

United States of America

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 112th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

SENATE—Thursday, July 7, 2011

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable TOM UDALL, a Senator from the State of New Mexico.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Eternal God, the Earth belongs to You. At creation, You brought order out of chaos and light out of darkness. We wait for You to renew our strength, enabling us to mount up with wings as eagles.

Today reinforce our Senators with the constant assurance of Your presence, renewing their energies and enlarging their vision. Lord, give them hearts that find peace in the knowledge that they are ultimately accountable to You alone. Redeem their failures, reward their integrity, and crown their day with the benediction of Your peace.

We pray in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable TOM UDALL led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. INOUE).

The assistant legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, July 7, 2011.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable TOM UDALL, a Senator from the State of New Mexico, to perform the duties of the Chair.

DANIEL K. INOUE,
President pro tempore.

Mr. UDALL thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, following any leader remarks, the Senate will resume the motion to proceed to S. 1323, which is a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in the resulting budget deficit, with the time until 10 a.m. equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees. At 10 a.m., there will be a vote on the motion to invoke cloture to proceed to S. 1323.

BUDGET NEGOTIATIONS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today the Senate will consider legislation calling on millionaires and billionaires to contribute to this country's effort to reduce our deficit. The poor, the middle class, children, and seniors have already been asked to make sacrifices to help get our fiscal house in order. This legislation would reaffirm the Senate's commitment to ensuring the extremely wealthy are asked to make similar sacrifices. This principle that all Americans should contribute their fair share as we work together to reduce the deficit is so common sense it should go without saying. Yet Republicans boast of their opposition of having the very affluent not pay their fair share. This is the simple, straightforward statement by my Republican colleagues. Listen to this:

... any agreement to reduce the budget deficit should require that those earning $1,000,000 or more per year make a more meaningful contribution to the deficit reduction effort.

My Republican colleagues reject that. Democrats believe all Americans, even those who can afford private jets and yachts, should contribute to the collective effort to reduce the deficit. The question is, Why aren't Republicans willing to do the same? They say it is because they are looking out for the people. That claim is ridiculous. This claim is without foundation, which is preposterous. Let's talk about the millionaires and billionaires Republicans are determined to protect above all else. Less than one-quarter of 1 percent of tax returns filed in the United States each year belong to the people making more than $1 million—25 percent of 1 percent, one-quarter percent of 1 percent. These same people are the 1 percent of Americans who control 50 percent of this country's wealth. We are speaking of the Warren Buffets of the world. Warren Buffett is my friend. I have great respect and admiration for him, but he is extremely wealthy. What does Warren Buffett, who is the second or third richest man in the world, say about contributing his fair share? He welcomes it. In fact, Mr. Buffett criticized the system in which his secretary gives a greater share of her income to the government each year than a man worth more than $50 billion. Here he says: "If you're the luckiest 1 percent of humanity, you owe it to the rest of humanity to think about the other 99 percent."

That is what he said. That is what Warren Buffett said about contributing his fair share.

Since the late 1970s, incomes for the lucky 1 percent of America have risen by 281 percent. The last three decades have been very good to the very wealthy. President George W. Bush called these people the haves and have-mores. He also called them his base. Right now, the Republican Party is putting what is good for this very small base ahead of what is very good for this great Nation.

The legislation before us asks only this: that each American be part of the solution rather than part of the problem. In poll after poll, Americans have endorsed this principle. They have said they believe we must address our deficit both by reducing spending and by ending tax breaks to the wealthiest citizens and corporations. We have heard them. Democrats have heard them. If Warren Buffett chooses to buy a private jet or a whole fleet of them, that is OK, but the American taxpayer should not give him a special tax break for buying his own jet airplane.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a member of the Senate on the floor.

Our country is facing a crisis. We face mounting debt brought on by a decade of war and tax breaks for the wealthy. We face the prospect that Republicans will force us to default on our financial obligations for the first time in our Nation's history. Difficult choices must be made. Together, we should consider cutting programs to help real people in very real ways. Eliminating tax breaks for oil companies making record profits, corporations that ship jobs overseas, and the owners of private jets and yachts should be an easy part of this problem to solve. Yet Republicans walked away from the negotiating table when a solution was in sight because they said no to fairness. Democrats had already agreed to trillions in difficult cuts in order to prevent a default crisis and avert a worldwide depression. Then Republicans walked away from the table to help the 1 percent of Americans fortunate enough to not need any extra help.

How do Republicans explain that to their constituents back home? Very carefully. Why? Because as middle-class families struggle to make ends meet, my Republican colleagues are risking the financial future of this country and the world for the sake of people who can afford private jets and yachts. I cannot imagine that conversation. Asking millionaires and billionaires to contribute to solving this Nation's deficit crisis is not unreasonable. It is just plain common sense and simple fairness.

We are going to have a vote in just 20 minutes or so, and probably what my Republican colleagues will do is to vote to allow us to proceed. That would be great if there was some sense that they agreed with what we are trying to do; that is, that they want the millionaires and billionaires to contribute their fair share. But as we know, the rules will only allow us to move to the next step and actually be on the bill. So when we get on the bill, I would tell everyone here, if we can work on an agreement to have some fixed amendments and work on it, I would be happy to do that. It is how we used to do things around here.

But if this means a free-for-all and offering amendments on abortion and war fighting and all this kind of stuff, we can't do that. We need to devote these next few weeks to debate dealing with the deficit problems we have in this country, and they are significant.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.

BUDGET DEBATE

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, later this morning, we will have a vote whether to proceed to a nonbinding resolution on whether to raise taxes at a time when 14 million Americans are out of work. I oppose the resolution, but I will vote to move to it so we can finally have a real debate about the economic crisis we face. That is what we were supposed to be doing this week, and that is what we will do. This is an important debate to have as discussions continue over at the White House this morning in connection with the President's request to raise the debt ceiling.

Americans want to know where their elected representatives stand on these issues. Today we will have an opportunity to show them where we stand on entitlement reform, where we stand on government spending, where we stand on balancing the budget, where we stand on our unsustainable deficits and debt.

For too long, Democrats have tried to evade these questions. It has been 799 days since Democrats passed a budget. They have presented no plan to reduce our debt. So today is an opportunity to offer real ideas for addressing our debt and job crisis, to make our positions clear, and, for our part, Republicans intend to offer more than a vague, nonbinding resolution.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

SHARED SACRIFICE IN RESOLVING THE BUDGET DEFICIT—MOTION TO PROCEED

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to proceed to the consideration of S. 1323, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to the bill (S. 1323) to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 10 a.m. will be equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, pending is S. 1323, which is the sense-of-the-Senate resolution. For those who follow the Senate, this is not a law. It will not be a law, if passed. It is merely an expression of sentiment by the Senate on an issue. It can be summarized very quickly with the sense-of-the-Senate clause, which reads:

It is the sense of the Senate that any agreement to reduce the budget deficit should require that those earning $1,000,000 or more per year make a more meaningful contribution to the deficit reduction effort.

Why are we even talking about this? Wouldn't everyone in America concede that everyone needs to make a sacrifice if we are going to make this country stronger? Those who can make a greater sacrifice, those who are well-off, with an income of $1 million or more each year, should do a little more. Why is that such a bold and controversial suggestion? Because, in fact, when we look at the actions taken by Congress over the last 10 years, we have found a political sentiment, primarily from the other side of the aisle—not exclusively, primarily—which says we cannot ask sacrifice of the wealthiest people in America.

I can tell those who are students of American history know when we have had a challenge in this Nation, particularly during wars when our very existence was being challenged, people stepped up from every income level in America and said: I am willing to fight for this country. I am willing to die for this country. I am willing to sacrifice for this country. So why would this be a matter to be debated on the floor of the Senate? Because, in fact, the policies of this country over the last 10 years have said that the wealthiest among us should be spared, time and again, from sacrifice when it comes to the future of our Nation.

That is just plain wrong. Those who are fortunate enough to be well-off, to have a strong income, to enjoy the blessings of liberty, to live in what I feel is the greatest Nation on Earth should be prepared to give back something.

I have spoken to some in our walk of life here in the Senate. We spend time with those who are well-off who finance our campaigns. That is a reality I am not happy with, but a reality. So many of them have said, for goodness sake, Senator, why do you even hesitate to ask me for more taxes? I am prepared to pay those taxes because I feel blessed to live in this country.

So the idea of raising taxes on the wealthiest among us won't change their lifestyle a bit but will help to solve some of our problems. If we don't change the tax cuts that were put in under President George W. Bush, people making $1 million-plus a year will get a $200,000 tax break—a $200,000 tax break—every year. In order to pay for that tax break, some other Americans have to sacrifice. For example, it means about 33 seniors will have to pay $600 more a year for Medicare under one proposal in the House Republican budget so that we will generate enough money to give a tax break to a person who is a millionaire. Thirty-three senators will pay $600 more a year so a millionaire can get a tax break. That is wrong. It is just plain wrong.

I believe we need to ask for shared sacrifice, and that is what this resolution says. Senator MCCONNELL, who was here a few moments ago, said this week:

It's about making Washington make tough choices. It's about Washington taking the hit this time.

Well, the people who are taking the hit in America are not in Washington, they are all across this country. It is low and middle-income Americans who are taking a hit in the current economy. There are still almost 14 million Americans out of work and those who are working have seen the bulk of income growth go to the highest income categories. We have the greatest income disparity in the history of the United States since the Great Depression. Over the past 10 years, the median family income has declined by more than $2,500. What that means, whether it is New Mexico or Illinois, is that people who are working hard, going to work every single day, making sacrifices, fall further and further behind and live paycheck to paycheck. That is the reality of life for hard-working, middle-income Americans.

So those of us who come to the floor and say spare them—if you are going to spare anyone from further taxation, give them a helping hand—understand the reality of it so they can keep their heads above water, barely. So many Americans live paycheck to paycheck. It is the only way they survive, and that is the reality.

My colleague from Kentucky is right. In Washington we need to make the tough choices and we need to face them with a sense of consensus and compromise. An all-or-nothing approach to the budget isn't going to work. In about an hour and 15 minutes, I am going to be honored to represent, with Senator REID, our majority leader, the Senate Democrats in a meeting with President Obama. We will sit down in the Cabinet Room, as I have before, and we will talk about what we are going to do with this deficit crisis. I will say to the President and those assembled that we have plenty to work with. It was 6 or 7 months ago when the Bowles-Simpson commission, the President's commission on the deficit, gave us a blueprint and said: Here is a way to reach $4.5 trillion of deficit reduction in a fair way: Put everything on the table. Democrats, suck it up. Put entitlements on the table. Make sure that at the end of the day, these are still programs that serve the public, Social Security is still there making its promised payments. Make sure Medicare covers the health care of elderly Americans. Do it in a fiscally responsible way, but don't run away from it. Don't ignore the problems we face.

Similarly, the Bowles-Simpson commission said to those on the other side of the aisle: Be honest about revenue. We are facing the lowest Federal revenue against our gross domestic product we have seen in 60 years. Is it any wonder we are in deficit? Fifteen percent of our gross domestic product comes to the Federal Government revenue share and we spend 25 percent. So the 10-percent difference is our deficit. It is time to bring the spending down and the revenue up.

Critics will say we can't raise taxes in the midst of a recession. Well, we need to be careful, I agree. Raising taxes in the wrong places could hurt our recovery. Here are some places where it won't hurt, as this resolution says, at the highest income categories. These Americans can afford to pay a little more. They certainly don't need a tax break.

Secondly, take a look at the Tax Code. We have up to $1.2 trillion a year in tax spending, tax earmarks, credits and deductions that the special interest lobbyists put in the Tax Code. Many of them are absolutely indefensible, and we can't afford them anymore. If we are asking sacrifice across the board from America, we should ask sacrifice from those who are benefiting from these tax loopholes and tax benefits. We can do that. In fact, we may be able to do it if we follow Bowles-Simpson and at the same time reduce the marginal tax rates for all Americans. It can be done.

Let's take a hard look at the Tax Code and remember that 70 percent of Americans do not itemize, which means they do not take advantage of the Tax Code, except in a rare situation where they have a refundable tax credit. These people are not using the Tax Code. Those who use it are in higher income categories. They are using it, they are following the law, and they are avoiding their taxes.

Warren Buffett had a great quote which we should remember while we debate this. November 26, 2006:

There's class warfare, all right, but it's my class, the rich class, that's making war, and we're winning.

Warren Buffett is a man of few words and is listened to carefully because of his wisdom in business and in life, and he hits the nail on the head. He said to me and to many others—and publicly—it is unconscionable that using our Tax Code today, he, Warren Buffett, pays a lower marginal tax rate than the secretaries in his office. That is absolutely wrong. Why should a hard-working person in a business, at a lower level, pay a higher marginal tax rate than the person owning the business, making millions of dollars each year? That is where the Tax Code is wrong, and that is where we can change it, save money, use it to reduce the deficit and reduce marginal income tax rates.

That is what this resolution is all about. It is nothing short of amazing we are debating the question of whether those who make $1 million or more each year should pony up and contribute more when it comes to deficit reduction.

The newspapers this morning talk about what may be included in any final agreement. I don't know what will be included. I hope there is an agreement. There is one thing I wish to make clear. I just left a meeting with people who do forecasting—Standard & Poor's, Moody's, Fitch, and the like. They talked about what is going to happen if we do not extend the debt ceiling. Let me lay my cards on the table. The debt ceiling vote every year is a political football. Those who are not in the President's party don't want to vote for it. Why should they, and go home and get slapped around for having voted to extend America's debt. In years gone by, there have been times I didn't vote for it but, in all honesty, I knew in the back of my mind it was going to pass.

Here is the reality: If we reach a stalemate on the debt ceiling now because the President's party doesn't control the Congress—certainly not the House and barely in the Senate—if we don't extend the debt ceiling, what is going to happen is very obvious. The full faith and credit of the United States is going to be called into question, and that has never happened. We have never in our history failed to extend the debt ceiling and to say we stand behind our debts and will make good on payments. If there is any question about that, we know what happens. It is the same thing that happens when a person defaults on their home mortgage. It becomes increasingly difficult to ever get another mortgage and if that person does, he or she faces higher interest rates than ever. That is what America will face if we don't extend the debt ceiling. So these people from these rating agencies came to us and said it will be disastrous if you allow the debt ceiling not to be extended on August 2. That is the reality of the world we live in.

So I would say, as we go into these important and difficult negotiations, as we move toward the moment when we are going to have, I hope, an agreement, let's make it very clear to the world that the United States understands its obligations, will pay its debts, and that we won't face the dire consequences of the opposite being true. That is the reality of what we face today.

I will say one last thing before I yield the floor.

As we structure this deficit rescue or deficit project, let's remember two things are essential. There are vulnerable people in the United States of America who, through no fault of their own, struggle each day to live. Some of them suffer from physical and mental disabilities. Some of them have been poor their entire lives and come from poor families and have a difficult time and limited education. Some of them are elderly and in nursing homes. These people—the most vulnerable among us—need a helping hand. We have never failed to do that in modern times and we shouldn't in this time of trouble, time of deficit. We can keep our word to the poor among us that we are going to stand by them because we are caring people. We can do it by making certain the Medicaid Program, which provides health insurance for one-third of the children in America and which covers the medical costs of birth of more than 40 percent of children in America and literally provides for millions of seniors to be able to stay in nursing homes and in senior settings, these are the things we need to take care of in the midst of this deficit reduction.

I see my colleague from Tennessee on the Republican side has come to the floor, and there is time available on his side. I didn't know if anyone was coming. I am wrapping up, so I thank my colleague from Tennessee.

I will wrap up by saying we can take care to make sure the safety net is protected, and to make sure as well that we address all levels of spending in our government—every one of them—to make certain that whether it is the defense budget or the budget for programs not related to defense or whether it is entitlement programs, all of these need to be carefully scrutinized. We can cut spending in a responsible, bipartisan way and show we can bring our deficit down, strengthen this economy and, I think in the process, if we do it on a bipartisan basis, we are going to launch an economic recovery that inures to the benefit of all of us. If we don't and this ends up in finger pointing, I don't know who will take the fall for it. No one does. But the best thing we can do is to ignore the political aspect and deal with the reality of the challenge we face.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I appreciate what the Senator from Illinois said and I congratulate him not necessarily for the specifics of what he said but for his general demeanor and attitude throughout this entire discussion about the deficit and the debt. He has been one of those Senators—there have been some on both sides of the aisle—who have made some difficult choices and some difficult decisions and recognizes that at a time when Washington is borrowing 40 cents of every dollar we spend, we have a serious problem and we have to look at our entire fiscal condition in order to solve the problem. The people of this country expect us to do that. So Senator DURBIN has, by his willingness to make some hard decisions, set a pretty good example for all of us in the Senate.

Today, my hope is the meeting the President has with our congressional leaders of both sides succeeds, because if they succeed, our country succeeds. The country expects us to do that. I hope they think big. I hope they swing for the fences and get a result and bring it back to us and let us consider it and hopefully enact it and get on to other business. The debt is a major long-term problem, not just for our grandchildren but for us today. We have a bigger issue facing us which is the fact that we have had persistent unemployment in an economy that is not growing, and that is hurting too many people. So the sooner we swing for the fences and get a result and get our debt under control and deal with it in a bipartisan way, the better for the country and the quicker we will be able to get on to the larger question of jobs.

Of course, economists have made clear to us getting the debt under control has a lot to do with jobs. When our total debt is as high as it is today—nearly 100 percent of our gross domestic product—that probably costs us 1 million jobs a year. We can't solve all of that in 1 day or 1 month, but we can take a big step in the right direction, and that is what our countrymen and women want us to do.

I am glad I was able to be here to hear part of the Senator's speech and I am glad I have a chance to commend him for his leadership on this vexing and important problem we need to deal with.

I thank the President, and I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, if it meets with the approval of the Senator from Tennessee in leadership on the Republican side, I suggest we yield back all time, and I ask unanimous consent to proceed to the vote.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

CLOTURE MOTION

Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to proceed to Calendar No. 93, S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit.

Harry Reid, Richard J. Durbin, Charles E. Schumer, Frank R. Lautenberg, Al Franken, John D. Rockefeller IV, Jack Reed, Sheldon Whitehouse, Sherrod Brown, Bernard Sanders, John F. Kerry, Jeff Merkley, Debbie Stabenow, Daniel K. Akaka, Daniel K. Inouye, Patrick J. Leahy, Benjamin L. Cardin.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the motion to proceed to S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Iowa (Mr. HARKIN), the Senator from Vermont (Mr. LEAHY), and the Senator from Montana (Mr. TESTER) are necessarily absent.

Mr. KYL. The following Senator is necessarily absent: the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. BURR).

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 74, nays 22, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 106 Leg.]

YEAS—74

Akaka	Graham	Moran
Alexander	Grassley	Murkowski
Baucus	Hagan	Murray
Begich	Hoeben	Nelson (FL)
Bennet	Hutchison	Pryor
Bingaman	Inouye	Reed
Blumenthal	Johanns	Reid
Boxer	Johnson (SD)	Roberts
Brown (MA)	Kerry	Rockefeller
Brown (OH)	Kirk	Sanders
Cantwell	Klobuchar	Schumer
Cardin	Kohl	Sessions
Carper	Kyl	Shaheen
Casey	Landrieu	Shelby
Coats	Lautenberg	Snowe
Cochran	Levin	Stabenow
Collins	Lieberman	Thune
Conrad	Lugar	Udall (CO)
Coons	Manchin	Udall (NM)
Corker	McCain	Vitter
Cornyn	McCaskill	Warner
Durbin	McConnell	Webb
Feinstein	Menendez	Whitehouse
Franken	Merkley	Wyden
Gillibrand	Mikulski

NAYS—22

Ayotte	Enzi	Paul
Barrasso	Hatch	Portman
Blunt	Heller	Risch
Boozman	Inhofe	Rubio
Chambliss	Isakson	Toomey
Coburn	Johnson (WI)	Wicker
Crapo	Lee
DeMint	Nelson (NE)

NOT VOTING—4

Burr	Leahy
Harkin	Tester

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. On this vote, the yeas are 74, the nays are 22. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is agreed to.

The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time until 6 p.m. today on the motion to proceed be equally divided between the two leaders or their designees; further, that at 2 p.m., Monday, July 11, the Senate resume consideration of the motion to proceed to S. 1323, with the time until 5:30 equally divided between the two leaders or their designees; that at 5:30 p.m. the Senate proceed to vote on the adoption of the motion to proceed to S. 1323.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. There will be no more roll-call votes this week.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. Will the Senator from Texas yield for a question?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. MCCAIN. The Senator from Texas, I am just wondering if a view that she might have might be that we have been terribly overworked this week. I understand we cancelled our Fourth of July recess in order to get back here and get to work and do the people's business.

Is it correct that that was the second vote that we have taken? One was an instruction of the Sergeant at Arms, and this one, another highly controversial issue that was taken up.

I guess my question to the Senator from Texas is, Has this week been a worthwhile expenditure of the taxpayers' dollars?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Well, I will respond to the distinguished Senator from Arizona that the resolution that was just passed was to go to a sense-of-the-Senate resolution, which, of course, has no force of law. It is, indeed, our second vote this week.

I will say that there is one thing on the minds of the people today, one thing on the minds of the people of America today, and it is, What on Earth is Congress doing? What on Earth is the President doing? What are they doing to address the looming debt crisis? And we were called back in not to recess but so that we could do something meaningful.

When I saw the Senator from Arizona on the Senate floor, he was ready to talk about our international situation and the commitments that we are making certainly. Many people said: No, wait a minute. We have a debt crisis, and we can't wait until August 2 to fulfill it.

So I would just respond to the Senator from Arizona and say, when do the American people get the answer they deserve, which is that Congress and the President are working together, and we are being productive, and we have a budget resolution on the floor, and we are debating it and we are talking about our differences on taxes and spending? I don't think we can tax our way out of a recession. I don't think we can tax our way out of the budget deficit.

I would just ask the Senator from Arizona if he thinks that we can make meaningful progress staying in session and debating, and if, in fact, that might be an option in the future.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Mr. MCCAIN. I see the distinguished majority leader waiting, so I will make my comments brief. I know that his agenda is very busy.

I would just say to my friend from Texas that I understand a lot of the inner mechanisms and hidden workings are going on behind the scenes. But when I go back and tell my constituents that we cancelled a week of recess and we had two votes—one to instruct the Sergeant at Arms and the other on a sense-of-the-Senate resolution—I would have liked to have taken up other business that was rejected by Members on this side because they wanted to focus on the deficit. But if we are focusing on that, maybe we should have taken up some issues that directly affect the deficit, such as ethanol subsidies, such as some of the other tax breaks and loopholes and other issues that surround the whole bankruptcy of this country.

I see the majority leader is waiting, so I will yield to my friend from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I would just ask unanimous consent that following the majority leader I regain the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. The Senator from Texas will have the floor. I just have a brief comment.

I have known my friend, the senior Senator from Arizona, since 1982 when we were both elected to Congress. His record of public service speaks for itself. But I would say to him, and to everyone within the sound of my voice, we didn't vote on Libya, this important resolution that had been worked on so hard by the distinguished Senator from Arizona and the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, because I was told we wouldn't get any votes from the Republicans because they wanted to focus on the deficit.

My friend also recognizes, as he said, that there is work going on behind the scenes, and that is true. There has been a lot of work this week that took place as a result of our being here that would not have taken place but for the fact that we are in session.

We know a lot of the work we accomplish here is not with votes. One reason we have not been having a lot of votes in recent months is because we can't get things on the Senate floor. We have been stopped by my Republican friends. There are meetings going on with the White House and with the Speaker, a multitude of meetings there, meetings going on between Members of the Senate and Democrats and Republicans in the House of Representatives. So I would say to everyone here it is good we were in session this week. I haven't heard a single person who is not in Congress complain about our being here. It is important we are here. As a result of that, we have been able to move down the road much further on the problems we have with the debt than we would have had we not been in session because there are all kinds of meetings going on around town dealing with how we do this.

We had a meeting right behind us today that started at 9 where we had the head of the Chamber of Commerce in. We had people from Moody's Financial Services. They were here to tell us what they are doing to focus on Republicans being able to help us get through this problem dealing with the debt.

We have to do something about the staggering debt that faces us, and what this resolution we voted on earlier today is all about is making sure there is equal sacrifice in our country; that is, we know we are going to have to make some cuts. We also recognize that we need to do something about equalizing revenue, and that is what is going on.

While what we do in the Senate every week isn't like solving a math problem—there is no perfection—that is the way the Founding Fathers set up this great government of ours. So we are going to continue to work in the next 4 weeks of this work period to solve some of the Nation's problems.

No. 1 on the list is doing something about our staggering debt.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I appreciate what the majority leader has said.

There is a lot going on, and there is the beginning, perhaps, of coming together, hopefully, with the President and the leadership of the House and the Senate. I just hope that we can establish why it is that there is such a divide on how we accomplish the issue of raising the debt ceiling with real reforms that will assure that we will not have to raise the debt ceiling again; that we will cut deficits so the debt will also be cut in this country. We cannot sustain the level of debt we have now. It is the highest we have ever had in the history of this country.

Mr. President, let's face it. We have two basic problems. We have this looming $14 trillion debt that is about to hit the ceiling, and we have to raise the ceiling. It would be irresponsible to do that without significant reforms that will assure that we are not going to hit it again. But the second problem we have is 9.1 percent unemployment.

So it is not like we are in a vacuum and we can just start taxing our small businesses, when small business has already had the looming hit of the health care plan that was passed that is going to cause every business in this country significant increases in their cost of doing business.

So when people are out there saying: Why is unemployment still so high? Why is hiring lagging? I think it is because businesses are trying to prepare for this big hit they are going to get in 2014 when the Obama health care plan takes full effect. They are trying to figure out if they are going to pay more for insurance or if they are going to take the fine and pay fines for every employee who doesn't have insurance, which is going to cause chaos in this country. So they are trying to decide.

On top of that, people on the other side of the aisle in Washington, DC, keep talking about increasing taxes, and the President keeps talking about increasing taxes. So no wonder our employers are not saying: Oh, yes, let's just open the floodgates and bring people back to work. They don't know what to expect.

We must generate economic growth, not stifle it. We need businesses to feel confident in the future that they are going to be able to make a profit on top of all the added costs of new taxes and health care reform that is going to hit businesses the hardest.

So we don't have a tax problem in this country. We are not being taxed too little. This government is spending too much. That is the problem we are facing right now. That is why we have a $14 trillion debt. We have a $1.6 trillion shortfall between spending and revenue this year.

So I am reminded of what Ronald Reagan once said: We don't have a $1 trillion debt because we haven't taxed enough. We have a $1 trillion debt because we spend too much.

Let's look at the spending side of the equation. We cannot continue business as usual in Washington and fix this problem. When President Obama was sworn into office, the national debt was $10.6 trillion. It was too much then. I think we all agree. Now it is $14.3 trillion. We are weeks away from officially hitting that $14.3 trillion debt ceiling.

We have had a monumental addition to the unprecedented number of spending dollars that was the stimulus that passed in February of 2009. Today, the President's Council of Economic Advisers said that 2.4 million jobs were created at a cost of $666 billion. That is about three-quarters of the stimulus. That is a cost to taxpayers of $278,000 per job. That is just not reasonable. This is the kind of spending we cannot continue in this country.

I think they say they want to increase taxes, and I hear the President say we must increase taxes on the oil companies, increase taxes on corporate jets. I think if we are fair and across-the-board and we tax oil companies like we tax every business—sure. Let's even the playing field. If we are going to take away the business deductions every business gets in this country, then, sure, let's take them from every business, including oil. But it is not going to help the deficit because it is not enough to help the deficit.

They say they want to increase taxes in order to reduce the deficit, but what they really want is to increase taxes to permanently increase spending so the big government we have seen grow in the last 2 years, 2½ years will be permanent. That is why they want to increase taxes.

I say there is a way to fix this. First of all, we could pass a balanced budget amendment. A balanced budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution would put us on a budget that we would have to meet like most States in this Nation and every business and every family. We would set the limits. I believe the appropriate limit would be that total Federal expenditures would be limited to 18 percent of the gross domestic product. Then Congress would also have to have caps on spending—about the same, 18 percent of gross domestic product. This would be a spending reform we could adopt that I believe the States would also agree to ratify that would give us a trajectory that would eliminate this deficit and the debt in this country, and we would be on a fiscally responsible path.

Second, if we are going to do this, we have to look at entitlements. That is the reality. We have a nearly bankrupt entitlement system that is ongoing regardless of what the revenue coming in is. The debt limit and the ongoing deficit reduction negotiations need to put entitlement reform on the table. Until yesterday they had refused to do it, but now it seems that perhaps some entitlement reform might be on the table. For instance, one that I have introduced a bill to correct is the Social Security system. Social Security will account for one-fifth of all Federal spending this year. The time for reform is now, and we can do it in a reasonable way.

The amount of Social Security benefits being paid out exceeds the revenue the Social Security payroll is collecting, and we are starting to draw down on the Social Security reserves. When the reserves run out in 2036, Social Security will only be able to pay out 77 percent of the benefits to current and future retirees. That is the law today. It would force a 23-percent cut in benefits. That is the law today.

The Social Security Board of Trustees reported earlier this year that one way to shore up Social Security's assets is to immediately and permanently increase the combined payroll tax on employees and employers from 12.4 to 14.5 percent—in other words, increase payroll taxes by one-sixth during our jobless economic nonrecovery. I do not think that is really feasible.

The trustees also noted that the shortfall could be eliminated by an immediate 13.8 percent cut in core benefits retirees are getting right now—an immediate $150-per-month cut in every Social Security benefit check right now. That was what the Social Security trustees suggested was a possibility. That is something I think we would unanimously, in this Senate, reject. No one is going to cut benefits $150 per month right now—nobody. Nobody would do it.

If we are going to address this, I have proposed a plan. Senator KYL and I introduced S. 1213, the Defend and Save Social Security Act. First, everyone knows we are living longer than when the Social Security Act passed. We have a higher quality of life. People want to work longer in most areas. So why not gradually raise the retirement age without impacting those who are about to retire?

Under my bill, anyone who is 58 years of age or older will see no change by the gradual increase of the retirement age. For everyone else, starting in 2016 the normal and early retirement age would increase by 3 months a year, so the normal retirement age would reach 67 by 2019, 68 by 2023, and 69 at 2027, and it stops there. Early retirement would be gradual—3 months a year, increased to 63 by 2019 and 64 by 2023, and it would stop.

Currently, Social Security recipients receive an annual cost-of-living adjustment, a COLA. Under my plan, the COLA would be computed as it is in current law but reduced 1 percent. So the average rate of inflation and COLA has been 2.2 percent every year of an increase. So if we have a 2.2-percent rate of inflation COLA, it would be a 1.2-percent increase in Social Security benefits. What I am saying is that a 1-percent decrease in the COLA is just a 1-percent decrease in the increase.

You would have the gradual raising of the age that would be much more in line with our actuarial table and the reality today, where people are living much longer, and you would also have a slight decrease in the increase in Social Security benefits according to inflation. If we have rampant inflation, then you would have the COLA, just 1 percent less. So if it is 2.2 percent inflation, then you would get a 1.2-percent COLA. Doing that saves the Social Security system, and it closes the 75-year gap. It does not raise taxes on anyone, and it does not cut a core benefit for anyone. That is the way we could fix Social Security right now.

What would that do for our deficit? Here is what it would do. It would achieve a $416 billion reduction over the next 10 years of our deficit and a $7.2 trillion savings by 2085. That means we are on the track. That means that over the next 75 years Social Security will be solid and secure without a tax increase on anyone and without a cut in core benefits to anyone, and no one who is 58 years of age or older will be affected by the adjustment in the retirement age.

We have a chance to do some things. I have gone out and said: Here is a proposal. My colleague, Senator CORKER, has proposed a limit, a cap on spending that is a reasonable limit. Other colleagues—Senator LEE, Senator PAUL, and Senator TOOMEY have suggested other ways to cut spending across the board, just a level goal. They are not cutting specific things, but they are cutting the discretionary spending at reasonable levels. Many Republicans are offering ways to cut back on spending. My colleague, Senator CORNYN from Texas, has put forward a cap on spending and a balanced budget amendment. There are proposals out there that are responsible ways to deal with this deficit that include entitlements and discretionary spending both.

It is time for the President of the United States to sit down at the table and understand that tax increases for kind of a photo-op PR are not going to fill the void. The public relations of cutting back on corporate jet benefits, whatever they are—I don't know what they are; I don't have one—but I think we would probably all agree, if you can afford a corporate jet or a private jet, fine. Whatever the President wants to do, we will do it, and it will do nothing to help the deficit. So why don't we do the meaningful things, which is make meaningful cuts in discretionary spending. Let's attack what everybody knows is the case; that is, Social Security is going bankrupt as we speak. If Congress and the President will speak responsibly about it, we can put that on a glidepath that is within the reasonable actuarial table estimate so that people will work longer, and very gradually increase it—starting in 2016, ending in 2027 at 69. That is gradual.

We cannot procrastinate. We cannot wait. We cannot hope the crisis will pass. And we cannot delay the inevitable. This is the Senate. We were elected to make the tough choices. It is time for us to do it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BROWN of Ohio). The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

TRADE WITH SOUTH KOREA

Mr. CASEY. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the Senate's upcoming trade agenda and its impact on Pennsylvania workers and Pennsylvania jobs.

Like so many of our States, Pennsylvania has always played a critically important role in America's manufacturing and commercial heritage. The coal and waterways of our State helped make the Commonwealth legendary for steelmaking and helped turn the United States into an industrial powerhouse. During its heyday, 60 percent of the domestic steel production in the United States came from Pennsylvania.

During World War II, almost one-third of the Nation's steel came from Pennsylvania, which was a full 20 percent of global production at the time. The then-Governor of Pennsylvania, Arthur James, put it this way: "Pennsylvania was truly the arsenal of democracy and the arsenal of America."

Given its dominance in the steel industry, it is no surprise that the Commonwealth was sixth in the Nation in total war production during the Second World War, leading in shipbuilding and munitions production. More money was spent to expand production capacity in Pennsylvania than in any other State during the war.

We know at the time it did not stop there. It did not stop at the end of the war. After the war was over, these manufacturing facilities were used to make American products and fuel the growth of a thriving middle class.

Today, so many of these plants have gone away, due in part to our failed trade policies. Over the last 30 years, we have seen trade deficits soar, currency manipulation go unchecked, lavish subsidies by foreign governments go ignored, and exploitation of workers in other countries overlooked. That is why I am very concerned that today the Finance Committee is moving forward the pending agreements with South Korea, Colombia, and Panama. For the last several weeks, the Presiding Officer, Senator BROWN, and I have persistently asked the tough, critical questions about the impact of these agreements before they are considered. A review of the impact of past trade agreements offers very little comfort. In 1994, Congress passed the North American Free Trade Agreement. We know it as NAFTA. Since NAFTA's passage, U.S. Trade policies have steadily chipped away at Pennsylvania's manufacturing base.

It is a critical sector for our State and so many others. According to a recent study—and the chart on my left depicts it—from the Industrial Resource Centers, from 1997 to 2010, just 13 years, manufacturing went from 16.4 percent of our gross State product to 12.1 percent, a remarkable drop in just 13 years. What does that mean for the total number of jobs? In total, Pennsylvania lost nearly 300,000 manufacturing jobs. You can see it from the chart, starting in 1997, the drop to 12.1 percent in just those 13 years—300,000 jobs in 13 years.

Despite these alarming numbers and statistics, advocates for the trade deals, including the pending agreement with South Korea, promised significant economic benefits from exploding export potential to job creation. Proponents argue a significant net positive from these agreements every time they are considered. In reality, instead of creating opportunities for Pennsylvania, our trade policies did little more than offshore good-paying jobs, while giving our trading partners unlimited access to our markets.

So we must take the time now to ask the tough questions. Specifically, as a Senator from Pennsylvania, I must ask three basic questions about any trade deal. No. 1, will the agreement protect current Pennsylvania jobs and create new jobs in Pennsylvania and across America? No. 2, will the agreement help create a level playing field for American businesses and workers? No. 3, does the agreement provide new opportunities for American manufacturers to export?

I will focus on the South Korean Free Trade Agreement in the context of each question. First, will the agreement protect and create jobs in Pennsylvania and across the Nation? In these uncertain times, job creation must be our top priority. In Pennsylvania, the manufacturing sector is critical. Manufacturing remains the Commonwealth's largest source of good-paying jobs, with chemical primary metal products, fabricated metal products, food products, and machinery making up the top five manufacturing sectors supporting Pennsylvania families. These benefits extend beyond individual manufacturing businesses in our State—in fact, the economic benefits of a strong manufacturing sector experienced throughout Pennsylvania's economy. According to research commissioned by the Pennsylvania Industrial Resource Centers, every $1 increase in demand for products manufactured in our State leads to an increase in growth value of $2.52 across all industries. So one buck in activity can lead to $2.52 in value.

The manufacturing jobs that are created support middle-income families, and the creation of those jobs and the support they provided for those families in 2008 meant the following: The average annual compensation of a worker in the manufacturing sector was over $65,000. The average pay for the rest of the workforce was $10,000 less. Each good-paying job in this country allows for more money to flow back into the economy. Given the importance of manufacturing jobs in Pennsylvania, we must ask ourselves: Will the Korea trade agreement create jobs, especially in the manufacturing sector? I believe it will not create a substantial number of new jobs in this critical sector.

Looking back over the last 20 years, trade-related job expansion has been an unfulfilled promise for Pennsylvania and the Nation. We need to look no further than NAFTA. In 1993, when the agreement was signed, NAFTA promised to deliver hundreds of thousands of jobs across the United States. Leading economists at the time projected NAFTA would bring 170,000 new jobs in the near term alone. These gains were not realized. Instead, since NAFTA was signed into law through 2002, 525,094 workers were certified as displaced under NAFTA, according to the Department of Labor. I am sure that number has grown since that 2002 data point. Furthermore, when NAFTA was negotiated, leaders suggested that American exports would expand greatly to meet the new-found demands of the open Mexican market with all its new customers. The opposite has occurred.

In 1993, the United States had a small trade surplus. We had a surplus with Mexico. According to the official Census Bureau statistics, by 2010, 17 years later, we were running a trade deficit with Mexico of $66.4 billion. So a surplus in trade with Mexico became a huge deficit. Trade with Canada also saw a widening trade deficit from $10 billion in 1993 to $28 billion in 2010. So there a deficit got bigger; whereas, in the case of Mexico, it went from a surplus to a massive deficit of $66 billion. The impact of these policies is plainly seen in employment data. Pennsylvania has seen a dramatic decline in manufacturing employment since NAFTA was implemented, losing a total of over 300,000 jobs. With this rosy prediction of NAFTA in mind, a close look at the government's projections of the South Korea agreement should be viewed with great skepticism. While the International Trade Commission predicts our bilateral trade with Korea will improve, the total U.S. trade deficit is predicted to get larger. While proponents of the agreement argue U.S. exports to Korea will increase, they are neglecting to tell the whole truth. Companies will simply shift from exporting to Korea, to creating current customers in other places, rather than increasing total exports.

The second question I ask is, Will this agreement help create a level playing field after enactment? I believe this agreement, South Korea agreement, will fail to create a level playing field for our workers and our companies. Modern trade agreements do more than cut tariffs. These agreements contain hundreds of provisions that make substantial changes to nontrade policies, and the Korea agreement is no exception. According to the group Public Citizen, these nontrade provisions limit the authority granted to elected representatives of the American people over product and food safety, financial regulations, health care and energy regulations, patent terms, and even our tax dollars that can be spent by the government. The agreement allows Korean exporters to take investment disputes out of courts and into unaccountable and secretive international tribunals through a process known as investor-to-state dispute system that is similar to NAFTA.

Additionally, the investment chapters were signed prior to the current finanacial crisis back in 2007. These specific chapters include rules that prohibit either country from imposing firewalls between the sorts of financial services one firm may offer to limit the spread of risk, for example. Important protections put in place after the financial crisis of 2007 and 2008 could potentially be challenged under the pending agreement. Even more troubling is the issue of Korea's currency. South Korean currency manipulation remains an unaddressed problem. As we have seen in China, an intentionally weakened currency leads to a fundamentally unbalanced trade relationship and brutal conditions for U.S. companies. In a June 17 report, the Economic Policy Institute calculated that if Asian currencies were strengthened to appropriate market-determined levels, if that were done, U.S. gross domestic product would increase by as much as $285.7 billion or 1.9 percent, creating up to 2.25 million U.S. jobs; that is, if Asian currencies were strengthened to those appropriate levels. Unfortunately, as with other NAFTA-style free-trade agreements, this South Korea agreement is silent on currency. This is unacceptable because South Korea devalued their currency twice, once in 1988, once in 1998. Both interventions devalued their currency by 50 percent or more. South Korea was one of the first countries cited as a currency manipulator by the Treasury Department in 1988. South Korea continues their long history of manipulating their currency. In fact, the most recent Treasury report to Congress on international economic and exchange rate policies, from May 27, 2011, noted that South Korea intervened "heavily" in its currency market during the financial crisis and has continued uninterrupted since. Treasury urged South Korea to "adopt a greater degree of exchange rate flexibility and less intervention." Currency policy has played a central role in China's mercantilist trade policies and has cost the United States thousands of jobs. We should not be cutting tariffs for the country, with South Korea's heavy history on currency manipulation, without language to deal with protecting us in a competitive environment in the devaluations that they have undertaken before.

Additionally, several groups raised the possibility that the agreement could be used to weaken U.S. trade laws. The free trade agreement creates a bilateral commission on trade laws. While our Trade Representative argues that this will not change any existing U.S. trade laws, this avenue could be used by advocates of weaker enforcement in the future.

Finally, I turn to the last question. Does the agreement provide new opportunities for Pennsylvania manufacturers to export their goods? Similar to NAFTA, the benefits of the South Korea deal have been, in my judgment, overstated, while the risks have been largely ignored. Rather than opening a new market for Pennsylvania farmers and manufacturers, I am concerned that the benefits to the United States are minimal, at best. There are specific reasons this deal fails to deliver for Pennsylvania exporters. First, most of the benefits are based on an overly optimistic projection for agriculture. These projections, compiled by supporters of the agreement, assume that a cut in tariffs will immediately equal a growth in market share.

We know from past experience that Asian markets, including South Korea, have come up with a host of unjustified nontariff restrictions to keep U.S. beef out of their country. These barriers to free trade are likely to limit export potential and are largely unaddressed in the agreement. There are other troubling clauses dealing with the beef industry. The South Korea agreement will allow American beef packagers to use Canadian or Mexican cattle and then export the packaged Mexican or Canadian beef as "American" beef. This policy, while great for beef packagers, undercuts the U.S. ranchers. Given our difficulties in gaining a foothold in these markets, we should rely solely on U.S. cattle, which we know are safe.

Second, one of Pennsylvania's most important sectors—dairy—the competing European Union Free Trade Agreement with South Korea could inhibit our ability to compete in the South Korean market. The text of the European Union agreement specifies that certain types of cheese, including mozzarella, must come from specific regions. As a result, European exporters could challenge U.S. producers selling cheese in South Korea as "mozzarella" or "parmesan." In this sense, the Europeans have negotiated a better agreement, giving European companies an advantage over American companies.

Another problem with the agreement is which goods qualify for the "Made in South Korea" designation—the sticker, so to speak—and are allowed to, therefore, enter the United States duty free. Under the rules of origin in annex 6-A of the agreement, 65 percent of the value of many goods, including automobiles shipped duty free to the United States can come from South Korea and still be considered "Made in South Korea."

This standard is lower than the European Union agreement. The European Union agreement has a 55-percent content standard where content can be foreign and, once again, places our companies at a comparative disadvantage in international competition. Just as the chart depicts, 35 percent Korea plus 65 percent China will equal "Made in Korea." I don't think that is what the American people bargain for when they expect us to get trade policies right. In a sense, this opens the door—a back door—for products primarily made in places such as North Korea or China to enter the United States of America duty free. That is wrong. It should be changed. We should not broker an agreement that has that in it.

Let me conclude with the three questions I started with. First, will the agreement create a substantial number of new jobs? I am concerned it will not. In previous agreements such as NAFTA, if they are any indication, the U.S.-Korea agreement will lead to job losses, especially in the critical manufacturing sector.

Second, will the agreement help create a level playing field? It will not. The agreement fails to address critical issues such as currency manipulation that have already hurt American businesses and cost us jobs.

Third, does the agreement provide new opportunities for American manufacturers to export? Proponents have overstated the benefits. Certainly industries and firms are likely to benefit, while many others will not. What is clear is that in its failure to address nontariff barriers to trade, the agreement leaves American firms unprotected and on a playing field that is not level.

Instead of moving ahead with a broken model, we need to focus on the bigger picture—formulating a strategy that helps American manufacturers, that leads to job creation to help middle-income families, helping us create the jobs of the future.

To make real sustained progress, Washington needs to have a plan, a strategy. We must develop and commit ourselves to a national manufacturing strategy that includes job-creating trade policies as well.

Recently I convened a roundtable in Pennsylvania with leaders of several southwestern Pennsylvania companies at the Universal Electric Corporation in Canonsburg, Washington County, to listen to their ideas and bring them to Washington, DC, to keep a focus on supporting manufacturing. I heard a number of common themes. First of all, we should develop a national strategy, as I mentioned, for manufacturing. Second, we should make the R&D tax credit permanent. Third, we should crack down—really crack down—on China's currency manipulation and other unfair trade policies so that Pennsylvania companies and their workers have at least a fair shot. Legislation I recently introduced gives us those tools to hold countries accountable for manipulating currencies.

We also need to extend trade adjustment assistance to help workers who have lost their jobs to overseas unfair foreign competition so they can build new skills and find new employment.

Finally, we need to invest in science, technology, engineering, and math, the so-called STEM discipline, which we know will create many jobs in the future.

Manufacturing is the heart and soul of Pennsylvania and our Nation's economy. Our future depends on developing policies that help our workers and our businesses compete in the global production of goods. Our workers and our businesses can outcompete anyone in the world—any country in the world. We just need to give them a fair shot. We need to give them a strategy. These agreements don't do that.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President I would observe the current Presiding Officer has had the misfortune of being in the chair whenever I am coming down to speak, so I appreciate his patience.

Today, congressional leaders are meeting with the President of the United States to discuss what can be done to reduce the Nation's out-of-control deficit, to deal with our unsustainable debt, to get America back to work and help grow our economy. I congratulate the President for convening this meeting, which will probably be one of the last chances we will have to deal with this deadline of August 2 to deal with the debt limit—a situation wherein we have maxed out our Nation's credit card. Forty-three cents out of every dollar the Federal Government spends today is borrowed money, making the deficit worse and not better and making the debt worse and not better. This is the chance to kick the habit of out-of-control spending here in Washington.

I appreciate the fact the President has moved from his initial position wherein he advocated for Congress to simply raise the debt limit without putting Washington and Congress on a spending diet. I appreciate the fact he has moved in his position. I read today in the daily newspapers that he is putting a lot of things, including Social Security reform, on the table, together with other entitlements. I hope this represents a change of position, a change of attitude, and the President and our negotiators will seize this opportunity to do the kind of grand bargain that will put America back on to a more solid fiscal path. Every child born in the United States today—while being one of the luckiest people in the world being born in the United States of America, but at the same time being burdened—every child born today will be burdened with $46,000 for their share of the national debt. That is simply wrong and we all know it.

Unfortunately, there has been a lot of discussion about the White House and some of our Democratic colleagues wanting to raise taxes as part of this grand bargain. Indeed, I think that is the notion behind this sense-of-the-Senate resolution the majority leader has introduced, which is targeted at millionaires and billionaires. The sense-of-the-Senate resolution the majority leader wants us to vote on says it is the sense of the Senate that any agreement to reduce the budget deficit should require that those earning $1 million or more per year make a more meaningful contribution to deficit reduction.

Unfortunately, this is not real legislation. This won't change anything. This is a sense of the Senate. This is a resolution, which I think is a missed opportunity to actually deal with the issue rather than pretend as though we are treating it seriously.

When the White House proposes that working families and small businesses, among others, suffer a $400 billion tax increase over the next 10 years, it strikes me that in one sense this is like a diet where a person says, I am going to give up dessert. I am not going to eat dessert. But then that person binges on the buffet. In other words, it is not real. It is not going to work.

To put this in perspective, the Federal Government is currently borrowing $4 billion every day this year. So actually raising taxes in this amount—while this only amounts to 10 days of what Washington spends—raising taxes by $400 billion over 10 years, as we can see, won't make a serious dent in the deficit and the debt, and they are very serious job-killing proposals as well. It strikes me as common sense to say if we want more jobs, we make it easier to create jobs. If we want less jobs, we make it harder to create jobs by raising taxes, by excessive regulation, and other obstacles to job creation. The irony is that I am not confident our friends on the other side who propose tax increases as part of this grand bargain actually want to use that increased revenue to pay down the deficit and the debt. To the contrary, I fear what they want to do is continue spending at the current levels. So it is kind of a shell game, saying we are going to cut $2 trillion but we are going to raise taxes by $2 trillion. What does that mean? Unless that $2 trillion in additional revenue is used to pay down the debt, it means it is a wash and government and Washington continue business as usual. I don't think the American people want us to continue doing business as usual. I think they want us to listen to them and to mend our ways.

Let me give a context for how non-serious some of the proposals are, including out of the President of the United States. All of a sudden he focused last week on this depreciation schedule for corporate jets. Depreciation is a normal part of the Tax Code which says if one uses something in a business, one can basically write it down over time. It won't surprise us to find that if a person did that, if a person did what the President said—eliminate depreciation of corporate jets—it would generate about $3 billion in revenue to the Federal Treasury over 10 years—$3 billion over 10 years. But to get a sense of what a minuscule contribution that would make to solving the problem, consider what our annual deficit is. This is in 1 year. This is what $1.5 trillion looks like. It has 12 zeroes; a 1, a 5, and 11 zeroes after the 5. That is our annual deficit.

The President says to solve this annual deficit, we need to raise $3 billion in additional revenue from corporate jet owners. Obviously, it is a drop in the bucket. But it is even worse when we look at the debt. The deficit, of course, is the difference between what the Federal Government brings in and what it spends. Right now it is spending about $1.5 trillion more each year than it brings in, in revenue. That is the deficit. But the accumulation of those deficits represents the debt. This is how much red ink our Federal Government is spending—or where we find ourselves—and that is $14 trillion. This is the number the President wants us to raise—$14 trillion. That is like the max on a credit card. If a person is spending too much money, that person bumps up against the credit card limit. The President, in essence, rather than cutting back on spending and making sure we are paying our bills we already owe, wants to raise it so the Federal Government can spend more money.

As I mentioned, this $14 trillion in debt boils down to $46,000 for every man, woman, and child in the country. So when the President gives a press conference—and I can't remember how many times he mentions chartered jets—but he talks about $3 billion in revenue over 10 years, it is a drop in the bucket when dealing with a 1-year deficit, or a deficit each year, currently of $1.5 trillion, or a $14 trillion debt. So the fact is we cannot get there from here, even if we did what the President said. It is not serious. It is not honest. It is not candid in terms of what we need to do to get our country back on a solid fiscal pathway.

So let's talk about Federal tax reform. There has been a lot of discussion about that, where we want to take the Tax Code with all of its multiple provisions and get it on the table and take a look at it to make sure it is, in my view, flatter, fairer, and simpler. But right now, the fact of that according to the Committee on Joint Taxation, 51 percent—that is a majority of American households—paid no income tax in 2009. Zero. Zip. Nada. No income tax was paid by 51 percent of the households in America in 2009. Actually, to show how out of whack things have gotten, 30 percent of American households actually made money from the tax system by way of refundable tax credits, the earned income tax credit, among others. So 51 percent of American households paid no income tax in 2009, but 30 percent actually made money under the current system. According to the Internal Revenue Service, the top 10 percent of wage earners in America paid 70 percent of total income taxes. The top 5 percent of income earners in America paid nearly 60 percent of income taxes, and the top 1 percent paid 38 percent of income taxes.

So what is the President talking about and what is the majority leader trying to do—what point are they trying to make when they suggest we pass a sense-of-the-Senate resolution saying that millionaires should “make a more meaningful contribution to the deficit reduction effort”? What is their point? Is their point that we ought to raise taxes on people who are already paying taxes? Is their point that we should expand the pool of people who do not pay any income tax or should we perhaps expand the pool of people who actually benefit from cash transfers, payments as a result of a refundable tax credit?

Well, I think it is pretty obvious we need tax reform. I am skeptical that we have time between now and Secretary Geithner's stated deadline of August 2 to do what we need to do and to repair and fix our broken tax system. But I think this helps put in context the frankly cynical suggestion that somehow we could solve the problem if we just go after the fat cats and the corporate jet owners. If we just make the millionaires and billionaires pay more money, it will all be all right. Well, I think the American people are smarter than that. When confronted with the facts, I think they can readily conclude and will readily conclude that the system is broken and needs to be fixed. We do not need a bunch of smoke and mirrors and phony arguments about class warfare. That is not going to solve the problem. We need to solve the problem.

Well, let's look at the President's economic record. I know there have been some press reports about that the President said we are making a comeback. I think he called this summer “the summer of recovery,” if I am not mistaken. But, in fact, we know the President's policies are actually making things worse.

All you need to do is look at the number of people who are unemployed in America. There were 12 million people unemployed on his inauguration day. Now it is almost 14 million. Almost 2 million more Americans are unemployed. Is that making things better? No. It is making things worse. And we know there are a lot of people who are taking minimum-wage jobs and other jobs not up to their full potential because they want to provide for their families, so we call those people underemployed. That would make that number even higher. When the President was inaugurated in January of 2009, the unemployment rate was 7.8 percent. Today, it is 9.1 percent. That is a 17-percent increase. In other words, unemployment is worse today than it was when the President was sworn in.

Gas prices. We all know what has happened to gas prices. They have gone through the roof. People are having to deny themselves other discretionary expenditures because they simply have to have the gasoline to be able to drive to work, drive the kids to school, or take care of their daily business. The fact is, when the President was sworn in, gasoline prices were $1.85. Well, wouldn't it be great if gas prices were $1.85 today? Instead, they average $3.58. That is almost a 100-percent increase in gasoline prices since President Obama put his hand on the Bible and was sworn in as President of the United States. It is a 94-percent increase.

Then we were talking about the Federal debt. The Federal debt when the President was sworn in—some people will tell you: Oh, it is all about President Bush and fighting two wars that were not paid for. It is about the Bush tax cuts and other things. Well, I agree there is bipartisan blame when it comes to our national debt, but we ought to link arms and work together to try to solve the problem rather than continue to make it worse. The Federal debt when President Obama was sworn in was $10.6 trillion. Today, it is $14.3 trillion. It is 35 percent worse. The debt has gone up by 35 percent since President Obama was sworn in.

I mentioned this factor earlier. As shown on this chart, this is what every American citizen owes in terms of their share of the national debt. When President Obama was sworn in, it was $34,000. Today, it is 46,000. So, congratulations, everyone within the sound of my voice owes $11,000 more to the national debt since President Obama became President of the United States.

Then there is health insurance. We have had a lot of debate about health insurance costs. We were told that if we just passed this giant health care bill, health insurance costs would go down, we would fix problems, and we would make sure more people had access to health care. Well, since President Obama became President, health insurance premiums have gone up by 19 percent—19 percent. Did he make it better or did he make it worse?

Well, we need to unburden the economy from higher taxes, excessive regulation, and all the sorts of obstacles that get in the way of small businesses—the primary job-creating engine in our economy—doing what they do best; that is, growing the economy, creating jobs. If our friends across the aisle want more tax revenue, well, the best way to get more revenue is to get more Americans back to work so they pay taxes rather than remain unemployed, losing their homes because they cannot pay their mortgages. That is how we ought to increase revenue, not by raising rates, not by some of these silly class-warfare arguments that seem to target unpopular sectors of the economy.

And, yes, we need to increase exports to create more jobs. We can do that by ratifying the outstanding trade agreements without adding unnecessary spending to them.

And, yes, when it comes to energy policy, the high price of gasoline—which has gone up 94 percent since President Obama became President of the United States—we can open more domestic energy reserves, more American natural resources, rather than continue to have to import it from places abroad that are not necessarily our friends or which may be in political turmoil or even war, such as Libya. So if we had a rational national energy policy where the EPA, rather than looking for excuses to deny us access to things such as the natural gas discoveries we have found in Texas and around the country—if we had a way to take advantage of and did, in fact, take advantage of more domestic energy production, it could help us put more Americans back to work and help us reduce our dependency on energy from abroad and help bring down this price to one that does not break the backs of the average working families.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I have a correction. My staff told me I undercounted $14 trillion. I asked ahead of time, but we actually got the number wrong. The number I have on the chart is actually three zeros too few. So just to make sure the record is correct, that is 12 zeros after the "14." That reflects our national debt. I would like to say I made the mistake and it was actually lower, but it actually is much higher, which I think reinforces my point.

Thank you, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama is recognized.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, while the Senator is still here, I recall—Senator CORNYN is a member of the Budget Committee and knowledgeable about these issues—that we have had one budget actually presented to the Senate, and that was the President's budget. It was scored by the Congressional Budget Office, which shows that under the President's budget, the debt of the United States would increase by $13 trillion in 10 years.

I do not know if the Senator is aware, but I would ask him is he aware of how much additional revenue would come to the government if the President's proposal on corporate jet taxation were to be imposed, and would that make a difference in the $13,000 trillion that would be added to the debt in the next 10 years?

Mr. CORNYN. Well, Mr. President, responding to my friend from Alabama, the number, I am advised, is roughly $3 billion in additional revenue to the Treasury, and that would be over 10 years. But, as you can see, it is a drop in the bucket when it comes to the deficit for 1 year, which is $1.5 trillion, and the national debt of $14 trillion.

I apologize, I am not used to dealing with numbers that big, which demonstrates that these numbers really have kind of lost their meaning here. I remember Everett Dirksen being quoted as saying: A million here, a million there, and pretty soon you are talking about real money.

The fact is we are not talking about millions, we are not talking about billions, we are talking about trillions. I think most people's minds have a very difficult time conceiving of how big a number that is.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to enter into a colloquy with my Republican colleagues for up to 30 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. If Senator CORNYN could join us, we would be pleased.

Mr. President, the debt situation we are in today is the most serious our Nation has ever faced. A lot of people do not understand it and do not understand how serious it is. Even after World War II, we had growth. We had the baby boomers just coming of age, we had more young people and fewer older people, and the situation was more positive than it is today, even though we had debt after the war. That is just a fact.

I have tried to look at the creation of a budget that would balance in 10 years, bring us into balance in 10 years. It is hard to do. It absolutely can be done. It takes some real effort, but it can be done. We can do it, and we have to do it. But President Obama, during his years as President, is on track to have four consecutive trillion-dollar deficits—the highest deficit we have had previously was the $450 billion deficit that President Bush had. We have had $1.2 trillion and $1.3 trillion.

This September 30, when the fiscal year ends, it is estimated to be $1.5 trillion for 2011. We take in $2.2 trillion, we are spending $3.7 trillion, and 40 cents of every dollar we spend this year is borrowed. It is an unsustainable course.

President Obama appointed a deficit commission. He appointed Erskine Bowles, a former Chief of Staff of President Clinton, as co-chair. He also chose Alan Simpson, a former Republican Senator. They submitted a statement to the Budget Committee that this country faces the most predictable economic crisis in its history. We have to act, they told us.

They were asked when could this crisis happen. Mr. Bowles said it could happen within 2 years—not for our children and grandchildren; he said 2 years, maybe a little sooner or maybe a little later. Alan Simpson popped up and said he thought it could be 1 year; in other words, some sort of economic crisis like we had in 2007 and 2008 or something that could put our economy in a tailspin. It is that serious. The debt trajectory path we are on is unsustainable.

Tomorrow, I have to say, will mark the 800th day this Senate has not had a budget. We are borrowing 40 cents out of every dollar we spend, and we have gone this long without a budget. There is no plan, apparently, to present one. The chairman of the Budget Committee, on which I am ranking Republican, tells us he has one, and he talked to his colleagues and they have agreed on it. But it remains secret.

The Congressional Budget Act explicitly says we should have a budget by April 15. It says the committee should report a budget resolution on April 1. Well, we have not had a markup. Apparently, there is no plan to have one. We are just going to wait and see if secret negotiations can produce something. That is not acceptable at a time in which the debt is the primary threat to the health, security, and welfare of our Nation, and there is no doubt about it.

Admiral Mullen, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the greatest threat to our national security is our debt. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton made a very similar statement. They are exactly right. There is no dispute about it.

We have had nothing on the floor of the Senate except a resolution saying we should tax the rich—a sense of the Senate, that has no power, no binding authority, no numbers, not how much we are going to attack the rich.

We are in serious condition. I think the American people, if they understood how little has been done in this body this year on the most important issue facing this country, would be even more dissatisfied with the U.S. Congress than they are—more dissatisfied at least with the Senate. I knew the Senator from Missouri before, who is not new to Congress. He was a Republican whip in the House of Representatives. The House has passed a budget this year—an honest budget that changes the debt trajectory of America in a solid way, and it would put us on a new path for prosperity. Everybody doesn't have to agree with everything in it, but they met their responsibility by April 15.

It is great to be here with Senator BLUNT. We are so pleased to have him in the Senate. I ask him if he would share his thoughts at this time about this situation.

Mr. BLUNT. I will. I also asked the Senator about his view of this budget situation. The Presiding Officer and I were secretaries of state together some time ago and have known each other a long time. I am glad to have him in the chair as we have this discussion.

I don't think the House, until the last Congress, ever failed to pass a budget. I am not sure the Senate didn't always pass a budget until the last Congress, though there were times when the House and Senate could not agree. But at least each side had a plan.

There is an old adage that when you fail to plan, you plan to fail. It sure looks to me that is the trajectory we are on now. Members are more and more talking about maybe we will have another continuing resolution this year. That will be the appropriations process because we have no plan. Of course, as the Senator pointed out, as a person who knows as much about the budget process as anybody in Washington, we passed the April 1 deadline, then we passed a May 1 date, and then a June 1 date, and now we passed the July 1 date. We are up to that 800th day since the Senate passed a plan or had a plan of any kind. We are waiting for a plan to move forward with the work of just funding the government. Clearly, that is not acceptable.

We see the economy continuing to wait for some signs of certainty from the Federal Government, certainty about where our budget is going to be, certainty about our tax structure, certainty about regulations and utility bills. We are just not seeing that happen. In fact, things are getting progressively worse and worse. Gas prices have almost doubled now in the last 30 months. Unemployment is up 17 percent. In fact, there is no statistic I know of that is better than it was in January of 2009.

Has the Senate, in the past, until the last 3 years—has there ever been a time when the Senate didn't even attempt to have a budget?

Mr. SESSIONS. To my knowledge, at no time since I have been here did the Senate not attempt to pass a budget. In the last 2 years, even when our Democratic colleagues had 60 votes—the largest majority in recent memory in the Senate—they only attempted to bring a budget to the floor once. Last year a budget did go to committee. It was marked up by Senator CONRAD. It came to the floor, but the majority leader decided not to bring it up. This year, it seems that Senator CONRAD was told not to have a markup, not to even produce a budget in committee.

It seems to me to indicate a lack of willingness to lead because—would the Senator not agree?—a budget sets the priorities, demonstrates the vision for the future of the country and what we should spend, what we should tax, and how much debt we can afford to run up. Those are fundamental responsibilities. How would he evaluate the fact that tomorrow we are 800 days without a budget? What does that say about the leadership we have seen in the Senate?

Mr. BLUNT. It shows we have been 800 days without a budget, and basically 800 days without any structure or process of how we spend the people's money. It has been 800 days since the last time we could come up with an appropriations process, so maybe they will suggest we will modify that a little bit and move forward. But that clearly is not good enough. In that 800 days, as the Senator pointed out, we have gone to where we are—we have added 35 percent in a little over 800 days, in 2½ years, to the Federal deficit.

This is not defending anybody else's effort to make the revenue and the expenditures of the Federal Government balance, but we can't continue to spend more than we have. If we don't have a plan, a blueprint, or if we don't have a budget like families have to have—if we don't have a budget at the very least, and we are managing our money, we write checks until the money runs out, and we can't do much more than that.

We are at a point now that we are spending $3.7 trillion or $3.8 trillion and collecting $2.2 trillion. I am like Senator CORNYN on this topic—by the way, everybody else is too, including the Secretary of the Treasury. Nobody knows how much money this is, but we all know if someone is making $22,000 a year and spending $37,000 a year, and they have already borrowed more money than anybody should have ever lent them, they can't continue to do that.

There has to be a point where they say: We are going to have to get real. We are making $22,000, so we better start spending no more than $22,000, and that includes paying off the money that we have already borrowed when we were spending $37,000.

There are so many zeros and numbers that if any of us really understood how much money we are talking about and how long it will take to pay it back, we would all be more scared than we are. Certainly, the people we work for would be more scared than they are because we are doing irresponsible things, and as irresponsible as any of those things is not having a plan.

In all those years the Senator spent on the Budget Committee and his leadership there now, he knows if we don't have a plan—the appropriations process doesn't move forward unless we agree first how much money we are going to spend in that process. So, eventually, we just go back and say: Let's go back to last year and modify slightly the terrible job we did last year, and let's borrow that much more money again.

That is not acceptable.

Mr. SESSIONS. Before the Senator shares his thoughts about the appropriations process from his extensive experience in the leadership of the Congress, just briefly, I want to make sure the American people and our colleagues know what happened.

I see our newly elected colleague from Wisconsin, Senator RON JOHNSON. He won election, you could say, in an upset—a popular, big victory. He campaigned all over his State and talked about the issues we are talking about today.

As a new Member of the Senate, I would love to hear Senator JOHNSON's comments about where he thinks we are today.

Mr. JOHNSON of Wisconsin. First of all, I thank the Senator for his leadership. He has been talking loudly and clearly about the fact that we should not have recessed this week. I know President Obama tried to claim credit for that. It is because of the Senator's leadership and the members of the Republican conference in the Senate who said: No, we are bankrupting America and we need to stay here and start debating this issue.

Unfortunately, that is not what we have been doing this week. It is sad. One word I have used all the time now that I have come to Washington is "unbelievable." It is simply unbelievable that tomorrow will mark 800 days that we haven't passed a budget.

My background is in business for the last 34 years. I have had to produce budgets on time. I have had people produce budgets for me on time. In business—even a small business—it is inconceivable that if you tell a colleague to make sure to have the budget on your desk by April 15 that it wouldn't be there; 99.9 percent of those accountants and controllers would have a budget on time, on April 15.

We are dealing with the United States of America. We are talking about our financial future, the fate of America. The Democrats in the Senate have failed to meet that obligation for 2 years in a row. That is simply unbelievable, and it is so incredibly irresponsible. Really, I think the Senate has been guilty of willful neglect. The phrase I have used is that the Senate has been "fiddling" while America is going broke. That is sad.

As the Senator pointed out as well, what does the financial future of America rest on? Some secret talks—talks between a few individuals going out behind closed doors far from the view of the American public rather than in an orderly process where a plan is presented that can be viewed by the American public, that can be debated openly the way our Founders envisioned on the floor of this Senate, this historic floor; instead of using the process that we should have been using, what is going to happen? Are we going to have a result, a negotiated settlement drop in our laps a couple days before this deadline date? Is that what is going to happen? Is that really how the financial fate of America is going to be decided?

I personally find that process disgusting. That is why I stood last Tuesday on the floor of the Senate and said unless we start seriously addressing this problem, the bankrupting of America, in the open, in the bright light of day, I was going to begin to object. I was going to begin to withhold my consent.

I was heartened by the support I got from my Republican colleagues because, let's face it, we understand how urgent the situation is. We understand how dire our financial situation is. We are willing to sit down and work with anybody who will seriously address the fact that we are driving America toward bankruptcy. But we need a willing partner, and up to this point in time I haven't seen one.

The fact that the only plan we have seen is the President's budget, 4.25 inches thick, 2,400 pages long—how many thousands of manhours did that document take to produce? It was so unserious it would have added more than $12 trillion to our Nation's debt in the next 10 years. It would have continued the bankrupting of America. It would have made us go broke. It was so unserious, it failed in the Senate by a vote of 0-97. Not one Democratic Senator found that bill serious enough to give it a vote. That is the only plan I have seen.

I woke up this morning to a couple of news reports, and there was more detail about what the administration might plan to do fed to reporters than fed to a Member of Congress.

I am sorry to be so blunt about this, but that is a disgusting process. The American people deserve far better. I guess today what I am standing here saying is, I want to see a plan, and I want to see a budget, and I want to see it to give us enough time so we can actually analyze it and debate it and pass the real structural reforms so that we can actually solve this problem. I am calling on the President and I am calling on the Democrats in this Senate to produce that plan so we can have an open debate on it. That is kind of how I am thinking.

Mr. BLUNT. I would like to say to both Senator SESSIONS and Senator JOHNSON, who were primary leaders in this idea that we shouldn't go home, that Republicans shouldn't vote to adjourn, that you were going to object to things that didn't relate to the business we need to do, and, of course, that is right.

As Senator JOHNSON was talking, I was thinking the other deadline, the other April 15 deadline, every American had better comply with that one. It is in the law just like the one that we are supposed to comply with.

What if everybody in America decided they were going to miss their legal deadline as well? OK, we are not going to have a budget, and we are not going to pay our taxes. Of course, they would be in trouble. The Senate is not in trouble, but the country is in trouble because the Senate is not doing its job. Neither the House nor the Senate did their jobs in the last Congress, for the first time ever. So that is how we go now into 3 years of no budget, 3 years since we had a working document that we should have to work with. That is important.

What did we do this week? The disappointment to all three of us is we said we wanted to stay this week and deal with these issues, and what did we deal with? We started out by trying to deal with a Libya resolution that apparently wasn't important enough to deal with last Thursday when we were going to take a week to be working in our States, but we will debate the Libya resolution. Then when people on the Republican side said they thought we ought to be debating the reason we were supposed to stay, we still didn't do that. We have this amendment that I think was supposed to be a sense of the Senate, and is a sense of the Senate that millionaires aren't paying enough taxes.

We all understand the politics of that, just like we understand the politics of no accelerated depreciation for business airplanes. Whenever that was done, it was done to try to create more American jobs quicker by a little more demand. I think how that works is that plane is depreciated in 5 years instead of 7 to encourage people to go ahead and buy a plane and keep people who make planes at work. But what is that $3 billion over 10 years? We are borrowing $4 billion today, and we try to have this debate as if it is about $3 billion over 10 years. We are borrowing $4 billion today, and we want to have this false debate about who is not paying their share.

We are spending too much money is the problem. The problem is not that we are not taxing enough. We are spending almost 25 percent of the capacity of the country to produce goods and services. Until the beginning of 2009, for 40 years the average was 20.6; $1 out of $5 was going to the Federal Government, not $1 out of $4.

I was asked by some reporters yesterday: Why is this so different than other times when the debt limit has been increased? You mentioned one of them earlier. One of the differences is we have added 35 percent to the debt in about 30 months—35 percent to the debt in 30 months.

Another one is the Federal Government is suffocating the economy by spending too much money. There is no money left for people to borrow and take a risk and create a job and create an opportunity for somebody else.

On the millionaire tax, 1 percent of all the taxpayers pay 38 percent of all the taxes now. Maybe we ought to get to where 1 or 2 percent just pay all the taxes. We already have 47 percent of the individuals in the country paying no income tax.

By the way, you value what you pay for. If you don't pay any income tax, you don't care about the income tax as much as if you did. So there aren't as many people out there fighting excessive taxation because they have less of a stake in it. But 1 percent of the people in the country already pay 38 percent of the income taxes, and 10 percent pay 70 percent. Maybe we just ought to let that 10 percent pay 100 percent. I guess that would get all the millionaires and billionaires.

And, oh, I remember the tax. Do you remember the millionaires' tax, but only like 155 people would pay or something? It was the alternative minimum tax; 155 people were going to pay that millionaire tax, and now some huge percentage of all Americans pay it because, eventually, once we start down this path, everybody is impacted by higher tax rates.

The frustration of being here and not doing anything all week—we had one vote to compel the Members who didn't come, to come to the Senate, and another vote was cloture on a bill that doesn't matter. The frustration of your leadership and then that result is pretty incredible to me.

But thanks to both Senators for insisting for weeks before last week that we should stay and have a discussion, a debate, a vote on the things that matter. I am sorry that we didn't have that, particularly based on the intensity on the part of both Senators of insisting that we have that kind of debate this week, and we didn't have it.

Mr. JOHNSON of Wisconsin. I would like to pick up on Senator BLUNT's point about just how unserious this week has been.

Just in comparison to business, about 5 years ago I bought a business out of bankruptcy. I watched those business owners over the course of 2 or 3 years struggle to make a go of that business. You would not believe the number of hours those people, those hard-working Americans put in to save that business. It didn't work. They went into reorganization under the bankruptcy laws. I bought that business out of bankruptcy. I saw how incredibly hard my team worked to make that business survive, and it did survive. These are individuals putting in 16, 17, 18, 20 hours a day to make a product, to build a good life for themselves and their families, to provide employment, jobs.

This is the American spirit. That is the entrepreneurial spirit. That is what Americans do day in and day out, whether they own a business or whether they contribute their effort: their labor to make their business successful, the one they work for successful. That is what Americans do.

What has this President done? What has this Congress done? What has this Senate done?

In the last 6 months since I have been here, we passed six laws, six bills that have become law. Three of those had to do with the continuing resolutions of last year's business: funding the government for this year. Those were laws that should have been passed 1 year ago, but it was left over for us to do that.

We had two bills to extend the PATRIOT Act. If we take a look at how that was even done, it was last minute, rush-rush, very little time for debate. We couldn't even get amendments in there.

Then, of course, the other one is we kind of cleaned up a little bit a little part of the health care law that dealt with 1099s, which would have been a nightmare. It would have cost billions of dollars to comply with and not brought in any revenue. So we finally got that off the books, thankfully.

The other bills we have debated, we spent 16 weeks debating three bills. The total dollar amount of those bills is $20 billion. That is about ½ percent of what this Federal Government will spend this year. So we have spent 16 weeks debating ½ percent of our $3.6-trillion-a-year budget. That, in my mind, is the definition of being not serious.

Of course, we have said it has been 799—tomorrow it will be 800—days since we actually passed a budget. This week we spent 15 hours of debate. We call it a sense-of-the-Senate resolution? It should be called the nonsense of the Senate. That is what has been occurring this week, and it is a tragedy. It is a tragedy.

But, again, that is why I stood up and started to object. I will continue to do that until we actually start getting serious, until we actually see a plan, a budget that we can start debating.

Mr. SESSIONS. Well, let me just note that we had a sense-of-the-Senate resolution on the floor, and we had a cloture vote on it that I think everybody voted to go to the bill. That is what the leader wanted to do. We go to the bill. But it is really nothing because if it passes it has no impact and makes no change whatsoever. It basically says we should tax the rich more.

Well, we can debate these issues, but I will just note that the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, OECD, which is an organization for the development of world businesses has concluded that the United States has the most progressive tax system in the world. We always thought the Europeans were more hostile to wealth and more socialistic than we were, but that is their analysis.

As Senator BLUNT said, how much more do we want them to pay? Maybe they should pay more. Let's debate it and let's talk about it. But that is not going to fix our problems.

Senator JOHNSON was a successful businessman, an accountant. I have seen his work. I am so glad he is on the Budget Committee. I guess he and Senator ENZI are the only accountants around here, and we are glad the Senator is here. I have seen his work.

He actually adds up numbers and makes spending charts. He showed me one this morning, trying to figure out a way to change America.

But my first question is—the Senator was a successful businessman and he had never been a politician before, so why did the Senator run?

Mr. JOHNSON of Wisconsin. Well, the reason I ran is because we are bankrupting the Nation. I love America. We love America. When I watch what is happening, and when I saw how broken Washington was, when I saw them pass the health care law, from my standpoint that was the straw that broke the camel's back.

Our first child, my daughter Carey, was born with a very serious congenital heart defect. Dedicated doctors and surgeons saved her life the first day. Then 8 months later, when her heart was the size of a plum, another dedicated surgical team of dedicated professionals totally reconstructed the upper chamber of her heart. Her heart operates backwards now. But she is 28 years old, and she is a nurse herself in a neonatal intensive care unit.

When I heard President Obama say these doctors, that they will take out a set of tonsils for a few extra bucks, I found that outrageous. Then when this Congress and this President signed the health care law, I know the result of that. It is designed to lead to a government takeover of our health care system.

All we have to do is take a look at Canada and Britain. We don't have to theorize what that is going to result in. It will lower the quality of care. It will result in rationing, and the medical innovation to save my daughter's life and millions of others—it really is America where medical miracles are created. I think that innovation is going to come to a grinding halt.

So that is just the quality aspect of the health care bill, but it is going to destroy our budget.

I wrote a piece with Douglas Holtz-Eakin, ex-CBO Director. Rather than $93 billion a year, when this bill kicks in, as it is designed to do, and a large percentage of Americans lose their health care employer coverage and get dumped into the exchanges, we are talking about a $½ trillion or maybe $900 billion.

I see we are running out of time, but that is why I ran, because we are bankrupting America.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senators have used 30 minutes.

Mr. SESSIONS. I ask unanimous consent that I be given 1 additional minute.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I just want to say we have in this colloquy Senator BLUNT, who was the second ranking Republican leader in the House and who has dealt with these issues for many years. We are so glad to have him in the Senate—and Senator JOHNSON, a new Senator, passionate and concerned about the future of America, both of them. I think the American people should be proud of the service they have rendered.

We have to change. I believe we can, and we are going to keep fighting toward that end.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. President, I appreciate the Presiding Officer recognizing me. I kind of switched places with him earlier. I was in the chair and listened to some comments from a number of Senators on the other side of the aisle. I did not come to the floor to talk about this, but I just cannot help myself sometimes.

I heard these comparisons. When they talked about the economy, it all started January 20 of 2009, and they compared that day with today. What they left out of that picture is when Barack Obama became President, this economy was going like this. It was not like: He is President. Now things will get better. The 30 days after he was sworn in on January 20, 2009, we lost 700,000 jobs in this country. The next 30 days we lost somewhere in excess of, I believe, 600,000 jobs.

The point is, what happened for the first several months, almost before President Obama could take a breath, before Congress, the House and Senate, controlled by Democrats then, could actually put a program in place and put policies in place that would respond to this terrible economy bequeathed to them and to us by this sort of Republican economic policy. The Republican economic policy was tax cuts for the rich, two wars not paid for, a giveaway to the drug and insurance industry, a bailout to the drug and insurance industry in the name of Medicare privatization, privatization/deregulation of Wall Street, and tax cuts that went overwhelmingly to the richest Americans. That is what got us into this.

For them to say look at the number of jobs today, look at the number of jobs in January, 2009—they know that is a specious argument. They are disingenuous. They are not especially honest when they make that argument.

The fact is, we have seen in the last 14 months—and I wish it were better. I went to Barberton, OH, this week and was at a plant expansion with 30 jobs. It is not enough, I wish it were 300. It is an Alcoa plant. They are hiring people. They are paying OK wages. I wish they were paying better wages. I wish they could hire more people. But we are seeing progress.

In the last 14 months—they forgot to tell us this—we are seeing job growth every month, including manufacturing job growth, the lifeblood of the economy in my State. We are the third leading manufacturing State, only behind the States of Senator CORNYN and Senator BOXER and Senator FEINSTEIN in the number of manufacturing jobs and their output.

The point is, let's be honest when we have this discussion. We know our policies are not working as fast as we would like. But we know what their policies brought us—21 million private sector jobs created during the 8 years of Bill Clinton; then when they put in the Bush economic policies: tax cuts for the wealthy, twice; two wars, not paying for them; partial privatization of Medicare; deregulation of Wall Street—1 million private sector jobs created in 8 years; 21 million versus 1 million. Tell that story too.

I am not saying we have every answer—we don't—but we are making progress in spite of their saying no to everything we are trying to do.

We have to look at the future. The biggest problem we have in this country is the decline of the middle class and we have to address that. That is why I came to the floor, because even though we are in the midst of this budget debate as everyone is talking about, the focus has to stay on jobs creation. It has to be: How do we create jobs in this country?

One way not to create jobs is what Senator CASEY talked about an hour or so ago, and that would be three new trade agreements that too many people on both sides of the aisle want to foist on the American people.

This morning, the Senate Finance Committee and House Ways and Means Committee were both having what are called mock markups of free-trade deals with three countries: South Korea in Asia, Colombia and Panama in our hemisphere.

The Senate Finance committee is including trade adjustment assistance. The House does not even care to take care of workers who lose their jobs because of these trade agreements. They are expendable. They are a bunch of 50-year-olds who do not have much education and, if they lose their jobs, who cares? That is what they are saying in the House Ways and Means Committee. We will pass this legislation. When people lose their jobs, there is nothing we can do to help them. But there is, and we have had something called trade adjustment assistance for 50 years and it has been bipartisan, until this group of radicals who run the House of Representatives decided we don't want trade assistance adjustment anymore.

In the last decade alone, 6 million manufacturing jobs, 55,000 manufacturing plants have been lost.

Multinational companies are too easily setting up companies overseas and exporting products back into the U.S. market. Is there any time in world history where the most compelling business plan for a company is shut down what they do in their home country, move production far away to another country where they have lower wages, fewer regulations, a government that is not exactly free, make those products there, and sell them back to the home country? This business plan that so many American companies follow is move production overseas where they can get cheap labor and weak regulations in a totalitarian government and then sell the products back to the home country. That is a business plan that far too many American companies have, obviously, followed.

Manufacturing now accounts for less than 10 percent of employment in our country. That is partly because of NAFTA, partly because of the CAFTA, partly because of the China permanent normal trade relations. They only accelerate our decline and the country pays for it today. The public has heard promises of job creation from trade deals before—every single time: NAFTA would create this many jobs, CAFTA would create this many jobs, PNTR would mean more prosperity and jobs for Americans.

The Korean deal is more of the same. The International Trade Commission projects the Korean Free Trade Agreement would increase the U.S. trade deficit. The Economic Policy Institute estimates the loss of at least 150,000 jobs from this agreement. The Korea pact has unusually low rules of origin, allowing manufactured goods containing up to 65 percent of components from China or any other country to obtain the benefits of the agreement.

What happens is a company in Seoul, South Korea—after this trade agreement would pass, if it does—would contract with the Chinese; 65 percent of the product would come from China, be sold into South Korea, South Korea puts its value added on it, sends it to the United States duty free, tariff free, even though 65 percent of it was made in China.

Pundits and the editorial boards say agreements such as these are no-brainers. They say trade adjustment assistance is just a payoff to workers for passing more job-killing trade agreements. The Washington Post editorial board—always a creative thinker of the future and wrong in their predictions on war, wrong in their predictions on trade, wrong in their predictions on labor law, but nonetheless the Washington Post editorial board called TAA a consolation prize.

Once again, they get it wrong. Not many editorial writers in the Washington Post, frankly, have lost their jobs in trade agreements. They don't seem all that interested in people in Steubenville and Lima and Zanesville who actually have lost their jobs because of these trade agreements which the Washington Post editorial board always supports.

We need to focus on retraining workers who are displaced because of past free-trade deals. But even this historically bipartisan program, as I said earlier, is suddenly becoming controversial. It was operated through numerous administrations, supported by Republicans and Democrats alike, and ensures workers who lose their jobs and financial security as a result of globalization have an opportunity to transition to new jobs in emerging sectors of the economy. It helps retrain workers for new opportunities.

In the 2010 fiscal year alone, more than 225,000 workers participated in the TAA program, receiving training for jobs employers are looking to fill. It is common sense. Senator CASEY stood on this floor—he in that row, I in this row—and asked repeatedly for his colleagues to extend this vital job training program. Under the rules of the Senate, one of them stands and objects, time and time again. We did get a 6-week extension, but since mid-February, this part of trade adjustment assistance is simply not available to so many people in New Mexico and in Ohio and in Pennsylvania and across the country.

Senator CASEY and I introduced the TAA bill last week that would extend TAA for 5 years. We paid for it. We know it is no panacea for bad trade agreements. It is not the price workers in my State want to pay while Congress passes more trade deals. We must stand for workers before even considering new trade agreements. We must focus on real job creation. A big part of that is standing against China's unfair currency regime that they have inflicted on this world trade regimen for a number of years.

With our trade deficit, also comes trading partners manipulating their currency to undermine our manufacturers. They have repeatedly found ways to circumvent trade laws to gain an unfair advantage. In 2010, our trade deficit was $634 billion. That means every single day, 7 days a week, 52 weeks a year—every single day we buy more than $1.5 billion more in goods than they sell internationally.

With China, our trade deficit was $273 billion. That means several hundred million dollars every day we purchase from China more than we sell to China, every single day.

President Bush once said that a $1 billion trade surplus or a $1 billion trade deficit translates into 13,000 jobs. Think about that. If we have a trade deficit of $1 billion, according to President Bush—these are not my numbers—both President Bushes, by and large, supported both of these trade agreements—by and large, we lost 13,000 jobs, mostly manufacturing, in Indiana and Ohio and New Mexico and around the country.

Do the math. If our trade deficit is $200 billion with China, we know what that means.

Ten years ago, our trade deficit in goods with China was $68 billion. These geniuses who come up with these trade agreements, supported by the editorial boards, supported by Harvard economists, supported by Presidents, supported by pundits who are in Washington and probably do not get outside of Washington much—we had a $68 billion trade deficit with China when the most effective corporate lobbyists in the history of the world came to this institution, came to the House and Senate, and sold a majority of House and Senate Members that PNTR with China was a good idea. We had a $68 billion trade deficit with China then. Now it is $273 billion. They told us: We are going to sell more goods. We are going to do better with our deals with China when we have this.

In the last couple minutes, I would point out Senator SNOWE and I proposed bipartisan currency reform for the Fair Trade Act to ensure our trade deficit is not further increased when countries such as China manipulate their currency to make their exports less expensive so they can break into our market and keep us out of their market. The legislation passed overwhelmingly in the House last year. Our bill would strengthen countervailing duty laws to consider undervalued currency as an unfair trade subsidy in determining duty rates.

When an Ohio industry such as coated paper in Hamilton, OH, or steel in Lorain or aluminum in Sidney, when they petition the International Trade Commission for relief against unfair subsidies, they can talk about—include in that petition—the charge of currency manipulation. The bill sends a signal to our trading partners we are not going to sit there while countries gain the unfair advantage over Americans workers and businesses. Before pursuing more free-trade agreements, let's focus on enforcement and focus on addressing currency manipulation. Let's level the playing field so we can fight back and stop this terrible hemorrhaging of American manufacturing jobs.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Indiana is recognized.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, today Congressional leadership on both sides of the aisle is meeting with the President to try to break the current impasse on the debt talks. As the President said in a press conference earlier this week: "Right now, we've got a unique opportunity to do something big." I completely agree with that statement. I am glad and pleased that, finally, after months of concern and months of urging, we are dealing with this impending debt crisis.

Time is running out. The leadership is now meeting. We will be getting reports on what has come from this meeting. I was encouraged by initial reports today indicating the President has agreed to address the issue of entitlement spending as well as defining the amount of spending cuts that are necessary to put together a credible plan that move our country into a better financial position.

I have been discussing the necessity of a comprehensive solution to our problem ever since day one of this session and my return to the Senate, and I've indicated that the current process of spending way beyond our means simply cannot be maintained and sustained and that we have to address it—not after 2012 but we need to address it now. So I am encouraged by the talks that are now going on, and that are beginning to incorporate the elements of a growing consensus, if not almost total consensus, that exists and is necessary for this initiative to be successful, for it to be deemed credible, and for it to avoid the potentially catastrophic consequences of defaulting on our debt and losing our credibility as the place to invest your money for the best safety you can get.

I don't have to go through the math again, but I will just briefly. Spending $3.7 trillion a year when you are only taking in $2.2 trillion a year is unsustainable and is driving us toward the cliff of bankruptcy—an inability to pay our debts. A big driver of that and the biggest driver of that debt is clearly the mandatory spending that comes with entitlements.

It is no secret that we have seen the baby boom generation move through the economy from birth now to retirement. The programs that were put in place and the promises that were made in terms of benefits to those beneficiaries are not going to be available if we don't address the pending bankruptcy of these programs. Those who have analyzed this have basically said: Look, you have to do something now to keep these programs from going broke in the future.

So all of those who say, don't touch my Medicare, don't touch my Social Security, don't do anything, they are essentially saying we are willing to ride it out for 2 or 3 more years and then see the whole thing collapse. Then there are those of us who are saying, let's do something sensible and rational now—not taking away any benefits from current beneficiaries, by the way, but doing something to preserve these programs in the future is absolutely essential. We are trying to save Social Security, we are trying to save Medicare, and we are trying to do the kinds of things that are necessary with our mandatory spending to address the total imbalance in place that is driving these programs into insolvency.

I would hope today that what we hear back from this meeting at the White House is a commitment to go forward with a comprehensive approach including necessary cuts, the elimination of duplications of programs, redundancies, fraud and abuse—things we simply cannot afford anymore—combined with addressing mandatory spending and entitlements in a responsible way, and the mandatory spending, putting the right enforcement mechanisms in place so we don't renege on our commitments, and also incorporating comprehensive tax reform.

For months, the focus has been on cutting spending and tax increases. I think another growing consensus is that without comprehensive tax reform, we are not going to be able to address and solve this problem. I believe the administration has also begun to recognize this and acknowledge that comprehensive tax reform is necessary.

Yesterday, Senator WYDEN and I sent a letter to President Obama and to the congressional leaders who are participating in today's debt ceiling talks urging them to include a timeline for comprehensive tax reform.

The bill Senator WYDEN and former Senator Gregg put together after 2 painstaking years of negotiations—which I have joined now in Senator Gregg's place after he retired from the Senate, after we made some modifications to the original bill—is a bipartisan effort to deal with comprehensive tax reform. We need to go after the 10,000 special breaks and interests and credits and exceptions that exist and take the savings from that to lower rates and make the private sector more competitive, which we know will bring about growth and ultimately jobs for the American people.

The President's Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform found that resolving the Nation's debt crisis demands comprehensive, structural change, including, they said, tax reform. There is no better way to raise revenue and reduce the deficit than by growing the economy and putting Americans back to work. If done right, tax reform will create those good-paying jobs and provide businesses and families with the certainty they need to plan for the future.

Any revenues raised by closing tax loopholes should be part of a comprehensive plan that reduces tax rates for American families and businesses and creates jobs. I want to repeat that. The whole purpose of this is to take those special interests and exemptions that have been incorporated into the Tax Code over a 15-, 20-year period of time, which now total 10,000 special exemptions, to take a selective portion of that and a significant portion of that and eliminate or reduce those to gain the revenues, allowing us to reduce tax rates on American families and on American businesses so that those businesses can be more competitive and those families will have more discretionary spending.

Our businesses currently rank 35 out of 36 in terms of the highest corporate tax rates imposed—some of the highest in the world. We compete around the world with those countries that are producing the same products, yet their tax rates are significantly lower than ours, and that puts us at a competitive disadvantage. We can make the best products in the world and we can out-sell anybody in the world if we put our companies and our businesses on a level playing field. The whole structure and purpose behind the Wyden-Coats tax reform bill is to do just that—to put us on a competitive basis with our competitors by lowering rates and gaining the revenue to pay for our debt.

We know this won't be easy, and we know it requires Democrats and Republicans to work together to take on the special interests that currently benefit from the broken tax system. We know that right now that seems very difficult and very challenging, but it has been done before. We had tax reform in 1986 that stimulated the economy in ways no stimulus had ever done before. It brought in significant additional revenues to the Treasury and put Americans back to work.

This is a bipartisan bill—a Democrat from Oregon and a Republican from Indiana—have joined forces on this. We want to signal that this is something that can be done aside from political gotchas, aside from political gain for the 2012 election, and something we can work together on that will make a commitment to a substantial portion of the necessary action that needs to be taking place to deal with this pending debt crisis and deficit crisis that has to be resolved by August 2 or close to that. Some say it can't be done in the time that is left. Well, we are in extraordinary times, and I think we have to set aside the conventional thinking and work toward what can and must be done.

To the extent it can't be fully incorporated into the law, at the very least, I believe the package we are ultimately going to be voting on needs a rock-hard, firm commitment and instructions to the tax-writing committees that this must be done and presented to the Congress in this session so we can address it and so we eliminate the uncertainty on whether we are going to go forward. It needs an enforcement backup mechanism so that if Congress doesn't act in a timely manner, there will be an automatic process in place that presents this to us for a vote.

We have a unique opportunity to do something big, to quote the President again. I commend him for saying that, and I commend him for coming forward and saying we will get off this cut-only, tax-only stalemate by beginning to address this on a comprehensive basis and put in place those elements we all know are necessary to achieve success. It will require the House and the Senate and the White House to cast aside political posturing in the 2012 elections, to transcend the politics, to do what is necessary for the future of America, for the future of Americans, to do what is necessary to get our finances and our economy moving again and to get people back to work. We need to transcend that and do what is right for the future of our country.

I hope we have taken a positive step in that direction today. I look forward to participating, as I know all of us do, in that process and hopefully assuring the American people and assuring the world that America is not at a stalemate, that America can address a challenge—a big challenge—and we can come forward with a sensible solution that puts us on the path to prosperity and guarantees a better future for our children and grandchildren.

I yield the floor, and I note the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I understand we are debating a specific resolution. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for 10 minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NASA

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize NASA's STS-135 mission. As the Presiding Officer knows, at approximately 11:30 a.m. tomorrow, Space Shuttle Atlantis is scheduled to lift off from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida with a crew of four on board. The 12-day mission will deliver supplies, logistics, and spare parts to the International Space Station. This will be the final mission of the space shuttle era that began just over 30 years ago.

A Senator from Colorado may not seem like the most likely person to come to the floor today to speak about the space shuttle, but NASA and space exploration actually have quite a bit to do with Colorado, and it is something I care deeply about.

Colorado has one of the three top aerospace economies in the country, with a hand in every aspect of space—government, commercial and academic, civil and military. We helped develop the space shuttle and many of the missions that flew on it, and we are playing a major role in the development of the shuttle's successors.

NASA has been a source of pride for all Americans from its very beginnings. We have cheered their triumphs and suffered with them during their tragedies. All the while, we have been inspired by their mission of exploration.

The shuttle era is no exception. Ever since the first launch in April of 1981, the names of the space shuttles—the Columbia, Challenger, Discovery, Atlantis, and Endeavour—have become familiar to even casual observers. This is a testament to the vehicle itself and those behind it.

I would like to acknowledge all of those who have flown on the shuttle, the thousands of unseen heroes at NASA who support them, and the contractors at too many companies to name who make it all possible. Flying the shuttle is a true team effort. Everyone who has been a part of that team should be proud of what they have accomplished.

I see my colleague from Florida across the Chamber, and I know he is also very aware that this has been a team effort across the board.

I know I would be remiss at this point if I didn't mention those who paid the ultimate price for their service. We will never forget the images of the horrible tragedies that befell the shuttle, one occurring merely seconds after leaving the pull of Earth's gravity, the other just minutes away from being home again. We will always remember the crews of the Space Shuttles Challenger and Columbia.

This milestone in the history of space flight forces us to reflect on what we have learned and where we are going. America is now in the unenviable position of having no U.S.-derived means of sending humans into space, including to vital assets like the International Space Station. For the near future, we will have to rely on our international partners, namely Russia. But that position will change. It must change, I would add. NASA is developing a successor to the shuttle based on important work done during the Constellation Program, and the burgeoning commercial sector is literally changing the way we access space as we speak. These complementary development tracks will build a more robust space exploration enterprise.

As the Presiding Officer knows, I have an interest in climbing mountains, as does he, and I have had the great good fortune to stand on the top of some of the world's highest mountains. I believe it is in our nature as humans to explore and understand the world around us, to keep stretching to achieve goals just beyond our grasp.

The shuttle has allowed us to reach farther than many ever dreamed possible. But the end of the shuttle era is by no means the end of exploration. At its heart, NASA is not about parts, it is about people. Even after the shuttle assumes its rightful place in history, legions of engineers, scientists, pilots, and other adventurers will carry its mission forward into the next phase of exploration. Keeping that spirit intact will be a fitting tribute to the space shuttle.

I wish the crew of STS-135 a smooth and productive journey and, above all, a safe return.

Before I yield the floor, I wish to add an additional note. In Colorado, of course, we have 54 mountains that are over 14,000 feet. We have countless peaks below that lofty elevation. But among the 100 highest peaks in Colorado, we have Columbia Point, which is named to commemorate the astronauts and the mission that ended tragically. We also have Challenger Point. Both peaks are in the top 100, both peaks are linked by a high ridge, and in the middle of that high ridge is Kit Carson Peak which is a 14,000-foot mountain. I have had the good fortune to stand on the summit of both of those peaks, most recently Columbia Peak in April, and the view is one that is worthy of us as Americans. As we go forward, let's remember the great successes of the shuttle program and build on them as we move forward as Americans exploring the world and exploring the universe.

I know my colleague from Florida shares those sentiments. I don't know that he is on the floor to speak on this particular topic, but I look forward to working with him, given the importance of the space industry and the space mission in the great State of Florida.

With that, I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore, The Senator from Florida.

Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to be recognized for up to 15 minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, I thank my colleague, the distinguished Senator from Colorado, as I pick up where he left off on the space program.

Thirty years ago, the United States launched the first space shuttle mission from Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

It marked a new era of American leadership in space and showed, once again, that Americans would continue to be committed to being first in space and on the cutting edge of scientific progress to improve our lives.

It also showed what free people—committed to discovery, to innovation, to improving the lives of their fellow man—can accomplish.

President Ronald Reagan said it best when he kicked off the space station program in 1984 . . . “We are first; we are the best; and we are so because we're free.”

Over these 30 years, we have been witness to many heroic triumphs in space that have served as a testament to America's unparalleled ingenuity and imagination.

Over time, the shuttle program would make household names out of some. Sally Ride became the first American woman to travel into space. One shuttle alum even serves with us in the Senate today—our colleague, BILL NELSON.

