PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 118^{th} congress, first session

Vol. 169

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, JANUARY 6, 2023

No. 6

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 p.m., and was called to order by the Clerk.

The Chaplain, the Reverend Margaret Grun Kibben, offered the following

Dear God, it seems this evening we may be at last standing at the threshold of a new Congress.

I am not done yet. Should we, with Your blessing, find our way through the doorway this night, cause us to consider carefully what we have learned on the way.

Turning to You each day, we asked for Your help in our deliberations, and You answered us. But Your answer was to allow us to suffer the anxiety, uncertainty, and aggravation that follows when we choose to allow healthy debate to devolve into contentious and unproductive argument.

And yet, in Your mercy, You transformed this foray into discord into an opportunity to learn to find common ground with unlikely partners. Would that this be a habit we continue.

Remind us that while the spirit of dispute can be traced to our government's earliest days, we have served this country best when we sought to reconcile our differences with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience. May we be more willing to wield these fruits of Your spirit in our future discourse with one another.

We pray Your continued mercy on us. May Your anger with us last but a moment and Your favor a lifetime. And for all that we endure this night, allow joy to come in the morning.

In the hope found in Your name, we pray.

THE JOURNAL

The CLERK. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House the approval thereof.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The CLERK. The Representativeselect will please remain standing and join in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The CLERK led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God. indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The CLERK. The question recurs upon the election of a Speaker. The tellers will please come forward and take their seats.

The Clerk recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MCHENRY).

Mr. McHENRY. Madam Clerk, I am honored to rise tonight to nominate my good friend, the gentleman from California, KEVIN McCARTHY, to serve as Speaker of this House.

Madam Clerk, it has been a long week, and a lot of attention has been placed upon us here in the House, but then again, I state that to the most famous woman in Washington this week. It was a better joke as written, actually, than delivered.

I want to start by thanking the men and women who make this House run. From the janitorial staff to the parliamentarians, to the doorkeepers, to the Sergeant at Arms, to the Capitol Police officers, to the men and women that make this institution run, we thank you.

On this day and as a source of charity, we would even thank the Capitol press corps for sitting on floors. That, too, was actually funnier on paper than how it delivered. I don't know why you asked me to do this, KEVIN.

Look, the President has called this process an embarrassment. Talking heads have labeled this chaos and a mess, and some would call it shambolic, even. But it is called democracy, and this is a hallmark of a free society where every voice and every vote counts.

We know it is messy, but open and transparent debate is what sets us apart from authoritarian regimes.

In order to outcompete our adversaries, we must adhere to the principles that make our Nation, this Naour constitutional Republic, tion. great. That starts with a free and open exchange of ideas, and that is exactly what we have done this week.

To some, it may have felt like Congress was on hold, but the alternative, a government that assembles with no input from the Representatives elected by the people, is a far worse alternative than these constitutional principles we are adhering to in this complicated process of setting up the House.

Over these last few days, KEVIN McCarthy has allowed this process to work among House Republicans, and he has empowered Members to come together to find consensus on behalf of conservative policy and a greater involvement of all voices throughout our Conference.

We have all played a part, whether you are the dean or a Member who has just been waiting for 4 days and voting loyally. It is KEVIN's leadership style, a leadership style that has been lacking in this institution for too long.

It is the same style KEVIN employed with each of us as we developed our policy proposal, a Commitment to America, a plan that works to secure our border and stop the flow fentanyl into our communities; to give Chairman Comer and Chairman Jor-DAN the tools they need to hold the Biden administration accountable for their failures; to take China on and end the President's COVID emergency powers that have been abused far too many times; to finally reopen the people's House, empower our standing committees, and get people back to regular order here on the House floor; and countless other conservative solutions that are very powerful and good for constituents in Bakersfield, California, or Lincolnton, North Carolina.

☐ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., ☐ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

who has had the pleasure of serving with KEVIN for the entirety of his tenure in the House.

In those years, I have worked closely with KEVIN in a variety of different capacities, and he is a good friend. But serving with him in these capacities has meant that I have heard every one of his stories. I have heard the story of Kevin O's Deli way too many times. I don't know if you have heard, but he won the lottery as well. I could recount those stories chapter and verse. He is a dear friend. But all of you have heard these stories, too.

