STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Ms. MURKOWSKI:

S. 784. A bill to provide for the recognition of certain Native communities and the settlement of certain claims under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a bill to allow five Southeast Alaska communities to finally be allowed to form urban corporations under the terms of 1971's Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, the Unrecognized Southeast Alaska Native Communities Recognition and Compensation Act.

At the very beginning of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971 there are a series of findings and declarations of congressional policy that explain the underpinnings of this landmark legislation.

The first clause reads, "There is an immediate need for a fair and just settlement of all claims by Natives and Native groups of Alaska, based on aboriginal land claims." The second clause states, "The settlement should be accomplished rapidly, with certainty, in conformity with the real economic and social needs of Natives."

Mr. President, 37, going on 38, years have passed since the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act became law and still the Native peoples of five communities in Southeast Alaska—Ketchikan, Wrangell, Petersburg, Tenakee and Haines—the five "landless communities" are still waiting for their fair and just settlement.

The Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act awarded $966 million and 44 million acres of land to Alaska Natives and provided for the establishment of Native Corporations to receive and manage such funds and lands. The beneficiaries of the settlement were issued stock in one of 13 regional Alaska Native corporations—12 based in Alaska. Most beneficiaries also had the option to enroll and receive stock in a village, group or urban corporation.

For reasons that still defy clear explanation the Native peoples of the "landless communities," were not permitted by the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act to form village or urban corporations. These communities were excluded from this benefit even though they did not differ significantly from other communities in Southeast Alaska that were permitted to form village or urban corporations under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. For example, Ketchikan had more Native residents in 1970, the year of a member census, than Juneau, which was permitted to form the Goldbelt urban corporation. This finding was confirmed in a February 1994 report submitted by the Secretary of the Interior at the direction of the Congress. That study was conducted by the Institute of Social and Economic Research at the University of Alaska.

The Native people of Southeast Alaska have recognized the injustice of this oversight for more than 34 years. An independent study issued more than 12 years ago confirms that the grievance of the landless communities is legitimate. Legislation has been introduced in the past sessions of Congress to remedy this injustice. Hearings have been held and reports written. Yet legislation to right the wrong has inevitably stalled out. This December marks the 38th anniversary of Congress' promise to the Native peoples of Alaska, the promise of a rapid and certain settlement. And still the landless communities of Southeast Alaska are landless.

I am convinced that this cause is just, it is right, and it is about time that the Native peoples of the five landless communities receive what has been denied them for so long.

The legislation that I am introducing today would enable the Native peoples of the five "landless communities" to organize five "urban corporations," one for each unrecognized community. These newly formed corporations would be offered and could accept the surface estate to 23,040 acres of land—one township as granted all other village corporations. Sealaska Corporation, the regional Alaska Native Corporation for Southeast Alaska, would receive title to the subsurface estate to the designated lands. The urban corporations would each receive a lump sum payment to be used as start-up funds for the newly established corporation. The Secretary of the Interior would determine other appropriate compensation to redress the inequities faced by the unrecognized communities.

It is long past time that we return to the Native peoples of Southeast Alaska a small slice of the aboriginal lands that were once theirs alone. It is time that we open our minds and open our hearts to correcting this injustice that has gone on far too long and finally give the Native peoples of Southeast Alaska the rapid and certain settlement for which they have been waiting.

By Ms. MURKOWSKI (for herself and Mr. BEGICH):

S. 785. A bill to establish a grant program to encourage retooling of entities in the timber industry in Alaska, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I rise to speak about a bill that I have introduced, the Southeast Alaska Timber Industry Retooling and Restructuring Act, which is intended to stimulate employment in Southeast Alaska, by helping firms that have focused on the region's timber industry to modernize or branch out into new industries.

In 1954, the US Department of Agriculture encouraged the development of a sawmill and pulp mill timber industry in the Tongass National Forest in Southeast Alaska, which at 16.98 million acres is the largest national forest in America. From the startup of the pulp mills in Ketchikan and in Sitka in 1961 to passage of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act in 1980, the Tongass was producing about 600 million board feet of timber a year, generating 3,500 direct and 2,500 indirect jobs and providing the largest number of year-round jobs in the region.

But following passage of ANILCA that created 14 wilderness areas covering about 4.9 million acres and the follow up Tongass Timber Reform Act of 1990 that placed another 727,762 acres into protected non-roaded status and created another 12 wilderness areas containing 300,000 acres, the timber harvest and thus timber industry-related employment plummeted in the region—an area nearly the size of Maine. While the two pulp mills closed in the mid 1990's, sawmills have tried to survive on the then anticipated 268 mmbf of allowable timber harvest. But a litany of Federal forest policy changes from the Clinton-era roadless policy, to changes in Forest Service sale and road policies, to sale delays caused by litigation have resulted in harvest levels falling to 28 million board feet from Federal lands and less than 50 million from private lands in 2008. That harvest level is far below the 192 mmbf reached in 2006 and about half of the 144 mmbf of 2007. Recent years have been drastically down from the 495 million board feet harvested from all lands as recently as 1997.

Year round timber employment, according to U.S. Forest Service in 2007, the last year of current full data, was 402 jobs, just 13 percent of the employment of a decade earlier. The impacts on the region's economy have been clearly documented. According to a report by The McDowell Group consultants, total timber-related payroll in 2007 hit just $17 million, compared to $300 million in 1990. Currently, according to the State of Alaska, unemployment in December 2008 has reached 16.5 percent on Prince of Wales Island, the resource base for traditional southern timber operations, and 24.6 percent in the Hoonah and Angoon area, the former resource base for central timber operations—three times the rising national average.

This bill is a measure that calls on the Federal Government to finally acknowledge its role in the reduction of economic activity in the region. By the act, the Government would on a one-time basis, allow the Secretary of Agriculture to provide grants to allow existing timber facilities to retool either to adopt new timber production practices that can operate profitably on far smaller harvests or to convert timber plants to totally new types of manufacturing/business operations, leaving timber-dependent work. Firms—sawmills, logging companies and road construction companies involved in timber work for at least a decade—that seek funding for “retooling projects” must submit business plans and demonstrate the likelihood of success. More importantly they must commit to the “extent practicable” to continue to employ substantially the same number of employees for a “reasonable” period after completion of a retooling project. To limit the impact of the aid, grants may only go to businesses that operated in the Tongass for not less than 10 years prior to Jan. 1, 2009. The program sunsets within 2 years with the maximum authorization of aid being $40 million subject to appropriation.

The bill would allow companies that used to build Forest Service timber roads, for example, to buy more appropriate equipment to bid on Federal highway work and water and sewer line work. It could help firms move into sand and gravel operations. It could allow sawmills with water access to be converted to marine repair facilities or into wood treatment plants. And it might allow some mills to convert to higher value-added products requiring less raw materials, like door and window sash manufacturing.

The changes would ease environmental pressures on timber stands, while aiding the economy by helping to replace the former year-round jobs in a region now nearly solely dependent on fishing and tourism income, besides government-sector spending, for employment. In a region where non-government jobs are precious, it could stimulate job retention and help create new employment. At a time when Congress is contemplating spending nearly $1 trillion to stimulate employment, this measure is a reasonable expenditure to help potentially transition employees to 21st century jobs. The Federal Government was the leading advocate for the establishment of a pulp-timber industry in the region following World War II. It is more than fitting that it provide more assistance to help the region transition to a new era of reduced timber harvests—an era prompted by major environmental legislation that this Congress passed in 1980 and 1990 that is largely responsible for the sharp drop in timber harvests. I hope this body will give fair and swift consideration to this measure.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. INOUE, and Mr. LIEBERMAN):

S. 786. A bill to authorize a grant program to provide for expanded access to mainstream financial institutions; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing the Improving Access to Mainstream Financial Institutions Act of 2009. This bill provides economic empowerment and educational opportunities for working families by helping bank the unbanked and increasing access to financial literacy opportunities. It will also encourage the use of mainstream financial institutions for working families that need small loans. I thank my cosponsors, Senators SCHUMER, INOUE, and LIEBERMAN.

Too many Americans lack basic financial literacy. Americans of all ages and backgrounds face increasingly complex financial decisions as members of the nation’s workforce, managers of their families’ resources, and voting citizens. Many find these decisions confusing and frustrating because they lack the tools necessary that would enable them to make wise, personal choices about their finances.

Without a sufficient understanding of economics and personal finance, individuals will not be able to appropriately manage their finances, effectively evaluate credit opportunities, successfully invest for long-term financial goals in an increasingly complex marketplace, or be able to cope with difficult financial situations. Unfortunately, today too many working families are struggling as they are confronted with increases in energy and food costs or the loss of a job.

We must work toward improving education, consumer protections, and empowering individuals and families through economic and financial literacy in order to build stronger families, businesses, and communities. The bill that I am introducing today would help to educate, empower and protect consumers.

Millions of working families do not have a bank or credit union account. The unbanked rely on alternative financial service providers to obtain cash from checks, pay bills, and send remittances. Many of the unbanked are low- and moderate-income families that can ill afford to have their earnings diminished by reliance on these high-cost and often predatory financial services. Among those families who make up the bottom 20 percent of earners, one in four does not have a transaction account according to the Federal Reserve’s Survey of Consumer Finances. Indeed, the unbanked are often among the most vulnerable. More than 15 percent of families headed by a single parent are unbanked. The unbanked are unable to save securely to prepare for the loss of a job, a family illness, a down payment on a first home, or education expenses making it difficult for these individuals to better their finances.

My bill authorizes grants intended to help low- and moderate-income unbanked individuals establish bank or credit union accounts. Providing access to a bank or credit union account can empower families with tremendous financial opportunities. An account at a bank or credit union provides consumers with alternatives to rapid refund loans, check cashing services, and high cost remittances. In addition, bank and credit union accounts provide access to saving and borrowing services.

Low- and moderate-income individuals are often challenged with a number of barriers that limit their ability to open and maintain accounts. Regular checking accounts may be too costly for some consumers unable to maintain minimum balances or unable to afford monthly fees. Poor credit histories may also hinder their ability to open accounts. By providing Federal resources for product development, administration, outreach, and financial education, banks and credit unions will be better able to reach out and bank the unbanked.

The second grant program authorized by my legislation provides consumers with a lower cost, short term alternative to payday loans. More needs to be done to encourage mainstream financial service providers to develop affordable small loan products. My legislation will help support the development of affordable credit products at bank and credit unions. Working families would be better off by going to their credit unions and banks, mainstream financial services providers, than payday loan shops. Payday loans are cash loans repaid by borrowers’ postdated checks or borrowers’ authorizations to make electronic debits against existing financial accounts. Payday loans often have triple digit interest rates that range from 390 percent to 780 percent when expressed as an annual percentage rate. Loan flipping, which is a common practice, is the renewing of loans at maturity by paying additional fees without any principal reduction. Loan flipping often leads to instances where the fees paid for a payday loan well exceed the principal borrowed. This situation often creates a cycle of debt that is hard to break.

There is a great need for working families to have access to affordable small loans. My legislation would encourage banks and credit unions to develop payday loan alternatives. Consumers who apply for these loans would be provided with financial literacy and educational opportunities. Loans extended to consumers under the grant would be subject to the annual percentage rate promulgated by the National Credit Union Administration’s, Loan Interest Rates. Several credit unions have developed similar products.

I will work to enact this legislation so vital to empowering our citizens. In our current, modern, complex economy, not having a bank or credit union account severely hinders the ability of families to improve their financial condition or help them navigate difficult financial circumstances. Instead of borrowing money from payday lenders at outrageous fees, we need to encourage people to utilize their credit unions and banks for affordable small loans. Banks and credit unions have the ability to make the lives of working families better by helping them save,

By Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. BROWN, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. CARPER, Mr. DODD, Mr. DURBIN, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, Mr. KERRY, Mr. KOHL, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. MERKLEY, Mr. REED, Mr. SANDERS, Mr. SCHUMER, Mrs. SHAHEEN, Ms. STABENOW, Mr. WHITEHOUSE, and Mr. WYDEN):

S. 787. A bill to amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to clarify the jurisdiction of the United States over waters of the United States; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to restore Clean Water Act protections for the same waters that were covered by the Act prior to two recent divisive U.S. Supreme Court decisions. I want to thank Senators BOXER, CARDIN, BROWN, CANTWELL, CARPER, DODD, DURBIN, GILLIBRAND, KERRY, KOHL, LAUTENBERG, LEAHY, LEVIN, LIEBERMAN, MENENDEZ, MERKLEY, REED, SANDERS, SCHUMER, SHAHEEN, STABENOW, WHITEHOUSE, and WYDEN for joining me in introducing this important legislation.

For 35 years, the American people have relied upon the Clean Water Act to protect and restore the health of the Nation's waters. The primary goal of the act to make rivers, streams, wetlands, lakes, and coastal waters safe for fishing, swimming and other recreation, suitable for our drinking water supply and agricultural and industrial uses, and available for wildlife and fish habitat has broad public support not only as a worthy endeavor but also as a fundamental expectation of Government providing for its citizens. It is our responsibility to ensure that our freshwater resources are able to enhance human health, contribute to the economy, and help the environment.

We must remain committed to the Clean Water Act of 1972, and to that end, Congress must enact legislation. Every day that Congress fails to act, more and more rivers, streams, wetlands and other waters that have long been protected by the Clean Water Act are being stripped of their Clean Water Act protections and being polluted or destroyed altogether. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, over 20,000 determinations have been made since the court decisions on whether specific water bodies are covered by the act. Congress should not delay action until protections are stripped from more water bodies throughout the country. The EPA estimates that the court decisions could ultimately impact over half the stream miles and 20 percent of wetlands in the lower 48 States. Lost protections for these waters means the drinking water sources for over 110 million Americans are in jeopardy of pollution.

The Clean Water Restoration Act must be enacted to restore historical protections, using a surgical fix that reaffirms protections for the same categories of waters identified in the over three-decade-old EPA regulatory definition of "waters of the United States."

This is a serious problem, demanding serious debate and action. If we do not act, we will be allowing the Clean Water Act to be rolled back. That would mean increased uncertainty, confusion, litigation, and permitting delays resulting from the court decisions and subsequent agency guidelines. It also would pose a very real threat to Clean Water Act protections for public water supplies, industrial and agriculture uses, fish and wildlife, and recreation.

I am pleased to lead the effort to protect the Clean Water Act in the Senate, and to have support from a range of interested parties, including former EPA Administrators from both Republican and Democratic administrations; governors; attorneys general; State agencies; professional societies and associations; labor and business professionals and unions; farming organizations; and over 400 hunting, fishing, recreational, and conservation organizations.

In response to suggestions I received last Congress, I made several revisions to the bill to make Congressional intent very clear.

My bill, the Clean Water Restoration Act, would continue to protect only those waters historically protected by the Clean Water Act prior to the Supreme Court decisions. This is the crux of my bill, Section 4. In 1972, Congress granted Clean Water Act protections to "navigable waters" and broadly defined those as "the waters of the United States, including the territorial seas", in stark contrast to the 1899 Rivers and Harbors Act, which had only provided protections for the commercially navigable waters. Since the 1970s, EPA and Corps regulations, 40 CFR 122.2 and 33 CFR 328.3, have properly established the scope of "waters of the United States" to be protected, including all intrastate and interstate rivers, streams, lakes, and wetlands. My bill simply takes the longstanding, existing regulatory definition for "waters of the United States" and puts it into law, in lieu of defining "navigable waters" as "waters of the United States," as the Act does now. This surgical fix is necessary because the Supreme Court used the word "navigable" to create a more narrow definition for "waters of the United States" than the definition used for over 30 years. The Court did not, however, limit protections more drastically to only "navigable-in-fact" and continuously flowing waters as some interests have called for. This might have been the law in 1899 when the Rivers and Harbors Act focused on commercial navigation, but it would be entirely inappropriate for the modern day clean water protections provided by the Clean Water Act of 1972.

My bill also asserts appropriate constitutional authority to protect the Nation's waters. Despite claims to the contrary, Congress has broad constitutional authority, including under the Commerce Clause, Property Clause, Treaty Clause, and Necessary and Proper Clause, to enact laws protecting our nation's water quality. To prevent future courts from narrowly applying Congress's constitutional authority, my bill includes the phrase "activities affecting those waters."

My bill also maintains existing exemptions for farming, silviculture, ranching, and other activities, and leaves unchanged the activities that require a permit. The bill only ensures that the same types of waters covered before the Supreme Court decisions continue to be protected and does not affect the activities that require permits. In short, if you have not needed a permit for the last thirty-five years for an activity, you will not need one when this bill is enacted.

Importantly, in 1977, when the Act was modified, a significant compromise was reached to exempt farming, silviculture, and forestry activities from the Act. I stand by this understanding, and just to be sure, the Clean Water Restoration Act explicitly states that the Act's existing exemptions are maintained. As stated in the Act and left unchanged by my bill, agricultural activities are largely exempt from the Clean Water Act [the main permitting programs affecting agriculture address point-source discharge, Section 402, not non-point, and the dredging and filling of waters, Section 404. The following agricultural activities are exempt: normal farming activities (which casts a wide net for plowing, cultivating, harvesting, conservation practices, etc.), agriculture run-off/stormwater discharges, return flows from irrigation, maintenance and construction of farm roads, farm and stock ponds, and irrigation ditches, and maintenance of drainage ditches. There are additional EPA regulatory exemptions for prior converted cropland, and wastewater treatment systems, including treatment lagoons and ponds. Again, my bill does not affect these exemptions and the findings make Congressional intent very clear in this regard.

In short, my bill will allow those waters always protected by the Clean Water Act to continue to receive basic protections. I appreciate the depth and breadth of support for reaffirming the Clean Water Act of 1972 and importantly, rejecting efforts to roll back the law.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, If there is one environmental issue that divides us more than unites us, it's water, especially in the West.

Farmers, ranchers, cities, towns, all compete for limited supplies. Salmon and other economically and culturally important fish depend on its flow. If it is not water quantity, then it is water quality that makes what gets passed on to the next water user the source of contention.

The Clean Water Act has been enormously successful at making water users clean up the water that they use before it is discharged back into lakes, rivers, and streams, and, before it's used by the next person downstream. It has also helped ensure the survival of fish and wildlife.