Of course, space exploration has always entailed risk-taking. It has always required putting one's life on the line. And because of this, the space shuttle program's history also gave us moments of great pain as we lost Christa McAuliffe and the Challenger crew in 1986, and the Columbia crew in 2003.

Each time these tragedies forced us to ask ourselves: Is space exploration worth it?

And thank God, time and time again, America answered with an emphatic: Yes.

Today, on this eve of the final space shuttle launch, we celebrate the shuttle program's remarkable feats, which exhibited many of the qualities that make America exceptional—courage, ingenuity, risk-taking, and an ability to accomplish what once seemed unthinkable.

Space exploration speaks volumes about America—who we are as a people and a nation.

When America was born 235 years ago, surely our Founding Fathers could not fathom that one day our people would fly among the stars. But the truth is, it has always been our destiny.

In the 19th century, it became our manifest destiny to explore and push westward until the American land stretched from sea to shining sea. And once we reached as far west as we could, Americans had no choice but to gaze up to the sky and settle on the stars as our next frontier.

Almost 42 years ago to the day, Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Mike Collins made that giant leap for mankind and left their indelible footprints on the Moon's surface and on human history. And on that night in July of 1969, the whole world witnessed the American miracle firsthand.

Even today, that moment serves as a poignant reminder about the limitless capacity that Americans possess in space and every aspect of our lives.

Even as we face a host of domestic and international challenges, America possesses a remarkable capacity to meet them by setting ambitious goals as President Kennedy did in his Moon speech, persevering in the face of setbacks and rising to the occasion to do what history demands of us.

Our space program inspired younger generations of Americans to pursue careers in the aerospace industry and other related fields. Satellite technologies developed and improved by NASA now connect the world in unprecedented ways, support our military's reconnaissance efforts, and facilitate travel through GPS devices.

For others, it got them hooked on math and science, and led them to other fields whose innovations make our lives better every day.

And then there were the lucky few who would actually go on to fly our space shuttles.

For the rest of us who did not pursue careers in science, math and engineering, our journeys into space have meant a lot—in different ways.

For many of us, Kennedy Space Center elicits memories as the place where imaginations are awakened and where dreams have been born.

And it is also where many children think fondly to their visits for field trips or space camps, and, in my case, of the time my parents took me there for my eighth birthday party before we moved to Las Vegas.

But these types of feelings did not just happen in America. The impact of our space program is a global phenomenon.

One needs to look no further than the various foreign currencies in the donation box at Washington's National Air and Space Museum to understand what our space program means not only for Florida and our country but for all of humanity.

This brings me to my other reason for speaking today.

When this final shuttle mission draws to a close, many Americans will be startled by the realization that we don't have an answer to the question: What is next for NASA?

NASA has no answer. President Obama has no answer. And as we transition to the next generation of space exploration, Florida's aerospace workers are left with only questions about their future.

We know that for the next few years, we will have to rely on the Russians to get to space.

Just a few weeks ago, that only cost $50 million an astronaut. Now the price tag is up to $63 million per astronaut. We can only imagine it will go higher.

Whereas America once led the way to the Moon, we now face the unacceptable prospect of limited options to simply get a human into orbit.

We know that our commercial space partners are working to fill some of the gaps in our human spaceflight capabilities. But we need NASA to lead.

And, as I say this, I fully recognize that our Nation faces a debt crisis because politicians in both parties have spent recklessly for many decades. It will require Washington to finally live within its means and for leaders to make tough choices about what our Nation's priorities are. NASA is no exception. It will not be about spending more—it will be about spending wisely.

Tomorrow, Americans will proudly watch as Atlantis takes off for its last flight. It will be a poignant opportunity to recall the entire 30-year history of the shuttle program and all that has been achieved in 50 years of NASA's existence.

And it will be another opportunity to thank the thousands of men and women in Florida who have made this program possible and who take such pride in the shuttle and what it has accomplished.

For NASA, just like our Nation, is at its best when it is looking forward, not looking back.

Mr. President, may I inquire of the Chair what my remaining time is?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. In postcloture status, the Senator has 53 minutes remaining. So 8 minutes of the 15 minutes is remaining.

Mr. RUBIO. Fifty-three sounded like too much, even for a Senator.

I briefly wish to use the second half of my time to talk about the issue of the day and that is the issue that is being discussed here in town about the debt—an important issue. It is happening at a time when many Americans from all across the country are traveling here on their vacations to show their children and their families how government works—or maybe in the case of this issue, how government does not work—in any event, how our Republic is trying to work its way through this issue, an important one.

I know that a few moments ago there was a meeting at the White House that concluded, and we wait with great anticipation—I see my colleague, the Senator from Illinois, has arrived and perhaps he will update us here on the floor in a few moments. But we are all interested in this issue because it goes well beyond partisanship or party politics; it is about the future of our country.

I think there is growing consensus on some of the outlines of what it will take to solve this issue. I think it will take two things, because I have heard this terminology we use about a balanced approach. It will take two things. First, it will take reductions in spending and it will take cuts, but we cannot simply cut our way out of this process. We must also grow our way out of this process.

My point is there is no way we can simply reduce spending enough to get America out of the predicament it is facing. We must also grow our economy at the same time. And growing our economy leads us to the No. 1 issue facing our country. For America, for the government, for us here in Washington, the national debt is the No. 1 issue on our minds, and rightfully so. It is a serious issue. But for the rest of our country, the No. 1 issue is joblessness. It is the fact that people are struggling to find a job.

These people did everything that was asked of them. They went to school, got a degree, worked hard, and now they have lost their job and their homes. If they did find a job, maybe they are making half as much and working twice as long. So we have to grow our economy. The logic behind it is very straightforward. If we have more people working, we have more people paying into our tax system. If we have more people paying into our tax system, that is more money available for our government to pay down its debt.

So I want to focus on the growth aspect and what we can do to grow our economy and help job creators create jobs. Don't ask the politicians, ask the job creators. They will tell us there are two things standing in the way of job creation in America. No. 1 is a broken Tax Code that is uncertain, complicated, difficult to navigate and, in many instances, unaffordable for them. No. 2, it is runaway regulations. So any deal that deals with the debt in a serious way has to encompass growth policies that involve, in my mind, both regulatory reform and tax reform. I hope that is what they are working toward—tax reform. Because what we need in America is not more taxes, we need more taxpayers.

The other part of the deal, of course, is going to have to involve some spending reductions. That is why I proudly stood with my colleagues to point out three things we have to clearly do to bring it under control. The first is we have to reduce spending this year. Obviously, we can't solve the budget deficit and debt in 1 year, but we have to begin to address it this year, so meaningful cuts this year.

The second thing we need to do is a spending cap that limits the amount of money this government can spend in the future or the growth in the amount of money the government can spend in the future. Our government should not grow faster than our economy.

Finally, we need some sort of balanced budget amendment.

To top it all off, we have to save Social Security and Medicare. I was encouraged this morning to read that the President is interested in this issue. It is important. It is not about balancing the budget on the backs of anyone. It is about saving Social Security and Medicare so that there will never have to be benefit reductions for current beneficiaries, and so that these programs exist for me when I retire and for my children when they retire, and so they will never grow insolvent.

With that, I yield the floor, and I note the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRANKEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BLUMENTHAL). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRANKEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRANKEN. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about our debt crisis, our short-term debt crisis and our long-term debt crisis. I come here today to discuss ways to address them and ways not to address them.

Our most immediate debt crisis is now upon us. In order to maintain the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government, Congress will have to vote to raise the debt ceiling within a matter of weeks. This is something Congress has done as a matter of course many times over the years as our national debt has grown.

Let us be clear about what exactly it means to raise the debt ceiling and why it is necessary. As a nation, we have accumulated $14.3 trillion in debt. This in and of itself is a very bad and dangerous thing. That means our national debt is currently 93 percent of our gross national product. Again, this is a very bad and dangerous thing. We have been in this situation before. Actually, it has been worse. After World War II, our national debt was at 121.7 percent of our gross national product. We certainly had something to show for it. We had won World War II.

Through the 1940s, 1950s, 1960s, and 1970s, we worked our way to a point where our national debt fell to 32.5 percent of GDP in 1981. We did this through a combination of growth and some inflation. Our debt was in pretty good shape until we hit the 1980s, during which we quadrupled our national debt under Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush.

We have hashed over time and again who is to blame for the situation we find ourselves in. But let me leave that alone for the moment and get back to what it means to raise the debt ceiling. As I said, our debt currently stands at $14.3 trillion. I think we can agree on this: That number reflects past choices, not current ones.

The debt ceiling also stands at $14.3 trillion. We have to raise the debt ceiling because we as a nation have certain obligations we must meet. We have to pay for the wars we are currently engaged in. We have obligations to veterans who have served our Nation. We have obligations to have the dedicated men and women at FEMA who have been responding to the many floods and fires our Nation has been facing.

We have obligations to seniors who have paid into Social Security all their working lives and have a right to expect a check every month of their retirement.

We have obligations under Medicare, not just to seniors, who again have paid in, but to clinics and hospitals and health care providers and to those who supply medicine and medical equipment.

We have contractual obligations of all kinds to many different businesses, whether they are building roads or water towers or providing IT services to the VA or the Park Service or the Senate. I think almost everyone would agree it is good to have guards in our Federal prisons, except maybe the prisoners. The list of obligations goes on and on, and one of our most fundamental obligations is to pay principal and interest to bondholders who have invested in what has been for decades and decades considered the safest investment in the world: the U.S. Treasury bond.

Currently, we simply are not taking in enough revenues to meet all these obligations, so we must borrow more. Of course, we must pay interest on our debt, at an interest rate that is now actually quite low.

The surest way to increase the interest on our debt would be to default on our debt obligations. And make no mistake, that is exactly what will happen if we fail to raise the debt ceiling. Even an increase in interest rates of just 1 percent would add $1.3 trillion to our interest payments over the next decade. So, as you can see, defaulting on our debt to make a point about the seriousness of our current position would, to say the least, be counterproductive. Yet some of my colleagues are willing to do just that, and that is irresponsible.

As to the notion that bondholders could be paid while other obligations were postponed, Scott Elmendorf, Chair of the Congressional Budget Office, said:

Defaulting on any government obligation is a dangerous gamble.

We are not absolutely certain what exactly will happen if we default, but we have a pretty good idea. We know it would roil the international financial markets, induce rating downgrades of our Treasury notes, create fundamental doubts about the creditworthiness of the United States, and force us to pay higher interest rates to induce people to buy our bonds. It would damage the dollar and the special role of Treasury securities in global markets for decades to come—a dangerous gamble, one we cannot afford to take.

Defaulting on our debt would also be, as David Brooks so aptly put it, a stain upon our national honor. Are we actually going to become a country that cannot be relied on to pay its debts?

Yet we have Members of the House and Members of this body threatening to vote against raising the debt ceiling unless the President and Democrats in Congress meet their demands on how to address the deficit going forward.

Are my friends suggesting we act like a deadbeat who buys a new car and then, some time down the line, decides: "You know, I just don't feel like making the payments"?

I think these Members are doing an enormous disservice by holding our Nation's economy and, indeed, the entire global economy hostage to their demands. Because the U.S. Treasury bond has been the foundation of the world financial system, it is not an overstatement to say that defaulting on our debt at this fragile point in the global economic recovery could throw us into a worldwide depression.

I am hardly alone in this regard. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce shares my alarm. It is no small secret that the Wall Street backers of the Republican Party are beseeching their allies in Congress to come to their senses.

Yet Republican leaders know there are also those in their party who believe this is their chance. This is their opportunity to exact concessions from the White House and Democrats in Congress precisely because the situation is so fraught with peril. They know the President of the United States cannot play a game of chicken with the full faith and credit of the United States of America. And in a game of chicken, the irrational and irresponsible player holds a distinct strategic advantage over the rational and responsible player.

So we find ourselves in this place at this time.

What are the demands?

Well, Republican leaders here in the Senate are holding the debt ceiling hostage so they can end Medicare as we know it. Democrats are trying to protect Medicare and ensure its solvency, and the Affordable Care Act is already doing that. Not only does the Affordable Care Act provide more benefits to Medicare recipients, it also extends the solvency of Medicare by 7 years. That is the conclusion of the most recent report of the Medicare trustees.

Of course, the first big idea from our friends on the other side of the aisle this Congress was to repeal the Affordable Care Act, and they all voted to do that. So please understand that one of their first votes this Congress would have had the effect of diminishing the solvency of Medicare, shrinking the solvency of Medicare by 7 years.

Not only that, but according to the Congressional Budget Office, the Affordable Care Act will reduce the debt over the next decade by $210 billion, and over the decade following that by more than $1 trillion. So rather than saving money by making our health care system stronger, making our delivery of care more efficient, and keeping our constituents healthy, Republicans voted to repeal the health reform law. So the big Republican contribution to the sustainability of Medicare and our national debt was to vote to shorten Medicare's life expectancy by 7 years and to add well over $1 trillion to the debt in the next two decades.

There is no doubt that the biggest threat to the sustainability of our long-term debt is the cost of health care. That is why so much of the Affordable Care Act is designed to address the cost of the delivery of medical care.

Let me give you a couple of examples. First, the value index. The value index will direct that health care providers be reimbursed by the value of the care they provide rather than by the volume—the quality of the care rather than the quantity of care. In Minnesota, for instance, we do health care a lot better than most other States. We provide higher quality care at a lower cost than almost any other State. There is room for improvement in Minnesota, of course. As a health care economist told me: In Minnesota, we get an A, but that is because we grade on a curve.

In Texas, they get reimbursed 50 percent more per patient in Medicare than we do in Minnesota and yet we have better outcomes.

Why? Well, we have a different health care culture in Minnesota. We tend to do more coordinated, fully integrated care. We tend to see patients as people who we want to keep healthy and out of the hospital. In Texas, patients are more often viewed as profit centers. There are some excellent, high-value centers of health care in Texas, such as Baylor University. Then, there are some egregiously low-value ones, like some in McAllen, TX. And, by and large, Texas doctors order more procedures than Minnesota doctors so they can bill for more procedures.

But the idea here isn't to pit Minnesota against Texas. The idea is to incentivize low-value States to do health care more like high-value States. Imagine if we could bring down the cost of health care in Texas by one-third. Imagine the savings to Medicare and Medicaid.

One more example. Senator LUGAR and I wrote a provision into the bill called the Diabetes Prevention Program. It is based on a CDC program piloted in Indianapolis and in St. Paul. They took folks that had been diagnosed with "prediabetes" and gave them 16 weeks of nutritional training and 16 weeks of physical exercise at the YMCA, all at a cost of only about $300 per person.

The number of people with prediabetes who later developed full-blown type 2 diabetes was reduced by almost 60 percent—60 percent! Caring for chronic disease is the most expensive piece of our health care system in this country. One of the most common chronic illnesses is diabetes. It costs our Nation $218 billion a year to treat diabetes.

A couple weeks after the Affordable Care Act passed, I brought the Under Secretary of Health and Human Services into my office to meet with diabetes experts from the CDC and with United Health Group, the country's largest insurance company. The goal of the meeting was to get HHS on board to bring the piloted Diabetes Prevention Program up to scale nationwide. The executive from United Health said she would definitely reimburse their policy holders for going through the 16-week program. She said, "You know why? Because for every dollar we spend, we'll save four dollars."

The value index and the Diabetes Prevention Program are but two of the many programs in the Affordable Care Act that have been written into the law. Jonathan Gruber, the MIT professor who helped put together the health reform system in Massachusetts when Mitt Romney was Governor there, has said of the Affordable Care Act, "It's really hard to figure out how to bend the cost curve, but I can't think of a thing to try that they didn't try . . . You couldn't have done better than they are doing."

Since then, in the House, Representative PAUL RYAN and the Republicans in Congress have taken an entirely different approach. Instead of putting in the long, hard hours of consulting with health care providers, health care economists, patient groups, hospitals, rural health groups, and medical researchers to actually try to build on protocols that have been proven to bring down the cost of delivering quality medicine, Representative RYAN decided just to slash the funding of Medicare, give the money left over to seniors, and let them fend for themselves to buy their own health care from insurance companies.

Now, we know there was no functional market for health insurance for folks 65 and over before Medicare and Medicaid started in 1965. It is doubtful that there would be one now. Under the Republican plan, seniors would essentially get a voucher for a significantly lower amount than their Medicare is worth now. Remember that the cost to Medicare for administering its program is less than 2 percent. Insurance companies, on the other hand, spend around 11 percent on administration. The CBO estimates that under the Ryan plan, out-of-pocket cost for health care for each senior will more than double to over $12,500 a year.

This is not Medicare as we know it. It is not Medicare. So, understand this: the Republican plan to end Medicare would make huge cuts in Medicare benefits and put insurance companies in charge of seniors' health care. This would double the out-of-pocket costs for seniors and toss aside all the new benefits offered by the Affordable Care Act.

There is no question which vision of Medicare holds more hope for seniors and which takes a scientific, evidence-based, best practices approach to addressing the long-range cost of delivering health care to all Americans.

And yet my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are telling us that they are willing to risk throwing the global economy into depression if Democrats don't act more responsibly on Medicare.

Well, ok. Here is an idea. Allow Medicare to negotiate with the pharmaceutical companies on drugs for Medicare Part D. The VA does it. And guess what. The VA pays an average of 48 percent less than Medicare does for the top 10 most prescribed drugs. Now the pharmaceutical industry tells us they need us to pay the higher price because they need the money for research. But, in fact, they spend more money on advertising and marketing than they do on research.

Almost every other developed country uses its size to negotiate with the pharmaceutical companies. Why does the American taxpayer have to be the chump who pays full price? I say we negotiate with the pharmaceutical companies and bring down the cost to Medicare by as much as $24 billion a year, or $240 billion over the next 10 years. That could go straight to paying off the debt. There. I got you a $240 billion cut to Medicare. Now can we please vote to raise the debt ceiling and avert a worldwide economic catastrophe?

If my friends on the other side are really serious about getting our deficit under control, couldn't we start by getting rid of a measly $2 billion a year in taxpayer subsidies to oil companies—the companies that are getting record profits because the price of oil is so high? Unfortunately, according to my Republican colleagues, this would be a tax hike.

In order for us to agree to balance the budget, everyone has to pay. Who is in a better position to give? Exxon or a little girl in Minnesota named Evelyn. You see, Evelyn was born with cystic fibrosis. When she was 10, her liver failed, and her own toxins started to poison her. But Medicaid helped her get the care she needed. That is what this is about. Exxon or Evelyn. Frankly, it makes me kind of sad.

So there are some more billions for deficit reduction. Get rid of the subsidies to the five biggest oil companies—$21 billion over the next 10 years. And you know what? If we are seriously going to address our debt crisis, we have to increase revenues.

Now under the Republican plan, the cuts to end Medicare as we know it and to slash Medicaid all go to pay for tax cuts to the wealthiest Americans. That's right. The Republican plan cuts taxes on the top marginal rates for millionaires and billionaires from 35 percent to 25 percent.

Now my Republican friends like to say that tax cuts always produce revenue increases. Besides the fact that that is simply not true, it also contradicts the other argument Republicans use for not raising taxes. Raising taxes, Republicans often argue, would just give the government more money to spend. According to that oft-repeated Republican argument, cutting taxes will lower revenue and "starve the beast."

Here is President Ronald Reagan making this exact point in 1981:

There were always those who told us that taxes couldn't be cut until spending was reduced. Well, you know, we can lecture our children about extravagance until we run out of voice and breath. Or we can cure their extravagance by simply reducing their allowance.

In other words, cutting taxes cuts revenues and forces the children, in this case, the government, to cut spending.

So, at the heart of my friends' argument on why we must cut taxes are two completely contradictory, mutually exclusive arguments. On the one hand, according to my friends, lowering taxes always increases revenues and therefore brings down the deficit. On the other hand, they argue, lowering taxes decreases revenues. Which is it? Because you can't have it both ways.

I will try to provide some context for my friends. After President Reagan cut taxes in 1981, we immediately started amassing enormous deficits. They were so bad that President Reagan felt compelled to raise taxes in 1982 and then again in 1983. In fact, President Ronald Reagan, the supply-side icon, raised taxes 11 times. If President Reagan did that today, the Tea Party and, in fact, the entire Republican Party would run him out of town on a rail.

But, you see, President Reagan knew that to raise revenue, you have to either raise marginal tax rates, or get rid of tax loopholes for the wealthy and for big corporations. Which is what he did repeatedly.

Even so, our national debt nearly tripled during the Reagan Presidency. The national debt continued to grow rapidly during the George H. W. Bush administration. In fact, in 1993, he handed President Bill Clinton what at that point was the largest deficit in history.

So what did President Clinton do? Well, in his 1993 deficit reduction package, he added two new marginal tax rates at the top end—36 percent for those making over $180,000 and 39.6 percent for those making over $250,000.

Every Republican voted against the package. They said that raising the top marginal tax rate would cause a recession. Former Speaker Newt Gingrich said:

I believe this will lead to a recession next year. This is the Democrat machine's recession, and each one of them will be held personally accountable.

Senator Phil Gramm of Texas said:

The Clinton plan is a one-way ticket to recession. This plan does not reduce the deficit. But it raises taxes and it puts people out of work.

Representative John Kasich, then ranking member of the House Budget Committee, said:

This plan will not work. If it was to work, I'd have to become a Democrat.

Well, it worked. Not only did we have an unprecedented expansion of our economy for 8 years, creating more than 22 million new net jobs, but we balanced the budget and Bill Clinton handed George W. Bush a record surplus. I call that "working."

Now President Clinton, and especially the Democrats in Congress, paid a political price for the 1993 deficit reduction package. The Democrats went down to defeat in 1994, losing control of the House for the first time in 40 years. You could say that Democrats took a shellacking.

Nevertheless, between 1993 and 2001 the Nation created an unprecedented number of jobs benefiting every quartile of our economy, decreasing the number of Americans in poverty, increasing median income, and creating more millionaires than ever—to which my colleagues on the other side of the aisle might say, "Sure, it worked in practice. But does it work in theory?"

President Clinton's deficit reduction plan not only reduced the deficit as planned, it eliminated it entirely and gave incoming President George W. Bush a record surplus. In fact, when President Bush took office, we were on track to completely pay off our national debt with $5 trillion of surpluses projected over the next 10 years. In other words, we would have zeroed out our national debt this year.

Five days after President Bush took office—again, after President Bush took office—Alan Greenspan testified to the Senate Budget Committee that we were in danger of paying off the national debt too quickly and entering uncharted territory in which the Federal Government would have too much money. The Federal Government, Greenspan warned, would have to put its excess money into private equities, thereby distorting and decreasing the efficiency of our markets.

President Bush told the country that a surplus meant that Americans were paying too much in taxes. This was our money, he told us, and so we all deserved a tax cut. Then after the economy went into recession, Bush told us that what we needed was another tax cut to stimulate the economy. So, in other words, "when the economy is going strong, tax cuts are in order." And "when the economy is weak, tax cuts are in order." Combine those with the aforementioned contradictory "tax cuts reduce revenues forcing government to spend less of our money" and "tax cuts always increase revenues" and you have an exquisitely incomprehensible economic theory.

But that exquisitely incomprehensible theory needed just one more element to make it downright dangerous. And that element would be provided by Vice President Richard Cheney.

By late 2002, the surplus President George W. Bush had inherited from Bill Clinton was turning once again into huge deficits. According to then-Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill, he tried to warn Vice President Cheney that budget deficits were growing at an alarming rate, posing a threat to the economy. Vice President Cheney cut O'Neill off, saying, "You know, Paul, Reagan proved deficits don't matter."

By the end of his Presidency, George W. Bush left President Obama a budget deficit projected at $1.2 trillion for fiscal year 2009. Meanwhile, President Bush had doubled our national debt.

What was to blame? Could it have had anything to do with the fact that for the first time in history we cut taxes while we were at war?

Well, not according to the Republican leader. In July of last year Senator MCCONNELL said: "There's no evidence whatsoever that the Bush tax cuts actually diminished revenue."

But adjusting for inflation, since the Bush tax cuts were enacted, revenues have fallen 17 percent. And that is not even taking into account growth in our population, which was 9 percent over this period. When you add the effect of population growth, revenues declined by about 24 percent per capita. I think this clearly constitutes evidence that the Bush tax cuts actually diminished revenue.

So it should be no surprise that reduced revenues are responsible for a lot of our deficit, as you can see here. This chart by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities is based on CBO data and shows that the Bush tax cuts were responsible for 25 percent of the deficit in 2010. And that is only going to grow. By 2019, the tax cuts will account for almost 60 percent of our deficit.

And the fact is that not only did the national debt double during the Bush administration, we also had a dismal record of job creation. And during the Bush years, for the first time since we started keeping records, median income fell in America. And more Americans fell into poverty. One in five children in America now lives in poverty. It is even higher in rural America.

There is one group that did very well during the Bush years, and continues to do very well: The extremely wealthy.

We now have in this country the greatest disparity in income and wealth that we have had since the 1920s.

So the one thing that there is no evidence whatsoever of is that cutting taxes on the wealthiest Americans can create jobs and keep the deficit under control.

So why would we do it, when the evidence is so stark that the Bush tax cuts coincided with a huge spike in both the debt and unemployment?

Why not look back on what has worked in the past and learn from it?

As I said earlier, after World War II our debt as a percentage of GDP was, in fact, significantly larger than it is today. But what did we do? Well, we passed the G.I. bill so that our troops returning from the war could go to college.

Truman started the Marshall plan to help Europe get on its feet.

And it is not as if we had smooth sailing as far as Defense spending. We went to war in Korea, losing nearly 35,000 Americans. After that war ended, we found ourselves in an extended Cold War. We built the largest infrastructure project in our history, the Interstate Highway System—it added enormously to our economic development, because now we could transport our goods around the country so much more efficiently.

When the Soviets launched Sputnik into space, we jump-started our space program and our investment in science and math education. My brother and I were Sputnik kids. He was 11 and I was 6 when it was launched. My parents took us into our living room in Minnesota and told us that we had to study math and science in order to beat the Soviets. I thought that was a big burden to place on an 11-year-old and a 6-year-old. But we were obedient sons, and so we studied math and science. And wouldn't you know it, my parents were right. We beat the Soviets.

The space program created all kinds of dividends in technology and to our economic development. I watched a Senate debate last fall in which the Republican candidate said that government had never created a job. The debate, of course, was broadcast by satellite.

I think you get the idea. The fact is the investments we made in the 1940s, 1950s, 1960s, and 1970s in science and technology, in our State universities, in infrastructure that was the envy of the world brought our debt as a percentage of GDP from 121 percent in 1945 to 33 percent in 1980.

Erskine Bowles is right. We can't get out of our current debt crisis with growth alone. But I will tell you most certainly that we will not get out of it without growth.

And so we have to choose wisely in what we invest in, in when we invest, and in how we invest; and in what we cut, and when we cut, and how we cut—which we must do—and in how we increase revenues, when we increase revenues, and from whom we get those revenues.

Why not invest in retrofitting our buildings when we have so many in the building trades out of work, sitting on the sidelines, and knowing that we can recoup that investment in energy savings within 3 to 5 years? Let's find creative ways of financing that, such as PACE financing, which lets families get a loan from their local government and pay it back on their property taxes. This is how cities pay for streetlights and sidewalks. It adds value to homes; and when the family moves, the loan stays with the property. We should also create incentives for banks to lend to small businesses for retrofitting commercial buildings.

There is a company in Minnesota called McQuay that makes heating and air conditioning systems for commercial buildings. They are actually supplying the system for the new World Trade Center, and their systems are so energy efficient that they pay for themselves in 3 to 5 years through energy savings.

They have been taking out loans from banks since they are a large creditworthy company, but then they give out loans to customers who install their systems. It is a win-win, because they are selling more units and putting people back to work, and their customers are actually making money in the long run through energy savings. McQuay has a good model, and we should be figuring out how to encourage others to do the same thing.

Why not cut our Defense spending when $100 billion in cuts have been identified by our service chiefs at Secretary Gates' request, and when cost overruns on our weapons systems are absurdly high? The GAO recently revealed that when you add up the growth in costs of major Defense weapons systems over their original estimates, the total is over $402 billion.

Why not raise revenue by increasing taxes on the wealthiest in this Nation—those who have benefited the most from the economy in recent years—especially when we can look to the recent past and see that their tax cuts created virtually no jobs and contributed mightily to our deficit?

Only when the middle class is strong does our economy grow, because the middle class has always been the part of our society that creates demand. There are just not enough rich people to buy enough stuff. The middle class spends its money. But today, companies are sitting on trillions of dollars because there is just not enough demand. And that is because there is a lot of unemployment and because wages for the middle class have gone down over the last decade.

Creating a middle class is not an end unto itself. A strong middle class leads to strong consumer spending, and therefore to a strong economy and to national prosperity. The middle class is also where you get entrepreneurs and small businesses—it is the engine of our economy.

Why not invest in early childhood education when we know that the return on quality early childhood education is up to $16 for every $1 spent? We know that children who have had quality early childhood education are less likely to need special education, less likely to repeat grades, they have better health outcomes, and that the girls are less likely to get pregnant as teenagers. We know children who have quality early childhood education are more likely to graduate from high school, more likely to go to college, more likely to get a good job and pay taxes, and much less likely to go to prison.

My friends on the other side say that we must cut the deficit for our children's sake, and I agree. But why then are such a disproportionate amount of the cuts aimed at programs that help kids? As I said, one of every five children in America lives in poverty, and even more in rural areas.

But the Republicans want to cut Head Start and Early Head Start. We currently serve about 40 percent of children who qualify for Head Start and less than 4 percent of children who qualify for Early Head Start. Do we really want to cut that? Do we really want to cut Pell grants? The Republican budget slashes Medicaid. About 50 percent of the recipients of Medicaid are children. We know we are going to have to make shared sacrifices to get the budget under control, but do we really think that sick kids should make those sacrifices?

You know, immediately after this last election, Republican leadership said that their No. 1 priority was seeing to it that Barack Obama is a one-term President. They didn't say their No. 1 priority was getting Americans back to work, or educating our kids, or even balancing the budget.

Their No. 1 priority was winning the next election. But I don't think that is what Americans want. The American people want us to get to work to solve problems, to improve their lives. We don't have to agree on how to do that but they sent us here to work together. If the time between elections just becomes about jockeying for the next election, then what in the world is the point of getting elected in the first place? I thought we were here to work together constructively in the interest of the American people.

Now the Senate Republican leader is saying that raising any new revenues is off the table; that he will not vote to raise the debt ceiling if part of our compromise on the budget going forward involves any tax increase on anyone, no matter how wealthy they are, no matter what their income.

I ask all my colleagues, for the good of the country, to step back from the brink, to step back from brinkmanship on this debt ceiling. Let's not panic. We are going to be on this planet for a while. Let's have some confidence in ourselves to do this in a smart thoughtful way so that our children will say, "Well, they might not have been the Greatest Generation, but they were a Pretty Good Generation."

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. VITTER. I ask unanimous consent that Senator KIRK and I speak in succession for up to 15 minutes and that the Democratic side then have two speakers.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois.

AHMED ABDULKADIR WARSAME

Mr. KIRK. Mr. President, we have just learned that Ahmed Abdulkadir Warsame was arrested by the U.S. military in April. This news has just come to us, learning that this man who fought for no country and wore no uniform and under an international law is considered an enemy combatant and therefore not a prisoner of war or an American civilian criminal, has been taken to a U.S. criminal court to be granted full U.S. constitutional rights in a prosecution in the civilian courts of the United States, located in the Southern District of New York.

This man was taken outside American territory for attacks outside U.S. jurisdiction for acts against non-U.S. citizens. Yet he has been charged with a U.S. civilian crime and has been given the full rights of an American citizen or a nationalized individual. I think we have made a grievous mistake.

We have made a significant change just this week. We have violated the principles set forth by President Lincoln and President Roosevelt, who well used military commissions to handle enemy combatants and not providing them full U.S. constitutional rights for actions taken outside the United States against non-U.S. citizens in the war on terror.

I am very worried this foreign terrorist, who was taken abroad for attacks committed abroad, is now going to have the full constitutional right to confront his accuser and have all information used in his trial exposed. This means that, under the new policy, the United States may be forced to reveal intelligence information critical in the war on terror, especially against al Qaida, al Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula, and Al-Shabaab, when otherwise a military commission could have kept that information confidential, leading to further success by the United States.

We should ask at what cost this prosecution will come. The previous proposal by the President, which he backed away from, was to bring the author of the 9/11 attack, Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, to central New York, at a cost of an estimated $75 million to protect the court, the judge, the prosecutor, the jury, and their families. The President backed away from that Khalid Shaikh Mohammed decision, but apparently he has now made that decision again with regard to Ahmed Abdulkadir Warsame.

My question is this: What threat is now being posed to the people of New York? What threat is being posed to the Federal judge? What will the prosecutor fear for the rest of his or her life in participating in this unnecessary civilian prosecution—and especially for the jurors and their families who now will be subject to scrutiny throughout the jihadist world by al Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula and Al-Shabaab. Why is this unnecessary threat now going to be posed to these Americans?

That is why 39 Republicans and Democrats joined me in a letter to Attorney General Eric Holder, saying this decision was a mistake and should not be repeated; that we have now created undue attention to the people of New York by al Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula, al Qaida itself, and Al-Shabaab.

Remember, following our successful attack against bin Laden, we now estimate that al Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula and Al-Shabaab are the most dangerous and heavily armed subsidiaries of al Qaida. Al-Shabaab alone has over 8,000 men under training and, as one intelligence expert said, some of them at the level of training equivalent to the U.S. Army Rangers.

How are we going to protect the judge in this case for the rest of his or her life? How are we going to protect the prosecutor for the rest of his or her life? How are we going to protect the jury and their families for the rest of their lives because of this mistake made by the Attorney General of the United States?

At what cost will this prosecution come? Will it be paid by the city of New York, already heavily strained in finances, a New York State famously short of funds, or the Federal Government, which is also short of money?

What happens if Ahmed Abdulkadir Warsame is found innocent? We already know many released terrorists have already returned to jihad, as he proudly indicates he surely will.

In the wake of the debate on deficits and debt on a famous criminal trial in New York, we may have overlooked a fundamental decision, a mistake made by the Attorney General of the United States. The 9/11 Commission taught us a critical lesson, that terrorism is not a law enforcement problem; it is an intelligence and military problem. Well-established principles under Roosevelt, Lincoln, Bush, and, yes, President Obama, using military commissions, should be used instead of subjecting the American people to the increased threats, the increased costs, and the terrible precedent we have just set in giving an international terrorist, for acts committed overseas against foreigners, full constitutional rights. I think it is a decision we will regret. Many of us may quote the 9/11 Commission report in its clear findings in highlighting the error that was made.

I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, I rise again to urge all of us, Democrats and Republicans, to come together and put serious deficit reduction proposals on the floor for full debate, an open amendment process, a constructive debate and votes and action. That is the way we can move forward and resolve this greatest threat we face as a country, out-of-control Washington spending and debt.

We are making a little bit of progress in that regard. After months and months of the distinguished majority leader putting every other issue under the Sun on the floor but spending and debt, we finally forced this central issue to come and be debated.

Last week, many of us banded together, conservatives who were pushing for this debate, and said: Enough is enough. We should cancel the July 4 recess, we should block it so we stay and debate the central issue. That is what we did, and we successfully did that. Unfortunately, the majority leader then proposed that we stay here—yes, because we had blocked the recess—but did not put the central issue on the floor and moved yet another topic. We said: No; we are staying to get to this debate, this important issue, the greatest challenge we face right now as a country, and we successfully defeated his move to another topic.

Finally, with this little bit of progress, we are on the floor at least talking about the right issue. But we don't yet have a strong, meaningful, underlying proposal to act on. We have a sense-of-the-Senate resolution. That is a good basis for debate, I suppose. But, of course, we need more than that. We need serious proposals to debate and amend and vote on and act on. That is the important next step.

When I made these remarks yesterday, the distinguished Senator from New York, Senator SCHUMER, was in the Chamber and suggested that Republicans, including myself, had not gotten behind a serious, credible proposal. Specifically, he said: Wait a minute. The Ryan budget, which you voted for, doesn't reduce the deficit at all. I said at the time that is incorrect, but I didn't have the numbers in front of me. In fact, I looked it up, and the Ryan budget does significantly reduce the deficit from $1.4 trillion this year to $391 billion at the end of 10 years. That is a major reduction.

As I said to the Senator from New York at the time, my preference even ahead of that is the Toomey budget, which we produced on the Republican side in the Senate. That reduces the deficit from $1.4 trillion right now to zero over 10 years. It balances the budget over 10 years—obviously, major progress.

Again, going back to the Ryan budget, which Senator SCHUMER brought up, it contains $6.2 trillion in spending reductions compared to spending in President Obama's budget. It adds total deficits that are $4.4 trillion lower than that in the President's budget. It brings total Federal spending to below 20 percent of the economy. The President's budget is always above 23 percent in that figure. So it puts us on a path to balance. Again, the Toomey budget, my first choice, actually achieves that balance within the 10-year budget window.

In contrast to that, I have to say it is very unsettling that the distinguished majority leader and the majority in this Chamber have not even tried to meet our mandated budget responsibilities. Section 300 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, which is the Federal law that controls the budget process, says that by April 15 of every year, a budget resolution is supposed to be passed. We are 83 days and counting past that deadline and no serious attempt to even try to meet that legal mandate has been made by the majority or by the distinguished majority leader. We have had a few budget votes, three Republican budget proposals, and President Obama's budget. The Obama budget got zero votes on the Senate floor. The majority, the majority leader produced no budget proposal. The Finance Committee, led by the majority, produced no budget proposal, not even trying to meet our responsibility, an actual legal mandate under the law.

Through the Chair, I would ask Senator SCHUMER: Where is your proposal? Where is your attempt? Yes, we have put forth specific proposals that dramatically cut the deficit. When is the majority going to even try? Again, 83 days and counting this year past that deadline. Of course, last year this body, under the same leadership, produced no budget. So we are 448 days and counting in total under the Budget Act. In that time, by the way, our debt has increased $3.2 trillion.

That is why we need serious proposals on this Senate floor to debate, to amend if necessary, to vote on, to act on. At least we are to the topic, but we need serious proposals before us to act on.

Again, I urge all of my colleagues to embrace a three-tier approach, cut and cap and balance: passing a budget resolution which we are mandated to do that includes immediate meaningful real cuts—that is cut; cap, structural budget reform to cap spending in every major category of the budget to ensure we stay on that path to a balanced budget; and balance, a requirement in the U.S. Constitution that we have a balanced Federal budget through the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. I support that. All Republicans in this body have coauthored that. That is the third crucial tier of this three-tier approach: cut, cap, and balance.

I hope we get to consideration of those and other important proposals. I hope we not only have a debate around a sense-of-the-Senate resolution, I hope we have real meaningful proposals on the floor, an open amendment process, an open debate and votes and action on this most critical issue. I have endorsed specific proposals. I mentioned two of them. They dramatically reduce the deficit. I have coauthored the balanced budget constitutional amendment that enforces discipline, the straitjacket we need. I support the cap concept for the medium term to get us on that path. But we need to act on that on the floor in a bipartisan way. I urge that as the next necessary step.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SANDERS). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, first I thank my good friend and colleague from Minnesota, Senator FRANKEN, for leading this debate here today, the subject of course being the potential of default by the U.S. Government, a subject many of us thought we would never have to discuss. I hope people who did not get a chance to see his speech—I am sorry, I had hoped to be here but we had the final vote on the free trade agreements in the Finance Committee, but I hope people will look at the speech. It is a very erudite, thoughtful, and compelling document. It is on a subject that deserves that kind of attention, which is the danger of default. In our entire history we have never defaulted on our debt. America has always kept its promises. But some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are threatening to make us the first generation of Americans that does not pay its debts, that does not keep its promise. Earlier this week the President said we should reach a deal within 2 weeks in order to avoid roiling the financial markets. We Democrats are working in good faith. We are committed to making sure our Nation does not fail in meeting its obligations. My colleagues and I on this side of the aisle are working diligently to find spending cuts, many of which come from programs we strongly believe help this country, in order to come to a final agreement. We are also identifying tax loopholes to close.

But I must ask, what exactly are my Republican colleagues doing? They are stalling, they are demagoging. They walked out on bipartisan budget negotiations and are continuing to insist that we cannot raise a single dollar in revenue, no matter how wasteful the tax breaks or how generous the subsidy. The shocking truth is that our Republican colleagues seem to be willing to tank the economy simply to help out the very most privileged, who are already doing well.

Let's face it, middle-class people, poor people, depend on government programs. But if you are wealthy you do not need government spending. You don't need help to send your kid to college. You don't need to go to a clinic to have your teeth looked at in case they are falling apart and you cannot afford high-priced, fancy dentists. But if you are wealthy, how do you get breaks? You look into the Tax Code and lobby Congress, whether you are a corporation or individual, to get those breaks. That is how the high-end folks benefit, in terms of this government.

To say all those are off limits is not class warfare, it is a simple fact of life. It is a fact of life that the well-to-do, whether they be corporate or individuals, benefit from tax expenditures, whereas middle-class and poorer people benefit from spending expenditures. Yet our Republican colleagues say one whole side is off limits. That is putting politics over the economy.

In fact, these actions seem to indicate they might be deliberately tanking, or want to deliberately tank, the economy to harm the President's reelection chances. That is a tough thought. I shudder to believe it. But when you look at the evidence, it leads in that direction.

These are not actions of leaders. Forcing the United States into default to score political points is playing with fire. You risk undermining the future credit of the United States and do enough damage to the global economy that it could cause another financial crisis not unlike the one we saw in 2008 from which we still have not recovered, all to score political points, all to help those, the one segment of society which, God bless them, has done very well in the last decade.

I also want to talk today about a subject that is often ignored in debates over the debt ceiling. These debates can seem very abstract and the potential consequences very remote. That is why my colleague from Minnesota decidated to lead a debate in this regard. In fact, the consequences would affect every American who wants to take out a mortgage; every parent who needs to take out student loans to send their kids to college; every American with a credit card. It would even affect the price of gasoline and the price of food. The impact of a default will not just be felt on Wall Street or in the mythical world of bond markets, but in every town, every household in the Nation.

The consequences will not be short lived. The repercussions of a default will stay with us for years or even decades. J.P. Morgan estimates that even a technical default, the failure to pay interest on our debt for a few days, would result in the cost of U.S. treasuries increasing by 50 basis points.

What does that mean to the average household? Most households do not speak in terms of basis points. Mortgage rates are often set at 150 points above U.S. Treasury. That means 1.5 percent above U.S. treasuries. If the rate on treasuries goes up 50 basis points, it goes up another half percent. So the cost of a mortgage for a family with a 30-year fixed rate mortgage worth $172,000, just that alone, that little few days where the United States does not pay its debt, costs $19,000 to that family.

The cost of interest on a credit card would also increase. A family carrying a modest balance, $3,300, would pay an estimated $250 more in interest every year.

In total, a default or even a near default could end up costing American households $10 billion in increased borrowing costs every year.

The same J.P. Morgan study tells us that a 50-percent increase in the cost of U.S. treasuries will decrease our GDP by 1 percent. Leading economists estimate a 1-percent contraction in the GDP would result in 640,000 jobs lost. These are jobs we cannot afford to lose.

In addition, the stock market would also go down significantly, costing all Americans who are investing for their retirement or saving to send a child to college. The typical American would lose $8,000 to $12,000 in his or her retirement account.

J.P. Morgan also estimates that the value of the dollar would decline 5 percent to 10 percent as a result of a default.

There are significant consequences for the future of the dollar if this happens. We should all be asking ourselves, what happens if the dollar ceases to be the global reserve currency? But even if my colleagues across the aisle do not want to consider that, they should certainly think about the impact of a depreciated dollar on their constituents. Higher borrowing costs to the government would also increase the deficit, exactly the opposite of what we are trying to do.

So when they cavalierly say “let’s default because we have a huge deficit,” it is actually an internal contradiction. The defaulting will make the deficit worse. According to a J.P. Morgan analysis, the deficit would increase by $10 billion a year in the short term, $75 billion in the long term.

The worst part is this: All of these costs would be self-inflicted wounds. We are fully capable of paying our debt, as we always have. But some are threatening to intentionally default. To borrow a phrase from the President’s economic adviser, Austan Goolsbee, “This would be the first default in history caused entirely by insanity.”

Let me say this. Every American family has debt, just about. Most of us have mortgages. Let’s say we have a mortgage on our house, we have a house and we are living in it. If all of a sudden we say to our bank I am not going to pay my mortgage unless you do A, B, and C—you have already signed to pay that mortgage—what happens? You are not living up to an agreement you made. Your house is foreclosed upon and you lose it.

The analogy is the same here. For the U.S. Government to default on purpose would be cutting off our nose to spite our face, and hurt the citizens of this country.

I say to my Republican colleague, how do you plan to explain this to your constituents? Do you think they will believe the political games are worth the increased costs? I sincerely doubt it. I want to say to my Republican colleagues, because so many of you have trifled with the idea of not paying our debts, if, God forbid, it happens—I hope it doesn’t, for the good of the country, but if it does, you will bear the blame. Not a single Democrat I am aware of has said we want to default. Many Republicans have said they want to default. So you do not have to be Albert Einstein or a Ph.D. in biophysics to know who is risking default, who is trifling with default, and who would cause default if, God forbid, we cannot come to an agreement.

Many on our side have said we are willing, if it comes to it, to raise the debt ceiling if we cannot come to an agreement because the consequences are so horrible. Not the other side—no. They are leveraging the default as a means to assert their beliefs, sincerely held. That is so wrong. But the good news is that the American people, and certainly the people who are following this issue, realize that. As we get closer and closer to the day of August 2 they will know who is willing to risk default to achieve political goals. They will know it is not the people from our side of the aisle. They will know it is the people from the other side of the aisle, and that will make problems Newt Gingrich faced in 1995—I believe it was when he shut down the government—look like child’s play. I would urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to rethink their position. The time has come for a little soul searching on the other side of the aisle. You must decide if you are willing to create another economic crisis to mollify an extreme wing of your party and score political points against the President. You must decide if you want to go down in history as the first generation of American leaders to renege on promises already made by Presidents and Congresses, Democratic and Republican alike. In the coming weeks my Republican friends will have to make a very serious decision. Are they going to get serious about working with us to find a bipartisan solution to our debt crisis or are they going to put partisan politics above the good of the country? Are they going to say it has to be our way, all the way, 100 percent, no reverses, or we are going to force the country to default? Or will they put the good of the country and compromise above narrow, ideological, often fear-driven politics?

In conclusion, I am an optimist. I believe my colleagues will come around and join us in finding a bipartisan way forward. I don’t base that on anything that has been said. I wish I could. I base it on my innate optimism that Americans, at the end of the day, are practical, problem-solving people, not people who look for self-destructive solutions. I ask my colleagues to come around, join us in a bipartisan solution. We are willing to give some. You should be willing to give some, but I can tell you, my friends, time is running out. I can only hope, the American people can only hope, you don’t wait too long.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I am on the floor this afternoon to talk about the issue not only of the day, the week, the month, the year, it is the issue about what to do about the deficit. Everyone around here knows that if we fail to raise the debt ceiling by the August 2 deadline, the United States will default on its loan payments. Defaulting could have catastrophic consequences on our economy as we attempt to recover from the worst economic recession since the Great Depression. Failing to raise the debt limit could send our economy into a tailspin with unthinkable results for the American people. With the stakes so high, we must ask ourselves: How did we get into this position? Or as my constituents back home in Alaska say: How did you get into this mess? Over the last decade, both sides of the aisle have played a role in this irresponsible spending that resulted in our current fiscal crisis. At the beginning of the last decade, we had a budget surplus—let me say that again—a budget surplus of $200 billion, with a projected surplus of $5 trillion for the next 10 years. By the time I took office in 2009, not only had our budget surplus disappeared, we faced a budget deficit of over $1 trillion.

The creditworthiness of the United States is in jeopardy. Some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle oppose raising the debt ceiling, citing the need to rein in reckless spending. While I support broad deficit reduction measures, I strongly disagree with those who fail to recognize consequences of failing to raise the debt limit and defaulting on our financial obligations. Everyone around here knows what will happen if we do not. For the first time ever the creditworthiness of the United States would be put in jeopardy. I want to step back for a second and remind everyone Congress has enacted measures on the Federal debt limit 74 times. So they obviously understand what will happen if the American government defaults on its payments. The ceiling has been increased by both Democratic and Republican administrations and Congress. George W. Bush’s first term in May of 2003 would increase the limit by $984 billion. In fact, Congress raised the debt ceiling seven times during his administration. The Senate Republicans provided the votes to raise the debt ceiling in 2002, 2003, 2004, and 2006. To keep a good credit rating is something the American people understand, and they are doing their very best during these hard times. I hear this all the time when we are back home.

While the American people understand that defaulting on our loans would only make matters worse, some Members of Congress insist on playing politics even during this economically uncertain time. If the U.S. Government defaults on its financial obligations, it would be the first time in history our credit would be downgraded. Let me repeat—never before have we let our creditworthiness be called into question. The consequences are large and somewhat unknown.

Let me take a little bit from what the Senator from New York talked about and expand on that, and that is: How does it affect the individual, the person working hard every day, paying their mortgage, driving to work, pumping gas in their car, going on a vacation, doing everyday things that Americans do in my State of Alaska, especially now they are out fishing, enjoying the summer. The kids are out of school, and the State fair is getting geared up in another month. What happens? Well, first off, if we default on our loans that are due, our obligations, some immediate things will probably happen.

First off, individuals who have credit cards will have their rates go up, because if you read the fine print of those great credit card bills we get every month, which are very small and very detailed, they talk about how the rate is structured. The rate is structured around what happens in the market. Obviously a lot of people today may have a good rate, 9 percent, 10 percent, but average is around 15 percent, 18 percent. That interest rate will go up. Home mortgage rates—if you have an adjustable rate mortgage, it will be adjusted up. If you are a small business person—as I have been, and am still today, my wife—there are many businesses that borrow on a 1-year, 2-year, 3-year loan, adjustable rate, maybe monthly, maybe it is an inventory loan because it is a seasonable business—all those rates will go up, assuming you can get a loan. When you drive your car and pump that gas and fill up your tank and you think prices are high now, oil commodities are traded in U.S. dollars. So the net effect is going to be that dollar is going to have less value, which means the price of the fuel will go up and what you pump into your car will increase.

Mr. President, 75 percent of world markets, transactions across this world are done in U.S. dollars. If you impact the creditworthiness of the country, the dollar has less credit behind it, which, of course, costs money, which means things we import such as fuel to operate our cars, energy to heat this building, to turn on these lights, go up. It has a real impact to individuals. It is not some global discussion here in the halls of Congress. It is not about just debt limit and GDP and all these other phrases that people kind of wonder what it means to them in their individual life, but it has a direct impact in their lives. What happens to their retirement funds? Their funds are invested in maybe U.S. Government securities. Well, they are going to see a change, a dramatic change. The American people, Alaskans, are already struggling. To add this additional burden because we are unable to sit down and work together and solve this problem in a cohesive, comprehensive way is irresponsible.

To my friends across the aisle, let me remind you of what President Reagan said in 1983 in a letter to then-Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker. He said it better than I think any of us could say, and this is directly from his letter:

The full consequences of default—or even the serious prospect of default—by the United States are impossible to predict and awesome to contemplate. Denigration of the full faith and credit of the United States would have substantial effects on the domestic financial markets and on the value of the dollar in exchange markets.

The Nation can ill afford to allow such a result. The risk, the costs, the disruptions and incalculable damage lead me to but one conclusion: the Senate must pass this legislation before Congress adjourns.

It is amazing I can take a quote such as this from history and transplant it today and it is the same situation.

At the same time as we deal with this, I feel strongly we must pass a deficit reduction measure. I have supported the deficit commission, the debt commission, and their efforts. I didn't agree with it all, but I agreed the $4 trillion mark should be it. We should try to do our best. In order to solve this problem, this challenge—and we all have our sides where we are kind of hunkered down. Every time I go back home—and I was back home this last weekend for my short 48 hours. I spend more time on the plane than staying at home at times. But when I get home, people say very simply to me, it is a combination. We are going to have to reduce the spending. I don't object to that. We are going to have to create a more fair tax system, which I don't object to. Along with Senator WYDEN and Senator COATS, I have introduced tax legislation that does that, simplifies individual rates, focuses on a growth agenda with our tax policy. It gets rid of the loopholes, tax havens that people take advantage of who pay no taxes but enjoy the great bounties of our country.

We also have to invest. We have to invest in a growth agenda. That means investing in infrastructure, in education. Because as you reduce your budget, which I don't disagree with, and as we create a more fair, balanced tax system, we have to do one of the most principled things and that is to continue to help grow this economy and we have to invest in our infrastructure, and invest in a variety of things that grow our economy.

This is an opportunity for us to put our country on sound financial footing by passing a broad deficit reduction measure that includes cost savings and increased revenues. When it comes to protecting America's economic security and improving fiscal responsibility, the time to act is now.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. PORTMAN. I rise today to talk about some of the enormous challenges facing our economy, about Washington's failure to address those challenges and a way forward. Today there are nearly 23 million Americans looking for full-time jobs. This includes people among those 9 percent of Americans on the unemployment rolls, but also includes a lot of Americans who want to work but have given up looking for work or are scraping by on part-time jobs when they want a full-time job. What makes it more troubling is that, among the Americans being counted in that 9 percent, the average length of time on the unemployment rolls is now nearly 10 months. That is the longest ever recorded. These folks are looking for help, looking to us for leadership and looking for us to help get the economy back on track by creating a better environment for job creation and economic growth. As we have heard from the two previous speakers, the government faces serious, unprecedented budgetary challenges. Washington is borrowing nearly 40 cents of every dollar it spends. It looks as if we may have another record deficit this year, and we will have the highest debt ever. Government spending has gone from $25,000 per household to more than $31,000 per household in the last 4 years. The national debt has doubled over the 2008 levels—doubled since 2008. We have hit this $14.3 trillion debt limit, and if we do nothing about it, we are going to end up with an economic crisis much like Greece is facing today.

I just listened to the comments of my colleague from New York and my friend from Alaska, and they are talking about the fact that interest rates might go up unless we vote to extend the debt limit. I am talking to a lot of economists and thinking about the impact it will have on Ohio if we don't do something about the deficit and debt. When we extend the debt limit again, interest rates will go up. The value of the dollar will continue to go down. Inflation will go up.

The point is not that we want to go into default—I hope nobody does in this Chamber. Despite what my friend and colleague from New York said, there is no Republican interest in defaulting on the debt. No one wants to default on the debt. But it is just the same as when we have a credit card in our families. Once we max out on the credit card, before we try to get a higher line of credit, we ought to look at the underlying problem, otherwise we will fall right back into the same financial problems. That is what Republicans are saying.

It is this: If we do not deal with the underlying problem, which is this huge fiscal imbalance we just talked about—a $14.3 trillion debt that has doubled since 2008—then we are going to find ourselves with a financial and economic problem that will result in a spike in interest rates and will result in this negative impact on all Americans via car loans, mortgages, and student loans.

So this is why it is so critical over the next few weeks as we work through this; That we deal with not just extending the debt limit—I guess that is a pretty easy thing to do, to just say let's go borrow more; we are already borrowing about 40 cents of every dollar—but we have to deal with the underlying problem.

So what are we doing in the Senate to deal with that underlying problem? Very little. This week we are debating a meaningless sense-of-the-Senate resolution. It is what is called a non-binding resolution. It will not create a single job or reform a single part of our tax code. It will not save $1 of government spending. It does nothing to address the debt limit. It is a distraction, and that is why earlier today I voted against proceeding to it. Serious times demand serious work.

I was pleased when the Senate came together to cancel this week's scheduled recess because we should be here. We pledged to return to Washington and to confront these economic challenges we talked about and the budget problems we face. I supported doing that, but this has not been a serious effort.

By the way, the Senate has not even passed a basic budget for this year. There is no budget, which is highly unusual. It also never passed a budget last year. So instead of talking about nonbinding resolutions, we should be talking about a budget. We should have a budget on the floor. We should be debating it. The other side will have their issues, and we will have issues to talk about. None of us will necessarily agree with one another on the precise provisions of a budget, and that is fine. Let's have the debate and end up with a blueprint for our spending going forward.

President Obama talks about getting involved and showing true leadership but, to be honest, he hasn't stepped to the plate. The best example would be his own budget. He is required by law to submit one every year. He did submit a budget. That budget was voted on by this Senate. Because we didn't have our own budget, we voted on his budget. It was unanimously rejected 97 to 0 partly because, as Democrats will say, a few weeks after he submitted the budget, he gave a speech where he said: My budget wasn't really adequate to the task. So he rejected his own budget, in a sense, but he offered no alternatives, no specifics.

His own budget, by the way, was so unserious that it doubled the debt over the next decade, and that is why, again, it was voted down by this Senate.

What is our budget? What do we believe in? We should have that debate.

We need to know what the numbers are; and what vision the President has for the next 10 years. That is what the budget is supposed to do. And, of course, we need to know what he will do to help grow the economy. In my view, getting the budget under control is a matter of restraining spending, but it is also a matter of growing the economy. If we don't grow the economy—and that will increase revenues, by growing the economy—we will not be able to get out of this deep fiscal hole we are in with record deficits, record debt, and, again, an increasing negative impact on our economy.

The lack of a true debate is not from a lack of ideas, by the way. Senate Republicans have developed a commonsense jobs plan, much of which I think should be and can be bipartisan. It includes a lot of commonsense ideas. One is to reform the Tax Code. Senator BEGICH from Alaska talked about that earlier. That is to make sure that our Tax Code works better for our economy; that it is simpler, that it encourages investment and job creation. Economists across the board would agree that our current code is inefficient. We should do that as a body. That will help develop the economy and jobs and economic activity which will increase revenue.

We need to rein in regulations. When I am home talking to small businesses, the first thing they talk to me about is the latest Federal regulation. A new one out today from the Environmental Protection Agency which is affecting my home State of Ohio is going to cost jobs at a time when we need jobs desperately. These are very specific proposals. Maybe they are not proposals everyone can agree to. What are the other side's proposals? Let's debate this issue. Let's pass legislation that forces a cost-benefit analysis of regulations. Let's be sure the regulators are using the least burdensome and least costly alternatives.

These are commonsense ideas: creating a competitive workforce to make sure we are competitive for the 21st century. This is incredibly important. Expanding exports to create more jobs. On energy, being sure we have the ability to get away from our dangerous dependence on foreign oil by developing more resources right here in this country. These are all commonsense proposals we should work on because they relate to the very issue we should be talking about this week, which is how to deal with our budget imbalance.

The proposal, by the way, also caps government spending. It says we need to have a balance between revenues and expenditures, which is only common sense because until we get the fiscal house in order it is going to be very difficult to get our economy moving. It is like a wet blanket over the economy creating uncertainty and unpredictability.

On the budget, let's be clear. The long-term problem is from soaring spending, not falling revenues. This is from the Congressional Budget Office. It is a nonpartisan group. Their job is to give us the data to tell us what is going to happen with spending and with revenues. This is what they tell us.

Even if we keep current tax rates for everybody—in other words, don't get rid of the so-called Bush tax cuts—revenues are still expected to rebound above the historical average of 18 percent of the economy. If, in fact, the Bush tax cuts do not get extended, which is current law—right now they are expected to end at the end of next year—those tax revenues will be well above the historic average. Instead of 18 percent, they get up over the next several years to about 20 percent. Over the last 50 years, it has been about 18 percent. The deficit is rising not because of lack of revenue but because spending is now at 24.5 to 25 percent of our economy as compared to its historical level over the last 50 years of 20.3 percent of the economy.

What is going to happen? Well, CBO has it right there. It is projected to rise on the spending side to 26 percent of the economy over the next several years; then 30, then 40, then 50 percent of the economy on spending alone. We talked earlier about the fact that we have gone from $25,000 per household government spending to $31,000 per household in the last 4 years alone. That spending is projected to grow and grow. If we don't deal with that spending we will never be able to get the budget in balance. That is the top issue. Again, we have to face this before we extend the debt limit again. If we don't, there will be major economic problems.

Look at what Standard & Poor's and Moody's and Fitch—the so-called credit agencies—are telling us. They are saying: Yes, default would be a terrible thing. Let's not default. But they are also saying: If we don't deal with the fiscal imbalance, if we don't deal with the record deficits and debts, there will be major and negative impacts on the economy, and they will be in a position where they may downgrade our debt, which means higher interest rates.

Having tax rates chase spending is not the solution. It will not balance the budget. Moreover, it will not spur this sputtering economy to grow and to create the jobs we talk about today. It will not work to get us back to work. In fact, virtually all economic theories agree that tax increases harm economic growth. When we tax something, people do less of it. That is why we tax smoking. So if we want economic growth, the last thing we should do is to raise taxes on working, raise taxes on savings, raise taxes on investment. These are not the ways to get the economy moving again. Instead, we should be unleashing American entrepreneurs, not putting more taxes on them.

Some suggest we must choose between creating jobs and reining in government. My view is that the opposite is true. Reining in government can help create jobs. The less the government spends, the more money remains in the private sector for families and entrepreneurs to spend. The less the government borrows, the more savings are available for businesses to borrow in order to expand, as well as for families to borrow for a new home, a new car, or a student loan. Think about it. The government borrowing all this money is like a big sponge soaking up our savings. Today, we are borrowing, again, more than 40 cents of every dollar the government spends. That is harming the economy. Reducing the deficit also reduces the risk of a debt-induced financial crisis that might otherwise dwarf what we have seen happening in Greece today.

But don't take my word for it. Lots of economists have looked at this. There is a great study out there that I encourage people to look at. It is done by the economists Ken Rogoff and Carmen Reinhart. Rogoff and Reinhart do something very simple. They go around the world and look at different economies and determine what happens when their debt gets too big for their economy. Their view is that when the debt gets to 90 percent of the size of a nation's economy, it has a substantial negative impact on the economic growth and jobs in that country.

Their data suggests that when the debt gets to 90 percent of the economy, there is a 1-percent reduction in economic growth rates. So instead of our economy growing at 1.8 percent in the first quarter, it should have grown at 2.8 percent. What does that mean? That 1-percent growth would otherwise mean 1 million jobs.

So if we didn't have this huge debt—and right now it is about 93 percent of our economy; it will be at 100 percent of the economy this year—then we would have more jobs. If we look at what Rogoff and Reinhart have said, it means we would have about 1 million more jobs in this country. Could we use those jobs? Yes. We need them desperately.

So there is a connection between this overspending—and this huge gap we have between revenues and spending—and our ability to get this economy back on track.

Over 25 years, by the way, annual growth rates 1 percent lower would leave the economy nearly one-fourth smaller than it would otherwise be. Think about that: a 25-percent reduction in the size of the economy as a result of this debt.

In order to create jobs and growth, we have to balance the budget, and we have to reduce that debt that is now over 90 percent of our economy. There are two ways to reduce the debt's share of the economy: One is to make the debt smaller, and the other is to make the economy larger. We know raising taxes will shrink the economy. Instead, we have to keep tax rates low to create jobs and expand the economy, and we have to reform the Tax Code so it works better.

Again, economists across the spectrum will tell us we can have a better economy if we have a more sensible Tax Code. We must also responsibly reduce government spending, of course, to rein in the debt. Low tax rates and spending restraint will bring prosperity and alleviate this immoral avalanche of debt that we are otherwise leaving in the laps of our children and grandchildren.

I understand some of my colleagues have their own approaches to this—to jobs, to the economy, to the budget deficit. That is fine. Let's have the debate. There are numerous proposals in Congress to reduce spending, balance the budget, and reform entitlements. Instead of voting on political non-binding resolutions as we have done this week in the Senate, let's have that debate. We have too many important issues. Let's stop fiddling while Rome burns.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, as we discuss the need to bring down the deficit, we should acknowledge a few basics. First is cannot achieve the deficit reduction we need with spending cuts to nondefense discretionary programs alone. They simply aren't large enough to make the difference we need, and the damage we would do to American families from drastic cuts in those programs is simply too great.

Second is that in light of those facts and in the interest of basic fairness, a balanced solution to deficit spending must include revenues as well as spending cuts. If we ask college students relying on Federal aid, workers in need of Federal job training, seniors in need of health care to sacrifice in the name of deficit reduction, so, too, should those who benefit from loopholes and handouts in the Tax Code, including loopholes that often benefit only highly profitable corporations, one of those huge loopholes that benefits corporations that dole out large stock option pay to their executives.

Current law provides an unwarranted tax subsidy to executive stock option compensation thereby increasing the tax burden on working families and increasing our deficit. According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, closing this loophole would reduce the deficit by about $25 billion.

Today, under tax rules for reporting stock options, corporations report stock option expenses on their books when those stock options are granted but use another method to claim a different and a typically much higher expense on their tax returns when the stock options are exercised. The result is, corporations can claim larger tax deductions for options on their tax returns than the actual expense they show on their books for those same options.

Stock options are the only type of compensation where the Tax Code allows a corporation to deduct more than the expense shown on their books. For all other types of compensation—cash, stock, bonuses, and others—the tax return deduction equals the book expense. In fact, if corporations deducted on their tax returns more than their books showed as compensation, it could constitute tax fraud. The sole exception to that rule is stock options. It is an exception we can no longer afford.

The Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, which I chair, held a hearing in June of 2007, when we examined the stock option tax gap in detail at nine companies. We found that those nine companies claimed tax deductions that were a combined $1 billion greater than the expenses shown on their books. Let me repeat, just nine companies, $1 billion in excess tax deductions.

We were shocked by that finding, and we asked the IRS to calculate the stock option tax gap for the country as a whole. Using actual data from tax returns, the IRS found that for the first full year in which data was available, U.S. companies claimed an excess of $61 billion in stock option tax deductions compared to their book expenses. Since then, IRS data shows that the stock option tax gap has persisted for 5 years. They looked at 2005 to 2009, which was the latest year for which data was available, with the size of the excess tax deductions varying from $11 billion to $52 billion per year. These excessive deductions mean billions of dollars in reduced taxes for corporations wealthy enough to provide substantial stock option compensation to their already well-paid executives and all at the expense of ordinary taxpayers and an increase in the deficit.

It is a tax loophole that is fueling excessive executive pay, increasing the pay gap between millionaires and the middle class, and enabling profitable corporations to avoid paying their fair share to reduce the deficit.

I will soon be reintroducing the same legislation I have introduced in past years to end this misalignment of the Tax Code.

The bill would cure the problem simply by requiring the corporate stock option tax deduction to equal the stock option expense shown on the corporate books. It would not affect the taxes paid by individuals who receive the stock options. It would not affect so-called incentive stock options which receive favored tax treatment under section 422 of the Tax Code and are often used by startup companies.

In addition, the bill would make stock options pay subject to the same $1 million cap on corporate tax deductions that applies to other forms of executive pay. Congress established that $1 million cap so that taxpayers would not have to subsidize enormous paychecks for executives. But the cap can't end that tax subsidy without including stock options. Even if included under the cap, stock options could still be awarded in excess of $1 million, but not at the expense of ordinary taxpayers.

I do not know of any Senator who does not want to reduce the budget deficit. I do not know of any Senator who believes it is wise to subsidize executive paychecks at the expense of working families. But as it now stands, the excessive corporate tax deduction for stock option pay widens the deficit while increasing the tax burden on ordinary taxpayers. By closing this tax gap, by ending the illogical treatment of corporate stock options in current law, we can reduce the budget deficit and bring much-needed fairness to the Tax Code.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to proceed as in morning business for 8 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AHMED WARSAME

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Department of Justice announced earlier this week that Ahmed Abdulkadir Warsame, an accused member of the terrorist group Al-Shabaab, has been indicted on charges of providing material support to Al-Shabaab and al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula, conspiring to teach and demonstrate the making of explosives, possessing firearms and explosives in furtherance of crimes of violence, and other violations of Federal law. He will be tried for these offenses in Federal court in New York.

Warsame is a Somali national who was captured in the gulf region in late April and taken to a U.S. Navy vessel for detention and interrogation. The Department of Defense has stated that the interrogation was conducted by an interagency team comprised of U.S. military personnel, with assistance from the High-Value Detainee Interrogation Group. After the completion of this interrogation and a hiatus of several days, Warsame was turned over to a team of FBI officials for law enforcement questioning, and in that he waived his Miranda rights and continued to talk.

This case appears to be an example of our national security and law enforcement teams working together in the manner we would hope they would toward the twin objectives of collecting critical intelligence information and ensuring a successful criminal prosecution of the detainee.

Published reports indicate that Warsame was captured by American military forces on a boat in international waters between Yemen and Somalia after the United States acquired intelligence indicating that a significant terrorist figure was on board the vessel. Under these circumstances, it was appropriate for the military to detain and interrogate Warsame to obtain actionable intelligence. The United States is currently engaged in military operations pursuant to the 2001 Authorization for Use of Military Force. As the Supreme Court held 7 years ago in the case of Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, the capture and detention of both lawful and unlawful combatants is a "fundamental and accepted . . . incident to war." I understand these interrogations were conducted in a manner fully consistent with the interrogation techniques authorized under the Army Field Manual on interrogations.

Once our national security team determined that the collection of actionable intelligence had been completed, a separate decision was made, on the basis of the specific facts of this case, as to the best forum in which to prosecute Warsame for his alleged crimes.

The indictment sets forth evidence that Warsame violated a number of Federal statutes, including sections of the Criminal Code prohibiting trafficking in explosives, use of dangerous weapons, acts of international terrorism, providing material support to foreign terrorist organizations, and receiving military-type training from foreign terrorist organizations—making him a candidate for prosecution in a Federal court with jurisdiction over such violations.

Warsame also appears to have engaged in acts of terrorism and material support to terrorism, both of which are crimes under the Military Commissions Act, if they are committed "in the context of and associated with hostilities" against the United States. What has not been resolved is whether Warsame meets the jurisdictional threshold in the Military Commissions Act of having acted in the context of hostilities against the United States and having engaged in or materially supported such hostilities.

The administration's national security team unanimously agreed that prosecution in Federal court was the better option and the one most likely to lead to a conviction under the facts of this case. Our Federal prosecutors and Federal courts have a proven track record in prosecuting terrorists. Two years ago, the Justice Department informed us that there were 208 inmates in Federal prisons who had been sentenced for crimes related to international terrorism and an additional 139 inmates who had been sentenced for crimes related to domestic terrorism. By contrast, prosecution of the Warsame case before a military commission would have raised a difficult jurisdictional issue that could have resulted in dismissal or even acquittal.

Critics of the decision to try Warsame in Federal court apparently would prefer that he be tried before a military commission, even though he might be less likely to be convicted there due to the jurisdictional issue. I disagree with that position. In my view, the most appropriate forum for trial should be determined, as it was here, on the basis of the nature of the offense, the nature of the evidence, and the likelihood of successful prosecution. The executive branch officials who made the determination in this case are in a much better position to weigh those factors and make that judgment than is the Congress.

By the way, the approach taken by the administration in this case is consistent with the bipartisan detainee provisions included in the National Defense Authorization Act, as reported by the Senate Armed Services Committee last month.

Those provisions would authorize military detention for enemy belligerents captured in the course of hostilities authorized by the 2001 Authorization for Use of Military Force. That authority appropriately encompasses the detention of an individual like Warsame, who is suspected of participation in such hostilities, until such time as the military has been able to interrogate the detainee and make an appropriate status determination. While we may not have enough evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Warsame participated in hostilities against the United States, we undoubtedly had sufficient evidence to hold him for the time required to interrogate him and obtain the intelligence that our military needs.

The provisions in the Senate Armed Services Committee-reported bill would also expressly authorize the transfer of such a detainee "for trial by an alternative court or competent tribunal having lawful jurisdiction." Indeed, an amendment to delete this authority was defeated in committee by a bipartisan vote of 7 to 19. We decided, in other words, to leave it up to executive branch officials to determine on a case-by-case basis, as they did here, the most appropriate forum for prosecution, whether it be a Federal court or a military commission.

By contrast, the House version of the defense authorization bill includes a provision that would expressly prohibit the trial in Federal court of any alleged foreign terrorist who might be subject to trial by a military commission—even if he is arrested inside the United States. This provision may well be unconstitutional, given that article III of the U.S. Constitution expressly states that:

The judicial power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority.

Under the plain language of this provision, Congress would appear to lack the authority to exclude the prosecution of violations of the laws of the United States in the Federal courts.

The effort to direct all terrorist cases to military commissions could also be highly counterproductive, providing jurisdictional arguments that defendants could use to seek the dismissal of charges against them. If the House language were adopted, a case in Federal court on a terrorism charge would be at risk of being dismissed on the grounds that it could only have been brought before a military commission, while at the same time, because of the limited jurisdiction of military commissions, the military commission might not have jurisdiction either. In such a case, it would be impossible to prosecute an alleged terrorist in any forum. The critics of the Department of Justice decision should end their effort to score political points here. The stakes are too high, and if the critics get their way, we might not be able to try some terrorists at all—anywhere.

Some may contend that holding alleged terrorists in the United States for trial could needlessly subject Americans to retaliatory attacks by terrorist organizations. There is no basis for that argument. We have tried hundreds of alleged terrorists in our Federal courts over the last decade. We are currently holding many more—including the Christmas Day bomber, who is being held in my hometown of Detroit. So far as I know, none of these cases have led to retaliatory attacks by terrorist organizations. In any event, we know that al-Qaida and its allies are already seeking avenues to attack us on American soil and would do so if they could. Moving the location of a trial to Guantanamo or some other foreign location is unlikely to deter such an attack.

Last month, ADM William McRaven—the President's nominee to be commander of U.S. Special Operations Command—testified before our Armed Services Committee that a suspected enemy belligerent detained outside the war zones in Afghanistan and Iraq would likely be put on a naval vessel until “we can prosecute that individual in a U.S. court or we can return him to a third party country.” Admiral McRaven made it clear later in his testimony that such an individual could also be transferred for trial by a military commission. In other words, we have a choice. We should preserve that choice.

In summary, the Warsame case demonstrates that we do have the capacity to detain and interrogate suspected terrorists in military custody for the purpose of obtaining actionable intelligence, and then to transfer them to an appropriate forum for trial—whether it be a Federal court or a military commission. This case demonstrates that we do not have to sacrifice actionable intelligence for law enforcement purposes, and that we do not have to sacrifice criminal prosecution in order to collect intelligence information. And it demonstrates that we can pursue both of these objectives without being pushed to what Admiral McRaven described as the “unenviable option” of having to release the detainee.

The only “unenviable” outcome is the one that the critics of the Department of Justice decision would lead us to—prohibiting the criminal trial of suspected foreign terrorists in Federal court and requiring them to be tried by military commissions, even in cases like the Warsame case, where a jurisdictional problem might lead a military commission to dismiss the case.

The action of the administration in the Warsame case is sound. The prosecutorial discretion they exercised as to the best forum for the trial should be preserved and should not be interfered with by the Congress.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BINGAMAN). The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. President, I rise, along with my fellow colleagues, to again address the need to reduce our deficit and our debt. The United States is the strongest country in the world—in the history of the world—but that will not be the case for long if we do not solve our deficit and our debt crisis. It is vital we solve it now for our generation, but it is vital we solve it for future generations as well.

The wealth, the economic activity of this country, is created by the private sector, by hard-working men and women, not by the government. The government creates the forum, the environment, if you will, that fosters or allows economic activity. But the key is, the government should not just allow economic activity, the government needs to create an environment that truly empowers, that promotes economic activity, that encourages private investment, that encourages entrepreneurship, business expansion and job growth, innovation—the very entrepreneurial activity that has built this country. That is the success of America, that is the strength of our country, that is how America has become the greatest economic powerhouse in the history of the world. That is why our people enjoy the highest standard of living.

But our current administration believes more government is the answer—more spending, more regulation, and more taxes. It is not the answer. That is the problem, and it is making the situation worse.

Let's go through just some of the economic statistics.

Today, we have 13.9 million—almost 14 million—people unemployed. The unemployment rate is over 9 percent. Gas prices, since the current administration took office, are up to more than $3.50 a gallon. That is almost a 100-percent increase in the cost of gasoline. Our Federal debt is closing in on $14.5 trillion. For every man, woman, and child in this country, that is almost $50,000 for every single person. We have 45 million people on food stamps today. Health insurance. In spite of the health insurance legislation, health insurance premiums are rising, and home values are going down.

Clearly, we need to get our economy going. We need to get people back to work. We need that economic growth and dynamism that has been the hallmark of this country.

Clearly, we need to reduce our deficit and our debt. The reality is, we can do it. We absolutely can do it, and we have done it before. But we need to begin with a comprehensive plan to reduce the deficit and the debt. Any agreement to raise the debt ceiling needs to include a comprehensive agreement to reduce the deficit and the debt.

By a comprehensive agreement, I mean something that includes a balanced budget amendment, reduction in spending, and living within our means on an ongoing basis. It means reforming entitlement programs to save them from bankruptcy, not only to protect our seniors today but to make sure those programs are solvent and there for future generations.

All these things and more can go into a comprehensive plan. But we need a comprehensive plan to reduce the deficit, to reduce the debt as part of the debt ceiling issue we need to deal with now—not put off but deal with now.

If we think about it, a balanced budget amendment makes sense. Forty-nine of the fifty States—49 out of 50 States—have either a constitutional or a statutory requirement that they balance their budget—not just this year but every year. States balance their budgets. Cities balance their budgets. Businesses balance their budgets. Families balance their budgets, live within their means. Our Federal Government needs to do the same. Our Federal Government needs that fiscal responsibility, needs that fiscal discipline.

Also, if we think about it, a balanced budget amendment gets everybody involved. It gets everybody involved in Congress. It takes a two-thirds majority in both the Senate and the House to pass a balanced budget amendment. Then what happens? It goes out to the States. It goes out to the 50 States, and three-fourths of the States must ratify that balanced budget amendment in order for it to be approved. So we not only have everybody at the Federal level working to live within our means and balance the budget, but we get all the States involved as well.

This is a challenging problem—no question about it—getting on top of these deficits and our long-term debt not only now but for the future as well. So let's have everyone involved. A balanced budget amendment will do just that.

Of course, at the same time, we have to reduce our spending both now and make sure we continue to live within our means going forward. The statistics are very clear. The statistics right now show that this year the Federal Government will take in about $2.2 trillion in revenue.

So our revenue is about $2.2 trillion, but our expenses are $3.7 trillion. That is about a $1.5 trillion deficit. This year, actually, it will be larger than that number. So you can see that is why our Federal debt now is closing in on $14.5 trillion. We are borrowing 40 cents of every dollar we spend—40 cents of every dollar we spend—and every single day our debt goes up $4 billion. That is simply unsustainable.

That is why any vote to increase the debt ceiling must include a comprehensive plan to reduce our deficit and our debt. No question, we need to control spending, but as we do that, at the same time, in order to truly solve the problem, we have to create, as I said at the outset, a government environment that not only encourages government investment but empowers private investment across our Nation.

This next chart shows some of the challenges—barriers, if you will—to doing that. We need legal, tax, and regulatory certainty to encourage private investment. A probusiness, progrowth, projobs environment is one that creates legal, tax, and regulatory certainty to not only encourage but empower private investment.

One of the ways we do this is by reducing the regulatory burden. We have an incredible regulatory burden at the Federal level. We need to find ways to reduce that. That is what this chart shows.

Earlier this year, President Obama issued an Executive order that proposes to review regulations that may be outmoded, ineffective, insufficient, or excessively burdensome, and also to modify, streamline, or even repeal them. Just a week ago, he said again:

What I have done—and this is unprecedented—is I have said to each agency, look at the regulations that are already on the books, and if they don't make sense, let's get rid of them.

That is what he said. I absolutely agree with that. Yet, over the past 2 years, the administration has issued 502 proposed or enacted regulations and is on pace this year to exceed $100 billion in total regulatory cost burdens to industry. That is a huge regulatory burden.

This chart shows the cost of major new regulations in billions of dollars over the last 30 years. As you can see, when the cost of regulation is low, the economy is strong, and when the cost of regulation is high, as it is now, the economy is weak; more important, job growth is weak. Look at 2010. In 2010, you see the highest regulatory burden, in adjusted dollars, in the last 30 years. How did our economy do in 2010?

Senator ROBERTS, my colleague from Kansas, myself, and others have taken the President up on his pledge to review these regulations. We have introduced the Regulatory Responsibility For Our Economy Act, a measure that would give teeth to the President's directive. Regulators will have to show the benefits of a new rule and show that the benefits outweigh its cost. They will have to show that it imposes the least burden on society and that it maximizes economic benefits. That is an approach which would not only encourage but truly empower private investment.

Let me give you another example of what I am talking about with the regulatory burden—again, trying to create that legal and tax certainty that stimulates the private investment we need to get this economy going, not more government spending. We are spending way beyond our means. What I mean is, more private investment that gets this economy going, gets people back to work, and generates revenue, which will help us, over time, reduce our debt.

When we talk about onerous regulations, a key area of the economy that is incredibly overburdened and where we see a prevention of investment because of the regulatory burden is the energy industry.

My next chart illustrates the long reach of the EPA and how it is sidelining and dampening job growth in the energy sector. It shows a long, complex obstacle course, if you will, of expensive standards and procedures and regulations that are not only being implemented now but will go on for the foreseeable future.

How would you like to be an energy company looking at investing and putting hundreds of millions, billions of dollars into new plants and investments, whether it is producing oil and gas, whether it is biofuels or biomass—you name it—how would you like to make those investments on behalf of your shareholders and have some idea what rate of return you are going to be able to get and what rules of the road you are going to have to follow?

This is just a small sampling of the regulations that are now coming into being and will continue to come into place for the foreseeable future. At a time of high oil prices, unrest in the Middle East, and sluggish economic growth, we are not only failing to provide Americans with affordable energy for their homes and vehicles, but we are actually discouraging the very investment that will make it happen, and this is just one small example.

To remedy that, we need new legislation. I know the occupant of the chair and others are working on a lot of new legislation that will streamline regulations and encourage investment.

I will give just a couple of examples. One of them I am working on with Senator JOE MANCHIN from West Virginia. He introduced it, and it is called the EPA Fair Play Act. It would prohibit rescinding properly approved 404 permits. When EPA approves a 404 permit for mining, it says you can't arbitrarily withdraw that permit. So a company that has invested millions or billions of dollars can't find itself high and dry after it has already gotten the proper permit.

Another example of legislation that we have introduced that would make a difference is Defending America's Affordable Energy and Jobs Act. The primary sponsor of that is Senator JOHN BARRASSO of Wyoming. This legislation ensures that Congress makes the call on regulating greenhouse gases, not the EPA through regulatory fiat.

Another example is the Gas Accessibility and Stabilization Act, which I am pleased to cosponsor with Senator ROY BLUNT of Missouri and others, which will simplify the complex rules and regulations that govern refining and distribution of fuel throughout the United States.

There are many other examples I could give as well.

The point is, with 14 million Americans out of work, we can no longer delay. It is not just regulations, it is legal, tax, and regulatory certainty that will empower investment by entrepreneurs and companies all over this great Nation.

We don't just have to talk about regulations. Let's talk about trade for a minute. Right now, we have three trade agreements pending: the United States-South Korea Free Trade Agreement, the free-trade agreement with Panama, and another one with Colombia. These agreements have been pending since 2007. The benefit of these agreements, for example, is that they would generate more than $13 billion a year in economic activity for this country and create up to 250,000 American jobs. If we fail to act, we will lose on the order of 380,000 jobs to the European Union and Canada, which have already approved their trade agreements. Why aren't we dealing with those trade agreements now, when we have 14 million people out of work, when we have an economy we need to get going, and when we have huge deficits and debt, increasing at the rate of $4 billion a day?

Well, the deadline on the debt limit is fast approaching. The time to act is now. The simple truth is this: We cannot continue to spend more, tax more, and regulate more. It is time to control our spending and create an environment that unleashes the entrepreneurial power and spirit of the American people. We can do it. In fact, we have done it before. We just need the will to act for ourselves today and for the benefit of future generations.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, let me begin by referring to the front page of today's Washington Post. The headline is "Obama: Social Security on table. Cuts offered in debt talks."

Mr. President, I hope very much that headline is wrong because, in fact, Social Security, which is perhaps the most successful Federal program in the history of our country, has not contributed one penny to our deficit or our national debt. The idea of lumping Social Security and cuts in Social Security into a discussion about our deficit and our national debt is absolutely wrong and unfair to the tens of millions of seniors and people with disabilities who benefit from that program.

As you know and as the American people know, Social Security is independently funded through the payroll tax. Every worker and every employer contributes into that fund. Social Security, today, has a $2.6 trillion surplus that is projected, in fact, to grow to over $4 trillion by 2023.

We, of course, need a vigorous debate about how we deal with the deficit crisis and our national debt, but Social Security, independently funded, with a $2.6 trillion surplus, having not contributed one nickel to the national debt, should not be part of that debate.

I understand there are many people in the Senate—many of my Republican colleagues—who do not like Social Security, who do not believe in Social Security because, essentially, they do not believe the government should be involved in retirement insurance for seniors or people with disabilities. I respect their point of view. I very strongly disagree with it.

The real problem they have is that Social Security is enormously popular. Poll after poll shows that the American people do not want to see Social Security cut, they do not want to see the retirement age raised, and they most certainly do not want to see Social Security privatized because, in fact, Social Security has succeeded. It has accomplished the goals of those people who founded that program in the 1930s. In the 1930s, about half of America's senior citizens lived in poverty. Today, that number, while it is too high, is down to 10 percent. More important, given the incredible instability in the economy we have seen for decades—especially in the last few years—where millions of people have lost some or all of the retirement savings they had invested in Wall Street, over the last 75 years, not one American has lost one dime he or she was entitled to in terms of Social Security benefits. That is a pretty good record—every American, getting every penny that was owed to him or her for 75 years. It is a program that has worked. It is a program that is working today. It is a program that can pay out every benefit owed to every eligible American for the next 25 years. It is a program that should not be cut.

But more to the point, in terms of President Obama, one of the problems we have as a nation is that it is no great secret that many of our people are losing faith in government, for a whole lot of reasons. But certainly one of the reasons is that politicians say one thing and they do something else. They campaign on a certain promise, they give a speech, everybody applauds, and 2 years later: Well, I guess I have to change my mind; I can't quite do this.

Let's be clear: When President Obama ran for the Presidency in 2008, he was a strong advocate of Social Security. He made it very clear to the American people he was not going to cut benefits. Let me quote from a speech the President gave—he was then-Senator Barack Obama—on September 6, 2008. This is what he said:

John McCain's campaign has suggested that the best answer for the growing pressures on Social Security might be to cut cost-of-living adjustments or raise the retirement age. Let me be clear: I will not do either.

"I will not do either." Today's Washington Post: Obama: Social Security on table. Cuts offered in debt talks.

Mr. President, on April 16, 2008, candidate Obama said:

The alternatives, like raising the retirement age, or cutting benefits, or raising the payroll tax on everybody, including people making less than $97,000 a year—

And that is now up to $106,000 a year—

those are not good policy options.

On November 11, 2007, candidate Obama said:

I believe that cutting [Social Security] benefits is not the right answer; and that raising the retirement age is not the best option.

The American people expect the President of the United States to keep his word.

Now, again, I am not privileged to the discussions that may be going on right this moment in the White House about some grand national debt negotiations. All I can tell you—and it may be accurate, it may not; the media has been wrong once or twice in history—is that according to today's Washington Post, the President is considering lowering cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security recipients, even though, by the way, Social Security recipients have not received a COLA in the last 2 years.

So let's be clear: Today, despite significant inflation on health care costs and prescription drugs, the fact that seniors have not received a COLA in 2 years, the fact veterans have not received a COLA in 2 years, apparently, the President, in negotiating with Republicans, is considering lowering COLAs in the future.

It is important to understand what that means. According to the Strengthen Social Security Campaign, which is a coalition of senior groups who are working hard to protect Social Security, changing the way Social Security cost-of-living adjustments are calculated—as the President may be considering—and again, I do not want to make a definitive statement. All I am doing is telling you what is on the Washington Post's front page today. Is it true? I can't say. But if it is true, this would cost senior citizens hundreds of dollars a year in lower benefits.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the adoption of the so-called "Chained CPI"—and this is a different formulation. I happen to believe, and I have introduced legislation to this effect, the current COLAs for seniors are not accurate and are too low because they do not, in a realistic way, measure what seniors are purchasing, which, to a significant degree has to do with health care and prescription drugs. When you are old, you are not primarily buying laptop computers or big television sets. You are often spending a lot of your money on health care, prescription drugs, and those costs are going up. So I think today's COLA is too low and it does not reflect the real purchasing needs of seniors.

According to the CBO, if in fact the government adopted the so-called "Chained-CPI"—which is a different formulation that is even lower than the current inadequate formulation—annual COLAs under this proposal would cut benefits by $112 billion over 10 years.

Here is the important point for individuals. The Social Security Administration Chief Actuary estimates the effects of this change would be that beneficiaries who retire at the age of 65 and receive average benefits would get $560 less a year at age 75 than they would under current law and get $1,000 less a year at age 85.

People are living longer. Many of our people, God bless them, reach 75, even reach 85. To say to somebody when they reach 85, and they don't have a whole lot of money, that as a result of these cuts they will get $1,000 a year less is totally, to my mind, unacceptable and not something that should be supported by the President or by any Member of the Senate.

The American people, despite what many of my Republican friends are saying, are pretty clear on some basic issues regarding how we address the serious problem of our national debt and our deficit. What the American people say in poll after poll after poll—and they say it to me on the streets in Burlington, VT, or any other place in Vermont that I go—is that we must have shared sacrifice; that at a time when poverty is increasing in this country, when we have the highest rate of childhood poverty in the industrialized world, when millions of workers are working longer hours for lower wages, when unemployment is sky high, when seniors have not received a COLA in 2 years, when young people are finding it hard to get any jobs at all, it is immoral and bad economics to do deficit reduction on the backs of those people—of working families, of children, of the elderly, of the sick, of the poor.

Overwhelmingly, the American people say that is wrong, especially at a time when the wealthiest people have never had it so good and when corporate profits are soaring.

Mr. President, you may have seen an article on the front page of the New York Times a few days ago. Last year

CEOs of major corporations have seen a 23-percent increase in their compensation packages—23 percent. We are in the midst of a horrendous recession, where real wages for American workers are going down, but CEOs are doing great, Wall Street is doing great, corporate profits are soaring, and we have dozens of corporations that make huge profits and don't pay a nickel in taxes.

We have a military budget that is three times higher than it was in 1997. So the vast majority of the people say—and they say it in polls all over the place—we need to go forward with shared sacrifice. Not as the Republicans suggest—cutting programs for the most vulnerable people in this country, throwing millions of kids off Medicaid, ending Medicare as we know it now, and making it impossible for working class families to send their kids to college. That is not what the American people are saying.

A recent survey by Public Policy Polling in swing States asked the questions. When voters in Ohio—this is just the other day this came out—were asked this spring if they would support or oppose cutting spending of Social Security to reduce the national debt, only 16 percent favored that approach compared to 80 percent who were opposed, with similar, identical results, or very close results in States such as Missouri, Montana, and Minnesota. That was just out in the papers yesterday. Meanwhile, strong majorities, including Republicans, favor increased revenue from the wealthiest Americans and most profitable corporations being a part of any deficit reduction package.

So let me conclude by saying that I hope very much President Obama does not reach any agreement with the Republicans which includes cuts in Social Security. Social Security has not contributed one nickel to our national debt. It is a successful program and widely supported by the American people who are benefiting from it every single day. More to the point, President Obama, when he campaigned for office, made it clear when he told the American people if he was elected President he would not be cutting Social Security, and the American people expect him to keep his word.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, yesterday I spoke about the matter of tax expenditures, and I would like to expand on that topic today. They are becoming a critical issue in negotiations over the debt ceiling.

First, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to finish my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, Democrats say they want to eliminate tax expenditures. They refer to them as loopholes or spending through the Tax Code. This might be a good political argument, but it bears little relationship to the understanding of tax expenditures and tax law or tax policy.

Yesterday, I outlined a general definition of tax expenditures. They are most definitely not spending through the Tax Code, as President Obama so creatively put it, and they are most definitely not, by and large, loopholes. Rather, they were intentionally included in the Tax Code by Congress in order to realize certain policy goals.

Tax expenditures are an opportunity for families and businesses to keep more of their income. Unfortunately, rather than have a serious conversation about tax expenditures and tax policy, President Obama and his liberal allies are intent on setting new ground for juvenile public discourse.

Faced with a $14.3 trillion debt—and going up every day—Social Security and Medicare Programs that are set for bankruptcy—ruining America's seniors—and a legitimate fiscal crisis that poses a clear and present danger to the Nation's security and the security of America's families and businesses, President Obama is again talking about shared sacrifice. Well, I like the term. The only thing is, I would prefer to have shared prosperity because all we are going to get out of this administration is shared sacrifice, which means everybody is going to suffer. I would like to have shared prosperity where everybody is lifted.

The first time we really started hearing about this concept of shared sacrifice was in the debate over ObamaCare. For those who are unfamiliar with Washington-speak, this is what the President meant by shared sacrifice: I am going to raise taxes on families and businesses by over  $\frac{1}{2}$  trillion, and I am going to do it by shaking down businesses.

He made them an offer they couldn't refuse: Pay up now or pay up more later. So when we started hearing again about shared sacrifice, we knew what was coming: more proposals for tax increases. But I have to say I remain shocked at how ham-fisted most of these proposals are. They are nothing but a series of bad talking points that can be used for the President's reelection campaign. These talking points were tired by the end of the 1936 Presidential election.

I would not be surprised to see President Obama dust off Franklin Roosevelt's speeches and start railing against economic royalists by the end of the debt limit negotiations.

Sadly, the Senate's leadership has followed suit. After making a big to-do about keeping the Senate in session to address the fiscal crisis, we are spending this week debating a nonbinding resolution demanding higher taxes on millionaires. Really? The Democrats' solution to $14.3 trillion in debt is to attack corporate jets. Seriously? Three billion dollars over ten years. The last time they did that, they wound up with their tails between their legs in 1990, and in 1993 had to reverse the whole thing because it cost thousands of jobs.

I never underestimate liberals' lack of respect for the intelligence of the American people, but this is a new low. Do they think that ordinary Americans are so consumed with class hatred that they will respond like Pavlovian dogs to the criticism of corporate jets, and forget that it was programmatic liberalism, not bonus depreciation of corporate jets or tax benefits to energy companies, that got us into this debt crisis?

This is how the left perceives Republicans. They want to score some cheap points against Republicans by going after corporate jets, as though all Republicans love corporate jets. I would venture to say that an awful lot of corporate jets are owned by very wealthy Democrats. What are we going to get next week, a tax on monocles and top hats? Maybe we will spend next week debating a nonbinding resolution on the need to tax madras blazers for the good of the country.

Unfortunately, not all of the Democratic proposals are a laughing matter. They have been down this road in the past pushing tax increases on luxury items such as yachts. Today, the press ridiculed Republicans for "defending the yachting class." There is no yachting class in this country, unless you count the Democratic party of Martha's Vineyard.

But there is a class of people who build yachts. This is what happened to those people the last time the Democrats engaged in class warfare of this kind. In the 1990 budget deal, a new luxury excise tax was created applying to yachts, aircraft, jewelry, and furs, first applying to the 1991 year. The similarities are eerie.

Faced with soaring deficits, Democrats insisted that revenues be part of the equation. And how did this work out? The tax was repealed in 1993 because, as the Democratic-controlled Senate Finance Committee report, as reported by the Budget Committee, explains:

During the recent recession, the boat, aircraft, jewelry, and fur industries have suffered job losses and increased unemployment. The Committee believes that it is appropriate to eliminate the burden these taxes impose on the interest of fostering economic recovery in those and related industries.

Republicans are not defending the yachting class. They are defending the people whose jobs will be lost to Democratic class warfare.

Of course, the left cannot contain themselves to these targeted tax increases. Today we read in the paper that the President is eager to reform Social Security. Yet it appears he is only willing to do so if we let the 2001 and 2003 tax cuts expire, tax cuts which only last December the President acknowledged were necessary components of our economic recovery.

I would not be surprised to see the old Democratic hobby horse, an increase in the Social Security tax max, make an appearance in the Democrats' list of demands.

These are nonstarters, and everyone understands why. These broad-based tax increases would be a weight around our economic recovery.

But the issue of tax expenditures continues to cause confusion and must be addressed. Those who advocate limiting or eliminating these tax expenditures suggest that they are spending and loopholes that benefit wealthy individuals.

Yesterday, I offered a grown-up definition of what a tax expenditure is. Today, I wish to highlight what are in fact the top tax expenditures. What we will find is that the tax expenditures that would generate the largest amount of revenue are also those that are available to the middle class, enabling them to give to their churches and synagogues, and to save for a home, for college, and for retirement. To get at meaningful deficit reduction, Democrats would have to eliminate these expenditures. Is that what they want to do? That might be a good question at the President's next press conference. Maybe someone could give him a copy of this chart right here, and ask which of these tax expenditures he is willing to eliminate in the interest of deficit reduction:

No. 1, exclusion for employer-provided health care. Is he going to get rid of that? That is 13 percent of all tax expenditures.

How about home mortgage interest deductions? Is he going to get rid of that? That is 9 percent.

How about preferential rates for dividends and capital gains? That is 8 percent.

Exclusion of Medicare benefits. Are they going to do away with that? That is 7 percent.

Net exclusion of defined benefit pension contributions and earnings. Are they going to attack our pensions? That is 6 percent.

And earned income tax credit. My gosh, that is 5 percent.

Deduction for State and local taxes, except real property. That is 5 percent.

No. 8, net exclusion of defined contribution/earnings. That is 4 percent.

How about No. 9, exclusion of capital gains at death? That is 4 percent.

And how about No. 10, deductions for charitable contributions? That is 4 percent.

I venture to say hardly any American is going to want to do away with all of those in the interest of getting more revenue so the Democrats can spend it back here.