Also, I have been able to watch him from a front-row seat as he has grown as a leader and especially this week how he has grown as a leader.

He knows more about Members than they know about themselves. If your spouse is sick, he may send flowers or fruit before I did, actually, on that story. But he cares so much about Members, not for politics, but because he cares about people.

He is unflinchingly optimistic. The glass is always half full. That is a hell of a trait, especially this week. He is relentless. The man does not quit.

It was KEVIN that led Republicans back to the majority in this House, the only Republican institution in Washington this day. KEVIN has led us through these challenges the last few days, and KEVIN is the right person to lead us over the coming 2 years.

That is why, at the direction of the Republican Conference, I advance the name of KEVIN MCCARTHY as the next Speaker of the United States House of Representatives.

The CLERK. The Clerk recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. AGUILAR).

Mr. AGUILAR. Madam Clerk, I rise to nominate HAKEEM JEFFRIES for Speaker of the House.

Madam Clerk, House Democrats are united behind the son of a social worker and substance abuse counselor, a leader who is deeply involved in his community and a tireless advocate for the least, the lost, and the left behind. He is a voice for the people. Madam Clerk, this is the people's House.

Two years ago today, duly elected Members of this body gathered here to certify the results of a free and fair election. In doing so, we participated in a tradition that makes our democracy a marvel and the envy of the world, a peaceful transfer of power.

But this body is more than a ceremonial Chamber, Madam Clerk. This is a workplace where hundreds of men and women endure long, difficult hours before they punch out and go home to their families, where good people come to work each day and maybe steal a quiet moment to themselves to look up at the ceiling or to look at the paintings or the statue of Abraham Lincoln and to thank God for the blessings of liberty because this place is so much more than a Chamber or even a workplace. "It is," in Lincoln's words, "a sign we intend the Union shall go on."

I am not just talking about the Members either, Madam Clerk. I am talking about you and your staff, the custodial staff, the floor staff, the institutional staff, our congressional staff, the Sergeant at Arms, our beloved Chaplain, and the Capitol Police. I am talking about the people who make this House work, the people who HAKEEM JEFFRIES will never take for granted.

Two years ago, Madam Clerk, we witnessed this place under siege by a violent mob who desecrated this building and the other Chamber. But this feels a little familiar. Today, we adjourned amidst utter confusion, only this time we are returning in the dark of night not to cast a vote to bring this country together and to do our jobs, but one that will set the path toward division and default.

So if we are forced to be here this evening because of the chaos and crisis on the other side, it is only fair to point out, Madam Clerk, that the same individuals who fanned the flames of January 6, who told their followers and their followers' followers that they needed to fight back, and who challenged the swearing in of Members based on a bogus claim of fake electors, may well be in charge of the people's House, if they can ever agree on who can lead them.

That is why House Democrats stand united behind Hakeem Jeffres. Hakeem is the only candidate in this race for Speaker who will defend this democracy. He is the only candidate in this race willing to call out the lie that the election was stolen, and he is the only candidate in this race who thinks that everyone involved on January 6 ought to be held accountable, regardless of the positions they hold in power.

For justice and truth, and in memory of the lives lost on January 6, I nominate HAKEEM JEFFRIES for Speaker of the House.

The CLERK. The Reading Clerk will now call the roll.

The tellers having taken their places, the House proceeded to vote for the Speaker.

The following is the result of the vote:

THE CLERK. The Clerk recognizes the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. WESTERMAN)

Mr. WESTERMAN. Madam Clerk, I rise to nominate KEVIN McCarthy as the Speaker of the House of Represent-

Madam Clerk, the eyes of the world and eyes of America are on this body right now. What America needs and what this body needs is a lot less talk and a lot more action.

At the direction of the Republican Conference, I advance the name of KEVIN MCCARTHY as the next Speaker of the House of Representatives of the 118th Congress.

The CLERK. The Clerk recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PHILLIPS)

Mr. PHILLIPS. Madam Clerk, I rise to say wow.

Madam Clerk, I rise to place into nomination for election to the position of Speaker of the House of Representatives the esteemed and wonderful leader of House Democrats, Mr. HAKEEM JEFFRIES of New York.

