of the National Park System; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing a bill dealing with the Granada Relocation Camp, also known as Camp Amache. It played an important, but sad, part in United States history. Camp Amache, one of 10 internment camps in the Nation, was established in August 1942 by the U.S. Government during World War II as a place to house the Japanese from the west coast and was closed on August 15, 1945. This is a significant part of American history and it should be preserved. My bill today will designate the Granada Relocation Camp as a national historic site in Colorado.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, another piece of legislation I am introducing today is designed to expedite the expansion of the boundary of Mesa Verde National Park. The boundary adjustment will allow for the incorporation of 324 acres of land owned by the Henneman family, adjacent to the Great Sand Dunes National Park in southern Colorado. I, along with my colleague from Colorado’s 3rd Congressional District, U.S. Representative Scott McInnis, sponsored the legislation that converted the Sand Dunes from a monument to a park. This legislation also authorized the Federal acquisition of the Baca Ranch lands and I remain actively interested in the area’s management.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the Baca National Wildlife Refuge Purpose Act will give the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service management tools that will allow the agency to manage the Baca National Wildlife Refuge in a way that achieves the most beneficial use of this wonderful natural resource. The Baca National Wildlife Refuge consists of 92,500 acres of wetlands, sage brush, and riparian lands adjacent to the Great Sand Dunes National Park in southern Colorado. I, along with my colleague from Colorado’s 3rd Congressional District, U.S. Representative Scott McInnis, sponsored the legislation that converted the Sand Dunes from a monument to a park. Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing legislation which will extend congressional authorization for the Cache la Poudre Heritage Area in northern Colorado and will give local citizens greater management authority over the area. Under current law, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service management, authorized by former Colorado Senator Hank Brown, the Secretary of Interior was to appoint a commission to work with the National Park Service and manage the area, but because of a technicality, the Secretary was unable to appoint the commission. In response, local citizens stepped up and formed the Poudre Heritage Alliance to support the Heritage Area until an official commission could be named. This legislation would rectify this, and empower local residents to continue the work they have been doing on behalf of the heritage area.

S. 129. A bill to study and promote the use of energy-efficient computer servers in the United States; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing a bill that will authorize the EPA to conduct a study of the growth in energy consumption by computer data centers operated by the Federal Government and by private corporations. The study will also examine industry movement toward energy efficient microchips and computer servers, potential cost savings associated with the movement to more efficient microchips and what, if any, impacts to performance come with increased efficiency. The results of the study will allow us to more fully understand the impact that the growing number of computers in use throughout the country has on energy use. This information will better position Congress to make recommendations to Federal agencies on their energy use and computer selection.

It will also provide private industry with information that will allow them to choose computer models that will decrease their energy consumption, making their companies more efficient and profitable.

S. 130. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to extend reasonable cost contract plans; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, currently American seniors enjoy Medicare health plans called cost contracts. Under legislation I am introducing today, seniors will be able to continue utilizing these valued health plans. Medicare cost contract plans are vital to America. Cost contracts provide Medicare beneficiaries in many rural areas and states across our country with an affordable, high-quality option to the traditional Medicare fee-for-service plan. For many of these beneficiaries, Medicare Advantage plans do not provide access to physicians in the community.

Medicare cost contracts are managed care plans that are reimbursed on a cost basis for providing health services. Under current law, cost contracts are one option for Medicare beneficiaries.

Cost contracts mean that Medicare deductibles and additional benefits not covered by basic Medicare. Further, for the costs of a normal Medicare fee-for-service copayment, seniors with cost contracts can use any Medicare provider regardless of whether they participate in the health plans network. This is critical in rural areas where physicians are scarce.

Cost contracts are vital to seniors who have them. From New York to Oregon, and even to Hawaii, America’s seniors are enrolled in cost contract plans. Cost contracts are especially important in rural Colorado. Of the Coloradans with cost contract plans, 69 percent live in rural Colorado, where few physicians will see patients under straight Medicare or Medicare Advantage.

Many beneficiaries who are enrolled in Medicare cost contract plans live on limited incomes. Under the traditional Medicare program, they incur considerable out-of-pocket expenses. In addition, Medicare supplemental insurers frequently age-adjust premiums and either refuse coverage or impose coverage restrictions for pre-existing conditions. Medicare cost contract plans provide an affordable alternative.

Unfortunately, under current law cost contracts soon will terminate. I believe Congress should work to extend Medicare cost contracts further. My bill, the Medicare Cost Contract Extension and Refinement Act of 2007, would accomplish this by extending by five years the cost contract sunset date of December 31, 2007, to December 31, 2012.

Cost contracts have been a bipartisan issue, with bipartisan support in the past. Senator Wyden of Oregon worked to get an extension for cost contracts in the 109th Congress, and I look forward to working with him again during the 110th.

S. 131. A bill to extend for 5 years the Mark-to-Market program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I turn now to the issue of housing. Congress created the Mark-to-Market Program in 1997 to reduce Section 8 costs while preserving the affordability and availability of low-income rental housing. The purpose of the program is to reduce the property rents to market level while simultaneously restructuring property debt to prevent FHA defaults. Studies seem to show that the program has been an overwhelming success. Nearly 250,000 units of affordable housing have been preserved due to the Mark-to-Market Program. This is affordable housing that would have been permanently lost as affordable otherwise. According to HUD, the program has also saved taxpayers more than $2 billion.

The original legislation authorized the Mark-to-Market Program for 4 years, which was subsequently extended for 5 additional years. Therefore, the Mark-to-Market program authority was scheduled to expire on September 30, 2006. Fortunately, the program authority was temporarily extended under the continuing resolutions.

When the program was extended in 2001, it appeared that 5 additional years would be more than enough time for nearly all eligible properties to complete the Mark-to-Market process. However, more recent projections show that nearly 78,000 properties will face rent reductions over the next 5 years.

It is important to note that even though the program will expire, these Section 8 properties with above market rates will still be required to have their rents reduced to market levels. Without the proper tools to also restructure the debt, many owners will lack sufficient funds to purchase property or mortgage payments. Because many Section 8 properties are also FHA insured, this will result in a significant number of claims against FHA, in addition to many tenant displacements.

Clearly, no one finds this a desirable scenario. Failure to extend the Mark-to-Market Program would be bad for tenants and bad for taxpayers. Thus, I am pleased to join Senator Reed of Rhode Island in reintroducing the Mark-to-Market Extension Act of 2007. Our bill would extend the program for 5 additional years to allow the remaining properties to go through the Mark-to-Market process. Frankly, I can see no downside to extending the program: It maintains affordable housing for less money.

I am pleased to work with industry groups and with my colleagues to see that this very worthwhile program is extended for an additional 5 years.

By Mr. ALLARD:

S. 132. A bill to end the trafficking of methamphetamines and precursor chemicals across the United States and its borders; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the first bill I present today is to address one of the biggest current scourges of our citizens: methamphetamine abuse.

Just this week, a report published by Colorado’s Meth Task Force cited Denver as a major distribution center for meth in the U.S.

Our Nation has been hard hit by the methamphetamine crisis, particularly in our borders. This is a national issue that is growing at a rate that constantly presents a challenge to our talented law enforcement officials. Through our work on the Combat Meth Act, we have provided them with many tools to fight the domestic production of meth. We are now called upon to respond to the issue of foreign produced meth as it presents a growing threat to the U.S.

In just 10 years, meth has become America’s worst drug problem—worse than marijuana, cocaine or heroin. My home state of Colorado, like the rest of the Nation, faces challenges associated with the growing epidemic. Although the number of meth labs in the state is on the decline, meth distribution remains rampant because of Denver’s location at the intersection of two major interstate highways, both of which serve as pipelines for the distribution of meth after it enters our country.

This evidence is echoed by the many local drug enforcement officials, and District Attorneys who are tasked with tackling meth within our communities and who I have worked with on this issue.

According to estimates from the DEA, 80 percent of the meth used in the United States comes from larger labs, increasingly abroad, while only 20 percent of the meth consumed in this country comes from small laboratories.

Therefore, I propose that we improve efforts to curb the flow of meth both within and across our borders. We must take steps to expand enforcement to reduce the amount of meth being trafficked into the United States by establishing stricter penalties for meth offenders, improving coordination with foreign law enforcement officials, and examining the serious meth problems faced by Indian reservations.

By Mr. REED:

S. 320. A bill to extend for an additional 5 years the Mark-to-Market program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, the first bill I introduce today is a first step to fighting the methamphetamine trafficking issue.

It is important to note that even though the program will expire, these Section 8 properties with above market rates will still be required to have their rents reduced to market levels. Without the proper tools to also restructure the debt, many owners will lack sufficient funds to purchase property or mortgage payments. Because many Section 8 properties are also FHA insured, this will result in a significant... widely anticipated that ethanol production will surpass the target for the year 2012 by the end of this year, five years early.

Clearly, it is time to increase the RFS targets. I am pleased to be an original cosponsor of the bill introduced today by my colleagues, Senator HARKIN and Senator LUGAR, that will increase those targets to 30 billion gallons by the year 2020 and 60 billion gallons by the year 2030. I hope my colleagues will support the provisions of that bill.

But for an expanded RFS to be successful, we must lay further groundwork. We cannot meet the targets and deadlines of an expanded RFS without a robust package of policies that set the stage for the next decade.

So far, we’ve met our biofuels goals by producing ethanol made from sugars that come from corn. This approach, by itself, has been profoundly successful in many rural communities but will eventually reach its maximum capacity. While that day is still several years away, we must begin preparations now. We must build upon our current path. We must continue our pursuit in cracking the code for corn cellulosics for our transition for the next generation of biofuels made from the broadest range of agriculture feedstocks. Our vocabulary must expand to cellulosics and biobutanol, manure and miscanthus.

The American Fuels Act, which I introduce today, breathes life into an expanded RFS. The American Fuels Act is the heart, the centerpiece, the key to ensuring that an expanded RFS is successful. That’s why I am pleased to be joined today by my esteemed colleagues, Senator LUGAR and Senator HARKIN, in the introduction of this bill.

The premise of the American Fuels Act is to create a “Biofuels Triangle” that focuses on (1) production, (2) distribution, and (3) consumption.

To expand production, we create an “Alternative Diesel Standard” for diesels that complements the RFS for gasoline. The Alternative Diesel Standard requires 2 billion gallons of alternative diesel into the 40 billion gallon domestic diesel supply by the year 2016, encouraging greater use of biofuel feedstocks like vegetable oils, animal fats, coal-to-liquids, manure, and municipal waste. We call for the establishment of a cellulosics fuels credit of an additional 76.5 cents per gallon so that first-generation cellulosic plants can be built to meet the 250 million gallon production goals by 2012.

To expand distribution, the American Fuels Act provides a tax credit for ethanol producers to invest in on-site blending equipment, bypassing oil refineries so that E-85 can be transported directly to the pump at your local gas station. Our bill also provides freedom for fuel franchisers by making it illegal for oil companies to stop their branded franchises from selling biofuels should these local businessmen wish to respond to their customer’s request for biofuels. This bill also gives franchisers the power to sue oil companies for imposing any restrictions.

And to expand consumption, the American Fuels Act encourages the manufacture of more vehicles that can function on higher ethanol blends like E-85 so that passenger cars can be flexible fuel vehicles. We provide a $100 tax credit to automakers for each ethanol-capable vehicle produced beyond the CAFE credit or any other government requirement. We require that 100 percent of the Federal fleet must be ethanol-capable or hybrids in the next 7 years. And we require that any public transit agency that uses Federal dollars to upgrade bus fleets must purchase an alternative fuel bus, or pledge to use alternative fuels in those buses.

To oversee these efforts, we create a Director of Energy Security in the Office of the President to ensure that our massive investment in domestically produced fuels get the national security leadership and coordination it requires.

Our dependence on oil is hurting our economy and jeopardizing our national security by keeping us tied to the world’s most dangerous and unstable regimes. It’s the fossil fuels we insist on burning—particularly oil—that are the single greatest cause of climate change and the damaging weather patterns that have been its result. Never has the failure to take on a single challenge so detrimentally affected nearly every aspect of the way our country lives as a Nation. And never have the possible solutions had the potential to do so much good for so many generations to come.

That’s why I urge my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring the American Fuels Act. I ask for their support, and for the swift enactment of this bill. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the American Fuels Act be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 133

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

By Mr. ALLARD: S. 135. A bill to authorize the construction of the Arkansas Valley Conduit in the State of Colorado, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing the Arkansas Valley Conduit bill, which will ensure the construction of a pipeline that will provide the small, financially strapped towns and water agencies along the lower Arkansas River with safe, clean, affordable water. This project was originally authorized by Congress in 1962, over 40 years ago, as a part of the Fryingpan-Arkansas Project. Due to several long years of drought and increasing Federal water quality standards, current water delivery methods are not enough. By creating an 80-percent Federal, 20-percent local cost share formula to help offset the construction costs of the conduit, this legislation will protect the future of southeastern Colorado’s drinking water supplies and prevent further economic hardship.

By Mr. ALLARD: S. 135. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Army to acquire land for the purposes of expanding Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, another bill dealing with the large military presence that relates to the expansion of the Army’s Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site. Due to an emphasis on rapid mobility, modularity, and maneuverability in recent years, the Army’s ability to project force across the battlefield has increased exponentially. As such, the Army transformation is also driving higher their requirement for training space.

With its close location to Fort Carson, Pinon Canyon was perfectly suited for the Army’s training needs 20 years ago. However, with the arrival of 10,000 new soldiers to Fort Carson, the Army has determined that the size of the site needs to be increased in order to meet Fort Carson’s new operational training requirements.

I have been told repeatedly by Army officials that the genesis of Fort Carson’s expansion proposal occurred when several landowners approached Fort Carson and expressed their strong desire to sell. I also understand that sufficient willing sellers exist to support a significant expansion of the site. However, many in the community surrounding Pinon Canyon have major questions that need to be answered.

In order to get some of these major questions answered, a reporting requirement was placed in the 2006 Defense Authorization bill, approved by both the Senate and the House. However, the Department of Army is restricted in communicating about any specific land acquisition proposal until a waiver for that site has been granted by the Secretary of Defense, which has yet to be granted. Thus, the Army’s hands were tied and they were unable to meet the full reporting requirements in the 2006 Defense authorization. I understand the difficult position the Army is in, but I believe it is absolutely necessary that they provide the information to the community and to Congress prior to any acquisition of property.

The leadership at Fort Carson has done a great job of reaching out and providing what information it could to the local communities. However, the Pentagon was not as forthcoming. I believe the Congress and, more importantly, the local communities in Southeastern Colorado need more information before we can decide whether this proposed expansion is necessary and appropriate.

With these objectives in mind, today I am introducing a bill that clearly defines the process under which the Army can expand the Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site. This legislation prohibits the use of eminent domain, requires the Army to pay fair market value. Most importantly, the bill does not allow the Army to proceed with land acquisition until it delivers the answers previously sought on the environmental and economic impacts of expansion and also must offer options for compensating the loss of property tax revenue.

It is vital that the Army take the time to answer these important questions to help alleviate the affected communities concerns. A number of counties and small towns in Southeastern Colorado could be adversely affected by this expansion, and this study will help us better understand the extent of the impacts and provide options for mitigating them.

By Mr. ALLARD:

S. 136. A bill to expand the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium to include the Transportation Technology Center; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, in another area, the events of the past several years remind us of the vital role of first responders in responding to natural disasters and terrorists attacks. It is important that our first responders receive the training needed to make critical life-saving decisions under emergency circumstances. I believe that an essential element of preparing our first responders is to provide them with hands-on experience in real-world training environments.

The importance of real world training was called to my attention by a visit to the Transportation Technology Training Center, TTC, in Pueblo, CO. There, I witnessed first hand the tools at our Nation’s disposal to equip our first responders with the training they need, specifically in the context of rail and mass transit. But our national training consortium does not currently include a facility that is uniquely focused on emergency preparedness within the railroad and mass transit environment. The inclusion of TTC would fill a critical gap in its current training agenda.

TTC is a federally owned, 52-square-mile multimodal testing and training facility in Pueblo, CO, operated by the Association of American Railroads, AAR. Each year, an average of 1,700 first responders travel to Pueblo, CO, to participate in TTC’s training program. The facility has trained more than 20,000 students in its 20-year history.