Look at that chart. It is a list of the top 10 tax expenditures. Maybe someone can give him a copy of this chart and ask which of these tax expenditures he is willing to eliminate in the interest of deficit reduction. I encourage all my friends to look at this chart. It is a list of the top 10 tax expenditures.

With the rhetoric coming out of the White House, you might be surprised to learn that tax benefits for yachts and corporate jets are not in the top two. Not only do they not make the top 10, they don't even come close.

If you take the so-called savings that would come from the corporate jet tax approach of the President, it would take us 3,000 years to even reach the approximately $800 billion stimulus package. In the context of the President's trillion-dollar deficits, they are statistical noise.

So what are the big tax expenditures?

No. 1 is an issue from the ObamaCare debate. It is the exclusion for employer-provided health insurance. The exclusion of employer-provided health insurance from income is the single largest tax expenditure, representing 13 percent of tax expenditures.

Yesterday a Member of the other side's leadership pointed out that the largest tax expenditure is one for corporations. Boy, is he wrong. Here is what he said:

The biggest single deduction is the employer's exclusion for health care premiums. So employers are able to exclude from income the amount of money they spend for health insurance for their employees. That's the biggest.

Well, that is an incorrect description of the law that they are arguing. Employers always have been allowed, and should be allowed, a deduction for the cost of benefits they provide to their employees. Employee compensation, including the provision of health insurance to one's employees, is a cost of doing business and thus properly deductible by the employer so as to accurately measure the income, or profit, of the employer. That has never been considered a tax expenditure. The exclusion at issue, which is a tax expenditure, refers to the employee's tax treatment, not the employer's tax treatment. That is, most compensation that an employee receives from his employer is includable as taxable income. One of the few exceptions to that general rule is that employees do not include in taxable income the value of employer-provided health insurance.

Coming in at No. 2 is the home mortgage interest deduction. This expenditure alone accounts for 9 percent of all tax expenditures.

The third largest? There we have the lower rate on capital gains and dividends. Do away with this expenditure, and the rate on capital gains and dividends will almost triple in about 18 months. Capital gains and dividends represent about 8 percent of all tax expenditures.

What is No. 4? Here we have an untaxed piece of Medicare benefits. Imagine that. I wonder how many folks on the other side realize this or even if the President does. When my friends on the other side categorically talk about cutting back tax expenditures as the yellow brick road to deficit reduction, I wonder if they know that hiding behind the curtain is an increase in the aftertax cost of Medicare.

Do my friends on the other side realize this? A few months ago, a liberal group ran an ad showing my friend, the chairman of the House Budget Committee, PAUL RYAN, pushing an old woman in a wheelchair over a cliff. His crime? Recommending policy changes that would prevent the inevitable bankruptcy of Medicare.

I am not going to hold my breath waiting for this same group to pull the fire alarm, because the Democrats' talk of eliminating tax expenditures might result in seniors getting hit with higher taxes on Medicare benefits. But this is what the President and the Democrats are talking about. If they are serious about using tax expenditures to reduce the deficit, these are the things that will have to be on the table. These are the big expenditures. This expenditure is real. You can look it up in the handy tax expenditure publication from the nonpartisan Joint Committee on Taxation. It is significant, representing 7 percent of all tax expenditures, to the exclusion of Medicare benefits.

At No. 5 is the pre-tax treatment for defined benefit pension contributions and the inside buildup on the accounts. This is a tax benefit that reduces the cost for those workers who make the decision to save for retirement. This represents 6 percent of all tax expenditures.

What is No. 6? It is the refundable earned income tax credit, the EITC. When folks describe tax expenditures as spending through the Tax Code, this is one that could properly be labeled that way. Under congressional budget rules, this one, for the most part, scores as spending. That is not the case with the other tax expenditures on this list. Refundable tax credits score as spending because the government cuts a check to the taxpayer. With the other tax benefits on this list, the taxpayer is receiving a portion of the money back in the form of reduced taxes. There are some serious tax hikes there. This tax expenditure accounts for 5 percent of tax expenditures.

No. 7 is the deduction for State and local taxes. My friends on the other side need to be particularly careful with this one. So far, they would hit seniors, families who have health insurance through their employers, people with mortgages, and anyone who owns stocks and bonds. But with this, many Democrats risk alienating every last taxpayer in their States. Removing this deduction is going to hit high-tax States hard. If you are from a so-called blue State, it is likely that constituents are already heavily burdened with State and local taxes. Take away this and you will, in effect, drive up the marginal rate of your constituents who take their deduction by as much as 35 percent.

I am convinced that many of the inroads Democrats made between 2006 and 2008 were due to carefully crafted Trojan horse campaigns. Skillful operatives ran Democratic campaigns promising moderate tax and spending policies that would be respectful of families and businesses. But once that Trojan horse got inside the Capitol, and former Speaker PELOSI and President Obama took charge, frustrated liberals spilled out and started taxing anything that could move to pay for the largest expansion of government since Lyndon Johnson was in office.

Removing the deduction for State and local taxes might be the final act that restores purple America to its traditional red hue. At 5 percent of all tax expenditures, this would represent a massive tax increase, this net exclusion of defined benefit pension contribution. And that is No. 7, after State and local taxes, except for real property.

What is No. 8? This is the pre-tax treatment for the contributions workers make to their defined contribution plans and the inside buildup on the accounts. Many of us know of these retirement plans as 401(k) plans. At 4 percent of tax expenditures, this is a significant incentive to families to save for retirement.

No. 9 is a bit more obscure but no less critical for families. It is the tax expenditure for the step up in basis at death. We all know the saying that nothing is as certain as death and taxes. Well, if this tax expenditure were eliminated, this step up in basis at death, this saying would take on an even darker meaning. Death could now be taxed twice. First, the decedent's estate might get hit with the death tax. Then the decedent's heirs would be taxed again on the gain embedded in any inherited asset should they decide to sell. This accounts for 4 percent of tax expenditures.

We close with No. 10, the tax expenditure and probably the most important one to my constituents in Utah. It is the tax benefit for donations to charities other than education and health care institutions.

When you make your weekly or yearly donation to your church, you can now deduct it for tax purposes. This charitable deduction represents 4 percent of all tax expenditures. The folks in my State all pay tithing—almost all of them. That is 10 percent of their gross income. I do it every year. I have to tell you, you would hit a lot of very charitable people and a lot of churches with the loss of that one, No. 10. Yet that is the smallest of the whole 10.

As the chart shows, these widespread everyday tax policies account for almost two-thirds of tax expenditures. We are not talking about yachts or corporate jets.

Now, I have already suggested it, but rolling back many of these expenditures would have an immediate adverse impact on American families and taxpayers.

It would also undercut longstanding Federal policies promoting saving, home ownership, and charitable giving.

Let's turn first to retirement security.

About half of Americans save for retirement. The overwhelming bipartisan consensus is that this number is way too low. Ideally, all American workers would be saving for retirement.

More savings means less financial stress on Social Security and Medicare. Most importantly, it means retirees can enjoy their retirement if they can rely on a nest egg. That is why there has been a bipartisan desire to incentivize retirement savings through worker participation in retirement plans.

A time-honored method has been to offer a tax benefit up front in the case of the traditional defined benefit plan, traditional defined contribution, or traditional IRA. The benefit remains untaxed during the individual's working years. It is only taxed when received in retirement. By contrast, Roth pension plans and IRAs provide a tax benefit on the back end, when a worker retires and begins drawing on the account.

Former Finance Committee Chairman William Roth captured the policy rationale best by noting the deliberate tax policy bias toward savings. Chairman Roth used to make the point with a rhetorical question. He would ask: "Is there any bad saving?"

Of course, the answer is no.

One thing we know for sure. Curtail or eliminate the tax expenditure for retirement savings and the after-tax cost of savings will rise. Savers will react. It is true that some will continue to save. But it is also true they will have less to save if they choose to do so. For middle income taxpayers, it will probably mean lower savings rates.

Is that a good policy to put in place?

Consider this: According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, for 2009 over half of households paid no income tax. Forty-nine percent of Americans shouldered 100 percent of the income tax burden.

The half shouldering the income tax burden are also, generally speaking, the part of the population making sound personal decisions like saving for retirement. That behavior is good in both a micro and macro sense. In the micro sense workers are sacrificing current consumption for security and a better standard of living in the future. In a macro sense, the collective behavior of these citizens stabilizes our aging society.

To encourage this kind of sacrifice, our tax policy provides a tangible tax benefit. Take away that tax benefit and, as with raising taxes on anything else, you will get less of the behavior. Take away the tax benefit, and you will get less saving for retirement. Does that make any sense?

In order to avoid restraining the rapid growth in government spending, our friends on the other side would have us send the wrong policy signal to the half of our population that saves. They would add to the burden of those who are already shouldering the entire burden of funding the Federal Government. At the same time, by discouraging saving and personal responsibility we would further unleash the appetite of those who want us to spend more.

Take another look at the chart. Add up the tax expenditures from defined benefit plans and defined contribution plans. They account for 10 percent of tax expenditures. Over 5 years, the revenue from these expenditures amounts to almost $700 billion. On a per-year average basis, it is $140 billion. That is an annual policy shift of $140 billion in incentives for private savings to $140 billion in incentives for growing government spending.

Do we want a society where more saving is encouraged? Or do we want a society where dependency and more government spending are encouraged?

Do we want to look more like Switzerland or do we want to look like Greece?

The answer to this question is clear to the citizens of this country.

Unfortunately, not all of their representatives seem to have thought through the implications of going after tax expenditures.

To get at this from another angle, I would like to discuss the impact on taxpayers of cutting back some of these tax expenditures that come in the form of itemized deductions.

I am going to examine the effects of cutting back these itemized deductions by applying President Obama's budget proposal to cap itemized deductions at 28 percent.

It is clear that some in the White House are pushing this 28 percent cap hard in the negotiations over the debt limit.

As noted before, itemized deductions generally are considered tax expenditures. But itemized deductions impact a number of basic, longstanding features of American life. Itemized deductions include the home mortgage interest deduction, the charitable contribution deduction, and the State and local tax deduction. The President is proposing to chisel away at these itemized deductions, and we should carefully re-look at what that would mean.

President Obama has proposed repeatedly “to limit the tax rate at which high-income taxpayers can take itemized deductions to 28 percent.” It appears that this proposal is designed to lessen the benefit to higher income taxpayers of itemized deductions. The Joint Committee on Taxation says that this provision would mean the Federal Government would collect an additional $293 billion in taxes over 10 years.

True to form, this is just another version of the same soak-the-rich play that the left has been running for decades. From their perspective, it is unfair that higher income individuals get a more valuable tax benefit than lower income individuals? But this perspective mischaracterizes a critical issue. The 35 percent bracket was established by Congress with an understanding that itemized deductions would allow a significant tax benefit. Had Congress known that higher income taxpayers would be disallowed some of their itemized deductions—as the President now proposes—undoubtedly Congress would have set that bracket at lower than 35 percent.

So, taking away some of the benefit of itemized deductions for higher income taxpayers, while leaving the high-income tax rates at their current levels, upsets the balance struck by prior Congresses. Obviously, Congress is allowed to do this, but let’s not pretend that these expenditures are loopholes or oversights by prior Congresses. The President and the Senate’s Democratic leadership are free to do this if they choose, but they should at least come clean about what they are doing. They are significantly raising taxes on the people who are already shouldering the lion’s share of the Federal income tax burden—98 percent of them, as a matter of fact.

Even aside from the staggering character of this tax increase—one that would clearly violate President Obama’s campaign pledge not to raise taxes on middle class Americans the macroeconomic impact of this cap is negative at best.

President Obama’s 28 percent cap would reduce the benefit from the home mortgage interest deduction. For 5 years now, our Nation has been experiencing a bursting of the real estate bubble. Current headlines indicate that this trend will continue for a time. Limiting the value of the home mortgage interest deduction would apply additional downward pressure on home prices—not only for high end homes, but for all homes. By repeatedly proposing to limit the benefit of the home mortgage interest deduction, is it the President’s intent to further depress housing prices, or is this mere collateral damage from his desire to raise taxes.

But the damage from this cap does not stop at the housing market. President Obama’s 28 percent cap would also reduce the benefit from the charitable contribution deduction. This would almost surely reduce the amount of contributions people would make to churches, synagogues, temples, soup kitchens, shelters, universities, and museums. Is that the President’s intention? Does the President know that these revenues might never materialize because the elimination of this deduction will step up pressure for direct government assistance for the poor, for students, and for the arts?

Finally, this cap would reduce the benefit of the State and local tax deduction. I touched on this point earlier. High-tax States are able to soften the blow of their high taxes by pointing out to their citizens the Federal deductibility of such taxes. So, my colleagues from high-tax States might want to talk to their governors about the impact the President’s proposed cap would have on State and local public finance.

I want to be clear about something. Our Tax Code is a colossal, awful mess. And tax expenditures must be a part of any conversation about tax reform. But I want to emphasize that the conversation about tax expenditures should happen in a conversation about broad based tax reform—reform that flattens the code while lowering rates.

The conversation about tax expenditures should be a sober one in the context of a meaningful discussion about tax policy. Unfortunately, the President has chosen instead to target tax expenditures willy nilly with little regard for the policy implications of these tax hikes.

Make no mistake, whatever the President wants to call it—reducing spending through the Tax Code, closing loopholes, or making people pay their fair share—these are tax increases plain and simple. And they are tax increases on the middle class.

There has been some criticism in recent days about Republicans for their commitment to a pledge many of them took against any net tax increase.

I have to admit I am at a loss here. Conservative Republicans, convinced that taxes are already high enough, promise their taxpaying citizens that they will never support a net tax increase.

They gave their constituents their word, and are sticking to it.

Meanwhile, President Obama, who promised not to raise taxes on the middle class when running for office, vows to break this promise at every opportunity.

And yet it is the conservative Republicans who are somehow lacking integrity? Hardly.

I don’t care how many blows I take from sophisticated Washingtonians and professional leftists for sticking by my pledge to the people of Utah. I will resist any effort by the President to include tax increases as part of the deal to increase the debt ceiling. I will do so for a number of reasons. First, our Tax Code needs a fundamental overhaul. It is a complicated mess that is lacking in fundamental fairness. Yet the President’s proposal to reduce tax expenditures for deficit reduction, is a proposal to maintain a tax code that grows more burdensome by the day. The President’s proposal essentially robs the government of the revenues that it might use later to flatten the Tax Code and lower rates.

More importantly, I oppose the President’s proposed tax hikes as a matter of principle. Flattening the tax base without any offsetting rate reduction is a tax increase.

My friend, the ranking member on the Senate Budget Committee, Senator SESSIONS captured the point well in an interview the other day. I will quote Senator SESSIONS:

We have to be honest and recognize that if you are going to eliminate systematically a host of deductions and keep the money or spend it for new programs, then you’ve raised taxes. . . . It just is unless we’ve changed the English language.

The campaign against tax expenditures is a campaign for a tax increase.

It is a tax increase that could send the wrong signal to those Americans who sacrifice current consumption and save for retirement. It could raise the bar for those Americans who want to experience the American dream of home ownership. It would mean the residents of high tax States would face even higher State and local taxes. And it could mean a cutback back in the volume of charitable giving.

This is shared sacrifice that the Nation cannot afford.

I prefer shared prosperity by cutting taxes and giving the small businesses and businesses the opportunity to use that money to hire people and get people working and get more people paying taxes. I think it is abysmal that the bottom 51 percent do not pay income taxes, and 23 million of them get refundable tax credits from the government that are far more than the payroll taxes they might have to pay, which are Social Security payments.

I listened to my colleague from Vermont saying we cannot do anything on Social Security, we cannot do this, cannot do that, the poor people are going to be hurt. Where are they going to be when Social Security is bankrupt? Where are they going to be when Medicare and Medicaid are bankrupt? The way we are going, that is where they are going to be.

We cannot keep spending like this, and we have to quit playing the phony game with tax expenditures.

All I can say is we have to get with it around here and we have to start working together as Democrats and

Republicans in the best interests of the American people, and that is reforming this awful Tax Code, getting taxes down for everybody, and taking care of the poor but also expecting everybody to have some skin in the game—except the really poor—and help our country pull out of the mess we are in.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BARRASSO. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FRANKEN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection.

SECOND OPINION

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I come to the floor, as I have week after week since the health care bill was signed into law, with a doctor's second opinion about the health care law because the President repeatedly made promises to the American people as the health care bill was being debated and even after the health care law was signed. He promised to improve, not hurt, the quality of medical care in this country.

We now know the President's health care law actually makes the problem of health care in this country worse. In fact, since this bill was signed into law, we have learned that it makes the cost of health care worse. We know it makes the American's ability to get health care worse and the ability of individuals to keep the care they like—it makes their ability to keep that care worse.

Today, I would like to first talk about the cost of care.

President Obama promised American families they would see their health insurance premiums go down because of the health care law, and he actually told them they would go down by over $2,000 per family. Well, now we know that is not the case. In fact, Americans have seen their premiums increase 19 percent since the time the President signed his health care bill into law.

I was looking at the front page of the Sheridan Press, Sheridan, WY, yesterday. Headline, front page:

Health care premium increase. County administrative director said the county's cost to provide health care coverage for its employees will increase by about $360,000 this year.

We are talking about 1 county—1 out of 23 counties in Wyoming, $360,000 for county employees.

You know, throughout this entire health care debate, the President promised the American people that if they liked their health care plan, his health care law would let them keep it—another broken promise. Employers all across the country have made it clear that the health care law's mandates are too expensive and threaten their ability to offer insurance to their employees.

A recent study by McKinsey & Company, which is a reputable national consulting firm, produced a report entitled "How U.S. health care reform will affect employee benefits." They surveyed over 1,300 employers across diverse industries, geographies, and employer sizes. The results confirmed what Republicans and American workers and their families knew all along, and they knew it long before the President and Washington Democrats forced this health care law down their throats. Overall, the report says, 30 percent of employers will probably stop offering employer-sponsored coverage in the years after 2014 when the Obama health care law goes fully into effect. Among employers with a high awareness of the health care reform law and what is specifically in the law, then the proportion of those who will definitely or probably stop offering coverage jumps to 50 percent, and upward of 60 percent will pursue other options. So at least 30 percent of employers would actually gain economically from dropping coverage even if they completely compensated their employees for the change through other benefit offerings and higher salaries.

Apparently, the President's promise that "if you like the health insurance you have today, you can keep it" translates into "you may very well lose your coverage."

As former Congressional Budget Office Director Doug Holtz-Eakin's analysis confirms, if employers decided to drop coverage—which is in their economic best interest to do in many cases based on their economic evaluation—the cost of Federal insurance subsidies would skyrocket.

Remember, the White House and Democrats in Congress met behind closed doors. They acted swiftly and covertly to pass a law without regard for how its provisions would impact each and every American family.

Then the question is, Will Americans actually have the ability to get medical care they need from a doctor they want at a price they can afford? The President promised that his law would increase access to affordable care. Some groups tell a different story.

In April 2010, a month after the President signed his health care plan into law, the Association of American Medical Colleges estimated that based on graduation and training rates, this country would have a shortage of 150,000 doctors over the next 15 years.

In May of the same year, the American Medical Association issued the results of its survey showing the impact of low payment rates and the threat of future payment cuts on Medicare patients' access to care. The AMA found that one in five physicians currently restricts the number of Medicare patients they see. The AMA study shows that nearly one-third of primary care physicians restrict the number of Medicare patients they take into their practice.

All any of the Members of the Senate need to do is, at home on the weekend, talk to someone in your community, someone who is on Medicare, someone who is trying to find a doctor, a doctor to care for them, and see how very difficult it is for someone on Medicare to find a doctor to care for them.

Well, later last year, the Association of American Medical Colleges related updated physician shortage estimates. The September 2010 study said that by 2015, doctor shortages will be actually 50 percent worse than originally projected. By 2020, there will be a shortage of 45,000 primary care physicians and a shortage of 46,000 surgeons and medical specialists.

So I find it ironic that we have a health care law that is passed that actually doesn't put money into training doctors to treat you but puts money in to hire IRS agents to investigate you. Absolutely astonishing.

These studies clearly demonstrate that the President's health care law will only make it harder for Americans to see their doctor. In fact, Washington only expanded the ability for folks to get government-approved, government-mandated, government-subsidized coverage. They did not expand the ability for the American people to get actual medical care. There is a huge difference between medical coverage and medical care. When you take over $500 billion away from our seniors on Medicare not to save Medicare but to start a brand new government program for someone else, well, that is a way to make the problem worse. When you force 16 million more people onto Medicaid, a program where half of the doctors in the country won't see those patients, that also makes the problem worse.

On the front page of yesterday's USA TODAY, Wednesday, July 6, the headline is "Medicaid payments go under the knife." State cuts could add to shortage of doctors.

The second paragraph:

Some health care experts say the cuts, most of which went into effect July 1, or will later this month, could add to a shortage of physicians and other providers participating in Medicaid.

The article goes on:

Under the 2010 health care law, more than 16 million additional people will become eligible starting in 2014.

So already we have a situation where doctors are reluctant to take care of people on Medicaid. Yet the President's solution to the health care dilemma in this country is to put more people into a system that is already broken. We are giving individuals and families an insurance card but not really giving them access to the care that has been promised.

Adults are not the only ones waiting in lines to get into doctors offices as the lines get longer. In fact, children enrolled in Medicaid have a harder time accessing medical care than children who have private insurance. Yet that is the President's solution to the needs of this country.

On January 16 of this year, the New England Journal of Medicine published a study conducted in Cook County, IL. It is President Obama's hometown of Chicago. People were calling medical offices asking for appointments. They were asking for appointments for children with chronic conditions or acute conditions and telling the offices—these were kind of secret shoppers—the person had Medicaid or private insurance. What they found is 66 percent of the time when the researcher called for an appointment and they mentioned Medicaid, they were denied an appointment. But only 11 percent of the researchers calling for appointments who said they had private insurance—only 11 percent would not get an appointment. So there you have 66 percent denied if they had Medicaid and only 11 percent denied with private insurance. Those Medicaid patients who did get an appointment, well, they faced wait times twice as long as kids with private insurance—an average of about 6 weeks. As one caller was told when asked what kind of insurance the person had—when that person said Medicaid, the receptionist at the medical office said: Medicaid is not insurance. Yet that is what the President and the Democrats base their entire health care plan on—16 million more on Medicaid.

Here it is over a year after the law has been signed, and the President's health care law has made health care in America worse. Premiums are higher, and the lines at doctors offices are longer. It is more difficult to get a doctor to care for you. This is not what the President's health care law was supposed to do, and it is not what the President promised the American people last year. He promised that the health care law would make health care better for all Americans. Each week, we learn that the promises are coming up empty and health care in America under this health care law has been made worse.

That is why week after week I come to the Senate floor as we learn more things about the health care law that passed the Senate, passed the House, was signed by the President, and, in my opinion as a doctor who practiced medicine for 24 years, has actually been bad for patients, bad for providers and nurses and doctors who take care of those patients, and bad for the taxpayers.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. President, I have two things I would like to talk about. First, I wish to deal with the resolution we have on the floor that we had a vote on today, which was this motion to proceed to S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice and resolving the budget. I think it is important that we realize what is in this sense of the Senate. The findings the Congress makes here are very important, and I would like to read these three findings.

The Wall Street Journal reports that the median pay for chief financial officers of the S&P 500 companies increased 19 percent to $2.9 million last year. And then you compare that with the middle class over the last 10 years—the median family income has declined by more than $2,500. Mr. President, 20 percent of all income earned in the United States is earned by the top 1 percent of individuals. Over the past quarter century, four-fifths of the income gains accrued to the top 1 percent of individuals.

So we conclude in this sense of the Senate—it is the sense of the Senate that any agreement to reduce the budget deficit should require that those earning $1 million or more per year make a more meaningful contribution to the deficit reduction effort. And that is what we have been talking about today; that is what our leaders are doing—meeting at the White House with the President—is trying to come up with a budget deal and a resolution to this that involves shared sacrifice and involves putting us on a path to better budget responsibility, reducing the national budget deficit. Clearly part of this has to do with millionaires paying more of their fair share.

Now, we got 74 votes on the motion to proceed, but I heard many people say—many Senators walked on the floor and said: Well, I am voting for the motion to proceed, to invoke cloture on the motion to proceed, but I am not sure I support the bill. But I think the 74 votes show a little bit of bipartisanship in terms of a mix of revenue and expenditure cuts. That is the point I wanted to make on this resolution.

First of all, I hear things from the White House that worry me because what has been said when we talk about a package—and they are talking about the overall package—is they say: We are going to have a ratio of 1 to 3, meaning 75 percent cuts and only 25 percent revenue, so three-quarters in cuts and one-quarter in revenue.

Now, how does that compare to how we got out of deficit situations in the past? I think that is one of the most important things to look at because we were in a big hole in the 1980s. The Reagan administration took us down that road and President Clinton and President Bush 1 had to deal with that situation. What did they come up with? They came up with an agreement which was basically 55 percent revenue and 45 percent cuts. So it was about a 50-50 situation.

I urge the President to look at the budget. We have only been briefed in a very cursory way on the budget KENT CONRAD has prepared, but it comes in at about 50-50 in terms of revenue and cuts.

We have to realize we are at the lowest Federal revenue we have seen in 60 years and the highest Federal expenditures we have seen in 60 years. So we have to work at both sides of this. So that is where I hope the President comes in with some kind of proposal as he is negotiating this, and I look forward to him doing that.

NEW MEXICO WILDFIRES

The other topic I wish to speak about is the wildfires in New Mexico. I spent the last week in my State of New Mexico. I stayed there. I started to go to the plane, and I kept hearing the reports from my staff, and one of the most shocking was the entire community of Los Alamos—12,000 people—was evacuated because a forest fire was coming in their direction. As I kept getting the reports and the evacuation had started to take place, I thought: Well, the best thing to do is to not fly out but to go back to the community of Los Alamos and the surrounding communities and try to assist in any way I could.

I want to talk a little bit about that. I think there are some lessons to be learned in terms of budgets and deficits and how we should invest. But first I want to thank the Senators who helped me while I was gone. As the Presiding Officer, Senator FRANKEN, knows, we are assigned weekly duties in terms of presiding, and I was supposed to preside last week. So three of my colleagues, Senator DURBIN, Senator MERKLEY, and my cousin, Senator MARK UDALL, stepped up to help me with presiding time. I had an amendment that was on the floor when we were dealing with the rules package, and Senator HARKIN helped me with that proposal. So there was a real team effort within our Democratic caucus to help me to be able to work on the wildfire issue out in New Mexico and stay there and have my capable staff and the other Senators help out. I really thank everybody for that team effort.

The wildfires that are raging across New Mexico are not only in New Mexico. A number of States have been hit: Texas, Arizona, Florida, and my home State of New Mexico. Generally, what we see in this country is the fire season starts at the southern part and moves up to the north as we go through the summer season. In the Southwest, we have had an extraordinary fire season. I was just briefed by Secretary Vilsack when I was out there. He spoke in the southwest region about 1,600-plus fires burning 1.5 million acres. This is still very early in the fire season. We could see a lot more burning going on. Then, the thing that really hit me was the fact that we were told this is the driest recorded summer since the Forest Service has been keeping records. So it is pretty remarkable we are in this kind of situation where we have a drought and then we have fires that heat up.

This particular fire, for New Mexico—the name of it is called the Las Conchas fire right near Los Alamos. As we speak, it is more than 135,000 acres. It is almost three times as big as the previous fire situation we have seen.

What happens with these forest fires in our dry, arid region is we get extreme heat within the forest, and we get what are called crown fires, where the tops of the trees—these trees may be 30 to 50 to 100 feet tall, and the fires burn in the top of the crown. They can spread when there is a 40- or 50-mile-an-hour wind, as there was in some cases here. They can be in the crown of the trees and they can jump out a mile in advance with embers and create additional fire in front of it. As a result of the heat—very intensive heat; I think close to 1,000 degrees right in the heat of the fire—it makes the soil unable to absorb water any longer, which is something that creates a situation when we get our rainy season, which occurs right after the fire season, we can have serious flood situations. The soil will not absorb water, so when the rains come all of the soil on the surface washes off. It washes into the reservoirs. It can fill them up with silt. Some of those are used for recreation, for fishing; others are used for drinking water. For example, several of the communities in northern New Mexico get 40 percent, 50 percent of their drinking water from these reservoirs. So these kinds of forest fires can be absolutely devastating to communities.

But the one thing we were thankful for, because of the Federal firefighters, is the worst case scenarios didn't occur. One of the things that was expected—and I think many saw this covered on the national media—is this might get into the National Laboratory, the Los Alamos National Laboratory; that there was going to be radiation released and those kinds of things. In fact, we dodged a bullet there. It didn't go into Los Alamos National Laboratory. The labs and the residences were protected.

There was another fire burning nearby that threatened the Santa Fe watershed. The fire changed directions and because of the skillful firefighting it didn't get into the watershed. So we dodged a bullet. But many other areas—many other areas—were severely impacted, and many other groups were.

For example, New Mexico's Indian pueblos—we have 19 pueblos in New Mexico. Some of them were terribly impacted by this: the Nambe Pueblo, the Santa Clara Pueblo, San Ildefonso Pueblo, the Ohkay Pueblo, Owingeh Pueblo, and many other pueblos. One of the most damaged pueblos was the Santa Clara Pueblo. The Governor is a gentleman by the name of Walter Dasheno. He and some of his counselors had come to a meeting. Eighty-five percent of this Indian reservation has been burned in the last two big fires. What they said when we were sitting in a room—and these are the elders from the pueblo who came to talk to us—they said: Our hearts are in a very sad state. The fire devastated our religious sites, our sacred sites. We had medicinal plants we would collect in this area. We can't do that any longer.

With great emotion these elders said: We are never going to see this forest in the same condition again. So, obviously, the loss was great at Santa Clara, but it was all across New Mexico, of those pueblos that I just named, and it is a very significant loss.

The first thing I wish to do in speaking today is to thank all the firefighters who were involved in this effort. I think we have fighting just this one fire 2,600 firefighters from all over the Nation—15 different States. It is incredibly tough work—difficult, tough, dirty work.

I met many of these firefighters out on the front where they were fighting the fire. Some of them would talk about how they had been away from their families for 2 weeks. They hadn't had a shower. They were sleeping in tents. It is a tremendously trying occupation, being a firefighter, but they believe in it. They show up every day, and they do an incredible job. They were supported by our National Guard which guarded the community of Los Alamos while the people were evacuated to make sure there wasn't any crime going on. The State police patrolled the roads to try to make sure they could keep order. Local law enforcement, local firefighters participated, the local fire departments.

So it was an incredible effort by our community pulling together. One of the most remarkable things is the expertise at the Federal level in Federal land management agencies and firefighters. These teams are headed up—typically, we will have a type 1 and a type 2 team, and the head of the team called the incident commander will probably have 20, 25, 30 years of experience in fighting fires every summer around the country. These are career people from the Bureau of Land Management, the Forest Service, the Park Service, and a variety of other Federal agencies that step to the plate and help out when we get in these emergency situations.

As I said, they come from all over the country to work in the States that are impacted, and then as the fire season spreads north up to Colorado and Wyoming and Montana, those same firefighters move on to continue the battle up there.

One of the points I take from this, one of the things I learned from this—and I think President Lincoln said this very well: Government does for people what they can't do for themselves. Collectively, we pull together when we hit situations where if we have an individual who has a home in Los Alamos, there is not much he can do with a big forest fire coming in his direction. But we can organize as a governmental entity to say when we get big catastrophic fires such as this, we are going to have people who are competent, who are capable, and who have all of this experience in fighting fires who will come together and help out. That is something we need to protect.

When we think of debating budgets and deficits and all of that, there is a very important function that government serves out there, and we need to protect that safety net function, that collective function where we help each other. I think this firefighting is a great example of where government is needed and we could be devastated if we didn't have the expertise that the government has in terms of fighting fires.

The other thing I saw at these fires—and it was pretty remarkable. When I have been to tornado sites in New Mexico, when I have been to some of the flood situations, what stands out for me is how New Mexicans pull together in this situation—New Mexicans helping New Mexicans. The pueblos I talked about that were so impacted by the fires, they actually opened other sites on their reservations so the evacuees coming out of Los Alamos, the 12,000 people—several of these pueblos said: We are going to open our convention center and let them set up cots, and we are going to feed the people. We are going to do everything we can to help with this situation.

At the same time, their particular pueblo was being devastated by a forest fire. So there was an extraordinary outpouring of goodwill that New Mexicans have shown in this kind of emergency situation. It is remarkable to see in a time of need people pulling together and doing that in such a way that it brings tears to your eyes.

There was one individual I want to talk about. I was in talking to a group of people who were training for a charity that was going to help the evacuees—help them serve meals, help them set up cots, help them be organized. I got a question from the floor, and the individual said to me: I have lived in Los Alamos, and I had to come down here. I am an evacuee, but I found a friend who was able to put me up. I know there are other people who do not have that situation. So I am out here today training with the American Red Cross because I want to help the others, and I want to try to give back.

That is the spirit we have seen in New Mexico, that even if you were in need and had been driven from your home, you were still trying to help out. I think it is a pretty remarkable story.

One of the things we are going to have to do as we look across the country—and we see floods in the Midwest and wildfires in the Southwest and tornadoes—all of these things require a disaster relief bill, they require disaster relief funding for agencies that deal with fires and all these other natural disasters.

These things are very costly for local government. FEMA steps in and helps out with the Governor making a request. The Forest Service helps out. There are burn area rehabilitation teams that move in right after a fire to try to protect the erosion so there are not bad floods.

We have to try to do everything we can to make sure we maintain, once again, in this deficit situation, that kind of responsibility. The Federal Government has to help. Even within a deficit situation, we have to have a disaster relief kind of effort. The idea that we are going to somehow change the way we do disasters now, that we are going to take money away from Medicaid in order to put it into disasters, is I do not think a very good idea. So I think when we talk about how we do disaster relief, we need to remember we are all in this together, and when disasters hit, we need to help each other.

To show you the kind of pressure we are under in New Mexico, Secretary Vilsack, with the Forest Service, was out in New Mexico, and the one plea he made to the congressional delegation—because we were talking to him about watersheds that mean clean drinking water and that kind of situation—the Secretary said: I have a program that is called the Emergency Watershed Protection Program. It is for all over the country. It is for when we get into these kinds of wildfires, floods—whatever the situation is. He said: We have $9 million—$9 million—in the account. He said: Already, before your requests or any others have come in from New Mexico and other States—I know there are five fires down in Florida and fires in Texas and Arizona—we have $45 million in requests.

So there is $9 million in the account, $45 million in requests. What we are talking about, when we talk about watersheds, is drinking water not deteriorating and that kind of thing. So we need to remember there is a lot the Federal Government does in a shared way with local communities to protect those communities.

My final note, to talk a little bit about the biggest picture here. That is about climate change and global warming. We are seeing these wildfires, droughts, and floods as we have never seen before. I have seen Senators from all over the country talking about these disaster situations. The scientists tell us we are putting too much carbon dioxide into the atmosphere, we are warming the atmosphere. In the West—what the scientists tell us—it is going to be twice as hot in the West, the computer models show, than in other places in the country. While the climate scientists are very cautious with their modeling and what they say, they say: You cannot point to any particular storm. I cannot say that particular fire that occurred in New Mexico—the Las Conchas fire—was caused by global warming or climate change.

They also tell us—and this is the part we need to listen to—the scientists tell us what we are going to see as a result of this is more severe weather events, meaning more severe: If you get into a drought situation, it is going to be a more severe drought, which is exactly what we are seeing in New Mexico right now. When you get floods, you are going to see a more severe flood. You are going to see more severe wildfires. These are all what we are seeing today in New Mexico. We are seeing them across the Nation. We have seen extreme floods in New Mexico, catastrophic forest fires.

We are seeing droughts we have not seen before. The Forest Service has been keeping records for 117 years, and they reported to us there is no record for how dry we are right now. This is the driest year we have ever had, which laid the groundwork for the wildfires we had with the wind and all the other things that occurred.

So we cannot put our heads in the sand in terms of climate change, in terms of global warming. We have to look at these things and realize we are contributing to them, and we need to put policies in place, solid policies that put us on a path to reducing that carbon dioxide pollution that is out there. With that, I thank the Presiding Officer very much and thank the Senate for the time and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I stand before you today to discuss a problem that is of concern to 300 million Americans. It relates to our national debt, a debt that will soon cross the $15 trillion threshold.

We have been asked to raise the debt limit, extend the Nation's credit one more time. This we have the power to do but we have to ask ourselves the question: Should we exercise that power? Should we incur additional debt yet again without any plan moving forward to change fundamentally the way we spend money in Washington, DC?

Our current law requiring us to raise the debt limit periodically every time our existing line of credit dries up dates back to 1982. We have raised the debt limit since 1982 nearly 40 times. I fear if we do it again this time without any permanent binding plan in place, legal restrictions changing the way Congress spends money, we will be right back to the same trough a few months later. That is a problem because as we do this over time we inevitably put pressure on our financial system, pressure that will soon cause our economy dire circumstances, pressure that will in time result in excessive job losses, skyrocketing interest rates, and lots of other economic conditions that would be, to say the least, unpleasant.

It is for this reason that 100 Senators from around the country have canceled their plans they previously made to spend time with their constituents in their respective home States this week. That had been our plan, to spend time in our home States. We canceled those plans so we could come back here and have serious, earnest debate and discussion surrounding the best path forward toward moving in the direction of a balanced budget, toward figuring out what conditions, if any, would satisfy the American people who are understandably concerned about the prospect of yet another knee-jerk reflexive debt limit increase.

The American people understand the fact that if we choose to do nothing more than say: Well, if we are going to raise the debt limit by $2 trillion, let's make sure we cut $2 trillion from our anticipated spending—they understand that kind of promise is one that is not binding on the Congress if those spending cuts are stretched out over the course of 10 or 15 years or more, as has been discussed, because we here in Congress cannot bind the Congress that will be sworn into power in January of 2013 or January of 2015 or January of 2017. We cannot bind a future Congress. We can make suggestions they can follow, but we cannot bind them—unless, of course, we choose to do that, which has been done only 27 times in our Nation's history, which is, amend the Constitution. That will bind a future Congress. That, I believe, is what we have to do in order to change fundamentally the way we spend money in Washington, to make sure we are not headed back to the same trough a few months from now to do exactly the same thing, leading us closer and closer to the dire circumstances I described a few minutes ago.

While we have been here this week, convening during a week that was previously scheduled for a recess, we as a group of Senate Republicans have come together and offered a real meaningful solution. We have offered to raise the debt limit. We have introduced legislation today with 21 Republican cosponsors in the Senate which is a piece of legislation we are calling the Cut-Cap-Balance Act. Here is what it says. It says we will raise the debt limit. We will do so only under three circumstances, only after three very specific conditions precedent have been met.

The first two relate to immediate spending cuts to discretionary spending, and statutory spending caps making sure we start putting ourselves right now on a statutorily mandated glidepath toward a balanced budget.

The third step, which is by far the most important, involves passage out of both Houses of Congress by the requisite two-thirds margin a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution—one that would cap spending as a percentage of GDP, and one that would require a two-thirds supermajority in order to raise taxes. Upon each of those conditions being met, then the debt limit would be raised, but only then. We would not raise it without those conditions having been met. Because if we do not meet those conditions, we will not be able to look our constituents in the eye and say: We have done what needs to be done in order to make sure we get to where we need to be, in order to get to the point at which we will no longer be in a position of having to go back to the same trough every few months to go through the ceremony of raising the debt limit yet again.

We have to remember that every time we do this, we run an increased risk that we will start having to pay higher and higher yields on our Treasury instruments. Every time that happens, we incur more expenses that relate to our ability to remain current on our debt interest payments. Every time interest rates, yields on those debt instruments, go up by 1 percentage point, we have to spend an additional $150 billion a year in interest once our debt instruments catch up with the increased rate. That is a lot of money. That means if we were to return—let's say if interest rates were to go up 3 percent, we can soon find ourselves in a position in which we might be spending as much as $700 billion a year on interest. We are currently paying about $250 billion.

Mr. President, $700 billion a year is roughly what we spend on national defense. It is roughly what we spend on Social Security in an entire year. It is close to what we pay in Medicare and Medicaid combined at the Federal level in an entire year. So where is the difference going to come from when interest rates start to creep up? Even if they go up 3 percentage points, they would still be below their historical average. That money has to come from somewhere, and it will. It will end up coming from the various programs that Americans are most concerned about.

So whether you are a conservative, and you might be most concerned about that money coming from our defense budget or, on the other hand, if you are a liberal, and perhaps you are most concerned about it coming from entitlements, you ought to be concerned about our practice of perpetually raising the debt limit and engaging in perpetual deficit spending, especially when that deficit spending is now in excess of $1.5 trillion every single year.

This potentially threatens every Federal program out there. It also interferes with the ability of each American to find the prosperity he or she seeks, the ability of each American to live his or her life in the way he or she chooses. That is distressing. It interferes with the liberty of the individual, which is what we have been elected to protect.

I am very proud to be part of this 21-Senator coalition consisting of a group of Senators who are concerned enough about this issue that they are willing to say: We understand that we cannot just not raise the debt limit. There are enough people who are concerned enough in this country about not raising it. The abrupt halt in spending that would bring about would create enough uncertainty and chaos that many are unwilling to face that prospect.

So recognizing that reality, we have taken the bull by the horns and we are willing to do one difficult thing. In order for us to raise the debt limit, we have to be willing to set things in motion in such a way that will solve the underlying problem and will create permanent structural spending reform within the Congress.

I wish to close by responding to an argument made recently by Timothy Geithner, the Secretary of the Treasury, to the effect that we in Congress are essentially mere surplus when it comes to the debt limit increase. He argued that, as I understand it, section 4 of the 14th amendment somehow independently authorizes the executive branch—perhaps the Treasury Secretary, perhaps just the President—to somehow raise the debt limit without consulting Congress, without an act of Congress in place.

That argument is not accurate. That argument is based on an improper reading of the 14th amendment. The language to which he refers reads, in part, as follows:

The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, shall not be questioned.

Adopted in the immediate aftermath of the Civil War, this provision simply acknowledges the fact that we can't ignore our debt obligations, that when interest or principal comes due on our national debt, they have to be honored. You will notice that in the middle of it, set off by commas, is a phrase that says "authorized by law."

To create law in this country, you have to move something through Congress. That something has to be presented to the President for his signature or a veto. You cannot make a law in the U.S. Government without Congress. Article I, section 8, clause 2 makes that point clear by giving the authority to Congress to incur debt in the name of the United States.

So, necessarily, by definition and operation of the plain text of the Constitution, you cannot raise the debt limit without an act of Congress. If anything, section 4 of the 14th amendment simply makes clear that which I wish Secretary Geithner would acknowledge—and I hereby call upon him to acknowledge—which is that he has a legal and a moral obligation to make sure that if the debt limit is not increased, during whatever time it remains in limbo, during whatever time we face the debt limit-induced shortfall, it is his obligation to use the first tax revenues coming in the door to pay our debt obligations, pay the interest being accrued on our national debt. It is his obligation not only as a fiduciary or quasi-fiduciary but also the very provision of the Constitution, section 4 of the 14th amendment—the same provision he cites—binds his hands and requires him to make sure that interest gets paid and prohibits him from bringing about a default on our national debt, which is what he has been threatening on many occasions.

There is a way forward. The circumstances in which we now find ourselves are, to be sure, threatening, intimidating and daunting and they are circumstances that bring about substantial disagreement within this body and the other body that meets down the hall from us. But there are answers and solutions to which we can agree.

I believe the Cut-Cap-Balance Act provides the proper solution which can appeal to liberals and conservatives, Democrats and Republicans alike. I call on all within the sound of my voice to look at this legislation and jump on board and become part of the solution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

TALL STACKS

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I rise to speak about a serious public health issue in Rhode Island and to commend the EPA for its actions to address it.

Rhode Island has the sixth highest rate of asthma in the country. According to our Department of Health, more than 25,000 Rhode Island children or 11 percent of children in our State—more than 1 in every 10 kids—suffer from asthma, and 82,000 adults in Rhode Island, which is also about 11 percent of our adult population, also suffer from this chronic disease.

From 2005 to 2009, asthma was the underlying cause or a contributing cause of death for 240 people in Rhode Island, including 4 children.

In 2009, there were 1,750 hospital discharges in Rhode Island for asthma cases. Those hospital stays cost about $8 million—in just that 1 year—in direct medical costs, not counting the costs associated with days of work and school missed or the medication for ongoing treatment.

On a clear summer day in Rhode Island, many of us have had the experience commuting to work and hearing a warning on drive time radio: Today is a bad air day in Rhode Island. Infants, senior citizens, and people with respiratory difficulties should stay indoors today.

In fact, yesterday was just such a day in Rhode Island. An air quality alert was issued by our State Department of Environmental Management, warning that ozone was expected to reach dangerous levels in the southern half of our State by afternoon. They recommended that all residents limit physical exertion and take refuge in air-conditioned environments for the better part of the day. In addition, Rhode Island's public transit operator, RIPTA, offered free bus rides all day long to keep people out of their cars.

These are real costs—costs paid in freedom, in reduced quality of life, in medical bills, in burdened public services to respond to the health risks of dirty air, and in more missed days of work and school.

There is still a lot to learn about the causes and cures of asthma. But we know air pollution triggers asthma attacks. We know air pollution is a preventable problem. Armed with this knowledge, Rhode Island has taken great strides to reduce air pollution.

In 2006, Rhode Island passed a law to prohibit cars and buses from idling with their engines on.

In 2007, Rhode Island passed a law to retrofit all State school buses with diesel pollution controls.

In 2010, Rhode Island began requiring heavy-duty vehicles used in federally funded construction projects to install diesel pollution controls, adhere to the State anti-idling law, and use only low-sulfur diesel fuel.

RIPTA has voluntarily retrofitted half its bus fleet with diesel pollution control equipment.

However, Rhode Island cannot solve its air pollution problem on its own. We could stop driving entirely and shut down every industry in our State, and we would still have problems with ground-level ozone and particulate matter pollution. Why is that? Because, as EPA has determined, most of the pollution that lands in Rhode Island is sent to us by other States. Much of that out-of-State pollution comes from virtually uncontrolled Midwestern coal-fired powerplants that are tied to excessively tall smokestacks that send pollution hundreds of miles away from the source.

Last month, at my request, the Government Accountability Office completed a report about tall smokestacks at coal powerplants. Here is what the report said: In 1970, the year the Clean Air Act was enacted, there were two tall stacks—stacks over 500 feet—in the United States. By 1985, this number of tall stacks had grown from 2 to more than 180. Utilities and industry literally built their way into compliance with the Clean Air Act.

The trend continued. As of December 31, 2010, at the end of last year, 284 tall stacks were operating at 172 coal powerplants in the United States. These tall smokestacks are associated with 64 percent of the coal generating capacity in our country. Most of the coal generating capacity in our country vents its pollution through tall smokestacks.

Most of the tall stacks—207 of them or nearly three-quarters of them—are between 500 and 699 feet tall; 63 of them are between 700 and 999 feet tall. The remaining 14 are over 1,000 feet tall. The tallest stack at a coal powerplant in the United States is 1,038 feet, which is at the Rockport Powerplant in Indiana. This graphic compares some of these stacks with some of the well-known landmarks in our country. Here is the Statue of Liberty, at 305 feet; the Washington Monument, at 555 feet; and here are stacks at 1,000 feet, 1,038, and 12,004 feet—the Empire State Building in New York and the Willis Tower in Chicago.

As I have noted in previous floor remarks, once a stack gets over 1,000 feet, it has to be actually marked on aviation maps as a hazard to avoid plane collisions.

What do I mean when I say the utilities built their way into compliance with these tall stacks? In the early days of the Clean Air Act, some States allowed pollution sources to build tall stacks instead of installing pollution controls. The concept was that pollution sent high enough into the atmosphere would be sent far away from the source and it would not contribute to the air pollution problem in that State and everybody would be happy.

The problem is, this air pollution causes problems downwind in other States. As the GAO report put it, "Tall stacks generally disperse pollutants over greater distances than shorter stacks and provide pollutants greater time to react in the atmosphere to form ozone and particulate matter," which are the precursors to asthma. Yet public health policy has not yet caught up with this practice. Rhode Island pays the price.

Making matters worse, the GAO found that more than half the boilers attached to these tall stacks at the coal powerplants have no scrubber to control sulfur dioxide emissions—none. Approximately 85 percent of these boilers went into service before 1980, so they are antiquated and dirty and they run the pollution up the tall stack and it ends up being dumped on Rhode Island instead of cleaned up at the source. Nearly two-thirds of boilers connected to these tall stacks have no postcombustion controls for nitrogen oxide—controls that are vastly more effective than so-called low NO<sub>x</sub> burners. Again, uncontrolled at the source, they dump the pollution up the tall stacks, export it elsewhere, and it is not their problem, but it then lands on Rhode Island.

Here is a graphic that shows more than 70 coal plants which have tall stacks at boilers that operate without scrubbers or postcombustion nitrogen oxide controls. These boilers are sending hundreds of thousands of tons of unabated pollution up very tall smokestacks, into the jetstream, and the jetstream delivers it downwind onto States such as Rhode Island.

As the GAO indicated:

In the Mid-Atlantic United States, the wind generally blows from west to east during the day . . . ozone can travel hundreds of miles at night with the help of high-speed winds known as the low-level jet. This phenomenon typically occurs at night . . . due to the ground cooling quicker than the upper atmosphere, which can allow the low-level jet to form and transport ozone and particulate matter with its high winds.

The map shows a typical prevailing wind pattern in the spring. Notice how the prevailing winds send so much of the pollution up and over to Rhode Island and other States along the eastern seaboard. In fact, five of the States on this map—Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, and North Carolina—have been identified by EPA as contributing significantly to Rhode Island's pollution problems.

The electricity that comes from these uncontrolled powerplants, which don't stop the pollution at the start but instead jet it up into this low-level jet so it gets dumped in other States—the electricity coming from them might seem cheaper to consumers than electricity from a pollution-controlled powerplant. But that is not so. That would be wrong to consider or to conclude. The costs weren't cheaper. The costs just got shifted. They got shifted from the companies and the consumers in the polluting States to the lungs of children in Rhode Island and other downwind States. It is the lungs of children and adults and seniors in Rhode Island that are actually paying for that cheap electricity.

Happily, and at last, the EPA has begun to remedy this unfair and wrongful public health situation by requiring utilities in upwind States to control their pollution under the good neighbor provision of the Clean Air Act, because while a tall stack will send uncontrolled pollution farther than a short stack would, the most effective way to reduce pollution is to install pollution controls.

Prompted by petitions from our downwind States, the Bush EPA attempted to set pollution limits for States that contribute to unhealthy pollution levels outside their borders.

However, on review, the DC Circuit Court of Appeals told them they had not gone far enough. So the EPA went back to the drawing board and crafted the cross-State air pollution rule that has been announced today, which will cap the pollution that can be produced in upwind States, such as Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, and North Carolina. Those caps were designed based on each State's contribution to pollution in States such as Rhode Island, and it will ratchet down whenever EPA tightens air quality standards based on the latest and best science.

As I said, that rule was finalized today. So I thank the EPA. I commend the EPA for finalizing that cross-State air pollution rule. I also urge EPA to update the national ozone air quality standard based on the recommendations from the CASAC—the Clean Air Science Advisory Committee. This will lead to further pollution reductions in States upwind of Rhode Island and further benefit Rhode Islanders.

These rules will bring us closer to the day when the coal powerplants on this chart start taking responsibility for their pollution and stop exporting that pollution into Rhode Island and other States, when they install pollution control equipment rather than sending their pollution to where it becomes someone else's problem, and to when Rhode Island children can play outdoors safely without the risk of an asthma attack. I am looking forward to that day, and I know the people of Rhode Island are too.

When you drive in and that morning radio tells you today is another bad air day and that children and seniors should stay indoors and can't play, can't take a walk, can't engage in anything that involves any exertion, it is frustrating when there is nothing you can do about it. The Rhode Island Department of Environmental Management could pass regulations until it was blue in the face. The Rhode Island General Assembly could write new laws all day long and it would make no difference because the bombardment of outside pollution on our State is what is driving these health problems. That is why EPA is so important. We would have no voice in this if it were not for a National Environmental Protection Agency that can look out for small States such as ours that are on the receiving end of this kind of a pollution dump from the uncontrolled coal-fired plants in the Midwest.

I thank very much the Presiding Officer, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I would like to add a few words this afternoon about the ongoing negotiations on the Federal budget and on our rapidly approaching debt ceiling.

I think we all agree that the situation we face is one of enormous importance and complexity. I believe every responsible person also agrees a failure to act would have awful repercussions that would jeopardize or worsen our fragile and tentative economic recovery. So I think the responsible view is, it is imperative we act and it is also clear to do so will require every side to make concessions.

I rise this afternoon, however, because it is my strong belief that any agreement we reach must be based on real savings and must not be made at the expense of our most vulnerable citizens. That is why I am so concerned about reports that Social Security and Medicare have been raised as possible sources of deficit reduction. Cuts to Social Security and to Medicare benefits should not be on the table. Social Security is not the cause of the deficit, never has been the cause of the deficit, and beneficiaries of Social Security should not be made to shoulder the burden of deficit reduction.

Social Security is funded through the contributions of our Nation's workers and businesses. It has an enormous surplus and is projected to be fully solvent for another quarter century. So while I would agree with steps to strengthen Social Security, any changes should be considered independent of our effort to reduce the deficit, and we should not cut Social Security benefits.

I helped cofound the Senate defending Social Security caucus for this very reason. The solvency of the Social Security program can be extended significantly just by applying payroll taxes to a greater portion of the earnings of millionaires and billionaires. What we have seen in this country is a huge shift of income going more and more to the uppermost economic reaches and less and less to the middle class. The middle class has actually lost income in the last decade. So the contributions to Social Security are lower because there is less income to draw it off of and the income that is above the $106,000 Social Security cap is where the explosion of income has been and they contribute not a nickel from that income to Social Security.

So there is a lot we can do to support Social Security, but what we should not do is give in to any of the calls to put our seniors' security at risk in the stock market by privatizing Social Security or increasing the retirement age so that a construction worker or a waitress who works on their feet all day long has to put in more years of service at that age—when their body, frankly, might not be up to it any longer—or to cut benefits through backdoor methods by lowering the cost-of-living adjustment.

The Rhode Island seniors I have heard from at my community dinners and senior centers around the State I have visited are very concerned what would happen if their benefits were cut.

Audrey, from Middletown, told me that after her husband died, she had many expenses but, as she said, "no income except for his Social Security check which enabled me to go on living—simply but adequately without being a burden on my sons and losing my dignity as well."

Two very important points Audrey makes. One is that Social Security is not just a benefit to Social Security recipients. It is a benefit to the children of Social Security recipients, on whom their parents might otherwise be a burden. It is an American value that senior citizens who have worked hard all their lives, who have played by the rules, who have built the America we now enjoy should be able to draw on so as not to lose their dignity at the end of their life.

That is a principle that is worth defending.

Ronald from Cumberland, RI, had been on Social Security for a number of years. He wrote to say: It seems that it's always the people who need the help the most who get cut from the Federal Government. Why is this? No Social Security cost of living adjustment for 2 years, yet prices for the basic needs still rise. In a country like the United States of America, this should not happen.

These people who are living on Social Security income are not living high off the hog, and they should not be the targets of our cost-cutting zeal.

The threat to the Medicare Program is just as real. Earlier this year, Republicans over in the House of Representatives passed a budget that would end the Medicare Program as we have come to know it for future generations. I can remember being at a senior center in North Providence, and a gentleman sitting at a table said to me: You know, I have helped build this country; I have fought in its wars; And I understand that the Republican proposal will protect Medicare for me; but I am not willing to let Medicare for my children be thrown under the bus. That would make me feel awful. It simply isn't right for me to stay on it and stand for the program to be taken apart and dismantled for everybody else.

That was a moving statement for me to hear, and we need to honor that.

Estimates suggest that the House Republicans' proposal would end up forcing a typical 65-year-old senior to pay, on average, $12,500 each year in out-of-pocket expenses starting in 2022. That is more than double what a senior is estimated to pay than if the current system of Medicare stayed in place.

In Rhode Island, the average senior only gets about $14,200 per year from Social Security to begin with. So if you are going to ask people who now have $14,200 a year, who aren't getting cost-of-living adjustments by 2022 to pay $12,500 for Medicare, that would be a massive exercise in poverty creation, and what Medicare and Social Security have done is lifted the burden of poverty from America's seniors. I think sometimes we are blind to what life might be like without them, when some of our colleagues so cavalierly suggest that we should do away with these programs, privatize them, or turn them over to the insurance industry.

The Republican budget would also reopen the Medicare prescription drug doughnut hole. We went through a lot of effort to close that doughnut hole in the Affordable Care Act. That doughnut hole will be gone in 10 years, thanks to the Affordable Care Act. The Republicans all voted against the Affordable Care Act. They all voted against closing the doughnut hole. And now in their budget on the other side they want to unwind that part of the bill and take away the protections we have provided for seniors in the doughnut hole. That would cost millions of dollars to seniors in Rhode Island starting next year if it were put into law. That is not something off in the future. That is right now, thousands of Rhode Island seniors having to cough up millions of dollars because of this Republican House budget plan. That is something I think we need to defend against. That is the wrong place to look.

It is especially the wrong place to look as we find our Republican colleagues fighting so hard to protect tax breaks for millionaires and billionaires. I have given the speech repeatedly already, so I won't dwell on it now. But when our Republican colleagues stand and say, We are against tax hikes, it is important for Americans to look behind the curtain and see who they are defending, because I will tell you, everybody in this Chamber, Republican and Democrat alike, believes that ordinary American families earning ordinary levels of income should be exempt from any tax hikes. That is not even on the table.

When our Republican colleagues talk about defending against tax hikes, they are talking about defending the oil industry from having subsidies they don't need and that taxpayers pay for taken away. They are talking about protecting the top 400 income earners in the country who, on average, pay Federal taxes, actually paid in—this isn't a theory, this isn't a rate; this is what they actually paid in, according to the IRS—18.2 percent. These are people who made on average more than $¼ billion, with a B—$1 billion with a B, in 1 year. And God bless them. What a wonderful thing it is to make more than $¼ billion in 1 year. But they pay taxes at lower rate than a truckdriver in Rhode Island does on average; the guy who wakes up every morning and gets into his clothes and puts on his boots and gets in the truck and goes out there and works all day, pays the same tax rate as the person earning over $¼ billion.

They can talk about tax hikes until they are blue in the face. It won't take away the fact that is the way it actually works in this country, and they are defending that and going after Audrey and the folks on Medicare in Rhode Island and Ronald from Cumberland. That is not right, and we need to argue about that and fight back.

We can never overlook what Medicare and Social Security have contributed to our Nation's prosperity. It is not just the benefit for the Medicare beneficiary, it is not just the benefit for the Social Security recipient. It is the freedom we all feel knowing we will have a dignified old age; that we won't be at the mercy of Wall Street, that we won't be at the mercy of a private insurance company; that we will have the efficient and effective services that Medicare and Social Security deliver. We can know that now and enjoy that. We have more freedom as Americans now because we can make bolder choices in our lives knowing that we don't have to defend ourselves against that kind of poverty and that kind of misery in our old age. Our children can make bolder choices in their lives knowing that they don't have to safeguard against a parent's illness ruining their own financial futures, ruining their family's financial futures.

Imagine how awful it must feel for a parent in that circumstance, if in your old age you become grievously ill and the only resource you have is to essentially wipe out your children who feel a moral obligation to take care of your medical expenses and put themselves into poverty and misery as a result of your illness. What an awful human tragedy that is for the people involved. And we don't experience that tragedy in America. We don't experience it because Medicare and Social Security are there.

The challenge before us is a formidable one, but I truly believe we can reach an agreement on the deficit and the debt ceiling without compromising the security and the well-being of our seniors. I believe the Democratic Budget Committee's proposed budget is a good model for how we can actually do it, and I look forward to continuing this discussion. It is not necessary, in order to solve our immediate deficit problems and to get through this debt limit fight, to take our seniors and put Social Security and Medicare that they have relied on at risk; to take this country whose prosperity Social Security and Medicare do so much to support, and knock that down with a tax on Social Security and Medicare. It is not right, it is not necessary, and we should stand against it.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THANKING SENATE PAGES

Mr. REID. Mr. President, first of all, I express my appreciation to you, presiding all these hours you have this afternoon, but I also wish to take just a minute and thank these pages. This is the first time since 1974 the Senate has been in session during a July 4 recess period—since 1974. These young pages had places to be with their families during the summer vacation period. They are juniors in high school. They have some plans, I am sure, that we interfered with. But regarding the work we have done this week, while there has not been a lot of time on the floor, there are a lot of things going on all over Washington. There have been meetings at the White House, there have been meetings with the Vice President, with the President, with the Speaker, and others, working on this very important issue.

When these eight pages in later years reflect back on the fact that they were here the first time since 1974 when we were in session over a July 4 recess period, they should reflect that we were here for important reasons. If we do what is right, we will rein in this debt the country has and protect the most needy of our country.

I apologize for keeping them here. They should not have had to be here this week, but they have stayed because they have an obligation as pages to be here and they accepted that. They have kept the Senate running smoothly. We need them. They are helpful to us. They didn't have to be asked; each one of these eight pages volunteered: Naomi Biden, Brynn DiNino, Claire Karsting, William Maas, Aliza Reisner, Morgan Wissel, Keira Harris, and Chaffee Duckers.

I appreciate very much their service and wish them the best in their educational endeavors in the years to come.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO BARRY MANILOW

Mr. REID. Mr. President, for nearly 40 years, legendary singer and songwriter Barry Manilow has inspired and dazzled millions of people with his musical talents. He has sold more than 80 million records worldwide and has written countless iconic hits.

However, I come to the floor today not to discuss his talent but to recognize my friend for another one of his remarkable accomplishments—his ongoing efforts to help preserve music education in public schools in Nevada and across this country.

In recent years, significant budget cuts to public education have forced schools to eliminate a number of important programs. Sadly, music programs are often one of the first casualties. In response to this disturbing trend, Mr. Manilow started the Manilow Music Project, which helps public schools continue their music programs. The project donates instruments and materials to public schools and provides music scholarships to high school students to further their music education at the college level. Since 2008, the organization has donated hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of instruments and materials to secondary and high school music programs across the country.

A wonderful example of the impact of the Manilow Music Project occurred last year in Nevada. During one of Mr. Manilow's recent tours in Las Vegas, in exchange for donations of new or gently used musical instruments, he offered tickets to attend one of his concerts. The collected instruments, valued at more than $500,000, were then donated to fifteen schools in the Clark County School District, the school district that serves the Las Vegas Valley. This gift—the largest donation of its kind for Clark County—has provided more than 600 students with the opportunity to experience the joys of playing a musical instrument.

In addition to his donations to the district, Mr. Manilow has also helped foster music appreciation. He recently invited four different Clark County School District school choirs to perform in his holiday shows and provided show tickets valued at more than $30,000 for nearly 500 students and their parents or chaperones.

I would like to thank Barry for his dedication to the Las Vegas community and his efforts to keep music alive in Nevada's schools. I am so pleased that he has been able to share his love of music with thousands of aspiring musicians.

---

 VA'S MENTOR—PROTÉGÉ PROGRAM

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I would like to recognize the accomplishments of the 24 participants in the Department of Veterans Affairs' Mentor-Protégé Program who are working to help veteran small business owners. In these hard economic times, it is more important than ever to provide this critical support to our veteran entrepreneurs.

The goal of the Mentor-Protégé Program, which was started in 2010, is to bring together established companies with service-disabled and other veteran-owned businesses. Through these partnerships with established regional businesses, veteran business owners receive guidance on financial and organizational management, business planning and technical aid. They also develop long-term business relationships with their mentor partners.

Veterans hire veterans because they know what they are getting. Veterans are well trained, disciplined team players who can deliver results in challenging conditions. At a time when the Department of Labor reports almost 10 percent of all veterans are unemployed, and 27 percent of veterans between the ages of 20 and 24 are unemployed, it is imperative we do everything in our power to tackle this issue. The Mentor-Protégé program holds the promise of fostering an environment where veteran-owned businesses can succeed in helping to revitalize our economy while hiring veterans in the process. These veteran-owned small businesses are exactly what our Nation needs to continue on the road to economic recovery while getting our country's heroes the jobs they deserve.

While I am optimistic about the potential of the VA's Mentor-Protégé Program, I have heard from several companies participating in the program who have expressed concerns with delays in VA's verification process. I urge VA's Center for Veterans Enterprise to expedite the verification process so that these companies can get to work in repairing our economy as quickly as possible.

Businesses in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama, Texas, New Mexico, and California are serving as a model of just how successful a program of this nature can be. The names of the businesses that are participating in the program, both as mentors and protégés, are:

ASM Research, Inc. of Fairfax, VA, and Coley & Associates of San Antonio, TX, AUI Contractors, LLC of Fort Worth, TX, and Unified Services of Texas, of South Lake, TX, Bear Construction Company of Rolling Meadows, IL, and Opcon Inc. of Chicago, IL, Booz Allen Hamilton of McLean, VA, and MBL Technologies, Inc., of Rockville, MD, Creative Computing Solutions, Inc. of Rockville, MD, and CPS Professional Services of Fairfax, VA, EMJ Corporation of Sacramento, CA, and 347 Group Construction of Roseville, CA, The George Solitt Construction Co. of Wood Dale, IL, and Industria, Inc. of Chicago, IL, The GRD

Contractors, Inc. of Costa Mesa, CA, and Hubzone Corp. of Rancho Cucamonga, CA, Harris Corporation GCS of Melbourne, FL, and Delta Corporation of Fulton, MD, Health Net Federal Services of Rancho Cordova, CA, and Three Wire Systems of Vienna, VA, ICF Incorporated of Fairfax, VA, and Nova Technology Solutions of Fairborn, OH, JOB Options, Inc. of San Diego, CA, and VETSUSA, LLC of Falls Church, VA, Leopardo Companies, Inc. of Hoffman Estates, IL, and Segovia Group Corporation of San Antonio, TX, Lockheed Martin Corporation of Fairfax, VA, and Fulcrum Vets, LLC of Fairfax, VA, Marous Brothers Construction of Willoughby, OH, and Northstar Contracting, Inc. of North Olmstead, OH, McKesson Corporation of San Francisco, CA, and The Stay Safe Store of El Dorado Hills, CA, Metters Industries of McLean, VA, and Global Technology Solutions, LLC of Corrales, NM, Northrup Grumman Corporation of Rockville, MD, and Heitech Services, Inc. of Landover, MD, Reva, Inc. of Newark, NJ, and M.E.R.I.T. Inc. of Newark, NJ, The Robins and Morton Group of Birmingham, AL, and Coburn Contractors of Montgomery, AL, Roy Anderson Corp. of Gulfport, MI, and the Bacik Group, LLC of Columbus, GA, Sargent Electric Co. of Pittsburg, PA, and SGT LLC of Pittsburgh, PA, Secom Technical Services of Oak Ridge, TN, and Clauss Construction of Lakeside, CA, Simplex Grinnel of Columbia, MD, and Emergency Planning Management of Stafford, VA, Swinerton Government Services of Arvada, CO, and R.E.M. Engineering Company, Inc. of Pasadena, CA.

By fostering an environment where veteran entrepreneurs can grow their businesses, we affirm our commitment to those who have sacrificed so much. I encourage VA to strengthen the growing Mentor-Protégé Program and look forward to working with them to achieve their goals.

---

 RESPONSIBLE ELECTRONICS RECYCLING ACT

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I rise to make remarks on the introduction of the Responsible Electronics Recycling Act. I would like to thank Senators SHERROD BROWN and LISA MURKOWSKI for joining me in this bipartisan effort, as well as the House sponsors, Representatives GENE GREEN, MIKE THOMPSON, STEVEN LATOURETTE, and LEE TERRY.

Significant amounts of U.S. electronic waste are currently exported to developing countries that handle the waste in an unsafe manner. Much of this waste contains toxic materials, such as lead and mercury, and the workers who disassemble and process the electronics use crude, unsafe methods that can lead to health problems. This legislation would put an end to these dangerous practices. The Responsible Electronics Recycling Act would restrict the export of electronic waste, help boost the U.S. recycling industry, and support efforts to domestically recover rare earth materials found in electronics.

The United States is the only developed country that has not ratified the Basel Convention, which prohibits exports of hazardous waste to developing countries. Under the convention, much of the U.S. exportation of electronic waste to developing countries is illegal under the laws of the receiving countries but unfortunately, these laws are poorly enforced.

If we recycled these materials in the U.S., it would create recycling jobs for U.S. workers. Companies recycling in the U.S. often operate under capacity because they cannot compete with the cheaper option of exporting electronic waste to developing countries. We should be processing this waste using U.S. workers, and many companies stand at the ready to begin recycling additional electronic waste.

Moreover, the dumping of used electronics in the developing world can come back to haunt us. Some countries have active underground markets for U.S. hard drives, contributing to identity theft, as documented in a 2009 Frontline investigation. Business Week reported in 2010 that used computer chips from old personal computers are fraudulently re-marked in China as "military grade" chips and sold to U.S. military suppliers. Given the risks to our armed forces from defective equipment, I have also introduced the Combating Military Counterfeits Act to enhance the ability of prosecutors to keep counterfeit goods out of the military supply chain.

One of the benefits of recycling electronic waste domestically is the potential to recover rare elements in the process. Rare earth materials are vital to a number of manufacturing processes, including for products such as hybrid car batteries and solar panels, yet prices have skyrocketed as global supply has tightened. According to the Department of Energy, recycled content from electronics could be a valuable secondary source of rare earth materials, but additional research is required on recovery techniques and collection of electronic waste. This act would establish the Rare Earth Materials Recycling Research Initiative at the Department of Energy to coordinate research into the recovery of rare earth materials used in electronics.

The Responsible Electronics Recycling Act would also address the health, environmental, and national security concerns by amending the Solid Waste Disposal Act to prohibit the export of electronic waste to developing countries, with certain exceptions. These exceptions include legitimate exports of tested and working equipment, warranty returns, and recalls. There is also a de minimis exception to allow the export of materials that have so little toxicity they would not pose a risk to human health or the environment. Exporting under the exceptions would require a license and notice to the Environmental Protection Agency. Additional restrictions apply to exports for warranties or recalls, including written consent from the receiving country. The act creates a criminal penalty for knowingly exporting electronic waste, and provides the EPA the authority to inspect establishments handling electronic waste.

Twenty-five States, including Rhode Island, have passed electronic waste recycling laws. States such as Rhode Island already seek to ensure that their downstream recyclers do not export the electronic waste but instead responsibly recycle it here in the U.S. But States can only do so much and a federal law is needed to restrict these harmful exports.

We are pleased to have the support of a number of electronics manufacturers and retailers, including Hewlett Packard, Dell, Apple, Samsung, and Best Buy. We are also pleased to have the endorsement of 29 recyclers representing 74 recycling operations in 34 states. The breadth of our coalition is a testament to the consensus that the harmful export of these products must stop.

With more and more Americans relying on new technologies and generating a growing amount of electronic waste each year, we must take steps to properly dispose of this material. This legislation will crack down on the dumping of electronic waste on developing countries, protect American consumers from counterfeit schemes and identity theft, and support the growth of electronic waste recycling jobs in Rhode Island and across the country.

REMEMBERING JOHN MACKEY

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, Baltimore lost one of its most beloved adopted sons last night, former Baltimore Colt tight end John Mackey. John revolutionized the position and was the second tight end to be enshrined in the National Football League's, NFL, Hall of Fame. He became the first president of the NFL Players Association, NFLPA, after the NFL merged with the old American Football League. He was a tenacious and effective advocate for the players, bargaining for higher salaries and better benefits. He organized a 3-day strike early in his tenure that generated an additional $11 million in pensions and benefits. Mackey also filed and won an antitrust lawsuit against the NFL which eliminated the so-called "Rozelle Rule" and ultimately paved the way for players' union to secure full free agency for its members.

For the last 10 years, he suffered from dementia and had to move into an assisted living facility that cost much more than his pension. So he and his beloved wife Sylvia led the fight to convince the NFLPA and the NFL to establish the "88 Plan," named for his uniform number, which provides adult day care and nursing home care for retired players suffering from dementia or Alzheimer's disease. Even in death, John continues to give: Sylvia has announced that his brain will be donated to a Boston University School of Medicine study of brain damage in athletes. Researchers at the university's Center for the Study of Traumatic Encephalopathy are examining potential links between repeated concussions and chronic traumatic encephalopathy, CTE, a condition which mirrors symptoms of dementia and Alzheimer's disease.

John Mackey grew up in Roosevelt, NY. He was a man of strong convictions, a character trait he inherited from his father, who was a Baptist minister. John was offered an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy but turned it down to attend Syracuse University, where he studied economics, became an All-American football player, and roomed with Ernie Davis, who became the first African American to win the Heisman Trophy. The Colts drafted him in 1963 and he caught more touchdown passes and gained more yards as a rookie than the team's two wide receivers, Hall of Famer Raymond Berry and Jimmy Orr. John was big and strong, like other tight ends of his era, but he could run after catching a pass like no other tight end before him. As Hall of Fame coach Don Shula said, "Mackey gave us a tight end who weighed 230, ran a 4.6 and could catch the bomb. It was a weapon other teams didn't have."

John was a three-time All-NFL selection. He played in five Pro Bowls. In 1969, while still playing, he made the NFL's 50th anniversary team as pro football's all-time tight end. Over the course of his career, he caught 38 touchdown passes, 13 of which were for 50 yards or more, including an 89-yarder against the Los Angeles Rams in 1966. That particular touchdown pass was the longest of the 290 scoring passes in Hall of Fame legend Johnny Unitas's career. In a 10-year career, John caught 331 passes for 5,236 yards. Perhaps the biggest and most memorable play in John's career came in the 1971 Super Bowl, when he caught a pass from Unitas that had been deflected by two other players—Colts receiver Eddie Hinton and Dallas Cowboys defender Mike Renfro—and scored a touchdown on the 75-yard play. The Colts went on to win that game in dramatic fashion on Jim O'Brien's field goal with 5 seconds left in the game.

By the time John retired, he had already endeared himself to the people of Baltimore, but he wasn't finished. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1992, but he refused to accept his ceremonial ring in Indianapolis, where the Colts had moved in 1984. He said, "I will do it in Baltimore. That is where I played." And so he received his Hall of Fame ring in Memorial Stadium, at half-time of an exhibition game between Miami and New Orleans.

I send my deepest condolences to John's wife Sylvia, to whom he was married for 47 years; his son John Kevin Mackey of Atlanta; two daughters Lisa Mackey Hazel of Bowie and Laura Mackey Nattans of Baltimore; and John and Sylvia's six grandchildren. John Mackey has been taken from us much too soon, but what a life he lived. He was one of the greatest collegiate and professional football players of all time. The Mackey Award is given annually to the best tight end in college. He is enshrined in the Hall of Fame. He led the NFLPA and then courageously led the fight for retired players which culminated in the "88 Plan." His accomplishments and legacy will endure in the hearts and minds of his fellow players and Baltimore Colts fans and football fans forever.

EPA RULING

• Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today, the Environmental Protection Agency took steps to make the air in Vermont cleaner by issuing the final cross-State air pollution rule.

In Vermont, we pride ourselves on our bucolic views, unspoiled waterways, and our connection to the land. Yet, all of this is threatened by pollution that is beyond our control, and coming from beyond our borders. Vermont has always been a dumping ground, so to speak, for emissions from coal-fired powerplants from other States. Toxic pollution, generated in other parts of the country, blows into Vermont and damages our State's scenic beauty, decreases the value of conservation investments, and damages our forests, lakes, rivers, and wetlands.

These powerplant emissions and air pollution are transported long distances and not only mars our landscapes and threatens our health, but it also costs downwind States and businesses billions of dollars annually. Our only defense against such activity is the Federal Clean Air Act. Today, with the implementation of the EPA's cross-State air pollution rule, powerplants will be required to install new pollution controls that reduce the amount of dangerous emissions crossing State lines and entering Vermont. This will level the playing field by requiring powerplants to make long overdue investments in proven, readily available pollution control technologies that are already in place at many powerplants.

The cross-State air pollution rule requires many fossil fuel-fired power-plants to slash emissions that cross State lines and contribute to ground-level ozone and fine particle pollution in other States. These pollutants contribute to smog and air pollution which causes tens of thousands of Americans to become sick each year. Those most susceptible to illnesses related to poor air quality are often our most vulnerable citizens. The elderly and children, especially those already suffering from respiratory disorders like asthma, are routinely forced to stay inside on poor air quality days.

Pollution is also responsible for thousands of new respiratory illnesses each year, adding more unnecessary costs to our health care system. In fact, the reductions contained in this rule would prevent 14,000 to 36,000 premature deaths each year, 23,000 nonfatal heart attacks, 21,000 cases of acute bronchitis, 240,000 cases of aggravated asthma, and 1.9 million missed school and work days. The total benefits of this rule are estimated to be $120-290 billion.

Some believe these benefits are not worth the costs to industry. However, the cross-State air pollution rule is projected to cost industry from $10-30 billion, a very modest amount compared to the financial benefits and deaths prevented by this rule. In addition, a utility-funded report recently contradicted arguments that the rule will threaten U.S. electricity reliability. The reason for this is that a majority of utilities have already taken steps to adapt to Federal rules. In fact, over half of the country's coal-fired powerplants have already installed sulfur dioxide scrubbers or plan to install them. Of those that had plans to retire units, they are doing so because they are inefficient and cannot compete in today's market, not because of these rules.

In the end, only about one-fourth of the Nation's powerplants need to take action. Are we going to let these plants, which have dragged their feet, refusing to install new technology that would prevent pollution and prevent deaths and serious illness, continue to poison our air on the public's dime?

No, instead we should encourage the use of cleaner technologies that will lead to healthier air, increased efficiency, and a boost in jobs. Overall, regulations under the Clean Air Act have dramatically reduced air pollution while creating jobs and spurring American innovation in new industries and technology. Reports show the creation of 1.5 million jobs over the next 5 years and increased global exports of domestically produced clean technologies. History has demonstrated that since 1970, every dollar spent on compliance with the Clean Air Act has led to $4-$8 in economic benefits. By 2020, the total benefits of the Clean Air Act will reach $2 trillion.

Coming from a State with no coal-fired powerplants that has been on the receiving end of these pollutants for far too long, I fully welcome the final cross-State air pollution rule because I know that it will improve the quality of life for Vermonters who are subject to the impacts, and costs, of pollution from far beyond our borders. This rule is good for Vermont. It is good for the country. The Clean Air Act has been cleaning our air for over four decades, while continuing to grow our economy. The final cross-State air pollution rule that was published today will encourage innovation and cost-savings and help powerplants achieve their mission of providing clean, affordable, and reliable energy. I am happy to see the EPA use this tool, given to it by Congress, to protect the people and the environment of Vermont and the rest of the country from pollution generated by distant industries. •

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

REMEMBERING DAVID GETCHES

• Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, today I recognize the important contributions of David Getches, who died earlier this week. He leaves behind not only a family to whom he was intensely devoted, but also an impressive legacy of public service, scholarship, mentorship, and friendship.

Having served as both chairman and ranking member of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, I am particularly appreciative of his remarkable scholarship and public service in the areas of natural resources law and policy. He was a prolific writer on water, public land, and Indian law and policy, and there are no doubt many dog-eared copies of his books and articles on those subjects in our committee files. He was called on to testify as an expert in both the Senate and the House of Representatives, and his insight and creativity on those issues have had a positive impact on the legislation and oversight that are the responsibility of our committee and others.

While his resume of government service is notable—including special consultant to Department of the Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt and director of the Colorado Department of Natural Resources—it does not reflect the countless hours of knowledge and wisdom that David freely shared with government officials and staff who regularly sought his counsel.

David was a dedicated teacher of many thousands of students at the University of Colorado School of Law and a mentor to two of our committee staff who have worked on water and public lands issues. He was returning to the faculty this summer after serving 8 years as dean of the School of Law.

David Getches distinguished himself throughout his career. But what I understand set him apart, was that, at the same time, he distinguished himself as a father to his three children Liza, Catie, and Matthew and as a husband to his wife Ann. They have our deep sympathy as they endure this loss. He is greatly missed.●

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

At 12:05 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mrs. Cole, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bill, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 515. An act to reauthorize the Belarus Democracy Act of 2004.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bill was read the first and the second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

H.R. 515. An act to reauthorize the Belarus Democracy Act of 2004; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

MEASURES READ THE FIRST TIME

The following bill was read the first time:

S. 1340. A bill to cut, cap, and balance the Federal budget.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, and were referred as indicated:

EC-2408. A communication from the Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness), transmitting, pursuant to law, a semi-annual report relative to Reserve component equipment delivery; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2409. A communication from the Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness), transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to the implementation of the discretionary special compensation provided in section 603 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2410. A communication from the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to a violation of the Antideficiency Act that occurred within the Department of the Air Force and was assigned case number 08-07; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2411. A communication from the Chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and the Secretary of the Department of Energy, transmitting, pursuant to law, a joint report entitled "Implementation Proposal for the National Action Plan for Demand Response"; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

EC-2412. A communication from the Secretary of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the annual report on the activities of the U.S. Economic Development Administration (EDA), Department of Commerce, for fiscal year 2010; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2413. A communication from the Director, Office of Surface Mining, Department of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "West Virginia Regulatory Program" (Docket No. WV-11-FOR) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2414. A communication from the Chief of the Publications and Regulations Branch, Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Partial Exchange of Annuity Contracts" (Rev. Proc. 2011-38) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Finance.

EC-2415. A communication from the Chief of the Publications and Regulations Branch, Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Notice: Suspension of Reporting Requirements Under Sections 6038D and 1298(f)" (Notice 2011-55) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Finance.

EC-2416. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-79 "Housing Production Trust Fund Dedicated Tax Appropriations Authorization Temporary Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2417. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-80 "Housing Production Trust Fund Pollin Memorial Community Dedicated Tax Appropriations Authorization Temporary Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2418. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-81 "Unemployment Compensation Extended Benefits Continuation Temporary Amendment Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2419. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-82 "Brewery Manufacturer's Tasting Permit Temporary Amendment Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2420. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-89 "Department of Forensic Sciences Establishment Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2421. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-90 "Closing of Water Street, S.W., S.O. 10-15906, Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2422. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on D.C. Act 19-91 "Closing of Public Street adjacent to Square 4376 Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2423. A communication from the Secretary of the Commission, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Automotive Fuel Ratings Certification and Posting" (RIN3084-AB14) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2424. A communication from the Assistant Chief Counsel for Hazardous Materials Safety, Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Hazardous Materials: Revision to the List of Hazardous Substances and Reportable Quantities" (RIN2137-AE74) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2425. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Marketing Meteorological Evaluation Towers" ((RIN2120-AA66) (Docket No. FAA-2010-1326)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2426. A communication from the Deputy Assistant Administrator for Operations, Office of Sustainable Fisheries, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Revisions to Framework Adjustment 45 to the Northeast Multispecies Fishery Management Plan and Sector Annual Catch Entitlements; Updated Annual Catch Limits for Sectors and the Common Pool for Fishing Year 2011" (RIN0648-BA27) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on June 30, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2427. A communication from the Deputy Assistant Administrator for Operations, Office of Sustainable Fisheries, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Pacific Halibut Fisheries; Limited Access for Guided Sport Charter Vessels in Alaska" (RIN0648-BA99) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2428. A communication from the Acting Director, Office of Sustainable Fisheries, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Fisheries of the Exclusive Economic Zone Off Alaska; Alaska Plaice in the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands Management Area" (RIN0648-XA482) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2429. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; Bombardier, Inc. Model CL-600-2C10 (Regional Jet Series 700, 701, and 702), Model CL-600-2D15 (Regional Jet Series 705), and Model CL-600-2D24 (Regional Jet Series 900) Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (Docket No. FAA-2011-0159)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2430. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; The Boeing Company Model 737-100, -200, -200C, -300, -400, and -500 Series Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (Docket No. FAA-2011-0028)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2431. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; The Boeing Company Model 727, 727C, 727-100, 727-100C, 727-200, and 727-200F Series Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (Docket No. FAA-2010-1272)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2432. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; Robinson Helicopter Company Model (Robinson) R22, R22 Alpha, R22 Beta, R22 Mariner, R44, and R44 II Helicopters" ((RIN2120-AA64) (Docket No. FAA-2011-0561)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2433. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. Model 205A, 205A-1, 205B, 212, 412, 412CF and 412EP Helicopters" ((RIN2120-AA64) (Docket No. FAA-2011-0561)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2434. A communication from the Senior Program Analyst, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; Eurocopter France Model SA-365C, SA-365C1, SA-365C2, SA365N, SA-365N1, AS-365N2, AS 365 N3, and SA-366G1 Helicopters" ((RIN2120-AA64) (Docket No. FAA-2011-0551)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2435. A communication from the Acting Assistant Secretary, Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to the proposed transfer of major defense equipment from the Government of Norway to the Government of Chile with an original acquisition cost of more than $25,000,000; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

EC-2436. A communication from the Deputy Associate Director for Management and Administration and Designated Reporting Official, Office on National Drug Control Policy, Executive Office of the President, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to a vacancy in the position of Deputy Director for Supply Reduction, received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petition or memorial was laid before the Senate and was referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-55. A resolution adopted by the Board of County Commissioners of Miami-Dade County of the State of Florida urging Congress to refrain from eliminating funding for federal programs under the Workforce Investment Act, to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER, from the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

S. 275. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to provide for enhanced safety and environmental protection in pipeline transportation, to provide for enhanced reliability in the transportation of the Nation's energy products by pipeline, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 112-30).

By Mrs. MURRAY, from the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

S. 951. A bill to improve the provision of Federal transition, rehabilitation, vocational, and unemployment benefits to members of the Armed Forces and veterans, and for other purposes.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:

S. 1336. A bill to prevent immigration fraud and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Ms. MURKOWSKI (for herself and Mr. BEGICH):

S. 1337. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to permanently extend existing elective tax treatment for Alaska Native Settlement Trusts; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. WHITEHOUSE:

S. 1338. A bill to amend chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, to establish the Office of Regulatory Integrity within the Office of Management and Budget; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. WHITEHOUSE:

S. 1339. A bill to provide for the compilation and reporting of participation data relating to Federal rulemaking; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

By Mr. LEE (for himself, Mr. TOOMEY, Mr. PAUL, Mr. DEMINT, Mr. JOHNSON of Wisconsin, Mr. HATCH, Ms. AYOTTE, Mr. BARRASSO, Mr. BLUNT, Mr. BOOZMAN, Mr. COBURN, Mr. CORKER, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. ISAKSON, Mr. PORTMAN, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. RUBIO, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. THUNE, Mr. VITTER, and Mr. WICKER):

S. 1340. A bill to cut, cap, and balance the Federal budget; read the first time.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. GRAHAM (for himself, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. MCCAIN, Ms. AYOTTE, Mr. ISAKSON, Mr. COATS, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. BARRASSO, Mr. JOHANNIS, Ms. MURKOWSKI, and Mr. RISCH):

S. Res. 226. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the President does not have the authority to ignore the statutory debt limit by ordering the Secretary of the Treasury to continue issuing debt on the full faith and credit of the United States; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. WEBB (for himself, Mr. INHOFE, and Mr. LUGAR):

S. Res. 227. A resolution calling for the protection of the Mekong River Basin and increased United States support for delaying the construction of mainstream dams along the Mekong River; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. LAUTENBERG (for himself, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. CASEY, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. TOOMEY, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Mr. WEBB, and Mr. WARNER):

S. Res. 228. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate regarding coming together as a Nation and ceasing all work or other activity for a moment of remembrance beginning at 1:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time on September 11, 2011, in honor of the 10th anniversary of the terrorist attacks committed against the United States on September 11, 2001; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. UDALL of Colorado (for himself, Mr. HATCH, Mr. BENNET, Mr. BEGICH, Mrs. MURRAY, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. UDALL of New Mexico, Mr. WYDEN, Ms. MURKOWSKI, Mr. TESTER, Mrs. BOXER, and Mrs. FEINSTEIN):

S. Res. 229. A resolution recognizing the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain numerous wildfires that have affected thousands of people throughout the United States; considered and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 201

At the request of Mr. MCCAIN, the names of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. CARPER) and the Senator from Delaware (Mr. COONS) were added as cosponsors of S. 201, a bill to clarify the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior with respect to the C.C. Cragin Dam and Reservoir, and for other purposes.

S. 312

At the request of Mrs. HUTCHISON, the name of the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. JOHANNIS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 312, a bill to amend the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act to repeal certain limitations on health care benefits.

S. 344

At the request of Mr. REID, the name of the Senator from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 344, a bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to permit certain retired members of the uniformed services who have a service-connected disability to receive both disability compensation from the Department of Veterans Affairs for their disability and either retired pay by reason of their years of military service or Combat-Related Special Compensation, and for other purposes.

S. 362

At the request of Mr. WHITEHOUSE, the name of the Senator from Michigan

(Ms. STABENOW) was added as a cosponsor of S. 362, a bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide for a Pancreatic Cancer Initiative, and for other purposes.

S. 418

At the request of Mr. HARKIN, the name of the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 418, a bill to award a Congressional Gold Medal to the World War II members of the Civil Air Patrol.

S. 497

At the request of Ms. MIKULSKI, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Ms. KLOBUCHAR) was added as a cosponsor of S. 497, a bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to modify the requirements of the visa waiver program and for other purposes.

S. 504

At the request of Mr. DEMINT, the name of the Senator from Arizona (Mr. KYL) was added as a cosponsor of S. 504, a bill to preserve and protect the free choice of individual employees to form, join, or assist labor organizations, or to refrain from such activities.

S. 571

At the request of Mrs. MURRAY, the name of the Senator from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 571, a bill to amend subtitle B of title VII of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act to provide education for homeless children and youths, and for other purposes.

S. 585

At the request of Mr. NELSON of Nebraska, the name of the Senator from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 585, a bill to authorize the Secretary of Education to award grants for the support of full-service community schools, and for other purposes.

S. 641

At the request of Mr. DURBIN, the name of the Senator from New Hampshire (Mrs. SHAHEEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 641, a bill to provide 100,000,000 people with first-time access to safe drinking water and sanitation on a sustainable basis within six years by improving the capacity of the United States Government to fully implement the Senator Paul Simon Water for the Poor Act of 2005.

S. 726

At the request of Mr. RUBIO, the name of the Senator from Texas (Mr. CORNYN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 726, a bill to rescind $45 billion of unobligated discretionary appropriations, and for other purposes.

S. 769

At the request of Mr. HARKIN, the name of the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 769, a bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to prevent the Secretary of Veterans Affairs from prohibiting the use of service dogs on Department of Veterans Affairs property.

S. 834

At the request of Mr. CASEY, the name of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. COONS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 834, a bill to amend the Higher Education Act of 1965 to improve education and prevention related to campus sexual violence, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking.

S. 853

At the request of Mrs. HAGAN, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. FRANKEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 853, a bill to provide for financial literacy education.

S. 929

At the request of Mrs. MURRAY, the name of the Senator from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 929, a bill to establish a comprehensive literacy program.

S. 951

At the request of Mrs. MURRAY, the name of the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. KOHL) was added as a cosponsor of S. 951, a bill to improve the provision of Federal transition, rehabilitation, vocational, and unemployment benefits to members of the Armed Forces and veterans, and for other purposes.

S. 968

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the names of the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. UDALL) and the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN) were added as cosponsors of S. 968, a bill to prevent online threats to economic creativity and theft of intellectual property, and for other purposes.

S. 973

At the request of Mr. WHITEHOUSE, the name of the Senator from Washington (Ms. CANTWELL) was added as a cosponsor of S. 973, a bill to create the National Endowment for the Oceans to promote the protection and conservation of the United States ocean, coastal, and Great Lakes ecosystems, and for other purposes.

S. 1025

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the names of the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) and the Senator from Oregon (Mr. MERKLEY) were added as cosponsors of S. 1025, a bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to enhance the national defense through empowerment of the National Guard, enhancement of the functions of the National Guard Bureau, and improvement of Federal-State military coordination in domestic emergency response, and for other purposes.

S. 1240

At the request of Mr. LIEBERMAN, the name of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. COONS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1240, a bill to support the establishment and operation of Teachers Professional Development Institutes.

S. 1261

At the request of Mr. KIRK, the name of the Senator from Massachusetts

(Mr. BROWN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1261, a bill to amend title 5, United States Code, to deny retirement benefits accrued by an individual as a Member of Congress if such individual is convicted of certain offenses.

S. 1280

At the request of Mr. ISAKSON, the names of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. BROWN) and the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) were added as cosponsors of S. 1280, a bill to amend the Peace Corps Act to require sexual assault risk-reduction and response training, and the development of sexual assault protocol and guidelines, the establishment of victims advocates, the establishment of a Sexual Assault Advisory Council, and for other purposes.

At the request of Ms. MIKULSKI, her name was added as a cosponsor of S. 1280, supra.

S. 1281

At the request of Mr. KIRK, the name of the Senator from Louisiana (Ms. LANDRIEU) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1281, a bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to prohibit the transportation of horses in interstate transportation in a motor vehicle containing two or more levels stacked on top of one another.

S. 1297

At the request of Mr. BURR, the name of the Senator from Kansas (Mr. ROBERTS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1297, a bill to preserve State and institutional authority relating to State authorization and the definition of credit hour.

S. 1301

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1301, a bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal years 2012 to 2015 for the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000, to enhance measures to combat trafficking in persons, and for other purposes.

S. 1313

At the request of Mr. WHITEHOUSE, the name of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. BROWN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1313, a bill to amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to reauthorize the National Estuary Program, and for other purposes.

S. 1317

At the request of Mr. DEMINT, the names of the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. COCHRAN) and the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. INHOFE) were added as cosponsors of S. 1317, a bill to allow individuals to choose to opt out of the Medicare part A benefit.

S. 1323

At the request of Mr. REID, the name of the Senator from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit.

S.J. RES. 19

At the request of Mr. HATCH, the names of the Senator from Texas (Mrs. HUTCHISON) and the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE) were added as cosponsors of S.J. Res. 19, a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States authorizing Congress to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States.

S. RES. 80

At the request of Mr. KIRK, the name of the Senator from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 80, a resolution condemning the Government of Iran for its state-sponsored persecution of its Baha'i minority and its continued violation of the International Covenants on Human Rights.

S. RES. 175

At the request of Mrs. SHAHEEN, the name of the Senator from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 175, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate with respect to ongoing violations of the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Georgia and the importance of a peaceful and just resolution to the conflict within Georgia's internationally recognized borders.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:

S. 1336. A bill to prevent immigration fraud and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Immigration Fraud Prevention Act of 2011. This legislation would provide a much-needed tool for prosecutors to use to combat the exploitative actions of fraudulent lawyers and consultants who take advantage of individuals seeking immigration assistance.

The Immigration Fraud Prevention Act would punish fraud and misrepresentation in the context of immigration proceedings. The act would create a new Federal crime to penalize those who engage in schemes to defraud immigrants.

Specifically, the act would make it a Federal crime to knowingly and falsely represent that an individual is an attorney or accredited representative authorized to represent aliens in immigration proceedings; and to knowingly defraud or receive money or anything of value from any person by false or fraudulent pretences, representations, or promises.

Violations of these crimes would result in a fine, imprisonment of not more than 5 years, or both.

The bill would also work to combat immigration fraud by increasing the awareness of notario fraud to immigrants.

The bill would require immigration courts to provide immigrants in removal proceedings with information about notario fraud.

The bill would require the Justice Department to compile and make available to the public a list of individuals and organizations that have been convicted of immigration fraud; and permit only people who have, within a 12-month period, represented immigrants pro bono appear on the Justice Department's list of pro bono legal services.

By enacting this bill, Congress would help prevent more victims like Mr. Ibarra, a Mexican national and father of four, who has resided in Los Angeles since 1988. Mr. Ibarra hired a so-called "immigration specialist" and paid him over $7,500. In his apartment, Mr. Ibarra keeps reams of documents that the immigration consultant claimed to have filed on his behalf but never did—as Mr. Ibarra subsequently learned from immigration authorities when he was placed into removal proceedings. I wish I could tell you that this kind of egregious behavior is uncommon, but sadly, that is not the case.

Last November, the San Francisco City Attorney filed a lawsuit against a former lawyer who ran an illicit immigration law practice. In the three decades in which the lawyer was licensed to practice law, he was reported on numerous occasions to the California bar for his unethical behavior that included collecting exorbitant fees; representing clients in a negligent manner; and misleading immigrants with assurances of favorable outcomes.

Eventually, the lawyer resigned from the legal profession and was prohibited from representing clients before the Board of Immigration Appeals. The terms of his resignation prevented him from practicing law or portraying himself as eligible to practice law. Instead of abiding by these terms, the lawyer proceeded to set up another law practice through which he defrauded over two hundred immigrants, depleting many of these victims of their entire life savings.

I am pleased that last month the Federal Government partnered with State prosecutors and immigration advocacy organizations to launch a nationwide campaign to combat these harmful schemes. The enactment of this bill would enhance the government's ability to achieve the goals of this national campaign by providing prosecutors with a tough new Federal criminal law that could be used to convict fraudulent-lawyers and consultants who prey on immigrants.

Mr. President, I urge support for the Immigration Fraud Prevention Act of 2011.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1336

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Immigration Fraud Prevention Act of 2011".

SEC. 2. MISREPRESENTATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 47 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting at the end the following:

"§ 1041. Misrepresentation

"Any person who knowingly and falsely represents that such person is, or holds himself or herself out as, an attorney, an accredited representative, or any person authorized to represent any other person before any court or agency of the United States in any removal proceeding or any other case or matter arising under the immigration laws (as defined in section 101(a)(17) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(17))) shall be fined under this title, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both."

(b) TABLE OF SECTIONS AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 47 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding after the item relating to section 1040 the following:

"Sec. 1041. Misrepresentation."

