The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY).

Mr. MCCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, to begin this explanation of the bill, the bill before us is very straightforward. It includes many elements which have passed this House before, in some cases numerous times.

The Tax Relief Extension Act of 2003 extends a number of important tax incentives strongly supported by Members on both sides of the aisle including incentives which create jobs and encourage restoration of brownfields.

One extension provision ensures that the benefits of individual tax credits are not lost to the bite of the alternative minimum tax. Those credits do little good if they are countered by the effects of the AMT. And the bill promotes economic growth by extending a provision first enacted in the 2002 stimulus bill allowing companies to carry back net operating losses up to 5 years.

The measure before us allows two important provisions related to defined benefit pension plans which must set aside enough money today to pay promised benefits tomorrow. As a result of declining rates on 30-year Treasury notes, plans are forced to assume that plan assets will grow more slowly than we know will be the case. This assumption results in employers having to set aside additional funds in their pension plan today, depriving them of money needed to expand their businesses and create more jobs.

The bill temporarily replaces the 30-year Treasury rate as the benchmark used for these calculations with an index based on high-grade corporate debt. The provision in this bill mirrors H.R. 3108, a bill approved last month in this Chamber by a vote of 397 to 2.

Further, the bill provides relief for embattled airlines facing burdensome mandatory contributions. This industry has been hard hit by the recession, a post-9/11 suspension in air travel and the resulting reduced passenger loads, and the higher costs of security resulting from terrorist fears.

Airlines are generally either in bankruptcy, coming out of bankruptcy or teetering on bankruptcy's brink. Forcing them to make billions of dollars in additional pension contributions at this time could be disastrous.

Accordingly, the bill before us contains relief which allows airlines to pay 20 percent of what current law would require into their plans during the next 2 years.

Together, these provisions will give Congress the time to develop long-term solutions to pension funding issues.

Finally, the bill includes several trade-related provisions. It includes the provisions of the Miscellaneous Trade and Technical Corrections Act, a compendium of bipartisan trade-related items, duty suspensions, and technical corrections drawn largely from legislation introduced by individual Members.

These duty suspensions are critical to many American employers since they are paying unnecessarily high prices for supplies which are not made here in the United States.

The House passed a substantially similar version of this bill in March of 2003 by a vote of 415 to 11.

The legislation before the House today includes several additional trade provisions, including an extension of Permanent Normal Trade Relations status to Armenia and an increase from $1,200 to $1,600 in the personal duty exemption for travellers returning to the United States from the Virgin Islands.

Like the tax provisions outlined above, the trade provisions included in this bipartisan bill are noncontroversial, small in cost and will help United States companies better compete.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this package.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation. I want to, though, at the beginning talk about process and then I will discuss the substance of the bill.

There have been some process issues. One of them relates to the Senate. The bill here has some provisions that have been over in the Senate and they have been held up by the action, as I understand it, of one Member of the Senate. It relates to a labelling requirement and essentially would, if that effort succeeded, roll back a provision that we have favored. And I just want everyone to understand that I think trade issues should not be handled that way.

Secondly, I want to say a word about the Armenia PNTR. We have been discussing this, but not directly in the committee or the Subcommittee on Trade for a number of months. A bill was introduced to grant Armenia PNTR, and I very much have favored that happening. Unfortunately, the bill was not sent through the subcommittee or the full committee, and I think that really deprived us of a chance to add to this bill some references to certain issues that Armenia has faced and that we think other countries should confront, especially as they are going to accede to the WTO which has already happened in the case of Armenia and receive the extension of PNTR by the United States.

For example, we have been trying to introduce into this bill references to the implementation by Armenia of some important aspect of the Helsinki Act, citing that some progress, although not full, has been made in the area of human rights. This would include treatment of minorities, religious minorities and others, providing protection to minorities from violence based on discrimination of any kind, hostility or hatred, including anti-Semitism. Also, reference to the fact that Armenia has demonstrated a commitment to enforcing internationally recognized core labor standards and has been working to improve its enforcement of those laws, as well as implementing some important market reforms.

Well, this bill suddenly included the Armenia PNTR, which I have favored, but there is resistance from some on the majority to allow us to insert into this bill these references to progress by Armenia in important areas that had reference, and should have reference, to other countries; and so I very much regret that.

But as said, this bill has some important provisions including the PNTR, provisions that extend important aspects of our tax laws. The extension of the work opportunity tax credits, the welfare-to-work tax credits, the AMT provision that the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY) mentioned, as well as several others including tax incentives for the District of Columbia.

Also in this bill are some pension-related provisions. One of them relates to the 30-year Treasury rate. This is an important provision for large numbers of companies and their workers, and we needed to find a way to introduce this into legislation and to implement it, and this bill does exactly that. And is another reason to favor this bill.

There is also, as the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY) mentioned, a provision relating to airlines and a 2-year provision to help them out. So this is a bill that has some miscellaneous provisions in it, but some of them are not very miscellaneous. Some of them are very important provisions. Some that are called technical, for example, would suspend or reduce import duties on numerous items for which there are no American competitors. And it would correct instances where Customs has overcharged for import duties. These are provisions that are important for domestic manufacturers and for their employees and for consumers.

One other provision that I should mention, since I have been so much involved with it with others, is the Reverse Customs Program at the northern border. This bill has references to that. These references are essentially relating to jurisdiction of committees. They do not change the basic provisions and do not in any way disturb the pace by which Customs will implement this important experiment in Reverse Customs Programs so that we can expedite the transportation of goods and passengers across the northern border, keeping in mind security considerations.

So, all in all, I believe this is a bill that deserves support with the caveats I mentioned. I have discussed earlier today, and the gentleman from Maryland, Mr. CARDIN, did with the chairman of the committee, the issue of Armenia and the need not for anybody to consider it a precedent either in terms of how PNTR is handled, other countries are handled, or the provisions relating to them. And we have received those verbal reassurances that the way the Armenia PNTR has been handled, it will not be a precedent in terms of committee or subcommittee consideration.

When my turn next comes I am going to yield many minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) who is going to talk about one issue that is not in this bill where there is an opportunity to place it and is so critical to hundreds of thousands of the citizens of the United States of America, and that is unemployment compensation, and I will do that at the appropriate time.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

As this institution moves forward to complete its business for the year, I think it is particularly important that we pause to pass this legislation that provides very critical tax relief and other important continuations of policy that I think reflect where this institution has been going, not only on tax policy but also on economic policy generally.

Mr. Speaker, I want to call attention to a couple of very important provisions that have been folded into this bill. I think one of the most important things we could do right now is to extend our tax treatment of net operating losses for companies, particularly in the wake of the long period, hopefully ending now, of companies having to attack against an ocean of red ink. I think it is particularly important now, particularly as our economy is beginning to grow again and beginning to grow again at a significant rate, that we give companies the relief they need on their net operating losses.

We have an opportunity here, I think, to give an additional boost to a lot of tax sensitive manufacturing concerns. And particularly, I wanted to say as chairman of the Congressional Steel Caucus, at a time when we are concerning ourselves with the health of the steel industry, it would be most helpful if we could liberalize the treatment of net operating losses and help not only steel companies, but also manufacturers generally in this economy trying to bounce back from an extended recession.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to note as the gentleman on the other side of the aisle did, that this bill contains a very important provision providing Permanent Normal Trade Relations for the Republic of Armenia. Armenia emerged from the wreck of the Soviet Union with great potential, and they have done an enormous amount to liberalize their society and liberalize their economy. This institution needs to recognize that and take the additional step of stripping away those outdated Jackson-Vanik restrictions.

With that, I would urge that my colleagues pass this legislation and send a strong message that this body is prepared to go forward on the tax front and the trade front and do what it needs to do.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN).

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, let me thank my friend, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, first let me say that there are some very important provisions in this bill. I see my friend, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN) on the floor, and I know that we are both pleased that the 30-year Treasury replacement is included in this bill.

I think we are both very disappointed that it is not for a longer period of time and does not include other provisions and legislation that we filed earlier that would have also helped preserve defined benefit plans properly funded for the workers of America, but at least there is some relief in this bill that is needed, and I am glad to see that is included in the legislation.

Let me say I appreciate the way the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) has presented the Armenian situation because I think he said it exactly right. There are human rights problems within Armenia. The Armenia Assembly of America, a respected group in this body, said the people of Armenia deserve nothing less than the declared aim of their government for free, fair, and transparent elections. As reported in depth by the OSCE, this achievable standard was not met.

The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH), the chairman of our Helsinki Commission, and myself as ranking Democrat sent the letter to the Committee on Ways and Means in April of 2003. I just want to quote one line from that letter where we said: The underlining intent of the Jackson-Vanik language is to foster democratization and protect human rights. Our commission puts a very high premium to carry out the responsibility of this body to make human rights development in these emerging democracies a top priority. We are disappointed that more progress has not been made.

In Armenia's case, they do have normal trade relations, and I thank the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) very much for the understanding that the process that was used in Armenia's elevation will not be the process used as we consider other countries for elevation on normal trade relations; and clearly, we will be looking at the progress on human rights issues.

Mr. Speaker, let me, if I might, spend the remainder of my time on the unemployment insurance issue. I must tell my colleagues I am extremely disappointed that the majority did not include an extension of the unemployment insurance benefits in this extender bill. We are going to be faced with the same thing that happened last year. The Christmas present to our unemployed will be that they are not going to get any additional benefits. The present program expires at the end of December. We might be out of session by the end of the week, and yet the majority sees no urgency in extending the unemployment insurance. Eighty thousand to 90,000 workers every week will lose their Federal unemployment benefits if we do not extend this program.

The majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), said, and I am quoting from today's paper, ''I see no reason to be extending unemployment compensation since every economic indicator is better than in 1993 when the Democrats ended the Federal unemployment program.''

Mr. Speaker, that is just not true. The extended benefit program in the early 1990s did not end until the economy had created nearly 3 million jobs, compared to the pre-recession levels. The current program is scheduled to end when the economy is still suffering a deficit of 2.4 million jobs. The current unemployment rate, 6 percent, has risen since the extended program was established in March of 2002. While starting at a higher level, the unemployment dropped substantially in the 1990s before we terminated the program.

The number of the long-term unemployed had dropped significantly before the 1990 extended program had expired. Today, the number of long-term unemployed, 2 million, has remained at a high level. The percentage of workers exhausting their unemployment benefits is higher today, 43 percent, than when the 1990 program ended, 39 percent. There are more people receiving unemployment today, 3.5 million, compared to the 1990s, 3.1 million.

Mr. Speaker, I just give those numbers because all we have to do is be in the trenches to know that people are hurting, people cannot find jobs, where every person seeking a job, there is only one job available. People want jobs, but cannot find them.

We need to extend the unemployment insurance Federal program. We have always done that in a bipartisan manner. We have always done it in every recession until we are on the road to recovery where people can find employment. That is not the case today. By every indicator that we have ever used in prior recessions, we should be extending the unemployment insurance program in this legislation. We should not be putting at jeopardy the needs of the people of our Nation.

So I am extremely disappointed; and I hope, Mr. Speaker, that the majority will allow us the chance to vote on the extension of unemployment insurance benefits before we adjourn this session of Congress. I know that there is support on the other side of the aisle for these programs. There have been two bills that have been filed. One has been filed by the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. DUNN). I filed one. There has been legislation filed on both sides of the aisle. It is important that we consider it. It is important that we consider it as quickly as possible, and I hope that we will find a way to bring this up. Maybe the other body will include it in this legislation. I think we missed an opportunity to include it in this bill, and I am disappointed about that, and I urge my colleagues to figure out a way that we could address this issue before we adjourn.

Mr. MCCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), another member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, we have had some good news since July. We have seen 286,000 new jobs created as a result of the Jobs and Economic Growth Act that was signed into law in May. That is good news; and really, this legislation we have before us today is another step in our effort to continue growing this economy and creating jobs, because one of the most important factors that affects the investment and the creation of jobs is certainty; and when a tax provision expires and there is doubt, uncertainty about whether that tax provision is going to be extended, those who invest, business and others, hold back and that affects our economy.

Passage of this legislation, with bipartisan support, is very important as we work to continue growing our economy. There are several very important economic growth provisions in this legislation that will be extended for another year, a 12-month extension, legislation that provides a tax incentive to clean up brownfields, abandoned industrial sites that require some environmental cleanup. Of course, we are extending the incentive to help business recover the cost of that environmental cleanup and create new jobs, recycling those industrial sites.

We recognize that there are many small- and medium-size manufacturers and other companies that have lost money this year. They need capital to invest in the creation of jobs to participate in the economic growth that we are currently beginning to enjoy; and by allowing them to go back over the last 5 years, find a profitable year, take this year's loss and essentially apply for a tax refund, that will give them capital to create new jobs.

Third, we all want those who are currently unemployed to have an opportunity to get a job. We also want those who are on welfare to have an opportunity to get a job; and the work opportunity tax credit is a tremendous program that has worked so well to give those who have been on welfare the opportunity for a job, a chance, in many cases the first chance that they have ever had for a good-paying job.

Let us extend these. This legislation deserves unanimous, bipartisan support. I urge an ''aye'' vote.

Mr. MCCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CAMP), another distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me the time.

There are a lot of important provisions in this legislation. I would like to address my remarks particularly to the airline pension relief provisions and why airlines face a pension funding crisis.

At the end of 1999, the airline industry's defined benefit pension plans on average were funded at 102 percent. At the end of 2002, that average level of funding fell to 54 percent, and the decline is a result of three factors. For the first time since World War II, the equity markets declined for 3 consecutive years. Market interest rates, which are used to define pension liabilities, are at 40-year lows. This pension funding crisis occurred at a time when the airline industry was in its worst financial situation due to the global recession, September 11, SARS, the Iraq war, and increased security costs.

There are also problems with current funding rules with regard to airlines. There is mandatory contribution provisions which tightened the funding rules in two inflexible ways which mandated the use of the 30-year Treasury rate, which this legislation addresses, and secondly, dramatically shortened the amortization period. That legislation was tightened in many ways in 1994.

During the last 3 years, the mandatory contribution funding requirements have been stress-tested by sustained economic downturns; and so between the enactment in 1987 and the beginning of the 3-year market collapse, the stock market had declined previously only in 1 year and then only by about 3 percent.

So in the face of this recent economic downturn and the simultaneous collapse of asset values, this mandatory contribution has proved to be onerous and inflexible, particularly to a highly cyclical industry like the airline industry.

This legislation affects zero tax dollars. It would temporarily defer contributions required by the mandatory contribution law for just a period of 2 years. Forcing airlines to contribute billions of dollars more over and above their regular pension contributions at this time would be disastrous. This gives us time to develop long-term solutions in this area. This is why unions and management came together to save pension plans for workers. If we do not address this issue, airlines will go bankrupt, as U.S. Airways has, and terminate their plans. Please support this legislation.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE).

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this tax extension bill. It includes, as has been mentioned, H.R. 528, a bill to extend normal trade relations to Armenia. As co-chair of the Congressional Caucus on Armenian Issues, I introduced this legislation with my fellow co-chair, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), and our bipartisan bill has garnered 112 cosponsors during the course of this year; and it has been included in this bill thanks to the gentleman from California (Chairman THOMAS), the gentleman from New York (Ranking Member RANGEL), and also the gentleman from Michigan (Ranking Member LEVIN).

Mr. Speaker, Armenia has been consistently found in full compliance with Jackson-Vanik since 1997, and the passage of this legislation will go a long way to establishing closer relations between the United States and Armenia. Since the fall of the Soviet Union, the Republic of Armenia has consistently made strides towards a free and open economic system; and like many former Soviet republics in the last decade, Armenia has seen considerable diversity in this last decade.

Unlike most, though, Armenia has vigorously pursued free-market reforms within a democratic framework. On February 5, Armenia was acceded to the World Trade Organization, and its recent accession supports its noted progress in adopting and implementing economic and trade reforms. In fact, Armenia is consistently ranked the most economically free nation in the region. It is truly amazing that all this has been achieved considering that Armenia continues to suffer dual blockades by its neighbors to the east and west, both Azerbaijan and Turkey respectively.

I wanted to mention the comments that the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) made about human rights violations and strides towards democracy in Armenia. I know that, although Armenia continues to make great strides in these areas, more needs to be done; and I do acknowledge that. In fact, I do intend when I visit Armenia in 2 weeks, I wanted to mention to my colleagues that I will be talking to the President and the leaders there, and I will indicate to them that while we are very thrilled with the fact that the PNTR legislation has now passed the House that more needs to be done with regard to democracy and human rights.

But I want to point out that this will further strengthen our ties and lead to greater strides in these areas.

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, a gentleman who has done tremendous work on the pension elements that are contained in this bill and will continue, I am sure, to provide leadership in this area.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. McCRERY) for giving me some time. I want to congratulate him for getting this extender bill to the floor. It is extremely important that we extend so many of these important tax provisions. I would like to think that over time we can make some of them permanent because they make so much sense, and after all, this is a 1-year extension. We are likely to extend them again and again. So I would hope that we could work toward that, but it is a very important bill; and it is extremely important we do it this year. If we do not, then we will have a situation where there will be a gap and companies and those individuals who want to take advantage of these good public policy tax provisions will not be able to plan. So not to have them be retroactive but do it at this point is extremely important, and I commend him and the gentleman from California (Chairman THOMAS) for getting us to this point.

I rise today also very strongly in support of a specific provision here that helps with regard to our defined pension plans. As all of us know, defined pension plans are in trouble. In the last few years, we have actually gone down in our pension coverage by about 19 percent. In fact, in the past 18 years we have gone from about 114,000 defined pension plans that are guaranteed by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation to about 32,000 plans, dramatic decreases.

Many of the reasons that people are no longer offering plans and why this year we think that about 20 percent of plans are freezing their plans for participants is because we have a broken system with regard to what the interest rate is which is charged to these pension plans for their contributions.

What we do in this legislation is we provide for a 2-year fix, a short-term replacement for the currently and defunct 30-year Treasury rate, and that is extremely important. It allows employers to calculate the amount of money to set aside for their employee benefit plans in a more reasonable way and a more accurate way.

It strengthens, therefore, our defined benefit system dramatically in the short-term while we take a look at this whole system.

I see the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, is here, and I look forward to working with him, as well as with the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. McCRERY), the chairman of the subcommittee, and others, including the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), who spoke earlier about this issue, to come up with longer-term solutions to our pension funding rules, pension accounting rules to be sure that we can indeed continue to have these important defined benefit plans.

I think they are extremely important as a part of our overall security system, working with our Social Security System and our defined contribution system, such as the 401(k) plan. Without a permanent solution, these plans will be a thing of the past, and we will not have this guaranteed benefit for millions of Americans.

I strongly support the legislation before us and urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to do the same.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Delegate, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend, the gentleman from Michigan, for yielding me this time and for his assistance on this bill.

I strongly support the many provisions of H.R. 3521, but I rise to speak particularly about the D.C. tax incentives because the Members of this body have seen what these tax incentives have done with their own eyes. They have seen the District of Columbia rise from the dust with the amount of building we see downtown and in the neighborhoods, and that is due in no small part to the tax incentives that are in this extender.

I want to thank the Speaker, who has worked with me to assure me that these tax incentives would be extended. He promised me 2 years ago. He has continued to say this is going to happen. I appreciate that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) and the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) have kept on this. I know there were some difficulties. And I particularly appreciate my good friend, the ranking member in the minority, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL).

I appreciate that the tax incentives have been so effective that the President actually put them in his budget. I think it is because these tax incentives are the essence of how bipartisan tax work can help revive our Nation's Capital. The District had difficulty in the 1990s, the way New York and Philadelphia did. They had States, we did not, and I thought it was more important to get the businesses and the residents to revive the city than to keep asking the Congress for money. And, in fact, these tax incentives have recouped many times over for the Treasury.

There is a $5,000 homebuyer credit if you buy a house in the District of Columbia. This has reversed the flight from the District of Columbia, and we have seen a 50 percent increase in homebuying over the last 5 years. Many of them are staff from the House and Senate who are always talking to me about it. According to the studies, the majority of this homebuyer energy comes from the tax credit and not only from increased employment and declining mortgage rates.

There is a wage credit, which has been an incentive for many employers to remain in our city, and particularly for our tourist industry. There is the EZ Bonds that have brought us retail businesses of the kind that used to flee from the District, like K Mart. The zero capital gains can be seen in the $200 million Gallery Place development downtown.

So I, therefore, want to thank my colleagues for all this bill has done for our City, and I strongly urge its passage.

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, the significant pension underfunding problems that we face in this country have critical implications on the retirement security of American workers. Traditional defined benefit pension plans promise workers a set monthly benefit at retirement, and we have a responsibility to ensure that these important pension benefits for millions of American workers will be there when they retire.

The tax extension package that we have before us today includes a key pension funding change that was included in the Pension Funding Equity Act, the bipartisan measure that passed the House previously on October the 8th. It would have replaced the current 30-year Treasury bond interest rate that is used by many employers to calculate the amount of money they must set aside in their pension plans with a blend of corporate bond index rates for the next 2 years, through 2005. Because the current fix expires at the end of 2003, there is an urgency on the part of employers, unions, and workers to address this issue.

Let me explain why this change, I think, is so important. Strengthening the funding of defined benefit pension plans in the short-term will reduce the likelihood that the Federal Government will have to step in and pay benefits for underfunded plans, often at lower benefit levels for American workers. Moreover, employers who are making major short-term financial decisions need greater certainty to make key decisions about how to allocate scarce resources. Doing nothing could jeopardize employers' willingness to continue their defined benefit programs that provide a stable and secure pension benefit to workers during their retirement. Doing nothing is not an option, and for the good of our economy and for the good of American workers we need to act.

This measure also includes an additional item that would reduce additional payments that airlines must make to their pension plan when their funding falls below 90 percent of liabilities, called deficit reduction contributions, and we would reduce those contributions by 80 percent for just the next 2 years.

I remain concerned about the possible consequences of reducing deficit reduction contributions. Certainly, it is a last-resort approach. I would prefer not to single out any one industry for special relief, but enough of our colleagues in the other body feel differently, and we are nearly out of time. So I am pleased the DRC relief included in this measure is limited to 2 years, and I plan to support this measure for the good of our economy and the overall health of our Nation's pension system.

I am committed to ensuring that any DRC relief we enact is responsible and limited in scope to avoid compromising the defined benefit system as we look at broader, long-term reforms in both the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and while I support this stopgap, short-term bill, I must say this legislation really does nothing to address the well-documented, serious and worsening pension crisis that threatens the retirement security of millions of Americans, and I provide my support for this legislation acknowledging the promise of my chairman, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), that we will, in fact, have detailed hearings and comprehensive hearings on this matter in the coming session of Congress.

Once again, this House is going to adjourn for the year without enacting much-needed comprehensive pension reform. As a result, the already precarious security of millions of seniors and working Americans is likely to worsen. The Congress and the Bush administration have been warned for 2 years about this deepening crisis. Yet as scandals, bankruptcies, and deficits have skyrocketed, there has been virtually no response. In fact, all we have seen from this administration is a plan to allow companies to convert cash balance plans that could cut some retirees pensions in half. Fortunately, it looks as if we may be able to prevent this from happening, no thanks to that administration.

Let no one be fooled, we are in a severe pension crisis in this country. Over the past 2 years, the underfunding of pensions has skyrocketed from $26 billion to $400 billion, the largest in history. The reserves of the Pension Benefits Guaranty Corporation, which takes over pension responsibilities for failed corporations, has gone from a $7.7 billion surplus to a deficit of almost $9 billion, threatening its future financial stability. According to the PBGC, the $11 billion loss in fiscal year 2002 is more than five times larger than any previous 1-year loss in the Agency's 29-year history.

For the past 18 months, the Bush administration and the Republican leadership in Congress have repeatedly ignored our urgent requests to wake up to the serious problem of pension underfunding. As the administration dithered, the deficits continued to balloon and the Government Accounting Office put the Pension Benefits Guaranty Corporation on its list of high-risk Federal Government programs, meaning the pensions of millions of Americans are in grave jeopardy.

As of today, the administration has yet to submit to Congress its reform plan. In testimony before our committee last month, the GAO demonstrated the severity of this problem in our pension laws, and I hope that we will be able to address in the next session of Congress that comprehensive solution.

Mr. MCCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG).

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise today in support of this very important bill. I hope all of our colleagues on both sides will join in supporting the bill because there are so many provisions that are important to our economy and to our foreign policy.

Airlines relief has been mentioned, replacement for the 30-year Treasury benchmark to allow companies to make more accurate contributions to their pension plans is something that we desperately need, and it is great to see that is provided here.

One provision in particular that I want to highlight is the Permanent Normal Trade Relations for Armenia. I am a sponsor of H.R. 528, a bill to provide PNTR for Armenia, which, as already has been indicated, was introduced by myself and my cochair of the Congressional Caucus on Armenian Issues, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE). The bill currently has 112 cosponsors, a broad bipartisan group which includes many members of the Committee on Ways and Means and the ranking member, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL). I want to commend the chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), and the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY), for their work to ensure that this is included in the bill.

Since declaring its independence from the Soviet Union in 1991, Armenia has made some great strides in developing a stable Democratic and open society. This includes an adherence to the fundamental principle of free emigration. Armenia is found to be in full compliance with the Jackson-Vanik requirement regarding free emigration under title IV of the Trade Act of 1974. The time has now come for Armenia to be graduated from this annual review.

On December 10, 2002, the World Trade Organization voted to include Armenia in its membership. However, neither Armenia nor the United States will be able to receive the full benefit of Armenia's inclusion in the WTO unless Congress passes PNTR. Passage of H.R. 528 will not only enhance trade and investment between the U.S. and Armenia, but will also deepen the strong relationship between our two countries. Approximately 70 U.S.-owned firms currently do business in Armenia. In total, United States-Armenia bilateral trade for 2002 amounted to over $134 million.

And, again, in closing, I want to thank everyone for working together to bring this about, and I want to urge my colleagues again to support this important bill.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to make two points. First of all, this bill is not paid for, $7 billion, and I hope that the Senate will rectify that. It is our understanding that they will. And I think that gives people on our side some reassurance that this will not be a further addition to an already escalating atrociously high deficit.

Secondly, I simply want to reinforce, on the issue of unemployment compensation, that when the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) said, ''I see no reason to be extending unemployment compensation since every economic indicator is better than in 1993, when the Democrats ended the Federal unemployment program,'' that, as the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) pointed out, that is really an inaccurate statement.

If we do not extend this program, every week after Christmas about 90,000 people are going to be out on the street without any benefits. Now, we went through this the last Christmas. If my colleagues want us to come back here this Christmas, the three of us who came last time, and object, we will do that, but we should not have to do that. The unemployment program should be extended, period. And I hope that the majority in this House will step up to the plate on what is if not life and death, it is survival decently for tens of thousands of our fellow and sister citizens.

Mr. MCCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY), a respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means, who will close the debate on this bipartisan bill.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and for his outstanding presentation on the floor today and for going over some of the most relevant and important topics of this extension of expiring tax provisions.

I want to call to the attention of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle some very, very important substantial pieces of legislative tax work that are here in the bill. The Work Opportunity Tax Credit, a credit for employers equal to 40 percent of wages for hiring certain disadvantaged individuals. Targeted groups include TANF families, high-risk youth, certain ex-felons, summer youth, certain Veterans, and families on food stamps. This is a very important provision in this bill.

Welfare to work, again an experiment which has yielded tremendous results in Palm Beach County, the county in which I live, provides a tax credit for employers hiring targeted groups equal to 35 percent of wages.

These are interesting and important provisions to help people get back on their feet, to maintain a work ethic, and contribute to themselves, their families and our Nation.

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CAMP) and I authored an important provision relevant to elementary and secondary school teachers. My father is a retired teacher and principal, and that is a $250 above-the-line deduction for teachers purchasing classroom supplies. It was first enacted in the 2002 stimulus bill, and it continues today.

Qualified zone academy bonds. These are targeted tax credit bonds for school construction in economically targeted areas. This is very important for Florida with the rapid growth of the population and the need for school construction, once again a mechanism by which localities can seek tax credits for bonds to help with that opportunity.

Charitable contributions of computer technology used for educational purposes. We have seen a blossoming of computers in the classroom in educational settings, most due to the generosity of companies with excess equipment. This extends for 1 year the current law which encourages donation of computer technology and related equipment for educational purposes, providing donors with a higher basis and, therefore, larger deductions.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) mentioned the brownfields remediations cost. Again, those are in my district and districts throughout the country.

The Archer medical savings account, which will be a provision contained also in our Medicare bill which will be brought to the floor tomorrow or Saturday, all of these issues contained in this extension provide some great opportunities for constituents throughout all 50 States and the territories.

Finally, for D.C. residents, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) has worked extensively in reviving the fortunes of the city, and extends for 1 year a range of tax incentives for activities in the District of Columbia, including an important $5,000 tax credit for first-time home buyers. Anyone who lives on Capitol Hill has noticed a refurbishing, a reinvigoration of one of our most important cities. Visitors from around the world come to see where we work and where democracy flourishes.

Thanks to this provision, a $5,000 tax credit, we are starting to see the fruits of the labor of this bill, increasing homeownership and increasing opportunities: zero capital gains for D.C. on long-term capital gains held in the District, rental real estate buildings, things of that nature, getting people to reinvest in the capital city; and I thank the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) for helping the Mayor of this city and bringing some of these opportunities forward.

I encourage passage of the expiring tax provisions and urge adoption of this bill.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer some observations regarding H.R. 3521, which includes the text of H.R. 528 that would establish normal trade relations for the Republic of Armenia.

First, I wish to make clear I have supported conditionally terminating the application of the Jackson-Vanik amendment, known as Title IV, to the Soviet successor states, starting with the Kyrgyz Republic and the Republic of Georgia in 2000.

In the case of this legislation, I support granting permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) status to Armenia. I believe that graduation from Jackson-Vanik will contribute to economic growth in Armenia. Starting in 1989, Armenia had been receiving annual Jackson-Vanik waivers, first as part of the Soviet Union and then as an independent country. It's time to make this process permanent.

However, I also strongly believe that the graduation for any successor state must be conditioned upon the development of a legal structure that guarantees internationally recognized human rights for its Jewish citizens, and members of other religious, national and ethnic minorities. In the absence of such conditions, there is in my opinion no possibility of establishing democratic institutions applicable to all citizens.

Twice in the past, in the case of the Republic of Georgia and the Republic of Kyrgyzstan, Congress has prudently determined that graduation from Jackson-Vanik would require more than the mere opening of a country's doors to emigration. The legislation prudently noted the advances made in other areas prior to waiving Jackson-Vanik, including the ability of Jews and other minorities to identify with their cultural heritage, restitution of communal property, rigorous governmental responses to anti-Semitism an xenophobia, and commitments on the implementation of laws and practices ensuring minority protection.

I believe that we do a disservice to the Republic of Armenia and to the Armenian diaspora—Armenia's greatest resource and asset—by not including the same standards to this legislation.

The findings that we believe should be included in this legislation are as follows:

The Congress of the United States finds that Armenia—

Registered significant progress in developing a system of governance in accordance with the provisions of the Final Act of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (also known as the ''Helsinki Final Act'') regarding human rights and humanitarian affairs;

Addressed issues related to its national and religious minorities through the relevant articles of its Constitution, and as a member state of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), ensured that persons belonging to national minorities have full equality individually as well as in community with other members of their group;

Provided protection against incitement to violence against persons or groups based on national, racial, ethnic, or religious discrimination, hostility, or hatred, including anti-Semitism;

[Append the following to finding in H.R. 528 related to enacting free-market reforms] And is committed to making additional reforms to its economy;

Concluded a bilateral trade agreement with the United States, which entered into force on April 7, 1992, and a bilateral investment treaty, which entered into force on March 29, 1996;

Demonstrated a commitment to enforcing internationally recognized core labor standards and to continue to improve effective enforcement of its laws reflecting such standards; and

Acceded to the World Trade Organization on February 5, 2003, and the extension of unconditional normal trade relations treatment to the products of Armenia will enable the United States to avail itself of all rights under the World Trade Organization with respect to Armenia.

Armenia's small Jewish community is relatively well-treated and maintains a good working relationship with the government. I hope that the Armenian government will make available to the Jewish community an appropriate public space as symbolic compensation for communal properties destroyed during the Soviet period.

Although Armenia has gained accession to the World Trade Organization, the decision to graduate a country from the Jackson-Vanik amendment should be based upon those issues which motivated the original enactment of this law: religious freedom and human rights. Adoption of PNTR for Armenia by this House in the context as part of a larger, unrelated tax measure without this language should not be seen as any precedent for any future graduation.

In any case, I look forward to working with the gentleman from California and the gentleman from New York on incorporating language along these lines in the final bill regarding this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3521, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

FLOOD INSURANCE REFORM ACT OF 2003

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 253) to amend the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 to reduce losses to properties for which repetitive flood claim payments have been made, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 253

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2003''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) the national flood insurance program (A) identifies the flood risk, (B) provides flood risk information to the public, (C) encourages State and local governments to make appropriate land use adjustments to constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage and minimize damage caused by flood losses, and (D) makes flood insurance available on a nationwide basis that would otherwise not be available, to accelerate recovery from floods, mitigate future losses, save lives, and reduce the personal and national costs of flood disasters;

(2) the national flood insurance program insures approximately 4,400,000 policyholders;

(3) approximately 48,000 properties currently insured under the program have experienced, within a 10-year period, two or more flood losses where each such loss exceeds the amount $1,000;

(4) approximately 10,000 of these repetitive-loss properties have experienced either two or three losses that cumulatively exceed building value or four or more losses, each exceeding $1,000;

(5) repetitive-loss properties constitute a significant drain on the resources of the national flood insurance program, costing about $200,000,000 annually;

(6) repetitive-loss properties comprise approximately one percent of currently insured properties but are expected to account for 25 to 30 percent of claims losses;

(7) the vast majority of repetitive-loss properties were built before local community implementation of floodplain management standards under the program and thus are eligible for subsidized flood insurance;

(8) while some property owners take advantage of the program allowing subsidized flood insurance without requiring mitigation action, others are trapped in a vicious cycle of suffering flooding, then repairing flood damage, then suffering flooding, without the means to mitigate losses or move out of harm's way;

(9) mitigation of repetitive-loss properties through buyouts, elevations, relocations, or flood-proofing will produce savings for policyholders under the program and for Federal taxpayers through reduced flood insurance losses and reduced Federal disaster assistance;

(10) a strategy of making mitigation offers aimed at high-priority repetitive-loss properties and shifting more of the burden of recovery costs to property owners who choose to remain vulnerable to repetitive flood damage can encourage property owners to take appropriate actions that reduce loss of life and property damage and benefit the financial soundness of the program; and

(11) the method for addressing repetitive-loss properties should be flexible enough to take into consideration legitimate circumstances that may prevent an owner from taking a mitigation action.

SEC. 3. EXTENSION OF PROGRAM AND CONSOLIDATION OF AUTHORIZATIONS.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 is amended as follows:

(1) BORROWING AUTHORITY.—In the first sentence of section 1309(a) (42 U.S.C. 4016(a)), by striking ''through December'' and all that follows through '', and'' and inserting the following: ''through the date specified in section 1319, and''.

(2) AUTHORITY FOR CONTRACTS.—In section 1319 (42 U.S.C. 4026), by striking ''after'' and all that follows and inserting ''after September 30, 2008.''.

(3) EMERGENCY IMPLEMENTATION.—In section 1336(a) (42 U.S.C. 4056(a)), by striking ''during the period'' and all that follows through ''in accordance'' and inserting ''during the period ending on the date specified in section 1319, in accordance''.

(4) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR STUDIES.—In section 1376(c) (42 U.S.C. 4127(c)), by striking ''through'' and all that follows and inserting the following: ''through the date specified in section 1319, for studies under this title.''.

SEC. 4. ESTABLISHMENT OF PILOT PROGRAM FOR MITIGATION OF SEVERE REPETITIVE LOSS PROPERTIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 is amended by inserting after section 1361 (42 U.S.C. 4102) the following new section:

''PILOT PROGRAM FOR MITIGATION OF SEVERE REPETITIVE LOSS PROPERTIES

''SEC. 1362. (a) AUTHORITY.—To the extent amounts are made available for use under this section, the Director may, subject to the limitations of this section, provide financial assistance to States and communities for taking actions with respect to severe repetitive loss properties (as such term is defined in subsection (b)) to mitigate flood damage to such properties and losses to the National Flood Insurance Fund from such properties.

''(b) SEVERE REPETITIVE LOSS PROPERTY.—For purposes of this section, the term 'severe repetitive loss property' has the following meaning:

''(1) SINGLE-FAMILY PROPERTIES.—In the case of a property consisting of one to four residences, such term means a property that—

''(A) is covered under a contract for flood insurance made available under this title; and

''(B) has incurred flood-related damage—

''(i) for which four or more separate claims payments have been made under flood insurance coverage under this title before the date of the enactment of the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2003, with the amount of each such claim exceeding $5,000, and with the cumulative amount of such claims payments exceeding $20,000;

''(ii) for which four or more separate claims payments have been made under flood insurance coverage under this title after the date of the enactment of the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2003, with the amount of each such claim exceeding $3,000, and with the cumulative amount of such claims payments exceeding $15,000; or

''(iii) for which at least two separate claims payments have been made under such coverage, with the cumulative amount of such claims exceeding the value of the property.

''(2) MULTIFAMILY PROPERTIES.—In the case of a property consisting of five or more residences, such term shall have such meaning as the Director shall by regulation provide.

''(c) ELIGIBLE ACTIVITIES.—Amounts provided under this section to a State or community may be used only for the following activities:

''(1) MITIGATION ACTIVITIES.—To carry out mitigation activities that reduce flood damages to severe repetitive loss properties, including elevation, relocation, demolition, and floodproofing of structures, and minor physical localized flood control projects.

''(2) PURCHASE.—To purchase severe repetitive loss properties, subject to subsection (f).

''(d) MATCHING REQUIREMENT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the Director may not provide assistance under this section to a State or community in an amount exceeding 3 times the amount that the State or community certifies, as the Director shall require, that the State or community will contribute from non-Federal funds for carrying out the eligible activities to be funded with such assistance amounts.

''(2) WAIVER.—

''(A) AUTHORITY.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the Director may waive the limitation under paragraph (1) for any State, and for the communities located in that State, with respect to a year, if, for such year—

''(i) 5 percent or more of the total number of severe repetitive loss properties in the United States are located in such State; and

''(ii) the State submits a plan to the Director specifying how the State intends to reduce the number of severe repetitive loss properties and the Director determines, after consultation with State and technical experts, that the State has taken actions to reduce the number of such properties.

''(B) LIMITATION.—In each waiver under subparagraph (A), the Director may waive the limitation under paragraph (1) only to the extent that the State or community involved is required to contribute, for each severe repetitive loss property for which grant amounts are provided, not less than 10 percent of the cost of the activities for such properties that are to be funded with grant amounts.

''(3) NON-FEDERAL FUNDS.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'non-Federal funds' includes State or local agency funds, in-kind contributions, any salary paid to staff to carry out the eligible activities of the recipient, the value of the time and services contributed by volunteers to carry out such activities (at a rate determined by the Director), and the value of any donated material or building and the value of any lease on a building.

''(e) STANDARDS FOR MITIGATION OFFERS.—The program under this section for providing assistance for eligible activities for severe repetitive loss properties shall be subject to the following limitations:

''(1) PRIORITY.—In determining the properties for which to provide assistance for eligible activities under subsection (c), the Director shall provide assistance for properties in the order that will result in the greatest amount of savings to the National Flood Insurance Fund in the shortest period of time.

''(2) OFFERS.—The Director shall provide assistance in a manner that permits States and communities to make offers to owners of severe repetitive loss properties to take eligible activities under subsection (c) as soon as is practicable.

''(3) NOTICE.—Upon making an offer to provide assistance with respect to a property for any eligible activity under subsection (c), the State or community shall notify each holder of a recorded interest on the property of such offer and activity.

''(f) PURCHASE OFFERS.—A State or community may take action under subsection (c)(2) to purchase a severe repetitive loss property only if the following requirements are met:

''(1) USE OF PROPERTY.—The State or community enters into an agreement with the Director that provides assurances that the property purchased will be used in a manner that is consistent with the requirements of clauses (i) and (ii) of section 404(b)(2)(B) of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5170c(b)(2)(B)) for properties acquired, accepted, or from which a structure will be removed pursuant to a project provided property acquisition and relocation assistance under such section 404(b).

''(2) PURCHASE PRICE.—The amount of purchase offer is not less than the greatest of—

''(A) the amount of the original purchase price of the property, when purchased by the holder of the current policy of flood insurance under this title;

''(B) the total amount owed, at the time the offer to purchase is made, under any loan secured by a recorded interest on the property;

''(C) an amount equal to the fair market value of the property immediately before the most recent flood event affecting the property; and

''(D) an amount equal to the replacement value of the property immediately before the most recent flood event affecting the property, except that this subparagraph shall apply in the case only of a property for which the State or community taking action under subsection (c)(2) determines, and the Director concurs, that the fair market value referred to in subparagraph (C) of the property is less than the purchase price of a replacement primary residence that is of comparable value, functionally equivalent, and located in the same community or market area but not in an area having special flood hazards.

''(g) INCREASED PREMIUMS IN CASES OF REFUSAL TO MITIGATE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In any case in which the owner of a severe repetitive loss property refuses an offer to take action under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (c) with respect to such property, the Director shall—

''(A) notify each holder of a recorded interest on the property of such refusal; and

''(B) notwithstanding subsections (a) through (c) of section 1308, thereafter the chargeable premium rate with respect to the property shall be the amount equal to 150 percent of the chargeable rate for the property at the time that the offer was made, as adjusted by any other premium adjustments otherwise applicable to the property and any subsequent increases pursuant to paragraph (2) and subject to the limitation under paragraph (3).

''(2) INCREASED PREMIUMS UPON SUBSEQUENT FLOOD DAMAGE.—Notwithstanding subsections (a) through (c) of section 1308, if the owner of a severe repetitive loss property does not accept an offer to take action under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (c) with respect to such property and a claim payment exceeding $1,500 is made under flood insurance coverage under this title for damage to the property caused by a flood event occurring after such offer is made, thereafter the chargeable premium rate with respect to the property shall be the amount equal to 150 percent of the chargeable rate for the property at the time of such flood event, as adjusted by any other premium adjustments otherwise applicable to the property and any subsequent increases pursuant to this paragraph and subject to the limitation under paragraph (3).

''(3) LIMITATION ON INCREASED PREMIUMS.—In no case may the chargeable premium rate for a severe repetitive loss property be increased pursuant to this subsection to an amount exceeding the applicable estimated risk premium rate for the area (or subdivision thereof) under section 1307(a)(1).

''(4) TREATMENT OF DEDUCTIBLES.—Any increase in chargeable premium rates required under this subsection for a severe repetitive loss property may be carried out, to the extent appropriate, as determined by the Director, by adjusting any deductible charged in connection with flood insurance coverage under this title for the property.

''(5) NOTICE OF CONTINUED OFFER.—Upon each renewal or modification of any flood insurance coverage under this title for a severe repetitive loss property, the Director shall notify the owner that the offer made pursuant to subsection (c) is still open.

''(6) APPEALS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Any owner of a severe repetitive loss property may appeal a determination of the Director to take action under paragraph (1)(B) or (2) with respect to such property, based only upon the following grounds:

''(i) As a result of such action, the owner of the property will not be able to purchase a replacement primary residence of comparable value and that is functionally equivalent.

''(ii) As a result of such action, the preservation or maintenance of any prehistoric or historic district, site, building, structure, or object included in, or eligible for inclusion in, the National Register of historic places will be interfered with, impaired, or disrupted.

''(iii) The flooding that resulted in the flood insurance claims described in subsection (b)(2) for the property resulted from significant actions by a third party in violation of Federal, State, or local law, ordinance, or regulation.

''(iv) In purchasing the property, the owner relied upon flood insurance rate maps of the Federal Emergency Management Agency that were current at the time and did not indicate that the property was located in an area having special flood hazards.

''(B) PROCEDURE.—An appeal under this paragraph of a determination of the Director shall be made by filing, with the Director, a request for an appeal within 90 days after receiving notice of such determination. Upon receiving the request, the Director shall select, from a list of independent third parties compiled by the Director for such purpose, a party to hear such appeal. Within 90 days after filing of the request for the appeal, such third party shall review the determination of the Director and shall set aside such determination if the third party determines that the grounds under subparagraph (A) exist. During the pendency of an appeal under this paragraph, the Director shall stay the applicability of the rates established pursuant to paragraph (1)(B) or (2), as applicable.

''(C) EFFECT OF FINAL DETERMINATION.—In an appeal under this paragraph—

''(i) if a final determination is made that the grounds under subparagraph (A) exist, the third party hearing such appeal shall make a determination of how much to reduce the chargeable risk premium rate for flood insurance coverage for the property involved in the appeal from the amount required under paragraph (1)(B) or (2) and the Director shall promptly reduce the chargeable risk premium rate for such property by such amount; and

''(ii) if a final determination is made that the grounds under subparagraph (A) do not exist, the Director shall promptly increase the chargeable risk premium rate for such property to the amount established pursuant to paragraph (1)(B) or (2), as applicable, and shall collect from the property owner the amount necessary to cover the stay of the applicability of such increased rates during the pendency of the appeal.

''(D) COSTS.—If the third party hearing an appeal under this paragraph is compensated for such service, the costs of such compensation shall be borne—

''(i) by the owner of the property requesting the appeal, if the final determination in the appeal is that the grounds under subparagraph (A) do not exist; and

''(ii) by the National Flood Insurance Fund, if such final determination is that the grounds under subparagraph (A) do exist.

''(E) REPORT.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2003, the Director shall submit a report to the House of Representatives and the Senate describing the rules, procedures, and administration for appeals under this paragraph.

''(h) DISCRETIONARY ACTIONS IN CASES OF FRAUDULENT CLAIMS.—If the Director determines that a fraudulent claim was made under flood insurance coverage under this title for a severe repetitive loss property, the Director may—

''(1) cancel the policy and deny the provision to such policyholder of any new flood insurance coverage under this title for the property; or

''(2) refuse to renew the policy with such policyholder upon expiration and deny the provision of any new flood insurance coverage under this title to such policyholder for the property.

''(i) FUNDING.—Pursuant to section 1310(a)(8), the Director may use amounts from the National Flood Insurance Fund to provide assistance under this section in each of fiscal years 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, and 2008, except that the amount so used in each such fiscal year may not exceed $40,000,000 and shall remain available until expended. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, amounts made available pursuant to this subsection shall not be subject to offsetting collections through premium rates for flood insurance coverage under this title.

''(j) TERMINATION.—The Director may not provide assistance under this section to any State or community after September 30, 2008.''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous material on this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of H.R. 253, a reauthorization of the National Flood Insurance Program. I am pleased that an arrangement this afternoon could be worked out between all of the interested parties so this bill could come up under suspension. We can all agree that this is a fiscally responsible bipartisan piece of legislation.

Floods have been and continue to be one of the most destructive and costly natural hazards to our country. The National Flood Insurance Program is a valuable tool in addressing the losses incurred throughout this country due to floods. It ensures that businesses and families have access to affordable flood insurance that would not be available on the national market. The National Flood Insurance Program was established in 1968 with the passage of the National Flood Insurance Act.

Prior to that time, insurance companies generally did not offer coverage for flood disasters because of the high risk involved. Today almost 20,000 communities participate in the National Flood Insurance Program. More than 90 insurance companies sell and service flood policies. There are approximately 4.4 million policies covering a total of $620 billion. In order to participate in the program, communities must agree to abide by certain hazard mitigation provisions. These provisions include adopting building codes that require new floodplain structures to be protected against flooding, or elevated above the 100-year flood plain. The National Flood Insurance Program is administered by FEMA. It is worth noting that on November 25, 2002, President Bush signed into law the Homeland Security Act of 2002 which brought FEMA under the new Department of Homeland Security.

The NFIP authorization expired on November 21, 2002. Unfortunately, Congress adjourned without extending the program. This situation was quickly remedied in the 108th Congress on January 13, 2003. President Bush signed into law a bill to reauthorize the program for 1 year retroactively to January 1, 2003. This 1-year reauthorization will give us the time necessary to determine how best to go about reforming the existing program.

This is a good day for the National Food Insurance Program and a good day for American taxpayers. I applaud all Members for reaching agreement and give credit to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER), the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), and the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Also, I want to note that a correction was made that was a terrible situation for many people in that if they moved a trailer off a property, they could not take it back in; and they were forced to build expensive, tall walls and it hurt a lot of poor people. That correction was made after 5 years of injustice on that. I urge my colleagues to support this initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased with this legislation and, frankly, with the cooperative spirit that has brought it before us as a suspension. Members may note, there was a change in plans. Originally, we had a unanimous consent agreement to bring this up as a bill with an amendment. We have had conversations. As a result, we have an agreement to go forward with this bill with an amendment. It is a modification that will make the impact a little easier on some people in some areas of the country and will make it in part something of an experiment because we will have to revisit it after a few years, but it will change the essence of the bill.

Our hope is, as a result of the spirit of compromise and flexibility that was shown on this side, when the bill goes elsewhere in this Capitol, there will be a hospitable attitude. There was, frankly, the prospect before that of a possible deadlock between the branches. We believe we have taken a step, well, more than a step, to help avoid that.

The substance is very important, and I want to pay particular tribute to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) and the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER). One is a member of the committee, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER); and one is not, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER), because they took the initiative. Yes, people who have built in areas that are likely to flood should get some help from the Federal Government. The poor old Federal Government gets denounced a lot in general; but in particular, almost everybody finds some reason to want to substitute it for the pure market forces in some cases.

There is a consensus here that the market does not work for some people with regard to flood insurance. Our position was, however, that we were too little reliant on economic factors. That is, we have had a situation where people could build, be flooded, get compensated through a Federal program; build, get flooded, and get compensated through a Federal program indefinitely. Neither in fiscal terms nor from an environmental standpoint was that a good idea.

This bill is an effort, without cutting people off, to reform that situation. It is widely supported by virtually all of the taxpayer groups that worry about what they think is excessive spending, and it is supported by environmentalists. It is something of a compromise. I hope we can go forward with it and see it adopted.

I should note, this program, the Federal Flood Insurance Program, expired last year. The gentleman from Ohio (Chairman NEY) and I collaborated earlier this year and retroactively extended it. I believe it was the first act this Congress took, was to make sure people were protected. No one is indifferent to the fate of these people.

We did, however, say, and I thank the gentleman for his leadership, that we could not simply continue to extend this program. It had to be reformed. The gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) and the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) did us a great service by taking the initiative there. It was supported by the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman NEY) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), who is the ranking member; and that is where we are.

We have now got a further compromise. I understand that is not yet something they have had a chance to review in the Senate. My hope is what we will do, and I believe there is agreement on this, is to pass a 3-month extension in an appropriate vehicle here, which would then be accepted in the Senate. That would give us until March 31 of next year with the program fully in effect to be able to work out in the Senate what we believe we have successfully worked out here, namely, a reasonable compromise. It is in that spirit that I go forward with this.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY).

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) for his leadership on this issue. I certainly share the sentiments expressed by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) regarding the need to really get at reforming this flood insurance program. The 1-year extensions year after year were something that I think grated on a lot of folks, the taxpayer groups and the environmental groups. Had it not been for the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) and the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), we probably would not be here today. I want to give them particular acknowledgment for their efforts to craft a compromise, and it was not easy. We have been through this I do not know how many years.

These two gentlemen have toiled in the vineyards trying to get this legislation passed, and it is a real tribute to their perseverance that we are here today. And I also thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) for his incisive leadership as well, as well as the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) because he was an integral part of forming the compromise that led to a unanimous vote in the subcommittee as well as the full committee and bringing this to the floor today.

This program is vital. We proved that by letting it expire some time for the first part of the year and then came back and made it retroactive as indicated, but we found out very quickly it was incredibly important from a lot of housing groups that we needed to move and move fast. It was, I think, the first bill that was passed in the last year to make up that difference.

This gives us an opportunity to really reform this program in the right way. We hopefully are in a situation where the other body can take a look at this. We would, of course, agree to a short-term extension but at the same time get some assurances that we can really address this problem. There are too many people out there who depend on this program, there are too many taxpayers who have been ripped off over the years by the abuse of this program, and that is what the reform really does.

From the environmental side, from the taxpayer side, this is good legislation, crafted by the committee and made better by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) and his efforts. I want to thank all of them for their efforts. Also I see the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN) who has also been a participant in this and has some very important issues to raise in terms of property values that have arisen in his Houston district. We were pleased to add that language to the legislation as well.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. HOOLEY).

Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation which will take important steps towards reforming the National Flood Insurance Program that will, in the end, benefit taxpayers, the environment, and people who suffer from frequent flooding by improving mitigation programs.

Mitigation is important both in terms of saving lives and in terms of saving dollars. There is a great example of a success in one of the counties in my district, Tillamook County. Five rivers flow into Tillamook Bay, leading to frequent floods during rainy Oregon winters. Realizing the repeated problem with flooding they face, the county and local businesses and residents have stepped up to address the issue. From the earliest days of their participation in Project Impact, Tillamook has been involved in flood mitigation before anyone else knew what that meant, and they have reduced the damages caused by flooding significantly. While floods still come frequently, they no longer cause million upon millions of dollars in damages to residents and businesses thanks to the great work done in Tillamook County. In this regard, I believe it is important to make sure the Federal Government is a partner in these efforts and does not penalize Tillamook and other localities for their hard work. One part of this is ensuring that local communities, who are knowledgeable about the local businesses, are the ones making the decisions instead of a Federal agency like FEMA. Based on communications with the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) and FEMA, local communities will indeed have the decision-making authority under this legislation.

I have spoken with many local governments and civic leaders from Oregon, including mayors, county commissioners, city council members and local flood plain managers. Each have expressed their support for the creation of a better mitigation program to prevent flood damage from ever happening. This bill accomplishes that goal.

I rise in support of the gentleman from Oregon's and the gentleman from Nebraska's legislation and urge my colleagues to vote in favor of it.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN).

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, let me first pay special thanks and appreciation to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) who has worked tirelessly this week to try to find some rational amendment to this bill that made it somewhat better for those of us who represent districts that are literally so low along the coast of this country, mine included. You can imagine living in coastal Louisiana and most of the Cajuns I represent live there, very poor people in many cases who live and have lived there for centuries almost in that same area, to try to make this a little better.

Let me explain the problem that coastal communities face, particularly coastal Louisiana, with a bill like this. First of all, the flood insurance program is kind of special in America. Flood victims are the only ones who are obliged to belong to an insurance program. We do not have an earthquake insurance program. We do not have a fire insurance program for the homes in California that were damaged by these fires. We do not have violence insurance programs for the urban city. What we have is a flood insurance program that we are mandated to join. Unlike the other disasters that strike America, whether it is tornadoes, earthquakes or other fire disasters out West, when those disasters come, this Congress, this government, responds fully to assist those victims through FEMA. In flood-prone areas, we are obliged to put up our premiums in a flood insurance program and that Flood Insurance Program, I am told, has not lost a dime. It is not paid by taxpayers. The flood losses are paid, instead, by the premiums that go into that fund.

Louisiana happens to drain 43 States. Forty-three States of America, from the Appalachians to the Rockies, drain right through Louisiana. Coming from the North are tons of water, coming from the South is the Gulf of Mexico, and we are eroding at 35 square miles a year.

Do we get help? Sometimes, yes, we get some levees built once in a while. Mostly we get resistance from the Federal Government in building levees to protect those poor Cajuns who live in coastal Louisiana. And now comes a bill that says, well, if you're unlucky enough to get flooded too often, you just might have to sell your home to the Federal Government, and then you can't do anything with your property anymore. You have to move out. We got kicked out of Nova Scotia in 1755, and we came to America, and we settled in Louisiana. You are not going to kick us out of Louisiana, not with this bill or any other bill.

What is wrong with this notion is that it penalizes flood victims unlike it penalizes any other victims in America. First, you have to buy the insurance. Second, if you get flooded too many times, the government can take your house because you cannot pay the mitigation. You cannot afford to lift an old family home up 14 feet in the air. Thirty-five square miles of loss in erosion every year. FEMA predicts right now that if the folks who live in New Orleans get hit by a Category 4 hurricane coming through Lake Borgne or Barataria Bay, 27 feet of water in New Orleans. It comes down to luck in some cases. If the storm hits you too often and you get flooded too often, you get penalized under this bill. If you are living in the lowest part in New Orleans, but you did not get flooded yet, the levees have held, you are okay. You do not have to sell your home, you do not have to mitigate, you do not have to pay excessive premiums.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) for helping this bill get better, but it is still a bad bill.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER), one of the main coauthors.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's courtesy in permitting me to speak on this, and I appreciate the leadership that has been shown by the committee, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY), the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), the principal lead sponsor the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) who has been working on this for a number of years.

I am afraid the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) fundamentally misses the point for why we have a flood insurance program. I find no small amount of irony that it was the late Hale Boggs who was one of the first three sponsors of the flood insurance program in 1968 precisely because the people in Louisiana needed a program like this. I have encouraged my friends from Louisiana who were skeptical to maybe look at the facts. It is the people in Louisiana who are actually paying more money, and I wish the gentleman from Louisiana was still here so that we could engage in a little bit of a colloquy at some point, but they have paid more than $200 million in premiums above what they have gotten back. There are a few of the Cajuns who are part of the 10,000 people who are flooded repeatedly, in many cases being paid more than the price of the property value. This bill would help these people. We have in our files correspondence from people who are trapped because of the repetitive flood loss. They cannot sell their property.

This bill, contrary to what my friend from Louisiana says, would not force anybody to sell their property. It would, for the first time, provide adequate mitigation on an ongoing basis so that they would have a choice. They could floodproof the property, raise it if it is cost-effective or they could relocate. Thanks to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN), there is extra provision to make sure that some of these low-income properties are dealt with. One of the problems is that under this program, other people in Louisiana would be paying much higher rates over time to pay for a few repetitive flood loss properties.

Mr. Speaker, I think this bill is coming at exactly the right time. We are going to be able to take care of the 1 percent of the property that is costing thousands of policyholders in Louisiana more than they are putting in, and if we would take the approach of my friend from Louisiana, unfortunately, they would be paying even more in premium while other people are trapped in this repetitive flood loss cycle. This bill signals a higher profile and greater interest in a commonsense solution.

One of the reasons the business community is so interested in it is because it will help make sure that the properties here can be financed. It will make sure that we cut down the long-term burden for 4.5 million policyholders across the country who are paying year after year more money. It is not just the people in Louisiana that are being disadvantaged, but millions of policyholders around the country who are paying higher premiums than are necessary. If we are able under this program to defer just one 10 percent premium increase, it will mean a savings for policyholders across the country of $165 million each and every year on into the future. And there are tax dollars involved here, because there are countless times where the Federal Government steps in with disaster relief. With this program and its mitigation, we will be spending fewer of these tax dollars.

Mr. Speaker, this is sound environmentally, it is sound in terms of economic development, it is sound in terms of helping these people in harm's way, and it sends the right pricing signals. It does not force them out of their home but it says if you are going to stay there, you are going to start paying a little bit more so that the rest of the people in Louisiana and Mississippi and Missouri and Oregon, God forbid, do not have to pay a disproportionate amount unnecessarily. But part of the advantage of this bill cannot have a price put on it. It is going to save lives.

Looking in today's paper, there were three people killed yesterday in Maryland. I do not know what the loss is in Louisiana or Mississippi or Oregon. We have seen them time and time again. This is a proposal that is going to help get these people out of being trapped and I think not just save money but it is going to stop the disruption of business and it is going to save lives. It is right for the environment, it is right for the economy, it is right for the Federal taxpayers and it is right even for my colleague's Cajun friends who are going to end up being out of this flooding cycle and more people in Louisiana are going to save in premium dollars.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, in a calmer, non-Cajun moment, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER).

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I first want to thank the distinguished gentlemen from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY) and (Mr. NEY) the chairman and subcommittee chairman, and the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) for his tenaciousness and support for quite a number of years on this issue. I think I have been working on it approximately 14 or 16 years now, first with Congressman Joe Kennedy of Massachusetts, but in recent years with the help of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER), who has been a partner in this effort and a tireless advocate of reform of the NFIP.

I want to say that the bill is better coming through committee because of the work of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER). He constantly brought issues to me and particular circumstances in his constituency and individually or collectively we worked out solutions which made the bill better. And he has helped today here in the process of addressing a couple of other concerns that I think are helping to make the bill better.

This bill will give FEMA the needed tools to reduce the number of repetitive loss properties which cost the NFIP about $200 million annually. These properties, while comprising approximately 1 percent of the currently insured properties, are expected to account for 25 to 30 percent of the claims paid. The vast majority of repetitive loss properties are receiving flood insurance premiums at a cost that are below their actuarial risk.

As far as the contents, this legislation authorizes two programs which address repetitive loss properties. First, it authorizes a new pilot program. Second, the bill uses FEMA's existing flood management assistance to provide assistance to repetitive claims properties. At the outset, I think it is important to note that no property owner under this bill is ever denied Federal flood insurance except for fraudulent claims.

This Member will give a brief description of these two programs. The pilot program authorizes up to $40 million a year to be transferred from the National Flood Insurance Fund over 5 years for mitigation assistance to severe repetitive loss properties. The pilot program which expires on September 30, 2008, under this legislation addresses these properties in a simple, straightforward manner. The owners of a severe repetitive loss property will be charged something closer to the actuarial, risk-based rates for a progressive period on their national flood insurance policy. That is a change we made just today in response to concerns brought to us.

The first condition is that there has to be a severe repetitive loss property. The second condition is that the owner of the property must have refused a mitigation measure from a State or locality such as an elevation of the structure or buyout of the property. Furthermore, this bill would allow the director of FEMA to reduce the non-Federal cost share under the pilot program from the current 25 percent to as low as 10 percent in any State that has 5 percent or more of the total number of severe loss properties in the U.S.

In 2002, for example, this benefit would be qualified for Louisiana, Texas, New Jersey, Florida, North Carolina, New York. So in other words, the non-Federal share is reduced from 25 percent to as low as 10 percent because these States have a number of these repetitive-loss properties.

So we are trying this new step to accommodate those particular costs. This legislation also allows any owner of a severe repetitive-loss property to appeal and increase to anything approaching an actuarial rate of insurance to an independent third party, and one of the grounds for appeal is that the owner of the property will not be able to purchase a replacement primary residence of comparable value that is functionally equivalent to their current residence.

I think it is important to note the broad coalition of groups which are supportive of the legislation: the Heritage Foundation, the National Taxpayers Union, Citizens Against Government Waste, Taxpayers for Common Sense, the National Association of Realtors, America's Community Bankers, The National Association of Professional Insurance Agents, the Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of America, the Mortgage Bankers Association, the American Bankers Association, the Association of State Floodplain Managers, the American Planning Association, the National Wildlife Federation, Friends of the Earth, the U.S. Public Interest Research Group, American Rivers, The Ocean Conservancy, and the Coast Alliance. And that is a pretty broad coalition.

I want to bring three other things to the attention of the body. First of all, a provision in this bill was deleted which would otherwise have unintentionally provided no Federal disaster assistance to be given to severe and repetitive-loss properties or repetitive-claims properties if the owner refused to accept mitigation. This change was done in our legislation upon the very constructive suggestion of the distinguished gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN).

Lastly, a provision was included in H.R. 253 which was offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN). His provision addresses the issue of the amount of the buyout offer. Under this bill, the buyout offered by the States or locality would be the highest of three differential rates. And, finally, third, we have changed the title to more accurately reflect the reality that in the process of compromise, only one of these two programs has anything to do with two floods.

I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

This bill was introduced by this Member on January 8, 2003. It both authorizes the NFIP through September 30, 2008, and makes essential changes to the program as it relates to the mitigation of repetitive loss properties. The NFIP is set to expire on December 31, 2003. This legislation passed the House Financial Services Committee, as amended, without noted dissent by a bipartisan voice vote on July 23, 2003.

This Member believes that it is important that one final public policy point be made. Under the NFIP, a very large regional cross-shifting of the cost of flood insurance is occurring; the policyholders in nonrepetitive loss areas of the country by their higher than appropriate premiums are subsidizing the policyholders in repetitive loss areas of the country. This bill will give FEMA the needed tools to substantially reduce the dramatic cases of this cost-shifting to other NFIP policyholders.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, we need to stop the very expensive treading through the water of repetitive loss after repetitive loss. Passing this legislation is the right thing to do at the right time. This Member urges his colleagues to support H.R. 253.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN), who came to us earlier and mentioned a particular problem affecting his State and is responsible, with the support of others from Texas, for a very constructive change in this program.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank our ranking member and the chairman of the committee for working with us on this.

The National Flood Insurance Program is absolutely essential for the financial security and quality of life for millions of Americans who live near our coasts and rivers, and it is vital to our flood-prone areas. And I can relate to the gentleman from Louisiana's (Chairman TAUZIN) concern because being a neighbor of Louisiana, we have a problem with flooding too, although we in Texas were not thrown out of Nova Scotia. We were typically run off, though, because we owed somebody in some other State. That is why we ended up in Texas originally.

So I am pleased that this legislation has been changed to reflect a more realistic definition of repetitive-loss properties, four strikes instead of the punitive two strikes in the original legislation.

And my community will also be glad to know that people who refused a buyout for whatever reason will not be denied Federal disaster assistance should they find their lives ruined by a future event.

As for folks who reach the definition of repetitive-loss properties and do receive a buyout offer from the Federal Government, the Bereuter substitute now allows for communities conducting these buyouts to offer replacement values when appropriate.

I want to express my appreciation again to the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Financial Services and the subcommittee and also to the gentleman from Nebraska for their support of this important provision. I also want to note the gentleman from Houston, Texas (Mr. BELL) also assisted in this.

When FEMA came in to do a large number of buyouts after Tropical Storm Allison in Harris County in 2001, which flooded a total of 72,500 homes in Houston, Harris County, we had problems finding money so folks getting bought out could afford another home.

FEMA realized the necessity of replacement value in certain cases in my area and other areas. FEMA had to scramble to find funding from other programs, HUD programs and other sources, which is not ideal.

Some of my constituents, and again I do not have a wealthy area, actually received offers of $12,000 for their property because that was fair market value, which was completely inadequate for them to purchase anything outside the floodplain.

So I am pleased that the legislation incorporates our provision allowing communities to offer replacement value to flood victims when they realize that the fair market value is inadequate and FEMA agrees with that assessment. Without this provision, FEMA would have to deal with more homeowner appeals of buyout offers, and the time and the cost for repetitive-loss buyout projects would increase.

Again, the bill has so many good things about it, not just a typical extension of the authorization. And again I want to thank the chairman and ranking member for working with me on the legislation and being willing to address the needs of the flood victims. I am proud to support H.R. 253.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). The Chair would advise Members the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) has 5½ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) has 5 minutes remaining.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER).

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me this time.

This is very difficult work. I want to start out by stating appreciation to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) for over a decade-long effort. It seems as though a lot of meaningful reforms around here take a decade or better. But he has been persistent, yet very cooperative in reaching agreements that make sense.

It has been difficult work because we have a unique State that is a beneficiary of this program to a great extent over others; but as the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) pointed out, we also make larger contributions than just about anybody else because our people participate. We pay a premium. The premium goes into a bank account. The bank account pays the claim. If we do not have enough money in the bank, we have a line of credit. In the history of the program, anytime a line of credit has been extended, we not only pay it back, we pay it back with interest. There is no other pre-need program of this sort in the country. It does work and provides a valuable resource to hard-working people who live in regions of the country who suffer from persistent flooding.

But we do not defend, and we are not here today to say, that people who abuse the program, who repetitively make claims on the program, who intentionally buy property for the sake of gaming the system, should be protected. And the bill we have before us today, to the gentleman from Ohio's (Chairman OXLEY) credit, to the gentleman from Nebraska's (Mr. BEREUTER) credit, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER), will preclude that practice from being encouraged in the future.

And for those folks who happen to be listening to the debate from back home in Louisiana, there are some assets to this proposal which are very meaningful. When they finally get that designation, if it does occur, there is now a provision for mitigation, a new and unique system, where the government can actually help them. There are many people back home today who are trapped in these properties. They cannot sell them. They are below market value. Worse yet, they may be below in value what they owe on the property because of repetitive claims. Now we have the ability for the government to either buy the property at a reasonable price or to provide a mechanism to reduce the likelihood of flooding by simply elevating the home, and we do that with a new 90/10 program where 90 percent of the money will be provided by the government with the homeowner putting up only 10 percent. It is new landmark assistance that has never existed before.

When we get these repetitive-loss problems off the books, I think the program cash flows very well; and I will continue, as I have pledged to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), who has expressed his deep concerns about where this program might be going, that in the months and years ahead we will continue to work to protect the interests of hard-working people in Louisiana to make sure that equity is the rule of the day. If we are going to write checks and not expect repayment for a California earthquake or a mudslide in the Northeast or a tornado in Oklahoma or a fire somewhere else and say that that is okay to use taxpayer money for that purpose, we have a justifiable reason in this case to say in Louisiana we are paying our way. We think equity cries out that we preserve this program. Ask us to pay the premium, run it properly, and hold others to account the way hard-working Louisianans are held to account, and all will be well with us.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I did want to enter my Russian grandparents in the ''they got run out'' contest, but I will do that later.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to comment briefly because it is hard to get through things very quickly, but one of the things that was in my notes that I wanted to acknowledge was that this bill is a very different bill because of the contribution the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) made. I personally learned a lot about the flood insurance program in a broader context in terms of some of the history, in terms of some of the dynamics and some of the perceptions that we need to build. My good friend from Nebraska mentioned the name change. It is not just symbolic. I think it is something that really reflects a better approach, and it would not have happened without the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER), and I appreciate it.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMPSON).

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I think it is very important that in the reauthorization of the National Flood Insurance Program that we include provisions that are much more forward looking and provide opportunities to communities to avoid catastrophic problems that a little advanced work could, in fact, avoid. A really good example of this can be seen in my district out in the Napa Valley out in California when after the major floods in 1995 that caused about $85 million worth of damages, ruined about 27 businesses and nearly 1,000 residential properties, the community came together, came together and changed the way that we do flood protection, recognizing that we need to build regional programs that will allow us to protect these properties that continually are damaged by flood with somewhat unconventional methods.

The Army Corps of Engineers, resource agencies, the wine industry, the conservation community all came together to develop a innovative flood protection plan for Napa, which includes 100-year flood protection with the creation of a 600-acre tidal wetlands while also protecting the reconstruction of existing structures to prevent future flood damages.

I want to commend everyone who worked so hard on this bill, and particularly the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER), who brought this particular emphasis to the debate. I know that we will all be better off. We will save businesses. We will save residential properties. We will save money, and we will save lives.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST).

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. And I thank all of the Members and the staff that have worked on this piece of legislation because I think fundamentally this brings many disparate Federal programs that are often paid for by taxpayers at cross-purposes into clearer focus.

I want to make three points. One, many taxpayers pay to restore environmental degradation. Taxpayers provide incentives to keep people out of harm's way. Taxpayers pay to provide incentives to degradate the environment under many circumstances. Taxpayers provide incentives to put people in harm's way. What this legislation does is clearly view the problems of disparate Federal programs and provide an incentive to move in the right direction.

The third point I want to make, though, I came from England to live in the Chesapeake Bay. I was run out of England around the time of John Smith. We live in a region where there are a number of storms and a number of people that are in harm's way. Keep in mind my perspective that the Federal Flood Insurance Program, the premiums paid into it fundamentally only pay a tiny fraction of the cost of these problems because we have to pay for the police, the fire department, the National Guard, residences where people must live. So this legislation brings into clear focus the needs of this problem.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remainder of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to again express my appreciation to the people working on this, and I should acknowledge, as others have, we do recognize that Louisiana, because of geography and history, has different problems and I am pleased that we were able, and I understand we were not able to get everybody together, but I think it was a good thing that because of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) and the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), the bill is different than it would have been. They did call to our attention special problems that they have; we cannot always resolve everything. But I appreciate that we were able to move in that spirit.

I also wanted at this point, Mr. Speaker, to say that I know the gentlewoman from California who has been working on this from my subcommittee as well as others has some concerns, and I yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that I am pleased that this bill has been reauthorized for at least 5 years. I want to say that the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) makes a very good point. Reform is always very difficult, and we need to recognize that there are things that fall outside of the traditional thinking about some of these floodplains.

For example, in my own city, in my district, there was flash flooding, the first time it ever happened in the history of the State, and we had this flooding and all of these little homes were damaged, they will not meet the FEMA assessment requirements, and we need to find ways in which we deal with that kind of freak of nature also. So I would like very much to continue to work on this.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentlewoman. Let me say, first of all, she talked about encouraging thinking outside the traditional. For me she has picked a good week in which to do this. I have been spending a lot of time talking about some nontraditional thinking this week in my State Supreme Court on Tuesday. But in the particular issue that she mentioned, that she has alerted us to it, she is absolutely right. The people in her district were hit by some natural disaster that no one could have predicted. We need to have a capacity to help communities respond to the unpredictable as well as the predictable. And I would assure her that it is my intention, now that she has brought this to our attention, to see that the committee addresses that to the extent that we can next year.

I also just want to say in closing, Mr. Speaker, that I am very pleased that we are where we are, but I should reiterate, we are at a point where we are, I believe, going to agree to a 3-month extension of this program. I hope no one thinks that simply by inaction, they are going to be able to coerce us, and I do not mean anybody in this room or who votes in this room; I just do not want anyone to think that inaction will force us to continue to do year-by-year extensions that the chairman had talked about. We made a serious, good-faith compromise here. I believe it ought to be generally acceptable. I hope that early next year, when Congress reconvenes after our recess, we will be able to come forward with this bill with maybe some minor changes and get some further study, and it will become law. I hope that everyone understands that this is our chance to put this on the kind of indefinite footing it ought to be on.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY).

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman from Louisiana (Chairman TAUZIN) for recommending the Louisiana Purchase to Thomas Jefferson. It was a good deal then, and it remains a good deal today. I particularly thank my colleagues, the gentleman from Louisiana (Chairman BAKER), the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman NEY), the gentleman from Nebraska (Chairman BEREUTER), and the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman OXLEY). My friend from Louisiana was very, very helpful in crafting amendments that have been incorporated in the bill to bring some fairness to policyholders that I believe were lacking in the original bill.

I represent Floridians at both the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, and we certainly see our fair share of hurricanes and tropical storms. The base bill would have punished people for choosing to live there. Does the Federal Government discriminate against people who choose to live in the areas that are prone to earthquakes or tornadoes? Of course not. Some people who live in coastal areas should not be punished either.

So reauthorizing the National Flood Insurance Program is extremely important. I would have preferred a cleaner reauthorization, but I am thrilled it is for 5 years. Of course, failure to reauthorize this program would have disastrous consequences to policyholders, as well as to the banking and real estate industry in my State. I thank all for their cooperation, and I look forward to passage of this important legislation.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remaining time.

In closing, I want to thank everybody involved with this bill. I want to mention the supporters of H.R. 253 include National Taxpayers Union, Citizens Against Government Waste, Heritage Foundation, Taxpayers for Common Sense, American Bankers Association, National Association of Realtors, America's Community Bankers, Mortgage Bankers Association, National Association of Homebuilders, National Association of Professional Insurance Agents, Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of America, American Planning Association, the Association of State Floodplain Managers.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NEY. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, the first group the gentleman read, the Heritage Foundation and that group, would you send them a note reminding them where I was on this bill, that I helped on this bill?

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I will do that, and then I will make a phone call too, and if the gentleman wants, we will bring them to his office for a chat.

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 253, which is a reauthorization of the National Flood Insurance Program, introduced by my colleagues Congressmen DOUG BEREUTER and EARL BLUMENAUER.

The legislation reauthorizes the National Flood Insurance Program and reforms it to ensure the availability of flood insurance while reducing the amount of money spent on frequently flooded properties.

H.R. 253 creates a pilot program to mitigate the severe repetitive loss properties in the National Flood Insurance Program and sets up an equitable process for the treatment of policyholders who refuse mitigation. This legislation also uses the existing Flood Mitigation Assistance Program to further mitigate repetitive claims properties.

H.R. 253 authorizes funds to be transferred from the National Flood Insurance Fund into the National Mitigation Fund for both the pilot program and the FMA program for purposes of mitigation.

Mr. Speaker, numerous communities in my district participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, including the community of North Platte, NE.

This community is surrounded by the North and South Platte rivers which merge together to form the Platte River east of North Platte.

The citizens in North Platte have been paying substantial premiums for flood insurance without experiencing the flood events that other communities encounter.

In fact, collectively they have paid over a $1 million in premiums each year, but collected a total of $26,000 in settlements.

While the citizens of North Platte are grateful the program exists in the event that the 100-year flood does come, many residents are upset with the skyrocketing premiums for flood insurance.

A $170,000 home in 1993 would have had a flood insurance premium of over $200.

In 2003, that same property is costing over $1,000 in flood insurance premiums.

Mr. Speaker, I believe this legislation will reduce the number of repetitive claims in areas that are frequently flooded, so communities like North Platte will not continue to subsidize those communities by paying higher premiums.

I ask that my colleagues support this important legislation.

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to this bill.

In these waning hours of the first session of the 108th Congress, it is absolutely true that we need to reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program, which is due to expire at the end of this year. However, this is not the bill with which to do so.

I should note that there is much in this bill that I support. As an example, this bill will offer a multi-year reauthorization, which will definitely help with municipal planning. But, this bill could harm many of my unfortunate constituents in Southern West Virginia who have already suffered so much in flood damage over the last several years. They already have to buy flood insurance, in the first place. Now, their burden is going to be increased, again, under this proposal.

Under the pilot program, which I fear may wind up covering too many of my constituents, this bill will disallow more than four separate claims payments under flood insurance if the amounts exceed $3,000 each or just $15,000 in total. If an individual exceeds these limits, as many of my constituents may, they could be forced to accept mitigation. At worse, mitigation means having to move to a new residence or else face increased insurance premiums that many of my constituents just can't afford.

Mr. Speaker, my constituents in West Virginia who are suffering disaster aren't people who are losing beachfront vacation homes. These are people who are losing their livelihoods. Many of them live in homes built long before flood risks were even known, and their land is sacred to them. For many, their properties have been in the family for generations, and being told that you have to move is not consolation.

Southern West Virginia has suffered massive, unpreventable, and unanticipated flooding since 2001. The U.S. Geologic Survey said the 2001 flooding in the cities of Pineville and Mullens, West Virginia even exceeded the 100-year flood level, the estimated maximum expected to occur in a 100-year period, as the Guyandotte and Tug Rivers rose to record levels. The Governor's helicopter actually had to be used to rescue people off of rooftops.

In McDowell County, we actually experienced two different 100-year floods in consecutive years.

We have even experienced two floods just this week due to the severe weather conditions. The most recent storm damaged more homes and businesses across the region, and caused Governor Bob Wise to extend a state of emergency to 29 counties, many of which are in my district.

Mr. Speaker, I have been working tirelessly with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Appalachian Regional Commission, and state and local authorities to combat our flood damage while seeking to prevent future flooding. I have even worked with the U.S. Library of Congress to replace books, electronic employment, and furniture destroyed at the McDowell Public Library. In addition, we are updating flood maps in the region to be able to better gauge where future flooding would be likely to occur.

But, my constituents can't hold back the weather, and they need relief. Unfortunately, this bill, instead, seeks to limit that relief and maybe even force some West Virginians to have to surrender their dearly-held property.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 253, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OSE). Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XXII, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE).

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we are bringing a motion today on this most important of issues in an effort to give seniors what they deserve, which is a real guaranteed prescription drug benefit under Medicare. Unfortunately, unless we pass this motion, or some equivalent motion, the generation that fulfilled their duties on Iwo Jima, that is The Greatest Generation, will not get a first class double-A rated guaranteed prescription drug benefit under Medicaid. They will get something approaching the flimflam that they have had for so long from the United States Congress.

Mr. Speaker, we are here to offer a motion which will boldly instruct the conferees to cure both a sin of commission and a sin of omission in their plan. Now, let me address those sins of commission and omissions.

First, there are multiple sins of omission from the proposal of the conferees we have heard to date, one of which is their abject and total failure to do anything for America's senior citizens to restrict the incredible rise in drug prices they have been experiencing. And, Mr. Speaker, certain other motions will address that issue. But it is amazing to me that at the moment in time when our seniors are yelling, and justifiably so, about the incredible rise in their drug prices, that not only does this conference report refuse to do anything affirmative about it, it has actually shackled Uncle Sam from doing anything about it and from negotiating better drug prices. That is a sin of omission that other motions have dealt with.

Mr. Speaker, this motion deals with two other fundamental ones that need to be remedied. One is to prevent this conference report from driving a dagger through the heart of Medicare by privatizing this entire system, which this conference report would result in as sure as God made little green apples. And it would do so slowly but surely by this nefarious plan to force every single senior citizen to either accept a privatized system in the morass of the insurance industry, or to accept essentially higher premiums and less coverage. That is a sin of commission.

But there is a sin of omission as well that our motion would cure, and that is the fact that we are not providing adequate reimbursement to physicians, to providers, to nurses, to physical therapists, to oncologists who treat our senior citizens. And as a result of these low payments, as a result of these low payments now in the State of Washington, over 50 percent of the physicians are no longer taking new Medicare patients. Why not? They cannot afford to under the reimbursement rates. And are we fixing this problem in this bill? No.

Over 50 percent of the people in the State of Washington now go to try to get their physicians and they are not being accepted. And, frankly, a prescription drug benefit that does not solve this problem is not going to be a solution to the problem. It does no good to have a prescription drug benefit if you cannot get into a physician to have a prescription written for you. Half the doctors in the State cannot afford to do it right now, because under the Republican plan, in order to fund the tax cuts for Enron, we are adopting measures to screw down Medicare and to screw down benefits over the long term under the Medicare system.

Now, there is a tricky little effort that slowly but surely will accomplish former Representative Newt Gingrich's great dream, which is to see Medicare wither on the vine. And it will accomplish it by saying a few years out from now, people who want to stay in the Medicare system to get a guaranteed benefit would be forced either to go into a privatized system at the whim of the insurance industry or accept less effective coverage from Medicare. How do I know that? Well, I know that because the experts in the field have evaluated it.

Let me just quote two fellows. Henry Aarons of The Brookings Institution, and CBO Director Robert Reischauer, two people who essentially were the originators of the idea of premium support, because in the right circumstances perhaps it would have some justification. They said the GOP plan could result in Medicare experiencing a ''death spiral,'' and said that it is too risky to adopt. And the reason they said that is that the authors of this plan, the people who have been trying to shrink Medicare since it started in the 1960s, and who actually tried to prevent it from starting in the first place, know that under their plan what will happen is that private insurance companies will cherry pick the healthiest among Americans. And as they cherry pick the healthiest Americans, they will leave the sick in Medicare, who will have to pay higher premiums under this nefarious proposal.

Mr. Speaker, this motion will instruct the conferees to come back without that provision, without that little thing that is the poison in this little trap for our senior citizens. That is why we have people calling every single office in Congress urging us not to adopt this for our senior citizens, because they are not going to be snookered by this plan.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. MCDERMOTT), who is a great physician from Seattle.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I only want to make two points. The reason that this is a bad bill is that it does not take into account what is in the common good. The idea of Medicare is that everybody pays into the pot and then, if God forbid you get sick, you take money out to pay for your health care. Everybody in the United States who is over 65 is covered. Everybody gets the same benefits. It does not make any difference where you live, Alabama, Arizona, or wherever, you get the same benefits. And what this bill does is change the basic concept.

What this bill says is we are going to guarantee that you have enough money individually as Americans to go out and buy your own bill. Now, everybody who is 65 and older in this country is not in the same health status, and they are going to get different coverage depending on their health status, depending on where they live, and how much money it costs in their area. Everybody is going to get something different. And the fairness in this program will be gone. Now, that is the first thing that is wrong with this; that we have taken away the idea of a common good, where we take care of each other.

Now, they will say, oh, but you can stay in the old Medicare program. Let me tell you what is wrong with that. What they say is that the old Medicare program has to compete with these private insurance companies. So if you do not want to take your voucher and go out to a private insurance company, you can stay in the old Medicare program. Now, we have already heard my colleague, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) say that the insurance companies, in meeting the enrollment criteria for their program, they will find some way to figure out where the healthy old people are. They are not going after the 95-year-old mother that I have living in a retirement home in Seattle. They will not be going and recruiting her to get into their health care plans. They want to leave her over here with this bunch.

Now, what will happen is the old and the sick will be over here and the young and the healthy will be on this side. And, of course, the costs will be less over here. So if this side has to compete with that side, and the costs are higher, they are going to stick the ones who stay in the old health care, in the old Medicare, with higher premiums. So not only is my mother not going to have the same benefits, she is going to get a higher premium. I, because I am younger and in better shape than she is, will be on this side, and I will get a deal with some insurance company, and I will do much better than my mother.

Is that fair? Is that what we want to do? Do we want to separate out the healthy old people from the sick old people and say to the sick ones, well, you are kind of on your own, folks. Hope it works out. Hope you have some kids to pick up the difference. Because my mother has four kids to help her, but not everybody has four kids to help them. So you are setting up a situation where you are saying to grandma, here is your voucher, good luck.

Vote ''no'' tomorrow.

Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about the Medicare bill that we will soon consider. This is one of the most important bills in the 16 years I have been in the Congress because we are dealing with an issue that is about the question of what is in the common good.

The way Medicare works is, everyone pays money into the pot, and if someone gets sick, then their health care is paid for. So the only people who cost money are those who get sick and need health care.

Nobody wants to get sick, but it's good to know that Medicare is there to take care of us.

But if we allow this Medicare plan to go into effect, the Republicans would change Medicare into a voucher system, where seniors pay private insurance companies to provide them with health care coverage.

And if we use private, for-profit health insurance, we—the government and the taxpayers—are going to pay them money every single month to "cover" our seniors, but not necessarily to provide health care. Because if somebody does not get sick or use health care, the insurance company keeps the money. So the insurance company has every reason to not provide health care and every reason to want to get only the healthiest among us in their plan.

And that will leave us in the situation where we're paying insurance companies to do little, and they will leave the oldest and sickest

Medicare beneficiaries in the traditional Medicare plan.

Now, it gets even worse. Because the Republicans want the oldest and the sickest to pay more. They want traditional Medicare to "compete" with these private insurance companies based on their costs. But we know the insurance companies will get the cheapest people into their plans. They'll advertise at health clubs, at the top of the stairs. They've done this before; they're good at it.

So for those who stay in traditional Medicare, their premiums will go up because the insurance companies will only target and recruit the people who wouldn't use health care. The Republicans will let the insurance companies take just who they want and leave the most vulnerable amongst us on their own.

We already know this will happen, because this is exactly what happened before. Back in 1997, we set up this big program, "Medicare plus Choice". The Republicans believed then, as they do now, that it would be better to break Medicare up into private managed care plans—to put everyone in an HMO. They said it would be cheaper, and better.