Over the past 8 years, the U.S. Supreme Court has rendered two major decisions that have restricted the scope of the Act. As it is now being interpreted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Corps of Engineers, the Act no longer prevents the discharge of pollution or fill into many wetlands or intermittent streams, lakes and ponds. By some estimates, more than half the streams in Oregon could be classified as intermittent streams and no longer protected. Another estimate concludes that over one million Oregonians get their drinking water from sources that would no longer be fully protected by the Clean Water Act. I think this is the wrong thing to do.

Last year, I cosponsored S. 1870—the Clean Water Restoration Act—legislation which was intended to return the protections of the Clean Water Act to the way they were before these two Supreme Court decisions occurred. No more, and no less.

In my town hall meetings around Oregon, I have received questions and complaints about this legislation. The biggest concern that many people had was that this new bill was actually going to expand the reach of the Federal Government over water regulation in ways that would literally threaten the ability of farmers to farm and ranchers to ranch. People were also concerned that this legislation would not only regulate discharges into rivers and streams, but it would also regulate the quantity of water they use.

I am no supporter of Federal water grabs. I would not have cosponsored this legislation in the last Congress if it would threaten Oregon farmers' ability to farm or our ranchers' ability to ranch. I would have opposed it.

Ranchers and farmers and forest owners know how to be stewards of the land they ranch and farm and manage because their livelihoods depend on it, and if they are not careful about how they manage that land there will be nothing to pass on to the next generation. The same is true for how we must treat our rivers, streams and wetlands.

So over the past few months, my staff and I have worked with Senator FEINGOLD, the primary sponsor of the bill, to clarify that intent of this legislation is to simply restore the interpretation of the Clean Water Act to what it had been before these Supreme Court decisions. No more, and no less.

Earlier this year, in response to my concerns about how the bill would impact rural Oregon, Senator FEINGOLD reiterated in a letter to me his intent that the Clean Water Restoration Act not expand the scope of the law. Sen. FEINGOLD also revised the text of the bill in a way that I believe makes it even clearer that the goal is not to expand the scope of the Clean Water Act beyond what it was in 2001 before the Supreme Court decisions.

First of all, the bill again includes a savings clause that clearly continues the existing exemption for irrigation return flows from Clean Water Act regulation. It continues the exemption for dredged or fill materials from normal farming, silviculture and ranching activities. It continues the exemption for construction and maintenance of farm or stock ponds or irrigation ditches and drainage ditches. It continues the exemption for construction and maintenance of farm roads or forest roads.

Second, the bill now contains a much more detailed set of findings that make it absolutely clear that the intent of Congress with enactment of the bill is to restore the regulatory system for the Clean Water Act to what it was before these two Supreme Court decisions. These findings also make it clear that the bill is not regulating ground water, only surface water, just as the Clean Water Act has always done. The findings make it clear that exclusions for prior converted cropland and man-made impoundments remain in place. They make it clear that the intent is to regulate water quality, not quantity or ownership.

If more changes are needed to ensure that the bill does what Sen. FEINGOLD and I say it does, than I am certainly open to making more changes to make sure the Senate gets this crucial issue right.

Some people do not like the pre-2001 Clean Water Act regulatory system. Some believe that the Supreme Court did the right thing by removing many wetlands and intermittent streams and lakes from the protections of the Clean Water Act. I disagree. I think those protections are needed to protect our water supplies and our environment and wildlife habitat. Farmers and ranchers need those protections for their livelihoods. But I want to be absolutely clear, that I will not support expanding Federal authority in this area beyond what it was before 2001.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter of support be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be placed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR WYDEN: Thank you for your commitment to reinstating longstanding Clean Water Act protections, which have been unquestionably reduced and blurred by recent Supreme Court decisions. I appreciate you contacting me on behalf of your constituents with some important questions about the intent and effect of my bill, the Clean Water Restoration Act.

Like you, I am committed to restoring the scope of the Clean Water Act of 1972 and strongly oppose efforts to roll back the Act—which is happening and will continue to happen until Congress acts. A recent investigation by the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure found that the 2006 Rapanos case and subsequent agency guidance are directly responsible for “a drastic deterioration of [the Environmental Protection Agency’s] Clean Water Act enforcement program . . . hundreds of violations have not been pursued.” The investigation revealed that top EPA officials warned that “the difficulty in interpreting and applying the Rapanos decision and the Inter-Agency guidance has created a drain on [EPA] resources, caused delays and uncertainty in compliance determinations. . . .” According to the EPA, over 50 percent of U.S. streams, 20 million acres of wetlands, and the drinking water for 110 million Americans remain in jeopardy of being polluted or destroyed as a result of the Supreme Court decisions.

Since Congress is the only branch of government that can reinstate protections and prevent a significant roll-back of the Act, I introduced the Clean Water Restoration Act to do just that, and only that.

The bill will not increase permitting and does not change the requirements for what activities need a permit. The Clean Water Restoration Act would only modify one term in the Act and does not alter any other sections of law, including those identifying what activities need a permit. Nevertheless, when the bill was reintroduced in the 110th Congress, we added a savings clause to make it explicitly clear that the exemptions for agriculture, ranching, and forestry are maintained. The Act was amended in 1977 to add these permitting exemptions and my bill will not change those exemptions, or existing exemptions in the regulations that do not require permits for agricultural activities affecting prior converted cropland or for wastewater treatment systems.

As you know, the Clean Water Act protects “navigable waters,” which the Act broadly defines as “waters of the United States, including the territorial seas” (though often a source of confusion, the term “navigable waters” has a very different meaning in the Clean Water Act than it does in the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899, which extends only very narrow protections to commercially navigable waters). “Navigable waters” and “waters of the United States” are broadly defined, for purposes of the Clean Water Act, in the Environmental Protection Agency and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers’ regulations to cover all waters necessary to achieve the Act’s water quality purposes. This includes such so-called isolated wetlands as prairie potholes and playa lakes, which have been jeopardized since the 2001 SWAIVCC case, as well as intermittent streams, which remain jeopardized by the 2006 Rapanos case and subsequent agency guidance. In order to meet the intent and purpose of the Clean Water Act of 1972, we must ensure all these waters continue to be protected—which is why the Clean Water Restoration Act defines “waters of the United States” using the same list of waters.

In your letter, you asked about an exchange at a hearing on the bill in 2008 where the former Administrator of the EPA, Carol Browner, responded to a question about whether a “puddle” is a “wetland.” Though the question was likely intended in jest, there is a longstanding, scientific process for determining and delineating a wetland. Professional determinations are made, for purposes of Section 404 of the Clean Water Act, using the Corps regulatory definition of a wetland. Wetlands generally include swamps, marshes, bogs, and similar areas (33 CFR 328.3(b)).

Lastly, the Clean Water Act does not regulate water quantity, only water quality. Its purpose is to “restore and maintain the chemical, physical, and biological integrity of the nation’s waters” (33 U.S.C. 1251 et seq.). I am pleased to lead the effort to protect the Clean Water Act in the Senate, and to have your support, as well as that of a range of interested parties, including former EPA Administrators from both Republican and Democratic administrations; governors; attorneys general; state agencies; professional societies and associations; labor and business professionals and unions; farming organizations; and over 400 hunting, fishing, recreational, and conservation organizations.

Thanks for your efforts to educate others about the importance of this legislation and the true purpose of the Clean Water Restoration Act. As always, I am committed to working with you and others to restore historical protections to the waters of the United States.

Sincerely,

RUSSELL D. FEINGOLD.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself and Mr. NELSON, of Florida):

S. 788. A bill to prohibit unsolicited mobile text message spam; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today, along with Senator BILL NELSON, to introduce legislation that would curb a growing nuisance that millions of wireless customers experience on a daily basis—unsolicited text messages or mobile spam.

Spam has long been loathed by email users around the world. It is for good reason—percent of all email sent worldwide is considered spam, which means close to 200 billion spam messages are sent every day. The vast majority of the spam sent on the Internet is done so illegally through the use of botnets, which are “networks” of hijacked or compromised computers. One botnet, Srizbi, which consists of more than 450,000 compromised PCs is able to send on average more than 60 billion spam messages per day. Many of these spam messages include viruses, malicious spyware, or are phishing attacks.

With more data functionality and improved user interfaces with wireless devices, it is expected that mobile spam will grow over the next several years. Those viruses and malware that are so prevalent on a user’s computer could and most likely will show up on their cell phones through m-spam. So a very significant threat to wireless users looms.

While the FCC and the FTC have adopted rules to prohibit sending unwanted commercial e-mail messages to wireless devices without prior permission, text messages are not covered by their rules so it is not having the desired effect of deterring distribution of mobile spam, let alone email spam. The m-SPAM Act would provide more government attention to this growing problem and makes modifications to existing law in order to improve efforts to restrain mobile spam—before it becomes more than an annoyance.

More text and voice spam are steadily invading handsets. Wireless users in the U.S. received more than 1.1 million spam text messages in 2007, up 38 percent from 2006. Mobile spam not only clutters a wireless user's inbox, but it also unduly increases the monthly wireless bill—wireless subscribers typically are charged for sending and receiving text messages—sometimes as much as 20 cents per message.

Some telephone companies have been proactive in preventing spam—wireless carriers already block up to 200 million unsolicited text messages per month, but many times the senders cannot be located and brought to justice without Government help. In May 2007, Verizon Wireless sued telemarketers that had inundated the company with more than 12 million mobile spam messages. The carrier was able to block most of them but the inundation still hit consumers with unwanted charges and the carrier with a congested network. So more can be done to prevent this aggravating practice and relieve consumers of having to resolve these charges on their bills. Even the wireless industry recently has urged government to do more to catch and prosecute spammers.

That is why I sincerely hope that my colleagues will join Senator BILL NELSON and me in supporting this critical legislation.

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself, Mr. CASEY, Mr. KOHL, and Mr. UDALL, of New Mexico):

S. 790. A bill to improve access to health care services in rural, frontier, and urban underserved areas in the United States by addressing the supply of health professionals and the distribution of health professionals to areas of need; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today with Senators ROBERT CASEY, HERB KOHL, and TOM UDALL to introduce the Health Access and Health Professions Supply Act of 2009.

Health care reform is a national priority—far too many Americans do not have access to meaningful, affordable health insurance. But even if every person in the U.S. had health insurance, we do not have a cohesive or coordinated strategy to address health workforce emergencies and shortages, and problems with reliable access to quality, affordable care. Over 20 percent of Americans are living in health professions shortage areas without access to adequate medical, dental, and mental and behavioral health services. This workforce deficiency will worsen as the population ages and grows by an estimated 25 million individuals per decade and, could be severely exacerbated by epidemics and disasters. It is estimated that without intervention, the United States will experience shortages of as many as 200,000 physicians and one million nurses by 2020. It takes many years to create a pipeline of health professionals. I am introducing the Health Access and Health Professions Supply Act of 2009 to coordinate our health workforce strategy, to build and maintain this pipeline, so that health and safety of every American is protected. The legislation is based on the most recent recommendations developed by Council on Graduate Medical Education and other health workforce experts.

This legislation addresses these issues in an unprecedented and comprehensive manner. It creates a Permanent National Health Workforce Commission to assure that the Federal investment in the education of health professionals is a public good that address the needs of the American people. The Commission is tasked to design, revise, implement and evaluate programs, grants, and regulations related to the nation's health workforce.

The Health Access and Health Professions Supply Act of 2009 expands the Medicare medical home demonstration project. This pilot program would include 1,000 medical home primary care providers working in interdisciplinary teams. These clinicians will provide the highest quality medical care using the best health information technology, and personalized, coordinated, and accessible care.

But new models are not enough. We have allowed our primary care educational infrastructure to crumble. Without intervention, the decline will likely continue, and access to care in underserved areas will rapidly deteriorate. Family physicians represent 58 percent of the rural physician workforce, 70 percent of non-federal physicians in whole-county health professional shortage areas, and 78 percent of primary care physician full-time equivalents in the National Health Service Corps. Yet, the number of graduates from medical school in the U.S. who choose to practice family medicine has plummeted 50 percent in less than 10 years. Currently, less than 5 percent of graduates from medical school specialize in primary care. This is despite the fact that one of the most significant measures of the effectiveness and efficiency of a healthcare system is the degree to which the population has access to meaningful and coordinated primary care.

Experts tell us that the dearth of primary care providers may be attributed to many factors including low reimbursement levels and a lack of federal incentives to teaching institutions to promote primary care. My legislation would allow the National Health Workforce Commission to analyze these issues and recommend solutions including changes in Federal reimbursement systems. For example, this bill calls for improved transparency and accountability for Federal dollars spent for medical education through direct Graduate Medical Education, GME, and Indirect Medical Education, IME, and money paid in Disproportionate Share, DSH, support for safety net services provided under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

This legislation also substantially increases funding for the National Health Service Corps. This will help provide healthcare access to the areas of our country that are in most desperate need. Also, included are expanded loan forgiveness and grant programs to develop new training programs in rural and other underserved communities to help us train health professionals in areas where they are needed.

The Health Access and Health Professions Supply Act of 2009 establishes a U.S. Public Health Sciences Track to train physicians, dentists, nurses, physician assistants, mental and behavior health specialists, pharmacists, and public health professionals emphasizing team-based service, public health, epidemiology, and emergency preparedness and response in affiliated institutions. Students in this program are accepted as Commission Corps officers in the U.S. Public Health Service and will receive tuition remission and a stipend with a two year service commitment for each year of school covered. This group will form an elite cadre of healthcare professionals that can be deployed when epidemics, natural or other disasters strike.

I am introducing the Health Access and Health Professions Supply Act of 2009 with the understanding that our health workforce shortfall cannot be solved using a piecemeal approach. We must address health workforce issues in health care reform to guarantee access to quality care for all Americans but we must also ensure that taxpayer dollars used to support health professions education are spent wisely.

This legislation has received widespread support and is endorsement by the: National Association of Community Health Centers, National Rural Health Association, American Medical Students Association, Trust for America's Health, American Psychological Association, American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy, American Academy of Physician Assistants, Commissioned Officers Association of the U.S. Public Health Service, National Rural Recruitment and Retention Network, American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, New Mexico Health Resources, New Mexico Medical Society, New Mexico Chapter of the American College of Physicians, and the Santa Fe Project Access.

I urge my colleagues in the Senate to join us in support of the Health Access and Health Professions Supply Act of 2009.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 790

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

(a) FINDINGS RELATED TO HEALTH CARE ACCESS IN RURAL, FRONTIER, AND URBAN UNDERSERVED AREAS OF THE UNITED STATES.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States does not have a cohesive or coordinated approach to addressing health workforce shortages and problems with reliable access to quality, affordable health care.

(2) There are 50,000,000 citizens of the United States living in areas that are designated under section 332(a)(1)(A) of the Public Health Service Act as health professional shortage areas.

(3) The population of the United States will grow by 25,000,000 each decade.

(4) The number of individuals over 65 years of age in the United States will double between 2000 and 2030, with such individuals accounting for 20 percent of the total population of the United States in 2030.

(5) Individuals over 65 years of age have twice as many doctor visits as those individuals under 65 years of age, resulting in an increase in the demand for physicians, physician assistants, pharmacists behavioral and mental health professionals, nurses, and dentists.

(6) The rates of chronic diseases (such as diabetes) are increasing in the population of the United States.

(7) There are 47,000,000 citizens of the United States who do not have health insurance, and over 130,000,000 individuals within the United States who do not have dental insurance. Those individuals who are uninsured have limited access to health care.

(8) Academic health centers, Federal medical facilities, and teaching hospitals provide a substantial percentage of safety net services in the United States to uninsured and underinsured populations and to those individuals who have 1 or more chronic diseases. Such centers, facilities, and teaching hospitals provide those safety net services while concurrently providing for the training of health professionals.

(9) The pipeline for the education of health professionals—

(A) begins and often ends in urban areas;

(B) does not reliably include Federal support for nonphysician training;

(C) does not incorporate modern training venues and techniques, including community-based ambulatory sites; and

(D) discourages interdisciplinary, team, and care coordination models as a result of restrictive regulations.

(10) Health reform must include measures to transform the health delivery system to assure access, quality, and efficiency by utilizing contemporary models and venues of care.

(11) Reform of the health delivery system will require modernization of the training of health professionals to ensure that health professionals—

(A) practice in integrated teams in a variety of delivery venues (including inpatient and ambulatory settings and long-term care facilities) to utilize decision support and health information systems;

(B) deliver patient-centered care;

(C) practice evidence-based health care;

(D) learn performance-based compensation systems, comparative effectiveness, and costs of care across the spectrum; and

(E) deliver culturally appropriate, personalized care.

(b) FINDINGS RELATED TO ACCESS TO ORAL HEALTH.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Dental care is the number 1 unmet health care need in children, and is 1 of the top 5 unmet health care needs in adults.

(2) Over 130,000,000 citizens of the United States are without dental insurance.

(3) Over 45,000,000 citizens of the United States live in areas that are designated under section 332(a)(1)(A) of the Public Health Service Act as dental health professional shortage areas.

(4) Rural counties have less than half the number of dentists per capita compared to large metropolitan areas (29 versus 62 for population of 100,000).

(5) In 2006, over 9,000 dentists were needed in such dental health professional shortage areas.

(6) Between 27 and 29 percent of children and adults in the United States have untreated cavities.

(7) The number of dental school graduates in the United States decreased by 20 percent between 1982 and 2003 and the average age of practicing dentists in the United States is 49.

(8) There were over 400 dental faculty vacancies in the school year beginning in 2006.

(9) In 2007, the average debt of a dental student at graduation was $172,627.

(c) FINDINGS RELATED TO PHYSICIAN SHORTAGES, EDUCATION, AND DISTRIBUTION.—Congress finds the following:

(1) By 2020, physician shortages are forecasted to be in the range of 55,000 to 200,000.

(2) Although 21 percent of the population of the United States lives in rural areas, only 10 percent of physicians work in rural areas and, for every 1 physician who goes into practice in regions with a low supply of physicians, 4 physicians go into practice in regions with a high supply of physicians.

(3) According to a 2004 report by Green et al. for the Robert Graham Center of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the number of applicants from rural areas accepted to medical school has decreased by 40 percent in the last 20 years while the number of such applications has remained the same.

(4) In order to respond to forecasted shortages, experts have recommended an increase between 15 and 30 percent in class size at medical schools over the next 10 years.