The ERTC is regarded as the “graduate school” of hazmat training because of its focus on hands on, true to life, training exercises on actual rail vehicles, including tank cars and passenger rail cars. The ERTC is uniquely positioned to teach emergency response for railway-related emergencies. It is for these reasons that today I introduce a bill authorizing the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium, as expanded to include the Transportation Technology Center in Pueblo, CO, and providing for its coordination and use by the Department of Homeland Security in training the Nation’s first responders.

located in the shadow of the falls, as were many other vitally important manufacturing enterprises.

President Ford recognized the importance of the area by declaring the falls and its surroundings a “National Historic Landmark” in 1976; he called the falls “a symbol of the industrial might which helps to make the United States the most powerful nation in the world.” Now, it is time that we recognize the importance of this historic area by making it New Jersey’s first national park. This would be of special importance because so few of our national parks are in urban areas. I believe that it is time we acknowledge that many of our most significant national treasures are located in densely populated areas, and creating a national park in Paterson is an ideal opportunity to do just that.

I grew up in Paterson, and I have appreciated the majesty and beauty of the Great Falls for many years. By creating a national park in Paterson, more Americans can be exposed to the exceptional cultural, natural, and historic significance of the Great Falls, and that is why I will passionately advocate for the passage of this bill. I have the honor to again work with my good friend, Congressman BILL PASCRELL—another longtime resident of Paterson—on this issue, as well as with a bipartisan group of lawmakers from my home State, all of whom believe strongly in this cause. I urge my colleagues to support the passage of this legislation, which is so important to New Jersey and all of America.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

"There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(c) The Secretary, after consultation with the Partnership, may enter into cooperative agreements with owners of property of nationally significant historic or other cultural resources within the national park in order to provide for interpretive exhibits or programs. Such agreements shall provide, whenever appropriate, that—

(a) Members of the Partnership shall have access to such property at specified, reasonable times for purposes of viewing property or exhibits or attending programs established by the Secretary, if the Secretary is authorized, subject to the availability of appropriated funds, to construct essential administrative or visitor use facilities on non-Federal public lands within the national park. SEC. 8. NATIONAL PARK AND MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE PARTNERSHIP ON ISSUES RELATED TO THE NATIONAL PARK.
By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself and Mr. SESSIONS):

S. 149. A bill to address the effect of the death of a defendant in Federal criminal proceedings; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to join Senator Sessions in re-introducing the “Preserving Crime Victims’ Restitution Act.” The Act would clarify the rule of law and procedures that should be applied when a criminal defendant, such as former Enron CEO Kenneth Lay, dies after he has been duly convicted, but before his appeals are final.

This bill passed the Senate unanimously at the end of the 109th Congress, but unfortunately it was not taken up by the House. Except for minor, technical corrections, this new bill is the same as what the Senate passed in the last Congress, and I urge my colleagues to speedily pass this bill, as you did before, so that it can be enacted into law.

As I mentioned when I introduced this bill last fall, we have worked closely with the Department of Justice in crafting this legislation, and we believe that the language, DOJ fully supports the principles contained in this bill, and has indicated that it supports fixing this problem now to ensure that, despite a defendant’s death, hard-won convictions are preserved so that restitution remains available for the victims of crime.

This bill would establish that, if a defendant dies after being convicted of a federal offense, his conviction will not be vacated. Instead, the court will be directed to issue a statement that the defendant was convicted—either by a guilty plea or a verdict finding him guilty—but then died before his case or appeal was final.

It would codify the current rule that no further proceedings can be imposed on a person who is convicted if they die before a sentence is imposed or they have an opportunity to appeal their conviction. It would clarify that, unlike punishment, other relief (such as restitution to the victims) that could have been sought against a convicted defendant can continue to be pursued and collected after the defendant’s death. It would establish a process to ensure that after a person dies, a representative of the estate can challenge a conviction or appeal his conviction if they want, and can also secure a lawyer—either on their own or by having one appointed and, if the Government had filed a criminal forfeiture action—in which it had sought to reach the defendant’s assets that were linked to his crimes— the Government would get an extra 2 years after the defendant’s death to file a civil forfeiture lawsuit so that it could try to recover those same assets in a different, and traditionally-accepted manner.

The need for this legislation was vividly demonstrated on October 17, 2006, when U.S. District Judge Sim Lake, of the Southern District of Texas, wiped clean the criminal record of Enron founder Kenneth Lay, even after a jury and judge had unanimously found him guilty of 10 criminal charges, including securities fraud, wire fraud involving false and misleading statements, bank fraud and conspiracy.

The decision to dismiss Mr. Lay’s conviction was not based on any error in the trial, suggestion of unfairness in the proceedings, or allegation of his innocence. Instead, it was simply based on the fact that Mr. Lay’s conviction had been affirmed on appeal, under a common law rule known as “abatement.”

In other words, the order essentially meant that Mr. Lay was “convicted but not guilty”—“innocent by reason of his death.”

Judge Lake granted this dismissal even in the face of DOJ Enron Task Force filings, which noted how Mr. Lay’s conviction “provided the basis for the likely illegal fraud proceeds totaling tens of millions of dollars.” In other words, the dismissal meant that millions of dollars that the jury found was obtained by Mr. Lay illegally at the expense of former Enron employees and shareholders would remain untouched in the Lay estate. These employees and shareholders will now find it much harder to lay claim to these ill-gotten gains held by Mr. Lay’s estate, because they will be unable to bring their criminal conviction as proof of his wrongdoing.

I do not fault Judge Lake for issuing this order. He made it clear that he was simply following the binding precedent issued in 2004 by the full U.S. Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit, in a case called United States v. Estate of Parsons.

But as I noted in a letter I wrote to Attorney General Gonzales on October 29, 2006, the Fifth Circuit’s Parsons decision far beyond the traditional rule of law in this area. While the common-law doctrine of abatement has historically wiped out “punishments” following a criminal defendant’s death, the Supreme Court has never held that it must also wipe out a victim’s right to other forms of relief such as restitution, which simply compensate third parties who were injured by criminal misconduct.

As the six dissenters in Parsons noted, majority’s “‘finality rationale’ is a completely novel judicial creation which has not been embraced or even suggested by . . . other courts.” The Third and Fourth Circuits, for example, have expressly refused to take this position, and upheld a restitution order after a criminal defendant’s death.

The Parsons decision was remarkable in several other respects, including the fact that (as the dissenters noted), its new rule of law was apparently inspired by a single law review article. That academic piece boldly claimed that a criminal defendant’s right of appeal is “evolving into a constitutional right.”

and suggested that a conviction untested by appellate review is unreliable and illegitimate. This notion runs contrary to the traditional rule applied in virtually every other context—where a judge’s findings are typically respected unless shown to be clearly erroneous.

Of course a defendant is presumed innocent at the outset of his case. After a jury has deliberated and unanimously issued a formal finding of guilt, however, that presumption of innocence no longer stands.

The perceived “finality” rationale even raises the possibility that a defendant who fully admitted his wrongdoing and pleaded guilty, but who then died while an appeal of his sentence was pending, could have his entire criminal conviction erased.

In fact, that has already occurred, in the 1994 case of United States v. Pogue, where the D.C. Circuit ordered the dismissal of a conviction of a defendant whose appeal was pending. Although the docketing statement had said that the defendant intended to challenge only his sentence, and not his underlying conviction.

Following Judge Lake’s decision, I sent a letter to the Attorney General, asking him to appeal the order and continue the fight for Enron victims.

Unfortunately, the Justice Department decided in November to withdraw its appeal, leaving it up to the victims themselves to pursue any further relief.

I am very disappointed in this decision. These victims have had their livelihoods and retirement stripped from them, and they deserved a Justice Department that was willing to fight vigorously to protect their interests.

Enron’s collapse in 2001 wiped out thousands of jobs, more than $60 billion in market value, and more than $2 billion in pension plans. When America’s seventh largest company crumbled into bankruptcy, its accounting tricks could no longer hide its billions in debt, countless former Enron employees and shareholders lost their entire life savings after investing in Enron’s 401(k) plan.

Many of these Enron victims have been following closely the years of preparation by the Enron Task Force, and the four-month jury trial and separate one-week bench trial, hoping to finally recover some restitution in this criminal case. Despite Mr. Lay’s vigorous efforts to avoid being held accountable for his actions, a conviction was finally secured.

Yet now these people have essentially been victimized again. They will be forced to start all over in their efforts to get back some portion of the pension funds on which they expected to subsist, and the other hard-earned assets that will remain beyond their reach, despite the unanimous, hard-fought verdicts finding Mr. Lay guilty of all counts with which he had been charged.

I believe in situations like this, leaving the victims without this recourse is an unacceptable outcome. That is why I am introducing this bill to prevent further injustices like this from ever happening again.

While I have no desire for our Government to punish a criminal defendant who dies, the legislation should be different when we are determining how to make up for harm suffered by other innocent victims.

This legislation offers a fair solution and orderly process in the event that a criminal defendant dies prior to his final appeal.

The time has come for Congress to end this injustice—hopefully, by acting quickly enough to assist these Enron victims, but in any event in a way that will solve the problems that the Lay dismissal so starkly illustrated.

I urge my colleagues in the Senate to quickly pass this bill, as you did in the 109th Congress, so that we can enact it into law in the 110th Congress.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(b) Administration of Justice.—This Act may be cited as the “Restitution Act of 2007”.

SEC. 3. RESTITUTION.

(a) In General.—If a defendant dies after a plea of guilty or no contest has been accepted or a verdict has been returned, a sentence announced, or a judgment entered prior to the death of that defendant, or if an order of restitution has been made against the estate of that defendant in an amount equal to the amount that would have been imposed if that defendant were alive, the estate of that defendant in an amount equal to the amount that would have been imposed if that defendant were alive, or the Government, or a victim of that defendant’s crime seeking to challenge or reinstate a plea of guilty or no contest, may file or pursue an otherwise permissible direct appeal, petition for mandamus or certiorari, or other collateral proceedings, to the extent otherwise permitted by law.

(b) Notice.—The death of a defendant after a sentence has been announced shall not be a basis for abating or otherwise invalidating restitution proceedings announced or ordered after sentencing under section 3666A(d)(5) of this title or any other provision of law.

(b) Special Procedures.—If continuing litigation against an individual against whom a conviction of a crime has been entered, the death of an individual does not affect the Government’s ability to seek forfeiture, or to continue to pursue, civil forfeiture of property as authorized by law. Notwithstanding the expiration of any civil forfeiture statute of limitations or any time limitation set forth in section 983(a) of this title, not later than the later of the time period otherwise authorized by law and 2 years after the date of the death of an individual against whom a criminal indictment alleging forfeiture is pending, the Government may continue civil forfeiture proceedings against any interest in any property alleged to be forfeitable in the indictment of that individual.

(c) Definitions.—In this section—

(1) the term ‘tolled’ means a filing deadline that has been extended under 4(b) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, from the entry of the judgment or order appealed from, or from the filing of an appeal filed, within the period provided by rule 4(b) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure.

S. 150. A bill to amend the safe Drinking Water Act to protect the health of pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children by requiring a health advisory and drinking water standard for perchlorate; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation that would order EPA to promptly establish a health advisory and then a drinking water standard for perchlorate. I am pleased that the Senior Senator from California, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and the Senior Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG, have joined me as original cosponsors of this measure.

This legislation will require the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to establish a standard for perchlorate contamination in drinking water supplies by January 4, 2007.

EPA still has not committed to establishing a tap water standard for this widespread contaminant, decades after learning that perchlorate is a problem in our drinking water.

Perchlorate is a clear and present danger to California’s and much of America’s health. We cannot wait any longer to address this threat. EPA needs to get moving and protect our drinking water now.

Drinking water sources for more than 20 million Americans are contaminated with perchlorate. Perchlorate is the main ingredient in rocket fuel, which accounts for 90 percent of its use. Perchlorate is also used for ammunition, fireworks, highway safety flares, air bags, and fertilizers. It dissolves readily in many liquids, including water, and moves easily and quickly through the ground.

Perchlorate was first discovered in drinking water in 1967, and at the latest in the mid-1980s, EPA was aware that perchlorate contaminates drinking water. Since 1997, when California developed a new, more sensitive testing method that can detect perchlorate down to 4 parts per billion, perchlorate has been found in groundwater, drinking water, and surface water throughout the U.S.

According to a May 2005 report from the Government Accountability Office, perchlorate contamination has been detected in water and soil at almost 400 sites in the U.S with levels ranging from 4 parts per billion to millions of parts per billion.

GAO also said that limited EPA data show that perchlorate has polluted 35 States and the District of Columbia, and is known to have contaminated 133 public water systems in 26 States. Those data likely underestimate total exposure, as illustrated by the finding
I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE
This Act may be referred to as the “Protecting Pregnant Women and Children From Perchlorate Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.
(a) Findings.—Congress finds that:
(1) perchlorate (A) is a chemical used as the primary ingredient of solid rocket propellant; (B) is also used in fireworks, road flares, and other applications.

(2) waste from the manufacture and improper disposal of chemicals containing perchlorate is increasingly being discovered in soil and water.

(3) according to the Government Accountability Office, perchlorate contamination has been detected in water and soil at almost 400 sites in 35 States, with concentration levels ranging from 4 parts per billion to millions of parts per billion.

(4) the Government Accountability Office has determined that the Environmental Protection Agency does not centrally track or monitor perchlorate detections or the status of perchlorate cleanup, so a greater number of contaminated sites may already exist.

(5) according to the Government Accountability Office, limited Environmental Protection Agency data show that perchlorate, which has been detected in water and soil at almost 400 sites in 35 States and the District of Columbia and is known to have contaminated 133 public water systems in 26 States: (A) perchlorate can harm human health, especially in pregnant women and children, by interfering with uptake of iodide by the thyroid gland, which is necessary to produce important hormones that help control human health and development; (B) in adults, the thyroid helps to regulate metabolism; (C) in children, the thyroid helps to ensure proper mental and physical development; and (D) impairment of thyroid function in expectant mothers or infants may result in effects including delayed development and decreased learning capability.

(6) the agency has established a “Drinking Water Equivalent Level” (DWEL) of 2.5 parts per billion for perchlorate, which was recently found.

(b) Purposes.—The purposes of this Act are:
(1) to require the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to establish, by not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, a health advisory in drinking water that fully protects pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children, taking into consideration body weight and exposure patterns and all routes of exposure to perchlorate.

(2) to require the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to establish, by not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate that fully protects pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children, taking into consideration body weight and exposure patterns and all routes of exposure to perchlorate.

SEC. 3. HEALTH ADVISORY AND NATIONAL PRIMARY DRINKING WATER REGULATION FOR PERCHLORATE.

“(C) PERCHLORATE—

(i) Schedule, health advisory, and standard.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Administrator shall publish a health advisory and promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate, in accordance with the schedule and provisions established by this subparagraph, that fully protects pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children, taking into consideration body weight and exposure patterns, and all routes of exposure.

(ii) Health advisory.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this subparagraph, the Administrator shall publish a health advisory for perchlorate in accordance with clause (i).

(iii) Proposed regulations.—Not later than August 1, 2007, the Administrator shall propose a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate in accordance with clause (i).

(iv) Final regulations.—Not later than December 31, 2007, after providing notice and an opportunity for public comment, the Administrator shall promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate in accordance with clause (i).”.

By Mrs. BOXER.
S. 152. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to establish a program to help States expand the educational system to include at least 1 year of early educational services to all children who enter kindergarten; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.
Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I rise to reintroduce the Early Education Act. This bill will enable children across our nation to be prepared with the initial skills and abilities to successfully begin their education.

I strongly believe that there should be a national commitment to establish that all children have access to high quality prekindergarten programs. This bill is a step forward in making that possible.

Of the nearly 8 million and 3- and 4-year-olds that could be in early education, fewer than half are enrolled in an early education program. In my State of California alone, just 65 percent of 4-year-olds are in preschool.

The result is that too many children come to school ill-prepared to learn. They lack language and social skills. Almost all experts now agree that an early education experience is one of the most effective strategies for improving later school performance.

