Unfortunately, because of our soaring national debt, our children and grandchildren are going to have to pay our bills. I find that simply outrageous. In essence, we are going to max out on the Nation's credit card and then send the monthly bill to our children.

As most people know, this is a tough time for the people of Michigan. Anybody who has read the newspaper lately knows that companies such as Delphi and General Motors and Ford are struggling. Due to problems such as unfair trade practices, we are literally losing our manufacturing base in this country, coupled with the fact that we need to fundamentally change the way we fund health care in order to get health care costs off the back of business so they can be more competitive in a global economy.

Manufacturing has been the key to building a solid middle class and creating a way of life that is extraordinary for Americans. If we lose our manufacturing industries, such as automobiles, we are going to lose our middle class in this country and lose our way of life.

You might wonder what do unfair trade practices have to do with the increasing national debt. The answer is: A lot. That is because many foreign countries own our national debt. That means we have to borrow from other countries to pay our bills. And we are borrowing more and more from foreign countries in recent years.

Unfortunately, many of those countries that own our debt also refuse to follow the international trade rules. They cheat. They want to be a part of the international community, but they don't follow the rules. In fact, China and Japan own approximately half of all of our foreign debt. At the same time, they continue to take our patents and to manipulate their currencies so their products cost less, in violation of international law.

This hurts our manufacturing sector because it makes it easier for them to sell their products in America and tougher for American businesses to export our products to their countries.

For example, a $20,000 car imported from Japan has an unfair subsidy of as much as $7,000 over a U.S. automobile. At the same time, U.S. exports to China face a $7,000 tax. This cost advantage directly subsidized over 1.7 million cars and trucks exported to the U.S. last year, as well as every component imported by Japanese manufacturers for use in their U.S. assembly plants.

China has been pegging its currency and is responsible for producing a $12 billion market of counterfeit auto parts, which has cost us the equivalent of 200,000 jobs in America—many in Michigan.

We should be getting tough with China and Japan on these trade violations that are costing Americans their jobs and threatening our middle-class way of life in this country. They are illegal. We should insist that they stop. But our Government is weak-kneed because we have borrowed so much money from them. There is a connection between the budget deficit and our trade deficit, both of which are out of control.

When I look at what families in Michigan are having to go through, men and women who have worked hard all their lives and have paid into a pension, and they may not have it now, and their cost of health care is going up, or maybe they won't have it anymore and they may be losing their jobs, and their dreams for sending their kids to college are going away, the American dream that says you can buy a house and have a good home and dream big dreams, and maybe in Michigan you can buy a cottage up north and a snowmobile, and you make sure you can live a good life and care for your families—those dreams are going away for too many people. Part of the reason is because of unfair trade practices. We don't have a level playing field. We do not make sure other countries are following the rules. They are cheating and they are getting away with it.

When we look at what is happening, we see that China and Japan own half of our foreign debt. They are the same people who are not following the rules and are costing us jobs. There is a direct connection between what is happening here in terms of raising this debt limit and what is happening in my home State of Michigan in terms of jobs, and the fight we have right now to keep our way of life. There is a better way than what is before us now.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Michigan, who is such an exceptionally valuable member of the Budget Committee. She has been one of the strongest voices on the question of what are the priorities of the budget. Also she is a very strong voice for fiscal responsibility, recognizing that if we want to spend money, we have to pay for it. The Senator from Michigan has been a great leader on the Senate Budget Committee. I thank her so much for her contribution during the year, and again on the debate on the budget resolution this year.

While we are waiting for the chairman of the Finance Committee, who is being called off the floor momentarily, I want to remind colleagues of the circumstance we face tomorrow. If there are staffs listening or Members listening, we are still getting requests as though we had a lot of time left. We simply do not.

Tomorrow we are going to start at 9. We are going to be handling amendments that are in the queue until 10:30. At 10:30, we will start voting on amendments and we will vote on the debt matter and amendments to the debt resolution. When those have been dispensed with, we will then go back to the consideration of amendments until 1:30.

At 1:30, all time has been deemed to have been used up in the budget resolution debate. We will start a series of votes every 10 minutes. Right now, with the number of amendments pending, we now have 65 votes pending on this side alone. We know we can do 3 amendments an hour. If everybody sticks to their amendments, that is 22 hours of straight voting. That is just the amendments on our side. The other side has another 15 amendments. That is 80, so that is 27 hours of voting.

That is the situation we face. It is in the hands of the Members. Are people going to show restraint or are people going to insist on every amendment to be offered and voted on? I hope very much that we can convince colleagues to take very short time agreements tomorrow. I will not agree to any time agreement over 10 minutes tomorrow, period. Let me make that very clear. I hope we can get time agreements as short as 5 minutes before we get into vote-arama. When we get into vote-arama, understand that there will be 1 minute on a side.

So, again, I hope colleagues understand the circumstance we face. We have lost a tremendous amount of time to extraneous events—a joint session, meetings at the White House, and the debt limit debate put in the middle of this discussion. So that is the reality we face.

Last year, Lula Davis has just informed me, we started voting at 1:17 in the afternoon, and we voted until roughly 10 o'clock at night. Some of those votes were held every 5 minutes, and we handled over 20 amendments during that period. I think one can see if we have to try to do 80 amendments, we are going to be here a very long time.

With that, I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Is the Senator from Oklahoma seeking recognition?

Mr. COBURN. I am.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DEMINT). The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I don't want to be offensive in any way. I listened to two talks about where we are, and I agree with where we are financially. But there are some facts that are left out of the story. There is no question that spending has increased. There is no question the debt is going up. But who is responsible for it? We can talk about it. First, we had a recession, and then 9/11 came, and there were rosy projections we all knew for certain weren't right. But to turn around and blame our debt on the President of the United States is not only in error, it is not factually correct, and it also tends to shun the responsibility we have as a body.

The President cannot sign any bill we don't pass. This President became President in early 2001, at which time the Republicans weren't in control of the Senate. There was a divided—in 2002, that is, and there was a divided control. But during all that period of time, the bills that went to the President were voted on by Congress; both the House and the Senate passed bills. I also note that those people who have been so earnestly talking about our debt limit, which I plan on attacking aggressively—there is some credibility there with the talk.

This last year they voted for over $700 billion in new spending. So if, in fact, you want to control the spending and you don't want the debt limit to go up, you can't continue to vote for unlimited spending increases.

There is no question that we have increased revenues that are not what they probably could be if we ran the Government much more efficiently, but the very fact that we would have people who claim they are appalled at the debt limit and then every time we cast a vote for an increase of spending that is not paid for or not offset in another way adds directly to that debt limit.

The responsibility lies in the Congress for the spending. It is not the executive branch. As a matter of fact, we have sent multiple bills, and if you look at the votes on the multiple bills that have come through this body, they are not just a majority vote, they are a supermajority and many times unanimous. So to claim and lay that on the executive branch when, in fact, it is our responsibility belies the truth.

The facts that the Senator from North Dakota outlined are very accurate in terms of where we are. Here is one of the most important facts. The increase in debt per Americans since 2001 is over $8,000. The increase in the annual earnings per American workers since 2001 is less than $4,000. We are about to become the first generation of Americans to leave the next generation worse off. But as long as we are finger pointing and saying it is somebody else's problem, we are not going to solve the problem.

We had an opportunity this past year in which we slowed down the growth of Medicaid by $4.8 billion a year and over a 5-year period. That total cumulative cost is $38.8 billion. That is the savings for 5 years. But the earmarks alone that this body passed last year were $64 billion.

I am highly concerned about the debt limit, and it is doubtful that I will be voting to extend the debt limit, but I certainly am not going to stand here and let people claim that it is the executive branch's responsibility. It is not. It is ours, and we failed. We have failed our grandchildren, we have failed our children, we have failed the people who are paying taxes today in this country. We would rather get reelected by doling out earmarks and pork than solve the real long-term problems of our country, and we can see that very easily when we look at earmarks related to the size of the Federal Government.

There is a cause-and-effect relationship. As a matter of fact, tomorrow morning we are having a hearing on earmarks in the Federal Financial Management Subcommittee, the oversight Committee on Homeland Security. What you see is that in 1994, there were 4,000 earmarks and about $4 billion. Last year, there were 15,877 earmarks, and the total spending by the Federal Government was over $2.6 trillion. There is a correlation. It is that we don't want to do the hard work of making the hard decisions.

So when we have $64 billion in earmarks in 1 year and we can't get the hard savings of $4.8 billion in just slowing the growth of Medicaid from 8 percent to 7.9 percent, and we barely pass that, what we have is a refusal to do our duty.

The points the Senator from North Dakota made in terms of his financial analysis were all accurate. You can't dispute it. He points out very accurately the double standard on accounting gimmicks that the Congress is using.

It is my hope that tomorrow we will be able to discuss this more. I know the chairman of the Finance Committee would like to have the floor, and at this time I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, the issue of the increase in the debt limit has come before the Senate as an agreement between the two leaders, and as the committee of jurisdiction, as chairman of the Finance Committee, I speak in support of House Joint Resolution 47, a bill that increases the Federal debt limit. I support this increase because it is necessary to preserve the full faith and credit of the Government. Without an increase in the debt limit, our Government will face a choice that we should not make and we would not want to make: a choice between breaking the law by exceeding the statutory debt limit or breaking faith with the public by defaulting on our debt. I hope everyone would agree that neither choice is acceptable.

To understand why we are here today seeking to increase the debt limit, it is necessary to explain a few points about the Federal debt.

Under current law, there is a statutory limit on the amount of debt that can be issued by the Federal Government. This limit, which now stands at $8.184 trillion, applies to virtually all the debt issued by the Government. There is only one debt limit, but there are, in fact, two types of debt within that figure: debt held by the public—meaning you and I as private citizens buying Government bonds, owning Treasury bills—and then, of course, on the other hand, the debt held by various Government trust funds. An example would be the surplus that is invested in the Social Security surplus payroll that is not being paid out for benefits, being invested in Government debt with that debt owed to the trust fund with the interest accumulating to the trust fund.

The amount of Federal debt held by the public is determined by the Government's annual cash flow. When total spending exceeds total taxes, the Government has a budget deficit. To finance this deficit, the Government borrows from the public by selling debt, such as Treasury bills, Treasury notes, and Treasury bonds. We will hear a lot of criticism that President Bush's tax cuts are responsible for our rising public debt, but the facts show otherwise.

When President Bush took office in 2001, the Federal debt limit was $5.95 trillion, almost $6 trillion. The debt limit was increased to $6.4 trillion in 2002, $7.3 trillion in 2003, and now the present $8.1 trillion in 2005.

Assuming we increase the debt limit today, it will be $8.965 trillion. Thus, the Federal debt limit will have increased by $3.015 trillion since President Bush took office in 2001.

However, the tax cuts that have been enacted since 2001 total roughly $900 billion through the end of the most recent fiscal year. That includes interest costs as well. Thus, the President's tax cuts account for about 30 percent of the increase in the Federal debt. The rest of this increase in the public debt is due to the recession, the war in Iraq, and the increased spending on homeland security, also related to the war on terror.

In addition to the debt held by the public, the Federal debt limit also applies, as I said before, to the debt held by various Government trust funds, such as Social Security and Medicare. Whenever a trust fund program collects more than it spends, the surplus is invested in special issue Treasury securities. These special securities count toward the debt limit. However, it is important to understand that the amount of debt held by the trust funds does not reflect the Government's unfunded obligations.

For example, the Treasury Department reports that the total amount of Federal debt held by all the trust fund programs is about $3.5 trillion. However, the Social Security and Medicare trustees report that the unfunded obligation of Social Security and Medicare is more than $81 trillion.

Given these facts, it should be obvious to everyone that the Federal debt provides a misleading and inaccurate picture of the Government's future liabilities. Efforts to use the statutory debt limit to control Government debt and deficits cannot succeed because it ignores the long-term budget problems.

Indeed, even former Federal Reserve Chairman Greenspan has suggested the debt limit has outlived its usefulness and should be replaced with a more accurate and useful alternative. I would welcome the opportunity to work with my colleagues to develop such an alternative. It may never happen, but it ought to happen. This is not quite a very intellectual way to decide what the Government is doing in a fiscal way because, quite obviously, every day Congress is appropriating money and every day we are spending money and every day if that exceeds the taxes that are coming in and we get to the debt limit, the debt is going to increase or is going to shut down the Government.

As a Republican, that was part of our strategy during the Clinton administration. But let me tell you, it didn't work. It didn't work because it wasn't good policy, and it ended up not being very good politics. I hope we do not have an extended debate and a lot of breast beating about the issue of increasing the national debt because, quite frankly, if we spend and we spend up to that limit, we are not going to shut down the Government, if we learned the lesson, as I hope I learned the lesson, and we move on. It ought to be very pro forma.

There will be a lot of debate about it, a lot of political points trying to be made, but the point is we have to keep the business of Government going. I would relish the opportunities to have those days when we paid down $550 billion on the national debt during the fiscal years of, I think, 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000, I believe it was. It was about $558 billion I believe that we paid down on the national debt. I am glad we did. But now we have the war on terror, we had 3,000 Americans killed in New York City because of terrorist attacks, and we are fighting a war to make sure terrorism doesn't happen again, at least on the soil in the United States of America.

The No. 1 obligation of our Government under the Constitution is for the national defense. Protecting our people from further terrorist attacks is very basic to it. We voted, in a bipartisan way, to send men and women to the battlefield in Afghanistan and Iraq, and if we do that, we have an obligation to appropriate the money to give them the tools to do the job when they put their life on the line for our freedom and our liberty and to make sure that 3,000 Americans don't get killed again. These all create situations wherein we have annual debt or annual deficits, and you increase the national debt on a cumulative basis when you do that. So there will probably be almost 50 votes, maybe, against this resolution when we vote on it tomorrow. I would ask the people who vote against it, do you want to shut down Government? Or if you don't want to shut down Government, you don't want to increase the national debt, why did you vote for the money we spent that brings us to the point of a necessity of increasing the national debt? We should pass this resolution for the sound operation of our Government. Shutting down Government, we found out, ended up costing the taxpayers more than if Government had operated.

There are a lot of conservatives listening who see a conservative like CHUCK GRASSLEY saying that, and they say: GRASSLEY, what planet did you come from? If we shut down Government, you ought to save money. But we didn't end up saving money. So you learn from history, or you are destined to repeat it. That is why this ought to pass unanimously. It won't, but it ought to.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Montana and commend him for his hard work on matters financial in the Senate and in our country. Fiscal responsibility is the watchword for the Senator from Montana, and I am grateful for his leadership. At the same time, I say to the distinguished Senator from Iowa, the chairman of the Finance Committee, he is someone who also works very hard to make us a responsible nation, and I respect him. Although we differ on things, the fact is that I listen carefully to what the Senator from Iowa has to say. He has a position of great responsibility, the chairman of one of the most important committees in the Senate, and carries that responsibility honorably; again, if I may say, at times wrongfully, but it is in the eyes of the beholder. But I know the Senator from Iowa understands that if there is any criticism of his views, it is not personal and has nothing to do with his credibility or his honor.

I listened very carefully to what the Senator from Iowa talked about. He talked about shutting down Government and he talked about providing security for our people, protecting them, making sure their lives continue in safety. But I don't get it. I have to tell you this: I don't get it. Because when issues came up such as when we needed more money for port security, we said no. When it came up that we needed more money for the Department of Homeland Security, we said: Well, we will give you some but not all you need. When it came to providing some developmental funds for technology that would help us examine containers coming into our ports, we were unwilling to do it.

So now what we hear is the lament that says: How can we shut down our Government? Well, we can avoid shutting it down by not extending tax cuts to the wealthiest among us, people who make millions and don't need any help. I meet these people, and they say: Yes, we don't need it, but what the heck, if it is there, we are going to take it.

But when you think about the outcome of this profligate spending we are seeing here and our deficit going through the roof—I heard one of our good friends from the other side talk about reducing our annual deficits. Well, they could be reduced a trifling amount, but if you look at the debt, that debt increases, that clock is ticking.

We have here an example of a credit card, and our credit card is running kind of over the limit. Right now, we are carrying an $8.2 trillion credit debt. That means if you borrow on credit, you have to pay it off. President Bush and his colleagues, the Republican Congress, are encouraging burdening our children and our grandchildren under a mountain of debt.

A lot of what we do around here is hidden in complicated budget rhetoric, but to put matters simply, this debt extension bill will increase President Bush's credit limit, the one he has established, by $781 billion. It will encourage this Republican Congress—they are the majority—to charge another $781 billion on our Nation's credit card.

Most Americans with credit cards know that you have to play by the credit card company's rules. People understand when they run up big bills they will be responsible to eventually pay up. Few people run up a giant credit card bill and then leave it for their children to pay. But that is what the Bush administration is doing, running up credit, and their kids will have to pay the bill.

Since President Bush took office, he has already increased the total Federal debt by 46 percent. He has added $2.5 trillion to the debt future generations will have to pay. So I say enough is enough. The President and the majority in the Congress have been far too reckless for far too long with our Nation's credit card. We see who the managers are of the legislation we considering here: the Republican majority. And they want to extend his credit limit. I say no way.

In my view, it is time to limit the credit. It is what most parents would do. What would you do as a parent if you had a kid, a child who was running up bills on your credit card, just running them up, higher and higher and higher, and you know you can't pay them off? So what would you do? Pat him on the head and say: Go spend more? No, you wouldn't do that at all. What you would do is cut up his credit card. And this is what we are going to do: cut up his credit card right here and now.

America can do better, leave a better legacy for our grandchildren and their children. Our consciences scream out just as a family would at home: We are buried in debt; why do you want to add more to it? The response would be: Mom and dad, why do you do this to us? We have college debt from our years at the university. We have less reliability, less reliance on pension funds. They are not guaranteed anymore. We have less expectation that we can hold our jobs based on foreign competition, jobs that used to be done here in Washington, DC, and in my home State of New Jersey and States across this country, jobs that were held, and they were good-paying jobs. Now they come with an accent from India. There is nothing wrong with the accent, but there is something wrong with the place. Why should we be transferring decent jobs Americans can do and do well to India? Why? Because we pay maybe a tenth of what it costs us here. If someone makes $500 a week here, and in India they make 50 bucks, they will be feeling pretty good. So the result is that we are lowering living standards for Americans across this country, and these jobs will not be replaced.

I know something about balancing budgets. I ran a big company, a very large company; it now has 40,000 employees. We started with nothing. We worked hard. But we always balanced our budget. We had 42 years in a row with growth on the profit at 10 percent every year over the previous year, the longest record of any company in American history. That is the company I ran; it is called ADP, Automatic Data Processing. I was the founder.

Here in the Senate, I was the senior Democrat on the Budget Committee. We produced during those years the first balanced budget in 30 years. We did such a good job that when President Bush, President George W. Bush, took the oath of office, he was presented with the rosiest financial picture of any President ever in the history of our country. We had budget surpluses as far as the eye could see. In 2000, we had a budget surplus—surplus—and that is in the year 2000, 5 years ago, going on 6 years ago, we had a budget surplus of $236 billion. In 2001, when President Bush came into office, he had a surplus of $128 billion. We were ready to pay off our national debt by the end of his term. We were in the middle of the longest economic expansion in the history of our country. But the Republicans plunged blindly and recklessly into massive tax breaks, not for the middle class or poor, lower level income among us, but the wealthy, the special interests—tax breaks that will cost $3.4 trillion if they are extended over the next decade. A third of that amount, more than $1 trillion, will go to the wealthiest of the wealthy, the top 1 percent.

This is what the Bush tax cuts will mean. If you make $1 million a year, you get an average tax cut of $136,000. That helps everybody out every year, I guess, if you need that. But if you make less than $20,000 a year, you get 19 bucks—$19 if you make $20,000 a year. Is that helping the people who are struggling with two jobs often, trying to balance their family obligations with their need to earn an income, having a babysitter intercede while dad comes home from work and mom doesn't yet go to hers? That is what is happening to a lot of people making $20,000 a year with two children in this society of ours—a $19 tax break. Don't spend it all in one place.

And to what end? The only thing President Bush and the Republican majority have accomplished is a doubling of our Nation's debt. If we continue on this path, our national debt will be $12 trillion by 2011.

Tomorrow we are going to vote on whether President Bush should be able to charge up another $781 billion on our credit card, the citizens' credit card, the national credit card. That is $781 billion more of debt. I hear from people I talk to who work for a living with kids in college, they are worried about their personal debt they have to have to get along, so we want to make their job twice as tough by adding more of the national debt on their shoulders. Would a bank keep extending the line of credit for a customer who didn't have a plan to pay his bills? Of course not. That is why I say to my colleagues that we should say to the American people: We really do stand for fiscal responsibility, and we really do want to reduce our deficit, and we really do want to cut back on that debt so we can look our children and grandchildren squarely in the face and say: We didn't add to your woes, we added to your opportunities.

So I urge my colleagues to tell the people the truth out there. Don't cover it up with arcane language. Let us put a stop to this reckless credit binge. Let's make President Bush's credit card useless and put our country back on the road to fiscal responsibility.

I yield the floor.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, about 16 months ago, we debated an $800 billion increase in the debt limit. At the time, this was the Bush administration's third request to increase the debt limit for a grand total of $2.2 trillion. During this debate, I discussed how in less than four years, a 20-year $5.6 trillion budget surplus was turned into a $2.4 trillion deficit. I thought at the time the fiscal outlook could not get much worse and the budget situation would have to improve.

Unfortunately, I was wrong. Since the last debate on increasing the debt ceiling, the administration has not submitted budgets that would put us on a path towards deficit reduction. As part of last year's budget resolution, Congress passed legislation that would reduce spending by almost $40 billion. Many of these cuts will impact those that have the least. Now Congress is in the process of wrapping up a $70 billion tax bill. When you combine the spending and the tax bill, the numbers do not add up to put us on a path towards deficit reduction. The combined total increases the deficit and increases the debt.

The Bush administration's budget for fiscal year 2007 includes more of the same and the fiscal situation even gets worse. The administration estimates that the deficit for 2006 will be $423 billion, the largest in history. The projected surplus of $5.6 trillion that this administration inherited will now turn into a $3.3 trillion deficit, a reversal of $8.9 trillion.

The repeated pattern of deficits and irresponsible budgets necessitate another increase in the debt limit. Today we have before us an increase of $781 billion, which will bring the total to $3 trillion under this administration's watch. If the President's budget is adopted, the debt is expected to reach $8.6 trillion at the end of this year. Under this budget, with alternative minimum tax reform and ongoing war costs added in, the debt will explode to $12 trillion by 2011.

We cannot continue on this unsustainable path. Yesterday, Senator CONRAD offered an amendment to the budget resolution to restore the original pay-as-you-go rule that led us on a path to a balanced budget, projected surpluses, and expectations of paying down the debt. These pay-go rules simply require new mandatory spending and new tax cuts to be offset. The current pay-go rule has a glaring loophole. Tax and spending increases that are provided in the budget resolution are exempted. This rule does not promote fiscal responsibility. A prime example of this is the tax and spending reconciliation instructions included in last year's budget resolution. These bills will increase the deficit by $30 billion.

Repeatedly, efforts to restore pay-go have been defeated and these efforts were defeated once again yesterday. In the context of today's debate, I do not know how anyone could oppose an amendment to restore these rules. Without strong pay-go rules, we will be back here in a year debating another increase in the debt limit.

We have a fundamental obligation to restore fiscal responsibility rather than merely voting to raise the debt limit as if there was an endless credit card at the expense of the American people. Americans struggle every day to balance their own budgets. Across this country, I have heard how families struggle to keep up with the rising costs of health care, tuition, and gasoline. Median household income has declined by $1,669 or 3.6 percent after inflation. Americans are sitting around their kitchen tables trying to figure out how to pay their bills. They do not have a magic credit card with no limit. Congress should play by the same rules.

We need to be responsible and think about future generations. We made tough choices during the 1990s in order to dig ourselves out of a hole, and now we are back in an even deeper hole. We need to face the consequences. The interest payments on the debt alone are staggering and depriving of us choices that we need to make for the long term investment of our country. This debt will affect our children and grandchildren. Each individual's share of the public debt is over $16,000 and a family of four's share is a staggering $64,533.

The interest on the debt for this year alone is over $220 billion and according to the administration's budget it will grow to $322 billion in 2011. Just think of how this money could be put to better use. It could be used to help uninsured Americans with the rising cost of health care. We cannot afford expensive interest payments and ever-increasing debt with the retirement of the baby boomers on the horizon.

Not only is the amount of debt a problem, I am also concerned about the amount of debt that is foreign held, almost $2.2 trillion. Japan holds the most, $685 billion. China holds $258 billion. Even the Caribbean banking centers hold $111 billion. Over 51 percent of the public debt is held by foreign investors.

Sixty percent of the foreign debt is held by official foreign investors. It is dangerous for our Government and our standard of living to be dependent on foreign capital. If foreign investors decided to stop financing our borrowing habits, it could have a spiraling impact on our economy. If those investors began to withdraw their capital, our financial markets would plummet and interest rates would climb. This would filter down to American families. Homes, education, and cars would become more expensive.

Debt is more than a financial liability—it weakens our security, our diplomacy, and our trade policy. The negligence of our borrow and spend policies leaves us vulnerable to the priorities of foreign creditors. How do you go to a country that holds so much of your debt while your economy is closely linked to theirs and make an argument about nuclear proliferation, human rights, democratization, or other issues that are of importance and great consequence to our country?

We need to make economic opportunity and fiscal responsibility a common goal. We need to live by rules that give the debt limit meaning. I will not support a borrow and spend economic policy that has no limits. There are better alternatives.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am deeply troubled by the pending legislation, which would raise the Federal debt limit by $781 billion. The fact that we are considering this legislation illustrates how deeply the policies of this administration have plunged us into deficits and debt. This President has supported, and continues to support, tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans, which are not paid for and which will continue to run up deficits and debt as far as the eye can see. I am very concerned that if the President continues to pursue this reckless fiscal policy, our Nation's long-term economic strength will be seriously compromised.

Despite the fact that the President signed into law legislation increasing the debt limit less than a year and a half ago, the Treasury Department has now informed us that it will need to borrow even more to keep the Government functioning. The legislation we are considering today would allow Federal debt to grow to $8.965 trillion, truly a staggering sum.

When President Bush took office, he promised that his fiscal policies would include "maximum possible debt retirement." At that time, the Congressional Budget Office was projecting that our net debt to the public would decline to $36 billion by 2008, when this President leaves office. Now, instead of achieving “maximum possible debt retirement,” the President is asking for historically high debt increases. In fact, the CBO is now projecting that publicly held debt will rise to nearly $5.5 trillion in 2008—almost 40 percent of our GDP. Gross Federal debt, which includes our commitments to Social Security and Medicare, will be $9.6 trillion by the time this President leaves office.

You do not need a very long memory to recall that a few short years ago, under President Clinton, we made some very hard choices on taxes and spending—restraining spending and raising some taxes, primarily on upper-income people—and we were able to turn around the Nation’s fiscal status and begin to pay down our debt.

When President Bush took office in 2001, the statutory debt limit stood at $5.95 trillion and had not been raised since 1997. The administration is now asking for the fourth increase in the debt limit since this President took office. The limit was raised by $450 billion in 2002, by $984 billion in 2003, and by $800 billion in 2004. Now the President is asking for an increase of $781 billion—for a total increase of more than $3 trillion since 2001.

These figures demonstrate how seriously our economic situation has deteriorated under this administration. Let me just emphasize that point with one further example. When the President took office, he inherited a 10-year surplus estimated at $5.6 trillion. Now, when you factor in some of the costs we know are coming, such as the continuing costs of the war in Iraq and the cost of reforming the alternative minimum tax, plus the cost of some of the President’s proposals, such as making his tax cuts permanent and continuing his defense buildup, the projections are for a $3.5 trillion deficit over the next 10 years, a reversal of $9.1 trillion. That is a seismic shift in our position.

Much of this shift is a direct result of the reckless fiscal policies pursued by the President during his first term and his singular focus on providing tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans, even at a time of war. And the President is seeking to increase our debt burden by permanently extending many of these tax cuts, utterly ignoring the fact that these massive tax cuts for the rich have led to budget deficits so large that they could jeopardize our future economic strength.

In part, my concern for our economic future stems from a change in international economic position of the United States. Two decades ago, the United States was a creditor nation internationally, by about 10 percent of our GDP. Now, because of the deterioration of our position over those intervening two decades, we are a debtor nation, to the tune of almost 25 percent of our GDP. At the end of fiscal year 2001, 31 percent of the outstanding Federal Government debt was held by foreign lenders. Over the succeeding 4 years, borrowing from abroad accounted for more than 80 percent of the increase in our Government debt.

The international financial position of the United States reminds me of Tennessee Williams’s Blanche DuBois in “A Streetcar Named Desire,” who said: “I have always depended on the kindness of strangers.” That is what has happened to the United States in the international economic scene. We have deteriorated into a debtor status so that we are now dependent upon the kindness of strangers. That is not where the world’s leading power should find itself.

This dramatic change in our economic situation comes at a time when the United States is facing a demographic tidal wave as the baby boom generation approaches retirement. When President Bush first took office, that retirement was almost a decade away. But time has run out. The first of the baby boomers will begin to retire in 2008, on this President’s watch. Unfortunately, rather than prepare for the obligations we know are coming, this President has squandered every opportunity to save for the future.

Moreover, his policy of deficit-financed tax cuts makes us less able to make needed investments today. Every increase in the Government’s debt means we are siphoning off resources that could be used for other purposes simply to pay the interest on that debt. Net interest payments on our debt are expected to consume more than $1 trillion over the next 5 years. Instead of making investments in education, in health care, in transportation, we are paying billions of dollars in interest costs that would not have existed in the absence of the reckless fiscal policy of this administration.

Not only do these policies jeopardize our current and future economic strength, they place a tremendous burden on our children and grandchildren who will have to pay off this debt. By cutting taxes for the wealthiest, the President is really raising taxes on everyone, including our children and grandchildren, by leaving them with the responsibility for paying off this enormous debt.

It is unfortunate that this administration has demonstrated such a single-minded focus on cutting taxes, regardless of the very serious change in our economic situation and our country’s current and future needs. The fact that the President is calling for permanent tax cuts at the same time the Congress is being asked to add almost $800 billion to the Federal debt ceiling is beyond reckless—it places in jeopardy our future economic strength and the economic security of all Americans.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I yield myself as much time as I consume.

Thomas Jefferson once wrote:

It is incumbent on every generation to pay its own debt as it goes.

That is what today’s debate is about. Will this generation pay its own debt as it goes or will this generation choose to shift the burden of paying for our consumption to our children and our grandchildren? Will this generation take responsibility for its own appetites or will this generation rob from the mouths of our children and our grandchildren?

This question defines the very line between responsibility and irresponsibility.

Today we debate legislation to memorialize the shifting of that burden to our children. Today we debate raising the Government’s borrowing by $781 billion. That is more than three-quarters of a trillion dollars for 1 year. This follows on the heels of an increase of $800 billion in November of 2004, less than 1½ years ago. That followed an increase of $984 billion in May of 2003, less than 1½ years before that. That followed an increase of $450 billion in June of 2002, less than a year before that.

This is the fourth time we have had to raise the debt ceiling in the 5 years of this administration. In contrast, prior to that the Government did not need to raise the debt ceiling for about 5 years. Moreover, as this chart shows, the cumulative increase during the 5 years of this administration has been a mammoth $3 trillion. That is the definition of irresponsibility.

Look at this chart. In 2002 the debt limit increase is $450 billion; 2003, $984 billion; 2004, $800 billion; 2006, $781 billion. That totals over $3 trillion; that is a $3 trillion increase in just over the last 5 years.

Look back at our history. What about American history prior to 5 years ago? The debt of the United States did not hit $3 trillion until 1990, a full 200 years after this country was founded. Now we have accumulated $3 trillion in new debt in just 5 years. That is the definition of irresponsibility.

This debt increase will be the fourth largest debt increase in the history of our country. This chart shows the size of debt increases. As you can see from this chart, the record for a debt ceiling increase was $984 billion. That was in 2003. We can see it on the chart. The second highest record was $915 billion. That occurred in November of 1990. That is this big spike. The third largest increase was in 2004 when we raised the debt ceiling by $800 billion. That is not far from today’s request, which is to increase it by $781 billion.

During the time this administration has been in office—let’s look at it from a little different perspective—the debt has gone up by about $10,000 for every man, woman, and child in America. Consider that. During the time this administration has been in office, the national debt has gone up by $10,000 for every man, woman, and child in America. For a family of four, that is an increase of $40,000 over the last 4 years. That is more than most Americans pay for a car.

It is bad enough we have accumulated so much new debt during the 5 years of this administration, but there is a big difference between the debt increase during this period and the debt before. Before, most of the debt purchased from the U.S. Treasury was purchased by U.S. citizens and institutions.

Let me repeat that. Up to 4 years ago, most debt was purchased by Americans and American institutions. At least the interest we paid on that debt, therefore, was paid to Americans. The wealth stayed in our country. That was up until about 4 years ago.

It has changed. That is no longer the case. During the 1-year period—get this. You will be stunned by this next fact. During the 1-year period between December 2004 and December 2005, foreigners purchased 96 percent of the new debt held by the public. Almost all of the debt purchased in that 1-year period, December 2004 to December 2005, was purchased by foreigners, almost all of it; 96 percent of it in 1 year, the last year.

Foreign citizens, foreign banks, foreign central banks, and other foreign institutions bought this debt. Not Americans, foreigners. The amount of public debt held by foreigners has doubled during the time that this administration has been in office; that is, just last year almost all of it. But when you add it with the prior years, now it has doubled since this administration has been in office. The interest on that debt is being siphoned out of our country. The foreigners buy the debt and the interest on that debt. Where does it go? The interest goes to those who own the debt—not Americans, people overseas.

What is the consequence of that? That makes us less wealthy and it means the standard of living of our children and grandchildren will be lower than it ought to be. That is the definition of irresponsibility.

The problem is not confined to our future standard of living. The problem is also today. Some of the foreign holdings of debt are in the hands of foreign central banks. Japan holds two-thirds of a trillion dollars of U.S. debt. China holds over a quarter of a trillion dollars of U.S. debt. Undoubtedly, the governments of these two countries hold a substantial portion of that debt. These large holdings of Treasury debts by foreign central banks are a risk to our homeland security and our economic security.

Does anybody ask why is that? Suppose the President of the United States thinks another country is jeopardizing American security. Suppose—it could happen—the President would like to tell that country that America would take action against it if it did not eliminate the threat to America. But if that country's central bank held a large amount of our Treasury debt, that country could threaten to sell it quickly. That sale would drive up U.S. interest rates and cause the dollar to fall. That could cause a recession in America. I am not saying a foreign central bank would do that off the top, but it would hint it might. It doesn't have to sell it all off, just a little bit. But that clearly shifts the power over to that central bank from the United States. As a result, the President might have to back down because of threats or insinuations, and so America would therefore be at a greater risk.

In the same vein, suppose the United States is involved in a trade dispute with a foreign country. It happens. If that foreign country's central bank held a lot of our debt, that country could threaten to sell that debt and force America to back down from its position on a trade dispute. America could be weaker in trade as a result. You could, obviously, apply that to almost any situation—not just trade or security but a whole host of areas where the United States has an interest with certain countries overseas.

At a recent Council on Foreign Relations event, Stephen Roach of Morgan Stanley put the risk in concrete terms. He said:

For a country that is more dependent on foreign capital than any country has ever been in the history of the world—for us to try to dictate the terms on which that capital is provided telling Dubai, for example, you know, “You can't buy our port facilities but keep on buying our Treasuries;” and you keep telling China basically the same thing, I really worry about the potentially dangerous path our elected leaders are taking us down.

The bottom line is simple. These massive increases in debt harm America. They are the very definition of irresponsibility.

How did we get to this point? The Federal budget deficits drive up our debt, and these deficits have been huge during this administration. When this administration took office we were running large budget surpluses. Do you remember those days, not too many years ago? A $5.6 trillion surplus over the next 10 years was the projection back before the year 2000.

In fiscal year 2000, the last year of the previous administration, we ran a surplus of $236 billion just for that 1 year. We ran a surplus of $86 billion even without counting Social Security. By fiscal year 2001, the surplus, counting Social Security, had dropped to $128 billion, down from $236 billion in the prior year.

Then the tide of red ink began to flow. In fiscal year 2002 the Government ran a deficit of $158 billion. The following year, fiscal 2003, the Government ran a budget deficit of $375 billion. That was an all-time record just as recently as 2003. Think what happened a few years since. That record lasted just 1 year. The next fiscal year, 2004, the Government set a new record by running a deficit of $413 billion. The following year, fiscal year 2005, the Government ran a deficit of $319 billion. That was not a record, but it was still larger than the deficits run in any year before this administration took office.

In the current year, the deficit will go up again. The administration predicts the deficit will rise to $423 billion. This will represent yet another all-time record.

The fiscal policy of this administration has been the most irresponsible in the Nation's history. This fiscal policy has generated huge budget deficits, and in turn these deficits have contributed to massive increases in Federal debt. We clearly need to change course.

Let us, therefore, return to the advice that Thomas Jefferson gave us. I repeat:

It is incumbent on every generation to pay its own debt as it goes.

Let us return to a fiscal policy that could be defined as responsible.

AMENDMENT NO. 3131

Mr. President, I am now going to speak a little bit on an amendment I am offering on which we will vote, I suppose, tomorrow. I send that amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Montana [Mr. BAUCUS] proposes an amendment numbered 3131.

Mr. BAUCUS. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To require a study of debt held by foreigners)

At the end of the joint resolution, insert the following:

“Sec.      STUDY.—(a) The Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and other appropriate agencies of the United States Government, shall conduct a study to examine the economic effects of the holding of United States' publicly-held debt by foreign governments, foreign central banks, other foreign institutions, and foreign individuals.

(b) The Secretary shall transmit that study to the Congress within 180 days of the date of enactment of this legislation.

(c) The study shall provide an analysis of: “(1) for each year from 1980 to the present, the amount and term of foreign-owned debt held by the public, broken down by foreign governments, foreign central banks, other foreign institutions, and foreign individuals, and expressed in nominal terms and as a percentage of the total amount of publicly-held debt in each year;

“(2) the economic effects that the increased foreign ownership of United States’ publicly-held debt has on

“(A) long-term interest rates in the United States,

“(B) global average interest rates,

“(C) the value of the United States dollar,

“(D) United States capital market liquidity,

“(E) the cost of private capital in the United States,

“(F) the generation of employment in the United States through foreign affiliates, and “(G) the growth in real gross domestic product of the United States;

“(3) (A) for each year from 1980 to the present, the effect of foreign debt on the United States income account,

“(B) the predicted effect over the next 20 years, and

“(C) the effect of the deteriorating income account on the overall United States current account deficit;“(4) the ability of the Department of the Treasury to track purchases of publicly held debt in secondary and tertiary markets, or, if this ability does not exist, the implications of that inability for fiscal policy, monetary policy, and the predictability of capital markets;

“(5) the effect that foreign ownership of United States’ publicly-held debt has or could have on United States trade policy;

“(6) whether the level of United States debt owned by China may adversely affect the ability of the United States to negotiate with China regarding currency manipulation by China;

“(7) the effect of the increase of foreign holdings of United States debt held by the public on national security; and

“(8) the implicit tax burden that results from foreign ownership of United States debt held by the public, defined as the per capita amount that a United States Federal income taxpayer would pay in annual Federal income taxes to fully service such foreign debt during each of fiscal years 2006 through 2010.”

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, this amendment is quite simple. It directs the Treasury Department to study and report on the increase of foreign holdings of U.S. debt and what the consequences of that debt are for America. We all know that debts can add up. We all know that paying just the minimum payment on a credit card balance leads to years of payments and a much larger total of payments in the end. Most American families know that.

As a result, we urge and sometimes require credit card companies and car companies to disclose to customers how long they will be paying those minimum payments. We require them to say how much the full balance will be when the consumer has paid off the loan. It is pretty basic stuff.

This amendment is a lot like that. This amendment asks the Treasury Department to spell out the implications of our debt to foreigners. This amendment asks the Treasury to investigate what the full cost will be in higher interest rates, in the value of a dollar, in lower economic growth, in lessened power to negotiate trade agreements, and in diminished national security. We should let taxpayers know—that is our employers, the people we work for—how big the payment really is. This amendment will help get the answers.

The Treasury is authorized to issue debt totaling a little more than $8 trillion. Last year’s budget resolution generated an increase of $781 billion more, and that has led to the joint resolution before us today. This will be the fourth largest debt limit increase in our Nation’s history.

So the question needs to be asked: Who is loaning us this money? Some of it is internal, like borrowing from Social Security. Much of it is borrowed from American citizens and businesses. Now there is also an especially worrisome trend, a trend worrisome not only to me and my constituents in the State of Montana but also taxpayers across the country. That is the amount of U.S. Treasury bonds held by foreigners.

Five years ago, foreigners held about $1.1 trillion. Today that number has doubled to $2.2 trillion. Japan holds about two-thirds of a trillion dollars; China holds a quarter of a trillion dollars. So the questions that inevitably follow are, first, how long can we continue to borrow more money? Second, what are the implications to our foreign policy as foreigners increase their holdings of U.S. debt? And, third, what share of America’s taxes are being used just to pay interest on debt?

These are some of the issues we should debate today. These are some of the issues addressed in my amendment.

Every business has limits on the amount it can borrow. Banks say to businesses: Sorry, this is your loan limit. Financial institutions limit the amount that any individual or family may borrow. Every credit card has a maximum balance.

As a business or a family increases its debt, lending institutions begin to monitor the situation. Creditors even increase the interest rate charged on the debt.

At some point, America will face this economic reality. We cannot continue to accelerate our borrowing and ignore the consequences of increasing foreign held debt.

As one conservative economist put it last year in the National Review: “Growing nervousness in the bond market may be signaling an end to the free lunch Americans have enjoyed for the last 3 years, in which time foreigners have essentially financed our budget deficit.”

Indeed, we cannot count on that free lunch forever.

So I am offering a simple amendment. It directs the Treasury Department to coordinate with appropriate Government agencies to study and report on the increase of foreign holdings of U.S. debt. The amendment asks Treasury to study any associated national security implications. The amendment also asks the Treasury Department to assess how this increase in foreign investment of our federal debt affects our trade policy.

Do we want to put ourselves in the potentially precarious position of engaging in diplomacy with our Nation’s creditors? What happens if those foreign central banks and foreign investors suddenly started selling their holdings of U.S. securities? Interest rates could rise dramatically. A recession could result.

I bet that American manufacturers would like to know the answer to some of these questions. Next month, the Treasury Department is expected to rule on whether China is deliberately manipulating its currency in an effort to gain an unfair trade advantage. American businesses are awaiting this decision. But they would also like to know how any action on that decision might be affected by the level of our foreign debt.

Five years ago, foreigners held about $1.1 trillion in U.S. debt. Today that number has doubled to $2.2 trillion.

Last year, Federal debt held by the public increased by $297 billion. And the amount of public Federal debt held by foreign investors increased by $286 billion.

I have said it before and I will say it again: It is a riveting statistic. Foreign investors financed 96 percent of our Federal debt last year. Almost all of it last year was financed by foreigners—not by Americans but by foreigners.

We need to understand this change. This study will provide important information on this topic.

The answers to these questions will help us to evaluate foreign purchases of American assets. The data thus far is quite startling. According to a report from the nonpartisan Congressional Research Service, in 1995, net foreign investment in America was about 1.2 percent of our economic output. In 2005, net foreign investment was roughly 6 percent of GDP. That’s an increase of 400 percent in just 10 years.

And we have just learned that our current account deficit for 2005 was the largest ever: $805 billion. As a percent of the economy, it was also a record, at 6.4 percent.

That type of increase reflects the attractiveness of our national economy to foreign investors. But I think that we need to better understand what this means for our economy and our national security.

Both sides of the Capitol, and many of our constituents, have spent a great deal of time over the last few weeks debating the effect of purchases or control of critical American infrastructure assets by foreign entities. It is time that we get all the facts out on the table. And this study will surely aid in this effort.

And this amendment asks Treasury to evaluate how the increase of foreign-held debt affects taxpayers. Last year, Americans paid about $85 billion in interest payments on this foreign debt alone. This year, in 2006, that amount will likely increase to about $100 billion. And it will increase again in 2007.

That is again the amount in interest payments on foreign debt alone, $85 billion last year. This year, in 2006, that amount will likely increase to $100 billion. And it will increase again next year in 2007.

Since we collect about $2.5 billion a day from income taxes, this year taxpayers will be working and paying taxes for almost 2 months just to pay off those interest payments on foreign debt. Think of that. Let me say that again.

Since we collect about $2.5 billion a day from income taxes, this year taxpayers will be working and paying taxes for almost 2 months just to pay off those interest payments on foreign debt. That is not paying off the principal. That is just paying the interest. Americans will pay 2 months of taxes to service the debt we owe to foreigners.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment. We simply ask for more information, more disclosure, and more transparency relating to our federal debt. As guardians of the Federal budget, we should not be afraid to confront the facts and deal with them accordingly.

Consumers should know the full cost of buying that car when they sign on the dotted line. Well, today, on behalf of the American taxpayer, the Senate is being asked to sign on the dotted line for the borrowing that the Government has done. The American people deserve full disclosure of the consequences.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, nearly 50 years ago I, like the rest of the world, was mesmerized by a small metal sphere, no bigger than a basketball, no heavier than I or most of us.

Hurting through space at the speed of sound—I don't think it was faster than that, it goes about 18,000 miles an hour—this steel ball was Sputnik, the world's first satellite to circle the earth—in 98 minutes flat. It was a technological feat of the Soviet Union. Nikita Krushchev, the Soviet leader, had been intent on proving the Soviet Union's scientific superiority. He proved it that day in October 1957.

News of Sputnik caught Americans off guard. We had been convinced of our own superiority, but here was undeniable evidence that others were leading the way. And of all people, it was the Soviet Union.

Now we could only follow. We had been lulled into a slumber by past successes and had awoken to a harsh reality.

Other shocking Soviet achievements followed. In 1959, Luna 2 became the first space probe to hit the moon. In 1961, Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin became the first person to orbit the Earth.

But it was Sputnik that ultimately galvanized our great Nation. We came together to rediscover ourselves as a nation of thinkers, inventors, and dreamers. The shock of Sputnik caused us to not lower our expectations, but to raise them. Sputnik caused us to not ask less of ourselves but to demand more.

Four years after Sputnik, President Kennedy summoned the spirit of America to banish the ghost of Sputnik. Content to follow no longer, he set the highest goal imaginable. He declared:

We choose to go to the moon. We choose to go to the moon in this decade and do the other things, not because they are easy, but because they are hard, because that goal will serve to organize and measure the best of our energies and skills, because that challenge is one that we are willing to accept, one we are unwilling to postpone, and one which we intend to win . . .

Eight years later, American astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin and Michael Collins landed on the Moon. Armstrong became the first man to walk on the Moon.

America never looked back. To this day, America is peerless in space technology.

Today, America faces a challenge no less daunting than the Soviet-American space race. We face no rival state. We face no organized military menace.

Instead, we face a world more integrated, more interdependent, and more intensely competitive than ever in our history. We face an economy with fewer second chances. Smaller margins for error.

In this new world, it is our challenge to succeed, and to leave our children and grandchildren an economy that is better than the one we inherited from our parents; an economy not laden with debt but bursting with opportunity; an economy whose workers are increasingly productive, and whose finances are prudent; an economy that plants the seeds of innovation and education today, knowing that generations far in the future will harvest their bounty.

Our challenge is to create an economy in which universal health care coverage is its greatest asset, not its heaviest burden.

The records it sets will not be for trade and budget deficits, or interest paid to foreign lenders, but for prosperity, productivity and progress.

Its workers and companies will look to foreign shores with hope and ambition, not fear and trepidation.

It is an economy where the strong are just and the wealthy are generous. It is an economy where the weak are secure and the struggling are given a hand.

This challenge is far greater than that which America faced in 1957. To prevail, we must demand more creativity. We must summon more ambition. We must harness more resources.

Yet we do not have a Sputnik moment that captivates us and calls us to action. No single moment crystallizes the urgency of action and the imperative of success. Today, we are still in August 1957—still complacent, still sure of our superiority.

What will be our "Sputnik moment?"

Will our Sputnik moment come when our trade deficits break unimaginable records, and our foreign debt exceeds that of any modern industrial economy?

No, that moment has already passed.

Will our Sputnik moment come after we neglect our basic research programs for three decades, while our competitors pour funds into research and development and lure our labs to their shores?

No, that moment has already passed.

Will our Sputnik moment come when 45 million Americans have no health insurance, while those who are so lucky must pay more to receive less?

No, that moment too has come to pass.

Perhaps our Sputnik moment will come when China becomes the world's largest economy. That may be just 10 or 20 years away.

Perhaps our Sputnik moment will come when our foreign debt reaches such levels that each year, 2 percent of our Nation's income will go to paying interest on these loans. That may be fewer than 5 years away.

Let us not wait for our generation's Sputnik. Let us awaken from our complacency before we are shaken from it.

We must not act out of fear. But we must not fear to act.

Most of all, we must act as a nation for the good of the entire Nation. As President Kennedy said of his vision 40 years ago: "In a very real sense, it will not be one man going to the moon . . . it will be an entire nation. For all of us must work to put him there . . ."

We must all work to improve our Nation's competitiveness, and I am working to do my part at every opportunity.

This week, I will introduce a number of amendments to the budget resolution that strengthen our economy at its very foundation and steel its every pillar.

These amendments will strengthen our ability to educate our children, so that they may enter the workforce filled with confidence and innovative ideas.

These amendments will foster innovative energy research that will make our children's world cleaner, safer, and more secure.

These amendments will restore our commitment to basic research and development, a commitment that has served us well in the past and will serve us well in the future.

These amendments will embrace technology to expand our access to quality healthcare, while making it more affordable, efficient, and accurate.

These amendments will help grow our nation's pool of savings, which can foster investment. Investment that makes our economy more productive and innovative.

Taken together, I hope that these amendments will create an economy that moves our Nation forward, and makes sure that no one is left behind.

I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting them. I think they are very important. I think they are critical and, frankly, I think if we don't pass these and similar amendments, we are passing on to our children and grandchildren an immense disservice.

I thank the Chair for listening.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I cannot help but make a few comments on the speech we just heard, noting the fact that over $500 billion in new spending was offered, of which over half was voted for by the ranking member on the Committee on Finance last year—new spending unpaid for—and has the audacity to talk about the President getting us into this fix.

I mentioned earlier, this Senate and the House, the Congress, got us into this fix. The bills start in the House, they come to the Senate, and the irresponsible spending that has gone on has been a compilation of many factors. But most of it rests upon the Members of the Senate who refuse to make the hard choices in terms of spending.

I also note during last year's appropriations cycle, I offered amendments that were called sunshine amendments to make sure we knew what was in the bills we were voting on. I also note that the ranking member voted against those both times they were offered.

It is disingenuous to claim lack of responsibility. It is all of our responsibility. The Nation does not want to hear Congress pointing fingers. They want a solution to the problem. That solution comes through by restraining the discretionary accounts, rather than offering another $200 billion or $300 billion this year of new spending that is unpaid for. It also comes through working the hard issues of changing the entitlement programs of Medicare, Medicaid, and reforming Social Security, like the President of this body has led on in the past.

The record should be clear that actions speak much louder than words. The actions of the ranking member of the Committee on Finance do not match up to the words that were just spoken. The responsibility lies on all. All are guilty of not doing what is in the best long-term interests of this country. That is what has to change.

We can play the political games. We can point fingers. But the fact is, I take responsibility for that, and every other Member of that Senate who has been here since 2001 should, September 11, 2001, when the economy failed, went through the tank. Since then we have been trying to build back this economy.

Quite frankly, the economy is in the greatest shape it has ever been in, in terms of growth, productivity, jobs. What we do need to address and will address in the future is changing health care overall so people can have access to affordable health care.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent there now be a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

GUS R. DOUGLASS INSTITUTE

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, on March 15, West Virginia State University will dedicate its new research institute in honor of the commissioner of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, the legendary Mr. Gus R. Douglass. This is a wonderful and fitting tribute to a great West Virginian and outstanding public servant.

Commissioner Douglass has served now 10 terms in his position, the longest reigning agriculture commissioner in the history of West Virginia, and, indeed, in the entire Nation. During his tenure, he has always demonstrated a sincere commitment to the farmers and to the people of West Virginia. His long and admirable record includes his support of programs designed to maintain family farms and new farming technologies and efforts to preserve a way of life that has become all too uncommon in our country. His work on behalf of our State's farmers has helped to improve the lives of all West Virginians.

In his remarkable career, Commissioner Douglas has brought national recognition to West Virginia. He has served as the national president of Future Farmers of America, the first president of the national FFA Alumni Association, the president of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, and chairman of the Southern Regional Committee for Food and Agriculture, as well as numerous other positions.

Meanwhile, Gus and his lovely wife, Anna Lee, have maintained their own family farm at Grimm's Landing in Mason County, WV. Along with their four children, and their families, they have done their part to continue the tradition upon which this great Nation was founded.

The Gus R. Douglass Institute at West Virginia State University will be a lasting legacy to the outstanding and unwavering commitment of Commissioner Douglass to public service. I thank West Virginia State University for bestowing this honor upon him.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter which I wrote to Commissioner Douglass congratulating him on this well deserved recognition be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

UNITED STATES SENATE, COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS,
Washington, DC, March 15, 2006.

Hon. GUS R. DOUGLASS,
Commissioner of Agriculture, State of West Virginia, Charleston, WV.

DEAR GUS: I am so pleased that West Virginia State University is dedicating a research institute in your honor. This is a wonderful tribute to a good friend, a great West Virginian, and an outstanding public servant. Congratulations!

In your ten terms as Commissioner of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, you have faithfully demonstrated that you are a true servant of the people, and have taken seriously your sincere commitment to the farmers of West Virginia. Your long and admirable record includes unwavering support for family farms, new farming technologies, and a way of life that has become all too uncommon in our country. These and your many other efforts have helped to improve the lives of all West Virginians.

In naming this new research facility the "Gus R. Douglass Institute," West Virginia State University has not only bestowed upon it respect and prestige, but also has ensured that your commitment to service will reap benefits for generations to come. This lasting legacy to your remarkable career is well deserved and well earned, and I join all those who have gathered today in extending my heartiest congratulations.

May the work and the research conducted in this facility be as outstanding and productive as you have been, Gus. If it is, it cannot be anything but an enormous success!

With every good wish, I am

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT C. BYRD.

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today the first female chief executive from Africa addressed a joint session of Congress. In order to commemorate this historic event, I rise to recognize Women's History Month. March is a time to celebrate the women who have played a pivotal role in America's history. Women have always played a crucial role in building the great history of this country, and the women of my home State, Nevada, are no different.

One who comes to mind is Sarah Winnemucca, an influential native woman whom we honored last year by making her the second of Nevada's statues in Congress. Born to a Paiute chief's family around 1844, Sarah was unusually driven to bridge the gulf between Native Americans and Caucasian settlers. Dedicated to helping her people, Sarah used her talents as an English translator, public speaker, negotiator, and educator.

Women's History Month is a wonderful opportunity to reflect on the accomplishments and contributions of famous women like Sarah, but there are many untold stories of women just like her whose names we don't know and whose lives have made America a place of strength, freedom, and hope. Their stories are echoed in the contributions that women across the country make every day, whether at home, in the community, in the workplace, or on the battlefield. More than just to paying them tribute, I am committed to honoring them by fighting for a more just, prosperous, and worthy nation.

For the women colleagues, business leaders, and entrepreneurs who make our economy run, America can do better to ensure fair pay and expand economic opportunity. They give their best, but even in 2006, women who work full time year round still earn only 76 cents for every $1 their male counterparts earn. I pledge that we will continue fighting to end this unfair pay gap, to increase the minimum wage, and to create more opportunities for all our families.

Finally, I salute the more than 200,000 women who are serving in active duty in the military, helping to defend and protect our Nation. I pledge to them that Democrats will continue fighting to provide our troops and their families, Active Duty and Reserve, with all the resources they need to protect our freedom. And when they return home, we will ensure that all veterans have access to the health care they need and never have to choose between retirement and a disability check.

At the end of the day, these brave women are protecting America, including community, integrity, freedom, and justice, for everyone. These principles represent not just the foundation of our great Nation but also the same values that bind us as Americans. This month, let us recognize the women all across this country—the mothers, the daughters, the coworkers, and the soldiers—who make these cherished ideals an intrinsic and enduring part of the American dream.

SIMPLIFICATION THROUGH ADDITIONAL REPORTING TAX ACT

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, yesterday I introduced legislation, entitled the Simplification Through Additional Reporting Tax, START, Act of 2006, that will require brokerage houses and mutual fund companies to track and report cost basis information to their customers and the IRS. The legislation is cosponsored by Senators OBAMA, CARPER, KERRY, and LEVIN and is based upon a recommendation made by the National Taxpayer Advocate, the organization created as part of the 1998 IRS Restructuring and Reform Act whose explicit purpose is to make recommendations to Congress to simplify the tax code.

Over 130 million Americans are now struggling with the difficult job of filling out their taxes and 32 million taxpayers will likely have to report a capital gain or loss. For taxpayers all across the country that are angry and frustrated with the tax code, the START Act will hopefully provide some measure of relief and, at the same time, help close what is called the "Tax Gap."

The Federal Government now fails to collect close to $350 billion in taxes that are legally owed. This is called the tax gap, an amount that exceeds last year's $318 billion deficit, or this year's projected deficit of $336 billion. The National Taxpayer Advocate has observed that if we eliminated the tax gap, we could cut taxes for every American by $2,000. This would only be true, of course, if we ran a surplus. Because we are running a deficit, and will likely be doing so for the foreseeable future, the tax gap is really a $2,000 tax increase on our children and grandchildren, with interest building every year. This is a moral failure that needs to be addressed.

Unfortunately, while there has been a lot of discussion about this issue in the halls of Congress and within the administration, there has been little action. In the last two years, there have been six congressional hearings on this issue. The Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Mark Everson has said that this issue is a top priority and that over a period of time the government could collect between $50 and $100 billion of the tax gap "without changing the dynamic between the IRS and the [American] people." However, in their latest budget, the Bush Administration has introduced proposals that only attempt to close $259 million of the tax gap in fiscal year 2007, or approximately one-tenth of 1 percent of the tax gap as measured in 2001. This is a failure of leadership. More can be done.

The legislation that I am introducing today does not eliminate the tax gap, but it does address a significant part of the problem. Specifically, the START Act of 2006 addresses the portion of the tax gap related to capital gains. This part of the tax gap results from the underreporting of capital income, and can include income related to the sale of stocks, bonds, real estate, and a myriad of other investments. According to the IRS, the revenue loss from the underreporting of capital income is $11 billion annually. It is important to understand that this figure is based on 2001 data. Since 2001, the amount of revenue collected through capital gains taxes has increased by $190 billion, from $349 billion in 2001 to $539 billion in 2005. If one makes the reasonable assumption that the misreporting percentage has stayed stable during this period, the $11 billion problem in 2001 is now a whopping $17 billion problem in 2005. Over 10 years, assuming no growth in capital gains realizations, this potentially represents $170 billion in revenue that the Federal Government is failing to collect.

The START Act is intended to accomplish three goals: first, reduce the deficit by closing a portion of the tax gap; second, simplify the tax-filing process for the millions of Americans who pay capital gains taxes; and, third, make the tax code fairer.

The first goal of this legislation is to reduce the deficit. We not only have a moral responsibility to our children and grandchildren to begin seriously addressing our growing deficit and debt, we also need to do so to protect our vital trade and national security interests. The total public debt now stands at $8.2 trillion, or $27,728 for each man, woman, and child living in America. This week, the Senate will likely vote again to raise the public debt limit, this time to $9 trillion. By 2011, the debt will have reached $11.8 trillion. In the last three years alone, we will have increased the debt limit by $3 trillion, a 40-percent increase from when President Bush took office in January 2001.

While we are mortgaging our country, it is important to ask to whom do we owe all of this money. Increasingly, the answer is foreigners, and this development represents an economic and security threat to our country. In December 2005, an estimated $2.2 trillion of the publicly held debt was owned by foreign creditors, such as the Chinese and Japanese. It took 42 Presidents 224 years to run up a trillion dollars of debt held by foreigners. This President has more than doubled that amount in just five years. This has weakened our country. Why? Because when the value of the U.S. dollar plunges at the mere suggestion by a Japanese or Chinese central banker that they will sell their holdings in U.S. dollars, it signals that we no longer control our economic destiny. This level of dependency affects our ability to bargain from a position of strength on national security issues with foreign countries. It is worth remembering that there has never been a country that is militarily strong, but financially weak, yet that is the path that we are on today.

Vice President DICK CHENEY famously said that “deficits don’t matter.” Well, they do, as almost all economists will tell you. And the reason they matter is that when we borrow, we prevent both the private sector and the public sector from being able to invest in our country’s and our children’s future. Our children are now part of a global economy, and are competing against children in Japan, India, and China for the jobs of the future. If we fail to invest in their future because instead we are paying off our debts, we will become the first generation to leave a country that is worse off than the one that we inherited.

While the START Act of 2006 will not balance the budget, it does represent a step in the right direction. The impact of START has not yet been scored by the Joint Tax Committee, so the impact on the deficit is not known. Nevertheless, the capital gains tax gap is now $17 billion per year. My proposal might not close the entire gap, but I expect that it will make a very meaningful down payment on the problem.

The second goal of my legislation is to simplify the tax-filing process and help American taxpayers spend less time filling out their taxes. It is no secret that the Tax Code is overly complex. It now has over 17,000 pages and contains almost four times as many words as the Bible. The IRS now prints over 1,000 publications. Americans now spend 5.8 billion hours and $194 billion every year to complete their tax forms. According to the National Taxpayers Union, the number of taxpayers using paid professionals has soared by approximately 60 percent since 1980 and by nearly 30 percent since 1990. Reflective of this complexity is the fact that one of the leading tax preparation firms, H+R Block, was in the news recently because it could not accurately do its own corporate tax return.

One of the most complex areas of the tax code is Schedule D, the form that taxpayers must fill out when they report their capital gains and losses. For the average taxpayer, simply filling out this one schedule adds 7 hours to the tax return filing process almost a full work day. And, for taxpayers using return preparers to complete this form, it can add significantly to their costs.

Computing a capital gain or loss would seem, on its face, easy enough. You need to know the original purchase price and the final sales amount. Taking the difference between the two should determine the amount of gain or loss. Taxpayers do have the final piece of the puzzle—the sale price, as brokerage houses and mutual funds now report this information, called “gross proceeds,” to their customers and the IRS on Form 1099B. But what taxpayers are not told, and what is extremely difficult to calculate, is what is called the “adjusted cost basis” in their investment. This is a technical term for the original price of the investment, plus any necessary adjustments.

Taxpayers face enormous challenges in trying to determine the adjusted basis of the securities they have held for many years. The first challenge is simply a matter of recordkeeping. Brokers usually send an investor a certificate of ownership stating the original purchase price of the asset. But stocks or bonds or mutual funds can be held for long periods of time, and many taxpayers lose this information and thus are left without any record of what they paid for the investment. The second challenge is a more serious one and stems from the fact that a taxpayer’s capital gain or loss is not always simply the difference between the purchase price and sale price. Taxpayers must often adjust the tax basis they have in their investments due to certain events that take place during their ownership of the security. For example, if a company’s stock splits, the tax basis in that stock must be cut in half; alternatively, if there is a reverse stock split, the tax basis in that stock must be doubled. Consider, too, that if you reinvest capital gains or dividends in the same investment, you likewise have to adjust your basis. Determining the adjusted basis can be a very complex undertaking and, under current law, sole responsibility for this calculation falls on the taxpayer.

The START Act would eliminate both of these challenges. By requiring brokerage houses and mutual funds to track and report taxpayer’s adjusted basis information, countless hours or days of frustration would be eliminated for the 32 million taxpayers who pay capital gains taxes. More importantly, these taxpayers would have confidence that the amount that they are paying in capital gains taxes is the correct amount. Information returns of this sort will provide taxpayer’s with accurate information about their investments that they simply can plug into their tax returns. No more trips into the attic to rifle through old boxes. No more having to sit down and try to calculate the impact of ten stock splits and reorganizations on your shares of IBM or AT&T stock.

In addition to reducing the deficit and making the tax-filing process simpler, the START Act will also make the tax code fairer. Presently, the tax code discriminates against middle-class Americans who earn the overwhelming majority of their income in the form of wages. The reason is that middle-class Americans cannot underpay their taxes because their employers submit wage information reports, called W-2 forms, to the IRS. If a factory worker in Indiana wants to underpay his taxes, the IRS will know about it since his employer sent the amount that he earned in wages to the IRS.

By contrast, taxpayers that rely on capital gains for their income, however, are accountable to only themselves. Under current law, the IRS lacks the ability to monitor the accuracy of taxpayer’s calculations since initial purchases are not reported to the IRS. This provides dishonest taxpayers with an opportunity to inflate the tax basis they have in their investments, thereby underpaying their capital gains taxes. Taxpayers that have capital gains income are thus on the honor system to report accurately. While that may work for the Boy Scouts, it doesn’t work when it comes to paying taxes. Now many capital gains taxpayers are honest, but some are not. And if the dishonest ones want to do some Enron accounting, there is virtually no way that the IRS can detect it.

The START Act addresses this inequity between wage and capital income earners by putting them on a level playing field. By requiring that adjusted cost basis information be reported to the IRS, every taxpayer that has a capital gain will be treated in the exact same way that every wage earner is treated. If we want everyone to play by the rules, then everyone should be held to the same level of accountability. Moreover, if we want Americans to believe that their tax system is fair, then we need to make sure that they believe that the person next door is actually paying their fair share in taxes. Third party information returns that allow the IRS to determine if someone is paying their taxes accurately are critical to ensure taxpayers comply with the law and that everyone is paying their fair share in taxes. The IRS uses this type of information return for wages, dividends, and interest income, and in these areas, the amount of non-compliance is negligible. Why should we not hold capital gains income to the same standard?

To accomplish the three goals that I have discussed, my bill requires brokerage houses and mutual funds to track and report their customer’s adjusted basis and provide this information to their customers and the IRS. The reporting requirement would only apply prospectively to securities acquired after the effective date. This would prevent companies from having to undertake costly and time-consuming efforts to determine basis information for assets that could be decades old.

The START Act applies to stocks, bonds, and mutual funds. For other types of securities, the bill grants authority to the Treasury Secretary to determine if the reporting requirement should apply more broadly. Financial instruments, such as derivatives, swaps, and options are not covered in the bill, but the Treasury Secretary may decide to include or exclude them when implementing the legislation.

The START Act candidly acknowledges that there will be cases where it will be difficult or impossible for companies to provide accurate basis information. In these cases, such as gifts, bequests, and specialized cases where unique basis adjustment rules come into play like wash sale rules, the legislation grants the Treasury Secretary the authority to require brokerage houses and mutual funds to provide other information that will allow the IRS to understand why basis information is not being provided. For example, in the case of a gift where the adjusted basis is unknown, a brokerage house could in lieu of supplying the adjusted basis figure, simply denote instead a "G" on the information return issued to the taxpayer and the IRS.

The START Act also provides authority to the Treasury Secretary to issue regulations that will facilitate the transfer of cost basis information when investors move assets from one brokerage house, or mutual fund, to another. A significant amount of basis information is currently lost when individuals move their financial accounts from firm to firm and the original purchase price information is not transferred to the new broker.

Finally, the START Act requires companies to begin tracking adjusted basis information during the 2008 tax year and taxpayers will receive their first reports by January 31, 2009. This will give companies close to 2 years, more than ample time, to put the processes and systems in place to comply with this new regulation. Moreover, it will give impacted companies close to 3 years before they have to issue their first information report.

Any proposal that imposes a new reporting requirement will have its critics and I am sure this proposal will attract its fair share of attention from some in the securities industry that don't like this idea. I would simply ask these potential critics read the bill before they pass judgment on the idea. I have tried to take a balanced approach and have sought input from a wide-range of experts and affected parties. Specifically, I have tried to balance the need to improve tax compliance with the goal of not placing an undue burden on industry. Specifically, by making the legislation prospective and providing three years of lead time before the industry must issue their first information report, I believe this legislation will present minimal burdens for industry.

In drafting this legislation, I have shared this legislation widely with industry, government officials, academics, and other tax professionals in order to craft the best bill possible. I have received input from the Securities Industry Association of America, the Investment Company Institute, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, and the National Association of Enrolled Agents. I have also reached out to small brokerage firms and mutual funds in Indiana to hear their perspective. In addition, the Government Accountability Office, the Internal Revenue Service, and the Joint Tax Committee have been consulted for their expertise on this legislation. During these consultations, I have not heard any explicit criticism of the proposal, but have received many helpful suggestions on ways to make this legislation both balanced and fair to companies and taxpayers. However, I do expect that there could be some philosophical and technical issues that are raised with the bill, so I want to take a moment to highlight those and respond to them immediately.

First, this proposal does not raise capital gains tax rates. For those that are legally paying the right amount in capital gains taxes, they won't pay one penny more in taxes. This proposal only ensures that people pay what they legally owe. And, moreover, what is happening today is that our failure to collect the taxes that are legally owed is effectively imposing a tax increase on our children and grandchildren who will have to pick up the tab for our fiscal failure to merely enforce the laws on the books. For this reason, I would argue that if my bill is enacted it would represent a tax cut for our children and grandchildren who will pay higher taxes if this problem is not addressed.

Some may look at this proposal and dismiss it as antibusiness and just another government regulation. I am sure there were some that had similar concerns when it was first proposed that all U.S. employers should report wages to the IRS. Now, however, we know that this reporting requirement is a cornerstone of ensuring tax compliance. Moreover, the reporting requirement does not elicit any protests from employers because they realize that without it, the U.S. Treasury would lose billions in legally owed taxes. As I have said before, the honor system may work for the Boy Scouts, but it is not a great way to collect taxes. Finally, no business would be able to succeed if every year it failed to collect $17 billion per year in sales. In fact, any responsible company would move heaven and earth to address such a problem. U.S. taxpayers deserve the same level of accountability.

Some brokerage houses or mutual funds may argue that companies cannot provide this information because, in some cases, the correct information doesn't exist. This argument does not square with the fact that there are plenty of examples of companies that already provide cost basis information to their clients. If Fidelity or Ameritrade or E*Trade can provide cost basis information to all of their clients, it clearly suggests that the information can be provided.

Some may argue that this proposal will be costly to implement, even if it is a prospective proposal, because they don't have the systems in place to track and report cost basis. I would invite them to go talk to companies that have already decided to offer basis-tracking for their clients, and ask them how much it cost to offer this service. I would also ask them to talk to the software vendors and companies that provide basis tracking services to brokerage house and mutual funds. What they will tell you is that the cost is reasonable. According to a leading company that provides basis tracking services to brokerage firms and mutual fund companies, it typically charges on an annual basis approximately $1 per account. For a company with 10,000 accounts, that is a yearly charge of $10,000, a small figure when you look at the revenues of a brokerage firm of this size.

Some may point out that there are some types of transactions or securities where a brokerage firm or mutual fund cannot reasonably be expected to provide accurate cost basis information. My bill candidly acknowledges this fact. In these cases, brokerage houses and mutual funds will simply be required to provide "other information" that will allow their customers and the IRS to understand why adjusted cost basis information could not be provided. This is already standard practice for many companies that provide cost basis information to their customers.

In conclusion, this should be an issue that honorable members from both sides of the aisle can agree needs to be addressed. Democrats and Republicans will fight endlessly about what tax rates should be, but I believe all Members should agree on the principle that all taxpayers should pay what you owe. We should also all agree that we need to reduce our deficit, simplify the tax-filing process, and promote a fair and equitable tax system. The START Act of 2006 is intended to make progress on all of these goals. I hope it can start a civil conversation about ways to improve our tax system. I look forward to working with all interested parties to craft a workable proposal that provides some needed relief to our overburdened taxpayers.

GREEK INDEPENDENCE DAY

Mr. REED. Mr. President, today I recognize the 185th anniversary of Greek independence, which will be celebrated on Saturday, March 25.

As the Greek philosopher Plato said "The beginning is the most important part of the work." After centuries of unsuccessful uprisings and failure of the Ottoman Empire to assimilate and convert the Greeks, the War of Independence began on this day, March 25 in 1821. This was the beginning of the end of 400 years of occupation and oppression by the Ottoman Turks. During the dark years of the Ottoman occupation, thousands were killed and tortured for participating in religious activities or teaching their children culture, history, and language. The steadfast resolve displayed by the Greeks helped secure their independence and recognition as a sovereign power nearly 11 years later with the signing of the Treaty of Constantinople.

This struggle for Greek independence was recognized the world over and was supported abroad by prominent world figures including Lord Byron of England, and Daniel Webster and Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe of the United States.

As we fight today's Long War on Terror, the Greeks stand by our side. A highlight of the Greek military's continuing contributions to the International Coalition was the deployment of the 229th Mobile Field Surgical Hospital deployed to Afghanistan. At full operational status within 3 days, medical experts and officials believe the 229th is one of the best medical facilities that has ever operated in Afghanistan.

A Greek proverb says, "Success isn't how far you got, but the distance you traveled from where you started." Still alive and well in our own society today are the principles and ideas of ancient Greece. When we commemorate the heroism exhibited by the Greeks, we cannot help but to think of our Founding Fathers. Then and now, Greece and the United States share an absolute commitment to democracy, justice, and freedom. In history the Greeks have inspired, and in the present they have enlivened our great Nation. It gives me great pleasure and pride to cosponsor the Senate Resolution 399 designating March 25, 2006, as Greek Independence Day: A National Day of Celebration of Greek and American Democracy. I send all Greek-Americans in Rhode Island and around the country my best wishes as they celebrate their ancestral homeland's independence.

SUNSHINE WEEK 2006

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, as we take stock during the second annual Sunshine Week, we confront the disturbing reality that the foundations of our open government are under direct assault from the first White House in modern times that is openly hostile to the public's right to know.

The right to know is a cornerstone of our democracy. Without it, citizens are kept in the dark about key policy decisions that directly affect their lives.

Without open government, citizens cannot make informed choices at the ballot box. Without access to public documents and a vibrant free press, officials can make decisions in the shadows, often in collusion with special interests, escaping accountability for their actions. And once eroded, these rights are hard to win back.

The right to know is nourished by openness and vigorous congressional oversight of Federal agencies, but both are sorely lacking, and government effectiveness and accountability have been among the casualties. The disastrous failure to prepare for and respond to Hurricane Katrina is only the most recent example, but a glaring one. Despite misleading assertions in the storm's horrific aftermath, we now know that the White House was warned in advance that the levees could fail in a hurricane. We have belatedly seen videotapes in which President Bush was cautioned by FEMA officials of this great danger.

The Freedom of Information Act, FOIA, empowers the American people to pry information from their Government that agencies would prefer to keep locked away. Americans learned more about Abu Ghraib and conditions at Guantanamo from FOIA requests than from oversight by Congress.

As we celebrate FOIA's fourth decade as law, we also watch its erosion as a target of attacks such as when the administration pushed an overly broad FOIA waiver for the Department of Homeland Security's charter the single biggest rollback of FOIA in its 40-year history.

It has been nearly a decade since Congress has approved major reforms to the Freedom of Information Act. Last year during Sunshine Week, Senator CORNYN and I introduced bipartisan legislation, S.394, to curtail the assault on FOIA. The Open Government Act contains more than a dozen substantive provisions, designed to strengthen FOIA and close loopholes, to help FOIA requestors obtain timely responses to their requests, to ensure that agencies have strong incentives to act on FOIA requests, and to provide FOIA officials with all of the tools they need to make sure that our government remains open and accessible.

A second bill that I introduced with Senator CORNYN last year, the Faster FOIA Act, S.589, would specifically address the issue of agency delay in processing FOIA requests. We propose to establish a commission to review the persistent issue of delay and to make recommendations for reducing impediments to the efficient processing of requests. This bill was reported by the Judiciary Committee and awaits floor action.

Our free press and the consciences of whistleblowers also serve the public's right to know. We would not know of the domestic spying program conducted in secret by the National Security Agency, with the full approval of the White House, unless the press had revealed it last December. The Department of Justice is stonewalling Congress's efforts to obtain facts on this program while threatening to prosecute reporters who disclosed the illegal program to the public.

The Bush administration has kept vital facts secret by silencing scientists and experts. We saw it with the gagging of NASA scientist James Hansen, whose conclusions about the dangers of greenhouse gas emissions and global warming differed with administration policy. This administration also secretly let lobbyists from polluting industries write rules on mercury emissions, overriding the advice of the EPA's scientists and even drawing a harsh rebuke from EPA's inspector general. This tacit war on science—trumping scientific evidence with ideology—has also victimized women's access to the Plan B pill and cut international family planning funds which help the poorest of the poor, even though the evidence is clear that these funds reduce the numbers of abortions.

This kind of secrecy produces bad policies, as we saw when the Bush administration tried to hide the true cost of its Medicare prescription drug plan from Congress and the American people. While they were twisting congressional arms for votes on the program, political leaders at Medicare told Congress the price tag was $400 billion. Medicare's own accountants projected the cost to be $500 billion to $600 billion, but one of those career staff, Richard Foster, was threatened with being fired if he told Congress the truth.

We saw it again when the political leadership of the Justice Department overruled career lawyers who found that Congressman TOM DELAY's Texas redistricting plan illegally diluted Black and Hispanic voting power. Career attorneys also found that a Georgia voter-identification law would discriminate against Black voters. The Department's political leaders dismissed these findings and quietly approved both plans. We only learned of these politically motivated decisions later when the press obtained documents and made them public.

In a situation that borders on the absurd, the intelligence agencies have been quietly reclassifying documents that were open for years. This program began in 1999 but has exploded under this administration, which has reclassified more than 55,000 pages. Even the Archivist of the United States said he knew "precious little" of the program until it was revealed by the press.

The examples go on and on. The Bush administration has displayed a near-total disdain for the free press and the public's right to know.

Sunshine Week invites an inventory check on tools like the Freedom of Information Act that make real the public's right to know. Attacks on these tools only erode that right. A free, open, and accountable democracy is what our forefathers fought and died for, and it is the duty of each new generation to protect this vital heritage and inheritance.

EXPRESSION OF SYMPATHY FOR KA LOKO RESERVOIR VICTIMS

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise today to express my sincere sympathy and deep concern for those affected by the collapse of the Ka Loko Reservoir on the island of Kaua'i in Hawaii. This tragic flooding has caused loss of life and substantial property damage. The people of Hawaii have shown exceptional resolve in assisting their fellow citizens as emergency personnel and other volunteers have rushed to provide assistance to people in need. We continue to pray for those who are still missing and for those who are working tirelessly in search and rescue efforts and in additional emergency response.

As many of you know, several islands in my home State have been inundated by severe rainstorms over the past few weeks. Flooding has caused substantial disruptions of life as schools and businesses have been forced to close and many roads have been damaged or have been washed out because of high water. Property damage in cities and in rural areas has been severe.

Hawaii's Governor Lingle has called upon the National Guard and many State agencies to assist those who have suffered losses and to respond to immediate needs. However, the damage caused by this flooding demonstrates the need to prepare in advance for adverse conditions and to be vigilant in examining vulnerable areas.

I stand ready to offer any assistance to the State of Hawaii that I can, including securing emergency Federal funding for the State.

Throughout this adversity, the people of Hawaii have shown the resolve that they are known for in times of crisis. I am proud of my constituents as they help their neighbors and work to restore conditions around their homes, schools, businesses, and places of worship. I know that their efforts will bring comfort and solace to those in need.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT

TRIBUTE TO ROBERT MAXCY

• Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the life of Robert Maxcy of Waldoboro, ME, who passed away this weekend at the age of 76. Bob served 56 years in the Waldoboro Fire Department, including the last 42 years as its chief, and I would like to recognize his lifelong devotion to public safety.

Chief Bob Maxcy was born on November 17, 1929, in Thomaston, ME, the son of the late Earl and Ruth Maxcy. At age 14 he began his service as a firefighter at the Thomaston Junior Fire Department. This was the beginning of his outstanding career in service to both Maine and the Nation.

Upon his graduation from Thomaston High School, Chief Maxcy served honorably with the U.S. Air Force from 1947 to 1950. During his service, Chief Maxcy attained the rank of gunnery sergeant.

When he returned to Maine in 1950, Chief Maxcy became a firefighter with the Waldoboro Fire Department. In that same year, he married his loving and devoted wife, Muriel. By 1964, Chief Maxcy had established himself as a leader in the department and was appointed chief of the Waldoboro Fire Department, a position in which he served for 42 years.

Beyond his dedication to his department, Chief Maxcy also was a leader in the community and the State, as evidenced through his participation in the Waldoboro Firemen's Association, Knox County Firemen's Association, Maine State Federation of Firefighters, and the Lincoln County Fire Chiefs.

Chief Maxcy was truly an honorable Maine man. In addition to his success as a community leader and firefighter, he will be remembered for his love of his family, the outdoors, and the Red Sox. Chief Maxcy is survived by five children, Deborah, Marcia, Marc, Dee, and Daryl; his brother, Harlan; his sister, Marilyn; his grandchildren, great grandchildren, nieces, and nephews.

Chief Bob Maxcy will be greatly missed. I offer my sincere condolences and prayers to Chief Maxcy's family. ●

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Ms. MIKULSKI:

S. 2415. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to increase burial benefits for veterans: and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Veterans Burial Benefits Improvement Act.

We must honor our U.S. soldiers who died in the name of their country. These service men and women are America's true heroes and on this day we pay tribute to their courage and sacrifice. Some have given their lives for our country. All have given their time and dedication to ensure our country remains the land of the free and the home of the brave. We owe a special debt of gratitude to each and every one of them.

Our Nation has a sacred commitment to honor the promises made to soldiers when they signed up to serve our country. As a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, I fight hard each year to make sure promises made to our service men and women are promises kept. These promises include access to quality, affordable health care and a proper burial for our veterans.

I am deeply concerned that burial benefits for the families of our wounded or disabled veterans have not kept up with inflation and rising funeral costs. We are losing over 1,000 World War II veterans each day, but Congress has failed to increase veterans' burial benefits to keep up with rising costs and inflation. While these benefits were never intended to cover the full costs of burial, they now pay for only a fraction of what they covered in 1973, when the Federal Government first started paying burial benefits for our veterans.

I want to thank my colleagues on the Veterans Affairs Committee for working with me in the 107th Congress. Together, we were able to increase modestly the service-connected benefit from $1,500 to $2,000, and the plot allowance from $150 to $300. While I believe these increases are a step in the right direction, they are not a substitute for the amounts included in my bill.

That is why I am again introducing the Veterans Burial Benefits Improvement Act. This bill will increase burial benefits to cover the same percentage of funeral costs as they did in 1973. It will also provide for these benefits to be increased annually to keep up with inflation.

In 1973, the service-connected benefit paid for 72 percent of veterans' funeral costs. Today, this benefit covers just 39 percent of funeral costs. My bill will increase the service-connected benefit from $2,000 to $3,713, bringing it back up to the original 72 percent level.

In 1973, the non-service connected benefit paid for 22 percent of funeral costs. It has not been increased since 1978, and today it covers just 6 percent of funeral costs. My bill will increase the non-service connected benefit from $300 to $1,135, bringing it back up to the original 22 percent level.

In 1973, the plot allowance paid for 13 percent of veterans' funeral costs. Yet it now covers just 3 percent of funeral costs. My bill will increase the plot allowance from $300 to $670, bringing it back up to the original 13 percent level.

Finally, the Veterans Burial Benefits Improvement Act will also ensure that these burial benefits are adjusted for inflation annually, so veterans will not have to fight this fight again.

This legislation is just one way to honor our Nation's service men and women. I want to thank the millions of veterans, Marylanders, and people across the Nation for their patriotism, devotion, and commitment to honoring the true meaning of Memorial Day. U.S. soldiers from every generation have shared in the duty of defending America and protecting our freedom. For these sacrifices, America is eternally grateful.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2415

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Veterans Burial Benefits Improvement Act of 2006".

SEC. 2. INCREASE IN BURIAL AND FUNERAL BENEFITS FOR VETERANS.

(a) INCREASE IN BURIAL AND FUNERAL EXPENSES AND PROVISION FOR ANNUAL COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT.—

(1) EXPENSES GENERALLY.—Section 2302(a) of title 38, United States Code, is amended by striking "$300" and inserting "$1,135 (as increased from time to time under section 2309 of this title)".

(2) EXPENSES FOR DEATHS IN DEPARTMENT FACILITIES.—Section 2303(a)(1)(A) of such title is amended by striking "$300" and inserting "$1,135 (as increased from time to time under section 2309 of this title)".

(3) EXPENSES FOR DEATHS FROM SERVICE-CONNECTED DISABILITIES.—Section 2307 of such title is amended by striking "$2,000," and inserting "$3,712 (as increased from time to time under section 2309 of this title)".

(b) PLOT ALLOWANCE.—Section 2303(b) of such title is amended—

(1) by striking "$300" the first place it appears and inserting "$670 (as increased from time to time under section 2309 of this title)"; and

(2) by striking "$300" the second place it appears and inserting "$670 (as so increased)".

(c) ANNUAL ADJUSTMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 23 of such title is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§ 2309. Annual adjustment of amounts of burial benefits

"With respect to any fiscal year, the Secretary shall provide a percentage increase (rounded to the nearest dollar) in the burial and funeral expenses under sections 2302(a), 2303(a), and 2307 of this title, and in the plot allowance under section 2303(b) of this title, equal to the percentage by which—

"(1) the Consumer Price Index (all items, United States city average) for the 12-month period ending on the June 30 preceding the beginning of the fiscal year for which the increase is made, exceeds

"(2) the Consumer Price Index for the 12-month period preceding the 12-month period described in paragraph (1)."

(2) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections at the beginning of such chapter is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“2309. Annual adjustment of amounts of burial benefits”.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall apply to deaths occurring on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) PROHIBITION ON COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007.—No adjustments shall be made under section 2309 of title 38, United States Code, as added by subsection (c), for fiscal year 2007.

By Mr. BURNS (for himself and Mr. PRYOR):

S. 2416. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to expand the scope of programs of education for which accelerated payments of educational assistance under the Montgomery GI Bill may be used, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Veterans' Employment and Training Act of 2006. I am joined in this effort by Senator PRYOR. This important legislation will provide expanded benefits for our brave men and women returning from service in the Global War on Terror, while also providing needed workers to growing sectors of our economy.

Under the Montgomery G.I. Bill, the Veterans' Administration currently provides accelerated benefits to assist our service men and women in transitioning to the civilian job market. Through this program, the VA makes short-term, high-cost training programs more attractive to veterans by paying benefits in a lump sum, and by covering up to 60 percent of the cost of some educational programs. However, this program is now only available to men and women who seek training in high-tech programs.

In order to provide this benefit to more of our brave men and women in the armed forces, the Veterans' Employment and Training Act will expand eligibility for accelerated benefits to include industry sectors identified by the Department of Labor as likely to add large numbers of new jobs or require new job training skills in the coming years. These sectors include construction, hospitality, financial services, energy, homeland security, health care, and transportation.

A number of these sectors face critical shortages of employees now or in the near future and are anxious to attract veterans to their professions. The trucking industry, for example, needs an additional 20,000 drivers today and expects to face a driver shortage of 110,000 drivers by 2014. The modest change that I am proposing today will help to provide needed workers to these and other industries.

But more importantly, we must remember the great sacrifices made by those in the Armed Forces. For many of these brave individuals, the transition from military service to civilian life is not an easy one. It is particularly difficult for veterans between the ages of 20 and 24, who currently have an unemployment rate of over 15 percent—nearly double the rate of non-veterans in the same age group. This is simply unacceptable!

We have an obligation to make sure that these individuals are not forgotten when they return from service. One step we can take now is to ensure that those who serve have access to every educational opportunity possible. By expanding eligibility for accelerated G.I. Bill benefits, we will give many of these veterans a new opportunity to get training and find work in some of the fastest growing sectors of our economy.

I urge the Senate to act soon to pass this legislation. We owe it to the men and women of the Armed Forces to act quickly to provide them with this expanded benefit.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2416

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Veterans Employment and Training Act of 2006”.

SEC. 2. EXPANSION OF EDUCATION PROGRAMS ELIGIBLE FOR ACCELERATED PAYMENT OF EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE UNDER THE MONTGOMERY GI BILL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (b) of section 3014A of title 38, United States Code, is amended by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following new paragraph (1):

“(1) enrolled in either—

“(A) an approved program of education that leads to employment in a high technology occupation in a high technology industry (as determined pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary); or

“(B) an approved program of education lasting less than two years that leads to employment in a sector of the economy, as identified by the Department of Labor, that—

“(i) is projected to—

“(I) experience a substantial increase in the number of jobs; or “(II) positively affect the growth of another sector of the economy; or “(ii) consists of existing or emerging businesses that are being transformed by technology and innovation and require new skills for workers; and”.

(b) CONFORMING EXPANSION OF PROGRAM OF EDUCATION.—Such section is further amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (h); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection (g):

“(g) For purposes of this section, a program of education includes a program of education (as defined in section 3002(3) of this title) pursued at a tribally controlled college or university (as such term is defined in section 2 of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 1801)).”.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) HEADING AMENDMENT.—The heading of such section is amended to read as follows:

“§ 3014A. Accelerated payment of basic educational assistance”.

(2) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The item relating to such section in the table of sections at the beginning of chapter 30 of such title is amended to read as follows:

“3014A. Accelerated payment of basic educational assistance.”.

S. 2417. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to designate the President William Jefferson Clinton Birthplace home in Hope, Arkansas, as a National Historic Site and unit of the National Park System, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2417

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. WILLIAM JEFFERSON CLINTON BIRTHPLACE HOME NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE.

(a) ACQUISITION OF PROPERTY; ESTABLISHMENT OF HISTORIC SITE.—Should the Secretary of the Interior acquire, by donation only from the Clinton Birthplace Foundation, Inc., fee simple, unencumbered title to the William Jefferson Clinton Birthplace Home site located at 117 South Hervey Street, Hope, Arkansas, 71801, and to any personal property related to that site, the Secretary shall designate the William Jefferson Clinton Birthplace Home site as a National Historic Site and unit of the National Park System, to be known as the “President William Jefferson Clinton Birthplace Home National Historic Site”.

(b) APPLICABILITY OF OTHER LAWS.—The Secretary shall administer the President William Jefferson Clinton Birthplace Home National Historic Site in accordance with the laws generally applicable to national historic sites, including the Act entitled “An Act to establish a National Park Service, and for other purposes”, approved August 25, 1916 (16 U.S.C. 1–4), and the Act entitled “An Act to provide for the preservation of historic American sites, buildings, objects and antiquities of national significance, and for other purposes”, approved August 21, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 461 et seq.).

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself, Mr. BAUCUS, and Mr. LOTT):

S. 2418. A bill to preserve local radio broadcast emergency and other services and to require the Federal Communications Commission to conduct a rulemaking for that purpose; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I stand before my colleagues today to announce the introduction of a bill that will preserve an important resource needed during times of an emergency—free, local, over-the-air radio broadcasting. The Local Emergency Radio Service Preservation Act ensures that terrestrial radio service does not suffer from the entry of subscription-based satellite services into local markets.

The most reliable form of communication today is radio. Oftentimes during natural disasters and other emergencies, many forms of communications become unavailable to the public. Wireless systems can be overloaded with calls. Satellite television service is interrupted by extreme weather conditions. Internet service connections are frequently disconnected. In contrast, over-the-air radio is an ubiquitous form of mass media that is available to nearly every car and household in the nation. The system cannot be overloaded and operates well under extreme weather conditions. Radio has been meeting the demands of local communities for nearly a century and is equipped to continue its service well into the next century.

In 1997 satellite digital audio radio service, SDARS, was licensed by the Federal Communications Commission, FCC, to provide a national radio programming service. Today satellite radio companies provide their service to consumers on a subscription basis. The cost of the radio equipment needed to receive the service is reasonable for the enthusiast, but too costly for low income households. For many families, satellite radio is not an option. Instead, these people must rely on traditional over-the-air radio for weather, traffic, news and local information.

Should satellite companies begin to enter into local markets, going against the original spirit of the license agreement, local radio stations would suffer revenue loss. Advertising dollars are the radio broadcast industry's sole source of revenue. The technology exists for satellite companies to deliver local content, including local advertisements. Satellite industry players have publically stated that local advertising dollars could quickly become a new revenue source. This threat to free radio is a threat to the public interest.

The Local Emergency Radio Service Preservation Act eases the threat to radio broadcasting. First the bill prohibits the use of satellite terrestrial repeaters to insert local content into specific local markets. Second, this legislation clarifies that future technologies cannot be used to distribute local satellite programming. Lastly, the act requires the Federal Communications Commission, FCC, to conduct a rulemaking on the distribution of region-specific content on a nationwide basis.

By Mr. STEVENS (for himself,
Mr. HAGEL, and Mr. KERRY):

S. 2419. A bill to ensure the proper remembrance of Vietnam veterans and the Vietnam War by providing a deadline for the designation of a visitor center for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I come to the floor to introduce a bill, which seeks to honor Congress' commitment to our Vietnam Veterans. Joining me in sponsoring this legislation is Senator HAGEL, a Vietnam veteran himself.

On November 5, 2003 this body passed the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Visitor Center Act by unanimous consent.

That bill authorized the construction of a center to educate the nearly 4 million visitors annually to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

This center will be an important resource for current and future generations, enabling them to have a better understanding of the Vietnam War and to pay tribute to the brave Americans who answered the call to duty.

Unfortunately, the Visitor Center project has stalled due to bureaucratic delays.

This bill would create a 30-day deadline following its enactment for the approval of the Visitor Center.

We owe it to the Vietnam Veterans, and to the Wall's future visitors to follow through with this project. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

By Mr. ALLEN:

S. 2424. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to increase the contribution limits for health savings accounts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the growing success of Health Savings Accounts (HSAs) and legislation I have introduced to expand Health Savings Accounts.

In a positive action, Congress created Health Savings Accounts as part of the Medicare Modernization Act (MMA). Health Savings Accounts are an alternative to traditional health insurance—a savings product that offers a different and attractive way for consumers to pay for their health care. HSAs enable an individual to pay for current health expenses and save for future qualified medical and retiree health expenses on a tax-free basis.

An individual must have coverage under an HSA qualified health plan to open and contribute to an HSA. HSA qualified health plan premiums generally cost less than traditional health care coverage. Therefore, an individual can put the money he or she saves on insurance into a personal Health Savings Account.

I've always described myself as a common sense Jeffersonian conservative, which means I trust free people and free enterprise more than a meddling, burdensome government and that's why I'm such a strong advocate for Health Savings Accounts. Individuals own and control the money in their HSAs. Unlike a Flexible Spending Account, funds remain in the account from year to year, just like an IRA. There are no "use it or lose it" rules for HSAs. HSAs can become, over time, a strong, affordable health insurance product providing a savings "nest egg" for health care expenses.

In addition, HSAs allow individuals to make decisions on how to spend their money without relying on a third party. More specifically, the individual makes decisions about how much money he or she wants to put into the account, whether to save for future medical expenses, or pay expenses that health insurance plans may not cover.

The individual also decides what types of investments to make with the money in the account that will allow the account appreciate and grow in value. I want to make clear right here that the individual does not have to invest their money if he or she doesn't want to. This is only an option. The bottom line is that Health Savings Accounts give people the freedom to make the health care choices that best fit their needs and that best represent Mr. Jefferson's ideals and my own.

Now, there are critics of health savings accounts. However, there is convincing evidence that HSAs have proven effective in controlling health care costs and providing an affordable option for Americans without health insurance coverage.

Critics who claim that rich people gain most from the tax breaks of HSAs should look at the facts. Of the 3 million Americans who have enrolled in HSA plans, 32 percent were previously uninsured, and the uninsured are not typically wealthy. Critics suggest HSAs will drive up the cost of premiums. However, a recently released study from the Deloitte Center for Health Solutions showed HSA qualified plans had a 2.8 percent annual premium increase, compared to 8 percent for all other plans. This low rate of increase is another reason HSA qualified plans are affordable to those with lower incomes.

Another common criticism of HSAs is that the tax break benefits are "too generous." But the President's proposal offering both a tax deduction and tax credit for money used to fund HSAs is no more generous than current tax benefits for employer-sponsored health coverage. However, our laws and proposal only level the playing field.

Proponents of HSAs do not pretend that HSAs are going to "fix" the entire health care system, although they may go a long way toward doing so with more individual responsibility and opportunity. HSAs are an additional option—one that is affordable and chips away at part of the problem: the millions of uninsured Americans. Individuals need health insurance, especially for costly medical services, not only tax deductions for out-of-pocket spending. It is the combination of two products—the HSA and HSA-qualified health insurance plan—that has allowed over one million previously uninsured Americans to afford real health coverage.

I am very pleased to see the positive results of Health Savings Accounts. But we cannot let this momentum slow down. We must do more to promote HSAs and give individuals more control over their health care needs—and that is why I am here today. I am introducing legislation that would increase the maximum amount individuals can contribute to their HSA.

Under current law, an individual's contributions are limited to the lesser of the amount of the deductible or $2700 for self-only coverage, ($5450 for family coverage), for 2006. Under this proposal, a person could contribute—without paying income or payroll taxes on the contribution—up to the plan's out-of-pocket maximum, which is higher than the deductible. So for an individual, the maximum out-of-pocket for 2006 cannot exceed $5250 or $10500 for a family. It is important to note though, that each HSA qualified health plan sets their own limit on out of pocket expenses, therefore, for an individual their out-of-pocket expenses may be lower than maximum $5250 but more than the current limit of $2700. Nevertheless, this legislation allows individuals to save more money for their current and future health care needs and I am proud to be introducing it.

Moreover, this proposal will remove the tax bias against consumer-directed health plans. Today, the tax code subsidizes health care purchased through insurance but generally does not subsidize health care paid out-of-pocket. This encourages excessive reliance on insurance for even predictable, non-catastrophic care, which in turn reduces consumer sensitivity to the cost of health care. My proposal would help improve the efficiency and slow the growth of our nation's health care spending.

Studies estimate that the average retiree will require hundreds of thousands of dollars of savings for out-of-pocket old-age health costs. HSAs provide strong tax incentives to encourage such savings. On a side note, I have introduced legislation, the Long-Term Care Act that compliments this HSA proposal. Under the Long-Term Care Act, we would allow individuals to use their 401(k) savings to pay for long-term care insurance. Both proposals provide commonsense approaches that will encourage individuals to plan for their future health care needs and reduce individuals' reliance on programs such as Medicaid.

HSAs have proven to be an effective health cost containment tool. While there is a cost to the federal government associated with the tax benefit portion of HSA plans, we must weigh that cost against the cost of doing nothing and allowing cost shifting to those with insurance. Our health care system needs to switch to a preventive care system, which will keep future health care costs down rather than our current costly reactionary system. If we continue down our current path and make no significant changes to our health care system, the unfunded liability of entitlement spending will reach $26 trillion by the year 2030, consuming the entire federal budget. We're at a crucial point, and I believe my legislation, and HSAs in general, offer a step in the right direction for personal responsibility in fostering affordable health care and savings.

By Mr. CONRAD (for himself and Mr. BROWNBACK):

S. 2425. A bill to apply amendments to the Immigration and Nationality Act related to providing medical services in underserved areas, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CONRAD Mr. President: Today, I am introducing a bill to permanently reauthorize the Conrad 30 visa waiver program to provide medical care to underserved rural America.

One of the top concerns of North Dakota community leaders and hospital officials is the challenge of recruiting and keeping capable, quality doctors. In response, I created this visa waiver program in 1994 to recruit highly qualified foreign physicians to medically underserved areas.

This program was meant to help many areas across the country, especially rural communities that have a difficult time recruiting doctors, get access to primary health care. It has proven to be one of our Nation's top tools to recruit and keep doctors in our rural communities.

The Conrad 30 program allows a State agency to grant visa waivers to foreign medical graduates who are in the United States for their residencies on foreign exchange J-1 visas. To qualify for the waiver, the physician undergoes numerous background and security checks, and must agree to serve a medically underserved community for three years. In exchange, the physician's requirement to return to his home country for a period of time before applying for a work visa is waived so that we can utilize them in underserved areas.

Since the program was implemented in 1994, North Dakota has received a total of 90 Conrad State 30 J-1 visa waiver doctors in communities all over the State.

Nearly every rural hospital in the State—and many of clinics—have benefited from the program. For example, Oakes, (population 1,979) has had 6 doctors, Bottineau, (population 2,336), has had 4, and Tioga, (population 1,125), has had 3.

As you can see, many rural counties rely on the physicians they receive through the Conrad State 30 program to provide healthcare in their communities. This bipartisan program is critical to ensuring our rural health care needs are met for years to come.

States have come to rely on the program. It has proven to be successful in bringing physicians to underserved areas without displacing American physicians, because the foreign physicians are filling a large and obvious void.

It has been just over 14 months since the last reauthorization passed, and we're already working on another reauthorization. Clearly, two years has proven to be far too short. Since 1994, the Conrad 30 program has been reauthorized a number of times. The current authorization expires on June 1, 2006. I urge my colleagues to pass this bill making the program permanent.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 402—DESIGNATING THE FIRST DAY OF APRIL, 2006, AS "NATIONAL ASBESTOS AWARENESS DAY"

Mr. REID submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 402

Whereas dangerous asbestos fibers are invisible and cannot be smelled or tasted;

Whereas the inhalation of airborne asbestos fibers can cause significant damage;

Whereas these fibers can cause mesothelioma, asbestosis, and other health problems;

Whereas asbestos-related diseases can take 10 to 50 years to present themselves;

Whereas the expected survival time for those diagnosed with mesothelioma is between 6 and 24 months;

Whereas generally little is known about late stage treatment and there is no cure for asbestos-related diseases;

Whereas early detection of asbestos-related diseases may give some patients increased treatment options and might improve their prognosis;

Whereas the United States has substantially reduced its consumption of asbestos yet continues to consume almost 7,000 metric tons of the fibrous mineral for use in certain products throughout the Nation;

Whereas asbestos-related diseases have killed thousands of people in the United States;

Whereas asbestos exposures continue and safety and prevention will reduce and has reduced significantly asbestos exposure and asbestos-related diseases;

Whereas asbestos has been a cause of occupational cancer;

Whereas thousands of workers in the United States face significant asbestos exposure;

Whereas thousands of Americans die from asbestos-related diseases every year;

Whereas a significant percentage of all asbestos-related disease victims were exposed to asbestos on naval ships and in shipyards;

Whereas asbestos was used in the construction of a significant number of office buildings and public facilities built before 1975; and

Whereas the establishment of a "National Asbestos Awareness Day" would raise public awareness about the prevalence of asbestos-related diseases and the dangers of asbestos exposure; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate designates the first day of April 2006 as "National Asbestos Awareness Day".

SEC. 313. RESERVE FUND TO PREVENT CATASTROPHIC LOSS.

If—
(1) the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate reports a bill or joint resolution, or if an amendment is offered thereto, or if a conference report is submitted thereon, that increases investment in measures designed to prevent catastrophic flood and hurricane damage in coastal areas such that—

(A) the measures, when completed, will likely decrease future expenditures from the Disaster Relief Fund;

(B) the increases do not exceed $10,000,000,000; and

(C) the measures are certified by the President as likely to prevent loss of life and property; and

(2) that Committee is within its allocation as provided under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (2 U.S.C. 633(a));

the Chairperson of the Committee on Budget of the Senate may make the appropriate adjustments in the allocations and aggregates to the extent that such legislation would not increase the deficit for the fiscal year 2007 and for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING SOCIAL SECURITY RESTRUCTURING.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) Social Security is the foundation of retirement income for most Americans;

(2) preserving and strengthening the long term viability of Social Security is a vital national priority and is essential for the retirement security of today's working Americans, current and future retirees, and their families;

(3) Social Security faces significant fiscal and demographic pressures;

(4) the nonpartisan Office of the Chief Actuary at the Social Security Administration reports that—

(A) the number of workers paying taxes to support each Social Security beneficiary has dropped from 16.5 in 1950 to 3.3 in 2005;

(B) within a generation there will be only 2 workers to support each retiree, which will substantially increase the financial burden on American workers;

(C) without structural reform, the Social Security system, beginning in 2017, will pay out more in benefits than it will collect in taxes;

(D) without structural reform, the Social Security trust fund will be exhausted in 2041, and Social Security tax revenue in 2041 will only cover 74 percent of promised benefits, and will decrease to 68 percent by 2079;

(E) without structural reform, future Congresses may have to raise payroll taxes nearly 50 percent over the next 75 years to pay full benefits on time, resulting in payroll tax rates of as much as 17.5 percent by 2041 and 19.1 percent by 2079;

(F) without structural reform, Social Security's total cash shortfall over the next 75 years is estimated to be more than $25,000,000,000,000 in constant 2005 dollars or $5,700,000,000,000 measured in present value terms; and

(G) absent structural reforms, spending on Social Security will increase from 4.3 percent of gross domestic product in 2005 to 6.4 percent in 2079; and

(5) the Congressional Budget Office, the Government Accountability Office, the Congressional Research Service, the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and the President's Commission to Strengthen Social Security have all warned that failure to enact fiscally responsible Social Security reform quickly will result in 1 or more of the following:

(A) Higher tax rates.

(B) Lower Social Security benefit levels.

(C) Increased Federal debt or less spending on other federal programs.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the President, the Congress, and the American people including seniors, workers, women, minorities, and disabled persons should work together at the earliest opportunity to enact legislation to achieve a solvent and permanently sustainable Social Security system;

(2) Social Security reform—

(A) must protect current and near retirees from any changes to Social Security benefits;

(B) must reduce the pressure on future taxpayers and on other budgetary priorities;

(C) must provide benefit levels that adequately reflect individual contributions to the Social Security system; and

(D) must preserve and strengthen the safety net for vulnerable populations including the disabled and survivors; and

(3) the Senate should honor section 13301 of the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990.

SEC. ____ . RESERVE FUND FOR SOCIAL SECURITY REFORM.

If the Committee on Finance of the Senate reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment is offered thereto, or a conference report is submitted thereon, that provides changes to the Federal Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance Benefits Program established under title II of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 401 et seq.), by—

(1) requiring that the Federal Old Age and Survivors Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are used only to finance expenditures to provide retirement income of future beneficiaries of such program;

(2) ensuring that there is no change to current law scheduled benefits for individuals born before January 1, 1950;

(3) providing the option to voluntarily obtain legally binding ownership of at least some portion of each participant's benefits; and

(4) ensuring that the funds made available to finance such legislation do not exceed the amounts of the Chief Actuary of the Social Security Administration's intermediate actuarial estimates of the Federal Old Age and Survivors Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund, as published in the most recent report of the Board of Trustees of such Trust Funds, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may make the appropriate adjustments in allocations and aggregates to the extent that such legislation would not increase the deficit for fiscal year 2007 and for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Res. 83, setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2007 and including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2006 and 2008 through 2011; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON THE CRIME VICTIMS FUND.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds the following:—

(1) The Victims of Crime Act of 1984 (“VOCA”) was enacted to provide Federal financial support for services to victims of all types of crime, primarily through grants to state crime victim compensation and victim assistance programs.

(2) VOCA created the Crime Victims Fund (“the Fund”) as a separate account into which are deposited monies collected from persons convicted of Federal criminal offenses, including criminal fines, forfeitures and special assessments. There are no general taxpayer generated revenues deposited into the Fund.

(3) Each fiscal year, the Fund is used to support—

(A) formula grants to States for financial assistance to upwards of 4,400 programs providing direct victim assistance services to nearly 4,000,000 victims of all types of crimes annually, with priority for programs serving victims of domestic violence, sexual assault and child abuse, and previously underserved victims of violent crime;

(B) formula grants to States to supplement State crime victim compensation programs, which reimburse more than 150,000 violent crime victims annually for out-of-pocket expenses, including medical expenses, mental health counseling, lost wages, loss of support and funeral costs;

(C) the Antiterrorism Emergency Reserve, to assist victims of domestic and international terrorism;

(D) discretionary grants by the Office for Victims of Crime to provide training and technical assistance and services to victims of Federal crimes;

(E) Children's Justice Act grants to States to improve the investigation and prosecution of child abuse cases;

(F) victim witness coordinators in United States Attorney's Offices; and

(G) victim assistance specialists in Federal Bureau of Investigation field offices.

(4) In the 108th Congress, a strong bipartisan, bicameral majority in Congress affirmed its support for the Crime Victims Fund and increased its commitment to crime victims in the Justice for All Act of 2004 (Public Law 108-405), which establishes Federal crime victims rights and authorized 2 new VOCA-funded victim programs.

(5) Before fiscal year 2000, all amounts deposited into the Crime Victims Fund in each fiscal year were made available for authorized programs in the subsequent fiscal year.

(6) Beginning in fiscal year 2000, Congress responded to large fluctuations of deposits into the Fund by delaying obligations from the Fund above certain amounts, as follows:

- (A) For fiscal year 2000, $500,000,000.
- (B) For fiscal year 2001, $537,500,000.
- (C) For fiscal year 2002, $550,000,000.
- (D) For fiscal year 2003, $600,000,000.
- (E) For fiscal year 2004, $625,000,000.
- (F) For fiscal year 2005, $625,000,000.
- (G) For fiscal year 2006, $625,000,000.

(7) In the conference report on an omnibus spending bill for fiscal year 2000 (Public Law 106-113), Congress explained that the reason for delaying annual Fund obligations was "to protect against wide fluctuations in receipts into the Fund, and to ensure that a stable level of funding will remain available for these programs in future years".

(8) VOCA mandates that "... all sums deposited in the Fund in any fiscal year that are not made available for obligation by Congress in the subsequent fiscal year shall remain in the Fund for obligation in future fiscal years, without fiscal year limitation".

(9) The Crime Victims Fund is a trust fund established without tax payer dollars to assist crime victims and should continue to be respected.

(10) For fiscal year 2006, the President proposed to "rescind" $1,267,000,000 from amounts in the Fund. Congress rejected this proposal in the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2006 (Public Law 109-108) and reaffirmed that amounts deposited or available in the Fund in any fiscal year in excess of $625,000,000 shall remain in the Fund and not be available for obligation until the following fiscal year.

(11) For fiscal year 2007, the President is recommending "rescission" of $1,255,000,000 from amounts in the Fund.

(12) The rescission proposed by the President would result in no funds being available to support crime victim services at the start of fiscal year 2008. Further, such rescission would make the Fund vulnerable to fluctuations in receipts into the Fund, and would not ensure that a stable level of funding will remain available for vital programs in future years.

(13) Retention of all amounts deposited into the Fund for the immediate and future use of crime victim services as authorized by VOCA is supported by many major criminal justice organizations, including—

(A) American Bar Association, Criminal Justice Section;

(B) National District Attorneys Association;

(C) National Sheriff's Association;

(D) 56 Attorneys General;

(E) National Organization for Victim Assistance;

(F) National Network to End Domestic Violence;

(G) Mothers Against Drunk Driving;

(H) National Children's Alliance;

(I) National Alliance to End Sexual Violence;

(J) National Coalition Against Domestic Violence;

(K) National Center for Victims of Crime;

(L) National Association of VOCA Assistance Administrators;

(M) National Association of Crime Victim Compensation Boards;

(N) United States Conference of Catholic Bishops;

(O) National Grange;

(P) The Justice Project;

(Q) Victims' Assistance Legal Organization, Inc.;

(R) Justice Solutions, NPO;

(S) Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape; and

(T) National Organization for Parents of Murdered Children.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the funding levels in this resolution assume that all amounts that have been and will be deposited into the Crime Victims Fund, including amounts deposited in fiscal year 2007 and thereafter, shall remain in the Fund for use as authorized under the Victims of Crime Act of 1984.

SEC. ____ . RESERVE FUND TO ALLOW FOR DEFICIT-NEUTRAL LEGISLATION THAT WOULD PROVIDE SENIORS WITH A PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT OPTION THAT IS AFFORDABLE, USER-FRIENDLY, AND ADMINISTERED DIRECTLY BY THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would—

(1) provide all Medicare beneficiaries with a Medicare-administered prescription drug plan option, while preserving the private prescription drug plan options;

(2) ensure that Medicare beneficiaries pay the lowest possible prescription drug prices by directing the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate with pharmaceutical manufacturers with respect to the purchase price of covered part D drugs on behalf of beneficiaries enrolled in the Medicare-administered prescription drug plan;

(3) improve the part D standard prescription drug benefit; and

(4) guarantee that Medicare beneficiaries receive the FDA-approved drugs they need by preventing prescription drug plans and MA-PD plans from ending coverage of drugs, or imposing restrictions or limitations on coverage of drugs, that were covered when the beneficiary enrolled in the plan until the beneficiary has the opportunity to switch plans, with an exception to such guarantee for brand name drugs for which there is a generic drug approved under section 505(j) of the Food and Drug Cosmetic Act that is placed on the market during the period in which the guarantee applies; by the amount provided in such measure for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SECTION 1. SENSE OF THE SENATE ON THE UNITED NATIONS HUMAN RIGHTS COUNCIL.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) the United Nations Secretary General stated in March 2005, “the Commission on Human Rights suffers from declining credibility and professionalism, and is in major need of reform” and that a fundamental problem is that, “States have sought membership . . . not to strengthen human rights but to protect themselves against criticism or to criticize others”;

(2) the United States and other countries called for the abolition of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and its replacement with a new Human Rights Council;

(3) current Members of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, the primary human rights body of the United Nations, include some of the worst violators of human rights in the world, such as China, Cuba, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe;

(4) there are no criteria regarding the human rights record of a country for membership on the new United Nations Human Rights Council and even those countries that are found complicit in massive and sustained human rights abuses would be able to serve;

(5) even countries under sanctions by the United Nations Security Council for human rights violations or terrorism are not categorically excluded from membership on the United Nations Human Rights Council;

(6) the Government of the United States, which had been a member of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights every term since 1947, with 1 exception, has played a leadership role in efforts to promote human rights throughout the history of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights;

(7) the Government of the United States would be ineligible for membership on the Human Rights Council every 6 years;

(8) the Government of the United States formally opposed the creation of the United Nations Human Rights Council in a General Assembly session on March 15, 2006; and

(9) the Government of the United States would be required to cover 22 percent of the costs of the Human Rights Council.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Government of the United States should decline to participate on the United Nations Human Rights Council until the Secretary of State certifies to the Congress that the United Nations has passed a resolution affirming that countries found complicit in sustained human rights abuses are ineligible for membership in the United Nations Human Rights Council; and

(2) the Government of the United States should not provide any funds for the United Nations Human Rights Council until the Secretary of State certifies to the Congress that the United Nations has passed a resolution affirming that countries found complicit in sustained human rights abuses are ineligible for membership in the United Nations Human Rights Council.

SA 3120. Mr. SMITH submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the concurrent resolution S. Con. Res. 83, setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2007 and including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2006 and 2008 through 2011; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ . TO EXPRESS THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT LEGISLATIVE ACTION SHOULD BE TAKEN TO INSTITUTE EQUITY UNDER THE MEDICARE PROGRAM FOR PERSONS WITH MENTAL ILLNESS.

(a) FINDINGS.—

(1) Almost 36,300,000 Americans were over age 65 in 2004, with the population projected to almost double to 71,500,000 by 2030.

(3) 5,248 older Americans died by suicide in 2003.

(4) In 2002, older Americans comprised 12.3 percent of the population, yet represented 17.5 percent of completed suicides.

(5) Caucasian men over age 85 are at greatest risk, with a suicide rate almost 5 times higher than the national average.

(6) It is reported that among older adults, for every completed suicide, 4 attempts are made.

(7) Research shows that 20 percent of older Americans who die by suicide visited their physician within the previous 24 hours of their suicide, 41 percent within the previous week of their suicide, and 75 percent within the previous month of their suicide.

(8) The Medicare program discriminates against persons with mental illness by imposing a 50 percent copayment on outpatient mental health services compared to a 20 percent copayment for outpatient physical health services.

(9) Correcting this inequity in the Medicare program was one of the top ten White House Conference on Aging resolutions.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the functional totals in this resolution assume that Congress should act to provide mental health copayment equity to America's seniors under the Medicare program.

SA 3131. Mr. BAUCUS (for himself and Mrs. LINCOLN) proposed an amendment to the joint resolution H.J. Res. 47, increasing the statutory limit on the public debt; as follows:

At the end of the joint resolution, insert the following:

“Sec. STUDY.—(a) The Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and other appropriate agencies of the United States Government, shall conduct a study to examine the economic effects of the holding of United States publicly-held debt by foreign governments, foreign central banks, other foreign institutions, and foreign individuals.

(b) The Secretary shall transmit that study to the Congress within 180 days of the date of enactment of this legislation.

(c) The study shall provide an analysis of: “(1) for each year from 1980 to the present, the amount and term of foreign-owned debt held by the public, broken down by foreign governments, foreign central banks, other foreign institutions, and foreign individuals, and expressed in nominal terms and as a percentage of the total amount of publicly-held debt in each year;

“(2) the economic effects that the increased foreign ownership of United States publicly-held debt has on

“(A) long-term interest rates in the United States,

“(B) global average interest rates,

“(C) the value of the United States dollar,

“(D) United States capital market liquidity,

“(E) the cost of private capital in the United States,

“(F) the generation of employment in the United States through foreign affiliates, and “(G) the growth in real gross domestic product of the United States;

“(3) (A) for each year from 1980 to the present, the effect of foreign debt on the United States income account,

“(B) the predicted effect over the next 20 years, and

“(C) the effect of the deteriorating income account on the overall United States current account deficit;

“(4) the ability of the Department of the Treasury to track purchases of publicly held debt in secondary and tertiary markets, or, if this ability does not exist, the implications of that inability for fiscal policy, monetary policy, and the predictability of capital markets;

“(5) the effect that foreign ownership of United States publicly-held debt has or could have on United States trade policy;

“(6) whether the level of United States debt owned by China may adversely affect the ability of the United States to negotiate with China regarding currency manipulation by China;

“(7) the effect of the increase of foreign holdings of United States debt held by the public on national security; and

“(8) the implicit tax burden that results from foreign ownership of United States debt held by the public, defined as the per capita amount that a United States Federal income taxpayer would pay in annual Federal income taxes to fully service such foreign debt during each of fiscal years 2006 through 2010.”

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 402) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 402

Whereas dangerous asbestos fibers are invisible and cannot be smelled or tasted;

Whereas the inhalation of airborne asbestos fibers can cause significant damage;

Whereas these fibers can cause mesothelioma, asbestosis, and other health problems;

Whereas asbestos-related diseases can take 10 to 50 years to present themselves;

Whereas the expected survival time for those diagnosed with mesothelioma is between 6 and 24 months;

Whereas generally little is known about late stage treatment and there is no cure for asbestos-related diseases;

Whereas early detection of asbestos-related diseases may give some patients increased treatment options and might improve their prognosis;

Whereas the United States has substantially reduced its consumption of asbestos yet continues to consume almost 7,000 metric tons of the fibrous mineral for use in certain products throughout the Nation;

Whereas asbestos-related diseases have killed thousands of people in the United States;

Whereas asbestos exposures continue and safety and prevention will reduce and has reduced significantly asbestos exposure and asbestos-related diseases;

Whereas asbestos has been a cause of occupational cancer;

Whereas thousands of workers in the United States face significant asbestos exposure;

Whereas thousands of Americans die from asbestos-related diseases every year;

Whereas a significant percentage of all asbestos-related disease victims were exposed to asbestos on naval ships and in shipyards;

Whereas asbestos was used in the construction of a significant number of office buildings and public facilities built before 1975; and

Whereas the establishment of a "National Asbestos Awareness Day" would raise public awareness about the prevalence of asbestos-related diseases and the dangers of asbestos exposure: Now, therefore, be it

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 2006

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in recess until 9 a.m. on Thursday, March 16. I further ask consent that following the prayer and pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the Senate resume consideration of S. Con. Res. 83, the budget resolution, as under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, today we have made significant progress on the budget resolution. We had 10 roll-call votes on amendments to the resolution. The bill managers have done an exceptional job working through the process. That being said, we have many amendments filed, and Senators who have amendments should already be working with the bill managers.

Tomorrow will be a very busy day. Under an agreement reached this afternoon, tomorrow morning at 10:30 we will have a series of votes on the budget resolution and the debt limit bill. At 1:30, all time on the budget resolution will be deemed expired and the vote-arama will begin. Senators are reminded to stay close to the Chamber and plan their schedules accordingly.

RECESS UNTIL 9 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in recess under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:05 p.m., recessed until Thursday, March 16, 2006, at 9 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate March 15, 2006:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

WARREN W. TICHENOR, OF TEXAS, TO BE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE OFFICE OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND OTHER INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS IN GENEVA, WITH THE RANK OF AMBASSADOR, VICE KEVIN E. MOLEY.

GALE A. BUCHANAN, OF GEORGIA, TO BE UNDER SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE FOR RESEARCH, EDUCATION, AND ECONOMICS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Wednesday, March 15, 2006

The House met at 10 a.m.

The Reverend Larry R. Hayward, Pastor, Westminster Presbyterian Church, Alexandria, Virginia, offered the following prayer:

God of nations, among rulers You placed over Your people, King Hezekiah of Judah was among the strongest. He instituted reforms. He recaptured lost land. So pleased were You with his leadership You extended his life 17 years beyond a near-fatal illness.

Yet at the end of his life, Hezekiah succumbed to cynicism. "Who cares about the days to come," he said to himself, "as long as there is peace and security in my day."

Lord, save each Member of this body from similar cynicism. Instill within Members concern not only for our own day, but for days to come. Lift vision beyond the next election, beyond party caucus, sometimes even beyond constituent mail so that this branch, and all branches, of our government may focus on the shape of our Nation and its place in the world for generations to come. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. BEAN) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Ms. BEAN led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

WELCOMING REVEREND LARRY R. HAYWARD

(Mr. UPTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Speaker, I was pleased to hear Dr. Larry Hayward give our opening prayer this morning. For some 25 years, he has been preaching and teaching. His journey has taken him from Texas to Iowa to the D.C. area. Now he is the pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, a church that my wife and I attend when we are here in Washington.

He is a graduate of Union Seminary in New York. In his personal life, he certainly has a love and respect for history, government and sports, but it is also clear that the Lord comes first.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will entertain up to 10 one-minute per side.

SECURITY ISSUES

(Mrs. BLACKBURN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, the Republican majority has carefully guarded the economic and national security of this great Nation. Our tax policies have helped create over 4.7 million new jobs in 30 months, and that is incredible progress.

On the national security front, we are taking apart the al Qaeda network piece by piece. The PATRIOT Act, our call monitoring program, our aggressive action in the Middle East, each of these actions are making it more and more difficult for terrorists to operate on U.S. soil.

Mr. Speaker, President Bush deserves a great deal of the credit for this tough stance on terrorism. The Senate Democrats are talking about censuring the President, though. They are opposed to his aggressive approach to fighting terrorism. But I hope that the Democrats in this body realize America wants us to do everything possible to defend our homes, our communities and this Nation, and that is what the President is doing.

MILITARY MEDICAL PERSONNEL RESOLUTION

(Ms. BEAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. BEAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend our Armed Forces medical personnel who provide outstanding care to our servicemembers wounded in battle. During a trip to Iraq last fall, I visited our theater hospital at Balad Air Force Base and witnessed these skilled medical professionals in action and met the brave soldiers whose lives they saved.

Newsweek's current cover story recounts in harrowing detail Lieutenant Colonel Richard Jadick's heroic performance during the 2004 assault on Fallujah. The 38-year-old Navy doctor and former marine volunteered to serve alongside the First Battalion, Eighth Marines in what would be his first combat experience.

During 11 days of battle, Dr. Jadick and his team of 54 Navy corpsmen treated hundreds of men and saved the lives of at least 30 seriously wounded marines.

Mr. Speaker, the survivability rate for wounded personnel in Iraq and Afghanistan is the best of any conflict in our Nation's history, due, in no small part, to the skill and courage of personnel like Dr. Jadick.

This morning I urge my colleagues to cosponsor H. Con. Res. 309 and join me in saluting these outstanding servicemembers for their hard work and fearless dedication.

DR. SUBIR CHOWDHURY

(Mr. McCOTTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McCOTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the achievements of Dr. Subir Chowdhury, as he releases his twelfth book, "The Ice Cream Maker: An Inspiring Tale About Making Quality the Key Ingredient in Everything You Do."

Since his first published book in 1996, Dr. Chowdhury has revolutionized international management strategy and philosophy. His award-winning book, "The Power of Six Sigma," has sold more than 1 million copies worldwide in over 20 languages. Dr. Chowdhury has been inducted into the Automotive Hall of Fame, and the Society of Automotive Engineers has presented him with the Henry Ford II Distinguished Award for Excellence in Automotive Engineering.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Dr. Chowdhury on the release of his latest book and ask my colleagues to join me in honoring his contribution to our community and our country.

BEGIN EFFORT TO BRING TROOPS HOME FROM IRAQ

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, 3 years ago, this administration began a grim march of folly into Iraq. Today, our troops are bogged down in the middle of a civil war.

Iraq has become an incubator of terrorism. Over 2,300 U.S. troops have been killed, tens of thousands more injured and perhaps 100,000 innocent Iraqis have been killed, with countless others injured.

☐ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., ☐ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

As both the Iraqi public and the American people demand the U.S. leave Iraq, this administration plans to send more troops. We must bring our troops home. We must vote against any additional appropriations that would be used to keep our troops there.

Plans exist right now that would enable the United States to bring our troops home, to begin the effort to bring our troops home. Not a dime more for continuing this war; not a dime more for an illegal war that was based on lies about weapons of mass destruction.

RETREAT AND DEFEAT DEMOCRATS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, on Monday, Senator RUSS FEINGOLD sadly reminded America that the Democrat Party is still dancing to the tune of retreat and defeat through appeasement.

Senator FEINGOLD's call to censure President Bush for implementing a legitimate and effective terrorist surveillance demonstrates that Democrats continue to push political ambitions more than our national security.

From DICK DURBIN's slandering our troops as communists, to Howard Dean's defeatist remarks about our troops' efforts, to Senator FEINGOLD's careless call to censure our President, it is obvious that Democrats have no positive plan to protect American families.

Instead of proposing ways to prevent terror attacks on our soil, Democrats prefer to spend their time and energy on political tricks that do not serve the interests of the American people. As our enemies continue to issue threats daily against our country, Republicans will remain committed to proactively investigating, capturing and detaining al Qaeda operatives and any other terrorists who seek to attack American families.

In conclusion, God bless our troops and we will never forget September 11.

CONGRESS MUST STEP IN TO EXTEND DEADLINE ON MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN REGISTRATION

(Mr. MORAN of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, in 2 months, about 10 million senior citizens are about to get a Bush Medicare tax imposed on them for the rest of their lives. If they don't sign up for the Medicare prescription drug bill by May 15, then they can't sign up again until the end of the year, and for the rest of their lives they will pay a 7 percent higher premium than their neighbors under exactly the same circumstances just because they couldn't figure out this myriad of dozens of different plans that they are presented with.