(5) There are 55,000,000 citizens of the United States who lack adequate access to primary health care because of shortages of primary care providers in their communities.

(6) The number of graduates from medical school in the United States who choose to practice family medicine has plummeted 50 percent in less than 10 years. Without congressional intervention, such decline will likely continue, and access to care in underserved areas will rapidly deteriorate. Family physicians represent 58 percent of the rural physician workforce, 70 percent of non-Federal physicians in whole-county health professional shortage areas, and 78 percent of primary care physician full-time equivalents in the National Health Service Corps.

(7) Current trends indicate that fewer resident trainees from pediatric and internal medicine residencies pursue generalist practice at graduation.

(8) Funding for medical education which is provided through direct Graduate Medical Education (GME) and Indirect Medical Education (IME) under the Medicare program is not transparent or accountable, nor is it aligned to the types of health professionals most needed or to the areas in which health professionals are most needed.

(9) Physician supply varies 200 percent across regions and there is no relationship between regional physician supply and health needs.

(10) The Council on Graduate Medical Education’s 18th Report (issued in 2007), entitled “New Paradigms for Physician Training for Improving Access to Health Care”, and 19th Report (issued in 2007), entitled “Enhancing Flexibility in Graduate Medical Education”, each call for changes to address the healthcare needs of the United States by removing barriers to expanding and more appropriately training the physician workforce.

(d) FINDINGS RELATED TO NURSING SHORTAGES, EDUCATION, AND DISTRIBUTION.—Congress finds the following:

(1) By 2020, nursing shortages are forecast to be in the range of 300,000 to 1,000,000 and the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor estimates that more than 1,200,000 new and replacement registered nurses will be needed by 2014.

(2) Nurse vacancy rates are currently 8 percent or greater in hospitals and community health centers receiving assistance under section 330 of the Public Health Service Act, and for nursing faculty positions.

(3) Surveys indicate that 40 percent of nurses in hospitals are dissatisfied with their work and, of nurses who graduate and go into nursing, 50 percent leave their first employer within 2 years.

(4) Nursing baccalaureate and graduate programs rejected more than 40,000 qualified nursing school applicants in 2006, with faculty shortages identified by such programs as a major reason for turning away qualified applicants.

(5) More than 70 percent of nursing schools cited faculty shortages as the primary reason for not accepting all qualified applicants into entry-level nursing programs.

(6) The nursing faculty workforce is aging and retiring and, by 2019, approximately 75 percent of the nursing faculty workforce is expected to retire.

(7) The average age of nurses in the United States is 49 and the average age of an associate professor nurse faculty member in the United States is 56.

(8) Geriatric patients receiving care from nurses trained in geriatrics are less frequently readmitted to hospitals or transferred from skilled nursing facilities and nursing facilities to hospitals.

(e) FINDINGS RELATED TO PUBLIC HEALTH WORKFORCE SHORTAGES.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States has an estimated 50,000 fewer public health workers than it did 20 years ago while the population has grown by approximately 22 percent.

(2) Government public health departments are facing significant workforce shortages that could be exacerbated through retirements.

(3) Twenty percent of the average State health agency's workforce will be eligible to retire within 3 years, and by 2012, over 50 percent of some State health agency workforces will be eligible to retire.

(4) Approximately 20 percent of local health department employees will be eligible for retirement by 2010.

(5) The average age of new hires in State health agencies is 40.

(6) 4 out of 5 current public health workers have not had formal training for their specific job functions.

(f) FINDINGS RELATED TO PHYSICIAN ASSISTANT SHORTAGES.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The purpose of the physician assistant profession is to extend the ability of physicians to provide primary care services, particularly in rural and other medically underserved communities.

(2) Physician assistants always practice medicine as a team with their supervising physicians, however, supervising physicians need not be physically present when physician assistants provide medical care.

(3) Physician assistants are legally regulated in all States, the District of Columbia, and Guam. All States, the District of Columbia, and Guam authorize physicians to delegate prescriptive authority to physician assistants.

(4) In 2007, physician assistants made approximately 245,000,000 patient visits and prescribed or recommended approximately 303,000,000 medications.

(5) The National Association of Community Health Centers, the George Washington University, and the Robert Graham Center for Policy Studies in Family Medicine and Primary Care found that while the number of patients who seek care at community health centers has increased, the number of primary care providers, including physician assistants, has not. The report estimates a need for 15,500 primary health care providers to provide care at community health centers.

(g) FINDINGS RELATED TO MENTAL HEALTH PROFESSIONAL SHORTAGES.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The National Institute of Mental Health estimates that 26.2 percent of citizens of the United States ages 18 and older suffer from a diagnosable mental disorder. Approximately 20 percent of children in the United States have diagnosable mental disorders with at least mild functional impairment.

(2) The Health Resources and Services Administration reports that there are 3,059 mental health professional shortage areas within the United States with 77,000,000 people living in those areas. More than 5,000 additional mental health professionals are needed to meet demand.

(3) According to the Department of Health and Human Services, minority representation is lacking in the mental health workforce. Although 12 percent of the population of the United States is African-American, only 2 percent of psychologists, 2 percent of psychiatrists, and 4 percent of social workers are African-American. Moreover, there are only 29 mental health professionals who are Hispanic for every 100,000 individuals who are Hispanic in the United States, compared with 173 non-Hispanic White providers for every 100,000 individuals who are non-Hispanic White in the United States.

(h) FINDINGS RELATED TO HEALTH PROFESSIONAL SHORTAGE AREAS.—

(1) In 2006, the National Health Service Corps had a total of 4,200 vacant positions in health professional shortage areas, but only 1,200 of those positions were funded. For each National Health Service Corps award, there are 7 applicants.

(2) Community health centers receiving assistance under section 330 of the Public Health Service Act have expanded to serve 16,000,000 individuals in over 1,000 sites. Such community health centers have high vacancy rates for family physicians (13 percent), obstetricians and gynecologists (21 percent), dentists, nurses, and other health professionals.

(3) The Institute of Medicine of the National Academies has recommended that medical education and public health issues be more closely aligned, especially in relation to preparedness for natural disasters, pandemic, bioterrorism, and other threats to public health.

(4) The education of health professionals must be more closely aligned with health care needs in the United States, with special attention to underserved populations and areas, health disparities, the aging population, and individuals with 1 or more chronic diseases.

(5) There is some duplication, and little coordination, between the Council on Graduate Medical Education (related to the physician workforce), the National Advisory Committee on Nursing Programs (related to the nursing workforce), the Advisory Committee on Training in Primary Care Medicine and Dentistry, and other advisory committees and councils.

(6) The Association of Academic Health Centers calls for making the health workforce of the United States a priority domestic policy issue and creating a national health workforce planning body that engages Federal, State, public, and private stakeholders.

TITLE I—AMENDMENTS TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

SEC. 101. PERMANENT NATIONAL HEALTH WORKFORCE COMMISSION.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is hereby established the Permanent National Health Workforce Commission (in this section referred to as the "Commission").

(b) DUTIES.—

(1) REVIEW OF FEDERAL POLICIES AND ANNUAL REPORTS.—

(A) REVIEW.—The Commission shall review Federal policies with respect to the training, financing, and distribution of the health professional workforce, particularly with respect to such workforce in rural, frontier, and urban underserved areas, including the specific topics described in paragraph (2). Such review shall include a comprehensive analysis and reporting of—

(i) the most recent COHPERDDUST Annual Report;

(ii) the number of medical students and residents, physician assistant students, pharmacy students and residents, behavioral and mental health students and residents, dental students and residents, nursing students and advance practice nursing trainees, and other health professionals in need of training, the rates of payment for such training; and the methodologies for funding such training;

(iii) how to align payments for direct graduate medical education costs under section 1886(h) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(h)) and payments for the indirect costs of medical education under section 1886(d)(5)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(d)(5)(B)) with other Federal and State subsidies and payments for health professions education with desired outcomes for the health professional workforce;

(iv) whether Federal medical facilities should be permitted to train health professionals with support paid directly by the entity sponsoring the health professional;

(v) whether the establishment of transparent, accountable Federal payment policies for training health professionals would ensure that the types of health professionals trained and the distribution of such health professionals would meet the health care needs of the population of the United States;

(vi) the feasibility of establishing a National Health Professions Education Trust Fund to ensure an open and fair system of Federal, State, and private support for providing education for health professionals; and

(vii) any other issues related to such Federal policies as the Commission determines appropriate.

(B) COHPERDDUST ANNUAL REPORTS.—Not later than each of January 1 of each year (beginning with 2012) the Commission shall submit to the Secretary and to Congress a report containing—

(i) the results of the review conducted under subparagraph (A); and

(ii) recommendations—

(I) with respect to the Health Professions Pipeline, Education, Research, Diversity & Distribution to Underserved Areas Utilizing Service/Training Models; and

(II) for such legislation or administrative action, including regulations, as the Commission determines appropriate.

(2) SPECIFIC TOPICS DESCRIBED.—

(A) PAYMENTS FOR HEALTH PROFESSIONS EDUCATION.—Specifically, the Commission shall review, with respect to the training, financing, and distribution of the health professional workforce, the following:

(i) The regular update, revision, and standardization of hospital-specific and sponsoring institution-specific base-period per resident amounts and cost reporting periods for payments for direct graduate medical education costs under section 1886(h) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(h)) and payments for the indirect costs of medical education under section 1886(d)(5)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(d)(5)(B)).

(ii) The feasibility of the Secretary, subject to review by the Commission, granting a waiver under the Medicare program, such as the waiver granted to the Utah Medical Education Commission, which would allow States flexibility to utilize funding under titles XVIII, XIX, and XXI of the Social Security Act for direct graduate medical education and indirect graduate medical education to support coordinated and comprehensive health workforce training innovations.

(iii) Replacement of the current methodology for making payments for such direct graduate medical education costs and such indirect costs of medical education with a workforce adjustment payment, based on a Sustainable Growth Rate formula or a prospective payment system, under which—

(I) payments would be made directly to the sponsoring institution where such education is provided; and

(II) payments would be separated to reflect the costs to the professional and facility components of such education.

(iv) The establishment of standards for the financing of education for health professionals who are not physicians.

(v) The expansion of the definition, for purposes of making payments for health professions education (including such direct graduate medical education costs and such indirect costs of medical education), of the term "sponsoring institution", which traditionally has been a teaching hospital or medical school, to include nonteaching hospital-based entities (such as managed care organizations and public and private healthcare consortia) that are capable of assembling all of the resources necessary for effectively providing the training and education required to address healthcare access, quality, and costs and to meet workforce needs.

(vi) The provision of health professions education by nonteaching hospital-based entities (including rural health clinics (as defined in subsection (aa)(2) of section 1861 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x)), community health centers (as defined in section 330 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 254b)), and Federally qualified health centers (as defined in subsection (aa)(4) of such section 1861) that are not sponsoring institutions (as defined under clause (v)) as affiliates of the sponsoring institution for purposes of providing more limited, but highly valuable clinical training.

(vii) The establishment of incentives to promote interdisciplinary, team-based, and care coordination-based education of health professionals, including incentives to encourage the development of health information technology (such as a repository of consumer health status information in computer processable form) which can be used for diagnosis, management, and treatment and includes price and cost information.

(viii) Adjustment to the Medicare caps on graduate medical education positions to increase the number of primary care residents, general dentistry residents, geriatric fellowship trainees, and other health professionals trained in Federal medical facilities.

(ix) The development of pay-for-performance methodologies for payments for health professions education (including such direct graduate medical education costs, payments for such indirect costs of medical education, and disproportionate share payments under section 1886(d)(5)(F) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(d)(5)(F))) to—

(I) increase payments to sponsoring institutions and the affiliates of such institutions that achieve desired outcomes; and

By Mr. HATCH (for himself, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. KOHL, and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 795. A bill to amend the Social Security Act to enhance the social security of the Nation by ensuring adequate public-private infrastructure and to resolve to prevent, detect, treat, intervene in, and prosecute elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, today, Senator BLANCHE LINCOLN, Senator HERB KOHL, Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE and I will be introducing the Elder Justice Act. The Elder Justice Act we are introducing today was reported by the Senate Finance Committee during the last Congress. In fact, this legislation has been introduced consistently since the 107th Congress. Additionally, it has been reported unanimously by the Finance Committee during the last three Congresses.

I want to express my gratitude to Senator BLANCHE LINCOLN, the other lead sponsor of the Elder Justice Act. Senator LINCOLN's strong commitment to reducing elder abuse has made a tremendous difference. It has been a pleasure to work with her on this important legislation.

In addition, I want to acknowledge the other original cosponsors of this bill, Senator HERB KOHL and Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE. Over the years, Senator KOHL has been strong supporter of this legislation and, as Chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, his support has been greatly appreciated by me. Senator SNOWE has been a strong supporter of the Elder Justice Act for many years.

The Elder Justice Coalition, headed by Bob Blancato, also has been a great ally of the Elder Justice Act. The coalition, which has close to 560 members, is dedicated to eliminating elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation in our country. Over the years, coalition members have worked hard to educate Congress about the Elder Justice Act.

I also must acknowledge the work of former Senator John Breaux on this important legislation. Senator Breaux was the original sponsor of the Elder Justice Act.

In fact, Senator Breaux and I first introduced this legislation in the 107th Congress.

Even though Senator Breaux is no longer in the Senate, he has still fought for passage of this legislation and currently serves as the Honorary Chairman of the Elder Justice Coalition.

As far as the Elder Justice Act is concerned, one of the most significant provisions of this bill is the creation of an Elder Justice Coordinating Council and an Advisory Board on elder abuse, neglect and exploitation.

The Coordinating Council, which would be chaired by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, would be made up of Federal agency representatives who would be responsible for overseeing programs related to elder abuse.

Advisory Board members would include citizens who have extensively studied issues surrounding elder abuse.

Together, the Council and Advisory Board would be responsible for coordinating public and private activities and programs related to elder abuse.

Today, that goal is unattainable because quite simply, the approach to addressing elder abuse is disjointed among Federal agencies.

Therefore, the major goal of the Elder Justice Act would be to encourage a comprehensive and coordinated response by these Federal agencies to elder abuse.

I also want to take a minute to address a concern that has been raised by some who believe that the Elder Justice Act is duplicative because federal programs already exist to address elder abuse.

I respectfully disagree with that assessment. In fact, last Congress, we spent a lot of time with agency officials to address some of the concerns raised about the bill. It is my hope that we will continue those discussions this year.

That being said, I truly believe that our government needs to do more when it comes to elder abuse. As more and more baby boomers retire over the next 3 decades, we can no longer ignore the reality that elder abuse is prevalent within our society and we must do something to address it. Enacting the Elder Justice Act is the first step.

Senior citizens cannot wait any longer for this legislation to pass. Getting this bill signed into law continues to be one of my top priorities. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to cosponsor the Elder Justice Act and support the passage of this legislation.

Our seniors deserve no less.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I wish today to express my support for the Elder Justice Act of 2009. As in previous years, I am proud to be an original cosponsor. I wish to thank my colleague, Senators HATCH, LINCOLN, and SNOWE for their leadership to address the often-hidden scourge of elder abuse. For years, Congress has failed to take concrete action to address the consequences of elder abuse, and that must change.

The Elder Justice Act takes several important steps to help protect our vulnerable elders. First, it boosts funding for the long-term care ombudsman program, which is the chief source of advocacy for individuals who live in nursing homes and assisted living facilities. The bill would advance the understanding of how to prosecute and address elder abuse by providing funds to focus on and develop the forensics of elder abuse. In addition, it elevates the importance of elder justice issues by creating a coordinating council of Federal agencies that will make policy recommendations and submit reports to Congress every 2 years. The legislation provides funding for adult protective services programs and improves training and working conditions for long-term care professionals.

We must also act to prevent abuse of our elders whenever and wherever possible. The Patient Safety and Abuse Prevention Act, which I recently reintroduced with my colleague, Senator Collins, would do much to prevent physical, emotional and financial abuse by providing States with the resources they need to significantly improve background check screening processes for vulnerable populations, including frail elders and individuals with disabilities. We know from the results of a 3-year pilot program that thousands of predators can be eliminated from the long-term care workforce that serves elders simply by improving and tightening screening standards.

In closing, I urge my colleagues to support both the Elder Justice Act and the Patient Safety and Abuse Prevention Act. Thousands of individuals with a history of substantiated abuse or a criminal record are hired every year to work closely with exposed and defenseless seniors within our Nation's nursing homes and other long-term care facilities. Because the current system of State-based background checks is haphazard, inconsistent, and full of gaping holes, predators can evade detection throughout the hiring process, securing jobs that allow them to assault, abuse, and steal from defenseless elders.

I thank Senators HATCH, LINCOLN, and SNOWE for their commitment to the cause of elder justice. I look forward to working with my colleagues to enact the legislation we are introducing today.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 796. A bill to modify the requirements applicable to locatable minerals on public domain land, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Hardrock Mining and Reclamation Act of 2009. This legislation would reform the antiquated Mining Law of 1872, a law that governs the mining of hardrock minerals, such as gold, silver, and copper, from our Federal lands.

When the Mining Law was enacted in 1872, in the aftermath of the California gold rush, Congress sought to encourage settlement of the West. Congress did this by offering free minerals and land to those who were willing to go West and mine. Congress put in place a system whereby miners could enter the public lands and locate claims for valuable mineral deposits, and mine the minerals with no further payment to the government. In the 1872 law, Congress also provided that the Federal Government would patent, or transfer title in fee simple, to the mining claims on the public domain for $2.50 or $5.00 an acre.

In 1920, Congress enacted the Mineral Leasing Act, and removed oil, gas, coal, and certain other minerals from the operation of the Mining Law. In so doing, Congress enacted a management regime that requires the leasing of these minerals. In addition, Congress required payment of per-acre rentals and ad valorem royalties based on the value of production of the oil, gas and coal, providing a return to the public for the production of publicly-owned resources.

However, as we all know, the Mining Law of 1872 continues to govern the disposition of hardrock minerals from Federal lands. While Congress has stepped in and prevented the patenting of lands through annual appropriations riders, patenting provisions allowing the transfer of mineralized Federal lands for $2.50 or $5.00 per acre are still on the books. In addition, to this day under the Mining Law, billions of dollars of hardrock minerals can be mined from Federal lands without payment of a royalty. General land management and environmental laws apply, but there are no specific statutory provisions under the Mining Law setting surface management or environmental standards.