SEC. 3. IMMIGRATION SCHEMES TO DEFRAUD ALIENS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 63 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting at the end the following:

"§ 1352. Immigration schemes to defraud aliens

"Any person who, in connection with any matter arising under the immigration laws (as defined in section 101(a)(17) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(17))) or any matter the offender claims or represents to arise under such immigration laws, knowingly executes a scheme or artifice to—

"(1) defraud any person; or

"(2) obtain or receive money or anything else of value from any person by means of false or fraudulent pretenses, representations, or promises, shall be fined under this title, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both."

(b) TABLE OF SECTIONS AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 63 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"Sec. 1352. Immigration schemes to defraud aliens."

SEC. 4. LISTS OF COUNSEL FOR ALIENS.

Section 239(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229(b)(2)) is amended to read as follows:

"(2) CURRENT LISTS OF COUNSEL.—The Attorney General shall compile and update, not less frequently than quarterly, lists of persons who, during the most recent 12 months, have provided pro bono representation of aliens in proceedings under section 240 that—

"(A) include a description of who may represent the alien in the proceedings, including a notice that immigration consultants, visa consultants, and other unauthorized individuals may not provide such representation; and

"(B) shall be provided in accordance with subsection (a)(1)(E) and otherwise made generally available."

SEC. 5. LIMITATION ON REPRESENTATION.

Section 239(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229(b)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (4); and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (2) the following:

“(3) LIST OF PROHIBITIONS.—The Attorney General shall—

“(A) compile a list of specific individuals, organizations, and practices that the Attorney General has determined are prohibited in the provision of representation in immigration proceedings, including individuals who have been convicted for a violation of section 1041 or 1352 of title 18, United States Code;

“(B) update the list compiled pursuant to subparagraph (A) not less frequently than quarterly; and

“(C) make such list available to the general public.”.

By Mr. WHITEHOUSE:

S. 1338. A bill to amend chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, to establish the Office of Regulatory Integrity within the Office of Management and Budget; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I rise to speak about two bills that I am introducing today to address a serious and persistent threat to the integrity of our government: regulatory capture.

Over the last 50 years, Congress has tasked an alphabet soup of regulatory agencies to administer our laws through rule-making, adjudication, and enforcement. Protecting the proper functioning of these regulatory agencies has led me to the topic of regulatory capture. I held a hearing on the subject last year in the Senate Judiciary Committee and now am filing two bills that will make our government more resistant to the ever-growing power of special interests. I urge my colleagues to join me in passing these important good-government measures.

At bottom, regulatory capture is a threat to democratic government. “We the People” pass laws through a democratic and open process. Powerful interests then seek to “capture” the regulatory agencies that enforce those laws so that they can avoid their intended effect, turning laws passed to protect the public interest into regulations and enforcement practices that benefit limited private interests.

This concept of “regulatory capture” is well-established in regulatory and economic theory.

In 1913, Woodrow Wilson wrote this: “If the government is to tell big business men how to run their business, then don’t you see that big business men . . . must capture the government, in order not to be restrained too much by it?”

The first dean of the Woodrow Wilson School, Marver Bernstein, wrote that a regulatory commission will tend over time to “become more concerned with the general health of the industry,” and try “to prevent changes which will adversely affect” the industry. This, he said, “is a problem of ethics and morality as well as administrative method”; “a blow to democratic government and responsible political institutions.” Ultimately he said it leads to “surrender”: “The commission finally becomes a captive of the regulated groups.”

Regulatory capture has been the subject of work by Nobel laureate George Stigler in his article “The Theory of Economic Regulation.” Students of administrative law know how well established the doctrine of “regulatory capture” or “agency capture” is in that field.

Last year, a senior fellow at the Cato Institute wrote in the Wall Street Journal about “a striking example of regulatory capture.” He described the phenomenon this way: “Agencies tasked with protecting the public interest come to identify with the regulated industry and protect its interests against that of the public. The result: Government fails to protect the public.” His example was the Minerals Management Service, in relation to the BP oil spill.

The failures of MMS in the lead up to the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico, the cozy relationship between MMS officials and industry executives, and the shameful behavior of some MMS employees are archetypal symptoms of regulatory capture. But the report of the commission on the Gulf oil spill never mentioned “regulatory capture.”

That is a pretty strong signal that regulatory capture isn’t getting the attention it deserves.

When you think about the century-long academic and policy debate about regulatory capture, and when you look at the cost of recent disasters in areas regulated by the Minerals Management Service, the Mine Safety and Health Administration, and the Securities Exchange Commission, it seems pretty evident that Congress should be concerned not only about those prior incidents, but about addressing the threat of future regulatory capture. The experts I have spoken with in my home state of Rhode Island certainly understand that regulatory capture matters. They don’t want a captured agency to allow the next oil spill or other man-made disaster to happen in our state, or for a financial agency to allow speculators to wipe out the savings of our citizens. Surely constituents of each of the members of this body would agree whole-heartedly.

That is why I am introducing two pieces of legislation today.

The first bill is called the Regulatory Capture Prevention Act. It would create an office within the Office of Management and Budget with the authority to investigate and report regulatory capture. The office would ensure that abuses were not overlooked, and sound the alarm if a regulatory agency were overwhelmed by a more sophisticated and better-resourced regulated industry. Scrutiny and publicity are powerful tools for protecting the integrity of our regulatory agencies. This bill would employ them to prevent powerful interests from coopting our laws.

The second bill is called the Regulatory Information Reporting Act. It would shed extra sunlight into regulatory agencies by requiring them to report to a public Web site the following: first, the name and affiliation of each party that comments on an agency regulation; second, whether that party affected the regulatory process; and finally, whether that party is an economic, noneconomic, or citizen interest. By centralizing this information for public and congressional scrutiny, the bill would create a simple dashboard for hints of regulatory capture in agency rulemaking.

As the Senate considers these bills, we should remember how much agreement exists about regulatory capture. During the hearing I chaired on regulatory capture last year, all of the witnesses, from across the ideological spectrum, agreed on each of the following 7 propositions. First, regulatory capture is a real phenomenon and a threat to the integrity of government. Second, regulated entities have a concentrated incentive to gain as much influence as possible over regulators, opposed by a diffuse public interest. Third, regulated industries ordinarily have substantial organizational and resource advantages in the regulatory process when compared to public interest groups. Fourth, some regulatory processes lend themselves to gaming by regulated entities seeking undue control over regulation. Fifth, regulatory capture by its nature happens in the dark—done as quietly as possible; no industry puts up a flag announcing its capture of a regulatory agency. Sixth, the potential damage from regulatory capture is enormous. Finally, effective congressional oversight is key to keeping regulators focused on the public interest.

With that as a starting point, I am hopeful that the Senate can agree on legislation to address this very real problem. Administrative law may not be the most glamorous subject, but I hope to work with colleagues on both sides of the aisle to eliminate regulatory capture.

This is so important because for as long as there are regulatory agencies, regulated industries, and money, there will be efforts at regulatory capture. We owe it to our country to do everything possible to defeat such efforts to capture our government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 226—EX-PRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE PRESIDENT DOES NOT HAVE THE AUTHORITY TO IGNORE THE STATUTORY DEBT LIMIT BY ORDERING THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY TO CONTINUE ISSUING DEBT ON THE FULL FAITH AND CREDIT OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. GRAHAM (for himself, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. MCCAIN, Ms. AYOTTE, Mr. ISAKSON, Mr. COATS, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. BARRASSO, Mr. JOHANNIS, Ms. MURKOWSKI, and Mr. RISCH) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

S. RES. 226

Whereas clause 2 of section 8 of article I of the Constitution of the United States gives Congress the power “[t]o borrow Money on the credit of the United States”;

Whereas the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States says, “The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned.”;

Whereas Congress has historically limited the Federal debt, either by specifically authorizing the issuance of new debt instruments, or through imposing an aggregate limit on Federal debt;

Whereas the statutory debt limit was established by an Act of Congress and signed into law by the President in 1982; and

Whereas the debt subject to limit has been increased through an Act of Congress and Presidential signature 38 times since 1982: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the Sense of the Senate that the President does not have the authority to ignore the statutory debt limit by ordering the Secretary of the Treasury to continue issuing debt on the full faith and credit of the United States.

SENATE RESOLUTION 227—CALLING FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE MEKONG RIVER BASIN AND INCREASED UNITED STATES SUPPORT FOR DELAYING THE CONSTRUCTION OF MAINSTREAM DAMS ALONG THE MEKONG RIVER

Mr. WEBB (for himself, Mr. INHOFE, and Mr. LUGAR) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. RES. 227

Whereas the Mekong River is the world’s 12th longest river, originating on the Tibetan Plateau and flowing nearly 3,000 miles down through China into Burma, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam;

Whereas the Lower Mekong River in Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam is a source of fresh water, food, and economic opportunity for more than 60,000,000 people;

Whereas the Mekong River is second in biodiversity only to the Amazon River, with an estimated 1,500 different species of fish, of which at least a third migrate up the river and tributaries in their life cycle, including the majority of the commercial fish catch;

Whereas the Mekong River supports the world’s two largest rice exporters, Thailand and Vietnam, as well as the world’s largest inland fishery of 4,000,000 tons of freshwater fish per year, providing up to $9,000,000,000 annual income and approximately 80 percent of the animal protein consumed in the Lower Mekong Basin;

Whereas China is constructing a cascade of up to 15 dams along the mainstream of the Upper Mekong River, and Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam are planning to construct or finance the construction of up to 11 dams on the lower half of the river’s mainstream;

Whereas scientific studies have cautioned that mainstream dam construction will negatively affect the river’s water flow, fish population, and wildlife;

Whereas the Mekong River Commission is a river basin management organization including the governments of Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam that have signed the Agreement on the Cooperation for the Sustainable Development of the Mekong River Basin, done at Chiang Rai, Thailand, April 5, 1995, and agreed to cooperate on management of the river and “development of the full potential of sustainable benefits to all riparian States”;

Whereas the members of the Commission have also agreed to “make every effort to avoid, minimize and mitigate harmful effects that might occur to the environment, especially the water quantity and quality, the aquatic (eco-system) conditions, and ecological balance of the river system, from the development and use of the Mekong River Basin water resources or discharge of wastes and return flows”;

Whereas the Mekong River Commission sponsored a Strategic Environmental Assessment of the proposed series of mainstream dams along the Lower Mekong River, concluding that the decision to move forward with even one dam would result in permanent and irreversible changes to the river’s productivity and regional environment;

Whereas such changes could threaten the region’s food security, block fish migration routes, increase risks to aquatic biodiversity, reduce sediment flows, increase saline intrusion, reduce agricultural production, and destabilize the river channels and coastline along the Mekong Delta;

Whereas the United States has significant economic and strategic interests in the Mekong River subregion that may be jeopardized if the construction of mainstream dams places the region’s stability at risk;

Whereas the Department of State initiated the Lower Mekong Initiative in July 2009 to engage Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam on water security issues, to build regional capacity, and to facilitate multilateral cooperation on effective water resources management;

Whereas funding for the Lower Mekong Initiative has primarily focused on the environment, health, and education, leaving the fourth pillar—infrastructure—largely unfunded;

Whereas attention to infrastructure development is a critical element of promoting the sustainable, coordinated construction of hydropower dams in the region;

Whereas, on September 22, 2010, Laos submitted for review to the Mekong River Commission the proposal for the Xayaburi Dam, the first of nine mainstream dams planned by Laos along the Lower Mekong River;

Whereas, on April 19, 2011, the Mekong River Commission’s Joint Committee representatives met to discuss the Xayaburi project without reaching consensus on whether the project should proceed, but agreed during the meeting to table the decision and consider it at a later date at a higher, ministerial level; and

Whereas, on May 8, 2011, the Government of Laos agreed to temporarily suspend work on the Xayaburi dam and announced plans to conduct further environmental assessments on the project in response to regional concerns: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) calls on United States representatives at multilateral development banks to use the voice and vote of the United States to support strict adherence to international environmental standards for any financial assistance to hydropower dam projects on the mainstream of the Mekong River;

(2) encourages greater United States engagement with the Mekong River countries through the Lower Mekong Initiative and increased support for sustainable infrastructure and water security in Southeast Asia;

(3) calls on the United States Government in leading the Lower Mekong Initiative to devote greater attention to and funding for capacity building projects on infrastructure and to assist in identifying sustainable economic, water, and energy alternatives to mainstream hydropower dams on the Mekong River;

(4) applauds the decision of the Mekong River Commission to delay endorsement of the Xayaburi Dam;

(5) supports further delay of the construction of mainstream hydropower dams along the Mekong River until the studies by the Government of Laos have been completed and adequate planning and multilateral coordination can be guaranteed;

(6) encourages members of the Mekong River Commission to adhere to the prior consultation process for dam construction under the Commission’s Procedures for Notification, Prior Consultation and Agreement;

(7) calls on all riparian states along the Mekong River, including China, to respect the rights of other river basin countries and take into account any objection or concerns regarding the construction of hydropower dams;

(8) calls on the Governments of Burma and China to improve cooperation with the Mekong River Commission and information sharing on water flows and engage in regional decision making processes on the development and use of the Mekong River; and

(9) supports assistance to the Lower Mekong River riparian states to gather data and analyze the impacts of proposed development along the river.

SENATE RESOLUTION 228—EX-PRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING COMING TOGETHER AS A NATION AND CEASING ALL WORK OR OTHER ACTIVITY FOR A MOMENT OF REMEMBRANCE BEGINNING AT 1:00 PM EASTERN DAYLIGHT TIME ON SEPTEMBER 11, 2011, IN HONOR OF THE 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE TERRORIST ATTACKS COMMITTED AGAINST THE UNITED STATES ON SEPTEMBER 11, 2001

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for himself, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. CASEY,

Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. TOOMEY, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Mr. WEBB, and Mr. WARNER) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 228

Whereas at 8:46 AM, on September 11, 2001, hijacked American Airlines Flight 11 crashed into the upper portion of the North Tower of the World Trade Center in New York City, New York;

Whereas 17 minutes later, at 9:03 AM, hijacked United Airlines Flight 175 crashed into the South Tower of the World Trade Center;

Whereas at 9:37 AM, the west wall of the Pentagon was hit by hijacked American Airlines Flight 77, the impact of which caused immediate and catastrophic damage to the headquarters of the Department of Defense;

Whereas at approximately 10:00 AM, the passengers and crew of hijacked United Airlines Flight 93 acted heroically to retake control of the airplane and thwart the taking of additional American lives by crashing the airliner in Shanksville, Pennsylvania, and, in doing so, gave their lives to save countless others;

Whereas nearly 3,000 innocent civilians were killed in the heinous attacks of September 11, 2001;

Whereas tens of thousands of individuals narrowly escaped the attacks at the Pentagon and World Trade Center and, as witnesses to this tragedy, are forever changed;

Whereas countless fire departments, police departments, first responders, governmental officials, workers, emergency medical personnel, and volunteers responded immediately and heroically to those horrific events;

Whereas the Fire Department of New York suffered 343 fatalities on September 11, 2001, the largest loss of life of any emergency response agency in United States history;

Whereas the Port Authority Police Department suffered 37 fatalities in the attacks, the largest loss of life of any police force in United States history in a single day;

Whereas the New York Police Department suffered 23 fatalities as a result of the terrorist attacks;

Whereas the impact of that day on public health continues through 2011, as nearly 90,000 people are at risk of or suffering from negative health effects as a result of the events of September 11, 2001, including 14,000 workers and 2,400 community residents who are sick, and tens of thousands of others whose health is being monitored;

Whereas 10 years later, the people of the United States and people around the world continue to mourn the tremendous loss of innocent life on that fateful day;

Whereas 10 years later, thousands of men and women in the United States Armed Forces remain in harm's way defending the United States against those who seek to threaten the United States;

Whereas on the 10th anniversary of this tragic day, the thoughts of the people of the United States are with all of the victims of the events of September 11, 2001 and their families;

Whereas the lives of Americans were changed forever on September 11, 2001, when events threatened the American way of life;

Whereas in 2009, Congress and the President joined together to designate September 11 as a National Day of Service and Remembrance under the Serve America Act (Public Law 111-13; 123 Stat. 1460);

Whereas in September 2009 and 2010, President Obama issued Proclamation 8413 (74 Fed. Reg. 47045) and Proclamation 8559 (75 Fed. Reg. 56463) proclaiming September 11, 2009, and September 11, 2010, respectively, as Patriot Day and National Day of Service and Remembrance; and

Whereas September 11 will never, and should never, be just another day in the hearts and minds of all people of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes September 11, 2011, as a day of solemn commemoration of the events of September 11, 2001, and a day to come together as a Nation;

(2) offers its deepest and most sincere condolences to the families, friends, and loved ones of the innocent victims of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks;

(3) honors the heroic service, actions, and sacrifices of first responders, law enforcement personnel, State and local officials, volunteers, and countless others who aided the innocent victims of those attacks and, in doing so, bravely risked and often gave their own lives;

(4) recognizes the valiant service, actions, and sacrifices of United States personnel, including members of the United States Armed Forces, the United States intelligence agencies, the United States diplomatic service, homeland security and law enforcement personnel, and their families, who have given so much, including their lives and well-being, to support the cause of freedom and defend the security of the United States;

(5) reaffirms that the people of the United States will never forget the challenges our country endured on and since September 11, 2001, and will work tirelessly to defeat those who attacked the United States; and

(6) on the 10th anniversary of this tragic day in United States history—

(A) calls upon all of the people and institutions of the United States to observe a moment of remembrance on September 11, 2011, including—

- (i) media outlets;
- (ii) houses of worship;
- (iii) military organizations;
- (iv) veterans organizations;
- (v) airlines;
- (vi) airports;
- (vii) railroads;
- (viii) sports teams;
- (ix) the Federal Government;
- (x) State and local governments;
- (xi) police, fire, and other public institutions;
- (xii) educational institutions;
- (xiii) businesses; and
- (xiv) other public and private institutions;

(B) encourages the observance of the moment of remembrance to last for 1 minute beginning at 1:00 PM Eastern Daylight Time by, to the maximum extent practicable—

- (i) ceasing all work or other activity; and
- (ii) marking the moment in an appropriate manner, including by ringing bells, blowing whistles, or sounding sirens.

SENATE RESOLUTION 229—RECOGNIZING THE HEROIC EFFORTS OF FIREFIGHTERS TO CONTAIN NUMEROUS WILDFIRES THAT HAVE AFFECTED THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

Mr. UDALL of Colorado (for himself, Mr. HATCH, Mr. BENNET, Mr. BEGICH, Mrs. MURRAY, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. UDALL of New Mexico, Mr. WYDEN, Ms. MURKOWSKI, Mr. TESTER, Mrs. BOXER, and Mrs. FEINSTEIN) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 229

Whereas every State in the United States has been affected by wildfire in 2011;

Whereas firefighters and residents have had to contend with extreme and erratic fire behavior and rapid rates of fire spread;

Whereas, as of June 12, 2011, more than 32,189 wildfires have burned more than 4,700,000 acres of land, which represents more acres burned than in all of 2010 and approximately 600,000 more acres than the 50-year average of total acres burned in the United States in an entire year;

Whereas, as of June 12, 2011—

(1) the Southwestern States have reported more than 1,600 fires that have burned more than 1,700,000 acres;

(2) the Southern States have reported more than 27,000 fires that have burned more than 2,400,000 acres;

(3) the Northern and Central Rocky Mountain States have reported 818 fires that have burned more than 250,000 acres;

(4) the State of California and Great Basin Region have reported more than 7,200 fires that have burned more than 21,000 acres;

(5) the Northwestern States and Alaska have reported more than 400 fires that have burned more than 260,000 acres; and

(6) the Eastern States have reported more than 3,500 fires that have burned more than 41,000 acres;

Whereas, as of June 29, 2011, firefighters and personnel from the Federal, State, and county levels have responded overwhelmingly to battle wildfires throughout the United States, filling more than 95,600 requests for firefighter crew members; and

Whereas the brave men and women who answered the calls for assistance have worked to minimize the displacement of thousands of residents and to protect against loss of life and property: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain wildfires and protect lives, homes, natural resources, and rural economies throughout the United States;

(2) encourages the people and government officials of the United States to express their appreciation to the brave men and women serving in the firefighting services throughout the United States;

(3) encourages the people and communities of the United States to be diligent in preventing and preparing for wildfires; and

(4) encourages the people of the United States to keep in their thoughts those who have experienced loss as a result of wildfire.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 524. Mr. BROWN of Massachusetts submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 525. Mr. MCCAIN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, supra; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 526. Mr. MCCAIN (for himself and Mr. RUBIO) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, supra; which was ordered to lie on the table.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 524. Mr. BROWN of Massachusetts submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, add the following:

SEC. __. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING PROTECTING SMALL BUSINESS FROM ADDITIONAL TAX BURDENS.

It is the sense of the Senate that small businesses, as defined by the Small Business Administration, should be exempt from any net tax increase that is proposed or included in legislation that raises the statutory borrowing authority of the United States.

SA 525. Mr. MCCAIN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

TITLE __—REDUCTION OF UNNECESSARY SPENDING

SECTION __. 1. SHORT TITLE AND PURPOSES.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This title may be cited as the “Reduce Unnecessary Spending Act of 2011”.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to create an optional fast-track procedure the President may use when submitting rescission requests, which would lead to an up-or-down vote by Congress on the President’s package of rescissions, without amendment.

SEC. __. 2. RESCISSIONS OF FUNDING.

The Impoundment Control Act of 1974 is amended by striking part C and inserting the following:

“PART C—EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION OF PROPOSED RESCISSIONS

“SEC. 1021. APPLICABILITY AND DISCLAIMER.

“The rules, procedures, requirements, and definitions in this part apply only to executive and legislative actions explicitly taken under this part. They do not apply to actions taken under part B or to other executive and legislative actions not taken under this part.

“SEC. 1022. DEFINITIONS.

“In this part:

“(1) The terms ‘appropriations Act’, ‘budget authority’, and ‘new budget authority’ have the same meanings as in section 3 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

“(2) The terms ‘account’, ‘current year’, ‘CBO’, and ‘OMB’ have the same meanings as in section 250 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 as in effect on September 30, 2002.

“(3) The term ‘days of session’ shall be calculated by excluding weekends and national holidays. Any day during which a chamber of Congress is not in session shall not be counted as a day of session of that chamber. Any day during which neither chamber is in session shall not be counted as a day of session of Congress.

“(4) The term ‘entitlement law’ means the statutory mandate or requirement of the United States to incur a financial obligation unless that obligation is explicitly conditioned on the appropriation in subsequent legislation of sufficient funds for that purpose, and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program.

“(5) The term ‘funding’ refers to new budget authority and obligation limits except to the extent that the funding is provided for entitlement law.

“(6) The term ‘rescind’ means to eliminate or reduce the amount of enacted funding.

“(7) The terms ‘withhold’ and ‘withholding’ apply to any executive action or inaction that precludes the obligation of funding at a time when it would otherwise have been available to an agency for obligation. The terms do not include administrative or preparatory actions undertaken prior to obligation in the normal course of implementing budget laws.

“SEC. 1023. TIMING AND PACKAGING OF RESCISSION REQUESTS.

“(a) TIMING.—If the President proposes that Congress rescind funding under the procedures in this part, OMB shall transmit a message to Congress containing the information specified in section 1024, and the message transmitting the proposal shall be sent to Congress not later than 45 calendar days after the date of enactment of the funding.

“(b) PACKAGING AND TRANSMITTAL OF REQUESTED RESCISSIONS.—Except as provided in subsection (c), for each piece of legislation that provides funding, the President shall request at most 1 package of rescissions and the rescissions in that package shall apply only to funding contained in that legislation. OMB shall deliver each message requesting a package of rescissions to the Secretary of the Senate if the Senate is not in session and to the Clerk of the House of Representatives if the House is not in session. OMB shall make a copy of the transmittal message publicly available, and shall publish in the Federal Register a notice of the message and information on how it can be obtained.

“(c) SPECIAL PACKAGING RULES.—After enactment of—

“(1) a joint resolution making continuing appropriations;

“(2) a supplemental appropriations bill; or

“(3) an omnibus appropriations bill;

covering some or all of the activities customarily funded in more than 1 regular appropriations bill, the President may propose as many as 2 packages rescinding funding contained in that legislation, each within the 45-day period specified in subsection (a). OMB shall not include the same rescission in both packages, and, if the President requests the rescission of more than one discrete amount of funding under the jurisdiction of a single subcommittee, OMB shall include each of those discrete amounts in the same package.

“SEC. 1024. REQUESTS TO RESCIND FUNDING.

“For each request to rescind funding under this part, the transmittal message shall—

“(1) specify—

“(A) the dollar amount to be rescinded;

“(B) the agency, bureau, and account from which the rescission shall occur;

“(C) the program, project, or activity within the account (if applicable) from which the rescission shall occur;

“(D) the amount of funding, if any, that would remain for the account, program, project, or activity if the rescission request is enacted; and

“(E) the reasons the President requests the rescission;

“(2) designate each separate rescission request by number; and

“(3) include proposed legislative language to accomplish the requested rescissions which may not include—

“(A) any changes in existing law, other than the rescission of funding; or

“(B) any supplemental appropriations, transfers, or reprogrammings.

“SEC. 1025. GRANTS OF AND LIMITATIONS ON PRESIDENTIAL AUTHORITY.

“(a) PRESIDENTIAL AUTHORITY TO WITHHOLD FUNDING.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and if the President proposes a rescission of funding under this part, OMB may, subject to the time limits provided in subsection (c), temporarily withhold that funding from obligation.

“(b) EXPEDITED PROCEDURES AVAILABLE ONLY ONCE PER BILL.—The President may not invoke the procedures of this part, or the authority to withhold funding granted by subsection (a), on more than 1 occasion for any Act providing funding.

“(c) TIME LIMITS.—OMB shall make available for obligation any funding withheld under subsection (a) on the earliest of—

“(1) the day on which the President determines that the continued withholding or reduction no longer advances the purpose of legislative consideration of the rescission request;

“(2) starting from the day on which OMB transmitted a message to Congress requesting the rescission of funding, 25 calendar days in which the House of Representatives has been in session or 25 calendar days in which the Senate has been in session, whichever occurs second; or

“(3) the last day after which the obligation of the funding in question can no longer be fully accomplished in a prudent manner before its expiration.

“(d) DEFICIT REDUCTION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Funds that are rescinded under this part shall be dedicated only to reducing the deficit or increasing the surplus.

“(2) ADJUSTMENT OF LEVELS IN THE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET.—Not later than 5 days after the date of enactment of an approval bill as provided under this part, the chairs of the Committees on the Budget of the Senate and the House of Representatives shall revise allocations and aggregates and other appropriate levels under the appropriate concurrent resolution on the budget to reflect the repeal or cancellation, and the applicable committees shall report revised suballocations pursuant to section 302(b), as appropriate.

“SEC. 1026. CONGRESSIONAL CONSIDERATION OF RESCISSION REQUESTS.

“(a) PREPARATION OF LEGISLATION TO CONSIDER A PACKAGE OF EXPEDITED RESCISSION REQUESTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the House of Representatives receives a package of expedited rescission requests, the Clerk shall prepare a House bill that only rescinds the amounts requested which shall read as follows:

“‘There are enacted the rescissions numbered [insert number or numbers] as set forth in the Presidential message of [insert date] transmitted under part C of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 as amended.’

“(2) EXCLUSION PROCEDURE.—The Clerk shall include in the bill each numbered rescission request listed in the Presidential package in question, except that the Clerk shall omit a numbered rescission request if the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House, after consulting with the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate, CBO, GAO, and the House and Senate committees that have jurisdiction over the funding, determines that the numbered rescission does not refer to funding or includes matter not permitted under a request to rescind funding.

“(b) INTRODUCTION AND REFERRAL OF LEGISLATION TO ENACT A PACKAGE OF EXPEDITED RESCISSIONS.—The majority leader or the minority leader of the House or Representatives, or a designee, shall (by request) introduce each bill prepared under subsection (a) not later than 4 days of session of the House after its transmittal, or, if no such bill is introduced within that period, any member of the House may introduce the required bill in the required form on the fifth or sixth day of session of the House after its transmittal. If such an expedited rescission bill is introduced in accordance with the preceding sentence, it shall be referred to the House committee of jurisdiction. A copy of the introduced House bill shall be transmitted to the Secretary of the Senate, who shall provide it to the Senate committee of jurisdiction.

“(c) HOUSE REPORT AND CONSIDERATION OF LEGISLATION TO ENACT A PACKAGE OF EXPEDITED RESCISSIONS.—The House committee of jurisdiction shall report without amendment the bill referred to it under subsection (b) not more than 5 days of session of the House after the referral. The committee may order the bill reported favorably, unfavorably, or without recommendation. If the committee has not reported the bill by the end of the 5-day period, the committee shall be automatically discharged from further consideration of the bill and it shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

“(d) HOUSE MOTION TO PROCEED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—After a bill to enact an expedited rescission package has been reported or the committee of jurisdiction has been discharged under subsection (c), it shall be in order to move to proceed to consider the bill in the House. A Member who wishes to move to proceed to consideration of the bill shall announce that fact, and the motion to proceed shall be in order only during a time designated by the Speaker within the legislative schedule for the next calendar day of legislative session or the one immediately following it.

“(2) FAILURE TO SET TIME.—If the Speaker does not designate a time under paragraph (1), 3 or more calendar days of legislative session after the bill has been reported or discharged, it shall be in order for any Member to move to proceed to consider the bill.

“(3) PROCEDURE.—A motion to proceed under this subsection shall not be in order after the House has disposed of a prior motion to proceed with respect to that package of expedited rescissions. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the motion to proceed, without intervening motion. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion to proceed has been disposed of shall not be in order.

“(4) REMOVAL FROM CALENDAR.—If 5 calendar days of legislative session have passed since the bill was reported or discharged under this subsection and no Member has made a motion to proceed, the bill shall be removed from the calendar.

“(e) HOUSE CONSIDERATION.—

“(1) CONSIDERED AS READ.—A bill consisting of a package of rescissions under this part shall be considered as read.

“(2) POINTS OF ORDER.—All points of order against the bill are waived, except that a point of order may be made that 1 or more numbered rescissions included in the bill would enact language containing matter not requested by the President or not permitted under this part as part of that package. If the Presiding Officer sustains such a point of order, the numbered rescission or rescissions that would enact such language are deemed to be automatically stripped from the bill and consideration proceeds on the bill as modified.

“(3) PREVIOUS QUESTION.—The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to its passage without intervening motion, except that 4 hours of debate equally divided and controlled by a proponent and an opponent are allowed, as well as 1 motion to further limit debate on the bill.

“(4) MOTION TO RECONSIDER.—A motion to reconsider the vote on passage of the bill shall not be in order.

“(f) SENATE CONSIDERATION.—

“(1) REFERRAL.—If the House of Representatives approves a House bill enacting a package of rescissions, that bill as passed by the House shall be sent to the Senate and referred to the Senate committee of jurisdiction.

“(2) COMMITTEE ACTION.—The committee of jurisdiction shall report without amendment the bill referred to it under this subsection not later than 3 days of session of the Senate after the referral. The committee may order the bill reported favorably, unfavorably, or without recommendation.

“(3) DISCHARGE.—If the committee has not reported the bill by the end of the 3-day period, the committee shall be automatically discharged from further consideration of the bill and it shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

“(4) MOTION TO PROCEED.—On the following day and for 3 subsequent calendar days in which the Senate is in session, it shall be in order for any Senator to move to proceed to consider the bill in the Senate. Upon such a motion being made, it shall be deemed to have been agreed to and the motion to reconsider shall be deemed to have been laid on the table.

“(5) DEBATE.—Debate on the bill in the Senate under this subsection, and all debatable motions and appeals in connection therewith, shall not exceed 10 hours, equally divided and controlled in the usual form. Debate in the Senate on any debatable motion or appeal in connection with such a bill shall be limited to not more than 1 hour, to be equally divided and controlled in the usual form. A motion to further limit debate on such a bill is not debatable.

“(6) MOTIONS NOT IN ORDER.—A motion to amend such a bill or strike a provision from it is not in order. A motion to recommit such a bill is not in order.

“(g) SENATE POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order under this part for the Senate to consider a bill approved by the House enacting a package of rescissions under this part if any numbered rescission in the bill would enact matter not requested by the President or not permitted under this Act as part of that package. If a point of order under this subsection is sustained, the bill may not be considered under this part.”

SEC. 3. TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—Section 1(b) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 is amended by striking the matter for part C of title X and inserting the following:

“PART C—EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION OF PROPOSED RESCISSIONS

“Sec. 1021. Applicability and disclaimer.

“Sec. 1022. Definitions.

“Sec. 1023. Timing and packaging of rescission requests.

“Sec. 1024. Requests to rescind funding.

“Sec. 1025. Grants of and limitations on presidential authority.

“Sec. 1026. Congressional consideration of rescission requests.”

(b) TEMPORARY WITHHOLDING.—Section 1013(c) of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 is amended by striking “section 1012” and inserting “section 1012 or section 1025”.

(c) RULEMAKING.—

(1) 904(a).—Section 904(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by striking “and 1017” and inserting “1017, and 1026”.

(2) 904(d)(1).—Section 904(d)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by striking “1017” and inserting “1017 or 1026”.

SEC. 4. AMENDMENTS TO PART A OF THE IMPOUNDMENT CONTROL ACT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part A of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 is amended by inserting at the end the following:

“SEC. 1002. SEVERABILITY.

“If the judicial branch of the United States finally determines that 1 or more of the provisions of parts B or C violate the Constitution of the United States, the remaining provisions of those parts shall continue in effect.”

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—Section 1(b) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 is amended by inserting at the end of the matter for part A of title X the following:

“Sec. 1002. Severability.”

SEC. 5. EXPIRATION.

Part C of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (as amended by this Act) shall expire on December 31, 2015.

SA 526. Mr. MCCAIN (for himself and Mr. RUBIO) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, add the following:

TITLE II—DEBT BUY-DOWN

SECTION 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “Debt Buy-Down Act”.

SEC. 202. DESIGNATION OF AMOUNTS FOR REDUCTION OF PUBLIC DEBT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 61 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to returns and records) is amended by adding at the end the following new part:

“PART IX—DESIGNATION FOR REDUCTION OF PUBLIC DEBT

“Sec. 6097. Designation.

“SEC. 6097. DESIGNATION.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Every individual with adjusted income tax liability for any taxable year may designate that a portion of such liability (not to exceed 10 percent thereof) shall be used to reduce the public debt.

“(b) MANNER AND TIME OF DESIGNATION.—A designation under subsection (a) may be made with respect to any taxable year only at the time of filing the return of tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year. The designation shall be made on the first page of the return or on the page bearing the taxpayer’s signature.

“(c) ADJUSTED INCOME TAX LIABILITY.—For purposes of this section, the adjusted income tax liability of an individual for any taxable year is the income tax liability of the individual for the taxable year determined under section 6096(b), reduced by any amount designated under section 6096(a).”

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of parts for such subchapter A is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"PART IX. DESIGNATION FOR REDUCTION OF PUBLIC DEBT".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years ending after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 203. PUBLIC DEBT REDUCTION TRUST FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 98 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to trust fund code) is amended by adding at the end the following section:

"SEC. 9511. PUBLIC DEBT REDUCTION TRUST FUND.

"(a) CREATION OF TRUST FUND.—There is established in the Treasury of the United States a trust fund to be known as the 'Public Debt Reduction Trust Fund', consisting of any amount appropriated or credited to the Trust Fund as provided in this section or section 9602(b).

"(b) TRANSFERS TO TRUST FUND.—There are hereby appropriated to the Public Debt Reduction Trust Fund amounts equivalent to the amounts designated under section 6097 (relating to designation for public debt reduction).

"(c) EXPENDITURES.—Amounts in the Public Debt Reduction Trust Fund shall be used by the Secretary for purposes of paying at maturity, or to redeem or buy before maturity, any obligation of the Federal Government included in the public debt (other than an obligation held by the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund or the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund). Any obligation which is paid, redeemed, or bought with amounts from the Public Debt Reduction Trust Fund shall be canceled and retired and may not be reissued."

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for such subchapter is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"Sec. 9511. Public Debt Reduction Trust Fund."

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to amounts received after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 204. TAXPAYER-GENERATED SEQUESTRATION OF FEDERAL SPENDING TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT.

(a) SEQUESTRATION TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT.—Part C of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 is amended by inserting after section 253 the following new section:

"SEC. 253A. SEQUESTRATION TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT.

"(a) SEQUESTRATION.—Notwithstanding sections 255 and 256, within 15 days after Congress adjourns to end a session, and on the same day as sequestration (if any) under sections 251, 252, and 253, and under section 5(b) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010, but after any sequestration required by those sections, there shall be a sequestration equivalent to the estimated aggregate amount designated under section 6097 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the last taxable year ending one year before the beginning of that session of Congress, as estimated by the Department of the Treasury on October 1 and as modified by the total of—

"(1) any amounts by which net discretionary spending is reduced by legislation below the discretionary spending limits enacted after the enactment of this section related to the fiscal year subject to the sequestration (or, in the absence of such limits, any net deficit change from the baseline amount calculated under section 257; and

"(2) the net deficit change that has resulted from all direct spending legislation enacted after the enactment of this section related to the fiscal year subject to the sequestration, as estimated by OMB.

If the reduction in spending under paragraphs (1) and (2) for a fiscal year is greater than the estimated aggregate amount designated under section 6097 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 respecting that fiscal year, then there shall be no sequestration under this section.

"(b) APPLICABILITY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided by paragraph (2), each account of the United States shall be reduced by a dollar amount calculated by multiplying the level of budgetary resources in that account at that time by the uniform percentage necessary to carry out subsection (a). All obligational authority reduced under this section shall be done in a manner that makes such reductions permanent.

"(2) EXEMPT ACCOUNTS.—No order issued under this part may—

"(A) reduce benefits payable to the old-age and survivors insurance program established under title II of the Social Security Act;

"(B) reduce retired or retiree pay payable to a member or former member of the uniformed services; or

"(C) reduce payments for net interest (all of major functional category 900)."

(b) REPORTS.—Section 254 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by adding at the end of the table the following new item:

"October 1 .....	Department of Treasury report to Congress estimating amount of income tax designated pursuant to section 6097 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986."
------------------	--

(2) in subsection (c)(1), by inserting "and sequestration to reduce the public debt," after "sequestration";

(3) in subsection (c), by redesignating paragraph (5) as paragraph (6) and by inserting after paragraph (4) the following new paragraph:

"(5) REPORTS ON SEQUESTRATION TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT.—The preview reports shall set forth for the budget year estimates for each of the following:

"(A) The aggregate amount designated under section 6097 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the last taxable year ending before the budget year.

"(B) The amount of reductions required under section 253A and the deficit remaining after those reductions have been made.

"(C) The sequestration percentage necessary to achieve the required reduction in accounts under section 253A(b)."; and

(4) in subsection (f), by redesignating paragraphs (4) and (5) as paragraphs (5) and (6), respectively, and by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph:

"(4) REPORTS ON SEQUESTRATION TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT.—The final reports shall contain all of the information contained in the public debt taxation designation report required on October 1."

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of contents in section 250(a) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 253 the following new item:

"Sec. 253A. Sequestration to reduce the public debt."

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Notwithstanding section 275(b) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, the expiration date set forth in that section shall not apply to the amendments made by this section. The amendments made by this section shall cease to have any effect after the first fiscal year during which there is no public debt.

NOTICE OF HEARING

COMMITTEE ON HEALTH, EDUCATION, LABOR, AND PENSIONS

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I wish to announce that the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions will meet in open session on Thursday, July 14, 2011, at 10 a.m. to conduct a hearing entitled "Lessons From the Field: Learning From What Works for Employment for Persons with Disabilities."

For further information regarding this meeting, please contact Andrew Imperato at (202) 228-3453.

RECOGNIZING HEROIC EFFORTS OF FIREFIGHTERS

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to consideration of S. Res. 229.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 229) recognizing the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain numerous wildfires that have affected thousands of people throughout the United States.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be laid on the table, with no intervening action or debate on this matter, and any statements be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 229) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.
The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 229

Whereas every State in the United States has been affected by wildfire in 2011;

Whereas firefighters and residents have had to contend with extreme and erratic fire behavior and rapid rates of fire spread;

Whereas, as of June 12, 2011, more than 32,189 wildfires have burned more than 4,700,000 acres of land, which represents more acres burned than in all of 2010 and approximately 600,000 more acres than the 50-year average of total acres burned in the United States in an entire year;

Whereas, as of June 12, 2011—

(1) the Southwestern States have reported more than 1,600 fires that have burned more than 1,700,000 acres;

(2) the Southern States have reported more than 27,000 fires that have burned more than 2,400,000 acres;

(3) the Northern and Central Rocky Mountain States have reported 818 fires that have burned more than 250,000 acres;

(4) the State of California and Great Basin Region have reported more than 7,200 fires that have burned more than 21,000 acres;

(5) the Northwestern States and Alaska have reported more than 400 fires that have burned more than 260,000 acres; and

(6) the Eastern States have reported more than 3,500 fires that have burned more than 41,000 acres;

Whereas, as of June 29, 2011, firefighters and personnel from the Federal, State, and county levels have responded overwhelmingly to battle wildfires throughout the United States, filling more than 95,600 requests for firefighter crew members; and

Whereas the brave men and women who answered the calls for assistance have worked to minimize the displacement of thousands of residents and to protect against loss of life and property: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the heroic efforts of firefighters to contain wildfires and protect lives, homes, natural resources, and rural economies throughout the United States;

(2) encourages the people and government officials of the United States to express their appreciation to the brave men and women serving in the firefighting services throughout the United States;

(3) encourages the people and communities of the United States to be diligent in preventing and preparing for wildfires; and

(4) encourages the people of the United States to keep in their thoughts those who have experienced loss as a result of wildfire.

MEASURE READ THE FIRST TIME—S. 1340

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am told there is a bill at the desk due for a first reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the bill by title for the first time.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1340) to cut, cap, and balance the Federal budget.

Mr. REID. I now ask for a second reading in order to place the bill on the calendar under the provisions of rule XIV, and I also object to my own request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection having been heard, the bill will receive its second reading on the next legislative day.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, JULY 11,
2011

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 2 p.m. on Monday, July 11, 2011; that following the prayer and pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, and the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day; that following any leader remarks, the Senate resume the motion to proceed to Calendar No. 93, S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit postcloture, under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. REID. Mr. President, there will be a rollcall vote on Monday at approximately 5:30 p.m. on the motion to proceed to S. 1323.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY,
JULY 11, 2011, AT 2 P.M.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it stand adjourned under the previous order.

There being objection, the Senate, at 5:51 p.m., adjourned until Monday, July 11, 2011, at 2 p.m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Thursday, July 7, 2011

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. WEBSTER).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
July 7, 2011.

I hereby appoint the Honorable DANIEL WEBSTER to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

JOHN A. BOEHNER,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 5, 2011, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 1 hour and each Member other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip limited to 5 minutes each, but in no event shall debate continue beyond 11:50 a.m.

SYRIA'S BLOODY SPRING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF) for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, there are moments in the lives of nations when the existing order is suddenly revealed as bereft of legitimacy and no longer viable. The wave of unrest spreading across the Arab world, touched off by the self-immolation of a Tunisian fruit vendor tired of petty humiliation by corrupt governments, has exposed the rot of decades of caprice, corruption, and incompetence. That this one man's desperate act could lead to the downfall of the governments of Tunisia, Egypt, and perhaps Yemen is testament to the pent up frustration of millions of people who were denied the basic rights and economic opportunity that we take for granted here in the West.

But it is in Syria, where the future of the Arab Spring seemingly hangs in the balance and where the security services have acted with the least restraint and maximum violence. Like marauding armies of old, select units of military and security services troops have been moving from city to city in a quest to quash the ever-spreading demonstrations that have become a feature of life in Syria.

Deraa, a town of some 75,000 lying near the border with Jordan, has emerged as one of the centers of the Syrian uprising against the 40 years of rule by the Assad family. Army and security forces have repeatedly assaulted the town and surrounding villages, killing hundreds of civilians and arresting anyone suspected of taking part in demonstrations against the regime. On April 29 in the village of Jiza, the Syrian secret police rounded up anybody it thought was involved with the protests, including Hamza Ali al-Khateeb, who had gone to watch the demonstration with other members of his family.

For a month, Hamza's family waited for him to return, worried but hopeful that he would be released unharmed. It was not to be. On May 30, Hamza's mutilated body was returned to them. He had been tortured, subjected to repeated electric shocks, and whipped with cables. His eyes were swollen and black, and there were identical bullet wounds where he had been apparently shot through both arms, the bullets lodging in his belly. On Hamza's chest was a deep, dark burn mark. His neck was broken, and parts of his body were cut off. Hamza Ali al-Khateeb was 13 years old. Video of the boy's shattered body has been seen by millions on television and the Internet.

Hamza, like the Tunisian fruit vendor who set himself alight, has become a symbol to his countrymen and the world of the depravity and illegitimacy of a regime that would torture its own children to death.

Our ability to bring additional economic pressure on Syria is limited. Its economy is already under immense strain. It is small, weak, and isolated. Political pressure, in the form of a U.N. security resolution condemning the violence and crackdown, has been blocked by Russia and China. And there is dread over what will happen when Assad falls, given the internal divisions between Sunni and Shia, Muslim and Alawi, Christian and Druze. The confessional and sectarian splits are as pronounced as in Lebanon, the potential for large scale violence as great as Iraq.

The dangers are real, but the promise of what began in Tunisia and is now materializing in Egypt and elsewhere is also real. People of courage can determine their own destiny, and it need not be one of hereditary dictatorship, kleptocracy, or lack of opportunity and stagnation. In the Arab world, as elsewhere, people should be free to choose their own government to represent them and to chart peace with their neighbors.

To conclude otherwise means that we relegate tens of millions of people to suffer the capricious ruthlessness of their despots for generation after generation, or that we are willing to trade the illusion of stability for the harsh reality of their suffering. That is not the choice we made for ourselves 235 years ago, and it is not one that we should presume to make for others.

Bashar Assad is a ruthless tyrant whose time has passed and who clings to power only by virtue of brutal force. Our role and that of the international community should be to work with Syrian opposition figures and others to advance a negotiated transition to a new Syrian Government that will represent all Syrians and prevent the trading in of one set of thugs for another. The Arab Spring cannot be allowed to fail because of brutal repression, the specter of religious fanaticism, a fear of the unknown, or the cynicism born of unmet expectations. The region's many millions must have the freedom to write a new chapter for themselves and their posterity.

In this, the younger Assad has taken a page from his father, who unleashed his troops in 1982 to suppress a revolt by the Muslim Brotherhood in the city of Hama, an offensive that may have cost as many as 20,000 civilian lives. Indeed, history may be repeating itself as Hama has become a focus of both anti-government activity on the one hand, and the use of extreme violence by the Assad government on the other.

For American policymakers, Syria presents a collection of overlapping and sometimes contradictory challenges. Like his father, President Assad has repeatedly tantalized the United States and the west with the possibility of a new opening, but he has never followed through. Syria's illegal and clandestine nuclear program, its alliance with Iran and its meddling in Lebanon, a policy that culminated in the 2005 murder of Lebanese Prime Minister Rafik Hariri, form a compelling case that the Syrian people and the world would be better off with a new leader in Damascus.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND RELIGION UNDER ATTACK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) for 5 minutes.

□ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., □ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, freedom of speech, the free exercise of religion, two of our most important, fundamental principles that this Nation was founded upon, have recently become under attack by none other than this Federal Government. The authoritarian behavior and attack on the First Amendment rights is an attack now on the veterans that have served our Nation.

Last week, while in Houston, Texas, I met with members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. They shared with me very descriptive and disturbing stories about the aggressive and hostile censorship of religion and speech that is occurring at none other than the veterans cemetery in Houston, the second largest cemetery for our veterans in the United States, next to Arlington, which is right down the street across from the Potomac River.

The director of the Houston National Cemetery, Arleen Ocasio, is accused of attacking the constitutional rights of our military who have fought and died for this country. The very rights that they fought and died for are being under attack by none other than this director. The thought that someone would have the audacity to censor religion and speech anywhere is despicable, but censoring the funeral services of the veterans who spent their lives protecting the First Amendment is malicious and it's not forgivable.

Director Ocasio is an unelected bureaucrat, a nonveteran who is clearly out of touch with our veterans and the Constitution. And it's unbelievable that she would be put in charge of the sacred burial ground in Houston, Texas.

Here's what the accusations against her are, according to the Veterans of Foreign Wars who I met with. And these are the men who go to those funeral services and are the honor guard for America's war dead that are buried. And here's what they say that she has done. The chapel that is on the premises has been closed. The Bible has been removed. The cross has been taken out of the chapel. We don't know what the chapel's being used for. Some say a storage place. Some say a meeting place. Some say it's not being used at all. This is what she is accused of doing.

She censors the prayers that are being given at the burial services of our veterans. She's banned the word "God," the words "Jesus Christ" from these funeral services. And it is the very utterance of the word "God" that's put this director in a tizzy, so much so that she wants to approve all the prayers that are given at these private veterans funerals that take place on these sacred grounds.

There are 60 burials a week of our veterans at Houston National Cemetery. And this action has got to cease, this unconstitutional action by the director. It's not the business of the Federal Government to be engaged in anti-religious activity, especially at what some consider to be a religious ceremony, the burial of our veterans. The philosophy behind such politics is anti-Christian, anti-religious, and anti-American.

Mr. Speaker, the First Amendment is first because it's the most important. It protects the freedom of speech, the freedom of press, the freedom of free exercise of religion, and the freedom to peaceably assemble. And that is under attack at this cemetery because the director wants to be in charge and make sure that none of these burials are a religious ceremony. And that's got to stop.

This cemetery, Mr. Speaker, does not belong to Director Ocasio. In fact, I don't think it belongs to the Federal Government. It belongs to the veterans who have served this Nation all over the world in all wars. It belongs to them, and it belongs to their families who bury them. And religious censorship has got to cease at this cemetery. Americans are irate about this government attack on religion. I have heard from numerous veterans and loved ones all over the country who are shocked that this government, our government, would allow such a thing to occur.

□ 1010

One man in particular stood out who called my office and he was in tears, Mr. Speaker, because his father, a World War II veteran, was days away from being buried in Houston National Cemetery. And his father had heard about the censorship of religion and speech, and he doesn't want to be buried in that cemetery with other veterans any longer.

So no wonder that so many people are shocked by the actions of this director. After all, it reminds me of the old Soviet Union, the way they used to censor speech and prevent the free exercise of religion.

The First Amendment is sacred. Funerals are sacred; and when our veterans are buried, that soil becomes sacred. And this action has to stop, and if these actions are true, the director needs to be terminated.

The government's attack on the very freedoms that these people have lived and died for is a violation of the freedom of speech and the freedom to freely exercise religion promised to all Americans in the Constitution, and that must be upheld.

And that's just the way it is.

CIVIL AND HUMAN RIGHTS CRISIS IN PUERTO RICO

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. GUTIERREZ) for 5 minutes.

Mr. GUTIERREZ. Yesterday, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Educational Fund, and the National Institute for Latino Policy published this full-page ad in Roll Call, one of the key newspapers here on Capitol Hill.

These respected civil rights and policy organizations have investigated and denounced the civil and human rights crisis in Puerto Rico. They bought a full-page ad to alert Congress about the "serious concerns about civil and human rights abuses against the citizens of Puerto Rico by their government, including the infringement on the rights of free speech, peaceful assembly and freedom from police violence and abuse."

And they make an essential point: If these abuses were happening anywhere in the 50 States, they would not be tolerated. These abuses would be on the front page of every newspaper, as they are in Puerto Rico.

It's time for this Congress to start paying attention. Students and working people, journalists and environmentalists in Puerto Rico are paying attention because the freedoms we take for granted in America are being denied to them each day.

I would like today to remind you what has happened. On this floor I have condemned the use of heavily armed riot squads against peaceful student and labor protesters at the University of Puerto Rico and in the streets of San Juan. I have denounced the beatings of students by police armed with night sticks, the use of pepper spray on protesters and even journalists, the groping of female students.

I have stood up to defend the Puerto Rican Bar Association, a clear voice for justice that has been attacked by the ruling party and their legislature and their allies on the Federal bench.

I have spoken on the House floor and leaders have spoken on the island about the environmental emergency the ruling party has brought on to Puerto Rico. The government declared an energy emergency to avoid routine fact-finding and licensing procedures so that it could build a 100-mile long, $500 million gas pipeline on a tropical island that is designed more to help wealthy insiders than the people of Puerto Rico.

While actions in Wisconsin and Ohio and other States that threaten workers' rights are discussed routinely in the U.S., the fact that the Governor of Puerto Rico has fired tens of thousands of public employees and canceled labor agreements, all contrary to contract promises, is largely unknown.

But Tea Partiers don't rejoice: he has also doubled the property taxes on everyone.

Even the courts are under attack on the island. This Governor has packed the Puerto Rican Supreme Court with activists of the ruling party. He created two new positions on the supreme court in order to add two new judges to a court that already had a majority of the ruling party. He did this, of course, despite the fact of having denounced Hugo Chavez when he believed he was doing the same thing in Venezuela.

Just 2 weeks ago, the ruling party yet again changed the law so they could fire the island's ombudswoman for the elderly, who had years left on her 10-year appointment, because of her independence and vocal disagreement with the ruling party.

And because I have spoken out against the ruling party of Puerto Rico, I have earned a resolution of censure from the ruling party's legislature. I have earned a full-page ad in Roll Call condemning me for using my right to speech.

Only the ruling party of Puerto Rico would respond to complaints about free speech and civil rights abuses by officially passing a resolution condemning someone for speaking. Should any of my colleagues not believe this absurdity, you just need to come to my office where I display proudly these documents. I invite you to come and see them.

I ask my colleagues today: please pay attention to what is happening in Puerto Rico. If it were happening in Illinois, New York, Texas or Wyoming, or any of the States of our Union, this Congress would have great concerns.

One meaningful first step would be to join me in urging the Department of Justice to complete the investigation that they have initiated and to police abuses in Puerto Rico that started in 2008 and promptly release the results. I would also ask my colleagues and their staffs to attend the congressional briefing organized by the ACLU next Tuesday, July 12, at 10 a.m.

And, finally, I ask my friends and colleagues to do what we do whenever we see regimes that refuse to treat people fairly: please speak out for the values that define us as Americans. Please join me in standing for liberty and justice for all.

THE VOTE TO INCREASE DEBT LIMIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS) for 5 minutes.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, today the United States Government owes close to $14.3 trillion. It's estimated by the Congressional Budget Office that by the year 2021, the government will spend 100 percent of every dollar raised in revenue on entitlements. And yet we are being asked to raise the debt limit to $16.3 trillion. That's a $2 trillion increase, or 14 percent increase. In 2010, our national GDP was $14.6 trillion. Raising the debt to $16.3 trillion means our debt ceiling will surpass our country's GDP.

And yet for the 81st time since 1940, we are being asked again to raise the debt ceiling. In 2002, our debt stood at $6.2 trillion. Now, not even 10 years later, we are asked to raise it to $16.2 trillion. That's a 250 percent increase, or an average of 16.7 percent increase per year. Obviously, continuing on this path next year, it is likely we will be asked in this Chamber to raise the debt ceiling to $19 trillion. That's staggering.

In keeping with this 70-year tradition, we are certain to force our Nation's spiraling and out-of-control debt onto the backs of our country's children and grandchildren. Raising the debt ceiling today without reform will merely lead to a new call, a new call to raise the debt again tomorrow.

Is the United States disciplined enough to solve this debt problem through austerity and productivity? I think it is. Yet I believe we can, but only if we break this tradition of continued spending.

Now recently a constituent of mine wrote a simple letter to the editor of my hometown paper and this what is he said: "If you and your wife haven't made a budget for the last 2 years, and now you have maxed-out the $14,300 credit limit on your Visa card, do you: A, expect Visa to raise your limit to $16,700; B, print counterfeit money to cover your debts; C, borrow more money; or, D, sell the Cadillac."

Responsible Americans would sell the Cadillac. It's time for the Federal Government to do the same thing: reduce spending or sell unneeded assets.

We must begin to closely scrutinize our bills and eliminate wasteful and fraudulent programs, sunset some of them. As we negotiate the upcoming vote on the debt ceiling, we should ensure that any cut in spending exceeds any increase in the debt limit. Selling the Cadillac is meaningless when you continue to max out on your credit card. The point here is to make a difference in our debt, not to merely provide a vehicle to continue Washington's spending addiction.

Moreover, any future spending must be restricted. We cannot sell the Cadillac this year only to buy a Mercedes Benz next year. Again, we must begin to live within our means.

I know that leadership is working tirelessly to ensure that a compromise can be reached and the Republicans' demands can be met, and it appears we are making progress.

□ 1020

But, the President has in one breath asked both parties to leave their rhetoric at the door, but then in the same next breath he accused Republicans of refusing to cut tax loopholes for the rich in order to curb the debt problem. But that alone won't do it. Beyond being contradictory and self-serving, these accusations demonstrate that Democrats continue to misunderstand the real problem. CBO has nailed it.

They recently revealed that it is runaway spending, not a lack of revenue, that is driving our debt today. According to CBO's long-term budget forecast, even with a tax increase that raises revenues from its historic 18 percent of GDP to 23 percent of GDP, the national debt will continue to grow unless we have the spending reductions.

Everyone here in Congress understands how important this vote is, but surely after the CBO analysis, we must confront the fact that spending is growing relentlessly and needs to be placed under control. Therefore, to move the debt ceiling up another $2 trillion, we need to see corresponding spending reductions regardless—regardless—without tax increases. Now is the time to do it. It can be done. And it must be done today.

WHAT DOES $10 BILLION A MONTH BUY?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, since 2005, I have spoken from this very spot 399 times. On nearly every occasion that House rules allow, I have stood to deliver a 5-minute special order speech highlighting the moral outrage of the United States' continued military engagements in Iraq, Afghanistan and now Libya. I speak of the need also for a new Smart Security to keep America safe.

Today will be my 399th speech. I look forward to reaching number 400 next week, and I will continue this drumbeat until my last day as a Member of Congress, which gives me approximately 18 months, 1½ years, time to bring our troops safely home.

During this week, the week that the House is debating defense appropriations, I thought it would be fitting to focus on war spending, on the staggering costs that taxpayers are being asked to bear for our military occupations.

Ten billion dollars a month is a lot of money. That's the price tag for the privilege of continuing to wage a 10-year war against Afghanistan: $10 billion a month. The American people who are writing that check have a right to ask and to get answers to some very important questions: Where is that money going, and what exactly is it accomplishing? What are we getting for our $10 billion a month? Are we more secure here at home? Is the Afghanistan central government introducing the rule of law? Have we not already defeated al Qaeda? And so who are we fighting and why?

For $10 billion a month, Mr. Speaker, our expectations as taxpayers, as Americans, and as Members of Congress, should be high. Is it too much to think that $10 billion a month could buy a stable ally, an ally capable of standing on its own two feet, taking responsibility for its own security, and having respect for the rule of law? Instead, corruption and chaos are ruling the day in Kabul. Basic government institutions are failing to provide services. President Karzai has tried to establish a special court, in fact, for the purpose of stripping 62 members of Parliament of their seats. The financial system is teetering on the brink of collapse with the head of the central bank fleeing the country and accusing Karzai's regime of fraud and cronyism.

And just a few days ago, Mr. Speaker, a brawl broke out on the floor of the Afghan Parliament with one member throwing a shoe at another member when a motion was proposed to impeach President Karzai. For $10 billion a month, is it not too much to ask that the Afghan Parliament not look like an episode of the "Jerry Springer Show"?

There is so much we could do with $10 billion a month right here at home, especially at a moment when so many of our people are struggling and so many of our communities so badly need public investment, especially at a moment when the clock is ticking toward a catastrophic default on the national debt. I'm not suggesting that we ignore or that we run away from Afghanistan's deep-seated problems, but I believe we cannot begin to address their needs with a military solution. It will never work. It is time to reinvest at pennies on the dollar in Smart Security efforts, humanitarian and civilian aid, aid that will promote democracy, and economic support to address poverty and to rebuild infrastructure in Afghanistan.

Mr. Speaker, this is a moment and this is a time where we put our priorities in order, but it's not a job for our troops. They have served with unbelievable valor. Now it's time to bring them safely home and invest in a humanitarian way in Afghanistan.

DEBT CEILING SOLUTIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. OLSON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. OLSON. Mr. Speaker, Congress has a very important decision to make very soon on whether or not to increase the national debt ceiling. Today, our national debt limit is a staggering $14.3 trillion, and the President is seeking a $2.2 trillion increase in our debt limit. An increase to our Nation's debt ceiling that is not accompanied by equal or larger spending reductions would be reckless and arrogant.

Speaker BOEHNER was right when he said, "It's true that allowing America to default would be irresponsible, but it would be more irresponsible to raise the debt ceiling without simultaneously taking dramatic steps to reduce spending and reform the budget process."

This debate is a unique opportunity to achieve significant and serious spending reforms in Washington and to prove to the American people that their employees, the Members of the United States Congress, are listening to them.

I believe this is our best chance for the foreseeable future to obtain substantial and credible long-term deficit reductions, to reform the way Washington spends taxpayer dollars, and save America from ruin.

Elections matter. Last fall changed the debate here in Washington. We may not be cutting spending as fast as some of us prefer, and quite frankly, I have been frustrated by the pace. But the discussion has shifted to how much should we cut, not how much should we spend. This distinction is critical to getting our Nation's fiscal house in order and one that has been driven by conservatives in the House.

House Republicans have developed a three-fold "cut, cap and balance" strategy that includes deep spending cuts, enforceable spending caps and a balanced budget amendment with strong protections against Federal tax increases. These proposals will ensure that the Federal Government adheres to the same parameters that families and businesses live with every single day.

The time for irresponsible Federal spending is over. With each passing day, our Nation's fiscal problems only compound, leaving our children and grandchildren with a larger legacy of debt. My colleagues on the other side have advocated an increase to our debt with no strings attached. They continue to stand for business as usual right here in Washington, DC. But we cannot ignore the problem, nor can we simply tax our way out of this mess.

Furthermore, in the event we fully reach the debt ceiling, we cannot trust the White House to prioritize our debt payments, nor can we trust the administration not to default on our obligations. The American people must remember that if we default on our debt, the executive branch would have full control over what programs get cut, not Congress.

□ 1030

Mr. Speaker, the only resolution to this problem is to secure trillions in spending cuts and put our Nation on a solid fiscal path to financial sanity, and ensure a strong and prosperous future for our children and our grandchildren.

IMPROVING FEDERAL GRANT SOLICITATION PROCESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Puerto Rico (Mr. PIERLUISI) for 5 minutes.

Mr. PIERLUISI. Mr. Speaker, each year, 26 Federal agencies award over half a trillion dollars in grant funding. Earlier this year, Congress significantly changed the manner in which the Federal Government allocates funding. In the past, State and local governments and nonprofit organizations spent a great deal of time trying to persuade individual Members of Congress to earmark funds to support local projects.

While debate will no doubt continue on the value of congressionally directed spending, the reality is that, at least for the time being, the days of earmarks are over. With a ban on earmarks, a greater emphasis will now be placed on competitive grants, whereby applicants from across the Nation compete for funding made available for different purposes.

In theory, a larger role for competitive grants in the Federal appropriations process holds promise. Under a well-administered grant competition, an application is judged on its merits. In practice, however, an increased emphasis on competitive grants will only improve the overall process if the Federal Government announces and publicizes grant opportunities in a clear and organized manner. Grant seeking will not be a true meritocracy if the process of identifying, applying for, and obtaining Federal grants is clouded in mystery and confusion and understood only by paid experts.

In 1999, Congress created a Web site, grants.gov, which allows applicants to search and apply for grants online. But much more needs to be done to make the grant solicitation process as transparent and user friendly as possible.

Many of my constituents have expressed frustration with the manner in which the Federal Government makes grant opportunities known. Often, a potential grantee will seek to apply for needed funding only to learn that the deadline for the most relevant grant passed days or weeks earlier. In other instances, prospective applicants will search grants.gov, but become frustrated upon finding that they need to scroll through pages and pages of grant listings, some of which are outdated or have not been funded by Congress.

To address these problems, I recently introduced H.R. 2393. This bipartisan legislation would make two important changes to the Federal grant solicitation process. First, my bill would require each Federal agency, within 2 months of the start of any fiscal year, to submit a forecast of all grants solicitations that the agency expects to issue for that year. Such a forecast would allow prospective applicants to determine in advance which grant opportunities they wish to apply for.

The second improvement my bill would make is to require each grant solicitation forecast or listing to be organized by detailed subject area.

Grants.gov currently organizes grant opportunities by agency and by very broad areas such as energy or housing. As a result, when an applicant seeks to search for health-related grants, for example, he or she must scroll through 30 pages of grant listings. My bill would require grants.gov, as well as all other Federal agencies, to organize grant opportunities by specific subject areas so that the applicants can more easily identify those grants that are most likely to address their needs.

Now, let me turn to Puerto Rico, which I represent in this Congress. And it pains me that some statements were made earlier on this floor regarding my beautiful island and its government. Puerto Rico shines because of its democracy. Every 4 years we have free elections, and our voters go out and express their will at the rate of 80 percent, which is something that we are very proud of.

We do have a police department in Puerto Rico, actually the second-largest in the Nation, and there is an ongoing civil rights investigation by the Department of Justice. But I am sure, and I can vouch, that the police department of Puerto Rico is doing everything it can so that any civil rights violations are corrected and are not repeated.

Again, I wish when we talk about Puerto Rico in this Congress, we talk about all of the positive things that are happening in that island, including our people's love of their American citizenship and their rights under the U.S. Constitution.

TOUGH DECISIONS TO SOLVE FISCAL PROBLEMS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KINZINGER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, let's think about something very quickly. What is the most basic job that we can do—in the House of Representatives or in the Senate of the United States—in government?

One of the most basic jobs we do is to pass a budget; to figure out where we are going to spend money and how we are going to spend money. Yet it has been 799 days today since the other Chamber has passed a budget out of the Senate. Since that day, we have added $3.2 trillion in debt to our country and we have spent $7.3 trillion.

Now we are finding ourselves bumping up against this debt ceiling, against the statutory limit of where we can spend and borrow money. We are on this record clip, this record pace to blow through this debt ceiling, and we are here.

In 2006, now-President Obama stood in front of the Senate and said that raising America's debt limit is a sign of leadership failure. Well, sounds like we are in that position today. Five years later, we are once again talking about an over $2 trillion increase in our Nation's ability to borrow money, which we are tacking on to the responsibility of our kids and our grandkids. Once again, we're back.

We have an extreme failure of leadership in this country that is of epic proportions. We know, we look at our budget, we see over a trillion-and-a-half dollars this year that we are spending that we haven't taken in, and yet we are continuing to haggle about whether we need to just raise taxes or have spending cuts.

We have a spending problem in this country; we don't have a revenue problem in this country. We have a problem with how much money we are spending.

I am a new Member of Congress. I came here and was sworn in in January, and within a couple of days the President of the United States asked us to increase the debt limit without any corresponding cuts or anything along those lines. I actually thought it was a joke. I mean, really, we are going to add another $2 trillion onto our debt and not even take seriously the fact that we are just piling on more and more interest.

I mean, we're spending more in interest right now than we do in the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan combined. Think about that; two wars, and we are spending more in interest. And it is only going to increase every year.

I can tell you, the youth of America, the current generation that is in charge in America is all sitting around saying at some point the insanity has to end. You know, I travel around the 11th Congressional District in Illinois, which includes Joliet, places like Ottawa and Morris, Bloomington, Princeton, Peru. And you know what I hear from people? I don't hear them say, Congressman KINZINGER, boy, we sure have a revenue problem in this country; don't we? I hear them say, Congressman, we are spending too much money. We have a spending problem.

The President is asking us to increase the debt limit. We have to be willing to have at least as much as we are going to increase the debt limit or more in spending cuts for us to even consider it at this point. It has got to be done. And how best are we going to get out of debt? Yes, we have to have these spending cuts. And, yes, we have to get serious about our budget. But we have to get America back to work.

I think it was put well yesterday. Mr. President, where are the jobs? Where are the jobs? Mr. Speaker, I'm asking: Where are the jobs?

It is time that we get America back to work. We turn people then from tax recipients to taxpayers. And as much as I like to say "where are the jobs?" let me ask another question: Where is the leadership?

We've got to make tough decisions. It's time that we stand up and say I'm tired of kicking the can down the road. I wasn't sent to Washington, D.C., to kick the can down the road. I was sent here to be a leader and to make tough decisions. And I can tell you, House Republicans are ready to be leaders and make tough decisions, but we have to have willing partners on the other side.

I know 2012 is just around the corner. I get it. I understand that. But 2011 is still now. America can't afford to forget that 2011 still exists and to just focus on the next election. We have to focus long term on the next generation. Let's get our budgets in gear. Let's have a real serious discussion. And for goodness sake, let's put politics aside and make sure that we are still the strongest country in the world.

□ 1040

IN RECOGNITION OF NCTC DIRECTOR MICHAEL E. LEITER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the distinguished efforts of the National Counterterrorism Center Director, Michael E. Leiter.

Following his exemplary service as the Assistant Director and Deputy General Counsel for the Commission on the Intelligence Capabilities of the U.S. regarding Weapons of Mass Destruction, Mr. Leiter continued his public service as the Deputy Chief of Staff in the Office of the Director of National Intelligence. He was very successful in organizing staffing and in establishing processes for this new but critical office.

As such, he was elected to become the Principal Deputy Director at the National Counterterrorism Center. Because of his superlative efforts, in June 2008, he was confirmed as the Director of NCTC where he has focused on counterterrorism, community development and mission execution. His focus has prepared the CT analysts of tomorrow to meet the challenges ahead, and his management style has encouraged information sharing and the free flow of ideas.

Director Leiter has always understood that results mattered and that a success rate of less than 100 percent meant lives lost. Some of the center's most noticeable accomplishments will remain largely secret; however, Director Leiter's strategic investments will pay dividends for many years to come. Under his leadership, the center vastly improved its processes for screening CT data and deployed a new database, better known as TIDE, that has yielded easier management, improved identity resolution and faster, more efficient processes.

In the wake of the attempted downing of a passenger aircraft in December 2009, Director Leiter reallocated significant resources to develop the Pursuit Group, which is a team of highly skilled analysts that sifts through considerable amounts of data to identify desperate pieces of loose intelligence and to find linkages that identify terrorists, their networks and their plans before they can be executed. His leadership in the areas of radicalization, extremist messaging and in countering violent extremism is particularly noteworthy as well as his focus on cooperation and engagement with outside communities. This has laid a solid foundation for the continued success of these initiatives.

Director Leiter leaves the Federal Government for some well-deserved time with his family and friends, and I wish him well. However, it is my sincere hope that he continues to use his expertise in counterterrorism to keep America and its citizens safe.

ENERGY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) for 5 minutes.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, this past week, we were in our districts to visit with our constituents, to learn from them and to celebrate America's Independence Day. Much of my time was focused on the issue of energy and the need for energy independence because constituents are concerned with the high costs of energy and how these costs are impacting their businesses and lives.

Republicans believe in an all-of-the-above approach for energy independence. Republicans believe that energy diversity leads to energy security, and there were plenty of examples in the district for me to visit.

In Boone, students from Appalachian State University's Solar Homestead Team showed me the home they are preparing for the 2011 Solar Decathlon competition to be held on The Mall here in Washington, D.C., in September. The Solar Homestead team is advancing renewable energy systems through research on phase change, material energy storage, the integration of solar photovoltaic panels, and concentrating solar thermal systems for domestic hot water. While much money has been invested in this project by both the public and the private sectors, the hope is that the research will result in the ability to utilize alternative, renewable energy sources that will be able to provide low-cost energy homes for those in need.

Clyde and Pat Colwell have developed Carolina Heritage Vineyard in Elkin, North Carolina, an energy-efficient small business which is benefiting from a taxpayer-funded solar system. The Colwells are very educated people who are retired from their first careers.

Clyde served in the U.S. Marine Corps, earned his Ph.D., and served as a teacher, principal and superintendent. Pat earned her MBA and retired from IBM. However, while their graduate degrees were helpful in general, both of them returned to Surry Community College to earn associate degrees in viticulture so they could pursue developing their organic wine business. They work full time in the vineyards and on the winemaking process, and bring many skills to the area and to others in the business.

The Gilbert Hemric family farm in Hamptonville, North Carolina, where Gilbert Hemric and his family work hard on their poultry, cattle and tobacco farm, is a microcosm of the problems that this administration has created. Mr. Hemric made it very clear to me that the high cost of energy and regulatory burdens are having a negative impact on his business. The Hemrics are paying more and more for feed and for fuel to run their equipment. Because fuel costs have almost doubled since President Obama came to office, the Hemrics have not replaced two of the 10 workers they had last year. They can't afford to replace them.

At Holland Transfer in Statesville, CEO Jeff Harvey told me that the skyrocketing price of fuel and regulatory burdens are counterproductive to job creation and the growth of his business. The Harvey Family practices Christian values throughout its business, and has established nonprofits that feed the needy. When possible, they hire homeless people, which enables the homeless to leave shelters, but all this great work for the community depends on his business performing at a level that will allow him to continue contributing to the community.

As I visited with constituents during the Independence Day work period, one thing was clear: that we need another independence movement—independence from Middle Eastern oil.

Unfortunately, rather than pursuing energy independence, the Obama administration keeps fostering an energy dependence policy at the cost of American jobs, higher prices at the pump and at the cost of endangering our national security by making us more dependent on unstable Middle Eastern governments.

House Republicans have responded by introducing and passing four bills to increase our domestic energy production and to create American jobs, but the Senate has taken no action. Liberal Democrats are obstructing the opportunity for jobs for Americans, lower energy costs and a new era of independence.

It is time we declare independence from Middle Eastern oil and start using our own resources for the benefit of all Americans.

AMERICA'S FISCAL CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. FORBES) for 5 minutes.

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, our country truly is facing a financial crisis. I guess the good news is that even Congress is beginning to ask a question that is part of that financial crisis, which is simply this:

How long can we continue to spend almost twice as much money as we bring in?

The unfortunate part is that we've waited so long to ask that question. I wish we'd asked it before we embarked upon the series of bailouts and stimulus bills that we have embarked upon over the last several years. I am happy that I'm one of only 17 Members of Congress who voted against each and every one of those, but I'm unhappy where it has brought us, which is the fear that we had: that this runaway spending would bring us to a point where we had to begin cutting the national defense capabilities of our country.

Today, we will vote on the Defense appropriations bill, H.R. 2219, which will reduce the President's budget for national defense by $8.9 billion. That's only a downpayment of the cuts that are going to come. The next cuts, we are told, could be $400 billion to $700 billion from our national defense. Before we do that, there are two crucial questions we need to ask.

The first one is: What is the risk assessment that the United States faces today?

Now, that should be answered by our Quadrennial Defense Review, but if you look at a bipartisan independent assessment of that Quadrennial Defense Review, you'll find out that we are a train wreck that is on its way to happening because that defense assessment has truly become no more than a reaffirmation of what we are already doing.

The second thing that we should be asking before we decide what we can cut is how much we are currently spending and what the risk will be if we make those cuts. Unfortunately, the Department of Defense hasn't provided us with the audited financial statements the law requires so that we know where we're spending those dollars and so that we know the true risk of making those cuts.

Yet, Mr. Speaker, let me just tell you that there is a way you can find out. Our commanders in the field provide us with the Quarterly Readiness Report to Congress, which is a classified document. Now, I know as chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee for the Armed Services Committee that I'm in the minority, and am probably going to vote against this bill today.

□ 1050

But, Mr. Speaker, I am also in the minority of the individuals who have read this classified report. And the one thing that I would encourage our Members to do before they cast their vote today to begin down that series of cuts to our national defense is at least go in to our staff today and read the Quarterly Readiness Report to Congress that is a classified document. Our staff is ready to show you the document, to let you review that document. And, Mr. Speaker, I believe if you will just do that, it will be very difficult to then come on this floor and begin to start voting to cut and make the cuts we're going to make to national defense. Mr. Speaker, that's why today I can't support that bill and will be voting against it.

REMEMBERING FORMER CON-GRESSMAN CHARLES W.
WHALEN, JR.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TURNER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, this past week, the citizens of Ohio's Third Congressional District were met with the sad news that former Congressman Charles W. Whalen, Jr., passed away on Monday, June 27, at Sibley Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Born in Dayton, Ohio, on July 31, 1920, he was known throughout the community as "Chuck." During World War II, he served as an Army first lieutenant in the China, India, and Burma theater. After earning a master's of business administration from Harvard University, he worked as a professor of economics at his alma mater, the University of Dayton. He later became chairman of the University of Dayton's Economic Department in 1962.

Before his election to Congress in 1966, Chuck was a three-term member of both the Ohio State Senate and the Ohio General Assembly. While serving in the State House, he wrote Ohio's first fair housing law.

While in Congress, Chuck retained his seat handily in every general election, even running unopposed for reelection in 1974. As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, Chuck worked to move our military to an all-volunteer Army. The Nixon administration, in developing legislation on this issue, adopted many of his recommendations, and today the U.S. has an entirely all-volunteer active duty military force. In addition, he was focused on social reforms and supported the landmark Civil Rights Act of 1964. He was also one of the most traveled Members of Congress and visited more than 150 countries, including every nation in Africa.

Chuck was highly regarded for his ability to speak publicly, having been a college debate champion at the University of Dayton, so it should be no surprise that in retirement he coauthored two books with his wife, a former journalist: "The Longest Debate: A Legislative History of the 1964 Civil Rights Act," published in 1985, and "The Fighting McCooks: America's Famous Fighting Family," published in 2006, focusing on two Ohio brothers and their 13 sons who served in the Union Army during the Civil War.

Not one to be contained by the academic or literary worlds, he was also an avid sports fan and reveled in debating sports trivia and stats. He was president of Oakwood High School's class of 1938, and he is remembered for possessing extensive knowledge of pre-war aviation largely due to Dayton being his birthplace.

As a son of Ohio, Congressman Whalen made his final journey home and was buried in Calvary Cemetery in Dayton. Whalen is survived by his wife of 52 years, Barbara, and their six children—Charles, Daniel, Edward, Joseph, Anne, Mary—and their seven grandchildren.

Today we remember the life and work of Congressman Whalen and thank him for his service to both the Third District of Ohio and also our Nation.

LET THE STATES DECIDE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE) for 5 minutes.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, our Nation is facing a fiscal crisis of unprecedented proportions. We have a $14 trillion national debt, a $1.65 trillion annual spending deficit, and we borrow 42 cents for every dollar we spend.

After years of borrowing and spending and bailouts by both political parties, now comes a national debate over raising the Nation's debt limit. Now look, I believe if you owe debts, pay debts. We must honor the full faith and credit of the United States of America. But I also believe that now is the moment to take decisive action to put our fiscal house in order and restore the full confidence of the American people in the fiscal integrity of our national government.

I believe our debt limit should not be raised without real and meaningful reforms in the way the Federal Government spends the people's money in the short term and the long term. In the short term, we need to cut spending now and implement statutory caps on how much money the Federal Government can spend going forward. But in the long term, the time has come for this Congress to send to the States a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution that will limit Federal spending and require this national government to live within our means.

While the debate, it seems, according to the newspapers today, has focused on spending cuts versus tax increases, the real answer is to cut spending now and to make any increase in the Nation's debt ceiling contingent on Congress sending to the States a balanced budget amendment that limits Federal spending to one-fifth of the American economy. In short, it's time to let the States decide.

Article V of the Constitution provides a process that requires any amendment to pass the House of Representatives and the Senate by a two-thirds vote, but ultimately any amendment to the Constitution is submitted to the States. The States decide whether to amend the national charter. If three-fourths of the States agree, the Constitution is so amended.

By demanding spending cuts today and sending a balanced budget amendment to the States, we will let the States decide. And I have every confidence that these United States will choose fiscal discipline and reform. Thirty-two of our 50 States operate under a balanced budget requirement in their State constitution, and 49 have some sort of balanced budget requirement. In Indiana, our State had a prohibition against assuming debt in our State constitution since 1851, and the Hoosier State has a balanced budget and even a surplus rainy day fund.

After years of fighting runaway Federal spending by both political parties here in Washington, D.C., I can tell you we need more accountability, we need more engagement of the States and the American people. And if you think about it, as Ronald Reagan said, it's important to remember that the States created the Federal Government; the Federal Government didn't create the States.

By engaging in a process where we demand serious and meaningful spending cuts today, capping spending going forward, but requiring that any increase in the debt ceiling be contingent on sending to the States a balanced budget amendment with real spending limits in it, we will build on the wisdom and the foundation of our Founders and our system of Federalism.

Mr. President, if you need more borrowing authority, let's cut spending now, let's cap spending tomorrow, and let's let the States decide whether we should permanently require that our national government live within our means. By enacting a balanced budget amendment that limits Federal spending and requires that our national government live out our own commitment of fiscal responsibility and reform, we will do right by this day, we will do right by our children and grandchildren, and we will do something worthy to be remembered in this time.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to direct their remarks to the Chair and not to others in the second person.

LIBYA OPERATION UNIFIED PROTECTOR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I came down here today to talk about the Libya issue, the war that supposedly is not a war, but I wanted to start off by talking a little bit about the rhetoric that's coming out of the White House and from the President.

I was watching the news this morning, and the President indicated that they were going to have these budget talks down at the White House today. And he said, and I quote, that the Republicans, in effect, have a gun to the head of the American people. That just isn't the kind of rhetoric that should be used right now when we're talking about the huge budget deficits we have. And if I were talking to the President, I would try to admonish him to not do that in the future.

And then, when we were talking about Libya, I think it was just about 4 or 5 days ago, he said that we in Congress are making Libya a cause celebre, indicating that it's not an important issue, and we're just trying to puff it up so that we can make political points.

□ 1100

The fact of the matter is it is a war. The President went to the Arab League, he went to the French, the English, he went to the United Nations, and NATO and decided that he was going to be involved in an attack on Libya and Muammar Qadhafi. But the one place he didn't come to to talk about this issue was the Congress of the United States—the House of Representatives and the Senate. The first place that a President ought to go if he thinks we ought to go into a conflict of any kind is the Congress.

The Constitution is very clear on the responsibilities of the President before he goes into a conflict. It has to be a threat to the United States, a threat to our interests, and it has to be approved by the Congress of the United States. The Congress of the United States is the only body that can declare war. He can't do that. He can manage a war. He is the Commander in Chief once we go into war, but he can't start a war unless it's in our national interest or there's a threat to the United States. That was clarified by the War Powers Act during the Nixon administration because there was some question about the latitude a President might have using the Constitution.

The Constitution was explained very carefully in the 1970s in the War Powers Act. Now, that's never been tested in the courts. Some people say it's unconstitutional. But the fact of the matter is it's the law of the Nation. The President cannot violate the law or the Constitution, and in our opinion, he's violated both.

Let me just tell you what's going on in this war that the President says is not a war.

We have flown almost 30 percent of the sorties. That means we have flown 3,475 flights into the combat area. We have dropped bombs and missiles 132 times on targets, and several times we've hit civilians.

Nobody likes Muammar Qadhafi. Nobody wants him in office. But the fact of the matter is, we've been involved in a war to get rid of him.

On May 22, the figure was that of the missiles that were fired, there were 246 missiles fired, and 228 were the United States' missiles—at $1.1 million per missile. And we're paying approximately 60 or 70 percent of the total cost of this conflict through NATO or directly from the taxpayers of the United States.

Now, the reason I came down here today is to say that we should not be in that conflict because it was not in our national interest and there was no threat to the United States and it was a violation of the Constitution and the War Powers Act.

The President said he had to do it because it was a humanitarian issue. If it was a humanitarian issue and we really needed to go in there, he should have come to Congress. The previous President, President Bush, did go to Congress on Afghanistan and Iraq to get approval before he did it, but President Obama decided to do this unilaterally. So we are in a war now, and it's costing the taxpayers close to a billion dollars in a war that we should not be in.

He said it was for humanitarian purposes. If that's the case, we ought to be in a war in the Ivory Coast. Right now in the Sudan, there are thousands and thousands of people being executed and killed. And if that's the case, we ought to be in the Sudan. In Syria, we all know what's going on in Syria right now. If that's the case, we ought to be in Syria. There are wars of opportunity every place.

I just like to end, Mr. Speaker, by saying this: The President should always come to the Congress if it's in our national interest or a threat to this country before he goes to war. It's constitutionally required.

DEBT CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. WOODALL) for 5 minutes.

Mr. WOODALL. I came down to the floor today to talk about the fiscal crisis that we're having in America. There are those when I open the front page of the paper, Mr. Speaker, and I read the headline, it talks about having a debt limit vote crisis in this country. I went back, I looked, and apparently we've raised the debt limit over 70 times with a vote right here in this body. Apparently having a vote isn't particularly a complicated thing to do.

What we're having is a debt crisis. I think that's an important distinction. I was talking to a freshman colleague of mine yesterday about that. Understand that we can have the vote, Mr. Speaker. It's within the House's authority to bring a vote to raise the debt limit tomorrow. In fact, we brought that vote to the House already: Should we raise the debt ceiling or should we not? Mr. Speaker, we defeated it. We defeated it by a wide margin here in this body.

What we have is a debt crisis.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if it were just existing debt, perhaps we could work out a way to finance that, but it's not. It's continued borrowing each and every day to the tune of 42 cents of every dollar that we spend. In other words, if we paid for Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security, interest on the national debt, those other mandatory spending programs, just those, Mr. Speaker, we've already spent every nickel in Federal revenue.

That means every nickel that we spend for education, every nickel that we spend for transportation, every nickel that we spend on national defense, on homeland security, on the environment, on the courts, every other nickel we borrow, with absolutely no plan, Mr. Speaker, for changing that going forward.

If the President were here today, Mr. Speaker, I would say we do not have a debt limit vote crisis. We have a debt crisis, and there is only one body in this town that has put together a budget that will address it. I am proud to say as a freshman in this Congress, as a freshman in this House, it was the U.S. House of Representatives that took on that responsibility, Mr. Speaker.

It's been 799 days since the United States Senate last passed a budget. Hear that. Three years ago since the Senate last passed a budget. Not a balanced budget, mind you, Mr. Speaker, but a budget at all.

These are serious challenges that require serious people to offer serious solutions, and the only one that has been offered in this town, Mr. Speaker, came from this body. I encourage the President to go back and take one more look at that, because when we come down to game day, come down to the crisis—understand what we're talking about when we talk about a crisis, we passed the debt limit back in May, Mr. Speaker, as you know. We've just been shuffling the books in this town because that's what Washington does so well: raiding this fund to pay that, raiding this fund to pay this, over and over and over again. Apparently the games just run out on August 2.

Mr. Speaker, the games cannot continue. The games must stop, and they must stop here, and we must lead as we have always led in this body.

We do not have a debt limit vote crisis. We have a debt crisis that is driven by our addiction to borrowing and spending. The borrowing and spending stops here, Mr. Speaker, and I thank you for your leadership on that.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until noon today.

Accordingly (at 11 o'clock and 7 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until noon.

□ 1200

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. WESTMORELAND) at noon.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer: Loving God, we give You thanks for giving us another day.

In these most important days and debates here in the people's House, we beg You to send Your Spirit of wisdom as the Members struggle to do the work that has been entrusted to them. Inspire them to work together with charity, and join their efforts to accomplish what our Nation needs to live into a prosperous and secure future.

In this week in the wake of celebrating the great blessings bestowed upon our Republic, please bless those men and women who serve our Nation in uniform wherever they may be. Give them the protection of Your loving embrace, and grant them the trust to know they have our eternal gratitude.

Please keep all the Members of this Congress and all who work for the people's House in good health, that they might faithfully fulfill the great responsibility given them by the people of this great Nation.

Bless us this day and every day. May all that is done here this day be for Your greater honor and glory. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. BACA led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to 15 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

TRIBUTE TO DAISY OUTDOOR PRODUCTS

(Mr. WOMACK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WOMACK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Daisy Outdoor Products, a Rogers, Arkansas, company celebrating its 125th anniversary.

Daisy moved to Rogers from Plymouth, Michigan, in 1958. Since that move, Daisy's impact on the northwest Arkansas economy has been substantial—not only in providing jobs, but the incredible recognition this famous brand brings to our region.

As the world's oldest and largest BB gun manufacturer, Daisy has a storied history. Its contributions to the shooting sports, the United States military, and the character of young men and women nationwide is noteworthy. And who can forget Ralphie in the famous movie "A Christmas Story" and his coveted Red Ryder, the most famous BB gun ever produced?

Mr. Speaker, 125 years in business is a significant milestone by any measurement. It is a tribute to the vision, commitment, and hard work of the company leadership and the employees of Daisy.

Congratulations, Daisy. I'm proud of you, and our Nation is proud of you.

COMMEMORATING CAPE VERDEAN INDEPENDENCE DAY

(Mr. CICILLINE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CICILLINE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and recognize the rich history of Cape Verde as we mark Cape Verdean Independence Day.

This week, we honor the people of Cape Verde and those individuals of proud Cape Verdean descent here in America and around the world who are celebrating 35 years of independence. In doing so, we honor the many milestones and important Cape Verdean leaders like Amilcar Cabral, who fought for the liberation of Cape Verde. We also honor the lives, work, and rich history of Cape Verdean Americans throughout our country and particularly in my home State of Rhode Island.

Cape Verdeans have made significant contributions in the areas of art and culture, business, and public service.

Cape Verdeans have brought jag to local restaurants and added zuca to the music enjoyed by our community.

Rhode Islanders of Cape Verdean descent, like speaker of the house Gordon Fox, have been prominent leaders in Rhode Island politics.

I would also like to take a moment to pay tribute to the late George Lima. Mr. Lima served during World War II as a Tuskegee airman, the first group of black fighter and bomber pilots in the history of what was then the Army Air Forces. He then served our State honorably as a State representative and as head of the Rhode Island NAACP.

Cape Verdeans are generous, skilled, proud, caring members of our community, and I am honored to celebrate Cape Verdean independence with them this week.

YUCCA MOUNTAIN: A NUCLEAR DISASTER

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the President says he supports nuclear power development, but his actions have sadly stopped construction at Yucca Mountain after more than $10 billion of ratepayer money has already been invested, killing jobs in Nevada.

Utility companies across the country have been mandated by the Federal Government to collect over $33 billion for the Nuclear Waste Fund to build Yucca Repository. The Federal Government promised citizens of South Carolina and Georgia that nuclear material being stored at Savannah River Site would be sent to Yucca for permanent disposal. Now, this high-level waste will sit at SRS, and as reported by The Post and Courier, at more than 106 other sites across the country. The Post and Courier has editorialized that the President's position is "breath-takingly irresponsible."

I agree with Brian Tucker, president of the North Augusta Chamber of Commerce, that the administration should quit playing political games and follow through on promises to be guided by science and not by politics.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

PROTECTING MEDICARE

(Mr. COURTNEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. COURTNEY. Mr. Speaker, when former President Harry Truman and his wife, Bess, were officially enrolled as the first Medicare beneficiaries on July 1, 1966, only 50 percent of America's seniors could afford private health insurance.

The high risks associated with covering America's over-65 population made seniors basically uninsurable. That all changed 45 years ago last week when Medicare was established as a guaranteed benefit, providing a basic level of care for seniors regardless of income or illness.

From the beginning, Medicare has proven resilient, adapting to rapid changes in medicine and surviving in wartime and peace, economic boom times and in recession. Despite some alarmist claims, Medicare has faced more difficult financial challenges in the past than the ones it faces today. Preserving Medicare's guaranteed benefits for future generations is our solemn duty, and we must stop the push for vouchers, which will ruin America's middle class.

On the 45th anniversary of this landmark program, we must rededicate ourselves to protecting Medicare as a guaranteed benefit for tomorrow's seniors, not butchering it with a voucher program or using it as an ATM for the top 2 percents.

Happy birthday, Medicare. If we stay true to our values, you will have many happy returns.

---

PROTECTING AMERICAN JOBS AND SECURING AMERICA'S ENERGY FUTURE

(Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, the administration's war on coal led the Office of Surface Mining and Reclamation to try and change a rule that would redefine what is considered a stream as it pertains to mining operations.

I am pleased that an amendment I offered during the debate over the budget continuing resolution has been included in the Interior appropriations bill in an effort to stop this irresponsible regulatory overreach.

No one is surprised that the Obama administration is continuing the war on coal, but this is also a war on jobs. And the coal industry employs thousands of people in eastern and southeastern Ohio.

Mr. Speaker, we all want a cleaner environment, but we need to make sure that the policies being enacted are common sense and do not come at the expense of jobs and our economy. Stopping the Obama administration from rewriting the stream buffer zone rule will be a victory for jobs and a defeat to a radical agenda that is seeking to outlaw coal entirely. We can and we must enact smart policies that clean up our environment while protecting American jobs.

□ 1210

MEDICARE

(Mr. BACA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, as the deadline nears for Americans to raise its debt limit, the American people have sent a clear message to all of us:

They will not stand for a budget that is balanced on the backs of seniors and the middle class.

The American people know that it is wrong to privatize Medicare with a new voucher program, to cut guaranteed health benefits for seniors and to sacrifice Medicaid services for the poor and disabled.

It's not too late for us to compromise on a balanced approach. Yes, we can trim spending with intelligent cuts, but we must end tax breaks for the ultra rich. I state: We must end tax breaks for the ultra rich and corporations that shift jobs overseas.

No new taxes equals no new jobs. No taxes—no jobs.

We have an historic opportunity in front of us. Let's stop the partisan bickering and work together on a plan that strengthens the middle class, lowers our deficit and creates new jobs here at home.

---

THE DEBT CEILING REDUCTION ACT

(Mr. BROUN of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROUN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, we have overspent and we are over-extended. Now we have to get out of debt.

For the last 20 years, we have been increasing the debt ceiling and allowing Washington to spend more and more of the taxpayers' money. This method of madness hasn't worked, and today, our economy is suffering because of it.

Yesterday, I introduced a unique bill that would lower the debt ceiling to $13 trillion. This proposal would force Washington to make the spending cuts that we so desperately need to pay down the debt.

State and local governments, businesses and families understand, when you've maxed out your credit card, you can't just give yourself a credit increase. Instead, you have to cut spending and pay down your bills. The Federal Government is the only entity that does not understand this.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2409, the Debt Ceiling Reduction Act, because we need to turn this country in a completely different direction.

MAKING AMERICANS SAFER HERE AT HOME

(Mr. CLARKE of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLARKE of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I have a proposal that will help us save tax dollars, pay down our debt, and better protect the American people.

Instead of spending billions and billions of dollars to secure Afghanistan at the rate that we are—and we've spent over a half a trillion of our precious tax dollars in Afghanistan over the last 10 years—I propose to redirect a small share of our tax dollars back to the U.S. and to use our money to hire and equip more police officers, more firefighters, more emergency medical providers, because one of the most effective ways to help protect the American people from a terrorist attack is to make Americans safer right here at home.

---

THE REPUBLICANS' ALL-OF-THE-ABOVE ENERGY STRATEGY

(Mr. ROE of Tennessee asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ROE of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, on June 22, President Obama released 30 million barrels of oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve—just over a day's worth of oil. The administration continues to play politics rather than develop a comprehensive national energy plan, which will lay the path for future economic growth, help lower unemployment and improve our stagnant economy. This country's economy was built on inexpensive and abundant energy.

Folks are frustrated now. A fellow stopped me the other day, and said, Doc, it's a sad day when a guy can't buy a gallon of gas and a gallon of milk for $10.

And it's true. People don't want half measures that don't address their problems. They want solutions. They want to work. They want to provide for their families.

It is way past time to ease this pain at the pump. The President has shown no interest in the Republicans' all-of-the-above energy strategy that encourages oil and natural gas development in places like ANWR and the Outer Continental Shelf. With national unemployment stubbornly above 9 percent, the American people expect us to work together to lower the cost of energy, reduce our dependency on foreign oil and create American jobs.

---

OPPOSING THE PRIVATIZATION OF AMTRAK

(Mr. SIREN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SIREs. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose the privatization of Amtrak, which would threaten reliable, dependable, and accessible passenger rail service throughout the United States. I travel home every weekend on Amtrak to my district in New Jersey, and its service is an essential part of our region's economic vitality.

Under the plan to privatize Amtrak, the essential service they provide to millions of passengers could be lost, and nearly 20,000 Amtrak jobs could be eliminated. State-owned infrastructure that Amtrak currently maintains could be turned over to the already deficit-burdened States to maintain. It is likely that station stops will be cut and that commuter rail services will bear increased costs. Additionally, freight railroads that currently use Amtrak-supported lines may face logistical problems if Amtrak becomes privatized.

Under the proposal to privatize Amtrak, many important labor provisions will be eliminated. Future railroad employees will be exempt from disability, pension, retirement, and unemployment benefits. By removing future employees from these benefit systems, current and retired employees will be negatively affected, and railroads will face increased taxes to maintain the solvency of these systems.

I urge my colleagues to oppose the privatization of Amtrak.

THE CUT, CAP AND BALANCE PLEDGE

(Mr. HARRIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, while marching in parades and town festivals all over my district during the 4th of July weekend, I spoke with concerned parents, job creators, seniors, and folks who have been out of work for a long time. The one message I heard loud and clear from all of them: Reduce government spending so that businesses can create jobs again.

That's why I signed onto the Cut, Cap and Balance Pledge, which calls for a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. I know the idea that the government should have to actually balance its budget every year is strange to some here in Washington, especially to entrenched bureaucrats and the special interest groups that fill this city. Imagine if the Federal Government had to run a budget like we do in our homes.

It's time for the Federal Government to live within its means, and it's time for us to reduce spending so that businesses will have the confidence to create jobs again.

Cut, cap and balance. Let's make sure we put America back on the path to prosperity, not on the path to unemployment and bankruptcy.

CURRENCY REFORM FOR FAIR TRADE ACT

(Ms. HANABUSA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. HANABUSA. Mr. Speaker, for so long we've been hearing about our debt. We've also been hearing about who owns our debt, and of course, the name "China" comes up. That is why we need to have the Currency Reform for Fair Trade Act come to this floor, because that is the only way—the only way—we are going to address the currency manipulation by China and simply ask that they play by fair rules for fair trade.

