The House met at noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. DeSaulnier).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
June 13, 2022.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Mark DeSaulnier to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

Nancy Pelosi,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 10, 2022, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with time equally allocated between the parties and each Member other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip limited to 5 minutes, but in no event shall debate continue beyond 1:50 p.m.

CELEBRATING NATIONAL DAIRY MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Joyce) for 5 minutes.

Mr. Joyce of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, as we celebrate National Dairy Month this June and recognize the incredible work that is done by small dairy farms in Pennsylvania, I am reminded of the words written by Rick Harvey: “And on the eighth day, God made a farmer.” So God made a farmer. God said, ‘I need somebody willing to get up before dawn, milk cows, work all day in the fields, milk cows again . . . then go to town and stay up past midnight at a meeting of the school board.’ So God made a farmer.”

In Congress, I am proud to represent the incredible dairy farmers of Pennsylvania’s 13th Congressional District who operate our farms and work to provide the milk, the butter, the yogurt, and the ice cream that Americans eat each and every day.

As a doctor, I have seen firsthand the advantages that providing whole milk has for our Nation’s young people. The nutrients, the vitamins, that milk provides are essential to the development of healthy brain tissue, healthy bones, and healthy muscles. That is why it is so important that we once again have whole milk back in schools in the cafeterias so our students can have this each and every day.

This June, as we celebrate National Dairy Month, let’s remember and let’s thank our farmers who do so much to support our health, our nutrition, our Nation, and each and every one of us.

STOP RUNAWAY SPENDING

Mr. Joyce of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, right now, American families are facing higher prices and supply chain shortages in our Nation’s grocery stores.

Right now, the cost of beef is up 10 percent from last year. The cost of bacon is up 15 percent. The cost of oranges is up 16 percent. Chicken is up 19 percent. The cost of eggs is up more than 30 percent.

Last week, I spoke to a mother in Johnstown, Pennsylvania, who told me that she was still unable to find baby food on store shelves. When she could, that price had shot up nearly 15 percent.

These price hikes are unsustainable, and as prices are rising faster than wages, families doing their grocery shopping are forced to make hard decisions about what they can buy and what they can provide for their families.

Inflation is a tax on all Americans, and the skyrocketing costs that we are seeing right now are a direct result of President Biden’s failed policies, policies that pumped trillions of dollars into our economy without a second thought about what that money would do to Pennsylvania families in my district.

It is time to stop this runaway spending, and it is time to get our economy moving once again.

PROTECT SUPREME COURT JUSTICES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. McCarthy) for 5 minutes.

Mr. McCarthy. Mr. Speaker, this is the third time I come to the floor to protect our Supreme Court Justices and their families. Speaker Pelosi said this bill would come to the floor this week, but it is not listed on our schedule.

The Speaker also said last week in her press conference that “no one is in danger. . . .”

Think about that, Mr. Speaker. The Speaker of the House of Representatives, last week, in a press conference, said no one is in danger. This is just after a day or 2 when a man came clear across the country from California to kill Justice Kavanaugh. He was on the street, had a weapon. He had zip ties. Across the country.

At the same time, the Speaker says no one is in danger. But at the same time, the Senate already unanimously passed a bill with agreement from all 100 Senators. That wasn’t passed last week; that was last month.

For 1 month, the majority of this House, Mr. Speaker, has held that bill, a bill that every single Senator, Republican and Democrat and Independent, passed in the Senate. It simply states that we will protect the Supreme Court.

Mr. Speaker, you have probably noticed, as you come on to this Capitol, the immensity of force you see out in front of the Capitol. Is that because something is happening here today? No. It is in anticipation of a decision by the Supreme Court.

Everybody in the country knows that there could be a decision—not knowing which way it would go—but the anticipation is that people need protection in the Capitol.

At the same time that is happening, that you are protecting the Capitol, you are holding a bill to deny protection to those Justices.

It makes me wonder why. Why? Why, if 100 Senators approve it, would it hold here for an entire month?

Why, even after holding it for a month, somebody travels all the way across the country with one thing in mind, to kill a Supreme Court Justice, gets arrested, and still the Speaker of the House will not move that bill that the majority actually holds?

Just so you can understand, no one on this side of the aisle, the Republican side of the aisle, objects to this bill. We agreed that we would agree to a unanimous consent.

All somebody had to do was make the motion and that could be on the President’s desk; it could be signed; and they could be protected.

But for some reason, Mr. Speaker, the Democrats on the other side of the aisle, even though 100 Senators had agreed with us, everyone in your party on the Senate side said “yes,” you still say “no.”

I do not understand that. I do not understand why we would risk that. I do not understand why you will make sure the Capitol is protected right now, knowing that something could happen in the Supreme Court this week, but you won’t protect those Justices.

Now, the Speaker came to the floor at a press conference last week and said nobody, no one, is in danger. How can you make that statement in the same week someone is arrested in your neighborhood trying to kill you? It makes no sense.

Mr. Speaker, if for some reason that we continue to come to the floor, that you feel some pressure on that bill, but you change it, the country knows that. But if you change it, the country will know why there has been no clear answer.

Why would you hold the bill for more than a month?

Why would you hold the bill after somebody is arrested who traveled across the country to kill a Justice? Why would you continue to hold the bill now?

If you change it, you are showing the country what you really believe. You don’t want the bill to pass. You want to delay it longer.

There is no excuse. There is no reason to delay this bill. This should be law, and the Justices should be protected.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table S. 4160, the Supreme Court Police Parity Act, and ask for immediate consideration in the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 10, 2022, the House is in session solely for the purpose of conducting morning-hour debate. Therefore, that unanimous consent request cannot be entertained.

Mr. McCarthy. Mr. Speaker, later in this day, it could. There is no excuse why this bill continues to be held, and there will be no excuse if you try to change it to delay it. That is just a tactic, Mr. Speaker, and I believe you thought it would be wrong as well.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m. today.

Accordingly (at 12 o’clock and 11 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess.

☐ 1400

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. Lipia) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Margaret Grun Kiben, offered the following prayer:

You, O Lord, ruler of the universe, we call on You today. Make us aware of Your presence here in this place.

Gracious God, not a breath is taken, not a bird falls from the sky, without Your knowledge. Such knowledge is too wonderful to conceive and at other times a confounding mystery.

Lord, we believe. Help our unbelief. Remind us of Your abiding love which, by the gift of Your eternal spirit, You have never withheld from us from the beginning of time even unto today.

How wonderful it is to trust in Your sovereignty. How wonderful but how terrible when we come face to face with the tragedies we simply cannot accept, nor in which can we see Your merciful hand at work.

Remind us again that You desired to set the world in motion, then blessed us with the opportunity to participate in Your creation. And with that blessing, which is truly beyond our imagining, You have also laid on us the mantle to uphold and protect the values You have imbed in us.

In our attempts to live into these responsibilities as they reveal themselves in each encounter, may we feel Your nearness to us, and the guidance and direction You provide.

We offer ourselves to You, responding with lives of faith and praying to serve You this day as a reflection of Your peaceful presence and unwanvering love in our midst.

In Your sovereign name we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 11(a) of House Resolution 188, the Journal of the last day’s proceedings is approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Ms. Plaskett) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Ms. PLASKETT led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

CARIBBEAN AMERICAN HERITAGE MONTH

Ms. Plaskett asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.

Ms. PLASKETT. Madam Speaker, in recognition of Caribbean American Heritage Month, I honor influential Haitian leader Henri Christophe.

Born on the island of Grenada to immigrant parents, Christophe played a significant role in the American Revolution, serving as a sergeant in the French unit in Savannah, Georgia in 1780.

Christophe was among the 545 Haitian free slaves known as the Fontages Legion, fighting for the freedom of men and women who desired to be freed from the shackles of oppression.

After the French forces were defeated and Haiti was declared an independent republic in 1803, Christophe was elected president of the northern State of Haiti in 1807. He was responsible for the construction of Citadelle Henry in Haiti, introduced a monetary system based on black labor, and established schools and hospitals, including a basic school of medicine.
Let us honor the legacy of this great man who fought for the freedom of those who refused to do the same.

RISING ENERGY PRICES

(Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I heard from a woman in my district who told me about the direct impact that rising energy prices are having on her family. This year, her energy bill will climb from $135 to $388 a month.

This constituent is not alone, and because of this record-setting inflation, two-thirds of Americans have been forced to use their savings just to pay for everyday expenses.

With gas now costing more than $5 a gallon, which is up nearly 70 percent higher than they were a year ago, it is Pennsylvania families who are now paying the price for President Biden's failed energy policies.

Instead of using American energy, President Biden is preparing to travel to Saudi Arabia in an attempt to bring more foreign oil into our markets here in America.

Americans cannot afford these record-setting prices, and we cannot afford to allow the Biden administration to continue its war on American energy.

ALZHEIMER’S AND BRAIN AWARENESS MONTH

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, June is Alzheimer’s and Brain Awareness Month, a time to raise the level of attention to debilitating dementias.

I appreciate the dedication of Taylor Wilson, the Director of Government Affairs for the Alzheimer’s Association of South Carolina.

Alzheimer’s is a brain disorder which slowly destroys memory and thinking skills. It is not a normal part of aging but a result of complex changes in the brain that start years before symptoms appear.

I am grateful for the Lexington Medical Center Carroll Campbell Place, in loving memory of former and late Governor Carroll Campbell.

According to the Centers for Disease Control, there are nearly 6 million people in the U.S. that have Alzheimer’s and related dementias. We honor those families today facing a dementia diagnosis, while supporting the hope of all that through research, we can find a prevention or treatment for this fatal disease.

In conclusion, God bless our troops who successfully protected America for 20 years in the global war on terrorism as it continues moving from the Afghanistan safe haven to America.

RECOGNIZING CRANBERRY HIGH SCHOOL AND MIDDLE SCHOOL ROBOTICS TEAMS

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to congratulate Cranberry High School and Middle School robotics teams from Venango County, Pennsylvania’s 15th Congressional District.

Cranberry High School sent 19 students and 2 advisors to Dallas, Texas, to compete in the 2022 VEX Robotics World Championship in May. While in Dallas, Cranberry High School teams competed against more than 800 other teams from around the country and the world.

When it came time to compete, each team was paired randomly with another team to show down against two other randomly paired teams. Each team participated in 10 2-minute rounds throughout the tournament.

To win, each team’s robot had to coordinate with their allied team’s robot to complete certain tasks in the rink before their opponents did. This required each team to work together with a team of strangers, sometimes from another country.

This opportunity allowed Cranberry High and Middle School students to broaden their horizons, as well as explore future careers in the robotics and engineering fields.

Congratulations to the 19 students who participated in such a great event.

HONORING THE LEGACY OF WILMA MANKILLER

(Mrs. BICE of Oklahoma asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BICE of Oklahoma. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the release of the third coin in the American Women Quarters Program which features Oklahoma’s own Wilma Mankiller.

Ms. Mankiller lived an inspiring life, which has had a lasting impact on Oklahoma and beyond. Hailing from the Cherokee Nation, she was hired as an economic stimulus coordinator and founded the community development department.

Through her incredible work, she became the first woman elected as Principal Chief of the Cherokee Nation. Under her leadership, she revitalized the Tribe’s economy, education systems, and health and well-being programs.

Her remarkable leadership made the Cherokee Tribe a national role model, but she didn’t stop there. After leaving office, she remained an advocate for women across the globe. She received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the highest honor given to civilians in the U.S., and was inducted into the National Women’s Hall of Fame.

Ms. Mankiller’s commitment to bettering her community and society as a whole is truly inspiring. May her legacy continue to live on forever.

WORLDWIDE UREA SHORTAGE

(Mr. LAMALFA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMALFA. Madam Speaker, it is no secret that America is facing many crises today, most unnecessary, on the border, fuel, inflation, even baby formula shortages.

But one thing that is not being talked about a lot is that we have a worldwide shortage of urea, which is a component in fertilizer, as well as fluid called DEF used in diesel engines for trucks, tractors, et cetera, made after 2010.

It is very important that we have this essential element because if we don’t have our trucks and tractors and even trains running, then we are going to have even bigger supply crises than what we have now.

China and Russia are two of the major exporters of this urea product, and they are actually suspending their exports of them in order to take care of themselves.

What we need to do in this country is step up our own production once again. After Hurricane Ida—down on the Gulf Coast a few years ago—caused suspension of operations of some of these plants that we have, we have to get it back going again because we need urea for our fertilizer to continue to grow food and to have our diesel engines that require DEF, the diesel exhaust fluid, to keep going and deliver the items we need.

Why do we need yet another crisis of running out and messing up the supply chain?

CONTINUATION OF THE 340B PROGRAM

(Mr. BERGMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BERGMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to highlight the positive accomplishments and ongoing challenges facing healthcare providers in rural and remote parts of our country, especially in places like Michigan’s First District, my home.

Last week marked the 30th anniversary of the 340B Federal drug pricing program, which provides discounted pharmaceutical products to providers that care for a disproportionate share of uninsured and at-risk patients.

In my district alone, we have 20 340B hospitals providing care for our most vulnerable patient populations and ensuring our rural and remote communities receive the best possible care available.

This program has been a critical component of healthcare for so many
The House will resume proceedings after the recess.

Potential Gun Violence Legislation

[Mr. Good of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.]

Mr. GOOD of Virginia. Madam Speaker, it is disappointing to see Republicans in the Senate ready to make a deal that will do nothing except slide us down the slippery slope toward gun registration and confiscation. That deal being contemplated in the Senate will do nothing to stop criminals intent on doing harm. This is just another surrender by uniparty RINOs. This will do nothing to satisfy the radical left that wants, again, registration and confiscation.

Why not do something that would truly reduce violent crime in blue cities where there are hundreds of shootings every weekend? Why not support our police, prosecute criminals, end no-cash bail, harden our schools, and do something that will actually make a difference in reducing the deaths by violent crime in this country?

Recess

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 13 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which the yeas and nays are ordered.

The House will resume proceedings on postponed questions at a later time.

Advanced Aviation Infrastructure Modernization Act

Mr. DeFazio. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 6270) to direct the Secretary of Transportation to establish a pilot program to promulgate regulations related to advanced air mobility infrastructure, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk reads the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

(a) Establishment.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall establish a pilot program to provide grants that—

(1) assist an eligible entity to plan for the development and deployment of infrastructure necessary for advanced aerial operations in the United States; and

(2) make funding available for costs directly related to construction of public-use vertiports associated with infrastructure.

(b) Planning Grants.—

(1) In General.—The Secretary shall provide grants to eligible entities to develop comprehensive plans under paragraph (2) related to AAM infrastructure.

(2) Comprehensive Plan.—

(A) In General.—Not later than 1 year after receiving a grant under this subsection, an eligible entity shall submit to the Secretary a comprehensive plan in a format that may be published on the website of the Department of Transportation.

(B) Plan Contents.—The Secretary shall establish content requirements for comprehensive plans submitted under this subsection, which may include the following:

(i) The identification of planned or potential public-use or private-use vertiport locations.

(ii) A description of infrastructure necessary to support AAM operations.

(iii) A description of types of planned or potential AAM vehicles.

(iv) The identification of physical and digital infrastructure required to meet the standards for vertiport design and performance characteristics established by the Federal Aviation Administration as in effect on the date on which the Secretary issues a grant to an eligible entity, including modifications to existing infrastructure and ground sensors, electric charging and other fueling requirements, electric utility requirements, wireless and cybersecurity requirements, and other necessary hardware or software.

(v) A description of potential environmental effects of planned construction or siting of public-use vertiports, including efforts to reduce the adverse effects of potential aviation noise.

(vi) A description of how planned public-use or private-use vertiport locations, including new or repurposed infrastructure, fit into existing State and local transportation systems and networks, including—

(I) connectivity to and from public transportation hubs and intermodal and multimodal facilities;

(II) opportunities to create new service to underserved areas using advanced aerial transportation, without compromising safety and efficiency of other facilities and airspace users; and

(III) any potential conflicts to existing aviation infrastructure that may arise from the proposed location of the vertiport.

(vii) A description of how public-use vertiport planning will be incorporated in State or metropolitan planning documents.

(viii) The identification of the process an eligible entity will undertake to ensure an adequate level of community engagement for planned public-use vertiport locations and planned or anticipated AAM operations, including engagement with underserved communities, individuals with disabilities, and racial and ethnic minorities, to address equity of access and other priorities.

(ix) The identification of the actions necessary to enable an eligible entity to undertake the construction of public-use vertiports, such as planning studies to assess existing infrastructure, environmental studies, studies of projected economic benefit to the community, lease or acquisition of an easement or land for new infrastructure, and activities related to other capital costs.

(x) The identification of State, local, or private sources of funding an eligible entity may use to assist with the construction or operation of a public-use vertiport.

(x) Application.—To apply for a grant under this subsection, an eligible entity shall provide to the Secretary an application in such form, at such time, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

(b) Selection.—

(A) In General.—In awarding grants under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider the following:

(i) Geographic diversity.

(ii) The need for comprehensive plans that—

(I) ensure the safe integration of AAM operations into the National Airspace System;

(II) improve transportation safety, connectivity, access, and equity in both rural and urban regions in the United States;

(III) leverage existing public transportation systems and intermodal and multimodal facilities;

(IV) reduce surface congestion and the environmental impacts of transportation;

(V) grow the economy and create jobs in the United States; and

(VI) encourage community engagement when planning for AAM related infrastructure.

(B) Priority.—The Secretary shall prioritize awarding grants under this subsection to eligible entities that partner with commercial AAM entities, institutions of higher education, research institutions, or other relevant stakeholders to develop and prepare a comprehensive plan.

(C) Grant Amount.—Each grant made under this subsection shall be made in an amount that is not more than $1,000,000.

(D) Briefing.—

(A) In General.—Not later than 180 days after the first comprehensive plan is submitted under paragraph (2), and every 180 days thereafter, the Secretary shall provide a briefing to the appropriate committees of Congress on the comprehensive plans submitted to the Secretary under such paragraph.

(B) Contents.—The briefing required under subparagraph (A) shall include—

(i) an evaluation of all planned or proposed public-use vertiport locations included in the comprehensive plans submitted under paragraph (2) and how such planned or proposed public-use vertiport locations may fit into the overall United States transportation system and network; and

(ii) a description of lessons and best practices learned through the review of comprehensive plans and how the Secretary will incorporate any such lessons or best practices into Federal standards or guidance for the design and operation of AAM infrastructure and facilities.

(c) CONSERVATION GRANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may award grants to covered recipients to carry out construction activities described under paragraph (2).

(2) ELIGIBLE USES.—A covered recipient may use grant funds awarded under this subsection for design, bidding, and environmental review activities, and other capital costs, as the Secretary determines appropriate, directly related to the construction of a public-use vertiport or associated infrastructure, or to the comprehensive plan submitted by such covered recipient.

(3) REQUIREMENTS.—The requirements of subsections (b) and (c) of section 67112 of title 49, United States Code, and section 50101 of such title, shall apply to a grant awarded under this subsection.

(4) LIMITATION.—The Secretary may not award a grant under this subsection—

(A) for the acquisition, conversion, or retrofitting of AAM aircraft; or

(B) for the construction of private-use vertiport infrastructure.

(5) GRANT TIMING.—The Secretary may not issue a grant under this subsection until—

(A) the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration has—

(i) issued type certificates for 2 or more models of aircraft designed to provide AAM transportation; and

(ii) published an advisory circular containing appropriate standards for vertiport design and performance characteristics and vertiport siting; and

(B) the Secretary has—

(i) determined that 2 or more AAM operators hold certificates under part 119 of title 14, Code of Federal Regulations, for such operations; and

(ii) published proposed rules to incorporate any such lessons or best practices into Federal standards or guidance for the design and operation of AAM infrastructure and facilities.

(6) METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATION.—The term “metropolitan planning organization” has the meaning given such term in section 5303(b) of title 49, United States Code.

(7) PUBLIC-USE VERTIPORT.—The term “public-use vertiport” means a designated location used or intended to be used for public purposes and operations by AAM operations, including the landing, takeoff, loading, taxing, parking, and storage of vertical take-off and landing aircraft.

(8) STATE.—The term “State” means a State of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Guam.

(9) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Transportation.

(10) VERTICAL TAKE-OFF AND LANDING AIRCRAFT.—The term “vertical take-off and landing aircraft” means an aircraft with lift/thrust units used to generate powered lift and control with 2 or more lift/thrust units used to provide lift during vertical take-off or landing.

SEC. 3. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act may be construed as conferring upon any person, State, local, or Tribal government the authority to determine the safety of any AAM operation or the feasibility of simultaneous operations by AAM and conventional aircraft within any given area of the National Airspace System.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) and the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon, the chairman of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield the Chair.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 6270, legislation sponsored by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. LARSEN) and the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. GRAVES).

With the recent passage of the landmark Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, Congress renewed its commitment to robust Federal investment in the nation’s airports and infrastructure to address the rising demand for air travel. As the needs of the traveling public evolve, we must build on this momentum to leverage innovative aviation technologies, such as advanced air mobility, called AAM, to help address future challenges.

The success of these efforts depends on early and consistent engagement with State and local communities to ensure that AAM infrastructure is safely and reliably integrated into the nation’s airspace system, accessible to all, and built to the appropriate Federal standards.

H.R. 6270 continues Congress’ thorough oversight of the emerging AAM industry and helps local communities across the country prepare for and take advantage of the tremendous potential of this technology.

The bill invests $25 million to establish a 2-year U.S. Department of Transportation pilot program to fund comprehensive planning grants for State, local, territorial, and Tribal governments to prepare for the deployment of AAM vertiports and related infrastructure in their communities.

These comprehensive plans may include details on potential vertiport locations; physical and digital infrastructure needs; potential environmental effects; connectivity to existing transportation systems; and strategies to ensure community engagement and equity.

The bill’s pilot program would also provide limited funding for some public vertiport construction activities, such as design, bidding, and environmental study activities, only after the FAA has certified at least two AAM aircraft models, issued airworthiness determinations for at least two AAM operators, and published an advisory circular on vertiport design and performance and siting standards, among other criteria.

H.R. 6270 has the support of cosponsors from both sides of the aisle and the endorsement of several organizations representing the U.S. aviation and aerospace sector, and State and local governments.

Mr. Speaker, I support this bipartisan legislation, and I urge my colleagues to do the same. I reserve the balance of my time...

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let’s start with the basics. What is advanced air mobility, AAM? This bill and the next one deal a fair amount with the concept. It is just... making sure that we have got in place a system so the remotely piloted or autonomous or vertical takeoff and landing aircraft are able to integrate into our existing air infrastructure.

Mr. Speaker. It is incredibly important that we do this in a way that is effective and that is safe. As the chairman said, Mr. Speaker, that is where H.R. 6270 comes in, the Advanced Aviation Infrastructure Modernization Act. It does establish a pilot program which would award grants related to the planning and construction of this AAM.

We all know that the United States has a robust network of general aviation airports and heliports. Their impact on most every community in America is probably not fully grasped. They are a critically important part of our Nation’s infrastructure.

We want to make sure that those facilities have the necessary infrastructure in place for innovative new entrants so we can make sure our Nation’s airports and airspace system are used by these innovative new entrants in a way that is safe and safely integrate with existing traffic.

Of course, as is the case with most transportation planning, it is State and local experts that are best suited to help plan for the integration of AAM into our national system.

Mr. Speaker, that is the approach that this bill takes. It doesn’t give all the money to USDOT. It makes sure that these grants are targeted at the State and local level so we can get the best bang for our buck. Making certain that AAM works for all of our constituent communities is the goal. It is the goal of this bill. I look forward to seeing how different communities embrace advanced air mobility operations.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Subcommittee Chairman RICK LARSEN and Ranking Member GARRET GRAVES for their work and leadership on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of the legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I am prepared to close, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, H.R. 6270 takes an important step in giving our State and local transportation planning experts the tools they need to continue the introduction of advanced air mobility aircraft.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of the legislation, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (S. 516) to plan for and coordinate efforts to integrate advanced air mobility aircraft into the national airspace system, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the ‘Advanced Air Mobility Coordination and Leadership Act’.

SEC. 2. ADVANCED AIR MOBILITY WORKING GROUP.
(a) IN GENERAL.—No later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation shall establish an advanced air mobility interagency working group (in this section referred to as the ‘working group’).

(b) PURPOSE.—Advanced Air Mobility represents a key area of sustainable transportation and economic growth for the United States and it is imperative that the Federal Government foster leadership and interagency collaboration in the adoption and deployment of this technology. The purpose of the working group established under this section shall be to plan for and coordinate efforts related to safety, operations, infrastructure, physical security and cybersecurity, and Federal investment necessary for maturation of the AAM ecosystem in the United States, particularly passenger-carrying aircraft, in order to—

(1) grow new transportation options;

(2) amplify economic activity and jobs;

(3) advance environmental sustainability and new technologies; and

(4) support emergency preparedness and competitiveness.

(c) MEMBERSHIP.—No later than 60 days after the establishment of the working group under subsection (a), the Secretary of Transportation shall—

(1) appoint the Under Secretary of Transportation for Policy to chair the working group;

(2) designate not less than 1 additional representative to participate on the working group from each of—

(A) the Department of Transportation; and

(B) the Federal Aviation Administration; and

(3) invite the heads of each of the following departments or agencies to designate not less than 1 representative to participate on the working group, including—

(A) the National Aeronautics and Space Administration;

(B) the Department of Commerce;

(C) the Department of Defense;

(D) the Department of Energy;

(E) the Department of Homeland Security;

(F) the Department of Agriculture;

(G) the Department of Labor;

(H) the Federal Communications Commission; and

(i) such other departments or agencies as the Secretary of Transportation determines appropriate.

(d) COORDINATION.—(i) IN GENERAL.—The working group shall engage with State, local, and Tribal governments, aviation industry and labor stakeholders, stakeholder associations, and others determined appropriate by the Secretary of Transportation and the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, including—

(A) manufacturers of aircraft, avionics, propulsion systems, structures, and air traffic management systems;
(B) commercial air carriers, commercial operators, unmanned aircraft system operators, and general aviation operators, including helicopter operators;
(C) aeronautical research organizations, model airplane hobbyists, manufacturers of AAM aircraft;
(D) airports, heliports, fixed-base operators;
(E) certified labor representatives for pilots and aircraft traffic control specialists employed by the Federal Aviation Administration, aircraft mechanics, and aviation safety inspectors;
(F) State, local, and Tribal officials or public agencies, with representation from both urban and rural areas;
(G) any other organization identified by the Secretary of Transportation as representing interest in or performing an activity related to AAM;
(H) groups representing environmental interests;
(I) electric utilities, energy providers and energy market people and entities;
(J) academia with experience working with industry on new technology and commercialization;
(K) groups representing the telecommunications industry; and
(L) aviation training and maintenance providers.

(2) ADVISORY COMMITTEES.—The Secretary of Transportation and Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration may use such Federal advisory committees as may be appropriate to coordinate with the entities listed in paragraph (1).

(3) REVIEW AND EXAMINATION.—Not later than 1 year after the working group is established under subsection (a), the working group shall complete a review and examination of, at a minimum—

(1) the steps that will mature AAM aircraft operations, concepts, and regulatory frameworks beyond initial operations;
(2) the air traffic management and safety concepts that might be considered as part of evolving AAM to higher levels of traffic density;
(3) current Federal programs and policies that could be leveraged to advance the maturation of the AAM industry;
(4) infrastructure, including aviation, cybersecurity, telecommunication, multimodal, and utility entities, as necessary to accommodate and support expanded operations of AAM after initial implementation;
(5) any needed to ensure a robust and secure domestic supply chain;
(6) anticipated benefits associated with AAM aircraft operations, including economic, emergency and natural disaster response, and transportation benefits;
(7) the interests, roles, and responsibilities of Federal, State, local, and Tribal governments affected by AAM aircraft operations; and
(8) other factors that may limit the full potential of the AAM industry, including community acceptance or restrictions of such operations.

(f) AAM NATIONAL STRATEGY.—Based on the review and examination performed under subsection (e), the working group shall develop an AAM National Strategy that includes—

(1) recommendations regarding the safety, operations, security, infrastructure, air traffic concepts, and other Federal investment or actions necessary to support the evolution of early AAM to higher levels of activity and societal benefit; and
(2) a comprehensive plan detailing the roles and responsibilities of each Federal department and agency, and of State, local, and Tribal governments, necessary to facilitate or implement the recommendations developed under paragraph (1).

(g) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the completion of the review and examination performed under subsection (e), the working group shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report—

(1) detailing findings from the review and examination performed under subsection (e); and
(2) providing the AAM National Strategy, including the plan and associated recommendations developed under subsection (f).

(h) EVALUATION OF TERMINATION OF WORKING GROUP.—Not later than 30 days after the date on which the working group submits the report required under subsection (g), the Secretary of Transportation shall evaluate the work of the working group and shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of such decision.

DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section and section 3:

(1) ADVANCED AIR MOBILITY; AAM.—The terms “advanced air mobility” and “AAM” mean a transportation system that transports people and property by air between two points in the United States using aircraft with advanced technologies, including electric aircraft or electric vertical take-off and landing aircraft, in both controlled and uncontrolled airspace.