Well, we know what happened. Every year since the Medicare Plus Choice plans came into existence, they have pulled out and left seniors scrambling back into traditional Medicare. In 1999, there were about 7 million people in these M+C plans. Now there are about 4.6 million people in these plans. So nearly 3 million seniors have already been abandoned by these private plans.

But the plans were happy to take our money first.

We know the private plans take the healthiest seniors, and we know that these people would be cheaper to insure if they stayed in traditional Medicare.

We know that these very healthy seniors are 16 percent less costly. These are the healthy people the private plans are trying to get. And the insurance companies are making money on them, hand over fist. They are either making a ton of money for doing nothing, or they are so inefficient that they are losing this 16-percentage point spread. Either way, they aren't very good for us.

In their new plan, the Republicans throw even more money to the insurance companies. The insurance companies will be paid even more per person then they already get, probably 10 t0 15 percent more. And we know how these plans operate, they will do their best to get the healthy folks in, the ones they can make money on.

And for those who want to stay in traditional Medicare, the price per person is going to go up, so they are going to raise the premium on anybody who stays in the regular program. This is not thinking about the common good. It is wrong, it is un-American, and it is undermining the whole concept of Medicare.

Republicans have tried for many years to shift Medicare away from a program of real benefits to a voucher program. This time around, the Republicans call this a "demonstration project," they say it will just be a test. But it could involve 6 million or more seniors, and could be expanded to cover the whole country after six years. And this "demonstration" is not something you can volunteer for, or decide not to do—if they pick your city, you're in, whether you like it or not, you're a guinea pig.

Don't be fooled. This is not an experiment, this is not a test—this is the first step towards privatizing Medicare, pushing all our seniors into the private market and telling them to make it on their own. This is not insurance, this is throwing them to the wolves.

The Republican plan to use the promise of much-needed prescription drug coverage in order to push their agenda of privatizing Medicare is just wrong. We can't do this to our seniors. We can't just give them all a voucher and say, "good luck finding coverage, good luck finding something you can afford."

And, just in case you're wondering if this is all, here are a few more things wrong with their Medicare bill:

1. Millions of seniors will lose their existing—and better—retirement benefits. Companies will use Medicare providing a drug benefit as an opportunity to eliminate coverage they currently provide for their retirees. At least 2 million Medicare beneficiaries will lose their current benefit, which is almost certainly better than the scant coverage provided under this plan. This will make these beneficiaries worse off.

2. The drug coverage provided is weak and inconsistent. Seniors will pay a premium of at least $35 a month, and many will pay more into the program than they will get back.

The Republican plan contains a large coverage gap—after $2,200 in total costs, there is no coverage until a senior has paid $3,600 out of pocket, and purchased $5,044 worth of prescription drugs.

This means that of the first $5,000 a person spends, only $1,000 of it will come from their insurance. They will pay $4,000 of it on their own. This is not much of a benefit.

This means that seniors who spend more than $180 per month on medications will have many months in the year when they pay 100% of their drug costs but will still pay a premium every month.

Seniors will only be eligible for drug coverage through private insurance companies that will have wide latitude in setting premiums and deductibles.

Private insurance companies will also be able to make decisions about which drugs are covered, as well as which pharmacies seniors can use.

3. This bill is designed to protect an increase drug companies' and insurance companies' profits.

The pharmaceutical industry will reap about $140 billion in profits over eight years if this bill becomes law.

The bill explicitly prohibits the Secretary of Health and Human Services from negotiating lower drug prices on behalf of America's 40 million Medicare beneficiaries.

And, the bill does not allow Americans to import drugs from countries where prices are lower.

Insurance companies receive tens of billions of dollars in subsidies to take Medicare's business.

We take the risk and the insurance companies take the profits. If insurance companies lose money on Medicare, this bill says we, the government, will pay for it.

4. Their "Cost-containment" measure is designed to hurt Medicare beneficiaries and providers. Under their plan, Medicare's financing will be unstable and under assault. If general tax revenues account for more than 45 percent of Medicare spending, Congress would have to consider cost-control measures. We know this will probably happen by 2016, or even earlier. Congress could reduce benefits, increase beneficiary premiums, raise payroll taxes or reduce payments to providers.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I rise in opposition to the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE).

Mr. Speaker, I would say at the outset, through the Chair, that the only air of omission is that the gentleman's party was in charge so very many years did not see fit to decide that prescription drugs were necessary for our poor seniors. Now, all of a sudden, when the Republicans are doing it, they are taking issue with it.

This motion to instruct, Mr. Speaker, no longer serves any purpose, no longer serves any purpose, since a bipartisan group of Medicare conferees has already reached, as the gentleman knows, reached an agreement that will greatly improve the Medicare program, and most notably through the addition of a long-awaited prescription drug benefit.

In fact, I can assure the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) that the provisions he seeks to strike in his motion to instruct were not included in the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement.

Additionally, the three positions that the gentleman is advocating, insuring that all hospitals receive the large urban standardized rate, that there be a floor on the work component on the physician fee schedule, and that the conference report include increases in reimbursements to physicians, are all already in the conference report.

I have led the opposition to a number of motions to instruct Medicare conferees over the past couple of months; and in doing so, I continually urge my colleagues to allow the bipartisan negotiations that I was a part of to play out. As Members know, these negotiations have run their course, and the result is a bipartisan agreement that is endorsed by a number of organizations, including the AARP.

That is why this motion no longer has any meaning, Mr. Speaker. It seeks to strike provisions not included in the final agreement and direct these nonexistent funds towards provider-payment increases that are already included in a bipartisan Medicare conference agreement.

In fact, the American Medical Association has strongly opposed previous motions to instruct that attempt to move money from patients to providers. In fact, the AMA forwarded me a statement earlier this week in response to a motion which took place, I believe, a couple of nights ago to instruct that said it strongly opposes the Berkley motion to instruct and urges Congress to pass the pending Medicare conference report before we adjourn.

I support reimbursing physicians and hospitals fairly for the valuable services they provide. I have been particularly passionate about fixing the formula that the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid use to annually update Medicare physician payments. In fact, I introduced a bill in late 2001, I believe it was jointly with the ranking member of my Subcommittee on Health, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN), that would have prevented the 5.4 percent cut in physician reimbursements under Medicare that went into effect in 2002.

Physicians were slated to receive another cut, this time a 4.4 percent, if not for congressional action that corrected flawed data in the update formula and provided physicians with a 1.6 percent update for 2003.

However, persistent flaws in the update formula mean that physicians are looking at a 4.5 percent cut next year and further negative updates through 2007. It makes no sense, does it, that we would be cutting payments to our Nation's doctors at the same time their costs are rising. That is why the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement contains provisions that will ensure that physicians see their reimbursements under Medicare increased by 1.5 percent in fiscal years 2004 and 2005. Rather than the 4.5 percent cut, we are talking about a 1.5 percent increase, a 5.9 percent swing.

This will provide Congress with the time that it needs to make long-term reforms to the Medicare physician payment update formula so that physicians can count on predictable, rational payments from Medicare; and it will also avoid a major physician access problem for Medicare beneficiaries.

I would note that a number of organizations representing America's health care providers, including the American Medical Association, the American Osteopathic Organization, the American Hospital Association, and the Federation of American Hospitals, all strongly support the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement.

Mr. Speaker, over the past few months, I have had to listen to an awful lot of rhetoric about how Congress was privatizing Medicare or implementing a voucher system or handing Medicare over to the HMOs. That was not true then, and it certainly is not true now. What the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement does do is improve the Medicare+Choice program and set up a new system that will encourage regional plans to offer seniors another choice besides traditional Medicare.

It is a voluntary thing. Seniors can choose to retain traditional Medicare, something that they are accustomed to, something I would recommend to my parents if they were still alive, retain it and then go ahead and purchase a private drug prescription plan to add to it. It is my hope that this will extend new choices to folks in rural areas who have not had a choice in Medicare before.

The bipartisan Medicare conference agreement also includes a limited pilot project that will test a new system that could help put Medicare on sound financial footing for future generations. It is a pilot program. I think conferees came to a solid compromise. It is bipartisan, and it will help us fulfill our promise to America's seniors, and that is why I am so pleased that AARP strongly endorsed this agreement.

I can attest to the gentleman that a bipartisan group of conferees worked around the clock to reach this compromise. Soon Congress, I suppose tomorrow, will vote on a conference report that will add a new prescription drug benefit that will be available to all Medicare beneficiaries and that will provide seniors with new choices under Medicare and will reimburse our health care providers, including physicians, fairly so that beneficiaries will continue to have access to high-quality care; and I would also throw in at this point that under this bipartisan Medicare conference agreement, as under the original House-passed bill, seniors retain complete freedom to choose a private plan or to remain, as I have already said, in the traditional fee-for-service program. Medicare will continue to offer every beneficiary access to Medicare's defined benefit.

I hope Members will join me in supporting the conference report tomorrow and rejecting this motion to instruct which is meaningless because the conference agreement has already taken place.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STRICKLAND).

Mr. STRICKLAND. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to take a moment and direct a question to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS). The gentleman has said over and over in his statement that this was a bipartisan conference report. I ask a question: Was any House Democratic Member included in the conference negotiations? Were any of the Democrats included in the conference negotiations?

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STRICKLAND. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, every House Democratic Member who showed an interest in having a piece of legislation rather than an issue in November was invited into this coalition. It was bipartisan because there were two Democratic Senators who did have enough dedication who wanted to have a bill who were invited to participate, and I am here to tell Members that their comments and their recommendations probably took up 50 percent of the time over a period of months.

Mr. STRICKLAND. But the gentleman from Florida knows that our appointed conferees were the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), and those three individuals were not included in the negotiations. I do not understand how the gentleman can stand and say to the American people that this was a bipartisan effort. It was not. Our Members were shut out of these negotiations.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) for yielding me time on this important motion. I commend the gentleman for this motion and for his efforts on the prescription drug bill that we have before us tomorrow.

This motion speaks to a fundamental problem that has existed in rural America in particular for many, many years; and coming from western Wisconsin, the Third Congressional District that I represent, I have devoted a lot of my time to try to deal with the inadequacies of Medicare reimbursement that have adversely affected my rural hospitals.

This motion would ask for raising the average standardized amount for hospitals in rural areas, as well as raise the physicians' work geographic index. Why is this important? Well, rural hospitals have been suffering for a long time. Sixty percent of the rural hospitals in my district and throughout the country are not receiving adequate Medicare reimbursement to cover the costs of treating Medicare recipients. Over the last 25 years, we have lost 475 rural hospitals which have gone out of business, partly due to the fact of the inadequacy of the Medicare reimbursement formula.

On average, my rural hospitals receive about 25 percent less than the average Medicare reimbursement throughout the country. This is a serious issue that needs serious attention.

The bill before us tomorrow I feel has a very good provider aspect with it, but the provider aspect is paid for. There are offsets found in the budget in order to pay for that. One of the chief concerns I have with the Medicare bill that is going to come before us tomorrow is there is no cost containment, and these costs are going to explode in future years. As a way of dealing with the rising prices of prescription drugs, one is allowing generics to enter the market on a competitive basis when the patents on brand-names expire. Another is to allow the Federal Government to negotiate prices with the pharmaceutical companies, even though there is specific language in this bill that specifically prohibits any price negotiation. Finally, is to allow the reimportation of FDA-approved drugs in a country like Canada back into the United States, something that many of my seniors in Wisconsin are already doing.

Mr. Speaker, if we are concerned about the costs of this bill, we would implement these practical measures. The easiest thing to do in the world of politics is to pass a bill we do not pay for and stick it to our kids and our grandchildren in future years, and that is exactly going to be the outcome of this bill tomorrow if we do not come to grips with the cost factor of rising medications.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, to respond to the gentleman's statements, the regulatory reform portion of this bill, the electronic prescribing portion of this bill, the medication therapy management portion of this bill, and many of the provider issues were worked out on a bipartisan basis by all of the staffs, even prior to the conference. They were not discussed as part of the conference because they were already worked out. I just wanted to point that out.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, once again we are debating a motion to instruct Medicare conferees. I find it odd that we are doing so after a bipartisan group of Medicare conferees has reached an agreement that has been strongly endorsed by numerous organizations, including AARP and 35 million seniors.

This motion to instruct conferees, as the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) said, like so many that the minority has offered before, serves no useful purpose in this debate. It is a solution in desperate search of a problem. They are simply political tools used in a desperate attempt to divert attention away from the fact that the Republican House will, in a matter of days, deliver on its commitment to providing seniors with access to meaningful, affordable, and comprehensive prescription drug coverage.

Mr. Speaker, I support properly reimbursing physicians and hospitals. The House bill does that, as does the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement, which is why it is supported by a number of organizations, including the American Medical Association, the American Hospital Association, and the Federation of American Hospitals.

I also believe it is a false choice to suggest that we need to choose between properly reimbursing providers and finding a way to ensure Medicare's long-term financial viability, because this bill does both. The AMA agrees with me, and here are some of its thoughts on a motion that was offered earlier this week by the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY).

"The American Medical Association strongly supports passage of the Medicare prescription drug conference report, which currently includes historic and critical provisions for improving choice and access for Medicare seniors and disabled patients.

"In addition, the conference report would halt 2 years of impending Medicare payment cuts to physicians and other health professionals and replace these cuts with payment increases of at least 1.5 percent per year.

"Because the Medicare conference report includes these critical provisions for improving choice and access, the AMA strongly opposes the Berkley motion to instruct and urges Congress to pass the pending Medicare conference report before they adjourn."

Let me just say this, Mr. Speaker. If the gentleman from Washington is serious about wanting to help our Nation's providers, let me suggest and urge to him to reconsider his opposition to medical liability reform legislation, tort reform, such as H.R. 5, the HEALTH Act, a bill that was strongly supported by the American Medical Association. Mr. Speaker, I am sure that the physicians in the State of Washington would be very appreciative of that support.

While we should all be pleased about the fact that we are about to provide our seniors with Medicare prescription drug coverage, I would note for my colleagues that spending on Medicare is projected to nearly double over the next decade just as our baby boomers begin to retire. Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid currently comprise more than 40 percent of the Federal budget. By the year 2030, the General Accounting Office estimates that these three programs, once again Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, could consume 75 percent of the Federal budget if we make no changes and we keep Medicare as we know it. This level of entitlement spending is unsustainable and it will crowd out other essential functions of government. Reforms must be made to ensure that Medicare continues to exist for future generations, the children and the grandchildren that the gentleman from Washington was talking about. As we add a $400 billion drug benefit to a program that already has $13 trillion in unfunded liabilities, we must enact real reforms that will place the program on sound financial footing for the future.

To modernize Medicare and ensure its long-term fiscal viability, the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement will provide for a limited pilot project that will help test to see if the competitive reforms included in the House bill will help to ensure the long-term viability of this program. Under the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement as under the original House-passed bill, seniors retain complete freedom to choose a private plan or remain in the traditional as we know it fee-for-service program. Medicare will continue to offer every beneficiary with access to Medicare's defined benefit.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement which we will soon consider on the House floor. This motion to instruct no longer serves any purpose and the gentleman from Washington knows that. Indeed, the provisions relating to Medicare competition that the gentleman references in his motion are not even part of the final conference report.

I urge my colleagues to join me in rejecting this motion to instruct and supporting in a bipartisan fashion the final Medicare conference agreement.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I appreciate the gentleman's advice, but we take it with not great credence from a group that have run us up into a $500 billion deficit because of their fiscal irresponsibility. So I appreciate the gentleman's advice, but I do not think it is going to have a lot of sway with the American people from a group that has given us the largest deficits in the universe's history.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN).

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I thank the gentleman from Washington for yielding time.

Mr. Speaker, night after night we come down here. We talk about Medicare. I hear my friends on the other side of the aisle over and over say that of course they care about Medicare, that they believe in it. I know the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) does, because I have worked with him regularly. But I also know that his leadership does not. All you have got to do is look at the Republican history of Medicare. In 1965, when Medicare came in front of the United States Congress, when the creation of Medicare happened and President Johnson signed it, July 1965, only 13 out of 140 Republicans in this body voted to create Medicare. The other 127 voted no. Gerald Ford voted no; Bob Michel voted no; John Rhodes voted no; Bob Dole voted no; Senator Strom Thurmond voted no; and Donald Rumsfeld voted no.

The first time in these years since 1965 when the Republicans actually could weaken Medicare, they tried to.

Newt Gingrich, the new Speaker of the House in 1995, the first thing he did was proposed to cut $270 billion from Medicare in order to give a tax cut to the most privileged people in this society. Speaker Gingrich said, ''We don't want to get rid of Medicare in round one because we don't think that's politically smart, but we believe it's going to wither on the vine.''

Bob Dole, who had been around 30 years earlier to try to defeat Medicare, bragged to a conservative group in 1996, ''I was there fighting the fight trying to stop Medicare from happening.'' They are not the only ones. JOHN LINDER told the House Rules Committee he did not like Medicare because it was a Soviet-style program. Dick Armey, former majority leader, said he did not like Medicare. He said, ''It's something you wouldn't have in a free society.'' And Bill Novelli, the AARP CEO, wrote a preface to Newt Gingrich's book calling him a big idea person because of his efforts to privatize Medicare. Bill Novelli, making $700,000 a year working for the insurance company that we call AARP. AARP has made, according to the Milwaukee Journal and Capital News Services, literally $100 million a year from insurance sales, that organization. Sure they endorse this bill because that organization is going to make tons of money in the insurance business.

But the fact is my friends on the other side of the aisle simply do not like Medicare. They voted against its creation and every single time they have had a chance, they have done what they could to cripple it. They cut its funding, they try to privatize it, they take options away from seniors, all in the name of choice.

Mr. Speaker, the Inslee motion makes sense. Support the Inslee motion to instruct.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS).

Mr. BURGESS. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, once again this was a bad motion earlier this week, it was a bad motion last week, it is a bad motion this week, and now it is irrelevant. It is irrelevant because the Medicare conferees have come to an agreement on these provisions. In fact, the final conference agreement does not even contain the Medicare competition provisions referenced in this motion.

The Medicare conference agreement has been endorsed by a number of organizations that would be directly affected by this motion to instruct conferees, such as AARP, the American Medical Association, and the American Hospital Association. So while the minority continues to try to score political points, and in fact they are just trying to scare people, the House is on the cusp of delivering a Medicare prescription drug bill to our Nation's seniors.

However, in the best interest of today's debate, let me describe what this motion intended to accomplish. It directs conferees to strip out important competitive reforms in the House and Senate-passed Medicare bills and redirect the funds toward increasing reimbursements for physicians and hospitals. This House certainly understands the importance of properly reimbursing physicians. That is why, unlike the Senate, the House included a provision that will provide physicians with positive payment updates in 2004 and 2005. This provision is included in the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement. While this is not a permanent solution, Mr. Speaker, it will provide Congress with the time it needs to make long-term, substantive changes to the Medicare physician payment update formula.

The bipartisan Medicare conference agreement also increases reimbursements for physicians practicing in rural areas as part of the most robust Medicare rural package this Congress has ever considered. Finally, the conference agreement will ensure that all hospitals receive the large urban standardized rate which means billions of dollars in additional funding for our Nation's hospitals.

Mr. Speaker, it is not lost on me that the supporters of this motion are attempting to portray this as a choice between HMOs or doctors. It is a false choice and they know it.

One of the aspects of the conference report that will be presented later this week that I find particularly attractive is the enactment of health savings accounts, a far cry from yesterday's HMOs. But do not take my word for it. We were very fortunate today to have the president-elect of the American Medical Association here on Capitol Hill, Dr. John Nelson, an OB-GYN like the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY) and myself. The American Medical Association last week when this motion to instruct was offered yet one more time said they strongly support the passage of the Medicare prescription drug conference report which currently includes historic and critical provisions for improving choice and access to America's seniors and America's disabled.

In addition to increasing Medicare reimbursements to our Nation's physicians, the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement also provides seniors with more choices under Medicare and will begin to test some long-term competitive reforms that will ensure that Medicare is available and on sound financial footing for generations to come. That is an important point. Let me stress it. Ensure that Medicare is on sound financial footing for generations to come. I want to emphasize that neither the bipartisan Medicare conference agreement nor the House-passed Medicare bill would ever require that Medicare beneficiaries leave traditional Medicare.

A traditional Medicare will have a new patient prescription drug benefit available to its beneficiaries. Anyone who says otherwise either does not understand this legislation or prefers to avoid the facts.

Medicare conferees have worked through some very difficult issues. We owe them all a debt of gratitude for what they have done. They have produced a consensus agreement that this House will vote on later this week. The time to offer irrelevant, meaningless motions to instruct is over. The time to provide America's seniors with a Medicare prescription drug benefit is now. I urge my colleagues to vote ''no'' on the motion to instruct.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

When this premium support kicks in, no senior in America will have any choice about the matter. You will be subject to a provision that you will have to pay more money out of pocket when the HMOs take the healthy people into the private sector and leave the rest of our senior citizens in the more expensive Medicare pool. The group that said that last July was the AARP which said it will require beneficiaries to pay even more out of pocket. One hundred percent of Medicare recipients will be subject to this provision. You have no choice whatsoever. And everybody in this Chamber knows it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I have noticed as I sat here tonight and throughout this debate some contradictions in the arguments from the other side which has not been unusual in my short time here. We hear a lot about privatization. We hear a lot about how the free markets need to work. But I am a little confused when we want to free-trade pharmaceuticals. The same day we were sitting here passing free trade agreements with Singapore and Chile, we refused to free trade pharmaceuticals with Canada, to lower the prices here. The same day. Actually, it was early into the next morning. I am wondering where all the capitalists and free traders were for that vote. Now, we have pharmacy benefit managers who for the private insurance companies will be allowed to negotiate down the drug prices. But we are tying the hands of the Secretary of Health and Human Services and explicitly say he is not allowed to negotiate lower drug prices.

These are complete contradictions in the argument. We hear about smaller government and free trade is great and we need the private markets to work, we need to be able to allow the free markets to work, and they are not working because they are not allowed to work if somehow they are going to improve this program and allow the government to be able to run a program that will benefit all of the seniors who will be eligible. People think they are going to wake up and get a Christmas gift this year, and they are going to find out in the end they are going to get coal in their stockings.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute to respond to a point just made by the gentleman from Washington regarding premium support because that was the point. I am reading from the AARP endorsement, this insurance company as it was referred to a few minutes ago:

AARP is pleased by the improvements made to the conference report in recent days. A new structure called premium support—their words—which required competition between traditional Medicare and private plans was downsized to a limited test starting in 2010 which has significant protections—their words—significant protections for those in traditional Medicare.

I should think they would know at least as much about this as many of you gentlemen over there do. The government will provide coverage in areas where private plans fail to offer coverage. The integrity of Medicare will be protected.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. WHITFIELD).

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I am glad that we are having this debate this evening on such an important topic as Medicare. It is quite obvious that this bill is not an ideal bill. There are shortcomings in this bill. But this Congress for 5 or 6 years has been having discussions about providing a prescription drug benefit for senior citizens, and that is precisely what this legislation does.

The previous speaker talked about the importance of being able to reimport drugs from Canada. If we pass this bill, those seniors who need it most are not going to have to be concerned about the cost of medicine because if they want to, and the option is theirs, they do not have to, they can stay with the Medicare program they have today; but if they want to, they can come into this program, and if their income is 135 percent of the poverty level and below, they do not have to pay a monthly premium to participate. They do not have to pay any deductible to participate, and their only out-go would be a $1 co-pay for a generic drug, a $3 co-pay for a brand-name drug, and they can reimport all the drugs they want to; and it is not going to be less than that. So they are going to be better off under this program than they would be worrying about reimportation of drugs from Canada.

If they are 135 percent of the poverty level and higher, instead of paying a $1 co-pay, they are going to pay a $2 co-pay. Instead of paying a $3 co-pay for brand names, they are going to pay a $5 co-pay for brand names. And I can tell the Members, the 35 counties that I represent in rural western Kentucky, the senior citizens there are going to be delighted with this bill because most of them are going to be able to walk away and not pay a premium, not pay a deductible, but have a prescription drug program that they can afford. It is not the ideal bill. There are some shortcomings. There is no question about that.

I would also like to make this comment about this argument about privatization, which I think is frequently used to scare senior citizens, and I understand that. We all like to play that game. But I think it is important to know that under the existing Medicare program that has been in effect for all these years, HCFA already contracts with private companies in all 12 regions of this country to administer the program. So we are already dealing with private companies. There is nothing unusual about that. But it does sound good if they want to try to scare senior citizens. But overall I think this bill is a good beginning.

And I would make one other comment, although I certainly do not agree with Newt Gingrich on everything, but people always talk about his comment of letting it wither on the vine. He was not talking about Medicare as a program. He was talking about HCFA, the entity that administers Medicare; and if people talk to any health care provider in this country, whether it be a physician, hospital, whatever, they will complain and express concern about the bureaucracy at HCFA on reimbursements, on all sorts of issues. I have had more than one town meeting in my district with health care providers complaining about the bureaucracy at HCFA. Obviously, HCFA is trying to do a good job, but Newt Gingrich's comment was simply about trying to modernize it to provide a better program, more efficient program, more productive program with a faster reimbursement for health care providers.

So, Mr. Speaker, I know it has been a difficult chore, and I know that the Democrats on the other side have contributed to this program. They have worked to help us devise a program that is a good starting point, and I think this is a good starting point, and I think the thing that really tells the story about this program, about this bill that we probably will be voting on tomorrow, is that the AARP, which is the premier senior citizen association in the country, is now endorsing this bill, it is my understanding. So I hope that we will vote against the gentleman from Washington's motion to instruct, and I hope that tomorrow we can pass this bill and provide our seniors with a prescription drug bill that they will be able to afford.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

AARP, that is the organization that also endorsed the catastrophic drug plan some time ago, that, when seniors found what was in it, rampaged and forced this Congress to repeal it. And, yes, seniors are concerned about this, and that is why they are calling us by the score in every one of our offices, and no doubt in yours too, because they understand when we tried to do this privatization experiment in the State of Washington for these profit-driven insurances companies that come in, tens of thousands of people without coverage were left without coverage when they left a year and a half later. It did not work. It is an experiment that already failed, and we are doing it again because people want to have Medicare wither on the vine.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. UDALL).

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) for his leadership on this motion to instruct, and it is badly needed because we can see from the other side how the deceptions flow out. We are hearing over and over here again about a bipartisan conference. The fact of the matter is, and they know it, that we were locked out of the conference. Absolutely unprecedented. Democrats locked out and a secret agreement crafted, which we most of us have not even seen yet. We have not seen it. But it is going to be rammed through despite the fact it is supposed to sit on the table here for 3 days at a minimum for us to study.

But this is a bad bill. It is a bad bill for seniors, and it is a bad bill for the future of Medicare. The key thing that a prescription drug bill should do is get control of the cost. This bill does not get control of costs in any respect. In fact, it has a prohibition in the bill that specifically says the Department of Health and Social Services, the agency that runs Medicare, cannot negotiate with the drug companies. I will bet the drug companies love that provision.

Also the House of Representatives passed a reimportation provision. Reimportation allows us in the United States to bring in the cheaper drugs where they are safely manufactured. But they did not want that in the bill; so they junked that also. So there is nothing in this bill to control costs, and we are headed down a road of creating a program which is going to bankrupt our grandchildren.

The only way, the only way we are going to get control of costs is allow the government, allow the government to negotiate. With that, let me urge all my colleagues to support the very wise motion of the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE).

Mr. Speaker, I rise today with great disappointment in the conference agreement that has been brought to the floor. I sincerely hoped that the bill that passed the House in July would have been moderated with provisions included in the other Chamber's bill.

Unfortunately, instead of considering legislation today that would have modernized the Medicare program to provide prescription drug cost relief and coverage for seniors throughout this great Nation, we have this agreement that is geared toward dismantling one of the most successful government programs ever implemented. Instead of considering legislation to modernize the Medicare formulas to fix the inequities between rural and urban areas, we are considering an agreement that wraps these crucial fixes in with a prescription drug benefit that is designed to achieve the ideologically extreme goal of privatizing Medicare.

I will certainly admit that the provider package included in this agreement is excellent. For years doctors, hospital administrators, and other health care providers have suffered under the unfair Medicare formulas that severely hampered their ability to provide care to Medicare beneficiaries. The labor share revision, the geographic physician payment adjustment, equalizing the Medicare disproportionate share payments, increasing home health services furnished in rural areas, critical access hospital improvements—these are all incredibly important provisions that I strongly support in order to help strengthen the health care system in rural areas. The physician fee formula update is another provision that is incredibly important. Without this fix, physicians will have no other choice but to stop seeing Medicare beneficiaries, which will lead to the total breakdown of a system that is already badly strained to its limits.

I recognize the importance of these provisions. I understand the difficulties that those in the health care industry are facing. I understand the difficulties seniors are facing in trying to purchase and pay for their medications. That is why I have cosponsored legislation to fix the disproportionate share provisions, I have cosponsored legislation to fix the Medicare physician payment updates, I have written letters supporting these provisions and urging Chairman THOMAS to include these rural fixes in the legislation, I have written a letter to conferees asking them to retain these provisions, and, when this bill passed in July, I voted in favor of the Democratic alternative that not only included stronger rural provisions than those included in the Majority's bill, but also contained a real prescription drug benefit—not a benefit engineered to bring about the demise of the Medicare program.

Let's be clear about what our goal was supposed to be. We were supposed to create a new prescription drug benefit in Medicare. That's what we were supposed to be doing with this important legislation.

Unfortunately, we are doing much more than that, and a lot of it is terrible. We were supposed to be reducing the costs of drugs for seniors. Yet this plan prohibits the federal government from using its clout to force down the price of medicine.

We were supposed to help seniors keep their current drug coverage if they are fortunate enough to have it. Yet this plan may force up to three million seniors out of their current employer-based plans.

We were supposed to be strengthening the Medicare program by adding a voluntary benefit for prescription drug coverage. Yet this plan, under the guise of a premium support demonstration, weakens the Medicare program by forcing beneficiaries to pay more for Medicare if they don't give up their doctor and join an HMO.

We were supposed to help low-income seniors who get additional assistance from Medicaid afford their prescriptions. Yet this plan not only forces 6 million low-income seniors to pay more for their medications, but also imposes an unfair assets test that disqualifies seniors if they have modest savings.

We were supposed to be providing a prescription drug benefit that would ease the cost and emotional burden seniors face in dealing with medication purchases. Yet this plan leaves millions of seniors without drug coverage for part of the year due to the $2800 gap in coverage.

Mr. Speaker, I am extremely disappointed with this agreement. I am disappointed because what should have been a straightforward approach took a wrong-turn along the way. I think this is a terrible way to spend $400 billion dollars on a supposed prescription drug benefit, and I will be forced to vote against this measure. I urge my colleagues to reject this shameless assault on Medicare.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from Washington for yielding me this time, and I thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) as well.

There are several points that I think are very important this evening. I have heard the words, and I guess it was not ridiculous, but I heard the fact that this is an outdated motion, it is unnecessary, it is without timeliness. I beg to differ with my colleagues. If we can do anything to educate the American public and our colleagues who may not be here this evening about the failures and the fallacies of the legislation that we might see tomorrow, Mr. Speaker, if we could pass a real guaranteed Medicare prescription drug benefit and as well provide for our private hospitals and our doctors, this legislation would be passed 435 to zero. If we could actually do what we have debated and argued for almost 10 years through the Clinton administration and now the Bush administration, there would be no need to have a motion to instruct.

But, Mr. Speaker, I stand here tonight because there is little time to educate our colleagues as well as the American public because tomorrow we will have 632 pages that will never have been read and that will be forced down our throats and we will be asked to vote for something that truly will destroy Medicare as we know it.

We will be asked to give $12 billion to the HMOs without any explanation. We will be asked to tell the government that they cannot negotiate lower pharmaceutical prices, drug prices, for the Medicare program. What an outrage. We will be telling the government to spend all the money that is needed and not require it to get the best deal. We will not be giving the hospitals, all of the hospitals, the kind of moneys that they need as it relates to reimbursement. We will not be doing what the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) has asked for identification payment.

We will, in fact, not allow seniors to reimport drugs where they have been doing it all along. And in actuality, to my good friends at AARP, and I consider them my good friends, I thought it was called now the "American Association of Rich People," I would say to them the reason why they have 35 million members is because in 1965 President Johnson passed Medicare to give an extended life to those seniors who are now living.

So what this bill will do tomorrow when we vote on it is it will eliminate the sickest of our seniors, the oldest of our seniors, and the calculation is that by 2006 those seniors will be dead. So we will not to have to worry about them.

This is a bad bill; and to the American public, no matter how long we are on this floor, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) for his leadership. We are educating 35 million AARP members. We will tell them the truth that this is a bad bill and the only reason they are still alive to have an AARP card is because we passed Medicare in 1965.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STRICKLAND).

Mr. STRICKLAND. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me this time.

I continue to object to my friends on the other side referring to this as a bipartisan bill. They know that no Democratic Member of this House was allowed to participate in the negotiations.

And it is your bill, and you are going to have to live with it. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), our representatives, were shut out; and you ought to recognize that. I think it is intellectually dishonest to refer to it as a bipartisan bill.

This bill was written by the pharmaceutical companies. Let me give the Members an example of why I say that. Two days ago, Secretary Thompson and the two Senators that participated, the Democratic Senators, met with the Blue Dogs in this House; and in that meeting they were asked why there is specific language in this bill that prohibits the Secretary from negotiating cheaper prices for our senior citizens. And one of those seniors spoke up and said it is in there because PhRMA insisted that it be in there.

Think of that. I hope the American people are paying attention, because this bill was written for and by the pharmaceutical companies and, sadly, my friends on the Republican side are supporting it, and they are going to have to live with it. I have gotten over 100 calls in my office today; only two of them have been in support of this flawed bill.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would remind the gentleman through the Chair that I am not sure what his definition of bipartisanship is, but a few years ago, we had a tort reform bill on the floor, and the most elderly Member in terms of service of this House had the bill on that side. He had one Republican cosponsor of that bill and continually, continually harped on it being bipartisan, bipartisan, bipartisan. I should think that two United States Senators, two United States Senators, I think one, maybe both ranking members of the appropriate committees, two out of 12 would be considered every bit as bipartisan as one out of 435.

I would also, additionally, remind the gentleman through the Chair that in addition to the other areas that I said that have been worked out on a bipartisan basis by all of the staffs, there were the Hatch-Waxman reforms and the reimportation and whatnot, and the gentleman from Michigan's (Mr. DINGELL) staffers were at every one of certainly the Hatch-Waxman reforms and the reimportations, as I understand it.

The point was made regarding the catastrophic. If memory serves me correctly, I believe I voted for that bill. How many of us, 400-some of us did. It turned out to have been the wrong thing to do, but 400 some. Bipartisan? My colleagues better believe it. I would suggest that if the gentleman were here at that time, he probably would have been part of the 400 and some that voted for that particular bill. That was a mandatory thing. This is voluntary. That was mandating on these people. This is voluntary.

I would just finish up my comments, Mr. Speaker, by reminding the people over there through the Chair of the AARP endorsement. AARP believes that millions of older Americans and their families will be helped by this legislation. Though far from perfect, the bill represents an historic breakthrough and an important milestone in the Nation's commitment to strengthen and expand health security for its citizens at a time when it is sorely needed. The bill will provide prescription drug coverage at little cost to those who need it most: people with low incomes, including those who depend on Social Security for all or most of their income. It will provide substantial relief for those with very high drug costs. It will provide modest relief for millions more.

It also provides a substantial increase in protections, protections for retiree benefits and maintains fairness by upholding the health benefit protections of the Age Discrimination and Employment Act.

The gentleman from Ohio who most recently spoke talked about some sort of a meeting which was held with PhRMA. I really do not know about that. I do not deny it took place. But I will tell my colleagues that there was a meeting held in the last couple of days where AARP appeared with the two Democratic Senators, and they wrote many of the provisions of this bill. I would not call this an AARP bill, I would not call this a Republican bill nor a Democratic bill. It is a bipartisan bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We have tremendous respect for the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS). But what we are saying is the seniors of the greatest generation simply deserve better than this bill, and we ought to be capable of doing better, so that we do not have a bill that is too little and too late, we believe both.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. INSLEE. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman, they deserve better. I agree with the gentleman, it is not perfect. But I would simply say to the gentleman that it will help an awful lot of seniors in the meantime. In the meantime, it will help a lot of seniors. The alternative is zero.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, we believe the alternative is a real Medicare prescription drug plan which we Democrats have offered and voted for.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I too have a lot of respect for the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS), and he has been very helpful in letting the issue of uterine fibroid research be heard, and I thank him for that.

But I have to differ with him on a few things, and one of those would be we are discussing this prescription drug benefit like it is going to happen tomorrow. I want seniors, if the bill passes, to understand it will not happen until 2006, so we are clear on that.

Mr. Speaker, I had a town hall meeting for my seniors and what they said to me is, they wanted a prescription drug benefit that would be fair, that would be guaranteed, and that would be affordable. I have been talking and talking about how I want it to be fair, guaranteed, and affordable and, as I review this bill, it is not that.

I am here talking on a motion to instruct because as a new member of the Committee on Ways and Means, I thought that my ranking member would have a chance to be in the meeting. Now, the reality is, the Democratic House Members were not included. We went to a meeting with the chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), and he said, only those who are Members of the willing, or however the heck he described it, get to come to the private meetings of the conference committee. Our conference folks would get invited to the official meetings of the conference, but they would not be invited to the meetings where things that were accomplished in this bill were included.

History taught me that there is a Senate and then there is a House of Representatives and, true, those two Senators sat down with the Republicans, and they call it bipartisan, but they are not my Senators. We stand up as Members of the House, and we are entitled to participate in the process.

Mr. Speaker, I had Tom Scully in my district because I am truly concerned about what is happening in health care, and he came in and talked to my hospitals, and my colleagues heard what the hospitals said, and they got more money. And the doctors sat with Tom Scully, and my colleagues heard what they said, and they got more money.

My son Mervin is 20 years old and he uses the term, ''I ain't mad.'' And I ''ain't mad'' at the hospitals that they got money to be able to provide services. And I ''ain't mad'' at the doctors because I thought they should be paid more. But I am mad because my seniors are not getting what I thought they were entitled to, which is a guaranteed, affordable benefit. There is a gap in coverage, there are all kinds of things. I am running out of time, but I am here to speak on behalf of the 11th Congressional District. I ain't voting for this bill, and I ain't mad.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has the right to close, as I understand it. I have no further speakers, so I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remaining time.

I want to express my respect for the leadership of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) on organ donation issues, which is an important matter as well. We appreciate his leadership of trying to improve the access of organs in organ transplant procedures. So we agree on quite a number of issues.

But I think we agree on a goal perhaps and not a direction in that he has indicated that he believes seniors do deserve better. And we believe seniors, in the bottom line of this debate, deserve better than this proposal for a couple of fundamental reasons. Reason number 1: this short-term, extremely modest potential benefit that may potentially help a few seniors includes the seeds of destruction potentially of the very foundation of their health care that this Nation has come to embrace since the early 1960s, and that is Medicare. In the premium support provision, which sounds like innocuous language that is in the bill, it is in the bill, and we all agree on that; it will be in bill. We do not know what page, because nobody has read this. It is going to be hundreds of pages and nobody will have read this probably until we are forced to vote on it less than 24 hours after the bill is passed; but nonetheless, that little innocuous provision carries the potential of the seeds of destruction of the guarantee of the Medicare program.

The reason I say that is it will, ultimately, foist on every senior, whether they want it or not, if it is implemented, under this bill, to face a situation where they will have to pay more and have less coverage than those in the private plans. And since the private insurance companies are extremely adept at marketing, they can have all kinds of bells and whistles to lure the healthiest people into their population, leaving the sickest in Medicare, those most in need of security and peace of mind, leaving their premiums to skyrocket and Medicare to go into a death spiral, as the analysts have predicted.

I am getting to a certain age; I am not as old as my dad and mom who I love dearly, but I think aging is tough enough. American seniors should not have to worry about the loss of the guarantee of Medicare. We should pass a Medicare prescription drug program that we have suggested on this side of the aisle, and work with my Republican colleagues to pass a true bipartisan bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Alabama). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to instruct.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 2989, TRANSPORTATION, TREASURY, AND INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2004

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendments to the bill H.R. 2989 be instructed to recede from disagreement with Senate Amendment 1928 (relating to the provision of $1,500,000,000 for grants to assist State and local efforts to improve election technology and the administration of Federal elections, as authorized by the Help America Vote Act of 2002).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XXII, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) and a Member of the majority each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this motion to instruct conferees.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Before I begin, Mr. Speaker, I want to take a moment to acknowledge the great work of so many Members to make election reform a reality in the 107th and 108th Congresses. First, the American people owe a large debt of gratitude to the Democratic whip, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), and the chairman of the Committee on House Administration, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY). Without them, the Help America Vote Act never would have passed and the possibility of $1.5 billion in 2004 would never be possible.

I also want to acknowledge the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. ISTOOK) and the ranking members, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) for their commitment to funding the Help America Vote Act. I would like also to thank the Black Caucus and the Hispanic Caucus and specifically, the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN), the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT), the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), the gentleman from Florida (Mr. JIM DAVIS), the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. CORRINE BROWN), the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MEEK) and his mother, former Representative Carrie Meek, and many more, such as the gentlewoman who just spoke, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES), and countless Members here in the House who were instrumental in getting us where we are today.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to offer this motion to instruct conferees on H.R. 2989, the Transportation, Treasury and Independent Agencies Appropriations bill. This motion instructs House conferees to accept the provision from the Senate-passed bill providing a total of $1.5 billion in election reform assistance to States and local communities.

When the House considered this legislation last month, it appropriated only $500 million. Since Congress passed the Help America Vote Act, States, including my own, have struggled in implementing the requirements of the new election laws, largely because Congress has not fulfilled its financial commitment.

In 2003, the Congress provided only $1.5 billion of the $2.16 billion that was authorized for that year. $830 million of that amount has yet to reach the States. And while the Help America Vote Act authorized $1 billion for fiscal year 2004, the House only appropriated half of that amount. In contrast, the Senate-passed bill appropriates $1.5 billion, covering the full fiscal year 2004 authorization as well as making up for a significant portion of last year's funding shortfall.

Mr. Speaker, I am aware that the current draft of the Transportation-Treasury Appropriations conference report includes $500 million for election reform. That is for the whole United States. I am also aware that a possible agreement exists to provide additional election reform funding in the omnibus, perhaps as much as $1 billion. One of the reasons I highlighted the $500 million for the whole United States, the State of Florida has funded $200 million. And that is substantially 40 percent of the total amount that we did for the whole United States. However, what I am not aware of in this measure is why the majority is unwilling to fund all $1.5 billion in the proper spending measure. The majority has stated that the budget does not allow for an additional $1 billion. And the President will veto anything over the already agreed amount.

The reality is, Mr. Speaker, the majority is going to violate the budget agreement when it passes an omnibus in 3 days or whatever day it is that we leave here with the $1 billion in the bill. Every penny appropriated in the next 4 days or the final days of this portion of the session is going to be spent in fiscal year 2004 regardless of what bill we included it in. The budget is going to go bust. So if we are going to bust it, at least fund something which will benefit all Americans.

Next week I am scheduled to travel to Maastricht, Holland, and on to Moscow in my capacity as vice president of the organization for security and cooperation in Europe's parliamentary assembly. I will represent the United States as an observer to the upcoming Russian elections.

While I am certainly honored by the task, the irony of the situation is striking. Imagine an elected official from the United States, Florida, advising another country on how to run its elections. Perhaps the OSCE ought to be sending election monitors to the United States. In fact, I plan to invite them to do just that next year.

Realize, when I attend the international meetings of the OSCE, America's ability to conduct fair and reliable elections is often mocked. Parliamentarians from around the world question our election results while Americans are faced to deal with the harsh and unfortunate reality that the Supreme Court may be the only place in the Nation where votes actually matter.

We are spending billions of dollars to bring democracy to Iraq and Afghanistan. Yet we are hesitant about spending $1 billion to protect our own. Congress must continue to strive to identify methods and practices to encourage and increase participation in America's electoral process. As a country, we must work toward a day where fairness and transparency are manifest in our elections process and cut-throat politics are forever overwhelmed.

Fully funding the Help America Vote Act is the next step that Congress must take to ensure that we never again find ourselves questioning the methods by which we choose our leaders.

In approving my motion to instruct, the House will send a clear message that it supports funding a fair and reliable election system in America, no matter what it costs. I ask for my colleagues' support.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), distinguished whip and my good friend, who I earlier noticed in my remarks. But for him and the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman NEY), this measure would not have passed.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for yielding me the time.

I rise in strong support of this motion to instruct. I would add, Mr. Speaker, however, that I appreciate his giving me and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY), the chairman of the Committee on House Administration, credit. We worked hard on this.

Mr. Speaker, this was the most bipartisan bill in the last Congress. But substantial credit is also due the Speaker of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT), as well as Republicans in the Senate, Senator MCCONNELL, Senator BOND, and Senator DODD. It was, in my opinion, an example of how the Congress ought to work. We sat down together, we talked about the problem, and we tried to solve it.

In 347 days, on November 2, 2004, the American people will again go to the polling places. And every State in this Nation will exercise the most fundamental right in any democracy, which is, of course, the right to vote. And when they do, they will be reminded of one of the most painful episodes in American history, the disenfranchisement of an estimated 6 million Americans in the election of November 2000.

Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, we have a moral obligation to ensure that the election problems that plagued us 3 years ago and which undermined this great democracy in the eyes of the world, and indeed in the eyes of many of our citizens, will not be repeated. That is precisely the point of this important motion made by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS). It instructs the House to recede to the $1.5 billion in spending for election reform in fiscal year 2004 called for by the other body.

Mr. Speaker, I mentioned the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT). I also want to mention the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. Without the gentleman from Florida, we would not have received the funding of approximately $1.5 billion that we included in last year's bill. But in the HAVA, the Help America Vote Act, we promised the States that they would receive assistance from the Federal Government to achieve the reforms we felt essential.

That bill, proclaimed as the most important election reform legislation since the adoption of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, established minimum Federal standards for Federal elections. Properly funded HAVA will improve the security and accuracy of this Nation's election and registration system and prevent a repeat of the 2000 debacle.

Despite HAVA's enormous promise, however, States have had considerable difficulty implementing the law's requirements because Congress provided only $1.5 billion of the $2.16 billion authorized in fiscal year 2003. In other words, Mr. Speaker, we are over $600 million behind as of this date.

HAVA also authorized $1 billion for this year. However, the House only appropriated $500 million in the Transportation-Treasury bill. Recently, the other body, in a bipartisan way, added a billion dollars to the transportation bill which already included $500 million. This amount not only fully funds HAVA at the fiscal year 2004 authorized level, but it also covers the shortfall from fiscal year 2003.

This motion should attract the support of every Member of this body. It is consistent with the numerous pledges made by the Speaker, the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG), the White House, and this Congress in a bipartisan way.

Through HAVA, Mr. Speaker, we can make sure that the States have resources to make election reform a reality. And we can restore the public's confidence in our election system. We must do so. And this motion calls upon us to effect that end.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, let me say that I talked to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, and I have talked to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY). It is my understanding the administration has pledged to include in the 2005 budget the $800-plus million left on this Congress's pledge to the States to ensure that every American not only has the right to vote but every American is encouraged to vote, every American is facilitated in casting their vote, every American will have an opportunity to check that they voted correctly and that every American's vote will be counted accurately.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), my good friend from Houston.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished proponent of this motion, and I recognize the journey that we have traveled in getting to this point. Let me acknowledge both the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) on working with so many of us in the Congressional Black Caucus, Hispanic Caucus, members of the Democratic Caucus, and members of the Republican conference on a concept that every single vote of every single American must count.

I believe that this is a very important motion because I think it has potential. It is a motion that would give the broadest of consensus by both Republicans and Democrats, that it is important to fully fund the legislation that allows and provides an opportunity for local communities and State communities to be able to ensure that every vote is counted. Election reform was long overdue.

And certainly the crisis of 2000, where millions of voters were denied both access to the voting polls, some who were racially profiled and kept away from voting, students who were intimidated and told that they could not vote, and individuals who were charged with being convicted felons when they were not and therefore denied to vote. That was a scenario in the State of Florida, but Florida is not the only example.

Time after time when there is an election, we find that there are individuals who have been denied the right to vote. This past election in Houston, Texas, I traveled to many polls, local municipal elections, to come upon instances where many of our voting officials did not have all of the knowledge of the law, turned people away, did not understand the process of an affidavit where you would allow people to sign an affidavit, thereby being allowed to vote. So we know that voting resources or election resources are extremely important.

And one factor that has never been fully addressed, the question of whether or not there is a paper trail for the new electronic voting, is a question that is raised in many local municipalities, and I believe that we should address it. This full funding of about $1.5 billion, I believe, will help, I do not want to say complete the story, but it will put us on the right journey to make the journey that we started an effective one by ensuring that our State and local governments in particular will have the resources as we approach the 2004 very important Presidential elections.

So I rise today to support this motion to instruct because we are on the eve of those Presidential elections, now four years later. Most would wonder how time has flown, but it would be, I guess, an undermining of the commitment we all made after 2000, Republicans and Democrats alike, if we could not see, by 2004, a full funding of this legislative initiative so that as we approach the Presidential elections, the primaries, in fact, every single State in this union and every local municipality would not have as an excuse for denying an American their right to vote, the lack of resources, the lack of trained voting officials, the lack of equipment, the lack of the knowledge of the law, and certainly no matter what color you were, how your history started in this Nation, whether or not your voting rights were enhanced only in 1965 with the Voting Rights Act of 1965, whether or not you have just become a citizen, every single American would know in their hearts and know by the laws that guided them that we had the resources to ensure that their votes were counted.

I thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for his leadership on this matter for bringing this very instructive, very vital and very important motion to instruct to our colleagues. And I ask my colleagues in unanimity to vote for this motion, so that we would have a successful instruction to be able to provide for those who want to vote.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) and to make the further comment that he has been extremely instrumental in causing us to get this far.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my good friend and colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) in support of this motion to instruct conferees. He has been an outspoken advocate for improving our Nation's election systems and voting administration, and I thank him for his leadership. I also thank my good friends, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for their consistent support and unwaivering dedication to the issue of election reform.

Mr. Speaker, just over a year ago, I joined a group of my colleagues as the President signed into law the Help America Vote Act. The result of more than a year of hard work and bipartisan cooperation, the legislation was called the first civil rights legislation of the 21st century because it ensured that all Americans could participate fully in our democracy by being guaranteed the fundamental right to vote. I am particularly pleased that the legislation contained groundbreaking provisions to make our Nation's polling places and voting equipment accessible to people with disabilities. This change will enable millions of Americans to cast a ballot independently for the very first time in their lives.

At the signing ceremony, President Bush said that thanks to the reforms contained in HAVA, ''the Federal Government will help State and local officials to conduct elections that have the confidence of all Americans.''

Well, Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, we have yet to reach that level of confidence because we have not provided sufficient resources to implement the law. States are eager to enact HAVA's reforms but they lack the funds promised to them. Congress provided only $1.5 billion of the $2.16 billion authorized in fiscal year 2003, and the House included only $500 million of the $1 billion authorized for fiscal year 2004. The Senate approved $1.5 billion in its version of the Transportation-Treasury bill, which will meet this year's shortfall. I joined the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) in organizing a letter to conferees to endorse the Senate funding levels, an effort that garnered the support of 60 Members, and I am pleased to continue that more here today.

In the 1990s, as Secretary of State of Rhode Island, I led the effort to upgrade our State's voting equipment, and I know firsthand the benefits that modernized election systems can have on voter turnout and civic participation. I encourage my colleagues to support this motion to instruct so that we can realize the vision of the Help America Vote Act and restore confidence in our Nation's elections.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank my good friend, the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) for his comments and my thanks for his extraordinary work on behalf of America and all of us. And I apologize for the faux pas. I guess I had the primary on the brain and did not recognize the great State of Rhode Island but no offense was meant.

Mr. Speaker, I did not offer this motion to instruct to rehash the 2000 election debacle. We have plenty of opportunity to do that in 2004. But I did offer the motion to highlight and remind Members of the commitment that this body made last year to reform our country's election system. I offered this motion so that the thousands of my constituents and others around the U.S. who were demonized, demoralized and disenfranchised after the 2000 election can go to bed tonight knowing that Congress is serious about ensuring their votes are not only counted but actually count.

I have already introduced the next generations of election reform in the form of the Voter Outreach and Turnout Expansion Act. The VOTE Act allows no excuse absentee voting, requires early voting opportunities, not less than 3 weeks prior to the general election day, requires adequate notification to voters who submit incomplete voter registration forms by mail, treat election day as a Federal holiday, and provides leave time for private employees to vote on Election Day.

These are the ideas of the present, and we task ourselves in making them the realities of the future.

Mr. Speaker, States are eager to implement the improvements required by the law, but they have insufficient resources to meet these goals. Today, we will reaffirm our commitment and appropriate the necessary funding to the Help America Vote Act that Congress guaranteed to States last year.

A dependable and reliable election system remains the linchpin in the integrity of our democracy, and we have no choice but to protect it. I urge my colleagues to vote yes on this motion to instruct.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Alabama). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to instruct.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

The motion to instruct was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

SENIORS DESERVE BETTER PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, last night I took a special order, and I talked about what seniors are going to pay under the new Medicare prescription drug program if it is passed in its present form; and I understand it is coming out of committee just a little bit different than that we said last night, but the end result is the same. They are changing the annual deductible from $275 to $250, but the seniors will be paying 25 percent of the next $2,250 minus the annual deductible. So the seniors for $1,500 in coverage will be paying $1,170, and that is not well known by most of the seniors with whom I have talked. And then there is a doughnut hole which goes up to $5,100, and seniors will pay an additional $2,850 with no coverage for that.

That means seniors up to $5,100 under the new prescription drug benefit will pay $4,020 and the government will pay $1,500.

Now, that is not what I think seniors are expecting. I think they are expecting coverage that is much broader than that; and I think they are going to be very unpleasantly surprised when they realize that they will be paying a tremendous amount of money for very small amount of coverage.

Now, above the $5,000 level, the catastrophic health care benefit kicks in, and that is 95 percent of that. But the average senior pays about $1,800 year in prescription drug costs, and they will not reach that level. There will be very few that reach that level. So most seniors, if they pay $5,000 for their prescription drugs in a given year, the average senior, they will pay $4,020 and the Federal Government will pay $1,500. I think they will be very angry when they find out that is the case.

I believe we should pass a bill that takes care of those who are uninsured, who do not have prescription drug coverage. Right now, 76 percent of American seniors have some form of prescription drug coverage. And the program that we are talking about in most cases is going to give them less coverage than what they already have. Now, the 24 percent of the seniors that do not have coverage, we should deal with them. We should help them. Those who are indigent, those who have health problems where they cannot get coverage, we need to take care of those. But those who are already covered, I do not believe our government should start taking care of.

The cost of this program is estimated to be somewhere around $400 billion over 10 years. I have another chart which I am not bring forward right now, but it shows what happened with Medicare. Medicare when it was passed in 1965 cost $3 billion. Two years ago in the year 2001, Medicare cost $241 billion. That is an 80 times increase.

It went up 80 times since 1964. The Medicaid program which we passed in Indiana under duress started out, we thought, costing a few million. We estimated a top figure of $20 million. It has cost well over $1 billion just for Indiana's share, and it has gone up about 70 times since 1969.

Anybody who thinks that this donut hole is not going to be a big issue to seniors is sorely mistaken, in my opinion; and I believe that they will demand that this donut hole, this $2,850 that is not covered, will shrink. When that happens, there is going to be a tremendous increase in the cost of this program. I believe the $400 billion price tag for 10 years is very low. I believe it will be more than double that, maybe up to $1 trillion over 10 years, but only time will tell.

The other thing that really concerns me is we are paying $70 billion to American industry so that they will not dump their retired employees on the Federal Government program. The fact of the matter is I believe long term the businessmen and industrialists in this country are going to say we do not know what Congress is going to do tomorrow, and they are going to start dumping their employees on the Federal program anyhow; and when that happens, the retirees are going to see the program that they are under with their previous employer go out the window, and they are going to be put on the government program.

Their coverage right now under their retired benefits with their previous employer is probably much, much better. In fact, I am sure it is much better than what they are going to get on the Federal program, and so the $70 billion buyout or payout they are going to give to industry I do not think is going to stop the dumping of employees on to this program out of independent industrial programs that are covered by private industry and companies.

I think it is very realistic to believe those people will be put on the government program. So that is another cost that will be added to this program over the next 10 years.

This is an open-ended entitlement. The floor, the floor is $400 billion. There is no ceiling. They will tell you there are some cost controls in it, but the fact of the matter is there really will not be, not over the long period of time; and the ultimate result of this is going to be an entitlement that is going to be like Medicare, like Medicaid. It is going to be out of control. It is not going to provide the benefits that the seniors anticipate, and I think they are going to be very, very angry.

So I would just like to say to my colleagues, tomorrow or the next day when we decide to vote on this bill, think about what the seniors' reaction is going to be. In 1988 we passed a catastrophic health care bill. Only 11 Members, as I recall, voted against it. I was one of the 11, and 1 year later we repealed it because the seniors were so angry when they found out what was in it. I think they are going to be angry with this bill as well, and I hope my colleagues will take that into consideration.

DISAPPOINTMENT AND OUTRAGE OVER RECENT RULING OF FCC

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to express my disappointment and outrage with the recent ruling by the Federal Communications Commission deeming the use of obscene language acceptable on television. Last month, the FCC ruled the use of what has been termed the "F word" in a live interview was not inappropriate, and its use in this case was deemed acceptable. While I understand this FCC ruling addresses a specific instance, I strongly caution my colleagues to the dangerous precedent that this ruling sets.

This profane word has long been deemed inappropriate by American society and consequently has not been permitted on broadcast television and radio, and its use factors into movie ratings. However, with this recent FCC ruling, we are opening the door to a whole new world of what is deemed acceptable for television audiences.

I ask my colleagues, then, what are our standards? Where do we draw the line? If the use of this expletive is appropriate in this one instance, what is to deter additional uses of it in similar instances, and at what point does it remain inappropriate?

Again, I urge my colleagues to tread carefully and be mindful of what this ruling means for the future. We are sending the children of America mixed signals about what is decent behavior when we make exceptions to our standards, and I certainly do not think that we need to further complicate the complex period of childhood and adolescence.

Mr. Speaker, I ask then, why do we even have an FCC if they are not going to uphold rules of decency? Why do we even as a society even make laws if they are not going to be followed? Turning a blind eye to this assault on decency will do a great disservice to America and damage the integrity of our airwaves.

Mr. Speaker, the American public is currently under siege in their own homes. Every day, the Internet brings unsolicited and inappropriate material into the household through the dissemination of pornography. Our e-mail accounts are flooded with pornographic spam, making it necessary to utilize various controls and software to protect our children from being exposed to such obscene material.

I am encouraged by the Attorney General's efforts in combatting this problem, specifically the recent increased number of prosecutions for adult obscenity and pornography. Additionally, my colleagues in Congress are actively working on language to curb spam solicitations and to further protect Americans from unsolicited e-mails. In doing so, we will stop not only those annoying advertisements but also keep indecent images out of sight of our children. It is through such efforts that we are able to take important steps against the onslaught of sexual offenses that so often stem from obscenity and pornography.

The common decency of America is being tested, as little by little we are broadening the definition of acceptable and decent behavior. It is imperative that we now pause to carefully examine the decisions being made today that will ultimately impact the accepted standards of tomorrow.

PRICE AND AFFORDABILITY OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EMANUEL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, this week we will be taking up the prescription drug bill, and what I find interesting, a number of us on both sides of the aisle have worked on the issue of bringing the cost of medications down to a level that our grandparents and parents could get the medications they need at the prices they can afford.

There are three ways to address the issue of price and affordability. One is through the issue of market mechanisms and free markets, allowing competition, people to buy their medications in Canada, Italy, France, Germany, having it brought into the United States at the prices where they are 40 to 50 percent cheaper and bringing that competition to bear on the price of medications. We have a closed market as it relates to pharmaceutical products. We are not allowed to have competition. Therefore, Americans pay the highest prices in the world. If we brought competition in, medications like Lipitor, Zocor, seeing what we see all over on our TV would be at the same prices that people in France, Germany, Canada, and England are paying at a 40 to 50 percent discount of what we see in our corner grocery store.

The second way we would bring prices down would be to allow the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Republican former Governor Tommy Thompson, to negotiate and create a Sam's Club out of Medicare. Like all the Sam's Clubs throughout the country, using the power of 41 million seniors, we can negotiate lower prices and bring bulk and the purchasing power of our seniors down. That is what a Sam's Club does. That is what everybody does and the private insurance business does.

This legislation prohibits the free market from operating, prohibits Sam's Clubs from being created under Medicare and also does a very weak job of allowing generics in the market to compete at a generic price versus a name-brand price.

In these areas we could get competition, bring the prices down to an affordable level so our parents and grandparents could afford the medications they need whether that be blood thinner, cholesterol medication, medication for their heart. In each area, Members of the Republican Congress in this body and the other body chose to ignore the free market and chose to keep prices artificially high here in America.

This is not only unfair to the seniors. What is worse, it is unfair to the taxpayers. I think we owe the common courtesy and decency to the taxpayers to get them the best price rather than the most expensive and premium price that they are paying today. If we are going to borrow $400 billion in the largest expansion of an entitlement in over 40 years, do my colleagues not think we owe the common courtesy and decency to the taxpayers to get them the best price, not the premium price?

Today, Americans pay the most of any industrialized country for pharmaceutical products. Yet on each of the areas, market access and competition, bulk purchasing, or in generics, the conference took a punch. I understand why. I am not naive to politics. I understand who benefits.

There was an article in The Washington Post showing that the pharmaceutical industry would garner $132 billion in additional revenue from this legislation, and who do my colleagues think is going to give that $132 billion? Our parents, grandparents, and the taxpayers. That is the way the system works, but in each of these cases we could have done something to lower prices and make the needed medications more affordable and more accessible, and we chose not to.

That is why I am opposing this legislation. It does nothing to affect the price of prescription drugs that on average has gone up 15 to 20 percent a year as the cause of inflation. Prescription drugs are one of the single reasons for the rise of inflation in health care in general. We could do something to affect the prices of medications and we chose not to.

I think it is important to know, as somebody whose life was saved by types of medications, what the pharmaceutical industry does is very important. The research they do is very important. We Americans are the leaders in the world in new pharmaceutical research, and the reason is because the pharmaceutical industry here in the United States is the beneficiary of the generosity of the taxpayers. The research and development tax credit, all the research and development of new medications, life-saving medication is paid for by the taxpayers.

SUPPORT FOR THE CONFERENCE REPORT ON THE MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG AND MODERNIZATION ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight in support of the conference report for the Medicare Prescription Drug and Modernization Act. Tomorrow, this body is poised to pass historic legislation that will provide millions of seniors access to a responsible and affordable prescription drug benefit. Almost 40 years ago, a promise was made to seniors, a promise that they could depend on Medicare for affordable, reliable, and quality health care.

With passage of this conference report, we will achieve numerous goals that will strengthen the current Medicare program and will protect the most vulnerable seniors. Low-income seniors and those with extremely high prescription drug costs are given specific consideration.

While at the same time bringing much-needed fiscal relief in the overall cost of prescription drugs to all seniors, by adding a voluntary prescription drug benefit and modernizing the program to give seniors more choice in their overall health plans, Congress has an opportunity to improve the quality of health care being provided in the Medicare program for millions of seniors.

As a Member that represents a rural district, I am also very pleased with many of the rural provider provisions contained in this report. Under this legislation, unequal payments for equal work will no longer be status quo for rural America's health care providers.

Hospitals are important to rural communities for three reasons. First and foremost, they provide health care services for the residents. Second, hospitals are an economic engine in rural communities, and in my district they are the first or second largest employer, providing good-paying jobs. Third, hospitals are an economic development tool. Without adequate access to health care, it is difficult for a community to retain and attract businesses. A strong health care system is vital to the strength and stability of any community.

I am also pleased that this conference report also contains a provision to establish health savings accounts. This will help not only seniors but all Americans to better afford their health care. Health savings accounts will allow individuals to save, grow and spend their hard-earned dollars tax free for necessary out-of-pocket medical expenses. These accounts will go a long way in helping to make health care more affordable for families and individuals of all ages.

Mr. Speaker, when I first ran for office 3 years ago, I committed myself to working toward adding a prescription drug benefit in Medicare. I am pleased to support this conference report which I believe will move Medicare into the 21st century, and I urge all my colleagues to do the same.

CASTRO SEEKS TO KILL PEACEFUL CUBAN DISSIDENT DR. OSCAR ELIAS BISCET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I try to come to this floor every week to highlight the existence of the individual cases of political prisoners on an island only 90 miles away from the United States, thousands of political prisoners, thousands upon thousands. Tonight, I speak of perhaps the most, or certainly one of the most respected of the political prisoners in the enslaved island of Cuba, Dr. Oscar Elias Bisect.

Dr. Biscet, prisoner of conscience, declared a prisoner of conscience by Amnesty International, is an extraordinary man. He maintains a philosophy of nonviolence, and yet his nonviolence has been responded to continuously by the violence of what is without any doubt a gangster regime run by the gangster in chief, the totalitarian tyrant of Cuba.

Now, Dr. Biscet was sentenced to 3 years in the Cuban gulag. He was sentenced in 1998 to 3 years in a Cuban gulag. When he was released last October, October of 2002, he was out of prison only a few weeks when he was rounded up again and sentenced this time for ''association with enemies of the State,'' and he was sentenced, along with over 75 other peaceful dissidents and independent journalists, to 25 years in the Cuban gulag.

A few weeks ago, they told Dr. Biscet that he was going to be placed with a serial killer, someone who was a common criminal and who had murdered many, many people. He objected to that. As a consequence of his objection, Dr. Biscet has been placed in what is called the tomb. He is underground in solitary confinement, in a punishment cell. And so that he fully understood the dimension of his punishment, a serial killer was placed along with him in the tomb. So Dr. Biscet is at this moment in a tomb in the Cuban gulag because he believes in freedom and democracy, and he has espoused support for Mahatma Gandhi and for Martin Luther King and the peaceful methods to achieve the change that those great leaders represent.

The question I ask this evening, the one question which begs to be asked of our colleagues, is how can they come here time and time again to this floor and in the other House to ask for measures that would provide additional revenue to that dictatorship; some of them after having received one of the 8-hour or 10-hour banquets that the Cuban dictator likes to offer to his friends, they have come here and been zealous advocates for someone who they consider so charming, so admirable, so intelligent? In fact, one of our colleagues was so impressed with the Cuban tyrant when Castro told him that his shoes were dirty, that he should shine his shoes, that he melted in admiration before the charming tyrant, who has such interesting comments, this tyrant who maintains thousands of men and women in the gulag because of their support of men and women believing in freedom and democracy.

Another question is begged, Mr. Speaker: Where is the free press that we enjoy in this country and in the international community and in the community of democracies? Where are the reporters, the members of the media who are talking about what is happening to Dr. Biscet? Is there not an elemental, an elemental duty and responsibility to talk about these facts by the free press? There is. They know it, and they are failing in that elemental duty.

EXCHANGE OF SPECIAL ORDER TIME

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take the time of the gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

MISTREATMENT OF CUBAN POLITICAL PRISONER, DR. OSCAR BISCET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to draw attention to the continued plight and mistreatment of political prisoners locked in Cuban jails, and obviously joining with my colleagues from Florida, and I thank also my other colleague from New Jersey, specifically paying attention to Dr. Oscar Biscet.

I have spoken on numerous occasions here on the House floor of the crushing campaign Castro waged against the Cuban pro-democracy movement earlier this year. Over the course of a few weeks in late March and early April, Castro's regime arrested an array of political opposition leaders and pro-democracy advocates. Inside of a month, the dissidents were arrested, arraigned, tried, and sentenced.

Dr. Biscet, already in state custody at the time, was tried in tandem with the other dissidents, and in April was sentenced for 25 years for ''serving as a mercenary to a foreign state.''

Dr. Biscet is a 42-year-old physician. He is President of the Lawton Foundation for Human Rights. He is a well-known follower of Ghandi and Martin Luther King, and is heralded for his religious and civic leadership. Just last week, on November 11, at Prison Kilo Cinco y Medio, Dr. Biscet peacefully protested with six other political prisoners the cruel treatment given by prison authorities to the family of another fellow prisoner during their scheduled visit. Fearing that Dr. Biscet was becoming a leader among the other prisoners, he was transferred the next day to another maximum security prison in the province of Pinar del Rio, called Kilo 8.

In Kilo 8, Dr. Biscet has been confined in a punishment cell that he has referred to as a dungeon with another prisoner who has committed 12 violent criminal assaults, a blatant attempt to put Dr. Biscet's life in danger. His wife and parents traveled to Kilo 8 this Monday, November 17, for their assigned family visit. When they arrived, prison authorities informed them that Dr. Biscet was punished for 21 days without family visits. They told his family he is currently being confined in a cell with no sunlight that literally measures four feet by four feet. They told his family that he had been denied food supplies and toiletries and is without writing or reading materials.

Upon hearing this news, his mother required medical attention from the prison staff due to a sudden rise in her blood pressure and the horror of her son's living conditions. Mr. Speaker, compelled by circumstances and the persistence of Dr. Biscet's wife, prison authorities allowed his mother to see her son, but only for 10 minutes. Dr. Biscet asked his mother to alert international public opinion, since he had broken no prison rule, and they were forcing him to share a cell with a violent criminal intentionally placing his life in danger.

So I join my colleagues here on the House floor to inform Congress and the American public of the inhumane treatment of Dr. Biscet. I ask all my colleagues to join us here on the floor and to demand the unconditional and immediate release of Dr. Oscar Elias Biscet and all those prisoners whose only crime is a desire for basic human rights. We must send a strong message to Castro that his abuse of Cuban political prisoners has not gone unnoticed and will not be allowed to continue.

DR. OSCAR BISCET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise with my colleagues today in support of one of the most courageous men of peace on the planet today, an advocate for freedom, Dr. Oscar Biscet. A long-time human rights activist and pro-life doctor in Cuba, Dr. Biscet had already spent some 3 years, unjustly, 3 years in Castro's gulag for speaking out against the death penalty in Cuba and for calling for the release of all political prisoners.

After his release, Mr. Speaker, in the fall of 2002, he remained undaunted by his oppressors, Castro and the brutal thugs who run his regime, and continued to attempt to peacefully organize human rights' supporters. Dr. Biscet was redetained with 16 other dissidents after they attempted to simply meet in a home in Havana to discuss human rights last September. Just think about that, my colleagues, just simply meeting, gathering together, and in come the thugs to take you away.

When police prevented him from entering that home, Dr. Biscet and others, just like Dr. Martin Luther King, sat down in the street and protested, uttering slogans like "long live human rights," and "freedom for political prisoners." For that, he received a draconian 25-year prison sentence in April. That was during the same time when there was a massive crackdown that Amnesty International pointed out, reminiscent of what happened during the early years of Castro's brutal regime when massive numbers of people were arrested and given long prison sentences, many of those, 75 of them, some of the bravest and brightest in Cuba today: Independent journalists and democracy activists, who now themselves languishing in prison.

Mr. Speaker, while reports of Dr. Biscet's actions in prison continue to be heroic, and the word does get out, this is a man of conscience, a man of courage, the reports of his mistreatment, however, have been equally horrific. He is heroic; the mistreatment is horrific. For months, we know that he has endured solitary confinement for refusing to wear the prisoner's uniform. He has lived with insufficient light, and now no light at all, no running water and no bed. His benign and peaceful protest on November 11 on behalf of the cruel treatment of another prisoner, even though he is suffering so much, Mr. Speaker, he speaks out and tries to lend a hand to other prisoners who are being mistreated, for that he was moved to a punishment cell, as my colleagues have pointed out, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART), who spoke so eloquently a moment ago, to a cell known as the dungeon.

This man, this peaceful man, this Martin Luther King of Cuba is now languishing in a dungeon, a small confined area with no light. He has been put into a prison cell, this dungeon, with a man who on 12 different occasions has committed assault.

I remember during the years of Nicolae Ceausescu, the brutal thug in Romania, what he used to do. He would put people who committed crimes in with peaceful activists, political prisoners, and political prisoners of conscience with the hope and the thought that these men of violence would commit violence against these peaceful activists, and God forbid that that happens. We will continue to speak out, and, hopefully, nothing will happen as a result of this emplacement of this thug in with Dr. Biscet.

Let me just point out to my colleagues that in the spring Dr. Biscet, and this just shows the heart of this great man, stated "I am innocent of the charges for which I was condemned, which is why I will maintain my ideological position. A true man cannot betray himself, so I can only appeal to the living God and pray to our Lord. And he is not neutral and never abandons his flock." What a faith. Here is a man crying out from prison, praying to God above, asking that he not be forgotten in a way that is reminiscent of our Lord when he said, why have I been abandoned? Well, in this case he is saying despite his ordeal that God will not abandon him.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot abandon him, and that is why we are speaking out and speaking out so strongly tonight. We cannot allow this prisoner of conscience, and there are hundreds, as the gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART) said so ably earlier, hundreds who live likewise in Castro's gulag. His wife, Elsa Morejon, has said his crimes are honoring the universal declaration of human rights: Opposing abortion and the death penalty and organizing civil rights movements through nonviolent civil disobedience to reclaim the rights of fellow Cubans that he believes are being violated. For that, 25 years being mistreated and being treated in a way that we would not even treat our animals.

Let me just conclude, Mr. Speaker. After months of brutal treatment, his health is very poor. We have to speak out. There are Members who take to the floor here and say we need to have an expansion of travel and trade and the like. Well, not until these individuals, starting with Dr. Biscet, are released. Otherwise, the blame and the crime of complicity rests at your doorstep.

EXCHANGE OF SPECIAL ORDER TIME

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take the time of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

ENERGY BILL LEAVES NO ENERGY COMPANY BEHIND

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BRADLEY of New Hampshire). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, it has been a great week for the most influential, the most well-heeled lobbyists in Washington. Earlier in the week the House passed an energy bill which one very prominent leader of this country called the "no lobbyist left behind" bill. This energy legislation was full of benefits for oil companies, for natural gas companies, and for electric utility companies. As I said, it was a great week for some of the most well-heeled, most influential lobbyists in Washington.

The energy policy started with bad process as Vice President CHENEY convened a secret group of energy lobbyists to draft the administration's energy plan. Citizen after citizen, group after group have tried to find out who attended these meetings with Vice President CHENEY, what was discussed, and what they were all about. Vice President CHENEY refused; but we should not be surprised that he would bring energy executives into the Vice President's office to secretly write an energy bill. After all, Vice President CHENEY himself was an oil company executive, or should I say still is. He still receives $3,000 a week from Halliburton, one of the major energy companies in the United States. The Vice President is meeting secretly with energy company, oil company executives, and is still receiving $3,000 a week from Halliburton, that company that is making billions of dollars in unbid contracts in Iraq given by the administration, and kicking back or contributing large numbers of dollars to the Bush reelection campaign.

So CHENEY is meeting with the energy companies to draft legislation that one prominent Republican said was a no lobbyist left behind bill. It was an early Christmas present for the energy industry, and for oil, gas and utilities, and some have estimated as much as $100 billion.

Some of the corporate giveaways that harm consumers in this bill were granting Enron's last wish to repeal the consumer-oriented, Public Utility Holding Companies Act, making taxpayers rather than corporate polluters pay to clean up leaking underground storage tanks, even when we know exactly which corporation is responsible for the pollution; allowing power companies to charge consumers more, ostensibly to finance system upgrades without any assurance that the resulting changes will actually benefit consumers; making taxpayers pay to clean up nuclear accidents and compensate victims even when the accidents result from a private contractor's intentional misconduct; deleting bipartisan provisions to ensure the safety and security of crosscountry nuclear shipments. All of those provisions were in there as gifts to the oil and gas and electric companies that Vice President CHENEY still represents, amazingly enough as Vice President.

At the same time, that energy bill was loaded up with all kinds of tax breaks, all kinds of tax provisions helping those energy companies. At the same time this legislation, this early corporate Christmas present for which they give great thanks, included all kinds of harm to the environment. It allows oil companies to pump diesel fuels and other toxics underground and expand their operations without regard to the Clean Water Act groundwater runoff requirements, opening Federal lands to powerlines and mineral developments, and exempting significant segments of our communities and our industries from Clean Air Act requirements.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Congress earlier in the week passed one major corporate giveaway to the energy industry, to oil, gas and electric utilities. Tomorrow Congress is going to attempt, Republican leadership is going to attempt to do their second major corporate giveaway of tax dollars, and that is the so-called prescription drug Medicare bill. This is not a prescription drug bill; this is a Medicare privatization, insurance company/drug company giveaway bill.

The prescription drug companies under this legislation stand in the next few years to profit $139 billion more than they already have. And already for 20 years running, the drug industry has been the most profitable industry in America, by any measurement: return on investment, return on sales, return on equity, while enjoying the lowest tax rate of any industry in America.

Mr. Speaker, the second part of this bill gives a $20 billion gift, $8 billion this year, $12 billion in 2006, to the large insurance companies and HMOs in order to get them to offer private drug insurance.

What most of us say is let us do the Medicare bill right, give the drug benefit directly to seniors; do not do it by enriching the drug companies and enriching the insurance companies.

Mr. Speaker, it has been a good week for big business in Washington and for corporate lobbyists, and a bad week for America's consumers.

INHUMANE TREATMENT OF DR. OSCAR E. BISCET GONZALEZ

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I stand here today to speak on an issue dear to my heart. At the same moment that our fellow colleagues deliberated on a decision to weaken the vital and necessary sanctions against the ruthless Castro regime, at that same moment human rights and liberty were hurriedly moved to what is now one of the worst prisons on the island; that is what happened to Dr. Oscar E. Biscet Gonzalez.

At the same time we were going to lift sanctions on Castro, Castro was putting Dr. Biscet in a dungeon. Even as we meet here today, courageous advocates suffer in jail for speaking their minds and advocating for liberty and freedom, and it is a crime to do that in Fidel Castro's Cuba. People such as Dr. Oscar E. Biscet Gonzalez are serving horrific prison sentences for promoting democratic values.

Dr. Biscet is a leader, as Members have heard from the gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART), the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH), the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE), and we will hear from the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MARIO DIAZ-BALART) in a moment, is a leader in the Cuban opposition movement. He is a follower of Ghandi and Martin Luther King, and he was arrested earlier this year and has been arbitrarily detained over 26 times in the past 18 months. His body may be weak, rapidly deteriorating; but his courage, his spirit, his commitment to see a free Cuba from its enslavement, they are stronger than ever. Dr. Biscet sits in a jail where prisoners are tortured so intensely that their skulls are cracked, their faces are disfigured, and their bodies are dragged down rugged stairs feet first. But we are going to lift the sanctions against his jailer.

Mr. Speaker, Dr. Biscet, together with an incalculable number of victims of a bloody and terrorist regime illustrates the reason why our government, the great United States of America, must remain vigilant against tyrannical regimes. Dr. Biscet's torture and cowardly imprisonment is an attempt to break the spirit of liberty from the minds of Cubans who long for a free Cuba, and there are 11 million of those Cubans on the island.

Dr. Biscet previously served 3 years in prison. He was released October 31 of last year only to be rearrested on December 6 as he was to meet with human rights activists. That is a crime in Cuba. On April 7 of this year, he was summarily tried during a Cuban regime crackdown, along with 75 other activists and independent journalists, and was sentenced to 25 years for serving as a mercenary to a foreign state.

Mr. Speaker, our esteemed halls of democracy have welcomed many distinguished speakers. We have received countless heroes and people of the highest honor, and these are the same caliber and fiber such as Dr. Biscet, who is one of Cuba's many unsung heroes. I would like to quote his most recent note to his wife and have his words ring loudly in these Halls so we may all understand the true brutal nature of the Cuban regime and the reasons why we must bring an end to the misery of the Cuban people.

Dr. Biscet writes, "I don't know why I am in this dismal place. I will not grieve nor be afraid for being punished in this dungeon. I will face life's difficulties in order to enjoy the germination of love. I know I will succeed, for the darker the place, the brighter and more intense the light."

Every day more and more opposition leaders such as Dr. Biscet are sentenced to languish in squalid jail cells subjected to the most inhumane and degrading treatment. We must not be silent. We cannot and we must not be indifferent to the anguish and misery endured by the Cuban people, just 90 miles from our shores, at the hands of this depraved dictator and his agents of terror.

Mr. Speaker, indifference breeds evil. Indifference is the enemy of freedom. Indifference helps cloak the deplorable actions of tyrants.

Mr. Speaker, I would say to Dr. Biscet, inside your jail cell I know you cannot hear our words, but we want to express our profound admiration for you and the just cause that you are fighting for. We support you and we support all of Cuba's independent internal opposition in your struggle to be free. Let us not become indifferent to the plight of our fellow Cuban brothers and sisters. Dr. Biscet, vamos a continuar luchando hasta que usted y el pueblo de Cuba sea libre.

WRONGFUL IMPRISONMENT OF CUBAN DISSIDENTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MARIO DIAZ-BALART) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MARIO DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, we have heard tonight the plight of Dr. Oscar E. Biscet Gonzalez and the situation that he finds himself in today, in a dungeon where he is not able to receive light and barely has enough air to breathe, where he has been placed with another person who is a violent person to see if that violent person can do harm to Dr. Biscet. Why is he serving under those conditions? Because he has asked for the one thing that the Castro dictatorship, just 90 miles away from the United States, that that thug fears the most. What Dr. Biscet continues to ask for is freedom. That is it. Freedom to associate, freedom of religion and freedom to speak out and elect one's leaders; and for that, he has been sentenced to 25 years in prison.

There are those that apologize for the Castro dictatorship, and they say we have to normalize relationships with the Castro dictatorship and we should treat Castro as if we were dealing with the government of Costa Rica or Paraguay because he is not that bad. He is ailing. He is an older, ailing individual; and, therefore, we should treat him nicely, while he has people like Dr. Biscet and many others rotting in prison because all they want is to be free.

As my colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART) said, Where is the outrage?

From time to time we see miniseries on those expensive movie networks glorifying Castro, showing him as a great leader. Where is the news coverage of Dr. Biscet and the story of Dr. Biscet's suffering? Where are the stories of any of the other political prisoners suffering in Castro's prisons? Where are they? Why does the press refuse to cover the plight of these people?

Mr. Speaker, despite the fact that the press has total indifference, that still gives excuse after excuse as to why we need to deal with Castro as if he were a normal human being, not the animal or the murderer that he is, despite all that, we will continue to speak out because the Cuban people deserve to be free and the American people understand more than anybody else how valuable freedom is, which is why the American people have always stood fast and have always supported people like Dr. Biscet.

And until the day that Dr. Biscet is free, we will continue to speak, despite those that want to apologize for Castro, and despite those who want to help the regime and go to Cuba to have sexual tourism with little boys and little girls, we will continue to speak up for those that cannot be heard, and they will ultimately win. They will ultimately be heard, and the Cuban people will be free and the American people will feel very proud that they stood by the people of Cuba in their darkest moments by not treating Castro as if he were a normal human being, by keeping the pressure and making sure that the world understands that Castro is what he is: he is a crazy, sick, senile, murdering animal. And until the day he is gone, we will continue to speak for those like Dr. Biscet who cannot speak.

REGARDING RETIREMENT OF HOUSE RADIO–TV GALLERY DEPUTY DIRECTOR BEVERLY BRAUN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, when we come back for the second session of the 108th Congress, there will be a new face in the House Radio-TV Gallery. That is because, after 20 years of service, the Deputy Director Beverly Braun is retiring December 12th.

When Braun came to the Gallery in 1983, she and her colleagues sat up there in the southeast corner of the House chamber taking notes on floor proceedings by hand because they didn't have a computer, and the television reporters who covered out activities had to physically transport tapes to their bureaus. Beverly has shepherded the staff from learning to use a single 10K floppy disk drive machine to having individual 60 Gig hard drive laptops, and has helped incorporate technical developments that now afford the broadcasters use of fiber optic transmission lines.

In the past 20 years Beverly Braun has worked under five speakers, under both Democratic and Republican control of the House and has been involved in coverage arrangements of many diverse events. Some were annual like State of the Union Addresses, St. Patrick's Day luncheons and Christmas Tree lightings. Some were periodic like mock swearing-ins of new members. Some were joyful like the joint meeting to celebrate Harry Truman's 100th birthday. Some were tragic like that lying in honor for Officers Chestnut and Gibson, and September 11th. Some were historical hearings such as Iran-Contra and Waco. Some were historical visits such as those by Queen Elizabeth, Nelson Mandella, Vaclav Havel, and most special to Braun, the Dalai Lama.

As part of her regular Gallery work Braun worked with many Congressional staffers and committee members, but in recent years has primarily served as liaison to the Ways and Means, Financial Services and Rules Committees. In addition to her regular Gallery work, Braun helped with broadcast arrangements for 10 Democratic and Republican national political nominating conventions and provided on site assistance in San Francisco, Dallas, Atlanta, New Orleans, New York City, Houston, San Diego, Chicago, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

Braun was born to Phyllis (Lawson) and Ray Nicholas in Warren, Ohio in 1942, attended Ohio University and graduated from St. Vincent School of Medical Technology in Cleveland in 1961. She and her first husband Roland Braun lived in Pittsburgh PA where her son Stephen was born in 1964, and in Ramsey NJ where her daughter Leslie de Vries was born in 1966. They moved to Minnesota in 1967 where Braun became active in politics and women's rights organizations and where she ran unsuccessfully for a state senate seat in 1972. She later served as Communications Director for the Minnesota Bicentennial Commission, Director of the Small Business Division of the Minnesota Department of Economic Development and managed a Small Business Development Center for Control Data Corporation.

Braun and her second husband, Skip Loescher, moved to Washington, D.C. twice, staying here since their second move in 1981. After spending 20 years with WCCO–TV and a short stint with Senator and Vice President Walter Mondale, Loescher has been the Washington correspondent for CNN Newsource for the past 12 years. Prior to her employment with the Gallery, Braun worked in Washington with the National Women's Education Fund and later founded a business which provided services to companies that did not have a Washington Office.

Braun and Loescher's families are spread all across the country. Braun's mother Phyllis Beadle lives in Queensbury NY. Braun's son Stephen and his wife Anne live in Columbia MD. He has a son Nicolas and daughter Katie. Braun's daughter Leslie and her husband Jackson Griffith live in Sacramento CA with daughters Emma and Ellie and son Will. Loescher's son Jeff lives in Portland OR with wife Carol, daughter Nicole and son Tyler. Loescher's son Mick and wife Erin live in Peabody MA with sons Sean and Christian. Loescher's daughter Suzy and husband Jeff Quinlan live in Covington GA with son Alex and daughter Kate. Both Braun and Loescher are also blessed with aunts, uncles, cousins, former classmates and friends in almost every other state represented by the members in this chamber.