Look at what this means for us. Let's understand that, by having the currency manipulated by them, they are having the benefit of 25 to 30 percent. That's what we're subsidizing them in terms of their exports. If we get the currency manipulation under control, this is what we could hope to accomplish:

Our budget deficit will be reduced to about $857 billion over the next 10 years. The trade deficit will be reduced by $138 billion. The GDP over the next 18 months will increase by $285 billion. This will support 1.6 million American jobs.

So as we are asking "where are the jobs?" look to currency manipulation.

FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE FROM CHINA AND AMERICAN JOB CREATION

(Mr. HENSARLING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, on July 4th, we celebrated our political independence from Great Britain.

My constituents want to know when are we going to celebrate our financial independence from China, which funds much of our national debt. My constituents also want to know: Where are the jobs? Mr. Speaker, these two are connected because too much spending-driven debt leads to too few jobs.

Now, our President doesn't seem to get this. If his stimulus, his reckless spending, his small business tax increases, his class warfare rhetoric helped promote job creation, we would be the most highly employed society in the history of mankind; but instead, we are mired in the longest period of sustained high unemployment under his policies since the Great Depression.

House Republicans have a plan for America's job creators. In the trillion dollar deficits, make the Tax Code fairer, flatter, simpler. Stop the President's job-crushing tax increases, and end the dumb regulations that prevent jobs in America.

□ 1220

EVERYTHING MUST BE ON THE TABLE

(Mr. WELCH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WELCH. Mr. Speaker, Congress has a responsibility to level with the American people. We face a looming decision about extending the debt limit, not because we want to but because we have to reaffirm the obligation we have to pay our bills. The majority of us on the Democratic side voted to do that. That was not to incur new spending or new obligations; it was to meet obligations already incurred: $2.3 trillion for the Bush tax cuts; an Iraq war, $1 trillion on the credit card; Afghanistan on the credit card. If we're going to level with the American people, we have to acknowledge that we have to pay for things, whatever their intentions. The time is long overdue for us to accomplish this.

If we're going to be successful on the two things we must do—pay our bills, maintain our full faith and credit, and have a long-term fiscal plan—then everything must be on the table, and that has to include taxes as well as spending, and it must include the Pentagon.

Mr. Speaker, this is not an ideological battle to win. It's a practical problem to be solved.

FREEDOM TO INVEST ACT

(Mr. DOLD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOLD. Mr. Speaker, there is no doubt that our economy is struggling. With stagnant unemployment, over $14 trillion in debt, and soaring food and gas prices, America does face some challenging decisions.

In my home State of Illinois, the debt per person is over $4,400, and the State faces a $15 billion shortfall in next year's budget. These indeed are real problems that need to be addressed with commonsense solutions.

One solution is to encourage American companies to reinvest their earnings here at home. Currently, companies are holding an estimated $1.4 trillion in earnings overseas because the United States Tax Code encourages companies to keep their earnings outside of the country. We must encourage companies to reinvest their earnings here in America. Not only would these earnings stimulate the American economy, but the government would collect approximately $50 billion in immediate tax revenue. This money would help spur job creation, more growth, and investments here at home.

I would encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting the bipartisan H.R. 1834, the Freedom to Invest Act, so that we can strengthen our economy with commonsense solutions.

GETTING AMERICA BACK ON TRACK

(Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to say today that I was elected in November of last year for the 10th time here, and I am in my fourth district in that period of time. I have spoken to people all over Dallas County, Tarrant County, and Collin County, and unanimously they are seriously concerned about the lack of a true job plan from the Republican majority.

We must cut spending. We must ensure long-term fiscal health. But gridlock over spending cuts does not create jobs. We need a bipartisan compromise that focuses on fiscal responsibility while maintaining investments in our community that continue to create jobs and grow the economy.

To get Americans back to work, we must invest in science, education, research and innovation to create the jobs of the future, and we must focus on America's ability to build, construct and grow manufacturing across the country to remain globally competitive. Mr. Speaker, these efforts can and will spur job growth and ensure that our Nation can compete and be a leader in the global economy.

TIME TO GET OUR FISCAL HOUSE IN ORDER

(Mr. YODER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. YODER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with grave concern over our country's economy and fiscal condition. For too long, Washington has borrowed money to finance government, and today our Nation's leaders continue to meet to discuss this looming crisis. We all know that this crisis is spending driven. It's not that government taxes too little; it's that government spends too much.

Mr. Speaker, the American people know that the policies of tax, borrow, and spend will not lead us to prosperity as a Nation. Taking more money from hardworking Americans and sending it to Washington is not the answer. Rather, it's time for Washington to roll up its sleeves, get to work, and live within its means, just like families and small businesses have to do all across this country. It's time to enact significant spending cuts, put in place caps on future spending, and pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution.

Mr. Speaker, if we are to rebuild our Nation's economy and put Americans back to work together, we must put our own fiscal house in order first.

SUPPORT THE AMASH-KUCINICH AMENDMENT

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, in a short time, the House will have an opportunity to reclaim our constitutional authority on matters of war and peace by voting to stop the use of funds for the war in Libya.

An agreement has been reached through work that Mr. AMASH and I have done to create a bipartisan amendment which states: None of the funds made available by this act may be used for the use of military force against Libya.

The Amash-Kucinich amendment is cosponsored by a growing group of bipartisan activists, including, Representatives RON PAUL, LYNN WOOLSEY, WALTER JONES, JOHN CONYERS, DAN BURTON, BARBARA LEE, TED POE, and PETE STARK.

This could well be an historic moment where a bipartisan coalition rallies this Congress to defend the Constitution and to reset the balance that has been upset by the administration's claiming the war power.

Vote to end to the war in Libya. Support the bipartisan Amash-Kucinich amendment.

UNCERTAINTY IMPEDES JOB GROWTH

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, the number one job for House Republicans is job growth. The number one impediment to job growth is uncertainty: uncertainty caused by a record-high debt—$14.3 trillion and growing—and the record-high taxes that are going to have to pay for it; uncertainty about the largest tax increase in the history of the Nation that the President pledges to support in just 19 months. Add to that the unknown cost of the government takeover of health care and the unknown price of Dodd-Frank and you've got a very uncertain private sector.

We cannot help the job seeker by punishing the job creator. They need us to work with them, not against them. If we follow the House Republican plan for America's job creators and stop spending money we don't have, certainty will be restored, our economy will grow, and jobs will be created.

THE PLIGHT OF SUDAN'S NUBA PEOPLE

(Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, with a heavy heart, I turn our attention to the plight of Sudan's Nuba people, who are fleeing their homes in the tens of thousands as the Sudanese Armed Forces conduct a brutal military assault on their homeland.

There are widespread reports that Sudanese forces are bombing, shelling, and executing civilians in the oil-rich state of South Kordofan. The Sudanese Government has barred NGOs and the press and is restricting the movement of U.N. personnel in the area.

Mr. Speaker, as we welcome South Sudan into the community of nations this week, United Nations personnel must investigate reports of possible war crimes against the Nuba people by the Sudanese forces. We must not be intimidated by Omar al-Bashir's bullying, or we may find ourselves saying "never again" again.

HONORING THE LIFE OF GREG COOPER

(Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of Greg Cooper.

Mr. Cooper recently lost his battle with cancer on May 26 of this year. He was a proud United States marine, and he served his country between 1963 and 1967, which included a tour in the Vietnam War.

Upon leaving the Marines, Greg was hired by the Santa Ana Police Department, where he held several very high-profile jobs and worked with the neat tactical units that we have. While serving his community as a Santa Ana police chief, he earned a bachelor's degree from California State University, Fullerton and a master's degree from the University of Southern California.

Leaving Santa Ana in 1992, he was appointed chief of police in Sanger, California, and in 1996 he relocated here to Washington, D.C., where he accepted a position with the Department of Justice to administer our COPS grant program. In 2002, Greg joined the Department of Homeland Security as FEMA's chief security officer, and he retired in 2008.

Mr. Speaker, this Nation and my community mourns the loss of a loyal friend, a respected leader, and a dedicated public servant.

□ 1230

REMEMBERING BISHOP J.O. PATTERSON, JR.

(Mr. COHEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, while we were in recess on June 25, Memphis lost one of its great citizens, Bishop J.O. Patterson, Jr.

Bishop Patterson was the grandson of the founder of the Church of God in Christ, Bishop Charles Mason, and the cousin of the revered and late Bishop G. Patterson, who was the sixth bishop of the COGIC.

Bishop J.O. Patterson, Jr., was a public servant as well as a bishop and a revered citizen of Memphis. He was my friend. We served together in the Constitutional Convention of 1977. He served one term in the house, two terms in the State senate, 20 years in the city council, and was the first appointed African American mayor of the City of Memphis.

He was a leader in his church and he cared about his community. He cared about jazz and he cared about his fellow man. He was low key, sincere, down to earth, and a leader whom Memphis will miss.

He did much with the opportunities that he was given through his father and his family and his city in politics and in other areas. He was the jurisdictional bishop for the Tennessee headquarters, the head of the Pentecostal Temple Institutional Church of God in Christ and did much with the COGIC.

I will miss him and so will the City of Memphis and all of the Members and all of the saints.

---

REPORT ON H.R. 2434, FINANCIAL SERVICES AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

Mrs. EMERSON, from the Committee on Appropriations, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 112-136) on the bill (H.R. 2434) making appropriations for financial services and general government for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, which was referred to the Union Calendar and ordered to be printed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURTON of Indiana). Pursuant to clause 1, rule XXI, all points of order are reserved on the bill.

---

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 2219.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

---

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 320 and rule

XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2219.

□ 1233

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2219) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, with Mr. WESTMORELAND in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Wednesday, July 6, 2011, the bill had been read through page 161, line 12.

AMENDMENT NO. 13 OFFERED BY MR. COLE

Mr. COLE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used by the Department of Defense to furnish military equipment, military training or advice, or other support for military activities, to any group or individual, not part of a country's armed forces, for the purpose of assisting that group or individual in carrying out military activities in or against Libya.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COLE. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is quite simple. It prohibits any funds in this bill from being used to conduct military operations in Libya, a place where I believe we are engaged in an illegal and certainly unauthorized conflict.

Mr. Chairman, I feel a little bit today like a lawyer with two very unpopular clients. One of them is Libya, and the other one is the United States Congress. But in this case, each one of them has an important point to make.

With respect to Libya, let me make it clear, I don't believe anybody in this Chamber supports Mr. Qadhafi, supports that regime, or wishes it well in any way. But Libya did not attack the United States of America. Libya did not attack any member of NATO. Libya has not allowed al Qaeda to operate with impunity out of its territory. A number of years ago, Libya turned over nuclear material to the United States.

Quite simply, however much we detest Mr. Qadhafi and his regime, we have no reason to be at war or conducting military operations in Libya. And, frankly, if we allow that situation to continue, I think we have to ask ourselves: Are we willing to attack any nation any time that we disagree with a regime that we don't like simply because the President chooses to do so?

More troubling than the attack on Libya, in my view, is the circumvention of this body, the United States Congress, and its warmaking authority under both the Constitution and the War Powers Act. Only Congress has the ability to authorize and fund military operations.

The administration consulted with NATO. The administration consulted with the United Nations. The administration consulted with the Arab League. It never, in any real sense, consulted with the Congress of the United States before beginning military operations in Libya.

Two weeks ago, this House made clear its opposition to the Libyan venture by refusing to authorize even the limited use of force. We should build on that by removing funding today.

Some may question whether or not this amendment is germane to this particular piece of legislation. Frankly, Mr. Chairman, I worked very carefully with the Parliamentarian on the language, and, more importantly, it's modeled after the famous Boland amendment of 1983 to the Defense appropriations bill that year that was approved by this body 411-0.

Some may argue, like the administration, that we really aren't engaged in hostilities in Libya. That simply is laughable. Attorneys at both the Department of Defense and the Department of Justice of this administration believe that our activity requires congressional authorization under the War Powers Act.

We've flown over a thousand combat sorties over Libyan airspace. We've launched 228 Tomahawk missiles. We've launched over a hundred Predators. We're refueling and supporting NATO aircraft that are engaged in attacking Libya every single day. If that's not war on our side of this situation, I can assure you that people on the other side consider it war and certainly consider it hostile.

The reality is we should not be engaged in military action of this level unless it's authorized and funded by the Congress of the United States.

In Libya, the President has, quite simply, overreached. However, in Congress, we have so far allowed him to do so. We've not authorized this activity. There's not a single line in the Defense authorization bill or in this bill which actually funds this activity, and we ought to explicitly prohibit the President from concluding.

I think, like many in this body, this is a very important moment for the Congress of the United States. Whether or not we claim warmaking authority and exercise our power under the Constitution is really the issue here. You could be for the Libyan venture and still be able to support this legislation, or you could be against it.

At the end of the day, it's extraordinarily important that we stop the erosion of the warmaking authority and responsibility of the Congress of the United States, that we end this ill-advised adventure in Libya, and that we reassert the rightful place of this institution in conducting war and authorizing it and funding it.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1240

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. Before I begin, I want to say that I have great respect for Congressman COLE, who serves on the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee. He is one of our most thoughtful members.

The NATO-led mission to defeat Qadhafi and protect the people of Libya was undertaken in concert with a broad coalition of nations, including the Arab League, and it followed a resolution adopted in the United Nations Security Council authorizing "all necessary measures."

This amendment would end our involvement unilaterally. I believe this could materially harm our relationship with NATO, which is also playing a major role in this. We will undoubtedly require support in the future in our dealings with NATO, and we get support in Afghanistan today.

I do support a wider debate and greater oversight of the use and the costs of U.S. military forces engaged in the Libya operation, both in the defense and foreign affairs-related committees as well as here on the House floor. We should let the mission with our NATO allies continue so we can overthrow Qadhafi and protect the Libyan people.

I urge all my colleagues to vote "no" on this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. The Constitution, Mr. Chairman, and the War Powers Act clearly say what the parameters are within which the President must act or follow: number one, a declaration of war; number two, a specific authorization; number three, a national emergency created by an attack upon the United States, its territories or possessions, or its Armed Forces.

None of these criteria were met by the President. He said he went in there because of humanitarian issues. He consulted, as we've said before on the floor, with France, England, the United Nations, NATO, and the Arab League. He had 2 or 3 weeks to do that, but he didn't have time to talk to the Congress of the United States, and he's gone in there and spent almost a billion dollars at a time when we just don't have the money.

Now if you're talking about humanitarian problems, in the Sudan, 2,300 Sudanese have been killed this year alone, and more than 500 people have died in the last 2 weeks. In Darfur, 450,000 to 480,000 have been displaced or killed. Just recently, and one of my colleagues talked about this a while ago, in the Nuba Mountains in the Sudan, they're killing people every single day. Horrible atrocities are taking place. Human rights violations. If you're talking about humanitarian issues, why wouldn't you go in there as well?

You look, also, at Syria right now. In Syria, there have been an awful lot of people killed. We all see that on television every night. There are wars of opportunity. If you go to Liberia, if you go and look back at the Khmer Rouge, we didn't get into those wars, and we're not getting into these wars right now because it's not in our national interest, and it's not a threat to the United States.

The President has taken us into a conflict. He said it's not a war, but it is a war. We've sent about 230 missiles in there at $1.1 million per to kill people. We've flown sortie after sortie over there dropping bombs on people, and the President says it's not a war. It is a war, it's the United States' war, and it's being covered by NATO.

We shouldn't be going to war unless this body and the other body say it's okay. It's in the Constitution. It's in the War Powers Act. We should not be there. Nobody likes Muammar Qadhafi. Nobody thinks he should be there. But we can't be going into wars of opportunity every place, especially at a time when we're fiscally broke. I think it's extremely important that legislation like that which the gentleman from Oklahoma just offered should be passed, and I hope we will pass it. There's a whole host of these amendments that are going to be read today and we're going to be voting on, and we need to send a very clear signal to the White House that this must never happen again.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. BUERKLE. Mr. Chair, I rise in support of the Cole Amendment to H.R. 2219. Mr. COLE's amendment would restrict the use of funds for furnishing military equipment, military training or advice, and other military activities in Libya.

The President has failed to properly consult Congress on the engagement of hostilities in Libya. The President is also in violation of the War Powers Resolution because of the continued military action past the 90 days allowed under the War Powers Resolution. The Administration's attempt to excuse the continued U.S. military actions in Libya by saying that the hostilities do not reach the threshold set by the War Powers Resolution is disingenuous.

The power of the purse plays an important part in the U.S. government's system of checks and balances. This amendment today will prohibit the President from continuing to conduct military operations in Libya until he can justify the actions to the Congress. I strongly support the limitation of funding of current military activities with respect to Libya. The President should not have a blank check to conduct wars without the consultation and authorization of Congress.

The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE).

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. DICKS. I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. AMASH

Mr. AMASH. Mr. Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for the use of military force against Libya.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. AMASH. Thank you, Mr. Chair.

First, I would like to thank the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) for his tremendous leadership on this issue. There is a growing bipartisan support for this amendment. It's an amendment that gives us the opportunity to stop this unconstitutional war in Libya.

The United States has been at war against Libya for nearly 4 months. We have dropped bombs on Libyan buildings. We have flown sorties over Libyan airspace. It has been reported that we have even targeted Qadhafi himself.

We are at war. The Constitution vests Congress with the exclusive power to declare war, the President has not attempted to obtain Congress's authorization for the war, and yet at this moment, as we debate on the House floor, the war continues.

Instead of following the Constitution and seeking authorization, the President made strained arguments to justify the continued operation. At first, the operation was supposed to be "limited," as though that undefined term serves as a constitutional escape clause. My constituents certainly would be surprised if Congress established a limited religion, or subjected them to limited cruel and unusual punishment, or quartered soldiers in their houses, but only for a limited time.

After that "limited" argument ran its course, the President turned to a U.N. Security Council resolution and an invitation from an organization of Arab states to justify our involvement. Those organizations were not around at the time the Constitution was written, much less are they listed in its text.

The administration now has retreated from its constitutional arguments in public and claims that at least the War Powers Resolution does not forbid the strikes because we're not involved in, quote, hostilities against Libya. Imagine that the shoe were on the other foot, that Libya was bombing us. Would we view the Libyan air force's bombing of our infrastructure as a hostile act? Of course we would.

Last week, a member of the other Chamber called the President's arguments, quote, cute. I would use a different term: embarrassing. It's embarrassing that the administration attempts to hide behind these transparently strained and flimsy arguments, especially when we're dealing with such a grave issue.

But do you know what would be more embarrassing? If this Congress did nothing. More embarrassing than the President's contortions of the law and disregard for the Constitution would be if Congress, with full knowledge that it was occurring, gave him a pass. In the face of an attack on the Constitution, in the face of an attack on this institution and our powers as a coequal branch, we must stand up and say stop. If we don't, we should be the ones who are embarrassed.

The Amash-Kucinich amendment prohibits funds from being used for military force against Libya. To be clear, I believe that Congress doesn't need to do anything to stop the President from ordering force against Libya; because the President has not received authorization, the use of force is already illegal. However, to reinforce our constitutional position, our amendment says that beginning at the start of the fiscal year, on October 1, the Armed Forces may not drop bombs on Libya or otherwise use military force. Unlike the bill we considered the week before last, our amendment does not implicitly authorize any actions against Libya. It simply says force may not be used because the President has not sought nor has he received authorization for force.

Please vote "yes" on the Amash-Kucinich amendment and defend our constitutional role in war powers.

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1250

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, if this were a debate on policy, or a debate on philosophy, or a debate specifically on the War Powers Act, the position that I would take would be somewhat different than I must take today. But as the manager of this bill, what I have to work with is the bill before the House and the amendment before the House.

Now, the amendment is simple. None of the funds made available by this act may be used for the use of military force against Libya. What I would say to the Chair is that there are no funds in this bill, in this act, for Libya. I was curious about that. And as chairman preparing to write this bill, in conjunction with Mr. DICKS, the ranking member, I wrote to the President on April 1, and I sent each of our Members a copy, asking the President specific questions about the scope of this activity, the expected cost, et cetera.

On June 22, the White House finally responded, and said that it will not plan to ask for a supplemental appropriations bill. And there is no money in this bill for Libya. The administration says that it will not ask for a supplemental bill to pay for Libya, that they will use funds in the base budget. I wonder from where the administration is going to take money out of the base budget. Now, as chairman of the subcommittee, this worries me. From where do they plan to take the money? That's only part of the argument. There is no money in this act for Libya to start with.

But, secondly, if this amendment should become effective, there are many things that we would not be able to do. We would not be able to fly or perform search and rescue missions of American forces who may be flying aerial activity and have planes go down. Early in the operation, we lost an F-15. Two American pilots went into Libya and safely rescued the pilot of that F-15. We wouldn't be able to do that under this amendment.

What we are providing today is surveillance, intelligence, and reconnaissance. We wouldn't be able to do that under this amendment. We wouldn't be able to provide aerial refueling to our coalition partners, and they are our partners and we have an agreement with those partners. We provide aerial refueling because most of them do not have the capacity to refuel their aircraft in the air. Under this amendment, we would not be able to provide aerial refueling. We couldn't even provide operational planning, sitting down and talking with our coalition partners about the plan for Libya.

So while this amendment would sound good if we were discussing philosophy and if we were determining a policy, the policy has already been established. And this amendment does not change the policy. It affects something in the bill that's not even in the bill. So there are no funds in this bill for Libya; and according to the letter from the White House, supplemental funds will not be requested. The administration will just pay for the operation out of existing funds. That remains a good question, and I say that again, I am really curious to know what base funds they intend to use to pay for this operation in Libya. I don't have the answer today. I am hoping that one day soon I may have that answer.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KUCINICH. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KUCINICH. I rise in support of the Amash-Kucinich amendment.

The esteemed chair, my good friend, of the Defense Appropriations raises a question: Where are they getting the money? The money is not, as he points out, expressly in the bill.

Well, this legislation, the Amash-Kucinich amendment, isn't to delete funds that have already been appropriated. This is to forbid the administration, forbid the administration, from using funds that are appropriated in this act.

Now, there is no way that Congress could or would intervene to stop a search and rescue mission. And that's not relevant unless you're talking about that this Congress is finally going to search this defense budget, figure out where the President is getting the money, and rescue the American taxpayers from a wasteful war and rescue the Constitution from an illegal war. That is what makes it a search and rescue mission. But no search and rescue is prohibited by the Amash-Kucinich amendment.

I want to say that I am proud to have worked with Mr. AMASH to come together with this bipartisan agreement. And the support for it is growing. We have Mr. PAUL, Ms. WOOLSEY, Mr. JONES, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. BURTON, Ms. BARBARA LEE, Mr. POE, Mr. STARK, Mr. MCCLINTOCK, Mr. NADLER, Mr. NUGENT, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. HONDA. The support is growing. And Members can call either Mr. AMASH's office or my office right now if they want to cosponsor.

This is our moment in Congress; this is our moment to reclaim the Constitution of the United States, which the Founders envisioned that under article I, section 8, we have the power to determine whether or not this Nation goes to war, not some rebel group in Benghazi. Because when you reduce it to its ultimate, a group of Benghazi rebels made the decision to go to war against its own government, and before you know it NATO joins in, we're pulled into it. The administration went to everyone except getting the approval of the United States Congress.

This is our moment to reclaim the Constitution. Will we rise to the occasion? This isn't only about this Congress right now. History will judge us whether or not we understood the imperative of article I, section 8. This is about the Constitution. Certainly it's about a billion dollars that would be spent by September unless we intervene, at a time of rising debt, at a time of tremendous pressure on the budget, at a time when local governments in our communities are cutting public services because they don't have the money. This administration determines they're going to take us into war, and they didn't even give so much as give this Congress an opportunity to have this debate before the decision was made. That was wrong.

I appreciate that we have been able to set aside any partisan disagreements that are part of the nature of this forum to understand that we have a higher calling here. And that higher calling is to defend this Constitution of the United States, which describes what our duties are when we come here. We take the oath to defend the Constitution. That's what we shall do today.

We shall rescue this Congress from the ignominy of having the rights that the people expect us to exercise on their behalf just trampled by an administration that doesn't think that we have any co-equal role in the government at all. This is our moment to stand up, Democrats and Republicans alike.

I am proud to work with Mr. AMASH in crafting this bipartisan Kucinich-Amash amendment.

This is our moment, Members. Let's not lose this opportunity to stand up and speak out on behalf of the United States Constitution, on behalf of the separation of powers, on behalf of the co-equality of our House of Representatives and the Congress of the United States. Let's show the Founders, and the spirit of the Founders is always with us in this place, let's demonstrate that we remember where we came from when this Constitution was set forth. Let's demonstrate that we have reached our moment where we stand up.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. McCLINTOCK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. McCLINTOCK. Mr. Chairman, for more than 3 months, our Nation has been amidst a quiet constitutional crisis that carries immense implications. My friend, the gentleman from Florida, is sadly mistaken to dismiss this as a meaningless philosophical discussion. This strikes at the very heart of our constitutional form of government.

□ 1300

On March 19, completely without congressional authorization, the President ordered an unprovoked attack against another country. In so doing, he crossed a very bright constitutional line placed there specifically to prevent so momentous and fatal a question as war being made by a single individual.

The American Founders were explicit on this point. For centuries, European monarchs had plunged their nations into bloody and debilitating wars on whim, and the Founders wanted to protect the American Republic from that fate.

James Madison explained why in this passage in a letter to Hamilton. He said: "In no part of the Constitution is more wisdom to be found than in the clause which confines the question of war or peace to the legislature, and not to the executive department. The trust and the temptation would be too great for any one man. War is, in fact, the true nurse of executive aggrandizement. In war a physical force is to be created and it is the executive will which is to direct it. In war, the public treasures are to be unlocked, and it is the executive hand which is to dispense them. In war, the honors and the emoluments of office are to be multiplied, and it is the executive patronage under which they are to be enjoyed. Those who are to conduct a war cannot, in the nature of things, be proper or safe judges whether a war ought to be commenced, continued, or concluded."

The President has tried to justify this act in a variety of ways: that bombing another country is not really an act of war, that there wasn't time to consult Congress—though more than enough to consult the United Nations Security Council—or that it was a humanitarian act.

Mr. Chairman, never was there a greater provocation or clearer moral justification for war than the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. And never was there a more activist President than Franklin Roosevelt.

Yet within 24 hours of that attack, President Roosevelt appeared before a joint session of Congress in this very Hall. He clearly recognized that as Commander in Chief his authority only extended to ordering that "all measures be taken for our defense." He recognized that under the Constitution, anything more, even in this most historic attack, required an act of Congress, which he sought and obtained.

The unprovoked attack on Libya was not authorized by this Congress, and it is accordingly unconstitutional and illegal. Indeed, 2 weeks ago, the House considered a resolution authorizing a war with Libya, and it rejected that measure by a nearly 3-1 margin. It then considered a second measure to authorize acts of war against Libya just short of actual combat, including refueling tankers on their way to targets. The identification and selection of targets, operational support, operational planning, it rejected that measure as well.

The precedent being established right now by the President's deliberate defiance of the Constitution and the clear will of Congress has profound implications for our Nation's future. If this act is allowed to stand unchallenged, it means that the checks and balances painstakingly built into the Constitution on the supreme question of war and peace have been rendered meaningless.

Weeks ago, the House voted to deny authorization for the use of funds for the war on Libya effective October 1. This amendment simply follows through on that decision in the actual appropriations act.

Frankly, we need to do much more than this. Clearly, one of the conditions for increasing the debt limit must be to ensure that no funds, either borrowed or raised, should be used to continue to support this illegal act.

And we need to remember that a war once started cannot always be turned off by an appropriations act. Once we have attacked another country without provocation, we have created an aggrieved belligerent that now has cause to pursue that war regardless of what the Congress later decides.

That's why this precedent is so dangerous. That's why the President's actions are so devastating to our very form of government, and that's why we need to speak clearly and unequivocally through measures like that offered by the gentlemen from Michigan and Ohio today.

I yield back the balance of my time. Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Amash-Kucinich amendment, and I am proud to be a cosponsor and at the same time call on other Members to join us on the floor right now for this important debate.

Mr. Chairman, I have been struck in recent days by the profound lack of seriousness in Washington when it comes to confronting this illegal war we are fighting in Libya. Last week at a news conference, the President dismissed congressional concerns about war powers authority and his Libya policy and, he said "all kinds of noise about process."

At the same time, the U.S. Senate essentially punted on the issue earlier this week, pulling the plug on an important debate that the country needs because a few Republican Senators complained that they canceled recess only to deal with the debt ceiling, and they were not going to discuss Libya.

But perhaps it was right here in the House that we have seen the most incoherence on Libya. Right before we adjourned almost 2 weeks ago, this body voted against authorizing the use of force in Libya; and then less than 2 hours later, the House voted to continue funding the war we had just refused to authorize.

Mr. Chairman, Congress has the "power of the purse," and we must be prepared to use it. We must use this opportunity to send a powerful message.

A vote of no confidence in this Libya policy will prove that we do not and will not write another check for a war that Americans don't want and a war that we did not authorize.

Hostilities with Libya—and, let's be frank, these are hostilities—have now been going on for more than 100 days with the cost climbing toward a billion dollars, and that doesn't even include the moral costs and the cost of civilian lives. The people's money is too important and too precious, especially during this time of fiscal austerity.

No one believes that cutting off Libya alone is enough to make meaningful progress on deficit reduction; but I think it's outrageous that we are talking about cuts in Social Security benefits, and those cuts are on the table while we are discussing the debt ceiling negotiations while we continue to throw money at not one, not two, but three wars.

A Brown University study concludes that when it's all said and done Iraq and Afghanistan will suck the Treasury dry to the tune of at least $3.7 trillion. Enough, already.

Mr. Chairman, the Pentagon is like that teenager. You keep giving the kid the keys to the car, and he keeps crashing it. It's time we cut him off.

We must draw the line, and we must draw it here. No more funding for Libya; no more continuance in Libyan hostilities. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, the President says we have gone to war in the name of humanity. In other words, the President's little war in Libya is so that we can preserve humanity in Libya.

In the history of peoples, as the gentleman from California has pointed out, and the histories of countries, it has always been the king, the dictator, the tyrant, the chief, the leader that has sent that particular country to war.

So when our ancestors got together and they formed a new and perfect Union, they decided it would not be the leader, which we call the President, it would be the people that would decide if we went to war. They gave that power to the Congress of the United States and only Congress can declare war, not the President.

□ 1310

But this is the President's war; and the President, in my opinion, is in violation of the Constitution. He has led America to our third war. Whether or not the war powers resolution is constitutional or not, we can debate that. But he is in violation of it, too, because we're still engaged in war, whether you call it hostilities or not. Some say it's not hostile. Well, you be one of the recipients of one of those cruise missiles on the ground somewhere in Libya, and you might think that's a hostile environment towards you. But this country is spending money on a third war, and it is unconstitutional.

Our ancestors had comments about the leader, the king, leading us into war. The writer of the Constitution wrote a letter. James Madison said that "the Constitution supposes what the history of all governments has always demonstrated, that it is the executive branch most interested in war and most prone to it. It has accordingly with studied care vested the question in this country of war in the legislative body."

The first Commander in Chief, the first President of the United States, George Washington, said that "the Constitution vests the power of declaring war with Congress, therefore no offensive expedition of importance can be undertaken until after they have deliberated upon the subject and Congress has authorized such a measure."

It is our history, it is our heritage, it is our Constitution, and it is our principle that Congress must declare war. Congress must be the one to engage in war. And in my opinion, the President has violated that Constitution. He has violated the law of the land and the war powers resolution; and it's Congress' duty now, it is our turn and it is our responsibility to weigh in on this war and stop money from going to this war.

Where the President got the $700-plus million that has already been spent on this war, we don't know. We just want to make sure no more money is spent on this unconstitutional action.

Muammar Qadhafi is a tyrant. He's an outlaw. There are a lot of bad guys in the world, Mr. Chairman, and is it now the policy of the President to pick out the ones he does not like and start blowing up that country in the name of humanity? We don't know.

So Congress must resume, regain, its rightful authority and role and make sure that we do not fund the President's little war, or any other future wars, without congressional approval.

Mr. Chairman, instead of spending money blowing up Libya, we ought to spend that American taxpayer money in the United States building the United States and rebuilding America and not destroying somebody else's country and being involved in somebody else's civil war.

And that's just the way it is.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Minnesota is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Chairman, we should not turn our backs on the Libyan people. I want to remind my colleagues that NATO's campaign in Libya has saved countless lives. Our actions and those of NATO were the only thing that stopped Qadhafi from committing unspeakable crimes against humanity. In fact, when the United States and NATO intervened, Qadhafi was on the footsteps of Misrata and threatening to kill without mercy. Qadhafi's forces were on the brink of Benghazi hours before NATO's operation began. Qadhafi literally said that he would kill people with "no mercy, no pity." He said he would go "house by house, room by room." Those are the words of a shameless, ruthless killer; and we had to do something, and I'm glad that we did.

Constituents of my district whose roots come from Libya have made it clear to me that they want me to stand together with humanity, stand together with vulnerable people. But let me be clear, this is not Iraq, and this will not be the Iraq war. We did not unilaterally declare war on another country. On the contrary, our actions were with the international community, sanctioned by the United Nations, the Arab League and, most importantly, the Libyan people themselves.

Our role is limited and constrained, no boots on the ground. We essentially are helping to supply and refuel and add surveillance. Do we want to signal to other murderous dictators while the people are standing up for democracy that they have a free hand to slaughter their public? I hope not.

I say listen to regular Libyans on the street today. They want more NATO involvement, not less. They want the United States to remain involved. If we pull out now, the NATO coalition could fall apart and tens of thousands of refugees fleeing Qadhafi's wrath would jeopardize the fragile democratic transitions in both Egypt and Tunisia. This issue has regional implications. It's not limited to Libya alone.

As my constituents know, and my legislative record reflects, I was adamantly against the Iraq war and I am adamantly in favor of a faster withdrawal from Afghanistan. In fact, I'm almost always against the use of the military option. Seldom is it the right course, in my opinion. But "seldom" doesn't mean "always." Srebrenica, Darfur and Rwanda all warranted our engagement as Libya does today. We made it to the Balkans, but we didn't make it to Darfur or Rwanda, and literally millions of people died because of that.

But at the same time, I cannot turn a blind eye to the slaughter of innocent people. My hope is that the day may never come when I will ignore the cries of innocent people being murdered by a dictator or while we cozy up to a murderous dictator. I cannot turn my back on people demanding the same freedoms we enjoy in America.

I understand my colleagues' aversion to military conflict. I share it. I understand their fear of mission creep. I share that. But I also understand that when people are being murdered wholesale, being ethnically cleansed, being the targets of genocide, the world, including the United States, cannot and must not stand back and watch. For the sake of the Libyan people and all demanding freedom in the Middle East, I urge my colleagues to support this resolution authorizing the use of limited force.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. NUGENT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. NUGENT. Mr. Chairman, today I was planning to offer my own amendment which would hold the President accountable to the War Powers Act with regard to his operation in Libya. My intention was to expose the President's clear violation of this important law. However, I was concerned some wording could have raised a point of order. That being said, I'm proud to cosponsor Mr. KUCINICH's important amendment, which will completely cut off funds for this illegal war.

Mr. Chairman, on March 19, President Obama announced he had authorized U.S. military forces to conduct operations in Libya. Unfortunately, the President did this without receiving authorization from Congress even though he made sure to get the U.N.'s approval. By not being open and honest with Congress, he left Members in the dark and unsure of what our ultimate mission was. To this day, the President hasn't come to Congress to ask for formal approval.

Initially, when the President committed our military operations in Libya, he said it would be days, not months. Well, now we are definitely talking months because it is a little over a week we've been engaged in military operations in Libya for nearly 4 months. In an effort to escape his responsibility, to this day the President has refused to acknowledge that the U.S. is engaged in hostilities in Libya. That being said, those in the Pentagon seem to disagree with the President on this issue.

While the President has turned a blind eye to truth, the Department of Defense has decided to award imminent danger pay to servicemembers who fly over Libya and for those who serve on ships within 110 nautical miles of the shore. As of June 3, 93 percent of the cruise missiles, 66 percent of the personnel, 50 percent of the ships, and 50 percent of the planes used in NATO operations against Libya were by the United States of America.

Mr. Chair, firing a cruise missile at Libya qualifies as hostilities. In early June, it was estimated that Libya was already costing the American taxpayers over $700 million.

I have three sons that are currently in the military, and I will support our troops no matter where the President sends them. However, I cannot support Obama's decision to commit our military forces' operations without the required congressional authorization. That's why I cosponsored this amendment, the 2012 Department of Defense appropriations bill Kucinich amendment.

With that, I ask all my colleagues, all Members, to come down here on the House floor and to express support for this important amendment, to reclaim our Constitution, to reclaim the validity of this Congress as relates to committing troops to war.

Mr. Chairman, I support this amendment. I encourage all my colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1320

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. I believe this is an important debate in the House today as we, appropriately, exercise congressional oversight of the use of force and the costs associated with our engagement in Libya.

In my judgment, the President's initial commitment of U.S. air power and naval forces to support the international effort was appropriate, and certainly within his power as Commander in Chief. In March, the President clearly outlined the rationale for our involvement in this military action. Now if I were advising the President, I would have said send up a resolution and get approval from the House and the Senate. There is no question that would have been the preferred course of action.

The U.S. effort was undertaken in concert with a broad coalition of nations, and it followed a resolution adopted in the United Nations Security Council authorizing "all necessary measures" to protect Libyan civilians attempting to overthrow the oppressive regime of Muammar al Qadhafi. The Qadhafi government's response to the uprising, inspired by the "Arab Spring" movement, was to use force against civilians and opposition forces, and the brutal measures prompted the international outcry and the United Nations action. While the direct U.S. leadership of this effort lasted a brief time, U.S. forces remain engaged in the NATO operation.

When I hear many of my colleagues speak in favor of abandoning this cause, I believe it is important to reflect on the fundamental reason why we are concerned here. This is the same individual, Muammar al Qadhafi, who had been planning terrorist actions against United States citizens and others for decades. This is the same terrorist leader against whom President Ronald Reagan authorized a military strike in 1986—and he didn't ask Congress for approval—following the bombings in Berlin and definitive proof of Qadhafi's involvement in other terrorist activity. At that time, President Reagan publicly denounced Qadhafi as the "Mad Dog of the Middle East" who espoused the goal of world revolution.

Mr. Chairman, I can only wonder what Ronald Reagan would say today about those who would propose immediate withdrawal of U.S. assistance to the broad coalition of nations attempting to finish the job that President Reagan started.

Now, just to make it clear, the administration, when they sent up their report under the Boehner amendment, I believe, they did list out the military cost for the operation. Daily operations up to June 3 were $313.7 million; munitions, $398.3 million; global lift and sustain, $1.6 billion. The subtotal for military operations was $713.6 million. And then the drawdown of DOD supplies, $1.3 billion; humanitarian assistance, $1 billion; for a total of $715.9 million.

Now munitions come out of the munition funds; daily operations come out of O&M funds for the Army and the Navy. The estimate by September 30, 2011, is that daily operations will total $618 million; munitions, $450 million; global lift and sustain, $10 billion; for a total of $1.078 billion. Drawdown of DOD supplies would be $25 million and humanitarian assistance of $1 billion, for a total of $1.104 billion. I think that is a pretty clear indication.

Now, our chairman is absolutely correct. They have not asked for a supplemental here. They are going to use existing funds that we have already appropriated to take care of this operation. And of course we would all like to see this thing resolved as quickly as possible, and a political settlement may be possible. But I think it would be wrong to undermine the President and our country and our involvement with NATO and with the U.N. and with our Arab allies on this subject.

I urge a "no" vote on the Amash-Kucinich amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chair, last month, the House voted against defunding the American military mission in Libya. That was the right decision, and it still is: along with our NATO allies, we intervened in Libya in response to Moammar Gadhafi's violent repression of his own people, and the explicit promise of worse to come. It's also important to remember that Gadhafi has more American blood on his hands than anyone other than Osama bin Laden. And we must remember that we intervened in response to calls from the Arab League, the United Nations, the European Union, and a unanimous NATO.

Our allies have taken the leading role in Libya, but it is crucial that America continue to support them. It's crucial because the campaign against Gadhafi has made significant progress, which would be dramatically set back by a sudden withdrawal of American support; because that sudden withdrawal of support could endanger civilian lives and stall democratic movements across the Middle East; and because it would represent a failure to keep faith with our NATO allies. As I said the last time this issue came to the floor: either we are in an alliance, or we are not. And if we are, that means supporting our allies in their time and place of need, so that they will continue to do the same for us—a principle that is especially important when civilian lives are at stake. I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. AMASH).

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

Amendment No. 1 by Ms. LEE of California.

An amendment by Mr. GARAMENDI of California.

An amendment by Mr. NADLER of New York.

Amendment No. 1 by Mr. POE of Texas.

Amendment No. 2 by Ms. LEE of California.

Amendment No. 41 by Mr. COHEN of Tennessee.

An amendment by Mr. CICILLINE of Rhode Island.

An amendment by Mr. COHEN of Tennessee.

Amendment No. 2 by Mr. POE of Texas.

Amendment No. 1 by Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota.

Amendment No. 2 by Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota.

Amendment No. 13 by Mr. COLE of Oklahoma.

An amendment by Mr. AMASH of Michigan.

The Chair will reduce to 2 minutes the time for the second through the 11th vote. The final two votes will be 5-minute votes.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LEE

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 1 offered by the gentleman from California (Ms. LEE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 97, noes 322, not voting 12, as follows:

[Roll No. 502]

AYES—97

Amash	Fudge	Petri
Baca	Garamendi	Pingree (ME)
Baldwin	Grijalva	Polis
Bass (CA)	Gutierrez	Quigley
Becerra	Hastings (FL)	Rangel
Blumenauer	Hinchee	Richardson
Boswell	Hinojosa	Rohrabacher
Brady (PA)	Hirono	Rokita
Bralley (IA)	Holt	Rush
Campbell	Honda	Sánchez, Linda
Capuano	Jackson (IL)	T.
Chu	Jackson Lee	Sanchez, Loretta
Cicilline	(TX)	Schakowsky
Clarke (MI)	Johnson (IL)	Scott (VA)
Clarke (NY)	Johnson, E. B.	Serrano
Clay	Jones	Shuler
Clyburn	Kucinich	Sires
Coble	Larson (CT)	Slaughter
Cohen	Lee (CA)	Speier
Costello	Loftgren, Zoe	Stark
Crowley	Markey	Thompson (CA)
Cummings	Matsui	Thompson (MS)
Davis (IL)	McGovern	Tierney
DeFazio	Michaud	Tonko
Doyle	Moore	Towns
Duncan (TN)	Murphy (CT)	Tsongas
Edwards	Nadler	Velázquez
Ellison	Napolitano	Viscosky
Eshoo	Neal	Walters
Farr	Oliver	Watt
Fattah	Pallone	Waxman
Finer	Pastor (AZ)	Welch
Frank (MA)	Paul	Woolsey

NOES—322

Ackerman	Capps	Flake
Adams	Cardoza	Fleischmann
Aderholt	Carnahan	Fleming
Akin	Carney	Flores
Alexander	Carson (IN)	Forbes
Altmire	Carter	Fortenberry
Andrews	Cassidy	Fox
Austria	Castor (FL)	Franks (AZ)
Bachmann	Chabot	Frelinghuysen
Bachus	Chaffetz	Gallely
Barietta	Chandler	Gardner
Barrow	Coffman (CO)	Garrett
Bartlett	Cole	Gerlach
Barton (TX)	Conaway	Gibbs
Bass (NH)	Connolly (VA)	Gibson
Benishek	Cooper	Gingrey (GA)
Berg	Costa	Gohmert
Berkley	Courtney	Gonzalez
Berman	Cravaack	Goodlatte
Biggart	Crawford	Gosar
Bilbray	Crenshaw	Gowdy
Bilirakis	Critz	Granger
Bishop (GA)	Cuellar	Graves (GA)
Bishop (NY)	Davis (CA)	Graves (MO)
Bishop (UT)	Davis (KY)	Green, Al
Black	DeGette	Green, Gene
Blackburn	Denham	Griffin (AR)
Bonner	Dent	Griffith (VA)
Bono Mack	DesJarlais	Grimm
Boren	Deutch	Guinta
Boustany	Diaz-Balart	Guthrie
Brady (TX)	Dicks	Hall
Brooks	Dingell	Hanabusa
Broun (GA)	Doggett	Hanna
Brown (FL)	Dold	Harper
Buchanan	Donnelly (IN)	Harris
Bucshon	Dreier	Hartzler
Buerkle	Duffy	Hastings (WA)
Burgess	Duncan (SC)	Hayworth
Burton (IN)	Ellmers	Heck
Butterfield	Emerson	Heinrich
Calvert	Engel	Hensarling
Camp	Farenthold	Henger
Canseco	Fincher	Herrera Beutler
Capito	Fitzpatrick	Higgins

Himes	McDermott	Roybal-Allard
Hochul	McHenry	Royce
Holden	McIntyre	Runyan
Hoyer	McKeon	Ruppersberger
Huelskamp	McKinley	Ryan (OH)
Huizenga (MI)	McMorris	Ryan (WI)
Hultgren	Rodgers	Sarbanes
Hunter	McNerney	Scalise
Hurt	Meehan	Schiff
Inslie	Meeks	Schilling
Israel	Mica	Schmidt
Issa	Miller (FL)	Schock
Jenkins	Miller (MI)	Schrader
Johnson (GA)	Miller (NC)	Schwartz
Johnson (OH)	Miller, Gary	Schweikert
Johnson, Sam	Moran	Scott (SC)
Jordan	Mulvaney	Scott, Austin
Kaptur	Murphy (PA)	Scott, David
Kelly	Myrick	Sensenbrenner
Kildee	Neugebauer	Sessions
Kind	Noem	Sewell
King (IA)	Nugent	Sherman
King (NY)	Nunes	Shimkus
Kingston	Nunnelee	Shuster
Kinzinger (IL)	Olson	Simpson
Kissell	Owens	Smith (NE)
Kline	Palazzo	Smith (NJ)
Labrador	Pascrell	Smith (TX)
Lamborn	Paulsen	Smith (WA)
Lance	Pearce	Southerland
Landry	Pence	Stearns
Langevin	Perlmutter	Stivers
Lankford	Peters	Stutzman
Larsen (WA)	Peterson	Sullivan
Latham	Pitts	Sutton
LaTourette	Platts	Terry
Latta	Poe (TX)	Thompson (PA)
Levin	Pompeo	Thornberry
Lewis (CA)	Posey	Tiberi
Lipinski	Price (GA)	Tipton
LoBiondo	Price (NC)	Turner
Loeb sack	Quayle	Upton
Long	Rahall	Van Hollen
Lowe y	Reed	Walberg
Lucas	Rehberg	Walden
Luetkemeyer	Reichert	Walsh (IL)
Lujan	Renacci	Walz (MN)
Lummis	Reyes	Webster
Lungren, Daniel	Ribble	West
E.	Richmond	Westmoreland
Lynch	Rigell	Whitfield
Mack	Rivera	Wilson (FL)
Maloney	Roby	Wilson (SC)
Manzullo	Roe (TN)	Wittman
Marchant	Rogers (AL)	Wolf
Marino	Rogers (KY)	Womack
Matheson	Rogers (MI)	Woodall
McCarthy (CA)	Rooney	Wu
McCarthy (NY)	Ros-Lehtinen	Yarmuth
McCaul	Roskam	Yoder
McClintock	Ross (AR)	Young (AK)
McCollum	Ross (FL)	Young (FL)
McCotter	Rothman (NJ)	Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—12

Cantor	Giffords	Pelosi
Cleaver	Keating	Wasserman
Conyers	Lewis (GA)	Schultz
Culberson	Miller, George
DeLauro	Payne

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1351

Messrs. CONNOLLY of Virginia, MILLER of North Carolina, SCOTT of South Carolina, and LYNCH changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Messrs. BRADY of Pennsylvania, CROWLEY, and MURPHY of Connecticut changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GARAMENDI

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. GARAMENDI) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 133, noes 295, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 503]

AYES—133

Amash Garamendi Pelosi
 Baldwin Grijalva Peters
 Bass (CA) Gutierrez Petri
 Bass (NH) Hanabusa Pingree (ME)
 Becerra Hastings (FL) Polis
 Benishek Heinrich Quigley
 Bernan Himes Rangel
 Bishop (NY) Hinchey Richardson
 Blumenauer Hinojosa Rohrabacher
 Boswell Hirono Rokita
 Brady (PA) Holt Roybal-Allard
 Braley (IA) Honda Rush
 Campbell Inslee Ryan (OH)
 Capps Jackson (IL) Sanchez, Linda
 Capuano Jackson Lee T.
 Cardoza (TX) Sanchez, Loretta
 Chu Johnson (IL) Sarbanes
 Cicilline Johnson, E. B. Schakowsky
 Clarke (MI) Jones Schiff
 Clarke (NY) Kucinich Schrader
 Clay Larson (CT) Scott (VA)
 Cleaver Lee (CA) Serrano
 Clyburn Lewis (GA) Sherman
 Coble Loeb sack Shuler
 Cohen Lofgren, Zoe Sires
 Conyers Lujan Slaughter
 Costello Maloney Speier
 Courtney Markey Stark
 Crowley Matsui Sutton
 Cummings McCollum Thompson (CA)
 Davis (IL) McGovern Thompson (MS)
 DeFazio Mc Nerney Tierney
 DeGette Michaud Tonko
 DeLauro Miller, George Towns
 Doggett Moore Tsongas
 Doyle Moran Upton
 Duncan (TN) Murphy (CT) Velázquez
 Edwards Nadler Visclosky
 Ellison Napolitano Waters
 Eshoo Neal Watt
 Farr Oliver Waxman
 Fattah Pallone Welch
 Filner Pastor (AZ) Woolsey
 Frank (MA) Paul Wu
 Fudge Payne Yarmuth

NOES—295

Ackerman Blackburn
 Adams Bonner
 Aderholt Bono Mack
 Akin Boren
 Alexander Boustany
 Altmire Brady (TX)
 Andrews Brooks
 Austria Broun (GA)
 Baca Brown (FL)
 Bachmann Buchanan
 Bachus Busch
 Barletta Buerkle
 Barrow Burgess
 Bartlett Burton (IN)
 Barton (TX) Butterfield
 Berg Calvert
 Berkley Camp
 Biggert Canseco
 Bilbray Cantor
 Bilirakis Capito
 Bishop (GA) Carnahan
 Bishop (UT) Carney
 Black Carson (IN)

Diaz-Balart King (NY)
 Dicks Kingston
 Dingell Kinzinger (IL)
 Dold Kissell
 Donnelly (IN) Kline
 Dreier Labrador
 Duffy Lamborn
 Duncan (SC) Lance
 Ellmers Landry
 Emerson Langevin
 Engel Lankford
 Farenthold Larsen (WA)
 Fincher Latham
 Fitzpatrick LaTourette
 Flake Latta
 Fleischmann Levin
 Fleming Lewis (CA)
 Flores Lipinski
 Forbes LoBiondo
 Fortenberry Long
 Foxx Lowey
 Franks (AZ) Lucas
 Frelinghuysen Luetkemeyer
 Gallegly Lummis
 Gardner Lungren, Daniel
 Garrett E.
 Gerlach Lynch
 Gibbs Mack
 Gibson Manullo
 Gingrey (GA) Marchant
 Gohmert Marino
 Gonzalez Matheson
 Goodlatte McCarthy (CA)
 Gosar McCarthy (NY)
 Gowdy McCaul
 Granger McClintock
 Graves (GA) McCotter
 Graves (MO) McDermott
 Green, Al McHenry
 Green, Gene McIntyre
 Griffin (AR) McKeon
 Griffith (VA) McKinley
 Grimm McMorris
 Guinta Rodgers
 Guthrie Meehan
 Hall Meeks
 Hanna Mica
 Harper Miller (FL)
 Harris Miller (MI)
 Hartzler Miller (NC)
 Hastings (WA) Miller, Gary
 Hayworth Mulvaney
 Heck Murphy (PA)
 Hensarling Myrick
 Herger Neugebauer
 Herrera Beutler Noem
 Higgins Nugent
 Hochul Nunes
 Holden Nunnelee
 Olson
 Owens
 Huel skamp
 Hui zenga (MI) Palazzo
 Hultgren Pascrell
 Hunter Paulsen
 Hurt Pearce
 Israel Pence
 Issa Perlmutter
 Jenkins Peterson
 Johnson (GA) Pitts
 Johnson (OH) Platts
 Johnson, Sam Poe (TX)
 Jordan Pompeo
 Kaptur Posey
 Kelly Price (GA)
 Kildee Price (NC)
 Kind King (IA) Quayle
 King (IA) Rahall Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—3

□ 1357

Ms. PELOSI changed her vote from “no” to “aye.”
 So the amendment was rejected.
 The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. NADLER

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 174, noes 251, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 504]

AYES—174

Ackerman Garamendi Murphy (CT)
 Andrews Gibson Nadler
 Baca Gonzalez Napolitano
 Bachmann Goodlatte Neal
 Baldwin Green, Al Oliver
 Bass (CA) Green, Gene Pallone
 Becerra Griffith (VA) Pascarell
 Berkley Grijalva Pastor (AZ)
 Berman Gutierrez Paul
 Bishop (NY) Hanabusa Paulsen
 Blumenauer Hastings (FL) Payne
 Boswell Heinrich Pelosi
 Brady (PA) Higgins Peters
 Braley (IA) Himes Pingree (ME)
 Brown (FL) Hinchey Polis
 Burgess Hirono Price (NC)
 Burton (IN) Hochul Quigley
 Butterfield Holden Rahall
 Capps Holt Rangel
 Capuano Honda Reyes
 Carnahan Hoyer Rothman (NJ)
 Carney Inslee Roybal-Allard
 Carson (IN) Israel Rush
 Castor (FL) Jackson (IL) Ryan (OH)
 Chu Jackson Lee Sanchez, Linda
 Cicilline (TX) T.
 Clarke (MI) Johnson (GA) Sarbanes
 Clarke (NY) Johnson, E. B. Schakowsky
 Clay Jones Schiff
 Cleaver Kaptur Schwartz
 Clyburn Kildee Scott (VA)
 Cohen Kissell Serrano
 Connolly (VA) Kucinich Sewell
 Conyers Langevin Sherman
 Costello Larsen (WA) Sires
 Courtney Larson (CT) Slaughter
 Crowley Lee (CA) Smith (WA)
 Cummings Levin Speier
 Davis (CA) Lewis (GA) Stark
 Davis (IL) Lipinski Stutzman
 DeFazio Loeb sack Sutton
 DeGette Lofgren, Zoe Thompson (CA)
 DeLauro Lowey Thompson (MS)
 Deutch Lujan Tierney
 Dingell Whitfield Lynch
 Doggett Maloney Towns
 Donnelly (IN) Markey Tsongas
 Doyle Matsui Van Hollen
 Edwards McCarthy (NY) Velázquez
 Ellison McCollum Wasserman
 Engel McDermott Schultz
 Eshoo McGovern Waters
 Farr McIntyre Watt
 Fattah Mc Nerney Waxman
 Filner Meeks Welch
 Foe x Michaud Wilson (FL)
 Frank (MA) Miller, George Woolsey
 Franks (AZ) Moore Wu
 Fudge Moran Yarmuth

NOES—251

Adams Benishek Brady (TX)
 Aderholt Berg Brooks
 Akin Biggert Broun (GA)
 Alexander Bilbray Buchanan
 Altmire Bilirakis Busch
 Amash Bishop (GA) Buerkle
 Austria Bishop (UT) Calvert
 Bachus Black Camp
 Barletta Blackburn Campbell
 Barrow Bonner Canseco
 Bartlett Bono Mack Cantor
 Barton (TX) Boren Capito
 Black Boustany Cardoza

Carter
Cassidy
Chabot
Chaffetz
Chandler
Coble
Cole
Conaway
Cooper
Costa
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
Davis (KY)
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dold
Dreier
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gingrey (GA)
Gohmert
Gosar
Gowdy
Granger
Graves (GA)
Graves (MO)
Griffin (AR)
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Hensarling
Herger
Herrera Beutler
Hinojosa
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Issa
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Jordan
Kelly
Kind
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Lance
Landry
Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lewis (CA)
LoBiondo
Long
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
Matheson
McCarthy (CA)
McCaul
McClintock
McCotter
McHenry
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Mulvaney
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pearce
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Petri
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quayle
Reed
Rehberg
Reichart
Renacci
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (FL)
Royce
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Ryan (WI)
Sanchez, Loretta
Scalise
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock
Schradler
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Southernland
Stearns
Stivers
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tipton
Turner
Upton
Visclosky
Walberg
Walden
Walsh (IL)
Walz (MN)
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Woodall
Yoder
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

amendment No. 1 offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 131, noes 297, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 505]

AYES—131

Adams
Amash
Baldwin
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Benishek
Berg
Bishop (UT)
Black
Blumenauer
Braley (IA)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Buchanan
Buerkle
Burgess
Campbell
Capuano
Chaffetz
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Cleaver
Coble
Cohen
Conyers
Costello
Cummings
DeFazio
DesJarlais
Doggett
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Edwards
Emerson
Engel
Finer
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Frank (MA)
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibson
Gohmert
Goodlatte
Gowdy
Graves (GA)
Graves (MO)
Green, Gene
Griffith (VA)
Hall
Heck
Herrera Beutler
Higgins
Holt
Honda
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Jackson (IL)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones
Jordan
Kaptur
Kucinich
Labrador
Landry
Lankford
LaTourette
Lee (CA)
Lewis (CA)
LoBiondo
Lummis
Lynch
Marchant
Markey
McCaul
McClintock
McKinley
Michaud
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Mulvaney
Napolitano
Nugent
Oliver
Pallone
Paul
Payne
Pearce
Peters
Petri
Pingree (ME)
Poe (TX)
Posey
Price (GA)
Reed
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Ross (FL)
Royce
Sanchez, Loretta
Schilling
Schradler
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sessions
Slaughter
Southernland
Stark
Stearns
Stutzman
Thompson (PA)
Tierney
Tonko
Velázquez
Walsh (IL)
Waters
Welch
West
Westmoreland
Woodall
Woolsey
Wu
Yoder
Young (AK)

NOES—297

Ackerman
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Altmire
Andrews
Austria
Baca
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berkley
Berman
Biggart
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (NY)
Blackburn
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boren
Boswell
Boustany
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brown (FL)
Bucshon
Burton (IN)
Butterfield
Calvert
Camp
Canseco
Cantor
Capito
Capps
Cardoza
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Carter
Cassidy
Castor (FL)
Chabot
Chandler
Chu
Cicilline
Clyburn
Coffman (CO)
Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Cooper
Costa
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Crowley
Cuellar
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
Davis (KY)
DeGette
DeLauro
Denham
Dent

Deutch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Dold
Donnelly (IN)
Doyle
Dreier
Ellison
Ellmers
Eshoo
Farenthold
Farr
Fattah
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Foxy
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Fudge
Gallegly
Garamendi
Gardner
Gibbs
Gingrey (GA)
Gonzalez
Gosar
Granger
Green, Al
Griffin (AR)
Grijalva
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Gutierrez
Hanabusa
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heinrich
Hensarling
Herger
Himes
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hirono
Hochul
Holden
Hoyer
Huelskamp
Inslée
Israel
Issa
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Jenkins
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Kelly
Kildee
Kind
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Lamborn
Lance
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
Latta
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Loeb sack
Lofgren, Zoe
Long
Lowey
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lujan
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Maloney
Manzullo
Marino
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (CA)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McCotter
McDermott
McGovern
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McMorris
Rodgers
McNerney
Meehan
Meeks
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller, George
Moore
Moran
Murphy (CT)
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Polis
Pompeo
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sullivan
Nadler
Neal
Neugebauer
Noem
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LEE

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 2 offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 114, noes 314, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 506]

AYES—114

Amash	Fattah	Pastor (AZ)
Baca	Filner	Paul
Baldwin	Frank (MA)	Payne
Bass (CA)	Fudge	Pelosi
Becerra	Garamendi	Perlmutter
Benishek	Grijalva	Peters
Bishop (NY)	Gutierrez	Petri
Blumenauer	Himes	Pingree (ME)
Braley (IA)	Hinchev	Price (NC)
Brown (FL)	Hirono	Rangel
Butterfield	Holt	Richardson
Capps	Honda	Richmond
Capuano	Jackson (IL)	Roybal-Allard
Castor (FL)	Jackson Lee	Rush
Chaffetz	(TX)	Ryan (OH)
Chu	Johnson (IL)	Sanchez, Loretta
Cicilline	Johnson, E. B.	Schakowsky
Clarke (MI)	Jones	Schrader
Clarke (NY)	Kucinich	Serrano
Clay	Larson (CT)	Sherman
Cleaver	Lee (GA)	Slaughter
Clyburn	Levin	Speier
Coble	Lewis (GA)	Stark
Cohen	Loebsack	Sutton
Conyers	Lofgren, Zoe	Thompson (CA)
Costello	Lynch	Thompson (MS)
Courtney	Maloney	Tierney
Cummings	Markey	Tonko
Davis (IL)	Matsui	Towns
DeFazio	McGovern	Tsongas
DeGette	Michaud	Velázquez
DeLauro	Miller (NC)	Waters
Doggett	Miller, George	Watt
Doyle	Moore	Welch
Duncan (TN)	Murphy (CT)	Woolsey
Edwards	Napolitano	Wu
Ellison	Neal	Yarmuth
Eshoo	Olver
Farr	Pallone

NOES—314

Ackerman	Blackburn	Carson (IN)
Adams	Bonner	Carter
Aderholt	Bono Mack	Cassidy
Akin	Boren	Chabot
Alexander	Boswell	Chandler
Altmire	Boustany	Coffman (CO)
Andrews	Brady (PA)	Cole
Austria	Brady (TX)	Conaway
Bachmann	Brooks	Connolly (VA)
Bachus	Broun (GA)	Cooper
Barletta	Buchanan	Costa
Barrow	Bucshon	Cravaack
Bartlett	Buerkle	Crawford
Barton (TX)	Burgess	Crenshaw
Bass (NH)	Burton (IN)	Critz
Berg	Calvert	Crowley
Berkley	Camp	Cuellar
Berman	Campbell	Davis (CA)
Biggert	Canseco	Davis (KY)
Bilbray	Cantor	Denham
Bilirakis	Capito	Dent
Bishop (GA)	Cardoza	DesJarlais
Bishop (UT)	Carnahan	Deutch
Black	Carney	Diaz-Balart

Dicks	Kingston	Reyes
Dingell	Kinzinger (IL)	Ribble
Dold	Kissell	Rigell
Donnelly (IN)	Kline	Rivera
Dreier	Labrador	Roby
Duffy	Lamborn	Roe (TN)
Duncan (SC)	Lance	Rogers (AL)
Ellmers	Landry	Rogers (KY)
Emerson	Langevin	Rogers (MI)
Engel	Lankford	Rohrabacher
Farenthold	Larsen (WA)	Rokita
Fincher	Latham	Rooney
Fitzpatrick	LaTourette	Ros-Lehtinen
Flake	Latta	Roskam
Fleischmann	Lewis (CA)	Ross (AR)
Fleming	Lipinski	Ross (FL)
Flores	LoBiondo	Rothman (NJ)
Forbes	Long	Royce
Fortenberry	Lowe	Runyan
Fox	Lucas	Ruppersberger
Franks (AZ)	Luetkemeyer	Ryan (WI)
Frelinghuysen	Luján	Sánchez, Linda
Galleghy	Lummis	T.
Gardner	Lungren, Daniel	Sarbanes
Garrett	E.	Scalise
Gerlach	Mack	Schiff
Gibbs	Manzullo	Schilling
Gibson	Marchant	Schmidt
Gingrey (GA)	Marino	Schock
Gohmert	Matheson	Schwartz
Gonzalez	McCarthy (CA)	Schweikert
Goodlatte	McCarthy (NY)	Scott (SC)
Gosar	McCaul	Scott (VA)
Gowdy	McClintock	Scott, Austin
Granger	McCollum	Scott, David
Graves (GA)	McCotter	Sensenbrenner
Graves (MO)	McDermott	Sessions
Green, Al	McHenry	Sewell
Green, Gene	McIntyre	Shimkus
Griffith (AR)	McKeon	Shuler
Griffith (VA)	McKinley	Shuster
Grimm	McMorris	Simpson
Guinta	Rodgers	Sires
Guthrie	McNerney	Smith (NE)
Hall	Meehan	Smith (NJ)
Hanabusa	Meeks	Smith (TX)
Hanna	Mica	Smith (WA)
Harper	Miller (FL)	Southerland
Harris	Miller (MI)	Stearns
Hartzler	Miller, Gary	Stivers
Hastings (FL)	Moran	Stutzman
Hastings (WA)	Mulvaney	Sullivan
Hayworth	Murphy (PA)	Terry
Heck	Myrick	Thompson (PA)
Heinrich	Nadler	Thornberry
Hensarling	Neugebauer	Tiberi
Herger	Noem	Tipton
Herrera Beutler	Nugent	Turner
Higgins	Nunes	Upton
Hinojosa	Nunnelee	Van Hollen
Hochul	Olson	Visclosky
Holden	Owens	Walberg
Hoyer	Palazzo	Walden
Huelskamp	Pascal	Walsh (IL)
Huizenga (MI)	Paulsen	Walz (MN)
Hultgren	Pearce	Wasserman
Hunter	Pence	Schultz
Hurt	Peterson	Waxman
Inlee	Pitts	Webster
Israel	Platts	West
Issa	Poe (TX)	Westmoreland
Jenkins	Polis	Whitfield
Johnson (GA)	Pompeo	Wilson (FL)
Johnson (OH)	Posey	Wilson (SC)
Johnson, Sam	Price (GA)	Wittman
Jordan	Quayle	Wolf
Kaptur	Quigley	Womack
Kelly	Rahall	Woodall
Kildee	Reed	Yoder
Kind	Rehberg	Young (AK)
King (IA)	Reichert	Young (FL)
King (NY)	Renacci	Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—3

Culberson	Giffords	Keating
-----------	----------	---------

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining.

□ 1408

So the amendment was rejected. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 41 OFFERED BY MR. COHEN

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COHEN) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 210, noes 217, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 507]

AYES—210

Amash	Fitzpatrick	Miller (MI)
Andrews	Fortenberry	Miller (NC)
Baca	Fox	Miller, George
Baldwin	Frank (MA)	Moore
Bass (CA)	Fudge	Moran
Bass (NH)	Garamendi	Mulvaney
Becerra	Garrett	Murphy (CT)
Benishek	Gerlach	Murphy (PA)
Bishop (GA)	Gibson	Napolitano
Bishop (NY)	Gohmert	Neal
Blumenauer	Goodlatte	Olver
Boswell	Gowdy	Pallone
Brady (PA)	Graves (GA)	Pascrell
Braley (IA)	Graves (MO)	Pastor (AZ)
Brooks	Griffith (VA)	Paul
Broun (GA)	Grijalva	Payne
Brown (FL)	Grimm	Perlmutter
Butterfield	Gutierrez	Peters
Campbell	Hanabusa	Peterson
Capps	Hanna	Petri
Capuano	Hastings (FL)	Pingree (ME)
Cardoza	Heinrich	Poe (TX)
Carney	Herrera Beutler	Polis
Castor (FL)	Higgins	Posey
Chaffetz	Himes	Price (NC)
Chu	Hinchev	Quigley
Cicilline	Hirono	Rahall
Clarke (MI)	Hochul	Rangel
Clarke (NY)	Holden	Reed
Clay	Holt	Ribble
Cleaver	Honda	Richardson
Clyburn	Hoyer	Richmond
Coble	Huizenga (MI)	Rigell
Cohen	Hurt	Rohrabacher
Connolly (VA)	Inlee	Rokita
Conyers	Jackson (IL)	Rothman (NJ)
Cooper	Jackson Lee	Royce
Costa	(TX)	Rush
Costello	Johnson (IL)	Ryan (OH)
Courtney	Johnson, E. B.	Sánchez, Linda
Critz	Jones	T.
Crowley	Kaptur	Sanchez, Loretta
Cummings	Kind	Sarbanes
Davis (CA)	Kissell	Schiff
Davis (IL)	Kucinich	Schrader
DeFazio	Labrador	Scott (SC)
DeGette	Lankford	Scott (VA)
DeLauro	Larsen (WA)	Scott, David
DesJarlais	Larson (CT)	Sensenbrenner
Deutch	Lee (GA)	Serrano
Dicks	Lewis (GA)	Sewell
Doggett	Lipinski	Sherman
Dold	Loebsack	Shuler
Doyle	Lofgren, Zoe	Sires
Duffy	Luján	Slaughter
Duncan (SC)	Lynch	Speier
Duncan (TN)	Maloney	Stark
Edwards	Marchant	Stearns
Ellison	Markey	Stutzman
Emerson	Matsui	Sutton
Engel	McCcollum	Thompson (CA)
Eshoo	McGovern	Thompson (MS)
Farr	McIntyre	Thompson (PA)
Fattah	Meehan	Tierney
Filner	Michaud	Tonko

Towns Walsh (IL) Woodall
 Tsongas Wasserman Woolsey
 Upton Schultz Wu
 Velázquez Waters Yarmuth
 Visclosky Waxman Yoder
 Walden Welch Young (AK)

NOES—217

Ackerman Green, Al Nugent
 Adams Green, Gene Nunes
 Aderholt Griffin (AR) Nunnelee
 Akin Guinta Olson
 Alexander Guthrie Owens
 Altmire Hall Palazzo
 Austria Harper Paulsen
 Bachmann Harris Pearce
 Bachus Hartzler Pelosi
 Barletta Hastings (WA) Pence
 Barrow Hayworth Pitts
 Bartlett Heck Platts
 Barton (TX) Hensarling Pompeo
 Berg Herger Price (GA)
 Berkley Hinojosa Quayle
 Berman Huelskamp Rehberg
 Biggert Hultgren Reichert
 Bilbray Hunter Renacci
 Bilirakis Israel Reyes
 Bishop (UT) Issa Rivera
 Black Jenkins Roby
 Blackburn Johnson (GA) Roe (TN)
 Bonner Johnson (OH) Rogers (AL)
 Bono Mack Johnson, Sam Rogers (KY)
 Boren Jordan Rogers (MI)
 Boustany Kelly Rooney
 Brady (TX) Kildee Ros-Lehtinen
 Buchanan King (IA) Roskam
 Bucshon King (NY) Ross (AR)
 Buerkle Kingston Ross (FL)
 Burgess Kinzinger (IL) Roybal-Allard
 Burton (IN) Kline Runyan
 Calvert Lamborn Ruppertsberger
 Canseco Lance Ryan (WI)
 Cantor Landry Scalise
 Capito Langevin Schakowsky
 Carnahan Latham Schilling
 Carson (IN) LaTourette Schmidt
 Carter Latta Schock
 Cassidy Levin Schwartz
 Chabot Lewis (CA) Schweikert
 Chandler LoBiondo Scott, Austin
 Coffman (CO) Long Sessions
 Cole Lowey Shimkus
 Conaway Lucas Shuster
 Cravaack Luetkemeyer Simpson
 Crawford Lummis Smith (NE)
 Crenshaw Lungren, Daniel Smith (NJ)
 Cuellar E. Smith (TX)
 Davis (KY) Mack Smith (WA)
 Denham Manzullo Southerland
 Dent Marino Stivers
 Diaz-Balart Matheson Sullivan
 Dingell McCarthy (CA) Terry
 Donnelly (IN) McCarthy (NY) Thornberry
 Dreier McCaul Tiberi
 Ellmers McClintock Tipton
 Farenthold McCotter Turner
 Fincher McDermott Van Hollen
 Flake McHenry Walberg
 Fleischmann McKeon Walz (MN)
 Fleming McKinley Watt
 Flores McMorris Webster
 Forbes Rodgers West
 Franks (AZ) McNerney Westmoreland
 Frelinghuysen Meeks Whitfield
 Gallegly Mica Wilson (FL)
 Gardner Miller (FL) Wilson (SC)
 Gibbs Miller, Gary Wittman
 Gingrey (GA) Myrick Wolf
 Gonzalez Nadler Womack
 Gosar Neugebauer Young (FL)
 Granger Noem Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—4

Camp Giffords
 Culberson Keating

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining.

□ 1411

Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado changed his vote from to “aye” to “no.”
 So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated against:

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Chair, on rollcall No. 507 I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted “no.”

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CICILLINE

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. CICILLINE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 145, noes 283, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 508]

AYES—145

Amash Garamendi Pastor (AZ)
 Baca Garrett Paul
 Baldwin Goodlatte Payne
 Bass (CA) Gowdy Peters
 Bass (NH) Graves (GA) Petri
 Becerra Griffith (VA) Pingree (ME)
 Benishek Grijalva Poe (TX)
 Bishop (NY) Hanabusa Polis
 Blumenauer Hastings (FL) Posey
 Boswell Herrera Beutler Quigley
 Brooks Higgins Rahall
 Broun (GA) Himes Rangel
 Brown (FL) Hirono Ribble
 Buchanan Hochul Richardson
 Campbell Holden Rigell
 Capps Holt Rohrabacher
 Cardoza Honda Rokita
 Chaffetz Hurt Rothman (NJ)
 Chu Inslee Royce
 Cicilline Jackson (IL) Rush
 Clarke (MI) Jackson Lee Ryan (OH)
 Clarke (NY) (TX) Sanchez, Linda
 Johnson (IL) T.
 Johnson, E. B. Sanchez, Loretta
 Jones Schrader
 Kind Schweikert
 Kissell Scott, David
 Costa Kucinich Sensenbrenner
 Costello Labrador Serrano
 Cummings Larsen (WA) Sewell
 DeFazio Lee (CA) Shuler
 DeGette Lewis (GA) Sires
 DesJarlais Loeb sack Slaughter
 Deutch Lofgren, Zoe Speier
 Doggett Lummis Stark
 Doyle Maloney Stearns
 Duffy Matsui Stutzman
 Duncan (SC) McGovern Thompson (CA)
 Duncan (TN) McIntyre Thompson (MS)
 Edwards Mica Tonko
 Ellison Michaud Towns
 Engel Miller (MI) Upton
 Eshoo Miller, George Velázquez
 Farr Mulvaney Walsh (IL)
 Fattah Murphy (CT) Waters
 Filner Napolitano Welch
 Foxx Neal Wilson (FL)
 Frank (MA) Olver Woodall
 Fudge Pallone Woolsey

NOES—283

Ackerman Austria Berg
 Adams Bachmann Berkley
 Aderholt Bachus Berkley
 Akin Barletta Berman
 Alexander Barrow Biggert
 Altmire Bartlett Bilbray
 Andrews Barton (TX) Bishop (GA)

Bishop (UT) Hartzler Pearce
 Black Hastings (WA) Pelosi
 Blackburn Hayworth Pence
 Bonner Heck Perlmutter
 Bono Mack Heinrich Peterson
 Boren Hensarling Pitts
 Boustany Herger Platts
 Brady (PA) Hinchey Pompeo
 Brady (TX) Hinojosa Price (GA)
 Bucshon Hoyer Price (NC)
 Buerkle Huelskamp Quayle
 Burgess Huizenga (MI) Reed
 Burton (IN) Hultgren Rehberg
 Butterfield Hunter Reichert
 Calvert Israel Renacci
 Camp Issa Reyes
 Canseco Jenkins Richmond
 Cantor Johnson (GA) Rivera
 Capito Johnson (OH) Roby
 Capuano Johnson, Sam Roe (TN)
 Carnahan Jordan Rogers (AL)
 Carney Kaptur Rogers (KY)
 Carson (IN) Kelly Rogers (MI)
 Carter Kildee Rooney
 Cassidy King (IA) King (NY)
 Castor (FL) King (NY) Ros-Lehtinen
 Chabot Kingston Roskam
 Chandler Kinzinger (IL) Ross (AR)
 Clyburn Kline Ross (FL)
 Coffman (CO) Lamborn Roybal-Allard
 Cohen Lance Runyan
 Cole Landry Ruppertsberger
 Conaway Langevin Ryan (WI)
 Connolly (VA) Lankford Sarbanes
 Cooper Larson (CT) Scalise
 Courtney Latham Schakowsky
 Cravaack LaTourette Schiff
 Crawford Latta Schilling
 Crenshaw Levin Schmitt
 Crenshaw Lewis (CA) Schock
 Critz Lipinski Schwartz
 Crowley Lipinski Scott (SC)
 Cuellar LoBiondo Scott (VA)
 Davis (CA) Long Scott, Austin
 Davis (IL) Lowey Sessions
 Davis (KY) Lucas Sherman
 DeLauro Luetkemeyer Shimkus
 Denham Lujan Shuster
 Dent Lungren, Daniel
 Diaz-Balart E. Simpson
 Dicks Lynch Smith (NE)
 Dingell Mack Smith (NJ)
 Dold Manzullo Smith (TX)
 Donnelly (IN) Marchant Smith (VA)
 Dreier Marino Souterland
 Ellmers Markey Stivers
 Emerson Matheson Sullivan
 Farenthold McCarthy (CA) Sutton
 Fincher McCarthy (NY) Terry
 Fitzpatrick McCaul Thompson (PA)
 Flake McClintock Thornberry
 Fleischmann McCollum Tiberi
 Fleming McCotter Tierney
 Flores McDermott Tipton
 Forbes McHenry Tsongas
 Fortenberry McKeon Turner
 Franks (AZ) McKinley Van Hollen
 Frelinghuysen McMorris Visclosky
 Gallegly Rodgers Walberg
 Gardner McNerney Walden
 Gerlach Meehan Walz (MN)
 Gibbs Meeks Wasserman
 Gibson Miller (FL) Schultz
 Gingrey (GA) Miller (NC) Watt
 Gohmert Miller, Gary Waxman
 Gonzalez Moore Webster
 Gosar Moran West
 Granger Murphy (PA) Westmoreland
 Graves (MO) Myrick Whitfield
 Green, Al Nadler Wilson (SC)
 Green, Gene Neugebauer Wittman
 Griffin (AR) Noem Wolf
 Grimm Nugent Womack
 Guinta Nunes Wu
 Guthrie Nunnelee Yarmuth
 Gutierrez Olson Yoder
 Hall Owens Young (AK)
 Hanna Palazzo Young (FL)
 Harper Pascrell Young (IN)
 Harris Paulsen

NOT VOTING—3

Culberson Giffords Keating

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in the vote.

□ 1415

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. COHEN

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COHEN) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 119, noes 306, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 509]

AYES—119

Amash Fudge Paul
Baca Garamendi Payne
Baldwin Gibson Peters
Bass (CA) Gohmert Petri
Becerra Gowdy Pingree (ME)
Benishek Graves (GA) Polis
Bishop (NY) Green, Gene Posey
Blumenauer Grijalva Quigley
Boswell Gutierrez Rahall
Braley (IA) Hastings (FL) Rangel
Broun (GA) Herrera Beutler Ribble
Campbell Higgins Richardson
Capps Himes Rigell
Capuano Hirono Rohrabacher
Chaffetz Hochul Rokita
Chu Holt Rush
Cicilline Honda Ryan (OH)
Clarke (MI) Inslee Sánchez, Linda
Clarke (NY) Jackson (IL) T.
Clay Johnson (IL) Sanchez, Loretta
Cleaver Johnson, E. B. Scott (VA)
Clyburn Jones Sensenbrenner
Coble Kucinich Serrano
Cohen Lee (CA) Sherman
Conyers Lewis (GA) Slaughter
Costello Lofgren, Zoe Speier
Davis (IL) Maloney Stark
DeFazio Markey Stearns
DeLauro Matsui Thompson (CA)
Deutch McGovern Thompson (MS)
Doggett Mica Tonko
Dold Michaud Towns
Doyle Miller, George Velázquez
Duncan (SC) Mulvaney Walsh (IL)
Duncan (TN) Murphy (CT) Waters
Ellison Nadler Welch
Eshoo Napolitano Woolsey
Farr Neal Wu
Filner Oliver Yarmuth
Frank (MA) Pallone Young (AK)

NOES—306

Ackerman Bass (NH) Brady (PA)
Adams Berg Brady (TX)
Aderholt Berkley Brooks
Akin Biggert Brown (FL)
Alexander Bilbray Buchanan
Altmire Bilirakis Busch
Andrews Bishop (GA) Buerkle
Austria Bishop (UT) Burgess
Bachmann Black Burton (IN)
Bachus Blackburn Butterfield
Barletta Bonner Calvert
Barrow Bono Mack Camp
Bartlett Boren Canseco
Barton (TX) Boustany Cantor

Capito
Cardoza
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Carter
Cassidy
Castor (FL)
Chabot
Chandler
Coffman (CO)
Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Cooper
Costa
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Crowley
Cuellar
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (KY)
DeGette
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Donnelly (IN)
Dreier
Duffy
Edwards
Ellmers
Emerson
Engel
Farenthold
Fattah
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Foxy
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gingrey (GA)
Gonzalez
Goodlatte
Gosar
Granger
Graves (MO)
Green, Al
Griffin (AR)
Griffith (VA)
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanabusa
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Heinrich
Hensarling
Herger
Hinojosa
Holden
Hoyer
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Israel
Issa
Jackson Lee (TX)
Jenkins
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Jordan
Kaptur
Kelly
Kildee
Kind
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Lance
Landry
Langevin
Lankford
Larsen (WA)
Larsen (CT)
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Loeb sack
Long
Lowe y
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Luján
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel E.
Lynch
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
Matheson
McCarthy (CA)
McCarthy (NY)
McCaul
McClintock
McCollum
McCotter
McDermott
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
McNerney
Meehan
Meeks
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Moore
Moran
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pearce
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Pitts

Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Price (GA)
Price (NC)
Quayle
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Richmond
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (FL)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Ryan (WI)
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock
Schrader
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sessions
Sewell
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Souterland
Stutzman
Sullivan
Sutton
Terry
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tierney
Tipton
Tsongas
Turner
Upton
Van Hollen
Visclosky
Walberg
Walden
Walz (MN)
Wasserman
Schultz
Watt
Waxman
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (FL)
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Woodall
Yoder
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—6

Giffords
Keating
King (IA)
Stivers

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1419

Ms. WATERS changed her vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. POE OF TEXAS

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 2 offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 140, noes 285, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 510]

AYES—140

Adams Gerlach Moran
Amash Gibson Mulvaney
Baldwin Gingrey (GA) Napolitano
Barton (TX) Gohmert Nugent
Bass (NH) Goodlatte Paul
Benishek Gowdy Pearce
Berg Graves (GA) Petri
Berman Green, Gene Pingree (ME)
Bischoff Griffith (VA) Poe (TX)
Black Grijalva Posey
Blumenauer Hall Price (GA)
Braley (IA) Harris Renacci
Brooks Heck Richmond
Broun (GA) Heinrich Rigell
Buchanan Herrera Beutler Roe (TN)
Buerkle Higgins Rohrabacher
Burgess Hochul Rokita
Campbell Honda Rooney
Capito Huizenga (MI) Royce
Capps Hultgren Ryan (OH)
Cardoza Jackson (IL) Schilling
Chaffetz Johnson (IL) Scott (SC)
Clarke (MI) Johnson (OH) Sensenbrenner
Clay Johnson, E. B. Serrano
Coble Jones Shuster
Cohen Jordan Slaughter
Conyers Kaptur Southerland
Costa Kucinich Speier
Costello Labrador Stark
Cummings Landry Stutzman
DeFazio LaTourette Sutton
DesJarlais LoBiondo Thompson (CA)
Deutch Loeb sack Thompson (PA)
Doggett Lofgren, Zoe Tiberi
Duffy Lummis Tierney
Duncan (SC) Lynch Tonko
Duncan (TN) Matsui Velázquez
Emerson McCarthy (CA) Visclosky
Eshoo McCaul Walsh (IL)
Farenthold McClintock Waters
Filner McKinley Welch
Fincher McNerney West
Fitzpatrick Mica Woodall
Foxy Michaud Woolsey
Frank (MA) Miller (NC) Wu
Garrett Miller, George Young (AK)

NOES—285

Ackerman Alexander Austria
Aderholt Altmire Baca
Akin Andrews Bachmann

Bachus	Guthrie	Pastor (AZ)	NOT VOTING—6	Murphy (CT)	Rohrabacher	Stearns
Barletta	Gutierrez	Paulsen		Nadler	Rokita	Sutton
Barrow	Hanabusa	Payne	Culberson	Napolitano	Rothman (NJ)	Terry
Bartlett	Hanna	Pelosi	Giffords	Neal	Roybal-Allard	Thompson (PA)
Bass (CA)	Harper	Pence		Noem	Royce	Tierney
Becerra	Hartzler	Perlmutter		Olver	Ruppersberger	Tipton
Berkley	Hastings (FL)	Peters		Paul	Ryan (OH)	Tonko
Biggert	Hastings (WA)	Peterson		Paulsen	Sánchez, Linda	Tsongas
Bilbray	Hayworth	Pitts		Payne	T.	Van Hollen
Bilirakis	Hensarling	Platts		Pelosi	Sanchez, Loretta	Velázquez
Bishop (GA)	Herger	Polis		Peters	Sarbanes	Visclosky
Bishop (NY)	Himes	Pompeo		Petri	Schakowsky	Walden
Blackburn	Hinchee	Price (NC)		Pingree (ME)	Schiff	Walsh (IL)
Bonner	Hinojosa	Quayle		Polis	Schmidt	Waters
Bono Mack	Hirono	Quigley		Price (NC)	Schrader	Waxman
Boren	Holden	Rahall		Quayle	Schwartz	Welch
Boswell	Holt	Rangel		Quigley	Sensenbrenner	West
Boustany	Hoyer	Reed		Rangel	Serrano	Westmoreland
Brady (PA)	Huelskamp	Rehberg		Reed	Sessions	Woodall
Brady (TX)	Hunter	Reichert		Renacci	Sherman	Woolsey
Brown (FL)	Inslee	Reyes		Ribble	Smith (NJ)	Wu
Bucshon	Israel	Ribble		Richardson	Smith (WA)	Yarmuth
Burton (IN)	Issa	Richardson		Roby	Speier	Young (IN)
Butterfield	Jackson Lee	Rivera		Roe (TN)	Stark
Calvert	(TX)	Roby
Camp	Jenkins	Rogers (AL)
Canseco	Johnson (GA)	Rogers (KY)
Cantor	Johnson, Sam	Rogers (MI)
Carnahan	Kelly	Ros-Lehtinen
Carney	Kildee	Roskam
Carson (IN)	Kind	Ross (AR)
Carter	King (IA)	Ross (FL)
Cassidy	King (NY)	Rothman (NJ)
Castor (FL)	Kingston	Roybal-Allard
Chabot	Kinzinger (IL)	Runyan
Chandler	Kissell	Ruppersberger
Chu	Kline	Rush
Ciulline	Lamborn	Ryan (WI)
Clarke (NY)	Lance	Sánchez, Linda
Cleaver	Langevin	T.
Clyburn	Lankford	Sanchez, Loretta
Coffman (CO)	Larsen (WA)	Sarbanes
Cole	Larson (CT)	Scalise
Conaway	Latham	Schakowsky
Connolly (VA)	Latta	Schiff
Cooper	Lee (CA)	Schmidt
Courtney	Levin	Schock
Cravaack	Lewis (CA)	Schrader
Crawford	Lewis (GA)	Schwartz
Crenshaw	Lipinski	Schweikert
Critz	Long	Scott (VA)
Crowley	Lowey	Scott, Austin
Cuellar	Lucas	Scott, David
Davis (CA)	Luetkemeyer	Sessions
Davis (IL)	Luján	Sewell
Davis (KY)	Lungren, Daniel	Sherman
DeGette	E.	Shimkus
DeLauro	Mack	Shuler
Denham	Maloney	Simpson
Dent	Manzullo	Sires
Diaz-Balart	Marchant	Smith (NE)
Dicks	Marino	Smith (TX)
Dingell	Matheson	Smith (WA)
Dold	McCarthy (NY)	Stearns
Donnelly (IN)	McColum	Sullivan
Doyle	McCotter	Terry
Dreier	McDermott	Thompson (MS)
Edwards	McGovern	Thornberry
Ellison	McHenry	Tipton
Ellmers	McIntyre	Towns
Engel	McKeon	Tsongas
Farr	McMorris	Turner
Fattah	Rodgers	Upton
Flake	Meehan	Van Hollen
Fleischmann	Meeks	Walberg
Fleming	Miller (FL)	Walden
Flores	Miller (MI)	Walz (MN)
Forbes	Miller, Gary	Wasserman
Fortenberry	Moore	Schultz
Franks (AZ)	Murphy (CT)	Watt
Frelinghuysen	Murphy (PA)	Waxman
Fudge	Myrick	Webster
Gallegly	Nadler	Westmoreland
Garamendi	Neal	Whitfield
Gardner	Neugebauer	Wilson (FL)
Gibbs	Noem	Wilson (SC)
Gonzalez	Nunes	Wittman
Gosar	Nunnelee	Wolf
Granger	Olson	Womack
Graves (MO)	Oliver	Yarmuth
Green, Al	Owens	Yoder
Griffin (AR)	Palazzo	Young (FL)
Grimm	Pallone	Young (IN)
Guinta	Pascrell

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR
The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1422

So the amendment was rejected.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. MCCOLLUM
The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 1 offered by the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Ms. MCCOLLUM) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.
The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.
The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 226, noes 201, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 511]

AYES—226

Ackerman	DeGette	Holden	Adams	Gutierrez	Pitts
Altmire	DeLauro	Holt	Aderholt	Hall	Platts
Amash	Dent	Honda	Akin	Harris	Poe (TX)
Bachmann	DesJarlais	Hoyer	Alexander	Hastings (FL)	Pompeo
Baldwin	Dicks	Huizenga (MI)	Andrews	Hastings (WA)	Posey
Barrow	Dingell	Hurt	Austria	Hayworth	Price (GA)
Bass (CA)	Doggett	Inslee	Baca	Hensarling	Rahall
Bass (NH)	Dold	Israel	Bachus	Herger	Rehberg
Becerra	Donnelly (IN)	Jackson (IL)	Barletta	Hinchee	Reichert
Benishak	Doyle	Johnson (GA)	Bartlett	Huelskamp	Reyes
Berg	Duffy	Johnson (IL)	Bartlett	Hultgren	Richmond
Berman	Duncan (SC)	Jones	Barton (TX)	Hunter	Rigell
Biggert	Duncan (TN)	Kaptur	Berkley	Issa	Rivera
Bishop (NY)	Edwards	Kildee	Bilbray	Jackson Lee	Rogers (AL)
Blumenauer	Ellison	Kind	Bilirakis	(TX)	Rogers (KY)
Bono Mack	Ellmers	Kingston	Bishop (UT)	Jenkins	Rogers (MI)
Boren	Emerson	Kinzinger (IL)	Black	Johnson (OH)	Rooney
Boswell	Eshoo	Kucinich	Blackburn	Johnson, E. B.	Ros-Lehtinen
Brady (PA)	Farr	Labrador	Bonner	Johnson, Sam	Roskam
Braley (IA)	Fattah	Lance	Boustany	Jordan	Ross (AR)
Brooks	Filner	Langevin	Brady (TX)	Kelly	Ross (FL)
Butterfield	Flake	Larsen (WA)	Broun (GA)	King (IA)	Ross (NY)
Campbell	Frank (MA)	Latham	Brown (FL)	King (NY)	Rush
Cantor	Franks (AZ)	LaTourette	Buchanan	Kissell	Ryan (WI)
Capuano	Fudge	Lee (CA)	Bucshon	Kline	Scalise
Cardoza	Gallely	Levin	Buerkle	Lamborn	Schilling
Carnahan	Garamendi	LoBiondo	Burgess	Landry	Schock
Carney	Gardner	Loeb sack	Burton (IN)	Lankford	Schweikert
Cassidy	Gibbs	Lofgren, Zoe	Calvert	Larson (CT)	Scott (SC)
Castor (FL)	Gibson	Long	Camp	Latta	Scott (VA)
Chabot	Gingrey (GA)	Lowey	Canseco	Lewis (CA)	Scott, Austin
Chaffetz	Goodlatte	Luján	Capito	Lewis (GA)	Scott, David
Chandler	Gosar	Lummis	Capps	Lipinski	Sewell
Chu	Gowdy	Mack	Carson (IN)	Lucas	Shimkus
Ciulline	Graves (GA)	Maloney	Carter	Luetkemeyer	Shuler
Clarke (MI)	Green, Al	Manzullo	Clyburn	Lungren, Daniel	Shuster
Clarke (NY)	Griffith (VA)	Matsui	Cole	E.	Simpson
Clay	Grijalva	McCarthy (NY)	Conaway	Lynch	Sires
Cleaver	Guinta	McClintock	Cravaack	Marchant	Slaughter
Coble	Guthrie	McColum	Crawford	Marino	Smith (NE)
Coffman (CO)	Hanabusa	McDermott	Crenshaw	Matheson	Smith (TX)
Cohen	Hanna	McGovern	Crowley	McCarthy (CA)	Smith (FL)
Connolly (VA)	Harper	McKeon	Cummings	McCaul	Southerland
Conyers	Hartzler	McNerney	Davis (KY)	McCotter	Stivers
Cooper	Heck	Meehan	DeFazio	McHenry	Stutzman
Costa	Herrich	Meeks	Denham	McIntyre	Sullivan
Costello	Herrera Beutler	Mica	Deutch	McKinley	Thompson (CA)
Courtney	Higgins	Michaud	Diaz-Balart	McMorris	Thompson (MS)
Critz	Himes	Miller, Gary	Dreier	Rodgers	Thornberry
Cuellar	Hinojosa	Miller, George	Engel	Miller (FL)	Tiberi
Davis (CA)	Hirono	Moran	Engel	Miller (MI)	Towns
Davis (IL)	Hochul	Mulvaney	Farenthold	Miller (NC)	Turner
			Fincher	Moore	Upton
			Fitzpatrick	Murphy (PA)	Walberg
			Fleming	Myrick	Walz (MN)
			Flores	Neugebauer	Wasserman
			Forbes	Nugent	Schultz
			Fortenberry	Nunes	Watt
			Fox	Nunnelee	Webster
			Frelinghuysen	Olson	Whitfield
			Garrett	Owens	Wilson (FL)
			Gerlach	Palazzo	Wilson (SC)
			Gohmert	Pallone	Wittman
			Gonzalez	Pascrell	Wolf
			Granger	Pastor (AZ)	Womack
			Graves (MO)	Pearce	Yoder
			Green, Gene	Pence	Young (AK)
			Griffin (AR)	Perlmutter	Young (FL)
			Grimm	Peterson

NOES—201

NOT VOTING—4

Culberson Keating
Giffords Markey

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1427

Messrs. MCCARTHY of California and BURGESS changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. MCCOLLUM

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 2 offered by the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Ms. MCCOLLUM) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 167, noes 260, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 512]

AYES—167

Ackerman	Dingell	Lowe
Akin	Doggett	Lujan
Alexander	Doyle	Lynch
Baldwin	Edwards	Maloney
Barrow	Ellison	Markey
Bass (CA)	Engel	Matheson
Becerra	Eshoo	Matsui
Berman	Farr	McCarthy (NY)
Bishop (NY)	Fattah	McCollum
Bishop (UT)	Filner	McDermott
Blumenauer	Fudge	McGovern
Bono Mack	Garamendi	McMorris
Braley (IA)	Gardner	Rodgers
Broun (GA)	Garrett	McNerney
Burgess	Gingrey (GA)	Meeks
Camp	Gonzalez	Michaud
Capps	Gosar	Miller, George
Capuano	Green, Al	Moran
Cardoza	Griffith (VA)	Neal
Carnahan	Grijalva	Noem
Carney	Gutierrez	Olver
Cassidy	Heinrich	Owens
Castor (FL)	Herrera Beutler	Pallone
Chabot	Higgins	Pascarell
Chandler	Himes	Paul
Chu	Hinchoy	Payne
Cicilline	Hinojosa	Pelosi
Clarke (MI)	Hirono	Perlmutter
Clarke (NY)	Hochul	Peters
Clay	Holt	Petri
Cleaver	Honda	Pingree (ME)
Coffman (CO)	Hoyer	Polis
Cohen	Huizenga (MI)	Price (NC)
Connolly (VA)	Israel	Quigley
Conyers	Jackson (IL)	Rangel
Costa	Jones	Reichert
Costello	Kaptur	Richmond
Courtney	Kildee	Rothman (NJ)
Critz	Kind	Roybal-Allard
Crowley	Kingston	Royce
Cummings	Kucinich	Rush
Davis (CA)	Lance	Ryan (WI)
Davis (IL)	Langevin	Sánchez, Linda
DeFazio	Larsen (WA)	T.
DeGette	Larson (CT)	Sanchez, Loretta
DeLauro	Lee (CA)	Sarbanes
Deutch	Levin	Schakowsky
Dicks	Lofgren, Zoe	Schiff

Schmidt
Schrader
Schwartz
Scott (VA)
Sensenbrenner
Sherman
Slaughter
Speier
Stark

Stearns
Stivers
Sutton
Tiberi
Tierney
Tonko
Townes
Tsongas
Van Hollen

Velázquez
Walden
Waters
Waxman
Wilson (FL)
Woolsey
Wu

Whitfield
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf

Womack
Woodall
Yarmuth
Yoder

Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—4

Culberson
Giffords

Issa
Keating

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1432

Messrs. LOBIONDO and MACK changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Mr. GUTIERREZ and Ms. SUTTON changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 13 OFFERED BY MR. COLE

The CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIR. This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 225, noes 201, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 513]

AYES—225

Adams
Aderholt
Altmire
Amash
Andrews
Austria
Baca
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Bartlett
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Benishek
Berg
Berkley
Biggert
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bishop (GA)
Black
Blackburn
Bonner
Boren
Boswell
Boustany
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brooks
Brown (FL)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Buerkle
Burton (IN)
Butterfield
Calvert
Campbell
Cantese
Cantor
Capito
Carson (IN)
Carter
Chaffetz
Clyburn
Coble
Coke
Cole
Conaway
Cooper
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Cuellar
Davis (KY)
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dold
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
McCarthy (CA)
McCaul
McClintock
McCotter
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Moore
Mulvaney
Murphy (CT)
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Nadler

NOES—260

Gowdy
Granger
Graves (GA)
Graves (MO)
Green, Gene
Griffin (AR)
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanabusa
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Hensarling
Herger
Holden
Huelskamp
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Inslie
Jackson Lee
Jenkins
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Jordan
Kelly
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Landry
Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Loeb sack
Long
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
McCarthy (CA)
McCaul
McClintock
McCotter
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Moore
Mulvaney
Murphy (CT)
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Nadler

Napolitano
Neugebauer
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Palazzo
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pearce
Pence
Peterson
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quayle
Rahall
Reed
Rehberg
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Rigell
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (FL)
Ruppersberger
Ryan (OH)
Scalise
Schilling
Schock
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Serrano
Sessions
Sewell
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Souterland
Stutzman
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tipton
Turner
Upton
Visclosky
Walberg
Walsh (IL)
Walz (MN)
Walz (IN)
Wasserman
Schultz
Watt
Webster
Welch
West
Westmoreland

Adams
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Amash
Bachmann
Baldwin
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Becerra
Benishek
Berg
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bishop (UT)
Black
Bonner
Boustany
Braley (IA)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Buerkle
Burton (IN)
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Capito
Capuano
Carson (IN)
Cassidy
Chabot
Chaffetz
Cicilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Cleaver
Coble
Cole

Conyers
Cooper
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Cummings
Davis (KY)
DeFazio
Denham
DesJarlais
Doggett
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Emerson
Farenthold
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Fox
Frelinghuysen
Fudge
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gibson
Gingrey (GA)
Gohmert
Goodlatte
Gosar
Gowdy
Graves (GA)
Graves (MO)
Griffin (AR)
Griffith (VA)
Grijalva

Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanabusa
Hanna
Hastings (WA)
Heck
Hensarling
Herger
Herrera Beutler
Himes
Hinchoy
Honda
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hurt
Issa
Jackson (IL)
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Jones
Jordan
Kaptur
Kingston
Kline
Kucinich
Labrador
Landry
Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lee (CA)
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
LoBiondo
Long
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lummis

Quayle	Sarbanes	Thornberry
Rahall	Scalise	Tiberi
Rehberg	Schakowsky	Tonko
Reichert	Schiff	Turner
Reyes	Schock	Van Hollen
Richmond	Schrader	Walden
Rivera	Schwartz	Walz (MN)
Roby	Scott, David	Wasserman
Rogers (AL)	Sewell	Schultz
Rogers (KY)	Shimkus	Watt
Rogers (MI)	Shuler	Waxman
Ros-Lehtinen	Shuster	Webster
Ross (AR)	Sires	Welch
Rothman (NJ)	Smith (NE)	Whitfield
Roybal-Allard	Smith (TX)	Wilson (FL)
Runyan	Smith (WA)	Wittman
Ruppersberger	Stark	Womack
Rush	Stivers	Yarmuth
Ryan (OH)	Sullivan	Yoder
Ryan (WI)	Sutton	Young (FL)
Sánchez, Linda T.	Thompson (CA)	Young (IN)
	Thompson (MS)

NOT VOTING—3

Culberson	Giffords	Keating
-----------	----------	---------

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR (during the vote). There are 2 minutes left in this vote.