Our Nation's first President, unanimously elected by the electoral college in 1789, keeps watch over us every single day right here in this Chamber. In his inaugural address to our new Nation, he spoke of "a form of government for the security of [our] Union and the advancement of [our] happiness.'

But 234 years later, and after 14 rounds of balloting and a ridiculous war for personal power across the aisle, we the people still find ourselves without a constituted government, our security neglected and the advancement of anything impossible.

And happiness? Suffice to say, Americans are unhappy by the nonsense and the dysfunction playing out on this floor, particularly those who need us the most, who rely on our offices-and I mean every single one of our offices for services and support, not to mention the unhappy GOP and Democratic ranking members and chairs of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the Armed Services Committee, and the Intel Committee who say that the risk to our safety and security grows with each passing hour. This is not just unhappiness; this is dangerous.

However, the 212 unified members of the House Democratic Caucus have a very effective solution for this problem. We call him HAKEEM JEFFRIES.

In the spirit of friendliness and hopefulness, we extend a warm invitation to at least six of you across the aisle to join us. Let's end this nonsense, constitute this Congress, and elect him Speaker of the House.

He is a man who is ready to work with everyone in this Congress and throughout our country to place people over politics and solve our country's problems; a man of competency, decency, and integrity; a man of courage, honor, and resolve; a man who listens better than anyone I have ever known in my life; and a man of innovation, cooperation, and, yes, indeed, alliter-

Madam Clerk, 14,421 Americans have served in the United States Congress since George Washington's inaugural address 234 years ago. One of the very finest of those Americans is HAKEEM JEFFRIES of the great State of New York, and it is the honor of a lifetime to place his name into nomination for Speaker of the House.

The CLERK. The Reading Clerk will now call the roll.

The tellers having taken their places. the House proceeded to vote for the Speaker.

The following is the result of the vote:

SWEARING IN OF SPEAKER

The Sergeant at Arms announced the Speaker-elect of the House of Representatives of the 118th Congress, who was escorted to the chair by the Committee of Escort.

Mr. JEFFRIES. Madam Clerk, Whip Clark, distinguished members of the House Democratic Caucus and the House Republican Conference, it is my high honor and distinct privilege to finally be able to welcome all of you to the 118th Congress.

Let me just begin by thanking my good friend Pete Aguilar for his very generous words of introduction and for placing my name into nomination a total of nine times.

I thank my other colleagues from the Democratic Caucus for their generous words of nomination, as well: JIM CLY-BURN, KATHERINE CLARK, TED LIEU, DEAN PHILLIPS, JOE NEGUSE, and VERONICA ESCOBAR.

I thank my colleagues and my friends in the House Democratic Caucus for their perseverance, for their strength, for their friendship, for their unanimity of purpose, and for their unanimous support. I want to say that that showing of strength is not for any one particular individual. It will be a showing of strength throughout the 118th Congress, unanimity of purpose on behalf of the American people.

\Box 0100

Before I proceed any further, let me begin by acknowledging the distinguished gentlewoman from the great State of California, the iconic, the heroic, and the legendary Speaker Emerita, NANCY D'ALESANDRO PELOSI.

Speaker Emerita Pelosi will go down in history as the greatest Speakers of all time. Throughout her turn in Congress, she has been a legendary legislator, a fabulous facilitator, and a nononsense negotiator. We know that NANCY PELOSI is a woman of faith, a loving wife, a mother of five, a grandmother of nine, a defender of democracy, a voice for the voiceless, and a powerful champion for the children, the climate, California, Charm City, the Caucus, the Congress, the country, and the Constitution.

I thank the Speaker Emerita for all that she has done. It is an honor to stand on her broad shoulders as well as the shoulders of the great STENY HOYER and the great JIM CLYBURN, two consequential leaders in their own right.

The Scripture says in Galatians: "Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up."

Over the last 2 years, House Democrats, in partnership with President Biden and our colleagues in the Senate, have been hard at work on behalf of the American people getting big things done. We passed the American Rescue Plan, saved the economy from a deep recession, put shots in arms, money in pockets, and kids back in school. We passed the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act to create millions of good-paying jobs, fix our crumbling bridges, roads, tunnels, our airports, our sewer and water systems, our mass transportation systems, and ensured high-speed internet access in every single community. We passed gun safety legislation for the first time in 30 years that will save lives and make our communities safer.