Efforts to comprehensively reform the Mining Law have been ongoing literally for decades, but results have thus far been elusive. Congress came close to enacting comprehensive reform in 1994, and Congress has enacted moratoria on patent issuance and has imposed claim maintenance fees through the appropriations process. The House passed reform legislation last Congress and several of us in the Senate had discussions regarding how we could address this issue.

There is a growing number of people saying that finally this Congress may be the time to achieve this long-awaited reform. Chairman RAHALL, a champion of reform in the House of Representatives, has again introduced mining reform legislation. The bill that I introduce today differs in many significant ways from the House legislation, and builds on discussions in the Senate last Congress. My bill, like other reform proposals, reflects a view that the law needs to be amended to ensure that the public gets a fair return for its resources, that environmental and land use requirements are modernized, and that certainty is provided to the mining industry.

I note that my bill includes a range for both the royalty rate and the reclamation fee which will be set by the Secretary through a rulemaking process. This ensures that the Secretary will have the benefit of comments and information from interested parties and the public in setting the royalty and fee. We must look comprehensively at the subject of royalties and fees to ensure that we continue to maintain a healthy domestic hardrock mining industry with the benefits that the nation derives from that industry, including jobs and strategic minerals. At the same time, we want to ensure that the public gets the fair return on these resources that the American people deserve. I hope to receive additional input on this issue of royalties and fees during consideration of the bill.

Another part of this legislation warrants special attention—that is the provisions relating to abandoned hardrock mine reclamation. While estimates vary, a recent survey of States indicated that there are as many as 500,000 abandoned hardrock mine sites nationwide with most of these in the West. These abandoned mines pose serious public health and safety risks. They also degrade our environment and pose special threats to our most precious resource: water.

As we discuss the size and shape of legislation to reform the 1872 law, there appears to be substantial support for enacting a robust hardrock abandoned mine land program. My legislation would enact a reclamation fee to fund this effort. In 1977, Congress enacted a coal AML program as part of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act to address the serious problem of abandoned coal mines. This program was funded by a fee levied on coal production. We are overdue to enact a similar program to deal with abandoned hardrock mines.

Mr. President, the bill I introduce today reforms the Mining Law of 1872 in important ways. The key provisions of this bill are outlined.

The bill eliminates patenting of Federal lands, but grandfathers patent applications filed and meeting all requirements by September 30, 1994.

The bill makes modest increases in the annual claim maintenance fee, from $125 to $150, and claim location fee, from $30 to $50. The legislation requires the mine operator to pay a fee in exchange for the use of Federal land that is included within the mine permit area. The bill provides that fees collected are to be used for the administration of hardrock mining on Federal lands. Any excess funds are deposited into the Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund.

The bill provides that the production of all locatable minerals is subject to a royalty to be determined by the Secretary by regulation of not less than 2 percent and not more than 5 percent of the value of production, not including reasonable transportation, beneficiation, and processing costs. The royalty may vary based on the particular mineral concerned. No royalty will be collected from lands under permit that are producing in commercial quantities on the date of enactment. Royalty revenues will be deposited into the Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund.

The bill includes a provision for royalty reductions for all or part of a mining operation where the person conducting the mineral activities shows by clear and convincing evidence that without the reduction, production would not occur.

The bill states that permits are required for all mineral activities on Federal land except for “casual use” that ordinarily results in no or negligible disturbance. Mining permits are for a term of 30 years and so long thereafter as production occurs in commercial quantities. The operator must provide evidence of approved financial assurances sufficient to ensure completion of reclamation if performed by the Secretary concerned.

Financial assurances attributable to the cost of water treatment will not be released until the discharge has ceased for at least 5 years or the operator has met all applicable water quality standards for at least 5 years. The operator may be required to establish a trust fund or other long-term funding mechanism to provide financial assurances for long-term treatment of water or other long-term post-mining maintenance or monitoring requirements.

The Secretary of Agriculture must take any action necessary to prevent unnecessary or undue degradation in administering mineral activities on National Forest System land. The bill directs the Secretaries of the Interior and Agriculture to jointly issue regulations.

The bill requires within 3 years a review of certain lands to determine whether they will be available for future mining claim location. The Governor of a state, Chairman of an Indian tribe, or appropriate local official may petition the Secretary to undertake a review of an area.

The bill establishes a program for the reclamation of abandoned hardrock mines in 14 western states. Creates a Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund comprised of hardrock royalties, fees, and donations. Each operator of a hardrock mining operation on Federal, state, tribal or private land, must pay a reclamation fee established by the Secretary of not less than 0.3 percent, and not more than 1.0 percent, of the value of the production of the hardrock minerals for deposit into the Fund. The bill provides grant programs for all states for hardrock reclamation projects and for public entities and nonprofit organizations for collaborative restoration projects to improve fish and wildlife habitat affected by past hardrock mining.

Reform of the Mining Law of 1872 is a matter that has come before the Congress repeatedly and that we simply must address. I ask that my colleagues join me in cosponsoring this important legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a bill summary be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE HARDROCK MINING AND RECLAMATION ACT OF 2009

Eliminates Patenting—Eliminates the practice of patenting Federal land (i.e., transferring title) while grandfathering patent applications filed and meeting all requirements by September 30, 1994.

Claim Maintenance and Location Fees—Increases the current annual claim maintenance fee to $150 (up from $125 under current law) which is paid in lieu of annual assessment work, with an exception for claim holders with 10 or fewer claims. Increases the current claim location fee to $50 per claim (up from $30 under current law). Provides that fees collected are to be used for the administration of hardrock mining on Federal lands. Any excess is deposited into the Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund. Provides for adjustment of the fees to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index.

Royalties—Production of all locatable minerals is subject to a royalty to be determined by the Secretary by regulation of not less than 2 percent and not more than 5 percent of the value of production, not including reasonable transportation, beneficiation, and processing costs. The royalty may vary based on the particular mineral concerned. No royalty will be collected from existing mines that are producing in commercial quantities on the date of enactment. Royalty revenues will be deposited into the Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund. Provides for royalty reductions for all or part of a mining operation where the person conducting the mineral activities shows by clear and convincing evidence that without the reduction, production would not occur. Provides for enforcement for royalty and certain fee collections. Provides for a look-back report on the impacts of royalties and fees.

Permits—Permits are required for all mineral activities on Federal land except for "casual use" that ordinarily results in no or negligible disturbance. Mining permits are for a term of 30 years and so long thereafter as production occurs in commercial quantities.

Land Use Fees—With respect to new mines, requires the operator to pay a land use fee as determined by the Secretary by regulation equal to 4 times the claim maintenance fee imposed for each 20 acres of Federal land that is included within the mine permit area. Upon approval of the mining permit and payment of the fee, the operator may use and occupy the Federal land within the permit area, consistent with the mining permit and all applicable law.

Financial Assurances—The operator must provide evidence of approved financial assurances sufficient to ensure completion of reclamation if performed by the Secretary concerned.

Water Reclamation—Financial assurances attributable to the cost of water treatment will not be released until the discharge has ceased for at least 5 years or the operator has met all applicable water quality standards for at least 5 years. The operator may be required to establish a trust fund or other long-term funding mechanism to provide financial assurances for long-term treatment of water or other long-term post-mining maintenance or monitoring requirements.

Operation and Reclamation—Creates a uniform standard for operation and reclamation on both BLM and Forest Service lands by applying the "unnecessary or undue degradation" standard currently applicable to BLM land to National Forest System land. Directs the Secretaries of the Interior and Agriculture to jointly issue regulations.

Land Open to Location—Amends the Federal Land Policy and Management Act to require within 3 years that local Federal land managers review specified categories of lands for withdrawal from operation of the Mining Law, subject to valid existing rights. The categories to be reviewed are: designated wilderness study areas and National Forest System land identified as suitable for wilderness designation; areas of critical environmental concern; Federal land in which mineral activities pose a reasonable likelihood of substantial adverse impacts on National Conservation System units as defined in the bill; certain areas with potential for inclusion in the Wild and Scenic Rivers System as specified; and areas identified in the set of inventoried roadless area maps contained in the Forest Service Roadless Areas Conservation, Final Environmental Impact Statement, Volume 2, dated November 2000). Based on the review and recommendation of the local Federal land manager, areas can be removed from operation of the Mining Law, subject to valid existing rights. The Governor of a state, head of an Indian tribe, or appropriate local official may petition the Secretary to direct the local Federal land manager to undertake a review of an area to determine whether land should be withdrawn, subject to valid existing rights.

Inspection and Monitoring—Requires the Secretary concerned to conduct inspections at least once each quarter. All operators must develop and maintain a monitoring and evaluation system.

Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund—Provides for the payment of royalties, fees, and donations into a Hardrock Minerals Reclamation Fund to be administered by the Secretary of the Interior through the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement.

Use of the Fund—The Secretary may use amounts in the Fund without further appropriation for the reclamation of land and water (Federal, State, tribal and private) affected by past hardrock mining and related activities in 14 western states when there is no continuing reclamation responsibility of the claim holder or operator, and for hardrock reclamation grant programs nationwide as specified in the bill.

Allocation of the Fund—Provides for allocation of the Fund: to states and tribes based on current hardrock production and on the quantity of hardrock minerals historically produced; to agencies for expenditure on Federal land; for grants to states other than the 14 designated western states for reclamation of abandoned hardrock mine sites; for grants to public entities and nonprofit organizations for collaborative restoration projects to improve fish and wildlife habitat affected by past hardrock mining; and for program administration.

Abandoned Mine Land Fee—Each operator of a hardrock mineral mining operation on Federal, state, tribal or private land, shall pay to the Secretary a reclamation fee established by the Secretary by regulation of not less than 0.3 percent, and not more than 1.0 percent, of the value of the production of the hardrock minerals mining operation for each calendar year for deposit into the Fund.

Transition—If a plan of operations is approved or a notice of operations is filed for mineral activities before the date of enactment, mineral activities will be subject to the approved plan of operations or the notice for 10 years after the date of enactment. All fees apply starting on the date of enactment of this Act, except that the land use fee applies only to mining permits or modifications after the date of enactment. No royalty is required on production from Federal land that is subject to an operations permit on the date of enactment of this Act and that produces valuable locatable minerals in commercial quantities on the date of enactment.

Enforcement—Provides for enforcement, including civil penalty authority for the Secretary.

Uncommon Varieties—Subject to valid existing rights, makes minerals classified as "common varieties with distinct and special value" subject to disposal under the Materials Act of 1947.

Review of Uranium Development on Federal Land—Provides for a National Academy of Sciences review of legal and related requirements applicable to the development of uranium on Federal lands.

By Mr. DORGAN (for himself, Mr. BARRASSO, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. KYL, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. JOHNSON, Ms. CANTWELL, Ms. MURKOWSKI, Mr. THUNE, Mr. TESTER, Mr. BEGICH, and Mr. UDALL of New Mexico):

S. 797. A bill to amend the Indian Law Enforcement Reform Act, the Indian Tribal Justice Act, the Indian Tribal Justice Technical and Legal Assistance Act of 2000, and the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to improve the prosecution of, and response to, crimes in Indian country, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Tribal Law and Order Act of 2009.

Last Congress, as Chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, I chaired eight hearings on the criminal justice system as it relates to American Indian and Alaska Native communities. Those hearings confirmed that a longstanding and life threatening public safety crisis exists on many of our Nation's American Indian reservations.

One of the primary causes for violent crime in Indian Country is the broken system of justice. The current system limits local tribal government authority to combat crime in their own communities, and requires reservation residents to rely on Federal officials to investigate and prosecute violent crimes in district courts that are often hundreds of miles away from the reservation.

The United States created this system. In so doing, our Government accepted the responsibility to police Indian lands, and incurred a legal obligation to provide for the public safety of tribal communities.

Unfortunately, we are not meeting that obligation.

The following is a partial listing of Indian Country criminal justice statistics. These statistics represent more than numbers. They represent the dark reality faced by hundreds of tribal communities on a daily basis.

The violent crime rate in Indian country is nearly twice the national average, and more than 20 times the national average on some reservations.

Thirty-four percent of Native women will be raped in their lifetimes; and 39 percent will be subject to domestic violence.

Fewer than 3,000 tribal and Federal law enforcement officers patrol more than 56,000,000 acres of Indian lands—less than ½ of the law enforcement presence in comparable communities nationwide.

The lack of police presence has resulted in significant delays in responding to victims' calls for assistance, which in turn adversely affects the collection of evidence needed to prosecute domestic violence and sexual assaults.

In addition, Federal officials have seized business documents from organized crime operations citing the lack of police presence and jurisdictional confusion as reasons for targeting Indian reservations for the manufacture and distribution of drugs.

An Interior Department report found that 90 percent of existing Bureau of Indian Affairs and tribal detention facilities must be replaced. The lack of jail bed space has forced tribal courts to release a number of offenders.

Tribal communities rely solely on the U.S. to investigate and prosecute felony-level crimes occurring on the reservation. However, between 2004 and 2007, Federal prosecutors declined 62 percent of Indian country criminal cases, including 72 percent of child and adult sex crimes.

To address this crisis, I am introducing the Tribal Law and Order Act of 2009 with the support of my colleagues Committee Vice Chairman BARRASSO, and Senators BAUCUS, BINGAMAN, BEGICH, CANTWELL, JOHNSON, KYL, LIEBERMAN, MURKOWSKI, TESTER, THUNE, UDALL, and WYDEN.

This bill will take initial steps to mend this broken system by arming tribal justice officials with the needed tools to protect their communities. Importantly, the bill would enable tribal courts to sentence offenders up to 3 years in prison for violations of tribal law, an increase from the current limit of 1 year. It also arms tribal police with better access to national criminal databases, and improves their ability to make arrests for reservation crimes.

In addition, the bill would provide for greater accountability on the part of Federal officials responsible for investigating and prosecuting reservation crimes. To increase coordination of prosecutions, the bill would require U.S. Attorneys to file declination reports and maintain data when refusing to pursue a case. Maintaining consistent data on declinations will enable Congress to direct funding where the additional resources are needed. It would also require greater consultation and coordination between federal law enforcement officials, tribal leaders, and community members.

To address the epidemic of domestic violence, the bill would require Federal health and law enforcement officials to establish consistent sexual assault proocols. It would require officials to testify to aid tribal court prosecutions. The bill would also require Federal officials to receive specialized training to properly interview victims of domestic and sexual violence, and improve evidence collection and preservation, which will help improve the prosecution of domestic violence and sexual assaults in Federal and tribal courts.

Improving the system will ensure that Federal dollars appropriated to fight reservation crime will be used in a more efficient manner. To that end, the bill also reauthorizes and amends several Federal programs designed to supplement tribal justice systems to enable them to better combat crime locally. These programs would provide funding for tribal courts, tribal police, Indian youth programs, and tribal jails construction.

This bill was developed in consultation with tribal, Federal and State law enforcement officials, judges, prosecutors, public defenders, victims, victims' advocates and many others.

I want to again thank the co-sponsors for their support. Many of the co-sponsors sit on the Indian Affairs Committee with me, and have repeatedly heard from Federal and tribal officials about this longstanding problem. The residents of Indian Country deserve our timely consideration of this bill. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the passage of this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

- (1) the United States has distinct legal, treaty, and trust obligations to provide for the public safety of tribal communities;
- (2) several States have been delegated or have accepted responsibility to provide for the public safety of tribal communities within the borders of the States;
- (3) Congress and the President have acknowledged that—

(A) tribal law enforcement officers are often the first responders to crimes on Indian reservations; and

(B) tribal justice systems are ultimately the most appropriate institutions for maintaining law and order in tribal communities;

(4) less than 3,000 tribal and Federal law enforcement officers patrol more than 56,000,000 acres of Indian country, which reflects less than ½ of the law enforcement presence in comparable rural communities nationwide;

(5) on many Indian reservations, law enforcement officers respond to distress or emergency calls without backup and travel to remote locations without adequate radio communication or access to national crime information database systems;

(6) the majority of tribal detention facilities were constructed decades before the date of enactment of this Act and must be or will soon need to be replaced, creating a multibillion-dollar backlog in facility needs;

(7) a number of Indian country offenders face no consequences for minor crimes, and many such offenders are released due to severe overcrowding in existing detention facilities;

(8) tribal courts—

(A) are the primary arbiters of criminal and civil justice for actions arising in Indian country; but

(B) have been historically underfunded;

(9) tribal courts have no criminal jurisdiction over non-Indian persons, and the sentencing authority of tribal courts is limited to sentences of not more than 1 year of imprisonment for Indian offenders, forcing tribal communities to rely solely on the Federal Government and certain State governments for the prosecution of—

(A) misdemeanors committed by non-Indian persons; and

(B) all felony crimes in Indian country;

(10) a significant percentage of cases referred to Federal agencies for prosecution of crimes allegedly occurring in tribal communities are declined to be prosecuted;

(11) the complicated jurisdictional scheme that exists in Indian country—

(A) has a significant negative impact on the ability to provide public safety to Indian communities; and

(B) has been increasingly exploited by criminals;

(12) the violent crime rate in Indian country is—

(A) nearly twice the national average; and
(B) more than 20 times the national average on some Indian reservations;

(13)(A) domestic and sexual violence against Indian and Alaska Native women has reached epidemic proportions;

(B) 34 percent of Indian and Alaska Native women will be raped in their lifetimes; and

(C) 39 percent of Indian and Alaska Native women will be subject to domestic violence;

(14) the lack of police presence and resources in Indian country has resulted in significant delays in responding to victims' calls for assistance, which adversely affects the collection of evidence needed to prosecute crimes, particularly crimes of domestic and sexual violence;

(15) alcohol and drug abuse plays a role in more than 80 percent of crimes committed in tribal communities;

(16) the rate of methamphetamine addiction in tribal communities is 3 times the national average;

(17) the Department of Justice has reported that drug organizations have increasingly targeted Indian country to produce and distribute methamphetamine, citing the limited law enforcement presence and jurisdictional confusion as reasons for the increased activity;

(18) tribal communities face significant increases in instances of domestic violence, burglary, assault, and child abuse as a direct result of increased methamphetamine use on Indian reservations;

(19)(A) criminal jurisdiction in Indian country is complex, and responsibility for Indian country law enforcement is shared among Federal, tribal, and State authorities; and

(B) that complexity requires a high degree of commitment and cooperation from Federal and State officials that can be difficult to establish;

(20) agreements for cooperation among certified tribal and State law enforcement officers have proven to improve law enforcement in tribal communities;

(21) consistent communication among tribal, Federal, and State law enforcement agencies has proven to increase public safety and justice in tribal and nearby communities; and

(22) crime data is a fundamental tool of law enforcement, but for decades the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Department of Justice have not been able to coordinate or consistently report crime and prosecution rates in tribal communities.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to clarify the responsibilities of Federal, State, tribal, and local governments with respect to crimes committed in tribal communities;

(2) to increase coordination and communication among Federal, State, tribal, and local law enforcement agencies;

(3) to empower tribal governments with the authority, resources, and information necessary to safely and effectively provide for the safety of the public in tribal communities;

(4) to reduce the prevalence of violent crime in tribal communities and to combat violence against Indian and Alaska Native women;

(5) to address and prevent drug trafficking and reduce rates of alcohol and drug addiction in Indian country; and

(6) to increase and standardize the collection of criminal data and the sharing of criminal history information among Federal, State, and tribal officials responsible for responding to and investigating crimes in tribal communities.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I rise to join my colleague, Mr. DORGAN, in introducing the Tribal Law and Order Act of 2009. This bill represents a bipartisan effort and crucial step in addressing a serious public safety crisis in many Indian communities throughout our Nation.