Research has discovered that children have a learning capacity that can and should be developed at a much earlier age than was previously thought. The National Research Council reported that prekindergarten education opportunities are critical in developing early language and literacy skills and preventing reading difficulties in young children.

Furthermore, studies have shown that children who participate in pre-kindergarten programs are less likely to be held back a grade, show greater learning retention and initiative, have better social skills, are more enthusiastic about school, and are more likely to have good attendance records.

In fact, prekindergarten programs pay for themselves in long-term benefits. It is estimated that for every dollar invested in early education, about $7 are saved in later costs.

My bill, the Early Education Act, would create a program in at least 10 States to provide one year of pre-kindergarten early education in the public schools. There is a 50 percent matching requirement, and the $300 million authorized annually under this bill would be used by States to supplement—not supplant—other Federal, State or local funds. This bill would serve approximately 136,000 children.

Our children need a solid foundation that builds on current education systems by providing them with early learning skills. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 153. A bill to provide for the monitoring of medical health of firefighters who responded to emergencies in certain disaster areas and for the treatment of such firefighters; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I introduce to this body the Firefighters Act, an important bill that would protect the firefighters who respond to emergencies. The bill is inspired by the brave firefighters from the San Jacinto Ranger District, who responded to the Esperanza Incident wildfire in southern California in October of 2006.

We rely on firefighters to protect us when disaster strikes, and they selflessly place themselves in danger to provide that protection. One danger they face in the course of performing their duties is exposure to toxins—including fine particulates, carbon monoxide, sulfur, formaldehyde, mercury, heavy metals, and benzene—that can have a significant negative effect on their health.

We owe it to this country’s brave firefighters to minimize their sacrifice for our safety, to the greatest extent possible. My bill would require the U.S. Fire Administrator to contract with a medical research university to conduct long-term medical health monitoring of firefighters who responded to emergencies in any areas declared a disaster by the Federal Government, and to provide healthcare benefits for firefighters who suffer health problems as a consequence of their work in those disaster areas. Pulmonary illness, neurological damage, and cardiovascular damage are examples of illnesses for which firefighters would be monitored and treated under this bill.

I urge my colleagues to consider and pass this bill to benefit firefighters, who are among this country’s most heroic citizens.

By Mr. BUNNING (for himself, Mr. OBAMA, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. PORYR, Mr. MURkowski, Mr. BOND, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. ENZI, Ms. LANDRIEU, and Mr. CRAIG):

S. 154. A bill to promote coal-to-liquid fuel activities; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Promotion Act.

For too long, America has ignored its energy security. Many of us can remember the energy crises of the 1970s. We were held ransom by a monopolistic oil cartel and forced to endure shortages, gas lines, and high prices. In the early 1980s, just as America began to invest in alternative fuels, the oil-producing states of the world crashed prices to make new technology uncompetitive.

During most of the last 25 years, we have enjoyed low prices and plentiful supply, but we have paid a price. Today, we find America is addicted to oil.

Since September 11, we have seen the fragile state of our energy markets. Domestic disasters and terrorism can send energy prices spiraling out of control. Our energy resources are stretched to the limits, and small supply disruptions ripple through the entire economy. America needs a secure domestic source to ease our dependence on imported oil.

That is why today I am reintroducing my bill, the Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Promotion Act with the current Presiding Officer. Senator Obama of Illinois, I have worked with the coal and fuel industries, the Department of Defense, and environmental groups to identify the needs of the coal-to-liquid industry and to find the best way for the Government to support the coal-to-liquid development.

Coal has long been America’s most abundant fuel resource and has driven our economic growth since the industrial revolution. In the coal-to-liquid fuel process (in addition to the FischerTropsch process, and the resulting fuel is refined into jet fuel and diesel fuel. The final product is cleaner than conventional fuels because nearly all of the sulfur and nitrogen is removed.

While this technology is just taking root in America, South Africa meets 30 percent of its fuel needs with coal. CTL technology lets America capitalize on a domestic resource that will fuel economic growth and energy security required in today’s world. Many of my colleagues may ask one question right now: If this technology is so great and could replace expensive imports from the Middle East, why hasn’t it been done already? The answer is simple: costs and market uncertainty.

A typical size CTL plant costs more than $2 billion to construct. With complicated plans and environmental permitting, a new plant could take 5 to 8 years to build. This is a challenge for even the biggest risk-takers on Wall Street. Raising the capital needed to develop a new technology is always difficult, but the multibillion dollar investment scale of a CTL plant has made it nearly impossible.

On top of this is the uncertainty of the price of oil. America has seen oil prices rise dramatically in the last few years. But investors are concerned that oil prices could drop to the low levels of the 1980s and make CTL plants uncompetitive again. I believe oil prices will stay above the price range that keeps CTL profitable, which is estimated to be between $40 and $50 per barrel. But even if oil prices were to drop that low in the next few decades, I believe CTL would more than pay for itself by insulating us from supply shocks and providing a secure domestic fuel supply for the military, businesses such as airlines and trucking, and the American economy.

The Federal Government must act to help industry overcome these hurdles. This legislation will provide a combination of incentives to create a net-import of coal-to-liquid production in the United States.

The Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Promotion Act of 2007 has three parts. First, this bill addresses the need to pull together the investors and the billions of dollars required to build a CTL plant. It expands and enhances the Department of Energy’s loan guarantee program included in the Energy Policy Act we passed in 2005. It expressly authorizes...
DOE to administer loan guarantees for the Nation’s first CTL plants. These plants must be large scale, which is a minimum production of 10,000 barrels a day of liquid fuel. This program is only for the first 10 commercial plants. By then, we could have proven the economics of the technology and no further incentives will be needed.

It also provides a new program of matching loans. The loans are capped at $20 million and must be matched dollar-for-dollar by non-Federal money. They must be repaid as soon as the plants are financed.

Second, this legislation would fundamentally alter the economics of CTL plants during and after construction. It expands the investment tax credits and expensing provisions enacted in the Energy Policy Act of 2005. It increases the 20-percent tax credit for CTL plants to a maximum of $200 million for each of the first 10 CTL plants. It also extends the expiring exploration of the fuel excise tax incentives for CTL from 2009 to 2020. The current provisions will expire long before the first CTL plant is even operational. This extension will provide a meaningful timeframe for CTL plants to benefit from the same tax incentives we offer renewable and hydro-gen fuels.

This bill also provides an incentive for CTL plants to capture carbon emissions. We can use CO2 for CTL plants to capture carbon emissions. We can use CO2

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, first I commend my colleague from Kentucky for his legislation. This is an area in which I have had a continuing interest as well. I salute him because one of the great challenges facing our Nation is to dramatically reduce our dependence on foreign energy. That is in our energy interest, it is in our economic interest, it is in our vital security interest. I commend my colleague from Kentucky for coming to the floor and offering his proposal on what we could do to make progress. I thank the Senator.

By Mr. Reid (for Mr. Wyden (for himself), Mr. McCain, and Mr. Sununu).

S. 156. A bill to make the moratorium on Internet access taxes and multiple and discriminatory taxes on electronic commerce permanent; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. Wyden. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing in this Congress a bill to advance a cause for which I have been fighting for over 10 years now. The Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act would extend the current Internet tax moratorium, so that the Internet can remain free from burdensome and discriminatory taxes.

Legislation to keep the Internet free from these taxes has passed the Senate 3 times since 1998 with sunsets that required consecutive extensions. A permanent moratorium on Internet taxation passed through both the Commerce and Finance Committees in the 109th Congress yet failed to get action on the Senate floor.

I come to the Floor again, bringing up Internet Taxation, because the moratorium on Internet Taxation is set to expire on November 1st of this year. In only 11 months, if Congress does not act, the moratorium on Internet Taxation that has allowed the Internet and e-commerce to flourish will cease to protect American consumers and American businesses.

I don’t want those who use the Internet to end up like our ancestors; they were told the Spanish-American War telephone tax was “temporary,” and that the tax was just needed to pay for the war. That war ended two centuries ago, and Congress is just now getting around to getting rid of the tax.

Thus, in 2005, when the Internet started to become mainstream, Congress was ready to tax the Internet. Congress asked, the Internet shows no sign of riding off into the sunset, or becoming obsolete. You can bet that once discriminatory taxes are slapped on Internet users, those discriminatory taxes won’t be going away any time soon either.

If you want to figure out how much discriminatory taxes could be, just look at your phone bill. Taxes and government fees add 20 percent on top of costs to consumer’s telephone bills.

If you take a gallon of milk to the checkout counter and pay tax on the purchase, the clerk can’t turn around and charge you another tax if you’re going to use the milk in your cereal and another tax if you’re going to put milk in your coffee. But that’s what will happen to the Internet if the ban is not made permanent. You’d still pay all the telephone taxes and all the franchise fees on cable, but on top of those you’d pay even more taxes for the same service when you sign on to the Internet.

Discriminatory and double taxation of the Internet has been banned for 8 years now. In all that time no one has ever come forward with evidence to show that the failure to impose discriminatory taxes has hurt them. No one has demonstrated why taxes that cannot be imposed by the offline world should be imposed on identical online transactions.

Western Civilization may not end if the Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act is not passed, but you have to ask how many times Congress has to revisit, re-litigate and re-approve a law that has been this effective. It is time to make the Internet tax moratorium permanent.

I want to thank my colleagues, Mr. McCain from Arizona and Mr. Sununu from New Hampshire for introducing this legislation with me today. They both fought tirelessly alongside me and our former colleague, Mr. Allen from Virginia, to get the moratorium extended in 2004. In 2004, they are now replacing Mr. Allen as my bipartisan partners on this important piece of legislation. It is my hope that the three of us, working with the rest of our colleagues, can get this all-important piece of legislation passed early this year so we do not have to worry about it as the November 1st deadline fast approaches.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 156

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be called the “Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act of 2007.”

SEC. 2. PERMANENT MORATORIUM ON INTERNET ACCESS TAXES AND MULTIPLE AND DISCRIMINATORY TAXES ON ELECTRONIC COMMERCE.

Section 101(a) of the Internet Tax Freedom Act (47 U.S.C. 151 note) is amended by striking “taxes” and inserting “taxes” beginning November 1, 2003, and ending November 1, 2007;” and inserting “taxes.”

Mr. McCain. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with Senators Wyden and Sununu in introducing the Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act of 2007. This bill would ensure that consumers never have to pay a toll when they access the Information Highway. Whether consumers log on to the Internet using cable modem, DSL, dial-up or wireless services, under this bill, they will not be taxed by any State or local governments for their Internet usage.

The goal of this legislation is to make Internet access affordable to all Americans and a worthy policy goal. The Internet has become a fixture and core component of modern American life that has created and continues to generate social and economic opportunities throughout the United States.

In 1998, Congress put in place a temporary ban on any State or local taxes on Internet access. Additionally, Congress placed a moratorium on multiple or discriminatory State and local taxes on e-commerce transactions to ensure the breadth of online commerce.

This moratorium was extended in 2004, but is set to expire November 1, 2007. Our legislation, the Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act of 2007, would make the moratorium permanent.

Today, the U.S. is 12th in the world in per capita Internet access, lagging behind competitors South Korea, the United Kingdom and Canada. This is absolutely unacceptable to a country that leads the world in technological innovation, development, and international competitiveness. We certainly cannot afford to make Internet access more difficult to obtain if we want to become more internationally competitive.

There is little doubt that the development and growth of the Internet was aided by the tax moratorium. In 1998, the year the moratorium was first enacted, 36 percent of U.S. adults reported using the Internet. In 2006, that number grew to 72 percent. That is an all-time high according to an April 2006 Pew Internet & American Life Project Report.

However, the report also found that Americans in the lowest income households are considerably less likely to be online. Just 55 percent of adults living in households with less than $30,000 annual income go online, versus 73 percent of those whose income is between $30,000–$50,000. This “digital divide” needs to be closed immediately.

Continuing Congress’s policy of reducing the cost of Internet access, by preventing the service from being taxed, is one step we can take now to close the “digital divide.”

As use of the Internet has grown, so has e-commerce. According to the most recent comScore Networks report, Americans spent over $100 billion on Internet purchases during 2006, a major milestone for retailers and the World Wide Web. This legislation would ensure that online transactions are not taxed at a rate higher than other sales transactions. Again, the goal of this legislation is to make the Internet affordable to all.
Americans and foster the growth of the Internet.

With respect to the question of whether it is wise to make Internet access tax free, Congress has a long history of giving tax incentives to commercial legislation that we believe will benefit our society. The Internet is a technology that is a source of and vehicle for significant economic benefits. The proponents of this legislation strongly believe the Internet clearly merits the tax incentives that are included by this bill. I recognize that there are some who wish to continue to make the Internet tax moratorium temporary. Their premise is that the Internet will continue to evolve and thus Internet access may develop into a service the States and localities would wish to tax. I believe that this moratorium should be permanent to continue encouraging those very Internet-related innovations. By making the moratorium permanent, we invest in ideas that will provide Internet access will be able to operate in a predictable tax environment. This will result in continued investment in this very important social, political, and economic medium.

Congress now has the opportunity to extend permanently the Internet tax moratorium and assure consumers that taxes will not inhibit the offering of affordable Internet access. By supporting this legislation, we can continue to promote Internet usage by Americans as well as encourage innovation relating to this technology. For these reasons, I ask my colleagues to support this pro-consumer, pro-innovation, and pro-technology bill.

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 158. A bill to expand access to affordable health care and to strengthen the health care safety net and make health care services more available in rural and underserved areas; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleague from Louisiana, Senator LANDRIEU, in introducing the Access to Affordable Health Care Act, a comprehensive plan that builds on the strengths of our current public programs and private health care system to make affordable health care available to millions more Americans.

One of my priorities in the Senate has been access to affordable health care. There are still far too many Americans without health insurance or with woefully inadequate coverage. As many as 46 million Americans are uninsured, and millions more are underinsured.

Maine is in the midst of a growing health insurance crisis, with insurance premiums rising at alarming rates. Whether I am talking to a self-employed fisherman, a displaced worker, or the human resource manager of a large company, the soaring costs of health insurance is a common concern.

These cost increases have been particularly burdensome for small businesses, the backbone of the Maine economy. Maine small business owners want to provide coverage for their employees, but they are caught in a cost squeeze. They know that if they pass on premium increases to their employees, more of them will decline coverage. Yet these small businesses simply cannot afford to absorb double-digit increases in their health insurance premiums year after year.

The problem is even more acute for individuals and families who must purchase health insurance on their own. Monthly health insurance premiums in Maine often exceed a family’s mortgage payment. Clearly, we must do more to make health insurance more available and affordable.

The Access to Affordable Health Care Act, which we are introducing today, is a seven-point plan that combines a variety of public and private approaches. The legislation includes: one, to expand access to affordable health care for small businesses; two, to make health insurance more affordable for individuals and families purchasing coverage on their own; three, to strengthen the health care safety net for those without coverage; four, to expand access to care in rural and underserved areas; five, to increase access to affordable long-term care; six to promote healthier lifestyles; and seven, to provide funding to States in order to expand access to affordable health care for low-income children. Today, over six million children—including approximately 14,500 in Maine—receive health care coverage through this remarkably effective health care program.

Our legislation will shore up the looming shortfalls in SCHIP funding that 17 States—including Maine—will face in Fiscal Year 2007 to ensure that children currently enrolled in the program do not lose their coverage. Just prior to adjournment in December, the Congress approved legislation to partially address these shortfalls. That legislation, however, provides only about one-fifth of the funds needed. Our legislation will close that gap. Our legislation builds on the success of the SCHIP program and gives States a number of new tools to increase participation. The bill authorizes new grants for States and non-profit organizations to conduct innovative outreach and enrollment efforts to ensure that all eligible children are covered. States would also have the option of covering the parents of the children who are enrolled in programs like MaineCare. The states would also receive funds to cover the cost of providing children with health care. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act would cover the costs of providing children with health care, regardless of their ability to pay. About 20 percent of the patients treated in these centers are a critical part of our health care safety net. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act calls for a doubling of funding over five years for the National Health Service Corps program, which includes community, migrant, public housing and homeless health centers.

