

District of Nebraska. They are smart and sharp, and we need to do everything we can to encourage them. Unfortunately, however, many rural States have seen what we call "brain drain" in recent years. As the depletion occurs, we lose our most vital economic asset to more populated areas. Responsible policy is needed to retain and grow our workforce to make our rural communities more competitive in this modern economy.

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act seeks to address this by encouraging economic development partnerships. These partnerships would be formed between rural colleges and universities and rural employers. This would provide additional career training to students attending rural schools in fields significant to the local economy. It also would encourage rural businesses to employ students once they graduate.

I thank the chairman and ranking member for working with me to target these partnerships to the areas in the most need.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recognize the gentleman from New Jersey, a distinguished member of our Higher Education Subcommittee (Mr. HOLT), for 2 minutes.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I would like to commend Chairman MILLER and Mr. MCKEON for producing a strong piece of legislation. The College Opportunity and Affordability Act does what the name suggests. It expands affordability and access to college education for the broadest range of Americans. It expands Pell Grants, the basis of financial aid, and I'm pleased to say it allows Pell Grants to be used year round and for certificate programs and part-time students, something I have been working on for a long time.

The bill does many other things, including some initiatives that I have been working on. It empowers small and community colleges to provide child care programs so that working mothers can attend school. It includes grants and loan forgiveness for math and science students who pledge to conduct service in math and science fields after graduation. It includes grants for foreign language partnerships between local schools and language departments at institutions of higher learning and grants to institutions that will combine science with foreign languages.

I am pleased that in the Education and Labor Committee we were able to pass an amendment so that this bill would create an Assistant Secretary for International and Foreign Language Education.

I am pleased to note further that the bill will direct the Institute of Medicine to study how to deal with the shortage of nurses that's created by the shortage of nursing faculty.

These initiatives are part of a large effort to make it easier for students to finance their education and an effort to strengthen the quality of education that they receive. This is a good bill. I look forward to working with Members of both parties to see it become law.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise. The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. WALZ of Minnesota) having assumed the chair, Mr. PASTOR, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4137) to amend and extend the Higher Education Act of 1965, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

PERMISSION TO REDUCE TIME FOR ELECTRONIC VOTING DURING FURTHER CONSIDERATION
OF H.R. 4137

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that, during further consideration of H.R. 4137 pursuant to House Resolution 956, the Chair may reduce to 2 minutes the minimum time for electronic voting under clause 6 of rule XVIII and clauses 8 and 9 of rule XX.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

COLLEGE OPPORTUNITY AND AFFORDABILITY ACT OF 2007

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 956 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 4137.

□ 1305

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4137) to amend and extend the Higher Education Act of 1965, and for other purposes, with Mr. PASTOR in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HINOJOSA) had 10½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. KELLER) had 16 minutes remaining.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. FOSSELLA).

Mr. FOSSELLA. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to call attention to two provisions in this legislation, one in the manager's amendment and one in the underlying legislation passed in the Education and Labor Committee. The first provision allows colleges and universities to apply for a non-Federal matching grant for fire prevention technologies through an already established program via the Department of Education. These funds will be used to professionally install fire prevention devices in student housing, dormitories, and other buildings on campus. More people are alive today, we know, Mr. Chairman, because of fire detection, and this provision will help prevent fires in college housing and save many lives in the process.

We don't need to be reminded of, for example, Seton Hall University several years ago that had a devastating fire in one of the college buildings that resulted in student deaths. The last thing, I think, a parent wants to discover or hear is that their child was injured or, worse, killed in a fire while away at college.

The other provision was included in the manager's amendment with the help of Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON. The provision will provide colleges and universities with additional funds to acquire security cameras, intrusion detection sensors, and other technologies to protect students, faculty, and campus visitors. Allowing colleges and universities the opportunity to use these funds will provide the higher education community with a safer environment, again, one where parents can go to bed at night not worrying whether or not their children are safe so far away from home.

As we all have colleges and universities, chances are, throughout the country in our districts, whether St. John's University in Staten Island or Wagner College, we all know that this funding and these provisions will go a long way to help their campuses become more secure and more safe.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recognize a very well-recognized member of our Education and Labor Committee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BISHOP) for 2 minutes.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. I want to thank Chairman MILLER and Chairman HINOJOSA and Ranking Member MCKEON and Ranking Member KELLER for their good and bipartisan work on this bill. This is, in fact, a bipartisan effort. It passed out of the Education Committee by a unanimous vote, and I think that that suggests that this is a very good product. It closely resembles the Senate bill, so we should be able to conference it quickly, and it continues the strong work that this Congress has done on a bipartisan basis to improve access and affordability for higher education.

We have twice now, on a bipartisan basis, saved the SEOG program and the Perkins loan program. We have increased the Pell Grant maximum, and we have cut interest rates in half.

Let me just go over a couple of the high points of the bill.

It strengthens the Perkins loan program, a loan program that the administration seems determined to kill but has broad bipartisan support in this Congress. We've increased the maximums that students may borrow. We also have mandated that the assignment of the proceeds of defaulted loans that are collected by the department will reverse back to the campus revolving loan funds so that those loan funds will remain fully funded. It increases the cohort default rate window so that the default rate is now measured over a 3-year period as opposed to a 2-year period. That will protect students and it will also provide greater accountability and stewardship of taxpayer funds. It restricts the Secretary's authority with respect to negotiated rule-making on accreditation standards, and this is important as many believe that an effort is underway to federalize education, and we believe that these aspects of higher education are best left to higher education professionals. It reinstates the Federal role in supporting cooperative education. It simplifies the FAFSA process. It has very clear language on transfer of credit. And it incorporates the full provisions of our Student Loan Sunshine Act.

So from every vantage point, this is a first-rate piece of work, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TIM MURPHY).

Mr. TIM MURPHY of Pennsylvania. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

And I would also like to thank Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for assistance in putting a very important part into this bill.

Universities have no trouble finding parents when it comes time to ask for the tuition check. And, sadly, schools can find parents when tragedies occur, such as Virginia Tech, when it comes time to call a parent to give them bad news on what happened to their student. But one of the greatest fears parents have is their students' safety while they are at the university or college. And a while ago, when a gunman killed 32 people and wounded others, it was just one of the tragedies that occurs on campus. There are many other stories as well.

In my district in Pennsylvania, Charles and Debi Mahoney lost their son, Chuck, to suicide. And as he suffered from depression, his fraternity brothers, his ex-girlfriend, and college therapist, et cetera, all knew he was in danger and warned the college. But a legal barrier under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, known as FERPA, prevented the school from notifying Chuck's parents, who could have gotten him the help he needed.

Unfortunately, Chuck's story is not unusual. Each day an average of three college students commit suicide. While in college, 11 percent of men and 9 percent of women consider suicide. While they may not all act on their thoughts, we need to ensure schools are able to contact parents to get them the help they need not only for the safety of the child but also of others on campus.

Parents may be in the best position to help students suffering from significant mental illness by providing emotional support, medical history, coordinating care with various mental health and medical professionals, and long-term follow-up. Parents will be around long after the school is gone.

Today we are breaking down the legal barrier preventing schools from communicating with parents. Section 865 of the bill before us today is modeled after the Mental Health Security for America's Families in Education Act, H.R. 2220, which I authored. It will prevent future campus tragedies by requiring the Secretary of Education to clarify FERPA so schools can contact parents when a student is at risk of suicide, homicide, or physical assault. It will also protect schools acting in good faith from liability.

This is a good bill that will make college campuses safer. It will give families peace of mind.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recognize a former Cornell College professor and now member of the Education and Labor Committee, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LOEBSACK), for 2 minutes.

Mr. LOEBSACK. Mr. Chairman, I think I will probably speak just 1 minute, but thank you. I appreciate that very much.

As a long-time political science teacher at Cornell College in Mount Vernon, Iowa, I am proud to join in support of this bipartisan legislation. I know the college system well. In addition to my teaching experience, I have visited the colleges and universities throughout Iowa's Second District. I have heard firsthand the struggles students face. By expanding the year-round Pell Grant, the students I've met with, especially at Iowa's community colleges like Kirkwood and Indian Hills, will be able to expedite their studies, enter the workforce sooner, and achieve the American Dream.

I am also pleased to see many rural education provisions in this bill. In Iowa, 46 percent of schools are in rural areas, and they serve close to 170,000 students. Iowa's rural education system is impressive, but we should be doing more to give rural students the resources they need to succeed.

This legislation makes college more affordable and accessible to students, and I strongly support it and in no small measure because, again, of the bipartisan support that so many folks on this committee have demonstrated.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recognize my friend and colleague, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MCCARTHY) for 1½ minutes.

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. I thank the gentleman from Texas.

I stand in strong support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. Our Nation's future is in our education, and we must ensure our students have access to affordable higher education that will prepare them to excel in the global economy. I want to thank Chairman MILLER and his staff for all the hard work that they did to get this bipartisan bill out of committee and to the floor and also to Ranking Member MCKEON. I would also like to thank the chairman for including some key priorities of mine.

The legislation authorizes Project GRAD USA as an ongoing Federal program. This national program has successfully increased the number of low-income students to attend college and earn degrees. We are also providing opportunities for nurses as our Nation faces a severe nursing shortage by creating programs to increase the number of nursing students and nurse educators. Degrees also from rabbinical schools which will be able to continue to be recognized at the equivalency of a bachelor's degree.

We all understand the need for increased campus security. This legislation will improve current campus safety policies to ensure students are protected and will include improvements to emergency response policies and whistle-blower protections for students.

Career and technical schools will offer a great alternative to traditional 4-year colleges and are especially helpful to students in my district.

By passing this bill, we will improve current law for career colleges and technical school students by providing students with more opportunity to attend these vital institutions and enter the global economy with marketable skills.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague for yielding.

I start with these basic truisms: that higher education is not a luxury, it is a public good; that access to higher education is critical for maintaining our global competitiveness; that many of our economic competitors overseas invest more in higher education institutions than we do; and that research shows that 80 percent of the 1.7 million new jobs expected to be created by the end of the decade will be occupations requiring a higher-education degree.

I believe the Federal Government has a significant role in the very earliest part of a child's education, prekindergarten, providing grants to incentivize our local communities to begin to think about educating our very, very young, and that it has a requirement to make sure that young people in our schools don't fall through the cracks or gaping holes. But I am absolutely certain from my heart that the Federal Government needs to play a much more significant role in higher education.

I, as a Member of Congress, have opportunities at community meetings to meet with constituents like all of you do. And I will never forget, about 5 years after I was elected, a young woman came to me and said, I want to tell you a story, and I was waiting until my youngest brother graduated from graduate school. She said, my father died when I was 12 years old, and I am the oldest of seven children. She said, my mother was a school teacher. She said, my mother had one determination, that we would all graduate not just with a university college degree but with advanced degrees, all seven. And she said, just a few weeks ago, my youngest brother did, in fact, graduate. She said, there is a doctor of medicine in my family, a doctor of philosophy at a university, a lawyer, a school teacher with advanced degrees, and I am forgetting the other three what they had. But they all had advanced degrees. And this was someone who knew the value of education, a school teacher.

I am continually reminded about the impact of what we did with our GIs after World War II and the stimulation this had for our economy. And I think of countries like Ireland today that are providing free education, advanced-degree education, and what it has done for their economy.

To end, this young woman with six younger siblings, all with advanced degrees, said, I can't say they are happier, but I can tell you this, that they have far more options, that their income is higher, they have more choices, and they can make a greater contribution to society.

I hope that we can continue to work on this legislation. I think it is a major step forward.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recognize a distinguished member of our Education and Labor Committee, Mr. ROB ANDREWS from New Jersey, for 1½ minutes.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I congratulate Chairman HINOJOSA, Chairman MILLER, Mr. KELLER and Mr. MCKEON for their excellent work on this bill.

In the global economic competition, the difference between winning and losing is having skilled workers or not having skilled workers. This bill takes a major step forward in making sure that we have skilled workers, that America puts its best team on the field at all times.

There are two specific areas I commend the leadership of the committee for including in this bill. The first has to do with autistic men and women. A lot of autistic children make great strides in their lives and they become very able, very empowered people. But then they graduate from high school, and they age out of their education, and the supportive, intensive learning environment that they need is very often no longer there.

This bill has provisions to help establish residential, high-quality, post-secondary programs for autistic men and for autistic women.

This bill says to the men and women who wear the military uniform of our country that when they come back to campus, they will be welcome. An anomaly in the existing law says that a young man or a young woman who is deployed and goes overseas and fights for our country, when he or she comes back, they may be treated as a returning student, has had a gap in their student life, which means they go to the back of the list for enrollment in special courses, for financial aid and for many other purposes. This bill corrects that and recognizes that when a young man or woman serves, they should be rewarded. We should all support this bill on a bipartisan basis.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time we will continue to reserve the balance of our time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, at this time I am pleased to recognize the honorable gentleman from Massachusetts, Congressman JOHN TIERNEY, for 2 minutes.

Mr. TIERNEY. I thank the chairman. This is all about access and affordability. It is foremost in people's minds, whether you speak to people in the business community, you talk to academics or elected representatives or families and students, they are talking about opportunity for individuals, talking about the national economic security of this country and our need for innovators, for leaders, for people in the science, technology, engineering and math fields, and in business we are talking about global competitiveness, the need to have people with more than just a high school degree in order to lead our businesses and fill our jobs.

This bill addresses these concerns, and it builds on last summer's college cost reduction bill which put $20 billion in over the next 5 years, additional Pell Grants to get more students into college, and reduction of loan interest rates so students will be able to afford those loans they were forced to take.

This present bill speaks to cost containment. It has a provision in there for public higher education, for maintenance of efforts. This is a partnership between the Federal Government, between families and the students that are involved, and States. This maintenance of effort will no longer allow States to supplant their obligation by taking Federal aid or raising tuition and fees. They will have to step up to the plate on a rather modest level required in order to get the benefit of getting aid that other people would get.

This bill also has a provision for all universities and colleges that if they keep their tuition and fee increases below the higher education price index, then they will be rewarded for additional grant money on their campuses to distribute among Pell student recipients; and if they make the promise over 5 years and keep it, they will get additional bonuses as well.

We have a "service pays" provision in there for people that are going into public service jobs, from prosecutors to teachers going into difficult areas, to health care and public health people, loan forgiveness of up to $10,000 to smooth their way on that basis, alternative paths to teaching. For those people that are in mid-career and decide they want to teach, we have offered partnerships to make that happen to enhance our Teacher Corps. We have endowment information so we can find whether or not the public policy of allowing people to not pay taxes if they donate to schools actually has a result of going into education.

All of these things are important. This is a good bill. We respect the fact that it came out of committee in unanimous form, and we look forward to support on the floor.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. McMORRIS RODGERS).

Mrs. McMORRIS RODGERS. Mr. Chairman, our economy is growing more diverse and increasingly global. American competitiveness and ingenuity is dependent on a skilled workforce that reflects the needs of our economy.

As the first in my family to graduate from college, I realize the value and importance of a good education. It is the doorway to success and a critical piece to making our country more competitive in a global economy. Countless studies also detail how dramatically income increases with each successive achievement in education from high school, college, to advanced degrees.

As someone who is still paying off student loans, I understand the challenges faced by parents and children who watch the dramatic increases in the cost of a college education. While I don't agree with every provision in this bill, I am pleased that we have a bill that aims to improve America's competitiveness, seeks to make college more affordable, and cracks down on fraudulent practices of diploma mills where people manufacture fake diplomas.

First, this bill includes language that I have been working on for a couple of years to improve our competitiveness. Today, we often hear that over half of China's undergraduate degrees are in math, science, or engineering. Unfortunately, only 16 percent of American undergraduates pursue these fields. In 2002, foreign nationals accounted for over half of all engineering and math doctorates and almost half of all computer science doctorates.

To meet the demands of an increasingly technological, advanced global marketplace, we must improve the training and the education of our Nation. Through the Byrd Honors Scholarships, we will refocus the program to award graduate and postgraduate scholarships to U.S. students studying math, science, engineering, or computer science providing they agree to work in the field for 5 years following their graduation. In addition, this bill includes a compromise to incorporate adjunct content specialists into the Byrd scholarship program to provide grants to schools to recruit adjunct content specialists from experts in math, science, and critical foreign languages.

I have worked diligently on this since coming to Congress. We need to allow qualified professionals to take time out of their career and enter the classroom and share the real-world experience. I believe our education can be improved if we allow smart and successful people, like a Bill Gates, to spend some time in the classroom.

However, we are not simply seeing a shortage of engineers and scientists. America must focus and train all demand skills, including home-grown welders, plumbers, auto mechanics, lab technicians, doctors, nurses, and pharmacy techs. In my eastern Washington district, manufacturers are turning away job applicants because they do not have the math skills needed.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL).

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Chairman, I support H.R. 4137. It is a great piece of legislation. I commend Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON and all the members of the committee. I think that this is truly visionary with regard to the cost, restoring integrity and accountability, and expanding college access.

I am the first member of my family to have the opportunity to go to college. I deeply appreciate what the committee has done. There is one part of the bill I want to provide emphasis to and that is the fire safety part. I have worked on this issue for over 7 years. I was deeply involved in the issue after the horrific fire at Seton Hall University in South Orange in 2000. We lost three students. Fifty-eight other students were injured severely.

This horrible tragedy made it clear that something needed to be done to educate students, their families, the faculty and the staff about the dangers of fires on campuses; and that is why I introduced the Campus Fire Safety Right to Know Act. Parents and students have a right to know about the school's campus fire safety policies and records.

I ask full support of this legislation, and I thank the committee members again for the great work they did.

I rise today in strong support for the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, H.R. 4137, and I commend Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for bringing this worthy measure to the floor.

This comprehensive, bipartisan bill will reauthorize the Higher Education Act through FY 2012 while addressing concerns about the cost of education, restoring integrity and accountability to student loan programs, expanding college access and support for low income and minority students, and strengthening our workforce and competitiveness.

In addition, H.R. 4137 addresses an issue that I have made a priority for over 8 years, which is vital to the safety and security of American college students—fire safety on our college campuses.

The statistics relating to fire safety on college campuses are startling. Each year, thousands of fires rage through the campuses and off-campus housing of our colleges and universities.

I became deeply involved in the issue of campus fire safety after experiencing the terrible aftermath of a catastrophic fire at Seton Hall University in South Orange, New Jersey, in 2000. That fire killed three young freshmen and wounded 58 other students in a dorm on campus.

This horrible tragedy made it clear that something needed to be done to educate students, their families, faculty, and staff about the danger of fires on the campuses of our colleges and universities.

As such, I introduced the "Campus Fire Safety Right to Know Act," a version of which is included in the bill we are considering today.

The campus fire safety reporting requirement in H.R. 4137 mandates that colleges and universities provide prospective and current students and parents with a report of the school's campus fire safety policies and records.

Educating students about fire safety during their time in school will have a strong impact on the choices they make in the future. If we can influence what they learn, we can create a more fire-safe generation for tomorrow and potentially save thousands of lives.

I want to once again state my strong support for this legislation. As the first member of my family to attend college, I applaud the Chairman and Ranking Member for their dedication to making the dream of a college education a reality for so many Americans who otherwise would not have had that chance.

□ 1330

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida has 6½ minutes. The gentleman from California has 1 minute.

The gentleman from California has the right to close.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Let me just compare where we are today in Pell Grants versus where we were in 2000 when I was elected to show you why I have so much optimism about the good things being done in this bill and others.

In 2000, there were 3.9 million students getting Pell Grants. This year, 5½ million students are getting Pell Grants. In 2000, the maximum award was $3,300 per student. This year, it is about 4,800 per student, and based on the College Cost Reduction and Access Act that President Bush signed into law in September, it is going to go up to $5,400 in the next couple years. In 2000, our overall Pell Grant funding was $7.6 billion. Now it is double that amount.

We have made a substantial investment in the lives of these young people to make sure that every single child in America, rich or poor, has the opportunity to get a college education. We have reason for optimism. We are working together in a bipartisan manner on these higher education issues, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I have 1 minute and I just have one speaker left.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I would be happy to yield 2 minutes to my colleague on the other side, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Chairman, I thank my good friend and colleague from California for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act before us today. As a former member of the Education and Workforce Committee, I am proud of the bipartisan work that the committee has done on this legislation. In fact, it is one of the most important pieces of legislation we will be considering all year, because we are talking about access and affordability for more for students to be able to go and develop the skills they need to be competitive in the global marketplace.

I also want to especially thank a number of individuals who helped include in this reauthorization the Realtime Writers Act, which is vitally important. In the 1996 Telecom Act, we mandated that every television station had to have closed captioning for the hearing-impaired community. The problem is we are not producing enough students with those real-time captioning skills in order to meet that mandate.

Furthermore, virtually every courthouse throughout America is experiencing vast shortages of official court reporters, who are the guardians of our public record, and yet we are not producing the students in order to meet that pent-up demand and pursue that noble and important career.

I want to thank Representative ANDREWS, who was helpful in steering this and making it a part of the Higher Education Act. Mr. REGULA was a co-sponsor of the original legislation with me. Senator HARKIN has been the leader and champion on the Senate side to promote this bill. And I thank them for their support as well as the terrific work of the National Court Reporters Association in educating our colleagues.

I also want to commend Representatives HARE and LOEBSACK for the amendment that they offered and got adopted in this legislation that would provide competitive grants for rural leadership training skills for superintendents and principals throughout the country.

As those on the committee are well aware, we are facing a demographic challenge, with over 50 percent of the superintendents and principals about to retire in this country in the next 5 years. Not only is quality teaching in the classroom important, but also the quality of leadership in schools and school districts around the country is vitally important as to how well those schools are going to perform for our students.

So, again, I commend the committee for the work product that they have before us today, the bipartisan work that they have been able to do, and I encourage my colleagues to support this reauthorization.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

For years, Republicans have fought on behalf of students and families to make college more affordable. Now our cause is bipartisan and our vision for reform is the centerpiece of comprehensive Higher Education Act reauthorization.

For students and families grappling with rising college costs, this bill establishes college affordability comparison tools to help put cost increases into perspective. Students will be able to search, sort, and compare key cost indicators for every school in the country. We will identify institutions that are the most costly, the least costly, and those with the fastest rising costs. And for schools engaging in a pattern of extraordinary high cost increases, we demand greater disclosure and concrete steps to identify inefficiencies and fix them. This legislation reflects Republican principles for reform, including financial aid simplification, protection of student privacy, safeguards for taxpayer dollars, emphasis on competitiveness, and many more positive reforms.

We would not have this bill before us today without the hard work of staff on both sides of the aisle. I want to thank Amy Jones in particular for her tireless efforts to ensure this bill includes meaningful college cost reforms. I also want to recognize Brad Thomas and Susan Ross on my staff, along with outgoing staff director Vic Klatt and his successor, Sally Stroup, a higher education policy expert in her own right.

I would also like to recognize Chairman MILLER's staff, including Gaby Gomez, Julie Radocchia, and Jeff Appel.

Throughout the day, we will consider a number of amendments. Some would make the bill stronger, while others are unquestionably bad policy that would send us backward. However, it is the give-and-take of a bipartisan legislative process that has produced the strong bill before us, and I am hopeful that at the end of the day we will be able to secure strong, bipartisan passage of this bill, to make our higher education system more accessible and affordable.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentlewoman from New Hampshire (Ms. SHEA-PORTER), a member of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman is recognized for 1 minute.

Ms. SHEA-PORTER. I thank Chairman MILLER for his leadership on this bipartisan legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my strong support for H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. Last year, the Democratically led 110th Congress cut interest rates on student loans in half over a 5-year period in order to help American families pay for college.

This year we have continued our commitment to the poor and to the middle class by expanding college access. College loans are getting more expensive. By working and through student loans, I was able to attend college full time, but today, many students can only attend part time because of financial or family obligations. They also have to attend summer sessions so they can get through college more quickly. This legislation will help them by expanding Pell Grant eligibility for these part-time, year-round students.

One of this Congress' priorities is to make it easier to earn a college education. This legislation honors our commitment. As a member of the Education and Labor Committee, I proudly support this legislation and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007. I would like to thank Chairman GEORGE MILLER, Ranking Member MCKEON, Chairman HINOJOSA, and Ranking Member KELLER for their work on this bill, which goes a long way toward making higher education attainable for all.

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007 contains several helpful provisions for students. First, the bill increases the authorized maximum Pell Grant award from $5,800 to $9,000. In addition, the bill further decreases student interest rates. The bill also includes a feasibility study on giving students more flexibility in refinancing their loans by making student loans more like home mortgages, in which borrowers can switch back and forth from variable rates to fixed rates as the market's conditions change.

H.R. 4137 increases support for Historically Black Colleges and Universities and Minority Serving Institutions.

This bill also helps schools affected by a disaster. An Education Disaster and Emergency Relief Loan Program is created to provide emergency loan funds to schools after a Federal declared major disaster or emergency, including those schools affected by the 2005 Gulf Hurricanes. Additionally, the bill requires the Secretary to create a disaster relief plan for schools and LEAs adversely affected by disasters.

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007 also addresses several additional critical issues. The bill provides loan forgiveness for areas of national need, including early childhood educators, child welfare workers, school counselors, and mental health professionals. In addition, the bill creates a grant program, to help nonprofit organizations, in collaboration with higher education institutions and their students, that seek to promote cultural diversity in the entertainment media industry. Finally, the bill creates a new competitive grant program to strengthen and develop college-level programs in the rapidly growing field of modeling and simulation.

I am pleased that the bill also includes a study to be performed by GAO on whether any race, ethnicity, or gender biases are present in the design of standardized tests used for admission to institutions of higher learning. This language should enable GAO to acquire data from the testing companies because of the link between the tests and the federal money that the schools receive who use these admissions tests.

H.R. 4137 also seeks to make campuses more safe by creating a National Center for Campus Public Safety to train campus public safety agencies, encourage research to strengthen college safety and security, and serve as a clearinghouse for the dissemination of relevant campus public safety information. The bill also requires the Department of Education to conform hate crime reporting requirements to FBI guidelines to more accurately report incidents of hate crimes on our campuses.

Finally, the bill includes several positive changes to the TRIO programs, which provide assistance to low-income and first generation college-going students. The bill eliminates unreasonable evaluation requirements imposed on Upward Bound programs by the Department of Education without requiring a recompetition. In addition, the bill creates an appeals process for TRIO programs to ensure that the grantmaking process is fair and equitable.

One item not addressed in H.R. 4137 is the provision under current law that prohibits students who are convicted of certain drug offenses from receiving federal student financial aid. This provision unfairly targets poor and minority students, increases long-term costs to society, creates double jeopardy for students who have already paid their debt to society, and lacks evidence of effectiveness. For these reasons and others, I hope that we can address this critical access issue as this bill moves through the legislative process.

For the foregoing reasons, I support the bill and urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, today—in a bipartisan vote—this House will pass critical legislation designed to expand college access and to make higher education more affordable for millions of American students.

This legislation, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, builds on the College Cost Reduction Act—legislation enacted last year that, among other things, increased the maximum Pell Grant to $5,400 over five years and cut interest rates in half on subsidized student loans, saving the average student $4,400 over the life of the loan.

There is a direct connection between our Nation's future prosperity and our ability to compete and succeed in a global marketplace that now relies more on brains than brawn. An educated workforce is absolutely indispensable in this information age—and this legislation represents an important step in expanding college access to more Americans.

In particular, I want to thank Chairman MILLER, Ranking Member MCKEON and the members of the Education and Labor Committee for their hard work on this bill, which was reported out of committee on a 45 to 0 vote.

This legislation reauthorizes the Higher Education Act through fiscal year 2012, and, among other things, it will encourage colleges to rein in price increases, providing incentives—such as additional need-based aid—to colleges to hold down price increases. It also will require the Department of Education to create “higher education price increase watch lists” that report the full price of tuition and fees, as well as the cost of room and board for students living on campus. And, it seeks to restore integrity and accountability to the student loan program, requiring institutions and lenders to adopt strict codes of conduct, and providing students with full and fair information about their borrowing options.

Furthermore, this bill will make textbook costs more manageable by providing students with advance information on textbook pricing so that they can plan for expenses and by ensuring that colleges and faculty have full textbook pricing information when making purchasing decisions.

Just today, the Washington Post noded in an editorial: “Textbook prices have been rising rapidly in recent decades, increasing at more than 2½ times the rate of inflation from 1986 to 2004, according to a Government Accountability Office report.” The Post continued: “At the University of Maryland at College Park, the average student spends more than $1,000 a year on textbooks—equal to 20 percent of tuition.”

Mr. Chairman, it not only is imperative to expand college access, but also to do what we can to ensure that our students do not graduate with crushing debt that haunts them for decades.

In addition, this important bill will make college more affordable for low-income and non-traditional students by allowing students to receive Pell Grant scholarship aid for the entire year. The bill also creates a new scholarship program for active duty military personnel and family members, including children and spouses of active duty military service members and veterans.

Finally, let me say that I am pleased that this legislation includes provisions that Congressman BERMAN and I worked on that require institutions to disclose to students and employees their policies related to copyright infringement and a description of actions that institutions take to prevent and detect illegal file sharing.

Mr. Chairman, this a good, thoughtful piece of legislation. And, I urge members on both sides on the aisle to vote for it.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. As a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, I had the privilege of working on this legislation, which will have a large impact on the students, veterans, and workers in the rural communities of my Congressional district.

Today's legislation includes several provisions I authored to increase enrollment of graduates from rural high schools in institutions of higher education, help rural schools recruit qualified teachers and administrators, and develop a strong workforce in rural America.

One-third of K–12 schools in the United States are located in rural areas and are responsible for educating almost 10 million children. Unfortunately, these schools struggle to recruit highly qualified teachers, putting our rural students at a disadvantage.