During the 110th Congress, the Committee on Indian Affairs held no less than seven hearings on the issue of law and order on Indian reservations. The committee found recurring themes of insufficient resources for law enforcement agencies, inadequate responses to criminal activity, and ineffective communication and coordination.

Criminal elements are well aware of the conditions of near lawlessness in some reservation areas. With great regret, I point to the Wind River Indian Reservation of the Eastern Shoshone and Northern Arapaho peoples in my home state of Wyoming as an example. The Wind River Indian Reservation consists of approximately 2.2 million acres and has a tribal population of over 11,000.

During fiscal year 2008, the Wind River Indian Reservation had a violent crime rate that was 3.58 times the national crime rate, according to the crime reports published by the Bureau of Indian Affairs within the Department of the Interior. Between 2007 and 2008, the crime rate on the Wind River Indian Reservation escalated from 677 to 748 incidents per 100,000 inhabitants.

Yet despite these troubling statistics, the Wind River Indian Reservation has only 9 law enforcement officers to cover all shifts. According to the Bureau of Indian Affairs' fiscal year 2008 crime report, an additional 22 police officers would be necessary to meet the minimum safety needs of this community. This situation would never be tolerated in other communities. We must address the needs for public safety, law enforcement and justice on Indian reservations head on.

Senator DORGAN and I have worked together to ensure that this bill will assist in increasing the number of police officers on the ground. Through this bill we are sending a strong message that Indian reservations will not be a haven for criminal activity, drug trafficking, gangs, or abuse.

We have set important goals for this legislation. To achieve them, we are proposing some significant changes to the status quo. As we move forward, I intend to solicit more input from stakeholders. The bill will inevitably require some modifications, and I look forward to that process. I consider the introduced legislation to be the beginning of a dialogue that will hopefully lead to refinement and improvement.

By Mr. DURBIN (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. REED, Mr. SANDERS, Ms. STABENOW, and Mr. WHITEHOUSE):

S. 799. A bill to designate as wilderness certain Federal portions of the red rock canyons of the Colorado Plateau and the Great Basin Deserts in the State of Utah for the benefit of present and future generations of people in the United States; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce America's Red Rock Wilderness Act of 2009. This legislation continues our commitment to preserve natural resources in this country.

America's Red Rock Wilderness Act will designate as wilderness some of our nation's most remarkable, but currently unprotected public lands. Bureau of Land Management, BLM, lands in Utah harbor some of the largest and most remarkable roadless desert areas anywhere in the world. Included in the 9.4 million acres I seek to protect are well known landscapes, such as the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument, and lesser known areas just outside Zion National Park, Canyonlands National Park, and Arches National Park. Together this wild landscape offers spectacular vistas of rare rock formations, canyons and desert lands, important archaeological sites, and habitat for rare plant and animal species.

I have visited many of the areas this act would designate as wilderness. I can tell you that the natural beauty of these landscapes is a compelling reason for Congress to grant these lands wilderness protection. I have the honor of introducing legislation on the 20th anniversary of the year it was first introduced by my friend and former colleague in the House of Representatives, Wayne Owens. As a member of the Utah delegation, Congressman Owens pioneered the Congressional effort to protect Utah's red rock wilderness. He did this with broad public support, which still exists not only in Utah, but in all corners of Nation.

The wilderness designated in this bill was chosen based on more than 20 years of meticulous research and surveying. Volunteers have taken inventories of thousands of square miles of BLM land in Utah to help determine which lands should be protected. These volunteers provided extensive documentation to ensure that these areas meet Federal wilderness criteria. The BLM also completed an inventory of approximately 7.5 million acres of the land that would be protected by America's Red Rock Wilderness Act and agreed that the vast majority qualify for wilderness designation.

For more than 20 years, Utah conservationists have been working to add the last great blocks of undeveloped BLM-administered land in Utah to the National Wilderness Preservation System. Together, we celebrate the recent passage of a national public lands bill that protects over 180,000 acres of wilderness in Washington County, UT, for future generations. The more than 9 million acres of lands that would be protected by this legislation surround eleven of Utah's national park, monument and recreation areas. These proposed BLM wilderness areas easily equal their neighboring national parklands in scenic beauty, opportunities for recreation, and ecological importance. Yet, unlike the parks, most of these scenic treasures lack any form of long-term protection from commercial development, damaging off-road vehicle use, or oil and gas exploration.

Americans understand the need for wise stewardship of these wild landscapes. This legislation represents a realistic balance between the need to protect our natural heritage and demand for energy. While wilderness designation has been portrayed as a barrier to energy independence, it is important to note that within the entire 9.4 million acres of America's Red Rock Wilderness Act the amount of "technically recoverable" undiscovered natural gas and oil resources amounts to less than four days of oil and four weeks of natural gas at current consumption levels. In fact, protecting these lands benefits local economies because of the recreational opportunities they provide.

Unfortunately, scientists have already begun to see the impacts of global warming on public lands throughout the West. Hotter and drier conditions, larger wildfires, shrinking water resources, the spread of invasive species, soil erosion, and dust storms are all expected to increase over the next century. These threats make the need to protect the remaining undisturbed landscapes and wildlife habitats in Utah's red rock wilderness even more urgent.

America's Red Rock Wilderness Act is a lasting gift to the American public. By protecting this serene yet wild land we are giving future generations the opportunity to enjoy the same untrammeled landscape that so many now cherish.

I would like to thank my colleagues who are original cosponsors of this measure. Origin cosponsors are Senators Boxer, Cantwell, Cardin, Feingold, Harkin, Kennedy, Kerry, Lautenberg, Leahy, Lieberman, Menendez, Reed, Sanders, Stabenow, and Whitehouse. Additionally, I would like to thank the Utah Wilderness Coalition, which includes The Wilderness Society, the Sierra Club, the Natural Resources Defense Council, Earthjustice, and the Wasatch Mountain Club; the Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance; and all of the other national, regional and local, hard-working groups who, for years, have championed this legislation.

Theodore Roosevelt once stated:

The Nation behaves well if it treats the natural resources as assets which it must turn over to the next generation increased and not impaired in value.

Enactment of this legislation will help us realize Roosevelt's vision. To protect these precious resources in Utah for future generations, I urge my colleagues to support America's Red Rock Wilderness Act.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am very pleased to again join with the Senior Senator from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, as an original cosponsor of legislation to designate areas of pristine Federal lands in Utah as wilderness.

I support this legislation, for a few reasons, but most of all because I have personally seen what is at stake, and I know the marvelous resources that Wisconsinites and all Americans own in the Bureau of Land Management, BLM, lands of Southern Utah.

I had an opportunity to travel twice to Utah and view firsthand some of the lands that would be designated for wilderness under Senator DURBIN's bill. I was able to view most of the proposed wilderness areas from the air, and was able to enhance my understanding through hikes outside of the Zion National Park on the Dry Creek Bench wilderness unit contained in this proposal and inside the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument to Upper Calf Creek Falls. I also viewed the lands proposed for designation in this bill from a river trip down the Colorado River, and in the San Rafael Swell with members of the Emery County government.

Second, I support this legislation because I believe it sets the appropriate benchmark for the lands that should be protected in Southern Utah. I believe that when the Senate considers wilderness legislation it ought to know, as a benchmark, the full measure of those lands which are deserving of wilderness protection. This bill encompasses all the BLM lands of wilderness quality in Utah.

Unfortunately, the Senate has not always had the benefit of considering wilderness designations for all of the deserving lands in Southern Utah. Last Congress, a provision was air-dropped into a bill considered by the Senate—without having been considered by the House or the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee—that designated less than 45 percent of the wilderness quality lands included in the America's Red Rock Wilderness Act for Washington County, Utah. Furthermore, the public lands package omitted a wilderness unit, Dry Creek, that Senator BENNETT has previously agreed to protect in his Washington County Growth and Conservation Act of 2008, S. 2834. During the 104th Congress, I joined with the former Senator from New Jersey, Mr. Bradley, in opposing omnibus parks legislation that contained provisions, which were eventually removed, that many in my home State of Wisconsin believed not only designated as wilderness too little of the Bureau of Land Management's holding in Utah deserving of such protection, but also substantively changed the protections afforded designated lands under the Wilderness Act of 1964.

The lands of Southern Utah are very special to the people of Wisconsin. In writing to me over the last few years, my constituents have described these lands as places of solitude, special family moments, and incredible beauty. In December 1997, Ron Rauniker of the Capital Times, a paper in Madison, WI, wrote: "Other remaining wilderness in the U.S. is at first daunting, but then endearing and always a treasure for all Americans. The sensually sculpted slickrock of the Colorado Plateau and windswept crag lines of the Great Basin include some of the last of our country's wilderness, which is not fully protected. We must ask our elected officials to redress this circumstance, by enacting legislation which would protect those national lands within the boundaries of Utah. This wilderness is a treasure we can lose only once or a legacy we can be forever proud to bestow to our children."

I believe that the measure being introduced today will accomplish that goal. The measure protects wild lands that really are not done justice by any description. In my trip I found widely varied and distinct terrain, remarkable American resources of red rock cliff walls, desert, canyons and gorges which encompass the canyon country of the Colorado Plateau, the Mojave Desert and portions of the Great Basin. The lands also include mountain ranges in western Utah, and stark areas like the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument. These regions appeal to all types of American outdoor interests from hiking and sightseeing to hunting.

Wisconsinites are watching this test case closely. I believe that Wisconsinites view the outcome of this fight to save Utah's lands as a sign of where the nation is headed with respect to its stewardship of natural resources. Legislation to protect existing wilderness ensures that future generations may have an experience on public lands equal to that which is available today. The action of Congress to preserve wild lands by extending the protections of the Wilderness Act of 1964 will publicly codify that expectation and promise.

Finally, this legislation has earned my support, and deserves the support of others in this body, because all of the acres that will be protected under this bill are already public lands held in trust by the Federal Government for the people of the U.S. Thus, while they are physically located in Utah, their preservation is important to the citizens of Wisconsin as it is for other Americans. I am eager to work with my colleague from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, to protect these lands. I commend him for introducing this measure.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself and Mr. CASEY):

S. 800. A bill to require the President to update and modify the website recovery.gov; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation to enhance the availability of information to the public concerning the programs funded pursuant to the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 enacted in February. I am pleased to be joined by Senator Casey in introducing this bill.

In a recent meeting that I had with constituents from the Maine Municipal Association, several questions arose regarding application deadlines and when funding will be distributed under the act. Additionally, because there is no centralized location listing the opportunities available, some Mayors and First Selectmen had little idea of all the programs for which they may be eligible. Indeed, the officials spoke of finding out about various programs either through meetings or colleagues, and they noted that a regularly updated online database of catalogued programs would be extremely useful.

This modest bill would require that the administration's recovery.gov website be expanded so that States and localities can easily ascertain stimulus funds for which they may be eligible. Cities and towns could benefit greatly if they could use Recovery.gov to quickly learn about funding for which they may be eligible, application deadlines, and who to contact for more information. An enhanced website or "clearinghouse" would facilitate the timely distribution of economic stimulus funds and ensure that they will be used as quickly and efficiently as possible to help restore economic growth throughout the country.

I urge prompt consideration of this bill.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself, Mr. BARR, Mr. TESTER, Mr. BURRIS, and Mr. ROCKEFELLER):

S. 801. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to waive charges for humanitarian care provided by the Department of Veterans Affairs to family members accompanying veterans severely injured after September 11, 2001, as they receive medical care from the Department and to provide assistance to family caregivers, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to create a program within the Department of Veterans Affairs for family caregivers. I am pleased to be joined by my colleagues Senator BURR, the Ranking Member of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, Senator TESTER, Senator BURNS, and Senator ROCKEFELLER, former Chairman of the Committee.

Some veterans returning from the recent wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as previous conflicts, suffer from disabilities that prevent them from being fully independent. This is a sad fact of war. The legislation I am introducing today is designed to provide for several improvements in health care for veterans by supporting the family members who care for them.

The challenges faced by family caregivers are well known to us. We have been working on this issue for nearly two years. Provisions that then-Senator Clinton included in a health care omnibus bill reported by the Committee last Congress would have provided for pilot programs to serve caregivers. We have since learned much more about the role family members play in caring for injured veterans, and the needs of family caregivers. I think we are now beyond the scope of that original pilot program and I believe that a full-fledged permanent program is needed in VA.

First, it is well known that the involvement of family members in the provision of health care dramatically improves speed and success of recovery. This bill will give family members the resources needed to be involved in the care for their loved one. Second, many disabled veterans are not able to complete some tasks of daily living on their own, but do not require care in an institution. Allowing a veteran to remain in the home, while having family members meet the veteran's needs, will vastly improve quality of life for the veteran.

Caregivers, who are members of a veteran's family, often put their lives on hold in order to provide care for the injured or disabled veteran at home. In some instances, these caregivers are unable to maintain regular jobs because of the time consumed in providing sufficient care to the veteran. This has the compound effect of decreasing household income, and possibly preventing the caregiver from keeping health insurance. This legislation would help alleviate these problems so as to allow the caregiver to focus entirely on caring for the veteran.

This bill includes provisions for training and certifying family caregivers or personal care attendants. It would provide for mental health counseling, health care eligibility, a living stipend, and other critical services to support these caregivers. Additionally, this bill would make improvements to the services VA provides to family members who must travel to take the veteran to a VA facility to receive treatment.

I look forward to working with all of our colleagues to pass this much needed legislation. I especially thank Senators BURR and ROCKEFELLER for co-sponsoring this bill. I would also like to thank the dedicated members of the Wounded Warrior Project and Paralyzed Veterans of America for their tireless efforts in support of this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

“(f) ONGOING FAMILY CAREGIVER ASSISTANCE.—(1) Except as provided in subsection (a)(2) and subject to the provisions of this subsection, the Secretary shall provide ongoing family caregiver assistance to family members of eligible veterans (or other individuals designated by such veterans) as follows:

“(iv) Medical care under section 1781 of this title.

“(v) A monthly personal caregiver stipend.

“(2)(A) The Secretary shall provide respite care under paragraph (1)(B)(iii), at the election of the Secretary—

“(i) through facilities of the Department that are appropriate for the veteran; or “(ii) through contracts under section 1720B(c) of this title.

“(B) If the primary personal care attendant of an eligible veteran designated under subsection (e)(1) determines in consultation with the veteran or the veteran's surrogate appointed under subsection (g), and the Secretary concurs, that the needs of the veteran cannot be accommodated through the facilities and contracts described in subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall, in consultation with the primary personal care attendant and the veteran (or the veteran's surrogate), provide respite care through other facilities or arrangements that are medically and age appropriate.

“(3)(A) The Secretary shall provide monthly personal caregiver stipends under paragraph (1)(B)(v) in accordance with a schedule established by the Secretary that specifies stipends provided based upon the amount and degree of personal care services provided.

“(B) The Secretary shall ensure, to the extent practicable, that the schedule required by subparagraph (A) specifies that the amount of the personal caregiver stipend provided to a primary personal care attendant designated under subsection (e)(1) for the provision of personal care services to an eligible veteran is not less than the amount the Secretary would pay a commercial home health care entity in the geographic area of the veteran to provide equivalent personal care services to the veteran.

“(C) If personal care services are not available from a commercial provider in the geographic area of an eligible veteran, the Secretary may establish the schedule required by subparagraph (A) with respect to the veteran by considering the costs of commercial providers of personal care services in geographic areas other than the geographic area of the veteran with similar costs of living.

“(4) Provision of ongoing family caregiver assistance under this subsection for provision of personal care services to an eligible veteran shall terminate if the eligible veteran no longer requires the personal care services.

“(h) OVERSIGHT.—(1) The Secretary shall enter into contracts with appropriate entities to provide oversight of the provision of personal care services by primary personal care attendants designated under subsection (e)(1) under this section.

“(2) The Secretary shall ensure that each eligible veteran receiving personal care services under this section from a primary personal care attendant designated under subsection (e)(1) is visited in the veteran's home by an entity providing oversight under paragraph (1) at such frequency as the Secretary shall determine under paragraph (3) to determine if the care received by the veteran under this section meets the needs of the veteran.

“(3)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall determine the manner of oversight provided under paragraph (1) and the frequency of visits under paragraph (2) for an eligible veteran as the Secretary considers commensurate with the needs of such eligible veteran.

“(B) The frequency of visits under paragraph (2) for an eligible veteran shall be not less frequent than once every six months.

“(4)(A) An entity visiting an eligible veteran under paragraph (2) shall submit to the Secretary the findings of the entity with respect to each visit, including whether the eligible veteran is receiving the care the eligible veteran requires.

“(B) If an entity finds under subparagraph (A) that an eligible veteran is not receiving the care the eligible veteran requires, the entity shall submit to the Secretary a recommendation on the corrective actions that should be taken to ensure that the eligible veterans receives the care the eligible veteran requires, including, if the entity considers appropriate, a recommendation for revocation of a caregiver's certification under subsection (d)(3) or revocation of the designation of an individual under subsection (e)(1).

