Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, Mr. Vice President, Members of Congress, all who are present, and to all who are watching, welcome to the Capitol and to this celebration of our great democracy. This is the 57th inauguration of an American President, and no matter how many times one witnesses this event, the gravity, its innate majesty, and most of all its meaning, that sacred, yet cautionary, entrusting of power from we, the people, to our chosen leader, never fails to make one’s heart beat faster as it will today with anticipation, entrusting of power from we, the people, especially the least of these, to our elected and appointed officials of the United States of America. We do this in a peaceful, orderly way. There is no mob, no coup, no insurrection. This is a moment when millions of Americans have always been, and still are, a practical, optimistic, problem-solving people; that history shows, no matter how steep the climb, how difficult the problems, how half-finished the task, America always rises to the occasion. America prevails and America prospers. (Applause.)

Those who bet against this country have inevitably been proven wrong. So it is a good moment to gaze upward and behold the Statue of Freedom at the top of the Capitol dome. It is a good moment to gain strength and courage and humility from those who were determined to complete the half-finished dome. It is a good moment to rejoice at this 57th Presidential inaugural ceremony, and it is the perfect moment to renew our collective faith in the future of America. (Applause.)

Thank you and God bless these United States.

In that spirit of faith, I would now like to introduce civil rights leader Myrlie Evers, who has committed her life to extending the promise of our Nation’s founding principles to all Americans.

Mrs. Evers will lead us in the invocation. Mrs. Evers.

Mrs. Evers will lead us in the invocation. Mrs. Evers.

Mrs. Evers.

Mrs. Evers. We are here, our Nation’s Capitol, on this day, January the 21st, 2013, the inauguration of our 45th President, Barack Obama, President Obama. And as we come at this time to ask blessings upon our leaders, the President, Vice President, Members of Congress, all elected and appointed officials of the United States of America, we are here to ask blessings upon our Armed Forces, blessings upon all who contribute to the essence of the American spirit. May the Almighty help us to become whatever our mankind, mankind allows us to be. This is the promise of America.

As we sing the words of belief, “This is my country,” let us act upon the meaning every one is included. May the inherent dignity and inalienable rights of every woman, man, boy, and girl, in every corner of our people, especially the least of these, flourish in our blessed Nation. One hundred fifty years after the Emancipation Proclamation and 50 years after the march on Washington, we celebrate the spirit of our ancestors which has allowed us to move from a nation of unformed paths to a history of millions of votes to today’s expression of a more perfect Union.

May your guide, too, Almighty, that where our paths seem blighted by throngs of oppression and ripped by pangs of despair, we ask for Your guidance toward the light of deliverance provided by the spirit of those who came before us and dreamt of this day, that we recognize their visions still inspire us. They are a great cloud of witnesses unseen by mortal eye but always knowing that their living was not in vain. For every mountain You gave us the strength to climb, Your grace is pleaded to continue that climb for America and the world.

We now stand beneath the shadow of the Nation’s Capitol whose golden dome reflects the unity and democracy of one Nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. Approximately 4 miles from where we are assembled, the hallowed remains of men and women rest in Arlington Cemetery; they who believed, fought, and died for this country. May their spirit infuse our being to work together with respect, enabling us to continue to build a United States of America and send a message to the world that we are strong, fierce in our strength, and ever vigilant in our pursuit of freedom.

We ask that You grant our President the will to act courageously but cautiously when confronted with danger and to act prudently but unhesitantly when challenged by adversity. Please continue to vest his efforts, to lead by example in consideration and favor of the diversity of our people. Bless our family all across this Nation.

We thank You for this opportunity of prayer to strengthen us for the journey through the days that lie ahead. We invite the prayer of our grandchildren who take us to pray: God make me a blessing. Let their spirit guide us as we claim the spirit of old. There is something within me that holds the reins. There is something within me that I cannot explain. But all I know, America, there is something within—there is something within.

In Jesus’s name and the name of all who are holy and right, we pray. Amen.

Mr. SCHUMER. I am pleased to introduce the award-winning Brooklyn Tabernacle choir, the Brooklyn Tabernacle Choir, to sing “Battle Hymn of the Republic.” (Performance by the Brooklyn Tabernacle Choir.)

Mr. SCHUMER. Please join me in welcoming my colleague and friend, the Senator from Tennessee, the Honorable LAMAR ALEXANDER.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, Mr. Vice President, ladies and gentlemen, the late President Barack Obama, author of this life by these six words: “Find the good and praise it.” Today we praise the American tradition of transferring or reaffirming immense and distinctive power to the people of the United States. We do this in a peaceful, orderly way. There is no mob, no coup, no insurrection. This is a moment when millions of Americans have always been, and still are, a practical, optimistic, problem-solving people; that history shows, no matter how steep the climb, how difficult the problems, how half-finished the task, America always rises to the occasion. America prevails and America prospers. (Applause.)