These centers, which operate in underserved urban and rural communities, provide critical primary care services to millions of Americans, regardless of their ability to pay. About 20 percent of the patients treated in Maine’s community health centers have been uninsured for one or more months and will help many more working lower-income families who currently purchase private health insurance with little or no government help. To strengthen our nation’s health care safety net, the Access to Affordable Health Care Act calls for a doubling of funding over five years for the Consolidated Health Centers program, which includes community, migrant, public housing and homeless health centers.

to their employees. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act gives the small businesses that are the backbone of this country the opportunity to help make their employees’ lives just a little easier. This legislation further provides for the expansion of the enormously successful SCHIP program, allowing States to cover increased numbers of pregnant women and poor, working adults. It allows for more community health centers and encourages health care providers to practice in the increasingly underserved rural areas of all States. It gives businesses the tools to not only insure their employees against illness but to encourage wellness, decreasing health care costs for everybody. It allows our government to reward States that find ways to improve health outcomes among Medicare patients, actively supporting the types of cost-efficient successes that improve the quality of life.

Guided by its intensity and creativity has a moral responsibility to do more than we have to provide its citizens with the ability to keep their families safe and healthy. These comprehensive, real steps forward. The SBA’s director needs to recognize the critical need for increased access and affordable health care for millions of American families and business owners, and I am proud to have partnered with Senator COLLINS in this important pursuit. I encourage my colleagues to consider this legislation can unite and provide our constituents with the peace of mind.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself, Ms. SNOWE, Ms. LANDRIEU, and Mr. VITTER):

S. 163. A bill to improve the disaster loan program at the Small Business Administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship.

Mr. President, 16 months after Hurricane Katrina struck the Gulf Coast, small business owners in New Orleans and across Louisiana are still struggling to keep their doors open and their employees working. In those 16 months, I have worked with Senators SNOWE, LANDRIEU, and VITTER to produce a comprehensive package to reform the SBA’s Disaster Assistance program. The SBA’s failed response in a time of unmatchable need demonstrates that its loan program is broken and needs fixing.

Immediately after Hurricane Katrina hit, I introduced an amendment with Senator LANDRIEU to the fiscal year 2006 Commerce, Justice and Science appropriations bill to address the needs of Gulf Region small business and homeowners. The amendment was adapted with input from Chair SNOWE, and a subsequent bipartisan amendment passed the Senate with a vote of 96-0. Although the entire Senate supported the amendment, it was stripped out of the bill in conference.

On September 30, 2005, I again worked with Chair SNOWE and Senators LANDRIEU and VITTER to introduce a bipartisan proposal, the Small Business Hurricane Relief and Reconstruction Act of 2006 S. 1807. This proposal was opposed by the administration. In June, I introduced the Small Business Disaster Assistance and Improvements Act of 2006, S. 3487 which once again attempted to comprehensively address the shortcomings of the SBA’s Disaster Assistance program. Again, the administration opposed this effort. After extensive small business and Senate hearings, the Small Business Committee unanimously reported S. 3778, the Small Business Reauthorization and Improvements Act of 2006, which again put forward a bipartisan, comprehensive fix for this program. Finally, in December, just prior to the adjournment of the 109th Congress, yet another attempt was made at reaching a bipartisan consensus with the introduction of S. 4997, the Small Business Disaster Response and Loan Improvements Act of 2006. The administration maintained its opposition to the fixes proposed in this bill.

Now, on the first day of this new Congress, I am introducing the Small Business Disaster Response and Loan Improvements Act of 2007. Once again, this bill is supported by the chair and the ranking minority member of the Small Business Committee, as well as by the Democratic and Republican Senators of Louisiana, whose constituents continue to wait for Congress to respond appropriately. I am introducing this bill on the first day of the 110th Congress because as the incoming chair of the Small Business Committee, improving the Disaster Assistance program at the SBA is among my top priorities.

This bill includes directives for the SBA to create a private disaster loan program, to allow for lenders to issue disaster loans. To ensure that these loans are borrower-friendly, we provide for the SBA to strike agreements with private lenders and issue disaster loans so that the agency can subsidize the interest rates. In addition, the administrator is authorized to enter into agreements with private contractors in order to expedite loan application processing for direct disaster loans.

The bill also includes language directing SBA to create an expedited disaster assistance loan program to provide businesses with short-term loans so that they may keep their doors open until they receive assistance. The days immediately following a disaster are crucial for businesses—statistics show that once they close their doors, they likely will not open them again. These short-term loans should help prevent those doors from closing.

A presidential declaration of Catastrophic National Disaster will allow the administrator to offer economic injury disaster loans to adversely affected business owners beyond the geographic reach of the disaster area. In the event of a large-scale disaster, businesses located far from the physical reach of the disaster can be affected by the magnitude of a localized destruction. We saw this when the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001 affected businesses from coast to coast, and we saw it again with the 2005 Gulf Coast hurricanes. Should another catastrophic disaster strike, the President should have the authority to provide businesses across the country with access to the same low-interest economic injury loans available to businesses within the declared disaster area.

Small non-profit entities, particularly those providing services to victims should be rewarded and given access to the capital they require to continue their services. To this end, the administrator is authorized to make disaster loans to non-profit entities, including religious organizations.

Construction and rebuilding contracts being awarded are likely to be larger than the current $2 million size limit on Small Business Administration Surety Bond Program, which helps small construction firms gain access to contracts. This bill increases the guarantee against loss for small business contracts up to $5 million and allows the administrator to increase that level to $10 million, if deemed necessary.

The bill also provides for Small Business Development Centers to offer business counseling in disaster areas, and to travel beyond traditional geographic boundaries to provide services during declared disasters. To encourage Small Business Development Centers located in disaster areas to keep their doors open, the maximum grant amount of $100,000 is waived.

So that Congress may remain better aware of the status of the administration’s disaster loan program, this bill directs the administration to report to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship of the Senate and to the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives regularly on the fiscal status of the disaster loan program as well as the need for supplemental funding. This bill is also directed to report on the number of Federal contracts awarded to small businesses, minority-owned small businesses, women-owned businesses, and local businesses during a disaster declaration.

Finally, gas prices continue to fluctuate, and fuel-dependent small businesses are struggling with the cost of energy. This bill provides relief to small businesses during times of above average energy price increases, authorizing energy disaster loans through the Small Business Administration and the United States Department of Agriculture to companies that are dependent on energy.

In the 16 months since Katrina struck, I have visited New Orleans three times. I have met with the life-blood of that city—its small business owners—the shopowners on Bourbon Street and on Magazine Street who make that city unique. The people of New Orleans are resilient, and they remain hopeful; they are keeping their businesses open despite tourism that has been slow to return and despite a government response that was painfully slow to arrive. Sixteen months is too long a time to wait to reform and improve a program that could have breathed relief into this city’s economy during a one-time desolation. As this new Congress begins, I call on my colleagues to support this legislation, a bipartisan labor of more than a year’s worth of negotiations. The tools offered within this bill will go a long way toward heading off another Katrina-like response to any future catastrophic disaster.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

By Mr. KENNEDY:
S. 164. A bill to modernize the education system of the United States; to improve the Quality of Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. KENNEDY. President, few things are more indispensable to the United States than good schools.

Today more than ever, a quality education and performance standards specifying the American dream and the best guarantee of equal opportunity for all our people, good citizenship, and an economy capable of mastering modern global challenges.

In 1965, as part of the War on Poverty, President Johnson signed into law the landmark Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, which focuses on early childhood education and the quality of instruction by requiring higher performance standards used to measure progress, and many States use tests that need substantial improvement. Some use tests that are not aligned to the standards that students must meet. Others have manufactured artificially high test score gains by lowering standards and adjusting test scores in order to avoid unfavorable consequences under the law's accountability framework.

We need to shift our understanding of the Act away from the idea that it lays out a framework for schools, and toward a more productive framework that helps schools and States reach higher, not lower. We should use the well-regarded National Assessment of Educational Progress the "Nation's report card" to benchmark the progress of our State and local governments to the achievement of a college degree.

The SUCCESS Act I am introducing today would assist States in these efforts. As the name suggests, it would provide Federal support for States Using Collaboration and Cooperation to Enhance Standards for Students. It would help ensure that public schools challenge all students to learn to high standards and provide needed help to schools with the greatest needs.

Legislation urging the Department of Education to improve its report cards and tests. The Nation's report card the National Assessment of Educational Progress to ensure that it sets a national benchmark which is internationally competitive and is aligned with the demands of the 21st century global economy. It expands our ability to monitor science achievement. It requires the NAEP to measure student preparedness to enter college, the 21st century workforce, or the Armed Services. It also requires the Secretary of Education to measure progress, and many States use tests that need substantial improvement. Some use tests that are not aligned to the standards that students must meet. Others have manufactured artificially high test score gains by lowering standards and adjusting test scores in order to avoid unfavorable consequences under the law's accountability framework.

The SUCCESS Act I am introducing today would assist States in these efforts. As the name suggests, it would provide Federal support for States Using Collaboration and Cooperation to Enhance Standards for Students. It would help ensure that public schools challenge all students to learn to high standards and provide needed help to schools with the greatest needs.

Legislation urging the Department of Education to improve its report cards and tests. The Nation's report card the National Assessment of Educational Progress to ensure that it sets a national benchmark which is internationally competitive and is aligned with the demands of the 21st century global economy. It expands our ability to monitor science achievement. It requires the NAEP to measure student preparedness to enter college, the 21st century workforce, or the Armed Services. It also requires the Secretary of Education to measure progress, and many States use tests that need substantial improvement. Some use tests that are not aligned to the standards that students must meet. Others have manufactured artificially high test score gains by lowering standards and adjusting test scores in order to avoid unfavorable consequences under the law's accountability framework.

We need to shift our understanding of the Act away from the idea that it lays out a framework for schools, and toward a more productive framework that helps schools and States reach higher, not lower. We should use the well-regarded National Assessment of Educational Progress the "Nation's report card" to benchmark the progress of our State and local governments to the achievement of a college degree.

standards and assessments meet international benchmarks to improve instruction and student achievement and prepare students to contribute in the global economy. It also provides funds to encourage collaboration among States in raising the bar for student achievement and providing a safe, drug-free learning environment. It states the importance of States working together to establish common standards and assessments that are rigorous, internationally competitive, and aligned with postsecondary demands.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on this and other important proposals as we move toward the reauthorization of the No Child Left Behind Act. In the coming weeks, our Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions will hold a series of hearings and roundtable discussions to hear from experts and those dealing with the challenges of the current law on a daily basis. Our goal is to work on a bipartisan basis with all our colleagues in the Senate and in the House and with the Administration to develop a strong bipartisan bill that builds on the positive aspects of the law, addresses the concerns about its implementation, and encourages reforms that we know will work to help students succeed.

Teachers deserve the resources they need to help students achieve at higher levels. In many schools, the most valuable resource that teachers require is time. Many teachers spend little time working with high-need students. Innovative approaches are needed to extend the school day and year in high-need schools. We should recruit Americorps volunteers to coordinate academically oriented extended-day programs for students and assist teachers during the school day.

We must also ensure that students in high poverty schools have access to good teachers. We should create incentives to attract the best teachers to the neediest schools, including increased salaries for teachers and principals with strong track records of success who work in hard-to-staff schools, and by creating “career advancement systems” in which highly effective teachers serve as instructional leaders for new or less successful teachers. To help teachers improve their teaching, we should invest more in training them to use the best data to improve instruction.

We should also help parents by replicating Boston’s successful initiative to place parent-family outreach coordinators in every high-poverty school, and offer grants to school districts to support community programs that address children’s social, emotional and other non-academic needs.

We must invest in these and other reforms to give schools the resources they need to close the achievement gap and help students stay on track to graduate and succeed.

Experience shows that each year yields greater success when policy-makers and educators commit in the long term to higher standards, better teacher training, stronger accountability, and extra help for students in need. The initial implementation of the No Child Left Behind Act has been flawed, but we can’t abandon its vision of all students achieving at higher levels. It is important and deserves to be educated and enjoy the full benefits of our society.

That vision is as enduring as America itself. As John Adams wrote in the Massachusetts constitution of 1780, the education of the people is “necessary for the preservation of their rights and liberty.” More than two hundred years later, we need to recapture that spirit, and make “No Child Left Behind” a reality, not merely a slogan.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “States Using Collaboration and Coordination to Enhance Standards for Students Act of 2007” or the “SUCCESS Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Throughout our Nation’s history, the skills and education of our workforce have been a major determinant of the standard of living of the people of the United States.

(2) According to the most recent National Assessment of Educational Progress, only 36 percent of the students in grade 4 and 30 percent of the students in grade 8 reach the proficient level in mathematics. In reading, only 31 percent of the students in grades 4 and 8 reach the proficient level. In science, only 29 percent of the students in grades 4 and 8 reach the proficient level.

(3) A State-by-State comparison of the 2005 National Assessment of Educational Progress math scores for each grade mathematics reveals that 31 States—more than 1⁄2 of the States in the Nation—scored more than 10 points (about 1 grade level) below the highest scoring State, Massachusetts.

(4) Student achievement in mathematics and science in elementary school and secondary school in the United States lags behind other nations, according to the Trends in International Mathematics and Science study and other studies, including the Program for International Student Assessment (PISA), developed by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). The PISA data show that the United States ranks 31st among all participating countries and regions.

(5) According to a report released in August, 2006, the Nation loses more than $7,700,000,000 a year in the costs of remedial education and in individuals’ reduced earning potential because students are not learning the basic skills they need to succeed after high school.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

(i) may be adopted by the local educational agencies in the State for use in secondary schools;

SEC. 8. COLLABORATIVE STANDARDS AND ASSESSMENTS GRANTS.

(a) Definitions in this section:

(1) ELIGIBLE STATE.—The term “eligible State” means a State that demonstrates that it has analyzed and, where applicable, revised the State standards and assessments through participation in a prekindergarten through grade 16 student preparedness council described in section 7 or through other activities to ensure the standards and assessments—

(A) are aligned with the demands of the 21st century; and

(B) are standards for entry into—

(i) credit-bearing coursework in higher education without the need for remediation; and

(ii) the 21st century workforce; and

(2) ELIGIBLE CONSortIUM.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term “eligible consortia” means a consortium of 2 or more eligible States that agrees to allow the Secretary, under subsection (e), to make available any assessment developed by the consortium under this section to all eligible consortia that so requests, including a State that is not a member of the consortium.

(B) ADDITIONAL MEMBERS.—An eligible consortium may include, in addition to 2 or more eligible States, an entity with the technical expertise to carry out a grant under this section.

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. DeMINT, Mr. SMITH, and Mr. SUNUNU):

S. 166. A bill to restrict any State from imposing a new discriminatory tax on cell phone services; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined by Senator DeMINT in introducing the Cell Phone Tax Moratorium Act of 2007. This bill would put a stop to new discriminatory taxes on cell phone services for a period of 3 years.

The average general sales tax in the U.S. is six percent. But the average State and local taxes and fees on cell phone service comes in at about 17 percent. Consumers are left paying a hefty portion of their monthly cell phone bill to the Government for what many believe is their most important communication device.

The National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Governors’ Association have issued policy positions calling for states to eliminate excessive and discriminatory taxes on communications services. State and local governments have been working with the telecommunications industry to find a solution to these excessive taxes, but no agreement has been reached. During the three year moratorium, I hope that State and local governments—in cooperation with industry—will work to eliminate discriminatory taxes and fees on wireless services.

Excessive taxes dampen innovation, and are regressive, hitting the most vulnerable customers the hardest. Although more than 72 percent of all Americans own a cell phone, 26 percent said they could not live without it because it is their only communications source, according to a recent Pew Internet and Life Project report. Cell phone only owners are often those who find it difficult to afford a wired and a wireless phone. Additionally, according to the same report, 74 percent of the Americans say they have used their cell phone in an emergency and gained valuable assistance.

Some State and local governments cannot move beyond the idea that wireless services are some kind of luxury item that can be taxed at a higher rate. These services may have been a luxury item many years ago, but due to deregulation wireless services are more affordable than ever and even necessary for personal or business reasons. This is why it is perplexing that some states burden cell phone subscribers with taxes and fees that can be as high as 24 percent of a consumer’s total bill.

Tax rates as high as this are generally associated with cigarettes and alcohol, and known as “sin taxes” designed to reduce consumption. I cannot imagine it is the intention of states and localities to reduce consumption of wireless services.