Teachers in rural schools often teach several subjects to multiple grade levels and play many different roles in the school, such as counselor, coach, lunchroom attendant, janitor, administrator, and others. Therefore, in order for rural schools to recruit qualified teachers, colleges of education must teach students the skills needed to work in rural America. My provision achieves this goal by providing incentives to colleges of education to add a rural focus to their curriculum, and encourage students to complete their required student teaching hours in rural schools.

I am also proud that Title VIII of the bill includes the College and University Rural Education (CURE) Act, which I introduced with my colleagues, Representatives DAVID LOESACK and ZACK SPACE. A variety of studies show that fewer high school graduates from rural schools continue on to college than from suburban schools. This unfortunate reality leads to difficulties in training a qualified workforce in rural America.

Now, more than ever, our Nation needs a skilled workforce of teachers, health care workers, information technologists, and engineers willing to live and work in rural communities in order to create and support a competitive workforce, and to enhance the quality of life for Americans living in rural areas.

The CURE Act responds to this call by establishing three grant programs to increase enrollment of rural high school graduates in institutions of higher education; increase economic development partnerships to create an employment pipeline from higher education institutions to the workforce; and increase the quality of life in rural areas by providing training for professions of need in rural areas.

Finally, I am pleased today's bill includes another provision I developed to help the dislocated workers of Galesburg, IL, and other trade impacted communities across the Nation. This provision allows workers to indicate on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) that they have lost their job and would like to use current year income when applying for financial aid. This will ensure that dislocated workers receive appropriate financial support, directly resulting in greater access to training opportunities for workers who lost their jobs.

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act builds upon the work we started in the College Cost Reduction and Access Act to make college more affordable and accessible to all Americans. I thank Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for their leadership in moving these bills through our committee and quickly to the floor. I urge all my colleagues to support the Manager's Amendment and underlining bill.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the expanded access to higher education that individuals with intellectual disabilities will have under the College Opportunity and Affordability Act being considered on the House floor today.

As many of my colleagues know, my son Alex, who just turned 14, has Down syndrome. As a student at J.L. Long Middle School in Dallas, Texas, Alex has made significant academic progress and received many of the same education opportunities as his peers as a result of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. While IDEA will provide invaluable education for Alex throughout his K–12 education, I also realize that IDEA will not be there to serve his needs after high school.

Currently, the education opportunities for most individuals with intellectual disabilities end with secondary school. Unfortunately, most remain unemployed and completely dependent.

As the parent of an individual with intellectual disabilities, I have worked to ensure that individuals with disabilities have access to the resources and opportunities to develop self-reliance and life skills, enabling them to achieve their potential and to contribute to our communities.

Mr. Chairman, in 2006, I authored legislative language to grant students with intellectual disabilities access to Federal work study funds for enrollment in comprehensive post-secondary education programs.

I am very pleased that the College Opportunity and Affordability Act not only includes my work study language, but it also builds on those efforts by providing access to Pell Grants and Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants. By providing access to Federal student aid, we will be empowering individuals with intellectual disabilities across our Nation to learn, develop, and achieve to the best of their abilities.

Additionally, I am pleased that this legislation will establish a model education demonstration for a comprehensive transition and post-secondary program for students with intellectual disabilities. By awarding competitive grants to higher education institutions, the development of this model demonstration will establish important first steps for the creation and expansion of additional transition and postsecondary programs for students with intellectual disabilities across our Nation.

To ensure the integrity and success of these groundbreaking programs for students with intellectual disabilities, this legislation also authorizes a coordinating center that will provide technical assistance, evaluation, and recommendations for the development of accreditation standards.

Mr. Chairman, the establishment of these vital programs will represent a historic victory not only for individuals with intellectual disabilities, but also for their families and for the educators and advocates who have worked diligently to establish these post-secondary education opportunities.

In particular, I would like to recognize Stephanie Lee and Madeleine Will with the National Down Syndrome Society for their invaluable expertise and support to ensure that dreams of student aid and transitional education programs for individuals with intellectual disabilities become a reality.

Today, we can ensure that individuals with intellectual disabilities have access to the educational resources and opportunities that can enable them to lead a very fulfilling life.

Mr. FARR. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007 and the manager's amendment offered by House Education and Labor Committee Chairman, Representative GEORGE MILLER.

It is globally accepted that the higher education system in the United States is the envy of the academic world. Paths to college often have different origins but always have the same destination, to enlighten our minds and expand our horizons.

A path that often goes unnoticed but traveled by a hidden portion of our population is the path of those with dyslexia. Dyslexia is often the butt of many jokes, but for those affected by it, it is anything but funny. Reading and writing are two fundamental skills that are essential to how we learn from the time we enter school to the end of our lives. For people who suffer from dyslexia, like myself, our ability to learn by traditional teaching methods is more challenging, and dyslexic children often fall behind at an early age. Imagine trying to follow along with your classmates and simply not understanding why you cannot read at the same level as everyone else. Being young, you don't know that you have this condition. Your teacher, who has not been trained to identify dyslexia, assumes that you may be slow or lazy. The longer the problem goes unidentified, the greater the challenge to overcome and adapt. As a young child with dyslexia, I quickly lost interest in school and became a class disruption. If it had not been for a science teacher who encouraged my interest in the sciences, who knows where I would be today? In science I had the opportunity to learn with my hands and not solely through a bunch of jumbled words in a textbook. This newfound appreciation for learning spilled over into other subjects and inspired me to succeed every day. Most students with dyslexia go unidentified and are more likely to struggle in early grades, which may mean they stay back a grade, lose interest in their studies, can become increasingly disruptive in class and may be sent to alternative schools for troubled youths or special education classes. All this because our teachers are not trained to recognize dyslexia in the classroom.

As part of the manager's amendment to H.R. 4137, a study by the Center for Education at the National Academy of Sciences will examine teacher education programs at institutes of higher education to determine if teachers are adequately prepared to meet the needs of students with reading and language processing challenges, including dyslexia.

For too long, the Department of Education has resisted efforts to increase awareness and training for students with dyslexia. We owe it not only to our children but also to our teachers and parents to fully recognize dyslexia as an impediment to accessing their full potential. A simple recognition of this condition can change a child's life forever and help set them on a path to be a productive member of society. I was lucky, but a good education policy should not be based upon a collective crossing of fingers.

Mr. Chairman, I again urge my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 4137 and the manager's amendment offered by the House Education and Labor Committee Chairman, and my good friend, Congressman GEORGE MILLER.

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to bring attention to an anomaly in Federal higher education policy that I have been trying to fix. It has been Federal policy for many years to provide incentives to individuals to work in either high-growth professions, high-need areas, or both. These incentives have included a variety of loan forgiveness and loan cancellation programs. In fact, this chamber just created a new program for public sector employees last year.

The Federal Perkins Loan Program is a relatively small student loan program targeted at low-income individuals. It provides these individuals with low fixed-rate student loans. Additionally, the Federal Government is willing to cancel these particular loans for borrowers who work in high-growth professions and/or high-needs settings for at least 5 years.

Unfortunately, when my office examined the Federal Family Education Loan Program and the Direct Loan Program to see if these programs were treating their borrowers in a similar fashion, we found inconsistencies. One such inconsistency is the fact that individuals who borrow Perkins Loans, obtain a degree in speech-language pathology, and work in a Title I school for 5 years can seek to have a portion of their loan cancelled. The net result is an increase in individuals providing necessary services to children who require specialized care. However, both the FFEL and Direct Loan programs do not treat school-based speech-language pathologists like their special education teacher colleagues with whom they work side-by-side with as they provide valuable education services to children with disabilities. The teachers receive the incentive; the speech-language pathologists do not.

Four years after the re-authorization of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, while we are in the midst of a re-authorization of the No Child Left Behind Act, and while we know how critical the academic performance of children with disabilities affects a school or school district, I think it is unwise and unfair to deprive these children of the opportunity to receive the special education services they need to succeed.

I will work with my colleagues on the House Education and Labor Committee and our counterparts in the Senate to try to resolve this matter. I look forward to discussing this matter with them as we proceed to a conference with the Senate.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, H.R. 4137. In passing this reauthorization today, the 110th Congress is once again demonstrating its commitment to strengthening America's economy by increasing access to higher education.

In the lead-up to the 2006 election Democrats made a pledge to make increased access to a quality education a priority in the 110th Congress. The passage of this reauthorization today is just the latest example of our making good on this promise.

Titled the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, H.R. 4137 reauthorizes one of President Lyndon Baines Johnson's key Great Society programs, the Higher Education Act of 1965. The purpose of this legislation from the outset always has been to strengthen the educational resources of our colleges and universities and to provide financial assistance for students in postsecondary and higher education. H.R. 4137 builds on this strong foundation.

A college education continues to be the best path to enter the middle class. But ever-increasing tuition costs and other obstacles are putting a college degree further out of reach for America's students. In addition to rising tuition, students and their families face an overly complex federal student aid application process and a student loan industry tainted by conflicts of interest and mired in corrupt lending practices. H.R. 4137 addresses these problems by encouraging colleges to rein in price increases, ensuring that states maintain their commitments to higher education funding, and providing students and families with consumer-friendly information on college pricing and the factors driving tuition increases.

The legislation strengthens provisions previously approved by the House to avoid conflicts of interest in the student loan programs. The bill's new provisions also include requiring better consumer disclosures and protections on private student loans.

In the first 50 legislative hours of the 110th Congress, the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives passed H.R. 5, the College Student Relief Act, which cut the interest rates in half on certain subsidized student loans over the next five years. In July 2007 we passed H.R. 2669, the College Cost Reduction Act, the single largest increase in college aid since the GI bill. Today, with H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, we build on these efforts and once again demonstrate that the 110th Congress is building a better future for all Americans.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R.

4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, introduced by my distinguished colleague from California, Representative GEORGE MILLER. This significant piece of legislation provides greater access to colleges and universities, making higher education affordable for all Americans, not just the wealthy.

A quality education continues to be the best pathway to social and economic mobility in this country. As a Member and Senior Whip of the Congressional Black Caucus, I have consistently advocated for the maintenance of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. This legislation will increase funding to Historically Black Colleges and Universities, as well as Hispanic and other minority-serving institutions, and it will expand college access and support for low-income and minority students.

This legislation contains provisions allowing students to receive Pell Grant scholarships year-round, and it increases the Pell Grant maximum to $9,000. In addition, it strengthens college readiness programs, namely the TRIO and GEAR UP college readiness and support programs for low-income and first-generation students. These increases will expand college access for low-income and minority students.

In Texas, over 87,000 African-Americans are incarcerated compared to approximately 48,000 African-Americans attending college or university. The disparity between the percentages of our youth in prison versus the number of young people in college, particularly in the African-American community, is disturbing to say the least. Higher education continues to be one of the main pathways to social and economic mobility, particularly in the African-American and Hispanic communities.

Mr. Chairman, this legislation contains important provisions opening up even wider opportunities for our veterans. Our own Congressman CHARLES RANGEL was enlisted in the Army before even finishing high school. Through the G.I. Bill, he obtained his bachelor's degree and eventually his law degree to become Chairman of Ways and Means. H.R. 4137 goes beyond what the G.I. Bill did for Chairman RANGEL, increasing college aid and housing aid for not only veterans, but their families.

This legislation creates a new scholarship program for active duty military personnel and family members, including children and spouses of active duty military service members or veterans. It establishes support centers to help veterans succeed in college and graduate. Finally, it ensures fairness in student aid and housing aid for veterans, making it easier for them to attend college while also fulfilling their military service duties.

Mr. Chairman, I would also like to express my strong support for an amendment introduced by my distinguished colleague, Congressman DANNY DAVIS, restoring safeguards to student loan borrowers. Mr. Chairman, students who take out loans borrow money as part of their pursuit to better themselves and contribute to the advancement of our Nation and economy. However, current bankruptcy laws apply the same severe standards to student borrowers that it applies to those trying to escape child support payments, alimony, overdue taxes, and criminal fines.

I do not believe those of our sons and daughters should be punished for trying to get an education. All student loans are currently non-dischargeable in bankruptcy, except in cases on a judicial finding of undue hardship (an extremely difficult standard to meet). Under Mr. DAVIS's amendment, government student loans and loans made by nonprofit entities would remain non-dischargeable; other student loans, made by for-profit banks and other lenders, would continue to be non-dischargeable for the first five years after they come due, and after that time they would be treated like other unsecured consumer loans in bankruptcy. Mr. Chairman, I strongly urge my colleagues to support this amendment, and to work to restore bankruptcy protection to private student loans.

Understanding the federal application for federal student aid can be challenging and complex even for the most knowledgeable parent. The College Opportunity and Affordability Act would streamline and simplify the application process giving families the tools they need to properly plan for their college expenses.

This legislation will reform our higher education system ensuring students and their families have the information they need to understand their borrowing options when applying for federal and private loans.

Mr. Chairman, as an active member of the Committee on Homeland Security, I am extremely supportive of the provisions in this legislation that boost campus safety and disaster readiness plans. Last year's tragedy at Virginia Tech has illustrated the horror to which students might be exposed, and natural disasters in recent years have underlined the necessity of having campus disaster plans.

This legislation helps all colleges develop and implement state-of-the-art emergency systems and campus safety plans, and it requires the Department of Education to develop and maintain a disaster plan in preparation for emergencies. In addition, this legislation creates a National Center for Campus Safety at the Department of Justice to work in collaboration with the COPS program. Finally, it establishes a disaster relief loan program, to help schools recover and rebuild in the event of a disaster.

The cost of higher education has risen to the point that it has affected our workforce and our public service sectors. This country needs firefighters, public defenders, law enforcement officials, and educators just as much as it needs doctors and investment brokers. H.R. 4137 would encourage students to enter vital public service jobs by authorizing up to $10,000 in loan forgiveness.

This important piece of legislation gives our youth, our veterans, and our families the opportunity to not only dream of attending college but actually realize that dream. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 4137.

Mr. REICHERT. Mr. Chairman, in today's global, highly competitive economy it is imperative that we create new opportunities for our children and ensure that all students, no matter their age, income, or race, have access to quality, affordable education. I am pleased to rise in support of this important legislation and I'd like to thank Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for bringing this bipartisan bill to the floor so that we may finally make the dream of college a reality for all children.

Last year, an overwhelming majority of my colleagues joined me in supporting the College Cost Reduction Act, which the President signed into law. This was a good first step to addressing the rising cost of college but today we have an opportunity to do so much more.

Education is the lifeblood of a free and democratic society. We have a responsibility to the future prosperity of this great Nation and the rest of the world to ensure that our children have access to the very best education possible—which means controlling costs, strengthening our standards, promoting excellence, and creating new opportunities for previously disadvantaged children. Increasing the maximum Pell Grants and making them available year-round will go a long way towards accomplishing this goal.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, if we are to remain a global economic leader we must continue to invest in science and math education. The foundation of innovation lies in a motivated and well-educated workforce equipped with science, technology, engineering, and math skills. While the U.S. is supporting math and science, the rest of the world is not standing still and many countries are working hard to build their own innovation capacity.

Our inability to provide our students with a premiere or even a basic education in math and science is a threat not only to our economic security, but also to our national security. The Hart-Rudman Commission was convened in 1998 to take a look at threats facing our country's national security over a 25-year period. The final report, released in early 2001, received national attention after 9/11 because it stated that the number one threat facing our country was terrorism, and it predicted that an attack was likely to take place on U.S. soil. But what is not as well known is that the report stated the second biggest threat to our national security was our Nation's inability to educate our own children in math and science. It called for a "recapitalization" effort. Our Nation has benefited and has been living on the intellectual capital that was driven to our shores by Nazism, Communism and poverty in the 20th century. But now, in a global economy, we can no longer rely on the world's minds coming to our country. And this trend coupled with our own deficiencies in education has created a crisis that, according to this report, reaches national security proportions of the highest magnitude.

A great real-world example exists in my own district in Washington State, which exemplifies the importance of science and math education. My district is home to several high-tech companies, including Microsoft. In order to ensure the continued success of Microsoft and other similarly situated companies, we must take steps now to fix our failing math and science programs to make certain they're able to hire the very best and brightest and we don't have to rely on a failing immigration and visa program to coax highly skilled and trained workers from overseas.

I believe we need to continue to emphasize math and science throughout a child's education. During a speech before the National Governor's Association at their 2005 Achieve Summit, Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates said, "In math and science, our 4th graders are among the top students in the world. By 8th grade, they're in the middle of the pack. By 12th grade, U.S. students are scoring near the bottom of all industrialized nations." The need for serious attention and improvements to our math and science education is clear. I am happy to see the committee begin to address this need today through scholarships, grants, and incentive programs to encourage students to pursue careers in math and science.

Every parent wants their child to grow up to have more opportunities and a better life than they had. Providing our children with access to a higher education is integrally linked to the future economic, social, and cultural health of our democracy. I urge all my colleagues to stand up for our children and their future and join me in supporting this legislation.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this fine legislation, and I urge my colleagues to join me in voting to pass it. This is a good bill, and I commend the bipartisan work of the Education and Labor Committee under the leadership of Chairman GEORGE MILLER and Ranking Member BUCK MCKEON.

H.R. 4137 will renew and reauthorize the Higher Education Act for the first time in 10 years. This legislation will expand college access for low-income and minority students by allowing students to receive year-round Pell Grant scholarships and strengthening college readiness initiatives as well as increasing the authorized Pell Grant maximum to $9,000. The bill will streamline the federal student financial aid application.

In addition, H.R. 4137 will create Community Colleges as Partners in Teacher Education grants which will provide needed support to establish teacher education efforts that are aligned with four-year institutions, so students can transition seamlessly from community college to four-year schools. The bill will provide further assistance to community colleges in critical areas such as remedial education, rural development, and nursing education. And H.R. 4137 will make textbook costs more manageable for students by helping them to plan for textbook expenses in advance of each semester.

I also support several useful floor amendments to the bill that will further strengthen this legislation, including the Managers amendment containing the Davis amendment to create a new masters assistance program for HBCUs, including Fayetteville State University in my Congressional District. I also support the Doggett amendment to enable data-matching between the IRS and the Department of Education for the purposes of calculating the Expected Family Contribution when processing financial aid. I support the Edwards/Boyda amendment to provide for in-state tuition for soldiers' dependents like so many families of soldiers at North Carolina's Fort Bragg. And I support the Shuler amendment to authorize a competitive grant program through the Department of Education that would allow institutions of higher education to create longitudinal data systems to efficiently and accurately manage, analyze, disaggregate and use individual student data.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, as the first member of my family to graduate from college, I know firsthand that affordable access to higher education is the key to the American Dream for working families. I am pleased to support this legislation, and I urge my colleagues to join me in voting to pass it.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, we all know that paying for college is often a daunting task for our Nation's students and families. It can sometimes be difficult to calculate the full costs and find ways to meet them. Far too many students graduate with too much debt—debts that can limit their choices and strain their finances. I am proud that this Congress has focused significant attention on this issue.

Last year this Congress passed the largest increase in student assistance since the Montgomery G.I. Bill. That increase was fully paid for by reducing subsidies to banks and lenders. Today, we continue our commitment to increasing access to higher education with the College Opportunity and Affordability Act.

This bill provides transparency and clarity in the often-confusing process that students and families face as they decide how to pay for college. It simplifies the Free Application for Federal Student Aid process and creates a shorter form for low-income families. It instructs the Secretary of Education to create a user-friendly website that centralizes information about schools and costs. It also makes sure that students and parents get easy-to-understand information about the terms and conditions of both federal and private loans.

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act also includes provisions from the House-passed Student Loan Sunshine Act, which requires schools and lenders to adopt strict codes of conduct to avoid conflicts of interest and protect students from aggressive lending practices.

Today's bill also furthers our Competitive Agenda, begun with the America COMPETES Act last year, by creating programs to recruit new science and technology teachers and collaborate with the business community to improve science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) and foreign language education.

It continues our commitment to our Nation's military, creating new scholarships for active duty personnel and their families, providing support for veterans at college, and ensuring that they have fair access to student and housing aid.

I thank the chairman and ranking member for including many of the provisions from the Teach for America Act, a bill that I introduced last year with Mr. CASTLE, Ms. DELAURO, Mr. REGULA, and Mr. SARBANES. These provisions, combined with the amendment to clarify specific authorizing amounts that Mr. CASTLE and I offered today, will allow Teach for America to expand its reach with 8,000 corps members serving 680,000 children in 33 regions around the country.

Mr. Chairman, this bill will increase transparency, put more qualified teachers in our classrooms, and open the doors to college to our Nation's children. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting it today.

Mr. AL GREEN of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my support for H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007.

With each passing day, a college education becomes increasingly important for the success of our workforce while simultaneously becoming more expensive and unattainable. H.R. 4137 would address this unfortunate trend by making a quality post-secondary education more affordable and accessible for all Americans. This legislation includes a number of commendable provisions that will help to reform our higher education system so that it can better serve the needs of students and their families. It offers a comprehensive approach to reducing educational expenses and provides targeted support to groups with the greatest need.

I am particularly pleased with the efforts that have been made to increase access for low-income and minority students. The bill allows Pell grants to be made available based on a year-round enrollment schedule so that low-income and non-traditional students will have the flexibility and resources to obtain a college degree. Additional provisions in the bill will expand funding for minority-serving institutions such as Historically Black Colleges and Universities. There are also measures designed to strengthen the GEAR UP and TRIO college readiness programs so that low-income and first generation students will be adequately prepared.

If we truly wish to enable our students to achieve their full potential, we must not let them be confined by their financial limitations. I support the College Opportunity and Affordability Act so that all Americans will be able to pursue a higher education and achieve the American Dream.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to offer my support for H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. This bill takes significant steps to make the dream of a college education a reality for America's young people, and I am very pleased that we are considering it today. H.R. 4137 addresses a number of aspects of higher education, but there are two provisions in particular that I would like to commend.

First, I am pleased with the inclusion of section 706, which establishes grants for urban-serving universities. Our cities are facing unique challenges that require solutions that are tailored to their needs. Urban secondary schools have higher dropout rates and lower test scores than their suburban and rural counterparts. Urban schools struggle to recruit and retain teachers, especially in areas like mathematics and science. A larger proportion of urban populations are uninsured or underinsured. Urban research universities, like Wichita State University in my district, are well positioned and equipped to find real, meaningful solutions to these issues. They are uniquely qualified to train teachers for urban classrooms. They are able to use their strategic location to develop community-academic partnerships to develop effective treatments for diseases in urban populations, and rectify health disparities in their communities. The magnitude of these issues requires an investment by the Federal Government to encourage urban universities to coordinate, evaluate, and disseminate solutions to key urban problems related to education, community revitalization, and health and quality of life. The grant programs in section 706 are a solid first step towards this end.

Secondly, I am pleased with the promotion of Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics, STEM, fields. Success in these fields is critical to the continued economic dominance that the United States currently enjoys. The United States has the No. 1 economy in the world. For almost two centuries, we have been the envy of the world—a dynamic economy, a hardworking, motivated workforce, truly the land of opportunity where innovation has thrived. That status is changing, however. While our education system is languishing, especially in STEM fields that are so critical to our continued economic growth, China, India, and other nations are preparing for the future. They are educating their students in math, science, and technology and pumping out record numbers of engineers. Language included in this bill will help American students keep pace with their international counterparts.

I urge my colleagues to support these measures in particular, and the underlying bill.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the chairman and his staff for including the Moran-Shays amendment in the manager's package of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. For some time, Mr. SHAYS and I have been concerned with maintaining the strength of our Nation's public service. This amendment lays an early foundation for a greater Federal role in encouraging and facilitating public service.

The Moran-Shays amendment will bring together the experts in the field of public service to study how student loan debt affects the decisions of graduates of postsecondary and graduate education programs to enter into public service careers. Specifically, the study assesses the current challenges to recruiting and retaining well-qualified public servants, evaluates existing Federal programs and whether additional Federal programs could increase the number of graduates who enter careers in public service, and recommends pilot programs, including the establishment of a public service academy, to encourage careers in public service.

The new century has brought immense challenges that require strong and prepared public institutions. On the eve of the retirement of the baby-boom generation, our Nation presses for a new generation of teachers, firefighters, Federal employees, and other civil servants to fill the void they will leave.

Young Americans are answering the call. According to the Higher Education Research Institute, two-thirds of the 2005 freshman class at institutions of higher education expressed a desire to serve others, the highest rate in a generation.

Yet, an impediment to public service is the increase in college tuitions and debts, making it difficult for graduates to pursue careers in the public sector. These future public servants are potentially overburdened by the debts of college and university loans, forced to choose private sector jobs over public service opportunities.

By providing students with a federally funded education, the stress of debts would be eliminated, and their commitment to the public service sector for at least 5 years could lead to lifelong service.

I have joined with Representative CHRIS SHAYS and Senators HILLARY CLINTON and ARLEN SPECTER to introduce the U.S. Public Service Academy Act. Modeled after the military service academies, this academy will provide a 4-year, federally subsidized college education for more than 5,000 students each year in exchange for a 5-year commitment to public service, including fields that will most need a new generation of leaders, such as public education, public health, and law enforcement. We are encouraged by the support the proposal has gained so far, as nearly 100 bipartisan cosponsors in the House of Representatives have joined in this effort.

Mr. Chairman, the Moran-Shays amendment will continue to make the case for Federal intervention into promoting public service, including possibly a public service academy. I thank the committee for including the study in the manager's amendment, and I urge passage of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act.

Mr. REYES. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007.

In addition to restoring integrity to student loan programs, encouraging States and colleges to rein in student costs, bolstering Pell grants and expanding maximum awards, and investing in renewable and efficient campus energy practices, this legislation makes a vital investment in the economic competitiveness of our nation. Included in that investment is a needed focus on improving minority participation in the science, technology, engineering, and math, STEM, fields.

According to the U.S. Census, 39 percent of the population under the age of 18 is a racial or ethnic minority. That percentage is on a path to pass 50 percent by the year 2050. Yet, in 2000, only 4.4 percent of the science and engineering jobs were held by African Americans and only 3.4 percent by Hispanics.

This under-representation of minority groups in the STEM fields is a severe impediment to the formation of an adequate American STEM workforce. The increased education and participation of this segment of the workforce is essential to supplying the American economy with the STEM expertise the country needs to innovate and to improve America's economic standing in the world.

One year ago, I joined with several of my colleagues, Congresswoman EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON, Congresswoman ZOE LOFGREN, Congressman RUBÉN HINOJOSA, Congressman MIKE HONDA, and Congressman G.K. BUTTERFIELD, to create the House Diversity and Innovation Caucus. The caucus was created on a relatively simple premise: If we want to expand the STEM pipeline, we must broaden our pool of talent. If we are to compete with the rest of the world, we cannot do so with one hand tied behind our back, with the vast majority of certain demographic groups severely under-represented in the fields that drive innovation.

This bill includes several provisions that would bolster the participation of under-represented groups in the STEM fields. Specifically, H.R. 4137 would:

Establish the YES Partnership grant program for Minority-Serving Institutions to support the participation of under-represented minority youth in STEM through outreach and hands-on experiential-based learning projects;

Strengthen and expand the Minority Science and Engineering Improvement Program;

Enact the Minority-Serving Institutions Digital and Wireless Technology Opportunity Program;

Establish a matching grant program to recruit math, science, and language teachers;

Establish a priority in the Graduate Areas of National Need Program for fellowships to develop faculty in math, science, special education, and bilingual education;

Expand loan forgiveness in areas of national need;

Authorize a grant to examine establishing an organization to ensure women and under-represented minorities on college campuses are not facing subtle biases that discourage them from careers in STEM fields; and Ensure that legal immigrants and part-time students are eligible for the Academic Competitiveness and SMART grants.

I am particularly proud that H.R. 4137 includes a bill I authored and introduced in the House, the STEM Promotion Act. In addition to providing young Americans strong educational opportunities in STEM, we must find a way to interest them in pursuing the STEM professions. My generation was inspired by Sputnik to pursue careers in science, engineering, and math, but we cannot sit back and wait for another Sputnik to re-engage our young people in these critical fields. We must tackle the STEM pipeline issue head-on, by methodically attracting Americans to enter STEM.

The STEM Promotion Act proposes just that. The bill would require the Secretary of Education to work with marketing professionals, similar to what the military does, to advertise and otherwise market the attractiveness of pursuing opportunities in STEM. Moreover, the Secretary would order marketing research to be conducted to examine how best to appeal to segments of our population that have been under-represented in the STEM fields, such as women, Hispanics, and African-Americans.

If America is to achieve its strategic objectives in STEM, the enormous potential of groups that are currently under-represented in the STEM fields must be realized. This bill will expand the STEM pipeline and promote innovation and competitiveness by helping to correct the under-representation of certain groups in the STEM fields.

H.R. 4137 also makes broad investments in higher education and college access. In addition to increasing the maximum Pell grant award by over $3,000 and authorizing year-round grants, the bill includes key provisions of the Next Generation Hispanic-Serving Institutions Act, of which I have been an original cosponsor for the past three Congresses. Included is a new graduate program for those institutions, authorized at $125 million, and an increased authorization for the undergraduate program to $175 million.

I am particularly pleased that the Education and Labor Committee has seen fit to strengthen and increase funding for GEAR UP and TRIO, which are critical college access programs for low-income students for which I have advocated since arriving in Congress in 1997. Specifically, the bill increases minimum grant awards for TRIO and HEP-CAMP, increases the authorization for TRIO to $950 million, increases the authorization for GEAR

UP to $400 million, and addresses accountability standards to ensure students are completing a rigorous program of study. The bill also promotes college transition and parental involvement in GEAR UP, and encourages GEAR UP and TRIO to promote financial literacy.