After leaving Congress, Braun plans on possibly teaching, writing and doing more gardening at her home in Annapolis where she and her husband moved after 19 years on Capitol Hill. She also wants to address end of life issues. She and her husband hope to eventually pursue training and taking therapy dogs in hospitals, nursing homes and hospices . . . and spending more time with all those adorable grandchildren.

Braun has always been a helpful and cheerful professional and she will be missed. So at the end of her career with us, let us say to

Beverly as we have heard her say at the end of many a photo op . . . "Thank you . . . lights!"

THE HEALTH CARE CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BRADLEY of New Hampshire). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my Special Order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I rise this evening with my fellow members of the Congressional Black Caucus to address the health care crisis in America. While millions of Americans lack adequate health insurance, the rights of the uninsured continue to increase. In addition, the cost of prescription medication is placing an enormous financial burden on consumers. And our seniors, many of whom are living on fixed wages, are in desperate need of relief.

Mr. Speaker, the late Senator and former Vice President, Hubert Humphrey, once said, '' . . . the moral test of government is how it treats those in the dawn of life, the children; those in the twilight of life, the elderly; and those in the shadows of life, the sick, the needy, and the handicapped.'' As a Nation we have failed that test on all three counts.

Currently, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are offering a bill to overhaul the Federal Medicare program under the guise of a much-needed prescription drug benefit for this Nation's seniors. This bill, if passed, would cost our children over $400 billion. Mr. Speaker, I say it will cost our children because the government is currently operating in a deficit. We simply do not have the money. Therefore, it is the younger generations and those yet unborn who will have to shoulder the financial burden required by this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, let us not be mistaken. Every dollar being spent worth saving or improving one's quality of life is a dollar well worth spending. However, this bill directs billions of dollars towards enhancing the financial well-being of corporations at the expense of the physical well-being of those who need it the most.

This Nation's seniors have practically begged us, as their congressional representatives, to work together in drafting a comprehensive bill that would provide prescription drug coverage and enhance the current Medicare program. Quite frankly, this bill is an inadequate response to their plea.

Let me boil it down to the very basics. The Medicare conference agreement prohibits the Secretary of Health and Human Services from negotiating lower drug prices on behalf of the 40 million Medicare beneficiaries. In other words, this legislation says that the Secretary of Health and Human Services cannot negotiate lower prices although we have millions of Medicare beneficiaries buying medicines or obtaining medicines from these pharmaceuticals.

This proposed legislation also creates a gap of $2,844 that would be impossible for lower-income seniors to bridge and disallows lower-income seniors the ability to receive coverage under both Medicare and Medicaid. And further, Mr. Speaker, the bill could have disastrous effects on my home State of Maryland. 59,640 Maryland Medicare beneficiaries could lose their retiree health benefits and 75,800 Maryland Medicaid beneficiaries could pay more for the prescription drugs that they need. Mr. Speaker, that is simply unacceptable. We can and we must do better for our seniors.

The Congressional Black Caucus is extremely concerned about the health care needs of the 26 million people of every color that we represent. Therefore, providing affordable, high-quality health care for every American is a top priority. And I emphasize the fact that the Congressional Black Caucus represents not only African American people but we represent people of all colors. As a matter of fact, many of our districts do not have a majority African American population, and we have consistently found that we have spoken for Americans who are merely feeling as if they have no voice in this Chamber.

Some have said that we have been the conscience of the Congress. I would submit that we have been the conscience of this Nation. To this end, the Congressional Black Caucus, the Asian Pacific American Caucus, the Hispanic Caucus, and the Native American Caucus introduced the Healthcare Equality and Accountability Act of 2003. This comprehensive and ambitious legislation will improve the lives and livelihoods of all Americans and signifies a historic milestones towards providing equal access to affordable and quality health care.

The gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN), who will be addressing us a little bit later, played a very significant role in leading the Black Caucus and the other caucuses to create this very important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, let me say why it is so important to communities of color that this Congress create an affordable prescription drug benefit under Medicare and work to pass the Healthcare Equality and Accountability Act. The state of health care within communities of color is particularly disturbing. According to a recent report released by the National Urban League, ''African Americans are more likely to be among Medicare's lower-income beneficiaries . . . 65 percent of African American beneficiaries fall below 200 percent of the poverty level and 33 percent have incomes that actually fall below the poverty level itself.''

Minorities are also disproportionately among the uninsured, representing more than half of all uninsured Americans. Hispanic Americans, 35 percent; Native Americans, 27 percent; African Americans, 20 percent; and Asian-Pacific Islanders, 19 percent. All have substantially higher uninsured rates than white Americans, which is 12 percent. Conversely, the health care needs of minority Americans are often greater than those of nonminorities. Our communities disproportionately suffer from numerous chronic diseases: diabetes, heart disease and stroke, and many forms of cancer.

Racial and ethnic minorities are also more likely to receive unequal treatment than white Americans. According to the National Academies' Institute of Medicine Report of 2002, racial and ethnic minorities tend to receive inferior care in comparison to white Americans even when insurance status, income, age, and severity of conditions are comparable.

Communities of color are less likely to receive preventative care and face a greater risk of misdiagnosis, inadequate treatment, and even premature death. The state of health care in minority communities is nothing short of alarming.

Mr. Speaker, consider the following statistics: The death rates from heart disease among African American adults is 29 percent higher than white adults, and the death rate from stroke is 40 percent higher. Compared with whites, Native Americans are 2.5 times more likely to have diagnosed diabetes, while African Americans and Latinos are 2 and 1.8 times more likely, respectively.

African American women are more likely to die of breast cancer than women of any other race or ethnicity. The infant death rate among African Americans is more than twice as high as it is for white Americans. African Americans and Latinos account for 68 percent of new adult and adolescent AIDS cases. Americans of Asian and Pacific Islander descent have the highest rate of hepatitis B of all U.S. ethnic groups. Older African Americans are 3.6 times more likely to have lower limbs amputated as a result of diabetes. African American seniors are more than two times less likely to receive treatment for prostate cancer.

In general, the health of minority Americans continues to lag far behind that of white Americans, creating a health care divide between communities of color and the rest of America.

Mr. Speaker, as the richest Nation in the world with an average gross domestic product in the trillions, the United States spends a greater percentage of its GDP on health care than any other G–8 or Scandinavian nation.

On a per capita basis, the United States spends far more on health care than any other country in the world, $3,935 or 13 percent in 1997, while the median Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development country spent $1,728 or 7.5 percent. Yet the United States had the largest percentage of citizens without government-assured health insurance coverage.

In addition to having the largest number of uninsured, we rank 12th among 13 countries on 16 available health indicators. The United States ranked 13th for low-birth-weight percentages, 11th for life expectancy at 1 year for females, 12th for males, and 13th for neonatal mortality and infant mortality overall.

Mr. Speaker, through the Healthcare Equality and Accountability Act of 2003, the Congressional Black Caucus, the Hispanic Caucus, the Asian Pacific American Caucus, and Native American Caucuses confront the issue of disparate minority health care head on. Our bill addresses the shortage of minority health care providers and improves workforce diversity through the expansion of such successful programs as the Health Career Opportunities Program and the Minority Centers of Excellence. Our bill would help patients from diverse backgrounds, including those with limited English proficiency, with provisions such as codifying existing standards for culturally and linguistically appropriate health care, assisting health care professionals provide cultural and language services, and increasing Federal reimbursement for these services.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to thank my colleagues in the Congressional Black Caucus, the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus, and the Native American Caucus for their diligence in drafting this important piece of legislation.

I would also again like to extend my special recognition to the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN), the chair of the Congressional Black Caucus Health Braintrust; the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SOLIS), chair of the CHC Health Task Force; the gentleman from California (Mr. HONDA), chair of the CAPAC Health Caucus; and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE), chair of the Native American Health Caucus; Senate Democratic leader Daschle; and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), House Democratic leader, for their leadership.

I also appreciate the support of my congressional colleagues who continue to stand firmly by our side in our efforts to make universal health care a reality.

Mr. Speaker, as Members of the greatest national legislature in the world, our social contract is clear. We have a moral responsibility to promote the general welfare of all of our citizens regardless of race, age, ethnicity, or social economic status. We must work to accomplish this goal by providing comprehensive health care coverage to all of our citizens and meaningful prescription drug coverage to our seniors. We should not rest nor recess until this task is done.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN).

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for yielding, and I thank him for hosting this Special Order today.

I would have come here to primarily discuss H.R. 3459, the Healthcare Equality and Accountability Act of 2003, which is a very important piece of legislation that the four caucuses that we have heard have introduced with our Democratic leadership in both this and the other body.

The bill, which I call the Heal America Act, would do just that: heal America, because the health of people of color is inextricably linked to that of all Americans. So the provisions that are included, which would expand Medicaid to include pregnant women, young people to the age of 20, and legal immigrants, which provides that Federal program set standards and pay for translation services; that includes programs for young people of color to enter the health professions at all levels, and even for older ones to enter the health professions by changing their profession as long as they practice in underserved communities; which would strengthen the safety net facilities like our hospitals and our community health centers; fully funds and strengthens the Office of Civil Rights within the Department of Health and Human Services, as well as the Office of Minority Health which creates empowerment zones so the communities themselves, which face high disparities, will get the resources and technical assistance that they need to address their health care challenges. This bill would finally bring this country to the top of the list of nations in the world for our health, reverse the global statistics that we have heard from our chairman and, instead of being the thirty-ninth of all of the nations of the world, it would reduce the premature deaths and disabilities that exist in the people of color here; would begin to reduce the skyrocketing health care costs, and also to restore the greatness of this country, which has indeed been tarnished by our recent history here and in the world.

But tonight I want to focus more on an imminent threat to the equality and accountability in health care for millions of Americans. After years of promising a prescription drug benefit, and my knowing from experience as a family physician how badly it is needed, it is a painful task to come to this floor this evening to oppose what we understand is going to be brought to the floor as a Medicare reform bill, perhaps tomorrow. I, like many of my physician colleagues, was tempted to support it, just so we could get something done to alleviate the burden of health care for our patients. But the lives, the health, and the needs of our seniors and the disabled people in this country are too important to just take anything, no matter how defective it might be, just to do something. It would not be fulfilling our promise of a comprehensive prescription drug benefit; it would be reneging on that promise.

We who are here tonight have too much respect for our constituents. We know that we have to continually earn the trust that they have placed in us with their vote. So we are here tonight to oppose the Medicare conference agreement, and to tell our colleagues why.

Despite all of the carrots; for example, the rural provisions which themselves seem to be little more than smoke and mirrors, and the increased payments for physicians which, if the leadership believes, as I do, that it needs to be done, we can do that separately. The bottom line for me is that this bill begins to destroy a program that has provided real health security, that has kept many seniors and disabled persons out of poverty, and which has provided access to health care for them for over 30 years. I cannot in good conscience be a part of dismantling this important safety net program. Yes, I know that some provisions, like premium support, are just demonstration programs, but that is opening a door that should just remain shut.

This conference report goes against what we have been working towards in our caucus: the elimination of disparities in health care for African Americans and other people of color. African Americans are 8 percent of Medicare recipients, and 32 percent of African Americans who have some insurance, have Medicare. While 40 percent of all Medicare beneficiaries are below 200 percent of poverty, 65 percent of African American beneficiaries are. Thirty-three percent are below the poverty level period.

We are then disproportionately among the very poor, and this bill will increase cost-sharing for people who fall in that category. While it may start out relatively low in the first year, it can be counted on to increase with increasing drug prices which average 10 percent an increase a year.

I am also very concerned that there is a very strict means test that will be applied to even these poor beneficiaries: $6,000 for individuals and $9,000 for a couple, which means that many seniors and disabled who need this benefit will be left out.

All of this will mean that even the little that the bill does to provide for low-income Medicare beneficiaries will not be available for as many as up to 2.8 million individuals. This is not, Mr. Speaker, what we promised.

Let us look at what happens to beneficiaries who have prescription drug coverage. Not only will this bill jeopardize the retiree prescription drug benefit, and 22 percent of African Americans with Medicare have a retiree prescription drug benefit, as well as 17 percent of Latino beneficiaries, but how could we, in good conscience, also worsen the already bad situation this report would create for the very poor dual-eligible who would also lose benefits that they have under Medicaid because this bill would eliminate the wrap-around provisions.

Lastly, let me mention the potential cap on Medicaid, the potential cap on this Medicare prescription drug benefit if we pass the conference report. It goes to cost containment. We all know what cost containment has done for us thus far. It has filled the coffers of managed care corporations and, for the most part, has done so by reducing access to needed medical care for those who are enrolled and, virtually, it has left out the sicker, many of whom are poor, who are people of color, or who live in our rural areas. And has the cost of health care gone down in this country because of that cost containment? No, it has not. Have insurance premiums gone down or even stayed steady? No. They are increasing in double digits. So what we would be likely to see would be the rationing of care where we have just begun to see some minor changes. Cost containment would just expand the 2- and 3-tiered health care system where the sickest get the least care. This is not what we promised.

I want to take this opportunity to answer one of my constituents, Rosalee Dance from Saint Thomas. She asked the question, because she is confused like many seniors are in this country. She asks me two questions. She asks, is it true that the bill creates a situation where people either pay sharply increased premiums to stay in traditional Medicare where they can choose their doctors, or be forced out into an HMO?

Ms. Dance, the answer is yes, that is what the conference report would do.

The second question she asks: is it true that it would require that people who want the prescription drug coverage that it is advertised to provide to buy such coverage that they would have to buy it from private insurance plans?

Again, the answer is yes. This is not Medicare as it needs to be.

All of these aspects reduce access of poor and minority seniors more than others to needed medication, which would otherwise maintain good health, prevent complications, prevent disabilities, and also prevent excess and preventable deaths. What we are doing, or what the Republican leadership is attempting to have us do is continue the same wrong-headed policies that have created the health care crisis that we are now in, through denying good prevention and health maintenance to all of the seniors and the disabled who are most in need and to most of the 16 percent of Medicare beneficiaries of racial and ethnic minority backgrounds. We would diminish the quality of services if we do this and increase the cost, continue to increase the cost of care for all.

Mr. Speaker, it is time that we actually do what H.R. 3459 says, which is begin to heal our country, to heal America, and we can begin to do that by voting no on the Medicare proposal that will be coming before this House tomorrow.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, first, let me thank the chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, once again, the gentleman from Maryland, (Mr. CUMMINGS), for his continued leadership and for ensuring that the Congressional Black Caucus continues to have the opportunity to wake up America, and for continuing to stand up for our seniors' rights to an affordable, quality, and guaranteed prescription drug benefit. Also, to really protect Medicare as a vital institution. So I just want to thank the gentleman again for giving us this opportunity.

Now, I did not come to Congress to dismantle Medicare, and I will not stand by quietly while my Republican colleagues do just that.

Last night, I came to the floor and detailed my very strong opposition to the Republican prescription privatization plan, which does represent a giant kickback to the pharmaceutical and insurance industries. Tonight I come to the floor again to reiterate my opposition and to discuss the other inadequacies in our health care system that are addressed in the Health Care Equality and Accountability Act, H.R. 3459, a bill which my colleague, the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN), has guided and has led and has brought us together through her tireless work to introduce on behalf of America. I just want to thank the gentlewoman for her leadership in providing us a real vision and a real alternative and a real roadmap to quality health care for all of our communities in America; specifically, our communities of color.

Now, our constituents realize that the cost of prescription drugs are really crippling our seniors, and this Republican prescription drug bill is a real joke, a cruel joke on seniors and the disabled. This bill will only raise false hopes that real help is on the way from the drug prices that are currently crushing our seniors. But nothing could be further from the truth.

This bill not only weakens benefits by creating major gaps in coverage; it actually prohibits, mind you, it prohibits the Secretary of Health and Human Services from negotiating lower drug prices on behalf of America's 40 million Medicare beneficiaries. It is a shame that not only will the government be prohibited from lowering the prices of medicines, senior citizens cannot even benefit from lower prices through drug reimportation, which this body actually passed. But, of course, any measure to reduce the cost of prescription drugs does not meet the approval of the pharmaceutical companies. So, quite frankly, these provisions are not in this bill, which really is their bill.

Now, in California, almost 250,000 Medicare beneficiaries are projected to lose their retiree health benefits. Nearly 300,000 fewer seniors in my State will not qualify for low-income protections because of the assets test and qualifying income levels.

When we get right down to it, the 300,000 low-income seniors will disproportionately be older women who, as we all know, have fewer financial assets, tend to live longer, have more chronic health conditions than men, and ultimately are more dependent on Medicare than men in their later years.

And, of course, women are more than twice as likely as men to face poverty in retirement and account for more than 70 percent of the elderly poor.

This bill is harmful to the poorest and the sickest. And their out-of-pocket costs would increase above what Medicaid currently allows, and co-payments would dramatically increase further in future years.

A constituent from Oakland wrote to me and said, and I quote, ''I am on Medicare and do not like this bill. I cannot understand why Congress will not allow anyone to bargain for better rates. I don't understand why Medicare must be privatized. The proposed deductible is too much. And I will not be able to afford medication for my disabilities if this bill passes. This bill amounts to another Republican publicity thing.'' I agree with her. H.R. 1 punishes people for getting older and for needing to use prescription drugs and for being disabled.

In 2002, for example, the Kaiser Family Foundation found more than 33 percent of seniors without drug coverage did not fill the prescriptions that their doctors prescribed. That is a rate twice as high as those with coverage. Lower-income Americans really do deserve better.

On July 24 of this year, the Wall Street Journal reported that black Medicare beneficiaries are more than twice as likely as white beneficiaries to go without a prescription drug because they could not afford it. Nearly 40 percent of elderly African Americans lived in poverty in 2001 compared with 10 percent of whites. As a result of the disparities in our health care system, African American seniors are more likely to be in poor health and to report having one or more chronic health conditions, while only 26 percent of whites on Medicare report their health status to be fair or poor.

While the Republicans punish seniors, particularly women and minorities, with this bill, California drug companies will make out like bandits. More than 860,000 Medicaid beneficiaries pay more for the prescription drugs that they need, pay more. This bill is really not just, however, a gift to the drug companies, it is the beginning of the end of Medicare. And it is the beginning of the privatization of Medicare.

Under this Republican bill, beneficiaries dropped from one plan may face a period of noncoverage before they are picked up by traditional Medicare or another private plan, if one is available at all. During this time, all beneficiaries lose continuity of care and may not even be able to get the care that they need.

Secondly, beneficiaries even in a new private plan may not be able to use the same doctors, services, and prescriptions due to the plan limitations. African Americans face a disproportionate risk under such a coverage gap since they are more likely to have serious health problems.

Prescription drugs are not a luxury for our seniors; they are a necessity. And our seniors cannot afford to pay more than the outlandish prices for prescription drugs that they are already paying. Also seniors with income levels below the poverty level are nearly three times as likely as those with incomes of more than $17,000 to go without prescription drugs. The pharmaceutical companies cannot continue to get rich off the poorest of the poor.

Let us be clear, this bill really is a fraud and really is an embarrassment. We stand here today with a Republican bill that is not affordable, is not comprehensive, and is not guaranteed. On behalf of all people who see through this bill, I call on my colleagues to join us in opposing the sad attempt to pull the wool over the eyes of our nation's Medicare beneficiaries.

Further, I think that the President and the Republicans should really look at how to really provide a meaningful benefit and also to get at other pressing issues facing our health care system today: the cost of drugs, the lack of access to any health care at all, and the horrific disparities in access and the quality of care for communities of color and the needs to move forward with the system where health care is a basic human right provided for all.

Today African American Medicare beneficiaries are more than twice as likely as white beneficiaries to go without prescription drugs because they could not afford it. Nowhere in H.R. 1 are these beneficiaries considered.

So now is the time to expand the health care safety net which will increase the availability, quality and affordability of health care coverage options. The Healthcare Equality and Accountability Act, as I mentioned earlier, H.R. 3459, reminds us that now is the time for diversification of the health care workforce which will reflect the communities that have been neglected while incorporating a real understanding of the backgrounds, experiences, languages, and cultures of minority people.

H.R. 3459 reminds us that now is the time for an aggressive collection of data and dissemination of data on people of color so that that becomes a priority in terms of the health care of our communities. And H.R. 3459 reminds us that now is the time for a complete assault on HIV and AIDS and other diseases that are disproportionately killing minority communities.

So now is the time for Congress to take a real look at our health care system, diagnose our weaknesses and our illnesses, and prescribe a system where everyone will have quality universal guaranteed health care.

Again, as I said, I did not come to Congress to dismantle Medicare, and I cannot stand quietly while that happens. So I just want to thank our chairman again, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), for giving us this opportunity to really allow our senior citizens and the entire country to hear our views in spite of what AARP has told individuals with regard to this very terrible bill. I want to thank the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN) once again for her leadership to ensure that we have an alternative that makes sense for universal health care.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE). It is indeed interesting a lot of times when people hear the Congressional Black Caucus talk on issues they have a tendency sometimes to think, oh, here are some liberals standing up and being against a certain provision or being for something. One of the most interesting things that came to my attention today is that there are many conservative organizations who are against this bill.

And one of them being the Heritage Foundation issued these comments within the last 2 or 3 days. And I quote, now, this is the Heritage Foundation, they say, ''The agreement contains an unworkable and potentially unpopular drug benefit with millions of Americans losing part of their existing coverage. Instead of targeting benefits to seniors who need them, the Medicare conferees are insisting on creating a universal drug entitlement to be delivered through the vehicle of stand-alone insurance. In the process, according to both the Congressional Budget Office and recent independent economic analysis, more than 4 million seniors with existing private coverage are bound to lose it or have it scaled back. Meanwhile, the politically engineered premiums and deductibles coupled with their odd combination of donut holes or gaps in drug coverage are likely to be unpopular with seniors.'' That is dated November 17, 2003. And that is from the Heritage Foundation.

Now, the fact is that we all agree, maybe for a little different reason at times, that this is not an appropriate bill. But it is just interesting because I want to make it clear to everybody who may be listening to us tonight that it is just not the Congressional Black Caucus that is standing up against this legislation.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I am glad that the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) raised that because this legislation is bad for America. I am glad that he cited the Heritage Foundation's comments and their opposition because I believe that we need to make sure that America understands that in spite of the leadership of AARP and in spite of the fact that the pharmaceuticals and the insurance industry for the most part wrote this bill, that there are, all of us, primarily, with the exception of a few, those who really believe that this will begin to dismantle Medicare and privatize Medicare. And if no one believes us, they sure should believe the Heritage Foundation. But I think that the Congressional Black Caucus, our tri-caucus has an unbelievable track record in telling the truth. So I am glad that the Heritage Foundation has joined us in that tonight.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, it is so interesting that when we talk about Medicare, Medicare is so important to so many people. If we did not have Medicare, we would have to invent it because it touches the lives of so many. And I have often said that if I were sick and did not have a way to get well, I think that would make me sicker.

I think that we are, with the way this conference report is structured, it seems as if we are pushing more and more people out into the cold and placing them in a position where they will not be able to get available, accessible and affordable health care.

Ms. LEE. Well, Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) has summarized what this bill does. And I think our senior citizens understand that Medicare has been that safety net and has provided the foundation for really the quality of life that they deserve in their golden years. And to see that safety net being tampered with and to see it put up on the chopping block at the whims of the insurance industry and pharmaceuticals is very shameful and very disgraceful. And I think that all of us have the duty and responsibility to fight against this. Because this is, I think, a basic value that America holds dear, and that is protecting and ensuring, I would say, the comfort of our senior citizens. And we cannot play around with that.

Mr. CUMMINGS. I want to thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to my colleague from the great State of New York (Mr. OWENS).

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate and thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for this Special Order. Nothing could be more timely than our focus tonight on the Republican Medicare Prescription Drug conference report that will be before us for a vote soon.

We also are concerned about the tri-caucus minority health bill, H.R. 3459, which I think is very significant; but that is in the works, and we will not be having a vote on that any time soon. And it will be very much jeopardized if we have the awful fate of having the Medicare prescription drug conference report of the Republicans passed tomorrow or the next day. It is impossible to move forward with a minority health bill which is of any great significance and impact if you do not have the envelope of Medicare.

Medicare and Medicaid are the beach heads for providing universal care in America. And all of us are hopeful we will move forward and provide health care to all those 43 million people who tonight have any health care and that some plan would be developed which is based on Medicare as a start. But what the Republicans have done here is started a slow and tortuous assassination of Medicare.

In the beginning when Medicare was first proposed and passed, very few Republicans voted for it. Over the years Republicans have repeatedly talked about liquidating Medicare. Former Speaker Gingrich made no bones about it. He wanted Medicare to fade away. His phrase was, ''We should make it fade away.''

So we are in the process now under this guise and camouflage of providing a prescription drug benefit of sticking Medicare in the back with a dagger for a slow bleed to death. That is what will happen. The introduction of privatization, the build-up of HMOs, and the role that the pharmaceutical companies have played in this legislation is such that you know we may be discussing the beginning of the end of Medicare. We cannot do that. Nothing else in the area of health care would be go forward unless we have Medicare to build on. We need that very much.

The tri-caucus minority health bill would have talked more about adapting and refining the health care program to make certain that we deal with some of the basic problems in the African American community and the Hispanic community and other minority committees with respect to health care.

I want to bring in a very important event that took place, not many people have heard about, last Saturday. We had, last Friday night and Saturday, a conference on saving young black males. The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) kicked off the conference on Friday night. And I came on Saturday expecting to stay maybe half a day, but I was so impressed with the audience, the participants who showed up, that I got locked in the whole day and I did not leave until 6:00 because they were so serious, the people who came to participate. Counselors, principals, Boy Scout masters, Girl Scout masters, all kinds of folks who were interested in young people were there.

They were serious because, usually, on these weekends we have a serious panel. You can only hold people's attention an hour and a half. If you are good you go two hours. They came at 8:30 in the morning. They filled up the place. At noon when we had the address by Mr. DAVIS, of course, the place was packed, and they stayed. And I looked out in the audience at 5:30 and it was still packed. People began to drift home at 5:30. If they are willing to go from 8:30 to 5:30, you can imagine what a great deal of interest and how deeply people feel about saving the black males.

Again and again during that day the problem of health care came up. Some people who are getting the least amount of health care they need are black males. The alienation factor that sets in very early, where they do not feel the system is for them, drives them away from even seeking help in many cases. Then they focus in on the tremendous mental health problem. Studies have showed that the suicide rate among black males is far higher than most people realize because of the recklessness of some automobile accidents and the recklessness of confrontations with the police or other authorities, the number of ways that black males end up dying is driven by the fact that they have a suicide wish. And the hopelessness and the kind anxiety of black males was talked about in terms of nobody is out there to deal with that mental health concern.

I will not diverge too much here, but the fact that large numbers of them are incarcerated, we keep focusing on that. It was 25 percent 5 years ago, and now a greater percentage of black males are in the criminal justice system somewhere, parole, probation or prison. And a large number of those who are in that system, about half are in the system as nonviolent offenders. They are in the system because of drug use.

The problem that we have been trying to address in terms of the use of drugs and the way in which our society criminalizes the drug user, not necessarily the drug sellers or dealer but the user, has led to this tremendous percentage of incarcerated black males.

I must say that the way that Rush Limbaugh has been dealt with in terms of his problem, he had an addiction problem, a pain problem. Whether it is mental or physical, we are not sure whether it is just mental or just physical. Maybe it was both. Whatever it was he used large number of drugs and they were purchased in a way which obviously is suspect. And people have shown a great deal of sympathy for Rush Limbaugh who makes $35 million a year. He certainly does not have the anxieties that black males who have tremendous anxieties about employment and adjusting to a world which is impacted heavily with racism.

Here is a man with anxieties in pain and he used illegal methods to seek relief. I will go so far to say that I think it is clearly illegal. He is hustled off to a treatment center. He is back on the air now seeking sympathy. And the same man has said and his friends have said that we should put people who use drugs into jail. They have the harshest words for them.

So the mental health of black males is not considered in the same league of the mental and physical health of Rush Limbaugh. So racism is a factor that we are concerned with, the racism that drives our society, whether it is the criminal justice system or health care system is still a problem.

In health care racism is a problem. The Tri-Caucus Minority Health Bill is aimed to do a number of things, but one of the things it has to deal with is the disparate health care treatment. And my colleagues have spoken about being too poor to afford Medicare and the kind of drugs they need; but the disparate health care treatment studies have shown that even when middle class blacks have health plans that pay for everything that white middle class persons are entitled to, the system is so racist that they are not offered the same procedures. They are not offered the same treatment. They are not offered the same medications.

Three studies have documented this. It is alarming. Money is not the factor, but somebody along the way decides that minorities do not deserve first class health treatment. This is sometimes decided by nurses, sometimes decided by technicians, the doctor's diagnosis and the determination of whether you get a heart bypass or whether you get a pill indicates the disparity in treatment.

So racism is a factor. It will become more of a factor as we struggle and compete for the existing health care that is out there now. If we do not go forward with Medicare and beyond Medicare, a universal health program based upon Medicare as a beginning, then we will have even more difficulty, and racism will play an even bigger role in determining the poor health care that minorities receive.

There is adequate health care treatment and inadequate health care treatment. Class does not come in and should not be considered as a factor.

Our first step is to make sure that we maintain Medicare as it is. The bill on the floor tomorrow goes far beyond dealing with prescription drugs. It sets up a situation for privatization, for a number of factors which will mean the end of Medicare. And when Medicare ends then minorities in general, poor and middle class, answer to the poor, we will have nowhere to turn. We must fight to the very end to see to it that our colleagues understand how decisive this action will be tomorrow in terms of determining the future of health care in America.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman for his outstanding statement. I really appreciate it.

I now yield to the distinguished gentlewoman from the great State of Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished chairman for yielding to me, and I thank him for bringing this important special order. Because one of the tragedies of the next 24 hours, and I do believe that this debate, this discussion and ultimate decision on Medicare, can in fact be a bipartisan decision. And I look forward to working with my friends on the other side of the aisle who have the same common goals. And that is to strengthen Medicare and to provide the best package possible within a fiscally responsible presentation Medicare, to save Medicare as we know it, to preserve the safety net as we know it. And frankly, Mr. Speaker, I do believe that there are Republicans who believe this same way.

I hope the opportunity that I have this evening and my colleagues have had from the Congressional Black Caucus that we have might share some of these thoughts sufficiently enough that our friends on the other side of the aisle might work with us tomorrow in this shortened time frame, limited debated, to do what is right. And that is to send this legislation back to the drawing board and really do what we have been asked to do.

I think there are two things that are creating problems and maybe even three as it relates to the Medicare system. The first one is what we have debated and discussed for at least the almost 10 years that I have been here and that is to give a real guaranteed Medicare prescription drug benefit to our seniors in the Medicare system.

The second and third have to do with providing the compensation for providers whether they be physicians or whether they be, in fact, our hospitals, both urban and rural areas, that they can provide the kind of care that is necessary for all Americans who are senior citizens and who have access and are qualified for Medicare. I think that is really the crux of what we have been trying to do now for 10 years.

Many people are rushing to judgment feeling that we are desperate that we are at our wits ends, this is the last opportunity, and I would just say to my friend, it is not. The Congressional Black Caucus stands on this floor tonight to let you know that our districts now have become so diverse that whether or not you happen to represent a conservative Republican district, moderate, liberal, Democratic district as it may be so designated, you can be assured that there are people of all economic levels, races, color and creed and religion in your district.

That means if you cavalierly vote for a bill that will be on the floor of the House, 634 pages tomorrow, that rule destroys Medicare as we know it, that gets rid of the Medicare premise, the safety net for all Americans, you will have made a very big mistake. Once seniors begin to understand one that the vote tomorrow does not give them any benefit, it does not take effect until 2006, for the fiscally conservative and responsible Members of this House, for them to realize that this is more than a budget buster, this is a budget imploder. Because in actuality, because we have had to try to sweeten the pot for every constituency possible we really do not know what the cost of this bill is going to be. It is more than the $400 billion that we surmise that it might be based upon the fact that the President gave that as a number.

In fact, what it does is it throws seniors of all accounts into a private system that may fall on its own weight. It insists on creating a prescription drug benefit not under Medicare; but under a private HMO system, which if it is not beneficial or prosperous or has a good profit margin just like we found in the HMO's crisis of about 5 or 6 years ago, you will see HMO's closing every single place in the Nation, including the districts of my friends across the aisle.

So if you think you are doing something for your seniors, take a second look. This is not a prescription drug benefit. It is, in fact, a prescription drug booster. And what it does is it causes the Social Security increases to not match up with the prescription drug increases.

Let me just bring several points to a close, Mr. Speaker. First of all, for those of us who have seniors who are on Medicaid, it is going to be a higher co-pay for them. And the HMOs rather than the doctors are going to determine what drugs, what prescription drugs are going to be paid for under this plan. Then I will say there will be no reimportation allowed, and I know there will be a number of those who supported the reimportation. I will say one of the greatest shams of this bill is that it does not allow, Mr. Chairman, it does not allow the government to negotiate lower prices for prescription drugs under Medicare.

What an insult. It does not allow the government to save money. The reason for that is, and let me say I have no argument with the pharmaceutical companies. They do great work. I say that in terms of research and finding prescription drugs or drugs that will allow us to live longer or cure our ailments, but their participation in this kind of misfortune, in this legislation of tying the hands of government is a travesty.

So I would simply say that we will not have the time that we need to debate this tomorrow on the floor of the House. I know this is going to hurt Hispanics and African Americans. And I would just simply argue the point, Mr. Speaker, that this is a bad bill. Send it back as the Congressional Black Caucus would like you to do and put forward something that is reasonable and that works to help all Americans of which tomorrow's legislation will not do.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I will close by simply thanking the Members of Congressional Black Caucus for being here tonight and being a part of all of this. I have often said that a hundred years ago, none of us were here. A hundred years from now, none of us will be here. The critical question is what do we do while we are here to lift each other up.

The fact is that we have a bill on the floor of this House tomorrow which is supposed to be a prescription benefit bill when, in fact, it does much more harm than good. And I think that when all the dust settles, when everything is laid out very clearly, the question becomes, Have we lifted our seniors up? So many of them have begged for relief. So many of them have cut pills in half and in quarters. So many of them have gone from one drug store to another begging for prescriptions.

So many of them have almost broken out in tears when they found out that their doctor did not have the sample prescription drugs that they needed, and so we stand here tonight not only saying that we consider the prescription drug bill to be bad, bad news, but we also on the other hand, Mr. Speaker, offer our HealthCare Equality Accountability Act of 2003 to say that we have a piece of legislation that does not cure everything but certainly it helps; but on the other hand, we have another piece of legislation, the prescription drug bill which does so much harm.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF MOTIONS TO SUSPEND THE RULES

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio (during the Special Order of Mr. CUMMINGS) from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 108–387) on the resolution (H. Res. 456) providing for consideration of motions to suspend the rules, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 1904, HEALTHY FORESTS RESTORATION ACT OF 2003

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio (during the Special Order of Mr. CUMMINGS) from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 108–388) on the resolution (H. MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BILL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Alabama). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, it is good to be back tonight to talk on an issue that is really very, very dear to my heart. We have got an exciting day. In fact, I do not think I could even, though it is a late hour, I do not think I could go home and sleep tonight in anticipation of a historic moment tomorrow when we will finally deliver on a promise that has been made to our seniors, and that is a prescription drug benefit under Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to start out by maybe addressing some of the remarks that I just heard made from the other side, and it is the kind of remarks which I would really refer to as ''Mediscare'' comments. I just heard the gentlewoman from Texas refer to the government not being able to set prices. I think that is exactly what the Democrats tried to do in 1993 under ''Hillary care.'' They wanted the government to set prices. They wanted a one-size-fits-all, essentially a national health insurance program, and the people of this great country rejected that.

Another comment I have heard them say just repeatedly is this business about, well, who is going to benefit from this prescription drug availability for our seniors, who is going to benefit the most, and they keep saying, well, it is the drug companies, the evil, greedy drug companies. Well, of course, no duh. Who makes the drugs? Who has made this country the greatest Nation on Earth in regard to having access to life-saving drugs? The pharmaceutical industry. Who do we expect? Who does the other side expect to provide these drugs? The chocolate cookie company or the potato chip factory? No, it is the pharmaceutical industry, of course.

Did they say the same thing in 1965, 40 years ago when Medicare was first enacted, that gosh, you know, we cannot do this, this program because who is going to benefit the most from Medicare part A, the evil hospitals, the evil skilled nursing homes; or who is going to benefit the most from Medicare part B, the doctors? Absolutely the doctors. They are the ones that provide health care.

So this argument about the drug company being the big beneficiary, it is absolutely bogus. Sure they are going to provide drug coverage, sell more drugs certainly, but the price of those drugs, Mr. Speaker, is going to come down. Their profit margin per sale is going to be drastically reduced. So, again, we hear these arguments over and over again, and it truly is nothing but ''Mediscare.''

Another argument we hear, and we have been hearing it today, we will probably hear it all day tomorrow and as long as this debate goes on, is the Republicans want to take Medicare away; they want to destroy Medicare as we know it. Of course, they like to throw in the infamous ''P'' word. As far as destroying Medicare as we know it, let us talk just a little bit about Medicare as we know it and what my seniors in the 11th Congressional District of Georgia have told me about Medicare as we know it.

It is a good program. It served us well, but it is not 21st-century medicine; and I say that, Mr. Speaker, because, first and foremost, there has never been a prescription drug benefit under Medicare. There has really never been any real meaningful, preventive care under Medicare. It is all episodic. If you get sick, you get to go to the doctor, and the visit is paid for. If something catastrophic happens to you, like a heart attack or a stroke, you get to go to the hospital, and you certainly have the benefit of that hospital stay. If you have a family history of heart disease or you have high cholesterol and you develop coronary artery disease, sure, you get admitted to the hospital; and there is some coverage for you to have that open heart surgery.

It is the same thing for a diabetic patient who unfortunately under Medicare, many of those patients cannot afford to buy their insulin, cannot take their medication, glucophage, something to lower that blood sugar, to keep that disease under control. So they end up going to the hospital; and, yeah, it is paid for, if they have to have a leg cut off or they have to go on dialysis for years because of end-stage renal disease that probably would not have occurred if that diabetes had been checked with timely medication.

So when my colleagues talk about destroying Medicare as we know it, I want to just say to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle and who are opposed to this bill in contradistinction to the opinion and the feeling of 35 million seniors who are members of the American Association of Retired People, the AARP, of which I am proudly a member, they can talk all they want to about burning their membership cards and sounds like back in the 1960s, the people burning their draft card or burning the flag. I mean, if they want to do that, that is fine, but I will guarantee my colleagues that the seniors in this country respect that organization, as we all do and should, because they have certainly delivered for seniors and have a proven track record, and we are not talking about an organization, Mr. Speaker, that is necessarily a bastion of conservatism, that is known for their deep and unending support of Republican issues. That is not true at all. We all know that. The other side knows that, but they are talking about again ''Mediscare,'' trying to scare people when clearly what we are trying to do is not destroy Medicare, but just improve it, improve it with a prescription drug benefit that is long overdue.

The other way we are going to improve it, Mr. Speaker, is we are going to finally put some emphasis on preventive care. We are going to give our seniors a chance to get into a managed care system, an HMO or a PPO, really very similar, in fact, exactly what 435 Members of this House of Representatives and probably 100 Senators in other Chamber, the kind of health care they have. It would be interesting to take a poll and see what they do have. I will guarantee my colleagues, it will be 95 percent or higher have that kind of a coverage where they can go in or their wives or their spouse can go in and have screening tests done for high cholesterol, elevated lipids, osteoporosis screening, colonoscopies, timely mammograms. These are the kinds of things that until just recently none of that was covered under Medicare as we know it, and there still is not really any catastrophic coverage for part A and part B.

Unfortunately, a senior goes into the hospital in any one episode of illness and can only stay a certain number of days. There is a very high copay, but once you have exhausted those days in the hospital or, God forbid, in a skilled nursing home, it happens so often, if a patient has had a stroke, then what happens to our seniors who have worked all of their lives to save up and hope and pray that they will be able to leave a little something to their children or more likely their grandchildren, so that their lives would be a little easier? For the seniors to lose all of that and end up in poverty and end up basically as a ward of the respective States because they have gone broke because of a long stay in a hospital or skilled nursing home, Mr. Speaker, there is something wrong with that picture.

Democrats on the other side of the aisle, they can complain all they want to and try to scare our seniors and talk about taking away Medicare as we know it. We are not taking away Medicare. Traditional Medicare, fee-for-service, that option will remain. It will be there for our seniors, and I am sure there are some that kind of get used to the old system, and they may not want to change. I think we all understand that. Do not for a minute think that they will not have the option to also get this prescription drug benefit if they stay in traditional Medicare.

That is what the other side is trying to do. They are trying to scare seniors into thinking that if they do not move into managed care or Medicare+Choice or advantage type program, that they will not be eligible; they will not get the prescription drug benefit. Mr. Speaker, we know on this side of the aisle, we absolutely know that that is not true.

Again, this is one of the greatest times of my life, and I am so much looking forward tomorrow to this historic piece of legislation and voting enthusiastically for it and for its passage. Make no mistake, I feel every confident that it will pass, and I think at the end of the day we are going to have our colleagues from the other side, no, not all of them, but I think this will be a bipartisan-supported bill because I know that they love the seniors as much as I do.

I am often asked in the districts, Dr. Gingrey, you had a great medical practice and you delivered all those babies, and do you miss it? The answer is, of course I miss it, absolutely. In fact, just yesterday on the floor of this House, my cell phone rang on the silent mode, on the vibrate mode, and I went out to take the call, and it was from the husband of one of my patients whose two children I had delivered. She is now pregnant with their third in about 8½ months and was starting to have some problems, and he just wanted to call Dr. Phil, even though she has got a great doctor, one of my former partners, back home in Marietta, Georgia. I talked to him, an old friend and a patient about his wife. It, of course, made me realize once again how much I do miss that, but this opportunity to come to the Congress of the United States, this 108th Congress and be a part of this great body and have an opportunity tomorrow to cast a vote, to give finally a prescription benefit and to modernize Medicare for 40 million seniors, a third of whom are probably living right at or below the poverty level, who have nothing, nothing, Mr. Speaker, to live on other than Social Security and no health care except basic Medicare. They cannot afford Medigap or their former employer did not offer a health care plan.

So that is what it is all about. That is why I am so excited to be here, and even though I miss my practice, I feel in many ways that this is a high calling, and I am really proud to be here, proud of being part of this majority and working with the leadership of this Congress, with our great Speaker and our great leader and answering the call of President George W. Bush when he said, Men and women of the Congress, we have got to keep this promise.

We tried so hard last year to do that, tried so hard to pass this bill last year, and it did pass the House with the Republican leadership, but what happened on the Senate side? It gets over to the Senate where the Democrats had control, and again, I heard one of my colleagues just a few minutes ago talking about, well, we need to send this bill back for more study, it needs more study. Well, we can study things to death. That is exactly what they did last year. They studied it to death, and we had no bill until we finally now have the leadership in both the House and the Senate, and I think we are going to get the job done this time.

It is like the president of AARP, Mr. Bill Novelli, said, We cannot wait for a perfect bill. There are no perfect bills. Seniors need our help now. They have been needing it for a long, long time.

And this business about waiting for the perfect bill is a total farce. This is a good bill. It is not perfect, but it absolutely is a good bill.

Mr. Speaker, I would now like to yield to one of my colleagues and good friends, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. BEAUPREZ), who has worked very hard on this bill, and I know he is just as excited about its impending passage as I am.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, and he is unnecessarily kind. The gentleman from Georgia is admired by every Member of this House for his tenacity and his dedication and his intelligence and understanding about this bill that we are going to consider on the floor here very shortly.

And the gentleman is correct, I agree with him completely, that this is an historic moment. The gentleman knows full well the history of Medicare, founded with the greatest of intention and the greatest of purpose about 40 years ago. And for most of those 40 years, there has essentially been a very little change in modernization with the bill, with Medicare, with the program, to keep up with the rapidly changing nature of health care and medicine as we deliver it. And that is the dilemma we are in right now.

I am proud that the gentleman is a Member of my class. I am proud he is a Member of this 108th Congress with me. And I am also proud that, as I take a little bit of pride in myself, in coming to this Chamber the gentleman has some real-world experience. I had some experience running businesses before, a family dairy farm, and later on a community bank. And as a community banker, I came in contact with a great number of individuals with a whole lot of different experience. And when I wanted some information about something in particular, I usually went to someone with that particular type experience.

So for me it is especially valuable and important that at a time when we are really talking about making some important reform and modernization to something as personal as important to especially our senior population as their health care, that we have someone like yourself, a doctor, who has supplied that health care to individuals and that we can ask for counsel.

For me, and I expect, for my colleague, because he just related a great story, a great testimony to how personal this issue is for him with his patients, I have two parents at home. And I am fortunate that I still have them. My dad is 85, and mom is 83. They both live in assisted living.

I believe mom has eight prescriptions a day, dad is on nine, and both suffering with some of the things that come with getting a little bit older. But, again, I am grateful that I have them. But their health care, how it is delivered, their insurance coverage, Medicare, is critically important to them. Right now, they do not have a prescription drug plan for Medicare. They had to go get a supplemental plan. And they are at a point in life where any change in how they are doing things is difficult for them to comprehend and understand.

I have a brother, hard to imagine, but I have a brother that is about eligible himself, and it is not going to be very long until some of the rest of us are going to be there too. So it becomes real personal real fast.

And, certainly, as I talk to my constituents back home, as I asked them to give me this job of representing them here so that we could come back here and collectively give them what Medicare has denied them, a prescription drug coverage option, I came back here after listening to folks back in my district who said they wanted prescription drug coverage, yes, but they did not want to be forced into anything.

They wanted to make sure it especially took care of the poorest among us. And I have to admire a lot of the seniors, at least in my district, who recognized that we probably cannot provide everything to everybody 100 percent of the time and pay 100 percent of the cost out of the government. They said, we will pay some of the cost of that, but we want to make sure that for the poorest it is there, and especially for those times in life, those last few weeks, months, maybe years when their health deteriorates and the costs really escalate that we as a Nation are there for them, for what I think most of us call the catastrophic coverage.

Mr. GINGREY. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, for just a moment, I wanted to touch on that point and maybe get the gentleman to elaborate, because I think he really, really hit the key point here, and that is that the major emphasis, as we understand the bill, the major emphasis is on those who need it most.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. I thank the gentleman, for emphasizing that, Mr. Speaker, and I am delighted to hear that, because that is consistently what I heard from our seniors. And not surprisingly, I think our seniors are some of our best citizens. They are the most experienced, and they have lived a full life. They know what it means to be a good citizen and a good American, and they are willing to do their share. But they also want to know that when necessary, if it becomes necessary, that this Nation will be there for them. When they do pass on, they want to be able to pass on in dignity, and they want that same thing for their fellow Americans.

If the gentleman would be so inclined, because I do rely on his expertise, his experience and understanding, especially of this critical issue, which candidly is far too complicated for most of us in this Chamber to fully comprehend, so we have to rely, I think, on experts, and I consider the gentleman one.

Mr. GINGREY. Well, Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman stating that, but, of course, it works both ways, and the gentleman from Colorado is a former farmer and very successful banker and successful businessman. Of course, we physicians need to understand that we are businessmen and women, but far too few of us do understand that.

I will be glad to answer any questions on the medical issues that the gentleman might have, but I am going to ask him some business questions, particularly in regard to the health savings accounts. And he knows a lot about that, having employed a lot of folks. But, yes, I will be happy to respond to any questions the gentleman might have on medical issues.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Well, I look forward to a few minutes of a colloquy here. And if I might begin, one of the issues I heard consistently, and especially from the doctor community, as well as from their patients, was this issue that surrounds the doctor reimbursement rates that we have been dealing with; and the fact that because of apparently low reimbursement rates, many doctors have literally been forced to not accept any more Medicare patients, against their own better wishes, their own training, the oath I think they took.

They simply found themselves, I am told, in a position that they cannot take any more patients. I even had a constituent recently tell me that when her husband became Medicare eligible, he was told he would have to go find someone else to be his doctor. Now, is that the case? And if indeed it is the case, I ask the gentleman, are we addressing it in this legislation?

Mr. GINGREY. Well, the gentleman is so right, Mr. Speaker, and physicians who take Medicare patients really do so out of great compassion. I do not think they would be doctors if they did not love people and want to care for them. But, of course, as I just mentioned a few minutes ago, they are businessmen and women and they have got practice overhead, not the least of which, as the gentleman knows, is the high cost of malpractice insurance.

We tried to address that issue, did we not, earlier, way back in February or March; trying to get some meaningful tort reform; just trying to balance the playing field? And we got practically no help from the other side. And with those kinds of escalating expenses and decreases in Medicare reimbursement, as the gentleman knows, I think the physicians were scheduled in 2004 and 2005 to take another 4.5 percent cut in Medicare reimbursement for each of those 2 years, on top of what has already happened in a downward trend when their practice expenses are going up.

I have often said to people that ask me about this, the excitement about getting a prescription benefit under Medicare, and the reason why we cannot just do that as a stand-alone part D of Medicare, if you will, run by the government and price setting by the government, the reason we cannot do that is because we just cannot afford it. We literally cannot afford that. And if we do that, and we continue to cut the reimbursements to the physicians, what will happen is there will be no physicians out there, except in Medicare patients.

The primary care physicians, the general internists, and these are the physicians who are on the lowest income scale of our profession, they are just going to throw up their hands and say we cannot continue to lose money doing this, and all of a sudden our patients, our seniors, have prescription benefits but nobody to write the prescriptions.

So I am so glad the gentleman asked the question, because in this bill that is part of the modernization piece. We are going to make sure that we keep these doctors in the system.

Are they getting rich off of Medicare patients? Absolutely not. The other side wants to suggest that there are winners and losers in this modernization of Medicare and the prescription drug benefit. I suggest to them that we are all winners. Very modest winners. The major one, of course, as it should be, are our seniors, and especially our neediest seniors.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Well, the gentleman has already acknowledged, Mr. Speaker, that I have been a community banker, and as a community banker, I, of course, see financial statements from various people, some of them doctors. And I know full well that while it may appear that they have significant revenue, so too do they have significant expense. My own personal physician back home told me, a very compassionate man, that, unfortunately, he could not take any more Medicare patients, and that grieved him greatly.

Let me ask the gentleman very specifically, because this question has come up a lot. Cancer docs: A growing population and a growing need out there. They seem to be quite concerned about what this bill does to them or does not do to them. Have we addressed that critical issue in this legislation?

Mr. GINGREY. Well, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is asking a great question. And, of course, what they are saying too, as the gentleman from Colorado has asked, is what is it going to do; what is this bill going to do to their patients? Not so much their bottom line, but the patients who are stricken with cancer.

And, of course, a lot of those cancer patients have been here, have been to Washington, and some of them, God bless them, in the midst of their chemotherapy; having lost their hair and maybe not looking as good as they would like to look physically. They got on that plane, flew up to Washington, and a lot of them came along with their doctors and talked to us about that. They wanted to make sure that we understood that, yes, they agree that certain changes needed to be made in regard to how they were reimbursed for cancer care, but they wanted to make sure, though, that they could keep their offices open and continue to provide that community cancer care. Because if they could not, if they had to close their doors and be denied the opportunity to see those patients, where would they go? Would they go back to the hospital? I am not sure. I think it is very likely that many of them would not get care; would not get care in a timely fashion.

So we have worked very closely with and we have listened to these patients, patients suffering from leukemia and breast cancer and bone cancer. We know, of course, that today there are medications that in some instances can yield a long remission for these patients and, with the help of God, occasionally a cure. Here again, years ago, when Medicare first started, there was no cancer chemotherapy. That just did not exist. And it would be a shame today if one of these seniors who is receiving chemotherapy, and that is actually one of few drugs that is covered under current Medicare Part B, because it is administered by a physician in an intravenous fashion, but if we did not have these kinds of benefits, what would happen? These patients would die, pure and simple.

So we have listened to the doctors, we have listened to their patients, and the answer to the question the gentleman from Colorado is asking is, I think they are pretty satisfied. They are going to take a significant hit on this bill, but I think they understand that for the overall good, for the greater good, they are willing to make those sacrifices. So I think they are going to be fairly pleased with the bill.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for that comprehensive answer. Once again, that issue is very personal as cancer has touched members of my family, as it has probably touched members of almost every family in this great Nation.

I would like to pursue one more issue regarding reimbursement rates and that is in regard to our hospitals, and even more specifically rural hospitals because it has become apparent to me that we do have a significant issue with the tens of thousands of usually small, more rural hospitals around this great land. And I believe in the gentleman's opening comments he made reference to an issue I am also aware of, and that is from the patient's side how Medicare up to now has treated extended hospital stays.

I would like the gentleman to address that greater issue of hospitals, specifically rural hospitals, and then extended stay for patients and how Medicare does or does not take care of them currently and what this legislation would provide.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I am glad that the gentleman asked about that because in the hospital payment system, there has been this disparity for a long time. The rural hospitals and the rural physicians, those doctors who are practicing in an area outside of a metropolitan service area or a big city, they are reimbursed for the exact same service at a lower rate than a doctor who might be practicing in Boston or Atlanta or Denver, and there is just something wrong with that system. Again, that has been addressed.

In fact, if the gentleman will allow me to read here, there are hospitals referred to as disproportionate share facilities, by that I mean a disproportionate share of Medicare and Medicaid patients in their population. Some of these hospitals are in small towns, and I know in my district and probably the gentleman's district, but I know for sure in southwest and northwest Georgia, the 17 counties that I represent, in some of the towns in the county, the hospital is the major employer in town. It is the only source of revenue and health care. When they are seeing mostly Medicare and Medicaid patients, and there is not much industry so there is not much good, private health insurance, they do not have full pay rather than deeply discounted pay that we have under Medicare and Medicaid, and if we continue to treat them in an unfair manner, not only does health care go away, but jobs go away as well.

Here is one thing that I wanted to read in regard to what we are doing about this problem: ''The bipartisan agreement modifies Medicare's payments for those hospitals that furnish care to a disproportionate share of low-income and uninsured patients. Currently, the disproportionate share hospital adjustment paid to rural and small urban hospitals is capped at 5.25 percent. The bipartisan agreement increases the rural and small urban cap to 12 percent.''

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for that, and as I think about Colorado and the eastern plains and smaller mountain communities, that is good news for many folks back home because I am sure they will fit in that category.

If I can shift gears a little bit and continue this probing of the gentleman's wealth of knowledge and personal experience, let us talk a little bit, a big evolution in the past 40 years in medicine has been the importance placed on preventive medicine. My doctor tells me get your physical, exercise and watch your nutrition; and it is my understanding that as we age, preventive medicine is even more important, and yet another glaring weakness in Medicare, at least at the moment, has been a lack of coverage for many preventive medicines that most of us think of as fairly routine. I believe the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) who is an expert in this field as well has been a big proponent of incorporating preventive health care within Medicare. And my question is: Have we managed to accomplish that?

Mr. GINGREY. As Members know, the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) is the chairman of the Subcommittee on Health on the Committee on Ways and Means. What many Members may not know is her husband is a retired OB–GYN physician. She is very knowledgeable about this issue. I have told Members if they do not understand the bill, and it is 1,100 pages, parts of it are arcane, and it is not necessary for every Member to understand every bit of minutia, but of course they need to understand the things that are important, and the gentlewoman has been a great resource to me.

In regard to medication, let me get personal. I had open heart surgery right after I won my election, just a month before we were sworn in. I think back and wonder if a senior, I am not there yet, I am getting pretty close, but if a senior at age 65 who was used to managed care and that attention, which has been described as prevention, not just episodic, let us say that they had the same kind of coverage that most Members of Congress have today, all of a sudden they turn 65 and Medicare, as we know it, and we have heard it before, we will hear it tomorrow, I am sure, and Medicare as we know it is taking over their care, and they have been on a cholesterol-lowering drug, we call them statins, or maybe they have been on something to prevent osteoporosis, and then all of a sudden they do not get that. All of a sudden they are on Medicare, and Medicare is primary. They do not have Medigap. Their employer did not give them health care in their retirement, and all of a sudden they are on Medicare and they have no coverage. Those are the very patients that were getting the benefit of the drug for osteoporosis prevention or to lower cholesterol. I am telling Members within 5 to 10 years, they will end up with coronary artery blockage. And when they go in the hospital then, sure, it will pay for open heart surgery. Or if they fall and break their hip and have an extended stay in the hospital, it will pay for that, but who wants that? That is why I have said a lot of times about this bill in commending the President for bringing this to us, this is compassionate conservatism, and I emphasize compassionate in its finest hour.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. I think the gentleman puts that very well. Not only does it make fiscal sense, as we have an obligation in this body to exercise, spending the taxpayers' money wisely, but we are providing better quality of life and better health care to our seniors, especially in this case, by allowing them to have access to preventive care which is less expensive earlier in life rather than taking care of the manifestation of disease later in life. Would that be a fair statement?

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, that is exactly right. The gentleman was talking about rural hospitals, and we talked about the disproportionate share, and I explained that, but let me just read a letter that was written to our Speaker from the Rural Hospital Coalition in regard to the gentleman's question earlier: " Dear Speaker HASTERT, The Rural Hospital Coalition, which is comprised of more than 150 rural hospitals in America, applauds your leadership in working in a bipartisan fashion to achieve a compromise Medicare bill. We support your efforts to modernize Medicare and give senior citizens a prescription drug benefit that they deserve.

"Most importantly, this bill strengthens health care in rural America. For that alone, you should be proud.

"We urge all Members of Congress to support the compromise Medicare Prescription Drug and Modernization bill. It reforms a Medicare system that has for far too long reimbursed rural hospitals at a lower rate than their urban counterparts for the exact same services. Passage of this conference report will give rural physicians, nurses, clinics, and hospitals a fair shake when it comes to the Medicare payments. It will create a financially stronger hospital for rural communities, provide more jobs, and provide more services.

"Thank you again for your leadership to get this legislation this far. The Rural Hospital Coalition appreciates your strong leadership on rural health care issues and looks forward to working with you to see it is enacted into law in the very near future.

"On behalf of the Rural Hospital Coalition, sincerely yours, William F. Carpenter, senior vice president."

This is really exactly where we are. And I said when we began our colloquy that I wanted to ask the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. BEAUPREZ) an important question as well. As a businessman, having been in the banking business and very successful in what he does, I wanted to get his opinion about the health savings accounts. There are a lot of things in this bill that people do not want to talk about; they do not want to talk about the good. They want to just kind of confuse folks with, as I say, "Mediscare" rhetoric; but there are so many things in this bill, we could probably talk about it for 2 hours. But would the gentleman tell us a little bit about health savings accounts and what he thinks that will mean to the uninsured in this country.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I am attempting to not overstate or overemphasize my enthusiasm for health savings accounts. But I honestly believe that this may be as revolutionary an action that this body has considered in a very long time. The concept is a fairly simple and straightforward one, but it is so revolutionary that I think it bears some very careful consideration, and I thank the gentleman for his question.

This is simply a personal account whereby an individual can make a tax-free, before-tax, contribution to that account, year after year, skip if they like, but an account that can accrue over time. It is again tax free going in. The earnings, the interest that is accrued on that account is tax free, and the real key is on the back end as long as they spend it for health care, it is likewise tax free. What that means is that over time that account can grow, and I think we are all familiar with 401(k)s and IRAs and those incentive mechanisms that this great body in previous Congresses has enacted to encourage us to save for retirement.

Likewise, this encourages us to save, but coming out the back end, it is still tax free. They never ever pay a dime of tax on the money going in, the earnings on that money over however extended a period of time it happens to be, nor on the money as it comes out to pay for long-term health care, for specialty surgery, for catastrophic care, for whatever that individual finds himself in a situation to want or need in their advanced years.

What this really does in my mind is what has been lacking in much of our health care system, and I am talking about the larger system now, and that is the empowering of the individual to control their own destiny, their money, their choices, their decision. It puts the patient and the doctor, as we have said for years, ever closer together and the patient in control of their dollars. Further, it provides an enormous incentive, and I do not know how we provide a larger incentive, an enormous incentive for individuals to do this.

Now, perhaps the biggest component of this is not only can individuals deposit into these accounts, so too can family members. So if I want to contribute to my parents in their advanced years as they certainly contributed to me in my younger years, that is not only allowed, it is incented and invited. Because I get to do that tax free as well. Further, if I wanted to downstream it, I have a grandson, a 3-year-old grandson, who is about to have a birthday next week. A nice birthday present might be to make a contribution to his health savings account which will grow and grow and grow over the young man's life.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding too that in these accounts, that money that the gentleman described is growing at compound interest, the tax on that is deferred, and that this money of course can be used, as I understand it, for anything related to health. I mean, it can do the things that a lot of people are now spending money on for the so-called Medigap insurance. It could take care of that. It is my understanding also that one could pay for long-term care, to purchase a long-term care policy out of that account. Is that also the gentleman's understanding?

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, that is exactly my understanding and exactly correct, and I think even more to the point, it gets at health care as it is provided today, the long-term care, the assisted living facilities, exactly what my parents are going through.

Now, there is one additional item. Before I came to this body, I was an employer. The gentleman cited that. I had about 160 employees. And we provided not only the normal salary compensation, but benefits as well, health care being one of those. 401(k) matching contribution being one of those. And we were also looking for other ways to take care, if the gentleman will, to compensate, provide benefits to our employees. This health savings account allows an employer to make tax-free contributions as well to this health savings account. So what we have is the opportunity for funds from multiple directions incented, inspired to help out an individual, a particular individual, that will be there for them later in life when they most need it; and if it is unused, it can be passed on to their heirs tax free.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman points out, we are saying that this Medicare Prescription Drug and Modernization conference committee report of 2003, which we are going to vote on tomorrow, it is not just to the benefit of our seniors. Of course that is very important to provide this prescription drug benefit, as the gentleman pointed out, especially to the neediest. But it helps our younger workers as well, does it not? I think there are maybe 40 million, maybe it is 43 million now uninsured. I started to say unemployed, but the truth is 65 percent of the uninsured, no health insurance, are employed. They have got jobs. They are working hard. They go to work every day. But their employer, maybe it is a small shop, five, 10, 15 people, they cannot go out in the marketplace and afford to buy that policy, that first dollar coverage or $500 deductible. It is just too expensive, and they cannot individually afford to do it either.

But this opportunity the gentleman describes is going to be a tremendous help to our workers at whatever age and, finally, they are going to get an opportunity to get health care. As the gentleman pointed out, or I heard someone say earlier in the week that in the history of the rental car industry, nobody has ever paid to have their oil changed. And, of course, what they are implying is that if you do not have some ownership, you are not going to be as good a shopper, you are not going to do the due diligence, you are not going to take care of yourself quite as well as if it is your money and it is growing and it is in that account, and you know that later on you might need that for, as the gentleman pointed out, long-term health insurance. So you are going to shop. You are going to go out in the market. You are going to make sure that you find the best doctors and the best hospitals. And just because they are lower-priced, that does not mean they are not good. In many instances, lower is better.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I think that the doctor says it very well. This addresses a good conservative principle. We as the Federal Government are willing to forego some tax revenue from individuals, but believing in individuals to manage their own funds and then make their own choices, rather than have choices made for them by government. I think that is good conservative principle. I think it will help us hold down eventually the cost of health care. But it is such a powerful incentive for folks all over the age spectrum from again, my grandson, who is going to be 3 years old next week, to my parents, who are in their 80s.

Mr. Speaker, might I pursue at least one or two more questions with the gentleman, if he has time.

Mr. GINGREY. Of course, certainly.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, the question of prescription drugs, if I can return to it, the question exists of choice and whether it is voluntary or not voluntary. I will cite my parents again. They, obviously, do not have prescription drug coverage in Medicare now, so they have gone out and purchased their own policy. Frankly, I do not think they would like it very much if I told them, well, the policy you have now does not exist any more because you have to take Medicare.

Are we forcing anybody to take this prescription drug plan, or do they have a choice?

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, absolutely. The gentleman is asking about the choice issue, and that is what is so important.

Mr. Speaker, back in 1988, we were not here. We just got here as freshmen. But I do remember when there was some attempt to include catastrophic coverage under Medicare. I think that was an important thing to look at. But the mistake that Congress made at that time is they passed a law that included, for the first time, catastrophic coverage. But there was no choice. All seniors had to have that coverage. Their Part B, Medicare Part B premiums just went through the roof. And there was much, much concern about that. We learn lessons.

This program, this Medicare modernization and prescription drug program, is all about choice. It is all about choice. In fact, a senior, and I am sure some will, will decide to stay in traditional Medicare, something they have been used to; maybe they turned 65 20 years ago and they just do not want to go to the trouble, if you will, and get out of their comfort zone. They may decide not to even take the prescription drug benefit. Certainly they can; they have that option, as well as the option to remain in the Medicare fee-for-service, the traditional Medicare program.

But as the gentleman points out, and I am so glad he asked the question, it is all about choice. We know that a third of our 40 million plus Medicare beneficiaries, they do not have any health insurance. They do not have that employer plan. They are not retired military. They do not have Tricare. They cannot afford Medigap insurance. Their only income is a Social Security check, and their only health coverage is your basic, traditional fee-for-service Medicare.

So we are giving them the opportunity, and I think under the circumstances it is so important that the gentleman brings that up. That is what is going to make this program so successful. It is not a one-size-fits-all. We are not forcing anybody into anything.

Now, certainly, I would love to see seniors, and when I turn 65, I am going to look very carefully at a managed care, Medicare advantage where I know that I can go and get disease management benefits and a lot of screening for things and, hopefully, some catastrophic coverage.

So the gentleman is absolutely right. The keystone of this thing is choice, from start to finish.

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for this opportunity for this colloquy and certainly for his expertise. I am certainly comfortable with this bill. The gentleman said it earlier. It may not be perfect; only history will determine whether or not it is perfect. But I certainly think it is good enough. I think we have made huge strides in the direction that my seniors and my own intuition tell me we need to step, and I will be comfortable in supporting the passage of this bill.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Colorado for being with us and helping to bring a little bit sharper focus on this bill. Because our seniors need to know, they need to be well-informed, and I think they are going to feel a lot better, those who have a little insomnia tonight and maybe had an opportunity to watch this late-night show on the medicare modernization and prescription drug act.

Mr. Speaker, there are so many people that are supporting this bill, so many organizations. As I mentioned earlier, the AARP and 35 million seniors; the American Medical Association, which represents 330,000 physicians. But even more important than that, they treat 280 million Americans and lots of seniors.

Listen to this letter. I want to real briefly read this letter. Real quickly, this is one from the United States Chamber of Commerce. Here is what they say:

The United States Chamber of Commerce applauded word that House and Senate leaders, along with the administration, have reached an agreement to bring a Medicare conference bill to the floor for a final vote. Quote: ‘‘With employers being the source of retirement health care for 12 million seniors, it is critical this bill allows businesses the flexibility to integrate the new prescription drug benefit to their existing retiree health benefits, while allowing opportunities to partner with Medicare. The Chamber is pleased this bill is nearing final approval and welcomes congressional and administration action to modernize the Medicare program and ensure its long-term viability for future generations. The final Medicare conference report is expected to include significant reforms to modernize the Medicare program structure and delivery system by emphasizing quality care, establish a much-needed prescription drug benefit, and offer preventive health care services and disease management.''

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, as I said last night, this bill, this bipartisan effort; and yes, it is bipartisan, and we will have support on both sides of the aisle, this is all about compassion. We hear concerns about cost and certainly we are all concerned about cost and wanting to keep that down as much as we can. But this $400 billion new benefit under Medicare, I say this: it is going to only cost $400 billion if it does not work, and this is what I mean by that. You spend the money on taking timely prescription medications, and some of our neediest seniors need three or four pills a day, could be spending $600, $700 a month on prescription drugs. But if that will keep them out of the hospital, if that will prevent them from having a stroke; we heard earlier tonight from the Congressional Black Caucus talking about the fact that African Americans are more prone to have high blood pressure. Well, they ought to be so enthusiastic about this bill, we ought to have 100 percent support from the Congressional Black Caucus, because it is true, it is true that they suffer, particularly African American males, more from hypertension. And what happens? They end up in too many cases, far too many cases suffering from a stroke. What kind of life is that, no matter how long they live after, possibly not able to move one side of their body or utter a word.

So as this President has said to us, Mr. Speaker, this is all about compassion and caring, and caring for the most precious seniors that are so important to all of us. So, yes, I am very excited. I will probably leave here in a few minutes and go home and lay awake for another couple of hours because I cannot wait to vote for this bill tomorrow. I am an OB/GYN physician, and I want to be able to say to my constituents and to the seniors of America, The real Dr. Phil, he delivered.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

THE WAR IN IRAQ

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Alabama). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) is recognized for half the time to midnight, which is 15 minutes. If the Majority Leader does not claim the remainder of the time, the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts for an additional 15 minutes.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I am joined here tonight by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. MCDERMOTT), and I anticipate that another colleague of ours, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE), will also be here. We are here tonight to discuss the situation, the mess, if you will, that unfortunately we find ourselves mired in, not just in Iraq, but in Afghanistan.

But before we proceed, I think, in response to what I heard from Dr. Phil, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY), my dear friend, I think we should warn the seniors that if this bill passes tomorrow, they better stay healthy because that prescription drug benefit will not take effect this year, it will not take effect in 2004, nor will it take effect in 2005. So make sure that if you are unhealthy, you go visit your State services; see if there is a program at the State level that can get you through to 2006. Because when you go to your druggist in the next several months or in 2004 and 2005, they are going to tell you, sorry, sorry, you do not have the benefit. And we hope that you do have the benefit in 2006, but, of course, if the Republican leadership and the White House continue to pass large, massive tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans, maybe you will not even have it then.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. MCDERMOTT), my friend and colleague.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) for having this session tonight. I come out here, it is 11:35 at night. You ask yourself, why does a Congressman come into the well at 11:30 at night to talk about Iraq. Well, today was an absolutely stunning day. And I will submit into the RECORD an article in the Guardian Newspaper from Thursday, November 20, entitled, ''War Critics Astonished as U.S. Hawk Admits Invasion was Illegal.''

Mr. Speaker, now in an absolutely stunning statement today, Richard Perle, who has been the chairman of the Defense Policy Board, this is the board that talks to the President about what he should do with defense, today he said, ''I think in this case international law stood in the way of doing the right thing.'' Now, consider what that means. International law says what we are doing is illegal, but we are going to go ahead and do it anyway because we made the decision that what we think is more important than international law.

[From The Guardian, Nov. 20, 2003]

WAR CRITICS ASTONISHED AS U.S. HAWK ADMITS INVASION WAS ILLEGAL

(By Oliver Burkeman and Julian Borger)

International lawyers and anti-war campaigners reacted with astonishment yesterday after the influential Pentagon hawk Richard Perle conceded that the invasion of Iraq had been illegal.

In a startling break with the official White House and Downing Street lines, Mr. Perle told an audience in London: ''I think in this case international law stood in the way of doing the right thing.''

President George Bush has consistently argued that the war was legal either because of existing UN security council resolutions on Iraq—also the British government's publicly stated view—or as an act of self-defence permitted by international law.

But Mr. Perle, a key member of the defence policy board, which advises the US defence secretary, Donald Rumsfeld, said that ''international law . . . would have required us to leave Saddam Hussein alone'', and this would have been morally unacceptable. French intrasigence, he added, meant there had been ''no practical mechanism consistent with the rules of the UN for dealing with Saddam Hussein''.

Mr. Perle, who was speaking at an event organised by the Institute of Contemporary Arts in London, had argued loudly for the toppling of the Iraqi dictator since the end of the 1991 Gulf war.

They're just not interested in international law, are they?'' said Linda Hugl, a spokeswoman for the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, which launched a high court challenge to the war's legality last year. ''It's only when the law suits them that they want to use it.''

Mr. Perle's remarks bear little resemblance to official justifications for war, according to Rabinder Singh QC, who represented CND and also participated in Tuesday's event.

Certainly the British government, he said, ''has never advanced the suggestion that it is entitled to act, or right to act, contrary to international law in relation to Iraq''.

The Pentagon adviser's views, he added, underlined ''a divergence of view between the British government and some senior voices in American public life [who] have expressed the view that, well, if it's the case that international law doesn't permit unilateral pre-emptive action without the authority of the UN, then the defect is in international law''.

Mr. Perle's view is not the official one put forward by the White House. Its main argument has been that the invasion was justified under the UN charter, which guarantees the right of each state to self-defence, including pre-emptive self-defence. On the night bombing began, in March, Mr. Bush reiterated America's ''sovereign authority to use force'' to defeat the threat from Baghdad. The UN secretary general, Kofi Annan, has questioned that justification, arguing that the security . . .

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, if I could interrupt, I think that is not only damning, but diminishes the prestige of the United States in terms of the world. There was a French man by the name of Alexis de Tocqueville that years ago as he was traveling through our Nation, our country, made the observation that America is great because America is good. And implicit in that observation is the acknowledgment that the United States respects the rule of law. If we do not have the rule of law, we have a jungle. And just imagine in this time where weapons of mass destruction are a threat to every human being, we just abrogate conventions, treaties, and ignore it is a national law. To me that is a profoundly damning statement.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I think that says a lot about why we are in the problem we are in. Because Perle went on to say that international law would have required us to leave Saddam Hussein alone. He admits it. International law would have required us to leave Saddam Hussein alone.

Now, how can the President of the United States come before us and present this as an imminent danger and all this stuff when the law says you cannot do it? He did not want to go to the United Nations. We understand why he did not want to go to the United Nations. Why? If he had had to stand up to international law, he would never have been able to do this.

Perle went on to say, this is unbelievable, really, when you think about it, he said, ''A divergence of view between the British Government and some senior voices in American public life who have expressed the view that, well, if it is the case that international law does not permit unilateral preemptive action without authority of the U.N., then the defect is in the international law.''

Now, that is like driving down the highway and saying, well, I am in a hurry, and the speed says I can only go 40. The defect is in that sign. It is in the ordinance. I should be able to go 60 when I am in a hurry. I should not have to pay any attention. This country was hell bent to get into war. And they got into war.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I think it is important to be very clear it was not this Nation, hopefully not even our President. But it was some within the administration that had a plan, a plan that would bring democracy, if you will, to the Middle East. And therefore, in the aftermath of 9/11, they were looking for a rationale that would somehow create a situation where the United States would intervene militarily in Iraq. That is, at least, my opinion. And I know that is shared by others.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, well, I think you and I and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) all voted no on this. So when I say our ''country,'' I was really referring to the President. You are absolutely right. It was he and his advisors, a very small group around him known as neocons who believed from the day after 9/11, on 9/12 they started talking about how they could go to war in Iraq. And they had the most powerful military in the world and they knew they were going to win the battle, so to speak. But they had no plan for what they would do after that. They did not have one generator, one water purifier, one policeman, one anything ready to put on the ground to bring security and civil society back in Iraq.

And the mess we are into now is really about this. That is why it is so good that the gentleman brought this up tonight.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Let me just say this, I think all of us voted to intervene militarily in Afghanistan. And I know that the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) did because we did have a right to intervene militarily there. We knew that al Qaeda had found a safe haven provided for bit extremist Taliban government. We had every right. Unfortunately, because of the impetus to intervene in Iraq and the decision to intervene militarily in Iraq, we now find ourselves with a real mess, parts of that $87 billion mess in Iraq. And the comments from both sides of the aisle, from people like Senator HAGEL, Senator LUGAR, people such as the chair of the Committee on Appropriations, Subcommittee on Defense, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), and others respected, deplore and have articulated their profound concern about the fact that Afghanistan, where we should be with substantial force, is on the verge of once again becoming a failed state.

When the question is posed, did we ever win the war on terror, I fear that the answer will be we won it and then we lost it in Afghanistan. And I would request or ask my friend, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) if he wishes to comment.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I do. And I have come here based on some conversations I have had in the last couple of weeks with the father of a soldier who was killed in Iraq, the wife of a soldier who was killed in Iraq from the State of Washington. I met about a week and a half ago with a soldier with a shattered leg over in Walter Reed, actually two soldiers with shattered legs; and that is one of the great, unfortunately, hidden tragedies of this war the number of terrible injuries that have come out of it. That has been kind of hidden, and I think it is unfortunate that folks do not understand how terrible these young men are being injured. In part because of our tremendous medical care, we have saved people that never would have lived in previous wars, but they come away with some terrible injuries.

But the reason I came here tonight is just to say that the U.S. Congress owes it to these men and women in uniform who are serving proudly tonight to not ignore them and not give up trying to help resolve this mess, and that silence is not an option for the U.S. Congress. We took a vote but that was only the start of our obligation to these people who are serving in Iraq tonight. And I just have two messages that I hope the administration would listen to to try to get out of this mess.

One is to finally develop a meaningful plan, to develop a recognizable, credible Iraqi government so that the Iraqi people could have some credibility in the government, so that hopefully at some point we can bring our men and women home; and they are still on the wrong path failing in that fundamental obligation. Our mission is doomed there until this administration has a workable plan to develop a credible government in Iraq. They have failed in that fundamental mission, in a stumbling, bumbling mechanism.

I will state, we stood in a meeting room about a hundred yards from here very shortly before the war started and said, Where is your plan for postwar Iraq? Where is your plan for establishing a credible government in Iraq so that we can bring our troops home?

Do you know what their answer was? We are starting to think about that. And that is not too much of a paraphrase of what they told us. And now they still are making a fundamental mistake of thinking that we can establish a government by our order as to who will be the governing authority without the involvement of the international community.

We still need to get international folks of other countries involved in there to help develop a credible government. And until we do that, we are not going to win the hearts and minds of the people no matter how many thousand-pound bombs we drop.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. The gentleman raises the question about what the plan was before the war. There was a lot of talk in the government that they wanted to use a guy named Chalabi. And I asked some Iraqis in the United States here about whether Chalabi would be the right guy. They said he is hated by the Kurds. He is hated by the Sunnis. He is hated by the Shia. Maybe it is a good idea to put him in there because he is gone. We are putting all our eggs in Chalabi's basket.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I have some very bad news for the gentleman then. If we accept the idea or the conclusion that he is gone, because Ahmed Chalabi is not gone. There was a report today in the New York Times, and let me vote quote the relevant portion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Alabama). The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) is recognized for an additional 15 minutes.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I am quoting from today's New York Times regarding this new temporary, tentative, possible plan.

Another possibility some in the administration say is that Iraq could evolve towards a political compromise forced by the exile Ahmed Chalabi, Chalabi might manage to stitch together pro-Iranian groups, Kurds and others into a government, a top administration official predicted recently that in that event Mr. Chalabi, who set up an office for his opposition group in Tehran before the American invasion of Iraq, could become the first prime minister.

Well, I guess the question is, who is Ahmed Chalabi? Well, to go back to the comments that the gentleman made earlier regarding Mr. Perle, he and Mr. Perle are very close, are allied together. They have had a long relationship. Mr. Perle some believe is the, if you will, the author or the architect of this policy, described Mr. Chalabi in the most effusive of terms, as if he were going to be the George Washington of Iraq.

What the American people are unaware of, however, is that Mr. Chalabi fled Iraq, went to Jordan, got into the banking business, and was convicted of the crime of embezzling some $70 million.

Now, I am not particularly conversant with the Jordanian legal system, but I know this, that Mr. Chalabi has a sentence hanging over his head from a Jordanian court of some 22 years.

Now, our relationship with Jordan has been a positive one, and we see some incipient signs of democracy there. When King Abdallah came here, I inquired of him, Were you ever consulted by the Department of State or anyone in the White House about the appointment of this convicted felon according to Jordanian law in terms of his appointment to the Iraqi governing council? And he said, No, Mr. Congressman, I was not.

What a great way to create good will among our allies in the war against terrorism. Who is Ahmed Chalabi? And top administration is suggesting that he might be the next prime minister when he has absolutely no support among the Iraqi people, none at all. He lived in London after he fled Jordan for decades.

I am really concerned about the mess we are in.

Mr. INSLEE. If I may inquire, basically what we have is it sounds like the only international support the administration has had to try to help establish a new Iraqi government is a fellow from London, Mr. Chalabi, and that is not what we think we need when it comes to international support to try and establish a government. Because we know that ultimately to bring our men and women home, we are going to have to be in a position where there is a secure government that has some degree of trust to the Iraqi people. And the one thing we know is a decision, a unilateral decision by the United States to decide who that is is not working at the moment.

We believe and have been arguing now since the beginning of hostilities that involving the international community to help establish a definition who is going to be at the table when the constitution is adopted, when the elections are set up, are going to help get the hearts and minds of the Iraqi people which ultimately we need to succeed in this mission.

So we are here again tonight urging the administration to learn from past problems and indeed mistakes. One of those mistakes has been acting with such unilateralism, and unilateralism to date has resulted in folks allegedly running Iraq with no security and no credibility. So we will continue to beat that drum, and we hope at some point the administration will learn from these past errors.

I want to mention another thing, too, that I hope that Congress does not lose sight of its responsibility to the men and women in Iraq tonight. Those men and women deserve to know why Americans did not get the straight scoop before this war started, and we just began just the baby step for Congress to start to get to the root of why Americans were told things that were not true before this war started. We owe this to the people in the field right now in Iraq, and we are going to call on the administration to stop stonewalling on that investigation.

We have been trying to get multiple documents. We are not getting that, and it is interesting to me, when a true patriot, Joe Wilson, who was an ambassador, who was called a hero by the first President Bush for serving as the last counselor in Iraq, who stood up to Saddam Hussein and maybe saved hundreds of Americans before the first Persian Gulf War, when he helped blow the whistle and indicate there had been a mistake in the State of the Union address that came from that podium out to the American people, when he helped demonstrate that there had been a mistake made by the President as to what he said when he said that there was this uranium in Africa, what did the administration do? Instead of thanking Mr. Wilson for helping correct a mistake that the President had made on a pivotal issue and on which they had hung the hat to start this war, instead somebody in the administration, and we better darn well find out who blew the cover on Mr. Wilson's wife as a CIA agent, and that is the type of attitude to date this administration has in getting to the bottom of why we did not get the truth before this war started.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. My colleagues are both lawyers. My understanding is they broke a law. It is a felony. Somebody broke the law.

Mr. INSLEE. It appears that there could have been a felony committed; but even if there was not a felony committed, this administration, instead of thanking Mr. Wilson for correcting this grievous mistake that the President made in the State of the Union address, I do not recall he has ever thanked Mr. Wilson. Instead, they have hunkered down and they have refused to recognize that this war was started on the basis of false information given to the American people, and we need to know and the people serving in Iraq tonight deserve to know how and why that happened because it should not happen again.

Now, if, in fact, it was a simple failure of intelligence by the CIA, and that the White House, all they did was convey to us the purest, most virginal intelligence given to them by the CIA, we need to know that; but if, in fact, that was not the case, if, in fact, it was the case that they took information and exaggerated it, stretched it, fudged it, told us things were certain when there was doubt, we need to know that, too; and this Congress has an obligation to get to the bottom of it. I hope that we have just started that process.

With that, I need to bid adieu.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for joining us tonight and thank him for his input. I think he goes to the issue of credibility.

Recently, there was a report by a conservative magazine, the Weekly Standard, that said case closed. They established a memorandum that was leaked. Somehow, in their calculation, it was conclusive as to links between Saddam Hussein and Osama bin Laden.

The gentleman from Washington (Mr. MCDERMOTT) circulated a memorandum to all of us here in the House with a statement from the Department of Defense. If the gentleman wants to give us a synopsis, I would be fascinated, and I hope those who are listening would pay attention.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. It basically absolutely contradicted what has come out of this Weekly Standard article, and in fact, the Weekly Standard is really the mouthpiece for the neocons, Perle and Wolfowitz and all these people who have been involved in this, and the Defense Department came out and said, this is wrong. I mean, they are trying to bury it. They are trying to stonewall it, and that is why we are out here tonight.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I want to compliment the White House for finally being honest with the American people as it relates to Afghanistan. Again, from this week, Wednesday, November 19, the new ambassador to Afghanistan, Ambassador Kahlizad, gave the administration's bleakest assessment yet of security conditions in Afghanistan, saying that a regrouping of the Taliban and al Qaeda, increased drug trafficking and even common criminals are hampering President Karzai and the transition to democracy. Taliban rebels have dramatically stepped up operations in recent months and, the ambassador said, common criminals and al Qaeda followers are increasingly active. This is most disturbing news.

There was an interesting and, again, unfortunate story coming from the United Nations. This week reported in the New York Times, the United Nations refugee agency announced Tuesday that it was temporarily pulling 30 foreign staff members out of large areas of southern and eastern Afghanistan and closing refugee reception centers in four provinces, officials said. The suspension of operations comes after three attacks on the United Nations offices and staff members in the last week by suspected Taliban fighters.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, what the gentleman is doing is shining the light on the fact that we never finished the job.

Mr. DELAHUNT. We never finished the job in Afghanistan.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. They never put up a sign that said mission accomplished for Afghanistan.

Mr. DELAHUNT. The gentleman is absolutely right.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. And left a mess and went on to Iraq, and now we have got two messes on our hands. The gentleman is absolutely right, what is happening in Afghanistan is a terrible mess.

Mr. DELAHUNT. To think that our military, as it has in Iraq, performed so professionally and admirably in Afghanistan, and now we are on the verge of seeing Afghanistan becoming a failed state.

Nicolas Kristoff, a columnist in the New York Times, says, and again it is this week, in the 2 years since the war in Afghanistan, opium production, and he has given us three choices, virtually been eliminated, declined 30 percent, soared 19-fold and become the major source of the world's heroin. That is what is happening in Afghanistan today.

In two provinces that are religiously conservative parts of Afghanistan, the number of children going to school has quintupled, has risen 40 percent, has plummeted as poor security has closed nearly all the schools there. The right answer is the last one.

This is truly potentially a disaster. President Karzai's brother, Ahmed Karzai, who represents the government in one of the southern provinces, was very blunt to an AP reporter this past Monday: it is like I am seeing the same movie twice, and no one is trying to fix the problem. What was promised to Afghans with the collapse of the Taliban was a new life of hope and change. Those are the words of President Bush, but what was delivered, nothing. There had been no significant changes for people. Karzai says he does not know what to say to people anymore.

We better pay attention to Afghanistan because with the focus now on Iraq, the media is taking the glare of the cameras away from a totally, potentially disastrous situation. They are scheduled to have elections in Afghanistan next June. It is estimated that the need would be for 70,000 police security forces. Does my colleague know how many have been trained? Does the gentleman know how many have been trained? Seven thousand, 7,000. This is, again, a potential foreign policy disaster, not just for this President but for this country.

With that, if the gentleman has anything further to say.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I think we have said enough for tonight, but this issue will not go away.

One fact that I will finish with, this week now, more people have died in Iraq since the war began than died in the first 3 full years in Vietnam. So if we do not think we have got a developing mess on our hands, just remember how we eased into Vietnam, and this is where we are going if this administration does not begin to develop a plan.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Twenty-six people died today in Turkey, the victims of an act of terrorism. Some 400 were wounded. In the northern part of Iraq, not in the so-called Sunni Triangle, 12 died as a result of acts of terrorism in northern Iraq.