Mindful of the revenue requirements of States and localities, this bill does not eliminate existing discriminatory taxes. Nor does the bill prohibit states and localities from imposing new taxes on wireless services that are not discriminatory. The bill simply puts a stop to the creation of new discriminatory taxes on cell phone services.

Last year I introduced similar legislative language during a mark-up in the Senate Commerce Committee. The amendment passed with a vote 21-1. I am hopeful that this bill will once again be supported by the Commerce Committee and that it will be approved by the full Senate. I ask my colleagues to join me in ending the discriminatory sales taxes that make very popular communications service.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 167. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act to require the Secretary of Energy to provide grants to eligible entities to carry out research, development, and demonstration projects of cellulosic ethanol and construct infrastructure that enables retail gas stations to dispense cellulosic ethanol for vehicle fuel to reduce the consumption of petroleum-based fuel; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. BOXER, Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Cellulosic Ethanol Development and Implementation Act of 2007. As a Nation, we should be striving for greater energy independence and for more environmentally friendly sources of fuel for our automobiles. Cellulosic ethanol can be made from a sugar derived from the cellulose in biomass. It is chemically identical to ethanol made from food crops like corn and sugar cane. Cellulosic ethanol is more difficult to make, because cellulose is a tough structural material that gives plants strength.

However, making ethanol from cellulose lets us tap into a much larger source of sugars, and, therefore, potentially make much larger amounts of fuel ethanol, tons of billions of gallons or more. An additional benefit is that cellulosic ethanol made from biomass is likely to produce smaller amounts of greenhouse gases than corn ethanol, and far less greenhouse gases than gasoline it will replace. With continued technology improvements, it should be even cheaper than gasoline. Because it is locally made, it reduces the need for oil imports.

An April 2005 study by the Department of Energy and Agriculture indicates that the country currently has a supply of biomass sufficient to displace 30 percent of the country’s present petroleum use.

I am introducing this bill because I believe we should be doing more to harness our new cellulosic ethanol potential. I have been a strong proponent of using alternative transportation fuels and efficiency measures to reduce oil dependence. Last Congress, we took a good first step in the development of cellulosic ethanol. The Energy Policy Act of 2005, known as EPAct 05, requires that at least one-third of the Nation’s ethanol be produced from cellulosic by 2013.

In addition, EPAct 05 also created a new ethanol fuel program, the Clean Air Act (Section 212). In that section, subsection, section 212(e), includes language I authored to establish a new cellulosic production conversion assistance grant program. That program, housed at the Department of Energy, provides financial assistance to encourage the building of new cellulosic facilities in the U.S. The program was authorized to receive $250 million in fiscal year 2006 and $400 million in fiscal year 2007.

Though Congress has taken the steps I’ve just described, I believe we can and should do more, and the bill I introduce today does just that.

In order to add two new cellulosic ethanol programs to the Clean Air Act. The first is a new competitive grant program for cellulosic motor vehicle fuel research and demonstration projects. Funded at $1 billion over 6 years, universities, Federal and State research labs, private industry, non-profit groups, or partnerships between any of these groups, would be able to compete for funds.

My bill would also create a new pilot program for the installation of ethanol fuel pumps at gas stations or any other needed infrastructure required to dispense ethanol fuel, such as a storage tank, for example. Funded at $1 billion over 6 years, the same entities that would participate in the research section of the bill would also be able to compete for funds under this program. Successful applicants would have to provide 20 percent of the grant in matching funds.

Finally, my bill also extends the authorization for the original cellulosic grant program that is currently authorized in EPAct 05. The authorization expires at the end of this year, and the bill I introduce today would extend it at $400 million per year thru 2016. This extension will ensure the program continues.

As Chair of the Environment and Public Works Committee, I believe that our Nation’s energy policy must focus on conservation, improvements in energy efficiency, and the development of clean, renewable energy technology. I continue to support measures to accomplish these goals, including the promotion of cellulosic ethanol. I believe this bill is an important next step in achieving these objectives. I ask content that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 167. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7546) is amended by adding at the end the following:

S. 168. A bill to direct the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to establish a national cemetery for veterans in the Pikes Peak Region of Colorado; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am reintroducing legislation to establish a National Veteran’s Cemetery in the Pikes Peak Region of Colorado in order to meet the needs of veterans in southern Colorado. This legislation is similar to what I have introduced and supported in the past, and seeks to fill a void for many veterans and their families. Colorado’s fifth Congressional District contains the third highest concentration of military retirees in the nation. Recent estimates show that there are as many as 175,000 veterans in the area, when including all of southern Colorado. This legislation will allow thousands of eligible southern Colorado military personnel, both active duty and retired as well as the many veterans living in the area, to have a chance to find their final resting place so many of them have come to love and appreciate.

This legislation has been influenced by the growing military retiree and veterans populations in the Pikes Peak region as well as community leaders and local Veterans Service Organizations who have repeatedly brought this issue to my attention over the last several years. It is important to note the passion and perseverance of those that have supported a National Veterans Cemetery and have worked tirelessly on the issue. This legislation is truly citizen-generated and is a testament to the dedication of veterans in the community.

S. 169. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to clarify Federal authority relating to land acquisition for recreation uses by the National Trails System, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the National Trails System Willing Seller Act was introduced in the 108th Congress and is among the trails that await completion. Thus, in 1995, the year he died, the baseball great was overwhelmed by the selfless gift of a liver from a stranger; therefore, Mickey Mantle Post Office.

S. 171. A bill to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 301 Commerce Street in Commerce, Oklahoma, as the “Mickey Mantle Post Office Building”; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I rise today along with my colleague, Tom Coburn, to proudly introduce legislation to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 301 Commerce Street in Commerce, OK as the "Mickey Mantle Post Office Building".

Mickey Mantle emulates the Oklahoma spirit of hard work, charity, and sportsmanship. He is a shining example of how commitment and dedication can lead to great success. I seek to name the post office in Commerce, Oklahoma, in Mickey Mantle’s honor. He is still known to Commerce by the nicknames “Commerce Comet” or “Commerce Kid”.

At age 4, Mickey Mantle moved with his family to Commerce where he grew up, having been born in Spavinaw, OK. By his father who was an amateur player and fervent fan, Mickey Mantle was named in honor of Mickey Cochrane, the Hall of Fame catcher from the Detroit Tigers.

Signing with the New York Yankees in 1949, Mantle made his Major League Debut in 1951. He played his entire Major League career with the Yankees. He was a twenty-time All Star and named American League MVP three times. Mantle was a part of 12 pennant winners and 7 World Championship clubs. Some of Mantle’s records still hold today. He holds the record for most World Series home runs 18, runs batted in 40, runs 42, walks 43, extra-base hits 26, and total bases 123.

Mantle announced his retirement on March 1, 1969. In actually retired on Mickey Mantle Day, June 8, 1969. In addition to the retirement of his uniform number, Mantle was awarded a plaque that would hang on the center field wall at Yankee Stadium, near the monuments to Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Miller Huggins. In 1974, as soon as he was eligible, he was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame, demonstrating his importance to baseball and community.

Sadly, Mickey Mantle’s father died of cancer at the age of 39, just as his son was starting his career. Mantle said one of the great heartaches of his life was that he never told his father he loved him.

After a bout with liver cancer himself, Mickey Mantle was given a few precious extra weeks of life due to a liver transplant. The baseball great was overwhelmed by the selfless gift of a liver from a stranger; therefore, Mickey became determined to give something back at the end of his life. Thus, in 1995, the year he died, the Mickey Mantle Foundation was established to promote organ and tissue donation, and Mickey Mantle will be remembered for something more than his heroic baseball career.
I encourage my colleagues to join me in support of this legislation as we commemorate an outstanding athlete so that future generations will be as inspired by his example of sportsmanship and charity as we have been.

By Mr. INHOFE (for himself and Mr. DEMINT):
S. 173. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to establish Medicare Health Savings Accounts; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I introduce a bill to establish Medicare Health Savings Account, MSAs. This bill will make HSAs available under Medicare in lieu of Medicare Medical Savings Account, MSAs. I have long been dedicated to quality health care and believe that seniors should have the ability to make their own decisions regarding their health care, so they can receive the health care they need and deserve as a senior myself. I appreciate how imperative it is that we seniors be provided with a wide array of choices.

My desire to see my fellow Oklahomans and all Americans receive the best possible care is evidenced by my involvement in various health-related issues. I have always been a champion of rural health care providers. In 1997, I was one of the few Republicans to vote against the Balanced Budget Act because of its lack of support for rural hospitals. At that time, I made a commitment to not allow our rural hospitals to be closed and am pleased we finally addressed that important issue in the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003 by providing great benefits for rural health care providers as well as a voluntary prescription drug benefit to seniors. In 2003, I also co-sponsored the Health Care Access and Rural Equity Act, to protect and preserve access of Medicare beneficiaries to health care in rural regions.

In order to assist my State and other States suffering from large reduction in their Federal Medical Assistance Percentage, FMAP for Medicaid, I introduced a bill in the 109th Congress to apply a State’s FMAP from fiscal year 2005 to fiscal years 2006 through 2014. The purpose of this legislation is to prevent drastic reductions in FMAP while revision of the formula itself is considered.

I am a strong advocate of medical liability reform and have consistently been an original cosponsor of the Medical Care Access Protection Act and the Healthy Mothers and Healthy Babies Access to Care Act. These bills protect patients’ access to quality and affordable health care by reducing the effects of excessive liability costs. I am committed to this vital reform that would alleviate the burden placed on physicians and patients by excessive medical malpractice lawsuits.

I have worked with officials from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CMS to expand access to life-saving Implantable Cardiac Defibrillators and many other numerous regulations that would affect my rural State such as the 250 yard-rule for Critical Access Hospitals.

As a supporter of safety and medical research, I have co-sponsored legislation to increase the supply of pancreatic islet cells for research and a bill to take the abortion pill RU-486 off the market in the United States.

In response to the shortages of flu vaccines experienced in years past, I introduced the Flu Vaccine Incentive Act to help prevent any future shortages in flu vaccines in both the 108th and 109th Congresses. My bill removed suffocating price controls from government purchasing of the flu vaccine while encouraging more companies to enter the market. Also, my bill freed American companies to enter the flu vaccine industry by giving them an investment tax credit towards the construction of flu vaccine production facilities.

As a result of my sister’s death from cancer and a treatment we learned about not accessible in the United States that might have saved her life, Senator Sam BROWNBACK and I introduced the Access, Compassion, Care and Ethics for Seriously Ill Patients Act, ACCESS, in the 109th Congress. This bill offered a three-tiered approval system for treatments showing efficacy during clinical trials, for use by the seriously ill patient population. Seriously ill patients were exhausted of all alternatives and are seeking new treatment options, would be offered access to these treatments with the consent of their physician. I was pleased to learn that the Food and Drug Administration has announced a proposal to offer expanded access to drugs to terminally ill patients.

My resolution to designate April 8, 2006, as “National Cushing’s Syndrome Awareness Day” was passed by unanimous consent in the 109th Congress. The intent of this resolution is to raise awareness of Cushing’s Syndrome, a debilitating disorder that affects an estimated 10 to 15 people per million. It is an endocrine or hormonal disorder caused by prolonged exposure of the body’s tissue to high levels of the hormone cortisol.

It was brought to my attention thanks to a staffer with Celiac Disease and an Oklahoma Celiac Support Group that there is a great need to raise awareness of celiac disease; therefore, I worked to get my resolution passed by unanimous consent to designate September 13, 2006 as National Celiac Disease Awareness Day. Celiac disease is an autoimmune disorder and a major absorption disorder that affects an estimated 2.2 million Americans. Celiac disease is, essentially, intolerance to gluten, a protein found in wheat, rye, oats and barley, as well as some medicines and vitamins.

Adopting HSA legislation has consistently co-sponsored yearly resolutions designating a day in October as “National Mammography Day” and a week in August as “National Health Center Week” to raise awareness regarding both these issues and have supported passage and enactment of numerous health-care-related bills, such as the Rural Health Care Capital Access Act of 2006, which extends the exemption for requiring federal critical access hospital mortgage insurance program.

As the Federal Government invests in improving hospitals and healthcare initiatives, I have fought hard to ensure that Oklahoma gets its share. Specifically, over the last 3 years, I have helped to secure $5.2 million in funding for the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation, the Oklahoma State Department of Health planning initiative for a rural telemedicine system, the INTEGRIS Health Care System, the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, the Oklahoma Center for the Advancement of Science and Technology, St. Anthony’s Heart Hospital, the Hillcrest Healthcare System and the Morton Health Center.

As a long supporter of HSAs, I believe all people should have access to them since they provide great flexibility in the health market and allow individuals to have control over their own health care. Medicare MSAs have existed since January 1, 1997, revised in December of 2003, but they have not worked. No insurer whatsoever has yet offered any Medicare MSA under the current law. To fix this problem, my legislation creates a new HSA program under Medicare that incorporates a high deductible health plan and an HSA account while dissolving the existing Medicare MSA.

In tandem with my efforts, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Service, CMS, are launching an HSA demonstration project that allowing health insurance companies to offer Medicare beneficiaries products similar to HSA. This activity points to the Administration’s support of HSAs and desire to see all seniors receive the best possible coverage.

The July 13, 2006 edition of The Hill, explains, “no legislation is pending that would integrate HSAs into the Medicare program . . .” Thus, my legislation is necessary because real Medicare HSA reform is needed in order for seniors to have true flexibility and freedom of choice in their health care.

Under my bill, beneficiaries who choose the HSA option will receive an annual amount that is equal to 95 percent of the annual Medicare Advantage, MA, capitation rate with respect to the individual’s MA payment area. These funds provided through the Medicare HSA program can only be used by the beneficiary for the following purposes: as a contribution into an HSA or for payment of high deductible HSAs. Additionally, the individual also has the opportunity to deposit personal funds in to the Medicare HSA.
My bill also guarantees that seniors be notified of the amount they will receive 90 days before receipt to ensure they have time to determine the best and most appropriate HSA to accommodate needs. The bill also allows the Secretary of Health and Human Services to work with AARP to find an appropriate and requires providers to accept payment by individuals enrolled in a Medicare HSA just as they would with an individual enrolled in traditional Medicare care.

Please join me in supporting this important legislation to give our seniors more choices regarding their health care.

By Mr. INHOFE:

S. 174. A bill to amend the Head Start Act to require parental consent for nonemergency intrusive physical examinations; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I introduce legislation requiring parental consent for intrusive physical exams administered under the Head Start program.

Young children attending Head Start programs should not be subjected to these intrusive physical exams without the prior knowledge or consent of their parents. While the Department of Health and Human Services has administered general exam guidelines to agencies, the U.S. Code is not clear about prohibiting them without parental consent. To clarify the Code, my bill will not allow any non-emergency intrusive exam by a Head Start agency without parental consent. This would not include exams such as hearing, vision or scoliosis screenings.

This issue was brought to my attention by some of my constituents from Tulsa, OK, who felt their rights were violated when their children were subjected to genital exams and blood tests without their consent. I am pleased to see that the Rutherford Institute has taken an interest in this crucial issue and are representing my constituents.

As a father and grandfather, I believe it is vital for parents to be informed about what is happening to their children in the classroom. I hope that my colleagues will join me in support of this important bill.

By Mrs. HUTCHISON (for herself, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. ALEXANDER, Mr. ENZI, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. THUNE, and Mr. STEVENS):

S. 180. A bill to provide a permanent deduction for State and local general sales taxes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce a bill to permanently correct an injustice in the tax code that has harmed citizens in many States of this great Nation for years.

State and local governments have various alternatives for raising revenue. Some levy income taxes, some use sales taxes, and others use a combination of the two. The citizens who pay State and local income taxes have been able to offset some of their federal income taxes by receiving a deduction for their income taxes. Before 1986, taxpayers also had the ability to deduct their sales taxes.

The philosophy behind these deductions is simple: people should not have to pay taxes on their taxes. The money returned to the lower level of Government should not also be taxed by another level of Government.

Unfortunately, citizens of some States were treated differently after 1986 when the dollar amount for state and local sales taxes was eliminated. This discriminated against those living in States, such as my home State of Texas, with no income taxes. It is important to remember the lack of an income tax does not mean citizens in these States do not pay State taxes; revenues are simply collected differently.