By passing this bill, we would also ensure that our military veterans have full access to both the Montgomery GI bill and education programs under the Higher Education Act. H.R. 4137 establishes a scholarship program for veteran students and their families and Centers of Excellence for Veteran Student Success, and ensures fair treatment of veterans benefits in the financial aid need analysis formula.

I urge my colleagues to consider this bill's positive impact on competitiveness when deciding how to vote. Please support a strong and prosperous America. Vote "yes" on H.R. 4137.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. As a proud father and grandfather, I know too well that the costs of a college education can be prohibitive. This legislation, in combination with the College Cost Reduction Act passed in September, makes great strides to reform our higher education system to increase access to all students and families who desire to attend college.

I know many of you have heard me talk about the tough times my great State of Michigan is facing. I know many of you have heard that Michigan has the highest unemployment rate in the Nation at 7.5 percent, Michigan has one of the highest foreclosure rates, while at the same time our median household income has decreased by 11.9 percent and over 240,000 manufacturing jobs have left our State. These statistics are worth repeating because they emphasize the need and the importance for providing our future workforce with the tools they need to be successful.

One tool that is vitally important to many students is Federal aid; in fact, in past years almost 9 million students have received Federal aid. Yet the process to apply for Federal aid can be confusing and overwhelming for many students and their families. H.R. 4137 proposes to streamline the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, FAFSA, in order to make it easier for students to navigate. This will be done by reducing the number of questions on the FAFSA form and allowing applicants to save their information rather than re-filing a new form each year. It will also allow students and their families to determine their expected family contribution and their Federal student aid package prior to college so that families can plan accordingly.

H.R. 4137 will also demand more accountability from student loan lenders, ensuring that the best interests of our students come first. This legislation will do this by requiring higher education institutions and lenders to adopt strict codes of conduct and ban all gifts and revenue sharing agreements between institutions and lenders. Students will now also be provided with full and fair information about their loans before entering into loan agreements, as well as be informed by the lenders of all borrowing options available to them when taking out and repaying loans.

Another focus of this legislation is the need to address rising college prices so that more students and families will be able to attend college in the first place. We have seen in tuition at 4-year public colleges increase 30.5 percent since 1999 to $7,164 per year. That is an increase of $1,675 over 6 years. When families are making less, every increase makes it harder and harder for students to afford college.

To address this, H.R. 4137 will also establish an online net price calculator that will assist students and their families estimate the cost based on income and family situations at individual schools. This will allow families to be able to properly calculate what the cost of a 4-year education will be. Families will now also have access to a list published by the Department of Education that will provide consumers with information on tuition and fees, average price after grant aid, recent price increases, and change in per-student spending.

I am also pleased that this legislation will increase college aid to our veterans and military personnel. Many college campuses have seen an increase in enrollment of veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan; however, some of these schools do not have enough resources to give the veterans the support they need. With over a million troops having served in Iraq and Afghanistan, it is our duty to ensure that when they return they have access to a college education. This legislation establishes a scholarship program that could award up to $5,000 for veterans, their spouses, or their children enrolled in college. It will also create support centers on college campuses designed to coordinate services and assist veterans with enrollment and completion of their degrees. More importantly, H.R. 4137 will ensure that veterans are not penalized by their financial contributions to their GI benefits in the financial aid process.

Mr. Chairman, I have heard over the years from my constituents, many from some of the great universities in my district, about the increasing amount of debt taken on to complete a college degree. Many have been forced to take out private loans, others have taken on additional hours at work, and unfortunately, some have had to take a leave of absence from school to pay the bills. This is a pattern that cannot continue. Education is not a luxury, it is a tool needed to succeed in today's economy. Investing in education and Federal aid programs is investing in our workforce and the success of our constituents. Today I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this legislation, reaffirming the commitment the Democratic Congress has made to improving higher education and strengthening our workforce.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007. I would like to commend Chairman MILLER and his staff for their work on this bill and their efforts to bring it to the House floor. Following the introduction of a stimulus bill to help boost our Nation's economy, it is only appropriate that we also pass legislation that will boost higher level education and create a stronger workforce. This bill represents a federal commitment to making college more affordable and accessible.

I am pleased that HEA will provide new support for Predominantly Black Institutions and other Minority-Serving Institutions. H.R. 4137 would expand funding for graduate student programs at Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Hispanic Serving Institutions, and other minority-serving schools. HEA also makes significant changes to tribal institutions that would allow them to receive the necessary classification in order to obtain basic federal support for the education and training of Indian students and for tribally controlled postsecondary career and technical institutions that are not currently receiving federal assistance.

As a physician and Chair of the Congressional Black Caucus Health Braintrust, I strongly support the provisions of H.R. 4137 that will make medical school and training more affordable. HEA will create grant programs to increase nursing school capacity and provide nurses with the scholarships and release time needed to qualify as nursing school faculty. This legislation would also ensure that medical school graduates can afford their residencies and specialized training by including loan forgiveness programs that would remove current financial barriers that affect medical school graduates' choice of specialty, especially those with lengthy residencies.

In addition to supporting the overall bill, I would like to express my support for the Congressman DANNY DAVIS' amendment that would restore the ability to discharge private student loans in bankruptcy. Students with private loans should have some protection when they are faced with economic hardship.

I am pleased to support this comprehensive bill that would provide much needed reform to the Higher Education Act and I urge its final passage.

Ms. McCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the College Opportunity and Affordability Act and I commend Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for putting together a bipartisan bill that will have a real impact on college affordability.

I had the honor to serve on the Education and Workforce Committee for my first 6 years in Congress. It is a real pleasure to know that we will finally be able to reauthorize the Higher Education Act.

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act is focused on students, strengthening higher education, and improving our global competitiveness.

It increases need-based aid, provides more access to information on the cost of college, and holds States accountable for their investment. It protects borrowers by restoring sunshine to student loan programs, and by simplifying the financial aid application process. And, it also makes new investments in increasing student interest in science and technology careers.

I also want to thank Chairman MILLER for including legislation that I introduced along with Congressman BISHOP and Congressman GRIJALVA to crack down on diploma mills.

Diploma mills—businesses that sell fraudulent degrees for little or no work—have proliferated in recent decades due to lax law enforcement and technological advances such as the Internet and email.

The growth of these fraudulent businesses has created a variety of serious problems. Diploma mills can sell a worthless degree to a naïve student. They also threaten the reputation of American colleges and universities by blatantly using similar names. They cheat employers—including school districts as we saw a few years ago—and the Federal Government. A 2004 GAO study revealed that at least 463 Federal employees held degrees from diploma mills and other unaccredited universities. In addition to hiring employees who are likely unqualified, employers, including the Federal Government, have wasted resources paying tuition to diploma mills. They can be physically dangerous as is so obvious in the example of diploma mill medical schools.

And more and more it is a national security issue. These degrees could be used to obtain visas. In addition, our failure to deal with the issue has been noted in other countries (Japan), harming our reputation around the world.

This legislation includes the first national effort to combat this problem. It is a first step, but a very important step.

I thank the chair and the ranking member for their support of this provision and for their dedication to improving access to higher education. I urge all my colleagues to support H.R. 4137 and to continue to make access to higher education a priority for this Congress.

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of HR 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act.

A college education continues to be a great path to prosperity. But more and more, high college prices and other obstacles are putting a college degree further out of reach for our students. In addition to rising tuition, students and their families face a complex federal student aid application process and student loan industry.

The legislation will streamline the application process for financial aid, will allow for students to better manage textbook costs, and increase college aid and support programs for veterans and military families.

Many college students—including 37 percent of Hispanic students—receive Pell Grants each year, and this bill will now allow students to receive these vital grants year round.

It also increases authorization levels for the TRIO program to $400 million and GEAR UP program to $950 million, both of which prepare low-income and first-generation students with the challenges for college.

Many students find themselves in financial troubles because they are not aware of the rising costs or the details of the loans they take out. This legislation will hold student loan lenders more accountable for any potentially predatory actions, but students and their families will now have more information about all the options and costs to attend college.

Though we have passed this important piece of legislation, we are by no means done with higher education issues. The President's budget cut funding to Hispanic-serving institutions, and I will work with my colleagues to ensure those institutions receive proper funding. All students deserve to have as many resources as we can provide to them to better themselves and their positions in life.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of making college affordable again.

Since taking over Congress, Democrats have made historic investments in higher education. We have reduced interest rates on federal student loans by 50 percent. We have increased both the amount and the reach of Pell Grants and we have acted to provide long overdue oversight of the student loan industry. Today, we will reauthorize and reform the Higher Education Act and take another step forward toward the goal of making sure that all qualified students can afford to go to college without being saddled by overwhelming debt.

A college degree is not only the best guarantee of a good paying job, it is quickly becoming a necessity in our economy. The College Opportunity and Affordability Act, H.R. 4137, will open up the gates of higher education to students from all backgrounds. By increasing the maximum Pell Grant amount from $5,800 to $9,000, this bill will allow many lower income students to realistically pursue a degree. By making Pell Grants available year round and for part-time students, this legislation would help non-traditional students such as those working full-time. Finally, by simplifying the financial aid application process, this bill will make it easier for students to receive the aid they need and deserve.

For too long, the student loan industry, much like the mortgage industry, has operated without proper oversight. As a consequence, lenders entered into quid pro quo agreements with universities and coerced students into high-interest loans. The bill before us today protects borrowers by requiring full disclosure of all terms, prohibiting revenue sharing between colleges and lenders and doing away with draconian pre-payment penalties.

We must encourage and reward careers in public service. I strongly support the loan forgiveness program in today's measure. It will provide up to $10,000 in loan forgiveness for graduates teaching in low-income areas or entering crucial fields such as early childhood education and mental health.

Four decades ago, President Johnson signed the Higher Education Act and committed to helping low income students afford a college education. Today, Congress has the opportunity to renew that commitment by providing the support and oversight so that all students can fulfill their dream of attending college. I urge all of my colleagues to join me in supporting this important bill.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. This legislation will help break down the barriers, particularly the ever-rising costs of higher education, for Americans to obtain a college degree.

I am extremely excited about the provision from my legislation, the Campus Fire Safety and Prevention Act, that is included in this bill. This legislation would establish a demonstration incentive program within the Department of Education to promote installation of fire sprinkler systems, or other fire suppression or prevention technologies, in qualified student housing or dormitories, and for other purposes.

Fire safety and prevention is an issue that needs to be addressed across this country. Over these few years we have seen many tragedies involving fire at colleges, places of business, entertainment venues and places of residence.

Nationwide, 126 people have been killed in student housing since January 2000, as identified by the Center for Campus Fire Safety, a non-profit organization that compiles information on campus-related fires.

Almost 83 percent of the fire fatalities have occurred in off-campus occupancies such as rented houses and apartments. Common factors in a number of these fires include: lack of automatic sprinklers, disabled smoke alarms, careless disposal of smoking materials, and alcohol consumption.

We must begin to put in place suppression measures against fires and increase support and resources for our fire fighters to ensure that no more lives are lost to fires that could have been prevented.

I encourage my colleagues to pass the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. This legislation would reform our higher education system so that it operates in the best interests of students and families.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, which will reauthorize the Higher Education Act for 5 years. This is the first time in almost a decade that this bill has been reauthorized, and I am proud to be part of a Congress that has placed such a high priority on making college a reality for all of our nation's students. This bill builds on legislation that passed last year to help lower college costs and boost Federal loan support for our students. Especially with the state of our economy, it is imperative that we invest in our education system to promote new employment and ensure that today's students can adapt to the jobs of tomorrow.

Two of the main goals of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act are to make a college education accessible to all students and to lower college costs for those students and their families. I am pleased that this bill increases the maximum amount of Pell Grants, which help 5.5 million low-income and minority students attend college, from $5,800 to $9,000. This measure also boosts funding for the TRIO program and the Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Program (GEAR UP), which provide college readiness and support for low-income and first-generation students. H.R. 4137 ensures equal college opportunities for students with disabilities by creating a national center to improve college recruitment, retention, and completion of students with disabilities, and would also expand eligibility for Pell Grants for students with intellectual disabilities.

H.R. 4137 also establishes a user-friendly website to provide students and families with helpful information about college pricing, and will streamline the cumbersome filing process for Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Families will now be able to receive estimates of their expected contribution and the amount of financial aid they may receive. H.R. 4137 requires higher education institutions and student loan providers to give borrowers fair and full information on their loan terms and repayment options, as well as promote financial literacy and education for students and families. This measure also helps reduce the cost of textbooks, which on average sets back a student $1,000 per year, by making sure professors have full textbook pricing when making purchasing decisions and by ensuring students receive advanced lists of textbooks for their upcoming classes.

One of the goals of the 110th Congress is to create a new generation of innovators so that we continue to build an educated, skilled workforce in the vital areas of science, math, engineering and information technology. To maintain our international competitiveness and economic advantage in the coming years, our Nation must invest more in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) education. That is why I am pleased that H.R. 4137 includes many new initiatives and increases funding for STEM education. These new programs include grants for colleges and universities to provide incentives for students in STEM majors to teach in these academic areas; the YES Partnership Grant Program, which provides funding to eligible colleges to support minority youth engagement in STEM fields through out-reach and hands-on experiential learning; and the "Robert C. Byrd Mathematics and Science Honors Scholarship Program" which focuses on encouraging students to earn degrees in math and science.

H.R. 4137 increases college aid and support for our veterans and military families by requiring colleges and universities to treat students returning from military service as continuously enrolled students and preventing active duty servicemembers from accruing interest on student loans for the duration of their activation. The measure also encourages those students who commit to a job in high-need areas and public service for at least 5 years by establishing a $10,000 loan forgiveness program for nurses, early childhood educators, foreign language specialists, child welfare workers, school counselors, public sector employees, medical specialists, and mental health professionals. This measure further addresses the shortage of nursing faculty by establishing competitive grants to fund scholarships for nurses studying for advanced degrees with the intention of becoming faculty.

In recent years, our country's college and university campuses have seen unnecessary tragedies. H.R. 4137 will boost campus safety by helping all colleges develop and implement state of the art emergency systems and campus safety plans, and will also create a National Center for Campus Safety at the Department of Justice. Administrators and students on campuses across the country have also pushed for environmental, or "green", initiatives, and this measure supports these efforts by providing funding for environmental sustainability programs.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 4137 shows that Congress is committed to the success of our students, and we will work to make sure that they can pursue their dreams without the burdens of unnecessary costs and debt. While we may find ourselves facing hard economic decisions, we must empower the next generation with the necessary tools and invest in their education. The College Opportunity and Affordability Act will set a blueprint for the future, and I encourage all my colleagues to vote for this bill.

Mr. SPACE. Mr. Chairman, I would like to begin by thanking Chairman GEORGE MILLER for his work on behalf of rural communities in H.R. 4137. Specifically, I would like to thank Chairman MILLER for including provisions from H.R. 4139, the Colleges and Universities Rural Education (CURE) Act, in this important bill.

I would also like to extend my thanks to Ranking Member MCKEON for his hard work on the legislation, as well as the staff of the Committee on Education and Labor.

Rural communities face a unique set of challenges in developing a highly-skilled workforce. Limited access to higher education makes advanced training more difficult to attain for the millions of Americans living in rural areas around the country. While we all should take pride in the work of our nation's public schools and teachers in providing a quality education to American children, the need for training beyond a basic high school diploma is clearly critical.

I see this deficit every day in southeastern Ohio. Some communities struggle to fill critical professions, particularly in the medical community, due to the rural nature of their district and the lack of training opportunities in a reasonable proximity.

To rectify this deficit, I introduced H.R. 4139, the CURE Act. This important legislation authorizes grants to the colleges serving rural America to create partnerships with rural school districts to improve access to higher education for rural high school graduates. These grants will provide important access to financial aid opportunities as well as programs on college campuses that will help to encourage students to pursue higher education when they might otherwise not.

Additionally, this legislation authorizes grants for rural colleges to develop training programs in needed professions, and develop partnerships with employers in the area to develop employment pipelines. These grants will help rural communities struggling to fill the positions needed to maintain a quality of life, such as doctors and teachers.

Again, I wish to commend Chairman MILLER for his willingness to see the challenges facing rural America and work to improve the quality of life for those communities. On behalf of my colleagues and I who represent rural America, I extend my truest and utmost thanks.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to voice my strong support for H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act.

Last year, this Congress took a first step in our promise to lower education costs and increase opportunities for American families.

This bill is about keeping that promise by strengthening higher education and increasing access to college for low income students.

This is especially important for the Latino community here in the United States where too many don't even apply to college because of the high costs. And the number of Latino students graduating with a degree does not compare with their white counterparts.

This year only 25 percent of college-age Latinos were actually enrolled in college. Only 25 percent.

This bill will help to eliminate this gap. It increases financial aid, strengthens college prep programs for low income students, and makes historic investments at minority serving institutions.

When we provide low-income students with access to college, we strengthen the middle class and make America stronger.

One thing I'd like to work with the Committee on is the student loan debt burden on teachers. Right now they can only get student repayment for their direct loans. But we really should help them pay back all of their student loans, including their private ones. They provide an important service to our Nation so that is the least we can do.

I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 4137. Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Lantos-Watt amendment to the Higher Education Reauthorization, H.R. 4137. This amendment clarifies that all graduate degree granting institutions are eligible as lead grantees under the Graduate Assistance in Areas of National Need (GAANN) program in Title VII of the HEA.

Mr. Chairman, as a former professor at San Francisco State University, I know the caliber of student in their graduate programs. And with our proximity to Silicon Valley, many of the leading biotech companies have an embarrassment of riches to select from. Before the Department of Education undermined congressional intent, limiting participation of master's degree granting institutions, SFSU was routinely competing and winning GAANN fellowships.

Congress created the GAANN program to provide these fellowships for graduates with superior ability and financial needs studying in areas of national need. Under the original HEA statute and GAANN program regulations, graduate degree granting institutions including those terminating in a master's degree are eligible to participate as lead institutions in the GAANN program. Contrary to Congressional intent and the GAANN statute—which refers to graduate, not doctoral institutions—the Department limited participation as a lead entity in GAANN to doctoral granting institutions only. This action eliminated three master's degree granting programs at San Francisco State University, along with Florida A&M and North Carolina A&T from participation in the GAANN program. Until this action, SFSU had GAANN grants in biology and chemistry.

Mr. Chairman, in the President's FY09 budget released a few days ago the GAANN program was tabbed for an increase in funding to stem the long-term decline in the number of fellowships awarded under the program. The President recognized how effective these grants are and provided support for 747 fellowships, including 529 new fellows.

Mr. Chairman, GAANN is a competitive program. This provision would not open the program to new entrants. It would merely restore the ability of master's degree granting programs to compete with those granting PhDs. I proudly support the Lantos-Watt amendment and thank Mr. Watt for working with me to give all universities an opportunity to compete.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, I will support H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007. Overall, it is an excellent bill, but I do have a serious concern about the impact of one provision, the state maintenance-of-efforts provision, on Colorado.

This bill will reauthorize the Higher Education Act and will help make our colleges and universities more affordable and accessible.

I am especially pleased that this bill will help students and families trying to afford the increasing costs of college. The bill increases the maximum Pell grant award to $9,000 annually, up from $5,800. Pell Grants enable many students to attend college, but with rising tuition costs these grants have lost some of their purchasing power. This increase will allow Pell Grants to help students limit debt and expand their education opportunities. Also, Pell Grant scholarships availability will be expanded to year-round to allow students to use the funding when it best works with their schedule.

Not only will H.R. 4137 increase federal aid, but it will also make the process of applying for that aid much more straightforward. Streamlining the application process for Federal aid will make it easier for students and their families to determine if they are eligible for Federal loans. The bill will also create a two-page "FAFSA-EZ" form for low-income students and families who qualify for the "auto-zero" family contribution.

And the legislation will not just help students from low-income families—it will help all students become better informed by requiring that the Department of Education publicly provide a user-friendly list of all colleges and universities in the country with information on tuition and fees, average price after grant aid, recent price increases, and change in per-student spending.

Textbooks are a growing—and often overlooked—cost of attending college. Students can spend hundreds of dollars on textbooks every semester, adding up to thousands of dollars by the time they graduate. The bill requires college textbook publishers to provide full pricing information about both bundled textbooks and unbundled alternatives. It also requires that publishers sell unbundled versions of every bundled textbook they sell so that students are not forced to purchase unneeded extras, such as study guides or CDs.

H.R. 4137 reauthorizes two critical programs that help disadvantaged students thrive in college. GEAR-UP helps prepare low-income elementary and secondary students to succeed in college and the bill increases the authorized funding to $400 million for GEAR-UP. It also increases the authorization level for the TRIO programs—Upward Bound, Talent Search, and Student Services—to $950 million. The TRIO programs seek to increase high school completion and college participation and graduation rates among low-income and first-generation college students. African-American students make up nearly 50 percent of all TRIO participants.

The bill recognizes the debt that our country owes to our soldiers and their families. It creates a new scholarship program for active duty military personnel and their family members to help make college more affordable. The bill also establishes support centers to help veterans succeed in college and graduate.

As co-chair of the House Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM) Education caucus, I am pleased that this bill builds upon the America COMPETES Act to expand and improve STEM education. It creates programs to bolster students' interest in STEM careers through collaborations with businesses and other stakeholders, as well as improves teacher training and development programs and focuses on recruiting teachers into high demand science and technology fields.

As I mentioned, I am particularly concerned about the impact that the maintenance-of-effort provision will have on my state of Colorado. This provision ties Federal funding to state funding. Though I applaud the effort by Chairman MILLER to encourage states to continue to support higher education, Colorado is in an unusual position because we have several constitutional provisions that limit the spending options of our legislature. These include the Tax Payer's Bill of Rights, or TABOR, and another that requires that the state increase funding for K through 12 education every year. Together with other constraints, these provisions have seriously affected the state's ability to fund higher education—and the maintenance-of-effort provision will not help matters.

While the manager's amendment improved this provision, I will work to see that this issue is further addressed in conference.

In conclusion, I encourage all of my colleagues to support H.R. 4137.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Chairman, due to unexpected circumstances, I missed the vote on the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, H.R. 4137, important legislation to reauthorize and strengthen key Higher Education Act programs aimed at making college education more affordable and accessible for American students. Had I been present, I would have voted in favor of the legislation that will keep America's economy competitive.

Overall, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act will address major issues facing our Nation's students from simplifying student aid forms to addressing rising textbook and tuition costs. The bill will increase assistance for Veterans and military families and bolster students' interest in science and technology by partnering with businesses and other stakeholders.

I commend Chairman MILLER and HINOJOSA for their diligent work on the underlying legislation and for their support for my amendment that was passed to improve key education grants by setting higher environmental standards for recipients. The amendment ensures that Sustainability Planning Grants are awarded to projects aiming to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, guaranteeing that Federal funds make a meaningful impact on global warming and requires that certain Federal grantees demonstrate that they meet or exceed American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers, ASHRAE, energy-efficiency standards when designing new facilities. Finally, the amendment would add a Sense of Congress to reject the President's FY2009 budget proposal to eliminate the important Perkins Loan Program, a critical educational program for high-need students who will become a modern green workforce.

Additionally, I applaud Representatives BLUMENAUER and EHLERS for their work to include provisions to support green higher education efforts. Many of our Nation's 4,000 colleges and universities are taking action to reduce greenhouse-gas pollution, which currently accounts for 7 percent of U.S. carbon emissions. Federal grants should be available to give a boost to such projects, like the state-of-the-art, carbon-neutral science laboratory being planned at Cascadia Community College in my district.

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act (H.R. 4137), a bill to reauthorize the Higher Education Act's programs.

I thank Chairman MILLER, Representative MCKEON and their staff for their hard work on this reauthorization bill. I am very pleased that the Education and Labor Committee voted unanimously to favorably refer this bill to the full House for consideration. It is a testament to the fact that bipartisan work, though difficult, pays off with a better final product. This bill makes substantive changes that help future college students and our Nation's economy.

Several provisions that I authored were included in the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. For example, the bill includes provisions of the Higher Education Sustainability Act, a bill that I introduced with Rep. BLUMENAUER to establish a competitive grant program to encourage colleges and universities to develop, implement and evaluate their sustainability practices and academic programs. I appreciate the efforts of Representatives INSLEE and BLUMENAUER to improve upon the bill's provisions by requiring that the Secretary of Education consult with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency when awarding sustainability grants. This provision was included in the Manager's Amendment.

In addition, the bill includes the Robert C. Byrd American Competitiveness program, which has provisions that Representatives WOLF, HOLT and I developed in the 109th Congress. For example, it awards scholarships to students who are enrolled in studies in physical, life, or computer sciences, mathematics, or engineering. Also, through the Math and Science Incentive program, the Secretary may waive the interest on Federal student loans for students pursuing STEM teaching or professional careers. In conference, I certainly hope Senator BYRD is amenable to making these important updates to the Byrd Scholarship program.

Finally, the bill includes my Independent Study of Distance Education Act, which requires the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study of distance education, as compared to traditional, campus-based education.

I have a few concerns about the bill. First, I am concerned that the bill will require colleges and universities to comply with additional federal "red tape." I understand that Representative MCKEON plans to offer an amendment to study the regulatory burden on colleges and universities and ways to reduce it.

Also, I have concerns about the college cost provisions. While the provisions have certainly improved over the past several years, I question whether the federal government should intervene in the way colleges and universities set their tuition, particularly at relatively low-cost community colleges. For example, it is my understanding that Grand Rapids Community College, located in my congressional district, may be subjected to the bill's requirements of the Quality Efficiency Task Force. Unfortunately, the bill fails to take into account state and local factors, such as last year's failed millage attempts, which, in turn, necessitated the tuition increases at this community college. It is situations like this that should be considered when reviewing attempts to control rising college costs.

Finally, I have concerns with the bill's maintenance of effort requirements for state funding. I appreciate Representative KILDEE and WALBERG's efforts to include a waiver for States facing difficult economic times, such as Michigan.

On balance, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act is a good bill, and I urge Members to support it.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, I'm pleased that today the House passed H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. This bill makes great strides towards helping our Nation's students and families afford college.

The rising cost of college is making the opportunity of a quality education further and further out of reach for far too many of our students. In March, the University of California and California State system raised their tuition for the fifth time in 6 years. This year, students at a school like Sonoma State, in my district, will be required to pay nearly 10 percent more for tuition. With recent budget shortfalls in many States, including California, more increases in tuition appear to be on the horizon. The Federal Government, States, and universities need to work together to both control costs and provide better access to financial aid to ensure that everyone has the chance for a college education.

This bill will help with both college costs and financial aid for our neediest students, and that's why it's such an important bill. Through this bill, States will be encouraged to do their part in keeping college costs down, and universities will be encouraged to be more transparent with important information like projected tuition and fees and average financial aid. This will help ensure that students and their families are not caught unaware by college costs. This bill also assists our Nation's neediest students by increasing the maximum Pell Grant that can be awarded and giving more non-traditional students access to this important source of aid. In addition, this bill encourages more students to go into important fields that serve the public interest, such as teaching, nursing, and firefighting, by offering loan forgiveness in exchange for their invaluable service.

Particularly pleasing is the inclusion of three programs that I championed and which should make a real difference in the lives of our Nation's students. The first is the Patsy T. Mink Fellowships, which will provide fellowships to women and minorities to help them attain graduate degrees in underrepresented fields. This program will encourage more women and minorities to go into underrepresented fields, and at the same time, will increase the amount of women and minorities who become professors in these fields. Congresswoman Patsy Mink was my mentor and friend and was a leader on women's equality and opportunity. This program is in honor of her work on the inclusion of Title IX in the Higher Education Act and will further ensure equality in higher education.

As a former human resources manager, I know that it can be difficult to find workers to fill all the empty positions. Often, applicants don't have the necessary skills or background to fill available positions. It's critical that we find a way to provide our workforce with the skills and education to fill the gaps. That's why programs like Bridges from Jobs to Careers and Business Workforce Partnerships, which I also championed, are so important.

The Bridges from Jobs to Careers grant program will provide competitive grants to community colleges to improve remedial education by customizing programs to the career and academic goals of students and making it possible for students to move more quickly through remedial classes and to courses related to their degree, certificate program, or career. We need to help students realize the end goal of their education program. Helping schools improve remedial education will help many students get in and out of school with the skills and education they need to succeed.

The Business Workforce Partnerships grant program will encourage the development of partnerships between colleges and businesses to work together to provide workers with for-credit worksite learning opportunities and more flexible schedules. By allowing workers to work and attend school, more of them will have access to the certificates and degrees that will lead to better jobs and higher salaries. These workers will also be able to better fit the needs of our changing workforce.

Thank you, Chairmen MILLER and HINOJOSA, for your leadership on the Higher Education Reauthorization Act. I look forward to working with you and our colleagues to continue to make college more affordable for our Nation's students.

The Secretary may waive the service requirement if—“(i) compliance by the fellowship recipient would be deemed impossible because the individual is permanently and totally disabled at the time of the waiver request; or

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING CONSUMER INFORMATION ABOUT INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) the diversity of the American higher education systems allows each student to find the right “fit” for his or her interests and talents;

(B) while the variety of options available is one of the great strengths of our system of higher education, it can also be overwhelming when students and their families begin a college search;

(C) there is a massive amount of information available about institutions of higher education, but it is often difficult to navigate or is scattered among several sources;

(D) the data collected and available is comprehensive; however, there is a need to keep consumer needs in mind in packaging the information that already exists and presenting the information in a simple, consumer-friendly format;

(E) in particular, prospective students and their families want a succinct overview of common key information about institutions, with easy access to more in-depth institution-specific information about campus life and the complete college experience; and

(F) a variety of efforts have been initiated by colleges and universities and others to provide web-based, consumer-friendly information geared to prospective students and their families.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that institutions of higher education should participate in efforts to provide concise, easily accessible, on-line consumer information to prospective students and families that is consistent across institutions while permitting opportunities for more in-depth exploration of specific institutions.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this title, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress on the results of the study required by this section.