We are in a mess. Let us get our act together. Let us support our President, but let us do it in consultation and make sure that America can continue to be proud and claim that it is great because it is good and it has a moral compass.

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law but subject to subparagraph (B), the Secretary may provide to each PDP sponsor and MA organization such identifying information about part D eligible individuals as the Secretary determines to be necessary to facilitate efficient marketing of prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans to such individuals and enrollment of such individuals in such plans.

''(B) LIMITATION.—

''(i) PROVISION OF INFORMATION.—The Secretary may provide the information under subparagraph (A) only to the extent necessary to carry out such subparagraph.

''(ii) USE OF INFORMATION.—Such information provided by the Secretary to a PDP sponsor or an MA organization may be used by such sponsor or organization only to facilitate marketing of, and enrollment of part D eligible individuals in, prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans.

''(5) REFERENCE TO ENROLLMENT PROCEDURES FOR MA–PD PLANS.—For rules applicable to enrollment, disenrollment, termination, and change of enrollment of part D eligible individuals in MA–PD plans, see section 1851.

''(6) REFERENCE TO PENALTIES FOR LATE ENROLLMENT.—Section 1860D–13(b) imposes a late enrollment penalty for part D eligible individuals who—

''(A) enroll in a prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan after the initial enrollment period described in paragraph (2); and

''(B) fail to maintain continuous creditable prescription drug coverage during the period of non-enrollment.

''(c) PROVIDING INFORMATION TO BENEFICIARIES.—

''(1) ACTIVITIES.—The Secretary shall conduct activities that are designed to broadly disseminate information to part D eligible individuals (and prospective part D eligible individuals) regarding the coverage provided under this part. Such activities shall ensure that such information is first made available at least 30 days prior to the initial enrollment period described in subsection (b)(2)(A).

''(2) REQUIREMENTS.—The activities described in paragraph (1) shall—

''(A) be similar to the activities performed by the Secretary under section 1851(d), including dissemination (including through the toll-free telephone number 1–800–MEDICARE) of comparative information for prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans; and

''(B) be coordinated with the activities performed by the Secretary under such section and under section 1804.

''(3) COMPARATIVE INFORMATION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the comparative information referred to in paragraph (2)(A) shall include a comparison of the following with respect to qualified prescription drug coverage:

''(B) EXCEPTION FOR UNAVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION.—The Secretary is not required to provide comparative information under clauses (iii) and (v) of subparagraph (A) with respect to a plan—

''(i) for the first plan year in which it is offered; and

''(ii) for the next plan year if it is impracticable or the information is otherwise unavailable.

''(4) INFORMATION ON LATE ENROLLMENT PENALTY.—The information disseminated under paragraph (1) shall include information concerning the methodology for determining the late enrollment penalty under section 1860D–13(b).

''PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFITS

''SEC. 1860D–2. (a) REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this part and part C, the term 'qualified prescription drug coverage' means either of the following:

''(A) STANDARD PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE WITH ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES.—Standard prescription drug coverage (as defined in subsection (b)) and access to negotiated prices under subsection (d).

''(B) ALTERNATIVE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE WITH AT LEAST ACTUARIALLY EQUIVALENT BENEFITS AND ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES.—Coverage of covered part D drugs which meets the alternative prescription drug coverage requirements of subsection (c) and access to negotiated prices under subsection (d), but only if the benefit design of such coverage is approved by the Secretary, as provided under subsection (c).

''(2) PERMITTING SUPPLEMENTAL PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), qualified prescription drug coverage may include supplemental prescription drug coverage consisting of either or both of the following:

''(i) CERTAIN REDUCTIONS IN COST-SHARING.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—A reduction in the annual deductible, a reduction in the coinsurance percentage, or an increase in the initial coverage limit with respect to covered part D drugs, or any combination thereof, insofar as such a reduction or increase increases the actuarial value of benefits above the actuarial value of basic prescription drug coverage.

''(II) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as affecting the application of subsection (c)(3).

''(ii) OPTIONAL DRUGS.—Coverage of any product that would be a covered part D drug but for the application of subsection (e)(2)(A).

''(B) REQUIREMENT.—A PDP sponsor may not offer a prescription drug plan that provides supplemental prescription drug coverage pursuant to subparagraph (A) in an area unless the sponsor also offers a prescription drug plan in the area that only provides basic prescription drug coverage.

''(3) BASIC PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—For purposes of this part and part C, the term 'basic prescription drug coverage' means either of the following:

''(A) Coverage that meets the requirements of paragraph (1)(A).

''(B) Coverage that meets the requirements of paragraph (1)(B) but does not have any supplemental prescription drug coverage described in paragraph (2)(A).

''(4) APPLICATION OF SECONDARY PAYOR PROVISIONS.—The provisions of section 1852(a)(4) shall apply under this part in the same manner as they apply under part C.

''(5) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as changing the computation of incurred costs under subsection (b)(4).

''(b) STANDARD PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—For purposes of this part and part C, the term 'standard prescription drug coverage' means coverage of covered part D drugs that meets the following requirements:

''(1) DEDUCTIBLE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The coverage has an annual deductible—

''(i) for 2006, that is equal to $250; or

''(ii) for a subsequent year, that is equal to the amount specified under this paragraph for the previous year increased by the percentage specified in paragraph (6) for the year involved.

''(B) ROUNDING.—Any amount determined under subparagraph (A)(ii) that is not a multiple of $5 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $5.

''(2) BENEFIT STRUCTURE.—

''(A) 25 PERCENT COINSURANCE.—The coverage has coinsurance (for costs above the annual deductible specified in paragraph (1) and up to the initial coverage limit under paragraph (3)) that is—

''(i) equal to 25 percent; or

''(ii) actuarially equivalent (using processes and methods established under section 1860D–11(c)) to an average expected payment of 25 percent of such costs.

''(B) USE OF TIERS.—Nothing in this part shall be construed as preventing a PDP sponsor or an MA organization from applying tiered copayments under a plan, so long as such tiered copayments are consistent with subparagraph (A)(ii).

''(3) INITIAL COVERAGE LIMIT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (4), the coverage has an initial coverage limit on the maximum costs that may be recognized for payment purposes (including the annual deductible)—

''(i) for 2006, that is equal to $2,250; or

''(ii) for a subsequent year, that is equal to the amount specified in this paragraph for the previous year, increased by the annual percentage increase described in paragraph (6) for the year involved.

''(B) ROUNDING.—Any amount determined under subparagraph (A)(ii) that is not a multiple of $10 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10.

''(4) PROTECTION AGAINST HIGH OUT-OF-POCKET EXPENDITURES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The coverage provides benefits, after the part D eligible individual has incurred costs (as described in subparagraph (C)) for covered part D drugs in a year equal to the annual out-of-pocket threshold specified in subparagraph (B), with cost-sharing that is equal to the greater of—

''(I) a copayment of $2 for a generic drug or a preferred drug that is a multiple source drug (as defined in section 1927(k)(7)(A)(i)) and $5 for any other drug; or

''(II) coinsurance that is equal to 5 percent.

''(ii) ADJUSTMENT OF AMOUNT.—For a year after 2006, the dollar amounts specified in clause (i)(I) shall be equal to the dollar amounts specified in this subparagraph for the previous year, increased by the annual percentage increase described in paragraph (6) for the year involved. Any amount established under this clause that is not a multiple of a 5 cents shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of 5 cents.

''(B) ANNUAL OUT-OF-POCKET THRESHOLD.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this part, the 'annual out-of-pocket threshold' specified in this subparagraph—

''(I) for 2006, is equal to $3,600; or

''(II) for a subsequent year, is equal to the amount specified in this subparagraph for the previous year, increased by the annual percentage increase described in paragraph (6) for the year involved.

''(ii) ROUNDING.—Any amount determined under clause (i)(II) that is not a multiple of $50 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

''(C) APPLICATION.—In applying subparagraph (A)—

''(i) incurred costs shall only include costs incurred with respect to covered part D drugs for the annual deductible described in paragraph (1), for cost-sharing described in paragraph (2), and for amounts for which benefits are not provided because of the application of the initial coverage limit described in paragraph (3), but does not include any costs incurred for covered part D drugs which are not included (or treated as being included) in the plan's formulary; and

''(ii) such costs shall be treated as incurred only if they are paid by the part D eligible individual (or by another person, such as a family member, on behalf of the individual), under section 1860D–14, or under a State Pharmaceutical Assistance Program and the part D eligible individual (or other person) is not reimbursed through insurance or otherwise, a group health plan, or other third-party payment arrangement (other than under such section or such a Program) for such costs.

''(D) INFORMATION REGARDING THIRD-PARTY REIMBURSEMENT.—

''(i) PROCEDURES FOR EXCHANGING INFORMATION.—In order to accurately apply the requirements of subparagraph (C)(ii), the Secretary is authorized to establish procedures, in coordination with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Labor—

''(I) for determining whether costs for part D eligible individuals are being reimbursed through insurance or otherwise, a group health plan, or other third-party payment arrangement; and

''(II) for alerting the PDP sponsors and MA organizations that offer the prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans in which such individuals are enrolled about such reimbursement arrangements.

''(ii) AUTHORITY TO REQUEST INFORMATION FROM ENROLLEES.—A PDP sponsor or an MA organization may periodically ask part D eligible individuals enrolled in a prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan offered by the sponsor or organization whether such individuals have or expect to receive such third-party reimbursement. A material misrepresentation of the information described in the preceding sentence by an individual (as defined in standards set by the Secretary and determined through a process established by the Secretary) shall constitute grounds for termination of enrollment in any plan under section 1851(g)(3)(B) (and as applied under this part under section 1860D–1(b)(1)(B)(v)) for a period specified by the Secretary.

''(5) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this part shall be construed as preventing a PDP sponsor or an MA organization offering an MA–PD plan from reducing to 0 the cost-sharing otherwise applicable to preferred or generic drugs.

''(6) ANNUAL PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—The annual percentage increase specified in this paragraph for a year is equal to the annual percentage increase in average per capita aggregate expenditures for covered part D drugs in the United States for part D eligible individuals, as determined by the Secretary for the 12-month period ending in July of the previous year using such methods as the Secretary shall specify.

''(c) ALTERNATIVE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE REQUIREMENTS.—A prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan may provide a different prescription drug benefit design from standard prescription drug coverage so long as the Secretary determines (consistent with section 1860D–11(c)) that the following requirements are met and the plan applies for, and receives, the approval of the Secretary for such benefit design:

''(1) ASSURING AT LEAST ACTUARIALLY EQUIVALENT COVERAGE.—

''(A) ASSURING EQUIVALENT VALUE OF TOTAL COVERAGE.—The actuarial value of the total coverage is at least equal to the actuarial value of standard prescription drug coverage.

''(B) ASSURING EQUIVALENT UNSUBSIDIZED VALUE OF COVERAGE.—The unsubsidized value of the coverage is at least equal to the unsubsidized value of standard prescription drug coverage. For purposes of this subparagraph, the unsubsidized value of coverage is the amount by which the actuarial value of the coverage exceeds the actuarial value of the subsidy payments under section 1860D–15 with respect to such coverage.

''(C) ASSURING STANDARD PAYMENT FOR COSTS AT INITIAL COVERAGE LIMIT.—The coverage is designed, based upon an actuarially representative pattern of utilization, to provide for the payment, with respect to costs incurred that are equal to the initial coverage limit under subsection (b)(3) for the year, of an amount equal to at least the product of—

''(i) the amount by which the initial coverage limit described in subsection (b)(3) for the year exceeds the deductible described in subsection (b)(1) for the year; and

''(ii) 100 percent minus the coinsurance percentage specified in subsection (b)(2)(A)(i).

''(2) MAXIMUM REQUIRED DEDUCTIBLE.—The deductible under the coverage shall not exceed the deductible amount specified under subsection (b)(1) for the year.

''(3) SAME PROTECTION AGAINST HIGH OUT-OF-POCKET EXPENDITURES.—The coverage provides the coverage required under subsection (b)(4).

''(d) ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES.—

''(1) ACCESS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Under qualified prescription drug coverage offered by a PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan or an MA organization offering an MA–PD plan, the sponsor or organization shall provide enrollees with access to negotiated prices used for payment for covered part D drugs, regardless of the fact that no benefits may be payable under the coverage with respect to such drugs because of the application of a deductible or other cost-sharing or an initial coverage limit (described in subsection (b)(3)).

''(B) NEGOTIATED PRICES.—For purposes of this part, negotiated prices shall take into account negotiated price concessions, such as discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, and direct or indirect remunerations, for covered part D drugs, and include any dispensing fees for such drugs.

''(C) MEDICAID-RELATED PROVISIONS.—The prices negotiated by a prescription drug plan, by an MA–PD plan with respect to covered part D drugs, or by a qualified retiree prescription drug plan (as defined in section 1860D–22(a)(2)) with respect to such drugs on behalf of part D eligible individuals, shall (notwithstanding any other provision of law) not be taken into account for the purposes of establishing the best price under section 1927(c)(1)(C).

''(2) DISCLOSURE.—A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan or an MA organization offering an MA–PD plan shall disclose to the Secretary (in a manner specified by the Secretary) the aggregate negotiated price concessions described in paragraph (1)(B) made available to the sponsor or organization by a manufacturer which are passed through in the form of lower subsidies, lower monthly beneficiary prescription drug premiums, and lower prices through pharmacies and other dispensers. The provisions of section 1927(b)(3)(D) apply to information disclosed to the Secretary under this paragraph.

''(3) AUDITS.—To protect against fraud and abuse and to ensure proper disclosures and accounting under this part and in accordance with section 1857(d)(2)(B) (as applied under section 1860D–12(b)(3)(C)), the Secretary may conduct periodic audits, directly or through contracts, of the financial statements and records of PDP sponsors with respect to prescription drug plans and MA organizations with respect to MA–PD plans.

''(e) COVERED PART D DRUG DEFINED.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this subsection, for purposes of this part, the term 'covered part D drug' means—

''(A) a drug that may be dispensed only upon a prescription and that is described in subparagraph (A)(i), (A)(ii), or (A)(iii) of section 1927(k)(2); or

''(B) a biological product described in clauses (i) through (iii) of subparagraph (B) of such section or insulin described in subparagraph (C) of such section and medical supplies associated with the injection of insulin (as defined in regulations of the Secretary), and such term includes a vaccine licensed under section 351 of the Public Health Service Act and any use of a covered part D drug for a medically accepted indication (as defined in section 1927(k)(6)).

''(2) EXCLUSIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Such term does not include drugs or classes of drugs, or their medical uses, which may be excluded from coverage or otherwise restricted under section 1927(d)(2), other than subparagraph (E) of such section (relating to smoking cessation agents), or under section 1927(d)(3).

''(B) MEDICARE COVERED DRUGS.—A drug prescribed for a part D eligible individual that would otherwise be a covered part D drug under this part shall not be so considered if payment for such drug as so prescribed and dispensed or administered with respect to that individual is available (or would be available but for the application of a deductible) under part A or B for that individual.

''(3) APPLICATION OF GENERAL EXCLUSION PROVISIONS.—A prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan may exclude from qualified prescription drug coverage any covered part D drug—

''(A) for which payment would not be made if section 1862(a) applied to this part; or

''(B) which is not prescribed in accordance with the plan or this part.

Such exclusions are determinations subject to reconsideration and appeal pursuant to subsections (g) and (h), respectively, of section 1860D–4.

''ACCESS TO A CHOICE OF QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

''SEC. 1860D–3. (a) ASSURING ACCESS TO A CHOICE OF COVERAGE.—

''(1) CHOICE OF AT LEAST TWO PLANS IN EACH AREA.—The Secretary shall ensure that each part D eligible individual has available, consistent with paragraph (2), a choice of enrollment in at least 2 qualifying plans (as defined in paragraph (3)) in the area in which the individual resides, at least one of which is a prescription drug plan. In any such case in which such plans are not available, the part D eligible individual shall be given the opportunity to enroll in a fallback prescription drug plan.

''(2) REQUIREMENT FOR DIFFERENT PLAN SPONSORS.—The requirement in paragraph (1) is not satisfied with respect to an area if only one entity offers all the qualifying plans in the area.

''(3) QUALIFYING PLAN DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term 'qualifying plan' means—

''(A) a prescription drug plan; or

''(B) an MA–PD plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) that provides—

''(i) basic prescription drug coverage; or

''(ii) qualified prescription drug coverage that provides supplemental prescription drug coverage so long as there is no MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium applied under the plan, due to the application of a credit against such premium of a rebate under section 1854(b)(1)(C).

''(b) FLEXIBILITY IN RISK ASSUMED AND APPLICATION OF FALLBACK PLAN.—In order to ensure access pursuant to subsection (a) in an area—

''(1) the Secretary may approve limited risk plans under section 1860D–11(f) for the area; and

''(2) only if such access is still not provided in the area after applying paragraph (1), the Secretary shall provide for the offering of a fallback prescription drug plan for that area under section 1860D–11(g).

''BENEFICIARY PROTECTIONS FOR QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

''SEC. 1860D–4. (a) DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.—

''(1) GENERAL INFORMATION.—

''(A) APPLICATION OF MA INFORMATION.—A PDP sponsor shall disclose, in a clear, accurate, and standardized form to each enrollee with a prescription drug plan offered by the sponsor under this part at the time of enrollment and at least annually thereafter, the information described in section 1852(c)(1) relating to such plan, insofar as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to benefits provided under this part, and including the information described in subparagraph (B).

''(B) DRUG SPECIFIC INFORMATION.—The information described in this subparagraph is information concerning the following:

''(i) Access to specific covered part D drugs, including access through pharmacy networks.

''(ii) How any formulary (including any tiered formulary structure) used by the sponsor functions, including a description of how a part D eligible individual may obtain information on the formulary consistent with paragraph (3).

''(iii) Beneficiary cost-sharing requirements and how a part D eligible individual may obtain information on such requirements, including tiered or other copayment level applicable to each drug (or class of drugs), consistent with paragraph (3).

''(iv) The medication therapy management program required under subsection (c).

by the Secretary) to the information described in subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of section 1852(c)(2) to such individual.

''(3) PROVISION OF SPECIFIC INFORMATION.—

''(A) RESPONSE TO BENEFICIARY QUESTIONS.—Each PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan shall have a mechanism for providing specific information on a timely basis to enrollees upon request. Such mechanism shall include access to information through the use of a toll-free telephone number and, upon request, the provision of such information in writing.

''(B) AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION ON CHANGES IN FORMULARY THROUGH THE INTERNET.—A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan shall make available on a timely basis through an Internet website information on specific changes in the formulary under the plan (including changes to tiered or preferred status of covered part D drugs).

''(4) CLAIMS INFORMATION.—A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan must furnish to each enrollee in a form easily understandable to such enrollees—

''(A) an explanation of benefits (in accordance with section 1806(a) or in a comparable manner); and

''(B) when prescription drug benefits are provided under this part, a notice of the benefits in relation to—

''(i) the initial coverage limit for the current year; and

''(ii) the annual out-of-pocket threshold for the current year.

Notices under subparagraph (B) need not be provided more often than as specified by the Secretary and notices under subparagraph (B)(ii) shall take into account the application of section 1860D–2(b)(4)(C) to the extent practicable, as specified by the Secretary.

''(b) ACCESS TO COVERED PART D DRUGS.—

''(1) ASSURING PHARMACY ACCESS.—

''(A) PARTICIPATION OF ANY WILLING PHARMACY.—A prescription drug plan shall permit the participation of any pharmacy that meets the terms and conditions under the plan.

''(B) DISCOUNTS ALLOWED FOR NETWORK PHARMACIES.—For covered part D drugs dispensed through in-network pharmacies, a prescription drug plan may, notwithstanding subparagraph (A), reduce coinsurance or copayments for part D eligible individuals enrolled in the plan below the level otherwise required. In no case shall such a reduction result in an increase in payments made by the Secretary under section 1860D–15 to a plan.

''(C) CONVENIENT ACCESS FOR NETWORK PHARMACIES.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The PDP sponsor of the prescription drug plan shall secure the participation in its network of a sufficient number of pharmacies that dispense (other than by mail order) drugs directly to patients to ensure convenient access (consistent with rules established by the Secretary).

''(ii) APPLICATION OF TRICARE STANDARDS.—The Secretary shall establish rules for convenient access to in-network pharmacies under this subparagraph that are no less favorable to enrollees than the rules for convenient access to pharmacies included in the statement of work of solicitation (#MDA906–03–R–0002) of the Department of Defense under the TRICARE Retail Pharmacy (TRRx) as of March 13, 2003.

''(iii) ADEQUATE EMERGENCY ACCESS.—Such rules shall include adequate emergency access for enrollees.

''(iv) CONVENIENT ACCESS IN LONG-TERM CARE FACILITIES.—Such rules may include standards with respect to access for enrollees who are residing in long-term care facilities and for pharmacies operated by the Indian Health Service, Indian tribes and tribal organizations, and urban Indian organizations (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act).

''(D) LEVEL PLAYING FIELD.—Such a sponsor shall permit enrollees to receive benefits (which may include a 90-day supply of drugs or biologicals) through a pharmacy (other than a mail order pharmacy), with any differential in charge paid by such enrollees.

''(E) NOT REQUIRED TO ACCEPT INSURANCE RISK.—The terms and conditions under subparagraph (A) may not require participating pharmacies to accept insurance risk as a condition of participation.

''(2) USE OF STANDARDIZED TECHNOLOGY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan shall issue (and reissue, as appropriate) such a card (or other technology) that may be used by an enrollee to assure access to negotiated prices under section 1860D–2(d).

''(B) STANDARDS.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall provide for the development, adoption, or recognition of standards relating to a standardized format for the card or other technology required under subparagraph (A). Such standards shall be compatible with part C of title XI and may be based on standards developed by an appropriate standard setting organization.

''(ii) CONSULTATION.—In developing the standards under clause (i), the Secretary shall consult with the National Council for Prescription Drug Programs and other standard setting organizations determined appropriate by the Secretary.

''(iii) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall develop, adopt, or recognize the standards under clause (i) by such date as the Secretary determines shall be sufficient to ensure that PDP sponsors utilize such standards beginning January 1, 2006.

''(3) REQUIREMENTS ON DEVELOPMENT AND APPLICATION OF FORMULARIES.—If a PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan uses a formulary (including the use of tiered cost-sharing), the following requirements must be met:

''(A) DEVELOPMENT AND REVISION BY A PHARMACY AND THERAPEUTIC (P&T) COMMITTEE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The formulary must be developed and reviewed by a pharmacy and therapeutic committee. A majority of the members of such committee shall consist of individuals who are practicing physicians or practicing pharmacists (or both).

''(ii) INCLUSION OF INDEPENDENT EXPERTS.—Such committee shall include at least one practicing physician and at least one practicing pharmacist, each of whom—

''(I) is independent and free of conflict with respect to the sponsor and plan; and

''(II) has expertise in the care of elderly or disabled persons.

''(B) FORMULARY DEVELOPMENT.—In developing and reviewing the formulary, the committee shall—

''(i) base clinical decisions on the strength of scientific evidence and standards of practice, including assessing peer-reviewed medical literature, such as randomized clinical trials, pharmacoeconomic studies, outcomes research data, and on such other information as the committee determines to be appropriate; and

''(ii) take into account whether including in the formulary (or in a tier in such formulary) particular covered part D drugs has therapeutic advantages in terms of safety and efficacy.

''(C) INCLUSION OF DRUGS IN ALL THERAPEUTIC CATEGORIES AND CLASSES.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The formulary must include drugs within each therapeutic category and class of covered part D drugs, although not necessarily all drugs within such categories and classes.

''(ii) MODEL GUIDELINES.—The Secretary shall request the United States Pharmacopeia to develop, in consultation with pharmaceutical benefit managers and other interested parties, a list of categories and classes that may be used by prescription drug plans under this paragraph and to revise such classification from time to time to reflect changes in therapeutic uses of covered part D drugs and the additions of new covered part D drugs.

''(iii) LIMITATION ON CHANGES IN THERAPEUTIC CLASSIFICATION.—The PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan may not change the therapeutic categories and classes in a formulary other than at the beginning of each plan year except as the Secretary may permit to take into account new therapeutic uses and newly approved covered part D drugs.

''(D) PROVIDER AND PATIENT EDUCATION.—The PDP sponsor shall establish policies and procedures to educate and inform health care providers and enrollees concerning the formulary.

''(E) NOTICE BEFORE REMOVING DRUG FROM FORMULARY OR CHANGING PREFERRED OR TIER STATUS OF DRUG.—Any removal of a covered part D drug from a formulary and any change in the preferred or tiered cost-sharing status of such a drug shall take effect only after appropriate notice is made available (such as under subsection (a)(3)) to the Secretary, affected enrollees, physicians, pharmacies, and pharmacists.

''(F) PERIODIC EVALUATION OF PROTOCOLS.—In connection with the formulary, the sponsor of a prescription drug plan shall provide for the periodic evaluation and analysis of treatment protocols and procedures.

The requirements of this paragraph may be met by a PDP sponsor directly or through arrangements with another entity.

''(c) COST AND UTILIZATION MANAGEMENT; QUALITY ASSURANCE; MEDICATION THERAPY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The PDP sponsor shall have in place, directly or through appropriate arrangements, with respect to covered part D drugs, the following:

''(A) A cost-effective drug utilization management program, including incentives to reduce costs when medically appropriate, such as through the use of multiple source drugs (as defined in section 1927(k)(7)(A)(i)).

''(B) Quality assurance measures and systems to reduce medication errors and adverse drug interactions and improve medication use.

''(C) A medication therapy management program described in paragraph (2).

''(D) A program to control fraud, abuse, and waste.

Nothing in this section shall be construed as impairing a PDP sponsor from utilizing cost management tools (including differential payments) under all methods of operation.

''(2) MEDICATION THERAPY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM.—

''(A) DESCRIPTION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A medication therapy management program described in this paragraph is a program of drug therapy management that may be furnished by a pharmacist and that is designed to assure, with respect to targeted beneficiaries described in clause (ii), that covered part D drugs under the prescription drug plan are appropriately used to optimize therapeutic outcomes through improved medication use, and to reduce the risk of adverse events, including adverse drug interactions. Such a program may distinguish between services in ambulatory and institutional settings.

''(ii) TARGETED BENEFICIARIES DESCRIBED.—Targeted beneficiaries described in this clause are part D eligible individuals who—

''(I) have multiple chronic diseases (such as diabetes, asthma, hypertension, hyperlipidemia, and congestive heart failure);

''(II) are taking multiple covered part D drugs; and

''(III) are identified as likely to incur annual costs for covered part D drugs that exceed a level specified by the Secretary.

''(B) ELEMENTS.—Such program may include elements that promote—

''(i) enhanced enrollee understanding to promote the appropriate use of medications by enrollees and to reduce the risk of potential adverse events associated with medications, through beneficiary education, counseling, and other appropriate means;

''(ii) increased enrollee adherence with prescription medication regimens through medication refill reminders, special packaging, and other compliance programs and other appropriate means; and

''(iii) detection of adverse drug events and patterns of overuse and underuse of prescription drugs.

''(C) DEVELOPMENT OF PROGRAM IN COOPERATION WITH LICENSED PHARMACISTS.—Such program shall be developed in cooperation with licensed and practicing pharmacists and physicians.

''(D) COORDINATION WITH CARE MANAGEMENT PLANS.—The Secretary shall establish guidelines for the coordination of any medication therapy management program under this paragraph with respect to a targeted beneficiary with any care management plan established with respect to such beneficiary under a chronic care improvement program under section 1807.

''(E) CONSIDERATIONS IN PHARMACY FEES.—The PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan shall take into account, in establishing fees for pharmacists and others providing services under such plan, the resources used, and time required to, implement the medication therapy management program under this paragraph. Each such sponsor shall disclose to the Secretary upon request the amount of any such management or dispensing fees. The provisions of section 1927(b)(3)(D) apply to information disclosed under this subparagraph.

''(d) CONSUMER SATISFACTION SURVEYS.—In order to provide for comparative information under section 1860D–1(c)(3)(A)(v), the Secretary shall conduct consumer satisfaction surveys with respect to PDP sponsors and prescription drug plans in a manner similar to the manner such surveys are conducted for MA organizations and MA plans under part C.

''(e) ELECTRONIC PRESCRIPTION PROGRAM.—

''(1) APPLICATION OF STANDARDS.—As of such date as the Secretary may specify, but not later than 1 year after the date of promulgation of final standards under paragraph (4)(D), prescriptions and other information described in paragraph (2)(A) for covered part D drugs prescribed for part D eligible individuals that are transmitted electronically shall be transmitted only in accordance with such standards under an electronic prescription drug program that meets the requirements of paragraph (2).

''(2) PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.—Consistent with uniform standards established under paragraph (3)—

''(A) PROVISION OF INFORMATION TO PRESCRIBING HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONAL AND DISPENSING PHARMACIES AND PHARMACISTS.—An electronic prescription drug program shall provide for the electronic transmittal to the prescribing health care professional and to the dispensing pharmacy and pharmacist of the prescription and information on eligibility and benefits (including the drugs included in the applicable formulary, any tiered formulary structure, and any requirements for prior authorization) and of the following information with respect to the prescribing and dispensing of a covered part D drug:

''(i) Information on the drug being prescribed or dispensed and other drugs listed on the medication history, including information on drug-drug interactions, warnings or cautions, and, when indicated, dosage adjustments.

''(ii) Information on the availability of lower cost, therapeutically appropriate alternatives (if any) for the drug prescribed.

''(B) APPLICATION TO MEDICAL HISTORY INFORMATION.—Effective on and after such date as the Secretary specifies and after the establishment of appropriate standards to carry out this subparagraph, the program shall provide for the electronic transmittal in a manner similar to the manner under subparagraph (A) of information that relates to the medical history concerning the individual and related to a covered part D drug being prescribed or dispensed, upon request of the professional or pharmacist involved.

''(C) LIMITATIONS.—Information shall only be disclosed under subparagraph (A) or (B) if the disclosure of such information is permitted under the Federal regulations (concerning the privacy of individually identifiable health information) promulgated under section 264(c) of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996.

''(D) TIMING.—To the extent feasible, the information exchanged under this paragraph shall be on an interactive, real-time basis.

''(3) STANDARDS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall provide consistent with this subsection for the promulgation of uniform standards relating to the requirements for electronic prescription drug programs under paragraph (2).

''(B) OBJECTIVES.—Such standards shall be consistent with the objectives of improving—

''(i) patient safety;

''(ii) the quality of care provided to patients; and

''(iii) efficiencies, including cost savings, in the delivery of care.

''(C) DESIGN CRITERIA.—Such standards shall—

''(i) be designed so that, to the extent practicable, the standards do not impose an undue administrative burden on prescribing health care professionals and dispensing pharmacies and pharmacists;

''(ii) be compatible with standards established under part C of title XI, standards established under subsection (b)(2)(B)(i), and with general health information technology standards; and

''(iii) be designed so that they permit electronic exchange of drug labeling and drug listing information maintained by the Food and Drug Administration and the National Library of Medicine.

''(D) PERMITTING USE OF APPROPRIATE MESSAGING.—Such standards shall allow for the messaging of information only if it relates to the appropriate prescribing of drugs, including quality assurance measures and systems referred to in subsection (c)(1)(B).

''(E) PERMITTING PATIENT DESIGNATION OF DISPENSING PHARMACY.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Consistent with clause (ii), such standards shall permit a part D eligible individual to designate a particular pharmacy to dispense a prescribed drug.

''(ii) NO CHANGE IN BENEFITS.—Clause (i) shall not be construed as affecting—

''(I) the access required to be provided to pharmacies by a prescription drug plan; or

''(II) the application of any differences in benefits or payments under such a plan based on the pharmacy dispensing a covered part D drug.

''(4) DEVELOPMENT, PROMULGATION, AND MODIFICATION OF STANDARDS.—

''(A) INITIAL STANDARDS.—Not later than September 1, 2005, the Secretary shall develop, adopt, recognize, or modify initial uniform standards relating to the requirements for electronic prescription drug programs described in paragraph (2) taking into consideration the recommendations (if any) from the National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics (as established under section 306(k) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 242k(k))) under subparagraph (B).

''(B) ROLE OF NCVHS.—The National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics shall develop recommendations for uniform standards relating to such requirements in consultation with the following:

''(i) Standard setting organizations (as defined in section 1171(8))

''(ii) Practicing physicians.

''(iii) Hospitals.

''(iv) Pharmacies.

''(v) Practicing pharmacists.

''(vi) Pharmacy benefit managers.

''(vii) State boards of pharmacy.

''(viii) State boards of medicine.

''(ix) Experts on electronic prescribing.

''(x) Other appropriate Federal agencies.

''(C) PILOT PROJECT TO TEST INITIAL STANDARDS.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—During the 1-year period that begins on January 1, 2006, the Secretary shall conduct a pilot project to test the initial standards developed under subparagraph (A) prior to the promulgation of the final uniform standards under subparagraph (D) in order to provide for the efficient implementation of the requirements described in paragraph (2).

''(ii) EXCEPTION.—Pilot testing of standards is not required under clause (i) where there already is adequate industry experience with such standards, as determined by the Secretary after consultation with effected standard setting organizations and industry users.

''(iii) VOLUNTARY PARTICIPATION OF PHYSICIANS AND PHARMACIES.—In order to conduct the pilot project under clause (i), the Secretary shall enter into agreements with physicians, physician groups, pharmacies, hospitals, PDP sponsors, MA organizations, and other appropriate entities under which health care professionals electronically transmit prescriptions to dispensing pharmacies and pharmacists in accordance with such standards.

''(iv) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

''(I) EVALUATION.—The Secretary shall conduct an evaluation of the pilot project conducted under clause (i).

''(II) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than April 1, 2007, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the evaluation conducted under subclause (I).

''(D) FINAL STANDARDS.—Based upon the evaluation of the pilot project under subparagraph (C)(iv)(I) and not later than April 1, 2008, the Secretary shall promulgate uniform standards relating to the requirements described in paragraph (2).

''(5) RELATION TO STATE LAWS.—The standards promulgated under this subsection shall supersede any State law or regulation that—

''(A) is contrary to the standards or restricts the ability to carry out this part; and

''(B) pertains to the electronic transmission of medication history and of information on eligibility, benefits, and prescriptions with respect to covered part D drugs under this part.

''(6) ESTABLISHMENT OF SAFE HARBOR.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, shall promulgate regulations that provide for a safe harbor from sanctions under paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 1128B(b) and an exception to the prohibition under subsection (a)(1) of section 1877 with respect to the provision of nonmonetary remuneration (in the form of hardware, software, or information technology and training services) necessary and used solely to receive and transmit electronic prescription information in accordance with the standards promulgated under this subsection—

''(A) in the case of a hospital, by the hospital to members of its medical staff;

''(B) in the case of a group practice (as defined in section 1877(h)(4)), by the practice to prescribing health care professionals who are members of such practice; and

''(C) in the case of a PDP sponsor or MA organization, by the sponsor or organization to pharmacists and pharmacies participating in the network of such sponsor or organization, and to prescribing health care professionals.

''(f) GRIEVANCE MECHANISM.—Each PDP sponsor shall provide meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the sponsor (including any entity or individual through which the sponsor provides covered benefits) and enrollees with prescription drug plans of the sponsor under this part in accordance with section 1852(f).

''(g) COVERAGE DETERMINATIONS AND RECONSIDERATIONS.—

''(1) APPLICATION OF COVERAGE DETERMINATION AND RECONSIDERATION PROVISIONS.—A PDP sponsor shall meet the requirements of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 1852(g) with respect to covered benefits under the prescription drug plan it offers under this part in the same manner as such requirements apply to an MA organization with respect to benefits it offers under an MA plan under part C.

''(2) REQUEST FOR A DETERMINATION FOR THE TREATMENT OF TIERED FORMULARY DRUG.—In the case of a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor that provides for tiered cost-sharing for drugs included within a formulary and provides lower cost-sharing for preferred drugs included within the formulary, a part D eligible individual who is enrolled in the plan may request an exception to the tiered cost-sharing structure. Under such an exception, a non-preferred drug could be covered under the terms applicable for preferred drugs if the prescribing physician determines that the preferred drug for treatment of the same condition either would not be as effective for the individual or would have adverse effects for the individual or both. A PDP sponsor shall have an exceptions process under this paragraph consistent with guidelines established by the Secretary for making a determination with respect to such a request. Denial of such an exception shall be treated as a coverage denial for purposes of applying subsection (h).

''(h) APPEALS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), a PDP sponsor shall meet the requirements of paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 1852(g) with respect to benefits (including a determination related to the application of tiered cost-sharing described in subsection (g)(2)) in a manner similar (as determined by the Secretary) to the manner such requirements apply to an MA organization with respect to benefits under the original medicare fee-for-service program option it offers under an MA plan under part C. In applying this paragraph only the part D eligible individual shall be entitled to bring such an appeal.

''(2) LIMITATION IN CASES ON NONFORMULARY DETERMINATIONS.—A part D eligible individual who is enrolled in a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor may appeal under paragraph (1) a determination not to provide for coverage of a covered part D drug that is not on the formulary under the plan only if the prescribing physician determines that all covered part D drugs on any tier of the formulary for treatment of the same condition would not be as effective for the individual as the nonformulary drug, would have adverse effects for the individual, or both.

''(3) TREATMENT OF NONFORMULARY DETERMINATIONS.—If a PDP sponsor determines that a plan provides coverage for a covered part D drug that is not on the formulary of the plan, the drug shall be treated as being included on the formulary for purposes of section 1860D–2(b)(4)(C)(i).

''(i) PRIVACY, CONFIDENTIALITY, AND ACCURACY OF ENROLLEE RECORDS.—The provisions of section 1852(h) shall apply to a PDP sponsor and prescription drug plan in the same manner as it applies to an MA organization and an MA plan.

''(j) TREATMENT OF ACCREDITATION.—Subparagraph (A) of section 1852(e)(4) (relating to treatment of accreditation) shall apply to a PDP sponsor under this part with respect to the following requirements, in the same manner as it applies to an MA organization with respect to the requirements in subparagraph (B) (other than clause (vii) thereof) of such section:

''(1) Subsection (b) of this section (relating to access to covered part D drugs).

''(2) Subsection (c) of this section (including quality assurance and medication therapy management).

''(3) Subsection (i) of this section (relating to confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records).

''(k) PUBLIC DISCLOSURE OF PHARMACEUTICAL PRICES FOR EQUIVALENT DRUGS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan shall provide that each pharmacy that dispenses a covered part D drug shall inform an enrollee of any differential between the price of the drug to the enrollee and the price of the lowest priced generic covered part D drug under the plan that is therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent and available at such pharmacy.

''(2) TIMING OF NOTICE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the information under paragraph (1) shall be provided at the time of purchase of the drug involved, or, in the case of dispensing by mail order, at the time of delivery of such drug.

''(B) WAIVER.—The Secretary may waive subparagraph (A) in such circumstances as the Secretary may specify.

''PDP REGIONS; SUBMISSION OF BIDS; PLAN APPROVAL

''SEC. 1860D–11. (a) ESTABLISHMENT OF PDP REGIONS; SERVICE AREAS.—

''(1) COVERAGE OF ENTIRE PDP REGION.—The service area for a prescription drug plan shall consist of an entire PDP region established under paragraph (2).

''(2) ESTABLISHMENT OF PDP REGIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish, and may revise, PDP regions in a manner that is consistent with the requirements for the establishment and revision of MA regions under subparagraphs (B) and (C) of section 1858(a)(2).

''(B) RELATION TO MA REGIONS.—To the extent practicable, PDP regions shall be the same as MA regions under section 1858(a)(2). The Secretary may establish PDP regions which are not the same as MA regions if the Secretary determines that the establishment of different regions under this part would improve access to benefits under this part.

''(C) AUTHORITY FOR TERRITORIES.—The Secretary shall establish, and may revise, PDP regions for areas in States that are not within the 50 States or the District of Columbia.

''(3) NATIONAL PLAN.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as preventing a prescription drug plan from being offered in more than one PDP region (including all PDP regions).

''(b) SUBMISSION OF BIDS, PREMIUMS, AND RELATED INFORMATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A PDP sponsor shall submit to the Secretary information described in paragraph (2) with respect to each prescription drug plan it offers. Such information shall be submitted at the same time and in a similar manner to the manner in which information described in paragraph (6) of section 1854(a) is submitted by an MA organization under paragraph (1) of such section.

''(2) INFORMATION DESCRIBED.—The information described in this paragraph is information on the following:

''(A) COVERAGE PROVIDED.—The prescription drug coverage provided under the plan, including the deductible and other cost-sharing.

''(B) ACTUARIAL VALUE.—The actuarial value of the qualified prescription drug coverage in the region for a part D eligible individual with a national average risk profile for the factors described in section 1860D–15(c)(1)(A) (as specified by the Secretary).

''(C) BID.—Information on the bid, including an actuarial certification of—

''(i) the basis for the actuarial value described in subparagraph (B) assumed in such bid;

''(ii) the portion of such bid attributable to basic prescription drug coverage and, if applicable, the portion of such bid attributable to supplemental benefits;

''(iii) assumptions regarding the reinsurance subsidy payments provided under section 1860D–15(b) subtracted from the actuarial value to produce such bid; and

''(iv) administrative expenses assumed in the bid.

''(D) SERVICE AREA.—The service area for the plan.

''(E) LEVEL OF RISK ASSUMED.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Whether the PDP sponsor requires a modification of risk level under clause (ii) and, if so, the extent of such modification. Any such modification shall apply with respect to all prescription drug plans offered by a PDP sponsor in a PDP region. This subparagraph shall not apply to an MA–PD plan.

''(ii) RISK LEVELS DESCRIBED.—A modification of risk level under this clause may consist of one or more of the following:

''(I) INCREASE IN FEDERAL PERCENTAGE ASSUMED IN INITIAL RISK CORRIDOR.—An equal percentage point increase in the percents applied under subparagraphs (B)(i), (B)(ii)(I), (C)(i), and (C)(ii)(I) of section 1860D–15(e)(2). In no case shall the application of previous sentence prevent the application of a higher percentage under section 1869D–15(e)(2)(B)(iii).

''(II) INCREASE IN FEDERAL PERCENTAGE ASSUMED IN SECOND RISK CORRIDOR.—An equal percentage point increase in the percents applied under subparagraphs (B)(ii)(II) and (C)(ii)(II) of section 1860D–15(e)(2).

''(III) DECREASE IN SIZE OF RISK CORRIDORS.—A decrease in the threshold risk percentages specified in section 1860D–15(e)(3)(C).

''(F) ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.—Such other information as the Secretary may require to carry out this part.

''(3) PAPERWORK REDUCTION FOR OFFERING OF PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLANS NATIONALLY OR IN MULTI-REGION AREAS.—The Secretary shall establish requirements for information submission under this subsection in a manner that promotes the offering of such plans in more than one PDP region (including all regions) through the filing of consolidated information.

''(c) ACTUARIAL VALUATION.—

''(1) PROCESSES.—For purposes of this part, the Secretary shall establish processes and methods for determining the actuarial valuation of prescription drug coverage, including—

''(A) an actuarial valuation of standard prescription drug coverage under section 1860D–2(b);

''(B) actuarial valuations relating to alternative prescription drug coverage under section 1860D–2(c)(1);

''(C) an actuarial valuation of the reinsurance subsidy payments under section 1860D–15(b);

''(D) the use of generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies; and

''(E) applying the same methodology for determinations of actuarial valuations under subparagraphs (A) and (B).

''(2) ACCOUNTING FOR DRUG UTILIZATION.—Such processes and methods for determining actuarial valuation shall take into account the effect that providing alternative prescription drug coverage (rather than standard prescription drug coverage) has on drug utilization.

''(3) RESPONSIBILITIES.—

''(A) PLAN RESPONSIBILITIES.—PDP sponsors and MA organizations are responsible for the preparation and submission of actuarial valuations required under this part for prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans they offer.

''(B) USE OF OUTSIDE ACTUARIES.—Under the processes and methods established under paragraph (1), PDP sponsors offering prescription drug plans and MA organizations offering MA–PD plans may use actuarial opinions certified by independent, qualified actuaries to establish actuarial values.

''(d) REVIEW OF INFORMATION AND NEGOTIATION.—

''(1) REVIEW OF INFORMATION.—The Secretary shall review the information filed under subsection (b) for the purpose of conducting negotiations under paragraph (2).

''(2) NEGOTIATION REGARDING TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—Subject to subsection (i), in exercising the authority under paragraph (1), the Secretary—

''(A) has the authority to negotiate the terms and conditions of the proposed bid submitted and other terms and conditions of a proposed plan; and

''(B) has authority similar to the authority of the Director of the Office of Personnel Management with respect to health benefits plans under chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code.

''(e) APPROVAL OF PROPOSED PLANS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—After review and negotiation under subsection (d), the Secretary shall approve or disapprove the prescription drug plan.

''(2) REQUIREMENTS FOR APPROVAL.—The Secretary may approve a prescription drug plan only if the following requirements are met:

''(A) COMPLIANCE WITH REQUIREMENTS.—The plan and the PDP sponsor offering the plan comply with the requirements under this part, including the provision of qualified prescription drug coverage.

''(B) ACTUARIAL DETERMINATIONS.—The Secretary determines that the plan and PDP sponsor meet the requirements under this part relating to actuarial determinations, including such requirements under section 1860D–2(c).

''(C) APPLICATION OF FEHBP STANDARD.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary determines that the portion of the bid submitted under subsection (b) that is attributable to basic prescription drug coverage is supported by the actuarial bases provided under such subsection and reasonably and equitably reflects the revenue requirements (as used for purposes of section 1302(8)(C) of the Public Health Service Act) for benefits provided under that plan, less the sum (determined on a monthly per capita basis) of the actuarial value of the reinsurance payments under section 1860D–15(b).

''(ii) SUPPLEMENTAL COVERAGE.—The Secretary determines that the portion of the bid submitted under subsection (b) that is attributable to supplemental prescription drug coverage pursuant to section 1860D–2(a)(2) is supported by the actuarial bases provided under such subsection and reasonably and equitably reflects the revenue requirements (as used for purposes of section 1302(8)(C) of the Public Health Service Act) for such coverage under the plan.

''(D) PLAN DESIGN.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary does not find that the design of the plan and its benefits (including any formulary and tiered formulary structure) are likely to substantially discourage enrollment by certain part D eligible individuals under the plan.

''(ii) USE OF CATEGORIES AND CLASSES IN FORMULARIES.—The Secretary may not find that the design of categories and classes within a formulary violates clause (i) if such categories and classes are consistent with guidelines (if any) for such categories and classes established by the United States Pharmacopeia.

''(f) APPLICATION OF LIMITED RISK PLANS.—

''(1) CONDITIONS FOR APPROVAL OF LIMITED RISK PLANS.—The Secretary may only approve a limited risk plan (as defined in paragraph (4)(A)) for a PDP region if the access requirements under section 1860D–3(a) would not be met for the region but for the approval of such a plan (or a fallback prescription drug plan under subsection (g)).

''(2) RULES.—The following rules shall apply with respect to the approval of a limited risk plan in a PDP region:

''(A) LIMITED EXERCISE OF AUTHORITY.—Only the minimum number of such plans may be approved in order to meet the access requirements under section 1860D–3(a).

''(B) MAXIMIZING ASSUMPTION OF RISK.—The Secretary shall provide priority in approval for those plans bearing the highest level of risk (as computed by the Secretary), but the Secretary may take into account the level of the bids submitted by such plans.

''(C) NO FULL UNDERWRITING FOR LIMITED RISK PLANS.—In no case may the Secretary approve a limited risk plan under which the modification of risk level provides for no (or a de minimis) level of financial risk.

''(3) ACCEPTANCE OF ALL FULL RISK CONTRACTS.—There shall be no limit on the number of full risk plans that are approved under subsection (e).

''(4) RISK-PLANS DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection:

''(A) LIMITED RISK PLAN.—The term 'limited risk plan' means a prescription drug plan that provides basic prescription drug coverage and for which the PDP sponsor includes a modification of risk level described in subparagraph (E) of subsection (b)(2) in its bid submitted for the plan under such subsection. Such term does not include a fallback prescription drug plan.

''(B) FULL RISK PLAN.—The term 'full risk plan' means a prescription drug plan that is not a limited risk plan or a fallback prescription drug plan.

''(g) GUARANTEEING ACCESS TO COVERAGE.—

''(1) SOLICITATION OF BIDS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Separate from the bidding process under subsection (b), the Secretary shall provide for a process for the solicitation of bids from eligible fallback entities (as defined in paragraph (2)) for the offering in all fallback service areas (as defined in paragraph (3)) in one or more PDP regions of a fallback prescription drug plan (as defined in paragraph (4)) during the contract period specified in paragraph (5)).

''(B) ACCEPTANCE OF BIDS.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this subparagraph, the provisions of subsection (e) shall apply with respect to the approval or disapproval of fallback prescription drug plans. The Secretary shall enter into contracts under this subsection with eligible fallback entities for the offering of fallback prescription drug plans so approved in fallback service areas.

''(ii) LIMITATION OF 1 PLAN FOR ALL FALLBACK SERVICE AREAS IN A PDP REGION.—With respect to all fallback service areas in any PDP region for a contract period, the Secretary shall approve the offering of only 1 fallback prescription drug plan.

''(iii) COMPETITIVE PROCEDURES.—Competitive procedures (as defined in section 4(5) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403(5))) shall be used to enter into a contract under this subsection. The provisions of subsection (d) of section 1874A shall apply to a contract under this section in the same manner as they apply to a contract under such section.

''(iv) TIMING.—The Secretary shall approve a fallback prescription drug plan for a PDP region in a manner so that, if there are any fallback service areas in the region for a year, the fallback prescription drug plan is offered at the same time as prescription drug plans would otherwise be offered.

''(V) NO NATIONAL FALLBACK PLAN.—The Secretary shall not enter into a contract with a single fallback entity for the offering of fallback plans throughout the United States.

''(2) ELIGIBLE FALLBACK ENTITY.—For purposes of this section, the term 'eligible fallback entity' means, with respect to all fallback service areas in a PDP region for a contract period, an entity that—

''(A) meets the requirements to be a PDP sponsor (or would meet such requirements but for the fact that the entity is not a risk-bearing entity); and

''(B) does not submit a bid under section 1860D–11(b) for any prescription drug plan for any PDP region for the first year of such contract period.

For purposes of subparagraph (B), an entity shall be treated as submitting a bid with respect to a prescription drug plan if the entity is acting as a subcontractor of a PDP sponsor that is offering such a plan. The previous sentence shall not apply to entities that are subcontractors of an MA organization except insofar as such organization is acting as a PDP sponsor with respect to a prescription drug plan.

''(3) FALLBACK SERVICE AREA.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'fallback service area' means, for a PDP region with respect to a year, any area within such region for which the Secretary determines before the beginning of the year that the access requirements of the first sentence of section 1860D–3(a) will not be met for part D eligible individuals residing in the area for the year.

''(4) FALLBACK PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN.—For purposes of this part, the term 'fallback prescription drug plan' means a prescription drug plan that—

''(A) only offers the standard prescription drug coverage and access to negotiated prices described in section 1860D–2(a)(1)(A) and does not include any supplemental prescription drug coverage; and

''(B) meets such other requirements as the Secretary may specify.

''(5) PAYMENTS UNDER THE CONTRACT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A contract entered into under this subsection shall provide for—

''(i) payment for the actual costs (taking into account negotiated price concessions described in section 1860D–2(d)(1)(B)) of covered part D drugs provided to part D eligible individuals enrolled in a fallback prescription drug plan offered by the entity; and

''(ii) payment of management fees that are tied to performance measures established by the Secretary for the management, administration, and delivery of the benefits under the contract.

''(B) PERFORMANCE MEASURES.—The performance measures established by the Secretary pursuant to subparagraph (A)(ii) shall include at least measures for each of the following:

''(i) COSTS.—The entity contains costs to the Medicare Prescription Drug Account and to part D eligible individuals enrolled in a fallback prescription drug plan offered by the entity through mechanisms such as generic substitution and price discounts.

''(ii) QUALITY PROGRAMS.—The entity provides such enrollees with quality programs that avoid adverse drug reactions and overutilization and reduce medical errors.

''(iii) CUSTOMER SERVICE.—The entity provides timely and accurate delivery of services and pharmacy and beneficiary support services.

''(iv) BENEFIT ADMINISTRATION AND CLAIMS ADJUDICATION.—The entity provides efficient and effective benefit administration and claims adjudication.

''(6) MONTHLY BENEFICIARY PREMIUM.—Except as provided in section 1860D–13(b) (relating to late enrollment penalty) and subject to section 1860D–14 (relating to low-income assistance), the monthly beneficiary premium to be charged under a fallback prescription drug plan offered in all fallback service areas in a PDP region shall be uniform and shall be equal to 25.5 percent of an amount equal to the Secretary's estimate of the average monthly per capita actuarial cost, including administrative expenses, under the fallback prescription drug plan of providing coverage in the region, as calculated by the Chief Actuary of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services. In calculating such administrative expenses, the Chief Actuary shall use a factor that is based on similar expenses of prescription drug plans that are not fallback prescription drug plans.

''(7) GENERAL CONTRACT TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as may be appropriate to carry out this section, the terms and conditions of contracts with eligible fallback entities offering fallback prescription drug plans under this subsection shall be the same as the terms and conditions of contracts under this part for prescription drug plans.

''(B) PERIOD OF CONTRACT.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), a contract approved for a fallback prescription drug plan for fallback service areas for a PDP region under this section shall be for a period of 3 years (except as may be renewed after a subsequent bidding process).

''(ii) LIMITATION.—A fallback prescription drug plan may be offered under a contract in an area for a year only if that area is a fallback service area for that year.

''(C) ENTITY NOT PERMITTED TO MARKET OR BRAND FALLBACK PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLANS.—An eligible fallback entity with a contract under this subsection may not engage in any marketing or branding of a fallback prescription drug plan.

''(h) ANNUAL REPORT ON USE OF LIMITED RISK PLANS AND FALLBACK PLANS.—The Secretary shall submit to Congress an annual report that describes instances in which limited risk plans and fallback prescription drug plans were offered under subsections (f) and (g). The Secretary shall include in such report such recommendations as may be appropriate to limit the need for the provision of such plans and to maximize the assumption of financial risk under section subsection (f).

''(i) NONINTERFERENCE.—In order to promote competition under this part and in carrying out this part, the Secretary—

''(1) may not interfere with the negotiations between drug manufacturers and pharmacies and PDP sponsors; and

''(2) may not require a particular formulary or institute a price structure for the reimbursement of covered part D drugs.

''(j) COORDINATION OF BENEFITS.—A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan shall permit State Pharmaceutical Assistance Programs and Rx plans under sections 1860D–23 and 1860D–24 to coordinate benefits with the plan and, in connection with such coordination with such a Program, not to impose fees that are unrelated to the cost of coordination.

''REQUIREMENTS FOR AND CONTRACTS WITH PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN (PDP) SPONSORS

''SEC. 1860D–12. (a) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.—Each PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan shall meet the following requirements:

''(1) LICENSURE.—Subject to subsection (c), the sponsor is organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offers a prescription drug plan.

''(2) ASSUMPTION OF FINANCIAL RISK FOR UNSUBSIDIZED COVERAGE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), to the extent that the entity is at risk the entity assumes financial risk on a prospective basis for benefits that it offers under a prescription drug plan and that is not covered under section 1860D–15(b).

''(B) REINSURANCE PERMITTED.—The plan sponsor may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of coverage provided to any enrollee to the extent that the sponsor is at risk for providing such coverage.

''(3) SOLVENCY FOR UNLICENSED SPONSORS.—In the case of a PDP sponsor that is not described in paragraph (1) and for which a waiver has been approved under subsection (c), such sponsor shall meet solvency standards established by the Secretary under subsection (d).

''(b) CONTRACT REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not permit the enrollment under section 1860D–1 in a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor under this part, and the sponsor shall not be eligible for payments under section 1860D–14 or 1860D–15, unless the Secretary has entered into a contract under this subsection with the sponsor with respect to the offering of such plan. Such a contract with a sponsor may cover more than one prescription drug plan. Such contract shall provide that the sponsor agrees to comply with the applicable requirements and standards of this part and the terms and conditions of payment as provided for in this part.

''(2) LIMITATION ON ENTITIES OFFERING FALLBACK PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLANS.—The Secretary shall not enter into a contract with a PDP sponsor for the offering of a prescription drug plan (other than a fallback prescription drug plan) in a PDP region for a year if the sponsor—

''(A) submitted a bid under section 1860D–11(g) for such year (as the first year of a contract period under such section) to offer a fallback prescription drug plan in any PDP region;

''(B) offers a fallback prescription drug plan in any PDP region during the year; or

''(C) offered a fallback prescription drug plan in that PDP region during the previous year.

For purposes of this paragraph, an entity shall be treated as submitting a bid with respect to a prescription drug plan or offering a fallback prescription drug plan if the entity is acting as a subcontractor of a PDP sponsor that is offering such a plan. The previous sentence shall not apply to entities that are subcontractors of an MA organization except insofar as such organization is acting as a PDP sponsor with respect to a prescription drug plan.

''(3) INCORPORATION OF CERTAIN MEDICARE ADVANTAGE CONTRACT REQUIREMENTS.—Except as otherwise provided, the following provisions of section 1857 shall apply to contracts under this section in the same manner as they apply to contracts under section 1857(a):

''(A) MINIMUM ENROLLMENT.—Paragraphs (1) and (3) of section 1857(b), except that—

''(i) the Secretary may increase the minimum number of enrollees required under such paragraph (1) as the Secretary determines appropriate; and

''(ii) the requirement of such paragraph (1) shall be waived during the first contract year with respect to an organization in a region.

''(B) CONTRACT PERIOD AND EFFECTIVENESS.—Section 1857(c), except that in applying paragraph (4)(B) of such section any reference to payment amounts under section 1853 shall be deemed payment amounts under section 1860D–15.

''(1) AUTHORIZING WAIVER.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an entity that seeks to offer a prescription drug plan in a State, the Secretary shall waive the requirement of subsection (a)(1) that the entity be licensed in that State if the Secretary determines, based on the application and other evidence presented to the Secretary, that any of the grounds for approval of the application described in paragraph (2) have been met.

''(B) APPLICATION OF REGIONAL PLAN WAIVER RULE.—In addition to the waiver available under subparagraph (A), the provisions of section 1858(d) shall apply to PDP sponsors under this part in a manner similar to the manner in which such provisions apply to MA organizations under part C, except that no application shall be required under paragraph (1)(B) of such section in the case of a State that does not provide a licensing process for such a sponsor.

''(B) SPECIAL RULES.—In applying subparagraph (A)(i)—

''(i) the ground of approval described in section 1855(a)(2)(B) is deemed to have been met if the State does not have a licensing process in effect with respect to the PDP sponsor; and

''(ii) for plan years beginning before January 1, 2008, if the State does have such a licensing process in effect, such ground for approval described in such section is deemed to have been met upon submission of an application described in such section.

''(II) the total payments which the Secretary estimates will be paid to prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans that are attributable to the standardized bid amount during the year, taking into account amounts paid by the Secretary and enrollees.

''(4) COMPUTATION OF NATIONAL AVERAGE MONTHLY BID AMOUNT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For each year (beginning with 2006) the Secretary shall compute a national average monthly bid amount equal to the average of the standardized bid amounts (as defined in paragraph (5)) for each prescription drug plan and for each MA–PD plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i). Such average does not take into account the bids submitted for MSA plans, MA private fee-for-service plan, and specialized MA plans for special needs individuals, PACE programs under section 1894 (pursuant to section 1860D–21(f)), and under reasonable cost reimbursement contracts under section 1876(h) (pursuant to section 1860D–21(e)).

''(B) WEIGHTED AVERAGE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The monthly national average monthly bid amount computed under subparagraph (A) for a year shall be a weighted average, with the weight for each plan being equal to the average number of part D eligible individuals enrolled in such plan in the reference month (as defined in section 1858(f)(4)).

''(3) AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount determined under this paragraph for a part D eligible individual for a continuous period of eligibility is the greater of—

''(i) an amount that the Secretary determines is actuarially sound for each uncovered month (as defined in subparagraph (B)) in the same continuous period of eligibility; or

''(B) UNCOVERED MONTH DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'uncovered month' means, with respect to a part D eligible individual, any month beginning after the end of the initial enrollment period under section 1860D–1(b)(2) unless the individual can demonstrate that the individual had creditable prescription drug coverage (as defined in paragraph (4)) for any portion of such month.

''(4) CREDITABLE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE DEFINED.—For purposes of this part, the term 'creditable prescription drug coverage' means any of the following coverage, but only if the coverage meets the requirement of paragraph (5):

''(H) OTHER COVERAGE.—Such other coverage as the Secretary determines appropriate.

''(5) ACTUARIAL EQUIVALENCE REQUIREMENT.—Coverage meets the requirement of this paragraph only if the coverage is determined (in a manner specified by the Secretary) to provide coverage of the cost of prescription drugs the actuarial value of which (as defined by the Secretary) to the individual equals or exceeds the actuarial value of standard prescription drug coverage (as determined under section 1860D–11(c)).

''(6) PROCEDURES TO DOCUMENT CREDITABLE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish procedures (including the form, manner, and time) for the documentation of creditable prescription drug coverage, including procedures to assist in determining whether coverage meets the requirement of paragraph (5).

''(B) DISCLOSURE BY ENTITIES OFFERING CREDITABLE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Each entity that offers prescription drug coverage of the type described in subparagraphs (B) through (H) of paragraph (4) shall provide for disclosure, in a form, manner, and time consistent with standards established by the Secretary, to the Secretary and part D eligible individuals of whether the coverage meets the requirement of paragraph (5) or whether such coverage is changed so it no longer meets such requirement.

''(ii) DISCLOSURE OF NON-CREDITABLE COVERAGE.—In the case of such coverage that does not meet such requirement, the disclosure to part D eligible individuals under this subparagraph shall include information regarding the fact that because such coverage does not meet such requirement there are limitations on the periods in a year in which the individuals may enroll under a prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan and that any such enrollment is subject to a late enrollment penalty under this subsection.

''(C) WAIVER OF REQUIREMENT.—In the case of a part D eligible individual who was enrolled in prescription drug coverage of the type described in subparagraphs (B) through (H) of paragraph (4) which is not creditable prescription drug coverage because it does not meet the requirement of paragraph (5), the individual may apply to the Secretary to have such coverage treated as creditable prescription drug coverage if the individual establishes that the individual was not adequately informed that such coverage did not meet such requirement.

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), for purposes of this subsection, the term 'continuous period of eligibility' means, with respect to a part D eligible individual, the period that begins with the first day on which the individual is eligible to enroll in a prescription drug plan under this part and ends with the individual's death.

shall be a separate continuous period of eligibility with respect to the individual (and each such period which terminates shall be deemed not to have existed for purposes of subsequently applying this paragraph).

''(c) COLLECTION OF MONTHLY BENEFICIARY PREMIUMS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the provisions of section 1854(d) shall apply to PDP sponsors and premiums (and any late enrollment penalty) under this part in the same manner as they apply to MA organizations and beneficiary premiums under part C, except that any reference to a Trust Fund is deemed for this purpose a reference to the Medicare Prescription Drug Account.

''(2) CREDITING OF LATE ENROLLMENT PENALTY.—

''(A) PORTION ATTRIBUTABLE TO INCREASED ACTUARIAL COSTS.—With respect to late enrollment penalties imposed under subsection (b), the Secretary shall specify the portion of such a penalty that the Secretary estimates is attributable to increased actuarial costs assumed by the PDP sponsor or MA organization (and not taken into account through risk adjustment provided under section 1860D–15(c)(1) or through reinsurance payments under section 1860D–15(b)) as a result of such late enrollment.

''(B) COLLECTION THROUGH WITHHOLDING.—In the case of a late enrollment penalty that is collected from a part D eligible individual in the manner described in section 1854(d)(2)(A), the Secretary shall provide that only the portion of such penalty estimated under subparagraph (A) shall be paid to the PDP sponsor or MA organization offering the part D plan in which the individual is enrolled.

''(C) COLLECTION BY PLAN.—In the case of a late enrollment penalty that is collected from a part D eligible individual in a manner other than the manner described in section 1854(d)(2)(A), the Secretary shall establish procedures for reducing payments otherwise made to the PDP sponsor or MA organization by an amount equal to the amount of such penalty less the portion of such penalty estimated under subparagraph (A).

''(3) FALLBACK PLANS.—In applying this subsection in the case of a fallback prescription drug plan, paragraph (2) shall not apply and the monthly beneficiary premium shall be collected in the manner specified in section 1854(d)(2)(A) (or such other manner as may be provided under section 1840 in the case of monthly premiums under section 1839).

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Social Security Administration such sums as may be necessary for the determination of eligibility under this subparagraph.

''(ii) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—Determinations under this subparagraph shall be effective beginning with the month in which the individual applies for a determination that the individual is a subsidy eligible individual and shall remain in effect for a period specified by the Secretary, but not to exceed 1 year.

''(iii) REDETERMINATIONS AND APPEALS THROUGH MEDICAID.—Redeterminations and appeals, with respect to eligibility determinations under clause (i) made under a State plan under title XIX, shall be made in accordance with the frequency of, and manner in which, redeterminations and appeals of eligibility are made under such plan for purposes of medical assistance under such title.

''(II) may provide that part D eligible individuals not described in subclause (I) who are determined for purposes of the State plan under title XIX to be eligible for medical assistance under clause (i), (iii), or (iv) of section 1902(a)(10)(E) are treated as being determined to be subsidy eligible individuals described in paragraph (1).

Insofar as the Secretary determines that the eligibility requirements under the State plan for medical assistance referred to in subclause (II) are substantially the same as the requirements for being treated as a subsidy eligible individual described in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall provide for the treatment described in such subclause.

''(C) INCOME DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of applying this section—

''(i) in the case of a part D eligible individual who is not treated as a subsidy eligible individual under subparagraph (B)(v), income shall be determined in the manner described in section 1905(p)(1)(B), without regard to the application of section 1902(r)(2); and

''(III) matters attested to in the application shall be subject to appropriate methods of verification.

''(iv) METHODOLOGY FLEXIBILITY.—The Secretary may permit a State in making eligibility determinations for premium and cost-sharing subsidies under this section to use the same asset or resource methodologies that are used with respect to eligibility for medical assistance for medicare cost-sharing described in section 1905(p) so long as the Secretary determines that the use of such methodologies will not result in any significant differences in the number of individuals determined to be subsidy eligible individuals.

''(F) TREATMENT OF TERRITORIAL RESIDENTS.—In the case of a part D eligible individual who is not a resident of the 50 States or the District of Columbia, the individual is not eligible to be a subsidy eligible individual under this section but may be eligible for financial assistance with prescription drug expenses under section 1935(e).

''(4) INDEXING DOLLAR AMOUNTS.—

''(A) COPAYMENT FOR LOWEST INCOME DUAL ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS.—The dollar amounts applied under paragraph (1)(D)(ii)—

Any amount established under clause (i) or (ii) that is not a multiple of $1 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $1.

''(b) PREMIUM SUBSIDY AMOUNT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The premium subsidy amount described in this subsection for a subsidy eligible individual residing in a PDP region and enrolled in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan is the low-income benchmark premium amount (as defined in paragraph (2)) for the PDP region in which the individual resides or, if greater, the amount specified in paragraph (3).

''(2) LOW-INCOME BENCHMARK PREMIUM AMOUNT DEFINED.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'low-income benchmark premium amount' means, with respect to a PDP region in which—

''(i) all prescription drug plans are offered by the same PDP sponsor, the weighted average of the amounts described in subparagraph (B)(i) for such plans; or

''(ii) there are prescription drug plans offered by more than one PDP sponsor, the weighted average of amounts described in subparagraph (B) for prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) offered in such region.

''(B) PREMIUM AMOUNTS DESCRIBED.—The premium amounts described in this subparagraph are, in the case of—

''(i) a prescription drug plan that is a basic prescription drug plan, the monthly beneficiary premium for such plan;

''(ii) a prescription drug plan that provides alternative prescription drug coverage the actuarial value of which is greater than that of standard prescription drug coverage, the portion of the monthly beneficiary premium that is attributable to basic prescription drug coverage; and

''(iii) an MA–PD plan, the portion of the MA monthly prescription drug beneficiary premium that is attributable to basic prescription drug benefits (described in section 1852(a)(6)(B)(ii)).

The premium amounts described in this subparagraph do not include any amounts attributable to late enrollment penalties under section 1860D–13(b).

''(3) ACCESS TO 0 PREMIUM PLAN.—In no case shall the premium subsidy amount under this subsection for a PDP region be less than the lowest monthly beneficiary premium for a prescription drug plan that offers basic prescription drug coverage in the region.

''(c) ADMINISTRATION OF SUBSIDY PROGRAM.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall provide a process whereby, in the case of a part D eligible individual who is determined to be a subsidy eligible individual and who is enrolled in a prescription drug plan or is enrolled in an MA–PD plan—

''(A) the Secretary provides for a notification of the PDP sponsor or the MA organization offering the plan involved that the individual is eligible for a subsidy and the amount of the subsidy under subsection (a);

''(B) the sponsor or organization involved reduces the premiums or cost-sharing otherwise imposed by the amount of the applicable subsidy and submits to the Secretary information on the amount of such reduction;

''(C) the Secretary periodically and on a timely basis reimburses the sponsor or organization for the amount of such reductions; and

''(D) the Secretary ensures the confidentiality of individually identifiable information.

In applying subparagraph (C), the Secretary shall compute reductions based upon imposition under subsections (a)(1)(D) and (a)(2)(E) of unreduced copayment amounts applied under such subsections.

''(2) USE OF CAPITATED FORM OF PAYMENT.—The reimbursement under this section with respect to cost-sharing subsidies may be computed on a capitated basis, taking into account the actuarial value of the subsidies and with appropriate adjustments to reflect differences in the risks actually involved.

''(d) RELATION TO MEDICAID PROGRAM.—For special provisions under the medicaid program relating to medicare prescription drug benefits, see section 1935.

''SUBSIDIES FOR PART D ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS FOR QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

''SEC. 1860D–15. (a) SUBSIDY PAYMENT.—In order to reduce premium levels applicable to qualified prescription drug coverage for part D eligible individuals consistent with an overall subsidy level of 74.5 percent for basic prescription drug coverage, to reduce adverse selection among prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans, and to promote the participation of PDP sponsors under this part and MA organizations under part C, the Secretary shall provide for payment to a PDP sponsor that offers a prescription drug plan and an MA organization that offers an MA–PD plan of the following subsidies in accordance with this section:

''(1) DIRECT SUBSIDY.—A direct subsidy for each part D eligible individual enrolled in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan for a month equal to—

''(A) the amount of the plan's standardized bid amount (as defined in section 1860D–13(a)(5)), adjusted under subsection (c)(1), reduced by

''(B) the base beneficiary premium (as computed under paragraph (2) of section 1860D–13(a) and as adjusted under paragraph (1)(B) of such section).

''(2) SUBSIDY THROUGH REINSURANCE.—The reinsurance payment amount (as defined in subsection (b)).

This section constitutes budget authority in advance of appropriations Acts and represents the obligation of the Secretary to provide for the payment of amounts provided under this section.

''(b) REINSURANCE PAYMENT AMOUNT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The reinsurance payment amount under this subsection for a part D eligible individual enrolled in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan for a coverage year is an amount equal to 80 percent of the allowable reinsurance costs (as specified in paragraph (2)) attributable to that portion of gross covered prescription drug costs as specified in paragraph (3) incurred in the coverage year after such individual has incurred costs that exceed the annual out-of-pocket threshold specified in section 1860D–2(b)(4)(B).

''(2) ALLOWABLE REINSURANCE COSTS.—For purposes of this section, the term 'allowable reinsurance costs' means, with respect to gross covered prescription drug costs under a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor or an MA–PD plan offered by an MA organization, the part of such costs that are actually paid (net of discounts, chargebacks, and average percentage rebates) by the sponsor or organization or by (or on behalf of) an enrollee under the plan, but in no case more than the part of such costs that would have been paid under the plan if the prescription drug coverage under the plan were basic prescription drug coverage, or, in the case of a plan providing supplemental prescription drug coverage, if such coverage were standard prescription drug coverage.

''(3) GROSS COVERED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COSTS.—For purposes of this section, the term 'gross covered prescription drug costs' means, with respect to a part D eligible individual enrolled in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan during a coverage year, the costs incurred under the plan, not including administrative costs, but including costs directly related to the dispensing of covered part D drugs during the year and costs relating to the deductible. Such costs shall be determined whether they are paid by the individual or under the plan, regardless of whether the coverage under the plan exceeds basic prescription drug coverage.

''(4) COVERAGE YEAR DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term 'coverage year' means a calendar year in which covered part D drugs are dispensed if the claim for such drugs (and payment on such claim) is made not later than such period after the end of such year as the Secretary specifies.

''(c) ADJUSTMENTS RELATING TO BIDS.—

''(1) HEALTH STATUS RISK ADJUSTMENT.—

''(A) ESTABLISHMENT OF RISK ADJUSTORS.—The Secretary shall establish an appropriate methodology for adjusting the standardized bid amount under subsection (a)(1)(A) to take into account variation in costs for basic prescription drug coverage among prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans based on the differences in actuarial risk of different enrollees being served. Any such risk adjustment shall be designed in a manner so as not to result in a change in the aggregate amounts payable to such plans under subsection (a)(1) and through that portion of the monthly beneficiary prescription drug premiums described in subsection (a)(1)(B) and MA monthly prescription drug beneficiary premiums.

''(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In establishing the methodology under subparagraph (A), the Secretary may take into account the similar methodologies used under section 1853(a)(3) to adjust payments to MA organizations for benefits under the original medicare fee-for-service program option.

''(C) DATA COLLECTION.—In order to carry out this paragraph, the Secretary shall require—

''(i) PDP sponsors to submit data regarding drug claims that can be linked at the individual level to part A and part B data and such other information as the Secretary determines necessary; and

''(ii) MA organizations that offer MA–PD plans to submit data regarding drug claims that can be linked at the individual level to other data that such organizations are required to submit to the Secretary and such other information as the Secretary determines necessary.

''(D) PUBLICATION.—At the time of publication of risk adjustment factors under section 1853(b)(1)(B)(i)(II), the Secretary shall publish the risk adjusters established under this paragraph for the succeeding year.

''(2) GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), for purposes of section 1860D–13(a)(1)(B)(iii), the Secretary shall establish an appropriate methodology for adjusting the national average monthly bid amount (computed under section 1860D–13(a)(4)) to take into account differences in prices for covered part D drugs among PDP regions.

''(B) DE MINIMIS RULE.—If the Secretary determines that the price variations described in subparagraph (A) among PDP regions are de minimis, the Secretary shall not provide for adjustment under this paragraph.

''(C) BUDGET NEUTRAL ADJUSTMENT.—Any adjustment under this paragraph shall be applied in a manner so as to not result in a change in the aggregate payments made under this part that would have been made if the Secretary had not applied such adjustment.

''(d) PAYMENT METHODS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Payments under this section shall be based on such a method as the Secretary determines. The Secretary may establish a payment method by which interim payments of amounts under this section are made during a year based on the Secretary's best estimate of amounts that will be payable after obtaining all of the information.

''(2) REQUIREMENT FOR PROVISION OF INFORMATION.—

''(A) REQUIREMENT.—Payments under this section to a PDP sponsor or MA organization are conditioned upon the furnishing to the Secretary, in a form and manner specified by the Secretary, of such information as may be required to carry out this section.

''(B) RESTRICTION ON USE OF INFORMATION.—Information disclosed or obtained pursuant to subparagraph (A) may be used by officers, employees, and contractors of the Department of Health and Human Services only for the purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, carrying out this section.

''(3) SOURCE OF PAYMENTS.—Payments under this section shall be made from the Medicare Prescription Drug Account.

''(4) APPLICATION OF ENROLLEE ADJUSTMENT.—The provisions of section 1853(a)(2) shall apply to payments to PDP sponsors under this section in the same manner as they apply to payments to MA organizations under section 1853(a).

''(e) PORTION OF TOTAL PAYMENTS TO A SPONSOR OR ORGANIZATION SUBJECT TO RISK (APPLICATION OF RISK CORRIDORS).—

''(1) COMPUTATION OF ADJUSTED ALLOWABLE RISK CORRIDOR COSTS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'adjusted allowable risk corridor costs' means, for a plan for a coverage year (as defined in subsection (b)(4))—

''(i) the allowable risk corridor costs (as defined in subparagraph (B)) for the plan for the year, reduced by

''(ii) the sum of (I) the total reinsurance payments made under subsection (b) to the sponsor of the plan for the year, and (II) the total subsidy payments made under section 1860D–14 to the sponsor of the plan for the year.

''(B) ALLOWABLE RISK CORRIDOR COSTS.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'allowable risk corridor costs' means, with respect to a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor or an MA–PD plan offered by an MA organization, the part of costs (not including administrative costs, but including costs directly related to the dispensing of covered part D drugs during the year) incurred by the sponsor or organization under the plan that are actually paid (net of discounts, chargebacks, and average percentage rebates) by the sponsor or organization under the plan, but in no case more than the part of such costs that would have been paid under the plan if the prescription drug coverage under the plan were basic prescription drug coverage, or, in the case of a plan providing supplemental prescription drug coverage, if such coverage were basic prescription drug coverage taking into account the adjustment under section 1860D–11(c)(2). In computing allowable costs under this paragraph, the Secretary shall compute such costs based upon imposition under paragraphs (1)(D) and (2)(E) of section 1860D–14(a) of the maximum amount of copayments permitted under such paragraphs.

''(2) ADJUSTMENT OF PAYMENT.—

''(A) NO ADJUSTMENT IF ADJUSTED ALLOWABLE RISK CORRIDOR COSTS WITHIN RISK CORRIDOR.—If the adjusted allowable risk corridor costs (as defined in paragraph (1)) for the plan for the year are at least equal to the first threshold lower limit of the risk corridor (specified in paragraph (3)(A)(i)), but not greater than the first threshold upper limit of the risk corridor (specified in paragraph (3)(A)(iii)) for the plan for the year, then no payment adjustment shall be made under this subsection.

''(B) INCREASE IN PAYMENT IF ADJUSTED ALLOWABLE RISK CORRIDOR COSTS ABOVE UPPER LIMIT OF RISK CORRIDOR.—

''(i) COSTS BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND THRESHOLD UPPER LIMITS.—If the adjusted allowable risk corridor costs for the plan for the year are greater than the first threshold upper limit, but not greater than the second threshold upper limit, of the risk corridor for the plan for the year, the Secretary shall increase the total of the payments made to the sponsor or organization offering the plan for the year under this section by an amount equal to 50 percent (or, for 2006 and 2007, 75 percent or 90 percent if the conditions described in clause (iii) are met for the year) of the difference between such adjusted allowable risk corridor costs and the first threshold upper limit of the risk corridor.

''(ii) COSTS ABOVE SECOND THRESHOLD UPPER LIMITS.—If the adjusted allowable risk corridor costs for the plan for the year are greater than the second threshold upper limit of the risk corridor for the plan for the year, the Secretary shall increase the total of the payments made to the sponsor or organization offering the plan for the year under this section by an amount equal to the sum of—

''(I) 50 percent (or, for 2006 and 2007, 75 percent or 90 percent if the conditions described in clause (iii) are met for the year) of the difference between the second threshold upper limit and the first threshold upper limit; and

''(II) 80 percent of the difference between such adjusted allowable risk corridor costs and the second threshold upper limit of the risk corridor.

''(iii) CONDITIONS FOR APPLICATION OF HIGHER PERCENTAGE FOR 2006 AND 2007.—The conditions described in this clause are met for 2006 or 2007 if the Secretary determines with respect to such year that—

''(I) at least 60 percent of prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans to which this subsection applies have adjusted allowable risk corridor costs for the plan for the year that are more than the first threshold upper limit of the risk corridor for the plan for the year; and

''(II) such plans represent at least 60 percent of part D eligible individuals enrolled in any prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan.

''(C) REDUCTION IN PAYMENT IF ADJUSTED ALLOWABLE RISK CORRIDOR COSTS BELOW LOWER LIMIT OF RISK CORRIDOR.—

''(i) COSTS BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND THRESHOLD LOWER LIMITS.—If the adjusted allowable risk corridor costs for the plan for the year are less than the first threshold lower limit, but not less than the second threshold lower limit, of the risk corridor for the plan for the year, the Secretary shall reduce the total of the payments made to the sponsor or organization offering the plan for the year under this section by an amount (or otherwise recover from the sponsor or organization an amount) equal to 50 percent (or, for 2006 and 2007, 75 percent) of the difference between the first threshold lower limit of the risk corridor and such adjusted allowable risk corridor costs.

''(ii) COSTS BELOW SECOND THRESHOLD LOWER LIMIT.—If the adjusted allowable risk corridor costs for the plan for the year are less the second threshold lower limit of the risk corridor for the plan for the year, the Secretary shall reduce the total of the payments made to the sponsor or organization offering the plan for the year under this section by an amount (or otherwise recover from the sponsor or organization an amount) equal to the sum of—

''(I) 50 percent (or, for 2006 and 2007, 75 percent) of the difference between the first threshold lower limit and the second threshold lower limit; and

''(II) 80 percent of the difference between the second threshold upper limit of the risk corridor and such adjusted allowable risk corridor costs.

''(3) ESTABLISHMENT OF RISK CORRIDORS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For each plan year the Secretary shall establish a risk corridor for each prescription drug plan and each MA–PD plan. The risk corridor for a plan for a year shall be equal to a range as follows:

''(i) FIRST THRESHOLD LOWER LIMIT.—The first threshold lower limit of such corridor shall be equal to—

''(I) the target amount described in subparagraph (B) for the plan; minus

''(II) an amount equal to the first threshold risk percentage for the plan (as determined under subparagraph (C)(i)) of such target amount.

''(ii) SECOND THRESHOLD LOWER LIMIT.—The second threshold lower limit of such corridor shall be equal to—

''(I) the target amount described in subparagraph (B) for the plan; minus

''(II) an amount equal to the second threshold risk percentage for the plan (as determined under subparagraph (C)(ii)) of such target amount.

''(iii) FIRST THRESHOLD UPPER LIMIT.—The first threshold upper limit of such corridor shall be equal to the sum of—

''(I) such target amount; and

''(II) the amount described in clause (i)(II).

''(iv) SECOND THRESHOLD UPPER LIMIT.—The second threshold upper limit of such corridor shall be equal to the sum of—

''(I) such target amount; and

''(II) the amount described in clause (ii)(II).

''(B) TARGET AMOUNT DESCRIBED.—The target amount described in this paragraph is, with respect to a prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan in a year, the total amount of payments paid to the PDP sponsor or MA–PD organization for the plan for the year, taking into account amounts paid by the Secretary and enrollees, based upon the standardized bid amount (as defined in section 1860D–13(a)(5) and as risk adjusted under subsection (c)(1)), reduced by the total amount of administrative expenses for the year assumed in such standardized bid.

''(C) FIRST AND SECOND THRESHOLD RISK PERCENTAGE DEFINED.—

''(i) FIRST THRESHOLD RISK PERCENTAGE.—Subject to clause (iii), for purposes of this section, the first threshold risk percentage is—

''(I) for 2006 and 2007, and 2.5 percent;

''(II) for 2008 through 2011, 5 percent; and

''(III) for 2012 and subsequent years, a percentage established by the Secretary, but in no case less than 5 percent.

''(ii) SECOND THRESHOLD RISK PERCENTAGE.—Subject to clause (iii), for purposes of this section, the second threshold risk percentage is—

''(I) for 2006 and 2007, 5 percent;

''(II) for 2008 through 2011, 10 percent; and

''(III) for 2012 and subsequent years, a percentage established by the Secretary that is greater than the percent established for the year under clause (i)(III), but in no case less than 10 percent.

''(iii) REDUCTION OF RISK PERCENTAGE TO ENSURE 2 PLANS IN AN AREA.—Pursuant to section 1860D–11(b)(2)(E)(ii), a PDP sponsor may submit a bid that requests a decrease in the applicable first or second threshold risk percentages or an increase in the percents applied under paragraph (2).

''(4) PLANS AT RISK FOR ENTIRE AMOUNT OF SUPPLEMENTAL PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—A PDP sponsor and MA organization that offers a plan that provides supplemental prescription drug benefits shall be at full financial risk for the provision of such supplemental benefits.

''(5) NO EFFECT ON MONTHLY PREMIUM.—No adjustment in payments made by reason of this subsection shall affect the monthly beneficiary premium or the MA monthly prescription drug beneficiary premium.

''(f) DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each contract under this part and under part C shall provide that—

''(A) the PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan or an MA organization offering an MA–PD plan shall provide the Secretary with such information as the Secretary determines is necessary to carry out this section; and

''(B) the Secretary shall have the right in accordance with section 1857(d)(2)(B) (as applied under section 1860D–12(b)(3)(C)) to inspect and audit any books and records of a PDP sponsor or MA organization that pertain to the information regarding costs provided to the Secretary under subparagraph (A).

''(2) RESTRICTION ON USE OF INFORMATION.—Information disclosed or obtained pursuant to the provisions of this section may be used by officers, employees, and contractors of the Department of Health and Human Services only for the purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, carrying out this section.

''(g) PAYMENT FOR FALLBACK PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLANS.—In lieu of the amounts otherwise payable under this section to a PDP sponsor offering a fallback prescription drug plan (as defined in section 1860D–3(c)(4)), the amount payable shall be the amounts determined under the contract for such plan pursuant to section 1860D–11(g)(5).

''MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG ACCOUNT IN THE FEDERAL SUPPLEMENTARY MEDICAL INSURANCE TRUST FUND

''SEC. 1860D–16. (a) ESTABLISHMENT AND OPERATION OF ACCOUNT.—

''(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is created within the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund established by section 1841 an account to be known as the 'Medicare Prescription Drug Account' (in this section referred to as the 'Account').

''(2) FUNDING.—The Account shall consist of such gifts and bequests as may be made as provided in section 201(i)(1), accrued interest on balances in the Account, and such amounts as may be deposited in, or appropriated to, such Account as provided in this part.

''(3) SEPARATE FROM REST OF TRUST FUND.—Funds provided under this part to the Account shall be kept separate from all other funds within the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund, but shall be invested, and such investments redeemed, in the same manner as all other funds and investments within such Trust Fund.

''(b) PAYMENTS FROM ACCOUNT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Managing Trustee shall pay from time to time from the Account such amounts as the Secretary certifies are necessary to make payments to operate the program under this part, including—

''(A) payments under section 1860D–14 (relating to low-income subsidy payments);

''(B) payments under section 1860D–15 (relating to subsidy payments and payments for fallback plans);

''(C) payments to sponsors of qualified retiree prescription drug plans under section 1860D–22(a); and

''(D) payments with respect to administrative expenses under this part in accordance with section 201(g).