We passed the CHIPS and Science Act to bring domestic manufacturing jobs back home to the United States of America and ensure that our workforce has the skills to succeed in the 21st century economy.

We passed the Inflation Reduction Act to strike a dramatic blow against the climate crisis, set our planet on a sustainable trajectory forward, lower energy costs, strengthen the Affordable Care Act, lower healthcare costs, and drive down the high price of lifesaving prescription drugs for millions of Americans.

It was one of the most consequential Congresses in American history. President Biden gets the job done, and the D in Democrat stands for deliver.

So over the next 2 years, as we begin this 118th Congress, let us continue to fight for lower costs, let us continue to fight in this Congress for better-paying jobs, let us continue to fight in this Congress for safer communities, let us continue to fight in this Congress to defend democracy, let us continue to fight in this Congress to protect the public interests, let us continue to fight in this Congress for economic opportunity in every single ZIP Code, and let us continue to fight in this Congress for reproductive freedom because as Democrats, we do believe in a country for everyone, a country that provides for the poor, works for working families, makes sense for the middle class, stands up for senior citizens, innovates in the inner city, strengthens suburban communities, helps out the heartland, and revitalizes rural America.

We believe in a country with liberty and justice for all, equal protection under the law, and free and fair elections. Yes, we believe in a country with the peaceful transfer of power.

We believe that in America, our diversity is a strength, it is not a weakness. It is an economic strength, a competitive strength, and a cultural strength. Our diversity is a strength. It is not a weakness.

We are a gorgeous mosaic of people from throughout the world. As John Lewis would sometimes remind us on this floor: We may have come over on different ships, but we are all in the same boat now.

We are White, we are Black, we are Latino, we are Asian, we are Native American, we are Christian, we are Jewish, we are Muslim, we are Hindu, we are religious, we are secular, we are gay, we are straight, we are young, we are older, we are women, we are men, we are citizens, and we are Dreamers. Out of many we are one. That is what makes America a great country. And no matter what kind of haters are trying to divide us, we are not going to let anyone take that away from us—not now, not ever.

This is the United States of America, a land of opportunity. The fact that I am able to stand up here today is another data point in that narrative. I was born in Brooklyn Hospital, raised in a working-class neighborhood in Crown Heights, grew up in the Cornerstone Baptist Church, and started off in the Cradle Roll Department. Somehow I survived the violence of the crack cocaine epidemic and wound up here in the United States Congress as the highest ranking Democrat in the House of Representatives.

America is truly a land of opportunity, a government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

So on this first day, let us commit to the American Dream, a dream that promises that if you work hard and play by the rules, then you should be able to provide a comfortable living for yourself and for your family, educate your children, purchase a home, and one day retire with grace and dignity.

Let us commit on this first day to lift up the American Dream for every single person in this Nation.

I recognize that this is a moment of transition as we transition from one Congress to the next, from one majority to the next, from a year of accomplishment to a year of ambiguity, a moment of transition. The American people, understandably after the events of this week, recognize that the Congress is at a fork in the road.

I ask the question: What direction will we choose?

\square 0110

On this first day, I do not pretend to answer that question on behalf of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, but we do extend our hand of partnership to you and want to make clear that we extend and intend to try to find common ground whenever and wherever possible on behalf of the American people.

Not as Democrats, not as Republicans, not as Independents, but as Americans.

But I also want to make clear that we will never compromise our principles. House Democrats will always but American values over autocracy, benevolence over bigotry, the Constitution over the cult, democracy over demagogues, economic opportunity over extremism, freedom over fascism, governing over gaslighting, hopefulness over hatred, inclusion over isolation, justice over judicial overreach, knowledge over kangaroo courts, liberty over limitation, maturity over Mar-a-Lago, normalcy over negativity, opportunity over obstruction, people over politics, quality-of-life issues over QAnon, reason over racism, substance over slander, triumph over tyranny, understanding over ugliness, voting rights over voter suppression, working families over the well-connected, xenial over xenophobia, "yes, we can" over "you can't do it," and zealous representation over zero-sum confronta-

We will always do the right thing by the American people, so let us not grow weary of doing good, for the American people will reap the benefit of the harvest if we do not give up.