(2) APPLICABLE COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS.—The terms “applicable committees of Congress” means—

(A) the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate; and
(B) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

(3) ELECTRIC AIRCRAFT.—The term “electric aircraft” means an aircraft with a fully electric propulsion system used for flight.

(4) FIXED-BASE OPERATOR.—The term “fixed-base operator” means a business that granted the right by an airport sponsor or heliport sponsor to operate on an airport or heliport and provide aeronautical services, including fueling and charging, aircraft hangar parking services, and maintenance.

(5) STATE.—The term “State” has the meaning given such term in section 47102 of title 49, United States Code.

(6) VERTICAL TAKE-OFF AND LANDING.—The term “vertical take-off and landing” means an aircraft with lift/thrust units used to generate powered lift and control and with two or more lift/thrust units used to provide lift during vertical take-off or landing.

SEC. 3. GAO STUDY AND REPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall—

(1) conduct a study on the interests, roles, and responsibilities of Federal, State, local, and Tribal governments affected by AAM aircraft and operations; and
(2) submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on the study, including the Comptroller General’s findings and conclusions.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—In conducting the study defined under subsection (a), the Comptroller General shall review the following:

(1) the state of the law as of the enactment of this Act with respect to Federal authority over operations of AAM aircraft systems in the national airspace system.
(2) the state of the law as of the enactment of this Act with respect to State, local, and Tribal authority over operations of AAM aircraft in the national airspace system.
(3) potential gaps between authorities under paragraphs (1) and (2).

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the completion of the study defined under subsection (a), the Comptroller General shall submit a report to the Committees of Congress that includes a review of the findings and conclusions of the study and recommendations to close any gaps identified in the study.

(d) NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—Not later than six months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall establish a National Advisory Committee to advise the Comptroller General on the content of the study defined under subsection (a). The National Advisory Committee shall—

(1) include representatives of the following:
(A) academia with experience working with industry on new technology and commercialization;
(B) electric utilities, energy providers and energy market people and entities;
(C) fixed-base operators;
(D) airports, heliports, fixed-base operators;
(E) certified labor representatives for pilots and aircraft traffic control specialists employed by the Federal Aviation Administration, aircraft mechanics, and aviation safety inspectors;
(F) State, local, and Tribal officials or public agencies, with representation from both urban and rural areas;
(G) any other organization identified by the Secretary of Transportation as representing interest in or performing an activity related to AAM;
(H) groups representing environmental interests;
(I) electric utilities, energy providers and energy market people and entities;
(J) academia with experience working with industry on new technology and commercialization;
(K) groups representing the telecommunications industry; and
(L) aviation training and maintenance providers.

(f) AAM NATIONAL STRATEGY.—Based on the results of the study defined under subsection (a), the National Advisory Committee shall develop an AAM National Strategy that includes—

(1) recommendations regarding the safety, operations, security, infrastructure, air traffic concepts, and other Federal investment or actions necessary to support the evolution of early AAM to higher levels of activity and societal benefit; and
(2) a comprehensive plan detailing the roles and responsibilities of each Federal department and agency, and of State, local, and Tribal governments, necessary to facilitate or implement the recommendations developed under paragraph (1).

(g) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the completion of the study defined under subsection (a), the National Advisory Committee shall submit a report to the Committees of Congress that includes a review of the findings and conclusions of the study and recommendations to close any gaps identified in the study.

SEC. 4. TRANSPORTATION SECURITY AND INSPECTION AGENCY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation shall ensure that the inspectors of the Transportation Security Administration have appropriate training in the advanced air mobility sector, and shall—

(1) include the training in the inspectors’ daily duties.
(2) provide training to the inspectors on the latest technologies and practices in the advanced air mobility sector.

(b) REMOVE HURDLES.—The Secretary of Transportation shall remove any existing barriers or hurdles that may prevent the Transportation Security Administration from implementing the training required under subsection (a).

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Transportation Security Administration shall submit a report to the Committees of Congress that includes—

(1) a description of the training provided to the inspectors under subsection (a);
(2) an assessment of the effectiveness of the training in the inspector’s daily duties;
(3) any recommendations for further training or resources that the Transportation Security Administration believes necessary to improve the training provided to the inspectors; and
(4) the strategies implemented by the Transportation Security Administration to ensure that the training requirements under subsection (a) are met.

SEC. 5. AERIAL ROBOTICS.—

(a) TRAINING AND EDUCATION.—The Secretary of Transportation, in coordination with the Secretary of Defense, shall ensure that the Department of Defense and the Department of Transportation collaborate to establish a training and education program for aerial robotics.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation, in coordination with the Secretary of Defense, shall submit a report to the Committees of Congress that includes—

(1) a description of the training and education program established under subsection (a);
(2) an assessment of the effectiveness of the training and education program in meeting the needs of aerial robotics operators;
(3) any recommendations for further training or resources that the Department of Transportation believes necessary to improve the training and education program; and
(4) the strategies implemented by the Department of Transportation to ensure that the training and education program requirements under subsection (a) are met.

SEC. 6. TECHNOLOGY AND INNOVATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation shall conduct a study on the development and deployment of advanced technologies in the advanced air mobility sector, and shall—

(1) include the evaluation of the current state of technology development and deployment in the advanced air mobility sector;
(2) assess the potential for advanced air mobility technologies to improve safety, efficiency, and environmental impact in the transportation sector;
(3) identify any existing or potential barriers to the development and deployment of advanced air mobility technologies;
(4) recommend any actions necessary to address the barriers identified in paragraph (3); and
(5) submit a report to the Committees of Congress that includes a review of the findings and conclusions of the study and recommendations to close any gaps identified in the study.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—In conducting the study defined under subsection (a), the Secretary of Transportation shall—

(1) include representatives of the following:
(A) academia with experience working with industry on new technology and commercialization;
(B) electric utilities, energy providers and energy market people and entities;
(C) fixed-base operators;
Mr. Speaker, I commend Congressmen GRAVES, for their bipartisan effort.

Mr. Speaker, I support S. 516, as amended, and I urge all my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, to maintain safe airspace, we know we have to have coordination. Think about all of the moving parts that are required to keep people safe in that shared resource. That kind of coordination is also important at the Federal level if we want to keep everybody safe, and if we want to make sure AAM keeps moving in the right direction.

That is what S. 516 does, the Advanced Air Mobility Coordination and Leadership Act. It makes sure that we are able to continue moving forward and that AAM has the Federal support it needs from a variety of agencies to be successful.

As the chairman mentioned, we had a similar bill, H.R. 1339, which passed the House overwhelmingly, 383 yeas to 41 nays.

I think we all realize that that kind of strong bipartisan support is not always typical—around here as we would like. Of course, this has got a Senate number so, of course, we have strong bicameral support as well. Indeed, the text that is before us today has been amended, and so it reflects language that has been negotiated and agreed upon, Mr. Speaker, by both Chambers.

This sort of bipartisan, bicameral agreement ensures that industry and government can start to hash out these questions on the tough and sometimes thorny issues that have to be addressed so that we make sure that innovative new entrants are able to operate safely within our transportation system.

We know that it is not always easy to deal with the Senate—our colleagues on the other side of the Capitol—but my hope is that once we pass this legislation, they will quickly take up the amended bill and send it to the President's desk for speedy signing into law.

Mr. Speaker, I commend Congresswoman SHARICE DAVIES, as well as Aerial, Sub-chairmember GARRET GRAVES, whom I am normally loath to say anything good about, but in this instance, I will. I thank them both for their leadership on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of this legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. OBERNOLTE).

Mr. OBERNOLTE. Mr. Speaker, advanced air mobility has the potential to revolutionize personal transportation in the United States.

Imagine a future just a few years from now where instead of summoning a taxi, Mr. Speaker, you walk several blocks to a nearby vertiport where an autonomous aerial vehicle comes down to pick you up, hovers briefly, touches down, the doors open for you, and you take off to your destination at a cost similar to calling an Uber today. That is the potential of advanced air mobility. Unfortunately, it is going to require the coordination and cooperation of many different Federal, State, and local government agencies to realize its potential.

There are many thorny problems that have to be solved before that reality is available to us, for example, problems around the certification of these vehicles and problems around the regulation of the industry.

Are they regulated like a taxi? Who pays for and conducts the planning for these vertiports? What considerations are there for airport noise? What certification standards surround the autonomous vehicle software that controls the aerial vehicles? All of these are problems that will have to be solved before this can become a reality.

If we are not careful about laying the foundation for success with this industry, then, unfortunately, regulation will serve to crush this optimistic future instead of catalyzing it.

That is why I am so happy that we are considering two important bills with respect to advanced air mobility on the floor of the House today. The first of these bills will establish a working group of different government agencies whose coordination and cooperation will be necessary to solve some of these thorny problems that face this burgeoning industry.

The second of these bills will establish a new grant program for the planning and development of the infrastructure necessary to support advanced air mobility.

Mr. Speaker, together these bills represent a very meaningful first investment in this incredibly exciting new industry. I urge support, and I am happy to see the House take up these bills tonight.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from California just did a wonderful job raising off a number of key questions that policymakers have to settle on before we can make sure that AAM is safely integrated into our existing airports and airspace. This bill will do much to make sure that we have the coordination that will be necessary to answer those questions and move forward to not impede it but also to protect safety.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all of my colleagues to support this legislation, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, we have just heard the bipartisan consensus expressed by the two speakers on that side about the looming extraordinary importance of this industry and how we have to get it right as we move forward to not impede it but also to protect safety.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly recommend this legislation to my colleagues, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by Gentleman from California (Mr. DEFAZIO) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, S. 516, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. GOOD of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(s) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion are postponed.

POST-DISASTER ASSISTANCE ONLINE ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2020) to provide for an online repository for certain reporting requirements for recipients of Federal disaster assistance, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 2020
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Post-Disaster Assistance Online Accountability Act".

SEC. 2. SUBPOENA FOR TRANSPARENCY OF DISASTER ASSISTANCE.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF REPOSITORY FOR REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the head of each covered Federal agency, shall establish a repository within the website established under section 200 of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act of 2006 (31 U.S.C. 6101 note) to publish the information required to be made available to the public under this section.

(b) SUBMISSION OF INFORMATION BY FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Not later than 30 days after the end of a calendar quarter, each covered Federal agency that made disaster assistance available to an eligible recipient during such quarter shall, in coordination with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, make available to the public on the subpage established under subsection (a) the information described in subsection (c), and ensure that this subpage and data set of the agency is machine-readable.

(c) INFORMATION REQUIRED.—The information described in this subsection is, with respect to that agency's disaster assistance provided by the covered Federal agency—

(1) the total amount of disaster assistance provided by the agency during such quarter;

(2) the location of disaster assistance provided by the agency that was expended or obligated to projects or activities; and

(3) a detailed list of all projects or activities for which disaster assistance dispersed by the agency was expended, obligated, or used, including—

(A) the name of the project or activity;

(B) a description of the project or activity;

(C) an evaluation of the completion status of the project or activity;

(D) any award identification number assigned to the project;

(E) the Catalog for Disaster Assistance number assigned by the Federal Emergency Management Agency;

(F) the location of the project, including ZIP codes; and

(G) any reporting requirement information being collected by a covered Federal agency with respect to that agency's disaster assistance.

(d) GUIDANCE.—Each covered Federal agency, in coordination with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and the Secretary of the Treasury, shall issue such guidance as is necessary to meet the requirements of this Act.

(e) AGREEMENT WITH PRIVATE ENTITY.—The Director, if necessary for purposes of transparency, may enter into an agreement with a private entity, including a nonprofit organization, to develop the subpage required under this section.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act, the following definitions apply:

(1) COVERED FEDERAL AGENCY.—The term "covered Federal agency" means—

(A) any agency providing assistance under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.);

(B) the Small Business Administration; and

(C) the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

(2) DISASTER ASSISTANCE.—The term "disaster assistance" means any funds that are made available by the Federal Government in response to a specified natural disaster, including—

(A) any assistance provided by the Administrator of the Small Business Administration as a result of a disaster declared under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b));

(B) any assistance provided by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for—

(i) activities authorized under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5301 et seq.) related to disaster relief, long-term recovery, restoration of infrastructure and housing, and economic revitalization in the most impacted and distressed areas resulting from a major disaster declared pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), and

(ii) flood insurance coverage provided under the National Flood Insurance Program pursuant to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 4001 et seq.); and

(C) any assistance provided under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.).

(3) ELIGIBLE RECIPIENT.—The term "eligible recipient"—

(A) means any entity that receives disaster assistance directly from the Federal Government (including disaster assistance received through grant, loan, or contract) other than an individual; and

(B) includes a State that receives disaster assistance.

(4) SPECIFIED NATURAL DISASTER.—The term "specified natural disaster" means—

(A) a fire on public or private forest land or grassland described in section 420 of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5187);

(B) a major disaster declared by the President under section 401 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 5170);

(C) an emergency declared by the President under section 501 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 5191); and

(D) any other natural disaster for which a disaster declaration is made by the Federal Government.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) and the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 2020.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2020. This bill would create a new online system for tracking Federal disaster projects and assistance.

When a major disaster strikes, the American people should know how and where their disaster funds are being spent without wading through reams of governmental paperwork. This legislation simplifies the data collection process for Federal disaster recovery projects.

To increase transparency to the public, the bill directs the Director of the Office of Management and Budget to create a page on USAspending.gov where everyone can track agency disaster recovery activities and the amount of assistance expended by an agency on a quarterly basis. Federal agencies need to be held accountable to the victims of disasters so that they can have peace of mind when they are at their most vulnerable.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides to join me and support this legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.
Any reporting requirement information collected by a covered Federal agency with respect to that agency’s disaster assistance. H.R. 2020 will require the submission of information by covered federal agencies every 3 months.

When enacted, H.R. 2020 would include natural disasters that are major disasters or emergency declared by the President as well as any other natural disaster made by the Federal Government.

Within the past decade, we have witnessed an increase in the number of natural disasters and extreme weather as a result of climate change. In 2021, the NOAA National Centers for Environmental Information (NCEI) found that the United States experienced 20 separate billion-dollar weather and climate disasters. Houston alone has been the site of 7 federally declared disasters since 2015 notably including Hurricane Harvey and Winter Storm Uri.

The growing number of natural disasters makes this legislation increasingly relevant to maintain accountability of post-disaster funds. H.R. 2020 creates a necessary online reference portal that will be accessible by mayors, legislators, and residents to know the status of funds and their use.

These funds are vital to communities devastated by natural disasters and it is important that we ensure the funds are used for their assigned use.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 2020.

Mr. Speaker, again, as the gentleman has just said, having some transparency when you have a number of Federal agencies coming into a community has just been devastated, whether it is in my region by wildfire or on the Gulf Coast by a hurricane or in the Midwest and the South by tornado, people need timely and good information about how the disaster relief is flowing from the Federal Government, in what amounts, and to what places so that there can be actual oversight by people who were directly impacted by the disaster.

That is why I believe this legislation has tremendous merit. I recommend that my colleagues lend their full support to it, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON LEE, Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2020, the “Post-Disaster Assistance Accountability Act.” This legislation has tremendous merit. I recommend that my colleagues lend their full support to it, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question are postponed.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(a) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question are postponed.

SMALL STATE AND RURAL RESCUE ACT

Mr. DeFazio. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 7211) to amend the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, review a final rule of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Small State and Rural Rescue Act”.

SEC. 2. DESIGNATION OF SMALL STATE AND RURAL ADVOCATE. Section 326(e) of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5165d) is amended—

(a) In general.—The Comptroller General shall conduct a review of the Federal Emergency Management Agency’s implementation of the Act’s final rule, published on March 21, 2019, amending section 206.4(b) of title 44, Code of Federal Regulations, by considering factors considered when evaluating a Governor’s request for a major disaster declaration, which revised the factors that the Agency considers when evaluating a Governor’s request for a major disaster declaration authorizing individual assistance under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.).

(b) Scope.—The review required under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An assessment of the criteria used by the Agency to assess individual assistance requests following a major disaster declaration authorizing individual assistance.

(2) An assessment of the consistency with which the Agency uses the updated Individual Assistance Declaration Factors when assessing the impact of individual community needs after a major declaration request releases.

(3) An assessment of the impact, if any, of using the updated Individual Assistance Declaration Factors has had on equity in disaster recovery outcomes.

(4) Recommendations to improve the use of the Individual Assistance Declaration Factors to increase equity in disaster recovery outcomes.

(c) Report.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the
Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 7211.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 7211. This bill amends the Stafford Act to expand the responsibilities of the Federal Emergency Management Agency’s Small State Rural Advocate so they can better assist smaller States and rural communities that have difficulty dealing with the forms and all the requirements to apply for disaster funding.

When disaster strikes the heart of a small or rural community, a significant percentage of the overall infrastructure or housing stock is often damaged or destroyed. However, the community’s size may make the total dollar amount of damage seem too low for FEMA to authorize Federal assistance.

This legislation will enable the Small State Rural Advocate to better help States and communities that are impacted by disaster. It also directs the advocate to consider the unique characteristics of small communities and the challenges they face in accessing Federal aid.

Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this legislation, and I yield my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 7211.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield no further speakers. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I don’t have any other speakers, so I would view this as my closing.

When you see a small community get hit by a disaster, it just breaks your heart. I remember, as chief of staff to Governor Daugaard, being on the ground in Wessington Springs just hours after a tornado ripped up that town. I was struck by this young mayor, Meliessa Mebius, a part-time mayor, as small-town mayors are. She didn’t know how to navigate the FEMA process. She didn’t know what to do or anything like that.

Mr. Speaker, the Small State and Rural Rescue Act is about fairness for rural communities. I firmly believe we should pass it into law, and I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 7211.

When you see a small community get hit by a disaster, it just breaks your heart. I remember, as chief of staff to Governor Daugaard, being on the ground in Wessington Springs just hours after a tornado ripped up that town. I was struck by this young mayor, Meliessa Mebius, a part-time mayor, as small-town mayors are. She didn’t know how to navigate the FEMA process. She didn’t know what to do or anything like that.

Mr. Speaker, the Small State and Rural Rescue Act is about fairness for rural communities. I firmly believe we should pass it into law, and I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 7211.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield no further speakers. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I don’t have any other speakers, so I would view this as my closing.

“(L) A statement that the charges are consistent with any of Federal Maritime Commission rules with respect to detention and demurrage.

“(O) A statement that the common carrier’s performance did not cause or contribute to the underlying invoiced charges.

“(e) SAFE HARBOR.—If a non-vessel operating common carrier, or anyone acting on its behalf or under its authority, shall determine that a charge, then the ocean common carrier shall be subject to refunds or penalties pursuant to subsection (d).

“(f) ELIMINATION OF CHARGE OBLIGATION.—In order to eliminate the inclusion of any demurrage or detention charges, the Federal Maritime Commission shall publish a final rule not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

“(1) RULEMAKING ON DEMURRAGE OR DETENTION CHARGES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 45 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Maritime Commission shall initiate a rulemaking further defining prohibited practices by common carriers, marine terminal operators, shippers, and ocean transportation providers. The rule shall be subject to refund or penalties pursuant to subsection (d).

(2) CONTENTS.—The rule under paragraph (1) shall address the issues identified in the final rule published on May 18, 2020, entitled “Interim Rule on Demurrage and Detention Under the Shipping Act” (or successor rule), including a determination of which parties may be appropriately billed for any demurrage, detention, or other similar per container charges.

(c) RULEMAKING ON UNFAIR OR UNJUSTLY DISCRIMINATORY METHODS.—Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Maritime Commission shall initiate a rulemaking further defining unfair or unjustly discriminatory methods with respect to the total import and export tonnage and the total loaded and empty 20-foot equivalent units per vessel (making port in the United States, including any territory or possession of the United States) operated by each ocean common carrier covered under this chapter. Ocean common carriers under this chapter shall provide the Federal Maritime Commission with the information contained in the report, as determined by the Commission, for completion of this report.”.

SEC. 8. ASSESSMENT OF PENALTIES OR REFUNDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title 46, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in section 41107—

(A) in the section heading, by inserting “or refunds” after “penalty”;

(B) in subsection (a), by inserting “or, in addition to or in lieu of a civil penalty, is liable for the refund of a charge” after “civil penalty”; and

(C) in subsection (b), by inserting “or, in addition to or in lieu of a civil penalty, the refund of a charge,” after “civil penalty”; and

(2) section 41109 is amended—

(A) by striking subsections (a) and (b) and inserting the following:

“(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—Until a matter is referred to the Attorney General, the Federal Maritime Commission may—

(1) after notice and opportunity for a hearing, in accordance with this part—

(i) assess a civil penalty; or

(ii) in addition to, or in lieu of, assessing a civil penalty pursuant to subparagraph (A), order a refund of money (including additional amounts in accordance with section 41305(c)), subject to subsection (b)(2); and

(2) in a proceeding, with or without conditions, a civil penalty or refund imposed under paragraph (1).

(B) DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.—

(i) FACTORS FOR CONSIDERATION.—In determining the amount of a civil penalty assessed or refund of money ordered pursuant to subsection (a), the Federal Maritime Commission shall take into consideration—

(I) the nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the violation committed;

(ii) the degree of culpability;

(iii) any history of prior offenses;

(iv) the ability to pay; and

(v) such other matters as justice may require;

and (C) the amount of any refund of money ordered pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(B).

(2) COMMENSURATE REDUCTION IN CIVIL PENALTY.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In any case in which the Federal Maritime Commission orders a refund of money pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(B) in addition to assessing a civil penalty pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(A), the amount of the civil penalty assessed shall be decreased by an amount that is included in the refund of money in excess of the actual injury (as defined in section 41305(a)).

(B) TREATMENT OF REFUNDS.—A refund of money ordered pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(B) shall be—

(i) considered to be compensation paid to the applicable claimant; and

(ii) deducted from the total amount of damages awarded to that claimant in a civil action against the violator relating to the applicable violation.

(B) in subsection (c), by striking “may not be imposed” and inserting “or refund of money under paragraph (A) or (B), respectively, of subsection (a)(1) may not be imposed”;

(C) in subsection (e), by inserting “or order of refund money after “penalty’’;

(D) in subsection (f), by inserting “or that is ordered to refund money,” after “assembled’’; and

(E) in subsection (g), in the first sentence, by inserting “or a refund required under this section” after “penalty’’.

SEC. 9. DATA COLLECTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 413 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“§ 41110. Data collection.”

The Federal Maritime Commission shall publish on its website a quarterly report to detail the total import and export tonnage and the total loaded and empty 20-foot equivalent units per vessel (making port in the United States, including any territory or possession of the United States) operated by each ocean common carrier covered under this chapter. Ocean common carriers under this chapter shall provide the Federal Maritime Commission with the information contained in the report, as determined by the Commission, for completion of this report.”.

SEC. 10. CHARGE COMPLAINTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 413 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

(1) any person may submit to the Federal Maritime Commission a complaint or petition alleging that the Commission shall accept, information concerning complaints about charges assessed by a common carrier. The information submitted to the Commission shall include the bill of lading numbers and invoices, and may include any other relevant information.

(2) INVESTIGATION.—Upon receipt of a submission under subsection (a), with respect to a charge assessed by a common carrier, the Commission shall promptly investigate the charge with regard to compliance with section 41104(a) and section 41102. The common carrier shall—

(i) be provided an opportunity to submit additional information related to the charge in question; and

(ii) bear the burden of establishing the reasonableness of any demurrage or detention charges pursuant to section 41305(a) of title 46, Code of Federal Regulations (or successor regulations).

(c) REFUND.—Upon receipt of submissions under subsection (a), if the Commission determines that a charge does not comply with section 41104(a) or 41102, the Commission shall promptly order the refund of charges paid.

(d) PENALTIES.—In the event of a finding that a charge does not comply with section 41104(a) or 41102 after submission under subsection (a), a civil penalty under section 41107 shall be applied to the common carrier making such charge.

(e) CONSIDERATIONS.—If the common carrier assessing the charge fails to decrease the capacity of a non-vessel-operating common carrier, the Commission shall, while conducting an investigation under subsection (b), consider—

(i) whether the non-vessel-operating common carrier is responsible for the noncompliant assessment of the charge, in whole or in part;

(ii) whether another party is ultimately responsible in whole or in part and potentially subject to action under subsections (c) and (d); and

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The analysis for chapter 413 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

SEC. 11. INVESTIGATIONS.

(a) AMENDMENTS.—Section 41302 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“§ 41310. Data collection.”

The Federal Maritime Commission shall publish on its website a quarterly report to detail the total import and export tonnage and the total loaded and empty 20-foot equivalent units per vessel (making port in the United States, including any territory or possession of the United States) operated by each ocean common carrier covered under this chapter. Ocean common carriers under this chapter shall provide the Federal Maritime Commission with the information contained in the report, as determined by the Commission, for completion of this report.”.

JOHN GARAMENDI, and DUSTY JOHNSON, particularly want to express great appreciation to find common ground to address the apparent during the pandemic.

The legislation to strengthen our Nation's supply chain and address unfair shipping practices.

For instance, large ocean carrier conglomerates taking advantage of American exporters and importers. In fact, they are responsible for billions of dollars of losses and in many cases, straight-out fraud.

The COVID–19 pandemic has altered the practice of business worldwide, particularly the shipping industry, which is integral to the well-being of our economy.

The Ocean shipping Reform Act of 2022 gives the Federal Maritime Commission broader authority to protect exporters, importers, and consumers from unfair practices by expanding its oversight and enforcement capabilities, and it amends title 46 to increase penalties for those using them.

The Bill works in harmony with actions taken by President Biden, the Department of Transportation, and the Department of Homeland Security to make pathways for the shipping community to improve its internal communication and, in turn, relieve congestion at ports.

In closing, I stress that this legislation is vital for ensuring fair and efficient shipping, which is integral to the well-being of our economy.

Allow me, once again, to thank Representatives GARAMENDI and JOHNSON for their leadership. I look forward to unanimous passage in the House, even if a vote is called for.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of S. 3580, the Ocean Shipping Reform Act of 2022, bipartisan and bicameral legislation to strengthen our Nation’s supply chain and address unfair shipping practices, which became broadly apparent during the pandemic.

Once again, we have come together to find common ground to address the needs of the American people. I particularly want to express great appreciation for the extraordinary leadership of my colleague from California, JOHN GARAMENDI, and DUSTY JOHNSON, for their tireless work fighting for this legislation.

I would also like to acknowledge SAM GRAVES, the ranking member of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation Subcommittee Chair, SALUD CARBAJAL, and Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation Subcommittee Ranking Member Bob Gibbs. Their contributions were many, and I applaud the time they took to work with all the stakeholders.

The COVID–19 pandemic has altered the practice of business worldwide, permanently. It shattered factories, changed consumer demand, and inundated our ports with containers. In no other time have we had such an unprecedented need for a resilient supply chain, yet if anything, the trials of the past 2 years have highlighted the inefficiencies of this system, both domestically and internationally.

One response will be, hopefully, with the COMPETES Act, to onshore critical industries and components in the future. But the other is to deal with the inefficient and existing system during that transition.

The importance of the maritime sector as part of America’s supply chain cannot be overstated. $4.6 trillion in activity takes place annually at all the U.S. seaports.

Despite historic demand and profit levels, we have been alerted to instances of large ocean carrier conglomerates taking advantage of American exporters and importers. In fact, the number of shipping conglomerates in the world enjoyed more profits last year than the total of their profits in the previous decade. We might call that price gouging.

Foreign-flag commercial carriers transport more than 98 percent of U.S. foreign commerce. Again, we need more significant steps to rebuild a U.S. maritime industry so, as a maritime nation, we are not dependent upon Communist China and other places, a whole bunch of developing or even non-existant countries with flags of convenience that are substantially under the thumb of the Chinese.

Foreign-flag commercial carriers transport 98 percent, as I said, which means we must be robust in our approach to the oversight and enforcement of trade to secure fairness and economic prosperity.

The Ocean Shipping Reform Act of 2022 gives the Federal Maritime Commission broader authority to protect exporters, importers, and consumers from unfair practices by expanding its oversight and enforcement capabilities, and it amends title 46 to increase penalties for those using them.

These are the hallmarks of making up the following written confirmation that the fees charged are fair and comply with Federal regulations and establishing that shippers have straightforward and appropriate recourse in the event of improper detention and demurrage charges or other unfair shipping practices.

This legislation also authorizes funding levels that would adequately equip the Federal Maritime Commission to utilize its expanded oversight and enforcement capabilities. Specifically, the legislation increases the FMC’s authority from $32.9 million in 2022 to $49.2 million in fiscal year 2025, a 50 percent increase over 4 years.

This increase would ensure that key leadership positions remain filled at a time when one in five current FMC employees are eligible to retire and allow for the hiring of additional staff to improve the Commission’s enforcement actions and provide timely information and dispute resolution assistance to consumers.

The Transportation and Infrastructure Committee has held multiple hearings focusing on relieving the strain on our supply chain. One realization we repeatedly hear is that increased data transparency and information sharing are essential to reducing lag time at trade-off points in the supply chain.