SEC. 817. NURSING SCHOOL CAPACITY.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds as follows:

(1) Researchers in the field of public health have identified the need for a national study to identify constraints encountered by schools of nursing in graduating the number of nurses sufficient to meet the health care needs of the United States.

(3) Individual States have had varying degrees of success with programs designed to increase the recruitment and retention of nurses.

(4) Schools of nursing have been unable to provide a sufficient number of qualified graduates to meet the workforce needs.

(5) Many nurses are approaching the age of retirement, and the problem worsens each year.

(6) In 2004, an estimated 125,000 applications from qualified applicants were rejected by schools of nursing, due to a shortage of faculty and a lack of capacity for additional students.

(b) STUDY WITH RESPECT TO CONSTRAINTS WITH RESPECT TO SCHOOLS OF NURSING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall request the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences to enter into an agreement under which the Institute conducts a study for the purpose of—

(C) The number and demographic characteristics of nurses who pursue graduate eduation in nursing and non-nursing programs but do not pursue faculty positions in schools of nursing, the reasons therefor, including any regulatory barriers to choosing to pursue such positions, and the effect of such decisions on the ability of the schools to obtain adequate numbers of faculty members.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I yield myself 1 minute.

I want to thank Mr. McKEON and the minority for working on this manager’s amendment. With this, it makes additional changes to the Pell Grant program, additional changes to strengthen the TRIO and GEAR UP programs, adds a master’s program for the Historical Black Colleges and Universities, and includes changes to encourage colleges and universities to adopt energy efficient sustainable practices in their campuses, and it enhances teacher training and development so we can place qualified teachers in every classroom.

It is a bipartisan amendment that has been worked on by the staffs and Members on both sides of the aisle in the committee and Members of the House, and I urge its passage.

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition, but I am not opposed to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from California is recognized for 10 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Chairman, from the outset of this process, Chairman MILLER has recognized that by working together we can make this bill stronger. Just as he worked with us on the underlying bill, he also invited our input and involvement in the development of this manager’s package. I believe the amendment is stronger because of it, and I want to thank him for his bipartisanship.

Anyone who has studied the college cost issue recognizes that there are no easy or obvious solutions. It has taken 5 years of refining to produce the proposal we are voting on here today.

When this process began, we identified three key principles to guide our proposals. First, we saw the need for sunshine and transparency in college costs. Students and families do not have access to accurate, useful, and comparable information about college costs.

Second, we recognized that colleges and universities were not being held accountable to consumers. There were no consequences for schools that engaged in massive unexplained tuition increases year after year.

Third, in our effort to identify solutions, it became abundantly clear that Congress could not do it alone. We realized that all stakeholders must come together. That includes the Federal Government, State government and local communities, institutions of higher education, students, and parents.

States have scaled back their investment in higher education, and the Federal Government has been expected to make up the difference. While some of the details have changed over time, the bill before us adheres to these same three principles.

I want to thank Chairman MILLER for allowing me to take the lead on these college cost provisions. After years of listening to stakeholders, seeking the advice of experts, and studying potential unintended consequences, I believe this proposal strikes the right balance on the cost issue.

I also want to thank Chairman MILLER for working with me to prevent this bill from limiting access for low-income, first-generation, and nontraditional students. An amendment offered during committee consideration of the bill changed the way cohort default rates are calculated. While the proposal did spur an important conversation about how to get a more accurate understanding of default rates in order to protect students and taxpayers, the consequences of the proposal would have done far more damage than was intended. I am pleased that, in this manager's amendment, we were able to forge a compromise that achieves our goal of a more accurate cohort default rate calculation without putting financial aid in jeopardy for the students who need it most.

On these and other issues, Chairman MILLER has worked closely with me to ensure the final bill reflects the priorities of Members on both sides of the aisle. I thank him for his willingness to cooperate, and I urge the majority to continue this spirit of cooperation to address other flaws that remain in the bill, so that when this legislation is signed into law, it is as strong as it can be.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), a member of the committee.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. I want to commend the committee, especially Chairman MILLER, Ranking Member MCKEON, and all of the members, actually, of the committee, for such an outstanding bill.

In particular, I want to thank the committee for its consideration of items and issues of particular interest to me, students with disabilities, the handling of Pell Grants and student loans, veterans and their needs, especially those who are returning, and the efforts to strengthen the Historically Black Colleges and Universities so that those institutions can have master's degree programs that allow students access to them. It's an outstanding bill; and, again, I commend Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for an outstanding piece of legislation.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Davis).

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Chairman, last year Congress passed a budget reconciliation bill that allows servicemembers to get a deferment on their student loans when they are activated, but that particular deferment only applies to repayment of the principle and existing interest on these loans. It does not prevent new interest from accruing while our servicemembers are on active duty.

One Reservist told me that while he was granted a deferment on his loan, he was told that the interest would continue to accrue while he was away and would be added on to his loan when he returned. Servicemembers such as this Reservist already have enough to worry about when they are called to active duty without this added burden.

This amendment will cover all active duty servicemembers, including Reserve units and the National Guard.

According to CRS estimates, this will help the average servicemember save between $1,200 and $1,500 over the course of a 12- to 15-month activation period, with even more savings for those activated for longer periods.

In addition, and the best part, the CBO scored this amendment and found that it will not cost the American taxpayer any significant amount.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We are here today addressing the college cost crisis, a problem that has reached epic proportions in this country. There are many who believe, me among them, that we should never have allowed this challenge to reach a crisis point.

I am pleased to be acting today, but this bill serves as a reminder that Congress often fails to recognize challenges in our higher education system and act quickly to solve them. I am afraid we may be making the same mistake by failing to recognize the brewing problems in our Federal student loan programs.

Since 2006, Congress has cut nearly $30 billion from the Federal Family Education Loan Program. While many of these reforms were needed to improve program efficiency, I am afraid we may have gone too far, cutting not just the fat but straight through to the bone.

The impact of these cuts has yet to be fully realized; but already borrower benefits have been curtailed, lenders have left the program, and workers have lost their jobs. The consequences of program cuts are being exacerbated by a crunch in our financial markets that has produced a loss of liquidity, an increase in financing costs, and uncertainty about the future viability of the Federal loan program.

Just a few short months into this time of market turmoil, already 1,200 jobs have been lost and eight lenders have left the Federal student loan program or severely limited participation. This includes the departure of the seventh largest lender in the program. Major lenders have significantly scaled back or ended their borrower benefit programs.

Mr. Chairman, I am afraid this is only the tip of the iceberg. I had hoped to offer an amendment today that would help ensure Congress does not ignore these challenges until they, too, reach a crisis point.

My amendment was nothing more than a sense of Congress, but I believe it would have signaled our commitment to averting a student loan crisis before it happens. Unfortunately, I was blocked by the majority from offering this amendment. It seems we have not yet learned from past mistakes.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HONDA).

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. For decades, increases in college tuition have outpaced inflation, posing financial challenges to many students and families.

As a former teacher, school principal and school board member, I am committed to providing our students with greater access to a higher education, thereby ensuring that America remains competitive in the global economy. Having well-trained teachers in our classrooms is essential to preparing our children for the jobs of tomorrow.

It is estimated that over 2 million new teachers will be needed in the next 10 years. H.R. 4137 provides individuals seeking a rewarding career in teaching more opportunities to enroll in high-quality teacher preparation programs.

This legislation will enhance the teacher workforce by establishing Centers of Excellence in teacher training and providing grants to community colleges to establish or improve teacher preparation and professional development programs. H.R. 4137 will also help improve reading for as many as 10 million struggling readers.

During my tenure as a school administrator, I successfully established a program for students with dyslexia. Central to this program was the specialized training every teacher received on how to address the needs of students with reading difficulties.

After more than 20 years, there still appears to be a gap between what is known about effective reading structure and how teachers are being trained. H.R. 4137 includes provisions to expose this gap by examining the quality and extent to which teacher training programs are based on the recommendations of the congressionally requested National Reading Panel.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ALTMIRE).

Mr. ALTMIRE. Mr. Chairman, I want to take a moment to highlight a few aspects of this bill that I worked to include. During committee consideration of the bill, I offered and passed an amendment to encourage colleges and employers to form partnerships that identify high-demand occupations and create educational pathways for students to pursue them.

These partnerships will help students succeed in the job market and provide local businesses with the skilled workers they need to grow. This bill also includes my legislation that requires the Department of Education to forgive the student loans of veterans who are determined to be totally and permanently disabled by the VA.

This will end the duplicative and burdensome process that disabled veterans currently must endure. It also includes my legislation to provide grants for teacher preparation courses at minority-serving institutions to help them recruit and prepare the teachers of tomorrow.

This legislation will expand our teaching pipeline and improve the diversity of our Nation's teachers and teaching force. The College Opportunity and Affordability Act significantly improves our higher education system, and I encourage my colleagues to support it.

Mr. MCKEON. May I inquire of the time remaining.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California has 4 minutes, and the gentleman from Texas has 4½ minutes.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLLEE).

Mr. INSLLEE. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to have helped add a little green idea to our higher education bill. I want to thank Chairman MILLER for incorporating an idea that I have proposed into this manager's amendment, which will really help colleges in some of the terribly exciting work they are doing to green up their campuses.

I visited Plymouth State University in New Hampshire a while back, which has built the Langdon Woods dormitory. It's a 100,000 square-foot dormitory. It's a beautiful dorm, and they are saving enormous amounts of energy because they built it green with good insulation, co-generation, triple-pane windows. It's a great idea.

We have an amendment that has been incorporated that is going to help colleges move forward in three ways. First, it will call for those who use these Federal funds for the colleges to meet or exceed minimum energy efficiency standards for their new renovations or construction as developed by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers, two other ways we are going to do it.

Congratulations to these colleges.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the ranking member on the subcommittee, Mr. CASTLE from Delaware.

Mr. CASTLE. I thank the distinguished ranking member for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to rise in support of the legislation and to rise in support of the manager's amendment.

I hope that everybody who supports considering this bill today is paying attention to what I think all of us are hearing at home, and that is that the cost of college education is going up faster, as the cost of living increases, than anything, including health care; that is a vital part of our economy; that if we do not produce good college graduates and graduate students beyond that, that we will be hurt greatly from an economic point of view; and that we need to address these issues.

I think this legislation, which was forged with the help of Republicans and Democrats, with amendments by Republicans and Democrats, is balanced legislation and serves the purpose of dealing with looking closely at college costs and asking them to pay attention to it.

We have had a number of hearings about this; and some have produced good testimony, some have produced sort of marginal testimony in terms what could be done. In my view, this legislation is a big step forward in addressing that issue. I know all the college presidents and boards mean well, but the bottom line is they have to serve well too. They have to make sure that college is affordable to as many people as possible.

I will be involved in several of the amendments later on, but the basic underlying structure of what we are trying to do here today is of great importance to the entire educational and economic future of our country. I hope that all of us can be as supportive as possible of the legislation and of the manager's amendment.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to my friend and colleague from the great State of Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I appreciate the gentleman's courtesy in permitting me to speak on this; and I particularly appreciate the chairman, Mr. MILLER, and the Ranking Member, Mr. MCKEON having incorporated into this legislation the committee work that we have been doing for the last several years dealing with sustainability in higher education.

I would like this provision to be named after the late Debbie Murdock. She was a leader at Portland State University with whom I worked who tragically left us far too soon, to make sure that we have equipped, to have strong sustainability programs. This is the wave of the future. This is where the jobs are to be found.

This is what our companies need to be competitive in a world of global warming and climate change. Only 30 percent of these companies say, they have the people with the skills and information and personnel to meet the environmental, sustainability challenge. This provision will enable colleges to develop sustainability programs, and to implement those sustainability programs, to have the appropriate evaluation to know what works.

I hope this is the tip of the iceberg for programs we can work on in the future. I look forward to working with the chairman, looking forward to working with my friend, the subcommittee Chair and our friends on the otherside of the aisle like Mr. MCKEON and Mr. EHLERS on this critical bipartisan legislation.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recognize the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. WALZ) for 1½ minutes.

Mr. WALZ of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I say a special thank you to Chairman MILLER and the ranking member. As a lifelong educator and a teacher in the classroom for 20 years, the understanding and the work that has been put into this piece of legislation is something that I think we can all be very proud of. It takes in and understands the investment in America's future comes in education.

I would like to make one comment. One of the issues that doesn't come up very often in the cost of college expenses is the cost of textbooks. It runs about $900 for an average student. One of the problems we've seen is small changes in textbooks that require students to buy new ones each and every year. There was a very important person in my district, Jared Stene, who was the president of the Winona State University Student Senate. Jared worked for years tirelessly on this issue to bring about some transparency in how textbooks are marketed. Unfortunately, Jared passed away unexpectedly over Thanksgiving, and I thank the chairman for giving me the opportunity and for the work he did in the committee to address this very issue.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WALZ of Minnesota. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I just wanted to say that we did respond in this manager's amendment by making this process more transparent, encouraging greater communication and cooperation between the students, faculty, college bookstores, and publishers in providing an accurate description of what the revisions in the textbooks, what the new edition really means.

Very often we have been told by students and faculty and those concerned with this, as you are, that sometimes these changes are de minimis, but you have to have the new textbook; you can't use a used textbook.

We think this will be an improvement, and I thank you so much for hounding the committee on this subject. I think this is the beginning of increased transparency and concentration on this problem of rising textbook and educational material cost increases.

Mr. WALZ of Minnesota. I thank the chairman.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Madam Chairman, how much time remains?

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Ms. DEGETTE). The gentleman from California has 2 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Texas has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. HINOJOSA. I reserve the balance of my time to close.

Mr. McKEON. If the gentleman is prepared to close, I am in strong support of the manager's amendment, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Madam Chairman, it is an honor to be able to close this debate on the higher education bill, one that is going to be one of the most meaningful pieces of legislation that I have participated in, together with our chairman, GEORGE MILLER, and with our good friend, BUCK McKEON from California, who has been a real gentleman and a great leader in higher education.

I believe that this will open the doors to so many men and women throughout the country. It will raise the level of education attainment in many regions of the country. All I can say is we are delighted that we can be working with leaders of the quality of BUCK McKEON and MIKE CASTLE, and many others on the other side of the aisle.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. McKEON

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. McKEON:
At the end of title VIII, add the following new section:

SEC. 814. FEDERAL REGULATION OF HIGHER EDUCATION REPORT.

(a) ANALYSIS OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS ON INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION.—The Secretary of Education shall contract with the National Research Council of the National Academies to conduct a study to ascertain the amount and scope of all Federal regulations and reporting requirements with which institutions of higher education must comply. The study shall include information describing—

(1) by agency, the number of Federal regulations and reporting requirements affecting institutions of higher education;

(2) by agency, the estimated time required and costs to institutions of higher education (disaggregated by types of institutions) to comply with the regulations and reporting requirements as required in (a)(1); and

(3) by agency, recommendations for consolidating, streamlining, and eliminating redundant and burdensome Federal regulations and reporting requirements affecting institutions of higher education.

(b) SUBMISSION OF REPORT.—The Secretary shall submit the report required by subsection (a) to the authorizing committees (as such term is defined in section 103 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1003)) not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from California (Mr. McKEON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Before this reauthorization even began, I was involved in an innovative, bipartisan effort known as the FED UP project that laid the groundwork by reducing red tape, eliminating outdated rules, and streamlining Federal financial aid programs.

The late Representative Patsy Mink and I joined together to solicit input from the higher education community to increase the effectiveness of our Federal financial aid programs by cutting through the red tape and regulations. We did this because over the years, colleges and universities have become subject to an increasing level of Federal regulation. Unfortunately, when new regulations are layered on top of the old, we often end up with duplication and confusion.

Today, as we contemplate another set of new programs, regulations, and requirements, I believe we need to renew that commitment to less red tape. That's why I am proposing a comprehensive study of the regulations that impact higher education. Under my plan, the National Research Council will undertake a governmentwide review to identify regulations that are duplicative and unnecessary.

Particularly in a bill with so many duplicative and unnecessary new programs, there is a danger that we may be exacerbating the college cost crisis by burdening colleges and universities with excessive new reporting and compliance costs. With this study, I hope we can move in a different direction.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the McKeon amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. HINOJOSA. I wish to give 30 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Chairman, I also rise in support of this amendment and commend Mr. McKEON. He has been working on this for a considerable period of time.

I think it makes sense even more so now, it was envisioned in an earlier reauthorization, because it will include the programs that survive the conference committee and become law. It will also compare those new programs against existing programs, and I ask our colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, I wish to thank Chairman MILLER and Chairman HINOJOSA for their support and for the hard work that they have put into this bill, and let them know how much I have appreciated working with them not just on this bill but over the years. And I hope that all of our colleagues will support this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. McKEON).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HINOJOSA) and the gentleman from California (Mr. MCKEON) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Madam Chairman, I wish to recognize the chairman of the Subcommittee on Elementary and Secondary Education, the Honorable Congressman DALE KILDEE, for as much time as he may consume.

Mr. KILDEE. Madam Chairman, I want to thank Chairmen MILLER and HINOJOSA and Ranking Members MCKEON and KELLER for reporting this fine bill out of committee by a vote of 45-0.

It was 10 years ago that Mr. MCKEON and I managed the reauthorization of this bill, and that was a labor of love during that time, and I think we are going to have a great bill here again today. I remember those 10 years ago very fondly.

This amendment clarifies that the Secretary of Education may continue to set aside a percentage of the funds appropriated for tribally controlled colleges and universities for a competition for grants for facilities at TCCUs. Since 2002, the secretary has conducted this competition pursuant to appropriations language.

My amendment will ensure that these colleges have the resources they need to invest in their infrastructure.

That is why this competition has been so important to all the TCCUs. My amendment is strongly supported by the American Indian Higher Education Consortium and the National Education Association, and I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

At this time I would like to yield to the gentlewoman from Kansas (Mrs. BOYDA).

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Who is controlling the time on behalf of the amendment?

Is the gentleman from Michigan controlling the time?

Mr. KILDEE. I am controlling the time at this time and I yield to her such time as she may consume.

Mrs. BOYDA of Kansas. Madam Chairman, I rise today to ask my esteemed colleagues for their enthusiastic support for an amendment that Representative CHET EDWARDS and I are offering.

Quite simply, this amendment makes certain that children and dependents of active service duty members can afford higher education. It guarantees in-State tuition for the dependents of military family members, and it ensures that these students may maintain their in-State rates even if a parent or guardian is reassigned out of State.

In Kansas, we have always believed that everyone who works hard should have the chance to succeed. Kansans believe that education should open doors, not close them. Education should create opportunities. Requiring military dependents to pay out-of-State tuition leaves military students, the children of our Nation's heroes, sometimes with debt as far as the eye can see.

I am proud that my State of Kansas, like many others, extends both benefits to military dependents. But now Congress must act to support servicemembers in all 50 States. All but five States in America offer in-State tuition to military dependents, and all but 17 preserve those in-State rates even if a loved one is reassigned.

Military parents, like all parents, want a high-quality and affordable education for their children. Due to the nature of their jobs, which often requires frequent moves, military families are too often faced with the extra challenge of making sure their children receive an affordable education without endlessly transferring schools.

Our country's servicemembers are making the ultimate sacrifice for us. It is our duty to do everything within our power to help them take care of their loved ones. We must help them serve with a clear mind, unworried about the financial security and educational futures of their children. The very last thing a soldier needs to worry about while navigating the streets of Baghdad is whether his or her child can pay for college.

I rise today to ask my esteemed colleagues for their enthusiastic support for the children of these heroes of our Nation's military.

□ 1415

Mr. McKEON. We are discussing all four amendments at this time en bloc?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is advised that there are five amendments en bloc: No. 3, Kildee; No. 8, Davis; No. 14, Lantos; No. 15, Edwards; and No. 20, Inslee.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection the gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, I support the amendments, with a couple of caveats. The Inslee amendment, while we are not objecting to this amendment, we do have some concerns about the consequences of the amendment. The requirement that these sustainability grants provide for greenhouse gas emissions reductions will increase operating costs for colleges and universities. If that happens, the result will be still higher tuition and fees for students at a time when we're trying to lower the cost of the higher education.

And some comments on the Susan Davis amendment. I appreciate the amendment. I served with Mrs. DAVIS on the Armed Services Committee, and I appreciate her efforts. There are some questions that I do have.

First, what her amendment does, it says that an individual that is serving on active duty during a war, performing qualifying National Guard duty during a war, military operation or national emergency and is serving in the area of hostilities in which service qualifies for special pay, I'm hopeful that that includes everyone that we're trying to reach in the service, and I'm not sure that that is totally inclusive for what she's trying to cover.

And then the next concern I have is that the borrower must have obtained their loan through the government-run direct loan program. Currently, the direct loan program only provides about 20 percent of the loans, so that would mean that if one of these military personnel got their loan through one of the other programs, they would be excluded from this. I believe her intention would be to grant this benefit to all serving in the military in wartime. So I'm hopeful that we can clean that up, make changes in that during the conference, because I believe that that's probably her intent on that.

And, finally, I would like to also say to my good friend, Mr. KILDEE, the 10 years have gone quickly. But he looks just as young as he did 10 years ago, and I appreciated working with him then, as I do now.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KILDEE. Madam Chairman, I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) for a unanimous consent request.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007, as reported by the Education and Labor Committee under the able leadership of the gentlemen from California, Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member McKEON.

I want to commend the chairman specifically for including in the bill a provision requiring the Government Accountability Office to examine the impact that law school accreditation requirements and other factors have on the costs of law school and student access to law school, including the impact of such requirements on racial and ethnic minorities. I would also like to thank my colleague Representative BOBBY SCOTT for his efforts to have this amendment included.

This provision is important and timely in light of a 15 year decline in minority law school enrollment documented by a Columbia Law School web site created in conjunction with the Society of American Law Teachers. As described in the National Law Journal and other publications, the site uses 12 graphs and nearly 200 data points to illustrate an 8.6 percent drop in law school enrollment among African American and Mexican American students between 1992 and 2006. This disturbing trend has occurred even while overall law school enrollment numbers have increased and admissions indicators for minority applicants have improved.

In addition, 2007 statistics from the Law School Admissions Council suggest that high shutout rates may be discouraging African American and Mexican American students from applying to law school in the first place; data show that the number of African American and Mexican American applicants has fallen significantly since 2004.

One certain factor in the trend is the overreliance of law schools and accreditors on L.S.A.T. scores as an admissions criterion and I expect the GAO study to bear that out.

In the meantime, Madam Chairman, this trend threatens great harm to minority and disadvantaged communities throughout the United States where the consequences will include reduced access to quality legal services and less economic opportunity and empowerment. It is therefore critical that Congress understand and take active steps to counteract the various factors that have contributed to the decline.

Realizing the promise of "equal justice under the law" requires that we ensure equal opportunity to legal education for students who come from, and intend to serve, our Nation's neediest communities. Despite the remarkable progress that has been made, many obstacles to opportunity remain. We cannot stand idle as minority underrepresentation in the legal profession increases.

So, as we await the results of the GAO study, I respectfully urge my colleagues on the Education Committee to conduct hearings that will illuminate the problem, its causes, and expert recommendations for alleviating it.

In closing, I will insert into the RECORD the aforementioned articles. There are current efforts underway by members of the Congressional Black and Hispanic Caucuses to formally request a hearing on this subject and to urge the ABA Section of Legal Education to adopt law school accreditation standards that are consistent with the goal of increasing minority representation in the legal profession.

Madam Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

MINORITY ENROLLMENT IS FALTERING
(By Leigh Jones)

A web site recently established by an elite law school paints a dismal picture of enrollment among certain minority groups in law schools generally—a picture that may well become still bleaker.

Enrollment of blacks and Mexican-Americans has fallen by 8.6% in the past 15 years, according to a Web site created by Columbia Law School and the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT).

The decline has occurred as applications to law schools among those two groups have remained constant and as law school enrollment overall has increased since 1992.

With law schools continuing to revere U.S. News & World Report rankings and with anti-affirmative action initiatives possibly being on the ballot in five states in November, it appears that the situation may only worsen.

"It's not a pipeline problem," said Conrad Johnson, clinical professor of law at Columbia. Johnson and two law students working with the school's Lawyering in the Digital Age Clinic helped create the Web site, along with SALT. He said that the statistics, compiled from information provided by the Law School Admission Council, dispute the notion that the low enrollment numbers among blacks and Mexican-Americans are due to dwindling applications from those groups.

EYE ON RANKINGS

From 1992 to 2006, the number of blacks and Mexican-Americans enrolled in the nation's law schools accredited by the American Bar Association (ABA) fell from 3,937 to 3,595. During that same time period, the number of ABA accredited law schools grew from 176 to 195.

Johnson acknowledged an uptick in African-American enrollment in 2006, the biggest increase in 10 years, but he said that a combination of both groups showed a continuous decline during the 15-year period.

Vernellia Randall, a professor at University of Dayton School of Law and creator of the The Whitest Law School Report, said that law schools, concerned about their U.S. News & World Report rankings, are requiring higher scores from applicants on the Law School Admission Test (LSAT), which has resulted in lower admission numbers among people from the two minority groups.

In the rankings, a school's median LSAT score is part of a larger score designed to measure a school's selectivity in choosing applicants who enter an incoming class. Selectivity accounts for 25% of a school's ranking.

The Columbia Law School Web site notes that LSAT and grade-point average scores have increased among African-American and Mexican-American applicants. But more demanding requirements from law schools continue to outpace improvements in scores, Randall said.

"It's going to get a whole lot worse before it gets better," she said.

U.S. News & World Report does not include diversity as one of the factors in the rankings, but it does publish a separate ranking of law schools that have high minority enrollment numbers. Revamping the general law school rankings to include diversity as a factor would be difficult, said Robert Morse, director of data research at U.S. News & World Report.

Not only would the standard need to account for the difference in minority populations in various parts of the country, but the rankings would require a value judgment regarding which minority groups' enrollment "improved" a school, he said.

Part of the concern about the low numbers relates to efforts in five states to ban race- and gender-based preferences. Arizona, Colorado, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma all have initiatives under way to place questions on November ballots that would end programs that increase minority and female numbers in education and in government. The effort is led by Ward Connerly, president of the American Civil Liberties Institute, which led successful efforts to ban such preferences in California, Michigan and Washington. "Preferences are morally wrong," said Connerly, who is black.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 2003 in Grutter v. Bollinger, 539 U.S. 306, that the University of Michigan Law School's race-preference admissions policy served a compelling interest in maintaining a diverse student body.

Marquette University Law School Dean Joseph Kearney said his school relies heavily on affirmative action to recruit minorities. Marquette was ranked No. 8 among Randall's latest ranking of the "Whitest Law Schools." Its student body is 89.5% white, with black enrollment equaling 2.7% and Mexican-Americans making up 0.7%, according to the 2007 ABA Official Guide to ABA Approved Law Schools.

Kearney, who challenges the validity of Randall's list, attributes his school's low numbers to competition from its state competitor, University of Wisconsin Law School, which has lower tuition and is aggressive on minority recruitment.

ENROLLMENT DECLINE REPORTED FOR MINORITY LAW STUDENTS

(By Vesna Jakšic)

Columbia Law School has launched a Web site documenting the declining trend of minority students' enrollment in law schools.

The site calls the trend disturbing and says that while African-American and Mexican-American students have applied to law schools in relatively constant numbers over the last 15 years, their representation has fallen by 8.6 percent, from 3,937 in 1992 to 3,595 in 2006. The site points out that this is occurring at a time minority students' leading admissibility indicators have improved and the number of law schools has increased to provide room for nearly 4,000 more students.

The Web site was created by Columbia Law School's Lawyering in the Digital Age Clinic, in collaboration with the Society of American Law Teachers, or SALT. It contains 12 graphs and nearly 200 data points based on yearly Law School Admission Council statistics.

"We need diversity in our legal profession to promote better legal education and fairness in our system of justice," Conrad Johnson, clinical professor of law at Columbia and a member of SALT's board of directors, said in a news release.

The site also includes an analysis of Grutter v. Bollinger, the 2003 U.S. Supreme Court decision that reaffirmed the limited use of affirmative action in university and law school admissions.

Columbia Law School students Christina Quintero and Jeffrey Penn helped create the Web site as part of their Lawyering in the Digital Age Clinic. The clinic provides hands-on experience in digital technologies that help shape the legal profession. Through the clinic, students work with public interest lawyers and members of the judiciary and handle issues such as eviction cases, advocate to restore government benefits and help organize pro bono efforts.

STUDY SHOWS GRIM OUTLOOK FOR MINORITY LAW-SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

(By Peter Lattman)

Law-school enrollment of African-Americans and Mexican-Americans has fallen by 8.6 percent in the past 15 years, according to a Web site created by Columbia Law and the Society of American Law Teachers. And with anti-affirmative action admissions measures gaining traction around the country, the numbers could get worse, according to an NLJ story.

The decline has come as applications to law schools among those minority groups have remained constant and law school enrollment overall has risen since 1992.

"It's not a pipeline problem," said Conrad Johnson (pictured), a clinical professor at Columbia and Law Blog Moustache Society, who helped create the site. The stats, compiled from LSAC data, counter the notion that minorities are submitting fewer law-school applications. He did acknowledge an increase in blacks' student enrollment in 2006, but said that the numbers are in overall decline.