□ 1446

Mr. WESTMORELAND changed his vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. RIGELL

Mr. RIGELL. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to support Operation Odyssey Dawn or Operation Unified Protector.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Virginia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RIGELL. Mr. Chairman, each Member of this body has the duty to protect the separation of powers that was so wisely woven into our Constitution by our Founding Fathers and which forms the very foundation of how we govern this great Nation.

Mr. Chairman, an egregious ongoing breach of the separation of powers is taking place at this very hour; specifically, the usurpation of a power given only to Congress, that found in article I, section 8 of the Constitution: only Congress can declare war.

Known initially as Operation Odyssey Dawn and now as Operation Unified Protector, military intervention easily rising to the definition of war is being carried out in Libya. It is being carried out with the bravery, exceptional professionalism and commitment to victory that define our fellow Americans who serve in our Armed Forces. And before I address the mission itself, I first applaud their willingness to sacrifice so much for their fellow Americans.

Mr. Chairman, a careful review of the President’s case for support of his actions in Libya leads me to this sobering but firm conclusion. The President’s use of force in Libya is unwise and it is unconstitutional. The level of military resources being employed both in personnel and equipment, the amount of ordnance delivered, and the damage inflicted constitute acts of war. At the very minimum, they meet the definition of “hostilities” under the War Powers Resolution. Yet not one of the three criteria delineated in the War Powers Resolution that would justify his action has been met.

There has been no declaration of war. There has been no statutory authority issued. There has been no evidence that an attack on American forces was imminent or had occurred.

Now if a Tomahawk missile was launched into any American city, whether Los Angeles, Chicago, or even my home city of Virginia Beach, would that not meet our definition of hostilities? Absolutely, it would.

Now, Mr. Chairman, this is the pivotal issue: The military force being directed toward Libya easily triggers the definition of hostilities. The legal opinion upon which the administration stakes the legitimacy of its actions in Libya is thinner than the paper on which it is written. It is not based on law but something that he refers to as the “national interest,” a term that the President, in his wisdom, believes he can solely define himself. His Office of Legal Counsel concluded that: “President Obama could rely on his constitutional power to safeguard the national interest by directing the anticipated military operations in Libya which were limited in their nature, scope, and duration”—listen carefully here—“without prior congressional authorization.”

□ 1450

Disregarding the legal opinions of the Pentagon’s general counsel and the acting head of the Justice Department’s Office of Legal Counsel, both of whom told the White House they believed that the military’s operations in Libya amounted to “hostilities,” the President plowed ahead.

Mr. Chairman, a President’s opinion of the War Powers Resolution does not negate its authority.

Though required by law, there was no check; there was no balance. Even the broadest interpretation of article I, section 8 cannot corral the interpretation held by the President of his unilateral right to engage U.S. forces in combat. It is irreconcilable with our Constitution. The President has taken America into a war in the midst of a financial crisis, in yet another Muslim nation, in pursuit of a military objective that is ambiguous and constantly morphing.

Though I disagree with the President’s actions in Libya, I stand here today not motivated by partisanship.

Now, if I woke up tomorrow morning and learned that the President had taken action to defend this great country from imminent danger and attack, I would be the first to stand next to him and affirm his action. If America should go to war, it must be done so in a very careful, deliberative manner and as a last measure.

It must be done so in a way that is fully consistent with our Constitution. That is not the case here.

My amendment is necessary because only by using the power of the purse can we end an unwise war and meet our duty, our high duty, to preserve the separation of powers. Now is the time to act.

I respectfully ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman’s amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. On March 19, 2011, coalition forces launched Operation Odyssey Dawn to enforce U.N. Security Council Resolution 1973 to protect the Libyan people from the brutal regime of Muammar al Qadhafi. Operation Odyssey Dawn ended on March 31, 2011, and transitioned to the NATO-led Operation Unified Protector, which continues today.

Operation Odyssey Dawn has ceased operations; therefore part of this amendment is no longer relevant. However, the NATO-led mission to defeat Qadhafi and to protect the people of Libya was undertaken in concert with a broad coalition of nations, including the Arab League, and it followed resolutions adopted in the United Nations Security Council, authorizing “all necessary measures.”

This amendment would end our involvement unilaterally. I believe this could materially harm our relationship with NATO allies from whom we will undoubtedly require support in the future and who have been our partners since 1949. We should let the mission with our NATO allies continue so we can defeat Qadhafi and protect the Libyan people.

I urge all of my colleagues to vote “no” on this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. RIGELL).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. RIGELL. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. NORTON

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

Sec. _____. The amount otherwise made available by this Act for "Operation and Maintenance—Environmental Restoration, Formerly Used Defense Sites" is hereby reduced and increased by $1,000,000.

Ms. NORTON (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to waive the reading of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The Acting CHAIR. Objection is heard.

The Clerk will continue to read.

The Clerk continued to read.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from the District of Columbia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Chairman, more than 25 years ago, the Congress charged the Defense Department to identify and then to clean up and remediate properties which the department had owned or leased in order to test chemical munitions. Congress did so because these munitions had left hazardous substances related to the work of the department. There are more than 2,000 such sites in nearly every State, all the Territories and in the District of Columbia.

My concern is with those sites in congested residential parts of our country where there may be dense populations located by formerly used defense sites. A classic case and perhaps the most important—but I'm sure not the only one—was the World War I chemical weapons site for the United States of America. It happened to have been right here in Northwest Washington, DC, in a portion of what is now American University and its surrounding neighborhood known as Spring Valley.

The Army is making good on its duty to clean up these formerly used defense sites (FUDS), including the site in the District of Columbia, but we have no information on the health effects of these leftover chemical munitions. They have been found in people's back and front yards. They have been found, at least here, in people's gardens. Entire houses and garages, as it turns out, unknowingly were built on this debris. The site here in the District of Columbia was found by accident by a utility contractor digging into a trench. The neighborhood had no knowledge. The city had no knowledge of these leftover munitions. Again, I stress that there are surely other sites around the United States, and I cite this case as an example.

This land, in the District of Columbia at least, was used for the research and development and testing of chemical explosives, and it was able to be done in this city because there wasn't any local government, and there wasn't any home rule. I guess, since the city was administered by the Federal Government, they could simply make a munitions testing site in this city. Hundreds of pounds of chemical agents and explosives were developed and released throughout the environment. We have found in the Spring Valley section of the city arsine projectiles, mustard gas projectiles, lewisite projectiles, and other kinds of chemical toxic waste left over from undetonated ordnances.

When World War I was over, the Army simply used the site where they'd been doing the testing as a dumpsite. They buried these munitions right where they were testing. Now, that was the way in which you disposed of these munitions at the time. In the Spring Valley area that is a classic case, there are 1,200 private homes, 30 Embassies and foreign properties, Sibley Hospital, Wesley Seminary. There may be other metropolitan areas that have formerly used defense sites as well. Spring Valley may be the prime target because it is such a well-established neighborhood where chemical agents and munitions were once used.

□ 1500

The amendment requires the Secretary to allocate $1 million to study the human health effects of left-over munitions in congested residential areas. Just as the Department of Defense and the Army have acknowledged their obligation to clean up and remove hazardous substances, especially munitions that have been left behind through their testing, they also have the obligation to investigate whether there are any remaining health effects. That is all we are asking; that there be a study as to whether there are any remaining health effects at this former munitions site from World War I and other sites like it in congested residential areas.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I would like to acknowledge the gentlewoman's hard work to clean up this part of the District of Columbia.

Our bill provides $276.5 million in the Environment Restoration Account, formerly the Used Defense Site Account. The Department has the authority to provide funding to those projects that it deems of the highest priority and that pose the greatest risk to environmental and human health.

If the Department believes that funding such a study as the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia suggests is important, the Department has the ability to do so. For these reasons, we do oppose the amendment.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. I also appreciate the gentlewoman's amendment, and I will work with you on seeing if we can talk to the military to use environmental restoration funds if your amendment doesn't succeed.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PASCRELL. I would like to ask the gentleman from Florida, Mr. Chairman, to engage in a colloquy on the need for traumatic brain injury funding for post-acute guidelines for our returning troops.

Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that medical treatment guidelines for post-acute rehabilitation of moderate and severe TBI do not exist today. Recognizing this, Mr. PLATTS from Pennsylvania and Ms. GIFFORDS from Arizona included an amendment in the National Defense Authorization for fiscal year 2012 that would require the Department of Defense to implement post-acute treatment guidelines for traumatic brain injury. This provision was supported by the co-chairs of the Brain Injury Task Force—myself, Mr. PLATTS, bipartisan. It is my hope that the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences be able to begin the project as soon as possible. Over the years, the TBI Task Force has addressed many gaps for our servicemembers.

I now yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PLATTS).

Mr. PLATTS. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

As cochair of the Traumatic Brain Injury Task Force, I am honored to join with the gentleman from New Jersey in support of implementing post-acute treatment guidelines.

Before 2007, there were no funds in the budget for traumatic brain injury treatments, but with the dedicated efforts of Chairman YOUNG and other members of the Appropriations Committee, through their efforts we were not only able to provide funding, but more importantly, to sustain a significant level of funding over the past number of years.

As we continue to address new gaps for our servicemembers suffering TBIs, in this 2012 authorization bill that was passed in the committee and moving forward through the process we requested $1 million to fund these post-acute guidelines that the gentleman from New Jersey has referenced. It is our understanding that while TBI funding in the Defense appropriations bill is not separated by purpose, it is our understanding that the Department uses the overall funding for traumatic brain injury research for authorized purposes.

Is our understanding correct, Mr. Chairman?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PASCRELL. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. The gentleman is correct. In this bill, the committee has provided an additional $125 million for TBI research. It's above the fully funded budget request of $415 million. And it has been our long-standing policy that this increased funding is provided at the discretion of the Department. Historically, this subcommittee has provided increased funding for TBI research but refrained from directing how that money should be spent, allowing the Department to prioritize how best to use that funding for authorized purposes.

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, may I also clarify that should the authorization bill pass with this provision on post-acute guidelines that the Department then has the needed amount of $1 million to really accomplish this objective which we have.

Mr. Chairman, I would request, as usual, your deepest cooperation. And no one has done more for our troops than you.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PASCRELL. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman.

I would say to the gentleman that he is correct; should the provision be carried on the final authorization bill, then the Department would have sufficient resources to fund the provisions should they decide to based on this appropriations bill.

Mr. PASCRELL. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I yield to my brother, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PLATTS).

Mr. PLATTS. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would just like to add my words of great thanks to Chairman YOUNG, who has been a great leader in doing right by our men and women in uniform in all fashion, and especially those who have suffered traumatic brain injury. As a Nation, we are indebted to you and your staff for your great leadership.

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT NO. 61 OFFERED BY MS. FOXX

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used in contravention of section 7 of title 1, United States Code (the Defense of Marriage Act).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from North Carolina is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Chairman, what sets the United States apart from many other countries that have lots of resources are our values, and that we are a Nation of laws. We may not agree with all of our laws, but they are the laws of our land, and not even the President can decide which laws to enforce and which not to enforce. Yet this administration has said it will not enforce the Defense of Marriage Act.

The Department of Defense maintains that the repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell does not directly challenge the Defense of Marriage Act, which protects the right of individual States to define marriage as the union between a man and a woman. In February, 2011, Attorney General Eric Holder announced that the Department of Justice would no longer defend the Defense of Marriage Act in Federal court. However, the House of Representatives has expressed its intent to continue legal defense of the statute along with other laws of our country.

My proposed amendment would reaffirm Congress' assertion that funds may not be used in contravention of section 7 of title 1, United States Code, the Defense of Marriage Act. The Department of the Navy has already demonstrated how pressures to accommodate same-sex couples can quickly lead to policy changes that are ultimately contrary to previous assurances given with regard to the repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell and in contravention of the Defense of Marriage Act.

On April 13, 2011, the Office of the Chief of Navy Chaplains, in a memo titled "Revision of Chaplain Corps Tier 1 Training," directed that training be revised to accommodate same-sex marriages on military bases that are located in States where same-sex marriage is legal. The memo stated, "This is a change to previous training that stated same-sex marriages are not authorized on Federal property." The memo further authorized the participation of a military chaplain in a same-sex civil marriage "if it is conducted in accordance with the laws of a State which permits same-sex marriages or unions," and if the chaplain is otherwise certified to officiate. This calls into question the intent of the Department of Defense with regard to compliance with existing Federal law under the Defense of Marriage Act.

Congress should establish policy guidance on this issue that will cover numerous contingencies and unexpected situations in the future. It is irresponsible for the Department of Defense to dismiss all concerns about issues involving marriage status by pointing to the existence of the Defense of Marriage Act.

□ 1510

There's no contingency plan to address this issue should the Federal courts invalidate the Defense of Marriage Act. In fact, the administration is inviting that very policy. Federal court orders could suddenly overturn current policies of the Department of Defense, which is not likely to resist or oppose new directives that disregard the intent of the Defense of Marriage Act. Congress can and should enact a policy making it clear that Defense Department funds should not be used in ways that violate Federal laws, including the Defense of Marriage Act.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment and the underlying bill.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentlelady's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. Issues such as the Defense of Marriage Act represent policy questions that are not suited to appropriation bills. Indeed, this amendment does not address any specific program funding matter addressed in the bill now before the House.

To the extent that this amendment has any connection to the Department of Defense, I believe that such a policy issue is appropriately addressed within the domain of the House Armed Services Committee. I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I won't be redundant. I'll just follow up on what my colleague Representative FOXX said in proposing this amendment for the two of us.

This is merely a move to make sure that legislation that has already passed, the Defense of Marriage Act and in the authorization bill dealing with the Department of Defense, coincides with the appropriation bill that we're talking about today.

There's been some confusion in the Department of Defense, in the facilities at these military bases, that there could be marriages between two men or two women. The Defense of Marriage Act and the authorization bill clearly state that that cannot happen and will not happen because it would be a violation of the Defense of Marriage Act which has passed this body.

And even though the administration has chosen not to be involved in this issue, I believe it's incumbent on the Congress to make this issue very clear so that we don't have confusion on these military bases when we talk about same sex marriages.

I think it is imperative that we make absolutely clear in both the appropriation bill and the authorization bill, as well as the Defense of Marriage Act, what the law is, what it's intended to do, so that it's very clear to the military so they don't have any difficulty in making decisions on this particular issue.

I want to thank my good friend and colleague, Representative VIRGINIA FOXX for introducing this amendment on behalf of the both of us.

She and her staff, especially Javier Sanchez, have thoroughly examined the confusing messages and conflicting protocols within the Department of Defense related to the implementation of the Defense of Marriage Act.

Why is this Amendment Needed?

(1) This amendment reinforces language that was included in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2012 that passed the House on May 26, 2011.

Section 534 of the FY 2012 National Defense Authorization Act reaffirms the policy of the Defense of Marriage Act by stating that the word "marriage" included in any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the Department of Defense (DoD) applicable to a service member or civilian employee of the Department of Defense shall mean only a legal union between one man and one woman.

And, Section 535 establishes that marriages performed on DoD installations or marriages involving the participation of DoD military or civilian personnel in an official capacity, to include chaplains, must comply with the Defense of Marriage Act.

This amendment does not impose a new restriction on the Department of Defense.

It is a straightforward in its purpose and text. It simply aligns the Department of Defense appropriations bill we are considering today with the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2012 that passed the House May 26, 2011.

The amendment ensures that defense dollars are not used to implement policy changes that violate the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA).

I believe that appropriations and authorization bills should be compatible, where possible, and by adopting the Foxx-Burton amendment, we will do just that for the Defense of Marriage Act.

This is the only opportunity we have to synchronize DoD funding to the DOMA policy provisions contained in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2012.

(2) The amendment settles—once and for all—any confusion and/or misinformation within the DoD about the abilities of its personnel to perform same-sex marriages as well as the use of its facilities.

It is important that we pass this amendment, which is a straightforward statement reaffirming Congress' assertion that funds may not be used in contravention of section 7 of title 1, United States Code (Defense of Marriage Act).

The law ensures the States would not have to recognize same-sex marriages from other States, and that the Federal Government would recognize only the union of one man and one woman as marriage.

Offering up Federal facilities and Federal employees for the use in same-sex marriages violates DOMA, which is still the law of the land and binds our military.

(3) President Obama's Administration is on record that it will no longer defend DOMA thus leaving it up to Congress to defend against challenges to DOMA.

I am confident that activist lawyers and judges will begin challenging inconsistencies in marriage status for military personnel. For example, a same-sex couple who was married in a State where same-sex marriage is recognized sues because they are denied military family housing. The resolution of this kind of litigation would propel the courts into policy matters that Congress should decide.

Bottom line.

This amendment—in conjunction with the Sections 534 and 535 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2012—will allow Congress to speak with one voice on the Defense of Marriage Act.

If Congress fails to speak clearly on this issue, we are certain to see more conflicting and confusing DOMA protocols emerging in the Department of Defense. And, it will be with the blessing of the White House.

Let's keep our Department of Defense focused on the missions at hand.

Congress can and should make it clear that Defense Department funds should not be used in ways that violate Federal laws, including the Defense of Marriage Act.

Support the Foxx-Burton Amendment. Let's leave the guesswork out of it.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chair, last year, Congress voted to repeal the counterproductive and unjust policy of "Don't Ask, Don't Tell."

But despite overwhelming evidence that repeal will strengthen our military, despite strong support for repeal among our troops and the American people, despite support for repeal from military leaders like the Secretary of Defense and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and despite a Federal court order that the Government stop enforcing DADT immediately, Republicans are still pushing to keep this shameful policy in place.

Under DADT, 13,500 gay men and women were discharged simply because of who they were. These were troops who had served our country honorably and bravely; 1,000 of them filled what the military calls "critical occupations," such as engineering and interpretation of languages like Arabic and Farsi.

Our closest allies—countries like Britain, Canada, and Israel—know better than to throw that kind of service and expertise away.

Yet the amendment offered by Mr. HUELSKAMP would force our military to stop training its Chaplain Corps to prepare for the repeal of DADT. This amendment would substitute Congress's micromanagement for the judgment of our military leaders on training issues, and it is a transparent attempt to interfere with the repeal of DADT in any way possible.

The amendment offered by Ms. FOXX is in a similar vein. It would prohibit defense appropriations in contravention of the Defense of Marriage Act, or DOMA.

DOMA is discriminatory and should be ruled unconstitutional—but as long as it is law, it clearly applies to all Federal agencies, including the Defense Department.

That makes this amendment entirely unnecessary. Let's see it for what it is: Republicans' effort to change the subject from open service—an argument they've lost—to marriage equality—an argument they're still in the process of losing.

I urge my colleagues to oppose both amendments which put partisan belief in the exclusion of gays above the strength of our military.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chair, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BERMAN. I rise to engage Mr. DICKS in a colloquy regarding an important area of funding for the Department of Defense.

For more than a decade, the Department of Defense has funded programs to support established university programs that promote region-wide informal conferences and task forces on arms control, regional security, and related topics to the Middle East for Arab, Israeli, and other officials and experts.

These programs serve an important national security objective—fostering an alternative means of dialogue and engagement in an area of unparalleled significance to the United States. I know of one such program in Los Angeles, and I urge the Department to continue funding such programs.

I yield to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. DICKS), the ranking member, for his thoughts on this issue.

Mr. DICKS. First of all, I appreciate the gentleman yielding.

And I thank you, Mr. BERMAN, for your comments and agree that such programs that support university programs promoting Middle East conferences and task forces on arms control, regional security, and other issues for Arab, Israeli, and other officials are important and beneficial. I hope the Department of Defense funds such programs accordingly, and I will work with the gentleman to ensure that that happens.

Mr. BERMAN. I thank the gentleman.

I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT NO. 64 OFFERED BY MR. MICHAUD

Mr. MICHAUD. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used in contravention of section 2533a of title 10, United States Code (popularly known as the “Berry Amendment”).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlemen from Maine is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MICHAUD. I rise today to offer an amendment with Mr. KISSELL to ensure that no funds in this bill are spent in violation of the Berry Amendment.

The Berry Amendment requires DOD to procure certain categories of products from American manufacturers including food, clothing, fabrics, stainless steel, and certain tools. It was enacted to ensure that the United States troops wore military uniforms made in the U.S.A. and to ensure that U.S. troops were fed American-made food.

The Berry Amendment has been on the books for 70 years. Yet, in recent years, some in Congress have tried to weaken it. At a time of 9 percent unemployment and when employment in the U.S. manufacturing sector is on the decline, it is more important than ever for Congress to reiterate its support for existing law that promotes domestic procurement.

I urge my colleagues to support American manufacturing and to promote American food and uniforms for our troops by voting for the Michaud-Kissell Amendment.

At this time, I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. KISSELL).

Mr. KISSELL. I would like to thank my colleague for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, for 70 years, as my colleague pointed out, the Berry Amendment has served this Nation well. It has given our fine military forces the best of American-made equipment and has guaranteed the American people the opportunity to make that equipment. It is a matter of national security. And it should not be a matter, as the intent of Congress has been clear for 70 years, it shouldn't be a matter of us standing up to reaffirm this amendment.

But as my colleague said, there have been efforts made to weaken the Berry Amendment, to get around the Berry Amendment, and we simply want to remind all folks involved that the Berry Amendment is the intent of Congress. It has been the law for 70 years. And we need to continue with the Berry Amendment that any funds that are being spent should be spent in total compliance with the Berry Amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MICHAUD. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would like to advise him that we're prepared to accept this amendment.

Mr. MICHAUD. I thank the chairman very much.

I yield back the balance of my time. The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maine (Mr. MICHAUD).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KISSELL

Mr. KISSELL. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to enter into a contract, memorandum of understanding, or cooperative agreement with, or provide a loan or loan guarantee to, any United States commercial air carrier if that contract, memorandum of understanding, cooperative agreement, loan, or loan guarantee allows the air carrier to charge baggage fees to any member of the Armed Forces who is traveling on official military orders and is being deployed overseas or is returning from an overseas deployment.

□ 1520

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from North Carolina is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KISSELL. Mr. Chairman, this is a very simple, to-the-point amendment.

We have heard recently about members of our armed services traveling on official military business being charged excess baggage fees by our commercial airlines here in the United States. This amendment would not make any funds available for entering into any contracts, memorandums of understanding, cooperative agreements, loans or loan guarantees with any United States commercial airlines where those contracts, memorandums of understanding, cooperative agreements, loans or loan guarantees would allow for excess baggage fees for any member of the armed services traveling on official military business.

Our folks, when they're traveling and protecting our Nation, shouldn't have to worry about this, and we as a Nation shouldn't have to pay extra fees beyond the millions upon millions of dollars that we already pay to these airlines. This just should be business as usual, and I encourage all my colleagues to vote in support of this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment.

Our troops and their families are being asked to make sacrifice after sacrifice after sacrifice. We should be at a point of trying to make things better for them, make things easier for them; and I would say that one of the things that we can do is to adopt the gentleman's amendment to at least give them some relief when they're coming back from the war that we sent them to without charging them extra money to get back home with their belongings.

I applaud the gentleman for offering this amendment, and I rise in strong support.

Mr. DICKS. Will the chairman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. I, too, agree with the chairman. This is one of those situations where I think we have to step in and take action for our troops. This is a good amendment, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. KISSELL).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. ESHOO

Ms. ESHOO. I have an amendment at the desk, Mr. Chairman.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to enter into a contract with a corporation or other business entity that does not disclose its political expenditures.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman reserves a point of order.

The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Chairman, I rise for the third time this year to call for transparency and disclosure in our system and throughout our government. This appropriations bill will spend hundreds of billions of taxpayer dollars next year; and a huge portion of it, a portion that's impossible to quantify, will go to contractors. Some are small, others rank among the world's largest companies. As we meet today, the workforce of contractors in Afghanistan is the same size as the workforce of the uniformed personnel there; and since 2005, we've spent approximately $12 billion on contractors in Afghanistan. Today, there are more private contractors than uniformed personnel in Iraq, and we've spent $112 billion on contractors in Iraq since 2005.

The Federal Government does business with thousands of contractors who receive billions of dollars in taxpayer money. They should be required to disclose their political spending, and that's what my amendment will accomplish.

In 2002 when we voted to pass the historic McCain-Feingold campaign finance bill, most Republicans voted "no," saying we needed disclosure, not soft money restrictions. They said we needed to put spending out in the open and let the voters assess it. Today, when the President proposes requiring contractors to simply disclose their spending, not to limit it, Republicans are up in arms. They say it will politicize the contracting process; but when contractors can spend money in elections, the contracting process is already politicized.

My amendment is modest and it's simple: It will bring this information out into the open and let the public decide for themselves. The public deserves to know what happens with their tax money.

Mr. Chairman, this is not a revolutionary idea. For the last 17 years, the SEC requires bond dealers to limit their campaign contributions to the officials in the cities that issue bonds. It requires them to disclose their contributions, providing the public with transparency. The rule was challenged and upheld in court, and my amendment really adheres to the same principle. To quote Senator MITCH MCCONNELL from 2003: "Why would a little disclosure be better than a lot of disclosure?"

I agree with Senator MCCONNELL. With public dollars come public responsibilities. Disclosure would fulfill this responsibility. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part:

"An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law." This amendment requires a new determination.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any Member wish to speak on the point of order? Seeing none, the Chair is prepared to rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language requiring a new determination of whether certain political contributions were disclosed. The amendment therefore constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MULVANEY

Mr. MULVANEY. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The total amount of appropriations made available by this Act is hereby reduced by $17,192,000,000, not to be derived from amounts of appropriations made available by title IX.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from South Carolina is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MULVANEY. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

By way of brief summary, this amendment would freeze the base Department of Defense funding at 2011 levels. It is roughly a $17 billion reduction, or a 3 percent reduction over the bill that's currently before us. Again, it takes it back to the 2011 levels that we passed just recently in H.R. 1 during the continuing resolution debate.

This is not, Mr. Chairman, a new idea. It's not even my idea. The Domenici-Rivlin bipartisan deficit reduction plan also proposed exactly this—freezing base defense spending at 2011 levels.

□ 1530

During the budget debate, the one substantive bipartisan amendment that passed was an amendment that was a sense of the Committee that said that defense spending needed to be on the table as we look at spending reductions for 2012. And most importantly, the President's fiscal commission, the Simpson-Bowles Commission, also recommended exactly what this amendment does today, keeping defense spending at 2011 levels.

I happen to believe that at least, especially in this area, the Simpson-Bowles Commission is correct. And I want to read from the commission's report: "Every aspect of the discretionary budget must be scrutinized. No agency can be off limits, and no program that spends too much or achieves too little can be spared. Any serious attempt," and I will say that again, "any serious attempt to reduce the deficit will require deliberate, planned reductions in both domestic and defense spending."

Personally, I like to think that I am serious about cutting our deficits. I hope that I am not alone. Many of us have gone around back home and told people how serious we are. But how can we look them in the eye and tell them that we are serious about cutting this deficit and about cutting spending and then come in and plus-up the base defense budget?

Admiral Mullen himself said that with the increasing defense budget, which is almost double over the last 10 years, it has not forced us, that's the Defense Department, to make the hard trades. It hasn't forced us to prioritize. It hasn't forced us to do the analysis.

We just received a Budget Committee memo today that said of the 92 major defense acquisition programs, 69 percent of them are over-budget. One in every five of them is over-budget by at least 50 percent. That is simply not right. It's not what our families are having to do. It's not what our States are having to do. It's not even what we have chosen to do in other areas of the budget. We have made hard decisions. We have made hard choices. The Defense Department needs to do exactly the same.

This amendment will not in any way limit our national defense capabilities. It will not put a single soldier at more risk. It simply holds defense spending exactly where we were 3 months ago when we approved the CR.

Having been here about 6 months, there is one thing that I have learned being a freshman. And for the folks who are here for the first time, the message is this: talk is cheap. Talk is especially cheap. It's very easy for us to go home and tell folks how important it is to cut spending, how serious we are about cutting spending. But nothing sends the message that we are really serious about it like cutting spending on something that is important to us. It's easy to cut things that we don't like. It is hard to cut things that are important to us. And defense spending is critically important to me and to the folks of this Nation and to the folks of South Carolina.

But if we're going to send a message that we are really serious about cutting spending, then everything needs to be on the table. And holding defense spending simply at 2011 levels and passing this amendment would help show everybody that we are really serious about fixing this difficulty.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. This amendment follows the Lee amendment and the Garamendi amendment in cutting about $17.1 billion from the Overseas Contingency Operation Fund. I myself feel that we could be reducing our troop levels faster, but I don't think we should take the money out at this point until we have a better understanding of the pace of the withdrawal.

Now, we know the President's plan is 10,000 this year and another 23,000 next year. And so there will be some savings in the overseas contingency account as those troops come home. But I think it's too early to make a decision on that. Better left to do it in conference, where we can make a reasoned judgment and talk to the Pentagon and the Congressional Research Service so that we have a better idea of how much savings this will be. I feel that this is premature at this point. The other two amendments were soundly defeated, and I think the same fate will be here.

I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. MULVANEY. Just for clarification, the amendment only makes the change to the base spending. It does not change anything in title IX. It does not change overseas contingencies in any way. It is simply the base portion of the DOD budget. Thank you for yielding.

Mr. DICKS. That's even worse. I would doubly oppose the gentleman's amendment on that part of it. So let's defeat this amendment, as we defeated the others.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I rise in opposition to this amendment. I am one of the original budget cutters in this Congress. But I will not cut a defense budget to the point that it adversely affects our troops or adversely affects our country's readiness. And we could be getting close to that.

This year, Secretary Gates made his recommendation, which resulted in the President's budget request being $13 billion less than we had anticipated for national defense. In addition to that, this committee recommended, and this Congress will pass sometime today or tomorrow, a bill that is $9 billion less than the President requested. So we have cut and saved money everywhere we could without affecting readiness and without having an adverse effect on our troops.

If we start cutting too deep—and we were careful with this $9 billion reduction, very careful—we don't want to see that we have to cancel training for returning troops. We don't want to have to cancel Navy training exercises. We don't want to have to slow down or reduce Air Force flight training. We don't want to delay or cancel maintenance of aircraft, ships, and vehicles. We don't want to delay important safety and quality-of-life repairs to facilities and to military barracks. If we do those things, we are affecting our readiness. Training relates to readiness.

Training is a large part of the money in the base bill, not the overseas contingency operations account, but the base bill, which is what this amendment reduces. This amendment could be getting us very close to a dangerous situation where troops and readiness are affected. And there is just no way that I can even appear to support this amendment. I rise in strong opposition to this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. MULVANEY).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MULVANEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 71 OFFERED BY MS. BASS OF CALIFORNIA

Ms. BASS of California. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used in contravention of section 1590 or 1591 of title 18, United States Code, or in contravention of the requirements of section 106(g) or (h) of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (22 U.S.C. 7104(g) or (h)).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. BASS of California. Mr. Chairman, this bipartisan amendment is simple. It prohibits the Defense Department from being used to engage in or facilitate human trafficking. Thousands of private contracting defense firms, including some of the industry's biggest names, such as DynCorp International and Halliburton subsidiary KBR, have been linked to trafficking-related incidents. Thousands of nationals from impoverished countries are lured by the promise of good jobs, but sometimes end up victims of scams that leave them virtual slaves, with no way to return home or seek legal recourse.

Despite this, allegations against Federal contractors engaged in illegal labor practices ranging from contract-worker smuggling to human trafficking in Iraq and Afghanistan continue to surface in the media.

A recent New Yorker article illustrates the urgent need for this amendment. The article tells the story of two women from Fiji who thought they were going to lucrative jobs in Dubai, but ended up, quoting the article, unwitting recruits for the Pentagon's invisible army of more than 70,000 cooks, cleaners, construction workers, beauticians, et cetera, from the world's poorest countries who service U.S. military contracts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

These two women were asked to deliver resumes, hand over passports, submit to medical tests, and they had to pay $500 to a recruiting firm. They were lured to Iraq under false pretenses and then told they would be making $700 a month. That was after they believed they were going to be making $3,800 a month, 10 times the normal salary in their home country.

□ 1540

What they didn't realize was that they were contracted to work 12 hours a day, 7 days a week. They were also victims of sexual harassment and assault.

After complaining, they were sent off base for making trouble and held for a month while their passports and ID badges were confiscated by the subcontracting company. The company that hired them was initially reprimanded but still operates in Fiji and still has a contract with the U.S. military.

Meanwhile, allegations against Federal contractors engaged in commercial sex and labor exploitation continue.

Mr. Chair, I yield to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY).

Mrs. MALONEY. I rise in strong support of this amendment, which will prevent U.S. taxpayer dollars from being used to facilitate human trafficking and labor abuses on U.S. military bases.

As cochair of the bipartisan Congressional Caucus on Human Trafficking, I am particularly concerned that workers from South Asia and Africa are being trafficked to work on U.S. military bases and that U.S. taxpayer dollars are spent to unlawfully lure and transport them to work in extreme conditions.

It is Army policy to oppose all activities associated with human trafficking. This must include the supply chain that provides services to our servicemembers defending our country.

We must have strong oversight over our contracting system to ensure that it is free from human rights abuses, and this amendment works toward that end.

I urge my colleagues to join us in fighting human trafficking and support this amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. BASS of California. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I would just like to advise the gentlewoman that I consider this an extremely important amendment and I am happy to accept it.

Ms. BASS of California. Thank you.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. BASS of California. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. We will be glad to accept the amendment. We appreciate your hard work in this effort.

Ms. BASS of California. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. I would like to thank the gentlemen for accepting the amendment.

Mr. Chair, I rise today in support of the Bass-Maloney Amendment, which cuts funding to subcontractors in the U.S. Defense Department. This amendment would prevent funding from being used by subcontractors hired by the Defense Department who engage in unlawful activities of human trafficking and labor abuses on military bases.

At a time where we are going across the board looking for all the budget cuts we can find to help reduce the national debt, it only makes sense to eliminate funding to these nefarious individuals who are performing atrocious acts on our military soil and are not representing what this great country stands for. We as Americans cannot fund human trafficking nor can we allow labor abuse; these abuses are not what this country stands for and it's our job as lawmakers to do everything in our power to put an end to such crimes.

We can send a loud message with this amendment that the United States does not stand for such horrible crimes. So I join my colleagues in support of the Bass-Maloney Amendment to H.R. 2219.

Ms. BASS of California. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. BASS).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. RUNYAN

Mr. RUNYAN. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds in this Act may be used to procure air transportation from a commercial air carrier for a member of the Armed Forces who is traveling under orders to deploy to or return from an overseas contingency operation under terms that allow the carrier to charge the member fees for checked baggage other than for bags weighing more than 80 pounds or bags in excess of four per individual.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RUNYAN. I thank my colleague from New York (Mr. GRIMM) for his support on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Runyan-Grimm amendment which seeks excess baggage fees being charged to servicemembers deploying or returning from an overseas contingency operation.

This issue was brought to light early in June when a group of Army Reservists traveling back from Afghanistan were charged $200 each for checking a fourth bag, some of which contained U.S. Government equipment like an M4 rifle, a grenade launcher, and a 9-millimeter pistol. The soldiers posted a YouTube video, titled, "Delta Airlines Welcomes Soldiers Home," expressing their frustrations for what they had experienced.

After serving our country in theater and enduring an 18-hour layover on their trip home, the warm welcome this group received was a $2,800 out-of-pocket expense. This is an unacceptable slap in the face, whether it was intentional or not. Applying these charges to those headed to or returning from the fight is an insult to them and their service to our Nation.

My amendment would make none of the funds available by this act to be used to pay any commercial air carrier if that airline charges excess baggage fees for the first four pieces of checked luggage that are 80 pounds or less per servicemember. This amendment is a reasonable compromise, whose primary purpose is taking care of our warfighters while not allowing the system to be abused.

Our soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines risk their lives to protect the freedoms we all enjoy. They take great personal sacrifices to defend our country. There is no doubt they should be provided with any reasonable accommodations while traveling on orders to or from theater of operations. Most importantly, they should not have to endure personal financial hardship as a result of traveling to and from overseas contingency operations. $200 is a large amount of money to pay out of pocket, especially for those who are enlisted.

It shouldn't take a YouTube video and bad publicity to convince any of us to do the right thing. With this amendment, we are sending a very strong message that our warfighters are individuals who are serving our country and not for an addition to a profit margin.

The amendment is endorsed by the VFV and the National Guard Association of the United States. I hope all my colleagues will stand with me in support of our soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines by voting in favor of this amendment.

NATIONAL GUARD ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES, INC.,

Washington, DC., July 7, 2011.

Hon. JOHN RUNYAN,
House of Representatives, Longworth Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE RUNYAN: We are writing to express our strong support for your recently proposed amendment to H.R. 2219, the FY12 Defense Appropriations bill to target and deny funds to commercial airlines who would charge excess baggage fees to servicemembers deploying and returning from overseas contingency operations. The National Guard Association of the United States represents over 45,000 members of the National Guard, their families and employers.

NGAUS believes in the fair treatment of our servicemembers, including our Guard and Reserve, when they deploy and return from overseas operations. The incident this past June where soldiers were charged excess baggage fees for equipment by an airline was outrageous. This amendment would appropriately target the program airlines participate in for supporting additional airlift capability for troops/baggage and equipment while denying funds made available in the bill to those airlines who violate tile program and charge baggage fees for the first four pieces of baggage (not exceeding 80 lbs and not including any carry-on baggage).

The National Guard Association of the United States strongly supports your efforts to correct unfair treatment by airlines in regards to our members of the National Guard and our Armed Forces deploying or coming home from overseas contingency operations.

Sincerely,

GUS HARGETT,
Major General, USA (Ret),
President, NGAUS.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise to thank the gentleman for the hard work that he has done on this amendment. I associate myself with his comments because I strongly agree with everything that he said, and I am happy to accept the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. RUNYAN).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. SHERMAN

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask that the Clerk read the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the Clerk will report the amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill, before the short title, insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used in contravention of the War Powers Resolution (50 U.S.C. 1541 et seq.).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHERMAN. I had the Clerk read the amendment to show how short and how simple it is. It simply says that none of the money appropriated in this bill can be used to violate the War Powers Resolution, which is the law of the land found in title 50.

The War Powers Resolution simply states that a President may not deploy our troops into hostilities or our military forces into hostilities for more than 60 days if the President does not have congressional authorization. In the absence of such authorization, the President has 30 days to withdraw.

This is the exact same amendment that we considered 3 weeks ago on the MilCon appropriations bill. At that time it got the support of 60 percent of the Republicans and 61 percent of the Democrats, and I hope that those who voted for the bill or the amendment 3 weeks ago would vote the same way today. I hope to be able to persuade a few who voted the other way last time.

This amendment is important, even if we weren't engaged in Libya at all, because for the last several administrations, Presidents have been captured by the siren song of extremist lawyers who are part of the permanent executive branch. They tell the President that the President of the United States, acting alone, can deploy our troops into hostilities for unlimited duration, for any purpose, and, in any quantity, any assets can be deployed.

□ 1550

We are told that there are no limits on the President's power as Commander in Chief. Well, the War Powers Act says otherwise, and it is the law of the land. Now these extremist attorneys in the executive branch have gone a little further. They have added insult to injury by floating the idea that a resolution by NATO, the Arab League, or the United Nations can substitute for an authorization from both Houses of Congress, or they have said that briefing the leadership of Congress is a substitute for enacting an authorization. But even the most extremist attorneys in the executive branch admit we have the power of the purse, and we can prevent the funds provided by this appropriations bill from being used to violate the War Powers Act.

If we were to do otherwise, we would be abdicating our own responsibility, for if Congress habitually appropriates funds knowing that they will be used to violate the law of the land, then we would be complicit in undermining democracy and the rule of law here in the United States.

Now we on this side admire the President of the United States. But even if you would grant this President unlimited power to deploy unlimited forces for unlimited duration, if you ignore the War Powers Act today, you are granting that power to the next President. And those of us who are in good health will all live to see a President that we disagree with. And even if you agree with exactly what's happening in Libya, it is important that we draw a line and say that the conduct of our foreign policy must be consistent with U.S. law.

Now as a practical matter, this President has taken the extreme position that we are not engaged in hostilities in Libya. So what will be the practical effect of this amendment? First, I think he will reconsider that decision, because I think the lawyers behind it took refuge in the belief that the War Powers Act was somehow not binding on the administration. With this amendment, the War Powers Act is binding because we do have the constitutional right to limit the use of funds.

Furthermore, at a minimum, this amendment would prevent the President from deploying regular ground forces to Libya. Now I realize he doesn't intend to do that at this time. But, clearly, this President could not claim that armored divisions deployed in a war zone were not engaged in hostilities. So the minimum practical effect of this amendment is to limit Presidential power to what is going on now and not to introducing major combat operations.

Now, I support a limited effort to bring democracy and the rule of law to the people of Libya. That's not what this amendment is about. This amendment is about democracy and the rule of law here in the United States. I think that if we pass this amendment, and if we can get the Senate to do likewise, that the President will come to Congress and seek an authorization for what is going on in Libya. And at that time, Congress will be able to influence our policy. I think we would insist on a legal limitation to limit our efforts to just air forces and perhaps ground rescue operations. I believe that we would insist that we have the right to review that policy every 3 or 6 months. I believe that we would insist that the $33 billion of Qadhafi assets which have been frozen by the U.S. Treasury be used to finance this operation, instead of American taxpayer dollars. And I believe that we would insist that the rebels in Benghazi disassociate themselves from the al Qaeda operatives in their midst and from the Libyan Islamic Fighting Group.

But we can't insist on anything if we accept the view of extremist attorneys in the executive branch who view Congress as merely an advisory body. A review of the law and a review of the Constitution indicates that Congress has and should not be derelict in exercising a role in forming American foreign policy.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The amendment prohibits the use of funds in this bill to breach the War Powers Act. However, the proponents hope this language will compel the administration to change our response to the crisis in Libya.

I oppose the amendment on two different grounds. First, the language of the amendment cannot possibly deliver what the proponents claim. Second, what the proponents hope to accomplish would harm the efforts of our allies, working against our national interests and benefiting Qadhafi.

The language can't deliver on the proponents' promises for two reasons. First, the amendment restricts the use of funds in this bill, but none of the $118.7 billion in the overseas contingency portion of the bill are designated for Libya. Second, the language merely requires compliance with the War Powers Act, but the heart of the proponents' difference with the President is a matter of interpretation about what constitutes compliance. The amendment takes us no closer to a resolution of that difference.

I would oppose the amendment even if the language could accomplish what the proponents hope for. To further restrict our role in Libya puts us on the wrong side of history and on the wrong side of the Arab Spring. It would hinder the efforts of our allies, if not making NATO's mission impossible and prolonging Qadhafi's tenuous hold on power.

To address the matter of Libya, I believe that language—similar to the language introduced in the other body by Senators KERRY and McCAIN, is the appropriate course of action at this time—this language preserves the understanding between the administration and Congress that U.S. ground forces are not appropriate at this time, and it requires regular and detailed reports from the administration to the Congress.

Now I must say that I, too, agree that the President would always be better served, as President Bush did and President Clinton, to come to Congress to get approval of the authorization. But to unilaterally overturn an effort that includes NATO, the Arab League, and the United Nations saying that this horrific act would take place against the people of Libya, is just, I think, a big mistake, and it would undermine U.S. foreign policy that's been consistent since 1949 when NATO was established. So I urge a "no" vote on this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROHRABACHER

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to provide assistance to Pakistan.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of my amendment, which states, as you have just heard, no funds in this bill may go to Pakistan.

Pakistan is a country on which we have spent billions and billions of dollars. We've given them $18 billion just since 9/11—not to mention the many billions of dollars we gave to them during the Cold War. What has all that spending achieved for the people of the United States? Pakistan is now the best friend to America's worst enemies: radical Islam and, yes, an emerging and belligerent China. Wake up, America.

Was anyone really surprised to find Osama bin Laden was living in a luxurious mansion in plain view in a military-dominated Pakistani city? Let me admit that even I was surprised that the Pakistani Government was so bold, so open in its contempt of the people of the United States, as to arrest five of its citizens for helping us bring to justice Osama bin Laden, that terrorist radical fiend whose leadership led to the slaughter of 3,000 Americans on 9/11.

The Pakistan Intelligence Service, the ISI, is today, as it always has been, a friend of radical Islam and an enemy of Western democracy. With American acquiescence and Saudi financing, the Pakistani Government—read that the ISI—the Pakistani Government created the Taliban as Islamabad's vanguard for the conquest of Afghanistan. In the process, they set in place a fundamentalist anti-Western radical Islamic terrorist state.

Let's note that even after 9/11, after 3,000 of our citizens had been slaughtered, the ISI continued to covertly support radical Islamic terrorists, and they are still engaged in such hostile acts, even as American lives are being lost even today.

□ 1600

In 2010, the London School of Economics published a report that found agents of the ISI—this is 2010, long after 9/11—were “funding and training the Afghan Taliban.” And to top things off, there is substantial reporting that has been done that suggests that Pakistani diplomats are lobbying the Afghan Government leaders, suggesting that they dump the United States and turn to China for a partnership and reconstruction.

This isn't shame on them; this is shame on us. Washington may be able to coerce and bribe Islamabad into doing us a favor now and then, but it is time to face reality. The goals and values of the United States and Pakistan are fundamentally at odds. Wake up, America. This bill would provide for another $1 billion to Pakistan. The Pakistani Government and Pakistan, they are not our friends. Why are we borrowing money from China to give to a government that has betrayed us time and time again?

Therefore, I urge adoption of my amendment to eliminate any funding in this appropriations bill from going to Pakistan.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The bill includes approximately $2.4 billion to support the Pakistani military. Of this amount, $1.1 billion is for the Pakistan Counterinsur-gency Fund, and approximately $1.3 billion is provided through Coalition Support Funds.

The Pakistan Counterinsurgency Fund provides for the training and equipping of Pakistani forces specifically to aid U.S. counterterrorism objectives. Coalition Support Funds are used to reimburse the Pakistani military for operations which generally support U.S. counterterrorism objectives.

In the wake of Osama bin Laden's killing by U.S. Special Forces, serious questions have arisen about Pakistan's reliability as a strategic partner, and I agree with the gentleman from California that this has raised serious questions here in the United States about the reliability of one of our partners. And also, there are questions about President Karzai in Afghanistan as well.

Now, the relationship with Pakistan has always been difficult. It reminds me a great deal, during World War II, of our relationship with the Soviet Union, Russia. That was a difficult relationship, but it was essential at that time. And it is essential at this point. This relationship has helped the U.S. make progress against terrorism, and the Pakistanis have allocated a significant part of their forces within their own borders to this mission, which we need to do more of on the federally administered tribal areas and in Quetta, where the Afghan Taliban leadership exists. And we need them to let us bring our Special Forces into Pakistan.

Now, a complete withdrawal of U.S. assistance would likely polarize Pakistan and exacerbate significant pro- and anti-American rifts within their military and their government generally. Aggravating this divide would be counterproductive to U.S. objectives in the region.

In addition to the counterterrorism activity, the fact of Pakistan's nuclear weapons capabilities provides ample reason for the United States to continue positive engagement, so I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DICKS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Is any of the money that we have in this bill going to end up financing the ISI? Will any of that money end up in the hands of the ISI?

Mr. DICKS. I cannot say for certain. I don't think there is anything in this bill that I know of, any provision that provides funding directly to the ISI. Now, there may be. As the gentleman knows, there are other avenues in the intelligence world. But I don't know of anything specifically in this bill. And the ISI, I have just as much trouble with them as you do. But I don't think that we have anything specifically in the bill that funds them.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Is there any language in the bill that would prevent the money in this bill from going to the ISI?

Mr. DICKS. No, I don't think there is any prohibition in this bill.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. All right. Thank you very much.

Mr. DICKS. Thank you.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 61 OFFERED BY MS. FOXF

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the voice vote by which amendment No. 61 offered by the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXF) was adopted be vacated to the end that the Chair put the question de novo.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

If not, the earlier voice vote is vacated.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment.

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from North Carolina will be postponed.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. I would ask the subcommittee chairman, Mr. YOUNG, if he would enter into a colloquy regarding the Minuteman III Warm Line Solid Rocket Motor Sustainment program.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. If the gentleman would yield, I would be very happy to enter into a colloquy with the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. As the chairman is aware, the Air Force has proposed to terminate the Minuteman III Warm Line Solid Rocket Motor Sustainment program beginning in FY 2012. The Air Force has not presented this committee a viable plan to sustain this strategic weapon system beyond the year 2020 as these motors age out, and the program of record now requires the system to be deployed until 2030, which does leave a 10-year gap of vulnerability with no Minuteman III-specific industrial base to support this weapon system.

Would the chairman agree that it is vitally important that the Air Force undertake what is called a smart closeout of this program to include taking definite steps to preserve the essential tools, the uniquely skilled workforce, suppliers, equipment, and production facilities needed to continue to produce and support the readiness of Minuteman III motors through their current operational life cycle through at least 2030?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman from Utah for bringing this matter to our attention, and we do share his concern for the solid rocket motor industrial base.

We understand that the Air Force is considering their options, and we certainly intend that they use closeout funding from the Minuteman III mod line in a wise manner. We believe that they should seriously consider a smart closeout, as the gentleman from Utah described, and should also consider incorporating the essential elements from the Minuteman III production line into existing production lines for other defense solid rocket booster programs in order to preserve both military capabilities and to ensure the best use of taxpayer funds.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, do you also agree that all funds provided for Minuteman III modification in this bill may only be used to support the current Minuteman III system and that no funds have been either requested in the President's budget request or provided by this committee to begin a new start program for a future, currently unauthorized Minuteman III follow-on capability?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I would respond that the purpose of the funding that we have provided for the Missile Modifications program is to support the operational capability of the Minuteman through 2030. This includes $34 million, as requested, for closeout of the warm line program. Development of any follow-on capability is still years away. And the gentleman is correct, a new start system would require authorization and appropriation by the Congress, which the Air Force has not requested and we have not provided. We intend that warm line funds be used in a manner that preserves the industrial base and does not diminish our future strategic capabilities.

I commend the gentleman for his leadership in this area and look forward to working with him further on this issue.

□ 1610

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Reclaiming my time, I thank the chairman for his kindness and his answers.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GOHMERT

Mr. GOHMERT. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated, expended, or used in any manner to support military operations, including NATO or United Nations operations, in Libya or in Libya's airspace.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Chairman, we have had a couple of amendments we've already voted on. In reviewing whether or not to withdraw my amendment, my concern comes on the review of Mr. COLE of Oklahoma, my dear friend, and the amendment that passed that he provided. His amendment says that none of the funds in the act may be used for supporting military activities of any group or individual not part of a country's Armed Forces. So it still could be used to supplement another country's Armed Forces through NATO or through the U.N.

We have here a case where people on both sides recognize that the President moved forward and put our military in harm's way to go after a man who until March 1 was recognized by the United Nations as being a leader in human rights. In fact, it had elected him in 2003 to be the chairman of the Human Rights Commission of the U.N. We also know from our office's inquiry of our own military that we comprise 65 percent of NATO's military. So it is not comforting to think that this President has already gone beyond seizing on loopholes and is just ignoring laws in order to do what he wants because the Arab League asked him—not Congress, not the population of the United States, but the Arab League and some in NATO.

It has not been established—and there are no indications it will be established—that the people who are going to replace Qadhafi will be better for us, for our national security or for our allies like Israel. So, if it's not good for this country's national security and if it's true as to what the gentleman Secretary Gates said, to whom the President recently awarded a Medal of Honor, that we have no national security interests in Libya, then we should not be committing our military in that direction.

Even though the U.N. may support action in Libya and even though they may buy into this Arab Spring, we are already seeing that Iran is excited because it looks like they're going to get additional puppets. We found out this week that the leader of Iraq, Maliki, is giving in to the request of the leader of Iran and is going against his promise to us and to the people of Camp Ashraf that they'll be safe and secure. Now he's saying he's going to disband the camp.

It is time to put America's national security and national interests first and not some whim of some President because someone outside the U.S. asked him. We know the Muslim Brotherhood, despite what some say, has been supporting terrorism. The evidence was clear in the Holy Land Foundation trial. We know that this administration has bent over backwards to appease such folks, so it is time for an amendment to make very clear, which this one does:

Mr. President, it doesn't matter whether you're going to try to use our military through NATO, our military through the U.N., our military head-up for a reconnaissance rescue. It doesn't matter. You're not going to use them.

For those who argue the War Powers is constitutional or is unconstitutional, I would humbly submit it does not matter. Even though the War Powers Act was passed as a curb against the President at the time, it is actually a gift to a President. This body has the power of the purse to cut off funding at any time it so desires, and the War Powers gave him a gift that said, Look, we'll give you days and days and days to come make your case before we cut you off.

That's a gift.

This President has shoved it back down our throats, and has said, I don't care what you think.

It is time to use the constitutional powers of this body and say, "Enough."

In the hopes that people will vote for this amendment, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I find it a little difficult to listen to the arguments about the War Powers Act, because I agree with those arguments.

First of all, in 1973, I think the Congress did give Presidents a gift of power not intended by the Constitution. The Constitution is very clear. It intends that war-making decisions would be made in conjunction with the Commander-in-Chief and the Congress, not the Commander-in-Chief by himself or herself and not the Congress alone, but while working together. That's not the way it has been happening lately. There hasn't been a real declaration of war under the Constitution since World War II, but we have fought in a lot of wars, and we have killed and wounded a lot of our kids.

That's not the argument, though. I agree with all of those points. I think that Congress has a serious responsibility to review the War Powers Act and to make it what we think it ought to be, and that is a partner relationship between the Congress and the executive branch.

Yet, while we hear these strong arguments about the War Powers Act and the separation of powers, these amendments don't really get the job done. If you want to cut off all funding for any activities in and around Libya, you would have to introduce a separate resolution that would simply say: No funds appropriated here or anywhere else can be used in the Libya operation.

In this particular bill, there is no money for Libya, and the President has made it very clear that he is not going to use any funds from the fiscal year 2012 appropriation for Libya. We'll see if that changes, but we have that in writing. We're already there. We're already in the area. We're already flying missions. If this amendment should be agreed to, here is what we would not be able to do:

We could not fly search and rescue missions for a downed pilot. We could not do ISR—Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance. We could not do aerial refueling for our coalition partners. We could not even be part of operational planning under this amendment.

As much as I agree with what the gentleman is trying to accomplish, I can't support this amendment, because of the effect that it really has. If it could amend the War Powers Act and make the President be a partner with Congress, I'd say, Amen. Let's do it quickly. I think the Congress ought to do that, and I think we ought to be serious about doing that; but on this particular amendment, I've got to oppose it because this is what we're dealing with, not the emotional discussions about the War Powers Act.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I do not insist on my point of order.

The Acting CHAIR. The reservation is withdrawn.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The brutal regime of Muammar al Qadhafi has caused an international outcry, and the people of Libya have asked for our help. The NATO-led mission to defeat Qadhafi and protect the people of Libya was undertaken in concert with a broad coalition of nations, including the Arab League, and it followed resolutions adopted in the United Nations Security Council, authorizing "all necessary measures."

□ 1620

The amendment would end our involvement unilaterally. I believe this could materially harm our relationship with our NATO allies from whom we will undoubtedly require support in the future, and our NATO alliance has been a vital and successful part of U.S. foreign policy dating back to its formation in 1949.

I do support a wider debate and greater oversight of the use and the cost of U.S. military forces engaged in the Libya operation, but I would point out that the administration did send up a detailed document that shows the money that has been spent thus far and what will be spent through the end of this fiscal year. We should let the mission with our NATO allies continue so we can replace Qadhafi and protect the Libyan people.

I urge all my colleagues to vote "no" on this amendment. And I would just remind everyone that in 1986 President Reagan authorized a military strike following the bombings in Berlin and definitive proof of Qadhafi's involvement in other terrorist activities. At the time, President Reagan publicly denounced Qadhafi, the "Mad Dog of the Middle East who espoused the goal of world revolution."

Mr. Chairman, I can only wonder what Ronald Reagan would say today about those who would propose immediate withdrawal of U.S. assistance to the broad coalition of nations attempting to finish the job that President Ronald Reagan started.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMERT).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ENGEL

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used by the Department of Defense to lease or purchase new light duty vehicles, for any executive fleet, or for an agency's fleet inventory, except in accordance with Presidential Memorandum—Federal Fleet Performance, dated May 24, 2011.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New York is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Chairman, on May 24, President Obama issued a Memorandum on Federal Fleet Performance, which requires all new light-duty vehicles in the Federal fleet to be alternate fuel vehicles, such as hybrid, electric, natural gas, or biofuel, by December 31, 2015. My amendment echoes the Presidential memorandum by prohibiting funds in the Defense Appropriations bill from being used to lease or purchase new light-duty vehicles except in accord with the President's memorandum. I have introduced similar amendments to the Homeland Security Appropriations bill and the Agriculture Appropriations bill and intend to do it with other appropriations bills. Both were accepted by the majority and passed by voice vote.

Our transportation sector is by far the biggest reason we send $600 billion per year to hostile nations to pay for oil at ever-increasing costs, but America doesn't need to be dependent on foreign sources of oil for transportation fuel. Alternative technologies exist today that, when implemented broadly, will allow any alternative fuel to be used in America's automotive fleet.

The Federal Government operates the largest fleet of light-duty vehicles in America. According to GSA, there are over 660,000 vehicles in the Federal fleet, with almost 197,000 being used by the Department of Defense. By supporting a diverse array of vehicle technologies in our Federal fleet, we will encourage development of domestic energy resources—including biomass, natural gas, coal, agricultural waste, hydrogen and renewable electricity. Expanding the role these energy sources play in our transportation economy will help break the leverage over Americans held by foreign government-controlled oil companies and will increase our Nation's domestic security and protect consumers from price spikes and shortages in the world oil markets.

I ask my colleagues to support this amendment as both sides of the aisle have done in previous bills; and I want to mention on a similar note, I have worked in a bipartisan fashion with my colleagues, JOHN SHIMKUS, ROSCOE BARTLETT and STEVE ISRAEL, to open the bipartisan Open Fuel Standard Act, H.R. 1687.

Our bill would require 50 percent of new automobiles in 2014, 80 percent in 2016, and 95 percent in 2017 to be warranted to operate on nonpetroleum fuels in addition to or instead of petroleum-based fuels. Compliance possibilities include the full array of existing technologies, including flex fuel, natural gas, hydrogen, biodiesel, plug-in electric drive and fuel cell, and a catch-all for new technologies. I mention it because it's similar to this, and I really believe that our energy policies obviously can only be done on a bipartisan basis.

I encourage my colleagues to support this amendment, again as we've done on all the other bills where I have introduced it, and the Open Fuel Standard as we work toward breaking our dependence on foreign oil.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I think the gentleman's amendment is a good amendment. I think we've seen this on other bills, and I am happy to accept the amendment.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. I appreciate the gentleman's willingness to accept the amendment, and I too think it's a good amendment and a good idea.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 89 OFFERED BY MR. NEUGEBAUER

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to reduce the number of B-1 aircraft of the Armed Forces.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the B-1 bomber.

This is a very simple amendment. Basically, it just says it prevents any funds in this bill from being used to retire the B-1 bombers during the coming fiscal year.

Currently, as you know, about 163 planes are in our bomber fleet, which is about 3 percent of our total fleet. Currently, we are going through an analysis of what our bomber fleet is going to look like in the future, and part of that is from the START Treaty. What we feel is appropriate is for us to not look at reductions in the bomber fleet on a piecemeal basis, but to look at it as a total picture once we have done the analysis and seen how many of the planes will not be needed for nuclear capability moving forward.

The B-1 is kind of an interesting plane. It doesn't get a lot of attention, but what it does is it works 24-7 and has in the theaters that we're involved in for a number of years. In fact, it has been our number one bomber of choice for a number of years and until recently was the only bomber seen in active duty.

I am pleased to be supported in this effort by Congressman THORNBERRY, who is vice chairman of the Armed Services Committee, as well as my colleague, Mr. CONAWAY.

At this time, I would like to yield to one of the cosponsors of this amendment, the gentlewoman from South Dakota (Mrs. NOEM).

Mrs. NOEM. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this amendment that is offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The B-1 bomber is the workhorse of our long-range bomber fleet and has been flying missions over Iraq and Afghanistan for nearly a decade. More importantly, the B-1 bomber from the 28th Bomb Wing at Ellsworth Air Force Base in my home State of South Dakota just carried out air strike operations in Libya. In just under 2 days, Ellsworth generated aircraft loaded with conventional weapons that were able to strike targets halfway across the world.

Regardless of what one thinks about our involvement in Libya, one thing that one cannot dispute is the B-1's capability to respond globally and its vital importance to our bomber fleet. Mr. Chairman, with the next generation bomber development still a decade or more away, the administration's proposal to retire six B-1s is short sighted and it's premature. What's more, it can't be reversed. Retired planes aren't mothballed and put away for a period of time. They are sent to the bone yard and they are used for parts. Mr. Chairman, we propose that no B-1s be irreversibly retired this year because of questions regarding the future of our bomber force structure and the B-1's proven track record in theater as our workhorse.

I urge my colleagues to vote for a strong bomber fleet, a strong national defense, and I ask them to support this amendment.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. I yield to the distinguished chairman.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

The gentlelady from South Dakota just made a speech that I was about to make, so I would just simply say it's a good amendment, and I accept it.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. I thank the chairman, and I urge our colleagues to support a strong national defense and making sure that we have the appropriate number of bombers, and to vote in favor of the Neugebauer amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1630

Mr. DICKS. I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. I would just say to the gentleman that the B-2 bomber has been used also on several of these military operations that we've used, and the B-2 is a stealthy airplane. We only have 20. As a member of the committee, I offered the multiyear purchase agreement so we could buy the B-1s. And we had a unanimous vote, I think, in our committee on that. It was very bipartisan.

I agree with the gentleman that we don't have enough bombers. That's why I'm so strongly committed to the next-generation bomber. But as has been pointed out, that's going to be several years away. We tried to add some money this year to accelerate that because we do need a follow-on bomber.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. DICKS. Yes, I yield.

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. I agree with the gentleman. And I think that our bomber fleet is extremely important, the B-1, the B-2, and obviously the B-52s. And as the gentleman knows, as we do not have a replacement bomber in the works at this particular point in time and until such time as we develop that, I think it's extremely important that we be strategic about what level we maintain our current fleet until we know what the replacement is going to be. And I agree with the gentleman.

Mr. DICKS. Reclaiming my time, we only have 20 stealthy bombers. That's what some people don't understand. And the ability to penetrate China or the Soviet Union or wherever we might have to penetrate at some point, North Korea, we would be vulnerable with the B-52s and the B-1s to surface-to-air missiles.

So making sure that we get a high-quality stealthy airplane to follow the B-2 is a matter of national importance. I support the amendment.

I yield back my time.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chair, I rise today to speak in support of the B-1 bomber fleet. To echo what my colleague, Mr. NEUGEBAUER has said, I too believe that we should carefully examine the way we modify our bomber fleet for the future.

As part of the New Start Treaty, the U.S. and Russia will limit their nuclear capable delivery vehicles to a total of 700 deployed assets, including heavy bombers. At this time, we do not yet know what those cuts will look like. Preserving the size of our non-nuclear bomber fleet until we know the results of the New Start Treaty analysis is simply good policy.

My colleagues on the Armed Services Committee and I are very concerned that if we go down this path and prematurely reduce a portion of the fleet, that we will regret that decision.

Mr. Chair, I recognize that cuts need to be made. Every aspect of the budget needs to be thoroughly reviewed, but let's not make bad budgetary decisions without considering our mission capabilities first.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. NEUGEBAUER).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. Mr. Chairman, today I rise to address the ranking member of the House Appropriation's Committee on Defense, Mr. DICKS, and also the chair in a colloquy on the critical need to improve the recruitment, retention, and competitive compensation of the mental health professionals who can work with our Iraq and Afghanistan military servicemen and -women.

Since 2001, 2,103 military members have died by suicide. And one in five servicemembers currently suffer from post-traumatic stress and/or major depression. We must ensure that an adequate number of mental health professionals are available to treat our soldiers.

Mental health professionals must be retained by providing adequate pay and competitive benefits that are also available in the private sector. It is our duty and responsibility to our wounded warriors that we ensure their mental health services are secure and available when and where needed.

I am submitting for the RECORD an article from the Army Times dated April 7, 2011, regarding the Senate Appropriations Committee Defense Subcommittee meeting of April 6 and quoting Army Surgeon General Lieutenant General Schoomaker, who stressed the severe lack of mental health professionals in the military, and his concern about retention, especially in the rural areas. The article states, "Congress has been pressing the military health system to add more psychiatric doctors, nurses and social workers for several years. That has prompted the services to add about 1,500 full-time mental health professionals since 2006—a 70 percent increase."

The article further says, "But demand has continued to outpace that growth. Active-duty troops and their families were referred to off-base civilian mental health care professionals nearly 4 million times in 2009, roughly double the number of off-base referrals in 2006, military data show.

"The dramatic increase in military suicides during the past several years has added urgency to congressional concerns. At the April 6 hearing, all three military surgeons general told lawmakers about efforts to improve training, recruiting and retention of mental health professionals."

Senator MIKULSKI has suggested military training may be uniquely important because some civilian doctors and social workers have trouble understanding the troops' problems and mindset.

I am also submitting for the RECORD a witness statement of July 14, 2011, from the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations of the Committee on Veterans Affairs, where the Deputy Director of Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation Division, Jacob Gadd, expressed the challenges of hiring and retaining quality mental health specialists. Our servicemembers should not have to wait one more day for the help they deserve.

As cochair of the Congressional Mental Health Care Caucus, I have met with many key military leaders to learn what the most critical issues are in addressing mental health services for our military men and women. I've repeatedly been informed that there have been woefully inadequate numbers of mental health professionals available to care for our men and women.

Congress has a responsibility to see that our soldiers and veterans have the resources for quality care. Because this quality of care is dependent on the quantity of behavioral health specialists trained in war, PTS, we must successfully recruit and retain to work with our men and women who fight to ensure our precious daily freedoms.

The legislation before you today provides $32.3 billion for the defense health program and military family programs, with $125 million of this going towards research of traumatic brain injury and psychological health treatment, hopefully to also include hyperbaric treatment research.

We must insist on accountability that adequately trained behavioral health professionals are on hand when and where needed. I would like to work with the ranking member to obtain from the Department of Defense a detailed outline on their efforts for each military service—Army, Air Force, Navy, Marines, et cetera—to recruit, retain, and formulate the competitive salaries and benefits that will keep behavioral health specialists serving our men and women who have given so much to protect our freedoms.

We place them in harm's way. It is our duty and obligation to ensure the best care is given to them.

I yield to the ranking member.

Mr. DICKS. I will work with the gentlelady on the Defense Department's plan to ensure adequate mental health services for our servicemembers.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

(On request of Mr. DICKS, and by unanimous consent, Mrs. NAPOLITANO was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentlelady continue to yield?

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. DICKS. I would point out that the chairman of this committee, Mr. YOUNG, and his wife, Beverly, have been some of the strongest advocates for our Wounded Warriors and he has led the fight in our committee to increase the funding for traumatic brain injury and post-traumatic stress disorder. So our committee has been very committed to this. It is one of our highest priorities.

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. I thank Mr. DICKS, the ranking member, for working with me on this critical issue and look forward to working soon enough on this.

[Apr. 7, 2011]

PANEL QUESTIONS ADEQUACY OF MENTAL HEALTH CARE

(By Andrew Tilghman)

The military's top doctors faced heated questions on Capitol Hill about whether there are enough mental health professionals to meet the soaring demand from troubled troops.

"Do you feel you have adequate mental health personnel?" asked Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., at an April 6 hearing of the Senate Appropriations Committee's defense panel.

Lt. Gen. Eric Schoomaker, the Army surgeon general, acknowledged that the military would prefer to have more, but cited an overall lack of mental health professionals nationwide as a key challenge. "I think the nation is facing problems. As a microcosm of the nation, we have problems," Schoomaker said.

Congress has been pressing the military health system to add more psychiatric doctors, nurses and social workers for several years. That has prompted the services to add about 1,500 full-time mental health professionals since 2006—a 70 percent increase.

But demand has continued to outpace that growth. Active-duty troops and their families were referred to off-base civilian mental health care professionals nearly 4 million times in 2009, roughly double the number of off-base referrals in 2006, military data show.

The dramatic increase in military suicides during the past several years has added urgency to congressional concerns. At the April 6 hearing, all three military surgeons general told lawmakers about efforts to improve training, recruiting and retention of mental health professionals.

Mikulski suggested military training may be uniquely important because some civilian doctors and social workers have trouble understanding troops' problems and mindset.

"From what I understand . . . often in the first hour of the first treatment, the military [patients] facing this problem walk out and tell the counselor, essentially, to go to hell because they don't feel they get it," she said.

Schoomaker downplayed issues with non-military professionals.

"Frankly, I think . . . this warrior culture issue might be present in some cases but not universally. Our people do a good job with that," he said.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., was concerned about reservists who may not live near a military treatment facility and may have problems finding mental health care. Schoomaker agreed that reservists can face a significant challenge.

"We have residual problems . . . in reserve communities. You go home to a community where access to care is a problem for all care, but especially behavioral health," Schoomaker said.

That's also a problem for some active-duty posts in rural areas. "In the desert of California, for example, it's hard to recruit and retain high-quality people," he said.

STATEMENT OF JACOB B. GADD, DEPUTY DIRECTOR, VETERANS AFFAIRS AND REHABILITATION DIVISION, THE AMERICAN LEGION, TO THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT AND INVESTIGATIONS, COMMITTEE ON VETERANS' AFFAIRS, UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, ON "EXAMINING THE PROGRESS OF SUICIDE PREVENTION OUTREACH EFFORTS AT THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS", JULY 14, 2010

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Subcommittee:

Thank you for this opportunity to submit The American Legion's views on progress of the Suicide Prevention efforts at the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to the Subcommittee today. The American Legion commends the Subcommittee for holding a hearing today to discuss this timely and important issue.

Suicide among service members and veterans has always been a concern; it is the position of The American Legion that one suicide is one too many. However, since the war in Iraq and Afghanistan began, the numbers of service members and veterans who have committed suicide have steadily increased. As our service members are deployed across the world to protect and defend our freedoms, we as a nation cannot allow them to not receive the care and treatment they need when they return home. The tragic and ultimate result of failing to take care of our nation's heroes' mental health illnesses is suicide.

Turning first to VA's efforts in recent years with Mental Health Care, The American Legion has consistently lobbied for budgetary increases and program improvements to VA's Mental Health Programs. Despite recent unprecedented increases in the VA budget, demand for VA Mental Health services is still outpacing the resources and staff available as the number of service members and veterans afflicted with Post Traumatic Stress (PTS) and Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) continues to grow, this naturally leads to VA's increase in mental health patients.

In 2008, RAND's Center for Military Health Policy Research, an independent, nonprofit group, released a report on the psychological and cognitive needs of all servicemembers deployed in the past six years, titled, "Invisible Wounds of War: Psychological and Cognitive Injuries, Their Consequences, and Services to Assist Recovery," which estimated that more than 300,000 (20 percent of the 1.6 million) Iraq and Afghanistan veterans are suffering from PTS or major depression and about 320,000 may have experienced TBI during deployment.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates 30,000-32,000 U.S. deaths from suicide per year among the population. VA's Office of Patient Care and Mental Health Services reported in April 2010 that approximately 20 percent of national suicides are veterans. The National Violent Death Reporting System reports 18 deaths per day by veterans and VA's Serious Mental Illness Treatment, Research and Evaluation Center reported about five deaths occur each day among VA patients. In a recent AP article, it was cited that there have been more suicides than service members killed in Afghanistan.

The Veterans Health Administration (VHA) has made improvements in recent years for Mental Health and transition between DoD and VA such as the Federal Recovery Coordinators, Polytrauma Rehabilitation System of Care, Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF) and Operation Iraqi Freedom

(OIF) case management teams, integrating mental health care providers into primary care within VA Medical Center Facilities and Community Based Outpatient Clinics (CBOCs), VA Readjustment (Vet) Centers hiring of Global War on Terrorism (GWOT) Counselors, establishing directives for TBI screening, clinical reminders and a new symptom and diagnostic code for TBI.

Regarding suicide prevention outreach efforts, VA founded the National Suicide Prevention Hotline, 1-800-273-TALK (8255) by collaborating with the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline where veterans are assisted by a dedicated call center at Canandaigua VA Medical Center in New York. The call center is staffed with trained VA crisis health care professionals to respond to calls on a 24/7 basis and facilitate appropriate treatment. VA reported in 2010 a total of 245,665 calls, 128,302 of which were identified as veterans. Of these veterans, 7,720 were rescues.

VA hired Local Suicide Prevention Coordinators at all of the 153 VA Medical Centers nationwide in an effort to provide local and immediate assistance during a crisis, compile local data for the national database and train hospital and local community on how to provide assistance. One of the primary responsibilities of the Local Suicide Prevention Coordinators is to track and monitor veterans who are placed on high risk of suicide (HRS). A safety plan for that individual veteran is created to ensure they are not allowed to fall through the cracks.

In 2009, VA instituted an online chat center for veterans to further reach those veterans who utilize online communications. The total number of VeteransChat contacts reported since September 2009 was 3,859 with 1471 mentioning suicide. VA has also had targeted outreach campaigns which included billboards, signage on buses and PSA's with actor Gary Sinise to encourage veterans to contact VA for assistance.

THE AMERICAN LEGION SUICIDE PREVENTION AND REFERRAL PROGRAMS

The American Legion has been at the forefront of helping to prevent military and veteran suicides in the community. The American Legion approved Resolution 51, The American Legion Develop a Suicide Prevention and Outreach Referral Program, at the 2009 National Convention. In addition, VA's National Suicide Prevention Coordinator Dr. Janet Kemp facilitated an Operation S.A.V.E. Training for our Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation Commission members. VA&R Commission members and volunteers subsequently developed American Legion state, district and post training programs to provide referrals for veterans in distress with VA's National Suicide Prevention Hotline. The American Legion currently has over 60 posts with active Suicide Prevention and Referral Programs.

In December 2009, The American Legion took the lead in creating a Suicide Prevention Assistant Volunteer Coordinator position, under the auspices of VA's Voluntary Service Office. Each local suicide prevention office is encouraged to work with veteran service organizations and community organizations to connect veterans with VA's programs in their time of transition and need. The Suicide Prevention offices can increase their training of volunteers to distribute literature and facilitate training in order to further reach veterans in the community.

This year, The American Legion entered into a partnership with the Defense Centers of Excellence's Real Warrior Campaign to educate and encourage our members to help transitioning service members and veterans receive the mental health treatment they need. Additionally, during our 2010 National Convention we will have a panel to discuss prevention, screening, diagnosis and treatment of TBI with representatives from DoD, VA and the private sector.

CHALLENGES

Despite recent suicide prevention efforts, yet more needs to be done as the number of suicides continues to grow. The American Legion's System Worth Saving (SWS) program, which conducts site visits to VA Medical Center facilities annually, has found several challenges with the delivery of mental health care. VA has the goal to recruit psychologists from their current nationwide level of 3,000 to 10,000 to meet the demand for mental health services. However, VA Medical Center Facilities have expressed concerns with hiring and retaining quality mental health specialists and have had to rely on fee basis programs to manage their workload.

The American Legion applauds last year's action by Congress in passing Advance Appropriations for mandatory spending. However, problems exist in VA itself in allocating the funds from VA Central Office to the Veteran Integrated Service Networks (VISNs) and to the local facilities. This delay in funding creates challenges for the VA Medical Center Facility in receiving its budget to increase patient care services, hiring or to begin facility construction projects to expand mental health services. VA's 2011 budget provides approximately $5.2 billion for mental health programs which is an 8.5 percent, or $410 million, increase over FY 2010 budget authorization. The American Legion continues to be concerned about mental health funds being specifically used for their intent and that Congress continue to provide the additional funding needed to meet the growing demand for treatment.

Challenges in preventing suicide include maintaining confidentiality and overcoming the stigma attached to a service member or veteran receiving care. Additionally, the issue of a lack of interoperable medical records between DoD and VA, while being addressed by Virtual Lifetime Electronic Records (VLER), still exists. The American Legion has supported the VLER initiative and the timely and unfettered exchange of health records between DoD and VA. Unfortunately, DoD and VA still have not finalized both agencies ALTA and VISTA architecture systems since the project began in 2007, which limits DoD and VA's ability to track and monitor high risk suicide patients during their transition from military to civilian life. The American Legion recommends VA take the lead in developing a joint database with the DoD, the National Center for Health Statistics and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to track suicide national trends and statistics of military and veteran suicides.

The American Legion continues to be concerned about the delivery of health care to rural veterans. As mentioned, a nationwide shortage of behavioral health specialists, especially in remote areas where veterans have settled, reduces the effectiveness of VA's outreach. No matter where a veteran chooses to live, VA must continue to expand and bring needed medical services to the highly rural veteran population through telehealth and Virtual Reality Exposure Therapy (VRET). DoD and VA have piloted VRET at bases at Camp Pendleton, Camp Lejeune and the Iowa City VA Medical Center. VRET is an emerging treatment that exposes a patient to different computer simulations to help them overcome their phobias or stress. The younger generation of veterans identifies with computer technology and may be more apt to self-identify online rather than at a VA Medical Center or CBOC.

Both DoD and VA have acknowledged the lack of research on brain injuries and the difficulties diagnosing PTS and TBI because of the comorbidity of symptoms between the two. The Defense and Veterans Brain Injury Center (DVBIC) developed and continues to use a 4-question screening test for TB today. At the same time, Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York developed the Brain Injury Screening Questionnaire (BISQ), the only validated instrument by the Centers for Disease Control to assess the history of TBI, which has over 100 questions with 25 strong indicators for detecting TB. Mount Sinai has published data that suggest some of the symptoms, particularly those categorized as "cognitive," when found in large numbers (i.e. 9 or greater), indicate the person is experiencing complaints similar to those of individuals with brain injuries. The American Legion wants to ensure that DoD and VA are working with the private sector to share best practices and improve on evidence-based research, screening, diagnosis and treatment protocols of the "signature wounds" of Iraq and Afghanistan.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The American Legion has seven recommendations to improve Mental Health and Suicide Prevention efforts for VA and DoD:

(1) Congress should exercise oversight on VA and DoD programs to insure maximum efficiency and compliance with Congressional concerns for this important issue.

(2) Congress should appropriate additional funding for mental health research and to standardize DoD and VA screening, diagnosis and treatment programs.

(3) DoD and VA should expedite development of a Virtual Lifetime Medical Record for a single interoperable medical record to better track and flag veterans with mental health illnesses.

(4) Congress should allocate separate Mental Health funding for VA's Recruitment and Retention incentives for behavioral health specialists.

(5) Establish a Suicide Prevention Coordinator at each military installation and encourage DoD and VA to share best practices in research, screening and treatment protocols between agencies.

(6) Congress should provide additional funding for telehealth and virtual behavior health programs and providers and ensure access to these services are available on VA's web pages for MyHealthyVet, Mental Health and Suicide Prevention as well as new technologies such as Skype, Apple i-Phone Applications, Facebook and Twitter.

(7) DoD and VA should develop joint online suicide prevention service member and veteran training courses/modules on family, budget, pre, during and post deployment, financial, TBI, PTSD, Depression information.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, although VA has increased its efforts and support for suicide prevention programs, it must continue to reach into the community by working with Veteran Service Organizations such as The American Legion to improve outreach and increase awareness of these suicide prevention programs and services for our nation's veterans. The American Legion is committed to working with DoD and VA in providing assistance to those struggling with the wounds of war so that no more veterans need lose the fight and succumb to so tragic a self-inflicted end.

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Subcommittee, this concludes my testimony.

I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GOSAR

Mr. GOSAR. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated or expended for assistance to the following entities:

- (1) The Government of Iran.
- (2) Hamas.
- (3) Hizbullah.
- (4) The Muslim Brotherhood.

□ 1640

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GOSAR. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I ask for your support of my limiting amendment that would prohibit any military expenditure that would assist any entity that has a policy calling for the destruction of the State of Israel.

My amendment is specific and would prohibit this type of expenditure to any entity that has a policy calling for the destruction of the State of Israel. Most prominent, of course, is Iran. Just last month, Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad reiterated his nation's policy calling for the complete elimination of Israel.

It is not just formally recognized states, however, we need to be concerned about. History has shown that entities we consider terrorist fringe groups sometimes, through force, manipulation and popular vote, take over the state apparatus. This happened in the Gaza Strip when Hamas, the Islamic Resistance Movement, won a plurality of legislative seats, 44 percent, in the 2006 election. The United States and Israel classify Hamas as a terrorist organization, but the United Nations, for example, does not. The Hamas Charter of 1988, never withdrawn or amended, states that "Israel will exist and will continue to exist until Islam will obliterate it, just as it has obliterated others before it." This mirrors the Iranian policy, as that "the reason for the Zionist regime's existence is questioned, and this regime is on its way to annihilation."

In the last budget, according to the State Department, U.S. military aid to Egypt totals over $1.3 billion annually in funding referred to as Foreign Military Financing. Currently, questions exist about the Muslim Brotherhood, now a key player in Egypt and potentially in Libya with the rebel opposition, and its hostility to Jews and the State of Israel. It is quite possible that extremist groups who seek the destruction of Israel are taking over the state operations in Egypt and part of Libya. Time will tell.

My amendment would ensure that we do not use our money and military assistance to help any entity that will not recognize the right of Israel to exist and to exist peacefully. That includes the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt. No other nation on Earth except Israel has had to face systematic, ideological and persistent existential threats.

My amendment would prohibit military aid, assistance or funding to any nation, state or entity that espouses a policy that refuses to recognize Israel's right to peacefully exist. With the prospect of not receiving our money and assistance, the new Egyptian regime may take a more respectful approach to Israel. In this sense, my amendment takes a carrots approach.

I appreciate your support of my amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the gentleman's amendment. I also want to support his reasons for offering this amendment. I think they are very well taken. The amendment is a good amendment, and I strongly support it.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. GOSAR).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WELCH

Mr. WELCH. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . Not more than $200,000,000 of the funds provided by title IX under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Army" may be available for the Commander's Emergency Response Program, and the amount otherwise provided under such heading is hereby reduced by $200,000,000.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Vermont is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELCH. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

One of the major decisions that this Congress has to make and for which we need a recommendation from the Appropriations Committee for the Defense Subcommittee is whether nation-building is a wise strategy, a sustainable strategy, an affordable strategy, and an effective strategy in Afghanistan. We had a debate on that policy. There was a bipartisan vote, with 204 Members suggesting it was time to call into question the wisdom, sustainability and effectiveness of nation-building.

One of the things that we have provided to our commanders in order for them to be able to do hearts-and-minds civic projects, roads, bridges, schools is a $400 million fund that they can use completely at their discretion. Now, this sounds like a good idea. If you're going to ask the military to win the hearts and minds, not just use military power to fight battles, then a discretionary fund can seemingly make some sense. The question, though, is, upon review, it turns out that these roads, these bridges, these canals, almost the moment they're turned over to the Afghan authorities, fall into disrepair, disuse and neglect. It's not surprising.

Number one, there is very little local government infrastructure in Afghanistan, and the fact that we build a road or a school doesn't necessarily mean there's a government or an authority there to be able to maintain it. So we build something, and the moment we turn the keys over, it falls into disuse and disrepair.

Second, the expenses of doing this are enormous. It may make sense to do these civic projects, to create some goodwill, but do you do them, Mr. Chairman, in the middle of a shooting war? Or is it better to do that before or after the war, when you have a chance for this implementation to occur?

Then, third, there's an immense amount of ripping off of this money from the American taxpayer. It gets lost. It gets picked up in graft that we all know about is too rampant in Afghanistan. According to a report in The Washington Post, half of this money, a minimum of $400 million, is gone missing, it's wasted, and it is coming out of our taxpayer pockets.

My amendment would cut in half the $400 million, reduce it to $200 million, basically taking away that $200 million that is being utterly wasted. This is a commonsense, practical way to save money by stopping a policy that may be good in theory but in practice is a failure.

[From the Washington Post, Jan. 4, 2011]

U.S.-FUNDED INFRASTRUCTURE DETERIORATES
ONCE UNDER AFGHAN CONTROL, REPORT SAYS
(By Josh Boak)

Roads, canals and schools built in Afghanistan as part of a special U.S. military program are crumbling under Afghan stewardship, despite steps imposed over the past year to ensure that reconstruction money is not being wasted, according to government reports and interviews with military and civilian personnel.

U.S. troops in Afghanistan have spent $2 billion over six years on 16,000 humanitarian projects through the Commander's Emergency Response Program, which gives a battalion-level commander the power to treat aid dollars as ammunition.

A report slated for release this month reveals that CERP projects can quickly slide into neglect after being transferred to Afghan control. The Afghans had problems maintaining about half of the 69 projects reviewed in eastern Laghman province, according to an audit by the Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction.

The spending in Afghanistan is part of the $5 billion provided to U.S. military commanders for projects in Iraq and Afghanistan since 2004. The new report is the latest to identify shortcomings and missteps in the program, whose ventures have included the Jadriyah Lake park in Iraq, planned as a water park but now barren two years after a U.S. military inauguration ceremony.

The dilapidated projects in Afghanistan could present a challenge to the U.S. strategy of shifting more responsibility to Afghans. Investing in infrastructure, notes President Obama's December review of the war, "will give the Afghan government and people the tools to build and sustain a future of stability."

"Sustainment is one of the biggest issues with our whole strategy," said a civilian official who shared details from a draft of the report. "The Afghans don't have the money or capacity to sustain much." The official spoke on the condition of anonymity because the Defense Department is preparing a response to the audit.

Photos in the report show washed-out roads, with cracks and potholes where improvised explosive devices can be hidden. Among the projects profiled is a re-dredged canal that filled with silt a month after opening.

Multiple reports by the Government Accountability Office have noted a lack of monitoring by the Pentagon. And because formal U.S. oversight stops after a project is turned over to Afghans, it is difficult to gauge how projects are maintained country-wide.

When asked whether the Afghans have trouble sustaining projects, the U.S. military issued a statement saying it does not have the information to provide an immediate answer.

Gen. David H. Petraeus, the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, said in Senate testimony last year that CERP is "the most responsive and effective means to address a local community's needs." He previously relied on the discretionary fund as the commanding general in Iraq, where $3.5 billion has been spent through the program. Over the past two years, Petraeus has pushed for stricter controls to stop any fraud and waste.

In response to "insufficient management," CERP guidance for Afghanistan was revised in December 2009, according to a statement by the military. The new guidance emphasizes the need to meet with Afghan leaders when choosing what to fund. It does not, however, require U.S. troops to continue inspecting projects after they are placed under Afghan control.

Under the guidance, an Afghan governor, mayor or bureaucrat must sign a letter promising to fund maintenance and operations. But an October SIGAR audit of projects in Nangahar province found that only two of the 15 files examined contained a signed letter. Nor is there formal reporting to the national or provincial Afghan governments of what was spent and built, the audit said. That makes it difficult for Afghans to know what they are supposed to maintain.

The provincial and district governments that take over the projects do not have the money to sustain them because they cannot collect taxes and they depend on the national government for funding, said Army Maj. David Kaczmarek, the civil affairs officer for Task Force Bastogne in eastern Afghanistan.

To teach the local governments how to request additional funds from Kabul, Kaczmarek helped launch a program in the summer that uses CERP dollars for the operation and maintenance of some projects.

The U.S. military tracks CERP projects with poorly maintained computer databases. Before October 2009, the database did not consistently record the villages or districts where projects were undertaken, according to military and civilian personnel who spoke on the condition of anonymity because the master database is classified.

A civilian official who examined the contents of the database for a government assessment said the military cannot account for the spending without knowing the villages and districts that were project recipients.

"Let's say the project is not working," the official said. "Why would we want to fund that project again the next year? Very little evaluation was done to decide what we fund next."

The organizational problems have also frustrated attempts to study the effectiveness of the $2 billion spent on CERP. A paper co-written by Princeton University professor Jacob Shapiro found that CERP funding helped reduce violence in Iraq. Shapiro and his colleagues have struggled over the past nine months to conduct a similar study for Afghanistan because of the database.

"There's not a sense of how the program may or may not be working in Afghanistan," Shapiro said.

Army Lt. Col. Brian Stoll tried to clean up the database while serving in Kandahar last year. He champions CERP as a way to build confidence in the Afghan government, despite the mess he found.

Projects dating to 2006 had never been closed out, said Stoll, who updated the files while working 12-hour days to audit ongoing projects in southern Afghanistan.

"We never got it all cleaned up," Stoll said. "It was like a Hydra. You get part of it cleaned up and you find some more along the way."

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment for a number of reasons, although I think he's made some good points, and certainly we want accountability to apply to this program as much as we want it to apply to anything. However, this is the same funding level as last year. The request was $425 million, and our commanders in the theater are telling us that that is even not high enough. So what we're doing with this amendment is actually cutting a level funding item from last year, cutting it in half.

Now, what does the CERP money do, the Commander's Emergency Response Program money? Let's say an IED explodes, or maybe there is a bomb that blows up a storefront in the middle of the street. A commander can go in there and hire local labor to clear out the entrance to that small business or whatever it is and get it done quickly without having to put U.S. Army personnel in danger to do it and can do it quickly and effectively and therefore leave our soldiers in the field, leave our soldiers where they can be most effective with their time and their training, and it does promote some goodwill on the streets with the people.

It has been said, well, all you're doing is renting a friend, and we're not going to be the first army that's fighting a war that rents friends, if you will. It really doesn't just rent a friend. It does create some long-term goodwill and does have an economic benefit of it. But the idea is to give the commander on the street some flexibility so that they can get the jobs done as the jobs arise and get them done quickly and turn them around.

CERP money actually has been an effective tool, and it's enormously popular with our commanders who are on the ground. I believe one of the problems we have in Afghanistan, one of the problems we've always had, is that too many decisions are being made down the street at the Pentagon and not in Baghdad, not in Kabul, not in Kandahar, where the commanders are closest to the war front.

For these reasons, Mr. Chairman, I urge a "no" vote.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. WELCH).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Vermont will be postponed.

□ 1650

AMENDMENT NO. 30 OFFERED BY MR. FLORES

Mr. FLORES. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following new section:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to enforce section 526 of the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 (Public Law 110-140; 42 U.S.C. 17142).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FLORES. Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer my amendment, which would address another misguided Federal regulation. Section 526 of the Energy Independence and Security Act prohibits Federal agencies from entering into contracts for the procurement of alternative fuels unless their lifecycle greenhouse gases emissions are less than or equal to emissions from an equivalent conventional fuel produced from conventional petroleum sources. Simply stated, my amendment would stop the government from enforcing this ban on the Department of Defense.

The initial purpose of section 526 was to stifle the Defense Department's plans to buy and develop coal-based or coal-to-liquid jet fuels. This was based on the opinion of environmentalists that coal-based jet fuel produces more greenhouse gas emissions than traditional petroleum. I recently offered my similar amendment to both the MILCON VA and Ag appropriations bills, and they passed the House by voice vote each time.

My friend Mr. CONAWAY of Texas also had similar language added to the Defense authorization bill to exempt the Defense Department from this burdensome regulation. We must ensure that our military becomes more energy independent and that it can effectively and efficiently rely on domestic and more stable sources of fuel.

Our Nation's military should not be burdened with wasting its time studying fuel emissions when there is a simple fix, not restricting their fuel choices based on extreme environmental views, policies, and regulations like section 526. In light of increasing competition with other countries for energy and fuel resources, and continued volatility and instability in the Middle East, it is more important than ever for our country to become more energy independent and to further develop and produce our domestic energy resources. Placing limits on Federal agencies', particularly the Defense Department, fuel choices is an unacceptable precedent to set in regard to America's energy policy and independence.

On July 9, 2008, the Pentagon, in a letter to Senator JAMES INHOFE stated: "Such a decision would cause significant harm to the readiness of the Armed Forces because these fuels may be widely used and particularly important in certain geographic areas."

In summary, not only have extreme environmental views and policies created and burdened American families and businesses, but they also cause "significant harm in readiness to the Armed Forces."

Mr. Chairman, section 526 makes our Nation more dependent on Middle Eastern oil. Stopping the impact of section 526 would help us promote American energy, improve the American economy, and create American jobs.

To everyone watching these proceedings today, I would say this: following my remarks, you will hear speakers from the other side of the aisle make several claims regarding the merits of section 526. When you hear these claims, please remember the following facts about section 526: it increases our reliance on Middle Eastern oil. It hurts our military readiness and our national security. It prevents the use of safe, clean, and efficient North American oil and gas. It increases the cost of American food and energy. It hurts American jobs and the American economy.

I urge my colleagues to support passage of this commonsense amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The Department of Defense alone is the largest single energy consumer in the world. Its leadership in this arena is critical to any credible approach to dealing with energy independence issues. Section 526 provides an opportunity for the Federal Government to play a substantial role in spurring the innovation needed to produce alternative fuels which will not further exacerbate global climate change.

This provision has spurred development of advanced biofuels. These fuels are being successfully tested and proven today on U.S. Navy jets at supersonic speeds. It's a testament to American ingenuity. Unfortunately, section 526 is under assault by those who disagree with advanced biofuels production. They'd like us to continue our dependence on the fuels of the past. That's the wrong path to take. It's unsustainable and won't lead to the energy security we need.

I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CONAWAY. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I join my colleague in asking to exempt the Department of Defense from section 526; 526 was added to the energy bill in a wrongheaded move to placate some notion that it would have some impact on global warming. It's wrong to require the Department of Defense in these times, where every single dollar is scarce and every single dollar should have a home, to require them to spend extra money beyond what they would normally spend for fuel for their planes.

This amendment would also allow the continued development of coal-to-liquid jet fuel, which would make this country much less dependent on foreign oil in terms of powering our jets and other engines. So 526, maybe it belongs in the Department of Energy bill, maybe it belongs somewhere else, but it does not belong in the Department of Defense spending bill because those dollars are scarce. They are going to get scarcer. And to require the Department of Defense to spend more money than they would have otherwise have spent on energy under this wrongheaded notion, in my view, is just simply bad policy.

So I rise in support of my colleague's amendment, and I urge the adoption of his amendment when it comes to a vote.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KINGSTON. I support the gentleman's amendment, but I do want to understand one thing in terms of what it does to the military's options of purchasing domestic or even North American fuel. And the reason why I say that is, as I understand, the Department of Defense has three strategies in terms of energy, or using less energy. Number one is to increase the fight, decrease the fuel. Number three is increase the capacity. And then number two—and I am going in this order for a reason—is to increase the fuel options, the choices, to diversify the fuel sources. And it appears to me that 526 has inadvertently eliminated some of the options.