The supply chain consists of thousands of moving pieces—vessels, trucks, trains, planes—that are controlled by small teams of people making their decisions about cargo loading, timing, and routes based on weather, pricing, and other factors. We need to make pathways for all players in this system to talk to each other and share real-time information with their supply chain partners so that the goods keep flowing even when a shipper’s transit plans change.

This Bill works in harmony with actions taken by President Biden, the Department of Transportation, and the Department of Homeland Security to make pathways for the shipping community to improve its internal communication and, in turn, relieve congestion at ports.

In closing, I stress that this legislation is vital for ensuring fair and efficient shipping, which is integral to the well-being of our economy.

Allow me, once again, to thank Representatives GARAMENDI and JOHNSON for their leadership. I look forward to unanimous passage in the House, even if a vote is called for.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, one of my favorite movies is the 1993 comedy starring Bill Murray, “Groundhog Day.” In that movie, every day when Bill Murray wakes up, he goes through the same set of activities and processes. I can’t help but feel a little bit like Bill Murray, given that this is the fourth time this bill has been before us since the Ocean Shipping Act of 2022, even that the leadership of the Federal Maritime Commission is filled at any given time.

First, passed it in December as a larger package of legislation.

Now, we have before us the Senate bill, and I do think that we are well positioned to get this across the finish line.

I thank the chairman for his kind words earlier. He mentioned the word “tireless.” When it comes to talking about Mr. GARAMENDI, I would also use...

Mr. GRAVES. Mr. Speaker, I yield to Mr. GARAMENDI.

Mr. GARAMENDI. Mr. Speaker, I yield to Mr. DEFAZIO.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GRAVES), who played a very principal role in this legislation.
Some nine foreign-flagged carriers now dominate the global ocean shipping industry, several of which are effectively controlled by foreign governments or foreign state-owned enterprises.

These foreign-flagged ocean carriers have an alliance with each other. They are not subject to the normal American laws of anticompetitive behavior so they go about their business. In that business, we have found the American consumer and the American exporter are at a disadvantage.

The global COVID–19 pandemic made all of these longstanding issues in the ocean shipping industry and highlighted the staggering vulnerabilities in the integrated supply chain that drives global commerce. According to The Journal of Commerce, the foreign-flagged ocean carriers made a record profit of $150 billion—billion—in 2021, compared to just $25.4 billion in 2022.

Even after more than quintupling their profits during the height of the pandemic, an independent analysis by the maritime research consultancy, Drewry, projects that the foreign-flagged ocean carriers will best their 2021 record profits in 2022, and I might add, at the expense of American consumers and at the expense of American exporters.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield an additional 2 minutes to the gentleman.

Mr. GARAMENDI. Mr. Speaker, I better get on with it.

For every American shopper, shipper, agricultural exporter, manufacturer, retailer, or small business struggling with skyrocketing ocean shipping costs, I am saying this bill will be help on the way.

The Ocean Shipping Reform Act cracked open many of the issues. The Federal Maritime Commission is empowered.

The bill shifts the burden of proof regarding reasonableness to the ocean carriers, so if they want detention and demurrage, they have to prove it.

The bill also requires ocean carriers or their billing agencies to ensure that those charges comply with Federal regulations.

Third: The bill increases the antiretaliation protections for shippers.

Fourth: The bill establishes a new exception in Federal law that ocean carriers make a good-faith effort to negotiate vessel space and accommodate the cargo bookings for U.S. exports.

The bill authorizes the Federal Maritime Commission to regulate shipping exchanges.

Finally, this is one fine piece of legislation, and I urge its passage.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to engage in a brief colloquy with my majority colleague to ensure that we agree on section 7(b)(1) of S. 3580.

I would ask Chairman DeFazio:

Section 7(b)(1) of the bill requires the FMC to issue rulemaking “further” defining prohibited practices by common carriers, marine terminal operators, and ocean transportation intermediaries under section 41102(c) of title 46, United States Code.

Section 7(b)(2) states that the contents of the additional rule required under paragraph 1, “shall only seek to further clarify reasonable rules and practices related to the assessment of detention and demurrage charges to address that, the identified in the final rule published”—by the FMC—“on May 18, 2020, entitled, ‘Interpretive Rule on Detention and Demurrage Under the Shipping Act.’”

So, Mr. Chairman, my understanding is that any rule prepared under paragraph 1 of section 7(b) is subject to the limitation set in paragraph 2, and such rule shall only clarify the May 18, 2020 rule.

I also understand that any rule prepared under section 7 shall be in addition to, not in place of, the May 2020 rule and that that May 18 rule shall remain in place during the preparation of the additional rule after the promulgation of such an additional rule unless the FMC chooses, unrelated to the requirements of section 7, to undertake any amendment to the May 18, 2020 rule.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that any rule characterized as an “interpretive rule,” this final rule was promulgated through notice and comment and is changing ocean carrier behavior with respect to these fees and has already led to enforcement cases by the Commission to address unreasonable detention and demurrage charges.

Does the Chair share my understanding with respect to section 7? Of course, I yield time for the gentleman to respond.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I thank him for the colloquy.

Yes, I totally agree with the gentleman from South Dakota’s understanding that any additional promulgated rules pursuant to section 7 and to the May 18, 2020 rule now in place.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back to the gentleman.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time.

I appreciate the gentleman’s comments, our agreement as well as your engagement.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time because I had one additional speaker, but I think he is delayed in transit.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

It has been a bit of a journey. The gentleman from California was right, it is almost a year to the day, but we are here, and we are about ready to punch this into the end zone.

Mr. Speaker, S. 3580 provides the FMC the crucial tools they need to help protect U.S. shippers. Both Mr. GARAMENDI and myself are former regulators at the State level, and we had shared that it is unusual in this kind of a highly complex and sophisticated commerce environment that the FMC has lacked these basic authorities in the past.

This bill moves us in the right direction. It is going to help during this current crisis. And even more importantly, Mr. Speaker, it will make a future crisis less likely. People will understand that the cop on the beat, the FMC, has the authority to need to shave the most jagged edges off of unreasonable behavior from these foreign-flagged ocean carriers.

Mr. Speaker, I sincerely thank my colleagues across the aisle for working with so many of us on this side on this important legislation. It is a strongly bipartisan and strongly bicameral success. I think this time we are going to get it across the finish line, signed into law by the President. I urge support.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I will just expand a little bit on the gentleman from California when he raised the MFN for China in 1990, most-favored-nation status. Until then, we had been able, on an annual basis, to threaten China with substantial retaliation restrictions if they violated international norms in trade.

The Clinton administration mistakenly felt that if the Chinese were given most-favored-nation status and put into the World Trade Organization that somehow they would reform their practices. They haven’t; they didn’t; they won’t.

Interestingly, I was cleaning out a drawer in my desk today and came across a headline story where it said, “DeFazio predicts the largest export to China will be U.S. jobs,” and it has been. We have hemorrhaged hundreds of thousands, millions of good, family-wage manufacturing jobs in this country, developed extraordinary dependence.

The Senate version of the COMPETES Act, thanks to Senator TOOMEY, would actually make us more dependent on China, do away with all those tariffs, including on medical protective gear and other things.

Did we learn nothing during this pandemic?
Mr. CARBAJAL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my support for the Ocean Shipping Reform Act of 2022. I want to especially commend Reps. GARAMENDI and JOHNSON, on their tremendous work cultivating a bipartisan agreement to address supply chain issues and unfair practices in the shipping industry.

I would also like to thank my colleagues for working with me and Chair DEFAZIO on this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, the need for this legislation is clear by the fact that every American now knows the phrase ‘supply chain disruption.’ Whether it involves disruptions of agricultural goods or the current infant formula shortage, every family in America has been touched in some way by these bottlenecks and kinks in our supply chain.

We need robust solutions to address this crisis.

This bill is the first step in doing so. It eases our stressed supply chain by creating more transparency within our intermodal system and improves efficiency in transporting goods at a time when supply chain congestion is severe.

The increase in funding for the Federal Maritime Commission in this 4-year authorization is indicative of Congress’s strong support for finding an effective solution to the supply chain crisis. Now is the time to ensure that the Commission has the ability to enforce fairness in ocean shipping practices.

I am pleased that the bill contains a number of provisions aimed at addressing wrongfully issued detention and demurrage charges. This includes holding shipping companies responsible for proving the reasonableness of the charges when challenged.

To optimize supply chain efficiency and streamline operations, the bill calls for a study to develop best practices for chassis pools that provide service to different types of stakeholders in the intermodal transportation system.

It also authorizes the collection and publication of equipment dwell time statistics at the top 25 ports.

I am proud of the Committee’s work on this important legislation, and I look forward to seeing it signed into law.

Dr. Johnson retires as a pillar of the Cleveland community. His deep commitment to Tri-C’s students and forward-thinking leadership helped shape graduates, like myself, who were prepared for a lifetime of success in northeast Ohio.

During Dr. Johnson’s tenure, Tri-C produced a record number of graduates and increased its graduation rates, all while remaining committed to the school’s core mission of delivering affordable, accessible education, providing equitable job opportunities, and ensuring successful degree completion. Meanwhile, throughout the tumult of the COVID-19 pandemic, Dr. Johnson served as a steady hand at the helm, ensuring students’ continued success.

As a Tri-C graduate and the Representative for Ohio’s 11th Congressional District, I deeply appreciate Dr. Johnson’s extraordinary leadership, unparalleled vision, and lasting accomplishments. His legacy will only continue to grow through the countless students, teachers, and administrators he impacted.

REMEMBERING RUSSELL PETerson

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory of Russ Peterson, a remarkable Georgian. Russ was born in Park Ridge, Illinois, and was the son of the late Russ and Helen Peterson, devoted husband to his wife, Louise Peterson, and loving father and grandfather.

Russ was known for his good sense of humor, his love for life, and contagious laughter among friends.

Russ earned his bachelor’s degree from DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana, and went to work with Allstate Insurance. He retired as a regional vice president after more than 35 years of service.

Russ was heavily involved in the betterment of his community, serving as president of the Landings Association. Russ also served on the Board of Marshes of Skidaway Island, St. Joseph’s Hospital Foundation Board, the Chatham Leadership Board, and was involved in the American Cancer Society.

He played a major role in the building of the beautiful bridge to Skidaway Island and started a Parkinson’s support group that continues to benefit people today. He was also very involved in the Republican Club of Skidaway Island.

A MILLION CRISSES

(Mr. ROSE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROSE. Madam Speaker, last week the Wall Street Journal reported that a whistleblower employee at Abbott notified the FDA in February of last year, months before the originally reported date of October. If true, President Biden and his FDA must answer for why they ignored these alarming claims.

Parents in middle Tennessee are struggling to find baby formula as the out-of-stock rate has skyrocketed to 92 percent.

Ultimately, this is just another crisis that has been made much worse by the Biden administration, about which one White House official on the Domestic Policy Council gave the excuse that the administration’s plate was full with “a million crises going on.” Unfortunately, President Biden’s failed far-left agenda caused the million crises. Those many crises very well may have distracted his administration from initially taking the baby formula shortage seriously, as well as contributed to the administration’s inexplicable slow reaction to the crisis, allowing it to get much worse than it should have.

We must get to the bottom of this failure and hold those accountable responsible, but in any case, the President must do better.

MAIL THEFT AND POSTAL POLICE

(Ms. PORTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)
Ms. PORTER. Madam Speaker, over 300,000 mail carriers serve our communities, delivering for us 7 days a week. Unfortunately, these dedicated public servants have increasingly become targets for criminals.

Criminals steal a carrier’s mailbox key and then use that stolen key to steal mail and packages. Between 2018 and 2021, robberies of mail carriers more than tripled, and robberies involving a gun quadrupled.

Until 2020, postal police officers patrolled our neighborhoods to protect letter carriers and deter mail theft, but in August 2020, right before the Presidential election, the Trump administration ordered the postal police to stop patrols and limited them to guarding post offices.

This policy needs to change immediately. Our mail carriers are at risk, and they deserve the protection of the law enforcement officers employed by the post office.

HONORING DR. SHIRLEY ANN JACKSON ON HER RETIREMENT

(Mr. TONKO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TONKO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize an inspiring pioneer and brilliant mind, Dr. Shirley Ann Jackson, on the occasion of her retirement.

Dr. Jackson, president of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, was the first Black woman to receive a doctorate degree in physics from MIT, and in 1999 became the first Black woman to lead a top-ranked research university.

Ever the trailblazer, Dr. Jackson was the first Black person and the first woman to chair the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Dr. Jackson’s historic achievements in physics, research in her field of theoretical physics, combined with her tireless advocacy for increased Black representation in STEM fields, continue to provide inspiration to so many in New York’s capital region and, for that matter, across our Nation.

It is no surprise that Time magazine has called her “perhaps the ultimate role model for women in science.” It is indeed my honor to congratulate the unmatched Dr. Jackson as she embarks on the next chapter of her life. I thank her for inserting herself, her strength, and her vision into the fabric of RPI.

Dr. Jackson, thank you for your outstanding leadership.

EXpressING STRONG support FOR STEEL TARIFFS

(Mr. MRVAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MRVAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to express my strong support for the continuation of section 232 steel tariffs for our domestic manufacturers, our workforce, and our national security.

Indiana’s First Congressional District is home to an incredible foundation of steelworkers and the American steel producers who create products that are essential not just to the strength of our national economy but also to our national security.

It is necessary that the American steel industry has a level playing field in our global economy so that our innovative companies and skilled workforce can continue to lead the world in manufacturing the most environmentally friendly and efficiently produced steel.

As co-chairman of the Congressional Steel Caucus, we have been actively expressing our strong support for the continuation of section 232 steel tariffs. I look forward to continuing to work with my colleagues and members of the administration to advocate for the value of these current tariffs and ensure that we all recognize how unfair trade and other practices negatively impact our Nation’s future.

CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO THE WESTERN BALKANS—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 117–122)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:
Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13405 of June 16, 2006, which was expanded in scope in Executive Order 14036 of August 9, 2021, is to continue in effect beyond June 16, 2022.

The actions and policies of certain members of the Government of Belarus and other persons, and the Belarusian regime’s harmful activities and long-standing abuses, continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. Therefore, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13405 with respect to Belarus.

JOSEPH R. BIDEN, JR.

CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO NORTH KOREA—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 117–124)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:
Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed:
the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to North Korea that was declared in Executive Order 13466 of June 26, 2008, expanded in scope in Executive Order 13551 of August 30, 2010, addressed further in Executive Order 13570 of April 18, 2011, further expanded in scope in Executive Order 13687 of January 2, 2013, and under which additional steps were taken in Executive Order 13722 of March 15, 2016, and Executive Order 13810 of September 20, 2017, is to continue in effect beyond June 26, 2022.

The existence and risk of the proliferation of weapons-usable fissile material on the Korean Peninsula; the actions and policies of the Government of North Korea that destabilize the Korean Peninsula and imperil United States Armed Forces, allies, and trading partners in the region, including its pursuit of nuclear and missile programs; and other provocative, destabilizing, and repressive actions and policies of the Government of North Korea, continue to constitute an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States.

For this reason, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13466 with respect to North Korea.

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

CELEBRATING JUNETEENTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON LEE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and submit additional materials and statements.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, it is my privilege to proceed under this Special Order of the Congressional Black Caucus. It is my pleasure now to begin to frame this very important week to commemorate Juneteenth, the second acknowledgment of the Federal holiday created on June 17, 2021, by President Joe Biden—present, of course, was Vice President Kamala Harris—when the first holiday for nearly 30 years, Federal holiday, was established.

I am pleased to be able to yield to the distinguished gentlewoman from Ohio whose vision has helped us craft this recognition and this Congressional Black Caucus Special Order and her recognition of the cruelty of honoring those who have never been honored, the acknowledgment of the violence, the repression, and the trauma and, as well recognizing H.R. 40, the Commission to Study and Develop Reparations Proposals. We thank her for her leadership and her guidance.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. BEATTY), the chair of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Mrs. BEATTY. Madam Speaker, I thank Congresswoman SHEILA JACKSON LEE, the chair of our Special Order, executive board member, a person who you want to be out front. Whether it is an issue on civil rights, criminal justice, reparations, voting rights, or domestic violence, Congresswoman SHEILA JACKSON LEE has earned the right to be the first lady of this chamber and I could not think of a better person to stand here as we talk about commemorating Juneteenth. We know the history all too well of what happened in Texas. Congresswoman SHEILA JACKSON LEE hails from Texas.

Today, as we talk about Black excellence, as we talk about the members of the Congressional Black Caucus, Madam Speaker, we speak to America tonight. We want America to know that as we commemorate Juneteenth, it is about our work; it is about our scholarship; it is about our fight. You will hear a broad range of issues that we are so proud to stand up for and let America know we are there.

I could not think of a better issue to weave into Juneteenth than reparations, H.R. 40. SHEILA JACKSON LEE, if you have been in the room with her, you have heard her say it at the White House, you have heard her say it at caucus, you have heard her go in the Halls of Congress talking about H.R. 40. I could stop there, but I can tell you that piece of legislation has her fingerprints on it and the signatures of 200-plus Members. What a great way for me to start and to stand here as chair of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Tonight, we commemorate a day in our Nation’s history that can only be described as a celebration of freedom, Juneteenth.

On June 19, 1865, enslaved African Americans in Texas received the joyous news of emancipation and that they were finally free.

Despite that, we are still enslaved in many ways, so it is critical for America to know of our fight and our progress.

Tonight, you will hear Members discuss our work on criminal justice, reparations, uplifting of our Black men and boys, racial equity, fair housing, and so much more. We are leading the charge and laying the foundation to deliver on voting rights, student loan debt, and gun control. Tonight, we tell our story of Black excellence.

Nearly 1 year ago, on June 17, 2021, the Congressional Black Caucus went to the White House and joined with President Joe Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris as he signed the historic legislation that made Juneteenth the 11th national holiday and the first new Federal holiday since Martin Luther King Jr. Day in 1983.

Now, more than a century-and-a-half later, I stand here as chairwoman of the largest Congressional Black Caucus in the Nation’s history.

Every day, 58 Black members of the Congressional Black Caucus legislate in these Halls built by our enslaved ancestors. Six full committee chairs, chair of the Democratic Caucus, the House majority whip, former senior advisor to the President, and Vice President of these United States are all active and former members of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Madam Speaker, we have come so far, but we realize there is still work to do. We believe in reparations, one-third of a person, we want the American people to know that we continue fighting.

It was the Congressional Black Caucus that brokered the $1 trillion infrastructure law for our roads and bridges and provided little children a broadband network. It was the $1,400 in the pockets of everyday Americans, the $300 a month for working families with the historic funding for HBCUs, and each Congressional Black Caucus member bringing community dollars to their district.

We have seen one of the most consequential civil rights legislations aiming to interrupting the school-to-prison pipeline and uplifting Black men and boys, the U.S. Commission on Social Status of Black Men and Boys, created and birthed by our very own Congresswoman FREDERICA WILSON, a sojourner for hundreds of Black men and boys, tonight, you will hear other members of the Congressional Black Caucus commemorate our successes in the spirit of Juneteenth.

Madam Speaker, in the immortal words of Dr. Maya Angelou: Bringing the gifts that our ancestors gave, we are the dream and the hope of the slave.

I am proud to proclaim on this floor tonight: Happy Juneteenth Day. Our power, our message.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for her distinguished presentation.

I will take a moment as other Members are on the floor, so I can at least set the framework of this evening of which she has done so ably. I think the cornerstone of the chairwoman’s remarks is that we have been building on Juneteenth, as members of the Congressional Black Caucus, for all of our tenure in Congress. We have done it by the myriad of legislative initiatives that continue to build and repair what was generated from the 246 years of slavery.

Let me, first of all, read into the RECORD that order of General Gordon Granger on June 19, 1865, on the shores of Galveston, Texas:
'The people of Texas are informed that, in accordance with a proclamation from the Executive of the United States, all slaves are free. This involves an absolute equality of personal rights and rights of property between former masters and slaves, and the connection heretofore existing between them becomes that between employer and hired labor. The Freedmen are advised to remain quietly at their present homes and work for wages. They are informed that they will not be allowed to collect at military posts, and that they will not be supported in idleness either there or elsewhere.'

Most people have not heard the entire order.

Union soldiers, up to 200,000, fought in the Civil War and died. Union soldiers were killed by Confederate soldiers. Rather than, under the laws of the military protocol, as prisoners of war, they shot them dead.

Blood was shed by slaves, or Freedmen, that we all often refer to. This blood only became known to most people, except for contemporary publications, after the 13th Amendment to the Constitution was ratified into law in 1865, which abolished slavery and involuntary servitude, except as punishment for a crime. However, as late as 1900, there were at least 250,000 former slaves living in the South, according to the 1900 United States Census. This number does not include those who had escaped from slavery, many of whom had moved to the North or other parts of the country.

There was no obligation for Freedmen to stay and take a job, and most of the slaves looked askance. They didn’t understand what “employer” was. That is a word they had never heard in any sense, and “hired labor.” We are free.

Tonight, we speak about freedom. They were free. Yet, even in the goodness of that order, they were advised to remain at their present homes, probably something that had been given to the plantation and the masters and to work for wages. It did not say what kind of wages, what kind of work conditions you had, what kind of workers’ comp, insurance. No, they were in a system that had been the slaves’ mantra, they even challenged them to not be supported in idleness either there or elsewhere.

Let me tell you, by this very potent picture, what the ancestors had gone through for 400 years. Of course, to mark what still needs to be done more.

As Chairwoman BEATTY talked about something that is that the Congressional Black Caucus has really been all about.

I am here to thank the distinguished gentlewoman from Texas for leading the effort.

I first came to know of Juneteenth when I was a student at the LBJ School of Public Affairs in the summer between my junior year and my senior year. I had not heard about it, and I just a kid from Brooklyn—had not heard about Juneteenth. Folks down there said we are going to celebrate Juneteenth. I said June what? I was unsure of it, growing up proudly as an African American in New York City, I was not aware of that heart and soul of the people of Texas and throughout the south but hadn’t necessarily made it into my consciousness. I was thankful for that moment.

I think about that journey to a point now where we have a Federal holiday to mark the journey of African Americans and the progress that has been made but the need to continue, of course, to do more.

As Chairwoman BEATTY talked about something that is that the Congressional Black Caucus has really been all about.

We were never promised a perfect country. We know the Framers of this great Republic themselves were imperfect. We were never promised a perfect country. We know that slavery was in existence when the United States was founded, but they did promise a march toward a more perfect Union that America could try to continue to be the best version of herself. And that is what the Congressional Black Caucus has really been all about.

In our 51 years I can’t stand here in the time of that I have to catalogue all that has been done, but if you just look at what has occurred in the last 10 or 15 years; signature pieces of legislation that we have—year after year Chairman BOBBY SCOTT in 2010 led the effort to pass the Fair Sentencing Act, which lowered the 100 to 1 egregious crack cocaine—dropped it down to 18 to 1 in a way that allowed thousands of individuals, the overwhelming majority of whom were Black men, to be released back into society to live productive lives.

There was still more work that needed to be done. We took up the effort in 2018, and collectively the Congressional...
Black Caucus passed the FIRST STEP Act. Representative SHEILA JACKSON LEE was very involved in that effort as a member of the Judiciary Committee, Cedric Richmond, KAREN BASS, myself, others, JOYCE BEATTY, BONNIE WATSON COLEMAN were supportive, and we were able to take that 18 to 1 and make it retroactive, which the Senate refused to do in 2010, and enact a wide variety of sentencing reforms that created a fairer more equitable criminal justice system resulting in thousands of individuals being able to successfully reintegrate back into society, save taxpayer dollars, but also repaired lives, repaired families, repaired communities.

The overwhelming majority of folks, again, who were released, 90 percent, Black men.

Why? Because it was Black men who bore the brunt of the failed war on drugs and the failure of so-called lock 'em up and throw away the key sentencing schemes, all of which didn’t make us safer, as people were banished, often for non-violent drug offenses. That was the Congressional Black Caucus.

It was the Congressional Black Caucus led by FREDERICA WILSON that passed into law the Commission on the Social Status of Black Men and Boys and it was signed into law by a Republican President, passed through a Republican-controlled United States Senate. Because the Congressional Black Caucus stays on the case. And as was said during its founding, no permanent friends, no permanent enemies, only permanent interests, and the interests to make sure that these principles: equal protection under the law, liberty and justice for all, and fundamental fairness apply to all Americans regardless of race.

And so that is a very important piece of legislation. That commission is a foundation that, under the leadership of JOYCE BEATTY, we can continue to make progress particularly for Black men and boys who have been isolated and under-resourced and targeted in our society.

I am thankful that during that same Congress there was an effort to more fully and robustly fund historically Black colleges and universities. That effort was led by Representative ALMA ADAMS. It was also legislation that made it through a Republican-controlled Senate, Republican-controlled House. It was signed into law by a Republican President. The CBC stays on the case.

And that is certainly what occurred this particular Congress with passage of historic infrastructure legislation. That effort was, in part, when we were at a desolate led by our chairwoman, JOYCE BEATTY, who worked to bring the caucus together to a place where we could enact groundbreaking legislation that will create millions of good-paying jobs, make sure that there is clean water in every single community, and we know that it is Black communities that often suffer from water that has been poisoned.

And, of course, it was our great whip, JIM CLYBURN, who led the effort to make sure that we put into place a process so that we can get high-speed internet access in every single community. This is the CBC staying on the case.

So I am thankful for the leadership of my colleagues within the Congressional Black Caucus, thankful that our chair has continued to pull us together and lead us in such a phenomenal way, and the CBC Chair, SHEILA JACKSON LEE, who is one of the most principled public servants you will find anywhere in these United States, thankful for SHEILA JACKSON LEE and what she is doing to lead us forward to examine through H.R. 40 the legacy of slavery and the fact that perhaps the least that we can do is have a study to figure out the damage that was done through the systemic rape and kidnapping, lynching, and oppression decade after decade, century into century and then its protracted legacy of reparative harm and the institutional discrimination that remains with us today. The least that perhaps we can do at some point is figure out how we can study the issue, building upon all of the work that the CBC has been leading us today.

Juneteenth gives us an opportunity to mark the progress that we have made, and of course, think about a vision for the future as we continue our long, necessary, and majestic march toward a more perfect union.

I thank you, Madam Speaker, for presiding. I thank my classmate and good friend, JOYCE BEATTY, for her work, and I certainly approve any message that she articulates. I thank my colleagues SHEILA JACKSON LEE and BONNIE WATSON COLEMAN who are helping to lead the charge with this Special Order.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for taking us through his journey of a continued fight for freedom by the Congressional Black Caucus and incorporating all of the relief given for the continued ailments and disparities of African Americans and leading us to H.R. 40, the Commission to Study and Develop Reparation Proposals for African Americans Act, which really are components of the work that we have been doing. They are the building blocks of trying to cure extensive disparities.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. WATSON COLEMAN), a Member that has worked on disparities focused on the journey of Black women, leading on issues of Black women maternity mortality, as well as my colleague on the Homeland Security Committee and a number of other collaborations.

Mrs. WATSON COLEMAN. Madam Speaker, I thank the leader of our Special Order hour, the magnificent, exquisitely and always on point the Honorable SHEILA JACKSON LEE for her work on H.R. 40 and reminding us every day that within that word “reparations” is repair and our opportunity to study how we can repair the pain and the injustice that was accorded to our community.

I need to recognize my leader, JOYCE BEATTY, because under her leadership there has been increased our power. And on whatever level we decide that we must speak and we must act. JOYCE BEATTY has reminded us that our voice is our power because the Congressional Black Caucus believes in exercising that power on behalf of communities that were represented for so very long, whether it is environmental justice, social justice, criminal justice reform, housing, or just whether or not the whole system needs to be examined as it impacted us.

I thank the chair of our caucus, who took us through a journey that reminded me, as I was sitting there, of the good work that we have been able to do. I tell you that I feel like I am standing here in a very sacred space, thinking about action that we might be here this evening to address you.

So, yes, slavery—supposedly freedom from it—came to us in 1865, and today we commemorate and we celebrate this end of slavery and all the progress that we have made over the last 157 years.

We must also acknowledge, as Chairman HAKEEM JEFFRIES reminded us, the long road ahead toward what would be full equality for Black Americans. Let Juneteenth be not just a celebration or a commemoration, but a rallying cry as we recommit ourselves to the centuries-long struggle for civil rights.

Through historic measures like the American Rescue Plan, the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, and executive orders on policing and advancing racial equity, the Biden administration, along with this Congress, has taken important steps to address the unique needs of Black communities across the country. The time is now to keep that momentum going.

Our current moment presents an opportunity to dismantle systemic injustices by bringing Black people from the margins to the mainstream of American society. We as a society must stop treating Black people as an afterthought. That means we must take direct action to end the racial discrimination that, contrary to what our colleagues across the aisle might like us to believe, still exists today.

It means ensuring that Black people, especially Black women, are in the rooms where decisions are made. It means passing legislation like the CROWN Act, which would put an end to the insidious discrimination against Black people because of their hair.
In the fight for a more perfect Union, we can, we should, and we must think bigger and bolder. Through policies like those that are outlined in the Black Women Best Economic Framework—which include everything from guaranteeing a living income to sweeping criminal justice reform—we can bring the Black community from peril to prosperity. When we do that, we bring everybody else along with us. Only then will all Americans have the freedom to thrive.