“(5) After receiving findings and recommendations, if any, under paragraph (4) with respect to an eligible veteran, the Secretary may take such actions as the Secretary considers appropriate to ensure that the eligible veteran receives the care the eligible veteran requires, including the following:

“(A) Revocation of a caregiver's certification under subsection (d)(3).

“(B) Revocation of the designation of an individual under subsection (e)(1).

“(6) If the Secretary terminates the provision of ongoing family caregiver assistance under subsection (f) to a family member of an eligible veteran (or other individual designated by the veteran) because of findings of an entity submitted to the Secretary under paragraph (4) of this subsection, the Secretary may not provide compensation to such entity for the provision of personal care services to such veteran, unless the Secretary determines it would be in the best interest of the eligible veteran to provide compensation to such entity to provide such services.

“(i) OUTREACH.—The Secretary shall carry out a program of outreach to inform eligible veterans and their family members of the availability and nature of family caregiver assistance.

“(j) CONSTRUCTION.—A decision by the Secretary under this section affecting the furnishing of family caregiver assistance shall be considered a medical determination.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 804. A bill to amend subpart 2 of part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to establish incentives for States to extend the minimum length of the school year to 200 full days by 2014, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the School Day Factor Act of 2009.

This bill would encourage States to provide students with the time they need to master knowledge and skills they will need to succeed in the 21st century, and to provide teachers with sufficient time to deliver effective instruction.

Twenty-first century learners, and their teachers, are faced with educational demands that simply did not exist decades ago. Right now, our economy is struggling. But we have a plan to get it back on track by investing aggressively in scientific R&D, and the deployment of new technologies. If we are to maintain and increase our Nation’s competitiveness in the global economy for decades to come, we must allow every child the opportunity for a quality 21st century education. Today’s students need to master mathematics, science, and technology, language arts and social studies, and they must also have opportunities to study foreign languages, the arts, and physical education. No one of these subject areas should be sacrificed at the expense of another. But that is the choices that teachers and students are faced with in schools across the United States. Teachers are being asked to cover more material than before, without being given more time. Students are expected to master more material than students of decades ago, without being given more time. Meanwhile, researchers have demonstrated that reducing instructional time hinders learning. As summarized by the National Research Council, in its report on How People Learn, “. . . significant learning takes major investments of time.”

How can a quality, well rounded education be achieved when the average school year in this country includes only 180 days—less than half the number of days in a calendar year? Children today are spending only 20 percent to 30 percent of their waking hours in school, even if they have a record of perfect attendance. According to the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, by the time American students finish high school, they will have spent more time watching television than in the classroom.

In 1991, Congress established the National Education Commission on Time and Learning, an independent advisory group charged with studying the relationship between instructional time and student learning in American schools. Members of the commission visited schools in the U.S. and abroad, and interviewed teachers, administrators, parents, and students. The Commission concluded that students and teachers in American schools are “prisoners of time,” captives of an agrarian-based school calendar that robs them of the opportunity for a quality education. To quote from their report, “we have been asking the impossible of our students—that they learn as much as their foreign peers while spending only half as much time in core academic subjects.” I add that this means we have also been asking the impossible of our teachers—to deliver effective instruction, without sufficient time. Clearly, our school calendars have not moved forward along with our societal and technological advances.

The Commission’s 1994 report was not the first to recommend lengthening the school year. In 1983, the Nation at Risk report recommended increasing the school day to 7 hours per day, and the school year to 200 to 220 days per year, as a means to strengthen our nation’s grip on global competitiveness. Well, it has been 25 years since that report, and I believe the time has come to give students and teachers the time they need for a quality education.

The School Day Factor Act will support efforts to expand the school year, by coordinating school funding with the length of the school year, and by encouraging schools to add five days to their calendar each year, for the next 4 years. This bill introduces a variable, the “School Day Factor,” that will reflect the number of mandatory full days included in a state’s school year, and it may be adjusted to reflect any increases in instructional hours per day. This variable will be added to existing Title I allocation formulas that determine education grants to States.

The existing funding allocation formulas would be essentially unchanged for States whose school calendars meet a base level number of days per school year. By raising the base level school year length by 5 school days per year, over a 4 year period, the average school year calendar would reach the target of 200 school days per year by 2014. Inclusion of the School Day Factor will result in higher grants to states with school years that exceed the base level number of school days per year, and smaller grants to states with school years that fall below the base level.

I believe that schools are not only ready for this change, but that they are setting the pace for this movement. Some States and school districts have already taken the initiative to expand their school year by 20 days per year. In my own State of New Mexico, a State initiated pilot program to extend kindergarten by 20 to 25 days per year led to such positive outcomes that the program was recently extended to third grade. Requests to participate have increased, as more school districts understand the benefits afforded by expanding students' and teachers' educational time. The School Day Factor Act is an investment that will support the efforts to dramatically increase this participation rate such that the 200 day school year is the norm, not an expanded calendar.

Clearly, more time alone is not sufficient to insure quality learning. By including the School Day Factor Act in the reauthorization of ESEA, it will be paired with actions designed to enhance and support quality instruction delivered by highly qualified teachers. I hope that this legislation will be included in the reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, as amended, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 804

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "School Day Factor Act of 2009".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to the National Center for Education Statistics the length of the average school year steadily increased from 144 to 178 days between 1869 and 1949. In 2008, the average number of school days per year remains at 178.5.

(2) In 1983, a recommendation in the Nation at Risk report was to increase students' instructional time by lengthening the school day or the school year, as a means to strengthen our Nation's grip on global competitiveness. Since then, no systematic school day or school year increase has occurred.

(3) In 2008, 42 States mandate a school year of 180 or fewer days per year, or the equivalent thereof. Across States, the number of school days per year ranges from 173 to 182.

(4) Researchers have demonstrated that—
(A) when class material is covered in a streamlined, shortened unit, students' conceptual mastery of the content suffers; and
(B) significant learning requires investment of time.

(5) Research has demonstrated that all students are at risk for losing educational gains during extended summer breaks in the typical school calendar, particularly children from low income households. The continued lack of out-of-school learning opportunities contributes to a growing achievement gap. Even more so than achievement gaps present at kindergarten, differences in out-of-school learning opportunities experienced by economically disadvantaged versus advantaged youth contribute to the cumulative achievement difference registered by 9th grade, which affects high school placements, high school exit, and postsecondary school attendance.

(6) Since 1991, over 300 expanded learning initiatives have occurred, across 30 States, aimed primarily at schools with high-poverty and high-minority student populations. Outcomes of these initiatives include enhanced student achievement, lower student and teacher absenteeism, and satisfaction of parents, teachers, and students.

(7) Research demonstrates that the increased school time is beneficial not only for students, but also for teachers. Teachers gain planning time, more opportunities for cooperative planning, professional development opportunities, and additional time to individualize instruction. Teacher employment increases from part-year to up to full year, depending on the calendar conversion adopted.

(8) Regarding the costs of expanded learning initiatives, the cost per hour of instruction decreases with the addition of more learning time.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are to ensure that all children have sufficient time to achieve in school, that all children have access to a high quality and well-rounded education, and that teachers have sufficient time to deliver quality instruction. Such purposes can be achieved by—

(1) encouraging States to expand the minimum number of days in their school year, to 200 full days, by 2014, without reducing the length of the school day;

(2) modifying the allocations under subpart 2 of part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6331 et seq.) regarding basic, concentration, targeted, and education finance incentive grants, so that each of the formulas used to determine allocations includes a factor that reflects all of the following:

(A) the minimum number of school days in the State-mandated school year length;

(B) the most recent increase in the number of school days in the State-mandated academic year; and

(C) whether the number of school days in an academic year meets, exceeds, or falls short of the base level school year length described in the amendment made by this Act; and

(3) encouraging States to increase the length of the school day.

SEC. 4. SCHOOL DAY FACTOR.

(a) AMENDMENT.—Subpart 2 of part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6331 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“Sec. 1128. School day factor.”

By Mr. VOINOVICH (for himself and Mr. AKAKA):

S. 806. A bill to provide for the establishment, administration, and funding of Federal Executive Boards, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I rise today with Senator AKAKA to introduce the Federal Executive Board Authorization Act of 2009 in order to provide for the establishment, administration and funding of Federal Executive Boards, FEBs.

As you may know, President Kennedy issued a “Memorandum on the Need for Greater Coordination of Regional and Field Activities of the Government” in 1961 that noted that more than 90 percent of Federal employees work outside of Washington, DC. President Kennedy wanted to strengthen the coordination of their activities, so he directed “the establishment of a Board of Federal Executives” to “consider management matters and interdepartmental cooperation and establish liaison with State and local government officials in their regions.” That Memorandum led to the creation of ten FEBs to “increase the effectiveness and economy of Federal agencies.”

These FEBs proved their worth, because the number of FEBs across the Nation has increased to 28 FEBs total in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas-Fort Worth, Denver, Detroit, Honolulu, Houston, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Minnesota, Newark, New Mexico, New Orleans, New York City, Oklahoma, Oregon, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Antonio, San Francisco, Seattle, and South Florida. Those FEBs serve an important role in coordinating Federal activities. For example, earlier this year a proactive FEB executive director sent an e-mail to her FEB colleagues in an effort to coordinate stimulus spending.

However, a 2007 Government Accountability Office, GAO, report, “Additional Steps Needed to Take Advantage of Federal Executive Boards’ Ability to Contribute to Emergency Operations,” noted that FEBs have no congressional charter and rely on voluntary contributions from their member agencies for funding. Because such voluntary contributions result in financial uncertainty on the part of FEBs, GAO recommended that the Office of Personnel Management, OPM, develop a proposal to address the uncertainty of funding sources for FEBs. Based on that recommendation, the Federal Executive Board Authorization Act of 2009 provides for the establishment, administration and funding of FEBs.

The legislation is based in large part on Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, where OPM has set forth regulations relating to the authority, location, and membership of FEBs. Similar to those provisions, this bill calls on the Director of OPM to determine where to establish FEBs and requires the Director to consult with agencies in making that determination. The bill also provides that FEBs shall consist of senior officials from appropriate agencies in those areas. Also similar to provisions in the Code of Federal Regulations, the bill authorizes the Director of OPM to establish staffing policies for FEBs, designate an agency to staff each FEB, establish communications policies, performance standards and accountability initiatives for FEBs, and administer FEB funding.

The Federal Executive Board Authorization Act of 2009 also requires each FEB to adopt bylaws or other rules for its internal governance, elect a chairman from among its members, provide a forum for the exchange of information, and develop coordinated approaches to the development and operation of programs that have common characteristics. Under the bill, FEBs would be required to communicate management initiatives and other concerns from Washington, DC to the field and develop relationships with State and local governments and private sector organizations to help coordinate emergency management and homeland security matters.

To address GAO’s concern about the uncertainty of FEB funding, the legislation establishes a fund for FEB operations which would be administered by OPM. The fund would consist of contributions from OPM for administrative and oversight activities as well as contributions from each agency participating in FEBs for staffing and operations. Each agency’s contribution would be determined by a formula established by the Director of OPM in consultation with agencies and the Office of Management and Budget, and that formula must take into account each agency’s number of employees in areas served by FEBs.

President Kennedy showed great foresight when he called for the coordination of Federal agencies’ activities in 1961, and FEBs have done a good job since then in coordinating their work. These FEBs need a congressional charter and a set source of funding, so I hope the Senate will act quickly to pass this legislation, which OPM and GAO were consulted in drafting.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

“1106. Federal Executive Boards.”

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my good friend Senator VOINOVICH as we introduce the Federal Executive Board Authorization Act of 2009 to formalize Federal Executive Boards, FEBs, in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government.

President Kennedy issued a Directive in 1961 creating FEBs to allow the heads of Federal agencies outside of Washington, DC to come together to address local issues in their Federal communities. There are now 28 Boards in 20 States, including Hawaii. Because they have never been authorized in legislation, FEBs have no institutionalized structure; each has its own operating structure. Some have an executive director, while some have no permanent staff at all. They also do not receive specific appropriations. As a result, FEBs must cobble together voluntary funding from participating agencies.

The Office of Personnel Management oversees the mission and activities of FEBs. Part of FEBs' mission is to offer agencies outside of Washington, DC an opportunity to share information, collaborate to address shared concerns, discuss management and administrative challenges, and come together as a Federal community. Each Board sets its own specific priorities and activities based on local concerns and the leadership in a given area.

Additionally, FEBs' mission is to play a critical support role in coordinating emergency preparedness and response efforts for a given area. The Honolulu-Pacific Federal Executive Board regularly hosts and participates in preparedness exercises in Hawaii and the Pacific Rim. When the Interstate 35 West Bridge collapsed over the Mississippi River in Minneapolis, Minnesota on August 1, 2007, the Executive Director of the Minnesota FEB helped disseminate critical information to over 100 Federal agencies and coordinate with the State and local emergency response network. FEBs have shared information with each other to assist in preparing for large events as well. For example, the Boston FEB used their experience with the Democratic National Convention in 2004 to help the Denver and Minnesota FEBs prepare for the National Party Conventions in 2008.

At a hearing of the Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, the Federal Workforce, and the District of Columbia on September 28, 2007, which I chaired, it was clear that FEBs lack of formal structure hinders their critical support role in emergency preparedness and response. At that hearing, the Government Accountability Office, GAO, testified that FEBs have no clear role in national emergency planning, no framework to operate, no accountability in performing their duties, and no funding to carry out their missions. Additionally, FEB Executive Directors from around the country testified about the frustrations of operating without stable funding or a clear structure.

Since the hearing, FEBs have been included in FEMA's National Response Framework, and OPM and FEMA have signed a memorandum of understanding, MOU, giving FEBs a formal role in emergency preparedness and response. The Federal Executive Board Authorization Act of 2009 would implement other recommendations made by GAO and the representatives from FEBs at the 2007 hearing. More specifically, the bill would formalize the role of Federal Executive Boards, which would include interagency collaboration and Federal agency emergency preparedness and response outside of Washington, DC; establish a process for establishing new FEBs; require OPM to establish performance standards for FEBs; specify a funding formula, which OPM will administer, for FEBs based on the number of employees in a Federal agency in a given area; and authorize staffing levels for each FEB to have at least an Executive Director and one support staff member.

Eighty-five percent of the Federal workforce is employed outside of the Washington, DC area. We spend billions of dollars preparing the National Capital Region for emergencies, but we must focus more on Federal Government agency emergency preparedness and response outside of the Washington area. This legislation will address that pressing need. I urge my colleagues to support this important bill.

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. BOND, Mr. AKAKA, Mrs. BOXER, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. KERRY, Ms. KLOBUCHAR, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. SCHUMER, and Mr. WHITEHOUSE):

S. 808. A bill to amend the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act to reauthorize the Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise to introduce, along with Senators BOND, AKAKA, BOXER, COLLINS, DURBIN, KERRY, KLOBUCHAR, LANDRIEU, LAUTENBERG, LIEBERMAN, SCHUMER, and WHITEHOUSE, the Homeless Emergency Assistance and Rapid Transition to Housing Act, HEARTH Act. Representative GWEN MOORE is introducing a bipartisan companion bill today as well. This legislation would reauthorize and amend the housing titles of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act of 1987. Specifically, our bill would consolidate and improve the homeless assistance programs at the Department of Housing and Urban Development to better accomplish the goals of preventing and ending homelessness.

According to the Homelessness Research Institute at the National Alliance to End Homelessness, 2.5 to 3.5 million Americans experience homelessness each year. On any one night, approximately 672,000 men, women, and children are without homes. While strides have been made to reduce homelessness over the last couple of years, the current economic decline has halted such progress. We have already seen tent cities forming, shelters turning away people, and cities reporting increased numbers of homeless people. As unemployment continues to rise, more and more people cannot afford to pay their mortgages or rent, and nonprofits and local governments are unable to keep up.

As a result of the recession, 1.5 million additional Americans are likely to experience homelessness over the next two years according to estimates by the National Alliance to End Homelessness. This means more trauma for children and adults, more dislocation from schools and communities, and more of a drain on local community services.

Sadly, many of those who are homeless have served our country in uniform. Their numbers range between 150,000 and 200,000 on any given night. Three times that many veterans are housed, but are struggling with excessive rent burdens and an increased risk of homelessness. Different sources estimate that between 23 and 40 percent of homeless adults are veterans.

Statistics regarding the number of children who experience homelessness are especially troubling. Each year, it is estimated that at least 1.35 million children experience homelessness. According to HUD's 3rd Annual Homeless Assessment Report to Congress, on any given night, 248,500 persons in families are homeless. Each year, over 800,000 homeless children and youth are identified and enrolled in public schools. However, this count does not include preschool children, and at least half of all homeless children are under the age of five. Whatever their age, we know that children who are homeless are in poorer health, have developmental delays, and suffer academically.

In addition, many of those who are homeless have a disability. According to the Homelessness Research Institute, about 23 percent of homeless people were found to be "chronically homeless," which according to the current HUD definition means that they are homeless for long periods of time or homeless repeatedly, and they have a disability. For many of these individuals and families, housing alone, without some supportive services, may not be enough.

Finally, as rents have soared and affordable housing units have disappeared from the market during the past several years, even more working Americans have been left unable to afford housing. According to the National Low Income Housing Coalition's most recent "Out of Reach" report, nowhere in the country can a minimum wage earner afford to rent a one-bedroom home. Low income renters who live paycheck to paycheck are in precarious circumstances and sometimes must make tough choices between paying rent and buying food, prescription drugs, or other necessities. If one unforeseen event occurs in their lives, they can end up homeless.

There is also a great societal cost to homelessness, including expenses for emergency rooms, jails, shelters, foster care, detoxification, and emergency mental health treatment. Indeed, studies have shown it costs just as much, if not more in overall expenditures, to allow men, women, and children to remain homeless as it does to provide them with assistance and get them back on the road to self-sufficiency.

It has been 22 years since the enactment of the Steward B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act, and we have learned a lot about the problem of homelessness since then. At the time of its adoption in 1987, this law was viewed as an emergency response to a national crisis, and was to be followed by measures to prevent homelessness and to create more systemic solutions to the problem. It is now time to take what we have learned during the past 22 years, and put those best practices and proposals into action.