Also, a guide told me our first President, George Washington, once posed this question: What is... most important of this grand experiment, the United States? Then Washington answered his own question in this way: Not the election of the first President but the election of office prescribed by the Constitution, which he repeated, as follows:

I, JOSEPH R. BIDEN JR., do solemnly swear that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I will not, in any manner, give aid or comfort to the enemy; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter.

So help me God.

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

The Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, JOHN G. ROBERTS, JR., administered to the President-elect the oath of ofcice prescribed by the Constitution, which he repeated as follows:

I, BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect,
and defend the Constitution of the United States.

The Chief Justice, Congratulations, Mr. President.

Mr. SCHUMER. It is my pleasure to introduce a talented musical artist, James Taylor.

(Performance by James Taylor.)

(Applause.)

The President. Thank you. Thank you so much.

Vice President BIDEN. Mr. Chief Justice.

(Performance by James Taylor.)

would do us harm. But we are also heirs to times change, so must we; that fidelity to our founding creed. For more than we hold sacred in this country.

and personal responsibility, these are con-on behalf of those who long for freedom. We must be a source of hope to the poor, the sick, the marginalized, the victims of prejudice, not out of mere charity but because peace requires the constant reaffirmation of those principles that our common creed describes: tolerance and opportunity, human dignity and justice.

We, the people, declare today that the most evident of truths, that all of us are created equal, is the star that guides us still, just as it guided our forebears through Sen-cerca Falls and Selma and Stonewall, just as it guided all those men and women, sung and unsung, who left footprints along this great Mall to hear a preacher say we cannot walk alone. We proclaim that our individual freedom is inextricably bound to the freedom of every soul on Earth.

(Appause.)

It is now our generation’s task to carry on what those pioneers began. For our journey is not complete until our wives, our mothers, and our daughters can earn a living equal to their efforts.

(Appause.)

Our journey is not complete until we bridge the color line, until that bridge is treated like those other bridges under the law. For, if we truly created equal, then surely the love we commit to one another must be equal as well.

Our journey is not complete until no citizen is forced to wait for hours to exercise the right to vote. Our journey is not complete until we find a better way to welcome the striving, hopeful immigrants who still seek America as a land of opportunity; until bright young students and engineers are enlisted in our workforce rather than expelled from our country.

Our journey is not complete until all our children, from the streets of Detroit to the hills of Blackberry Plains. And to the quiet streets of Newton, know they are cared for and cherished and always safe from harm. That is our generation’s task—to make these words, these rights, these values of life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness real for every American.

Being true to our founding documents does not require us to agree on every contour of life. It does not mean we will all define liberty in exactly the same way or follow the same precise path to happiness. Progress does not necessarily come to those who settle contently about the role of government for all time, but it does require us to act in our time.

(Appause.)

For now decisions are upon us, and we cannot afford delay. We cannot mistake absolutism for principle or substitute spectacle for politics or treat name-calling as reasoned debate. We must act, knowing our work will be imperfect. We must act, knowing today’s victories will be only partial and that it will be imperfect until we find a better way to welcome the right to vote. Our journey is not complete until all our gay or straight, rich or poor.

We pray for Your blessing today because without it, mistrust, prejudice, and rancor will rule our hearts, but with the blessing of Your presence, we know that we can renew the ties of mutual regard which can best form our civic life.

We pray for Your blessing, because without it, we will see only what the eye can see. But with Your blessing, we know that we can see that we are created in Your image, different from us will be our rule of life. But with Your blessing, we can see each other created in Your image, a unit of God’s grace, the unprecedented, irrepeate-
ble. We pray for Your blessing, because without it, we will see only what the eye can see. But with Your blessing, we will see that we are created in Your image whether Brown, Black or White, male or female, first-generation immigrant American or Daughters of the American Revolution, gay or straight, rich or poor.

We pray for Your blessing, because without it, we will only see scarcity in the midst of abundance. But with Your blessing, we will recognize the abundance of the gifts of this good land with which You have endowed this Nation.

We pray for Your blessing, because without it, we will only see scarcity in the midst of abundance. But with Your blessing, we will see that we are created in Your image whether Brown, Black or White, male or female, first-generation immigrant American or Daughters of the American Revolution, gay or straight, rich or poor.

We pray for Your blessing, because without it, we will only see scarcity in the midst of abundance. But with Your blessing, we will see that we are created in Your image whether Brown, Black or White, male or female, first-generation immigrant American or Daughters of the American Revolution, gay or straight, rich or poor.

can find with one another the fulfillment of our humanity.

We pray that the President, Vice President, and all in political authority will remember the words of the Prophet Micah: What does the Lord require of you but to do justice, to love kindness, and always walk humbly with God.

(Remarks in Spanish.)

Mr. SCHUMER. Ladies and gentlemen, please remain standing for the singing of our national anthem by award-winning artist Beyoncé, accompanied by the U.S. Marine Band.

Following the national anthem please remain in your place while the Presidential party exits the platform.