For us to celebrate this turning point in our Nation’s history. Today, we look back on the milestones we have achieved since then. Today, we continue fighting for that more inclusive, that more equitable, that fairer society that really represents the best that America can be.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for bringing to our attention some very unique aspects, again, of the Congressional Black Caucus work.

As I travel the country, it is interesting to hear that our community has been so deprived as it relates to the discrimination against you with respect to your hairstyle. Congresswoman BONNIE WATSON COLEMAN, among other things, was able to lead on something, and I hear it often, that they are so proud of this legislation because it has given dignity to people whose dignity was taken away.

There are the building blocks that the Congressional Black Caucus pours into the symbolism of honoring Juneteenth and H.R. 40, the commission that studies slavery.

Madam Speaker, as I prepare to allow for an additional speaker to come, let me make this point—let me just take this moment as we prepare to yield.

Madam Speaker, would you give us the time, please?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman has time remaining.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, let me put this into the record as I prepare to yield, and emphasize what H.R. 40 does. As I do so, let me emphasize why H.R. 40 is so important.

This is what you see—it is the hanging of Black men, and it is the presence of individuals who are making a spectacle of this. There is one Black man already on the ground. There is no evidence of a trial, no evidence of guilt. This is an example of what preceded 1865.

When you talk about H.R. 40—or even when we were trying to make Juneteenth a Federal holiday—I introduced resolutions over and over again and finally got the bill introduced as a Federal holiday, which then we proceeded and worked to get it passed. There was always a question: Why?

There was always a question about this issue of freedom. You are already free. We live in America. The answer goes for this issue of: Why H.R. 40? Because the continuing—continuing—all that aided our community did not end.

This was obviously not in 1865. This was into the 1900s, the 20th century, as evidenced—or maybe the late 1800s that Black men were being hung, Black women were being raped and separated from families, and the abuse of racism was deep and abiding. The Klan would destroy Black mortgages, hospitals, churches, homes, and have a reign of terror.

This work of the Congressional Black Caucus, with the many splinters of legislation, can be culminated by the passage through the floor of the House or through an executive order that clearly would provide an answer to the language here that says: Following the abolition of slavery, the United States Government, at the Federal, State, and local levels, continued to perpetrate, condone, and often profit from practices that continued to brutalize and disadvantage African Americans, including share cropping, convict leasing, Jim Crow, redlining, unequal education, and disproportionate treatment at the hands of the criminal justice systems, and lack of access to healthcare. Harvard University said, If we had it, we would not have been that impacted by COVID in terms of health outcomes. This is a symbolic depiction that racism and discrimination continue to exist.

This legislation was updated to say: And develop reparation proposals. That is the key. It is an action item. We want a response to Black America; a response to African Americans; we want a response to the 57 members of the Congressional Black Caucus—coming from a variety of districts—some with small measures of African Americans. Yet, the recognition of wherever they live in America, and as our members represent all people, millions of Americans, they understand the stark disparities they see even in their congressional districts.

That is why we stand here today, to honor Juneteenth, which equals freedom. That is why we are here today, to say that we are never giving up the fight. We are most proud of the fact that we collectively came as a body, embraced our work as individual members, and got Juneteenth signed. We will now go into this week speaking about freedom, but also speaking about truth and the work we have to do.

Madam Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield to gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. BEATTY).

CELEBRATING JUNETEENTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. JACKSON LEE). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. BEATTY) is recognized for the remainder of the hour as the designee of the majority leader.

Mrs. BEATTY. Madam Speaker, tonight we have heard from leadership in the Congressional Black Caucus and leadership in the Democratic Caucus of the United States Congress.

Madam Speaker, I thank Congresswoman SHEILA JACKSON LEE for threading the needle, for reminding us of the history of how we started; 1863. And then 2 years later in 1865 when it was announced that Juneteenth would exist because we know freedom is never given, it is won.

Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure now—another colleague from the great State of Ohio. Someone who knows the value and importance of fighting because she is a fighter. She is a sojourner who understands that her legacy speaks for all Black individuals, especially Black individuals.

It is a great honor to have a colleague that hails from the same State that I hail from, the great State of Ohio. She walks in the footsteps of Congresswoman Marsha Fudge, Congresswoman Stephanie Tubbs Jones, and a Congressman—one of the founders of the Congressional Black Caucus—Congressman Lou Stokes.

Ms. BROWN. Madam Speaker, in my hour as the designee of the majority leader, thank you for the kind introduction.

Ms. BROWN of Ohio. Madam Speaker, thank you for the kind introduction. I thank Chairwomen BEATTY and all my Congressional Black Caucus colleagues for highlighting the significance of Juneteenth during today’s Special Order hour.

much progress as a Nation, yet we still have a long way to go. Progress is not possible without a full accounting of both our brightest days and our darkest nights.

As we honor those enslaved Texans who finally learned of their freedom 157 years ago, we commit to fulfilling the promise of Juneteenth—and indeed of our Nation at large—by fighting for equality, liberty, and justice for all.

Mrs. BEATTY. Madam Speaker, we stand here listening. We stand here revisiting our history. We stand here thinking about our ancestors.

As members of the Congressional Black Caucus 50-plus-1-years-old, we understand that the fight must continue.

We understand when we walk in these hallowed Halls of justice that we carry that torch—that torch, freedom, that torch, justice and liberty for all. It is that responsibility that we acknowledge.

It is that responsibility when I think about the 173 Black people in the history of this Congress who have served out their terms and who have served in these Halls—173 Black people.

When I think about being the ninth Black woman to serve as chair of the Congressional Black Caucus, I think of the other women: the sojourners and the truth tellers who served as chair of the Congressional Black Caucus. They didn’t bring or send a designee. They came themselves before us.

So I want to say, Madam Speaker, that night was about Juneteenth.

But tonight, when we are thinking about letting Americans know that we are fighting for them, that we stand with them, and that we understand that we must continue to fight against systemic racism, and we must continue to fight for our children and our families.

That is what we do because we are the Congressional Black Caucus. Our power and our message is Black excellence, of lifting up and elevating our message and power has reigned through the United States of America because you see, Madam Speaker, when you talk about an executive order or police reform, it was the Congressional Black Caucus that was there when President signed it.

When you talk about our dealing with student debt, it is the Congressional Black Caucus that just finished a 2-day issues conference. We brought before our Congressional Black Caucus issues with civil rights when the President signed.

We leaders in America. They didn’t bring or send a designee. They came themselves before us.

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, for over 150 years, June 19th, also known as Juneteenth Independence Day, has served as a source of reflection, inspiration, and hope for generations of Black Americans. It is a day when we are reminded of the trials and tribulations of those who came before us, and celebrate the incredible progress we have made. It is a day when we can rejoin together in the freedom and liberties that we all share, and recommit ourselves to everlasting equality and justice. This holiday means so much, but for too long had not been formally recognized as a federal holiday.

That was, Madam Speaker, until our advocacy was finally met with action from the rest of Congress and the White House. I was proud to join my colleagues herein Congress and the 3rd Plenum of Juneteenth. We have subscribed to is to leave this Nation better than we found it.

I believe the question is still hanging out there. The jury is still out on whether our Nation’s leaders today in this generation are willing to make the sacrifices necessary to take on what I believe is the greatest threat of the 21st century, and that is this unsustainable, unconscionable, and even immoral fiscal path that we are on. It is a collision course with a disastrous future.

We have to do something. We have all the reforms and policy solutions. But what we don’t have and what I have not seen in now 6 years in this Chamber is the collective political will to do something about it. It is very simple.

Madam Speaker, as the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON) is recognized for 60 minutes, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. JOHNSON of Ohio. Under the Speaker’s announcement of January 4, 2021, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, tonight we are going to talk about a subject that gets too little attention in this Chamber and too little debate and consideration among lawmakers. Yet the storm clouds are gathering, and an epic crisis looms large over the future of our great Nation. This is the most significant, in my opinion, long-term threat to our economic prosperity as well as our national security.

We have sown the wind of fiscal irresponsibility, and our children will reap the whirlwind of economic calamity. We will rob generations of Americans of the freedoms and the opportunities that we have enjoyed and have been so blessed with.

We have to state an oath, but that that is a written covenant between lawmakers today and our Founding Fathers and our future generations of Americans, and that unwritten sacred promise that all American leaders have subscribed to is to leave this Nation better than we found it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. BEATTY). The gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, all take an oath, but that is an unwritten covenant between lawmakers today and our Founding Fathers and our future generations of Americans, and that unwritten sacred promise that all American leaders have subscribed to is to leave this Nation better than we found it.

We have to take root, is a plant of rapid growth.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. JOHNSON) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio. Madam Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding.
This is such a huge problem. There are so many different paths we could go down with this discussion. It is so big of a crisis that it is almost impossible to get it all articulated well with-in one Special Order series.

Madam Speaker, late last month, the CBO released its “May 2022 Budget and Economic Outlook.” This is the first time the CBO has produced a baseline that properly incorporates the run-away, destructive inflation that is ripping through our economy today.

According to the CBO report, inflation is not going anywhere anytime soon except up. This is a dramatic change from the insistence of the President, the Treasury Secretary, and my Democrat colleagues that inflation is merely transitory and is nothing to worry about.

They are, in fact, so out of touch that they have begun to change their narrative. They now claim that Americans are financially prepared—get this—financially prepared to weather $5 a gallon gasoline, skyrocketing energy costs, and grocery prices that would have been unthinkable just 18 months ago.

Now, I am not sure what Americans they are talking to, but they are not talking to Americans who live in Appalachia where I live—seniors who live on fixed incomes and others who struggle to make ends meet in this high inflationary period. But inflation is not just a statistic on a report. It will have ripple effects throughout the economy. Debt will continue to rise to 110 percent of GDP over the next decade.

Don’t be fooled by President Biden’s propaganda claiming victory on debt reduction either. CBO projects that deficits will be $2.4 trillion larger over the next 10 years. The more President Biden continues to pour gasoline on the inflation fire with his failed policies, the more that number is going to increase. And the inflation is merely transitory and is nothing to worry about.

Madam Speaker, we must get our fiscal house in order. The American people have to live by a budget, and the American government should live by a budget, too. The United States does not have a revenue problem, we have a spending problem. And the first step in fixing this problem is to fix our broken budget process.

That is why I am proud to be a co-sponsor of H.R. 2575, the TRUST Act. With the TRUST Act, we can begin developing recommendations and legislation to protect and ensure the longevity of Social Security and Medicare. These are some of the country’s main drivers of our debt. They are mandatory spending programs that are absolutely out of control. Doing nothing about it is not an option.

I am also, as was mentioned, the co-leader on a bipartisan debt and deficit working group as a member of the Problem Solvers Caucus, and I am willing to work with anyone, Republican or Democrat, to find real solutions to ensure Medicare and Social Security are around for our children and our grandchildren to benefit from in the years to come.

Madam Speaker, this is a big problem. I look forward to hearing what my colleagues have to say tonight. We need bold ideas to address the fiscal crisis that looms in front of us.

Mr. ABRUZZO. Madam Speaker, I thank my dear friend from Ohio and echo his sentiments. We must get our fiscal house in order.

It is shameful. I would say, a case in point, to the cries from our citizens, citizens who say that this body and politicians in both Chambers, in Washington, play by a different set of rules. Do you know what? They are right. There is no further you have to look than at our budget and appropriations process.

We haven’t had a budget in the last 4 years under the leadership of our Democrat colleagues, but quite frankly, both parties have been guilty. I think, over the last 50 years, we have only gone through regular order and passed a budget in 12 appropriations bills and run the people’s House the way the States and local governments and our families run their fiscal affairs.

They don’t get to waive pay-fors. They don’t get to borrow infinitum. This place is so broken, and it is going to catch up to us. You don’t feel the pain until you feel the pain. When the dominoes fall, you cannot borrow and spend your way out of that situation in that particular crisis, like we have seen with COVID and others prior to it.

We have a champion for this issue, fiscal responsibility, restoring that in our own Conference as well as the broader United States Congress, a fellow Texan, a man who I am proud to serve with from Texas’ 21st District, and a member of the House Judiciary Committee and Veterans’ Affairs Committee.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Roy).

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I thank my friend from Texas for yielding. I know that he cares deeply about this issue and spends a whole lot of time working across the aisle and with our own Conference, trying to get this body to focus on this issue of spending. Frankly, that is on both sides of the aisle.

We are sitting here now, $30.5 trillion of debt. That is a number that nobody in America can possibly understand what that means. We talk about it. We say it. We put charts up, but nobody knows. $30.5 trillion, if you set out to count to that, one Mississippi, it would take you 967,000 years. I mean, think about that. It is patently absurd.

Yet, we are going to rack up another trillion and a half here in the next year, and then another couple of trillion. We are just going to keep piling it on. It is like in all 12 appropriations, and interest rates are going to keep going up, so that debt is going to pile up even further.

The American people know this. They can’t live their lives that way. Yet, here we are in this body, this so-called people’s House, and we haven’t had a single actual debate on spending in this body the entire time I have been here, much less this year.

We just passed another milestone in this great body, the United States House of Representatives, in which we just spent the sixth year in which not one amendment was offered on the floor of this body in open debate, not one amendment.

Has any rank-and-file Member of the United States House of Representatives been able to come to the floor and offer an amendment? You wonder why this place is broken?

I mean, we just passed that milestone yet again. You never get a chance to have open debate here in the so-called people’s House.

I gave a speech a little while back from this podium on this floor that I know would be a huge problem. The United States House of free stuff because that is the way people view this body.

Oh, we just got another check we can go write, another bill we can pass. It sounds good. It has something great in the title. You are talking about infant formula. Oh, you better vote for that. You can’t vote against a bill that has infant formula in the title. Doesn’t matter what it does. Doesn’t matter if it will make it worse. Didn’t matter what the power of the government is.

If you put ALS in the title, don’t vote “no” on an ALS bill. Well, then you hate people with ALS, right?

Don’t vote “no” on any bill that has something in the title. United States House of free stuff.

Yet, this week, what are we going to vote on? We are going to have a bill, H.R. 7606, which will likely come up, that will give $400 million to ethanol producers. Never mind that that jacks up the price of gasoline.

We just passed another milestone in this body, this so-called people’s House, and we haven’t had a single actual debate on spending in this body the entire time I have been here, much less this year.

of a lot easier to go out on the steps and go green and posture to a bunch of people in the media, saying about how evil people are if they dare vote against spending money we don’t have.

Madam Speaker, we should do our job. Put the aisle, the aisle, to stop spending money we don’t have.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, I say a hearty amen to my fellow Texan who has put his money where his mouth is. Certainly, he has put the votes in the runways where his mouth is and has taken a stand.

It is not fun to be voting against things that have these wonderful titles that are going to do these grandiose things for the country. But the question is, who is going to pay for it?

I don’t even call the $30 trillion of debt “debt.” I call it what Tom McCLINTOCK once mentioned in a budget hearing. It is a deferred tax on our children. It is so easy for us to pass these bills and not consider the incalculable cost.

But there will be a payday someday. As James Madison said, “A public debt is a public curse.” We are not blessing our children. We are not giving them the benefit of the quality of life that we have not only had as Americans second to no other nation and society in the world and in the history of the world. Yet, to do nothing and to keep this runaway freight train of fiscal irresponsibility running off the cliff is to curse them. Indeed, it is to curse them, as James Madison said.

Another friend and colleague and a new Member of Congress, but not new to public service, is PETE MEIJER from Michigan’s Third District. He serves on the Committee on Homeland Security and the Committee on Foreign Affairs. We appreciate his deep concerns and convictions on this issue facing our country.

Madam Speaker. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Meijer).

Mr. MEIJER. Madam Speaker, I thank my dear friend from Texas for yielding.

When I was in middle school, we had a textbook for U.S. Government, and it showed our debt. The line went up and the line went down over administrations. It spiked in World War II. It was coming down in the nineties. This is the debt, mind you, not the deficit, the debt, which many of us here behind me tonight, were warning about the inflationary impacts that were dismissed at the time, except for a few brave economists on the left. Larry Summers was pointing that out, but we just kept going.

Now, the American people, the consumers, are feeling that impact. They see it every time they drive past the gas station.

I just filled up my gas tank. For the first time, it cost me over $100. That is an incredible number that I know many who have more than a 20-gallon tank are experiencing that even worse.

The question on behalf of constituents we talk to is: What are you going to do? What are you going to do in Congress about this?

The challenge is inflation, debt spending. These are challenging issues, right? You can’t put the genie back in the bottle. I mean, maybe we could accelerate the creation of a time machine and go back and show what occurred and what the consequences were of those policies, come back into this body to February 2021 with the American Rescue Plan, or even go back to when that middle school textbook I had was written, showing the dangers.

But just in the time I have been here, our cost to service the debt, that 10-year Treasury bond, has tripled in terms of what this impact will be on us fiscally. We talk about the budgets that we pass, that spending. That is only a third of how much money is going out the door.

I applaud my colleagues who are working on the TRUST Act and other efforts to just come to some bipartisan consensus because this will be something that impacts all generations.

I am acutely aware of that, looking at young families and the burden this is putting on them, and just how much of that is going to be a long-term drag on our fiscal growth, on our economic vitality that underpins our standing in the world and our position as a superpower.

If we don’t get that house in order and get it in order fast and start laying down the groundwork—it doesn’t have to be bold right away. It will need to be bold eventually. But, by golly, we need to start heading down that right path and that right path soon.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Michigan, my friend, for his comments. I am, again, proud to serve with him, and he brings such reason and common sense.

He is right to say that it is not a partisan issue and that the debt and those things that have led to this massive $30 trillion, over 120 percent of the size of our entire economy, exceeding World War II with our entire debt—and by the way, in peacetime. He is right.

We have to have honest conversations with ourselves before we have an honest conversation with the American people, and both parties have contributed to this mess. Until we decide to accept that and take ownership of it, we will never lead us out of this perverse incentives that let us get away with this reckless and irresponsible process that we call budget and appropriations. Nowhere else in the world can you do what we do.

But the results are indisputably. You get a broken process, a dysfunctional system like we have, and you are going to get broken outcomes.

Look no further than the debt clock, and look no further than CBO’s 10-year forecast: $16 trillion more over the next 10 years of just the public debt. It went from almost a trillion in annual deficits leading up to COVID, and now the average will be $1.6 trillion in annual deficits over the next 10 years, leading up to 2032, where we will have $2.3 trillion in annual deficits. The interest we pay on the debt just to service them, think about this.

We will spend more to service the debt to pay the interest, which you get nothing for. You get no infrastructure. You don’t get your farm bill with strengthening of the food supply. You don’t get a better or bigger army to put on the field against the threats around the globe.

We will see a tripling of the interest payments that will exceed in 10 years, cumulative, over $8 trillion, but the annual amount will exceed what we spend on national defense. We get nothing for this interest. It is the largest growing mandatory spending item in the budget.

Woe to the country if we don’t take a hard look in the mirror and if we don’t decide to muster the political courage to take this on for the sake of our kids and for the sake of our country.

Now, one of my closest friends in Congress who claims to come from a State that does more agriculture than the Lone Star State, which already discredits him from the outset, but I don’t want to see the numbers because I would be afraid if he were right. I would be afraid to go back to Texas. We are just going to say Texas is bigger in every way, including ag production.
He is a Ways and Means Committee member, and this guy, he is passionate about our debt, our deficits, and getting our fiscal house in order. He is going to be helping lead the charge in the 118th Congress when the people, I pray, give our conference, Republicans, a chance to take this on.

Mr. ESTES. Madam Speaker, I thank my friend, Mr. ARRINGTON, for hosting this very important hour on this very important issue. I will concede that Texas is bigger geographically than Kansas and several other States as well.

You know, it is important that we talk about this important issue, and I really appreciate serving with him on the Ways and Means Committee on so many of the important issues that we have to address for our country.

Madam Speaker, tonight, as many Americans look to the kids to hold, they are checking their schedules for the next day and doing a quick review of the bank accounts. They are deeply concerned about how they are going to be able to live with the crushing price increases that we are seeing.

We are talking a lot about the debt tonight. We are talking about, you know, how do you afford to make your payments on the issues that you have to address today? But also, how do you plan for the future, knowing how that debt is going to weigh down on people, weigh down on Americans, weigh down on them as individuals, but also weigh down on their kids and grandkids.

You know, there is a lot of noise that happens in this bubble we call Washington, D.C., but everyday Americans have the same top concerns about the economy and rising prices.

In fact, it has been a top concern for months about their last two paychecks. A townhall in October, 98 percent of the respondents said that they had seen an increase in the cost of regular necessities.

Last week, I had an opportunity to speak with Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen about why it is taking the administration so long to recognize inflation as a problem. She complained about other challenges the Biden administration faced in January of 2021.

It’s look at what really has happened over the last 18 months. When President Biden took office, he was met with a growing economy that was already recovering from a global pandemic. We were already seeing the debt being addressed and starting to work in that direction.

The COVID vaccine that had been developed from Operation Warp Speed was being distributed around the world, as well as throughout the United States. We were actually starting to see inflation stabilize at a mere 1.4 percent, and filling up your gas tank only cost $2.39, thanks to American energy independence.

Despite all the pandemic-related challenges that Americans have gone through over the past year; consumer sentiment was relatively high at 79. But after a year of total Democrat control in the city, Americans no longer have a positive outlook on the economy.

Our economy shrank in the first quarter. Americans are paying more for everything they buy on a regular basis. Gas has skyrocketed to an average above $5 per gallon, and consumer sentiment has dropped to a record low of 50.2. It is bad news for our country.

Joe Biden and the Democrat policies are taking away the prosperity and the American Dream from families and small businesses across the country.

You know, on Friday, the Bureau of Labor Statistics released a staggering higher-than-expected inflation rate of 8.6 percent, but that is the year-over-year number. It really doesn’t show the impact of inflation that has come up month-on-month during the pandemic, what a lot of people are calling Bidenflation.

If we go back to January of 2021 when President Biden took office, we can see that month-on-month inflation is actually up a cumulative 11.4 percent. We have brought so much higher than that. You see it in gas. You see it in meat, in bacon, and milk.

Now, what does that mean for the average American? We are looking at, for the average American household, an additional $635 in monthly costs. As you can see, prices have continued to climb for American families each month, meaning that on average, each household has already paid an additional $5,000 for these failed policies under the Biden administration. Even if inflation stays the same, households will pay an additional $7,620 over the next 12 months.

My Republican colleagues and I understand how devastating this is for Americans. We warned for months that kneecapping American energy production, while flooding the economy with federal dollars and deficit spending, would create runaway inflation, as it has.

Today, right now, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle could ease the economic pain by repealing the fundable tax credit, child tax credit, that hasn’t mentioned that this President and our colleagues on the other side of the aisle somehow think that the largest tax-and-spend bill is the solution. More spending. More spending. More flooding the market with Federal moneys. More expansion of welfare without work.

We all want to take care of those folks who are working hard and still struggling. But, for example, the refundable tax credit, child tax credit, where we would be paying thousands of dollars per child, per person, with no requirement to work, to contribute, to have ownership in this society, it is reckless.

And, quite frankly, it is heartless because those policies trap people in poverty. They don’t lift them out. They trap them in a life of dependency on the government.

We want Americans to be the very best that God has created them to be and have the best quality of life and a chance for a better life for their family. I thank my friend, JODEY ARRINGTON, for hosting this so that we can talk about, you know, the fiscal state of the country and what the problems are and that we have to address going forward.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, I couldn’t be more proud to serve alongside of Ron Estes. The people of Kansas are well served, letting him be their voice in the people’s House.

You mentioned the disastrous economic plan and policies of this administration. It is hard to believe what you didn’t mention that this President and our colleagues on the other side of the aisle somehow think that the largest tax-and-spend bill is the solution. More spending. More spending. More flooding the market with Federal moneys. More expansion of welfare without work.

We all want to take care of those folks who are working hard and still struggling. But, for example, the refundable tax credit, child tax credit, where we would be paying thousands of dollars per child, per person, with no requirement to work, to contribute, to have ownership in this society, it is reckless.

And, quite frankly, it is heartless because those policies trap people in poverty. They don’t lift them out. They trap them in a life of dependency on the government.

We want Americans to be the very best that God has created them to be and have the best quality of life and a chance for a better life for their family. I thank my friends.

I am reminded of some great warnings from our wise Founders. Ben Franklin said, ‘‘... when you run into debt, you give another power over your life.’’ We are taking away the future of our children of their freedom, not just their economic opportunity and future prosperity.

Thomas Jefferson said, ‘‘To preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers load us with perpetual debt.’’ Warning after warning.

One of my favorites, our great father of this country, our first President, Commander in Chief George Washington, in his farewell address—think about it, penning a relatively short set of remarks, not only for those of his time, but for posterity, for future leaders of the greatest country in the world.

He gave three major warnings. He said: Be careful of foreign influence, be careful of the factions that will divide you within our own country, reawakening our bonds of unity, as I stand under the ‘‘plus ulterior motto, out of many one, that unifying spirit that made this country exceptional.
But he warned about fiscal irresponsibility, and just to paraphrase, he said: We must avoid the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions in time of peace to discharge the debts, which undoubtedly wars may occasion, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden, which we ourselves ought to bear.

I mean, we are ungenerously throwing upon posterity a burden of debt that we are not willing to bear. We are not willing to see the tough votes necessary to pay for this and reduce our debt and deficit spending and give the next generation a chance, a fighting chance to have what we have had in this great country.

I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CLOUD), another freedom-fighting Texan who serves the coastal communities in the Lone Star State, Oversight and Reform Committee member and proud Texan, the lone Texan on the Agriculture Committee. I have tremendous respect for him and his love for freedom, his love for the Lord, and his love for the people of this great country, from Texas’ 27th District.

Mr. CLOUD. Madam Speaker, I thank Chairman ROY for hosting this. God bless you.

Ms. JODEY for putting this together. I have other colleagues that have important things to say, but when JODEY framed it because $30 trillion is a hard number for us to grasp, but the idea that it is a deferred tax on our kids, it is nothing that we will have to pay, but it is a burden we are passing on to our kids in the name of spending today.

Right now what we see happening in our nation is families are struggling with inflation, inflation, and inflation. Right now many families are having to make the choice between food and fuel. You have families on a fixed income who suddenly their money doesn’t go as far as it went, and they are having to make tough choices, sometimes between medicine and food.

You have others who have saved their whole life, worked their whole life, thinking their money would stretch a certain distance, and suddenly their life savings is not worth what it was.

The Washington solution, of course, has been to spend more money, exacerbate the problem, put more money out there that causes more and more and more inflation. Typically what we happen from big-spending politicians is they try to get away with selling this idea to the American people that their personal compassion is defined by how much other people’s money we give away.

That is the most absurd notion, the fact that we could spend other people’s money and somehow go back to the American people and say, How much do I care about you? It is not our money to spend. Real compassion would be doing the due diligence to make sure that we are not just voting on a bill that has some warm and fuzzy title but that we are doing the due diligence to make sure that accomplishing the objectives it was set forth to do.

When we start a program or we start an agency, we come back and we check and we see, are they meeting their benchmarks? Are they actually accomplishing it? A lot of times in Congress we will pass a bill out of the best of intentions and find out later on that it is actually doing the opposite of what we intended it to do.

Right now in Washington if you try to get a straight answer on how many programs or agencies exist in Washington, in our Federal bureaucracy, it is hard to get a straight answer, much less to know whether they are doing a good job or not. We are being unwise with the taxpayer dollar or not.

This is one reason I have authored and introduced here the Federal Sunset Commission Act. We have one in Texas. It has been effective at helping rein in government. It would bring every agency in every Executive branch to the Senate, to the House every year before a commission and review it to see if it is something we should keep doing. Maybe there are a couple programs that are similar that we can consolidate, make them more efficient. Maybe there are some things that are just not accomplishing what they were set out to do. They may have been put out there with the best of intentions, but we need to stop it and give the taxpayer back their taxpayer dollars.

You know, when you study how nations rise and fall throughout history, usually they crumble from within. Right now that is where we are at in the United States. We are not so much on the defensive, but we have not been diligent to spend wisely. We have been irresponsible.

We are the world’s reserve currency, but we have not acted like the world’s reserve currency. If we are not careful, we will lose that very important standing that has helped us have the freedom and prosperity and, frankly, to be a light, to be a city on a hill, to be a nation that advances freedom and liberty not only here at home but, frankly, across the world, not only here in our own country.

Some years ago, it was actually under the Bush administration, there was an intelligence report that came out that said basically the greatest transfer in all of history of wealth and power is happening. It is moving now from the Western countries to the Eastern countries. They said it was almost inevitable. It was a virtual certainty is the way it was phrased that this transition would happen.

They said it was happening for two reasons. They said it was happening because we are sending oil and gas revenues overseas and we are sending manufaturing overseas. So basically the elites were taking the wealth and hard work of the American worker and sending it to nations that have not best interests in mind. And they call that good, sound policy.

I said it was virtually inevitable. Well, in the last administration, we saw that we could, indeed, bring those oil and gas revenues back. We saw that actually brought peace and security to the world. We saw that we could begin to bring manufacturing back.