Another professor, Vernellia Randall, a professor at Dayton Law who created something called The Whitest Law School Report, agrees, and thinks one reason is that schools are requiring higher LSAT scores, which results in lower admission numbers for minority groups. "It's going to get a whole lot worse before it gets better," she told the NLJ.

"The net result is that . . . law schools are not progressing towards more inclusive admissions," concludes the Columbia Law clinic's Web site. "This affects everyone who is concerned about better education and a more representative legal profession."

Readers, from your vantage point, what are the biggest hurdles to minority advancement in the law?

Mr. EDWARDS. Madam Chairman, I rise today in support of an amendment that includes the language of H.R. 3780, the Military Child College Affordability Act, to ensure that military dependents receive in-state college tuition. I urge my colleagues to do the same.

There are two serious problems that this amendment addresses. First, there are states that do not give military families in-state tuition rates even when the service member is stationed there. For example, dependents of service members stationed in Michigan must pay $31,302 per year to attend University of Michigan. This is in contrast to the $10,448 yearly cost for in-state tuition, resulting in a $20,854 education tax on our military families.

The second problem is that in 17 states, military sons and daughters have to start paying out-of-state tuition if their parents are re-stationed to another state. For example, in California, if a military connected college student is enrolled in the University of California system, his or her yearly tuition jumps from the in-state level of $7,347 to $19,068 if their parents are transferred out of state, despite the fact that the student could have already been enrolled for several semesters.

Let me share with you an example of the effects of this additional burden on our military families. This is from the spouse of a military wife, stationed with her husband in Hawaii.

My daughter is a junior at the University of Hawaii. We have been able to pay in-state tuition because my spouse is stationed here. My spouse was deployed to Iraq in August of 2006 and returned after 15 months. He is most likely going to [be re-stationed] in January of 2008. The university has informed us that as soon as he leaves, we will have to pay out of state tuition.

This would cause the tuition they pay for their daughter to jump from $5,952 per year to $16,608 for her last year of college.

This same family's younger daughter is affected as well. I quote from her mother's letter: "It is enough that our daughters will not see their Dad for the last two years, but now we are telling them that she may not be able to attend University of Hawaii because we will be charged out of state prices."

This amendment mandates in-state tuition benefits for military dependents if their parent is stationed or domiciled in that state. Further, this amendment would say that a military child can continue to pay in-state tuition if his or her parent is re-stationed outside of that respective state after the son or daughter has started college.

It is my belief that we have asked enough of our military families already, and should not require them to pay unfair tuition rates to send their children to college. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment and the children of the United States Armed Forces.

Mr. KILDEE. Again, Madam Chairman, I urge support for these amendments en bloc, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments en bloc offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HINOJOSA).

The amendments en bloc were agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. PETRI

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. PETRI:
Page 451, line 24, strike "and"; on page 452, line 5, strike the period and insert "; and"; and after such line insert the following new paragraph:

"(8) the feasibility of a specific alternative market-based mechanism that will—

"(A) determine lender returns;

"(B) result in reduced Federal costs on a program-wide basis, on loans made, insured, or guaranteed under part B of this title, excluding from consideration the Federal PLUS loans described in section 428B that are the subject of the competitive loan auction pilot program under this section;

"(C) include not more than—

"(i) 10 percent of the annual loan volume under this part B of this title during the first year of the alternative pilot program; and

"(ii) 20 percent of the annual loan volume under this part B of this title during the subsequent years of the alternative pilot program;

"(D) permit participation in any alternative auction-based pilot program on a voluntary basis for eligible institutions and eligible lenders participating under part B of this title prior to July 1, 2007; and

"(E) provide for all savings to the United States Treasury generated by such alternative pilot program to be distributed to institutions participating under this section on a basis proportionate to loan volume under such part for supplemental, need-based financial aid, except that an institution that is operating as an eligible lender under section 435(d)(2) shall not be eligible for any such distribution.

Page 452, line 14, strike the close quotation marks and following period, and after line 14 insert the following new subsection:

"(e) INDEPENDENT EVALUATION.—The Government Accountability Office shall conduct an independent evaluation of any auction or auctions conducted under this section no later than September 1, 2013."

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. PETRI) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, my alternative market study mechanism, which is before us, this amendment would significantly advance our understanding of market-based reforms to the guaranteed student loan program that were begun last year during our consideration of the College Cost Reduction Act. This Congress has demonstrated significant interest in developing some type of comprehensive market-based reform in order to overhaul the guaranteed loan program and make certain that taxpayers' interests are better served.

Last year, I had the opportunity to offer an amendment in the Education and Labor Committee to the College Cost Reduction Act to study and pilot a market-based reform, such as an auction, to determine how the Federal Government may better determine lender yields to reduce wasteful spending in the guaranteed loan program. This amendment was adopted in the committee and included in the bipartisan House-passed bill last summer.

Well, I was pleased that an auction pilot was included in the final law. There is growing concern among reformers, the lending industry, and the administration that the Senate model which was adopted may have significant implementation and logistical challenges.

However, this bill presents us with an opportunity to further study and consider an effective market-based reform proposal. So the amendment before us would simply amend the current auction pilot evaluation language included in this bill to require the Secretaries of Education and the Treasury, in conjunction with the Government Accounting Office, the Office of Management and Budget, and the Congressional Budget Office, to evaluate the feasibility of an alternative market-based reform to the Federal Family Education Loan Program. The alternative should reduce Federal costs to taxpayers and use savings to increase need-based grants to lower-income students.

I'd urge Members to support this amendment to further our understanding of market-based reform options. The study would mark an important step toward fully understanding market-based reforms of the program and would build on reforms incorporated in the College Cost Reduction Access Act. And again I'd ask my colleagues to support an alternative market mechanism study amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, this amendment essentially requires a feasibility study on market mechanisms that could then be used to determine lender returns when making student loans. Had we not just adopted an auction process for student loans in the recently passed budget cutting bill, this might make sense.

This amendment may be couched in terms of a study; however, it's difficult to see how the Secretary would study something like this without actually implementing a broader pilot, and that is the main concern that we have.

The Department of Education conducted a market mechanism study several years ago with the GAO and others. That extensive study did not find auctions to be a workable mechanism for administering the student loan program. Taking another look several years later may have shed new light on the subject.

We need the Department to focus on the creation and evaluation of this auction before we decide to push for studies or implementations of other auctions.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, we'd just say that it's important for us to get informed, knowledgeable advice as to how to operate the student loan programs, the direct program, and the guarantee program better. In the past, we've adopted pretty much a political-based approach of Congress setting the amount of the guarantee that private lenders receive for making student loans. In the reform act this summer, we cut that and tried to put in place a pilot approach coming from the Senate for a market-based mechanism. This would broaden the study; and, I think, would, in fact, be something that will end up saving the taxpayer money if it works. And if it doesn't work, we're no worse off. It's a study.

So I don't understand the reluctance to try to get the Treasury Department and experts in this area. We have auctions for loans weekly to finance the debt of our country. And we certainly can do a better job of pricing the guaranteed student loan program.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PETRI. I certainly do.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I just want to rise and I think support this amendment. I think in the context of going to the conference committee, where we know the Senate has an auction provision, I think, well given even there, where we've done, we have this provision in the reconciliation bill to look at an auction to see whether we can do it and make it feasible, this may be helpful in us making some determinations about how we proceed on that effort and how the Department proceeds on that effort. So I would support the amendment.

Mr. PETRI. I thank the chairman.

I certainly would urge the chairman and the ranking minority member on the committee, as they go to conference, to keep an open mind on this proposal so we can do the best job with the taxpayers' money and help students get their loans in a cost-effective manner.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, it pains me to oppose the amendment of my good friend from Wisconsin. We've served now on the Education Committee together for almost 16 years, and he's always concerned about protecting the taxpayer and the taxpayer dollars.

I think that I'm not so concerned about the study. It's the way the amendment is drafted that looks like it will impose the full program before the study so that the study could be made complete. And I understand that auctions are taking place all the time, but they're not generally done by the Department of Education. They're done by the Department of the Treasury and other branches. I'm not sure the Department of Education has that expertise.

But as we move forward on this, hopefully, maybe in conference, this could be cleared up and the intent of the gentleman could be carried out. That would be my hope.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. PETRI).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 5 OFFERED BY MR. PETRI

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 5 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 5 offered by Mr. PETRI:

Page 359, beginning on line 13, strike subparagraphs (C), (D), and (E) and insert the following (and redesignate the succeeding paragraphs accordingly):

“(C) with respect to each of the guaranty agencies operating under a guaranty agreement under section 428(c)—

“(i) un-reconciled balances in held loans by year of origination;

“(ii) status and number of defaulted loans by length of default in 30-day increments; and

“(iii) status and number of delinquent loans by length of delinquency in 30-day increments;

(d) AUDIT OF FEDERAL FAMILY EDUCATION LOAN PROGRAM PORTFOLIO AND GUARANTY AGENCIES.—The Secretary of Education shall have a financial and compliance audit of all guaranty agencies participating in the loan programs under part B of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (including each guaranty agencies' contract for the servicing, collecting, and related activities of such loans), conducted annually by a qualified independent organization from a list of qualified organizations promulgated by the Secretary in accordance with the standards established by the Comptroller General. The standards shall measure the guaranty agency's compliance with the due diligence standards and shall include a defined statistical sampling technique designed to measure the performance rating of the guaranty agency for the purpose of this subsection. The Secretary shall submit the audit to Congress within 60 days of its completion and shall at the same time make the results of the audit publicly available.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. PETRI) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, this amendment should be much less controversial than the one that just passed. As you're aware, the Federal Government runs two Federal student loan programs that provide the same affordable loans to American students: the Federal Family Education or Guaranteed Loan Program, and the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program.

In the past year, a significant amount of attention has been paid to the scandal-ridden and wasteful guaranteed loan program. Reducing excessive subsidies was the primary goal of the bipartisan College Cost Reduction and Access Act that was enacted last September, and we have seen some success. But this program was so embroiled with illegal and unethical activity between lenders and financial aid officers that sweeping new rules are included in this higher education reform act aimed at ending these relationships and providing much greater transparency for students and for taxpayers.

Given all of the abuse that's occurred in the guaranteed program, imagine my surprise when an amendment ended up being adopted which had the effect of targeting the direct loan program and a seemingly innocuous amendment to audit the direct loan program contained a series of reporting requirements applied only to the direct loan program which were designed to make it appear the program was performing more poorly than the tarnished guaranteed program.

I should note that despite the scores of improprieties documented in the guaranteed loan program, the direct loan program has had no similar ethical abuses. Further, it has been scored as significantly cheaper by the Office of Management Budget, CBO and GAO, since its inception in the early 1900s.

Now it will be one thing if the amendment applied these new reporting provisions equally to both the guarantee and direct programs, and I'm encouraged that the author of the amendment, my respected colleague from the State of Georgia (Mr. PRICE), has indicated that that is his intent, and I'm hoping that we can, in fact, adopt this amendment to apply requirements to both programs.

But this language currently in the bill has the effect of undermining the direct loan program, boosting the guaranteed loan program's performance in comparison, and the amendment before us addresses the language.

Madam Chairman, what is good for the goose is good for the gander. The amendment would maintain the audit and most of the reporting requirements added to the direct loan program but would also require comparable audits in reporting for guaranty agencies in the Guaranteed Loan program. I have no doubt the direct loan program will pass the audit with shining colors, and

I look forward to the report. I hope the same can be said of the Guaranteed Loan program.

I would ask support for the amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Madam Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The ACTING CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Madam Chairman, I want to commend my friend from Wisconsin for his willingness to continue to work on this. We've got some disagreements about it, although we are basically saying the same thing, that we want both of the programs to be treated equally, and I certainly concur with that. I also want to thank the chairman and the ranking member for their work on this as we went through committee, but at this time I rise to oppose this amendment.

H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, really has been a product of significant and extensive thoughtful deliberation over many Congresses. One example, I believe, of that thoughtfulness is section 454, which is included in the manager's amendment, which is a provision asking for an independent audit of the direct loan program and greater disclosure of the program's impact on the national debt. In fact, that provision was unanimously adopted in our committee during markup.

Now, why is this important? Well, it's important because the direct loan program amazingly is not currently subject to the routine audits that examine all of these issues. Further, the government finances the direct loan program by borrowing, and so it contributes in some way that we believe ought to be determined, and that was the purpose of the amendment. It contributes in some way directly to that national debt.

Now, we all talk about transparency, and I'm all for transparency. Transparency is critical if we are going to, here in Congress, get a handle on evaluating the student lending program and make the best decisions for college access and affordability. Unfortunately, I believe that this amendment being offered undermines that congressional oversight and paralyzes section 454.

I also believe that it weakens the independent audit portion of the direct loan program. Private lenders under the FFEL, the Federal Family Education Loan program, are subject to full and regular audits, and this section in the bill is intended to subject the direct loan program to similar full and regular audits. That's the common ground that we talk about and hopefully will be able to find as we move forward.

As an example, the amendment also eliminates a requirement to the direct loan audit that includes an examination of the unreconciled balances of loans by year of origination. This is a key piece of information for the FFEL program, the loans must be reconciled every year, while the direct loan program is not held to the same standards. So by weakening the independent audit of the direct loan program, the amendment would eliminate the portion requiring disclosure of the program's impact on the national debt.

And just as a matter of information, we all here in Congress should know about that.

In closing, Members, I believe, need to remember that all of this that is being done, in essence, would add a duplicate audit ability for the FFEL programs and not the same for the direct loan programs. I look forward to working with my colleague from Wisconsin and the chairman and ranking member as we move forward. Both the direct loan and FFEL program should be held up to the light of day so the taxpayers know what they're getting from their tax dollars.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, how much time do I have remaining?

The ACTING CHAIRMAN. Each side has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. PETRI. I yield to the chairman of the full committee such time as he may consume.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the gentleman from Wisconsin's amendment. I think having these parallel audits, these are two programs that, for the sake of the taxpayer, compete with one another, and I think that that's important.

I was encouraged to see in the President's 2009 budget that, for the first time, the taxpayer costs for student borrowing through the FFEL program are closer to the more efficient direct loan programs, taking into account what we did in the reconciliation bill. I was also interested to see that still we see that it costs only one-fourth as much to make a direct loan as it does to make a FFEL loan program.

So I think that we should be encouraged and we should be prepared to have these audits, because I think the taxpayer is winning this discussion, thanks in large part to the efforts of Mr. PETRI over many years, to have this kind of comparison, this kind of discussion. Many of the recommendations that we made in the reconciliation bill were, in fact, the recommendations of the Bush administration from the office of OMB about the cost of that program. We were able to take that money out, recycle it in favor of students and families borrowing the money to drive down the cost of borrowing that money and increase the Pell Grants. Now we see that we are still 25 percent cheaper for the taxpayers than the FFEL program.

Mr. PETRI. Madam Chairman, I just have to say, this is important, because, on the one hand, if you treat a direct loan as adding to the debt with no offset because it is a loan which will be repaid, the loan is an asset, there should be some offset, you can get a very misleading picture. If you are co-signing a note, you are liable on the note, and that's what we do when we guarantee these private loans.

So zero costs in the direct program and outlay. And it misleads, too, because unless you compare apples and apples, you can have a badly distorted picture.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Madam Chairman, I want to once again say we are happy to have the same review in the audit of both the lending programs. You have heard that some individuals believe that the direct loans are cheaper than the FFEL programs, the loans, and, in fact, official government reports all agree that the budget scoring rules do not, I repeat, do not capture the real economic cost of both of these student loan programs. They agree all of the costs should be accounted for when comparing the two programs. Madam Chairwoman, I think we are, in fact, saying a lot of the same thing.

I look forward to working with my friend from Wisconsin, with the ranking member, and with the chairman as we move forward to the conference committee. In the meantime, however, I'm obliged to urge my colleagues to vote "no" on this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. PETRI).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. PRICE from Georgia. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 6 OFFERED BY MR. CASTLE

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 6 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 6 offered by Mr. CASTLE:

In section 133(d) of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended by section 109 of the bill:

- (1) insert "(1)" after "TASK FORCES.—";
- (2) redesignate paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (E);
- (3) strike "and" at the end of subparagraph (C) as so redesignated;
- (4) insert after such subparagraph (C) the following new subparagraph:

“(D) develop annual benchmarks for the institution to reduce costs in areas identified under subparagraph (C); and”.

(5) add at the end the following new paragraph:

“(2) An institution of higher education that does not meet the benchmarks established under paragraph (1)(D) shall provide to the Secretary a detailed explanation of the reasons why the institution did not meet such benchmarks.”.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Chairman, I will claim the time in opposition, although I do not intend to oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California will be recognized in due time.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I'm pleased to offer this college cost accountability amendment to the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, which I also support, legislation to reform and strengthen many of the Nation's higher education programs.

As you know, for over a decade, Congress has worked on the behalf of students and families in an effort to solve the college cost crisis. Today we will have the opportunity to vote on these bipartisan college cost reforms.

We all can agree on the need to hold down the costs of college, and I believe we're making progress by providing additional support to minority-serving institutions, teacher quality grants, grants supporting veteran student success, and other positive changes. I would like to also note the provisions included to help us better track annual changes in tuition, fees, and room and board costs for undergraduate students. All of the information collected will be made publicly available on the department's College Navigator Web site so that students and their parents have better access to cost increases at various institutions.

While each of these provisions take steps in the right direction to combat college costs, I believe we can go farther to uncover what is driving college costs and hopefully stem the tide of this growth that threatens access to higher education for many American students.

My amendment expands the responsibilities of the quality task forces established in the underlying legislation by requiring them to develop annual benchmarks for the top 5 percent of institutions that have the largest increase in their tuition and fees over the most recent 3-year period. If these institutions fail to meet these benchmarks, rather than punishing these schools with legislative penalties, institutions are simply required to provide the Secretary of Education with a detailed explanation of the reasons why they failed to do so.

I am supportive of the underlying legislation which makes reforms for our institutions of higher learning, parents and students, and my amendment will build upon the provisions set forth in the introduced legislation to make tuition increases even more transparent and help ensure colleges are doing everything possible to reduce college costs so that any student wishing to obtain a higher education may do so.

I urge my colleagues to support my amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Chairman, I would simply rise in support of the amendment. I think that the effort that is being made here by Mr. CASTLE will, in fact, add to some understanding by the public and some transparency for those of us who have to make policy as to exactly what's going on with the increase in college costs. I think these kinds of explanations will be important for all of us, and we welcome the amendment.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairman, I thank the distinguished chairman for his kind words about the amendment and for his work, along with Mr. MCKEON and Mr. KELLER and others and Mr. TIERNEY on the legislation, and I urge everybody to support the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 7 OFFERED BY MR. DAVIS OF ILLINOIS

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 7 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 7 offered by Mr. DAVIS of Illinois:

At the end of the bill, add the following (and make such technical and conforming changes as may be appropriate):

TITLE XI—RELATED AMENDMENTS

SEC. 1101. TREATMENT IN BANKRUPTCY.

Section 523(a)(8) of title 11, the United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A)(i) by striking “or made” and all that follows through “institution”, and inserting “or made under any program funded in whole or in part by a governmental unit, or made under any program in which a substantial portion of the funds for making such overpayment or loan is provided by a nonprofit institution or an institution of higher education as defined in section 102 of the Higher Education Act and in which no part is funded by a governmental unit”; and

(2) in subparagraph (B) by inserting before the semicolon at the end the following:

“unless the period beginning on the date when such loan first became due and ending on the date of the filing of the petition, excluding any time during such period when the repayment obligation was deferred while the borrower was attending an eligible educational institution as defined in section 221(d)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, is longer than 5 years”.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Unlike most kinds of debt, student loans of all types are currently nondischargeable in bankruptcy, except on a judicial finding of undue hardship. Under this amendment, government student loans, Federal and State, and loans made directly by nonprofit entities would remain nondischargeable. Other student loans made by for-profit banks and other lenders would continue to be nondischargeable for the first 5 years after they come due, but after that, they would be treated like other unsecured consumer loans in bankruptcy.

This amendment also closes the loophole that lenders were beginning to pursue just before the 2005 changes went into effect. Currently, loans that are funded in whole or in part by a nonprofit institution are nondischargeable. Lenders offering private student loans were setting up affiliations with nonprofit institutions in order to take advantage of this loophole, even though the nonprofit was not the source of funding.

The current law is unfair to students. Students who take out student loans are trying to better themselves and contribute to the advancement of our economy. Unlike Federal student loans, private loans lack basic consumer protections, such as limits on interest rates, loan limits, and flexible payments; yet the bankruptcy law treats student loan borrowers who face financial tragedy in the same severe manner as people trying to escape child support payments, alimony, overdue taxes, and criminal fines. People should not be punished for trying to get an education.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Davis amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. McKEON. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This amendment changes the Bankruptcy Code in a way that will add uncertainty and additional risk to student lending. And I can't help but think that this will further restrict students' access to loans at a time when they're already finding it harder to obtain loans due to the current instability of the credit market.

Madam Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to a member of the Judiciary Committee, the ranking member of Commercial and Administrative Law that has jurisdiction for the Bankruptcy Code, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON).

Mr. CANNON. Madam Chairman, this amendment will undo an important provision of the Bankruptcy Code that was enacted just 2 years ago in the bipartisan Bankruptcy Abuse, Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005. It will increase risk for student lending, risk that the lending market will respond to by restricting the availability of credit.

The bankruptcy law currently allows student loans to be discharged if the graduate is facing an undue hardship. This policy provides balance by protecting truly unfortunate graduates, while still preserving the integrity of student loans.

This amendment will eviscerate this policy by removing the undue hardship requirement for private sector student loans, allowing these loans to be discharged 5 years after graduation. Federally guaranteed loans can still be discharged only upon a showing of undue hardship. Accordingly, the private market, which is the most sensitive to risk, bears the burden of this change. Students looking for loans in the future will have a hard time finding them. Inevitably, students would encounter higher interest rates, shorter payment periods, and other more restrictive lending terms as lenders look to avoid potential losses in bankruptcy.

The amendment, in short, would damage, not advance, the cost of education. There is no free lunch and there is no free bankruptcy. We can do better for our students, and we can do better for our system of higher education. This amendment would undo an important provision of the Bankruptcy Code enacted just 2 years ago. If there is one thing that is important in commercial law, including bankruptcy law, it's stability. Lenders and investors must have confidence that Congress will not constantly change the rules of the game.

We will send the wrong message if a mere 2 years after BAPCPA's passage we begin to tinker with the provisions of the new bankruptcy law. Regrettably, the pattern is already beginning to emerge in this Congress. It can and should be stopped.

Capricious treatment of creditors in bankruptcy can have only one effect, the chilling of lending and investment. Changes in the Bankruptcy Code ought to receive the scrutiny of the Judiciary Committee. Since the Davis amendment is not being considered by the Judiciary Committee, the congressional experts on bankruptcy have had no opportunity to vet it through in regular order. This amendment will do more harm than good and will affect the availability of student loans in the future.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the chairman of the Education Committee, the Honorable GEORGE MILLER.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I rise in strong support of this amendment, and I thank the gentleman for offering it.

We now see that, almost like the subprime home mortgages, that these private student loans have been offered to a great number of people who it's questionable about whether or not they can pay it back. And we now see these private lenders retreating from this market because they know they've now made loans that they're not going to be able to sell off to others. They've made questionable loans.

These loans look more and more like consumer loans because there's no requirement that the people who take out these loans in the direct marketing to students, a student signs up, gets a loan, they don't have to pay their tuition, they don't have to pay their books, they don't have to pay their dormitory fees. They're consumer loans. They can buy beer and pizza, they can buy flat screened TVs, and they ought to be treated like those consumer loans. That's why this amendment is supported by the American Association of Community Colleges, the Association of State Colleges and Universities, the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities, the Consumer Federation of America, the Consumers Union, the United States Students Association, the U.S. Public Interest Groups, because they all recognize that this is far different than the public loans that families and students take out where there's arrangements to work out and help those students if they get into trouble. That's not the case with the private loans.

Let the marketplace work. They are now charging these students 18 and 20 percent, and we ought to understand what that means to the future of these students. We ought to support the Davis amendment.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, may I inquire as to the time remaining.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The proponents have 2½ minutes remaining; opponents have 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. McKEON. And we have the right to close?

The Acting CHAIRMAN. That is correct.

Mr. McKEON. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Chairman, it's my pleasure to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia, a member of the Judiciary Committee, Representative HANK JOHNSON.

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. On behalf of Congressman JOHN LEWIS, Chair of the full committee, and as a member of the Commercial and Administrative Law Subcommittee, I rise in support of the Davis amendment.

Bankruptcy relief provides a critical last resort economic safety net for those in dire financial need. It gives a fresh start to honest and deserving debtors so they can regain their financial footing on which to rebuild a productive life, which is good for them as well as for society.

My colleague, the gentleman from Illinois, seeks to restore some balance with respect to the dischargeability of certain student loans. This is an excellent measure for the following reasons: one, it ensures that predatory for-profit lenders cannot take advantage of a current provision in bankruptcy law intended to protect nonprofit institutions that make educational loans; and, second, the amendment instills some moderation with respect to the dischargeability of certain educational loans made by private sector lenders which under current bankruptcy law can be nondischargeable no matter how long ago the loan was made.

So for those reasons, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Chairman, I yield myself the balance of our time.

For many of these students who secure loans without the protection of bankruptcy, it's like receiving a life sentence with no appeal. That is to say, they get a loan that is supposed to help them get a college degree, an education so that they can pay the loan off. Unfortunately, many of them are stuck on $70,000, $80,000, $90,000, $100,000 that they're never able to pay. And so they struggle along for the rest of their lives trying to pay off a loan that was supposed to have secured for them a level of financial ability.

I would urge that we pass this amendment to give those hundreds and thousands of students throughout the country the simple protection of bankruptcy that is provided for individuals with any other consumer loan.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. McKEON. Madam Chairman, I yield the remainder of my time to the subcommittee ranking member of Higher Education, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. KELLER).

Mr. KELLER of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Chairman, I know what Mr. DAVIS is trying to do here, and I'm sympathetic. He realizes, like we all do, that people are hurting and they're paying higher costs for mortgages and health insurance and gas prices and college tuition. And so for those folks who can't make their student loan payments, let's give them some relief in bankruptcy court. The challenge is, this is going to help a small number of people, but hurt a larger number of people.

If you allow this to go forward, then what you have is a much higher risk loan that will result in the lenders having no choice but to charge higher interest rates for new students getting loans, higher origination fees. They will require a higher credit score. Now, since most 18-year-old kids don't have good credit scores, you would have to look to their parents as cosigners. What does that mean? The kids from wealthy families, whose mom and dad have a high credit score and have lots of assets to back up as collateral, nice home, Mercedes, are going to get student loans. The poor kids in the future who you're trying to help whose parents don't have a high credit score are going to have to pay a lot higher interest rate for loans and origination fees. And their mom and dad may not have the collateral to get them a loan if that's required in these private loans.

So it's going to have the unintended consequences of restricting credit in the future. It's also very unfair to lenders who made loans 10 years ago to have this applied retroactively.

Now, what is a better way? The better way is the current system. You get out of school, you've got 10 years to make your payment, and if you can't make it, you work with the lenders for more flexible options, let you pay over 25 years. The Bankruptcy Code already provides a provision for undue hardship for those people who truly need it.

Let's go with the better approach. And that's why it would have been better to have the Judiciary Committee have jurisdiction over this issue, because we could have flushed it out. That was skipped in this process. And while the intentions are good, the consequences are bad. And I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on Mr. DAVIS' amendment.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCKEON. Madam Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 9 OFFERED BY MR. SESTAK

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 9 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. SESTAK. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 9 offered by Mr. SESTAK:
Page 335, after line 14, insert the following new paragraph:

“(14) PHYSICAL THERAPISTS.—Individuals who are physical therapists and who are providing physical therapy services to children, adolescents, or veterans.

Page 338, after line 21, insert the following new paragraph (and redesignate the succeeding paragraphs accordingly):

“(5) PHYSICAL THERAPIST.—The term ‘physical therapist’ means an individual who—

“(A) has received, at a minimum, a graduate degree in physical therapy from an institution of higher education accredited by an agency or association recognized by the Secretary pursuant to section 496(a) of this Act; and

“(B) provides physical therapy services under 1861(p) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(p)), or meets or exceeds the qualifications for a qualified physical therapist as determined by State law.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SESTAK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SESTAK. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Today our country faces significant labor shortages in occupations that are vital to our educational, health and, therefore, our national security.

I thank Chairman MILLER and ranking member, Mr. MCKEON, for their efforts to expand the professional areas of recognition where there is a national need which is critically important as we attempt to ensure an adequate workforce for services that are vital to all Americans.

In this vein, I believe the list of health occupations for which national need exists must also include physical therapists. Recent reports have shown that our country does not have an adequate number of physical therapists to meet our growing needs.

According to the American Hospital Association, therapists represent the occupation for which the greatest percentage of vacancies exist in our hospitals across our Nation, at an 11.4 percent vacancy rate. This is at a time when the demand for physical therapist employment is projected to grow 27 percent within 8 years, even as 58 percent of our hospitals are reporting in 2006 that therapist recruitment was more difficult than the year before. I, therefore, believe it is imperative we add physical therapists in the area of national need to ensure the Secretary of Education has direction to provide loan repayment to physical therapists.

Compounding this challenge of our national need for physical therapists exceeding our supply are already 31,000 servicemen and -women who have returned home from the war in Afghanistan and Iraq to recover from wounds sustained in the service of their country.

Physical therapists will, therefore, continue to play an integral role in rehabilitating our Nation's veterans as they cope with injuries from the battlefield. To ensure the proper care and recovery of those who have sacrificed their well-being to protect us, we must address our shortage of physical therapists.