First and foremost, the HEARTH Act focuses federal funding on prevention. It allows up to 20 percent of funds to be used to serve people who are at risk of homelessness under a new "Emergency Solutions Grants" program. At the same time, it expands the definition of homelessness, which determines eligibility for much of the homeless assistance funding, to include people who will lose their housing in 14 days; any family or individual fleeing or attempting to flee domestic violence, or other dangerous or life threatening situations; and families with children and unaccompanied youth who have experienced a long term period without living independently, have experienced persistent housing instability, and can be expected to continue in such status for an extended period due to a number of enumerated factors, such as a disability. It also allows grantees to use up to an additional 10 percent of competitive funds to serve families defined as homeless under the Education Department homeless definition, but not so defined under the HUD definition. For areas with low levels of homelessness, up to 100 percent of funds may be used for such purposes.

The HEARTH Act also provides communities with greater flexibility in using funds to prevent and end homelessness. Rural communities can participate in a new Rural Housing Stability Assistance Program that would grant rural communities greater discretion in addressing the needs of homeless people or those in the worst housing situations in their communities.

The HEARTH Act would also increase the focus on practices and programs that have demonstrated results. For example, the bill would require that HUD provide incentives for rapid rehousing programs for homeless families. Rapid rehousing programs have been successfully used in numerous communities to significantly reduce family homelessness. By dramatically reducing the length of time families are homeless, rapid rehousing programs ensure a quicker return to stability and self sufficiency.

The HEARTH Act would continue HUD's existing initiative to house people who experience chronic homelessness, but would add families with children to the initiative. It also would designate 30 percent of total funds for new permanent housing for families and individuals with a disability.

Finally, the HEARTH Act would increase the emphasis on performance by measuring applicants' progress at reducing homelessness. It would also allow communities with low levels of homelessness or that are reducing homelessness to focus more on prevention and serving people who are at risk of homelessness.

There is a growing consensus on ways to help communities break the cycle of repeated and prolonged homelessness. If we combine federal dollars with the right incentives to local communities, we can prevent and end long-term homelessness.

The bipartisan HEARTH Act will set us on the path to meeting this important national goal. I hope my colleagues will join us in supporting this bill and other homelessness prevention efforts.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself and Mr. GRASSLEY):

S. 812. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to make permanent the special rule for contributions of qualified conservation contributions; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Rural Heritage Conservation Extension Act of 2009, along with my good friend, Senator GRASSLEY from Iowa.

As we all know, the country, including my home State of Montana, is losing precious agricultural and ranch lands at a record pace. While providing Montana and the Nation with the highest quality food and fiber, these farms and ranches also provide habitat for wildlife and the open spaces, land that many of us take for granted and assume will always be there. Conservation easements have been tremendously successful in preserving open space and wildlife habitat. Montana has begun to recognize the importance of using conservation easements to preserve these lands. We currently have more than 1.5 million acres covered by conservation easements. To some, that may seem like a large amount, but this is Montana, a State that covers 93,583,532 acres.

To assure that open space and habitat will be there for future generations, we must help our hardworking farmers and ranchers preserve this precious heritage and their way-of-life. The Congress recognized this by providing targeted income tax relief to small farmers and ranchers who wish to make a charitable contribution of a qualified conservation easement. The provision allows eligible farmers and ranchers to increase the amounts of deduction that may be taken currently for charitable contributions of qualified conservation easements by raising the Adjusted Gross Income, AGI, limitations to 100 percent and extending the carryover period from 5 years to 15 years. In the case of all landowners, the AGI limitation was raised from 30 percent to 50 percent. This provision will expire at the end of this year.

The number of acres protected and easements held by state and local land trusts has grown as a result of this incentive. According to the Land Trust Alliance, America's Land Trusts protected 535,000 more acres with conservation easements in the first two years with the new tax incentive than in the previous two years, a 36 percent increase. In 2006 and 2007, land trusts added over 6,000 easements, about 2,000 more than the 2 years before the incentive.

The Rural Heritage Conservation Extension Act of 2009 would make this allowable deduction permanent, building on the success of conservation easements. Our farmers and ranchers will be able to preserve their important agricultural and ranching lands for future generations, while continuing to operate their businesses. Landowners, conservationists, the Federal Government, and local communities are working together to preserve our precious natural resources.

This legislation is vitally important to Montana, and to every other State in the Nation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. SPECIAL RULE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF QUALIFIED CONSERVATION CONTRIBUTIONS MADE PERMANENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) INDIVIDUALS.—Subparagraph (E) of section 170(b)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to contributions of qualified conservation contributions) is amended by striking clause (vi).

(2) CORPORATIONS.—Subparagraph (B) of section 170(b)(2) of such Code (relating to qualified conservation contributions) is amended by striking clause (iii).

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to contributions made in taxable years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. NELSON of Florida (for himself, Mr. DURBIN, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, and Mr. MENENDEZ):

S. 815. A bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to exempt surviving spouses of United States citizens from the numerical limitations described in section 201 of such Act; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, the Immigration and Nationality Act, INA, imposes what has become known as the "widow penalty," requiring the deportation of individuals whose pending applications for green cards are rejected because their citizen spouse died within the first two years of marriage. Today, joined by Senators DURBIN, FEINSTEIN, KENNEDY, KERRY AND MENENDEZ, I am introducing the Fairness to Surviving Spouses Act of 2009. My bill will amend the INA to remedy this unintended and unjustified administrative procedure.

This legislation is needed because, under current law, when a US citizen marries a non-citizen, the non-citizen is eligible to become a legal permanent resident and receive a green card. During the first two years of marriage, the only way this can be accomplished is through a petition that the citizen files on the non-citizen spouse's behalf. The non-citizen cannot self-petition for legal permanent resident status during this time.

If, however, the citizen spouse dies while the petition, through no fault of the couple, remains pending—and delays in the process are often caused due to bureaucratic delay—the petition automatically is denied, and the non-citizen is immediately deemed ineligible for legal permanent residence and therefore becomes deportable. This is the case even if ample evidence of a bona fide marriage, such as cohabitation, and shared finances, exists. It is even the case if a couple had a U.S. born child.

Because of the widow penalty, law-abiding and well-intentioned widows who have played by the rules face immediate deportation. During the 110th Congress, efforts to persuade the US Citizenship and Immigration Services, CIS, to address the issue administratively were unsuccessful. In the current administration, Secretary of Homeland Security Janet Napolitano has directed that the Department of Homeland Security review a number of immigration issues, including the widow penalty. Although this review is welcome, there is some question regarding the Secretary's authority to end the penalty administratively. That is why a clean legislative fix is needed, as scores of women and children face immediate deportation today.

There have been more than 200 widow penalty victims throughout the country, including a woman whose husband died while serving overseas as a contractor in Iraq; a woman whose husband died trying to rescue people who were drowning in the San Francisco Bay; a woman whose husband was killed while on duty with the U.S. Border Patrol; and a woman who was apprehended by Federal agents when she went to meet with immigration authorities to plead her case, placed in shackles, and sent to a detention facility.

The widow penalty has received national extensive national media attention, including from 60 Minutes, which profiled Raquel Williams, a widow who lives with her in-laws in Orlando, in a segment entitled, "For Better or For Worse—A Loss of Love and Country." After she was deemed deportable following the sudden death of her husband from sleep apnea and heart problems, Ms. Williams and her in-laws have been telling their story to raise awareness about this issue.

The harsh and unfair widow penalty can be eliminated by allowing the petition to be adjudicated even though the citizen spouse has died. The proposed legislation affects only a small group of individuals who still would be required to demonstrate that they had a bona fide marriage before receiving a green card. Thus, USCIS would retain the discretion to deny petitions, but they would no longer deny them automatically in response to the death of the citizen spouse.

Today, Rep. JIM MCGOVERN is introducing identical legislation in the House. His bill passed out of the House Judiciary Committee during the 110th Congress with bipartisan support, including from Republicans who led the charge against comprehensive immigration reform. The widows who face deportation today should not be forced to wait for the Congress to take up comprehensive immigration reform. This legislation is needed now because it simply corrects an arbitrary and unjust sanction, one which would never have occurred but for the Government's failure to act more in a more timely manner and the unfortunate fact that the citizen spouse died before the couple's second anniversary.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to all applications and petitions relating to immediate relative status under section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1151(b)(2)(A)(i)) pending on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Ms. CANTWELL (for herself, Ms. MURKOWSKI, Mrs. MURRAY, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. MERKLEY, and Mr. BEGICH):

S. 817. A bill to establish a Salmon Stronghold Partnership program to conserve wild Pacific salmon and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Pacific Salmon Stronghold Conservation Act of 2009, together with my colleague from Alaska Senator Murkowski. I am grateful for all the input and collaboration from key stakeholders in Washington State that I have received on this legislation. I am especially grateful for the input from the Quileute Tribe, the Wild Salmon Center, and Bill Ruckelshaus.

Wild Pacific salmon are central to the culture, economy, and environment of western North America. While current Federal, State, and local salmon recovery efforts are focused on recovering salmon listed under the Endangered Species Act, ESA, seeking to restore what we've lost—the Salmon Stronghold Act seeks to protect what we have. Current efforts to recover threatened or endangered salmon stocks are vital. This is why I have consistently fought for increased funding for the Pacific Coast Salmon Recovery Fund, PCSRF, and will continue to proudly do so.

The PCSRF, since its inception in 2000, has allowed my home State of Washington to focus the efforts of counties and conservation districts, on average, to remove 300 barriers to fish passage and to open 300 miles of habitat each year. That's 2,400 barriers removed and 2,400 miles of habitat restored. In 2008, for every Federal dollar spent on this program it leveraged about $2 local and State dollars.

I will continue the fight to protect this salmon recovery funding. But more must be done. A key purpose of this act is to complement existing Federal, State and local salmon recovery efforts by directing new Federal resources to conserve healthy salmon populations. This legislation will utilize sound science to identify and sustain core centers of salmon abundance, productivity, and diversity in the healthiest remaining salmon ecosystems throughout the Pacific States.

This bill establishes a new regional Salmon Stronghold Partnership program that provides federal support and resources to protect a network of the healthiest remaining wild Pacific salmon ecosystems in North America. The bill promotes enhanced coordination and cooperation of Federal, tribal, State and local governments, public and private land managers, fisheries managers, power authorities, and non-governmental organizations in efforts to protect salmon strongholds.

It is time to increase funding for recovery efforts, but also focus on prevention. It is time to adopt the kind of comprehensive solution that can solidify the place wild Pacific salmon hold in American culture for generations to come.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 817

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Pacific Salmon Stronghold Conservation Act of 2009”.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

- Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.
- Sec. 2. Findings; purposes.
- Sec. 3. Definitions.
- Sec. 4. Salmon Stronghold Partnership.
- Sec. 5. Information and assessment.
- Sec. 6. Salmon stronghold watershed grants and technical assistance program.
- Sec. 7. Interagency cooperation.
- Sec. 8. International cooperation.
- Sec. 9. Acquisition and transfer of real property interests.
- Sec. 10. Administrative provisions.
- Sec. 11. Limitations.
- Sec. 12. Reports to Congress.
- Sec. 13. Authorization of appropriations.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS; PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Several species of salmon native to the rivers of the United States are highly migratory, interacting with salmon originating from Canada, Japan, Russia, and South Korea and spending portions of their life history outside of the territorial waters of the United States. Recognition of the migratory and transboundary nature of salmon species has led countries of the North Pacific to seek enhanced coordination and cooperation through multilateral and bi-lateral agreements.

(2) Salmon are a keystone species, sustaining more than 180 other species in freshwater and marine ecosystems. They are also an indicator of ecosystem health and potential impacts of climate change.

(3) Salmon are a central part of the culture, economy, and environment of Western North America.

(4) Economic activities relating to salmon generate billions of dollars of economic activity and provide thousands of jobs.

(5) During the anticipated rapid environmental change during the period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, maintaining key ecosystem processes and functions, population abundance, and genetic integrity will be vital to ensuring the health of salmon populations.

(6) Salmon strongholds provide critical production zones for commercial, recreational, and subsistence fisheries.

(7) Taking into consideration the frequency with which fisheries have collapsed during the period preceding the date of the enactment of this Act, using scientific research to correctly identify and conserve core centers of abundance, productivity, and diversity is vital to sustain salmon populations and fisheries in the future.

(8) Measures being undertaken as of the date of the enactment of this Act to recover threatened or endangered salmon stocks, including Federal, State, and local programs to restore salmon habitat, are vital. These measures will be complemented and enhanced by identifying and sustaining core centers of abundance, productivity, and diversity in the healthiest remaining salmon ecosystems throughout the range of salmon species.

(9) The effects of climate change are affecting salmon habitat at all life history stages and future habitat conservation must consider climate change projections to safeguard natural systems under future climate conditions.

(10) Greater coordination between public and private entities can assist salmon strongholds by marshaling and focusing resources on scientifically-supported, high priority conservation actions.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to expand Federal support and resources for the protection and restoration of the healthiest remaining salmon strongholds in North America to sustain core centers of salmon abundance, productivity, and diversity in order to ensure the long-term viability of salmon populations—

(A) in the States of California, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington, by focusing resources on cooperative, incentive-based efforts to conserve the roughly 20 percent of salmon habitat that supports approximately two-thirds of salmon abundance; and

(B) in the State of Alaska, a regional stronghold that produces more than one-third of all salmon, by increasing resources available to public and private organizations working cooperatively to conserve regional core centers of salmon abundance and diversity;

(2) to maintain and enhance economic benefits related to fishing or associated with healthy salmon stronghold habitats, including flood protection, recreation, water quantity and quality, carbon sequestration, climate change mitigation and adaptation, and other ecosystem services; and

(3) to complement and add to existing Federal, State, and local salmon recovery efforts by using sound science to identify and sustain core centers of salmon abundance, productivity, and diversity in the healthiest remaining salmon ecosystems throughout their range.

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself, Mr. BURR, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. HATCH, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 818. A bill to reauthorize the Enhancing Education Through Technology Act of 2001, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today with my colleagues Senators BURR, KENNEDY, HATCH and MURRAY to introduce the Achievement Through Technology and Innovation, ATTAIN, Act of 2009.

This bill would amend title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to rename part D, Achievement through Technology and Innovation, and reauthorize it through FY2014. I am very pleased that ATTAIN is supported by the Consortium for School Networking, International Society for Technology and Education, Software and Information Industry Association, State Educational Technology Directors Association, and many other education groups.

In 2002, Congress enacted the No Child Left Behind Act to close the achievement gap between low-income, underperforming students and their more affluent peers. Without a renewed dedication to the quality of programs used in our schools, this goal, as well as providing an excellent education for students, will be difficult to achieve. While there is no question that we have made progress in recent years in advancing educational opportunity, I remain concerned about the number of schools that are failing to meet the performance criteria set out in the No Child Left Behind Act.

The bill I am introducing represents a critical step forward in advancing learning technologies for millions of students across the country. Many schools lack the resources necessary for the 21st century classroom and to meet the needs and expectations of today's students. Furthermore, technology and e-learning in our schools are a must if we are to meet our Nation's science, technology, engineering, and mathematics education needs and to provide students with the skills necessary to succeed in the 21st century knowledge-based, global economy.

By authorizing the Enhancing Education Through Technology Act, EETT, as part of NCLB, Congress recognized that Federal leadership and investment is needed to serve as a catalyst for State and local education initiatives aimed at school innovation and improved student achievement. EETT has shown to be effective, particularly in my home State of New Mexico. As you know, many schools often do not have access to learning resources that enable their students to gain an academic background with the technological skills and knowledge necessary to succeed in college or the modern workplace. Through EETT, programs such as the Online Teaching and Learning Opportunities Year 2, have become bright spots of opportunity in some of our Nation's most isolated communities and have brought technical training, professional development and advanced technology resources to teachers and students. Notwithstanding this record of success, it is critical that states such as New Mexico have the opportunity to further advance the use of learning technologies to deliver innovative instruction and curriculum.

To this end, the ATTAIN Act has three main objectives. First, to ensure that through technology every student has access to individualized, rigorous, and relevant learning to meet the goals of NCLB and to prepare all students for the 21st century. Second, to build upon and increase the use of evidence-based and innovative systemic school redesign that centers around technology. And finally, to provide meaningful professional development around technology that leads to changes in teaching and curriculum and improves student technology literacy.

The future of our students' success depends on the quality of their educational experience. I want to thank Senators BURR, KENNEDY, HATCH, and MURRAY for their leadership and commitment to improving education in this country. They remain tireless advocates for our Nation's students, and I am pleased to be working with them on this legislation as we begin reauthorizing the No Child Left Behind Act.

This legislation is an integral step in advancing State and local learning technologies for millions of students across the country, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1818

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. ACHIEVEMENT THROUGH TECHNOLOGY AND INNOVATION.

Part D of title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6751 et seq.) is amended to read as follows:

“PART D—ACHIEVEMENT THROUGH TECHNOLOGY AND INNOVATION

“SEC. 2401. SHORT TITLE.

“This part may be cited as the ‘Achievement Through Technology and Innovation Act of 2009’ or the ‘ATTAIN Act’.

“SEC. 2402. FINDINGS, PURPOSES, AND GOALS.

“(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

“(1) Learning technologies in our Nation’s schools are critical—

“(A) to meet the goals of the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 of raising student achievement, closing the achievement gap, and ensuring high-quality teaching; and “(B) to ensure that our Nation’s students are prepared to compete in the 21st century knowledge-based global economy.

“(2) Increased professional development opportunities are needed if teachers are to be highly qualified and effective in a 21st century classroom with today’s digital native students, including professional development opportunities—

“(A) in the use of learning technologies to deliver innovative instruction and curriculum; and “(B) to use data to inform instruction.

“(3) Scientifically based research, conducted with Federal funding, demonstrates that systemic redesign initiatives centered around technology have shown great promise in improving teaching and learning, including the following:

“(A) In Utah, Missouri, and Maine, the eMINTS program provides schools and teachers with educational technology tools, curriculum, and more than 200 hours of professional development to change how teachers teach and students learn. In classrooms in the same school (1 with eMINTS and 1 without), the student achievement of students in the eMINTS classroom was repeatedly over 10 percent higher than the control classroom.

“(B) In West Virginia, students receiving access to online foreign language courses performed at least as well as students in face-to-face versions of the classes, providing comparable high-quality instruction for students in rural areas who otherwise would not have access to such courses.