If we release the American worker to do their job, to innovate, they can meet the challenges of the supply chain we face now. Let’s get government out of the way and let them do their best work.

There is a story in Scripture of a good king Hezekiah, and history will record that he was a good king, but later on in life he made a big mistake. He invited an enemy country to come see the storehouses, to see where the taxes and money and gold and weapons were stored up. A prophet came to him a couple days later, and he said, guess what, everything that your ancestors have stored up will be taken away one day because what you are doing is a tragic thing to hear. But what was even more tragic was his response when he said: Well, what you are saying is good because at least it will not happen in my lifetime.

We have too many people in this House who when it comes to legislation are willing to sugarcoat, willing to acquiesce, willing to vote on that good and fuzzy bill because they know that the damage will not come in their lifetime, it won’t come in their political career.

We have got to do what is right by the American people; do what is right for generations to come; and do what we need to do to save this great bastion of hope and freedom for the world, the United States of America. Thank you for hosting this. God bless you.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, wow, I have to really hold back here because I have other colleagues that have important things to say, but when I listen to my friend MICHAEL CLOUD, I am inspired because he is a man driven by conviction. I have watched him, and I admire his drive for truth, his seeking out what is best for the country. That is his measuring stick.

An institution of so much baloney and so many, pardon me, partisan hacks, it is nice to have somebody that just says, I want to do right by the Constitution, my constituents, and my kids. And that is what drives MICHAEL CLOUD. I am proud to serve with Representative CLOUD. I thank him for joining us for this discussion.

We have another Kansan. I think we have had three Texans and two Kansans. If we are still winning, we are still up one. TRACEY MANN is a new Member of Congress but not new to public service. He has led his great State as Lieutenant Governor.
Now, he might boast more wheat and sorghum there in his district, but he will never be able to produce more cotton than Texas 19. I love that he is a champion for our producers, our ag producers, and I love that he is equally concerned about making sure we live within our means, reduce our spending, and we reduce our national debt and get back to the fiscal footing that we all have confidence will be a gift, not a curse, and that we will, in fact, reverse the curse.

We are going to get a chance in the next term. God willing, I think the people are going to give us the chance to lead. And lead we must, which will require courage, and I know you have it.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MANN), from the First District of Kansas.

Mr. MANN. Madam Speaker, I thank Mr. ARRINGTON for doing this tonight. I thank him for being such a champion and continuing to raise this issue, which is incredibly important to all of the Midwest, the West Coast, the East Coast, our entire country, vitally important.

I enjoyed the trip to west Texas the other day, and, yes, they grow more cotton than we do in Kansas, without a doubt.

As mentioned already, we are more than $30 trillion in debt. We have added almost $6 trillion in the last 2½ years, mostly in the name of COVID. We spent more money in the name of fighting COVID than we spent to win World War II, in inflation-adjusted dollars. Let that sink in. It is absolutely mind-blowing.

The debt is now $92,000 per American. For every American, your share of the American debt is $92,000. For my wife and four kids, our family’s share is $352,000. When you rack up this kind of debt, you really only have two choices. When you spend out of your means, you can pass it on in debt or you can raise taxes. I am really concerned with the potential tax increases that this out-of-control spending will lead to.

That is why I rise today, because America is facing an economic crisis, and Democrat leaders are failing to provide the American people with any real solutions. Instead, they are just making things worse. Two aspects of this administration’s budget proposal will cause irreparable harm to the economy and health of rural America.

House Democrats, for their part, want to distract the Federal Reserve with social policy while inflation is at a 40-year high. We have to solve this problem by decreasing spending, not by increasing taxes.

In America today, farmers, ranchers, and ag producers are coping with problems that this administration has caused, like a broken supply chain, rampant inflation, and labor shortages. Now, the administration is threatening the stepped-up basis again and seeking to impose new capital gains taxes on the people who feed, fuel, and clothe us all. When the assets of family farms transfer to the next generation, the Federal Government should not jump in and impose taxes on the unrealized gain of these assets to pay for this outcome.

As an example, one principle is called the stepped-up basis. It has a long precedent in the tax code, and President Biden wants to dismantle it to pay for all of this spending.

Adding insult to injury, the President’s budget imposes capital gains taxes on farms that have been in families for more than 90 years. Think about that. In 1940, the average cost of Kansas farmland was $50 an acre. Now, irrigated land is over $1,000 per acre. Imagine the capital gains tax implications on that history of ownership.

This proposal would impose hundreds of thousands of dollars in new capital gains taxes on farmers, killing most farms overnight.

In May, I introduced a bipartisan resolution, along with 82 of my colleagues, that supports the preservation of the stepped-up basis and opposes any efforts to impose new taxes on family farms and small businesses.

The President’s budget is an attempt to extort money from rural Americans to pay for his party’s Big Government, socialist spending spree. The farm-killer tax and the elimination of the stepped-up basis aren’t game changers for American family farms; they are end games. Congress owes unwavering support to the American farmers, ranchers, and ag producers.

A few days ago, the Department of Labor released yet another report of record-breaking inflation for the month of May, the highest in over 40 years. House Democrats are responding this week by forcing a vote on a bill that would handcuff the Federal Reserve and force them to focus on social policies instead of their missions for which the Federal Reserve was created. As if the economists at the Fed don’t have enough to worry about, House Democrats now want to assign them the task of setting social policy. Unbelievable.

President Biden and Washington Democrats are completely out of touch with the American people on this issue. They are out of touch with inflation, and they are out of touch with the needs of rural Americans. They need to wake up to reality and get to work on providing real solutions to the problems that Americans are facing.

Record spending and debt will lead to America’s demise, and we cannot allow that to happen under our watch.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, I thank Representative MANN for bringing up the stepped-up basis repeal. Republicans didn’t get a vote in this large tax-and-spending bill that was called Build Back Better, that some have not so affectionately referred to as build back broke. Really, it adds, even according to CBO, trillions of dollars in new debt.

Worst of all, the Democrats negotiated some of these provisions out before they passed it out of the House. One of them was the repeal of the stepped-up basis. Then, this President put it back in the “Green Book” and says to the American farmers and ranchers, who put food on the table and give us food security, which is national security—we talk about energy independence, you wait until the pain is for the food shortage, a whole other level of concern when it comes to supply chain. Less than 1 percent, a fraction of a percent, we spend as a nation to have ag independence and have a stable ag economy through farm policies and a farm bill. This stepped-up basis, as I told Secretary Yellen, would create the largest fire sale of farm assets in the history of our country.

Farmers are cash poor. If the next generation of farmers inherits a debt that is paid after paying the wafoo on every level—income, sales, franchise, you name it, they have paid it. It is an unfair, un-American double tax, and they don’t have the cash for it. It amounts to selling off the family farm because the vast majority will be forced to do that to pay more taxes.

Mr. MANN. Which will lead to hungry Americans. When you are well fed, you have a lot of problems. When you are not well fed, you have one problem.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Amen.

Madam Speaker, I thank Representative MANN for his contributions to this important conversation with the American people.

I am proud to have also met and befriended a gentleman from the great State of Utah. The first time we met, I talked about this bipartisan effort to get to the root causes of this broken budget process and reach across the aisle and simply force us, through the appropriations process, to focus, to be stewards, to get budgets out on time with budget outcomes that would reduce the debt. I remember that Representative MOORE lit up at that dinner meeting and said: Sign me up.

Ever since then, he has been on a mission. He has worked with his constituents, put a task force together. He is prepared, as he looks at joining the Ways and Means Committee, which, by the way, when you look at 70 percent of our budget and the work we do on agriculture—that is, entitlement, mandatory programs. The vast majority of those, certainly the big drivers of our debt, are under the auspices and the authority and jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee. I will heartily welcome him to the team in that regard. I appreciate his passion for this issue.

Again, we will get an opportunity to serve and lead and govern, and we are going to need people like him to not only sound the alarm but assemble the team, the coalition of the willing, on both sides of the aisle, to do the right thing by the American people.
Congressional Record — House

June 13, 2022

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. Moore), who represents Utah’s First District.

Mr. MOORE of Utah. Madam Speaker, I thank Representative ARRINGTON for yielding. I am so appreciative that he brought up the night that we broke bread and agreement that I had. I did, I lit up knowing that there was a real concerted effort to be able to forge a path forward to solve our Nation’s biggest problem.

Make no mistake: This is our Nation’s biggest problem. This is a national security threat. This is something that affects every single American. I am looking forward, and I owe it to every constituent, to make sure that I am working on solving the problem.

I will not go back every couple years when we run for reelection and complain about how much debt we have. I put the task force together so I could explain where we are at, what the ideal Vision is something that we have to strive for, and what are some near-term recommendations that we can accomplish to accomplish that.

You heard from Representative CLOUD. I have a provision that he put forth. I have numerous workforce ideas. We have 11 million jobs. That is a participation rate that would create an enormous amount of revenue if we could get all of those jobs filled.

We have the opportunity ahead of us. There is a strong bipartisan collaboration going on led with your motivation, and I believe in it, and I am willing to work tirelessly because it is our Nation’s biggest problem.

Among all my comments today, what I want to make sure that I highlight is that we have to look at the data at what works. We have to look in 2017—didn’t solve every problem; we still have a spending issue that Republicans weren’t able to address with the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, but it got our taxes on a globally competitive scale. That allowed for us to keep companies and workers here in America, growing the economy, growing that revenue that is needed so badly.

What we did in 2017 was actually empowering Americans. What we have done in 2021—I greatly fear is what President Biden and the administration’s budget is crowding government. In 2017 we empowered Americans. We empowered ingenuity. We empowered that to drive us forward. And in the last year we have been empowering government. The massive amount of government spending has directly led to the inflation that we are seeing today.

Few things impact the lives of our constituents as directly as the state of our economy. Utahns I know are desperately hurting. Grocery prices are out of control. Gas prices—I will speak about that—they continue to skyrocket, reaching $5. I filled up for $5, the national average, in Utah, and it is predicted we could be at $6 a gallon in July.

The Biden administration’s blatant economic mismanagement has put us on the precipice of a recession. We are seeing the effects of that. The indicators for yielding the Consumer Price Index to the stock market to confidence indicators. We are seeing a recession come about as we have to raise interest rates to solve the self-inflicted mess that was created a year and a half ago when Democrats put in the Plan that masqueraded as the COVID bill, suppressed our workforce and rampant inflation. This has been mishandled at every turn.

The administration claimed that inflation posed a small risk and that the effects would be short lived, but Friday’s Consumer Price Index report, which stated that the price of goods has increased 8.6 percent in the last 12 months, validated what I have been hearing from my constituents, that inflation is hurting us, and it isn’t going away.

Due to inflation, the average household pays an additional $400 per month for the same goods and services that they purchased just a year ago at this time.

Last month, we experienced the highest inflation in 40 years, yet again breaking the Biden administration’s inflation records.

Republicans sounded the alarm last year when Democrats in Congress rammed through trillions in partisan spending priorities. According to the Congressional Budget Office’s “May 2022 Budget and Economic Outlook,” over the next 10 years our total deficits will equal $15 trillion with a deficit of $2.3 trillion in 2030 alone.

This isn’t free money. Sooner or later, reckless spending like this will force tax increases on hardworking Americans. Inflation is already a tax on hardworking, lower-income Americans that we say we are trying to help, and it does not help. That is an extra $460 a month on average.

To reverse our poor economic outlook, I organized a debt and deficit task force, and I already spoke about that a little bit, but it is with a group of really concerned citizens. These are experts in their field, across industry, a group of people who want to do this because they have seen this in their lifetime with stagflation before, and they want to be a part of this and advise me in my role and how I can share that with all of my colleagues in Congress to be able to do four simple things: Grow the economy; save and strengthen vital programs; focus America’s spending; and fix Congress’ budgeting process. That fourth piece is something that we have to come together on immediately, and I know there is bipartisan support to be able to do that.

This task force will continue to develop a clear vision for how we can best bring Utah’s fiscally sound policies to Washington to relieve inflationary pressure on hardworking families. I will continue to share our framework of solutions with my colleagues in Congress.

The United States has a flexible economy with a workforce, resources and competitive demographics. We are the envy of the world, and we need to continue to remain the envy of the world.

For the sake of each and every Utah family, we must get our fiscal house in order. Our plan will have better than that. I sincerely thank the gentleman from Texas for the encouragement. As I entered into Congress to find a niche of something that I am so passionate about, I will continue to beat this drum until we make it work.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Utah (Mr. Moore), beating the drum and sounding the alarm is a big part of it. I think at some point it is hard to calculate and get your mind around the trillions of dollars that are amazing.

We have added $7 trillion in additional debt since COVID alone. And what happens, I believe, is when you do that and there is no consequence, there is no trade-off, we are not hitting them in the pocketbook saying, we need more of your hard-earned dollars to pay for this stuff, and we are not cutting the favorite programs of our fellow Americans, so there is no pain.

Mr. MOORE. Madam Speaker, I yield.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Moral hazard. We are sleepwalking off the cliff. The problem with this crisis is, as I said, when Humpty Dumpty falls and shatters it is go to be difficult to put him together. There is just not a lot of time and heads up and warning before you go over the precipice.

It is incumbent on us, as young fathers and young family men, to be able to take this on head-on with the courage that our Founders had who gave birth to this great country.

Madam Speaker, I hear you rattling the gavel, so God bless America, and I yield back the balance of my time.

ISSUES OF THE DAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GROTHMAN) until 10 p.m.

Mr. GROTHMAN. Madam Speaker, we heard a little bit about inflation, and we are going to talk about the economy a little bit later.

As has been widely reported, inflation is at a 40-year high, the worst it has been since 1981. Over 8 percent. However, I feel that we are doing a disservice to the current situation to pretend that inflation is only 8.3 percent. The official BLS price index is inflation going up 5½ percent. Does anybody think the cost of housing has only gone up 5½ percent in the last year? I
I am sure there are both Democrats and Republicans who would like to know somebody who builds houses; the cost of a new house that he sells has gone up over 25 percent in the last year. We look at interest which has to be eaten by landlords or a person buying a house that has gone up from 2% per cent to only 8.3 percent. We all know there are things in the defense budget that—at least rumors are—that are done more to benefit the people who are making the equipment than are actually going to be helpful in an all-out war. My suggestion is for both sides to agree that inflation is out of control. To recognize the only way to get it under control is to stop having the Fed print money and to show the rest of the world that you can contain things by committing ourselves to a zero percent increase in discretionary spending for 2023.

Part of the problem here, too, by the way, is the press corps. I don’t know if the press corps ever listens to us here. If the press corps wants to make a name for itself—as people with journalism degrees used to—they can do some poking around on that 8.3 percent and do their own research by talking to car dealers, by talking to people who build housing, and by talking to landlords. They can find out, is that 5.5 percent housing cost up in the last year, is that accurate, or is the government trying to pull somebody’s leg? I know the answer, and it is time the press corps stops allowing people to get away with it.

Madam Speaker, the second issue that I think has been underreported is what is going on in Ukraine. We last had a briefing, for Congress collectively on Ukraine, on March 30, 2022. I want to know, and I would like to request right now of the majority party another briefing, by that I mean representatives from the Department of Defense and representatives from the State Department, to see how exactly we are going to get out of this.

I voted for more money for the plan because I think it is important for America to appear united, and in that vote, we knew it was going to pass. We know the majority party wanted a commitment to make sure that Ukraine was not short of munitions. However, it is important for the majority party to bring representatives of the key departments before Congress as a whole. The reason I would like to talk to them is I don’t think enough has been talked about this. Are they working toward ending this war or not?

We all know there are people in this building who, for whatever reason, seem to want to heighten the tensions in the war and get more American troops over there. There are the responsible people—of which I will classify myself as one—in which they want to work toward some sort of peace treaty before things get even more out of control.

We are dealing with a country, Russia, that has the ability to create economic havoc all over Western Europe, and, quite frankly, economic and human dislocations in the United States.

We should be briefed to see where the administration is on this topic. These are confidential briefings. In the past, I have sometimes gotten answers I like, and sometimes I have gotten answers I don’t like. It would be good if the administration would hear from Congress and see what they want.

Do they want this war heightened—top 20 percent? Do they want the United States to provide troops as backup here? Do they want the administration to be working toward an end to the war?

As I said before, we are dealing with two countries who have problems. Their birth rates are low. Ukraine has the second lowest birth rate of the 100 largest countries in the world. Russia’s birth rate is not that high either. Both countries have people leaving their countries, sometimes to the United States and sometimes other places.

In any event, I would like to make a request to the majority party that we, one more time, be briefed collectively to see what is going on. I think it is important, that is something that our inquisitive press corps ought to be looking at as well.

Madam Speaker, the next thing I would like to address—not one of my top 20 topics—but for the mainstream media, they feel what happened January 6, 2021, is very important. It is important. We are having a committee on it. I don’t think I would rather spend my time on the committee. I would rather spend my time fighting inflation, trying to find solutions to the Ukraine problem, trying to find solutions to the border, trying to do something about the huge number of people who are dying of drug overdoses in this country.

Nevertheless, it is in the news that a committee is looking into what happened on January 6. I feel it is important to see what is going on, and it is important that America know exactly what all we have available to determine what happened on January 6.

A considerable time ago, me and two congressmen—6 months ago—myself, Congressman Mac Thornberry from Texas and Congressman Gohmert from Texas wrote a letter to Merrick Garland and asked the Department of Justice to release any footage of tapes as far as what went on here that day. That request is going to be released, we really don’t know all we should know.

I am sure there are both Democrats and Republicans who would like to... know all we have as far as what actually happened that day. What tapes were available because they are taking picture of us all the time from this building.

To my dismay, 8 months later, the Department of Justice has still not answered our plea for these tapes. Eventually it gets beyond the idea of just we want everything to be available, people begin to think that the Department of Justice is hiding something.

Madam Speaker, I will make the request verbally and eventually follow up with some sort of written document asking the Department of Justice to release all the video footage of what happened in and around this building on January 6. I think until it is released there are going to be members of the public who believe that something is being hidden that day. Right now it is part of this country’s history, but I see no reason to continue this game of not answering American public, to know what the Justice Department must already know about what happened that day.

By the way, I also feel if Congresswoman CHENEY wants to be a little bit of an asset on that committee because she has a bigger mouthpiece than myself, she could demand and create a little bit of a raucous on that committee and demand to see all these tapes, so we know who really was behind things and what to make of various theories that are out there.

That is another issue that the press corps back in the good old days, where they liked to report on what is going on in this country, would routinely be against secrecy in government and would demand that those tapes be released. I do not know where the press corps is. They have the potential to improve this country, but they don’t like to get out there and apparently inform the people. And they are not adequate spokespersons in power.

Now I will address another issue that I think the press corps ought to be picking up and the American public ought to know more about. I have addressed COVID many times. Over 1 million people have died. When COVID broke, several briefings were held for all Congressmen and others for the Oversight and Reform Committee on which I serve. I would bet in the first 3 months of the COVID crisis I must have had or six hearings in which I had a chance to talk to the relative experts, Anthony Fauci and others, about COVID.

Then we switched to an isolated, small subcommittee where only a small fraction of the people in this Congress got a chance to ask questions. And at that time, with the rest of us left out, I think there are a lot of topics that the press should be looking into that we would have a chance to ask questions about but are not being asked.

As I said, when over 1 million Americans have died, I would think the press would express an interest. I, many times before, have stood at this microphone and talked about the benefits of vitamin D, and experts beginning two Septembers ago, well before the vaccine was even released, were putting papers out there saying how much vitamin D probably, now people who don’t like to push vitamin D will say that the studies out there only show correlation, not causation. But the same thing could be said about other things that clearly are connected with COVID.

Recently, Dr. Amiel Dror of Israel found that people with vitamin D levels under 20 nanograms per milliliter were 11 times more likely to die than people who weren’t.

Isn’t that something interesting?
Can you imagine, Madam Speaker, how many less people would have died if the public health establishment and the medical establishment had pushed vitamin D initially? This is interesting and consistent with prior studies.

Where is the medical establishment? Where is the public health establishment in either pushing vitamin D or apologizing for not pushing it in the past?

By the way, when calculating vitamin D deficiency—which they are calculating at 20 nanograms per milliliter, not very much—84 percent—I don’t like talking about race; I don’t think America is a binary racist country that some people on the other side of the aisle claim—but when calculating vitamin D deficiency, about 84 percent of Blacks in the country are vitamin D deficient compared to 35 percent of Whites. Blacks are 70 percent more likely to die of COVID. Every expert I have talked to believes the reason of heightened deaths in the Black community is the result of a lack of vitamin D.

By the way, it is even higher among Native Americans.

I do not know why the public health establishment and the politicians have not gone out of their way to share these numbers with people of color. All Americans should have been alerted to the benefit of vitamin D. All people over age 60 should have been given a vitamin D test to see if they were under that 20 nanograms threshold. I think anyone of color regardless of age should be given vitamin D. But whatever reason, no money was put into this, not a lot was publicized.

One million Americans died. Black Americans were 70 percent more likely to die than White Americans, and nothing was done. I think that is a scandal.

I think we ought to have more hearings before Congress collectively so we can have a chance to ask the public health establishment why they were dropping the ball here.

I think the American press corps—which was asleep at the switch here—should have been publicizing these numbers a lot more. And the American press corps should have been out there asking questions to Anthony Fauci and the other bureaucrats as to why it was not more publicized and why didn’t they specifically highlight the increased number of deaths among people of color.

Personally believe if it was the other way around, they might have been a little bit more forthright in explaining what is going on and the degree to which a lack of vitamin D correlated with additional deaths from COVID.

One other thing for the subcommittee to look at, if they get done talking about vitamin D, now that COVID is a lot less likely to lead to death, recently a new drug called Paxlovid was introduced. You can get a 5-day dosage of that drug, which is recommended, for $530. It is not cheap. Pfizer right now, I am told, expects to earn $27 billion dollars in sales from Paxlovid—$27 billion. That is a lot of money. They made a lot of money out of other things as well on the COVID. When you are talking about making $27 billion on a drug, just a few little pills, a 5-day dosage, $530, I would think the subcommittee would want to look into that and see if there is an excessive amount of money being charged for that drug. I would think the slumbering press ought to be looking into it as well.

Twenty-seven billion dollars in sales? That is what it says.

I think if anybody out there wants to find something to talk about rather than some of the trivial issues that dominate our newspapers, they can look into the rich and powerful one more time and see whether the payment for Paxlovid are a little bit excessive.

The final topic tonight is a topic that is the no secret but right now people are planning for the next session and seeing what problems in America we should address.

I personally have been outspoken. I think one problem that needs immediate attention is what is going on at the border. We also have to do something to make sure that we don’t wind up in a more serious war with Ukraine or a war with China. These are vitally important.

But in the long run, the future of America comes down to its moral fiber. This country has since the mid 1960s been a little more forthright in explaining what is going on and the degree to which a lack of vitamin D correlated with additional deaths from COVID.

We know that Karl Marx—and there are a surprising number of academics in America who are drawn to socialism—Karl Marx felt in order for socialism to exist, you had to get rid of the family. And we all know that in the last election Black Lives Matter was a powerful group and that Black Lives Matter, the founders anyway, were opposed to the traditional American nuclear family, as they describe it, the Western prescribed nuclear family, which is a lie by the way. We have nuclear families in countries that are not Western countries. There are nuclear families all over Latin America, sub-Saharan Africa, and Asia. But, in any event, it is apparent that powerful groups in this country want to destroy the nuclear family. And probably no policy did more to aid in the destruction of the American family than Lyndon Johnson’s war on the family. I think he called it the War on Poverty, but it was really the war on the family is what it amounted to.

I hope after almost 60 years or approaching 60 years after the war on the family and the huge expansion of the welfare state that this Congress would begin to address the discrimination against the traditional family.

Madam Speaker, if you look at the welfare programs—whatever program that you look at, be it health insurance, be it SNAP, but be it WIC, be it the earned income tax credit—which was a very anti-marriage program which was actually initiated by a Reppublican—all low-income housing, daycare, TANF, on SNAP, and other provisions—program after program program after program—are designed to tax dollars from the traditional family and give it more to other families. It is no problem to help everybody, but I think we set up programs designed not to go to the nuclear family, you are discriminating against them.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

ADJOURNMENT

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

>Let us pray.

>Eternal God, dressed in a robe of light, this is the day that You have made. We will rejoice and be glad in it.

>Lord, we place our trust in You. You have guided our life’s journey through many dangers, toils, and snares. Your amazing grace continues to sustain us.

>Today, show our lawmakers the right path. Lead them by Your truth and save them with Your matchless love. You continue to be the God of our salvation, and without Your mercies, we would be consumed.

>And, Lord, we thank You for our incoming summer pages, and, as always, we ask You to bless Ukraine.

>We pray in Your merciful Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

>I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

GUN VIOLENCE

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, yesterday, Democratic and Republican negotiators announced an agreement on a framework for bipartisan gun safety legislation, bringing the Senate one step closer to finally—finally—responding to the plague of gun violence that afflicts our Nation and terrorizes our children.

For the first time in a long time, the Senate has a path forward on legislation that will save lives, reduce gun violence, and keep our communities safe.

Make no mistake about it, we have a lot of work left to do before we actually pass a bill, but yesterday’s announcement was a positive and necessary step in the right direction.

Now comes the important work of turning this framework into legislation and legislative language that can pass Congress and be signed by the President. We must continue working with the urgency that this moment demands because, if we can save even one life from gun violence, it will well be worth it.

Once the text of this agreement is finalized, and I hope it will be as soon as possible, I will put this bill on the floor, quickly, so the Senate can move quickly to make gun safety reform a reality.

As I said, I will put this bill on the floor as soon as possible once the text of the final agreement is finalized so the Senate can act quickly to make gun safety reform a reality. So I urge my colleagues to continue working with the same good faith and urgency that has brought us to this point.

Certainly, yesterday’s agreement does not have everything Democrats wanted, but it nevertheless represents the most significant reform to gun safety laws that we have seen in decades. If enacted, this legislation will make it harder for mass shooters to access assault rifles by enhancing background checks for those under 21. It will prevent tragedies before they happen by helping States with their red flag laws. It will prevent gun violence at home by closing the so-called boyfriend loophole and establish new penalties for gun traffickers. It will make our neighborhoods safer by investing in mental health and community violence intervention programs. The lion’s share of gun violence happens outside the national spotlight, and these intervention programs are some of the most effective ways to reduce crime and make our communities safer.

This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.
Altogether, this framework is a good and necessary first step towards changing the reality of gun violence in America. It will lay the foundation for future action. Most importantly, this legislation will go a long way toward saving the lives of our fellow Americans.

I want to thank Senators MURPHY, SINEMA, CORNYN, and TILLIS for working assiduously on this framework.

Senator MURPHY asked me for space to let the negotiators do their work, and I was glad to give it to them because we know that any chance of getting something real done on gun safety was worth the effort.

I also want to thank my colleagues who were part of the bipartisan guns working group, including Senators BLUMENTHAL, MANCHIN, COONS, HEINRICH, and others.

I want to thank all the advocates, families, and volunteers who lost loved ones, who shared their stories, who marched for a change. Without the advocates, the families, and the volunteers who lost loved ones, this bill wouldn’t have happened because year after year after shooting after shooting, they didn’t give up. They persisted, and it helped bring us to this important moment.

For decades, families across the country have seen the same dismal pattern play out whenever a mass shooting strikes the Nation—tragedy followed by inaction. From Columbine to Virginia Tech to Las Vegas, to Parkland, to Buffalo, to Uvalde, and to so many others, gridlock has prevented Congress from bringing solace to families in grief.

But no matter how many shootings have traumatized this Nation, these families have never given up in their hope of making change happen. Rather than curse the darkness, these families have responded to tragedy by lighting candles. They have shared their stories. They have marched for change, and they have done everything in their power to make sure no other parent, spouse, or sibling has to suffer the pain they have felt and live with every day.

The same is true for all the advocates, and there are so many groups who have worked on gun safety. Many members of these groups are survivors of gun violence. I have a person on my staff who is a survivor of Aurora. They all worked tirelessly for years to enact commonsense gun safety laws.

Despite decades of frustrating gridlock, I hope that yesterday’s announcement brings some sense of accomplishment to these grieving families and to all of those who have marched and protested and written letters and tweeted because it is thanks to them we are at the threshold of progress.

Nearly 30 years ago, I was the author of the Brady background checks bill, and that was the last time Congress took meaningful action to address gun violence. It was a different era, back then, but the lesson of that experience remains relevant today: The right law can decrease gun deaths. I believe that there are tens of thousands of people alive today because the Brady law was passed in 1994. They don’t know who they are, we don’t know who they are, but it is virtually certain that that law saved thousands and thousands of lives.

I urge my colleagues to think of all the lives we can now save by turning this framework into law. Americans have waited long enough for us to take action. Too many lives—too many—have been already lost. Too many families—too many—have been left grieving.

While we can undo the tragedies of the past, we can act now to make them less likely in the future. If this framework is enacted into law, it will do precisely that, and I urge all of us to continue working to pass gun safety legislation soon.