It is unfair to give citizens from some States a deduction for the revenue they provide to local governments, while not doing the same for citizens from other States. Federal tax law should not treat people differently on the basis of State residence and differing tax collection methods, and it should not provide an incentive for States to establish income taxes over sales taxes.

This discrepancy had a significant impact on Texas. According to the Texas Comptroller, the sales tax deduction saves a family of four $310 a year, or a total of about $1 billion each year for the State’s residents who itemize deductions. The ability of taxpayers to deduct their sales taxes will lead to the creation of over $600 million in jobs and the addition of $920 million in State economic activity.

Recognizing the inequity in the tax code, Congress reinstated the sales tax deduction in 2004 and authorized it for two years. Unfortunately, the deduction was not extended in the 2006 tax code. Unfortunately, the deduction is only in effect through 2007, and we must act to prevent the inequity from returning.

The legislation I am offering today will fix this problem for good by making the State and local sales tax deduction permanent. This will permanently end the discrimination suffered by my fellow Texans and citizens of other States who do not have the option of an income tax deduction.

This legislation is about reestablishing equity to the tax code and defending the important principle of eliminating taxes on taxes. Last year, the Senate voted 75-25 to instruct conferees to make this deduction permanent. I hope my fellow Senators will once again support this effort and pass this legislation.

S. 181. A bill to provide permanent tax relief from the marriage penalty; to the Committee on Finance.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce a bill to provide permanent tax relief from the marriage penalty—the most egregious, anti-family provision that has been in the tax code. One of the priorities in the United States Senate has been to relieve American taxpayers of this punitive burden.

We have made important strides to eliminate this unfair tax and provide marriage penalty relief by raising the standard deduction and enlarging the 15 percent tax bracket for married joint filers to twice that of single filers. Before these provisions were changed, 44 million married couples, including 2.4 million Texas families, paid an average penalty of $1,480.

Enacting marriage penalty relief was a giant step for tax fairness, but it may be fleeting. Even as married couples use the money they now save to put food on the table and clothes on their children, a tax increase looms in the future. Since the 2001 tax relief bill was restricted, the marriage penalty provisions will only be in effect through 2010. In 2011, marriage will again be a taxable event and 43 percent of married couples will again pay more in taxes unless we act decisively. Given the challenges many families face in making ends meet, we must make sure we do not backtrack on this important reform.

The benefits of marriage are well established, yet, without marriage penalty relief, the tax code provides a significant disincentive for people to walk down the aisle. Marriage is a fundamental institution in our society and should not be discouraged by the IRS. Children living in a married household are less likely to live in poverty or to suffer from child abuse. Research indicates these children are also less likely to be depressed or have developmental problems. Scourges such as adolescent drug use are less common in married families, and married mothers are less likely to be victims of domestic violence.

We should celebrate marriage, not penalize it. The bill I am offering would make marriage penalty relief permanent, because marriage should not be a taxable event. The Senate to finish the job we started and make marriage penalty relief permanent today.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. LEAHY, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. DURBIN):

S. 182. A bill to authorize the Attorney General to make grants to improve... the ability of State and local governments to prevent the abduction of children by family members, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senators HUTCHISON, FEINGOLD, LEAHY, SNOWE, KENNEDY and DURBIN in reintroducing the “Family Abduction Prevention Act,” a bill to help the thousands of children who are abducted by a family member each year.

We introduced this legislation last Congress, and it passed the Senate by unanimous consent, but unfortunately, the bill was never taken up by the House. This is important and needed legislation.

Family abductions are the most common form of abduction, yet they receive little attention, and law enforcement agencies too often don’t treat them as the serious crimes that they are—too often dismissing the serious nature of these cases as family disputes.

The Family Abduction Prevention Act of 2007 would provide grants to States for the costs associated with family abduction prevention. Specifically, it would assist States with costs associated with the extradition of individuals suspected of committing the crime of family abduction, costs borne by State and local law enforcement agencies to investigate cases of missing children, training for local and State law enforcement agencies in responding to family abductions, outreach and media campaigns to educate parents on the dangers of family abductions, and assistance to public schools to help with costs associated with “flagging” school records.

Each year, over 280,000 children—78 percent of all abductions in the United States—are kidnapped by a family member, usually a non-custodial parent.

More than half of the abducting parents have a history of domestic violence, substance abuse, or a criminal record.

Unfortunately, many State and local law enforcement agencies frequently treat these abductions as personal, family disputes. Approximately 70 percent of law enforcement agencies lack written guidelines on responding to family abduction and many are not informed about the Federal laws available to help in the search and recovery of an abducted child.

Too often law enforcement assumes that a child is not in grave danger if the abductor is a family member. Unfortunately, this is not always true, and this assumption can endanger a child’s life. Research has shown that the most common motive in family abduction cases is revenge against the other parent for the divorce.

The effects of family abduction on children are often traumatic. Abducted children suffer from severe separation anxiety. To break emotional ties with the abductor, some abductors will coach a child into falsely disclosing abuse by the other parent to perpetuate their control during or after the abduction. And in many cases, the child is told that the other parent is dead or did not really love them.

For example, on TakeRoot.org, a website devoted to the victims of family abductions, a young lady named Kelly related her harrowing story of how, after they were going through a bitter divorce and custody battle when she was nine, and her brother was six. Her dad picked them up for a regular visit, but then just kept on driving.

Kelly says, “If I close my eyes, I can still see my mother waving goodbye as we watched her from the rear window of our father’s truck. . . . Little did we know that it would be close to a year before we would see her again.”

Days later, Kelly started asking her father why they were continuing to drive—and why they were sleeping in the truck. After a while, her father finally broke his silence and screamed at her that her mother had given him the children because she didn’t love them and that they would just have to learn to deal with it.

For the next eleven months, they lived like fugitives on the run, often dirty and hungry, “with very little money and even less love,” according to Kelly. “We left in the middle of the night, never saying goodbye to friends we may have made or people we met. I still see those people in my mind’s eye. I miss them. . . . Mostly, I miss the child I was, the child I lost.”

The harm caused by these abductions cannot easily be put into words. In many family abduction cases, children are given new identities at an age when they are still developing a sense of who they are. In extreme cases, the child’s gender is masked to further avoid detection.

Abducting parents also often deprive their children of education and much-needed medical attention to avoid the risk of being tracked via school or medical records.

As the child adapts to a fugitive’s lifestyle, deception becomes an integral part of their life. The child is taught to fear those that one would normally trust, doctors, teachers and counselors. Even after recovery, the child often has a difficult time growing into adulthood.

In some cases, the abducting parent leaves the child with strangers, or childcare providers, and other basic needs may be extremely compromised.

For example, in Lafayette, CA, two girls abducted by their mother ended up under the control of a convicted child molester. When Kelli Nunez abducted her daughters, 6-year-old Anna and 4-year-old Emily, in violation of court custody orders, she drove her daughters cross-country, and then to San Francisco, where she handed the children to someone holding a coded sign at the airport.

The person holding the sign belonged to a helpful-sounding organization called the Safe Center—but the organization was actually led by Florencio Maning, a convicted child molester. For six months, Maning orchestrated the concealment of the Nunez girls with help from other people.

Luckily, police were able to track down the girls, and they were successfully reunited with their father. That success may have been due to the fact that California has been the Nation’s leader in fighting family abduction.

In my State, we have a system that places the responsibility for the investigation and resolution of family abduction cases with the County District Attorney’s Office. Each California County District Attorney’s Office has an investigative unit that is focused on family abduction cases. These investigators only handle family abduction cases and become experts in the process.

However, most States lack the training and resources to effectively recover children who are kidnapped by a family member. According to a study conducted by Plass, Finkelhor and Hotaling, 62 percent of parents surveyed said they were “somewhat” or “very” dissatisfied with police handling of their family abduction cases.

The “Family Abduction Prevention Act of 2007” would be an important first step in addressing this serious issue.

I urge my colleagues to pass this important legislation, just as you did in the 109th Congress.

By Mr. STEVENS.

S. 183. A bill to require the establishment of a corporate average fuel economy standard for passenger automobiles of 40 miles per gallon 2017, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, the bill that I introduce today features language that would remove the legal ambiguity that for years has inhibited the Secretary of Transportation from rais-
The Secretary recently completed a dramatic reform of the fuel economy standards for the light-truck fleet, and he might have made similar reforms to the passenger fleet but for the statutory ambiguity of the current CAFE statute. I applaud the Secretary for his recent FFE decision for light trucks, and I commend the administration for its seven light truck CAFE increases in the last six years. But the time has come for the Secretary to increase fuel economy standards for passenger cars as well.

In 2000, the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) issued a report that concluded that the benefits resulting from CAFE since its implementation in 1978 clearly warrant Government intervention to ensure fuel economy levels beyond what may result from market forces on its own. The NAS panel found that CAFE has led to marked improvements in reducing greenhouse gas emissions, fuel consumption, and dependence on foreign oil.

Mr. President, the United States imports almost 11 million barrels of crude oil every day, compared with only five million barrels here at home. And over two million imported barrels hail from the Persian Gulf region. The terrorist attacks waged on this country on September 11, 2001, and the ongoing turmoil in the Middle East has brought into sharp focus the need to reduce our dependence on all foreign oil. The savings achieved by increasing fuel economy standards for the entire U.S. passenger vehicle fleet is essential if we are to increase our energy independence and national security.

This bill also would require the Secretary to create a national registry system that, for the first time, would enable the automobile industry to trade fuel economy credits with other industries that generate greenhouse gas emissions. Participation in the registry would be voluntary, and any entity conducting business in the United States would be eligible to utilize the services of the registry. Therefore, automobile manufacturers would be able to contribute or purchase emissions credits with other industries that generate greenhouse gases in order to achieve compliance with CAFE and emissions standards.

Mr. President, any change to fuel economy standards requires the careful balance of many factors, including national security, consumer preference, domestic employment, as well as the need for powerful and durable vehicles in rural America, including my home State of Alaska. The amendment would provide the Secretary the authority to balance these considerations, and to make the appropriate and necessary fuel economy increases. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(c) FLEXIBILITY OF AUTHORITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The authority of the Secretary to prescribe by regulation average fuel economy standards for automobiles under this section includes the authority to prescribe standards based on one or more vehicle attributes that relate to fuel economy, and to express those standards in the form of a mathematical function. The Secretary may issue a regulation prescribing standards for one or more model years.

(2) REQUIREMENT TO ADVANCE.—When the Secretary prescribes an amendment to a standard under this section that makes an average fuel economy standard more stringent, the amendment shall be effective at least 18 months before the beginning of the model year to which the amendment applies.

(3) NO ACROSS-THE-BORD INCREASES.—When the Secretary prescribes a standard, or prescribes an amendment under this section that changes a standard, the standard may not be expressed as a percentage increase from the fuel-economy performance of automobile classes or categories already achieved in a model year by a manufacturer.

By Mr. INOUYE (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. LUTENBERG, Mr. SNOWE, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. PYTOR, Mr. CARPER, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. BAUCUS, Mrs. CLINTON, and Mr. SCHUMER): S. 184. A bill to provide improved rail and surface transportation security; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, last year we made significant improvements to the Nation’s transportation security system by enacting the SAFE Port Act, which strengthened the security of our Nation’s ports and maritime vessels. Yet, during the conference on this important bill, the Congress failed to seize the opportunity to enact comprehensive transportation security legislation that would have provided real homeland security for our entire transportation system. The Senate-passed version of the SAFE Port Act contained essential provisions that would have strengthened security in all of the surface modes of transportation, including passenger and freight rail, public transit, trucking, intercity bus and pipelines. But jurisdictional infighting, a lack of political will kept the leadership of the House of Representatives from agreeing to, or even attempting to consider, these provisions in conference.

Given the urgent need for surface transportation security improvements, Cochairman STEVENS and I are introducing the Surface Transportation and Security Act, to once again offer the Congress an opportunity to enact a comprehensive transportation security bill. We have all seen the possible consequences of an attack on critical surface transportation systems in Madrid and London. We have all heard about possible threats and foiled plots aimed at our transportation systems in Madrid and London. Yet, during the conference on this important bill, the Congress failed to seize the opportunity to enact comprehensive transportation security legislation that would have provided real homeland security for our entire transportation system. The Senate-passed version of the SAFE Port Act contained essential provisions that would have strengthened security in all of the surface modes of transportation, including passenger and freight rail, public transit, trucking, intercity bus and pipelines. But jurisdictional infighting, a lack of political will kept the leadership of the House of Representatives from agreeing to, or even attempting to consider, these provisions in conference.

Given the urgent need for surface transportation security improvements, Cochairman STEVENS and I are introducing the Surface Transportation and Security Act, to once again offer the Congress an opportunity to enact a comprehensive transportation security bill. We have all seen the possible consequences of an attack on critical surface transportation systems in Madrid and London. We have all heard about possible threats and foiled plots aimed at our transportation systems in Madrid and London.

The time has come for us to address these vulnerabilities and risks in a comprehensive and coordinated way that ensures that in the rush to protect one mode of transportation we don’t shift vulnerability towards other, less secure, transportation modes.

The STARS Act combines the rail, truck, bus, pipeline and hazardous materials security provisions that were included in the Senate-passed SAFE Port Act into a stand-alone bill, which the Commerce Committee will soon consider. These provisions were endorsed unanimously by the Senate during consideration of the SAFE Port Act, and the House of Representatives overwhelmingly voted to instruct its conference to include these provisions in the Conference Report—advice the House leadership declined to accept. Additionally, the rail security portion of this package has already passed the Senate twice in prior Congresses and has been endorsed by railroads and rail labor alike. This keynote demonstrates both the necessity of these improvements and the distinct possibility that we can finally enact these provisions into law this Congress.

The legislation that we introduce today reflects the Commerce Committee’s substantial expertise over the issues of transportation security. The time has come to advance these improvements, and protect the vital surface transportation assets that grant us the quality of life and economic health that we all cherish. Our legislation presents an opportunity to make immediate progress on transportation security, and it is my sincere hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting consideration and passage of this measure as soon as possible.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The assessment shall include—

(A) a methodology for conducting the risk assessment, including timelines, that addresses how the Department of Homeland Security will work with the entities describe in subsection (b) and make use of existing Federal expertise within the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Transportation, and other appropriate agencies;

(B) an identification and evaluation of critical assets and infrastructures;

(C) an identification of vulnerabilities and risks to those assets and infrastructures;

(D) an identification of vulnerabilities and risks that are specific to the transportation of hazardous materials via railroad;

(F) an account of actions taken or planned by both public and private entities to address security issues and assess the effective integration of such actions.

(2) RECOMMENDATIONS.—Based on the assessment conducted under paragraph (1), the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Transportation, shall develop prioritized recommendations for improving rail security, including any recommendations the Secretary has for—

(A) improving the security of rail tunnels, rail bridges, rail switching and car storage areas, other rail infrastructure and facilities, information systems, and other areas identified by the Secretary as posing significant rail-related risks to public safety and the movement of interstate commerce, taking into account the finding that any security measure might have on the provision of rail service;

(B) deploying equipment to detect explosives and hazardous chemical, biological, and radioactive substances, and any appropriate countermeasures;

(C) training appropriate railroad or railroads, rail freight employees in terrorism prevention, passenger evacuation, and response activities;

(D) conducting public outreach campaigns on passenger railroads;

(E) deploying surveillance equipment; and

(F) identifying the immediate and long-term costs of measures that may be required to address those risks.

(3) PLANS.—The report required by subsection (c) shall contain—

(A) a plan, developed in consultation with the freight and intercity passenger railroads, and State and local governments, for the Federal government to provide increased security support at high or severe threat levels of alert;

(B) a plan for coordinating existing and planned rail security initiatives undertaken by the public and private sectors; and

(C) a contingency plan, developed in consultation with freight and intercity and commuter passenger railroads, in the event of a terrorist attack affecting the rail system, which shall contemplate—

(i) the potential dislocation of rail traffic due to the loss of critical infrastructure, such as a bridge, tunnel, yard, or station; and

(ii) a method of continuing railroad service in the Northeast Corridor in the event of a commercial power loss, or catastrophe affecting a critical bridge, tunnel, yard, or station.