“(C) In Michigan’s Freedom to Learn technology program, proficiency on Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) tests of 8th grade mathematics increased from 31 percent in 2004 to 63 percent in 2005 in 1 middle school, and science achievement increased from 68 percent of students proficient in 2003 to 80 percent in 2004.

“(D) In Texas, the Technology Immersion Pilot (TIP), implemented in middle schools, demonstrated that discipline referrals went down by more than ½ with the changes in teaching and learning; while in 1 school, the percentage of 6th graders who passed the reading portion of the 2006 State assessment (TAKS) test was up 17 points from 2004, and the percentage of 7th graders who passed the mathematics portion of the TAKS rose 13 points. The students participating in the Technology Immersion Pilot have become more responsible for their learning, more engaged in the classroom, and much more knowledgeable about the role of technology in problem solving and learning.

“(E) In Iowa, after connecting teachers with sustainable professional development and technology-based curriculum interventions, students taught by such teachers had scores that increased by 14 points in 8th grade mathematics, 16 points in 4th grade mathematics, and 13 points in 4th grade reading compared with control groups.

“(4) Technology and e-learning in our Nation’s schools are necessary to meet our Nation’s science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) education needs and to provide students with 21st century skills, including technology literacy, information literacy, communication skills, problem solving skills, and the ability for self-directed life-long learning.

“(5) A 2003 Department of Commerce report credits United States industry’s investments in information technology between 1989 and 2001 with ‘producing positive and probably lasting changes in the Nation’s economic potential’, but finds United States education last in intensity of information technology in 55 industry sectors.

“(6) Many of our Nation’s schools lack the resources necessary for the 21st century classroom and to meet the needs and expectations of today’s digital native students, including—

“(A) software, digital content, and broadband resources; and

“(B) other technologies.

“(7) According to the Department of Education’s National Educational Technology Trends Study (NETTS 2007), insufficient or outdated technology presented a substantial barrier to technology use for teaching and learning for more than 40 percent of students, while the lack of support specialists was a barrier to technology use for more than 50 percent of students.

“(8) Federal leadership and investment is needed to serve as a catalyst for State and local education initiatives aimed at school innovation and improved student achievement through leveraging educational technologies. According to the Department of Education’s National Educational Technology Trends Study (NETTS 2007), ‘Because funds generated locally through bonds or taxes frequently have legal restrictions requiring them to be spent on hardware and connectivity purchases only, Federal and State funds supporting the use of technology resources fill a critical gap.’

“(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this part are the following:

“(1) To ensure that through technology every student has access to individualized, rigorous, and relevant learning to meet the goals of this part, and to prepare all students and the United States for the 21st century.

“(2) To evaluate, build upon, and increase the use of evidence-based and innovative systemic school redesigns that center on the use of technology that leads to school improvement and increased student achievement.

“(3) To increase ongoing, meaningful professional development around technology that—

“(A) leads to changes in teaching and curriculum;

“(B) improves student achievement, including in core academic subjects;

“(C) improves student technology literacy; and “(D) is aligned with professional development activities supported under section 2123.

“(c) GOALS.—The goals of this part are the following:

“(1) To improve student academic achievement with respect to State academic standards through the use of professional development and systemic school redesigns that center on the use of technology and the applications of technology.

“(2) To improve professional development to ensure every school administrator—

“(A) possesses the leadership skills necessary for effective technology integration and every teacher possesses the knowledge and skills to use technology across the curriculum;

“(B) uses technology and curriculum redesign as key components of changing teaching and learning and improving student achievement; and

“(C) uses technology for data analysis to enable individualized instruction; and “(D) uses technology to improve student technology literacy.

“(3) To ensure that every student is technologically literate by the end of 8th grade, regardless of the student’s race, ethnicity, gender, family income, geographic location, or disability.

“(4) To improve student engagement, opportunity, attendance, graduation rates, and technology access through enhanced or redesigned curriculum or instruction.

“(5) To more effectively use data to inform instruction, address individualized student needs, and support school decisionmaking.

“SEC. 2403. DEFINITION OF STUDENT TECHNOLOGY LITERACY.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Autism (sometimes called “classical autism”) is the most common condition in a group of developmental disorders known as autism spectrum disorders.

(2) Autism spectrum disorders include autism as well as Asperger syndrome, Rett syndrome, childhood disintegrative disorder, and pervasive developmental disorder not otherwise specified (usually referred to as PDD-NOS), as well as other related developmental disorders.

(3) Individuals with autism spectrum disorders have the same rights as other individuals to exert control and choice over their own lives, to live independently, and to participate fully in, and contribute to, their communities and society through full integration and inclusion in the economic, political, social, cultural, and educational mainstream of society. Individuals with autism spectrum disorders have the right to a life with dignity and purpose.

(4) While there is no uniform prevalence or severity of symptoms associated with autism spectrum disorders, the National Institutes of Health has determined that autism spectrum disorders are characterized by 3 distinctive behaviors: impaired social interaction, problems with verbal and nonverbal communication, and unusual, repetitive, or severely limited activities and interests.

(5) Both children and adults with autism spectrum disorders can show difficulties in verbal and nonverbal communication, social interactions, and sensory processing. Individuals with autism spectrum disorders exhibit different symptoms or behaviors, which may range from mild to significant, and require varying degrees of support from friends, families, service providers, and communities.

(6) Individuals with autism spectrum disorders often need assistance in the areas of comprehensive early intervention, health, recreation, job training, employment, housing, transportation, and early, primary, and secondary education. With access to, and assistance with, these types of services and supports, individuals with autism spectrum disorders can live rich, full, and productive lives. Greater coordination and streamlining within the service delivery system will enable individuals with autism spectrum disorders and their families to access assistance from all sectors throughout an individual’s lifespan.

(7) A 2007 report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found that the prevalence of autism spectrum disorders is estimated to be 1 in 150 people in the United States.

(8) The Harvard School of Public Health reported that the cost of caring for and treating individuals with autism spectrum disorders in the United States is more than $35,000,000,000 annually (an estimated $3,200,000 over an individual’s lifetime).

(9) Although the overall incidence of autism is consistent around the globe, researchers with the Journal of Paediatrics and Child Health have found that males are 4 times more likely to develop an autism spectrum disorder than females. Autism spectrum disorders know no racial, ethnic, or social boundaries, nor differences in family income, lifestyle, or educational levels, and can affect any child.

(10) Individuals with autism spectrum disorders from low-income, rural, and minority communities often face significant obstacles to accurate diagnosis and necessary specialized services, supports, and education.

(11) There is strong consensus within the research community that intensive treatment as soon as possible following diagnosis not only can reduce the cost of lifelong care by two-thirds, but also yields the most positive life outcomes for children with autism spectrum disorders.

(12) Individuals with autism spectrum disorders and their families experience a wide range of medical issues. Few common standards exist for the diagnosis and management of many aspects of clinical care. Behavioral difficulties may be attributed to the overarching disorder rather than to the pain and discomfort of a medical condition, which may go undetected and untreated. The health care and other treatments available in different communities can vary widely. Many families, lacking access to comprehensive and coordinated health care, must fend for themselves to find the best health care, treatments, and services in a complex clinical world.

(13) Effective health care, treatment, and services for individuals with autism spectrum disorders depends upon a continuous exchange among researchers and caregivers. Evidence-based and promising autism practices should move quickly into communities, allowing individuals with autism spectrum disorders and their families to benefit from the newest research and enabling researchers to learn from the life experiences of the people whom their work most directly affects.

(14) There is a critical shortage of appropriately trained personnel across numerous important disciplines who can assess, diagnose, treat, and support children and adults with autism spectrum disorders and their families. Practicing professionals, as well as those in training to become professionals, need the most up-to-date practices informed by the most current research findings.

(15) The appropriate goals of the Nation regarding individuals with autism spectrum disorder are the same as the appropriate goals of the Nation regarding individuals with disabilities in general, as established in the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990

(42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.): to assure equality of opportunity, full participation, independent living, and economic self-sufficiency for such individuals.

(16) Finally, individuals with autism spectrum disorders are often denied health care benefits solely because of their diagnosis, even though proven, effective treatments for autism spectrum disorders do exist.

SEC. 3. PARENTAL RIGHTS RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to modify the legal rights of parents or legal guardians under Federal, State, or local law regarding the care of their children.

There are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal years 2010 through 2014 such sums as may be necessary to carry out this Act.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. HATCH, Mr. STABENOW, Mr. ENSIGN, Mrs. LINCOLN, Ms. CANTWELL, and Mr. NELSON of Florida):

S. 823. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a 5-year carryback of operating losses, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, America’s economy is continuing in recession. Companies that have been profitable for years are finding their balance sheets awash in red ink. The economic stimulus bill, the American Recover and Reinvestment Act or “ARRA,” helped some small companies with a provision that allows them to take losses from 2008 and carry them back for up to five years rather than carry them forward for up to 20 or back only two. This net operating loss, NOL, carryback provision gives formerly profitable companies the ability to get a quick infusion of cash by recouping taxes paid when they were profitable in the recent past.

The cash from a 5 year carryback of NOLs allows companies to keep employees on payroll, and stabilize operations during the most trying time businesses have faced in at least a generation. The House and Senate and the Obama Administration all acknowledged the importance of permitting NOL carrybacks during the debate on the economic stimulus with provisions that generally allowed any company to carryback losses incurred in 2008 and 2009. Unfortunately, the final agreement on that law did not contain the sweeping provision that is necessary to help as many companies as are in need of this tax relief.

Companies are permitted to take these losses against future income, for up to 20 years from now. However, that carryforward of losses does nothing to help companies weather the current recession in fact some of these companies might never be able to take these losses because they’ll go out of business as a result of this recession. Permitting carryback of losses will help to prevent employees from being laid off today as a result of the credit crunch that continues to exacerbate the downward spiral of our economy. We can help lessen the credit crunch and increase cash flow in companies by permitting companies to carryback losses for 5 years.

Today I am honored to introduce the NOL Carryback Act with the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Chairman MAX BAUCUS, and a distinguished group of colleagues from the Finance Committee. This bill mirrors the Senate-passed NOL carryback provision that was passed in ARRA. The Senate-passed bill allowed carrybacks for losses incurred in 2008 and 2009, for any sized business, but it prevented companies that receive cash from the Troubled Asset Relief Program from also receiving this cash infusion.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself and Mr. BEGICH):

S. 824. A bill to establish a Jobs Creation Coordinator in the Department of Commerce to ensure that agencies in the Department use resources in a manner that maximizes the maintenance and creation of jobs in the United States, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today in response to the devastating job losses resulting from the current economic crisis. Figures released this week show that U.S. companies shed more than 740,000 jobs in March, a 5 percent increase over the 706,000 jobs lost in February. Our country has now lost nearly 4.5 million jobs since the onset of the recession—the most since 1945. Tomorrow’s release of government-compiled employment figures is certain to confirm the dismal state of the U.S. job market—a tragic reality that millions of hardworking Americans and the families they support know all too well.

As a senior member of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, I believe it is essential for the Department of Commerce to respond to this dire situation by focusing its efforts on expanding employment opportunities for Americans. With its statutory mission “to foster, promote, and develop the foreign and domestic commerce,” the Department of Commerce has a clear mandate to defend and grow the U.S. economy through job preservation and creation.

Yet the disparate agencies that comprise the department have little or no occasion to coordinate their efforts toward maximizing its job maintaining and creating potential. While divisions such as the Economic Development Agency and the Minority Business Development Agency each have their own programs to increase employment in their respective target communities, there is the potential for even greater job creation through the coordination of their efforts with the core functions of other department components, such as the export-promotion activities of the International Trade Administration, the economic analysis of the Economics and Statistics Administration, and the stewardship of technological innovation by the National Telecommunications & Information Administration.

That is why I am today introducing bipartisan legislation with my Commerce Committee colleague Senator Begich to establish a Job Creation Coordinator at the department. Answering directly to the Secretary of Commerce, the Coordinator would not only ensure that each agency is carrying out its primary mission in a way that maximizes U.S. employment, but also would identify and implement opportunities to link separate programs being carried out by the agencies in a way that ensures that department resources are being spent in a manner which guarantees the utmost job creation per dollar appropriated.

Specifically, the Jobs Coordinator would be responsible for making an initial assessment of the private sector jobs currently being maintained or created by Commerce Department programs; formulating an action plan for improving these figures under existing statutory authority; liaising with Congress about additional authority which would enhance the job maintaining and creating abilities of Commerce Department programs; and, overseeing the implementation of new department policies or statutory authorities intended to enhance the department's job maintenance and creation potential.

The millions of Americans who have lost their livelihoods to the economic downturn, or whose jobs are at risk amidst the turmoil, deserve the utmost effort by their government to put an end to the lay-offs and get people back to work. I urge my colleagues to join me in this vital effort by supporting this legislation.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 98—DESIGNATING EACH OF APRIL 15, 2009, AND APRIL 15, 2010, AS “NATIONAL TEA PARTY DAY”

Mr. VITTER submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 98

Whereas the taxpayers of the United States understand that the so-called “stimulus bill”, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5; 123 Stat. 115), included a laundry list of spending projects;

Whereas the taxpayers of the United States understand that the bailouts of Wall Street by the United States Government have been ineffective and a waste of taxpayer funding;

Whereas the taxpayers of the United States agree that the United States Government should stop wasteful spending, reduce the tax burden on families and businesses, and focus on policies that will lead to job creation and economic growth; and

Whereas taxpayers in the United States are expressing their opposition to high taxes and skyrocketing spending by the United States Government by organizing “Taxed Enough Already” parties, also known as “TEA” parties: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate designates each of April 15, 2009, and April 15, 2010, as “National TEA Party Day”.

SENATE RESOLUTION 99—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE GOVERNMENT OF UZBEKISTAN SHOULD IMMEDIATELY ENFORCE ITS EXISTING DOMESTIC LEGISLATION AND FULFILL ITS INTERNATIONAL COMMITMENTS AIMED AT ENDING STATE-SPONSORED FORCED AND CHILD LABOR

Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. SANDERS, and Mr. BINGAMAN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. RES. 99

Whereas the United States has a growing strategic involvement in Central Asia;

Whereas the interests of the United States in Central Asia, including the operations in Afghanistan, can only be secured by the presence in the region of viable, vigorous democracies that fully guarantee the economic and social rights of all people, including children;

Whereas the Government of Uzbekistan continues to commit serious human rights abuses, including arbitrary arrest and detention, torture in custody, and the severe restriction of freedom of speech, the press, religion, independent political activity, and nongovernmental organizations;

Whereas the Government of Uzbekistan detains thousands of people for political or religious reasons;

Whereas Uzbekistan is the third largest exporter of cotton in the world, and cotton is 1 of the largest sources of export revenue for Uzbekistan;

Whereas Uzbekistan has signed and properly deposited with the International Labour Organization (ILO) the Minimum Age Convention, convened at Geneva June 6, 1973 (International Labour Organization Convention Number 138) and the Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, convened at Geneva June 1, 1999 (International Labour Organization Convention Number 182);

Whereas the Government of Uzbekistan issued a decree in September 2008 that ostensibly prohibited the practice of forced and child labor, but the Government of Uzbekistan sent schoolchildren to harvest cotton within weeks after issuing the decree;

Whereas the 2008 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices by the Department of State stated that large-scale compulsory mobilization of youth and students to harvest cotton continued in most rural areas of Uzbekistan and that the students and youths were poorly paid, living conditions were poor, and children were exposed to harmful chemicals and pesticides applied in the cotton fields;

Whereas research by the Environmental Justice Foundation indicates that each year hundreds of thousands of schoolchildren from Uzbekistan, some as young as 7 years old, are forced by the Government of Uzbekistan to work in the national cotton harvest for up to 3 months;

Whereas a policy briefing published by the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, in 2008, entitled “Invisible to the World”, used extrapolations based on surveys in 6 areas that took place in 2006 and 2007 to conclude that approximately 2,400,000 schoolchildren from Uzbekistan between the ages of 10 and 15 are forcibly recruited into the annual cotton harvest;

Whereas the British Broadcasting Company undertook an investigation in late 2007 and found that the Government of Uzbekistan continues to rely on the state-orchestrated mass mobilization of children to bring in the cotton harvest;

Whereas, in 2008, reports of child labor in the cotton fields were received by multiple media outlets and local human rights activists from the major cotton-growing regions in Uzbekistan, including Djizzak, Namangan, Samarqand, and Ferghana, among others;

Whereas a report by the Rapid Reaction Group indicates that schoolchildren who cannot fulfill their daily picking quotas are forced to make up the difference in cash from the pockets of their own families;

Whereas the Government of Uzbekistan detained and harassed an independent journalist who accompanied a diplomat from the United States on a research trip to Syr Daria province, where the diplomat photographed children working in the cotton fields;

Whereas the children working in the cotton fields are stressed by the pressure to fulfill cotton quotas, physically abused by arduous work in the cotton fields, and subjected to poor and hazardous living conditions during the harvest period;

Whereas international brands such as Gap, H&M, Levi Strauss, Limited Brands, Target, Tesco, and Wal-Mart have banned cotton from Uzbekistan from their products and instructed their suppliers to comply with the ban;

Whereas the Government of Uzbekistan allowed a survey to be conducted by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), under the strict supervision of the Government of Uzbekistan, yet the survey was not conducted during the fall harvest season (a time when the likelihood of children working in the fields is significantly greater);

Whereas the Government of Uzbekistan refused to fully cooperate with the ILO and the International Cotton Advisory Committee to undertake an independent technical assessment of forced child labor during the fall 2008 harvest season; and

Whereas the ILO has conducted independent investigations into forced and child labor in more than 60 countries around the world, including developing and developed countries: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that the Government of Uzbekistan should—

(1) immediately enforce its existing domestic legislation and fulfill its international commitments aimed at ending state-sponsored forced and child labor;

(2) allow a comprehensive independent investigation into forced and child labor in the cotton sector during the fall 2009 harvest season by the International Labour Organization;

(3) in consultation and cooperation with the International Labour Organization, develop a credible and comprehensive action plan based on the findings of the International Labour Organization and commit the resources necessary to end forced and child labor in the cotton sector; and

(4) take concrete steps towards systemic reform that will—

(A) ensure greater freedom and better returns from their labor for cotton-producing farmers; and

(B) enable such farmers to employ adults in the cotton sector.