HONORING OUR PACT ACT OF 2022

Madam President, now on the PACT Act, as negotiations continue off the floor on gun safety reform, today, the Senate will move forward with the most significant expansion of veteran healthcare benefits in decades—in decades. In a few hours, the Senate will vote on cloture on the substitute amendment for the PACT Act, which Chairman JACKSON and Ranking Member MORAN have been working on for months. It is my hope that we can finally pass this legislation in the next few days, well before the week is out.

The changes outlined by the PACT Act are long overdue. It would make sure any veteran suffering from toxic exposure in the line of duty could get the VA benefits they deserve. It would end the indignity that too many veterans face right now of carrying the burden of toxic exposure on their own and being forced to jump through hoop after hoop after hoop by the VA before they can get any benefits, and many of them never get them. As many as 3½ million veterans could benefit from the reforms brought about by this bill.

I urge my colleagues to keep working so we can push this bill over the finish line A-S-A-P because both sides want it, our veterans deserve it, and the veterans’ organizations—the VSOs—have been telling Congress for years that change is needed at the VA.

So before the week is out, the Senate should do its job and pass this bill.

SHIPPING REFORM

Madam President, now on the shipping bill, a few months ago, the Senate unanimously voted to fight inflation by fixing unfair shipping practices that are clogging our ports and straining our supply chains. Tonight, the House will finally act on that bill and send it to the President’s desk.

Inflation is the greatest frustration America has right now, and backlogs at our ports are one of the biggest drivers of price hikes that we will address through this bill.

By now, we have all seen pictures of scores of ships lining up in ports from Las Vegas to Savannah, to Seattle, to New York and New Jersey. These backlogs have not only caused great harm for American exporters trying to send their products out into the world, they have also skyrocketed the price of goods coming into this country. The backlogs create a brutal double whammy that ultimately leaves American families paying the price.

I applaud Speaker PELOSI and all of my House colleagues for taking action on this shipping reform bill, and I want to thank my colleagues here in the Senate—Senators KLOBUCHAR and THUNE, the authors of the legislation; Chairwoman CANTWELL, who shepherded it through; and others for their leadership when this bill was before the Senate.

By reforming unfair shipping practices, Congress is taking a much needed step to lowering costs, clearing our ports, and relieving supply chains. I thank all of my colleagues for a job well done.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The minority leader is recognized.

INFLATION

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, runaway inflation has pushed workers and families to the breaking point. According to one recent poll, nearly 60 percent of Americans are making an effort to drive less and cut back on electricity use. Three in four are pinching their budgets for food and entertainment outside the home, and two-thirds are bracing for prices to climb even higher in the coming year.

Six months ago, in December, President Biden told the American people we had reached the “peak” — the peak — “of the crisis” with inflation. He said that prices would start falling “over the next couple months.” But like so many others, he offered no firm predictions about our economy, the President’s statement has proven completely false.

Friday morning’s inflation report provided your official confirmation of what American consumers know painfully well: The Democrats’ out-of-control inflation is not letting up. In fact, it is actually getting worse.

This year to May, consumer prices rose 10 percent, blowing away expectations, jumping a full percentage point over the previous month and setting — you guessed it — a new 40-year high. The data underneath tell a brutal story for working families and American businesses.

Inflation in the categories driving inflation last month were the ones they can’t do without.

Overall energy prices clocked a year-on-year increase of nearly 35 percent. Drivers are paying 30 percent more at the pump. And fuel oil consumers have seen prices more than double.

Food costs continue to climb at over 10 percent. Grocery prices, in particular, hit nearly 12 percent inflation, the worst year since 1979. And full service restaurant prices saw their largest increase on record.

Of course, that is not to mention the 31-year high for inflation in the services sector, the 35-year high for rent inflation, or the 42-year high for rising airfare.

Day by day, all of these painful milestones add up to one simple reality: Americans’ hard-earned dollars aren’t going nearly as far as they once did.

Runaway inflation has swallowed up any shot of rising pay bringing more, not less into the pockets of those who are working. And it was Democrats’ choice.

Food prices, which hit a 40-year high last year, have continued to climb, with prices for the typical food basket rising by 12 percent.

One mother of two in Indiana recently reported that she is earning more than she ever has in her career but “says she still feels like she is financially losing ground.” This is what she had to say:

“I should be able to live on my own. I’m getting ready to pay rent and it’s going to take every single dime I’ve made.”

As one of my constituents in Barbourville put it recently, “We’re cutting back on everything — and I mean everything. Gas, meat, bread, it’s all expensive as hell. One moment you think you can afford to buy something, then you go to the store and it’s like, ‘Nope, can’t get that anymore either.’

And here’s the real kicker. One young couple in Utah has taken to asking themselves weekly, “What did we spend money on that we could not have spent money on?”

Imagine if Washington Democrats were willing to engage in that sort of self-reflection. Remember, it was their policy choices that made this painful situation possible. It was the Democrats’ choice to insist on flooding—flooding the economy with trillions of dollars in liberal spending last spring. And it was Democrats’ choice to spend months last summer and fall working on ways to pour even more gasoline on the fire, even though working families were already feeling the pinch of inflation.

The Democratic leader himself said last spring:

“I do not think the dangers of inflation, at least in the near term, are very real.”

None other than some of his own party’s top economists warned the exact opposite. But Washington Democrats were not to be deterred. Working families’ budgets took a back seat to the far-left’s wish list, and now Democrats’ decision is literally driving them off a cliff.

H.R. 3967

Madam President, on another matter, the Senate is in the middle of proposing major legislation to expand access to affordable prescription drugs, to impose major restrictions on to toxic substances in the line of duty.

Doing right by our vets is a bipartisan priority. An 86-vote majority of us voted to begin processing this bill a few days back, myself included.

This legislation is not a minor fix; it is a series of major—major—changes to help more veterans. So the precise language of the final bill will have major consequences for veterans, for policy, and for government spending.

Republicans have pushed to get votes on a few commonsense amendments that would make this bipartisan bill even stronger for our veterans. For example, one of these amendments would make sure the House never makes a decision that would make our vets al ready in line—those who are waiting now, already in line—waiting for treatment under the current rules are not disserved or treated unfairly as an unintended consequence of the new expansion.

Surely that should be completely without controversy.

Another amendment would make it clear how the government accounts for the new funding to make sure the new legislation does not impose major unintended consequences on the appropriations process.

Another amendment would make it clear that new medical presumptions must rest on sound science, so Congress does not substitute our judgment for the experts’.

These are not controversial amendments. They are directly related to the substance of this bill. And given the magnitude of the changes under consideration, the Senate is acutely aware that these amendments have every right to expect votes on the floor. There is no reason why this important bipartisan bill should be denied a bipartisan floor process.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

GUN LEGISLATION

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I got the news, along with others, Sunday morning about the decision of 10 Republican and Democratic Senators to move forward with the proposal to deal with our Nation’s epidemic of gun violence. I had a conversation with Senator CHUCK MURPHY, who has been one of our leaders on the Democratic side, about our commitment that we would help that we might be able to offer to him from the Senate Judiciary Committee.

I just want to say, at this moment, that I really want to commend my colleagues on both sides of the aisle—Democrats and Republicans. I believe they made a good-faith effort to negotiate a package of reforms. Senator MURPHY, Senator CORNYN of Texas, made it bipartisan, timely, and I believe did not exclude the package that I would have written? No—nor yours, Madam President. You would have included things, and I would have included others. But it is within our reach.

We have a bitterly politically divided nation. That is a fact. We have a Senate Judiciary Committee evenly divided 50–50. We have a Chamber evenly divided 50–50. So it is difficult to say that anyone wants or one person will get exactly what they want in this political atmosphere, but it is equally important to note that we have all gone home and gotten the message over and over again. Whether it was in reference to the supermarket killing in Buffalo, the fourth grade school class referred to the supermarket killing in Uvalde, TX, or the doctor and other bystanders being killed in a Tulsa, OK, hospital, all of that has occurred in the last few days.

The American people have reacted with one voice, and they have said to us two words: “Do something.” To Members of Congress, don’t just tell us you are going to give us your thoughts and prayers. Do something.

Well, I think this decision to move forward could help. Every provision in this agreement would strengthen the background check system by clarifying which gun sellers would be required to conduct background checks. That is a step in the right direction. I hope there is more coming.

The agreement would provide funds for desperately needed mental health and trauma support services, including more school counselors for enhanced school safety.

I can’t tell you how critically important that is. People die because of a gun in America commit suicide. It is a plea for help that we should be answering. This could help. We also know that some of the people who pick up these guns and go shooting children and innocent people have serious mental illness problems. They need counseling, too, and we need to find ways to reach them.

I also want to add that we have a different form of gun violence in big cities like Chicago. Many of these crimes are committed indoors, and these kids—90 percent-plus of them—have been victims of trauma in their lives. Things have happened to them which they can never forget, and they need help to deal with them. So mental health counselors and trauma counseling are critical to reducing gun violence at all of these different levels.

Importantly, the framework would crack down on the straw purchasing and the illicit trafficking of guns. Last August, someone who was a Chicago policeman, Ella French, was on duty with her partner, sitting in the squad car, when a man walked up and shot her in the head and killed her. Then he shot the other officer and blinded him in one eye. The gun that he used to kill the policewoman was the subject of a straw purchase.

What does that mean? That means that he could never have cleared a background check. That means that he was a convicted felon. So he finds a friend or a girlfriend to go in and buy it—someone who has no criminal record—and then he hands the gun over to him, and he turns around and kills a wonderful Chicago policeman. The outpouring of sentiment in favor of Ella French and her family was overwhelming.

I hope that we can get this provision, which I have worked on with Senators Collins and Leahy, included in the final passage so as to tighten up the penalties on those who make straw purchases.

If you are going to stand up and lie to the American people, and you are going to stand up and lie to the American people, you are going to give me anywhere close to an exact number of how many AR–15s we have in this country. I have heard estimates that people are convinced the number ranges from 10 to 20 million of these AR–15 military assault-style weapons.

We have a long way to go before we reach the finish line, but I want to commend those Senators who have worked so hard to bring us to this point. I will just make it very clear: I am prepared to do everything I can as a Senator and as whip to bring the votes together to get this done as quickly as possible.

STUDENT LOAN FORGIVENESS

Now, Madam President, on another matter. Two weeks ago, the Department of Education announced it would wipe out $5.8 billion in student loan debt owed by 560,000 borrowers who had attended for-profit Corinthian Colleges in the last 20 years. Corinthian Colleges was one of the largest, most corrupt, most unscrupulous companies in the for-profit college industry, but it wasn’t alone in its shady dealings—far from it.

So the basic primer on for-profit colleges and universities—the question that you are going to face on the final exam for this? We will tell the whole story about for-profit colleges and universities? The numbers 8 and 30. What do they mean? Eight percent of high school graduates go to for-profit colleges and universities—8 percent. Thirty percent of all of the student loan defaults in the United States are of students from for-profit colleges and universities.

Why? Why are these students who attend for-profit schools willing to make their student loan payments?

Well, first, these for-profit industry schools charge too much in tuition. The students can’t keep up with the debt, so they borrow more. They reach a point where something happens, and they have to drop out—afraid of the debt they have accumulated.

At the next stage, some finish. They take their diplomas from their for-profit schools, and they learn, unfortunately, that they are useless. Westwood College is one of those fraudulent for-profit colleges. It operated 15 campuses in 5 different States, including Illinois—Westwood College. I remember driving out to O’Hare Airport and looking up at the sign of one of those tall office buildings. They had a sign for Westwood College, and I thought: What a fraud.

Like the Corinthian Colleges, Westwood used high-pressure sales and marketing tactics and outright lies to deceive students into huge amounts of student debt. Students in Westwood’s criminal justice program in Illinois were told that a Westwood criminal justice degree would all but guarantee them a good-paying job with the local police department, maybe even with the FBI. What a lie.

Victoria Vences is one of the thousands of Illinois students who heard those words and paid the price for it. Victoria is the first person in her family ever to attend college, and that is the case more often than not. These students come from families with no college experience and don’t know where to turn. They look at the advertisements coldly, fall for it. They sign up for these for-profit schools like Westwood.

Victoria enrolled in the criminal justice program at Westwood in 2007, believing it would help her land a job as a probation officer or maybe even with the Immigration Services. After 3 years of juggling full-time jobs and going to school full time, Victoria was shocked to learn that a Westwood degree would not pay off at all. At that time, she owed $50,000 in student loans that she had taken out at Westwood. Not wanting to take out more loans for a useless degree, she dropped out. She started applying for law enforcement jobs, showing them the certificate of her transcript from Westwood, and they told her that it was worthless.

Victoria now works for the Illinois Domestic Violence Hotline. She likes her job, and she helps a lot of people, but she has never earned enough of an income to make the monthly payments on her student loans. Victoria Vences isn’t someone who shirks responsibility. She is helping to raise a niece and a nephew who live with her. She doesn’t believe that she should have to pay back $50,000 in loans because of the deception, I agree.

Last week, I wrote to Education Secretary Miguel Cardona, asking him for a second time—and I like him, but if he doesn’t start answering my letters, I am going to have to think of a way to get his attention. I asked him to cancel the student loan debt of all former Westwood criminal justice students in Illinois who were defrauded by this company. I first made this request in April of last year. It is time for a response, Mr. Secretary.

Last July, the Education Secretary canceled the student loan debts of 1,600 former Westwood students. Among them were 488 Illinois students who haven’t gotten that same relief. These students had all applied for relief under something known as borrower defense that allows the Education Department to cancel their student debt.

There are more than 3,000 Westwood criminal justice students in Illinois who haven’t gotten that same break. Some of them, like Victoria Vences, have carried that debt for more than 10 years. It has ruined their credit ratings, and it has made it harder for them to find a job, rent an apartment, or think about a future.

We have known for more than a decade that Westwood used misleading marketing tactics. Now they have to be called to account. The unethical behavior was documented in detail by Illinois former attorney general, Lisa Madigan, who sued Westwood 10 years ago. I remember that. I joined her in a press conference announcing it.

The Education Department also has concluded that Westwood defrauded its former students in Illinois. The Education Department should grant automatic loan forgiveness for all of the approximately 3,000 students who are still burdened with Westwood’s criminal justice program deception.

During the Trump years, the Education Department decided to take a blind eye to the situation of these for-profit schools. The Trump administration actually hired people who worked in the industry—to help regulate them. You can guess what happened—no regulation.

It is time for the Education Department to make a difference, and let me say that it is time to make a difference when it comes to student loan debt. It was in 1998 when we decided—in a bill which was loaded with extras that people didn’t discover until long after it passed—that you couldn’t discharge your student loan in bankruptcy. If you had a mortgage on a home and filed for bankruptcy, you could discharge that mortgage, even on a second home, even on a car loan, even on a loan for a boat, even on a loan for appliances—just about everything except a student loan.

Well, that was the wrong decision. That was the wrong policy. There are more than 3 million student loan borrowers who owe more than $100,000 in student loans. If we had decided these would be nondischargeable in bankruptcy, there is a provision in there that says, if there is an undue hardship, you might be able to discharge your loan. Almost never does a bank say that it is time for a student loan to be discharged in bankruptcy. This is unsustainable. Senator John Cornyn of Texas and I have introduced a bipartisan bill to change the Bankruptcy Code to make sure the Bankruptcy Code gives student debt a break. I will continue working with him and others to get this done. Bankruptcy should always be the last resort, but it ought to be an option for those who truly need relief, especially these student borrowers.

The bottom line: Even with other reform measures, like relief for the Corinthian Colleges students, bankruptcy reform ought to be part of the solution to the student debt crisis. I hope that it will.

Madam President, I recently received a letter from a man in Chicago who was writing on behalf of his dad who was a Vietnam war vet, and he was writing for hundreds of thousands of other veterans just like his dad.

These people are sick with illnesses connected to their military service. These veterans served our Nation in many different wars, in many different places, and at many different times in different branches of the military. They have one thing in common: They were unknowingly poisoned with toxic chemicals during their service. They came home from combat and they were safe as they managed to escape the fate of some of their colleagues, but years and sometimes decades later, they became sick with rare cancers, with debilitating lung diseases, heart disease, and other illnesses as a result of toxic exposure during their service.

One veteran said:

“It’s like an I.E.D. that goes off in your body 8 or 10 or 20 years [after you are out of the service].

Al LaHood, who is not related to the Congressman or the Congressman’s son, is the father my constituent wrote to me about. Al was 22 years old when he was drafted in the Army, and he served in Vietnam in an infantry, a machinemaker, stationed at Camp Cu Chi, northwest of Saigon. He came home after a year, with a Bronze Star for valor, but he brought something else home, although he didn’t know it for almost 50 years. His body had absorbed Agent Orange, the toxic defoliant used by the U.S. military in Vietnam to clear the jungles.

(Ms. DUCKWORTH assumed the Chair.)

After his service, Al LaHood earned a college degree and an MBA, got married, had a family—the American dream.

Every 2 years, he and his Army buddies made a point of having a reunion somewhere. One by one, over the years, his buddies started getting sick. Heart disease, prostate cancer, esophageal cancer—it turns out all related to the toxic exposure to Agent Orange.

Four years ago, the toxic timebomb caught up with Al LaHood. He was diagnosed with a rare form of non-Hodgkin’s lymphoma; last year, even worse news—diagnosed with another rare cancer. Doctors tell him he has a 30-percent chance of surviving 5 years.

The VA ruled that his cancers are service-related and declared Al a hundred percent disabled. It amazes him to think that he now receives more in disability compensation each month than he received in combat pay for an entire year in Vietnam.

Exposure to toxic substances is not new. In World War I, it was mustard gas; World War II, exposure to nuclear tests; Vietnam, Agent Orange. In the Persian Gulf wars and the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, there was a new form of exposure. It was called burn pits. The military dug massive pits, filled them with everything imaginable—burned humvees and aircraft to medical waste, human waste, computers, batteries, plastics—every bit of trash produced in a war on a military base. Then they doused it all with jet fuel and lit it on fire. The thick black smoke from the fire contained invisible deadly chemicals. They filled the air and covered everything around. And the soldiers, they breathed them into their lungs and into their bodies.

Al LaHood’s son said his dad was concerned for the veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. He hopes they receive early screening, so if they develop cancer, this just might be able to save their lives.

Al said his family say they want more research into the kinds of rare cancers and other illnesses that toxic-exposed veterans developed so they can be detected earlier. Al would give up gladly all of his disability payments if the money could be spent on research for illnesses that might hit his fellow victims exposed to toxic substances.

I want Al LaHood and the hundreds of thousands of toxic-exposed veterans, their families, and caregivers to know the bill we are about to pass today honors your service; we hear your voices.

This week, the Senate is taking up SPC Heath Robinson Honoring Our PACT Act. The PACT Act is the most important piece of veterans legislation in a generation. It is about keeping promises, the promises that we made to veterans that if they risked their lives for our Nation and became wounded as a result, that we would not leave them behind; they would have health care and benefits they needed and earned.

The PACT Act builds on the historic Agent Orange Act. Let me, at this point, note that a friend of mine, now deceased, was one of the major movers on the Agent Orange Act of 1991. His name was Lane Evans. He was from the Quad Cities in Illinois. He and I were elected to the U.S. House in the same year, 1982.

Lane was a Vietnam-era veteran who came back determined to help his fellow veterans, and he made Agent Orange his cause. He recognized that illnesses caused by Agent Orange are actually war wounds and should be treated that way.

The PACT Act takes that principle that Congressman Lane Evans stood for and applies it to other situations. It applies it to all American veterans from all wars who were exposed to toxic chemicals during their service, whether overseas or in the United States.

As we continue to learn about the cost of exposure, it provides a framework to add more conditions related to toxic exposure in the future. Veterans will no longer have to fight a second war with the VA to prove their illness was service-related. They can focus on fighting their disease instead of fighting the bureaucracy.

It is estimated that the PACT Act will affect 1 out of every 6 veterans—11½ million veterans in all. The act directs the VA to devote resources and personnel needed to process new claims and treat new patients.

In another provision, which I strongly support, the PACT Act directs the VA to work collaboratively with the Department of Defense and the Department of Health and Human Services and the Environmental Protection Agency—a whole-of-government search for better ways to detect, treat, and cure these hidden deadly wounds of war. Our veterans deserve nothing else.

I have heard some critics say: This is going to cost a lot of money.

Right. It just might do that. But can you think of a more deserving cause? Can you think of anything bolder than for us to really face the true causes of war than to stand by our veterans?

Madam President, you know that story far better than I do.

I have long supported this whole-of-government approach to research—especially at the VA—and treatment for our veterans.

Many VA researchers are veterans themselves, determined to find innovative treatment and cures for the illnesses that toxic-exposed veterans that if they risked their lives for our Nation and became wounded as a result, that we would not leave them behind; they would have health care and benefits they needed and earned.

The PACT Act builds on the historic Agent Orange Act. Let me, at this point, note that a friend of mine, now deceased, was one of the major movers on the Agent Orange Act of 1991. His name was Lane Evans. He was from the Quad Cities in Illinois. He and I were elected to the U.S. House in the same year, 1982.

Lane was a Vietnam-era veteran who came back determined to help his fellow veterans, and he made Agent Orange his cause. He recognized that illnesses caused by Agent Orange are actually war wounds and should be treated that way.

The PACT Act takes that principle that Congressman Lane Evans stood for and applies it to other situations. It applies it to all American veterans from all wars who were exposed to toxic chemicals during their service, whether overseas or in the United States.

As we continue to learn about the cost of exposure, it provides a framework to add more conditions related to toxic exposure in the future. Veterans will no longer have to fight a second war with the VA to prove their illness was service-related. They can focus on fighting their disease instead of fighting the bureaucracy.

It is estimated that the PACT Act will affect 1 out of every 6 veterans—11½ million veterans in all. The act directs the VA to devote resources and personnel needed to process new claims and treat new patients. availability and accessibility of mental health services across the country. If you look at the profile of these young, male shooters—whether it is in Sandy Hook or it is in Uvalde, TX—they fit a familiar profile: alienated from their peers, suffering increasingly and deteriorating mental health, not getting any treatment. It is like circling down the drain. Unless they get some help, they are likely to do what, unfortunately, too many of our young people do, and that is commit suicide. In the case of Adam Lanza in Sandy Hook and Salvador Ramos in Uvalde, they not only commit suicide—because they know they are not coming out of this alive—but they take innocent lives with them. So access to mental health support is absolutely critical.

So, too, is the investment in our schools. This includes everything from physically hardening school buildings to training personnel, to more effective violence prevention efforts. We know at Uvalde, TX, they had a lock on it, but it didn’t work, allowing the shooter easy access to this elementary school.

All of our students—all—deserve to feel safe in their schools, and no parent should send their child to school worried about their safety. They deserve to know their child will be safe at school and the peace of mind that goes along with that. That is why I think these resources for additional school hardening of that soft target is very important.

The final portion provides targeted reforms to keep guns out of the hands of individuals who already, by law, should not have guns to begin with. Our proposal includes resources for States to implement crisis intervention orders.

Now, some have talked about red flag laws, but that is actually a broader category than red flag laws that exist in 16 States. As I said, some of this assistance for crisis intervention orders will help administer existing red flag laws, but my hope is that others will qualify for these resources for other important measures to help provide support for our communities to aid in crisis intervention, things like assisted outpatient treatment centers. As I said, 16 States have red flag laws. Texas does not, and they certainly shouldn’t miss out on access to these resources for crisis intervention.

But things you hear you people concerned with most when it comes to these red flag laws where people who are found, after an adjudication, to be a danger to themselves and others and can lose access to their firearms on a temporary basis—it is absolutely critical that each and every one of those includes protection that comes from due process of law and particularly when it comes to the rights of law-abiding gun owners.

Our framework also includes protections for victims of domestic violence. It shouldn’t matter whether the victim is married to their abuser; if the abuser is convicted of domestic violence, they should not be able to purchase a firearm.

Our proposal also cracks down on illegal sellers and manufacturers of firearms, like the man who sold a gun to the shooter who killed 7 people and injured 25 others in Odessa, TX, and purchased a firearm from somebody watching AR-15 ads on the internet. The shooter knew he couldn’t pass a traditional background test, so he traveled to Lubbock, TX, and purchased a firearm from somebody who agreed not to ship parts that he purchased over the internet. And, of course, no background check was done, and tragedy ensued.

Our provisions also include a review of juvenile records for buyers under the age of 21. In Uvalde, Salvador Ramos was able to pass a background check only because no one had any insight—official insight—into his tortured background. I have said before he was a ticking time bomb: somebody who mutilated himself; threatened assaults, including sexual assaults, against his fellow students; somebody who posted pictures online of the weapons that he had bought and threatened online to go shoot up a school.

We need to know before somebody walks in and buys a firearm when they turn 18 what their mental health and criminal record history looks like, to the extent feasible. Then we need to incentivize more States, like the States of South Carolina and Virginia that currently upload mental health adjudications even for juveniles.

To be clear, we agreed on a precise statement, a set of principles. That was very important and hard-fought. But now comes the even more difficult task of trying to agree on legislative text to actually implement those principles, and that is what we are working on this week. My hope is that we can complete that job in the next few days—hopefully by the end of the week—so that the bill will be available for all Senators—indeed, all the world—to read, and then Senator SCHUMER will have the right to vote on it, should he choose to do so, to put it on the floor of the Senate next week.

There has been a lot of talk and speculation in the press about what was included in the bill, and I am pleased to assure the nation that the principles we came up with will save lives. To me, that is the ultimate goal, just like the legislation we passed in 2018 to fix the background check system after Sutherland Springs. I believe the principles we have articulated, if carried out in legislative text, which I expect them to be, will save lives. That is our goal. But we also understand that we are operating here at a 60-vote threshold, that 59 votes won’t get it and any lesser number will not allow us to vote to close off debate and then to pass a bill. So I want to just talk about ideas that were left out of this discussion because we knew they would jeopardize our ability to get to 60 votes.

There was a lot of desire on both sides to include additional things, but they were excluded in large part because of our necessity of getting to 60 votes in order to get a bill—for example, proposals on universal background checks, assault weapon bans for 18- to 21-year-olds, mandatory waiting periods, a 21-day waiting period for purchases of all firearms, high-capacity magazine bans, unconstitutional mandatory safe storage requirements of all firearms in homes, licensing requirements for purchasing any firearm, criminal penalties for the negligent storage of firearms in a home, and low mens rea—that is a criminal state of mind—standard for straw purchasing and trafficking firearms.

All of these had been proposed by either President Biden or many of our Democratic colleagues and were not included in the statement of principles that was agreed to by 10 Republicans and 10 Democrats. We knew including any of these components would jeopardize our ability to pass anything anytime our Democratic colleagues tried to push the envelope as far as they could, we had to remind them of that requirement and push back.

Again, my view, my redline, my starting point, my premise in all of this is law-abiding gun owners are not the problem. Law-abiding gun owners who have passed a background check have a Second Amendment right to purchase a firearm, and no limitation on their rights is going to prevent shootings like Uvalde or Sandy Hook or Sutherland Springs. So focusing on the problem, which is keeping criminals and people with mental health problems from purchasing firearms under existing law, I believe, is the right formula to build consensus and get a bill on the President’s desk.

We are still working, as I said, through a lot of the details, but I am encouraged about where things stand right now. As I said, my goal all along is the art of the possible. That is what politics is; it is the art of the possible. It is not everything I want and nothing you want or everything you want and nothing I want. That is how not to get a deal. That is how not to accomplish anything.

I am hoping that 10 Republicans supporting the bill is not a ceiling but is the floor, and we intend to continue to work with our colleagues to help them understand these principles that we have agreed to, the 20 of us, and to write legislative text that can earn broad bipartisan support, maybe super-majority support, here in the U.S. Senate.

I want to personally thank our colleagues Senator MURPHY, Senator SINEMA, and Senator TILLIS for working in good faith to get us to this point, as well as a number of other Senators who contributed to this bipartisan proposal.

I would have a lot of work ahead of us. I think in many ways this is the beginning—not the middle or the end—of our work because now we need to put these principles into legislative text, and then we need to get it on the Senate floor, get it passed, get it passed in the House, and then get it to President Biden’s desk.

I will be sharing further updates with my colleagues in the Republican conference this week, and I hope, working together with Senator Tillis and others, to build additional support on our side of the aisle.

U.S. SUPREME COURT

Madam President, I just want to close on one final note. The bipartisan work that we have done here in the Senate on this school safety, mental health, and gun safety bill is a sharp contrast from what is happening on the other side of the Capitol. House Democrats, unfortunately, have a history of prioritizing politics over policy, but now, their games have reached a dangerous low. I am talking about the safety and security of the members of the U.S. Supreme Court and their families.

It has been more than a month since the Senate passed bipartisan legislation to protect them from threats of violence. The legislation Mr. Coons, a Senator from Delaware, and I introduced in May—this bipartisan bill—passed the Senate unanimously. Do you think that happens every day? Not by a long shot. To get all 100 Senators to support a piece of legislation means it is really not controversial. But, unfortunately, once it went to the House, it sat there and languished for a month.