God bless you, God bless the House, and God bless the United States of America.

It is now my solemn responsibility to hand over the people's gavel to a son of Bakersfield, a former small business owner, a proud product of a fire-fighter's household, the gentleman from the great State of California, and the next Speaker of the 118th Congress, KEVIN MCCARTHY.

Mr. McCARTHY. That was easy, huh? I never thought we would get up here. Thank you, Minority Leader Jeffries. Hakeem, I have got to warn you, 2 years ago, I got 100 percent of the vote from my Conference.

There is somebody else I want to thank, the gentlewoman who served as our presiding officer this week, our clerk, Cheryl Johnson. Thank you.

My father always told me, it is not how you start, it is how you finish. And now we need to finish strong for the American people.

If the son of a fireman and the grandchild of immigrants can rise to the highest position in the most important legislative body in our country, and if my colleague, HAKEEM JEFFRIES, with his life story, can rise to lead his party, then opportunity and democracy still thrive in America.

To Leader JEFFRIES, there will be times we agree, and many times we will differ. I promise our debates will be passionate, but they will never be personal. That is my commitment to you.

And now the hard work begins. What we do here today, next week, next month, next year will set the tone for everything that follows.

Tonight, I want to talk directly to the American people. As Speaker of the House, my ultimate responsibility is not to my party, my Conference, or even our Congress. My responsibility, our responsibility, is to our country. Two months ago, you voted for a new direction for our country. You embraced our Commitment to America, and now we are going to keep our commitment to you.

It is a commitment for an economy that is strong, where you can fill up your tank of gas and feed your family, where paychecks grow and not shrink. It is a commitment for a Nation that is safe, where communities are protected, law enforcement is respected, and criminals are prosecuted; a commitment for the future that is built on freedom, where children come first and are taught to dream big because in America, dreams can still come true; a commitment for a government that is held accountable, where Americans get the answers they want, need, and deserve.

Our system was built on checks and balances. It is time for us to be a check and provide some balance to the President's policies.

There is nothing more important than making it possible for American families to live and enjoy the lives they deserve. That is why we commit to stop wasteful Washington spending, to lower the price of groceries, gas, cars, housing, and stop the rising national debt.

\square 0120

We pledge to cut the regulatory burden, lower energy costs for families, and create good-paying jobs for workers by unleashing reliable, abundant, American-made energy.

I know the night is late but when we come back, our very first bill will repeal the funding for 87,000 IRS agents. You see, we believe government should be here to help you, not go after you.

We are going to pass bills to fix the Nation's urgent challenges, from the wide-open southern border to Americalast energy policies to woke indoctrination in our schools.

We will also address America's longterm challenges: the debt and the rise of the Chinese Communist Party. Congress must speak with one voice on both of these issues.

That is why we will end wasteful Washington spending. From now on, if a Federal bureaucrat wants to spend it, they will come before this institution to defend it.

As for the Chinese Communist Party, we will create a select committee on China to investigate how to bring back the hundreds of thousands of jobs that went to China, and then we will win this economic competition.

Now, speaking of committees, we will hold the swamp accountable—from the withdrawal from Afghanistan to the origins of COVID to the weaponization of the FBI. Let me be very clear. We will use the power of the purse and the power of the subpoena to get the job done.

This is something we should all agree upon. We will stand up and speak out for the backbone of our economy: the hardworking taxpayers.

It is nighttime here in Washington but in some ways, it is also like a new beginning, a fresh start. My friends, this Chamber is now fully open for all Americans to visit.

I want to give all Americans a personal invitation: You are welcome to see this body at work. No longer will the doors be closed, but the debates will be open for you to witness what happens in the people's House.

From the committee rooms to this floor, we commit to pursue the truth passionately and embrace debate. No more one-sided inquiries. Competing ideas will be put to the test in public so that the best ideas win.

We also pledge to bring Congress to the people because answers have not and will not always be found in Washington. That is why one of our very first hearings will be held at the southern border. No more ignoring this crisis of safety and sovereignty. We must secure our border. We must get America back on track.