This is wrong. The Republicans and the Democrats need to get together to extend the deadline to the end of the year, regardless of what the President decides. It is time for Congress to act and to save these 10 million Americans from having an unfair tax burden on their shoulders for the rest of their lives. It is wrong. Let's fix it.

ROBERT G. CANAR

(Mr. GOODE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOODE. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Robert G. Canar has distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious achievements in public service to this Nation by serving the United States Army for over 42 years. Mr. Canar began his public service career in the U.S. Army as an air defense artillery officer and as a military intelligence officer. During his 22 years on active duty, he served in various assignments in Vietnam, Korea, Europe and in the United States.

Mr. Canar joined the former Foreign Science and Technology Center in 1983 when he was assigned as a division chief supervising collection requirements, imagery, and electronics intelligence branches. Because of his demonstrated abilities, he has been given positions of greater responsibility as the director, information management, and later as the director, programs and resources, which led to major initiatives to renovate Foreign Science and Technology Center's facilities to accommodate growth of the workforce and to secure facilities to meet Sensitive Compartmented Information standards.

Mr. Canar served as the National Ground Intelligence Center's chief of staff from 1994 to 2003, and as the center's acting executive director from 2003 to 2004. In response to the Global War on Terrorism, the center underwent a massive growth with the influx of new responsibilities to support the soldier.

In 2004 Mr. Canar volunteered to serve for a year as the senior intelligence officer with the Civilian Police Assistance Training Team, Baghdad, Iraq. In this capacity he supervised an International Police Liaison Officer Team and a Multi-National Command-Iraq military team which organized and trained the Iraq Ministry of Interior Criminal Intelligence Service Directorate.

He ended his civil service career as the special assistant to the commander, National Ground Intelligence Center responsible for the establishment of a Joint Use Intelligence Analysis Facility in Charlottesville, VA.

Throughout his service, Mr. Canar has provided outstanding leadership, sound advice and expert professional judgment on significant issues that affected the Army. His actions and counsel were invaluable to Army leaders as they considered the issues facing the Nation today. Mr. Canar's dedication to accomplishing the Army's missions has been extraordinary. He has been a truly outstanding public servant and will be missed by the United States Army.

MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN; BAD MEDICINE FOR AMERICAN SENIORS

(Mr. CARNAHAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARNAHAN. Mr. Speaker, since the new Medicare prescription drug plan took effect at the beginning of this year, Members of this body have heard from thousands of frustrated seniors struggling with the confusing and poorly written plan. Now they are dealt a new blow: seniors who don't register in time will be forced to pay a penalty for the rest of their lives.

Most seniors have yet to choose a prescription drug plan, many because they are unable to navigate the complex system, others because they are currently not taking any medication. For every month after May 15, seniors who have not enrolled will be charged an extra 1 percent of the payment of any plan they eventually do choose, for the rest of their lives.

This new tax on prescription drugs is yet another example of how this Republican plan was written to benefit large drug companies, not the Medicare recipients who need the help.

Democrats are fighting to extend this deadline. Our seniors should not be penalized with a lifetime surcharge for doing their research on these plans.

IS THIS THE DEMOCRATS' AGENDA?

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, this week a resolution was introduced in the United States Senate that would censure President Bush over the National Security Agency's surveillance program. We have seen the Democrats launch political stunts before, but this one certainly takes the cake.

They have determined, on their own, that President Bush has broken the law by authorizing surveillance of al Qaeda communications. They are so intent on opposing everything that President Bush is for that they don't seem to realize or even care about the message this sends to the rest of the world as we fight the war on terror.

The fact is, this is a necessary tool in the war on terror, and it is working. As General Michael Hayden, the principle Deputy Director of National Intelligence stated, "We have learned information from this program that would not otherwise have been available. This information has helped detect and prevent terrorist attacks in the United States and abroad."

Mr. Speaker, the Democrats have put off releasing their agenda for months now. I guess I can see why, since it includes stripping away important tools to fight the war on terror. Perhaps the Democrats should go back to having no agenda.

WE NEED TO EXTEND THE DEADLINE FOR MEDICARE PART D SIGN-UP

(Ms. SCHAKOWSKY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, President Bush went to New York yesterday to tout his confusing and failing prescription drug plan for seniors.

The Bush administration has botched this plan since day one. For one, Medicare itself put out all kinds of wrong information that increased confusion among already frustrated seniors. Second, low-income seniors that were promised an easy transition from State programs to Federal programs ran into huge problems, leaving some seniors no choice but to go without their drugs. Third, States were forced to step in and pick up the tab for the Federal Government's incompetence. It is no wonder that only about five million seniors have willingly signed up for the plan.

Seniors should not be penalized for the Bush administration's incompetence. Unfortunately, that is exactly what will happen if President Bush does not extend the deadline for seniors to sign up for the plan.

Two months from today, May 15, is the deadline for seniors to sign up for a plan; and if they do not, the administration will permanently increase their premium with a 1 percent penalty for every month they wait to sign up.

Democrats want this deadline extended, and we want to fix the drug plan so it works for seniors and the disabled and not just the drug and insurance companies.

EXTEND THE DRUG BENEFIT DEADLINE

(Mr. BISHOP of New York asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Speaker, the Medicare drug program is off to a rocky start, as President Bush put it yesterday.

Following a dozen town hall meetings I have held in my district on the part D benefit, my constituents remain confused and doubtful that the drug plan will work for them. As a result, many seniors on Long Island have not yet signed up. Many of those who have chosen a plan are encountering delays in their applications and will not receive their drug cards until after the May 15 sign-up deadline.

Adding insult to injury, seniors will be penalized with a 1 percent premium increase for every month after the deadline passes. This Bush Medicare penalty should not be piled on top of the already overwhelming burden of understanding the drug benefit.

Mr. Speaker, America's seniors deserve real help keeping up with soaring prescription drug costs. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to support a 6-month extension of the sign-up deadline so that seniors are not punished and they receive the affordable life-saving drugs they deserve.

DEFINING DEVIANCY DOWN

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, the late Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan described the process by which perverse behavior slowly becomes accepted by society over time. He called it "defining deviancy down."

A recent newswire story illustrates his point. The story reports that Germany's sex industry is gearing up to handle a record demand for prostitution during the 2006 World Cup soccer tournament.

One man involved in the criminal underworld of German prostitution told the reporter, "Football and prostitution are a great match. What else could you hope for?"

What else could you hope for? Mr. Speaker, I would hope that the evils of prostitution and human trafficking be condemned by society, not flaunted. I would hope for an end to sexual exploitation of women and children. I would hope for some sanity to prevail in the civilized country of Germany.

The story also reports that there are an estimated 15,000 victims of sex trafficking in Germany at any given time. That, Mr. Speaker, is the real cost of defining deviancy down.

MILITARY RECRUITERS AT COLLEGES

(Mr. MCHENRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCHENRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to applaud the Supreme Court for upholding the Solomon amendment, which permits the withholding of Federal funds from colleges that close their doors to military recruiters.

This case is a glaring indictment of our liberal influence within our colleges and institutions of higher learning, these spineless liberals who speak of the concept of allowing differing points of view, but in reality they oppose it.

Look no further than one of our Nation's most liberal colleges, Yale University. Last year, it admitted a Taliban spokesman as a special student, even as Yale Law School was suing in Federal Court to ban U.S. military recruiters from its campus.

As Americans, we should be appalled with this seditious behavior and hold these liberals accountable for their actions. Mr. Speaker, the Supreme Court's verdict last week is a victory for common sense and for the protection of our country against liberal lunacy.

POLL BRINGS POSITIVE NEWS

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, a poll was released today which reaffirms what many on this side of the aisle, Republicans, are telling seniors at our town hall meetings: The Medicare prescription drug program is working.

In a poll conducted last week by Ayres, McHenry & Associates, 6 out of 10 seniors who voluntarily enrolled in the Medicare Part D program reported that they are saving money in the program.

A second survey by the same group found that 9 out of 10 seniors eligible for Medicare and Medicaid, dual eligibles, stated that they were having no problems using the new Medicare prescription drug benefit. Eighty percent said the program covered the prescription drugs that they need.

Now, you are not going to hear this good news from the Democrats on that side of the aisle. Seniors are saving money and now have more choices than they ever have had.

Mr. Speaker, this is good news from these polls. The Medicare prescription drug program is presently working for America's seniors, and Democrats need to accept that.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4939, EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 725 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 725

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. When the reading for amendment reaches title II, such title shall be considered as read. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose in clause 8 of rule XVIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. When the committee rises and reports the bill back to the House with a recommendation that the bill do pass, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GILLMOR). The gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE) is recognized for 1 hour.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I request unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and to insert tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, on March 14 the Rules Committee met and granted an open rule on House Resolution 725, with 1 hour of debate equally divided between the chairman and ranking member of the Appropriations Committee.

The bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule and waives all points of order against the bill. Additionally, when the reading for the amendment reaches title II, such title shall be considered as read. This rule accords priority of recognition to Members who have preprinted their amendments in the CONGRES-SIONAL RECORD and provides one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud today to be able to manage this rule. The rule provides for an emergency supplemental funding package to sustain our troops in the ongoing war on terror and to assist in providing emergency relief for those affected in the Gulf States by last year's tremendous hurricanes.

However, Mr. Speaker, the fact that this bill is being brought to the floor under an open rule should not be overlooked. This means that anyone in the majority or the minority may bring to the floor any amendment that is germane to this legislation.

As one of the most important bills that will be brought to the House floor this year, we should all be able to agree that an open rule is the right thing to do and will allow the House to work its will.

The supplemental appropriations package is the sixth supplemental since September 11 that focuses on meeting the challenges imposed on us by the global war on terrorism. Specifically, this supplemental provides for replenishing of those accounts that the military has exhausted during sustained operations in Iraq, Afghanistan, and other areas of the world. Additionally, it provides important funding to assist in our efforts to address the disastrous results of the hurricanes in the gulf coast communities. Finally, these are important measures dedicated to improving the benefits due our soldiers and their families who have often been asked to make the ultimate sacrifice.

Among the important provisions in this bill is a $2 billion effort at the suppression of technology for so-called IEDs, improvised explosive devices, in Iraq and other areas. IEDs, rather than direct engagement with enemy combatants, have caused over half the casualties our forces have sustained in Iraq. Additionally, the supplemental fully funds the enhanced $400,000 Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance benefits and the $100,000 death gratuity benefit for combat-related fatalities.

Mr. Speaker, the Appropriations Committee also addressed several other issues inside the supplemental that are essential to successfully continue to prosecute our global war on terror.

Important obligations are met in the underlying legislation. In particular, this legislation earmarked $850 million over the President's request to ensure that the National Guard receives upgraded Bradleys and Abrams when deploying. Additionally, the bill earmarked another $480 million for new advances in safer up-armorings for Humvees.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4939 takes a number of important steps forward in addressing the needs of our military. Today we are likely to debate several amendments that would have a large impact on the effect of the underlying legislation. I would strongly urge Members to closely examine such amendments and reject any not pertaining to the subject matter at hand. The bill we have before us today is an excellent and timely piece of legislation that deserves strong bipartisan support. The underlying legislation is ultimately really about supporting our troops in the field and moving forward in assisting our own citizens drastically affected by the hurricanes.

With respect to Katrina, the underlying legislation provides $9.9 billion to the Department of Homeland Security, primarily intended for FEMA, and major additional funding for flood control and coastal emergencies. Additionally, the Department of Defense would receive $1.8 billion and the Army Corps of Engineers would receive $1.5 billion, mostly for procurement and construction for flood control and coastal emergencies.

$1.3 billion would be set aside for loans to home owners and small businesses to be administered through the Small Business Administration.

Mr. Speaker, this is the third supplemental appropriations request sent to Congress that addresses the fallout from the hurricanes. I am sure we will deal with this issue in the future as needs are defined. It is truly a testament to this Nation that we are able to break through the political logjam and deal with these issues of an emergency nature when this situation demands.

Mr. Speaker, judging from the debate in the Rules Committee yesterday, I suspect Members from both sides of the aisle may mention or attempt to interject into our discussions motions or amendments that are not germane to the underlying legislation. A number of measures are things that I personally support. However, the Rules Committee decided, appropriately in my opinion, that these matters should be dealt with separately and under regular order.

My good friends on both sides of the aisle have often expressed their desire to have major legislation dealt with under an open rule. That is precisely what we have today. It is my hope that all Members will appreciate that fact and will see the wisdom of pursuing other issues through regular order. Therefore, I urge support for the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we are truly at a crossroads in the history of the Nation. Abroad we are engaged in a war that with each passing day becomes more dangerous, just as our path to victory becomes more obscured.

At home we are still dealing with the consequence of the colossal failure of the government to meet its most basic responsibility, to protect our citizens in a time of dire crisis.

It has been 7 months since Katrina devastated the gulf coast, and thousands upon thousands of our fellow Americans are still depending on handouts to survive. They are without their homes, without their jobs, and without a sense of security.

And here in Washington, the principles of integrity, accountability and oversight, the cornerstone values of our democratic government, have been cast aside in favor of political expediency by our elected leadership.

The American people are losing faith in this government. They believe we are headed in the wrong direction, and they want change, and it is not hard to see why. How we ultimately address the challenges before us as a government and as a people will define the future of this Nation for better or worse.

In times like these, when we are so focused on what separates us from each other, it is critical that we remember what binds us together, a commitment to the same core values and principles. I think we can all agree that supporting our young men and women in uniform is a priority for each and every Member of this House, whether we are Democrats or Republicans, and whether we agreed with the Bush administration's reason for going to war in Iraq or opposed them.

And just as we continue the age-old debate on the proper role of government in our society, we should all agree that the kind of collapse that we witnessed when the government failed to respond to Hurricane Katrina must never, ever happen again.

We must renew our commitment to take responsibility for the safety and welfare of the American people in a time of crisis. And we must agree that government has a role in protecting not only the rights, but also the dignity and the humanity of every single American.

We cannot accept, nor should we be willing to tolerate, squalor, abject poverty, and needless suffering in the heart of the United States. The defense of those who defend us abroad and the protection of the defenseless here at home, these are guiding principles that we all share.

Mr. Speaker, how should we go about turning these principles into action in the days and months ahead? We may disagree on how to overcome the challenges that lay before us, just as our Founding Fathers hoped and expected that we would. But all of us here are patriots, and all of us come to the table with our Nation's best interest in mind. And so we must remember to always welcome debate and to keep the floor open to all ideas and proposals, and to subject their merits equally to the rigors of the democratic process.

To pit the pursuits of an agenda against the perpetuation of our democratic traditions, that would be a true crime and a true shame. As we stand up for the principles of democracy here, we must also pledge to restore the second great tenet of our system of government, the integrity and accountability of our Congress. We can no longer allow our leaders to be blinded by the politics of the moment and forget their commitments to ethics and to oversight.

The short-term gains may be tempting for those who hold strings of power, but the long-term consequences are devastating to the people of the Nation as we have already seen. Ethics, integrity and accountability should not be partisan issues. They should be issues of survival because the survival of the system depends on them.

It is on this point that I would ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me today in taking a stand for our future. During the Second World War, Senator Harry Truman displayed a level of integrity and a strength of character that has been very rare in today's Washington. He dared to investigate his own party. He held his fellow Democrats in Congress accountable for excessive and wasteful war contracts. He provided a mechanism for accountability and oversight during an unprecedented war effort. It was called the Truman Commission.

The commission's purpose was to maximize every dollar we had to spend to ferret out corruption and mismanagement and to infuse a sense of accountability into the American war machine. Its success saved many American lives by ensuring that our tax dollars were spent on what was most important, that was winning the war. And yet, we in this Congress have not had the courage to insist on the same level of accountability that President Truman saw fit to employ over 60 years ago.

Despite the fact that at least $9 billion of money spent on the Iraqi reconstruction is unaccounted for, and despite the fact that we hear reports of payroll checks covering employees who do not exist and of firms being compensated for providing security for flights that never took off, and despite the fact that the Pentagon contracts for body armor have gone to companies that never produced it, all the while, 80 percent of the American Marines lost in Iraq to upper body wounds could have been saved if those soldiers had been provided with the right armor.

Nor have we demonstrated the real commitment to fully investigate the Nation's response to the second great challenge of our time, Hurricane Katrina, and done so again, despite poor planning, misused resources, and homes and relief that still have to reach those who need it.

The question I have for my colleagues today is where is our bravery?

Where is our commitment to those we protect and to those who protect us? It is a question that I hope my colleagues who plan to vote for the rule answer definitively here today. When we squander precious resources, when we waste time we do not have, when we fail to hold ourselves accountable, we sacrifice American lives. And when we refuse to insist upon integrity, oversight, and accountability in our own government, we undermine our very democracy at a time when we are trying to spread it abroad. But today we have an opportunity to begin anew and follow the proud tradition of one of America's greatest leaders.

We have before us a Democratic proposal to create an oversight commission, one that will ensure that billions of dollars being spent on the war in Iraq, and today's expenditure brings that to $400 billion, and that the rebuilding of New Orleans and the gulf coast are not lost in the black hole of corruption, cronyism, and no big contracts.

We have an opportunity to restore checks and balances to the system of government and provide the accountability and oversight, which is our responsibility as Congresspersons to provide.

Just like in Harry Truman's day, that responsibility transcends the politics of both Republicans and Democrats. Rather, it speaks to our willingness to preserve the fundamental values of our democratic system and the fundamental values of our Nation.

I strongly urge my colleagues, as we prepare to spend $91.7 billion in taxpayer money, to vote against the rule and in favor of the previous question. It is a vote that will allow consideration of an amendment to create a new Truman Commission and to restore a measure of integrity, accountability, and oversight to this government, values which are so greatly missed.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to note again for the record, while we are going to have discussions of many things here today, this is an open rule, any Member of the majority or the minority is free to bring an amendment to matters that are germane to the bill. This is as democratic on the floor of this institution as it ever gets. And while many will be, on both sides, disappointed that they didn't get to attach nongermane items to this particular bill, I think we are well served in this House by moving through regular order, which is an argument that we all make from time to time very vigorously on both sides of the aisle, but particularly the minority side.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE).

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I especially thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for yielding time, inasmuch as I rise today with a heavy heart having to oppose the rule before the House.

It is a rare occasion indeed where I or any Member would stand to oppose a rule produced by our Rules Committee. I simply believe I cannot support a rule that asks Members to choose between supporting our troops and fiscal responsibility, and this is such a rule.

Mr. Speaker, we have an $8 trillion national debt, a debt that has grown by $3 trillion and debt ceiling which may be increased, even in the coming weeks, to nearly $9 trillion. Our record deficit in nominal terms set a 1-month record just a few short weeks ago. We have to put our fiscal house in order. And that means even as we go about the business of funding the war, and funding the ongoing critical reconstruction efforts in the gulf coast, we must do so in a manner that reflects a fundamental commitment to fiscal restraint.

House conservatives lobbied consistently over the last several weeks to allow for this bill to come in the form of two pieces, a vote for our troops and a vote for Katrina. And the legislation we will have before us, though there will be a stripping amendment, will very likely result in a unified bill not giving Members that choice.

But the reason I rise mostly in opposition of the rule is because there is no amendment that is being allowed under a waiver of the rules that will permit us to offset even the cost of a part of this bill through budget cuts. And I simply believe that in this day and age of record deficit and debts, it is absolutely vital that Members of Congress be able to register their commitment to fiscal discipline while we fund the Nation's priorities.

It is for that reason that I was hoping that the Rules Committee would see their way clear, as they have with other aspects of this bill, to waive the rules that prevent legislating in an appropriations bill. In fact, my understanding is that the LIHEAP funding in this bill, in and of itself, is the result of a waiver. We have waived the rules many times to increase spending in the Congress. It would be a welcome change if we waived the rules to cut spending and continue the process of putting our fiscal house in order.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING) who joins me in opposition to this rule.

Mr. HENSARLING. I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I also thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for graciously yielding this time and his good work on the Rules Committee.

I want to associate myself with the gentleman from Indiana's comments. These are extraordinary times calling for extraordinary remedies. We must have a remedy for being able to vote for fiscal responsibility.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member on the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, this bill, or the bill which will be debated under this rule, will spend $92 billion of the taxpayers' money. The largest portion of it will be to fund the continuing war in Iraq. It is here because of the most spectacular military blunder committed by any President of the United States in this country's history. We went to war on the basis of bad information, and we are now mired in that war because of the spectacular incompetence and stubbornness of the Secretary of Defense.

We are also going to be asked to fund additional payments to meet the aftermath of the Katrina hurricane, which is another spectacular example of the incompetent management of government by this administration.

I am going to vote against the previous question on the rule because, while some 48 amendments have been noticed to the committee for consideration over the next 2 days, this House has still apparently not found a way to enable us to consider two other amendments.

The first is the one mentioned by the gentlewoman from New York. We feel it is an obligation of this Congress to begin to conduct decent oversight on both the expenditures in Iraq and the expenditures in Katrina. This Congress has a miserable record on oversight. My colleague in the Senate, Mr. FEINGOLD, introduced a resolution censuring the President for various actions that he has taken outside of the law. I believe that the Congress itself deserves censure for not meeting its oversight responsibilities.

One way to meet those oversight responsibilities is to repeat what this Congress did during World War II when it created the Truman Commission. At that time, you had a Democratic Congress that was not afraid to investigate the activities of a Democratic administration, and Harry Truman investigated waste and war profiteering. They held 432 public hearings, 300 executive sessions, went on hundreds of fact-finding missions, issued 51 reports and saved some $15 billion of the taxpayers' money.

We have stories that are rampant today about the abuse of taxpayer money in Iraq and Katrina, and yet this Congress is doing very little by way of aggressive oversight. I am going to vote against the previous question because I want to see an amendment creating a new Truman committee made in order.

The second thing I want to see is I want to see Congress, since the committee has already voted to block the Dubai port deal, I want to see the Congress go beyond that and to establish a rational process to guarantee that in the future our government will know every time a similar transaction is being contemplated. Right now, the only way our government knows is if the two parties who have an economic interest in the deal voluntarily tell the United States Government.

Mr. SABO tried to get that amendment adopted in committee. It failed.

In my view, if you are going to pass the Lewis amendment, which all but two members of the Appropriations Committee supported, it ought to also contain the Sabo amendment so that we do, in fact, establish a rational process so that we are not just looking like a flock of chickens every time something happens that panics the Congress. In that way, we would at least have a systematic way for the administration to review each and every one of these potential sales or transactions, and we would have a way for Congress to do the same.

So, unless those two amendments can be considered by this House, I see no reason why I should support the previous question or the rule, for that matter.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me first reply to my good friends, the gentleman from Indiana and the gentleman from Texas, who spoke earlier about their concern about the rule.

I remind them both, and as I will remind repeatedly everyone on this rule, we have an open rule today. If my friends on the other side of the aisle have something they object to, for instance they could strike title II of this particular bill, and, frankly, it would go right back to committee, so there is no need to bring down the rule. The mechanisms are in place, the processes are in place for the House to work its will.

I would also remind my friends on both sides of the aisle that this bill ultimately, not the rule, but the bill itself, is ultimately about providing for the needs of American forces in the field in combat today, now. We can debate whether the war was wise, whether it is conducted well, at our leisure. They need what they need immediately, and we should respond to their needs, regardless of what our opinions are where the war is concerned or regardless of what our opinions are in terms of procurement or spending.

And I say the same thing with respect to our fellow citizens along the gulf coast. They need help now. This House has responded generously twice already in supplementals. This is the third one. We will be back here again without a doubt dealing with that item. I do not think for procedural questions, particularly when we have an open rule, we should risk slowing down things that our troops in the field need or that our fellow citizens in need along the gulf coast require.

My good friend from Wisconsin, and he is my good friend, made the point which I do not want to leave uncontested that this, quote, President had engaged in the worst military blunder in American history. That is a remarkable statement, considering the Vietnam era where we had Democratic Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson commit us to a war.

The fact is this war has the lowest casualty rate in American history, and the stakes are enormously high. Were we to lose in this particular endeavor, there is no question that our enemies around the world would gather strength. It would be seen as a victory for terrorists; it would be seen as a lack of will on the part of the United States.

I think the stakes here are worth it. I have been to Iraq on five occasions, and one can always be critical of specific things. I do not think you can be critical of our forces in the field. Their performance is brilliant.

And, honestly, let me say a word here on behalf of the Iraqi people. We did ask them to rise up in 1991, and we did not do a thing. Thousands of them were slaughtered. Now we have come again. We have helped them liberate themselves from one of the worst tyrants certainly in the history of their country and certainly in regional history, and they have asked our help to stay and work through a difficult process.

They have demonstrated their bravery again and again and again in three different elections where they came out to vote under very difficult circumstances. They demonstrate their bravery in the field in their commitment and their willingness to take on an increasing range of responsibility. Even when I am occasionally frustrated with politicians in Iraq, as I sometimes am frustrated with ourselves in this body, I stop and remember they are exceptionally brave people.

My colleagues and I may worry about losing an election. Most of us do not worry about losing our life by engaging in a political process to make our country free. I think when people make that kind of sacrifice in the pursuit of democracy and freedom, they deserve the support of this body among all bodies in this world and certainly this country.

Let me add, frankly, one other point on Katrina. I know many of my colleagues have had the opportunity and taken the opportunity to go down and visit the gulf coast. Personally, I certainly have done that; and I would just tell all my friends that have concerns about the expenditure of funds in that particular area, and sometimes I do as well, go look at the damage. It is massive. It is massive.

Again, we had a very critical and I think very good report issued by a special committee of this body, chaired by my good friend, distinguished chairman of the Government Reform Committee, TOM DAVIS, that was unstintingly critical. I remind my friends on the other side of the aisle, unfortunately, they did not participate in that. They chose to think it would be a sham, and clearly it was not. There are mechanisms and means for us to look at and learn the lessons of Katrina and apply them and let the chips fall where they may in the process. Rejecting the rule will bring down the underlying bill and, in my opinion, is not one of them.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT).

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, New Orleans is not the only place where tens of thousands of Americans stand in peril from flooding and drowning because of defective levees. The good people across three congressional districts along the Rio Grande River at the southernmost tip of Texas are just as much at risk with hurricane season only weeks away. That is why I will be offering today an amendment to prevent the next Katrina-like disaster.

We Texans in the Valley must rely on the Federal Government, which has the exclusive, sole responsibility for ensuring the integrity of our levees and protecting our lives and livelihood from flooding. Exactly 1,018 days ago, this Administration received an alarming report from a part of its own State Department that those Federal levees are up to "9 feet deficient in height," geologically flawed, structurally unsound, and would "overtop along 38 river miles."

So urgent is the problem that last year the Appropriations Committee asked the Administration to request additional levee money, and I believe the State Department wants to do this, but the President's request is strangely silent on this matter.

Recognizing the risk of loss of lives, the disruption of families, the substantial economic harm that would be caused, 39 local governments, chambers of commerce and economic development corporations have called on this administration to act. So have Congressmen ORTIZ, REYES, HINOJOSA and myself, working together, to seek the $7.8 million requested here which represents the difference between the little bit that was appropriated last year and what the IBWC says it needs to prevent a flooding disaster.

A few million in flood prevention today could save billions of dollars in flood relief. The Federal Government should not shirk its responsibility, its sole responsibility, to protect the lives and livelihood of the good Americans who live and work in the Texas Rio Grande Valley.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN), a member of the Rules Committee.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, once again we are asked to provide tens of billions of dollars for the war in Iraq under the pretense that this war, now entering its fourth year, is a so-called unexpected emergency. The Iraq war is indeed an emergency, Mr. Speaker, but it is hardly unexpected.

I support the funds provided in this bill for the continuing hurricane relief and recovery for the people in the gulf coast. I support the funding for emergency humanitarian needs, famine relief and peacekeepers in Darfur, Sudan.

I would like to be clear, Mr. Speaker, I support our diplomatic, humanitarian, economic and military activities in Afghanistan, but I simply cannot support a single dime more for the war in Iraq.

Every day, the American people wake up to headlines describing how much worse the situation grows in Iraq: Iraqi Police Tied to Abuses and Deaths; Chaos in Iraq; U.S. General Says U.S. Troops Add to Instability; 72 Percent of U.S. Troops Want Withdrawal Within a Year.

Mr. Speaker, Iraq is in the midst of a spiraling civil war. On February 26, Pentagon officials said that the number of Iraqi army battalions capable of fighting the insurgency on their own has slipped since September from one battalion to none. The newly formed government is paralyzed by sectarian divisions.

The U.S. has turned its back on rebuilding Iraq. Ironically, the Bush administration has no problem cutting and running on reconstruction for Iraq.

Mr. Speaker, did you know that the only new construction aid in this supplemental is for more prisons in Iraq? Not schools or hospitals or roads, just prisons.

As both the GAO and the Inspector General have determined, there never was any systematic plan for stabilization and reconstruction in Iraq. Now we are paying the price.

Over 2,300 American military men and women have paid the ultimate price, their lives, trying to do their best to implement this awful policy, but it cannot be done, Mr. Speaker. And we cannot allow ourselves to be on the floor of this House next year looking at another so-called emergency supplemental for Iraq and talking about 5,000 or 10,000 American troops who have lost their lives.

It is time to bring our uniformed men and women home. It is time to begin a safe, orderly drawdown of our troops, one that we can control. If the Iraqis are not willing to solve their own problems through less bloody means, then why on Earth should American troops die for them?

Like so many of my House colleagues, once we were in Iraq, I felt we had a moral obligation to help the Iraqis rebuild their nation and form a representative government, but, Mr. Speaker, we are not helping anymore. Our presence is part of the problem, not part of the solution.

Mr. Speaker, it is easy for Members of this House to stand up and say, stay the course because, quite frankly, none of us are risking our lives. None of us are in harm's way. None of us are stuck over there because of the stunning failure and ineptitude of politicians in Washington.

If you want to protect our troops, let's bring them home.

So it is with regret, genuine regret, that I must vote against passage of the supplemental. The House has become addicted to voting for more money for a policy that has gone terribly, terribly wrong. It is time to stop.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GILLMOR). The Chair would remind Members to attempt, for the benefit of all, to abide time limits in debate.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I came here this morning, obviously, to debate the rule. But as is so often the case in rules debate, we move on to the bill itself and some of the larger purposes. And I am always content and happy to have that debate. I think it is an important discussion for the American people to hear.

My good friend from Massachusetts, from the other side of the aisle, mentioned that essentially things are worse in Iraq. Worse than what? And worse than when? Worse than having Saddam Hussein in power? I think not. I would much rather have him where he is, in a courtroom, in jail, and no longer launching regional wars that claimed over a million lives.

Worse than 423 mass grave sites that have been uncovered since the arrival of coalition forces in Iraq? I think not. Worse than 400,000 Iraqis killed in the decade before the liberation of Iraq? Again, I think not.

I think that we sometimes, on this floor, act as if we are doing a favor to the people of Iraq by leaving. I think that is dangerously misguided logic. I do not think it is a favor. I do not think that it is a favor to the people in Iraq. That is not what their duly elected representatives have asked us to do.

They, by the way, are running enormous risks for their own freedom. They rose up to try to get their own freedom in 1991. We didn't do, in my opinion, what we should have done then. I have been there five times. I see more and more Iraqis doing more and more things for themselves, and I see no one that asks the United States to leave precipitously.

I also would disagree with my good friend on the issue of whether or not our interests are involved in this. I think they very much are involved in Iraq. I think that victory is an extraordinarily important thing for this country to secure. I think staying the course, or remaining and staying with our friends that are fighting now, in part because we are there, is a very important message to send to the region.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his courtesy.

I would simply say to the gentleman that the situation in Iraq right now is out of control. There is a civil war. A majority of the Iraqis want us gone. A majority of our troops believe that we should come home.

And I know the gentleman has been there. I have been there, too. Let me tell you something. It is one thing for a United States Congressman to go over and visit in Iraq and be protected 24 hours while they are over there; it is another thing for a American soldier to be put in the middle of a civil war where so many have lost their lives for a policy that has been based on fiction.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Reclaiming my time, I would disagree with the gentleman on a number of points, but on one in particular.

It is not easy for anybody in this body to make the decision to send American troops into harm's way. My father was a career military person. My uncle spent 3½ years in a Japanese prison camp. My brother is a disabled Vietnam-era veteran, although not disabled in Vietnam. I have 15,000 soldiers at Fort Sill that I am privileged to represent. I have got another 8,000 or 9,000 airmen at Tinker Air Force Base that I am privileged to represent. My cousin is a lieutenant colonel in the United States Air Force, who spent 6 months in Afghanistan and 6 months in Iraq under very dangerous and difficult circumstances.

These are not decisions that anybody makes lightly for or against. Those people who are opposed to the war, as my good friend noted in the Rules Committee yesterday, initially, when it was "popular," did not make an easy decision. It is not popular today. Those of us who are still supportive of that effort are not making an easy decision. We are making what we think is the right decision. I respect my friend's motives in that regard. I think he has always been consistent. His judgment has been consistent, even though we have consistently disagreed. I would ask for the same sentiment in reverse; that those of us who hold a different point of view are equally honorable in our motivation, equally intense about what we are doing, and equally convinced the course we are advocating is the correct one.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

Mr. TIERNEY. I thank the gentlewoman, and I just share with my friend from Oklahoma, too bad we couldn't have had the debate you are now having at the beginning of the Iraq situation instead of going in on false information and on false pretenses. I think it would have been a much more enlightened debate, and I am sure you could have held your own at that point in time as you are doing here.

The shame of it is, of course, that the country was not told we were going into Iraq for anything to do with Saddam Hussein, other than weapons of mass destruction that were never found, connections with al Qaeda that were never found, and on that basis. That is why many in this country feel they have been misrepresented in this situation and that it has been badly prosecuted since then with tremendous incompetency.

The tremendous incompetency continues in a number of different ways, one of which is the contracting that has been going on and the loss of money, the mismanagement of money, the inability to track where money has gone for the American taxpayer in there, which is why Congressman JIM LEACH of Iowa and I have filed over the last several years a bill to set up the Truman Commission, based on the commission that happened during World War II when Senator Truman had a commission investigate the contracting, and in a Democrat administration, and they did two things: one was it made sure that the materials got to the troops that they needed at that time. And it saved lives. It was for their protection, to make sure the money wasn't wasted and that it went for the things the troops needed. And the other, of course, was to make sure the taxpayers' money was being spent as it should.

There are two things that Congress does: one is legislate and the other is oversight, to make sure the taxpayers' money is being spent properly and that the policy is being carried out in the way that it should. This Congress has been incredibly lacking in the oversight area. We have not done our job, particularly with regard to what is going on in Iraq and Afghanistan, which is why I am going to vote against the motion here for the rule. Because we ought to have waivers for the motions that Mr. LEACH and I brought to make sure that we investigate, have a separate commission set up to investigate.

Yes, this is an open rule, but it very pointedly leaves out that type of oversight, both in the Afghan and Iraq situation, and in the Katrina situation, where we are seeing the same kind of incompetence and waste and questionable action that might lead to fraud. In both instances, people will be hurt there if supplies are not gotten to them immediately, and the taxpayer will be hurt if the money isn't spent efficiently. So we ought to do that.

And with respect to the gentleman's argument that we are in such a rush and this is an emergency, the brief period of time it would take to make those corrections and put those waivers in are not going to bring us beyond the period of time for which money already exists that is protecting our troops and dealing with the people in the gulf area.

So I think it is important that we do our job. It is about time this Congress stood up. Not one dollar more. Because every dollar that is wasted is a dollar that isn't being spent on body armor and roadside jammers for bombs, and up-armor for Humvees. Every dollar wasted is not getting housing and other services to people in Louisiana and Mississippi and that region.

It is time we put the waivers in place and we went forward with these investigatory commissions so that as things are transpiring, we can know that we are doing our job of oversight and the troops in one area, and the victims of the storms in the other area are getting the materials and the things that they need, and that the American taxpayers' money is being protected.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I want to address several of the points of my good friend from Massachusetts.

First, in terms of going into war without the information and without the debate. I was not in Congress when that decision was made, and, frankly, I looked back and have read the debates very carefully, watched the debates at that time, and know that, frankly, everybody that was voting voted on the best information they had available at that time.

Frankly, I remind my good friend that we were operating with a CIA that was run by a President Clinton appointee, that he was pretty adamant in terms of there were WMDs there. That was the shared opinion of every other intelligence agency in the world. And, again, I don't question the motives of the decision that was made.

I would also add this. For me, the more compelling figure is not what we found before we thought we were going, but what we found after. I go back to those mass grave sites and I go back to those tens of thousands of people that were killed. And, frankly, I go back to a level of American responsibility for allowing that to persist, in my opinion, after 1991.

I relate to my friend a story that I heard on my very first visit to Iraq, when I was talking to a young American sergeant. It was becoming evident at that point that the stockpiles we thought were going to be there weren't there. There was dual-use technology, and perhaps the potential to recreate something. No question Saddam Hussein was working his way out of restrictions, but what we thought was there, wasn't there.

And I asked this young sergeant who had risked his life in the drive to Baghdad what he thought, given that information. And he first gave me sort of a nice stock political answer and said basically what I said: Well, we don't know. We are still looking. And I said, but we haven't found any. And he looked at me, and I will never, ever forget what he said when I said, so, was it worth it? And he answered my question with a question.

He said, sir, have you ever been to a mass grave site? And I said, no, I haven't. He said, I have. He said, you haven't seen anything until you see bodies coming out of the ground and hundreds of family members trying to identify them and wailing. And I have seen that, and I wonder why the whole world wasn't here 10 years ago. That is a good question for us to ask ourselves inuring the course of this debate.

I also want to address my friend's point about a commission in two ways. First, by making the point that there is a good deal of oversight that goes on in this process. I used to serve on the House Armed Services Committee. I still do. I have a waiver on that committee now. But that committee, I can assure you, is very thorough in its oversight. I think appropriations has an oversight function.

But, finally, and more importantly, I think on this particular piece of legislation, both sides of the House often ask for an open rule, and anything germane to this piece of legislation, this supplemental appropriation, can be brought here. I think that is a very good thing. Now we are being told we not only want things that are germane to one of the largest spending bills and one of the most important pieces of legislation that we will deal with this year, we want things that are not germane. We want waivers granted.

And, by the way, we are being told that by both sides of the aisle. This is not an exclusive demand. I think it is a misdirected demand. I would like to see us move back toward more open rules, more regular order, and I think this rule is a step in that direction.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. I yield 20 seconds to my friend.

Mr. TIERNEY. Thank you.

Well, first of all, I was here when we voted on the Iraq thing, and believe me, there was plenty of information for people that wanted to look at it to know which way things were going.

And certainly our White House should have known which way things were going, and they made representations that turned out not to be accurate. So people can be responsible for their acts.

Secondly, the mass graves you are talking about are mass graves of the late 1980s, early 1990s, when members of our present administration were over there being friendly with the Iraqis and with Saddam Hussein.

It is never not germane for this body to do its oversight duty. It is always germane.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Reclaiming my time. I disagree with my friend's characterization of when the mass graves were. There are certainly 35 years' worth of mass graves in Iraq, but a lot of them are from 1991 on, and particularly from the uprising of the Shi'a against Saddam Hussein, when an American Army was sitting on their border and we urged them to rise up and did nothing to help them.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I will be happy to yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. TIERNEY. I want to clarify that in 1991, the first Mr. Bush was President, when you were encouraging the uprising to go into that, and that is a period of time when there were many mass graves in that situation.

And, secondly, I just want to drive home the point that there is never a time when oversight for this group is not germane to the function that we do. We legislate, we have oversight, and there has been no effective oversight of either the Katrina situation or what is going on with contracting in Iraq and Afghanistan, not from any committee in this body, and the record is clear on that and it speaks for itself.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Let me just make a quick point on Katrina.

Actually, there was good oversight there. Chairman DAVIS had a very good committee. Unfortunately, my friends on the other side of the aisle chose largely not to participate in an oversight function.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds just to say that President Bush's first Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. O'Neill, wrote a book after he left and commented that the first Cabinet meeting he went to, in January, they were discussing going into Iraq, to his great surprise. So that was planned long before September 11.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO).

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member for yielding.

I am disappointed that the Rules Committee has not allowed me to offer my amendment to strengthen the CFIUS foreign investment review process during consideration of the supplemental appropriations bill.

Americans deserve a rigorous review of foreign investments that affect our national security posture. Never again should we find that the President and the Secretaries of Homeland Security, Treasury and Defense are unaware of a critical transaction until after it has been approved.

As you know, the Appropriations Committee voted overwhelmingly last week to kill the Dubai World Port terminal acquisition, which, it is my understanding, requires a rule waiver to be made germane. It declined, however, to address the larger underlying process problem.

□ 1115

My amendment would strengthen the CFIUS process in the following ways: all transactions that could result in foreign control of any person engaged in interstate commerce would be required to undergo a full review to determine whether it affects U.S. national security.

Today, foreign firms voluntarily, and let me say that again, voluntarily notify us of these transactions. I believe notification must be mandatory to ensure that our government knows about all such transactions.

My amendment would also retain the Secretary of the Treasury as the chairperson of the committee. The President would be required to approve or disapprove of all transactions. Today, if the President takes no action, the transaction is automatically approved.

The review period would automatically extend to the full 75 days. Current practice allows most transactions to be reviewed within 30 days, with an additional 45 days only if flags are raised.

Congress must be notified of Presidential decisions. Furthermore, Congress could overturn approvals within 30 days by a joint resolution. Today, Congress is notified of a CFIUS transaction only when the President disapproves one.

Within 90 days of enactment, the administration would also be required to report to Congress on foreign ownership of all U.S. critical infrastructure. Today, no one really knows how much of our critical infrastructure is in the hands of foreign companies and foreign governments.

Failing to fix the inherent flaws in the CFIUS process leaves our Nation vulnerable in the future. We should not take that chance. We should act now to strengthen the foreign investment review process.

I urge Members to vote "no" on the previous question so this amendment can be made in order and the House can vote on this important issue.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Minnesota for his point. I thought he had a very interesting amendment yesterday in the Rules Committee. I think it is a topic and amendment that deserves a great deal of study because I think the reform of that process is very much in order.

I would prefer that we move through an authorizing committee to do that, as opposed to simply discussing it in the Rules Committee, where we have no background, no staff, and then immediately inject it onto the floor.

My disagreement with my friend is largely over process here, and not necessarily over substance. I hope we do look at that process and do take his very thoughtful amendment into consideration through regular order.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. I would simply say, ordinarily, I would agree that the authorizing committee should deal with this issue. But given the fact that the Appropriations Committee at the leadership level took the action to wipe out the Dubai deal, to me it was appropriate that we make that provision have even more sense by having it attached by the same committee that did the other deed.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would draw a distinction here. I think there is a big difference between stopping a decision that you disagree with, which I think can be done without a great deal of moving through process, and changing a process itself. I think that is actually a more difficult, time-consuming, complex operation. I think it needs an authorizing committee to look at it.

I think it is very appropriate for the Appropriations Committee to say, stop, we have serious concerns, we do not want to go through with this; and hopefully at that point we would proceed by regular order and consider the gentleman's thoughtful amendments that may come along.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time to close.

I am going to be asking Members to vote "no" on the previous question so I can modify the rule and allow the House to consider two very critical amendments.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of the amendment and extraneous materials immediately prior to the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GILLMOR). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, the first amendment by Mr. SABO will create a new review and approval process to ensure that the secret, backroom deals, like the irresponsible Dubai Ports World, cannot happen again. The Sabo amendment strengthens the process by which our government reviews future foreign takeovers. It will require that all foreign transactions that could result in foreign control of any entity engaged in interstate commerce must undergo a thorough review that mandates the direct involvement of the President and the Congress.

The second amendment, by Ms. KAPTUR, will create a select congressional committee based on the Truman Committee from the Second World War to investigate and study the awarding and carrying out of government contracts, to conduct military and reconstruction activities in Iraq, and for the rebuilding efforts in the gulf coast in the wake of Hurricane Katrina.

There is ample evidence of the necessity of this modern-day Truman Committee. Every day, more examples of fraud emerge. Billions and billions of dollars have been misused both in this country and overseas, and ensuring vigilant oversight of taxpayer dollars should not be a partisan issue. We owe it to the American taxpayers. We owe it to our brave soldiers in harm's way, and we owe it to the citizens in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama who struggle every day to put their lives back together after the ravages of Hurricane Katrina.

I want to emphasize that this vote, the vote on whether to order the previous question on a special rule, is not merely a procedural vote. A vote against ordering the previous question is a vote against the narrow, inflexible agenda of the majority.

A "no" vote will allow those of us concerned about the safety and security of America to create a more responsible process for contracting out of our interstate commerce activities to any foreign entities. It would allow us to investigate the spending irregularities that have occurred with respect to the war in Iraq and the reconstruction efforts in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. In short, it is a vote to consider the priorities of the American people, the priorities blocked by the majority.

Mr. Speaker, I want to emphasize that a "no" vote on the previous question will not prevent the consideration of the supplemental bill. The bill will still be considered in its entirety. However, a "yes" vote will prevent us from voting on these two important initiatives. I urge all Members to join with me in supporting our soldiers and vote "no" on the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

In closing, I would like to say I believe we have had an excellent debate today. What is clear to me is the importance and the timeliness of this legislation. With that said, I would encourage Members to listen carefully to the following debate and to vote in support of the underlying legislation.

Additionally, I would encourage Members to be cautious when considering the amendments. This bill has been carefully crafted and worked in a way to ensure that our servicemen receive the best equipment when they go to war.

Equally important, the bill contains important measures to help our fellow citizens in the gulf coast as they continue to deal with the consequences of the worst natural disaster in American history.

Finally, I would ask Members to remember this is not a vote about the wisdom of the war in Iraq. The President and the Congress made that decision years ago. This vote is about giving those we have asked to execute our policy in Iraq the tools they need to do their job. The men and women serving our cause in Iraq ask for nothing more. In good conscience, we should give them nothing less.

Similarly, this is not a debate about the nature of the governmental response to Hurricane Katrina. This matter has been dealt with in a detailed report issued by a select committee chaired by the chairman of the Government Reform Committee, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS).

Finally, this is also not a vote in essence about fiscal discipline. The process that the rule allows would allowed those concerned about spending to strip portions of the bill that concern them and send them back. It would also, of course, allow them at the end to vote against the bill itself if they thought it was too expensive. The rule allows, as I wish to remind my colleagues, for an open rule, that is, any Member of this body, majority or minority, can bring an issue germane to the bill to the floor, have it heard and have it decided. This is a movement toward regular order, and I think it is one we should respect and appreciate by upholding the rule.

To close, I would urge my colleagues to support this rule and the underlying legislation.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, we will soon consider a bill that will provide more than $90 billion for the continued wars in Iraq and Afghanistan and the continued response to Hurricane Katrina. As we debate this bill, we must also put in place measures to ensure that these funds are spent wisely.

As a result of the work of the special Inspector General in Iraq and the General Accountability Office, we know that billions of dollars has been wasted, and fraud and abuse is rife in the Katrina rebuilding and the war in Iraq.

One would presume that after being advised that taxpayer money had been misused, Congress would make certain that similar misuse would not occur in the future. Sadly, that presumption would be wrong. Perhaps no failures have been so regular and so great in the Republican Congress as the failure to do effective oversight.

Today, we have a chance to reverse this record of lax oversight by allowing the consideration of the Kaptur-Sabo amendment. The amendment would add some strength to an oversight process badly in need of it by: establishing a select committee modeled on the World War II Truman Committee and ensuring that Congress would have a vote on the adequacy of the national security review done on any proposed acquisition by a foreign entity of a business involved in interstate commerce in the United States.

The Truman Committee taught two important lessons—especially in war time—contractor performance needs to be closely scrutinized, and that scrutiny can be provided without partisanship.

Reports that $9 billion in money intended for use in Iraq cannot be accounted for should be reason enough to create a Truman-like committee, as envisioned by Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. TIERNEY, and Mr. LEACH. Evidence that money that was supposed to relieve suffering in the areas devastated by Katrina has been misused offers a strong endorsement.

Our recent experience with the Dubai Ports World acquisition should have convinced us that Congress has a role in determining whether and when foreign entities can safely operate elements of our critical infrastructure. These determinations are simply too important to be left solely to the judgment of the executive branch. Mr. SABO proposes a workable, common-sense process. We should consider it today.

Mr. Speaker, the American people expect Congress to do more than write blank checks. They expect us to be aggressive in making sure that money is spent responsibly. Unfortunately, this Republican Congress has failed to meet this expectation. With this amendment we could begin the oversight of taxpayer dollars that should have begun long ago. I urge my colleagues to defeat the previous question and let us adopt the Kaptur-Sabo amendment.

Mr. LARSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the previous question so that the House can consider a critical amendment that would strengthen the CFIUS review process.

As we know all too well from the recent controversy over the Dubai ports deal, the current process for reviewing foreign takeover of national infrastructure is deeply flawed. Federal law currently allows the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS) up to 30 days to examine a potential sale and determine whether to begin a more thorough 45-day security investigation. This process is meant to examine the national security implications of handing over critical infrastructure to foreign companies. However, as we now know, far too often the committee forgoes a deeper review of these deals. CIFIUS has investigated an estimated 1500 foreign investment transactions since it was established, of which 25 have gone into the 45 day review and only one has been blocked.

Defeating the previous question would allow the House to consider an amendment offered by Mr. SABO that is blocked by the underlying rule. The Sabo amendment would strengthen the current CFIUS process by requiring all foreign transactions that could result in foreign control of any asset or infrastructure that affects national security to undergo a full review. It mandates a more critical look at these deals by ensuring a 75 day security review of CFIUS transactions and requires the President to either approve or disapprove all deals. The amendment also requires that Congress be notified of Presidential approvals and allows for Congress to overturn decisions within 30 days with a joint resolution. In total, these changes would bring some common sense reform to a process that is central to the security of our vital infrastructure and the American people.

The Dubai Port World deal showed that the actions of the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS) need to be taken out of the shadows and brought into the light. Congress should not be rubber-stamping the Administration's backroom deals, it should be reviewing them thoroughly. While H.R. 4939 will put an end to the already dead Dubai Ports World deal, focusing on this one transaction ignores the larger flaws in the CFIUS review process and the wide gaps in our port security. This important amendment deserves nothing less than an up-or-down vote.

The material previously referred to by Ms. SLAUGHTER is as follows:

PREVIOUS QUESTION FOR H. RES. 725—RULE ON H.R. 4939, MARCH 2006 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR IRAQ/KATRINA

At the end of the resolution add the following:

SEC. 2. Before consideration of any other amendment it shall be in order to consider the amendments printed in section 3, which may be offered only in the order specified, may be offered only by the Member designated or a designee, shall be considered as read, shall not be subject to amendment except pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole. All points of order against such amendments are waived.

SEC. 3. The amendments referred to in section 2 are as follows:

(a) Amendment offered by Representative Sabo:

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 4939, AS REPORTED OFFERED BY MR. SABO OF MINNESOTA

SEC. 3011A. (a) Section 721 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2170) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) INVESTIGATIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Upon receiving written notification, as prescribed by regulations under this section, of any merger, acquisition, or takeover proposed or pending on or after the date of the enactment of this section by or with any foreign person which could result in foreign control of any person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States, the President, acting through the President’s designee and the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States shall conduct an investigation to determine the effects, if any, of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover on the national security of the United States.

“(2) TIMING.—Any investigation required under paragraph (1) shall be completed before the end of the 75-day period beginning on the date of the receipt by the President or the President's designee of written notification of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover.

“(b) CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Any information or documentary material filed with the President or the President's designee pursuant to this section shall be exempt from disclosure under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, and no such information or documentary material may be made public, except as may be relevant to any administrative or judicial action or proceeding.

“(2) AVAILABILITY TO THE CONGRESS.—No provision of paragraph (1) shall be construed as preventing the disclosure of any information or documentary material to either House of Congress or to any duly authorized committee or subcommittee of the Congress.

“(c) COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN INVESTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States established pursuant to Executive Order No. 11858 (hereafter in this section referred to as the ‘Committee’) shall be a multi-agency committee to carry out this section and such other assignments as the President may designate.

“(2) MEMBERSHIP.—The Committee shall be comprised of the following members:

“(A) The Secretary of the Treasury.

“(B) The Secretary of State.

“(C) The Secretary of Defense.

“(D) The Secretary of Homeland Security.

“(E) The Attorney General.

“(F) The Secretary of Commerce.

“(G) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

“(H) The United States Trade Representative.

“(I) The Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors.

“(J) The Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy.

“(3) CHAIRPERSON.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall be the Chairperson of the Committee.

“(4) OTHER MEMBERS.—The Chairperson of the Committee shall involve the heads of such other Federal agencies, the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, and the Assistant to the President for Domestic Policy in any investigation under subsection (a) as the Chairperson determines to be appropriate on the basis of the facts and circumstances of the transaction under investigation.

“(5) ROLE OF THE DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE.—The Director of National Intelligence shall provide appropriate intelligence analysis and intelligence briefings to the Committee.

“(d) ACTION BY THE PRESIDENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—No proposed or pending acquisition, merger, or takeover, of a person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States by or with foreign persons may occur unless the President, on the basis of an investigation and report by the Committee, finds that such acquisition, merger or takeover, will not threaten to impair the national security of the United States, as defined by regulations prescribed pursuant to this section, and approves the transaction.

“(2) ENFORCEMENT.—The President shall direct the Attorney General to seek appropriate relief, including divestment relief, in the district courts of the United States in order to implement and enforce—

“(A) any finding, action, or determination under this section of disapproval of an acquisition, merger, or takeover; or

“(B) any conditions imposed on any approval of any acquisition, merger, or takeover.

“(3) FINALITY OF DETERMINATIONS.—All actions and determinations under this section shall be final and not subject to judicial review.

“(e) FINDINGS BY THE PRESIDENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A finding under this section of impairment or threatened impairment to national security shall be based on credible evidence that leads the President to believe that—

“(A) the foreign interest exercising control might take action that threatens to impair the national security; and

“(B) other provisions of law do not provide adequate and appropriate authority for the President to protect the national security.

“(2) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—Any investigation under this section shall take into account the following factors:

“(A) Domestic production needed for projected national defense requirements.

“(B) The capability and capacity of domestic industries to meet national defense requirements, including the availability of human resources, products, technology, materials, and other supplies and services.

“(C) The control of domestic industries and commercial activity by foreign citizens as it affect the capability and capacity of the United States to meet the requirements of national security.

“(D) The potential effects of the proposed or pending transaction on sales of military goods, equipment, or technology to any country—

“(i) identified by the Secretary of State—

“(I) under section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as a country that supports terrorism;

“(II) under section 6(l) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as a country of concern regarding missile proliferation; or

“(III) under section 6(m) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as a country of concern regarding the proliferation of chemical and biological weapons; or

“(ii) listed under section 309(c) of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act of 1978 on the ‘Nuclear Non-Proliferation-Special Country List’ (15 C.F.R. Part 778, Supplement No. 4) or any successor list.

“(E) The potential effects on the proposed or pending transaction on United States international technological leadership in areas affecting United States national security.

“(f) REPORT TO THE CONGRESS.—Upon making any determination to approve or disapprove any merger, acquisition, or takeover by or with any foreign person which could result in foreign control of any person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States, the President shall immediately transmit to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives a written report of the President's determination under this section to approve or disapprove such merger, acquisition, or takeover, including a detailed explanation of the finding made and factors considered.

“(g) CONGRESSIONAL ACTION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the determination of the President contained in the report transmitted to the Congress under subsection (f) is that the President will approve any merger, acquisition, or takeover under subsection (d) and not later than 30 days after the date on which Congress receives the report, a joint resolution described in paragraph (2) is enacted into law, then the President shall take such action under subsection (d) as is necessary to prohibit the merger, acquisition, or takeover, including, if such acquisition has been completed, directing the Attorney General to seek divestment or other appropriate relief in the district courts of the United States.

“(2) JOINT RESOLUTION DESCRIBED.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term ‘joint resolution’ means a joint resolution of the Congress, the sole matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: ‘That the Congress disapproves the determination of approval of the President contained in the report submitted to Congress pursuant to section 721(f) of the Defense Production Act of 1950 on _____’, with the blank space being filled with the appropriate date.

“(3) COMPUTATION OF REVIEW PERIOD.—In computing the 30-day period referred to in paragraph (1), there shall be excluded any day described in section 154(b) of the Trade Act of 1974.

“(h) REGULATIONS.—The President shall direct the issuance of regulations to carry out this section. Such regulations shall, to the extent possible, minimize paperwork burdens and shall to the extent possible coordinate reporting requirements under this section with reporting requirements under any other provision of Federal law.

“(i) EFFECT ON OTHER LAW.—No provision of this section shall be construed as altering or affecting any existing authority, power, process, regulation, investigation, enforcement measure, or review provided by any other provision of law.

“(j) TECHNOLOGY RISK ASSESSMENTS.—In any case in which an assessment of the risk of diversion of defense critical technology is performed by the Committee or any other designee of the President, a copy of such assessment shall be provided to any other designee of the President responsible for reviewing or investigating a merger, acquisition, or takeover under this section.

“(k) BIENNIAL REPORT ON CRITICAL TECHNOLOGIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to assist the Congress in its oversight responsibilities with respect to this section, the President and such agencies as the President shall designate shall complete and furnish to the Congress, not later than May 1, 2007, and upon the expiration of every 2 years thereafter, a report, both in classified and unclassified form, which—

“(A) evaluates whether there is credible evidence of a coordinated strategy by 1 or more countries or companies to acquire United States companies involved in research, development, or production of critical technologies for which the United States is a leading producer; and

“(B) evaluates whether there are industrial espionage activities directed or directly assisted by foreign governments against private United States companies aimed at obtaining commercial secrets related to critical technology.

“(2) DEFINITION.—For the purposes of this subsection, the term ‘critical technologies’ means technologies identified under title VI of the National Science and Technology Policy, Organization, and Priorities Act of 1976 or other critical technology, critical components, or critical technology items essential to national defense or security identified pursuant to this section.

“(1) BIENNIAL REPORT ON CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE.—In order to assist the Congress in its oversight responsibilities, the President and such agencies as the President shall designate shall complete and furnish to the Congress, not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this subsection and upon the expiration of every 2 years thereafter, a report, both in classified and unclassified form, which—

“(1) lists all critical infrastructure, as defined under subtitle B of title II of Public Law 107-296, that is owned, controlled or dominated by an alien, a foreign corporation, or a foreign government;

“(2) evaluates whether there is credible evidence of a coordinated strategy by 1 or more countries or companies to acquire United States critical infrastructure; and

“(3) evaluates whether there are industrial espionage activities directed or directly assisted by foreign governments against private United States companies controlling critical infrastructure.”.

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to the review and investigation of any acquisition, merger, or takeover which is or becomes subject to section 721 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2170) (as in effect immediately before the date of the enactment of this Act or on or after such date) that has not become final before the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) Amendment offered by Representative Kaptur:

AN AMENDMENT OFFERED MS. KAPTUR TO THE FY 2006 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL

On page 80, after line 19, insert the following:

TITLE IV—ESTABLISHMENT OF A “TRUMAN” INVESTIGATIVE COMMITTEE TO PROTECT AGAINST WASTE, FRAUD, AND ABUSE RELATED TO CONTRACTS FOR THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERRORISM AND HURRICANES KATRINA AND RITA REBUILDING EFFORTS

SEC. 1. There is hereby created a select committee on the model of the Truman Committee to investigate the awarding and carrying out of contracts to conduct military operations and relief and reconstruction activities related to the global war on terrorism (including all activities in Afghanistan and Iraq), and Hurricane Katrina recovery, relief, and reconstruction efforts (hereinafter referred to as the “select committee”).

SEC. 2. (a) The select committee is to be composed of 19 Members of the House, one of whom shall be designated as chairman from the majority party and one of whom shall be designated ranking member from the minority party. The Chairmen and Ranking Members of the following committees will serve on the select committee:

- (1) Committee on Armed Services;
- (2) Committee on Government Reform;
- (3) Committee on Homeland Security; and
- (4) Committee on International Relations.

The Chairmen and Ranking Members of the following subcommittees of the Committee on Appropriations will serve on the select committee:

- (1) Subcommittee on Defense;
- (2) Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs; and
- (3) Subcommittee on Homeland Security.

In addition, the Speaker shall appoint 5 members of the select committee, of which 2 members shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the minority leader. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the select committee shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

(b) The select committee shall conduct an ongoing study and investigation of the awarding and carrying out of contracts by the Government for military operations and relief and reconstruction activities related to the global war on terrorism (including all activities in Afghanistan and Iraq), and Hurricane Katrina recovery, relief, and reconstruction efforts and make such recommendations to the House as the select committee deems appropriate regarding the following matters—

(1) bidding, contracting, and auditing standards in the issuance of Government contracts;

(2) oversight procedures;

(3) forms of payment and safeguards against money laundering;

(4) accountability of contractors and Government officials involved in procurement;

(5) penalties for violations of law and abuses in the awarding and carrying out of Government contracts;

(6) subcontracting under large, comprehensive contracts;

(7) inclusion and utilization of small businesses, through subcontracts or otherwise; and

(8) such other matters as the select committee deems appropriate.

SEC. 3. (a) QUORUM.—One-third of the members of the select committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business except for the reporting of the results of its study and investigation (with its recommendations) or the authorization of subpoenas, which shall require a majority of the committee to be actually present, except that the select committee may designate a lesser number, but not less than two, as a quorum for the purpose of holding hearings to take testimony and receive evidence.

(b) POWERS.—For the purpose of carrying out this resolution, the select committee may sit and act during the present Congress at any time and place within the United States or elsewhere, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned and hold such hearings as it considers necessary and to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses, the furnishing of information by interrogatory, and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, documents, and other things and information of any kind as it deems necessary, including relevant classified materials.

(c) ISSUANCE OF SUBPOENAS.—A subpoena may be authorized and issued by the select committee in the conduct of any investigation or series of investigations or activities, only when authorized by a majority of the members voting, a majority being present. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chairman or by any member designated by the select committee, and may be served by any person designated by the chairman or such member. Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and attested by the Clerk. The select committee may request investigations, reports, and other assistance from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Government.

(d) MEETINGS.—The chairman, or in his absence a member designated by the chairman, shall preside at all meetings and hearings of the select committee. All meetings and hearings of the select committee shall be conducted in open session, unless a majority of members of the select committee voting, there being in attendance the requisite number required for the purpose of hearings to take testimony, vote to close a meeting or hearing.

(e) APPLICABILITIES OF RULES OF THE HOUSE.—The Rules of the House of Representatives applicable to standing committees shall govern the select committee where not inconsistent with this resolution.

(f) WRITTEN COMMITTEE RULES.—The select committee shall adopt additional written rules, which shall be public, to govern its procedures, which shall not be inconsistent with this resolution or the Rules of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 4. (a) APPOINTMENT OF STAFF.—The select committee staff shall be appointed, and may be removed, by the chairman and shall work under the general supervision and direction of the chairman.

(b) POWERS OF RANKING MINORITY MEMBER.—All staff provided to the minority party members of the select committee shall be appointed, and may be removed, by the ranking minority member of the committee, and shall work under the general supervision and direction of such member.

(c) COMPENSATION.—The chairman shall fix the compensation of all staff of the select committee after consultation with the ranking minority member regarding any minority party staff, within the budget approved for such purposes for the select committee.

(d) REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES.—The select committee may reimburse the members of its staff for travel, subsistence, and other necessary expenses incurred by them in the performance of their functions for the select committee.

(e) PAYMENT OF EXPENSES.—There shall be paid out of the applicable accounts of the House such sums as may be necessary for the expenses of the select committee. Such payments shall be made on vouchers signed by the chairman of that select committee and approved in the manner directed by the Committee on House Administration. Amounts made available under this subsection shall be expended in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Committee on House Administration.

SEC. 5. The select committee shall from time to time report to the House the results of its study and investigation, with its recommendations. Any report made by the select committee when the House is not in session shall be filed with the Clerk of the House. Any report made by the select committee shall be referred to the committee or committees that have jurisdiction over the subject matter of the report.

THE VOTE ON THE PREVIOUS QUESTION: WHAT IT REALLY MEANS

This vote, the vote on whether to order the previous question on a special rule, is not merely a procedural vote. A vote against ordering the previous question is a vote against the Republican majority agenda and a vote to allow the opposition, at least for the moment, to offer an alternative plan. It is a vote about what the House should be debating.

Mr. Clarence Cannon's Precedents of the House of Representatives, (VI, 308-311) describes the vote on the previous question on the rule as “a motion to direct or control the consideration of the subject before the House being made by the Member in charge.” To defeat the previous question is to give the opposition a chance to decide the subject before the House. Cannon cites the Speaker's ruling of January 13, 1920, to the effect that “the refusal of the House to sustain the demand for the previous question passes the control of the resolution to the opposition” in order to offer an amendment. On March 15, 1909, a member of the majority party offered a rule resolution. The House defeated the previous question and a member of the opposition rose to a parliamentary inquiry, asking who was entitled to recognition. Speaker Joseph G. Cannon (R-Illinois) said: "The previous question having been refused, the gentleman from New York, Mr. Fitzgerald, who had asked the gentleman to yield to him for an amendment, is entitled to the first recognition."

Because the vote today may look bad for the Republican majority they will say "the vote on the previous question is simply a vote on whether to proceed to an immediate vote on adopting the resolution . . . [and] has no substantive legislative or policy implications whatsoever." But that is not what they have always said. Listen to the Republican Leadership Manual on the Legislative Process in the United States House of Representatives, (6th edition, page 135). Here's how the Republicans describe the previous question vote in their own manual: Although it is generally not possible to amend the rule because the majority Member controlling the time will not yield for the purpose of offering an amendment, the same result may be achieved by voting down the previous question on the rule . . . When the motion for the previous question is defeated, control of the time passes to the Member who led the opposition to ordering the previous question. That Member, because he then controls the time, may offer a amendment to the rule, or yield for the purpose of amendment."

Deschler's Procedure in the U.S. House of Representatives, the subchapter titled "Amending Special Rules" states: "a refusal to order the previous question on such a rule [a special rule reported from the Committee on Rules] opens the resolution to amendment and further debate." (Chapter 21, section 21.2) Section 21.3 continues: Upon rejection of the motion for the previous question on a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules, control shifts to the Member leading the opposition to the previous question, who may offer a proper amendment or motion and who controls the time for debate thereon."

Clearly, the vote on the previous question on a rule does have substantive policy implications. It is one of the only available tools for those who oppose the Republican majority's agenda to offer an alternative plan.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 8 and clause 9 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on ordering the previous question will be followed by 5-minute votes, if ordered, on adopting the resolution and on suspending the rules and adopting House Concurrent Resolution 190.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 224, nays 192, not voting 16, as follows:

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the consideration of H.R. 4939, and that I may include tabular material on the same.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 725 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 4939.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Mr. GILLMOR in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered read the first time.

The gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, today we turn our attention to the fiscal year 2006 emergency supplemental, addressing the global war on terror and the gulf coast disaster assistance.

The committee-recommended funding levels is $91.833 billion, which is $400 million below the President's request.

The bill provides for $67.6 billion in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. The supplemental fully funds the administration's request of $4.85 billion to train and equip security forces in Afghanistan and Iraq.

The bill earmarks, I repeat, Mr. Chairman, the bill earmarks $850 billion over the President's request to upgrade Abrams tanks and Bradley fighting vehicles. The committee is also earmarking, I repeat, Mr. Chairman, earmarking an additional $480 million over the request for newer, self-up-armed Humvees, for a total of $890 million of earmarks.

The committee has fully funded the President's request to procure and develop countermeasures to prevent IED attacks on our troops. The bill also includes the enhanced $400,000 life insurance benefit for servicemembers and $100,000 death gratuity for combat-related fatalities.

The committee did not fund $1 billion of the request for various construction projects related to security training activities in the region because they were poorly defined and not well justified.

The committee did provide a five-fold increase for the Department of Defense Inspector General to monitor war expenditures.

Under title II, the supplemental provides $19.1 billion for hurricane-related disaster assistance, including $9.55 billion for FEMA's disaster relief fund. The bill also provides $4.2 billion for HUD community development block grants to address long-term recovery and restoration of devastated areas.

The bill also provides the requested amount of $1.46 billion for various flood control projects and levee repairs by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

This legislation also requires FEMA to provide better reporting on the expenditure of disaster funds and provides funding for the Inspector General of the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Justice to investigate and prosecute fraud cases.

Like most Members of the House, I have heard from many of my constituents expressing strong concerns about the possibility of foreign-owned companies managing U.S. ports. As a result of those concerns, the House Appropriations Committee overwhelmingly, and in a bipartisan fashion, adopted an amendment that prohibits the company, Dubai Ports World, owned by one of the governing bodies of the United Arab Emirates, from taking over the operation of any port facility in the United States.

It was not my intention, Mr. Chairman, to have the committee rewrite the Defense Production Act or change the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, the CFIUS process. Those are very complex policy decisions which rest primarily with the Financial Services Committee. Additionally, the Homeland Security Committee, the Armed Services Committee, the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and the Committee on International Relations have a great deal of interest in this matter.

The straightforward amendment adopted in our committee was crafted to block only the Dubai Ports World deal. This is a national security issue. This is a national security bill. Our goal is to ensure that security of our ports is in America's hands.

During our debate, Mr. Chairman, on the supplemental, I fully expect an amendment to strike this language from the bill. This striking amendment, which will likely fail on a broad bipartisan basis, gives our Members the opportunity to voice their strong opposition to the port deal. It will also send a strong and unmistakable message that the Congress and the American people stand united on the critical national security issue that involves the ports.

Mr. Chairman, I urge an aye vote on the passage of this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY), the ranking member of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill, and I am pleased to have worked with Chairman KOLBE to develop the foreign assistance portion of this measure. The bill cuts the amount requested for international assistance by about $140 million from the administration's request, and rescinds an additional $17 million in previously appropriated funds that are no longer needed.

However, I do have concerns about what we have included and what we have not included. I am particularly concerned about the lack of funding in this bill for Afghanistan. During the chairman's recent visit to Afghanistan, the ambassador and USAID staff outlined a need for $600 million in FY 2006 supplemental funding to help address the power and infrastructure needs in Afghanistan.

Our ambassador, the Afghan government, and provincial leaders all agreed that progress on reconstruction and development was critical to help consolidate the rule of law, curtail the influence of the Taliban and al Qaeda operatives and combat opium poppy cultivation.

Yet, the President's request does not contain the $600 million that Ambassador Neumann requested. It does not even contain the $407 million that Secretary Rice requested in her submission to OMB. The President requested just $62 million for assistance to Afghanistan in the supplemental, one-tenth of what is needed. The committee further cut this amount providing only $8 million for Afghanistan.

Now, I do understand that Chairman KOLBE and Chairman LEWIS are frustrated with the lack of response from the State Department on the counter-narcotics program in Afghanistan, and I share that frustration. However, in this instance, I fear that we are cutting off our nose to spite the State Department's face. I do not think this is a responsible strategy. And before this bill is enacted, I hope we can find the means to restore or even increase the administration's request for Afghanistan.

While I applaud the funding in this bill for Sudan and other humanitarian needs in Africa, I was disappointed that the administration did not seek robust funding for the fledgling democracy in Liberia and the critical transition in Haiti. I am pleased that the committee accepted an amendment by Representative JACKSON to add $50 million in assistance to Liberia. It is important that the United States send a strong message of support to Liberia, particularly as we prepare to receive President Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, the first woman to be elected head of state in Africa.

This money will provide critical short-term support to meet refugee and humanitarian needs, as well as to help stabilize Liberia in the initial months of her administration. First Lady Laura Bush and Secretary Rice pledged that the U.S. would stand by Liberia during this period of transition, and I think our bill with the addition of $50 million in economic support funds does just that.

Finally, let me speak to the bulk of funding in the foreign operations bill which is for Iraq. I am not convinced that providing more money for Iraq will cure the problems for that country. But I will support the additional funding because I think we owe our men and women in uniform in Iraq every tool to achieve success.

I am dismayed that the committee defeated on a party-line vote, however, my amendment to ensure proper oversight of these additional resources. My amendment would have simply placed the additional funds in the foreign operations title of the bill under the oversight of the Special Inspector General for Iraq, as is the case for prior funds appropriated for assistance to Iraq.

By voting against this commonsense amendment, the Republicans in our committee sent the message to American taxpayers that while Congress expects them to bear the burden of reconstructing Iraq, the Republicans in Congress are not interested in ensuring that the money is accounted for and effectively spent. I hope the issue is corrected when the bill is taken up by the Senate. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), my mentor, the former chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who now chairs the Subcommittee on National Security.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me the time. I want to compliment him for having produced this very important supplemental appropriations bill in record time, and a very good bill.

I want to expand a little on what the chairman has said about this bill. For example, we have increased the President's budget by $850 million to ensure that Army tracked combat vehicles such as Abrams tanks and Bradley fighting vehicles will be upgraded, especially for the units that will be rotating into Iraq in the coming months. An increase of $360 million in equipment for the Marine Corps is provided based on an assessment of their most pressing shortfalls. And $273.7 million additional is provided for Air Force procurement, including additional predators, electronic countermeasures to protect our aircraft, and funding to ensure the continuation of the C-17 production line.

Very importantly, Mr. Chairman, the committee recommendation supports and enhances the President's request for the National Guard and Reserve forces. We have included in the war supplemental portion of this bill a total of $3.57 billion for the Guard and Reserve, an increase of $320 million over the amounts requested by the President.

We have been able to add to the request the following items: $230 million for the Abrams Tank Integrated Management or AIM program, to support fielding of National Guard combat brigades; $50 million for 42 Bradley fighting vehicles to complete two Army National Guard combat brigades; and $40 million to cover shortfalls in the Army Reserve personnel accounts.

All and all, Mr. Chairman, this is a good bill. It does speak to the needs of those who are fighting the war. I highly recommend its passage.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, as I said earlier, this bill is here because of a massive failure of American leadership, which goes right to the very top in the White House.

We are going to be spending $90 billion in this bill, most of which goes for Iraq, a war which was engaged in by our country, initiated by our country on the basis of bad information and manipulated intelligence. After we were in the war, we were told by the administration that Iraqi reconstruction would cost between $1 and $2 billion and could be financed by Iraqi oil revenues.

After the administration submitted its reconstruction request for over $18 billion, Secretary Rumsfeld told us, "We just had no idea of how bad the Iraqi economy was."

That certainly is an understatement. The administration then claimed that we would be greeted as liberators and that 6 months after the invasion, we could begin withdrawing troops. Since then, the insurgency has exploded. We have lost over 2,300 U.S. troops who have been killed. Thousands have been injured. Many more Iraqis have been killed and a continuing U.S. troop deployment in Iraq of around 130,000, down only slightly from the 150,000 in the year before.

We have had a failure to plan for adequately equipping our troops with armor. And as a result, our troops have been rummaging for scrap metal from garbage dumps and they have had to deal with a myriad of other equipment shortages.

Then we have seen the disgraceful stories about Abu Ghraib. We have seen stories about torture all being done in the name of the United States, in the name of every citizen of this country. We have reports that more than 100 people have died in custody, and then we have reports that the administration is spying on Americans and eavesdropping on Americans. I want to make it clear, I want our government to eavesdrop on every person that it needs to eavesdrop on in order to protect this country, but I want it done in a way which is constitutional, and in a way which is in conformance with the law, not outside the law, and right now that is not the case.

So this bill comes before us with the United States divided and with the American people confused about what our mission is, what our purpose is, and what our plans are. And now we are asked to provide this additional money.

I will vote for this bill because, while I have grave misgivings about the war, and while I believe that Mr. Rumsfeld should have resigned a long time ago, I intend to support whatever money is necessary in order to support our troops. But having said that, let me just make another observation. We are going to be spending $91 billion. $19 billion is for Katrina. Over almost $70 billion is for Iraq. And I am told that those funds will be expended at a rate of about $6.8 billion a month. And yet we are going to be squabbling over the next 2 days over a fraction of that amount that some of us believe should be used to provide heating for our elderly, education for our kids, and medical care for our veterans.

Three years after this war began, does anybody here really believe the President of the United States when he tells us that this is all about bringing democracy and freedom to Iraq? $400 billion and then some later, does anybody believe that Congress did the right thing when this Congress handed a blank check to the administration? After more than 17,000 Americans wounded in Iraq, does anyone think Congress was right to sit on its hands when it was clear that this White House and the civilian leadership at the Pentagon did not have the first clue about what they were doing?

Mr. Chairman, in addition to the divisions which we face on Iraq, we face some other problems with this bill.

This bill, for instance, contains Mr. LEWIS' amendment shutting off and shutting down the ports transaction involving Dubai. At the same time, however, the committee blocked the Sabo amendment which would have created a process which would have guaranteed that our government would know each and every time such a transaction was being contemplated. Without the Sabo amendment, we are still in a position where notice to the American government of any such transaction is optional. We do not believe on this side of the aisle it ought to be optional.

Secondly, the committee blocked efforts, again by Mr. SABO, to add $3.4 billion for crucially needed funding to strengthen port security and border security.

The committee cut back my amendment to provide $1 billion to help low-income Americans pay for higher energy prices which are in large measure arising today because of our misadventures in Iraq. The committee cut back that effort to $750 million with no guarantee that a single dollar of that will be provided to people who need it this year.

Then the committee declined to support a provision by Mr. BERRY which would have repaired the prescription drug plan that has now gone into effect and which would have at least given seniors more time to sort out their confusion before they have to commit themselves to signing up for one plan or another.

The committee also refused to adopt, well, to save time, I will skip the other three points that I think were important to discuss, but let me simply say this, Mr. Chairman. There will be a lot of debate on this bill over the next 2 days, and a lot of it will be focused on Iraq. But I think it is important for each and every American to understand and it is important for each and every man and woman representing this country in uniform to understand that our divisions about the advisability of the war and about what ought to happen next in that war have nothing whatsoever to do with our feelings for those who wear the uniform of the United States and are presently engaged in this contest. They have done every possible thing that could be asked of them. We owe them our gratitude for their sense of sacrifice, their willingness to answer the call of their country, and I do not think that turmoil over the advisability of the war ought to be mistaken for disagreement that we owe a debt of obligation to each and every person who is fighting in that war.

I wish we had a similar sense of self-sacrifice on the part of persons who are not participating in that war. It sometimes seems that the only people who are being asked to sacrifice are military families. We are telling the rest of the country, while some folks are off to war, "Do not worry, folks, we are going to give you a nice fat tax cut, and people who make $1 million a year are going to get $110,000 tax cut." No sense of self-sacrifice there.

So, Mr. Speaker, I intend to vote for this bill in the end, but we could have adopted a number of amendments which would have made this a much more balanced product, and I would hope that as we go through the debate that we will find a way to at least address some of the issues which we failed to address when the committee dealt with the bill last week.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I am happy to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS), the chairman of the Homeland Security Subcommittee.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding the time and, more importantly, for ushering out this important bill in short time and in good order, and I urge my colleagues to support this supplemental appropriations for the global war on terror and hurricane recovery.

Mr. Chairman, without a doubt, Hurricane Katrina was the worst natural disaster the Nation has ever seen, covering more than 93,000 square miles, claiming over 1,300 lives. Nearly 7 months after landfall, Hurricane Katrina continues to consume us as a Nation, both with recovery and rebuilding, as well as questioning what went wrong and why.

The bill before us today fully funds the ongoing work of FEMA. Since Katrina made landfall, and including the $9.5 billion in this bill, the Congress has provided more than $44.5 billion in supplemental funds for Gulf coast recovery just through the Disaster Relief Fund. That is a staggering sum of money, Mr. Chairman, and one that reflects our commitment to help our Nation recover from the devastation of the 2005 hurricane season.

Mr. Chairman, we are a little more than 2 months away from the 2006 hurricane season. I do not think that is a particularly welcome observation for those still recovering from the 2005 season.

I am pleased that this bill includes several important programs that will help us prepare. One of the lessons learned, Mr. Chairman, in Katrina was the importance of early warning and communications. The bill before us today includes $70 million to allow FEMA to improve public alert, warning and communications systems.

The Bipartisan Committee on Hurricane Katrina and the White House's "Lessons Learned" identified critical failures in FEMA's ability to manage its workload. To address some of those concerns, this bill includes $5 million to hire additional personnel for logistics management, inventory management, and contract management. With these additional staff on board before the 2006 hurricane season begins, FEMA will be better prepared to position critical assets, as well as plan for short-term recovery operations such as debris removal and housing.

Katrina also showed us that much work remains on both the national response plan and the national incident management system. This bill includes $5 million to immediately begin a review of those two important documents.

Mr. Chairman, I am also pleased this bill includes funds for ongoing work of the Coast Guard as it relates to the war on terror and addresses an unexpected shortfall within the Secret Service based on increased protective operations driven by the latest terrorist tactics and the current threat environment.

As reported by the full committee, this bill is free of extraneous matters, and I believe it is important that we maintain that clean bill of health. I suspect there will be attempts to add additional funds to areas deemed critical such as port security, border and immigration security, nuclear non-proliferation, first responders and aviation security. I would remind my colleagues that the 2007 appropriations cycle is already upon us. I believe debate on these very important issues should be reserved and considered within the context of the regular appropriations cycle in which we are engaged even now.

I also understand there may be attempts to take funds from the Disaster Relief Fund and use them for other purposes. I would urge my colleagues to oppose those attempts.

I urge, Mr. Chairman, all of us to support this bill.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 7 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I thank my good friend the distinguished minority leader of the House Appropriations Committee.

Mr. Chairman, a lot of us on this side and virtually everyone on the other side are going to vote for this bill, but we should do so with considerable reservations.

First of all, two-thirds of it goes to fund the Iraq War; even though, after 4 years, there is still no end in sight. You wonder if this is not more good money going after bad or at least after a mission that has yet to be defined.

We will now have spent $490 billion from fiscal year 2001 through fiscal year 2007. Mr. Chairman, the cost of the entire Vietnam War, adjusted for inflation, was exactly the same cost that we have now appropriated.

Mr. Chairman, the most credible poll that was just taken showed that three-quarters of the American troops believe that we should withdraw within the year, and over half said it should be within 6 months.

Even more telling, a poll that was conducted on January 28 of this year among Iraqi citizens showed that 82 percent of Sunnis and 69 percent of Shi'a want U.S. troops withdrawn immediately. These are the people that we are trying to save for democracy, and in fact, the majority of both Shi'a and Sunnis believe that the U.S. will hurt, that is their word "hurt," Iraq over the next 5 years unless it withdraws immediately. Mr. Chairman, we need an exit strategy that is going to work and that has the support of the people we're trying to help.

Now the other reservation we have is over the way in which this money is being spent. We are told that about $3.8 billion has been used inappropriately of Iraqi reconstruction funds that we appropriated. It is unaccounted for, according to the Inspector General in Iraq. There are 50 investigations going on. A Halliburton subsidiary just acknowledged, admitted, that they overcharged the government by $63 million for a contract.

We need a Truman Committee-type investigation. It saved the American taxpayer tens of billions of dollars in the 1940's. It was rejected in the full committee, but it should be made part of this bill.

Now another major part of this bill deals with Hurricane Katrina. I was just down there in Louisiana, Mr. Chairman, on my own tab, for what it is worth what I learned about the contracting process down there is just stunning. It makes you wonder whether we should be providing any money unless we can get a handle over the way the money is spent.

Let me give you a thinly-veiled hypothetical example. One contract, for example, we give it to a prime contractor to fix roofs for $25,000 a roof. Eighty percent of it goes to a subcontractor, then 60 percent to another subcontractor, to another subcontractor, and, finally, it gets down to a company that actually puts the roof on for $1,200 a roof. You do the math, Mr. Chairman. Virtually all of the money goes to these contractors who never banged a hammer on a nail, and you know how we found out about it? Because the actual undocumented aliens who did the work contacted a FEMA person on the field, wondering how they were going to get paid. You go figure, Mr. Chairman.

Another contract went for debris removal, prime contractor, subcontractor, down again through reiterations, finally goes to the company that is already doing the very work for the City of New Orleans for a fraction of the cost but they never saw 90 percent of the money. These are things a Truman Committee could look into and fix.

Beyond the need for more oversight on the contracting process of the Federal Government, Mr. Chairman, we have some other issues that should have been part of this bill. The members of the full committee in the last omnibus appropriations conference had put the bill to bed, finished it up, when the majority leader of the Senate came over and added 45 pages providing liability exemption for drug companies.

We wanted to rectify that by striking the language we never approved. That was not done.

The third issue that we debated in full committee, and unfortunately it lost, was to give Medicare recipients an extra 7 months within which to make a decision as to whether to participate in Medicare part D. If Medicare senior citizens don't sign up by May 15, they have to then wait for another 7 months and they will pay an extra 1 percent a month. That means there will be a tax, if you will, a penalty of 7 percent for the rest of their lives applied to their insurance premiums.

It is too confusing a program. They need more time to decide. We ought to give them another 7-month extension so that they can make that decision by the end of this calendar year. If we don't ten million seniors will pay this penalty for the rest of their lives.

Mr. Chairman, there are so many other issues in this bill that we could discuss. Some of them will be discussed. But the bottom line is that it is an awful lot of money. It is the largest supplemental we have ever passed in this body. The largest appropriation as a supplemental ever considered. We have to provide it, but we ought to show more scrutiny towards the way the money is being spent.

And finally, Mr. Chairman, there is a provision here with regard to Dubai Ports World attempted purchase of American ports. I know I am in the distinct minority. It was a 62-2 vote, and I was one of the two that opposed this language. We have to identify our friends, and Dubai is our friend. The fact is that the Homeland Security Secretary said if this deal goes through it will strengthen port security, yet we ignore that information as well as the reality of the fact that Dubai is doing everything to be a bridge to the moderate Arab world. We blew up that bridge in committee, as far as I am concerned, Mr. Chairman, and I would hope we will try to rectify some of that damage.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON) having assumed the chair, Mr. GILLMOR, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER
PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to make an announcement.

After consultation with the Speaker, the majority and minority leaders, the Chair announces that during the joint meeting to hear an address by her Excellency Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, President of the Republic of Liberia, only the doors immediately opposite the Speaker and those on his right and left will be open.

No one will be allowed on the floor of the House who does not have the privilege of the floor of the House.

Due to the large attendance which is anticipated, the Chair feels the rule regarding the privilege of the floor must be strictly adhered to.

Children of Members will not be permitted on the floor, and the cooperation of all Members is requested. The practice of reserving seats prior to the joint meeting by placard will not be allowed. Members may reserve their seats by physical presence only following the security sweep of the Chamber.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of Thursday, March 9, 2006, the House stands in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 49 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

During the recess, beginning at about 1:50 p.m. the following proceedings were had:

The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps entered the Hall of the House of Representatives and took the seat reserved for him.

The Assistant to the Sergeant at Arms announced the Cabinet of the President of the United States.

The Members of the Cabinet of the President of the United States entered the Hall of the House of Representatives and took the seats reserved for them in front of the Speaker's rostrum.

At 2 o'clock and 6 minutes p.m., the Assistant to the Sergeant at Arms announced the President of Liberia, Her Excellency Ellen Johnson Sirleaf.

The President of Liberia, escorted by the committee of Senators and Representatives, entered the Hall of the House of Representatives and stood at the Clerk's desk.

[Applause, the Members rising.]

The SPEAKER. Members of the Congress, it is my great privilege and I deem it a high honor and a personal pleasure to present to you Her Excellency Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, President of the Republic of Liberia.

[Applause, the Members rising.]

ADDRESS BY HER EXCELLENCY
ELLEN JOHNSON SIRLEAF, PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF LIBERIA

President JOHNSON SIRLEAF. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Vice President, Members of the United States Congress, and distinguished guests, I am deeply touched by the honor bestowed on my small but proud West African Republic of Liberia and on myself by inviting me to address this body of representatives of the people of the great United States of America. By this invitation, you have paid one of the greatest tributes there is to all those who laid down their lives for my country to be free and democratic. I can only say a big thank you.

The people of Liberia and the people of the United States are bound together by history and by values. We share a deep and abiding belief in the power of freedom, of faith, and of finding virtue in work for the common good.

The national motto of Liberia, founded, as you know, by freed American slaves, is: "The love of liberty brought us here." We became the first independent republic in Africa. Our capital, Monrovia, is named for your President, James Monroe. Our flag is a star in a blue field and red and white stripes. Its one star makes us the "lone star state" in Africa. Our constitution and our laws were based upon yours. The U.S. dollar was long our legal tender and still is used alongside the Liberian dollar today.

But our ties greatly exceed the historical connection. I stand before you today as the first woman elected to lead an African nation, thanks to the grace of almighty God; thanks to the courage of the Liberian people, who chose their future over fear; thanks to the people of West Africa and of Africa generally, who continued to give hope to my people. Thanks also to President Bush whose strong resolve and public condemnation and appropriate action forced a tyrant into exile; and thanks to you, the Members of this august body, who spurred the international effort that brought blessed peace to our nation.

It was the leadership of the 108th Congress, more than 2 years ago, that paved the way for a United Nations force that secured our peace and guaranteed free and fair elections. It was your $445 million addition to a supplemental appropriations bill that attracted additional commitments from international donors. With those funds, we have laid the foundation for a durable peace, not only in Liberia, but in the whole West African subregion. Special appreciation goes to the 109th Congress, those of you in this room, for the effort in recent weeks to meet Liberia's developing needs.

Honorable ladies and gentlemen of this Congress, I want to thank you. The Liberian people have sent me here to thank you for your vision. Our triumph over evil is also your triumph.

Our special relationship with the United States brought us benefits long before the autumn of 2003. Thousands of our people, including myself, have been educated in American missionary schools and gone on to higher training in this country. You have generously welcomed tens of thousands of our people as they fled war and persecution.

I was among them. In 1985, after challenging the military regime's failure to register my political party, I was put in jail with several university students who also challenged military rule. This House came to our rescue with a resolution threatening to cut off aid to the country unless all political prisoners were freed. Months later, I was put in jail again, this time in a cell with 15 men. All of them were executed a few hours later. Only the intervention of a single soldier spared me from rape. Through the grace of almighty God and the mercy of others, I escaped and found refuge here, in Washington, D.C.

But long before that, our country and I benefited from Liberia's special relationship with the United States. My family exemplifies the economic and social divide that has torn our nation. Unlike many privileged Liberians, I can claim no American lineage. Three of my grandparents were indigenous Liberians; the fourth was a German who married a rural market woman. That grandfather was forced to leave the country when Liberia, in loyalty to the United States, declared war on Germany in 1914.

Both of my grandmothers were farmers and village traders. They could not read or write any language, as more than three-quarters of our people still cannot today; but they worked hard, they loved their country, they loved their families, and they believed in education. They inspired me then, and their memory motivates me now to serve my people, to sacrifice for the world and honestly serve humanity. I could not, I will not, I cannot betray their trust.

My parents were sent at a young age to Monrovia, where it was common for elite families to take in children from the countryside to perform domestic chores. They endured humiliations and indignities, but my mother was fortunate to be adopted by a kind woman, and both my parents were able through this system to go to school, a rarity at that time for poor people. My father even became the first native Liberian in the Liberian national legislature.

I was not born with the expectation of a university education from Harvard or being a World Bank officer or an Assistant Secretary-General of the United Nations. When I was a small girl in the countryside, swimming and fishing with twine made from palm trees, no one would have picked me out as the future president of our country.

I graduated from the College of West Africa, a United Methodist high school. I waited tables to support my studies in the United States, college in Wisconsin and graduate school in Massachusetts. I went on to enjoy the benefits and advantages of a world-class education.

So my feet are in two worlds, the world of poor rural women with no respite from hardship, and the world of accomplished Liberian professionals, for whom the United States is a second and beloved home. I draw strength from both.

But most of our people have not been as fortunate as I was. Always poor and underdeveloped, Liberia is only now emerging from two decades of turmoil that destroyed everything we managed to build in a century and a half of independence. The costs of our conflict run wide and deep, manifested in varied ways: mismanagement, corruption, bad governance, massive looting of public treasury and assets. Unlike the tsunami in Asia and Katrina here in your own country, where the destruction and human casualty were caused by nature, we participated in or stood silently by in our own self-destruction. Our country agonized with your citizens and the victims and families of these natural tragedies and our country also agonized with itself over the effects of a senseless civil war.

In the campaign months, I traveled to every corner of our country. I trudged through mud in high boots, where roads did not exist or had deteriorated past repair. I surveyed ruined hospitals and collapsed clinics. I held meetings by candlelight, because there is no electricity anywhere, including the capital, except from private generators. I was forced to drink water from creeks and unsanitized wells, all of which made me vulnerable to the diseases from which so many of my people die daily.

I came face to face with the human devastation of war, which killed a quarter of a million of our 3 million people and displaced most of the rest. Hundreds of thousands escaped across borders. More, who could not, fled into the bush, constantly running from one militia or another, often surviving by eating rodents and wild plants that made them sick and even killed them.

Our precious children died of malaria, parasites and malnourishments.

Our boys, full of potential, were forced to be child soldiers, to kill or be killed. Our girls, capable of being anything they could imagine, were made into sex slaves, gang-raped by men with guns, made mothers while they still were children themselves.

But listening to the hopes and dreams of our people, I recall the words of a Mozambican poet who said, "Our dream has the size of freedom." My people, like your people, believe deeply in freedom; and in their dreams, they reach for the heavens.

I represent those dreams. I represent their hope and their aspirations. I ran for President because I am determined to see good governance in Liberia in my lifetime. But I also ran because I am the mother of four, and I wanted to see our children smile and play again.

Already, I am seeing those smiles. For even after everything they have endured, the people of Liberia have faith in new beginnings. They are counting on me and my administration to create the conditions that will guarantee the realization of their dreams. We must not betray their trust. All the children I meet, when I ask what they want most, say, "I want to learn." "I want to go to school." "I want an education." We must not betray their trust.

Young adults, who have been called our lost generation, do not consider themselves lost. They, too, aspire to learn and to serve their families and their communities. We must not betray their trust.

Women, my strong constituency, tell me that they want the same chances that men have. They want to be literate. They want their work recognized. They want protection against rape. They want clean water that won't sicken and kill their children. We must not betray their trust.

Former soldiers tell me they are tired of war. They do not want to have to fight or run again. They want training. They want jobs. If they carry guns, they want to do so in defense of peace and security, not war and pillage. We must not betray their trust.

Entrepreneurs who have returned from abroad with all their resources, risking everything to invest in their country's future, tell me they want a fair and transparent regulatory environment. They want honesty and accountability from their government. We must not betray their trust.

Farming families who fled the fighting for shelter in neighboring countries or found themselves displaced from their communities want a fresh start. They want to return home. They want seeds. They want farm implements. They want roads to get their goods to market. We must not betray their trust.

I have many promises to keep. As I won elections through a free and peaceful process, I must preserve freedom and keep the peace. As I campaigned against corruption, I must lead a government that curbs it. As I was elected with the massive vote of women, I must assure that their needs are met.

We are not oblivious to the enormity of the challenges we face. Few countries have been as decimated as ours. In the chaos of war, our HIV rates have quadrupled. Our children are still dying of curable diseases, tuberculosis, dysentery, measles, and malaria. Schools lack books, equipment, teachers, and buildings. The telecommunications age has passed us by. We have a $3.5 billion external debt, lent in large measure to some of my predecessors who were known to be irresponsible, unaccountable, unrepresentative, and corrupt. The reality that we have lost our international creditworthiness bars us from further loans, although now we would use them wisely.

Our abundant natural resources have been diverted by criminal conspiracies for private gain. International sanctions, imposed for the best of reasons, still prevent us from exporting our raw materials. Roads have disappeared and bridges have been bombed or washed away. We know that trouble could once again breed outside our borders. The physical and spiritual scars of war are deep indeed.

So with everything to be done, what must we do first? We must do everything we can to consolidate the peace that so much was paid to secure, and we must work to heal the wounds of war. We must create an emergency public works program to put the whole nation to work and give families an income through the rebuilding of critical infrastructure, strengthening security and attracting investment. We must rehabilitate the core of an electricity grid to high-priority areas and institutions and visibly demonstrate to the people that government can provide necessary services.

We must bring home more of our refugees and resettle the displaced. We must give them the tools to start anew, and encourage more of our skilled expatriates, who have the knowledge and the experience to build our economy, to return home. For those unable to come home, we must appeal to you to grant them continuing protective status, and residency where appropriate, to put them in a condition to contribute to their country's reform and development.

We must complete the demobilization of former combatants and restructure our army, police and security services. We must create legal systems that preserve the rule of law, applied to all without fear or favor.

We must revive educational facilities, including our few universities. We must provide essential agricultural extension services to help us feed ourselves again, developing the science and technology skills to ensure that we prosper in a modern global economy. We must create an efficient and transparent tax system to ensure the flow of government revenues and create a hospitable investment climate.

With few resources beyond the will of my people, I want you to know, we have made a strong beginning. During my first few weeks in office, by curbing corruption we have increased government revenue by 21 percent. We have canceled noncompliant forestry concessions and fraudulent contracts; required senior government appointees to declare financial assets; implemented cash management practices to ensure fiscal discipline and sharpen efficiency; met the basic requirements for eligibility under the U.S. general system of preferences and initial Ex-Im Bank support; restored good relationships with bilateral and multilateral partners; commenced the process leading to an IMF-supported staff monitoring program; accelerated implementation of the Governance Economic Management Plan, the GMAP; and launched a Truth and Reconciliation Commission to investigate the abuses of war.

But while we seek national unity and reconciliation, we must not sacrifice justice. I respect the lifesaving role that our West African neighbors, particularly Nigeria, played at no small cost to them in accepting to host Mr. Charles Taylor. Liberians are deeply grateful. But I say here, as I have said before, Liberia has little option but to see that justice is done in accordance with the requirements of the United Nations and the broad international community.

I know that my government must go beyond these strong beginnings, must do much more than we have done so far, and we must do it quickly. Our people's courage and patience are formidable, but their expectations are high. And their needs are urgent.

This does not mean that we want big government. We cannot afford it, and we believe that government should not attempt to do what civil society and business can do better. The people of Liberia know that government cannot save the country. Only their own strength, their determination, their creativity, resilience and their faith can do that.

But they have the right to expect the essentials that only a government can provide. They have the right to a government that is honest and that respects the sanctity of human life. They need and they deserve an economic environment in which their efforts can succeed. They need infrastructure, and they need security. Above all, they need peace.

That is the task of my administration. To meet that challenge, to do what is right, I ask for the continuing support of this Congress and the American people.

Honorable ladies and gentlemen, my appeal comes with the recognition of all that you have already done. In addition to the financial assistance to disarm our fighters and feed and house our displaced, the artful diplomacy of the United States was central to ending our long conflict. We thank you with all our hearts.

As small and impoverished as we are, we cherish the friendship we have had with you. During the Second World War, we stood together, even if only symbolically, to fight Nazi expansionism and tyranny. At the request of President Roosevelt, we planted rubber trees after the Japanese seized the Indonesian supply. When U.S. law prohibited sending ships to a Europe at war, we agreed to establish a shipping registry to help transport American goods. During the Cold War, we hosted a submarine tracking center, an intelligence listening post, and one of the largest Voice of America transmitters in the world.

Again, we ask that we continue working together, but we do not ask for patronage. We do not want to continue in dependency. The benefits of your assistance must be mutual.

Honorable Members of Congress, much is at stake for all of us. Liberia at war brought misery and crimes against humanity to its neighbors, a toll that is beyond calculation. A peaceful, prosperous Liberia can contribute to democracy, stability, and development in West Africa and beyond.

Nine times—nine times—in the past 15 years, the United States has been forced to evacuate official Americans and their dependents from our country, at enormous cost to your taxpayers. Monrovia, I am told, is the most evacuated U.S. embassy in the world. I am determined that you will not need to rescue your people from our shores for a 10th time. You contribute hundreds of millions of dollars to a U.N. peacekeeping force in Liberia. A fraction of this will be required to support a peaceful and stable Liberia.

Honorable Members of this great Congress, think with me about this. What is the return on an investment that trains young combatants for life, rather than death? What is the yield when our young men can exchange their guns for jobs? What is the savings in food aid when our people can feed themselves again? What is the profit from educating our girls to be scientists and doctors? What is the dividend when our dependence ends, and we become true partners rather than supplicants?

Honorable Members, we know that there is no quick fix for the reconstruction of our country; but Liberians, young and old, share their government's commitment to work, to be honest, to unite, to reconcile, and to rebuild. A nation so well endowed, so blessed by God with natural resources should not be poor. Starting from a small base, as we do, we have rubber and timber and diamonds and gold and iron ore. Our fields are fertile. Our water supply is plentiful. Our sunshine is warm and welcoming.

With your prayers and with your help, we will demonstrate that democracy can work, even under the most challenging conditions. We will honor the suffering of our people, and Liberia will become a brilliant beacon, an example to Africa and to the world of what the love of liberty can achieve. We will strive to be America's success story in Africa, demonstrating the potential in the transformation from war to peace; demonstrating the will to join in the global fight against terrorism; demonstrating that democracy can prevail, demonstrating that prosperity can be achieved.

The people of Liberia have already rolled up their sleeves, despite overwhelming obstacles, confident that their work will be rewarded, confident in the hope and promise of the future.

The women of Liberia and the women of Africa, some in the marketplaces and some in the high levels of government, have already shared their trust and their confidence in my ability to succeed and ensure that the doors of competitive politics and professionalism will be opened even wider for them.

Honorable Members, I will succeed. I will not betray their trust. I will make them proud. I will make you proud in the difference which one woman with abiding faith in God can make.

God bless you.

[Applause, the Members rising.]

At 2 o'clock and 49 minutes p.m., Her Excellency Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, President of the Republic of Liberia, accompanied by the committee of escort, retired from the Hall of the House of Representatives.

The Assistant to the Sergeant at Arms escorted the invited guests from the Chamber in the following order:

The Members of the President's Cabinet;

The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps.

JOINT MEETING DISSOLVED

The SPEAKER. The purpose of the joint meeting having been completed, the Chair declares the joint meeting of the two Houses now dissolved.

Accordingly, at 2 o'clock and 50 minutes p.m., the joint meeting of the two Houses was dissolved.

The Members of the Senate retired to their Chamber.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 725 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4939.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Mr. BOOZMAN (Acting Chairman) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, 28½ minutes remained in general debate. The gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) has 19 minutes remaining and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has 9½ minutes remaining.

Who yields time?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE).

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I want to commend the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), the Chairman of the committee, for his work in bringing this supplemental appropriations bill to the floor. He has really done an outstanding job of, I think, balancing the different interests that are involved here.

I want to take my time, Mr. Chairman, Members, to speak a bit about that part of the bill that deals with the foreign assistance funds. That is Chapter 3 of H.R. 4939.

The Foreign Operations portion of the fiscal year 2006 supplemental is $2.08 billion. That amount is $140 million, or 6.7 percent less than the request of the administration of $2.2 billion.

Now, here is how we arrived at this lesser figure.

First, we eliminated funding requested by the President that is not for the current fiscal year. That is $74 million. We eliminated funding that was requested for non-emergency costs. That is $99 million. And we reduced costs by rescinding previously appropriated funds of $17 million that are not needed because of changed circumstances.

Let me talk for a minute about specific regions and countries. First, Iraq. The bill provides new budget authority of $1.67 billion for Iraq, or two-thirds of the amount in foreign assistance is going to Iraq. But that is a reduction of $58 million from what the President requested. This reduction represents the amount requested for fiscal year 2007 costs for the U.S. Agency for International Development. As I said a moment ago, we concluded that this 2006 supplemental bill should not be used to pre-fund expenses of the next fiscal year.

In addition, the supplemental transfers $185 million from the Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund appropriation to augment the new funds provided in this supplemental. These are still unobligated funds that are appropriately applied to the purposes of this legislation. And that brings the total available to Iraq of $1.85 billion.

Many Members are greatly concerned about Darfur and our efforts to stave off genocidal warfare in that region of Africa. Though a fraction of the amount requested for Iraq, our bill attempts to accomplish this. It contains $201 million, fully funding the President's request for Darfur programs. This includes $123 million for the African Union Mission in Sudan, or called AMIS, for peacekeeping activities. The administration has assured us that this $123 million will finance the entire U.S. fiscal year 2006 contribution.

Also included in this amount is $11.7 million for refugee assistance and $66.3 million in nonfood assistance in the International Disaster and Famine Assistance Account. The plight of displaced persons in Darfur remains critical and is pathetic.

The supplemental bill provides new budget authority of only $8.4 million for Afghanistan. This is a reduction of $54 million from the request but does not constitute a lessening of our commitment to this emerging democracy. Rather, it represents, first, the amount requested, $16 million, for fiscal year 2007 funds for USAID. It reduces that amount. Second, it eliminates the amount requested for non-emergency requirements of $38 million. The $8.4 million fully funds the request for emergency replacement of an electric turbine generator and assistance for migration and refugee requirements.

My colleagues should know that the Secretary of State has not yet met the requirements of the fiscal year 2006 Appropriations Act which requires a certification that the Government of Afghanistan is fully cooperating with U.S.-financed efforts to eradicate poppy cultivation. It did not seem prudent at this juncture to appropriate any non-emergency funds for Afghanistan until that certification can be made.

The legislation includes $10 million in the Democracy Fund appropriation for the promotion of democracy, governance, human rights, independent media and the rule of law programs in Iran. This is a reduction of $55 million from the requested amount. However, $50 million of that is for broadcasting efforts and is addressed in Chapter 6 of this bill, the jurisdiction of Mr. WOLF's subcommittee.

For Liberia, the bill includes a total of $63.8 million. $13.8 million of that amount would be used to cover the extraordinary costs of refugees returning to Liberia, and $50 million will provide assistance for economic and project support.

Now let me turn to the issues that are not specific dollar amounts. One of these is a general provision, Section 3012, not in Chapter 3 of the bill. It deals with assistance to the Palestinian Authority.

I want to be clear. This bill includes no new, no additional funding for the Palestinian territories, and the President's supplemental request included no such funding. However, the fiscal year 2006 Foreign Operations Appropriations Bill did include $150 million to support the Palestinian people and build the capacity of the Abbas-led government. Since the fiscal year 2006 bill was passed, as my colleagues know, Hamas won a majority of the Palestinian legislature in the recent elections.

The provision included in this bill before us today reconfirms and reemphasizes congressional oversight of our foreign assistance programs to this troubled region. It directs that no fiscal year 2006 or prior year funding can be used to support the Palestinian Authority or a successor entity until the government fulfills the requirements of the so-called Quartet Statement. It also suspends U.S. assistance to the Palestinian Authority until the administration completes its review of the entire assistance program.

To be clear, this provision will not halt, nor should it halt, humanitarian assistance to the Palestinian people. We can and we must hold the elected leadership in the Palestinian territories to account for their messages of violence. But we should not punish the people of the territories for asserting themselves peacefully and democratically against corruption in their quest for a better life.

I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this supplemental. The foreign operations funding contained in Chapter 3 has been scrubbed so that only emergency requirements remain, and that is $140 million reduction from the President's request.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) for the purpose of a colloquy.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, last year Hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma dealt a triple blow to the residents of my district. Florida's commercial fishermen were among the hardest hit, yet these small business owners did not receive any special disaster assistance from last year's Hurricane Supplemental Appropriations Bill and minimal aid from other Federal agencies. Both their livelihoods and the future of this important industry are threatened. That is why I am requesting the gentleman's help in securing the necessary resources to assist these hard-working men and women.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I am certainly aware of the devastating impact of last year's hurricane season, and you have my assurances that I will work with you and do everything I can to address this issue when we go to conference with the Senate on this bill.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BOUSTANY) for the purpose of a colloquy.

Mr. BOUSTANY. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate your bringing this important legislation to the floor. I will include for the RECORD a letter I recently received from several elected officials from my district which explains in great detail the devastation Hurricane Rita inflicted on Southwest Louisiana and the need for Federal support in its aftermath.

The Nation suffers from Rita amnesia, because the residents of Southwest Louisiana did everything right. We heeded the Federal warnings, evacuated before the storm, saving thousand of lives in the process. In fact, there were no deaths after Rita.

We returned after the storm and immediately got to work to begin the long process of rebuilding our communities and restoring our way of life. The FEMA Long Term Community Recovery Team has said that Southwest Louisiana is leading the State in the recovery effort.

Southwest Louisiana is not looking for a Federal handout, but we need the Nation's help to recover from this unprecedented storm. Debris removal has been slow. 5.73 million cubic yards so far has been collected, enough to cover a football field with a pile of debris 1 mile high. Homes are now destroyed or uninhabitable. And, in fact, in Cameron Parish, 90 percent of the homes were reduced to slabs of concrete. Industries are hurting. The Lake Area Industry Alliance, home to a vast petrochemical complex which serves the entire U.S., reports damages to its facilities of nearly $50 million; and that is just one example.

Mr. Chairman, we cannot ignore the plight of Southwest Louisiana, and I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation. Remember Rita. I yield back.

CITY OF LAKE CHARLES,
Lake Charles, LA, March 11, 2006.

Re Hurricane Rita recovery in southwest Louisiana.

Hon. CHARLES BOUSTANY,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN BOUSTANY: First and foremost, we from Southwest Louisiana want to thank you for your support in our efforts to recover from Hurricane Rita. You have been very vocal in your effort to help us and we sincerely appreciate it. This letter is intended to give you information to support your efforts and to remind you that we stand ready to work with you in this effort. However, it has become very evident that others in our nation's capitol have forgotten about the destruction that occurred as a result of that storm.

We are not asking them to take our word for it. Just this week Governor Rick Perry testified in Washington D.C. and according to AP wire reports he requested that Texas be given $2 billion dollars, because "states slammed by Katrina are getting more generous help than his state, which bore the brunt of Hurricane Rita." Governor Perry's significant funding request indicates his belief that Hurricane Rita was a destructive storm.

We do not intend to compete with our Texas neighbors for recovery money. We acknowledge that Hurricane Rita inflicted serious damage on Southeast Texas. But Southwest Louisiana also suffered significant devastation from this storm as well. The eye of the storm made landfall in Cameron Parish on September 24. The highly destructive northeast quadrant of the storm (with its winds and storm surge) was most destructive in Cameron Parish and in Calcasieu Parish in Louisiana. Cameron Parish as we knew it no longer exists. We, as Governor Perry, are concerned that we run the risk of being overshadowed by Hurricane Katrina when it comes time to allocate limited resources to the recovery effort.

Southwest Louisiana's elected officials, emergency responders and citizens worked hard to take the initiative to comply with evacuation orders, maintain discipline after the storm and truly prioritize our needs in a professional manner. Included below for your review is an overview of what happened in Calcasieu and Cameron Parishes during the Katrina and Rita storms. Hopefully this information will help you and your staff in your efforts to prevent Congress and the federal agencies responsible for hurricane relief from forgetting the devastation that occurred across the coastal parishes of Louisiana and in Southwest Louisiana in particular.

Hurricane Katrina also impacted Southwest Louisiana. Calcasieu Parish alone welcomed approximately 20,000 evacuees from Hurricane Katrina by opening shelters at a cost of nearly $1 million. The support of our community for the evacuees was overwhelming. Food, clothing, money and time were donated. Businesses and residents offered shelter, entertainment and support. The Lake Charles American Press described the effort as our community's finest hour. When Hurricane Rita approached our area, the first concern was to evacuate these people to safety.

When Hurricane Rita passed through Southwest Louisiana, our citizens listened to officials and heeded warnings to evacuate. Residents of Cameron and Calcasieu Parishes left the area on heavily congested roadways to the north along with residents of Texas who had already been given an order to evacuate. Gas supplies were limited and hotels to the north were full with evacuees from Hurricane Katrina, many who had evacuated a second time to escape Hurricane Rita.

Residents of Calcasieu Parish began returning to the area after the storm starting September 30, to "look and leave". They returned to find over 19,000 homes or approximately 25 percent of the housing stock was destroyed. Another 35 percent of the housing was damaged. Power was out throughout most of the area for one to three weeks causing widespread loss of water and sewer systems and shuttering industry and retail businesses. Gasoline was a rare commodity. Approximately half of the trees in Calcasieu Parish were destroyed or damaged.

Industries and public facilities were also heavily damaged. Lake Charles Regional Airport suffered over $20 million in damage including the passenger terminal, which was damaged beyond repair. The facility was closed approximately fifteen days after the storm. Chennault International Airport, home to Northrop Grumman, suffered approximately $40 million in damages and was closed for four weeks after the storm. Damages to other aviation industry businesses brought the estimated damage to our aviation industry to approximately $90 million.

The Lake Area Industry Alliance, home of a vast petrochemical complex important to the entire United States, reported damages of approximately $50 million to their members' facilities. Damage to off-shore rigs and the closure of the Port of Lake Charles (the nation's 12th largest port) caused supply disruptions to production facilities. Supply disruptions and power outages resulted in loss of production, worker layoffs and additional startup costs. Lyondell Chemical Company closed its facility, costing the community 295 well paying jobs with benefits; it will be impossible to replace this facility.

The six casinos of our gaming industry were shut down during the power outage. Harrah's two riverboat casinos and hotel were damaged beyond repair. Harrah's facility is currently closed; our community has lost 2,000 jobs as a result.

McNeese State University and Sowela Technical College sustained extensive damage. The Calcasieu Parish School System experienced heavy damage to school facilities and closure of all public schools for approximately four weeks. Damage to education facilities is estimated at $57 million.

The Calcasieu Parish Police Jury and area municipalities suffered damages to facilities of approximately $30 million. The parish wide highway system, including three movable bridges in Calcasieu Parish, required extensive debris removal and repairs to make them safe for traffic. The I-10 bridge over Lake Charles, the main east-west traffic artery through southwest Louisiana and across the southern U.S. was closed following the storm for structural inspection after a barge ran into a supporting structure. An early estimate of parish-wide highway damage is $20 million.

Cameron Parish, our sister parish to the south was totally devastated. Although there was no loss of life, Cameron suffered the loss of a way of life. Approximately 90 percent of the homes in Cameron, the Parish seat were destroyed. Other communities suffered similar or worse fates. The major industries—oil, agriculture, seafood and tourism—were destroyed. It will take years for the residents to recover. And Southwest Louisiana will never be fully recovered until Cameron is rebuilt and back "in business" again.

Cameron Parish contains four wildlife refuges, all of which sustained significant damage. The Sabine National Wildlife Refuge of 125,000 acres was officially closed after Hurricane Rita. Facilities were destroyed and the landscape was littered with debris from damaged structures, vehicles, dead animals and hazardous chemical containers. The refuge cannot reopen until the hazardous debris is removed and there is no safety risk to the public. In 2004 the economic effect of the refuge and its visitation was $9 million, supporting 108 jobs and $1 million in tax revenue. This is an average return of $10.18 for every federal dollar spent operating the refuge. Annually 300,000 people tour the Creole Nature Trail, which is designated an All-American Road. Nature trail brochures are being pulled out of circulation by bureau officials.

The Southwest Louisiana community immediately began cleaning up and repairing damages in order to begin recovery from this storm. Temporary "blue" roofs were installed on 17,104 houses and apartments. An estimated 5.73 million cubic yards of storm debris was collected, enough to cover a football field with a pile more than one half-mile high.

In addition to residents who were displaced from their homes due to damage, approximately 10,000 evacuees from other places are now residing in Calcasieu Parish. Hotel vacancy is essentially zero and there is a shortage of affordable housing for residents. Because of this housing shortage, many residents have not been able to return to the Parish. Many businesses are still unable to operate for normal business hours because of a shortage of workers. Although many minimum wage jobs are advertised and unfilled for long periods of time, unemployment in the Parish has more than tripled from 5.3 percent in 2004 to 16.2 percent in November 2005, an increase of 10.9 percent due to a number of complex reasons.

We understand the scale of the storm in Hurricane Katrina. And we understand that Southeast Texas was affected by the Hurricane Rita, but please do not penalize us for being aggressive in our efforts to help ourselves recover. It has been said by the FEMA Long Term Community Recovery Team that Southwest Louisiana is leading the state in the recovery effort. But true recovery requires more than just debris removal and new roofs. Because of the devastation caused by Hurricane Rita, we need to retool and rebuild the economy of Southwest Louisiana. We cannot depend on the existing businesses and industry to rebuild the economy of our area. We must be creative and aggressive in our efforts to both diversify and expand our economy if we are to accomplish the long term recovery goals FEMA and others have set for our area.

Hurricanes Rita and Katrina have impacted 30-40 percent of the economy of our state. It will take years to truly recover from this disaster in terms of real economic recovery. Please help us remind your colleagues that no state in the history of our great nation has ever suffered the extent of economic and social disruption that Louisiana has as a result of these two storms.

Some would say that it is this “can-do” attitude that has prevented us in Southwest Louisiana from getting national media attention. We don’t want media attention, but we do need your attention. Please assist us in getting our “fair share” of federal funding for our recovery effort. And please consider extending the GO Zone Legislation for parishes hardest hit by these storms. We need at least an additional two years to take advantage of the economic recovery offered by this bill. And when it comes to the allocation of Community Development Block Grant monies to the individual states, please include an allocation for Hurricane Rita parishes/counties as well.

Thank you again for all you have done in the recent months to focus attention on the recovery of Southwest Louisiana. If you need additional information or we can assist you in any way, please do not hesitate to contact us.

[From American Press Editorial, Mar. 10, 2006.]

HEY, CONGRESS, HOW ABOUT US?

On Wednesday, President Bush once again toured New Orleans’ areas damaged by Hurricane Katrina.

The President’s visit, his 10th, comes on the heels of another visit by a large congressional delegation to New Orleans and parts of Mississippi hit by Hurricane Katrina.

There were about 100 people in the delegation, including Speaker of the House Dennis Hastert and Minority Leader, Nancy Pelosi.

The trip was organized by Hastert’s office and the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Meanwhile, residents of Calcasieu, Cameron, and Vermilion parishes who are picking up the pieces from the devastating Hurricane Rita wonder if they are being forgotten or if anybody in Washington, D.C., cares.

We understand that the areas in New Orleans and the Mississippi Coast are hurting, but so are Southwest Louisiana and Southeast Texas.

It’s an insult to Southwest Louisiana residents that more than five months after Hurricane Rita struck here they are still waiting for members of Congress to come and see the devastation Rita wrought.

Members of Congress need to talk to Cameron Parish residents who have seen their entire way of life blown away by Rita.

Why do Louisiana Gov. Kathleen Blanco and Texas Gov. Rick Perry have to go to Washington to beg Congress to send more funds for Hurricane Rita relief?

All of this is a stark reminder about how Congress is out-of-touch with what needs to be done to help Southwest Louisiana and Southeast Texas get back on track.

Louisiana Seventh District U.S. Rep. Charles Boustany Jr. is aware of the problem with Rita amnesia in Washington. He sent a letter to Hastert and Pelosi when he learned about the congressional visit to New Orleans and Mississippi, urging them to include Southwest, Louisiana in their fact-finding tour.

Hastert responded in a March 1 letter that he considered including a tour of Southwest Louisiana in their recent visit, but it was not possible.

“Unfortunately, logistics and time constraints made it impractical to tour the parts of Louisiana impacted by Hurricane Rita during this trip,” Hastert wrote.

He added that he wants to arrange a “future visit” so he can “personally come down to Southwest Louisiana.”

Time’s a-wastin’, Mr. Speaker.

A number of congressional delegations have visited Louisiana and Mississippi in months past. Why didn’t any come to this part of the state? Why does Boustany have to beg members of Congress to come here? Why haven’t U.S. Sens. Mary Landrieu and David Vitter come here with a delegation of their Capitol Hill colleagues in tow to see Southwest Louisiana?

Landrieu of New Orleans and Vitter of Metairie have been on the forefront in getting assistance for Katrina-ravaged areas.

They represent this part of the state, too. Vitter recently asked Don Powell, the federal recovery and rebuilding coordinator, to tour storm-damaged areas in Southwest Louisiana.

It’s the members of Congress, not Powell, who will approve the relief funds this area so desperately needs.

Landrieu and Vitter need to help bring a large congressional delegation here to Southwest Louisiana. The sooner the better.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I fully support the funding for our troops in this Emergency Supplemental; the men and women serving our country in Iraq and Afghanistan must have equipment to effectively fight insurgents, and the harsh environment has taken its toll on everything from helicopters to tanks to armored vehicles.

I am concerned however that we are not addressing the impact of lost equipment and vehicles when our National Guard and Reserve units are forced to leave their equipment in Iraq.

Some reports state that Guard and Reserve units in the U.S. are only equipped at 30 percent of pre-war levels. The FY06 Defense Appropriations bill included $1 billion for reequipping units here at home, but the Guard needs $20 billion to address the shortage.

Money is tight in times of war, but national security is hollow if we leave our homeland unprotected to fight wars overseas. If we are going to increase the Federal debt limit yet again—by nearly $800 billion this time—and extend tax cuts, we should also equip the men and women who protect the homeland from terrorist attacks and natural disasters.

This is extremely important for constituents in the district I represent. In 2001, Tropical Storm Allison, just weeks into the hurricane season, flooded tens of thousands of homes and businesses in southeast Texas. The Guard was a critical part of the rescue and recovery effort, using its large trucks and equipment to reach individuals stranded by the high water. During Katrina and Rita, the Guard again played a major role in rescue and recovery efforts after a natural disaster.

With the start of hurricane season on June 1st—less than 3 months away—we must ensure Guard units along the gulf coast have the equipment they need to save lives.

I also want to talk about housing for Katrina and Rita evacuees. We have 100,000 evacuees in the city of Houston’s emergency housing program, but frankly FEMA and HUD have been very difficult to work with.

FEMA told the city to sign 1-year leases for evacuees and promised in writing to reimburse Houston. First, these reimbursements have been extremely slow, and the our cities and apartments are becoming the bank for FEMA.

I met with Houston apartment owners that have not been paid rent for 90 days—I could not get away with that in my apartment in D.C., but FEMA gets away with it.

Second, these commitments are not being honored. Instead, they are going to pull the rug out from under probably 30,000 of these evacuees that FEMA says won’t qualify for housing help after March 31.

In the coming weeks, 30,000 evacuees in Houston are going to get a letter giving them 30-days notice before eviction, even if they have a 1-year lease that FEMA promised to reimburse back in September. Many of these evacuees are schoolchildren.

FEMA has no plan for where the folks that they decide no longer qualify for housing assistance are going to find housing or where they are going to go. Rental rates are going to go up due to the influx of evacuees. Houston’s section 8 housing program is full.

Some 30,000 Americans should not end up on the streets of Houston and America should not stand for it. FEMA made commitments to 1-year leases and they are not abiding by their written commitments.

Mr. Chairman, I fully support the hurricane relief funding in this bill and the funding for the men and women in Iraq and Afghanistan, but I believe that there is a tremendous amount of work yet to be done.

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the amendments by my colleagues in Texas, Mr. HINOJOSA and Mr. DOGGETT; our levee system in south Texas has long passed the point of insufficient—we are in an emergency situation.

The Lower Rio Grande Flood Control Project has several components, including the levee system along the Rio Grande, which is in a state of disrepair. This amendment provides $10 million for IBWC; it has no effect on budget authority; and it reduces outlays by $2 million for FY 2006.

The integrity of the 500-mile levee system is the responsibility of the Army Corp of Engineers and the International Boundary and Water Commission. The IBWC has not received any consistent Federal funding necessary to rehabilitate this critical levee system.

An indirect impact from Hurricane Emily last September brought water levels along the south border to critical levels that we have not seen in decades.

It was Hurricane Katrina that gave each American a tutorial on the utter importance of levees when it comes to protecting U.S. lives and property.

In the two major storms that blew ashore last fall, Katrina gave us a glimpse of the damage possible if these levees are not repaired and Emily that made us hold our collective breath as the waters rose near the top of the levee system.

Like New Orleans, the population protected by these levees is enormous. South Texas is a densely populated area, and is the front door of international trade. Millions of lives and the Nation's economy could hang in the balance when these levees fail. Evaluations of the present condition of these levees conclude the system is deficient in both hydraulic capacity and structural integrity.

The investment we ask to include today as part of this emergency supplemental is a small price to pay to ensure the integrity of these levees when we have the next major hurricane. Hurricane season is rapidly approaching, and this is the last opportunity to fix the levee system before hurricanes start blowing into the gulf. Let us not be penny wise and pound foolish about the dangers that await us, as we were with the New Orleans levees.

We know the damage that can happen and we know it will only come at a profoundly bad time, as millions of residents are trying to flee the coast and the U.S. economy takes a multi-billion dollar hit.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this legislation, which makes "emergencies" out of non-emergencies and fails to provide assistance to my home State of Texas, which did suffer an emergency in the form of Hurricane Rita last summer.

First, I should note to my colleagues and the American taxpayer that, at almost $92 billion, this is the largest supplemental appropriations request in the history of the U.S. Congress.

Is it really an emergency to send $1.2 billion to pay off our allies for their help in Afghanistan? Won't these countries in close proximity presumably benefit more than even we will from the stability that we are told U.S. troops will provide? Perhaps these countries should be paying us for stabilizing their neighborhood. But no, it is always the U.S. taxpayer who ends up paying.

Is $36 million more for taxpayer-funded broadcasting programs overseas really an emergency?

Is $30 million to build roads in Liberia an emergency, when roads in Texas are still unrepaired after Hurricane Rita?

Mr. Chairman, I am offering an amendment to this "emergency" supplemental that reduces some of the non-emergency "emergencies" by $500 million and allocates that money for the recovery of the State of Texas from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. Additionally, my amendment will take another half-billion dollars from the non-emergency portions of this bill and apply it toward the Federal deficit.

The real emergency is the rate that this government is spending money we do not have on policies that we cannot afford while ignoring what should be our real priorities.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Chairman, there are important provisions in the supplemental appropriations that I support. Funding for upgraded military vehicles and tanks in Iraq will help protect troops and the National Guard. There is funding for programs such as Community Development Block Grants which will help in the recovery from Hurricane Katrina along the Gulf Coast and in New Orleans. I'm proud to have helped lead Congressional efforts requesting the administration to include funding for peacekeeping in Darfur. This supplemental includes $253 million for these efforts in Sudan.

However, I cannot support this bill collectively and as a supplemental that is outside of the regular order of the budget process. It is time we take the budget process seriously and get our spending priorities in order.

This is the largest supplemental appropriations measure ever considered by the House of Representatives at nearly $92 billion. The bulk of this spending, $68 billion, is for military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. These efforts have now been ongoing for years and I will not support the administration's and Republican leadership's attempts to camouflage hundreds of billions of dollars by handling it through supplemental bills, which are for unexpected or emergency items. Most of this spending is neither unexpected nor emergency in nature.