This amendment to include physical therapists as individuals in an occupation of national need, supported by the American Physical Therapy Association, is a necessary and practical measure to attract students to this profession. The loan repayment incentive of up to $10,000 for students who obtain a graduate degree in physical therapy which results from designating physical therapy as an area of national need will encourage more students to enter the profession and help alleviate these growing vacancies.

I, therefore, urge my colleagues to support this commonsense amendment that highlights this issue of utmost importance for everyone, but also including the veterans who are returning from our wars overseas.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I claim the time in opposition, although I'm not opposed to the amendment. I don't have any objection to it. But at this time I would like to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESTAK. I yield back the remainder of my time.

□ 1500

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I would like to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. PRICE).

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Madam Chairman, I want to commend the author of what I think is an appropriate amendment of loan forgiveness.

As an orthopedic surgeon, I worked closely with physical therapists, and they are integral to the healing process in so many areas. Another group also is the occupational therapists. And we have been contacted by them, and I would be pleased to enter into a colloquy or ask my friend if he would consider throughout the process if we can work toward including the occupational therapists in this area as well.

Mr. SESTAK. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SESTAK. Sir, that 11.4 percent was for all therapists including the three categories, including the occupational. So with the chairman and ranking member's agreement, I would like to do so.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Reclaiming my time, Madam Chairman, I thank the gentleman. That being the case and as we move forward, I look forward to supporting this as we broaden the therapists that are included.

Mr. BERRY. Madam Chairman, ensuring health care, including physical therapy services, is available to those who need it most is vital to our Nation. I support the Sestak amendment to H.R. 4137, The College Opportunity and Affordability Act, which would add physical therapists to the "national need" section of this legislation so that they may qualify for student loan forgiveness. As a lead sponsor of the Physical Therapist Student Loan Repayment Eligibility Act, H.R. 1134, I understand the student loan debt challenges faced by physical therapists, who along with nursing, are currently the only health care profession listed in shortage on the Department of Labor's Schedule A classification. I am joined on H.R. 1134 by Representative JO ANN EMERSON and 113 bipartisan cosponsors who support adding physical therapists who agree to practice in rural and underserved areas to the list of providers eligible to participate in the National Health Service Corps Student Loan Repayment Program. The Sestak amendment, while it does not address access to care for every patient in rural and urban underserved areas, would help begin to address this need by granting student loan forgiveness to physical therapists who care for children, adolescents or veterans.

Physical therapists treat patients of all ages who have medical problems or other health-related conditions that limit their abilities to move and perform functional activities in their daily lives. These services are essential to many children with disabilities in Arkansas and across our Nation. Physical therapists also work with patients to prevent the loss of mobility by developing fitness and wellness oriented programs for healthier and more active lifestyles which are essential in addressing our Nation's obesity crisis.

I encourage my colleagues to support the Sestak amendment and also to join as a cosponsor on the bill to include physical therapists in the National Health Service Corps, H.R. 1134.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SESTAK).

AMENDMENT NO. 10 OFFERED BY MR. SESTAK

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 10 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. SESTAK. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 10 offered by Mr. SESTAK: Page 418, strike lines 19 through 21 and insert the following:

“(C) management systems regarding course equivalency, transfer of credit, and articulation; and

Page 419, beginning on line 22, strike “and” and insert a comma; and on line 23, before the semicolon insert “, and management systems”.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SESTAK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SESTAK. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, Congress has worked hard on legislation to improve the access, affordability, and transparency of our higher education system. Reforms that improve transparency in college costs and the student loan industry are a priority of this legislation, and I thank the chairman and the ranking member and their staffs for their hard work on these important efforts.

However, I also believe we need to call attention to the barriers and the lack of transparency among colleges, specifically regarding the transfer of academic credit between postsecondary institutions. Today, students take increasingly complex pathways to achieving their postsecondary degree. Over 40 percent of students attending a college or university transfer at least once before they complete their undergraduate degree. However, despite increases in student mobility, institutions have not adjusted with substantive changes in the manner in which they oversee and articulate the transfer of college student academic credit.

There are significant consequences for failing to provide students with a better understanding of how, and which of, their courses qualify for credit in other postsecondary institutions. A student's inability to transfer credit may result in longer enrollment, more tuition payments, and additional Federal financial aid. In fact, it is estimated that transfer students incur costs of well over $5 billion per year. National data indicates that, on average, transfer graduates take about 10 more credits and 3 more months to complete their baccalaureate degree than nontransfer graduates. And some transfer students have even been forced to spend up to an additional year in an institution to obtain a degree because their earned academic credits do not transfer. These students expend money taking courses at one institution that will not result in academic credit at another. One of the most problematic consequences of our current system is the loss of students who are or may drop out of college due to the costs and complications of transferring their academic course credit between schools. It is clear that the credit transfer process, to the extent that it delays students' progress, can affect the affordability of postsecondary education, the time it takes students to graduate, and the number of those who do actually graduate.

I believe it is time for institutions to develop new strategies to improve gaps in credit transfer agreements and facilitate transparency of credit equivalencies between institutions.

My amendment encourages States and public institutions of higher education to develop management systems for course equivalency, transfer of credit, and articulation. The cost of transferring between institutions demand the utilization of new techniques to reduce the financial impact and obstacles facing students. I believe that this amendment provides an approach and a necessary alternative for institutions to consider when developing credit transfer agreements, and I therefore urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I claim the time in opposition, although I am not personally opposed to this amendment.

I just want to briefly address the subject matter of articulations and the free flow of credit. And while that's important, many people listening to us, our colleagues, may not be familiar with the term "articulation agreements" if they do not serve on the Education Committee, for example. Let me give them an idea of what that is.

If you go to a community college in my district, let's say one called Valencia Community College, and you get your associate's degree, there is an articulation agreement that exists with the local 4-year university that's called the University of Central Florida. That agreement says if you graduate from Valencia Community College, we guarantee you admission and acceptance into our 4-year university. That is a wonderful thing for low-income kids who want to get a 4-year education, because it only costs 2 grand a year to go to this community college, and you know that based on this articulation agreement and the transfer of credits you will then go to a prestigious 4-year school for an additional 2 years and be guaranteed admission. It's really the only silver bullet I see out there right now at a time when we see the public 4-year universities increasing their tuition by 31 percent over the past 5 years.

The one bright spot that exists is so many partnerships that exist between community colleges and 4-year schools in the forms of articulation agreements.

Whatever we can do in Congress to make it easier to have more of these articulation agreements and a freer flow of transfer of credit can only help those children from low- and moderate-income families achieve their dream of a college education. That's why I am going to support this amendment, and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support it as well.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SESTAK. I thank my colleague for his comments.

Madam Chairman, just 2 weeks ago I was at an event in my district where Drexel University partnered in an articulation agreement with the Pennsylvania Institute of Technology. The Pennsylvania Institute of Technology focuses on many of those who were disenfranchised. They bring them in, and after 2 years now maintaining a GPA and the credits that have been articulated, they can then step into a 4-year baccalaureate.

I thank you for your support.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SESTAK).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. YARMUTH) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. YARMUTH. Madam Chairman, I rise today to offer an amendment that will bring the Nation closer to providing a world-class education to 2.9 million children with disabilities.

The last few years we have seen significant advances in diagnosis and understanding of students with autism, ADD, dyslexia, Down's Syndrome, and a dozen other common and treatable disabilities. Where people once thought these students were unmanageable and unteachable, we now know that more often than not, the majority of them are bright, creative students who are capable of success when given the opportunity to learn.

In 1975, we took a major step forward with the enactment of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. IDEA placed many students with their peers, where the bar was raised on their achievements, and we began to discover how truly capable these students were.

Over the last 33 years, educators have revolutionized techniques to help students with disabilities find success, but these tools have not yet made their way into the vast majority of classrooms. And as a result, the system is failing millions of students.

The fact that so many students with disabilities, well over half, now study alongside their peers is a tribute to the success of IDEA. But because most educators have not been given the information, resources, or training to effectively work with students with disabilities, the teachers are getting understandably frustrated, the diverse learners are not being helped, and the rest of the class waits while teachers struggle to deal with situations for which they are simply not equipped. The bottom line is it does no good to put students with disabilities in a classroom with a teacher who has not been given the tools to reach them.

Make no mistake, the teachers are not the problem, but with proper resources, they can be a big part of the solution. Many teachers have not been trained to individualize instruction for these special needs students.

This isn't a straightforward manner of simply developing special curricula. Spending time with peers is crucial for the development of these students, especially if we want them to attain the social, communicative, and educational skills we know they are capable of.

One area I have focused on is educated children with autism. Without the proper training, misconceptions, such as the Rain Man savant, run rampant. Autism is a spectrum disorder, meaning that the Hollywood depiction is an extreme, with highly functional students with Aspergers on the other end and every level of functionality in between. The signals are abundant, but recognizing them is not just a matter of common sense.

The untrained educator may not know why a student with autism refuses to make eye contact, suddenly stops socializing, acts out, or completely cuts off all communication. What's more troublesome is that the wrong response, in many cases the normal, logical response, can send a child into a downward spiral.

And what has escalated many is the tremendous scope and urgency of what we're dealing with. Already 1 in 150 children is diagnosed with autism, and the number is escalating at an alarming rate. An analysis of the U.S. Department of Education special education data revealed that the number of students with a diagnosis of autism has increased more than 500 percent since 1993, and by 2014 the number is expected to increase 1800 percent.

We cannot afford to wait to address the needs of these children and others with special needs. That is why I am proposing a new grant program for institutions of higher education working to better prepare general education teachers for success in helping students with disabilities. Institutions would partner with high-need local education agencies to place qualified teacher candidates into the areas that need the most help.

The Teach to Reach grants will give our teachers the tools to properly engage students with disabilities. Truly engaging the students not only improves the quality of learning for special needs students but for everyone in the classroom. These grants will provide just the sort of preparation that is needed. Teacher candidates will learn how to use Response to Intervention, a scientifically based intervention strategy that allows a teacher to pinpoint the specific skills students need in order to progress. They will train in positive behavioral support strategies that will enable them to manage and improve challenging behaviors in the classroom and also learn how to work with their special education and related colleagues to develop and implement individualized educational programs so that students with disabilities will have their diverse needs met.

In classroom after classroom across the Nation, these grants can make the difference between students trapped by misunderstanding and teachers reaching their students and helping them unlock their potential to succeed in school and excel in life.

This program is endorsed by the NEA, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, the Higher Education Consortium for Special Education, and many organizations that advocate for the education of students with disabilities.

I strongly encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment so that we may empower our Nation's teachers to reach all of our children.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to this amendment.

Let me just clarify for our colleagues what this amendment is about, at least from my perspective.

If you are a high school special education teacher, you are probably familiar with autism and dyslexia, and by virtue of your training and daily experience, you know how to relate to the children with these special needs pretty well. But what if you are a 10th grade history teacher trained in, obviously, teaching history? It may be a little more challenging for you to teach children who have autism or dyslexia unless you have some special training to help you teach them history. So what this amendment does is to provide funding for these general education teachers to partner up with their 4-year universities to get some extra training in teaching children with special needs.

That seems like a commonsense approach to us. So I will be voting for this amendment and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. YARMUTH).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Madam Chairman, I rise today with my good friend from California, Congresswoman LINDA SÁNCHEZ, to offer an amendment to the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. I certainly commend the Chair and ranking member for all of their efforts on this measure.

Madam Chairman, gang violence is a cycle that poisons many of our districts and deprives many of our youth from pursuing productive educational opportunities. Many who have been engaged in gang activity unfortunately return to the same streets after they serve time in our juvenile justice system, and the cycle begins again. Only holistic partnerships that engage entire communities are going to break this cycle of gang activity.

To meet this need, I introduced the Path to Success Act July 6 of last year. Our amendment today reflects the content of the Path to Success Act and will authorize a nationwide program through the Department of Education to promote public and private community-centered partnerships aimed at reducing gang violence.

Madam Chairman, our amendment will establish a program that is set up to the task of disrupting the juvenile justice pipeline. It will give former gang members a chance to attend college and be engaged positively in their communities. Through educational and vocational training opportunities at community colleges as well as partnerships with law enforcement for proactive gang prevention efforts, our amendment will give former gang members hope for the future while taking juvenile justice in a new direction.

Also the American Psychological Association, the American Association of Community Colleges agree with the need for this new direction and have endorsed our amendment.

I urge our colleagues to support this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Thank you, Madam Chairman.

I claim the time in opposition although I am not opposed to this amendment. We have seen a skyrocketing problem, at least in my home State of Florida, with the rise in violent juvenile crime. In my area, central Florida, we have seen juvenile robberies over the past 2 years of kids of 15 and under increase by 311 percent.

When I talk with the experts about this problem, I am told that we do need a holistic approach, as my colleague, Congressman HASTINGS, says; and that for the worst of the worst offenders, the repeat violent offenders, people who slit other kids' throats, you have got to lock them away. But on the front end when you can still have hope to catch some of these kids and turn them around, we have to make every effort to do it.

The reason I say that is because when we look at the statistics in Florida we find that 80 percent of the inmates in our jails and prisons are high school dropouts. If we deal with them holistically, we say, hey, if you're going to stay in school, we will give you a Pell grant to pay for a college education so you can have a nice car and a home. If you are willing to stay in school but you can't read, we will get you a reading coach to help you read, even if you are in high school. We are going to get you a mentor to get you through it.

We have to give these young people hope in educational and job opportunities and approach it holistically. Yes, that means prevention, but you also need tough enforcement. I think this amendment recognizes you need all of it. And so we are pleased to support this amendment. I urge my colleagues to do the same.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. At this time, I am pleased to yield 1½ minutes to my colleague from California, the original cosponsor of this measure, Ms. LINDA SÁNCHEZ.

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California. I would like to thank my colleague, Mr. HASTINGS.

And, Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the Hastings-Sánchez amendment to H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act. I thank Mr. HASTINGS for his leadership on this issue and was pleased to work with him in this effort to provide constructive opportunities for youthful offenders.

The Hastings-Sánchez amendment would authorize grants to community colleges to create partnerships with juvenile detention centers and residential facilities that would reduce recidivism rates by providing education, vocational training, counseling, and related activities.

Gangs, crimes, and youth problems are often symptoms of larger problems, problems that require comprehensive solutions. Too often, we have spent far more time, money, and effort on enforcement than we have on prevention, missing opportunities to rehabilitate the youth that we incarcerate.

Unfortunately, taxpayers have not experienced a great return on these massive anti-gang investments. For example, the State of California will spend over $9 billion on incarceration this year, yet gang activity in California continues to rise.

Young people who are involved in gangs do not have to be condemned to a lifetime in gang involvement.

This amendment would leverage power of community colleges to help in the campaign against youth violence. Community colleges already have expertise in providing job training and education to nontraditional students. By encouraging them to develop partnerships with other local agencies and community-based organizations, we can multiply the opportunities that young ex-offenders have to get involved in their communities in a positive way and cut down on the odds that they will return to gang activity.

I urge my colleagues to support the Hastings-Sánchez amendment to help make our communities safer.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. At this time, I am very pleased to yield 1 minute to my very good friend from Virginia, Representative SCOTT.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Madam Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Chairman, this amendment is a significant step forward in prevention and intervention efforts to reduce juvenile and gang crime. For far too long, the Congress has focused its crime policy on waiting for crimes to occur before anything is done. This has contributed to what the experts at the Children's Defense Fund call the "cradle to prison pipeline."

Since 1970, the number of individuals incarcerated in the United States has risen from over 300,000 to over 2 million. Initiatives such as this, along with initiatives such as the Youth Promise Act, will create investments in strategies that deal with the root cause of crime, resulting in greater crime reduction and a cost savings to taxpayers. We must begin making meaningful investments in our Nation's youth, and this amendment is a strong step in that direction.

I thank Representatives HASTINGS and SÁNCHEZ for their leadership and encourage my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 13 OFFERED BY MR. WELCH OF VERMONT

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 13 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. WELCH of Vermont. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 13 offered by Mr. WELCH of Vermont:

Page 63, after line 17, insert the following new section (and redesignate the succeeding sections accordingly):

SEC. 112. ENDOWMENT REPORTING.

Part C of title I (20 U.S.C. 1015) is further amended by adding after section 135 (as added by section 111 of this Act) the following new section:

"SEC. 136. ENDOWMENT REPORTING.

"Each institution of higher education shall annually submit to the Secretary, in a form prescribed by the Secretary, a report on the expenditures made by such institution from any endowment funds of the institution for the purpose of reducing the costs of the programs of instruction offered by such institution, including the specific amounts expended for grants and other aid to reduce the amounts charged for tuition, fees, textbooks, meals, room and board."

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. WELCH) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Vermont.

Mr. WELCH of Vermont. Madam Chairman, as we know on a bipartisan basis, the cost of college is skyrocketing, and it is putting in jeopardy access to college and achievement of the American Dream for kids across this entire country. The Education and Labor Committee has taken a number of very concrete steps to try to address that. And this Congress passed a major increase in financial aid, $17 billion, over 5 years. Over the last 10 years, student aid has increased from $37 billion to $86 billion. But every time we raise a dollar in financial aid, if it is a dollar increased in tuition that is burned away, the students are continuing to graduate and swim in a sea of debt.

So if we are going to continue on this effort and be successful in making college affordable for average kids wanting to achieve the American Dream, we have to work on both sides of the equation. We have to address the financial aid side, which we are doing our best to do, and do it in the context of enormous budgetary pressures, and we also have to do it on the cost side. And we have to look to our university administrators to work with us to do everything that is possible to constrain the ever-rising cost of college education.

Many kids now are graduating with a debt that is equivalent to what was the mortgage on the first house that I bought, and they don't have the home. They do have the education.

This amendment is very simple. It would require colleges and universities to annually report to the Department of Education on how much of their endowment was spent each year for the purpose of containing college cost, including tuition, fees, textbooks, meals, and room and board. And it would provide Congress really with much-needed information, the same information that goes to the trustees, so it is not in any way a significant burden.

We have to work together if we are going to be successful in containing costs. And we have to acknowledge that we have to work on that cost side as well as on the financial aid side. So this amendment would give us information to work with colleges in trying to achieve that goal to maintain cost affordability for our kids.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, one of the most frustrating things that Members of Congress have had to deal with over the past 5 years on a bipartisan basis is the skyrocketing cost of tuition. Over the past 5 years, tuition at public 4-year universities has gone up 31 percent. And we are frustrated because you want to rein in the tuition costs, but at the same time you are hesitant to implement any sort of cost control or micromanaging of these universities.

What this amendment says essentially is that we are going to ask the college to tell us what your endowment is and how much of it you spent on helping kids with their aid to go to your college. Sometimes that will mean that gives us an opportunity to really thank these colleges for doing a great job. For example, Harvard University has a $34 billion endowment. They recently received nationwide publicity, well deserved, for using that endowment to say, if you are accepted to Harvard and you are from a low-income family, we are going to use our endowment to pay for you to come here. If you are from a middle income family, we are going to pay for you to come here. If you are from an upper-middle-income family, all the way up to $180,000, we are still going to help you with tuition. I think that is wonderful. And you have seen other schools, Yale and others, follow suit.

We would like to see exactly what schools across America are doing on the positive front to use their endowment to help low- and moderate-income kids go to college, and on the flip side what schools with substantial endowments are not making any efforts to help these low- and moderate-income kids get a college education.

So for these reasons, I will be voting for this amendment, and I will urge my colleagues to also vote for the amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WELCH of Vermont. I yield to the chairman such time as he may consume.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I rise in support of Mr. WELCH's amendment and thank Mr. KELLER for his support of this amendment. Mr. KELLER has laid it out quite correctly.

We have been struggling with this for a number of years. I think that this amendment helps with the transparency and with the information that we need to know as we continue to consider public policy. I say that because growing numbers of Members of Congress come up to me every week after they go home and talk about they have been asked the question about the increased costs of college. We know it is complex. We know it is difficult. And we know that it is not easily given to the idea that one policy fits all, one size fits all, whatever cliché you want to use.

But it must be addressed when we are asking the taxpayers to continue to step up and to provide the assistance to these families so that we can create a strong Nation and a strong economy and well-educated individuals that are critical to maintaining the democracy in a complex world. So I want to thank the gentleman for offering this amendment and ask my colleagues to support it.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WELCH of Vermont. Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. WELCH).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 16 OFFERED BY MS. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON OF TEXAS

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 16 printed in House Report 110-523.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 16 offered by Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas:

Page 249, after line 5, insert the following new subsection (and redesignate the succeeding subsections accordingly):

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHN-SON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Johnson-Young amendment to expand higher education opportunities for the children of fallen soldiers.

Since the year 2001, more than 4,400 U.S. servicemembers have died during their deployment in Iraq or Afghanistan. Historically, war has cost America the lives of our sons and daughters. However, the soldiers serving today in Iraq and Afghanistan are not just single men; 40 percent of the servicemembers in Iraq are married and 30 percent have children. The soldiers we have lost are not only our sons and daughters, but our husbands and wives and fathers and mothers.

As we reflect on the cost of this war, we must realize that many of these brave young men and women have left families and young children behind. These young men and women include Sergeant Paul Sanchez, a native of Irving, Texas, who was killed last January by an IED in Iraq, leaving behind a wife, a 12-year-old daughter and a 10-year-old son; and Second Lieutenant John Craver who was killed in October 2006 in Baghdad. A native of McKinney, Texas, he left behind a wife and three children. As well as Specialist Jessica Cawvey, who was killed in Fallujah in 2004. She was a 21-year-old single mother and left behind a 6-year-old daughter. These are just a few of more than 2,100 children who have lost a parent in the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The death of a parent is not only emotionally devastating for a child but often creates financial hardships for their family. The Johnson-Young amendment offers financial assistance and access to higher education for children who lost a parent or guardian as a result of this war. It allows the children who have been left behind to have access to a maximum Pell Grant award. Through this Pell Grant award, we can offer a chance for a bright future for the children of those brave young men and women who gave their lives in the name of service for our country.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I want to thank the gentlewoman for bringing this amendment to the attention of the committee. I think it is a very good amendment and it is the right thing for us to do with respect to these families that have paid such a high price for their service to our country. I thank the gentlewoman, and I urge our colleagues to support it.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. YOUNG).

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. I thank the ranking member, and I thank the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON) for introducing this legislation. I am the cosponsor of the amendment, and I thank the chairman of the full committee.

The proportion of married U.S. soldiers serving in Iraq and Afghanistan is higher today than in any other previous war, including the Civil War. Consequently, when these brave men and women are killed in the line of duty, they often leave behind husbands, wives and children.

Since 2001, more than 4,400 U.S. servicemembers have died during their deployment in Iraq or Afghanistan, and more than 2,100 children have lost a parent as result of the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Nine months after Fort Wainwright's Stryker Brigade Combat Team returned from their deployment in Iraq, Bassett Army Community Hospital in Fairbanks delivered a record number of babies. Those babies will be a year old when their parents redeploy this fall. This amendment, which I have offered with the distinguished gentlewoman from Texas, will ensure that they deploy with the knowledge that, if necessary, their children's education will be taken care of.

Our amendment will provide financial assistance and access to higher education for children who lost a parent or guardian as a result of our ongoing military presence in Iraq and Afghanistan. It allows the children who have been left behind to have access to a maximum Pell Grant award by waiving the income eligibility requirement for them.

It will apply to children of U.S. soldiers who have died while performing military service in Iraq or Afghanistan after September 11, 2001. Children who are 18 years or younger or those enrolled part time or full time at college at the time of the parent or guardian's death will be eligible for a Pell Grant application starting in 2009.

The death of a parent is not only emotionally devastating for a child, but often creates a financial hardship for the family. Through this Pell Grant award we can offer a chance for a bright future for the children of those who gave their lives in the name of service for their country.

I urge my colleagues to support our amendment and help those children who have been left behind. I would like to thank the distinguished gentlewoman from Texas for offering this amendment with me and reaching across the aisle in a bipartisan way to solve some of the problems caused by this war.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I just want to thank Congresswoman JOHNSON and Congressman YOUNG for offering this wonderful amendment. This will mean that the 2,100 children of parents who died in Iraq or Afghanistan will be able to get the full Pell Grant, which is about $4,800 this year and will be upped to $5,400 by 2012. It is certainly the least we can do.

There are many more things we want to do beyond this to help these children whose parents paid the ultimate sacrifice. But I think it is wonderful that these two Congressmen have come forward with this very commonsense and important amendment. I enthusiastically support it and urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support it as well.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chairman, I would like to thank the chairman of the full committee and his staff for working with me on these important issues that will help to deliver for the needs of our Nation's students. I thank Mr. YOUNG, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON).

AMENDMENT NO. 17 OFFERED BY MR. STUPAK

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 17 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 17 offered by Mr. STUPAK: Page 335, after line 14, insert the following: "(14) SUPERINTENDENTS, PRINCIPALS, AND OTHER ADMINISTRATORS.—Individuals who are school superintendents, principals, or other administrators for 5 consecutive complete school years in a school district of a local educational agency in which 30 percent or more of the schools are schools that qualify under section 465(a)(2)(A) for loan cancellation for Perkins loan recipients who teach in such a school.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chairman, the loan forgiveness programs under the Ford Direct Loan Program and Federal Family Education Loans encourage teaching professionals to take positions in low-income schools.

Like teachers, qualified school administrators and principals are crucial to creating an effective learning environment. Unlike teachers, however, school administrators and principals at low-income schools are not given access to the same loan forgiveness programs. In fact, under current law, if a teacher is eligible for loan forgiveness but is promoted to an administrator or principal in that same school, the newly promoted teacher loses access to the loan forgiveness programs for which they were previously eligible. As a result, low-income school districts often have difficulty recruiting talented principals and administrators to their districts.

My amendment would extend eligibility of the Ford Direct Loan Program and the Federal Family Education Loans to full-time school superintendents, principals, or other administrators after completing 5 consecutive school years in a school district in which at least 30 percent of the schools are defined as low income.

This amendment is supported by the National Education Association, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, and by the American Association of School Administrators. Furthermore, the Congressional Budget Office has indicated that this amendment will not violate the pay-as-you-go rules.

I urge Members to support my amendment to help recruit and retain talented and qualified school administrators and principals.

Also, Madam Chairman, I include for the RECORD a letter from the National Association of Secondary School Principals in support of this legislation.

Hon. BART STUPAK,
Rayburn House Office Building,
Washington, DC.

FEBRUARY 6, 2008.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN STUPAK: On behalf of the 31,000 members of the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP), I would like to express our support for an amendment you will be offering to the College Opportunity and Affordability Act (H.R. 4137). The amendment would extend eligibility of the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program and the Federal Family Education Loans to principals and other school administrators who serve for 5 consecutive years in a low-income school or school district.

The No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) expanded the federal role in education and brought to light the impact educators have on improving student achievement. A study by the Southeast Center for Teaching Quality on the working conditions of teachers found that high-quality leadership was the single greatest predictor of whether or not high schools made adequate yearly progress as defined by NCLB—more than either school size or teacher retention. But the demands on principals and their need for advanced training particularly in instructional leadership—are growing and have made the job much more challenging.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to attract prospective candidates to the principalship, but just as troubling, it is harder to keep effective and experienced administrators on the job. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics projected a 13 percent increase in job openings for principals between 2000 and 2010, stemming in part from a large proportion of principals who planned to retire during the same time period. Additionally, Advocates for Children & Youth released a study in December 2007 that found “an alarming proportion of Maryland’s poorest and lowest-performing schools have the least experienced principals and struggle with high turnover in leadership.”

Congress must be creative in providing new incentives to attract effective principals and school administrators to enter and then remain in the profession, and your amendment is an opportunity to do just that. While new programs are being developed to attract teachers to low-income schools, principals are not given the same access to these loan forgiveness programs. In fact, under current law, if a teacher is eligible for loan forgiveness but is promoted to an assistant principal or principal position in the same school, the newly promoted teacher loses his or her eligibility.

NASSP strongly feels that your amendment will help to attract and retain highly effective principals in the schools where they are most needed. We look forward to working with you to ensure that this important provision is enacted into law.

Sincerely,

GERALD N. TIROZZI,
Executive Director,
National Association of Secondary School Principals.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, we want the best and the brightest to go into the inner city, low-income areas to give these young people as much hope and opportunity as we can. Right now, we already provide student loan relief for math and science teachers who are willing to go into these low income areas to help turn around a school.

When I look at Mr. STUPAK’s amendment, it reminds me of the movie “Lean on Me,” where it has a principal who goes into a low-income area and, against all odds, completely turns around the school.

We want the best and the brightest of our assistant principals, principals, and school superintendents to go into these areas and say, Hey, look at all these young people who are taking AP calculus and AP English, and we are excited, and we turned things around.

The more we can do to get the best and the brightest into these inner city areas, then the better these young people’s lives will be. So I am happy for those reasons to support this amendment, and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to do the same.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to Mr. MILLER, the chairman of the full committee.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman for offering this amendment and join Mr. KELLER in support of this amendment. I think this is an important amendment. As the gentleman pointed out, not only are these difficult positions, but they are becoming more and more difficult to fill with the wave of retirements and all the other impacts on schools. I want to thank him for bringing this to our attention and getting it included in the bill. I join in its support.

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Chairman, I would just like to thank the committee chairman, Mr. MILLER, and Mr. KELLER for their help and support of this amendment, and the staffs and my staff for making this a possibility.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK).

AMENDMENT NO. 18 OFFERED BY MR. DOGGETT

Mr. DOGGETT. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 18 offered by Mr. DOGGETT:

SEC. 474. USE OF MOST RECENT TAX INFORMATION IN NEED ANALYSIS.