(b) CONSULTATION; USE OF EXISTING RESOURCES.—In carrying out the assessment and developing the recommendations required by subsection (a), the Secretary of Homeland Security shall consult with rail management, rail labor, owners or lessees of railroad track, and rail-hazardous materials, first responders, shippers of hazardous materials, public safety officials, and other relevant parties.

(c) REQUIREMENTS.

(1) CONTENTS.—Within 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall transmit to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, and the House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the Secretary’s report containing the assessment, prioritized recommendations, and plans required by subsection (a) and an estimate of the cost to implement such recommendations.

(2) FORMAT.—The report submitted to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, and the House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure shall—

(A) be submitted in both classified and redacted formats if the Secretary determines that any reports to Congress contained in the assessment, prioritized recommendations, or plans would compromise national security or public safety;

(B) include the information required by paragraphs (1)(A) through (F); and

(C) be submitted to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, and the House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, in accordance with section 116 of this Act.

(d) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Out of funds appropriated pursuant to section 114(u) of chapter 49, United States Code, as amended by section 116 of this Act, there shall be made available to the Secretary of Homeland Security for the purpose of carrying out subsection (a) the following amounts:

SEC. 210. CERTAIN FUNDING LIMITATIONS NOT TO APPLY.

Any statutory limitation on the number of employees in the Transportation Security Administration of the Department of Transportation, before or after its transfer to the Department of Homeland Security, does not apply to the extent that any such employee is responsible for implementing the provisions of this Act.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, over five years since 9/11, much of our Nation’s transportation systems remain vulnerable to attack.

There are many reasons for the lack of action by the Federal Government, but we can no longer simply look the other way. Last year, the Congress had an opportunity to make significant strides to improve the security of our rail, air, passenger rail systems, highways, and public transit systems. The Senate passed my amendments and by Senator Birch—Mr. President, Senator Inouye and Senator Stevens—to ensure this bill gets quickly considered. Its provisions are not new to anyone. They were considered, and agreed to, merely four months ago by the Senate. I am hopeful that they will again be quickly considered and adopted.

This bill specifically requires accountability from the Department of Homeland Security, by ensuring that our rail systems have been analyzed for security risk. It authorizes necessary funding for making these security improvements and specifically includes $400 million for tunnel security improvements in the New Jersey/New Jersey...
York region. I will seek further Federal funding for improving security of the New Jersey/New York region’s tunnels and bridges in additional legislation to be introduced this month, by working with my colleagues on the appropriate committees in the Senate. Last month, the Bush Administration proposed certain improvements to our nation’s rail systems, but these proposals fell far short of what is needed to secure our country. For instance, the Administration proposal fails to take into account the importance of improving the security of railroad stations, bridges, and tunnels. More people use Amtrak’s Penn Station in New York City than use all three major New Jersey-New York region airports, Newark Liberty International, JFK, and LaGuardia airports, every day. This bill takes a much more comprehensive approach, by authorizing the funding needed to make these important security improvements.

Our Nation’s freight rail systems move some 12 billion tons of cargo, but we are not doing enough to protect those systems. Some of this cargo includes hazardous chemicals and other dangerous materials which travel within, in and around our cities, neighborhoods, and snake right through the middle of our cities. The potential for disaster looms large, as the misuse of these shipments can produce an effect that a weapon of mass destruction would on our communities. Clearly much more must be needed to put into how we move this dangerous cargo, and the Federal Government must be involved. The Bush Administration must agree with this assessment, as their proposal would strictly forbid States or communities from acting on their own to protect their residents from these risks.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure that this important legislation gets considered and enacted. Such legislation is needed now and as we consider any further these vital security improvements to our country.

Mr. SPECTER (for himself and Mr. LEAHY): S. 185. A bill to restore habeas corpus for those detained by the United States; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I will introduce legislation denominated the Habeas Corpus Restoration Act. Last year, in the Military Commissions Act, the constitutional right of habeas corpus was attempted to be abrogated. I fought to pass an amendment to strike that provision of the Act which was voted 51 to 48. I say “attempted to be abrogated” because, in my legal judgment, that provision in the Act is unconstitutional.

It is hard to see how there can be legislation to eliminate the constitutional right of habeas corpus when the Constitution is explicit that habeas corpus may not be suspended except in time of invasion or rebellion, and we do not have either of those circumstances present, as was conceded by the advocates of the legislation last year to take away the right of habeas corpus.

We have had Supreme Court decisions which have made it plain that habeas corpus is available to non-citizens and that habeas corpus applies to territory controlled by the United States, specifically, including Guantanamo. More recently, however, we had a decision in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia applying the habeas corpus provision of the Military Commissions Act, but I believe we will see the appellate courts strike down this legislative provision.

The contention that the gravamen or the substance of habeas corpus is provided by the statutory review to the Circuit Court of the District of Columbia is fallacious on its face. All the statute does is allow for a review of the regularity of proceedings. In my prepared statement, I cited an example of litigation before a federal district court, where a person charged with conspiring with al-Qaeda asked: “What was the name of the person? He asked: What was the name of the person I’m supposed to have consorted with? And the Presiding Officer said: I don’t know, which, according to the opinion, brought uproarious laughter from the audience. Here a man is charged with conspiring with al-Qaeda, and they cannot even tell him the name of the perpetrator is alleged to have consorted with.

The hearing before the Judiciary Committee, which I chaired, contained expansive, detailed evidence about the proceedings under the review provisions in Guantanamo, which are grossly, totally insufficient.

The New York Times had an extensive article on this subject, starting on the front page, last Sunday, and continuing on a full page on the back page with a front page focus on the procedures at Guantanamo. It is hard to see how in America, or in a jurisdiction controlled by the United States, these proceedings could substitute for even rudimentary due process of law.

As I might add, the Habeas Corpus Restoration Act was introduced in the 109th Congress. I offered the bill on behalf of myself and Senator LEAHY. Consequently, we had this bill listed in the 109th Congress as a Specter-Leahy bill, and with Senator LEAHY’s consent, it is denominated as the Specter-Leahy bill again in the 110th Congress.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my prepared text be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was, during debate on the Military Commissions Act, I introduced an amendment to strike section 7 of the Act and thereby preserve the constitutional right of habeas corpus for the approximately 450 individuals detained at Guantanamo Bay. Because my amendment was not agreed to, by a narrow vote of 51 to 48, the right of habeas corpus was denied to those detainees. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus has thus been abrogated.

On December 5, with my colleague Senator Leahy, I introduced the “Habeas Corpus Restoration Act of 2006” to restore the right of habeas corpus and habeas back into compliance with the United States Constitution. After all, the United States Constitution is ambiguous in Article 1, Section 9, which provides that “privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it.” Today, along with Senator Leahy, I am reintroducing this important legislation.

The Habeas Corpus Restoration Act is very simple. It strikes the federal habeas corpus limitations imposed by the Military Commissions Act and the Detainee Treatment Act. It restores habeas corpus for those detained by the United States within its territorial jurisdiction, including those detained at the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, the right to challenge the military commission trial procedures by an application for writ of habeas corpus. It will protect the constitutional right of habeas corpus afforded to all individuals detained by the United States government.

The Framers explicitly intended to extend habeas corpus protections to ensure the safety of rebellion, invasion, or the interest of public safety. This principle was ratifi ed by the Supreme Court in the case of Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, where Justice O’Connor stated: “[w]e agree that absent suspension, the writ of habeas corpus remains available to every individual detained within the United States.”

This protection extends to all individuals detained in Guantanamo since it is a facility exclusively under the control of the United States. In Rasul v. Bush, the Supreme Court held that habeas corpus rights apply even to aliens held at Guantanamo Bay. One does not need to be a United States citizen to be protected by habeas corpus and the U.S. Constitution draws no distinction between American citizens and aliens held in U.S. custody.

Although some argue that Combatant Status Review Tribunals, commonly referred to as “CSRTs,” are an adequate and effective means to challenge the detention of Guantanamo detainees with the Supreme Court’s decision in Swain v. Pressley, I could not disagree more. In my view, CSRTs are a sham. We have learned a great deal about the cursory review provided by these tribunals at Guantanamo Bay. They operate with very little information. Somebody is picked up on the battlefield. There is no record preserved as to what that individual did. If there was a weapon involved, it was collected and mixed in with many other weapons. There is no chain of custody or record of evidentiary review. CSRTs are nothing more than a one-sided interrogation by the military tribunal members. These proceedings simply do not comport with basic fairness because the individuals detained do not have the right to know what evidence there is against them. As Justice O’Connor wrote in her plurality opinion in Rasul, a meaningful adversarial proceeding by one’s captor, however effective an intelligence-gathering tool, hardly constitutes a constitutionally adequate factfinding mechanism.” It is essential that we provide an adequate means to evaluate the legality of an individual’s continued detention.

Typically, the CSRT will advise the detainee that the evidence against them is classified and restrict access. The U.S. District Court in the In re Guantanamo case criticized the manner in which the CSRTs required detainees to answer allegations based on information that could not be disclosed. A comical scene during the hearing, a detainee advised the tribunal that he could not answer an allegation that he had associated with a known al Qaeda operative because the tribunal would not provide the name of the alleged operative. Since the tribunal would not even provide the name of the operative, the detainee could not answer even the most basic of allegations. While laughter filled the courtroom at the time when the detainee could not answer the allegations, we should not forget the seriousness of this process and the manner in which we are treating detainees of the United States.

The Military Commission Act’s habeas corpus provisions were debated at a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing held on September 25, 2006. At the hearing, I heard from a distinguished and varied panel of witnesses, including the attorney who represented Hamdan before the Supreme Court. Perhaps most compelling during the hearing was the former U.S. Senator for the Northern District of Illinois, Thomas Sullivan, who has been to Guantanamo many times and has presented many arguments against the CSRTs. Mr. Sullivan was especially compelling when he made reference to a number of individual cases where the proceedings before the CSRT were completely inadmissible. Hearings where individuals were summoned before the tribunal, but did not speak the language, did not have an attorney, did not have access to the information which was considered against them, and continued to be detained. These individuals either did not know what their charges were, or those charges of which they were aware were revealed in court by the military commission. For example, in the case of Abdul Hadi al Sibai, Mr. Sullivan described how his client had been returned to Saudi Arabia after several months of detention and without a trial or any notice, compulsion, or apology. One can only suspect that the United States government understood that the continued detention of this particular individual was wrong and would expose weaknesses at trial.

The failure to afford habeas review rights to determined Kenneth Star of New York, former Solicitor General and U.S. Court of Appeals Judge for the District of Columbia. In a letter directed to me as Judiciary Chairman, Judge Star spelled out his concern that the limitations on writ of habeas corpus contained in the comprehensive military commissions bill.

If Justice O’Connor feels that detainees have the right to habeas review, but we are denying them this avenue of review, how are detainees supposed to rebut facts that they are not allowed to confront? This is why federal courts should be open to hear habeas petitions of these detainees. The Supreme Court is clear, and we should apply this precedent situation involving detainees at Guantanamo Bay.

On the recent 5-year anniversary of 9/11, President Bush issued a communique to bring terrorists to justice. However, statistics tell us that most of the terrorists at Guantanamo will never see the inside of a courtroom and will be held indefinitely. Of the over 400 detainees who remain at Guantanamo, the Pentagon says another 110 have been labeled as “ready to release.” But the President said he would use his powers to override the military, and the remaining 325 or so detainees. How many will face trial? Media reports citing Pentagon sources suggest that only approximately 250 will face trial. This leaves approximately 250 detainees—more than half of those still at Guantanamo—who will be held indefinitely simply because the United States considers them to be too dangerous or in possession of sensitive intelligence information. These detainees will have no chance to challenge their confinement. My bill will ensure these individuals held in U.S. custody will be afforded the basic constitutional right to petition for habeas corpus.

The short history of the Military Commissions Act underscores the need for this legislation. The day after the Act became law, the Justice Department submitted to the District of the 181 Guantanamo habeas cases pending before the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, highlighting the jurisdiction-stripping provisions of the Act. In at least one noteworthy case, the District Court has already agreed that it now lacks authority to hear such a habeas petition.

On December 13, 2006, Judge James Robertson dismissed the habeas petition of Salim Ahmed Hamdan—of Hamdan v. Rumsfeld fame—for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. While I disagree with Judge Robertson’s conclusion that Hamdan has “no constitutional right to habeas corpus” because he was detained in Guantanamo rather than inside the United States, this conclusion demonstrates the lack of judicial recourse for enemy combatants. Of course, the Military Commissions Act is not strictly limited to those held in Guantanamo. In another case, on November 13, 2006, the Department of Justice filed a motion in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit to dismiss the habeas petition of alleged enemy combatant Ali Saleh Kahlah al-Marri. Unlike another Guantanamo detainee, Mr. al-Marri has been detained inside the United States. While we could simply wait for the Supreme Court to rule on the constitutionality of the provisions. The military commissions court has no ability to challenge their detention Federal court—or anywhere else—simply on the Government’s say-so that they are awaiting determinations on whether they are enemy combatants.

I deeply regret that Senator SPECTER and I were unsuccessful in our efforts to stop this injustice when the President and the Republican leadership insisted on rushing the Military Committees Act through Congress in the weeks before the recent elections. We proposed an amendment that would have removed the habeas-stripping provision from the Military Commissions Act. We fell just three votes short in these political charged days. It may be my hope that the new Senate and new Congress will reconsider this matter, restore this fundamental protection and revitalize our tradition of checks and balances.

Giving Government such raw, unfettered power as this law does should concern every American. Last fall I spelled out a nightmare scenario about a hard-working legal permanent resident who makes an innocent donation to, among other charities, a Muslim charity that the Government secretly suspects might be a source of funding for critics of the United States Government. I suggested that, on the basis of
We have eliminated basic legal and human rights for the 12 million lawful permanent residents who live and work among us, to say nothing of the millions of other legal immigrants and visitors who we welcome to our shores each year. We have removed a vital check that our Constitution provides against the government arbitrarily detaining people for life without charge. We may well have also made many of our remaining limits against torture and cruel and inhuman treatment obsolete because they are unenforceable. We have removed the mechanism the Constitution provides to check government overreaching and lawlessness. This is wrong. It is unconstitutional.

It is un-American. It is designed to ensure that the Bush-Cheney Administration will never again be embarrassed by a United States Supreme Court decision reviewing its unlawful abuses of power. The conservative Supreme Court, with seven of its nine members appointed by Republican Presidents, has been the only check on this Administration’s lawlessness. Certainly the last Congress did not do it. With passage of the Military Commissions Act, the Republican Congress completed the job of eviscerating its role as a check and balance on the Administration.

Some Senators uneasy about the Military Commissions Act’s disastrous habeas provision took solace in the thought that it would be struck down by the courts as unconstitutional. They can hold people indefinitely who are awaiting determination whether or not they are enemy combatants. It gets worse. Republican leaders in the Senate followed the White House’s lead and greatly expanded the definition of “enemy combatants” in the dark of night in the final days before the bill’s passage, so that enemy combatants need not be soldiers on any battlefield; they can be people who elaborate small amounts of money, or people that any group of decision-makers selected by the President decides to call enemy combatants. The possibilities are chilling.

The Administration has made it clear that they intend to use every expansive definition and unchecked power given to them by the new law. November’s Justice Department brief made clear that any of our legal immigrants could be held without recourse in court. Earlier in November, the Justice Department went to court to say that detainees who had been held in secret CIA prisons could not even meet with lawyers because they might tell their lawyers cruel and inhuman and cruel techniques used against them. In other words, if our Government tortures somebody, that person loses his right to a lawyer because he might tell the lawyer about the Government’s position in that case: “Kafka-esque doesn’t do it justice. This is Alice in Wonderland.”
the memorandum issued by former Deputy Attorney General Larry Thompson, makes some improvements, the revision continues to erode the attorney-client relationship by allowing prosecutors to request waiver of privileged information backed by the hammer of prosecution if the request is denied.