The administration is asking Congress to raise the debt ceiling another $781 billion on top of the current $8.2 trillion limit and the House refuses to have a separate vote accepting responsibility to pay for its reckless fiscal policies. This supplemental spending bill is a symbol for an administration and Congress that refuse to take our fiscal situation seriously.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, we should be cutting off funds for the War in Iraq, not adding more dollars. The billions of dollars already appropriated are enough to sustain our troops until the kind of orderly withdrawal proposed by Representative JOHN MURTHA is implemented. It is long past time to withdraw from a war that is sucking us deeper everyday into a bottomless quicksand pit of filth. To wage this war this administration is trampling on vital political rights and abandoning basic moral values. To pay for this war we are cutting aid to public housing; aid to Medicaid and Medicare; Pell grants; aid to public education; and numerous other programs which support the general welfare of all Americans.

Deeply destructive public policies and practices have become routine in this administration as every conceivable trick is used to rationalize the war. To save the nation we must withdraw from Iraq and JOHN MURTHA has offered the most practical scenario for achieving this goal. At the heart of the Murtha proposal is the recommendation of an orderly withdrawal over a six-month period. Murtha offers an honorable way out of a quicksand pit of filth. JOHN MURTHA speaks with the voice of a soldier. He thinks with the mind of a patriot. And JOHN MURTHA feels with the heart of a grieving mother.

Very definitive polls now communicate to all leaders the American people's overwhelming disapproval of the President and his War in Iraq. Our constituents endorse and support the position of JOHN MURTHA. History will certainly illuminate and validate the courage and wisdom of JOHN MURTHA. But Members of Congress should not wait for history. We Members of Congress have a duty to make history, to guide the nation out of this peril and back to the path of progress and prosperity. There are two classes of leaders who support this administration's War in Iraq: Those who consistently vote for the war and the endless appropriations. And those leaders whose levels of concern are so low that they refuse, despite the objections of their constituents, to even take the very moderate action of becoming a co-sponsor of Murtha's well-reasoned proposal for withdrawal. Censure or impeachment proceedings may be necessary in the future. But at this immediate moment the opportunity to salvage this deteriorating situation is clearly present in the Murtha proposal. Members should co-sponsor Murtha now and let their constituents know that their voices have been heard.

Vote first against this wasteful, destructive, appropriation for Iraq. And then sign on as a Murtha co-sponsor.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BOOZMAN). All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule. When the reading for amendment reaches title II, that title shall be considered read.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the following amendments may be offered at any point in the reading:

An amendment by Mr. GILCHREST, regarding section 3011;

An amendment by Mr. SABO, regarding the Defense Production Act.

Each amendment may be offered only by the Member named in the request or a designee, shall be considered read, shall not be subject to amendment except that the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations each may offer one pro forma amendment for the purpose of debate; shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question; and shall be debatable for 20 minutes, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent.

During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment that he has printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 4939

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, namely:

TITLE I—GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR
SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS
CHAPTER 1

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL SERVICE
PUBLIC LAW 480 TITLE II GRANTS

For an additional expenses for "Public Law 480 Title II Grants", during the current fiscal year, not otherwise recoverable, and unrecovered prior years' costs, including interest thereon, under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, for commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad under title II of said Act, $350,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GILCHREST

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GILCHREST.
Strike section 3011.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House today, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, there has been a great deal of dialogue in the last few weeks about this issue of Dubai Ports World controlling U.S. ports. What I would like to do with this amendment, Mr. Chairman, is to explain what the Dubai Ports World issue is, and in the process, hope my colleagues will vote in favor of this amendment which strikes the section of the supplemental appropriations bill, the section 3011.

I would at first like to give some frame of reference as to what it means to be the Dubai Ports World, which basically has purchased P&O, a British firm, that works with scheduling for the loading and unloading of cargo at our Nation's ports.

The Baltimore Sun, which is a newspaper in Maryland that represents the Port of Baltimore, one of the largest ports in the United States, says the following: "Potentially lost in this uproar is a clear understanding of what a stevedore company does." Stevedore, that is what the Dubai Ports World is going to do. They are going to employ stevedores.

For the record, its employees, of Dubai Ports World, do not touch any cargo. No employee of the Dubai Ports World touches cargo. They are not in charge of port security. They do not oversee shipping manifests. That means they don't know what is in the containers. Stevedores, which is what the Dubai Ports World is going to be, are the middle managers who tell longshoremen, who are Americans, who are employed by the ports, who are employed by the State and local governments that control the ports, the longshoremen are the ones that load and unload the cargo.

Dubai Ports World will be able to tell them when that ship is going to dock and how to unload it. USA Today, many foreign companies, including one from Singapore, China and Taiwan, are doing business today at U.S. ports, leasing some terminals, to schedule the loading and unloading.

General Tommy Franks, this is what General Tommy Franks says about this particular issue: I personally believe that we have no greater ally in seeking a resolution of problems in the Middle East, the Palestinian issue, the Israeli issue, than we have found in the United Arab Emirates.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, this quote, and there are quotes from every major newspaper in this country, this is a quote from The New York Times: "Dubai is not a democracy, and it is not without its warts. But Dubai is a bridge of decency that leads away from the failing civilization to a much more optimistic, open and self-confident society. Dubaians are building a future based on butter, not guns; private property, not caprice; services more than oil and globally competitive companies, not terror networks. Dubai is about nurturing Arab dignity through success, not suicide. As a result, its people want to embrace the future, not blow it up."

Dubai, the United Arab Emirates. We have a difficult, nearly impossible situation in Iraq, difficulties in the Arab world. Who do we need most to bridge the gap of the lack of knowledge? Who do we need most in the Arab world to connect and bridge that gap between the United States and that culture? It is the United Arab Emirates.

It is time for us to recognize that this is an ally that we need to integrate with the United States as far as global issues and global terror issues are concerned.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BOOZMAN). The gentleman is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield half that time to my colleague from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from Wisconsin will control 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, this has been a very frustrating day. I can remember when this place used to be a legislative body. Now it has unfortunately become 99 percent a political institution, and even the politics of the institution doesn't seem to be working out too well on either side of the aisle.

What we have before us now is a holy picture debate. This is a Potemkin amendment. It is a Potemkin debate, and it is another example of how Congress has been reduced to dealing in symbols rather than dealing with substance.

We have had this country in a frenzy about the Dubai involvement in American ports over the past couple of weeks. The Appropriations Committee had a vote, and by vote of 62 to 2, the committee adopted an amendment by the distinguished chairman of the committee, Mr. LEWIS, which shut off the ability of the Dubai company to make their purchase of American port facilities.

We tried, in the committee, to make that action more rational by also establishing a process under which we would have a regularized notice to our government every time such a transaction is being proposed. The committee saw fit to turn that down.

We are now out on the floor. What is going on now is that there is such a frenzy to have every single member of the House also on record on this issue, that we now have a faux debate going on. As I read this, the only purpose of this debate today is to allow every Member of the House to cast a vote. It is what I call a holy picture vote, and it means that when the votes come, this amendment is going to be overwhelmingly defeated.

The only purposes I see that will have been accomplished by taking this time, is that Members will then have a vote in their pocket that they can take home and brag to people about. I admire the gentleman from Maryland and his willingness to be a sacrificial lamb on the amendment. I know that one or two people on this side of the aisle, such as Mr. MORAN, share his view, and I admire them for their courage.

I have to say that I really am frustrated to see on this, and a number of other amendments today and tomorrow, this House is going to deal with these issues in a symbolic manner rather than discussing it in a thorough, systematic way that might bring some additional credit to the House.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I don't feel like I am a sacrificial lamb, and I am not doing this for any other purpose other than to give our strongest ally in the Middle East, the United Arab Emirates, the dignity that they deserve. There are Americans that feel they can do this in a most positive fashion.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I thank my good friend from Maryland.

Mr. Chairman, I have no illusions about the results of this vote. It is going to be pretty much proportionate to the 62-2 vote that we took in the full Appropriations Committee, Mr. KOLBE and I being in the minority. But I want to share with my colleagues why this is the wrong thing to be doing.

The fact is that Dubai is our natural bridge to the modern, peaceful and progressive Arab world, and, with this amendment, instead of crossing that bridge, we blow it up.

The fact is that we currently have over 600 ships that are using Dubai, U.S. naval vessels. We have more than 77,000 military personnel who take leave in Dubai, and we have never had a security incident. In fact, more U.S. military personnel take liberty, port leave, in other words, in the United Arab Emirates today than in any other place in the entire world.

The UAE wants to be our friend. They want to invest some of those petro-dollars back in the United States. They want to modernize. They want, in fact, to trade with Israel. They want to trade with Europe. They want to trade with the United States. They are under a lot of political pressure, but, in fact, the emirs are standing up to that pressure.

Couldn't we be expected to do the same? Are we going to yield to the fear and the prejudice that I think motivates this amendment? Because it is not reasoned judgment. In fact, the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States was to be conducting a 45-day thorough investigation. Then we would be able to make an informed decision. At the end of that investigation they were going to make recommendations.

But the reality is there aren't a whole lot of things that need to be changed with this transaction. It is a financial transaction. U.S. longshoremen still handle the cargo. The U.S. Coast Guard provides physical security. The Customs Service inspects the cargo.

In fact, it was the UAE who was first, right away, to sign the U.S. Container Security Initiative. We asked them to. They are doing everything. And, my friends, the Director of the Department of Homeland Security, Secretary Chertoff, said if this deal goes through, it will make our ports more secure, not less.

Listen to the experts.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I am doing this in no small part because I have been looking for an accurate description of "holy pictures" for some time now since I have been dealing with my friend from Wisconsin, and in this process we are going through today, I think I may have found at least one snapshot.

What we have done in this bill is attempt to respond to a very serious concern on the part of the American public regarding having a country or an organization that is related to a country in the Middle East having authority or control over any of our ports in this country. It is viewed by many as a serious national security issue, and this is a national security bill.

Our goal is to make certain that we have thought through this Dubai Ports World deal very carefully before moving forward. The language is to stop that deal. It is rather straightforward. The 62-2 vote in the committee indicates the broad cross-section of public reaction reflected in the membership to going forward without some action on the part of the committee, and thus this language in the bill. It is rather straightforward.

I welcome this discussion today, and intend to be as helpful as I can to those opposing our language.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE).

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Let me paraphrase the words that Mr. OBEY said a few minutes ago. Rather than holy pictures, I would say this provision of the bill is a little bit like sprinkling holy water over the issue. It has no effect.

Dubai has already announced that they are going to sell their interests. The deal already went through. There is no effect of this provision in actually blocking the sale. This is making everybody feel good, that they can thump their chest and say we are doing something really tough here.

There are three good arguments, Mr. Chairman, as to why we should not be doing this.

First, it diverts our attention from the real issue. The real issue, is we don't have good port security.

In fact, our port security is terrible. It is very poor. This diverts us from really dealing with the issue that we do not inspect more than 2 percent of all containers. We do not really have a system for tracking containers and we do not know the origin of these containers. Containers start in one place in Malaysia and go to Singapore and then go to Vancouver, and then by train to Chicago. We have no idea where it originated and what might have been put into the container.

We do not have the information. We have had port security. And Congress has a responsibility for the oversight and to make sure that the Department of Homeland Security is doing the job it should be doing.

This diverts our attention from this issue and, allows everybody to feel good about what they are doing. It has no effect, none, on port security, or on the security of the United States.

The second reason why this is bad, it is damaging, as has been indicated by the gentleman from Virginia, it is damaging to our relationship with the United Arab Emirates.

The United Arab Emirates, Dubai, is the largest port in the world outside of the United States for U.S. warships. This last year 56 warships docked in the United Arab Emirates, Dubai, the same port that is managed by this company, and 590 supply vessels. All supplies that go to Iraq go through this port.

Now we are inviting trouble. If Dubai decides that they want to retaliate against the United States, we will be up a creek without a paddle when it comes to getting our supplies into Iraq.

And then, the third reason, it sends the wrong signal to investors around the world. It says to investors around the world that we are not really a reliable trading partner or a reliable investment partner. It says to them, that, the United States has rules that they are supposed to follow, and then they throw them overboard.

This has been confirmed to me in at least one email that I have received from somebody who is an investor in Singapore. It said that many of his clients are reconsidering some of their investments in the United States, investments that create jobs for American workers in this country, because we do not have a reliable policy.

This is good politics but bad policy, and this provision should be removed from the bill.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my support for H.R. 4939. I will be supporting the Supplemental Appropriations Act so our Armed Forces who are so bravely working to rebuild Iraq and fight the global war on terror have all of the tools and equipment they need to be successful.

My support comes, however, with a great deal of consternation. Because in this voting for this legislation I will also be forced to support unrelated spending for the rebuilding of the gulf coast.

Let me be clear. I believe that we need to help those devastated by Katrina. I have been there twice. But we must do it in a responsible manner with a clear understanding of where and how the money is spent.

It is clear that we must sustain military operations and reconstruction efforts in Iraq and Afghanistan, continuing making progress and tracking down and bringing terrorists to justice and procure the necessary equipment for our troops to carry out their mission.

It is unclear to me, however, why we must couple this funding with gulf coast relief funds. Both are worthy causes, but in my view the spending for the latter is in desperate need for further oversight and explanation.

For instance, we should be taking a closer look at the $9.6 billion included for FEMA's problematic Disaster Relief Fund and the $4.2 billion included for community development block grants, which are not even required to go to the gulf coast areas. These funds should not be incorporated into a bill with those for our military force protection needs, including up-armored Humvees, Abram tanks, Bradley fighting vehicles.

Congress has already allocated $62.3 billion to hurricane relief and recovery. I believe that it is Congress' responsibility to demand a strict accounting of how these dollars are spent, and any further funds allocated to the gulf coast for hurricane relief should be offset with other savings.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GINGREY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. We are on the amendment dealing with the Dubai Ports. Does the gentleman know that?

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Chairman, I did not know that. I apologize.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I thought that is why you were asking to speak. But that is okay. Just go right ahead.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Chairman, I will go ahead and complete. I do apologize for that. I was not aware of that.

But I think it is important, in conclusion, that we work toward rebuilding and restoring normalcy for those who are affected by Katrina. However, we should do so in a stand-alone bill to ensure that we have proper oversight.

Mr. GILCREST. Mr. Chairman, this is what I would like to conclude with. Dubai Ports World will have no administrative authority over any ports. They will have no security responsibility over any ports in the United States. That is retained by the Federal and State governments, completely.

All the longshoremen will still be American longshoremen that load and unload these ships. The Dubai Ports World is an organization made up of American investors, and chief executive officers of the United States are officers in this Dubai Ports World organization. They are a strong ally. Let this vote signal dignity and worth to the United Arab Emirates. I urge my colleagues to vote for the motion to strike.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I will use just a few seconds to close.

We oppose this amendment for security purposes. This language should remain in the bill to make certain that Dubai Ports World does not have any management control or authority over any of our major ports.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Chairman, while I understand the sentiments and the security concerns of the Members here today on this ports issue, I feel strongly that free trade is a core American value that is worth fighting for. I look forward to making the case for free trade and for economic engagement with our moderate Arab allies here today.

But first, let's consider what we are and are not voting on today. The U.S. Congress cannot stop this sale, as this provision would seek to do. We simply do not have jurisdiction beyond our shores. In fact, the sale has already happened and the shareholders will be paid over the next couple of weeks. While I appreciate the desire of Members to stop the sale, the fact is that this language does nothing of the sort.

I'm not sure what the goal is. The language certainly does not stop the purchase by Dubai Ports World, and—even more important—does nothing to improve the security of our ports. I would argue that this provision does not improve our security but will damage us economically, militarily, and diplomatically.

It seems as if we are operating in a fact-free zone here.

The facts are that companies based in many other countries are already managing most of the Nation's ports. Will we be seeking to overturn these contracts next?

The fact is that no American company chose to bid on Peninsular and Oriental. There is only one American company large enough to take on this kind of contract, and my understanding is that firm is already at capacity. Would we simply wish an American ports management company into creation?

Let's talk a little about port security. We know that no matter who manages port operations, the U.S. Coast Guard, the U.S. Customs Service, and U.S. longshoremen continue to be responsible for port security, the checking of cargo, and the handling of cargo.

Stephen Flynn of the Council on Foreign Relations testified before Congress: "We need to know what's in the box more than we need to know who is moving them around a container yard."

So if our concern truly is port security, why are we not focusing on supporting that overall effort?

The fact is that Dubai Ports World is of course involved with the Jebel Ali port, one of the largest and among the most advanced ports in the world. According to The New York Times, it is the world's 11th largest port and annually handles more than 7.5 million containers, many of them going directly to and from the United States. On a number of issues, they have cooperated with the U.S. government to allow for our inspections.

Robert C. Bonner, formerly with Customs, was quoted in The New York Times: "Dubai has acknowledged the absolute importance of securing cargo against terrorists."

On cargo security, we ought to be concerned about what's being unloaded in foreign ports just as much as we are concerned about what's being offloaded on our shores. Once a dangerous ship arrives, it's far too late for concern.

So if we trust Dubai Ports World on the first crucial half of a cargo transaction—the loading—why would we not trust the company to be involved in U.S. cargo operations in a strictly management capacity?

Nonetheless, the company has moved forward to sell the operations to a U.S. buyer. DPW announced yesterday it has retained credible, well-known legal and financial firms to handle this transaction. The company has agreed to abide by a voluntary commitment to hold U.S. ports separate until the sale is complete.

And still, it seems that it's not enough. I would ask: What more would we have DPW do? When will this be dead enough to satisfy the U.S. Congress?

The action, I am sad to say, sends exactly the wrong message to the world about the climate for international businesses in the United States. It sends the wrong message about our willingness to engage in transactions that create growth and jobs here at home. It tells the world that we are an unreliable trading partner.

While we are sometimes obsessed with the so-called "outsourcing" of American jobs abroad, why are we not similarly concerned about our ability to "insource" jobs through foreign direct investment?

Moving to the military aspect of our relationship with Dubai, today we may blatantly insult a moderate Arab ally that has generously allowed the use of its port and airfield facilities for our military. General Peter Pace, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has called the U.S. military relationship with the UAE "superb." Dubai provides servicing and port security that is good enough for the U.S. Navy.

I worry how that relationship will proceed in the future, and I believe that this entire affair will end up as diplomatic disaster for the United States throughout the moderate Middle East.

Lawrence Lindsey recently wrote in The Wall Street Journal: "The UAE isn't any old Arab country. It sits astride the Strait of Hormuz through which a fifth of world oil passes. Iran sits on the other side. . . . From a global perspective, efforts by the U.S. Congress to alienate the UAE at this time look about as sensible as Russian roulette."

There are many other respected voices who have spoken to the economic, security, and global issues raised in this controversy.

Robert Samuelson, the renowned economist, wrote recently in The Washington Post about how this action will damage American interests. In addition to the damage done to our relationship with the UAE and other allies in the Middle East, Samuelson holds the view that it has weakened worldwide confidence in the dollar.

Samuelson concludes, "Every country has the right to protect its security interests. But those interests must be defined coherently and not simply as the random expression of political expediency."

James Glassman of the American Enterprise Institute testified before a Financial Services subcommittee: "Our ties through trade, in fact, have made us more safe as our trading partners become more prosperous, open and democratic. But our politicians and pundits should know that we can't pick and choose. If we decide to deny firms from developing nations—Arab, Asian or otherwise—from investing in the United States, those firms will go elsewhere. And we will pay the price—in higher interest rates, higher mortgage rates, higher inflation, lower stock prices, less participation in a world [that is] growing more and more creative and exciting.”

Since World War II, the United States has enjoyed economic growth and an increase in economic standard of living that has never before been achieved in world history. This has gone hand-in-hand with our values of democracy and freedom of thought. We have watched other nations fail because they were too closed, either economically or politically or both. One of the critical factors in our stunning success has been free trade and the free movement of capital throughout the world.

I can't say it any better than Thomas Friedman, who wrote: “People across the world still look to our example of pluralism, which is like no other. If we go Dark Ages, if we go down the road of pitchfork-wielding xenophobes, then the whole world will go Dark Ages.”

“There is a poison loose today, and America—America at its best—is the only antidote. That's why it is critical that we stand by our principles of free trade and welcome the world to do business in our land, as long as there is no security threat.”

This is a feel-good vote in the heat of the moment that I think the House will live to regret. It's time for us to decide whether we are going to continually respond to 9/11 with a reactive fear, or whether we're going to move forward and engage the world with confidence. Today, I will vote for the latter.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BOOZMAN). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCREST).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BOOZMAN). Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCREST) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SABO

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. SABO:

SEC. 3011A. (a) Section 721 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2170) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) INVESTIGATIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Upon receiving written notification, as prescribed by regulations under this section, of any merger, acquisition, or takeover proposed or pending on or after the date of the enactment of this section by or with any foreign person which could result in foreign control of any person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States, the President, acting through the President's designee and the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States shall conduct an investigation to determine the effects, if any, of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover on the national security of the United States.

“(2) TIMING.—Any investigation required under paragraph (1) shall be completed before the end of the 75-day period beginning on the date of the receipt by the President or the President's designee of written notification of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover.

“(b) CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Any information or documentary material filed with the President or the President's designee pursuant to this section shall be exempt from disclosure under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, and no such information or documentary material may be made public, except as may be relevant to any administrative or judicial action or proceeding.

“(2) AVAILABILITY TO THE CONGRESS.—No provision of paragraph (1) shall be construed as preventing the disclosure of any information or documentary material to either House of Congress or to any duly authorized committee or subcommittee of the Congress.

“(c) COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN INVESTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States established pursuant to Executive Order No. 11858 (hereafter in this section referred to as the ‘Committee’) shall be a multi-agency committee to carry out this section and such other assignments as the President may designate.

“(2) MEMBERSHIP.—The Committee shall be comprised of the following members:

- “(A) The Secretary of the Treasury.
- “(B) The Secretary of State.
- “(C) The Secretary of Defense.
- “(D) The Secretary of Homeland Security.
- “(E) The Attorney General.
- “(F) The Secretary of Commerce.

“(G) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

“(H) The United States Trade Representative.

“(I) The Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors.

“(J) The Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy.

“(3) CHAIRPERSON.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall be the Chairperson of the Committee.

“(4) OTHER MEMBERS.—The Chairperson of the Committee shall involve the heads of such other Federal agencies, the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, and the Assistant to the President for Domestic Policy in any investigation under subsection (a) as the Chairperson determines to be appropriate on the basis of the facts and circumstances of the transaction under investigation.

“(5) ROLE OF THE DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE.—The Director of National Intelligence shall provide appropriate intelligence analysis and intelligence briefings to the Committee.

“(d) ACTION BY THE PRESIDENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—No proposed or pending acquisition, merger, or takeover, of a person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States by or with foreign persons may occur unless the President, on the basis of an investigation and report by the Committee, finds that such acquisition, merger or takeover, will not threaten to impair the national security of the United States, as defined by regulations prescribed pursuant to this section, and approves the transaction.

“(2) ENFORCEMENT.—The President shall direct the Attorney General to seek appropriate relief, including divestment relief, in the district courts of the United States in order to implement and enforce—

“(A) any finding, action, or determination under this section of disapproval of an acquisition, merger, or takeover; or

“(B) any conditions imposed on any approval of any acquisition, merger, or takeover.

“(3) FINALITY OF DETERMINATIONS.—All actions and determinations under this section shall be final and not subject to judicial review.

“(e) FINDINGS BY THE PRESIDENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A finding under this section of impairment or threatened impairment to national security shall be based on credible evidence that leads the President to believe that—

“(A) the foreign interest exercising control might take action that threatens to impair the national security; and

“(B) other provisions of law do not provide adequate and appropriate authority for the President to protect the national security.

“(2) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—Any investigation under this section shall take into account the following factors:

“(A) Domestic production needed for projected national defense requirements.

“(B) The capability and capacity of domestic industries to meet national defense requirements, including the availability of human resources, products, technology, materials, and other supplies and services.

“(C) The control of domestic industries and commercial activity by foreign citizens as it affect the capability and capacity of the United States to meet the requirements of national security.

“(D) The potential effects of the proposed or pending transaction on sales of military goods, equipment, or technology to any country—

“(i) identified by the Secretary of State—

“(I) under section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as a country that supports terrorism;

“(II) under section 6(l) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as a country of concern regarding missile proliferation; or

“(III) under section 6(m) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as a country of concern regarding the proliferation of chemical and biological weapons; or

“(ii) listed under section 309(c) of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act of 1978 on the ‘Nuclear Non-Proliferation-Special Country List’ (15 C.F.R. Part 778, Supplement No. 4) or any successor list.

“(E) The potential effects on the proposed or pending transaction on United States international technological leadership in areas affecting United States national security.

“(f) REPORT TO THE CONGRESS.—Upon making any determination to approve or disapprove any merger, acquisition, or takeover by or with any foreign person which could result in foreign control of any person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States, the President shall immediately transmit to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives a written report of the President's determination under this section to approve or disapprove such merger, acquisition, or takeover, including a detailed explanation of the finding made and factors considered.

“(g) CONGRESSIONAL ACTION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the determination of the President contained in the report transmitted to the Congress under subsection (f) is that the President will approve any merger, acquisition, or takeover under subsection (d) and not later than 30 days after the date on which Congress receives the report, a joint resolution described in paragraph (2) is enacted into law, then the President shall take such action under subsection (d) as is necessary to prohibit the merger, acquisition, or takeover, including, if such acquisition has been completed, directing the Attorney General to seek divestment or other appropriate relief in the district courts of the United States.

“(2) JOINT RESOLUTION DESCRIBED.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term ‘joint resolution’ means a joint resolution of the Congress, the sole matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: ‘That the Congress disapproves the determination of approval of the President contained in the report submitted to Congress pursuant to section 721(f) of the Defense Production Act of 1950 on _____’, with the blank space being filled with the appropriate date.

“(3) COMPUTATION OF REVIEW PERIOD.—In computing the 30-day period referred to in paragraph (1), there shall be excluded any day described in section 154(b) of the Trade Act of 1974.

“(h) REGULATIONS.—The President shall direct the issuance of regulations to carry out this section. Such regulations shall, to the extent possible, minimize paperwork burdens and shall to the extent possible coordinate reporting requirements under this section with reporting requirements under any other provision of Federal law.

“(i) EFFECT ON OTHER LAW.—No provision of this section shall be construed as altering or affecting any existing authority, power, process, regulation, investigation, enforcement measure, or review provided by any other provision of law.

“(j) TECHNOLOGY RISK ASSESSMENTS.—In any case in which an assessment of the risk of diversion of defense critical technology is performed by the Committee or any other designee of the President, a copy of such assessment shall be provided to any other designee of the President responsible for reviewing or investigating a merger, acquisition, or takeover under this section.

“(k) BIENNIAL REPORT ON CRITICAL TECHNOLOGIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to assist the Congress in its oversight responsibilities with respect to this section, the President and such agencies as the President shall designate shall complete and furnish to the Congress, not later than May 1, 2007, and upon the expiration of every 2 years thereafter, a report, both in classified and unclassified form, which—

“(A) evaluates whether there is credible evidence of a coordinated strategy by 1 or more countries or companies to acquire United States companies involved in research, development, or production of critical technologies for which the United States is a leading producer; and

“(B) evaluates whether there are industrial espionage activities directed or directly assisted by foreign governments against private United States companies aimed at obtaining commercial secrets related to critical technology.

“(2) DEFINITION.—For the purposes of this subsection, the term ‘critical technologies’ means technologies identified under title VI of the National Science and Technology Policy, Organization, and Priorities Act of 1976 or other critical technology, critical components, or critical technology items essential to national defense or security identified pursuant to this section.

“(1) BIENNIAL REPORT ON CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE.—In order to assist the Congress in its oversight responsibilities, the President and such agencies as the President shall designate shall complete and furnish to the Congress, not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this subsection and upon the expiration of every 2 years thereafter, a report, both in classified and unclassified form, which—

“(1) lists all critical infrastructure, as defined under subtitle B of title II of Public Law 107-296, that is owned, controlled or dominated by an alien, a foreign corporation, or a foreign government;

“(2) evaluates whether there is credible evidence of a coordinated strategy by 1 or more countries or companies to acquire United States critical infrastructure; and

“(3) evaluates whether there are industrial espionage activities directed or directly assisted by foreign governments against private United States companies controlling critical infrastructure.”

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to the review and investigation of any acquisition, merger, or takeover which is or becomes subject to section 721 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2170) (as in effect immediately before the date of the enactment of this Act or on or after such date) that has not become final before the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I am disappointed that the Rules Committee has not allowed me to offer my amendment to strengthen the CFIUS foreign investment review process to this bill.

Americans deserve a rigorous review of foreign investments that could affect our national security. We all know now that the Bush administration was sleepwalking through the review of the Dubai Ports World transaction to acquire shipping terminals at six major U.S. ports.

We should fix the process. Never again should we find that the President and the Secretaries of Homeland Security, Treasury and Defense are unaware of a foreign takeover of a critical U.S. asset until after it is approved.

The bill kills the Dubai Ports World deal. It does not, however, deal with the larger problem of an inadequate foreign investment review process. An amendment I offered in committee would have fixed the problem for the future.

My amendment would strengthen the CFIUS process in the following ways: all transactions that result in foreign control of any person engaged in interstate commerce would be required to undergo a full review to determine whether it affects U.S. national security.

Today, foreign firms voluntarily, let me say that again, voluntarily notify us of these transactions. I believe notification must be mandatory to ensure that our government knows about all such transactions.

My amendment would also retain the Secretary of the Treasury as the chairperson of the committee.

Under my amendment, the President would be required to approve or disapprove all transactions. Today, if the President takes no action, the transaction is automatically approved.

My amendment would extend the CFIUS review period to the full 75 days. Current practice allows most transactions to be reviewed within 30 days, with an additional 45 days of review only if flags are raised.

The amendment would also require the Congress to be notified of Presidential decisions. Furthermore, Congress could overturn approvals within 30 days by a joint resolution. Today, Congress is notified of a CFIUS transaction only when the President disapproves one, and we discover about approvals, like we did in the most recent case, through the press.

Under my amendment, the administration would also be required to report to Congress on foreign ownership of all U.S. critical infrastructure within 90 days of enactment of this bill. Today, no one really knows how much of our critical infrastructure is in the hands of foreign companies and foreign governments.

If we fail to fix the deep flaws in the CFIUS process, our Nation will be vulnerable in the future. We should not take that chance. We should act now to strengthen the foreign investment review process.

I would hope the gentleman from California, the distinguished chairman, would not insist on his point of order so the House may have a vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, this place is really something else. We just had a debate on an amendment that doesn't do “nothing” to or for “nobody”.

The Dubai deal is already dead, and so it is irrelevant whether this House votes for the Gilchrest amendment or not. Because the Dubai deal is already dead, the Lewis Amendment is eviscerated; it does not do anything. It leaves the country with the same problem that we had before we discovered the Dubai controversy.

What Mr. SABO is doing today is what he usually does, which is to try to bring a bit of objectivity and concern for substance into a political pit. And what Mr. SABO is saying in his amendment is ‘Let’s fix the process so that we do not have the future spectacle of a President to the United States being clueless when a transaction like Dubai is about to take place.’

So what Mr. SABO is saying is, ‘Look, the problem with the process is that, right now, it is voluntary, whether or not the people with an economic interest in such a transaction ever notifies our government or not.’

What the Sabo Amendment would do is to say, ‘Let’s make sure our government always knows what is happening with these kind of transactions.’ And the second thing the Sabo Amendment does is to make certain that Congress can have a role, if it chooses, in this process. Because right now the only time Congress is ever informed is if the President turns down a transaction. They are not informed if the President goes ahead with it.

So I would suggest it would be quaint indeed if this House uses a technicality in the rules to eliminate the only amendment that does something and then makes a big political production out of voting on the Gilchrest amendment, which is totally irrelevant. It is as irrelevant as the Lewis amendment is, because Dubai is already done, the deal is gone, it is quashed.

What Mr. SABO is trying to do is to create some order for the future.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

□ 1730

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. I thank my good friend. I rise in support of this amendment.

As I suggested in addressing the last amendment, we need to be driven by people with expertise, not by fear and prejudice. What Mr. SABO is suggesting is that we get the facts on the table so that we can make the most informed judgment. That is all it is. We are not necessarily going to automatically reject anyone or accept anyone.

Let’s have the facts on the table, take the time, let the experts on the Committee for Foreign Investment in the United States do a thorough investigation. I think it will satisfy our constituents’ concerns, but it will also enable us to make much more responsible decisions that we have made in the last week. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise to make a point of order.

Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I am disappointed that a point of order is raised on this very good amendment, but I would concede the point of order.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained. The amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GILCHREST

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Messrs. BOEHNER, SCOTT of Georgia, NUNES, WYNN, Ms. PRYCE of Ohio, Messrs. SAXTON, MEEK of Florida, TIAHRT, Mrs. MUSGRAVE and Mr. RANGEL changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Messrs. FRANKS of Arizona, McDERMOTT, and HENSARLING changed their vote from “no” to “aye.” So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. GINGREY) having assumed the chair, Mr. BOOZMAN, Acting Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

MISCELLANEOUS TRADE AND TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS ACT OF 2006

So (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 44, H.R. 4944, I was en route from my Congressional District on official business. Had I been present, I would have voted “yea.”

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, though I was absent on Wednesday, March 15, 2006, for personal reasons, I wish to have my intended votes recorded in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for the following series:

MARCH 15, 2006

Rollcall vote 40 on Ordering the Previous Question on H.R. 4939—“aye.”

Rollcall vote 41 for the Adoption of the Rules for H.R. 4939—“aye.”

Rollcall vote 42 on Approving H. Con. Res. 190—“aye.”

Rollcall vote 43 on the Gilchrest Amendment to H.R. 4939—“nay.”

Rollcall vote 44 to pass H.R. 4944—“yea.”

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I was participating in a meeting at the White House on Wednesday, March 15, 2006, and missed two votes. Had I been present, I would have voted as noted below:

Rollcall vote 43: “nay.”

Rollcall vote 44: “yea.”

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KUHLE of New York). Pursuant to House Resolution 725, and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4939.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Mr. GINGREY (Acting Chairman) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCREST) had been disposed of and the bill had been read through page 2, line 18.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

CHAPTER 2

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

MILITARY PERSONNEL

MILITARY PERSONNEL, ARMY

For an additional amount for "Military Personnel, Army", $6,506,223,000: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

MILITARY PERSONNEL, NAVY

For an additional amount for "Military Personnel, Navy", $1,061,724,000: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

MILITARY PERSONNEL, MARINE CORPS

For an additional amount for "Military Personnel, Marine Corps", $834,122,000: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

MILITARY PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For an additional amount for "Military Personnel, Air Force", $1,145,363,000: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of a colloquy with Chairman WOLF.

I understood that the Justice Department is working on a plan to distribute $125 million in emergency funds that were provided in the last hurricane supplemental bill for State and local law enforcement.

Yesterday, in our Appropriations subcommittee hearing, I asked the Attorney General what portion of the funds Texas would receive. The Attorney General told me, "The law requires us to consult with both House and Senate appropriations, and that is ongoing. Believe me, the last thing I want to do is to victimize the victims again, victimize the States who stepped in and bore the brunt of these terrible tragedies."

Texans did exactly that. Our citizens stepped in and bore the brunt of these terrible tragedies directly with the fallout from Hurricane Rita and indirectly by taking in hundreds of thousands of evacuees.

The Attorney General should deliver to the committee a plan that includes the needs of law enforcement agencies in Texas. Do you agree, Chairman WOLF?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DELAY. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. I do agree. Texans stepped up and helped out in a tremendous way. I hope the Attorney General will work quickly to deliver a plan that meets the gentleman's concerns.

Mr. DELAY. I appreciate the chairman's attention on this matter.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, all of us have images embedded in our mind about the devastation coming from Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita. We are finding out even today that hurricanes are not the only way that Mother Nature can cause destruction.

In my district, wildfires are raging. It is estimated that, since Sunday, approximately 850,000 acres have been consumed by wildfires. It is estimated by the governor's office that, in the last 3 months or so, approximately 3.7 million acres in Texas have been burned by wildfires. For my colleagues' benefit, that is bigger than the size of Connecticut. Approximately 2 percent of the land mass in Texas has been burned in these fires just in the last 3 months.

In the fires that are going on now, it is estimated that 10,000 to 12,000 head of cattle have been destroyed because of these fires. Obviously, this devastation is continuing. It is not possible in this bill to take action to have some sort of disaster relief, but I know all of my colleagues are concerned about disasters, whatever the cause may be.

I am particularly grateful to the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA), for his concern and consideration in looking at ways, as this bill moves forward, when perhaps we can look at ways to assist those who are devastated by what may well be the fires of the century.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. THORNBERRY. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Chairman, Mr. THORNBERRY makes absolutely clear that this is a situation we need to deal with. While there are tragedies that continue in the gulf states and much of the money being debated in this appropriations bill is going for a much-needed cause, the people in Texas that have been affected by these fires are not getting the attention that others are getting and have been getting now for many, many months.

This has been going on for so many days and weeks with no end in sight. I want to assure Mr. THORNBERRY this is only the beginning in this process. While he is one of the great leaders in this effort to try to provide some relief for many of our producers that have been affected, the entire delegation from our State is working hard on this. I commit to the gentleman that we will work diligently to try to remedy this and to provide some assistance for these producers that have been affected.

Mr. THORNBERRY. I thank the subcommittee chairman.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. THORNBERRY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, first let me say that I very much appreciate Mr. THORNBERRY bringing this matter to my attention.

As the gentleman and I discussed earlier, the territory we are talking about in Texas is just about the size of my district, in which you can put five eastern States. That is a huge territory.

I have been watching the problem with real interest, and there is no question that the House and our committee need to be responsive. We will do everything we can to work with you.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentlemen working on this.

If I can emphasize one thing, it is hard for the pictures to convey the magnitude of this disaster. When you have more than 3.5 million acres that are devastated, 12,000 head of cattle, it is a disaster of enormous proportions, and I appreciate very much the willingness of the distinguished chairman and other Members to work to help mitigate the effects of this disaster when it is completed.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I am being asked every two seconds by Members, what is the story about tonight. Let me simply suggest, and ask the gentleman from California if he concurs. It is my understanding that what we are trying to do is to put together a unanimous consent agreement under which we would be able to complete our business of debating all of the pending amendments within about another 11 hours. That assumes that we can get that UC agreement. If we can't, the debate could go on far longer. We don't quite have that UC agreement worked out yet, but we are trying to. And what we are hoping to do is to proceed with a number of amendments, the Millender-McDonald, Souder, Engel, Shays, Hyde, Burton, Capuano, Salazar, Doggett, Hinojosa, Melancon, Jefferson, Reyes, Jackson-Lee, and Tierney/Leach. We are trying to get at least that far tonight. We don't know if we can. I would ask the gentleman if he has any disagreement with what I just said.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Well, I appreciate the gentleman yielding. And he said it very well. We are putting together a unanimous consent agreement that will package these amendments to protect the rights of those Members who filed amendments. We are trying to expedite the process so we can complete this work tomorrow. In the meantime there are amendments that are going forward. And with that, I very much appreciate the gentleman's cooperation.

Mr. OBEY. And I would simply say, my understanding is if we can reach this UC agreement, there will be no further votes tonight.

Mr. LEWIS of California. That is right. I anticipate that we will, and I am hopeful that that is the case. Under those circumstances, we will have no more votes tonight.

Mr. OBEY. It is also my understanding that afterwards, there is an intention to have the Energy and Commerce Committee also bring up a matter relating to the Low Income Heating Assistance Program.

Mr. LEWIS of California. At the end of this part of the process, that is right. We will go to Energy and Commerce.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise, and I will be very brief, in support of the gentleman, the ranking Democrat on the House Administration Committee, who I understand will be offering an amendment which I offered in committee dealing with the challenges to the five-state region struck by Katrina and by Rita as it relates to the administration of elections.

As we know, New Orleans has an election coming up within the next 30 days. Other jurisdictions have elections. I tried to offer $5 million in the committee through the EAC. I want to say that the gentlewoman, I appreciate her leadership on this issue. I support her amendment. I hope it is made in order. I hope it is not objected to. And I hope that we can see it adopted.

I want to tell the gentlewoman as well that Mr. KNOLLENBERG and I have been discussing this, because FEMA has said that they cannot spend, under the Stafford Act, certain expenditures which are required to administer the elections, particularly in New Orleans, because that is upon us, but in other jurisdictions as well. They did pay for the loss of machines. They did pay for the loss of ballot boxes and other paraphernalia necessary, but they have said under the Stafford Act they cannot pay for the election expenses in either Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana. The gentlewoman's amendment speaks to that and I would certainly be in support of it.

Mr. Chairman, I plan to vote for the emergency supplemental appropriations bill that we are considering today.

H.R. 4939 will pay for supplies and materiel that our forces in Iraq and Afghanistan desperately need to carry out their mission.

The supplemental will also provide much needed resources to Gulf-Area States that were ravaged by hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

However, this bill is not perfect.

I am disappointed that the appropriations committee did not address a problem that has come to light in recent weeks with respect to voting in States that suffered the brunt of hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

On August 29, 2005, residents in Gulf Coast States endured one of the most devastating natural disasters in our nation's history. Tens of thousands of voters were displaced.

One month later, hurricane Rita caused additional widespread damage to voting infrastructure in Gulf-Area States.

An extraordinary amount of the Gulf region's election infrastructure—voting machines, polling places, and voting materials—were destroyed or severely damaged by the destruction wrought by hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

In Louisiana alone, over 250 polling places in the State's coastal parishes were destroyed.

To make matters worse, tens of thousands of people were forced to temporarily resettle in cities and towns throughout the United States while their communities are rebuilt.

Many if not most of these displaced people have every intention of returning to their communities as soon as conditions allow.

In the meantime, they are determined to maintain as many ties to their communities as they can.

Understandably, they would like to participate in elections that will be held this year in their communities.

Unfortunately, FEMA has proven ineffective at delivering assistance to election officials in hurricane-stricken States who are busy mounting what may be the most extensive and expensive voter outreach, education, and absentee voting program in the Nation's history.

According to FEMA's narrow reading of the "Robert T. Stafford Act," the agency is only empowered to make reimbursements to States to replace destroyed voting machines, but not for outreach to displaced voters.

In other words, FEMA can pay to replace damaged or destroyed voting machines, but it cannot pay to help States plan and execute the voter outreach and voter absentee programs that will be crucial to maintaining electoral continuity in 2006.

As a consequence, of the roughly $3.8 million in claims that the State of Louisiana has so far submitted for reimbursement, for example, only $1.2 million have been approved by FEMA.

During markup of this bill last week, I offered an amendment that would have provided funds to the election assistance commission to help States pay for the entire range of activities that are crucial to running fair, accurate, and secure elections in 2006.

I regret that my amendment was not accepted, and I regret that the bill before us today does not include a provision specifying that under the Stafford Act FEMA is authorized to reimburse States for a wider range of election activities than the agency insists.

Let me be clear: I do not blame this omission on partisanship because there is nothing partisan about the issue.

Democratic, Republican, and Independent voters in the Gulf States all endured last year's trauma.

However, I am very pleased that Chairman KNOLLENBERG recognizes the significance of this issue and has agreed to work to address it in conference.

In the days ahead, I look forward to working with Chairman KNOLLENBERG and his staff to ensure FEMA has the necessary authorities to reimburse the hurricane-stricken States for a much wider range of essential election activities than FEMA claims it has under current law.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). The Clerk will read.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. MILLENDER-MCDONALD

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD:

In chapter 2 of title I, in the item relating to "Defense Health Program", insert after the dollar amount the following: "(reduced by $20,000,000) (increased by $20,000,000)".

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Chairman, my amendment addresses one of the most critical needs facing our men and women returning home from Iraq and Afghanistan, and that is accessible and reliable prosthetic and orthotic care for our veterans.

Like no war before, the war in Iraq has seen unprecedented numbers of injuries due to surprise bomb attacks.

And like no other war before, troops are often surviving those attacks, though many of them lose limbs. This bill creates new demands and challenges for our health care system that we must provide for our returning men and women. In addition, 20 percent of our practitioners will be retiring over the next 10 to 20 years, a further need for training.

My amendment today provides $20 million to expand the U.S. training capacity for prosthetics and orthotics to the U.S. schools accredited by the National Commission on Orthotic and Prosthetic Education.

This expansion will dramatically improve services for the Nation's military amputees and orthopedically disabled returning from the current conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The need to provide more orthotic and prosthetic practitioners is compelling. The demand for orthotic and prosthetic provider services is expected to increase by 25 percent for orthotic care and 47 percent for prosthetic care by 2020. At present, only 200 to 225 new practitioners are trained each year in the United States.

On a broader scale, my amendment is an excellent investment in a health field that will continue to grow. For example, over 1.2 million individuals live with limb loss/absence in the United States.

Annually, physicians perform over 185,000 amputations in the United States at about 507 a day. The number of amputations is expected to rise due to devastating complications of diabetes. The growing need for rehabilitation practitioners well trained in the various disciplines of rehabilitation will continue to be a growing trend.

Finally, this funding will be an investment in our veterans hospitals across the country.

I ask, Mr. Chairman, that my colleagues support this important amendment.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise as Chairman of the Military Quality of Life Subcommittee on Appropriations within whose responsibility this amendment lies, to thank the gentlewoman for offering this amendment. This is a very important issue. And there is definitely a need for future training in prosthetics to meet the needs of our wounded veterans, and indeed, some of our active duty service people.

The only concern I have is that this would take $20 million out of the defense health budget and move it basically to training. Now, this is a very perspective, thoughtful idea. It needs to be done. And the only concern is the current needs of the defense health budget. But I am prepared, Mr. Chairman, to accept this amendment, to move forward, and as we come to conference, if there is any need to reassess, we would do that. But in the spirit in which it is offered, I am prepared to accept the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

DRUG INTERDICTION AND COUNTER-DRUG ACTIVITIES, DEFENSE
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For an additional amount for "Drug Interdiction and Counter-Drug Activities, Defense", $156,800,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That these funds may be used only for such activities related to Afghanistan and the Central Asia area: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense may transfer such funds only to appropriations for military personnel; operation and maintenance; procurement; and research, development, test and evaluation: Provided further, That the funds transferred shall be merged with and be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriation to which transferred: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided in this paragraph is in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation: Provided further, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. SOUDER

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. SOUDER:

In the item relating to "DRUG INTERDICTION AND COUNTER-DRUG ACTIVITIES, DEFENSE", after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $25,000,000)".

In the item relating to "INTERNATIONAL NARCOTICS AND LAW ENFORCEMENT", after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $25,000,000)".

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Chairman, my intention is to withdraw this amendment. But I want to express my frustration at actually a combination of issues but particularly related to Colombia; that I have been a strong advocate that the military has been slow in responding in Afghanistan to the interrelationship to the heroin problem in Afghanistan into the military efforts, and will be there again next week to meet on the ground to see how we are progressing. And I have grave concerns that the DOD money that is being spent in Afghanistan is not being spent as wisely as I would like. Nevertheless, I am happy that the Defense Department is starting to understand the link between what is being done in narcotics and the heroin funding the attacks on our troops and men and women in our armed services there.

□ 1845

We have a grave problem down in the eastern Pacific, and that is, we have spent this money in the Andean Initiative and in Plan Colombia. What we have seen, as naval resources, which are very limited, have been transferred out of that zone, and the DOD has not made additional investments in, that my amendment would address the problem of an oiler.

When our Coast Guard vessels go out to interdict in drug interdiction through the Department of Homeland Security, they have always been dependent, just like many intelligence assets are, on DOD. DOD has not given them an oiler with which to refuel.

So logically the drug dealers, which we see far more than we used to, we can see them coming at us. We have gone from 20,000 to 30,000 deaths in America, real deaths in the streets of America, because we are not interdicting things that we can see, because we don't have an oiler in the eastern Pacific.

Last Sunday in The Washington Post, a big article about Guatemala, a top antidrug person being corrupt. Why is Guatemala being corrupted? Why do we hear about the gangs in El Salvador related to narcotics? Why do we hear about the problems in the southwest border related to narcotics?

We can see the stuff coming, but unless DOD makes some investment in an oiler, we can talk all we want about intercepting narcotics. But if you don't have a way to refuel their ships out in the water, and the United States Navy takes all the resources on it, we can't fight the war on narcotics.

I am going to withdraw this amendment, because I understand the supplemental is focused on Afghanistan and Iraq. I support the antinarcotics efforts in Afghanistan, but I am very concerned, and I am hoping that the Appropriations Committee will work with us on getting this oiler, work with DOD, because this is essential to the war on drugs.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

For an additional amount for "Office of the Inspector General", $6,120,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. (TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 1201. Upon his determination that such action is necessary in the national interest, the Secretary of Defense may transfer between appropriations up to $2,000,000,000 of the funds made available to the Department of Defense in this chapter: Provided, That the Secretary shall notify the Congress promptly of each transfer made pursuant to this authority: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided in this section is in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense: Provided further, That the authority in this section is subject to the same terms and conditions as the authority provided in section 8005 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2006, except for the fourth proviso.

SEC. 1202. (a) AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE SUPPORT.—Of the amount appropriated by this Act under the heading "Drug Interdiction and Counter-Drug Activities, Defense", not to exceed $40,000,000 may be made available for support for counter-drug activities of the Governments of Afghanistan and Pakistan: Provided, That such support shall be in addition to support provided for the counter-drug activities of such Governments under any other provision of the law.

(b) TYPES OF SUPPORT.—(1) Except as specified in subsections (b)(2) and (b)(3) of this section, the support that may be provided under the authority in this section shall be limited to the types of support specified in section 1033(c)(1) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1998 (Public Law 105-85, as amended by Public Law 106-398 and Public Law 108-136), and conditions on the provision of support as contained in such section 1033 shall apply for fiscal year 2006.

(2) The Secretary of Defense may transfer vehicles, aircraft, and detection, interception, monitoring and testing equipment to such Governments for counter-drug activities.

(3) For the Government of Afghanistan, the Secretary of Defense may also provide individual and crew-served weapons, and ammunition for counter-drug security forces.

SEC. 1203. Notwithstanding 10 U.S.C. 2208(1), the total amount of advance billings rendered or imposed for all working capital funds of the Department of Defense in fiscal year 2006 shall not exceed $1,500,000,000: Provided, That the amounts made available pursuant to this section are designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

SEC. 1204. In addition to amounts authorized in section 1202(a) of Public Law 109-163, from funds made available in this chapter to the Department of Defense, not to exceed $423,000,000 may be used to fund the Commander's Emergency Response Program and for a similar program to assist the people of Afghanistan, to remain available until December 31, 2007.

SEC. 1205. Supervision and administration costs associated with a construction project funded with "Afghanistan Security Forces Fund" or "Iraq Security Forces Fund" appropriations may be obligated at the time a construction contract is awarded: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, supervision and administration costs include all in-house Government costs.

SEC. 1206. None of the funds provided in this chapter may be used to finance programs or activities denied by Congress in fiscal year 2005 and 2006 appropriations to the Department of Defense or to initiate a procurement or research, development, test and evaluation new start program without prior written notification to the congressional defense committees.

CHAPTER 3

BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENTUNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

CHILD SURVIVAL AND HEALTH PROGRAMS FUND

For an additional amount for "Child Survival and Health Programs Fund", $5,300,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ENGEL

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ENGEL:

Page 26, line 8, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $5,000,000)".

Page 26, line 16, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $5,000,000)".

Page 27, line 17, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $40,000,000)".

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to have the amendment considered at this point.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman reserves a point of order.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, my amendment speaks to the immediate needs of our southern neighbor, Haiti. This amendment would increase economic support funds by $40 million, development assistance by $5 million, and child survival and health funds by $5 million, totaling an additional $50 million for Haiti. It is my intention to offer and withdraw this amendment.

After a history of instability, poverty and democratic setbacks, Haitians poured onto the streets of their country last month to cast their votes, demonstrating a desire for a better future. After a contested vote-counting period, the front-runner in the presidential election, Rene Preval, was declared the winner with nearly 52 percent of the official vote, compared to less than 12 percent to his closest contender.

Such a large mandate and a large margin of victory gives Preval a strong mandate and legitimacy to reform and rebuild Haiti's institutions and fractured society. Yet the challenges are vast. The same massive underlying problems still plague Haiti, and a second round of elections looms in the coming weeks.

Now is the time, I very strongly believe, for the United States to tangibly demonstrate that it stands with the Haitian people in their quest for democracy and stability. We have long had a special relationship and a special obligation to the people of Haiti. I believe that there exists a limited window of opportunity to help Haiti, which was opened by the recent successful elections.

We should seize this opportunity by expanding our assistance to Haiti and the Haitian people in the immediate future. My amendment does just that. My amendment provides $50 million in emergency FY 06 supplemental assistance for our impoverished neighbor in the south. Haiti, of course, is the poorest country in the Americas.

Specifically, the amendment increases economic support funds by $40 million, developmental assistance by $5 million and child survival and health by $5 million. This supplemental funding directly addresses the profound social needs in Haiti, while providing support for future elections, reconciliation and efforts to jump-start local economies.

Mr. Chairman, I would like you to know that members of the Subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere, where I am the ranking member, recently wrote a bipartisan letter supporting $50 million of additional assistance for Haiti in this supplemental legislation.

I would like to thank Chairman BARTON and the other members of the subcommittee for their support. I will include this letter in the RECORD.

Elections signal the beginning of a transition, not an end. Thus we believe that this additional assistance is the least we can do at this critical time to help Haiti. We obviously have a stake in their democracy-taking route, having Haiti so close to our shores. Of course, there is a large Haitian-American community in this country which has ties to Haiti that further bind our two countries together as well.

Mr. Chairman, as this legislation moves forward, I ask that the House work with the Senate to include emergency aid for Haiti. It is my hope that, in the end, Congress will heed the bipartisan call of the subcommittee and provide important additional aid to Haiti.

As I said, I am going to withdraw my amendment at the end because I believe that this is the best way to move this amendment forward, by working with the Senate, and hopefully we get it there and it comes here. So I urge my colleagues to listen to our pleas.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I understand the gentleman from New York is going to withdraw his amendment, and I will not take more than a few seconds here. I want to make only one point to other Members here.

What the gentleman is proposing is certainly something that is humanitarian, and we certainly agree with his efforts to try to do everything we can to restore order to the very troubled nation of Haiti. But I think it is important to understand that knowing these elections were coming in the 2006 appropriations bill, the foreign assistance amount included in there is $194 million. In addition, the President is requesting in FY 2007 $163 million.

Almost none of the $194 million in the FY 2006 bill has been obligated, so there is no possibility that we are going to need these additional funds. In other words, this is not an emergency at this point. If additional funds are needed, we could easily add them in to the 2007 bill, but we have almost all of the $194 million appropriated in 2006 that are still available for obligations to help this country get on its feet.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, the victory of Rene Preval in the first round of elections in Haiti does open a window of opportunity to rescue this country from its failed state status. Now is the time for the United States to tangibly demonstrate that it stands with the Haitian people in their quest for democracy and stability.

Mr. Chairman, I was disappointed that the administration's supplemental request did not contain funding for Haiti, because I do think we have limited time to make a difference by providing assistance to ensure that the second round of elections, which are just weeks away, are free, fair and transparent. This money will help fund quick impact programs to promote reconciliation and stabilization and to expand our participation in the U.N. civilian police training and vetting program.

I appreciate the comments of my chairman and his willingness to make sure that we have adequate funding for Haiti, but I think this amendment does send an important signal to the Haitian people that the U.S. is committed to help them as they pull their country out of chaos.

The United States must show that we care about more than elections, that we care about what comes afterwards as well. So I am very pleased that the chairman addressed this issue.

I am pleased that Mr. ENGEL is withdrawing the amendment, and I look forward to working with the chairman and working with Mr. ENGEL to ensure that we are supportive and that Haiti gets the money that it deserves to try to get it on the right track and move that country ahead. It is an embarrassment to the region, it is an embarrassment to the world, that Haiti has not been able to get this support it needs. So, working together, I am hopeful that we can take positive action to get Haiti on the right track.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, let me thank our new ranking member of the Western Hemisphere Subcommittee for his leadership and for his commitment to the people of Haiti. I think today illustrates the type of commitment that he has in terms of his truly understanding the critical needs of the Haitian people. So I want to commend you, Mr. ENGEL, for your leadership, and thank you for putting this out here, at least so we can have a debate and discuss why Haiti deserves this $50 million.

Let me just say, first of all, that we all know that on February 7 the Haitian people demonstrated their faith in the democratic process, and today the United States needs to send a signal. We need to show our support for their commitment and for their persistence.

I co-chaired the Haiti Task Force with the great leader Congressman CONYERS. Many members of this Haiti Task Force have worked for many, many years to help the Haitian people, not only with their democracy, which, of course, they have engaged in in terms of the democratic process over the years, but also, most importantly, with their economic development and their humanitarian assistance and the infrastructure assistance that they so desperately need.

Haiti is the poorest country in the Caribbean, and we need to begin to provide resources in a very real way, and I mean in a real way, to the people of Haiti under the leadership of the newly democratically elected government.

This amendment, and it is just the beginning, it is only $50 million, begins to rectify some of the inadequacies of this supplemental, which, of course, we have heard there is really no money in it for Haiti.

So we need to support the Engel amendment. We need to send a message to the world, to the Caribbean, to CARICOM, that we support democracy in Haiti, that we support development assistance for Haiti, that we support economic assistance, that we support an increase to help the Haitian people address their health care needs. The HIV and AIDS pandemic is rampant in Haiti. The highest incidence of AIDS in the Caribbean is in the country of Haiti.

So whatever we do today in terms of this $50 million, I think we need to understand that we need more than $194 million to address the basic needs of the Haitian people.

So, Mr. ENGEL, this is an excellent first step. I hope that people throughout our country recognize that there are those of us here in the House who want to support the aspirations and the needs and the desires and the dreams of the Haitian people, and we should do so by passing this amendment, this $50 million.

□ 1900

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank Congresswoman LEE and Congresswoman LOWEY for their support and Congressman KOLBE for his explanation.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, in the hope that this will move the process along so that Haiti will get all of the money it needs, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE

For an additional amount for "Development Assistance", $10,500,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

INTERNATIONAL DISASTER FAMINE ASSISTANCE

For an additional amount for "International Disaster and Famine Assistance", $136,290,000, to remain until expended: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

OPERATING EXPENSES OF THE UNITED STATES

AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

For an additional amount for "Operating Expenses of the United States Agency for International Development", $61,600,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

OTHER BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

ECONOMIC SUPPORT FUND—

For an additional amount for "Economic Support Fund", $1,584,500,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SHAYS

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. SHAYS:

Page 27, line 17, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $10,000,000) (increased by $10,000,000)".

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would designate $10 million of economic support funds for the Community Action Program, also known as CAP, in Iraq. That is what this amendment does.

I would like to say, Mr. Chairman, that a real hero in this House is Mr. KOLBE who has made sure that these programs have flourished. In my 11 trips to Iraq, I am absolutely convinced the best thing we have done in all of our expenditures on the economic side of the table has been to support these CAP agencies.

There were five NGOs, nongovernment organizations. There are still four left. They stand potentially to lose money in June or July and not have the carry-over into the next fiscal year. What this amendment ensures, with Mr. KOLBE's help, is that that money will be extended so that we can keep them in place.

When we talk about keeping them in place, for instance, one of these nongovernment organizations, and it is typical, has about 130 employees who are all Iraqis throughout Iraq and only seven who are not Iraqis, one or two Europeans, one or two eastern Europeans, and one or two Americans; and when you add up the others we are talking about over 600 Iraqis. And what are they doing? They are rebuilding schools, they are repairing water and sewer lines, building health clinics, helping what takes place in the schools. Just a host of other infrastructure and development projects.

In the report that was done by the Appropriations Committee, and I would like to read from it, it expresses my sentiments better than I could. This is what the report says, "The CAP program has generated a network of more than 1,300 community associations across 17 governorates in Iraq, and has trained 17,281 community association members."

The January, 2005, audit by the Office of Inspector General USAID found that the CAP, "achieved 98 percent of its intended outputs, including citizen participation, inner-government cooperation, local government cooperation, local employment generation, and consideration of environmental concerns."

The bottom line is, these programs are working extraordinarily well. And I thank Mr. KOLBE, and the chairman of the Appropriations Committee as well, for ensuring that these organizations do not have to close up shop, and fire a whole host of Iraqis.

I would like to just say, in addition, I am a strong supporter of making sure that we do everything we can to have the Iraqis succeed. It is astounding that last year they had three elections. They established a government. That government established a constitutional convention. They created a constitutional convention.

Then we had a second election, ratified by 79 percent of the Iraqis who voted. And then, once the constitution was established, December of this last year, 76 percent of all Iraqi adults voted, not 76 of those who registered, 76 percent. And 30 percent of their new assembly is made up of women. That is extraordinary progress on the political side. We are training their police, their border patrol and their army. I wish we had not allowed it to disintegrate.

But now they are getting to critical mass, so we are seeing the military side, we are seeing the political side. This is the economic side that Mr. KOLBE is focusing on.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAYS. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Chairman, I strongly support the Shays amendment because this continues the CAP program led by groups like Mercy Corps in Iraq who are able to operate with very low levels of security because they are so heavily supported by the local community.

This is a phenomenally successful program. The gentleman is exactly right.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, if I can just add, reclaiming my time, evidently not one of these projects done by these organizations have had to deal with assaults by Iraqis, have had a building or something which was then destroyed by insurgents. They have all survived.

I thank Mr. KOLBE from the bottom of my heart for his help in this effort.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the gentleman's amendment, and I understand and I am pleased that the chairman is going to accept it, because ICAP is one of the few overwhelming success stories with respect to Iraq reconstruction.

Since 2003, ICAP has worked with communities in all of Iraq's 18 governorates to empower ordinary Iraqis to determine, implement and monitor reconstruction and development in their communities.

We all talk about how Iraqis need to run their own country, choose their own government, fight their own battles, make their own priorities. ICAP is aimed at accomplishing just this goal.

Its implementing partners have trained more than 620 Iraqi staff members. In turn, they have trained over 17,000 community action group members. And ICAP partners do not contract with multi-national corporations to get their work done. Only Iraqi contractors carry out ICAP projects. So, as we move forward, ICAP can be an excellent complement to the new provincial reconstruction teams being established throughout Iraq.

The gentleman's amendment would ensure that ICAP does not run out of funding this summer, as it certainly will if no further resources are provided. So it would be a shame to end this program prematurely. Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I will be very brief. I am prepared, as the gentleman from Connecticut has already indicated, to accept this amendment.

The Community Action Program, to which this is directed, has been a proven and effective way to build community-based democracy in Iraq and linkages between community and provincial governance, and I think it has worked very well. The experience that we have had in Iraq has really been very much in favor of what we have been trying to do there.

These funds ensure the continuation of that Community Action Program through the fiscal year 2006, and I commit to the gentleman that we are going to consider further appropriations for this proven program in the regular appropriations bill for 2007.

For that reason, I am happy to accept this amendment and hope that we can move forward.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KOLBE. I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, there is a concern obviously with continuing resolutions. Is there a way to deal with that issue?

Mr. KOLBE. Yes. If there is a scenario in which funding for activities in the foreign operations appropriations bill are funded for a period of time under a continuing resolution, I believe the funds would be available, on a prorated basis, to continue the CAP program until regular appropriations were enacted.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE
DEMOCRACY FUND

For an additional amount for "Democracy Fund", $10,000,000 for the advancement of democracy in Iran, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GARRETT OF NEW JERSEY

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey:

Page 27, strike line 24 and all that follows through line 5 on page 28.

Page 35, line 20, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $5,000,000)".

Page 36, strike line 14 and all that follows through line 21.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman reserves a point of order.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, we are on the floor tonight to discuss a supplemental emergency appropriation, supplemental meaning that we are adding to something to complete it or to bring it to fruition. An emergency, just ran out and grabbed the dictionary, meaning an unexpected serious occurrence or situation urgently requiring prompt action.

Well, unfortunately, the language in the bill in this area of additional foreign aid is not an unexpected situation or emergent. That is just not my opinion. That is actually the opinion of the committee itself.

The language that we seek to strike is approximately $15 million in additional foreign aid, $5 million to expand public diplomacy information programs relating to Iran, and $10 million in democracy funds for the promotion of democracy, governance, human rights, independent media, and the rule of law in Iran.

Iran is certainly not an ally of this Nation that we are here tonight to seek assistance of $15 million. Again, not my opinion, that it is not an ally of this country. This administration itself called Iran part of the Axis of Evil. Iran, who wants to wipe Israel off the map of the world; Iran, who wants to assist Hamas in any way they possibly can; Iran, who neglects and fails to listen to the world's heed and continues to expand its nuclear program. And yet tonight we have a supplemental program of approximately $15 million to assist that nation.

Again, I say that this is not my opinion, that this is not an emergency situation. The committee in its report says that it is disappointed in the Department of State's failure to provide adequate and timely justification of the emergency nature of these funds.

If the State Department then cannot supply us and cannot supply the committee with the very information that it needs to say that this truly is an emergency situation, why then is this House considering providing an additional $15 million to support Iran?

The rest of the supplemental obviously has worthwhile programs in it. We are trying to assist our men and women overseas who find themselves in harm's way as we speak here tonight with military assistance. We are trying to assist those people down in the gulf coast to rebuild their lives with Katrina aid.

But, at the same time, we have articles such as this added to this Christmas tree list, if you will, of programs to the supplemental bill that do not meet the criteria of an emergency situation.

So, Mr. Chairman, I would say that we should strike the language in the bill that would delete $5 million for public diplomacy and $10 million for economic support fund for Iran.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, regretfully, I must make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to amend portions of the bill not yet read.

Section 17 of chapter 2 of the House Practice book states in part, "It is not in order to strike or otherwise amend portions of a bill not yet read for amendment."

And for that reason I would make a point of order.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). The gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) has raised a point of order. Does the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT) wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, if I may have a colloquy with the chairman?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Chair cannot entertain a colloquy on a point of order.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

INTERNATIONAL NARCOTICS CONTROL AND LAW ENFORCEMENT

For an additional amount for "International Narcotics Control and Law Enforcement", $107,700,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BURTON OF INDIANA

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BURTON of Indiana:

Page 28, line 9, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $26,300,000) (increased by $26,300,000)".

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, I have discussed at length with the chairman of the subcommittee from Arizona and the chairman of the full committee the problems that we faced with Plan Colombia.

In the last 5 or 6 years, there have been 23 aircraft lost that are vitally important to the drug interdiction problem that we are facing. This chart shows you where the drugs are coming from and where they are going according to our intelligence agencies. And once drugs, heroin and cocaine, get beyond Colombia, 65 percent of them, almost two-thirds of them, work their way into the United States onto the streets, into the schools, into the playgrounds of this country.

President Uribe just came out up here recently and told us without the additional assets that are asked for in this amendment, he will not be able to do the job in dealing with the drug problem that we face here in America. So we have to decide as a Congress are we going to continue to fight the war against drugs or are we going to start acquiescing? Are we going to start caving in?

According to President Uribe, they need 23 aircraft. We have talked to the appropriators, and I really appreciate Mr. KOLBE for working on this, and Mr. LEWIS, the chairman. We have decided on a compromise right now. I hope that will help President Uribe. It is not going to solve the problem, but at least it is a step in the right direction.

What it does is provides three DC-3s, which will be able to surveil the area and help us interdict these drugs that are getting beyond Colombia and up into the United States. They have been doing a good job without all the assets they need, and with these additional DC-3s, which have all the technology that is necessary to police this area, it should help a great deal.

Make no mistake about it. We still need the Hueys. We still need the Blackhawks. Something like 70 percent of the aircraft they have used in this area have been destroyed in the last 5 or 6 years, and they need help down there. And President Uribe himself came all the way to the United States to make a plea for this help.

I have talked to the Speaker about it as well as the leaders of the Committee on Appropriations. And I hope my colleagues on the Democrat side as well will see fit to support this. We have a war against drugs. I have some colleagues who serve with me on the Government Reform Committee that told me in Baltimore there is an 80 percent increase in the amount of heroin usage in the minority community. If we are going to deal with that problem, we have to provide the resources for President Uribe and the Colombian national police and the Colombian military to deal with this problem.

In addition to that, we have other problems in South America and Central America that need to be dealt with which this equipment will also help us with. And we also have the problem with possible terrorists coming in. This surveillance effort will help in that regard as well.

I have a lot more things I would like to say, but I understand my time is about expired. I hope you will accept this amendment and I really appreciate you working with us.

Mr. Chairman, I thank Chairman HYDE, chairman DAVIS, Congressman SOUDER, Congressman CHABOT and the staff of the International Relations Committee for their exceptional work on crafting this critically important amendment.

Colombian President Alvaro Uribe is a key ally in the War on Drugs and a strong ally in Latin America. Last year, under his leadership and with U.S. and international support, Colombia succeeded in destroying 170,000 hectares of illegal coca (aerial and manual eradication), thus removing a potential 150 metric tons of cocaine with a street value of over $15 billion. Colombia's police and military forces captured or shared in the capture of another 223 metric tons of cocaine and cocaine base.

Despite these many successes, experience has taught us that if the cocaine and heroin make it to the coasts of Colombia, it has a 65 percent chance of getting into the United States. This is due, in part, to the reduction in assets monitoring the trafficking routes. We have excellent intelligence, we know where the smugglers are going but we lack the assets in theater to properly intercept the drugs headed our way.

Since 2000, we have witnessed—and thanks to aggressive oversight efforts by this Congress exposed—a nearly 70 percent reduction in military Marine Patrol Aircraft (MPA) used to interdict these deadly drugs after they reach the Colombian coast.

Furthermore, more than 23 aircraft including fixed wing spray planes and helicopters of the Colombian National Police (CNP) have been lost in action. The losses include both Black Hawk and Huey 2 helicopters used by the police anti-drug units in support of high altitude eradication of the opium crop. In 2003 alone, nearly 25 percent of the aircraft used in spray operations were lost, and they have not been replaced as of yet.

We cannot continue to enjoy even modest success at interdicting and destroying these drugs unless we make up these losses.

The Burton Amendment will restore critical anti-narcotic air and surface assets in the Colombian Navy and National police. The Amendment provides for $99.4 million in counter-drug emergency assistance to help replace some of the 23 Colombian National Police (CNP) aircraft lost in the fight against narco-terrorism since 2000. The money will also provide three (3) new aircraft to serve as Marine Patrol Aircraft (MPA) for the Colombian Navy's drug interdiction efforts. In addition, the proposal will cover the operational and maintenance expenses for two year for these new aircraft.

I know that many of my colleagues are concerned about the cost of this amendment and the fact that we've asked for the funds to be considered as emergency spending.

I would respectfully remind those of my colleagues who oppose this amendment that the streets of America are awash in drugs. Because many of our own military maritime and air interdiction assets were removed from the Caribbean basin to deal with the challenges of homeland security after 9/11, we have left critical gaps in our drug interdiction net. The end result is that today the Central American Transit Zone is being exploited by drug-traffickers like never before.

We ignore this problem at our own peril, as the very routes being used to ship dangers narcotics to our shores could just as easily be used to smuggle in terrorists or weapons of mass destruction. Although there is no solid evidence yet of Central and South America traffickers and Al-Qaeda, many law enforcement officials have commented on the positive benefits to both groups from such a linkage. I believe it is not a question of if Al-Qaeda will try to exploit this glaring hole in our security net but when. The emergency is now and it is very real.

Spending this modest sum now to consolidate the major gains of the Plan Colombia program and strengthen our homeland security effort will save us far more money in comparison to the potential cost of cleaning up the mess should we allow Plan Colombia to ultimately fail, or al-Qaeda to exploit this situation to kill thousands more innocent Americans.

I respectfully ask my colleagues to vote for this amendment.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

With great respect for my colleague, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment though I think he raises a valid concern. I just returned from Colombia, and I think there is a real need to boost the Colombian government's interdiction efforts. I think, in fact, I think that greater focus on interdiction may well be more effective than our current emphasis on eradication. However, I think the responsibility for funding this program lies first and foremost with the Colombian government.

The President of Colombia was in Washington just a few weeks ago and met with Chairman KOLBE and me. He did not indicate to us any pressing need for this assistance. In fact, I believe the State Department is seeking to reprogram funds away from Colombian aviation programs and the Colombian national police to finance the demobilization programs.

That said, I do agree that the gentleman raises an important point. I think it is time that we look at a different mix for funding for Colombia, one that boosts spending on alternate development and interdiction programs and reduces funding for eradication programs which I think are ineffective at best. However, I think this amendment is better considered in the context of FY 2007 appropriations process where a more comprehensive discussion of the Colombia program can take place, and I think that is what is really needed here.

There is no emergency requirement for the funding. It does not belong in the supplemental. Therefore, I do urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, as the gentleman from Indiana has indicated, this amendment he has offered here does represent a compromise that we have worked out so I do rise to say that we support this amendment. Let me say I do agree with my colleague, the ranking member of the subcommittee, the gentlewoman from New York, in many of comments that she made. It is correct that when President Uribe, for whom I have the greatest respect and believe he has been one of the truly great leaders of Colombia in recent decades, I think when President Uribe came to visit with us, he did not give us any indication that this was the money that he was seeking, that he needed additional funds for.

However, having said that, I believe this is an important aspect of our efforts to interdict drugs coming to Central America and Mexico, and then on into the United States. For us it is the frontline of our war against drugs, and for that reason I do think that this amount which represents a reasonable compromise and does not damage our other programs from which the funds are taken in Iraq, for that reason, I think it is one that can be supported.

Mr. Chairman, I would support this amendment.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, after 7 years of work on anti-narcotic efforts in Colombia, we are now seeing the fruits of our labors in the drug wars. Americans, and especially our young people, are greatly benefiting here at home from our policies in Colombia and the strong support of the government of President Alvaro Uribe.

We are concerned, however, with the recent waning support by some in the administration for our vital counterdrug initiatives. A focused part of our war on drugs is comprised of the interdiction and spray airplanes used by the Colombian police and military. We have funded a number of these aircraft, but several have been lost because of serious maintenance problems or have been shot down or destroyed.

Since the year 2000, more than 23 aircraft, including spray planes and vital helicopters, have crashed or been lost in action. This includes one of the original Black Hawk helicopters which we in the Congress obtained for the Colombian National Police, CNP, to use against the opium crops as early as 1999. The administration's FY07 budget fails to address these shortfalls.

Moreover, after some correspondence, the State Department dismissed my recent call for the replacement of these aircraft.

What we need is a small, but targeted, assistance package to replace lost anti-drug aircraft and to provide a few new Marine Patrol Aircraft, MPA, of modest cost for the Colombian Navy. We are asking that $99.4 million be directed for the operational costs of maintaining and replacing aircraft used by the Colombian police and military for drug interdiction efforts.

Of that $99.4 million, we ask for $31 million to be allocated for the purchase and operation of ten Huey II helicopters, $40 million be used for the purchase and operation of two UH-60 Black Hawks, one of which will be dedicated to interdicting high value targets, HVT, $2 million to be given toward the upgrade and purchase of flight simulators to be used by the CNP for training on safety and night operations, and $26.4 million to be allocated for the purchase and operation of three DC-3 aircraft which will be used by the Colombian Navy as Marine Patrol Aircraft for multi-role shore interdiction and support missions.

The assistance we provide to Colombia is equally as important to the United States as our assistance in fighting terrorism in Iraq and Afghanistan. Let us not forget, more Americans die each year from using deadly heroin and cocaine that originate from nearby Colombia than did those on the day of the 9/11 attacks in New York, Pennsylvania, and at the Pentagon. We must continue to sustain our war against drugs and the progress we have been witnessing in Colombia.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) will be postponed.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) a question. As the gentleman knows there is a tradition of courtesy in this House which dictates that when either party has a function that the House will not be in session beyond say 5 or 6 o'clock.

We have made an exception this evening despite the fact that there was a dispute in the Republican caucus earlier in the day, which ate up an extra hour and a half and despite the fact that we have been told that other legislation needed to be brought to the floor. We still indicated our desire to cooperate in establishing a time limit, because we were trying to facilitate the Members of both parties leaving here tomorrow afternoon.

It now appears to me that despite our willingness to do that, we are getting a continual stream of new amendments being produced on the majority side, which are preventing us from reaching a time agreement that would enable us to get out of here at a reasonable hour tomorrow afternoon. I would like to know what the status of the situation is because at this point, I frankly see no purpose in continuing tonight if all we are going to do is give people more time to draft more amendments.

We have imposed a deadline on our side of the aisle and told Members that amendments will not be considered if they come in after a certain hour. But my understanding is on the Republican side there are still amendments coming in and the majority is being pressured to put them on the list. I do not mind working cooperatively, but I do mind when I am being taken advantage of.

I want to suggest that if we can not reach an agreement on time within the next 10 minutes, I for one intend to move to adjourn.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. If I could respond to the gentleman, the gentleman has been more than cooperative and I appreciate what he has to say.

From this gentleman's perspective, it is not our intention to take any additional amendments. We are very, very close to an agreement and I would hope that you and I can see our way through this long enough, a few minutes to make sure that we can get out at a reasonable time.

Mr. OBEY. I want it understood that if we do not have an agreement in 10 minutes, I will move to adjourn.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I always understand the gentleman.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

MIGRATION AND REFUGEE ASSISTANCE

For an additional amount for "Migration and Refugee Assistance", $51,200,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

For an additional amount for "International Affairs Technical Assistance", $13,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, what I am trying to do still in the interest of cooperation tonight, I am trying to filibuster until Mr. CAPUANO, who is ready to offer the amendment, is ready to offer at this point.

Could I ask if the gentleman is ready? He is ready. This is probably the shortest filibuster in the history of the House.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

MILITARY ASSISTANCE

FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT
PEACEKEEPING OPERATIONS

For an additional amount for "Peacekeeping Operations", $123,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

□ 1930

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CAPUANO
Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CAPUANO:
Page 29, line 10, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $50,000,000)".

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Chairman, in July of 2004 this House declared atrocities in Darfur to be a genocide. Since that time, actually since 2003, 400,000 people at least have died; 200,000 people are in refugee camps in Chad; 2.5 million people are displaced within Darfur. Over half the population has been affected.

The President has used the word "genocide." The Secretary of State has used the word "genocide." The whole world knows what is going on in Darfur.

Many Members of this House, including many Members on both sides of this aisle, have been very active in this issue. In this bill there is already a lot of money appropriated to continue funding the African Union mission that is currently providing 7,700 troops in Darfur to protect the people that are there. However, everyone knows that that is insufficient. The A.U. is doing a good job with the number of troops it has and with the resources it has, but we all know that it needs more.

The President himself has asked to double the number of troops in the Darfur region. I agree with him. Everybody who watches this issue agrees with him. We have to do something.

The money that is in this bill will maintain the A.U. mission, which is a good thing. However, maintaining it is insufficient.

It will eventually become a mission, and that is a good thing. I hope most of us, if not all of us, will support it. That will take 6 to 9 months at the least. In the meantime, maintaining the current situation is unacceptable. Therefore, I have asked for an additional $50 million to be put forward to enhance that mission.

I understand there is some concern about adding more troops with this money. This money can be used for several different items. It is not just boots on the ground.

First of all, money is fungible. Second of all, these troops also have major problems with communication on the ground, with technical planning on the ground, with equipment on the ground that this money can be used for. This money will be our effort to build a bridge between the current situation and the situation that we all are trying to get to, which hopefully will take less than 9 months.

That is why I offer this amendment. That is why I hope it passes.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I do rise in opposition to this amendment, and I know some of my colleagues may question why that would be the case, but I think there is a very good and sound reason for that, and I hope the gentleman from Massachusetts will listen to this.

As Members will know, our committee has supported $290 million for the African Union for the AMIS fund. That is the African Military in Sudan support fund. $123 million, that is in this bill. I have been to the Darfur region twice in the last 18 months, and I have seen the very difficult conditions under which this African Union force is working, and I have been pushing the State Department to come up with a strategy as to what would be the future for the A.U. fund.

So, with all of the support that the subcommittee has shown so far for this effort, why are we opposing this additional funding?

Well, the Members may come from both sides of the aisle to the floor and claim that this funding is critical to saving lives in Darfur, but the simple fact is that this will not do that. It does nothing of the kind. In fact, it could actually be counterproductive.

Let me explain why I say that.

There is now an agreement between all the parties, the African Union, the administration and the United Nations, that the African Union force we call AMIS, A-M-I-S, should transition to a United Nations force. Just this last Friday, the African Union announced its support for such a transition and extended the mandate of the AMIS force until the end of this fiscal year. I have their communique in my hand here suggesting that it will be extended and then there would be a transition to a United Nations force. The administration's request, which is fully funded in the bill before us, will fulfill the U.S. contribution to maintain the AMIS force until that time.

If we were to adopt these additional funds, we are basically saying that we do not agree with the idea that this force should be transitioned to a United Nations force. We are saying we want to add additional funds to keep it an African Union fund and not transition it to a United Nations force.

That, Mr. Chairman, would be a mistake. Because there is no question the African Union has made it clear they cannot expand the force. They are willing to extend it for the time being until it can be transitioned to the United Nations force, but they have no capability and no intention of expanding the force. So to put these additional moneys in here to expand the force simply says that we are opposed to transitioning it to a United Nations force where we could have the proper size and the proper forces attached to this.

So that is why I say this amendment actually would be counterproductive to what the gentleman from Massachusetts seeks to do. It is for that reason that I cannot support the message that we would send with this amendment.

If the situation in Darfur is not resolved by the end of the year, this force should be transitioned to the United Nations force where we have seen over and over again it has the capability of dealing with this kind of peacekeeping operation, from Bosnia to other places around the world.

So I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment. They will not be voting against the AMIS, the African Military in Sudan, the A.U. force, that is there. They will instead, by rejecting this amendment, they will be voting for a coordinated effort to truly bring stability to the troubled region of Darfur; and, for that reason, I would urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, more than a year and a half ago, the House and Senate voted unanimously to condemn the genocide in Darfur, and yet every day more people die, and the slow genocide persists unabated.

It is beyond imagination that the collective might and concerted will of the nations of the world cannot find a way to end this daily toll of human misery. Mr. Chairman, I hope and pray that Sudan will allow the U.N. peacekeeping mission to move forward so we can end this devastation. While we wait, however, we must find ways to make the African Union mission more effective.

I would note to my colleagues that the problem in Sudan has not generally been a lack of resources. With bipartisan support, often under Democratic initiative, the Congress has provided over $1.3 billion in assistance for Darfur and southern Sudan. This assistance has been and continues to be needed, and we are committed to providing it.

The primary problem, in my opinion, has been a lack of political will from the government of Sudan, from the international community and, to some extent, from the United States. Until we address these issues of political will, I am afraid we will be forced to rely on solutions that treat the symptoms without curing the disease.

I support this amendment because it seeks to make a bad situation better. I thank the gentleman for offering it.

I also want to acknowledge the leadership of members of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee, specifically Representatives JACKSON and KILPATRICK of Michigan and especially Chairman KOLBE, who have worked diligently to bring attention and focus to the situation in Darfur.

For those reasons, I will support the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO) will be postponed.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS CHAPTER
(INCLUDING TRANSFER AND RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

SEC. 1301. Funds appropriated or made available by transfer in this chapter may be obligated and expended notwithstanding section 313 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103-236).

Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006: Provided further, That none of the funds provided under this heading may be obligated or expended until after that date on which the Secretary of Defense submits an updated master plan for overseas military infrastructure to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and Senate: Provided further, That, subject to the preceding proviso, $60,000,000 of the funds provided under this heading may not be obligated or expended until after that date on which the Secretary of Defense submits a detailed plan for Counter IED/Urban Bypass Roads, Iraq, to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and Senate.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, AIR FORCE

For an additional amount for "Military Construction, Air Force", $35,600,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, such funds may be obligated and expended to carry out planning and design and military construction projects not otherwise authorized by law: Provided further, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006: Provided further, That none of the funds provided under this heading may be obligated or expended until after that date on which the Secretary of Defense submits an updated master plan for overseas military infrastructure to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and Senate.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. SALAZAR

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. SALAZAR: In chapter 5 of title I, after the paragraph relating to "MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, AIR FORCE", insert the following:

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

DEPARTMENTAL ADMINISTRATION

GENERAL OPERATING EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "General Operating Expenses", $70,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION

MEDICAL SERVICES

For an additional amount for "Medical Services", $560,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. Chairman, I believe that this Congress needs to recognize that caring for our veterans is a continuing cost of the war on terrorism.

My amendment adds $630 million in emergency funding so that the VA can better meet the needs of veterans returning home from Iraq and Afghanistan, and with this financial relief the VA will also be able to provide better care to the heroes of earlier conflicts.

Here is the situation. The VA projected that it would treat 110,000 Operation Iraqi and Enduring Freedom veterans this fiscal year. At the end of January, the first third of the fiscal year, the VA had already treated 74,000 veterans. At this rate, the VA will treat twice the number of veterans than projected.

Our veterans need our support now. There is no better place to include funding for our veterans and military families than in the bill addressing the costs of the war.

First, I have added $250 million for mental health. According to a recent Army study, as many as one in three veterans returning from combat operations in Iraq and Afghanistan will experience symptoms related to mental health problems.

This amendment will make available $9 million to expand veterans' access to family therapy; $168 million to implement the VA's own Comprehensive Mental Health Plan; $24 million for additional substance abuse treatment, one in five post-traumatic stress disorder patients have had substance abuse problems; $35 million to increase capacity to treat returning Iraq and Afghanistan veterans who need outpatient mental health services; $15 million for increased in-patient PTSD treatments, about a 12 percent increase; $3 million to increase staffing for VA efforts to seamlessly transition returning veterans with the Post-Deployment Health Assessment.

The VA is seeing more and more veterans from previous conflicts with post-traumatic stress disorder. This is a growing concern, and it is smart to provide quality mental health care to our returning veterans now and help forestall greater problems and more expense in the future.

The amendment also adds $110 million for prosthetics, a 10 percent increase. We all marvel at what we have done today to help return veterans to a full life, but it is not cheap. Above-knee replacement costs about $50,000, and then it needs periodic adjustment and maintenance. In past years, the VA prosthetic budget had grown by 17 percent a year. By 2007, the administration would cut back the growth to 12 percent. Now is certainly not the time to cut these important programs.

In another area, I added $200 million for direct medical services. Just like last year, we are already hearing anecdotes about shortages at VA medical facilities. Supply problems, budget problems, we do not need a crystal ball to make these predictions. With all the extra new veterans in need of medical care, there will be another budget shortfall.

This is by no means the fault of the men and women in the VA. The VA has made a real innovation by establishing state-of-the-art polytrauma centers, but they cost real money. These centers treat the worst injuries, sharing information with one another and military hospitals by videophone.

The amendment also adds $15 million for medical and vocational rehabilitation services. Service-disabled veterans applying for vocational rehabilitation and employment services increased dramatically over the last decade, roughly a 75 percent increase. Demand for this service will grow even faster due to the ongoing conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Finally, the amendment includes $55 million for increased staffing to process the growing number of disability claims. Currently, the backlog is more than 370,000 cases, and it is getting worse. In 2005, the VA was averaging 167 days to process one of these claims.

In 2006, it has grown to 185 days. In a time of war, we need to treat our heroes well. Slowing down the process of disability claims is a slap in the face.

Before closing, I would like to acknowledge Chairman WALSH's recognizing that there is a need for VA funding. In fact, he was good enough to grant the VA authority to use $275 million for the construction of a VA Hospital in New Orleans on a need basis.

VA facilities are already feeling the crunch when it comes to their budgets. Why are we not preparing for the future? Why are we willing to let the VA funding run out this year? Why is this administration not willing to fully fund the true cost of the war?

I am here to tell you that we can do better and we must do better. Our troops bravely put their lives on the line and it is our moral duty to provide them the care they were promised. Mr. Chairman, it is high time we stop paying lip service to our veterans and realize that caring for veterans is an ongoing cost of the war. It is high time that we start working towards providing the VA with the tools needed to provide proper care for our servicemen and -women.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support the amendment and to support the brave men and women in uniform.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The amendment includes an emergency designation and as such, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI, and I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). A point of order has been made against the amendment. Does any Member wish to address the point of order?

The Chair will rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes an emergency designation. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The point of order is sustained and the amendment is not in order.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

GENERAL PROVISION—THIS CHAPTER

SEC. 1501. The matter under the heading "Veterans Health Administration—Medical Services" in chapter 7 of title I of division B of Public Law 109-148 is amended by inserting after "calendar year 2005" the following: "and for unanticipated costs related to the Global War on Terror": Provided, That the provisions of this section are designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

CHAPTER 6

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

LEGAL ACTIVITIES

SALARIES AND EXPENSES, UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses, United States Attorneys", $3,000,000: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses", $99,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That no funding provided in this Act shall be available for obligation for a new or enhanced information technology program unless the Deputy Attorney General and the investment review board certify to the Committees on Appropriations that the information technology program has appropriate program management and contractor oversight mechanisms in place, and that the program is compatible with the enterprise architecture of the Department of Justice and Federal Bureau of Investigation: Provided further, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

DRUG ENFORCEMENT ADMINISTRATION SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses", $5,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KIRK

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KIRK:

Page 34, line 22, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $9,200,000)".

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Chairman, I thank the Chair, and I want to particularly thank Mr. OBEY of Wisconsin and our chairman, Mr. LEWIS of California, for their work on this.

This amendment addresses a critical need in the drug war in Afghanistan. Since the U.S. coalition forces arrived in Afghanistan, Afghanistan has become the source of three-quarters of the world's heroin supply. We know what a failed state in Afghanistan leads to. In our new counternarcotic operations in Afghanistan, the United States is about to launch a major operation in the Helmand River Valley, where over half of the heroin crop is raised. In doing this, Afghan forces, including their police, will be hitting drug labs, and we need to collect critical information as those operations unfold.

This amendment would provide for critical tools on an aircraft already owned by the Drug Enforcement Agency to collect information on drug traffickers, and especially on kingpins who could be connected to terror. On this, I very much support the work of Chairman WOLF.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KIRK. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. The committee accepts the amendment and congratulates the Member for doing this to help DEA. I think he makes a very powerful point.

Mr. KIRK. Thank you.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment would provide this critical platform to give the tools necessary for Drug Enforcement Agency to be the most effective they can be against Afghan drug kingpins. We already have 120 dedicated drug enforcement personnel on the ground helping Afghan police to carry out this mission. Chairman HYDE, Chairman ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN, and I have backed this amendment because we feel it is critical for DEA to have these tools now to apply the lessons learned in Colombia to build a success in the coming operations in Afghanistan.

It is also important to note that this House supported amendments to the PATRIOT Act, which now make it a crime to deal in heroin for the support of terror without the need to show a connection to the U.S. market. We have seen Afghan drug dealers and terrorists killing U.S. troops, including two from the 10th Mountain Division, and this tool and the legal authorities that the House just provided are critical in helping force protection and adding to the tools that we need to continue this conflict in the most effective way.

So with that, I urge adoption of this amendment. It is a modest addition to this bill and provides a critical tool that will very quickly, dramatically assist in DEA's operation in Afghanistan.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this amendment is to secure funding for an aerial surveillance platform to be used for counternarcotics efforts by the agents and personnel of our Drug Enforcement Administration, DEA, in Afghanistan.

The 9/11 Commission has made it clear that if Afghanistan were to again fall into failed-state status, we would be set back in our war on terror.

The growing opium and heroin trade provides for that possibility. The massive opium crop helps finance terrorism and anticoalition attacks and hampers the effective growth of peace and stability in the region. The drug trade also fuels corruption, which undermines the new democratic institutions we have worked so hard to establish.

We must vigorously pursue, interdict, and arrest the drug kingpins and shut down their operations. The just-signed PATRIOT Act has an additional provision I authored, creating a new Federal offense of narco-terrorism, to be enforced by the DEA against those who use illicit drugs and proceeds from their sales to support or fund terrorist acts or organizations, in places like Afghanistan.

In order to enable the DEA to enforce the new legislation, it is important for it to have the appropriate tools. An aerial surveillance platform provides both "force protection" of its dedicated and courageous personnel, as well as a platform for gathering judicially enforceable and prosecutable evidence of drug-related crimes. This evidence can be used in this country as a means of prosecuting and bringing to justice the drug kingpins and their cohorts.

If Afghanistan were to revert to its former failed-state status, the United States would be dealt a severe blow in its global war on terror. We cannot expect the Afghan legal system to effectively combat the drug problem in that country.

Thus, it is critical that we take the appropriate measures to ensure security and stability in Afghanistan. This modest $9.2 million amendment is one huge step toward that goal.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

BUREAU OF ALCOHOL, TOBACCO, FIREARMS AND EXPLOSIVES SALARIES AND EXPENSES

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. DOGGETT

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 8 offered by Mr. DOGGETT: Page 35, line 20, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $7,800,000)".

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, this $7.8 million State Department amendment that I offer tonight on behalf of myself, Mr. ORTIZ, and Mr. REYES empowers you, Mr. Chairman, and you, Mr. WOLF, as our important subcommittee chairman, and the conferees to address a serious threat to the lives and livelihood of tens of thousands of Texans who call home an area along the southernmost tip of our country that encompasses three congressional districts.

Consistent with the rule under which this bill is being considered, these dollars would simply go to the State Department. But I believe in conference you would be able to clarify, consistent with tonight's debate, that it is designed to upgrade the Federal levees along the Rio Grande that are under the exclusive control of the International Boundary and Water Commission, an agency within the State Department.

Exactly 1,018 days ago, the administration received what was really an alarming report from within its own State Department that our Federal levees along the Rio Grande are up to 9 feet deficient in height, geologically flawed, structurally unsound, and would overtop along some 38 river miles. We know that the time to make repairs is when the sun is shining, not when the flood is coming. The kind of wall that we need along our borders, along our southern border, is a wall to hold in a swollen Rio Grande river. A levee.

What do the levees' weaknesses reported by the State Department mean if you live in the Rio Grande Valley? Well, this is an aerial photo of much of that area. It includes the poorest SMSA, statistical metropolitan area, in the United States: Mission, McAllen, Pharr, and Hidalgo. Hardworking people, small businesses, mission hospital, nursing homes, schools, Balboa Acres neighborhood, along with many others. That is what they look like today on an aerial photo.

What happens if the levees' break? That is what they will look like. They are going to be underwater. And the best way to reach these places is going to be by boat. If the Federal levees are not maintained adequately, and they have not been maintained adequately according to the State Department itself, we will lose 80 percent of our fresh water supply in McAllen, Texas. We will lose two-thirds of the sewer system, which will become unworkable.

That is what we call an emergency, as in emergency supplemental appropriations, in south Texas. We believe that the need is urgent, and that is why some 39 local governments across our three congressional districts, Chambers of Commerce and economic development corporations have pled with the administration to respond to this need.

Last year, under the leadership of Chairman WOLF and Ranking Member MOLLOHAN, the State Department appropriations bill that this Congress passed called on the President for additional funding. Afterwards, Chairman WOLF and Mr. MOLLOHAN wrote Secretary of State Rice a letter asking for support for rehabilitating these levees, recognizing how many people would suffer if they were not rehabilitated, and noting from their letter, that "this impacts the safety of the citizens of the Valley."

Of course, the Valley levees are not the only levees in the country that have problems. I know, Mr. LEWIS, that your own State of California has concerns in Sacramento. I would say to you that our situation is unique and different in several particulars. This flooded area, with deficient levees, are exclusively Federal levees that only the Federal Government can remedy because they are along an international border under the control of the State Department.

Second, we are in a hurricane area, a high hurricane area. Last year, we ran out of names we had so many hurricanes, and this year promises another severe hurricane season. But for the fate of nature, the hurricane that hit New Orleans could just as easily have tacked west instead of tacking east and caused just the scenario that is displayed here tonight on this aerial photo.

What I propose, Mr. Chairman, is to add about half a percent, less than the increase that the chairman just agreed to for the last amendment, about half a percent to the $1.3 billion in the State Department, and ask that you clarify in conference that it is to meet a need that I know you are aware exists, and I believe you are trying to respond to. And I believe the State Department recognized and wanted that in this emergency appropriations bill, but somewhere in the bureaucratic process this was not included.

I know that there is more work we will be doing together. I appreciate the meeting that was held today with representatives from south Texas concerning this problem with Mr. WOLF's staff and the meeting we will have tomorrow with the International Boundary and Water Commission. We have our request coming up in the regular appropriations process. But without an emergency appropriation, I believe that the Federal Government really is not meeting its responsibility, a responsibility to the lives and livelihoods of the good hardworking people along the Texas Rio Grande Valley.

That is all this amendment is trying to do, knowing that it could be this summer in hurricane season, it could be next year or the year after. Every day, every month we delay, a thousand days has been enough, and that we need to move forward in addressing this concern now. I thank you.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

I am kind of surprised the amendment came up, to a certain extent. The gentleman from Texas, not this gentleman, but the gentleman he referred to, just came into town, and I have not had an opportunity to talk to him. I thought I was going to get to talk to him, and we felt that we were going out of our way to help.

The President has been requesting funding for the Lower Rio Grande Flood Control project for years and has again requested funding in the President's budget for 2007.

There are other areas of the country that have this problem, and so to do it here and not there, and there are gang problems around the Nation. Let us forget the full bills and put everything into the supplemental and so we can just have one big supplemental and not have to pass any other bills.

But to go through the normal process, the gentleman from Texas brought the issue of the Lower Rio Grande Valley Flood Control project to my attention last year. As a result, we included language in the IBWC account directing more funds be provided above the President's request for this project.

A week ago, the gentleman talked to me about additional moneys for the project in the fiscal year 2007 process. Funding for the International Boundary Water Commission should be addressed in the regular bill. This request does not belong in an emergency supplemental, and I urge a "no" vote on the Doggett amendment.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DOGGETT. I respect the subcommittee chairman's comments. I do not think he or the Appropriations Committee or the chairman of the full committee are the problem. They recognized this problem last year when they asked the State Department to take additional action. The State Department took additional action, and I believe they asked to be included in this emergency appropriations bill.

We need help in the regular appropriations cycle. We will need that help not just this year but every year for probably the next 10 years. It is a modest amount. All we are asking for is $7.8 million to add to the $2.2 million that was appropriated last year, the $10 million a year that this part of the State Department has been saying since 2003 that they need to avert disaster.

So tonight I would ask all of my colleagues to join with us in meeting an emergency with an emergency appropriation, and then we will strive to work together in a positive, bipartisan way to address what I know the committee recognizes to be a real, genuine, urgent problem.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. HINOJOSA

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 3 offered by Mr. HINOJOSA.

In the item relating to "DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR AFFAIRS", after "United States Institute of Peace", insert "": Provided further, That of the amount made available under this heading, $10,000,000 shall be available for the United States Section of the International Boundary Water Commission, United States and Mexico".

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I plan to withdraw my amendment after I give a summary of the serious condition of the floodway levee system near the Rio Grande River in Texas.

My friend and colleague, Mr. LLOYD DOGGETT, has brought some charts and shown what he understands to be the problem. I was born and raised there. I remember 1967 when six brothers were told by my dad that we were going to stop and shut down our business to go and help control what was happening on our levees that just could not stand the over 28 feet of water that was coming down the Rio Grande River and that our levee system was unable to stand up to that pressure.

So I am here to say that we today are appropriating billions of dollars to help New Orleans recover because we did not spend the millions necessary to maintain our levee system. Because of our shortsightedness, the residents of New Orleans are displaced and many died trying to escape the flood waters. I am here today to plead with you to not let this tragedy happen in my part of the country.

The International Boundary Water Commission is charged with maintaining over 500 miles of levees along the U.S.-Mexico border. A recent study by the U.S. Corps of Engineers shows that numerous sections of these levees are too weak, they are too low to hold back flood waters from the devastating Rio Grande River.

More than a million people call the Rio Grande Valley home, and 2.5 million people live on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande River. This region is the poorest in the Nation, and I am sure we do not want to see more images on television of the poorest of the poor losing what little they have.

My colleagues in Congress need to know that the Rio Grande Valley is also the gateway through which much of our Nation's commerce flows. Should a devastating flood hit the valley, factories and small businesses in Indiana, Illinois, New York, and throughout the Nation will shut down because of their inability to get just-in-time deliveries of the parts and supplies from maquiladoras that come through the valley's international border ports.

My constituents are not only afraid of the effects of a category 4 or category 5 hurricane, such as we experienced with Hurricane Beulah in 1967, but we are worried that even a slow-moving tropical storm could make them homeless like their neighbors in New Orleans. Heavy rains in the mountains of northern Mexico could cause a catastrophe because those flood waters empty into the Rio Grande River in areas from El Paso to Laredo to Roma and to Brownsville, Texas.

The IBWC estimates that $125 million would fix all of our inadequate floodway levees in South Texas.

My border colleagues and I, in a bipartisan collaboration with other members of the Texas delegation, will be asking the appropriators for most of this funding over a 5-year period or sooner through the regular appropriations process.

This evening, I spoke with Chairman WOLF and have agreed to work with him on ways to resolve these concerns. I welcome that opportunity.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GARRETT OF NEW JERSEY

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey:

Page 35, line 20, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $5,000,000)".

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I have come to the floor tonight to address the issue of an emergency supplemental in which we are spending upwards of $15 million more in essence on what I call foreign aid. I am here tonight on this particular amendment to strike approximately $5 million of that foreign aid.

As I stated before and as people look to this program and what we do here tonight, one must wonder what makes this situation an emergency. Well, the committee itself raised that same question when they said, "The committee is disappointed in the Department of State's failure to provide adequate and timely justification for the emergency nature of these funds."

What are these funds going to? These funds are going to the country of Iran. An ally of ours? Not by any stretch of the imagination. In fact, Iran has been called by this administration part of the Axis of Evil. Iran is a country that wishes to wipe Israel off the face of the map. In fact, the President of Iran has even said that they wish to wipe the United States off the face of the map.

So one wonders who at the State Department was looking at this situation in the past and did not know that there was a need for funds in this particular area, either in the past budget which we have already gone through or in the budget process that we are going through as we speak now. Apparently no one knew at the State Department that Iran is a problem country that we have to deal with and needed additional funding for, and so they come to us at the last minute with a supplemental emergency appropriation.

With all of the problems that we have today in this country, now is not the time to be adding more to our Nation's debt for foreign aid. Other portions of this bill certainly have merit to them. Portions, for example, for aid to our soldiers. Our men and women who find themselves in harm's way as we speak here tonight need the additional dollars and cents to get the job done here.

We have heard also the issues with regard to the folks down in the gulf coast, and there is additional funding for that program as well, to assist those people in New Orleans and elsewhere as far as their needed relief.

But do we need to spend additional emergency funds tonight for foreign aid in essence for diplomatic and consulate programs for Iran, not by any stretch of the imagination an ally of this country?

Mr. Chairman, I would suggest we should not. This is not a program that we will be putting on the burdens of today's taxpayers. No, we will be putting this burden on our children and our children's children. Why is that? It is because we are already in deficit spending in this Nation, and the emergency supplemental we are debating tonight will simply add to that debt and add to that burden.

I encourage my colleagues to support this amendment, to strike this additional foreign aid which is not an emergency by any stretch of the imagination.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I would tell the body, this really is not foreign aid. You cannot pick up the newspaper without seeing the threat that Iran is to the Nation. This is a priority of the administration, but a priority of everyone who cares with regard to changing the government that we have in Iran. I do not know how you put it, but it is not aid. Iran is a threat to the United States. Is that a fact? I think you would have a very hard time finding anybody who says, no, it is not a fact. It is.

Iran is developing a nuclear bomb. I have seen some reports that say it may be within 18 months to 2 years of having a nuclear bomb.

The Iranian government is intent on destroying Israel. The Iranian government is the one who funded the bombing of the Marines barracks in 1993 where 241 marines died. They fund Hezbollah. They are the ones creating the problem in Lebanon. They are the ones involved in the funding and the blowing up of the American embassy in Beirut, the first embassy and the second embassy.

We need to do everything we can to change the government and get information to the people. So what the administration is trying to do is to have some public diplomacy, to basically do what Democrat administrations and Republican administrations have done during the Cold War: public diplomacy, exchange programs, change their government through peaceful means.

This is not foreign aid. I would say on behalf of anyone who thinks that Iran is a danger, please, I would urge a "no" vote on this amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT) will be postponed.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For an additional amount for "Office of Inspector General", $25,300,000, to remain available until September 2007, of which $24,000,000 shall be transferred to the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction for reconstruction oversight: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey) having assumed the chair, Mr. GINGREY, Acting Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

Each such amendment may be offered only by the Member named in this request or a designee or by the Member who caused it to be printed in the RECORD or a designee, shall be considered as read, shall not be subject to amendment except that the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations each may offer one pro forma amendment for the purpose of debate; and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

Except as otherwise specified, each amendment shall be debatable for 10 minutes, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent. An amendment shall be considered to fit the description stated in this request if it addresses in whole or in part the object described.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I certainly will not, I simply want to point out that right now we are at page 35 in the bill. There are some 83 pages in the bill; and after we dispose of the amendments on those pages, we still have at least 24 amendments that come at the end of the bill, which means that unless we have considerable Member cooperation, we are going to be here deep into tonight and deep into tomorrow night. So I would invite Members to understand what the situation is with respect to the number of amendments still before us.

With that, I withdraw my reservation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 725 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4939.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Mr. GINGREY (Acting Chairman) in the chair.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. GINGREY). The Clerk will read.
The Clerk read as follows:

EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL EXCHANGE PROGRAMS

For an additional amount for "Educational and Cultural Exchange Programs", $5,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GARRETT OF NEW JERSEY

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey:

Page 36, strike line 14 and all that follows through line 21.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I come once again to the floor to raise the issue that I have raised earlier this evening, and that is in this time of spiraling deficits and excess spending by the Federal Government, is now the time to be spending money on an emergency supplemental where the nature of the emergency comes into question? In this case, as I classified in my terminology before, I called it foreign aid, I don't know whether anyone can really say that this is not.

The funding here is $5 million for academic, professional and cultural exchange focused on Iran. As I pointed out before, and it was agreed, Iran is no ally of the United States Government. As we agree, Iran is a part of the Axis of Evil. They are supporting Hamas. They do wish to eliminate and see Israel wiped off the map of the world. They do wish to see the United States wiped off the map of the world. They are continuing with their nuclear program. In this, we are all in agreement. Iran is a threat.

This is not something new. This is not something that just came about in the last few days, weeks, months or what have you. We have known that Iran is a threat to the world community for some time, at least this House did. We have had many debates and discussions on this in the past on this floor as to the threat that Iran poses to this Nation, to its area community and the world in general.

The question then becomes, is this new news to the State Department? Apparently it is, because were it not new news to the State Department, they would have gone through regular order and they would have sought this $5 million or the $10 or $15 million for the other appropriations that we previously spoke about.

They would have gone through regular order, and they would have asked for and put this through the budget process in the current budget cycle year, or they would have included it in the budget proposal that we are currently considering as we go forward for the next fiscal year. They did not. Instead, they come to us now at the last minute and ask for an emergency supplemental appropriation.

I would ask that the State Department pay more attention to these matters. If they were not aware that Iran was such a threat and that these programs are needed, and I am not about to debate right here that they are not needed, but if they were needed, they should have gone through regular order, they should have come through the process earlier.

In addition, all other areas of spending in this House, when it goes through regular order, has to compete against other necessary expenditures. Some foreign threats that we have, Afghanistan, and Iraq and elsewhere, have to be weighed against other competing interests.

Likewise, they must be weighed against domestic interests as well. As in this bill, there is money here for Katrina. They have to assist those people down there. They have an interest as well. Other domestic programs also have to be weighed against other competing domestic interests.

I would simply suggest to this body that while Iran is a threat, it is not a new threat. It is a threat that we have known has been out there for some period of time.

The appropriate manner would have been for this to have gone, as with the other legislation amendments that I discussed previously, through regular order, so that we would have had a complete and full debate on it.

Again, I agree with what the committee said on those other matters, that the committee, as I quote from their report, "is disappointed in the Department of State's failure to provide adequate and timely justification of the emergency nature of these funds." I concur with the committee. The State Department has not provided that justification.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment to delete this additional $5 million.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. CONAWAY). The gentleman from Virginia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I said it before, but I will say it again: it is an emergency. My goodness, this country is putting together a nuclear weapon. The Bush administration, if you read the paper the last several days, has been meeting every day with experts around the world on the issue of Iran. To cut this money back pulls the rug out from the administration. Iran is a threat.

Iran is developing a nuclear bomb. Iran is the one that funded Hezbollah. Iran blew up the American embassy once. They blew up the American Embassy in Beirut a second time. Iran blew up the Marine Corps barracks killing 241 Marines. It is an emergency.

My God, the Iranians will be laughing at us if we were to reduce this amount of money. This is an emergency. So I just urge a "no" vote on the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise to simply agree with every word the gentleman from Virginia just spoke. I cannot think of a more mindless, shortsighted or ridiculous amendment to be offered that affects a serious problem than this amendment. It is absolutely backwards. It is ludicrous. It is absolutely against the interest of the United States.

What we are in effect saying is we have such great relations with this country that we don't want to do whatever we can to improve them by going directly to people through exchange programs. I find that to be ridiculous.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey will be postponed.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS
CONTRIBUTIONS TO INTERNATIONAL PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES

For an additional amount for "Contributions for International Peacekeeping Activities", $129,800,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

RELATED AGENCY

BROADCASTING BOARD OF GOVERNORS

INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING OPERATIONS

For an additional amount for "International Broadcasting Operations", $7,600,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. FOXX

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments, and ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman may only offer one amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is only allowed one amendment. Does she intend to offer the amendment starting with page 37, striking line 6 through page 38, line 4?

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Chairman, the two amendments I had, one would strike line 6 through 14 and the other lines 15 through 21. We submitted one amendment, and then I was told they had to be separated, and two amendments were submitted.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate a single Foxx amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. FOXX:
Page 37, strike lines 6 through 21 (relating to Broadcasting Capital Improvements).

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to consideration of the amendment in this format?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order earlier today, the gentleman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Chairman, what I understand now is the two amendments were combined into one, for which I am very grateful.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment would strike the funding for the international broadcasting operations of Radio Free Europe section of this bill. I am sure there are many folks who can tell us the merits and great purpose of Radio Free Europe and our broadcasting overseas, but we can debate the merits of Radio Free Europe another time.

It was my understanding that this war supplemental was supposed to be purely for emergency spending for the war. Providing essential equipment for our troops is one thing. Additional funding for additional international broadcasting is another.

Mr. Chairman, many conservatives were disappointed that additional Katrina funding was added to this bill since the moneys approved last fall have not been spent totally. In fact, Mr. Chairman, of the $67.5 billion directly appropriated to Katrina and Rita relief, only $22.5 billion have been spent. Why are we allocating additional hard-earned tax dollars, when over half of the additional funding is yet to be spent?

Furthermore, the Katrina spending approved did not have proper safeguards. I read article after article reporting stories of fraud and abuse of relief funds. The reason we read and hear these stories on the nightly news is because we did not move carefully enough the first time. Let's not make that mistake again with additional Katrina funding or other extraneous funding added that is not emergency funding for the war in Iraq.

I urge Members to support my amendment and remove this funding, so we can debate the merits of the program in its proper setting.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. It strikes all the radio and television broadcasting. I think I made the point on the last amendment, the Garrett amendment, that this is important to the administration. If the President didn't do this, frankly, he would be subject to criticism by this Congress. This Congress would get up and say, why are you not doing more to change the government?

It is just not a good amendment. I urge overwhelming defeat of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) will be postponed.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title II?

□ 2045

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MELANCON

Mr. MELANCON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. CONAWAY). The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MELANCON:
Page 54, line 15, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $465,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MELANCON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. MELANCON. Mr. Chairman, the amendment that I bring forward today will provide for $465 million for levees in South Louisiana. Currently, there is $1.363 billion, $1 million added to the $1,363,000,000 in the bill for flood control and hurricane protection.

Part of the problems during the storms is the over-topping of levees, inadequate levees. We have a situation in south Louisiana that was understood by the White House, and the President made his announcement to send more money down to the Congress.

That total amount did not end up getting into the bill. My amendment would increase the amount of funding to $465 billion, and this amendment would provide $35 million for additional hurricane protection for coastal restoration in an area in south central Louisiana that went under during Rita that was not included in the original monies.

We have areas that are in St. Charles Parish, Plaquemines Parish, Jefferson Parish, St. Bernard Parish, Terrebonne Parish, and Lafourche Parish. These areas need to be taken care of, particularly since these areas are the first areas that will take the brunt of a storm in the Gulf of Mexico and southern Louisiana.

This is a working coast. This is the Louisiana coast. Oil and gas from Louisiana accounts for 30 percent of the energy consumed in this country. Thirty percent of the fish that come from the oceans that this country consumes come from Louisiana's coastal areas and the Gulf of Mexico. Forty-two percent of the commodities exported from this country come through New Orleans and the river bounded by Plaquemines and St. Bernard Parish.

Mr. Chairman, I bring this amendment today because the people of south Louisiana need these important levees to protect them.

In particular, the Morganza to the Gulf project, the people in this area where the Morganza to the Gulf project will be built have taxed themselves and started the projects. They are waiting on a WRDA. If we can get a WRDA bill out of the Senate and conferenced and passed, then these folks have started, and this bill would allow them to have that money to move this project forward to protect their areas of south Louisiana.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, reluctantly, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. The amendment seeks to add $430 million for armoring levees in addition to the $170 million already contained in the bill. The supplemental bill before us provides the request of $170 million to armor the most critical portions of the hurricane protection system that are judged by the Corps of Engineers to be the most critical to providing near-term protection to the citizens of New Orleans.

The funding, as provided, is not geographically specific and can be used across the entire hurricane protection system to armor the areas identified by the Corps as the most vital. This funding is sufficient to address the most essential armoring requirements as identified by the Corps of Engineers.

According to the Corps, only 16 percent of the requested $170 million can be expended in 2006. Given that the Corps will only be able to expend a very limited amount of the $170 million this fiscal year, the provision of additional funding will not result in more near-term protection for the region.

Activities that occur predominately in fiscal year 2007 and beyond do not qualify for emergency funding in this supplemental. They should be addressed in the regular order of our fiscal year 2007 energy and water bill.

The amendment also seeks to add an additional $35 million to accelerate the study phase of the Morganza to the Gulf project. I would like to point out that the study was funded at $11 million in 2006 through both the regular bill and the supplemental funding. The study is ongoing, and it is funded for activities through this fiscal year.

The construction activities require additional authorization. This study does not rise to the level of an emergency. I urge my colleagues to work with me to pursue this in regular order.

I must mention to my colleague that I have these kind of problems in northern California, that I can similarly put in this emergency supplemental. But, frankly, they are more logical for regular order.

So, with that, I would ask my colleague to consider withdrawing his amendment. Failing that, I am afraid I must oppose the amendment and ask my colleagues to vote "no" on its adoption.

Mr. MELANCON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. MELANCON. Mr. Chairman, I understand what you are saying. We have been 5 to 6 years without a WRDA bill. The Morganza to the Gulf project has been in that stalled WRDA bill. There are now 80 Members of the Senate that have signed on to letters saying in this session their intention is to pass a WRDA bill.

If authorization is included with the passage of a WRDA bill, in essence, this funding will be ready to go. These people have authorization on portions, as you have explained, and now they can move forward and continue the process of building these levees that they have so much wanted to build for the last 5 to 10 years.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time. I must say to the gentleman that I do have similar questions that are very much like this in northern California, critical circumstances; and it just is not appropriate in the portion of this emergency bill. Because of that, I would have to oppose the gentleman's request.

Mr. MELANCON. Mr. Chairman, I understand. This is something that I must put to a vote. We are in an emergency situation. We have been. This Congress' actions, where we are at the seventh month, makes it even more critical and more of the need.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MELANCON).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MELANCON. Mr. Chairman, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MELANCON) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 6 OFFERED BY MR. JEFFERSON
Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 6 offered by Mr. JEFFERSON:

In chapter 4 of title II, in the item relating to "FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY—DISASTER RELIEF", after the aggregate dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $2,000,000,000)".

In chapter 8 of title II, in the item relating to "COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT—COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUND—(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)", after the aggregate dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $2,000,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House today, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. On the amendment that we are considering, Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman reserves a point of order.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, today, I rise to offer the first of two amendments to H.R. 4939, the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Defense, the Global War on Terror and the Hurricane Recovery Act of 2006, that will add more funds to the Community Development Block Grant, CDBG funds, to meet the housing and rebuilding needs of Louisiana, Texas and other places.

The first amendment, number 6, printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, will take $2 billion from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, FEMA, and add it to the Community Development Block Grant funds, making that total request $6.2 billion.

This amendment keeps the total hurricane supplemental request at $19.1 billion. The proposed $2 billion decrease in FEMA funding brings that total to $7.75 billion.

Mr. Chairman, information recently given to us by the Appropriations Committee indicates that FEMA will not run out of its current funds until the second week of July. Moreover, with FEMA's weekly spend rate of $500 million, the first proposed appropriation of $9.55 billion, less my amendment, would fund FEMA through the end of October.

Mr. Chairman, I am certain that between now and October we will be able to amply try and figure out what FEMA really needs and provide the resources it needs at that time.

Mr. Chairman, the administration has asked Louisiana repeatedly to submit a housing plan, and we did that. This chart shows what Louisiana's housing needs are. We had severe destruction of our housing infrastructure in our State, and we have more than 100,000 housing units destroyed. This will cost over $100,000 billion to get this whole matter straightened out, along with other project losses back home.

What we are saying here is that we have a plan which we submitted to the White House, and we have had this plan looked at very closely. The agreement is that Louisiana has submitted a very solid plan for $4.2 billion for unmet needs in its housing reconstruction. Without housing, our city cannot rebuild. Without housing, there is no chance to bring our city back. And so we are saying today, Mr. Chairman, that without full funding we cannot meet the crucial needs to help our citizens rebuild their lives.

There is a move being made now to take the money out of the $4.2 billion to apply to Texas and perhaps some other places, and we say we need all of the $4.2 billion. We also have the $2 billion for Texas. We do not argue they do not need more help, but we do not need to have our money raided to take care of Texas or any other place.

By increasing the CDBG funding, we will allow the needs of Louisiana, Texas and other States to be met without short-changing the administration's commitment to Louisiana.

Mr. Chairman, you know firsthand the monumental housing crisis in Louisiana. Today, thousands of people are being evicted from hotels around the gulf region by FEMA with nowhere to turn. Thus, I implore my colleagues to support this amendment so that we can help these hard-working, earnest taxpayers in the gulf coast rebuild their lives and realign their futures.

Louisiana needs the full $4.2 billion to do that. Support my amendment to make Louisiana, Texas and the rest of the gulf coast region whole. I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 2100

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Mr. Chairman, there is no doubt that the Community Development Block Grant Program needs more funding, however, this amendment would take $2 billion out of the Disaster Relief Fund, which is severely underfunded as it is, of the more than $35 billion in supplemental funds that we have provided to the Disaster Relief Fund for the recovery from Katrina, Rita and Wilma. As of March 8, only $3.7 million of that remains unallocated; and long term recovery, of course, is just getting underway.

The disaster fund is very volatile. Over the last month, weekly obligations have varied from $250 million to $1.1 billion. That is per week. The administration estimates the current balance of $3.7 billion in the disaster fund will only last us through the end of May as it is. If you take $2 billion out of that, there is not much left to last us in the disaster fund.

Now, if you take those monies out of the disaster fund, many of the authorized activities for which the States are expecting funding cannot be funded. And I am talking about the Stafford Act Recovery Programs in the gulf coast States' ability to respond to new disasters if they should occur. During the months ahead, funds are needed primarily for the public assistance and mitigation programs in the gulf coast area.

Also, funding for the disaster fund, if it is less than $9.5 billion, would mean deferring or postponing, at least stopping momentarily, at least, public assistance projects like repairing roads, repairing water control facilities, public buildings and equipment, public utilities, park, recreational facilities and the like, all of that would have to stop.

So, Mr. Chairman, I urge that Members vote against this amendment. Not to say that the Community Development Block Grant Program does not need funds but this ain't the place to get it. So I urge a "no" vote.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate what the gentleman has said, but he recognizes in his comments that there is $3.7 billion left unobligated of the money we have already authorized for FEMA. Everyone knows here that FEMA has not been a very good steward so far of the money we have provided to it. This is a way for FEMA to tighten its belt and to provide the folks the housing support they need back home; take care of Louisiana and Texas at the same time; and not hurt the FEMA programs, because everyone knows, as we have documented throughout our hearings and the rest, that FEMA has done a horrible job of managing the money. And even if it needs more, as the gentleman has said, there is $3.7 billion of the money we have already authorized, which is unobligated, which FEMA can have access to if they can prove a need for it. So I would move adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. CONAWAY). All time has expired.

The Chair understands the point of order that has been reserved has been withdrawn.

Mr. LEWIS of California. It has been withdrawn.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 7 OFFERED BY MR. JEFFERSON

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 7 offered by Mr. JEFFERSON of Louisiana:

Page 72, line 18, after the dollar amount insert the following: "(increased by $1,900,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer another amendment to meet the same objective for preserving the $4.2 billion for Louisiana, at the same time meeting the housing needs that have been expressed by the State of Texas of another $2 billion.

We get out there different under this amendment, as opposed to taking the money under the FEMA allocation which we have heard objection to, this adds money to the current asked for, requested appropriations of $1.9 billion to the $19.1 billion that is being asked for here, to add to that amount $1.9 billion.

The $1.9 billion, therefore, does not come out of the FEMA funds as the gentleman has objected to. If his argument are well taken, the FEMA fund stays intact. We do not touch it whatsoever. But out of the $3.7 billion, that is unobligated of the money that has already been appropriated for this purpose by this House, we take another $1.9 billion and provide that to Texas. The hope is that the HUD will provide that to Texas, take care of Texas' needs.

So we don't invade the FEMA money under this amendment. We simply add to the amount that came out of committee of $19.1 billion another $1.9 billion to provide the money that Texas needs to get this job done.

We have demonstrated a need for this project back home. We have taken great pains to provide a good plan. Our State has submitted it. It has been vetted by the White House folks. Here the plan is in my hand. It is a wonderful plan that is thoroughly vetted. It is technically perfect, I believe. It states the case well. We have made the case for our needs. We have not exaggerated them.

We have horrible needs back home. 220-something housing units destroyed back home that we need to have fixed up. And we cannot get our city back unless we have our housing infrastructure built back up. So we are urging this House, if it does not want to take the money from existing FEMA programs, take it from the $3.7 billion that is unauthorized, and appropriate, of the $3.7 billion, $1.9 billion to take care of this urgent need in our area.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). Who seeks time in opposition?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Chairman, I rise in opposition.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Could I propose a question to the offeror of the amendment? Are you proposing with this amendment to just simply add $1.9 billion to the Disaster Relief Fund?

Mr. JEFFERSON. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JEFFERSON. I am saying that $3.7 billion unobligated of the money the House has already appropriated for disaster relief. I am saying out of the $3.7 billion, we should take $1.9 billion and add to the Community Development Block Grant appropriation. Yes, sir, that is what I am saying. So it is not coming up with the money that the House hasn't already approved. It is simply carving out of what is left, the $3.7 billion that is already left unallocated and unobligated, and obligating it to this purpose.

In this way, we hope to take care of both Texas and Louisiana's needs. And without shortchanging Louisiana, what we have demonstrated through some painstaking processes that money is needed to bring back housing in our State.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Reclaiming my time, as I understand it then, you propose to take $1.7 billion.

Mr. JEFFERSON. $1.9 billion.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. $1.9 of the 3.7 that has not yet been allocated out of the disaster fund?

Mr. JEFFERSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. For the Community Development Block Grant Program?

Mr. JEFFERSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. So it is essentially like the last amendment but in different form?

Mr. JEFFERSON. It is not like the last amendment, except it is not take it from FEMA, which you objected to saying FEMA needed the money. We are now saying we aren't taking it from FEMA, we still have to take it from unobligated funds, to meet the needs of both Texas and Louisiana.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG).

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. I oppose the amendment as well, Mr. JEFFERSON. The State of Louisiana has already received $6.2 billion in CDBG for reconstruction efforts. And yet, the State of Louisiana has yet to submit a plan for the funds, which is required by law.

HUD has been working with the State to craft a reasonable and rational plan, and we hope to have a better idea of their needs and a recovery plan very soon.

In addition, we are providing an additional $4.2 billion in CDBG to further assist the gulf coast States affected by the hurricanes in 2005, and this includes Louisiana. I am confident that Louisiana will receive funds from this bill. And so, again, I repeat, I oppose the amendment on that basis.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Reclaiming my time, I also oppose the gentleman's amendment for the same reason that I said on the earlier amendment.

If you take these monies out of the Disaster Relief Fund, then you are saying to the gulf coast States that we will not have money to continue the Stafford Act Recovery Programs, which are vital to that region. You are saying there are not monies there for the public assistance and mitigation programs in the gulf coast area. You are saying that we will have to postpone the projects like repairing roads and water control facilities and public buildings and equipment, public utilities, parks, recreational facilities and the like.

So as much as I understand the gentleman's concern to get more money in the Community Development Block Grant Program, this would be, to coin a phrase, disastrous for the gulf coast region to take it away from the Disaster Relief Fund.

I oppose the amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I take issue with the remarks that have been made with respect to the devastating effect that this amendment would have on the recovery in the gulf coast region.

I understood somewhat the argument made earlier that to take money from FEMA would invade the public assistance projects. This money is, however, unobligated to any project in the gulf region. It is money that the Congress has simply appropriated which is unobligated. Consequently, we do not know what, if anything, FEMA is going to use the money for. So we argue here that Texas has already demonstrated a need for $2 billion, according to their calculations. We are saying that ought to be recognized and taken care of, but we have also demonstrated, we think, in our State, a need for $4.2 billion.

Here is the difference. It is true that Louisiana received $6.2 billion recently, and Mississippi received some number, 5.2 or whatever billion dollars as well. We, however, suffered 85 percent of the damage in this area. Mississippi suffered 15 percent of the damage. And nonetheless, we got a 54 percent share of the CDBG funds. Mississippi got 46 percent of the CDBG funds.

So we are saying we were well short-changed of where we should have been. This is to make up for that, to fix the problems, to try to correct it. So we argue that of the $3.7 billion unobligated, it does not hurt one smidgeon of work that anyone has in mind for FEMA. This is not FEMA's money right now. It is not allocated for any purpose at all. It is available to be used for whatever good purpose we can find. I can tell you, this is a tremendously good purpose for our area. We need the money very substantially.

The President and his people have determined that we need $4.2 billion. Our plan which we do have here, which we have submitted to the White House, which they have vetted carefully, shows we need $4.2 billion. We simply are fearful that our money would not be vetted for this purpose, which the President wanted designated solely for Louisiana, which, under this bill, it is not.