Section 480(a)(1) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1087vv(a)(1)), as amended by section 473 of this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: “Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, the Secretary shall, by regulation, provide for the use of the second preceding tax year when and to the extent necessary to carry out the simplification of applications used for the estimation and determination of financial aid eligibility through the sharing of data with the Internal Revenue Service with the consent of the taxpayer.”

Page 395, line 17, strike “ REPORT ”; on line 18, strike “(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—”; and on page 396, beginning on line 18, strike subsection (b).

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT) and a Member opposed will each control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DOGGETT. Madam Chairman, I yield myself two minutes.

This is the time of year when millions of families all over the country are working with their high school seniors. The college applications are in, but now it is time to try to figure out how to pay for college and higher education.

The task of completing these complex forms for student financial assistance can be very daunting. The Free Application for Federal Student Aid, or FAFSA, as it is known, is 11 pages long. It includes more than 100 questions and it has three worksheets. The Secretary of Education has called it “longer and more complicated than a Federal tax form.” In trying to complete the current application, students would actually probably benefit from having gone to college to do the accounting necessary to be able to set foot in a college classroom.

As David Cay Johnston, a Pulitzer Prize winning author and New York Times reporter comments in his new book, “Free Lunch,” each year an estimated 1.5 million students decline to seek federal student financial assistance for which they are eligible because the form is too complicated.

A report produced by the Institute for College Access and Success supports the approach that is taken in this amendment, and it identifies about a third of the questions that it highlights in its report as being questions that could be deleted if we could simply get two bureaucracies to communicate with one another.

That is really all that this amendment is about, trying to make the forms less complicated by getting the Internal Revenue Service and the Department of Education to communicate with each other and eliminate the confusion, to share data that is already available. This amendment would authorize the Secretary of Education to provide for the use of tax data that the IRS has available when the student aid form is due in February.

Under this proposal, students would not lose their ability to correct any information that the Department of Education gets that might not be accurate.

The access would be improved; the accuracy would be improved. And it works both ways: Just as we want to be sure that no student eligible for aid is denied that aid, or as is currently happening, because of the complex form, we also want to be sure that no student ineligible gets that aid.

That’s one of the reasons that the Bush Administration proposed something similar to what I am advancing, because they were concerned that about $350 million every year in assistance is provided and lost as a result of inaccurate information. So it will be a two-way street: get the information that is needed, minimize the confusion and the bureaucracy, and help more students obtain the opportunity to get a college education.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, at this time I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HAYES).

Mr. HAYES. I thank Congressman KELLER for yielding.

Madam Chairman, I rise today in support of the Doggett amendment. I believe this amendment will simplify the application process for students and families seeking financial aid.

I feel that the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, FAFSA, is overly complicated and a real burden on students and parents who need the most financial assistance. I believe we must take the burden off families and put more of it on the IRS and the Department of Education.

Current language in the bill encourages the Secretaries of Education and the Treasury to work together. By adopting this amendment, we are requiring the Federal agencies to work together to use existing IRS data to get positive outcomes.

With the implementation of data matching, we can eliminate the cumbersome and confusing FAFSA questions, increase the accuracy of the data used in calculating aid eligibility, and ensure that Federal financial aid dollars are going to the right people for the right reasons.

The issue was brought to my attention by University of North Carolina President Erskine Bowles. I worked closely with him on this issue and hope to see the changes that we discuss, which are included in this amendment, be included in the final bill.

I thank Mr. Bowles and the UNC system for their commitment to making the FAFSA easier for students and families. Again, if we are going to evaluate this issue, let's do it right. Let's put more of the burden on the government to make the financial aid application process easier for students and families who are applying for assistance.

I appreciate Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for their dedication in improving our education and hope that my colleagues will support the Doggett amendment.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I also rise in support of this amendment, which will encourage the repopulation of the FAFSA income and asset information with tax data provided directly from the IRS to the Department of Education, if done by taxpayer consent.

In a nutshell, this amendment will greatly simplify the financial aid process and help to eliminate erroneous payments under the Pell Grant program. By taking these commonsense steps, it is estimated that the Federal Government would save billions of dollars over the next 5 years, which could go toward providing additional Pell Grant aid to our most disadvantaged students.

For all of these reasons, I urge its adoption and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DOGGETT. Thank you very much, and I thank Mr. KELLER and Mr. HAYES for their important comments and yield 1 minute to Chairman MILLER for his observations.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT). Thank you so much for offering this amendment.

Madam Chairman, this is a critical amendment if we are, in fact, going to simplify the process of applying for student loans, if we are going to make it understandable to parents and to students who make these applications, and we are going to cut down the time that is required by them to do this.

This linking of the data between the IRS and the Department of Education, we have been given excuse after excuse after excuse why this couldn't be done. The Doggett-Hayes amendment allows this to happen, requires that it happen. It's very important that we support this amendment and that it be part of the final bill when it comes out of the conference committee.

I want to thank the gentlemen, Mr. DOGGETT from Texas and Mr. HAYES, for offering this amendment, a very, very important amendment if we are going to change the way we do business and do it on behalf of families and students to make their life easier and to save the Federal taxpayers a lot of money.

Mr. DOGGETT. I thank the gentleman for his comments and for the support and encouragement that he and his staff have provided us on this amendment. I also want to thank the Greater Austin Chamber of Commerce for bringing this to my attention.

Austin is an area that has a very dynamic economy, and so much of our success results from the fact that our business leaders are enlightened and recognize that one of the best investments we can make is in our people. We have been concerned with a workforce shortage, with needing more highly skilled, highly educated people, and this is a measure that the Chamber identified as part of its "20,010 by 2010" initiative of trying to get college graduates from our area that can staff our many high-tech and other companies.

I salute Sandy Hentges and Drew Scheberle and the many other members of the Chamber staff and leadership for their work that led to this amendment.

Let me just say in conclusion, thanks for the bipartisan support for this measure. I hope only that with our measure, for which we have considered a variety of different versions during recent months while working with the committee, I just hope that both of the bureaucracies involved here will really heed this amendment and will move expeditiously because it will ensure more young people have an opportunity to obtain a college education and have the support they need, and it will also reduce the cost from those who are receiving assistance improperly.

Madam Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time and urge adoption of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 19 OFFERED BY MR. BAIRD

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 19 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. BAIRD. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 19 offered by Mr. BAIRD:

At the end of title VIII of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. 814. STUDY OF AID TO LESS-THAN-HALF-TIME STUDENTS.

(a) STUDY REQUIRED.—The Secretary shall conduct a study on making and expanding the student aid available under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 to less-than-half-time students. The Secretary shall submit a report on the results of such study, including the Secretary's recommendations, to the authorizing committees not later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) SUBJECTS FOR STUDY.—The study required by this section shall, at a minimum, examine the following:

(1) The existing sources of Federal aid for less-than-half-time students seeking a college degree or certificate.

(2) The demand for Federal aid for less-than-half-time students and whether the demand is satisfied by existing sources of Federal aid, taking into consideration not only the number of less-than-half-time students currently seeking a college degree or certificate, but also any increase in the number of less-than-half-time students that may result from an expansion of Federal aid for less-than-half-time students seeking a college degree or certificate.

(3) The potential costs to the Federal Government and the potential benefits that could be received by students resulting from expanding Federal aid for less-than-half-time students seeking a college degree or certificate.

(4) The barriers to expanding Federal aid for less-than-half-time students, including identifying—

(A) statutory and regulatory barriers, such as student eligibility, institutional eligibility, need analysis, program integrity, and award amounts; and

(B) other factors that may limit participation in an expanded Federal aid program for less-than-half-time students.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS TO BE PROVIDED.—The Secretary's recommendations under this section shall include recommendations for designing a demonstration student loan program tailored to less-than-half-time students. The recommendations shall include any required statutory or regulatory modifications, as well as proposed accountability mechanisms to protect students, institutions, and the Federal investment in higher education.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section:

(1) the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Education;

(2) the term "authorizing committees" has the meaning provided in section 103 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended by this Act;

(3) the term "less-than-half-time student" means a student who is carrying less than one-half the normal full-time work load for the course of study that the student is pursuing, as determined by the institution such student is attending.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. BAIRD) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. BAIRD. Madam Chairman, I want to address a fundamental problem in our current education and support system and it is this, people who are not able because they lack the money to go to school on their own expense are not eligible for student loans if they can't go more than half time.

Ironically, this means that some of the people who are most in need of student loans, and very often most deserving of student loans, are ineligible for such loans. The one law we haven't been able to repeal in Congress is the law of unintended consequences, and this is an unintended consequence.

We should not say to hardworking men and women who would like to go back to school to improve their education, improve their standard of living, no, you can't get any Federal help unless you have the time to go more than half time. It just doesn't work. I have spoken to young, hardworking students who say, look, I am doing everything right. I am trying to raise my family. I am working for a living. I am paying my bills. I would like to take courses, but I can't afford to do so without a loan, and yet I am ineligible for the loan.

What our amendment does is simply ask the Department to conduct a study of the pros and cons of providing less than half-time students, making them eligible for student loans and of possibly establishing a pilot program to see how this can best be done. This amendment has broad support. The American Association of University Women, the National Education Association, the Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities, the American Association of Community Colleges and others.

I would like to thank, particularly, the Chair and ranking member of this committee and the subcommittee Chair, ranking member and their staffs for their diligent work on this. It is a commonsense amendment that will help literally millions of Americans be eligible for student loans to further their education.

Madam Chairman, I would urge passage of this amendment and reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, we have no objections to this amendment, will be voting "yes." I urge my colleagues to do the same, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BAIRD. Madam Chairman, I yield to the distinguished chairman, Mr. MILLER, for 30 seconds.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I want to thank the gentleman for offering this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I think that this is a very important amendment. It starts to make the attempt to conform our policies with the make-up of the college population and the reasons that people go back to college, which are much more diverse today than they were 10, 15 years ago; and I want to thank him and urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. BAIRD. Madam Chairman, I urge passage and yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. BAIRD).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 21 OFFERED BY MR. CROWLEY

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 21 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. CROWLEY. Madam Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 21 offered by Mr. CROWLEY:

Page 346, after line 20, insert the following new section (and redesignate the succeeding sections accordingly):

SEC. 427. LOAN FORGIVENESS FOR VOLUNTEER MENTORING.

Part B of title IV is further amended by inserting after section 428L (as added by the preceding section) the following new section: "SEC. 428M. LOAN FORGIVENESS FOR VOLUNTEER MENTORING.

"(a) PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—

"(1) LOAN FORGIVENESS AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary shall forgive, in accordance with this section, the student loan obligation of a borrower in the amount specified in subsection (c) who—

"(A) commits to volunteering as a mentor for a period of at least one school year as described in subsection (b);

"(B) attends a recognized community college; and

"(C) is not in default on a loan for which the borrower seeks forgiveness.

"(2) METHOD OF LOAN FORGIVENESS.—To provide loan forgiveness under paragraph (1), the Secretary is authorized to carry out a program—

"(A) through the holder of the loan, to assume the obligation to repay a qualified loan amount for a loan made, insured, or guaranteed under this part (other than an excepted PLUS loan (as such term is defined in section 493C(a))); and

"(B) to cancel a qualified loan amount for a loan made under part D of this title (other than such an excepted PLUS loan).

"(3) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary is authorized to issue such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

"(b) VOLUNTEER MENTORING.—For purposes of this section, an individual shall be treated as participating in a volunteer mentoring program if they commit to mentoring an at-risk child for a period of not less than one school year.

"(c) QUALIFIED LOAN AMOUNT.—At the end of each school, academic, or calendar year of volunteering as a mentor on or after the date of enactment of the College Opportunity and Affordability Act of 2007 as described in subsection (b), not to exceed 5 years, the Secretary shall forgive $10 of the student loan obligation of a borrower that is outstanding after the completion of each such school, academic, or calendar year of employment, for every hour of mentoring committed, not to exceed $10,000 in the aggregate for any borrower.

"(d) PRIORITY.—The Secretary shall grant loan forgiveness under this section on a first-come, first-served basis, and subject to the availability of appropriations."

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. CROWLEY. Madam Chairman, I rise today to offer an amendment that will reward community college students who are serving an important role in all of our communities.

Specifically, it will provide community college students who mentor at-risk children with $10 of their student loan forgiveness for every hour, for each hour of mentoring they complete. Not only will this loan forgiveness help our college students afford their student loans, but it will also help recruit mentors for at-risk children.

I am proud that this Congress is so committed to creating loan forgiveness programs for students who work in areas of national need after graduation. Teachers, nurses, police officers, and child welfare workers are just some professions that will have more opportunities for loan forgiveness under the legislation we are considering today.

I applaud the Education and Labor Committee, particularly Chairman

MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON, for their work on this legislation.

However, unlike many of the existing programs, my amendment offers loan forgiveness to students for volunteer work they complete while they are still in school, not for entering a specific profession upon graduation. For most, mentoring children is a volunteer effort and not a full-time job, and their reward is not monetary. With the realization that this kind of work makes a real difference, not only in the life of the young person they are mentoring or in their own lives, but, in fact, it helps our entire community.

Caring adults can make a difference in children's lives, and research shows the many positive effects of mentoring. Children that have mentors have better relationships with adults, fewer disciplinary referrals, and more confidence to achieve their goals. Mentoring programs are a cost-effective approach to reducing teen pregnancy, substance abuse, incarceration, and violence.

For at-risk children who are already susceptible to these dangers, the need for a mentor is even greater. Unfortunately, mentors are not always easy to recruit, and finding mentors that are able to develop long-term relationships with children can be even more difficult.

I believe that by providing a small incentive, we will compel others to engage in this kind of volunteerism. That is why I am offering this amendment to provide an incentive for college students to begin mentoring now, which will hopefully lead them to continue serving as a mentor long after they have graduated.

Community college students are ideal targets for mentoring recruitment because they tend to have existing relationships within the surrounding community and are likely to remain in the area after completing their studies. This encourages a consistent mentor relationship, which provides the most stability for at-risk children.

Of course, potential mentors can be found in many places, and I hope that in the future we will be able to expand this program to all colleges and universities. I know that many institutions are working on ways to encourage their student body to get more involved in volunteering, and I am certain that passing this amendment today will lead to future success.

I would ask my colleagues to please join me in supporting this amendment.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Madam Chairman, this is a very creative outside-the-box way to provide an incentive to recruit mentors for at-risk kids, and I commend the author of this amendment, Congressman CROWLEY, for coming up with this idea; and I will be voting for it.

I had a mentor myself when I was a young child in Big Brothers Big Sisters program. When I got a little older and became an adult, I became a mentor to high school students through the largest mentoring program in Orlando, Florida, called Compact, which provides mentors to children who are at risk of dropping out of school.

I then became chairman of the board of that organization; chairman of the Mentoring Caucus, once I got to Congress; and a coauthor of the Mentoring for Success Act with Congressman Tom Osborne, which is now part of No Child Left Behind.

I tell you this by way of background, because I know that the hardest thing in mentoring organizations is recruiting mentors. I gave in 1 year 50 speeches to Rotary clubs and Kiwanis clubs to recruit 700 mentors, and it was very difficult because sometimes you only get folks to mentor for 1 year. But I saw that once you invested the time towards recruitment, it made a difference. That program, Compact, has a 95 percent success rate in keeping kids in school. As Congressman CROWLEY alluded to, that helps all of us in terms of lower incarceration rates. Right now, 75 percent of the inmates in our jails and prisons nationwide are high school dropouts. State prisons cost taxpayers $20,000 a year; Federal prisons, $25,000 a year.

If we can say to community college students, Hey, we want you to do the right thing by providing an hour a week as a mentor, or more, and by the way, if you do, we will help you financially for $10 an hour for every hour you mentor for a year, that creates a pretty good pool of folks that we can look to to do the right thing and have a financial incentive.

I congratulate you for this innovative approach. I never thought of it, but am impressed with it, and will be voting for it. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote for it as well.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CROWLEY. I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) for offering this amendment. As has been pointed out, mentoring can be a very powerful force in students' lives as they struggle. To have mentoring by older students or older members of the community who have a grasp of the subject matter can really turn around their abilities to read and do math and comprehend so many other subjects and lead to improved performance in school or in other activities in the community.

I thank the gentleman for offering this and urge support of the amendment.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Chairman, let me thank the chairman, Mr. MILLER, for his comments. And thank you, Mr. KELLER, for adding your own life experience and adding that to the debate today, and for your support for this amendment.

We have heard the expression "this is a win-win." Well, this is a win-win-win. This is a win for the at-risk youth. This is a win for the student who will serve as a mentor and be able to repay his or her college loan at $10 an hour for each hour that they commit to this program, and this is a win for all of our communities as well, mentoring at-risk youth, enabling them to have a better quality of life through this program. And I thank both of you, and all of my colleagues, for supporting this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN (Mr. POMEROY). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 22 OFFERED BY MR. COOPER

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 22 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 22 offered by Mr. COOPER: Page 244, line 7, strike "$300,000,000" and insert "$500,000,000"; and on line 11, strike "$100,000,000" and insert "$125,000,000".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COOPER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Chairman, this is a very simple but important amendment. It will help Historically Black Colleges and Universities, as well as Historically Black Graduate Institutions. What it would do is raise the authorization level for HBCUs, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, from the current $300 million up to $500 million, which is a $200 million increase, and a vitally necessary $200 million increase. It has been some 10 years since the Higher Ed. Act has been reauthorized. It is very important that we take into account inflation and other needs and offer to HBCUs the help that they so desperately need.

The amendment would also increase for HBGIs, Historically Black Graduate Institutions, the authorization from the current $100 million and would take it up to $125 million.

As the chairman knows, being a Blue Dog Democrat, I am firmly committed to finding spending cuts to pay for these eventual appropriations, but the key is to lift the cap to allow these vitally important national institutions to grow and prosper and continue the wonderful job they are currently doing.

Although these institutions today are only 3 percent of the total college and graduate population in this country, they graduate 25 percent of our minority lawyers and doctors and teachers and other workers, so these are vitally important institutions.

I want to thank the chairman of the full committee, Mr. MILLER, for allowing this amendment. And also, in particular, our majority whip, Mr. CLYBURN, for the key role he has played in making sure that Historically Black Colleges and Universities get the attention they deserve.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE).

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I rise in strong support of the Cooper amendment.

I am a great believer in what our historically black colleges have done and continue to do. Delaware State University in my State is clearly a good example of that. I think this authorization level increase makes a lot of sense.

This is not something new. This has been going on for over 100 years in our country. We have been basically educating African Americans, sometimes in a segregated way, but now I think in every instance in a way where we have complete desegregation, too. The historical black colleges have played a prominent role in the education of many African American students in our country and have provided an environment of intellectual and cultural growth.

While comprising 2.4 percent of all 2- and 4-year title IV eligible institutions, the Historically Black Colleges and Universities are responsible for 23 percent of the bachelor's degrees awarded to African Americans, 13.6 percent of all master's degrees awarded to African Americans, and 24.1 percent of first professional degrees awarded to African Americans. These statistics are very important, and I think make a great deal of sense in terms of our continuing support in the Congress of the United States of America.

I think the amendment is a good amendment, and I believe that it is one that we should all support here as part of this act which is going to help higher education in our country.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Chairman, I am proud to support this amendment on behalf of the HBCUs that I represent in my district, Meharry Medical College, Fisk University, and Tennessee State University, and also on behalf of the 103 other great HBCUs across this country.

And I now yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COHEN) who represents LeMoyno-Owen College in his district.

Mr. COHEN. Thank you, Congressman COOPER.

Earlier this year, on the budget, Congressman COOPER and I cosponsored an amendment to include this in the budget. Unfortunately, it didn't make it through the Senate, and I am proud to be here to support this amendment with Congressman COOPER.

In my district, LeMoyno-Owen College has struggled financially. It is an institution of long and historic import to our community. It survived this year. It has difficulties with its financial base, but it has done much for our city in educating young people and continues to do so.

This provision would give LeMoyno and Fisk, which has had some financial difficulties, and other schools like Bennett and Wiley, additional help so they can continue to serve a mission that is unique in this country.

Anybody who saw the movie "The Great Debaters" should be able to understand what Historically Black Colleges and Universities mean to many people in this country. There are alumni of Fisk University, LeMoyno-Owen, Wiley, and other Historically Black Colleges and Universities which see their institutions being threatened with elimination. That is a serious thing. We consider our colleges part of ourselves and almost part of our family, that is part of your home, your mother, in essence. To have it disappear is wrong.

LeMoyno-Owen is a good institution, as is Fisk, as is Wiley, and this amendment would help them stay capable of surviving and servicing people who want an education in this atmosphere, and I wholeheartedly support this amendment and thank Congressman COOPER for bringing it.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COOPER. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COOPER).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 23 OFFERED BY MR. RYAN OF OHIO

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 23 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 23 offered by Mr. RYAN of Ohio:

At the end of title VIII of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. 814. ESTABLISHMENT OF PILOT PROGRAM FOR COURSE MATERIAL RENTAL.

(a) PILOT GRANT PROGRAM.—From the amounts appropriated pursuant to subsection (e), the Secretary shall make grants on a competitive basis to not more than 10 institutions of higher education to support pilot programs that expand the services of bookstores to provide the option for students to rent course materials in order to achieve savings for students.

(b) APPLICATION.—An institution of higher education that desires to obtain a grant under this section shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such form, and containing or accompanied by such information, agreements, and assurances as the Secretary may reasonably require.

(c) USE OF FUNDS.—The funds made available by a grant under this section may be used for—

(1) purchase of course materials that the entity will make available by rent to students;

(2) any equipment or software necessary for the conduct of a rental program;

(3) hiring staff needed for the conduct of a rental program, with priority given to hiring enrolled undergraduate students; and

(4) building or acquiring extra storage space dedicated to course materials for rent.

(d) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

(1) EVALUATIONS BY RECIPIENTS.—After a period of time to be determined by the Secretary, each institution of higher education that receives a grant under this section shall submit a report to the Secretary on the effectiveness of their rental programs in reducing textbook costs for students.

(2) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than September 30, 2010, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress on the effectiveness of the textbook rental pilot programs under this section, and identify the best practices developed in such pilot programs. Such report shall contain an estimate by the Secretary of the savings achieved by students who participate in such pilot programs.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $50,000,000 for fiscal year 2009 and 2010.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment and first want to thank Mr. MILLER for what he has been able to do with this piece of legislation, and also thank the gentleman from New York. And congratulations on the New York Giants' victory in the Super Bowl.

This is an issue that is near and dear to many people's hearts in this Congress, the cost of college education.

When you think about what a lot of these kids have to go through, application fees, lab fees, parking passes, meal tickets, rec center fees. You get a bill from the bursar's office, and you don't even know what it is for, but it is for $150.

And one of the key factors in the increase in the cost of a college education is textbooks. You buy a textbook for $100, you use it for the semester, and you bring it back and they say, We will give you a dollar for it. So you end up keeping it.

This amendment creates a pilot program across the United States authorizing $50 million over 2 years to allow pilot programs for book rentals. There have been programs across the country, several here or there, that have showed savings for students up to a third of the cost of the textbooks. This pilot program gives the Secretary of Education great discretion to start up to 10 pilot programs where they can begin to share books, rent books, put them back into circulation and save students some money.

This is an opportunity for us to figure out what pilot programs work, what is best for a big school, and what is best for a smaller school, but give us an opportunity to figure out how we can save these students money.

We talk about being competitive in a global economy, we talk about investing in education, but if we continue to have these kinds of barriers for our students, we are not going to get the entries that we need, and we are not going to get the production of diplomas that we need in this country to continue the kind of economic growth we need.

I think this is a good amendment that gives a lot of discretion to the Secretary of Education to make sure that we try to figure this out and do it the right way.

I would appreciate support for this amendment. I know that the chairman supports it. I think it is a good thing to add onto this bill. I think it is good for the country, and it gets us into an innovative mindset as we try to address the cost of college education.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE).

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Ryan-Altmire amendment in the broader sense of what we are dealing with here today, and that is the cost of higher education.

□ 1615

I think we have an obligation as elected officials in this country to do everything in our power to allow young individuals, perhaps in some cases middle-aged individuals, to proceed with a college education. It is necessary for the future of our country, for the future of our economy, and we have to look at all different measures of this. And we're dealing with a lot of broader measures here today. But I've often heard this issue of textbooks is a significant cost driver, and I think it is. I see, by some statistics that have been provided to us, the textbook prices have increased at four times the rate of inflation since 1994; and students spend an average of $900 a year on textbooks, an amount equal to 20 percent of tuition at an average university, half the tuition at a community college. If those numbers are anywhere near correct, and they're projected numbers, but if they're anywhere near correct, that is a huge problem which we have to address in this country. And the colleges have sort of wrestled with it a little bit, but I think they need some guidance. And I believe that the proposal which is in this amendment provides some good guidance to actually try to put together a program so that textbooks can be exchanged and the costs can be kept down greatly.

Under the bill, the publishers would be asked to provide more information to the faculty about pricing; and that's good, because I think the bill did some good things in this area. And colleges and universities would be required to notify their students about which books are needed for which classes so the students are better able to plan and prepare for textbook costs.

But this amendment, which goes further than that, provides us with an opportunity to take more concrete steps to address the high cost of college textbooks by creating the limited pilot competitive grant program to establish a college textbook rental program. If this, as a pilot program, can work, it could lead to measures much further down the line which could provide very substantial cost savings to individuals who are attending college. And for that reason, hopefully we can all be supportive of it.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, can I inquire how much time I have.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio has 2½ minutes remaining.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield 1½ minutes to my partner from Pennsylvania (Mr.

ALTMIRE) whose fingerprints are all over this amendment.

Mr. ALTMIRE. Mr. Chairman, over the past 20 years, the average price of textbooks has nearly tripled. College students now spend $1,000 a year on textbooks, and for some majors it can be up to $2,000. This dramatic rise in textbook prices is a significant contributor to the increase in overall cost of college education. To remedy this, I'm offering this amendment today with Congressman RYAN. Our amendment creates a pilot program to award 10 competitive grants to establish rental textbook programs.

Rental programs could reduce textbook expenses by up to 75 percent. A recent report by the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance highlighted textbook rental programs as a way to significantly reduce textbook expenses. The same report noted that the primary obstacle to these programs is the start-up costs associated with implementing them.

The Ryan-Altmire amendment will enable institutions to create textbook rental programs and, as a result, save students money. I encourage all of my colleagues to support it. And I thank the gentleman from Niles, Ohio, for allowing me to attach my name to his amendment.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

I also will be supporting the Ryan-Altmire amendment. I am not so far removed from college and law school that I don't remember the days when you would go to buy your textbook at the bookstore. Often you'd be required to buy a particular textbook written by that professor and get sticker shock that this particular book is $120.

When you talk to the publisher, sometimes they say, well, it's not our fault. We sold it to the bookstore at 60 bucks and they marked it up to 120 bucks. And when you talk to the bookstore people they said, no, it's their fault because they told us an abnormally low suggested retail price and made us look bad.

I don't know whose fault it is. All I know is we've got to get some relief to these college and law school and graduate students who are forced to buy particular books. This seems to at least try, and whatever we can do to try to help these kids who are spending $900 to $2,000 a year we owe it to them to do. So I urge my colleagues to vote "yes" on this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of our time.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I'd like to thank the gentleman and appreciate the bipartisan support of this amendment. Funding education, trying to reduce the cost of college is not a partisan issue. This is something that we need to do as Americans if we want to stay competitive.

You can't fund your military without a growing economy. You can't have a growing economy without investments in education.

This particular amendment has taken the advice from the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance that was started a couple of years ago, offered this as a suggestion. We're taking that suggestion; we're working with it.

Colleges in Ohio, my alma mater, Bowling Green, is now, through this program, offering books for 35 percent of what the book should cost. So a $100 book, through this program at Bowling Green is 35 bucks. That's a significant savings for our students.

So I want to thank the bipartisan support, thank Speaker PELOSI, and thank Chairman MILLER for their help with this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 24 OFFERED BY MR. VAN HOLLEN

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 24 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 24 offered by Mr. VAN HOLLEN:

At the end of section of section 271 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as added by section 201 of the bill, add the following new subsection:

“(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the sums authorized to be appropriated by section 240, the amount authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section shall not exceed—

“(1) $20,000,000 for fiscal year 2009;

“(2) $25,000,000 for fiscal year 2010; and

“(3) such sums as may be necessary for each of the 3 succeeding fiscal years”.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. VAN HOLLEN) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to join my colleague, Mr. CASTLE of Delaware, in offering this amendment in support of Teach for America. And I want to recognize the efforts of Mr. CASTLE for his years of advocacy for this very important cause and thank Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for their stalwart bipartisan support for Teach for America.

For many years, Teach for America has pioneered an innovative and very successful approach to teacher recruitment, placing over 17,000 outstanding college graduates in schools around our Nation, reaching over 2 million students. Many of those graduates remain in education after teaching as corps members, either as teachers or as principals, or remain otherwise active within our educational community.

This is a program that has received strong bipartisan support from this Congress, and the Teach for America Act, which authorizes the partnership between the Federal Government and this important program, was introduced on a bipartisan basis by a number of us, including Mr. CASTLE, Ms. DELAURO, who has been a champion of this issue, Mr. REGULA, Mr. SARBANES, and now has over 105 cosponsors. And I want to thank Chairman MILLER and the committee for incorporating the major provisions of that legislation into the bill that is before us today.