This will have a serious impact on the sanctity of the attorney-client relationship by prohibiting federal prosecutors and investigators from requesting waiver of attorney-client privilege. The McNulty memo also seeks to erode the attorney-client privilege by enabling a prosecutor to request waiver of attorney-client privilege if the request is not opposed by the defendant or the attorney. This will have a major impact on the sanctity of the attorney-client relationship by allowing the government to undermine the most basic of protections for attorneys. Moreover, the McNulty memo provides that a prosecutor may request waiver of attorney-client privilege if the prosecutor thinks Category 2 information is needed at all. death penalty of a federal indictment.”—Caroline Fredrickson, Director, ACLU Washington legislative office; George Landrith, President, Frontiers of Freedom; Stephanie A. Miller, Director, White Collar Crime Project, National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers; Daniel J. Popeo, Chairman, Freedom of Information, in a letter to the editor of USA Today.

My bill amends title 18 of the United States Code by adding a new section, §3014, that would prohibit any agent or attorney of the United States government in any criminal or civil case to demand, request or condition treatment on the disclosure of any communication protected by the attorney-client privilege or attorney work product. The bill would also prohibit government lawyers and agents from conditioning any charge or adverse treatment on whether an organization pays attorneys’ fees for its employees or signs a joint defense agreement.

While I am glad that the Justice Department revised the Thompson memorandum, I am hopeful that the Department will act again to reform the McNulty memorandum. In the absence of such action, this legislation is needed to ensure that basic protections of the attorney-client relationship are preserved.

I believe unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 187

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Attorney-Client Privilege Protection Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Justice is served when all parties to litigation are represented by experienced and diligent counsel.

(2) Protecting attorney-client privileged communications from compelled disclosure fosters voluntary compliance with the law.

(3) The purpose of the attorney-client privilege, attorneys and clients must have a degree of confidence that they will not be required to disclose privileged communications.

(4) The ability of an organization to have effective compliance programs and to conduct comprehensive internal investigations is enhanced when there is clarity and consistency regarding the attorney-client privilege.

(5) Prosecutors, investigators, enforcement officials, officers or employees of Government agencies have been able to, and can continue to, conduct their work while respecting attorney-client and work product protections for communications of individuals, including seeking and discovering facts crucial to the investigation and prosecution of organizations.

(6) Without the existence of these legitimate tools, the Department of Justice and other agencies have increasingly employed tactics that undermine the adversarial system of justice. It is encouraging organizations to waive attorney-client privilege and work product protections to avoid indictment or other sanctions.

(7) Unlawful inducements can have devastating consequences on an organization, potentially eliminating the ability of the organization to survive post-indictment or to dispute the charges in any trial.

(8) Waiver demands and other tactics of Government agencies are encroaching on the constitutional rights and other legal protections of employees.

(9) The attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine, and payment of counsel fees can be a significant deterrent to criminal wrongdoing or to cloak advice on evading the law.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this Act to place clear and practical limits designed to preserve the attorney-client privilege and work product protections available to an organization and preserve the constitutional rights and other legal protections available to employees of such an organization.

SEC. 3. DISCLOSURE OF ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE OR ADVANCEMENT OF COUNSEL FEES AS ELEMENTS OF COOPERATION.

(a) In General.—Chapter 201 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 3013 the following:

‘‘§3014. Preservation of fundamental legal protections and rights in the context of investigations and enforcement matters regarding organizations

‘‘(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

‘‘(1) ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE.—The term ‘attorney-client privilege’ means the attorney-client privilege as governed by the principles of the common law, as they may be interpreted by the courts of the United States in the light of reason and experience, and the principles of article V of the Federal Rules of Evidence.

‘‘(2) ATTORNEY WORK PRODUCT.—The term ‘attorney work product’ means materials prepared by or at the direction of an attorney in anticipation of litigation, particularly any such materials that contain a mental impression, opinion, or legal theory of that attorney.

‘‘(3) PERSON.—In any Federal investigation or criminal or civil enforcement matter, an attorney or attorney of the United States shall not—

‘‘(A) demand, request, or condition treatment on the disclosure by an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, of any communication protected by the attorney-client privilege or any attorney work product; and

‘‘(B) condition a civil or criminal charging decision relating to a organization, or person affiliated with that organization, on, or use as a factor in determining whether an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, is cooperating with the Government—

‘‘(i) any valid assertion of the attorney-client privilege or privilege for attorney work product;

‘‘(ii) the provision of counsel to, or contribution to the legal defense fees or expenses, of, an organization or person affiliated with that organization; or

‘‘(iii) the entry into a joint defense, information sharing, or common interest agreement with an employee of that organization if the agreement determines it has a common interest in defending against the investigation or enforcement matter;

‘‘(C) the sharing of information relevant to the investigation or enforcement matter with an employee of that organization; or

‘‘(D) a failure to terminate the employment of or otherwise sanction any employee of that organization because of the decision by that employee to exercise the constitutional rights or other legal protections of that employee in response to a Government request; or

‘‘(E) demand or request that a organization, or person affiliated with that organization, not take any action described in paragraph (2);

‘‘(F) INAPPLICABILITY.—Nothing in this Act shall prohibit an agent or attorney of the United States from requesting or seeking any communication or material that such agent or attorney reasonably believes is not entitled to protection under the attorney-client privilege or attorney work product doctrine.

“(d) VOLUNTARY DISCLOSURES.—Nothing in this Act shall preclude an organization from making, or an agent or attorney of the United States from accepting, a voluntary and unsolicited offer to share the internal investigation materials of such organization.”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 201 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘§3014. Preservation of fundamental legal protections and rights in the context of investigations and enforcement matters regarding organizations.’’.

By Mr. SPECTER:

S. 187. A bill to provide sufficient resources to permit electronic surveillance of United States persons for foreign intelligence purposes to be conducted pursuant to court-issued orders for calls originating in the United States, to provide additional resources to enhance oversight and streamline the procedures of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978, to enhance the Terrorist Surveillance Program by the United States Supreme Court, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I am reintroducing the text of S. 4051 of last year, which I originally introduced on November 14 of last year. And the title articulates it in a succinct way, so I will read that. It is: a bill to provide sufficient resources to permit electronic surveillance of United States persons for foreign intelligence purposes to be conducted pursuant to individualized court-issued warrants for calls originating in the United States, to provide additional resources to enhance oversight and streamline the procedures of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978, and to ensure review of the Terrorist Surveillance Program by the United States Supreme Court.

I made a number of efforts in the 109th Congress to subject the President’s surveillance program to judicial review in accordance with the existing law that a search-and-seize warrant or a wiretap ought not to be issued without a judge making a finding of probable cause and authorizing that kind of a search and seizure or that kind of a wiretap.

Without going into the entire history, that bill was refined to the point where it is articulated in S. 4051 of the 109th Congress, which would provide for individualized warrants for calls originating in the United States and going out. That can be accomplished, according to the CIA, if there are additional resources, which this bill provides, and if the time for retroactive approval is extended from 3 days to 7 days.

With respect to calls originating outside the United States and coming in,
I do not like to repeat—he may have the constitutional authority for the surveillance program, but that has to be determined by a judicial proceeding. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 187

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Oversight and Resource Enhancement Act of 2007.”

TITLE II—IMPROVEMENT OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE SURVEILLANCE AUTHORITY

SEC. 201. EXTENSION OF PERIOD FOR APPLICATIONS FOR ORDERS FOR EMERGENCY ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE.

Section 105(f) of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1805(f)) is amended by striking “72 hours” both places it appears and inserting “96 hours”.

SEC. 202. ACQUISITION OF FOREIGN-FOREIGN COMMUNICATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Attorney General shall—we are advised there are simply too many of those to cover, so that on those calls the bill would expedite the judicial review which is currently in process.

A Federal court in Detroit has declared the President’s program unconstitutional, and it is now pending in the Sixth Circuit. This bill would mandate review by the Supreme Court of the United States and would put review in the Federal courts on an accelerated timetable.

There are objections to proceeding with legislation along this line because of an interest in having hearings. Well, we have had a whole series of hearings, and the administration has refused to tell the Judiciary Committee the details of the program. Under our division of authority, it is the Intelligence Committee which has jurisdiction over this kind of a program.

But, we could proceed with hearings and still enact legislation which would provide for protection for calls originating in the United States, which is the more serious category. Citizens here, people here in the United States, would have individual warrants and a judicial determination of probable cause. The surveillance and the wiretaps were put into effect.

Meanwhile, the program goes on. It has been going on since late 2001. It has been known to the public since December 16, 2005. And each day that passes, there are more searches and seizures. There is more surveillance, which may not comport with constitutional provisions.

There may be the motivation to show that the President has broken the law. And there is no doubt that the surveillance program does violate the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978. But the President contends that he has inherent article II power as Commander in Chief which supersedes the statute. And he may be right about that. But only a court can determine. And under the existing standards, the court must make a determination of the nature of the invasion of privacy contrasted with the importance for the public welfare of providing security. That is a judicial function.

It seems to me that where you have an avenue to have probable cause established in the traditional way on calls going out of the United States, we ought to utilize it. We ought not to have that program continue in effect without having that kind of constitutional procedure.

And then, as to calls originating outside of the United States, if the President is right, that can be determined by the courts. Let it proceed in that manner. And, the justification for delay—that we need to show the President of the United States has violated the law—is a wholly insufficient justification to withhold legislation that would be a major improvement to this surveillance program.

We can conclude, in my view, that he has violated FISA. But to repeat—and for the acquisition through electronic surveillance of the contents of any communication between one person who is not located within the United States and another person who is within the United States, for the purpose of collecting foreign intelligence information even if such communication passes through, or the surveillance device is located within, the United States.

(b) TREATMENT OF INTERCEPTED COMMUNICATIONS INVOLVING DOMESTIC PARTY.—If surveillance conducted, as described in subsection (a), inadvertently collects a communication in which at least one party is within the United States, the contents of such communications shall be handled in accordance with the procedures set forth in section 101(h)(4) of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1801(h)).

(2) in section 502 (50 U.S.C. 414), by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(d) INFORMING OF COMMITTEE MEMBERS.—The Chair of each of the congressional intelligence committees, in consultation with the ranking member of the committee for which the person is Chair, may inform, on a bipartisan basis, all members or any individual member of each such committee of a report submitted under subsection (a) as such Chair considers necessary.”.

SEC. 302. SUPREME COURT REVIEW OF THE TERRORIST SURVEILLANCE PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Upon appeal by the United States or any party to the underlying proceedings, the Supreme Court of the United States, on a bipartisan basis, may determine the legality of the Terrorist Surveillance Program.

(b) EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION.—It shall be the duty of the Supreme Court of the United States to advance on the docket and to expeditiously determine the greatest possible extent the disposition of any matter brought under subsection (a).

(2) in section 101(h)(4) of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1801(h)(4)).

(b) by striking subsection (b) and inserting

(1) in subsection (a)(2) —

(A) in subparagraph (B), by striking

“and

and

“the authority under which the electronic surveillance is conducted.”; and

(2) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

“(b) On a semiannual basis, the Attorney General shall fully inform the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate on electronic surveillance conducted without a court order.

(2) INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES.—The National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in section 501 (50 U.S.C. 413)—

(A) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g); and

(B) by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

“(f) The Chair of each of the congressional intelligence committees, in consultation with the ranking member of the committee for which the person is Chair, may inform, on a bipartisan basis, all members or any individual member of such committee of a report submitted under subsection (a)(1) or subsection (b) as such Chair considers necessary.”; and

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the terms “contents”, “electronic surveillance”, and “foreign intelligence information” have the meaning given such terms in section 101 of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1801).

SEC. 206. INDIVIDUALIZED FISA APPLICATIONS.

The contents of any wire or radio communication sent from outside the United States to a person inside the United States may not be retained or used unless a court order authorized under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act is obtained.

SEC. 204. ISSUES RESERVED FOR THE COURTS.

Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to amend those provisions of FISA concerning any wire or radio communication sent from outside the United States to a person inside the United States. The constitutionality of such amendments shall be determined by the courts, including the President’s claim that his Article II authority supersedes FISA.

TITLE II—ENHANCED CONGRESSIONAL OVERSIGHT AND SUPREME COURT REVIEW OF THE TERRORIST SURVEILLANCE PROGRAM

SEC. 301. CONGRESSIONAL OVERSIGHT.

(a) ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE UNDER FISA.—Section 108 of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1808) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(2) —

(A) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g); and

(B) by striking the pe- riod at the end and inserting “.”; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(D) the authority under which the elec- tronic surveillance is conducted.”; and

(2) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

“(b) On a semiannual basis, the Attorney General shall fully inform the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate on electronic surveillance conducted without a court order.

(2) INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES.—The National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in section 501 (50 U.S.C. 413)—

(A) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g); and

(B) by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

“(f) The Chair of each of the congressional intelligence committees, in consultation with the ranking member of the committee for which the person is Chair, may inform, on a bipartisan basis, all members or any individual member of such committee of a report submitted under subsection (a)(1) or subsection (b) as such Chair considers necessary.”; and

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. FEINGOLD):

S. 192. A bill providing greater transparency with respect to lobbying activities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to be joined by Senators FEINGOLD, COLLINS, and LIEBERMAN in introducing a bill to provide greater transparency into the process of influencing our Government, and to ensure greater accountability among public officials.

The legislation proposes a number of important and necessary reforms. It would provide for faster reporting and greater public access to reports filed by lobbyists and their employers under current law. It would require greater disclosure of lobbyists' contributions and payments to lawmakers and entities associated with them, as well as fundraising and other events they host.

The bill would also require greater disclosure from both lobbyists, and Members and employees of Congress, of travel that is arranged or financed by a lobbyist or his client.

To address the problem of the revolving door between Government and the private sector, the bill would strengthen the lobbying restrictions on former senior members of the Executive Branch, former Members of Congress, and former senior congressional staff. It would require that Members publicly disclose negotiations they are having with prospective private employers to ensure there is no conflict of interest. The bill also would modify the provision in current law that exempts former Federal employees who go to work for Indian tribes as outside lobbyists, former congressional aides, and a Congressmen admitted that such gifts were used as bribes. Quite frankly, there is no good reason why Members of Congress and their staff cannot forgo such gifts. Members should seriously contend that they are necessary for us to conduct the people's business.

amendment to the Constitution of the United States. I, for some years, along with my colleagues in a bipartisan way, have spoken to this issue. Today, in a new year and in a new Congress, Americans are eager to see a new direction. They have seen Federal spending rise by $200 billion from fiscal years 2005 to 2006. They have watched the Federal deficit swell into hundreds of billions of dollars, and they have borne the costs. Our spending system is broken and, in my opinion, so is our Tax Code. The new year is a time for new solutions to this problem. When new solutions that draw upon old principles of limited government and fiscal responsibility and tax simplicity and fairness are how you approach a problem, I think Americans once again will listen, and they will allow us to build a system that increasingly builds faith, once again, with the American people that the American people can only be addressed through a constitutional amendment to the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years after the date of its submission by the Congress:

"ARTICLE—"

"SECTION 1. Total outlays for any fiscal year shall not exceed total receipts for that fiscal year, unless three-fifths of the whole number of each House of Congress shall provide by law for a specific excess of outlays over receipts by a rollcall vote."

"SECTION 2. Total receipts shall include all receipts of the United States Government except those derived from borrowing. Total outlays shall include all outlays of the United States Government except for those for repayment of debt principal."

"SECTION 3. Any surplus of receipts (including attributable interest) over outlays of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Funds shall not be counted for purposes of this article. Any surplus (including attributable interest) relative to outlays of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Funds shall be counted for purposes of this article, and must be completely offset by a surplus of all other receipts over all other outlays."

"SECTION 4. The limit on the debt of the United States held by the public shall not be increased, unless three-fifths of the whole number of each House shall provide by law for such an increase by a rollcall vote."

"SECTION 5. Prior to each fiscal year, the President shall transmit to the Congress a proposed budget for the United States Government for that fiscal year, in which total outlays do not exceed total receipts."

"SECTION 6. No bill to increase revenue shall become law unless approved by a majority of the whole number of each House by a rollcall vote."

"SECTION 7. The Congress may waive the provisions of this article for any fiscal year in which a declaration of war is in effect. The provisions of this article may be waived for any fiscal year in which the United States is engaged in military conflict which causes an imminent and serious military threat to national security and is so declared by a joint resolution, adopted by a majority of the whole number of each House, which becomes law."

"SECTION 8. The Congress shall enforce and implement this article by appropriate legislation, which may rely on estimates of outlays and receipts."

"SECTION 9. This article shall take effect the second fiscal year beginning after its ratification."