I would like to yield to my friend from Texas (Mr. FLORES) to explain that a little bit further, particularly with respect to domestic energy sources.

Mr. FLORES. Thank you for the chance to provide further weight to this amendment.

It's important to know that much of the oil that we import from the oil sands in Canada winds up being blended in several refined fuels throughout the United States. So if you took a literal reading of section 526, theoretically the military would not be able to use any of those fuels since the oil sands as a source is considered to be banned by section 526.

The oil from Canada from the oil sands is stable North American oil and gas. And it is in large part produced by Americans and creating American jobs. Section 526 would cut off this safe, friendly, stable source of fuel to this country. And my amendment does nothing to restrict the military from looking at all alternative sources of fuel. It allows them to go with biofuels, whatever alternative energy sources they need. It just takes away burdensome restrictions that are based on environmental views that aren't proven.

Mr. KINGSTON. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, what I am concerned about, with 84 million barrels of fuel produced every day, and America only having control of about 3 percent of that, yet consuming 25 percent, wherever we can use a friendly source of fuel is something that we need to keep open as an option.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FLORES).

The amendment was agreed to.

□ 1700

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WELCH

Mr. WELCH. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for tax collection purposes by the Afghan Ministry of Finance.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Georgia reserves a point of order.

The gentleman from Vermont is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELCH. Mr. Chairman, as you know, the American taxpayer is spending $2 billion a week in Afghanistan. Among the expenditures are payment for projects that are rebuilding infrastructure in Afghanistan—roads, bridges, schools, in some cases hospitals.

The Washington Post recently reported that the Afghan Government is taxing American aid. We send the money there to build a road. We have to hire contractors in order to do that, and the Afghan Government is trying to tax that money for their own coffers.

So it's not enough that our taxpayers are spending billions of dollars on projects to rebuild their infrastructure. The Afghan Government is literally trying to reach into the pocket and double dip and tax our taxpayers for our taxpayers' generosity in giving them money. Now, how does that make any sense at all?

Among the things that the Afghan officials are doing, after this was reported, is stepping up their efforts to grab that cash. They are doing things like threatening to detain contractors. If they don't pay up, take money that's assigned to build that road and put that money in the Afghan coffers, they, the Afghan officials, are threatening, Mr. Chairman, to detain our contractors. They are denying licenses to our contractors, again, in an effort to do what I could only call a shakedown.

Third, they are revoking visas for unpaid tax bills. We are spending a substantial amount of our money rebuilding their infrastructure. We should not be taxed, nor should we allow our taxpayers, essentially, to be stuck up by the Afghan officials.

This amendment, offered by my colleague from Washington, Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER, would end that practice.

So we believe this is overdue. There should be no tolerance for this double-dipping by the Afghan Government, and our amendment is an effort to crack down on that process.

I thank my colleague from Washington for joining me in the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI because it requires a new determination.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order? If not, the Chair is prepared to rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language requiring a new determination about the use of funds by a foreign government entity. The amendment, therefore, constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2, rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. We are working on making this amendment something that can be passed as a part of this bill, but I just want to speak in support of it and share part of the reason I am very honored to be working with the gentleman from Vermont on this.

Basically, we are in Afghanistan right now helping to rebuild, or in many cases build from scratch, infrastructure. And when we leave that country—and I do hope it will be soon—we will leave that infrastructure behind. Power grids, water systems, trained law enforcement are the building blocks of a functioning society.

We will spend or have spent hundreds of millions, if not billions, of dollars on improvements meant to better the lives of the people in Afghanistan.

The reason I supported this amendment is we don't need to also be paying taxes to the Afghan Government for the privilege of rebuilding that country, and that's why I cosponsored the amendment.

The Department of Defense funding should be focused on providing soldiers training in the field and on the front lines with the tools they need to protect themselves and defend our country. This amendment would uphold or, as it was offered, as we attempted, would uphold existing law and clarify existing agreements between the U.S. and Afghanistan, prohibiting Afghanistan from taxing U.S. subcontractors doing work in Afghanistan. So this ban on levying taxes would also apply to all subcontractors that may not have direct contracts with Afghanistan.

In other words, if a company is working on a project funded by the U.S. Department of Defense, whether that company is a prime contractor or a subcontractor, that company should not be subject to taxes from the Afghan Government.

It seems pretty simple. These are the contractors doing the work of rebuilding in Afghanistan, helping rebuild the infrastructure and hopefully allowing them to one day thrive independently.

So common sense and financial prudence says the U.S. should not be subject to taxation for the rebuilding efforts it is paying for. That was what we were getting at with this amendment.

Mr. KINGSTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. KINGSTON. I think that the point you have raised is a very valid point and something that is very good discussion matter.

Unfortunately, we believe that it is authorizing on an appropriation, as the Chair has confirmed, but that's probably the concern far more than the philosophical concern.

So I think that if you and the gentleman can work on some other language, make another run at it, I cannot speak for the real chairman of the committee, but I think that there are going to be a number of people who would have sympathies with you because I think you have raised a very valid point.

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. Very good. We will continue to work on this issue, and I thank you for hearing my point.

I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. COLE

Mr. COLE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to implement any rule, regulation, or executive order regarding the disclosure of political contributions that takes effect on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COLE. Mr. Chairman, in April a draft executive order was circulated that would require all companies bidding on Federal contracts to disclose all Federal campaign contributions.

If enacted, this executive order would effectively politicize the Federal procurement process, in my opinion. Companies wouldn't merely be judged by the merits of their past performance, by the capability to do the job, but would also be obviously considered on the basis of who they gave money to or against.

This would clearly chill the constitutionally protected right to donate to political parties, candidates and causes of one's choice; and, I think, frankly, that's exactly what the executive order, proposed executive order, is intended to do.

My amendment would simply prohibit funds from this act being used to implement such an executive order.

It doesn't change existing Federal campaign contribution law in any way.

It doesn't prevent the disclosure of campaign contributions. It simply says we won't spend money from this bill to require campaign contribution information to be submitted along with bids for Federal contracts.

This House has agreed to this concept on three previous occasions: once in the bill, once in an amendment to the Defense Authorization Act, and once in an amendment to the Defense Appropriations Act.

Finally, it's worth noting that Congress has rejected an effort to do exactly what this proposed executive order intends to do when it failed to pass the DISCLOSE Act in 2010.

Mr. Chairman, pay-to-play has no place in the Federal procurement contract, and we should try to keep politics out of the selection of vendors and businesses and contractors to go about doing Federal works. So I would urge the adoption of the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. Our system has been improved by having public disclosure of political contributions. The more the public knows about where the money is coming from, the better off the citizenry is.

The amendment is a legislative attempt to circumvent a draft executive order, which would provide for increased disclosure of the political contributions of government contractors, especially contributions given to third-party entities.

Opposition exists for this effort because some believe this additional information could be used nefariously to create some kind of enemies list, like during the Nixon administration.

□ 1710

They argue that companies should not disclose more information because people in power could misuse that information to retaliate against them. Using the opposition's logic, all campaign disclosures would be bad. Government contractors already disclose contributions and expenditures by their PACs and those who contribute to them. Contributions by the officers and directors of government contractors are also required to be disclosed.

These provisions are fine as they are written. The information is required to be provided already in law. And the executive order that the amendment would circumvent certainly enhances the quality of that information.

Disclosure is good because disclosure of campaign contributions to candidates is good. Disclosure of companies making these disclosures is good. And I just worry that we have a situation here where companies or major entities could make enormous contributions secretly, and that's what we are trying to avoid. And the President's executive order is an attempt to do that. We already know that the Boeings, the Lockheeds, the General Dynamics and the Northrop Grumman all make campaign contributions, and they are all disclosed. What's wrong with disclosure?

I urge a "no" on the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KINGSTON. I accept the amendment because I believe that the things that Mr. DICKS is talking about in this amendment actually do move us in that direction.

I would like to yield to Mr. COLE and ask him to clarify that because I want it confirmed.

Mr. COLE. I would simply say to my good friend from Washington, who I respect frankly as much I do anybody in this Congress, the intent here is to make sure we never link political contributions with the awarding of government contracts. If we want to require additional disclosure, the Congress has it within its ability to do that, and indeed we considered something like this in 2010 and decided it was inappropriate. And that was a time when my friends on the other side of the aisle were in control of both Houses as well the Presidency.

So I understand the concerns, but I think this is an inappropriate way to address them. Number one, the executive order, frankly, is legislating through the back door. If we want to change the campaign contribution laws in the United States, that needs to be done here, not by executive fiat.

And, secondly, to link it with the contracting process is inevitably going to raise questions, create fears and doubt and I think without question chill political speech. So let's just simply keep contracting and the awarding of the contract by the Government of the United States separate from partisan political considerations and contributions. I think we would be better off.

I thank my friend from Georgia for yielding.

Mr. KINGSTON. I thank you.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. ESHOO. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Chairman, I just listened with great curiosity to the comments that were made about the so-called intent of the legislation. I don't see my colleagues on the other side bringing forward legislation that you have the power to pass given the number of votes that you have for full disclosure.

So if you're opposed to a draft executive order, if you're opposed to my coming to the floor and blocking every time I offer an amendment for disclosure in transparency, change it. You were for it before you went against it, the Republicans were. That's what the record is. So I rise in opposition to Representative COLE's amendment which blocks disclosure of contractor political spending.

Now, this is not to create any kind of list. You can come up with all kinds of things about why you're against something and then try to label it. This is about disclosure. This is about sunshine. This is about disinfectant, and you're against it. I think that's a bad place to be. In fact, I think it's the wrong side of history.

The draft of the President's order would require disclosure requirements for contractors who do business with the Federal Government. Now, any business that does business with the Federal Government is paid with taxpayer dollars. Why shouldn't there be transparency, accountability, and disclosure relative to those dollars? This amendment, your amendment, would prohibit disclosure, which I think is the exact wrong thing to do.

We should oppose any amendment—we should oppose any amendment, Republican or Democrat—that's designed to keep the public less informed about what happens to their tax dollars. We know who supports this amendment. It's the American League of Lobbyists, the lobbyists for the lobbyists. Surprise, surprise.

They're trumpeting their opposition to the President's draft order. We should be fighting for the taxpayers, not for the uber-, superlobbyists. What are we here for? We are here for the public interest, for the people. And yet there is an amendment on the floor that would destroy any attempt at disclosure.

Again, I remember when the Republicans supported disclosure. When we wanted contribution limits, Republicans said, no, we need disclosure instead. Now that we are asking for disclosure, you're opposed to it. As I said, you were for it, now you're against it.

The American people were very clear on this late last year when there was a CBS/New York Times poll, and that poll found that 92 percent of Americans support requiring outside groups to disclose how much money they have raised, where it came from and how it was used.

Now we are going directly to taxpayer dollars, those that do business with the Federal Government. It's very simple to disclose. We should be listening to the American people, and I would ask my colleagues to vote against this amendment.

This is a bad amendment. It's not good for the country. It's not good for our system. I don't believe it's why the people sent us here. And of all things to be stomping on and trying to snuff out, disclosure should not be one of them.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 97 OFFERED BY MR. FRANK OF MASSACHUSETTS

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The total amount of appropriations made available by this Act is hereby reduced by $8,500,000,000, not to be derived from amounts of appropriations made available—

- (1) by title I ("Military Personnel");
- (2) under the heading "Defense Health Program" in title VI ("Other Department of Defense Programs"); or
- (3) by title IX ("Overseas Contingency Operations").

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, this is a dangerous amendment. It's kind of a test of whether or not Members of this body believe what they say. Fortunately, I think for all concerned, the oath we take at the beginning of the session does not carry over to specific statements. So the fact that I believe this will probably, unfortunately, show a great gap between what people say and what they vote will have no consequences other than the public knowing it.

We are at a time of austerity. We are at a time when the important programs, valid programs, are being cut back. And we were told by some, everything is on the table, there are no sacred cows, all those metaphors that are supposed to suggest that we will deal with everything. And then we get this appropriation from the Appropriations Committee for the military budget. At a time when we are cutting police officers on the streets of our cities, we are cutting back firefighters, we're cutting back maintenance of highways, of the construction of bridges to replace old bridges, when we are cutting in almost every capacity, the military budget gets a $17 billion increase for this fiscal year to the next.

A $17 billion increase for the military budget simply does not fit with this argument that we are putting everything on the table. Yes, they say they're putting everything on the table, but there is a little bit of a problem with the preposition here—not the proposition, the preposition.

□ 1720

The military budget is not on the table. The military is at the table, and it is eating everybody else's lunch. We are cutting area after area. For example, we have been told by some on the Republican side that we cannot afford to go to the aid of those of our fellow citizens who have been the victims of natural disasters who have suffered enormous physical and, therefore, also psychological damage from tornadoes and floods unless we find the cuts elsewhere. But if we were not increasing the military budget by $17 billion over this year, then there would be no need to do that and you would not have to worry about that aid.

Now, my colleagues, this is co-authored by the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL), the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL), the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT), the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. MOORE). We are being very moderate here. We are not saying don't give the Pentagon any more money. This amendment reduces by 50 percent the increase for the Pentagon. We are accepting $8.5 billion more.

By the way, this, of course, does not affect the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. It just occurred to me, maybe this was said earlier, the budget for Afghanistan, which we refuse to cut, reluctantly, regrettably, was voted out by the committee before the President announced a 10,000 troop reduction. So we are overfunding Afghanistan unless you think the President was kidding when he said we are going to bring down 10,000 troops. We funded 10,000 troops for next year that won't be there in Afghanistan. And that is the problem.

We are saying to the Pentagon, You find it. Don't cut military personnel. Don't cut health, but perhaps some of the bases we maintain overseas, some of the subsidies we give to NATO. Lip service is paid here to an alliance in which they participate.

Unfortunately, Mr. Chairman, I have to say it is true of the Obama administration and the members of the Appropriations Committee and the Armed Services Committee, they are the enablers of one of the great welfare dependencies in the history of the world: the ability of wealthy European nations, 61 years after the foundation of NATO, to get subsidized by America so their military budgets can be a small percentage of ours as percentage of the GDP so they can provide more services, better rail, better health care, and earlier retirement for their own people.

This says to the Pentagon not that we are going to cut you. This gives them a greater than 1 percent increase at a time when everybody else is being cut. And it leaves it up to the Pentagon. Let's look at the bases that we have all over the world. Let's look at efficient procedures. Yes, there is inefficiency.

You cannot mandate efficiency from the outside when you simultaneously give the entity in question the ability to spend without limit. You will never get efficiency, Mr. Chairman, at the Pentagon if we don't begin to subject them to the same kind of fiscal discipline that everybody else gets. And it is undeniable that the Pentagon is a great exception here.

We are going to be telling American cities to continue to lay off cops, to continue to ignore important reconstruction projects that help with transportation. We are going to continue to cut back on firefighters. We are going to continue to quibble over financial disaster relief, but we will give the Pentagon, unless this amendment passes, an additional $17 billion that we cannot afford.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE. I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COLE. Mr. Chairman, I want to offer a somewhat different perspective than my friend from Massachusetts does on the trend line of defense spending.

Looking at the long term, defense spending has actually, over time, come down pretty dramatically as a percent of our gross national product. In 1960, at the height of the Cold War, we spent about 9 percent of the GDP on defense. In 1980 in the great Reagan defense buildup, it was about 6 percent. It fell as low as 3.5 percent on the eve of 9/11. It is barely 5 percent, or in that range, today. So by historical standards, particularly since 1940, we do not spend a large percentage of the national wealth on defense.

By the way, the same thing is true of the Federal budget. In 1960, about 50 percent of the Federal budget was defense spending. It was about 33 percent in 1980. It is about 18 or 19 percent today. Certainly a lot of money, and that is certainly not the only way in which to judge military spending, but if looked at in terms of the size of the Federal budget or the wealth of the country, defense has been, comparatively speaking, a bargain compared to other parts of the budget.

I would also like to point out that, frankly, this Defense Subcommittee and the administration have worked to find additional economies. Secretary Gates made $78 billion in reductions over the next 5 years, and this budget itself is below what the President of the United States asked us to appropriate by $9 billion. In addition, the Secretary has laid out a path for an additional $400 billion worth of savings.

I think most Americans would be shocked to find out we are engaged in two or three wars, depending on how you want to count, with an Army that is almost 40 percent smaller than it was in 1982.

So I yield to no one in terms of trying to find savings in defense, but I think the record ought to be clear: As a percentage of our national wealth, as a percentage of the Federal budget, what we spend on defense has come down. And, frankly, we ought to remember that we are at war; we are in a dangerous situation. This is not the first place to cut, although cut we have. In my opinion, I think it is the last place that we ought to cut.

And the consequences of what my friend proposes, I think, would be terrific. We would be reducing and canceling training for returning troops, canceling Navy training exercises, reducing Air Force flight training, delaying or canceling maintenance of aircraft, ships, and vehicles, and delaying important safety and quality-of-life repairs.

This is not the time for us to embark on additional cuts on top of the restraints in spending that we have already done as a House. I would urge the rejection of my friend's amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite numbers of words.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOLT. I rise in support of the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts.

You know, all of Washington inside the Beltway is abuzz about how much we can save by cutting Federal spending. As the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) said, to us, this amendment is a test. Will we put every Federal agency's budget on the table in our quest to control spending and reduce debt, or are there privileged categories? Will we continue down the path of trying to balance the budget on the backs of the poor, the disabled, schoolchildren, and seniors?

The Pentagon spending bill before us, some $650 billion, nearly two-thirds of a trillion dollars, is about equal to all military spending of all the rest of the world—all of our allies, all of our potential adversaries, and all of those countries that Americans rarely think about all put together.

The amendment that Mr. FRANK and I and some of our colleagues on both sides of the aisle are offering today is truly a modest proposal. It would simply cut the rate of increase in Pentagon spending. Instead of allowing a $17 billion increase over this year's level, it would cut that increase in half just to see if we are willing to do that.

Now, my colleague, Mr. COLE, puts this, I think, in the wrong context. I mean, we should talk about, sure, in 1960 it was a larger part of the budget. That is before we had Medicare, before we had a lot of programs. But when you ask yourself is our military structured to deal with the problems this country faces and to expect from other countries in the world their share of what must be done, the answer surely is this is an unsustainable size.

This amendment was born out of a series of discussions among Mr. FRANK and Mr. PAUL and Mr. JONES and some other Members and I have had over several months. Recently, we sent a joint letter that outlined our concerns about the state of our spending on national security. We point out not only the excessive, unquestioned overall size of military spending, but also that this is a result of the military that is indeed a remnant of the Cold War, to go back to Mr. COLE's comments. And it bears far more than our share of keeping the peace and is still structured to overwhelm the Soviet Union more than to deal with today's actual threats to our security.

To take one example that the cosponsors of this amendment may or may not agree with me on but we might ask: Why do we need a replacement for the B-2 bomber?

□ 1730

It was not the B-2 bomber or any bomber that killed Osama bin Laden. It was U.S. Special Operations. Buying new nuclear bombers would simply be a form, I think, of defense sector corporate welfare to protect against a threat that went away decades ago. I could cite multiple additional disconnects between our defense spending priorities and the actual threats we face.

One that comes to mind is Libya. As we note in our letter, it has been widely reported in the press that England and France have been pressing the United States to resume its earlier role in Libya because they've been unable to assume it themselves. The explanation is that only America has the capacity to respond.

Our point precisely.

We have allowed other nations in the world to grow into an overdependence on America's military and America's tax dollars and the expenditure of American money and lives far beyond what's appropriate for our share of world peacekeeping. All of us who support this amendment want to protect our country. That's precisely why we've offered our proposal and this amendment: To put ourselves on track for a better structured military.

Spending money on cold war-era weapons to wage undeclared wars of choice is clear evidence of misguided, needlessly expensive priorities. If the House cannot even pass an amendment that simply cuts the rate of increase in Pentagon spending, it will never pass amendments that actually make the kinds of cuts that are truly necessary to restructure our defense in order to meet the real threats we face and to achieve the budget savings that we must secure for our financial future.

I urge my colleagues to support this modest first step to rein in our out-of-control defense budget.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I rise in support of the Frank-Holt amendment.

This is a modest amendment. Quite frankly, I wish the cut were greater than the cut being proposed here, because I think everybody in this Chamber knows that there is a great deal of waste and abuse that exists within our military spending. We have no-bid defense contracts. We go right down that road of all the contracts that we've divvied out and how wasteful they've been, and we're still building and preserving weapons systems that are remnants of the cold war that even our Joint Chiefs of Staff don't want. So there is savings to be had within the military.

The other point I want to make is that, when we talk about national security and national strength, we ought to be talking about making sure that the people in this country can earn a decent living. National security should mean jobs. It should mean the strength of our infrastructure, the quality of our education system, which we are neglecting. My friends on the other side of the aisle want to balance the budget by cutting those very programs that, I think, provide our economic strength. When you go home to your districts, the first thing that people want to talk about is jobs. It is economic security.

Why aren't we doing more to create jobs? Why aren't we talking more about jobs here in the Capitol?

So I make those two points because I think this amendment is a modest amendment that moves us in the right direction and that moves this discussion in a better direction.

At this point, Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to the author of the amendment, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. First of all, what we are saying is they get an increase. So, if you vote against this amendment, apparently you believe that they are 101½ percent efficient at the current level, because you're giving them, we would say, a 101½ percent increase. You must believe it's a 103 percent increase, those who vote against this. People pay lip service where there are some inefficiencies, but you will not get at them unless there is some limit to the spending.

I particularly want to address the very odd notion that we should decide what we need to spend on the military today by using as a standard what the situation was 51 years ago. That's the problem. Fifty-one years ago, Germany was divided. The Communists controlled Czechoslovakia and Poland and Hungary and East Germany. Our Western allies were poor, and they were still recovering from 1945. The Soviet Union was very strong. That's precisely the problem. This budget out of the Appropriations Committee and from the administration, which is also incorrect on this, acts as if it were still 1960. The fact is that it is no longer appropriate for the rest of the world to expect us to put out so much of the burden. That's what the issue is.

The gentleman from Oklahoma said, oh, well, we'll have to cut this here and that there.

Why? Why don't we cut some of the money we spend in Europe, in Japan and in other wealthy and secure nations?

This amendment tells the Pentagon, You're only going to get half of the $17 billion increase on top of the $500 billion-plus you already get. You decide where to stop spending.

Well, are they able to stop spending overseas?

Foreign aid is very unpopular. I think unduly unpopular. I like to help poor children and to fight disease, but the biggest foreign aid program in the history of the world is the American military budget and its foreign aid for the un-needy, its foreign aid for the wealthy. You want to talk about percentages of the GDP that are in the budget. What about Germany? What about England? What about France? What about Italy? What about Denmark? What about the Netherlands? All are our great allies, and none spend as much as half a percentage as we do.

So what we now have here, apparently, the House is going to decide. When Members have said that the Pentagon should be subjected to fiscal discipline and that other needs will be taken into account and that the deficit is the greatest threat to national security—people have quoted Mike Mullen as saying that and Robert Gates as saying that—do the Members understand what it means? It means that you don't even cut the Pentagon, that you don't even level fund them, but you don't give them $17 billion additional. You give them $8.5 billion at a time when you are requiring cuts in very important programs.

I will reemphasize that this is a House which says we can't afford to go to the aid of our fellow citizens who have been devastated by disasters in the southeastern part of the country and elsewhere unless we make offsetting cuts. Well, to the extent that you give the Pentagon an additional $17 billion, you exacerbate that dilemma, and you make it harder to find the funds necessary to go to the aid of the people in this area.

Yes, we want to keep the American people safe. I want to keep them safe from unsound bridges, from fires that can't be effectively combated, from food that isn't adequately tested, and from diseases. People are unsafe because we are cutting back on health research.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. Mr. Chair, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Indiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

The notion that the only danger to the American people is a Soviet Union which collapsed 20 years ago or whatever it is we are protecting people from in Germany and other bases such as that ignores the need for better public safety here, better public health here, research on disease, protection against disaster. It's one thing to go to the aid of people after a disaster, but let's do a better job of building those structures that can help diminish it.

This is a central question: Are the Members of the House going to say, "No, we didn't really mean it? No, the Pentagon is not subject to fiscal discipline"?

My friend from Oklahoma said, oh, no, there were cuts; there's $78 billion in cuts coming over the next 5 years. This is a $17 billion increase. How can that be a cut? It may be a cut from a $30 billion increase, and that $30 billion increase is a cut from a $200 billion increase, but it ain't a cut. It's a $17 billion increase, and we say let it only be an $8.5 billion increase.

So the question is not are we going to treat the Pentagon more generously with less discipline than any other entity. We've conceded that. We're only asking that you cut in half the extent to which you are going to tell American cities to lay off cops, that you're going to say that we don't have enough to provide disaster relief without making cuts elsewhere, that you're going to cut health research, that you're going to cut food inspection, that you're going to cut fire service, that you're going to cut the reconstruction of bridges in America.

Tens and tens of billions will be spent in Western Europe and on our allies that needed our help 61 years ago and 51 years ago but who don't need it today—in Japan and in other parts of the world where we're subsidizing their military budgets so they can spend more elsewhere.

By the way, let me close with this: We talk about competition and things that count—our ability to spend money on community colleges, to provide aid so that people can become scientists and engineers, our ability to develop technology. All of those things are hampered by the drain on resources we get from spending military dollars in precisely those countries with which we are competing. England and Germany and France and the Netherlands and Denmark and Japan can all spend more on their education and on their technology—on those areas where we are competitive in a friendly way because we allow them to keep their military budgets to a much lower percentage of GDP than ours, and that is the relevant measure.

□ 1740

So we again have a test: Are Members so caught up in the history—and again, I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for helping make the point; 1960 is his reference point. Well, stay with the concerns of 1960 and use that as a reference point and things are not going to look very good in 2011.

I thank my colleague from Indiana for yielding.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I'm having a hard time believing what I'm hearing in this Chamber when it comes to national defense. You don't get a bookkeeper or an accountant to make some sleight-of-hand number to come up with a defense number. That's not how you do it. The way you do it is decide what is the threat; what is threatening America, what is threatening our allies overseas, what is threatening our troops or our businesses around the world? Decide what that threat is, and then decide how we're going to meet that threat. That's how you come up with a defense number.

Just imagine we are going back to the good old days of just slashing defense, gutting the victory fund, and the hangars were full of hangar queens—hangar queens being airplanes that can't fly because they don't have engines or they don't have parts. And in order to make one airplane fly, they had to cannibalize two or three others to get enough parts to make one airplane fly. Well, if you need three or four airplanes in the air but only one flies, somebody is in trouble. We don't want to go back to the days of a hangar queen, the "hollow force" so-called.

And what about the troops out in combat facing a vicious enemy, and they get to the point where they haven't really experienced what they are about to experience because we didn't get that far in our training because the training was curtailed? When you start cutting back the money, you start cutting back the training, you start cutting back the flying hours, you start cutting back the ability of that soldier to reach out and say, hey, I know exactly how to do this because I was trained properly. Don't cut the training, don't do it. Don't cut our readiness by cutting training. Don't cut our readiness by having hangars full of hangar queens that can't fly or by having garages full of vehicles that can't run because of a lack of spare parts.

This is just not good defense. You don't make your defense decisions based on some magical scheme or some solution that an accountant might come up with. You had better be very careful about what the threat is. We don't want any more Pearl Harbors; we don't want any more U.S. World Trades on 9/11; we don't want any more attacks on the Pentagon. We were not well enough prepared there with our intelligence. We need to make sure that we invest enough in intelligence to make sure that we stop those things before they happen.

Defense is not something to play games with. Defense is not something to stand up and say, hey, I'm a cost-cutter. All of us are cost-cutters in our own way; some of us just have different priorities for what costs ought to be cut.

Mr. Chairman, this is a very important amendment. This subcommittee did a very good job in reducing and saving over $9 billion on this bill alone. This is a terrible amendment. I hope that we overwhelmingly defeat this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FORTENBERRY

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. II. None of the funds made available by this Act for international military education and training, foreign military financing, excess defense articles, assistance under section 1206 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006 (Public Law (109-163; 119 Stat. 3456), issuance for direct commercial sales of military equipment, or peacekeeping operations for the countries of Chad, Yemen, Somalia, Sudan, Democratic Republic of the Congo, and Burma may be used to support any military training or operations that include child soldiers, as defined by the Child Soldiers Prevention Act of 2008, and except if such assistance is otherwise permitted under section 404 of the Child Soldiers Prevention Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-457; 22 U.S.C. 2370c-1).

Mr. FORTENBERRY (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with further reading of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Nebraska is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Chairman, in 2008, this body declared that the United States would not provide military assistance to countries found guilty of using child soldiers. With broad bipartisan support, we declared that this is an affront to human dignity and an affront to civilization itself, and we reaffirmed this policy earlier this year in the continuing resolution.

It is the policy of our Nation that children—all children, no matter where they are—belong on playgrounds and not battlegrounds, Mr. Chairman. But that policy is at risk, and this body has an important decision to make. Six governments were found guilty of using child soldiers in 2010—Burma, Chad, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Somalia, Sudan, and Yemen. As the law we passed provided, four were granted national security interest waivers last year in the hopes, Mr. Chairman, that they would take serious and aggressive strides toward ending this serious human rights violation. Somalia was also permitted to continue receiving peacekeeping assistance, effectively sanctioning only Burma, a country to which we provided no military assistance anyway.

Mr. Chairman, this administration has been heavily criticized for this decision. And it is no surprise that in the newly released 2011 child soldiers report, the same six countries were listed as violators once again. Mr. Chairman, we must ask, where is the progress? The 2011 report needs to stand as a challenge to President Obama, the administration, and this Congress as well. We are operating inconsistently, obligated by law and civilized order itself to combat this most serious human rights violation—especially prevalent in the world's ungoverned spaces—but we continue with military assistance, with inattentiveness to stopping the pernicious use of child soldiers.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment reaffirms current U.S. policy, lest we forget it. In the 2011 continuing resolution, we extended the Child Soldiers Prevention Act to cover peacekeeping operations, and my amendment is consistent with this. It also clarifies a point of law not mentioned in the Child Soldiers Prevention Act. Section 1206 of the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2006 provides the Department of Defense the authority to train and equip foreign military forces. But according to its own terms and the State Department, section 1206 authorities may not be used to provide any type of equipment, supplies, or training that is otherwise prohibited by any other provision of law.

Mr. Chairman, children in these countries are being preyed upon, innocent lives are being lost, children are being thrown into psychological hell. Girl soldiers and some boys are being subjected to grotesque sexual slavery and violence. They are property. Their lives are not their own. They are battered, beaten, victimized, stripped of dignity, hope, and a future, made to do unfathomable things by the world's worst criminals.

Mr. Chairman, these criminals just aren't faceless rebels in the bush either. While there are plenty of those, we are talking now about governments that are guilty of this pernicious practice. And we need to make it clear: Are we going to tolerate this or not? William Wilberforce, the British statesman and unyielding abolitionist for whom our anti-human trafficking law is named, once said this: "You may choose to look the other way, but you can never again say that you did not know."

□ 1750

We must make it clear to these governments that we do now know and that we cannot look the other way, Mr. Chairman. With that, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word to express support for this good amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. FORTENBERRY).

The amendment was agreed to.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

Amendment No. 2 by Mr. RIGELL of Virginia.

Amendment No. 61 by Ms. FOXX of North Carolina.

An amendment by Mr. MULVANEY of South Carolina.

Amendment No. 8 by Mr. SHERMAN of California.

An amendment by Mr. ROHRBACHER of California.

An amendment by Mr. GOHMERT of Texas.

An amendment by Mr. WELCH of Vermont.

Amendment No. 4 by Mr. COLE of Oklahoma.

Amendment No. 97 by Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts.

The Chair will reduce to 2 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. RIGELL

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. RIGELL) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 176, noes 249, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 515]

AYES—176

Adams	Gibson	Mica
Akin	Gingrey (GA)	Michaud
Amash	Gohmert	Miller (FL)
Bachmann	Gonzalez	Miller (MI)
Baldwin	Goodlatte	Moore
Bass (NH)	Gosar	Mulvaney
Benishek	Gowdy	Nadler
Berg	Graves (GA)	Napolitano
Bilirakis	Graves (MO)	Neugebauer
Bishop (UT)	Griffin (AR)	Noem
Boustany	Grijalva	Nugent
Braley (IA)	Guinta	Palazzo
Brooks	Hall	Pastor (AZ)
Broun (GA)	Hanabusa	Paul
Buchanan	Hanna	Paulsen
Bucshon	Harris	Pearce
Buerkle	Hastings (WA)	Peterson
Burgess	Heck	Petri
Burton (IN)	Herrera Beutler	Pingree (ME)
Campbell	Himes	Pitts
Capito	Hinchey	Poe (TX)
Capuano	Honda	Pompeo
Chaffetz	Huelskamp	Posey
Cicilline	Huizenga (MI)	Price (GA)
Clarke (MI)	Hultgren	Quigley
Clarke (NY)	Hurt	Reed
Clay	Jackson (IL)	Reichert
Cleaver	Johnson (IL)	Renacci
Coble	Jones	Ribble
Cole	Jordan	Richardson
Conyers	Keating	Rigell
Costello	Kingston	Roe (TN)
Cummings	Kucinich	Rohrabacher
Davis (IL)	Labrador	Rokita
Davis (KY)	Landry	Rooney
DeFazio	Lankford	Roskam
Denham	Latham	Ross (FL)
DesJarlais	Latta	Royce
Duffy	Lee (CA)	Rush
Duncan (SC)	LoBiondo	Sanchez, Loretta
Duncan (TN)	Long	Schilling
Emerson	Lummis	Schmidt
Farenthold	Lynch	Schweikert
Fincher	Mack	Scott (SC)
Fitzpatrick	Maloney	Scott (VA)
Flake	Manzullo	Scott, Austin
Fleming	Markey	Sensenbrenner
Flores	McClintock	Serrano
Foxx	McGovern	Sessions
Frank (MA)	McHenry	Sherman
Gardner	McKinley	Smith (NJ)
Garrett	McMorris	Southerland
Gibbs	Rodgers	Stearns

Stutzman
Sullivan
Thompson (PA)
Tiberi
Tipton
Upton

Visclosky
Walberg
Walsh (IL)
Waters
West
Westmoreland

Wilson (SC)
Woodall
Woolsey
Wu
Yoder
Young (AK)

NOES—249

Ackerman	Frelinghuysen	Neal
Aderholt	Fudge	Nunes
Alexander	Gallely	Nunnelee
Altmire	Garamendi	Olson
Andrews	Gerlach	Olver
Austria	Granger	Owens
Baca	Green, Al	Pallone
Bachus	Green, Gene	Pascarell
Barletta	Griffith (VA)	Pelosi
Barrow	Grimm	Pence
Bartlett	Guthrie	Perlmutter
Barton (TX)	Gutierrez	Peters
Bass (CA)	Harper	Platts
Becerra	Hartzler	Polis
Berkley	Hastings (FL)	Price (NC)
Berman	Hayworth	Quayle
Biggert	Heinrich	Rahall
Bilbray	Hensarling	Rangel
Bishop (GA)	Hergert	Rehberg
Bishop (NY)	Higgins	Reyes
Black	Hirono	Richmond
Blackburn	Hochul	Rivera
Blumenauer	Holden	Roby
Bonner	Holt	Rogers (AL)
Bono Mack	Hoyer	Rogers (KY)
Boren	Hunter	Rogers (MI)
Boswell	Inslie	Ros-Lehtinen
Brady (PA)	Israel	Ross (AR)
Brady (TX)	Issa	Rothman (NJ)
Brown (FL)	Jackson Lee	Roybal-Allard
Butterfield	(TX)	Runyan
Calvert	Jenkins	Ruppersberger
Camp	Johnson (GA)	Ryan (OH)
Canseco	Johnson (OH)	Ryan (WI)
Cantor	Johnson, E. B.	Sánchez, Linda
Capps	Johnson, Sam	T.
Cardoza	Kaptur	Sarbanes
Carnahan	Kelly	Scalise
Carney	Kildee	Schakowsky
Carson (IN)	Kind	Schiff
Carter	King (IA)	Schock
Cassidy	King (NY)	Kinzinger (IL)
Castor (FL)	Kinzie	Scott, David
Chabot	Kissell	Sewell
Chandler	Kline	Shimkus
Chu	Lamborn	Shuler
Clyburn	Lance	Shuster
Coffman (CO)	Langevin	Simpson
Cohen	Larsen (WA)	Sires
Conaway	Larson (CT)	Slaughter
Connolly (VA)	LaTourette	Smith (NE)
Cooper	Levin	Smith (TX)
Costa	Lewis (CA)	Smith (WA)
Courtney	Lewis (GA)	Speier
Cravaack	Lipinski	Stark
Crawford	Loeback	Stivers
Crenshaw	Lofgren, Zoe	Sutton
Critz	Lowe	Terry
Crowley	Lucas	Thompson (CA)
Cuellar	Luetkemeyer	Thompson (MS)
Davis (CA)	Luján	Thornberry
DeGette	Lungren, Daniel	Tierney
DeLauro	E.	Tonko
Dent	Marchant	Tsongas
Deutch	Marino	Turner
Diaz-Balart	Matheson	Van Hollen
Dicks	Matsui	Velázquez
Dingell	McCarthy (CA)	Walden
Doggett	McCarthy (NY)	Walz (MN)
Dold	McCauley	Wasserman
Donnelly (IN)	McCollum	Schultz
Doyle	McCotter	Watt
Dreier	McDermott	Waxman
Edwards	McIntyre	Webster
Ellison	McKeon	Whitfield
Ellmers	McNerney	Wilson (FL)
Engel	Meehan	Wittman
Eshoo	Meeks	Wolf
Farr	Miller (NC)	Womack
Fattah	Miller, Gary	Yarmuth
Filner	Miller, George	Young (FL)
Fleischmann	Moran	Young (IN)
Forbes	Murphy (CT)
Fortenberry	Murphy (PA)
Franks (AZ)	Myrick

NOT VOTING—6

Culberson Hinojosa Schrader
Giffords Payne Towns

□ 1818

Mrs. BONO MACK, Ms. ZOE LOFGREN of California, and Messrs. CRAVAACK, NEAL, AL GREEN of Texas, TIERNEY, CROWLEY, and BARLETTA changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Ms. HANABUSA, Ms. MOORE, and Messrs. GARRETT of New Jersey, GONZALEZ, SHERMAN, GRIJALVA, HARRIS, GRAVES of Missouri, CONYERS, MILLER of Florida, SULLIVAN, and BILIRAKIS changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated against:

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Chair, on rollcall No. 515, had I been present, I would have voted “no.”

AMENDMENT NO. 61 OFFERED BY MS. FOXX

The Acting CHAIR (Mr. MACK). The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 248, noes 175, not voting 8, as follows:

[Roll No. 516]

AYES—248

Adams Calvert Fincher
Aderholt Camp Fitzpatrick
Akin Campbell Flake
Alexander Canseco Fleischmann
Altmire Capito Fleming
Amash Carter Flores
Austria Cassidy Forbes
Bachmann Chabot Fortenberry
Bachus Chaffetz Foxx
Barletta Chandler Franks (AZ)
Barrow Coble Frelinghuysen
Bartlett Coffman (CO)
Barton (TX) Cole
Bass (NH) Conaway
Benishek Costello
Berg Cravaack
Bilbray Crawford
Bilirakis Crenshaw
Bishop (GA) Gohmert
Bishop (UT) Guellar
Black Davis (KY)
Blackburn Denham
Bonner Dent
Boren DesJarlais
Boustany Dold
Brady (TX) Donnelly (IN)
Brooks Dreier
Broun (GA) Duffy
Buchanan Duncan (SC)
Bueshon Duncan (TN)
Buerkle Ellmers
Burgess Emerson
Burton (IN) Farenthold

Hartzler
Hastings (WA)
Heck
Hensarling
Herger
Herrera Beutler
Holden
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Issa
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Jordan
Kelly
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Lance
Landry
Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lewis (CA)
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Long
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
Matheson
McCarthy (CA)
McCaul
McClintock

ACKERMAN

Andrews
Baca
Baldwin
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berkley
Berman
Biggert
Bishop (NY)
Blumenauer
Bono Mack
Brady (PA)
Braley (IA)
Brown (FL)
Butterfield
Capps
Capuano
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Castor (FL)
Chu
Cicilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Critz
Himes
Cleaver
Clyburn
Cohen
Connolly (VA)
Conyers
Cooper
Costa
Courtney
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette

NOES—175

DeLauro
Deutch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Doyle
Edwards
Ellison
Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Frank (MA)
Fudge
Garamendi
Gonzalez
Green, Al
Grijalva
Gutierrez
Hanabusa
Hanna
Hastings (FL)
Hayworth
Heinrich
Higgins
Himes
Hinchev
Hinojosa
Hirono
Hochul
Holt
Honda
Hoyer
Inslee
Israël
Jackson (IL)
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Johnson (GA)
Johnson, E. B.

McCotter
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller, Gary
Mulvaney
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Palazzo
Paul
Paulsen
Pearce
Pence
Peterson
Petri
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quayle
Rahall
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Ribble
Rigell
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney

Ackerman
Andrews
Baca
Baldwin
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berkley
Berman
Biggert
Bishop (NY)
Blumenauer
Bono Mack
Brady (PA)
Braley (IA)
Brown (FL)
Butterfield
Capps
Capuano
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Castor (FL)
Chu
Cicilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Critz
Himes
Cleaver
Clyburn
Cohen
Connolly (VA)
Conyers
Cooper
Costa
Courtney
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette

Pingree (ME)
Polis
Price (NC)
Quigley
Rangel
Reyes
Richardson
Richmond
Ros-Lehtinen
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Sanchez, Linda
T.
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes

Cantor
Cardoza
Culberson

□ 1822

So the amendment was agreed to. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MULVANEY

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. MULVANEY) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 135, noes 290, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 517]

AYES—135

Amash Fattah LaTourette
Baldwin Filner Lee (CA)
Barton (TX) Flake Lofgren, Zoe
Bass (NH) Foxx Mack
Benishek Frank (MA) Maloney
Bishop (NY) Fudge Manzullo
Blumenauer Garrett McClintock
Boswell Gibson McGovern
Brady (PA) Goodlatte McHenry
Brady (TX) Gosar Michaud
Braley (IA) Gowdy Miller, Gary
Broun (GA) Graves (GA) Miller, George
Buerkle Green, Gene Mulvaney
Burgess Griffith (VA) Murphy (CT)
Campbell Gutierrez Murphy (PA)
Capuano Hastings (FL) Myrick
Cardoza Hensarling Nadler
Chabot Herrera Beutler Napolitano
Chaffetz Himes Neal
Chu Hinchey Olver
Clarke (MI) Holt Pallone
Clarke (NY) Honda Paul
Clay Huelskamp Perlmutter
Coble Huizenga (MI) Peters
Costello Hurt Pitts
Crowley Inslee Polis
Cummings Jackson (IL) Quigley
DeFazio Johnson (IL) Rahall
DeGette Johnson (OH) Rangel
Doyle Jordan Reed
Duffy Keating Renacci
Duncan (SC) Kind Ribble
Duncan (TN) Kucinich Richardson
Emerson Labrador Rohrabacher
Farr Landry Rokita

Ross (FL)
Royce
Ryan (OH)
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schrader
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Sensenbrenner

Serrano
Sessions
Slaughter
Southernland
Stark
Stearns
Stivers
Stutzman
Sutton
Thompson (CA)

Tierney
Tonko
Van Hollen
Velázquez
Walsh (IL)
Welch
Woodall
Woolsey
Wu
Yoder

Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Sullivan
Terry

Thompson (MS)
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tipton
Tsongas
Turner
Upton
Visclosky
Walberg
Walden
Walsh (MN)
Wasserman
Schultz
Waters
Watt

Waxman
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (FL)
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Yarmuth
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

Goodlatte
Gosar
Gowdy
Graves (GA)
Green, Gene
Griffin (AR)
Griffith (VA)
Grijalva
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Gutierrez
Hall
Hanabusa
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (FL)
Heck
Heinrich
Hensarling
Herrera Beutler
Himes
Hinchee
Hinojosa
Hirono
Holden
Holt
Honda
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Inslee
Jackson (IL)
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones
Jordan
Kaptur
Keating
Kildee
Kingston
Kline
Kucinich
Labrador
Langevin
Lankford
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lee (CA)
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Loeb sack
Lofgren, Zoe
Lucas
Lujan
Lummis
Lynch

Mack
Maloney
Manzullo
Marchant
Markey
McCarthy (CA)
McClintock
McGovern
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McMorris
Rodgers
Mica
Michaud
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Miller, George
Moore
Mulvaney
Murphy (CT)
Myrick
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Neugebauer
Nugent
Nunnelee
Palazzo
Pallone
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paul
Paulsen
Pearce
Pelosi
Pence
Peters
Petri
Pingree (ME)
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quigley
Rangel
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Ribble
Richardson
Rigell
Roe (TN)
Rogers (KY)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Woodall
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Runyan
Rush
Ryan (OH)

Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schilling
Schmidt
Schrader
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sessions
Sewell
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuster
Simpson
Slaughter
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Southernland
Speier
Stark
Stearns
Stutzman
Sullivan
Sutton
Terry
Thompson (PA)
Tiberi
Tierney
Petri
Tipton
Tonko
Tsongas
Turner
Upton
Velázquez
Visclosky
Walberg
Walden
Walsh (IL)
Waters
Watt
Waxman
Webster
Welch
West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (FL)
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Woodall
Woolsey
Wu
Yarmuth
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

NOES—290

Ackerman
Adams
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Altmire
Andrews
Austria
Baca
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berg
Berkley
Berman
Biggert
Billbray
Bilirakis
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (UT)
Black
Blackburn
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boren
Boustany
Brooks
Brown (FL)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Burton (IN)
Butterfield
Calvert
Camp
Canseco
Cantor
Capito
Capps
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Carter
Cassidy
Castor (FL)
Chandler
Cicilline
Cleaver
Clyburn
Coffman (CO)
Cohen
Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Cooper
Costa
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
Davis (KY)
DeLauro
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Deutch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dold
Donnelly (IN)
Dreier
Edwards
Ellison
Ellmers

Engel
Eshoo
Farenthold
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Garamendi
Gardner
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gingrey (GA)
Gohmert
Gonzalez
Granger
Graves (MO)
Green, Al
Griffin (AR)
Grijalva
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanabusa
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Heinrich
Herger
Higgins
Hinojosa
Hirono
Hochul
Holden
Hoyer
Hultgren
Hunter
Israel
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Jenkins
Johnson (GA)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Kaptur
Kelly
Kildee
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Lamborn
Lance
Langevin
Lankford
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
Latta
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Loeb sack
Long
Lowey
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lujan

Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Lynch
Marchant
Marino
Markey
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (CA)
McCarthy (NY)
McCaul
McCullum
McCotter
McDermott
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
McNerney
Meehan
Meeks
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Moore
Moran
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pearce
Pelosi
Pence
Peterson
Petri
Pingree (ME)
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Price (NC)
Quayle
Rehberg
Reichert
Reyes
Richardson
Rigell
Rivera
Robby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes
Schiff
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock
Scott (VA)

NOT VOTING—6

Giffords
Issa
Payne
Townes

□ 1827

Ms. SUTTON changed her vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. SHERMAN

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 316, noes 111, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 518]

AYES—316

Adams
Akin
Alexander
Amash
Andrews
Austria
Bachmann
Bachus
Baldwin
Barletta
Bartlett
Bass (CA)
Bass (NH)
Becerra
Benishek
Berg
Bilirakis
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (NY)
Bishop (UT)
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boswell
Boustany
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Braley (IA)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Brown (FL)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Buerkle
Burgess
Burton (IN)
Butterfield

Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Capito
Capps
Capuano
Carnahan
Carney
Cassidy
Castor (FL)
Chabot
Chaffetz
Chu
Cicilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Cleaver
Coble
Coffman (CO)
Cohen
Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Conyers
Costello
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Davis (IL)
Davis (KY)
DeFazio
DeGette
Denham
Dent

DesJarlais
Deutch
Doggett
Dold
Doyle
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Edwards
Ellison
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Foxy
Frank (MA)
Franks (AZ)
Fudge
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gibson
Gingrey (GA)
Gonzalez

DesJarlais
Deutch
Doggett
Dold
Doyle
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Edwards
Ellison
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Foxy
Frank (MA)
Franks (AZ)
Fudge
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gibson
Gingrey (GA)
Gonzalez

NOES—111

Ackerman
Aderholt
Altmire
Baca
Barrow
Barton (TX)
Berkley
Berman
Biggert
Billbray
Black
Blackburn
Blumenauer
Boren
Canseco
Cantor
Cardoza
Carson (IN)
Carter
Chandler
Clyburn
Cooper

Costa
Courtney
Crowley
Hochul
Hoyer
Israel
Issa
Johnson (GA)
Johnson, Sam
Kelly
Kind
Donnelly (IN)
Dreier
Engel
Eshoo
Frelinghuysen
Garamendi
Gohmert
Granger
Graves (MO)
Green, Al
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth

Herger
Higgins
Hochul
Hoyer
Israel
Issa
Johnson (GA)
Johnson, Sam
Kelly
Kind
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Lamborn
Lance
Levin
Long
Lowey
Luetkemeyer
Lungren, Daniel
E.

Marino	Olson	Ruppersberger	Barton (TX)	Gerlach	McHenry	Smith (NJ)	Tsongas	Welch
Matheson	Oliver	Schiff	Bass (CA)	Gibbs	McIntyre	Smith (TX)	Turner	Westmoreland
Matsui	Owens	Schock	Becerra	Gingrey (GA)	McKeon	Smith (WA)	Upton	Whitfield
McCarthy (NY)	Perlmutter	Scott, David	Berg	Gonzalez	McKinley	Speier	Van Hollen	Wilson (FL)
McCaul	Peterson	Shuler	Berkley	Goodlatte	McMorris	Stearns	Velazquez	Wilson (SC)
McCollum	Polis	Sires	Berman	Gosar	Rodgers	Stivers	Visclosky	Wittman
McCotter	Price (NC)	Stivers	Biggert	Granger	McNerney	Sullivan	Walberg	Wolf
McDermott	Quayle	Thompson (CA)	Bilbray	Graves (MO)	Meehan	Sutton	Walden	Womack
McKinley	Rahall	Thompson (MS)	Bilirakis	Green, Al	Meeks	Terry	Walz (MN)	Woolsey
McNerney	Reyes	Thornberry	Bishop (GA)	Green, Gene	Mica	Thompson (CA)	Wasserman	Wu
Meehan	Richmond	Van Hollen	Bishop (NY)	Griffin (AR)	Miller (FL)	Thompson (MS)	Schultz	Yarmuth
Meeks	Rivera	Walz (MN)	Bishop (UT)	Griffith (VA)	Miller (MI)	Thornberry	Waters	Young (FL)
Moran	Roby	Wasserman	Blackburn	Grimm	Miller (NC)	Tierney	Watt	Young (IN)
Murphy (PA)	Rogers (AL)	Schultz	Bonner	Guthrie	Miller, Gary	Tipton	Waxman
Noem	Rogers (MI)	Yoder	Bono Mack	Gutierrez	Miller, George	Tonko	Webster
Nunes	Ros-Lehtinen		Boren	Hall	Moore
			Boswell	Hanabusa	Moran
			Boustany	Hanna	Murphy (CT)
			Brady (PA)	Harper	Murphy (PA)
			Brady (TX)	Hartzler	Myrick
			Brown (FL)	Hastings (FL)	Nadler
			Bucshon	Hastings (WA)	Neal
			Buerkle	Hayworth	Neugebauer
			Burgess	Heinrich	Noem
			Burton (IN)	Hensarling	Nunes
			Butterfield	Herger	Nunnelee
			Calvert	Himes	Olson
			Camp	Hinchee	Oliver
			Canseco	Hinojosa	Owens
			Cantor	Hirono	Palazzo
			Capito	Holden	Palasore
			Capps	Holt	Pastor (AZ)
			Capuano	Hoyer	Paulsen
			Carnahan	Huelskamp	Pelosi
			Carney	Huizenga (MI)	Pence
			Carson (IN)	Hunter	Perlmutter
			Carter	Hurt	Peters
			Cassidy	Inslee	Peterson
			Castor (FL)	Israel	Pingree (ME)
			Chabot	Issa	Pitts
			Chaffetz	Jackson Lee	Platts
			Chandler	(TX)	Polis
			Chu	Jenkins	Pompeo
			Ciilline	Johnson (GA)	Price (NC)
			Clarke (NY)	Johnson (OH)	Quayle
			Clyburn	Johnson, E. B.	Quigley
			Coffman (CO)	Johnson, Sam	Rahall
			Cole	Jones	Rangel
			Conaway	Kaptur	Reed
			Connolly (VA)	Kelly	Rehberg
			Cooper	Kildee	Reichert
			Costa	Kind	Reyes
			Costello	King (IA)	Ribble
			Courtney	King (NY)	Richardson
			Cravaack	Kingston	Richmond
			Crawford	Kinzinger (IL)	Rigell
			Crenshaw	Kissell	Rivera
			Critz	Kline	Roby
			Crowley	Labrador	Roe (TN)
			Cuellar	Lamborn	Rogers (AL)
			Cummings	Lance	Rogers (KY)
			Davis (CA)	Langevin	Rogers (MI)
			Davis (IL)	Lankford	Ros-Lehtinen
			Davis (KY)	Larsen (WA)	Roskam
			DeGette	Larson (CT)	Ross (AR)
			DeLauro	Latham	Ross (FL)
			Denham	Latta	Rothman (NJ)
			Dent	Levin	Roybal-Allard
			Deutch	Lewis (CA)	Runyan
			Diaz-Balart	Lewis (GA)	Ruppersberger
			Dicks	Lipinski	Rush
			Dingell	Loebsack	Ryan (WI)
			Dold	Lofgren, Zoe	Sanchez, Linda
			Donnelly (IN)	Lowey	T.
			Doyle	Lucas	Sanchez, Loretta
			Dreier	Luetkemeyer	Sarbanes
			Edwards	Lujan	Scalise
			Ellison	Lummis	Schakowsky
			Sensenbrenner	Lungren, Daniel	Schiff
			Simpson	E.	Schmidt
			Southerland	Engel	Schock
			Stark	Eshoo	Schwartz
			Stutzman	Farr	Scott (SC)
			Thompson (PA)	Fattah	Scott (VA)
				Fitzpatrick	Scott, Austin
				Flake	Scott, David
				Fleischmann	Serrano
				Fleming	Sessions
				Flores	Sewell
				Forbes	Sherman
				Fortenberry	Shimkus
				Franks (AZ)	Shuler
				Frelinghuysen	Shuster
				Fudge	Smith (NE)
				Galleghy
				Garamendi
				Gardner

NOT VOTING—4

Culberson
Giffords

□ 1832

Mr. SMITH of Texas changed his vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROHRABACHER

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 89, noes 338, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 519]

AYES—89

Adams	Foxx	Nugent
Amash	Frank (MA)	Pallone
Baldwin	Garrett	Paul
Barletta	Gibson	Pearce
Bass (NH)	Gohmert	Petri
Benishkek	Gowdy	Poe (TX)
Black	Graves (GA)	Posey
Blumenauer	Grijalva	Price (GA)
Brale (IA)	Guinta	Renacci
Brooks	Harris	Rohrabacher
Broun (GA)	Heck	Rokita
Buchanan	Herrera Beutler	Rooney
Campbell	Higgins	Royce
Cardoza	Hochul	Ryan (OH)
Clarke (MI)	Honda	Schilling
Clay	Hultgren	Schrader
Cleaver	Jackson (IL)	Schweikert
Coble	Johnson (IL)	Sensenbrenner
Cohen	Jordan	Simpson
Conyers	Keating	Southerland
DeFazio	Kucinich	Stark
DesJarlais	Landry	Stutzman
Doggett	LaTourette	Thompson (PA)
Duffy	Lee (CA)	Tiberi
Duncan (SC)	LoBiondo	Walsh (IL)
Duncan (TN)	Long	West
Emerson	McClintock	Woodall
Farenthold	Michaud	Yoder
Finer	Mulvaney	Young (AK)
Fincher	Napolitano

NOES—338

Ackerman	Altmire	Bachmann
Aderholt	Andrews	Bachus
Akin	Austria	Barrow
Alexander	Baca	Bartlett

NOT VOTING—4

Culberson
Giffords

□ 1836

Mr. COHEN changed his vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GOHMERT

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMERT) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 162, noes 265, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 520]

AYES—162

Adams	Farenthold	Jordan
Akin	Fincher	Kingston
Amash	Fitzpatrick	Kucinich
Bachmann	Flake	Labrador
Baldwin	Fleming	Landry
Barton (TX)	Flores	Lankford
Bass (NH)	Foxx	Larson (CT)
Benishkek	Gardner	Latham
Bilbray	Garrett	LaTourette
Bishop (UT)	Gibbs	Latta
Boustany	Gibson	Lee (CA)
Brale (IA)	Gingrey (GA)	Lewis (GA)
Brooks	Gohmert	LoBiondo
Broun (GA)	Gonzalez	Long
Buchanan	Goodlatte	Lummis
Bucshon	Gosar	Lynch
Buerkle	Gowdy	Mack
Burgess	Graves (GA)	Maloney
Burton (IN)	Griffin (AR)	Manzullo
Campbell	Grijalva	Marchant
Capito	Guinta	McClintock
Chaffetz	Gutierrez	McHenry
Clarke (MI)	Hall	McMorris
Clarke (NY)	Hanna	Rodgers
Clay	Harris	Michaud
Cleaver	Hastings (WA)	Miller (FL)
Coble	Heck	Miller (MI)
Cole	Herrera Beutler	Mulvaney
Conyers	Himes	Nadler
Davis (KY)	Honda	Napolitano
DeFazio	Huizenga (MI)	Noem
Denham	Hultgren	Nugent
DesJarlais	Hurt	Pastor (AZ)
Duffy	Issa	Paul
Duncan (SC)	Jackson (IL)	Paulsen
Duncan (TN)	Johnson (IL)	Pearce
Emerson	Jones	Peterson

Petri
Pitts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Reed
Reichert
Renacci
Ribble
Richardson
Rigell
Roe (TN)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Ross (FL)
Royce

Schilling
Schmidt
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sessions
Sherman
Simpson
Smith (NJ)
Southernland
Stark
Stearns
Stutzman
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (PA)

Tiberi
Tipton
Upton
Velázquez
Visclosky
Walberg
Walsh (IL)
Waters
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Woodall
Woolsey
Young (AK)

Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schock
Schradler
Schwartz
Scott (VA)
Scott, David
Sewell
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Sires
Slaughter
Smith (NE)

Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sutton
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thornberry
Tierney
Tonko
Tsongas
Turner
Van Hollen
Walden
Walz (MN)

Wasserman
Schultz
Watt
Waxman
Welch
Whitfield
Wilson (FL)
Wittman
Womack
Wu
Yarmuth
Yoder
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

Miller, George
Moore
Moran
Murphy (CT)
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Olver
Pallone
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paul
Pelosi
Peters
Pingree (ME)
Polis
Price (NC)
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel

Richmond
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Schakowsky
Schradler
Schwartz
Scott (VA)
Serrano
Sewell
Shuler
Sires
Slaughter
Speier
Stark
Sutton
Thompson (CA)

Thompson (MS)
Tierney
Tonko
Tsongas
Sánchez, Linda
Van Hollen
Velázquez
Visclosky
Walden
Walsh (IL)
Wasserman
Schultz
Waters
Watt
Waxman
Welch
Wilson (FL)
Woolsey
Wu
Yarmuth

NOES—265

Ackerman
Aderholt
Alexander
Altmire
Andrews
Austria
Baca
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berg
Berkley
Berman
Biggart
Billirakis
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (NY)
Black
Blackburn
Blumenauer
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boren
Boswell
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brown (FL)
Butterfield
Calvert
Camp
Canseco
Cantor
Capps
Capuano
Cardoza
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Carter
Cassidy
Castor (FL)
Chabot
Chandler
Chu
Ciциlline
Clyburn
Coffman (CO)
Cohen
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Cooper
Costa
Costello
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Crowley
Cuellar
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
DeGette
DeLauro
Dent
Deutch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dold

Donnelly (IN)
Doyle
Dreier
Edwards
Ellison
Ellmers
Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Fleischmann
Forbes
Fortenberry
Frank (MA)
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Fudge
Gallegly
Garamendi
Gerlach
Granger
Graves (MO)
Green, Al
Green, Gene
Griffith (VA)
Grimm
Guthrie
Hanabusa
Harper
Hartzler
Hastings (FL)
Hayworth
Heinrich
Hensarling
Herger
Higgins
Hinchev
Hinojosa
Hirono
Hochul
Holden
Holt
Hoyer
Huelskamp
Hunter
Inslee
Israel
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Jenkins
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Kaptur
Keating
Kelly
Kildee
Kind
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Lamborn
Lance
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lipinski
Loeback
Lofgren, Zoe
Lowey

Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lujan
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Marino
Markey
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (CA)
McCarthy (NY)
McCaul
McCollum
McCotter
McDermott
McGovern
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
McNerney
Meehan
Meeks
Mica
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Miller, George
Moore
Moran
Murphy (CT)
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Neal
Neugebauer
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Olver
Owens
Palazzo
Pallone
Pascrell
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peters
Pingree (ME)
Platts
Polis
Price (NC)
Quayle
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reyes
Richmond
Rivera
Roby
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sánchez, Linda
T.
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes

NOT VOTING—4

□ 1840

Mr. BLUMENAUER changed his vote from “aye” to “no.”
So the amendment was rejected.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WELCH
The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. WELCH) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.
The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE
The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.
The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 169, noes 257, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 521]
AYES—169

Ackerman
Altmire
Amash
Baca
Baldwin
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Benishek
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (NY)
Blumenauer
Boswell
Braley (IA)
Broun (GA)
Buerkle
Butterfield
Campbell
Capps
Cardoza
Carnahan
Carney
Castor (FL)
Chaffetz
Chandler
Chu
Ciциlline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Cleaver
Clyburn
Cohen
Connolly (VA)
Conyers
Costa
Costello

Courtney
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
DeLauro
Deutch
Dicks
Doggett
Doyle
Duffy
Duncan (TN)
Edwards
Ellison
Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Filner
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Frank (MA)
Fudge
Garamendi
Garrett
Gingrey (GA)
Goodlatte
Green, Gene
Griffith (VA)
Grijalva
Gutiérrez
Hanabusa
Hastings (FL)
Heinrich
Higgins
Himes

Hinchev
Hirono
Hochul
Holt
Honda
Hoyer
Hurt
Inslée
Israel
Issa
Jackson (IL)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones
Keating
Kildee
Kind
Kucinich
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Lee (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Lofgren, Zoe
Lowey
Luján
Maloney
Markey
Matsui
McCormack
McDermott
McGovern
Meeks
Michaud
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)

Adams
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Andrews
Austria
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Berg
Berkley
Berman
Biggart
Bilbray
Billirakis
Bishop (UT)
Black
Blackburn
Bonner
Harper
Harris
Bono Mack
Boren
Boustany
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brooks
Brown (FL)
Buchanan
Buchson
Burgess
Burton (IN)
Calvert
Camp
Canseco
Cantor
Capito
Carson (IN)
Carter
Cassidy
Chabot
Coble
Coffman (CO)
Cole
Conaway
Cooper
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
Davis (KY)
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dingell
Dold
Donnelly (IN)
Dreier
Duncan (SC)
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold
Fattah
Fincher
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry

NOES—257
Foxy
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Gardner
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gibson
Gohmert
Gonzalez
Gosar
Gowdy
Granger
Graves (GA)
Graves (MO)
Green, Al
Griffin (AR)
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Hensarling
Herger
Herrera Beutler
Hinojosa
Holden
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Jenkins
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Jordan
Kaptur
Kelly
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Lance
Landry
Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Levin
Lewis (CA)
LoBiondo
Loeback
Long
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Lynch
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino

Matheson
McCarthy (CA)
McCarthy (NY)
McCaul
McClintock
McCotter
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
McNerney
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller, Gary
Mulvaney
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Paulsen
Pearce
Pence
Perlmutter
Peterson
Petri
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quayle
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Reyes
Ribble
Richardson
Rigell
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (FL)
Rothman (NJ)
Royce
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Ryan (WI)
Sanchez, Loretta
Scalise
Schiff
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock

Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Sherman
Shimkus
Shuster
Simpson
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)

Southerland
Stearns
Stivers
Stutzman
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tipton
Turner
Walberg
Walz (MN)
Webster

West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Woodall
Yoder
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Jordan
Kelly
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Lance
Landry
Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lewis (CA)
LoBiondo
Long
Lucas
Luettkemeyer
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
Matheson
McCarthy (CA)
McCaul
McClintock
McCotter
McHenry
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller, Gary

Mulvaney
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pastor (AZ)
Paul
Paulsen
Pearce
Pence
Petri
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quayle
Rahall
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Ribble
Rigell
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (FL)
Royce
Runyan

Ruppersberger
Ryan (WI)
Scalise
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Southernland
Stearns
Stivers
Stutzman
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tipton
Turner
Upton
Walberg
Walden
Walsh (IL)
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Woodall
Yoder
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

Schwartz
Scott (VA)
Scott, David
Serrano
Sewell
Sherman
Sires
Slaughter
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stark

Sutton
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Tierney
Tonko
Tsongas
Van Hollen
Velázquez
Visclosky
Walz (MN)

Wasserman
Schultz
Waters
Watt
Waxman
Welch
Wilson (FL)
Woolsey
Wu
Yarmuth

NOT VOTING—5

Culberson
Giffords

Jackson Lee (TX)
Payne
Towns

□ 1843

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. COLE

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 256, noes 170, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 522]

AYES—256

Adams
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Altmire
Amash
Austria
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Benishek
Berg
Biggert
Billray
Billirakis
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (UT)
Black
Blackburn
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boren
Boustany
Brady (TX)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Buerkle
Burgess
Burton (IN)
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canseco
Cantor

Capito
Carter
Cassidy
Chabot
Chaffetz
Chandler
Coble
Coffman (CO)
Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Cooper
Costa
Costello
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
DeFazio
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dold
Dreier
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry

Ackerman
Andrews
Baca
Baldwin
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berkley
Berman
Bishop (NY)
Blumenauer
Boswell
Brady (PA)
Braley (IA)
Brown (FL)
Butterfield
Cappers
Capuano
Cardoza
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Castor (FL)
Chu
Cicilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Cleaver
Clyburn
Coburn
Cohen
Conyers
Courtney
Courtney
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
Davis (KY)
DeGette
DeLauro
Deutch
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Donnelly (IN)
Doyle
Edwards
Ellison

NOES—170

Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Frank (MA)
Fudge
Garamendi
Gonzalez
Green, Al
Green, Gene
Grijalva
Gutierrez
Hanabusa
Hastings (FL)
Heinrich
Higgins
Himes
Hinchesy
Hinojosa
Hirono
Hochul
Holt
Honda
Hoyer
Inslee
Israel
Peterson
Johnson (GA)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones
Kaptur
Keating
Kildee
Kind
Kissell
Kucinich
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Lee (CA)
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Loeb sack
Lofgren, Zoe
Lowey

Luján
Lynch
Maloney
Markey
Matsui
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McDermott
McGovern
McIntyre
McNerney
Meeks
Michaud
Miller (NC)
Miller, George
Moore
Moran
Murphy (CT)
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Oliver
Pallone
Pascrell
Pelosi
Perlmutter
Peters
Peterson
Pingree (ME)
Poli
Price (NC)
Quigley
Rangel
Reyes
Richardson
Richmond
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Sanchez, Linda
T.
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schrader

NOT VOTING—5

Culberson
Giffords

Jackson Lee (TX)
Payne
Towns

□ 1847

Mr. TURNER changed his vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 97 OFFERED BY MR. FRANK OF MASSACHUSETTS

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This is a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 181, noes 244, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 523]

AYES—181

Ackerman
Amash
Andrews
Baca
Baldwin
Benishek
Becerra
Benishek
Berman
Bishop (NY)
Blumenauer
Boswell
Brady (PA)
Braley (IA)
Campbell
Capps
Capuano
Carney
Castor (FL)
Chaffetz
Chu
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Clever
Clyburn
Coble
Cohen
Conyers
Cooper
Costello
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
Deutch
Kind
Keating

Doyle
Duffy
Duncan (TN)
Edwards
Ellison
Emerson
Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Frank (MA)
Fudge
Garamendi
Gibson
Goodlatte
Graves (GA)
Griffith (VA)
Grijalva
Gutierrez
Hastings (FL)
Herrera Beutler
Himes
Hinchesy
Hinojosa
Hirono
Holt
Honda
Huizenga (MI)
Inslee
Jackson (IL)
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones
Jordan
Kaptur
Keating
Kind

Kucinich
Labrador
Larsen (WA)
LaTourette
Lee (CA)
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Loeb sack
Lofgren, Zoe
Lowey
Luján
Lummis
Lynch
Mack
Maloney
Manzullo
Marchant
Markey
Matheson
Matsui
McClintock
McCollum
McDermott
McGovern
McHenry
McNerney
Meeks
Michaud
Miller, Gary
Miller, George
Moore
Moran
Mulvaney
Murphy (CT)
Myrick
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Pallone

Pascrell
Paul
Pelosi
Peters
Petri
Pingree (ME)
Polis
Price (NC)
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Renacci
Ribble
Richardson
Richmond
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Rush
Ryan (OH)

NOES—244

Adams
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Altmire
Austria
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Berg
Berkley
Biggert
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (UT)
Black
Blackburn
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boren
Boustany
Brady (TX)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Brown (FL)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Buerkle
Burgess
Burton (IN)
Butterfield
Calvert
Camp
Canseco
Cantor
Capito
Cardoza
Carnahan
Carson (IN)
Carter
Cassidy
Chabot
Chandler
Cicilline
Coffman (CO)
Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Costa
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
Davis (CA)
Davis (KY)
DeLauro
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Dold
Donnelly (IN)
Dreier
Duncan (SC)
Ellmers

Sánchez, Linda T.
Sarbanes
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schrader
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (VA)
Scott, David
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sherman
Sires
Slaughter
Southerland
Speier
Stark
Stearns
Stivers
Stutzman

Sutton
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Tierney
Tonko
Tsongas
Van Hollen
Velázquez
Visclosky
Walsh (IL)
Wasserman
Schultz
Waters
Watt
Waxman
Welch
Woodall
Woolsey
Wu
Yarmuth
Yoder

Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Sullivan
Terry

NOT VOTING—6

Culberson
Giffords

Jackson Lee (TX)
Payne

Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (FL)
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

Tiberi
Townes

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1851

Mr. CARSON of Indiana changed his vote from “aye” to “no.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated against:

Mr. TIBERI. Mr. Chair, on rollcall No. 523, had I been present, I would have voted “no.”

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MACK) having assumed the chair, Mr. WESTMORELAND, Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2219) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1309, FLOOD INSURANCE REFORM ACT OF 2011

Mr. SESSIONS, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 112–138) on the resolution (H. Res. 340) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1309) to extend the authorization of the national flood insurance program, to achieve reforms to improve the financial integrity and stability of the program, and to increase the role of private markets in the management of flood insurance risk, and for other purposes, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, proceedings will resume on the motion to suspend the rules previously postponed.

REAFFIRMING COMMITMENT TO NEGOTIATED SETTLEMENT OF ISRAELI-PALESTINIAN CONFLICT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The unfinished business is the vote on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 268) reaffirming the United States commitment to a negotiated settlement of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict through direct Israeli-Palestinian negotiations, and for other purposes, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 407, nays 6, answered “present” 13, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 524]

YEAS—407

Ackerman	Clarke (NY)	Gerlach
Adams	Clay	Gibbs
Aderholt	Cleaver	Gibson
Akin	Clyburn	Gingrey (GA)
Alexander	Coble	Gohmert
Altmire	Coffman (CO)	Gonzalez
Andrews	Cohen	Goodlatte
Austria	Cole	Gosar
Baca	Conaway	Gowdy
Bachmann	Connolly (VA)	Granger
Bachus	Conyers	Graves (GA)
Baldwin	Cooper	Graves (MO)
Barletta	Costa	Green, Al
Barrow	Costello	Green, Gene
Bartlett	Courtney	Griffin (AR)
Barton (TX)	Cravaack	Griffith (VA)
Bass (CA)	Crawford	Grijalva
Bass (NH)	Crenshaw	Grimm
Becerra	Critz	Guinta
Benishek	Crowley	Guthrie
Berg	Cuellar	Gutierrez
Berkley	Cummings	Hall
Berman	Davis (CA)	Hanabusa
Biggert	Davis (IL)	Hanna
Bilbray	Davis (KY)	Harper
Bilirakis	DeFazio	Harris
Bishop (GA)	DeGette	Hartzler
Bishop (NY)	DeLauro	Hastings (FL)
Bishop (UT)	Denham	Hastings (WA)
Black	Dent	Hayworth
Blackburn	DesJarlais	Heck
Bonner	Deutch	Heinrich
Boren	Diaz-Balart	Hensarling
Boswell	Dicks	Herger
Boustany	Dingell	Herrera Beutler
Brady (PA)	Doggett	Higgins
Brady (TX)	Dold	Himes
Braley (IA)	Donnelly (IN)	Hinchee
Brooks	Doyle	Hinojosa
Broun (GA)	Dreier	Hirono
Brown (FL)	Duffy	Hochul
Buchanan	Duncan (SC)	Holden
Bucshon	Duncan (TN)	Holt
Buerkle	Ellmers	Honda
Burgess	Emerson	Hoyer
Burton (IN)	Engel	Huelskamp
Butterfield	Eshoo	Huizenga (MI)
Calvert	Farenthold	Hultgren
Camp	Farr	Hunter
Canseco	Fattah	Hurt
Cantor	Finler	Inslee
Capito	Fincher	Israel
Capps	Fitzpatrick	Issa
Capuano	Flake	Jackson (IL)
Cardoza	Fleischmann	Jenkins
Carnahan	Fleming	Johnson (GA)
Carney	Flores	Johnson (IL)
Carter	Forbes	Johnson (OH)
Cassidy	Fortenberry	Johnson, Sam
Castor (FL)	Fox	Jordan
Chabot	Frank (MA)	Kaptur
Chaffetz	Franks (AZ)	Keating
Chandler	Frelinghuysen	Kelly
Chu	Fudge	Kildee
Cicilline	Gallegly	Kind
Clarke (MI)	Garamendi	King (IA)
	Gardner	King (NY)
	Garrett	Kingston

Kinzingler (IL)	Nugent	Schrader
Kissell	Nunes	Schwartz
Kline	Nunnelee	Schweikert
Labrador	Olson	Scott (SC)
Lamborn	Olver	Scott (VA)
Lance	Owens	Scott, Austin
Landry	Palazzo	Scott, David
Langevin	Pallone	Sensenbrenner
Lankford	Pascrell	Serrano
Larsen (WA)	Pastor (AZ)	Sessions
Larson (CT)	Paulsen	Sewell
Latham	Pearce	Sherman
LaTourette	Pelosi	Shimkus
Latta	Pence	Shuler
Levin	Perlmutter	Shuster
Lewis (CA)	Peters	Simpson
Lewis (GA)	Peterson	Sires
Lipinski	Petri	Slaughter
LoBiondo	Pitts	Smith (NE)
Loebsack	Platts	Smith (NJ)
Lofgren, Zoe	Poe (TX)	Smith (TX)
Long	Polis	Smith (WA)
Lowey	Pompeo	Southerland
Lucas	Posey	Speier
Luetkemeyer	Price (GA)	Stearns
Luján	Price (NC)	Stivers
Lummis	Quayle	Stutzman
Lungren, Daniel E.	Quigley	Sullivan
	Rangel	Sutton
Lynch	Reed	Terry
Mack	Rehberg	Thompson (CA)
Maloney	Reichert	Thompson (MS)
Manzullo	Renacci	Thompson (PA)
Marchant	Reyes	Thornberry
Marino	Ribble	Tiberi
Markey	Richardson	Tierney
Matheson	Richmond	Tipton
Matsui	Rigell	Tonko
McCarthy (CA)	Rivera	Tsongas
McCarthy (NY)	Roby	Turner
McCaul	Roe (TN)	Upton
McClintock	Rogers (AL)	Van Hollen
McCotter	Rogers (KY)	Velázquez
McGovern	Rogers (MI)	Visclosky
McHenry	Rohrabacher	Walberg
McIntyre	Rokita	Walden
McKeon	Rooney	Walsh (IL)
McKinley	Ros-Lehtinen	Walz (MN)
McMorris	Roskam	Wasserman
Rodgers	Ross (AR)	Schultz
McNerney	Ross (FL)	Watt
Meehan	Rothman (NJ)	Waxman
Meeks	Roybal-Allard	Webster
Mica	Royce	Welch
Michaud	Runyan	West
Miller (FL)	Ruppersberger	Westmoreland
Miller (MI)	Rush	Whitfield
Miller (NC)	Ryan (OH)	Wilson (FL)
Miller, Gary	Ryan (WI)	Wilson (SC)
Miller, George	Sánchez, Linda T.	Wittman
Mulvaney	Sanchez, Loretta	Wolf
Murphy (CT)	Sarbanes	Womack
Murphy (PA)	Scalise	Woodall
Myrick	Nadler	Wu
Nadler	Schakowsky	Yarmuth
Napolitano	Schiff	Yoder
Neal	Schilling	Young (AK)
Neugebauer	Schmidt	Young (FL)
Noem	Schock	Young (IN)

NAYS—6

Amash	Jones	Paul
Blumenauer	Kucinich	Rahall

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—13

Carson (IN)	McCollum	Stark
Edwards	McDermott	Waters
Ellison	Moore	Woolsey
Johnson, E. B.	Moran
Lee (CA)	Pingree (ME)

NOT VOTING—5

Culberson	Jackson Lee	Payne
Giffords	(TX)	Towns

□ 1910

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas changed her vote from "yea" to "present."

So (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 2417

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have my name removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 2417.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WEBSTER). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Texas?

There was no objection.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 320 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2219.

□ 1910

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2219) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, with Mr. MACK (Acting Chair) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, the bill had been read through page 161, line 12.

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The ACTING Chair. The gentleman from Nebraska is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FORTENBERRY. I rise to engage in a colloquy with my colleagues to ensure that our defense community has the resources necessary to carry out an important security mandate that this body passed this year.

Mr. Chairman, the Lord's Resistance Army has terrorized central Africa for 25 years. But last year, Congress and the administration took unprecedented steps to end the group's campaign of violence. This body passed broadly supported bipartisan legislation called the Lord's Resistance Army Disarmament and Northern Uganda Recovery Act requiring the administration to prepare and present to Congress a comprehensive strategy to bring LRA commanders to justice.

Mr. Chairman, with the administration's strategy released in November, we should move to implement an international strategy to help end the atrocities committed by the LRA, protect innocent civilians, and stabilize a region of Africa that is critical to the United States' national security interests.

Through over 20 years of civil war, this brutal insurgency has created a humanitarian crisis that has displaced over 1½ million people and resulted in the abduction of over 20,000 children in one of the world's most difficult ungoverned spaces.

With that, I would like to yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN), who is continuing to take a lead role in this international effort, which I appreciate.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his support of this international imperative.

The LRA has terrorized civilians and abducted tens of thousands of children, many of whom have been forced into child soldiering or sex slavery. Its influence spans the border area of south Sudan, the Democratic Republic of Congo, and the Central African Republic. It is the deadliest rebel group in Congo and has displaced hundreds of thousands of people across central Africa, including in south Sudan, where U.S. investments in peace and stability are critical as the region establishes independence this Saturday.

Mr. Chairman, we could have a decisive impact on seeing one of Africa's most longstanding human rights crises finally brought to an end by implementing the administration's plan.

I yield back to the gentleman from Nebraska in the hopes that we implement this strategy.

Mr. FORTENBERRY. I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for his leadership again.

My colleagues and I believe that resources invested in ending this conflict now will not only save innocent lives but will also help reduce the need for very expensive humanitarian aid and promote stability in one of Africa's most volatile regions.

With that said, I would like to yield to our chairman, the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I thank the gentlemen, both, for their attention to this important issue. And I want to continue to work with them as we move this bill forward in the hopes that we can bring a swift end and successful end to this tragedy.

Mr. FORTENBERRY. I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT NO. 96 OFFERED BY MR. DEFAZIO

Mr. DEFAZIO. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title) insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to enforce section 376 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006 (Public Law 109-163).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Oregon is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DEFAZIO. My colleagues, in 1990 Congress passed a law that required that all Federal agencies, including the Department of Defense, must have auditable financial statements every year. Since that time, the Department of Defense has spent $10 trillion—$10,000 billion—and yet no audit has been conducted. In fact, there are numerous problems with accounting at DOD, and their financial management has been rated as “high risk” by the Government Accountability Office.

Unfortunately, the Pentagon, being incapable of being audited, sought an exemption from audits.

So in 2005, Congress passed a ban on completing an audit. It was contained in section 376 of the 2006 National Defense Authorization Act.

In 2009, Congress got tough and they said, “Look, we’ve exempted you from audits. But let’s have a goal—not a mandate—a goal of you doing an audit by 2017. Yet last September in a hearing Pentagon officials stated that meeting a deadline of 2017 for having their first ever audit of their books, and they will spend $4 trillion between now and 2017 without an audit, they said they would need more money, more money to be auditable. That’s chutzpah. That’s incredible.

So what we’re attempting to do here tonight is to say that we’re going to suspend the exemption. The DOD, it’s time for them to get their books in order. There is nothing more important for our men and women in uniform than to know that every dollar, every precious tax dollar is being spent properly to give them the tools they need to defend our Nation. And the taxpayers of this country, concerned about our massive deficit and the concerns that are being expressed here in these deficit and debt talks downtown, the taxpayers need to know that we’re not wasting money in the single largest annual account of the Federal budget which is not audited, the expenditures of the Pentagon.

In fiscal year 2010, half of DOD’s contract awards were not competed. That’s half. In 140 billion of them, there was no competition at all, and in 48 billion, there was one, one competitor. So we have a lot of work to do here.

In 2000, the Pentagon Inspector General found that of $7.6 trillion in accounting errors of entries, $2.3 trillion “were not supported by adequate audit trails or sufficient evidence to determine their validity.” We don’t know where that $2.3 trillion went. Now, come on.

It’s time to stop treating them with kid gloves. The Pentagon’s a tough institution, the toughest Department of Defense in the world. And it’s time for them to own up here and audit their books and trace every dollar. It’s a new era. So I urge my colleagues to support this by defunding this special exemption. Then the Pentagon will be subject to audit over the next year, which could provide tremendous benefits to our men and women in uniform and certainly tremendous savings for the American taxpayers.

I yield back the balance of my time. Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I’m just not sure how this amendment accomplishes what the gentleman says since it prohibits enforcement of a section of a fiscal year 2006 bill, which only applied to that fiscal year. So I’m not opposed to the amendment; I just don’t believe it does anything.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GARRETT. I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GARRETT. I rise today in support of this amendment and one which I have also cosponsored with the gentleman.

This amendment, quite honestly, is common sense, in that it simply looks to add accountability in how the Pentagon spends our taxpayers’ dollars. Now, the GAO released an independent audit that they performed in March that concluded that the cost of the Pentagon’s largest programs has risen by $135 billion—that’s over 9 percent—to $1.68 trillion by 2008. And as was pointed out, over half of that, or $70 billion of that, involves overruns. And what they say in their report appeared “to be indicative of production problems and inefficiencies or flawed initial cost estimates.”

Since then, we have not had a complete audit by the Pentagon, and since then, overruns have only multiplied.

Just this past week, earlier in the week, I had the opportunity to serve in the Budget Committee, where we had the CBO come in. And we asked them point blank for some of the information that we would like to have with regard to these audits, that we would like the information from them so they could pinpoint some of the, as we always say on the floor, the waste, fraud, and abuse that goes on. But more specifically, where the inefficiencies are. And the answer we got from them was somewhat telling. They said they cannot supply this Congress with the information that we would like because they do not get the information themselves from the DOD. And that is the problem.

□ 1920

That is the problem. The Department of Defense is consistently overbudget in acquisition and equipment modernization. There are 92 major defense acquisition programs. Seventy-five percent of them are overbudget. Twenty percent of them are overbudget by more than 50 percent.

Mr. Chairman, this is something that needs to be addressed. This amendment will once again hold the Pentagon accountable, assuring that the taxpayer dollars are spent prudently, as intended. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. I would like, at this time, to ask the chairman to participate in a colloquy with me.

I rise today to express my concern about our strategic ports. First, I want to thank the chairman for discussing this important issue with me. I think the chairman would agree that understanding and addressing vital infrastructure needs at our strategic seaports is of major importance.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would tell him that I do agree that assessing and correcting infrastructure problems at the Nation’s strategic seaports, which are an integral part of our national defense readiness, is of vital importance.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Since 1958, the strategic seaport program has facilitated the movement of military forces securely through U.S. ports. Each strategic seaport has individual capabilities that provide the Department of Defense with the port facilities and services that are critical in maintaining the operational flexibility and redundancy needed to meet a wide range of national security missions and time lines. However, the existing infrastructure at many of the strategic ports may no longer be adequate to meet the needs of our military. I think the time has come to address these needs in both our authorization and appropriations process. That is why I worked with Chairman MCKEON to include language in the defense authorization bill that will require a study of the infrastructure needs of these strategic ports. Once that study has been conducted, I believe it is of vital importance that this committee provide the necessary funding to address the needs of these ports.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I also believe these ports to be critical to our defense, and I will be happy to work with the gentleman from Alaska to consider the appropriate measures and funding to address the infrastructure needs of our strategic seaports.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. I want to thank the chairman for discussing this issue with me. I would just like to say to the chairman, I appreciate the fact that you recognize the importance of ports to move our products. I know that the ranking member does, also. I again thank you.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BECERRA. I rise to engage in a colloquy with the chairman and ranking member on recruitment and outreach at the military service academies.

Mr. Chairman, some areas in the U.S. have been harder for the military academies to reach for recruitment purposes than others. To ease this problem, the Congress should work to ensure that the military academies have the ability to reach out to men and women from underrepresented rural and urban areas.

Past outreach efforts have been effective at the military academies. For example, in the U.S. Naval Academy's increased outreach efforts, we have seen results that show that some 19,145 applicants have come out for the class of 2015, an increase of 25 percent over the past 2 years. The Navy has been able to conduct recruitment blitzes in parts of the country that were traditionally underrepresented. In my home State of California, the Navy increased their applicants by 25 percent, from some 2,400 for the class of 2013 to over 3,000 for the class of 2015.

I believe it is important for the academies to have the resources to continue building upon this success. This critical investment would help America find the best and the brightest for our military and for America's future.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BECERRA. I yield to the chairman.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I agree with the gentleman that it is important that the military academies bring in the best young people from across the country, and the committee will work with him toward this objective.

Mr. BECERRA. I thank the chairman.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BECERRA. I yield to the ranking member.

Mr. DICKS. I agree with the chairman and stand ready to work with the gentleman—and I commend him for the work that he's been doing over the years—to reach out to all regions of the country to bring the best and brightest into the military academies.

Mr. BECERRA. I thank the ranking member and the chairman, and I look forward to working with them.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. I have an amendment at the desk, designated as No. 1.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The amount otherwise made available by this Act for "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide" is hereby reduced by $250,000,000.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FLAKE. I thank the Chair.

This amendment would reduce the operations and maintenance defense-wide account by $250 million, the same amount appropriated by section 8122 of the bill. Section 8122 appropriates another $250 million in FY12 for the Secretary of Defense to use for the Office of Economic Adjustment, or to transfer to the Secretary of Education to make grants to public schools located on military bases for construction, renovation and repairs.

I will just summarize what's happening here. We have some schools that are on military bases. Now, some of the schools on military bases are run by the Department of Defense. That's not what we're speaking about here. The schools that we're talking about here, LEAs, Local Education Agencies, run them. In the FY11 budget, we appropriated $250 million of defense money—this is in the Defense bill—to go to schools that are the responsibility of Local Education Agencies.

Now, some of these schools are in disrepair. They're in bad shape. Nobody's questioning that. Education budgets are tight everywhere around the country. Ask your own States. Ask your local school districts. But we cannot continue to divert money from the Department of Defense simply because that's where money is and few people question it. I'm sure the gentleman will stand up here and say, hey, these schools are in bad shape; they're on military bases; we've got to fix them, and the Local Education Agencies have said these schools are in disrepair. But why are we taking money that should be going to the military, to the troops, to other purposes, and diverting it to local education or local schools that are the responsibility of Local Education Agencies?

I have here one of the contracts for one of these schools that is being discussed here. It says: The permittee or his designee shall, at his own cost and expense, protect, preserve, maintain, repair and keep in good order and condition these schools.

This is a Local Education Agency, not the Department of Defense. That shouldn't be the responsibility of the Department of Defense, and we're bleeding off $250 million.

I'm sure the gentleman will stand up and say this is needed, this isn't going to be a continual thing, we've just got to bring these schools up to repair. They'll say that the Department of Defense has said that these schools are in disrepair. They are. Nobody is questioning that. The question is: Where should this money come from? And if we have this kind of money to throw around for defense, then we ought to be cutting more defense funding.

This funding, if there's a problem, it should go through the Local Education Agencies, or convince the Federal Department of Education through Impact Aid to send money to these schools, but not the Department of Defense. That has been the practice, unfortunately, around here for quite a while now.

We say, all right, what account can we take money from, for earmarks or whatever else, that few people will question? It's defense spending. We take that off for education or research or whatever else, and pretty soon we're diverting a lot of money that should go to the troops to other purposes.

□ 1930

Like I said, nobody's questioning that these schools are in bad repair. Newsweek ran an article on June 27 that said 39 percent of the schools run by the public systems on Army installations fell in the failing or poor category. I don't question that. Nobody does. What's at question here is another $250 million.

As I said, we appropriated in the FY11 budget $250 million. So apparently this is going to become a standard practice now? And then you start to get the prospect of Members of Congress starting to submit their local bases, saying, hey, the schools there are bad, and we get into the old earmarking game by letter, or phone marking, or whatever else, because it will be the spoils system all over again as to who gets the defense money to actually fix these schools. So this would simply say this money, $250 million that has been requested for this purpose, shall not be spent.

The gentleman may stand up and say, hey, this is generally taken from the Department of Defense, or from the operations and maintenance, and so that's not specific enough. Believe me, the Secretary of Defense, if they have the choice to fund the troops or the schools, will fund the troops because the schools are under the responsibility of the local education agency. The Department of Defense may submit a list and say these schools are in disrepair, but it's not the responsibility of the Department of Defense to fund these schools.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The gentleman was quite good at making the cases against this amendment, but I will have to reiterate some of the things. First of all, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment. The bill provides an additional $250 million to improve or replace inadequate schools located on Department of Defense bases that are operated by Local Education Authorities and the Department of Education. Most of these are run by the local authorities.

The Army has identified 80 Local Education Authority-operated schools within the continental United States that are inadequate because of poor conditions or a lack of capacity to accommodate the number of students enrolled. Initial funding in the fiscal year 2011 bill will address approximately 13 of these schools.

Nearly 42,000 school-aged dependents of U.S. service personnel are enrolled in schools on DOD bases that are owned and operated by either LEAs or the U.S. Department of Education. The recommendation is based on former Defense Secretary Robert Gates's remarks to military spouses at a May 8, 2010, town hall meeting at Fort Riley, Kansas. The Secretary then called me as chairman of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee last year and said, Norm, we've got to do something about these schools. We have these young men and women serving in Iraq and Afghanistan, and the last thing we need to do is have them worried about their children because some of these schools, if there was a hurricane, if there was an earthquake, if there was a lahar from Mount Rainier, these schools could go down.

I have walked out there and seen these schools at Joint Base Lewis-McChord. And one of the conditions, if you are going to get money here, is that you must take over the school. The local school districts are going to have to take them over from this point forward. So we will get out of the responsibility, but we have to bring these schools up to code and standards and rebuild most of them. This list was developed by the Army, and then the Navy and Air Force and Marine Corps also were involved.

The former Secretary indicated that his plan to improve schools requires congressional approval. Caring for the dependents of U.S. service personnel is a vital contributor to military quality of life and represents a prudent investment in our Nation's future. I urge my colleagues to reject the amendment.

Let me also say in the military construction bill there was $463 million for schools that are owned by the Department of Defense. Many of these schools are overseas, in other countries; and yet we are putting $463 million into those schools. At the same time, the gentleman from Arizona wants to deny the young people of our country schools that they could go into. There is one in Arizona. The gentleman is running for the other body. I think he would be concerned about the school in Arizona that may not get funded if this amendment passes. And I hope the people of Arizona remember it, because the people of Washington State will certainly remember it. This is a bad amendment. We should defeat it.

Mr. FLAKE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DICKS. I will not yield.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I rise to oppose the amendment and associate my remarks with those of the ranking member. We are talking about the dependents of the U.S. military. And when you visit military bases, some of these schools are deplorable. When we make a commitment to a young person in the military, and they are married and they have children, they ought to be able to go to schools on their military base that are of high standards.

I would be happy to yield to the gentleman if he wishes.

Mr. FLAKE. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I should mention the gentleman from Washington mentioned that the Secretary of Defense said we have got to do something about these schools. I should note that this was not in the Defense request. If he thought something ought to be done, you would think that they would have put it in their request. They didn't. It wasn't in the authorization bill. There is a Department of Education program, a competitive program for this already. If we think that it should have more money, then it should.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Reclaiming my time, I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. They don't have any money. The Department of Education can't fund this because the new majority is taking a lot of the money out of the Department of Education that they would use for this purpose, and they don't have the money. That's why the Secretary called us and said—and this is Fort Riley, Kansas, one of your side, a school in the district of a Republican Member—and he said we've got to do something.

We didn't say we will do this on a partisan basis. We said, hey, these men and women in these Stryker brigades are over in Iraq and Afghanistan, and the last thing we need to do is have them be worried about their children in these schools that could go down if we had an earthquake. And we have had all these natural disasters all over this country. And I just say to the gentleman this is the most ridiculous amendment I have heard of yet. And he has had some lusus. And I just hope we can defeat this amendment so the people of this country will know we care about our kids serving in the military and their families.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chair, American children have already been the victims of the Republicans' inaction and spending cuts, and now the Republicans are specifically targeting the children of military families. The Flake Amendment to H.R. 2219 cuts $250 million of critical funding for public schools on military installations.

These schools and families are already in dire need of support. Impact aid is provided to these schools as compensation for the federal activities that render them unable to collect property or other taxes to fund these schools. This is one of the oldest education programs administered in the United States, and these schools and families depend on these funds.

The men and women of our armed services make great sacrifices to keep our country safe. They deserve better from this Congress. They do not deserve to have their children's education sacrificed as well. I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the Flake amendment to cut impact aid.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. I have an amendment at the desk, designated as No. 2.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

Sec. _____. The amount otherwise provided by title IX for "Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Fund" is hereby reduced by $3,577,192,676.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FLAKE. This amendment is straightforward. It will simply reduce the amount appropriated to the Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Fund by roughly $3.5 billion. We often hear in this body the Constitution grants the Congress the power of the purse, that the President's budget is not sacrosanct, and that Members should be able to guide Federal spending. I agree with that.

So I was quite surprised that the committee included in this bill an appropriation of $5 billion to the Overseas Contingency Operation Transfer Fund, but provided virtually no guidance on how it should be spent beyond requiring that any obligations be, quote, pursuant to the global war on terrorism. That's roughly 4 percent of the overall cost of the war spending portion of this bill.

I understand the funding could provide the Department of Defense with a little more flexibility as it moves ahead with operations in Afghanistan, while simultaneously withdrawing troops from Afghanistan and Iraq. I am sympathetic to the need to properly fund the war in a way that requires us to budget for it.

□ 1940

But this $5 billion with very few strings attached could also be used for just about anything, including, as a bargaining chip, for negotiations with the Senate, according to the CQ Today article, which ran on June 14.

I would submit that it's an expensive bargaining chip, and it's a very risky gamble, in my view. The President recently announced his intent to withdraw 10,000 U.S. troops from Afghanistan, which I think he will make the case for in the months ahead. And the Department of Defense has some flexibility as we move ahead in the months ahead.

So I think it's fair to reduce the amount appropriated in this fund to roughly $1.5 billion. That amounts to 1 percent of the war-related costs of the bill instead of 4 percent. Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Funds have been requested in the past by the Department of Defense. I understand that. I think we all understand that, to give the Department of Defense some flexibility.

What I am saying here is, $5 billion is a little too much flexibility here. Let's regain our prerogative here to direct this money, to have the power of the purse and simply not allow that amount, $5 billion. That would simply reduce it to $1.5 billion.

According to CQ Today, the Army requested about $2 billion for transportation expenses in Afghanistan. The House panel said that funding need was overstated because the Army was assuming all supplies are flown into that country, when only about 20 percent arrive by air.

I commend the committee for carefully drilling down on the requests submitted by the services and identifying places where funding is unjustified and unneeded. However, instead of pulling back all the money in what could become a slush fund, we should do better. We should take steps to simply make sure that money that doesn't have to be spent is not spent.

That's what this amendment does. I urge its adoption.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the gentleman from Arizona's amendment, which would cut $3.6 billion from the Overseas Contingencies Operations budget.

The committee believes that the Army's fiscal year 2012 operation and maintenance requests for Overseas Contingencies Operations may be overstated due to unrealistic planning assumptions. However, due to the great deal of uncertainty of the justification for the Army's O&M budget request, the committee added an appropriations account, the Overseas Contingencies Operations Transfer Fund Account, and shifted $5 billion of funding from the Army into this account.

This account gives the Secretary of Defense flexibility to reprogram these funds for unforeseen requirements which emerged during 2012. For example, if redeployment from Afghanistan were to be accelerated—and some would suggest it should be—there will be a very significant increase in personnel and equipment transportation costs in fiscal year 2012.

Examples of requirements, which emerged during the year of budget execution in prior years, include funding for the MRAP vehicles, the mine resistant ambush protected vehicles, additional body armor that was needed, and other force protection things, joint, what we call joint urgent operational needs. And, of course, there are always spikes in fuel costs.