And we recognize the needs of Texas. We want to help Texas. But at the same time, we do not want to hurt our own purposes. I urge adoption of the amendment.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BRADY OF TEXAS
Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BRADY of Texas:

Page 72, line 25, after the colon insert the following:

Provided further, That the factors used by the Secretary in distributing funds made available under this heading shall apply the most timely and accurate data available relating to all damages from such hurricanes and total numbers of relocated evacuees based on their current addresses rather than their addresses of record at the time of the storms, and, to the extent possible, the Secretary shall obtain information from the departments of insurance and tax appraisal records of States and consult and coordinate with the Bureau of the Census of the Department of Commerce to reestimate population, income, and other statistics when determining estimates for use in connection with amounts made available under this heading:

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, reluctantly I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House today, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

□ 2115

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, I appreciate Chairman LEWIS and the hard-working members of the Appropriations Committee who are doing a difficult job trying to balance the needs of our war on terror as well as disaster recovery in the gulf coast.

This amendment seeks to do a simple thing, to require that the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development use the most accurate and timely data for making decisions on where the unmet needs are in the gulf coast for housing. What this says in effect is that the director shall apply the most timely and accurate data available relating to all damages from such hurricanes and the total number of relocated evacuees. In other words, rather than use the FEMA numbers, which are slow, often inaccurate and, in fact, do not track the evacuees from Katrina to other States, nor because Hurricane Rita occurred after Hurricane Katrina, many of the needs in Texas are still being applied for and have not yet registered. So, without this amendment, the HUD Secretary would be making important decisions on housing and repair and renovation without having a true, accurate picture of where the needs truly are.

I know that in Texas we have more than 75,000 homes that have been destroyed or damaged in Hurricane Rita, much of which are not yet in the system. The last decision that the HUD Secretary made, 98 percent of the money went to Louisiana and Mississippi, 1 percent to Texas. Yet Hurricane Rita actually landed a higher wind speed than Hurricane Katrina, wiped out much of East Texas, did billions of dollars of damage, and yet our people are still waiting for help in housing, repair and renovation. So this is simply an amendment to require accurate and timely data and should this not be allowed today.

I hope perhaps we can work with you, because I think we all want the Secretary to use the best picture of these very complicated hurricane issues.

Madam Chairman, I yield back my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, let me express my appreciation to the gentleman for his cooperation.

In the meantime, I must make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). Does anyone wish to be heard on the point of order? If not, the Chair will rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language imparting direction. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BRADY OF TEXAS

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BRADY of Texas:

Page 73, line 15, after the colon insert the following:

Provided further, That not less than $2,000,000,000 from funds made available under this heading shall be used as provided under this heading only for the long-term recovery of areas that are housing victims of Hurricane Katrina who, at the time of the onset of such hurricane, were residents of States other than the State in which such area is located:

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Again, I thank Chairman LEWIS for your work on disaster relief.

The point of this amendment is to recognize that the money for disaster assistance ought to go with the victims. The fact of the matter is Hurricane Katrina caused tremendous devastation. I know that Texas is now hosting over 400,000 evacuees and educating nearly 40,000 students. We know other States are also opening their hearts and communities to these Katrina evacuees.

This amendment says that $2 billion from our Community Development Block Grant funds shall be made available for the victims of Hurricane Katrina who are living outside their home State. What we want to do is make sure that they have the housing, the social services, the workforce employment services, all those needs that go with them.

This amendment simply says that, as we have spent billions of dollars responding to Hurricane Katrina, that we not forget the victims of Hurricane Katrina who are in other States and who those communities are bearing the brunt of the expenses of hosting them and, in truth, as newspaper articles and studies reported today across the Nation show, that at the pace of recovery in Louisiana, these States, like Texas, will be host to our Katrina neighbors for many months, perhaps many years. It is important that we not punish the States and communities that open their hearts to these victims, that we not send them a bill that says, thank you for your generosity; here, pay for it, raise your taxes, bear the burden; we have no interest in you.

This amendment makes sure that the dollars follow the victims, the evacuees of Hurricane Katrina, and that we not punish the generosity of the surrounding States who did so much for our Katrina evacuees.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRADY of Texas. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, let me just join Mr. BRADY in his analysis.

What we are talking about is people, not places, and that is that the funds be able to support the people wherever they are. And Texas is certainly not in any way rejecting the role that we have had the opportunity to play. In fact, we welcome it. But, frankly, it is quite necessary to provide the resources.

I will have a subsequent amendment on this very question; and I rise in support of Mr. BRADY's amendment so we can provide the resources where the people are until they return home, of which we are certainly supporting their desire to return home, but while they are where they are we believe these funds on education and housing are crucial.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield back my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, because the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY) is so cooperative and such a great friend, I hate to have to exercise my procedural responsibilities here, but, Madam Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it provides appropriations for an unauthorized program and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

Clause 2 of rule XXI states in pertinent part, an appropriation may not be in order as an amendment for an expenditure not previously authorized by law.

Madam Chairman, the amendment proposes to appropriate funds for an earmark that is not authorized. The amendment, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order? If not, the Chair will rule.

The amendment proposes to earmark certain funds in the bill. Under clause 2(a) of rule XXI, such an earmarking must be specifically authorized by law. The burden of establishing the authorization in law rests with the proponent of the amendment. Because this burden has not been carried, the point of order is sustained. The amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BRADY OF TEXAS

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BRADY of Texas:

Page 76, after line 20, insert the following:

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS TITLE

SEC. 2901. (a) For the recovery, rebuilding, and relief of the State of Texas from the consequences of Hurricane Katrina and other hurricanes of the 2005 season, $2,000,000,000, to remain available until expended and to be allocated and administered by the Secretary of the Treasury and used only for the State of Texas as follows:

(1) For the costs of housing, social services, health care, and education for the residents of other States affected by the hurricanes who are temporarily residing in Texas.

(2) For the costs of recovery from damage caused by the hurricanes, including repair and construction of infrastructure and housing, debris removal, unreimbursed health care costs of evacuees, flood control and waterway repair, employment and labor services, public safety and security costs, and community and economic development activities.

(3) For such other related costs as may be necessary.

(b) The amounts otherwise provided in this Act for the following accounts are hereby reduced by the following amounts:

(1) "Department of State—Administration of Foreign Affairs—Diplomatic and Consular Programs" in chapter 6 of title I, by $1,380,500,000.

(2) "Federal Emergency Management Agency—Disaster Relief" in chapter 4 of title II, by $619,500,000.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The purpose of this amendment is to request $2 billion for Texas to help specifically 400,000 of the Hurricane Katrina evacuees who are in our communities, to assist the educational costs of the nearly 40,000 students who we are educating today, and in addition to Hurricane Katrina, help pay for the increased public safety and law enforcement costs that have emerged since being host to our Katrina neighbors.

For health care and mental health: $126 million. Services that have not been compensated again for their help.

For critical infrastructure repairs: $408 million. Because most of the Nation does not know that Hurricane Rita caused tremendous devastation, landed, as I have said before, at a higher wind speed than Hurricane Katrina, created more damage to the electrical grid than Hurricane Katrina, did more damage to the refinery capacity than Katrina, and did almost $1 billion of damage to our timber industry, which is our number one industry in most of the 22 counties directly affected by Rita.

This request, headed by our Governor, Rick Perry, of Texas, made on behalf of the entire Texas congressional delegation, also asks for $54 million for transportation, repair of our roads and bridges from Hurricane Rita, $59 million for navigation waterway repairs. That is because Hurricane Rita caused a damage to our waterways that will require dredging and a great deal of repair.

For our agriculture forestry and rural disaster assistance, $170 million, because much of Texas that opened their hearts to Katrina are the rural communities that abut Louisiana. They were the ones who opened their shelters for the Katrina victims, opened them a second time for the evacuation of the Houston and gulf coast area, and then on the third big hit actually Hurricane Rita devastated their communities. These are small rural communities and should be commended for all that they have done. This $170 million helps them recover and rebuild their agriculture economy.

For social services, $125 million, mainly for the folks from Katrina but also for some of our dislocated Rita folks.

And then $186 million for community redevelopment, because our recovery is complicated by our Katrina guests. As you know, we have moved them out of hotels into the available housing units; and because Texas had over 75,000 homes damaged or destroyed by Rita, we both no longer have houses for our own families and no housing for the work recovery crews to allow us to get back on our feet.

This also requests $400 million to help pay for our schools who are educating our Katrina neighbors.

Again, we are thrilled to have them. We know if the situation were reversed their hearts and homes would be open to us, but we also know that should that occur that there would be a heavy burden on those other States. We want to make sure that our communities, many of them small, many of them without big budgets, who have done exactly the right thing, exactly the right thing with Katrina and are struggling to recover from their own hurricane, to make sure they are not left behind.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRADY of Texas. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I thank Mr. BRADY very much.

Let me just share with my colleagues, you have heard it before, but within hours of when we got the call to open the Astrodome in Houston for the survivors, the Astrodome was opened with full medical care, volunteers and local resources. We would do it over and over again, because we know our neighbors would do it for us. But, at the same time, as we have integrated our Katrina survivors into our community, waiting to return home, we have opened schools. We have added a new mental health unit to the existing mental health facilities in Harris County; and, in fact, we know that right after that, as Mr. BRADY has indicated, Hurricane Rita came through and devastated a large part of East Texas.

So the combination of East Texas devastation and the impact in Houston and Dallas and other cities around the State, these dollars specifically would go to help the impacted States like Texas in helping to educate, provide health care and other resources.

So I support the gentleman's amendment. Again, his words are accurate. We would do it over and over again, but we have already done the necessary facilities and staffing without asking. We are simply asking now to help us as we continue the burden that we willingly accept.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it provides an appropriation for an unauthorized program, and thereby violates clause 2 of rule XXI. Clause 2 of rule XXI states in pertinent part:

“An appropriation may not be in order as an amendment for an expenditure not previously authorized by law.”

Madam Chairman, the amendment proposes to appropriate funds for an earmark that is not authorized. The amendment, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order? If not, the Chair will rule.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I concede the point of order at this time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained. The amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BRADY OF TEXAS

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to offer out of order Brady of Texas amendment No. 1, which would normally come at the end of the bill.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to considering the amendment at this point?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BRADY of Texas:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ Of the funds appropriated under this Act under the heading “DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT—COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT—Community Development Fund”, $400,000,000 shall not be available for expenditure until $400,000,000 is made available to carry out section 107 of title IV, division B of Public Law 109-148.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order has been reserved by the gentleman from Michigan.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

While I recognize the difficulty in making in order these amendments because of the way the bill has been written, and rightly so, the purpose of this amendment is to recognize that we ought not stick our schools with the bill for educating our Katrina students.

Again, we have 47 States that are now educating students who fled Hurricane Katrina. Our State, our communities are educating almost 40,000 of them. These schools were the first ones to open their doors both as shelters, and then to try to provide some normalcy for these families who had nothing to go back to. The schools and the teachers, if you could have been there in Texas or in the other States to see what these schools did to embrace these families, you would know the importance that education has played in bringing some structure to these families from Louisiana and Mississippi.

Unfortunately, in our earlier funding, while we recognized the need to reimburse these schools, the number of students, almost 158,000 of them, this body was not able to provide the minimum funding for them. It looks like for this school year, we will come in somewhere less than $4,000, around $4,000, yet the minimal expense is $6,000 as authorized by Congress.

What this amendment does is, basically it does not cut money from any area, but simply reserves $400 million from Community Development Block Grant, it reserves that in abeyance until $400 million is provided to all the States that are housing our Katrina students.

I will tell you again, every State has done a remarkable job. I am very proud of Texas, very proud of southeast Texas and east Texas and these schools and what they have done. I just think it is wrong when they have very little money as it is to require them to perhaps raise taxes or take money from other vital programs in order to do the right thing for our Louisiana and Mississippi neighbors. We ought not treat schools and communities, I think, with such disdain.

This amendment is designed to raise the profile of our schools, to say thank you for the work that you are doing, and to attempt to provide some minimal reimbursement across the country for these schools for the work they are doing for our Katrina students.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRADY of Texas. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I want to congratulate the gentleman for the approach he has taken. This is an amendment that covers schools across the Nation. I want to remind my colleagues that the Katrina survivors were evacuated to 44 States. Mr. BRADY is right. We share contiguous districts, with school districts that have willingly taken in students.

But as I said in the earlier debate, we have opened schools actually. We actually have new schools that welcomed children, Katrina survivors. We provided enhanced resources, counselors to assist as well, and we do it willingly. What we are saying is that we are already suffering as it relates to public education in America. This instance provides added support for a particularly fragile situation and a necessary situation, and I support the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Again, I appreciate the work this Appropriations Committee has done to help provide reimbursement for schools. We are hoping to get for this school year that full funding to help them.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill, and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI. The rule states in pertinent part:

“An amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if changing existing law.”

This amendment states a legislative condition, and I am asking for a ruling of the Chair.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

If not, the Chair will rule.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Madam Chairman, while I may not agree, I concede the point of order.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained. The amendment is not in order.

Mr. OBEY. Madam Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I would simply like to make one observation. Scheduling of legislation is done by the majority party. I have, I think it is fair to say, given procedural cooperation every step of the way to see to it that before the House leaves for yet another recess, that we will finish this supplemental appropriation bill.

I am Irish, and French, and a few other things. And like a number of other people, I was invited to the Irish Embassy tonight because this is close to Saint Patrick's Day. I turned that invitation down because I knew that we would be here tonight having to work on this bill. And even though my own party had an event tonight, we have agreed to stay here and continue to work on this bill, and we are staying considerably later than we had first agreed to, but we are trying to finish these amendments so that Members can get out of here at a reasonable time tomorrow, hopefully late tomorrow afternoon instead of into the evening. That is why we are staying here late tonight.

Now I discover that there is one amendment that could have been offered tonight, but we are told that we can't offer it because the member of the Appropriations Committee on the majority side who wants to handle it is, guess where? At the Irish Embassy.

Well, I would simply suggest that I don't mind somebody else enjoying themselves, but I do suggest that if Members of the minority are expected to be here, if members of the Appropriations Committee on the minority side are expected to be here, I do think it is too much to ask that the party setting the schedule expect the same thing of Members on its side.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman from California. Well, no, I wouldn't be happy to, but I will.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I must say that the gentleman came over to this side to chat with me about this circumstance a while ago, and as I was listening, people keep buzzing other things in my ear. I thought he was making jest about the gentleman from Michigan, but he was talking about another gentleman who thinks he is more Irish than we are who may be elsewhere.

In the meantime, I told the gentleman that my mother's name is O'Farrell, and I am as disconcerted as he is. So I must say to the gentleman that I truly am sorry that you and I are not there together.

Mr. OBEY. Well, I am truly sorry we can't make as much progress on this bill tonight as I had hoped we would be able to make, but I find some of the reasons for that to be quite interesting.

And, Madam Chairman, I am going to ask unanimous consent that we might move to another amendment by Mr. MELANCON at the end of the bill.

Mr. LEWIS of California. If the gentleman will yield, I am happy to do that, but also, if you wanted to take up the other amendment, I would be glad to stand in for the other gentleman who is not here.

Mr. OBEY. We will wait until he is here.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MELANCON

Mr. MELANCON. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to offer an amendment out of order.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to offering the amendment at this point?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MELANCON:

At the end of title III (before the short title), add the following new title:

TITLE IV—LOUISIANA HURRICANES AGRICULTURAL DISASTER RELIEF

SEC. 4001. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Louisiana Hurricanes Agricultural Disaster Relief Act of 2006".

SEC. 4002. APPLICATION TO LOUISIANA PARISHES DESIGNATED AS DISASTER AREAS DUE TO HURRICANE KATRINA, HURRICANE RITA, OR RELATED CONDITIONS.

In this title, the term "disaster parish" means a parish in the State of Louisiana, all or a portion of which is included in the geographic area covered by a natural disaster declaration—

(1) made by the Secretary of Agriculture under section 321(a) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1961(a)) due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions; or

(2) made by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.) due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions.

SEC. 4003. CROP DISASTER ASSISTANCE.

(a) EMERGENCY FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—Notwithstanding section 508(b)(7) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(b)(7)), the Secretary of Agriculture shall use $25,000,000 of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to make emergency financial assistance authorized under this section available to producers on a farm in a disaster parish (other than producers of sugar cane) that have incurred qualifying crop or quality losses for the 2005 crop of an insurable commodity or noninsurable commodity due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or a related condition. In the case of strawberries, assistance under this section shall be available for the 2005 and 2006 crops for damages to such crops due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or a related condition.

(b) ADMINISTRATION.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall make assistance available under this section in the same manner as provided under section 815 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001 (Public Law 106-387; 114 Stat. 1549A-55), including using the same loss thresholds for the quantity and quality losses as were used in administering that section.

(c) INELIGIBILITY FOR ASSISTANCE.—Except as provided in subsection (d), the producers on a farm shall not be eligible for assistance under this section with respect to losses to an insurable commodity or noninsurable commodity if the producers on the farm—

(1) in the case of an insurable commodity, did not obtain a policy or plan of insurance for the insurable commodity under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) for the crop incurring the losses;

(2) in the case of a noninsurable commodity, did not file the required paperwork, and pay the administrative fee by the applicable State filing deadline, for the noninsurable commodity under section 196 of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7333) for the crop incurring the losses;

(3) had adjusted gross incomes, as defined by section 1001D of the Food Security Act of 1985, of greater than $2,500,000 in 2004; or

(4) were not in compliance with highly erodible land conservation and wetland conservation provisions.

(d) CONTRACT WAIVER.—The Secretary of Agriculture may waive subsection (c) with respect to the producers on a farm if the producers enter into a contract with the Secretary under which the producers agree—

(1) in the case of all insurable commodities produced on the farm for each of the next two crop years—

(A) to obtain additional coverage for those commodities under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.); and

(B) in the event of violation of the contract, to repay to the Secretary any payment received under this section; and

(2) in the case of all noninsurable commodities produced on the farm for each of the next two crop or calendar years, as applicable—

(A) to file the required paperwork, and pay the administrative fee by the applicable State filing deadline, for those commodities under section 196 of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7333); and

(B) in the event of violation of the contract, to repay to the Secretary any payment received under this section.

(e) PAYMENT LIMITATIONS.—

(1) LIMIT ON AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE.—Assistance provided under this section to a producer for losses to a crop, together with the amounts specified in paragraph (2) applicable to the same crop, may not exceed 95 percent of what the value of the crop would have been in the absence of the losses, as estimated by the Secretary of Agriculture.

(2) OTHER PAYMENTS.—In applying the limitation in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall include the following:

(A) Any crop insurance payment made under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) or payment under section 196 of the Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7333) that the producer receives for losses to the same crop.

(B) The value of the crop that was not lost (if any), as estimated by the Secretary.

(f) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) ADDITIONAL COVERAGE.—The term "additional coverage" has the meaning given the term in section 502(b)(1) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1502(b)(1)).

(2) INSURABLE COMMODITY.—The term "insurable commodity" means an agricultural commodity (excluding livestock) for which the producers on a farm are eligible to obtain a policy or plan of insurance under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.).

(3) NONINSURABLE COMMODITY.—The term "noninsurable commodity" means an eligible crop for which the producers on a farm are eligible to obtain assistance under section 196 of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7333).

SEC. 4004. SUPPLEMENTAL DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR COVERED COMMODITIES.

(a) PAYMENTS REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall make payments to producers on a farm eligible for direct payments for the 2005 crop of a covered commodity under section 1103 of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 7913) if—

(1) the farm is located in a disaster county; or

(b) AMOUNT.—The amount of the payment made to the producers on a farm under this section shall be equal to 100 percent of the amount of the direct payment the producers on the farm are eligible to receive for the 2005 crop under section 1103 of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 7913).

(c) CROP INSURANCE.—As a condition of the receipt of a payment under this section, the producers on the farm shall enter into a contract with the Secretary of Agriculture under which the producers on the farm agree—

(1) in the case of the covered commodity and all other insurable commodities produced on the farm for each of the next two crop years—

(A) to obtain at least catastrophic risk protection coverage for those commodities under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.); and

(B) in the event of violation of the contract, to repay to the Secretary any payment received under this section; and

(2) in the case of all eligible noninsurable commodities produced on the farm for each of the next two crop or calendar years, as applicable—

(A) to file the required paperwork, and pay the administrative fee by the applicable State filing deadline, for those commodities under section 196 of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7333); and

(B) in the event of violation of the contract, to repay to the Secretary any payment received under this section.

(d) ADMINISTRATION.—For purposes of sections 1001 through 1001F of the Food Security Act of 1985 (7 U.S.C. 1308 et seq.), payments received under this section shall be considered direct payments made to a person under subtitle A of title I of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 7911 et seq.).

(e) RELATION TO OTHER ASSISTANCE.—A person that elects to receive payments under this section for a covered commodity is not eligible for crop disaster assistance under section 4003 for the same commodity.

(f) TIME FOR PAYMENT.—The Secretary shall make payments under this section as soon as practicable after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 4005. SUGARCANE DISASTER ASSISTANCE.

(a) COMPENSATION FOR LOSSES.—In the case of first processors of sugarcane that operate in a disaster parish, or obtain sugarcane from a disaster parish, and that are eligible to obtain a loan under section 156(a) of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7272(a)), the Secretary of Agriculture shall use the funds, facilities, and authorities of the Commodity Credit Corporation to make assistance available to such first processors, in the form of monetary payments or commodities in the inventory of the Commodity Credit Corporation derived from carrying out that section, to compensate producers and first processors for crop and other losses due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions.

(b) ADMINISTRATION.—Assistance under subsection (a) shall be—

(1) shared by an affected first processor with affected producers that provide commodities to the processor in a manner that reflects contracts entered into between the processor and the producers, except with respect to a portion of the amount of total assistance described under subsection (c) necessary to compensate affected producers for individual losses experienced by such producers, including losses due to saltwater intrusion, flooding, wind damage, or increased planting, replanting or harvesting costs, which shall be transferred by the first processor to the affected producers without regard to contractual share arrangements; and

(2) made available under such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Agriculture determines are necessary to carry out subsection (a).

(c) AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE.—To carry out subsection (a), the Secretary of Agriculture shall—

(1) convey to first processors described in subsection (a) 689,441 tons of commodities in the inventory of the Commodity Credit Corporation derived from carrying out section 156(a) of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7272(a));

(2) make monetary payments to the first processor in an aggregate amount equal to the domestic market value of the quantity of commodities specified in paragraph (1); or

(3) take any combination of actions described in paragraphs (1) and (2) using commodities or monetary payments.

(d) LOSS DETERMINATION.—In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary of Agriculture shall use the same base year to determine crop loss that was elected by a producer to determine crop loss in carrying out the Hurricane Assistance Program authorized under section 207 of the Agricultural Assistance Act of 2003 (title II of division N of Public Law 108-7; 16 U.S.C. 3801 note).

(e) MARKETING RECOVERY ASSISTANCE.—Effective for the 2005 crop of a commodity eligible for a loan under section 156(a) of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7272(a)) or until such time that the Secretary determines that the transportation, handling, and refining sectors are sufficiently recovered to allow for an orderly marketing of a crop of such commodity, the Secretary shall—

(1) not charge interest on a loan made under section 156(a) of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7272(a));

(2) use such sums as are necessary of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to pay storage, including any handling and associated costs, with respect to such commodity; and

(3) use such sums as are necessary of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to compensate first processors for costs associated with transporting such commodity via tractor trailer to refineries located at New Orleans, Louisiana, or via ocean-going vessel to refineries located at Savannah, Georgia, Baltimore, Maryland, or Yonkers, New York.

(f) LIMITATION.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall provide assistance under subsections (a) and (e) only in a State described in section 359f(c)(1)(A) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1359ff(c)(1)(A)).

SEC. 4006. COMPENSATION FOR INFRASTRUCTURE LOSSES.

(a) INFRASTRUCTURE LOSSES.—Out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, there is appropriated to the Secretary of Agriculture, $40,000,000 to compensate agricultural producers on a farm operating in a disaster parish for costs incurred to repair or replace barns and other structures, equipment, and fencing that—

(1) was used to produce an agricultural commodity; and

(2) was damaged or destroyed by Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions or in responding to the aftermath of the hurricanes.

(b) TIMING OF ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary of Agriculture may provide assistance authorized under this section in the form of—

(1) reimbursement for eligible repair or replacement costs previously incurred by producers; or

(2) cash or in-kind assistance in advance of the producer undertaking the needed repair or replacement work.

(c) PAYMENT LIMITATIONS.—Assistance provided under this section to a producer for a repair or replacement project, together with amounts received for the same project from insurance proceeds, section or other sources, may not exceed 95 percent of the costs incurred to repair or replace the damaged or destroyed structures, equipment, or fencing, as estimated by the Secretary of Agriculture.

SEC. 4007. ASSISTANCE TO DAIRY AND LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS.

(a) DAIRY CATTLE LOSSES.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use $250,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to make payments for dairy cattle losses of dairy producers in disaster parishes due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions. To the maximum extent practicable, the Secretary shall make assistance available under this subsection in the same manner as provided under section 806 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001 (Public Law 106-387; 114 Stat. 1549A-51). A disaster parish so declared by the President as a result of Hurricane Katrina or Hurricane Rita in accordance with section 401 of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5170) that does not qualify for assistance under this section shall be eligible for assistance in the same manner as provided in section 203 of the Agricultural Assistance Act of 2003 (title II of division N of Public Law 108-7; 16 U.S.C. 3801 note).

(b) INDEMNITY PROGRAM FOR OTHER LIVESTOCK LOSSES.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use $11,000,000 of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry out a livestock indemnity program to make payments to producers on farms in disaster parishes that have incurred livestock losses, not covered by subsection (a), due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions. To the maximum extent practicable, the Secretary shall use the criteria established under the program referred to under the heading “livestock indemnity program” in chapter 1 of title I of the 1999 Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act (Public Law 106-31; 113 Stat. 59), except that the Secretary shall use a payment rate of $1,000 per head of cattle and shall not impose any limitation on the maximum amount of payments that a producer may receive under this subsection.

(c) DAIRY PRODUCTION LOSSES.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use $5,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to compensate dairy producers operating in disaster parishes for dairy production losses and dairy spoilage losses incurred in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina or Hurricane Rita.

(d) LIVESTOCK COMPENSATION PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use $5,000,000 of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry out a livestock compensation program to make payments for livestock-related losses, not covered by subsection (b), in disaster parishes due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions. To the maximum extent practicable, the Secretary shall use the criteria established under the program referred to in section 203(a) of the Agricultural Assistance Act of 2003 (title II of division N of Public Law 108-7; 16 U.S.C. 3801 note), except that the Secretary shall not impose any limitation on the maximum amount of payments that a producer may receive under this subsection.

(e) EMERGENCY ANIMAL HEALTH AND FORAGE COSTS.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use $4,375,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to compensate dairy producers operating in disaster parishes for emergency dairy cattle health costs and increased forage costs due to a 30- to 90-day delay in planning in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina or Hurricane Rita.

SEC. 4008. ANIMALS COVERED UNDER LIVESTOCK ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS.

(a) INCLUSION OF HORSES UNDER ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS.—In carrying out a livestock assistance, compensation, or feed program, the Secretary of Agriculture shall include horses within the definition of livestock covered by the program.

(b) EMERGENCY LIVESTOCK FEED ASSISTANCE.—Section 602(2) of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1471(2)) is amended—

(1) by inserting “horses,” after “bison,”; and

(2) by striking “equine animals used for food or in the production of food”.

(c) LIVESTOCK ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—Section 806 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001 (Public Law 106-387; 114 Stat. 1549A-51), is amended by inserting “(including losses to elk, reindeer, bison, and horses)” after “livestock losses”.

(d) LIVESTOCK PRODUCER ASSISTANCE.—Section 10104(a) of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 1472(a)) is amended by striking “and bison” and inserting “bison, and horses”.

(e) LIVESTOCK ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS.—Section 203(d)(2) of the Agricultural Assistance Act of 2003 (Public Law 108-7; 117 Stat. 541) is amended by striking “and bison” and inserting “bison, and horses”.

(f) APPLICABILITY.—This section and the amendments made by this section apply to losses resulting from a disaster that occurs on or after August 28, 2005. This section and the amendments made by this section do not apply to losses resulting from a disaster that occurred before that date.

SEC. 4009. ASSISTANCE FOR DOMESTIC AQUICULTURE PRODUCERS.

The Secretary of Agriculture shall use $45,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry out a program to make payments to producers for the loss of crawfish, turtles, and other aquacultural commodities in disaster parishes.

SEC. 4010. EMERGENCY CITRUS DISASTER, NURSERY CROP AND CHRISTMAS TREE DISASTER, AND STRAWBERRY, HORTICULTURAL CROPS, FALL FRUITS AND VEGETABLES DISASTER PROGRAMS.

(a) PROGRAMS REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall transfer to the fund established by section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935 (7 U.S.C. 612c), $45,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry out a Citrus Disaster Program, Nursery Crop and Christmas Tree Disaster Program, and Strawberry, Horticultural Crops, Fall Fruits and Vegetables Program in disaster parishes due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions.

(b) ADMINISTRATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the disaster programs required by subsection (a) shall be carried out by the Secretary of Agriculture in the same manner as the special disaster relief programs carried out for producers who suffered from crop damage and tree losses, and who had to perform related clean-up, in certain areas of Florida due to Hurricanes Charley, Frances and Jeanne during August and September 2004. Because of the complete destruction of the business records of many producers, the Secretary shall use the best available information in determining eligibility, determining losses, and calculating payment amounts under the programs.

(2) SPECIAL ACREAGE COMPENSATION AMOUNT FOR CITRUS LOSSES.—Because of the complete loss of the Louisiana citrus crop due to Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita, the Secretary shall use only Tier 1 of the Florida Citrus Disaster Program in administering the Citrus Disaster Program required by subsection (a), and the per acre compensation for crop loss and associated tree damage in eligible groves of citrus shall be $9,023 rather than $1,500.

(3) SPECIAL LOSS THRESHOLD AND PAYMENT RATE FOR HORTICULTURAL CROPS.—In the case of the Strawberry, Horticultural Crops, Fall Fruits and Vegetables Program required by subsection (a), the Secretary shall cover losses greater than 35 percent, rather than 50 percent, and use a single payment rate of $2,500 per acre for planted fruits and vegetables.

(4) SPECIAL PAYMENT RATE FOR SEVERE NURSERY CROP LOSSES.—In the case of nursery crop losses of greater than 25 percent under the Nursery Crop and Christmas Tree Disaster Program required by subsection (a), the Secretary shall pay 75 percent of the actual dollar amount loss, rather than 25 percent.

(5) PAYMENT LIMITATIONS.—The Secretary shall not impose any limitation on the maximum amount of payments that a producer may receive under a program required by subsection (a).

(c) RELATION TO OTHER ASSISTANCE.—Persons that receive payments from section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, pursuant to a disaster program required by subsection (a) are not eligible for payments for qualifying crop or quality losses under the general crop disaster assistance authority of section 4003.

SEC. 4011. CONSERVATION PROGRAMS.

(a) TEMPORARY SOBUSTER AND SWAMPBUSTER WAIVER.—Subtitles B and C of title XII of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3811 et seq.) shall not apply in a disaster parish during the two-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) DEBRIS REMOVAL.—The Secretary of Agriculture may use the Natural Resources Conservation Service to conduct debris-removal activities on non-Federal forest land, with the permission of the owner of the land, in a disaster parish to reduce the risk of future catastrophic wildfires that would adversely affect watersheds and rural communities.

(c) ADDITIONAL EMERGENCY WATERSHED PROTECTION PROGRAM FUNDS.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use an additional $269,000,000 of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation for the Emergency Watershed Protection Program to provide additional funds for the repair of damages to waterways and watersheds in disaster parishes resulting from Hurricane Katrina or Hurricane Rita.

(d) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Amounts made available under subsections (c) and (d) shall be available to cover the salaries and expenses of additional staff of the Department of Agriculture hired or detailed to carry out this section.

SEC. 4012. TREE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.

(a) INCLUSION OF TIMBER, CHRISTMAS TREE, AND PECAN CROPS.—In administering the tree assistance program established under sections 10201 through 10204 of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 8201 et seq.), the Secretary of Agriculture shall provide $37,000,000 to forest land owners who produce periodic crops of timber, Christmas trees, or pecans for commercial purposes and who have suffered tree losses in disaster parishes due to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions

(b) COST-SHARING WAIVERS.—

(1) TREE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—The cost-sharing requirements of section 10203(1) of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 8203(1)) shall not apply to the operation of the tree assistance program in disaster parishes in response to Hurricane Katrina, Hurricane Rita, or related conditions.

(2) COOPERATIVE FORESTRY ASSISTANCE ACT.—The cost-sharing requirements of the Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2101) shall not apply in disaster parishes during the two-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) RELATION TO OTHER ASSISTANCE.—Persons that receive payments from section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935 (7 U.S.C. 612c), pursuant to the Citrus Disaster Program required by section 4009 are not eligible for payments under the tree assistance program.

(d) ADDITIONAL STATE AND PRIVATE FORESTRY PROGRAM FUNDS.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall use an additional $42,000,000 of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to support State and Private Forestry programs of the Department of Agriculture to provide additional funds for the restoration and rehabilitation of forest lands destroyed or damaged by Hurricane Katrina or Hurricane Rita in disaster parishes.

SEC. 4013. ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR COOPERATIVE STATE RESEARCH, EDUCATION, AND EXTENSION SERVICE.

The Secretary of Agriculture shall use an additional $34,193,591 of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to support the research and education activities of the Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service in disaster parishes. Of such amount, $9,060,000 shall be made available to the Louisiana Agricultural Experiment Station, $10,133,591 shall be made available to the Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service, and $15,000,000 shall be made available to the Louisiana State University Agricultural Center to carry out the Hurricane Forestry Damage Research Initiative.

SEC. 4014. WATER AND WASTE DISPOSAL LOAN AND GRANT PROGRAMS.

In the case of water or waste disposal grants or direct or guaranteed loans under paragraph (1), (2), or (24) of section 306(a) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)) made in an area designated a major disaster area by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), section 343(a)(13)(B) of that Act and section 149(b) of the Internal Code of 1986 shall not apply.

SEC. 4015. COMMUNITY FACILITIES LOAN AND GRANT PROGRAMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of community facility direct and guaranteed loans under section 306(a)(1) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)(1)) and community facility grants under paragraph (19), (20), or (21) of section 306(a) of that Act made in an area designated a major disaster area by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), sections 306(a)(21)(A)(iv) and 343(a)(13)(C) of that Act and section 149(b) of the Internal Code of 1986 shall not apply.

(b) RESTRUCTURING.—A borrower receiving a guaranteed loan or grant described in subsection (a) as of the date of enactment of this Act may restructure the loan at new rates and terms regardless of the status of the loan.

(c) REDUCTION OF GUARANTEE FEE.—Notwithstanding any provision of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921 et seq.) (including associated regulations), the Secretary of Agriculture may waive all or part of any fee associated with a guaranteed loan described in subsection (a).

SEC. 4016. RURAL COMMUNITY ADVANCEMENT FUNDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), in addition to any other amounts made available by law, the Secretary of Agriculture shall use—

(1) $120,000,000 to make water and waste disposal direct loans under section 306(a)(1) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)(1));

(2) $60,000,000 to make water and waste disposal grants under section 306(a)(2) of that Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)(2));

(3) $10,000,000 to make water and waste disposal guaranteed loans under section 306(a)(24) of that Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)(24));

(4) $20,000,000 to make emergency community water assistance grants under section 306A of that Act (7 U.S.C. 1926a);

(5) $120,000,000 to make community facilities direct loans under section 306(a)(1) of that Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)(1));

(6) $60,000,000 to make community facilities grants under paragraph (19), (20), or (21) of section 306(a) of that Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)); and

(7) $20,000,000 to make community facilities guaranteed loans under section 306(a)(1) of that Act (7 U.S.C. 1926(a)).

(b) REQUIREMENT.—Loans and grants funded under this section shall be available for projects in communities in the State of Louisiana in areas that have been designated as major disaster areas by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.).

SEC. 4017. FISHERIES DISASTER ASSISTANCE.

The following amounts are appropriated for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006:

(1) FISHERIES DISASTER ASSISTANCE.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $248,000,000, to remain available until expended, for a direct, lump-sum grant to the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries for direct grants to Louisiana harvesters and vessel owners to provide replacement of the dockside values for all fishery resources in fisheries impacted by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita. The Secretary of Commerce shall make such amount available to the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries not more than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act and may not expend more than 2 percent of such amount for administration, technical assistance, and operation related to such grant.

(2) MENHADEN FISHERIES RECOVERY.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $14,000,000, to remain available until expended, for a direct, lump-sum grant to the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries for direct grants to Louisiana harvesters and vessel owners to provide replacement for the dockside values for the menhaden fisheries impacted by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita.

(3) LOUISIANA OYSTER RECOVERY.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $30,000,000, to remain available until expended, for a direct, lump-sum grant to the Louisiana Oyster Task Force and the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries for the complete rehabilitation of public oyster reefs under the jurisdiction of Louisiana that were impacted by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita. Of such amount, $1,000,000 shall be made available for oyster hatcheries in Louisiana, and $8,000,000 shall be made available for oyster lease resurveying and oyster lease boundaries and for oyster lease equipment and facilities.

(4) FISHERIES INFRASTRUCTURE RECOVERY.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $268,000,000, to remain available until expended, for the establishment of strategically located emergency fisheries infrastructure facilities to provide the dockside infrastructure required for the delivery of fish products to market in all fisheries impacted by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita.

(5) LOUISIANA MARINE RESEARCH RECOVERY.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $14,000,000, to remain available until expended, for a direct, lump-sum grant to the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries for the replacement of coastal and marine research facilities impacted by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita.

(6) SEAFOOD MARKETING.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $35,000,000, including $1,500,000 for the Louisiana Oyster Task Force, to remain available until expended, for a direct, lump-sum grant to the Louisiana Seafood Promotion and Marketing Board to rebuild markets for seafood products in fisheries impacted in Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita.

(7) LOUISIANA LICENSE RENEWAL.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $16,500,000, to remain available until expended, for a direct, lump-sum grant to the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries to provide license renewal fees for commercial or recreational fishing license holders and to provide oyster lease rent or renewal fees.

(8) FISHERIES HABITAT.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $10,000,000, to remain available until expended, to restore and rehabilitate marsh, nursery habitat for fish, shrimp, and crabs in Louisiana.

(9) SEVERE WEATHER FORECASTING AND WARNING.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $4,000,000, to remain available until expended, for the National Weather Service to ensure continued weather forecasting services in areas that could be impacted by hurricanes and other severe coastal weather events, including floods. Such funds should be made available to the South Regional Weather Center for hurricane forecasting and data delivery during an emergency.

(10) LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY HURRICANE CENTER.—In addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for such purpose, $5,000,000, to remain available until expended, to implement an emergency response decision support system and expert guidance that is capable of rapid deployment to support emergency response and recovery activities, including scalable hurricane response capabilities, in-place resources and readiness, integrated modeling and information delivery systems, pre-defined inventories of domain experts and resources, and an infrastructure that may be adopted in all regions of the Eastern United States that are impacted by hurricanes and the Caribbean region. Such system shall be integrated with Federal and State response planning and shall be developed in cooperation with universities in Louisiana.

SEC. 4018. WAIVER OF FEDERAL FISHERIES LAWS AND REGULATIONS.

The Secretary of Commerce shall waive the provisions of any Federal law or regulation that requires the protection of endangered or otherwise protected species in the immediate waters impacted by Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita. Such waiver shall be effective for a 1-year period beginning on a date determined by the Secretary, in consultation with the head of the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries.

SEC. 4019. EXEMPTION OF MOLLUSCAN SHELLFISH CULTURE ACTIVITIES.

Section 9 of the National Aquaculture Act of 1980 (16 U.S.C. 2808) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(c) EXEMPTION FOR MOLLUSCAN SHELLFISH CULTURE ACTIVITIES.—Molluscan shellfish culture activities are not prohibited by or otherwise subject to regulation under—

“(1) section 10 of the Act of March 3, 1899 (chapter 425; 33 U.S.C. 403), popularly known as the Rivers and Harbors Appropriations Act of 1899; and

SEC. 4020. REGULATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Agriculture may promulgate such regulations as are necessary to implement this title and the amendments made by this title.

(b) PROCEDURE.—The promulgation of the regulations and administration of this title and the amendments made by this title shall be made without regard to—

(1) the notice and comment provisions of section 553 of title 5, United States Code;

(2) the Statement of Policy of the Secretary of Agriculture effective July 24, 1971 (36 Fed. Reg. 13804), relating to notices of proposed rulemaking and public participation in rulemaking; and

(3) chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code (commonly known as the “Paperwork Reduction Act”).

(c) CONGRESSIONAL REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary of Agriculture shall use the authority provided under section 808 of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 4021. EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.

Amounts provided pursuant to this title or amendments made by this title are designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MELANCON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. MELANCON. Madam Chairman, I rise today with an amendment that deals with an area that was completely left out during the disaster assistance to date, and that is agriculture and fisheries. The gentleman from Texas talked about Texas and the damage to its agriculture, to its forestries, to its fisheries, to its housing stock. He mentioned 70,000 homes devastated or damaged in Texas. Katrina left 268,000 homes devastated or damaged in Louisiana.

I am not trying to make a comparison, I am just trying to make the point that the devastation in Louisiana was beyond description, beyond what anyone could comprehend without physically being on the ground and seeing what has happened in Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, and Alabama.

But we have got another problem in Louisiana. We have over $2 billion worth of forestry, fisheries and agriculture that have been destroyed and damaged. The infrastructure is gone. These numbers are based on estimates of damage from the LSU Ag Center, and I have a list of those crops and such, if any of the Members would wish to review it.

While many in Congress and the administration continue to put out figures where assistance has been provided, we have had roughly $87 billion that has been appropriated. Of that $87 billion, I dare to venture that 50 percent, or maybe even less, has hit the area, at least in Louisiana. And that $87 billion that continues to be touted as spent on damage for the hurricanes, Rita and Katrina, somewhere between Washington and Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Texas and, for that matter, Florida, with Wilma, the money has not reached the people that everyone believes it was intended to reach. There are a lot of contractors making a lot of money, and there is a lot of people that have had contracts with companies that had not even started that are getting contracts.

So no direct assistance has been provided to agriculture, forestry, fisheries in Louisiana and, to my knowledge, other than oysters getting some funding, they have been shortchanged.

The bankers at Christmas were asking the farmers in Louisiana what might the Congress do and the administration do to help them. For, you see, these farmers were meeting with their bankers, who were telling them that they can't loan them the money unless they know that they are going to have some help from their government. So with that, we will be folding up rural Louisiana, the agriculture community, the fisheries community, and the forestry community, those items that drive the economies in south Louisiana.

I had asked for a waiver yesterday. And, Mr. Chairman, as you are aware, I didn't receive it. But I felt compelled to come to the floor, as I did earlier. I believe that this Congress does not comprehend the extensive enormity of the disaster, as I keep hearing from Members.

□ 2145

I would like to again invite every Member of this Congress that has not put a foot in Louisiana or Mississippi to come to see, to understand, to talk to the people that have been devastated.

They are in Texas, too. They are in Alabama and Florida. But the devastation that we have experienced is crippling to our State.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Page 73, line 10, after the dollar amount insert "(increased by $800,000,000)".

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentlewoman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise to discuss the amendment that I hope my colleagues will give adequate consideration. The amendment is a simple one. It simply intends to add $800 million to the amount of moneys to be utilized for the repair and construction and rehabilitation of rental properties in the impacted areas.

I am hoping that as my colleagues listen to some of the, if you will, concerns that we have regarding housing assistance in the region and the flexibility we are asking for they would see the legitimacy of increasing the $1 billion to $1.8 billion. Rental housing impacts people, and people are what are left in the gulf region, not structures, not apartment buildings, but people. People who are without trailers and, in many instances, without rental properties.

Many people would like to get into and repair their homes, but the easier property to repair and reconstruct would be the rental properties controlled by HUD. The impacted areas cover Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. For those of us who have been in the region, we know that the region can be declared a war zone. The damage is expansive.

I have walked along the streets of HUD projects, housing developments in disrepair, empty, needing repair so people could return. This is so in East Texas, Port Arthur, Beaumont and areas where Hurricane Rita traveled, and it certainly has risen its face in the Gulf region and in Mississippi.

I want to say to my colleagues that I appreciate the generosity and the, if you will, insight of the ranking member and chairman of the full committee and of the subcommittee dealing with housing and the $4.2 billion and the ceiling, if you will, or the floor of $1 billion. But this amendment goes to the expansiveness of the devastation and the need for rental assistance and reconstruction.

Frankly, I think it is important to note that the $1.8 billion is not too much and does not disallow flexibility of the remaining dollars.

I would hope if it was not necessary to use $1.8 billion, this particular dollar amount would not need to be utilized, and that is because the language says "not less than." I hope that my colleagues would support this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, the gulf States are free to use any of the CDBG funds for low-income housing. They can use all of the $4.2 billion, or even all of the $11.5 billion that we provided last year. What we are trying to do is provide the maximum amount of flexibility, flexibility just as we did for New York City after 9/11 but still preserve the low-income housing. This is all very, very important for the Governors.

In my view, we have already struck a good balance between flexibility and housing, while still allowing other development activities such as water and sewer construction business, development of transportation planning and debris removal, which is a big, big thing, as you know. We have allowed those things to go on.

I thank the gentlewoman for her interest, but I ask for a "no" vote.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I appreciate the spirit in which the gentleman has offered his rebuttal. I realize these dollars go specifically to reconstruction repair, but might I just use an anecdotal story to show that housing reconstruction repair and rental assistance is really a large chunk of the need in the gulf coast because people do not have housing.

Frankly, just as anecdotal story, for the City of Houston, even in apartments that we have been able to utilize, isn't it interesting that we cannot even get moneys paid to landowners, apartment owners, for the renters who are on the premises who are Hurricane Katrina survivors.

It is a slightly different issue, but it shows the magnitude of the housing need. The 200,000 individuals that are in the Houston area are mostly in rental property, and much of it would be subject at some point to repair and reconstruction. The point of this increase is to highlight the need for rental housing in the devastated areas and to somehow seek some flexibility to be able to use dollars for rental assistance.

I would ask Mr. KNOLLENBERG and certainly the chairman of the committee to recognize that this should be the beginning of our work and not the end. Frankly, my plea is to provide rental assistance dollars, because we are getting inadequate response from FEMA.

My amendment was offered to provide the increase because rental housing overall is needed, but the specific need obviously is rental assistance and its payments.

Madam Chairman, I seek to withdraw the amendment; and I look forward to further opportunity to ensure that the City of Houston and other cities similarly situated would allow for us to be able to get rental assistance and payment for those 200,000 who are living in rental properties through our city and throughout East Texas and other areas.

Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Page 74, lines 3 through 8, strike "the Secretary may waive the requirement that activities benefit persons of low and moderate income, except that" and "unless the Secretary otherwise makes a finding of compelling need".

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, let me suggest that I respect the good intentions of this waiver language. I understand that it addresses the question of flexibility, but, frankly, I believe that it should be the other way around. That, in fact, if the Secretary believes that there needs to be more dollars to be utilized for other income levels other than low and moderate, then the Secretary needs to make a compelling need request.

These moneys were designated for low and moderate income. That is the bulk of the impact in the gulf coast region where the dollars are needed. My fear is, with the ability to waive utilization of these funds for low and moderate income, we will find these funds being utilized for economic development projects, putting in various extraneous matters that do not address the question of human needs.

This amendment simply says, let us get ourselves focused, let us get back on the point, let us realize that the devastating impact is impacting mostly people who have lost everything and fall into the category of low and moderate. Therefore, I feel there would be little reason to have to seek a waiver in the first place because the need is pointed. It points to a certain income, and those were the most devastated.

We realize there are other issues dealing with insurance where those individuals who had insurance are now in conflict with insurance companies who are denying them their insurance recovery. That is one issue. But people who have lost everything mostly have fallen into the category of low and moderate income. These dollars should be directed toward that body of people and not directed elsewhere, therefore, taking away important dollars for helping to rebuild the gulf coast.

Just walk down in the area, travel through the areas of Mississippi and Louisiana, visit some of the eastern parts of Texas, and you will find that the language that exists that deals with low and moderate income is the appropriate language that will serve the housing and other infrastructure needs of those who have been devastated along the gulf coast. To allow waiver opportunity for the Secretary to change that formula and to begin to use it for many, many other aspects will take it away from the rebuilding and reconstruction of that area. I ask my colleagues to support my amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, our intent was to provide funds with the maximum flexibility to help all the people in the affected gulf coast region. This is really again an issue for the Governors of the affected States. The Secretary does not implement these plans. The Governors create the plans, and they also spend the money. Our language does not allow the Secretary to provide a blanket waiver of the low and moderate income provision. He must give notice of the waiver and explain why he granted such a waiver.

□ 2200

I would urge a "no" vote on this amendment. I recognize the gentleman is very much an advocate of emphasizing and focusing on the low income, and I appreciate that. But what we need to do is to let the States use these funds in the way that will best rebuild the devastated areas.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

We can see that we are having enormously genteel dialogue here, Madam Chairman. Again, I respect the argument of the flexibility being offered by way of the States. I guess I speak very passionately from what I have seen day-to-day in our local communities, our cities, and the impact that they have experienced in not getting the dollars that are necessary to provide the engine to their local economy as they play host, willingly, of course, to thousands of survivors, including those who are impacted by Rita. I believe those dollars should be focused on low and moderate income and frankly, when necessary, then the waiver should be from the ground up, rather than top down. And so I would ask my colleagues to support this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

The amendment was rejected.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I would like to ask for the yeas and nays.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's request is not timely.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TAYLOR OF MISSISSIPPI

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi:

Page 65, line 10, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $15,890,000)".

Page 65, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $40,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Madam Chairman, may I ask the Clerk to read the amendment? It is a very short amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment shall be read.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the amendment.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Madam Chairman, the President of the United States came to Bay St. Louis, Mississippi about a month ago. He stood on the floor of the gymnasium at Saint Stanislas High School and made a solemn pledge to the people of Mississippi that he would repair every Federal installation to pre-Katrina standards. In this supplemental request that he sent to Congress, the President seeks to fulfill a part of that pledge by rebuilding the commissaries at Keesler Air Force Base, and at the Navy Construction Battalion in Gulfport, Mississippi. The funds he requested would get them back to their pre-Katrina standards.

It is my understanding that in committee, there were some concerns expressed that because these are normally MWR funds, that there was not a precedent for appropriated funds being used to repair MWR facilities. I have provided to both the majority and the minority a lengthy list of precedents where appropriated funds have been used on military installations to repair MWR facilities.

I also understand that there were concerns about the authorization for this. Again, on the publications that I have given to both the majority and the minority, we point out Title 10 U.S.C., 2854, it authorizes appropriated funds to "repair, restore or replace" facilities damaged or destroyed by acts of God, natural disasters, fire or terrorism, even MWR facilities normally constructed with non appropriated funds which was incorporated in DOD policy, DOD 1015.10.

Madam Chairman, since, again, this is the President's request, it is for facilities that were clearly destroyed by an act of God at the end of August of 2005, that we have fulfilled the requirements of the committee to show that again, there was precedent for this, it is authorized, it is the President's request and, quite frankly, the people who shop at that commissary, up to 20,000 young airmen, tens of thousands of military retirees who paid their dues in Korea, in Vietnam. Some of our World War II veterans still shop there, Gulf War veterans shop there, and it is only trying to do for them what was promised to them. They have made due with a very, very small commissary that the base has funded with one of these small appropriations since the storm. We are trying to put the base back like it was. The base was spared in the BRAC rounds. It is actually going to grow a bit as a result of BRAC. And so for any number of good reasons, we are put trying to put this back, the appropriations sought by the President back in this bill.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, the Air Force and the Navy together requested $55.9 million for base exchange projects at Keesler Air Force base, and the Naval Construction Battalion Center Gulfport in Mississippi. The request for Keesler was $40 million. The request for two projects at Gulfport, $15.9 million. The committee has not included funding for these facilities. Base exchanges, including construction, are typically resourced through non appropriated funds. The exchanges use their sales revenue to fund their operations as well as their capital costs.

Congress provided $3.8 million to construct a temporary exchange at Keesler in December in the December supplemental. But now we are being asked to build a permanent facility at over 10 times that cost.

The committee is concerned about setting a precedent for using military construction funds for exchanges. We have been told that the Army and Air Force Exchange Service has a $251 million capital budget for Fiscal Year 2006, and the Navy Exchange has a capital budget of $68 million. We believe that they should first look to their capital budgets to prioritize and fund these projects.

The committee is also concerned about the exchanges policy of self insuring these facilities. This means that when a disaster happens, like Hurricane Katrina, a fire and so forth, the taxpayers will be forced to foot the bill. That is why we had directed the Department of Defense to take a hard look at the possibility of privately insuring these facilities. We don't tell AAFES or NEX what to do with their non appropriated funds. But we are concerned about them passing on these risks and costs to taxpayers. The committee will continue to take a look at this issue as we go into conference with the Senate. But at this point, I must oppose the gentleman's amendment. I very much appreciate the gentleman's cooperation and would appreciate his further cooperation.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Madam Chairman, again, I appreciate, number one, both the majority and the minority giving me the opportunity to bring this amendment up tonight. To the point that the chairman raised, I have served on the authorizing committee for about 16 years now. In the span of that 16 years, I don't ever recall a request from our colleagues on appropriation to pass language to either force or encourage the commissaries to be self-insured. And I think I am pretty keen on this issue and I am pretty confident in saying we have never received a request from your committee to do that. So now that the President is willing to make this commissary whole, that obviously the need is there, that it was indeed an act of God, that it is authorized, I find it strange that at this time Keesler Air Force base and AAFES would be punished for not fulfilling a request that they never got.

On the other hand, I think we could fulfill requirements of the President's request, fulfill what is best for AAFES, fulfill what is best for the airmen, for the retirees and the active duty personnel. The people who flew the missions into the hurricane shop at this commissary. People who fly missions in Iraq shop at this commissary. It is a part of their compensation that was promised. It is a part of the compensation that has been denied.

Anyone who has visited Mississippi gulf coast knows that the shopping opportunities in the private sector have been greatly diminished as a result of the storm. So you can't say just go out in town, because in the case of Waveland, Mississippi, in the case of Bay St. Louis Mississippi, Long Beach, Mississippi, Pass Christian, Mississippi, those stores are no longer there. So for all of those reasons, I would encourage my colleagues to put back the money that the President has asked for.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to now call up the election amendment regarding gulf coast elections.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas:

At the end of the bill, and before the short title, insert the following:

SEC. 3013. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to prohibit registered and legal, but displaced, residents of the Gulf Coast region from the right to legally vote in any officially designated election of the Gulf Coast region.

Mr. WOLF. In the interest of time, if this is the one with regard to the election, we accept the amendment.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, if I may have a moment of explanation, I thank the gentleman for his acceptance.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mrs. DRAKE). Pursuant to the order of the House today, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I thank the distinguished Chair. I thank also the chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. WOLF, for his generosity.

Let me just be brief, but also be very pointed. We have a number of difficulties in the gulf region, for many of us who serve on the Homeland Security Committee had the opportunity to travel on several occasions to the region, most recently, with Speaker HASTERT and Leader PELOSI, and heard a number of concerns. One of the major concerns, of course, was the pending election in New Orleans, Louisiana, on April 22, dealing with a number of challenges to ensure, one vote, one person.

This amendment simply argues against any Federal dollars being used to prohibit the legal voting of any displaced persons. I hope in the course of this amendment passing through, that we will find at least support in the Department of Justice to assist with the number of issues deal with absentee balloting, dealing with satellite voting, dealing with making sure that the precincts are in place and also making sure that many of the thousands of individuals living in Houston, Texas, who claim Louisiana as a residence and New Orleans as their residence, are facilitated in their right to vote.

I would hope that no dollars be utilized by the State, by the local authorities and FEMA to thwart or prohibit anyone from voting on that day or any days after in Alabama, Mississippi, Texas and Louisiana and other impacted States.

With that, let me ask my colleagues to support this amendment to ensure one person, one vote, and to ensure the utilization of the Voter Rights Act in protecting the rights of individuals to vote.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. We have no objection and support the amendment.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I thank my colleague and I ask my colleagues to support the amendment.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment and ask unanimous consent that it be considered out of order.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

SEC. ____.

None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to prohibit the approval of disaster loans under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b)) at a rate of at least 70 percent.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentlewoman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Chairman, I thank the Chairwoman very much. This is an amendment that really, I would ask my colleagues in another time and another day, to waive the point of order. But I rise to make the point on the amendment. I really believe that this Congress should join together and admonish the Small Business Administration and make it work for the people it was intended to work for.

A lot of the people who are impacted by the hurricane are now living in Houston, Texas. Of course, the actions of the SBA not only impact them, but impact my constituents. We are finding that there has been an almost 80 percent rejection rate of those individuals requesting a small business disaster loan.

I stood and listened to a gentleman by the name of Alvin, who before the hurricane had a business in his home. He was doing what he thought well and beginning to have a very effective small business. He obviously lost everything, including his home and his equipment for his business. He now comes and lives in Houston, comes to Houston and lives there in Houston. In order to get on his feet, he applied for a small business loan and was denied.

In a report we have determined just recently, that will be released today, that business and home loan approval rates average about 60 percent after Hurricane Andrew devastated much of South Florida in 1992, the trend continued through the rest of this administration and into the present administration, or the first George Bush administration, and into the Clinton administration. But, however, we have seen these numbers go decidedly down, in terms of the ability for individuals to have small business loans.

In Louisiana, for example, nearly three in five applicants could not meet credit standards, the SBA said. Another one in four said they couldn't repay the loans. One in ten didn't make enough money. The question is, what are these small business loans for if other than to allow small business persons to get on their feet and to be able to establish their business and to repay the loans back.

Over and over again, individuals have applied for the loans and been denied. The SBA has drawn the ire of many lawmakers last month when it announced it was almost out of disaster loan money. Lawmakers gave the green light to the SBA to spend $100 million in early February. Late in the month, the Senate approved additional monies. But, frankly, the moneys are not getting to large numbers of small business owners. So this amendment simply asks that the approval rate during this time not be lower than 70 percent; that small business owners have the right to be able to be reviewed in a fashion that acknowledges that they have lost all that they have had, and that this loan gives them the opportunity to regenerate their business, become independent, and pay the loan back.

It is silly in the interpretation of the various SBA statutes to insist that someone show themselves creditworthy when they have lost everything. So the amendment really points out to the failures of the SBA at this time, and I think it is appropriate that Congress makes notice of this and asks for a consideration of the many people who have applied and who have been denied. That is the only way we are going to allow people to get on their feet.

Madam Chairman, let me just say that this amendment is to make a very pointed statement on this floor: The SBA is not working as relates to disaster loans and the people that it most needs to help. I would hope we would have intense oversight to begin to insist that the loan process works fairly to restore people to their feet.

Madam Chairman, as of February, months the Small Business Administration had issued $4.12 billion in disaster assistance loans to homeowners and businesses in declared disaster areas, processing 214,000 applications. It has approved approximately $1 billion in loans to businesses surviving the destructive attacks by hurricanes in 2005.

In my district of Houston: 55 disaster home loans approved for $727,000; 27 disaster business loans approved for $1,750,800; 17 disaster economic injury loans approved for $750,100; and 99 total disaster loans approved for $3,227,900.

If one just looks at the agency's performance on the surface it would appear that agency is performing well. However, upon closer inspection, citing Louisiana as a case study, reports indicate that of the roughly 185,000 applications made on behalf of homeowners, a shocking 60,000 were denied. The SBA is distributing a large amount of aid, but that aid is not reaching all of those in serious need. This is evident by the House Minority Small Business Committee's statement that 80 percent of overall disaster loans have been denied.

My amendment requires of the Small Business Agency that no funds prohibit the approval of disaster loans at a rate of at least 70 percent. The destruction caused by the hurricanes occurred on an unprecedented scale, and the SBA should be approving disaster loans with unprecedented efficiency. SBA disaster loans offer people who have lost everything a chance to rebuild their life. It gives the survivors of Rita, Katrina and Wilma the hope that one day they can be contributing members of society.

Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment, and continue to work on this matter to ensure that small business loans go to small business persons for them to be able to rebuild their lives throughout the gulf region, including the State of Texas.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CONAWAY

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CONAWAY:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by section 3010 for fiscal year 2006 for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program may be used while there continues in effect a Federal prohibition on the exploration, leasing, development, or production of oil or natural gas in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge or the Outer Continental Shelf.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. CONAWAY. Madam Chairman, I rise tonight to support an amendment that would address what I believe is a hypocrisy that permeates a very important area of national policy. Section 3010 of this bill will pull funding for LIHEAP, the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program, from fiscal 2007 into fiscal 2006. The idea is that certain low income folks need help with high fuel prices, high home heating fuel bills or just home heating bills in general.

The reason we have high bills is a lack of supply of crude oil and natural gas. While we have this lack of supply, it is because we have not drilled in certain areas, which I believe will provide prolific reserves that would address the energy costs.

None of us like these high energy prices we are experiencing. There are no short-term solutions. But the most immediate impact we can have open prices is to drill in areas where we have reserves. These areas include the Arctic National Wildlife Reserve, as well as the outer continental shelf.

There have been many attempts, throughout my short time I have been here, to open up these areas to drilling. The drilling contractors, the operators today so, can do so in an environmentally sensitive way and a responsible way, and it is hypocritical of us to, on the one hand, ask the taxpayers of this country to underwrite the high energy bills, and then, on the other hand, restrict supply that, in fact, drives up those costs.

So my amendment would say that none of the LIHEAP money would be available as long as we maintain restrictions on drilling in ANWR as well as the outer continental shelf.

Another point, as to the safety of the drilling in these areas, if you look at the experience we had as a result of Hurricane Katrina, you cannot imagine, you cannot formulate a worse natural disaster in the Gulf of Mexico as it relates to the producing and drilling platforms than we had in the gulf that was Hurricane Katrina. You just cannot imagine anything worse than that.

As a result of the great engineering, the hard work of many men and women throughout this industry, there was not one oil spill, one natural gas spill as a result of Hurricane Katrina sweeping through there and destroying the surface equipment. All of the sub-surface protections that are put in place to protect against that eventuality did in fact work. I think the idea that we can't do so, we can't drill offshore safely and responsibly has, in my mind, not played out.

So I encourage my colleagues to support this amendment to address what I believe is a hypocritical position in national policy.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, let me say how much I appreciate the cooperation of Mr. CONAWAY this evening. He has been helpful at every end of our business. But in the meantime, I have this responsibility that causes me to make a point of order against the amendment, because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on appropriations bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI. The rule states in pertinent part an amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if it changes existing law.

In this case, this amendment imposes additional duties.

So, Madam Chairman, I ask for a ruling.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

If not, the Chair will rule. The Chair finds that this amendment includes language requiring a new determination of the Federal official who oversees the LIHEAP program. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained and the amendment is not in order.

□ 2230

Mr. CONAWAY. Madam Chairman, while I respectfully disagree, I accept the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. CONAWAY) having assumed the chair, Mrs. DRAKE, Acting Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on the motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record vote on the postponed question will be taken tomorrow.

MAKING AVAILABLE FUNDS FOR THE LOW-INCOME HOME ENERGY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 2320) to make available funds included in the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program for fiscal year 2006, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read as follows:

S. 2320

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. FUNDS FOR LOW-INCOME HOME ENERGY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.

Section 9001 of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—
(A) by striking “for a 1-time only obligation and expenditure”;

(B) in paragraph (1), by striking “$250,000,000 for fiscal year 2007” and inserting “$500,000,000 for fiscal year 2006”;

(C) in paragraph (2), by striking “$750,000,000 for fiscal year 2007” and inserting “$500,000,000 for fiscal year 2006”;

(2) by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c);

(3) by inserting after subsection (a) the following:

“(b) LIMITATION.—None of the funds made available under this section may be used for the planning and administering described in section 2605(b)(9) of the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Act of 1981 (42 U.S.C. 8624(b)(9)).”;

(4) in subsection (c) (as redesignated by paragraph (2)), by striking “September 30, 2007” and inserting “September 30, 2006”.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BARTON) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GENE GREEN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and to insert extraneous material on the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in favor of S. 2320, legislation regarding the low-income home energy assistance program that we call by the acronym of LIHEAP.

I believe that this is a good bill that will help all Americans, both in warm weather States and in cold weather States, but it will be particularly helpful to those in the warm weather States like Texas and places where summers can be difficult as the winters are in the Northern States.

The Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 which this House passed, the other body passed and the President signed recently, included $1 billion for LIHEAP for fiscal year 2007. The monies were offset by savings elsewhere in the titles written by the Energy and Commerce Committee, which I have the privilege to chair.

The bill before us today spends the funds this year and splits the funds equally between regular and contingency funds. Mr. Speaker, I support this approach because the increase in regular funds in the bill would allow significantly more LIHEAP funds to flow to the warm weather States to help with cooling costs this summer.

This has happened only once before in the 1980s. For Texans, which is the State that I come from, this will mean an additional $38 million this year, almost doubling Texas’s LIHEAP funds.

Overall, the funding increases in the bill before us will help both the warm weather States and the cold weather States in the winter. Warm weather States in the summer and the cold weather States in the winter. This is a good solution for all States, both warm and cool; and I hope that we will support the bill.

We do have an unusual parliamentary procedure, Madam Speaker, that I think we need to bring before the body. The bill before us has already passed the Senate. If we pass it with no amendments, it will go to the President for his signature.

The supplemental bill, which we have been debating until several minutes ago, also has some LIHEAP funding that is under a different formula mechanism, as I understand it. It is quite possible, if not probable, that that bill is also going to pass.

If it does, we then have a situation which is somewhat murky, but, as best we can tell, whichever bill gets to the President last for his signature will be the bill that dictates the formula funding for this fiscal year. I put that into the RECORD simply because I think all Members of the Chamber need to know that.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to thank my colleague from Texas for calling up S. 2320, and I agree with what he said. I think it is interesting, though, the parliamentary procedure that the chairman of our Energy and Commerce Committee talked about, because I would assume that if this bill passes with the two-thirds requisite votes tomorrow and goes to the President, that the section in the supplemental bill would be stripped out in the conference committee, because that bill still goes to the Senate into a conference committee. So I guess parliamentarily that would be the solution in our situation.

Madam Speaker and Members, low-income Americans have been struggling to pay for heating bills during the winter; and, thankfully, this winter has not been as cold as expected and heating bills have not increased as greatly as feared. However, natural gas prices that drive electric prices have quadrupled over the past several years. The States’ public utilities commissions, PUCs, are passing those costs on to our constituents.

Low-income Americans also struggle to pay cooling bills. When the 90 and 100 degrees heat rolls around this year, the situation is going to become very critical very quickly.

Air conditioners run on electricity, and a lot of electricity comes from natural gas. The need for relief is going to be intense throughout 2006, the end of this winter, this summer, and the start of next winter due to the incredible energy prices our country is experiencing.

The LIHEAP program has been controversial because the formula can pit different regions of the country against each other. For the first $2 billion appropriated under this program, Northern States do very well, and relatively little funding goes to the South. Above this $2 billion trigger, however, the formula becomes much fairer, for Congress has never crossed this trigger by any large amount, that is until tonight.

The Senate compromise legislation provides an extra $500 million to the LIHEAP formula over and above the $2 billion Congress has already provided. This is incredibly important for regional equity.

This legislation has provided $500 million in contingency funding which can be used for emergencies such as blizzards, heat waves, hurricanes; and this funding is required to be allocated in 2006.

Today marks the first day we have a real chance to cross that $2 billion trigger and provide a measure of equity for the warm States. Importantly, today also marks the best chance to increase LIHEAP for 2006 for cold States as well by providing 2006 contingency funding.

If we pass this legislation today, the LIHEAP allocations for 2006 will become much more equitable between regions. It is important we pass this legislation today. It will directly go to the President’s desk and provide immediate extra assistance for the Northern and the Southern States this year.

The administration supports this bill, and I would like to introduce this letter from Secretary Leavitt into the RECORD.

THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES,
Washington, DC, March 8, 2006.

Hon. OLYMPIA J. SNOWE,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR SNOWE: I am pleased to respond to your request for my view on your LIHEAP amendment (which is attached).

This is a positive step to provide additional aid for those in need of energy assistance this year. HHS supports Senator Snowe’s amendment to utilize ‘07 funds this year to help those affected by increased home energy costs. HHS supports providing at least $500 million of the total as contingency funds.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL O. LEAVITT.

Madam Speaker, CBO certified this bill with no budgetary effect, and I want to introduce their letter into the RECORD.

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, March 6, 2006.

Hon. OLYMPIA J. SNOWE,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR: As requested by your staff, the Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for S. 2320, a bill to make available funds included in the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program for fiscal year 2006, and for other purposes.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Matthew Kapuscinski.

Sincerely,

DONALD B. MARRON,
Acting Director.

Enclosure.

S. 2320—A bill to make available funds included in the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program for fiscal year 2006, and for other purposes

Summary: S. 2273 would amend section 9001 of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 by making the $1.0 billion appropriated for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) available in 2006 rather than 2007. The bill would increase direct spending in 2006 by $750 million, but have no net budgetary effect over the 2006–2009 period as a whole.

S. 2273 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would benefit state and tribal governments by making federal funds available a year early.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of S. 2273 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 600 (income security).

Basis of Estimate: Under current law, CBO expects that the entire $1.0 billion in LIHEAP funding appropriated for 2007 would be obligated in 2007 and spent over a three-year period, resulting in outlays of $750 million in 2007, $230 million in 2008, and $20 million in 2009. Enacting S. 2320 would accelerate the spending of these same amounts to the 2006–2008 period.

	By fiscal year, in millions of dollars—

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: S. 2273 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA and would benefit state and tribal governments by making federal funds available a year early.

Estimate prepared by: Federal Costs: Matthew Kapuscinski (226-2820); Impact on State, Local, and Tribal Governments: Leo Lex (226-2885) and Impact on the Private Sector: Craig Cammarata (226-2947).

Estimate approved by: Peter H. Fontaine, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

Madam Speaker, the language in the House supplemental would not provide equity. It would provide $750 million in contingency funding for 2006, which is no guarantee of funding at all, not for the North or the South. The House supplemental will not pass the critical trigger, $2 billion trigger, which is very important for the equity among the regions.

The Senate North-South compromise would guarantee the largest amount of LIHEAP funding for Southern and Western States ever, while providing immediate assistance for the Northern States.

This bill would double Texas LIHEAP funding from $40 million to $80 million, allowing us to serve 80,000 families instead of the 40,000 we currently serve. Since our State ended its energy assistance program because of budget problems, this support is sorely needed.

Other Southern and Western States, that is, Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, the Carolinas, Oklahoma, Utah and Virginia, will also likely receive the largest LIHEAP allocations ever.

With the $500 million in contingency funding, the Northern States will not be left out in the cold either, either in the end of this winter, during any heat wave this summer or during the next winter, November and December. We have bipartisan support, both Northern and Southern support, and we have the endorsement of the American Gas Association, which I will insert into the RECORD, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote yes on the bill.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. REGULA).

Mr. REGULA. Madam Speaker, my colleagues, this is a classic example of robbing Peter to pay Paul. What we are going to do is propose to move money from the 2007 bill to spend in 2006.

Now that sounds very seductive and sounds like an easy way to deal with having more money available in this fiscal year. But let me point out to my colleagues that what this will do is take a billion dollars ultimately out of the 2007 bill that has to be made up.

We will have one of two choices in the labor HHS 2007 bill: Get the money out of education, or get the money out of medical research, NIH, CDC. There is no other source. Because this billion dollars that was provided by the budget reconciliation to address LIHEAP spending for 2007 would no longer be available, because what this proposes to do is to move it into 2006.

Well, obviously to make up that billion in the 2007 bill we will have to get it somewhere. Now if it would be an increased allocation, which seems unlikely, because the President's budget already has Labor HHS Education money substantially under last year, and, therefore, to make another billion available will just exacerbate the problem.

While this has a very seductive appeal, that, well, we are going to have this extra money for 2006, we are forgetting that there is a 2007 year coming up; and, therefore, by passing this kind of legislation, we are simply making it very difficult to meet the other needs in the 2007 budget.

Madam Speaker, I would urge my Members to vote against this simply because it is not responsible budgeting to say to the Labor HHS that you have to go get a billion dollars out of other very important programs such as education and medical research.

But inevitably that is where it has to come from, because this will leave a billion-dollar hole in the 2007 budget.

In the budget reconciliation, they attempted to ensure that the billion would be there for 2007. But what this legislation does is simply say we are going to move it into 2006 and figure out where to get it for 2007.

Well, there is no easy way to figure it out, because already 2007, in putting together the 2007 budget we are having a tough time having the resources to do the other important functions. I think it would not be responsible stewardship of our money, of our resources for the public, to take this money and leave a billion dollars unfunded for LIHEAP in 2007.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank our colleague and chair of our appropriations subcommittee. I understand where he is coming from. But I also know, Madam Speaker, that we have not passed a budget for 2007 and that is still to be considered.

I understand that the concern about moving money into this year. But it is also going to be very difficult for me to talk to the 40,000 plus Texas families if we do not pass this bill. By the way, this summer, I am sorry it did not fit within our legislative rules, and it is causing more problems, and we are not going to give you any heat assistance when it gets to be 100 degrees in Texas and across the South, and, frankly, even the Northern States, Illinois, Maryland and other places, New York has problems with heat in the summer.

So I would hope that next year or later this year we will probably see another supplemental. If we see a year like we have seen now for both the cold assistance for the Northern States and what we see in the South that we need help, then I would hope in the future that we would see a supplemental that would restore that money. I would be glad to support that at that time.

Madam Speaker, I also understand Chairman REGULA and the Appropriations Committee, a lot of us want them to be able to have the funding for medical research and education. Those programs are near and dear to our heart. I hope we will still be able to do that.

But I also know there are some other ways that we can deal with that since we have not adopted a budget and we will probably have another supplemental, because they get pretty regular around here. I hope that we can add to it without having to rob Peter to pay Paul.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. BRADLEY).

Mr. BRADLEY of New Hampshire. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. And I would like to thank you for your leadership in bringing this bill from Senator SNOWE to the floor. I thank Mr. GREEN for his bipartisan support, and I thank the leadership of the House for allowing this vote.

I am from New Hampshire, one of the cold weather States, and even though the weather has been somewhat warmer than might be expected in most winters, we have seen at times a spike in the price of home heating oil by nearly 65 percent in some instances. It has abated somewhat, but nevertheless prices of home heating oil this winter are significantly higher.

We all know how successful the LIHEAP, the Low Income Heating Assistance Program, has been. It is effectively monitored by State and local interests, but it is funded at the Federal level. My State has seen about a 12 percent increase in applications this winter because of that spike in prices. My State has allocated all of the dollars it has received so far to trying to process the applications that it has and it is committed; and without this funding, the State of New Hampshire and other cold weather States are going to have to dip into their own State funds to help fund a Federal program in 2006.

My State, before the emergency funding was released by the President, was nearly $3 million short, that is about 15 percent under last year and at a time when there is record demand and record high prices. That is why this bill is so important, Madam Speaker, why we need to bring it up, have this vote tonight, get it to the President's desk. This bill is balanced well because the interests of warm weather States and cold weather States because of the 50-50 split and because of the emergency funding and the formula funding.

So I am hopeful that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle will see fit to move forward with this. This bill is fully offset by the Budget Deficit Reconciliation Act, which is important for our Nation's budget deficit, obviously, but it is also important for States, both in the southern part of the country and the northern part of the country, to pass this bill tonight and to make sure it gets to the President's desk as soon as possible so States like mine can get more money into the pipeline while it is still important.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. REGULA).

Mr. REGULA. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. A couple of other things I would point out. In reality, we will have to find $1.4 billion when you work out the numbers to match the level provided for 2006. That is in the 2007 bill. So I reiterate, that means $1.4 billion will have to come out of education or medical research, because I just do not see any enhanced allocation to do that.

Now, in adopting the supplemental, we recognize the potential emergency, and we provided language in there. This is an amendment that I offered in the supplemental in the full committee that allows the shift of $750 million as needed to address any shortfall in 2006, but we do not mandate that it be done.

Under the Snowe approach, this would force the expenditure, and if the funds were not used, they would lapse. And I think that it is just not good management to require, as this bill does, the movement of this money from 2007 to 2006, and therefore, run the risk that it might lapse. When we tried to address the problem in the supplemental by saying that the money could be used up to $750 million if needed, and I think that is a much better solution.

It is a more responsible solution to manage of potential problem without impinging heavily on the 2007 money and forcing the committee to make that up to the amount of $1.4 billion out of other very important programs. I would urge my colleagues to reject this.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I have nothing but the utmost support for Mr. REGULA and the appropriators. All the Members, the rank and file Members, the full committee chairman, the subcommittee chairman, but I want to disagree with his premises slightly.

In most cases, a program like LIHEAP is funded from general revenue, and what Mr. REGULA said is absolutely true, absolutely true. In this case, the budget reconciliation package for the fiscal year 2007 or the budget reconciliation package that we just passed, the Energy and Commerce Committee, on a bipartisan basis, worked to offset by saving in other areas of our jurisdiction so that we could plus-up LIHEAP by $1 billion. So the LIHEAP money that is before us today in the bill that is coming over from the other body has been paid for.

Now, it is true as the gentleman from Ohio said that that money was supposed to be spent in fiscal year 2007, but it is also true that we need additional funds for 2006. And we are going to need additional funds, in all likelihood, in the warm weather States this summer, because of the expected heat. We have already had a record heat wave in Texas 2 weeks ago. It was 95 degrees. I will pledge to Mr. REGULA and Mr. LEWIS and Mr. OBEY and all the folks, the appropriators, that if we get the will of our leadership, I am willing to engage in another reconciliation package to find offsets for next year. I think that is only fair so that we help our appropriators.

But we have a bill before us that if we affirmatively pass it like the other body has, it is going to go to the President's desk. It is going to be signed. There will be additional funds to help both the cold weather and the warm weather States. And I would hope that we would, while we have nothing but respect for Mr. REGULA, that we would oppose his motion to oppose this bill. Pass it. Send it to the President so that we could get his signature and allocate these funds to the most needy of Americans in both the warm weather and cold weather States.

I ask for a ye a vote.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, how much time do I have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE). The gentleman from Texas has 13 minutes remaining.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Following the chairman of our full committee and, again, I understand the Chair of our appropriations subcommittee's concern, but this bill has a great deal of bipartisan support.

We heard from our colleague from New Hampshire, who is experiencing high utility bills and has already run out of their funding for their poor in New Hampshire. But a lot of us are looking forward to what may be happening not only this winter, but also this summer. So I am proud to have Congressman PICKERING of Mississippi and Congressman LATOURETTE, who is also supporting this legislation.

When we vote on this tomorrow, we will see a lot of Members from across the aisle who are supporting this legislation; and again, like my chairman of our full committee and also the ranking member of the committee, John Dingell is supporting this legislation. We need to do something now to help and we will work whatever we can to help with the allocation from the Appropriations Subcommittee on Health and Human Services or, again, another supplemental next year or later this year that will be able to deal with it.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote aye.

Mr. DINGELL. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation, which moves funds appropriated to the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program, or LIHEAP, from Fiscal Year 2007 to Fiscal Year 2006. This legislation passed the Senate last week, so its passage in this Chamber will send the bill on to the President.

The legislation would move $1 billion in funding to this fiscal year. Half of the funds would be allocated to the States pursuant to the statutory formula. The other half, however, would be considered contingent funding, and subject to the discretion of the Administration.

It is important that all of these funds reach those in need. The recently passed Energy Policy Act of 2005 authorized $5 billion for this fiscal year. But even if all of the funds in this bill are sent to those in need, the total funding for the program will only total a little over $3 billion. In other words, we are still going to be $2 billion below the program authorization.

People in the Midwest and Northeast are in desperate need of these funds. According to the National Energy Assistance Directors' Association, since the winter of 2001–2002, yearly natural gas bills have soared from $465 to $1000, while annual heating oil bills have gone from $465 to $1000.

In my home state of Michigan, these national trends have translated to an average energy cost increase of nearly 37 percent. As a result, the state has anticipated a 6 percent increase in LIHEAP applications. Without additional funding, our state could experience as much as a $60 million shortfall in LIHEAP money. This bill, while falling far short of providing the money necessary or authorized by EPACK, provide at least a few million dollars more to help my state address this projected shortfall.

Of course, much of the new funds will also go to warmer climates, where families will be facing unprecedented cooling bills this summer, so this is not just a regional bill.

It is unfortunate that funding for LIHEAP has remained constant over the years while heating costs have soared. Even with these new funds, many families will have a hard time paying their heating bills this winter.

Many of us would like to see LIHEAP funded at its authorized level of $5 billion, but certainly this bill will be of immediate assistance and I urge its passage.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BARTON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 2320.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 4297, TAX RELIEF EXTENSION RECONCILIATION ACT OF 2005

Mr. TANNER. Madam Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Tanner of Tennessee moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendment to the bill H.R. 4297 be instructed, to the maximum extent possible within the scope of conference, to insist on a conference report which will neither increase the Federal budget deficit nor increase the amount of the debt subject to the public debt limit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XXII, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. TANNER) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. TANNER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, this motion is very, very straightforward. It is a motion asking our conferees to basically apply what is known as PAYGO rules to the tax reconciliation bill that is coming over from the Senate.

Just today, this morning, in The Washington Post, we are reminded that President Bush said in March of 2001, "Future generations should not be forced to pay back money that we have borrowed. We owe this kind of responsibility to our children and grandchildren."

Madam Speaker, since that time this Congress and this administration have borrowed about $1.5 trillion in hard money in new debts. I have been talking about this and writing about it for the last 3½ years. We are facing a debt ceiling again and we will be forced to raise the debt ceiling for the fourth time in the last 5 years since that statement was made by our President about borrowing money that loads the debt limits of all of us, including our children and grandchildren.

This new debt limit will raise how much money this country has borrowed in additional new debt $3 trillion. I wish I was making some of this up. But you can go to the Treasury Department's Web site at www.PublicDebtTreasury.gov and see for yourselves. This is real. This is happening. It is happening now. And if the budget that has been proposed is adopted, we will go to $11 trillion dollars.

Now, Madam Speaker, I have got some more things to say about this but last year, this is almost unbelievable but it is happening and I wish the American public would focus on it because if they do they will be I believe not only shocked but outraged at what the financial mismanagement of this country has done to the financial balance sheet. Last year the Federal deficit for 2005 was $319 billion. If you break that down it means we here in public life in the name of every citizen in this country borrowed $26 billion a month, $886 million a day, $36 million an hour, $615,000 a minute, and $10,200 a second.

Contrast that with what our President said back in March of 2001, as quoted in the Post this morning, when he said, "Future generations shouldn't be forced to pay back money that we have borrowed. We owe this kind of responsibility to our children and grandchildren."

I could not agree with that statement more, but the facts absolutely belie what that sentiment that was expressed back in 2001 was meant to convey.

Now, if that was not bad enough, last year almost 90 percent of the money that we had to borrow to operate the government of this country came from overseas, came from foreigners who do not see the world as we see it.

We are doing in this government, on behalf of the people of the United States, something that none of us who were taught, like I was as a young man, three things to live by. One is live within your means, two is pay your debts, and three is invest in the future, whether it is your own retirement, your kid's college or whatever.

This government, under this leadership, is doing none of those. We are not living within our means, we are not paying our debts, and we are certainly not investing in the future.

The more that we borrow, the more we degrade the tax base in this country. We are now paying at 4 percent, since that statement was made in 2001, we are now paying more than $55 billion a year in additional interest checks, almost 80 percent of which is not even staying in this country. This is not only outrageous, it is the most irresponsible financial conduct of the fiscal affairs of this country that any political leadership in the history of this country has engaged in such a short period of time. That is without question.

So what is actually happening here is a weakening of our collective ability, as expressed through the Federal Government, to do two things, to keep this country strong, safe and, most importantly, secure. Strong safe and secure, what do you mean when you say that?

First of all, there is no country in the history of recorded civilization that without the ability to invest in infrastructure and human capital remained safe, strong and secure. Infrastructure, that is what the government must do to give private enterprise the ability to congregate around clean water, sewer systems, highways, bridges, roads, all of the things that go into the infrastructure of a Nation. We are not being able to keep up with not only new infrastructure that is needed but to repair the infrastructure we have got. If you do not think that is important, go to any country on the planet earth that has no infrastructure and see how many people are doing very well. Nobody is because there is no infrastructure for private capital to invest and to create jobs, to create the economy we all want.

Human capital, what do I mean by investing in human capital to keep our country strong, safe and secure? I mean education and health care. There is no country in recorded civilized history that has had an unhealthy, uneducated population that was safe, strong and secure. It is not possible. It will never happen, and the more we degrade the tax base, the more we are less able to make sure that the future is invested in, as I said earlier.

One of the things that is not hard to figure, it is common sense, and that is, we had in March of 2001, when the President said we owe it to our children and grandchildren to pay our debts, basically, we had $55 billion out of the tax base. Without raising a dime in taxes, we had $55 billion to do these investments that we do not have today because we have engaged in such frivolity when it comes to spending habits, when it comes to all of the things that go into sound financial practices, we are doing none of them.

So I am at a loss to see how anyone could say when you are going to do this tax reconciliation bill, you simply do it in a way by cutting wherever else one needs to be of a lower priority to make sure that we do not dig this hole deeper.

The chairman of the Federal Reserve today said, "I am quite concerned about the intermediate-to-long-term Federal budget outlook. By holding down the growth of national saving and real capital accumulation, the prospective increase in the budget deficit will place at risk future living standards of our country." These are not my words. These are the words of the new chairman of the Fed.

There is no question every reputable economist knows that the more we engage in deficit spending the more the tax base is degraded, the less able the country is to meet the challenges to keep us strong, safe and secure.

We voted earlier today about the Dubai ports deal, and that was a matter of national security. We are going to turn around tonight, if we do not adopt this motion to instruct and the conferees do not adhere to it, we are going to turn around and continue to mortgage this country to anybody on the planet earth that will let us have money on the cheap. I believe it is a national security issue, as I have said many times on this floor. At some point our creditors, particularly the Chinese and perhaps the OPEC countries, the Caribbean banking center, at some point they are going to get tired of taking our paper, and I believe this Dubai thing is one of the first signs of it. They are going to stop buying our debt, and they are going to want to buy equity, and they will have the ability to do it because of the profligacy of this Congress and this administration in refusing, absolutely refusing, deliberately refusing to balance the books.

Let me say one other thing. The GAO reports that 16 of 23 Federal agencies cannot produce an audit. You know why? Because there is no check here. You have got a compliant Congress, a friendly administration, money's leaving Washington through a fire hose, and Congress is not even asking the administration what are you doing with the money. If they did ask, they could not tell you.

There are four agencies of the Federal Government where the IG, Inspector General, says on the front page of the audit, we disclaim any knowledge as to whether or not what we are telling you is true. We cannot balance the books. We cannot even tell how much money is being spent for anything.

Do you think Congress is investigating any of that? No, not one hearing with an Inspector General drug up here and say what did you do with the money.

The Blue Dogs have a 12-point plan because the budget process around here is so broken. I will not go into all 12 of them. Some of them are less important than the others, but there are two that are particularly important. One is accountability. Accountability, what did you do with the money? If you cannot tell us, you are not going to get it next year.

Every businessperson in this country knows what I am talking about. When they go to their comptroller and say here is a $10,000 expenditure, what is it; if the comptroller said, I cannot tell you, he would not be there and that company would not be in business. That is what is happening here. Why would you not put up with that in your private business, and yet the people of this country not only tolerate it but, in some cases, encourage the behavior of this irresponsible government as it relates to keeping up with the money we are already taking away from the taxpayers involuntarily in the form of taxation and not even asking what happened to it? Replete, replete with instances of total incompetency.

FEMA, Hurricane Katrina, $10 million to rehab a military barracks and house six people. This is insane, and that is what is going on here.

So all we are asking in this motion is whatever you do on the tax bill, for goodness sake, do not continue to borrow money to cut taxes. That is a sure ticket to financial ruin, and not only that, it is not a tax cut. It is a tax increase because next year we will begin to pay interest on that, and that will add to the $55 billion. I tell you, it is a road to financial ruin what we are on.

Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT), my dear friend.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank very much my distinguished friend from Tennessee. It is a pleasure and, quite frankly, an honor to be on the floor with you tonight to talk about this extraordinary problem and crisis that this country is faced with.

Without question, you are absolutely right. We cannot have national security if we do not have financial security, and we do not have financial security today. Now, let me just tell you and I hope the American people are paying attention to us tonight because we are here to state some important truths and facts about the financial health of this country, and our financial health is not well.

This President, this administration and this Republican-controlled Congress is heading us straight down the path of financial ruin and financial disaster.

Let me just give you one very salient point. Under this President, this Republican-controlled Congress, we have borrowed more money from foreign governments and from foreign interests than all of the preceding 42 Presidents in the history of the United States. Hear me again. If that does not wake you up and let you know that we are headed for disaster, this President, this Republican-controlled Congress has borrowed more money from foreign governments and foreign financial institutions than all of the preceding past 42 Presidents.

That means that since 1789, the very beginning of this country, to the year 2000, 211 years, through the Revolutionary War, through the foundation of the country, through the Spanish-American War, through the Civil War, through the Mexican War, through World War I, through a depression, through World War II, the Vietnam War, through the Korean War, through all of the upheavals, the economic downturns of this great country, through all of that, yet this President in the last 5 years has borrowed more money from foreign governments than all of our previous Presidents in this history. That is phenomenal. That lets you know that we are in serious, serious trouble.

As I have said time and time again, no greater founding father was there than Alexander Hamilton who founded the financial system of our country, and it was Alexander Hamilton who said, Woe be it unto this country if we fall under the heel of our finances being controlled by foreign interests. Alexander Hamilton himself was a foreigner, as were many of the Founding Fathers of this country. They understood that, and here we are today beholden on our financial security.

Here are the facts. In the last 211 years, from 1789 to 2000, under 42 Presidents, this country borrowed $1.01 trillion. In the last 5 years, under this Republican President and this Republican-led Congress, we have borrowed $1.05 trillion. That is not healthy. That is not the way you have got to go to have a solid country, and now we are here saying we are going to raise the debt ceiling so that we can borrow more. We are dealing with a budget that is ratcheted with devastating cuts time after time.

As the gentleman from Tennessee pointed out, just look at how this Nation is aching and hurting from the mismanagement of Katrina. Families still devastated, an entire important coastline of this country devastated.

And we cannot even deal with that. And some of the very programs, community block grants, being cut. Aid to our veterans, talk about national security, being cut by $2.1 billion. Help to our farmers, to help them with the drought, to help them with the devastation of Katrina, cut, all for the purpose of making unwise tax cuts to the top 10 percent of the wealthy in this country permanent at a time of such great uncertainty.

And then to borrow the rest of the money for the tax cuts from, guess where, from China, from Japan, from India and from OPEC. Now, let me tell you how serious this is, ladies and gentlemen. The U.S. is becoming too increasingly dependent on foreign lenders for our debt. We are handing over this country on a platter to foreign countries. The Dubai Ports deal was just the beginning, just the tip of the iceberg.

And I just want to say how proud I am to say I am a United States Congressman. Because finally this Congress stood up to this administration, both Democrats and Republicans, and said no, no more, and turned down that Dubai Ports deal. Can you imagine? How unwise, to turn our port security over. Even the thought of it.

And that is what disturbs me so much when we talk about security. When you talk about national security and financial security, that is the number one issue on the minds of America today. Two things: Can this government keep us safe as a country? Can they keep us alive? Can they keep our lives safe, and then can they keep our money safe? Well, you can't keep our money safe; you certainly can't keep our lives safe. And that is the particular situation we are in today.

Let me just tell you how serious this issue is. Foreign lenders hold a total of $2.174 trillion of our public debt. And quite honestly, in the last 10 years, they hold 90 percent of it. In other words, every dime that we are using for our government right now we are borrowing it from China and India. Japan, for example, now owns $682.8 billion of our debt. China owns $250 billion of our debt. England, the United Kingdom, owns $223 billion. The Caribbean Banking Center owns $115.3 billion. Taiwan, $71.3 billion. OPEC countries, OPEC, already in the Middle East we are so dependent on oil that they are holding us hostage on that now, but some of these same companies are holding our debt.

America, wake up. We have got to begin to step forward and take responsibility for our financial house. I am here to tell you there is nothing more important than keeping our money straight. Lord knows, if the American people across this country, if they ran their little families, if they ran their businesses the way we are running this government, it would be bankrupt.

So I am delighted to be here tonight to join with my distinguished colleague, Mr. TANNER, to talk about this issue. Because I believe that it is the number one issue facing the survival of this country. And let me just say this. If you look through the history books, JOHN, the history books are cluttered with the wreckage of so many great civilizations. And on the wretched bones of those great civilizations are written those pathetic words: Too late. They moved too late to save themselves.

Let us not move too late in this country. The American people are expecting us not to move too late, and we must not. And one of the first steps is to follow your lead and get some sanity. Let us instruct the conference committee to not increase the debt and let us not raise the debt ceiling limit.

Mr. TANNER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to instruct. May I inquire as to how much time is left?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE). The gentleman from Tennessee has 6½ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Wisconsin has 30 minutes.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I appreciate a lot of what the two gentlemen have said, the gentleman from Georgia and the gentleman from Tennessee. A lot of it I agree with. And the Blue Dogs traditionally here in Congress have been joining with a lot of us fiscal conservatives on this side of the aisle to work for some of these budget reforms, and I hope in the future, in this session, that we could see a merger on budget process reforms to improve the quality of our budgets that we have here.

Tonight, we are talking about this motion to instruct. This motion to instruct I think is misguided in a few ways. Number one, I think it is hitting the wrong target. If the problem is with the budget that we pass and the results of those budgets, then the target ought to be the budget resolution. The budget resolution has already passed.

I think it is very noteworthy to point out the fact that last year's budget resolution, and we are negotiating this year's now, but last year's budget resolution, for the first time since modern budgeting, actually reduced domestic spending. It reduced nonsecurity discretionary spending. So we actually passed one of the most frugal budgets ever passed since we created the 1974 Budget Act here in Congress.

So we are on a path of being very frugal with the taxpayers' dollars. But what this motion to instruct is about is the tax bill. More importantly, this discusses cutting taxes. And the claim in this motion to instruct or the inference in this motion to instruct is that we shouldn't be cutting taxes; that we should take pressure off of cutting taxes. It is very important to point out that this tax bill really doesn't cut taxes, it simply stops taxes from being increased. It stops tax cuts from going away.

What we did in 2003, and it is important to remember, we came in to a recession in this country. We had the Enron scandal, the dot com bubble burst, the recession hit, 9/11. We got hit really hard as an American economy. The American people got hit hard. What is so wonderful about the story that has occurred since 2003 is the resiliency of the American people, the American entrepreneurs, the families, the farmers, the businesses, and of the American economy.

But there is one thing that happened in 2003 to get that going, to get our economy back on track, to get our budgets going in the right direction, and that was the tax cuts. Now, this chart shows where we were as an economy prior to the tax cuts that occurred in 2003.

Now, if you take a look at the left side of this chart, the average economic growth rate in America, the 10 quarters before, going back to 2001, the 10 quarters before the tax cuts was 1.3 percent. This is where the recession was. We had very anemic growth. We were losing hundreds of thousands of jobs in America every month during this recession.

So what did Congress do to respond to this? Congress did cut taxes and cut taxes across the board. We cut taxes on families, cut taxes on businesses, cut taxes on savings for seniors, cut taxes on capital formation which creates jobs, like capital gains and dividends and business expensing. But what happened after those tax cuts? Since the enactment of these tax cuts, the unemployment rate fell from 6.3 percent in June of 2003, the high, to 4.8 percent. Since the enactment of these tax cuts, we have gained nearly 5 million net new jobs in America. What this shows you is the average growth rate of our economy for the 10 quarters since the tax cuts has been 3.9 percent.

So take a look at what happened in America. We had the recession, the dot com bubble, the 9/11 terrorist attack, and we went into a recession and our economy was sputtering. We were growing at an average of 1.3 percent and losing hundreds of thousands of jobs. When we cut taxes on the American people, on the American economy, we had a huge rebound right away. Right away the economy kicked into gear, produced jobs and has grown at an average rate of 3.9 percent, faster than the national average for the history of our economy. Five million new jobs were created.

Now, one of the other things that occurred was during that time, because of the dot com bubble, because of the Enron scandal, the stock market really fell. And who really got hit by that were seniors and savers. There are so many seniors that I have talked with in my district, in the first Congressional District of Wisconsin, who literally saw their savings portfolio, in that period of 2001 to 2003, cut in half; wiped away by 60 percent.

One of the things we were so worried about was the fact that senior citizens and their pension plans and their 401(k)'s and their IRAs had so much less value in their savings that they had much less to live on. So we went immediately to act, and what we did was we reduced tax rates on capital, tax rates on the things that stocks matter, which is capital gains and dividends.

What happened after that? Since the enactment of these 2003 tax cuts, the Dow Jones Industrial Average increased by 27 percent and now is back to where it was before the crash of the market. So we were able to build back that growth in savings for most of the seniors who rely on that, for the pension funds, for the 401(k)'s, so people could get their retirement savings back.

Those are some of the fundamental tax cuts that are in this tax bill. See, if we do nothing, taxes go up. If this motion to instruct would see its way through, taxes would go up. The effect of this motion to instruct is to say, do not prevent these tax increases. And if you do want to prevent these tax increases, you will have to raise taxes somewhere else to prevent these other tax increases. I think that is bad economic policy.

Now, where we need to improve is on spending. We need to bring the deficit down, and that is where the three of us are going to agree. That is where the gentleman from Georgia and the gentleman from Tennessee and I will clearly agree. Our deficit is too high. Our debt is far too high and we have to get it going in the other direction.

But, what has happened since 5 million net new jobs were created since 2003? What happened since the economy grew at such a faster rate? What actually happened was revenues increased. So when we cut tax rates, you would have thought that revenues would have gone down. In fact, the budget estimators here in Congress and in the administration said, we know that if you cut taxes, we think revenues will go down. Even though that may happen, it is important to get us out of the recession.

So back then we used this estimating measuring stick and our estimates predicted that revenues would go down if we cut taxes. We still cut taxes because we wanted to get people back to work. But what happened was the opposite occurred. Revenues went up. Revenues from capital gains taxes went up, even though the rate was lower. Revenues from marginal income tax rates went up, even though the rate was lower. Revenues from corporations surged by 47 percent last year alone, even at lower tax rates.

What happened was, just last year alone our tax revenues went up 15 percent. The year before they went up. So as a consequence of that, the budget deficit went down by 23 percent in 2004 and went down by 25 percent in 2005 from their projections. So the budget deficit projections actually went down because revenues went up, because people went back to work. They went from collecting unemployment to having a job and paying taxes.

That is good economic policy. It is good budget policy. And to reverse that by raising taxes would be bad economic policy but also bad budget policy. Where we need to focus is on the spending side of the ledger.

If you want to put it into perspective, the size of these tax cuts, and I want to rephrase that again, the tax cuts are simply preventing tax increases, the size of these tax cuts are $70 billion out of a 5-year budget that will spend $14 trillion. Next year's tax cuts, or to put it another way, to prevent tax increases from occurring next year amounts to $11 billion out of a budget that will spend $2.7 trillion.

Let me just read a list of some of the tax policies that would go away if this were to see its way through.

□ 2330

AMT relief for personal tax credits; State and local sales tax deduction. That is a huge issue in States like Tennessee and Texas and others. Research and development tax credit, a big job producer. Above-the-line deduction for higher education expenses; work opportunity tax credit; the welfare-to-work tax credit; savings accounts; enhanced 179 expensing for small businesses that allows small businesses to write off investments in their plant and equipment so they can create new jobs. Brownfield expensing to clean up environmental catastrophe areas; capital gains and dividends, the very tax cuts that have actually increased economic growth, produced jobs and increased tax revenues to the Federal Government.

So, at the end of the day, I think we are going to have a difference of philosophy when we talk about this. We may agree on the need to reduce spending. I hope we have agreement. But what we do not agree on this side of the aisle is the wrong thing to do to the American taxpayer today is to raise their taxes.

The problem here is not that Washington taxes too much; the problem here is that Washington spends too much. That is what we should focus on. The pressure should be on spending, not on raising taxes. I am sorry, but the effect of this motion to instruct would be to do just that.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TANNER. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We do agree on some things, but part of what we heard is Lewis Carroll: What is up is down and what is down is up. This is Alice in Wonderland.

When he says the budget deficits are going in the right direction because they are less than the projection, they are the largest budget deficits in the history of the United States.

Let me read something. He talks about spending. The Republicans have had total control of the Federal Government here for the last 5 years. This is from the CATO Institute. President Bush has presided over the largest overall increase in inflation-adjusted Federal spending since the late 1960s. Even after excluding spending on defense and homeland security, President Bush is still the biggest spending President in over 30 years. His 2006 budget does not cut enough spending to change his place in history, either.

Total government spending grew by 33 percent during Bush's first term. The Federal budget as the share of economy grew from 18.5 percent of GDP on Clinton's last day in office to 20.3 percent by the end of President Bush's first term. The Republican Congress has enthusiastically assisted the budget bloat. Inflation-adjusted spending on the combined budgets of the 101 largest programs they vowed to eliminate in 1995 has grown by 27 percent, and yet somehow they say spending is a problem.

They have total control. The Democrats have not spent any money in this House in over 10 years. We cannot. We do not have enough votes.

This motion says nothing about raising taxes. It says offset whatever tax revenue reduction you are going to make by spending cuts. That is what has not happened. In fact, it has gotten worse.

When President Bush came to town in 2001, in July of that year this country embarked on President Bush's economic plan for the country. Based on a series of assumptions over the next 10 years that would yield a $5 trillion surplus. Well, 2 months later, we had 9/11. Instead of readjusting the economic game plan because every assumption that was made in July of 2001 was suddenly not valid months later in September of 2001, instead of adjusting, what has happened, a compliant Congress and a friendly administration have simply borrowed the difference. We are doing something that people have tried to do since the dawn of civilization and that is borrow themselves rich. It is impossible.

When you cut taxes with borrowed money, you are actually raising taxes. We have raised taxes $55 billion a year every year from now on under this economic game plan because it is interest that we have to pay, and we have to pay it off the top. It is not unlike a credit card. You run your credit card up, you can live pretty good for a little while. But when you have to pay that monthly interest and your monthly payment is only covering the interest, suddenly you cannot invest in anything using that credit card because the service charges are eating you alive. That is exactly what is happening with this government.

All this motion to instruct says, whatever you do with the tax reconciliation bill, do not add to the Federal deficit and do not pile more money on the debt of our citizens. It is that simple. If they cannot figure it out, maybe they should not be running the place.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT).

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, first, I want to respond to something my distinguished colleague from the other side said. Now you talk about smoke and mirrors. For him to say on our side that we are talking about raising taxes is so disingenuous. Nobody is talking about raising taxes. We are talking about fiscal responsibility and pay-as-you-go responsibilities.

We are saying that we do not want to cut vital services to the American people and then go borrow more money that we have to pay interest on. That, in effect, when you put it altogether, if anybody is talking about raising taxes, it is the Republicans. Somebody has to pay for this. You know who is going to pay for it, our grandchildren and our children based on their proposals.

No, sir, you are not going to be able to depend on Democrats this night that we are talking about raising taxes. Democrats are talking about keeping our taxes low and bringing fiscal responsibility back to this House.

You talk about responsibility. When Democrats were in control, when President Clinton was there, he left a several trillion dollar surplus. In just 5 years, this President and this Republican-led Congress has squandered that surplus. So when you talk about who is more responsible for the taxpayers' money, it is Democrats, not Republicans. And the American people are not going to be fooled by this smoke and mirrors of consistently trying to paint the Democrats as being for raising taxes and they for not. The Republicans are for raising taxes and raising the debt ceiling.

Madam Speaker, I want to show this chart. It is not as big as your chart, but the Republicans have increased the debt limit by $3 trillion. I have been here 4 years, and this is the fourth time that the Republicans have asked to raise the debt ceiling so they can borrow more money.

In June, 2002, they asked to raise the debt ceiling by $452 billion. In May, 2003, they asked to raise the debt ceiling by $984 billion. In November of 2004, they raised the debt ceiling by $800 billion, all of which we are borrowing against, against the best national security interests of this country, against the best financial security interests of this country.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I hope the gentleman appreciates the fact that I yielded him a minute to beat me up some more.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, let me assure the gentleman it was not beating him up. He is a great gentleman, but it is some of the policies that have been emanating from the gentleman's leadership.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Reclaiming my time, a couple of points.

Number one, as a percentage of this economy, this is not the largest deficit we have had in history, which is the statistic that matters. But you know what? This deficit is too big because it is a deficit, period.

Number two, if you do not pass this tax bill, taxes automatically go up. That means they are increased. Here is what this tax bill does: It prevents these tax cuts from going away. Said another way, it keeps taxes where they are so they do not automatically increase because the law requires that taxes go up next year, the year after, and the year after that.

So the concern we have is that because we lowered taxes, got economic growth going again, created new jobs, it actually increased revenues to the Federal Government and lowered our deficit projections. The concern we have is let us focus on spending, not taking more money out of the pocketbooks of our constituents. Let us not take a bigger bite of the paychecks of the workers of America by taking more of their tax dollars. Let us prevent these tax increases from hitting the American people and let us focus on the real problem, spending.

So if you try to defeat this tax bill, you are basically saying we want taxes to increase. Or if you want to offset it, you are saying to prevent tax increases we need to increase taxes. That does not make a lot of sense.

So the point is we have probably a fundamental disagreement. We believe that we should not raise taxes on people. We believe that the more money a person has in their paycheck, the more money a person has in their pocketbook and wallet and their business, the more successful they are going to be, the more freedom they have, the more prosperous they will be and the better our economy will be. And its impact on our budget deficits is a beneficial one, usually, because it means there are more revenues coming to the government.

Nevertheless, we should not look at it as an opportunity to spend. We should look at this good economic news we have right now, the fact that the economy is growing, people are going back to work and paying taxes, we should look at this as a moment to make sure we do not spend as much money so we can reduce the deficit and pay down our debt. That is what it is all about at the end of the day.

Madam Speaker, I appreciate the dialogue and the debate. I urge a no vote on this motion to instruct.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to instruct.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. TANNER).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. TANNER. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

LIBERATION OF IRAQ

(Mr. POE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, 3 years ago this month, the fight for liberation of Iraq began in the hot desert lands of the Middle East. On March 19, 2003, American soldiers embarked on the war against tyranny, treachery and terrorism. Since then, thousands of brave, passionate Americans have fought for freedom for the Iraqi people.

As the song says, all have given some, and some have given all in this battle for liberty and justice. The Americans went to Iraq as freedom fighters and have established a democracy in that place that has never known true freedom.

Those young Americans are all volunteers, and more Americans are joining the military each day to continue this battle.

When I was in Iraq, I visited with those Americans, and they told me they are winning this war on terror, and I agree with them. This is the finest military ever assembled in history, and we owe them our support and our resolve. I paraphrase what President Kennedy said, We will support any friend, oppose any foe, pay any price to secure the defense of liberty.

Some things are just worth fighting for, and freedom is one of those things. God bless these Americans, and that's just the way it is.

CONGRATULATING THE PLANO, TEXAS, BOYS BASKETBALL TEAM

(Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include therein extraneous material.)

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Plano Senior High School boys basketball team.

Under the leadership of Coach Inman, they made history on March 11 as the first Plano school team to capture a State basketball championship. The Wildcats, you know, come-from-behind victory over the defending State champs, Kingwood, on Saturday in overtime will go down as one of the most exciting basketball games in Texas high school history.

They won 60-58 to clinch the coveted State title. I say, Congratulations, Wildcats. Y'all embody the school motto: A Tradition of Excellence.

God bless you and God bless America. Boys, we are proud of you. Plano is proud of you. America is proud of you. And I salute you.

Madam Speaker, at this point, I will insert the names of the players into the RECORD.

Coach Tom Inman:

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2005, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

AMNESTY WORKER PROGRAM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, with the overwhelming problem of illegals in this country, some in this Congress want to make it worse. They think that an amnesty worker program is the answer to this problem, and tomorrow the Senate Judiciary Committee will be meeting to consider an amnesty worker program as a solution to the problem. I could not disagree more.

A program granting amnesty for millions of lawless illegals that are already breaking the law by being here defies common sense. We heard that illegals will take jobs Americans won't take. Well, there is absolutely no proof of this assertion. Also, this statement is an insult to the American worker. The jobs illegals sometimes get are below minimum wage, thus driving down the value of American workers. This program is another way of outsourcing American jobs but by bringing the foreigners to our country rather than shipping the jobs to their country.

Under proposals here in Congress, there is no limit to the number of workers allowed to enter; and they would be allowed to bring with them their families. And did I mention that they are expected to leave then after 6 years? We already know that 60 percent of the people who legally came into the United States never left after their visas expired. What makes us think this time will be different?

With an amnesty worker program come the worker's family members who will need the use of our public school systems, health care, public housing and other social services. Where is this money going to come from, Madam Speaker? Well, it is going to come from the American taxpayer. The taxpayer always pays. That is the responsibility, for some reason, for American taxpayers to pay for those people who are from foreign countries illegally in the United States.

And it is also likely the United States will lose even more money because the remittances that these guest workers send home to their families and their home country is growing every day. According to a survey by the InterAmerican Development Bank, Mexican and Latin American immigrants living in the United States already send $30 billion a year in remittances back to their native country.

It is also estimated that 20 percent of the cost of health care and 20 percent of the cost of education comes from those who are illegally in the United States and not contributing to pay for the cost.

Making these so-called workers legal will not change the cost to the American taxpayer.

And after 6 years, what plans do we have to make sure that these individuals will leave? We are taking their word for the fact that when their time is up they will quietly pack up and go back home. This defies common sense.

This same sort of situation occurred back in 1986 when 3 million illegals were given blanket amnesty on the condition there would be a ban on hiring other illegal immigrants. This so-called ban was essentially ignored by employers, and we have no reason to expect a different result this time.

Furthermore, the amnesty work program would be managed by the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services, the CIS. Well, the United States Government Accounting Office released a report this week charging these bureaucrats with a failed organizational infrastructure and massive mismanagement and corruption.

The report shows that the CIS doesn't have a handle on fraud, doesn't do enough to deter it and won't have a fraud management system in place until 2011. The GAO report also found that most of the fraud is a result of a backlog of applications which placed additional pressure on the CIS to produce or process applications faster, making an increased risk of incorrect decisions, including approval of potentially fraudulent applications.

Because of this pressure, multiple offenders are able to game the system, because neither the CIS nor the Immigration and Customs Enforcement regularly penalize those illegals caught committing fraud.

The GAO also found that, of the 94 terrorists known to operate in the United States between the 1990s and 2004, including the September 11 hijackers, two-thirds committed immigration fraud. And now we want bureaucrats to run an amnesty worker program when they are already not capable of the running the programs that they have.

We must remember that an amnesty worker program will not stop illegal immigration. We already have three guest worker programs in place, and we are still dealing with illegal immigration on a daily basis. In 1986, the Immigration Reform and Control Act legalized 3 million aliens in an attempt to control and reform immigration woes. A lot of good that did. Now, 20 years later, those 3 million have grown to almost 12 million.

The consequences of an amnesty worker program could be chaotic, and there is clear risk to our homeland security. The GAO report is yet another reason added to the long list of why amnesty worker program would be a disaster for the United States. So, Madam Speaker, we cannot outsource American jobs by bringing more illegals into the United States under the banner of amnesty. That's just the way it is.

HONORING TOM OGBURN, JR.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. FOXX. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Tom Ogburn, Jr., Executive Professor of Management and Director of the Family Business Center at the Wake Forest University Babcock Graduate School of Management. Mr. Ogburn has dedicated his life to serving his community of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and the students of Wake Forest MBA; and that is why I honor him today.

Tom began his long and distinguished career in the Marketing Research Department of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and eventually became the Director of Global Research and the Marketing Director of the international company. He then spent 8 years as RJR's Vice President of Public Issues. He is also a successful entrepreneur and a gifted professional sculptor.

In 1998, Tom joined the faculty of Wake Forest University and shortly thereafter became the Faculty Advisor of the Wake Forest MBA Case Competition, now known as the Wake Forest MBA Marketing Summit. Always quick to come up with exceptional creative ideas and never willing to settle for less than excellence, Tom challenged students to transform the event from a regional competition with a limited budget into the premiere nationally recognized event it is today. He has helped students form partnerships with an impressive list of corporate sponsors including Yahoo, Wachovia Wealth Management, EchoStar, Coca-Cola, GlaxoSmithKline, Lowe's and Heineken. He has also built and sustained relationships with some of the Nation's most outstanding marketing leaders.

Tom and his wife, Anita, have been married since 1966; and both are natives of Winston-Salem. She is currently the Executive Director of the city's Ronald McDonald House. The Ogburns have two sons, Tate and Allen, both graduates of Wake Forest MBA, and one granddaughter, Virginia.

February 9, 10 and 11 mark the 16th annual Wake Forest MBA Marketing Summit on the campus of Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Hundreds of MBA students, faculty members and marketing executives gathered at the summit; and I am proud that such an exceptional event took place in my district. This event would not be possible without the dedication and commitment of Mr. Tom Ogburn, Jr.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Tom for his outstanding contributions to his community and to the students of Wake Forest MBA.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. ANDREWS (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) on account of family matters.

Mr. BOREN (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today after 4:20 p.m. and the balance of the week on account of a funeral in the District.

Mrs. DAVIS of California for today (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) on account of illness.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) after 2:00 p.m. today and for the balance of the week on account of official business.

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today on account of visiting Minnesota National Guard troops at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, who are about to be deployed to Iraq.

Mr. PETERSON of Minnesota (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today on account of visiting Minnesota National Guard troops at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, who are about to be deployed to Iraq.

Mr. NORWOOD (at the request of Mr. BOEHNER) for today on account of personal reasons.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Ms. FOXX) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. MCHENRY, for 5 minutes, today and March 16.

Ms. FOXX, for 5 minutes, today and March 16.

Mr. SHIMKUS, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. KUHLMAN of New York, for 5 minutes, today.

SENATE ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The SPEAKER announced his signature to enrolled bills of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 1184. An act to waive the passport fees for a relative of a deceased member of the Armed Forces proceeding abroad to visit the grave of such member or to attend a funeral or memorial service for such member.

S. 2064. An act to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 122 South Bill Street in Francesville, Indiana, as the Malcolm Melville "Mac" Lawrence Post Office.

S. 2363. An act to extend the educational flexibility program under section 4 of the Education Flexibility Partnership Act of 1999.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 11 o'clock and 53 minutes p.m.), the House adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, March 16, 2006 at 10 a.m.

TITLE IV—ESTABLISHMENT OF A "TRUMAN" INVESTIGATIVE COMMITTEE TO PROTECT AGAINST WASTE, FRAUD, AND ABUSE RELATED TO CONTRACTS FOR THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERRORISM AND HURRICANES KATRINA AND RITA REBUILDING EFFORTS

SEC. 401. There is hereby created a select committee on the model of the Truman Committee to investigate the awarding and carrying out of contracts to conduct military operations and relief and reconstruction activities related to the global war on terrorism (including all activities in Afghanistan and Iraq), and Hurricane Katrina recovery, relief, and reconstruction efforts (hereinafter referred to in this title as the "select committee").

SEC. 402. (a) The select committee is to be composed of 19 Members of the House, one of whom shall be designated as chairman from the majority party and one of whom shall be designated ranking member from the minority party. The chairmen and ranking minority members of the following committees will serve on the select committee:

- (1) Committee on Armed Services.
- (2) Committee on Government Reform.
- (3) Committee on Homeland Security.
- (4) Committee on International Relations.

The chairmen and ranking minority members of the following subcommittees of the Committee on Appropriations will serve on the select committee:

- (1) Subcommittee on Defense.
- (2) Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs.
- (3) Subcommittee on Homeland Security.

In addition, the Speaker shall appoint 5 members of the select committee, of which 2 members shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the minority leader. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the select committee shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

(b) The select committee shall conduct an ongoing study and investigation of the awarding and carrying out of contracts by the Government for military operations and relief and reconstruction activities related to the global war on terrorism (including all activities in Afghanistan and Iraq), and Hurricane Katrina recovery, relief, and reconstruction efforts and make such recommendations to the House as the select committee deems appropriate regarding the following matters:

- (1) Bidding, contracting, and auditing standards in the issuance of Government contracts.
- (2) Oversight procedures.
- (3) Forms of payment and safeguards against money laundering.
- (4) Accountability of contractors and Government officials involved in procurement.
- (5) Penalties for violations of law and abuses in the awarding and carrying out of Government contracts.
- (6) Subcontracting under large, comprehensive contracts.
- (7) Inclusion and utilization of small businesses, through subcontracts or otherwise.
- (8) Such other matters as the select committee deems appropriate.

SEC. 403. (a) QUORUM.—One-third of the members of the select committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business except for the reporting of the results of its study and investigation (with its recommendations) or the authorization of subpoenas, which shall require a majority of the committee to be actually present, except that the select committee may designate a lesser number, but not less than two, as a quorum for the purpose of holding hearings to take testimony and receive evidence.

(b) POWERS.—For the purpose of carrying out this title, the select committee may sit and act during the present Congress at any time and place within the United States or elsewhere, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned and hold such hearings as it considers necessary and to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses, the furnishing of information by interrogatory, and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, documents, and other things and information of any kind as it deems necessary, including relevant classified materials.

(c) ISSUANCE OF SUBPOENAS.—A subpoena may be authorized and issued by the select committee in the conduct of any investigation or series of investigations or activities, only when authorized by a majority of the members voting, a majority being present. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chairman or by any member designated by the select committee, and may be served by any person designated by the chairman or such member. Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and attested by the Clerk. The select committee may request investigations, reports, and other assistance from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Government.

(d) MEETINGS.—The chairman, or in his absence a member designated by the chairman, shall preside at all meetings and hearings of the select committee. All meetings and hearings of the select committee shall be conducted in open session, unless a majority of members of the select committee voting, there being in attendance the requisite number required for the purpose of hearings to take testimony, vote to close a meeting or hearing.

(e) APPLICABILITIES OF RULES OF THE HOUSE.—The Rules of the House of Representatives applicable to standing committees shall govern the select committee where not inconsistent with this title.

(f) WRITTEN COMMITTEE RULES.—The select committee shall adopt additional written rules, which shall be public, to govern its procedures, which shall not be inconsistent with this title or the Rules of the House of Representatives.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

A TRIBUTE TO SHARON MARTINEZ

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Sharon Martinez, of Monterey Park, CA. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our Nation's women.

Sharon was born, raised, and educated in Monterey Park. She received her bachelor's degree in public administration from the University of Southern California, and her master's degree in public administration in management from the University of Southern California.

Inspired to help residents find jobs in the community, Ms. Martinez founded SMART Staffing Services, a woman and minority owned employment agency that specializes in clerical, bilingual and promotional staffing, originally opened in Monterey Park and now located in Alhambra. SMART Staffing Services, of which Sharon is president, now serves the greater Los Angeles area including Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, and Ventura.

Sharon's list of community involvement is impressive. A current councilmember and former mayor of Monterey Park, her past activities include serving as a board member of the Latin Business Association, West San Gabriel Valley YMCA, Monterey Park Art & Culture Commission, Library Board, national vice president of Young Adults of the League of the United Latin American Citizens, and former secretary of Hispanas Organized for Political Equality.

An appointed member of the Los Angeles County Commission on Local Government, Sharon is currently involved in the Monterey Park/Rosemead Soroptimist International, Monterey Park Rotary, San Gabriel Valley Council of Government, Monterey Park Library Foundation, the San Gabriel Valley Animal Control Authority, Boy Scouts of America—Mission Amigos District Board, Monterey Park Chamber of Commerce, and the Monterey Park Hospital Board. Sharon's goal is to have a direct voice in improving the quality of life for our community and especially to see improvements in the employment industry.

Ms. Martinez has received several awards including Assembly Member Judy Chu's 2003 Latina Business Women of the Year, Business and Professional Women's 2003 Business Woman of the Year Award, "Woman of Promise" Award, and "Latina Entrepreneur of the Year" Award. She was featured in the Los Angeles Business Journal as one of the "20 Up & Coming Latino Women."

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring an extraordinary woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Sharon Martinez.

IN HONOR AND RECOGNITION OF
ROBERT T. WOODWORTHHON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and recognition of my friend, Robert T. Woodworth, devoted father, grandfather, friend, United States veteran and long-time community activist, for his civic activism that continues to uplift our entire Westside Cleveland community.

Mr. Woodworth was born in Cleveland to loving parents. His father drove streetcars in the city and his mother was a loving housewife. With extended family nearby, he learned early on the significance of family and community. Mr. Woodworth has infused those vital lessons of childhood within his own family, as he continues to be a foundation of strength and support for his daughter, Rhonda, and his granddaughters, Stephanie and Samantha.

As a young adult, Mr. Woodworth enlisted in the United States Air Force, giving him the opportunity to travel the world. The languages he learned and friends that he made have never left him, transcending time and distance. He speaks fluent German, Spanish and French and remains closely connected to friends living in faraway lands. His passion for travel, community issues and global concerns parallels his passion for music. He is an avid guitarist and pianist and is an avid patron of classical music.

Mr. Woodworth's warm demeanor and quick smile easily draws others to him. His unwavering belief in community service and volunteerism is illuminated throughout Cleveland's Westside, especially within our democratic process, where his grassroots involvement continues to positively impact our neighborhoods. His leadership and diligence has been key in several political races, including his role as campaign manager for then council candidate Nelson Cintron. Councilman Cintron became the first Hispanic councilman in Cleveland's history.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, please join me in honor, recognition and gratitude to Mr. Robert T. Woodworth. His joyous life, centering on devotion to family, friendship and community, continues to reflect warmth, energy and song—enriching and inspiring family and friends throughout our Cleveland community and far beyond.

IN MEMORY OF SHERIFF SIDNEY
WARREN SHIPPYHON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, it is with deep sadness that I inform the House of the death of Sheriff Sidney "Sid" Warren Shippy of Butler, Missouri. He died at the age of 57 of complications from a heart and kidney transplant.

Shippy was born in Kansas City, Missouri, the oldest of three children. After graduating from Raytown High School in 1967, he enlisted in the United States Army and served in Vietnam. He was awarded the Bronze Star, Army Commendation and Air Medal during his service.

Shippy attended Longview Community College before beginning a 33-year career in law enforcement. Shippy served with the Missouri Highway Patrol as an undercover narcotics officer, road patrolman, zone commander, and worked in the department's gaming commission. He served as an instructor to other officers and attained the highest investigation qualification, an Accident Reconstructionist. After retiring from the Patrol in 2003, he entered politics and was elected Bates County Sheriff in 2004.

Mr. Speaker, I am certain that the Members of the House of Representatives will join me in paying tribute to the outstanding public service of Sheriff Sidney Warren Shippy. He will be missed by all who knew him and I offer my heartfelt condolences to his family: his wife of 30 years, Markita; daughter, Anissa Fischer; mother, Deva Shippy; brother, Russell Shippy; and sister, Barbara Shippy.

IN MEMORY OF 1LT ALMAR LARON
FITZGERALDHON. JOE WILSON

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, on March 4, 2006, I attended the funeral of Almar LaRon Fitzgerald, an American soldier from Lexington, South Carolina, who gave his life while serving his country in Iraq. This hero of Lexington County who graduated from The Citadel was lovingly eulogized at the Lexington Baptist Church by Pastor Ken Jumper of The Harvest Church of Lexington. Pastor Jumper, with a family of military service, provided an inspiring lesson of hope.

THE FUNERAL SERVICE OF LT ALMAR LARON
FITZGERALD LEXINGTON BAPTIST CHURCH

And Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in Me will live, even though he dies; and whoever lives and believes in Me will never die. Do you believe this?"

As we were singing this last song, I was reminded of this scripture where we are given the promise of eternal life. And yes, we believe this.

I would like to thank the family for allowing me the opportunity to share in these moments with them, and my thoughts and prayers are certainly with you.

If I were to say today how I really felt inside, I would have to say, "It just ain't right". But my part today is to bring, and I have been asked to bring, "words of comfort".

With that said, we must understand today that our comfort will not be found in the context of human understanding. As a pastor, I am often called upon to explain the unexplainable, but the unexplainable remains unexplained even after I have said my piece. There are no real explanations as to why a quality young man should leave life so early in the day.

However, our comfort today will be found in the context of our faith. You see that is why we came to the church, sang some hymns, called a preacher and read some scripture. We understand that in moments like these we call upon our faith—a faith that transcends our human understanding and grief.

We look to the God unseen and an eternity yet unrealized to anchor our hope. The faith I speak of today is more than just a general faith in God. It is a specific faith that finds its foundation in the person of Jesus Christ.

As I pondered my thoughts for today, I was reminded of the first family created by God. Adam and Eve, the first family, lost a son. Their son was also lost through an act of seemingly meaningless violence. And at that time, they had to deal with the emotions you and I are dealing with today—the questions of why, feelings of loss and grief, and wondering where do we go from here. They had to make some sense and reconcile these thoughts of pain, loss and grief with God and eternal things.

Today as we think of Almar LaRon Fitzgerald and the life he lived—a life that served, a life that was savored and well lived, and ultimately a life that was sacrificed—I would like for us to turn our attention to "another Son" that was sacrificed.

Adam and Eve had a son that was lost, and God gave them another son. They named him Seth, and it was in and through this son they were to find hope. It was through "another son," Seth, that Jesus Christ was to be born. If you follow the genealogy of Christ backwards you will find this to be true. And today, it is through this Son, God's Son Jesus Christ, that you and I will find our comfort and consolation from today.

I wish I could explain the unexplainable today. Let me tell you what I do know. Let me tell you what I do know to be True, Reliable and Eternal. I know that God is Love. He is, He has been and He always will be. God created a world of peace and harmony with no violence, sickness or pain.

Unfortunately, mankind fell and chose to live their lives their own way. Therefore, we live in a fallen world today—one that has sickness, pain and death. We must be careful that we do not allow our pain and hurt to turn to bitterness against others or against the God who does love us and care for us.

For you see, it was right in the middle of this fallen world that God dropped a cross, planted it in the ground and hung His Only Son upon it. A cross that stands between heaven and earth. A cross that helps us rec-oncile life and eternity. A cross that helps us bear up under the burden of pain and grief. A cross where Jesus died, sacrificially giving His life for another. I remember as well, as I think of Almar's sacrifice, there is no greater love than this, that a man would lay down his life for another. So you and I can look to this cross and find the comfort and hope we need in order to navigate this life.

We find in this cross two arenas of hope. First of all, the hope of eternal life. For all those who have accepted Christ and believe in Him, there is the promise of life after death. You see, we who believe will see Almar again. There is life beyond this life. This is the hope and comfort we can have today.