Even as members of the Supreme Court and their families are being threatened, the House hasn’t allowed a vote on that bipartisan bill. The reason given by our Democratic colleagues in the House is, well, they want to extend further protection to Court employees and their families. That could include around-the-clock security details for them. That could include some of the very same protection that the U.S. Supreme Court and their families are being given by our Democratic colleagues in the Senate. That could include around-the-clock security details for them. That could include some of the very same protection that the U.S. Supreme Court and their families are being given by our Democratic colleagues in the Senate. That could include some of the very same protection that the U.S. Supreme Court and their families are being given by our Democratic colleagues in the Senate.

But this close call immediately set a dangerous precedent. That is all we want to try to do, but first, they need to pass the bipartisan bill Senator Coons and I introduced.

The line between legitimate public discourse and acts of violence has been crossed, and House Democrats cannot continue to turn a blind eye. We don’t have time to spare when it comes to protecting the members of the Court and their families. If, Heaven forbid, something were to happen because of a lack of authority that would be conferred by the Supreme Court Police Parity Act, shame on Members of the House of Representatives. It would be on them for their failure to act on this commonsense, bipartisan bill.

Madam President, the House needs to pass the Supreme Court Police Parity Act today and, if not today, tomorrow. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, there has been a lot of well-deserved attention to free expression limits on college campuses. My colleagues have heard me right here on this very Senate floor speak about the need for free expression many times. But one reason we have this issue at colleges is because students aren’t exposed to the diverse ideas in our public schools and other K–12 institutions. So when brand new college students encounter opposing ideas for the first time, you have heard it—they lash out. They demand what are called safe spaces on the college campuses. Now, that tells me that students are coming to college very unprepared to hear diverse views. If your own views have never been challenged, then you almost certainly have not developed the skills to evaluate different viewpoints and then go ahead and make up your own mind.

So let’s raise this question: Why are students arriving in college so resistant to hearing diverse views?

I have been following some news stories on this subject last month, and all of this may not be entirely accidental, that our high school students aren’t prepared to hear diverse viewpoints when they get to college.

The American Federation of Teachers recently announced that it wants to put an extension on the computers of its 1.7 million members. The goal of this NewsGuard extension is to provide “trust ratings” of news websites. Although numerous studies have pointed to the clear bias that NewsGuard, the AFT still wanted to bring it into the classrooms across America. Now, that should not be our goal. Our goal should be to get political bias out of K–12 schools, not intrain it. Contrary, a clear bias is that I have heard from Iowa teachers has been that we need to develop among our students critical thinking. Well, critical thinking requires listening to different ideas. If all students just agree with their teachers, that is repetition, not independent thinking.

The disease that has infected so many colleges now seems to spread throughout our K–12 schools. I hope for our country’s future we find a way to continue to show kids both sides of an argument, rather than shutting down ideas that teachers may disagree with. I have heard from many Iowans concerned about exactly that kind of bias. But we can’t fix it here in Washington, DC.

The first rule of education policy should be that decisions are made as close to the family as possible. If you have issues with how your school is being run, your local school board should be your very first step. If you have issues with how your school is being run, your local school board should be your very first step. These elected officials are directly accountable to the parents in your own communities. A problem should only go up to the State legislature if it is caused by State law, and only a select few issues should go to this national level. These elected officials are directly accountable to the parents in your own communities. A problem should only go up to the State legislature if it is caused by State law, and only a select few issues should go to this national level.

So if you see political bias or lack of diverse viewpoints in your kids’ school, go to the people who can fix it. Make your voice heard both at school board meetings and at the ballot box.

BORDER SECURITY

Madam President, on another subject, we had the good fortune of hearing a series of speeches last week led by my colleague from Iowa, Joni Ernst, on the critical situation at our southern border. I voted with her when voting on our laws, coming into this country, and almost being invited into this country in violation of our laws because our laws say you need the permission of the United States to come to this country. So I didn’t speak last week on that subject, but, as I have done on a number of occasions otherwise, I want to once again come to my colleagues about the border crisis created by President Biden, Secretary Mayorkas, and maybe more throughout this administration.

The crisis at our southern border is one of the top issues I hear at my county meetings. Iowans are understandably upset by President Biden’s policies that have incentivized illegal immigration and created a historic crisis at the border.

In the first 15 months of this administration, U.S. Customs and Border Protection—CBP, as we call it—has experienced over 2.7 million encounters with illegal immigrants at the southern border. That number is staggering. It is larger than the population of 15 States and Washington, DC. It is almost three times larger than the President’s home State of Delaware.

Make no mistake about it, this crisis is entirely the fault of President Biden and the policies that he put in place almost his first day in office.

Since taking office, this administration has terminated physical barrier construction at the southern border. In other words, the wall that works to keep people from entering our country was stopped being built.

Next, this administration attempted to severely limit the ability of ICE to deport illegal immigrants; also attempted to terminate the “Remain in Mexico” policy; rolled back asylum cooperative agreements; openly supported sanctuary city policies; emasculated mass catch-and-release policies; put forward mass-amnesty legislative proposals that would do nothing to secure the border; and even attempted to terminate title 42 without any plan in place to deal with what happened when we increased the number of people legally crossing our border from about 6- to 7,000 a day to 18,000 a day, and that figure comes from the estimates of our own executive branch government.

Now, listing all these things, therefore, it shouldn’t be a surprise to see a record-shattering surge of illegal immigration at our southern border. This is what happens when you make it easy.

As I said before, it is an unfortunate reality that the President and his administration believe the surge in illegal immigration at the southern border is a process to be managed rather than a crisis to be stopped. Until that mindset changes, this historic crisis at our southern border will continue. And President Biden, Secretary Mayorkas, and the irresponsible and reckless policies of this administration deserve all of the blame for the situation that we are in.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MORAN. Madam President, as you know, the Senate is currently considering the HEATH Robinson Honoring Our PACT Act. This bipartisan legislation is the most comprehensive toxic exposure bill ever considered for veterans.

My colleagues deserve a fair consideration of common sense and reasonable amendments to improve this bill for our veterans. The House of Representatives had six votes and adopted 27 amendments. Part of the agreement between the Senate, Chairman TESTER, and I was that amendments would be considered for this legislation; and, specifically, I have pushed for two amendments to be considered.

Given the magnitude and size of this legislation, there is a bipartisan process, and given the magnitude of the bipartisan support of this legislation, there needs to be a bipartisan process on the Senate floor; and I would ask the leadership of the Senate to make certain that is the case.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legistative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TESTER. Madam President. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TESTER. Madam President, the Senate has a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to pass bipartisan legislation this week. The Sergeant First Class Heath Robinson Honoring Our PACT Act will honor this country’s commitment to our country’s toxic-exposed veterans and their families.

Generation after generation of veterans have been exposed to toxic substances during their time serving this country. And when they return from their military service, they have faced yet another battle right here at home— that battle to get the care and benefits that they have earned and that they desperately need.

In the worst cases, folks are praying and praying with the price of their lives—veterans and heroes like SFC Heath Robinson, for whom this bill is named. Like many Americans, Heath answered the call of duty and deployed to Kosovo and Iraq with the Ohio National Guard.

When he deployed, he was a healthy and active soldier. While deployed, he was exposed to toxins from burn pits. And 13 years—13 short years—after his deployment, he lost his life to a rare autoimmune disease and stage 4 lung cancer, conditions undoubtedly related to his exposure to toxins from burn pits while he was on active duty serving this Nation.

He left behind an 8-year-old daughter. He also left behind a wife and family. And this family is now committed to ensuring that this country provides for other veterans what it could not provide for Heath—the support he needed to survive.

This bill will address decades of inaction and failure by our Government. It expands eligibility for VA healthcare to more than 3½ million combat veterans exposed to burn pits, supporting our post-9/11 and Vietnam-era veterans by removing the burden of proof for 22 presumptive conditions caused by toxic exposure, from cancers to lung disease.

It establishes a framework for the establishment of future presumptions of service-related toxic exposures, giving the VA the tools it needs to bolster its workforce, establish more healthcare facilities, and improve the claims process to better meet the immediate and future needs of every veteran that the VA serves.

The Senate has a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to pass a bipartisan and comprehensive bill to honor our Nation’s veterans that their government has turned its back. Our men and women in uniform answered the call of duty. The Presiding Officer of the Senate knows exactly what I am talking about. They upheld their end of the bargain; we need to uphold ours.

Madam President, I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TESTER. I ask unanimous consent that we yield back all time and the vote occur right now.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Pursuant to Rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of Rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on Tester substitute amendment No. 5051 to Calendar No. 388, H.R. 3967, a bill to improve health and care and benefits for veterans exposed to toxic substances, and for other purposes.

Gries E. Schumacher, Testor, Tommy Duckworth, Robert P. Casey, Jr., Margaret Wood Hassan, Kyrsten Sinema, Mark Kelly, Christopher Murphy, Sherrod Brown, Tina Smith, Jacky Rosen, Benjamin L. Cardin, Jack Reed, Tammy Baldwin, Jeanne Shaheen, Joni K. Ernst, Thom Tillis, and Ben Ray Lujan.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on amendment No. 5051, offered by the Senator from Montana, Mr. TESTER, to H.R. 3967, a bill to improve health care and benefits for veterans exposed to toxic substances, and for other purposes, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Georgia (Mr. WARNOCK) is necessarily absent.

Mr. THUNE. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Texas (Mr. CRUZ), the Senator from Louisiana (Mr. KENNEDY), the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. Sasse), and the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. WICKER).

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 78, nays 17, as follows:

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Ms. SINEMA. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations on bloc: Calendar Nos. 991 and 992, that the Senate vote on the nominations en bloc without intervening action or debate; that the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon table; that any statements related to the nominations be printed in the RECORD; that the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action; and the Senate resume legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nominations of Joshua D. Hurwit, of Idaho, to be United States Attorney for the District of Idaho, for the term of four years; Gerard M. Karam, of Pennsylvania, to be United States Attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania for the term of four years; and Jacqueline C. 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF JUNETEENTH IN PORTLAND, OREGON

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, Senator MERKLEY and I wish to recognize the 50th anniversary of the Juneteenth Oregon Celebration in our hometown of Portland, OR. Every year on June 19, people in Portland and across the State of Oregon and the Nation join together to celebrate when, on June 19, 1865, more than 250,000 enslaved people in Texas were finally declared free more than 2 years after the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation. Juneteenth is a celebration of freedom and recognition that emancipation was delayed for many enslaved people even after the Civil War was over. This day is among the most important days of commemoration in our Nation.

The Juneteenth celebration was brought to Oregon in 1945 by the late and beloved community leader Clara Peoples. She led the first-ever Juneteenth celebration in Oregon at work when her supervisor told her that if she continued in our Nation for over 15 minutes she would be fired, she announced to her coworkers, “Hear ye, hear ye. It’s Juneteenth. We have 15 minutes to celebrate.” Thanks to Clara’s tireless efforts in the community and her work to create the nonprofit organization Juneteenth OR, the first official citywide celebration of Juneteenth occurred 50 years ago on June 19, 1972—and today all celebrate Juneteenth with a parade and other festivities like delicious food, art, and live music.

Clara Peoples continued fighting for her community by lobbying at all levels of government to make Juneteenth a recognized holiday on the State and national level. While, sadly, Clara did not live to see her efforts realized, she clearly paved the way for Juneteenth to at long last be declared a Federal holiday and a State holiday in Oregon. Today, we remember and honor her as, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Ronald Myers, “the mother of Juneteenth.”

Soon after Clara Peoples passed away in 2015, her granddaughters Jenelle Jack and Jynnefer Robinson took over as the leaders of Juneteenth OR. Jenelle and Jynnefer continue to champion this special and important event, creating and coordinating online celebrations for 2 years during the peak of the COVID-19 pandemic. They even sent Oregon’s candidate for last year’s Miss America, Acella Eugenie, OR, to Galveston, TX, where she was crowned National Miss Juneteenth Queen. It was through Jenelle and Jynnefer’s efforts—and the efforts of the dedicated staff and volunteers of Juneteenth OR—that Portlanders and Oregonians across the State will once again be able to celebrate Juneteenth in person this year. We look forward to another Clara Peoples Freedom Trail Parade this year, as well as another Miss Juneteenth competition where young Black women will have the opportunity to showcase who they are, their talents, and their confidence.

While celebrating a victory in the fight to keep the film “Birth of a Nation,” which celebrated the Jim Crowism of the Ku Klux Klan, from being played in Portland, another Oregon hero and notable civil rights advocate Beatrice Morrow Cannady said, “human rights, the greatest of all rights, and human happiness once again triumphed.” So we want to say that when enslaved people in Texas finally learned that they were free, human rights and human happiness triumphed. When Juneteenth became a citywide celebration in Portland 50 years ago, human rights and human happiness triumphed. When Juneteenth became a national holiday in 2021, human rights and human happiness triumphed. And now, on the 50th anniversary of Portland’s first Juneteenth and the first time that Oregon has recognized this important day as a State holiday, human rights and human happiness have triumphed.

Juneteenth is an opportunity to celebrate the emancipation of Black Americans and progress made in the fight for human rights and human happiness. It is also a reminder, however, that the fight for true equity for all Americans is far from over. Together, we must press forward and never stop until all are equal.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

REMEMBERING JOSEPH L. MURCHISON, JR.

• Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, I rise today with a heavy heart to pay tribute to Joseph ‘Joe’ Murchison, Jr., an extraordinary public servant who passed away last year and who would have turned 92 on June 19, 2022.

Joe was born in North Carolina in 1930 and enlisted as early as he could in the U.S. Army. Determined to commit himself to his Nation, Joe eventually joined the all-Black 555th Parachute Infantry Battalion. The members of this battalion were called the “Triple Nickles.”

In 1947, a year before the Army was desegregated, Major General James Gavin oversaw the troopers’ transfer into the 3rd Battalion, 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment. This was the first step toward integrating the 82nd Airborne Division and making the Triple Nickles some of the first Black soldiers to train alongside White soldiers.

Even after this trailblazing shift, the troopers continued to consider themselves Triple Nickles. Despite the racial separation of most soldiers, the paratroopers gained the respect of many units as a result of their special airborne status. As Joe said, “We knew we had something to prove and we had to be better than the best.”

In 1958, Joe retired from the military as an officer. He followed his impressive service by starting several successful businesses across the United States and helping to found a newspaper in Greensboro called the “Carolina Peacemaker.” As part of these endeavors, Joe worked as a North Carolina automobile dealership and worked with a major car manufacturer to promote an alternative fuel vehicle.

Joe founded the 555th Parachute Infantry Association, Inc., in 1979. The organization enables the paratroopers to stay connected. Throughout his three terms as president of the association, Joe saw it grow to include over 1,500 members across 26 chapters.

Throughout his remarkable lifetime, Joe dedicated himself to sharing the importance of the Triple Nickles, even visiting the White House. While he was alive, Joe was pleased to see Juneteenth—also his birthday—be named a Federal holiday by President Biden. He passed away on November 11, 2021, Veterans Day.

My wife Cynthia and I extend our best wishes to his daughter, Joelle, along with her 10 siblings, as well as Joe’s grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and great-great-grandchildren, as they celebrate his outstanding life this Sunday. I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing Joseph L. Murchison, Jr.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Roberts, one of his secretaries.

PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGES

REPORT ON THE CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY THAT WAS ORIGINALLY DECLARED IN EXECUTIVE ORDER 13219 OF JUNE 26, 2001, WITH RESPECT TO THE WESTERN BALKANS—PM 32

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to Belarus that was declared in Executive Order 13466 of June 26, 2008, which was expanded in scope in Executive Order 13458 of August 9, 2021, is to continue in effect beyond June 16, 2022.

The actions and policies of certain members of the Government of Belarus and other persons, and the Belarusian regime’s harmful activities, continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. Therefore, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13466 with respect to Belarus.

JOSEPH R. BIDEN, JR.

REPORT OF THE CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY THAT WAS ORIGINALLY DECLARED IN EXECUTIVE ORDER 13458 OF JUNE 16, 2006, WITH RESPECT TO NORTH KOREA—PM 34

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to North Korea that was declared in Executive Order 13466 of June 26, 2008, which was expanded in scope in Executive Order 13458 of August 9, 2021, is to continue in effect beyond June 16, 2022.

The actions and policies of certain members of the Government of North Korea and other persons, and the regime’s obstructionist activity, continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. Therefore, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13221 with respect to the Western Balkans.

JOSEPH R. BIDEN, JR.

REPORT OF THE CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY THAT WAS ORIGINALLY DECLARED IN EXECUTIVE ORDER 13457 OF AUGUST 30, 2010, WITH RESPECT TO BELARUS—PM 33

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to North Korea that was declared in Executive Order 13466 of June 26, 2008, which was expanded in scope in Executive Order 13458 of August 9, 2021, addressed further in Executive Order 13570 of April 18, 2011, further expanded in scope in Executive Order 13687 of January 2, 2015, and which was expanded in scope in Executive Order 13722 of March 15, 2016, and Executive Order 13810 of September 20, 2017, is to continue in effect beyond June 26, 2022.
The existence and risk of the proliferation of weapons-usable fissile material on the Korean Peninsula; the actions and policies of the Government of North Korea that destabilize the Korean Peninsula and imperil United States Armed Forces, allies, and trading partners in the region, including its pursuit of nuclear and missile programs; and other provocative, destabilizing, and repressive actions and policies of the Government of North Korea, continue to constitute an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States.

For this reason, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13466 with respect to North Korea.

JOSEPH R. BIDEN, Jr.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. Padilla (for himself, Mrs. Feinstein, and Mr. Romney):
S. 4362. A bill to require the Secretary of the Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of the 2028 Olympic and Paralympic Games in Los Angeles, California; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. Padilla (for himself and Mrs. Feinstein):
S. 4383. A bill to provide assistance for surface transportation projects relating to international Olympic, Paralympic, and Special Olympics events; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. Padilla. Mr. President, I rise to speak in support of the Transportation Assistance for Olympic Cities Act and the LA28 Olympic and Paralympic Games Commemorative Coin Act, which I introduced today.

While the eyes of the world will be on the Olympic and Paralympic Games in Los Angeles in 2028, the work preparing our region for this grand stage is already starting. That is why I am proud to introduce these bills that will help carry out the Games and make investments in the region and across our Nation.

The Transportation Assistance for Olympic Cities Act would ensure the Federal Government provides critical assistance for surface transportation projects and plans relating to international Olympic, Paralympic, and Special Olympics events. The transportation plans made in the coming years will not only make the Olympics and Paralympics run smoothly but will also be an investment in infrastructure that will benefit communities and the region for years to come.

This bill would also allow the Department of Transportation to prioritize Federal transportation grants for projects relating to an Olympic, Paralympic, and Special Olympic International event and to provide funding for temporary facilities, equipment, operations, and maintenance that meet the extraordinary needs associated with hosting such events.

The LA28 Olympic and Paralympic Games Commemorative Coin Act would direct the Treasury Department to mint coins in commemoration of the ninth time that the United States will host the modern Olympics and the third time the Nation will host the Paralympics. This bill would come at no cost to the Federal Government. Any surcharges from the sale of the coins would support the hosting of the 2028 Games and aid in the execution of legacy programs, including the promotion of youth sports in the United States.

I want to thank Representative Brownley and Representative Sherman for co-leading these bills with me, and I hope our colleagues will join us in support of these bills that will help Los Angeles, California, and our entire Nation prepare for the successful administration of the 2028 Olympics and Paralympics.

Secretary compensation awarded under this section to such individual.

(iv) Right of Subrogation.—Upon payment of compensation pursuant to a claim under subsection (a) of this section, United States Government is subrogated for the amount of the payment to a right or claim that the individual to whom the payment was made may have against anyone on account of injuries referred to in such subsection.

(v) Guidelines.—The Attorney General shall establish guidelines for determining amount of compensation under this section for injuries or conditions, including reasonable compensation for medical expenses, lost wages, and pain and suffering.

(A) Action General. —

(i) In General.—(I) The Attorney General shall complete the determination on each claim filed under subsection (a) in accordance with the procedures established under paragraph (1)(A) not later than 12 months after the date on which the claim is filed under such subsection.

(ii) Additional Information.—The Attorney General may request from any claimant under this section any reasonable additional information or documentation necessary to complete the determination on the claim in accordance with the procedures established under paragraph (1)(A).

(iii) Payment Within 6 Weeks.—The Attorney General shall ensure that a claim filed under subsection (a) is paid not later than 6 weeks after the date on which such claim is approved.

(B) Payment in Full Settlement of Claims Against the United States.—Except as otherwise authorized by law, the acceptance of payment by an individual under this section satisfies all claims of or on behalf of that individual against the United States that arise out of exposure to water contamination at Camp Lejeune under subsection (a).

(C) Judicial Review.—(i) An individual whose claim for compensation under this section is denied may seek judicial review within 180 days of denial solely in a district court of the United States.

(ii) The court shall have jurisdiction to review the denial on the administrative record and shall hold unlawful and set aside the denial if it is arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law.

(C) Attorney Fees. —Notwithstanding any contract, the representative of an individual may not receive, for services rendered in connection with the claim of an individual under this section, more than that percentage specified in paragraph (2) of a payment made under this section on such claim.

(2) Applicable Percentage Limitations.—The percentage referred to in paragraph (1) is—

(A) 2 percent for the filing of an initial claim; and

(B) 2 percent with respect to—

(i) any claim with respect to which a representative has made a contract for services before the date of the enactment of this Act; or

(ii) a resubmission of a denied claim.

(D) Penalty.—Any such representative who violates this section shall be fined not more than $5,000.

(E) Exception for Combatant Activities.—This section does not apply to any claim filed for separation from the Armed Forces of the Armed Forces.

(F) Period for Filing Claims.—A claim filed under this section may not be commenced after the date that is 2 years after the date that the Attorney General establishes the procedures required by subsection (b)(1)(A).

(F) Report.—(i) In General.—No later than one year after the effective date set forth in subsection (i) and not less frequently than once each year thereafter, the Attorney General shall, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, and the Secretary of Labor, submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on activities under this section.

(2) Contents.—Each report submitted under paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) The total number of claims filed under this section.

(B) A description of the harms claimed.

(C) The number of approved claims.

(D) The number of claims under review.

(E) The number of denied claims.

(F) The amount of each approved claim.

(G) The total amount of approved claims.

(H) An analysis and descriptions of offsets made to approved claims.

(S) Appropriate Committees of Congress Defined.—In this section, the term "appropriate committees of Congress" means the Committee on the Judiciary, the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Veterans Affairs, and the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate.

SEC. 805. CAMP LEJEUNE FUND.

(a) Establishment.—There is in the Treasury of the United States an account to be known as the "Camp Lejeune Fund" in this section referred to as the "Fund".

(b) Deposits.—There is appropriated to the Fund, out of any money in the Treasury available for appropriation, such sums as may be necessary to pay claims that are determined by the Attorney General under subsection (b)(2)(A) of section 804 to meet the requirements of such section.

(c) Use of Funds.—Amounts in the Fund may be used to provide payment of compensation under section 804.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

Ms. SINEMA. Mr. President, I have one request for committees to meet during today's session of the Senate. They have the approval of the Majority and Minority Leaders.

Pursuant to rule XXVI, paragraph 5(a), of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the following committees are authorized to meet during today's session of the Senate:

SUBCOMMITTEE ON STRATEGIC FORCES

The Subcommittee on Strategic Forces of the Committee on Armed Services is authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Monday, June 13, 2022, at 5:30 p.m., in closed session.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 14, 2022

Ms. SINEMA. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business it adjourn until 11 a.m. on Tuesday, June 14, and that following the prayer and pledge, the morning hour be deemed expired, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and morning business be closed; that upon the conclusion of morning business, the Senate resume consideration of Calendar No. 388, H.R. 3967; further, that all time during adjournment, recess, morning business, and leader remarks count postcloture; finally, that the Senate recess from 12:30 p.m. until 2:15 p.m. to allow for the weekly caucus meetings.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Ms. SINEMA. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it stand adjourned under the previous order, following the remarks of Senator PORTMAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Ohio. Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, are we in legislative session?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is considering the PACT Act.

UKRAINE

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, for the 15th straight week, while the U.S. Senate has been in session, I come to the floor to talk about what is going on in Ukraine. This is the war that Russia continues to wage against the people of Ukraine. I am going to talk about what has happened in the last week—and what is very concerning—but also about what we can do right now to help more, to help our ally Ukraine, to help President Zelenskyy and his duly elected government, and to help the people of Ukraine.

Last week, I talked about a grim milestone, 100 days of this war. It is becoming a war of attrition. The Russians expected a quick victory, you remember. That didn't happen. Now they are grinding it out in one area called the Donbas region. Unfortunately, they are making some incremental progress there. In a minute, I will have a map here to show you where the Donbas region is. But that is where the focus is right now. That is where the Russians are grinding it out.

The fate of Ukraine, its future, may be decided here in the next few months or maybe even weeks, given what is happening in the Donbas. The Russians have the firepower, especially the long-range artillery. They are not giving it up. Because the Russians have more artillery than the Ukrainians and their weapons have longer ranges, the Russian forces concentrate their massive firepower on Ukrainian positions from a distance, as I said, which the Ukrainian forces cannot reach. And then they move in. They destroy the territory. They occupy it. This disparity in the quality and quantity of artillery has put Ukraine at a distinct disadvantage.

The good news is that we can fix this. We have the Mid-Range Artillery Rocket Systems or HIMARS. It is an advanced system that is actually superior to the Russian artillery in almost every way, more mobility, faster reload time, more accuracy, and—more importantly—more range.

Getting these systems to Ukraine could be a game changer. It could save so many lives. With these systems in the arsenal, the Ukrainians could turn the tables on the Russians here in the Donbas region.

They could grind the Russian advance to a halt and maybe even push the Russian forces back, as they are doing in Kharkiv up here or down here in the south.

Unfortunately, the Biden administration has been unwilling to act quickly on these HIMARS. Two weeks ago, after weeks of Ukrainian requests, echoed by some of us here in the U.S. Congress, President Biden announced that he would provide Ukraine with some of these systems. I was really pleased we were finally taking that step.

However, according to the Department of Defense, I now learned that the announcement of our decision has come with a condition. In order to get these HIMARS to Ukraine, we need to provide the Ukrainians with four of these systems—four. The administration has said that it is only providing Ukraine with mid-range missiles as well, meaning Ukrainian troops will need to fire from closer to Russian positions and put themselves at greater risk.

That announcement of our decision to send four systems will be 2 weeks old on Wednesday. We were told these systems require almost 3 weeks in training to be able to operate. That means, at best, Ukraine will have four U.S. artillery systems operational sometime late this week or maybe next week.

Ukraine has been fighting for its life for weeks along a massive front line, this front line all along here. And the Biden administration is only now sending this military support; and, frankly, it is just not enough. Combine this with the public reporting that the M777 howitzer promised to Ukraine months ago by President Joe Biden is spent properly. The world looks to America for leadership, and if America leads with only four rocket artillery systems, the rest of the world is going to follow with similarly modest support. I hope this will change. I hope we will see that all of the members of this Body talk the talk of the need for 60 or at least 40; 20 won’t be enough. Unfortunately, we are talking about four.

To their credit, the British announced last Tuesday that they will send something similar to these multiple launch rocket systems to Ukraine. It is a larger version, actually, of the HIMARS rocket artillery system that they are sending. I appreciate that. However, the BBC reports that they are now only sending three, at least initially.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

S2917

Since the war began, Russia has put this blockade in place preventing the export of millions of tons of grain and other agricultural products desperately needed, by the way, in Africa, in the Middle East, and other developing countries.

Just this past Saturday, Deputy Agriculture Minister Taras Vysotsky reported that 300,000 tons of grain were destroyed when Russia shelled a warehouse near one of these ports.

So really, the question of how to get this grain is being answered. Let me be clear: Food should never be a target and should never be used as leverage in negotiations. Malign actors around the world have used food as a weapon—the Houthis in Yemen, Assad in Syria, and now Russia in Ukraine.

Russia has the rest of the world hostage with its barbaric food blockade. President Putin recently suggested that he would lift his stranglehold on Ukraine’s Black Sea ports, including Odessa, if we would only agree to remove all grain, if all the sanctions were lifted on Russia. In other words, Russia would like to be rewarded for releasing the hostage it has taken.

Russia must release its blockade immediately, which is not about any conditions. Millions of lives depend on it. I would expect the administration and allies—including Turkey—to come up with contingency plans now, if they don’t have them already. This impacts nations in Africa, the Middle East, East Asia, and, particularly, again, these poor countries in Africa depend on the Ukrainian grains, otherwise there will be massive food shortages.

In Turkey, President Erdogan continues to negotiate an exit corridor for Ukrainian grain through the Black Sea. I thank him for doing that. He should continue to do so. And, even in China—no friend of the United States and a very good friend of Russia right now—President Xi Jinping has warned of a bad winter wheat harvest. I hope he can persuade Vladimir Putin that needlessly causing a global hunger catastrophe will not do him any favors.

The dire warnings of global food insecurity and price hikes if this blockade continues should concern everyone in this Congress, everyone in America, and everyone in this administration, certainly.

The world is looking to our leadership to help solve this problem. What we need is a creation of a humanitarian corridor that can go out, at least through the port at Odesa through which Ukrainian agricultural products can reach the world market.