This amendment proposes one change, which is the bill before us authorizes such sums as may be necessary for this program. And what this amendment does is seek to clarify our congressional intent with respect to the specific targets that we want to hit with respect to funding. It sets an authorized level of $20 million for fiscal year 2009 and $25 million for fiscal year 2010. And those are the levels that are consistent with the Teach for America's published budget. And with this funding, Teach for America can expand from 5,000 members in 26 urban and rural areas around the country, to 8,000 members in 33 regions and serve 680,000 economically disadvantaged children.

This is an important, real impact. Teach for America has been forthright about its plans, and it raises about 80 percent of its funds from nongovernment sources. This amendment, of course, does not make this mandatory, but it clearly says that this is the intent of Congress to reach these levels. These are the levels necessary to get the job done and make sure we fund our share of this very important partnership.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the co-author of this amendment, the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE).

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment which I have cosponsored with Mr. VAN HOLLEN. I could not be more strongly in support of this.

I think we need to understand what Teach for America is. Most people may know, but essentially it's a reach-out by a young lady whose name is Wendy Kopp, with a board of directors which is very strong, which was created with the idea of attracting bright young students to education.

We have many, many good educators in America. We need the best teachers we can find in this country. This was an effort to try to attract individuals who are not necessarily involved in education to become involved in that profession. So they reached out to our very best schools. And all of a sudden, if you look at the Ivy League schools and the other very top schools in America, you are going to find there are more young candidates to go into the Teach for America program than there are any other employer at those particular schools now. A lot of young people want to do this, and it's been highly successful.

They get involved in the schools. It was never established, necessarily, to have them be teachers for life. But that has actually worked in favor of teaching as well because some have stayed in teaching. Others have gone into education administration. And as a result, we have been able to bolster our teachers across the United States of America. It brings new young people into teaching; and with the experienced good teachers that we have already in our country, it can make a huge difference.

I think we have a responsibility to inspire young people to teach, if they are qualified to do so, in every way we possibly can. As a matter of fact, they turned down so many people in this program, I think maybe we should be suggesting a second program of some kind to pick up some of those who were turned down, because they're very qualified people, as a matter of fact.

You heard some of the numbers which Mr. VAN HOLLEN brought up before of 5,000 corps members, et cetera. We want to increase that number. That's what this is really all about.

Hopefully, all of us can be supportive of legislation which is going to provide good teachers, great teachers, to make a difference in the lives of our young people and, hopefully, any concern about how they're getting into teaching versus how others get into teaching is something which we can resolve.

This is clearly needed in this country. We need to improve our schools however we can. I think this amendment will do it, and I encourage everyone to support it.

I rise in support of this amendment offered by Congressman VAN HOLLEN. I support H.R. 4137, and believe that with passage today we will be making some good reforms for our institutions of higher learning, parents, and students. This amendment is intended to build upon these reforms, and extend them into our nations elementary and secondary schools.

Specifically, our amendment would authorize funding to support the Teach for America Program to recruit, select, train and support a national corps of outstanding recent college graduates, of all academic majors, who commit to teach in low-income communities and who hopefully become lifelong leaders for education.

Earlier this year, Representative VAN HOLLEN and I introduced legislation which authorizes Teach for America. Currently, funding for the program has been consistent, but piecemeal. The purpose of the bill, and amendment, should the organization be awarded a grant, would be to provide an efficient funding stream. Ultimately this will help the organization grow from its current membership of over 5,000 corps members in over 1,000 schools in 26 regions. The Teach for America legislation has the support of 105 cosponsors, spanning the political spectrum. The Senate has also expressed support for the program, and has included language in their reauthorization of the Higher Education Act. It is my hope that today the House will show their support by including this amendment in H.R. 4137.

What we know to be true is that a highly qualified teacher is imperative to the achievement of our students. This amendment will help us to make that more possible across the country. As we, as a nation, continue to focus on closing the achievement gap, I see no better compliment than a national teacher corps.

I encourage all of my colleagues to join representative VAN HOLLEN and me in supporting this amendment.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, I'd like to inquire how much time is remaining.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Both sides have 2½ minutes remaining.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. I yield 30 seconds to the chairman of the committee, Mr. MILLER.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I just want to thank my colleagues for support of this amendment. I want to thank Mr. VAN HOLLEN. He's been so persistent on this amendment.

Teach for America brings a lot of exciting new people to teaching, to join career teachers to rebuild our schools. And I know there's been some criticism of this program. I would just say, ask a principal who has Teach for America students in their schools. They're delighted. They would like more.

I also want to recognize, I see Mr. REGULA sitting here, who's been a champion of this program year after year after year in the appropriations process.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN, thank you for this amendment.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, at this time I'd like to yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. REGULA).

Mr. REGULA. I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I congratulate the sponsors.

In the Labor, Health and Human Resources and Education bill, we started funding this program. It was a huge success. We had testimony in our subcommittee from students who had been involved in this, and they were so impressed that they could participate. And I'm sure, out of this program, we've developed not only teachers, but administrators. A classic example is Michelle Rhee, who is the new superintendent of the City of Washington school system. She was a person who was part of the Teach for America. And not only do you get teachers who are, of course, extremely important to education, but you get people who will probably be on school boards, community leaders who will be in positions to further the cause of education. And I don't think there's anything we can do as a Nation more important than beefing up and supporting our education system. It's the future of this country to have educated people, and to do that you need good teachers. And we need to get people from all walks of life involved in teaching.

I think it's a great program. We certainly were impressed with the testimony we heard in the Labor, Health and Human Services Education Subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee about the value of this to the society and to the individuals involved.

□ 1630

I congratulate the authors for this support, and I think by making this a part of the education program on a fixed basis we are saying, in effect, this is more than temporary; this is of permanent value to the future of this Nation and to the future of education.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to vote "yes" on this amendment and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, I also want to recognize Mr. REGULA for his early and steady support.

I yield 1 minute to Congresswoman ROSA DELAURO of Connecticut.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. Last year I participated in Teach for America's guest teacher program, leading a class of first graders at Clemente Leadership Academy in New Haven. I saw some of our brightest teachers, active and engaged teachers, raising expectations, building the foundations to create opportunity. That is what Teach for America is all about.

The studies show that these teachers make more progress in reading and math. That's expected. They obtain significantly greater gains in math. They work in the highest need classrooms in the country. Their alumni work in full-time positions in education. They support the program's mission, and what they do is they have closed that achievement gap.

Support this amendment and confront the inequity; pursue educational excellence.

I urge a "yes" vote.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. May I inquire how much time is remaining.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Maryland has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chairman, I want to once again thank the chairman of the committee, Mr. MILLER, and the ranking member, Mr. MCKEON, for their efforts on this.

I yield the remainder of my time to Mr. CHAKA FATTAH of Pennsylvania who has been such a great leader on education issues across the board.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank Chairman MILLER and the ranking member, BUCK MCKEON, for a great bill. This amendment by my colleagues to expand and authorize a greater investment in Teach for America, there is no more important an effort, as far as I'm concerned, in terms of recruiting quality teachers. We have hundreds of Teach for America volunteers in the Philadelphia School District now and across the country, and I've watched this program grow from its very inception. It is a great program.

This amendment will make this bill even better. I congratulate the chairman and the ranking member and the work product of the committee.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. VAN HOLLEN).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 25 OFFERED BY MRS. GILLIBRAND

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 25 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 25 offered by Mrs. GILLIBRAND:

Page 406, line 17, strike "and" and after such line insert the following new paragraph (and redesignate the succeeding paragraph accordingly):

(2) in subparagraph (C), by striking clauses (i) and (ii) and inserting the following:

"(i) the law enforcement authority of campus security personnel;

"(ii) the working relationship of campus security personnel with State and local law enforcement agencies, including whether or not the institution has a written agreement, such as a memorandum of understanding, with such agencies;

"(iii) the institution's plan, which shall address coordination with State and local law enforcement agencies, for the investigation of—

"(I) any felony described in subparagraph (F) of this paragraph occurring in the areas described in subparagraphs (A) through (D) of paragraph (12) of this subsection; and

"(II) a report of a missing student; and

"(iv) policies which encourage accurate and prompt reporting of all crimes to the campus police and the appropriate police agencies;".

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from New York.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of my amendment, and I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

First, I would like to thank Chairman MILLER and Chairman HINOJOSA and Congressman BISHOP for their leadership on this bill. This reauthorization of the Higher Education Act will strengthen the American Dream by allowing millions of young people to better afford college.

I also would like to thank my colleague Congressman MIKE MCNULTY and Congresswoman CAROLYN MCCARTHY for their thoughtful work on the issue of campus safety.

Thank you, also, to Security on Campus, Inc., the leading advocacy organization for campus security.

Our country's number one priority is to protect our children from harm so that they can grow up and fulfill their God-given potential. A parent's worst fear is to send their child off to college and to have them become a victim of violent crime. Tragically, this happens far too often. The 10-year span from 1997 to 2006 registered, on average, 20 homicides every year occurring on college campuses.

Furthermore, numerous college students, the majority of them young women, have been abducted, leaving their family, friends, and community searching for years in hopes of solving their case.

Mr. Chairman, this issue has significantly affected the community that I represent.

On March 2, 1998, Suzanne Lyall, a 19-year-old sophomore at SUNY-Albany, was kidnapped and never seen again. Nearly 10 years later, her case remains unsolved.

My amendment is intended to prevent more parents from experiencing the pain that Suzanne's parents, Doug and Mary, must face every day. The amendment that I am offering would ensure that all institutions of higher education have a standing policy outlining the roles and responsibilities for campus, local, and State law enforcement agencies if a violent crime happens to occur on campus.

This amendment will minimize confusion and delays during the initial investigation of a violent felony, such as a kidnapping. The first few hours and days after a crime is committed are the most critical for solving a case, and the questions involving police jurisdiction should be settled before a crime occurs, not after. My amendment will help facilitate the prompt and sufficient investigation of serious crimes.

In addition, the amendment's provisions have already been signed into law in California, South Carolina, Tennessee, and my home State of New York.

Over 60 percent of postsecondary schools have fewer than 2,500 students. And thankfully, such horrific crimes are rare at small schools. However, many of the small schools do not have a full police force, and the school security force may not be sufficiently trained to handle such a complex investigation.

This amendment will give peace of mind to students and to parents by giving them the knowledge that the best investigative procedures will be followed to solve such terrible crimes.

Mr. Chairman, at this time, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition, although I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. KELLER. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would also like to add that bringing attention to the issue of campus safety has been a priority of mine since I entered Congress. Last year, I introduced, and the House passed, House Resolution 303, which called on the President to declare April 6, which is Suzanne Lyall's birthday, National Missing Persons Day. This day will allow all Americans to honor those who remain missing and to remember their families and loved ones who hope and pray every day for their safe return.

April 6 is approaching, and I join with Suzanne's parents in strongly advocating for the creation of this national day of remembrance.

The amendment that I offer today will hopefully prevent future school tragedies from happening. I urge all my colleagues to join me in honoring Suzanne by voting "yes."

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) very much for offering this amendment. The question of student safety is something that the committee is hearing more and more about from not only schools but obviously from parents. Parents are asking these questions now as they seek to apply to different institutions, and I think this amendment will be very helpful to us. I urge the support of the amendment.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, we have no objections to the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New York.

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 26 OFFERED BY MR. PATRICK J. MURPHY OF PENNSYLVANIA

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 26 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 26 offered by Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY of Pennsylvania:

In section 490, after subsection (d), insert the following new subsection (and redesignate the succeeding subsection accordingly):
(e) COMMITMENT TO AND NOTICE OF TUITION LEVELS.—

(1) AMENDMENT.—Section 487(a) is further amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(29)(A) The institution will provide to each admitted student considering an undergraduate or graduate program—

or
“(ii) a single-year tuition and fee schedule, and nonbinding, multi-year estimate of net costs after all financial aid is awarded, assuming constant family and student income, assets, and relevant circumstances.

“(B) Multi-year schedules and estimates required by subparagraph (A)—

“(i) may include a percentage or dollar increase or decrease of any size the institution deems appropriate from one year to the next; and “(ii) shall indicate, on a year-by-year basis, costs for the normal duration of the relevant student's undergraduate or graduate program.

“(C) Institutions that elect a single-year tuition and fee schedule under subparagraph (A)(ii) shall include with each multi-year estimate the average deviation, in percentage terms, between previous year estimates and actual net costs for students at their institution.

“(D) The Secretary shall waive the requirements of subparagraph (A), and of the commitment made thereunder, if the institution demonstrates to the Secretary that the requirements of subparagraph (A) are not practicable because of the occurrence of one or more events causing the institution severe economic distress, dramatic reduction of State or Federal aid, or any other circumstance the Secretary deems valid.”.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this subsection shall be effective on July 1, 2009.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, today, with this bill, we will vote to make a real difference and put a college education within reach of more students than ever before. My colleagues, Chairman MILLER, Chairman HINOJOSA, Mr. MCKEON, and Mr. KELLER, put forth legislation that we could all be proud to support. This is just the latest measure in the 110th Congress that has put forth more help for students to reach the American dream.

Mr. Chairman, it's time to be straight with American families about how much a college education is truly going to cost. We have seen the numbers and met the families who sit at their kitchen table and struggle to find a way to send their kids to school.

One thing, though, we don't hear much about, what is just as devastating to families, is the dramatic fluctuation in tuition from year to year. College costs have risen 40 percent over the last 5 years, but in several cases around the country a sharp jump in prices comes between the end of classes and the following fall. How are families supposed to plan when between finals and the first day of school tuition goes up more than $6,000?

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is about planning and predictability. With this measure, students and families will know how much their education is going to cost from the start, and that means fewer surprise tuition hikes and plenty of time to plan financially.

We not only give parents and students the time that they need, but we also give colleges and universities options and incentives for helping kids plan for and to afford college.

Our amendment gives colleges and universities two options on how to better inform students and families. Schools can either provide a fee schedule up front for all 4 years or a single-year fee schedule with detailed information about future costs, including financial aid. Through either of these options we can make planning for college a little easier.

Mr. Chairman, I don't believe it's too much for families to ask the university for a best guess as to what their child's education will cost. After all, families can figure out how much they're going to pay for a house, how much braces will cost for their kids' teeth, or what it costs to buy a car or plan for their retirement. They should be able to plan more appropriately for college.

I thank my colleague from North Carolina, Congresswoman MYRICK, for standing with me on this amendment and being a leader on college affordability, and for my colleague from California, Congressman CARDOZA, for his support.

I'd also like to thank Chairman MILLER for his leadership and his tireless efforts to help families and students realize the American Dream.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to stand with us to put a stop to the uncertainty families face and give them this truth in tuition.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Does any Member claim time in opposition?

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise to claim time in opposition, though I will not express opposition, I will just express a plea for clarity on this measure as we go to conference.

My concern is this, and by the way, I would like to applaud my colleagues for offering this amendment, and I certainly would like to laud their intent, but my concern is that we will be requiring colleges to provide information that, by its very nature, is speculative, and we will then be allowing students to make judgments on that information when it may not be reliable. And having gone through this for a long, long time in a previous life, it is not a good idea to give students misinformation.

So my plea is that as we go to conference on this, I hope that we can work with the authors of the amendment to maintain its intent but clarify the language in such a way that students are not put into the position where they are put in a position where they make judgments based on information that, as I say, is speculative and, therefore, not as reliable as it could be.

As I say, though, I am not in opposition. I just hope that we can clarify this in conference.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to my friend and colleague from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK).

Mrs. MYRICK. I thank my friend for yielding.

Every time a constituent of mine talks about college there is mention about how much it costs, and they tell me about their struggles and the choices they have to make in order to put their kids through college.

□ 1645

Millions of families sit at the kitchen table and try and figure this out every year, how are they going to make ends meet and pay for it. And there have been a lot of high and unpredictable costs over the years, and it's really tough for them, especially if it's tough economic times. It's tough for them to figure it out because they don't know if it will be 3 percent, 30 percent, what it might end up being. So I feel, and my colleague agrees, that parents need to have some certainty and know the cost of the degree.

And when colleges can set multi-year contracts for their vendors and for their basketball coach and even their presidents and other people, it seems like they can at least give some idea of what the education is going to cost for the parents.

The Truth in Tuition amendment helps the families plan by making sure that the schools give every student a clear picture of what their degrees will cost. It's a reasonable amendment, and it gives schools great flexibility. There aren't any price caps, and it doesn't freeze the price of tuition. They can set their tuition rates however they see fit. But it shows the students and their families what the charges are going to be over the course of their studies.

It's not binding on the schools. It provides the students, though, as I say, with an idea. And there is a provision in there that if the school has some kind of an economic hardship, they can get a waiver from the Secretary of Education. This could include a cut in Federal or State funding, or any number of other economic issues that might disrupt the school's budget.

All the public universities in Illinois, central Michigan, the University of Minnesota, George Washington University, and many more have already implemented this policy.

And so I thank my colleague from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURPHY) for all his hard work on this bill. I thank both Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON and their staff for all the hard work they put into the underlying bill.

I just urge my colleagues to vote for this amendment because it will help students and families who need relief from the uncertainties of college tuition.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 27 OFFERED BY MR. SHULER

The Acting CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 27 printed in House Report 110-523.

Mr. SHULER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 27 offered by Mr. SHULER:

After section 111 of the bill, insert the following new section (and redesignate the succeeding sections accordingly):

SEC. 112. STATE HIGHER EDUCATION INFORMATION SYSTEM PILOT PROGRAM.

Part C of title I (20 U.S.C. 1015) is further amended by adding after section 135 (as added by section 111 of this Act) the following new section:

"SEC. 136. STATE HIGHER EDUCATION INFORMATION SYSTEM PILOT PROGRAM.

"(a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section to carry out a pilot program to assist not more than 5 States to develop State-level postsecondary student data systems to—

"(1) improve the capacity of States and institutions of higher education to generate more comprehensive and comparable data, in order to develop better-informed educational policy at the State level and to evaluate the effectiveness of institutional performance while protecting the confidentiality of students' personally identifiable information; and

“(2) identify how to best minimize the data-reporting burden placed on institutions of higher education, particularly smaller institutions, and to maximize and improve the information institutions receive from the data systems, in order to assist institutions in improving educational practice and postsecondary outcomes.

“(b) DEFINITION OF ELIGIBLE ENTITY.—In this section, the term ‘eligible entity’ means—

“(1) a State higher education system; or

“(2) a consortium of State higher education systems, or a consortium of individual institutions of higher education, that is broadly representative of institutions in different sectors and geographic locations.

“(c) COMPETITIVE GRANTS.—

“(1) GRANTS AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary shall award grants, on a competitive basis, to not more than 5 eligible entities to enable the eligible entities to—

“(A) design, test, and implement postsecondary student data systems that provide the maximum benefits to States, institutions of higher education, and State policymakers; and “(B) examine the costs and burdens involved in implementing a State-level postsecondary student data system.

“(2) DURATION.—A grant awarded under this section shall be for a period of not more than 3 years.

“(d) APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS.—An eligible entity desiring a grant under this section shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary determines is necessary, including a description of—

“(1) how the eligible entity will ensure that student privacy is protected and that individually identifiable information about students, the students’ achievements, and the students’ families remains confidential in accordance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (20 U.S.C. 1232g); and

“(2) how the activities funded by the grant will be supported after the 3-year grant period.

“(e) USE OF FUNDS.—A grant awarded under this section shall be used to—

“(1) design, develop, and implement the components of a comprehensive postsecondary student data system with the capacity to transmit student information within States;

“(2) improve the capacity of institutions of higher education to analyze and use student data;

“(3) select and define common data elements, data quality, and other elements that will enable the data system to—

“(A) serve the needs of institutions of higher education for institutional research and improvement;

“(B) provide students and the students’ families with useful information for decision-making about postsecondary education;

“(C) provide State policymakers with improved information to monitor and guide efforts to improve student outcomes and success in higher education;

“(4) estimate costs and burdens at the institutional level for reporting to the postsecondary student data system; and

“(5) test the feasibility of protocols and standards for maintaining data privacy and data access.

“(f) EVALUATION; REPORTS.—Not later than 6 months after the end of the projects funded by grants awarded under this section, the Secretary shall—

“(1) conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the pilot program authorized by this section; and

“(2) report the Secretary’s findings, as well as recommendations regarding the implementation of State-level postsecondary student data systems to the authorizing committees.

“(g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2009 and each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.”

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 956, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. SHULER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. SHULER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, we often study how students progress from the beginning of the school year to the end, but what happens after that? How well are high school students prepared for college? How well are college students prepared for the workforce? How long are graduates staying in high-needs fields like nursing? My amendment will help provide long-term data for our State systems’ need to answer these questions.

The Shuler amendment will create a grant program to help universities develop studies to measure students’ achievement from preschool to college and beyond. This data will also allow State lawmakers to direct resources to programs that are producing top-quality graduates in critical areas. Participation is completely voluntary and complies with all aspects of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act.

My amendment has also been supported by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, the Alliance for Quality Teaching, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, and 10 other major organizations.

I thank Chairman MILLER and Ranking Member MCKEON for their time and their dedication, and I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHULER. I will yield.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I want to thank the gentleman from North Carolina for offering this amendment.

This information would be helpful to us. It would also give us the ability to determine whether we’re putting our resources and our time and our talents in the right place with respect to properly preparing people for the workforce.

I would urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from North Carolina is recognized. There are approximately 3 minutes remaining on his time.

Mr. MCKEON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHULER. I will yield.

Mr. MCKEON. The thing that I like most about this amendment is it is done at the State level. There are some people that would like to have this done at the Federal level. I think the State level is the appropriate place.

And I also like the fact that it’s a pilot. It’s limited. It gives us a chance to see how it works before making it a national program.

So I commend the gentleman for his amendment and urge support of the amendment.

Mr. SHULER. I thank Ranking Member MCKEON for his dedication and hard work as well.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. SHULER).

The amendment was agreed to.

Messrs. SKELTON and SHUSTER changed their vote from “aye” to “no.” Messrs. MOLLOHAN, BRADY of Pennsylvania, and FATTAH changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. The question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. TAUSCHER) having assumed the chair, Mr. POMEROY, Acting Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4137) to amend and extend the Higher Education Act of 1965, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 956, he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment to the amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole? If not, the question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HOYER was allowed to speak out of order.)

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I know Members have probably gotten it on their BlackBerries, but I wanted to confirm that the stimulus package is going to be passed in the Senate and will be coming back to us. Mr. BOEHNER and I and the whip and the leadership have agreed that we will take up the stimulus tonight. We will take it up by unanimous consent. There will be 20 minutes of debate on each side.

We will conclude the stimulus package, send it to the President, and we will not be meeting tomorrow.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR. FERGUSON

Mr. FERGUSON. Madam Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. FERGUSON. I am in its current form.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ferguson moves to recommit the bill H.R. 4137 to the Committee on Education and Labor with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

At the end of the bill, add the following new title:

TITLE XII—LIMITATIONS ON EXPENDITURES

SEC. 1201. FUNDING PRIORITIES.

(a) PELL AND IDEA FIRST.—None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to an authorization of appropriations or other provision of this Act (including an amendment made by this Act) shall be expended to carry out any new program under this Act for any fiscal year, or any FIPSE program for that fiscal year, unless—

(1) the Federal Pell Grant program is fully funded for that fiscal year; and

(2) the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act is fully funded for that fiscal year.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

(1) NEW PROGRAM.—The term “new program under this Act” means a title, part, subpart, section, or other provision of the Higher Education Act of 1965—

(A) for which funds are authorized to be appropriated or otherwise made available by an amendment made by this Act to the Higher Education Act of 1965; and

(B) for which funds were not authorized to be appropriated or otherwise made available prior to the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) FIPSE PROGRAM.—The term “FIPSE program” means any program authorized by section 741 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended by title VII of this Act.

(3) PELL GRANT FULL FUNDING.—The Federal Pell Grant program shall be considered to be fully funded for a fiscal year only if the total amount appropriated or otherwise made available for such fiscal year is sufficient to provide a maximum Federal Pell Grant that equals or exceeds $9,000.

(4) IDEA FULL FUNDING.—The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act shall be considered to be fully funded for a fiscal year only if, with respect to such fiscal year, the total amount appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations under section 611(i) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 1411(i)) or otherwise made available is sufficient to provide the maximum grant to each State as determined under section 611(a)(2)(B) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 1411(a)(2)(B)) for such fiscal year.

Mr. FERGUSON (during the reading). Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the reading be dispensed with.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FERGUSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to offer a motion to recommit H.R. 4137, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act, back to the committee. I offer this motion to recommit because this legislation falls short of funding two very critical programs for the education of people in our country. We must ensure that we are fully funding two very important programs, Pell Grants and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, IDEA, before moving forward with other programs.

Both the Pell Grant program and IDEA have been underfunded for years. This body has promised to fully fund these programs for all Americans, individuals and States, and, sadly, today this body is going to break that promise once again.

These are commitments that Republicans and Democrats together have made over the years, and together we have fallen short. Today we have an opportunity to change that.

While I am sure the additional programs in today's legislation are worthy programs, we must first guarantee that we are meeting the requirements of current programs before adding more responsibilities to the Department of Education.

Individuals in this country depend on Pell Grants and special education funding. For years, these two programs have been successful and are critical to ensuring that all Americans have access to a quality education. It is crucial that we bring these programs up to their full funding levels before adding new spending programs.

This motion establishes better funding priorities than the underlying bill. Funding special education and Pell Grants for the higher education of individuals in this country should be the number one priority of the education programs for this body.

Currently, IDEA, our special education program, is only being funded at 17 percent of the added cost of educating individuals with disabilities. The Federal Government has been authorized to fund up to 40 percent of the total cost of special education in our States.

The fiscal year 2009 budget request is for $11.28 billion. This represents 17 percent of the added cost of special education. To fund IDEA to the level the Federal Government has promised, this request needs to be, should be, $26.55 billion. This creates a funding shortfall of over $15 billion for IDEA.

Pell Grants are authorized to be $9,000, the maximum award, under this legislation. However, the current level is less than half of that, the discretionary maximum of $4,241. Including mandatory spending in the maximum Pell Grant, it is still only $4,371, which is only 49 percent of the authorized level.

Now, as a nation, Madam Speaker, we pride ourselves on our education system. How can we be proud of a piece of legislation that funds our long-standing key educational programs at only 42.5 percent of the authorized level? It doesn't sound like something to be proud of. How can we be proud of a piece of legislation without this motion to recommit that doesn't set the right funding priorities for our Nation?

Members on both sides of the aisle know that one of the heartfelt items that I have worked on in my years in this body has been fully funding our special education programs. We have worked on it together. We have sometimes had success, and sometimes we haven't had the success that we would have liked. But together, today, we have an opportunity to fully fund IDEA and to fully fund the Pell Grant program, these two programs which are so instrumental in helping give young people in our country the educational opportunities that they so desperately need and deserve.

Let's fully fund the Pell Grant program. Let's fully fund IDEA to keep our commitment to our special needs students. Let's vote "yes" on the motion to recommit.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1745

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Speaker, one of the great coalitions we have in the Congress of the United States, supported by every school board, every teacher organization, every educational group in the country was to fully fund IDEA. It was bipartisan; letters went down with 200, 300, 350, 375 Members of Congress saying fully fund IDEA.

We got pounded on our side when we weren't in control of the Congress; that's the way it was. Everybody was for it, right up until the moment that they took control of the Congress of the United States, because in No Child Left Behind, when we asked to fully fund IDEA, the now-minority leader of the Republicans pulled the plug, and that great bipartisan coalition hasn't been heard of since.

I would be embarrassed too. I would try to struggle to come back because you disappointed the American public. You certainly disappointed the families of these children, and you certainly disappointed these children and those who struggle to give them an education every day. So now as they struggle to come back, what are they going to do?

They are going to say unless you fund IDEA, you can't spend any money on higher education under this bill. Folks, that's all money in higher education under this bill, which is under this bill. So you won't be able to provide loan forgiveness for firefighters and policemen and public defenders and prosecutors and nurses. You won't be able to help veterans reenter the higher education system when they come back with so many of the injuries that they are coming back from.

We won't be able to give them the assistance that's in this legislation. For those veterans who lost a family member, this bill says they are automatically entitled, the children are automatically entitled to the Pell Grant. Those veterans' families won't get that, a member of their family paid the supreme price in the defense of this country. They won't get that.

You are not going to get what we have been working for for so many years, led by Mr. MCKEON, led by RAHM EMANUEL, to simplify it so families can understand the access to the loan program so they can pay for their kids' education. For the first time in 25 years, we have a simplified system. But you won't get that; families won't get that.

What about safety on college campuses? We had a moment of silence here for those students. We had hearings all over Capitol Hill for those students, but we address campus safety on a bipartisan basis. We slugged it out, we worked it out, we did it. You won't get that. Those campuses won't get that kind of assistance.

What about now for the first time a master's program for the historically black colleges? You won't get that. Because you shirked your duties year after year after year for over a decade, you have now decided these are the people that you are going to punish. This is the tenet of this party on the other side of the aisle.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman should address his remarks to the Chair.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. It is tough to do when I realize the substance of this amendment. It should be directed to the author of the amendment and to the party that supports it.

What about Teach for America? Have you talked to the principals in the school districts that have these magnificent young people who have come to this system to give us a couple of the best years of their life? It won't be allowed under this amendment.

Finally, what about the disabled kids that are in college where, for the first time, in the Higher Education Act, we speak to the needs of the disabled community that can thrive and do well in colleges but they need help. You pit them against their brothers and sisters.

Make your choice, ladies and gentlemen. You can vote for the past and a scandalous record and commitment on education, or you can vote for the future. How about some change?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. FERGUSON. Madam Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 and clause 9 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on the motion to recommit will be followed by 5-minute votes on passage of the bill, if ordered; and suspending the rules agreeing to House Resolution 947.