Now we have the promise of eternal life, but we also have the promise of a Comforter. Jesus promised that He would be with us. He would comfort us. He would never leave us or forsake us. So during the days and weeks ahead and during the dark nights when no one is there, He will be there. He will be with me and comfort me in my darkness and most difficult moment! Can I get a witness in the place today?

This is the hope we have: Jesus and His presence will be with me and strengthen me, day by day until 'that day'. So we look to the cross and the Son. This is where we find our hope and peace.

We also find the grace to forgive at the cross. So we must today forgive those who have hurt us.

The Bible tells us that the power of the cross removes the sting of death. Death has no hold on us. As death went to catch Almar in its grip, poof, he was gone. Death looked around and could not find him. Jesus said those who believe in me will never taste, experience, death.

And as we forgive, we find peace. Interestingly, Almar gave his life for peace. So we must forgive others, even as Jesus hung on the cross and said, "Father forgive them, they don't understand." May we become peacemakers today.

Finally out of this comfort, may we find courage. The courage to get up and go on with our lives, learning to live life to its fullest. The courage to forgive others and be peacemakers. And the courage to accept Jesus Christ and forge a path through life that others can recognize and follow.

Now may the peace and grace of Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen and Amen!

A TRIBUTE TO SETA SIMONIAN

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Seta Simonian, of Glendale, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our nation's women.

Ms. Simonian's community involvement demonstrates her devotion to education and art, because she believes in promoting and preserving the treasures and the beauty of Armenian culture and heritage.

Seta was born in Aleppo, Syria, and at age 11 moved to Beirut, Lebanon. Upon graduating from the American University of Beirut at the age of 22, she married Hrach Simonian. The Simonians lived and worked in Saudi Arabia for 8 years, then moved to California in 1985. Since 1987, Seta, her husband, and their two children, Karin and Sebouh, have resided in Glendale, California.

Soon after moving to California, Ms. Simonian cofounded and chaired the Hamazkayin Educational and Cultural Society of Pasadena. She is a current member of Arvest and Artee Cultural Groups of Hamazkayin, and since 1994, has been the chair of the Hamazkayin Music Committee which collaborates with artists in Armenia and releases authentic CDs and classical Armenian music. She is currently an assistant for the Hamazkayin Student Forum held in Armenia every summer. Seta served as an Anchor for Horizon Armenian TV in Glendale for three years. A cofounder of the Committee of Armenian Students in the Public Schools, she is also a member of the Armenian Cultural Foundation, Armenian Educational Foundation, Armenian International Women's Association, the National Education Association, and the California and Glendale Teachers' Associations.

Seta received her bachelor's degree in mathematics from the American University of Beirut, and a master's in education administration from California State University Los Angeles. She has a teaching diploma, a bilingual teaching certificate, and has completed an Armenian Studies program.

A wonderful role model for her students, Seta has been a teacher for over 30 years and is currently teaching math at Wilson Middle School in Glendale.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring an outstanding woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Seta Simonian.

IN HONOR AND RECOGNITION OF BRAD NORRIS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and memory of my close friend William B. "Brad" Norris—beloved husband, father, stepfather, grandfather, brother, and close friend to the entire community. His passing marks a tragic loss to his friends, family and the people that he served in the community.

From early on, he headed the call to public service. He graduated from Culver Academy in Indiana and enlisted in the U.S. Army. He served his country with honor and courage, after which he moved to Cleveland, where he eventually joined Cleveland law firm Hahn Loeser and Parks.

Mr. Norris was truly a civil rights activist. He visited President John F. Kennedy and also volunteered with Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. By working with the Cleveland Regional Transit Authority during the late 1960's he helped organize opposition to a freeway plan that if enacted, it would have split eastern Cuyahoga County. He represented the city of Cleveland in a lengthy antitrust lawsuit against the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, in which CEI attempted to put its rival Muny Light Company out of business. This would have made CEI Cleveland's only municipal electric system. This was also a topic I fought passionately for when I was the mayor of Cleveland. He also played an instrumental role in the rebirth of Cleveland's first licensed educational, non-commercial public radio station, WCPN FM

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in honor and remembrance of Mr. William B. "Brad" Norris. We remember him and celebrate the life that he led. We have experienced a great loss in the Cleveland community, and he will be missed greatly. I extend my deepest condolences to his beloved wife, Elizabeth; his sons Jack, Todd, and Robert; his daughters, Carolyn, Pamela and Betsie; a brother; six grandchildren and his friends and colleagues. The life that he lived, and the legacy that he leaves will live on in the hearts of his family and all the lives that he touched.

IN MEMORY OF SSGT. JAY COLLADO

HON. JOE WILSON

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, on March 3, 2006, I attended the funeral of SSGT. Jay Collado, an American soldier from Columbia, South Carolina, who gave his life while serving his country in Baghdad, Iraq. The inspiring service was conducted by Fr. Wilbroad Mwape, the Catholic Chaplain of Providence Hospital in Columbia. His message of heroism and hope was presented with great sincerity.

We have gathered here this morning to celebrate life for Jay, for we believe death is not the end of our life but in fact the beginning of a New, perfect and eternal life in God's Kingdom. Jay died honorably and I really feel honored to be part of this celebration of his life!

Death indeed is a very painful experience for all of us regardless of whatever age a beloved person died. We moan and grieve for our beloved people knowing that we will never see them again as human beings the way we are now! However, we will moan and grieve not as unbelievers but as believers in the life after death. And this is why we are here to celebrate life and not death of SSGT Jay Collado!

To the family of Jay, this is a terrible loss mostly that Jay has gone at a very young age, he was only 31! You will really moan and grieve as a family for this great loss of your beloved one. However, as we have heard from the scripture readings, death is not the end of life but a beginning of a perfect and eternal life. Jay has only passed by from our mother earth and enters into a new life where we all look forward to be. As we heard, Jesus Christ says, He is the life and the Resurrection who ever believes in him will have eternal life. This is what Jay would like each one of us to know that he is now resting eternally in God's Kingdom. Jay will always be a gift to you as a family and you will remember him in all the wonderful time you shared with him.

SSgt Jay died for a noble cause in the country of Iraqi fighting for a better life of humanity! He indeed died a hero's death, he is a hero not only for the U.S., but the whole humanity. Jay will remain a great inspiration not only to the family, U.S. Marine Corps, or his country but to humanity as whole. Jay chose to go to Iraq and fight for freedom, peace and liberty for the Iraqi people and the whole of Middle East, he would have chosen not to go if he had no love for humanity. Jay will be remembered for his spirit of sacrifice not only for the freedom, peace and liberty of U.S. but the whole humanity. He chose to risk and sacrifice his life for the love of people. This indeed is a wonderful inspiration for all of us. Let us remember Jay by imitating him, to be ready to risk and sacrifice our lives for the freedom, peace and liberty of all human beings on earth. All of us here we are enjoying the freedom, peace and liberty because of people like Jay who sacrificed their lives for us, many of whom we never knew or met!

This indeed is SSGT Jay Collado's legacy, a young man who risked and sacrificed his life for love of humanity. He is a hero; let us honor him by learning from his exemplary life!

TRIBUTE TO DR. WILLIAM BAKER

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, let me take this opportunity to recognize the many achievements of Dr. William Allen Baker (Pg.D, Ph.D, D.Litt, Th.D, Kt.OBE), from Odessa, Missouri, who is an accomplished actor, educator, author, and philanthropist.

Dr. Baker conducted his graduate studies at the University of Hawaii at Manoa and at the University College, Wales, United Kingdom. A Rotary Foundation International Graduate Fellow, he has earned a Doctorate in Theatre History (Ph.D), a Doctor of Letters (D.Litt), a Doctorate in Theology (Th.D), and an Honorary Doctorate of Divinity (HonDD).

Previously an Associate Professor and Department Chairman at Avila University, Dr. Baker has published several books. His stage and film credits include performances in England, France, and Wales. Dr. Baker is a member of the Royal Star and Garter, the Royal British Legion, the British Society of Ethical Theory, the British Theological Institute, the American Biographical Institute, the International Society of Philosophers, Franciscans International, the Council for Parliament of the World's Religions, the Screen Actors Guild, and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Dr. Baker has been bestowed several awards and honors including the International Peace Prize, the Queen's Golden Jubilee Medal, the Magistracy Medal of Honor, and the International Professor of the Year 2005. He has been nominated for the American Medal of Honor for contributions to literature, the International Medal of Freedom, and International Writer of the Year. Dr. Baker has also been named to the BBC Hall of Fame, Top 100 Writers 2005, and Outstanding Intellectuals of the 21st Century.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to extend my congratulations to Dr. Baker for his many achievements and wish him luck in all his future endeavors.

A TRIBUTE TO PAT MAGUIRE FREEMAN

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor Ms. Pat Maguire Freeman, of San Gabriel, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our nation's women.

Pat was born in San Francisco in 1940. Since her father was a career army officer, she was raised throughout the world, including the Philippines and Germany, where she attended high school. After attending the University of California Berkeley, she married Lee Freeman in 1961 and they moved to San Gabriel in 1965, where they currently reside. The Freemans have 3 children, Noel, Amber, Roger, and Dawn Myers, their foster daughter and seven grandchildren.

Ms. Freeman has been active in many different community organizations. Some past activities include being an Adult Leader for Methodist Youth Fellowship, a Camp Commissioner for Methodist Camp Sturtevant, and a Brownie and Girl Scout Leader. Formerly active in several Parent Teacher Associations, PTAs, for the San Gabriel Unified School District, SGUSD, she has received SGUSD's Golden Apple Award and 3 PTA awards over the years. Pat was a Leader and Steering Committee Member of 4 separate successful School Bond Measures for SGUSD in 1993, 1994, 1998 and 2002.

A member since 1996, Ms. Freeman is currently President of the San Gabriel Educational Foundation, and serves on the School Site Council for Del Mar High School. She is a San Gabriel Valley Medical Center volunteer, a member of the center's Foundation Board and Coordinator of the center's Helping Hands volunteer group. In addition, Pat serves on the San Gabriel Community Coordinating Council, leads their Holiday Basket Committee, and has held various officer positions over the years. She is a member of the San Gabriel Rotary Club, and the Women's Division of the San Gabriel Chamber of Commerce, where she received the Women's Division of the San Gabriel Chamber of Commerce's Woman of the Year Award in 1989.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring a remarkable woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Pat Maguire Freeman.

IN HONOR AND REMEMBRANCE OF RICHARD L. DECHANT, SR.

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and remembrance of Richard L. DeChant, Sr., devoted family man, community activist, business leader, World War II veteran, and friend and mentor to many.

Mr. DeChant grew up in Avon, Ohio. His father was a steelworker and his mother ran the family farm business. He learned early on the significance of family, hard work and community. By the time he was eight years old, Mr. DeChant's mother gave him a job selling home-grown produce door-to-door. He attended St. Ignatius High School and later earned a degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Detroit. He married Marie in 1943 and together they raised five sons. They remained committed to each other until her death in 2004.

For his entire adult life, Mr. DeChant worked as a tireless promoter on behalf of Cleveland and Northeast Ohio. While working with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company in the 1940s, DeChant began a life-long vocation of promoting the Cleveland community. As executive director of the Greater Cleveland Growth Board, now known as the Greater Cleveland Growth Association, for nearly twenty-five years, DeChant's focused service and advocacy on behalf of his beloved community drew millions of dollars of new industry into our region. He also participated in numerous trade missions throughout Europe and Asia. Although deeply committed to his work, his family was always foremost and central in his life.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in honor and remembrance of Richard L. DeChant. I offer my heartfelt condolences to his sons, Thomas (Paul), James (Lyn), Richard Jr. (Sharon), David (Terri) and the memory of Doug (Bonnie); his grandchildren, Richard III, Brett, Jimmy, Dawn, Nicole, Matt and Carl; his brothers, Robert and Donald; and his extended family and many friends. Although Mr. DeChant will be greatly missed, the joyous legacy of his life, framed by kindness, energy and an unwavering focus on family and on making a difference, will forever resound within the hearts and memories of his family and friends, and within the spirit of our entire community.

A TRIBUTE TO NANCY DONAHUE

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Nancy Donahue, of Temple City, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our Nation's women.

Nancy is a native Californian, born in Alhambra. She moved to Temple City with her parents when she was just 6 months old. Nancy graduated from Temple City High School where she was a majorette, song girl, Girls League President, and winner of the Daughters of the American Revolution Award for Outstanding Senior. After attending Brigham Young University, she returned to Temple City where she and her husband, Terry, have lived for over 40 years. They have one daughter, Tracy, and two grandchildren, Kody and Haylee.

Ms. Donahue had a successful 22-year career in banking, working at First Western Bank & Lloyds Bank, California. After health concerns determined that she take a different path, she became a "full-time volunteer" at Methodist Hospital of Southern California in 1986.

Nancy has been incredibly active with her volunteer work at Methodist Hospital, where she has given over 10,000 hours in service over a 20-year period. She has served on the Auxiliary Board for over 10 years, four times as the Board President, and as an ex-officio member of the Foundation Board. She acts as coordinator of the Methodist Hospital archives, correlating artifacts collected for over 100 years and works in the hospital gift shop twice a week. Nancy has been involved in the annual Holiday Homes Tour at Methodist Hospital, chairing many committees and continuing to help with fundraising efforts.

In addition to her commitments at the hospital, Ms. Donahue is an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, Huntington Ward, Pasadena Stake and is currently serving as Ward Librarian. Other volunteer activities include the March of Dimes, American Heart Association, Diabetes Association and the American Red Cross. Nancy is past President of Arcadia-Monrovia and Temple City Soroptimist International and a charter member of Arcadia P.E.O. Chapter XL.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring an outstanding woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Nancy Donahue.

IN HONOR AND RECOGNITION OF GOOD SAMARITAN NORBERT MAGALSKI

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and recognition of Norbert Magalski of Parma, Ohio, a noble Good Samaritan and Gulf War veteran who has lent a hand to many.

Mr. Magalski, as a trained emergency medical technician and tow truck operator has helped countless people on the roadside. Even in an age when people are too overwhelmed with their own priorities to lend a helping hand to strangers, he has made it a common practice in his life to help those who are in need of assistance on the road.

Mr. Magalski was injured last Thursday by a suspected drunk driver while helping a young woman who had veered off I-76 and into a guardrail. He suffered broken bones in his left leg, left shoulder and face. It will be several months before he fully recovers.

This man is truly one to be honored and emulated as he remains committed to lending a helping hand when needed. He is a modest and kind-hearted citizen who in spite of injury will continue to help strangers in need. His kindness and generosity is something that is not often seen in today's society. My thoughts and prayers are with him and his family for his quick recovery.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in honor and recognition of Norbert Magalski, whose dedication and courage in lending a hand to his fellow citizens has helped save the lives of many.

A TRIBUTE TO HELEN HANCOCK

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Helen Hancock, of Alhambra, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our nation's women.

Helen Hancock was born in Indiana in 1922. She attended Nursing School at Case Western Reserve University in Ohio as well as Redlands University in California. After completing her schooling, she served 2 years in the Army Nurse Corps during World War II. Ms. Hancock moved to California in 1953 and began working at Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena. In 1959, she moved to Alhambra, California.

Less than a year after her retirement in 1988 from a 35-year career in nursing administration at Huntington Hospital, and 8 years as a Member of the State Board of Registered Nursing, Helen Hancock plunged into community volunteer work. Since then she has used her extensive nursing and administrative knowledge and skills to make a significant difference in the health and well being of countless seniors and their families.

As a senior herself, Ms. Hancock desired to help other senior citizens enjoy their retirement years and began volunteering at Huntington Senior Care Network (HSCN); a Huntington Hospital community-based program that helps seniors maintain their independence. Her interview skills have added to the success of a National Council on Aging project of HSCN to enhance the health of frail seniors through increased physical activity. Helen has been a tireless advocate for seniors as a long-term care ombudsman for the Department of Aging for nearly 15 years. For nearly 25 years, she has been a resource for caregivers of Alzheimer's patients at a weekly support group, and she continues to promote Alzheimer's disease education, as well as senior services and elder abuse education, through membership in several community coalitions.

Helen is a faith community nurse coordinator for All Souls Catholic Church, as part of a program sponsored by Methodist Hospital of Southern California and All Souls Catholic Church, to improve the health of the community. She and her team conduct events that include blood pressure screenings, blood donor drives and health education presentations to reach members of their parish.

Last year, Helen was among 26 older adults honored as Outstanding California Senior Volunteer leaders by the University of California Berkeley School of Public Health.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring a remarkable woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Helen Hancock.

HONORING RONALD HUDSON

HON. RON LEWIS

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the life of a remarkable citizen from my congressional district. Ronald Hudson, a longtime resident of Leitchfield, Kentucky, passed away February 20th at age 65. Mr. Hudson was a colorful and widely respected figure in Grayson County, having served on the Leitchfield Fire Department for 46 years, 31 of those as Chief.

In a recent feature story in the Grayson County News-Gazette, Chief Hudson described himself as "not a poster boy firefighter" when he first joined the department in 1959. With typical self deprecating humor, he described himself as "too short and too skinny, with trouble taking anything serious for any length of time." He credited the late Murrell Conklin, then Chief Emeritus of the Leitchfield Department for coaching him through his first few years, helping to mold him into a serious firefighter and public servant.

Ronald Hudson was named Chief after only 12 years of service on the department. As Chief, he was responsible for training and managing a diverse crew of firefighters, purchasing and maintaining fire apparatus, and perpetually pursuing sources of funding to keep the department running. Chief Hudson was personally responsible for countless acts of heroism throughout his four decades as a firefighter. Yet he always humbled himself with the tough reality of all emergency personnel: You can go from hero to zero and back again in a matter of seconds.

Chief Hudson's contributions to his community, staring down danger time and time again to save lives and protect the safety and comfort of his neighbors, has made Leitchfield a fine place to live for many years. Ronald Hudson's life, career, and especially his final years fighting against his own declining health, was the true epitome of courage and generosity of spirit.

In addition to his position on the Fire Department, Chief Hudson also served as Grayson County Coroner and was a member of the American Legion Post 81, the Leitchfield Masonic Lodge, and the Fraternal Order of Police. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army and owned and operated a small business from 1983 to 2002.

Ronald Hudson's distinguished life of service to his community and his country, along with his unwavering dedication to his family and fellow firefighters, is a portrait of outstanding citizenship worthy of our collective respect and appreciation. It is my great privilege to honor his memory today before the entire United States House of Representatives.

THE FEDERAL JUDGESHIP AND ADMINISTRATIVE EFFICIENCY
ACT OF 2005

HON. MICHAEL K. SIMPSON

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, article III of the Constitution states that "the judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish." At times in our Nation's history, Congress has found it necessary to realign the United States Courts of Appeals into more efficient and manageable circuits. Once again, it's time for Congress to exercise its article III powers by realigning the Ninth Circuit and creating a new Twelfth Circuit.

I am pleased to be an original co-sponsor of Judiciary Chairman SENSENBRENNER's H.R. 4093, the Federal Judgeship and Administrative Efficiency Act of 2005. In addition to creating additional federal judgeships, this legislation would divide the Ninth into two circuits. These would consist of a new Ninth made up of California, Hawaii, Guam and the Northern Marianas, and a new Twelfth with Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, and Arizona.

Mr. Speaker, this division makes sense. Putting aside any political, historical or emotional arguments, the numbers speak for themselves. A split of the Ninth Circuit is necessary because it has become disproportionately large and unwieldy in relation to the other eleven regional circuits.

The Honorable John M. Roll, U.S. District Judge for Arizona, has recently provided me with updated statistics regarding the Ninth Circuit. This is where the Ninth Circuit stands today:

The population of the Ninth Circuit is 58 million people. This is one-fifth of the population of the United States. It is also 27 million more people than reside in the next largest circuit.

The Ninth Circuit consists of 9 states (including the most populous state), a territory, and a commonwealth. The other circuits average less than four states. No other circuit decides the law for 9 states.

As of December 31, 2005, the Ninth Circuit had nearly 17,000 pending cases, which represents 28 percent of all pending federal appeals.

According to recent statistics from the Administrative Office of U.S. Courts, the Ninth Circuit is now the slowest circuit in the country, by more than 2 months, for each of its nearly 17,000 cases, from filing of notice of appeal to disposition.

The Ninth Circuit has 28 authorized active circuit judgeships. The other 11 geographical circuits average less than 13.

It is clear from these facts that the extraordinary growth of the nine western states comprising the Ninth has resulted in an overpopulated circuit that has become a giant among the twelve circuits.

Ninth Circuit Judges O'Scannlain and Tallman hit it on the head when they wrote in the Wall Street Journal that "... size adversely affects not only the speed with which justice is administered, but also the quality of judicial decision making. Consistent interpretation of the law by an appellate court requires a reasonably small body of judges who have the opportunity to sit and to confer together frequently, and who can read, critique and, when necessary, correct each others' decisions. That kind of collegiality is no longer possible in a circuit of this size." This statement describes precisely why we need to split the Ninth Circuit.

With a fifth of the U.S. population living in the Ninth Circuit today, I would expect that this could easily become a fourth of the population. Today's 28 active Ninth Circuit judges will eventually become 35, then 40, 50 and so on.

The Ninth Circuit has a history to be proud of, but how long will it be before those who seek to hold onto the past glory of the Ninth come to realize that it should not be recognized for its unique solutions for coping with staggering caseloads and an inability to readily sit all judges? Under this legislation, the new Ninth and Twelfth Circuits will be recognized as individual circuits that have been given a fresh start, fresh life, and fresh collegiality with efficiencies that allow judges in the new circuits to focus on case law and not case management.

Opponents of a split have ascribed political motivations to my efforts—that I, being the author and proponent of realignment legislation, don't like the decisions of the Ninth Circuit. Well, the Ninth does make bad decisions that I don't agree with. For that matter judges appointed by Nixon, Reagan and both presidents Bush make bad decisions that I don't always agree with. Every circuit in the United States makes bad decisions that I don't always agree with. The practical effect of a court ruling is that one party will be pleased and the other disappointed.

Should a circuit be realigned, or manipulated in a manner such as "court packing" solely for political reasons? Absolutely not. However, the fact that my colleagues and I may disagree with certain rulings of the Ninth Circuit should not automatically disqualify us from seeking to realign the circuit. Ascribing political motivations to my colleagues and me is nothing more than a disingenuous smokescreen. If judges, scholars, politicians and others have spoken to me they know that my motivations are not political. My motivation is a desire for my constituents to have an efficient, expedient and manageable court that is able to apply a consistent interpretation of the law. In the meantime, my faith in the Supreme Court and its demonstrated readiness to overturn rulings of the Ninth Circuit, alleviates any fears that I have that an egregious ruling of the Ninth will not be corrected.

Of course split opponents must throw up the smokescreen that my fellow colleagues and I are politically motivated. What else can they do? It's impossible to argue against the facts. Having one-fifth of our nation's citizens in one circuit while the remaining four-fifths are in eleven circuits does not make sense. I have yet to hear split opponents or scholars state why it is good for a single circuit to have one-fifth of the nation's citizens in one circuit when the remaining four-fifths are in eleven other circuits. I do not know why having 28 percent of all pending appeals in one circuit is a sign of an effectively working court. I have not heard why it is good for a circuit to have 28 active judgeships, which is eleven more judges than the next largest circuit and more than double the circuit average of 13. I don't know why it is good for Idahoans to have their appeals heard en banc by a partial number of our court of appeals' judges when citizens in the other eleven circuits will get a hearing before all the judges of their circuit. Is this fair to citizens of the Ninth? I don't believe it is.

I look forward to reading the first article, or speech from a federal judge, politician or scholar that sets aside any reference to politics or the political motivations of others and explains why it is a good thing to have a single circuit with one-fifth of the nation's population, 28 active judgeships and a procedure for a partial number of judges to hear cases. I would also take the liberty of asking a theoretical question to that judge, politician or scholar and it goes like this—if you were to start from scratch and create 12 new circuits for our nation, would you place one-fifth of the population in just one of the twelve circuits? Please send a copy of that to my office here in Washington.

Something else I have heard is that our efforts to split the Ninth Circuit are "a threat to judicial independence". I would like to hear from any federal judge, appointed for life, whether their decisions are being influenced based on a threat that their circuit might be realigned? I find it hard to believe that judges, who at times must put their lives on the line for our country in the face of threats and intimidation by criminal defendants, are scared of politicians in Washington, D.C. Once again, please feel free to contact my office here in Washington if that is the case, I promise confidentiality.

Another thing I hear thrown about is an idea I like to call "judicial veto authority". What I'm hearing is that since a majority of the Ninth Circuit judges might not favor a split then it shouldn't go forward. I would ask the proponents of this idea, the proposition that sitting circuit judges need approve of a split before it goes forward, where this is found in Article III?

I do not believe that the composition of a circuit should be determined solely out of concern for its judges, lawyers, bar associations or even politicians. It should be determined by how best the people are served within the states it encompasses. Realigning the Ninth Circuit is about better serving the people who live and work in the nine states and two territories within its boundaries. It's about providing them with better efficiencies, a more consistent interpretation of the law based on rulings made by judges who spend more time conferring directly with one another and reading each other's decisions.

In addition, although the costs of dividing a circuit are important in these days of budgetary constraint, they should not be the reason for disregarding the benefits that would befall the citizens of nine states and two territories. Opponents of a Ninth Circuit split have made note that a new Twelfth Circuit would be costly, with some estimating as high as $21 million in additional court costs annually.

As a member of the Budget Committee it's a wonder that we are not today seeking the savings that would come from creating five larger circuits consisting of say: the Fourth and Sixth plus Georgia; the Fifth and Tenth plus Alabama and Florida; the First, Second and Third; the Eighth and Seventh; and the Ninth alone. Combining those circuits could save us upwards of $150 million a year in operating costs alone.

The reason we are not debating whether to create larger circuit courts of equal size to the Ninth is because it does not make sense to have large circuits. We already have one large court—the United States Supreme Court. I am told that there is a saying that goes "there is the Supreme Court, the Ninth Circuit, and the rest of the federal circuits." What we need now are 13 circuits of roughly equal proportion—not Snow Ninth and the 11 dwarfs.

Two other things I would mention. I have yet to hear calls for returning the Fifth and Eleventh Circuits into their original circuit. From what I know, the division that was undertaken in 1981 has settled out well. Finally, for those who are committed to the "old" Ninth—they can rest easier knowing that even after shedding seven states, the "new" Ninth will remain the largest circuit in the United States.

As we move forward with our legislation to realign the Ninth Circuit, I look forward to split opponents coming out from behind their political smokescreens and discussing the facts at hand which are indisputable—the Ninth Circuit is too large and unwieldy. No amount of technology and innovation is going to provide my constituents with the efficiency and expediency that they deserve as well. The current judges of the Ninth deserve a collegial atmosphere where they can spend time on case law and not case management.

I appreciate the leadership Chairman SEN-SENRENNER has provided in our efforts and look forward to working with him in the coming year as H.R. 4093 and the Ninth Circuit realignment become a reality.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. SANDRA E. THOMAS

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. Sandra E. Thomas, of Altadena, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our Nation's women.

Dr. Sandra E. Thomas is a powerful and fearless leader whose personal service motto is "Brighter Hope, With a New Vision." Highly visible in the community as a civil rights advocate, she has a way of saying what must be said without offending those around her—she always has a smile and a kind word for all who pass her way.

Born in Kansas City, Kansas, Dr. Thomas received her Bachelor of Arts and a Masters

Degree from the University of Kansas and her Ph.D from Columbia University. After retiring as an engineer at Pacific Bell-SBC, she began a pilot program geared to attracting at-risk high school students to the field of engineering.

For 28 years, Sandra served as a youth counselor at the Lincoln Avenue Baptist Church, where her husband, Reverend A.D. Thomas, is Pastor Emeritus. She is currently an instructor and consultant for young adults. A foster mom for over 2 decades, Sandra was named "Outstanding Mother of the Year" at Altadena Elementary School in 1977 and Pasadena High School's "Mother of the Year" in 1979.

Dr. Thomas, a Life Member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), has been affiliated with the organization for 55 years, and serves simultaneously at all levels of the NAACP organization. She is currently a NAACP National Trainer, a Regional Officer, a California State Director and the President of the Altadena Branch of the NAACP, where she has been successful in implementing many positive changes in the Altadena-Pasadena community.

In addition to her NAACP activities, Sandra is an Altadena Town Council member, the founder and CEO of the "Quality of Life Community Center," Chairperson of the Pasadena/Altadena African-American Leaders Community Coalition, a member of the Pasadena Junior League, the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, Leadership Pasadena, the Pasadena Unified School District Non-Violence Team, and the Altadena Community Center Board of Directors.

Dr. Thomas and her husband, long-time Altadena residents, have 3 children, Michael, Vincent, Rosalyn and 6 grandchildren.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring an extraordinary woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Dr. Sandra E. Thomas.

HONORING ITALIAN PRIME MINISTER SILVIO BERLUSCONI

HON. HENRY J. HYDE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and congratulate Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi on his recent speech before the joint session of the U.S. House and the U.S. Senate. I am proud to be joined in this effort by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY).

When terrorists hijacked airplanes, smashing them into the Twin Towers of the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, it was the worst disaster ever perpetrated on American soil. A large part of the world reached out in sympathy to our wounded nation. Silvio Berlusconi, the Italian Premier, called for a giant rally for the Italian people to express their grief and shed their tears for the families of the victims, and to show their compassion for a nation that had been gravely wounded. It was a heartfelt expression of the pain they felt for America by hundreds of thousands of Italians who crowded into Rome's Piazza del Popolo, the place of the people.

Berlusconi's call to action was so successfully answered by the Italian people, that certain political parties of the left called for a counter rally—an anti-American rally. These parties were two Communist parties, and a third party which had been the original Communist party but had changed its name to the Democratic Party of the Left. They paraded through the streets of Rome, a small phalanx holding red flags with the iconic Communist hammer and sickle and placards denouncing America for having entered Afghanistan in pursuit of Osama bin Laden and to destroy the Al Qaeda terrorists. They shouted anti-American slogans, said blood dripped from our hands and that we were assassins. They threw the American flag on the ground, trampled it, poured gas on it, and set it afire. Nowhere in their speeches or placards was there mention of the American tragedy, nowhere mention of grief for the dead or compassion for the families. Italy is a democratic country where everyone is guaranteed the freedom of speech. They expressed their opinions, feelings, and anti-American bias.

When Silvio Berlusconi appeared, several weeks ago, before the joint session of the U.S. House and the U.S. Senate, which is a signal honor paid to a world leader, he was not invited by President Bush, as many Italian newspapers stated. He was invited by the House of Representatives and the Senate, led by DENNIS HASTERT, Speaker of the House, and Vice President CHENEY, as Presiding Officer of the Senate. The Constitution imposes a separation of powers between the legislature and the executive branch and we, the legislative branch of the U.S. Government, are proud of the independence this grants us. We invited him.

When the Italian Prime Minister stood before us and spoke, it was not to Democrats and Republicans but to all of the representatives of all of the districts of all of the states and for all of the American people. This legislative body represents the broad expanse of America and all of her people. And when we rose in a standing salute and gave thunderous applause to Prime Minister Berlusconi, it was the American people who were speaking. The American people who were exercising their right to the freedom of speech, a constitutional right in our country too. The American people gave their opinion. In standing in ovation to Berlusconi's impassioned words of friendship, we rejected the elements in Italy who had turned their back to our suffering, deploring their conduct and their opinions. We instead showed the warm feeling of affection in our hearts for the people of Italy.

TRIBUTE TO DR. BETH MARCUS

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. Beth Marcus, of Burbank, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our nation's women.

Dr. Marcus is a family physician in La Canada Flintridge, where she has practiced for over 10 years on the medical staffs of both Verdugo Hills Hospital and Glendale Adventist Medical Center. After completing her Family Medicine residency, she went on to complete a Fellowship in Adolescent Medicine, where she worked with adolescents struggling with poverty, family estrangement, drug abuse, homelessness and other issues.

Her patients cross the lifespan from infants to geriatric patients. Knowing that excellent medical care means going far beyond a diagnosis and a prescription, she has a remarkable capacity to bring compassion and empathy into the care she provides. She is an active advocate for patients, educating them and assisting them in obtaining social services and other sources of support to help them navigate the challenges of illness.

Beth is a member of the California Academy of Family Medicine, was the Secretary/Treasurer of the Los Angeles Chapter from 1995–2000 and a delegate to the house of delegates during those years. She is a member of the American Medical Women's Association and the Society of Adolescent Medicine. For several years she was a volunteer at the University of Southern California teaching a course titled Introduction to Clinical Medicine.

As Burbank Temple Emanu El's social action chair, Dr. Marcus has coordinated various campaigns for helping others in the Burbank, Glendale, North Hollywood area. She has arranged blood drives, collected shoes and clothing for impoverished children, gathered donations for tsunami victims and hurricane victims, filled backpacks with school supplies, assembled items for homeless women, and made sandwiches for the hungry. In addition, she volunteers in fundraising efforts for the Parent Teacher Association at Emerson Elementary School in Burbank, and is planning to implement a nutrition program at the school called Food is Elementary.

In addition to her professional and civic involvement, Beth is busy as a wife and mother, raising 2 twin boys, Adin and Jonah. She and her husband of 11 years, Dr. Jeff Ring, reside in Burbank.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring an outstanding woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Dr. Beth Marcus.

TRIBUTE TO MAYOR BETTY FLORES

HON. HENRY CUELLAR

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. CUELLAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Betty Flores, an accomplished mayor from my hometown of Laredo, Texas.

Mr. Speaker, Mayor Flores was elected mayor of Laredo in 1998. Since then, she has worked tirelessly to bring Laredo into the 21st century with success and pride. Whether it be through economic development or the rich culture Laredo is known for, Mayor Flores has been there finding ways to advance the city's agenda.

Last year, Laredo received its highest financial rating in its 227-year history. This is the consequence of Laredo being one of the Nation's largest land ports, with 74 of the Fortune 100 companies and 52 countries conducting international trade via the Port of Laredo.

Mayor Flores has earned many awards including Laredo Times Laredoan of the Year and Texas Women of the Century from the Woman's Chamber of Commerce of Texas. This is Mayor Flores's last year in office, and she will be missed.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to have the opportunity to honor a citizen like Mayor Betty Flores.

HONORING THE LIFE OF NEW YORK STATE ASSEMBLYWOMAN SANDRA LEE WIRTH

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to mark a very sad occasion: the passing of my former colleague in the New York State Assembly, Assemblywoman Sandra Lee Wirth.

Last Saturday, Sandra Lee lost her courageous battle with lung cancer. She undertook this fight—like all others she took on, and there were many—with the grace, poise and dignity that we all came to expect from her.

Born Sandra Lee Liberatore in West Seneca, Sandra Lee was a realtor by profession, and was President of the Greater Buffalo Association of Realtors in the early 1990s. At that time, during a county fiscal crisis, the Erie County Legislature instituted a county Real Estate Transfer Tax to fund the operation of mass transit services in Erie County. As one might imagine, Sandra Lee was appalled and swore to do something about it. She did.

Sandra Lee took on and defeated an entrenched incumbent in the Erie County Legislature. During Sandra Lee's 3 years in the County Legislature, she was a fighter for senior citizens and property taxpayers. She was also a great opponent of government waste: she refused various "perks" of the job and funded the operation of her legislative district office personally.

In 1994, the incumbent in the then-148th district seat of the New York State Assembly was retiring, and Sandra Lee jumped into the race with the same vigor that she took to the race for the County Legislature. In another heated and expensive campaign, Sandra Lee again defeated the same person she defeated for the County Legislature in this race for the Assembly.

It was in the Assembly that I got to know—and deeply respect—Sandra Lee Wirth. Although we came from different political parties and were of different generations, few people were as kind to me upon my election to the Assembly in 1998 as Sandra Lee was. We represented adjacent districts, and in addition to sharing a border, our respective communities shared many important characteristics and on local issues affecting our communities, Sandra Lee and I worked together very well.

In 2002, the legislative redistricting process was underway—and lo and behold—Sandra Lee Wirth and I were redistricted into the same Assembly district when her hometown of West Seneca was added to my Assembly district. In initial news reports, Sandra Lee was quoted as saying, “I’m running where I live, Period.”

Mr. Speaker, I’m glad Sandra Lee changed her mind. Rather than contest an election against me, Sandra Lee instead chose to run in a newly created district east and south of West Seneca. She continued to serve in the Assembly until her death last week.

In 2004, Sandra Lee was forced to deal with another challenge—the illness and subsequent death of her husband Bill. When I saw Sandra Lee at Bill’s wake, she spoke lovingly of “her Billy,” and as she struggled through Bill’s illness and her own, Sandra Lee’s love of her family and her community never waned.

Every fight that Sandra Lee Wirth fought was waged with dignity and aplomb. Her commitment to public service was as strong as any I have ever witnessed. I am proud to have called her a colleague, but Mr. Speaker, I am prouder still to have called her my friend. May God ensure that she rests in peace.

A TRIBUTE TO BETTY WANG

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Betty Wang, of South Pasadena, California. Each year in March, in recognition of Women’s History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our Nation’s women.

Betty Wang was born in China in 1947 and moved to Taiwan with her family in 1948. She came to the United States in 1969 in order to pursue higher education at the University of Illinois. Upon graduation she and her husband, Eddie Wang, worked in Chicago for a few years, and then moved to South Pasadena in 1978.

After working briefly for a major insurance brokerage firm handling risk management for corporate clients, Betty retired in 1978 to take care of her son, Timothy. This also marked the beginning of her career as a “professional volunteer.”

Betty has been involved in various community activities over the years. She began by assisting teachers in the South Pasadena Unified School District classrooms; then became involved in the Marengo Elementary School Parent Teacher Association where she volunteered in sports activities such as soccer, baseball, basketball, swimming and water polo. She was also involved with the parent organizations at Polytechnic School and was a Den Mother for the Boy Scouts of America. In addition, Ms. Wang is a long-term member of Mandarin Baptist Church in Alhambra.

Ms. Wang has been active in the South Pasadena Chinese American Club for many years, as a board member since 1989 and President in 1992. Much of the South Pasadena Chinese American Club’s efforts go toward helping the South Pasadena Unified School District. She served on the Board of the Friends of South Pasadena Public Library for the past 6 years and was the President during her last year. She has continued her volunteer service to the library by serving on the Community Facilities Task Force. Betty was involved in South Pasadena’s City Streetscape Committee during the Gold Line Station construction. Her latest volunteer effort is to serve on the President’s Council for the Chinese Garden at the Huntington Library, Art Collections & Botanical Gardens, where she is helping to raise funds for the construction of one of the most beautiful and unique botanical projects at the Huntington Library.

WILLIE GRACE CAMPBELL—IN MEMORIAM

HON. JANE HARMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, America recently lost one of her most influential daughters, Willie Grace Campbell. Born and raised as women’s suffrage took root, Willie’s unwavering commitment and passion for women’s rights and civil liberties gave opportunity and inspiration to those like me who knew and loved her.

In an era where career-driven women were uncommon, Willie successfully balanced the challenge of being a mother while pursuing her commitment to education and community service. After moving to Indianapolis with her husband and three children in 1945, Willie established the city’s first League of Women’s Voters branch and membership quickly grew. She went on to serve as the League’s State President and, in 1959, ascended to the national board as a member of the Indiana Advisory Committee of the U.S. Conference on Civil Rights.

A cornerstone of the Civil Rights Movement in the 1960s, Willie launched voter education projects in American inner cities and trained thousands of urban and suburban female voters. She participated in the first White House Conference on Civil Rights in 1965, and emerged from the conference with landmark recommendations and strategies for using litigation, in addition to legislation, to confront restrictive voting rights.

Willie expanded her advocacy in the 1970s, involving herself with the National Women’s Political Caucus and the National Women’s Education Fund while acting as President and Board Chairwoman of the Overseas Education Fund International. From Latin America and Africa to Washington, DC, Willie’s campaign for women’s equality and social justice successfully challenged the global status quo. Not surprisingly, she went on to serve on the board of Women, Law and Development International, an organization devoted to the defense and promotion of women’s rights.

Even in her last days, Willie proudly served as Vice Chairwoman of the Board of Directors of the African Development Foundation, a position assigned to her by President Clinton.

Willie was a mentor, not only to me, but to many women in politics and the advocacy community. At age 90, she remained the youngest one in the group, with a ready smile, enormous energy, zest and wisdom. All who encountered her marveled at her passion and purpose.

Willie, you have raised the bar for each of us. I am honored to pay you tribute.

HONORING COACH THOMAS BILLUPS

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize Coach Thomas Billups, head coach of the State Champion, Lanier High School Boys Basketball Team. I submit the following article by Bill Spencer of the Clarion Ledger Newspaper of Jackson, Mississippi.

Fiery Coach Thomas Billups has created a dynasty. Thomas Billups doesn’t want to come off as boastful, even though his success may be unmatched in the history of Mississippi high school boys basketball.

He’s a staunch believer in his methods, however, and who can argue with the veteran Lanier coach’s incredible run?

“I’m not saying I’m the greatest coach ever,” said Billups, whose Bulldogs (34-3) won their final 19 games and finished No. 1 in The Clarion-Ledger Super 10 rankings for the second consecutive year. “There are a lot of good coaches out there. I’m not saying everything I do is right. But what I’m doing . . . there’s been some good in it. Because look at what we’ve done.”

In 15 seasons, Billups has coached in 12 state finals, including eight in a row. Last Thursday, he guided the Bulldogs to a second straight Class 4A state championship, tying him with Gulfport’s legendary Bert Jenkins for the most Mississippi High School Activities Association boys state titles with seven.

Lanier won again despite the graduation of McDonald’s All-American Monta Ellis, who jumped to the NBA.

Billups, 53, has built a hoops machine on Maple Street in Jackson. Not even Jenkins—who won 866 games in 28 seasons—coached in eight consecutive state finals.

With a 463-73 record shouting orders from Lanier’s bench, the demonstrative Billups has averaged more than 30 victories per year and won an astounding 86 percent of the time.

Billups’ latest gold ball may be his most satisfying. Although senior point guard Al Graham, junior guard R.L. Horton and senior forward Kalaus Williams entered this season with some experience, most of the Bulldogs were new faces.

“We were young, but these kids wanted to be just like these Lanier teams that came through here,” Billups said. “They do everything I ask them to do to win a ballgame.”

Lavel Johnson, the Mississippi correspondent for the recruiting magazine Hoop Scoop, believes Billups will cherish this state crown the most.

“This was his top coaching job,” said Johnson, who has watched Jackson basketball for 20 years. “This title is very satisfying for him because for so many years, people have said he wins because of his talent and not because he's a good coach. If anything dispels that belief, this does."

Billups' in-your-face style is relentless. During games, he alternates between chewing on referees and yelling at his players. Rarely does he sit. He paces the sidelines, roaring like an angry, nattily attired bear. Sometimes, he'll stop, arms folded, and scowl, staring at a striped shirt—or player—who has done him wrong.

He plays no favorites, either, and will berate a player for a mistake in a flash, whether the Bulldogs are leading by two points or 20.

"Whatever goes for one player goes for all of them," Billups said. "You've got to let kids know that there's only one way, the coach's way. In my case, it's Billups' way. My style of coaching is not going to change. Kids need to know that I'm going to be in their face every practice, every game, screaming and hollering."

Horton has come to appreciate Billups' tactics.

"He puts you through a lot," said Horton, who averaged about 25 points per game, scoring a career-high 50 twice. "He makes you feel like you almost want to quit. Players ahead of me like Monta used to tell me to stick with it because it's going to make me better. He sees a player's potential before they ever see it. He brought a lot of stuff out of me that I didn't ever think I could do. He makes players work their hardest."

For all of his bluntness, there's also a gentler side to Billups, whether he's attending church with his team or hosting a Super Bowl party.

Many have noticed, including Lee Vance, a Jackson Police Department veteran of nearly 19 years and Lanier alumnus, Class of 1976.

"The greatest tribute I've ever seen or read is what his players and former players said about him publicly, the father-figure and nurturing comments that have been made," said Vance, JPD's Precinct 2 commander.

Former Lanier coach N.Z. Bryant, who won one of the Bulldogs' 15 state titles in 1969, said Billups enjoys a special bond with his players.

"Coach Billups has control of his players and they respect him," said Bryant, now deputy director of the MHSAA. "Young players nowadays have a tendency to have their own mind. Those kids are going to run exactly what he says."

Coach Thomas Billups has built a winning tradition and legacy in Jackson's inner-city. The high-level, high-profile programs that Billups has put together have ignited the competitive fancies of the other inner city teams making for some of the most competitively rivaled basketball in the State. I take pride in recognizing Coach Thomas Billups and the dynasty that he has built with some of our most talented inner-city young men.

TRIBUTE TO ANGELITA "ANGIE" MONT O'BRIEN

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Angelita "Angie" Mont O'Brien, of Pasadena, CA. Each year in March, in recognition of Women's History Month, we pay special tribute to the contributions and sacrifices made by our Nation's women.

Born in Los Angeles, where her parents had emigrated from Spain, Angie attended Los Angeles and Pasadena public schools. She received a bachelor of arts from the University of California Los Angeles in 1953, a master's degree from California State University Los Angeles in 1963, and a California Elementary Teaching Credential.

Angie taught in the Pasadena Unified School District, PUSD, for over 40 years. During her long career, she was an elementary school teacher, a guidance counselor, a Curriculum Resource teacher and an Opportunity Room counselor. A founding member of PUSD's Adopt-A-School District Advisory Committee, she initiated and implemented the Tutoring and Homework Assistance Program for PUSD and served on many PUSD committees.

When Ms. O'Brien volunteers for an organization, she jumps in wholeheartedly, whether it's chairing a fundraising dinner, designing invitations, developing long-term plans, or helping to oversee a school bond measure. Her list of community involvement is impressive. Past activities include serving as president of the Pasadena Parent Teacher Association, PTA, Council Board of Directors, vice president of Glenn's Hope, a Pasadena Foothill Valley YWCA board member and Altadena Christian Children's Center board member. She was a Pasadena city commissioner on the Commission on the Status of Women and the Human Services Commission. Some of the current organizations she serves include as a board member of Child Care Information Services, Pasadena City College Measure "P" Bond Oversight Committee, Women at Work, Pasadena Beautiful, Friends of the Commission on the Status of Women, Pasadena Planned Parenthood, and Delta Kappa Gamma. Angie is the vice president of the San Rafael Library Associates and the president of the Rose Bowl Bruins Board of Directors.

Angie has received many awards over the years for her service to the community, including four from the Pasadena PTA, the 1985 Pasadena Council of Women's Clubs Volunteer of the Year Award and the Pasadena YWCA Second Century Award in 1985.

I ask all Members of Congress to join me today in honoring an extraordinary woman of California's 29th Congressional District, Angelita "Angie" Mont O'Brien.

HONORING THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SIGNAL HILL FIRE DEPARTMENT

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the 60th anniversary of the Signal Hill Fire Department located near Belleville, IL.

In 1946, the city of East St. Louis advised Signal Hill residents their fire department would no longer respond outside of the city limits. At the same time, the city of Belleville said their fire department would only respond to the Country Club Place subdivision if that neighborhood was annexed into the city.

Given the choice of annexation or lack of fire protection, a group of civic-minded citizens gathered to form the Signal Hill Fire Department. In July of 1946, the voters of the proposed fire protection district approved the formation of a taxing district that would provide funding for the fire department.

Sixty years later, the courage and dedication of the firefighters, as well as the consistent support of the community are still the hallmark of this volunteer fire department.

From its earliest days, the Signal Hill Fire Department has been guided and staffed by individuals who have been highly motivated, enjoy a challenge, and are sincerely interested helping others. The call to duty has been answered by several hundred community members who have given freely of their time to protect others from the perils of fire.

Significant progress has been made though the years as the Signal Hill Fire Department has not only kept pace with new procedures and equipment but has often been at the forefront of evolving technological advances. Signal Hill became the first fire department in all of Southern Illinois to acquire a thermal imaging camera. Two years later, they were profiled by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, National Volunteer Fire Council, and the U.S. Fire Administration as an extraordinary example of recruiting and retaining volunteer firefighters. More recently, Signal Hill became the first volunteer fire department in all of St. Clair County and Southwestern Illinois to earn the distinguished ISO Class 3 rating.

The Signal Hill Fire Department has been a shining example of dedication and professionalism, made possible by the sacrifices that their volunteer firefighters and their families have made since 1946. Their compassion, valor, and unselfish acts of courage make each of them an everyday hero.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the 60th anniversary of the Signal Hill Fire Department and to wish the best to them for continued service in the future.

PATRIOT ACT ADDITIONAL REAUTHORIZATION AMENDMENTS

HON. RUSH D. HOLT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose this bill that seeks to make much needed changes to the House approved PATRIOT Act Conference Report. What we are voting on today are "Additional Reauthorizing amendments" for the PATRIOT Act. Unfortunately, these proposed changes do not go far enough and they fail to strike the proper balance between freedom and security.

When the PATRIOT Act came before the House last year, I made clear that, as written, it failed to protect the civil liberties of the American people from the overzealous police powers of the state. That is why some United States Senators who shared my concern worked for months to draft new safeguards to prevent the abridgment of our constitutionally granted civil rights. While good-intentioned, the small concessions they were able to win do not address the vast majority of objectionable provisions in the bill and some even make it worse.

The sponsors of this legislation will say that it makes needed improvements to the PATRIOT Act. However, when read closely some of these so-called "improvements" actually make the PATRIOT Act worse. For example, one of these amendments actually creates a previously non-existent one year gag order on recipients of national security letters. Under this change, the records of library patrons are still subject to secret searches and investigators do not have to promptly inform the patron of the searches. And these changes make the PATRIOT Act worse by actually preventing librarians from challenging these searches in court for at least a full year. Currently, no period of time exists to delay judicial review of national security letters.

Robert Kennedy speaking in Georgia, a state at the center of the civil rights movement, said, "we know that if one man's rights are denied, the rights of all are endangered." What Bobby Kennedy understood, but what too many of my colleagues forget, is that we are all bound together in our collective human existence. This means that the denial of our neighbor's rights puts our own rights in jeopardy. Yet, this bill does not sufficiently change the PATRIOT Act to ensure that the liberties and freedoms of all American's are protected.

For example, even with these amendments, it would still be legal under the PATRIOT Act for police or investigators to conduct so called "sneak and peak" searches of our homes or property without being notified until long after they are gone. One might expect to hear about this type of practice in state controlled or oppressive regimes around the globe. Yet, America was founded on the principle of individual liberty and freedom.

The PATRIOT Act legalizes what previously has been considered the violation of Americans civil rights. It is flawed and we can do better.

I urge my colleague to heed the words of one of our nation's founding fathers James Madison whom I quoted the first time this bill came to the House floor. Speaking in 1788 before the Virginia Convention (not all that far from where we are today) he explained what I believe is the unanswered problem with the Patriot Act. He said, "I believe there are more instances of the abridgement of the freedom of the people by gradual and silent encroachments of those in power than by violent and sudden usurpations." As Madison said over 200 years ago, the liberty and freedoms we as Americans cherish are being eroded today not at the barricade, but in our library and at our local doctor's office. Sadly, these so-called "improvements" are not enough, and the PATRIOT Act remains fatally flawed. It is for this reason that I urge my colleagues to vote not on this bill.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I am extremely concerned regarding the proliferation of nuclear weapons around the world in general and the threat that Iran poses in particular. I agree that we must make it a priority to prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear technologies and materials for development of nuclear weapons. That is why we must not impede any and all diplomatic means to achieve this. I voted present on H. Con. Res 345 (rollcall No. 12) because this resolution seems to foreclose some important diplomatic options towards achieving that goal.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE TEXAS STATE CHAMPION ARGYLE GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAM

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the superior performance of the Argyle Girls Basketball Team on their Texas State Championship in the 2A division on March 4th, 2006.

The Eagles won the final game 51-33 to become the Texas UIL Class 2A state champions at the University of Texas' Frank Erwin Center. The championship game was their 19th consecutive win. The championship victory marked the first state championship in a team sport for Argyle High School.

This victory was a combined effort by many extremely talented athletes, and would not have been possible if it was not for the incredible sense of teamwork put forth by all athletes.

I extend my sincere congratulations to Steve Schmidt, head coach as well as Miss Chelsea Cook, Ms. Brooke Shepherd, Ms. Ally Clardy, Ms. Yvonne Glass, Ms. Kristie Krueger, Ms. Kinzie Ellis, Ms. Emma Forrer, Ms. Bailey Slough, Ms. Meagan Gonzales, Ms. Teacup Gorman and Ms. Alex Marshall, the members of the State Champion Argyle Girls Basketball Team.

TRIBUTE TO RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS

HON. BOB BEAUPREZ

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the thousands of Americans who proudly call themselves Red Cross volunteers. I stand to show my support for their service to this country, their sacrifice in leaving their homes and loved ones to rush to the aid of fellow Americans in their own community, or another community hundreds, even thousands of miles away.

When you talk about the American Red Cross, you must never forget that you are talking about volunteers. More than 95% of Red Cross workers are volunteers. They are on no government payroll. They have no secret motives or hidden agendas. They are citizens in voluntary service of their fellow citizens.

March is Red Cross Month. We take the time to honor the compassion of the volunteer spirit.

In my own district, these good people are at work daily, teaching CPR, helping to collect lifesaving blood, teaching someone how to swim, and responding in the middle of the night to comfort one of their neighbors whose house has burned down. It is simply impossible to imagine our community without the Red Cross.

There is a reason why every president since Franklin Roosevelt has declared March to be Red Cross Month. This is an organization that mimics American's tendencies to help a neighbor in need, and provides an essential safety net affecting millions of lives. It has earned the right to be called a national treasure.

No one is more interested in building the best possible Red Cross than the people of the Red Cross themselves. Their only desire is to fulfill their mission of compassion and humanity—a mission they have upheld with honor for 125 years. Let us take care to guard this well-earned reputation, aiding and supporting them as they have aided and supported America.

INTRODUCTION OF THE CSRS RETIREMENT REPAYMENT TECHNICAL CORRECTION ACT OF 2006

HON. CHRIS VAN HOLLEN

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the CSRS Retirement Repayment Technical Correction Act of 2006. This bill would correct an unintended consequence that followed the enactment of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-508) on November 5, 1990, and provide relief for federal employees who were adversely affected by that enactment.

The Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1990 made retroactive changes to the rules related to separating federal employees. While the rules were made retroactive to October 1, 1990, the implementing regulations were not promulgated until February 1991. This four month period between the enactment of the law and the promulgation of the implementing regulations has adversely affected any federal employee who withdrew their retirement contributions during this period.

This matter was brought to my attention by Sandra Schatz Landis, my constituent who was on maternity leave from the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), a former bureau of the Department of Justice at the time in question. On November 5, 1990, Ms. Landis withdrew $24,439.00 in retirement contributions and was advised that if she later re-entered federal service, she could re-deposit the withdrawal without paying interest and not suffer any adverse consequences.

Unbeknownst to Ms. Landis and the personnel specialists at INS who were advising her, because of the enactment of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 that occurred on that very same day, November 5, 1990, employees who withdrew their retirement contributions as far back as October 1, 1990 were suddenly required to repay their withdrawn contributions with interest in order to have the prior service included in their annuity calculation. What is unfair about this is that employees had no warning that the rules under which they were making major financial decisions were changing. If Ms. Landis were to make this repayment today, she would have to refund over $58,000 of which $34,000 is interest. This is just one example of an unindented injustice that must be corrected.

The CSRS Retirement Repayment Technical Correction Act of 2006 will provide relief to those who withdrew their retirement contributions between Oct 1, 1990, when the Omnibus Reconciliation Act was enacted, and February 1991, when implementing regulations were promulgated. It is fair and reasonable legislation that needs to be enacted into law.

HONORING THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF KUR KUR AND SIMON GARANG

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor the achievements of two young men for whom I have the utmost respect and admiration. Mr. Kur Kur and Mr. Simon Garang, currently of Boulder, Colorado, will graduate with degrees from the University of Colorado at Boulder in May, 2006, closing one remarkable chapter in their lives and beginning another. For these two men, obtaining their degrees was more than a matter of attending classes and passing tests; it was a stunning journey from the impoverished and war-torn deserts of East Africa to the mountains of Colorado and the classrooms of CU-Boulder.

Mr. Kur and Mr. Garang were born in different parts of southern Sudan and were forced to flee to Ethiopia at the age of eight to evade Islamic militants that were driving men, women, and children from their homes. Separated from their families, the boys walked the long journey to Ethiopia seeking refuge. They remained there until war broke out in 1991, and made another improbable and difficult journey to a refugee camp in Kenya, where they would complete their high school educations in spite of severe hunger and poverty. There Mr. Kur and Mr. Garang became aware of the possibility that they could come to the United States and work toward better lives via a special refugee program. They had lived the full experience of a group of young people that are now called "The Lost Boys of Sudan," and would now open a new and hopeful chapter in their already difficult lives.

After arriving in Colorado, Mr. Kur and Mr. Garang would meet Professor Bruce Bassoff, who saw that they were extraordinarily bright and offered to help them enroll at the University of Colorado. In the fall of 2002 they did just that, studying and working hard to obtain their degrees while enjoying a rich college experience. Their upcoming graduation is the culmination not only of those efforts, but of years of a type of struggle unimaginable to most Americans.

I have every confidence that Mr. Kur and Mr. Garang will put their degrees and worldviews to great use, and I look forward to seeing what they—as well as the other five Sudanese students enrolled at CU—accomplish in the years to come. Theirs is a story of inspiration as well as a reminder of our good fortune and the struggles of those in Sudan and other parts of the underdeveloped world. I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Mr. Kur Kur and Mr. Simon Garang on their upcoming graduations and to wish them well in their future endeavors.

IN OPPOSITION TO TARGETED MARKETING OF REFUND-ANTICIPATION LOANS

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my deep concern at reports of the apparent harmful impact of the marketing of high-cost refund-anticipation loans, RALs, to underserved communities.

While RALs are advertised as giving consumers quicker access to their hard-earned tax refund, it has been brought to my attention that tax refunds can be obtained almost as fast by the taxpayer to whom the refund is due as if taxpayers file online. It appears that not only are refunds not delivered with any greater expediency, but with interest rates between 40 to 700 percent and additional fees, these loans are so excessively priced that they deny the taxpayer full use of their money.

This issue is of particular interest to me as some of my constituents seem to be feeling the brunt of these loans. I have recently been informed that one of the highest concentration of refund loans in 2003 was made within the 15th Congressional District in my home community, central Harlem. Also as the Ranking Member of the Ways and Means Committee, I am concerned because according to a recent study undertaken by the Neighborhood Economic Development Advocacy Project, one quarter of New Yorkers who claimed the Earned Income Tax Credit in 2003 paid large amounts of their wages in fees related to RALs.

Low-income families need not be exploited for the gains of corporate entities. According to the IRS, 79 percent of RAL recipients in 2003 had incomes of $35,000 or less. In contrast, as the nation's largest tax-preparation chain, H&R Block experienced an 8.5 percent increase in RAL revenue for Fiscal Year 2003. While RALs are one of H&R Block's products, I expect the company to practice due diligence not only in promoting these products equally among your many locations but also in informing clients of their rights and product terms.

March 15, 2006

Mr. Speaker, I urge you during this tax season to lend your support in holding H&R Block and other tax-preparing companies responsible to equitable targeting of these high-cost loans and full disclosure of their terms.

TRIBUTE TO HARRY BROWNE

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, America lost a great champion of liberty when Harry Browne passed away on March 1, at the age of 72. Harry had a passion for liberty and knowledge of a wide variety of subjects. His communication style, as he himself so marvelously put it, focused on converting his opponents rather than winning the argument. These attributes helped make him one of the most effective proponents of the freedom philosophy I have had the privilege of knowing. Harry's numerous books and columns, his radio and Internet broadcasts, and his speeches educated millions in sound economics and the benefits of a free society. Harry motivated many people to become activists in the movement to restore American liberties.

Harry first came to public attention in the 1970 when he penned a best-selling investment book, How You Can Profit From the Coming Devaluation, which foresaw President Richard Nixon's abandonment of the gold standard and the ways the American economy would be damaged by the inevitable resulting inflation. Harry's book helped many Americans survive, and even profit, during the economic troubles of the seventies. It also introduced millions of people to the insights developed by followers of the Austrian school of economics regarding the dangers fiat currency poses to both prosperity and liberty posed by fiat. How You Can Profit From the Coming Devaluation is generally recognized as the founding document of the hard money movement, which combined the insights of the Austrian economists with a practical investment strategy.

Harry's third book, You Can Profit from a Monetary Crisis, reached number one on the New York Times bestseller list. Other popular books by Harry include How I Found Freedom in an Unfree World, The Great Libertarian Offer, and Why Government Doesn't Work. I was pleased to write the foreword for one of Harry's books, Liberty A-Z: Libertarian Soundbites You Can Use Right Now, a collection of direct, thought-provoking, and often humorous responses to the questions advocates of the freedom philosophy face.

During the nineties, Harry worked to advance liberty as a presidential candidate, columnist, radio talk-show host, and columnist. He also hosted an internet-based talk show and founded DownsizeDC, a grassroots advocacy group whose goals are accurately summed up in its title. Even while struggling with Lou Gehrig's disease, Harry maintained a full schedule of writing, hosting his radio show, and speaking around the country.

Harry's efforts were not limited to the economic realm. He understood the threat to liberty and prosperity posed by global crusades for democracy, as well as the importance of opposing restrictions on civil liberties. Harry's outspoken defense of civil liberties and the Framers' foreign policy of nonintervention took on added importance in the last years of his life when too many self-styled advocates of liberty attempted to curry favor with the political establishment by focusing solely on issues of economic liberty or combined advocacy of low taxes and regulations with active support for militarism and restrictions on personal liberty.

In all his educational, financial, and political work Harry served as a model for everyone who works for the free society. Harry was principled and uncompromising in message, while temperate and respectful of differing opinions in delivery. He avoided the histrionics too common in our today's talk show culture, and he never personalized his arguments. Even when an opponent resorted to ad hominem attacks, Harry always kept his presentation on the high ground of ideas and principles. In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I extend my sympathy to Harry Browne's wife, Pamela, and daughter Auburn, as well as the many he befriended in his years in the freedom movement, and I pay tribute to Harry Browne for his lifelong efforts on behalf of individual liberty.

TRIBUTE TO THE AMERICAN BURN ASSOCIATION

HON. PHIL ENGLISH

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call to the attention of my colleagues the immense contributions by the American Burn Association, ABA, to the fields of burn treatment, education and prevention.

Whether caused by accidents, natural disasters or potential terrorist attacks, the ABA has been integral in shaping the discussion on how this nation's burn centers should manage burn injuries. In all cases, the American Burn Association stands ready as the critical initial line of first responders. They need our support.

The ABA has more than 3,500 members in the U.S., Canada, Europe, Asia and Latin America. All of the members of the association are burn care specialists. They include physicians, surgeons, nurses, occupation and physical therapists, researchers, social workers, firefighters, emergency response personnel, and the underpinning of burn research and care—hospitals with highly specialized burn centers.

As an organization, the ABA sets the industry standards for quality care for both civilian and military treatment of burn injuries. Its research into advanced treatment for burn injuries is the foundation for the high quality of care available to our wounded soldiers in Afghanistan and Iraq. Furthermore, many of the professionals with the medical teams currently deployed overseas are ABA members, and many more work stateside, treating the severe burn injuries that result from military conflicts.

In addition to research and treatment, the American Burn Association continually promotes educational campaigns to prevent burn injuries. Past campaigns include home safety, senior burn safety, prevention of gasoline burns, scald prevention and electrical burn prevention. They have also highlighted the value of home sprinkler systems, which are no more expensive per foot than home carpeting, and serve as a valuable preventative measure.

The ABA represents a vital national resource in the select medical community of burn care. These professionals are in every State of the Union and almost every congressional district. I have met with representatives from my region of Pennsylvania. I hope that you will meet with yours and take an opportunity to learn more about the ABA and the outstanding work they do in your own State and district.

IN HONOR OF THE PREMIERE OF "WALKOUT"

HON. XAVIER BECERRA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, facing unfortunate injustices, relegated to second class citizenship, and anxious to see change come to their classrooms, a group of students banded together in 1968 to protest the conditions of their high schools in East Los Angeles. The civil and non-violent protest took the form of a staged and systematic "walkout," which was not only the single largest protest by high school students ever in the history of the United States, but is also recognized as the event that gave birth to the Chicano civil rights movement.

Today, I rise and pay tribute to the efforts of these students who embody change and whose memory reminds us all that peaceful, intelligent activism can right egregious wrongs. That reminder is now ever more visible as this seminal moment in civil rights history has been put to film, premiering tonight here in Washington, D.C., and on Saturday, March 18, on HBO.

Called "Walkout," the film provides a sincere and candid look at these student protests exploring the reasons and justifications that led to such a dramatic and historic move. Executive Producer Moctesuma Esparza and director Edward James Olmos have captured the tensions and regretful reality of life for Mexican American students in the public high school system of East Los Angeles. The movie honors the memory of the struggles and obstacles to empowerment that those before us fought so hard to eradicate. Today, we pay tribute to Esparza, Olmos, HBO Films and all those who played a part in bringing this snapshot of history to life.

Mr. Speaker, only by dedicating ourselves to remembering how we compromised the civil rights and educational achievement of Latinos in the past can we renew our resolve to face the current attacks that seek to derail the future of our community. In 1968, the Mexican American community sent an unequivocal message that transcended the education system that sought to suppress them: when equality and opportunity are denied, our community will fight back to defend what is right. Through "Walkout", we celebrate this resolve.

INTRODUCING LEGISLATION AUTHORIZING FUNDING FOR THE PRIVACY AND CIVIL LIBERTIES BOARD

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation authorizing $3 million annually over the next ten years for the Privacy and Civil Liberties Board. Additionally, my legislation requires the President to include a line item request in his budget proposal every year. I am pleased to be introducing this bill with the support of the Democratic Members of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

In December 2004, President Bush signed the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act into law. Included in this bill was language establishing the Privacy and Civil Liberties Board, a cornerstone recommendation of the 9-11 Commission. The Commission understood that in the emotional aftermath of September 11th, it was important to provide objective oversight of the protection of our cherished civil liberties.

This oversight is the main purpose of the Privacy and Civil Liberties Board. The Board has been established to review proposed regulations and Executive Branch policies' effects on civil liberties, particularly related to the War on Terrorism.

Many saw the creation of this board as a promising step in protecting us from terrorism while maintaining the civil rights of everyone. However, more than a year after the legislation was signed into law, the Board has yet to hold its first meeting. As a matter of fact, the first Board members were only approved a year ago. Even more, because the Board is housed within the Office of the President and operates at the behest of the Administration, Congress itself is not able to appropriate $1 for its operation because we never authorized any spending. With no substantive work performed by the Board to date, it's as though the Board only exists in the spirit of the law—not in its letter. If that was Congress's true intent, then the Board might as well only exist on paper, or as an illusion in our minds. But it wasn't, and that's why this legislation is absolutely necessary.

Realize, Mr. Speaker, the most disturbing lack of support for the Board has come from the Administration itself. In the President's budget request for fiscal years 2005 through 2007 and the requests for supplemental funding, there have been no funds requested specifically for Board operations. Zero! Without this funding, the Board cannot even buy a pencil much less develop a plan to accomplish its tasks.

The Administration's failure to fund the office, coupled with the inactivity of the Board, leads one to question the commitment of the Administration to ensuring the protection of privacy and civil liberties. Does the Administration welcome an objective review on civil rights issues regarding its terrorism policies or would it rather govern in a vacuum? Would the President rather operate behind closed doors without questions from, or accountability to, any oversight board? Unchecked policies shrouded in secrecy will do nothing to help this country maintain checks and balances between safety and civil rights.

The bill I am introducing authorizes $3 million in annual funding for the Board so that Congress can do what the President has failed to do. This funding level will ensure that adequate resources are available for sufficient staff and resources to support critical statutorily mandated activities of the Board. This includes reviewing proposed regulations and policies related to countering terrorism, the implementation of laws, regulations and policies related to countering terrorism, and advising the President and department heads on matters impacting privacy and civil liberties.

It's time that we demand that the Administration stop dragging its feet on funding the Privacy and Civil Liberties Board. If civil liberties are of any concern to this body and the President then there is no reason to stall the progress of the Board by denying it the money it needs to get started. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation to fully fund the Privacy and Civil Liberties Board so that it can get about the business of protecting the liberties and security of all Americans.

TRIBUTE TO GEORGE BECKER

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker I rise today to honor George Becker, a great union leader, great American, and President Emeritus of the United Steelworkers (USW). Not only has George been a dear friend of mine, but to working men and women everywhere. They owe him a debt of gratitude for the years of service he has given not only to the labor movement, but to his country.

Retirement as the USW's International Union President in 2001 did not change his goals nor dim his vision and resolve. He continued his advocacy during his service on the U.S. Trade Deficit Review Commission. He is still fighting in his capacity as Commissioner on the U.S. China Economic and Security Review Commission to give a voice to the concerns of workers in the industries affected by our exploding trade deficit with China.

I am sure my colleagues on the Congressional Steel Caucus will join me in expressing our good fortune to have worked in close association with a man who warned us years ahead of time that the American steel industry was on the brink of collapse after the Asian financial crisis in 1998. It was George Becker's persistence and foresight that created the joint union-industry alliance "Stand Up for Steel" that fought for fair steel trade policies before Congress and two Administrations to bring the relief necessary for the U.S. steel industry to restructure and consolidate.

I remember standing with USW President Becker among hundreds of steelworkers on Capitol Hill who helped win passage of H.R. 975 in the Spring of 1999, a bill I sponsored titled the 'Stop Illegal Steel Trade Act' to impose a freeze on steel imports. The U.S. House of Representatives passed it 289 to 141, but the measure was subsequently defeated in the Senate on a procedural vote.

But the determined President Becker didn't stop fighting to save American steelworkers' jobs and the industry. He supported H.R. 808, the Steel Revitalization Act of 2001, to require a five year rollback of steel imports to pre-crisis levels, while providing assistance for retiree health care costs and establishing a $10 billion loan fund to finance steel industry modernization.

The Steelworkers Union president didn't stop at the legislative door of Congress, leading a national union-industry petition under the U.S. Foreign Trade Act to implement a Section 201 tariff on all steel imports that included a public hearing in my Congressional District of Northwest Indiana by the International Trade Commission. The ITC's investigation demonstrated the need for steel tariffs and President Bush implemented relief in 2002.

George Becker, a second-generation steelworker, rose through the ranks to become the sixth international president of the United Steelworkers (USW). He served seven years as the union's international president, elected in 1993 and 1997. He also was chair of the Labor Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations and Trade Policy for the U.S. Department of Labor; during the Clinton Administration, he served on the President's Export Council and the U.S. Trade & Environmental Policy Advisory Committee.

He is a respected union organizer and strategist, and an internationally-known spokesman for industrial safety, workers' rights on the job and fair global trade.

Among his major accomplishments are:

Mergers with the United Rubber Workers (URW) in 1995, and the Aluminum, Brick and Glass Workers (ABG) in 1997, bringing 140,000 new members to the USW.

Launching the union's pioneering national Rapid Response Network to mobilize members and their local unions to personally contact their members of Congress and state legislatures with handwritten letters on bread & butter issues.

Establishing a USW Legislative Leadership Program in Washington, D.C., which provides member-activists with training in lobbying and political action.

On February 28, 2001, George Becker joined the ranks of one of the Labor Movement's more formidable legacies. He became only the sixth past President of the United Steelworkers.

Born within a few yards of the Granite City Steel Mill in Illinois where he went to work at age 15, he lived and loved the life of a steelworker from his first day in an open hearth labor gang to the last day he served as International President.

His service to his country included a stint in the U.S. Marines toward the end of World War II and again during the Korean War, when he was drafted into the U.S. Army, owing to a critical shortage of light weapons infantry leaders.

USW President Becker is enjoying his 55th wedding anniversary this year with his wife Jane that began when he met her in the Ozarks of Missouri. They have three married sons and 14 grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues join me in commending George Becker for his outstanding contributions to his union and his country. His commitment to improving the quality of life for working people everywhere is unparalleled, and he should be recognized and commended.

TRIBUTE TO ALLEN R. HUGHES

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a distinguished American, Allen R. Hughes, who will celebrate his 97th birthday on September 24, 2006.

Allen Hughes was born in Martinsburg, Missouri. His mother Ethel had a wonderful sense of humor and he loved her very deeply. His father William was a street car operator who purchased a 144 acre farm in Fulton, Missouri, which his boys affectionately named "Hughes' Rock Farm" because it appeared to be the main crop. Allen had three sisters and four brothers and the family was of modest means.

Allen Hughes married Florence Mertz in 1930. They were married for 59 years until Florence's death and they had one child Richard, born in 1937.

Allen Hughes is a 32nd degree Mason and has been a Scottish Rite member since 1936, over 69 years. He still goes to Lodge and actively participates in the Masonic Order. Mr. Hughes is a registered Democrat who has been known to occasionally stray from his party. The first time he voted was in the Presidential election of 1932. He cast his vote for FDR all four times and has never missed voting in a Presidential or off-year election since. Mr. Hughes has the highest regard for President Harry S. Truman and a profound respect for the Office of President regardless of who occupies it. His son Richard knows this first hand and has the scars to prove that if you can't say something respectful about the President, you shouldn't say anything at all. A true patriot, he takes the privilege of voting very seriously.

Allen Hughes began his career with the Endicott Johnson Shoe Company and worked as a night supervisor for Bi-State Transit in St. Louis, Missouri for 28 years. He retired in 1971 and now lives with his second wife, Sue Harness, on her farm close to Troy, Missouri.

Allen Hughes' son Richard speaks eloquently about his father; "What I love about my father is his humor, his work ethic (I think he missed less than three weeks of work due to sickness in 46 years), his honesty (his word is his bond), his generosity and his willingness to help others less fortunate than himself, his patriotism . . . he votes, informs himself and loves this country." Richard tells me, "If I could go to the 'Father Store' and pick any father, I would pick Allen R. Hughes."

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring a national treasure and an exemplary American. As Allen Hughes celebrates his 97th birthday, we extend to him our best wishes as well as our gratitude for all he's done for our country. He is a true patriot, a loving husband and the best father in the world to his great son Richard. Because of solid citizens like Allen Hughes, our democracy is strong and our country is decent.

INCLUDE APPROPRIATIONS FOR LIBERIA

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY
OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, Ellen Johnson Sirleaf has opened a new chapter in Africa's history as its first female head-of-state. Her election marks a turning point for Liberia, a long-time ally of the United States, which has recently been debilitated by war, corruption, and civil strife. I met with President Sirleaf in Liberia three weeks ago and I know she has the skills and vision it will take to rebuild Liberia and bring hope to its people.

In her inaugural speech, President Sirleaf promised to give Liberian women "prominence in all affairs of our country." The 21st Century could well be the century of the woman, not only in Liberia, but around the world. In the past year, first female heads of state were elected in Liberia, Chile, and Germany, and Finland re-elected its first female president. A recent U.S. poll showed that 92 percent of Americans are ready to elect a female president. But for now, Liberia is a step ahead of the United States.

The U.S. and Liberia have long shared close ties, dating back to 1819, when Congress appropriated $100,000 that helped lead to the founding of the country. The end of Liberia's civil war and President Sirleaf's election present a unique opportunity to maximize the close ties between our countries.

I support Congressman JESSE JACKSON and Chairman JIM CLYBURN's call to include appropriations for Liberia in the President's supplemental request. President Bush has committed to spreading democracy around the world. This is a unique opportunity to build a democracy in a nation that is starting anew. Rewarding Liberia for its democratic progress would send the right signal to other African nations.

President Sirleaf still faces many challenges and will need our support to succeed. Despite its small gross national income, Liberia has $2.56 billion in outstanding international debt. HIV/AIDS is spreading at an increasing rate and 708,000 Liberians, just under a third of the population, receive food assistance each month. U.S. assistance to Liberia has decreased in recent years; it will have to increase for President Sirleaf to meet these humanitarian needs.

President Sirleaf will also need help building democracy. Consolidating the Comprehensive Peace Agreement of 2003 and pursuing transitional justice against war criminals remain immediate priorities. The U.S. should offer its diplomatic backing to encourage other states in the region to help Liberia find resolution.

In her inaugural address, President Sirleaf committed to a new era of democracy, economic renewal, and good governance for Liberia. Upon her second state visit to the United States, we welcome President Sirleaf and offer our support for her mission to lead Liberia to better times.

CONGRATULATING GENEVIEVE AGUILAR

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in order to honor and congratulate an outstanding young woman in my district who has recently been recognized as one of the top youth volunteers in Colorado for 2006. Genevieve Aguilar of Boulder was recently honored as a Distinguished Finalist for the 11th Annual Prudential Spirit of Community Award, an honor bestowed on the most active and dedicated young volunteers in the state.

Genevieve was honored this year for her work as a tutor and mentor for young Hispanic students. At the age of seventeen, this young woman finds the time to teach other students organizational and study skills so that they can achieve success in high school and beyond. This selflessness is made all the more remarkable by the fact that Genevieve is making her way through Boulder High School herself and undoubtedly faces all of the same pressures that every other student faces. Despite these pressures, and through her steady devotion to her community and her fellow students, Genevieve is able to teach us all a lesson in humanity, service, and volunteerism.

The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards were designed to "emphasize the importance our nation places on service to others, and to encourage young Americans of all backgrounds to contribute to their communities." I can think of no better way to honor the work that Genevieve has done to help her fellow students learn and grow, and I am sure that her example serves to inspire those students to give back to their communities in kind. I look forward to seeing what Genevieve Aguilar accomplishes in the future, and I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing and honoring her accomplishments.

A TRIBUTE TO HELEN JORDAN

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Helen Jordan, a distinguished member of the Brooklyn community. It behooves us to pay tribute to this outstanding leader and I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing her impressive accomplishments.

Helen Jordan has been a MSW caseworker that counseled substance-abusing mothers, an administrative supervisor and a Program Director at the New York Urban League's child welfare programs. For almost twenty years, she has worked with and for the families in East Flatbush, East New York and Brownsville communities of Brooklyn. The New York Urban League's mission ". . . to promote opportunities and to help African Americans, individuals, families and communities achieve their full potential . . ." is the mission that Helen has adopted for herself.

Born in New York City, 75 years ago, to Addie and Pearl Thomas of South Carolina, Helen is the oldest of three children. Her father and mother, janitors for various Harlem tenements, taught Helen that education was the key to liberation and she never let go of the vision of a college education. Helen earned a Bachelor's degree in Social Welfare and a Master's degree in Social Work at Adelphi University's School of Social Work after she had married Eugene Jordan and their four children Stephanie, Eugene III, Vance and Kevin, were adults. She has 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. A Licensed Clinical Social Worker, she thinks that no one should ever stop learning. Helen still attends conferences and workshops related to her work. God has worked many wonders in her life including the privilege of being the Program Director at Service to Families and the Chairperson of the Brownsville-East New York Child Welfare Neighborhood Network and she gives Him all the praise and honor. She is a member of the Greater Allen Cathedral in Jamaica, NY.

Helen has had memberships in several organizations that advocate for children and families to be the very best that they can be such as The Black Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect, which educated communities and organizations about the results of child abuse and neglect; National Association of Social Workers; National Association of Black Social Workers; National Black Child Development Institute, an organization that educates educators about the importance of a child's education; Coalition of Brooklyn Program Directors; New York Foster Care Reform Initiative, an organization that seeks to transform the educational training of foster care parents; African American Task Force Against Violence Towards Women; Neighborhood Family Services Coalition; and the Institute for Community Living, Inc.'s Neighborhood Advisory Board. She is also a member of the 369th Kermit Drowery Ladies Auxiliary.

"Giving back" is very important to Helen. She has been a field instructor and a faculty advisor to many social work students at various graduate schools. She has also been an adjunct professor at Adelphi University's School of Social Work's Manhattan Center.

At 75 years of age, Helen says that although there is a lot of work being done to improve the lives of our children and their families, there is still so much more work to be done, that she has no idea when she will retire.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that it is incumbent on this body to recognize the accomplishments of Helen Jordan, as she offers her talents and community services for the good of our local communities.

Mr. Speaker, Helen Jordan's selfless service has continuously demonstrated a level of altruistic dedication that makes her most worthy of our recognition today.

TRIBUTE TO NATIONAL KIDNEY MONTH

HON. JIM McDERMOTT

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, as Congress recognizes National Kidney Month, I join my colleagues in their efforts to increase awareness about the devastating effects of kidney disease. More than 400,000 Americans must receive life-saving dialysis three to four times each week because their kidneys have failed. In addition, more than 20 million citizens have chronic kidney disease, which is the precursor to kidney failure. Patients with kidney disease experience a gradual deterioration of kidney function that eventually progresses to kidney failure. Patients may live with the disease 10 or more years without outward symptoms before their kidneys fail. Once a patient develops kidney failure, his or her kidney function is so low that without dialysis or kidney transplantation death will occur from accumulation of fluids and waste products in the body.

Recognizing the need to educate my colleagues on kidney disease, I founded and co-chair the Congressional Kidney Caucus with my colleague Representative MARK STEVEN KIRK. Members of the Kidney Caucus are especially concerned about the growing prevalence of this disease.

Mr. Speaker, the leading causes of this disease is diabetes and high blood pressure, which as you are no doubt aware also disproportionately affect African Americans and Latino Americans. Given that early kidney disease has no symptoms, most people do not realize that their kidneys are about to fail. Therefore, it is critically important to increase awareness of the dangers of kidney disease, especially among the African American and Latino American communities. Individuals with high blood pressure and diabetes should ask their doctors to run simple blood and urine tests that can detect kidney disease.

If treated early, individuals with kidney disease will experience an improved quality of life and be able to maintain more daily life activities, including keeping their jobs. In addition, preventing kidney failure and improving care will result in substantial savings for the taxpayer.

I applaud the efforts of my colleagues to raise awareness about this important issue and to show support for Americans living with kidney disease. We must act now to help Americans learn more about this deadly disease and how to prevent its development and progression to kidney failure.

A TRIBUTE TO SHIRLEY ANN
McRAE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Shirley Ann McRae, a distinguished member of the Brooklyn community. It behooves us to pay tribute to this outstanding leader and I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing her impressive accomplishments.

Shirley Ann McRae earned her Bachelor's degree in Organizational Management from Nyack College. She also earned Advanced Certificates in Labor Relations from Cornell University's New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations. Prior to retirement, Ms. McRae worked for MTA's New York City Transit. She was the Senior Director of Employee Programs and Registrations within the Employee Development Unit of the Office of Human Resources.

Shirley Ann McRae is passionate about community service. She has gone above and beyond the call of duty. Since 1996, Ms. McRae has been an active member of Brooklyn Community Board #2; serving as Chairperson of the Board for the last 4 years. Preceding her appointment to Chairperson of the Board, Ms. McRae was involved in many community board committees including a leadership position as Chairperson of the Open Space Subcommittee.

Ms. McRae currently serves on the board of directors for the Brooklyn Bridge Park Coalition and was also on the executive board of directors of the Atlantic Center Homeowner's Association since its creation and acted as the board's president for the last 6 years. Ms. McRae is a member of the Fort Greene Association, the Central Fulton Street Business Improvement District Steering Committee, the Community Action Board representing Region #10—Brooklyn Neighborhood Development Areas 1, 2, and 4.

A patron of the arts, Ms. McRae also serves on the board of directors for the Brooklyn Academy of Music Local Development Corporation and the Creative Outlet Dance Theatre of Brooklyn.

Shirley Ann McRae continues to give wholeheartedly to the Brooklyn community. Her dedication and time given to our community are a phenomenal achievement. She has truly made a strong positive impact and for that I ask that we recognize and give thanks to Shirley Ann McRae for her wonderful contribution to our community.

Mr. Speaker, please join our community in honoring Shirley Ann McRae for her dedication and outstanding service to our community.

A TRIBUTE TO MERCEDES
DESORMEAUX NARCISSE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Mercedes Desormeaux

March 15, 2006

Narcisse, Esq., a distinguished member of the Brooklyn community. It behooves us to pay tribute to this outstanding leader and I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing her impressive accomplishments.

Mercedes Desormeaux Narcisse was born in Haiti and moved to Brooklyn as a teenager. From high school on, Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse was completely educated in New York. Growing up, she attended South Shore High, Tilden High, New York City Technical College and St. Joseph College.

Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse is currently the CEO and owner of Statewide Medical and Surgical Supplies Inc., located in the heart of Brooklyn. Preceding her exceptional accomplishments at Statewide, she was in charge of medical and surgical supplies for over 10 years. In addition, Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse is a registered Nurse and worked in the profession of home care, emergency room/trauma, neurology, and renal/oncology for over 15 years. In that time she was employed at several major hospitals in Queens and Brooklyn.

Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse holds extensive certificates for Orthotic fitting, ACLS, Chemotherapy, Peritoneal Dialysis, HIV Therapy, Wound Care, Infection Control and non-violent crisis intervention.

Mercedes Desormeaux Narcisse is an active participant in the community. She is currently president of the 41st Assembly District Democratic Club, which she has been a member of for the last five years. Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse is also President of Canarsie by Choice and has played a vital role in revitalizing the Avenue L Merchant Association. Additionally she sits on various boards and committees including Community Board 18, the Lions Club, Canarsie Bridges and the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. Of particular importance to Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse is her local "Toys for Tots" chapter called "Brooklyn Toys for Tots." Working closely with New York City Councilman, Lew Fidler, and his Chief of Staff, Bryan Lee, at the 41st Assembly District Democratic Club, the Brooklyn Toys for Tots collected over 1,700 toys for the area's less fortunate children.

Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse's actions have not gone without recognition in the community. In 2005, the Friends of New York City Assemblyman, Nick Perry, honored Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse for her outstanding service to the community. Ms. Patricia Trim and her "Trim for Tots" organization also honored Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse for her continuing work in the community and continuing to "work in making life easier for underprivileged kids."

Mercedes Desormeaux Narcisse has played the role of loving mother, caring nurse, successful businesswoman and compassionate community member. Her vivacious and affectionate character has won the hearts of many. Today, we applaud Ms. Desormeaux Narcisse for her devoted and unselfish character. Her commitment and empathy for our community is above and beyond and for that I ask that we recognize this phenomenal woman today.

Mr. Speaker, please join our community in honoring Mercedes Desormeaux Narcisse for her dedication and outstanding service to our community.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. MANANA
PETROV

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Dr. Manana Petrov, a distinguished member of the Brooklyn community. I am honored to pay tribute to this outstanding leader and I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing her impressive accomplishments.

Dr. Manana Petrov was born in the former Soviet Union during the height of the Cold War. Upon graduation from high school, Dr. Petrov enrolled in Rostov Medical Institute. When Dr. Petrov's family was forced to move to the Georgia Republic, she transferred and graduated from the Tbilisi Medical Institute. Dr. Petrov worked as a physician in the former Soviet Union until she, her husband and her daughter immigrated to the United States. Driven by the need to put food on the table, Dr. Petrov passed all of her medical exams within a year of immigrating to the U.S. Following the completion of her medical exams, Dr. Petrov began her residency at the Brooklyn Hospital working tirelessly to support her family.

In 1997, Dr. Petrov successfully passed her licensing exam and is currently Double-Board Certified in Internal Medicine and Hospice and Palliative Care. She has been serving as the attending physician at Brooklyn Hospital for the last 9 years. During her time at Brooklyn Hospital, Dr. Petrov has served as an outstanding role model for aspiring doctors and was nominated as the "Best Teaching Attending." Additionally, in 2000, she was appointed Medical Director of Hospice of New York and in 2003, she was named the Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine at the Brooklyn Hospice Center. Also in 2003, Dr. Petrov opened her own practice in Brooklyn, NY and is faithfully serving her patients to this day. Dr. Petrov has also worked for the last 5 years as an Associate Program Director in an Internal Medicine Program and boasts two publications in medical journals.

Dr. Manana Petrov is an inspiration to not only those in the medical profession, but to our entire community. She has overcome numerous obstacles to realize her dream of becoming a doctor. Dr. Manana Petrov encompasses the true identity of a role model in today's society and for that I ask that we applaud her accomplishments and contribution to our community.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that it is incumbent on this body to recognize the accomplishments of Dr. Manana Petrov, as she offers her talents and community services for the good of our local communities.

Mr. Speaker, Dr. Manana Petrov's selfless service has continuously demonstrated a level of altruistic dedication that makes her most worthy of our recognition today.

Mr. Speaker, please join our community in honoring Dr. Manana Petrov for her dedication and outstanding service to our community.

HONORING THE LIFE OF BRIAN J.
SCHOFF

HON. LINCOLN DAVIS

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. DAVIS of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay my respects to Corporal Brian J. Schoff for his service to a grateful nation. Corporal Schoff may have given his life in defense of his country, but his soul and spirit will live on to the many who knew him. During a funeral procession in Manchester, Tennessee hundreds of people stood outside their homes and along the road to honor their fallen soldier.

Corporal Schoff, a member of 2nd Battalion, 506th Infantry Regiment, 4th Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division, was awarded a posthumous promotion from Private First Class to Corporal, a Purple Heart, the Bronze Star, and Good Conduct Medal for his service.

While I didn't know Corporal Schoff personally, I do know the quality of our soldiers serving in Iraq, Afghanistan, and around the globe. They are caring, patriotic, God-fearing men and women. I wish to extend my heartfelt appreciation to Brian Schoff for his selfless sacrifice. May he live on in eternal happiness with his Lord in heaven.

Corporal Schoff is survived by his father, Brian L. Schoff; his mother, Cathy Odle; his stepfather, Kenneth Odle; stepsisters, Alicia Burgess and LaDawn Mauk; stepmother, Debra Schoff; and his half-sister, Brianna Schoff.

A TRIBUTE TO ROBIN KELLY
SHEARES

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Robin Kelly Sheares, Esq., a distinguished member of the Brooklyn community. Robin Sheares was born in Harlem to the late Gloria and Herman Sheares. At the tender age of 6, her family moved to Bedford-Stuyvesant and ever since she has been a member of the Brooklyn community.

A proud graduate of the public school system, Robin has been an attorney for nearly 20 years. She is experienced in housing, criminal and civil law. In her nearly 20 years as an attorney, she has been an administrative law judge, an instructor, as well as an arbitrator. She is active in Brooklyn, working with community-based organizations, religious institutions, and youth mentoring groups.

Robin Kelly Sheares is an active member of the Wayside Baptist Church and her Block Association. At Wayside, she works closely with the Sunday School and Youth Ministry. Robin's other memberships include, but are not limited to, the Metropolitan Black Bar Association, the Brooklyn Women's Bar Association and the Brownstoners of Bedford-Stuyvesant, Inc.

Robin has been dedicated to the Noel Point Foundation and the New York Road Run-ner's Club. Robin is often called upon as a guest lecturer and career day speaker. She has even addressed students at her alma maters, Public School 309 and Junior High School 57. Although, Robin has no biological children, she has nurtured a number of youth and is a strong advocate for children and parents rights as evident by her work with the Brownstoners's Education Task Force and her alma maters: Brooklyn Technical High School and Ithaca College.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that it is incumbent on this body to recognize the accomplishments of Robin Kelly Sheares, as she offers her talents and community services for the good of our local communities.

Mr. Speaker, Robin Kelly Sheares' selfless service has continuously demonstrated a level of altruistic dedication that makes her most worthy of our recognition today.

INTRODUCTION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA HATCH ACT RE-FORM ACT OF 2006

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, with Government Reform Committee Chairman TOM DAVIS, I am introducing the District of Columbia Hatch Act Reform Act of 2006 to eliminate the discriminatory treatment of the District of Columbia under the federal Hatch Act. This bill would retain federal Hatch Act authority concerning prohibited partisan and political activity that applies to every state because of the receipt of federal funds and importantly, would require the District to enact its own local version of the Hatch Act barring similar local violations, to become effective. Such a bill would, of course, automatically be held over for Congressional review for 30 legislative days as required by the Home Rule Act, typically affording several months before a District law may become effective, more than ample time for review and compliance with this bill. The House recognized that the present federal Hatch Act jurisdiction over D.C. was obsolete by removing this federal responsibility several years ago, but the Senate failed to act accordingly. Local Hatch Act violations in the District are rare, but the District needs its own Hatch Act to fully account and be responsible for local violations, with which a local objective body would be most familiar and should bear the cost of alleged violations.

This bill will leave in place the federal Hatch Act restrictions on the use of official authority as it relates to elections; the solicitation, acceptance, or receiving of political campaign contributions; and the prohibitions on running for public office in partisan elections and the use of on-duty time and resources to engage in partisan campaign activity. My bill would remove only the federal Hatch Act jurisdiction that applies solely to the District of Columbia and would require the District to have its own local Hatch Act, like every other jurisdiction, instead of requiring the Office of Personnel Management and its Special Counsel to spend time on investigation, fact-finding and judgment of unfamiliar local matters. The District will bear this local responsibility and a dual inequity—denigration of local government at the expense of the federal government—would end.

A TRIBUTE TO KIM BEST SIMMS

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 15, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Kim Best Simms.

Kim Best Simms, the eldest child of Albert and the late Martha Best, has actively served our community for many years. She began serving the community via the Bedford-Stuyvesant Restoration Corporation. While serving at the Corporation, she worked in the community outreach centers where she conducted blood pressure checks and audio screenings, provided housing assistance and employment referrals and helped coordinate community outreach projects. She has received numerous awards including the Special Congressional Award, City Council Citation Award, State Senator Velmanette Montgomery Outstanding Community Service Award, Appreciation Award, NYC Sanitation Achievement Award, and the 79th Precinct Council Outstanding Community Service Award:

Kim Best Simms has been employed with the Department of Sanitation for many years. She is currently a Staff Analyst with the Department of Sanitation and has served in various capacities. In addition, she has also worked for the New York State Department of Mental Health for 13 years. She is a very talented individual with expertise in mortgage financing underwriting, real estate, and secretarial/computer technology, mental health, purchasing procurement, analytical, loan auditing, and management. She has certifications/licenses/degrees in the following areas: Contract Administration, Information Technology, Computer Technology, Specification Writing, Price & Cost Analysis, Real Estate, Guardian and Court Evaluation, AMAP, Foster Parenting, Royal Business College, OES, Amaranth, Citizens Police Academy, Procurement Planning and Management, and National Mortgage Underwriting.

As a Community Advocate, she loves working with people and serving her community. She especially enjoys mentoring teenagers as well as nurturing children. A devoted parishioner of St. Gregory's Church in Brooklyn, Kim is devoted to her church family and excellently serves the community via the church.

Mr. Speaker, Kim Best Simms is an outstanding leader and pillar of our community and most deserving of this tribute.

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Thursday, March 16, 2006 may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Thursday, March 16, 2006

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. MILLER of Michigan).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC.
March 16, 2006.

I hereby appoint the Honorable CANDICE S. MILLER to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer: Lord God, how poignant is the Pentateuch story when the father-in-law of Moses boldly approaches the great law-giver and says:

“You are not acting wisely. You will surely wear yourself out, not only yourself but also the people around you. The task is too heavy for you. You cannot do it alone.

“Now listen to me, and I will give you some advice that God may be with you. Act as the people’s representative before God, bringing to God whatever they have to say.”

Then his father-in-law outlines for Moses how he is to delegate his work of overseeing and communicating with the people. He tells Moses to select “God-fearing and trustworthy helpers who hate dishonest gain for themselves. Moses is to form them into a pyramid of dialogue and decision-making that will reach down to the weakest voices in the community.

“Moses followed the advice of his father-in-law and did exactly what he said.”

Lord God, help our brothers and sisters in Congress to go and do likewise, seeking “not to be served but to serve” in Your holy name. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr.

MCHEMRY) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. MCHEMRY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain requests for 10 one-minute speeches on each side.

CHILD PORNOGRAPHY STING

(Mr. FOLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FOLEY. Madam Speaker, let me commend the administration, particularly Attorney General Alberto Gonzales, for his investigation that has busted a ring of 27 charged in a child pornography sting. Images traded worldwide on Internet chat room, despicable, disgusting, disgraceful conduct. Agents from the Justice Department, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement and law enforcement authorities in several countries participated in this sting.

This is disturbing news about pedophilia at the youngest, youngest age of children and victims. I urge the Senate to take up the Justice bill that was sent over in messages to help us rid this society of the scourge of child pornography, sexual exploitation, child molestation and finally get tough with the people that commit these heinous crimes against our most vulnerable. We have sent it overwhelmingly by voice vote to the other Chamber.

I urge Senator FRIST to bring his Chamber together to pass this vital legislation so we can continue to crack down on these monsters.

HUMAN HEALTH IN THE WORLD

(Mr. BLUMENAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, yesterday we heard the new president of Liberia, Her Excellency Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, discuss the challenge her country faces from the greatest threat to human health in the world. It wasn’t AIDS, tuberculosis, even the people shot and bombed in armed conflict. It was the needless death from waterborne disease. It is why one half the people who are sick today are ill. It has claimed more lives than all the wars in human history.

Today we start the World Water Forum in Mexico City. Currently, the State Department is at work preparing a plan for the United States to meet its commitment to safe drinking water and sanitation around the world. I hope our Congress reflects upon our responsibility to prevent this needless death, and that we step up to adequately fund these important programs in our foreign aid budget.

SOLUTIONS TO THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

(Mr. KELLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I am here to talk about border security solutions. I recently spent a week along the Mexican-California border to see firsthand how bad the problem of illegal immigration is, and, more importantly, what Congress can do to fix it. So how do we fix the problem?

First, we need to crack down on employers who knowingly hire illegal workers. Jobs are the magnet drawing illegal aliens across the border.

Second, we need to complete construction of the double fence for 700 miles along the border near populated urban areas. It worked in San Diego.

Third, where mountains and rugged terrain make completion of a double fence impossible, we need to have a virtual fence which consists of infrared cameras that enable agents to see the entire border.

Finally, we need more Border Patrol agents. Although Congress has already tripled the number of Border Patrol agents since the late 1980s, more are still needed. Madam Speaker, the House recently passed a tough border security bill that implements these solutions. I urge the Senate to act now.

NEED TO EXTEND RX DRUG DEADLINE

(Ms. SOLIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. SOLIS. Madam Speaker, America’s seniors are looking for some relief with the high cost of prescription drugs. The vast majority of seniors remain skeptical that the new Republican prescription drug plan will work for them, and therefore, many have not signed up and refuse to.

☐ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., ☐ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

Congressional Republicans and the Bush administration did not only make this plan confusing to understand, but they also included a provision that will financially penalize seniors if they don't sign up for the plan by May 15. While most Democrats would rather replace the plan for a simpler one within the Medicare system, we do not want to see seniors penalized any further.

Without a deadline extension, seniors will encounter a 1 percent increase on their premiums for every month after they wait to sign up after the May 15 deadline. Since seniors would not be able to begin coverage after the deadline until January of next year, seniors would encounter a 7 percent Bush Medicare tax that would stay with them the rest of their lives.

This is simply not fair. Seniors are already having to pay enough for their prescription drugs. Mr. President, you have 2 months to change your mind. Don't punish our seniors, Mr. President.

COYOTE VS. COYOTE

(Mr. POE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, the Old West shootouts continue in Texas. The border war has moved from the rural vastness and wide open spaces of the Rio Grande River to the big city.

Gunfire in the fourth largest city in America occurred this week in urban Houston. A blazing gun battle ensued between rival human smugglers, or coyotes, as we call them, fighting over turf. The outlaws were fighting over the precious cargo of illegal aliens. After the bullets stopped, 21 people were arrested.

The Houston Chronicle reports, the battle for human cargo occurred at a drop house where illegals are stored. "They are held until relatives pay the ransom to set them loose in America," according to officials.

It is reported the fees coyotes charge for smuggling individuals is anywhere from $1,500 to $70,000. Criminals make a profit off of illegals who unlawfully enter the United States. Agents report there is more money in smuggling illegals into the United States than smuggling drugs.

Until America secures the open southern border with Mexico, the lawlessness on the border will spread and breed more lawlessness in urban Americans. Americans and our government must have the moral will to protect the sovereignty of this Nation. And that's just the way it is.

REPUBLICAN DRUG BILL: DRUG COMPANY PROFITS BEFORE AMERICA'S HEALTH

(Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, the confusing and complicated Republican prescription drug plan will penalize seniors forever if they do not pick a plan by May 15. Unless the administration or Congress acts, 2 months from today, seniors will face a Bush prescription drug tax that will be added to their prescription drug premiums. We simply cannot allow this tax to take effect.

President Bush was in New York this week conceding a lot of problems with the drug plan so far. However, the President refuses to extend the deadline for seniors to sign up. If he doesn't change his mind, Congress must act.

Seniors are only looking for help for these skyrocketing prescription drug prices. They didn't ask for this confusing drug plan, nor is it to help them. But they need the help. This is both a critical health and financial decision for seniors who rely on prescription drugs to be healthier.

Democrats have a plan that would extend the drug enrollment period and eliminate penalties to the end of this year. It is time for us to join together and save American seniors a prescription drug tax that they cannot afford and simply do not deserve.

CONTRASTING ESTONIAN PRESIDENT MERI TO BELARUS DICTATOR LUKASHENKO

(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Madam Speaker, I have time to speak about the death and passing of President Meri from Estonia who died Tuesday in his sleep. Deported to Siberia at the age of 12, he worked as a lumberman, a potato farmer. He got back to Estonia, graduated as a professor of history cum laude, was not allowed by the Soviets to practice that profession, became a playwright, was involved in the "Singing Revolution" and became the second president of the country of Estonia.

This is in contrast to the dictator Lukashenko, who as of today, has blocked European election monitors, has thrown out eight Scandinavians for doing polling, and has again arrested Alexander Milinkevich for campaign activities.

President Meri will be able to rest and sleep in a free, sovereign, democratic Estonia, while dictator Alexander Lukashenko will just have sleepless nights by depriving his country of freedom and democracy.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO THE WONDERFUL PEOPLE OF ITALY

(Mrs. MALONEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MALONEY. Madam Speaker, today I pay tribute along with my dear friend and colleague, Representative HENRY HYDE, to the wonderful people of Italy.

In the hours and days following the horrific terrorist attacks of September 11, hundreds of thousands of Italians rallied in Rome in sympathy with and in support of America.

Prime Minister Berlusconi visited the United States and in his public statements expressed these same sentiments. He rightly stated that these attacks were attacks against all nations.

A great honor bestowed upon visiting heads of states to the U.S. is the opportunity to speak before a joint session of Congress. During that appearance, he emphasized goals we all share; promoting democracy and protecting human rights. He called for continuation of the global efforts to fight terrorism.

Italy is a great ally of the United States, and I believe we should continue efforts to bring the people of both nations closer together.

As the representative for thousands of Italian Americans, I know, as they do, that our society has benefited strongly from the many contributions made by this vibrant community.

PROVIDING HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE TO SMALL BUSINESSES

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. KELLY. Madam Speaker, I represent New York's Hudson Valley, where small businesses are absolutely critical to our local economy. Our local small business owners and self-employed workers have repeatedly confirmed to me that the recent tax cuts are working and helping our small businesses create new jobs in our communities. But they also tell me time and again that one of the toughest challenges they face is being able to have affordable health care coverage for themselves and their workers.

This is frustrating, because we have passed the Small Business Health Fairness Act in the House to address this very problem, yet the politics of obstruction in the other body have kept the bill from passing into law.

Solving the problem of America's uninsured begins with helping small businesses. The facts are clear: Six out of 10 small businesses don't offer health insurance because they can't afford the high costs on their own in the private market.

The Small Business Health Fairness Act would provide them with lower costs, giving them the same group health insurance purchasing power already utilized by unions and large corporations. It will give 8 million currently uninsured small business workers the affordable health insurance they need.

Let us work with the other body to give small businesses on Main Street the same health insurance coverage as large firms on Wall Street.

CONGRESS MUST STEP IN TO EXTEND DEADLINE ON MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN REGISTRATION

(Ms. BERKLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, if the Bush administration does not act within the next 2 months, seniors who sign up for the Medicare prescription drug plan will be severely penalized. In less than 60 days, seniors who have not yet signed up for the plan will face a Bush Medicare drug tax for the rest of their lives.

The President has shown no interest in extending this arbitrary deadline. If the President won't act, Congress must.

House Democrats did not support this debacle of a prescription drug plan, but we don't want to see seniors penalized because the Republicans voted to create a confusing plan that most seniors believe won't work. Seniors need more time to make the right decision. They are understandably confused.

If the President won't act, House Republicans must join us in extending the deadline for seniors to sign up for the new drug plan. Democrats have introduced legislation that would give seniors 6 additional months to decide on the best plan for them. What is fair is fair. We simply cannot allow the Bush Medicare drug tax to take effect.

A BUILDING BLOCK IN OUR RELATIONSHIP WITH INDIA

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, today we will witness another important building block in the development of the strategic partnership between the United States and India.

By introduction of bipartisan legislation to amend the Atomic Energy Act, Congress will begin the important process of authorizing peaceful nuclear cooperation between two great democracies that share similar values of goals and hopes for the future.

While the title of this agreement focuses on nuclear cooperation, the scope of this proposal reaches far beyond nuclear issues. Improved strategic relations with India will promote non-proliferation, will increase our energy independence, will provide environmental protection, strengthen our national security, and create thousands of new jobs for American workers.

As the global economy becomes increasingly competitive and the threat of terrorism endangers all free nations, America faces a historic opportunity with our friend, India. Our countries should take advantage of this unique chance to deliver tremendous mutual benefits to both Indian and American families.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September 11.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET AND EDUCATION CUTS

(Mr. MORAN of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Madam Speaker, at the beginning of the 21st century, America stands as the greatest economic and military power in the history of the world. We have been blessed with tremendous resources, wonderful natural resources. But the most precious of all of our resources is the human potential of America's workforce.

But we have to sustain the investment in that potential. Today, half of our students will not graduate from high school. And here we have a budget proposed by the President that has some of the deepest, most dangerous cuts ever proposed, eliminating vocational education, eliminating 36 other programs designed to help teachers and students, cutting billions of dollars from college student loan programs.

In fact, 3.7 million children will not even get the reading and math help they were promised under the Leave No Child Behind Act. This is not going to sustain our economic power, Madam Speaker. It undermines our economic strength, and, in fact, it is bound to shortchange our children's future.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH AND THE EXPLOITATION OF WOMEN

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Madam Speaker, the demise of once-renowned South Korean embryonic stem cell researcher, Hwang Woo-Suk, has been well publicized. Once the darling of the research community, Dr. Hwang has since been disgraced, his research exposed as fraudulent, his methodologies shown to be unethical.

The fact that Dr. Hwang fabricated much of his research made big headlines. What was less noted, though, was that he coerced female members of his research team to donate their eggs for experimentation. This brought attention to a relatively unknown fact about embryo research.

It requires an enormous amount of human eggs, and the likelihood of women being exploited is great. This issue has brought together a coalition of pro-choice and pro-life women who are taking a stand against the exploitation of women by the biotech industry.

They point out that the egg extraction techniques required for this research can lead to infertility and even death. They are right to take such a stand against such exploitation, and we ought to stand with them.

PRESIDENT BUSH NEEDS TO SHAKE UP THE WHITE HOUSE

(Ms. WATSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. WATSON. Madam Speaker, how low do the President's poll numbers have to go until he finally realizes that it is time to make some changes in his administration? Either he is to blame for all of the incompetence that we have seen out of the White House over the last couple of years, or he finds it a perfectly acceptable attribute in his key advisors.

With the ever-increasing violence in Iraq, it simply defies logic why Defense Secretary Rumsfeld still has a job. How many mistakes does Rumsfeld have to make before President Bush says enough is enough?

Then there is Secretary Chertoff. The White House can blame Michael Brown all they want for a tragically slow and inadequate response to Hurricane Katrina, but a lot of the blame should be pointed right at the man in charge, Secretary Chertoff, who as of yesterday put a lot of the evacuees out on the street. And he still remains on the job.

Then there are the Under Secretaries who signed off on a deal that handed over operations of six U.S. ports to a foreign nation. Imagine that, outsourcing our homeland security to another nation. It is time for changes, Madam Speaker.

TRUST THE SENIORS ON MEDICARE

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. FOXX. Madam Speaker, today we are just 60 days away from the deadline for seniors to sign up for the new Medicare part D prescription drug plan. This plan is giving seniors choices for prescription drug coverage that will cost less while offering more benefits.

Millions of seniors who were without access to drugs are now getting them, and many are saving thousands of dollars a year. In fact, the typical senior could see his or her total drug expenses drop by nearly 50 percent.

Those with limited income and resources could have nearly no expenses at all. It is a real shame that Democrats are trying to scare seniors away from enrolling in this program by saying it is complicated and confusing.

Fortunately, their attempts to sabotage the program are failing. According to a recent article in The Washington Post, 80 percent of senior citizens polled say they had no trouble signing up for or using the Medicare prescription drug plan.

Another poll conducted last week by Ayres, McHenry & Associates shows that 60 percent of seniors said that they were saving money by using the program. Madam Speaker, I trust the positive feedback from the actual folks using the program much more than the negative rhetoric of Democrats trying to turn this into a political issue.

A NATION PERMANENTLY AT WAR

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Speaker, 3 years ago the Bush administration spoke to a doctrine of preemption that formed the basis for the United States' attack on Iraq. Three years later, Americans finally know there were no weapons of mass destruction, Iraq did not have the intention or the capability of attacking the United States; that Iraq, in effect, was not in a position to attack us.

Now the American people know what a shambles the Bush administration's policy was in Iraq. Yesterday, the administration now identifies Iran as the top threat, and states again that we have the right to preemptively attack any country. Are we here on the threshold of permanent warfare, where the administration can keep naming enemies, and the American taxpayers with their sons' and daughters' blood have to keep paying for wars that we should not get into?

We should not only vote against this supplemental appropriation, we should start to call into question the administration's entire international policy. They are setting America against the world, and we are paying for it every day.

THE LACK OF A DEMOCRATIC PLAN

(Mr. McHENRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. McHENRY. Madam Speaker, a once great party left with nothing, nothing but a nifty little slogan, and that slogan is, "We can do better."

Madam Speaker, that is the Democrat Party here in Washington, DC.

It was announced in the press in October that they were going to come out with their great agenda in November. November came and went, they had nothing.

In January they said, that is going to be the time we are going to lay out our agenda, our positive agenda for America. January came and went.

Twice more they set dates to roll out their agenda, but nothing. They got nothing except this nifty little phrase, "We can do better." It is a sad state of affairs when they have no agenda, no ideas. All they have is negative attacks, partisan attacks here in Washington. We need more, and we, the Republicans, can do better.

SUPPORT THE FUNDING FOR FIXING TEXAS LEVEES

(Mr. DOGGETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DOGGETT. Madam Speaker, the lives and livelihood of tens of thousands of Texans in a major hurricane zone are at risk because of defective federal levees that only the federal government can repair.

I am here to ask that on the third vote this morning, our colleagues support an amendment offered on behalf of myself, Congressman ORTIZ, and Congress REYES to prevent another Hurricane Katrina-like disaster. This map shows the area of McAllen, Mission, Hidalgo, and Pharr, Texas—a booming community of hardworking Americans, small businesses, schools, hospitals, and nursing homes.

That is how it looks today. This is how it will look if those federal levees fail, covered not in blue plastic, but in water. Because the federal levees are up to 9 feet deficient in height according to a report of the U.S. State Department.

In order to prevent the destruction of the lives and livelihood of those hardworking Americans, we need the $7.8 million modest appropriation proposed in our amendment. Save lives and prevent a tragedy from occurring by approving emergency appropriations to assist the repair of these important federal levees.

ROME AREA HISTORY MUSEUM

(Mr. GINGREY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GINGREY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Rome Area History Museum on their 10th anniversary of collecting, preserving, and presenting the history of northwest Georgia. In 1995, five men, C.J. Wyatt, Bobby McElwee, John Carruth, David Oswalt, and Ed Byars, recognized the need to create an institution dedicated to the history of Rome and the surrounding communities.

These founders gathered a group of dedicated volunteers and opened what has become one of the finest museums in the State of Georgia. The founders renovated a building on historic Broad Street to serve as their headquarters.

And after much labor, the Rome Area History Museum officially opened its doors on March 30, 1996. For the past 9 years, Bernard Neal has done a wonderful job as the museum's president.

Madam Speaker, as the museum celebrates a decade of educating teachers, researchers and visitors, I want to thank the volunteers and supporters for making the Rome Area History Museum all that it is today.

Museums like this add richness to our communities and preserve our Nation's history.

LIVING IN A FISCAL FANTASYLAND

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, today the Senate will vote on the $781 billion increase in the national debt, the fourth debt limit increase in 5 years.

And the Republican Party continues to push tax policies that will drive us even deeper into debt. In 5 years, the Washington Republicans have racked up more new debt, more than $3 trillion, than the entire debt amassed from 1789 to 1988. We are now borrowing more than $600,000 per minute, $218 billion this year alone.

In March 2001, President Bush promised, "We will pay off $2 trillion of debt over the next decade. Future generations should not be forced pay back money that we have borrowed. We owe this kind of responsibility to our children and grandchildren."

Promises made, promises broken, a $5 trillion mistake the President made. Sadly, the administration and the Republican majority in this Congress continue to pursue their reckless, irresponsible, debt-creating policies.

How sad. How wrong. I tell the gentleman from North Carolina, it is not that we can do better, we did better.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PUTNAM). Pursuant to House Resolution 725 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4939.

□ 1030

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Mrs. MILLER of Michigan (Acting Chairman) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. When the committee of the whole rose on Wednesday March 15, 2006, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY) had been disposed of and the bill had been read through page 76, line 20.

SEQUENTIAL VOTES POSTPONED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

An amendment by Mr. BURTON of Indiana.

An amendment by Mr. CAPUANO of Massachusetts.

Amendment No. 8 by Mr. DOGGETT of Texas.

An amendment by Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey.

An amendment by Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey.

An amendment by Mrs. FOXX of North Carolina.

An amendment by Mr. MELANCON of Louisiana.

Amendment No. 6 by Mr. JEFFERSON of Louisiana.

Amendment No. 7 by Mr. JEFFERSON of Louisiana.

An amendment by Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi.

The Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BURTON OF INDIANA

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BURTON of Indiana:

Page 28, line 9, after the dollar amount insert the following: “(reduced by $26,300,000) (increased by $26,300,000)”.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 250, noes 172, not voting 11, as follows:

□ 1114

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated for:

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 47 on the Doggett amendment to H.R. 4939, I was on a leave of absence due to illness. Had I been present, I would have voted "aye."

□ 1115

(By unanimous consent, Mr. BOEHNER was allowed to speak out of order.)

ANNOUNCEMENT OF INTENTION TO LIMIT VOTING TIME

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Chairman, I want the Members to know that after this series of votes, it is my intention to ask unanimous consent that for the next series of votes that we have the first vote at 15 minutes, followed by succeeding 2-minute votes to help speed the process today. I did not want anybody to be surprised. I do not know whether the unanimous consent will go through, but I hope that it does. Members are all on notice.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIRMAN

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOSSELLA). Without objection, the 5-minute voting will continue.

There was no objection.

So the amendment was agreed to.
 The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated for:
 Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 54 on the Taylor amendment to H.R. 4939, I was on a leave of absence due to illness. Had I been present, I would have voted “aye.”

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. FRANKS of Arizona. Mr. Speaker, I regret that I was unable to be present for rollcall votes No. 50, 51, 52, 53, and 54. Had I been present, I would have voted “aye” on the amendment offered by Ms. FOXX (rollcall vote No. 50), “no” on the amendment offered by Mr. MELANCON (rollcall vote No. 51), “no” on both amendments offered by Mr. JEFFERSON (rollcall votes Nos. 52 and 53) and “no” on the amendment offered by Mr. TAYLOR (rollcall vote No. 54).

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.
 Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MARCHANT) having assumed the chair, Mr. CHOCOLA, Acting Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

PERMISSION TO REDUCE TIME FOR ELECTRONIC VOTING DURING FURTHER CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4939, EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that during further consideration of H.R. 4939, pursuant to House Resolution 725, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may reduce to 2 minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series shall be 15 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Ms. Curtis, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed without amendment a joint resolution of the House of the following title:

H.J. Res. 47. Joint resolution increasing the statutory limit on the public debt.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the further consideration of H.R. 4939 and that I may include tabular material on the same.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 725 and rule

XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4939.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Mr. CHOCOLA (Acting Chairman) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) had been disposed of and the bill had been read through page 76, line 20.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HALL

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HALL:

At the end of title II, insert the following:

CHAPTER 9

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS TITLE

SEC. 2901. In order to provide child care subsidies to the children of parents who are working or enrolled in workforce activities, in a manner that does not put the child care needs of temporary residents ahead of families already on waiting lists for services funded by the Child Care and Development Fund, in any redistribution of unobligated Federal matching funds as authorized by section 418 of the Social Security Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall give priority to States currently serving a significant number of children in families adversely affected by Hurricane Katrina.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HALL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, this amendment to title II would direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to give priority to States affected by Hurricane Katrina when redistributing unobligated Federal matching funds.

Texas is serving 6,000 children of Katrina evacuees with child care, despite a waiting list of 34,000 Texas children for child care services.

Failure to pass this amendment will put Texas in the position where its only option for continuing to serve the children of Katrina evacuees is with funds meant for Texas children. The Katrina kids would either be cut off or be allowed to cut the line in front of Texas kids who have been waiting up to 2 years to receive child care.

This Congress authorized $200 million in additional child care development funds for fiscal year 2006. Because these funds were made available in the middle of the fiscal year, not all States will be able to identify the necessary matching funds.

What I am asking is that any balances in the CCDF Federal matching funds be made available to the States whose child care caseloads have increased because of these hurricanes.

Members, this issue is but one example of the problematic Federal response to the hurricanes that struck the gulf coast last fall. Shortly after Hurricane Katrina struck, Texas was given a $75 million national emergency grant to provide employment and training services to victims of that storm who had taken up residence in our State.

When Hurricane Rita hit Texas 1 month later, rather than receiving an additional NEG grant to take care of our own people, we were told to not only use that same $75 million to serve the victims of both storms, but to provide our own citizens a more limited range of services than the Katrina evacuees.

This Congress eventually stepped in to allow parity of services, which we appreciate. Texas has enrolled more than 35,000 hurricane victims in NEG training programs and employment, but that money is projected to run out in July, and all of Texas's supplemental requests have been denied because the Department of Labor has run out of NEG funds.

The problem Texas faces goes beyond child care. Many of the Katrina evacuees who remain in Texas are potentially eligible for TANF and/or food stamps, both of which have education and training components associated.

This has put a tremendous strain on our resources for both programs. Congress previously allowed Texas to tap TANF funds to provide short-term non-recurring benefits to Katrina evacuees, but Texas and other States also need to be allowed to use Federal TANF contingency funds to provide outgoing employment and training services so that we can continue to move these recipients into meaningful employment.

Mr. Chairman, we also need for unspent funds in these areas to be re-allocated to where the demand for these services is greatest. Unless Texas receives additional resources, Texas cannot continue the specialized workforce and support services to hurricane victims unless it diverts funds that were intended and balanced to serve its own citizens.

When Hurricane Katrina struck, Texans immediately stepped forward and mounted an unprecedented effort, involving both the public and private sector. Texas taxpayers have been left actually holding the bag to the tune of nearly $2 billion. What kind of message does that send to other States who may find themselves adjacent to the natural disaster, or to the States who, God forbid, may be the victims of that disaster.

I find it hard to believe that the level of compassion extended to these victims will be the same when they know that the Federal Government's commitments are not good when they know that most of what they provide for the refugees will take away from their local resources and the services they are supposed to provide for their own people.

Mr. Chairman, I move adoption of this amendment, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas, Mr. Chairman, I rise to support this amendment because it would help thousands of children in the State of Texas.

This amendment directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to give priority to states affected by Hurricane Katrina when redistributing unobligated federal matching funds from the Child Care Development Fund.

Texas is now serving 6,000 children of Katrina evacuees with childcare services. There are currently 34,000 Texas children on a wait list for child care services.

Texas will soon be in a position where our only option will be to serve the children of evacuees at the expense of children in Texas.

Congress authorized $200 million in additional Child Care Development Funds for FY 06. However, these funds were made available in the middle of the fiscal year making it difficult for some states to determine the necessary matching funds for this program.

This amendment asks that any balances in Child Care Development Funds be made available to states where child care caseloads have increased due to the hurricanes.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

□ 1215

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states, in pertinent part, "An amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if it changes existing law." And this amendment gives it affirmative direction, in effect.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. CHOCOLA). Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order? If not, the Chair will rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language imparting direction. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT NO. 9 OFFERED BY MR. PAUL

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 9 offered by Mr. PAUL:

Page 76, after line 20, insert the following:

CHAPTER 9

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS TITLE

SEC. 2901. (a) For recovery of the State of Texas from the consequences of Hurricane Katrina and other hurricanes of the 2005 season, $546,100,000, to remain available until expended, to be allocated and administered by the Secretary of the Treasury and used only for the State of Texas, as follows:

(1) $200,000,000, for housing assistance under programs of the Departments of Housing and Urban Development and Agriculture for residents of the State of Texas and for residents of other States affected by the hurricanes who are temporarily residing in Texas and for community development block grant assistance under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

(2) $100,000,000, for costs of uncompensated health care for victims of the hurricanes and evacuees, for long-term care costs of evacuees remaining in Texas, and for mental health care costs of persons affected by the hurricanes.

(3) $100,000,000, for reimbursement of costs associated with providing educational services to students who are in Texas as a result of Hurricane Katrina and for repairs to public and higher education facilities damaged by Hurricane Rita.

(4) $46,000,000, for costs of repairs to bridges, roadways, ports, and channels damaged by Hurricane Rita.

(5) $59,000,000, for the Corps of Engineers for maintenance costs relating to erosion, waterway dredging, and other related services.

(6) $50,000,000 for costs of debris removal that are not reimbursable by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, for assistance to agricultural areas affected by Hurricane Rita (including timber- and rice-producing areas), and for costs of other unreimbursed repairs to rural and agricultural infrastructure resulting from Hurricane Rita.

(b) The amounts otherwise provided in title I for the following accounts are hereby reduced by the following amounts:

(1) "DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE—OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE", amounts under paragraph (3) for payments to reimburse certain countries for logistical, military, and other support provided or to be provided, to United States military operations, by $900,000,000.

(2) "BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE—DEPARTMENT OF STATE—DEMOCRACY FUND", by $10,000,000.

(3) "MILITARY ASSISTANCE—FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT—PEACEKEEPING OPERATIONS", by $100,000,000.

(4) "RELATED AGENCY—BROADCASTING BOARD OF GOVERNORS—INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING OPERATIONS", by $7,600,000.

(5) "RELATED AGENCY—BROADCASTING BOARD OF GOVERNORS—BROADCASTING CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS", by $28,500,000.

(c) The Secretary of the Treasury shall consider the $500,000,000 by which the aggregate amount of reductions under subsection

(b) exceed the aggregate amount made available under subsection (a) as credit against the Federal deficit for fiscal year 2006.

(d) The amount provided under subsection (a) is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment is offered in an attempt to save some money. If my amendment were to pass, we would cut $500 million from this appropriation. Everybody knows that this is a huge appropriations bill and that it is a supplemental. It does not fall under the category of the budget rules. It is $92 billion. It involves the finances of our military approach to our foreign policy around the world, which is two-thirds of this funding. The other third, 19 or $20 billion is for domestic use. It is a huge sum of money. And we are doing this at a time when we are running a deficit, our national debt at least is going up over $600 billion a year, and we are concerned this week about raising the national debt limit to over $9 trillion.

It is unfortunate that's the way the system works around here. It is very difficult to cut anything. My amendment is an attempt to seriously consider the problems that we have in reining in the spending and living within our means.

The major point I make here is by cutting $1 billion from the military portion of the bill it makes the point that we spend way too much on military operations. We spend more on military operations around the world than all the other countries of the world put together. And we do not have a lot to show for it. When you think about what has happened in Afghanistan, the problems there, what is happening in Iraq and the potential problems that are coming in Iran; yet the money is continuing to be spent in this reckless manner.

So I propose we cut a billion dollars out of that which would be easily done, because it should be cut a lot more. I would then take $500 million of this and I would put it into some areas of the country that have been neglected from some of the hurricane damage that has existed in the south, in particular, in Texas.

So to me, this is an approach to emphasize the importance of foreign policy, that this notion that we are in the business of nation-building, and that we are the policemen of the world, and that we should reconsider that and save money. At the same time, we could reduce our deficit while actually increasing funding for some of the serious problems that we have in this country. So to me, it sounds rather logical to do this. To cut things from, say, building roads in Liberia. Yes, Liberia needs money, but what about the people that have been hit by the hurricanes? They need some money, too. And the way we do it always involves deficit financing.

My approach emphasizes the need to cut in the places less important than any other places, spend the money here at home, and end up actually cutting back on the deficit financing. Otherwise we are going to continue with this process. I see no serious attempt whatsoever, when we bring up supplemental appropriations bills like this, to rein in the spending and even to pretend that we are cutting. This whole idea of putting domestic spending together with military spending is not a ploy to maybe reduce spending. It is the ploy to make sure that people are trapped into voting for both and nobody can vote against the domestic spending, and nobody can vote against the military spending. And yet, of course, spending is excessive in both areas.

But my amendment, the way it works, emphasizes mostly cutting the militarism and the type of foreign policy that we finance around the world that has so many ramifications and unintended consequences and so much blow-back, that it literally hurts our national defense and ends up costing us so much more money.

Long term, to come up with a solution, it will not occur with tinkering with the budget. It will not happen today, nor tomorrow. The only way that we can make any sense out of our spending in this country and on this floor will be to reassess our policies. We must ask: Do we want to continue to be the policemen of the world? Do we really believe we can nation-build around the world and that we can spread democracy by force? The result is then, if we do not like the results of the democratic elections then we say, well, it did not work. We cannot support that democratically elected leader.

So it is a change in policy, at least a reconsideration of what we think we should be doing around the world. At the same time, we have to reconsider the domestic spending.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part, "An amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if it changes existing law."

The amendment includes an emergency designation and as such constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

I ask for the Chair's ruling.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order? If not, the Chair is prepared to rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes an emergency designation. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SABO

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. SABO:

Page 56, line 11, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $700,000,000)".

Page 57, line 7, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $125,000,000)".

Page 58, line 8, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $300,000,000)".

Page 58, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $100,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) and the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, we hear a lot about the importance of identifying risk as we make security investments. And who could disagree? However, the President and Congress tend to stumble in putting a coherent risk-based philosophy into our budgets and policies.

I ask the Members to consider this amendment in the context of President Bush's national security budget priorities for the coming year. The President requests $10.4 billion for missile defense next year, an increase of $1.7 billion.

By comparison, the discretionary budget request for the whole Department of Homeland Security is only $400 million above this year, almost four times as large an increase simply for missile defense versus the whole Department of Homeland Security. I have a hard time seeing how the risk of an intercontinental ballistic nuclear missile attack is greater than the risk of a nuclear weapon in a cargo container coming into our country by ship. Therefore, this emergency bill is the time to address our most critical port security gaps.