Now, on a personal note to my family here and at home: my wife, Judy; my children, Meghan, Connor, and Emily; my brother, Marc; Monica and Zac; and, yes, my mom, Bert, I am where I am because you are who you are.

I would also like to thank my constituents in California's Central Valley, and yes, especially my hometown of Bakersfield. I don't know if you are familiar with music but as Buck Owens sings: "How many of you that sit and judge me have ever walked the streets of Bakersfield?"

Well, I have walked those streets my entire life. I know its people. They are hardworking and relentlessly optimistic about our future, and I am very honored to have the opportunity to represent them in Congress.

As a son of a firefighter, I saw first-hand how hard work, leadership, and service to others can change people's lives. That is exactly why we are here today: to serve you, the people.

We come here with the support of our families and the faith of our neighbors to be their voice in Washington. For all the wives and husbands, children and parents who are watching a loved one be sworn in—I know it took a couple extra days. I will be honest, that is not how I had it planned—I want you to remember this moment. Take it in.

Your loved ones are about to become a part of history. My colleagues and I thank you for your understanding and your sacrifice. We will work every day to make you proud.

My most favorite spot in this building is not in this Chamber. It is in the Chamber they met before, in Statuary Hall. It is my favorite place to take people on a tour. It is where Abraham Lincoln served. He was just a one-term Congressman; sat in the back. I like to go in that spot and stand where he stood. I like to do it at night when people aren't around. I like to look over and look at the clock because that is the same clock and same view that Abraham Lincoln saw.

I have watched Lincoln serve in the greatest challenge to our Constitution, the Civil War. I watched him take people who were rivals and put them together. I watched at a time when he did not know if the Nation could sustain itself, but he dreamt of a future and built a railroad across the Nation.

I want us to all take a moment one time that you are here; I want you to stand there. I want you to look, and I want you to think: If America could do it then, we can do it now. One more time.

□ 0130

Abe Lincoln gave his life in service to this country. One of his most important observations about America applies today as much as it did 160 years ago. He said: "We are striving to maintain the government and institutions of our fathers . . . and transmit them to our children and our children's children forever." My fellow Americans, that is still our mission today.

This moment calls for restoring trust within our country and with each other. In that spirit, I will work with anyone and everyone who shares our passion to deliver a better future for the Nation.

I hope you will join me. As a Congress, we can only operate if we cooperate.

My door will be open. I would like you to come by. I want you to see, as you walk down the hall, a large portrait of Lincoln. I want you to go into that conference room, and I want you to see another portrait. My Members know this. It is of Washington crossing the Delaware. We all know the story. It happened on Christmas 1776. There was no iPhone to take a picture.

People wonder when it was painted. It wasn't painted by someone who was there. It was painted in 1850 and 1851. He was an immigrant who lived in America, Emanuel Leutze.

Do you know why he painted it? Because he knew America was more than a country. America was an idea.

He went home to Germany, and he wanted Germany to have a revolution based upon the values and freedoms that we defend every day. His talent was art, so he believed if he painted this painting, he could inspire his countrymen to rise up for the idea of freedom.

Many historians will tell you he didn't get it correct. They will tell you Washington crossed on a Durham boat, but he paints it with Washington in a rowboat.

You see 13 people but only 12 faces. You see Washington standing up in a rowboat in the middle of winter, wearing a ceremonial uniform with his hand on his chest. He looks so stoic. You would look at that man and you would say, "I would follow him anywhere." You proudly believe that he never lost a battle.

But history would tell us, at that moment, at that time, he had only lost. We had never won. You see, that was the night of our first victory as a nation, when we surprised the Hessians.

When you look at that painting, don't look at Washington. I want you to look at who is in the boat. You see the second rower in the beret; he is Scottish. The person directly across from him in the green, rowing in the exact same cadence, is an African American. You come down right to the middle in the red. The person who is rowing the strongest is a woman, and in the very back is a Native American.

I don't know from a historic fact if they were in the boat that night, but to this young immigrant who had lived in America, that is who he believed would be in the boat.