''(2) TRANSFERS TO MEDICAID ACCOUNT FOR INCREASED ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—The Managing Trustee shall transfer from time to time from the Account to the Grants to States for Medicaid account amounts the Secretary certifies are attributable to increases in payment resulting from the application of section 1935(b).

''(3) PAYMENTS OF PREMIUMS WITHHELD.—The Managing Trustee shall make payment to the PDP sponsor or MA organization involved of the premiums (and the portion of late enrollment penalties) that are collected in the manner described in section 1854(d)(2)(A) and that are payable under a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan offered by such sponsor or organization.

''(4) TREATMENT IN RELATION TO PART B PREMIUM.—Amounts payable from the Account shall not be taken into account in computing actuarial rates or premium amounts under section 1839.

''(c) DEPOSITS INTO ACCOUNT.—

''(1) LOW-INCOME TRANSFER.—Amounts paid under section 1935(c) (and any amounts collected or offset under paragraph (1)(C) of such section) are deposited into the Account.

''(2) AMOUNTS WITHHELD.—Pursuant to sections 1860D–13(c) and 1854(d) (as applied under this part), amounts that are withheld (and allocated) to the Account are deposited into the Account.

''(3) APPROPRIATIONS TO COVER GOVERNMENT CONTRIBUTIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated from time to time, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the Account, an amount equivalent to the amount of payments made from the Account under subsection (b) plus such amounts as the Managing Trustee certifies is necessary to maintain an appropriate contingency margin, reduced by the amounts deposited under paragraph (1) or subsection (a)(2).

''(4) INITIAL FUNDING AND RESERVE.—In order to assure prompt payment of benefits provided under this part and the administrative expenses thereunder during the early months of the program established by this part and to provide an initial contingency reserve, there are authorized to be appropriated to the Account, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such amount as the Secretary certifies are required, but not to exceed 10 percent of the estimated total expenditures from such Account in 2006.

''Subpart 3—Application to Medicare Advantage Program and Treatment of Employer-Sponsored Programs and Other Prescription Drug Plans

''APPLICATION TO MEDICARE ADVANTAGE PROGRAM AND RELATED MANAGED CARE PROGRAMS

''SEC. 1860D–21. (a) SPECIAL RULES RELATING TO OFFERING OF QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—An MA organization on and after January 1, 2006—

''(A) may not offer an MA plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A) in an area unless either that plan (or another MA plan offered by the organization in that same service area) includes required prescription drug coverage (as defined in paragraph (2)); and

''(B) may not offer prescription drug coverage (other than that required under parts A and B) to an enrollee—

''(i) under an MSA plan; or

''(ii) under another MA plan unless such drug coverage under such other plan provides qualified prescription drug coverage and unless the requirements of this section with respect to such coverage are met.

''(2) QUALIFYING COVERAGE.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the term 'required coverage' means with respect to an MA–PD plan—

''(A) basic prescription drug coverage; or

''(B) qualified prescription drug coverage that provides supplemental prescription drug coverage, so long as there is no MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium applied under the plan (due to the application of a credit against such premium of a rebate under section 1854(b)(1)(C)).

''(b) APPLICATION OF DEFAULT ENROLLMENT RULES.—

''(1) SEAMLESS CONTINUATION.—In applying section 1851(c)(3)(A)(ii), an individual who is enrolled in a health benefits plan shall not be considered to have been deemed to make an election into an MA–PD plan unless such health benefits plan provides any prescription drug coverage.

''(2) MA CONTINUATION.—In applying section 1851(c)(3)(B), an individual who is enrolled in an MA plan shall not be considered to have been deemed to make an election into an MA–PD plan unless—

''(A) for purposes of the election as of January 1, 2006, the MA plan provided as of December 31, 2005, any prescription drug coverage; or

''(B) for periods after January 1, 2006, such MA plan is an MA–PD plan.

''(3) DISCONTINUANCE OF MA–PD ELECTION DURING FIRST YEAR OF ELIGIBILITY.—In applying the second sentence of section 1851(e)(4) in the case of an individual who is electing to discontinue enrollment in an MA–PD plan, the individual shall be permitted to enroll in a prescription drug plan under part D at the time of the election of coverage under the original medicare fee-for-service program.

''(4) RULES REGARDING ENROLLEES IN MA PLANS NOT PROVIDING QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—In the case of an individual who is enrolled in an MA plan (other than an MSA plan) that does not provide qualified prescription drug coverage, if the organization offering such coverage discontinues the offering with respect to the individual of all MA plans that do not provide such coverage—

''(i) the individual is deemed to have elected the original medicare fee-for-service program option, unless the individual affirmatively elects to enroll in an MA–PD plan; and

''(ii) in the case of such a deemed election, the disenrollment shall be treated as an involuntary termination of the MA plan described in subparagraph (B)(ii) of section 1882(s)(3) for purposes of applying such section.

The information disclosed under section 1852(c)(1) for individuals who are enrolled in such an MA plan shall include information regarding such rules.

''(c) APPLICATION OF PART D RULES FOR PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—With respect to the offering of qualified prescription drug coverage by an MA organization under this part on and after January 1, 2006—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided, the provisions of this part shall apply under part C with respect to prescription drug coverage provided under MA–PD plans in lieu of the other provisions of part C that would apply to such coverage under such plans.

''(2) WAIVER.—The Secretary shall waive the provisions referred to in paragraph (1) to the extent the Secretary determines that such provisions duplicate, or are in conflict with, provisions otherwise applicable to the organization or plan under part C or as may be necessary in order to improve coordination of this part with the benefits under this part.

''(3) TREATMENT OF MA OWNED AND OPERATED PHARMACIES.—The Secretary may waive the requirement of section 1860D–4(b)(1)(C) in the case of an MA–PD plan that provides access (other than mail order) to qualified prescription drug coverage through pharmacies owned and operated by the MA organization, if the Secretary determines that the organization's pharmacy network is sufficient to provide comparable access for enrollees under the plan.

''(d) SPECIAL RULES FOR PRIVATE FEE-FOR-SERVICE PLANS THAT OFFER PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—With respect to an MA plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(C) that offers qualified prescription drug coverage, on and after January 1, 2006, the following rules apply:

''(1) REQUIREMENTS REGARDING NEGOTIATED PRICES.—Subsections (a)(1) and (d)(1) of section 1860D–2 and section 1860D–4(b)(2)(A) shall not be construed to require the plan to provide negotiated prices (described in subsection (d)(1)(B) of such section), but shall apply to the extent the plan does so.

''(2) MODIFICATION OF PHARMACY ACCESS STANDARD AND DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENT.—If the plan provides coverage for drugs purchased from all pharmacies, without charging additional cost-sharing, and without regard to whether they are participating pharmacies in a network or have entered into contracts or agreements with pharmacies to provide drugs to enrollees covered by the plan, subsections (b)(1)(C) and (k) of section 1860D–4 shall not apply to the plan.

''(3) DRUG UTILIZATION MANAGEMENT PROGRAM AND MEDICATION THERAPY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM NOT REQUIRED.—The requirements of subparagraphs (A) and (C) of section 1860D–4(c)(1) shall not apply to the plan.

''(4) APPLICATION OF REINSURANCE.—The Secretary shall determine the amount of reinsurance payments under section 1860D–15(b) using a methodology that—

''(A) bases such amount on the Secretary's estimate of the amount of such payments that would be payable if the plan were an MA–PD plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) and the previous provisions of this subsection did not apply; and

''(B) takes into account the average reinsurance payments made under section 1860D–15(b) for populations of similar risk under MA–PD plans described in such section.

''(5) EXEMPTION FROM RISK CORRIDOR PROVISIONS.—The provisions of section 1860D–15(e) shall not apply.

''(6) EXEMPTION FROM NEGOTIATIONS.—Subsections (d) and (e)(2)(C) of section 1860D–11 shall not apply and the provisions of section 1854(a)(5)(B) prohibiting the review, approval, or disapproval of amounts described in such section shall apply to the proposed bid and terms and conditions described in section 1860D–11(d).

''(7) TREATMENT OF INCURRED COSTS WITHOUT REGARD TO FORMULARY.—The exclusion of costs incurred for covered part D drugs which are not included (or treated as being included) in a plan's formulary under section 1860D–2(b)(4)(B)(i) shall not apply insofar as the plan does not utilize a formulary.

''(e) APPLICATION TO REASONABLE COST REIMBURSEMENT CONTRACTORS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3) and rules established by the Secretary, in the case of an organization that is providing benefits under a reasonable cost reimbursement contract under section 1876(h) and that elects to provide qualified prescription drug coverage to a part D eligible individual who is enrolled under such a contract, the provisions of this part (and related provisions of part C) shall apply to the provision of such coverage to such enrollee in the same manner as such provisions apply to the provision of such coverage under an MA–PD local plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) and coverage under such a contract that so provides qualified prescription drug coverage shall be deemed to be an MA–PD local plan.

''(2) LIMITATION ON ENROLLMENT.—In applying paragraph (1), the organization may not enroll part D eligible individuals who are not enrolled under the reasonable cost reimbursement contract involved.

''(3) BIDS NOT INCLUDED IN DETERMINING NATIONAL AVERAGE MONTHLY BID AMOUNT.—The bid of an organization offering prescription drug coverage under this subsection shall not be taken into account in computing the national average monthly bid amount and low-income benchmark premium amount under this part.

''(f) APPLICATION TO PACE.—

''(ii) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in clause (i) shall be construed to prevent—

''(I) the sponsor from charging the annual enrollment fee (except in the case of a transitional assistance eligible individual); and

''(II) the pharmacy dispensing the covered discount card drug, from imposing a charge (consistent with the negotiated price) for the covered discount card drug dispensed, reduced by the amount of any transitional assistance made available.

''(D) INAPPLICABILITY OF MEDICAID BEST PRICE RULES.—The prices negotiated from drug manufacturers for covered discount card drugs under an endorsed discount card program under this section shall (notwithstanding any other provision of law) not be taken into account for the purposes of establishing the best price under section 1927(c)(1)(C).

''(2) REDUCTION OF MEDICATION ERRORS AND ADVERSE DRUG INTERACTIONS.—Each endorsed discount card program shall implement a system to reduce the likelihood of medication errors and adverse drug interactions and to improve medication use.

Such certification shall be deemed as consent to verification of respective eligibility under paragraph (3). A certification under this paragraph may be provided before, on, or after the time of enrollment under an endorsed program.

''(B) TREATMENT OF SELF-CERTIFICATION.—The Secretary shall treat a certification under subparagraph (A) that is verified under paragraph (3) as a determination that the individual involved is a transitional assistance eligible individual or special transitional assistance eligible individual (as the case may be) for the entire period of the enrollment of the individual in any endorsed program.

''(3) VERIFICATION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish methods (which may include the use of sampling and the use of information described in subparagraph (B)) to verify eligibility for individuals who seek to enroll in an endorsed program and for individuals who provide a certification under paragraph (2).

''(6) NO IMPACT ON BENEFITS UNDER OTHER PROGRAMS.—The availability of negotiated prices or transitional assistance under this section shall not be treated as benefits or otherwise taken into account in determining an individual's eligibility for, or the amount of benefits under, any other Federal program.

''(7) DISREGARD FOR PURPOSES OF PART C.—Nonuniformity of benefits resulting from the implementation of this section (including the provision or nonprovision of transitional assistance and the payment or waiver of any enrollment fee under this section) shall not be taken into account in applying section 1854(f).

''(B) APPLICATION OF LIMITATION.—The Secretary may obligate funds from the Fund for a year only if the Secretary determines (and the Chief Actuary of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services and the appropriate budget officer certify) that there are available in the Fund at the beginning of the year sufficient amounts to cover all such obligations incurred during the year consistent with subparagraph (A). The Secretary shall take such steps, in connection with computing additional payment amounts under paragraphs (3) and (4) and including limitations on enrollment in MA regional plans receiving such payments, as will ensure that sufficient funds are available to make such payments for the entire year. Funds shall only be made available from the Fund pursuant to an apportionment made in accordance with applicable procedures.

''(7) BIENNIAL GAO REPORTS.—Not later than January 1 of 2009, 2011, 2013, and 2015, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Secretary and Congress a report on the application of additional payments under this subsection. Each report shall include—

''(5) DETERMINATION OF WEIGHTED AVERAGE MA BIDS FOR A REGION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(B)(i), the weighted average of plan bids for an MA region and a year is the sum, for MA regional plans described in subparagraph (D) in the region and year, of the products (for each such plan) of the following:

''(i) MONTHLY MA STATUTORY NON-DRUG BID AMOUNT.—The unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid amount for the plan.

''(ii) SINGLE PLAN RULE.—In the case of an MA region in which only a single MA regional plan is being offered, the factor described in this subparagraph shall be equal to 1.

''(iii) EQUAL DIVISION AMONG MULTIPLE PLANS IN YEAR IN WHICH PLANS ARE FIRST AVAILABLE.—In the case of an MA region in the first year in which any MA regional plan is offered, if more than one MA regional plan is offered in such year, the factor described in this subparagraph for a plan shall (as specified by the Secretary) be equal to—

''(I) 1 divided by the number of such plans offered in such year; or

''(II) a factor for such plan that is based upon the organization's estimate of projected enrollment, as reviewed and adjusted by the Secretary to ensure reasonableness and as is certified by the Chief Actuary of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.

''(C) COUNTING OF INDIVIDUALS.—For purposes of subparagraph (B)(i), the Secretary shall count for each MA regional plan described in subparagraph (D) for an MA region and year, the number of individuals who reside in the region and who were enrolled under such plan under this part during the reference month.

''(D) PLANS COVERED.—For an MA region and year, an MA regional plan described in this subparagraph is an MA regional plan that is offered in the region and year and was offered in the region in the reference month.

''(g) ELECTION OF UNIFORM COVERAGE DETERMINATION.—Instead of applying section 1852(a)(2)(C) with respect to an MA regional plan, the organization offering the plan may elect to have a local coverage determination for the entire MA region be the local coverage determination applied for any part of such region (as selected by the organization).

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of enabling MA organizations that offer MA regional plans to meet applicable provider access requirements under section 1852 with respect to such plans, the Secretary may provide for payment under this section to an essential hospital that provides inpatient hospital services to enrollees in such a plan where the MA organization offering the plan certifies to the Secretary that the organization was unable to reach an agreement between the hospital and the organization regarding provision of such services under the plan. Such payment shall be available only if—

''(A) the organization provides assurances satisfactory to the Secretary that the organization will make payment to the hospital for inpatient hospital services of an amount that is not less than the amount that would be payable to the hospital under section 1886 with respect to such services; and

''(B) with respect to specific inpatient hospital services provided to an enrollee, the hospital demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the hospital's costs of such services exceed the payment amount described in subparagraph (A).

''(2) PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—The payment amount under this subsection for inpatient hospital services provided by a subsection (d) hospital to an enrollee in an MA regional plan shall be, subject to the limitation of funds under paragraph (3), the amount (if any) by which—

''(A) the amount of payment that would have been paid for such services under this title if the enrollees were covered under the original medicare fee-for-service program option and the hospital were a critical access hospital; exceeds

''(B) the amount of payment made for such services under paragraph (1)(A).

''(3) AVAILABLE AMOUNTS.—There shall be available for payments under this subsection—

''(A) in 2006, $25,000,000; and

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term 'CCA area' means an MSA that meets the requirements of paragraph (2) and is selected by the Secretary under subsection (c).

''(B) MSA DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term 'MSA' means a Metropolitan Statistical Area (or such similar area as the Secretary recognizes).

''(2) REQUIREMENTS FOR CCA AREAS.—The requirements of this paragraph for an MSA to be a CCA area are as follows:

''(A) MA ENROLLMENT REQUIREMENT.—For the reference month (as defined under section 1858(f)(4)(B)) with respect to 2010, at least 25 percent of the total number of MA eligible individuals who reside in the MSA were enrolled in an MA local plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i).

''(B) 2 PLAN REQUIREMENT.—There will be offered in the MSA during the annual, coordinated election period under section 1851(e)(3)(B) before the beginning of 2010 at least 2 MA local plans described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) (in addition to the fee-for-service program under parts A and B), each offered by a different MA organization and each of which met the minimum enrollment requirements of paragraph (1) of section 1857(b) (as applied without regard to paragraph (3) thereof) as of the reference month.

''(c) SELECTION OF CCA AREAS.—

''(1) GENERAL SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Secretary shall select CCA areas from among those MSAs qualifying under subsection (b) in a manner that—

''(A) seeks to maximize the opportunity to test the application of comparative cost adjustment under this title;

''(B) does not seek to maximize the number of MA eligible individuals who reside in such areas; and

''(C) provides for geographic diversity consistent with the criteria specified in paragraph (2).

''(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—With respect to the selection of MSAs that qualify to be CCA areas under subsection (b), the following rules apply, to the maximum extent feasible:

''(A) MAXIMUM NUMBER.—The number of such MSAs selected may not exceed the lesser of (i) 6, or (ii) 25 percent of the number of MSAs that meet the requirement of subsection (b)(2)(A).

''(d) APPLICATION OF COMPARATIVE COST ADJUSTMENT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a CCA area for a year—

''(A) for purposes of applying this part with respect to payment for MA local plans, any reference to an MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount shall be treated as a reference to such benchmark computed as if the CCA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount (as defined in subsection (e)(1)) were substituted for the amount described in section 1853(j)(1)(A) for the CCA area and year involved, as phased in under paragraph (3); and

''(B) with respect to months in the year for individuals residing in the CCA area who are not enrolled in an MA plan, the amount of the monthly premium under section 1839 is subject to adjustment under subsection (f).

''(2) EXCLUSION OF MA LOCAL AREAS WITH FEWER THAN 2 ORGANIZATIONS OFFERING MA PLANS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In no case shall an MA local area that is within an MSA be included as part of a CCA area unless for 2010 (and, except as provided in subparagraph (B), for a subsequent year) there is offered in each part of such MA local area at least 2 MA local plans described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) each of which is offered by a different MA organization.

''(B) CONTINUATION.—If an MA local area meets the requirement of subparagraph (A) and is included in a CCA area for 2010, such local area shall continue to be included in such CCA area for a subsequent year notwithstanding that it no longer meets such requirement so long as there is at least one MA local plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) that is offered in such local area.

''(3) PHASE-IN OF CCA BENCHMARK.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In applying this section for a year before 2013, paragraph (1)(A) shall be applied as if the phase-in fraction under subparagraph (B) of the CCA non-drug monthly benchmark amount for the year were substituted for such fraction of the MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount.

''(B) PHASE-IN FRACTION.—The phase-in fraction under this subparagraph is—

''(i) for 2010 ¼; and

''(ii) for a subsequent year is the phase-in fraction under this subparagraph for the previous year increased by ¼, but in no case more than 1.

''(e) COMPUTATION OF CCA BENCHMARK AMOUNT.—

''(1) CCA NON-DRUG MONTHLY BENCHMARK AMOUNT.—For purposes of this section, the term 'CCA non-drug monthly benchmark amount' means, with respect to a CCA area for a month in a year, the sum of the 2 components described in paragraph (2) for the area and year. The Secretary shall compute such benchmark amount for each such CCA area before the beginning of each annual, coordinated election period under section 1851(e)(3)(B) for each year (beginning with 2010) in which the CCA area is so selected.

''(2) 2 COMPONENTS.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the 2 components described in this paragraph for a CCA area and a year are the following:

''(A) MA LOCAL COMPONENT.—The product of the following:

''(i) WEIGHTED AVERAGE OF MEDICARE ADVANTAGE PLAN BIDS IN AREA.—The weighted average of the plan bids for the area and year (as determined under paragraph (3)(A)).

''(ii) NON-FFS MARKET SHARE.—1 minus the fee-for-service market share percentage, determined under paragraph (4) for the area and year.

''(B) FEE-FOR-SERVICE COMPONENT.—The product of the following:

''(i) FEE-FOR-SERVICE AREA-SPECIFIC NON-DRUG AMOUNT.—The fee-for-service area-specific non-drug amount (as defined in paragraph (5)) for the area and year.

''(ii) FEE-FOR-SERVICE MARKET SHARE.—The fee-for-service market share percentage, determined under paragraph (4) for the area and year.

''(3) DETERMINATION OF WEIGHTED AVERAGE MA BIDS FOR A CCA AREA.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(A)(i), the weighted average of plan bids for a CCA area and a year is, subject to subparagraph (D), the sum of the following products for MA local plans described in subparagraph (C) in the area and year:

''(i) MONTHLY MEDICARE ADVANTAGE STATUTORY NON-DRUG BID AMOUNT.—The accepted unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid amount.

''(ii) PLAN'S SHARE OF MEDICARE ADVANTAGE ENROLLMENT IN AREA.—The number of individuals described in subparagraph (B), divided by the total number of such individuals for all MA plans described in subparagraph (C) for that area and year.

''(B) COUNTING OF INDIVIDUALS.—The Secretary shall count, for each MA local plan described in subparagraph (C) for an area and year, the number of individuals who reside in the area and who were enrolled under such plan under this part during the reference month for that year.

''(C) EXCLUSION OF PLANS NOT OFFERED IN PREVIOUS YEAR.—For an area and year, the MA local plans described in this subparagraph are MA local plans described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i) that are offered in the area and year and were offered in the CCA area in the reference month.

''(D) COMPUTATION OF WEIGHTED AVERAGE OF PLAN BIDS.—In calculating the weighted average of plan bids for a CCA area under subparagraph (A)—

''(i) in the case of an MA local plan that has a service area only part of which is within such CCA area, the MA organization offering such plan shall submit a separate bid for such plan for the portion within such CCA area; and

''(ii) the Secretary shall adjust such separate bid (or, in the case of an MA local plan that has a service area entirely within such CCA area, the plan bid) as may be necessary to take into account differences between the service area of such plan within the CCA area and the entire CCA area and the distribution of plan enrollees of all MA local plans offered within the CCA area.

''(4) COMPUTATION OF FEE-FOR-SERVICE MARKET SHARE PERCENTAGE.—The Secretary shall determine, for a year and a CCA area, the proportion (in this subsection referred to as the 'fee-for-service market share percentage') equal to—

''(A) the total number of MA eligible individuals residing in such area who during the reference month for the year were not enrolled in any MA plan; divided by

''(B) the sum of such number and the total number of MA eligible individuals residing in such area who during such reference month were enrolled in an MA local plan described in section 1851(a)(2)(A)(i), or, if greater, such proportion determined for individuals nationally.

''(5) FEE-FOR-SERVICE AREA-SPECIFIC NON-DRUG AMOUNT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(B)(i) and subsection (f)(2)(A), subject to subparagraph (C), the term 'fee-for-service area-specific non-drug amount' means, for a CCA area and a year, the adjusted average per capita cost for such area and year involved, determined under section 1876(a)(4) and adjusted as appropriate for the purpose of risk adjustment for benefits under the original medicare fee-for-service program option for individuals entitled to benefits under part A and enrolled under part B who are not enrolled in an MA plan for the year, but adjusted to exclude costs attributable to payments under section 1886(h).

''(B) USE OF FULL RISK ADJUSTMENT TO STANDARDIZE FEE-FOR-SERVICE COSTS TO TYPICAL BENEFICIARY.—In determining the adjusted average per capita cost for an area and year under subparagraph (A), such costs shall be adjusted to fully take into account the demographic and health status risk factors established under section 1853(a)(1)(A)(iv) so that such per capita costs reflect the average costs for a typical beneficiary residing in the CCA area.

''(C) INCLUSION OF COSTS OF VA AND DOD MILITARY FACILITY SERVICES TO MEDICARE-ELIGIBLE BENEFICIARIES.—In determining the adjusted average per capita cost under subparagraph (A) for a year, such cost shall be adjusted to include the Secretary's estimate, on a per capita basis, of the amount of additional payments that would have been made in the area involved under this title if individuals entitled to benefits under this title had not received services from facilities of the Department of Veterans Affairs or the Department of Defense.

''(f) PREMIUM ADJUSTMENT.—

''(1) APPLICATION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), in the case of an individual who is enrolled under part B, who resides in a CCA area, and who is not enrolled in an MA plan under this part, the monthly premium otherwise applied under part B (determined without regard to subsections (b), (f), and (i) of section 1839 or any adjustment under this subsection) shall be adjusted in accordance with paragraph (2), but only in the case of premiums for months during the period in which the CCA program under this section for such area is in effect.

''(B) NO PREMIUM ADJUSTMENT FOR SUBSIDY ELIGIBLE BENEFICIARIES.—No premium adjustment shall be made under this subsection for a premium for a month if the individual is determined to be a subsidy eligible individual (as defined in section 1860D–14(a)(3)(A)) for the month.

''(2) AMOUNT OF ADJUSTMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Under this paragraph, subject to the exemption under paragraph (1)(B) and the limitation under subparagraph (B), if the fee-for-service area-specific non-drug amount (as defined in section (e)(5)) for a CCA area in which an individual resides for a month—

''(i) does not exceed the CCA non-drug monthly benchmark amount (as determined under subsection (e)(1)) for such area and month, the amount of the premium for the individual for the month shall be reduced, by an amount equal to 75 percent of the amount by which such CCA benchmark exceeds such fee-for-service area-specific non-drug amount; or

''(ii) exceeds such CCA non-drug benchmark, the amount of the premium for the individual for the month shall be adjusted to ensure, that—

''(I) the sum of the amount of the adjusted premium and the CCA non-drug benchmark for the area; is equal to

''(II) the sum of the unadjusted premium plus the amount of such fee-for-service area-specific non-drug amount for the area.

''(B) LIMITATION.—In no case shall the actual amount of an adjustment under subparagraph (A) for an area and month in a year result in an adjustment that exceeds the maximum adjustment permitted under subparagraph (C) for the area and year, or, if less, the maximum annual adjustment permitted under subparagraph (D) for the area and year.

''(C) PHASE-IN OF ADJUSTMENT.—The amount of an adjustment under subparagraph (A) for a CCA area and year may not exceed the product of the phase-in fraction for the year under subsection (d)(3)(B) multiplied by the amount of the adjustment otherwise computed under subparagraph (A) for the area and year, determined without regard to this subparagraph and subparagraph (D).

''(D) 5-PERCENT LIMITATION ON ADJUSTMENT.—The amount of the adjustment under this subsection for months in a year shall not exceed 5 percent of the amount of the monthly premium amount determined for months in the year under section 1839 without regard to subsections (b), (f), and (i) of such section and this subsection.''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 1853(j)(1)(A) (42 U.S.C. 1395w–23(j)(1)(A)), as added by section 222(d), is amended by inserting ''subject to section 1860C–1(d)(2)(A),'' after ''within an MA local area,''.

(B) Section 1853(b)(1)(B), as amended by section 222(f)(1), is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

''(iii) BENCHMARK ANNOUNCEMENT FOR CCA LOCAL AREAS.—The Secretary shall determine, and shall announce (in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties), on a timely basis before the calendar year concerned, with respect to each CCA area (as defined in section 1860C–1(b)(1)(A)), the CCA non-drug monthly benchmark amount under section 1860C–1(e)(1) for that area for the year involved.''.

''(i) the payment basis under this subsection for such orthotics furnished in such area shall be the payment basis determined under such competitive acquisition program; and

''(ii) the Secretary may use information on the payment determined under such competitive acquisition programs to adjust the payment amount otherwise recognized under subparagraph (B)(ii) for an area that is not a competitive acquisition area under section 1847, and in the case of such adjustment, paragraphs (8) and (9) of section 1842(b) shall not be applied.''.

Not later than July 1, 2009, the Inspector General shall submit to Congress a report on such study.

(B) by adding at the end the following new subparagraphs:

''(H) ADJUSTMENTS IN PRACTICE EXPENSE RELATIVE VALUE UNITS FOR CERTAIN DRUG ADMINISTRATION SERVICES BEGINNING IN 2004.—

''(i) USE OF SURVEY DATA.—In establishing the physician fee schedule under subsection (b) with respect to payments for services furnished on or after January 1, 2004, the Secretary shall, in determining practice expense relative value units under this subsection, utilize a survey submitted to the Secretary as of January 1, 2003, by a physician specialty organization pursuant to section 212 of the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999 if the survey—

''(I) covers practice expenses for oncology drug administration services; and

''(II) meets criteria established by the Secretary for acceptance of such surveys.

''(ii) PRICING OF CLINICAL ONCOLOGY NURSES IN PRACTICE EXPENSE METHODOLOGY.—If the survey described in clause (i) includes data on wages, salaries, and compensation of clinical oncology nurses, the Secretary shall utilize such data in the methodology for determining practice expense relative value units under subsection (c).

''(iii) WORK RELATIVE VALUE UNITS FOR CERTAIN DRUG ADMINISTRATION SERVICES.—In establishing the relative value units under this paragraph for drug administration services described in clause (iv) furnished on or after January 1, 2004, the Secretary shall establish work relative value units equal to the work relative value units for a level 1 office medical visit for an established patient.

''(iv) DRUG ADMINISTRATION SERVICES DESCRIBED.—The drug administration services described in this clause are physicians' services—

''(I) which are classified as of October 1, 2003, within any of the following groups of procedures: therapeutic or diagnostic infusions (excluding chemotherapy); chemotherapy administration services; and therapeutic, prophylactic, or diagnostic injections;

''(II) for which there are no work relative value units assigned under this subsection as of such date; and

''(III) for which national relative value units have been assigned under this subsection as of such date.

''(I) ADJUSTMENTS IN PRACTICE EXPENSE RELATIVE VALUE UNITS FOR CERTAIN DRUG ADMINISTRATION SERVICES BEGINNING WITH 2005.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—In establishing the physician fee schedule under subsection (b) with respect to payments for services furnished on or after January 1, 2005 or 2006, the Secretary shall adjust the practice expense relative value units for such year consistent with clause (ii).

''(ii) USE OF SUPPLEMENTAL SURVEY DATA.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subclause (II), if a specialty submits to the Secretary by not later than March 1, 2004, for 2005, or March 1, 2005, for 2006, data that includes expenses for the administration of drugs and biologicals for which the payment amount is determined pursuant to section 1842(o), the Secretary shall use such supplemental survey data in carrying out this subparagraph for the years involved insofar as they are collected and provided by entities and organizations consistent with the criteria established by the Secretary pursuant to section 212(a) of the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999.

''(II) LIMITATION ON SPECIALTY.—Subclause (I) shall apply to a specialty only insofar as not less than 40 percent of payments for the specialty under this title in 2002 are attributable to the administration of drugs and biologicals, as determined by the Secretary.

''(III) APPLICATION.—This clause shall not apply with respect to a survey to which subparagraph (H)(i) applies.

''(J) PROVISIONS FOR APPROPRIATE REPORTING AND BILLING FOR PHYSICIANS' SERVICES ASSOCIATED WITH THE ADMINISTRATION OF COVERED OUTPATIENT DRUGS AND BIOLOGICALS.—

''(iv) SUBSEQUENT, BUDGET NEUTRAL ADJUSTMENTS PERMITTED.—Nothing in subparagraph (H) or (I) or this subparagraph shall be construed as preventing the Secretary from providing for adjustments in practice expense relative value units under (and consistent with) subparagraph (B) for years after 2004, 2005, or 2006, respectively.''.

(2) TREATMENT OF OTHER SERVICES CURRENTLY IN THE NONPHYSICIAN WORK POOL.—The Secretary shall make adjustments to the nonphysician work pool methodology (as such term is used in the final rule promulgated by the Secretary in the Federal Register on December 31, 2002 (67 Fed. (3) PAYMENT FOR MULTIPLE CHEMOTHERAPY AGENTS FURNISHED ON A SINGLE DAY THROUGH THE PUSH TECHNIQUE.—

(A) REVIEW OF POLICY.—The Secretary shall review the policy, as in effect on October 1, 2003, with respect to payment under section 1848 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4) for the administration of more than 1 drug or biological to an individual on a single day through the push technique.

(A) IN GENERAL.—In order to provide for a transition during 2004 and 2005 to the payment system established under the amendments made by this section, in the case of physicians' services consisting of drug administration services described in subparagraph (H)(iv) of section 1848(c)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4(c)(2)), as added by paragraph (1)(B), furnished on or after January 1, 2004, and before January 1, 2006, in addition to the amount determined under the fee schedule under section 1848(b) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4(b)) there also shall be paid to the physician from the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund an amount equal to the applicable percentage specified in subparagraph (B) of such fee schedule amount for the services so determined.

(i) during 2004, is 32 percent; and

(ii) during 2005, is 3 percent.

(5) MEDPAC REVIEW AND REPORTS; SECRETARIAL RESPONSE.—

(A) REVIEW.—The Medicare Payment Advisory Commission shall review the payment changes made under this section insofar as they affect payment under part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act—

Each such report may include such recommendations regarding further adjustments in such payments as the Commission deems appropriate.

(D) SECRETARIAL RESPONSE.—As part of the rulemaking with respect to payment for physicians services under section 1848 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–4) for 2007, the Secretary may make appropriate adjustments to payment for items and services described in subparagraph (A)(i), taking into account the report submitted under such subparagraph (C)(i).

(b) APPLICATION OF MARKET-BASED PAYMENT SYSTEMS.—Section 1842(o) (42 U.S.C. 1395u(o)) is amended—

''(D) In no case may the percentage substituted under subparagraph (B) or (C) be less than 80 percent.''.

(c) APPLICATION OF AVERAGE SALES PRICE METHODS BEGINNING IN 2005.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Title XVIII is amended by inserting after section 1847 (42 U.S.C. 1395w–3), as amended by section 302(b), the following new section:

''USE OF AVERAGE SALES PRICE PAYMENT METHODOLOGY

''SEC. 1847A. (a) APPLICATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), this section shall apply to payment for drugs and biologicals that are described in section 1842(o)(1)(C) and that are furnished on or after January 1, 2005.

''(2) ELECTION.—This section shall not apply in the case of a physician who elects under subsection (a)(1)(A)(ii) of section 1847B for that section to apply instead of this section for the payment for drugs and biologicals.

''(b) PAYMENT AMOUNT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsections (d)(3)(C) and (e), the amount of payment determined under this section for the billing and payment code for a drug or biological (based on a minimum dosage unit) is, subject to applicable deductible and coinsurance—

''(A) in the case of a multiple source drug (as defined in subsection (c)(6)(C)), 106 percent of the amount determined under paragraph (3); or

''(B) in the case of a single source drug or biological (as defined in subsection (c)(6)(D)), 106 percent of the amount determined under paragraph (4).

''(2) SPECIFICATION OF UNIT.—

''(A) SPECIFICATION BY MANUFACTURER.—The manufacturer of a drug or biological shall specify the unit associated with each National Drug Code (including package size) as part of the submission of data under section 1927(b)(3)(A)(iii).

''(B) UNIT DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'unit' means, with respect to each National Drug Code (including package size) associated with a drug or biological, the lowest identifiable quantity (such as a capsule or tablet, milligram of molecules, or grams) of the drug or biological that is dispensed, exclusive of any diluent without reference to volume measures pertaining to liquids. For years after 2004, the Secretary may establish the unit for a manufacturer to report and methods for counting units as the Secretary determines appropriate to implement this section.

''(3) MULTIPLE SOURCE DRUG.—For all drug products included within the same multiple source drug billing and payment code, the amount specified in this paragraph is the volume-weighted average of the average sales prices reported under section 1927(b)(3)(A)(iii) determined by—

''(A) computing the sum of the products (for each National Drug Code assigned to such drug products) of—

''(i) the manufacturer's average sales price (as defined in subsection (c)); and

''(ii) the total number of units specified under paragraph (2) sold; and

''(B) dividing the sum determined under subparagraph (A) by the sum of the total number of units under subparagraph (A)(ii) for all National Drug Codes assigned to such drug products.

''(4) SINGLE SOURCE DRUG OR BIOLOGICAL.—The amount specified in this paragraph for a single source drug or biological is the lesser of the following:

''(A) AVERAGE SALES PRICE.—The average sales price as determined using the methodology applied under paragraph (3) for all National Drug Codes assigned to such drug or biological product.

''(B) WHOLESALE ACQUISITION COST (WAC).—The wholesale acquisition cost (as defined in subsection (c)(6)(B)) using the methodology applied under paragraph (3) for all National Drug Codes assigned to such drug or biological product.

''(5) BASIS FOR PAYMENT AMOUNT.—The payment amount shall be determined under this subsection based on information reported under subsection (f) and without regard to any special packaging, labeling, or identifiers on the dosage form or product or package.

''(c) MANUFACTURER'S AVERAGE SALES PRICE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the manufacturer's 'average sales price' means, of a drug or biological for a National Drug Code for a calendar quarter for a manufacturer for a unit—

''(A) the manufacturer's sales to all purchasers (excluding sales exempted in paragraph (2)) in the United States for such drug or biological in the calendar quarter; divided by

''(B) the total number of such units of such drug or biological sold by the manufacturer in such quarter.

''(2) CERTAIN SALES EXEMPTED FROM COMPUTATION.—In calculating the manufacturer's average sales price under this subsection, the following sales shall be excluded:

''(A) SALES EXEMPT FROM BEST PRICE.—Sales exempt from the inclusion in the determination of 'best price' under section 1927(c)(1)(C)(i).

''(B) SALES AT NOMINAL CHARGE.—Such other sales as the Secretary identifies as sales to an entity that are merely nominal in amount (as applied for purposes of section 1927(c)(1)(C)(ii)(III), except as the Secretary may otherwise provide).

''(3) SALE PRICE NET OF DISCOUNTS.—In calculating the manufacturer's average sales price under this subsection, such price shall include volume discounts, prompt pay discounts, cash discounts, free goods that are contingent on any purchase requirement, chargebacks, and rebates (other than rebates under section 1927). For years after 2004, the Secretary may include in such price other price concessions, which may be based on recommendations of the Inspector General, that would result in a reduction of the cost to the purchaser.

''(4) PAYMENT METHODOLOGY IN CASES WHERE AVERAGE SALES PRICE DURING FIRST QUARTER OF SALES IS UNAVAILABLE.—In the case of a drug or biological during an initial period (not to exceed a full calendar quarter) in which data on the prices for sales for the drug or biological is not sufficiently available from the manufacturer to compute an average sales price for the drug or biological, the Secretary may determine the amount payable under this section for the drug or biological based on—

''(A) the wholesale acquisition cost; or

''(B) the methodologies in effect under this part on November 1, 2003, to determine payment amounts for drugs or biologicals.

''(5) FREQUENCY OF DETERMINATIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL ON A QUARTERLY BASIS.—The manufacturer's average sales price, for a drug or biological of a manufacturer, shall be calculated by such manufacturer under this subsection on a quarterly basis. In making such calculation insofar as there is a lag in the reporting of the information on rebates and chargebacks under paragraph (3) so that adequate data are not available on a timely basis, the manufacturer shall apply a methodology based on a 12-month rolling average for the manufacturer to estimate costs attributable to rebates and chargebacks. For years after 2004, the Secretary may establish a uniform methodology under this subparagraph to estimate and apply such costs.

''(B) UPDATES IN PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—The payment amounts under subsection (b) shall be updated by the Secretary on a quarterly basis and shall be applied based upon the manufacturer's average sales price calculated for the most recent calendar quarter for which data is available.

''(C) USE OF CONTRACTORS; IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary may contract with appropriate entities to calculate the payment amount under subsection (b). Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may implement, by program instruction or otherwise, any of the provisions of this section.

''(6) DEFINITIONS AND OTHER RULES.—In this section:

''(A) MANUFACTURER.—The term 'manufacturer' means, with respect to a drug or biological, the manufacturer (as defined in section 1927(k)(5)).

''(B) WHOLESALE ACQUISITION COST.—The term 'wholesale acquisition cost' means, with respect to a drug or biological, the manufacturer's list price for the drug or biological to wholesalers or direct purchasers in the United States, not including prompt pay or other discounts, rebates or reductions in price, for the most recent month for which the information is available, as reported in wholesale price guides or other publications of drug or biological pricing data.

''(C) MULTIPLE SOURCE DRUG.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The term 'multiple source drug' means, for a calendar quarter, a drug for which there are 2 or more drug products which—

''(I) are rated as therapeutically equivalent (under the Food and Drug Administration's most recent publication of 'Approved Drug Products with Therapeutic Equivalence Evaluations'),

''(II) except as provided in subparagraph (E), are pharmaceutically equivalent and bioequivalent, as determined under subparagraph (F) and as determined by the Food and Drug Administration, and

''(III) are sold or marketed in the United States during the quarter.

''(ii) EXCEPTION.—With respect to single source drugs or biologicals that are within the same billing and payment code as of October 1, 2003, the Secretary shall treat such single source drugs or biologicals as if the single source drugs or biologicals were multiple source drugs.

''(D) SINGLE SOURCE DRUG OR BIOLOGICAL.—The term 'single source drug or biological' means—

''(i) a biological; or

''(ii) a drug which is not a multiple source drug and which is produced or distributed under a new drug application approved by the Food and Drug Administration, including a drug product marketed by any cross-licensed producers or distributors operating under the new drug application.

''(E) EXCEPTION FROM PHARMACEUTICAL EQUIVALENCE AND BIOEQUIVALENCE REQUIREMENT.—Subparagraph (C)(ii) shall not apply if the Food and Drug Administration changes by regulation the requirement that, for purposes of the publication described in subparagraph (C)(i), in order for drug products to be rated as therapeutically equivalent, they must be pharmaceutically equivalent and bioequivalent, as defined in subparagraph (F).

''(F) DETERMINATION OF PHARMACEUTICAL EQUIVALENCE AND BIOEQUIVALENCE.—For purposes of this paragraph—

''(i) drug products are pharmaceutically equivalent if the products contain identical amounts of the same active drug ingredient in the same dosage form and meet compendial or other applicable standards of strength, quality, purity, and identity; and

''(ii) drugs are bioequivalent if they do not present a known or potential bioequivalence problem, or, if they do present such a problem, they are shown to meet an appropriate standard of bioequivalence.

''(G) INCLUSION OF VACCINES.—In applying provisions of section 1927 under this section, 'other than a vaccine' is deemed deleted from section 1927(k)(2)(B).

''(d) MONITORING OF MARKET PRICES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services shall conduct studies, which may include surveys, to determine the widely available market prices of drugs and biologicals to which this section applies, as the Inspector General, in consultation with the Secretary, determines to be appropriate.

''(2) COMPARISON OF PRICES.—Based upon such studies and other data for drugs and biologicals, the Inspector General shall compare the average sales price under this section for drugs and biologicals with—

''(A) the widely available market price for such drugs and biologicals (if any); and

''(B) the average manufacturer price (as determined under section 1927(k)(1)) for such drugs and biologicals.

''(3) LIMITATION ON AVERAGE SALES PRICE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may disregard the average sales price for a drug or biological that exceeds the widely available market price or the average manufacturer price for such drug or biological by the applicable threshold percentage (as defined in subparagraph (B)).

''(B) APPLICABLE THRESHOLD PERCENTAGE DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term 'applicable threshold percentage' means—

''(i) in 2005, in the case of an average sales price for a drug or biological that exceeds widely available market price or the average manufacturer price, 5 percent; and

''(ii) in 2006 and subsequent years, the percentage applied under this subparagraph subject to such adjustment as the Secretary may specify for the widely available market price or the average manufacturer price, or both.

''(C) AUTHORITY TO ADJUST AVERAGE SALES PRICE.—If the Inspector General finds that the average sales price for a drug or biological exceeds such widely available market price or average manufacturer price for such drug or biological by the applicable threshold percentage, the Inspector General shall inform the Secretary (at such times as the Secretary may specify to carry out this subparagraph) and the Secretary shall, effective as of the next quarter, substitute for the amount of payment otherwise determined under this section for such drug or biological the lesser of—

''(i) the widely available market price for the drug or biological (if any); or

''(ii) 103 percent of the average manufacturer price (as determined under section 1927(k)(1)) for the drug or biological.

''(4) CIVIL MONEY PENALTY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that a manufacturer has made a misrepresentation in the reporting of the manufacturer's average sales price for a drug or biological, the Secretary may apply a civil money penalty in an amount of up to $10,000 for each such price misrepresentation and for each day in which such price misrepresentation was applied.

''(B) PROCEDURES.—The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to civil money penalties under subparagraph (B) in the same manner as they apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a).

''(5) WIDELY AVAILABLE MARKET PRICE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In this subsection, the term 'widely available market price' means the price that a prudent physician or supplier would pay for the drug or biological. In determining such price, the Inspector General shall take into account the discounts, rebates, and other price concessions routinely made available to such prudent physicians or suppliers for such drugs or biologicals.

''(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In determining the price under subparagraph (A), the Inspector General shall consider information from one or more of the following sources:

''(i) Manufacturers.

''(ii) Wholesalers.

''(iii) Distributors.

''(iv) Physician supply houses.

''(v) Specialty pharmacies.

''(vi) Group purchasing arrangements.

''(vii) Surveys of physicians.

''(viii) Surveys of suppliers.

''(ix) Information on such market prices from insurers.

''(x) Information on such market prices from private health plans.

''(e) AUTHORITY TO USE ALTERNATIVE PAYMENT IN RESPONSE TO PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCY.—In the case of a public health emergency under section 319 of the Public Health Service Act in which there is a documented inability to access drugs and biologicals, and a concomitant increase in the price, of a drug or biological which is not reflected in the manufacturer's average sales price for one or more quarters, the Secretary may use the wholesale acquisition cost (or other reasonable measure of drug or biological price) instead of the manufacturer's average sales price for such quarters and for subsequent quarters until the price and availability of the drug or biological has stabilized and is substantially reflected in the applicable manufacturer's average sales price.

''(f) QUARTERLY REPORT ON AVERAGE SALES PRICE.—For requirements for reporting the manufacturer's average sales price (and, if required to make payment, the manufacturer's wholesale acquisition cost) for the drug or biological under this section, see section 1927(b)(3).

''(g) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, section 1878, or otherwise, of—

''(1) determinations of payment amounts under this section, including the assignment of National Drug Codes to billing and payment codes;

''(2) the identification of units (and package size) under subsection (b)(2);

''(3) the method to allocate rebates, chargebacks, and other price concessions to a quarter if specified by the Secretary;

''(4) the manufacturer's average sales price when it is used for the determination of a payment amount under this section; and

''(5) the disclosure of the average manufacturer price by reason of an adjustment under subsection (d)(3)(C) or (e).''.

(2) REPORT ON SALES TO PHARMACY BENEFIT MANAGERS.—

(A) STUDY.—The Secretary shall conduct a study on sales of drugs and biologicals to large volume purchasers, such as pharmacy benefit managers and health maintenance organizations, for purposes of determining whether the price at which such drugs and biologicals are sold to such purchasers does not represent the price such drugs and biologicals are made available for purchase to prudent physicians.

(B) REPORT.—Not later than January 1, 2006, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the study conducted under paragraph (1), and shall include recommendations on whether such sales to large volume purchasers should be excluded from the computation of a manufacturer's average sales price under section 1847A of the Social Security Act, as added by paragraph (1).

(3) INSPECTOR GENERAL REPORT ON ADEQUACY OF REIMBURSEMENT RATE UNDER AVERAGE SALES PRICE METHODOLOGY.—

''(ii) EXCEPTION.—Where a hospital and the entity furnishing rural air ambulance services are under common ownership, clause (i) shall not apply to remuneration (through employment or other relationship) by the hospital of the requester or immediate family member if the remuneration is for provider-based physician services furnished in a hospital (as described in section 1887) which are reimbursed under part A and the amount of the remuneration is unrelated directly or indirectly to the provision of rural air ambulance services.''.

(c) PROVISION AS PART OF OUTPATIENT HOSPITAL SERVICES.—For purposes of subsection (a), in determining whether clinical diagnostic laboratory services are furnished as part of outpatient services of a hospital, the Secretary shall apply the same rules that are used to determine whether clinical diagnostic laboratory services are furnished as an outpatient critical access hospital service under section 1834(g)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395m(g)(4)).

''(i) PROGRAMS SUBJECT TO REDUCTION.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subclause (II), if a hospital's reference resident level (specified in clause (ii)) is less than the otherwise applicable resident limit (as defined in subparagraph (C)(ii)), effective for portions of cost reporting periods occurring on or after July 1, 2005, the otherwise applicable resident limit shall be reduced by 75 percent of the difference between such otherwise applicable resident limit and such reference resident level.

''(II) EXCEPTION FOR SMALL RURAL HOSPITALS.—This subparagraph shall not apply to a hospital located in a rural area (as defined in subsection (d)(2)(D)(ii)) with fewer than 250 acute care inpatient beds.

''(ii) REFERENCE RESIDENT LEVEL.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in subclauses (II) and (III), the reference resident level specified in this clause for a hospital is the resident level for the most recent cost reporting period of the hospital ending on or before September 30, 2002, for which a cost report has been settled (or, if not, submitted (subject to audit)), as determined by the Secretary.

''(II) USE OF MOST RECENT ACCOUNTING PERIOD TO RECOGNIZE EXPANSION OF EXISTING PROGRAMS.—If a hospital submits a timely request to increase its resident level due to an expansion of an existing residency training program that is not reflected on the most recent settled cost report, after audit and subject to the discretion of the Secretary, the reference resident level for such hospital is the resident level for the cost reporting period that includes July 1, 2003, as determined by the Secretary.

The aggregate number of increases in the otherwise applicable resident limits under this subparagraph may not exceed the Secretary's estimate of the aggregate reduction in such limits attributable to subparagraph (A).

''(ii) CONSIDERATIONS IN REDISTRIBUTION.—In determining for which hospitals the increase in the otherwise applicable resident limit is provided under clause (i), the Secretary shall take into account the demonstrated likelihood of the hospital filling the positions within the first 3 cost reporting periods beginning on or after July 1, 2005, made available under this subparagraph, as determined by the Secretary.

''(iii) PRIORITY FOR RURAL AND SMALL URBAN AREAS.—In determining for which hospitals and residency training programs an increase in the otherwise applicable resident limit is provided under clause (i), the Secretary shall distribute the increase to programs of hospitals located in the following priority order:

Increases of residency limits within the same priority category under this clause shall be determined by the Secretary.

''(iv) LIMITATION.—In no case shall more than 25 full-time equivalent additional residency positions be made available under this subparagraph with respect to any hospital.

''(v) APPLICATION OF LOCALITY ADJUSTED NATIONAL AVERAGE PER RESIDENT AMOUNT.—With respect to additional residency positions in a hospital attributable to the increase provided under this subparagraph, notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, the approved FTE resident amount is deemed to be equal to the locality adjusted national average per resident amount computed under paragraph (4)(E) for that hospital.

''(vi) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as permitting the redistribution of reductions in residency positions attributable to voluntary reduction programs under paragraph (6), under a demonstration project approved as of October 31, 2003, under the authority of section 402 of Public Law 90–248, or as affecting the ability of a hospital to establish new medical residency training programs under paragraph (4)(H).

''(C) RESIDENT LEVEL AND LIMIT DEFINED.—In this paragraph:

''(i) RESIDENT LEVEL.—The term 'resident level' means, with respect to a hospital, the total number of full-time equivalent residents, before the application of weighting factors (as determined under paragraph (4)), in the fields of allopathic and osteopathic medicine for the hospital.

(2) Chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, shall not apply with respect to applications under section 1886(h)(7) of the Social Security Act, as added by subsection (a)(3).

(c) REPORT ON EXTENSION OF APPLICATIONS UNDER REDISTRIBUTION PROGRAM.—Not later than July 1, 2005, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report containing recommendations regarding whether to extend the deadline for applications for an increase in resident limits under section 1886(h)(4)(I)(ii)(II) of the Social Security Act (as added by subsection (a)).

''(B) The Secretary shall establish criteria for a qualifying county under this subparagraph based on the out-migration referred to in subparagraph (A) and differences in the area wage indices. Under such criteria the Secretary shall, utilizing such data as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, establish—

''(i) a threshold percentage, established by the Secretary, of the weighted average of the area wage index or indices for the higher wage index areas involved;

''(ii) a threshold (of not less than 10 percent) for minimum out-migration to a higher wage index area or areas; and

''(C) For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'higher wage index area' means, with respect to a county, an area with a wage index that exceeds that of the county.

''(D) The increase in the wage index under subparagraph (A) for a qualifying county shall be equal to the percentage of the hospital employees residing in the qualifying county who are employed in any higher wage index area multiplied by the sum of the products, for each higher wage index area of—

''(ii) the number of hospital employees residing in the qualifying county who are employed in such higher wage index area divided by the total number of hospital employees residing in the qualifying county who are employed in any higher wage index area.

''(E) The process under this paragraph may be based upon the process used by the Medicare Geographic Classification Review Board under paragraph (10). As the Secretary determines to be appropriate to carry out such process, the Secretary may require hospitals (including subsection (d) hospitals and other hospitals) and critical access hospitals, as required under section 1866(a)(1)(T), to submit data regarding the location of residence, or the Secretary may use data from other sources.

''(F) A wage index increase under this paragraph shall be effective for a period of 3 fiscal years, except that the Secretary shall establish procedures under which a subsection (d) hospital may elect to waive the application of such wage index increase.

''(G) A hospital in a county that has a wage index increase under this paragraph for a period and that has not waived the application of such an increase under subparagraph (F) is not eligible for reclassification under paragraph (8) or (10) during that period.

''(H) Any increase in a wage index under this paragraph for a county shall not be taken into account for purposes of—

''(i) computing the wage index for portions of the wage index area (not including the county) in which the county is located; or

''(I) The thresholds described in subparagraph (B), data on hospital employees used under this

The case-mix under such system shall be for a limited number of patient characteristics.

''(B) The system described in subparagraph (A) shall include—

''(i) the services comprising the composite rate established under paragraph (7); and

''(D) The Secretary shall adjust the payment rates under such system by a geographic index as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. If the Secretary applies a geographic index under this paragraph that differs from the index applied under paragraph (7) the Secretary shall phase-in the application of the index under this paragraph over a multiyear period.

''(F) Beginning with 2006, the Secretary shall annually increase the basic case-mix adjusted payment amounts established under this paragraph, by an amount determined by—

''(i) applying the estimated growth in expenditures for drugs and biologicals (including erythropoietin) that are separately billable to the component of the basic case-mix adjusted system described in subparagraph (B)(ii); and

''(ii) For such drugs and biologicals (including erythropoietin) furnished in 2005, the acquisition cost of the drug or biological, as determined by the Inspector General reports to the Secretary as required by section 623(c) of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003. Insofar as the Inspector General has not determined the acquisition cost with respect to a drug or biological, the Secretary shall determine the payment amount for such drug or biological.

''(iii) For such drugs and biologicals (including erythropoietin) furnished in 2006 and subsequent years, such acquisition cost or the amount determined under section 1847A for the drug or biological, as the Secretary may specify.

''(B)(i) Drugs and biologicals (including erythropoietin) which were separately billed under this subsection on the day before the date of the enactment of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003 shall continue to be separately billed on and after such date.

''(5) SURETY BOND.—A contract with a medicare administrative contractor under this section may require the medicare administrative contractor, and any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amount as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

''(c) TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A contract with any medicare administrative contractor under this section may contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary finds necessary or appropriate and may provide for advances of funds to the medicare administrative contractor for the making of payments by it under subsection (a)(4)(B).

''(3) LIABILITY OF MEDICARE ADMINISTRATIVE CONTRACTOR.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—No medicare administrative contractor shall be liable to the United States for a payment by a certifying or disbursing officer unless, in connection with such payment, the medicare administrative contractor acted with reckless disregard of its obligations under its medicare administrative contract or with intent to defraud the United States.

''(B) USE OF STANDARD PROTOCOLS WHEN CONDUCTING PREPAYMENT REVIEWS.—When a medicare administrative contractor conducts a random prepayment review, the contractor may conduct such review only in accordance with a standard protocol for random prepayment audits developed by the Secretary.

''(C) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as preventing the denial of payments for claims actually reviewed under a random prepayment review.

''(D) RANDOM PREPAYMENT REVIEW.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'random prepayment review' means a demand for the production of records or documentation absent cause with respect to a claim.

''(2) LIMITATIONS ON NON-RANDOM PREPAYMENT REVIEW.—

''(A) LIMITATIONS ON INITIATION OF NON-RANDOM PREPAYMENT REVIEW.—A medicare administrative contractor may not initiate non-random prepayment review of a provider of services or supplier based on the initial identification by that provider of services or supplier of an improper billing practice unless there is a likelihood of sustained or high level of payment error under section 1893(f)(3)(A).

''(B) TERMINATION OF NON-RANDOM PREPAYMENT REVIEW.—The Secretary shall issue regulations relating to the termination, including termination dates, of non-random prepayment review. SEC. 935. RECOVERY OF OVERPAYMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1893 (42 U.S.C. 1395ddd) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(f) RECOVERY OF OVERPAYMENTS.—

''(1) USE OF REPAYMENT PLANS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—If the repayment, within 30 days by a provider of services or supplier, of an overpayment under this title would constitute a hardship (as described in subparagraph (B)), subject to subparagraph (C), upon request of the provider of services or supplier the Secretary shall enter into a plan with the provider of services or supplier for the repayment (through offset or otherwise) of such overpayment over a period of at least 6 months but not longer than 3 years (or not longer than 5 years in the case of extreme hardship, as determined by the Secretary). Interest shall accrue on the balance through the period of repayment. Such plan shall meet terms and conditions determined to be appropriate by the Secretary.

''(B) HARDSHIP.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the repayment of an overpayment (or overpayments) within 30 days is deemed to constitute a hardship if—

''(I) in the case of a provider of services that files cost reports, the aggregate amount of the overpayments exceeds 10 percent of the amount paid under this title to the provider of services for the cost reporting period covered by the most recently submitted cost report; or

''(II) in the case of another provider of services or supplier, the aggregate amount of the overpayments exceeds 10 percent of the amount paid under this title to the provider of services or supplier for the previous calendar year.

''(ii) RULE OF APPLICATION.—The Secretary shall establish rules for the application of this subparagraph in the case of a provider of services or supplier that was not paid under this title during the previous year or was paid under this title only during a portion of that year.

''(iii) TREATMENT OF PREVIOUS OVERPAYMENTS.—If a provider of services or supplier has entered into a repayment plan under subparagraph (A) with respect to a specific overpayment amount, such payment amount under the repayment plan shall not be taken into account under clause (i) with respect to subsequent overpayment amounts.

''(C) EXCEPTIONS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply if—

''(i) the Secretary has reason to suspect that the provider of services or supplier may file for bankruptcy or otherwise cease to do business or discontinue participation in the program under this title; or

''(ii) there is an indication of fraud or abuse committed against the program.

''(D) IMMEDIATE COLLECTION IF VIOLATION OF REPAYMENT PLAN.—If a provider of services or supplier fails to make a payment in accordance with a repayment plan under this paragraph, the Secretary may immediately seek to offset or otherwise recover the total balance outstanding (including applicable interest) under the repayment plan.

''(E) RELATION TO NO FAULT PROVISION.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as affecting the application of section 1870(c) (relating to no adjustment in the cases of certain overpayments).

''(2) LIMITATION ON RECOUPMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a provider of services or supplier that is determined to have received an overpayment under this title and that seeks a reconsideration by a qualified independent contractor on such determination under section 1869(b)(1), the Secretary may not take any action (or authorize any other person, including any medicare contractor, as defined in subparagraph (C)) to recoup the overpayment until the date the decision on the reconsideration has been rendered. If the provisions of section 1869(b)(1) (providing for such a reconsideration by a qualified independent contractor) are not in effect, in applying the previous sentence any reference to such a reconsideration shall be treated as a reference to a redetermination by the fiscal intermediary or carrier involved.

''(B) COLLECTION WITH INTEREST.—Insofar as the determination on such appeal is against the provider of services or supplier, interest on the overpayment shall accrue on and after the date of the original notice of overpayment. Insofar as such determination against the provider of services or supplier is later reversed, the Secretary shall provide for repayment of the amount recouped plus interest at the same rate as would apply under the previous sentence for the period in which the amount was recouped.

''(C) MEDICARE CONTRACTOR DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'medicare contractor' has the meaning given such term in section 1889(g).

''(3) LIMITATION ON USE OF EXTRAPOLATION.—A medicare contractor may not use extrapolation to determine overpayment amounts to be recovered by recoupment, offset, or otherwise unless the Secretary determines that—

''(A) there is a sustained or high level of payment error; or

''(B) documented educational intervention has failed to correct the payment error.

There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, section 1878, or otherwise, of determinations by the Secretary of sustained or high levels of payment errors under this paragraph.

''(4) PROVISION OF SUPPORTING DOCUMENTATION.—In the case of a provider of services or supplier with respect to which amounts were previously overpaid, a medicare contractor may request the periodic production of records or supporting documentation for a limited sample of submitted claims to ensure that the previous practice is not continuing.

''(5) CONSENT SETTLEMENT REFORMS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may use a consent settlement (as defined in subparagraph (D)) to settle a projected overpayment.

''(B) OPPORTUNITY TO SUBMIT ADDITIONAL INFORMATION BEFORE CONSENT SETTLEMENT OFFER.—Before offering a provider of services or supplier a consent settlement, the Secretary shall—

''(i) communicate to the provider of services or supplier—

''(I) that, based on a review of the medical records requested by the Secretary, a preliminary evaluation of those records indicates that there would be an overpayment;

''(II) the nature of the problems identified in such evaluation; and

''(III) the steps that the provider of services or supplier should take to address the problems; and

''(ii) provide for a 45-day period during which the provider of services or supplier may furnish additional information concerning the medical records for the claims that had been reviewed.

''(C) CONSENT SETTLEMENT OFFER.—The Secretary shall review any additional information furnished by the provider of services or supplier under subparagraph (B)(ii). Taking into consideration such information, the Secretary shall determine if there still appears to be an overpayment. If so, the Secretary—

''(i) shall provide notice of such determination to the provider of services or supplier, including an explanation of the reason for such determination; and

''(ii) in order to resolve the overpayment, may offer the provider of services or supplier—

''(I) the opportunity for a statistically valid random sample; or

''(II) a consent settlement.

The opportunity provided under clause (ii)(I) does not waive any appeal rights with respect to the alleged overpayment involved.

''(D) CONSENT SETTLEMENT DEFINED.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'consent settlement' means an agreement between the Secretary and a provider of services or supplier whereby both parties agree to settle a projected overpayment based on less than a statistically valid sample of claims and the provider of services or supplier agrees not to appeal the claims involved.

''(6) NOTICE OF OVER-UTILIZATION OF CODES.—The Secretary shall establish, in consultation with organizations representing the classes of providers of services and suppliers, a process under which the Secretary provides for notice to classes of providers of services and suppliers served by the contractor in cases in which the contractor has identified that particular billing codes may be overutilized by that class of providers of services or suppliers under the programs under this title (or provisions of title XI insofar as they relate to such programs).

''(7) PAYMENT AUDITS.—

''(A) WRITTEN NOTICE FOR POST-PAYMENT AUDITS.—Subject to subparagraph (C), if a medicare contractor decides to conduct a post-payment audit of a provider of services or supplier under this title, the contractor shall provide the provider of services or supplier with written notice (which may be in electronic form) of the intent to conduct such an audit.

''(B) EXPLANATION OF FINDINGS FOR ALL AUDITS.—Subject to subparagraph (C), if a medicare contractor audits a provider of services or supplier under this title, the contractor shall—

''(i) give the provider of services or supplier a full review and explanation of the findings of the audit in a manner that is understandable to the provider of services or supplier and permits the development of an appropriate corrective action plan;

''(ii) inform the provider of services or supplier of the appeal rights under this title as well as consent settlement options (which are at the discretion of the Secretary);

''(iii) give the provider of services or supplier an opportunity to provide additional information to the contractor; and

''(iv) take into account information provided, on a timely basis, by the provider of services or supplier under clause (iii).

''(C) EXCEPTION.—Subparagraphs (A) and (B) shall not apply if the provision of notice or findings would compromise pending law enforcement activities, whether civil or criminal, or reveal findings of law enforcement-related audits.

''(8) STANDARD METHODOLOGY FOR PROBE SAMPLING.—The Secretary shall establish a standard methodology for medicare contractors to use in selecting a sample of claims for review in the case of an abnormal billing pattern.''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATES AND DEADLINES.—

SEC. 1014. HEALTH CARE THAT WORKS FOR ALL AMERICANS: CITIZENS HEALTH CARE WORKING GROUP.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) In order to improve the health care system, the American public must engage in an informed national public debate to make choices about the services they want covered, what health care coverage they want, and how they are willing to pay for coverage.

(2) More than a trillion dollars annually is spent on the health care system, yet—

(A) 41,000,000 Americans are uninsured;

(B) insured individuals do not always have access to essential, effective services to improve and maintain their health; and

(C) employers, who cover over 170,000,000 Americans, find providing coverage increasingly difficult because of rising costs and double digit premium increases.

(3) Despite increases in medical care spending that are greater than the rate of inflation, population growth, and Gross Domestic Product growth, there has not been a commensurate improvement in our health status as a nation.

(4) Health care costs for even just 1 member of a family can be catastrophic, resulting in medical bills potentially harming the economic stability of the entire family.

(5) Common life occurrences can jeopardize the ability of a family to retain private coverage or jeopardize access to public coverage.

(6) Innovations in health care access, coverage, and quality of care, including the use of technology, have often come from States, local communities, and private sector organizations, but more creative policies could tap this potential.

(7) Despite our Nation's wealth, the health care system does not provide coverage to all Americans who want it.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are—

Any person provided an offer of confidential access shall review the application for the sole and limited purpose of evaluating possible infringement of the patent that is the subject of the certification under paragraph (2)(A)(vii)(IV) and for no other purpose, and may not disclose information of no relevance to any issue of patent infringement to any person other than a person provided an offer of confidential access. ''(AA) In an infringement action brought against that applicant with respect to the patent or in a declaratory judgment action brought by that applicant with respect to the patent, a court enters a final decision from which no appeal (other than a petition to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari) has been or can be taken that the patent is invalid or not infringed.

''(BB) In an infringement action or a declaratory judgment action described in subitem (AA), a court signs a settlement order or consent decree that enters a final judgment that includes a finding that the patent is invalid or not infringed.

''(IV) FAILURE TO OBTAIN TENTATIVE APPROVAL.—The first applicant fails to obtain tentative approval of the application within 30 months after the date on which the application is filed, unless the failure is caused by a change in or a review of the requirements for approval of the application imposed after the date on which the application is filed.

''(V) AGREEMENT WITH ANOTHER APPLICANT, THE LISTED DRUG APPLICATION HOLDER, OR A PATENT OWNER.—The first applicant enters into an agreement with another applicant under this subsection for the drug, the holder of the application for the listed drug, or an owner of the patent that is the subject of the certification under paragraph (2)(A)(vii)(IV), the Federal Trade Commission or the Attorney General files a complaint, and there is a final decision of the Federal Trade Commission or the court with regard to the complaint from which no appeal (other than a petition to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari) has been or can be taken that the agreement has violated the antitrust laws (as defined in section 1 of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 12), except that the term includes section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 45) to the extent that that section applies to unfair methods of competition).

JOINT EXPLANATION STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 1) to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for a voluntary program for prescription drug coverage under the Medicare Program, to modernize the Medicare Program to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a deduction to individuals for amounts contributed to health savings security accounts and health savings accounts, to provide for the disposition of unused health benefits in cafeteria plans and flexible spending arrangements, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment to the text of the bill struck all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The House recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment that is a substitute for the Hose bill and the Senate amendment. The differences between the House bill, the Senate amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clarifying changes.

TITLE I—MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT

Voluntary Prescription Drug Benefit Program (Section 101 of Conference agreement, Section 101 of House bill; Section 101 of Senate bill).

Present Law

Medicare does not cover most outpatient prescription drugs. Beneficiaries who are inpatients of hospitals or skilled nursing facilities may receive drugs as part of their treatment. Medicare payments made to the facilities cover these costs. Medicare also makes payments to physicians for drugs or biologicals which cannot be self-administered. This means that coverage is generally limited to drugs or biologicals administered by infusion or injection. However, if the injection is generally self-administered (e.g., insulin), it is not covered.

Despite the general limitation on coverage for outpatient drugs, the law specifically authorizes coverage for the following: (1) drugs used in immunosuppressive therapy (such as cyclosporin) following discharge from a hospital for a Medicare covered organ transplant; (2) erythropoietin (EPO) for the treatment of anemia for persons with chronic renal failure who are on dialysis; (3) drugs taken orally during cancer chemotherapy providing they have the same active ingredients and are used for the same indications as chemotherapy drugs which would be covered if they were not self-administered and were administered as incident to a physician's professional service; and (4) hemophilia clotting factors for hemophilia patients competent to use such factors to control bleeding without medical supervision, and items related to the administration of such factors. The program also pays for supplies (including drugs) that are necessary for the effective use of covered durable medical equipment, including those which must be put directly into the equipment (e.g., tumor chemotherapy agents used with an infusion pump). Medicare also covers pneumococcal pneumonia vaccines, hepatitis B vaccines, and influenza virus vaccines.

The Committee on Ways and Means, the Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Senate Finance Committee have held numerous hearings on providing prescription drug benefits to seniors, modernizing the program by making benefits, cost sharing and the delivery of care more rational, and strengthening Medicare financially for current and future generations.

The typical senior now takes more than 20 prescriptions a year to improve their health or manage their diseases. While seniors are taking more drugs than any other demographic group, they are often paying the highest prices because about twenty five percent of seniors have no prescription drug coverage. Similarly, low-income beneficiaries must often make unacceptable choices between life-saving medicines and other essentials.

The addition of a prescription drug benefit to Medicare, while providing seniors additional choices in how they receive their health services, is a critical modernization of the program.

Legislation to achieve these goals passed the House in 2000 (H.R. 4680, the Medicare Rx 2000 Act), in 2002 (H.R. 4954, the Medicare Modernization and Prescription Drug Act), and in 2003 (H.R. 1, the Medicare Prescription Drug and Modernization Act). The Senate passed legislation (S.1, the Prescription Drug and Medicare Improvement Act) to modernize the program and provide prescription drugs in 2003.

The conference report is the culmination of this legislative process.

House Bill

The provision would establish a new Voluntary Prescription Drug Benefit Program under a new Part D of Title XVIII of the Social Security Act. Effective January 1, 2006, a new optional benefit would be established under a new Part D. Beneficiaries could purchase either "standard coverage" or actuarially equivalent coverage. In 2006, "standard coverage" would have a $250 deductible, 20% cost-sharing for costs between $251 and $2,000, then no coverage until the beneficiary had out-of-pocket costs of $3,500 when full coverage would be provided.

The out-of-pocket limit would be higher for higher income beneficiaries. Low-income subsidies would be provided for persons with incomes below 150% of poverty. Coverage would be provided through prescription drug plans (PDPs) or Medicare Advantage (MA) Rx plans or Enhanced Fee-For-Service (EFFS) Rx plans. The program would rely on private plans to provide coverage and to bear some of the financial risk for drug costs; federal subsidies would be provided to encourage participation. Plans would determine payments and would be expected to negotiate prices. The new Medicare Benefits Administration (MBA), within the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) would administer the benefit.

Senate Bill

Effective January 1, 2006, a new optional benefit would be established under a new Part D. Beneficiaries could purchase either "standard coverage" or actuarially equivalent coverage. In 2006, "standard coverage" would have a $275 deductible, 50% cost-sharing for costs between $276 and $4,500, then no coverage until the beneficiary had out-of-pocket costs of $3,700; and 10% cost-sharing thereafter. Individuals with incomes below 160% of poverty would receive additional assistance. The bill would rely on private plans to provide coverage and to bear a portion of the financial risk for drug costs. Federal subsidies would be provided to encourage participation. (A fallback mechanism would be provided in areas where private risk bearing plans were not available. Under the fallback mechanism, Medicare would contract with a private plan to provide the benefit in the area; the plan would not be at financial risk, except for a small portion of management fees tied to performance). Coverage would be provided through Medicare Prescription Drug Plans (PDPs) or MedicareAdvantage plans (MAs). A new Center for Medicare Choices (CMC) would be established within the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) to administer the Part D benefit and the new MA program.

Conference Agreement

The provision establishes a new voluntary prescription drug benefit under a new Part D of Title XVIII of the Social Security Act. Effective January 1, 2006, a new optional benefit will be established under a new Part D. Beneficiaries could purchase either "standard coverage" or alternative coverage with actuarially equivalent benefits. In 2006, "standard coverage" will have a $250 deductible, 25% coinsurance for costs between $251 and $2,250, and catastrophic coverage after out of pocket expenses of $3,600. Once the beneficiary reached the catastrophic limit, the program would pay all costs except for nominal cost-sharing. Low-income subsidies would be provided for persons with incomes below 150% of poverty. Coverage would be provided through prescription drug plans or Medicare Advantage prescription drug (MA–PD) plans. The program will rely on private plans to provide coverage and to bear some of the financial risk for drug costs; federal subsidies will be provided to encourage participation. Plans will determine premiums through a bid process and will compete based on premiums and negotiated prices.

PART D—VOLUNTARY PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT PROGRAM

Subpart 1—Eligible Beneficiaries and Prescription Drug Benefits.

Eligibility, Enrollment and Information (New Section 1860D–1 of conference agreement; New Section 1860D–1 and New Section 1860D–5 of House bill; new sections 1860D–1, 1860D–2, 1860D–3, and 1860D–4 of Senate bill).

Present Law

People generally enroll in Part B when they turn 65. Persons who have applied for Social Security or railroad retirement benefits automatically receive a Medicare card when they turn 65. Persons who have not applied for Social Security or railroad retirement benefits must file an application for Medicare benefits. An individual who becomes entitled to Medicare Part A is automatically enrolled in Part B unless he or she specifically opts out of this coverage. An aged person not entitled to Part A may still enroll in Part B.

House Bill

The new Section 1860D–1 would specify that each individual entitled to Medicare Part A or enrolled in Medicare Part B would be entitled to obtain qualified prescription drug coverage. The benefit is completely voluntary. MA organizations and EFFS plans would be required to offer plans that included qualified prescription drug coverage. An individual enrolled in an MA Rx plan or EFFS Rx plan would obtain their drug coverage through the plan. An individual not enrolled in either an MA or EFFS plan could enroll in a new prescription drug plan (PDP). The provision would specify that an individual eligible to make an election to enroll in a PDP, or with an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan, would do so in accordance with regulations issued by the Administrator of the new Medicare Benefits Administration (MBA). Enrollments and changes in enrollment could occur only during a specified election period. The election periods would generally be the same as those established for MA and EFFS programs including annual coordinated election periods and special election periods. An individual discontinuing an MA election during the first year of eligibility would be permitted to enroll in a PDP at the same time as the election of coverage under the original fee-for-service plan.

The provision would establish initial election periods. A six month election period, beginning on October 1, 2005, would be established for persons entitled to Part A or enrolled under Part B on that date. For persons first entitled to Part A or enrolled in Part B after that date, an initial election period, which was the same as that for initial part B enrollment, would be established. The Administrator would be required to establish special election periods for persons in special circumstances to ensure no or little disruption in coverage. Specifically these would apply to: persons having and involuntarily losing prescription drug coverage; in cases of enrollment delays or non-enrollment attributable to government action; in the case of an individual meeting exceptional circumstances specified by the Administrator (including circumstances identified by the Administrator for MA enrollment); and in cases of individuals who become eligible for Medicaid drug coverage.

General information on PDP, MA Rx and EFFS Rx plans would be made available during election periods. The Administrator could provide information on individuals eligible to enroll in plans to plan sponsors and organizations.

The provision would provide that elections would take effect at the same time that elections take effect for MA plans. However, no election could take effect before January 1, 2006. The Administrator would provide for the termination of an election in the case of termination of Part A and Part B coverage or termination of an election for cause (including failure to pay the required premium).

The new Section 1860D–5 would require the Administrator to establish a process for the selection of a PDP plan or an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan that provided qualified prescription drug coverage. The process would include the conduct of annual coordinated election periods under which individuals could change the qualifying plans through which they obtained coverage. The process would also include the active dissemination of information to promote an informed selection among qualifying plans (based on price, quality, and other features) in a manner consistent with and in coordination with the dissemination of information under MA. Further, the process would provide for the coordination of elections through filing with an entity offering a MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan or a PDP sponsor in a manner consistent with that provided under MA. The plan would have to inform each enrollee at the beginning of the year of the enrollee's annual out-of-pocket threshold.

In order to ensure no duplication of coverage, the section would specify that an MA Rx or EFFS Rx enrollee could only elect to receive drug coverage through the plan.

SENATE BILL

Under the New Section 1860D–1, the Administrator would provide for and administer a voluntary prescription drug delivery program under which each Part D eligible individual enrolled in Part D would be provided access to drug coverage. In general, MedicareAdvantage enrollees would obtain drug benefits through their MedicareAdvantage plan. Other Part D enrollees would receive their drug coverage through enrollment in a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan offered in the geographic area in which the beneficiary resides. MedicareAdvantage enrollees in MSA plans would also receive drug coverage through enrollment in a Medicare Prescription Drug plan. MedicareAdvantage enrollees in private fee-for-service plans would receive drug benefits through such plan if the plan provided qualified prescription drug coverage; otherwise they would enroll in a Medicare Prescription Drug plan. The program would begin January 1, 2006.

Under the New Section 1860D–2, the Administrator would establish an enrollment process, which would be similar to that for Part B. An initial open enrollment period would be established. For beneficiaries eligible as of November 1, 2005, this would be the 6–month period beginning November 1, 2005. Persons becoming eligible after this date would have an initial 7-month enrollment period similar to that established for Part B.

The New Section 1860D–3 would require the Administrator to establish a process through which a Part D eligible individual who was not enrolled in a MedicareAdvantage Plan (except for an MSA plan or private-fee-for-service plan not offering qualified drug coverage) could enroll in a Medicare Prescription Drug plan serving the geographic area where the beneficiary resides. The beneficiary could make an annual election to change enrollment to another plan. A beneficiary in Part D who failed to enroll in a plan would be enrolled in a plan designated by the Administrator.

The Administrator would use rules similar to the rules established for enrollment, disenrollment and termination of enrollment with MedicareAdvantage plans. Included would be requirements relating to establishment of special election periods and application of the guaranteed issue and renewal provisions. The Administrator would also coordinate enrollments, disenrollments, and terminations of enrollments under Part C with those under Part D.

The enrollment process established by the Administrator would ensure that beneficiaries who enrolled in the first open enrollment period (beginning November 2005) would be permitted to elect an eligible entity prior to January 1, 2006, in order to assure coverage was effective on that date.

In general, persons enrolled in MedicareAdvantage Plans would receive drug coverage through their MedicareAdvantage Plans and be subject to their enrollment rules. Persons enrolled in MSA plans or private-fee-for-service plans not offering qualified drug coverage would be subject to Part D enrollment rules.

The Administrator would be authorized to provide information about eligible beneficiaries to eligible entities with contracts under Part D. Such information would be provided as the Administrator determined necessary to facilitate enrollment with such entities and for only so long and to the extent necessary to carry out this objective.

The new Section 1860D–4 would require the Administrator to broadly disseminate information to beneficiaries regarding Part D coverage. Current beneficiaries would be provided such information at least 30 days prior to beginning of the first enrollment period.

Information activities would be similar to those performed for MedicareAdvantage and be coordinated with such activities. Comparative plan information would include a comparison of benefits, monthly beneficiary obligation, quality and performance, beneficiary cost-sharing, consumer satisfaction surveys, and other information specified by the Secretary.

The New Section 1860D–1 of the conference agreement specifies that each individual entitled to Medicare Part A or enrolled in Medicare Part B would be entitled to obtain qualified prescription drug coverage through enrollment in a prescription drug plan. A beneficiary enrolled in a Medicare Advantage (MA) plan providing qualified prescription drug coverage (MA–PD plan) will obtain coverage through that plan. MA enrollees may not enroll in a prescription drug plan (PDP) under Part D except for: (1) Enrollees in private-fee-for service MA plans not offering qualified prescription drug coverage; and (2) Enrollees in Medicare medical savings accounts (MSAs). Coverage first begins January 1, 2006.

The Secretary is required to establish a process for enrollment, disenrollment, termination, and change of enrollment of eligible beneficiaries in prescription drug plans. The Secretary is required to use rules similar to, and coordinated with rules established for MA–PD plans relating to: residency requirements, exercise of choice, coverage election periods (including initial periods, annual coordinated election periods, special election periods, and election periods for exceptional circumstances); coverage periods (relating to effectiveness of elections and changes of elections); guaranteed issue and renewal; and marketing material and application forms.

The agreement establishes a default election process for full-benefit dual eligible beneficiaries, that is, persons eligible for both Medicare and full benefits (including prescription drugs) under the state's Medicaid program. The Secretary will enroll any full-benefit dual eligible who has not enrolled in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan, in a plan that has a premium equal to or below the premium subsidy amount available to persons with incomes below 135% of poverty. If more than one plan is available, the Secretary will enroll the beneficiary on a random basis among all such plans in the PDP region. Nothing prevents the beneficiary from declining enrollment or changing such enrollment.

The provision would establish a six-month initial enrollment period, beginning November 15, 2005, for all persons who are eligible beneficiaries on that date; it is the same period established for enrollment period established for MA plans for that year. An initial enrollment period will apply for individuals becoming eligible after that date; in no case can such period be less than six months, which follows the current enrollment process for Part B. Conferees intend the enrollment process to be administratively simple to encourage enrollment in the new plans.

The Secretary will establish enrollment periods for special circumstances. These include the involuntary loss of creditable prescription drug coverage such as under a group health plan, or a reduction in coverage such that it no longer meets the actuarial equivalence test. Failure to pay the required premium does not meet the definition of involuntary loss of coverage. A special enrollment period is also established for persons who discontinue their enrollment in a MA–PD plan during their first year of eligibility.

The Secretary is authorized to provide each PDP sponsor and MA organization such identifying information about eligible individuals as the Secretary determines to be necessary to facilitate efficient marketing of plans and enrollment of beneficiaries in plans. The Secretary may provide such information only to the extent necessary to carry out these activities and such PDP sponsor or MA organization may only use it to facilitate marketing and enrollment of beneficiaries in PDP and MA–PD plans. Conferees intend this provision to facilitate outreach to beneficiaries to ensure participation in the program. A consistent barrier to encouraging enrollment in the existing Medicare+Choice program is the high cost of marketing to individuals. With Secretarial assistance, Conferees expect these costs to be reduced so that plans can readily identify eligible beneficiaries and target information effectively.

The Secretary is required to conduct activities that are designed to broadly disseminate information to eligible beneficiaries and prospective eligible beneficiaries. It must be available at least 30 days prior to the initial enrollment period. The information dissemination requirements are similar to and are to be coordinated with the activities the Secretary is required to perform for MA plans.

The Conferees expect that in carrying out the annual dissemination of information requirement that the Secretary will conduct a significant public information campaign to educate beneficiaries about the new Medicare drug benefit to ensure the broad dissemination of accurate and timely information. In particular, the Conferees expect that in carrying out this public information campaign that HHS will place a priority on, and make a best and concerted effort to, ensuring that the lower income seniors are aware of the additional benefits available to them and how to enroll. Therefore, the public information campaign should include a program of outreach, information, appropriate mailings, and enrollment assistance with and through appropriate state and federal agencies, including State health insurance counseling and assistance programs, in coordination with other federal programs of assistance to low-income individuals, to maximize enrollment of eligible individuals. In addition, special outreach efforts shall be made for disadvantaged and hard-to-reach populations, including targeted efforts in historically underserved populations, and working with low-income assistance sites and a broad array of public, voluntary, and private community organizations serving Medicare beneficiaries. Materials and information shall be made available in languages other than English, where appropriate.

It is also critical that eligibility determination forms and paperwork should be as simple as possible, with mail-in or electronic filings possible. In addition, face-to-face interviews should not be required except where necessary. The Secretary shall encourage multi-year enrollment (provided eligible individuals will be required to report disqualifying income and asset changes on a timely basis). It is the desire of the Conferees that, within three years after program enactment, the Secretary shall report on best practices in the successful enrollment of low-income beneficiaries.

The Secretary is also required to disseminate comparative information to beneficiaries for the annual open enrollment period. Comparative information is to include information on benefits and formularies under a plan; monthly beneficiary premium; quality and performance; beneficiary cost-sharing; and consumer satisfaction surveys. The Secretary is not required to provide information on quality and performance or consumer satisfaction during the first plan year or the next plan year if the information is not available. The Secretary is also required to provide information concerning the methodology for determining late enrollment penalties.

To promote informed decisions, comparative information is to include information on benefits and formularies under a plan; monthly beneficiary premium; quality and performance; beneficiary cost-sharing; and consumer satisfaction surveys. The Secretary is not required to provide information on quality and performance or consumer satisfaction during the first plan year or the next plan year if the information is not available. The Secretary is also required to provide information concerning the methodology for determining late enrollment penalties.

No provision.

House Bill

a. Benefits. The new Section 1860D–2 would specify the requirements for qualified prescription drug coverage. Qualified coverage would be defined as either ‘‘standard coverage’’ or actuarially equivalent coverage. In both cases, access would have to be provided to negotiated prices.

For 2006, ‘‘standard coverage’’ would be defined as having a $250 deductible; 20% coinsurance up to the initial coverage limit ($2,000); catastrophic coverage would begin after an individual incurred $3,500 in out of pocket costs. Beginning in 2007, the annual dollar amounts would be increased by the annual percentage increase in average per capita aggregate expenditures for covered outpatient drugs for Medicare beneficiaries for the 12–month period ending in July of the previous year.

Plans would be permitted to substitute cost-sharing requirements, for costs up to the initial coverage limit that were actuarially consistent with an average expected 20% coinsurance for costs up to the initial coverage limit. They could also apply tiered copayments, provided such copayments were actuarially consistent with the average 20% cost-sharing requirements.

The provision would specify incurred costs that would count toward meeting the catastrophic limit. Costs would be treated as incurred costs only if they were paid by the individual (or by another family member on behalf of the individual), paid on behalf of a low-income individual under the subsidy provisions, under the Medicaid program, or under a state pharmaceutical assistance program. Any costs for which the individual was reimbursed by insurance or otherwise would not count toward incurred costs. The Administrator would be authorized to establish procedures, in coordination with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Labor, for determining whether costs were being reimbursed by insurance or other third-party arrangement. The procedures would provide for alerting entities in which such individuals were enrolled. Entities could also periodically ask enrolled individuals about such arrangements. A material misrepresentation by an individual (as defined in standards set by the Administrator through a process established by the Administrator) would constitute grounds for termination of Part D enrollment.

The provision would permit a PDP or MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan to offer, subject to approval by the Administrator, alternative coverage providing certain requirements were met. The actuarial value of total coverage would have to be at least equal to the actuarial value of standard coverage. The unsubsidized value of the coverage (i.e. the value of the coverage exceeding subsidy payments) would have to be equal to the unsubsidized value of standard coverage. The coverage would be designed (based on actuarially representative patterns of utilization) to provide for payment of incurred costs up to the initial coverage limit of at least the same percentage of costs provided under standard coverage. Further, stop loss protection would be the same as that under standard coverage.