I understand the Senate Budget Committee chairman also believes that critical security gaps should be addressed in this bill. Protecting our seaports is a lot like protecting our airports. We need multiple security layers. With international traffic, the first security check should be overseas.

The container security in this initiative, by which containers judged to be high risk are opened and inspected and all container manifests are reviewed, is operating today in only 43 of the 140 foreign ports that ship directly to the U.S.

Since 2002, former Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner has been talking about the value of CSI and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has endorsed it. However, the Bush administration and the Republican Congress have been slow to fund and implement the program. This amendment would expand CSI to all overseas ports that ship directly to the U.S. and allow U.S. custom agents to review 100 percent of all container manifests.

Some may argue that we should settle for CSI in 50 foreign ports by the end of 2007. What about the other 90 foreign ports that ship directly to us? You can be sure those who want to do us harm will know which foreign ports are covered by CSI and which foreign ports are not.

The next critical step is to improve port security inside the U.S. The Coast Guard estimates that $7 billion is needed to bring U.S. port facilities into compliance with our maritime security law and regulations.

Let me tell you where we are today. Since 9/11, Congress has provided $910 million to harden our seaports. President Bush has never requested funding directly and specifically for this purpose.

Mr. Chairman, with this amendment, we could install radiation portal monitors at every U.S. land and seaport of entry. Today, less than half of these radiation detectors have been installed. Without this amendment, the Bush administration would have Americans wait until 2011 to complete this crucial security measure.

Customs and Border Protection also need to do a better job in targeting cargo containers that should be opened, and in auditing trusted shippers. The General Accounting Office identified both of these issues, and this amendment would help us get these tasks done.

The third critical port security step is to ensure that the people charged to protect our ports are well trained, equipped, and prepared to respond to disaster.

The Coast Guard enforces port and vessel compliance with maritime security regulations. Last fall, the Coast Guard reported that its maritime security exercise revealed the need for a stronger chain of command, better guidance, and more training. The Coast Guard has also told us it has not completed its review of vessel security and has not reviewed all foreign ports that ship directly to us. This agency, which performed so well in response to Hurricane Katrina, can handle the tough jobs. Congress and the President should give the Coast Guard the right resources to do them.

Mr. Chairman, as the saying goes, practice makes perfect. We may need more simulation exercises for emergency responders at every level of government in order to identify the flaws in our preparedness plans.

Mr. Chairman, everyone knows that we have a dangerous gap in our emergency communications capability across the Nation. The bill provides a back-up communication package for the gulf coast, which includes trucks loaded with equipment that can be quickly moved into a disaster area and to bring up cell phones and public safety radio networks to help first responders in search and rescue efforts. We need this emergency communication equipment in other regions of the country as well. And this amendment would provide it.

Mr. Chairman, the American people expect us to do more than talk about inadequate port security and disaster preparedness. They demand that we back up our talk with action.

I urge Members to vote "yes" on this amendment.

□ 1230

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman's amendment, well-intentioned as it is, is absolute overkill. In total, this amendment would add $1.225 billion for a variety of programs in the Department of Homeland Security, which is nearly 5 percent of the annual appropriations. I may agree with him on some of the needs, but most of what he is asking for should be dealt with in regular order, not in an emergency supplemental bill.

I recognize the importance of many of the appropriations contained in the amendment, but we have already substantially increased funding. Mr. Chairman, for Customs and Border Protection, Coast Guard, and FEMA over the last 3 years.

This supplemental is about the Global War on Terror and Gulf Coast recovery, not about the regular budgets of these Departments, of these agencies, which we are dealing with right now as we appropriate for 2007.

Now, in Customs and Border Protection, in this bill already we increase funding by $17.7 million. We have aggressively supported radiation detection and cargo inspection technology, appropriating some $700 million over the last three years. An additional $400 million in this amendment, well-intended, is completely arbitrary and unneeded. There is no rationale for this number. The new Domestic Nuclear Detection Office is developing new technologies, even as I speak, and a framework for their deployment.

The gentleman also increases Customs and Border protection, international port security programs, the Container Security Initiative, and the Customs Trade Partnership Against Terrorism by $300 million. Since 2004, these programs have received, at the hands of the Congress, over $430 million. This has fully funded the Container Security Initiative which will expand in 58 foreign ports by the end of fiscal 2007. Through those 58 ports come 90 percent of the containers that come to this country and C-TPAT has expanded to 5,636 certified trade partners that send us container vessels every day.

Mr. Chairman, we simply cannot grow these programs any faster. Money is not the problem. An expansion of this program is more about obtaining diplomatic clearances than money. These countries simply will not take more of our personnel until we negotiate diplomatically with them.

As for the Coast Guard operating expenses, in this bill the Chairman of the full committee, Mr. LEWIS, has already included an additional $14.3 million. The gentleman's amendment would add another $125 million. Mr. Chairman, over the last 5 years, we have doubled funding for the Coast Guard's operating expenses, doubled, from $2.8 billion in fiscal 2001 to $5.5 billion in the current year, and while we have increased their responsibilities, they have funding in their base and in this supplemental for operating expenses sufficient to carry out their duties for the remainder of the year, including overhauling equipment, additional fuel, port security, inspections and the like. So the Coast Guard is taken care of. In fact, they have roughly half of their operating expenses for this fiscal year laying there waiting to be spent. So they do not need the extra funds.

Now then, on FEMA, we include in this bill already increases to FEMA of $70 million in the supplemental emergency bill. The gentleman would increase their funding for administrative and regional operations by $300 million, but it is unclear how that $300 million figure is derived. The President requested $70 million for emergency communications, primarily for Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, although some of the funds are also targeted to Texas and Florida.

The Sabo amendment adds $300 million for "three other locations." We do not know where those locations are or why it is an emergency that they be equipped, and there is a huge difference in the cost estimates. Seventy million will take care of the three principal States of Katrina, but he is asking $300 million for these three other locations. Wherever they are, I do not know, and what they need the money for we still do not know.

The $70 million that Chairman LEWIS included in the bill that is before us fully prepares the Gulf Coast for the upcoming hurricane season, putting in place the necessary communications infrastructure for warning and communicating with the public during these natural disasters. It may be appropriate to position the technology in other locations, but there is no reason to consider an expansion of this effort as part of this emergency appropriations bill. These are decisions that can and will be considered as part of the regular appropriations cycle, which we are having hearings on right now.

The gentleman seeks to add $100 million for preparedness activities at FEMA. We also increase in preparedness this bill by $10 million. The gentleman states we are not spending enough on simulation exercises; but in fiscal 2006, the National Exercise Program is funded at $52 million. That supports local, State, and national exercises.

The gentleman also seeks to restart a program called Project Impact, funded in the previous administration to simulate predisaster mitigation efforts. That program has not been funded for 5 years. Nothing is known about it, we do not know that it works, and yet we are asked to plow down another big chunk of money. Who will administer it? what will it do? and so on—we do not know.

So, Mr. Chairman, it is not a matter of more money. It is a matter of spending the money that we already have stashed away in these programs wisely, based on a sound strategy and a rationale to improve our homeland security. While the gentleman's amendment is well-intended, it is overkill.

This supplemental is focused on immediate needs, not budgetary items for next year. Many of the areas being addressed in this amendment are funded in this supplemental, not just to the arbitrary levels being proposed by the gentleman's amendment. Throwing huge sums of money at these programs is not a responsible way to conduct our Nation's business.

I urge a defeat of this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. PRICE).

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, the Dubai Ports World debacle, like Hurricane Katrina, laid bare preexisting problems which some of us, especially on the Democratic side of the aisle, have been struggling for years to bring to public notice.

The ports episode starkly reveals the pitfalls of the Bush administration's peremptory decision-making style, without serious deliberation or consultation. And it lays bare the dangers of 4 years of administration laxity on port security. The Sabo amendment offers us the chance to begin to remedy that neglect.

First, it would expand overseas container inspections to all overseas ports that ship to the U.S. The Container Security Initiative, responsible for reviewing manifests and opening and inspecting high-risk containers, is currently operating in only 43 of the 140 overseas ports that ship directly to this country. This amendment would expand the program to all overseas ports shipping to the U.S.

Secondly, the amendment would increase port security inspections and surveillance by the Coast Guard and would eliminate the Coast Guard's current $70 million energy shortfall.

Thirdly, the amendment would place radiation portal monitors at all ports of entry. Fewer than half of the ports of entry are equipped with those monitors now, and Homeland Security does not plan to have them all equipped until 2011. This amendment would allow each entry point to have a radiation portal monitor.

Fourth, it would increase our nationwide communications backup capability. The supplemental does contain backup capability for the gulf coast, but this capability should be provided in other critical locations; our amendment would add three such locations.

Finally, the amendment would strengthen our disaster preparedness mitigation response and recovery. It would increase the number of simulation exercises undertaken by vulnerable communities, and it would restore funding for FEMA's Project Impact.

This is a well-crafted, well-conceived amendment. I urge colleagues to support it.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, how much time remains on each side?

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. CHOCOLA). Both sides have 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, yesterday, we cast a symbolic vote that got all kinds of political attention from the press having to do with the Dubai controversy. That vote had absolutely no effect on anything because the Dubai deal had already been killed. So the only thing we accomplished was letting Members of Congress get a nice vote that they could take home, stick in their pocket and show their constituents and say, "Oh, what a good boy am I."

Now we have got a chance to do something real about port security and about border security. Is there anybody in this House who thinks that our ports are really sufficiently secure so that we do not need to have more resources? Is there anybody in this House who is comfortable with the level of security on the Canadian border?

Over the past 3 years, we on this side of the aisle have tried nine times to get the majority to increase Homeland Security funding above the amount that you have had in your bills, and we have been turned down nine times.

This Congress is telling us, as this small chart shows, this Congress is telling the country we can afford to spend $64 billion this year to provide tax cuts to people who make $1 million or more a year. They are telling the country we can afford to spend more money on tax cuts for millionaires than we spend on the entire Homeland Security budget.

Now, does anybody really think that this country is in greater need of providing $64 billion in tax cuts to people who make a million bucks a year? Do we really think that we need to do that more than we need to shore up port security, border security and the like? With all due respect, I do not think that is very good judgment with respect to our priorities.

The Hart-Rudman report in 2002 concluded, that "America's own ill-prepared response could hurt its people to a much greater extent than any single attack by terrorists," and Katrina revealed the truth of that statement. We witnessed the debacle in Katrina because communication systems went down, and the worst problem about Katrina is that no one could talk to anybody because all of the communication systems were put out of order.

Now, this supplemental only contains sufficient funds to provide an emergency communications backup capability in the gulf coast. That capability consists of trucks loaded with equipment that can be quickly moved into devastated areas to bring up cell phones and VHF, UHF and SHF radio networks to help first responders in their search-and-rescue efforts.

This capability ought to be provided nationwide. That is just one of the many examples that anybody who knows anything about homeland security understands. It is a serious challenge to the security of this country.

So I would submit that we can argue about the details, and if the majority does not like some of these items, you can easily fix them in conference because you have got the votes and we do not, but anybody who thinks it is more important to provide $64 billion in tax cuts to people who make a million bucks a year than it is to increase our homeland security capability, in my mind, has a faulty set of judgments, and I think they better think again.

□ 1245

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Very briefly, Mr. ROGERS is the chairman of the Homeland Security Subcommittee, and is doing a very fine job attempting to reorganize the direction of the country in regards to homeland security. In the processing of reorganizing, we brought 22 agencies together. When you bring bureaucracies together you have difficulty starting a direction that is right the first time. Mr. ROGERS has recognized that.

There is a lot of money that has already been appropriated that is in the pipeline that can be applied to many of these priority challenges. Mr. ROGERS has done a very fine job of prioritizing and pushing this agency. There is enough money in the pipeline to give the priorities the appropriate funding.

So I would argue very strongly for a "no" vote on this amendment.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. May I inquire of the time remaining?

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. CHOCOLA). Both sides have 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I understand the majority has the right to close.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, let me just make a few comments. First, let me be clear. I have great appreciation for the work of the chairman of our committee, Mr. ROGERS, and what he has done in this subcommittee. The work of his subcommittee has significantly improved the recommendations of the President over the last several years as relates to homeland security. The bills that have passed Congress have been significantly better than what we got from the administration.

But I also agree with him that this bill today is about the war on terrorism. And one of the most important parts in dealing with the war on terrorism is dealing with port security and the security of containers coming into this country. I disagree with those who say that who owns and how terminals are operated is irrelevant to security. Who operates them and how they operate them is very relevant, as we have dealt with in this bill in committee.

However, how we provide the other security dwarfs the importance of who and how terminals are operated. How we deal with containers coming into this country, both at our ports and our other ports of entry in this country is tremendously important. We have made some progress, but anyone who suggests that we are there in terms of port security in this country today I think is badly misinformed. We have a long ways to go, and it has been over 4 years since 9/11.

We are not simply throwing money at a problem here. These are important questions, important problems that need more resources; and, frankly, in some cases, they need more vigorous action by the administration to make sure that foreign countries cooperate with us. This is an amendment that significantly improves port security and I ask for a "yes" vote.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I urge a "no" vote on this amendment. First, this amendment throws money at a problem where money is not the problem. There are literally billions of dollars that we have appropriated in the pipeline for the various grant programs in the Department of Homeland Security, including grant monies for port security. In fact, the Department, in the next couple of weeks will be releasing port security applications for various ports around the country to apply for funding. Money is in the pipeline waiting to be spent.

As I have said before, the Department will be in 58 foreign ports the end of the fiscal year 2007. Ninety percent, nine out of 10 of the containers coming into the country come through those 58 ports around the world. We are there x-raying the containers, manually searching containers, classifying and targeting containers, finding those that are susceptible to suspicion and then searching them.

It is not perfect, obviously. But money is not the problem. We simply cannot send more agents into those countries than they will take, unless we can diplomatically make arrangements. But that is a job of the State Department, not DHS.

Second, this is an emergency supplemental bill. We can deal with most of the problems that the gentleman outlines in his amendment in the regular process. And in the regular process, I will probably support a number of the proposals that he is bringing forth in this emergency bill. But this is not the time or the place.

So I would urge a "no" vote. These dollars are emergency spending. They are not offset. And the gentleman is asking us to add another $1.225 billion of nonoffset spending. I would hope the body would recognize that, reject this amendment, and let us deal with these issues in the regular process of the 2007 bill.

I urge a "no" vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. All time has expired. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote, and pending that, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

AMENDMENT NO. 12 OFFERED BY MR.
NEUGEBAUER

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 12 offered by Mr. NEUGEBAUER:

At the end of title II, insert the following:

CHAPTER 9

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS TITLE

ELIMINATION OF FUNDING

SEC. 2901. Each amount appropriated or otherwise made available by this title is hereby reduced to $0.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. NEUGEBAUER) and a Member opposed each will control 15 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, a couple of weeks ago, or several weeks ago, I think in February, the President of the United States sent over two supplemental bills, one for Katrina and one for our defense. Two bills. Because even the President recognized that these are two different issues, a $68 billion defense bill; a $20 billion Katrina bill.

Unfortunately, when this bill came to this body for consideration, it was combined, not giving Members the opportunity to determine what they think is the best policy, both from a defense standpoint and a domestic standpoint.

I am concerned about the fact that these emergency supplemental bills have really become appropriation bills, and the word "emergency," I think, has somewhat slipped from that process. We should be able to come to this floor, and my bill allows Members to be able to give a vote for Katrina or a vote for our defense in an appropriate way that they feel is good for the American taxpayer.

One of the concerns I have, Mr. Chairman, is that in this 109th Congress, if we pass this bill today, with no offsets, by the way, and a previous speaker talked about there was no offsets for that amendment, in fact, there are no offsets in this bill, in the 109th Congress we will have spent as much money on emergency supplemental spending as we have spent in the previous five Congresses.

Mr. Chairman, I would say to you that I don't think that is good for the American people. What I think we ought to do, though, is have policy that does address the merits of what our efforts are in Iraq and Afghanistan and the merits of how we are spending the American taxpayers' money on Katrina relief. In fact, we have already approved in this body $100 billion worth of emergency spending in other relief for Katrina victims.

What is at issue here is the question of whether or not a lot of the issues that are in this supplemental should actually have been in this supplemental. But more importantly, it should not be allowed for piling on and adding things to these supplemental bills, which, in fact, become a free-for-all.

These are two different issues. How we spend the money defending the American people in our efforts in Iraq and Afghanistan as we execute the war on terrorism and how we deal with the catastrophic events that have happened in Katrina are two separate issues. And I would encourage my colleagues to give the American people the benefit of their wisdom and judgment and have a vote on each one of these issues.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the gentleman's amendment. I understand the point he is making regarding the concept of splitting bills, however, the direct result of this amendment, if it were to pass, and I hope it doesn't, would be to strip all the money out that we need to restore military facilities and veterans facilities in that region.

In fact, this bill, title II, includes $184 million to replace military facilities at bases in the gulf coast damaged by the hurricanes, such as a fire crash rescue station at Keesler Air Force Base. It also includes funds to replace the Veterans Hospital in New Orleans. Eliminating this title puts these facilities and our military personnel at greater risk.

For those reasons, Mr. Chairman, I strongly oppose the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman reserve his time?

Mr. WALSH. I yield back.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to how much time I have remaining?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas has 12 minutes remaining.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING).

Mr. KING of Iowa. Thank you, Mr. NEUGEBAUER, I appreciate the privilege to address this issue.

And, Mr. Chairman, Katrina funding doesn't belong in this DOD emergency supplemental appropriations bill. We have had now 6 months to debate and discuss and deliberate on Katrina funding, and yet there is still not a plan. This Congress hasn't exerted its will on a plan in New Orleans, in particular, and yet here we have another wave of appropriations that has come in without an accounting of where the money has been spent.

If we continue to do this, Mr. Chairman, we will continue to see more money go down there without a solution in place. And I would submit, and I have been down there three times, that if our Federal agencies function at 100 percent of optimum possible production, and with their hearts and their heads all in the right place, we still don't have a solution for Katrina. There is not a plan.

There are appropriations that are in this. There is $100 million to restore the surrounding wetlands, yet we don't know how we are going to protect New Orleans for a category 3.1 storm or anything greater than that. We appropriated money before Christmas for the Corps of Engineers to produce a study to protect New Orleans for a cat 5 hurricane, but they have 24 months to produce the results of that study, and yet we don't know what kind of protection is going to be there for the capital that would go down in that region, some of it below sea level.

If FEMA, SBA, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers all do their job at 100 percent, there is still not a solution. We need to have a plan, an ordered plan, that provides for levee construction for protection of, in particular, New Orleans, at some level; whether it is a 3, a 3.5, a 4, or something above. The people that are reconstructing their homes need to know where they can put their dollars.

But this does not do it, Mr. Chairman. This is something that injects Katrina funding into DOD supplemental appropriations emergency spending. It is not emergency spending. It needs to be dealt with under the normal process of our appropriations process.

So I would conclude and ask for a "yes" vote on the Neugebauer amendment, and thank him for bringing it to the floor.

□ 1300

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to reclaim the time held in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BASS). Without objection, the gentleman from New York controls 14 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS), chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Homeland Security.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I know the motivation of the offerer of the amendment, and I sympathize with his general premise. However, I am obligated to speak against the amendment because the amendment would eliminate the money for FEMA. Under this proposal, FEMA would run out of money in May. The $9.55 billion in the bill for the operations in the Gulf Coast would be eliminated. Housing assistance would stop; debris removal would stop. There would be no emergency communications in place for the upcoming hurricane season, which is only two months away. And $13.5 million for the Inspector General would be cut, almost ensuring fraud, waste and abuse of the $35 billion in supplemental funds we have appropriated so far for the Gulf Coast.

So I would urge a "no" vote. Although I understand the gentleman's motivation to try to separate out the disaster funding from the military funding, that would ruin the disaster assistance for the Gulf Coast. I urge a "no" vote.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE).

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank Mr. NEUGEBAUER for, after a very short period of time in Congress, stepping forward in this case and in other cases with substantive legislation that reflects the conservative values that he came to Washington to represent, and does so with no small amount of courage and common sense.

As we look at this behemoth emergency supplemental, Mr. Chairman, I still want to express appreciation to the chairman of the Appropriations Committee and the chairmen of the appropriate subcommittees. I do believe, as is evidenced by the courtliness demonstrated on the floor today, that we are not subject in this case, or any other case, to bad people but to a bad process. As this Congress undertakes to change the way we spend the people's money, this behemoth legislation is again an argument for budget process reform.

To the Neugebauer amendment, I must begin by saying Hurricane Katrina breaks my heart. I have grieved for the families who have lost loved ones and lost their precious resources and communities in the wake of this storm. I have supported Katrina funding in the past. And in working with colleagues to offset its cost, I will support Katrina funding in the future, but I cannot support adding Katrina relief to an emergency military bill.

The American people know that Hurricane Katrina funding and military spending are apples and oranges. As the author of this amendment suggests as well, the President of the United States knows this, having sent a bill to fund Katrina to the Hill separate from a bill to fund the war on terror. Rather than this legislation being focused on a disciplined measure to fund our military priorities, it has in a sense become a fruit basket, as supplemental bills often do. Spending that, while it may be worthwhile, belongs in the regular order of the legislative process in this Congress.

We need to get back to saying that emergency spending should just fund emergencies; and military emergency spending should fund military emergencies. Let us separate support for the war on terror and our support for the families and communities affected by Katrina. Let us support the Neugebauer amendment, and let this Congress work its will independently to the war on terror and our desire to be there for the families and communities affected by Hurricane Katrina.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I fully support the Neugebauer amendment to strike the Katrina funding out of this emergency supplemental. It is not in any way, shape, or form that I am opposed to Katrina funding. Indeed, we have already appropriated on an emergency expedited manner $62 billion for Katrina relief. I have been to the gulf coast twice. I have seen the devastation. I have actually worked in one of the clinics in Baton Rouge and treated some of these patients. My heart goes out to the victims of this devastating hurricane along the gulf coast.

But as my colleagues have just said, it makes no sense to join these two bills together. The previous $62 billion that we have appropriated is going to Katrina without much oversight. The citizens, the constituents of the 11th Congressional District of Georgia, are sick and tired of hearing the stories of waste, fraud and abuse. They want some oversight, and this is the only way we can get it.

With all due respect to the appropriations chairman and the subcommittee chairman, this idea that if we do not do it today, right now, combined with the defense emergency appropriations, Armageddon is going to occur. It is not. We come back here the very first day we return and we deal with this bill and we have some opportunity to have some input. This is what our constituents want.

I support the Neugebauer amendment. Let us strike this funding and come back and do it right.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING).

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I thank him for his courage in offering this amendment because I know how easy it is to misrepresent what his intentions are.

I agree with the previous speakers, and I am disappointed that these two bills have not been separated out. I am here to agree and admit, as one who has actually been to the gulf coast, that perhaps more Federal funding may be needed. I have seen the human misery. I have family that was there. My in-laws were there. They were among the lucky ones; they lived through it. Their home, although significantly damaged, was not totally demolished. My heart goes out to these people.

But the answer to the human tragedy is not an unlimited check drawn upon the checkbook of the Federal taxpayer.

Many speakers act like nothing has been done already to help the gulf coast, but $100 billion in tax incentives and in other direct relief has gone to the gulf coast. That, ladies and gentlemen, is a lot of money.

And let us also not ignore the fact that although there was a great tragedy that occurred on the gulf coast, there are many other tragedies that occur in this Nation every day, but CNN is not there to capture them on a day-to-day basis.

Mr. Chairman, 38,000 Americans die each year in a car crash, and we are asking their families to be taxed to send more money to the gulf coast; 1.4 million Americans are going to be diagnosed with cancer this year, and yet we want to tax them to send more money to the gulf coast.

There are almost a half a million homes that burn each year, and we want to tax those families to send more money to the gulf coast. Perhaps more money is justified, but until we see the plan, until we see more accountability where we do not have trailers rotting in the Arkansas mud and Gucci purses being bought on debit cards, until we figure out the precise Federal role versus the State role versus the local role versus the role of able-bodied individuals under the age of 65, until we come up with reforms, and most importantly, until we come up with offsets, it is time that we prioritize our spending. And maybe we shouldn't be funding the citrus canker program and Radio-Free Europe if money is needed at the gulf coast. I support this amendment and hope it passes.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, maybe I did not hear right, but I thought I heard some rather interesting things. Two speakers ago I heard the words "we need more oversight." Really? This from a Congress and a majority party that has provided mighty little oversight of the abuses at Abu Ghraib, mighty little oversight on the question of contractor ripoffs in Iraq?

If you want some oversight, I will be interested to see how you vote on the amendment to provide a Truman-like committee to get into the details of contractor abuse in Iraq.

I have also heard from the gentleman from Texas express his concern about cancer patients who are being asked to pay taxes to support additional aid to the gulf. I will be interested to see whether the gentleman votes for a budget which for the third year in a row will cut the number of research grants at the National Institutes of Health.

The gentleman mentioned the number of people who die in fires. I will be interested to see whether they vote for the recommendation to eliminate fire grants. I could go on and on, but I won't in the interest of time.

So I was heartened to hear those comments by both gentlemen. I just hope that when the bills come that provide the services for the activities that they mentioned, that they will have the same attitude that they are exhibiting here today.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

There has been a lot of discussion about what this bill does and what it does not do. What it does do is not take away Katrina funding; but what it says is let us break this bill into two pieces the way that the President of the United States sent this bill over to us, giving an opportunity for Members to express their opinions about our current defense policy, giving Members of Congress the ability to talk about and express their opinions about how they feel about Katrina policy and how it is going today.

One of the things that this amendment does, Members would be able to come back for debate on Katrina and have a separate vote at that particular time.

What we need to understand is this is no small sum of money. This is $92 billion as of the last count; and with the amendments, it is probably going to be more. We also know that $92 billion is in excess of 10 percent of our discretionary spending for 2006.

So it makes good sense for the American soldiers, the young men and women that are defending our Nation, that are executing the war on terrorism to have a separate vote. It makes good sense for the people in the devastated areas because of the hurricanes that we have had, for us to have deliberative talks and discussions about what is good policy for Katrina.

But let's don't leave the third set of people out that this body is charged to represent, and that is the American people. We need to make sure when we are making policy in this building and in this Chamber that it is good for the people in America. The American people are looking to us; and quite honestly, the people back in the 19th Congressional District of Texas are concerned about our spending. They question how much is an emergency and what is an emergency.

Quite honestly, Mr. Chairman, I think that combining these bills today is not good policy, and I urge my colleagues to come down and give a positive vote, vote for this amendment, vote for our soldiers, vote for the people in Katrina, but also vote for the American people.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I believe my colleagues know that the Appropriations Committee gives the highest priority to improving and extending oversight to money that is expended.

□ 1315

Indeed, I have personally spent a lot of time working with the Inspector General. We have added money in this bill to the Inspector General specifically to make sure oversight is increased and is very adequate. I am concerned, for example, about the money that may be available even to east Texas as a result of this work. I intend to make sure that we do what is right in connection with our response to this issue. I would urge a "no" vote and appreciate my colleagues supporting that "no" vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BASS). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. NEUGEBAUER).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. MILLENDER-MCDONALD

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD:

Page 59, line 1, insert "(increased by $50,000,000)" after the dollar figure.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise today to ask my colleagues to support the amendment that I have offered to H.R. 4939, which is the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Defense, the Global War on Terror and Hurricane Recovery.

Mr. Chairman, I have a bill that is going through the normal process that will ask for $50 million through EAC. But this is an emergency bill and it is an emergency with those who are down in those gulf coast States who are looking for some relief in their elections that are upcoming.

My amendment is a simple one. It merely gives an additional $50 million to FEMA so that they can repair and replace the election infrastructure in the States affected by Hurricanes Rita and Katrina.

On August 29, 2005, the Nation and the world watched in horror as the Gulf States were hit by one of the worst hurricanes in this Nation's history. Hurricane Katrina destroyed life in the Gulf States as we know it. And to our dismay, a few weeks later, Hurricane Rita cut a path of devastation along the Texas-Louisiana coast.

The residents of the Gulf States have witnessed entire towns and cities destroyed in the face of Hurricane Katrina and Rita. In some locations these hurricanes wiped out the entire infrastructure necessary for citizens to educate their children, shop for necessities, and to exercise their right to vote. This is what this emergency bill is all about, allowing the election infrastructure to be placed there to give people the right to vote, because it may be years, Mr. Chairman, before the Gulf States start to resemble the vibrant region of the country which they were known to have before these storms.

And it takes time, Mr. Chairman, to build schools and shopping centers; but when it comes to voting, time is of the essence. The most affected State, Louisiana, will be holding elections in just weeks, along with Mississippi and Alabama, which have scheduled primaries in June.

Mr. Chairman, I have a letter from the Secretaries of State of those States urging us to pass this emergency $50 million and to ask FEMA to provide this. FEMA has denied them before to get this election infrastructure put in place. This bill will do just that.

My bill will add an additional $50 million to FEMA under the Stafford Act. It is my intent that FEMA directs these funds to the States affected by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita to rebuild the necessary infrastructure to conduct Federal elections. As the ranking member on the Committee on House Administration, I have that oversight, and I am urging this amendment to be passed.

Voter registration lists need to be re-established, sometimes even recreated from scratch; and destroyed polling stations must be reconstructed and made fully accessible to those with disabilities. With this additional money,

FEMA will not have to take money away from rebuilding schools and bridges and hospitals and other important reconstruction projects in order to get the election process back up and running in the gulf coast States in time for Federal elections in the coming weeks. And this is not a blank check, Mr. Chairman. The States would have to submit proposals with detailed plans before receiving funds.

Mr. Chairman, I am urging that we do this in light of the fact that FEMA has not, and denied these Secretaries of State the due process of getting these election infrastructures put in place. Hurricanes Katrina and Rita nearly destroyed those Gulf States. Months later, the rippling effect is still being felt by the Nation.

This Nation must provide disaster relief funds to supplement State and local efforts with their efforts to restore and replace supplies, material and equipment so that election officials can conduct credible elections.

We talk about democracy in Iraq and Afghanistan. We need our democracy right here for those who wish to vote and want to vote in the upcoming elections to do that. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF SECRETARIES OF STATE,

Washington, DC, February 6, 2006.

Hon. SUSAN M. COLLINS, Chair

Hon. JOSEPH I. LIEBERMAN,

Ranking Member, Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. PETER KING, Chair

Hon. BENNIE G. THOMPSON,

Ranking Member, Committee on Homeland Security, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. TRENT LOTT, Chair

Hon. CHRISTOPHER J. DODD,

Ranking Member, Committee on Rules and Administration, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. VERNON EHLERS, Chair

Hon. JUANITA MILLENDER-MCDONALD,

Ranking Member, Committee on House Administration, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN COLLINS, RANKING MEMBER LIEBERMAN, CHAIRMAN KING, RANKING MEMBER THOMPSON, CHAIRMAN LOTT, RANKING MEMBER DODD, CHAIRMAN EHLERS and RANKING MEMBER MILLENDER-MCDONALD: On August 29, 2005 Americans in the Gulf Coast suffered the most devastating natural disaster in our nation's history. Since that time, officials at all levels of government have been devoted to helping our citizens rebuild and move forward. As Alabamans, Louisianians and Mississippians, we are grateful for the hope, service and resources that have poured into our region and we are heartened by the hospitality of Americans in the great cities across the country who have welcomed our fellow citizens in this time of unprecedented need. We write your committees to request necessary assistance in securing the rights of our region's voters. Because a transparent and accountable democratic infrastructure is the backbone of any rebuilding effort, we are asking for your assistance in securing $10 million to ensure meaningful elections.

As we move in our common struggle to keep the Gulf Coast vibrant in the wake of disaster, we must provide our citizens with the opportunity to participate in the critical and difficult decision making that each of our states face in the coming months and years.

We are honored to serve as Secretaries of State and Chief Election Officials and humbled by our solemn duty to safeguard our citizens' most fundamental right as Americans—the right to vote. The mandates of our office require that we provide all eligible voters, both those that have returned to their homes already and those that are temporarily residing elsewhere, with an opportunity to participate in this rebuilding effort by exercising their voice through the ballot box.

Each election presents our states with many challenges, but never before has there been such great potential for disenfranchisement than in the elections we are facing in the coming year. In Louisiana alone over 400,000 of our registered voters are dispersed in 49 states across the country. Over 53,000 of those citizens have been welcomed into Alabama and Mississippi. Over 250 polling places in our coastal parishes have been destroyed. To date, Louisiana has expended over $2.5 million in restoration of voting machines and associated equipment alone.

In Mississippi, Katrina's damage was devastating. Though fewer citizens were permanently displaced than in Louisiana, our infrastructure in many communities was completely destroyed or severely damaged, due to storm surge along the coast and hurricane force winds that reached as far as 125 miles inland.

The result of this devastation is that limited county budgets are depleted to deal with debris removal and infrastructure rebuilding, and much of our counties' tax base is destroyed. Much of these diverted county funds would have been used to bring voting precincts up to ADA standards and to purchase new voting machines to meet HAVA requirements this year. Based on surveys from our 43 affected counties, Mississippi's estimated reimbursement need is $4.2 million dollars for ADA voting precinct compliance and voting machine purchase.

Alabama's Gulf Coast area, and 22 counties which were declared disaster areas following Hurricane Katrina, have a variety of needs to conduct their first election on June 6, 2006. In addition to necessary repairs to make some polling places functional, many counties in this disaster area have used dollars normally allocated for election costs to remove debris, repair infrastructure, etc., and these funds would have been used to upgrade polling place facilities, comply with ADA, provide training, purchase supplies, train polling officials, etc. Alabama's estimated cost for the above needs is 2.3 million.

As Chief Election Officials, we are committed to overcoming these challenges, but to guarantee that each of our citizens has an equal opportunity to participate in the election, we need additional resources that will allow us to be creative in educating our voters, providing opportunities for them to cast meaningful ballots from across the country and rebuild our democratic infrastructure.

Unfortunately, our requests to the Federal Emergency Management Agency ("FEMA") have been answered by a denial that FEMA has authorization under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act to aid us in administering elections. The Stafford Act, however, clearly provides the statutory authority to FEMA to help with necessary election expenses incurred in the wake of a national disaster. 42

U.S.C. §5170a. In fact, when Americans have suffered the results of disasters in the past, FEMA has provided aid and financial support for extraordinary expenses to election officials. For example, in 1992, in the wake of Hurricane Andrew, FEMA provided substantial aid to Miami-Dade County to overcome the obstacles of losing more than 100 polling places. FEMA also provided reimbursement for all of that county's election expenses incurred as a result of Andrew.

We seek assistance from the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee and the House Homeland Security Committee to help secure necessary funding and assistance from FEMA.

Each of our offices is currently engaged in determining the financial impact of the hurricanes on our respective election system. It is our feeling that we will need $10 million this year in order to adequately address our voters' additional needs as a result of the storms. In order to most effectively administer election related funding, we encourage a formal liaison between FEMA and the United States Election Assistance Commission (EAC). This relationship will allow essential funds to be directed to the states by the federal agency responsible for issues related to election administration. Consequently, we call on the Senate Rules Committee and the Committee on House Administration to work with the EAC to determine the structure of this necessary relationship. It is our hope that, as a result of this relationship, we will have a procedure for obtaining needed financial resources through a responsive partner.

Time, of course, is of the essence. Voters in Orleans Parish Louisiana will cast ballots on April 22 to elect leaders whose vision will determine the future of New Orleans and its historic neighbors. Starting in the spring and running through the summer, all of our states have primary elections for local and federal offices. Of course, this coming fall, each of our states must administer major federal elections. It is essential to a successful rebuilding process that our citizens have confidence in the outcomes of these elections. Our commitment to this goal is undermined only by our lack of resources.

Sincerely,

AL ATER,
Secretary of State,
State of Louisiana.

ERIC CLARK,
Secretary of State,
State of Mississippi.

NANCY WORLEY,
Secretary of State,
State of Alabama.

NASS RESOLUTION ON FEMA FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE AFTER A DISASTER

Whereas, In September 2005 the gulf south region of America suffered devastating losses as a result of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, and

Whereas, other geographic areas have in the past and will suffer in the future from devastating disasters whether by act of god or man, that will debilitate the election process, and

Whereas, the Secretaries of State and other local election officials in the affected areas will bear substantial additional costs to restore polling places, voting equipment, and other necessary items which will enable them to resume conducting elections, and

Whereas, we, the members of the National Association of Secretaries of State (NASS) and the chief state election officials in 39 states, agree that accurate, accessible, and accountable elections are the centerpieces of our democracy, and

Whereas, the state and local governments in the affected areas have and will suffer tremendous losses of revenue and have to shoulder additional expenses in the clean up and rehabilitation of their respected areas, and

Whereas, the Federal Emergency Management Agency reports that they have no statutory authority to pay for any of these extraordinary expenses, and

Whereas, the Federal Emergency Management Agency has provided assistance and financial aid for extraordinary expenses to state and local election officials for conducting elections during past disasters.

Therefore be it Resolved, That NASS hereby urges and requests the President and Congress of the United States of America to direct the Federal Emergency Management Agency to deem these extraordinary expenditures as eligible for payment under the Stafford Act and to work with other federal agencies to expediently take appropriate steps to assist those Secretaries of State and local election officials in the affected areas.

Adopted the 5th day of February, 2006
In Washington, DC

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kentucky is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is just not necessary. FEMA has money and the authorization to go ahead and buy election equipment already, and they are already doing it. This amendment would actually earmark Disaster Relief Funds, which we have never done before. We don't earmark. This is not an account out of which you earmark monies for things you like. These are Disaster Relief Funds that are administered by the government where it is needed.

Now, the Stafford Act authorizes the use of Federal money to repair or replace damaged public infrastructure. That is what it is for, including election equipment. FEMA has already spent over $1.7 million on election equipment in Louisiana and Mississippi. Specifically, Louisiana has received $1,200,100 from FEMA to replace polling booths, computers, voting machines, office supplies, and storage facilities. Mississippi has received $724,000 from FEMA for voting machines, equipment, and election commission furniture. So FEMA is already doing it. I don't know why we need to earmark monies, which I oppose in general; but it is unnecessary here because it is already being done.

There is plenty of money in FEMA's account to replace the election equipment. They are already doing it. So I don't see the need for us to pass this sort of an amendment and set a precedent, Mr. Chairman, for earmarking out of the Disaster Relief Fund for somebody's whim on the floor. We have passed the Stafford Act. That is what governs how FEMA monies are being spent. This would be a violation, in my judgment, of the principle of the Stafford Act.

FEMA is in the process of helping remove debris from the Gulf Coast. Roads are still closed in the area. As has been described innumerable times, it is an absolute mess down there. And while election equipment is important, it is just simply, in my judgment, premature to purchase this equipment, first of all, when there are no structures in place to house the equipment and no roads open to deliver it. When the time is right, FEMA has both the authority and the money to assist with the upcoming election and the equipment requirements. There is simply no need for this amendment and no need to earmark out of disaster funds.

Including the funds in this bill, we will have given $44.5 billion to the Disaster Relief Fund in supplemental appropriations during 2005 and 2006. That is a huge sum. But it reflects the commitment of this body to helping rebuild the devastated Gulf Coast region.

Now is the time for sound management of this money. Arbitrarily carving out specific amounts from the disaster fund would open a floodgate seemingly without end for many, many needs.

We recognize and support the need to repair election facilities. It is critical that we allow those affected by Hurricane Katrina to participate in the most important civic duty, and that is voting. With this bill, the disaster relief monies involved in the bill are in place to do just that and are being spent for that purpose already. So I would urge a rejection of this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Chair regrettably informs the gentlewoman from California that her time has expired.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word, and I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. MILLENDER-McDONALD. Mr. Chairman, as much as I hate to disagree with the gentleman from Kentucky, this is not an earmark, nor has FEMA submitted the requisite amount of money that is required for the election infrastructure. They have approved $1 million, but they have given no money; and, in fact, the Secretaries of State have indicated that FEMA has refused and denied them any money at all. So what I am simply asking is that given that this is an emergency to take care of the hurricanes, that we provide the funding for that infrastructure to be placed.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I urge a "no" vote, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-McDONALD).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Ms. MILLENDER-McDONALD. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. JINDAL

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. JINDAL:
Page 59, line 1, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $2,000,000)".

Page 49, line 16, after the dollar amount insert the following: "(increased by $2,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JINDAL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, in the days and weeks after first Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita, it became very clear that the lack of communications was one of the biggest obstacles to a rapid recovery and a rapid rescue effort in the face of these awful disasters.

The purpose of the amendment that I offer today is to use $2 million for the Department of Defense's Technical Support Working Group to deploy in hurricane-affected States existing technology that provides wireless, interoperable, mobile, encrypted broadband communications for first responders, National Guard, Federal response personnel in the case of future disasters or in the case of the temporary absence of communications.

FEMA has already been tasked with identifying and providing existing commercially available capabilities in time to provide responders with this capability before the next hurricane season begins. The capability exists and needs to be rapidly deployed.

The purpose for my amendment is to use $2 million for the working group to deploy in these areas existing technology.

Federal, State, and local law enforcement and first responder agencies were limited in their ability to respond to Hurricane Katrina because they couldn't communicate. The House Select Committee on Katrina identified this as a key failure at all levels. The Select Committee's recommendation states in part that the Department of Homeland Security should establish and maintain a deployable communications capability to quickly gain and retain situational awareness when responding to catastrophic incidents.

My amendment takes a step in the right direction and, importantly, does so before the next hurricane season, which starts June 1. We must provide responders with the capability to talk across agencies, within their agency when customary communications systems like phones are disrupted or destroyed.

This is not, obviously, a cure-all approach to solve our Nation's interoperable problems; but it is one solution that provides a stopgap system that allows responders to talk to each other using their existing hardware from mobile or fixed locations when existing systems aren't available.

FEMA has already been tasked with this responsibility before the next hurricane season. The capability exists and needs to be rapidly deployed.

This amendment does not require additional Federal dollars. It simply provides $2 million and directs the Department of Defense and its technical support working group to work with FEMA using funds Congress has already planned to provide FEMA to identify and deploy the capability.

From a personal perspective, I can state, being on the ground in the days and weeks after Katrina and Rita, this was one of the biggest gaps in our Federal, State and local response, the inability to have interoperable communications.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JINDAL. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

□ 1330

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, it is obvious that he has put a lot of time and effort into this amendment. The committee has reviewed the amendment thoroughly, and we will accept the amendment.

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BASS). Does anybody seek time in opposition to the amendment?

If not, the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JINDAL).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. JINDAL

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. JINDAL:

Page 59, line 1, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $50,000,000)".

Page 68, line 16, after the dollar amount insert the following: "(increased by $50,000,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JINDAL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, I intend to offer and withdraw this amendment.

The purpose of my amendment is to restore the administration's request to rebuild New Orleans' VA Medical Center. I do intend to withdraw this amendment pursuant to a colloquy with my colleagues. I want to, first of all, state the rationale for my amendment in the first place.

The VA Medical Center suffered significant damage after the hurricane. It is a 354-bed acute care facility. It provides health care to more than 220,000 veterans who live in a 23-parish region served by this medical center. It is absolutely critical to get this hospital rebuilt as quickly as possible to continue serving these thousands of veterans, our men and women who have served us so proudly in uniform.

Ironically, it was not the hurricane that did the majority of damage to the VA center. Instead, the facility actually initially weathered the hurricane with minimal damage. However, the breach of the levees days later flooded the entire area around the medical center. Let me correct myself, I am sorry, Mr. Chairman.

It was the breach of the levees, not days later, it was the breach of the levees caused by the failure of design and construction. It was the breach of the levees that flooded the entire area around the medical center, the facility's first floor basement and sub-basement. Those floors housed the facility's major electrical, mechanical and dietetics equipment. Of the 1,819 VA employees in New Orleans, 40 percent lost their homes.

Despite this destruction, despite the obstacles, the VA was one of the few bright lights to shine through the devastation that hit the region. Advanced planning, a well-known electronic medical system helped to ensure that VA could coordinate and move thousands of staff and patients to facilities across the United States without a single loss of life attributed to the lack of medical attention.

In addition, VA staff members volunteered thousands of hours of their time to assist veterans and other citizens in the affected communities to ensure that the aftermath of this storm and the response could go as smoothly as possible.

Right now, the current situation is that thousands of veterans are being forced to drive a long distance or do without the health care they need. The President initially requested over $600 million to rebuild the medical center in addition to the previous $75 million that was included in the December supplemental for planning and land acquisition.

This is an important facility for the VA. I also want to commend the VA for working together with LSU, which operates the city's Charity Hospital. They have announced an intent to try to work together to construct a shared facility, so the new hospital would have the economies of scale, for example, sharing potentially laundries and other facilities with the State hospital that will also need to be rehabilitated, maybe even rebuilt before it reopens. It is crucial to restore this funding; it is crucial that we get this hospital open as quickly as possible.

I do intend to yield to one of my colleagues. It is my understanding in working with the committee, that they will work with me to ensure that the VA does have the funds they need to reopen this facility in its entirety. I think there was some discussion about the adequacy of the funds, and there was some analysis of how much funds would actually be needed to reopen this facility.

I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman's concern for the construction of the new veterans hospital in New Orleans. I would like to state, also, that I congratulate him and thank him for the leadership that he has provided to the great city and the great people of New Orleans. He has been a consistent and strong supporter.

We will continue to work on this issue, and I will work with the gentleman and all other interested parties to ensure that all necessary funding is available to complete the hospital on schedule.

Mr. JINDAL. I want to thank my colleague and thank the committee. With this agreement, I am willing to withdraw this amendment.

My understanding was there was some confusion in the initial estimates about the actual cost of constructing a parking garage that might have caused an inflated estimate.

I do thank my colleagues for being willing to work with me to make sure this facility is reconstructed as quickly as possible so the veterans can get the health care they deserve. I thank my colleagues. I thank the Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. JINDAL

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. JINDAL:

Under the heading "DISASTER RELIEF" in chapter 4 of title II, insert after the dollar amount on page 59, line 1, the following: "(reduced by $142,271,000)".

Under the heading "MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY NATIONAL GUARD" in chapter 6 of title II, insert after the dollar amount on page 66, line 12, the following: "(increased by $142,271,000)".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JINDAL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JINDAL. Mr. Chairman, I again intend to offer and then withdraw this amendment pursuant to a colloquy with my colleagues.

The purpose of this amendment, but before I do that, I want to explain the rationale and importance of this amendment. I have offered an amendment to provide funding requested in the amount of $142 million to allow the reconstruction of the National Guard facilities in New Orleans, Louisiana. Replacement of these facilities are absolutely critical for the function of the Louisiana Army National Guard.

Hurricane Katrina severely damaged these facilities, so that they must be replaced. These units are now currently in temporary interim facilities and have less than half the required training area and storage facilities. These makeshift facilities are overcrowded and disjointed in terms of the capacities they offer. Proper facilities need to be constructed immediately to prevent further deterioration of the equipment.

On August 29, 2005, the Jackson Barracks, in particular, suffered massive flooding from Hurricane Katrina. Several weeks later, after the floodwaters had subsided from the hurricane, the readiness centers were again flooded from Hurricane Rita. Together these two hurricanes caused extreme catastrophic damage to the readiness centers that housed the Joint Force Headquarters and the 1/141 Field Artillery Battalion. Portions of each facility were completely destroyed, suffering from building collapses, collapses as a result of the storm's wind, rains and floodwaters.

The damage inflicted upon the readiness center and all other facilities on the Jackson Barracks has rendered them completely useless. The 512 soldiers of the Field Artillery Battalion and the 216 soldiers of the Joint Forces Headquarters are now operating out of small corner spaces in numerous buildings spread across the State of Louisiana until interim facilities can be provided for these units affected by these hurricanes.

These interim facilities should be ready for use in a few short months. However, they will be nothing close to what is authorized or required to provide for mission ready combat units of the United States Army. The Field Artillery Battalion will have less than a quarter of its authorized square feet required for unit training assemblies and a readiness center for a unit of its size. This is the space needed to provide the facilities needed for the unit to meet its wartime training requirements.

The unit will share this space with another unit as well. Not only will it have a quarter of the space, it will be sharing the space with another unit. This heavily cramped facility, though, we are grateful for this in the aftermath of the storm, will hardly satisfy the long-term mission capability for the two units.

Over time, readiness levels to meet training requirements, retention and recruiting will all suffer greatly. Moreover space required to store unit equipment is insufficient. These same issues have also plagued the Joint Force Headquarters.

The post-hurricane plan for the Joint Force Headquarters has resulted in splitting the headquarters into several locations. This strategy is important for recovery of the State. However, facilities for the operation of the headquarters are not available to consolidate the organization at each location. These long-term operations will not be acceptable as this will result in critical management issues for the Joint Headquarters mission providing command and control to the Louisiana National Guard. This will result in poor oversight provided by the headquarters which could significantly affect the readiness for the National Guard.

My amendment seeks to restore the administration's request to rebuild these facilities in New Orleans. Replacement of these facilities should be provided to sustain the readiness posture of the Louisiana Army National Guard. Hurricane Katrina has severely damaged the facilities and these facilities must be replaced, and certainly, we need to send a signal to the Guard that we want to help them increase their readiness even before next hurricane season.

Many of my colleagues have done me the honor and privilege of coming to my state on CODELs to see the damage. Many of you have landed at Jackson Barracks and been accompanied by Louisiana Army National Guard members on your tours. Many of you have seen the heroic footage of what they did in the aftermath of the storm to rescue people out of the water. Many of you are very aware of their extreme sacrifice serving us overseas in Iraq.

Mr. Chairman, I want to enter into a colloquy with my colleagues. My understanding is the committee will work with me once information is provided from the Louisiana Army National Guard to make sure that these facilities are indeed rebuilt and repaired.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JINDAL. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I appreciate his great concern for the National Guard facilities in the City of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana. We will continue to work on this issue as we move towards conference, and I am convinced we can resolve all the questions as we complete the work in the conference.

Mr. JINDAL. I want to thank the gentleman and my colleagues. Based on their commitment to work with me to make sure we do provide the funding to rebuild the facilities, my understanding is there are some questions that need to be answered and some additional information that needs to be obtained, but once that information is obtained, that we are confident we can do that before conference.

Based on that, I will seek unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment. Before I do that, I want to thank my colleagues on the committee for working with me on each of my three amendments.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GINGREY

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GINGREY:

Page 62, beginning on line 1, strike lines 1 through 11 (relating to National Park Service Historic Preservation Fund).

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY) and a Member opposed will each control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in an attempt to rein in what some might see as the most modest of items. Certainly the $3 million my amendment would strike is a minute fraction of the $19.1 billion we are going to spend in this emergency supplemental package on Katrina relief. Specifically, my amendment strikes the $3 million for the National Historic Preservation Fund.

It is my understanding, Mr. Speaker, that the money would be used for section 106 reviews. These reviews are required to assess effects of certain undertakings on historic properties by activities of the Federal agencies like the Department of Homeland Security and FEMA.

Some may ask, why strike this particular program from the bill? The answer is not because I don't like the program or even that the money won't be needed at some point down the line. Rather, I am offering this amendment today to make the point that if we are passing an emergency supplemental, then we should only be including emergency money.

If we need to initiate a project on or near an historic property during a time of emergency, shouldn't the government bureaucracy just get out of the way and waive section 106 reviews, thus saving critical time and money for the vital life needs of those who are and have been affected by Hurricane Katrina?

Mr. Chairman, I will support the overall legislation because I understand the emergency needs of our troops. It was only days ago that I was in Iraq visiting troops and hearing of their needs to ensure continued success in this war on terror. And although I do not believe the two should be coupled together in this particular package, as I previously said, I have personally been to Louisiana twice and I know we are in an emergency situation throughout the gulf coast. They do need further relief.

My point here today is that we must focus our resources on the true needs of the region, not on a government review program that should be waived anyway. When we have successfully moved beyond this immediate situation, then we can reinstate section 106 requirements for the affected gulf coast States.

I ask my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is the gentleman from North Carolina opposed to the amendment?

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment for three reasons. First of all, some $9.5 billion of the $35 billion that has been appropriated will go to food, housing and other critical needs. So we have met those criteria as much as possible.

Secondly, as the gentleman said, this is required by section 106 of the National Historical Preservation Act. We don't want to get into amending and trying to put that in the middle of this supplemental. I would suggest if the gentleman wants to take that up at a later time, we could do that.

Thirdly, it is needed because an $18 billion tourist industry is involved here, and getting the assessment of these national historical preserved sites is going to be the first step in trying to get back that $18 billion.

Those are three reasons I would oppose this amendment. I urge a "no" vote.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

The amendment was rejected.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. If there are no other amendments to title II, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS AND TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS

SEC. 3001. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 3002. Notwithstanding subsection (b) of section 102 of title I of division B of Public Law 109-148 (119 Stat. 2748), the Secretary of Agriculture may provide financial and technical assistance in carrying out such section in an amount up to 100 percent Federal share, as provided in regulations implementing the emergency watershed protection program: Provided, That the amount provided under this heading is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

SEC. 3003. Funds appropriated pursuant to this Act, or made available by the transfer of funds in or pursuant to this Act, for intelligence activities are deemed to be specifically authorized by the Congress for purposes of section 504 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 414).

(INCLUDING RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

SEC. 3004. (a) RESCISSION.—Of the unobligated balances available for "Immigration and Customs Enforcement—Automation Modernization", $43,620,000 are rescinded.

(b) APPROPRIATION.—For an additional amount for "United States Secret Service—Salaries and Expenses" for critical investigative and protective operations, $43,620,000: Provided, That none of the funds appropriated in this section or under the heading United States Secret Service "Salaries and Expenses" in any other Act may be used to support the position of the Chief Financial Officer until the Committees on Appropriations receive: (1) a comprehensive workload re-balancing report that includes funding and position requirements for current investigative and protective operations; (2) a comprehensive analysis of the methodology used to estimate current workloads and develop annual operating budgets; and (3) a budget formulation model for National Special Security Events: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this section may be obligated until the Committees on Appropriations receive a revised Program, Project and Activity schedule based on current investigative and protective workload requirements, including a comprehensive analysis of the methodology used to estimate those requirements.

SEC. 3005. (a) The matter under the heading "Tenant-Based Rental Assistance" in chapter 9 of title I of division B of Public Law 109-148 is amended—

(1) in the first proviso, by striking "or the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (Public Law 100-77)" and inserting "the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act, section 221(d)(3), 221(d)(5), or 236 of the National Housing Act, or section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965"; and

(2) in the second proviso, by inserting " , except that paragraph (7)(A) of such section shall not apply" after "1937".

(b) The provisions of this section are designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

SEC. 3006. Notwithstanding 49 U.S.C. 5336, any funds remaining available under Federal Transit Administration grant numbers NY-

03-345-00, NY-03-0325-00, NY-03-0405, NY-90-X398-00, NY-90-X373-00, NY-90-X418-00, NY-90-X465-00 together with an amount not to exceed $19,200,000 in urbanized area formula funds that were allocated by the New York Metropolitan Transportation Council to the New York City Department of Transportation as a designated recipient under 49 U.S.C. 5307 may be made available to the New York Metropolitan Transportation Authority for eligible capital projects authorized under 49 U.S.C. 5307 and 5309.

SEC. 3007. The referenced statement of the managers under the heading "Community Development Fund" in title II of division I of Public Law 108-447 is deemed to be amended—

(1) with respect to item number 536, by striking "an economic development planning study" and inserting "the Main Street Revitalization Project"; and

(2) with respect to item number 444, by striking "City of St. Petersburg, Florida for facilities construction and renovation for the Mid-Pinellas Science Center" and inserting "St. Petersburg College, City of Seminole, Florida for the development of a Science and Nature Park at St. Petersburg College".

SEC. 3008. (a) The second paragraph under the heading "Community Development Fund" in title III of division A of Public Law 109-115 is amended by striking "statement of managers accompanying this Act" and inserting "statement of managers correction for H.R. 3058 relating to the Economic Development Initiative submitted to the House of Representatives by the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the House on November 18, 2005, and printed in the House section of the Congressional Record on such date".

(b) Section 5023 of title V of division B of Public Law 109-148 is amended by striking "in title III of Public Law 109-115 (as in effect pursuant to H. Con. Res. 308, 109th Congress)" and inserting "in title III of division A of Public Law 109-115".

(c) Each amendment made by this section shall apply as if included in the amended public law on the date of its enactment.

SEC. 3009. The statement of managers correction referenced in the second paragraph under the heading "Community Development Fund" in title III of division A of Public Law 109-115 is deemed to be amended—

(1) with respect to item number 714, by striking "construction of a senior center;" and inserting "renovation and buildout of a multipurpose center;";

(2) with respect to item number 850, by striking "City of Lancaster, Pennsylvania" and inserting "in Pennsylvania"; and

(3) with respect to item number 925, by striking "Greenwood Partnership Alliance, South Carolina for the renovation of Old Federal Courthouse;" and inserting "City of Greenwood, South Carolina for the Emerald Triangle Project;".

SEC. 3010. Section 9001 of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking "for a 1-time only obligation and expenditure";

(2) in subsection (a)(2)—

(A) by striking "for fiscal year 2007"; and

(B) by inserting before the period at the end the following: " , to remain available until September 30, 2007"; and

(3) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

"(b) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—The amount provided under subsection (a)(2) is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006."

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CONAWAY

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BASS). The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CONAWAY:

Page 81, beginning on line 21, strike section 3010 (relating to LIHEAP).

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, the amendment I have is pretty simple. It would strike section 3010 in its entirety. 3010 deals with the acceleration of the payments on LIHEAP from fiscal year 2007 into fiscal year 2006 by some $750 million.

The basis of this being in there has not been laid. This is not an emergency, certainly. We have had one of the mildest winters that we have had in a long, long time. I have also got it on relatively good authority, scientific authority, that we will have a winter in 2007, that this money was originally set up to supplement LIHEAP funding in that year.

This funding came about as a result of some very difficult work that was done on the Deficit Reduction Act, and offsets were put in place to allow for this spending in 2007. All of the hard work that went into it, all of the groundwork that was laid to convince us that this was needed for 2007 would be inaccurate, I guess, if we were, in fact, to pass this amendment, because that Deficit Reduction Act was passed in early February.

So it has been a little more than a month since the work was done that this House collectively said this $750 million should be spent in 2007 for the LIHEAP program.

I know that there will be those who say, well, LIHEAP has been authorized at much, much higher levels than we have it and than it has ever been appropriated at; but we have not seen any evidence that the appropriation levels that we have had in the past were inadequate, that there has been evidence shown that there has been needless suffering going on as a result of this funding being less than what was authorized.

I would also remind my colleagues that we have a very disjointed national policy in that we restrict drilling in areas where we know there is crude oil and natural gas, the basis for most of the energy costs that we are talking about helping low-income with, we restrict that drilling.

And it does not take a great economist to understand that if the supply of a commodity is greater than the demand that the price will go down. So it seems wrong-headed on one hand to have a subsidy program for our energy costs and then at the same time restrict the drilling for that commodity to continue to drive that price up, which then means you need more subsidies to support the higher and higher prices.

So my amendment is pretty straight forward. It strikes this section in its entirety. And I would encourage my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, what is behind this amendment is very simple. The gentleman would like to hold the low-income heating assistance funding in this bill hostage to drilling in ANWR. He cannot do that under the rules of the House; and so from his standpoint, the next best thing is to eliminate low-income heating assistance in general.

I was one of the three original authors of the low-income heating assistance program, along with Silvio Conte, Republican from Massachusetts, and Ed Muskie in the Senate. And I think I know something about this program and why this amendment is destructive.

Let me explain what happened last year. The House-passed version of the budget reconciliation bill included $1 billion for LIHEAP to be available in fiscal 2006. But just before the reconciliation conference was completed, the defense appropriations conference report was filed, and that contained an additional $2 billion for LIHEAP as part of the sweetener for ANWR oil leasing provisions.

Not wanting to duplicate the ANWR funds, the reconciliation conferees shifted their addition to fiscal 2007. Subsequent to that, however, the entire ANWR package, including the $2 billion appropriated for LIHEAP, was dropped out of the defense appropriations conference report.

The end result was no additional funds for LIHEAP in 2006, despite escalating heating oil and natural gas prices. The committee amendment simply tries to move the money back to where it was originally supposed to go, which was in this fiscal year. The problem, however, is that the language, even in the committee amendment, does not guarantee that that money will be spent this year; it only allows it to be.

Let me point out the gentleman says he does not think this is an emergency. The gentleman makes $160,000 a year. So does everybody in this Chamber. It is not an emergency to us. We do not have to worry about heating our houses. But there are an awful lot of people who do. Only 16 percent of the people who are eligible by income for low-income heating assistance last year got some help.

And the fact is that the average price for home heating oil has more than doubled since 2001 and 2002, yet LIHEAP has increased only 20 percent since that time. Average prices for natural gas are up 31 percent. Average prices for home heating oil are up 25 percent, for propane up 18 percent, just from one winter to another.

Over 3 years' time they are much, much steeper. So I would suggest that the family that was able to get through the winter without help when home heating oil was selling for $1.16 a gallon, as it was 4 years ago, is going to have a little more trouble coping when heating oil reaches $2.40 a gallon, the average price now.

So I would suggest that to eliminate this funding is unadvisable. I am myself unhappy with the provision in the committee bill, because unlike the original Obey amendment which was offered in committee, this does not even require the funding be provided this year; but at least it allows that funding to be spent in this year or next.

And I think that that is better than nothing. I think the gentleman's amendment, while I respect him and respect certainly his right to offer it, I think that the amendment itself is misguided and ought to be defeated.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I certainly have a great deal of respect for my colleague on the other side of the aisle, but I think it is a bit misplaced to compare the salaries which you and I make, which I think is $165,000 a year, to every malady known to man. Because if we are going to do that, there is not enough money in the Federal Treasury to make that happen.

So I would disagree that that is a very good analogy. We will also consider in this Chamber in a little while a suspension bill that will add a billion dollars in funding to LIHEAP. In fair disclosure, I intend to oppose that as well. But if for no other reason, in order to simplify the world and make it easier on the conferees, my amendment would strike this section out of the bill so that when we go to conference with it, the $1 billion that will be in the suspension bill, I suspect it will get approved, and this $750 million, there would be no confusion that this $750 million is not tacked on top of the $1 billion.

I think the analysis has not been made. The price has gone up less than 50 percent and this funding would increase support by well over 100 percent, from a billion to a billion. So I want to respectfully disagree with my colleague and ask my colleagues to support this amendment to strike this section from the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, let me simply suggest that the fact is that there are many people in this country who have to choose between heating their homes and eating. I think we ought to make their life just a little bit easier.

I yield to the gentleman from New Hampshire.

Mr. BRADLEY of New Hampshire. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman yielding me time.

If the Snowe language in the bill, the other suspension bill passes this afternoon, then by all means strike this in a committee of conference. But pending that, those of us from cold-weather States and warm-weather States need this fuel assistance. I salute Mr. OBEY for working to make sure it is included, at least to the extent that it is. In the conference report, if the Snowe language passes today, then the amendment that is proposed could be stripped out in conference, and certainly I would support that.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, in the interests of redundancy, I would urge that we defeat the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas will be postponed.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, we have moved past the point in the bill where the Flake amendment was to be offered, which would have attempted to strike an earmark that was contained in last year's bill for which a correction is found in this year's bill.

I am pleased that amendment was not offered. But I would like to take just a moment to urge every Member of this House to think before they leap on the issue of giving the President the authority for what is, in effect, an item veto.

I find it mindboggling that there are some people in this Chamber who believe that the main institutional problem that we have in this Congress is that the President has insufficient power vis-a-vis the Congress of the United States.

We have a President who has taken us to war on the basis of manipulated and selected intelligence. We have an administration under whom persons have been tortured, and we are told that more than 100 persons in captivity have died. We have an administration that eavesdrops on American citizens without a court order.

And then we say that the problem is that the President has too little power? I would suggest quite the contrary. If any of you are interested in the line item veto, I would urge you to for a moment forget who is in the White House now and think what might have happened under Lyndon Johnson.

This was a President of my own party, a President who lied to this Congress about the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. Gaylord Nelson, from my home State, was one of the first three people in the Senate to vote against the first appropriation for Vietnam.

Can you imagine what Lyndon Johnson would have done to Gaylord Nelson if he had had any version of the item veto at his disposal? He would have put his arm around Gaylord. He would have said, "Gaylord, you support that war or you are not going to get your wild rivers designation. You support that war or you are not going to get this earmark for the forest service. You support that war or you are not going to get anything that you want in the budget."

□ 1400

And I can imagine, I can imagine the power that Johnson would have had using that kind of device. I would also suggest I believe that many, many reforms that are adopted in politics wind up being counterintuitive. And I would suggest, for instance, that an item veto could, in fact, significantly raise the cost of doing business in government affairs because Presidents will dangle projects in front of Members if they are "good," "good" being defined by the White House. And that could, in fact, enhance the White House's ability to pass questionable legislation by dangling goodies in front of Members and threatening to cut them if they did not.

So I think my record is clear on earmarks. This Congress provided many fewer earmarks when I was chairman of the Appropriations Committee than it has in any year since that time. But having said that, I think it is important, in whatever choices we make about earmarks, to not inadvertently in that process enhance the power of the executive branch of government so that they are even more strong than they are today, vis-a-vis the Congress of the United States.

In the last analysis, there is only one check on untrammelled executive power, and that check is the Congress of the United States. And I would urge Members of this House, regardless of party, not to weaken that check. That check is not just important to the Congress. It is important to the American people.

Not in the 36 years that I have served here, has any President ever seen any Congress change that President's spending request by more than 3 percent. And it is that 3 percent difference that makes a difference between having a President and having a king.

With all due respect, I think we ought to make certain we continue to have a democracy, not an unofficial monarchy, and I believe that an item veto would contribute to destroying that very delicate balance of power between the two branches, and give even more power to the executive branch which in so many ways is demonstrating runaway executive power right now.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOLEY). The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 3011. (a) None of the funds made available in this Act or any other Act may be used to take any action under section 721 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2170) or any other provision of law to approve or otherwise allow the acquisition of any leases, contracts, rights, or other obligations of P&O Ports by Dubai Ports World or any other legal entity affiliated with or controlled by Dubai Ports World.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law or any prior action or decision by or on behalf of the President under section 721 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2170), the acquisition of any leases, contracts, rights, or other obligations of P&O Ports by Dubai Ports World or any other legal entity affiliated with or controlled by Dubai Ports World is hereby prohibited and shall have no effect.

(c) The limitation in subsection (a) and the prohibition in subsection (b) apply with respect to the acquisition of any leases, contracts, rights, or other obligations on or after January 1, 2006.

(d) In this section:

(1) The term "P&O Ports" means P&O Ports, North America, a United States subsidiary of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, a company that is a national of the United Kingdom.

(2) The term "Dubai Ports World" means Dubai Ports World, a company that is partly owned and controlled by the Government of the United Arab Emirates.

SEC. 3012. (a) None of the funds appropriated in Public Law 109-102 or any prior Act making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing and related programs may be obligated or expended for assistance to the Palestinian Authority or a successor entity until the Secretary of State certifies to the Committees on Appropriations that such entity has demonstrated its commitment to the principles of non-violence, the recognition of Israel, and the acceptance of previous agreements and obligations, including the Roadmap.

(b) None of the funds appropriated under the heading "Economic Support Fund" in Public Law 109-102 or any prior Act making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing and related programs may be obligated or expended for assistance to the West Bank and Gaza until the Secretary of State reviews the current assistance program, consults with the Committees on Appropriations, and submits a revised plan for such assistance: Provided, That such plan shall be submitted not later than April 30, 2006, and shall contain specific and appropriate steps to ensure that United States assistance is not provided to or through any individual, private or government entity, or educational institution that the Secretary knows or has reason to believe advocates, plans, sponsors, engages in, or has engaged in, terrorist activity.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KENNEDY OF MINNESOTA

Mr. KENNEDY of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KENNEDY of Minnesota:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

Sec. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used to allow entry onto the grounds of any Department of Defense installation or cemetery or Department of Veterans Affairs cemetery for the purpose of a demonstration in connection with a funeral or memorial service or ceremony for a deceased member of the Armed Forces.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. KENNEDY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. KENNEDY of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, let me begin by telling the Members why am I on the floor today.

Less than a month ago, the body of Corporal Andrew Kemple, who was killed while fighting for our freedom in Iraq, was laid to rest during a ceremony at the Zion Lutheran Church in Anoka, Minnesota, in my congressional district.

However, instead of the funeral Corporal Kemple deserved, one where his family and friends were able to share fond memories of their time with him and where his faithful service to this country could be honored, there was, instead, a vile and hateful display. Funeral protesters, and I use that term loosely, chanted vile slogans like "God hates America" and "God loves IEDs" during Corporal Kemple's funeral ceremony for more than an hour.

As my colleagues know too well, the improvised explosive device, or IED, has been a favored tool of the terrorists in Iraq and has been responsible for much death and injury for our troops.

Mr. Chairman, words like "reprehensible" and "disgusting" do not adequately describe these slogans or this stunt on this solemn and sacred occasion. Unfortunately, this shameful incident in my district is not an isolated one. This scene has been repeated again and again at the funerals of fallen servicemen and women across the country. We must and can stop it.

That is why I rise today to offer an amendment that will ensure that none of the funds in this supplemental can be used to approve demonstrations at Department of Defense or Department of Veteran Affairs cemeteries during a funeral or memorial service for a member of the United States Armed Forces.

My amendment would ensure that our men and women who have given what Lincoln called "the last full measure of devotion" receive the honors they are due.

My colleagues may have heard of efforts in the States to preserve the sanctity of military funerals. As many as 17 have been reported to be working to preserve the solemnity of this occasion. This fact does not relieve Congress of its duty to take action on Federal lands.

This amendment would be a meaningful first step to preserve a measure of decency for grieving families of fallen soldiers right now while Congress considers legislation introduced by my friend Mike Rogers to address the problem long term. Our men and women in uniform are doing their duty in the war on terror and we must do ours.

Mr. Chairman, though I believe my colleagues are being denied an important opportunity on account of this procedural matter, I ask to withdraw my amendment and I urge all Members to support the forthcoming legislation that my good friend, MIKE ROGERS, is about to introduce that provides a lasting solution to this outrage.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BERRY

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BERRY:

At the end of the bill before the short title, insert the following:

SEC. _____. EXTENDED PERIOD OF MEDICARE OPEN ENROLLMENT DURING ALL OF 2006 WITHOUT LATE ENROLLMENT PENALTY.

Section 1851(e)(3)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-21(e)(3)(B)) is amended—

(1) in clause (iii), by striking "May 15, 2006" and inserting "December 31, 2006"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new sentence:

"An individual making an election during the period beginning on November 15, 2006, and ending on December 15, 2006, shall specify whether the election is to be effective with respect to 2006 or with respect to 2007 (or both)."

SEC. _____. ONE-TIME CHANGE OF PLAN ENROLLMENT FOR MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT DURING ALL OF 2006.

(a) APPLICATION TO MA-PD PLANS.—Section 1851(e) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-21(e)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2)(B)—

(A) in the heading, by striking "FOR FIRST 6 MONTHS";

(B) in clause (i)—

(i) by striking "the first 6 months of 2006" and inserting "2006"; and

(ii) by striking "the first 6 months during 2006" and inserting "2006";

(C) in clause (ii), by inserting "(other than during 2006)" after "paragraph (3)"; and

(D) in clause (iii), by striking "2006" and inserting "2007"; and

(2) in paragraph (4), by striking "2006" and inserting "2007" each place it appears.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT TO PART D.—Section 1860D-1(b)(1)(B)(iii) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-101(b)(1)(B)(iii)) is amended by striking "subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (2)" and inserting "paragraph (2)(C)".

SEC. _____. ESTABLISHMENT OF MEDICARE OPERATED PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN OPTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart 2 of part D of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after section 1860D-11 (42 U.S.C. 1395w-111) the following new section:

"MEDICARE OPERATED PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN OPTION

"SEC. 1860D-11A. (a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, for each year (beginning with 2007), in addition to any plans offered under section 1860D-11, the Secretary shall offer one or more medicare operated prescription drug plans (as defined in subsection (c)) with a service area that consists of the entire United States and shall enter into negotiations with pharmaceutical manufacturers to reduce the purchase cost of covered part D drugs for eligible part D individuals in accordance with subsection (b).

"(b) NEGOTIATIONS.—Notwithstanding section 1860D-11(i), for purposes of offering a medicare operated prescription drug plan under this section, the Secretary shall negotiate with pharmaceutical manufacturers with respect to the purchase price of covered part D drugs and shall encourage the use of more affordable therapeutic equivalents to the extent such practices do not override medical necessity as determined by the prescribing physician. To the extent practicable and consistent with the previous sentence, the Secretary shall implement strategies similar to those used by other Federal purchasers of prescription drugs, and other strategies, to reduce the purchase cost of covered part D drugs.

"(c) MEDICARE OPERATED PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN DEFINED.—For purposes of this part, the term 'medicare operated prescription drug plan' means a prescription drug plan that offers qualified prescription drug coverage and access to negotiated prices described in section 1860D-2(a)(1)(A). Such a plan may offer supplemental prescription drug coverage in the same manner as other qualified prescription drug coverage offered by other prescription drug plans.

"(d) MONTHLY BENEFICIARY PREMIUM.—

"(1) QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—The monthly beneficiary premium for qualified prescription drug coverage and access to negotiated prices described in section 1860D-2(a)(1)(A) to be charged under a medicare operated prescription drug plan shall be uniform nationally. Such premium for months in a year shall be based on the average monthly per capita actuarial cost of offering the medicare operated prescription drug plan for the year involved, including administrative expenses.

"(2) SUPPLEMENTAL PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—Insofar as a medicare operated prescription drug plan offers supplemental prescription drug coverage, the Secretary may adjust the amount of the premium charged under paragraph (1).”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 1860D-3(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-103(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(4) AVAILABILITY OF THE MEDICARE OPERATED PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A medicare operated prescription drug plan (as defined in section 1860D-11A(c)) shall be offered nationally in accordance with section 1860D-11A.

“(B) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER PLANS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), a medicare operated prescription drug plan shall be offered in addition to any qualifying plan or fallback prescription drug plan offered in a PDP region and shall not be considered to be such a plan purposes of meeting the requirements of this subsection.

“(ii) DESIGNATION AS A FALLBACK PLAN.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, the Secretary may designate the medicare operated prescription drug plan as the fallback prescription drug plan for any fallback service area (as defined in section 1860D-11(g)(3)) determined to be appropriate by the Secretary.”

(2) Section 1860D-13(c)(3) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-113(c)(3)) is amended—

(A) in the heading, by inserting “and medicare operated prescription drug plans” after “Fallback plans”; and

(B) by inserting “or a medicare operated prescription drug plan” after “a fallback prescription drug plan”.

(3) Section 1860D-16(b)(1) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-116(b)(1)) is amended—

(A) in subparagraph (C), by striking “and” after the semicolon at the end;

(B) in subparagraph (D), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”; and

“(E) payments for expenses incurred with respect to the operation of medicare operated prescription drug plans under section 1860D-11A.”

(4) Section 1860D-41(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-151(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(19) MEDICARE OPERATED PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN.—The term ‘medicare operated prescription drug plan’ has the meaning given such term in section 1860D-11A(c).”

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman’s amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman reserves a point of order.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arkansas.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, we have a crisis in this country and it needs to be dealt with on this bill. This amendment would provide for a real Medicare prescription drug benefit and save the Nation’s taxpayers a minimum of $40 billion a year in the process. It would provide for continuous open enrollment for all of 2006 and lay any late enrollment penalties until 2007.

Currently, if a beneficiary misses the May 15, 2006 deadline, they will not have the ability to enroll again until November 15 of 2006. This means they will automatically be subjected to a 7 percent minimum penalty for the rest of their lives. This amendment would allow beneficiaries the option of changing plans once in 2006 if they have made a poor choice, and there is no possible way that they could have known it was a poor choice when they made it.

It would create a drug plan administered and run by Medicare. It would require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate for drug prices on behalf of the American people of our seniors that are enrolled in the plan, and they are the greatest generation. They built the greatest Nation in the history of the world and they deserve better than what they are getting.

This would not do away with any of the existing plans. It would just provide a much better option. It would provide lower prices and it would provide these prices that at no cost to the government.

Our rural pharmacies are going broke because of this crazy Medicare part D bill that we have forced on our seniors and on our pharmacists. It is unfair. It is absolutely overpowering to know that our own government did this to good people. This amendment will fix that. And our seniors are still not getting the medicine that they need and deserve to stay alive, stay healthy and have a decent lifestyle.

Once again by independent sources it has been verified that this amendment, if only half the eligible people signed up, it would save the taxpayers $40 billion. If all of them were part of this plan, it would save $100 billion a year, and they would still get their medicine cheaper than what they are paying for it right now. It only makes sense that we do this for the greatest generation and for those wonderful seniors that thought they were going to get treated a whole lot better by their own government.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I must say that my good friend, perhaps, has a prescription for success here, but I must say I must make my point of order.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, did the gentleman rise to make his point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Yes.

Mr. OBEY. Would the gentleman withhold temporarily?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I certainly will.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California reserves his point of order.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, as the gentleman from Arkansas says, we have hundreds of thousands of seniors who are faced with absolute confusion on this prescription drug bill. What we are trying to do is help them sort through some of the ridiculous choices they are being forced to make.

What we are trying to do is to say that we will move the sign up deadline back to the end of the year to give them more time to sort out which plan best fits their needs. In my State, for instance, there are over 40 plans being offered to seniors.

Secondly, we are saying give those seniors one opportunity to change a plan after May. Right now, if they do not make a change before May, they are stuck. Give them an opportunity to change once after May if they discover they have made the wrong choices in plans.

Why are we offering this on the appropriations bill? It is very simple, because the rules were abused egregiously in order to enable the passage of this bill in the first place. The bill contained an outrageous gap in coverage now called the “doughnut hole.” It also contained a provision which forbade, which forbade the government from even negotiating with the pharmaceutical industry on price.

How did that happen? Because the majority leadership of this House held the vote open for 3 hours in order to change the verdict. The way things are supposed to work in the House, as everybody knows, is that when we vote, these machines open, our name lights up on the board, we take our voting card, we put it in, and 15 minutes later the people with the most votes are supposed to be the winners. That is not the way this bill was passed.

The way this bill was passed was that this bill was defeated at the end of 15 minutes. It was defeated at the end of a half an hour. It was defeated at the end of an hour. It was defeated after 2 hours. It was defeated after 2½ hours. But finally after 3 hours of holding the vote open the bill passed. How? Because the Republican leadership of this House broke Members’ arms to vote for a bill they did not want to vote for because it contained these defects.

□ 1415

That is why we are trying to use the rules that were abused in that action in order to correct the abuse and give our seniors in the process a little more time to make a crucial decision in their lives.

I would urge support for the amendment, and I would urge the gentleman not to raise a point of order against the bill.

Mr. Chairman, could I ask how much time I have remaining.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOLEY). The gentleman from Wisconsin has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. SCHAKOWSKY).

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Chairman, 3 months into the implementation of the Medicare drug benefit, one thing is perfectly clear, and that is the “D” in part D stands for disaster. Beneficiaries are being bombarded by marketers and have been victimized by fraud. Forty percent of beneficiaries have yet to choose a plan because they remain perplexed and frustrated. $1.2 trillion seniors and people with disabilities deserve better than this.

The Berry amendment would provide beneficiaries an additional 6 months to choose a plan. This is the least that we can do for our senior citizens.

I cannot imagine that any Member has not gone home and found hundreds and thousands of seniors who cannot figure this out. Only a small fraction are computer literate, and they are trying to figure it out.

Let us give these seniors a little more time to try and figure this out. In the meantime, maybe we can fix this plan so that it can be serving them rather than the pharmaceutical companies and the insurance industry.

This is a very, very sensible amendment. I know that there are people on both sides of the aisle who are feeling the pressure just to give a bit more time to our seniors. I hope you will all support this amendment.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, do I have any time left?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, the distinguished gentlewoman from Illinois said it just like it is. Our senior citizens deserve better. We can provide better drug coverage, better health care for our seniors in this country and save money at the same time.

It defies logic that we would not take this opportunity to see that the wonderful generation that built this great Nation, they went through the Great Depression, they fought World War II, and then in their senior years to be treated like this only because we had a Congress willing to serve the pharmaceutical industry and allow them to rob our seniors and the rest of the American people, for that matter, and the insurance industry.

This is an opportunity to right a great wrong. It is an opportunity to correct and fix the sorriest, most disgusting piece of legislation ever passed by the United States Congress; and I would ask that this at least be allowed to come to a vote.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, Medicare, like Social Security, is a solemn intergenerational promise. People pay into Medicare for a lifetime of work, and they expect quality health care when they retire or become disabled. With the passage of the Medicare Modernization Act in 2003, Medicare’s ability to continue to provide quality health insurance both now and in the future has been threatened. Congress increased costs for beneficiaries, in all parts of Medicare, as it increased payouts to HMOs and drug plans.

In passing Part D, Congress chose to side with the pharmaceutical and insurance industries rather than seniors and the disabled. Those on Medicare are at the mercy of the private sector for their drugs. There are 19 companies offering over 40 different prescription drug plans in Ohio, not including those offered through Medicare Advantage HMO’s. Each of these plans can choose which drugs to cover and which to exclude from their formulary. They can change their formularies at any point in time. Corporate interests are deciding which drugs you can take instead of physicians.

I wanted one prescription drug card, offered directly through Medicare, for seniors to use to cover all their drugs at pharmacies of their choosing. Congress could have passed a bill with both a real and simple benefit for Medicare beneficiaries, and for less money. Drug prices could have been negotiated and administrative costs could have been reduced through a plan directly under Medicare. In fact, the Center for Economic and Policy Research recently released a study showing that if Medicare negotiated drug prices, we would save so much money that we would be able to cover every single beneficiary with no co-payments, no deductibles, and no premiums . . . and still have $40 billion dollars left. Now, we have a program where the coverage is too little, the cost is too high, and complexity is preventing seniors from getting the drugs they need.

CMS SHORTFALLS

The Centers for Medicaid and Medicare Services (CMS) made inherently flawed legislation even worse with its failure to ensure uninterrupted drug coverage, its lack of adequate rules regarding drug plan formularies, and its distribution of both incorrect and inadequate information. Since January 1, 2006, individuals either on Medicaid or Low-Income Assistance should have paid no more than $5 per 30-day retail or 90-day mail order prescription. For hundreds of thousands of people, some of whom contacted my office, this was not the case.

Computer systems from CMS, the state, Social Security, and private plans did not adequately merge with the computer system pharmacies use to verify enrollment and co-payment information. What does this mean? Accurate co-payment amounts were not charged, and in some cases, are still not being charged. Charges have far exceeded $5 in many cases, sometimes by hundreds of dollars. Despite Medicare’s anticipation of these scenarios, the problem was not addressed until After it hit beneficiaries.

Regarding plan formularies, CMS rules allow plans to refuse to cover many drugs in the antidepressant, antipsychotic, anticonvulsant, anticancer, immunosuppressant and HIV/AIDS formulary categories—another instance of this administration playing doctor. This time, though, it is not just the health concern of one person, but it is an issue of social concern if some of these individuals are not able to access their prescribed medications.

To make matters worse, CMS has yet to correct in writing a major error in the “2006

Medicare and You” handbooks which states that all plan premiums would be fully covered if on “Extra Help”. In reality, government subsidies will only cover premium amounts up to $30.69 for 2006. Many seniors will be surprised when their plan charges them the difference. In a response letter to me, the CMS Administrator, Dr. Mark McClellan, talks about CMS’s multi-pronged approach to minimize the impact of this unfortunate error. Unfortunately, his approach consists primarily of a correction to Medicare’s Web site rather than directly to seniors.

CORPORATE SHORTFALLS

Without needed information, people on Medicare cannot make a decision. Many who have other drug coverage have not received notice from their provider whether or not their plan is creditable, or at least as good as Medicare’s. If they make the wrong decision, they would have lesser coverage.

Want information from the plans? Good luck! These companies have not dedicated nearly sufficient staff to handle questions and information, as you probably are aware. Most plans simply hang up on incoming calls, sometimes after waiting for hours on the phone. This is even the case for pharmacists who are spending time calling to check enrollment information with these companies.

Each company is required to follow CMS transition policies to cover any drug for 30-days, regardless if it is on their formulary or not. Most companies are not volunteering this information, and some are not abiding by it.

PHARMACY SHORTFALLS

CMS has released scenarios detailing actions pharmacies should take to make sure Medicaid and low-income assistance individuals receive their drugs at the proper copay amount. Though the directives are informative and needed, they have not been adequately disseminated. Even when they are aware of them, some pharmacies are not following these directives. As a result, many of these people are going without their drugs.

When we consider the complex, costly nature of the program, in addition to the flawed implementation of the program, the minimum we can give our seniors is an extension of the deadline to enroll without penalty. If CMS can’t smooth over the problems in implementation in time, we cannot ask seniors to observe the original deadline of May 15. They should be allowed to make sure they don’t have to gamble with their lives when switching to a new plan. They need to know that the program, as flawed as it is, can be implemented in a way that does not deprive them of their medicines. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the Berry Amendment.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, yesterday, a woman told President Bush that she was having a hard time understanding his prescription drug program and needed more time so that she could make an informed choice for her mother.

Bush told her too bad. Specifically, he said, “Rolling back good deadlines is not going to help your mom make a good decision.”

He’s wrong. The implementation of this drug program has been a disaster. That’s not a partisan statement, it’s a factual one. Delaying the May 15th deadline until the end of 2006 should be a no-brainer.

Senior citizens and people with disabilities shouldn't be forced to pay financial penalties for the rest of their lives because the law was poorly implemented. Nor should we allow the confusion of the last few months to turn beneficiaries off from ever entering the program.

Yet, if the deadline goes into effect, that's exactly what will happen. According to the Congressional Budget Office 10 million seniors will pay higher premiums for their prescription drugs for the rest of their lives if this deadline is not delayed. And more than 1 million seniors will choose not to enroll this year.

Mr. Bush has long claimed to be a compassionate conservative. There is nothing compassionate about telling America's seniors too bad and forcing them to pay higher premiums for the rest of their lives.

My Republican colleagues keep complaining that Democrats are demagoguing the drug bill. We are not. We are here today trying to help them make it work better. I urge them to join us in that effort.

America's seniors need and deserve a Medicare drug benefit that is user-friendly, affordable, and stable. Vote for the Berry Amendment to do just that.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from California insist on his point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I do.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part: any amendment in a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if changing existing law. This amendment directly amends existing law.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does anybody wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I do.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Wisconsin is recognized.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, it is ironic that the same rules that were abused in order to pass this legislation in the first place are now being hidden behind the majority in order to prevent us from correcting the flaws in that legislation. We could correct those flaws if the majority refrained from offering their point of order. Unfortunately, it appears that they are going to insist, and so they will have again selectively used the rules of this House to accomplish an end which would not have been reachable had the rules been adhered to in the first instance.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Are there any other Members who wish to argue the point of order?

The Chair finds that this amendment directly amends existing law. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. DELAURO

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. DELAURO:
Page 84, after line 17, insert the following section:

SEC. 3013. Effective September 30, 2006, sections 319F-3 and 319F-4 of the Public Health Service Act (relating to liability protections for pandemic and epidemic products and security countermeasures), as added by division C of Public Law 109-148 (119 Stat. 2818), are repealed.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentlewoman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman reserves a point of order.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Connecticut.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This amendment is very simple. It repeals the comprehensive liability protection for vaccine manufacturers by the end of the fiscal year, September 30. I believe some sort of liability protection or indemnification is necessary and appropriate to encourage the development and the manufacture of some measures that are going to deal with a pandemic flu. I would support reasonable language.

Whatever our respective views are about the wisdom of liability protection, the manner in which this particular provision was included in the defense appropriation bill last year is indefensible.

Last December, legislation granting liability protection to the vaccine manufacturers was unilaterally inserted into the defense appropriations bill after the conference had closed, after an understanding verbally and in writing that no legislative liability language would be inserted into the bill. It was done in the dead of night, absent any careful consideration, no public hearings or debate among the Members of this body, nothing. It was the work of one person and one body. It should never have been allowed.

Further, there are now no means for victims who are seriously injured to seek compensation, unlike other Federal vaccine programs: swine flu, smallpox, children's vaccines. Usually when government grants liability exemptions to companies, it provides some form of relief for the consumers who are injured.

As we further discovered about this bill, the liability protection was granted not only to vaccines being developed to prepare us for an avian flu outbreak but also for a far broader range of potential vaccines and medical equipment, just about anything else the HHS Secretary deems appropriate.

This sweeping, unchecked power granted to a Cabinet Secretary is unprecedented, to my knowledge, also sweeping power granted to the pharmaceutical industry. The Congress ought to consider carefully before ceding its authority to this or any administration.

Under this law, manufacturers and their suppliers, distributors and their employees would be shielded from a lawsuit, even if they turned out to be negligent or reckless. None of us would agree that a negligent distributor, someone who ruined a vaccine by mishandling it, for example, should be held harmless. Do we want to say a drug maker who knows a product is defective but chooses to sell it anyway is above the law?

We face a frightening prospect that millions of Americans could contract this deadly flu. Our first priority ought to be inoculating the American public from a deadly strain of flu and not inoculating pharmaceutical companies from the threat of legal liability.

This provision has serious implications. All my amendment seeks to achieve is to grant the full Congress and the committees of jurisdiction the opportunity to fully consider the policy implications of this issue. It accomplishes that by sunseting comprehensive liability protection to the drug manufacturers beyond this fiscal year. It gives us plenty of time to have the appropriate parties debate this issue thoroughly.

Lastly, let me say a word about the rationale for making this amendment in order, because I understand that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are preparing to challenge it on the basis of it being in violation of rule XXI and rule XVI, and that is certainly their right.

But before they do, let me ask, where was the concern for the rules when a Member of the other body unilaterally rewrote liability law in this country? Given the complete abdication of procedural norms which made this provision's enactment possible, which we have seen time and time again in this institution, I would ask the majority, spare us the lectures about the need to respect House rules in this instance.

Mr. Chairman, the House should have a full debate on this measure and an up-or-down vote. Let us give this institution the opportunity to reclaim the dignity, and constitutional authority, that the majority renounced in allowing one Member to usurp the power of this body, to bolster himself on this critical issue. That is what this amendment is about.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, we are here because last year on the defense appropriations bill, in the middle of the night, we were trying to finish action on that bill, and we had agreed that we would add the administration's request for $7 billion to fund a research program to develop vaccines to deal with avian flu. When the majority produced their bill, it only had $3.5 billion. We asked why the other money that was requested by the administration was not included. I was told by Senator STEVENS, the chairman of the conference, that that was because the majority party had decided that they would not deal with the issue of drug company indemnification, and until they did, they were not going to put the long-term money in the bill.

So they told us in writing, as well as orally, that they were not going to add any language indemnifying the drug companies. The conference ended about eight o'clock.

Close to midnight, the majority leader of the United States Senate walked over to the Speaker's office and insisted that 40 pages of language never read or never checked out by anybody, that 40 pages of language never voted on by anybody be inserted in that conference report without a vote of the conferees, and that was jammed down our throats the next day.

That language purported to protect drug companies in case they made some faulty flu vaccine; but, in fact, the language went far beyond that. It applied to all vaccines, it applied to all drugs and all medical devices that the Secretary chose to apply it to. It provided no possibility for judicial review at all. So in other words, it said if you get sick, if you lose your health because of a faulty vaccine or a faulty device, you cannot sue the drug company; you have to collect from the government.

But guess what? They put no money in the fund that was supposed to be used to compensate victims. So it was a catch-22.

We are here today because, in my view, that action inserting that language, without a vote of the conferees, was one of the most egregious corruptions of the legislative process that I have seen in the 37 years that I have been here. And we are trying to use the rules of the House today to reverse what happened because of an egregious abuse of those rules by the leadership of this House and by the leadership of the Senate.

Of all people, of all people in the Congress, the leadership of both Houses have an obligation to protect the integrity of the institution and the integrity of the rules. When they themselves lead the charge to obliterate any opportunity to use the rules in defense of normal processes in this House, then, in my view, they have ultimately corrupted the process of legislation.

So this amendment ordinarily would not be here, but the damage was done on this bill last year, and so we are trying to use the same vehicle to undo the damage. We recognize there needs to be some indemnification language, but it needs to be reviewed by somebody other than drug company lobbyists; and until that happens, I am going to continue to be mad as hell about this and do everything I possibly can to reverse the outcome.

We are trying to preach democracy in Iraq. It would be nice if the leadership of this Congress showed some here at home in this institution.

□ 1430

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to how much time I have remaining?

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOLEY). The gentlewoman has 30 seconds remaining.

Ms. DELAURO. I would just conclude by saying that this is about inoculating the American public against a deadly flu. We are not in the business and we are not charged with inoculating the pharmaceutical companies from the threat of legal liability. That is not why we were sent to the United States Congress. We are here to protect the public interest and the public trust.

Let us do our job. Let the appropriate committees of jurisdiction deal with this issue; have the companies, have the consumers bring people together. That is simply what this legislation and my amendment is all about.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Does the gentleman insist on his point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Yes, Mr. Chairman. I must say that I think you know me well; that my colleagues do as well. I feel very strongly about the rules of the House and I feel very strongly about the way we operate with each other. I must say I have regretted from time to time all the lessons learned when the former majority ran the House. But because of that experience, I must propound my point of order.

So, Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part: "An amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if it changes existing law." This proposal directly changes existing law.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to be recognized on the gentleman's point of order?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I would simply say that what the gentleman is suggesting by insisting on his point of order is that the rules of this House may be bent by the majority in order to provide special interest language in a piece of legislation, but they cannot be used by the minority to defend the public interest in that same case. I would find that a strange interpretation of the rules indeed.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any other Member wish to be heard on the point of order? Hearing none, the Chair is prepared to rule.

The Chair finds this amendment repeals existing law. The amendment therefore constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The point of order is sustained and the amendment is not in order.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, because this is the only way that we can protest this egregious corruption of the rules of the House, I respectfully appeal the ruling of the Chair.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Committee of the Whole?

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, and the order of the House of today, this 15-minute vote on the appeal of the ruling of the Chair will be followed by the following amendments on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order: The amendment by Mr. SABO of Minnesota, 5-minute vote; the amendment by Mr. NEUGEBAUER of Texas, a 2-minute vote; the amendment by Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD of California, a 2-minute vote; the amendment by Mr. CONAWAY of Texas, a 2-minute vote.

The Chair wishes to underscore the 2-minute vote was agreed to by this Chamber. We will hold those votes strictly to 2 minutes. Members are advised to watch the board that they have properly recorded their votes during those 2-minute votes.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 223, noes 193, not voting 16, as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIRMAN

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOLEY) (during the vote). Members are advised 2 minutes remain in this vote.

□ 1457

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California, Ms. MCKINNEY, Messrs. ROTHMAN, EDWARDS, TAYLOR of Mississippi and Melancon changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Messrs. REGULA, BOOZMAN, BUYER and TOM DAVIS of Virginia changed their vote from “no” to “aye.” So the decision of the Chair stands as the judgment of the Committee.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated against:

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Chairman, on rollcall No. 55, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted “no.”

(By unanimous consent, Ms. ESHOO was allowed to speak out of order.)

HONORING PROFILES IN COURAGE RECIPIENT

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Chairman, this year marks the 50th anniversary of the publication of John F. Kennedy’s book “Profiles in Courage.”

Last Thursday, one of our colleagues was chosen as the recipient for this year, the 50th anniversary of President Kennedy’s book “Profiles in Courage,” as the Profile of Courage in the year 2006.

Our distinguished colleague, Congressman JOHN MURTHA, is the recipient in 2006. We want to pay tribute to Congressman JOHN MURTHA as the recipient of the John F. Kennedy Profiles in Courage Award recipient.

Congratulations, JACK.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIRMAN

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, reduced-time voting will continue.

There was no objection.

The Chair reminds Members this 5-minute vote will be followed by three 2-minute votes.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SABO

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIRMAN

The Acting CHAIRMAN (during the vote). Fifteen seconds remain in this vote.

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, on March 16, 2006, I was unavoidably absent and missed rollcall votes 55–59. For the record, had I been present, I would have voted: No. 55—“yea”; No. 56—“nay”; No. 57—“nay”; No. 58—“nay”; 59—“nay.”

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Committee will rise informally.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California) assumed the Chair.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Ms. Wanda Evans, one of his secretaries.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Committee will resume its sitting.

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR DEFENSE, THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERROR, AND HURRICANE RECOVERY, 2006

The Committee resumed its sitting.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) for the purpose of a colloquy.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the chairman of the full committee for yielding to me for purposes of this colloquy. I would like to engage in a colloquy with the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE).

I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Chairman, this goes to the issue of $50 million in economic support funds for Liberia. What I wanted to say, on this issue, is that the United States has been very generous with Liberia. We have committed nearly $1.5 billion, and that includes the funding for U.N. peacekeeping, and of course President Bush deployed U.S. Marines in Liberia to end the fighting there. My concern is that the former Liberian President, Charles Taylor, frankly, is first among warlords. He faces a 17-count indictment by the U.S. backed Special Court for his crimes against humanity, and yet he is living in cushy exile in Nigeria.

This is a problem on several counts. Taylor must face justice for the killing and maiming that he engineered. Bringing him to the Special Court will end the cycle of impunity that destabilizes West Africa, and most pressing to today’s business, Taylor remains a threat to the progress that the U.S. has done so much to achieve. It is probable that left in exile, Taylor will return to Liberia, as he has pledged to do, and knock over all that we have helped build up, throwing that region back into chaos.

Congress passed a resolution calling for Taylor to be sent to the Special Court. Yesterday, Liberia’s new President addressed this Congress. She had an inspiring message. But what many human rights and civil society groups were hoping to hear was a loud and clear call for Taylor to be turned over to the court now before it is too late. While Taylor is in Nigeria, Nigeria’s president has said he would honor an extradition request made by Liberia’s new president. We are waiting for that request.

This bill would tack on an added $50 million in emergency spending for Liberia. I am worried about the message this sends about our seriousness of purpose regarding Charles Taylor. We continue our generosity, yet the Liberian president continues to defy the wishes of many Liberians by not acting to bring Charles Taylor to justice.

So, Mr. Chairman, I considered offering an amendment to strike or condition this $50 million. What I seek instead is to hear from you on this issue.

Mr. KOLBE. I thank the gentleman for his comments, and I particularly thank him for his longstanding effort on behalf of West African nations and the people of West Africa, and certainly Liberia. I share his concern about a long lasting peace for Liberia, as I know all in this body do, and we also share the concern that Charles Taylor represents a threat to everything that the United States is trying to accomplish through its aid efforts and its commitment of troops to bring about peace and stability in Liberia.

I will tell the gentleman as this process unfolds, the committee has been and will continue to closely monitor developments with Charles Taylor.

I think I have some good news I can bring to the gentleman. Just before this series of votes, Mrs. LOWEY, my ranking member, and I completed a meeting with President Sirleaf, who, of course, addressed this body yesterday. We asked this question specifically, will there be an extradition request? I asked it three times, and got the same answer three times, that it has been done. She used the word "done" three times. So the request for extradition has been done. We believe and she has said that he needs to be brought to justice in an appropriate court.

So the request to the President of Liberia has been made. She went on to tell us that President Olusegun is now consulting with African leaders from the African Union and the Economic Community of West African Countries, ECOWAS, to make sure that the extradition will not in any way destabilize the very fragile peace that now exists there. Once that is done, we would expect to see this accomplished.

The request for extradition has been done, and we will continue to remain engaged and watch this very, very closely, as this process of the supplemental unfolds.

Mr. ROYCE. I thank the gentleman from Arizona and the gentlewoman from New York, and certainly the chairman of the committee.

AMENDMENT NO. 26 OFFERED BY MS. KAPTUR

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 26 offered by Ms. KAPTUR:
H.R. 4939

On page 84, after line 17, insert the following:

TITLE IV—ESTABLISHMENT OF A "TRUMAN" INVESTIGATIVE COMMITTEE TO PROTECT AGAINST WASTE, FRAUD, AND ABUSE RELATED TO CONTRACTS FOR THE GLOBAL WAR ON TERRORISM AND HURRICANES KATRINA AND RITA REBUILDING EFFORTS

SEC. 401. There is hereby created a select committee on the model of the Truman Committee to investigate the awarding and carrying out of contracts to conduct military operations and relief and reconstruction activities related to the global war on terrorism (including all activities in Afghanistan and Iraq), and Hurricane Katrina recovery, relief, and reconstruction efforts (hereinafter referred to as the "select committee").

SEC. 402. (a) The select committee is to be composed of 19 Members of the House, one of whom shall be designated as chairman from the majority party and one of whom shall be designated ranking member from the minority party. The chairmen and ranking minority members of the following committees will serve on the select committee:

- (1) Committee on Armed Services;
- (2) Committee on Government Reform;
- (3) Committee on Homeland Security; and
- (4) Committee on International Relations.

The chairmen and ranking minority members of the following subcommittees of the Committee on Appropriations will serve on the select committee:

- (1) Subcommittee on Defense;
- (2) Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs.
- (3) Subcommittee on Homeland Security.

In addition, the Speaker shall appoint 5 members of the select committee, of which 2 members shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the minority leader. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the select committee shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

(b) The select committee shall conduct an ongoing study and investigation of the awarding and carrying out of contracts by the Government for military operations and relief and reconstruction activities related to the global war on terrorism (including all activities in Afghanistan and Iraq), and Hurricane Katrina recovery, relief, and reconstruction efforts and make such recommendations to the House as the select committee deems appropriate regarding the following matters:

- (1) Bidding, contracting, and auditing standards in the issuance of Government contracts;
- (2) Oversight procedures;
- (3) Forms of payment and safeguards against money laundering.
- (4) Accountability of contractors and Government officials involved in procurement;
- (5) Penalties for violations of law and abuses in the awarding and carrying out of Government contracts;
- (6) Subcontracting under large, comprehensive contracts;
- (7) Inclusion and utilization of small businesses, through subcontracts or otherwise.
- (8) Such other matters as the select committee deems appropriate.

SEC. 403. (a) QUORUM.—One-third of the members of the select committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business except for the reporting of the results of its study and investigation (with its recommendations) or the authorization of subpoenas, which shall require a majority of the committee to be actually present, except that the select committee may designate a lesser number, but not less than two, as a quorum for the purpose of holding hearings to take testimony and receive evidence.

(b) POWERS.—For the purpose of carrying out this title, the select committee may sit and act during the present Congress at any time and place within the United States or elsewhere, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned and hold such hearings as it considers necessary and to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses, the furnishing of information by interrogatory, and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, documents, and other things and information of any kind as it deems necessary, including relevant classified materials.

(c) ISSUANCE OF SUBPOENAS.—A subpoena may be authorized and issued by the select committee in the conduct of any investigation or series of investigations or activities, only when authorized by a majority of the members voting, a majority being present. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chairman or by any member designated by the select committee, and may be served by any person designated by the chairman or such member. Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and attested by the Clerk. The select committee may request investigations, reports, and other assistance from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Government.

(d) MEETINGS.—The chairman, or in his absence a member designated by the chairman, shall preside at all meetings and hearings of the select committee. All meetings and hearings of the select committee shall be conducted in open session, unless a majority of members of the select committee voting, there being in attendance the requisite number required for the purpose of hearings to take testimony, vote to close a meeting or hearing.

(e) APPLICABILITIES OF RULES OF THE HOUSE.—The Rules of the House of Representatives applicable to standing committees shall govern the select committee where not inconsistent with this title.

(f) WRITTEN COMMITTEE RULES.—The select committee shall adopt additional written rules, which shall be public, to govern its procedures, which shall not be inconsistent with this title or the Rules of the House of Representatives.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentlewoman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California, the chairman, reserves a point of order.

The gentlewoman from Ohio may proceed.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Chairman, my amendment, offered with its very able champion, Congressman JOHN TIERNEY of Massachusetts, will create a select House committee modeled on the Truman Commission created during World War II to exercise due diligence and proper congressional oversight on the over half a trillion dollars of expenditures by the government of the United States to conduct the global war on terrorism, as well as those contracts let for rebuilding of the gulf region after Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

The original Truman Commission recouped over $15 billion to our taxpayers. That is big money in our time. But it was huge money back then, returned to our taxpayers from those interests that were conducting their business above and beyond the letter of the law.

We are asking for a thorough investigation of any waste, fraud and abuse in government contracts associated with the Iraq war and the global war on terrorism, as well as Katrina-Rita recovery and reconstruction.

Our amendment is responsible. It is a good government amendment. It provides real means for oversight that is thorough, not anecdotal.

Currently, no committee in this House has full investigative authority to probe growing public concerns about where our tax dollars are being spent in this contracting. The charges are legion of cost-plus contracts, contractor fraud, as contracts below $500,000 are purposely kept at that level to circumvent review. Criminal operatives like Rob Stein have been charged and arrested for manipulating Iraqi Coalition Provisional Authority accounts in bribery and kickback schemes, waste and abuse.

This administration is moving billions of dollars with no audit trails, even back to the Appropriations Committee, which should receive those audits. In Iraq, no-bid contracts of enormous proportions are let, like to Halliburton. In Iraq, rebuilding contracts, amounting to millions are missing. A few wrongdoers have been arrested, but they are just the tip of the iceberg. Companies like Custer Battles, given contracts to secure Baghdad Airport, is a company that never did security work. Indeed it submitted invoices for electricity that were only valued at $74,000, but they got $400,000. Broken trucks bought in local markets cost $228,000, yet Custer Battles billed for $800,000. In our Gulf region, no-bid contracts need Congressional oversight.

□ 1530

Over 10,000 manufactured houses sit on the ground in open fields in Hope, Arkansas, costing more than $300 million.

Our amendment aims to protect the taxpayer. It will save money. It will save lives as we bring back inferior equipment that is discovered during this oversight.

This amendment will allow Congress to do its job, to oversee exactly how billions in taxpayer dollars are being spent in Iraq and our Gulf coast. The American people deserve this kind of responsible government.

It is critical that Congress curtail the opportunities for waste, fraud and abuse in future Federal contracting and bring those to task who are not meeting the letter and spirit of the law.

Mr. Chairman, I will be pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts and any remaining time I may have to himself as well as to Congressman WALTER JONES of North Carolina for their stellar work on this effort.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I just want to make mention, without repeating what the gentlewoman has said, this Government Reform Committee, the full committee in the House, has only had four hearings on Iraq contracting during this entire process.

In the other body, despite Senator LAUTENBERG's repeated requests, the Committee on Homeland Security and Government Affairs over there has not held a single hearing on this issue.

In the House Armed Services Committee, they have conducted oversight hearings on some issues related to military operations and protecting our troops, but they have not explored the issue of contracting since it was touched upon in June of 2004. That is quite a contrast with the original Truman Committee, which held 432 public hearings, 300 executive sessions, had 1,800 witnesses testify and issued 51 reports, all the while saving the taxpayer $15 billion and saving countless lives in the process.

The Truman Committee was unanimously respected for its focus on fact-finding and its refusal to succumb to partisan consideration, and that is what this commission would do as well. It is needed, because last week a Federal jury found two employees of Custer Battles had cheated the government on a contract to provide Iraq with new currency, and some $10 million in damages.

In December the Boston Globe reported that the Congressional Research Service put out a publication stating the Pentagon has not provided an overall reckoning of these funds by mission or by military operation. It went on to say that Congress has yet to receive a transparent accounting of money that is allocated so far for the war.

Kellogg, Brown & Root's employees last summer pleaded guilty of $100,000 in kick-backs, and it recently was reported that KBR did not do its job under the contract with purification of water for our troops, leaving them in a dangerous situation over there.

The General Accountability Office has purported to have found that the Department of Defense officials and Interior officials charged with overseeing the contract to provide interrogators at Abu Ghraib did not fully carry out their roles. And in March of 2005, we learned that the Pentagon auditors found that $212 million was paid to Kuwaiti and Turkish subcontractors for fuel and that overcharging was charged back by Halliburton.

We need this commission. It is the right thing to protect our troops and the storm victims. The American public deserves open and transparent government.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOLEY). The time of the gentleman has expired.

The gentlewoman from Ohio's time has expired as well.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word, and I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman for the time. The reason I am on the floor, I am like anyone else in Congress. It is a privilege to serve in the United States House of Representatives. And every time I go home, like all other Members of Congress, and I see the people of the Third District of North Carolina, the home of Camp Lejeune, 60,000 retired military, they want to know why we are not doing a better job with oversight.

When you read in the papers that a DOD inspector says we cannot find $8 billion, and yet here we are in the Congress owing $8.2 trillion in debt, and the American people are out there working hard trying to do their best, they support our troops, they want us to support our troops.

But we have a responsibility, and that is to rebuild public trust. The public has lost faith in the Congress of meeting its responsibility for oversight. And I join the gentlewoman from Ohio and my other colleagues, and there are those on the Republican side too, that want to have an accountability to the American taxpayer.

It is time that we do so. So I ask my colleagues on both sides of the political aisle, for goodness sakes, let us support the American taxpayer. Let us do what Truman did, saying to the people during World War II, we are going to fight this war, and we are going to defeat the enemy, but we are going to do it in a wise way, we are going to protect the investment of the taxpayer.

Let's do the same thing in 2006 that he did during the 1940s. I thank the gentleman for this time, and I close by saying, let's do what is right. This is a good-government issue. It is time that we have accountability to the American people.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, with this bill, we will now have spent as much money in Iraq as we did in Vietnam. If you adjust for inflation, it is now just about the equivalent.

It seems to me that spending almost half a trillion dollars of the taxpayers' money is indefensible unless we are willing to see to it that that money is spent as well as we can possibly accomplish that fact.

I guess it boils down to this: if Members are happy with reading day after day about stories that are published about waste and fraud and ripoffs by contractors in Iraq, if they are tired of reading about the insider deals and the single-source contracts for work to be done in Iraq, if a Republican-controlled Congress cannot bring itself to conduct a really vigorous investigation of a Republican administration, then they ought to vote "no."

But if you think that we ought to be doing now exactly as we were doing in World War II, when Harry Truman conducted the kind of investigation the gentleman from Massachusetts mentioned, if you think we ought to replicate that effort, then you vote "yes."

I would submit that the Roosevelt administration was not damaged by the investigations done by the Truman Committee, they were strengthened by it, because that meant they had more resources available to get the job done in defeating the Japanese and defeating the Nazis.

I want to congratulate the gentleman from Massachusetts for the leadership that he has shown on this issue.

Mr. Chairman, I urge an "aye" vote.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part: an amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law.

This amendment gives affirmative direction in effect.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to speak on the point of order?

Hearing none, the Chair finds that this amendment includes language imparting direction. The amendment therefore constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT NO. 10 OFFERED BY MR. NADLER

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 10 offered by Mr. NADLER: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO ENTRY OF OCEAN SHIPPING CONTAINERS INTO THE UNITED STATES.

(a) REQUIREMENTS.—Section 70116 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(c) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO ENTRY OF OCEAN SHIPPING CONTAINERS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—An ocean shipping container may enter the United States, either directly or via a foreign port, only if—

“(A) the container is scanned with equipment that meets the standards established pursuant to paragraph (2)(A) and a copy of the scan is provided to the Secretary, and

“(B) the container is secured with a seal that meets the standards established pursuant to paragraph (2)(B), before the container is loaded on the vessel for shipment to the United States.

“(2) STANDARDS FOR SCANNING EQUIPMENT AND SEALS.—

“(A) SCANNING EQUIPMENT.—The Secretary shall establish standards for scanning equipment required to be used under paragraph (1)(A) to ensure that such equipment uses the best-available technology, including technology to scan a container for radiation and density and, if appropriate, for atomic elements.

“(B) SEALS.—The Secretary shall establish standards for seals required to be used under paragraph (1)(B) to ensure that such seals use the best-available technology, including technology to—

“(i) detect any breach into a container;

“(ii) identify the time and place of such breach;

“(iii) notify the Secretary of such breach before the container enters the Exclusive Economic Zone of the United States; and “(iv) track the time and location of the container during transit to the United States, including by truck, rail, or vessel.

“(C) REVIEW AND REVISION.—The Secretary shall review and, if necessary, revise the standards established pursuant to subparagraphs (A) and (B) not less than once every two years.

“(D) DEFINITION.—In subparagraph (B), the term ‘Exclusive Economic Zone of the United States’ has the meaning given the term ‘Exclusive Economic Zone’ in section 2101(10a) of this title.”.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out section 70116(c) of title 46, United States Code, as added by subsection (a) of this section, such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2007 and each subsequent fiscal year.

(c) REGULATIONS; EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) REGULATIONS.—

(A) INTERIM FINAL RULE.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall issue an interim final rule as a temporary regulation to implement section 70116(c) of title 46, United States Code, as added by subsection (a) of this section, not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this section, without regard to the provisions of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code.

(B) FINAL RULE.—The Secretary shall issue a final rule as a permanent regulation to implement section 70116(c) of title 46, United States Code, as added by subsection (a) of this section, not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this section, in accordance with the provisions of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code. The final rule issued pursuant to that rulemaking may supersede the interim final rule issued pursuant to subparagraph (A).

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The requirements of section 70116(c) of title 46, United States Code, as added by subsection (a) of this section, apply with respect to any ocean shipping container entering the United States, either directly or via a foreign port, beginning one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer an amendment to attach to this bill, the Sail Only If Scanned Act, the SOS Act. This act was developed by me and Mr. OBERSTAR, with the support of Minority Leader PELOSI, to address the issue of shipping container security.

This amendment would require that every shipping container be scanned with the most modern technology and sealed with a tamper-proof seal before it is placed on a ship bound for the United States so that we can have absolute assurances that no nuclear weapons or radiological bombs are being brought into our ports.

Only 1 percent of the more than 11 million shipping containers destined for the United States are scanned before they are loaded on a ship overseas. This is unacceptable.

The United States cannot own or control the entire global trade network, but we can and should ensure the security of every single container destined for this country. The controversy over the proposed Dubai Ports World deal has woken up the American people and made them think about how critical our ports are for national security. But who owns the ports and who operates the ports, while important, is far less important than what comes into the ports.

Ninety-five percent of all of the 11 million, 40-foot boxes that come into our ports are uninspected, not scanned. Not scanned by x-rays, not examined for radioactivity before they get here. Any one of them could have an atomic bomb or radiological bomb. That is unacceptable.

If there is a bomb inside a container, it is too late to discover that in Newark or Miami or Los Angeles. Reading the manifest is not enough. Having shipments only from low-risk shippers is not enough, because any one container could have a catastrophic bomb inside it.

My amendment is quite simple. It would require that all containers must be scanned using the best available technology, including scanning for radiation and density before they are loaded on a ship bound for the United States.

The scans must be submitted to U.S. Government officials for review before the container is loaded, and the containers must be sealed with a device that indicates if the container is tampered with in transit, and automatically notifies U.S. officials of any breach before the containers come within a few hundred miles of the United States.

Steve Flynn of the Council of Foreign Relations and a port security expert wrote in the New York Times a few days ago: “This is not a pie-in-the-sky idea. Since January 2005, every single container entering the truck gates of two of the world's busiest container terminals in Hong Kong has passed through scanning and radiation detection devices. Images of the containers' contents are then stored on computers so they can be scrutinized by American or other customs authorities almost in real-time. Customs inspectors can then issue orders not to load a container that worries them. The Department of Homeland Security has greeted this private sector initiative with only tepid interest.”

Mr. Chairman, we cannot simply stand by while the Bush administration twiddles its thumbs and fails to secure the movement of containers before they reach the United States. The terminal operations in Hong Kong prove we can scan 100 percent of the containers without disrupting the economy or the flow of goods. The cost to scan a container is $6.50.

The entire cost to amortize all of the equipment is $20 a container. Given that it costs $4,000 to ship a container across the Pacific if there is between 50 and $500,000 worth of merchandise in each container, a $20 cost is trivial.

Congress needs to make 100 percent scanning the policy of the United States. This amendment would do that. I realize, Mr. Chairman, this amendment may not be allowed under the rules of the House.

I fully expect the Republicans to raise a point of order against it. I would note, however, that the underlying bill includes a provision blocking the proposed takeover of U.S. terminals by Dubai Ports World. I support that provision.

But if we can include language on the Dubai deal in this bill, then certainly the Republican majority should allow us to include language that secures shipping containers and prevents atomic bombs from going off in port cities.

At the very least, they could easily waive the rule and allow a vote on this amendment. If they care more about these rules that they waive every day than they do about protecting the American public from nuclear bombs and shipping containers, I truly fear for our safety.

Mr. Chairman, I urge all my colleagues to support this amendment to attach the Sail Only if Scanned Act, the SOS Act, to this bill. The only way we will adequately protect our citizens is if the Republicans in Congress join with us to force the Bush administration to take seriously the issue of container security and make sure that every single container is scanned and sealed with a tamper-proof seal before being placed on a ship bound for the United States.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part: an amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if changing existing law.

This amendment directly amends existing law.

□ 1545

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. FOLEY). Does any Member wish to speak on the point of order?

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations raises a point of order that this legislates on an appropriations bill. And it might.

But I would challenge the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations and the Republican majority, if you are going to insist on a technical interpretation of the rule on this amendment, I would challenge the Republicans to allow this bill to the floor for a vote or allow this bill as an amendment on some other bill. Because to fail to do that, to insist on a technical reading of this rule, and not allow this or something like it on the floor, is to jeopardize the lives of every single American for a trivial cost. And I urge that the Republicans allow, we have been trying some version of this for 3 years now. We have never been able to get a vote. But the safety of the American people is at risk if we allow 11 million shipping containers, 40-foot boxes into the ports of our country without scanning them, and knowing only what someone says is in them, not what is really in them.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order.

The Chair finds that this amendment directly does amend existing law. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WAXMAN

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WAXMAN:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be obligated or expended by the Secretary of the Army or his designee to award a contract to any contractor if the Defense Contract Audit Agency has determined that more than $100,000,000 of the contractor's costs for contracts involving work in Iraq under one or more Army contracts were unreasonable.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognize the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Three years ago, Congress and the American people were told that the Iraq War would be quick and inexpensive. Senior administration officials told us that rebuilding Iraq would cost less than $2 billion. And we were told that Iraq would be able to finance its own reconstruction with its oil revenues.

Well, 3 years later, we know that these assurances were completely unfounded. The war has cost hundreds of billions of dollars. We squandered over $20 billion on reconstruction projects that have left basic services below pre-war levels. And these massive costs have contributed to record budget deficits at home.

There are multiple causes for the enormous burden placed on the taxpayer. President Bush and his advisors grossly underestimate the insurgency. They failed to engage our allies in the rebuilding effort, and they vastly overestimated the amount of oil Iraq could sell to fund its reconstruction.

The amendment I am offering with Mr. DINGELL addresses part of the problem, rampant waste, fraud and abuse in Federal contracting under the Bush administration. The largest contractor operating in Iraq is Halliburton. Government auditors have repeatedly caught Halliburton red-handed. They have found over a billion dollars in unreasonable and unsupported charges.

Let me repeat this. Federal auditors have found Halliburton's unreasonable and unsupported bills exceed $1 billion. Yet over and over again, this administration has ignored its own auditors. The Pentagon's auditors have found over $260 million in unreasonable and unsupported costs when they examine Halliburton's no-bid contract to restore Iraq's oil field.

Independent industry experts call Halliburton's charges "highway robbery." But as this chart shows, the Bush administration ignored these findings and paid Halliburton for 97 percent of its overcharges and then gave Halliburton millions in additional bonuses. These same Pentagon auditors rejected $200 million in dining hall expenses because Halliburton charged for meals it never served to the troops. But the Bush administration ignored the auditors and paid 75 percent of the challenged costs and tripled Halliburton's profit on the contract.

The auditors got so frustrated with Halliburton that they warned Pentagon officials not to enter into any more contracts with the company. But 3 days later, the Bush administration gave Halliburton a new $1.2 billion contract in Iraq. And these are not the only problems.

More than 50 cases of contract fraud in Iraq are currently under investigation. And administration officials cannot account for over $8 billion in Iraqi oil proceeds. This kind of incompetent and egregious mismanagement is hard to believe. No matter how many times they bilk the taxpayer, politically favored companies keep getting more and more Federal contracts.

The administration has a duty to safeguard taxpayer dollars, but it is shirking that responsibility. We need to pass this amendment to end this costly cycle.

This is an amendment that is very simple. It will prohibit the administration from using the funds in this bill to award new contracts to any company that has overcharged the government by $100 million or more in Iraq.

This is just common sense. No company that squanders over $100 million of taxpayers money should be rewarded with new contracts. If the administration will not protect the taxpayer against waste, fraud and abuse, the Congress must act. For the sake of the taxpayers and the troops, I urge support for this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, on the surface of this amendment, it is sort of interesting, because none of us want to see any money wasted or any money spent improperly. The problem that we have here, Mr. Chairman, is that we just got a copy of this amendment late last night and other Members only got it this morning. This could have very far reaching effects, not only on future contracts, but on existing contracts. And I would hate to see the logistical flow of supplies to our troops in the field interrupted because of this amendment.

Frankly, I was tempted to accept the amendment, but having thought about it, we just really have not had time to know exactly what the effect is going to be. So I rise to oppose the amendment and I would be happy to work with the gentleman as we proceed through this bill or the regular defense bill to try to work with him to accomplish what he wants, but we need to know what it is that this amendment does and it is a little bit complicated.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I want to assure you we were very careful in drafting this amendment. It is prospective. It would not affect the funding of existing contracts for troop support. They will continue untouched. The amendment simply says we will not reward companies with new contracts after they overcharge the taxpayers by $100 million. I hope that will allay the gentleman's concerns.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for his comments, but it is important that the defense committees know for a fact as opposed to the debate on the floor. So we have got to oppose the amendment at this time.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER), the very distinguished chairman of the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. This is aimed at the company Halliburton. That is very clear.

The papers are awash with Halliburton and have been for several years. Halliburton employs lots of Americans. And I do not have the exact number of KIA, but they, like our soldiers in the field, the people that drive those trucks and work those logistics to support our Marines out in the western area of operations out in Fallujah and our Army personnel out in Mosul and Tikrit and other remote parts of Iraq, those people risk their lives every day.

I will say to the gentleman, as I recall, over 20 of them have been killed in action, people like the Halliburton drivers. People have been captured by the enemy and some of them held hostage, unable to escape. Most of the people, the vast majority of the people that work for this contractor, like lots of contractors that support our American military overseas, are good, hard-working people. And if you look, if you go up and eat with the Stryker brigades up in Mosul, or the 101st in Tikrit or the Marines in Fallujah, and you go into their mess halls and you look at the operation and you see the fuel that is delivered, you see the ammunition that is delivered, you see the treatment, the quality of life for our military people, you will understand then that is primarily a result of American corporations which support the war effort. And that is a fact of life.

Now, the idea that prices have been unreasonable and that there are contracts where they have abused the American taxpayer or abused the contract process, let us take that under the regular order. And if that is true, let's hold people accountable. Let's hold the corporation accountable. But the idea that we single out a group of people which is thousands and thousands of Americans who support our fighting personnel and basically paralyze that operation is unreasonable.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We have been working on this investigation about Halliburton for years, and we have written letters asking for hearings over and over again. The committee has not held a hearing on these overcharges. I do not know why the Armed Services Committee has not held a hearing on it, but it sounds to me a bit disingenuous when they say we have not had a chance to look at this matter.

I support hardworking people on the ground that are working for Halliburton and other private contractors, but I do not think they would support the idea of their own corporate CEOs and shareholders getting rich unfairly for charges that are not reasonable. That is what this amendment is all about.

So it seems to me that it rings a bit false when we hear these kind of arguments against the amendment. Oh, we have not looked at it. Why haven't they looked at it? Oh, it might affect people serving the troops now. Well, that is just absolutely untrue.

So I continue to urge support for the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Ms. SCHAKOWSKY).

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Chairman I thank the gentleman for yielding me time. I rise in support of the Waxman-Dingell amendment which is about waste, fraud and abuse. That is it. And this is the full extent of the amendment, eight lines, very simple.

All it says is that none of the funds appropriated or made available by this Act shall be obligated or expended by the Secretary of the Army to any contractor if the Defense Contract Audit Agency has determined that more than $100 million of the contractor's costs for contracts involving work in Iraq under one or more Army contracts were unreasonable.

So we have set up a process to get rid of waste, fraud and abuse. How long does it take to figure that out?

I cannot imagine that anybody in this body wants to fund waste, fraud and abuse, particularly in excess of $100 million. That is what this is about.

Last June, Congressman WAXMAN released a report documenting a stunning $1.4 billion in questioned and unsupported charges by Halliburton in Iraq. Don't we want to know about that?

Last month, The New York Times reported that the Bush administration ignored 97 percent of the recommendations made by Pentagon auditors and awarded Halliburton over $250 million under its Iraq oil contract. And just last week, a Federal jury found that another firm, Custer Battles, defrauded the government by millions of dollars under just one of its Iraq contracts.

□ 1600

So how does this Congress justify ignoring blatant stealing? Do we not all want to get at that? I mean, too many of our soldiers have been asked to do without proper body armor and equipment, and they come home to reduced benefits, and this Congress has found it easy enough to say no to our soldiers; and yet every single time we have been able to say yes to Halliburton.

Is it not time that all of us agree that it is wrong to have this kind of waste, fraud and abuse and to pass this simple amendment?

I urge a "yes" vote.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield an additional 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER), the distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Let me just say to my colleagues here who have stated that we should hold up our contracts and not give new contracts until past contracts are found to be reasonable versus unreasonable. Members have stood on this floor and have called every weapons system since the first Persian tank unreasonable in cost. The B-2 has been called unreasonable. Every ship in the navy has been called unreasonable in the cost. Every fighter aircraft has been called unreasonable in the cost.

The idea that you are not going to have any action on these contracts unless you have a congressional hearing is not true. There is no committee here that has the ability to enforce or not enforce a contract. You have dozens, in fact hundreds, of government lawyers who have every opportunity, indeed have the charge, of going through complex contracts, and where they find that the contract was violated by the contractor, and there are lots of contractors around who are bankrupt to attest to this, that that contract is then acted upon, damages are extracted; and all these are things that we have put in our system of laws.

Now, the idea that you are going to take a major part of the support of an ongoing shooting war and you are going to paralyze it and say, well, it is only for present contracts, the next one that comes up next month, that is going to be different, but you are going to allow present contracts to continue. That could mean that you have got a hiatus in capability, a hiatus in the expertise of these people who have gone out, wearing the uniform of American contractors, put themselves in harm's way and, over the last several years in this war, developed a real expertise.