Until then, other avenues have to be explored. When I was in Romania 2 weeks ago, the prime minister there told me that they intend to boost their road and rail and canal infrastructure to the port in Romania to help export as much Ukrainian grain as possible. This would help, and I appreciate—the Romanian effort, but it can’t match the capacity of Odessa or these other ports in Ukraine.

At a security conference in Singapore on Sunday, Ukraine’s deputy foreign minister announced that Ukraine will, indeed, try to export its grains through Romania as well as through Poland, as well as any place they can get it out. They can announce that as an example through the Baltic States, Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia. That is a desperate attempt by Ukraine to try to get this grain out, but, again, it can never match the huge volumes that can go by ships to the ports.

As the head of the Ukraine Grain Association said last week: I can tell you we won’t find a solution [for exports] with Black Sea port access.

Unfortunately, I think he is right. It is clear that Russia is trying to starve the world into pressuring Ukraine to surrender. Meanwhile, Russia’s crimes within Ukraine continue. A few days ago, Ukrainian prosecutors announced that eight more war crimes have been filed against Russian soldiers. These include the torture of civilians, burning of homes, and other atrocities committed all along the war front. If Ukraine has opened into possible war crimes committed during the war, according to Ukraine’s prosecutor general—16,000 investigations right now into war crimes.

In addition to war crimes, two captured Russian soldiers were each sentenced to 11 1/2 years in prison in late May after pleading guilty to shelling a town in Eastern Ukraine. And a Russian soldier was handed a life sentence for shooting a 62-year-old Ukrainian civilian in the head.

These heinous acts of violence are going to continue unless Ukraine has the ability to push back. We do need more of these sentences of war criminals to try to act as a deterrent to stop the further Russian barbarity in Ukraine. Maybe some officials, maybe some officials in the Kremlin looking at these war crime convictions will say, you know what, maybe we shouldn’t be doing so much bad stuff to our peaceful neighbors and killing them and raping them and terrorizing this country.

There is another important issue I want to mention, one that is worth the world’s attention: Ukrainian orphans. Unfortunately, there are hundreds of Ukrainian orphans who are stuck in Ukraine or elsewhere in Europe. A lot of these orphans have ties to America and unique ties to about 200 American families who are ready, willing, and able to host these children. These families have been trying to adopt these children for a long time, from before the invasion. Many of these children have actually previously visited the United States to meet with their soon-to-be adopted families.

Unfortunately, many of these children returned right before the invasion and are unaccounted for now. Many have lost contact with their soon-to-be families. I have constituents in Ohio, and I know hundreds of other families across the country ready to welcome these children into their homes.

In March, along with 26 colleagues, I wrote to the State Department, I have yet to hear back from that letter, but we asked for two things: one, to help identify these children, this needs to be done in collaboration with the Ukrainian government, of course, and U.S.-based organizations; and, two, my letter urged the administration to allow travel visas to allow adoption-eligible kids to come live with their American host families now.

The State Department should use its powers under the law to immediately process nonimmigrant visas that will allow these kids to come into the United States instead of requiring these children to remain in other locations for displaced persons in Europe or in Ukraine.

Many of these children may be given refuge in neighboring countries. However, I believe in the unique circumstances where children already have established relationships with their American families in the United States, they should be able to come here and be with their host families who can ensure the child’s safety and stability.

At the same time, we could continue to work with the Ukrainian government, which has been open to finalizing the adoptions that were in process before the war began.

I will close with this: I have now come to the floor every week since just before President Putin began this illegal and unprovoked invasion against the people of a democratic Ukraine who just wanted to live in peace with their neighbors—including Russia.

This is the fight during our generation where democracy is on the line. I am not surprised, because I have seen the spirit and bravery of the Ukrainian people firsthand in my many trips to Ukraine, including meeting with Ukrainian troops on the front line before this latest invasion. I am not surprised that they have held off Russia so far. Their strength and resiliency is a marvel.

Again, it is not what Vladimir Putin expected. It is, frankly, not what our own U.S. military expected. They have fought hard, and they continue to every day. But they need more help.

Last week, I met with a great fighter in this cause, my friend Andy Futey from Ohio, who leads the Ukrainian World Congress for the Ukraine diaspora all over the world. Andy is a strong and consistent advocate for Ukraine and joined me at a rally, actually, at the White House with hundreds of Ukrainian Americans a couple months ago.

When I met with Andy last week and other members of the Ukrainian World Congress who had just returned from Ukraine, they spoke with passion about the destruction they had seen in Ukraine, about the steep price that the Ukrainian people have paid and continue to pay to be able to remain free and independent.

With them was a young woman from Ukraine who was very emotional in her appeals, with tears, saying, America needs to do more during this hour of need. As they made the case passionately that the U.S. needs to continue sending weapons and artillery and sooner not later, they talked about the need for these long-range weapons we talked about tonight, so the Ukrainians have a fighting chance.

Every day the United States fails to sufficiently support Ukraine only serves as a detriment to the Ukrainians, who need us to lead the free world in helping them win this war. Brave Ukrainians are dying every day. We just can’t afford to delay.

My colleague Senator DICK DURBIN and I cochair what is called the Senate Ukraine Caucus, which we founded back in 2015. Later this week, we will bring the caucus together to meet with the leaders in the Ukrainian parliament, the Rada, who are here visiting Washington to urge greater support in America for their country. We are eager to hear what they have to say.

Many of us here in this Chamber get it. We know that America can’t afford to stay on the sidelines and be a spectator in this conflict. At this crucial time in the battle for freedom, democracy, and the ability for countries to have their territorial integrity respected, at this critical hour, America cannot afford to be tentative.

We must remember the lessons of the late 1930s: that appeasing tyrants will not satiate their desire to violently conquer and subjugate their neighbors. Some folks in this town may not understand that, but Ukrainians understand it. They know what it is like to live under the thumb of authoritarians, and they broke away from that and toward democracy, first in 1991 and again in 2014.

I was in Ukraine after the Revolution of Dignity, in 2014, where Ukrainians decided for themselves that they wanted to turn away from Russian domination and turn to us and to Europe and to pursue a hopeful future of democracy and freedom. Now, President Putin is trying to extinguish that hope. We must not let him.

One question that many of us have of the administration is: What is the end goal here? Is our objective to help Ukraine grind down Russia’s military so that for some number of years it is unable to undertake another violent campaign like this? Is our objective to topple President Putin’s regime? Or is our objective to help the Ukrainians expel the Russian invaders from their sovereign Ukrainian territory, including Crimea and the Donbas?

The administration dodges these questions by saying: It is up to the Ukrainians to decide.

I understand that, but the Ukrainians have already decided. They want their sovereign territory back—all of it. I have discussed this at length with Ukrainians, and they have consistently said what I have heard from their parliamentary leaders in the past and will again this week: Nothing less than the full restoration of Ukrainian sovereign territory is their goal.

Saying that we support Russia walking away with any Ukrainian territory would just embolden Russia in this conflict and embolden aggressors and authoritarians in the future.

It has now been 110 days of unrelenting Russian attacks on our ally Ukraine, and it has been 110 days of pushing the administration to help America has made its stand. We are on the side of freedom over tyranny, democracy and self-determination over authoritarianism and conquest. The countries of the free world are with us, but more so when we lead. Now is not the time to be tentative or equivocal. At this critical juncture, let’s work with allies to provide our democratic brothers and sisters in Ukraine what they need to protect the homeland and defend democracy.

I yield the floor.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 11 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands adjourned until 11 a.m. tomorrow.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 6:48 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, June 14, 2022, at 11 a.m.

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate June 13, 2022:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

JOSHUA D. HURWIT, OF IDAHO, TO BE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY FOR THE DISTRICT OF IDAHO, FOR THE TERM OF FOUR YEARS.

GERARD M. KARAM, OF PENNSYLVANIA, TO BE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY FOR THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA FOR THE TERM OF FOUR YEARS.

JACQUELINE C. ROMERO, OF PENNSYLVANIA, TO BE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA FOR THE TERM OF FOUR YEARS.
Mr. ADERHOLT. Madam Speaker, as Co-chair of the House Azerbaijan Caucus, I am honored to recognize the Republic Day recently celebrated in Azerbaijan.

On May 28, 1918, the National Assembly of Azerbaijan adopted their Declaration of Independence, becoming the first secular democracy in the region. After being invaded by the Soviet Union and incorporated into the USSR, Azerbaijan again restored its independence on August 30, 1991.

Azerbaijan is a significant partner to the United States and plays a key role in energy security, supporting Israel, and ensuring stability in the region.

Azerbaijan has been a leader in the South ern Gas Corridor, which will ultimately decrease the Caspian region’s dependence on Russian oil, a critical effort especially at this time of Russian aggression.

A strong ally to the U.S. and other international partners, Azerbaijan has stood strong with the U.S. and NATO forces by providing critical refueling stations and fighting side-by-side with U.S. troops in Afghanistan. Azerbaijan contributed to the security of Kosovo and Iraq, and promotes peacekeeping operations under the United Nations and NATO.

Committed to global nonproliferation efforts and peacekeeping operations, Azerbaijan also participates as a member of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Given Azerbaijan’s position as a partner of the United States in a critical area of the world, I urge my colleagues to join me in expressing support for Azerbaijan’s independence and commending the people of Azerbaijan on their Republic Day.

IN MEMORY OF DR. ANTHONY OWENS PARKER

HON. SANFORD D. BISHOP, JR.
OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an awesome visionary, college administrator, educational expert, consensus building community leader and friend of long standing—Dr. Anthony Owens Parker. Sadly, Dr. Parker transitioned on June 6, 2022. His homegoing service was held at the Mount Zion Missionary Baptist Church in Albany, Georgia on June 10, 2022, at 11:00 a.m. The amazing story of Dr. Anthony Parker began with his birth on January 12, 1953, in Orangeburg, S.C. to the union of the late Mr. Lee and Mrs. Henretta Parker. He was reared in St. Matthews, South Carolina where he spent his formative years. He attended John Ford High School, but ultimately graduated from St. Matthews High School in 1971.

His higher education journey took him to his beloved South Carolina State University where he earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Accounting and Master’s Degree in Rehabilitation Counseling. Always seeking to improve himself through education, he went on to earn a Specialist in Education Degree from Augusta State University and his Ph.D from the University of South Carolina. In addition, he is also a graduate of the Institute of Educational Management at the Harvard University Graduate School. His professional journey of excellence began as a marketing instructor at Augusta Technical College before becoming the Vice President of Student Services at both Southeastern Technical College and Aiken Technical College. These positions were the foundation for his next post which would change the course of technical education in Southwest Georgia when he was named as the fifth president of Albany Technical College in 1995. At the time of his passing, he was the longest serving President in the Technical College System of Georgia with 27 years. During his presidency, he raised the bar of excellence for himself, Albany Technical College, and Southwest Georgia. Dr. Parker’s vision was keenly focused on establishing the college as a workforce development institution that placed graduates in sustainable employment opportunities that would improve the quality of their lives and by extension the Southwest Georgia Region. He was truly community focused and knew the college could not reach its full potential unless it had the support of the community. He developed partnerships with community organizations, industry and other institutions of higher learning in the State which enhanced the impact of Albany Technical College in fulfilling its mission. Because of his visionary leadership, Albany Technical College is ranked among the top technical colleges in Georgia and in the Nation.

Anthony Parker was a man of faith. Throughout his life he demonstrated Christian principles and during his later years worshiped faithfully at Bethel AME Church in Albany, Georgia. Moreover, he achieved many successes during his life and career, but none of this would have been possible without the grace of God; his high school sweetheart and loving wife of 49 years, Sandra Pinkney Parker; his children, Dr. Kimberly A. Parker, Commander Andrea Parker Smith and Richard Anthony Parker; along with his granddaughter, Parker Elizabeth Smith.

On a personal note, Dr. Parker was my friend and my brother in the bond of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. I was always impressed by his calm demeanor and his knack for dealing with people in a respectful way even under the most difficult circumstances. He was humble and always treated people the way they deserved to be treated. Dr. George Washington Carver was often quoted as saying: "How far you go in life depends on your being tender with the young; compassionate with the aged; sympathetic with the striving; and tolerant of the weak and the strong because someday in your life you will have been all of these." Dr. Anthony O. Parker was such a man. He rose from humble beginnings and achieved the pinnacle of success because he accepted and fulfilled God’s purpose for his life. Albany Technical College, Southwest Georgia, our Nation, and the world are better because Dr. Anthony Owens Parker passed this way.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the House of Representatives to join my wife, Vivian, and me, along with the more than 730,000 residents of Georgia’s Second Congressional District, in paying tribute to Dr. Anthony Owens Parker and in offering our deepest sympathies to his family, friends, and loved ones during this difficult period of bereavement. Moreover, we pray that they will be consoled and comforted by an abiding faith and the Holy Spirit in the days, weeks, and months ahead.

RECOGNIZING DR. GRISWOLD

HON. BLAINE LUETKEMEYER OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. LUETKEMEYER. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor a man who has dedicated his life to public service and thank him for his service.

After 22 years on the Miller County Health Center Board of Trustees, Dr. Scott Griswold is retiring. For more than two decades Dr. Griswold has been instrumental in the operation of the board. Dr. Griswold had multiple roles on the board of Trustees. He provided medical oversight and standing orders for the agency, while giving continuous quality improvements for the agency and community. Most notably, in 2000, Dr. Griswold worked with the citizens of Miller County to establish sustainable funding for the Board, and he developed the agency’s annual Health & Wellness Grant, where non-profits can apply for funding to improve nutrition, increase physical activity, and other initiatives to improve health and wellness in the county.

My fellow Miller County residents and I have been truly blessed to have such a gifted and dedicated physician on the County’s Health Center Board. We are endlessly grateful for Dr. Griswold’s service.

Madam Speaker, please join me in recognizing Dr. Griswold for his 22 years of service and congratulating him on a well-deserved retirement.
Mr. COLE. Madam Speaker, I am happy to congratulate my good friend and Executive Director of the Oklahoma Credit Union Association, Nate Webb, on his retirement. His dedication to bettering our great state is certainly commendable. I wish him well and an enjoyable retirement, but I am sad to see him go.

HONORING THE RETIREMENT OF NATE WEBB, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE OKLAHOMA CREDIT UNION ASSOCIATION

HON. TOM COLE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. WEBB of New York. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor and thank Erin Pierone on her retirement for faithfully serving the state of New York for over thirty years.

In 1989, Erin graduated from the State University of New York in Plattsburg with a baccalaureate degree in criminal justice. After she graduated, Erin dedicated her life to serving some of the youngest members of her community. For sixteen years, she worked as a Child Protective Services caseworker in both the Saratoga and Warren County Departments of Social Services. During this time, she worked tirelessly as an advocate for the children of Saratoga and Warren Counties. She conducted numerous investigations into abuse and maltreatment to ensure a better future for every child with which she worked. Following her career as a caseworker, Erin continued to dedicate herself to improving the lives of those in her community by working as a Crime Victim Specialist in the Saratoga County District Attorney’s office and for the New York State Police. During this time, Erin worked relentlessly to provide victims emotional support, rights information, help in finding necessary resources and assistance in filling out crime-related forms. Erin also often accompanied victims and their family members throughout the criminal justice proceedings.

In addition to her professional accomplishments, Erin, on his board member with the Saratoga Center for the Family. For five years, she also served as vice president and president of the New York Crime Victims Assistance Task Force. Erin received many well-deserved accolades throughout her career, including the Betty Martin award for Victim Advocacy through the Albany County District Attorney’s office, awards for Victim Advocacy from the Warren County and Saratoga County District Attorneys, the New York State Police Troop G Special Recognition award, and the New York State Police Superintendent’s award.

As a Child Protective Services worker and Crime Victim Specialist, Erin has been an invaluable resource to law enforcement and her community. Her dedication and passion will be forever remembered by the countless people that she has helped throughout her 32-year career. On behalf of New York’s 21st District, I thank Erin for her incredible service to our community and wish her a happy and blessed retirement.

HONORING RETIRED MAJOR GENERAL GARY HARRELL FOR 35 YEARS OF MILITARY SERVICE

HON. RICHARD HUDSON OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. HUDSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Major General Gary Harrell for 35 years of extraordinary military service and his recent induction as a Distinguished Member of the Special Forces Regiment by the U.S. Army John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Center and School.

Maj. Gen. Harrell has made immeasurable contributions to our great Nation and continues to personify the core U.S. Army values of honor, integrity, personal courage, and self-discipline. He began his career in 1973 with the 82nd Airborne Division and retired in 2008 as the Deputy Commander of the U.S. Army Special Operations Command.

Over the course of his remarkable career, Maj. Gen. Harrell served as a special operations unit commander, commander, and director among other positions in military operations around the globe. In some of his most notable assignments, he helped rescue American hostage Kurt Muse in Panama as part of Operation Just Cause, deployed with Joint Special Operations Command in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm, served as Commander of Task Force Bowie and Assistant Division Commander for the 10th Mountain Division in Operation Anaconda in Afghanistan, and served as Commanding General of the 2nd Ranger Battalion in Operation Iraqi Freedom. He continues to serve our military in retirement as an executive board member for the Task Force Dagger Foundation. Through this role, he has helped secure donations to benefit injured or ill special operations service members and their families.

On account of his exemplary service, Maj. Gen. Harrell received many of our Nation’s most impressive distinctions and awards, including the Defense Superior Service Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with a V and Two Oak Leaf Clusters, a Purple Heart Medal, the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal with an Oak Leaf Cluster, the Air Medal and the Army Commendation Medal with Two Oak Leaf Clusters among other awards and distinctions. He represents the best our nation has to offer, and we will look up to his leadership for generations to come.

As Fort Bragg’s Congressman, I know I speak for our Nation when I say we are truly grateful for Maj. Gen. Harrell’s exceptional service. There is no one more deserving of being named a Distinguished Member of the Special Forces Regiment. I would like to offer my sincerest appreciation and wish him and his family success in all future endeavors.

Madam Speaker, please join me today in honoring Major General Gary Harrell for 35 years of distinguished military service and leadership.

INTRODUCTION OF BRIDGE CORROSION PREVENTION AND REPAIR ACT

HON. JOHN GARAMENDI
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. GARAMENDI. Madam Speaker, today I introduce the Bridge Corrosion Prevention and Repair Act, with Congressman ANTHONY G. BROWN (D–MD). Our legislation is endorsed by the International Union of Painters and Allied Trades (IUPAT) and the Association for Materials Protection and Performance (formerly called the National Association of Corrosion Engineers and the Society for Protective Coatings).

This legislation would require all federally funded bridge projects to use certified contractors for any corrosion control work and employ industry-recognized standards for corrosion mitigation and prevention. Specifically, my legislation would prompt State, county, and municipal transportation departments to employ qualified, trained corrosion control professionals who have completed federally registered apprenticeship programs.

As Fort Bragg’s Congressman, I know I speak for our Nation when I say we are truly grateful for Maj. Gen. Harrell’s exceptional service. There is no one more deserving of being named a Distinguished Member of the Special Forces Regiment. I would like to offer my sincerest appreciation and wish him and his family success in all future endeavors.

HON. JOHN GARAMENDI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. GARAMENDI. Madam Speaker, today I introduce the Bridge Corrosion Prevention and Repair Act.”
1956, America’s corrosion professionals and union painters are ready, willing, and able to do the job.

Madam Speaker, I urge all Members of the House to join me in cosponsoring the “Bridge Corrosion Prevention and Repair Act.”

INTRODUCTION OF THE LOCAL TASK FORCES ON 21ST CENTURY POLICING ACT

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, today, I introduce the Local Task Forces on 21st Century Policing and the Department of Justice’s Office of Community Oriented Policing Services, both of which have detailed the need to strengthen relationships between local communities and local law enforcement. The bill would provide grants to local governments to create local task forces on 21st century policing to bring police, representatives of the community and public officials together to identify best policing practices for local police and other ways to strengthen relationships between the community and police departments. No new funds are needed. Existing funds from the Department of Justice would support local governments establishing the task forces by listing these task forces as an acceptable use of Byrne Justice Assistance Grants. Given the continuing controversy surrounding police shootings of unarmed African American men, with no solutions in sight, this bill is timelier every day.

The task forces, modeled after the federal Task Force on 21st Century Policing, would allow local communities to identify the best ways to create an effective partnership between local law enforcement and the communities they serve, while reducing crime, increasing trust and combating racial profiling. The task forces could create a partnership to implement practical policing practices acceptable to all concerned.

The creation of task forces could be an important step toward easing the tensions between local law enforcement and many communities. In addition, the task forces could serve to engage local law enforcement and local stakeholders in a transparent public problem-solving process instead of the current situation that encourages parties to choose sides.

I ask my colleagues to support this bill.

RECOGNIZING KEVIN SPRAGUE FOR HIS 30-YEAR CAREER WITH THE U.S. ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS

HON. JACK BERGMAN

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. BERGMAN. Madam Speaker, it is my honor to recognize Kevin Sprague for his 30 years of service with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE). Over the last three decades, Kevin’s steadfast devotion to the Soo Locks and the Upper Peninsula has ensured the economic and operational success of the locks and made him an indispensable part of Michigan’s First District.

A graduate of South Lyon High School and Lawrence Technological University, Kevin worked as a mechanical engineer in the private sector before joining the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in June 1992. Throughout his 30-year career with USACE, he served as surveyor, Assistant Chief of the St. Mary’s River Section, Chief of Soo Lock Operations, Chief of Facility Maintenance Branch, Assistant Soo Area Engineer, and Soo Area Engineer—a position he has held for 12 years.

Kevin’s efforts have played a crucial role in the success of the Soo Locks, which is a vital infrastructure system for not only the Great Lakes region, but the entire country. His leadership overseeing the operations and ongoing expansion of the Soo Locks have greatly benefited the region.

In addition to this project, Kevin worked diligently to improve the Soo Area Office to better serve the needs of law enforcement. This included reorganizing the local office to provide more opportunities in professional development, improving budgetary capabilities, and addressing safety concerns for workers. Over the pandemic, he also assisted in converting three storage containers into intensive care units (ICUs) for those affected by COVID–19. These efforts brought needed relief and assistance to the local community, and USACE’s collaboration with local medical experts helped this project become a huge success.

Madam Speaker, it’s my honor to recognize Kevin Sprague for his 30 years of service with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Michiganders can take great pride in knowing Kevin’s efforts have played a crucial role in the economic and operational success of the Soo Locks and made him an indispensable part of Michigan’s First District.

Mr. BERGMAN. Madam Speaker, I urge all Members of the House to join me in cosponsoring the “Bridge Corrosion Prevention and Repair Act.”

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF THE HONORABLE JOHN F. DEBRUHL

HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 13, 2022

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the extraordinary life and achievements of the Honorable John F. DeBruhl of Galveston, Texas.

John F. DeBruhl was born a slave on November 14, 1841, in Columbia, South Carolina. He was later sold and brought to Texas. In June 1861, he married Alice V. Taylor from Parkersburg, WV, and together, they raised and educated seven children in Galveston.

John DeBruhl was well known and respected in his community and was appointed one of the firstblack Reconstruction Justices of the Peace in Galveston, Texas. He also served as County Court Judge and twice served as a Galveston City Alderman alongside luminaries like N.W. Cuney. He was a prominent member of the Republican County, State, and National Conventions. His leadership efforts led to his nomination as a candidate for the United States Congress.

John DeBruhl presided over diverse court cases with important issues during Reconstruction Era Texas and had a substantial impact on the early history of Galveston, Texas. Numerous state newspapers reporting on his judicial rulings, official meeting notes, op-eds and community speeches are still available to read today.

When the Grand Lodges of the Negro Free Masons were expanding into the South, John DeBruhl was a founding member and officer of the Galveston Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge Free & Accepted Masons of Texas.

John DeBruhl was also instrumental in organizing the “docks” of Galveston to ensure black men could work and in better conditions. Moreover, John DeBruhl was a founding member of the “Black Stevedores” in Galveston.

Judge John F. DeBruhl is remembered as a man of purpose, honor, and an unwavering determination for betterment of African Americans during one of the most tumultuous times in American history, the Post-Civil War Reconstruction years.

Judge DeBruhl’s enduring legacy as a champion for education, equality, activism, and duty was passed on to his family. The phenomenal life of the Honorable John F. DeBruhl was nearly lost to history without the persistent and intentional efforts of his great-granddaughter Dr. Nanette DeBruhl. The research done revealed a life of extraordinary accomplishments and those influences has reached across time to impact today’s Texas.

RECOGNIZING THE CONGREGATION KNESSETH ISRAEL OF ELGIN, ILLINOIS ON THEIR 130TH ANNIVERSARY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 13, 2022

Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI. Madam Speaker, today I rise in recognition of the Congregation Knesseth Israel (CKI) of Elgin, Illinois for their 130th anniversary. The Congregation provides spiritual support to a diverse and growing Jewish population throughout areas in and around my district, including Kane, McHenry, DuPage, DeKalb, and Northwest Cook Counties. Marking CKI’s 130th anniversary is a fitting way to honor the lasting impact of its exemplary efforts to build and strengthen community, foster inclusive environments, and give back to those in need.

CKI has been a spiritual anchor for the community since 1892 when a small group of Jewish residents organized the first Illinois synagogue west of Chicago. However, the roots of the Jewish community in Chicagoland go back even further. In making Illinois their home, Jewish settlers were a critical part of the group of farmers, merchants, and tradesmen that laid the groundwork for the region we are so proud of today. CKI is an important part of this history, and I am honored to stand here in recognition of the Congregation’s continued efforts to meet the needs of the surrounding community.

Since its founding 130 years ago, CKI has demonstrated a commitment to serving others that exemplifies in an example to all of us. Through education initiatives for adults and children, youth and senior interest groups, and through its worship services, CKI positively shapes the lives of its members and all those who are touched by the Congregation. Moreover, through a series of social action projects, including canned food drives, blood drives, organized volunteering to advance local causes, and other forms of service, CKI goes beyond worship to serve the most vulnerable among us.

I know I speak for many constituents in Illinois’ 8th District when I say that I am thankful for the tremendous work that the Congregation Kneseth Israel has done in the last 130 years. This remarkable anniversary is worth commemorating, and we all look forward to what the next 130 years will bring for CKI as it continues to be a cultural and religious hub for the Jewish community in the area surrounding Elgin.

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate of February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. The Committee granted, by record vote of 9–4, a rule providing for consideration of H.R. 2543, the “Financial Services Racial Equity, Inclusion, and Economic Justice Act”, H.R. 2773, the “Recovering America’s Wildlife Act of 2021”, and H.R. 7606, the “Lower Food and Fuel Costs Act”. The rule provides for consideration of H.R. 2543, the “Financial Services Racial Equity, Inclusion, and Economic Justice Act”, under a structured rule. The rule provides one hour of general debate on the bill equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services. The rule waives all points of order against consideration of the bill. The rule provides that an amendment in the nature of a substitute consisting of the text of Rules Committee Print 117–49, modified by the amendment printed in part A of the Rules Committee report, shall be considered as adopted and the bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. The rule waives all points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended. The rule provides that following debate, each further amendment printed in part B of the Rules Committee report not earlier considered as part of amendments en bloc pursuant to section 3 shall be considered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, may be withdrawn by the proponent at any time before the question is put thereon, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. Section 3 of the rule provides that at any time after debate the chair of the Committee on Financial Services or her designee may offer amendments en bloc consisting of further amendments printed in part B of the Rules Committee report not earlier disposed of. Amendments en bloc shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for 20 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services or their designees, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. The rule waives all points of order against the amendments printed in part D of the report and amendments en bloc described in section 3 of the resolution. The rule provides one motion to recommit. The rule provides for consideration of H.R. 2773, the “Recovering America’s Wildlife Act of 2021”, under a structured rule. The rule provides one hour of general debate on the bill equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Natural Resources. The rule waives all points of order against consideration of the bill. The rule provides that an amendment in the nature of a substitute consisting of the text of Rules Committee Print 117–47, modified by the amendment printed in part C of the Rules Committee report, shall be considered as adopted and the bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. The rule waives all points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended. The rule provides that at any time after debate the chair of the Committee on Natural Resources or his designee may offer amendments en bloc consisting of further amendments printed in part D of the Rules Committee report not earlier disposed of. Amendments en bloc shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for 20 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Natural Resources or his designees, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. The rule waives all points of order against the amendments printed in part D of the report and amendments en bloc described in section 7 of the resolution. The rule provides one motion to recommit. The rule provides for consideration of H.R. 7606, the “Lower Food and Fuel Costs Act”, under a structured rule. The rule provides one hour of general debate equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Agriculture. The rule waives all points of order against consideration of the bill. The rule provides that an amendment in the nature of a substitute consisting of the text of Rules Committee Print 117–50, modified by the amendment printed in part E of the Rules Committee report, shall be considered as adopted and the bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. The rule waives all points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended. The rule makes in order only those further amendments to H.R. 7606 printed in part F of the Rules Committee report. Each such amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. The rule waives all points of order against the amendments printed in part F of the report. The rule provides one motion to recommit. The rule provides that House Resolution 188 is amended by striking “June 17, 2022” each place it appears and inserting “June 22, 2022”.