Both standard coverage and actuarially equivalent coverage would have to offer access to negotiated prices. Coverage offered by a PDP plan sponsor or a MA or EFFS entity would be required to provide beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices (including applicable discounts). Access would be provided even when no benefits were payable because of the application of cost-sharing or initial coverage limits. Insofar as a state elected to use these negotiated prices for its Medicaid program, the Medicaid drug payment provisions would not apply. (Further, the negotiated prices would not be taken into account in making ''best price'' determinations under Medicaid.) The PDP sponsor or MA or EFFS entity would be required to disclose to the Administrator the extent to which manufacturer discounts or rebates or other remunerations or price concessions were made available to the sponsor or organization and passed through to enrollees through pharmacies and other dispensers. Manufacturers would be required to disclose pricing information to the Administrator under the same conditions currently required for Medicaid.

Qualified prescription drug coverage could include coverage exceeding that specified for standard coverage or actuarially equivalent coverage. However, any additional coverage would be limited to covered outpatient drugs. The Administrator could terminate a contract with a PDP sponsor or MA or EFFS entity if a determination was made that the sponsor or organizations engaged in activities intended to discourage enrollment of classes of eligible Medicare beneficiaries obtaining coverage through the plan on the basis of their higher likelihood of utilizing prescription drug coverage.

b. Income-Related Out-of-Pocket threshold. The provision would increase the annual out-of-pocket threshold for each enrollee whose adjusted gross income exceeded a specified income threshold. The portion of income exceeding this income threshold ($60,000 in 2006), but below an income threshold limit ($200,000 in 2006), would be considered in making this calculation. The increase would be calculated as follows. First, the ratio of the annual out-of- pocket limit to the income limit would be calculated and expressed as a percent. For 2006, this would be $3,500 divided by $60,000 equaling 5.8%. This percentage would be multiplied by any excess income over $60,000, or, if less, by the difference between income threshold limit and the income threshold ($140,000 in 2006). Thus, the catastrophic out-of-pocket limit would be $5,820 for an enrollee with an income of $100,000 and $11,620 for persons with incomes at $200,000 or above. Beginning in 2007, the income threshold and income threshold limits would be increased by the percentage increase in the consumer price index (CPI) for all urban consumers, rounding to the nearest $100.

The income used for making the income determination would be adjusted gross income. (Individuals filing joint returns would each be treated separately with each person considered to have an adjusted gross income equal to one-half of the total.) The determination would be the most recent return information disclosed by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Secretary of HHS, (as provided for under Section 106 of this Act) before the beginning of the year. The Secretary, in coordination with the Secretary of the Treasury, would provide a procedure under which an enrollee could elect to use more recent information, including information for a taxable year ending in the current calendar year. The process would require: (1) the enrollee to provide the Secretary with the relevant portion of the more recent return; (2) the Medicare Beneficiary Ombudsman offering assistance to the enrollees in presenting such information and the toll-free number being a point of contact for beneficiaries to inquire how to present the information; (3) verification by the Secretary of the Treasury; and (4) payment by the Secretary to the enrollee equal to the benefit payments that would have been payable under the plan if more recent information had been used. If such payments were made, the PDP sponsor would pay the Secretary the requisite amount, less the applicable reinsurance that would have applied. The payment would be credited to the Prescription Drug Account.

The Secretary would be required to provide, through the annual Medicare handbook, general information on the calculation of out-of-pocket thresholds. The Secretary would periodically transmit to the Secretary of the Treasury the names and TINs of enrollees in PDPs or MA Rx or EFFS Rx plans and request that the Secretary of the Treasury disclose information as provided for under Section 106 of this Act. The Secretary would disclose to entities offering the plan the amount of the out-of-pocket threshold that would apply to a specified taxpayer. Individuals could opt out of the Secretarial disclosure requirements, if they elected to have the maximum out-of-pocket threshold applied in a year. Criminal and civil penalties would apply to any unauthorized disclosure of information obtained pursuant to Section 106. In disclosing such information, stringent new confidentiality protections would apply.

c. Covered Drugs. Covered outpatient drugs would be defined to include: (1) a drug which could only be dispensed subject to a prescription and which was described in subparagraph (A)(i) or (A)(ii) of Section 1927(k)(2) of the Social Security Act (relating to drugs covered under Medicaid); (2) a biological product described in paragraph B of such subsection; (3) insulin described in subparagraph C of such section and medical supplies associated with the injection of insulin; and (4) vaccines licensed under section 351 of the Public Health Service Act. Drugs excluded from Medicaid coverage would be excluded from the definition except for smoking cessation drugs. The definition would include any use of a covered outpatient drug for a medically accepted indication. Drugs, which could be paid for under Medicare Part B, would not be covered under Part D. A plan could elect to exclude a drug, which would otherwise be covered, if the drug was excluded under the formulary and the exclusion was not successfully appealed under the new Section 1860D–3. In addition, a PDP or MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan could exclude from coverage, subject to reconsideration and appeals provisions, any drug, which would not meet Medicare's definition of medically necessary or was not prescribed in accordance with the plan or Part D.

Senate Bill

a. Benefits. Under the new Section 1860D–6 of the Senate bill, plans would be required to offer ''qualified coverage.'' ''Qualified coverage'' would be either ''standard coverage'' or ''actuarially equivalent coverage.'' Both would require access to negotiated prices. In 2006, standard coverage would be defined as having a $275 deductible, 50% cost-sharing for drug costs between $276 and the initial coverage limit of $4,500, then no coverage, except that beneficiaries would have access to negotiated drug prices, until the beneficiary had out-of-pocket costs of $3,700 ($5813 in total spending); and 10% cost-sharing thereafter. These amounts would be increased in future years by the percentage increase in average per capita expenditures for covered drugs for the year ending the previous July.

Out-of-pocket costs counting toward the limit would include costs paid by the individual (or by another individual such as a family member), paid on behalf of a low-income individual under the low-income provisions, paid under Medicaid, or paid under a state pharmaceutical assistance program. Any costs for which the individual was reimbursed by insurance or otherwise could not be counted. The Administrator would be authorized to establish procedures, in coordination with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Labor, for determining whether costs were being reimbursed by insurance or other third-party arrangement. The procedures would provide for alerting entities in which such individuals were enrolled. Entities could also periodically ask enrolled individuals about such arrangements. A material misrepresentation by an individual (as defined in standards set by the Administrator through a process established by the Administrator) would constitute grounds for termination of Part D enrollment.

Entities could offer more generous drug coverage, if approved by the Administrator, but only if they also offered a plan providing standard coverage. Entities could offer a plan design different from standard coverage provided certain conditions were met. The actuarial value of total coverage would have to be at least equal to the actuarial value of standard coverage. The unsubsidized value of coverage would have to be at least equal to the unsubsidized value of standard coverage. Further, the coverage would be designed, based on a representative pattern of utilization, to cover the same percentage of costs up to the initial benefit limit as provided under the standard plan. The limitation on the deductible and out-of-pocket expenditures would be the same as under standard coverage. The entity would have to apply for and receive approval from the Administrator for an alternative benefit design.

The Administrator would establish processes for determining the actuarial value of prescription drug coverage. The processes would take into account any effect that providing actuarially equivalent rather than standard coverage would have on utilization.

Qualified drug plans would be required to provide beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices (including all discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, other price concessions, or direct or indirect remunerations), regardless of the fact that no benefits may be payable. The entity would be required to issue a card or other technology for this purpose. The Administrator would be required to provide for development of national standards relating to a standardized format for the card or other technology. The standards would be compatible with those provided for under the administrative simplification and electronic prescribing requirements of Title XI. The standards would be implemented no later than January 1, 2008.

The bill would exempt any prices negotiated by a Medicare Prescription Drug plan, MedicareAdvantage plan, or qualified retiree program from Medicaid's determination of ''best price'' for purposes of the Medicaid drug rebate program.

b. Income-Related Out-of-Pocket Threshold. No provision.

c. Covered Drugs. The New Section 1860 D would define covered drugs as drugs, biological products, and insulin (including syringes, and necessary medical supplies associated with the administration of insulin, as defined by the Administrator) which are covered under Medicaid and vaccines licensed under Section 351 of the Public Health Service Act. Coverage would be extended to any use of a covered drug for a medically accepted indication. The term would not include drugs or classes of drugs, or their medical uses, which could be excluded from coverage under Medicaid, except for smoking cessation agents. The term would not include drugs currently covered under Medicare Part A or Medicare Part B to the extent payment is available under those Parts. A drug prescribed for an individual, which would ordinarily be a covered drug, would not be covered if a plan's formulary excluded the drug and the exclusion was not successfully resolved. Further, a Medicare Prescription Drug plan or a MedicareAdvantage plan could exclude drugs which did not meet Medicare's definition of ''reasonable and necessary'' under Section 1862(a) of the Act or which were not prescribed in accordance with the requirements of the plan or Part D.

New Section 1860D–1 would specify that the program would provide coverage for all therapeutic categories and classes of covered drugs (though not necessarily for all drugs within such categories and classes).

Conference Agreement

a. Benefits. The New Section 1860D–2 specifies the requirements for qualified prescription drug coverage. Qualified coverage would be defined as either ''standard prescription drug coverage'' or ''alternative prescription drug coverage'' with at least actuarially equivalent benefits. In both cases, access would have to be provided to negotiated prices.

Qualified drug plans would be required to provide beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices (including all discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, other price concessions, or direct or indirect remunerations), regardless of the fact that no benefits may be payable. The entity would be required to issue a card or other technology for this purpose. The Administrator would be required to provide for development of national standards relating to a standardized format for the card or other technology. The standards would be compatible with those provided for under the administrative simplification and electronic prescribing requirements of Title XI.

Plans are permitted to provide supplemental prescription coverage consisting of either certain reductions in cost-sharing (i.e. reduction in deductible, reduction in coinsurance percentage, and increase in initial coverage limit) or coverage of drugs which are excluded because of application of the Medicaid definition of covered drugs. A PDP sponsor may not offer a plan that provides supplemental benefits unless it also offers a basic plan in the area.

For 2006, ''standard prescription drug coverage'' is defined as having a $250 deductible; 25% coinsurance up to the initial coverage limit ($2,250); and catastrophic coverage after an individual incurred $3,600 in out of pocket expenses. Once the beneficiary reached the catastrophic limit, the program would pay all costs except for nominal cost-sharing.

Once the beneficiary reached the catastrophic (''stop loss'') limit, the program would pay all costs, except for nominal cost-sharing. Low-income beneficiaries would have no cost- sharing. The cost-sharing is equal to the greater of: (1) a copayment of $2 for a generic drug or preferred multiple source and $5 for any other drug; or (2) five percent coinsurance. Nothing is to be construed as preventing a PDP sponsor or MA organization from reducing the cost-sharing for preferred or generic drugs. Beginning in 2007, the annual dollar amounts would be increased by the annual percentage increase in average per capita aggregate expenditures for covered outpatient drugs for Medicare beneficiaries for the 12–month period ending in July of the previous year.

Plans would be permitted to substitute cost-sharing requirements, for costs up to the initial coverage limit that were actuarially consistent with an average expected 25% coinsurance for costs up to the initial coverage limit. They could also apply tiered copayments, provided such copayments were actuarially consistent with the average 25% cost-sharing requirements.

The agreement specifies incurred costs that count toward meeting the catastrophic limit. Costs are only considered incurred if they are incurred for the deductible, cost-sharing, benefits not paid because of application of the initial coverage limit. Incurred costs do not include amounts for which no benefits are provided because of the application of a formulary. Costs would be treated as incurred costs only if they were paid by the individual (or by another family member on behalf of the individual), paid on behalf of a low-income individual under the subsidy provisions, or under a state pharmaceutical assistance program (SPAP). Conferees intend SPAP spending to fill in beneficiary cost sharing and deductibles and have that spending count against the catastrophic. State liability will be limited to spending below the catastrophic limit, and for which there is no coverage. The state pharmacy assistance programs could use money saved from the Medicare drug benefit to extend their assistance to persons with incomes above 150% of poverty. For example, 200% of poverty or even 300% of poverty.

Any costs for which the individual was reimbursed by insurance or otherwise would not count toward incurred costs. The Secretary is authorized to establish procedures, in coordination with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Labor, for determining whether costs were being reimbursed by insurance or other third-party arrangement. The procedures would provide for alerting entities in which such individuals were enrolled. Entities could also periodically ask enrolled individuals about such arrangements. A material misrepresentation by an individual (as defined in standards set by the Secretary through a process established by the Secretary) would constitute grounds for termination of Part D enrollment.

The provision permits a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan to offer, subject to approval by the Secretary alternative prescription drug coverage providing certain requirements are met. The actuarial value of total coverage would have to be at least equal to the actuarial value of standard coverage. The unsubsidized value of the coverage (i.e. the value of the coverage exceeding subsidy payments) would have to be equal to the unsubsidized value of standard coverage. The coverage would be designed (based on actuarially representative patterns of utilization) to provide for payment of incurred costs up to the initial coverage limit of at least the same percentage of costs provided under standard coverage. Further, stop loss protection would be the same as that under standard coverage. The deductible could not exceed that under standard coverage.

Under the conference agreement, prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans are permitted to offer alternative coverage that is at least actuarially equivalent to the standard Part D benefit, provided that the alternative coverage includes an initial deductible that is no more than the deductible in the standard plan and provides the same threshold for catastrophic coverage under the standard Part D benefit. Within these requirements plans may change the cost sharing for the drug benefit, implement different formularies, and the benefit limit can be modified while still maintaining actuarial equivalence.

For beneficiaries who desire additional drug coverage beyond that offered in the basic Medicare benefit, MA–PD and PDP plans may also provide supplemental prescription drug coverage. Supplemental policies may be offered by a plan to its own enrollees and may provide for a reduction in the annual deductible, reductions in coinsurance or cost-sharing required, or increases in drug coverage above the benefit limit. However, the conferees recognize that the conditions under which the government provides reinsurance subsidies may create significant disincentives for private sector plans to provide supplemental prescription drug coverage.

To address this concern, the conference agreement clarifies the Secretary's current Medicare demonstration authority to include Part C and Part D with the intent that this authority be used to conduct demonstration projects to allow private sector plans maximum flexibility to design alternative prescription drug coverage. CMS's authority to conduct Medicare demonstrations is provided in section 402 of the Social Security Amendments of 1967 (42 U.S.C. §1395b–1). Under section 402(b), the Secretary is authorized to waive requirements in Title XVIII that relate to reimbursement and payment. Consistent with the Secretary's current-law demonstration authority, the Conference committee intends that any demonstration of benefit flexibility be limited to evaluate innovations in drug benefit design and to not increase total prescription drug outlays as a result of the demonstrations.

Under this authority, CMS could alter the payments to prescription drug plans, Medicare Advantage plans and regional PPOs, or some subset thereof. A number of subsections of 402 could be used as authority to demonstrate the impact of providing additional drug coverage to filling in the gap in coverage or for providing benefit flexibility, as long as the provisions being waived could reasonably be characterized as related to payment provisions.

Specifically, CMS should demonstrate the effect of filling in the gap in coverage by reimbursing participating plans a capitated payment that is actuarially equivalent to the amount that plans would otherwise receive from the government in the form of specific reinsurance when an individual plan enrollee reaches the catastrophic attachment point ($3,600). In order to demonstrate the impact of plans offering flexible benefits, CMS could alter reinsurance payments for MA plans, regional PPOs, or prescription drug plans participating in a waiver program. For example, it is expected that CMS would change the reinsurance payment methodology for a group of plans and compare spending under this alternative methodology to those plans that continue to receive payments as outlined in Title I. However, all plans would be required to at least offer the required benefits, including those required under Part D. CMS is not permitted to waive the minimum benefits provided by the plans. The conferees anticipate that CMS would use this authority to demonstrate that paying MA plans, regional PPOs or PDPs a capitated payment in lieu of specific reinsurance for prescription drug coverage increases plan efficiency and improves the quality of the services.

Consistent with current law, CMS also is also permitted to develop and engage in demonstrations to determine whether payments for non-Medicare services would result in more economical provision and more effective utilization of Medicare services provided by MA plans, regional PPOs, or prescription drug plans as long as the additional services are incident to Medicare covered services, and provided by entities that meet certain requirements (MA plans and regional PPOs would meet these conditions). Under this subsection, CMS could demonstrate that paying MA plans or regional PPOs a payment to provide non-Medicare benefits (including prescription drug coverage or preventative services not provided under Part C or Part D) results in more economical provision and more effective utilization of comprehensive health care services. Any additional benefits must be determined to be budget neutral, and it is the intention of the Conference committee that any demonstration authority be used in a manner as to not increase Medicare outlays.

The conferees fully expect that the Secretary will use this demonstration authority to conduct projects to evaluate new methods of providing reinsurance payments that remove disincentives for private sector plans to offer additional prescription drug benefits to their enrollees. In order to meet the budget neutrality requirement, it may be necessary to implement such a demonstration after implementation of the new Part D benefit for one to two years. Using the results of this type of demonstration, the Conferees would expect the Secretary to submit to Congress any recommend changes in the drug payment methodology under this Part. Both standard coverage and alternative coverage would have to offer access to negotiated prices.

Coverage offered by a PDP plan sponsor or a MA–PD entity would be required to provide beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices. Access would be provided even when no benefits were payable because of the application of cost-sharing or an initial coverage limits. Negotiated prices are to take into account negotiated price concessions, such as discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, and direct or indirect remunerations, for covered Part D drugs, and include dispensing fees. The negotiated prices would not be taken into account in making ''best price'' determinations under Medicaid. Under the current Medicaid best price policy, the largest discount a pharmaceutical manufacturer negotiates in the private market must be passed along to the Medicaid program as well. As GAO and CBO have noted, because manufacturers can only influence market share and volume in the private sector, not Medicaid, the ''best price'' policy has led to less discounting by manufacturers.

The PDP sponsor or MA–PD entity is required to disclose to the Secretary the aggregate negotiated price concessions made available to the sponsor or organization and passed through in the form of lower subsidies, lower monthly beneficiary premiums, and lower prices through pharmacies and other dispensers. Manufacturers would be required to disclose pricing information to the Secretary, but that information would remain confidential.

b. Income-Related Out-of-Pocket Threshold. No provision.

c. Covered Drugs. Covered outpatient drugs are defined to include: (1) a drug which could only be dispensed subject to a prescription and which was described in subparagraph A of Section 1927(k)(2) of the Social Security Act (relating to drugs covered under Medicaid); (2) a biological product described in paragraph B of such subsection; (3) insulin described in subparagraph C of such section and medical supplies associated with the injection of insulin (as defined in regulations of the Secretary); and (4) vaccines licensed under section 351 of the Public Health Service Act. It is the intent of conferees that the definition of insulin, and medical supplies associated with the administration of insulin, as a covered prescription drug shall include medical supplies that the Secretary determines to be reasonable and necessary, such as insulin, insulin syringes, and insulin delivery devices that are not otherwise covered under the durable medical equipment benefit. Drugs excluded from Medicaid coverage are excluded from the definition except for smoking cessation drugs. The definition would include any use of a covered outpatient drug for a medically accepted indication. Drugs, which can be paid for under Medicare Part B, are not covered under Part D. A PDP plan or MA–PD plan could exclude from coverage, subject to reconsideration and appeals provisions, any drug which would not meet Medicare's definition of medically necessary or was not prescribed in accordance with the plan or Part D.

Access to a Choice of Qualified Prescription Drug Coverage (New Section 1860D–3 of Conference agreement; New Section 1860D–5 of House bill; New Section 1860d–13 of Senate bill).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

New section 1860D–5 would require the Administrator to assure that all eligible individuals residing in the U.S. would have a choice of enrollment in at least two qualifying plan options, at least one of which was a PDP, in their area of residence. The requirement would not be satisfied if only one PDP sponsor or one MA or EFFS organization offered all the qualifying plans in the area. If necessary to ensure such access, the Administrator would be authorized to provide partial underwriting of risk for a PDP sponsor to expand its service area under an existing prescription drug plan to adjoining or additional areas, or to establish such a plan, including offering such plan on a regional or nationwide basis. The assistance would be available only so long as, and to the extent, necessary to assure the guaranteed access. However, the Administrator could never provide for the full underwriting of financial risk for any PDP sponsor. Additionally, the Administrator would be directed to seek to maximize the assumption of financial risk by PDP sponsors and entities offering MA Rx or EFFS Rx plans. The Administrator would be required to report to Congress annually on the exercise of this authority and recommendations to minimize the exercise of such authority.

Senate Bill

New Section 1860D–13 of the Senate bill would require the Administrator to approve at least 2 contracts to offer a Medicare Prescription drug Plan in an area. If the Administrator determined that at least 2 plans were not going to be available in the subsequent year, the Administrator would reduce the amount of risk required by plans in a region. This would be achieved by adjusting the percentages applicable to risk corridors established under the bill. Alternatively, the reinsurance percentage could be increased. The Administrator could not provide for the full underwriting of financial risk for any entity and could not provide for the underwriting of any financial risk for a public entity. The Administrator would seek to maximize the assumption of financial risk to ensure fair competition among plans. The authority would be used only so long as, and to the extent necessary, to assure access. The authority could not be used if 2 or more qualified bids were submitted in an area by qualified entities.

Not later than September 1 of each year, beginning in 2005, the Administrator would make a determination as to whether there were 2 approved bids. If not, the Administrator would enter into an annual fallback contract with an entity to provide Part D enrollees in the area with standard coverage (including access to negotiated prices) for the following year.

In the case of an area with only one competitively bid contract, the plan (at the plan's option) could be offered under the rules established for risk-bearing plans. Beneficiaries could enroll with such plan or with the fallback plan.

Conference Agreement

New Section 1860D–3 of the conference agreement requires the Secretary to assure that each beneficiary has available a choice of enrollment in at least 2 qualifying plans in the area in which the beneficiary resides. At least one plan has to be a prescription drug plan. The requirement is not satisfied for an area if only one PDP sponsor or one MA organization offering a MA–PD plan offers all the qualifying plans for the area. A qualifying plan is defined as a prescription drug plan or an MA–PD plan that provides either: (1) basic prescription drug coverage; or (2) qualified prescription drug coverage, so long as there is no MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium applied (due to the application of a credit against the premium of a rebate). In any case where plans are not available, the beneficiary is given the opportunity to enroll in a fallback plan.

The conference agreement permits the Secretary, in order to assure access, to approve limited risk contracts as specified under the new Section 1860D–11. Only if access is still not provided, will the Secretary provide for the offering of a fallback plan.

Beneficiary Protections for Qualified Prescription Drug Coverage (New Section 1860D–4 of conference agreement; New Section 1860D–3 of House bill; New Section 1860D–5 and Section 121 of Senate bill).

Present Law

a. Beneficiary Protections. Medicare+Choice plans are required to meet a number of beneficiary protection requirements. They are required to disclose plan information to enrollees. They are required to have procedures relating to coverage decisions, reconsiderations, and appeals. Further, they are required to assure the confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records.

Marketing material used by Medicare+Choice plans must be approved by the Secretary.

b. Electronic Prescription Program. Part C (Administrative Simplification) in Title XI of the Social Security Act requires the Secretary to develop transaction and security standards to support the growth of electronic record keeping and claims processing in the nation's health care system.

Section 1171 defines health care clearinghouse, health care provider, health plan, personally identifiable health information, and standard setting organization. Section 1172 specifies that the administrative simplification standards apply to individual and group health plans, health care clearinghouses, and health care providers who transmit health information electronically in a standard format in connection with one of the transactions specified in Section 1173, or who rely on third-party billing services to conduct such transactions. The Secretary is required either to adopt standards that have already been developed by standard setting organizations or to develop different standards, provided they substantially reduce administrative costs to health plans and providers. If no standard has been adopted by a standard setting organization, the Secretary must develop a new standard based on the recommendations of various specified organizations and agencies.

Section 1173 instructs the Secretary to adopt the following standards: (1) uniform electronic formats for various common transactions between health care providers and health plans (e.g., health claims, eligibility and enrollment); (2) code sets for data elements in standard electronic transactions; (3) unique health identifiers for individuals, employers, plans, and providers; (4) security standards to safeguard confidential patient information against unauthorized access, use, or disclosure; and (5) electronic signatures to verify the authenticity of transactions. Section 1174 provides a timetable for the adoption of the administrative simplification standards and permits the Secretary to modify the standards as frequently as once every 12 months.

Section 1175 requires health plans and providers that process electronic transactions to use standard formats and data elements. Plans and providers may transmit and receive such data either directly or by contracting with a clearinghouse to convert nonstandard data elements into standard transactions. Most entities covered by the administrative simplification standards have 24 months to comply. Small health plans have 36 months to comply.

Section 1176 establishes civil monetary penalties of up to $25,000 per person for violations of the standards. Section 1177 establishes criminal penalties for wrongfully obtaining or disclosing personally identifiable health information. Penalties range from a $50,000 fine and/or 1 year in prison, up to a $250,000 fine and/or up to 10 years in prison if the offense is committed with the intent to sell, transfer, or use the information for commercial advantage, personal gain, or to inflict malicious harm. Section 1178 specifies that the standards preempt contrary provisions in state law pertaining to health information. However, the standards may not preempt or limit state laws that are necessary to prevent fraud and abuse, regulate health insurance companies, or report on health care delivery and costs. Also, the standards may not limit the authority of the state to collect and report for public health purposes.

House Bill

a. Beneficiary Protections. The New Section 1860D–1 would establish guaranteed issue and community-rating requirements. The provision would specify that individuals electing qualified prescription drug coverage under a PDP plan or MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan could not be denied enrollment based on health status or other factors. MA provisions relating to priority enrollment (where capacity limits have been reached) and limitations on terminations of elections would apply to PDP sponsors. The provision would require PDP sponsors to make drug coverage available to all eligible individuals residing in the area without regard to their health or economic status or their place of residence in the area.

The New Section 1860D–3 would specify required beneficiary protections. Plans would have to comply with guaranteed issue and community-rated premium requirements specified in the new Section 1860D–1, access to negotiated prices as specified in the new Section 1860D–2, and the non-discrimination provisions specified in the new Section 1860D–6.

PDP plan sponsors would be required to disclose, to each enrolling beneficiary, information about the plan's benefit structure. The plan would have to disclose information on: (1) access to specific covered drugs, including access through pharmacy networks; (2) how any formulary used by the sponsor functioned; (3) copayment and deductible requirements (including any applicable tiered copayment requirements); and (4) grievance and appeals procedures. In addition, beneficiaries would have the right to obtain more detailed plan information. Plans would be required to have a mechanism for providing specific information to enrollees on request. The sponsor would be required to make available, through an Internet web site and, on request, in writing, information on specific changes in the formulary. Plans would be required to furnish to enrollees, at least monthly, a detailed explanation of benefits when drug benefits were provided, including information on benefits compared to the initial coverage limit and the applicable out-of-pocket threshold.

PDP sponsors and entities offering an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan would be required to permit the participation of any pharmacy that met the plan's terms and conditions. A PDP and an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan could reduce copayments for its enrolled beneficiaries below the otherwise applicable level for drugs dispensed through in-network pharmacies; in no case could the reduction result in an increase in subsidy payments made by the Administrator to the plan. PDP sponsors and entities offering an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan would be required to secure participation in its network of a sufficient number of pharmacies that dispense drugs directly to patients (other than by mail order) to assure convenient access. The Administrator would establish convenient access rules that were no less favorable to enrollees than rules for convenient access established by the Secretary of Defense on June 1, 2003, for purposes of the TRICARE Retail Pharmacy program. The rules would include adequate emergency assess for enrolled beneficiaries. Sponsors would permit enrollees to receive benefits through a community pharmacy, rather than through mail-order, with any differential in cost paid by enrollees. Pharmacies could not be required to accept insurance risk as a condition of participation.

PDP sponsors and entities offering an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan would be required to issue (and reissue as appropriate) a card or other technology that could be used by an enrolled beneficiary to assure access to negotiated prices for drugs when coverage was not otherwise provided under the plan. The Administrator would provide for the development of uniform standards relating to a standardized format for the card or other technology. These standards would be compatible with the administrative simplification requirements of Title XI of the Social Security Act.

The provision would specify that if a PDP sponsor or an MA or EFFS entity used a formulary, it would have to meet certain requirements. It would be required to establish a pharmaceutical and therapeutic committee to develop and review the formulary. The committee would include at least one physician and one pharmacist, independent and free of conflict with respect to the committee, both with expertise in the care of elderly or disabled persons. The majority of members would be physicians or pharmacists. The committee would be required, when developing and reviewing the formulary, to base clinical decisions on the strength of scientific evidence and standards of practice. This would include assessing peer-reviewed medical literature, such as randomized clinical trials, pharmacoeconomic studies, outcomes research data, and such other information the committee determined appropriate. The committee would also take into account whether including a particular covered drug had therapeutic advantages in terms of safety and efficacy. The formulary would have to include drugs within each therapeutic category and class of covered outpatient drugs, although not necessarily all drugs within such categories or classes. When establishing such classes, the committee would take into account the standards published in the United States Pharmacopeia Drug Information. It would be required to make available to plan enrollees, through the Internet or otherwise, the bases for the exclusion of coverage of any drug on the formulary. The committee would be required to establish policies and procedures to educate and inform health care providers and enrollees concerning the formulary. Any removal of a drug from the formulary, and any change in the preferred or tier cost-sharing status of a drug, could not occur until appropriate notice had been provided to beneficiaries and physicians. The plan would provide for periodic evaluation and analysis of treatment protocols and procedures. Further, the PDP sponsor or entity offering a MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan would be required to have, as part of its appeals process, a process for appeals of coverage denials based on application of the formulary.

The PDP sponsor would be required to have (directly, or indirectly through arrangements) an effective cost and drug utilization management program; quality assurance measures including a medication therapy management program; and a program to control waste, fraud, and abuse. Utilization management programs would be required to include medically appropriate incentives to use generic drugs and therapeutic interchange where appropriate. Medication therapy management programs would be designed to assure, for beneficiaries at risk for potential medication problems such as beneficiaries with complex or chronic diseases (such as diabetes, asthma, hypertension, and congestive heart failure) or multiple prescriptions, that drugs under the plan were appropriately used to optimize therapeutic outcomes through improved medication use and to reduce the risk of adverse events, including adverse drug interactions. The program would be developed in cooperation with licensed pharmacists and physicians. The PDP sponsor would be required, when establishing fees for pharmacists and other providers, to take into account the resources and time associated with the medication therapy management program. The sponsor or entity would disclose the amount of such fees to the Administrator upon request; the fees would be confidential.

Each PDP sponsor and entity offering a MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan would ensure that each pharmacy or other dispenser informed enrolled beneficiaries at the time of purchase, of any price differential between their prescribed drug and the price of the lowest cost generic drug covered under the plan that was therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent.

Each PDP sponsor would be required to have meaningful procedures for the hearing and resolving of any grievances between the organization (including any entity or individual through which the organization provided covered benefits) and enrollees. Enrollees would be afforded access to expedited determinations and reconsiderations, in the same manner afforded under MA. A beneficiary in a plan that provided for tiered cost-sharing could request coverage of a nonpreferred drug on the same conditions applicable to preferred drugs, if the prescribing physician determined that the preferred drug for the treatment of the same condition was not as effective for the enrollee or had adverse effects for the enrollee.

In general, PDP plan sponsors would be required to meet the requirements for independent review and appeals of coverage denials and tiered cost-sharing in the same manner that such requirements applied to MA organizations. An individual enrolled in a PDP plan could appeal to obtain coverage for a drug not on the formulary if the prescribing physician determined that the formulary drug for treatment of the same condition was not as effective for the individual or had adverse effects for the individual. The PDP sponsor would be required to meet requirements related to confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records in the same manner that such requirements applied to MA organizations.

b. Electronic Prescription Program. PDP sponsors and entities offering an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan would be required, effective January 1, 2007, to have in place an electronic prescription program. The program would have to be consistent with national standards developed by the Administrator. The program would be required to provide for electronic transmittal of prescriptions (except in emergencies and exceptional cases). It would also have to provide for the electronic transmittal of information to the prescribing health professional of information that included: (1) information (to the extent available and feasible) on the drugs being prescribed for that patient and other information relating to the medical history or condition of the patient that may be relevant to the appropriate prescription for the patient; (2) cost-effective alternatives (if any) for the prescribed drug; and (3) information on drugs included in the applicable formulary. To the extent feasible, the program would permit the prescribing health professional to provide, and be provided, information on an interactive real time basis.

The Administrator would provide for the development of uniform standards relating to the electronic prescription drug program. These standards would be compatible with the administrative simplification requirements of Title XI of the Social Security Act. The Administrator would be required to establish an advisory task force that included representatives of physicians, hospitals, pharmacies, beneficiaries, pharmacy benefit managers, individuals with expertise in information technology, and pharmacy benefit experts of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Defense and other appropriate Federal agencies to provide recommendations to the administrator on such standards, including recommendations relating to: (1) the range of available computerized prescribing software and hardware and their costs to develop and implement; (2) the extent to which such standards and systems could be readily implemented by physicians, pharmacies, and hospitals; (3) efforts to develop uniform standards and a common software platform for the secure electronic communication of medication history, eligibility, benefit, and prescription information; (4) efforts to develop and promote universal connectivity and interoperability for the secure electronic exchange of such information; (5) the cost of implementing such systems; (6) implementation issues as they relate to the administrative simplification provisions of Title XI and current Federal and State prescribing laws and regulations and their impact on implementation of computerized prescribing. The Administrator would constitute the task force by April 1, 2004; it would submit recommendations to the Administrator by January 1, 2005. The Administrator would provide for the development and promulgation of national standards by January 1, 2006. The standards would be issued by a standards organization accredited by the American National Standards Institute and be compatible with administrative simplification standards.

Senate Bill

a. Beneficiary Protections. Eligible entities offering Medicare Prescription Drug Plans would be required to disclose plan information comparable to that required for MedicareAdvantage plans. Entities would have to disclose information on access, operation of any formulary, beneficiary cost-sharing, and grievance and appeals procedures. Further, upon request of an individual, they would be required to disclose general information on coverage, utilization, and grievance procedures. An eligible entity would be required to have a mechanism for providing specific information to enrollees, upon request, including information on coverage of specific drugs and changes in its formulary. Entities would be required to provide easily understandable explanation of benefits and a notice of benefits in relation to the initial coverage limit and the annual out-of-pocket limit. The MedicareAdvantage requirements relating to approval of marketing materials would apply to information provided by entities on drug plans.

The bill would include several provisions designed to assure beneficiary access to drugs. Eligible entities would be required to have in place procedures to ensure that beneficiaries were not charged more than the negotiated price of a covered drug. The procedures would include the issuance of a card or other technology that could be used by a beneficiary to assure access to negotiated prices for which coverage was not otherwise provided under the plan. Entities would be required to secure the participation in the network of a sufficient number of pharmacies that dispensed drugs directly to patients (other than by mail order) to ensure convenient access for beneficiaries. The Administrator would be required to establish standards to ensure convenient access, including emergency access. The standards would take into account reasonable distances to pharmacy services in both urban and rural areas and to pharmacy services and access to pharmacy services of the Indian health service and Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

An entity would be required to establish a point-of-service method of operation under which the plan would provide access to any or all pharmacies not participating in the network and could charge beneficiaries, through adjustments in cost sharing, the additional costs associated with this option. This additional cost sharing would not count toward the program's cost-sharing requirements or benefit limits. Entities would be required to permit enrollees receiving benefits (which may include a 90-day supply of drugs or biologicals) through a community pharmacy, rather than through mail order and may permit a differential amount to be paid by enrollees.

New Section 1860D–6 would permit entities to use a variety of cost control mechanisms including formularies, tiered copayments, selective contracting with drug providers, and mail order pharmacies. Under New Section 1860D–5, plans electing to use a formulary would be required to establish a pharmacy and therapeutic committee to develop and review the formulary. The pharmacy and therapeutics committee would include at least one academic expert, at least one practicing physician, and at least one practicing pharmacist, all of whom must have expertise in the care of elderly or disabled persons. The committee would base clinical decisions on the strength of scientific evidence and standards of practice. The committee would establish policies and procedures to educate and inform health care providers concerning the formulary. Drugs could not be removed from the formulary until after appropriate notice had been provided to beneficiaries, physicians, and pharmacists. An enrollee would have the right to appeal to obtain coverage for a drug not on the formulary if the prescribing physician determined that the formulary drug was not as effective for treatment of the same condition for the individual or had adverse effects for the individual. If a plan offered tiered cost-sharing for covered drugs, an enrollee would have the right to request that a nonpreferred drug be treated on terms applicable for a preferred drug if the prescribing physician determined that the preferred drug was not as effective for treatment of the same condition for the individual or had adverse effects for the individual.

The formulary would be required to include drugs within all therapeutic categories and classes of covered drugs (although not necessarily for all drugs within such categories and classes). For purposes of defining therapeutic categories and classes, the Administrator would be required to use the following compendia: American Hospital Formulary Service Drug Information, United States Pharmacopeia-Drug Information, the DRUGEX Information System, and American Medical Association Drug Evaluations.

Eligible entities would be required to have a cost-effective drug utilization management program (including incentives to reduce costs when appropriate). They would be required to have a program to control fraud, abuse, and waste. Further, they would be required to have quality assurance measures, including a medication therapy management program, to reduce medical errors and adverse drug interactions. The medication therapy management program would be designed to assure that drugs for beneficiaries with chronic diseases (such as diabetes, asthma, hypertension, hyperlipidemia, and congestive heart failure) or multiple prescriptions were appropriately used to optimize therapeutic outcomes and reduce the risk of adverse events including adverse drug interactions. The program could include enhanced beneficiary understanding of appropriate use through education, counseling and other appropriate means; increased adherence with prescription regimens through refill reminders, special packaging and other appropriate means; and detection of patterns of overuse and underuse of drugs. The program would be developed in cooperation with pharmacists and physicians. Associated costs would be taken into account by the entity when establishing fees for pharmacists and others providing services under the medication therapy management program.

Pharmacies or other dispensers would be required to assure that beneficiaries were informed at the time of purchase of any difference between the price of the prescribed drug and the lowest cost generic drug that is therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent and that is available at the pharmacy or other dispenser. Entities would also be required to have meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances, comparable to those established for MedicareAdvantage plans. In addition, eligible entities would be required to meet MedicareAdvantage requirements relating to coverage determinations. Entities would be required to safeguard the privacy of individually identifiable beneficiary information, maintain such records in an accurate and timely manner, ensure timely access by beneficiaries, and otherwise comply with laws relating to patient privacy.

Eligible entities would be required to conduct consumer satisfaction surveys with respect to the plan and entity. The Administrator would establish uniform requirements for such survey.

b. Electronic Prescription Program. The provision would establish a new Part D in Title XI of the Social Security Act. The new Section 1180 would mandate the development or adoption of standards for transactions and data elements for such transactions, to enable the electronic transmission of medication history, eligibility, benefit and other prescription information. In developing the standards, the Secretary would be required to consult with representatives of physicians, hospitals, pharmacists, standard setting organizations, pharmacy benefit managers, beneficiaries, information exchange networks, technology experts, and representatives of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Defense and other interested parties. The standards developed or adopted by the Secretary would be consistent with the objective of improving patient safety and improving the quality of care.

Standards would be required to comply with certain requirements. Patients could request a written prescription and not be charged for such request. The standards would accommodate the electronic transmittal of a patient's medication history, eligibility, benefit and other prescription information among prescribing and dispensing professionals at the point of care. The information that could be transmitted using the standards would include: information on the drugs prescribed for the patient; cost-effective alternatives (if any) to the drug prescribed; information on eligibility and benefits (including the drugs included in the applicable formulary and any requirements for prior authorization); information on potential drug interactions; and other information to improve the quality of care and to reduce medical errors. The standards would be designed so that, to the extent practicable, they did not impose an undue administrative burden on the practice of medicine, pharmacy, or other health professions.

The standards developed or adopted by the Secretary would be consistent with Federal regulations (concerning the privacy of individually identifiable health information) promulgated under section 264(c) of the 1996 Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA), and would be compatible with HIPAA's Administrative Simplification standards.

The Secretary would be required to adopt standards for the appropriate data elements needed for the electronic exchange of prescription drug information among prescribers, insurers, and other entities.

The Secretary would have to adopt the standards by Jan. 1, 2006, and would be permitted to modify them, but in a manner that minimized the disruption and cost of compliance. Individuals that transmit or receive prescriptions electronically would be required to comply with the standards. However, individuals would not be required to transmit or receive electronic prescriptions. The standards would preempt state electronic prescription laws. Entities covered by the standards would have 24 months to comply. Small health plans, as defined by the Secretary, would have an additional 12 months to comply.

The Secretary would be required to consult with the Attorney General to ensure that the standards resulted in the secure electronic transmission of prescriptions for controlled substances.

Conference Agreement

a. Beneficiary Protections. New Section 1860D–4 establishes beneficiary protection requirements for qualified prescription drug plans. PDP plan sponsors are required to disclose, to each enrolling beneficiary, information about the plan's benefit structure. The plan will disclose information on: (1) access to specific covered drugs (including access through pharmacy networks); (2) how any formulary (including a tiered formulary) used by the sponsor functions, including how a beneficiary might obtain information on the formulary; (3) copayment and deductible requirements (including any applicable tiered copayment requirements; and (4) grievance and appeals procedures. In addition, beneficiaries will have the right to obtain more detailed plan information. Plans will be required to have a mechanism for providing specific information to enrollees on request. The sponsor will be required to make available, through an Internet website, information on specific changes in the formulary (including tiered or preferred status). Sponsors will be required to furnish to enrollees, a detailed explanation of benefits when drug benefits were provided, including information on benefits compared to the initial coverage limit and the applicable out-of-pocket threshold.

PDP sponsors are required to permit the participation of any pharmacy that meets the plan's terms and conditions. The conference report would require plans to accept any and all pharmacies willing to agree to the terms and conditions of the plan. A PDP could reduce copayments for its enrolled beneficiaries below the otherwise applicable level for drugs dispensed through in-network pharmacies; in no case could the reduction result in an increase in subsidy payments made by the Secretary to the plan. The PDP sponsor is required to secure participation in its network of a sufficient number of pharmacies that dispense drugs directly to patients (other than by mail order) to assure convenient access. The Secretary will establish convenient access rules that are no less favorable to enrollees than rules for convenient access established in the statement of work solicitation (#MDA906–03–R–0002) by the Department of Defense on March 13, 2003, for purposes of the TRICARE Retail Pharmacy program. The conference report adopts the House language, with the clarification that the minimum in-network pharmacy for each plan offered by a PDP or MA plan in a geographic area must provide access to pharmacies that is not less restrictive than the TRICARE access standards. These standards require that 90 percent of plan enrollees in urban areas will have access to a retail pharmacy within 2 miles; that 90 percent of suburban plan enrollees will have access to a retail pharmacy within 5 miles; and that 70 percent of rural plan enrollees will have access to a pharmacy within 15 miles. PDP sponsors or MA sponsors can offer broader networks than those meeting the TRICARE access standards.

Plan sponsors cannot create any pharmacy networks that are more restrictive than the TRICARE access standards. PDP plan sponsors or MA sponsors cannot include mail order only pharmacies. The rules would include adequate emergency access for enrolled beneficiaries. The rules may include standards with respect to access for enrollees in long-term care facilities. Sponsors will permit enrollees to receive benefits (which may include a 90-day supply) through a community pharmacy, rather than through mail-order, with any differential in charge paid by enrollees. In addition, the conference report clarifies that pharmacies could not accept insurance risk.

PDP sponsors are required to issue (and reissue as appropriate) a card or other technology that could be used by an enrolled beneficiary to assure access to negotiated prices for drugs. The Secretary will provide for the development, adoption, or recognition of standards relating to a standardized format for the card or other technology. These standards are to be compatible with the administrative simplification requirements of Title XI of the Social Security Act. The standards will be implemented by such date the Secretary determines to be sufficient to ensure PDP sponsors utilize such standards beginning January 1, 2006, and developed in consultation with the National Counsel for Prescription Drug Programs (NCPDP) and other standard setting organizations.

The provision would specify that if a PDP sponsor used a formulary, it would have to meet certain requirements. A pharmaceutical and therapeutic committee would develop and review the formulary. The committee would include at least one practicing physician and one practicing pharmacist, independent and free of conflict with respect to the committee, both with expertise in the care of elderly or disabled persons. The majority of members would be physicians or pharmacists. The committee would be required, when developing and reviewing the formulary, to base clinical decisions on the strength of scientific evidence and standards of practice, including assessing peer-reviewed medical literature, such as randomized clinical trials, pharmacoeconomic studies, outcomes research data, and such other information the committee determined appropriate. The committee would also take into account whether including a particular covered drug in the formulary (or in a particular tier in a formulary) had therapeutic advantages in terms of safety and efficacy. The formulary would have to include drugs within each therapeutic category and class of covered Part D drugs, although not necessarily all drugs within such categories or classes.

The Secretary is required to request the United States Pharmacopeia to develop a list of categories and classes that may be used by plans. The Secretary's request would also include the revision of such classification from time to time to reflect changes in therapeutic uses of covered drugs and the addition of new covered drugs. The plan sponsor cannot change therapeutic categories and classes in a formulary other than at the beginning of a plan year, except as the Secretary may permit to take into account new therapeutic uses and newly approved covered drugs. Each sponsor is required to establish policies and procedures to educate and inform health care providers and enrollees concerning the formulary. Any removal of a drug from the formulary, and any change in the preferred or tier cost-sharing status of a drug, could not occur until appropriate notice had been provided to the Secretary, beneficiaries, and physicians, pharmacies, and pharmacists. The plan must provide for periodic evaluation and analysis of treatment protocols and procedures.

The PDP sponsor would be required to have (directly, or indirectly through arrangements) a cost-effective drug utilization management program; quality assurance measures, a medication therapy management program; and a program to control fraud, waste, and abuse. A medication therapy management program is a program of drug therapy management and medication administration, that may be furnished by a pharmacist and that is designed to assure with respect to targeted beneficiaries that drugs under the plan are appropriately used to optimize therapeutic outcomes through improved medication use and to reduce the risk of adverse events, including adverse drug interactions. Targeted individuals are those with multiple chronic diseases (such as diabetes, asthma, hypertension, hyperlipidemia, and congestive heart failure) or are taking multiple drugs or are likely to incur annual costs that exceed a specified level. The program would be developed in cooperation with licensed practicing pharmacists and physicians. Such plans would be coordinated with disease management programs to the extent beneficiaries are enrolled in such programs. The PDP sponsor would be required, when establishing fees for pharmacists and other providers, to take into account the resources and time associated with the medication therapy management program. The sponsor or entity would disclose the amount of such fees to the Administrator upon request; the fees would be confidential.

The Secretary will be required to conduct consumer satisfaction surveys in order to provide comparative information during the enrollment period.

Each PDP sponsor is required to have meaningful procedures for the hearing and resolving of any grievances between the sponsor (including any entity or individual through which the sponsor provided covered benefits) and enrollees. Enrollees will be afforded access to expedited determinations and reconsiderations, in the same manner afforded under MA. A beneficiary in a plan that provides for tiered cost-sharing can request coverage of a non-preferred drug on the same conditions applicable to preferred drugs, if the prescribing physician determines that that the preferred drug for the treatment of the same condition is not as effective for the enrollee or has adverse effects for the enrollee. A PDP is required to have an exceptions process consistent with guidelines established by the Secretary.

In general, PDP plan sponsors will be required to meet the requirements for independent review and appeals of coverage denials and tiered cost-sharing in a similar manner that such requirements applied to MA organizations for fee-for-service benefits. An individual enrolled in a PDP plan may appeal to obtain coverage for a drug not on the formulary only if the prescribing physician determines that all covered Part D drugs on any tier of the formulary for treatment of the same condition would not as effective for the individual or would have adverse effects for the individual or both. The PDP sponsor will be required to meet requirements related to confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records in the same manner that such requirements applied to MA organizations.

Each PDP sponsor will provide that each pharmacy that dispenses a covered drug shall inform enrolled beneficiaries at the time of purchase (or at the time of delivery in the case of mail order drugs) of any price differential between the price to the enrollee and the price of the lowest cost generic drug covered under the plan that is therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent and available at the pharmacy. The Secretary is permitted to waive this requirement.

b. Electronic Prescription Program. The conference agreement requires the Secretary to develop electronic prescription standards. The standards apply to prescriptions for covered part D drugs and required information that are transmitted electronically under an electronic prescription drug program conducted by a PDP or MA plan. The program must provide for the electronic transmittal of information on eligibility and benefits (including formulary drugs, any tiered formulary structure, and prior authorization requirements), information on the drug being prescribed and other drugs listed in the patient's medication history (including drug-drug interactions), and information on the availability of lower-cost, therapeutically appropriate alternative drugs. The conferees intend for prescribing health care professionals to have ready access to neutral and unbiased information on the full range of covered outpatient drugs available. Disclosure of information must meet the requirements of the HIPAA privacy rule and, to the extent feasible, be on an interactive, real-time basis. The conferees do not intend for the provision relating to ''interactive, real-time'' transmission of information to preclude an individual or entity from complying with the standards under this part by virtue of such individual's or entity's inability to transmit information on an interactive, real-time basis.

The standards must be consistent with the objectives of improving patient safety and the quality and efficiency of patient care. To the extent practicable, the standards must be designed so that they do not impose an undue administrative burden on prescribing physicians and pharmacists. The standards must also be compatible with the HIPAA Administrative Simplification standards and other health information technology standards, and must permit the electronic exchange of drug labeling and drug listing information maintained by the FDA and the National Library of Medicine. Finally, the standards must accommodate the messaging of information about appropriate prescribing of drugs and allow a beneficiary (consistent with their prescription drug plan) to designate a particular pharmacy to dispense a prescribed drug.

The conference agreement requires the Secretary to promulgate initial standards by September 1, 2005, taking into account recommendations from the National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics (NCVHS). The NCVHS is required to develop such recommendations in consultation with standard setting organizations, practicing physicians, hospitals, pharmacies, practicing pharmacists, pharmacy benefit managers, state boards of pharmacy and medicine, and appropriate federal agencies. Prior to the promulgation of final standards, the Secretary must enter into voluntary agreements with physicians, pharmacies, hospitals, and PDP sponsors and MA plans to conduct a pilot project to test the initial standards. The pilot project must be conducted during the 1-year period that begins on January 1, 2006, except that pilot testing is not required where there is adequate industry experience. The Secretary must then evaluate the pilot project and report to Congress not later than April 1, 2007. Based on the evaluation and not later then April 1, 2008, the Secretary must promulgate final standards to take effect within one year. The electronic prescriptions standards shall supercede any contrary state laws.

The agreement requires the Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, to provide a safe harbor from both criminal sanctions under Section 1128(b)(1 and 2) of the Act and the self-referral prohibition under Section 1877 of the Act with respect to the provision of nonmonetary remuneration necessary and used solely to receive and transmit electronic prescription information in accordance with Part D standards. Nonmonetary remuneration includes hardware, software, or information technology and training services. This safe harbor is to apply: (1) in the case of a hospital by the hospital to members of its medical staff; (2) in the case of a medical group practice by the practice to prescribing health care professionals who are members of the practice; and (3) in the case of a PDP sponsor or MA organization, by the sponsor or organization to pharmacists and pharmacies participating in its network and to prescribing health processionals.

The conferees intend for electronic prescribing to serve as a vehicle to reduce medical errors and improve efficiencies in the health care system, but not for it to be used as a marketing platform or other mechanism to unduly influence the clinical decisions of physicians.

Subpart 2—Prescription Drug Plans; PDP Sponsors; Financing

PDP Regions; Submission of Bids; Plan Approval (New Section 1860D–11 of Conference Agreement; New Section 1860D–6 and New section 1860D–4 of House bill; New Section 1860D–7, 1860D–12, and 1860D–13 of Senate bill).

Present Law

a. PDP Regions. No provision.

b. Submission of Bids. No provision.

c. Plan Approval. No provision.

d. Fallback. No provision

House Bill

a. PDP Regions. The Administrator would designate at least 10 service areas in the U.S., consistent with EFFS regions, to the extent practicable.

b. Submission of Bids. The new Section 1860D–6 would require each PDP sponsor to submit to the Administrator specified information in the same manner as such information was submitted by MA organizations.

The information to be submitted would be information on the qualified drug coverage to be provided, the actuarial value of the coverage, and information on the bid and premium for the coverage. The PDP sponsor would have to include an actuarial certification of: (1) the actuarial basis for the bid and premium; (2) the portion of the bid and premium attributable to benefits in excess of the standard coverage; (3) the reduction in the premium resulting from reinsurance subsidies; (4) the reduction in the bid resulting from direct and reinsurance subsidy payments; and (5) such other information required by the Administrator.

c. Plan Approval. The Administrator would review the submitted information for purposes of conducting negotiations with the plan. The Administrator would approve the premium only if it accurately reflected the actuarial value of the benefits and the 73% average subsidy provided for under the new Section 1860D–8. The Administrator would apply actuarial principles to approval of a premium in a manner similar to that used for establishing the monthly Part B premium. These requirements would not apply to private fee-for-service plans.

d. Fallback. No provision

a. PDP Regions. New Section 1860D–10 would require the Administrator to establish by April 15, 2005, and periodically review, service areas in which plans could offer benefits. The Administrator would establish service areas so that they maximized the availability of Medicare Prescription Drug Plans to eligible beneficiaries and minimized the ability of entities offering plans to favorably select beneficiaries. In establishing the service areas, the Administrator would establish at least 10 service areas, which would have to include at least one state. The Administrator could not divide states so that portions of a state were in different service areas.

To the extent possible, the Administrator would include multi-state metropolitan statistical areas (MSAs) in a single service area. The Secretary could divide MSAs where it is necessary to establish service areas of such size and geography as to maximize plan participation. The Administrator could conform service areas to those established for preferred provider organizations under MedicareAdvantage.

Under the New Section 1860D–12, plan service areas could either be, the entire area of one of the service areas established by the Administrator or the entire area covered by Medicare. Entities could submit separate bids for multiple service areas, provided each bid was for a single service area.

b. Submission of bids. The new Section 1860D–12 of the Senate bill would require entities to submit bids to the Administrator on an annual basis. The bid would be submitted at such time in the previous year as specified by the Administrator. The bid would contain information on proposed plans including benefits, actuarial value of the qualified prescription drug coverage, the service area for the plan, and the monthly premium. Premium information would have to include an actuarial certification of the basis for the premium, the portion of the premium attributable to benefits in excess of standard coverage, and the reduction in bids attributable to reinsurance payments. Entities would also be required to provide information on whether the entity planned to use any funds in the plan stabilization reserve fund that were available to the entity for the purpose of stabilizing or reducing the monthly premium.

c. Plan Approval. The new Section 1860D–13 would prohibit the Administrator from approving a plan unless the premium, for both standard coverage and for any additional benefits, accurately reflected the actuarial value of the benefits less the actuarial value of reinsurance payments and any stabilization funds used. The bid submitted by an entity for a qualified plan must reasonably and equitably reflect the cost of benefits provided under that plan. The Administrator would have the authority to negotiate the terms and conditions of the proposed monthly premiums and other terms and conditions of proposed plans. The Administrator could disapprove, or limit enrollment in, a proposed plan based on costs to beneficiaries, the quality of coverage and benefits, the adequacy of the plan network, average aggregate projected costs of covered drugs and other factors determined appropriate by the Administrator. The Administrator could approve a plan only if it provided the required benefits and was not designed to result in a favorable selection of beneficiaries. The Administrator would approve at least 2 contracts to offer a Medicare Prescription Drug plan in an area. Contracts would be awarded for 2 years.

d. Fallback. Under New Section 1860D–13, the Administrator, not later than September 1 of each year, beginning in 2005, would make a determination as to whether there were 2 approved bids. If not, the Administrator would enter into an annual contract with an entity to provide Part D enrollees in the area with standard coverage (including access to negotiated prices) for the following year. The Administrator could enter into only 1 contract for each such area. A single entity could be awarded contracts for more than one such area. The Administrator could not enter into such a contract if the Administrator received two or more qualified bids after exercise of the authority to reduce risk for entities. Entities would be required to meet beneficiary protection requirements.

Beneficiary premiums for a fallback plan would be set at the premium amount that would apply if the plan premium equaled the national weighted average premium for the area, as adjusted for geographic differences in drug prices. The Administrator would establish a methodology for making this calculation, which could take into account geographic differences in utilization and the results of the ongoing study on spending and utilization required under the Act. The contract with the plan would provide for payments to the plans for the negotiated costs of covered drugs and payment of prescription management fees tied to performance management fees established by the Administrator. Performance requirements established by the Administrator would include the following; (1) the entity contained costs to taxpayers and to beneficiaries; (2) the entity provided quality clinical care; and (3) the entity provided quality services. The fallback plan would not be permitted to engage in any marketing or branding of the contract. Entities that submitted bids to be a qualified risk-bearing entity could not submit a bid to be a fallback plan.

Conference Agreement

a. PDP Regions. New Section 1860D–11 of the conference agreement provides for the establishment of PDP regions. The service area for a plan includes an entire PDP region. The Secretary shall establish, and may revise PDP regions in a manner that is consistent with the requirements for establishment and revision of MA regions. To the extent practicable, PDP regions shall be the same as MA regions. The Secretary may establish different regions if the Secretary determines that it would improve access to drug benefits. The Secretary will establish PDP regions for the territories. A plan can be offered in more than one PDP region, including all PDP regions.

b. Submission of Bids. Each PDP sponsor is required to submit to the Secretary specified information at the same time and in a similar manner as such information is submitted by MA organizations. The information to be submitted is: (1) information on the prescription drug coverage to be provided; (2) the actuarial value of the qualified prescription drug coverage in the region for a beneficiary with a national average risk profile; (3) information on the bid including the basis for the actuarial value, the portion of the bid attributable to basic coverage and if applicable, the portion attributable to supplemental benefits, and assumptions regarding reinsurance subsidy payments and administrative expenses; (4) service area; (5) level of risk assumed including whether the sponsor requires a modification of risk level and if so the extent of the modification; and (6) such other information required by the Secretary. A modification of risk levels applies to all PDP plans offered by a PDP sponsor in a region; it may include an increase in the federal percentage assumed in the risk corridor or decrease in the size of risk corridors. The Secretary is to establish requirements for information submission in a manner that promotes the offering of plans in more than one PDP region.

The Secretary is to establish processes and methods for determining the actuarial valuation of prescription drug coverage including: (1) an actuarial valuation of standard coverage; (2) actuarial valuations relating to alternative coverage; (3) use of generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies; (4) applying the same methodology for determinations of alternative coverage as is used for determinations of standard coverage; and (5) actuarial valuation of reinsurance subsidies. The processes and methods are to take into account the effect that providing alternative coverage (rather than standard coverage) has on drug utilization.

PDP sponsors and MA organizations are responsible for the submission of required actuarial valuations for plans they offer. They may use actuarial opinions certified by independent, qualified actuaries.

c. Plan Approval. The Secretary will review the submitted information for purposes of conducting negotiations with the plan. The Secretary has the authority to negotiate the terms and conditions of the plans. The authority is similar to the authority the Director of the Office of Personnel Management has with respect to Federal Employee Health Benefits (FEHB) plans.

After review and negotiation, the Secretary will approve or disapprove the plan. The Secretary may only approve a plan if certain requirements are met. The plan must comply with Part D requirements, including for actuarial determinations. The Secretary must determine that the portion of the bid that is related to basic coverage is supported by the actuarial bases provided and reasonably and equitably reflects the revenue requirements (as the term is used under Section 1302(8)(c) of the Public Health Service Act) for benefits provided under the plan, less the sum of the actuarial value of the reinsurance payments provided. Similarly, the Secretary must determine that the portion of the bid that is related to supplemental coverage is supported by the actuarial bases provided and reasonably and equitably reflects the revenue requirements for coverage provided under the plan.

The Secretary can only approve a plan, if the plan and the benefits (including any formulary and tiered formulary structure) are not likely to discourage enrollment by certain beneficiaries.

The agreement provides that the Secretary may only approve a limited risk plan for a PDP region if the access requirements for the region would otherwise not be met except for the approval of a limited risk or fallback plan. Only the minimum number of limited risk plans necessary for a region to meet access requirements may be approved. The Secretary shall provide priority to those with the highest level of risk. In no case can the reduction of risk provide for no (or a de minimus) level of financial risk. There is no limit on the number of full risk plans that may be approved.

d. Fallback. The New Section 1860D–3, discussed above, establishes access requirements. If access is not provided, including through a limited risk plan, the conference agreement establishes a fallback process. The Secretary is required to establish a separate process for the solicitation of bids from eligible fallback entities for the offering in all fallback service areas in or more PDP regions of a fallback prescription drug plan during the contract period. A single fallback entity may not offer all fallback plans throughout the United States. Except as otherwise provided, the general provision relating to approval or disapproval of bids under New Section 1860D–11(e) applies with respect to fallback plans. The Secretary can only approve one fallback plan for all fallback service areas in any PDP region for a contract period. Competitive contracting provisions apply. The Secretary shall approve fallback plans so that if there are any fallback service areas in the region for the year, they are offered at the same time as prescription drug plans would otherwise be offered.

The fallback entity could not submit a bid for a prescription drug plan for any region for the first year of a contract period. A fallback service area is an area within a PDP region in which, after applying the provisions relating to limited risk plans, the access requirements will not be met. Fallback prescription drug plans are permitted to offer only standard prescription drug coverage, pass on negotiated discounts and meet such other requirements specified by the Secretary. The fallback plan would not be permitted to engage in any marketing or branding of the contract.

Under a fallback contract, the Secretary would pay actual costs of Part D covered drugs taking into account negotiated price concessions. Payment would also be made for prescription management fees tied to performance management requirements, established by the Secretary. Performance requirements established by the Secretary would include the following; (1) the entity contained costs to the Medicare Prescription Drug Account and to beneficiaries; (2) the entity provided quality clinical care, including reduction in adverse drug interactions; and (3) the entity provided timely and accurate delivery of services, including pharmacy and beneficiary support services; and (4) efficient and effective benefit administration and claims adjudication services. Beneficiary premiums under fallback plans would be uniform and equal to 26 percent of the Secretary's estimate of the average monthly per capita actuarial cost (including administrative costs) to the entity offering the fallback plan.

In general, contract requirements for fallback plans would be the same as those established for prescription drug plans. A contract for a fallback plan would be for 3 years (and be renewable after a subsequent bidding process). However, a contract could not apply in an area in any year unless the area was a fallback service area.

The Secretary will submit an annual report to Congress that describes the instances in which limited risk plans and fallback plans are offered. The secretary will include such recommendations as may be appropriate to limit the need for the provision of such plans and to maximize the assumption of financial risk.

In order to promote competition, the Secretary is prohibited from interfering with the negotiations between drug manufacturers and pharmacies and PDP sponsors. Further, the Secretary may not require a particular formulary or require a particular price structure for the reimbursement of covered drugs. Conferees expect PDPs to negotiate price concessions directly with manufacturers.

PDP sponsors shall permit State pharmaceutical assistance programs and prescription plans under Section 1860D–24 to coordinate benefits with the plan. Fees may not be imposed that are unrelated to coordination. Conferees want to ensure the new Medicare plans are required to coordinate with State plans to ensure those plans can efficiently enroll seniors without unnecessary constraints. Conferees want to ensure a seamless transition for both States and beneficiaries.

Requirements for and contracts with prescription drug plan (PDP) sponsors (new Section 1860D–12 of Conference agreement; (New Section 1860D–4 of House Bill; New Sections 1860D–7, 1860D–10, 1860D–12, and 1860D–13 of Senate Bill).

Present Law

Medicare+Choice plans are required to meet a number of financial and organizational requirements. In general they are required to be organized and licensed under state law, except that a special exception may be established for provider-sponsored organizations. In addition, entities must assume full financial risk for required services.

House Bill

New Section 1860D–4 would specify organizational plan requirements for entities seeking to become PDP plan sponsors. In general, the section would require a PDP sponsor to be licensed under state law as a risk bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each state in which it offers a prescription drug plan. Alternatively it could meet solvency standards established by the Administrator for entities not licensed by the state. Plans would be required to assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for covered benefits except: (1) as covered by federal subsidy payments and reinsurance payments for high cost enrollees; or (2) as covered by federal incentive payments to encourage plans to expand service areas for existing plans or establish new plans. The entity could obtain reinsurance or make other arrangements for the cost of coverage provided to enrollees.

PDP plan sponsors would be required to enter into a contract with the Administrator under which the sponsor agreed to comply both with the applicable requirements and standards and the terms and conditions of payment. The contract could cover more than one plan. Contracts would be for at least one year. The Administrator would have the same authority to negotiate the terms and conditions of the plans as the Director of the Office of Personnel Management has with respect to Federal Employee Health Benefits (FEHB) plans. The Administrator would be required to take into account subsidy payments for covered benefits in negotiating the terms and conditions regarding premiums. The Administrator would designate at least 10 service areas, consistent with EFFS regions.

The new section would incorporate, by reference, many of the contract requirements applicable to MA plans including minimum enrollment, contract periods, allowable audits to protect against fraud and abuse, intermediate sanctions, and contract terminations. Pro rata user fees could be established to help finance enrollment activities; in no case could the amount of the fee exceed 20% of the maximum fee permitted for an MA or EFFS plan.

The new Section would permit the Administrator to waive the state licensure requirements under circumstances similar to those permitted under Part C for provider sponsored organizations. In such cases, plans would be required to meet financial solvency and capital adequacy standards established by the Administrator. The Administrator would establish such standards by regulation by October 1, 2004.

The standards established under Part D would supersede any state law or regulation (other than state licensing laws or laws relating to plan solvency). In addition, states would be prohibited from imposing premium taxes or similar taxes with respect to premiums paid to PDP sponsors or payments made to such sponsors by the Administrator.

Senate Bill

Under the New Section 1860D–7, an entity eligible to offer a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan would be organized and licensed under state law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each state it offers a plan. Alternatively, the Administrator could waive the requirement that the entity be licensed in the state, if the Administrator determined that grounds for approval of the application had been met. By January 1, 2005, the Administrator would, in consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, establish and publish solvency standards for non-licensed entities.

Entities would be required to assume financial risk on a prospective basis for costs of benefits in excess of amounts received from premium payments and reinsurance payments. Entities would be permitted to obtain private reinsurance for the portion of the costs for which they were at risk.

Beneficiaries could not elect a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan unless the Administrator had entered into a contract with the eligible entity for the plan. A contract with an entity could cover more than one plan.

The New Section 1860D–12 would require the Administrator, by January 1, 2005, to establish by regulation standards to implement Part D. Such standards would be periodically reviewed and revised as appropriate. Significant new regulatory requirements could only be implemented at the beginning of a calendar year. The standards would supersede any state law and regulation to the extent such law or regulation was inconsistent with such standards and in the same manner those standards were superseded for Medicare Advantage plans. Standards specifically superseded include those relating to benefits (including requirements relating to cost- sharing and the structure of formularies), premiums, requirements relating to inclusion or treatment of providers, coverage determinations (including related grievance and appeals processes), and requirements relating to marketing materials and summaries and schedules of benefits for a plan.

States would be prohibited from imposing a premium or similar tax with respect to premiums paid to the Administrator for Medicare Prescription Drug Plans and any payments made by the Administrator to eligible entities offering such a plan.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement establishes organizational requirements for PDP sponsors under the New Section 1860D–12. In general, the section would require a PDP sponsor to be licensed under state law as a risk bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each state in which it offers a prescription drug plan. Alternatively it could meet solvency standards established by the Secretary for entities not licensed by the state. To the extent an entity is at risk, it must assume financial risk on a prospective basis for covered benefits that is not covered by direct subsidy payments. The entity could obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of coverage provided to enrollees.

PDP plan sponsors would be required to enter into a contract with the Secretary under which the sponsor agreed to comply both with the applicable requirements and standards and the terms and conditions of payment. The contract could cover more than one plan. The Secretary may not enter into a contract with a PDP sponsor if the entity submitted a bid for the year (as the first year of the contract period) to offer a fallback plan in any region or offered a fallback plan in the region during the previous year. An entity is to be treated as submitting a bid if it is acting as a subcontractor of a PDP sponsor that is offering a plan; however this does not apply to a MA organization insofar as it is acting as a PDP sponsor.

The new section would incorporate, by reference, many of the contract requirements applicable to MA plans including minimum enrollment, contract periods, protections against fraud and abuse, intermediate sanctions, and contract terminations. Pro rata user fees may be established to help finance enrollment activities.

The new Section 1860D–12 permits the Secretary, in order to expand choice, to waive the state licensure requirement under circumstances similar to those permitted under Part C for provider sponsored organizations. In such cases, plans would be required to meet financial solvency and capital adequacy standards established by the Secretary. The Secretary, in consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, would establish and publish such standards by January 1, 2005. The Secretary may periodically review and revise the standards; however, the Secretary may not implement significant new regulatory requirements except at the beginning of a calendar year.

The standards established under Part D supersede state laws or regulations in the same manner that such laws or regulations are superseded for purposes of MA organizations and plans. In addition, states are prohibited from imposing premium taxes with respect to premiums for PDP plans.

Premiums; Late Enrollment Penalty (New Section 1860D–13 of the Conference agreement; New Section 1860D–1 and New Section 1860D–6 of House Bill; New Sections 1860D–2, 1860D–6, 1860D–14, 1860D–15, 1860D–17, and 1860D–18 of Senate bill).

Present Law

Persons who delay enrollment in Part B after their initial enrollment period are subject to a premium penalty. Certain persons, including a working individual and/or spouse of a working individual, may be able to delay enrollment in Medicare Part B without being subject to the delayed enrollment penalty.

House Bill

New Section 1860D–1 would specify that PDP sponsors and MA or EFFS organizations providing qualified prescription drug coverage could not deny, limit, or condition the coverage or provision of benefits or increase the premium based on any health-related status factor in the case of persons who maintained continuous prescription drug coverage since the date they first qualified to elect drug coverage under Part D. Individuals who did not maintain continuous coverage could be subject to an adjusted premium or a pre-existing condition exclusion in a manner reflecting the additional actuarial risk involved. Such risk would be established through an appropriate actuarial opinion. The Administrator would provide a mechanism for assisting sponsors and entities in identifying eligible individuals who had, or had not, maintained continuous coverage.

The provision would specify that an individual would be considered to have had continuous prescription drug coverage if the individual established that he or she had coverage under one of the following (and coverage in one plan occurred no more than 63 days after termination of coverage in another plan): (1) qualified prescription drug coverage under a PDP or MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan; (2) Medicaid prescription drug coverage; (3) prescription drug coverage under a group health plan, but only if benefits were at least equivalent to benefits under a qualified PDP; (4) prescription drug coverage under a Medigap plan, but only if the policy was in effect on January 1, 2006, and only if the benefits were at least equivalent to benefits under a qualified PDP; (5) state pharmaceutical assistance program, but only if benefits were at least equivalent to benefits under a qualified PDP; and (6) veterans coverage for prescription drugs, but only if benefits were at least equivalent to benefits under a qualified PDP. Individuals could apply to the Administrator to waive the requirement that such coverage be at least equivalent to benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan. They could make such application if they could establish that they were not adequately informed that the coverage did not provide such level of coverage.

New Section 1860D–6 would specify that the bid and premium for a PDP could not vary among individuals enrolled in the plan in the same service area, provided they were not subject to late enrollment penalties. A PDP sponsor would permit each enrollee to have their premiums withheld from their Social Security checks in the same manner as is currently done for Part B premiums. Beneficiaries could also make payment of the premium through an electronic funds transfer mechanism. The amount would be credited to the Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund. Reductions in Part B premiums attributable to enrollment in MA or EFFS plans could be used to reduce the premium otherwise applicable.

Under certain conditions, the PDP sponsor or entity offering an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan in an area would be required to accept, for an individual eligible for a low-income premium subsidy, the reference premium amount (premium for standard coverage) as payment in full for the premium for qualified prescription coverage. This requirement would apply if there was no standard coverage available in the area.

Senate Bill

New section 1860D–2 would specify that persons enrolling in Part D after their initial enrollment period would be subject to delayed enrollment penalties. The actuarially sound increase for each 12-month period of delayed enrollment would be determined by the Administrator.

Eligible beneficiaries with creditable drug coverage could elect to continue to receive such coverage, not enroll in Part D, and subsequently enroll in Part D without penalty if the plan terminates, ceases to provide, or reduces the value of the prescription drug coverage under the plan to below the actuarial value of standard prescription drug coverage. Subject to certain conditions, creditable drug coverage would include drug coverage through Medicaid or through a Section 1115 waiver for persons who are not dual eligibles, a group health plan, state pharmaceutical assistance program, Veterans' programs, and Medigap. Entities offering creditable coverage would be required to disclose whether coverage equals or exceeds the actuarial value of standard coverage. A special enrollment period would apply for persons losing creditable coverage. In general, it would be the 63-day period beginning on the date the individual lost such coverage. Entitlement would begin the first day of the first month following enrollment.

The New Section 1860D–14 would require the Administrator to compute a monthly standard coverage premium for each Medicare Prescription Drug plan and for each Medicare Advantage plan. This would equal the value of standard coverage or actuarially equivalent coverage if the plan provided no additional benefits. If the plan offered additional benefits, the calculation would reflect only the value of standard coverage or, alternatively the approved plan premium for the required qualified coverage plan offered by the entity.

The New Section 1860D–15 would require the Administrator, each year, beginning in 2006, to compute a monthly national average premium equal to the average of the monthly standard coverage premium for each Medicare Prescription Drug plan and each Medicare Advantage plan. The calculation would be a weighted average based on the number of enrollees in the plan in the previous year. The Administrator would establish a methodology for making an adjustment to take into account differences in prices among different areas. In making this calculation, the Administrator could take into account geographic differences in utilization. Any adjustment would be budget neutral.

The Administrator would establish procedures for making the calculation for 2005.

New Section 1860D–17 would specify that if the plan's monthly approved premium for standard coverage was equal to the national monthly weighted average premium for such coverage, the beneficiary would pay: (1) the applicable percentage, established for the area, of the monthly national average. If the plan's monthly approved premium was less than the national average the beneficiary would pay: (1) the applicable percentage for the area, minus, (2) the difference between the national average and the plan's premium. If the plan's monthly premium was greater than the national average, the beneficiary would pay: (1) the applicable percentage for the area, plus (2) the difference between the national average and the plan's premium. The applicable percentage for an area would be 30% divided by 100% minus a percentage equal to: total reinsurance payments that will be made in a year (including such payments to qualified retiree plans) divided by such amount plus total payments that would be made to plans, including Medicare Advantage plans, in the year for standard coverage (or actuarially equivalent coverage).

New Section 1860D–18 would specify that premiums would be collected in the same manner as Part B premiums. The collections would be credited to the Prescription Drug Account. The Administrator would establish procedures whereby the sponsor of employment-based retiree coverage could pay the premium. The Administrator would transmit the information necessary for collection to the Commissioner of Social Security.

New section 1860D–6 would specify that premiums for a plan would not vary within a region. However, this requirement would not apply to enrollees who were enrolled in a plan pursuant to a contract between the plan and the employer or other group plan that provided employment-based retiree health coverage, if the premium amount was the same for all such enrollees under such agreement.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement establishes a new section 1860D–13 which sets requirements for beneficiary premiums. The monthly beneficiary premium for a prescription drug plan is defined as the base beneficiary premium, as adjusted. The base beneficiary premium equals the product of the beneficiary premium percentage and the national average monthly bid amount. The beneficiary premium percentage is equal to: (1) 26%, divided by (2) 100% minus a percentage equal to total reinsurance payments divided by the sum of such reinsurance payments and total payments the Secretary estimates will be paid to prescription drug plans in a year that are attributable to the standardized bid amount (taking into account amounts paid by the Secretary and enrollees and the application of risk adjustment). The national average monthly bid amount is a weighted average of standardized bid amounts for each prescription drug plan and each MA–PD plan. It does not take into account bids submitted for MSA plans, MA private fee-for-service plans, specialized MA plans for special needs beneficiaries, PACE programs, and reasonable cost reimbursement contracts. Once the base beneficiary premium is calculated, it is adjusted up or down, as appropriate, to reflect differences between it and the geographically-adjusted national average monthly bid amount. It is further increased for any supplemental benefits and decreased if the individual is entitled to a low-income subsidy. The premium is uniform for all persons enrolled in the plan, except for those receiving low-income subsidies or those subject to a late enrollment penalty.

Late enrollment penalties would be applied to beneficiaries who failed to maintain creditable coverage for a period of 63 days (within a continuous period of eligibility), beginning on the day after the individual's initial enrollment period and ending on the date of enrollment in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan. The amount of the penalty is equal to the amount that is the greater of what the Secretary determines is actuarially sound or 1 percent of the national average monthly beneficiary basic premium (not geographically adjusted) for each uncovered month.

The provision specifies that an individual is considered to have had creditable prescription drug coverage if the individual establishes that he or she had coverage under one of the following: (1) prescription drug plan or MA–PD; (2) Medicaid; (3) group health plan, including a Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) plan and a qualified retiree prescription drug plan; (4) state pharmaceutical assistance program; (5) veterans coverage of prescription drugs; (6) prescription drug coverage under a Medigap plan; (7) military coverage including TRICARE; and 8) other coverage the Secretary determines is appropriate. Coverage meets the definition of creditable coverage only if the actuarial value of prescription drug coverage equals or exceeds the actuarial value of such coverage under standard prescription drug coverage. Individuals could apply to the Secretary to waive the requirement that such coverage be at least equivalent to benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan if they could establish that they were not adequately informed that the coverage did not provide such level of coverage. The Secretary will establish procedures for the documentation of creditable prescription drug coverage. Entities offering creditable coverage would be required to provide disclosure that the coverage does not meet the requirement and the fact that the eligible individual could face late enrollment penalties.

Beneficiary premium payments may be paid directly to the PDP sponsor or MA organization. Alternatively the beneficiary has the option of having the amount withheld from his or her Social Security payment or having payment made through an electronic funds transfer mechanism. Payments withheld are to be paid to the PDP sponsor; however, in the case of late enrollment penalties only that portion attributable to increased actuarial costs is to be paid to the plan.

Premium and Cost-Sharing Subsidies for Low-Income Subsidy Individuals (New Section 1860D–14 of the Conference agreement; New section 1860D–7 of House bill; New Section 1860D–19 of Senate bill).

Present Law

Some low-income aged and disabled Medicare beneficiaries are also eligible for full or partial coverage under Medicaid. Medicaid is a federal-state program, which provides health insurance coverage to certain low-income individuals. Within broad federal guidelines, each state sets its own eligibility criteria, including income eligibility standards. Persons meeting the state standards are entitled to full coverage under Medicaid. Persons entitled to full Medicaid protection generally have all of their health care expenses met by a combination of Medicare and Medicaid. For these ''dual eligibles,'' Medicare pays first for services both programs cover. Medicaid picks up Medicare cost-sharing charges and provides protection against the costs of services generally not covered by Medicare. Perhaps the most important service for the majority of dual eligibles is prescription drugs. These dual eligibles typically have comprehensive drug coverage with only nominal cost-sharing.

Federal law specifies several population groups that are entitled to more limited Medicaid protection. These are qualified Medicare beneficiaries (QMBs), specified low income beneficiaries (SLMBs), and certain qualified individuals. QMBs and SLMBs are not entitled to Medicaid's prescription drug benefit unless they are also entitled to full Medicaid coverage under their state's Medicaid program. Qualifying individuals are never entitled to Medicaid drug coverage (because, by definition, they are not eligible for full Medicaid benefits).

Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries (QMBs) are aged or disabled persons with incomes at or below the federal poverty level. In 2003, the monthly level is $769 for an individual and $1,030 for a couple. ($9,228 per year for an individual and $12,360 per year for a couple). The qualifying levels are higher than the HHS federal poverty guidelines because, by law, $20 per month of unearned income, rounded to the next dollar, is disregarded in the calculation. QMBs must also have assets below $4,000 for an individual and $6,000 for a couple. QMBs are entitled to have their Medicare cost-sharing charges, including the Part B premium, paid by the Federal-state Medicaid program. Medicaid protection is limited to payment of Medicare cost-sharing charges (i.e., the Medicare beneficiary is not entitled to coverage of Medicaid plan services unless the individual is otherwise entitled to Medicaid).

Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiaries (SLMBs) are persons who meet the QMB criteria, except that their income is over the QMB limit. The SLMB limit is 120% of the federal poverty level. In 2003, the monthly income limits are $918 for an individual and $1,232 for a couple ($11,016 per year for an individual and $14,784 for a couple). Medicaid protection is limited to payment of the Medicare Part B premium (i.e., the Medicare beneficiary is not entitled to coverage of Medicaid plan services unless the individual is otherwise entitled to Medicaid.)

Qualifying Individuals (QI–1s) are persons who meet the QMB criteria, except that their income is between 120% and 135% of poverty. The monthly income limit for QI–1 for an individual is $1,031 and for a couple $1,384 ($12,372 per year for an individual and $16,608 for a couple). Medicaid protection for these persons is limited to payment of the monthly Medicare Part B premium. In general, Medicaid payments are shared between the federal government and the states according to a matching formula. However, expenditures under the QI–1 program are paid 100% by the federal government (from the Part B trust fund) up to the state's allocation level. A state is only required to cover the number of persons which would bring its spending on these population groups in a year up to its allocation level. This temporary program, originally slated to end September 30, 2002, was extended through March 31, 2004 by P.L. 108–89.

Eligibility determinations for Medicaid, QMB, SLMB, and QI–1 programs are made by the states.

House Bill

The New Section 1860D–7 would provide income-related subsidies for low-income individuals. Low-income persons would receive a premium subsidy (based on the value of standard coverage). Individuals with incomes below 135% of poverty would have a subsidy equal to 100% of the value of standard drug coverage provided under the plan. For individuals between 135% and 150% of poverty, there would be a sliding scale premium subsidy ranging from 100% of such value at 135% of poverty to 0% of such value at 150% of poverty. For those with incomes under 135% of poverty, beneficiary cost-sharing for spending up to the initial coverage limit would be reduced to an amount not to exceed $2 for a multiple source or generic drug and $5 for a non-preferred drug. Sponsors and entities could not charge individuals receiving cost-sharing subsidies more than $5 per prescription. (Beginning in 2007, these amounts would be increased by the percentage increase in per capita beneficiary drug costs.) Sponsors and entities could reduce to zero the cost-sharing otherwise applicable for generic drugs.

In 2006, persons eligible for low-income subsidies would have to have resources at or below three times the level applicable for the Supplemental Security Income program (i.e. $6,000 for an individual and $9,000 for a couple). Beginning in 2007, these amounts would be increased by the annual percentage increase in the consumer price index.

The determination of whether an individual was a subsidy eligible individual, and the amount of the subsidy, would be made by the State Medicaid program or the Social Security Administration. Such funds as necessary would be appropriated to the Social Security Administration. Individuals not in the 50 states or the District of Columbia could not be subsidy eligible individuals but could be eligible for financial assistance with drug costs under new Section 1935(e) added by Section 103.

The premium subsidy amount would be defined as the benchmark premium amount for the qualified prescription drug coverage that the beneficiary selects whether offered by a PDP plan or an MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan in the area. The benchmark premium amount for a plan means the premium amount for enrollment under the plan (without regard to any subsidies or late enrollment penalties) for standard coverage (or alternative coverage if the actuarial value was equivalent). If a plan provided alternative coverage with a higher actuarial value than that for standard coverage, the benchmark amount would bear the same ratio to the total premium as the actuarial value of standard coverage was to the actuarial value of alternative coverage.

The Administrator would provide a process whereby the Administrator would notify the PDP sponsor or MA Rx or EFFS Rx entity that an individual was eligible for a subsidy and the amount of the subsidy. The sponsor or entity would reduce the premiums or cost-sharing otherwise imposed by the amount of the subsidy. The Administrator would periodically, and on a timely basis, reimburse the sponsor or entity for the amount of the reductions.

Part D benefits would be primary to any coverage available under Medicaid. The Administrator would be required to develop and implement a plan for the coordination of Part D benefits and Medicaid benefits. Particular attention would be given to coordination of payments and preventing fraud and abuse. The Administrator would be required to involve the Secretary, the States, the data processing industry, pharmacists, pharmaceutical manufacturers, and other experts in the development and administration of the plan.

Senate Bill

Medicaid beneficiaries eligible for medical and drug benefits under their state Medicaid program (including the medically needy) would continue to receive drug benefits through Medicaid. Persons meeting the definition of QMB, SLMB, or QI–1, and not eligible for Medicaid medical and drug benefits, as well as other persons below 160% of the federal poverty level, would receive their drug benefits through Part D. They would receive assistance for the Part D premium and cost-sharing charges.

QMBs, SLMBs and QI–1s would have a 100% premium subsidy for premiums provided the plan premium was at or below the national weighted average premium (or the lowest premium in the area if none was below the national weighted average).

The benefit package for the QMB population would be defined as having a zero deductible, cost-sharing of 2.5% for costs below the initial coverage limit; 5.0% cost-sharing for costs above the initial coverage limit and below the annual catastrophic limit, and 2.5% cost-sharing for costs above the catastrophic limit. The benefit package for the SLMB and QI–1 population would be defined as having a zero deductible, 5.0% cost-sharing for costs below the initial coverage limit; 10.0% cost-sharing for costs above the initial coverage limit and below the annual catastrophic limit, and 2.5% cost-sharing for costs above the catastrophic limit. Plans could waive or reduce cost-sharing otherwise applicable.

Persons with incomes below 160% of poverty, not otherwise eligible for low-income benefits would have a sliding scale premium subsidy ranging from 100% of the premium at 135% of poverty to 0% at 160% of poverty with no additional premium costs provided the plan premium was at or below the national weighted average premium (or the lowest premium in the area if none was below the national weighted average). The benefit package for this population would be defined as having a $50 deductible in 2006 (indexed in subsequent years by the annual percentage increase in average per capita Medicare drug expenditures), 10.0% cost-sharing for costs below the initial coverage limit; 20.0% cost-sharing for costs above the initial coverage limit and below the annual catastrophic limit, and 10.0% cost-sharing for costs above the catastrophic limit. Plans could waive or reduce cost-sharing otherwise applicable.

QMBs, SLMBs and QI–1s and other Part D enrollees with incomes below 160% of poverty could enroll in MedicareAdvantage and receive their low-income assistance through such plans.

Beginning November 1, 2005, eligibility for low-income individuals would be determined by states. The Administrator would implement a process to notify the eligible entity or MedicareAdvantage plan that the individual was eligible for a cost-sharing subsidy and the amount of the subsidy. The entity would reduce the applicable cost-sharing and submit information to the Administrator on the amount of the reduction. The Administrator would periodically and on a timely basis reimburse the entity or organization for the amount of the reductions.