So I know the gentleman's amendment may play well politically in some quarters, but I think it is bad for the men and women who wear the uniform of the United States because the contractors we are talking about are the people supporting them right now in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from California, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, says that reasonableness is something that could be subjective. Some people think that certain weapons systems may not be reasonable. Well, reasonableness is not some vague standard we picked out of the air. It comes directly from section 31.201-3(a) of the Defense Contract Audit Agency's "Contract Audit Manual." That provision reads: "A cost is reasonable if, in its nature and amount, it does not exceed that which would be incurred by a prudent person in the conduct of competitive business."

Every government auditor knows this standard. It is a standard that the Pentagon's own auditors apply to Halliburton. It is the standard that was flouted by the Bush administration, and it is the standard that my amendment would reaffirm.

Now, this last argument, Halliburton's got an expertise and, therefore, they should get future contracts because we may not be able to find someone else with the expertise, and, therefore, we should ignore overcharges, unreasonable charges in excess of $100 million dollar in the past, that is an incredible argument. No matter how many times we may be the victims, or our taxpayers may be the victims, of waste, fraud and abuse, we should continue to pay? That is absurd.

Now, I just submit that we are following the very clear standard in the law, and our amendment does not plow any new ground, and I would urge support for the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, how much time do we have?

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BISHOP of Utah). The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has 4 minutes remaining. The gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) has 30 seconds remaining.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 additional minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

One thing my distinguished friend from California (Mr. WAXMAN) has not shown us is how American laws, existing laws in contract, that govern the acquisition of systems and the acquisition of services, how those laws are not applicable to this American corporation, and so, therefore, we have to say, stop, we are not going to do anymore business with this corporation.

In fact, all the laws that go toward the enforcement of contracts and the contract itself, of course, are enforceable. Fines can be extracted. Other remedies can be extracted; and if there is, in fact, fraud, and I have heard the term "fraud" used in this debate, if there is fraud, that is a crime in contracting. If you commit crime in contracting, you can go to jail. There is no Member of this Chamber who, if a contract is broken between the United States Government and any of our contractors over there, there is no one in this Chamber who is going to say that we should not extract our full remedy under the laws we create and if people are involved in criminal action that they should not be prosecuted.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, $40 for a case of soda, $100 for a bag of laundry, torching an $80,000 truck instead of replacing flat tires, charging 40 times more to transport fuel than reasonable, these are some of the things that Halliburton has been called to task for, not by Democrats, but by the auditors, the professional auditors at the Department of Defense; and they should have been penalized for doing that.

Now, what was, was; but let's don't in the future give them contracts to abuse us again.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), the very distinguished ranking member on the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I am nervous about the amendment. I am nervous because I am not sure, when we have got people out there making contracts for the troops out in the field, there is no question all of us want to take care of the fraud and abuse, all of us. Nobody's done more of a job than you have, the gentleman from California; but I get nervous when we are doing something prospectively. We are not sure of the impact.

I think we would have to change this in conference anyway because we just do not know enough about the impact. You assure us. They are worried about it. So I am very worried about this amendment. I think we would be better off letting the system take care of it. I think when you have fraud and abuse, it has got to be taken care of.

The Congress has the oversight responsibility, but I am not sure legislating for the future is going to solve the problem. That is the thing that worries me.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURTHA. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, the system has failed because the Bush administration paid 97 percent of the charges that the Pentagon auditors found to be unreasonable. So our amendment is structured to apply in the future.

We will have a chance to continue to look at this. I feel comfortable that this is not going to jeopardize anything that is going on in Iraq today and certainly not the existing contracts such as the ongoing logistical contract which Halliburton still has; but for the future, if any company has overcharged by $100 million, we should not be rushing out there and giving them a new contract.

Existing contracts are existing contracts. They should not be rewarded for that overcharging.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I just worry when we do something like this prospectively, we might affect what is going on in the field. None of us want to stop a contract for services to the troops in the field right now, and I think you agree with that.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I respect that. I agree with you. That is why we were very careful in the way we drafted this amendment.

Mr. MURTHA. I know you believe that, but I would err on the side of trying to prevent it. So at this point I would be against the amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of the time.

I would like to say that this is not about a particular company. This is about a policy change, a policy change that we have not had any opportunity to review, with no hearings. We only learned about this amendment late last night, and it is a policy that should not be changed here on the floor without the benefit of some backup hearings and actual review.

Like I said, it sounds like a good idea; but we have just got to be sure. We do not want to interrupt the logistical flow of what our troops need to carry out their mission. There is a major mission under way in Iraq as we speak, Operation Swarmer, and it is the biggest air operation since the war started. We cannot afford to upset an ongoing operation like that.

We have got to support our troops, and if a policy change like this has a negative effect, that is just not good. It is not good for our troops. So I would hope we would oppose this amendment.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment to deny further awards of contracts to contractors that have been found by the Defense auditors to have billed the government for more than $100 million in unreasonable costs.

From the moment Representative WAXMAN and I learned about secret no-bid contracts given to large companies like Halliburton in 2003, for activities in Iraq, we have tried to get the facts on the matter. And it has not been easy to get those facts.

In the course of our investigation, with the help of the Government Accountability Office, we have learned of some pretty terrible things. First, we found that Halliburton was importing oil into Iraq at extremely high prices. We were particularly concerned about the company's decision to import gasoline from Kuwait at a price far above market levels.

Eventually, Defense auditors agreed and found that there were $263 million in unsupported and questioned costs in these contracts. Yet last month, the Corps of Engineers ignored their auditors and reimbursed Halliburton for $254 million—all but $9 million of the questioned costs.

This follows a pattern with Halliburton. The Defense auditors had previously questioned $200 million in costs for meal services provided by the company, which again was overruled by the Army, which gave the company $145 million.

This amendment to deny new contracts to companies that have a history of billing the government for questionable costs is hardly novel. In January, 2004, the Defense Contract Audit Agency itself recommended that the Corps not enter into new contracts with Halliburton, but 3 three days later the Army awarded Halliburton a new $1.2 billion contract.

The amendment before us will ensure that taxpayer money will go to support the troops and help rebuild infrastructure and not fatten the pockets of contractors that have a history of questionable billing practices. I emphasize this amendment will not take any funds away from troop support, but will help support the troops.

It is an embarrassment that there have been virtually no Congressional hearings on the matter. Instead, we must act legislatively.

The best course of action to ensure that our money is going where it is needed in support of the troops is to put an end to future contracts with companies that are serial overchargers. Vote for this amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. VELÁZQUEZ

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. VELÁZQUEZ:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. (a) None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to enforce a deadline described in subsection (b) under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b)).

(b) Subsection (a) applies to any of the following deadlines:

(1) The deadline of April 10, 2006, for physical loan applications and the deadline of May 29, 2006, for economic injury disaster loan applications, as noticed by the Small Business Administration for Major Disaster Declaration numbers 1603 and 1604.

(2) The deadline of March 11, 2006, for physical loan applications and the deadline of May 29, 2006, for economic injury disaster loan applications, as noticed by the Small Business Administration for Major Disaster Declaration number 1605.

(3) The deadline of April 10, 2006, for physical loan applications and the deadline of June 26, 2006, for economic injury disaster loan applications, as noticed by the Small Business Administration for Major Disaster Declaration numbers 1606 and 1607.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. VELÁZQUEZ) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from New York.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

As we all know, the recovery process in the gulf area continues to be ongoing. Victims are still digging out from debris, and many are unable to even get back to their homes and businesses. Unfortunately, these problems have been compounded by the failure of the SBA to provide disaster assistance to these victims.

I offer this amendment today to ensure that the thousands of homes and business owners in the gulf area are not unfairly denied the opportunity to file for a disaster loan. This amendment will give the victims of the hurricanes in the gulf the time they need to assess their situation and make informed decisions about applying for disaster loans.

Without this change, the SBA, by imposing an arbitrary deadline, will create additional and unnecessary hardships on a group of people who have already suffered enough.

The SBA's failures are clearly documented. In response to the hurricanes in the gulf, the SBA issued 2.1 million applications to businesses, homeowners and individuals seeking financial assistance. As of just a few weeks ago, only 400,000 of these applications have been submitted to the SBA for processing. The balance of the applications, 1.7 million, or 80 percent, remain outstanding.

The reasons for these low return rates are plentiful. SBA has failed to supply the necessary assistance to fill out the massive application forms. Potential applicants are being incorrectly told that they are not eligible. On top of this, SBA has also failed to implement an outreach plan in communities to make eligible applicants aware of this program.

Rather than recognizing these problems, the SBA has set March 11 and April 10 application deadlines for physical injury loans, which are the main source of assistance for homes and businesses with physical damage. If these deadlines are maintained, it would have the effect of leaving many potential applicants without the ability to secure Federal financial assistance.

This amendment will make sure that SBA stays in the gulf until the job is done.

The failures of the SBA have already created unnecessary hardship and frustration in the gulf region. SBA has declined an unprecedented 65 percent of loans. The agency has a backlog of over 60,000 loans. SBA has a processing time of 80 days, nearly triple the normal time. All of these issues have created confusion and consternation among residents.

By voting for this amendment, we will make sure the victims of this disaster are not punished for the failures of our Federal Government. We cannot turn our back on these victims.

I urge a "yes" vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1615

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The chairman of the Small Business Committee opposes this amendment, the chairman of the authorizing committee. This amendment keeps the application period for SBA disaster loans open indefinitely. This could expose the disaster loan program to waste, fraud, and abuse that would virtually be impossible for the SBA to accurately verify losses as more time elapses from when the hurricanes struck the gulf coast.

This amendment is also unnecessary because the administration has already had the ability to extend the application deadline, and has done so three times. So if they have the ability to do it, and they have done it, and they have done it three times, and your authorizing chairman would oppose it, why would you want to do it? In fact, the deadline was just extended for another 30 days, to April 10, for Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

So, if there was a need, the administration would do it again. If the gentlewoman wants to change the parameters of the disaster loans, she should work within her position and with the ranking member and come up with something that everyone could agree on.

In the interest of time, I would just say that I oppose the amendment. It can lead to a lot of problems.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Let me just say that SBA, before we start talking about deadlines, we need to get SBA to process the 60,000 applications that are in backlog. They need to do a better job in educating people so that we can get more than 19 percent of the applications back.

They need to fix the system where they have been declining 60 percent of all the loans that have been submitted to SBA. They need to do the job before they pull out, and that is an excuse for them not to do the job.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. The administration has extended this several times.

Secondly, the gentlewoman seems to constantly be criticizing SBA at every turn. We are going to ask the National Academy for Public Administration, somebody, to find truth out here and then begin. If you constantly browbeat and it is not accurate, you should be careful when you say things, because words mean things.

The chairman was before our committee yesterday. And so what we are going to do is, we are going to ask the National Academy of Public Administration to take a look at all these charges that go back and forth, because if we are constantly attacking Federal employees in program after program, I mean words matter. We just can't use this institution to attack people.

This place has turned into a partisan pit and it is time to bring some objectivity. So what we are going to do, we are going to take all of your charges, all of your comments, all of your complaints, all of your criticisms, all your condemnations and ask the National Academy of Public Administration to look at it to find out some truth.

This is a bad amendment. You are on the authorizing committee. You could do it. If we are going to do everything here, why do we even need an authorizing committee?

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, how much time do I have remaining?

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BISHOP of Utah). The gentlewoman has 90 seconds.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Well, let me just say this. Isn't it true that there are 60,000 applications in backlog? Isn't it true that 19 percent, only 19 percent have been processed? Isn't it true that there is 65 percent declined on loans approval?

This is not about partisanship, this is about victims who are suffering, who are losing their businesses, who are losing their jobs. This is what this amendment is all about.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, do I have the right to close?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Yes.

Mr. WOLF. Then I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from New York has 1 minute remaining.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, in a hearing yesterday on the disaster loan program, we heard two different stories on this equation in the gulf. We heard from the SBA administrator who said that everything is great. He told the committee that they are processing record numbers of loans and that there are virtually no problems. At the same time, we have a small business owner, Patricia Smith, who came in from New Orleans and told her story.

She told the committee how she could not find a Federal official to help her apply for a loan and how she spent hours working through paperwork. She told us that it took months to hear back on the status of her loan and that she was wrongly denied. The woman also shared that there are thousands out there with the same story.

The view from Washington, and what is actually going on in the gulf coast region is very different. By extending the deadline for disaster loans, we will give victims the ability to assess their situation and make an informed decision about getting an SBA loan.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. How much time do I have, Mr. Chairman?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. WOLF. Several years ago, you said if we abolished the loan guarantees, the world would come to an end. We abolished them, and now the number of loans are up. They are at a record number.

So what we are going to do, and I think the body should know, we want the SBA to work well, we want them to make the loans, but if we are constantly hammering and criticizing and condemning and governing by press release we don't get very far. So what we are going to do is we are going to ask the National Academy of Public Administration, a nonpartisan group, to come in and look at the gentlewoman's charges and all these things and come back and give us an honest report so we will know. But if we are just harassing Federal employees and criticizing them at every step of the way, we really don't accomplish very much.

And I would say that you did say, and I will submit for the record what you said about abolishing the loan guarantees, but by doing that, we saved the taxpayer about $170 million. The loans are up. That was basically a subsidy for the bankers. The banking lobby wanted that and we took it away and now we saved the taxpayers money.

This is a bad amendment. Vote it down.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. VELÁZQUEZ).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New York will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. VELÁZQUEZ

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. VELÁZQUEZ:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to make or guarantee a loan under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b)) other than a loan for which the borrower is charged an interest rate in accordance with section 7(c)(5) of such Act, as in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. VELÁZQUEZ) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from New York.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, while the House will begin debating the budget resolution in the coming weeks, this amendment offers the first vote on one of the initiatives introduced in the President's 2007 budget. This amendment provides Members the opportunity to send a clear message that victims of disasters should not be subject to additional and unnecessary burdens by the Federal Government.

Buried in the President's budget submission was a proposal to raise the interest rates on SBA's disaster loans. This initiative will eliminate the current caps on interest rates and allow for the SBA to charge higher rates on disaster loans. This could mean that interest rates go up by as much as 50 percent.

The end result will force those who had their homes or businesses destroyed to pay for our budget problems here in Washington. I offer this amendment today to ensure that we stop this wrongheaded proposal in its tracks. It puts Congress on record making it clear that an attempt to create additional hardships on disaster victims will not be tolerated.

Given all the missteps by FEMA and SBA in the gulf, Congress should not be adding to the problems of those hit by a natural disaster. Findings by the General Accounting Office, various inspector generals and congressional panels have revealed the numerous ways the Federal Government has failed our citizens in the gulf. By supporting this amendment, Congress will be saying that we stand together in these difficult times.

I am a firm believer in balancing our spending priorities, but this proposal is beyond the pale. I find it hard to believe, particularly given all the wasteful spending in Washington, that the only place to find funding is on the backs of disaster victims. Whatever happened to compassionate conservatism?

The effect of the administration's proposal will mean increased costs by thousands of dollars for disaster victims. It is alarming that despite all the problems with the management of the disaster loan program the only change the President offered in his budget was to increase the cost on disaster victims.

We agree that changes need to be made to the disaster loan program, but this is not one of them. By voting for this amendment, Congress expresses its commitment to rejecting this bad idea. I urge a "yes" vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. This amendment has absolutely, positively, categorically nothing to do with an emergency supplemental bill that we are considering today. It is an attempt to stop a legislative proposal related to the fiscal year 2007 budget, which, as an authorizer, you will get to have that opportunity. And it will come out on the floor one way or the other, and the Congress will have the opportunity to vote on it.

The proposal will have to be considered by the committee. SBA cannot unilaterally make the changes. So the Congress should know that the authorizers in the Congress set the rate. It is not the administration. So we are going to have that opportunity when Mr. MANZULLO and the members, minority and majority, make it.

Lastly, it is not necessary and it will have no effect, because it is just simply an attempt to prejudge a proposal by the administration for next fiscal year, and that is not something that you would do in a supplemental. If you would do that in a supplemental bill, we should just abolish every other bill and put everything in a supplemental bill, because then everything is a supplemental.

So it is a bad amendment, and I urge you to vote "no."

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I would simply note, given what the gentleman just said, that is exactly what we have done with Iraq. Every dollar of the Iraq war has been financed through a supplemental appropriation. That is the way the administration has been able to hide from the taxpayers the full long-term cost of this war. That is the way they have been able to avoid systematic oversight. They put it in a supplemental, and then it is a must-pass, hurry-up, piece-at-a-time operation. Eventually you get the whole pie, but you get it in pieces, and the public doesn't know what the total picture is.

So I would simply say that I was kind of amused by that comment because the administration is way ahead of all of us. They decided a long time ago that they are going to supplemental the Congress to death, and they put every possible dollar they can into supplementals. They have yet to spend $1 in a regular defense appropriation bill for Iraq.

So I just find it interesting that one person is expected to live up to a standard that the administration itself won't live up to.

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Let me just say that this is a cornerstone of the President's budget for SBA, and I think it is important that Congress go on record on this issue, particularly for us Democrats. And what we are saying today is, it is a bad idea, and we need to make it clear from the beginning, from the start, that we want to balance the budget but not at the expense of disaster victims.

And that is exactly what we are doing with this amendment today. We must prevent any of these funds from being used for higher interest loans in disaster loans for victims. We have to make sure that if money is carried over, that it will not be used for higher interest loans that will impact disaster victims.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. How much time do I have remaining, Mr. Chairman?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has 1½ minutes.

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment would ensure that the disaster loan program remains an affordable source of capital for those affected by future disasters. When the program works, it has served to create the public-private partnership that balances the needs of fiscal constraint and compassion for our fellow Americans.

The administration's proposal to raise interest rates on disaster loans will simply leave the victims to fend for themselves.

□ 1630

In the end, it is in our best economic interest to get these communities back up and running and creating the jobs they have proven they can create. By voting "yes," we are telling the administration that raising interest rates on disaster loans is a bad idea and Congress will not support it. I urge a "yes" vote.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We would like to work with your staff and have our staff sit down so we can ask NAPA questions that you think are important, issues like this and other issues. What we want to do is work with you, get the National Academy of Public Administration to answer these questions and so we can find out one way or the other. Would that be appropriate?

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I would be happy to do that; but I have to tell you, victims in the gulf region cannot wait until we have such a discussion, and that is why this amendment is important to be voted on today.

Mr. WOLF. But if there is something wrong with regard to the SBA, I think it is important to find that out and identify that with Mr. MANZULLO and ask any questions you want to have NAPA answer so we can put it together and finally get to the bottom.

I urge a "no" vote on the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. BISHOP of Utah). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Ms. VELAZQUEZ).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New York will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LEE

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. LEE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to implement, administer, or enforce the termination of the hotel and motel emergency sheltering program established by FEMA for families displaced by Hurricane Katrina and other hurricanes of the 2005 season.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) and the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This amendment is very simple. This amendment would prevent FEMA from evicting from hotels and motels the thousands of families who were affected by the hurricanes on the gulf coast last summer.

Mr. Chairman, 6 months ago, the entire world watched the wealthiest, most powerful country on Earth turn its back on those who couldn't afford to evacuate their homes in advance and during the hurricanes. People were left to fend for themselves on rooftops, trying to save their lives and the lives of their families.

We cannot sweep under the rug the faces and the images of those who were disproportionately abandoned by their government. Unfortunately, today, 6 months after the storm, the majority of these people are still fending for themselves. The people of New Orleans and the gulf coast have experienced more tragedy and more suffering in the last 6 months than anyone should have to face in a lifetime. It is bad enough that they suffered through one of the worst natural disasters in the history of United States, it is bad enough that they lost their homes and their jobs and their livelihoods, it is bad enough that they are suffering mental breakdowns, high suicide rates and high rates of post-dramatic stress. And it is bad enough the insurance companies are trying to dodge their obligations to pay out claims to property owners.

But now to add insult to injury, yesterday their own government, our government, ended payments for hotel and motel rooms for thousands of displaced Katrina evacuees. Where will all of these people go? We already have a huge homeless population in this country. Why are we creating a new generation of Katrina homeless?

This lacks morality and is about as low as you can go. What benefit does the Federal Government have in kicking people when they are down?

Today, the newspapers are filled with accounts of people who were kicked out of their rooms and have no place to go. There are reports of families piling their possessions out of hotels and motels and into trucks, but with nowhere to go. This is just disgraceful. What kind of a message do we send with these evictions? What do we say to the rest of the world? What does it say about our values and our priorities and really what we believe in terms of putting people first?

I believe we have to send a different message, and we can do that today. We have to reject the actions of FEMA and this administration and prevent people from getting kicked out of their hotel and motel rooms.

By passing my amendment, we would block FEMA from using any money in this bill to evict people living in hotels and motels as a result of Hurricane Katrina. We should not allow FEMA to dump people on the streets. That is just plain wrong. That is all it is, it is wrong. That should not be done. This is unjust.

Let us help at least stabilize their lives and give them a safe place to sleep without worrying about being on the streets. Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in opposition to this amendment which would prohibit FEMA from terminating its hotel and motel emergency sheltering program. This language is overly restrictive. At its peak, FEMA had more than 85,000 hotel rooms rented per night. The current subsidized hotel-room population is 3,780 households with the vast majority being in Louisiana.

FEMA is now in the process of transitioning these remaining hotel/motel residents into more appropriate housing. We do not want families living in motels. We all want to see those families in a better environment, longer term housing solutions such as apartments and the like.

This transition will occur over the coming weeks. To date, over 2,500 have already been matched up against not-yet-ready temporary housing, trailers, apartments and the like. The remainders include hard-to-place individuals, the disabled and people like that; and FEMA will continue to provide hotel/motel assistance to those people until a suitable temporary housing solution is identified and prepared.

Members should be assured that people are not being thrown out in the streets. FEMA is working with families to place them in appropriate housing solutions. This amendment would keep in place a program in the long term that is not good for the recipients or anyone else. So I urge Members to vote against the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), who is a real leader and was down there helping people save their lives during this tragedy.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I simply wanted to come down here and support the gentlewoman's amendment because yesterday 4,007 codes expired. We do not know where those people are. We do not know if they have housing. As a matter of fact, there are news reports this morning that are telling us there are people who have nowhere to go.

I thank the gentlewoman for attempting to send some direction to FEMA. It is shameful and outrageous what has happened with the poor victims of Hurricane Katrina. From the time they started with the shelters until now, they have not come up with a reasonable program by which to provide housing.

I thank the gentlewoman for everything she has done, and I simply hope we can get support for this amendment so that the $88 billion that we have appropriated to deal with this catastrophe can be used. I know FEMA has used 25 percent of this money on administrative costs. That is outrageous. We want that money to be used to provide shelter to the people who need it.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

This issue speaks to who we are as a country. We know there are people living on the streets, and we know there are people who have been really just played around with in terms of you have to evict, you do not. You have 5 more days; you have 10 more days. You have to call this number and get a voucher. Maybe we will extend it another week; maybe it will be 2 weeks. The deadline is tomorrow.

What in the world are these people supposed to do, Mr. Chairman? I think until we fix this where everybody has decent transitional housing, we should just say "no" to evictions. That is what this is about. "No" to evictions to people who have already been traumatized and hurt.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, it is not true that the time is up. Eligible Hurricane Katrina victims with no other housing means may be eligible for 3 months' worth of housing assistance. And the deadline application for individual assistance has been extended until April 11. So I would urge defeat of this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LEE

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. LEE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Government of the United States to enter into a basing rights agreement between the United States and Iraq.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the order of the House of Wednesday, March 15, 2006, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) and a Member opposed each will control 15 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

First, I would like to thank the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) for working with me on this amendment and for his leadership and for being here to speak on this today.

This amendment is not about the war, although I offered an alternative to keep us out of Iraq when this war began. This amendment is not about bringing our troops home, although I believe we should do that and do it right away.

This amendment is not about holding the President accountable for misleading us into an unjust and unnecessary war, although he should.

Mr. Chairman, the amendment I am offering is very simple. It would provide that no funds would be used under this bill to enter into military base agreements between the United States and Iraq. Stating this will clearly indicate that the United States has no intention of making military bases permanent.

Mr. Chairman, can't we all agree on that right here and now, that we should not be in Iraq permanently? Unfortunately, this administration's position is unclear.

The President shares our views and said as much, I thought. On April 13, 2004, President Bush said, "As a proud and independent people, Iraqis do not support an indefinite occupation, and neither does America."

But just yesterday, General Abizaid, the general in charge of U.S. troops in Iraq, told a Defense Appropriations Committee that the U.S. could end up having bases in Iraq. So I think we need to be clear. The aim of my amendment is to simply codify the sentiment that the President and many of our constituents and many of us strongly believe here.

As we stand here today, the United States has renewed a bombing campaign against the insurgents, the largest assault since the invasion; and this is taking us in exactly the wrong direction. Destroying villages in the hopes of routing out insurgents only creates more insurgents.

In adopting this amendment, we can take the target off our troops' backs by sending a strong and immediate signal to the Iraqi people, the insurgents, and the international community that the United States has no designs on Iraq.

This very simple point is supported by a poll conducted by the University of Maryland's Program on International Policy Attitudes earlier this year. They found that 76 percent of Iraqis believe that the United States will maintain bases in Iraq permanently even if the newly elected government asks the United States to leave Iraq.

Mr. Chairman, we need to be on record that we must not have permanent military bases in Iraq. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1645

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition. I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN).

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the time and also for her leadership on this issue. She and I both have bills to make U.S. policy that there be no permanent military bases in Iraq; and that is what we are, an amendment to that effect is here today. It reads that none of the funds made available under this act may be used by the government of the United States to enter into a basing rights agreement between the United States and Iraq.

It is true that the administration is unclear on this. Secretary Rumsfeld has said we have no plans or no discussions under way to have permanent bases in that country. But I just got off the phone with a reporter from Maine who said his son served there and those aren't temporary bases that we have there.

General Casey has said that we should gradually reduce the visibility of coalition forces across Iraq because that would take away one of the elements that fuels the insurgency.

What we have learned in a very painful way is that the opinions of other people matter. The opinions of the Iraqis matter. They believe we came there to take their oil, and they believe that we are going to stay there permanently. We have to make an official U.S. policy that we will not stay in Iraq on a permanent basis, that we are going to withdraw our troops, that we will not have military bases there; and that will help diminish somewhat the insurgency that is raging there today.

Just last week General Abizaid testified that the United States may still wish to maintain a long-term presence in the region. It is that kind of confusion, those kinds of mixed signals that we need to clear up with this amendment today.

The Zogby poll recently indicated that 70 percent of American troops believe we should be out of Iraq within the year. Our troops deserve to be told that we are not going to stay. The Iraqis need to be assured that we are not going to say, and this amendment is the path to that result.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. SCHAKOWSKY).

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Chairman, I am proud to cosponsor the Lee amendment to prohibit any funds from the supplemental from being used to enter into a basing rights agreement between the United States and Iraq. It is clear that the Iraqis, Shiites and Sunnis alike, in overwhelming numbers, do not want us to stay there. And the Secretary of Defense has said that there are no plans or discussions under way to have permanent bases in that country. So this would codify that. This would make sure that that is true.

And yet it has been suggested by top military leaders, including General John Abizaid, as recently as this week, that the United States may want to keep a long-term military presence in Iraq. If true, this is a scheme fraught with danger. As anyone knows that watches television or reads the paper, the presence of U.S. troops in Iraq has been a powerful recruiting tool for the Iraqi insurgency. And General George Casey has agreed with that, saying that by getting our troops out of there that we would take away one of the elements that fuels the insurgency. Please support this amendment. It is good for our troops and good for our country and theirs.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS).

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the House, this is a great opportunity in the amendment brought forward by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE). The reason this is a good opportunity, it gets to the heart of what is tearing us apart and preventing us from being as effective as we could in the Middle East. The best way to do that is to clearly express, by statute, the fact that we are not there to build military permanent bases. And the reason is that when we do that we will alleviate a lot of the problem and suspicions that currently exist.

Join us in this bipartisan effort to make sure that American intentions in the Middle East are for the first time explicitly stated by law.

Ms. LEE. I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, in December 2004, I requested the Congressional Research Service to compile a report on military construction in both Iraq and Afghanistan. On April 11, 2005, I received the final report. Here is what it said: the Congressional Research Service found projects that suggest a longer term U.S. presence in Iraq. These included $214 million for the Balad Air Base and $49 million for the Taji military complex.

This is the first congressional report that identified specific locations in Iraq where the U.S. is possibly constructing a permanent military presence in Iraq. At the appropriate time, I will enter this in the RECORD.

Now I want to know, did anyone here vote to establish permanent bases in Iraq when they voted to invade that country? Did anyone here vote to send U.S. troops permanently to Iraq? Weren't we going to war on the belief Iraq had weapons of mass destruction? Weren't we going to war on the belief that Iraq was an imminent threat of a mushroom cloud the administration warned about? All that proved to be false. If the President had told you he wanted to spend over $300 billion and 2,300 American lives, plus tens of thousands of maimed servicemembers to build new military bases, permanent deployment of U.S. troops in the Mesopotamian Valley, would anyone here have supported that? I don't think so.

That is why this administration had to fabricate a pretense for the invasion, and that is why you have to support the Lee amendment today. Do not allow this ill-conceived war to lead to a permanent deployment of troops in Iraq. Bring them home. Close down those bases.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. HARMAN).

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Chairman, this month marks the third anniversary of the U.S. invasion of Iraq. Our troops, who have performed heroically, want to finish their mission and return home.

Success in Iraq depends on true power-sharing, and that will not happen so long as Iraqis suspect that the United States will maintain permanent military bases. That is why I strongly support the Lee amendment, which will send a clear signal to the Iraqi people that the United States does not seek a permanent presence.

Mr. Chairman, I have spoken to the President, the Vice President, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff about this. Statements by Secretary Rumsfeld alone are not sufficient. Only when the President makes clear that we intend to leave Iraq, not to referee a civil war, will Iraqis realize that power-sharing is their best and last hope.

I thank my good friend, Congresswoman LEE, for introducing this important amendment, and I thank her for her courageous stands all the time in the House.

Ms. LEE. I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, this is an important statement that we are making. And again I am sure that we will experience ridicule because I will stand here and say that I believe that the troops have done their job, their patriotic job, the job of defending America. They have won the victory, and it is time for them to come home.

We must redeploy our troops. And for all of those who say that many of us do not have a plan, we do. And that plan incorporates the gentlewoman's amendment, and I thank her for her leadership, and that is that we want to redeploy and we want to vest in Iraq and the Iraqi people and soldiers the defense of their nation. Therefore, we want to insure that there will be no basing rights between the United States and Iraq, no permanency, no establishing of our obligation to defend and defend and defend.

We just had a debate about avoiding the eviction of thousands of Americans from places where they are living because they have no place to live because of the hurricane disaster. It is time now to redeploy. We do have a plan for Iraq to control their government and to be able to defend themselves and to bring our troops home and to disestablish any relationship of a base in Iraq.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. PRICE).

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Lee amendment prohibiting the use of funds to establish permanent American bases on Iraqi soil. We must make clear to the Iraqi people and to the American people that our operations in Iraq are not open-ended and that we have no designs on Iraqi oil and territory.

Earlier this week, in a hearing of the Military Quality of Life and Veterans Affairs Appropriations Subcommittee,

I asked General John Abizaid, the top American general in the Middle East, if he could make an unequivocal commitment that the U.S. does not intend to establish permanent bases in Iraq. His answer was that he could not.

Two days after our Ambassador to Iraq said that the U.S. has, "no goal of establishing permanent bases in Iraq," General Abizaid said that the policy on long-term presence in Iraq had not been formulated. Three years into this war, if administration officials cannot make up their minds and articulate a coherent policy, it is time that Congress did it for them. Support the Lee amendment.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. President, we need a sign. The American people believed you when you told us that you had to have a preemptive strike because there were weapons of mass destruction. There were no weapons of mass destruction.

You told us we would be welcome, our soldiers would be welcome with open arms. They are not welcome with open arms. The Sunnis, the Shiites and the Kurds all want to end this occupation. They want us out of there.

Mr. President, you told us that the oil that you would pump from the oil wells in Iraq would pay for the rebuilding of Iraq. They are pumping less oil now than they were before the war.

You claimed that you were training soldiers to take over the security of the country. But we are finding bodies every day. In the last 2 days, there were 85 bodies found. In the last couple of weeks, there have been over 2,000 bodies found. The civil war has begun. The IEDs are exploding every day.

And Mr. President, you said that you would redeploy. We need you to give us a sign. All of those people who support him, you need to give us a sign. You can do that with this amendment by simply supporting the Lee amendment that will not allow for permanent bases. You have let us down on everything else. You can do this one. Support the Lee amendment. No permanent bases in Iraq.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Northern California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

Ms. WOOLSEY. Every single Member of Congress should be able to support this amendment, unless, of course, the goal is to have permanent presence in Iraq. We can demonstrate to the Iraqi people that we won't occupy their country indefinitely by voting "yes" today.

In fact, the Iraqi insurgency is largely incited by the very fact that after 3 full years of war, we show no intention of leaving. Our military presence must end. We must bring our troops home. We must give Iraq back to the Iraqi people. And in so doing, no permanent bases and no control over their oil.

Mr. Chairman, ending the war and helping the Iraqi people get back on their feet is absolutely possible, and it must start now. We can start this process by making a strong statement that the United States of America has no plan to maintain a permanent military presence in Iraq.

I urge all of my colleagues vote for the Lee-Allen amendment.

□ 1700

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY).

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I want to express my appreciation to the gentlewoman from California for this amendment, which prevents funding for permanent bases in Iraq, and also because it draws our attention to other consequences.

One is the tragic occupation, which has been going on in Iraq now for almost 3 years, and the consequences of that tragic occupation, which has been endorsed and supported by this Congress over and over again. It also draws our attention to the rationale for the invasion of Iraq and the subsequent occupation, a rationale which was presented to this Congress and to the American people in the most fraudulent and deceitful way.

It draws attention to the fact that it is a criminal violation of Federal law to present false and misleading information to the Congress in order to get them to take action. Most importantly, it draws our attention to the fact that the Congress has done nothing about it. We are now facing the third anniversary of the invasion and subsequent occupation of Iraq, and we must face the fact that this Congress has failed in its obligations and responsibilities to oversee the executive branch.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. POE). The gentlewoman from California has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, let me ask the gentlewoman a question on my time.

Do you know how many additional speakers you may have?

Ms. LEE. I believe Mr. HINCHEY needs another minute and Mr. MORAN needs 1½ minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Frankly I will be glad to yield to the two of them some of my time and I presume that you might want to use the last minute to close and we can close this up.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to my colleague from the committee.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend from the Appropriations Committee and my good friend from California. I want my colleagues to consider some facts.

One is with this amendment that we will have now spent as much as we did in the entire Vietnam War. Does anybody think that that $400 billion was well spent in retrospect? Consider the fact that 82 percent of the Sunnis and 69 percent of the Shi'a want us to withdraw immediately. In fact, the majority say that our presence is hurting rather than helping Iraq's future. Consider what happened when the British concluded their occupation.

The first people the Iraqis went after were those who cooperated with the British, considering them collaborators. Then they went after the foreigners that were trying to exploit the situation. We have a responsibility to get those foreign terrorists, al-Zarqawi and all of the al-Qaeda.

But the Iraqi people were never a threat to the United States. They are not now. Let us work with the Iraqis, get rid of the foreign terrorists, but not establish any permanent bases in Iraq.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I will just close by thanking you, Mr. LEWIS, for giving us time and for allowing for those who have a real perspective, the passion, the understanding to speak on this issue tonight. It is so important that the country understand that whether we agreed or disagreed with the war, that many of us believe there should be no permanent presence in Iraq.

We support our troops. We want them out of harm's way. We know that any notion of a permanent occupation or permanent bases continues to put our young men and women in harm's way. It is about time now that these signals be clear to the rest of the world. As I said, we get mixed signals from the administration.

I think it is now the time for this House to say that whatever we believed, when this war started, we do not want to be a permanent occupying force, and we do not want permanent military bases in Iraq.

Thank you for being so generous, Mr. LEWIS.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, in the time I have spent in and around Iraq I have seen a fabulous facility at Camp Doha that is meeting most of our challenges in the region. I see it developing significantly in the future. I don't see a need for a permanent facility in Iraq. I doubt there will even be a suggestion of that. On the other hand, I think the discussion was very healthy.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by my distinguished colleague from California. When the president took our country to war, he promised that victory would be swift and that our troops would not stay in Iraq one day longer than necessary.

Three years and 300 billion dollars later, with over 2,300 American soldiers dead and more than ten thousand wounded, victory is nowhere in sight.

The president and vice president, the secretary of defense and high ranking generals have continued to assure the American people that our presence in Iraq is temporary.

Yet, at the same time, the Department of Defense is paying Halliburton subsidiary Kellogg Brown and Root billions of dollars to build 14 "enduring" bases in Iraq.

The Iraqis see what is happening on the ground, and they haven't fallen for the Administration's misrepresentation.

According to recent opinion polls, a large majority of Iraqis believe that the U.S. military has no intention to leave Iraq, and that it would stay even if asked by the Iraqi government to leave.

The presence of American troops is fueling the insurgency in Iraq, as acknowledged by General Casey and numerous other experts, and is helping terrorist recruiters build their numbers across the globe.

Mr. Chairman, we cannot afford to continue sending these mixed signals.

If we want to build the Iraqis' confidence about our intentions in their country, if we want to stop adding fuel to the fire of insurgency and terrorism, we must clarify our intent.

Because the Administration is unable to send a clear message about America's intentions in Iraq, Congress must take this responsibility.

We must make our policy of no permanent bases explicit by force of law.

Mr. Chairman, the concern raised in the gentlewoman from California's amendment is the same concern that has determined my vote on the underlying bill. The Administration and the majority in this body continue to evade the question of how long we will remain in Iraq, and how much we plan to spend on this war.

It is with deep regret that I vote against passage of this supplemental.

Since Hurricane Katrina wrought havoc on our Gulf coast, I have decried the federal government's stingy approach to aid and reconstruction.

I have joined with my colleagues for years in urging the Administration to provide more funding for veterans' benefits.

I fully support increased LIHEAP funding, as well as aid to Liberia and Sudan.

But, Mr. Chairman, I will not be held hostage by the majority's cynical two-step trick to ensure continued funding for their failed policy in Iraq.

The majority continues to separate Iraq funding from the overall defense budget so that they can hide the true cost of the war and then force the Congress to pass these so-called "emergency" supplemental appropriations.

And the majority has bundled this war appropriation with funding for numerous important programs that we all favor, in order to force the legislation through and do an end run around real debate.

I am a Korean War veteran. I support our troops as much as anyone in this body, but I do so by advocating redeployment out of Iraq as soon as it can be safely done. I would vote any time for additional funds to pay for such safe redeployment. For this reason I have signed on to the proposal of my colleague Mr. MCGOVERN, H.R. 4232, the End of the War in Iraq Act.

Mr. Chairman, this vote is not about "supporting the troops." This bill is just one more attempt to tie the Congress' hands by forcing us to give up our only means of control over the war, the power of the purse. I will not be blackmailed into approving funding for an open-ended continuation of our participation in hostilities in Iraq. If the Congress acquiesces on this vote, it is in effect agreeing to fund this disastrous policy for as long as this Administration sees fit. From all indications, no end is in sight.

Mr. Chairman, the price for continuing this war is too high, not only in budgetary terms, but in American lives, Iraqi civilian casualties blamed on America and in the steady increase in the terrorist ranks that this war is provoking around the globe.

The American taxpayers should not have to send one more penny on the Administration's Iraq misadventure. Let's give our troops the supplies they need to get out of Iraq safely. Let's bring our troops home.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Chairman, I seek time to enter into a colloquy with the gentleman from California and the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. Chairman, the rules prevent us from offering an amendment to the underlying bill to address health problems arising in the aftermath of Katrina. Thus I thank the gentleman for yielding the time to enter into a colloquy with the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who has worked very hard on Katrina issues, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) who has likewise been a stalwart supporter of those of us who are working so hard to bring our region back.

Mr. Chairman, rebuilding the Medical Center of Louisiana at New Orleans as a comprehensive public health hospital is a number 1 priority for public health and health care infrastructure of New Orleans since Katrina. Compared to most cities, New Orleans has a large percentage of poor and unhealthy residents.

Mr. Chairman, this perspective is not shared by FEMA. To date, FEMA has authorized $23 million out of $258 million requested. I thank the gentleman very much for permitting me to enter into this colloquy.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I would just say I am very happy to work with the gentleman to try to deal with the problem.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, further, I look forward to working with both the gentlemen and am anxious to do everything we can to make this thing work as we deliver aid and support to the people in and around New Orleans.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments?

SEQUENTIAL VOTES POSTPONED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

Amendment by Mr. WAXMAN of California.

The first amendment by Ms. VELÁZQUEZ of New York.

The second amendment by Ms. VELÁZQUEZ of New York.

Amendment by Ms. LEE of California.

Under the previous order of the House of today, the Chair will reduce to 2 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WAXMAN

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

□ 1745

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated for:

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Chairman, during rollcall vote No. 63 on the Lee amendment to H.R. 4939, to prohibit the use of funds from being available to implement, administer, or enforce the termination of the hotel and motel emergency sheltering program established by FEMA for families displaced by Hurricane Katrina and other hurricanes of the 2005 season, I was on a leave of absence due to illness. Had I been present, I would have voted "aye."

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, Congressman JACK MURTHA from Pennsylvania, a decorated Marine from the Vietnam War and the most respected person in the House of Representatives on military affairs, has the Iraq situation just about right. A free and stable Iraq cannot be achieved militarily. We should not be suffering casualties nearly three years after that fateful day on the carrier off San Diego when President Bush declared "Mission Accomplished," and yet 93 percent of our casualties have occurred since that day.

The Iraqis must make hard political decisions. They must decide if they want a unified country with shared power and responsibility proportionate to population and protected rights for all. As long as we run the military operations and bear the brunt of casualties, the political decisions are avoided. We must make it clear that we will not be caught in their civil war if the Iraqis do not want a unified country enough to avoid a civil war politically.

We must make a concerted effort to persuade the EU, NATO and the rest of our allies to help train Iraqi security forces and establish a judicial system so Iraqis can regain their lives. President Bush's repeated claim that nearly 200,000 Iraqi police and army personnel have been trained to secure Iraq has been disputed for months, even by our own military leaders. However, those Iraqis, whatever their numbers, must stand up for a unified Iraq if that is what they want and believe in. Finally, we need to withdraw from Iraq expeditiously within 2006.

I am voting against this supplemental budget because it simply enables the president to continue his totally flawed and incompetently managed misadventure without forcing the Iraqis to reach political accommodations that can end the insurgency and create a stable, unified country. This war supplemental will be followed by another equally large one as soon as our November elections have passed. You can bet on it.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in support of the supplemental budget despite reservations about parts of this legislation. While I think this bill could be substantially improved, I also believe that, on balance, it does more good than harm. This bill provides funds for a number of important purposes, including the equipment necessary to support and protect our troops in Iraq and Afghanistan; emergency relief for the victims of hurricane Katrina; and funds to support international efforts to stop the mass killings of innocent people in Sudan. I will address each of these in turn.

Let me start with Iraq. While I opposed the President's decision to go to war in Iraq and Afghanistan, I am supporting this bill because I believe we must provide our troops with the necessary equipment while they are there. I also believe, however, that the President has failed to provide the American people with a viable plan for success in Iraq. This bill fails to include benchmarks to hold the Administration accountable. The bill also fails to include adequate safeguards to ensure that the funds are spent responsibly.

Millions of dollars have already been lost or wasted in Iraq due to poor oversight. Every effort must be made to prevent another Halliburton from growing fat at the expense of the American taxpayer. I recently supported an amendment in the Government Reform Committee that would have held the federal government responsible for overspending and general mismanagement of federal funds. Despite the common sense nature of this amendment, it failed on a party line vote. This Congress has totally failed in its oversight responsibilities with respect to these funds.

Let me now turn to Afghanistan. I supported the decision to take military action against al Qaeda and the Taliban in Afghanistan. I believe we have not yet completed our mission there. Osama bin Laden remains at large, al Qaeda continues to operate and the Taliban have stepped up their attacks. In the face of these realities, the funds provided for U.S. and international efforts in Afghanistan are inadequate.

During a recent hearing before the House Appropriations Committee, Ronald Neumann, our Ambassador in Afghanistan testified that not enough was being appropriated for our efforts there. I agree. This bill fails to meet the commitments we have made to Afghanistan. It defers the promised cancellation of Afghanistan's $11 billion debt owed to the United States; it cuts $16 million from USAID for mission security in Afghanistan and reduces by $2.2 billion Department of Defense funds for Afghan security force training. The bill also cuts funds for counter-narcotics activities in Afghanistan from $193 million to $157 million.

As U.S. commanders prepare to devolve more responsibility for security to other coalition partners and to the Afghans, they must account for the fact that it could take years and billions of dollars to achieve the level of self-sustainability necessary to provide for Afghanistan's infrastructure and national security needs.

A critical test will occur this summer as the U.S. military officially hands over control of the dangerous southern region to NATO forces. Counter-insurgency has never been NATO's job and there are questions about whether it is ready and willing to take on this new role. The volatile southern region has the highest incidents of terrorism, drug trafficking and organized crime in the country. Of the more than 100 American soldiers killed in insurgency attacks in the last year—most of the deaths occurred in the southern region.

We must recognize that it is in our national security interest to work with the Afghan people. We must work to accelerate efforts to build and strengthen national institutions, the economy and Afghan security. By reducing the funding for Afghan operations at this critical time we are sending the wrong message to our troops, to our allies and to the people of Afghanistan.

Next, to help the victims of Hurricane Katrina, the bill contains $19 billion to aid recovery and reconstruction efforts. Most of the funds will go to the Federal Emergency Management Agency but $4 billion will go towards community development and for loans to homeowners, renters and businesses. Months after the hurricane, thousands of people are still looking for permanent homes. This funding will help citizens displaced by Hurricane Katrina rebuild their lives.

This bill also contains emergency funding to help those suffering in Sudan. The United States and the international community have failed to take adequate steps to stop the genocide. This bill at least attempts to alleviate the suffering. It includes $66 million for humanitarian support, $11 million to assist refugees in Darfur and Chad to return to their homes, $150 million for food, $123 million to support African Union troops and, with the adoption of the Capuano amendment, $88 million to prepare for the transition to UN peacekeepers.

Mr. Chairman, despite the reservations I have raised, I believe the bill deserves our support.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to oppose the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Defense, the Global War on Terror, and Hurricane Recovery, H.R. 4939. This supplemental bill, totaling $91.8 billion, is the largest that the House of Representatives has ever considered.

As I have said repeatedly on the House floor, I strongly oppose using so-called "emergency supplementals" to fund non-emergency, clearly foreseeable expenditures. This bill provides $72 billion for continued military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. The fact that our troops are on the ground in these dangerous places is not a surprise. They have been in Iraq for almost three years. Their needs are well known to everyone, except, it seems, the President and his budget staff. Every year, the President fails to budget for the cost of military operations, and every year he pretends that the war is an unforeseen "emergency".

Funding our soldiers this way is dangerous because it leaves them ill-equipped and subject to last minute actions like this by Congress. If, by contrast, we funded military operations through the normal budget process, funding decisions would be made in the open and with the appropriate scrutiny they deserve. It would also allow for long term planning and more thoughtful budgeting. We have all read about the contracting waste and fraud that has occurred in Iraq. A number of no-bid and open ended contracts have wasted millions of taxpayer's dollars. This waste has made a few crooked businessmen wealthy and done nothing to protect our troops or help build a more stable democracy in Iraq.

Lastly, and perhaps most importantly, I refuse to continue to fund a failed policy. I opposed this war because I did not think the President had made a convincing case for the existence of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq and I opposed his illegal doctrine of pre-emption. Since then I have only been heartbroken by the utter incompetence of which it has been planned. Our soldiers are doing outstanding work, and I salute their sacrifice. But the policy-makers in Washington have let them down and put them in an impossible situation. As I said in a letter to Secretary Rice last September, it is time to begin bringing our soldiers home. Spending good money after bad on a failed policy puts our soldiers, and our national security in even greater risk.

There are portions of this bill that should have been in the President's budget last year. For example, I fully support up-arming HUMVEE's and tanks in Iraq. I also support investing $59 million to fund foreign language proficiency pay. I also support the $1.4 billion in the bill to fund family separation allowances, hardship duty, and combat pay.

Yet, all of these funds could have, and should have, been included in the regular budget process. But they were not.

Let me talk for a moment about the other good portions of this bill which were attached by the Majority in a cynical attempt to buy votes for the overall bill.

There is true emergency funding in this bill. But it is money for Sudan and the Gulf Coast, not Iraq.

This bill also contains money to help in the recovery of another emergency, one that struck our own shore. Just over six months ago, the Gulf Coast was struck by Hurricane Katrina. I have visited the Gulf Coast and found that the destruction was terrible, with hundreds of thousands uprooted only to return and discover their homes were obliterated. The debris is still being cleaned. The people of the Gulf Coast region are looking to rebuild and continue their lives, and this bill provides $19 billion in needed funds to assist in financing the rebuilding effort. This money helps us to keep faith with those who were failed by their government in the days and weeks following Hurricane Katrina. I am voting for an amendment that would increase by $2 billion community development funds available to assist local communities rebuild.

The genocide that continues to this day in Darfur, in the Sudan, is unconscionable. The President has said this, the Secretary of State has said this. Further, I have said a number of times that America needs to do everything it can to end the Darfur genocide. This bill contains $514 million for Sudan, with a large portion going to the Darfur region to fund the African Union peace keeping mission. I strongly support this funding. There is a true emergency in Sudan and I am glad that this money will be provided to end the genocide and provide humanitarian assistance to devastated people in the region. I am voting for the Capuano Amendment to add an additional $50 million to help fund extra peacekeepers in Darfur.

I am sorry that these true emergency funds were attached to the foreseeable spending for the ongoing operations in Iraq. I have voted for rebuilding the Gulf Coast and ending the genocide in Darfur in the past, and I will continue to do so. But I will not fund a failed policy in Iraq that is jeopardizing our soldiers needlessly, stoking the insurgency, draining our national resources, and doing nothing to protect Americans from terrorism at home.

Mr. FARR. Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my strong objection to the House Republican Leadership combining two separate emergency supplementals into a single bill. The response to Hurricane Katrina and the Iraqi war deserve separate debates and significant oversight and deliberation.

The human suffering that our neighbors along the Gulf Coast experienced and continue to experience seven months later cannot be underestimated. It will take a sustained federal and state, public and private commitment to help those affected get back on their feet. While I support a long-term reconstruction of the Gulf region, I cannot in good conscience vote for this bill.

I strongly believe we need better oversight of supplemental funding bills, particularly those that fund "the long war." There were excellent amendments offered on the floor today that I supported that should have passed if Congress had been exercising its Constitutional oversight role. For instance, I supported an Iraqi contracting amendment and one to prevent permanent bases in Iraq. We cannot become occupiers.

On this third anniversary of the war, our soldiers, our national guard, their families and all Americans deserve better than platitudes from the Administration. I have repeatedly called for greater Congressional oversight and an exit strategy, while recognizing that our troops have done an excellent job, despite often lacking sufficient body armor or equipment. I welcome the President's statements that troops will be drawn down by the end of the year, but I believe that our soldiers are being placed in an untenable situation, and need to be brought home as soon as possible.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to rise in support of H.R. 4939. I would like to thank the Appropriations Committee leadership for their efforts to provide our men and women in uniform with the equipment that they need as they continue their efforts in Iraq, Afghanistan and throughout the world. My colleagues on the House Armed Services Committee and I have fought for enhanced force protection equipment, much of which is included in this bill. H.R. 4939 includes $410 million for up-armored Humvees and $2 billion to develop and procure jammers for improvised explosive devices. Given the number of U.S. casualties resulting from IEDs, jammer technology is one of the most important investments this Congress can make to protect our troops.

I am also pleased that this legislation provides more than $19 billion in much-needed assistance to the victims of Hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma. Months after those storms battered our Gulf Coast, many Americans are still displaced, and basic services are not available in places like New Orleans. Given the federal government's insufficient efforts in the wake of Hurricane Katrina, it is our responsibility to provide the affected residents and businesses with the resources and assistance they need to rebuild.

This measure will also greatly assist those facing exorbitant heating bills this winter. After Hurricanes Katrina and Rita damaged domestic energy sources, all Americans experienced higher energy costs, but the burden was particularly heavy for low-income residents in cold climates. H.R. 4939 will allow states to access $1 billion in Low Income Home Energy Assistance (LIHEAP) funding more quickly, which will be welcome news to states such as Rhode Island that are struggling to help families in need.

I greatly appreciate the Committee's inclusion of assistance to the victims of genocidal violence in Darfur and to train and equip the African Union peacekeeping troops. To date, at least one hundred thousand people have been killed, with millions more displaced. It is impossible to view the images from Sudan without being outraged at the cruelty and injustice of the situation. Our nation must do more to prevent further violence. Last year, I advocated for funding for African Union peacekeepers in the Defense Appropriations bill, and though that was not successful, H.R. 4939 funds peacekeeping missions in Sudan and encourages greater involvement by the United Nations.

Finally, in welcome news to the American people, the legislation blocks Dubai Ports World from assuming control over six U.S. ports as part of their acquisition of P&O Steam Navigation Company. As a member of the Homeland Security Committee, I strongly opposed the sale because of the lack of a comprehensive investigation into the national security implications. We need to ensure that foreign investment decisions are based on real national security considerations and not just financial gain. I have been working to enhance port security in our nation, and the Dubai ports deal reminds Americans that until appropriate measures are taken, our ports will continue to be vulnerable. I am pleased that H.R. 4939 contains this commonsense provision, but we must do more to secure our infrastructure and improve Congressional oversight of foreign investment decisions.

Again, I thank my colleagues for their efforts on this important bill, and I urge all Members to support its passage.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to tell a tale of two Republican disasters, the Iraq War and Hurricane Katrina. It is a story with no best of times, only the worst of times. This tale is why I oppose the Supplemental Appropriations Act (H.R. 4939).

The main characters in my story are an incompetent President and a corrupt Congress. The setting is an America desperate for honest leadership. But the plot involves lies and cover-ups. The problem is misplaced priorities. But the solution is not this supplemental, which provides another $67.6 billion for a failed war but only $19 billion to help the victims of Katrina.

The first disaster, the Iraq War, was predicted on lies. Iraq had no weapons of mass destruction, had never attempted to buy uranium from Niger, and was not about to welcome American soldiers with open arms.

An incompetent President failed to prepare America for the postwar period. As a result, looting of stores and museums began shortly after the United States military gained control of Baghdad. Months later, sectarian violence has pushed Iraq to civil war, with Shiite militia and security forces clashing with Sunni citizens and insurgents.

Yet our troops remain in Iraq and in harms way. Two American soldiers and 40 Iraqi soldiers and civilians are killed every day. As long as we stay in Iraq, the insurgency will continue, even as the so-called Iraqi democracy experiment goes nowhere. Three months after parliamentary elections, the Iraqi parliament has yet to form a government.

Finally, large Republican donors including Halliburton have looted the American treasury. Using their connections to secure no-bid contracts for services in Iraq, these firms overcharge American taxpayers and underserve our troops. All the while, Republicans' blind allegiance to the President causes them to write blank checks, throwing good money after bad at a war that is making America less secure.

The second disaster was the Republican response to Hurricane Katrina. Several days before Katrina ravaged the Gulf Coast, the President was briefed on the severity of the storm and the likelihood levees would be breached. But after failing to cut short his extended vacation to help with the response, the President told ABC News and the American public he was not advised the levees were likely to collapse.

After years of underfunding levee construction and maintenance, Republicans attempted to shift the blame for the disaster and the inadequate response onto state and local officials. But it was President Bush who nominated unqualified campaign hacks to head FEMA and congressional Republicans who rubber-stamped the appointment of Michael Brown.

As a result of insufficient preparation and incompetent administration, tens of thousands of hurricane victims went without adequate food, water, and shelter in the storm's aftermath. Six months after Katrina, relief workers are still finding bodies of victims.

In an attempt to atone for their sins, the Republicans have finally brought forth additional legislation to help Katrina victims. But in a pathetic and transparent attempt to prevent full debate on the disastrous Iraq War, President Bush's Republican cronies in Congress combined two supplementals into one.

Although I support additional funding for hurricane victims, I cannot vote for a supplemental that appropriates 74 percent of its funds, or $67.6 billion, to a misguided Iraq war on which we have already wasted $350 billion—and the lives of 2,310 American soldiers and at least 37,000 Iraqi citizens.

It is time to tell a new tale, about bringing home our troops and rebuilding homes for Katrina victims. Let's get this Iraq monkey off our back and supplement housing rather than Halliburton.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill, and help me to tell a new tale about American successes rather than Republican disasters.

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in protest at this Administration's egregious treatment of tens of thousands of families of survivors who were displaced by and continue to suffer in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Today, on the Ides of March, some ten thousand families are being evicted from temporary housing in hotels by FEMA.

This would have happened months ago but for cries of protest and legal injunctions that forced FEMA to keep rolling back the eviction deadline: December 15th, January 7th, January 31st, February 15th, February 28th, and now March 15th—on each of these dates, families were evicted.

So to the 10,000 families being evicted today, we must add some 30,000 families already evicted, giving us a figure of some 40,000 families who will have been evacuated from temporary housing in hotels.

FEMA and DHS have not provided any comprehensive plan to transition these survivors out of temporary and into permanent shelters, and while tens of thousands are already living in tents and cars, thousands more are being thrown out to sleep on the streets, because the shelters are already full.

Last week, during one of his rare visits to the Gulf Coast, the President bluntly accused Congress of moving too slow in providing funds for housing and reconstruction.

Let me read to the House a passage from the Stafford Act. This is from Section 407:

The President is authorized to provide assistance on a temporary basis in the form of mortgage or rental payments to or on behalf of individuals and families who, as a result of financial hardship caused by a major disaster, have received written notice of dispossession or eviction from a residence by reason of a foreclosure of any mortgage or lien, cancellation of any contract of sale, or termination of any lease entered into prior to such disaster. Such assistance shall be provided for the duration of the period of financial hardship but not to exceed 18 months.

So under the Stafford Act, survivors being evicted from temporary housing are entitled to 18 months of housing assistance, that means another full year, of rental assistance, but only if the President authorizes the necessary sums.

Rather than stepping in and taking charge, the President is passing the blame back to the Congress for a "Failure of Initiative," the title of a report coming from his own party, which delivered stinging criticism of the Administration's handling of the aftermath of Katrina.

Mr. Chairman, the failure to take initiative did not arise from this side of the aisle. We now have 77 signatures on H.R. 4197, the Hurricane Katrina Recovery, Reclamation, Restoration, Reconstruction and Reunion Act, which sets out a comprehensive plan to provide housing, health care, education, environmental clean-up, and to meet nearly all of the still urgent needs of the Gulf Coast survivors. And we are calling out to our colleagues across the aisle to join our initiative and do what is just and right for our fellow Americans caught up in the largest population displacement our Nation has seen since the Great Depression and slavery.

As we consider yet another supplemental request for tens of billions for a military occupation of Iraq, where violence is spinning out of control and toward all-out civil war under our watch, let us ask ourselves the hard questions:

How can we deny housing, education and health care to American citizens displaced by Katrina and yet continue to build homes, schools and hospitals in Iraq?

How can we refuse to provide satellite voting for hundreds of thousands of displaced New Orleanians and yet spend hundreds of millions on satellite voting stations for Iraqis in America?

Why are survivors in Mississippi and Texas entitled to trailers whilst those in Louisiana are not?

Why are hurricane survivors in Florida and Texas entitled to maximum benefits under the Stafford Act whilst Katrina survivors from Mississippi and Louisiana are told they must fend for themselves?

And finally, Mr. Chairman, was the decision to send the poorest and most traumatized survivors of the flooding of New Orleans into diaspora simply an ad hoc decision, or part of an overall strategic plan to keep as many poor and minority residents as possible from returning to New Orleans, in order to lay the groundwork for an urban real estate bonanza? Is this the reason our government is so intent upon refusing New Orleans survivors their basic rights under law?

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Chairman, from the beginning, the Bush Administration's policy on Iraq has been based on distortions and misjudgments. Prior to the invasion, I fought to prevent this war. I parted with most members of Congress and cast a vote against the resolution authorizing the use of military force in Iraq. The President misled the American people into believing there was a link between Iraq and the terrorist attacks of September 11, and he distorted and misrepresented intelligence data about weapons of mass destruction.

I understand the frustration and heartbreak that have led many Americans to conclude that it is now time for us to remove ourselves from this misguided quagmire and bring our troops home. That is why I have called on the President to change course. America simply cannot continue indefinitely to pay the high costs in both lives and dollars to stay on the same failed course in Iraq.

In December 2005, I voted for H.R. 1815, the FY 2006 Defense Authorization bill, which the President signed into law in January 2006. Section 1227 of that bill, United States Policy on Iraq, states that it is the sense of Congress that "calendar year 2006 should be a period of significant transition to full Iraq sovereignty, with Iraqi security forces taking the lead for the security of a free and sovereign Iraq, thereby creating the conditions for the phased redeployment of United States forces from Iraq."

It is time for the President to implement this policy. We have no choice but to approve this spending bill. We cannot put our troops at greater risk. If the President does not heed the intent of Congress and the American people, Congress should take more direct action to bring our troops home promptly and safely. We should not have American troops in the middle of a civil war.

I have repeatedly called for a change in America's policies so that we can bring our troops home as soon as possible. In December 2004, I visited our troops in Iraq. I thanked them for their service and listened to their stories. It was a moving experience for me. I honor the sacrifices they and their families are making each day.

The men and women of our armed forces are demonstrating tremendous dedication to our Nation through their performance in Iraq. These brave soldiers have put their lives in harm's way for our country, and we are forever grateful for their service.

This bill also contains crucial provisions, which I support, that would provide nearly $20 billion for Hurricane Katrina relief, including funds for housing, community planning and development, flood control, and small business loans. In addition, the House should take up H.R. 4197, a comprehensive Hurricane Katrina recovery bill introduced by the Congressional Black Caucus.

I am encouraged that the bill provides more than $500 million to address the ongoing genocide in southern Sudan and Darfur. These funds are critical to meeting the immediate needs of victims of the Darfur crisis, such as shelter, health care, and access to water and sanitation. Sudanese government-backed Arab militias have slaughtered hundreds of thousands of villagers, and they have burned entire villages. Up to two million refugees have fled this genocide to neighboring countries, but the small, poorly-equipped, and underfunded African Union (AU) force cannot offer them adequate protection. This bill provides needed funding to help transition the AU peacekeeping operation to a United Nations mission. It is also encouraging that last week the House International Relations Committee reported out H.R. 3127, the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act, which I urge the House to take up without delay.

Lastly, I strongly support the inclusion of an amendment adopted by the Appropriations Committee to cancel the planned transfer of U.S. ports to Dubai Ports World, which is owned by the United Arab Emirates. Although the UAE recently agreed to abandon its efforts to take over American ports, this Congress still needs to enact bipartisan legislation that I introduced with Ways and Means Trade Subcommittee Chairman CLAY SHAW, H.R. 4839, the Secure America's Port Operations Act, which would prohibit any foreign-government owned operations at U.S. seaports in the future.

Mr. Chairman, this emergency supplemental is a necessary measure that will provide essential support for our troops in their arduous mission in Iraq, vital funding for the global war on terror, and desperately needed assistance for our own Gulf region and the many Americans who have been uprooted by Hurricane Katrina.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in opposition to this bill, the largest emergency appropriations measure to ever be considered by the House of Representatives. I do so with great reluctance because there are several positive aspects to the bill, including resources for our dedicated troops. Despite these reservations, I oppose this bill because the Administration and the Majority in Congress have failed to provide adequate oversight and accountability for our operations in Iraq.

Mr. Chairman, in four days we will mark the third anniversary of this tragic war, a war that I opposed from the beginning and which has already cost our country over $400 billion. Without a strategy for success or an end in sight, the Congressional Budget Office predicts the price tag for military costs alone will reach $600 billion by the end of this decade. The added costs of long-term healthcare for our veterans, reconstruction assistance, and economic aid will of course raise this figure exponentially, prompting some of our Nation's best economists to predict that the long-term costs of this war will rise as high as two trillion dollars. Meanwhile, the loss of our best and brightest young people can never be measured.

Going into war without the approval and support of the international community and without a plan for the post-war occupation period has resulted in a Nation less secure now than at the end of major combat operations. Despite the heroic efforts of our military, and the hundreds of billions of dollars poured into Iraq, it is now on the brink of civil war. We've seen how disastrously this administration's strategy, or lack thereof, has played out in Iraq, and yet we continue to circumvent the normal budget process, putting hundreds of billions of dollars on the national credit card without any plan for success, any plan to begin the process of bringing our troops home, or any plan to turn Iraq over to the Iraqi people.

Mr. Chairman, I voted in favor of our last emergency supplemental bill because, among other things, the bill instructed the Department of Defense to provide a detailed report to Congress of its military expenditures in Iraq and Afghanistan to finally allow us to track how the Administration was spending the taxpayer's money. Despite this language, the General Accounting Office reported in November numerous problems in DOD's processes for recording and reporting costs for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. As a result, the GAO found that neither DOD nor Congress can reliably know how much the war is costing, nor the details on how appropriated funds are being spent. The facts are not being made available and Congress is operating and appropriating without them.

Congress is not fulfilling its responsibility to act as the steward of the National Treasury. I, along with several colleagues on both sides of the aisle, have cosponsored legislation that would restore oversight and accountability to our budget process. Several of my colleagues have called for hearings and investigations into how funds are being spent in Iraq. These efforts have been met with near-total resistance by the Majority leadership in the House, and by the administration. Time and again we who are elected to keep close watch over spending are being denied the necessary tools to do our jobs.

The good in this bill is increased funding to address the crisis in Darfur, our fellow Americans affected by the tragedy of Hurricane Katrina and the language preventing the Dubai Ports deal from moving forward. I've supported these efforts in the past and were these provisions to be considered properly under normal budget procedures, I would support them.

Whether or not Members support the war in Iraq, it's becoming clearer day by day that the President's policies are unsustainable. Without a change of direction and a clear plan for success, I cannot in good conscience continue to pass off trillions of dollars to our children and grandchildren to fund this debacle.

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to H.R. 4939. Today, Congress continues its owe-as-you-go policy of borrowing and spending, burdening future generations of Americans with an additional $92 billion in debt and at the same time embracing the Bush administration's disastrous war in Iraq. Giving this administration more borrowed money for billion dollar no-bid contracts without congressional oversight is irresponsible and a policy I can neither justify nor defend.

In a cynical maneuver, the Republican majority has linked nearly $70 billion more for maintaining U.S. troops in the middle of an Iraqi civil war with the resources needed to assist Katrina's victims and the funds necessary to keep alive the victims of genocide in Sudan's Darfur region. I strongly support providing our fellow citizens of the gulf coast with the resources to rebuild their lives and their communities and increasing our commitment to bringing peace to Sudan. However, I cannot support an administration policy of consistently misleading the American people about the unsustainable Federal budget deficits and the quagmire in Iraq.

It is an irresponsible budget gimmick to fund the war in Iraq through emergency spending. We are beginning the fourth year of war in Iraq. Clearly the Bush administration was aware that there would be funding needs and had the opportunity to account for those needs in the proposed budget. Instead, the entire cost of this war—over $300 billion—is deferred to be paid for by future generations. Congress must have an honest debate about our increasing budget deficit and the implications of this debt on our country and our future.

Every American soldier and marine deserves our support, as well as a realistic and honest strategy for success from the Bush administration. They also deserve a White House and Congress with the courage to pay for this war today, not pass the cost on to the children and grandchildren of every American, including every veteran who has sacrificed so much in Iraq.

For the violence and murder to stop and the civil conflict in Iraq to end, it will require Iraqis, not Americans, willing to find solutions to bring security, stability and peace to their country. U.S. troops should never be in the position of being referees in a bloody civil war. Unfortunately, the Bush administration has no intention of drawing down U.S. troops anytime soon. The passage of this bill today will ensure, regrettably, that our troops will remain in Iraq for the foreseeable future.

Ms. KILPATRICK of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I would like to use this opportunity to address this House to explain my vote on H.R. 4939, the Emergency War and Hurricane Supplemental Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2006, which this chamber considered on March 16, 2006.

Despite my misgivings for the direction of our Iraq policy, I do not believe our troops, who are fighting so bravely, should be penalized for the mistakes in judgment of our civilian military leadership in the White House and the Pentagon. I also believe we need to continue our obligation to the people and states who fell victim to Hurricane Katrina. For these reasons, I supported the passage of H.R. 4929, the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2006.

The funds in this bill will enable our soldiers and marines on the ground to uparmor their vehicles. There should be more outrage from the American public that they were deployed without adequate equipment from the beginning. But they are there, and it is vital that they have the equipment necessary to protect themselves against attack. Moreover, more money is provided in this bill to help our troops detect and destroy improvised explosive devices (IEDs).

Although I disagree with the administration's conduct of the war, I do believe the one way we can bring our troops home sooner is to provide Iraqi security forces with the training and equipment they need to provide for the common defense of their own country and take the fight to the insurgency. Ultimately, the fate of their country will rise and fall on the Iraqis' ability to provide for their own security.

To further help our troops, the money in this bill will take care of the health care needs of their families and cover the projected shortfall in the defense health care account. It also honors the obligation Congress made last year to increase the military death gratuity to $100,000 from $12,000 and subsidized life insurance benefits that were increased to $400,000 for the families of fallen loved ones.

The bill also helps needy families offset the high cost of heating fuel by providing an additional $750 million for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). Finally, the bill honors what I feel is our country's obligation to help the Gulf Coast region by appropriating $19.1 billion in disaster relief, community development and levee reconstruction monies.

These programs deserve our support. We cannot turn our backs to protecting the safety and welfare of troops in harms way or ignore those who have gone homeless as a result of Hurricane Katrina. These people need our help and that is why I voted to support this emergency supplemental appropriations bill.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the FY06 Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill because it is long overdue that we end the failed policy in Iraq.

I voted against giving the President the authority to go to war against Iraq in October 2002, and I have opposed supplemental funding that would extend the conflict ever since. I ask my colleagues to recall the comments of Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld who said in January 2003 that the war would cost "something under $50 billion." Unfortunately, since that time we have appropriated more than $250 billion in supplemental funding alone. And a new study by Columbia University economist Joseph E. Stiglitz, who won the Nobel Prize in economics in 2001, and Harvard lecturer Linda Bilmes concludes that the total costs of the Iraq war could top the $2 trillion mark.

Secretary Rumsfeld also told us in February 2003 that "it is unknowable how long that [Iraq] conflict will last. It could last six days, six weeks. I doubt six months." On May 1st, 2003, President Bush stood on the deck of the USS Abraham Lincoln and declared Mission Accomplished. And on May 30th, 2005, Vice President CHENEY declared that "I think they're in the last throes, if you will, of the insurgency." However, this week we are celebrating the 3 year anniversary of the war, 2176 brave men and women in uniform have died in Iraq since the President declared Mission Accomplished, and it has become clear that the Iraqi civil war that many of us feared would occur has begun.

Although there is an attempt by the Bush administration to convince the American people that our military is helping to quell the sectarian violence, recent events have proven the administration wrong. Our occupation of Iraq has isolated us from a large segment of the international community, and has prevented us from capturing or killing Osama Bin Laden and other Al-Qaeda leaders. The war has also distracted us from two of the most critical issues in the region—the development of nuclear weapons in Iran and the Israeli/Palestinian peace process. In addition, the war has diverted attention and resources from critical homeland security needs. A continued United States presence in Iraq will do nothing but exacerbate these problems.

It is for our brave troops, and for the security of the international community that I cannot vote to continue the war in Iraq. Like everyone, I want to avoid a radical and unstable Iraq in the future. However, I believe that the ongoing presence of the U.S. military in Iraq is putting those brave troops at risk and creating a situation where the majority of Iraqis support U.S. withdrawal.

I know that the Republican supplemental appropriations request will pass the House of Representatives. Our troops will not be stranded in the field. None of us would allow that to occur. And I know that this supplemental will also contain money for important issues such as Katrina relief, the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), and assistance to Darfur and Liberia, which I strongly support funding. However, Iraq war funding makes up approximately 80 percent of this supplemental. The Republican majority has employed a cynical tactic to attach worthy causes onto an Iraq war funding bill in an attempt to force members of Congress who oppose the war into voting for it. Also, crafting an "emergency" supplemental for a war that is three years old is simply another example of the majority's poor leadership in this Congress.

I would like to encourage all my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring two bills, which if passed together, add up to a sensible policy that would provide our troops with the resources they need to complete a safe and honorable redeployment from their current combat areas.

The first is H.J. Res. 73, known as the Murtha Resolution, which calls for the immediate redeployment of U.S. forces in Iraq, the creation of a quick-reaction and over-the-horizon presence of U.S. Marines in the region, and the pursuit of stability in Iraq through diplomacy. This resolution would allow the U.S. footprint to be minimized on the ground in Iraq, while still providing a military presence that can assist Iraqis in securing their nation. I support this resolution precisely because I want to help our troops who are in harm's way.

The second bill, H.R. 4232, the End the War in Iraq Act introduced by Representative JAMES MCGOVERN, would prohibit funds from being appropriated to deploy, or continue to deploy, U.S. Armed Forces to Iraq. Exceptions to this rule would be made if the funds are being used to provide for the safe and orderly redeployment of U.S. Armed Forces from Iraq, to ensure the security of Iraq and its transition to democratic rule by carrying out consultations with the Government of Iraq, other foreign governments and international organizations, or by providing financial assistance or equipment to Iraqi security forces and international forces in Iraq. In addition H.R. 4232 would permit the use of funds to carry out social and economic reconstruction activities. Simply because we must reposition our armed forces, does not mean we can abandon our obligation to the Iraqi people to help them create a positive future for themselves and future generations.

I am pleased that my colleagues accepted the Lee/Schakowsky/Allen/Hinchey Amendment which would prohibit permanent military bases from being constructed in Iraq. I will work to make sure this amendment is accepted by the Senate. However, I cannot vote today to continue this misguided war in Iraq. My no vote is an expression for my desire to support our troops and to begin to restore the credibility of America in the eyes of the international community.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. POE). The Clerk will read the final lines of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Defense, the Global War on Terror, and Hurricane Recovery, 2006".

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that the bill, as amended, do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE) having assumed the chair, Mr. POE, Acting Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4939) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, had directed him to report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that the bill, as amended, do pass.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 725, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR. HINCHEY

Mr. HINCHEY. Madam Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. HINCHEY. Yes, Madam Speaker, I am.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Hinchey of New York moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 4939, to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report the same forthwith to the House with the following amendment:

"On page 82, line 4, strike "2007" and insert "2006".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HINCHEY. Madam Speaker, the motion to recommit is very simple and direct. It says that the appropriations that were directed toward the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program for the year 2006 must be spent in that year, not moved over to the year 2007.

We are doing this for obvious reasons. The high cost of energy is making it extremely difficult for low-income people, particularly elderly, low-income people, to meet their home energy assistance payments, and also to meet their other needs.

It is also affecting large numbers of other people in our communities across the Northeast, the upper Midwest, and elsewhere across the country.

That, and the drop in temperatures recently, is causing some serious problems for many people. We want to make sure that the money that was appropriated for the LIHEAP program is used this year, appropriately so that people do not suffer as a result of its not being used.

I think the case has been made.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Speaker, I will take 30 seconds.

The House has expressed its will in many ways regarding LIHEAP. We are going to do what is right regarding that funding for 2006 and 2007. To send it back to committee would kill this bill.

The Members have done a fabulous job in a very bipartisan way producing a fine product. I ask for an "aye" vote on final passage and against the gentleman's motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. HINCHEY. Madam Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for any electronic vote on the question of passage.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 188, noes 233, not voting 11, as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). Members are advised 2 minutes remain in this vote.

□ 1833

So the motion to instruct was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PRIVILEGED REPORT ON RESOLUTION OF INQUIRY TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. HUNTER, from the Committee on Armed Services, submitted an adverse privileged report (Rept. No. 109-397) on the resolution (H. Res. 685) requesting the President and directing the Secretary of State and Secretary of Defense provide to the House of Representatives certain documents in their possession relating to any entity with which the United States has contracted for public relations purposes concerning Iraq, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

PROVIDING FOR AN ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF THE TWO HOUSES

Mr. HUNTER. Madam Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 361) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 361

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Thursday, March 16, 2006, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand adjourned until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, March 28, 2006, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the Senate recesses or adjourns on Thursday, March 16, 2006, Friday, March 17, 2006, or Saturday, March 18, 2006, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand recessed or adjourned until noon on Monday, March 27, 2006, or such other time on that day as may be specified by its Majority Leader or his designee in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

SEC. 2. The Speaker of the House and the Majority Leader of the Senate, or their respective designees, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate if, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, MARCH 20, 2006

Mr. HUNTER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today pursuant to this order, it adjourn to meet at noon on Monday, March 20, 2006, unless it sooner has received a message from the Senate transmitting its concurrence in House Concurrent Resolution 361, in which case the House shall stand adjourned pursuant to that concurrent resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 2006

Mr. HUNTER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday, March 29, 2006.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

HONORING ELEANOR SLATER

(Mr. LANGEVIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LANGEVIN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay my respects to Eleanor Slater, a great friend who passed away this week. Known as the grande dame of Rhode Island Democratic politics, Eleanor blazed trails for many people in our state, but especially for women. She began her distinguished political career in 1958 as a Representative in the Rhode Island General Assembly, and championed issues such as mental health, fair housing and especially issues affecting senior citizens.

Always thinking of the next generation, she was a great advisor to many former and current politicians, including myself, Congressman PATRICK KENNEDY, and Senator JACK REED. She had the foresight and belief that I could run for Secretary of State and win that race, which I did. She served as an honorary chair on many of my campaigns and taught me valuable lessons that I still carry with me today.

While I am sad to say goodbye to such a wonderful woman, at 97 years old, we should celebrate Eleanor's long distinguished life. Eleanor, you made a difference. May God bless you and keep you safe in His care.

HONORING MR. LEROY ROBBINS

(Mr. FORTENBERRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Madam Speaker, I want to take a moment to honor the life of a very generous man whose service to his family and community made him extraordinary to those of us privileged to know him.

Mr. Leroy Robbins passed away on Sunday, March 5, 2006 in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Mr. Robbins leaves behind his wife, Bernice, nine children, 28 grandchildren and 52 great grandchildren. Yet his legacy extend far beyond his own family.

Mr. Robbins was extraordinary because of his faithfulness in the simple and precious things in life. For more than 50 years, he served as a 4-H Livestock Club Leader.

As a child, I lost my own father and Mr. Robbins' mentorship helped to fill the profound loss created by that particular event. His kindness shined through as he opened his home, lovingly called "Robbins Roost" to 30 4-H club Members. He and Mrs. Robbins patiently taught us how to make things, how to improve ourselves and how to be leaders. He just helped us participate in the joy of discovery through the wonderful array of 4-H club opportunities.

Mr. Robbins was a man of generosity, compassion and integrity. In life he demonstrated what it meant to be extraordinary and undoubtedly, his legacy will live on in the lives of those he touched, particularly mine.

HONORING AMEDEE "DICK"
RICHARDS, JR.

(Mr. SCHIFF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHIFF. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Amedee Richards, Jr., a treasured member of the South Pasadena community who died Thursday at the age of 84. He was a great man who served for many years as mayor, councilman, and as a small business owner, and he will long be remembered for his influential leadership and the preservation of South Pasadena.

Dick Richards was one of the first people I sought out years ago to get his advice on issues important to the city. He and I shared a background in law enforcement. He was an FBI agent, and I was a Federal prosecutor and we instantly hit it off. Over the years, I continued to turn to him and always valued his thoughtful counsel.

He led many communities endeavors, founding the South Pasadena Relay For Life, serving as President of the Mission West Association, and later, as a founding member of the New South Pasadena Chamber of Commerce. With his wife, Clara, he also opened Family Fair, a gift and candy store, as well as Buster's Ice Cream and Coffee Shop, which both immediately became South Pasadena landmarks. He also helped to start the weekly Farmers' Market in the Mission West District.

I want to express my sincere condolences to the entire family. Sadly, that tremendous family lost another member in the last few days. Dick's eldest son, Amedee III, passed away on Monday morning. My heart goes out to the entire Richards family, Dick's wife, Clara, two sons, six daughters and 15 grandchildren.

Dick called South Pasadena a kind of oasis. In this time of immense grief, I hope our community is comforted in knowing that Dick's legacy as a devoted public servant will live on in the vibrant oasis that he helped to create in South Pasadena.

I rise today to honor Amedee "Dick" Richards Jr., a treasured member of the South Pasadena community, who died Thursday at the age of 84. He was a great man who served for many years—as mayor, councilman, and as a small business owner—and will long be remembered for his influential leadership in the preservation of South Pasadena.

Dick Richards was one of the first people I sought out years ago for advice on issues important to the city. He and I shared a background in law enforcement (he was an FBI agent, and I was a federal prosecutor) and we instantly hit it off. Over the years, I continued to turn to him and always valued his thoughtful counsel. His work, his family, and indeed his life are tremendous examples of what makes South Pasadena such a strong community.

He led many community endeavors, founding the South Pasadena Relay for Life (an annual fundraiser for the American Cancer Society), serving as President of the Mission West Association, and later as a founding member of the New South Pasadena Chamber of Commerce. With his wife Clara, he also opened Family Fair, a gift and candy store, as well as Buster's Ice Cream and Coffee Shop, which both immediately became instant South Pasadena landmarks. He also helped to start the weekly Farmers' Market in the Mission West District in 1999.

Dick was a man respected and admired by his colleagues and peers. Serving on the South Pasadena City Council from 1989 to 1997, he was admired for both his integrity and courage, always voting his conscience. Dick called South Pasadena a "kind of an oasis" and sought to preserve the small town characteristics that made it unique. Those who worked with him considered themselves fortunate, and as current Mayor Odom Stamps has acknowledged, Dick has "huge shoes that no one person will even remotely fill."

He was born in Worcester, Massachusetts in 1922 and graduated from Boston University in 1943. He then entered the Naval Reserve, serving during World War II in the Pacific theater as an ensign on a mine-sweeper. After WWII, he joined the FBI working specifically on Mafia cases and investigating the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy. He retired from the FBI in 1977, founding Family Fair that same year.

I want to express my sincere condolences to his entire family. And sadly, this tremendous family lost another member in the last few days. Dick's eldest son, Amedee III, passed away on Monday morning. My heart goes out to the entire Richards family, Dick's wife Clara, 2 sons, 6 daughters, and 15 grandchildren.

In this time of immense grief, I hope that our community is comforted in knowing that Dick's legacy as a devoted public servant will live on in the vibrant "oasis" that he created in South Pasadena.

APPOINTMENT OF HON. ROBERT B. ADERHOLT, HON. MICHAEL K. SIMPSON, AND HON. WAYNE T. GILCHREST TO ACT AS SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE TO SIGN ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS THROUGH MARCH 28, 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, March 16, 2006.

I hereby appoint the Honorable ROBERT B. ADERHOLT, the Honorable MICHAEL K. SIMPSON, and the Honorable WAYNE T. GILCHREST to act as Speaker pro tempore to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions through March 28, 2006.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the appointment is approved.

There was no objection.

REPORT ON THE NATIONAL SECURITY STRATEGY OF THE UNITED STATES—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on Armed Services:

To the Congress of the United States:

Consistent with section 108 of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended (50 U.S.C. 404a), I am transmitting a report prepared by my Administration on the National Security Strategy of the United States.

GEORGE W. BUSH.
THE WHITE HOUSE, March 16, 2006.

AMERICA CAN DO BETTER

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, today and yesterday, we spent time on the floor of the House trying to construct a legislative initiative in the emergency supplemental to rebuild lives of Americans. We also attempted to respond to the rising crisis in Iraq. And I rise today to simply say that I know that America can do better.

In the course of that debate, I heard a story of a woman whose husband is in Iraq, and she is looking to try to understand where the funding is going, or where are the monies that have been appropriated going, because her husband is writing back and telling her about contaminated water and lack of equipment.

And then of course, I met a mother in my district who wondered why her son had to be redeployed for the third time to Iraq. I know America can do better. I am hoping as this emergency supplemental makes its way to the United States Senate that our colleagues, working with the administration, will understand that it is time now to redeploy our troops to bring them home in the honor and victory that they deserve, and then, of course, invest in the rebuilding of the Gulf Coast and not causing the stigmatizing of any of those who have suffered the devastation of Hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma, and certainly provide the funding that the State of Texas needs once and for all, a State that has been impacted in a devastating way as we host those who are in need. It is time to do better for Americans.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DRAKE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2005, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

NEW YORK TROOPER ANDREW SPERR

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, I request permission to take Mr. JONES' time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Speaker pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor New York State Trooper Andrew Sperr. Each person who wears a badge walks a thin blue line between life and death. Their families wonder when their police officer reports for duty, if that person will return home.

On March 1, 2006, Trooper Sperr did not return. He was shot and killed in the line of duty during a blazing gun fight with bank robbers in Big Flats, New York. Just after noon, Andrew Sperr stopped to investigate a suspicious pickup truck on the side of the road. As he approached the vehicle, the robbery suspects opened the door and opened fire on him, striking him multiple times. At least one round struck him in the right side above his body armor.

He was a dedicated lawman, so Trooper Sperr was able to return fire, and he wounded both of the suspects, which eventually led to their arrest, even though he was mortally wounded himself. Andrew Sperr was 33 years of age. He was from Greece, New York, and he had been a member of the New York State police force for 10 years.

Though he had no kids of his own, he was greatly involved in lives of his 10 siblings and their kids, and was godfather to several of his nieces and nephews. He was known as AJ to close family and friends, and he was remembered as always being the center of all activity.

He spent his free time on his 80-acre farm in Steuben County, New York. He loved the outdoors and in his other free time he was a hunter and a wildlife photographer. As a young kid, Andrew Sperr had wanted to serve his community by becoming a peace officer.

In his life and his death, service was his mission. Friends family and co-workers remember him as a compassionate public servant who generally cared about the people he came in contact with on a daily basis, no matter who they were. He had recently won the outstanding trooper award for the second year in a row.

When terrorists struck the World Trade Center in New York City on September 11, 2001, Andrew Sperr was there. He volunteered to go and help the people of New York, as well as the citizens of the United States, by providing law enforcement in the aftermath of that attack on America. Trooper Sperr also traveled to Louisiana this past fall in Hurricane Katrina and helped those folks in that area, neighbors.

Madam Speaker, as a former judge in Texas, I have had the opportunity to speak several times in New York and to the troopers at the New York State Police Academy in Albany, New York. After we got through the language barrier, I found these right-thinking Americans to be passionate about protecting the citizens of New York State and bringing outlaws to justice.

Trooper Andrew Sperr was proud to be a member of this group of law officers. Trooper Andrew Sperr died doing what he wanted to do, protecting, serving and defending the people. As thousands of his fellow State troopers, law enforcement personnel, friends and family, mourn his loss, our prayers go out to his family for allowing his life to be sacrificed for the rest of us.

Andrew J. Sperr was a dedicated officer and a compassionate friend to all. He served with distinction and honor, and he will be missed. America and Americans were better because of the life of Andrew Sperr. He wore the badge and proudly took the oath to protect and serve.

Madam Speaker, peace officers are the last strand of wire in the fence between safety and anarchy. They are all that stands between the people and the barbarians. Trooper Andrew Sperr died protecting the rest of us from those outlaws.

So God bless those that wear the badge of the American peace officer. That's just the way it is.

PORT SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Madam Speaker, many Americans are breathing a sigh of relief. They believe we have resolved the issue of port security, but that is far from the truth. True, for now, the idea of United Arab Emirates operating some of our port terminals has abated. But this is very much just a very small issue regarding port security.

The fact is, our ports are probably today very little less secure than pre-9/11. The grades that the 9/11 Commission give to this administration's efforts on port security were generally failing.

The United States has bound itself to an international agreement through the International Maritime Organization that allowed secret ownership of ships. Osama bin Laden could have a fleet of his own. We are not allowed to know. They fly under flags that countries that provide no supervision, in fact, in the case of Liberia, until recently, didn't even have a government, and barely exist.

They have crews of unknown identity. Yes, they send us a name about the ship lands, but is that really the person. Is that really the background. Do we have fingerprints? No. We don't know who the people are on those ships. The cargo on those ships is not secure. The containers are not secure. It would cost a few dollars to secure a container from loading to unloading in the United States of America and scan it. The Bush administration thinks that is a cost that we cannot afford or would unnecessarily impinge upon free commerce.

Then, of course, the technology, the technology that we don't have at the ports, to adequately scan these containers. Now, we cannot breathe a sigh of relief. Our ports are not yet secure. We depend upon a transmitted manifest. Now, I can just see that the Osama bin Laden line with the terrorist crew is going to send a manifest that says this container has 199 concrete bird baths and one small tactical nuclear weapon, and our intelligence people might even ask to open that container. Who knows, they might not. So we need to do a tremendous amount more.

Then there is another issue. The Bush administration, while Congress is away next week, is intending to put forward a rule that would allow foreign interests to control United States airlines in contravention of a very explicit law which prohibits control by foreign interests. The Bush Administration, using their inherent powers, has decided to reinterpret the meaning of the word control and say Congress just meant they can't control safety and security. We will wall that off.

How are you going to wall it off when you have foreign ownership of a U.S. airline, foreign management and a U.S. airline, foreign board of directors of a formerly U.S. airline, and you are going to wall off safety and security? Oh, come on, give me a break. As the chief operating officer of Continental said, hey, they are against this. They said, hey, I am head of safety, I am the COO, safety and security report to me. I can get someone to do whatever I want in that job, or I will fire them.

That is an extraordinary risk. It risks our civilian reserve air fleet, where we move our troops overseas. Just imagine a future deployment, say to maybe the Taiwan area with a problem with China, and the U.S. troops could be flying on an airline that was owned and controlled by Chinese communist government interests under this rule, which the Bush Administration wants to push through. Or it could be a UAE crew from Dubai, because they are the fastest expanding long-haul airline in the world, with all of their billions of surplus dollars.

We cannot rest easy, because the Bush Administration is continuing to dismantle critical infrastructure. We need a general review of critical infrastructure in this country, and we need to safeguard it. They are saying, no, we shouldn't do that. They are hoping to put the Dubai deal off, you know, and that we will not pay any attention to the threats at our ports or the threats to our airlines and aviation industry, or maybe even under the Bush administration, we will sell our nuclear plants to foreign interests.

Wouldn't that be spiffy if we allowed foreign interests to own our nuclear plants? That would be really, really great for security here in the United States of America. America should not be for sale. It is a symptom of a failed trade policy, and this Bush administration just wants to do more of the same. It is time for change. It is time for new trade policy. It is time to keep bringing jobs home. It is time to make America secure, and it is time to secure our assets.

REMARKS ON THE IRISH PEACE PROCESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I rise this evening as we approach the St. Patrick's Day recess to remind this body of the continued struggle for peace and justice in the North of Ireland. For many in America of Irish ancestry, this is a time of celebration, as it should be. However, we must also recognize that the fight for freedom and equality on the island of Ireland is still being waged.

Tonight I want to remember and commemorate the 90th anniversary of the Easter Uprising and the proclamation of an Irish Republic at the General Post Office in 1916. The brave men and women who took up arms against England vowed to fight for religious and civil liberty, equal rights and equal opportunities for all Irish citizens.

This year also marks the 25th anniversary of the deaths of 10 brave men who died on a hunger strike in Long Kesh. Their courage and that of the women of Armagh inspired countless individuals and made the world take notice of the cruel and discriminatory policies of the British government in the North of Ireland. Their sacrifice proved the shortsightedness of a British policy criminalization.

Madam Speaker, I had the opportunity today to meet once again with Gerry Adams, whom I admire so much, for his continued determination to educate the Members of Congress about the situation in Northern Ireland. Because of the sacrifice of so many dedicated individuals like Gerry Adams over the years, we have seen great strides on the quest for an Ireland of equals.

The historic ceasefire by the IRA in 1994, followed by the Good Friday accords signed in 1998, created tremendous progression in the north. The IRA's recent decision to lay down their weapons and pursue exclusively peaceful means toward the goal of a united Ireland is yet another hopeful sign.

However there still remains much to be done. The Good Friday agreement must be implemented in full. Any attempt to walk away from the institutions set forth in the agreement or substitute them with something less is a mistake. It is designed to placate extremists who want to fight progress and maintain their superiority. This simply cannot be allowed to stand.

Responsible leaders on all sides and on all parties must recognize that a quality in progress is inevitable and give the people of Northern Ireland the democracy that they deserve now.

Madam Speaker, I have consistently called for the full implementation of the Patten recommendations on policing because I believe true peace cannot exist without justice. This will not happen until there is a fair and impartial police service representative of all the communities in the North.

A dismantling of the British war machine in towns like South Armagh and Crossmaglen need to happen now so that residents there can live in peace and without fear of violence from a government supposedly there to protect them.

With a history of collusion between the RUC and loyalists paramilitaries, a full, complete and independent inquiry must also be done into if death of Pat Finucan, murdered by paramilitaries in front of his young family.

Madam Speaker, 25 years ago, as Bobby Sands sat in his cell on a hunger strike, he wrote in his diary, and I quote, if they aren't able to destroy the desire for freedom, they won't break you. They won't break me, because the desire for freedom and the freedom of the Irish people is in my heart. The day will dawn when all the people of Ireland will have the desire for freedom to show.

Madam Speaker, the British and Irish governments must recognize that the desire for freedom is as strong today as it ever was, and it will not be destroyed. The historic moves by the IRA and the electoral gains made by Sinn Fein are evidence of this desire. People will simply not tolerate a return to the conditions that have plagued the North for so many years.

PROTECTING THE CROWN JEWEL OF AMERICA'S SPACE PROGRAM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCHIFF. Madam Speaker, last week was one of extraordinary triumph for the Nation's space program. On Thursday, NASA announced that the Cassini spacecraft may have found evidence of liquid water reservoirs that erupt in Yellowstone-Like geysers on Saturn's moon Enceladus. This stunning announcement was followed the next day by the successful orbital insertion of the Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter around the Red Planet.

I stand before the House today to celebrate these incredible technological achievements and wondrous scientific discoveries, but most of all, to honor those who made it possible, the men and women of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California.

JPL, which is managed for NASA by the California Institute of Technology, has designed, built and controlled many of America's most successful unmanned space craft. JPL has pioneered our exploration of space from Explorer 1, America's first satellite, to Ranger and Surveyor craft that paved the way for Apollo to the Voyager spacecraft that explore the outer planets and are still continuing to send back data even as they leave our solar system.

JPL missions have increased our comprehension beyond anything even contemplated half a century ago. Every American space probe that has visited another body our solar system was managed by JPL. Through the wonders of technology, we have circled Jupiter with Galileo, sampled a comet with Stardust and rolled across the surface of Mars with spirit and opportunity.

Cassini, which has been orbiting Saturn for just over 18 months, has transmitted stunning photographs and invaluable data on Saturn and its moons, while the Mar's Reconnaissance Orbiter, which will begin its science mission later this year, is expected to transmit more information about Mars than all of our previous Mars missions combined.

□ 1900

JPL's spectacular missions have not only brought us incalculable scientific data; they have also sustained American's interest in space flight, especially the Mars missions.

Now, as NASA prepares to accelerate the development of the Crew Exploration Vehicle and moves forward with plans to return humans to the Moon, the space agency and Congress must take care to continue to provide adequate resources to support the robotic exploration of space that is JPL's specialty.

Over the past months, NASA has worked to put into place a comprehensive program aimed at realizing the President's goal of landing an American on Mars. This is an ambitious and worthy goal, but the technological and physiological challenges, not to mention the cost, mean that it may be decades before an American walks on the Martian surface.

In the interim, we can continue to explore the Red Planet and our neighbors with relatively inexpensive probes that are better equipped than humans to survive the extreme hardship of long-duration space travel.

Madam Speaker, as we consider the future of our space program, I urge NASA and my colleagues not to deprive JPL, one of the crown jewels of American science and technology, of adequate resources. The Mars program is one of the centerpieces of JPL's focus and the lab has several exciting missions planned for the next couple decades.

But even as JPL unlocks the secrets of our planetary neighbors, it is poised to begin an ambitious search for habitable worlds around the stars, a search that will help to answer one of humankind's oldest questions: Are we alone in the universe?

SIM PlanetQuest scheduled for launch in the middle of the next decade will precisely determine the distances to stars throughout our galaxy and will probe nearby stars for Earth-sized planets. SIM will open a window to a new world of discoveries.

The Mars program and SIM PlanetQuest are ambitious and resource-intensive missions with long lead times. JPL has also been a leading NASA center for the Explorer that in the past has offered opportunities to carry out small and medium-sized missions that can be developed and launched in a short timeframe.

The Explorer program engages academia, industry, NASA centers and government labs in strong partnerships that provide young engineers, scientists, and managers the opportunity to develop and gain valuable experience on missions from inception to launch.

Unfortunately, as a result of budget cuts over the last few years, this important program is quietly being phased out. But I believe that we must consider the significant and damaging effect this will have on NASA's scientific and technological program.

I am especially concerned about the recent decision to terminate the NuSTAR mission before its interim confirmation review. This action will have permanent damaging consequences as it is causing the scientific community as well as industry to question the reliability of NASA as a partner and the wisdom of investing internal resources in the proposal development process.

The termination calls NASA's commitment to the peer review selection process into serious question and illustrates, in my view, a lack of appreciation of the serious investment made by the team at NASA to date.

While I understand that NASA is facing difficult budgetary decisions, the priorities must be set, it would be a severe blow to NASA science to allow such a low-cost, productive, and unique program like Explorers to be so severely cut. In particular the unprecedented action taken with NuSTAR will have lasting consequences for all future competed missions.

Madam Speaker, the decisions we make this year will have profound implications for the future of America's space program. Even as we celebrate JPL's most recent successes, I urge NASA and my colleagues to work to ensure JPL's leadership in exploring our solar system and the Universe beyond.

UNIVERSITY OF TOLEDO ALTERNATIVE SPRING BREAK GULF TRIP

THE SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I am taping or putting up here a Web site that will help to pay tribute to over 200 students, professors, and other citizens from Ohio's universities, schools, and just citizens interested who traveled to the gulf in our country on an alternative spring break.

Called Rockets on the Road to Compassion, the University of Toledo's alternative spring break directed the efforts of over 200 Americans in helping the hurricane-ravaged areas of the gulf. To learn more about what they did and are doing, go to the Web site www.UTalternative.springbreak.utoledo.edu. I will keep repeating that tonight.

From March 3 through March 11, these magnificent Americans traveled to Florida, Louisiana, Alabama, Texas, Mississippi, and Georgia. The UT chapter of Campus Crusade for Christ sent 65 students to Pass Christian, Mississippi, where Katrina's eye made landfall.

The UT's Catholic Student Association sent 20 students to help build homes in Ft. Walton Beach, Florida. Donovan Nichols, a University of Toledo graduate student and AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer, led coordination efforts for 104 participants spread across five locations devastated by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita: Bay St. Louis, Mississippi; Bayou LaBatre, Alabama; Orange, Texas; Lake Charles; as well as Metairie in Louisiana.

Organizers and chaperones included Dr. Celia Regimbal, tenured University of Toledo professor in health sciences, and Reverend Dee Baker, the director of the Toledo Campus Ministry on the campus. America thanks all of them.

The world can learn more about their journey by looking at their Web site, www.utalternative.springbreak.utoledo.edu. Some of the hundreds and thousands and stories from the gulf are reflected by what they did.

We recall with them the words: America is only as great as she is good. I know that their goal is to help follow through on this journey, to tell other Americans what happened so they can follow suit and to help us as we continue relating to these communities.

Let me just read some of the excerpts on this blog. From Dr. Celia Regimbal, University of Toledo professor, assigned to Bay St. Louis, Mississippi. She says, it has taken 21 of us 3 days to remove siding and get felt paper up. How long would it take one person? How long would it take to replace your neighborhood?

There is not a house in Bay St. Louis and Waveland that has not suffered some damage. We are guessing that 30 percent of the homes are totally gone. It will take years to rebuild the coast. We cannot forget that the folks here will continue to need our help.

Terrance Teagarden, who was assigned to New Orleans, wrote: between the two crews we have got operating right now down here, we look to have two houses gutted and a decent start on two more. Three houses gutted by crews of about 10 in 4 days' time. At this rate, he says, it will take years to get things back to normal here.

I saw President Bush and his escort fly over on a helicopter yesterday morning before we began our work. I heard the President say at a press conference awhile back he would love to bring his family here. Not in this condition he would not. Mr. President, he says, please come down to the 9th Ward and work with us, or any crew of volunteers for one day. I guarantee you will think differently of the progress made.

Then the young man says, honestly, pointing fingers will not help anyone anymore right now. We need thousands, droves, of Americans staying in tents and parks and churches all over the gulf region just helping to gut, prepare for inspection, and rebuild houses.

Through all of this, it has been the efforts of grass-roots organizations that have really gotten things done. Right now there is a need for playground items such as Hula-Hoops, balls. Schools and churches also need supplies to rebuild.

Donovan Nichols, who was assigned to Lake Charles, Louisiana, said, prior to Hurricane Rita, this town of Cameron had a population of roughly 2,000 people clinging to the edge of the Gulf of Mexico. Now, aside from relief workers, the community is deserted. While working on the roof at the house in Starks, two separate individuals dropped by asking us for help.

They described how they were not eligible for any FEMA money, but they really needed help. They sent them to some local churches for help.

Mary Ellen Edwards in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, says: our group here in Bay St. Louis spent part of yesterday and today helping a family of five who were trying to get their uninhabitable house cleaned up.

Madam Speaker, I know my time is expired, but I would like to place all of the remarks in the RECORD and ask the American people to look at www.utalternative.springbreak.utoledo.edu Please help Ohioans rebuild the gulf.

Today we also helped out the whole community by cleaning the debris off of the beach. The community gets a reduction in the loans it has gotten from FEMA to help out the people in Hancock County for each hour of work volunteers do in beach clean up. Celia Regimbal set this up through the environmental staff person from Congressman GENE TAYLOR's office.

If the role of the government is to provide for the common good, the Federal Government just cannot seem to get much of a handle on this problem. Perhaps it is too worried about the media spin, its image, and pointing fingers than really working on solving the problem.

Imagine, by Neda Archie in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi:

Actually seeing the devastation has humbled me. The first day we drove through town I had no words. I felt every emotion possible to feel therefore I just looked with a kind of blank stare in disbelief. You don't know anything until you actually see it with your own eyes.

Imagine what is now trash and rubble used to be your prized possessions, your family photographs, your favorite pair of shoes, an old staircase from the house your family grew up in, and not your roof but your neighbors roof. Imagine trying to salvage and dry out a little piece of your life that existed before the devastation.

Imagine your schools you graduated from, the bridges you used to cross, the trees you used to climb, and the flowers that used to bloom are non-existent. Imagine losing some of your friends and loved ones. Imagine 75 percent of your town is gone.

Reflections by Danselle in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi:

These past few days have taught us all a valuable lesson, humility. This street was once where beach houses, mansions, and beautiful summer homes once dwelled. Now there's nothing but the Gulf. I expected to come down here and see at least a house fixture, but that's barely possible even 6 months later.

Most of the homes have been here for over 100 years, passed down through generations. These homes are extremely too expensive to replace, so most people have to settle with a home that's a lot cheaper.

The residents here in Bay St. Louis have experienced the absolute worst in wind damage, and were basically forgotten all about. We have been described as elephant biters. Katrina was like a big elephant dropped onto the entire coast, and we are here to bite chunks out of this elephant until it's completely gone.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE IRAQ WAR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Madam Speaker, this weekend will mark the third anniversary of the Iraq war, and I am still wondering, more importantly the majority of the American people are wondering, why we went there, and what we are still doing there.

Remember, we were told this was going to be a walk in the park, in and out in a flash. A few thousand troops and a few million dollars, no sweat. Well, now it has been 3 years, and if we are not out by the end of this year, 2006, our troops will have been fighting in Iraq longer than their grandparents fought in World War II.

More than 2,300 Americans dead; tens of thousands wounded; tens of thousands, maybe even hundreds of thousands, of Iraqi civilians killed; over a quarter billion dollars spent, and for what? So we can lose all stature and credibility around the world? So we can give rise to an insurgency that shows no signs of abating? So we can inspire even greater hatred of the United States among violent jihadists in the Muslim world? Or so we can throw gasoline on the fire of sectarian strife in Iraq and further ignite a civil war?

Yesterday's Washington Post reports at least 86 bodies found in Iraq, many of them in a mass grave, many of them having been strangled or tortured. And today the biggest air offensive since the beginning of this mistake.

When is enough enough, Madam Speaker? How many more Presidential speeches? How many more half-baked platitudes about the march of freedom?

Just two days ago at George Washington University, the President said: "The work ahead in Iraq is hard." But it was his administration that assured us 3 years ago of just the opposite, that this was going to be easy. "We will complete the mission," he said yesterday. But in May 2003, he was declaring "mission accomplished," in fact, draping an aircraft carrier with those very words.

The real tragedy is that our Nation will be living with this disastrous fallout from this war for generations. The money we have spent on this war is money we do not have and will not have for investments in our people, their health care, their education, their retirement, their job training, and, yes, their security.

The unspeakable, despicable acts of torture that took place at Abu Ghraib have robbed us of our moral authority. The very foundations of freedom have been threatened by the PATRIOT Act and the President's defiance of the rule of law on domestic surveillance.

The trumped-up weapons of mass destruction intelligence and the fabrication about an Iraqi link to 9/11 have damaged the trust between America and its leaders, trust that is critical to a thriving democracy.

And on a very basic human level, what about men and women who come back from Iraq shattered by the experience? Even if they make it home with all of their limbs functioning and intact, what about the psychological demons that come home with them?

These brave patriots need medical help if they are going to lead a productive civilian life, but according to a recent study by the military, they are not getting it.

Although one-third of returning Iraq and Afghanistan veterans are seeking mental health services, the great majority of those who are diagnosed with psychiatric problems are going untreated.

A lot of damage has been done, Madam Speaker, and there is a lot of work ahead: work to repair our troops, our principles, and our reputation. But there is one thing we could do right now to stem the tide, to contain the damage, to literally stop the bleeding. We could and we should bring our troops home now.

SAVING LIVES THROUGH LEGISLATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MCCARTHY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MCCARTHY. Madam Speaker, I came here to Washington to do everything I could to reduce gun violence in this country; and unfortunately, the atmosphere that is here is preventing me from doing that.

There are many out there that say I am out there to try to take away the right of someone to own a gun, and yet I have never introduced any kind of legislation that would do any such thing.

What I am trying to do is save lives. What I am trying to do is certainly try to keep medical costs down. We have come to an agreement, many Members in this Chamber, on legislation I introduced a couple of years ago. The reason behind this legislation was because, unfortunately, there was another shooting in my district and two of my parishioners were killed. And the sad story is it could have been prevented.

Peter Troy, who is someone that had a very long mental health background, and he also had a restraining order from his mother against him because of his violent acts, was able to go into a store and legally buy a gun. He was able to do this because the State, my State of New York, did not put the information into the State system that was supposed to go into the NICS system.

This is happening every single day across this Nation. We looked into it and figured how can we change this. So we started looking at the different States. We saw that some States hardly had any records in the NICS system that had anything to do with domestic violence. We saw also that many States did not put anything in on those that were convicted of felonies. So we came up with legislation that we thought would help to reduce crime in this country.

We came up with legislation that we knew if we could keep guns out of illegal hands, those that should not be able to buy a gun, we could save lives. And if we could save lives, we are hoping also we could save injuries, and this way it is a win-win situation for everyone in our community.

I am hoping before the Memorial Day recess that I will be able to get my legislation back on to the floor for a vote. It did pass in 1997, and we had it on a voice vote because everybody agreed with it.

Now, I know our time down here is very short. We are going on another break this very week. For the 10 years that I have been here in Washington, we have never had a break in March. I wish we could be staying so we could continue to work to do the people's work.

I guess what I want to talk about is that we could have reasonable laws that could help people, save people's lives and make a difference in someone's life. We can do this without certainly infringing on anyone's second amendment rights.

The NICS bill that I am proposing would help our States bring their data up to speed. We all know that computers and the Internet are moving very rapidly, but a computer is only as good as the information in it. What I propose, and what had been accepted here in this House, would give the States the money so that when someone is convicted of a crime that would make them ineligible to be able to buy a gun, that would immediately go into the system. This is a win-win situation for everyone.

Back in my State of New York we are seeing more and more illegal guns coming into my city. It is probably happening in a lot of other States. It is only a small percentage of those bad people that are buying these illegal guns that we can stop.

Madam Speaker, there are so many things we could do to stop gun violence in this country, to make a difference. And I know it is not on the top of the list of everybody in this country. I know the majority of people are struggling to just get through their day, working, coming home, taking care of the family, doing everything that a family should be doing because they honestly feel that we as politicians are down here protecting them.

We talk about homeland security. We talk about possible terrorists in this country, and yet we make it so easy for those out there to buy guns.

Madam Speaker, I hope we can make a difference. I hope we can change the dialogue. I hope we can save lives. I hope we can prevent injuries.

BRAIN AWARENESS WEEK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. KENNEDY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Madam Speaker, today I rise to acknowledge Brain Awareness Week, which reminds us that neuroscience research is critical to the health of U.S. global competitiveness and much of this research is done by the National Institutes of Health.

As Members of Congress, many of us from both sides of the aisle make a commitment to doubling the NIH budget, and many of us now wonder what do we get for what we paid for.

Some are asking this and I have asked them to look at www.SFN.org, which stands for the Society of Neuroscience which has produced 24 separate brain research success stories. Behind me here you see some of the incredible technology that is giving rise to research in the brain by helping us through PET scans and fMRIs, looking into the brain as we have never been able to do before.

These discoveries have allowed us to develop treatments that reduce the severity of symptoms for those suffering from Parkinson's, those suffering from affective disorders. We have seen a whole new class of anti-depressants that produce fewer side effects than their predecessors. We have also seen great breakthroughs in the identification of new stroke treatment and prevention methods, and we have seen the creation of ways to help prevent epileptic seizures, as well as expansion of treatments for psychotic symptoms and schizophrenia. Research brings hope and improves the lives of millions of Americans.

Madam Speaker, in this country mental illnesses comprise the second leading cause of lost work days in our country. Suicide in this country is twice the rate of homicide. We lose 34,000 people a year to suicide. The fact of the matter is we have 1,300 young people every single day who try to take their lives in this country. And yet we can reach into this brain science, find and discover ways to help reduce the severity of mental illness and address the needs that people have that cause them to suffer so greatly.

Madam Speaker, I would just point once again to the fact that we have had technology thanks to the National Institutes of Mental Health, the National Institute of Drug Addiction, the National Institute of Alcoholism that has demonstrated to us that we are going to see great promise. But we need the American people to call their Members of Congress and say to their Members of Congress, we want full funding for mental health research and neuroscience.

We have come too far to step back now. Anybody watching this program needs to call their Members of Congress, their Senator and their Representative, and say we do not want to take a step backward in brain research. We want us to go forward to help solve the many mysteries of the brain and the suffering that is going out around this country from those who are suffering from mental illness.

Madam Speaker, we also need them to ask for parity for mental health coverage, which means equal insurance coverage for mental illness as every other physical illness. You cannot look at these poster boards and not tell me that mental illness is physical illness.

It is not a sign of a character defect if they are depressed, if they are suffering from mental illness. It is a sign that they need the kind of attention to the organ, which is their brain, the organ which is their brain that too often has been associated with stigma and stereotype that has guided our policymaking too much of the time; and as a result we spend less than four of every 100 of your dollars at NIH studying brain diseases even though they comprise the second leading cause of lost days in this country.

Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in recognizing Brain

Awareness Week and join me in helping to continue the research, the very promising work that is going on in our institutes of health that help us find the discoveries that we need in order to relieve the suffering of millions of Americans.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mrs. DAVIS of California (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today on account of illness.

Mr. SHIMKUS (at the request of Mr. BOEHNER) for today after 3:00 p.m. on account of overseeing elections in Belarus.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. DEFAZIO) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. DEFAZIO, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. PALLONE, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. SCHIFF, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. KAPTUR, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. WOOLSEY, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. EMANUEL, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio, for 5 minutes, today.

Mrs. MCCARTHY, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. MCDERMOTT, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. DELAURO, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. MCKINNEY, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island, for 5 minutes, today.

(The following Member (at the request of Mr. POE) to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. BISHOP of Utah, for 5 minutes, today.

ENROLLED JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

Mrs. Haas, Clerk of the House, reported and found truly enrolled a joint resolution of the House of the following title, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H.J. Res. 47. Joint resolution increasing the statutory limit on the public debt.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of today, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Accordingly, pursuant to the previous order of the House of today, the House stands adjourned until noon on Monday, March 20, 2006, unless it sooner has received a message from the Senate transmitting its adoption of House Concurrent Resolution 361, in which case the House shall stand adjourned pursuant to that concurrent resolution.

Thereupon (at 7 o'clock and 27 minutes p.m.), pursuant to the previous order of the House of today, the House adjourned until noon on Monday, March 20, 2006, unless it sooner has received a message from the Senate transmitting its adoption of House Concurrent Resolution 361, in which case the House shall stand adjourned pursuant to that concurrent resolution.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 8 of rule XII, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

6721. A letter from the Administrator, FSIS, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule—Changes in Fees for Meat, Poultry, and Egg Products Inspection Services—Fiscal Years 2006-2008 [Docket No. 03-027F; FDMS Docket Number FSIS-2005-0025] (RIN: 0583-AD12) received February 21, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

6722. A letter from the Congressional Review Coordinator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule—Add Kazakhstan, Romania, Russia, Turkey, and Ukraine to List of Regions in Which Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza Subtype H5N1 is Considered to Exist [Docket No. APHIS-2006-0010] received February 15, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

6723. A letter from the Alternate OSD Federal Register Liaison Officer, Department of Defense, transmitting the Department's final rule—TRICARE; Revision of Participating Providers Reimbursement Rate; TRICARE Dental Program (TDP) [DOD-2006-OS-002] (RIN: 0720-AA92) received February 22, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Armed Services.

6724. A letter from the Counsel for Legislation and Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department's final rule—Delegation of Insuring Authority to Direct Endorsement Mortgages; Announcement of Information Collection Effective Date [Docket No. FR-4169-F-04] (RIN: 2502-AG87) received February 27, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Financial Services.

6725. A letter from the Assistant to the Board, Federal Reserve Board, transmitting the Board's final rule—Risk-Based Capital Guidelines; Market Risk Measure; Securities Borrowing Transactions [Regulation H and Y; Docket No. R-1087] received February 27, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Financial Services.

6726. A letter from the General Counsel, Federal Energy Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Revised Regulations Governing Small Power Production and Cogeneration Facilities [Docket No.

RM05-36-000; Order No. 671) received February 27, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

6728. A letter from the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Export Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Department's final rule—Clarification to the Export Administration Regulations; General Order to Implement the Syria Accountability and Lebanese Sovereignty Act [Docket No. 051230351-5351-01] (RIN: 0694-AD68) received February 22, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on International Relations.

6729. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting a copy of D.C. ACT 16-293, "DC-USA Economic Development Act of 2006," pursuant to D.C. Code section 1-233(c)(1); to the Committee on Government Reform.

6730. A letter from the Assistant Attorney General for Administration, Department of Justice, transmitting the Department's final rule—Privacy Act of 1974; Implementation [AAG/A Order No. 004-2006] received February 27, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Government Reform.

6731. A letter from the Assistant Attorney General for Administration, Department of Justice, transmitting the Department's final rule—Privacy Act of 1974; Implementation [AAG/A Order No. 019-2005] received January 6, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Government Reform.

6732. A letter from the Director, Office of Surface Mining, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department's final rule—Termination of Federal Enforcement for Parts of the Missouri Permanent Regulatory Program and Return of Full Regulatory Authority to the State of Missouri [Docket No. MO-738] received January 26, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

6733. A letter from the Director, NIST, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Department's final rule—Summer Undergraduate Research Fellowships (SURF) Gailthersburg and Boulder Programs; Availability of Funds [Docket No. 051222346-5346-01] received February 3, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Science.

6734. A letter from the Office of Regulations Policy and Management, VBA, Department of Veterans Affairs, transmitting the Department's final rule—Dependency and Indemnity Compensation: Surviving Spouse's Rate; Payments Based on Veteran's Entitlement to Compensation for Service-Connected Disability Rated Totally Disabling for Specified Periods Prior to Death (RIN: 2900-AL86) received February 1, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

6735. A letter from the Assistant Director, Directives and Regulations Branch, Office of Regulatory and Management Services, USDA Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule—Travel Management; Designated Routes and Areas for Motor Vehicle Use (RIN: 0596-AC11) received January 24, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); jointly to the Committees on Agriculture and Resources.

6736. A letter from the Regulations Coordinator, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting the Department's final rule—Medicare Program; Medicare Secondary Payer Amendments [CMS-6272-IFC] (RIN: 0938-AN27) received February 27, 2006, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); jointly to the Committees on Energy and Commerce and Ways and Means.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. SENSENBRENNER: Committee on the Judiciary. H.R. 4709. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to strengthen protections for law enforcement officers and the public by providing criminal penalties for the fraudulent acquisition or unauthorized disclosure of phone records (Rept. 109-395). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia: Supplementary Report and Document Annex by the Select Bipartisan Committee to Investigate the Preparation for and Response to Hurricane Katrina (Rept. 109-396). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. HUNTER: Committee on Armed Services. House Resolution 685. Resolution requesting the President and directing the Secretary of State and Secretary of Defense provide to the House of Representatives certain documents in their possession relating to any entity with which the United States has contracted for public relations purposes concerning Iraq; adversely (Rept. 109-397). Referred to the House Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. KIRK:

AMENDMENTS

Under clause 8 of rule XVIII, proposed amendments were submitted as follows:

H.R. 4939

OFFERED BY: Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD
 AMENDMENT No. 38: Page 59, line 1, insert “(increased by $50,000,000)” after the dollar figure.

SENATE—Thursday, March 16, 2006(Legislative day of Wednesday, March 15, 2006)*

The Senate met at 9 a.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. STEVENS).

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

God of lights, who into chaotic darkness commanded brightness, shine into our world with the fullness of Your love. Illuminate our minds so we will be Your ambassadors.

Empower our Senators to release reconciliation forces that will bring harmony and concord.

Bless our world leaders, who agonize for strategies that will bring sanity during insane times. Help them to remember that there is no time when You will fail us and no moment when we do not need You.

Bless, also, our military people who have left home and homeland to sacrifice for freedom. Keep their families and loved ones secure in Your love.

We pray in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET FOR THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of S. Con. Res. 83, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 83) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2007 and including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2007 and 2008 through 2011.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. shall be evenly divided between the Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. GREGG, and the Senator from North Dakota, Mr. CONRAD.

Pending:

Specter amendment No. 3048, to increase the advance appropriations allowance in order to fund health, education and training, and low-income programs.

Reid (for Clinton/Reid) amendment No. 3115, to increase funding in fiscal year 2007 by $347 million to restore funding or provide increased funding over fiscal year 2006 for programs and policies that support the delivery of contraceptive services and medically accurate information in order to reduce the number of unintended pregnancies, including Title X of the Public Health Service Act, and to restore funding or provide increased funding over fiscal year 2006 for programs that help women have healthy pregnancies and healthy children, including the Child Care Development Block Grant, Maternal and Child Health Block Grant, Healthy Start, and the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children paid for by closing corporate tax loopholes.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, this morning we are returning to the budget resolution for what we hope will be the final day. Chairman GREGG and Senator CONRAD will be managing the time until 10:30 a.m. At 10:30, we have an order for a series of four stacked votes. The first two are on the debt limit extension, and the last two votes are in relation to the avian flu amendments to the budget resolution. The two managers will then control the remaining time until 1:30 this afternoon when all time expires.

At 1:30 today, we begin disposing of the pending amendments and any additional amendments that are offered. This is the beginning of the so-called vote-arama. This is a difficult process. These votes will likely continue for a while today and possibly into the evening. I urge my colleagues to remain in or around the Chamber.

I was talking to the Democratic manager, and we both agreed, as does the Republican manager, that our colleagues must and we encourage them to show restraint during the day and recognize not every amendment needs to be offered. Yesterday, Senators missed some votes because they did not show up on time. The managers will be very clear in terms of how much time is allowed for each vote. We encourage Members to stay close to the Chamber so they do not miss the votes. The only way to finish the budget is to have that discipline and not to drag the votes on for 15 minutes or more. I also encourage Members to rethink whether they need to offer their amendments, as I stated earlier.

Finally, I note that we have some nominations to consider before we adjourn. On the list of nominations are two district judges we will finish. If votes are needed, then we will need to schedule those votes with the budget votes as well. However, I hope we can work on a nominations list that will be agreed to by unanimous consent.

I thank Senator GREGG and Senator CONRAD for their efforts so far. I thank everyone in advance for their patience during this budget process.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3133

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I am offering an amendment on avian flu. I offered this same amendment in the committee because after testimony by Secretary Leavitt before the Committee on the Budget, we are clearly still unprepared to meet any potential pandemic.

Here is what the U.N. said on March 9:

“Bird flu is likely to spread to birds in the United States within six months and could produce an epidemic among humans ‘at any time,’ said a U.N. official. The prediction by David Nabarro was the first by a top global health official pinpointing when birds carrying the flu will arrive in the lower 48 States.”

He went on to say, and I hope my colleagues and their staffs are listening:

“There will be a pandemic sooner or later,” Nabarro said. “It could start any time. We have a virus capable of replicating inside humans. We have a virus that humans are not resistant to. We have a virus about which we don’t understand everything.”

The administration’s assessment of what could happen if there were a pandemic is truly sobering. I will discuss the Bush administration estimates of possible consequences from avian flu pandemic. In terms of illness, if it were severe, 90 million people could be affected in this country. The requirement for outpatient medical care: 45 million people.

Colleagues, we are totally unprepared for something of this magnitude.

Hospitalization, if it were severe, 9.9 million people in this country would require hospitalization. ICU care—that is intensive care—almost 1.5 million people would need intensive care. We do not have the ventilators, we do not have the facilities, and we do not have the beds to accommodate that level of illness. Mechanical ventilation, almost 750,000 people would require ventilation. Again, we simply are not prepared for that.

And most sobering of all are the deaths. They anticipate in this country alone almost 2 million people could die.

Right now, the death rate is running far above that. We know, for everyone who has been diagnosed with this illness, roughly half are dying. Because these viruses tend to burn out, we would not get that same effect if we have a widespread outbreak, but nonetheless the potential is truly sobering. Again, we are not prepared.

Local communities will require Federal assistance if a pandemic strikes. This is from the director of public health in Seattle in King County, WA, as quoted in the USA Today on February 21, of this year:

Our hospitals and our public health system are funded for normal levels of operation . . . but have always relied on the federal government should we have need for more ventilators, for example, in the event of an earthquake or other mass-fatality event. "What the federal planners are not getting," she says, "is that if there is a pandemic, every community will be asking for ventilators from the national stockpile at the same time."

Clearly she has that right. We are not prepared.

The Secretary said in his testimony before the Committee on the Budget that what is different about a pandemic is that it happens everywhere at once. You do not have the option of dealing with a few hotspots.

It is very clear we need more resources. What we most need additional resources for is to develop vaccines. We also need antivirals and more resources for public health. But clearly the top priority has to be developing vaccines that can safeguard people against this illness.

Here is the summary of our situation with respect to vaccines. We have limited vaccine production capacity, relying on only three companies. The bird flu virus is mutating, making current vaccines less effective. Current vaccine production is egg based and could be threatened by bird flu itself. That is a very important point. The way they make vaccine now, they use eggs, but of course the eggs are in the bird population. This is a bird flu. The population we would currently count on to produce vaccine may itself be threatened.

Finally, we need alternative technologies, since companies have few incentives to build expensive cell-based production facilities.

Mr. President and colleagues, it is very clear we cannot rely on eggs. Currently, there is not the production of the number of eggs to produce a max vaccine in a rapid way. So we have to move to a cell-based technology. But companies have few incentives to build these expensive cell-based production facilities unless they are guaranteed there is going to be a market.

The amendment I am offering would increase funding by $5 billion to combat an avian flu pandemic and increase local preparedness. The amendment would distribute that money as follows—this is based on testimony before the committee and our own outreach to the scientific community—an additional $1.5 billion to increase the stockpile of antivirals and necessary medical supplies, including masks, gloves, ventilators, antibiotics, and ongoing medical treatment needs for chronic-care patients.

With respect to antivirals, we know by the end of this year we are slated to have some 20 million courses of treatment of Tamiflu. The administration's goal is 80 million. So we are well short of having the necessary stockpiles of the antiviral Tamiflu. Clearly, we need more resources there. Clearly, we need more resources for ventilators. We already heard public health officials say that will be one place where there will be an extreme shortage should we face a pandemic.

Next, the amendment provides $2.5 billion to accelerate vaccine research, development, and manufacturing. And finally, it provides $1 billion to increase State and local preparedness. The amendment also ensures that the additional funding is fully offset, completely paid for.

I hope very much my colleagues will support this amendment. I know there is a resistance on the other side to increasing the top-line spending number. If there were ever a time to make an investment in protecting America, this is it. We could face the tragedy of our time.

I am reading a book called "The Great Influenza." It is about the 1918 flu epidemic in which they estimate 50 to 100 million people died in this world. We have not had a pandemic since. Pandemics typically occur every 50 years or so, so we are well overdue. We did have a widespread, very severe flu in 1968.

The Secretary says we are not prepared, says we are not ready. Local health officials say we are not ready. International health officials say we are not ready. I hope very much we get ready and make this investment.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator OBAMA, Senator CLINTON, Senator DURBIN, and Senator SCHUMER be added as cosponsors of this amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Finally, the Senator from North Carolina, Mr. BURR, will have an amendment that will be considered at the same time as mine. His amendment is an empty vessel. Mr. President, let me send my amendment to the desk. I am sensing they do not have a copy there.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD], for himself, Mr. OBAMA, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. SCHUMER, proposes an amendment numbered 3133.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase funding to combat avian flu, increase local preparedness, and create a Manhattan Project-like effort to develop a vaccine to inoculate the U.S. Population against a pandemic by $5 billion in FY 2007 paid for by requiring tax withholding on government payments to contractors like Halliburton)

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, on Monday, we heard Secretary Leavitt tell us that the avian flu will arrive in the United States by this fall. And if our worst fears are realized and it becomes a virus that can spread easily from human to human, the avian flu could be here within 30 days.

As Dr. Julie Greenberg, Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, has said, "This is the most important threat we face right now." We are not talking about hundreds or thousands of lives here—we are talking millions. Millions.

The question, then, is not whether we have taken steps to prepare ourselves for the avian flu. Instead, the question is whether we have taken every imaginable and necessary precaution—whether we have done everything we possibly could do—to combat potentially the greatest global health threat in a century.