The second-to-last person is a farmer. He could be from Bakersfield. I am not sure. His hand goes across his face. People will debate this part, but what I see is the hand of the 13th person nobody sees. You see, what I believe Emanuel was saying is: Here we are, battling for the creation of the idea of freedom, that every individual is equal, not a perfect nation but striving to be a more perfect union, having lost every battle against the greatest challenge with the strongest nation, having lost them all but willing to do it on our holiest of nights with a hand reached out and asking if you would join us.

That is as true today as it was then. If we let everybody in the boat, if we row in the same cadence together, there is no obstacle this body can't overcome for this Nation. It is time for us to be the voice and worthy of their vote.

Let me close with this. I may not know all of you—some of you are new—but I hope one thing is clear after this week: I never give up.

I make this promise: I will never give up for you, the American people, and I will never give up on keeping our commitment to America.

Our Nation is worth fighting for. Our rights are worth fighting for. Our dreams are worth fighting for. Our future is worth fighting for.

Therefore, with love for this country and charity for each other, let us now take our oath and be worthy of the office which we are about to enter

God bless everybody in this Chamber, and God bless America.

Not so fast. I have to get sworn in first. Sit down.

I am now ready to take the oath of office.

I ask the dean of the House, the Honorable HAL ROGERS of Kentucky, one of my first mentors, to administer the oath of the office.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. First, we want to offer a bipartisan congratulations to the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky then administered the oath of office to Mr. McCarthy of California, as follows:

INTRODUCTION OF THE WASHINGTON, D.C. ADMISSION ACT

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Friday, January 6, 2023

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the District of Columbia statehood bill, formally known as the Washington, D.C. Admission Act. This bill, which the House passed in the 116th and 117th Congresses, is the most important bill I introduce each Congress

The nearly 700,000 D.C. residents, who have all the obligations of American citizenship, including paying all federal taxes and serving in the armed forces, are denied voting representation in Congress and full local self-government. This bill would give D.C. residents the voting representation in Congress and full local self-government they have been denied for more than 220 years. To be content with less than statehood is to concede the equality of citizenship that is the birthright of D.C. residents as American citizens.

Congress has a moral obligation and the constitutional authority to pass this bill. This country was founded on the principles of no taxation without representation and consent of the governed, but D.C. residents are taxed without representation and cannot consent to the laws under which they, as American citizens, must live.

This bill would admit the State of Washington, Douglass Commonwealth into the Union and reduce the size of the federal district. The state would consist of the residential and commercial portions of present-day D.C., and the reduced federal district, which would remain under Congress' control, would consist of the Capitol Complex, the White House, the Supreme Court, the principal federal monuments and the National Mall area.

This bill complies with the Constitution, including the Admissions Clause, the District Clause and the 23rd Amendment.

The Admissions Clause gives Congress the authority to admit new states. All 37 new states were admitted by Congress. No new state was admitted by constitutional amendment. No state would have to consent to the admission of the State of Washington, D.C.

The District Clause gives Congress plenary authority over the federal district and establishes a maximum size of the federal district. It does not establish a minimum size or a location of the federal district. Congress reduced the size of the federal district by 30 percent in 1846.

The 23rd Amendment allows the federal district to participate in the Electoral College. This bill would repeal the enabling act for the 23rd Amendment and the 23rd Amendment would be repealed quickly. In any event, the 23rd Amendment does not establish a minimum size or a location of the federal district.

The Constitution does not establish any prerequisites for new states, but Congress generally has considered three: population and resources, support for statehood and commitment to democracy. The State of Washington, D.C. would meet each.

D.C.'s population is larger than that of two states, and the new state would be one of six states with a population under one million. D.C. pays more federal taxes per capita than any state and pays more federal taxes than 23 states. D.C.'s gross domestic product is larger than that of 17 states. Eighty-six percent of D.C. residents voted for statehood in 2016. In fact, D.C. residents have been fighting for voting representation in Congress and local autonomy for more than 220 years.

I seek statehood for the Americans I am honored to represent. At the same time, D.C. statehood is deeply personal for me. My greatgrandfather Richard Holmes, who escaped as a slave from a Virginia plantation, made it as far as D.C., a walk to freedom but not to equal citizenship. For generations, my family has been denied the rights other Americans take for granted. There are many other D.C. residents like me.

I strongly urge my colleagues to support this bill.