Beginning January 1, 2009, to the extent a state had not already eliminated application of an asset test, it would be required to permit individuals to make a self-declaration that assets did not exceed $10,000 for an individual or $20,000 for a couple. In subsequent years, these amounts would be increased by the increase in the consumer price index. The Secretary would develop a model declaration form.

Conference Agreement

New Section 1860D–14 of the conference agreement provides premium and cost-sharing subsidies for low-income subsidy-eligible individuals. There are groups of subsidy eligible individuals. The first group is composed of persons who: (1) are enrolled in a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan; (2) have incomes below 135% of poverty; and (3) have resources in 2006 below $6,000 for an individual and $9,000 for a couple (increased in future years by the percentage increase in the CPI), or (4) who is a full benefit dual eligible, regardless whether that person meets other eligibility standards. The second group of subsidy eligible individuals are persons meeting the same requirements, except that the income level is 150% of poverty and an alternative resources standard may be used; this alternative standard in 2006 is $10,000 for an individual and $20,000 for a couple (increased in future years by the percentage increase in the CPI.)

Individuals with incomes below 135% of poverty, and resources meeting the requirement for the first group, would have a premium subsidy equal to 100% of the low-income benchmark premium amount, but in no case higher than the actual premium amount for basic coverage under the plan. The low-income benchmark premium amount for a region equals either: (1) the weighted average of the basic premiums, if all prescription drug plans are offered by the same PDP sponsor; or (2) the weighted average of premiums for prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans, if plans in the region are offered by more than one PDP sponsor. Other low-income subsidy eligible persons will have a sliding scale premium subsidy ranging from 100% of such value at 135% of poverty to 0% of such value at 150% of poverty. Persons below 135% of poverty would have a premium subsidy for any late enrollment penalty equal to 80 percent for the first 60 months and 100 percent thereafter.

Beneficiaries in both groups are entitled to cost-sharing subsidies. Individuals with incomes below 135% of poverty, and resources meeting the requirement for the first group will have no deductible, cost-sharing for all costs up to the out-of-pocket threshold of $2 for a generic drug or preferred multiple source and $5 for brand name or non-preferred drug. Institutionalized dual eligibles will have no cost sharing. Full benefit dual eligibles with incomes under 100 percent of poverty will have cost sharing up to the out-of-pocket threshold of up to $1 for a generic drug or preferred multiple source and $3 for a brand name or nonpreferred drug. Other low-income subsidy eligible persons will have a $50 deductible, 15 percent cost-sharing for all costs up to the out-of-pocket limit, and cost-sharing for costs above the out-of-pocket threshold of $2 for a generic drug or preferred multiple source and $5 for brand name or non-preferred drug. The deductible and cost-sharing amounts are increased each year beginning in 2007 by the annual percentage increase in per capita beneficiary expenditures for Part D covered drugs except for $1 and $3 cost-sharing, which will increase by the percentage increase in CPI.

Eligibility determinations are to be made under the state Medicaid plan for the state or by the Commissioner of Social Security. Conferees believe that more beneficiaries will enroll in the new Part D benefit if given the option to apply at the Social Security office as well as the welfare office. Low-income subsidy applications, information, and application assistance shall be available to beneficiaries in all Social Security offices and State Medicaid offices. It is the intent of the conferees that while enrollment at the SSA offices is important, both Medicaid programs and the Social Security Administration should engage in outreach activities to encourage eligible individuals to apply for subsidies under this section. The determinations shall remain effective for a period determined by the Secretary, not to exceed one year. Redeterminations or appeals are to be made in the same manner as such redeterminations and appeals are made by state Medicaid plans or the Commissioner for the supplemental security income program, whichever is appropriate.

Full dual eligible persons are to be treated as subsidy eligible persons; the Secretary may provide that other Medicaid beneficiaries be treated as subsidy eligible. Otherwise, income is to be determined in the same manner as determinations are made for the QMB program; however, Section 1902(r)(2) which permits the use of less restive methodologies does not apply for determining whether an individual is a low-income subsidy eligible individual. However, Section 1902(r)(2) continues to apply to all state Medicaid eligibility determinations. The Secretary is to develop a model simplified application form and process for determining and verifying eligibility. The Commissioner may only require submission of statements from financial institutions for an application for low-income subsidies to be considered complete. No other documentary evidence may be required with the submission of the application. The Secretary is permitted to verify information submitted on the application.

The Secretary will provide a process whereby the Secretary will notify the PDP sponsor or MA organization that an individual is eligible for a subsidy and the amount of the subsidy. The sponsor or entity would reduce the premiums or cost-sharing otherwise imposed by the amount of the subsidy. The Administrator will periodically, and on a timely basis, reimburse the sponsor or entity for the amount of the reductions. Reimbursement for cost-sharing subsidies may be computed on a capitated basis.

The residents of the territories are not eligible for low-income subsidies. However, they may be eligible for financial assistance under the new section 1935(e), as added by Section 103.

Subsidies for All Medicare Beneficiaries for Qualified Prescription Drug Coverage (New Section 1860D–15 of Conference agreement; New Section 1860D–8 of House bill; New Sections 1860D–20, 1860D–11, and 1860D–16 of Senate bill).

House Bill

a. Subsidies. New Section 1860D–8 would provide for subsidy payments to qualifying entities. The stated purpose of such payments would be to reduce premiums for all beneficiaries consistent with an overall subsidy level of 73%, reduce adverse selection among plans, and promote the participation of PDP sponsors. Such payments would be made as direct subsidies and through reinsurance. The section would constitute budget authority in advance of appropriations and represent the obligation of the Administrator to provide for subsidy payments specified under the section.

Direct subsidies would be made for individuals enrolled in a PDP, MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan, and equal to 43% of the national weighted average monthly bid amount. Each year, the Administrator would compute a national average monthly bid amount equal to the average of the benchmark bid amounts for each drug plan (not including those offered by private-fee-for service entities) adjusted to add back in the value of reinsurance subsidies. The benchmark bid amount would be defined as the portion of the bid attributable to standard coverage or actuarial equivalent coverage. The bid amount would be a weighted average with the weight for each plan equal to the average number of beneficiaries enrolled in the plan for the previous year. (The Administrator would establish a procedure for determining the weighted average for 2005).

Reinsurance payments would be made for specified costs incurred in providing prescription drug coverage for individuals enrolled in either a PDP plan, or a MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan. The Administrator would provide for reinsurance payments to PDP sponsors, and entities offering MA Rx or EFFS Rx plans. Reinsurance payments would be provided for 30% of an individual's allowable drug costs over the initial reinsurance threshold ($1,000 in 2006) but not over the initial coverage limit ($2,000 in 2006). Reinsurance, not to exceed 80% would also be provided for costs over the out-of-pocket threshold ($3,500 in 2006). In the aggregate, reinsurance payments would equal 30% of total payments made by qualifying entities for standard coverage.

For purposes of calculating reinsurance payments, allowable costs would be defined as the portion of gross covered prescription drug costs that were actually paid by the plan (net of discounts, chargebacks, and average percentage rebates), but in no case more than the part of such costs that would have been paid by the plan if the drug coverage under the plan were standard coverage. Gross covered drug costs would be defined as costs (including administrative costs) incurred under the plan for covered prescription drugs dispensed during the year, including costs related to the deductible, whether paid by the enrollee or the plan, regardless of whether coverage under the plan exceeded standard coverage and regardless of when the payment for the drugs was made.

The Administrator would be required to estimate the total reinsurance subsidy payments that would be made during the year (including those made to qualified retiree plans) and total benefit payments to be made by qualifying entities for standard coverage during the year. The Administrator would proportionately adjust payments such that total subsidy payments during the year were equal to 30% of total payments made by qualifying plans for standard coverage during the year. The Administrator could, in a budget neutral manner, adjust direct subsidy payments in order to avoid risk selection. The payment method would be determined by the Administrator who could use an interim payment system based on estimates. Payments would be made from the Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund.

b. Risk corridors. No provision.

Senate Bill

a. Subsidies. New Section 1860D–20 of the Senate bill would provide for reinsurance payments on behalf of: (1) persons enrolled in a PDP; (2) MA plan (except for MSA plan or private fee-for-service plan not providing qualified coverage); (3) persons eligible for but not enrolled in Part D and covered under a qualified retiree plan; (4) persons eligible for but not enrolled in Part D and covered under a qualified state pharmaceutical assistance program. Qualified retiree plans and state pharmaceutical assistance programs would have to provide coverage at least equal to the actuarial value of standard coverage. Reinsurance payments would be made to plans in the case of individuals whose spending exceeded the out-of-pocket limit. Payments to plans would equal 80% (65% in the case of persons in a state pharmaceutical assistance program) of allowable drug costs exceeding the limit. Allowable costs would be equal to actual costs above the limit. Entities would be required to notify the Administrator of the total actual costs (if any) incurred for providing benefits for an individual after the individual exceeded the out-of-pocket threshold. Administrative costs, costs for coverage in excess of the standard benefit, and discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, or other price concessions or direct or indirect remunerations would not be included. Payment methods would be determined by the Administrator. Such methods could include the use of interim payments.

Any plan sponsor that was not an employer would be required to redistribute reinsurance payments to employers contributing to the plan maintained by the sponsor; the payments would be allocated proportionately among all employers contributing to the plan.

The New Section 1860D–11 would require the Administrator to establish an appropriate method for adjusting payments to plans to take into account variations in costs based on the differences in actuarial risk of different enrollees being served. Any risk adjustment would be designed in a budget neutral manner. The Administrator could take into account similar methodologies used to adjust payments for Medicare Advantage organizations. The Administrator would be required to publish such risk adjusters not later than April 15 each year (beginning in 2005) to be used for computing payments to plans for standard coverage.

New Section 1860D–16 would require the Administrator to pay each entity offering a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan an amount equal to the full monthly approved premium, with appropriate risk adjusters. Payment terms would be determined by the Administrator and be based on terms used for Medicare Advantage plans. Payments to plans would be adjusted to account for differences in actuarial risk of different enrollees being served.

b. Risk corridors. New section 1860D–16 would require entities to notify the Administrator for each year (beginning in 2007) of the total actual costs the entity incurred in providing standard coverage in the preceding year. Total actual costs would reflect total payments made to pharmacies and other entities for coverage and the aggregate amount of discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, or other price concessions or direct or indirect remunerations made to the entity. The notification would not include spending for administrative costs, amounts spent for coverage in excess of standard coverage, or amounts for which the entity subsequently received reinsurance payments.

The provision would establish risk corridors, which would be defined as specified percentages above and below a target amount. The target amount would be defined as the total of plan premiums minus a percentage (negotiated between the Administrator and the entity) for administrative costs. No payment adjustment would be made if allowable costs were not more than the first threshold upper limit or less than the first threshold lower limit for the year, i.e. if the plans were within the first risk corridor. A portion of any plan spending above or below these levels would be subject to risk adjustments. If allowable costs exceeded the first threshold upper limit, then payments would be increased. If allowable costs were below the first threshold lower limit, payments would be reduced.

During 2006 and 2007, plans would be at full risk for drug spending within 2.5% above or below the target. Plans would be at risk for 25% of spending exceeding 2.5% (first threshold upper limit) and below 5% of the target (second threshold upper limit). That is their payments would equal 75% of the allowable costs for spending in this range. They would be at risk for 10% of the spending exceeding 5% of the target. That is their payments would equal 90% of the allowable costs for spending in this range. Conversely, if plans fell below the target, they would share the savings with the government. They would have to refund 75% of the savings if costs fell between 2.5% and 5% below the target level, and 90% of any amounts below 5% of the target.

A special transition corridor would be established in the first two years. The Administrator would make a payment adjustment if the Administrator determined that 60% or more of all participating plans (including Medicare Advantage plans) representing at least 60% of covered beneficiaries had allowable costs that were more than 2.5% above the target. Risk corridor payments would equal 90% of any spending greater than 2.5% of the target but below 5% of the target.

For 2008–2011, the risk corridors would be modified. Plans would be at full risk for drug spending within 5.0% above or below the target level. Plans would be at risk for 50% of spending exceeding 5.0% and below 10.0% of the target level. They would be at risk for 10% of the spending exceeding 10% of the target level. Payments would be increased by 50% of allowable costs exceeding the first threshold upper limit and 90% for costs exceeding the second threshold upper limit. Conversely, if plans fell below the target, they would share the savings with the government. They would have to refund 50% of the savings if costs fell between 5% and 10% below the target level, and 90% of any amounts below 90% of the target. For years after 2011, the Administrator would establish risk corridors. The first threshold risk percentage could not be less than 5% and the second threshold risk percentage could not be less than 10%.

Administrative costs would be not be included in the calculation of whether or nor plan spending fell within a particular risk corridor. Administrative costs would be negotiated separately, on a plan by plan basis, with the Administrator. Administrative costs would be subject to performance risk.

For purposes of making risk corridor calculations, allowable costs would be based on actual costs reported by the plan.

The Administrator could require disclosure of any data as needed to administer the benefit. The Administrator would have the right to inspect and audit any books and records of the entity pertaining to amounts reported for drug spending. Information could be used by officers and employees of the Department of Health and Human Services, but only to the extent necessary to carry out this section.

The Administrator would be required to establish a stabilization reserve fund, within the Prescription Drug Account. Amounts in this fund would be made available to eligible entities beginning with their 2008 contract year. Payments to the fund would be determined as follows. If the target amount for a plan for any year 2006–2010 exceeded applicable costs by more than 3% for the year, the entity would pay the Administrator the amount of such excess; the Administrator would deposit such amount in the fund on behalf of the entity. Applicable costs would be defined as the sum of allowable costs and the amount by which monthly payments were reduced through application of the risk corridor provisions. At appropriate intervals, the Administrator would notify a participating entity of the balances in any of its stabilization accounts. Beginning in 2008, entities would be permitted to use account funds to stabilize or reduce plan premiums. The accounts would expire after 5 years. Any amounts not used by an eligible entity or that was deposited for use by an entity that no longer had a Part D contract would revert to the use of the Prescription Drug Account.

Conference agreement

a. Subsidies. New Section 1860D–15 of the conference agreement provides for subsidy payments to qualifying entities. Such payments would reduce premiums for all beneficiaries consistent with an overall subsidy level of 74% for basic coverage, to reduce adverse selection among plans, and to promote the participation of PDP sponsors and MA organizations. Such payments would be made as direct subsidies and through insurance.

The direct monthly per capita subsidy amount is equal to the plan's standardized bid amount adjusted for health status and risk and reduced by the base beneficiary premium as adjusted to reflect the difference between the bid and the national average bid.

Reinsurance payments, equal to 80% of allowable costs, would also be provided for an enrollee whose costs exceeded the annual out-of-pocket threshold ($3,600 in 2006). For purposes of calculating reinsurance payments, allowable costs would be defined as the portion of gross covered prescription drug costs that were actually paid by the plan (net of discounts, chargebacks, and average percentage rebates), but in no case more than the part of such costs that would have been paid by the plan if the drug coverage under the plan were basic coverage or, in the case of supplemental coverage, standard coverage. Gross covered drug costs would be defined as costs (not including administrative costs) incurred under the plan for covered prescription drugs dispensed during the year, including costs related to the deductible, whether paid by the enrollee or the plan, regardless of whether coverage under the plan exceeded basic coverage and regardless of when the payment for the drugs was made.

The Secretary is required to establish an appropriate method for adjusting the standardized bid amount to take into account variations in costs for basic coverage based on the differences in actuarial risk of different enrollees being served. Any risk adjustment would be designed in a budget neutral manner. The Secretary may take into account similar methodologies used to adjust payments for MA organizations. The Secretary would require PDP sponsors and MA organizations offering MA–PD plans to submit data. The Secretary is required to publish such risk adjusters at the same time as risk adjusters are published for MA organizations.

The Secretary is required to establish an appropriate method for adjusting the national average monthly bid amount per capita subsidy amount to take into account differences. If the Secretary determines that price variations are de minimis, no adjustment is to be made. Any adjustments must be applied in a budget neutral manner.

The Secretary is to establish payment methods, which may include interim payments. Payments are conditional upon the PDP sponsor and MA organization furnishing necessary information to the Secretary. Information may be used by officers and employees of HHS only for the purposes of and to the extent necessary to carry out the section.

c. Risk corridors. New Section 1860D–15 of the conference agreement provides for the establishment of risk corridors, which are defined as specified percentages above and below a target amount. The target amount is defined as total payments paid to the plan, taking into account the amount paid by the Secretary and enrollees, based on the standardized bid amount, risk adjusted, and reduced by total administrative expenses assumed in the bid. No payment adjustments will be made if adjusted allowable costs for the plan are at least equal to the first threshold lower limit of the first risk corridor but not greater than the first threshold upper limit of the risk corridor for the year, i.e. if the plans are within the first risk corridor. A portion of any plan spending above or below these levels is subject to risk adjustment. If adjusted allowable costs exceed the first threshold upper limit, then payments are increased. If adjusted allowable costs are below the first threshold lower limit, then payments are reduced. Adjusted allowable costs are reduced by reinsurance and subsidy payments. Payment adjustments would not affect beneficiary premiums.

During 2006 and 2007, plans would be at full risk for adjusted allowable risk corridor costs within 2.5% above or below the target. Plans with adjusted allowable costs above this level would receive increased payments. If their costs were between 2.5% of the target (first threshold upper limit) and 5% of the target (second threshold upper limit), they would be at risk for 25% of the increased amount; that is their payments would equal 75% of adjusted allowable costs for spending in this range. If their costs were above 5% of the target they would be at risk for 25% of the costs between the first and second threshold upper limits and 20% of the costs above that amount. That is their payments would equal 80% of the adjusted allowable costs over the second threshold upper limit. Conversely, if plans fell below the target, they would share the savings with the government. They would have to refund 75% of the savings if costs fell between 2.5% and 5% below the target level, and 80% of any amounts below 5% of the target.

A higher risk sharing percentage would apply in 2006 and 2007 if the Secretary determines that 60 percent of prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans, representing at least 60 percent of beneficiaries enrolled in such plans have adjusted allowable costs that are more than the first threshold upper limit. In this case, payment to plans would equal 90 percent of adjusted allowable costs between the first and second upper threshold limits.

For 2008–2011, the risk corridors would be modified. Plans would be at full risk for drug spending within 5% above or below the target level. Plans would be at risk for 50% of spending exceeding 5% and below 10% of the target level. Additionally, they would be at risk for 20% of any spending exceeding 10% of the target level. Payments would be increased by 50% of adjusted allowable costs exceeding the first threshold upper limit and 80% for any costs exceeding the second threshold upper limit. Conversely, if plans fell below the target, they would share the savings with the government. They would have to refund 50% of the savings if costs fell between 5% and 10% below the target level, and 80% of any amounts below 10% of the target. For years after 2011, the Administrator would establish risk corridors. The first threshold risk percentage could not be less than 5% and the second threshold risk percentage could not be less than 10% of the target amount. Conferees intend the risk corridors to create incentives for plans to enter the market.

If allowable risk corridor costs are less than the first threshold lower limit, but not greater than the first threshold upper limit for the plan year, then no payment adjustment is made.

Plans are at full financial risk for all spending for supplemental prescription drug coverage.

The subsidy and risk corridor provisions would not apply to fallback plans.

Medicare Prescription Drug Account in the Federal Supplementary Insurance Trust Fund (New Section 1860D–16 of Conference Agreement; New Section 1860D–9 of House Bill; New Section 1860D–25 of Senate Bill).

Present Law

Medicare Part B is financed by a combination of enrollee premiums and federal general revenues. Income from these sources is credited to the Federal Supplementary Insurance Trust Fund. Payments are made from the Trust Fund for Part B benefits.

House Bill

New Section 1860D–9 would create a Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund. Requirements applicable to the Part B trust fund would apply in the same manner to the Drug Trust Fund as they apply to the Part B Trust Fund. The Managing Trustee would pay from the Fund, from time to time, low-income subsidy payments, subsidy payments, and payments for administrative expenses. The Managing Trustee would transfer, from time to time, to the Medicaid account amounts attributable to allowable increases in administrative costs associated with identifying and qualifying beneficiaries eligible for low-income subsidies. Amounts deposited into the Trust Fund would include the federal amount which would otherwise be payable by Medicaid except for the fact that Medicaid becomes the secondary payer of drug benefits for the dual eligibles. The provision would authorize appropriations to the Trust Fund an amount equal to the amount of payments from the Trust Fund reduced by the amount transferred to the Trust Fund.

The provision would specify that any provision of law relating to the solvency of the trust fund would take into account the Fund and the amounts received by, or payable from, the Fund.

Senate Bill

A separate account, known as the Prescription Drug Account, would be established within the Part B Trust Fund. Funds in this Account would be kept separate from other funds within the Trust Fund. Payments would be made from the Account to eligible entities and Medicare Advantage plans and for low-income subsidies, reinsurance payments, and administrative expenses. Appropriations would be made to the Account equal to the amount of payments and transfers made from the Account.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement establishes a Medicare Prescription Drug Account in the Part B Trust Fund. Funds in this Account will be kept separate from other funds within the Trust Fund. Payments will be made from the Account for low-income subsidies, subsidy payments, payments to qualified retiree prescription drug plans, and administrative expenses. Transfers would be made to the Medicaid account for increased administrative costs. States would make payments to the Account for dual eligibles as provided for under Section 1935(c). Appropriations would be made to the Account equal to the amount of payments and transfers from the Account. In order to ensure prompt payments in the early months of the program, there are appropriated such amounts the Secretary certified as necessary, not to exceed 10% of estimated expenditures for 2006.

Subpart 3—Application to Medicare Advantage Program and Treatment of Employer-Sponsored Programs and Other Prescription Drug Plans

Application to Medicare Advantage Program and Related Managed Care Programs (New Section 1860D–21 of Conference agreement; Section 101 of House bill; Sections 201 and 205 of Senate bill).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

Beginning January 1, 2006, at least one MA plan offered by an MA organization in an area would be required to: (1) offer qualified drug coverage under Part D; (2) meet the beneficiary protections outlined in the new Section 1860D–3, including requirements relating to information dissemination as well as grievance and appeals; and (3) provide the same information required from prescription drug plan sponsors when submitting a bid, unless waived by the Administrator. MA organizations providing qualified drug coverage would receive low-income subsidy payments and direct and reinsurance subsidies. A single premium would be established for drug and non-drug coverage.

There would be exceptions for the prescription drug coverage offered by private fee-for-service (PFFS) plans. PFFS plans would not be required to negotiate prices or discounts; however, to the extent a plan did so, it would be required to meet related Part D requirements.

Senate Bill

In addition to current law requirements, Medicare beneficiaries would also be required to be enrolled in the new Part D (prescription drug program) in order to enroll in MA (except for PFFS).

Beginning on January 1, 2006, MA plans, other than PFFS and MSA plans, would be required to offer each enrollee qualified prescription drug coverage that met the requirements for such coverage under the MA program and under Part D of Medicare. An MA plan could offer qualified prescription drug coverage that exceeded the coverage required under Part D, as long as it also offered an MA plan in the area that provided only the required coverage. This provision would also establish payments to each MA organization offering an MA plan that provided qualified prescription drug coverage, including a low-income drug subsidy.

Conference Agreement

Beginning January 1, 2006, an MA organization cannot offer an MA plan in an area unless either that plan (or another MA plan offered by the organization in the same service area) includes required prescription drug coverage, and could not offer prescription drug coverage (other than that required under parts A and B) to an enrollee under an MSA plan or under another MA plan unless such drug coverage was qualified prescription drug coverage and unless the requirements of this section, with respect to such coverage are met. Qualified coverage is basic coverage or qualified coverage that provides supplemental drug benefits so long as there is no MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium under the plan.

An individual enrolled in a health benefits plan would not be considered to have been deemed to make an election into an MA–PD plan, unless the plan provides prescription drug coverage. An individual enrolled in an MA plan would not be considered to have been deemed to make an election into an MA–PD plan, unless: (1) for purposes of the January 1, 2006 election, the MA plan provided as of December 31, 2005 any prescription drug coverage; or (2) for periods after January 1, 2006, such MA plan was an MA–PD plan. An individual who discontinues enrollment in an MA–PD plan during his/her first year of eligibility could enroll in a prescription drug plan under part D at the time of their election of coverage under original Medicare fee-for-service program.

If an individual is enrolled in an MA plan (other than an MSA plan) that does not provide qualified prescription drug coverage, and the organization discontinues offering all MA plans without prescription drug coverage, then the individual would be deemed to have elected the original Medicare fee-for-service program, unless the individual affirmatively enrolls in an MA–PD plan. This disenrollment would be treated as an involuntary termination of the MA plan.

The provisions of this part would apply under Part C of Medicare with respect to prescription drug coverage provided under MA–PD plans in lieu of other Part C provisions that would apply to such coverage. The Secretary could waive these provisions to the extent that they duplicate provision under Part C or as may be necessary in order to improve coordination. The Secretary may also waive the pharmacy network requirements of section 1860D–4(b)(1)(C) in the case of an MA–PD plan that provides access (other than mail order) to qualified prescription drug coverage through pharmacies owned and operated by the MA organizations. The Secretary must determine the organization's pharmacy network is sufficient to provide comparable access for enrollees under the plan.

Private fee-for-service plans (PFFS) plans would not be required to negotiate prices or discounts; however, to the extent a plan did so, it would be required to meet related Part D requirements. If the PFFS plan provided coverage for drugs purchased from all pharmacies, without additional cost-sharing, requirements for pharmacy access and public disclosure of pharmaceutical prices for equivalent drugs would not apply. For PFFS plans, the drug utilization management program and the medication therapy management program would not be required. For PFFS plans, the Secretary would determine the amount of reinsurance payment using a methodology that bases such amount on the Secretary's estimate of the amount of such payment that would be payable if the plan were an MA–PD plan and that takes into account the average reinsurance payment made for a population of similar risk under MA–PD plans. The risk corridor provisions would not apply, and plans would be exempt from negotiations on bid terms.

If an organization provides benefits under a reasonable cost reimbursement contract and also elects to provide qualified prescription drug coverage, then the provisions of this section and related provisions in part C would apply in the same manner as applied to local MA–PD plans. Individuals, who were not enrolled in the reasonable cost plan, could not enroll in the prescription drug plan. The bid of the reasonable cost plan would not be taken into account in computing any standardized bid amount under this section.

In general, the provisions of Part D and related provisions of Part C apply to PACE programs in the same manner as they apply to MA–PD plans. The organization may not enroll persons not enrolled in PACE. Bids are not taken into account in computing the standardized bid amount.

Special Rules for Employer-Sponsored Programs (New Section 1860D–22 of Conference agreement; New section 1860D–8 of House bill; New Section 1860D–21 and 1860D–22 of Senate bill).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

Under New section 1860D–8, special subsidy payments would be made to a ''qualified retiree prescription drug plan.'' A qualified plan would be defined as employment-based retiree health coverage (including coverage offered pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements) meeting certain requirements. The Administrator would have to determine that coverage had at least the same actuarial value as standard coverage. The sponsor (and the plan) would be required to maintain and provide access to records needed to ensure the adequacy of coverage and the accuracy of payments made. Further, the sponsor would be required to provide certifications of coverage. Payment could not be made for an individual unless: the individual was covered under the retiree plan, entitled to enroll under a PDP or MA Rx or EFFS Rx plan but elected not to. Subsidy payments would equal 28% of allowable costs between $250, but not greater than $5,000, indexed annually by the percentage increase in Medicare per capita prescription drug costs. The provision would clarify that nothing in the section would be construed as precluding an individual covered under an employment-based retiree plan from enrolling in a PDP plan or MA or EFFs plan or having the employment based plan from paying the premium. Employment-based supplemental coverage would be considered the primary payer for purposes of the Medicare secondary payment provisions.

Senate Bill

New Section 1860D–21 of the Senate bill would authorize the Administrator to make direct payments to sponsors of qualified retiree prescription drug plans (as defined under New Section 1860D–20) for each beneficiary enrolled in the plan who was not enrolled in Part D. The amount of the payment would equal the direct subsidy percent of the monthly national average premium for the year, as adjusted by risk adjusters. The direct subsidy percent would be 100% minus the applicable percent as defined under the new Section 1860D–17. The applicable percentage for an area would be 30% divided by: 1) 100%, minus two) a percentage equal to total reinsurance payments that would be made in a year divided by such amount plus total payments that would be made to plans in the year for standard coverage.

The Administrator would establish payment methods, which could include interim payments. Payments would be made from the Prescription Drug Account.

New Section 1860D–22 would require the Administrator to make direct payments to sponsors of qualified state pharmaceutical assistance programs for each beneficiary enrolled in the plan who was not enrolled in Part D. The amount of the payment would be calculated in the same way that such payments were calculated for retiree plans. Further, the Administrator would provide for additional payments in behalf of each person who would otherwise qualify for a low-income subsidy, if the individual were enrolled in Part D. The payment would equal the amount the Administrator estimates would have been paid under the subsidy provisions, but in no case more than the average payment made under the subsidy provisions for an individual in the same income group.

Conference agreement

New Section 1860D–22 of the conference agreement establishes special rules for employer-sponsored programs. Under certain conditions, the Secretary is required to make special subsidy payments to sponsors of qualified retiree prescription drug plans. These payments are to be made on behalf of an individual covered under the retiree plan, entitled to enroll under a PDP or MA–PD plan but elected not to. Subsidy payments will equal 28% of gross covered retiree plan-related prescription drug costs greater than $250 but not greater than $5,000, adjusted annually by the percentage increase in Medicare per capita prescription drug costs.

Qualified retiree prescription drug plans must be employment-based group health plans. Group health plans include welfare plans defined under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, federal and state governmental plans, including such plans as the Federal Employee Health Benefits program and CalPERS, collectively bargained plans, and church plans. Conferees expect that in the case of interpretive matters with regard to plan sponsors of group health plans, CMS will coordinate with the Department of Labor and Treasury Department for guidance. The sponsor must provide the Secretary with an attestation that the actuarial value of prescription drug coverage under the plan is at least equivalent to the actuarial value of standard prescription drug coverage. The sponsor, or administrator designated by the sponsor, shall maintain and afford the Secretary access to necessary records for the purpose of audits and other oversight activities. The sponsor is required to provide disclosure of information in accordance with disclosure of information on creditable coverage.

Nothing in the section is to be construed as precluding an individual covered under an employment-based retiree plan from enrolling in a PDP plan or MA–PD plan or having the employment-based plan from paying the premium. The PDP or MAPD plan would constitute primary coverage, not the employer. Employment-based retiree coverage may provide coverage that is better than standard coverage to retirees under a qualified retiree prescription drug plan. Employment-based retiree health coverage may provide coverage that is supplemental to benefits provided under a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan to enrollees in such plans. Nothing is to prevent employers from providing flexibility in benefit design and pharmacy access provisions for basic drug coverage so long as actuarial equivalence requirements are met.

About one-third of Medicare beneficiaries receive coverage for prescription drugs from their former employers. Retirees are generally happy with their coverage and want to keep it. But employer plans are under increasing pressure to drop or scale back coverage. In 1988, 66% of large employers provided health benefits. In 2002, that number slipped to just 34%. Costs for retiree health coverage rose 16.0% in 2002, while prescription drug expenditures increased by 11.8% last year, and most employers predict double-digit health inflation well into the future. Conferees believe the employer retiree subsidies included in the conference report will help employers retain and enhance their prescription drug coverage so that the current erosion in coverage would plateau or even improve. Absent this assistance, many more retirees will lose their employer sponsored coverage.

State Pharmaceutical Assistance Programs (New Section 1860D–23 of Conference agreement).

Present Law

A number of states currently have programs to provide low-income persons, not qualifying for Medicaid, with financial assistance in meeting their drug costs. The state programs differ substantially in both design and coverage.

Conference agreement

New Section 1860D–23 of the conference agreement requires the Secretary, by July 1, 2005, to establish requirements to ensure effective coordination between a Part D plan (both a prescription drug plan and MA–PD plan) and a state pharmaceutical assistance program (SPAP). The coordination requirements relate to payment of premiums and coverage and payment for supplemental drug benefits, and assistance with cost-sharing. Requirements must be included for enrollment file-sharing, claims processing, claims reconciliation reports, application of the catastrophic out-of-pocket protection, and other administrative procedures specified by the Secretary. Requirements are to be consistent with applicable law, to safeguard the privacy of any identifiable beneficiary information. The agreement provides that the requirements must include a method for the application by a Part D plan of specified funding amounts for enrolled beneficiaries for supplemental benefits. The Secretary is required, when developing the requirements, to consult with state programs, the PDP sponsors, MA organizations, States, pharmaceutical benefit managers, employers, data processing experts, pharmacists, pharmaceutical manufacturers, and other experts.

This legislation allows state pharmacy assistance programs to act as administrative intermediaries for the purpose of facilitating enrollment of SPAP members in prescription drug plans and in the discount card program.

A state pharmaceutical program that this provision applies to is one: (1) that provides financial assistance for the purchase or provision of supplemental prescription drug coverage on behalf of eligible individuals; and (2) which, in determining program eligibility and amount of payment, provides assistance to beneficiaries in all Part D plans and does not discriminate based on the Part D plan in which the individual is enrolled. A card used under Part D may also be used for benefits under the state program.

The agreement authorizes the Secretary, based on an approved application, to provide payments to state pharmaceutical assistance programs for the purpose of educating program beneficiaries about Part D coverage, providing technical assistance to facilitate selection and enrollment in plans, and other activities to promote effective coordination. The report provides $62.5 million in mandatory spending in each fiscal year 2005 and 2006 to help promote coordination between Medicare plans and SPAPs.

Coordination Requirements for Plans Providing Prescription Drug Coverage (New Section 1860D–24 of Conference agreement).

Present Law

Senate Bill

Conference Agreement

The New Section 1860D–24 of the conference agreement requires the Secretary to apply the coordination requirements established under the New Section 1860D–23 for state pharmaceutical assistance programs, to other prescription plans including Medicaid (including a plan operating under an 1115 waiver), group health plans, federal employees health benefits plan, military coverage (including TRICARE), and other coverage specified by the Secretary.

The coordination requirements include coordination of procedures to establish third-party reimbursement of out-of-pocket costs. The provision does not change the application of these procedures. The Secretary may impose user fees for the transmittal of information necessary for benefit coordination.

Medicare Prescription Drug Discount Card and Transitional Assistance Program (New Section 1860D–31 of Conference agreement; Section 105 of House bill; Section 111 of Senate Bill).

Present Law

On July 12, 2001, the President announced a new national drug discount card program for Medicare beneficiaries. Under this program, CMS would endorse drug card programs meeting certain requirements. This program was viewed as an interim step until a legislative reform package, including both a drug benefit and other Medicare reforms, was enacted. Implementation of the drug discount card program was suspended by court action.

House Bill

The provision would require the Secretary to establish a program to: (1) endorse prescription drug discount card programs meeting certain requirements; (2) provide for prescription drug accounts; and (3) make available information on such programs to beneficiaries. The Secretary would begin operation of the endorsement program within 90 days of enactment. The account part of the program would begin no later than September 2004. The Secretary would provide for an appropriate transition and termination of the program on January 1, 2006. The program would be voluntary.

Eligible beneficiaries would be defined as persons eligible under Part A or enrolled in Part B, but not enrolled in an MA plan offering qualified prescription drug coverage. The Secretary would establish a process through which an Part D eligible individual could make an election to enroll under the new Section 1807 with an endorsed program. The beneficiary would have to enroll for a year in order to receive the benefits for the year. An individual would, in general have only one opportunity for enrollment. This would occur during an initial, general enrollment period as soon as possible after enactment, and annually thereafter. The annual open enrollment periods would be coordinated with those for MA. An individual who enrolled in the new Section 1807, subsequently enrolled in an MA plan with drug coverage, and then discontinued such MA enrollment would be permitted to reenroll under Section 1807.

In general, eligible beneficiaries would not be permitted to enroll after their initial enrollment period (as defined under Part B). The Secretary would establish an open enrollment period for current beneficiaries.

The Secretary would establish a process through which an Part D eligible individual, enrolled under the new Section 1807, would select an eligible entity to provide access to negotiated prices. The entity would be one, which had been awarded a contract and served the state in which the beneficiary resided. Eligible entities would be pharmaceutical benefit management companies, wholesale and retail pharmacy delivery systems, insurers, MA organizations, other entities, or any combination of these.

The enrollment process, established by the Secretary, would use rules similar to those established for MA. Individuals could not select more than one entity at a time and, except for unusual circumstances (including changing residential setting, such as nursing home placement.) change the selection once a year. The process would provide for selecting eligible entities for individuals who enrolled in the New Section 1807, but failed to select an entity. Entities would compete for beneficiaries on the basis of discounts, formularies, pharmacy networks, and other services.

The Secretary would broadly disseminate information to eligible beneficiaries regarding enrollment, selection of eligible entities, and the coverage made available by entities. The enrollment fee would be $30 with the 2004 fee including any portion of 2003 covered by the program. The fee would be collected in the same manner as Part B premiums are collected from social security payments, except the collection would be made only once a year. States could pay the fee for some or all low-income enrollees in the state. No federal matching payments would be available. The Secretary would make 2/3 of the fee collected available to the eligible entity.

Each eligible entity would be required to issue a card and an enrollment number to each enrolled beneficiary and to provide for electronic methods to coordinate with prescription drug accounts established under the New Section 1807A.

Beneficiary protections would be established including guaranteed issue and nondiscrimination provisions. If an eligible entity served a state, it would be required to serve the entire state. Entities would be required to disseminate, to each beneficiary who selected the entity, summary information on negotiated prices, access to such prices through pharmacy networks, and how the formulary functioned. Upon request, entities would be required to provide general coverage, utilization, and grievance information. In addition, entities would be required to have a mechanism for providing specific information upon request. The new Part D provisions relating to pharmacy access would apply to eligible entities. To the extent the Secretary determined they could be implemented on a timely basis, entities would be required to meet the new Part D provisions with respect to development and application of formularies and the requirements to have in place an effective cost and drug utilization management program, quality assurance measures and systems, and a program to control fraud, abuse and waste. Each entity would be required to have in place meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances and for expedited determinations and reconsiderations of coverage determinations. Entities would be required to provide pharmaceutical support services. They would also be required to provide for confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records and periodic reports to the Secretary.

Entities would be required to provide beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices (including applicable discounts). Such discounts would not be taken into account in establishing ‘‘best price’’ for purposes of Medicaid calculations. If the entity used a formulary, negotiated prices would only be available for formulary drugs. Negotiated prices could not be limited to mail order drugs. Entities and contracting pharmacies could not charge beneficiaries for any required services. Entities would be required to disclose to the Secretary the extent to which discounts, or rebates or other remuneration or price concessions made available by a manufacturer were passed through to enrollees; such information would be confidential. Entities would be required to notify enrollees at the time of purchase of the differential between any prescribed drug and the cost of the lowest cost available generic drug that was therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent.

The Secretary would be required to establish a prescription drug account for each enrolled individual and deposit into the account the federal contribution amount. This amount would be $800 for an accountholder with income under 135% of poverty, $500 for an accountholder with income between 135% and 150% of poverty, and $100 for all other persons. Income would be determined under the state Medicaid program or by the Social Security Administration (SSA). Such sums as may be necessary would be authorized to be appropriated to the SSA. If the program was not in effect for all of 2004, the amounts would be prorated. Persons would not be eligible for a federal contribution if they were eligible for drug coverage under Medicaid, group health plan, Medigap, medical care for members of the uniformed services, Veterans' medical care, Federal Employees Health Benefits program, or the Indian Health Care Improvement Act. The provision would authorize appropriations to the Part B trust fund of an amount equal to the amount by which benefits and administrative costs exceeded the portion of enrollment fees retained by the Secretary.

The provision would establish a new Section 1807A, Prescription Drug Accounts, that would be established for each enrolled beneficiary. Contributions to the account would include federal contributions, any state contributions, private contributions (including employer and individual contributions) and spousal rollover contributions. If the accountholder was married at the time of death, the amount in the account attributable to public contributions would be credited to the account, if any, of the surviving spouse, or if the spouse was not an Part D eligible individual, into a reserve account to be held for when the spouse became an Part D eligible individual.

Costs of the voluntary prescription drug discount card program would not be considered in calculating the Part B premium.

By March 1, 2005, the Administrator would be required to submit a report to Congress on the progress made in implementing the new prescription drug benefit, including specific steps that had been taken, and need to be taken, to ensure timely start of the program on January 1, 2006.

Senate Bill

Section 111 would add a new Section 1807 to the Social Security Act, Medicare Prescription Drug Discount Card Endorsement Program. The Secretary would establish a program under which the Secretary would endorse card programs offered by prescription drug card sponsors meeting certain requirements and would make available information on such programs to beneficiaries. Eligible sponsors would be entities with demonstrated experience and expertise in operating a prescription drug discount card program or similar program that the Secretary determined to be appropriate to provide benefits to Medicare beneficiaries. Such entities would include pharmaceutical benefit management companies, wholesale or retail pharmacist delivery systems, insurers, other entities, or any combination of these.

Any individual entitled to Part A and enrolled in Part B would be eligible to enroll in an endorsed prescription drug card program. The Secretary would be required to establish procedures for identifying eligible beneficiaries. The Secretary would also be required to establish procedures under which beneficiaries could make an election to enroll and disenroll in an endorsed card program. A beneficiary could only be enrolled in one endorsed program at a time. Card sponsors could charge annual enrollment fees, not to exceed $25. The fee would be the same for all eligible Medicare beneficiaries enrolled in the program and would be collected by the card sponsor.

The Secretary would provide information, which compared the costs and benefits of various programs. This information dissemination, intended to promote informed choice, would be coordinated with the dissemination of other educational information on other Medicare options. Each card sponsor would make available to each beneficiary (through the Internet or otherwise) information that the Secretary identified as being necessary to provide for informed choice by beneficiaries among endorsed programs; this would include information on enrollment fees, negotiated prices, and services related to drugs offered under the program. The sponsor would have to provide information on how the formulary functioned. The Medicare toll-free number, 1–800–MEDICARE, would be used to receive and respond to inquiries and complaints.

Each endorsed drug card program would have to meet beneficiary protection requirements, including those relating to beneficiary appeals and marketing practices. They would also have to ensure that beneficiaries were not charged more than the lower of the negotiated retail price or the usual and customary price. Each card sponsor would secure the participation of a sufficient number of pharmacies that distributed drugs directly to patients to ensure convenient access (including adequate emergency access) for beneficiaries enrolled in the program. Convenient access would be determined by the Secretary and would take into account reasonable distances to pharmacy services in both urban and rural areas. Each card sponsor would be required to have in place procedures for assuring that quality service was provided to eligible beneficiaries enrolled in a prescription drug discount card program. They would also have to safeguard individually identifiable information in accordance with the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). Sponsors would be prohibited from charging any fees, except for the annual enrollment fee. Card sponsors could not recommend switching an Part D eligible individual to a drug with a higher negotiated price, unless a licensed health professional recommended a switch based on a clinical indication. Negotiated prices could not change more than once every 60 days.

Card sponsors would provide enrolled beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices used by the sponsor for payment for prescription drugs, provided such drugs were not excluded under the program's formulary. The term negotiated price, would include all discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, price concessions, and direct or indirect remunerations. Medicaid negotiation rules, including rebate requirements, would not apply.

Each card program would be required to provide pharmaceutical support services such as education, counseling, and services to prevent adverse drug interactions. Each card sponsor would issue a discount card to program enrollees.

Sponsors seeking endorsement of a card program would submit required information to the Secretary. The Secretary would review the information and determine whether to endorse the program. A program could not be approved unless it and the sponsor complied with the requirements of the new Section 1807.

Sponsors could use a formulary. Sponsors electing to use a formulary would be required to establish a pharmaceutical and therapeutic committee (that included at least one academic expert, at least one practicing physician and at least one practicing pharmacist) to develop and review the formulary. The committee would base clinical decisions on the strength of scientific evidence and standards of practice. The formulary would have to include drugs within each therapeutic category and class of covered drugs (as defined by the Secretary) although not necessarily for all drugs within such categories and classes. The committee would establish policies and procedures to educate and inform health care providers concerning the formulary. Drugs could not be removed from the formulary until after appropriate notice had been provided to beneficiaries, physicians, and pharmacies. The Secretary would provide appropriate oversight to ensure compliance of programs; including verification of the negotiated prices and services provided. Each program sponsor would be required to report to the Secretary on program performance, use of drugs by beneficiaries, financial information of the sponsor, and other information required by the Secretary. The Secretary could not disclose any proprietary data that was reported. The Secretary could use Parts A and B claims data for purposes of conducting a drug utilization review program.

Section 111 would add a new Section 1807A to the Social Security Act, Transitional Prescription Drug Assistance Card Program for Eligible Low-Income Beneficiaries. The Secretary would award contracts to prescription drug card sponsors, offering a program that was endorsed by the Secretary under the new Section 1807, to offer a prescription drug card assistance program to eligible low-income beneficiaries. The program would begin no later than January 1, 2004. The Secretary would provide for a transition and discontinuation of the drug card program and the low-income assistance card program when the new Part D program became effective. The transitional programs would continue to operate at least 6 months after the date benefits first became available under Part D.

All individuals meeting the definition of QMB, SLMB, or QI–1, or those with income below 135 percent of poverty who were not eligible to receive drug benefits under Medicaid, could receive assistance with their prescription drug costs, effective January 1, 2004. In addition, those determined to have income below 135 percent of poverty could receive assistance with their prescription drug costs. These persons would have access, through a drug discount card, to up to $600 per year. The entire $600 benefit would be available for the entire year; any balance left on the card in one year could be carried forward. Beneficiaries would be subject to cost-sharing requirements, which could not be less than 5% of the negotiated price for a drug, or 10% for a transitional assistance eligible individual. Cost-sharing charges would not count against the $600. At a minimum, card sponsors would provide low-income enrollees with a minimum of a 20% discount from the average wholesale price for each covered drug.

In general, the enrollment procedures established for the drug discount card program would apply for this program. Each sponsor offering an assistance card program would be required to enroll any low-income person wishing to enroll if the program served the geographic area where the beneficiary resides. An individual enrolling in an assistance card program would be simultaneously enrolled in a discount card program offered by the sponsor. Enrollment fees would be waived for these individuals and would instead be paid by the Secretary.

Eligible beneficiaries would have to be provided the information required for the discount card program. In addition, sponsors would be required to notify low-income enrollees, on a periodic basis, of the amount of coverage remaining and on the grievance and appeals process under the program.

Each card sponsor would secure the participation of a sufficient number of pharmacies that distributed drugs directly to patients to ensure convenient access for beneficiaries enrolled in the program. The Secretary would determine whether convenient access was provided; mail order pharmacies would not be included in the determination. Further, the Secretary could not make a determination that convenient access had been provided, unless an appropriate arrangement was in place for low-income persons in long-term care facilities.

The Secretary would be required to establish procedures under which benefits under the assistance card program were coordinated with coverage under a state pharmaceutical assistance program or Medicare+Choice plan.

Drug discount card managers could establish formularies. A low-income enrollee would have the right to appeal to obtain coverage for a drug not on the formulary if the prescribing physician determined that the formulary drug was not as effective for the individual or had adverse effects for the individual. If a plan offered tiered cost-sharing for covered drugs, an enrollee would have the right to request that a nonpreferred drug be treated on terms applicable for a preferred drug if the prescribing physician determined that the preferred drug was not as effective for the individual or had adverse effects for the individual.

Sponsors offering assistance card programs would be required to process claims negotiate with brand name and generic manufacturers and others for price concessions, track individual beneficiary expenditures, and perform other functions specified by the Secretary. Each sponsor would receive data exchanges in a format specified by the Secretary.

Entities would be required to assure that low-income beneficiaries were informed at the time of purchase of any difference between the price of the prescribed drug and the lowest cost generic drug that was therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent and that was available at the pharmacy or other dispenser. Entities would also be required to have meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances, comparable to those established for Medicare+Choice plans. In addition, eligible entities would be required to meet Medicare+Choice requirements relating to coverage determinations.

Sponsors seeking to offer an assistance program would be required to submit information to the Secretary, in the manner specified by the Secretary. The Secretary could not approve a program unless the sponsor and program met the requirements of the new Section 1807A. Further, the Secretary would have to determine that the entity was appropriate to provide benefits to low-income beneficiaries, was able to manage the monetary assistance provided under the program, agreed to submit to audits by the Secretary, and provided other assurances require by the Secretary. There would be no limit on the number of sponsors who could be awarded contracts. The contract would be for the lifetime of the program and cover the same service area served by the sponsor under the card program under Section 1807. The sponsor could submit an application for endorsement under both programs simultaneously.

The Secretary would pay sponsors the amount agreed to in the contract between the sponsor and the Secretary. Payments would be made from the Part B trust fund but would not be considered in the calculation of the Part B premium.

The Secretary would implement New Sections 1807 and 1807A to assure that discounts and benefits were available no later than January 1, 2004. The Secretary would provide for an appropriate transition and discontinuation of the programs; such transition would ensure that benefits continue to operate until the first Part D enrollment period ended.

Conference Agreement

a. Establishment of Program. The conference agreement adds a new Section 1860D–31 to the Social Security Act, Medicare Prescription Drug Discount Card and Transitional Assistance Program. The Section requires the Secretary to establish a program to endorse prescription drug discount card programs meeting certain requirements. Discount card eligible individuals would receive access to prescription drug discounts through card sponsors throughout the U.S. The program will also provide transitional assistance for low-income persons enrolled in endorsed programs. The program is voluntary for eligible individuals.

The agreement requires the Secretary to implement the program so that discount cards and transitional assistance are available no later than 6 months after enactment. The Secretary is required to promulgate regulations to carry out the program. They could be promulgated on an interim final basis which could be effective on the date of issuance. In the case interim final regulations are promulgated, a public comment period would be provided. The Secretary could change or revise the regulations after conclusion of the comment period.

The conference agreement specifies that the new program would not, except as provided for during an individual's transition period, apply to covered discount card drugs dispensed after December 31, 2005. However, any transitional assistance for low income persons would be available after that date to the extent the assistance was for drugs dispensed on or before that date.

Special rules may apply for an individual in a transition period who is also enrolled under a card program as of December 31, 2005. The transition period to the new Part D is the period beginning January 1, 2006 and ending on the effective date of the individual's coverage under Part D or at the close of the individual's initial enrollment period for Part D. During this period, discounts may continue to apply for drugs dispensed to the individual, no annual enrollment fee would be applicable, the individual could not change the endorsed plan in which they were enrolled, and the balance of any transitional assistance remaining on January 1, 2006 would remain available for drugs dispensed during this period.

b. Eligibility. The conference agreement specifies that persons eligible for the discount card are those entitled to or enrolled under Part A or enrolled under Part B. However individuals enrolled in Medicaid (or under any Section 1115 Medicaid waiver) who are entitled to any medical assistance for outpatient prescribed drugs would not be a discount card eligible individual.

An individual eligible for transitional assistance is a discount card eligible individual, residing in one of the 50 states or the District of Columbia, whose income is not more than 135% of the official poverty line applicable to the family size involved. Certain persons would not be eligible for transitional assistance. These are persons who had coverage for, or assistance with, covered discount card drugs under: (1) a group health insurance plan or health insurance plan (other than coverage under a plan under Medicare Part C or coverage consisting only of excepted benefits as that term is defined under Section 2791 of the Public Health Service Act); (2) Chapter 55 of the United States Code relating to medical and dental care for members of the uniformed services; and (3) a plan under the Federal employees health benefits program.

Certain transitional eligible assistance eligible individuals may also qualify as special transitional assistance eligible individuals. These are persons with incomes below 100% of the official poverty line.

The Secretary is required to provide for appropriate rules for the treatment of medically needy persons as discount eligible individuals and as transitional assistance eligible individuals.

c. Enrollment. The conference agreement requires the Secretary to establish a process through which a discount card eligible individual is enrolled and disenrolled in a discount card program. An individual not enrolled in a card program may enroll in any card program, serving residents of the state at any time beginning on the initial enrollment date and before January 1, 2006. Completion of a standard enrollment form, specified by the Secretary, is required. Each program sponsor is required to transmit to the Secretary (in a form and manner specified by the Secretary) information on persons completing the enrollment forms. They are also required to provide certain information relating to the certification as a transitional assistance eligible individual.

The conference agreement specifies that a discount eligible individual may only be enrolled in one endorsed card program at a time. An individual enrolled in one program in 2004 could change the election for 2005. The Secretary will establish a process for making this change, which will be similar to, and coordinated with, that established for annual coordinated elections for Medicare+Choice plans under Part C. The agreement requires the Secretary to permit individuals to change programs in which they were enrolled if they changed residence outside the service area of the plan or under other exceptional circumstances. The Secretary is permitted to consider a change in residential setting (such as placement in a nursing facility) as an exceptional circumstance. Also meeting this criteria would be enrollment or disenrollment from a Medicare+Choice plan through which an individual was enrolled in an endorsed program.

An individual could voluntarily disenroll from an endorsed program at any time. Such individual could not enroll under another endorsed program except during the open enrollment period or under the exceptional circumstances specified by the Secretary. An individual, who was not a transitional assistance eligible individual, could be disenrolled by the program sponsor, if the individual failed to pay the annual enrollment fee.

A Medicare+Choice organization or organization operating under a reasonable cost contract that wishes to become a prescription drug card sponsor may elect to limit enrollment in its endorsed discount card program to eligible enrollees enrolled in the plan. If the organization elects this option, its enrollees can only enroll in the endorsed discount card program offered by that sponsor.

A card sponsor may charge an annual enrollment fee, not to exceed $30, for each enrollee. The fee for either 2004 or 2005 could not be prorated. The sponsor will ensure that the annual enrollment fee (if any) is the same for all enrollees residing in the state. The annual enrollment fee is to be collected by the program sponsor. The annual enrollment fee for a transitional assistance eligible individual is to be paid by the Secretary on the individual's behalf.

The Secretary will establish an arrangement under which a state could pay for some, or all, of the enrollment fee for some or all enrollees who are not transitional assistance eligible individuals. The payment would be paid directly by the state to the sponsor. No federal matching payments would be available.

The Secretary will establish special rules for individuals who change, during a year, the endorsed program in which they are enrolled.

Each card sponsor will issue, in a standard format specified by the Secretary, a discount card to each enrollee. The card will establish proof of enrollment. It may be used in a coordinated manner to identify the sponsor, program, and individual. The Secretary will specify the effective date that card enrollees will have access to negotiated prices and transitional assistance, if any.

d. Information. The conference agreement requires the Secretary to provide for activities that broadly disseminate information to discount card eligible individuals and prospective eligible individuals. These persons would receive information on enrollment in endorsed card programs and on the features of the drug discount card and transitional assistance program. In order to promote informed choice, the Secretary will provide for the dissemination of information, which compares the annual enrollment fee and other features of such programs, which could include comparative prices for covered drugs. To the extent practicable, this will be coordinated with the dissemination of educational material on other Medicare options. The required information will also include educational materials on the variability of discounts on covered drugs under an endorsed program. To the extent practicable, the Secretary will ensure the provision of required information at least 30 days prior to the initial enrollment date. The Secretary, through the use of 1–800–MEDICARE, will provide for the receipt and response to inquiries and complaints concerning the discount card program and endorsed programs.

The conference agreement requires each card sponsor to make available to discount card eligible individuals (through the Internet and otherwise) information the Secretary identifies as being necessary to promote informed choice. This includes information on enrollment fees and negotiated prices for covered drugs. Each sponsor is required to have a mechanism (including a toll free number) for providing, on request, specific information to individuals enrolled in the program. Specific information includes information on negotiated prices and the amount of transitional assistance remaining to the individual. The sponsor is required to inform transitional assistance eligible individuals of the availability of such toll-free numbers to provide information on the amount of available assistance to the individual. Information on the balance of transitional assistance available will have to be available at the point-of-sale, either electronically or by telephone.

The conference report requires sponsors to provide that each pharmacy that dispensed a covered discount drug to inform program enrollees of any difference between the price of the drug provided to the enrollee and the price of the lowest priced generic drug covered under the program that is therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent and available at such pharmacy. The notice is to be provided at the time of purchase, or in the case of a mail order drug, at the time of delivery. The Secretary may waive this requirement under circumstances specified by the Secretary.

e. Discount Card Program. The conference agreement requires each card sponsor to provide each enrollee with access to negotiated prices. These negotiated prices would take into account negotiated price concessions such as discounts, direct or indirect subsidies, rebates, and direct or indirect remunerations for covered drugs. Negotiated prices include any dispensing fees. Seniors currently benefit from prescription drug assistance programs offered by pharmaceutical companies. Conferees intend that these programs continue to be offered until the full implementation of the prescription drug benefit. Nothing in this conference report shall be interpreted as encouraging the discontinuation or diminution of these benefits.

Each prescription drug card sponsor must secure the participation of a sufficient number of pharmacies that dispense drugs directly to enrollees to ensure convenient access to covered drugs at negotiated prices. This requirement may only be met by entities dispensing drugs other than solely by mail order. Conferees intend for seniors to have access to a bricks and mortar pharmacy. The Secretary will establish convenient access rules that are no less favorable than standards for convenient access to pharmacies applicable under TRICARE. Applicable TRICARE standards are those specified in the statement of work solicitation (#MDA906–03–R–0002) as of March 13, 2003.

A prescription drug card sponsor (and any pharmacy contracting with the sponsor to provide covered discount card drugs) may not charge enrollees for any items and services required to be provided under the program. This prohibition would not apply to the annual enrollment fee for persons who are not transitional assistance eligible individuals or for the charge for the drug (consistent with the negotiated price) reduced by any transitional assistance.

The agreement further provides that negotiated prices will not be taken into account for purposes of making best price calculations under the Medicaid rebate program.

Each endorsed card program is required to implement a system to reduce the likelihood of medication errors and adverse drug interactions and to improve medication use.

f. Eligibility Procedures. The conference agreement requires the Secretary to establish procedures for eligibility determinations for endorsed programs and for those eligible as a transitional assistance eligible individual or a special transitional eligible individual. The Secretary is to define the terms income and family size and specify the methods and period for which they are determined. If such methods provide for use of information for prior time periods, the Secretary is required to permit an individual whose circumstances changed to have eligibility for transitional assistance determined for a more recent period. The Secretary may use a reconsideration process or other method.

An individual wishing to be treated as a transitional assistance eligible individual or special transitional eligible individual could self-certify through a simplified means as to their income, family size, and prescription drug coverage (if any). The certification could also be done by another qualified person, acting on the individual's behalf. The certification could be provided before, on or after the time of enrollment in an endorsed program. The self-certification would be deemed as consent to have the information verified by the Secretary. A verified self-certification for as a transitional assistance or special transitional assistance eligible individual would be applicable for the entire period of enrollment in any endorsed program.

The Secretary is required to establish verification methods, which could include sampling and use of information on Medicaid eligibility provided by the states, financial information from the Commissioner of Social Security, and financial information from the Secretary of the Treasury. The Secretary could find that an individual met the income requirements for transitional assistance if the individual is within a category of discount card eligible individuals who are enrolled under Medicaid (such as qualified Medicare beneficiaries, specified low-income Medicare beneficiaries, and certain qualified individuals). States will be required, as a condition of Federal Medicaid assistance to provide, on a timely basis, information that allows the Secretary to identify persons eligible for drug coverage under Medicaid, or who are transitional assistance eligible individuals, or special transitional eligible individuals. The Secretary is required to establish a reconsideration process for persons determined not to be transitional eligible or special transitional assistance eligible individuals. The results are to be communicated to the individual and drug card sponsor involved. The Secretary may enter into contracts to perform the reconsideration function.

g. Transitional Assistance. The conference agreement provides special provisions for low-income persons. A transitional assistance eligible individual will be entitled to have his or her discount card enrollment fee paid. Those individuals with incomes below 100% of poverty (special transitional assistance eligible individuals) would be liable for coinsurance charges of 5% of incurred costs up to $600 in both 2004 and 2005. Other transitional assistance eligible individuals (those with incomes between 100% and 135% of poverty) would be liable for coinsurance charges of 10% of incurred costs up to $600 in both 2004 and 2005. Thus, the program will pay 95% of a special transitional eligible individual's incurred drug costs up to $600 in 2004 and 90% of other transitional eligible individual's incurred drug costs up to $600 in 2004. Similarly, payment would be made for 95% or 90%, whichever is appropriate, of the individual's incurred drug costs up to $600 in 2005. In addition, any balance left over from 2004 may be added to the amount available in 2005, except no rollover would be permitted if the individual voluntarily disenrolled from an endorsed plan. No funds will be available under this program for covered discount card drugs dispensed after December 31, 2005. The Secretary will provide a method for the reimbursement of card sponsors for transitional assistance.

The $600 annual amount is to be prorated in 2004, for persons not enrolling in an endorsed program and providing self-certification prior to the program's initial implementation date. For 2005, the amount is to be prorated for persons not enrolling in an endorsed program and providing self-certification prior to February 1, 2005.

The conference agreement permits a pharmacy to reduce the coinsurance otherwise applicable. It also permits states to pay some or all of the coinsurance for some or all transitional assistance eligible enrollees. The payment would be made directly by the state to the pharmacy. No federal matching payments would be available for these costs; further they could not be considered as Medicare cost-sharing for purposes of the qualified Medicare beneficiary program.

The conference agreement includes provisions to ensure access to transitional assistance for qualified residents of long-tem care facilities and American Indians. It requires the Secretary to establish procedures to ensure such access for qualified residents of long-term care facilities. The Secretary could waive requirements of the new Section 1860D–31, as necessary, to negotiate arrangements with sponsors to provide arrangements with pharmacies that support long-term care facilities. The Secretary is also required to establish procedures to ensure that pharmacies operated by the Indian Health Service, Indian tribes and tribal organizations, and urban Indian organizations have the opportunity to participate in the pharmacy networks of at least two endorsed programs in each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia where such a pharmacy operates. Where necessary, the Secretary could waive requirements of the new Section 1860D–31.

The availability of negotiated prices or transitional assistance could not be taken into account in determining an individual's eligibility for or benefits under any other Federal program. Any nonuniformity of benefits resulting from the implementation of the new Section 1807 (such as the waiver of an enrollment fee) would not be taken into account in calculations of any required additional benefits under Part C.

h. Qualifications for Card Sponsors. The conference agreement defines entities eligible to be card sponsors and establishes criteria that such entities would have to meet. The agreement specifies that a card sponsor could be any nongovernmental entity that the Secretary determines is appropriate to offer an endorsed discount card program. An entity which could qualify includes a pharmaceutical benefit management company, a wholesale or retail pharmacy delivery system, an insurer (including one that offered Medigap policies), an organization under Part C, or any combination of these. Each program would have to be operated directly, or through arrangements with an affiliated organization (or organizations), by one or more organizations with demonstrated experience and expertise in operating such a program. Further, the program would have to meet business stability and integrity requirements specified by the Secretary. The sponsor will be required to have arrangements, satisfactory to the Secretary, to account for transitional assistance provided to eligible individuals.

The conference agreement requires each sponsor seeking endorsement to submit an application to the Secretary. The Secretary would review the application and determine whether to endorse the program. The Secretary could not endorse the program unless the program and sponsor comply with the applicable requirements of the new Section 1860D–31 and the sponsor enters into a contract with the Secretary to carry out such requirements. An endorsement would be for the duration of the discount card and transitional assistance program. The Secretary could make an exception for cause.

The conference agreement requires the Secretary to ensure that at least 2 endorsed programs (each offered by a different sponsor) are available to each eligible individual. The Secretary may limit (but not below 2) the number of sponsors in a state that were awarded contracts.

Card sponsors enrolling individuals in any part of a state would be required to permit eligible individuals in all parts of the state to enroll. An exception would apply in the case of a Medicare+Choice organization, which elects to limit enrollment in its endorsed discount card program to eligible enrollees enrolled in its Medicare+Choice plan.

Each prescription drug card sponsor will be required to pass on to discount eligible enrollees the negotiated prices for covered drugs, including discounts negotiated with pharmacies and manufacturers, to the extent such discounts are disclosed under required disclosure rules. Each card sponsor will be required to provide meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the sponsor and enrollees in a manner similar to that required for Medicare+Choice. The operations of an endorsed card program are covered functions and a card sponsor is a covered entity for purposes of applying the administrative simplification provisions established in Part C of Title XI of the Social Security Act. Included are regulations promulgated under that Part including privacy regulations. The Secretary could waive the relevant portions of privacy regulations for an appropriate limited period of time in order to promote participation of sponsors.

The sponsor of an endorsed card program may not provide or market services under the program except if the product or service is directly related to a covered discount card drug or a discount price for a nonprescription drug. Sponsors will also be required to meet additional requirements as the Secretary identifies are needed to ensure that enrollees are not charged more than the lower of the negotiated price or the usual and customary price.

Special rules apply to Medicare+Choice organizations or organizations offering enrollment under a reasonable cost contract. An organization could elect to limit enrollment in its endorsed discount card program to eligible enrollees enrolled in its plan. In this case, special rules would apply. The sponsor could not enroll individuals not enrolled in the plan. The pharmacy access requirements applicable to card sponsors would be deemed to be met if access is made available through a pharmacy network (and not only through mail order) and the network is approved by the Secretary. The Secretary could waive requirements applicable to card sponsors to the extent he determined they were duplicative or conflicted with a Medicare+Choice or cost contract requirement or were necessary in order to improve coordination of the card program with Medicare+Choice or cost contract benefits.

Each card sponsor will be required to disclose to the Secretary information relating to: (1) program performance; (2) use of drugs by card program enrollees; (3) extent to which negotiated price concessions made available by the manufacturer are passed through to enrollees through pharmacies or otherwise; and (4) other information specified by the Secretary. The Medicaid provision providing for the confidentiality of drug information will apply to any drug pricing information (other than aggregate data) disclosed under these requirements.

The Secretary will provide appropriate oversight to ensure compliance of card programs and sponsors with the requirements of the new Section 1860D–31. The Secretary would have the right to audit and inspect any books and records of sponsors (and any affiliated organization) that pertain to the card program, including amounts payable to the sponsor. The Secretary could impose sanctions for abusive practices.

i. Territories. The conference agreement provides federal assistance to territories, which establish a plan to provide transitional assistance for covered discount drugs to some or all eligible persons residing in the state. Eligible persons are those entitled to benefits under Part A or enrolled in Part B with incomes below 135% of the poverty line. The total amount of available federal assistance is $35 million. The amount available for each territory would be determined using the ratio of the total number of Medicare residents in the territory to Medicare residents in all the territories.

j. Funding. The conference agreement creates a separate Transitional Assistance Account in the Part B Trust Fund. Funds in this account are to be kept separate from other funds within the Trust fund. Payments are to be made from the Account in such amounts as the Secretary certifies are necessary to make payments for transitional assistance. Appropriations are to be made to the Account equal to the amount of payments from the Account. Such sums as are necessary would be authorized to be appropriated for the Secretary's administrative expenses. Payments could not be made to sponsors for administrative expenses, except for payment of the enrollment fee for transitional eligible individuals. Costs associated with the Medicare prescription drug card and the transitional assistance program would be excluded from the calculation of the Part B premium.

Definitions; Treatment of References to Provisions in Part C (New Section 1860D–41 of Conference agreement; New Section 1860D–10 of House bill; New Sections 1860D, 1860D–26 and Section 110 of Senate bill).

House Bill

New Section 1860D–10 would provide cross-references to other sections of the bill for definitions of covered outpatient drugs, initial coverage limit, Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund, PDP sponsor, qualified prescription drug coverage, and standard coverage. It would define a prescription drug plan as health benefits coverage that: (1) is offered under a policy, contract, or plan by a PDP sponsor pursuant to and in accordance with a contract between the Administrator and the sponsor; (2) provides qualified prescription drug coverage; and (3) meets the applicable beneficiary protection requirements. It would specify that the term ''insurance risk'' would, for a participating pharmacy, mean the type commonly assumed only by insurers licensed by a state and not payment variations designed to reflect performance-based measures of activities within control of the pharmacy, such as formulary compliance and generic drug substitution. The section would further provide that any reduction or waiver of cost-sharing would not be in violation of kickback and similar prohibitions.

MA and EFFS plans would be required to offer drug plans pursuant to the requirements of Sections 1851 and New Section 1860e–2(d). The provision would specify that Part C requirements relating to a drug plan or sponsor would be applied (unless otherwise specified) as if: (1) any reference to a MA or other plan included a reference to a prescription drug plan; (2) any reference to a provider-sponsored organization included a reference to a PDP sponsor; (3) any reference to a contract included a reference to a drug plan contract; and (4) any reference to Part C included a reference to Part D.

Senate Bill

New Section 1860 D would define a number of terms used in the bill. The ''Administrator'' would be defined as the Administrator of the new Center for Medicare Choices established under the bill.

A ''Part D eligible individual'' would be an individual entitled to, or enrolled for, benefits under Part A and enrolled in Part B. An ''eligible entity'' would be any risk bearing entity that the Administrator determined to be appropriate to provide eligible beneficiaries with benefits under a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan. Eligible entities would include pharmaceutical benefit management companies, wholesale or retail pharmacist delivery systems, insurers (including insurers that offered Medigap policies), other risk bearing entities, or any combination of these. This requirement would not preclude State pharmacy assistance programs from becoming a qualified entity if they meet the requirements.

A ''Medicare Prescription Drug Plan'' would offer prescription drug coverage under a policy, contract or plan by an eligible entity pursuant to and in accordance with a contract between the Administrator and the entity. The plan would have to be approved by the Administrator.

The provision would specify that Part C requirements relating to MedicareAdvantage would be applied (unless otherwise specified) as if: (1) any reference to a MedicareAdvantage plan included a reference to a Medicare Prescription Drug plan; (2) any reference to a provider-sponsored organization included a reference to an eligible entity; (3) any reference to a contract included a reference to a drug plan contract; and (4) any reference to Part C included a reference to Part D.

The provision would permit sponsors of employment-based retiree coverage that offer a prescription drug plan to restrict enrollment in the plan to eligible beneficiaries enrolled in such coverage. Sponsors could not offer enrollment in a Medicare Prescription Drug plan based on the health status of beneficiaries.

Entities offering a Medicare Prescription Drug plan or a MedicareAdvantage organization offering a MedicareAdvantage plan could enter into an agreement with a state pharmaceutical assistance program (including one established under a Section 115 waiver) to coordinate coverage.

Conference Agreement

New Section 1860D–41 provides cross references to other sections of the bill for definitions of basic prescription drug coverage, covered Part D drugs, creditable prescription drug coverage, Part D eligible individual, fallback prescription drug plan, initial coverage limit, MA plan, MA–PD plan, Medicare Prescription Drug Account, PDP approved bid, PDP region, qualified prescription drug coverage, standard prescription drug coverage, state pharmaceutical assistance program; and subsidy-Part D eligible individual. It defines the term ''insurance risk'' as meaning for a participating pharmacy, risk of the type commonly assumed only by insurers licensed by a state and does not include payment variations designed to reflect performance-based measures of activities within control of the pharmacy, such as formulary compliance and generic drug substitution. A PDP sponsor is defined as a nongovernmental agency that is certified under Part D as meeting Part D requirements and standards. A prescription drug plan is defined as prescription drug coverage that: is offered (1) under a policy, contract, or plan that has been approved under Part D; and (2) by a PDP sponsor pursuant to and in accordance with a contract between the Secretary and the sponsor under Part D.

The provision specifies that Part C requirements are to be applied (unless otherwise specified) as if: (1) any reference to a MA plan included a reference to a prescription drug plan; (2) any reference to a provider-sponsored organization included a reference to a PDP sponsor; (3) any reference to a contract included a reference to a drug plan contract; (4) any reference to Part C included a reference to Part D; and (5) any reference to a Part C election period is a reference to a Part D enrollment period.

Miscellaneous Provisions (New Section 1860D–42 of conference agreement; New Section 1860D–16 of House bill; Section 1860D–26 of Senate bill).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

The Secretary would be required to submit a legislative proposal within six months of enactment containing necessary technical and conforming amendments. Not later than January 1, 2005, the Administrator would be required to submit a report containing recommendations for providing benefits under Part D for drugs currently paid for under Part B.

Senate Bill

New Section 1860D–26 would require the Secretary, within six months of enactment, to submit a legislative proposal for any necessary technical and conforming amendments.

Conference Agreement

The agreement includes miscellaneous provisions. It permits the Secretary to waive Part D requirements, including the requirement for two plans in an area, insofar as the Secretary determines it necessary to secure access to qualified drug coverage in the territories.

The agreement requires the Secretary to submit a legislative proposal within six months of enactment containing necessary technical and conforming amendments to titles I and II of the bill. Not later than January 1, 2005, the Secretary is required to submit a report to Congress containing recommendations for providing benefits under Part D for drugs currently paid for under Part B. By March 1, 2005, the Secretary is required to submit a report to Congress on the progress made in implementing the drug benefit. The report will include specific steps taken, and that need to be taken, to ensure a timely start on January 1, 2006. The report is to include recommendations regarding an appropriate transition form the discount card and transitional assistance program.

Medicare Advantage Conforming Amendments (Section 102 of Conference agreement; Section 231 of House bill; Sections 201 and 204 of Senate bill).

Present Law

The Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Act of 2002, P.L. 107–188, made temporary changes to reporting dates and deadlines. First, CMS moved its annual announcement of M+C payment rates from no later than March 1 to no later than the 2nd Monday in May, effective only in 2003 and 2004. It also temporarily moved the deadline for plans to submit information about ACRs, M+C premiums, cost sharing, and additional benefits (if any) from no later than July 1 to no later than the 2nd Monday in September in 2002, 2003, and 2004. It also changed the annual coordinated election period from the month of November to November 15th through December 31 in 2002, 2003, and 2004. Once the temporary provision expires, the reporting dates and deadlines would return to the pre-P.L. 107–188 dates.

In addition, P.L. 107–188 will continue to allow Medicare beneficiaries to make and change election to an M+C plan on an ongoing basis through 2004. Then beginning in 2005, individuals will only be able to make changes on the more limited basis, originally scheduled to be phased in beginning in 2002. Beneficiaries can make or change elections during the annual coordinated election period. Current Medicare beneficiaries may also change their election at any time during the first 6 months of 2005 (or first 3 months of any subsequent year). Additionally, there are special enrollment rules for newly eligible aged beneficiaries as well as special enrollment periods for all enrollees under limited situations, such as an enrollee who changes place of residence.

The Secretary must provide information to Medicare beneficiaries and prospective beneficiaries on the coverage options provided under the M+C program, including open season notification, a list of plans and other general information.

House Bill

The reporting deadline for ACRs and other information would permanently move to July 1 of each year. The annual coordinated election period would be permanently changed to November 15 through December 31. The announcement of payment rates, including rates for EFFS plans, would be permanently moved to no later than the second Monday in May.

In addition to the information dissemination required under current law, the Secretary would be required to provide beneficiaries with a list of plans that are or would be available in an area, to the extent the information was available at the time the materials were prepared for mailing.

Senate Bill

Each MA organization would be required to submit information by the second Monday in September, including: (1) notice of intent and information on the service area of the plan; (2) the plan type for each plan; (3) specific information for coordinated care and PFFS plans; (4) enrollment capacity; (5) the expected mix of enrollees, by health status; and (6) other information specified by the Secretary.

Medicare beneficiaries would retain their ability to make and change elections to a Medicare+Choice plan through 2005. The current law limitation on changing elections that begins in 2005, would be delayed until 2006. Further, the annual coordinated election period for 2003 through 2006 would begin on November 15 and end on December 31. Beginning in 2007, the annual coordinated election period would be during the month of November.

In addition to the information dissemination required under current law, the Secretary would be required to provide: (1) the MA monthly basic beneficiary premium; (2) the monthly beneficiary premium for any enhanced medical benefits; (3) the MA monthly beneficiary obligation for qualified prescription drug coverage; (4) the catastrophic coverage amount (including the maximum limitation on out-of-pocket expenses) and unified deductible for the plan; (5) the outpatient prescription drug coverage benefits; (6) any beneficiary cost-sharing, including information on the unified deductible; (7) comparative information relating to prescription drug coverage; (8) if applicable, any reduction in the Medicare Part B premium; (9) whether the MA monthly premium for enhanced benefits was optional or mandatory; and (10) quality and performance indicators for prescription drug coverage, including a comparison with FFS Medicare.

Additionally, the Secretary would conduct a special information campaign to inform MA eligible beneficiaries about plans. The campaign would begin on November 15, 2005 and ending on December 31, 2005.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement allows Medicare beneficiaries to retain their ability to make and change elections to a Medicare+Choice plan through 2006. The current law limitation on changing elections that begins in 2005, is delayed until 2006. Further, the annual coordinated election period for 2004 and 2005 begins on November 15 and ends on December 31. For 2006, the annual coordinated election period begins on November 15 and ends on May 15, 2006. Beginning in 2007, the annual coordinated election period will begin on November 15 and end on December 31.

The Secretary is to provide for an education and publicity campaign to inform MA eligible individuals about the availability of MA plans, including MA–PD plans, offered in different areas and the election process for MA plans. If any portion of an individual's initial enrollment period for Part B occurs after the end of the annual coordinated election period, their initial enrollment period would be extended through the end of their Part B initial enrollment period.

The conference agreement will limit an individual's right to change MA plans, for plan years beginning on or after January 1, 2006. This limit will not affect an individual's opportunity to make changes during the annual coordinated election period, but it will limit changes during the continuous open enrollment and disenrollment periods in a year. Individuals enrolled in an MA plan that provides qualified prescription drug coverage, may only disenroll from their plan to get coverage through FFS Medicare or through another MA plan that does not provide qualified prescription drug coverage. They may not leave their plan to obtain coverage under an MA–PD plan or under a prescription drug plan under Part D. Conversely, individuals enrolled in an MA–PD plan, may only change to another MA–PD plan or they may get coverage under FFS Medicare with coverage under a drug plan under part D. They may not enroll in an MA plan if it does not provide qualified prescription drug coverage.

An MA–PD plan could provide for a separate or differential payment for a participating physician who prescribes covered part D drugs in accordance with an electronic prescription program meeting Part D requirements. Such payment could take into consideration the implementation costs for the physician and could also be increased for those participating physicians who significantly increased: (1) formulary compliance; (2) lower cost and therapeutically equivalent alternatives; (3) reductions in adverse drug interactions; and (4) efficiencies in filing prescriptions through reduced administrative costs. Additional or increased payment could be structured in the same manner as medication therapy management fees under section 1869(D)–4(c)(2)(E).

Medicaid Amendments (Section 103 of Conference agreement; Section 103 of House bill; Section 104 of Senate Bill).

Present Law

Some low-income aged and disabled Medicare beneficiaries are also eligible for full or partial coverage under Medicaid. Within broad federal guidelines, each state sets its own eligibility criteria, including income eligibility standards. Persons meeting the state standards are entitled to full coverage under Medicaid. Persons entitled to full Medicaid protection generally have all of their health care expenses met by a combination of Medicare and Medicaid. For these ''dual eligibles'' Medicare pays first for services both programs cover. Medicaid picks up Medicare cost-sharing charges and provides protection against the costs of services generally not covered by Medicare, including prescription drugs. State Medicaid programs have the option to include prescription drugs in their Medicaid benefit packages. All states include drugs for at least some of their Medicaid beneficiaries and many offer it to all program recipients entitled to full Medicaid benefits.

As noted earlier, Federal law specifies several population groups that are entitled to more limited Medicaid protection. These are qualified Medicare beneficiaries (QMBs), specified low income beneficiaries (SLIMBs), and certain qualified individuals (QI–1s). Assistance under the QI–1 program, originally available for the period January 1, 1998 to December 31, 2002, has been extended to March 31, 2004.

States make eligibility determinations for their Medicaid populations. Federal matching payments for Medicaid services in the territories is subject to an annual cap.

Current Medicaid law requires manufacturers to pay state Medicaid programs a basic rebate for single source and innovator multiple source drugs. Basic rebates are calculated by comparing the average manufacturer price for a drug (the average price paid by wholesalers) to the ''best price,'' which is the lowest price offered by the manufacturer in the same period to any wholesaler, retailer, nonprofit, or public agency. For purposes of determining Medicaid rebates, prices paid by a number of federal and state entities are excluded from the definition of ''best price.''

House Bill

Section 103 would add a new Section 1935 to the Social Security Act entitled ''Special Provisions Relating to Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit.'' The provision would require states, as a condition of receiving federal Medicaid assistance, to make eligibility determinations for low-income premium and cost-sharing subsidies, inform the Administrator of cases where eligibility has been established, and otherwise provide the Administrator with information that may be needed to carry out Part D. The provision would provide for the phased-in federal assumption of associated administrative costs. In 2005, the federal matching rate would be increased by 6⅔ percent and in 2006 by 13⅓ percent. In each subsequent year, the percent would be increased by 6⅔ percentage points (but in no case could the rate exceed 100 percent). Beginning in 2019, the federal matching rate would be 100 percent. The state would be required to provide the Administrator with the appropriate information needed to properly allocate administrative expenditures that could be made for similar eligibility determinations.

The provision would provide for the federal phase-in of the costs of premiums and cost-sharing subsidies for dual eligibles (i.e. persons eligible for Medicare and full Medicaid benefits, including drugs). Over the 2006–2020 period, the federal matching rate for these costs would be increased to cover 100% of what would otherwise be state costs. States would be required to maintain Medicaid benefits as a wrap around to Medicare benefits for dual eligibles; states could require that these persons elect Part D drug coverage.

Residents of territories would not be eligible for regular low-income subsidies. However, territories would be able to get additional Medicaid funds, beginning at $25 million in 2006 and increasing in subsequent years by the annual percentage increase in prescription drug costs for Medicare beneficiaries. In order to obtain these funds, territories would be required to formulate a plan on how they would dedicate the funds to assist low-income Medicare beneficiaries in obtaining covered outpatient prescription drugs. The Administrator would be required to report to Congress on the application of the law in the territories.

Senate Bill

Section 104 would add a new Section 1935 to the Social Security Act entitled ''Special Provisions Relating to Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit.'' The provision would require states to make low-income eligibility determinations for low income subsidies. States would be required, for purposes of the transitional prescription drug card assistance program, to establish eligibility standards consistent with that program; establish procedures for providing presumptive eligibility determinations (similar to that which currently apply for low-income pregnant women and children); make eligibility determinations for the card program; and communicate to the Secretary information on eligibility determinations or discontinuations. For purposes of the low-income subsidies for the new Part D program, states would be required, beginning November 2005, to make eligibility determinations; inform the Administrator of cases where eligibility was established, and otherwise provide the Administrator with any information required to carry out Part D. States would be required to enter agreements with the Commissioner of Social Security to use all social security field offices in the state as information and enrollment sites for making eligibility determinations. As part of the eligibility determination process, states would also be required to screen for eligibility for Medicare cost-sharing assistance under the QMB, SLIMB, and QI–1 programs.

The federal government would pay an enhanced matching rate for administrative costs associated with making eligibility determinations. The rate would be 75% for the period January 1, 2004–September 30, 2005, 70% for fiscal year 2006, 65% for FY 2007, and 60% beginning in FY 2008. Beginning November 1, 2005, the rate would be 100% for purposes of making eligibility determinations for low-income subsidies.

In addition, states would be entitled to enhanced matching for the costs associated with designing, developing, acquiring and installing improved eligibility determination systems, including hardware and software, for low-income subsidy programs. The enhanced rate would be 90% for fiscal years 2004, 2005, and 2006. The systems would be required to comply with any standards established by the Secretary for improved eligibility systems. Further, the systems would have to be compatible with the standards established under the administrative simplification provisions of Title XI of the Social Security Act.

Medicaid beneficiaries who were eligible for drug benefits under their state Medicaid program would remain in Medicaid. Beginning January 1, 2006, states agreeing to provide a drug benefit to their dual eligible population that was at least equivalent to minimum standards would be relieved of their responsibility to pay Medicare Part B premiums for persons with incomes between the level established for the supplemental security income program and 100% of the federal poverty level. The minimum standards would be defined as follows. A state would be required to meet all current law coverage standards for dual eligibles under Medicaid, including nominal cost-sharing requirements. States would have to provide beneficiary protections equivalent to those provided under Part D. States could not place a limit on the number of prescriptions for dual eligibles. States would be permitted to cover smoking cessation drugs for this population group.

If on the date of enactment, a state provided medical assistance to aged and disabled persons up to 100% of poverty, it would be entitled to have the federal government assume the costs for Medicare Part A cost-sharing. The Part A costs would be assumed so long as the state maintained the expanded coverage. The provision would apply effective January 1, 2006.

Residents of Puerto Rico and the territories would not be eligible for low-income subsidies. Instead, if they chose to provide assistance to their low-income residents they would receive an increase in amounts otherwise paid to them under Medicaid. The aggregate amount available would be $37.5 million for the last 3 quarters of FY2006, and $50 million for FY2007. In subsequent fiscal years, the aggregate amount would be the amount available the previous year, increased by the percentage increase in prescription drug spending.

The provision would extend the QI–1 program through December 2008 with total annual allocations of $400 million through fiscal year 2008 and $100 million for the first quarter of fiscal 2009.

The provision would expand outreach requirements for the Commissioner of Social Security to include outreach activities for low-income subsidy individuals. By January 1, 2005, the Secretary would submit a report to Congress to recommend a voluntary option for dual eligibles to enroll in Part D drug plans.

The provision would exempt negotiated prices by any qualified plan offering Medicare drug coverage from the calculation of Medicaid ''best price.''

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement would add a new Section 1935 to the Social Security Act entitled ''Special Provisions Relating to Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit.'' The provision establishes certain requirements, as a condition of receiving federal Medicaid assistance. States are required to provide the Secretary with Medicaid eligibility information necessary to carry out transitional prescription drug assistance verification. They are required to make eligibility determinations for low-income premium and cost-sharing subsidies, inform the Secretary of cases where eligibility has been established, and otherwise provide the Secretary with information that may be needed to carry out Part D. Further, as part of the eligibility determination process, states are required to make determinations for Medicare cost-sharing assistance. Regular federal matching applies to these activities.

The agreement provides for the federal phase-in of the costs of premiums and cost-sharing subsidies for dual eligibles (i.e., persons eligible for Medicare and full Medicaid benefits, including drugs). The agreement provides for a phased-down state contribution. For each month beginning in 2006, each state is required to provide for payment to the Secretary equal to the product of: (1) 1/12 of the product of the base year state Medicaid per capita expenditures for full-benefit dual eligibles and the state matching rate, and updated to the year involved by the applicable growth factor; (2) the total number of dual eligibles for such state for the month; and (3) the factor for the month. The base year is defined as the weighted average of gross Medicaid expenditures (including dispensing fees) for prescription drugs in 2003 and the estimated actuarial value of prescription drug benefits provided under a capitated care plan for full benefit dual eligibles in that year. The applicable growth factor in 2004, 2005, and 2006 is the average annual percent change in the per capita amount of prescription drug expenditures as determined based on the most recent National Health Expenditure projections. In subsequent years, the growth factor is the annual percentage increase average per capita expenditures under Part D. The factor under #3 is 90% in 2006, phasing down to 75% over 10 years. The Secretary is required to notify each state by October 15 of the amount computed under the formula for the following year, beginning in 2006. A state's failure to make required payments would result in interest charges and in an offset to amounts otherwise payable under Medicaid.