I don't believe that we have. But I know that we must. The United States cannot afford to have a Katrina-level of preparedness or a Katrina-like response to an international outbreak of avian flu. With so many warnings and so much knowledge of the threat we face, there is no excuse for failure this time around.

The first thing we need to do is increase our supply of Tamiflu and other medications. Countries such as Japan, France, England, and others have now stockpiled enough Tamiflu to cover a quarter of their populations. The United States has enough to cover just 2 percent.

If the avian flu mutates and is able to spread between humans, we will also need a new vaccine to treat the new virus. But as we saw during last year's flu season, our vaccine industry remains fragile and even the supply and distribution of something simple like a flu shot poses a challenge. This has to change.

Of course, as Secretary Leavitt has pointed out, the time it takes to develop a new vaccine means that we could be without any treatment for up to 6 months after the avian flu first breaks out. And that means that if we have an outbreak, it is imperative that our public health infrastructure be prepared to handle the crisis.

First, we need a clear chain of command. We can't be wondering who is in charge of dealing with an outbreak.

Second, we need an aggressive outreach campaign to warn and educate the American public about what to do in the event of an outbreak.

Third, it is still unclear how much assistance the Federal Government is willing to provide already cash-strapped States to strengthen their fragile health infrastructures. Although States such as Illinois are rapidly increasing their efforts to prepare, many States will need substantial assistance to buy antivirals and other supplies. And our hospitals and health professionals still don't have the capacity to care for large numbers of sick Americans.

The devastation wrought by Katrina last year has shown us that we cannot stop the forces of nature. But as the wealthiest country on Earth, we can prepare, and we can respond in a way that saves as many lives as possible.

We must do that now with the avian flu. The Conrad avian flu amendment will provide the necessary funds for Federal agencies, working with the States, to prepare for potential pandemic. I am pleased to be a cosponsor of the amendment, and I encourage my colleagues to vote in favor of it.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, Senator BURR will be offering an amendment at the same time as mine. What he is offering is a reserve fund that is deficit neutral but has no money attached to it. But later in the process, if funding were provided, that reserve fund would provide a receptacle. That is an empty vessel. There is nothing there.

It has value. I will support Senator BURR's amendment. It has value because at least there is a receptacle, at least there is a vessel, at least there is a way of taking funds that might be provided for later. But I want colleagues to know there is no new funding provided for in the Burr amendment.

The only amendment being offered here that is going to have additional resources to meet a possible pandemic is this one. So I hope colleagues think very carefully before they cast this vote.

With that, Mr. President, I note that Senator LIEBERMAN is in the Chamber. He is next up to offer an amendment on homeland security. Senator LIEBERMAN, of course, is the ranking member of the authorizing committee. He is, I think all would acknowledge on this floor, a leading voice on the question of homeland security.

Mr. President, I ask the Senator, how much time would he require?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, in a tradition that is associated with my family, I would ask the Senator from North Dakota, how much time does he have to offer?

Mr. CONRAD. Well, could the Senator do it in 10 minutes?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Yes, indeed.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I am happy to yield 10 minutes off the resolution to the Senator from Connecticut.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SUNUNU). The Senator from Connecticut is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair.

AMENDMENT NO. 3034

Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3034, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Connecticut [Mr. LIEBERMAN], for himself and Ms. MIKULSKI, proposes an amendment numbered 3034.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To protect the American people from terrorist attacks by providing $8 billion in additional funds for homeland security government-wide, by restoring cuts to vital first responder programs in the Department of Homeland Security and Justice, by providing an additional $1.2 billion for first responders, $1.7 billion for the Coast Guard and port security, $150 million for chemical security, $1 billion for rail and transit security, $456 million for FEMA, $1 billion for health preparedness programs and $752 million for aviation security)

On page 53, line 1, increase the amount by $7,977,000,000.

On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $2,151,000,000.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I thank the Chair.

I thank my friend from North Dakota. I thank him for his leadership on these matters of budget and really for his steadfastness.

Mr. President, I rise today to offer this amendment to the fiscal year 2007 budget resolution to strengthen our homeland security efforts in the face of the administration's budget, which in this regard—considering the fact we are in the post-9/11 world, in a long war against Islamist terrorism—I consider the administration's budget to be shortsighted and short funded, to be ill-considered and inadequate.

In my capacity as the ranking Democrat on the Homeland Security Committee, I have worked very closely with our chair, Senator COLLINS of Maine. This year, for the third year, I have worked with my staff, with experts from outside of the Government, to construct what I believed would be a wartime budget for homeland security. A budget that would do what really needs to be done to secure the American people against an enemy that has shown it will strike us not on the battlefields of conventional war but in our neighborhoods, where we live and where we work here in the United States of America.

The total I would add to the President's budget for homeland security is $8 billion. That, of course, is a significant sum, but in the overall context of the Federal budget submitted, it is less than one-third of 1 percent of the Federal budget—and it would be used to secure our homeland against an enemy of unprecedented inhumanity and against the forces of nature, which struck us badly in Hurricane Katrina, and, unfortunately, will again.

I propose to pay for this additional funding by tightening a number of tax loopholes. Therefore, the amendment would not add to the deficit.

Of the $8 billion in additional spending I am proposing, $6.2 billion would go directly to the Department of Homeland Security. The remainder is divided between the Department of Justice for law enforcement grants and the Department of Health and Human Services for public health preparedness in the face of a potential biological attack or a pandemic.

The money would restore what I consider to be unjustified cuts for first responders who, in the war against terrorism, are also our first preventers—hundreds of thousands of eyes and ears, of equipment, to detect and stop terrorists.

It would restore cuts for emergency managers and public health officials and make needed new investments in first responder programs. It would strengthen rail, transit, port, aviation, and chemical plant security, as well as Coast Guard readiness and bioterrorism preparedness.

Let me just look at a few of the details.

We know our first responders do not have the training, equipment, and frequently even the manpower they need to do their jobs properly whenever danger strikes.

Here, shown on this chart, is first responder funding. It is unbelievable when you see it charted in this way, in the midst of the long war against terrorism, in which our homeland has been struck. And we must assume the enemy will try to strike us again.

First responder funding in fiscal year 2004 was $3.95 billion. On this chart, you see a steady line going down, to the proposal here: $1.97 billion for the firefighters, the police officers, the emergency responders we depend on to protect us.

The President's budget in this regard would cut preparedness funding by 16 percent overall. It would cut $802 million from the first responder programs—a 23-percent cut from last year and a 50-percent reduction, as shown on the graph, from fiscal year 2004.

The administration's budget would entirely eliminate the Law Enforcement Terrorism Prevention Program and the Justice Assistance Grant Program—totally eliminate them—in a time of war against terrorism, and slash by 78 percent the highly successful, much depended upon COPS Program, Community Oriented Policing Services Program, which has put police officers on the beat throughout America and by and large reduced the incidence of crime.

For the second year in a row, the administration is also proposing to eliminate all funding for the Metropolitan Medical Response System, which supports planning and preparedness for potential mass casualties in a catastrophe. The administration is also proposing to eliminate funding for the SAFER Program, which helps recruit, hire, and train local firefighters. The budget given to us cuts grants that State and local emergency planners rely on to help them prepare for catastrophe. The fact is, without more support, our local communities will remain unprepared. That is dangerous in this age.

My amendment would begin to rebuild that support. It would restore $1.6 billion in proposed cuts to first responder programs and add an additional $1.2 billion to help improve State and local capabilities, especially in the area of interoperable communications. That would bring the total funding for first responders to $4.1 billion. Can we afford it? Honestly, we cannot afford not to afford it.

We would also restore funding for the programs I have talked about that will be cut in the Justice Department.

What about port security, because this is a comprehensive homeland security budget proposal? Moving on to port security, perhaps the silver lining of the Dubai Ports World disagreement is greater public recognition of the urgent need for port security. Ninety-five percent of all of the goods coming into America flow through our ports. A terrorism attack at a port would cause economic havoc, let alone human loss. And experts, of course, worry that weapons of mass destruction could be smuggled into this country in a shipping container.

We, therefore, must invest strategically in our defense, which is why this amendment would add an additional $1.7 billion for port security and for the Coast Guard, which performed so admirably in response to Hurricane Katrina but still does not have the capitalized, updated equipment it needs to do the job—enormous job—we are asking it to do.

On chemical security, we know too many facilities remain vulnerable and that an attack on one near a high-population center could have the same effect as a weapon of mass destruction. The administration's proposal is only $10 million. It is inadequate when compared with the $102 million the Coast Guard spent in 2005 and the $131 million it will spend in 2006 to protect chemical facilities at ports.

We face, as Senator CONRAD has said, the threat and danger of bioterrorism and bioterrorist attacks and pandemics, and yet inadequate funding is provided. Thus, my amendment would increase the money given to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, funding for State and local bioterrorism programs by $500 million and add another $500 million to the Health Resources and Services Administration bioterrorism program.

We have to absorb the painful dual lessons of September 11, 2001, and of August 29, 2005, the day Katrina struck. Our enemies are ruthless and choose to fight us at points of vulnerability. That is why we have to close those vulnerabilities. Nature will strike in unpredictable ways year after year. Yet so much of our national homeland security structure continues to have gaps. There is no cheap way to provide for the common defense, our constitutional responsibility. We have the best military in the world, and we have it because we have invested in it. We have the best personnel to carry out the protection of our homeland. We will never have the homeland defense we need unless we are prepared to spend for it. There is no more urgent need the American people have.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I appreciate the extraordinary commitment of the Senator from Connecticut to national defense, to a responsible policy in fighting terrorism. He is clearly one of the leaders in the Senate and the Nation on the issue of how we should protect ourselves as a nation. I respect him immensely. I admire him. It is good to have his voice on the issues of foreign policy and international terrorism and how we fight it.

On this issue, however, I respectfully disagree relative to the need for these additional dollars at this time. In this budget, we have robustly funded the fight on terrorism. The defense budget will be increased in the core budget by $30 billion. A lot of that goes toward fighting terrorism. We have set aside $90 billion of additional money, the purpose of which is to fight the war on terrorism. That is $40 billion more than the administration asked for. In addition, within those funds we have dedicated an additional $4 billion specifically to the issue of port security and border security. Quite honestly, as chairman of the committee that has jurisdiction over port security and border security, that is probably more money than those agencies can handle in 1 year. We will have to be careful to be sure that that money is spent effectively and not pushed out the door in purchasing blue lights and whistles. We want to make sure it purchases real assets and adds real manpower that will assist us in the war on terrorism. We have made a huge commitment in this budget to the issue of fighting terrorism.

The Senator from Connecticut correctly points out that first responder funds are down in this budget. That is a decision that has been made because of the fact there was so much first responder money that came so quickly, it simply hasn't been spent effectively yet. There was $13 billion that we have put into first responders across the country. That is a huge number, so large, in fact, that $5.5 billion of it, which has already been appropriated, which is sitting there, has not been spent, going back to 2004. There is literally $5.5 billion sitting in the pipeline that first responder groups have not spent, in part because State planning has not caught up to adequately meet the need for using the available funding. As soon as they are, those dollars will go out. As soon as that pipeline of $5.5 billion starts to get drawn down—remember, we are adding another several billion dollars on top of it in this bill—we are going to refill that pipeline to make sure that first responder funding is adequate.

It is not an issue of lack of dollars. It is an issue of lack of programmatic and systematic infrastructure, to a large degree—and planning, to a large degree. You could put another $40 billion or $8 billion or whatever billion on top of this, and you would still get little improvement in the amount of money flowing out to first responders because the necessity of having the money flow in a way that actually produces programmatic results has not been resolved yet.

It should not be our purpose as the Federal Government to be hiring people for local police forces and local first responder teams. What this money is supposed to be used for primarily is to give them the support so they have the necessary interoperability equipment, the necessary tactical equipment, and the necessary training to be effective as first responders. We should not be taking Federal first responder dollars and replacing local dollars that are already being used for the purposes of putting people on the street. States are making progress. As they come at us, we will put more money out there.

In addition, in the appropriating process we have taken the view, which is a little different than the authorizing committee, that risk should be where the money goes first. If a community has a high likelihood of risk from a terrorist attack, that community should be the place where we put the dollars. This has actually worked to the disadvantage of the State of New Hampshire. But my view is strong that these dollars, which are being used to basically upgrade the capacity of first responders to handle a terrorist attack, should go first to those places most likely to be on the front lines. We know where those places are. They know who they are. That is why we have basically funded it in that manner.

That is where we stand today. Very simply stated, there is an extremely robust commitment to fighting the war on terrorism in this bill: a $30 billion increase in defense spending; $90 billion in a separate budgeting process for fighting the war on terror, $40 billion more than the President asked for; $4 billion of new funds directed right at border security and port security; $2.3 billion directed right at avian flu and the purchasing of necessary supplies and antitoxins and hopefully vaccines, to address that issue. In the pipeline already from prior appropriations, there is $5.5 billion of funds out of the $13 billion that has been appropriated which is available for first responders from prior appropriations onto which we will put another chunk of money here.

The issue is not dollars in almost all these accounts. It is not dollars in terms of this budget. In terms of the President's budget, there may be a difference of opinion, but in terms of this budget the issue is not dollars. The issue is getting those dollars out effectively.

I oppose this amendment. I would have opposed it, anyway, because it basically raises taxes and spends money and breaks the caps. I think that is bad fiscal policy. I also oppose it on substance.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Rhode Island for his amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3074

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3074.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. REED], for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. DAYTON, Mr. KOHL, Mr. BAYH, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. JOHNSON, proposes an amendment numbered 3074.

Mr. REED. I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase funding for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program by $3,318,000,000 for fiscal year 2007, increasing the funds available to carry out that program to the fully authorized level of $5,100,000,000, to be paid for by closing corporate tax loopholes)

On page 3, line 13, increase the amount by $2,489,000,000.

On page 3, line 15, increase the amount by $763,000,000.

On page 3, line 17, increase the amount by $66,000,000.

On page 4, line 1, increase the amount by $2,489,000,000.

On page 4, line 2, increase the amount by $763,000,000.

On page 4, line 3, increase the amount by $66,000,000.

On page 4, line 13, increase the amount by $3,318,000,000.

On page 5, line 4, increase the amount by $2,489,000,000.

On page 5, line 6, increase the amount by $763,000,000.

On page 5, line 8, increase the amount by $66,000,000.

On page 21, line 24, increase the amount by $3,318,000,000.

On page 21, line 25, increase the amount by $2,489,000,000.

On page 22, line 4, increase the amount by $763,000,000.

On page 22, line 8, increase the amount by $66,000,000.

On page 53, line 1, increase the amount by $3,318,000,000.

On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $2,489,000,000.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, my amendment is straightforward. It would increase funding for the LIHEAP program, the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program, by $3.318 billion. It is paid for fully by the closing of corporate tax loopholes and is cosponsored by Senators KENNEDY, KERRY, CLINTON, LIEBERMAN, ROCKEFELLER, DORGAN, LEVIN, DAYTON, SCHUMER, KOHL, BAYH, JOHNSON, LEAHY, MENENDEZ, and HARKIN.

The President's budget request and the level of funding assumed in this budget resolution for LIHEAP is $1.782 billion. That represents a $379 million cut from the fiscal year 2006 enacted level. Last week we were struggling to pass an additional $1 billion. The question before us is, are we going to accept this inadequate funding knowing full well it is inadequate today. I hope we don't do that. My amendment, the increase of $3.318 billion, would reach the authorized level of $5.1 billion set by the Energy Policy Act of 2005. On five separate occasions during the course of the debate over LIHEAP in the last 6 months, the majority of the Senate has voted for this full funding level. I call upon all of those Members to join me today to ensure we have full funding. We understand this year we are short of money. The President's budget starts us off with even less.

This year we benefited from unusually warm temperatures. I don't think anyone would bet that next winter's heating season will be as mild and as forgiving as this season's. With higher energy prices—and we know they are going up—with probably lower temperatures, we are going to be in a very serious position unless we adopt this amendment.

In the course of the debate about LIHEAP, many of our colleagues from warmer States pointed out that they are not getting as much as they should. If we get to the $5.1 billion level, this will truly be a national program. Warmer weather States will have the money in the hot season where they need air conditioning to help low-income people. I hope we can do so. For example, Alabama will receive $15 million from the block grant formula under the President's budget. It would receive $87.2 million under my amendment, a 479-percent increase, and so on throughout the country.

I hope we can pass this amendment. I hope we can have the foresight to recognize that we can't start off in the hole. We cannot expect warm temperatures this next heating season. We have to do more for the most vulnerable.

I yield whatever remaining time I have back to the Senator from North Dakota.

AMENDMENT NO. 3136

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Senator from Rhode Island for his amendment. I thank him also for his courtesy and graciousness.

The situation we have is, I have very few minutes left this morning. We don't have another Senator. I have asked other Senators to come to the floor. While we are waiting, I will do my final amendment. I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD] proposes an amendment numbered 3136.

Mr. CONRAD. I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide a reserve fund for bold energy legislation that is deficit neutral)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. __. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR ENERGY LEGISLATION.

The Chairman of the Senate Committee on the Budget may revise the allocations, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would reduce our nation's dependence on foreign sources of energy, expand production and use of alternative fuels and alternative fuel vehicles, promote renewable energy development, improve electricity transmission, encourage responsible development of domestic oil and natural gas resources, and reward conservation and efficiency, by the amounts provided in such legislation for that purpose, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over the total of the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, in many ways this may be one of the most important amendments we offer on our side. I say that because if I look across the horizon at the challenges facing America, energy dependence would be right at the top of the list.

In his State of the Union Message, the President said:

[We have a serious problem: America is addicted to oil, which is often imported from unstable parts of the world.

I think the President has that exactly right.

We can see in this chart that imports now account for 60 percent of total U.S. consumption; that is, of the oil that we are consuming, 60 percent of it is imported. That creates a vulnerability for America. This dependence on imported energy is dramatically adding to our record trade deficit; $266 billion of the trade deficit over the last year is due to imported petroleum products. We ran a trade deficit during that period of about $700 billion. More than a third of it is due to our reliance on foreign energy.

That represents over a third of the total trade deficit. The President made very strong statements in the State of the Union about the need to reduce our dependence, reduce our vulnerability. But if you look at his budget, you see something quite different: the clean coal power initiative, cut 90 percent; weatherization assistance grants to improve conservation of energy in homes reduced almost a third; electricity delivery and reliability, cut 23 percent; fossil energy R&D, cut 21 percent.

Mr. President, several weeks ago, President Bush had a small group of Senators to the White House to talk about energy. I told him I was going to be introducing legislation that would provide substantial incentives to do what Brazil did. It is very instructive to look back over the last 30 years. Thirty years ago, Brazil was 80 percent dependent on foreign energy. They reduced that to less than 10 percent today. If we look at our story, it is just the flip. Back in the 1970s, we were 35 percent dependent upon foreign energy; today it is 60 percent.

I think the question presents itself: What did Brazil do? Brazil very aggressively promoted biodiesel, ethanol, and flexible fuel vehicles. In fact, the vast majority of their vehicle fleet in Brazil are now flex fuel vehicles. They have very aggressively promoted ethanol and biodiesel. We should do the same. Those are the key components of the energy plan I will be presenting to our colleagues—aggressive promotion of biodiesel and ethanol, alternative fuel vehicles, wind energy, and coal-to-liquid fuel technology and energy efficiency in conservation.

Mr. President, my energy reserve fund creates a deficit-neutral reserve fund for bold and balanced energy legislation that reduces our Nation's dependence upon foreign sources of energy, expands the production and use of alternative fuels and alternative fuel vehicles, promotes renewable energy development, encourages responsible development of oil and natural gas resources right here in America, and rewards conservation and efficiency.

Mr. President, this is a deficit-neutral reserve fund. Only if we find a way to pay for this initiative will it be able to go forward. My own view is that this is such a high priority for our country and raised, I think, to national attention by the President in his State of the Union, but we don't have a budget to match bold words. We need bold initiatives to match bold words, to really do something to reduce our dependence. It makes us vulnerable. It is weakening our economy.

I said to the President: What a difference it could make. Would it not be wonderful if the President could wake up and instead of turning to the Middle East for oil, he could look to the Midwest of our own country where we could help grow our way out of this crisis by growing the feedstock that could produce biodiesel and ethanol, soybeans, corn, and canola? We are about to build in North Dakota the biggest biodiesel plant in North America. That is going to help us wean ourselves from this ongoing dependence upon foreign energy. I hope very much my colleagues will support this amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The Legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Who yields time?

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from New Jersey.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized for 4 minutes.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I will soon offer an amendment to remove the airline passenger tax increase from this budget. It is fundamentally unfair for the President to raise taxes on everyday families as he doles out massive tax cuts to the wealthy.

Hidden among the thousands of pages in this legislation is a proposal to double the minimum amount that airline passengers pay as a security tax. President Bush wants to increase this tax from $2.50 per flight to $5 per flight. That is a 100-percent tax increase.

The impact on a family of four traveling roundtrip on nonstop flights is illustrated by the chart that we have here. An increase in security tax for a family of four traveling roundtrip on nonstop flights, typically, if it is $20 now, is going to be $40 obviously. That is quite a burden.

The traveling public is already too heavily taxed. Air travelers pay an enormous amount of Federal taxes on every airline ticket—nearly 20 percent of the base fare price now. For example, the tax on the average domestic roundtrip flight of $230 is $45. That is a tax rate of almost 20 percent.

Air travelers are taxed every time they turn around. They pay the Federal excise tax—on top of the Federal segment tax, on top of the passenger facility charge, on top of the security tax. Now the President wants to double the security tax.

To make matters worse, this tax increase will hit families the hardest. Sixty-three percent of the domestic air trips in this country in 2004 were taken for personal purposes, including vacations and visits to families and loved ones.

I am one of the strongest advocates for transportation security resources for our country, but we have to provide these necessary resources by spreading the tax burdens across this country fairly and not targeting everyday Americans while special interests raid the Federal Treasury.

I also want to point out to my colleagues that this amendment is offset by closing abusive tax shelters. So when we look at this, if the airlines don't pass along this tax increase to the average family, they themselves will have to experience further losses. There was $10 billion in losses in 2005 by the aviation industry. That is on top of $32 billion from 2001 to 2004. There were 150,000 jobs lost since 9/11. They just cannot handle it.

So I urge my colleagues to support the amendment and say no to the Bush airline passenger tax increases, keeping in mind that those tax increases are put upon the average family to give the wealthiest among us huge tax breaks. It is unfair and it ought not to be permitted. I urge you in this instance to vote no on further tax increases for the average American family.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from New Jersey for accommodating the schedule of his colleagues by coming this morning and offering his amendment. Next in the queue is Senator BURR with an amendment on avian flu.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator will suspend, the Chair advises that the Senator from New Jersey did not send up an amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 3137

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Yes. We neglected to do the most important part of it. I was overcome by the speech, Mr. President.

I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Jersey [Mr. LAUTENBERG] proposes an amendment numbered 3137.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To eliminate the President's proposed tax increase on American airline passengers in fiscal year 2007 and to provide adequate funding for commercial aviation security and to offset these costs by closing corporate tax loopholes)

On page 3, line 13, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 4, line 1, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 4, line 13, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 5, line 4, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 16, line 21, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 16, line 22, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 53, line 1, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $1,230,000,000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to set the pending amendment aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3114

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I send an amendment No. 3114 to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. BURR] proposes an amendment numbered 3114.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide for the establishment of a reserve fund concerning pandemic influenza preparedness planning)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ . RESERVE FUND FOR PANDEMIC INFLUENZA PREPAREDNESS PLANNING.

If the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate reports a bill or joint resolution, or if an amendment is offered thereto, or if a conference report is submitted thereon, that—

(1) rebuilds the vaccine industry in the United States which has shrunk from over 25 to less than 5 companies;

(2) improves the United States capacity to produce life-saving pandemic influenza vaccines and antivirals;

(3) ensures adequate funding for advanced development and acquisition of needed medical countermeasures for biodefense and pandemic influenza protection;

(4) enhances the Strategic National Stockpile of pandemic influenza vaccines, antivirals, and other medical products;

(5) strengthens the Federal, State, and local public health infrastructure to effectively respond to a pandemic influenza outbreak;

(6) increases the domestic and international surveillance and outbreak containment capabilities; and

(7) improves public awareness and education of pandemic influenza preparedness planning;

assuming that the Committee is within its allocation as provided under section 302 (a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may make the appropriate adjustments in allocations and aggregates to the extent that such legislation would not increase the deficit for fiscal years 2007 and for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I rise on the Senate floor today to not only offer this amendment and talk about it, but to speak on an amendment of another Member of the Senate, an amendment that also focuses on the avian flu.

Our country faces threats, some of which we know and some of which we don't know today. One real threat is the threat of pandemic bird flu. The President of the United States was ahead of the curve on this with a proposal to the Congress of over $7 billion for advanced development of vaccines, for the preparation the country needs to go through, and for the stockpiles of antivirals and countermeasures.

The fact is that Congress has responded to his request. This year the budget resolution highlights the fact that the President's request of $2.3 billion of taxpayers' money is in this budget resolution.

My colleague from North Dakota, for whom I have a tremendous amount of respect and who has helped, along with Senator GREGG, to move this budget resolution through this body, has asked we increase that amount by $5 billion. If for 1 minute I thought $5 billion would make America safer, I would be on the floor as a cosponsor of that amendment. But the reality is, we are at a point where we are absorbing all the money we can, given where we are in this process.

I just left a hearing with the Secretary of Health and Human Services. My direct question to him was: The President's budget asked for $2.3 billion. Is that sufficient for 2007?

He looked at me and said: Senator, where we are in the development of vaccines, where we are in our need for stockpiles, that amount fulfills everything we can do in preparation.

So I urge my colleagues not to support the amendment for an additional $5 billion of taxpayers' money to potentially go into a black hole. I remind my colleagues that the way this is funded is to raise taxes on the American people. We have used tax loopholes for corporations to fund many items suggested in amendments on this floor. The fact is, once again, the American people realize this is a covert way of raising taxes on them.

My amendment does something very simple. It creates a reserve fund. It has been described as hollow because it has no money. I believe the American people demand that we bring fiscal responsibility to this institution, to the Congress of the United States. I don't want to tie the hands of individuals within the agencies if they see a need for something, but the creation of this reserve fund allows them to do it in a budget-neutral way.

I believe this will be overwhelmingly supported because, in fact, it doesn't spend any new money, but it provides the flexibility and authority to those who are charged with addressing this threat.

The amendment establishes a reserve fund, and that can help to rebuild our domestic vaccine industry, support advanced development and acquisition of needed drugs and vaccines, strengthen the public health infrastructure, and increase surveillance and outbreak containment.

We are at a point in this Congress where we have the opportunity to reauthorize the Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Act, and we are considering legislation on advanced development of vaccines and countermeasures against chemical, biological, or radiological and natural threats. There are many issues that we have to decide exactly how we are going to handle. But to throw money at them is, in fact, not the answer today.

Those who are charged with the responsibility of making sure this country is prepared, in fact, have sufficient funding today. I urge my colleagues to vote against the Conrad amendment, to vote for the Burr amendment, and to make sure this administration is able to carry out what has been a well-planned preparation for a known threat to this country and, I might add, to the world.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask that 10 minutes of the chairman's time be yielded to me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the chairman very much. We have been trying to distribute time so we can most efficiently use time on the floor. I yield 3½ minutes to the Senator from Colorado.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3081

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from North Dakota. I call up amendment No. 3081 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment is set aside. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Colorado [Mr. SALAZAR], for himself, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mr. LEAHY, proposes an amendment numbered 3081.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To fully fund the Payment in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) program. Adds $152 million to Function 800 (General Government) for PILT. Paid for by closing $152 million in corporate tax loopholes)

On page 3, line 13, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 4, line 1, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 4, line 13, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 5, line 4, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 25, line 24, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 25, line 25, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 53, line 1, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $152,000,000.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, this amendment aims to fully fund the Payment in Lieu of Taxes Program for our country. It is an issue of vital importance to rural America. I am pleased to be joined in this effort today by Senator BINGAMAN and Senator LEAHY who are cosponsors of this amendment.

As I have said often on this floor before, rural America continues to wither on the vine. I will continue to come to this floor and sound the alarm of the plight of rural America because I am absolutely certain it doesn't have to be this way.

The heartland of this country is a vast reservoir of American potential and strength, and the values, common sense, perseverance, and work ethic embodied in the 50 million people who live in rural America are national treasures in and of themselves.

These people are also the stewards of our many public lands, and they deserve support in that effort. That is where PILT comes in. Created in 1976, PILT compensates local government for the presence of nontaxable Federal lands within their boundaries, as well as the associated costs of providing work, such as road work and law enforcement, to visitors on those lands.

Over the years, inflation has taken its toll. Repeatedly underfunding the PILT Program has also sent precisely the wrong message to rural America. Full PILT funding for fiscal year 2007 will likely be close to $350 million, but the President's budget for PILT was reduced by $38 million, or 16 percent, from where it was last year.

This is not just about my State of Colorado where some counties are owned by the Federal Government to the extent of 95 percent; it is about governments in at least 49 of our States where there are significant public land holdings within those States.

This amendment is fully offset by tax loophole closures. Some colleagues have approached me about alternatives, and I will work with them to explore other ideas in terms of funding alternatives.

I strongly encourage my colleagues to support this modest, commonsense amendment. When I travel through the rural counties of Colorado, I hear the voices of proud, hard-working rural Americans who feel neglected by Washington. Let's take an opportunity in a very small way in this budget resolution to send a different signal that we in Washington care about rural America.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Colorado. This is an important amendment, certainly an important amendment to Western States such as ours that all too often are shortchanged in terms of what they get in lieu of taxes where the Federal Government owns vast tracts of land and then is not a good neighbor, doesn't pay its fair share of the tab.

I thank the Senator from Colorado for his excellent amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. MURKOWSKI). Who yields time?

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I ask that Senator BAYH be added as a cosponsor to my avian flu amendment No. 3133.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I see the Senator from Maryland is now on the floor. I say to the Senator from Maryland, I now have 6 minutes left, and I am wondering if I could give 4 minutes to the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. SARBANES. Yes, that would be fine.

Mr. CONRAD. I have to give some time to Senator BAUCUS before the debt limit vote. So I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from Maryland.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized.

Mr. SARBANES. I thank the Senator. Does that leave the Senator with enough time for his other purposes?

Mr. CONRAD. I am sure Senator GREGG and I will be able to work it out.

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, I thank the Senator very much.

AMENDMENT NO. 3103

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, I offer amendment No. 3103.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. SARBANES], for himself, Mr. LIEBERMAN, and Mr. REED, proposes an amendment numbered 3103.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To restore funding for the civil works programs of the Corps of Engineers, the Federal Water Pollution Control State Revolving Fund, the National Park Service, the Forest Service, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Federal conservation programs, and other natural resource needs, through an offset achieved by closing corporate tax loopholes)

On page 3, line 13, increase the amount by $1,718,000,000.

On page 3, line 15, increase the amount by $699,000,000.

On page 3, line 17, increase the amount by $320,000,000.

On page 3, line 19, increase the amount by $116,000,000.

On page 3, line 21, increase the amount by $58,000,000.

On page 4, line 1, decrease the amount by $1,718,000,000.

On page 4, line 2, decrease the amount by $699,000,000.

On page 4, line 3, decrease the amount by $320,000,000.

On page 4, line 4, decrease the amount by $116,000,000.

On page 4, line 6, decrease the amount by $58,000,000.

On page 4, line 13, increase the amount by $2,912,000,000.

On page 5, line 4, increase the amount by $1,718,000,000.

On page 5, line 6, increase the amount by $699,000,000.

On page 5, line 8, increase the amount by $320,000,000.

On page 5, line 10, increase the amount by $116,000,000.

On page 5, line 12, increase the amount by $58,000,000.

On page 13, line 21, increase the amount by $2,912,000,000.

On page 13, line 22, increase the amount by $1,718,000,000.

On page 14, line 1, increase the amount by $699,000,000.

On page 14, line 5, increase the amount by $320,000,000.

On page 14, line 9, increase the amount by $116,000,000.

On page 14, line 13, increase the amount by $58,000,000.

On page 53, line 1, increase the amount by $2,912,000,000.

On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $1,718,000,000.

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, this amendment is to restore funding for function 300 Natural Resources and Environment, and for other purposes. I ask unanimous consent that Senator LIEBERMAN and Senator REED of Rhode Island be added as cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SARBANES. If the Chair would tell me when 1 minute is left on my time, I would be most appreciative.

Madam President, the purpose of this amendment is to restore funding for a number of important environmental programs under function 300. The President's budget request and the chairman's mark on the resolution cut funding for water resources, conservation and land management, recreational resources, pollution control and abatement, and other natural resources and environmental activities by nearly $3 billion from the baseline, or almost 10 percent. This amendment would seek to add $2.9 billion to bring the function 300 total back up to baseline. It is offset with revenues from the closing of corporate tax loopholes.

We have a list of possibilities, many of which have passed the Senate before and have been strongly supported by very large majorities in this body. Let me just give a few examples of the kinds of programs we are trying to at least provide some additional support for, although it falls short of what the need is; but we are trying to get back to baseline.

The Army Corps of Engineers civil works program, flood control, navigation, storm protection, environmental restoration—I hardly need, in the aftermath of Katrina, to emphasize the importance of such programs. The EPA budget has been sharply cut, including nearly $200 million from the clean water State revolving loan fund, which is now in this budget at the lowest funding level ever for clean water infrastructure. It has been cut by nearly 50 percent from the 2004 level because there has been a steady decline, and, of course, this impacts every State's and every community's ability to upgrade their waste water infrastructure and meet Clean Water Act requirements.

The National Park Service is being cut. Our National Parks have a desperate need for funding in order to carry out their activities.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, the National Park Service is falling well short of what they need in order to sustain the park system. NOAA is being cut in this budget, including the National Marine Fisheries Service. There is a lot of emphasis on our oceans. Two commissions have studied it. Yet the Oceans Commission says we are falling well short of any real commitment there. The NOAA budget is cut, the Fish and Wildlife Service budget, and the Forest Service. This amendment seeks to at least bring back this funding to function 300 for all of these very important environmental and natural resource problems to baseline, to current funding levels.

I very much hope my colleagues will support this amendment and contribute to protecting the environment and health of our Nation's citizens, helping to ensure that we have clean water and that we breathe clean air.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I yield 2½ minutes to Senator DORGAN from North Dakota.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Madam President, I support Senator SARBANES' effort to restore funding for our agencies and programs directed at natural resource conservation and management and some of our fundamental environmental responsibilities. The programs and agencies include the Clean Water State Revolving Fund, the National Park Service, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the Forest Service, the Army Corps of Engineers, and others. I do believe that we must meet our stewardship responsibilities and the President's budget simply doesn't cut it.

I do, however, want to flag a problem related to the Army Corps of Engineers. It is a problem that cripples the Corps: The minute its budget arrives on our doorsteps, Members of Congress scramble for Corps earmarks. We must move away from this earmarking and focus on national priorities. I will continue working to change the way this agency operates.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I am going to be offering an amendment. I have noticed an amendment dealing with Indian program funding. I think most who understand these issues understand that we have a bona fide crisis in Indian health care, Indian housing, and Indian education. We have had hearings. I have had hearings in my State, and we have had hearings in the Indian Affairs Committee, and we have to address these issues. The issue of Indian health care is not an optional issue. When there is a young child on an Indian reservation or an elder on an Indian reservation who is sick, they need health care.

This is interesting. We have trust responsibility for health care for a couple of groups of Americans. One is Federal prisoners. If they are incarcerated, we have a responsibility to Federal prisoners for their health care. We also have trust responsibility for health care for American Indians. That is our trust responsibility. We spend nearly twice as much—twice as much—per person to provide health care for Federal prisoners as we do for American Indians. That is wrong.

Housing: We have a bona fide crisis in housing. In many cases on many of America's Indian reservations we have people living in Third World conditions.

Education: Do we really want a young child who is 6 or 8 years old to be walking through the doorway of a grade school and receiving an education that is much less of an education than other children are simply because we don't have the money? Shouldn't these young Indian children be given the opportunity for a good education? I think with respect to education, the GAO report shows quite clearly that facilities in BIA schools are inferior to other schools.

My point is this: When we take a look at our priorities, what is important, what we should be doing, we see that we have Americans living in Third World conditions on many of these Indian reservations. We have a crisis in health care, in education and housing, and we ought to do something about it. You can't go to these places and look at their health care system or look at their schools or look at people living in substandard housing and believe that it is not a priority for this Congress to meet its responsibilities.

I have offered this legislation before in the form of an amendment. I do so again today. I have a number of cosponsors I would like to add for the RECORD.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, what is the time situation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire controls 7 minutes.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, although I don't agree with him, I yield 3½ minutes to the Senator from Montana.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, might I, with the indulgence of my colleagues, simply read the cosponsors? They are Senators CANTWELL, MURRAY, BINGAMAN, and JOHNSON are added as cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will suspend. The amendment has not yet been offered.

The Senator from Montana is recognized.

DEBT LIMIT EXTENSION

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I am speaking on an amendment I have offered to the debt limit. This amendment would simply require the Treasury Department to report on the economic and security implications of our debt to foreigners. Massive budget deficits are forcing America to borrow heavily. Last year, foreigners bought 96 percent of the Treasury bills that our Government sold to finance our debt—96 percent. That is an astounding statistic. The debt purchased last year, almost all of it, was purchased by foreigners, 96 percent.

Foreigners are becoming our bankers. America is becoming a debtor to foreign powers.

I think we need to understand this change. This amendment asks the Treasury to investigate what the full cost of our indebtedness will be, in higher interest rates, the value of a dollar, lower economic growth, less power to negotiate trade agreements, and diminished national security. We should let taxpayers know how big the cost of this foreign debt really is. This amendment will help to get the answers.

Some will make breathless arguments that passing this amendment will endanger the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. I say that is hogwash. If the Senate passes this amendment, the House of Representatives could pass it and have the bill on the President's desk before suppertime, on the President's desk this evening.

The real reason some are opposing this amendment is to save the House of Representatives from having to vote on the debt limit even once—to save the House of Representatives, to save those folks on the other side of the body, on the other side of the Capitol, from having to vote on the debt limit. That is really what is going on here. I think if Senators vote on the debt limit, certainly House Members should vote on the debt limit, too. That is an embarrassingly poor reason to vote against a study that would help protect America's economic and security interests.

Last year, foreigners bought 96 percent of the Treasury bills that our Government sold—actually 96 percent—just to remind everybody. I therefore urge my colleagues to adopt this amendment to help find out what our foreign debt really means for America.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, I know the chairman of the Finance Committee is coming over, and he may want to speak to this issue, but the time may lapse before he gets here so let me make this point: The study which the Senator is asking for could occur and would occur—and I can't speak for the chairman of the Finance Committee, but I would certainly be willing to sign the letter, and I suspect the chairman would, too. But simply writing the letter down there from the committees of jurisdiction—I don't happen to be a committee of jurisdiction, although it is an interesting issue—and then the chairman and the ranking member could get the study.

The reason this amendment is being put on this bill is to try to send it back to the House to delay the process so that the debt ceiling ends up with some political votes somewhere along the line. That is just gamesmanship and there is no need for it.

We should have this amendment taken off this bill. If there is a desire for this information, which we could certainly obtain rather easily by sending a letter demanding that they do the study, and then have GAO do the study—a little independence on the study might even be good—do a joint task force and get the information. So the amendment really isn't necessary at all.

So I agree with what I think is the leadership's position on this side, that this amendment is just dilatory and will end up delaying the debt ceiling legislation, which is a mistake. That is why it is opposed.

Has all my time expired?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 2½ minutes remaining.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, I see the Democratic leader, and I will yield back my time and let the Democratic leader take leader time.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I will use leader time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Madam President, President Thomas Jefferson said:

I place economy among the first and most important government virtues, and public debt as the greatest of the dangers to be feared.

That was President Thomas Jefferson.

Today the Senate is considering a bill to increase the Nation's debt by $781 billion. If adopted, it would be the fourth such increase in the 5 years this administration has been in office. I will be opposing this latest request, and I hope that people on both sides of the aisle will do the same.

Any objective analysis of our country's fiscal history would have to conclude this administration and this rubberstamping Republican Congress are the most fiscally irresponsible in the history of our country. In fact, no other President or Congress even comes close. When this administration came to office, the Federal Government was running large annual budget surpluses that were projected to continue as far as the eye could see. These projected surpluses were so large that the Congressional Budget Office estimated the Federal Government would pay off all its publicly held debt by the year 2009. In fact, Alan Greenspan, then the Chairman of the Federal Reserve, and other economists expressed concern that these surpluses would be so huge they risked unsettling the financial markets.

Because of the reckless fiscal policies of this President and the Republican-controlled Congress, 2009 will be a year to recognize President Bush's multi-trillion-dollar red-ink special. Over the past 5 years, rather than running record surpluses and reducing record amounts of debt, our Nation suffered record deficits and debt increases. In fact, when it comes to deficits, this President owns all the records. The three largest deficits in our Nation's history have all occurred under this administration's watch. The deterioration of the Federal Government's finances is the direct result of the misguided priorities of this administration and this rubberstamping Republican Congress.

These deficits have resulted in an unprecedented and dangerous borrowing spree. The total debt during this spree has grown by trillions of dollars. President Abraham Lincoln said:

As an individual who undertakes to live by borrowing soon finds his original means devoured by interest and next no one left to borrow from, so must it be with government.

O, if the Republican President and Republican-dominated Congress had followed the advice of Abraham Lincoln.

The legislation on the floor today will push the Nation's borrowing limit to nearly $9 trillion. Compounding matters, the President's most recent budget—much of which Senate Republicans have placed before the Senate this week—would make matters substantially worse, leading to $12 trillion debt by 2011, just as the first wave of baby boomers is beginning to retire.

Not only is debt exploding at the worst possible time, increasingly we are borrowing from foreign lenders. Since this administration took office, U.S. debt financed by foreigners has more than doubled, increasing by well over $1 trillion. That is more foreign-held debt in 5 years than the Nation accumulated in the first 224 years of this Republic. By contrast, during the last 3 years of the Clinton administration, we paid off hundreds of billions of dollars of debt, including $200 billion in debt to foreign lenders.

Given the explosion of debt in recent years, it is long past time for Washington to change the course and adopt a new fiscal policy. After all, the future of our economy and our Nation is at stake. The Comptroller General of the United States, David Walker, told the Senate Budget Committee recently:

Continuing on this unsustainable fiscal path will gradually erode, if not suddenly damage, our economy, our standard of living and ultimately our national security.

If my Republican friends believe that increasing our debt by almost $800 billion today, and more than $3 trillion dollars over the last 5 years, is the right thing to do, they should be upfront about it. They should explain why they believe more debt is good for our economy. How can the Republican majority and this Congress explain to their constituents that trillions of dollars of new debt is good for our economy? How can they explain that they think it is fair to force our children, our grandchildren, and our great grandchildren to finance this debt through higher taxes? That is what will have to happen. Why is it right to increase this Nation's dependence on foreign creditors? They should explain this.

Maybe they can convince the public they are right. I doubt it, because most Americans know that increasing the debt is the last thing we should be doing. After all, I repeat, the baby boomers are about to retire. Under the circumstances, any credible economist would tell you we should be reducing debt, not increasing it.

Again, on debt—Thomas Jefferson. These are his words:

And to preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers load us with perpetual debt. We must make our election between economy and liberty—or profusion and servitude.

That was President Thomas Jefferson.

Democrats will not be making arguments to support this legislation which will weaken our country. The President often speaks of personal responsibility. In a speech before African-American leaders earlier in his administration, the President stated that a President is judged not by the words he speaks but by the work he leaves behind. By that benchmark, the President and this Republican-controlled Congress will not be judged kindly with respect to the stewardship of our Nation's finances.

We are being asked to do what should not be asked of us, to increase the debt to almost $9 trillion. I hope everyone walking down to these desks today will understand what they are doing, what they are doing to our country. On this side of the aisle, we know.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

AMENDMENT NO. 3102

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, let me ask for consideration of amendment 3102, as I had previously filed. That is the legislation I described previously. Senators CANTWELL, MURRAY, BINGAMAN, and JOHNSON join me in proposing this amendment as cosponsors. I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN], for himself, Ms. CANTWELL, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mr. BINGAMAN, proposes an amendment numbered 3102.

Mr. DORGAN. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INCREASING THE STATUTORY LIMIT ON THE PUBLIC DEBT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 10:30 having arrived, the Senate will resume consideration of H.J. Res. 47, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (H.J. Res. 47), increasing the statutory limit on the public debt.

Pending:

Baucus/Lincoln amendment No. 3131, to require a study of debt held by foreigners.

AMENDMENT NO. 3131

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 3131.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN) is necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN) would vote "yea."

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENSIGN). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 44, nays 55, as follows:

Biden

The amendment (No. 3131) was rejected.

Mr. GREGG. I move to reconsider the vote and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the next vote in this series be 10 minutes in length; further, that when the votes begin at 1:30, all votes after the first vote be limited to 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Democratic leader.

SENATOR SARBANES 11,000TH VOTE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we just completed a vote that is a landmark for one of our Senators. Senator PAUL SARBANES cast his 11,000th vote.

It was only a few days ago that we stopped the proceedings of the Senate to underline and underscore the voting record of the senior Senator from Vermont, Senator LEAHY.

Senator SARBANES has decided not to run for reelection, as we all know, but what a legacy he has in the Senate. There is no one with a better academic record than PAUL SARBANES: Princeton University, summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa; a Rhodes scholar; he studied, of course, because of that, at Oxford; Harvard Law School.

Those who have had the privilege of working with PAUL SARBANES know that not only does he have this great intellect, he has so much common sense. Legislation he works on is detailed, very thorough.

He, of course, is our ranking member of the Committee on Banking. I have traveled with the distinguished senior Senator from Maryland. We have traveled various parts of the world. I have fond memories of PAUL SARBANES and all the things he has done. His wife Chris is a wonderful, caring person, just like PAUL.

Even though I have a lot of stories, I share one with the Senate. One of the things people do not realize about Senator SARBANES is his athletic ability. He is a great athlete. I was told a story about Senator SARBANES that for me is a classic. I love baseball. I follow the history of baseball. In high school, he was a star baseball player. He was selected to play on an all-star team. He was a shortstop. He comes to the all-star team as the shortstop from the Eastern Shore. The manager coach announces the starting lineup and he has SARBANES at second base. PAUL went up to the coach and said, I am a shortstop. I was selected as an all-star shortstop. The coach ignored him. He went back again, and finally the coach said, Kaline is starting shortstop. Al Kaline was a better shortstop, at least the coach thought so, than PAUL SARBANES. Al Kaline went to the Major Leagues when he was 18 or 19 years old and is in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

I know we have a lot of things to do today. People are going to the White House. There are a lot of places to go and this is a very important bill, but I could not let the time go by without acknowledging one of the great Senators in the history of our country, Senator PAUL SARBANES of Maryland.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask to speak not to exceed 3 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, one of the greatest orations ever uttered was the oration on the Crown. And it can be said that the theme of that oration was a question: Who least serves the State? Demosthenes answered that question: He who does not say what he thinks.

Socrates was asked which great oration of Demosthenes he liked best. Socrates answered, "The longest." In other words, he liked the longest oration Demosthenes ever uttered. The Greeks taught the world to think.

This man who is going to leave us after this term, regrettably, and to our great loss, has always impressed me as a thinker, one in the train of Demosthenes.

PAUL SARBANES is a great Senator, a great Senator.

I can remember when he went with me and other Senators to Panama. There we talked to Torrijos and the other leaders of Panama, including our own people. It was there that I changed my mind about the Panama Canal Treaty. PAUL SARBANES was one of those who was there, who walked with us, who talked with us, who was on plane with Torrijos.

PAUL SARBANES has not only been a thinker, he has been a great inspiration to those who have served with him. He will be missed. He will not be replaced. There are no more PAUL SARBANES. I shall never forget him. He leaves a great void when he goes.

One might say: Whence cometh another?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, much is being said about my dear and esteemed colleague, Senator SARBANES. He has been the longest serving Senator in Maryland's history. And I would put to the Senate, he has been the best serving Member of the U.S. Senate from Maryland.

Sure, he cast 11,000 votes, but each and every one of our colleagues will know that when those 11,000 votes were cast, they were cast with thoughtfulness, with due diligence, with the idea of how would that vote serve the Nation and how would it help Maryland.

If we want to honor Senator PAUL SARBANES, let's make sure every vote we cast brings to it the same kind of integrity, the same kind of intelligence, and the same kind of devotion and dedication. That is what I would like to do as the junior Senator, and say thank you for being side by side with me.

Mr. BYRD. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I know we want to proceed with our business, but if I could just be recognized for 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I thank my colleagues for their very gracious remarks and all of my colleagues for their expressions of respect and affection.

My colleague, Senator MIKULSKI, said I was the longest serving Senator in Maryland's history. I want you to know, it is a little bit like being like Cal Ripken; every day you go to work, you set a new record—one more day than the day before.

It has been, obviously, one of the great focuses and joys of my life to be able to work here in the Senate with all my colleagues. I am extremely grateful to all of you.

I will just close with this story, because I am still here until the 3rd of January 2007. So there is still time to go.

But I once got an award. My mother was there at this dinner. This was a few years ago. And they asked her to speak as well. So she got up to speak, and she said how honored she was they had given this recognition to her son, and so forth, and how much she appreciated it. And then she closed her remarks by saying: He has been a good boy—so far.

I carry that comment with me.

Thank you all very much.

(Applause, Senators rising.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The assistant majority leader.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, if I could just briefly say to our good friend from Maryland that Republican Senators, too, join in wishing him well on this extraordinary accomplishment. And if he would like to resign any time before January, that would be all right, too. But in the meantime, we are glad to have you around.

Congratulations, Senator SARBANES.

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about America's debt problem.

The fact that we are here today to debate raising America's debt limit is a sign of leadership failure. It is a sign that the U.S. Government can't pay its own bills. It is a sign that we now depend on ongoing financial assistance from foreign countries to finance our Government's reckless fiscal policies.

Over the past 5 years, our federal debt has increased by $3.5 trillion to $8.6 trillion. That is "trillion" with a "T." That is money that we have borrowed from the Social Security trust fund, borrowed from China and Japan, borrowed from American taxpayers. And over the next 5 years, between now and 2011, the President's budget will increase the debt by almost another $3.5 trillion.

Numbers that large are sometimes hard to understand. Some people may wonder why they matter. Here is why: This year, the Federal Government will spend $220 billion on interest. That is more money to pay interest on our national debt than we'll spend on Medicaid and the State Children's Health Insurance Program. That is more money to pay interest on our debt this year than we will spend on education, homeland security, transportation, and veterans benefits combined. It is more money in one year than we are likely to spend to rebuild the devastated gulf coast in a way that honors the best of America.

And the cost of our debt is one of the fastest growing expenses in the Federal budget. This rising debt is a hidden domestic enemy, robbing our cities and States of critical investments in infrastructure like bridges, ports, and levees; robbing our families and our children of critical investments in education and health care reform; robbing our seniors of the retirement and health security they have counted on.

Every dollar we pay in interest is a dollar that is not going to investment in America's priorities. Instead, interest payments are a significant tax on all Americans—a debt tax that Washington doesn't want to talk about. If

Washington were serious about honest tax relief in this country, we would see an effort to reduce our national debt by returning to responsible fiscal policies.

But we are not doing that. Despite repeated efforts by Senators CONRAD and FEINGOLD, the Senate continues to reject a return to the commonsense Pay-go rules that used to apply. Previously, Pay-go rules applied both to increases in mandatory spending and to tax cuts. The Senate had to abide by the commonsense budgeting principle of balancing expenses and revenues. Unfortunately, the principle was abandoned, and now the demands of budget discipline apply only to spending.

As a result, tax breaks have not been paid for by reductions in Federal spending, and thus the only way to pay for them has been to increase our deficit to historically high levels and borrow more and more money. Now we have to pay for those tax breaks plus the cost of borrowing for them. Instead of reducing the deficit, as some people claimed, the fiscal policies of this administration and its allies in Congress will add more than $600 million in debt for each of the next 5 years. That is why I will once again cosponsor the Pay-go amendment and continue to hope that my colleagues will return to a smart rule that has worked in the past and can work again.

Our debt also matters internationally. My friend, the ranking member of the Senate Budget Committee, likes to remind us that it took 42 Presidents 224 years to run up only $1 trillion of foreign-held debt. This administration did more than that in just 5 years. Now, there is nothing wrong with borrowing from foreign countries. But we must remember that the more we depend on foreign nations to lend us money, the more our economic security is tied to the whims of foreign leaders whose interests might not be aligned with ours.

Increasing America's debt weakens us domestically and internationally. Leadership means that "the buck stops here." Instead, Washington is shifting the burden of bad choices today onto the backs of our children and grandchildren. America has a debt problem and a failure of leadership. Americans deserve better.

I therefore intend to oppose the effort to increase America's debt limit.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of final passage.

Raising the debt limit is necessary to preserve the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government.

We cannot as a Congress pass spending bills and tax bills and then refuse to pay our bills.

Refusing to raise the debt limit is like refusing to pay your credit card bill—after you've used your credit card.

The time to control the deficits and debt is when we are voting on the spending bills and the tax bills that create it.

Raising the debt limit is about meeting the obligations we have already incurred.

We must meet our obligations. Vote for this bill.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, the spending process in the Congress is broken. Some will argue that now is not the time to debate spending reform or budget reform. They will say that now is not the time to have a debate about our country's spending priorities. They will argue that right now we need to just "pay our bills" for past transactions and discuss reforms some time in the future. Raising the debt limit, however, does not count as "paying the bills." We are not paying our bills.

Last fiscal year, the real Federal deficit—the amount by which the Federal debt increased—was $538 billion. When we raise the debt limit, we are not "paying our bills." We are merely taking out another line of credit—another loan—to allow for more spending that we can't afford. It is akin to a deeply indebted family getting a loan for a new car or getting a new credit card or line of credit without cutting up the old credit cards that got them in trouble in the first place.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, the Federal Government spent roughly $2.5 trillion during the last fiscal year. Let's look at that amount of spending another way. If the Federal Government spent $2.5 trillion last year, that means that on average, $6.8 billion was spent each day, or $78,418 was spent per second by the Federal Government.

I believe that it is absolutely necessary to have an open and honest debate about our spending priorities. We are getting ready to increase this country's debt limit to almost $9 trillion. Over the past 5 years, our national debt has increased by $3 trillion, or nearly $9,000 per American. That is a lot of money. In 1990, our total national debt was about $3 trillion. That means that it took our country more than 200 years to accumulate that amount of debt—200 years to increase our debt by $3 trillion. We just added that much new debt in only 5 years.

In 2001, the share of Federal debt per person in this country was a little over $20,000. That includes everyone—not just those in the workforce. According to the Office of Management and Budget and the Census Bureau, total Federal debt per American will rise to $29,000 per American by the end of 2006. That is an increase of $9,000 per man, woman, and child in this country since 2001. But a lot of people are quick to dismiss that figure. They will say that it doesn't matter, that we only need to worry about how debt and deficits compare to economic growth or to the size of the economy. I think a better rule of thumb is how Government growth compare to the growth of wages and earnings.

If regular Americans are tightening their belts, the Federal Government should do the same instead of engaging in yet another spending binge. Since 2001, total Federal debt per American has increased by $9,000. But over that same time period, the average wages of American workers have only increased by $4,200. Over the past 5 years, the growth of Federal debt per person has doubled the growth of average wages of American workers. What makes this situation even worse is that that $9,000 increase in debt per person is just going to get bigger and bigger because we are not doing anything to cut spending or prepare for the impending fiscal crisis that will result from the retirement of the baby boomer generation. Interest on that debt is just going to get larger.

Last year, interest costs—the costs of Federal debt that the Government must pay to those who buy U.S. Treasury bonds—were about 8 percent of the total Federal budget. In contrast, the average American spends roughly 5 percent of his or her income on credit card debt and car loans according to the Federal Reserve. The Federal Government spent close to $200 billion on interest costs alone last year. According to the Government Accountability Office, or GAO, interest costs will consume 25 percent of the entire Federal budget by 2035. Let's put that figure into perspective. Twenty-five percent of the Federal budget is a huge amount.

By way of comparison, the Department of Education's share of Federal spending in 2005 was approximately 3 percent of all Federal spending. The Department of Health and Human Services was responsible for approximately 23 percent of all Federal spending. Spending by the Social Security Administration was responsible for about 20 percent of all Federal spending. Spending on Medicare was about 12 percent of all Federal spending. Spending in 2005 by the Department of Defense—in the midst of two wars in Iraq and Afghanistan and a global war against terrorism—comprised about 19 percent of all Federal spending. Thus, if we do not change our current spending habits, GAO estimates that as a percentage of Federal spending, interest costs in 2035 will be larger than defense costs today, Social Security costs today, Medicare costs today, and education costs today.

No family in America would ever be able to manage its finances this way. No family would be able to build up insane amounts of debt, unilaterally increase all of its credit card limits with no ability to ever pay them off, and still be able to spend, spend, spend without any accountability. We have some very serious problems to address regarding spending priorities in this country.

According to the Congressional Research Service, Congress appropriated $64 billion in earmarks for 2006, the current fiscal year. That doesn't even include the earmarks from the highway bill that was passed in 2005. We are going to spend $64 billion on earmarks and pork projects across the country this year even though it is estimated that the real Federal deficit—including the money that is regularly stolen from Social Security—will again surpass half a trillion dollars.

Earmarks are a serious problem because they put parochial interests ahead of national priorities. They put the interests of the next election ahead of the interests of the next generation. Some, however, argue that earmarks are not really a problem because they comprise a small percent of the budget. They argue that entitlement spending is the problem and that we ought to address that problem instead of focusing on earmarks. These arguments completely miss the point.

If entitlements are the real problem and earmarks are not a problem, then why did entitlement savings passed in the last budget resolution for fiscal year 2006 only amount to $5 billion? If entitlements are the real problem, why did we spend 13 times more money on earmarks last year than we saved in entitlement programs? At that rate, we will solve our country's fiscal problems some time after never. The budget resolution we passed last year created entitlement savings of about $40 billion over the next 5 years. We spent more on earmarks in 1 single year than we saved from entitlement programs over 5 years. Over the past 3 years—since 2004—we have spent nearly $160 billion on earmarks and special interest pork projects according to the Congressional Research Service.

Since 1994, the number of individual earmarks has more than tripled, increasing from 4,126 in 1994 to 12,852 in fiscal year 2006. Of those 12,852 earmarks, over 95 percent were not even included in bill language. Instead, they were hidden within conference reports. Many never even saw the light of day until they were snuck into unamendable conference reports that were sure to be rammed through at the last minute. Earmarking is a very serious problem that needs to be addressed before we can get our fiscal house in order. However, there are also other spending issues that this body should address.

The issue of improper payments by the Federal Government is one that can and should be fixed. The subcommittee that I chair—the Subcommittee on Federal Financial Management—has examined this issue in depth. We have uncovered numerous examples of improper payments that waste taxpayer money and harm those who aren't receiving the assistance they need. An improper payment is basically a payment that was either made to the right person in the wrong amount or a payment that was given to the wrong person, regardless of the amount. Improper payments include payments that were too high and payments that were too low.

According to estimates by the Office of Management and Budget, improper payments last year totaled $37 billion. That figure is larger than last year's expenditures by the Departments of Commerce, Interior, State, and Environmental Protection Agency combined. The amount of improper payments just from last year could have completely funded four major Federal agencies. Improper payments are a very serious problem. For example, 28 percent of all payments within the earned income tax credit program are incorrectly made. Thus, for every dollar we spend in that program, 25 cents are completely wasted. Improper payments within the Social Security Administration totaled nearly $6 billion. And these figures don't even take into account the seven major programs with outlays totaling about $228 billion that are not yet even reporting their improper payments.

There are some who wish to make the issue of spending a partisan issue, but it is not a partisan issue. Members of both parties are guilty of putting short-term interests ahead of long-term priorities. Last week, Members of both parties voted to ignore Senate budget rules in order to spend an additional $1 billion that is not paid for on home-heating costs even though the month of January was the warmest on record and winter will be over in less than a week. Both parties appear to lack the political courage to make the hard choices to address our impending fiscal crisis. This issue has nothing to do with Republicans and nothing to do with Democrats—it has to do with what is best for the American public.

Mr. President, the spending process in this body is broken. Our priorities are completely out of whack. Earmarking and wasteful spending are out of control. It makes no sense to effectively max out our credit cards and ask for a higher credit limit when we have no intention and no ability to ever actually pay for our debts.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the outcome of today's vote on raising the debt ceiling to nearly $9 trillion is not in question, but our future economic security will be if we do not change from our current disastrous course. We will raise the debt limit today so that the United States does not default on its obligations, but we cannot for a second think that we have solved the problem or even moved in the right direction.

This will be the fourth time in 5 years that we have had to raise the amount the Government is allowed to borrow. This is a direct result of the fiscal irresponsibility of this administration. These policies have taken the Nation from 2 years of record surpluses just 6 years ago—when we were paying down our debt—to record deficits and debt. We are passing on a crippling burden to our children and grandchildren and threatening our economic security.

Since 2002, we have increased the debt limit by an astounding $3 trillion. And unless we make a significant change in our fiscal policies, there are additional increases in our future. The Congressional Budget Office forecasts that our gross Federal debt, which includes debt the Government owes to the public plus funds owed to Federal trust funds, including Social Security and Medicare, will climb from its current level of $8.3 trillion to $12.8 trillion by 2016. Even this extraordinary estimate does not include either the coming costs of military operations in Iraq or the substantial cost of fixing the alternative minimum tax, which if left unchanged will impose unintended tax increases on middle-income taxpayers, which most agree need to be changed.

The burden this massive debt puts on our children is staggering. Today, each American citizen's share of the debt is over $27,000, and it will rise to over $39,000 by 2016. Paying off this debt will require either extraordinary tax increases or significant cuts in critical areas such as defense or Social Security. Tragically, it will mean that an increasing number of taxpayer dollars will be spent not on moving America forward but simply on treading water by making interest payments to our creditors. Even under the CBO's conservative estimates, interest payments on the gross debt will rise from $352 billion in 2005 to $662 billion in 2016. That means over the next 10 years, we will spend an estimated $5.6 trillion on interest payments alone. Making these interest payments means fewer resources are available for our national priorities such as shoring up the Social Security and Medicare trust funds as the babyboom generation begins to retire.

Equally disturbing is what this rampant borrowing will mean for our economic security. As we go deeper into debt to foreign countries we are losing control of our own destiny. Over 90 percent of our newly issued debt is being purchased by foreigners. By the end of 2004, U.S. Treasury debt held by foreigners was close to $2.2 trillion, more than double the amount that was held at the beginning of this administration. This large amount of foreign debt leaves us vulnerable to the priorities of foreign creditors. If foreign investors, including countries, were to decide, for economic or political reasons, to stop financing our debt, the U.S. economy would be in for a severe shock.

Even without a catastrophic event, our unbridled foreign borrowing erodes our power by providing other countries with leverage during trade or other negotiations. We cannot delude ourselves into thinking we can maintain our position in the world if we can't even balance our checkbook.

We need to turn away from this administration's irresponsible fiscal policies. One of the best steps we could take would be to reinstate pay-as-you-go budget enforcement rules that require tax cuts and not just spending to be paid for. This approach worked during the 1990s to help bring about the first surpluses in a generation, and it can work again.

We should also revisit this administration's irresponsible and unfair tax cuts that have driven us so deeply into this deficit ditch. It is unconscionable that middle-class Americans will be paying for years for tax cuts that went primarily to the wealthiest among us. In fact, the top 5 percent of households in our country, whose average income is more than $250,000 a year, received almost half of the President's tax cuts.

Today's action to raise the debt limit will hopefully be a reality check on what Republican fiscal policies have wrought. We need to change course. We need to return to fiscal responsibility. And we need to start climbing out of this deficit ditch before we are buried in it.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I was necessarily absent this morning when we considered Senator BAUCUS's amendment to the debt limit increase. If I had been here, I would have supported the Baucus amendment.

The Baucus amendment is clearly needed. The massive scale of other nations' accumulation of our debt has added another level of danger and complexity to our international economic relations.

This is a two-way street. The tsunami of debt created by the policies of this administration has to go somewhere. China is one of the major purchasers of that debt. Japan, Great Britain, and others have major holdings, too. In the short term, that has soaked up a lot of our bonds, and helped to keep interest rates down. That is a good thing.

However, that has kept the Chinese currency artificially low, and ours artificially high. So they can sell their products at a discount, and our exports are more expensive. That is a bad thing.

Our trade deficit was a record $726 billion last year; $202 billion of that was our trade deficit with China alone.

But as the rest of the world copes with the waves of U.S. debt, we are now all in the same leaky boat. There is just so much of our debt other nations want to hold. The more of it they accumulate, the closer we are to the day when they will not want any more.

When that happens, slowly or rapidly, our interest rates will go up, the value of their U.S. bonds will drop, and we will all have big problems. We need both more awareness, and more understanding, of this fundamental threat to our economic well being and the global economy.

But the roots of that threat lie in the disastrous policies of this administration.

Because this massive accumulation of debt was predicted, because it was foreseeable, because it was unnecessary, because it was the result of willful and reckless disregard for the warnings that were given and for the fundamentals of economic management, I am voting against the debt limit increase.

In the 5 years he has been in office, President Bush has added more to our foreign debt than the 42 Presidents before him. It took 224 years to accumulate $1 trillion of debt to other nations. It took President Bush just 5 years to more than double it.

Over $3 trillion in debt, foreign debt and debt held by Americans, has been piled up by this administration.

When he set out on the course that brought us to this sorry state, the President was clearly and repeatedly warned that massive tax cuts would leave us vulnerable to natural disasters, economic slowdown, or threats to our national security. "Don't worry," the President told us. "I know what I am doing."

After 9/11, in the face of what he has himself called the moral equivalent of the World War II, or the Cold War, he insisted that while everything else had changed, he would not change his economic policies.

Facts had changed. His promise to balance the budget, his promise to pay down the debt, were proved to be false.

But he refused to take responsibility for his policies. He refused to admit that a changed world demanded a change of course. His refusal has pushed us deeper and deeper into the hole.

His refusal added $450 billion to the debt in 2002; it added $984 billion in 2003; it added $800 billion in 2004. And here we are again today, adding another $781 billion. With that addition, our national debt will be $8.6 trillion at the end of this year.

The President's budget plans will bring that number to $11.8 trillion at the end of the next 5 years.

This is a record of utter disregard for our Nation's financial future. It is a record of indifference to the price our children and grandchildren will pay to redeem our debt when it comes due.

History will not judge this record kindly.

My vote against the debt limit increase cannot change the fact that we have incurred this debt already, and will no doubt incur more. It is a statement that I refuse to be associated with the policies that brought us to this point.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, the Bush administration seeks for the fourth time in 5 years to increase the indebtedness of the United States—this time by $781 billion. This body's consideration of that increase allows us a moment to take stock of the abysmal fiscal health of our country.

As a Washington Post editorial pointed out yesterday morning, this President solemnly pledged upon taking office to payoff $2 trillion in debt held by the public over the next decade. It is patently obvious that President Bush has not just failed but failed spectacularly to deliver on his pledge. He has managed to amass more debt than any President in history, with no end in sight.

By the end of this year, our gross Federal debt is expected to surpass $8.6 trillion, or nearly $28,000 for every man, woman, and child in America. This amount represents an increase of approximately $3 trillion since President Bush took office.

This dramatic runup in the debt has real costs for America's families—both today and for future generations. It puts upward pressure on interest rates for things like student loans, home mortgages, and automobile loans. It raises the cost of capital for business investment. Each of these, in everything but name, represents a tax increase on American families and businesses.

More directly, instead of investing in America's most important priorities—like education, health care, and homeland security—the taxpayers of today and tomorrow must spend more money paying off yesterday's debts. In the late 1990s, interest on the debt represented a declining share of our total budget. Today, that share has begun to rise once again, a trend that would continue under the budget put forward by the administration and the leadership in this body. For 2007 alone, taxpayers will spend $247 billion dollars on interest on the debt instead of American troops and veterans or American families and children.

Our leaders have to be candid with the American public about the sources of this unprecedented level of indebtedness.

The administration is not incurring these debts in order to invest in education. They are not supporting States and local communities struggling to meet their school funding needs out of property taxes.

The administration is not incurring these debts to improve our infrastructure. States, municipalities, and local communities are struggling desperately just to maintain the infrastructure they have—roads, bridges, ports. They are struggling to maintain a 20th century infrastructure, let alone build a 21st century one.

Certainly, the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan have had a cost. So have the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, and natural disasters. Though the President has been quick to blame factors like these, the truth is the tax policies of his administration have played a far greater role in creating the budget deficits accumulated on his watch.

Under those policies, this administration has spent close to $125 billion on tax benefits for the few most fortunate households in America—those 0.2 percent of individuals making more than $1 million per year—while doing little, if anything, for families in the middle and those working hard to get themselves in the middle.

In a time of war and fiscal and economic strain, this administration has delivered a tax windfall to the most fortunate. Never before has a President made this choice during a time of war.

Regrettably, this kind of short-sighted leadership has been rubber-stamped repeatedly by the leaders of this Congress on the other side of the aisle.

I would have hoped, at a minimum, that we as a body could adopt measures to restore some semblance of fiscal sanity, such as pay-as-you-go budget procedures or a smaller debt limit increase. Unfortunately, neither of these common sense reforms was adopted. Indeed, the majority even rejected an amendment by the Senator from Montana to merely study the impact that foreign-held U.S. debt is having on our Nation's long-term well-being.

We cannot erase what has happened in the past, but we can demonstrate to the people of our country going forward that the Senate is willing to take commonsense steps to put our Nation back on firmer budgetary footing. That, regrettably, has not happened in the Senate today. However, many of us will continue the effort to place our nation's fiscal house on firmer ground.

The amendment (No. 3114) was agreed to.

Mr. GREGG. I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GRAHAM). The time until 1:30 p.m. shall be equally divided.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, at this point, we are going to begin the amending process again. The sequence on our side will be Senator CORNYN, Senator VITTER, then I understand we go to Senator STABENOW and Senator AKAKA.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, on our side it is Senator STABENOW, Senator AKAKA, Senator LINCOLN. I should intercede, Senator VITTER will be paired with Senator LANDRIEU on an amendment for Louisiana.

Mr. GREGG. We will do Senator CORNYN and then Senator VITTER, and then I presume we will go to Senator STABENOW and then Senator AKAKA, then Senator COLLINS, then Senator LINCOLN; right?

Mr. CONRAD. Very well.

Mr. GREGG. I yield Senator CORNYN 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

AMENDMENT NO. 3100

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3100 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Texas [Mr. CORNYN], for himself, and Mr. GRAHAM, proposes an amendment numbered 3100.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(a) SPENDING RECONCILIATION INSTRUCTIONS.—In the Senate, by May 16, 2006, the committees named in this section shall submit their recommendations to the Committee on the Budget of the Senate. After receiving those recommendations, the Committee on the Budget shall report to the Senate a reconciliation bill carrying out all such recommendations without any substantive revision.

(b) COMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND NATURAL RESOURCES.—The Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources shall report changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays by $0 in fiscal year 2007, and $3,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

(c) COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.—The Senate Committee on Finance shall report changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce budget authority and outlays by $0 in fiscal year 2007 and $10,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I further ask unanimous consent that Senator GRAHAM of South Carolina be added as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, last year, Congress made some real progress in getting a handle on mandatory spending by passing the Deficit Reduction Act. The Deficit Reduction Act will reduce mandatory spending by nearly $100 billion over the next decade, and it is the first time Congress has taken a hard look at how to find savings and reduce the budget deficit on the mandatory spending side since 1997.

The Deficit Reduction Act is a good first step. My amendment builds on the savings of the Deficit Reduction Act. My amendment lowers the Federal budget deficit, lowers the Federal debt, and does not increase taxes on the American people.

Today, the Federal budget, as we all know, is heavily weighted in favor of mandatory spending—entitlement spending, so to speak. As people live longer and the baby boom generation retires, that spending will increase and eat up a larger and larger share of our budget.

Just in Medicare and Medicaid alone, in the last 5 years, we have seen a 22-percent increase in entitlement spending for those two programs. And if we don't do something in the next 30 years about entitlement spending, we won't have a dime of revenue to pay for other items that are important, such as defense, education, NIH research, and payments to health care providers to reimbursement under Medicare and Medicaid.

My amendment directs the Senate Finance Committee to find $10 billion in additional savings over the next 5 years. One proposal for the Finance Committee to consider under this amendment would be to repeal the stabilization fund included in the Medicare Modernization Act. Let me explain what that is.

This is essentially a bonus provision to preferred provider organizations—insurance companies, in other words—over and above the regular Medicare share to encourage them to participate in the Medicare Program. There simply is no reason to increase the Federal subsidy for these insurance companies over and above regular Medicare payments. We should eliminate that bonus and use that money, which is not necessary, to pay down the debt by $7 billion.

There are other good areas I believe for the Finance Committee to find the $10 billion this amendment would require. The problem is this: If we don't do something about the autopilot our budget is on when it comes to the mandatory side of spending, we have only ourselves to blame because no one is at the wheel, and I am afraid the plane will crash all too soon. We are feeling the squeeze already. The appropriators, I know, are trying to squeeze more and more out of the discretionary spending portion of the budget because as the mandatory and entitlement side rose, there was less and less flexibility for spending on important programs that represent America's priorities under the discretionary portion of the budget.

So I encourage my colleagues to support this amendment. It is one that can be done without detracting from current Medicare spending, but eliminates this bonus provision, this additional cash or Federal subsidy that is provided for under the law that could be saved and be put to more constructive use, showing that we are serious about fiscal responsibility and paying down the debt.

I yield back the remaining time.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I rise to support this amendment. I think it is an excellent idea and hopefully it will be successful. Stabilization money is certainly available. It is walking-around money. We don't need to have it sitting there, and we should use it for reducing the deficit.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, this is a difficult matter for this Senator because I have proposed many times to my colleagues doing away with the stabilization fund. So this amendment puts me in a quandary to the extent that if we can assure that with this amendment we would eliminate the stabilization fund, I would be with the Senator.

The problem we face here is, No. 1, the stabilization fund is $6.2 billion, it is not $10 billion. No. 2, because of the way the budget resolution works, we cannot direct the Finance Committee on how to make the reduction. I wish we could, but we cannot.

What we would be doing, in effect, by the Senator's amendment is telling the Finance Committee to cut $10 billion out of Medicare. They could do that in any number of ways without affecting the stabilization fund at all. In fact, colleagues may recall last year the Senate told the Finance Committee to take out the stabilization fund. I call it the slush fund. I think it is an absolute waste of money. I absolutely agree with the Senator on that point. But we all know at the end of the process, the stabilization fund was left intact because the way the budget process works, we give an instruction about how much finances to cut, but we cannot tell them how to do it.

So I want my colleagues to know that is the circumstance we face with this amendment. I thank the Senator for the good faith of his amendment.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Louisiana.

AMENDMENT NO. 3025

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, I rise in support of my filed amendment No. 3025. I will not formally call it up because some revisions to it are still being worked on in conjunction with my colleague from Louisiana, Senator

LANDRIEU, and many other leaders in the Senate. But I will speak on this very important topic, and it has to do with meeting in a positive and responsible way our ongoing needs throughout all the coastal areas—not just Louisiana—for hurricane protection and other coastal needs.

Obviously, we have faced many challenges since Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. This is a responsible way to help meet those needs and to help future coastal needs of all coastal States and to do it in a way that we can afford and that we can build into the budget. Rather than having to come back here every 2 months, every 3 months for additional appropriations, wouldn't it be far better to have a stable revenue source that can help us meet these needs directly? The biggest part of that stable revenue source is royalty share, getting our fair share of what we produce off our coasts in terms of offshore oil and gas.

This amendment is a first vital step in that direction because it would look to excess revenue, not anything built into the budget right now, but excess revenue in three areas to use for those vital purposes, not just for Louisiana but for coastal needs and coastal States in general.

What are these three areas I am talking about? The first would be offshore energy production, future revenues that aren't built into the budget now. The second would be the Federal share of ANWR energy production, should we pass that and say yes to that in the near future. Of course, ANWR is the Alaska National Wildlife Refuge. The third would be DTV revenue that comes in above the current projections for those spectrum auctions.

Again, this is a vital first step that can get us on this path to self-sufficiency, to taking care of these crucial needs without constantly having to come here and look for direct Federal appropriations. We continue to work to perfect this amendment No. 3025 so it can gain support.

AMENDMENT NO. 3078

I formally call up amendment No. 3078, which is a separate amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. VITTER] proposes an amendment numbered 3078.

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To establish a reserve fund to prevent catastrophic loss)

On page 43, between lines 22 and 23, insert the following:

SEC. 313. RESERVE FUND TO PREVENT CATASTROPHIC LOSS.

If—

(1) the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate reports a bill or joint resolution, or if an amendment is offered thereto, or if a conference report is submitted thereon, that increases investment in measures designed to prevent catastrophic flood and hurricane damage in coastal areas such that—

(A) the measures, when completed, will likely decrease future expenditures from the Disaster Relief Fund;

(B) the increases do not exceed $10,000,000,000; and

(C) the measures are certified by the President as likely to prevent loss of life and property; and

(2) that Committee is within its allocation as provided under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (2 U.S.C. 633(a));

the Chairperson of the Committee on Budget of the Senate may make the appropriate adjustments in the allocations and aggregates to the extent that such legislation would not increase the deficit for the fiscal year 2007 and for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, very quickly, this is a separate amendment that would give us flexibility in the context of the budget to account for future levy and hurricane protection projects should the Environment and Public Works Committee pass out a bill that authorizes these important projects. It builds flexibility into the budget through a reserve fund without busting the budget, without doing any harm to the budget numbers and the overall caps. I look forward to my colleagues' support of this flexibility.

I yield the remainder of my time.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank the two Senators from Louisiana, especially Senator LANDRIEU, for working with her colleague Senator VITTER on this important amendment for their home State that has obviously been so badly damaged by Hurricane Katrina. I thank Senator LANDRIEU and Senator VITTER for working together in a bipartisan way to begin to rebuild additional resources as their State has been so hard hit.

I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Louisiana.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I thank the Senator. He and the Senator from New Hampshire have done a fine job leading us through this budget. It is a tough instrument, of course, to negotiate.

Senator VITTER and I are pleased to come to the floor to speak about three particular amendments that will be offered later in the day. One that will be discussed in more detail is a small business amendment. He and I serve together on the Small Business Committee. It has become apparent to us there are many issues regarding the slowness in which the applications our small businesses are putting in but not getting their due checks based on the current law fast enough to get them re-established. So we will be offering an amendment on a small business issue which I will be cosponsoring with him later.

These two issues we are speaking about this morning on levees are an authorization for an additional $10 billion through the committee Senator VITTER serves on to try to get the authorization levels up. Mr. President, as you know, because you just visited our great State, any number of levy projects throughout all of south Louisiana, from southwest to southeast, from the metropolitan area of New Orleans to the metropolitan area of Thibodaux, Houma, Lake Charles, and rural areas of Cameron and Vermilion Parish, all are short of the levy systems they need to protect themselves and are short of money to our coastal restoration efforts that serve as the first barrier against storms such as Rita and Katrina.

So the second amendment I hope our colleagues will consider is a $10 billion authorization increase in one of the committees Senator VITTER serves on, EPW. A critical third amendment we will discuss later when the details are worked out is a gulf coast recovery fund. That fund will take some additional revenues flowing into the Treasury from additional offshore oil and gas revenues, not specified to any particular place in the gulf, but of course the ANWR revenues and some others that may be coming in if this resolution passes, to support direct funding, coastal impact assistance to the Gulf Coast States: Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana. The Gulf Coast States that serve as America's only energy coast have been devastated by these two storms. Some smart investments now will save us billions of dollars down the road.

Of course, we say from Louisiana and the gulf coast, if it weren't for our Gulf Coast States, we wouldn't even be able to access the great mineral revenues off our shores, right off the southern shore of the United States. So I am pleased to join with my colleague and work through the better part of today on these three amendments.

Then at an additional time later on, with the leadership's go-ahead, we will also hopefully be discussing a defense amendment very important to the Barksdale Air Force Base in Shreveport.

I thank my colleagues for their generosity, and I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I very much thank the Senator.

I see the Senator from Michigan is on the floor. Would the Senator from Michigan be prepared to present her amendment?

Ms. STABENOW. Yes.

Mr. CONRAD. I yield 3 minutes—is that sufficient time?

Ms. STABENOW. Yes.

Mr. CONRAD. I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Michigan, and then next on our side will be Senator AKAKA, and then I think Senator COL-LINS is in line, and then Senator LINCOLN.

Senator STABENOW.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Ms. STABENOW. Thank you, Senator CONRAD. Again, thank you for your leadership on the Budget Committee.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Ms. STABENOW. Yes.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, if it is agreeable to the chairman, I have a report I am supposed to do at the luncheon that is going on. If I could give the time at this point to people, would that be appropriate?

Mr. GREGG. I would suggest that we reach a unanimous consent agreement that on the list you identified, everybody be granted 5 minutes.

Mr. CONRAD. Could we do 4 minutes? Because we have a bit of a time constraint, could we do 4 minutes?

Ms. STABENOW. If I might ask, are we asking for 2 minutes per side?

Mr. CONRAD. No. It would be 4 minutes for each of the Senators.

Mr. GREGG. And that will come off your time when the Democratic Members make offers, and when we make offers, it will come off of our time.

Mr. CONRAD. Very well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3141

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Michigan [Ms. STABENOW] proposes an amendment numbered 3141.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide an assured stream of funding for veteran's health care that will take into account the annual changes in the veterans' population and inflation to be paid for by restoring the pre-2001 top rate for income over $1 million, closing corporate tax loopholes and delaying tax cuts for the wealthy)

On page 24, line 16, increase the amount by $31,600,000,000.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I rise today to offer an amendment to make veterans health care funding assured and mandatory.

Real security means supporting our troops abroad and making sure they have the body armor and the equipment they need, but it also means supporting them when they come home. It means giving our current and our future veterans the health care they need and deserve.

The amendment I am offering today provides full funding for veterans medical care to ensure that the VA has the resources necessary to provide quality health care in a timely manner to our Nation's sick and disabled veterans.

The problem we face today is that resources for veterans health care are falling behind demand, and we know this because every year we are trying to address the shortfall.

In 1993, there were about 2.5 million veterans in the VA health care system. Today there are more than 7 million veterans enrolled in the system, over half of whom receive care on a regular basis.

Despite the 160-percent increase in patients over the last decade, the VA has received an average of only a 5-percent increase in appropriations during this administration. Some of my colleagues will say this amendment isn't necessary because there have been funding increases over the last several years. They also say we do not need to create another entitlement program. Over the last 2 years, we have seen a 500-percent increase in the number of veterans seeking care from the VA who have been serving in Iraq and serving in Afghanistan. But the administration's budget projects that the VA will treat 109,191 veterans next year, and this falls over 35,000 veterans short of the number of Iraq and Afghanistan veterans the VA currently treats. So we see a 500-percent increase in the number of veterans coming home after serving us bravely in Iraq and Afghanistan, and yet their budget assumes that there are 35,000 fewer—fewer than last year—fewer Iraq and Afghanistan veterans we are going to treat next year. These numbers do not make sense.

Last year's budget is also a case study on why we need to have assured funding for VA health care. In total, Congress provided an additional $3 billion for veterans health care because the administration grossly miscalculated the need for veterans health care.

We need to finally move this into a category where every year those veterans coming home who need health care will know that the dollars are there based on their eligibility, based on their service, based on their need—not based on a debate on the floor in the Congress about how much we are willing to spend to address their health care needs. This should not be a year-to-year debate and commitment; this should be an assured commitment that the dollars will be there. Just as they are for Medicare, for Medicaid, our veterans ought to know that every year, their funding for critical health care services will be assured.

Today's soldiers are tomorrow's veterans. America has made a promise to these brave men and women to provide them with the care they need—not based on a debate on how much we want to spend or calculations year to year on the numbers that folks think may or may not seek care. This ought to be about making sure that every one of our brave men and women coming home, whether it is from the current wars or whether it is our World War II vets or any other war or conflict in which our soldiers have been serving—when they need health care as veterans, we will fulfill our promises to make sure it is there for them.

I urge my colleagues to support this very important amendment, supported by all of the major veterans organizations in this country. It is time to get this done and get it done right.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

AMENDMENT NO. 3071

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I ask that the pending amendment be set aside, and I call up my amendment, No. 3071, and ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Hawaii [Mr. AKAKA], for himself, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. DODD, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. SCHUMER, Ms. LANDRIEU, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. SALAZAR, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. KOHL, proposes an amendment numbered 3071.

Mr. AKAKA. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase funding for Title I grants and reduce debt by closing corporate tax loopholes)

On page 53, line 1, increase the amount by $3,000,000,000.

On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $90,000,000.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I thank the managers of this bill for accommodating this amendment. I am very grateful.

I rise with Senators CLINTON, KENNEDY, BINGAMAN, DODD, MENENDEZ, KERRY, LIEBERMAN, CANTWELL, SCHUMER, LANDRIEU, MIKULSKI, SALAZAR, LINCOLN, DURBIN, and KOHL to offer an amendment to the FY 2007 Budget Resolution to restore Title I funding within the No Child Left Behind Act. Certainly, NCLB has come under fire as schools across the country struggle to comply with its requirements, particularly for higher student test scores and teacher qualifications. My colleagues and I have gone on record several times about what we need to do to change the NCLB, to respond to the urgent concerns and needs in all of our communities, including those in my state of Hawaii.

However, today, we are not talking about deficiencies in the Act, but a shortfall in its funding, and about misplaced budget priorities. This budget resolution is similar to the President's budget in its stated priorities. It has debt-financed tax cuts that largely benefit the well-off and special interests. It presents a five year plan, which does not recognize the significant negative impact on revenues that tax cuts will have beyond the next five years. It proposes $14 billion in net mandatory spending cuts. It also omits war costs beyond 2007. We somewhat improved the measure by increasing veterans and defense funding, even if I do not fully agree with the budget gimmick that was used to offset these increases.

However, if we pass this budget as is, we fail our students and teachers once again by underfunding education. The President's FY 2007 budget proposed the largest cut to federal education funding in the Education Department's 26-year history, a $2.1 billion reduction. As approved by the Budget Committee, the budget resolution did not do much better, including the same total amount for discretionary spending, with no guarantee that education would be increased. We must not underfund an area that represents the future of this country. As we debate the need to remain competitive in the world, and worry about other countries overtaking us in producing scientists, engineers, and professionals in other areas important to our industries and national security, we cannot let education take the hit.

The Title I funding shortfall, the amount below authorized levels, is $12.3 billion for FY 2007. This increases the cumulative Title I shortfall since NCLB's enactment to $43.7 billion. Actual funding has barely increased since 2002, which continued to grow the gap between authorized and actual funding. The rightful amount in FY 2007 for Title I, as authorized, should be $25 billion. This budget resolution puts the amount at $12.7 billion.

Mr. President, we are being realistic with our amendment, given our current budgetary climate. We are asking for a modest, responsible increase of almost $3 billion, which is what the President's initial budget requests sought to do. Let me underscore that point—our amendment would do what the President said he wanted to do in previous years, which is to secure an additional $4 billion in funding—$1 billion annually—since FY 2004. Actual increases since then add up to just over $1 billion. In addition, the amendment is fully offset by closing abusive corporate tax loopholes.

If we don't pass our amendment, Mr. President, 3.7 million students will not be served by the Title I program. A total of 29 states stand to lose Title I funding, according to the Department of Education, including Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin.

Another 7 states will be level-funded, including Alaska, Delaware, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont, and Wyoming.

The remaining states that gain overall funding will still have many districts—maybe even a majority of those districts—lose funding. In addition, we must not forget history—even if states would gain this year, they likely lost in a previous year. My state of Hawaii is in this last category, for example, having received $47.5 million in FY 2005, and more than a million dollars less in FY 2006 including across-the-board cuts, at about $46.4 million.

To extend this last point further, many states will have cuts a second year in a row, and some would be cut for four or even five years in a row. Twenty-nine states will receive less Title I money than they did two years ago in FY 2005: Alaska, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Fifteen states will receive less Title I money than they did three years ago in FY 2004: California, Connecticut, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Nine states will receive less Title I money than they did 4 years ago in FY 2003: Connecticut, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, and North Dakota.

Three states will receive less Title I money than they did 5 years ago in FY 2002, which is less than they got before NCLB: Connecticut, Massachusetts, Minnesota.

The District of Columbia will receive less money than it did in FY 2004 or FY 2005.

The Northern Mariana Islands will receive less Title I money in FY 2007 than it had received in any of the years since the NCLB's enactment.

Let me remind my colleagues who we are hurting by failing to adequately fund Title I. This comprehensive education program focuses help on disadvantaged children—those from lower-income families. Title I helps these students meet state and local academic standards, with scientifically-proven instructional support, in basic subjects such as reading, language arts, and mathematics. Title I provides support through guidance, health, nutrition, and social services. It also provides resources for comprehensive school-wide planning, professional development, curriculum development, parental involvement, and acquisition of instructional materials and equipment. Now some may say that federal assistance does not help all schools, only Title I schools, but that is not true—the statewide accountability system required under Title I applies to all public schools. So this program, this central piece of the NCLB, works to meet urgent needs in all of public education.

Students, school faculty and staff, parents, and education administrators have been trying, mightily in some cases, to meet the challenges posed by NCLB and raise student academic achievement. We need to do this—to ensure that our citizens have the knowledge and skills they need to succeed when they leave school and enter the workforce or other pursuits. However, this is very difficult to do if they lack adequate funding.

I can give you concrete examples of how our schools are suffering that I just heard of this week, when I met with a representative of Hawaii's PTSA, our affiliate of national PTA. Some students in Hawaii are having bread and water for lunch. Why? Because the schools don't have enough resources to ensure that parents know how to apply for reduced and free lunch. Parents who have raised funds to install air conditioners in hot classrooms, to allow students and teachers to concentrate on learning, cannot do so because the education system cannot afford the additional electricity costs. Students are not receiving extra help through tutoring in reading and math because funds are needed for other services that are deemed essential. Hawaii's schools are suffering because they need a greater infusion of resources, and we need to help them from the federal level, as we said we would when we approved the NCLB.

Our schools will continue working to serve our kids and achieving the biggest bang for the buck, which is what education has been forced to do all along. I know this to my core, because I know what it's like to be in the shoes of those in education. I spent nearly two decades in education. I taught in several of Hawaii's elementary, middle, and high schools. Public and private. In the classroom, in music rooms, and in labs. In administration—as a vice principal and a principal. As a representative of Hawaii's principals to a national organization. And as a statewide administrator for the Hawaii Department of Education for the Model Cities program. I know what it's like to stretch the education dollar. However, we must stop being behind the curve with education funding.

Education funding must be a given, not just a goal. Our Title I amendment goes partway toward making that happen, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

The American Federation of Teachers, National Education Association, Council of State School Officers, and other education organizations support this increase for Title I. I ask unanimous consent that letters of support from the AFT and NEA be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS,
Washington, DC, March 15, 2006.
Office of the Hon. DANIEL K. AKAKA,
Hart Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR AKAKA: On behalf of the more than 1.3 million members of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), I am writing in support of your Title I amendment to the fiscal year (FY) 2007 budget resolution.

Knowing that the goals of the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) could only be achieved with accountability and dedicated resources, Congress set a funding authorization for the program each year.

In the three years following NCLB's passage, K-12 education programs received average annual increases of $5 billion. However, this steady growth has stalled, as witnessed in the past two appropriations bills (FY 2005 and FY 06). Currently, the gap between authorized and appropriated funds for Title I from FY 02 through FY 06 is $40.3 billion. In addition, the president's budget provides no increase this year for Title I. Given inflation, this would amount to a cut in many districts. It would have a devastating effect on schools that educate large numbers of poor and minority students.

It would also exacerbate a problem that has occurred over the past few years as a result of chronic underfunding. The U.S. Education Department projects that 29 states will lose Title I funding and seven states will be level-funded in FY 07 if the president's budget request is enacted. The remaining states, those that gain funding overall, will see many of their individual school districts—possibly most of them—lose funding. Also, any gains will not make up for funding shortfalls since NCLB's enactment.

Your amendment seeks a relatively modest increase to help us move a step closer toward fully funding Title I. President Bush has acknowledged the need to increase Title I funding by $1 billion in FY 2004 and FY 2005, although actual increases over the past four years have amounted to much less.

At a time when schools and teachers are working hard to meet the requirements of NCLB, this amendment will be a boost for students, teachers, and school districts nationwide. Ensuring that all children have highly qualified teachers and that struggling schools have the tools to improve can't be done on the cheap. Research indicates that recruiting highly qualified teachers for hard-to-staff schools requires improving the physical plant, providing up-to-date textbooks and other learning resources, implementing proven curricula, attracting and retaining exemplary administrative staff and providing professional development and financial resources for teachers.

The AFT applauds you and your colleagues for making education a top priority in this budget. Securing these resources for the upcoming school year is critical to our collective efforts to support and improve our nation's public schools.

Sincerely,

KRISTOR W. COWAN,
Director, Legislation Department.

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,
Washington, DC, March 16, 2006.

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the National Education Association's (NEA) 2.8 million members, we would like to express our support for an amendment to be offered by Senator Akaka (D-HI) to the proposed fy07 budget resolution that would allow for an increase of $3 billion for Title I. This amendment would build on the important foundation offered by the just-passed Specter-Harkin amendment, which would replenish key education and health programs recently cut.

The Administration has called Title I the cornerstone of No Child Left Behind. The program provides invaluable funds to help close achievement gaps and maximize student learning. It funds supplemental programs to enable educationally disadvantaged students, particularly those attending schools in high-poverty areas, to meet challenging academic standards. It also pays the salaries of teachers and paraprofessionals, funds pre-K, after-school, and summer school programs, and provides for professional development for teachers and paraprofessionals.

Unfortunately, Title I continues to be significantly underfunded, denying too many eligible students the full services they need to succeed. The budget proposal before the Senate would shortchange Title I by $12.3 billion below the amount authorized in the No Child Left Behind Act. If enacted as proposed, the budget will reduce Title I funding for 29 states and will flat-fund seven additional states. As a result, the budget would deny essential Title I services to some 3.7 million children.

The Akaka amendment would allow for a relatively modest $3 billion increase for Title I, offset by closing abusive corporate tax loopholes. In so doing, it would allow for an important step in the right direction for this critical program.

Again, we urge your support for this important amendment.

Sincerely,

DIANE SHUST,
Director of Government Relations.

RANDALL MOODY,
Manager of Federal Policy and Politics.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is not a sufficient second.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I yield my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

AMENDMENT NO. 3066

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3066, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Maine [Ms. COLLINS], for herself and Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. DEWINE, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. MENENDEZ, proposes an amendment numbered 3066.

Ms. COLLINS. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To ensure that first responder and state and local government grant programs key to our Nation's homeland security are funded at no less than FY 2006 levels and to provide increases for port security, first responder programs, rail/transit security, and National Response Plan Training, offset by discretionary spending reductions)

On page 16, line 21, increase the amount by $4,000,000.

On page 16, line 22, increase the amount by $3,000,000.

On page 17, line 1, increase the amount by $1,000,000.

On page 17, line 22, increase the amount by $488,000,000.

On page 17, line 23, increase the amount by $164,000,000.

On page 18, line 3, increase the amount by $227,000,000.

On page 18, line 7, increase the amount by $75,000,000.

On page 18, line 11, increase the amount by $22,000,000.

On page 24, line 24, increase the amount by $494,000,000.

On page 24, line 25, increase the amount by $171,000,000.

On page 25, line 4, increase the amount by $158,000,000.

On page 27, line 23, decrease the amount by $986,000,000.

On page 27, line 24, decrease the amount by $338,000,000.

On page 28, line 2, decrease the amount by $386,000,000.

On page 28, line 5, decrease the amount by $221,000,000.

On page 28, line 8, decrease the amount by $41,000,000.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment, which is cosponsored by my colleague from Connecticut, Senator LIEBERMAN—we would like to add as additional cosponsors Senators DEWINE, SNOWE, KENNEDY, and MENENDEZ.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on behalf of an amendment offered by Senator COLLINS and myself to the Fiscal Year 2007 budget resolution to strengthen our homeland security efforts—particularly the ability of first responders to prevent, prepare for, respond to, and recover from terrorist attacks or catastrophic natural disasters.

I have also filed an amendment that would increase the President's Government-wide homeland security budget by $8 billion—an amount still far below what the experts tell us we need to be as safe as we should be. I think the Nation would be best served by a healthier investment in homeland security, but I am happy to join with Senator COLLINS to offer this smaller $986 million proposal as a way to ensure support for first responders; rail, transit, port and cargo security, Coast Guard research and development, and assorted other programs.

September 11, 2001, changed our lives forever. We face new and dangerous threats from our enemies that we must be prepared to deal with. Furthermore, the Federal response to Hurricane Katrina proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that we are still a Nation unprepared for catastrophe. Yet, the Bush administration seems to have turned its back on the lessons of September 11, 2001, and of August 29, 2005, the day Hurricane Katrina made landfall. And this budget resolution, which largely reflects the President's budget proposal, does nothing to indicate otherwise.

We know our first responders lack the training, equipment, and frequently the manpower they need to do their jobs. Most don't even have the basic capability to communicate with one another across jurisdictional and service lines, and Hurricane Katrina demonstrated that sometimes during a major catastrophe they can't communicate at all.

Yet, the President's fiscal year 2007 budget proposal eliminates a number of first responder programs and cuts others, leaving those on the frontlines of the war against terror or on the frontlines of a hurricane, struggling to make due with less. Our amendment would add $860 million to restore and expand first responder programs.

We would restore $400 million for the Law Enforcement Terrorist Prevention Program, which the administration would totally eliminate; $251 million for the FIRE grants, which provide training and equipment to firefighters; $110 million to restore the SAFER Act, which helps recruit, hire and train local firefighters and which the administration would eliminate; $30 million for the Metropolitan Medical Response System which helps prepare local health officials for mass casualties; and $15 million for emergency preparedness grants. We would also add $67 million to the primary homeland security grants for States.

After first responders, port security would get the second highest amount of funding under our amendment—for a total of $427 million for port security. Perhaps one of the unintended consequences of the Dubai Ports World fracas was that it underscored the need for better port security. Ninety-five percent of all our trade flows through our ports, and a terrorist event at one could cause economic havoc. Security experts have also warned that WMD would most likely be smuggled into the country in a shipping container.

Our amendment would commit to strengthening port security by reallocating funding for the Targeted Infrastructure Protection Program to ensure a dedicated $300 million for port security grants. Another $2 million would be set aside to audit the grants to ensure the money is being used properly and efficiently.

Furthermore, we would provide $20 million for additional staff for the C-TPAT program—which permits expedited shipping for known companies that increase their shipping security. Currently, there are just 80 people responsible for overseeing 10,000 applications to the program. We would include $105 million for cutting-edge imaging inspection equipment for better cargo security and $4 million the administration cut from the Coast Guard's R&D program.

Because we know our rail and transit system is wide open, vulnerable, and appealing to terrorists, and because the President's budget eliminates rail and transit grants, we would dedicate $200 million specifically for rail and transit security grants, just as we did for port security grants. Fourteen million Americans ride mass transit each weekday, more than 16 times the number of daily trips taken by Americans on domestic airlines. Let's not fail to learn the lessons of attacks on the London, Madrid, Moscow, Tokyo, and Israeli rail and transit systems.

Our enemies are ruthless and choose their own battlefields in the communities where we live and work. Nature, too, can be ruthless and will strike in unpredictable ways year after year. We must have first responders who are trained and equipped not just to prepare for and respond to catastrophes but to work to prevent them, as well. We worked with a real sense of urgency after September 11, 2001, to secure our Nation. We must summon that same sense of urgency now to close the security gaps that remain. I wish there was a cheap way to do that. But there isn't. It takes money—more money than the administration's budget offers and more money than the majority's budget resolution we're debating this week offers. I urge my colleagues to support these modest proposals so that we can make additional headway toward our goal of being better able to prevent, prepare for, respond to, and recover from the terrorist attacks and natural disasters that are sure to come.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, the Collins-Lieberman amendment would provide $986 million to help prevent terrorist attacks and to enable us to respond more effectively if one does occur. It enjoys the support of a wide range of first responder groups, representing our police and our firefighters.

Our amendment has two components. First, it restores funding to the fiscal year 2006 levels for key grant programs that assist first responders, as well as State and local governments. These are such programs as the Law Enforcement Terrorism Prevention Program, the Metropolitan Medical Response System, emergency management performance grants, the FIRE Act, and SAFER programs.

As this chart prepared by the Congressional Research Service indicates, the aggregate difference between the fiscal year 2006 appropriated amount and the proposed budget request for this year is $395 million. Our amendment ensures that none of the programs listed on this chart would be funded at any less than the level that was appropriated for fiscal year 2006.

Last year, for example, Congress appropriated $550 million for the State Homeland Security Grant Program, a key source of assistance to State and local governments and first responders. This level, I point out, was only half of the fiscal year 2005 enacted level. Communities use these funds for first responder preparation activities such as emergency planning, risk assessments, mutual aid agreements, equipment, training, and exercises.

It is important to realize that the biggest single expenditure of these funds is the purchase of interoperable communications equipment. Therefore, a vote for our amendment is a vote to increase funding for interoperable communications equipment for first responders.

Under the Collins-Lieberman amendment, we would also provide an additional $150 million for the State Homeland Security Grant Program to create a better national response system that will operate more smoothly at the Federal, State, and local level. Our committee's investigation into the preparedness for and response to Hurricane Katrina clearly demonstrated inadequate response and deficiencies in our ability to respond effectively to the catastrophic events. This is not the time to reduce the Federal Government's commitment to national preparedness.

The budget also shortchanges first responders in other programs, such as the FIRE Act and the SAFER grants. We would take care of that as well as the Law Enforcement Terrorism Prevention Program, one of the programs that focuses on preventing terrorist attacks.

Another important aspect of the Collins-Lieberman amendment deals with port security grants. Unfortunately, the administration's budget does not dedicate a separate funding stream for port security. Instead, it folds port security in with all other transportation and critical infrastructure, thus providing no assurance at all that any money will be provided to strengthen the security of our ports. The estimates are, from the ports administrators, that we need to have $400 million for port security grant funding. Because of budget constraints we don't go that far, but we do include dedicated funding, $300 million in port security grant funding. We have proposed an increase to move the funding level to meeting the identified needs and to help us improve the security of our ports.

There are so many needs, but we have worked very hard to keep the cost of our amendment down. It is fully offset. I hope our colleagues will support this proposal. It also provides funding for a number of other critical infrastructure needs, such as our Nation's rail and transit systems.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment and send a message to our first responders that they are a top priority. The additional funding provided by the Collins-Lieberman amendment is an investment we simply must make to strengthen our ability to prevent, detect, and if necessary respond to attacks on our homeland.

I urge support for the amendment, and I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I compliment our colleague from Maine for her conscientious efforts, as well as her fiscally responsible efforts. I ask unanimous consent to add my name to her list of cosponsors and again tell her how much we appreciate all of the many issues that have landed in her lap this year and what an incredible job she has done, working with Senator LIEBERMAN to address those. I ask unanimous consent to add my name as a cosponsor, please.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3047

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3047.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arkansas [Mrs. LINCOLN], for herself, Mr. DURBIN, and Mrs. CLINTON, proposes an amendment numbered 3047.

Mrs. LINCOLN. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(To provide $7.8 billion over two years to fund refundable tax credits targeted to small businesses with up to 100 employees so that they may help purchase group health insurance for their low-wage workers, paid for by closing corporate tax loopholes)

On page 3, line 13, increase the amount by $4,500,000,000.

On page 3, line 15, increase the amount by $3,300,000,000.

On page 4, line 1, increase the amount by $4,500,000,000.

On page 4, line 2, increase the amount by $3,300,000,000.

On page 4, line 13, increase the amount by $4,500,000,000.

On page 4, line 15, increase the amount by $3,300,000,000.

On page 5, line 4, increase the amount by $4,500,000,000.

On page 5, line 6, increase the amount by $3,300,000,000.

On page 19, line 24, increase the amount by $4,500,000,000.

On page 19, line 25, increase the amount by $4,500,000,000.

On page 20, line 3, increase the amount by $3,300,000,000.

On page 20, line 4, increase the amount by $3,300,000,000.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I cannot imagine that the rest of my colleagues in this body are not hearing the same thing I hear, as I travel back each week to Arkansas, from my constituents. Always in the top three issues they bring up in the most passionate of ways happens to be how in the world are we in this Nation going to deal with the number of uninsured in this country, particularly in the small business arena?

Those Americans who are working hard, those trying to provide for their families, those keeping the framework and the foundation of our small communities together, those working in small businesses, how are we going to do a better job in this body in helping to provide health insurance for those who are uninsured and their families?

I rise today with my good friend Senator DURBIN to propose an amendment to the budget resolution to provide $7.8 billion over 2 years to fund refundable tax credits targeted to small businesses with up to 100 employees so they may help purchase group health insurance for their low-wage workers.

I ask unanimous consent to add Senators CLINTON, KOHL, and CANTWELL as cosponsors of my amendment, and to take this opportunity as well to note that our amendment is endorsed by the National Association of Business Owners and the Small Business Majority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, my amendment would dedicate funding to help small businesses that are struggling to provide health insurance to their employees, and would do so in a way that is fiscally responsible. My amendment is completely offset by closing corporate tax loopholes that have been agreed upon by the Finance Committee as well as by this entire body, the Senate. These are ways in which we can make fiscally responsible decisions in closing loopholes that exist and pay for something that is absolutely vital to working families.

Unfortunately, the budget resolution before us doesn't specify either an amount to promote expanding health insurance coverage for employees of small businesses or a way to pay for it, which leads me to believe—as do other Americans out there listening to this debate—that this is simply a priority for us.

We cannot continue to act as if this issue doesn't exist. The President has mentioned it year upon year in his State of the Union Addresses, and yet we are seeing increases by the millions of individuals who are finding themselves uninsured. There are nearly 46 million Americans currently without health insurance, including 456,000 Arkansans in my home State of Arkansas. Twenty percent of working-age adults are uninsured. These are people who are working and playing by the rules to provide for their families. This number is so alarming to me that addressing this problem should be a national priority.

Those who lack health insurance don't get access to timely and appropriate health care. They have less access to important screenings and state-of-the-art technology and prescription drugs. Working families need our help with this problem—and they need it now.

Senator DURBIN and I have a bill to help small businesses afford health insurance, and a refundable tax credit to employers as an integral part of our proposal. Our responsible tax credit is targeted to help those who need it the most.

Low-wage workers and small businesses are significantly more likely to be uninsured than high-wage workers, and firms with a high proportion of low-wage workers are much less likely to offer insurance. Our tax credits are targeted to the firms and employees who need the most incentives to purchase health insurance coverage. Our tax credit goes to the employer because small employers believe offering health insurance has a positive impact on recruitment, retention, employees' attitude, performance, and health status.

The budget resolution fails to address this huge problem in our country. The budget is a blueprint, and it should clearly represent America's working families' needs and priorities. It is supposed to reflect what our choices will be when it comes time to spending the tax dollars of this country. This amendment is about priorities.

We must make a priority this growing number of uninsured in our country. They are working families, playing by the rules, trying desperately to contribute to their great Nation. One of the things we can do is provide the employers the incentive they need to provide the kind of health insurance working families can use and need.

The underlying proposal Senator DURBIN and I have offered presents working families' ability to have the similar kind of health insurance that I and all of the Federal employees here have access to. What greater opportunity to provide greater choice at a lower cost. This is the tool that can make that happen. Providing a tax incentive to small businesses to be able to purchase and assist their employees—their low-wage workers—with the ability to engage in the insurance market and provide the ability to mitigate against their health care and their health care costs is absolutely essential, not just for the quality of life of working Americans but also think of what it does for our economy.

We have a great opportunity in this budget to set priorities that are important to the working families of this country. I urge my colleagues, let us come together and do something for our small businesses and working families—and do something now.

I ask my colleagues to support our amendment and look forward to the opportunity we have to do something about the escalating costs of health care and what it means to working families in this Nation.

I request the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

At the moment there is not a sufficient second.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, we will have no trouble getting a sufficient second.

Perhaps we could give a second to the yeas and nays asked for by the Senator from Arkansas at this time. There now appears to be a sufficient second.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is now a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask the Parliamentarian if he could give us a breakdown on the time remaining between now and 1:30.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority has 24 minutes 32 seconds, the minority has 15 minutes 6 seconds.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, we have calls out to two other offices of Members who indicated an interest in offering amendments in this time period.

As we have heard from the Parliamentarian, we only have 15 minutes left on our side. When we put in a quorum call, that time will be charged equally. I alert those Senators whose offices have been called that time is rapidly running through the hourglass. I hope very much those who have been called and who have asked for time will come. Time is rapidly evaporating.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield 2 additional minutes to the Senator from Arkansas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3106

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I thank my colleague.

I come to the floor today to offer an amendment on behalf of rural America. If there is anything that has been consistent in this administration's budget, it has been that there has been more asked from rural America in terms of the burden of cuts that have happened and a disproportionate share of the labor-intensive ideas of how we are going to deal with incredible spending.

I offer this amendment on behalf of rural America. I thank Senators SALAZAR, PRYOR, HARKIN, and KOHL for joining me in this effort.

I am pleased to ask unanimous consent to add Senators DURBIN and SCHUMER as cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, our amendment would restore approximately $2 billion in discretionary cuts proposed for programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in fiscal year 2007. To pay for these investments in rural America, our amendment would raise the discretionary cap by $2 billion and offset these expenditures by closing corporate tax loopholes which have passed the Senate on numerous occasions.

The proposed discretionary cuts for USDA impact a variety of conservation, rural development, nutrition, and forestry programs that are vitally important to our communities across this great Nation.

Mr. President, you and all other Members of this Senate have rural areas in your States and know the difficult times they are going through. They do not have the tax base. They may not have the corporate citizens in those areas that help them build this economy. These programs are vital to them in terms of developing the kind of economy they want and can have. They are not asking to be a major metropolitan area. They are simply asking to be the best they can possibly be.

The discretionary spending would decline $208 million in fiscal year 2007 in conservation. Rural development would see a decline of $421 million less than in fiscal year 2007, and research would see a 14.6 percent reduction from the fiscal year 2006 appropriations.

I ask all of my colleagues, whether you represent a major metropolitan area or rural America, you know the fabric of this country depends on all of us. Please do not ask for a disproportionate share of rural America, and do not devastate the incredible advances they have already been able to make. Let us help them grow with the rest of America in their great effort.

I urge my colleagues to support me in the WIC Program, the nutrition program, the conservation program, and all of the others that rural America depends on.

AMENDMENT NO. 3136, AS MODIFIED

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President I call up an amendment at the desk. It is a substitute on the energy amendment I offered earlier. I ask unanimous consent to modify my previous amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is so modified.

The amendment (No. 3136), as modified, is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide a reserve fund for bold energy legislation that is deficit neutral)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

"SEC. . DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR ENERGY LEGISLATION.

The Chairman of the Senate Committee on the Budget may revise the allocations, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would reduce our nation's dependence on foreign sources of energy, expand production and use of alternative fuels and alternative fuel vehicles, promote renewable energy development, improve electricity transmission, encourage responsible development of domestic oil and natural gas resources, and reward conservation and efficiency, by the amounts provided in such legislation for that purpose, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit in fiscal year 2007 or over the total of the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011, and provided that the committee or committees of jurisdiction are within their 302(a) allocations.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

I ask the Parliamentarian to give us an update on the time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority has 22 minutes 30 seconds, the minority has 9 minutes 5 seconds.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3106

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I call up my amendment numbered 3106 which I described to my colleagues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arkansas [Mrs. LINCOLN], for herself, Mr. SALAZAR, Mr. PRYOR, Mr. HARKIN, and Mr. KOHL, proposes an amendment numbered 3106.

Mrs. LINCOLN. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

 On page 53, line 2, increase the amount by $1,177,000,000.

Mrs. LINCOLN. I appreciate my colleagues' attention on this and encourage their support in supporting rural America.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VITTER). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3078, 3041, 3134, 3045, 3123, AND 3136, AS MODIFIED

Mr. GREGG. I ask unanimous consent the following amendments be agreed to en bloc: Amendment 3078, Senator VITTER and Senator LANDRIEU; amendment 3041, Senator BAUCUS; amendment 3134, Senators SNOWE, VITTER and KERRY; amendment 3045, Senator LAUTENBERG; amendment 3123, Senator COLEMAN; amendment 3136, as modified, Senator CONRAD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 3078) was agreed to.

The amendments were agreed to, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3041

(Purpose: To provide funding for an Internet Crimes Against Children task force in Montana)

On page 24, line 24, increase the amount by "$250,000".

The amendment (No. 3136), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I am deeply disappointed that this budget resolution assumes deep cuts and unprecedented fees for the Small Business Administration, the SBA. The administration's request of $624 million is insufficient to meet the needs of small businesses in this country that need access to capital, counseling, and Federal contracts. By the SBA's own cal-culatation, the request is $18 million less than what was available to the Agency last year when congressional initiatives and disaster supplementals are excluded. If this budget is adopted, the Agency will have been cut more than 37 percent since 2001. In context, that means it will have suffered the largest cuts of all 24 Federal agencies.

To address this shortfall, I introduced S.A. 3072 to increase SBA's fiscal year 2007 budget of $624 million by $151 million, for a total of $775 million. The amendment would have paid for this increased spending by closing abusive corporate tax loopholes and would, among other things, have prevented the administration from increasing the cost of disaster loans, from imposing a new fee on SBA's largest loan and venture capital programs, from eliminating the SBA's microloan programs, and from weakening business assistance to women, minorities, veterans, Native Americans, and those trying to cut through redtape to contract with the Federal Government.

This budget resolution comes after 5 years of drastic budget cuts which have eroded SBA's core programs and left the Agency with one of the worst morale problems in the Federal Government. SBA's largest lending program, the 7(a) program, is now more expensive than ever for small business borrowers and lenders, and the administration is proposing to add new "administrative fees" for larger 7(a) loans, 504 loans, and SBIC or venture capital deals. These fees are the first time the SBA has attempted to pass along administrative costs to lenders and small business borrowers, but the administration is pushing for them because they will generate $7 million in savings. We are told that some 7(a) borrowers will pay $625 more per loan, some 504 borrowers will pay $1,625 per loan, and the majority of companies that get an SBIC investment will pay $45,000 more. This is in addition to the excessive fees these small business borrowers already pay to cover the loan subsidy cost. This would set a bad precedent. To prevent the administration from imposing a new fee on small business borrowers, my amendment provided $7 million to the SBA's budget for next year to offset this proposal.

Deep budget cuts for SBA have also meant less transparency and accountability when it comes to the oversight of small business contracting. After pressure from our Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, the SBA hired additional procurement center representatives, PCRs—the Government officials responsible for monitoring the bundling of large contracts and for helping small businesses cut through redtape to compete for Federal contracts—now bringing the number of PCRs nationwide up to 58. But many of these are not full-time PCRs. To avoid further reports of contracting abuses, large businesses receiving small business contracts, and Federal agencies missing their small business goals, my amendment provided $10 million for 100 additional PCRs to ensure robust contracting oversight throughout the Nation.

For the fifth year in a row, this budget continues on the path of providing unrealistic funding by cutting critical programs, such as the Small Business Development Centers or SBDCs, Women's Business Centers and SCORE, forcing SBA's counseling partners to spend fewer hours with clients because the Federal matching grant isn't keeping pace with inflation or demand. Despite the budget's failure to account for inflation costs, these programs continue to play an integral role in helping entrepreneurs from underrepresented communities. These cuts, when combined with 5 years of budget cuts for the SBA as a whole, would leave the SBA ill-prepared to meet the demands of the growing entrepreneurial sector. I strongly oppose flat funding these resources for small businesses and so proposed an additional $23 million in my amendment to bring Small Business Development Centers from the outdated $87.1 funding level to $110 million, proposed $4.95 million to bring SCORE funding to $7 million, and $4.7 million to bring the Women's Business Centers to a level of $16.5 million.

All of this pales in comparison to the mismanagement of the response to recovery of the gulf coast region. The SBA's disaster loan program, essential to the recovery of business owners, homeowners, and renters after a disaster, almost ran out of money twice in February. Instead of getting their fiscal house in order like every American family must do, the President now proposes to raise the cost of disaster loans and no longer guarantee our most vulnerable borrowers fixed interest rates. Although they could still have up to 30 years to pay off a loan, if they don't pay it off in 5 years, the interest rate will go up. Instead of telling us how this will help disaster victims, we are told this will save the SBA an estimated $41 million. We should not be saving money on the backs of disaster victims. Instead, we should help them to rebuild their homes and businesses. To prevent raising disaster loan interest rates, my amendment provided $41 million to the SBA's budget for next year.

The $151 million in my amendment would have provided real money to our appropriators and to small business programs in desperate need of funding. Unfortunately, this amendment did not garner bipartisan support. While I am disappointed with this outcome, I am pleased that we were able to work out a bipartisan compromise with Senator SNOWE, the chair of the Small Business Committee. Our compromise, S.A. 3134, would increase the SBA fiscal year 2007 budget by $130 million, and although it would not add any additional funds to the budget resolution, it is a bipartisan effort to address many of the issues that my amendment 3072 attempted to address. There is bipartisan support for the 7(j) technical assistance program and the HUBZONE Program, which Senator BOND from Missouri worked hard to put in place and I joined with him in cosponsoring it when he was chairman for SBDCs and SCORE and Women's Business Centers; for the Microloan Program and microloan technical assistance, both of which the President has tried to eliminate for several years now. We all support U.S. Export Assistance Centers and Veterans Business Development, Small Business Innovation Research, and Small Business Technology Transfer Program. While I would have liked to have seen higher funding levels for the PRIME and New Markets Venture Capital Program, I am glad that our amendment reflects continued funding for these vital programs. We made a strong bipartisan statement that minority lending numbers must be increased, with about $1 million more toward Native-American outreach. And we agreed to reject the proposals to raise the cost of disaster loans and to impose a new fee on the lending and venture capital programs. Overall, amendment 3134 is sending an important signal to all that there is broad bipartisan support to increase funding for these vital small business programs.

Mr. President, I thank my colleagues, Senators LANDRIEU, LIEBERMAN, LEVIN, NELSON of Florida, VITTER, and COLEMAN for joining us to cosponsor this amendment, the entire Senate for agreeing to the amendment, and Senators CONRAD and GREGG for their help in putting together a more realistic budget for small businesses.

Mr. GREGG. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, could we get an update on the time situation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Certainly. The minority has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. CONRAD. Two minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Correct. The majority has 16 minutes remaining.

Mr. CONRAD. I ask the chairman, could I get 2 additional minutes to give to Senator KERRY?

Mr. GREGG. Sure.

Mr. CONRAD. The chairman, once again, is gracious to provide another 2 minutes. I ask unanimous consent for 2 minutes from his time to our time and I give 4 minutes to the Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I am grateful to both of the managers and appreciate the courtesy.

AMENDMENT NO. 3143

Mr. President, I have an amendment which I send to the desk and ask for its appropriate consideration in the line of votes, as we decide on that later.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KERRY] proposes an amendment numbered 3143.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

On page 10, line 12, increase the amount by $3,271,000,000.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, the President's budget proposal includes a concept to increase TRICARE—this is the DOD, Department of Defense, health care program—fees and copayments for military retirees under the age of 65 and for their dependents.

All of us recognize there is this spiraling cost to health care. I understand that. And it affects everything we are doing in the country. The Department of Defense is, needless to say, no different. It has those increases. But the answer is not found in tripling the fees for retired officers, doubling them for senior enlisted retirees, and demanding more from every military retiree under the age of 65 who uses the health care system, when you look at the other costs that are already going up for all of those folks.

Most importantly, there are a series of better ways that have been recommended to bring down the cost of health care for those retirees. So you do not have to go immediately to fees and copayments in order to solve the problem of the increase in costs.

In successive budget requests, the Bush administration has asked for increased fees and copayments for veterans health care, which is increasingly shifting the burden of that care from some veterans on to others, and it is driving some veterans out of the system altogether, which is, obviously, not fair.

My amendment will restore the funding for TRICARE so that military retirees are not saddled with these increased costs and fees. We pay for it by closing a number of tax loopholes. I think by doing so, we keep faith with people who have served our country for 20 years or more.

They did not ask to change the terms of their commitment to the military when things got tough, and I do not think we should be ignoring and changing our commitment to them now.

Mr. President, I yield back such time as may remain.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, we are 10 minutes away from the big show, which may go on for a long time. It may be a big, long show. In any event, I want to alert Members we are going to go to 10-minute votes. We are going to be holding the 10-minute votes as strictly as possible. The first vote will, obviously, not be 10 minutes. And we are going to start voting at 1:30. We have pending so many amendments that we could be here well into the evening. Cooperation is needed if people do not want to be here well into tomorrow morning.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Nebraska.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska is recognized.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, thank you. And I thank the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee.

AMENDMENT NO. 3127

Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3127 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows: The Senator from Nebraska [Mr. HAGEL] proposes an amendment numbered 3127.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To establish a reserve fund for a Comprehensive Entitlement Reform Commission)

At the end of title III, insert the following:
SEC. ____ . RESERVE FUND FOR A COMPREHENSIVE ENTITLEMENT REFORM COMMISSION.

If—

(1) the Committee on Finance of the Senate reports a bill or joint resolution, or if an amendment is offered thereto or if a conference report is submitted thereon, that establishes a Comprehensive Entitlement Reform Commission for the purpose of conducting a comprehensive review of the Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid programs and making recommendations to sustain the solvency and stability of these programs for future generations; and

(2) that committee is within its allocation as provided under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974;

the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may make the appropriate adjustments in allocations and aggregates to the extent that such legislation would not increase the deficit for fiscal year 2007 and the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators Isakson and Chambliss be added as cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, last October, I introduced legislation, S. 1889, to create a bipartisan entitlement reform commission. Senator ISAKSON cosponsored my legislation, and Representative JOHN TANNER joined me in introducing this legislation in the House of Representatives.

In January, the President called on Congress to create such a commission in his State of the Union Address. The amendment I am offering today responds to the President's request.

My amendment establishes a reserve fund that would allow Congress to pass legislation later this year forming a bipartisan entitlement reform commission. This bipartisan commission would review America's three major entitlement programs—Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid—and make comprehensive recommendations on how to stabilize and keep solvent these programs for future generations.

The entitlement course that we are currently on is unsustainable. Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid have been vital components for millions of Americans as they have found a happier retirement. However, over the next 75 years, these three programs represent a $42 trillion unfunded mandate for the American taxpayer.

The Social Security trust fund faces a $4 trillion unfunded commitment and will pay out more money than it takes in beginning around 2017. The fund will be exhausted by 2041. The Medicare Part A trust fund—hospital insurance—faces an almost $9 trillion unfunded commitment and will be exhausted by 2020.

Where is the money to pay for these commitments going to come from? We must deal with these challenges today while we still have time and constructive options. To leave future generations burdened with paying for huge entitlement commitments when they will be competing in a far more competitive world than exists today would be dangerously irresponsible.

This is not a Republican or a Democratic problem. This affects us all. Most significantly, it affects the most vulnerable in our society. Creating this commission will start us down the road to dealing with this problem and will protect the next generation from facing Draconian choices in their future.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to vote for this amendment today.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I assume I have no time remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct. The remainder of the time is controlled by the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from New Hampshire for 2 minutes so I might offer an amendment.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I yield the Senator from North Dakota 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized. Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank the chairman again for his courtesy.

AMENDMENT NO. 3148

Mr. President, I want to say to the Senator from Nebraska that while on this side we agree that we have long-term challenges, very deep long-term challenges, with the fiscal health of the country, we believe the amendment the Senator from Nebraska has offered is too narrow in scope.

Mr. President, for that reason, I send an amendment to the desk to be considered at the same time as the amendment offered by the Senator from Nebraska. Basically, the difference is this: We think everything ought to be on the table. We think everything ought to be on the table, not just entitlements but domestic discretionary spending, the revenue side of the equation, that all ought to be considered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator briefly allow the clerk to formally report.

Mr. CONRAD. I will be happy to.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD] proposes an amendment numbered 3148.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To create a deficit-neutral reserve fund for addressing the long term fiscal challenges facing our nation, by creating a bipartisan commission or process to consider all parts of the budget, with everything on the table for discussion)

SEC. ____ . RESERVE FUND FOR ADDRESSING THE LONG-TERM FISCAL CHALLENGES FACING THE NATION.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or a conference report thereon, that would provide for the bipartisan leadership of the House and Senate to work with the President to establish a commission (or other mutually agreeable process) to address the long-term fiscal challenges facing the nation, provided that such commission or process—

(1) Addresses these long-term fiscal challenges in a manner in which both political parties are represented equally, and

(2) Considers all parts of the budget by putting everything on the table for discussion provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit for fiscal year 2007 and the period of fiscal years 2007 to 2011.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator may continue.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have a letter printed in the RECORD from AARP in opposition to the Hagel amendment, indicating they agree that the Hagel amendment is too narrow in scope, and that we ought to have a broader look at all of the problems facing our fiscal future, not just focus on one part.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AARP,
March 16, 2006.

Hon. KENT CONRAD,
Ranking Minority Member, Budget Committee,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CONRAD: The Senate will shortly consider an amendment regarding a narrowly focused commission to address the long-term challenges facing Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid. AARP agrees that we must confront the challenges and opportunities posed by the aging of the baby boom generation, but a commission focused primarily on the fiscal impact of our critical health and income security programs overlooks the important role they play in the lives of millions of Americans of all ages.

Commissions have been most effective in laying out policy options when they have been balanced, established without preconditions, given a mandate to address the underlying causes of problems, and provided all sides with an opportunity to be heard. A commission to address our long-term fiscal challenges has merit provided it examines the full scope of our budgetary policy, including the revenue needed to ensure the health and income security of all Americans.

Most important to AARP and its 36 million members, the commission must recognize that ultimately the solutions must be about people. A commission's recommendations should put us on a path to secure the future ability of Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid to continue to provide a foundation for the health and retirement security of all generations as well as guide the way to sound long-term budget policies.

The current amendment offered by Senator Hagel does not meet all of these criteria. Therefore, AARP cannot support this amendment.

Sincerely,

DAVID P. SLOANE,
Senior Managing Director,
Government Relations & Advocacy.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, just for the edification of our colleagues because it is going to get a little confusing around here with all the amendments we have, we are going to begin the amendment voting process with the amendment of Senator LIEBERMAN on homeland security. That will be followed by Senator CLINTON's amendment, followed by Senator SPECTER's amendment on education, followed by the amendment of Senator REED of Rhode Island on LIHEAP, followed by Senator LAUTENBERG's amendment on TSA fees, followed by Senator SARBANES's amendment on function 300,