The agreement requires the Secretary when determining gross expenditures for 2003 to: (1) use data from the Medicaid Statistical Information System (MSIS) and other available data; (2) exclude expenditures for drugs that are not covered Part D drugs, and (3) reduce the portion of expenditures not attributable to dispensing fees by an adjustment ratio applied to such portion. The adjustment ratio for a state is equal to 1 minus the ratio in 2003 of aggregate payments under rebate agreements under section 1927 to gross expenditures under Medicaid for covered outpatient drugs.

The agreement specifies that Medicare is the primary payer for covered drugs for dual eligibles. Medicaid coverage is not available for such drugs or any cost-sharing for such drugs. States may provide coverage for drugs, other than Part D covered drugs in the manner otherwise provided for non-full benefit dual eligibles or through an arrangement with the prescription drug plan of MA–PD plan.

Residents of territories would not be eligible for regular low-income subsidies. However, territories would be able to apply for additional Medicaid funds. The total amount available is $28.125 million beginning in the last 3 quarters of 2006, $37.5 million in 2007 and increasing in subsequent years by the annual percentage increase in prescription drug costs for Medicare beneficiaries. In order to obtain these funds, territories would be required to provide assurances that additional funds would be used covered drugs and administrative costs (with no more than 10 percent of the total used for administrative expenses.) The Secretary is required to report to Congress on the application of the provision in the territories.

The agreement exempts prices negotiated from manufacturers for discount card drugs under an endorsement card program and prices negotiated by a prescription drug plan under Part D, a MA–PD plan or a qualified retiree prescription plan from the calculation of Medicaid ''best price.''

The agreement extends the QI–1 program through September 30, 2004. It expands outreach requirements for the Commissioner of Social Security to include outreach activities for transitional assistance and low-income subsidy individuals.

Medigap Amendments (Section 104 of Conference agreement; Section 104 of House bill; Section 103 of Senate bill).

Present Law

Most beneficiaries have some health insurance coverage in addition to basic Medicare benefits. Some individuals obtain private supplementary coverage through an individually-purchased policy, commonly referred to as a ''Medigap'' policy. Beneficiaries with Medigap insurance typically have coverage for Medicare's deductibles and coinsurance; they may also have coverage for some items and services not covered by Medicare. Individuals generally select from one of 10 standardized plans, though not all 10 plans are offered in all states. The 10 plans are known as Plans A through Plan J. Plan A covers a basic package of benefits. Each of the other nine plans includes the basic benefits plus a different combination of additional benefits. Plan J is the most comprehensive. Plans H, I, and J offer some drug coverage.

The law provided for the development by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) of standardized benefit packages. It also provides for modifications of such packages when Medicare benefit changes are enacted.

All insurers offering Medigap policies are required to offer open enrollment for 6 months from the date a person first enrolls in Medicare Part B (generally when the enrollee turns 65). The law also guarantees issuance of specified Medigap policies for certain persons whose previous supplementary coverage was terminated. Guaranteed issue also applies to certain persons who elect to try out a managed care option under the Medicare+Choice plan program.

Medicare beneficiaries buy supplemental coverage to help pay for health care costs not covered by Medicare. Almost one-quarter (24 percent) of Medicare beneficiaries purchase this coverage as individuals through the private insurance ''Medigap'' market. In 1990, Congress mandated the creation of 10 standardized Medigap policies through the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC). All 10 plans are required to cover beneficiaries' coinsurance—some of the costs of Medicare services for which beneficiaries are responsible, such as 20 percent of the costs of a physician visit. Nine out of 10 of those policies, which comprise more than 90 percent of the Medigap market, are required to cover the Part A inpatient hospital deductible, and the most popular Medigap policy covers both the Part A hospital deductible and the $100 Part B deductible for physician services. Insulating beneficiaries from this cost sharing incentives over utilization of health services.

Numerous studies have demonstrated that covering deductibles and coinsurance has led to higher Medicare spending because beneficiaries become insensitive to costs. Beneficiaries with Medigap consume $1,400 more in Medicare services than beneficiaries without supplemental coverage, and $500 more than beneficiaries with employer-sponsored insurance. This higher utilization drives up costs for everyone—premiums of Medicare beneficiaries without Medigap coverage and costs to taxpayers.

In addition, only the three most expensive Medigap plans cover prescription drugs, and that coverage is limited. Yet, 8 of the 10 plans are required to cover foreign travel insurance, while most beneficiaries never leave their home country.

And despite standardization, premiums continue to increase and vary widely. From 1998 to 2000, average premiums rose 16 percent for plans without drug coverage, and more than twice as fast, 37 percent, for plans with drug coverage. In addition, premiums vary dramatically for identical plans in the same location. Weiss Ratings, Inc. analyzed Medigap premiums in 2001. A 65-year old man living in Ft. Myers, Florida would pay about $3,600 for Plan J from Physicians Mutual Insurance Company, but only $2,700 with United Healthcare Insurance Company through AARP. The same gentleman living in Las Vegas would spend about $1,500 for Plan C with United American Insurance Company, but about half that amount—$778 B with the USAA Life Insurance Company for the same policy.

All of these factors lead conferees to believe Medigap policies should be restructured in light of changes to the marketplace since standardization. Conferees encourage the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) to modernize the Medigap market by reforming first dollar coverage requirements that drive over utilization of services and premiums. Conferees believe that in developing the two new policies included in the conference report, NAIC should consider much broader changes to the Medigap market that will effectuate reduced premiums and more rational coverage policies that create incentives for appropriate utilization of services.

House Bill

The provision would prohibit, effective January 1, 2006, the issuance of new Medigap policies with prescription drug coverage. The prohibition would not apply to policies replacing another policy with drug coverage. Beneficiaries could keep their existing policies. Further, it would not apply to policies meeting new standards, as outlined below.

The provision would guarantee issuance of a substitute Medigap policy for persons, enrolling in Part D, who at the time of such enrollment were enrolled in and terminated enrollment in a Medigap policy H, I, or J. The guaranteed enrollment would be for any of the Plans A through Plan G. The guarantee would apply for enrollments occurring in the new Medigap plan within 63 days of termination of enrollment in a Medigap drug Plan H, I, or J. The insurer could not impose an exclusion based on a pre-existing condition for such individuals. Further, the insurer would be prohibited from discriminating in the pricing of such policy on the basis of the individual's health status, claims experience, receipt of health care or medical condition.

The provision would provide for the development by the NAIC of two new standardized Medigap plans and would outline the standards for these policies. The first new policy would have the following benefits (notwithstanding other provisions of law relating to core benefits): (1) coverage of 50% of the cost-sharing otherwise applicable (except coverage of 100% cost-sharing applicable for preventive benefits); (2) no coverage of the Part B deductible; (3) coverage of all hospital coinsurance for long stays (as in current core package); and (4) a limitation on annual out-of-pocket costs of $4,000 in 2006 (increased in future years by an appropriate inflation adjustment as specified by the Secretary). The second new policy would have the same benefit structure as the first new policy, except that: (1) coverage would be provided for 75%, rather than 50%, of cost-sharing otherwise applicable; and (2) the limitation on out-of-pocket costs would be $2,000, rather than $4,000. Both policies could provide for coverage of Part D cost-sharing; however, neither policy could cover the Part D deductible.

Senate Bill

Effective January 1, 2006, Medigap drug policies could not be sold, issued or renewed for Part D enrollees. Persons who had such policies could obtain Medigap coverage without drug benefits. Beneficiaries who sought to enroll during the Part D open enrollment period established for current beneficiaries would be guaranteed issuance of such non-drug policies (without an exclusion based on preexisting conditions). Medigap issuers would be required to notify individuals of these changes 60 days prior to the Part D open enrollment period.

Medigap insurers could not be required to participate as an eligible entity under the new Part D.

Conference agreement

The agreement prohibits, effective January 1, 2006, the selling, issuance, or renewal of existing Medigap policies with prescription drug coverage for Part D enrollees. The prohibition would not apply to renewal of Medigap prescription policies for persons who are not Part D enrollees. Persons enrolling under Part D during the initial enrollment period could enroll in a plan without drug coverage, or continue their previous policy as modified to exclude drugs. H, I, and J policies, modified to exclude drugs, could continue to be offered to new enrollees. Medigap issuers would be required to notify individuals of these changes 60 days prior to the initial Part D enrollment period.

The provision guarantees issuance of a substitute Medigap policy for persons, enrolling in Part D, who at the time of such enrollment were enrolled in and terminated enrollment in a Medigap policy H, I, or J or a prestandard policy that included drug coverage. Evidence of enrollment and termination would be required. The guaranteed enrollment is for any of the Plans A, B, C, and F within the same carrier of issue. The guarantee applies for enrollments occurring in the new Medigap plan within 63 days of termination of enrollment in a Medigap drug Plan H, I, or J. The insurer may not impose an exclusion based on a pre-existing condition for such individuals. Further, the insurer is prohibited from discriminating in the pricing of such policy on the basis of the individual's health status, claims experience, receipt of health care or medical condition. The conferees intend that these provisions be administered in such a manner as to avoid a break in coverage.

The conference agreement requires the Secretary to request the National Association of Insurance Commissioners to review and revise standards for benefit packages taking into account the changes in benefits resulting form the enactment of this Act and to otherwise update standards to reflect other changes in law included in the Act. To the extent practicable, the revision will provide for implementation of revised standards as of January 1, 2006.

The revision is to include 2 new benefit packages. The first new package will have the following benefits (notwithstanding other provisions of law relating to core benefits): (1) coverage of 50% of the cost-sharing otherwise applicable (except coverage of 100% cost-sharing applicable for preventive benefits); (2) no coverage of the Part B deductible; (3) coverage of all hospital coinsurance for long stays and 365 extra lifetime days of coverage (as in current core package); and (4) a limitation on annual out-of-pocket costs of $4,000 in 2006 (increased in future years by an appropriate inflation adjustment as specified by the Secretary). The second new benefit package will have the same benefit structure as the first new package except that: (1) coverage would be provided for 75%, rather than 50%, of cost-sharing otherwise applicable; and (2) the limitation on out-of-pocket costs would be $2,000, rather than $4,000.

Medigap issuers could not be required to participate as a PDP sponsor under the new Part D, nor could a State make such a requirement.

Additional Provisions Relating to Medicare Prescription Drug Discount Card and Transitional Assistance Program (Section 105 of Conference agreement).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement includes additional provisions relating to the implementation of the Medicare prescription drug discount card and transitional assistance program. It excludes program costs from the calculation of the Part B premium. It applies Medicaid confidentiality provisions to drug pricing data reported by manufacturers under the program.

The conference agreement includes additional administrative provisions. It specifies that the following sections of law would not apply to the card program: New Section 1871(a)(3) of the Social Security Act relating to time line for publication of final rules; Chapter 35 of Title 44 of the U.S. Code relating to coordination of federal information policy; Section 553(d) of Title 5 of the U.S. Code requiring at least 30 days between issuance and effective date of a substantive rule; and Section 801(a)(3)(A) of title 5 of the U.S. Code providing 60 days for congressional review of a major rule.

The contracting authority extended to the Secretary under Medicare+Choice also applies to the Secretary with respect to the discount card program. There could be no judicial review of a determination not to endorse or enter into a contract with a card sponsor. Further, an order to enjoin any provision of the new section 1807 would not affect any other provision of the section and all provisions are to be treated as severable.

The Secretary of the Treasury, upon written request from the Secretary of HHS, is required to disclose to officers and employees of HHS certain information with respect to a taxpayer for the most recent taxable year for which information is available in the Internal Revenue Service's taxpayer data information system, or if no return was filed for that year, the year before that. Required information would consist of whether the adjusted gross income (as modified by HHS regulations) of the taxpayer, and if applicable the taxpayer's spouse, exceeds amounts that are 100 percent and 135 percent of the official poverty line. Such information may only be used to determine eligibility for the transitional low-income assistance program.

State Pharmaceutical Assistance Transition Commission (Section 106 of Conference agreement; Section 107 of House bill).

Present Law

A number of states currently have programs to provide low-income persons, not qualifying for Medicaid, with financial assistance in meeting their drug costs. The state programs differ substantially in both design and coverage.

House Bill

The provision would establish a State Pharmaceutical Assistance Transition Commission to develop a proposal for dealing with the transitional issues facing state programs and participants due to implementation of the new Part D prescription drug program. The Commission, to be established on the first day of the third month following enactment, would include: (1) a representative of each governor from each state with a program that the Secretary identified as having a benefit package comparable to or more generous than the new Part D; (2) representatives from other states that had pharmaceutical assistance programs, as appointed by the Secretary; (3) representatives (not exceeding the total under #1 and #2) of organizations that represented interests of participants, appointed by the Secretary; (4) representatives of MA organizations; and (5) the Secretary or the Secretary's designee and other members specified by the Secretary. The Commission would develop the proposal in accordance with specified principles, namely: (1) protection of the interests of program participants in the least disruptive manner; (2) protection of the financial and flexibility interests of states so they are not financially worse off; and (3) principles of Medicare modernization outlined in Title II of the Act.

The Commission would report to the President and Congress by January 1, 2005. The report would contain specific proposals including specific legislative or administrative recommendations, if any. The Commission would terminate 30 days later.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The agreement establishes a State Pharmaceutical Assistance Transition Commission to develop a proposal for dealing with the transitional issues facing State programs and participants due to implementation of the new Part D prescription drug program.

The Commission, to be established as of the first day of the third month following enactment, will include: (1) a representative of each governor from each state with a program that the Secretary identifies as having a benefit package comparable to or more generous than the low-income assistance under the new Section 1860D–14; (2) representatives from other states that have pharmaceutical assistance programs, as appointed by the Secretary; (3) representatives (not exceeding the total under #1 and #2) of organizations that have an inherent interest in the participants or the program itself; appointed by the Secretary; (4) representatives of MA organizations, Pharmacy Benefit Managers and other private insurance plans; and (5) the Secretary or the Secretary's designee and other members specified by the Secretary. The Commission is to develop the proposal in accordance with specified principles, namely: (1) protection of the interests of program participants in the least disruptive manner; (2) protection of the financial and flexibility interests of states so they are not financially worse off; and (3) principles of Medicare modernization outlined in Title II of the Act.

The Commission will report to the President and Congress by January 1, 2005, including specific legislative or administrative recommendations, if any. The Commission will terminate 30 days later. The Conferees intend the Commission to play an integral role in identifying potential problems and proposing creative solutions to ensure a seamless transition for States and beneficiaries in coordinating and interacting with the new Medicare plans.

Studies and Reports (Section 107 of Conference agreement; New Section 1860D–10 of House bill; Section 102, Section 106 and Section 110 of Senate bill).

House Bill

Under the new Section 1860D–10, the Secretary, within six months of enactment, would be required to review the current standards of practice for pharmacy services provided to patients in nursing facilities. Specifically, the Secretary would assess: (1) the current standards of practice, clinical services, and other service requirements generally utilized for such pharmacy services; (2) evaluate the impact of those standards with respect to patient safety, reduction of medication errors, and quality of care; and (3) recommend necessary actions. The Secretary would submit a report to the Congress on the findings and recommendations.

Senate Bill

Section 110 would require the Secretary to conduct a thorough review of the standards of practice for pharmacy services provided to patients in nursing facilities. The Secretary would assess the current standards, clinical services and other service requirements generally used in long-tern settings and evaluate the impact of these standards with respect to patient safety, reduction of medication errors, and quality of care. Within 18 months of enactment, the Secretary would be required to submit a report to Congress on the study containing: (1) a detailed description of the Secretary's plans to implement the Act in a manner consistent with applicable state and federal laws designed to protect the safety and quality of care of nursing facility patients; and (2) recommendations regarding necessary actions and appropriate reimbursement to ensure the provision of care in such manner.

Section 102 would require the Administrator to conduct a study, and report to Congress by January 1, 2005, on allowing persons not entitled to Part A, but enrolled in Part B, to enroll in Part D.

Section 106 requires the Secretary, on an ongoing basis, would study variations in spending and drug utilization under Part D to determine the impact on premiums. The Secretary would examine the impact of geographic adjustments of the monthly national average premium on the maximization of competition and the ability of eligible entities to contain costs. The Secretary would submit an annual report to Congress beginning in 2007.

Conference Agreement

The agreement requires the Secretary to study variations in per capita spending for covered Part D drugs among PDP regions to determine the amount of such variation that is attributable to price variations and the differences in per capita utilization that is not taken into account in the health status risk adjustment made to PDP bids. The Secretary is required to submit a report to Congress on the study including information on the extent of geographic variation in per capita utilization, an analysis of the impact of direct subsidies and whether such subsidies should be adjusted to take into account such variation, and recommendations regarding the appropriateness of applying an additional geographic adjustment factor to bids.

The conference agreement requires the Secretary, within six months of enactment, to review the current standards of practice for pharmacy services provided to patients in nursing facilities. Specifically, the Secretary is to assess: (1) the current standards of practice, clinical services, and other service requirements generally utilized for such pharmacy services; and (2) evaluate the impact of those standards with respect to patient safety, reduction of medication errors, and quality of care. The report is to contain a description of the Secretary's plans to implement this Act in a manner consistent with applicable state and federal laws designed to protect the safety and quality of care of nursing facility patients. The report must also include recommendations regarding necessary actions.

The conference agreement requires the Secretary to enter into a contract with the Institute of Medicine to carry out a comprehensive study of drug safety and quality issues in order to provide a blueprint for system-wide change. The objectives of the study are to: (1) develop a full understanding of drug safety and quality issues through an evidence-based review of the literature, case studies, and analysis; (2) attempt to develop credible estimates of the incidence, severity and costs of medication errors; (3) evaluate alterative approaches to reducing medication errors; (4) provide guidance on high-priority strategies to achieve drug safety goals; (5) assess opportunities and key impediments to broad nationwide implementation of medication error reductions; and (6) develop an applied research agenda to evaluate the health and cost impacts of alternative interventions. The study is to be completed within an 18-month period. Such sums as may be necessary are authorized.

The agreement requires the Secretary to provide a study on the feasibility and advisability of providing multi-year contracts with PDP sponsors and MA organizations.

The agreement requires the GAO to conduct a study to determine the extent to which utilization and access to covered Part D drugs for low-income subsidy eligible individuals differs from that for persons who would qualify as subsidy eligible individuals except for application of the assets test. The report is due to Congress by September 30, 2007.

Grants to Physicians to Implement Electronic Prescription Programs (Section 108 of Conference agreement; Section 121 of Senate bill).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

The Secretary would be authorized to award grants to health care providers to implement electronic prescription programs. There would be authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2006, 2007, and 2008.

Conference Agreement

The agreement authorizes the Secretary to make grants to physicians for the purpose of assisting them to implement electronic prescription programs in complying with the standards under the new Section 1860D–(4)(e). The Secretary, in awarding the grant shall give special consideration to physicians who serve a disproportionate number of Medicare patients and give preference to physicians who serve a rural or underserved area. Grant funds may be used for purchasing, leasing, and installing hardware and software; making upgrades and other improvements; and providing education and training to eligible physician staff on the use of technology. Grant applicants are required to provide the secretary with information necessary to evaluate the project and to ensure that funding is expended only for the purposes for which it is made. The applicant must agree to make available non-Federal contributions totaling at least 50 percent of the costs. $50 million is authorized for FY 2007, and such sums as may be necessary for FY 2008 and FY 2009.

Expanding the Work of Medicare Quality Improvement Organizations to Include Parts C and D (New section 109 of the Conference agreement).

Present Law

Quality improvement organizations (QIOs) review medical necessity and quality of services provided under Medicare.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement expands the work of quality improvement organizations (QIOs) to include Part C and Part D. It is required to offer providers, practitioners, MA organizations, and PDP sponsors quality improvement assistance pertaining to prescription drug therapy. The secretary is to request the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study of the QIO program including an evaluation of the program and the extent to which other entities could perform similar quality improvement functions as well as or better than QI0s. The Secretary will report to Congress on such study by June 1, 2006. If the Secretary finds, based on the study, that other entities could improve quality as well as or better than QI0s, the Secretary shall provide increased competition through such entities.

Conflict of Interest Study (Section 110 of Conference agreement).

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement requires the Federal Trade Commission to conduct a study of differences in payment amounts for pharmacy services provided to enrollees in group health plans that utilize pharmacy benefit managers (PBMs). The study is to include an assessment of the differences in costs incurred by such enrollees and plans for drugs dispensed by mail order pharmacies owned by PBMs compared to those not owned by PBMs, and community pharmacies. The study is to examine whether such plans are acting in a manner that maximizes competition and results in lower prescription drug prices for enrollees. The report is due to Congress within 18 months of enactment. It is to include recommendations regarding any legislation to insure the fiscal integrity of the Part D program. Conferees note the Secretary has the authority to accept or reject bids, based, among other factors, costs associated with delivering drug benefits.

The intent of the conferees in including this assessment by the FTC is to assess whether Medicare spending is likely to be adversely affected because of the use of mail order pharmacies that are owned and operated by a PBM under contract to a prescription drug plan or MA–PD plan. Therefore, this study should evaluate to what extent prescription drug spending is likely to be affected if a PDP or MA–PD plan approves the dispensation of covered drugs from a mail-order pharmacy owned directly or indirectly by a PBM compared to drug utilization and costs if the mail-order pharmacy were independently owned. Such assessment shall take into account the following:

(1) whether mail order pharmacies that are owned by PBMs (or entities that own PBMs) dispense fewer generic drugs compared to single source drugs within the same therapeutic class when compared to mail order pharmacies that are not owned by PBMs,

(2) whether mail order pharmacies that are owned by PBMs (or entities that own PBMs) routinely switch patients from lower priced drugs to higher priced drugs (in the absence of a clinical indication) when compared to mail order pharmacies that are not owned by PBMs,

(3) whether mail order pharmacies owned by PBMs (or entities that own PBMs) sell a higher proportion of repackaged drugs than mail order pharmacies that are not owned by PBMs,

(4) whether mail order pharmacies owned by PBMs (or entities owned by PBMs) sell repackaged drugs at prices above the manufacturer's average wholesale price,

(5) Other factors deemed relevant by the FTC.

In conducting this study, the FTC shall consider whether competition or drug pricing behavior by PBMs would be affected if PBMs were to bear financial risk for drug spending. The FTC shall issue a written report within 18 months of the date of enactment.

Disclosure of Return Information for Purposes of Carrying Out Medicare Catastrophic Prescription Drug Program. (Section 106 of House Bill).

Present Law

Current law authorizes, under specified circumstances, the disclosure by the Secretary of the Treasury of returns and return information for purposes other than tax administration.

House Bill

The provision would permit the Secretary of the Treasury, upon written request from the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) to disclose to officers and employees of HHS specific information with respect to a specified taxpayer for a specific tax year. The information that could be disclosed is taxpayer identity information and the adjusted gross income for the taxpayer or, if less, the income threshold limit specified under the new Part D ($200,000 in 2006). A specified taxpayer would be either: (1) an individual who had adjusted gross income for the year in question in excess of the income threshold specified in the new Part D ($60,000); or (2) an individual who elected to use more recent income information as permitted under Part D. Individuals filing joint returns would each be treated separately with each person considered to have an adjusted gross income equal to one-half of the total.

Return information disclosed, could be used by officers and employees of HHS only for administering the prescription drug benefit. They could disclose the annual out-of-pocket threshold applicable to an individual to the entity offering the individual prescription drug coverage. The sponsor could use such information only for the purposes of administering the benefit.

For the SLIMB and QI–1 population, there would be no premium for any plan whose premium was at or below the monthly national average premium. For other persons below 160% of poverty, only a percentage of the premium otherwise applicable. Persons with incomes above 160% of the poverty line would have, in 2006, the same cost-sharing otherwise specified under the bill.

The Secretary would designate 6 geographic areas (at least 2 rural), each containing not less than 3 sites. The program would be implemented between October 1, 2004 and January 1, 2005. Beneficiaries in an area could participate if they identified a qualified pharmacist to furnish medication therapy management services. The Secretary would enter into contracts with qualified pharmacists to provide such services. The fee established under the contract would be designed to test various payment methodologies including one that applied a relative value scale and fee schedule. Payments would be made from the Part B trust fund and be budget neutral. The Secretary would be required to make data on the program available and report to Congress within 6 months of completion of the program.

Senate Bill

An eligible entity offering a Medicare prescription drug plan under Part D or a MedicareAdvantage organization offering a MedicareAdvantage plan under Part C could not enter a contract with a pharmacy benefit manager (PBM) owned by a pharmaceutical manufacturing company. PBMs would be required to provide the following information, on an annual basis, to the Assistant Attorney General for Antitrust of the Department of Justice and the Inspector General for the Department of Health and Human Services: (1) aggregate amount of any and all rebates, discounts, administrative fees, promotional allowances, and other payments received or recovered from each pharmaceutical manufacturer; (2) the amount of payments received or recovered from each pharmaceutical manufacturer for each of the top 50 drugs (as measured by volume); and (3) the percentage differential between the price PBMs pay pharmacies and the price the PBM charges the PDP or MA organization. Failure to disclose could result in civil penalties; further, the U.S. district court could order compliance. No disclosed information would be made public, except as might be relevant to any judicial action or proceeding. Nothing in the provision would be intended to prevent disclosure to either body of Congress or any duly authorized committee or subcommittee.

Senate Bill

Within 1 year of enactment, the Secretary would be required to establish an Office of the Medicare Beneficiary Advocate within the Department of Health and Human Services. The Office would establish a toll-free number for beneficiaries to obtain information on the Medicare program, particularly with respect to Part D. It would establish a website with easily accessible information on PDPs and MA plans. From amounts appropriated to the Secretary's administrative account, $2 million could be used to establish the Office and such funds as may be necessary would be used to operate the Office.

TITLE II—MEDICARE ADVANTAGE

Subtitle A—Implementation of Medicare Advantage Program

Sec. 201. Implementation of Medicare Advantage program

Present Law

Health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and other types of managed care plans have long participated in the Medicare program, beginning with private health plan contracts in the 1970s and the Medicare risk contract program in the 1980s. In 1997, Congress passed the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (BBA 1997, P.L. 105–33), which replaced the risk contract program with the Medicare+Choice (M+C) program. M+C plans include coordinated care plans (HMOs, preferred provider organizations or PPOs, and provider-sponsored organizations or PSOs), private fee for service (PFFS) plans, and, on a temporary basis, medical savings accounts (MSAs).

House Bill

Section 200. Title II would establish the Medicare Enhanced Fee-for-Service (EFFS) program, under which Medicare beneficiaries would be provided access to a range of regional EFFS plans that could include preferred provider networks, beginning in 2006. It would establish the Medicare Advantage (MA) program, upon enactment, to replace the M+C program, which would continue to offer coordinated care and other plans on a county-wide basis as under current law. It would also use competitive bidding, beginning in 2010, in the same style as the Federal Employees Health Benefits program (FEHBP) for certain EFFS plans and MA plans, to promote greater efficiency and responsiveness to Medicare beneficiaries.

Senate Bill

Title II would establish the Medicare Advantage (MA) program, which would replace the M+C program, beginning in 2006. The MA program would continue to offer coordinated care and other plans on a county-wide basis as under current law. It would also establish regional PPOs, to be offered in regions. Beginning in 2008, it would establish a limited competition program, in areas designated as ''highly competitive.''

Conference Agreement

Section 201. The conference agreement establishes the Medicare Advantage (MA) program under Part C of Medicare. Any reference under Part C of Medicare to the ''Medicare+Choice'' program is deemed to be a reference to ''Medicare Advantage'' and ''MA''.

This title modernizes and revitalizes private plans under Medicare. The Balanced Budget Act (BBA) of 1997 altered payments for private plans and expanded the types of plans that could be offered under Medicare. Since payment rate changes were implemented, enrollment in private plans has fallen from 6.2 million beneficiaries in 1998 to 4.6 million beneficiaries in November 2003, and the number of plans has decreased from 346 risk plans in 1998 to 155 (151 coordinated care plans and 4 private FFS plans) in November 2003. This disruption has been due, in part, to unpredictable and insufficient payments. BBA 97 fundamentally de-linked payments to plans from FFS payment growth.

To increase beneficiary choice, Title II reforms the payment system in 2004. All plans would be paid at a rate at least as high as the rate for traditional FFS Medicare, as recommended by the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (MedPAC). After 2004, private plans' capitation rates would grow at the same rate as FFS Medicare. To increase beneficiary choice in more rural areas, Title II would establish regional plans, which would encourage private plans to serve Medicare beneficiaries in larger regions, beginning in 2006. Both local and regional MA private plans would bid competitively against a benchmark beginning in 2006.

Once private plans became established, and enrollment in private plans increased, a demonstration of comparative cost adjustment in selected sites would begin in 2010. Plan bids from private plans and rates for traditional FFS Medicare would be averaged to create a benchmark for competitive bidding. The competitive program would encourage beneficiaries to enroll in the most efficient plan, producing savings for both beneficiaries, through reduced premiums, and for taxpayers, through relatively lower Medicare costs.

Subtitle B—Immediate Improvements

Section 211. Immediate improvements

Present Law

Under current law, Medicare+Choice (M+C) plans are paid an administered monthly payment, called the M+C payment rate, for each enrollee. The per capita rate for a payment area is set at the highest of three amounts: (1) a minimum payment (or floor) rate, (2) a rate calculated as a blend of an area-specific (local) rate and a national rate, or (3) a rate reflecting a minimum increase from the previous year's rate (currently 2%).

A budget neutrality adjustment is made so that estimated total M+C payments in a given year will be equal to the total payments that would be made if payments were based solely on area-specific rates. The budget neutrality adjustment may only be applied to the blended rates because rates cannot be reduced below the floor or minimum increase amounts. The blend payment is also adjusted to remove the direct and indirect costs of graduate medical education. The blend payment amount is based on a weighted average of local and national rates for all Medicare beneficiaries.

Each year, the three payment amounts are updated by formulas set in statute. Both the floor and the blend are updated each year by a measure of growth in program spending, the national growth percentage. The minimum increase provides for an increase of at least 2% over the previous year's amount.

If an individual is in a short-term general hospital at the time he or she elected to enroll in an M+C plan or change from one M+C plan to another, payment for such services would be made through FFS or the original plan. Conversely, if an individual terminates enrollment in an M+C plan, that organization would be responsible for payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge.

House Bill

Section 212(a). For 2004, a 4th payment mechanism would be added and plans would receive the highest of the four payment calculations (the floor, blend, minimum percentage increase, or the new amount). The new payment amount would be 100% of fee-for-service (FFS) costs. The FFS payment would be based on the adjusted average per capita cost for the year, for an MA payment area, for services covered under Parts A and B for beneficiaries entitled to benefits under Part A, enrolled in Part B and not enrolled in an MA plan. This payment would be adjusted to remove payments for direct medical education costs and to include the additional payments that would have been made if Medicare beneficiaries entitled to benefits from facilities of the Department of Veteran Affairs (VA) and the Department of Defense (DOD) had not used those services (VA/DOD adjustment).

Section 212(b). In 2004, no adjustment would be made for budget neutrality, which would fund the blend for that year.

Section 212(c). The calculation of the minimum percentage increase would also be revised. For 2004 and beyond, the minimum percentage increase would be the greater of: (1) a 2% increase over the previous year's payment rate (as under current law), or (2) the previous year's payment increased by the national per capita MA growth percentage. For purposes of calculating the minimum percentage increase, there would be no adjustment to the national growth percentage for prior years' errors before 2004. Beginning in 2005 and each subsequent year, the payments to a plan would be based on its prior year rate increased by the revised minimum percentage increase.

Section 212(d). The area-specific MA capitation rate (the local component of the blend) would be adjusted to include the VA/DOD adjustment, beginning in 2004.

Section 212(e). Beginning January 1, 2004, the payment rule for beneficiaries in a short-term general hospital at the time they either elected to enroll in or to terminate their enrollment in an M+C plan, would be extended to a beneficiary in an inpatient rehabilitation facility.

Section 212(f). No later than 18 months after enactment of this Act, the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission would report to Congress providing an assessment of the method used for determining the adjusted average per capita cost (AAPCC). The report would examine the variation in costs between different areas, including differences in input prices, utilization and practice patterns; the appropriate geographic area for payment; and the accuracy of the risk adjustment methods in reflecting differences in the cost of providing care to different groups of beneficiaries.

Section 212(g). No later than July 1, 2006, the Administrator would submit a report to Congress that described the impact of additional financing provided under this Act and other Acts, (including the Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999—BBRA and the Benefits Improvement and Protection Act of 2000—BIPA) on the availability of MA plans in different areas and the impact on lowering premiums and increasing benefits under such plans.

Section 212(h). The Secretary would calculate and announce the new MA capitation rates within 6 weeks of enactment of this legislation.

Senate Bill

Section 203. [§1853(c)]. For payments before 2006, the payment would be calculated in the same manner as under current law—the highest of the blend, minimum payment (floor) rate, or minimum percentage increase. However the calculation of the minimum percentage increase would change for 2005. The minimum percentage increase for 2005 would be a 3% increase over the rate for the area for 2003. For 2006 and subsequent years, it would be a 2% increase over the previous year (but calculated as though the increase in 2005 was 2%.) Additionally, beginning in 2014, the minimum amount (floor) would be increased by the percentage increase in the CPI for all consumers, for the 12-month period ending in June of the previous year.

Section 204(b). The Secretary would conduct a study to determine the extent to which M+C cost-sharing discourages access to covered services or discriminates based on the health status of M+C eligible beneficiaries. The Secretary would submit a report to Congress, providing recommendations for legislation and administrative action, no later than December 31, 2004.

Section 210. The costs of DOD and VA military facility services would be included in the area specific M+C payment and the local fee for service rates beginning in 2006.

Conference Agreement

Section 211(a). The conference agreement makes several changes to the payments for MA plans. In some MA payment areas, the MA payment rate is lower than the costs of providing FFS care to enrollees in traditional Medicare in some parts of the country. Many private plans have seen their Medicare payment rates rise much less rapidly than the costs of FFS Medicare, as they have been held to increases of two percent annually every year since 1998, except for 2001 when a three percent increase was paid due to the BIPA. Health costs in general are running much higher than the two percent payment increases that most plans are receiving in the areas where most of the beneficiaries are enrolled in Medicare+Choice. Plans find it difficult—if not impossible—to contract with providers if FFS Medicare can reimburse providers at higher rates than private plans may offer, given their Medicare payments. If paid less than FFS Medicare, private plans may be forced to increase enrollee premiums or cost-sharing, or decrease supplemental benefits, such as prescription drug coverage. Since 1998, the number of plans participating in M+C has declined from 346 to 155.

To encourage plan entry, all private plans would be paid at a minimum of the FFS rate. In addition, private plan rates would increase at the same rate as growth in FFS Medicare. The goal is to increase beneficiary choice, by increasing private plan participation in Medicare.

For 2004, a 4th payment mechanism will be added and plans will receive the highest of the four payment calculations (the floor, blend, minimum percentage increase, or the new amount). The new payment amount is 100% of fee-for-service (FFS) costs. The FFS payment is based on the adjusted average per capita cost for the year, for an MA payment area, for services covered under Parts A and B for beneficiaries entitled to benefits under Part A, enrolled in Part B and not enrolled in an MA plan. The 4th payment mechanism, 100% fee-for-service, will be rebased no less than once every 3 years. This payment will be adjusted to: (1) remove payments for direct medical education costs, and (2) include the additional payments that would have been made if Medicare beneficiaries entitled to benefits from facilities of the Department of Veteran Affairs (VA) and the Department of Defense (DOD) had not used those services (VA/DOD adjustment).

Section 211(b). In 2004, no adjustment will be made for budget neutrality, in order to fund the blend for that year.

Section 211(c). The calculation of the minimum percentage increase will also be revised. For 2004 and beyond, the minimum percentage increase will be the greater of: (1) a 2% increase over the previous year's payment rate (as under current law); or (2) the previous year's payment increased by the national per capita MA growth percentage. For purposes of calculating the minimum percentage increase, there will be no adjustment to the national growth percentage for prior years' errors before 2004. Beginning in 2005 and each subsequent year, the payments to a plan will be based on its prior year rate increased by the revised minimum percentage increase.

Section 211(d). The area-specific MA capitation rate (the local component of the blend) will be adjusted to include the VA/DOD adjustment, beginning in 2004.

Section 211(e). Beginning January 1, 2004, the payment rule for beneficiaries in a short-term general hospital at the time they either elected to enroll in or to terminate their enrollment in an MA plan, will be extended to a beneficiary in an rehabilitation hospital, a distinct part rehabilitation unit, or a long-term care hospital. For beneficiaries leaving their MA plan while receiving these inpatient hospital services, this provision will expand the rule that disallows payment for such services under fee-for-service payments for inpatient hospitals. Under the expansion, payments will be prohibited from any type of payment provision under Medicare for inpatient services, for the type of facility, hospital, or unit involved.

Section 211(f). No later than 18 months after enactment of this Act, the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (MedPAC) will submit a report to Congress providing an assessment of the method used for determining the adjusted average per capita cost (AAPCC). The report will examine the variation in costs between different areas, including differences in input prices, utilization and practice patterns; the appropriate geographic area for payment of local MA plans; and the accuracy of the risk adjustment methods in reflecting differences in the cost of providing care to different groups of beneficiaries.

Section 211(g). No later than July 1, 2006, the Secretary will submit a report to Congress that describes the impact of additional financing provided under this Act and other Acts, (including the Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999—BBRA and the Benefits Improvement and Protection Act of 2000—BIPA) on the availability of MA plans in different areas and the impact on lowering premiums and increasing benefits under such plans.

Section 211(h). The Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (MedPAC) will conduct a study to determine the extent to which MA cost-sharing affects access to covered services or selects enrollees based on the health status of MA eligible beneficiaries. MedPAC will submit a report to Congress, providing recommendations for legislation and administrative action, no later than December 31, 2004.

Section 211(i). Within 6 weeks after enactment, the Secretary will determine and announce the revised MA capitation rates. The revised payment rates will be subject to the same transition rules that applied to revised payments after the passage of the Benefits Improvement and Protection Act of 2000 (BIPA, P.L. 106–554), including the requirement that plans that previously announced their intention to terminate their contract or reduce their service area could rescind their notice, among other transition rules. Also for 2004, any changes to payments made under this Act will be effective beginning in March 2004, and would be adjusted to include any additional amounts plans would have received if the new payment system had been effective January 1. If a plan revises its submission of information to the Secretary, and it includes changes in beneficiary premiums, beneficiary cost-sharing, or benefits under the plan, then the plan is required to notify each enrollee in writing, within 3 weeks after the date that the Secretary approves the changes. There will be no administrative or judicial review of any determination made by the Secretary for application of this section or payment rates.

In order to clarify current law, if a private fee-for-service plan has contacts and agreements with a sufficient number and range of providers within a category of health care professionals and providers, it may charge higher beneficiary copayments to providers in that category who do not have such contracts or agreements (other than deemed contracts or agreements).

Subtitle C—Offering Medicare Advantage (MA) Regional Plan; Medicare Advantage Competition

Section 221. Establishment of MA regional plans

Present Law

M+C plans include coordinated care plans (HMOs, preferred provider organizations or PPOs, and provider-sponsored organizations or PSOs), private fee for service (PFFS) plans, and, on a temporary basis, medical savings accounts (MSAs).

Enrollment in any individual M+C plan is open only to those beneficiaries living in a specific service area. An M+C payment area is defined as a county, or equivalent area as specified by the Secretary. Plans define a service area as a set of counties and county parts, identified at the zip code level. At a state's option, the service area could be defined as the entire state; however, to date, no state has done so.

House Bill

Section 201(a). [§1860E–1(a)] Beginning January 1, 2006, the Administrator would establish the EFFS program for EFFS eligible individuals in EFFS regions. Plans would be offered on a regional basis, in at least 10 regions established by the Administrator. Before establishing the regions, the Administrator would conduct a market survey and analysis, including an examination of current insurance markets, to determine how the regions should be established. Regions would be established to take into consideration maximizing full access for all EFFS-eligible individuals, especially those residing in rural areas. [§1860E–1(b)]. EFFS plans would be required to provide either fee-for-service (FFS) or preferred provider coverage. Under FFS coverage, plans would: (1) reimburse hospitals, physicians and other providers at a rate determined by the plan on a FFS basis, without placing providers at risk, (2) not vary rates based on the provider's utilization, and (3) not restrict the selection of providers from among those who were lawfully authorized to provide covered services and agreed to accept the plan's terms and conditions. Under preferred provider coverage, plans would: (1) have a network of providers who agreed to a contractually-specified reimbursement for covered benefits with the organization, and (2) provide for reimbursement for all covered benefits regardless of whether they were provided within the network.

[§1860E–1(c)]. EFFS plans would have to comply with existing eligibility, election, and enrollment provisions (under §1851) including guaranteed issue and renewal, but could offer cash rebates, reduced premiums, or supplemental benefits to beneficiaries if plan bids were below a specified benchmark.

[§1860E–3(a)]. The Administrator may enter into contracts with up to three EFFS organizations in any region.

Senate Bill

Section 211. [§1858(a)]. Beginning January 1, 2006, a preferred provider organization (PPO) plan would be offered to MA eligible individuals in preferred provider regions. A PPO would be an entity with a contract that met other requirements of this Act. A PPO would have a network of providers that agreed to contractually specified reimbursements for covered benefits under Parts A and B. The PPO would pay for all covered services an enrollee received, whether provided in or out of network.

[§1858(a)(3)]. There would be at least 10 regions. Each region would have to include at least one state, and could be the entire United States. The Secretary could not divide states so that portions of the state were in different regions. To the extent possible, the Secretary would include multi-state metropolitan statistical areas (MSAs) in a single region, except that he or she could divide an MSA where necessary to establish a region of such size and geography to maximize the participation of PPOs. The Secretary could use the same regions established for the prescription drug program, under Part D. The service area of a PPO would be the region.

Each plan would be offered to any MA eligible individual residing in the service area.

Section 211. [§1858(b)]. PPOs would be required to establish a sufficient number and range of health care professionals and providers willing to provide services under the plan's terms. The Secretary would consider this requirement to be met if the organization had a sufficient number of contracts and agreements with a sufficient number and range of providers. These arrangements would not restrict enrollee access to other providers for covered services. Additionally, if the plan was in a state where 25% or more of the population resided in a health professional shortage area, these arrangements would also not restrict the categories of licensed health professionals or providers from whom the enrollee could obtain covered benefits. The Secretary could disapprove any PPO believed to attract a population that is healthier than the average population of the region serviced by the plan.

Section 211. [§1858(d)]. If there were bids for more than three plans in a preferred provider region, the Secretary would limit the number of plans to the three lowest-cost credible plans that met or exceeded the quality or minimum standards.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement establishes a new regional plan program beginning in 2006. The Secretary will establish between 10 and 50 regions across the nation. Plans wishing to participate in this program will be required to serve an entire region. By requiring plans to serve larger service areas that bring together both urban and rural areas, the program will bring greater health plan choices to areas not previously served by the Medicare+Choice program, particularly rural areas.

In establishing Medicare Advantage regions (MA regions), the Secretary will conduct a market study to determine how regions should best be constructed to maximize plan participation and availability of plans to beneficiaries. The conference agreement includes a number of provisions to provide incentives for plans to participate in the regional program. These provisions include risk corridors for plans during the first 2 years of the program, 2006 and 2007; a stabilization fund to encourage plan entry and limit plan withdrawals; a blended benchmark that will provide greater responsiveness to the market by allowing plan bids to influence the benchmark amount; and a network adequacy fund to assist plans in forming adequate networks, particularly in rural areas. While private plans have experience in serving Medicare beneficiaries at a local level, such plans have not previously operated on a region-wide basis. These provisions will assist plans as they enter this new line of business and learn the market dynamics of serving beneficiaries across larger regions.

Section 221(a). This provision establishes a 2-year moratorium on new local preferred provider organizations in order to encourage PPOs to operate at the regional level. PPOs that are in operation as of December 31, 2005, including demonstration projects, will be allowed to continue operations and expand enrollment in their existing service areas during this period; however they will not be allowed to expand their service areas. PPOs will be able to enter new or expanded service areas again beginning January 1, 2008.

Section 221(b). The conference agreement allows MA regional coordinated care plans under the MA program. An MA regional plan: (1) has a network of providers who agreed to a contractually specified reimbursement for covered benefits with the organization offering the plan, (2) provides for reimbursement for all covered benefits regardless of whether such benefits are provided within such network of providers, and (3) has a service area of one or more MA regions. A local MA plan is an MA plan that is not an MA regional plan, and local MA areas are defined, as under current law, as a county or equivalent area specified by the Secretary. MSA and PFFS plans are defined as local plans, although nothing prevents an MSA plan or an MA PFFS plan from serving one or more regions, or the entire Nation.

Section 221(c). [§1858(a)(1)]. The service area for an MA regional plan will consist of an entire MA region and may not be segmented.

[§1858(a)(2)]. No later than January 1, 2005 the Secretary will establish and publish a list of MA regions. There will be between 10 and 50 regions within the 50 states and the District of Columbia. Before establishing the MA regions, the Secretary will conduct a market survey and analysis, including an examination of current insurance markets. The regions should maximize the availability of MA regional plans to all MA eligible individuals without regard to health status, especially beneficiaries residing in rural areas. To the extent possible, each region should include at least one State, should not divide States across regions, and should include multi-State Metropolitan Statistical Areas in a single region. The Secretary may periodically review MA regions and, based on the review, revise the regions to be more appropriate. An MA regional plan may be offered in more than one region including all regions.

Single Deductible and Catastrophic Limit

Present Law

Medicare does not have a catastrophic limit on beneficiary out-of-pocket expenses, although some M+C plans offer an out-of-pocket limit as an added benefit. The original Medicare FFS program includes a Part B deductible and a separate Part A deductible for hospital stays.

House Bill

Section 201(a). [§1860E–2(b and c)]. EFFS plans could only be offered in a region if the plan, among other requirements, included a single deductible for benefits under Parts A and B, and a catastrophic limit on out-of-pocket expenses.

Senate Bill

Section 202. [§1852(a)]. Each MA plan would have to offer a maximum limitation on out-of-pocket expenses and a unified deductible.

Conference Agreement

Section 221(c). [§1858(b)]. In order to ensure that MA regional plans are structured more like existing private market plans for the under-65 population, the conference agreement requires MA regional plans to include a single deductible for benefits under Parts A and B. The single deductible may be applied differentially for in-network services and may be waived for preventive or other items and services. MA regional plans will also be required to include two catastrophic limits—one for out-of-pocket expenditures for in-network Part A and B benefits and one for out-of-pocket expenditures for all Part A and B benefits. Payment rates to these plans are not increased to provide this coverage.

Risk Corridors

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

Section 211. [§1858(e)]. The PPO would notify the Secretary of the total amount of costs incurred during 2007 and 2008 in providing covered benefits under Part A and B of Medicare, except that certain expenses would not be included (administrative expenses over the amount determined appropriate by the Administrator and amounts expended for enhanced medical benefits).

The Secretary would be required to establish risk corridors for the regional PPO plans for 2006 and 2007. Medicare would share risk with PPO organizations after costs fell above or below a risk corridor of 5% as follows: (1) Medicare would share 50% of the losses or profits between 105% and 110% of a target which consists of Medicare's MA payment plus the beneficiaries' contributions; and (2) Medicare would share 90% of the losses or profits above 110% of the target. PPOs would be at full risk for all enhanced medical benefits. A beneficiary's liability would not be affected by these risk corridors in the given years.

Conference Agreement

Section 221(c). [§1858(c)]. In order to encourage plans to enter the regional market and to provide assistance to these plans during the start-up phase of their business, Medicare will share risk with MA regional plans if costs fall above or below a specific risk corridor. These risk corridors will be available to plans during 2006 and 2007. The conference agreement provides that MA regional plans notify the Secretary of: (1) the total costs of providing Part A and B benefits and the portion attributable to allowable administrative expenses, and (2) the costs of providing rebatable integrated benefits and the portion of these costs attributable to allowable administrative expenses. Allowable cost is defined, with respect to an MA regional plan for a year, as the total amount of costs incurred in providing benefits under the original Medicare FFS program, and rebatable integrated benefits, reduced by administrative expenses. Rebatable integrated benefits are defined as non-drug supplemental benefits provided by a plan, as part of its required rebate to beneficiaries, that are integrated with the benefits under the original Medicare fee-for-service program. The Secretary will have discretion to evaluate whether certain rebatable benefits should be included in allowable costs for risk corridor calculations.

[§1854(c)(2)(D)]. The target amount is defined as an amount equal to the sum of: (1) the total monthly payments made to the organization for enrollees in the plan for the year that are attributable to benefits under the original Medicare FFS program; (2) the total of the MA monthly basic beneficiary premium, collectable for the enrollees for the year; and (3) the total amount of rebatable integrated benefits that the Secretary determines are appropriate for inclusion in the risk corridor calculation. The target amount does not include the cost of administrative expenses for FFS benefits or for rebatable supplemental benefits.

[§1854(c)(2)]. There will be no payment adjustment if the allowable costs for the plan are at least 97 percent, but do not exceed 103 percent of the target amount for the plan. If allowable costs for the plan are more than 103 percent but less than 108 percent of the target amount for the plan for the year, the Secretary will increase the total monthly payments made to the organization by 50 percent of the difference between 103 percent and allowable costs. If allowable costs for the plan are greater than 108 percent of the target amount, the Secretary will increase the total monthly payments to the plan by an amount equal to the sum of: (1) 2.5 percent of the target amount; and (2) 80 percent of the difference between allowable costs and 108 percent of the target. Conversely, if the allowable costs for the plan are less than 97 percent, but greater than or equal to 92 percent of the target amount, the Secretary will reduce the total monthly payment to the plan by 50 percent of the difference between 97 percent of the target amount and the allowable cost. If the allowable costs for the plan are below 92 percent of the target, the Secretary will reduce the total monthly payments to the organization by the sum of: (1) 2.5 percent of the target amount, and (2) 80 percent of the difference between 92 percent of the target and the allowable cost.

[§1854(c)(3)]. Each contract under the MA program will provide the information the Secretary deems necessary to carry out this subsection. While the Secretary has the right to inspect and audit all books and records pertaining to information provided under this section, the information disclosed or obtained may only be used to carry out this section.

Organizational and Financial Requirements

[§1854(d)]. In order to facilitate the offering of MA plans in regions that may encompass multiple states, the conference agreement establishes rules for applying licensing requirements across states. If an MA organization offering an MA regional plan is organized and licensed under State law in a state in the region but does not meet the requirements in other states in the region, the Secretary may waive such requirement for an appropriate period of time. Such a waiver can only be granted if the organization demonstrates to the Secretary's satisfaction that it has filed the necessary application to meet the other state's requirements. If an MA organization is organized and licensed under more than one state in the region, and the organization does not meet the requirements of each state, the organization may select the rules of one State and apply those rules to the entire service area until such time as the organization meets a state's requirements, in a manner specified by the Secretary.

Stabilization Fund

Present Law

No provision.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

Section 231. If an area was designated as highly competitive, benchmarks would not apply. Instead, a plan would bid the total payment it was willing to accept (not taking into account risk adjustment) for providing required Parts A and B benefits to plan enrollees residing in the service area. The Secretary would substitute the second lowest bid for the benchmark. If there were fewer than three bids, the Secretary would be required to substitute the lowest bid for the benchmark. Total funding for this provision is limited to $6 billion over 2009 through 2013.

Conference Agreement

Section 221(c). [§1858(e)]. During the past several years a number of plans have pulled out of the Medicare+Choice program due to changing market conditions and an inflexible payment formula. Plans were held to 2 percent annual payment increases while costs in the fee-for-service program were rising at a much faster rate. Under current law, the Secretary had no ability to respond quickly to these market changes, resulting in plan withdrawals which have affected millions of beneficiaries. In order to promote greater stability in the regional program and provide the Secretary with a tool to respond to market fluctuations, the conference agreement establishes an MA Regional Plan Stabilization Fund. The Fund can be used to provide incentives for plan entry in each region and plan retention in MA regions with below- average MA penetration. Initially, $10 billion will be available for expenditures from the Fund beginning on January 1, 2007 and these start-up funds will only be available until December 31, 2013. Funds will be drawn from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund in a proportion that reflects the relative weight that the benefits under Parts A and B represent of the actuarial value of the total benefit. Additional funds will be available in an amount equal to 12.5% of average per capita monthly savings from regional plans that bid below the benchmark. The additional funds will be deposited on a monthly basis into a special account in the Treasury.

The Fund is designed to allow the Secretary to respond to market conditions on a temporary basis. If the Fund is used for either plan entry or retention for 2 consecutive years, the Secretary must report to Congress on the underlying market conditions in the regions. These reports will give Congress time to respond to the market conditions through changes to the regions or the underlying payment system.

[§1858(e)(2)]. The funds will be available in advance of appropriations to MA regional plans in accordance with specified funding limitations. [§1854(e)(5)]. The total amount projected to be expended from the Fund in any year may not exceed the amount available in the Fund as of the first day of that year. If the use of the stabilization fund results in increased expenditures under this title, the increased expenditures shall be counted as expenditures from the Fund. The Secretary will only obligate funds if the Secretary, the Chief Actuary of CMS, and the appropriate budget officer certifies that there are sufficient funds at the beginning of the year to cover all such obligations for that year. The Secretary will take steps to ensure that sufficient funds are available to make such payments for the entire year, which may include computing additional payment amounts or limitations on enrollment in MA regional plans receiving such payments. [§1858(e)(2)(D)]. Expenditures from the Fund will first be made from amounts made available from the initial funding.

[§1858(e)(3)]. Plan entry incentives are available for either a one-year national bonus payment or multi-year adjustments in regional payments; however in no case can there be a regional payment adjustment if there is a national bonus for that year. In order to encourage the offering of plans in all regions, the national bonus payment will be available to an MA organization that elects to offer a regional plan in each MA region in a year, but only if one of the regions did not have a plan available in the previous year. Funding is only available for a single year, but more than one organization can receive the incentive in the same year. The national bonus payment will: (1) be available to an organization only if it offers plans in every MA region; (2) be available to all MA regional plans of the organization regardless of whether any other MA regional plan is offered in any region; and (3) be equal to 3 percent of the benchmark amount otherwise applicable for each MA regional plan offered by the organization, subject to funding limitations.

[§1858(e)(3)]. If a national bonus payment is not made, a regional payment adjustment can be made. The regional payment adjustment is an increased payment for an MA regional plan offered in an MA region that did not have any MA regional plans offered in the previous year. The Secretary will determine the adjusted payment amount based solely on plans' bids in the region, and the adjusted payment amount will be available to all plans offered in the region. The amount can be based on the mean, mode, median or other measure of such bids and may vary from region to region, but the payment amount cannot be determined through a method that limits the number of plans or bids in the region. Such a payment adjustment will be treated as a change to the benchmark amount in that region for purposes of calculating individual plan payments and beneficiary rebates.

[§1858(e)(3)(C)(ii)]. Subject to funding limitations, the Secretary will determine the period of time that funds are available for regional payment changes to encourage plan entry. If funding will be provided for a second consecutive year under this provision, the Secretary is required to submit a report to Congress describing the underlying market dynamics in the region and recommending changes to the payment methodology. Multi-year funding may be made available to all MA plans offered in a region. If this multi-year increased amount is made available to MA plans in a region, funding will not be available for plan retention in the region in the following year. Regional payment adjustments will not be taken into account when computing the underlying benchmark for the subsequent year.

[§1858(e)(4)]. In addition to using the Fund to encourage plans to enter regions that might otherwise go unserved, the Secretary may also use the fund to encourage plans to remain in regions if market conditions are causing plan withdrawals. Incentives for plan retention could take the form of an increased payment to plans in regions that meet specific requirements. The requirements are: (1) one or more plans inform the Secretary that they will discontinue service in the region in the succeeding year; (2) the Secretary determines that if those plans were not offered, fewer than 2 MA regional plans, each offered by a different organization, would be offered in the region in the year; (3) for the previous year, the Secretary determines that the proportion of beneficiaries enrolled in MA regional plans in the region is less than national average of MA regional plan enrollment; (4) funds have not already been awarded for 2 consecutive years. Any additional payment amount will be treated as if it were an addition to the benchmark amount otherwise applicable, but will not be taken into account in the computation of the benchmark for any subsequent year. If plans receive funding under this part for a second year, the Secretary will submit a report to Congress that describes the underlying market dynamics in the region and includes recommendations concerning changes in the payment methodology otherwise provided for MA regional plans under this part.

[§1858(e)(4)]. The incentive for plan retention payment will be an amount determined by the Secretary, that does not exceed the greater of: (1) 3 percent of the benchmark amount applicable in the region; or (2) an amount that, when added to the benchmark, results in a ratio such that the additional amount plus the benchmark for the region divided by the adjusted average per capita cost (AAPCC) equals the weighted average of benchmarks for all regions divided by the AAPCC for the United States.

[§1858(e)(6)]. Not later than April 1 of each year beginning in 2008, the Secretary will submit a report to Congress and the Comptroller General of the United States that includes: (1) a detailed description of the total amount expended as a result of the Stabilization Fund in the previous year (and the projections for the current year) compared to the total amount that would have been expended under this title in each year if this subsection had not been enacted; (2) amounts remaining within the funding limitations; and (3) the steps the Secretary will take to ensure that the expenditures from the Stabilization Fund will not exceed the amount available. The report will include certification from the Chief Actuary of CMS that estimates are reasonable, accurate and based on generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies.

[§1858(e)(7)]. Not later than January 1 of 2009, 2011, 2013 and 2015, the Comptroller General of the United States will submit a report to the Secretary and Congress on the application of payments from the Stabilization Fund. The reports will include an evaluation of: (1) the quality of care provided to individuals for which additional payments were made from the Stabilization Fund; (2) beneficiary satisfaction; (3) the cost of Stabilization Fund payments to the Medicare program; and (4) any improvements in service delivery. The report will also include a comparative analysis of the performance of MA regional plans receiving payments to MA regional plans not receiving Stabilization Fund payments, and recommendations for legislation or administrative action as the Comptroller General determines would be appropriate.

Regional Blended Benchmark

Present Law

Under current law, Medicare+Choice (M+C) plans are paid an administered monthly payment, called the M+C payment rate, for each enrollee. The per capita rate for a payment area is set at the highest of three amounts: (1) a minimum payment (or floor) rate, (2) a rate calculated as a blend of an area-specific (local) rate and a national rate, or (3) a rate reflecting a minimum increase from the previous year's rate (currently 2%). In general, the Secretary makes monthly payments for each M+C enrollee reduced by any Part B premium reduction, and adjusted for risk.

House Bill

Section 201. [§1860E–3(b)]. The EFFS region-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount means an amount equal to 1⁄12 of the average (weighted by the number of EFFS eligible individuals in each local payment area in the region) of the annual MA payment rate for payment areas within the region.

Senate Bill

Section 211. [§1858(c)(2)]. Beginning in 2006, the Secretary would calculate a benchmark amount for required services for each region equal to the average of each benchmark amount for each MA payment area within the region, weighted by the number of MA eligible individuals residing in the payment area for the year. Each year, beginning in 2005, the Secretary would publish (at the time of publication of the risk adjustors under Part D—no later than April 15) the benchmark amount for each region, factors to be used for adjusting payments under the comprehensive risk adjustment methodology and methodology used for adjustments for geographic variations within a region.

Conference Agreement

Section 221(c). [§1854(f)]. Beginning in 2006, the Secretary will compute a ''blended benchmark'' amount for each MA region. The blended benchmark is designed to be responsive to market conditions in the region by allowing plan bids to influence the final benchmark amount. The MA region-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount is defined as the sum of a statutory component and a plan-bid component for the year. The statutory component is the product of the statutory region-specific non-drug amount for the region and the year, and the statutory national market share percentage. The statutory region-specific non-drug amount, the first part of the statutory component, is an amount equal to the sum, (for each local MA area within the region) of the product of the MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount for the area and the year, and the number of MA eligible individuals residing in the local area, divided by the total number of MA eligible individuals residing in the region. The statutory national market share percentage, the second part of the statutory component, is equal to the proportion of MA eligible individuals nationally who were not enrolled in an MA plan during the most recent month during the previous year for which data are available.

The plan-bid component is the product of the weighted average of MA plan bids for the region and the year and the non-statutory market share percentage. The weighted average of plan bids for an MA region is calculated as the sum across MA regional plans, of (for each plan) the products of the unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid for the plan, and the plan's share of MA enrollment in the region. Or, in the first year in which any regional plan is offered in a region, if more than one MA regional plan is offered in that year, the plan's share of MA enrollment in the region is replaced in the formula either by (1) one divided by the number of plans in the region, or (2) a share estimated by the Secretary. The non-statutory market share percentage is one minus the statutory national market share percentage.

Uniform Coverage Determination

Present Law

An M+C organization may elect to have a single local coverage policy apply to its plan when the plan's service area includes more than one local coverage policy area. The Secretary will identify the local coverage policy that is most beneficial to M+C enrollees.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

Section 221(c). [§1854(g)]. The organization offering an MA regional plan may elect to have a local coverage determination for the entire MA plan based on the local coverage determination applied for any part of the region, as selected by the organization. These local coverage determination are may be appealed under the applicable provisions of section 1869(f) (BIPA, sec. 522).

Assurance of Network Adequacy

Present Law

An M+C organization may select the providers in its network, so long as: (1) the organization makes the benefits available and accessible to each individual within the service area with reasonable promptness and in a manner which assures continuity in the provision of benefits; (2) when medically necessary, the organization makes benefits available and accessible 24 hours a day and 7 days a week; and (3) the plan provides reimbursement for services provided outside of the network when services are medically necessary and immediately required, when the services are renal dialysis and the beneficiary is temporarily out of the plan's service area, or when the services are maintenance care or post-stabilization. The organization must provide access to appropriate providers including credentialed specialists, and must provide emergency services without regard to prior authorization.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

Section 221(c). [§1854(h)]. All current law network adequacy requirements will remain in place under the new regional program. However, because regions may encompass areas served by a single hospital, plans may have difficulty meeting their network adequacy requirements if they are unable to reach an agreement with such a hospital. In order to facilitate the meeting of these network adequacy requirements across large regions, the conference agreement allows the Secretary to provide payment to an essential hospital that provides services to enrollees in an area, in cases in which the MA organization offering the plan was unable to reach an agreement with the hospital regarding provision of services to plan enrollees. The Secretary will make the plan payment available only if the organization makes satisfactory assurances to the Secretary that it will pay the hospital an amount not less than the Medicare Part A payment for such services, and, with respect to specific services provided to an enrollee, the hospital demonstrates that its costs exceed the Medicare Part A payment. The agreement makes $25 million available in 2006, increased each year by the growth in the market basket percentage. Subject to that limit, the payment, if any, would be the amount by which the payment for inpatient hospital services if the hospital were a critical access hospital exceeds the payment for the same service that the hospital would otherwise receive. An essential hospital would be defined as a general acute care hospital that demonstrates to the Secretary that its costs exceed the Medicare Part A payment and is determined by the Secretary to be necessary for the plan to meet its network adequacy requirements.

Section 222. Competition program beginning in 2006

Submission of bidding and rebate information

Present Law

Under current law, Medicare+Choice (M+C) plans are paid an administered monthly payment, called the M+C payment rate, for each enrollee. The per capita rate for a payment area is set at the highest of three amounts: (1) a minimum payment (or floor) rate, (2) a rate calculated as a blend of an area-specific (local) rate and a national rate, or (3) a rate reflecting a minimum increase from the previous year's rate (currently 2%). In general, the Secretary makes monthly payments for each M+C enrollee, reduced by any Part B premium reduction, and adjusted for risk.

Each year a coordinated care plan of an M+C organization submits an adjusted community rate (ACR) proposal, estimating its proposed cost to serve Medicare beneficiaries for the following contract year and comparing such costs to the estimated costs of providing Medicare services to a commercial population. To the extent that a plan's ACR is below the administered payment amount, the plan must provide additional benefits to its enrollees or reductions in the Part B premium. In submitting its proposal, the organization must include information on: (1) the ACR; (2) the M+C monthly basic beneficiary premium; (3) a description of the deductible, coinsurance and copayments under the plan (including the actuarial value of each); and (4) a description of any required additional benefits. For supplemental benefits, the organization must also include: (1) the ACR, (2) the M+C monthly supplemental beneficiary premium, and (3) a description of the deductible, coinsurance and copayments, including the actuarial value of each.

House Bill

Section 221(a). Beginning in 2006, an MA organization would be required to provide the following information: (1) the monthly bid amount for the provision of all required items and services, based on average costs for a typical enrollee residing in the area and the actuarial bases for determining such amount; (2) the proportion of the bid attributed to the provision of statutory non-drug benefits (the ''unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid'' amount), statutory prescription drug benefits, and non-statutory benefits (including the actuarial basis for determining these proportions); and (3) additional information as the Administrator may require.

Senate Bill

Section 204. [§1854(a)]. Each MA organization would be required to submit information by the second Monday in September, including: (1) notice of intent and information on the service area of the plan; (2) the plan type for each plan; (3) specific information for coordinated care and PFFS plans; (4) enrollment capacity; (5) the expected mix of enrollees, by health status; and (6) other information specified by the Secretary. For coordinated care plans and PFFS plans, the plans would also be required to submit the plan bid (the total amount that the plan was willing to accept for required Parts A and B benefits not taking into account the application of comprehensive risk adjustment), the assumptions used in preparing the bid with respect to the number of enrollees in each payment area and the mix by health status, and any required information for prescription drug coverage. The plan bid would also have to be based on actuarial equivalence.

For any enhanced medical benefit package a plan chooses to offer, it would be required to provide the following information: (1) the ACR, (2) the portion of the actuarial value of such benefits package, if any, that would be applied toward satisfying the requirement for additional benefits, (3) the MA monthly beneficiary premium for enhanced benefits, (4) cost-sharing requirements, (5) the description of whether the unified deductible had been lowered or if the maximum out-of-pocket limitation had been decreased, and (6) other information required by the Secretary.

[§1854(a)(5)]. Each plan bid would be required to reasonably and equitably reflect the cost of benefits provided under that plan.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(a). Under the current Medicare+Choice system, plans are paid a fixed administrative amount regardless of their efficiency or their actual costs of providing services to the Medicare population. Beginning in 2006, an MA organization (other than an MSA) will be required to submit a bid to provide services to Medicare beneficiaries on either a local or a regional level. In submitting its bid, the plan will provide the following information: (1) the monthly aggregate bid amount for the provision of all required items and services, based on average revenue requirements (as applied under Title XIII of the Public Health Service Act for Health Maintenance Organizations) in the payment area for an enrollee with a national average risk profile (including demographic risk factors and health status); (2) the proportion of the bid attributable to the provision of benefits under the original Medicare fee-for-service program, basic prescription drug coverage, and supplemental health care benefits; (3) the actuarial basis for determining the amounts and proportions, and additional information as the Secretary may require to verify such actuarial basis; (4) a description of deductibles, coinsurance and copayments applicable under the plan and their actuarial value; and (5) for qualified prescription drug coverage, the information required under Title I of this Act. In order to facilitate regional plans being offered in more than one MA region, the Secretary will establish procedures to reduce paperwork for bids in multiple regions. Use of the term ''required revenue'' is intended to make clear that the bids of health plans incorporate all their revenue needs, both the medical costs of providing benefits and associated administrative costs (including profits or retained earnings).

The changes made in the bidding process under Part C do not apply to PACE programs, which operate outside of Part C. However, if they wish to offer qualified prescription drug coverage, they will be treated as a MA–PD local plan and must submit a bid for drug coverage.

Plan bids for supplemental benefits, for which plans charge a premium may include reductions in the cost sharing that would otherwise apply under the plan for Part A and B services. Benefits in each of the three areas (A/B benefits, prescription drug benefits, and supplemental benefits) will be integrated together in a way that is seamless to the beneficiary and paid for through a single premium.

Acceptance and Negotiation of Bid Amounts

Present Law

The Secretary reviews the information submitted by plans and approves or disapproves the premiums, cost-sharing amounts, and benefits. The Secretary does not have the authority to review the premiums for either MSA plans or PFFS plans.

House Bill

Section 221(a)(3)(C). The Administrator would have the same authority to negotiate bid amounts that the Director of the Office of Personnel Management has with respect to the Federal Employee Health Benefits Plan. The Administrator could negotiate the bid amount and could also reject a bid amount or proportion of the bid, if it was not supported by the actuarial basis. PFFS plans would be exempt from this negotiation.

Senate Bill

Section 204(a)(5). Each bid amount would have to reasonable and equitably reflect the cost of benefits provided by the plan.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(a). The conference agreement provides the Secretary with the authority to negotiate the monthly bid amount and the proportions, including supplemental benefits. The Secretary has similar authority to negotiate bid amounts to that of the Director of the Office of Personnel Management with respect to the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program. The Secretary may only accept such a bid amount and proportion if they are supported by the actuarial bases, and reasonably and equitably reflect the revenue requirement (as applied under Title XIII of the Public Health Service Act for Health Maintenance Organizations) of benefits provided under the plan. As under current law, the Secretary does not have the authority to review the bid amounts for PFFS plans.

The Secretary may not require: (1) any MA organization to contract with a particular hospital, physician, or other entity or individual to furnish items and services under this title; or (2) a particular price structure for payment under such a contract to the extent consistent with the Secretary's authority.

Benefits under the original Medicare fee-for-service program option

Present Law

M+C plans are required to include all Medicare-covered services (Parts A and B benefits) except hospice care. In some circumstances, plans may also be required to offer additional benefits or reduced cost-sharing to their beneficiaries. The basic benefit package includes all of the required Medicare-covered benefits (except hospice services) as well as the additional benefits, as determined by a formula which is set in law. The adjusted community rate (ACR) mechanism is the process through which health plans determine the minimum amount of additional benefits, if any, they are required to provide to Medicare enrollees and the cost-sharing they are permitted to charge for those benefits. Medicare does not have a catastrophic limit on beneficiary out-of-pocket expenses although some M+C plans offer an out-of-pocket limit as an added benefit. The original Medicare FFS program includes a Part B deductible and a separate Part A deductible for inpatient hospital stays.

House Bill

MA organizations, other than PFFS plans, will be required to offer at least one plan in their service area that provides drug coverage as outlined in Title I. However, if an organization offers one such plan with drug coverage, they may offer alternative plans without such drug coverage. MA plans would be required to pay rebates to beneficiaries—in the form of additional benefits, reduced premiums, or cash payments—to the extent that program payments to MA plans exceeded bid amounts. MA plans would also be able to offer supplemental benefits for additional premiums.

Senate Bill

Section 202. [§1852(a)]. In addition to offering Medicare Parts A and B benefits (except hospice) and any additional required benefits, each MA plan (except MSAs, and in the case of prescription drug coverage, PFFS plans) would be required to offer: (1) qualified prescription drug coverage under Part D to beneficiaries residing in the area, and (2) a maximum limitation on out-of-pocket expenses and a unified deductible.

[§1852(a)(7)]. The unified deductible would be defined as an annual deductible amount applied in lieu of the inpatient hospital deductible and the Part B deductible. This would not prevent an MA organization from requiring coinsurance or a copayment for inpatient hospital services, after the unified deductible was satisfied, subject to statutory limitations.

[§1852(a)(2)(D)]. A PFFS plan could choose not to offer qualified prescription drug coverage under part D. Beneficiaries enrolling in such a PFFS plan could choose to enroll in an eligible entity under part D to receive their prescription drug coverage. [§1852(d)(4)]. A PFFS plan entirely meeting the access requirement for a category of providers through contracts or agreements (other than deemed contracts) could require higher beneficiary co-payments for providers who did not have such contracts or agreements.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(a). Beginning in 2006, plan bids will be compared to a benchmark amount. For MA local plans, the benchmark amount will be the MA payment rates. For MA regional plans, the benchmark amount will be the regional blended benchmark. Plans that submit bids below the benchmark will be paid their bids, plus 75 percent of the difference between the benchmark and the bid, which must be returned to beneficiaries in the form of additional benefits or reduced premiums. For plans that bid above the benchmark the government will pay the benchmark amount, and the beneficiary will pay the difference between the benchmark and the bid amount as a premium. When for an MA regional plan, in determining the actuarially equivalent level of cost-sharing for required benefits, only expenses for in-network providers will be taken into account for the application of the catastrophic limit. Supplemental benefits can include reductions in cost-sharing for A and B benefits below the actuarial value of the deductible, coinsurance and copayments that would be applicable, on average, to individuals in the original fee-for-service program.

MA organizations, other than PFFS plans, will be required to offer at least one plan in their service area that provides drug coverage as outlined in Title I. However, if an organization offers one such plan with drug coverage, it may offer alternative plans without such drug coverage.

Beneficiary Savings

Present Law

To the extent that a plan's ACR is below the administered payment amount, plans must provide reduced cost-sharing, additional benefits, or reduced Part B premiums to their Medicare enrollees. Such benefits must be valued at 100 percent of the difference between the projected cost of providing Medicare-covered services to its commercial population and the expected revenue for Medicare enrollees. Plans can choose which additional benefits to offer, however, the total cost of these benefits must at least equal the "savings" from Medicare-covered services. Plans may also place the additional funds in a stabilization fund or return funds to the Treasury.

House Bill

Section 221(b). An MA plan would be required to provide an enrollee a monthly rebate that equaled 75 percent of any average per capita savings (the amount by which the risk-adjusted benchmark exceeded the risk-adjusted bid). The rebate could be: (1) credited toward the MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium or the prescription drug premium; (2) paid directly to the beneficiary; (3) provided by another means approved by the Administrator; (4) or any combination of the above. The remaining 25 percent of the average per capita savings would be retained by the federal government.

Benchmarks would equal one-twelfth of the annual MA capitation rate for an enrollee in that area, and would be calculated by updating the previous year's capitation rate by the annual increase in the minimum percentage increase.

Senate Bill

[§1854(c)]. If the weighted service area benchmark exceeded the plan bid, the Secretary would require the plan to provide additional benefits, and if the plan bid exceeded the weighted service area benchmark, the plan could charge an MA monthly basic beneficiary premium equal to the amount the bid exceeded the benchmark.

Section 204. [§1854(g)]. If the plan bid was lower than the weighted service area benchmark, the plan could, in addition to benefits allowed under current law, also lower the amount of the unified deductible and decrease the maximum limitation on out-of-pocket expenses. However, plans would be restricted from specifying any additional benefits that provided for the coverage of any prescription drug, other than that relating to covered drugs under Part D.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(b). The conference agreement requires an MA plan to provide an enrollee with a monthly rebate equal to 75 percent of any average per capita savings (the amount by which the risk-adjusted benchmark exceeds the risk-adjusted bid). In calculating such savings, and in order to ensure that savings are uniform for all enrollees in a plan, the benchmark and the bid will be risk adjusted according to a statewide (for local plans) or region-wide (for regional plans) risk adjuster. Alternatively, the Secretary has the discretion to risk adjust the benchmark and bid on a plan-specific basis for the purpose of calculating such savings. The beneficiary rebate can be credited toward the provision of supplemental health care benefits (including a reduction in cost-sharing, additional benefits or a credit toward any MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium), the prescription drug premium, or the Part B premium. The plan will inform the Secretary about the form and amount of the rebate, or the actuarial value, in the case of supplemental health care benefits. The remaining 25 percent of the average per capita savings will be retained by the federal government.

Revision of Premium Terminology

Present Law

The M+C monthly basic beneficiary premium is the amount authorized to be charged for the plan based on the application of the "limitation on enrollee liability". The "limitation on enrollee liability" requires that the actuarial value of the premium, deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments applicable on average to enrollees in an M+C plan for required services does not exceed the actuarial value of deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments on average for beneficiaries in traditional Medicare. However, this average may be achieved by having higher copayments for some M+C services and lower copayments for other services. The supplemental beneficiary premium is amount authorized to be charged for the plan, such that the actuarial value of supplemental beneficiary premium, deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments for such benefits does not exceed the ACR for such benefits. These requirements do not apply to PFFS plans.

House Bill

Section 221 (d). For plans with a bid amount below the benchmark, the basic premium would be zero. For plans with bids above the benchmark, the basic premium would be equal to the amount by which the bid exceeded the benchmark.

Senate Bill

Section 204. If the weighted service area benchmark exceeded the plan bid, the plan would have to provide additional benefits. If the bid exceeded the weighted service area benchmark, the amount of the excess would be the MA monthly basic beneficiary premium.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(b). For plans providing rebates (plans that bid below the benchmark), the MA monthly basic beneficiary premium will be zero. For plans with bids above the applicable benchmark, the MA monthly basic beneficiary premium will equal the amount by which the bid exceeds the benchmark. The MA monthly prescription drug beneficiary premium is the portion of the aggregate monthly bid amount that is attributable to the provision of prescription drug benefits under Title I of this Act, less the amount of any rebate. The MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium is the portion of the aggregate monthly bid amount that is attributable to the provision of supplemental health care benefits, less the amount of any rebate. The unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid is the portion of the bid submitted by a plan attributable to the provision of required benefits under Medicare fee-for-service.

Collection of Premiums

Present Law

Medicare beneficiaries may have their Part B premiums deducted directly from their Social Security benefits.

House Bill

Section 221(b). Enrollees would be permitted to have their MA premiums deducted directly from their Social Security benefits or through an electronic funds transfer. The Administrator would be required to provide a mechanism whereby a beneficiary who joined an MA plan and elected Part D coverage through the plan would be able to pay one consolidated premium amount.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(c). The conference agreement allows enrollees to have their MA premiums deducted directly from their Social Security benefits, through an electronic funds transfer, or such other mean as specified by the Secretary, including payment by an employer or under employment-based retiree coverage on behalf of an employee, a former employee, or a dependent. All premium payments deducted from Social Security benefits will be credited to the appropriate Trust Fund as specified by the Secretary (in consultation with the Commissioner of Social Security and the Secretary of the Treasury) and shall be paid to the MA organization involved. The MA plan may not impose a charge for individuals electing to pay their premiums through a deduction from their Social Security payments.

For individuals electing to have premiums deducted directly from Social Security benefits, the Secretary will transmit to the Commissioner of Social Security, by the beginning of each year, the name, social security account number, consolidated monthly beneficiary premium owed by the enrollee for each month during the year, and other information determined appropriate by the Secretary. Information will be periodically updated throughout the year. The Secretary will be required to provide a mechanism for the consolidation of any MA monthly basic beneficiary premium, any MA monthly supplemental beneficiary premium, and any MA monthly prescription drug beneficiary premium.

Computation of MA Benchmark and Payments of Plans Based on Bid Amounts

Present Law

Under current law, Medicare+Choice (M+C) plans are paid an administered monthly payment, called the M+C payment rate, for each enrollee. The per capita rate for a payment area is set at the highest of three amounts: (1) a minimum payment (or floor) rate, (2) a rate calculated as a blend of an area-specific (local) rate and a national rate, or (3) a rate reflecting a minimum increase from the previous year's rate (currently 2%). In general, the Secretary makes monthly payments for each M+C enrollee, reduced by any Part B premium reduction, and adjusted for risk.

House Bill

Section 221(c). For payments before 2006, the monthly payment amount would equal 1/12 of the annual MA capitation rate, for an enrollee for that area, reduced by any Part B premium reduction and adjusted for risk factors such as age, disability status, gender, institutional status and other factors the Administrator determines to be appropriate, including an adjustment for health status.

Beginning in 2006, MA payment rates would be determined by the Administrator by comparing plan bids to the benchmark. Non-drug benefits: Beginning in 2006, for plans with bids below the benchmark, the payment would equal the unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid amount, with adjustments for demographic factors (including age, disability, and gender) and health status and the monthly rebate. Conversely, for plans with bids at or above the benchmark, the payment amount would equal the MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount, with the demographic and health status adjustments. Drug benefits: Additionally, for an MA enrollee who enrolled in Part D and elected prescription drug coverage through the plan, the plan's payment would include a direct and a reinsurance subsidy payment and reimbursement for premiums and cost-sharing reductions for certain low-income beneficiaries, as outlined in Title I of this bill.

Senate Bill

Section 203. [§1853(a)]. Each MA organization would receive a separate monthly payment for: (1) benefits under FFS Medicare Parts A and B, and (2) benefits under the prescription drug program, Part D. The Secretary would ensure that payments for each enrollee would equal the MA benchmark amount for the payment area, as adjusted. The adjustments would include both a risk adjustment and an adjustment based on the ratio of the payment amount to the weighted service area benchmark.

Section 203. [§1853(c&d)]. Beginning in 2006, payments to MA plans would be determined differently, based on a comparison between plan bids and the weighted service area benchmark. The Secretary would however, continue to calculate the annual M+C capitation rates.

Plans would submit bids to the Secretary by the second Monday in September.

The Secretary would calculate the benchmark amounts as the greater of the minimum amount (floor) or the local FFS rate for the area. The local FFS rate would be calculated similarly to the adjusted average per capita cost (AAPCC), adjusted to remove the costs of indirect and direct graduate medical education.

The Secretary would calculate the weighted service area benchmark amount equal to the weighted average of the benchmark amounts for required services for the payment areas included in the service area of the plan.

The Secretary would determine the difference between each plan's bid and the weighted service area benchmark amount. For plan bids that equal or exceed the weighted service area benchmark, the MA organization would be paid the weighted service area benchmark amount. For plan bids below the weighted service area benchmark, the plan would be paid the weighted service area benchmark reduced by the amount of any premium reduction elected by the plan. The Secretary would adjust payments using the comprehensive risk adjustment methodology.

Section 205. This provision would establish the additional payments that would be made to the MA plans for the prescription drug coverage under Part D.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(d). The conference agreement defines the term MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount, for a month in a year, for a service area that is entirely within an MA local area, as an amount equal to 1/12 of the annual MA capitation rate for the area. For a service area within more than one MA local area, the amount is equal to the average of the local amounts, weighted by the projected number of enrollees in the plan residing in the respective local area. For an MA region, the MA region-specific benchmark amount for the region for the year is defined as the sum of the statutory component and the plan-bid component. The statutory component is a weighted average of the local MA benchmarks in the region.

Section 222(e). For payments before 2006, the conference agreement sets the monthly payment amount to equal 1/12 of the annual MA capitation rate, for an enrollee for that area, reduced by any Part B premium reduction and adjusted for demographic factors such as age, disability status, gender, institutional status and other factors the Secretary determines to be appropriate, including an adjustment for health status.

Beginning in 2006, MA payment rates will be determined by the Secretary by comparing plan bids to the benchmark. Non-drug benefits: Beginning in 2006, for plans with bids below the benchmark, the payment will equal the unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid amount, with adjustments for demographic factors (including age, disability, and gender) and health status, adjustments for intra-regional variation (if applicable), adjustments relating to risk adjustment, and the monthly rebate. To adjust for intra-regional variation, the Secretary will adjust the amounts to take into account variation in MA local payment rates among the different MA local areas included in a region. For adjustments relating to risk, the Secretary will adjust payments to MA plans to ensure that the sum of the monthly payment and any basic beneficiary premium equals the unadjusted MA statutory non-drug monthly bid amount, with demographic adjustments, and for an MA regional plan, adjustments for intra-regional variations. For plans with bids at or above the benchmark, the payment amount will equal the MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount, with the demographic and health status adjustments, adjustments for intra-regional variation (if applicable), and adjustments relating to risk adjustment. The use of a risk adjustment methodology that uses demographic factors and health status factors will continue as under current law, and the Secretary will continue to have the flexibility to develop and implement new risk adjustment methodologies. Drug benefits: Additionally, for an MA enrollee in an MA–PD plan, the plan's payment will include a subsidy payment and reimbursement for premiums and cost-sharing reductions for certain low-income beneficiaries, as outlined in Title I of this bill.

In the case of an MSA plan, the payment equals the MA area-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount, adjusted for demographics and health status.

Annual Announcement Process

Present Law

The Secretary annually determines and announces, no later than May 1 for 2003 and 2004 and March 1, thereafter (for the following year), the annual M+C capitation rate for each M+C payment area and the risk and other factors to be used in adjusting these rates.

House Bill

Section 221(e). For years before 2006, for the calendar year concerned, the Secretary would announce the annual MA capitation rate for each MA payment area for the year and the risk and other factors to be used to adjust these rates. Beginning in 2006, the Secretary would announce yearly the MA area-specific non-drug benchmark and the adjustment factors relating to demographics, end stage renal disease (ESRD), and health status in each MA plan in the area.

Senate Bill

Section 203. [§1853(a)]. Beginning April 15, 2005 (at the same time as risk adjusters for prescription drug coverage were announced), the Secretary would annually announce the benchmark for each MA payment area and the risk adjustment factors.

Conference Agreement

Section 222(f). For payments in 2005, the conference agreement requires the Secretary to determine and announce the MA capitation rates for each MA payment area for 2005, and the risk and other adjustment factors, by the 2nd Monday in May of 2004. For 2006 and subsequent years, the Secretary will determine and announce, not later than the 1st Monday in April before the calendar year concerned, the MA capitation rate for each payment area, and the risk and other factors to be used in adjusting such rates. The Secretary will determine and announce, on a timely basis before the calendar year concerned, for each MA region and MA regional plan for which a bid is submitted, the MA region-specific non-drug monthly benchmark amount.

Protection Against Beneficiary Selection

Present Law

The M+C monthly basic and supplemental beneficiary premium cannot vary among individuals enrolled in a the same plan.

House Bill

Section 221(d). The MA monthly bid amount, the MA monthly basic, prescription drug, and the supplemental beneficiary premium would not vary among enrollees in the plan. Additionally, the MA monthly MSA premium would not vary within an MSA plan.

Senate Bill

Section 204. The provision would establish the requirement that the MA monthly basic beneficiary premium, the MA monthly beneficiary obligation for qualified prescription drug coverage, and the MA monthly beneficiary premium for enhanced medical benefits could not vary among beneficiaries enrolled in the plan. Also, the MA MSA premium would not vary among beneficiaries enrolled in the MSA plan.

Conference Agreement

Section 222 (g). Except as permitted to facilitate the offering of MA plans under contracts between MA organizations and employers, labor organizations or the trustees to a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (as currently allowed under sec. 1857(i)), the MA monthly bid amount, the MA monthly basic, prescription drug, and the supplemental beneficiary premium may not vary among enrollees in the plan.

Adjusted Community Rates

Present Law

Each year an M+C organization submits an ACR proposal, estimating their proposed cost of serving Medicare beneficiaries for the following contract year as compared to the estimated cost of providing the same services to a commercial population. The ACR process is a mechanism through which health plans determine the minimum amount of additional benefits they are required to provide to Medicare enrollees and the cost-sharing they are permitted to charge for those benefits.

House Bill

Plan bids would replace ACRs beginning in 2006.

Senate Bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

Plan bids will replace ACRs beginning in 2006.