So for these and many other reasons, Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment and urge others to do so as well.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CONYERS

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for—

(1) deploying members of the Armed Forces on to the ground of Libya for the purposes of engaging in military operations unless the purpose of such deployment is limited solely to rescuing members of the United States Armed Forces;

(2) awarding a contract to a private security contractor to conduct any activity on the ground of Libya; or

(3) otherwise establishing or maintaining any presence of members of the Armed Forces or private security contractors on the ground of Libya unless the purpose of such deployment is limited solely to rescuing members of the United States Armed Forces.

Mr. CONYERS (during the reading). I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise with the assistance of my good friends, TOM MCCLINTOCK of California, LYNN WOOLSEY of California, and BARBARA LEE of California.

It is my Libyan amendment, again, which would prevent funds appropriated in this act from being used to deploy any type of ground troop presence for the purpose of pursuing military operations on Libyan territory.

This amendment would simply codify the policy endorsed by President Obama and the international community and thereby ensure that our involvement in Libya remains limited in scope.

An identical amendment passed this House on May 26 by a vote of 416-5 as part of the National Defense Authorization Act.

It's also the intent of this amendment, as it was in my earlier amendment, that funds would be allowed to be used to rescue members of the Armed Forces participating in the NATO no-fly zone operation.

The American people, obviously many of them, have grown weary of the open-ended military conflicts that place our troops in harm's way and add billions to our national debt. We simply cannot afford another Afghanistan or Iraq.

And so the time has come for Congress to once again exercise its constitutional authority to place boundaries on the use of our military forces overseas and clearly state that this conflict in Libya will not escalate into an expensive occupation that would strain our resources and harm our national security interests.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONYERS. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. We would like to commend you for your amendment, and we would be willing to accept it.

Mr. CONYERS. Thank you, sir. I appreciate that.

I yield back the balance of my time. Ms. WOOLSEY. I move to strike the last word, Mr. Chairman.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by my good friend from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) which I am very proud to be a cosponsor.

The war in Libya, which was not authored by this body or our Senate colleagues, has lingered for more than 100 days.

Mr. Chairman, despite the legal contortions coming from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, the dropping of bombs, the killing of civilians, and the use of drones in Libya most definitely constitutes hostilities. And it's our responsibility in the Congress to make sure that these hostilities do not escalate into a full-blown ground war with boots on the ground and the United States becoming an occupying force in Libya.

The President has assured us that this won't happen, and I believe that a ground war is not his intention. But it wouldn't be the first time, Mr. Chairman, in the history of the United States' warfare that there was a shift in military, with the military campaign beginning as one thing and ending up as quite another. So it's critical that we assert ourselves using the congressional authority to appropriate funds to say "no" to launching a third ground war.

Our authority rests on how we use the people's money. Today's amendment denies the use of our tax dollars to send troops into Libya.

The war in Libya is a war of choice, except it's one that Americans didn't choose. It's not one that their elected representatives here in the people's House and Senate chose either.

We must ensure it does not go any further. We must listen to our people—the people who sent us here, the people we work for—who are insisting that we set limits. They know that we can't afford another Libya becoming another Iraq or Afghanistan.

Are these the values that we celebrated over this patriotic holiday weekend? Permanent warfare that leads to mayhem, despair and instability without advancing our national interests? It's time we start embracing the principles of smart security—humanitarian aid and civilian support—instead of perpetual warfare.

Haven't we had enough? Haven't our troops proven their valor? Haven't military families proven their selflessness and sacrifice? Haven't the taxpayers parted with enough of their money?

Vote "yes" on the Conyers-McClintock-Woolsey-Lee amendment. Say no to ground troops in Libya.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Illinois is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LIPINSKI. I would like to ask Subcommittee Chairman YOUNG if he would enter into a colloquy regarding the Department of Defense's future plans for data storage.

□ 1950

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I would be pleased to enter into a colloquy on behalf of Chairman YOUNG with you, sir.

Mr. LIPINSKI. Thank you. As the chairman is aware and as you are aware, the Department of Defense has many cybersecurity goals and challenges. With the daily reports on cyberattacks and intrusions, I feel that Congress needs to express its concerns before there is a cyberevent that will impact and damage national security.

The Department of Defense is the world's largest target for cyberattacks. There are many aspects of cyberdefense infrastructure, but I would like to focus on one critical piece, the physical location of classified data. I'm very concerned that the Department of Defense will not weigh the physical storage of classified data sufficiently in their efforts to save money through the consolidation and modernization of the information technology infrastructure. In addition, I worry that unnecessarily storing classified data abroad could increase the risk that this information could be stolen, damaging national security and potentially harming our troops.

I would ask the chairman if he would be willing to work with me to ensure that the Department of Defense's future plans for data storage address these concerns and maintain the highest standards for protection for classified data. Keeping critical defense data under positive control and physically securing that data is just common sense for national security. Building and operating data centers here will create American jobs as well as make it easier to control access and make it harder for foreign operatives to steal things such as nuclear secrets, weapons systems designs, and battle plans.

I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Chairman YOUNG and the committee thank the gentleman from Illinois for bringing this matter to our attention, and we share his concern for the protection of all classified data. We believe the threat from cyberattacks is real and is growing. We commend the gentleman for his leadership in this area, and we will be happy to work with you and the ranking member to ensure that our troops and Nation maintain control of all classified data.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LIPINSKI. I yield to the ranking member.

Mr. DICKS. I think the gentleman from Illinois brings up a very important issue, and I too look forward to working with the gentleman to ensure that classified data is protected from misuse and theft. Cybersecurity may be the most important defense issue that we face in the coming years. The Department of Defense itself is hit 250,000 times per hour, which is unbelievable, but it's true. And so we need to work on this, and I'm glad the gentleman has taken an interest in this important subject.

Mr. LIPINSKI. I want to thank Chairman YOUNG and Ranking Member DICKS for their commitment to the troops and national security, and I know Mr. DICKS is especially concerned about cybersecurity.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. I have an amendment at the desk, designated as No. 3.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The amounts otherwise provided by title IV of this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available for "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army", by reducing the amount made available for "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy", by reducing the amount made available for "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force", by reducing the amount made available for "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide", and by reducing the amount made available for "Operational Test and Evaluation, Defense", by $93,811,660, $177,989,500, $263,131,960, $193,248,650, and $1,912,920, respectively.

Mr. FLAKE (during the reading). I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered read.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FLAKE. The amendment would reduce each of the Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation accounts by 1 percent, or roughly $730 million below the currently appropriated $73 billion provided in this measure.

Amendments of this sort have been offered to other Defense-related measures recently, though they have attempted to cut amounts far greater than what I am proposing. During one of these debates, the chairman of the Defense Subcommittee made the point that "if you are going to reduce the defense budget, there ought to be a good reason." I agree. And I submit that both the severity of the fiscal situation we face and the consequences of inaction are compelling reasons to reduce the defense budget along with everything else.

The Appropriations Committee started a positive trend when, during the consideration of appropriations for fiscal year 2011, it reduced the RDT&E accounts below the levels that have been funded in recent years.

I applaud the committee for taking a serious look at these and other accounts and for acting accordingly, but I think we need to do better. We're going to have to get used to cutting defense budgets here if we're going to get our fiscal situation in order.

The defense budget accounts for roughly half of the discretionary spending that is considered during the regular appropriations process during the year. According to the Domenici-Rivlin Commission "Restoring America's Future," RDT&E budgets have increased from $49.2 billion in fiscal year 2001 to $80.2 billion in fiscal year 2010.

So you are seeing an amount of about 80 percent higher now than they were in just 2001. That is a 63 percent increase. I'm getting my math wrong here. That report also suggested reducing the RDT&E budget would "impose greater discipline in research investments."

In addition, Gordon Adams of the Stimson Center argues in an essay in Foreign Affairs magazine that the RDT&E budget should be reduced, saying that "it would be safe to cut it, too, by 19 percent between fiscal year 2012 and fiscal year 2018. Such a reduction would yield $87 billion in savings while keeping the United States' level of military R&D far above any other country."

I'm not attempting to or suggesting that we make cuts that deep in these accounts with this amendment. I recognize that they have already taken a sizeable hit in fiscal year 11. I also know that my colleagues will come to the floor and tout the values of these accounts. They'll talk about and highlight important successes we've achieved with weapons and other systems that wouldn't have been possible without these accounts. I recognize that.

But if we're all going to have to get used to voting for cuts in defense, cutting 1 percent of the $73 billion made available to RDT&E is far from Draconian and will not preclude any such future successes.

I urge adoption of the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The allocation for the Defense bill has already been reduced by $9 billion. Funding for the research and development title of the bill has been reduced from the 2011 level by nearly $2 billion. Further reductions risk harming critical technology development needed to keep current weapons relevant and needed to develop next generation weapons and technologies required to maintain the U.S. edge in military technologies.

The reduction would adversely affect many systems now in development, including the Joint Strike Fighter, where we certainly do not want to fall behind, advanced submarine development, the long-range strike program, missile defense program, further development of precision weapons systems and many others.

I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment.

Mr. FLAKE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DICKS. I yield to the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. The gentleman mentioned that this defense budget is cut $7 billion below?

Mr. DICKS. Nine billion below the President's request.

Mr. FLAKE. That's below the President's request, not below the budget—

Mr. DICKS. Last year we were $17 billion below last year, $9 billion this year. So we're making some serious cuts in this budget.

Mr. FLAKE. I just appreciate that this is not the most ridiculous amendment. I'm glad that threshold was reached.

Mr. DICKS. No. This one won't make the top 10.

Mr. FLAKE. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. DICKS. We're working the list up, so I will share it with the gentleman down in the gym.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Thank you.

I invite the ranking member to enter into a colloquy with me on an important health issue for our military.

Taking more lives each year than breast, prostate, colon and pancreatic cancers combined, today's lung cancer death toll is beyond unacceptable. It is the leading cause of cancer death among men and women across every racial and ethnic group and has a very low 5-year survival rate of only 15 percent. And this situation can be attributed to both resource limitations in programs dedicated to lung cancer research and the absence of a coordinated and comprehensive plan to reduce lung cancer mortality in this Nation by focusing on the entire lung cancer screening, diagnosis, treatment, and care continuum.

Today, 80 percent of new lung cancer cases affect people who neither have smoked or those who have quit smoking, many of them decades ago.

□ 2000

This is true of smokers and non-smokers, and those populations such as racial and ethnic minorities, women, and low-income Americans who are disproportionately affected by lung cancer. But it is especially the case for our brave men and women who defend this Nation and put themselves in harm's way to protect our freedom.

Veterans, whose service has put them at high risk for lung cancer, have lung cancer needs that have been and remain unmet. They also suffer from a higher incidence of lung cancer and mortality than nonveterans. Additionally, the rate of lung cancer is nearly twice as high among those in the military compared to the larger U.S. population.

As a physician, I know that success against lung cancer requires that we approach lung cancer comprehensively, just as we do other major illnesses. Prevention and wellness, coupled with early detection, treatment options, and research must be adequately funded and coordinated, just as we do for heart disease, breast cancer, HIV/AIDS, and others. That is why I introduced H.R. 1394, the Lung Cancer Mortality Reduction Act of 2011. We must coordinate activities that combat lung cancer in vulnerable populations, including our active military, and ensure that for them, as well as for others, that early detection, treatment, and research is adequately supported with benchmarks to gauge progress.

We owe it to our Nation's heroes to coordinate early screening, treatment, and care, and reduce lung cancer mortality among members of the Armed Forces and our veterans, whose exposure to carcinogens during active duty service is a known contributor to their increased lung cancer risk.

I would seek the help of the ranking member to pursue this work in the Defense Health Program within the Department of Defense.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentlelady yield?

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. I will work with the gentlelady on DOD lung cancer research. We have $10.2 million in the budget this year, and money for other forms of cancer and treatment efforts, in light of the serious problems facing military members. This is a very serious problem, and I am glad that you have called it to our attention, and I look forward to working with you on this important issue.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KINZINGER OF ILLINOIS

Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to research, develop, manufacture, or procure a newly designed flight suit or integrated aircrew ensemble.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, there is no bigger supporter, I don't think, in this body of the Air Force than me. I am an Air National Guard pilot. I have been an Air National Guard pilot for awhile now, and continue to be even during my service in Congress. But part of what we have to do in this body is we have to find areas of essential versus nonessential spending.

One of those areas I believe that is nonessential is $100 million that will be spent, if this amendment is not adopted, to develop a new flight suit, in essence. I think at a time when we are looking at supporting defense as best we can and finding out areas where we can prioritize and make that essential, I think it is important to stop the design of this flight suit and allow that money to be spent in other areas.

We have met with the folks that are developing this, that are looking at the idea of this new flight suit, and I am still convinced that the right thing to do at this time is to halt the development and manufacture of this.

So I would just stand and urge adoption of this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Madam Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR (Ms. FOX). The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. First of all, the committee would like to thank the gentleman from Illinois for his service in the Air National Guard, and obviously his service in Congress. The gentleman from Illinois has made a compelling argument, and we are prepared to accept his amendment. However, we want to be clear that we will continue to study the issue as we support the continued advancement of the safety of all of our pilots. We just want to make that understood. It needs more study. We are in support of your amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. Madam Chair, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. The amendment would prohibit DOD from developing or manufacturing a newly designed flight suit for members of the Armed Forces. In November of 2010, the Air Force awarded a $99.4 million contract over 7 years to research, develop, and manufacture the flight suit. The November award ended a nearly 3-year competitive bidding process.

The Air Force requires that the new flight suit must protect airmen from flames, all kinds of weather, chemical attacks or radiation, and high gravity that can cause air members to black out. So I urge rejection of the amendment.

Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois. Madam Chair, there is no bigger supporter in this body of the Air Force than me. For nearly ten years, I have been privileged to serve my country in the Air Force and Air National Guard as a pilot. During that time I often thought, "If I am willing to fight for my country on the outside, I must be willing to defend and preserve our country for future generations on the inside." Today I rise in support of my amendment to the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, H.R. 2219. My amendment would save the U.S. taxpayers nearly $100 million by not allowing the Air Force to redevelop the current flight suit.

Since coming to this House, my colleagues and I have been working diligently to determine essential versus non-essential government spending projects. One area I wanted to examine more closely was a $100 million project to develop a new flight suit for the Air Force, called the "Integrated Aircrew Ensemble." This flight suit is not being developed in response to specific needs of the Air Force's next-generation fighter, the F-35 Lightning II. Rather, it is designed to integrate the already existing protections which are included in our current flight suit.

In February, at the Air Force's 2012 budget hearing, Chief of Staff General Norton Schwartz was asked—at my request—whether the Air Force was developing a new flight suit. General Schwartz stated, "We are not in the business of redesigning our flight suit under the current circumstances." Since his testimony, General Schwartz said this quote is "accurate but incomplete," and does not represent his position on the flight suit contract.

Our office met with management from TIAX LLC, the company awarded the contract. After reviewing the information from TIAX and speaking with many of my fellow pilots who fly different aircrafts, I remain confident that the current flight suit provides more than adequate protection.

Over the past 10 years, the Air National Guard has not had a single G-LOC (induced loss of consciousness due to excessive G-force) Class A mishap, while the Air Force has had 5 G-LOC Class A mishaps. Of those 5 Air Force Class A mishaps, 3 occurred in an F-16 aircraft, while the other two occurred in a T-6 and T-37, respectively. The Air Force was unable to provide details surrounding the T-6 and T-37 Class A mishaps; however, they were able to provide the details surrounding each of the F-16 Class A mishaps. In each of those cases, the pilot flying the F-16 was performing Basic Fighter Maneuvers (BFM) under the supervision of an instructor pilot. It is important to note that all of these accidents took place in a training environment and by young pilots still honing their skills. In none of the executive summary reports surrounding those accidents was the flight suit noted as a contributing factor toward causing G-LOC.

For these reasons, it is my strong belief that updating and integrating the flight suit will not be the panacea that proponents of the program claim in terms of protecting against these types of G-LOC Class A mishaps. Protecting against G-LOC has much more to do with the innate physical abilities of our pilots and the training they receive than any flight suit they will wear.

These findings led me to offer an amendment to the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) to postpone the flight suit development and save taxpayers nearly $100 million. This amendment was adopted into the NDAA, which passed the House by a vote of 322-96.

Many of my colleagues in the House support this amendment, including Congressman SAM JOHNSON (R-Texas), a twenty-nine-year Air Force veteran, former POW in Vietnam, former Director of the Fighter Weapons School and pilot with the Thunderbirds. He said, "With men and women in harm's way in three different wars, the Air Force shouldn't even think about using scarce dollars for new flight suits."

My other colleague, Congressman PETE OLSON (R-Texas) said, "As a former Navy Aviator, I know firsthand that our current flight suits provide all of the protection and comfort our aviators need. Our nation is facing record debt and deficits and as such, we must apply careful scrutiny over every new project we are looking to fund. If I thought for one second that our pilots were in danger, I would be the first to support a new flight suit, but the reality is that this is a $100M solution looking for a problem."

Senator KIRK (R-IL) also stated, "While nothing takes precedence over protecting and arming our troops in the field, we still have a responsibility to protect taxpayers from excessive spending. Given our current fiscal situation, we must make tough decisions to ensure that tax dollars are spent efficiently—even at the Pentagon. Cutting a $100 million program the Air Force says it does not need is exactly the kind of spending restraint the American people want to see from Congress."

Make no mistake, I am committed to ensuring our military is the strongest and best equipped in the world. However, we must make tough decisions with regard to military needs and military wants. I was sent to Washington to make difficult decisions, even those that require the military to prioritize its spending.

Mr. DICKS. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KINZINGER).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LEE

Ms. LEE. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following new section:

SEC. ____ . It is the policy of the United States to withdraw all United States Armed Forces and military contractors from Iraq by December 31, 2011, and no provision of any agreement between the United States and Iraq that amends the timeline for such withdrawal in a manner that obligates the United States to a security commitment to respond to internal or external threats against Iraq after such date shall be in force with respect to the United States unless the agreement is in the form of a treaty requiring the advice and consent of the Senate (or is intended to take that form in the case of an agreement under negotiation) or is specifically authorized by an Act of Congress enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Ms. LEE (during the reading). Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to consider the amendment as read.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I object.

The Acting CHAIR. Objection is heard.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk continued to read.

Ms. LEE (during the reading). Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to consider the amendment as read.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Madam Chair, I reserve a point of order on the gentlewoman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. LEE. Madam Chair, I am pleased that my colleagues, Representatives NADLER and WOOLSEY, are joining me in offering an amendment that make it the policy of the United States to withdraw all members of the United States Armed Forces and military contractors from Iraq by the end of this year.

More importantly, this amendment also clarifies that this timeline cannot be changed unless it is in the form of a treaty requiring the advice and consent of the Senate or unless authorized by an act of Congress.

We must ensure that 45,000 United States troops who remain in Iraq, and our military contractors, leave Iraq at the end of this year, as is stated in our Nation's Status of Forces Agreement with Iraq.

This is of concern because this week the President and some of his advisers are considering just how many troops they can leave behind. Senators and others are publicizing their opinions. Senator MCCAIN of Arizona has suggested 10,000 to 13,000 troops remain to serve for support in intelligence arenas, as air support, and as a peace-keeping force. Others may eventually call for even more to remain. At the same time, the Government of Iraq is feeling pressured on multiple sides to either ask us to stay or to ensure our departure. As one of the original founders of the Out of Iraq Caucus, along with Congresswoman MAXINE WATERS and Congresswoman LYNN WOOLSEY, our position has been clear all along—we opposed the war and the occupation from the start, and we have worked day in and day out to end it.

We believe that ending the occupation of Iraq means withdrawing all troops—and we mean all troops—and all military contractors out of Iraq. It would be unacceptable to have troops remaining in Iraq after December 31, 2011, unless of course there was a treaty or an act of Congress. Leaving troops would hurt U.S. national security interests by adding credence to insurgents' narrative about the U.S. being a permanent occupying force. America's interests in Iraq and the region will be best served by eliminating our military presence and making greater use of our Nation's assets, including diplomacy, reconciliation, commerce, development assistance, and humanitarian aid. And we have already said in policy that there shall be no permanent military bases in Iraq.

Iraqis must be responsible for the security of Iraq, which they have demonstrated more and more as we have been pulling out of their country. The American people have no interest in extending our presence in Iraq, and they are looking to Congress to ensure that we bring our troops home and focus the savings on the challenges facing our Nation today.

Furthermore, we need to ensure that if any security commitment is required, that such commitment be established by a treaty or an act of Congress.

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 2010

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Madam Chair, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part:

“An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law.”

The amendment gives affirmative direction in effect.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any other Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

The Chair will rule.

The amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California proposes to express a legislative sentiment of the House.

As such, the amendment constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LEE

Ms. LEE. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the spending reduction amount), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . (a) PROHIBITION ON USE OF FUNDS.—None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for any account of the Department of Defense (other than accounts excluded by subsection (b)) in excess of the amount made available for such account for fiscal year 2011, unless the financial statements of the Department for fiscal year 2011 are validated as ready for audit within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) ACCOUNTS EXCLUDED.—The following accounts are excluded from the prohibition in subsection (a):

(1) Military personnel, reserve personnel, and National Guard personnel accounts of the Department of Defense.

(2) The Defense Health Program account.

(c) VALIDATION DEFINED.—In this section, the term “validation”, with respect to the auditability of financial statements, means a determination, following an examination, that the financial statements comply with generally accepted accounting principles and applicable laws and regulations and reflect reliable internal controls.

(d) WAIVER.—The President may waive subsection (a) with respect to a component or program of the Department if the President certifies that applying the subsection to that component or program would harm national security or members of the Armed Forces who are in combat.

Ms. LEE (during the reading). Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered read.

The Acting CHAIR. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Madam Chair, I reserve a point of order on the gentlewoman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. LEE. Madam Chair, I join my esteemed colleague Ms. JAN SCHAKOWSKY from Illinois in offering an amendment that hits at the heart of the issue of fiscal responsibility.

This amendment would freeze Department of Defense programs at fiscal year 2011 levels unless the financial statements of the Department of Defense for fiscal year 2011 are ready to be audited in 6 months from the date of enactment. However, this amendment would exempt military personnel, Reserve and National Guard personnel accounts as well as the Defense Health Program account from this potential funding freeze. It also contains a waiver for any potential harm to national security or combat forces.

In these financial times, which are very difficult as we all know, more and more people are learning of the importance of keeping to a budget and of being able to track where every single penny goes of their paychecks, if they have paychecks. For too many Americans right now, survival boils down to appropriately spending and saving every dollar and every cent that they have and budgeting what little money they have left.

Sadly, the Department of Defense Inspector General and the Government Accountability Office have documented that the Defense Department cannot tell the American taxpayers how their money is being spent. That really is quite shocking. We cannot wait any longer for the books to be audited. This requirement first came down in 1990, and over the years, this requirement that they keep the books that can be checked over has been pushed back to 2017. Already the Department of Defense has stated that they need an extension.

How many times do we turn our backs on agencies in their spending money without being able to account for it? How many more stories of expensive ashtrays and overpriced hammers do we need to have before we begin to deal with this in an effective way?

The bloated Pentagon budget, filled with waste, fraud and abuse, must be able to be audited. The American people expect to know where our defense dollars are going. They pay for this Defense Department, and they expect Congress to be the watchdog of these agencies. In fact, I believe that it is critical that the Department of Defense not only be ready for an audit but be able to actually pass an audit.

Today, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment, be fiscally responsible and hold the Pentagon accountable to get its financial books in order. We require that of the business sector, of the private sector. We require that of our own family budgets. Why in the world don't we require that of the Pentagon where so many of our hard-earned tax dollars are being spent? We should freeze their spending, freeze their budget, until we know what they're doing with their money. An audit is a very reasonable request, and I hope that the other side understands that this really is in the spirit of fiscal responsibility and in helping to ensure that the Pentagon's books are in order.

I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Madam Chair, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part:

"An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law."

The amendment gives affirmative direction in effect.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any Member wish to speak on the point of order?

The Chair is prepared to rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language conferring authority.

The amendment therefore constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT NO. 77 OFFERED BY MR. HUELSKAMP

Mr. HUELSKAMP. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to implement the curriculum of the Chaplain Corps Tier 1 DADT repeal training dated April 11, 2011.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Kansas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HUELSKAMP. Madam Chair, I rise this evening to ensure that America's military bases are not used to advance a narrow social agenda.

Earlier this year, the Navy chief of chaplains announced that military chaplains who desire to perform same-sex marriages would be allowed to do so following the repeal of the policy known as Don't Ask, Don't Tell. The directive said that chaplains could perform same-sex ceremonies in such States where such marriages and unions are legal. Apparently, the Navy has recently backed away from such instruction, but tepidly and weakly, and in a way that leaves the door open to the reinstatement of this policy.

This amendment I offer will prohibit the enforcement of the directive of allowing chaplains to perform same-sex marriages on Navy bases regardless of whatever a State's law is on gay marriage.

In thinking about what has made our military successful, two things come to my mind: conformity and uniformity. Men and women who join our military are to conform to the military's standards, not the other way around. Regardless of where a ship is docked or where a plane is parked, our servicemembers know what to anticipate and how to behave. Rules and expectations are the same everywhere, but with a policy that is flexible and changes based on the State, the military doesn't embrace its one-size-fits-all mentality that has made it so accomplished, disciplined and orderly. As the Navy and other military branches prepare for the repeal of this 1993 law, hours upon hours of sensitivity training have been presented to men and women in uniform. Such instruction has included warning that the failure to embrace alternative lifestyles could result in penalties for servicemembers.

What will happen to chaplains who decline to officiate over same-sex ceremonies? The directive states that chaplains "may" perform same-sex civil marriage ceremonies. I fear that chaplains who refuse to perform these ceremonies may find themselves under attack and their careers threatened.

Madam Chair, we must ensure the religious liberty of all military members, particularly that of chaplains. In my family, I've had a military chaplain who has served for more than approximately 4 decades, so this is particularly important to me, personally.

Regardless of how someone feels about the repeal of the policy known as Don't Ask, Don't Tell, I think we can all agree that instructing military chaplains that they can perform same-sex marriages goes above and beyond the instruction to repeal that particular law. In fact, this directive is not only an overreach of the repeal but is also a direct assault on the Defense of Marriage Act. It should be noted these two laws passed with bipartisan support and were signed into law by Democrat President Bill Clinton. Repealing Don't Ask, Don't Tell was supposed to be about allowing people in the military to serve openly, not about promoting same-sex marriage in contravention of the Defense of Marriage Act.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment in order to promote and ensure conformity and uniformity in the military culture, not the other way around; to promote the religious liberty of military chaplains; and to promote consistency with Federal laws on marriage.

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 2020

Mr. DICKS. Madam Chair, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. I rise in opposition to any amendment that seeks to delay the repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell. Some in the majority continue to try to legislate this issue even though the repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell was approved with overwhelming bipartisan support in December.

As of last month, more than 1 million U.S. servicemembers—roughly half of our Armed Forces—have been trained on the new law allowing gays and lesbians to serve openly in the military. Our military leaders, led by Admiral Mullen, have stated that they have seen no adverse impact on the force and that training is going very well. The current expectation is that all members of the active and reserve military force will be trained by mid-August.

Last month, Secretary Gates indicated in an interview with the Associated Press that he sees no roadblocks to ending the ban on openly gay military service. Current Secretary Panetta said that he would work closely with the Joint Chiefs of Staff to assess whether the elements for certification in the law are met before approving the repeal.

Our servicemembers deserve the right to serve their country no matter their race, gender, or sexual orientation. Currently, gay and lesbian servicemembers are forced to live under the constant threat of being forced out of the military because of the misguided Don't Ask, Don't Tell. I urge my colleagues to reject any amendment that seeks to delay implementation.

Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. POLIS. Madam Chair, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Colorado is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POLIS. Madam Chair, this amendment strikes a very dangerous precedent for Congress to somehow micromanage the training processes of military chaplains.

We have military chaplains from diverse faith backgrounds. We have many faiths—in fact, the majority of faiths that, for instance, don't sanctify gay marriage. We have other faiths. The one that I happen to belong to—I am a member of a reformed Jewish faith—and there are many other Christian faiths, including the Episcopalian faith, which do sanction same-sex unions. Likewise, it's an important part of chaplain training that they're allowed to counsel against, for instance, homosexual acts or extramarital heterosexual acts. That's a part of chaplaincy training as well. For Congress to interfere with the military processes of chaplaincy training is absurd and unprecedented.

With regard to this particular training program, I would like to ask my friend from Kansas (Mr. HUELSKAMP), if I could just yield a moment to him, if he has read this particular training manual that he is seeking to defund here.

I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. HUELSKAMP. Yes, if the gentleman would restate his question.

Mr. POLIS. Has the gentleman from Kansas read the training manual that he is seeking to defund in this case?

Mr. HUELSKAMP. Madam Chair, that is an excellent question.

We tried to obtain a copy of that from the Department of Defense today and they refused to provide a copy. What I do have is an online three-page summary of the manual.

Mr. POLIS. So, reclaiming my time, I think that the straight answer is no. In fact, our ranking member and others have been unable to get that from the Navy Liaison's Office.

Again, I think it's an offense to the military to second-guess their training for chaplains. No doubt those documents could eventually come our way—and should, for oversight activities—but for us to somehow defund the training of chaplains to implement Don't Ask, Don't Tell makes no sense.

Again, chaplains will be worried. For instance, Catholic chaplains will be worried to advise their followers that homosexuality is a sin if that is not included in the training. Those for whom homosexuality is not a sin will also likewise be worried about advising the troops. There will be a void, a huge void—to not train the spiritual advisors to members of our military about the implementation of Don't Ask, Don't Tell? I mean, why not try to not train any of the troops? I mean, again, whether you supported it or not, I think most of us believe that it was better that there was a training process than, let's say, a court has ordered—which has now happened absent a training process and instantaneous change.

With regard to the chaplaincy, to second-guess an internal military training document—again, which they have indicated that they will revise accordingly—is to show a huge lack of judgment of the men and women who run the military, an enormous lack of confidence in the institution of the chaplaincy, an offense to the chaplaincy of the military to somehow deign that Congress is expressing that they should not be trained regarding a major military policy, that they should somehow take the risk on their own, that they should worry about advising members of their faith with regard to, within their faith tradition, whether homosexuality is a sin or not, regarding members of their faith as to whether they can be married or not.

This is a diverse country religiously, and likewise the institution of our military reflects that diversity. And to somehow, again, second-guess a military training document that hasn't even been read by the prime sponsor of this amendment shows a tremendous lack of faith and is a very dangerous precedence for Congress in terms of interfering with the training procedures of the military.

We could, of course, as a body or as individual Members, go through every single training manual and find things we like, find things we don't like. But again, to micromanage the military to that extent, particularly in light of a policy change which has ramifications for the chaplaincy.

The chaplaincy is, by and large, where the rubber meets the road with regard to how individual members are being advised about their sexual orientation, about what behaviors are moral and what behaviors are immoral. And to somehow say that Congress will tell the chaplaincy not to train anybody on implementing this policy change leaves our soldiers in a spiritual lurch. It leaves our Christian soldiers in a spiritual lurch. It leaves our Jewish soldiers in a spiritual lurch, our Muslim soldiers in a spiritual lurch, all of those who take advantage of the good offices of the chaplaincy in the military, just as, of course, we have a chaplain in this fine institution, the United States Congress.

So, again, this is a change that perhaps many members of the chaplaincy were not in favor of—some were; it depends on their faith position, their own political opinions—but they need to be trained in accordance with military protocols, and this amendment would gut that. I strongly urge a “no” vote.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. HUELSKAMP). The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. HUELSKAMP. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kansas will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TONKO

Mr. TONKO. Madam Chair, I rise to offer an amendment to H.R. 2219.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to pay a contractor under a contract with the Department of Defense for costs of any amount paid by the contractor or subcontractor to an employee performing work under the contract for compensation if the compensation of the employee for a fiscal year exceeds the rate payable for level I of the Executive Schedule under section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, regardless of the contract funding source.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from New York is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TONKO. Madam Chair, the highest individual government salary funded by the American taxpayer is that of the President of the United States at a total of $400,000, or so I thought. The President is certainly the highest paid public servant, but it turns out that the leader of the free world isn't actually the highest paid executive on the taxpayers' payroll.

In fact, the highest Federal Government salaries by far can be earned by private sector executives who are paid up to $700,000 per year directly in taxpayer dollars. I do not mean executives who earn their multibillion-dollar incomes by selling often overpriced and underperforming equipment to our men and women in uniform, though the customer is the Federal Government. Those salaries are paid through transactions in the private sector. No, I am talking about the Federal Government salaries paid directly by the Pentagon and other agencies to private contractor executives, direct salaries paid for 100 percent by taxpayer dollars.

You won't find these exorbitant pay rates on government income lists. They certainly aren't subject to the current Federal employee pay and hiring freeze.

□ 2030

In fact, that $700,000 maximum salary increases every year to reach even greater heights even as we contemplate cutting other areas of our budget to new lows, including that of our military service branches.

These salaries are being paid by a department that has not been able to pass a standard audit in its entire history. It cannot even tell us how many contractors are on its payroll.

Madam Chair, the salary of a typical Army private starts at a meager $20,000 per year. General Petraeus, a four-star general with 37 years of active service, the commander of the international coalition in Afghanistan and the next director of the CIA, earns a salary of approximately $180,000. The Secretary of Defense earns about $200,000. How then can we justify salaries of up to $700,000 for defense contractor executives?

I understand that there may be contractors who supply services to our Nation that our government cannot perform on its own. However, I am also absolutely certain that there is no one single private contractor whose value to our national security is twice that of the Commander in Chief of the United States military.

At a time when the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs is telling us that the Nation's debt is the number one threat facing America, we cannot continue using taxpayer dollars to pay lavish and unjustifiable private contractor salaries that are more than triple the pay of our military leadership.

My amendment simply states that funds in this bill will not be used to pay a Federal Government salary for any individual defense contractor that exceeds the salary of the Secretary of Defense. That salary is level 1 of the executive schedule, or about $200,000.

This is a very modest reform. It is not about limiting contracts or contract spending more broadly. It does not deal with outsourcing or insourcing. It does not, in fact, cap contractor pay, which may include private sector projects, profit sharing, or other earnings. It merely deals with the salary paid to contractors directly by the taxpayer, limiting the cost of that compensation in an effort to reduce the deficit and stop paying exorbitant Federal salaries to private sector employees.

I think this amendment forms a perfect complement to section 8050 of the underlying bill, which deals with limiting contractor bonuses. I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this amendment and other modest simple reforms that can help us tackle the deficit.

With that, I thank you, Madam Chair.

I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part:

"An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law."

The amendment requires a new determination.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any Member wish to speak on the point of order?

The Chair is prepared to rule.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language requiring a new determination of the amount of compensation of certain employees.

The amendment therefore constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI.

The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

Mr. DICKS. Madam Chair, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. I rise for the purpose of engaging in a colloquy with the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), our distinguished chairman.

I think we agree that it is vitally important to save money in the Joint Strike Fighter Program where it is possible to do so without negatively impacting performance or schedule. The Joint Program Office and the services which will use the Joint Strike Fighter are to be commended for any efforts to identify potential reductions in program costs. As an example, the Air Force is currently in the process of validating an earlier internal study of ejection seat options for its variant of the aircraft.

Would the chairman agree that if studies like this one make a sound business case that savings will result, then the Air Force's judgment about how its aircraft can be made more cost effectively equipped should be informed by that conclusion?

I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I agree with him that we should consider all options for cost savings. Should the Air Force present the committee with a study that indicates potential cost savings in the ejection seat without compromising the F-35's performance or schedule, we will certainly look hard at that.

Mr. DICKS. I thank the chairman and look forward to working with him on this and other matters in our oversight of the Joint Strike Fighter Program.

I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. POLIS

Mr. POLIS. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to maintain an end strength level of members of the Armed Forces of the United States assigned to permanent duty in Europe in excess of 30,000 members, and the amounts otherwise provided by this Act for "Military Personnel, Army", "Military Personnel, Navy", "Military Personnel, Marine Corps", and "Military Personnel, Air Force" in title I of division A are hereby reduced by $433,966,500, $41,380,000, $6,700,000, and $330,915,000, respectively.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Colorado is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POLIS. Given the ongoing budget negotiations, we need to explore all options for reducing wasteful spending, and I think we have an easy one in front of us in this amendment.

Before we ask the American people to accept painful cuts or accept tax increases, we have an opportunity here to get defense spending under control in a way that does not jeopardize or harm our national security. If we're serious about deficit reduction, we need to do something about the defense budget, and we can do it in a responsible way that doesn't hurt our national security. My amendment would do that.

By reducing some of the 80,000 troops in Europe where they're no longer needed, we can save hundreds of millions of dollars. So what my amendment would do very simply is reduce the total number of troops stationed in Europe from 80,000 to 30,000, which is more than enough to continue to support our ongoing operations in Libya and Iraq and our responsibilities to NATO for those Members who support them. For those who don't, this is not a proxy for those battles. We don't want to cut the troop levels so low we can't support those operations.

It will allow the DOD to save money by closing those bases that are no longer needed. By pulling 50,000 troops out of Western Europe and closing bases, we can save money, reduce our redundant military force, and CBO has scored the savings of this amendment as over $800 million.

On top of the savings produced by reducing our troop level, my amendment would allow us to station troops in the U.S., instead of Europe, where it's 10 to 20 percent less expensive. It would allow the Pentagon to close bases across Europe that, frankly, are relics of World War II and the Cold War.

The U.S. taxpayer didn't sign up to indefinitely defend our wealthy Western European allies from a nonexistent threat. These bases cost U.S. taxpayers millions upon millions of dollars. On top of that, they're often unpopular with the local people of the countries they are located in.

Our European allies are some of the richest countries in the world, so why are we subsidizing their defense spending? Our European allies have enjoyed a free ride on the American dime for too long. Today, our European allies spend an average of about 2 percent of GDP on defense, while America spends 4 to 5 percent. That means the average American spends $2,500 on defense; the average European, $500 on defense.

Now, if Europe feels they are under a military threat, first of all, I would like to hear whom it's from. It's not clear who's about to attack France or Germany. But if Europe does feel they're under a threat, they can afford to spend more on defense, and we can be confident that we can spend less on their defense. We cannot afford to subsidize the defense of France and Germany from an unknown and unidentified threat.

This amendment does not signal a weakening in our commitment to NATO. With modern technology, we can move troops and weapons quickly across the globe into theaters of operation. We retain sufficient presence in Europe with 30,000 troops for our joint training responsibilities under NATO. There is simply no need to have nearly 100,000 troops.

It's time to rethink our defense spending. We're not under threat by the Nazis. We're not under threat by the Soviets. Terrorism is a real threat. It's an amorphous threat that's not bound by nations or states, and, in fact, it does not have its main nexus in Western Europe. Maintaining bases in Europe is simply not a sane or rational response to this threat, nor is it fiscally responsible.

□ 2040

Even Donald Rumsfeld thinks it's time for a change of policy. In his recent book, he wrote: "Of the quarter million troops deployed abroad in 2001, more than 100,000 were in Europe, the vast majority stationed in Germany to fend off an invitation by a Soviet Union that no longer existed."

These cuts proposed in my amendment are part of the recommendations of the Sustainable Defense Task Force, a bipartisan project. The Sustainable Defense Task Force brought together defense experts from across the ideological spectrum and proposed commonsense recommendations for saving taxpayers' money without jeopardizing our national defense, and that's exactly what this is, common sense.

At a time when we must seriously consider cuts to wasteful government spending, we should not continue to subsidize the defense of wealthy European nations against a nonexistent Nazi threat, a nonexistent Soviet threat. Let's get serious here. We can start by reducing our military presence in Europe, which will save the American people hundreds of millions of dollars while protecting our national security interests.

I urge my colleagues to support my amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.
Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. The gentleman from Colorado offered a similar amendment to the 2012 national defense authorization bill earlier this year, and it failed by a vote of 96-323. He offered a similar amendment during consideration of H.R. 1 earlier this year, which failed by a vote of 74-351. The setting of our military end strengths is not something that should be done lightly. In fact, this is the sole jurisdiction of the Committee on Armed Services. They are responsible for setting military personnel end strengths, and the levels that would be set by this amendment are significantly below those in the House-passed 2012 National Defense Authorization Act.

For that and many other reasons, I am opposed to this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.
The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. POLIS).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. POLIS. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MURPHY OF CONNECTICUT

Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to purchase non-combat vehicles for use outside of the United States if such vehicles are not substantially manufactured in the United States (as defined in the Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement).

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman's point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from Connecticut is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut. Thank you, Madam Chair.

Since 2003, the Defense Department reports that it has spent approximately $1.3 billion to buy non-combat vehicles from foreign vehicle manufacturers.

Now you may ask, why is that? We have a law on the books that's called the Buy American Act, and it generally requires that when we are buying items for use by the U.S. military and they are available here in the United States that they should be bought from U.S. companies. It makes a lot of sense. If we're going to be spending billions of dollars in taxpayer money, we should make sure that it goes to fund U.S. manufacturers and U.S. jobs.

But here's the problem. There are a number of loopholes, a growing number of exceptions to the Buy America law. The biggest is this one. One of the exceptions says that if you are buying a particular good for use outside of the United States, you don't have to comply with the Buy America clause at all. Well, that becomes a pretty enormous, truck-sized loophole when we are fighting two wars abroad, because much of what we are purchasing goes immediately to foreign companies.

So you have a situation where non-combat vehicles, light trucks, ambulances, buses, motorcycles, vehicles that are made by a multitude of American manufacturers, are now being bought overseas and our taxpayer dollars are going to foreign European and Asian vehicle manufacturers and into the pockets of foreign workers.

This is a much bigger problem than just this one category of spending. In fact, the DOD has spent about $36 billion in purchases from foreign companies for use outside of the United States. In fact, just this last year, there were about 38,000 waivers to the Buy America Act for a variety of exceptions, and over the last 4 years about 161,000 waivers to the Buy America Act. This is a very large problem, as we see growing numbers of exceptions to the act. This one, though, is the biggest.

And while I think we've got to pass comprehensive legislation to try to take on these growing waivers from the Buy America Act, this amendment, which I offer with my good friend Representative PETERS of Michigan, will simply restrict the purchase of these everyday non-combat vehicles to vehicles that are made by American workers. People in my State of Connecticut and around the country are out of work, and a $1.3 billion infusion, money that we're going to spend anyway, will help create jobs.

To be successful in the 21st century we can't continue to cede our manufacturing capacity to overseas workers. The Department of Defense is the world's largest purchaser of many types of products and we must do all that we can to make sure that we're putting this money, our taxpayers' money to work here at home while not doing any damage to the mission abroad. These non-combat vehicles could easily be manufactured by American plants, and it's high time that we put people back to work here in this country. I urge adoption of this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part: "An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law."

The amendment requires a new determination.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any Member seek to speak on the point of order?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut. Madam Chair, just to quickly point out that is a pretty bread-and-butter, vanilla restriction on funding, as I understand one of the objections is that this would change the duties of contracting officers who now don't apply the Buy America law. In fact, normal course of training requirements for contracting specialists already educate those specialists in how to apply the Buy America law whether or not they currently do it today.

I do believe for that reason that the amendment is germane.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any other Member wish to speak on the point of order? If not, the Chair is prepared to rule.

The gentleman from Florida makes a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Connecticut proposes to change existing law, in violation of clause 2(c) of rule XXI.

As recorded in Deschler's Precedents, volume 8, chapter 26, section 52, even though a limitation or exception therefrom might refrain from explicitly assigning new duties to officers of the government, if it implicitly requires them to make investigations, compile evidence, or make judgments and determinations not otherwise required of them by law, then it assumes the character of legislation and is subject to a point of order under clause 2(c) of rule XXI.

The proponent of a limitation assumes the burden of establishing that any duties imposed by the provision either are merely ministerial or are already required by law.

The Chair finds that limitation proposed in the amendment offered by the gentleman from Connecticut does not simply impose a negative restriction on the funds in the bill. Instead, it requires the officials concerned to make a determination regarding whether a certain item to be acquired for use outside the United States is substantially manufactured in the United States, a matter with which they are not charged under existing law.

On these premises, the Chair concludes that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Connecticut proposes to change existing law.

Accordingly, the point of order is sustained.

□ 2050

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. HERRERA
BEUTLER

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to enter into a contract that allows the contractor to use amounts paid to the contractor under such contract to pay a tax to the Afghan Ministry of Finance.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. Madam Chair, we are in Afghanistan right now, helping to rebuild, or in many cases build from scratch, infrastructure. And when we leave that country, and I do hope we will be leaving soon, we will leave that infrastructure behind, power grids, water systems, trained law enforcement, the building blocks of a functioning society. We will spend billions of dollars on improvements meant to better the lives of the Afghan people. We don't need to also pay taxes to the Afghan Government for the privilege of building or rebuilding their country. And that's why I am happy to bring this amendment to the floor tonight for consideration.

The Department of Defense should be focused on providing soldiers in training, in the field, and on the front lines with the tools they need to protect themselves and defend our country. This amendment would uphold existing law and clarify existing agreements between the U.S. and Afghanistan prohibiting Afghanistan from taxing U.S. contractors doing this rebuilding work in Afghanistan.

Now, this ban on levying taxes would also apply to all subcontractors that may not have direct contracts with Afghanistan. In other words, if a company is working on a project funded by the U.S. Department of Defense, whether that company is a prime contractor or a subcontractor, that company should not be subject to taxes from the Afghani Government.

These are the contractors doing rebuilding work in Afghanistan, helping rebuild the Afghani's infrastructure, and hopefully allowing them to one day thrive independently. Common sense and financial prudence says that the U.S. should not be subject to taxation for the rebuilding efforts it is paying for.

Hardworking Americans send their tax dollars to Washington so that soldiers on the front lines have the tools they need to protect themselves and our country, not fill the coffers of a foreign government. So I urge its adoption.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I would like to say, Madam Chairman, that the gentlewoman has worked long and hard to write this amendment in such a way to be acceptable to the Parliamentarian, and I am very happy to accept her amendment and ask for its support.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. I am going to read this amendment: "None of the funds made available by this act may be used to enter into a contract that allows the contractor to use amounts paid to the contractor under such contract to pay a tax to the Afghan Ministry of Finance."

I want to congratulate the gentlewoman from Washington State for being able to work so tirelessly to get this amendment perfected. It's very clear what her intent is, and we are prepared on our side to accept this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. LEWIS OF GEORGIA

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . The Secretary of Defense shall post on the public website of the Department of Defense the cost to each American taxpayer of each of the wars in Afghanistan, Iraq, and Libya.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from Georgia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Madam Chair, let me begin by thanking the ranking member, Mr. DICKS, and his staff for all of their hard work on this legislation. As always, they offer great assistance and guidance for all Members and staff, regardless of our differences on policy. Thank you all for all that you do.

Madam Chair, my amendment is very simple: It requires that the Department of Defense put on its Web site the costs of war to each American taxpayer. It is time for Americans to have a receipt for these 10 years of war. What has it cost us? How much cold, hard cash has been spent?

I have stood here time and time again and listened to debates about how we don't have any money. There is no money for the elderly, no money for the sick, no money for the poor, no money for women, no money for children, no money for people who lost their jobs by no fault of their own. It just costs too much. No money for you, or you, or you.

But when it comes to war, war in Afghanistan, Iraq, and now Libya, there seems to be a bottomless pit of resources. And it is not fair; it is not right. We nickel and dime the people who need it most. But when it comes to war, there is a big fat blank check. We need to be honest with ourselves. We need to be honest with each other.

Across the country, there are Americans, hardworking, taxpaying citizens who oppose war. They oppose their hard-earned dollars being sent overseas to support 10 long years of war. But let me be clear, Madam Chair, they do not oppose paying their taxes. They are not anarchists or anti-government activists. But as conscientious objectors to war, these Americans want their taxes invested here at home.

They want to help provide food for the hungry, safe roads, and strong schools. They want Medicare and Social Security to exist for their parents, their children, and their grandchildren. They want their tax dollars to care for soldiers and their families when they return home. They want to see an end and a cure to cancer. They want a cure for AIDS. They want to see small businesses thrive and innovation become the engine of our economy. They want high-speed rail that rivals Europe and Asia. They want transit systems that are safe and get people where they need to go. They want government to work for them.

Even if you do not oppose war, don't you want to know what it costs you and your family? It's time, Madam Chair, it's time for the Department of Defense to be honest with the American people. This is not some wild, crazy, farfetched idea. It is simple, commonsense transparency and good government. This amendment takes a tiny, small step in the right direction.

Madam Chair, it is my hope and prayer that all of my colleagues will support this straightforward amendment.

With that, Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriation bill and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states in pertinent part: "An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law."

The amendment gives affirmative direction in effect.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

□ 2100

The Acting CHAIR. Does any other Member wish to speak on the point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Madam Chair, I wish to speak.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. I made my point, and I don't have another point to make.

The Acting CHAIR. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order.

The Chair finds that this amendment includes language imparting direction.

The amendment therefore constitutes legislation in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The point of order is sustained, and the amendment is not in order.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN) having assumed the chair, Ms. FOXX, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2219) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. CULBERSON (at the request of Mr. CANTOR) for July 6 and the balance of the week on account of family obligations.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today after 6 p.m. and July 8.

ADJOURNMENT

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 9 o'clock and 2 minutes p.m.), the House adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, July 8, 2011, at 9 a.m.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

2302. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Difenconazole; Pesticide Tolerances [EPA-HQ-OPP-2010-0296; FRL-8876-4] received June 10, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2303. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Pesticide Tolerances; Technical Amendments [EPA-HQ-OPP-2010-1081; FRL-8875-4] received June 10, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2304. A letter from the Under Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting a report identifying, for each of the Armed Forces (other than the Coast Guard) and each Defense Agency, the percentage of funds that were expended during the preceding fiscal year for performance of depot-level maintenance and repair workloads by the public and private sectors, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2466(d)(1); to the Committee on Armed Services.

2305. A letter from the Under Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting a letter regarding the certification of a restructured Assembled Chemical Weapons Alternatives Program; to the Committee on Armed Services.

2306. A letter from the Under Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting a letter regarding the certification of a restructured RQ-4A/B Unmanned Aircraft System Global Hawk Program; to the Committee on Armed Services.

2307. A letter from the Director, Defense Procurement and Acquisition Policy, Department of Defense, transmitting the Department's final rule — Defense Federal Acquisition Regulations Supplement; Synchronized Predeployment and Operational Tracker (SPOT)(DFARS Case 2011-D030) (RIN: 0750-AH26) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Armed Services.

2308. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of the Treasury, transmitting the annual report of the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Policies for fiscal year 2010; to the Committee on Financial Services.

2309. A letter from the General Counsel, Federal Housing Finance Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Conservatorship and Receivership (RIN: 2590-AA23) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Financial Services.

2310. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Land Disposal Restrictions: Revision of the Treatment Standards for

Carbamate Wastes [EPA-HQ-RCRA-2008-0332; FRL-9318-4] (RIN: 2050-AG65) received June 10, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

2311. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; State of California; Interstate Transport of Pollution; Significant Contribution to Nonattainment and Interference with Maintenance Requirements [EPA-R09-OAR-2011-0046; FRL-9318-1] received June 10, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

2312. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; State of California; Regional Haze State Implementation Plan and Interstate Transport Plan; Interference with Visibility Requirement [EPA-R09-OAR-2011-0131; FRL-9317-9] received June 10, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

2313. A letter from the Legal Advisor/Chief, Wireless Telecommunications Bureau, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule — Amendment of the Commission's Rules Regarding Maritime Automatic Identification Systems [WT Docket No.: 04-344] received June 13, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

2314. A letter from the Deputy Chief, Consumer and Governmental Affairs Bureau, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule — Structure and Practices of the Video Relay Service Program [CG Docket No.: 10-51] June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

2315. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Export Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Department's final rule — Export Control Reform Initiative: Strategic Trade Authorization License Exception [Docket No.: 100923470-1230-03] (RIN: 0694-AF03) received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

2316. A letter from the Associate Director for PP&I, Department of the Treasury, transmitting the Department's final rule — Alphabetical Listing of Blocked Persons, Blocked Vessels, Specially Designated Nationals, Specially Designated Terrorists, Specially Designated Global Terrorists, Foreign Terrorist Organizations, and Specially Designated Narcotics Traffickers; Alphabetical Listing of Vessels That Are The Property of Blocked Persons or Specially Designated Nationals; Alphabetical Listing of Persons Determined to be the Government of Iran, as Defined in the Iranian Transaction Regulations; received June 24, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

2317. A letter from the Associate Director for PP&I, Department of the Treasury, transmitting the Department's final rule — Foreign Assets Control Regulations; Transaction Control Regulations (Regulations Prohibiting Transactions Involving the Shipment of Certain Merchandise Between Foreign Countries; received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

2318. A letter from the Director, Office of Management and Budget, transmitting the Department's report on United States contributions to the United Nations and United Nations affiliated agencies and related bodies for fiscal year 2010; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

2319. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-79, "Housing Production Trust Fund Dedicated Tax Appropriations Authorization Temporary Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2320. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-80, "Housing Production Trust Fund Pollin Memorial Community Dedicated Tax Appropriations Authorization Temporary Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2321. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-82, "Brewery Manufacturer's Tasting Permit Temporary Amendment Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2322. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-81, "Unemployment Compensation Extended Benefits Continuation Temporary Amendment Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2323. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-90, "Closing of Water Street, S.W., S.O. 10-15906, Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2324. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-89, "Department of Forensic Sciences Establishment Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2325. A letter from the Chairman, Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting Transmittal of D.C. ACT 19-91, "Closing of Public Street adjacent to Square 4376 Act of 2011"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2326. A letter from the Chairman and President, Export-Import Bank, transmitting the semiannual report of the Inspector General for the period ending March 31, 2011; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2327. A letter from the Inspector General, Federal Trade Commission, transmitting notification that the Commission will soon begin the audit of financial statements for the fiscal year 2011; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2328. A letter from the Chairman, National Labor Relations Board, transmitting the Board's semiannual report from the office of the Inspector General for the period October 1, 2010 through March 31, 2011; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2329. A letter from the Commissioner, Social Security Administration, transmitting the semiannual report on the activities of the Office of Inspector General for the period October 1, 2010 through March 31, 2011; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2330. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; Commencement Bay, Tacoma, WA [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0197] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2331. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; Chelsea St. Bridge Demolition, Chelsea River, Chelsea, Massachusetts [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0420] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2332. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Limited Service Domestic Voyage Load Lines for River Barges on Lake Michigan [Docket No.: USCG-1998-4623] (RIN: 1625-AA17) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2333. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; 28th Annual Humboldt Bay Festival, Fireworks Display, Eureka, CA [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0167] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2334. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Special Local Regulations for Marine Events; Severn River, Spa Creek and Annapolis Harbor, Annapolis [USCG-2011-0046] (1645-AA08) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2335. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; M.I.T.'s 150th Birthday Celebration Fireworks, Charles River, Boston, Massachusetts [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0375] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2336. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Navigation and Navigable Waters; Technical, Organizational, and Conforming Amendments [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0257] (RIN: 1625-AB69) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2337. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zones; Annual events requiring safety zones in the Captain of the Port Sault Saint Marie zone [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0188] (RIN: 1625-AA00), pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mrs. EMERSON: Committee on Appropriation. H.R. 2434. A bill making appropriations for financial services and general government for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes (Rept. 112-136). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California: Committee on House Administration. First Semiannual Report on the Activities of the Committee on House Administration for the 112th Congress (Rept. 112-137). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. SESSIONS: Committee on Rules. House Resolution 340. Resolution providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1309) to extend the authorization of the national flood insurance program, to achieve reforms to improve the financial integrity and stability of the program, and to increase the role of private markets in the management of flood insurance risk, and for other purposes (Rept. 112-138). Referred to the House Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XII, public bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. MILLER of Florida:

H.R. 2433. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to make certain improvements in the laws relating to the employment and training of veterans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, and in addition to the Committee on Armed Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas (for himself and Mr. PAULSEN):

H.R. 2435. A bill to allow individuals to choose to opt out of the Medicare part A benefit and to allow individuals opting out of such benefit to be eligible for health savings accounts; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MANZULLO (for himself, Mr. GARRETT, Mr. ROYCE, and Mr. BACHUS):

H.R. 2436. A bill to prohibit any reduction in the rate of dividends paid to the Secretary of the Treasury on the senior preferred stock of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac purchased by the Secretary; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mrs. BIGGERT (for herself, Mr. KILDEE, and Mr. RYAN of Ohio):

H.R. 2437. A bill to support evidence-based social and emotional learning programming; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. PAUL:

H.R. 2438. A bill to ensure that certain Federal employees cannot hide behind immunity; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. STIVERS (for himself, Mr. BACHUS, and Mr. GARRETT):

H.R. 2439. A bill to amend the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 to authorize the Federal Housing Finance Agency, as receiver of Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac, to revoke the charters of such enterprises or any limited-life regulated entity established under such receivership; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. HURT (for himself, Mr. BACHUS, and Mr. GARRETT):

H.R. 2440. A bill to protect the taxpayers of the United States by requiring Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to sell or dispose of the assets of such enterprises that are not critical to their missions; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. ROYCE (for himself, Mr. BACHUS, and Mr. GARRETT):

H.R. 2441. A bill to terminate the Housing Trust Fund and the requirement that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac make annual allocations for such Fund; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. CRAVAACK:

H.R. 2442. A bill to eliminate Federal mandates for traffic sign retroreflectivity, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. MILLER of Florida:

H.R. 2443. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to increase the limitation on expensing certain depreciable assets for certain businesses that hire veterans; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BOREN (for himself, Mr. COLE, Mrs. NAPOLITANO, Mr. HONDA, Mr. INSLEE, Mr. KILDEE, Ms. MCCOLLUM, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. FALDOMAVAEGA, Mr. SABLAN, and Mr. YOUNG of Alaska):

H.R. 2444. A bill to amend the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act to provide further self-governance by Indian tribes, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. KLINE (for himself, Mr. HUNTER, Mr. MCKEON, Mr. GOODLATTE, Mr. ROE of Tennessee, Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania, Mr. DESJARLAIS, Mr. HANNA, Mr. BUCSHON, Mr. BARLETTA, Mrs. NOEM, Mr. HECK, and Mr. KELLY):

H.R. 2445. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to provide States and local educational agencies with maximum flexibility in using Federal funds provided under such Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mrs. BIGGERT (for herself and Mr. CLAY):

H.R. 2446. A bill to clarify the treatment of homeowner warranties under current law, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Ms. BROWN of Florida (for herself, Mr. BISHOP of Georgia, Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania, Mr. CONAWAY, Mr. FILNER, Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado, Ms. BORDALLO, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. DONNELLY of Indiana, Ms. CLARKE of New York, Ms. WILSON of Florida, Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas, Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. MEEKS, Mr. RICHMOND, Ms. NORTON, Mr. HINCHEY, Mr. RUSH, Mr. COHEN, and Mr. FATTAH):

H.R. 2447. A bill to grant the congressional gold medal to the Montford Point Marines; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mrs. CHRISTENSEN:

H.R. 2448. A bill to establish the St. Croix National Heritage Area, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. COHEN (for himself, Mr. GRIJALVA, Mr. PAYNE, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia, Mr. FILNER, and Mr. PIERLUISI):

H.R. 2449. A bill to permit expungement of records of certain nonviolent criminal offenses, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DAVIS of Illinois:

H.R. 2450. A bill to suspend temporarily the duty on certain high-intensity sweetener; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HINCHEY (for himself, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. INSLEE, Mr. DEFazio, Ms. WOOLSEY, and Mr. CAPUANO):

H.R. 2451. A bill to restore certain provisions of the Banking Act of 1933, commonly referred to as the "Glass-Steagall Act", and for other purposes; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. HINCHEY (for himself, Mr. ENGEL, Mr. TONKO, and Mrs. LOWEY):

H.R. 2452. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to complete a special resource study of the Hudson River Valley in the State of New York, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. LUETKEMEYER (for himself, Mr. LARSON of Connecticut, Ms. LEE of California, Mr. AKIN, Mr. CARNAHAN, Mr. CLAY, Mr. CLEAVER, Mr. COURTNEY, Ms. DELAURO, Mrs. EMERSON, Mr. GRAVES of Missouri, Mrs. HARTZLER, Mr. HIMES, Mr. LONG, and Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut):

H.R. 2453. A bill to require the Secretary of the Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of Mark Twain; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. PIERLUISI (for himself, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. DIAZ-BALART, Mr. CROWLEY, Mr. PASCRELL, Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey, Mr. SERRANO, Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, and Mr. HASTINGS of Florida):

H.R. 2454. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to make residents of Puerto Rico with one child or two children eligible for the refundable portion of the child tax credit; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RICHMOND:

H.R. 2455. A bill to prohibit any requirement of a budgetary offset for emergency disaster assistance during 2011 and 2012; to the Committee on Rules, and in addition to the Committee on the Budget, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. RIGELL (for himself, Mr. SCOTT of Virginia, Mr. WITTMAN, and Mr. FORBES):

H.R. 2456. A bill to establish the Fort Monroe National Historical Park in the Commonwealth of Virginia, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. WALSH of Illinois (for himself, Mr. ROONEY, Mr. GINGREY of Georgia, Mr. FLEISCHMANN, Mr. WILSON of South Carolina, Mr. PITTS, Mr. WESTMORELAND, Mr. BURTON of Indiana, Mr. WEST, Mr. GRIMM, Mr. ROGERS of Alabama, Mr. GALLEGLY, Mr. CHAFFETZ, Mr. CANSECO, Mr. GORMERT, Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina, Mr. MCCLINTOCK, Mr. LONG, Mr. FRANKS of Arizona, Mr. LAMBORN, Mr. HARRIS, Mr. STUTZMAN, Mr. BENISHEK, Mr. SCOTT of South Carolina, Mr. KLINE, and Mr. OLSON):

H.R. 2457. A bill to restrict funds for the Palestinian Authority, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. SCHWEIKERT (for himself, Mr. WALSH of Illinois, and Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina):

H.J. Res. 71. A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States limiting the number of terms that a Member of Congress may serve to 3 in the House of Representatives and 2 in the Senate; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MORAN (for himself, Mr. DUNCAN of Tennessee, Mr. HINCHEY, Mr. HOLT, Mr. GARAMENDI, Mr. GERLACH, Mr. SABLAN, Mrs. MALONEY, Mrs. LOWEY, Mr. BISHOP of New York, Mr. TIBERI, Mr. FALDOMAVAEGA, Mr. MCINTYRE, and Mr. PASCRELL):

H. Con. Res. 63. Concurrent resolution supporting the formation of a bipartisan Presidential Commission to study the establishment of a National Museum of the American People; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Ms. FUDGE (for herself, Ms. GRANGER, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN, Mr. REYES, Mr. SERRANO, Ms. SCHA-KOWSKY, Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD, Mr. POLIS, Mr. BRALEY of Iowa, Ms. CLARKE of New York, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. GRIJALVA, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Ms. MOORE, Mr. MORAN, Ms. NORTON, Ms. SEWELL, and Mr. RANGEL):

H. Res. 339. A resolution expressing support for designation of September as National Childhood Obesity Awareness Month; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. MARKEY (for himself and Mr. TIBERI):

H. Res. 341. A resolution expressing support for designation of the month of September as "National Brain Aneurysm Awareness Month"; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Ms. NORTON (for herself, Mr. BLUMENAUER, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN, Mr. FALCOMA, Mr. FARR, Ms. FUDGE, Mr. GRIJALVA, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mr. LOEBACK, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. NADLER, Mrs. NAPOLITANO, Mr. PAYNE, Mr. RANGEL, Ms. RICHARDSON, Mr. SABLAN, Mr. SERRANO, Ms. SLAUGHTER, Ms. SPEIER, Ms. WILSON of Florida, and Mr. YOUNG of Alaska):

H. Res. 342. A resolution expressing support for the designation of July 30, 2011, as National Dance Day; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

74. The SPEAKER presented a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 68 urging the Congress to take such actions as are necessary to require that satellite television providers broadcast local television stations; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

75. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 81 urging the Congress to take steps to designate Caddo Lake as a National Heritage Area; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following statements are submitted regarding the specific powers granted to Congress in the Constitution to enact the accompanying bill or joint resolution.

By Mr. MILLER of Florida:

H.R. 2433.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8 of the Constitution of the United States.

By Mrs. EMERSON:

H.R. 2434.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

The principal constitutional authority for this legislation is clause 7 of section 9 of article I of the Constitution of the United States (the appropriation power), which states: "No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law . . ." In addition, clause 1 of section 8 of article I of the Constitution (the spending power) provides: "The Congress shall have the Power . . . to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States . . ." Together, these specific constitutional provisions establish the congressional power of the purse, granting Congress the authority to appropriate funds, to determine their purpose, amount, and period of availability, and to set forth terms and conditions governing their use.

By Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas:

H.R. 2435.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

"The constitutional authority of Congress to enact this legislation is provided by Article I, section 8 of the United States Constitution, specifically clause 1 (relating to providing for the general welfare of the United States) and clause 18 (relating to the power to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying out the powers vested in Congress), and Article IV, section 3, clause 2 (relating to the power of Congress to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States)."

By Mr. MANZULLO:

H.R. 2436.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8, Clauses 3 ("To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes"), and 18 ("To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof").

By Mrs. BIGGERT:

H.R. 2437.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 1, Section 8

By Mr. PAUL:

H.R. 2438.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Art I, Sec 8

By Mr. STIVERS:

H.R. 2439.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8, Clause 3 of the United States Constitution

By Mr. HURT:

H.R. 2440.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8, clause 1, clause 3, and clause 18.

By Mr. ROYCE:

H.R. 2441.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8, Clauses 1 ("The Congress shall have Power to lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States"), 3 ("To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes"), and 18 ("To make all Laws which shall be necessary and power for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof").

By Mr. CRAVAACK:

H.R. 2442.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

This bill is enacted pursuant to Amendment X of the Constitution of the United States.

By Mr. MILLER of Florida:

H.R. 2443.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8 of the Constitution of the United States.

By Mr. BOREN:

H.R. 2444.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Section 8 of article I of the Constitution.

By Mr. KLINE:

H.R. 2445.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8 of the Constitution of the United States.

By Mr. BIGGERT:

H.R. 2446.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

The Congress enacts this bill pursuant to Clause 1 of Section 8 of Article I of the United States Constitution and Amendment XVI of the United States Constitution.

By Mrs. BROWN of Florida:

H.R. 2447.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 12-14, and Clause 18 of the United States Constitution.

By Mrs. CHRISTENSEN:

H.R. 2448.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8 and Article IV, section 3 of the Constitution of the United States grants Congress the authority to enact this bill.

By Mr. COHEN:

H.R. 2449.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Clauses 1 and 3 of Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. DAVIS of Illinois:

H.R. 2450.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I Section 8, Clause 1. The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

By Mr. HINCHEY:

H.R. 2451.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 1, Section 8: To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;

By Mr. HINCHEY:

H.R. 2452.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

"The constitutional authority of Congress to enact this legislation is provided by Article I, section 8 of the United States Constitution, specifically clause 1 (relating to the power of Congress to provide for the general welfare of the United States) and clause 18 (relating to the power to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying out the powers vested in Congress)"

By Mr. LUETKEMEYER:

H.R. 2453.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Clause 6, Section 8, Article 1, which states "The Congress shall have the power . . . to coin Money, regulate the Value thereof, and of foreign Coin, and fix the Standard of Weights and Measures."

By Mr. PIERLUISI:

H.R. 2454.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

The constitutional authority on which this bill rests is the power of the Congress to lay and collect taxes and to provide for the general welfare of the United States, as enumerated in Article I, Section 8, Clause 1 of the United States Constitution, and to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution such powers as enumerated in Article I, Section 8, Clause 18 of the Constitution.

By Mr. RICHMOND:

H.R. 2455.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

This bill is introduced pursuant to the powers granted to Congress under the Necessary and Proper Clause (Art. 1 Sec. 8 Cl. 18).

Further, this statement of constitutional authority is made for the sole purpose of compliance with clause 7 of Rule XII of the Rules of the House of Representatives and shall have no bearing on judicial review of the accompanying bill.

By Mr. RIGELL:

H.R. 2456.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

The constitutional authority of Congress to enact this legislation is provided by Article I, section 8 of the United States Constitution, specifically clause 1 (relating to the power of Congress to provide for the general welfare of the United States) and clause 18 (relating to the power to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying out the powers vested in Congress), and Article IV, section 3, clause 2 (relating to the power of Congress to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States).

By Mr. WALSH of Illinois:

H.R. 2457.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Section 8 of Article I of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. SCHWEIKERT:

H.J. Res. 71.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 5 of the Constitution states: The Congress, whenever two thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 10: Mr. NUGENT.
 H.R. 49: Mr. COBLE.
 H.R. 58: Mr. NUNNELEE, Mr. DENHAM, and Mr. MACK.
 H.R. 104: Mr. TIBERI.
 H.R. 136: Mr. TOWNS, Mr. KILDEE, Mr. OLVER, and Mrs. MALONEY.
 H.R. 140: Mr. FRANKS of Arizona.
 H.R. 152: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 196: Mr. CONYERS.
 H.R. 198: Ms. EDWARDS.
 H.R. 258: Mr. WOLF.
 H.R. 272: Mr. GOODLATTE.
 H.R. 310: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 311: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 312: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 324: Mr. OWENS and Mr. MORAN.
 H.R. 329: Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey.
 H.R. 363: Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.
 H.R. 374: Mr. RIBBLE and Mr. RIVERA.
 H.R. 420: Mr. MACK, Mr. BISHOP of Utah, Mr. ROGERS of Michigan, Mr. BARTON of Texas, and Mr. NUNNELEE.
 H.R. 451: Mr. LANKFORD, Mr. BOSWELL, Mr. MURPHY of Pennsylvania, and Mr. SCHIFF.
 H.R. 452: Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois and Ms. GRANGER.
 H.R. 469: Mr. CUMMINGS.
 H.R. 483: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 527: Mr. POE of Texas and Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.
 H.R. 530: Mr. FILNER.
 H.R. 574: Ms. SLAUGHTER.
 H.R. 576: Mr. CARSON of Indiana.
 H.R. 583: Mr. HOLT, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN and Mr. CARSON of Indiana.
 H.R. 593: Mr. LATTA, Mr. CANSECO, and Mr. SESSIONS.
 H.R. 615: Mr. NUNNELEE and Mr. MACK.
 H.R. 645: Mr. NUNNELEE and Mr. MACK.
 H.R. 674: Mr. TURNER, Mr. WALZ of Minnesota, Mr. FARENTHOLD, Mr. ROGERS of Alabama, Mr. SCALISE, Mr. ROKITA, Mr. MACK, Mr. NUNNELEE, Mr. CHABOT, Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina, Mr. DUFFY, and Mr. SHUSTER.
 H.R. 687: Mr. CRITZ.
 H.R. 691: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 692: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 693: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 718: Mr. RANGEL, Mr. POLIS, Ms. CHU, Mr. ANDREWS, and Mr. PAYNE.
 H.R. 719: Mr. FARENTHOLD, Mr. SMITH of Texas, Mr. PAYNE, Mr. PASCRELL, Mr. RUNDYAN, Mr. REHBERG, and Mr. LOBIONDO.
 H.R. 721: Mr. DESJARLAIN, Mr. SCHOCK, Mr. GERLACH, and Mr. MARINO.
 H.R. 724: Mr. LOEBSACK and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.
 H.R. 733: Mr. MARKEY, Ms. WOOLSEY, and Mr. LOBIONDO.
 H.R. 735: Mr. NUGENT, Mr. KLINE, and Mr. CRENSHAW.
 H.R. 745: Mr. PITTS and Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.
 H.R. 746: Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.
 H.R. 757: Mr. MANZULLO.
 H.R. 800: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 812: Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey.
 H.R. 862: Ms. HIRONO, Mr. HINCHEY, Mr. BLUMENAUER, Mr. OLVER, Mr. TIERNEY, and Mr. ACKERMAN.

H.R. 890: Ms. BASS of California.
 H.R. 932: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 973: Mr. PEARCE.
 H.R. 991: Mrs. NOEM.
 H.R. 998: Mr. MCNERNEY.
 H.R. 1001: Mrs. BIGBERT and Mr. ALTMIRE.
 H.R. 1015: Mr. FILNER, Ms. NORTON, Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas, Mr. CONYERS, Ms. MOORE, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN, Mr. AUSTRIA, and Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas.
 H.R. 1054: Mr. MICHAUD.
 H.R. 1063: Mr. CHABOT and Mr. ROSKAM.
 H.R. 1066: Mr. PAYNE and Mr. KISSELL.
 H.R. 1082: Mr. ROSS of Arkansas.
 H.R. 1089: Mr. PAYNE.
 H.R. 1091: Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio and Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1103: Mr. YOUNG of Alaska.
 H.R. 1106: Mr. TIERNEY.
 H.R. 1126: Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California.
 H.R. 1134: Mr. CALVERT and Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1161: Mr. GUNTA, Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia, and Mrs. LUMMIS.
 H.R. 1188: Mr. LARSON of Connecticut.
 H.R. 1190: Mr. MANZULLO.
 H.R. 1193: Mr. COSTA.
 H.R. 1196: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1200: Mr. KUCINICH.
 H.R. 1219: Ms. SUTTON.
 H.R. 1259: Mr. FINCHER.
 H.R. 1288: Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California, Mr. TOWNS, and Mr. WALZ of Minnesota.
 H.R. 1289: Mrs. CHRISTENSEN.
 H.R. 1297: Mr. YOUNG of Alaska and Mr. RYAN of Ohio.
 H.R. 1300: Ms. CHU.
 H.R. 1325: Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. MANZULLO, and Mr. RYAN of Ohio.
 H.R. 1370: Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky, Mr. THORNBERRY, Mr. FLORES, and Mr. PLATTS.
 H.R. 1404: Mr. BOSWELL, Mr. FARR, Mr. CLAY, Mr. ACKERMAN, and Mr. DEUTCH.
 H.R. 1416: Mr. PLATTS and Mr. CRAVAACK.
 H.R. 1426: Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. PLATTS, and Mr. HEINRICH.
 H.R. 1457: Mr. TOWNS.
 H.R. 1459: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1463: Mr. PITTS.
 H.R. 1464: Ms. HIRONO.
 H.R. 1465: Mr. SERRANO and Mr. JACKSON of Illinois.
 H.R. 1475: Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.
 H.R. 1479: Mr. TIERNEY.
 H.R. 1483: Ms. SPEIER.
 H.R. 1485: Mr. GOSAR and Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California.
 H.R. 1488: Mr. HIGGINS.
 H.R. 1505: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1529: Mr. COHEN.
 H.R. 1543: Mr. LARSON of Connecticut and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.
 H.R. 1558: Mr. ROE of Tennessee, Mr. HANNA, and Mr. STEARNS.
 H.R. 1588: Mr. FLEISCHMANN.
 H.R. 1614: Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky.
 H.R. 1621: Mr. MCCOTTER.
 H.R. 1633: Mr. HALL.
 H.R. 1648: Mr. MCDERMOTT, Mr. MICHAUD, Mr. SCHIFF, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia, and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.
 H.R. 1663: Ms. FUDGE.
 H.R. 1698: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1723: Mr. CHABOT.
 H.R. 1724: Mr. INSLEE, Mr. NADLER, Mr. MCDERMOTT, and Mr. PAYNE.
 H.R. 1734: Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio.
 H.R. 1735: Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut and Ms. ESHOO.
 H.R. 1741: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1744: Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER.
 H.R. 1747: Mr. MANZULLO.
 H.R. 1756: Ms. CLARKE of New York.

H.R. 1763: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1764: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1821: Mr. HIMES and Mr. YARMUTH.
 H.R. 1829: Mr. CASSIDY.
 H.R. 1855: Mr. FILNER.
 H.R. 1856: Mr. ADERHOLT, Mr. MCINTYRE, and Mr. CALVERT.
 H.R. 1865: Mr. MICHAUD, Mr. RIBBLE, Mr. LONG, Mr. FLEISCHMANN, Mr. HARRIS, Mr. ROKITA, Mr. JONES, Mr. COSTELLO, and Mr. DENHAM.
 H.R. 1903: Mr. POLIS and Mr. STARK.
 H.R. 1932: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1968: Mr. GERLACH.
 H.R. 1980: Mr. CALVERT, Mr. FRELING-HUYSEN, and Mr. ISSA.
 H.R. 2000: Mr. WOLF.
 H.R. 2002: Mr. LATTA.
 H.R. 2010: Mr. MCKEON and Mr. BOUSTANY.
 H.R. 2018: Mr. BACHUS and Mr. WALSH of Illinois.
 H.R. 2028: Ms. SCHAKOWSKY, Mr. KUCINICH, and Mr. FILNER.
 H.R. 2030: Mr. KUCINICH and Ms. WOOLSEY.
 H.R. 2032: Mr. MCKINLEY, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. CARNAHAN, Mr. ALEXANDER, and Mr. AKIN.
 H.R. 2036: Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois.
 H.R. 2040: Mr. BISHOP of Utah and Mr. CHAFFETZ.
 H.R. 2042: Mr. PAULSEN.
 H.R. 2054: Mr. STEARNS.
 H.R. 2068: Mr. SULLIVAN, Mr. MATHESON, and Mr. BURGESS.
 H.R. 2077: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 2079: Ms. BUERKLE.
 H.R. 2085: Mr. YARMUTH.
 H.R. 2092: Mr. ROYCE, Mr. PRICE of Georgia, and Mr. FORTENBERRY.
 H.R. 2099: Mr. RIVERA.
 H.R. 2103: Mr. STARK.
 H.R. 2123: Mr. PETERS.
 H.R. 2139: Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER, Ms. JENKINS, Ms. SPEIER, Mr. BURTON of Indiana, Mr. OWENS, Mr. ROSS of Arkansas, and Mr. AUSTRIA.
 H.R. 2164: Mr. ROE of Tennessee and Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 2172: Mr. LANDRY, Mr. MCCLINTOCK, Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina, Mr. LABRADOR, and Mr. FLORES.
 H.R. 2182: Mr. HARPER.
 H.R. 2190: Mrs. CAPPAS.
 H.R. 2194: Ms. SCHAKOWSKY, Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey, and Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas.
 H.R. 2195: Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas.
 H.R. 2198: Mr. CONAWAY.
 H.R. 2210: Ms. MCCOLLUM and Mr. TIERNEY.
 H.R. 2214: Ms. HAYWORTH, Mr. HANNA, Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio, and Mr. LATOURETTE.
 H.R. 2215: Mr. DEUTCH, Mr. CARDOZA, and Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut.
 H.R. 2233: Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, and Mr. MACK.
 H.R. 2245: Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia and Mr. LATHAM.
 H.R. 2250: Mr. BOSWELL, Mr. LATTA, Mrs. ELLMERS, Mr. ROGERS of Alabama, Mr. BOUSTANY, Mr. NUNNELEE, Mr. BISHOP of Georgia, Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina, Mr. PETRI, Mr. FLEMING, and Mr. ALEXANDER.
 H.R. 2257: Mrs. BLACK and Mr. ROE of Tennessee.
 H.R. 2272: Ms. NORTON and Mr. PAYNE.
 H.R. 2284: Mr. FARENTHOLD.
 H.R. 2298: Mr. PASTOR of Arizona.
 H.R. 2299: Mr. SCHOCK.
 H.R. 2304: Mr. YOUNG of Alaska and Mr. NUNNELEE.
 H.R. 2307: Mr. McDERMOTT.
 H.R. 2311: Mr. DENT.
 H.R. 2321: Mr. LUETKEMEYER.
 H.R. 2325: Mr. GERLACH.
 H.R. 2334: Mr. McDERMOTT.

H.R. 2341: Ms. BALDWIN, Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. FARR, Mr. LOEBSACK, and Mr. JACKSON of Illinois.
 H.R. 2357: Mr. PAULSEN.
 H.R. 2358: Mr. FILNER, Mr. GRIJALVA, Ms. BERKLEY, and Mr. STARK.
 H.R. 2369: Mr. GARRETT, Mr. CICILLINE, Mr. DEFAZIO, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Mr. KINGSTON, Mr. PRICE of Georgia, Mr. FATTAH, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, Mrs. LUMMIS, Mr. FORTENBERRY, Mr. ALEXANDER, Mr. MCKINLEY, Mr. GOWDY, Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina, Mr. NUGENT, Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania, Mr. LATOURETTE, Mr. POSEY, Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania, Mr. BISHOP of New York, Mr. GRIJALVA, Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York, Mr. CAPUANO, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. BARLETTA, Mr. MCNERNEY, Mr. DONNELLY of Indiana, Mr. CARNEY, Mr. PERLMUTTER, Mr. GARAMENDI, Ms. HIRONO, Mr. BECERRA, Mr. LARSON of Connecticut, Mr. DOGGETT, Mr. WU, Mr. SIRES, Mr. MEEKS, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. LUJÁN, Mrs. NAPOLITANO, Mr. CUELLAR, Mr. POLIS, Mr. CROWLEY, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. MATHESON, Mr. RAHALL, Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, Mr. WILSON of South Carolina, Mr. HEINRICH, Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut, Mr. PETERS, Mr. RYAN of Ohio, Mr. HOLDEN, Mr. CRITZ, Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. CARSON of Indiana, Ms. CLARKE of New York, Ms. RICHARDSON, Ms. MOORE, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Ms. FUDGE, Ms. HANABUSA, Mr. RICHMOND, Mr. CLAY, Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia, Mr. RUSH, Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey, Mr. PASCRELL, Mr. HOLT, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. OWENS, Mr. LOEBSACK, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. SHULER, Mr. KISSELL, Ms. WOOLSEY, Mr. ENGEL, Ms. MCCOLLUM, Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia, Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois, Mr. HECK, Mr. GUTHRIE, Mr. PAULSEN, Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. GOODLATTE, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. FRANKS of Arizona, and Mr. LIPINSKI.
 H.R. 2372: Mr. LANKFORD.
 H.R. 2377: Mr. COHEN.
 H.R. 2387: Ms. BORDALLO and Mr. RANGEL.
 H.R. 2389: Mr. COSTA.
 H.R. 2401: Mr. HUELSKAMP and Mr. RENACCI.
 H.R. 2410: Mr. RANGEL.
 H.R. 2415: Mr. FATTAH.
 H.R. 2417: Mr. FARENTHOLD, Mr. MCKEON, Mr. ROKITA, Mrs. MYRICK, Mr. BROUN of Georgia, Mr. HERGER, and Mr. LATTA.
 H.J. Res. 56: Mr. LANKFORD and Mrs. LUMMIS.
 H. Con. Res. 29: Mr. BROOKS.
 H. Res. 105: Mr. ISRAEL.
 H. Res. 130: Mr. STARK.
 H. Res. 134: Mrs. MALONEY, Mr. LOBIONDO, and Mr. POLIS.
 H. Res. 201: Mr. PETERS.
 H. Res. 254: Mr. NUNNELEE.
 H. Res. 256: Mr. NEUGEBAUER, Mr. PASCRELL, and Mr. KILDEE.
 H. Res. 268: Mr. LUCAS, Mr. BRALEY of Iowa, Mr. CLAY, and Mr. FORTENBERRY.
 H. Res. 270: Mr. NUGENT.
 H. Res. 298: Mr. KING of New York, Mr. WILSON of South Carolina, and Mr. COSTA.
 H. Res. 304: Mr. OLVER, Mr. TIERNEY, Ms. MCCOLLUM, Mr. LATOURETTE, and Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado.
 H. Res. 315: Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California.

CONGRESSIONAL EARMARKS, LIMITED TAX BENEFITS, OR LIMITED TARIFF BENEFITS

Under clause 9 of rule XXI, lists or statements on congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits were submitted as follows:

The amendment, made in order as Amendment No. 1 for the rule to H.R. 1309, to be offered by Representative BIGGERT, or a designee, to H.R. 1309, the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2011, does not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits as defined in clause 9 of rule XXI.

DELETIONS OF SPONSORS FROM PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were deleted from public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 2417: Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 3 of rule XII,

15. The SPEAKER presented a petition of the City of Miami, Florida, relative to Resolution 10-0221 urging the Congress to increase the percentage of Community Development Block Grant Funding allowed for public services from fifteen percent (15%) to twenty-five percent (25%); which was referred to the Committee on Financial Services.

AMENDMENTS

Under clause 8 of rule XVIII, proposed amendments were submitted as follows:

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: Ms. MCCOLLUM

AMENDMENT No. 101: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following: SEC. ____ The total amount of appropriations made available by this Act is hereby reduced by $124,800,000.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: Mr. GOSAR

AMENDMENT No. 102: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following: SEC. ____ None of the funds made available by this act may be used to administer and enforce the wage-rate requirements of subchapter IV of chapter 31 of title 40, United States Code, commonly known as the "Davis Bacon Act."

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: Mr. GOSAR

AMENDMENT No. 103: At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following: SEC. ____ None of the funds made available by this act may be obligated or expended for assistance to any entity that has adopted a founding charter, constitution, or policy calling for the destruction of the State of Israel.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: Mr. RUNYAN

AMENDMENT No. 104: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following: SEC. ____ None of the funds in this Act may be used to procure air transportation from a commercial air carrier for a member of the Armed Forces who is traveling under orders to deploy to or return from an overseas contingency operation under terms that allow the carrier to charge the member fees for checked baggage other than for bags weighing more than 80 pounds or bags in excess of four per individual.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: Mr. MULVANEY

AMENDMENT No. 105: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The total amount of appropriations made available by this Act is hereby reduced by $17,192,000,000, not to be derived from amounts of appropriations made available by title IX.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. GOHMERT

AMENDMENT No. 106: At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated, expended, or used in any manner to support operations, including NATO or United Nations operations, in or involving Libya.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MS. NORTON

AMENDMENT No. 107: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The amount otherwise made available by this Act for "Operation and Maintenance—Environmental Restoration, Formerly Used Defense Sites" is hereby reduced and increased by $1,000,000.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. KISSELL

AMENDMENT No. 108: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to enter into a contract, memorandum of understanding, or cooperative agreement with, or provide a loan or loan guarantee to, any United States commercial air carrier if that contract, memorandum of understanding, cooperative agreement, loan, or loan guarantee allows the air carrier to charge baggage fees to any member of the Armed Forces who is traveling on official military orders and is being deployed overseas or is returning from an overseas deployment.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. AMASH

AMENDMENT No. 109: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for the use of military force against Libya.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. KINZINGER OF ILLINOIS

AMENDMENT No. 110: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to research, develop, manufacture, or procure a newly designed flight suit or integrated aircrew ensemble.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MS. LEE OF CALIFORNIA

AMENDMENT No. 111: At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following new section:

SEC. _____. It is the policy of the United States to withdraw all United States Armed Forces and military contractors from Iraq by December 31, 2011, and no provision of any agreement between the United States and Iraq that amends the timeline for such withdrawal in a manner that obligates the United States to a security commitment to respond to internal or external threats against Iraq after such date shall be in force with respect to the United States unless the agreement is in the form of a treaty requiring the advice and consent of the Senate (or is intended to take that form in the case of an agreement under negotiation) or is specifically authorized by an Act of Congress enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MS. LEE OF CALIFORNIA

AMENDMENT No. 112: At the end of the bill (before the spending reduction amount), insert the following:

SEC. _____. (a) PROHIBITION ON USE OF FUNDS.—None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for any account of the Department of Defense (other than accounts excluded by subsection (b)) in excess of the amount made available for such account for fiscal year 2011, unless the financial statements of the Department for fiscal year 2011 are validated as ready for audit within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) ACCOUNTS EXCLUDED.—The following accounts are excluded from the prohibition in subsection (a):

(1) Military personnel, reserve personnel, and National Guard personnel accounts of the Department of Defense.

(2) The Defense Health Program account.

(c) VALIDATION DEFINED.—In this section, the term "validation", with respect to the auditability of financial statements, means a determination, following an examination, that the financial statements comply with generally accepted accounting principles and applicable laws and regulations and reflect reliable internal controls.

(d) WAIVER.—The President may waive subsection (a) with respect to a component or program of the Department if the President certifies that applying the subsection to that component or program would harm national security or members of the Armed Forces who are in combat.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. ENGEL

AMENDMENT No. 113: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used by the Department of Defense to lease or purchase new light duty vehicles, for any executive fleet, or for an agency's fleet inventory, except in accordance with Presidential Memorandum—Federal Fleet Performance, dated May 24, 2011.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. GOHMERT

AMENDMENT No. 114: At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated, expended, or used in any manner to support military operations, including NATO or United Nations operations, in Libya or in Libya's airspace.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. GOSAR

AMENDMENT No. 115: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated or expended for assistance to the following entities:

- (1) Iran.
- (2) Hamas.
- (3) Hizbullah.
- (4) The Muslim Brotherhood.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. WELCH

AMENDMENT No. 116: At the end of the bill (before the short title), add the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for tax collection purposes by the Afghan Ministry of Finance.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. WELCH

AMENDMENT No. 117: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. Not more than $200,000,000 of the funds provided by title IX under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Army" may be available for the Commander's Emergency Response Program, and the amount otherwise provided under such heading is hereby reduced by $200,000,000.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. TONKO

AMENDMENT No. 118: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to pay a contractor under a contract with the Department of Defense for costs of any amount paid by the contractor or subcontractor to an employee performing work under the contract for compensation if the compensation of the employee for a fiscal year exceeds the rate payable for level I of the Executive Schedule under section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, regardless of the contract funding source.

H.R. 2219

OFFERED BY: MR. LEWIS OF GEORGIA

AMENDMENT No. 119: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. The Secretary of Defense shall post on the public website of the Department of Defense the cost to each American taxpayer of each of the wars in Afghanistan, Iraq, and Libya.

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. LAMBORN

AMENDMENT No. 5: Page 23, line 4, strike "expended;" and all that follows through "6864(a).", and insert "expended."

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT No. 6: Page 23, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $1,304,636,000)".

Page 24, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $289,420,000)".

Page 24, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $476,993,000)".

Page 28, line 13, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $820,488,000)".

Page 28, line 23, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $100,000,000)".

Page 29, line 7, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $160,000,000)".

Page 31, line 21, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $6,000,000)".

Page 32, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $500,000)".

Page 32, line 23, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $500,000)".

Page 52, line 15, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $68,400,000)".

Page 53, line 7, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $11,700,000)".

Page 53, line 13, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $10,700,000)".

Page 54, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $1,350,000)".

Page 54, line 12, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $250,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $3,250,437,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT No. 7: Page 23, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $1,304,636,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $1,304,363,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT No. 8: Page 25, line 18, strike "2012," and all that follows through "of the Treasury:," and insert "2012:".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT No. 9: Page 24, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $289,420,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $289,420,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 10: Page 24, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $476,993,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $476,993,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 11: Page 28, line 13, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $820,488,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $820,488,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 12: Page 28, line 23 after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $100,000,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $100,000,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 13: Page 29, line 7, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $160,000,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $160,000,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 14: Page 31, line 21, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $6,000,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $6,000,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 15: Page 32, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $500,000)".

Page 32, line 23, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $500,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $500,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 16: Page 52, line 15, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $68,400,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $68,400,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 17: Page 53, line 7, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $11,700,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $11,700,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 18: Page 53, line 13, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $10,700,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $10,700,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 19: Page 54, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $1,350,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $1,350,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCCLINTOCK

AMENDMENT NO. 20: Page 54, line 12, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $250,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $250,000)".

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. LUETKEMEYER

AMENDMENT NO. 21: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for the study of the Missouri River Projects authorized in section 108 of the Energy and Water Development and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2009 (division C of Public Law 111-8).

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. LUETKEMEYER

AMENDMENT NO. 22: At the end of the bill, before the short title, insert the following:

SEC. ____ None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to continue the study conducted by the Army Corps of Engineers pursuant to section 5018(a)(1) of the Water Resources Development Act of 2007 or to implement activities proposed by such study.

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. FLEMING

AMENDMENT NO. 23: Page 29, line 7, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $160,000,000)".

Page 62, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $160,000,000)".

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

HONORABLE FRANK R. WOLF
EGYPT TRIP REPORT

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I submit a copy of my Egypt trip report.

PURPOSE

On June 26–28 I visited Egypt to meet with U.S. and host government officials and key civil society actors, specifically to address human rights and religious freedom concerns, especially during this critical time of transition.

MEETINGS

I met with U.S. Ambassador Margaret Scobey and received a modified country team brief from embassy staff. I spoke with U.S./Western print correspondents and saw Tahrir Square—site of recent pro-democracy protests.

I met with nearly a dozen Christian, Muslim, Baha'i, and youth activists, including a leading evangelical minister, Coptic youth leader and prominent Baha'i blogger.

I also discussed the country's transition with political activists, including 2005 presidential candidate and former political prisoner Ayman Nour, who is again seeking the presidency.

I discussed interfaith dialogue with Sheikh Al-Azhar Ahmed Al-Tayyeb, the leading scholar in Sunni Islam, and met with Muslim Brotherhood official Essam El-Erriani to caution the group to respect religious freedom.

I worshiped in a Coptic Orthodox Church and visited St. Mary's Church in Imbaba (a Cairo suburb) which had been destroyed by radical Islamists on May 7. I also met with a woman who runs an orphanage and social services organization for the Christian "zabaleen" (trash collectors) in Cairo.

I met with Deputy Foreign Minister Wafaa Bassim and other representatives of the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and raised concerns about human rights and the prospects of a transition to a true democracy.

In my meetings with Egyptian government officials, I mentioned that this year I had introduced bipartisan legislation, H.R. 440, (which now has 75 cosponsors) that would create a Special Envoy position at the State Department to focus specifically on the challenges faced by religious minorities in key countries in the Middle East, including Egypt. The legislation was introduced in January, prior to the political unrest in Egypt, but has arguably never been more needed. Ancient religious minority communities, among them Coptic Christians, are important moderating influences and are critical to the future of a democratic and pluralistic Egypt.

I met with representatives of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) including the National Democratic Institute (NDI) and International Republican Institute (IRI).

HUMAN RIGHTS AND RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

Coptic Orthodox and other Christians told me that they feared sectarian violence in the current political vacuum, and were concerned about continued discrimination in government hiring and building churches. They said that they welcomed the Government of Egypt's announced intention to draft a Unified Places of Worship Law, but cautioned that the few details that had emerged thus far indicate that the draft needs much work before it genuinely puts mosques and churches on equal footing.

In my meetings with Baha'i leaders we discussed the community's continued difficulties in securing government documents like birth and marriage certificates. I intend to pursue this matter further with the Egyptian Government, pressing them to rescind the 1960 decree that closed Baha'i assemblies and seized their assets.

In my meetings with Christian and secular Muslim democracy activists, I was informed that Islamist elements in Egypt seek an Iran-like theocratic state. Some interlocutors worried that the Egyptian Army favors Muslim Brothers and Salafists. Many agreed that if Islamists were to win in the upcoming elections they would allow "one man, one vote, one time," thereby making their electoral victory irreversible.

While meeting with senior representatives of the Muslim Brotherhood (MB) I sought to press them on their intentions. I raised concern about the application of shariah law, especially as it relates to the rights of minorities, and made it clear that my concerns were shared by many in Washington. Freedom-loving people the world over should be very concerned if the MB comes to power in Egypt. We must not close our eyes to their stated plans.

DEMOCRATIC TRANSITION

Some Egyptian activists and most religious freedom advocates were pessimistic about the transition to date and prospects for a free, tolerant, and democratic government after elections.

Several of these activists stressed that the best way to counter Islamists in the short run is to first draft a constitution and delay elections until democratic parties have formed and become operational. One activist went so far as to say that he was 80 percent sure Egypt would become an Islamist state akin to Iran unless the current transition process and timeline is altered.

Activists also said that secular, pro-democracy parties need to take additional steps to get organized and build support across the sectarian divide. One human rights activist underscored the long-term importance of secular education and more interaction between Christian and Muslim youth.

RECOMMENDATIONS

In light of the meetings I had and the insights I gained, I came away with a number of broad-based policy recommendations:

The U.S. Government should encourage the Egyptian Government to temporarily delay parliamentary elections, currently scheduled for September. Under the Mubarak regime free speech and freedom of assembly were curtailed, sectarian divisions were stoked and the press was restricted—some of these issues remain under the current transitional government and are not conducive to a healthy electoral process. In fact, at present, the Muslim Brotherhood (MB) and remnants of the former ruling party are best positioned for victory, in part because they are better organized and funded. We must recognize that elections are but a component of a true democracy and guard against the impulse to move too swiftly in a direction that would likely guarantee an MB victory.

When the elections are held, independent international election monitors must be present and must be granted unfettered access to polling stations, etc. In my meetings with the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs I stressed that the credibility of any future election, whenever it takes place, would hinge on the involvement and presence of international observers. The importance of independent monitors and observers was underscored during my meetings with NDI and IRI. Their insight and election expertise is invaluable.

The United States must seriously consider conditioning U.S. foreign assistance, specifically military assistance, to Egypt. Since the Camp David Peace Accords, Egypt has received over $60 billion in U.S. foreign assistance—the second largest overall recipient of such funding. Given the Mubarak regime's human rights and religious freedom abuses, I have long believed this assistance should be conditioned on improvements in these areas. I understand that Egypt is a proud country with a rich history. However, at this time of historic transition in Egypt and tight budgetary times at home, U.S. taxpayer dollars ought not be given to a government that will persecute its own people. Aid to Egypt should be conditioned upon the government respecting and upholding universally recognized human rights norms. This is especially important as Egypt moves toward crafting a new constitution. It is imperative that this constitution is fully secular and include, among other things, religious freedom protections. Ultimately, foreign assistance, especially of this magnitude, is a key leverage point and should be used accordingly, particularly with the Supreme Council of the Egyptian Armed Forces (SCAF).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank the U.S. embassy personnel, outgoing Ambassador Margaret Scobey, Peter Shea, my control officer, and Liz Colton for their assistance in making this trip possible and for their dedicated service to their country.

I would also like to acknowledge the good work of the press in Egypt, some of whom I had the opportunity to meet. At a time of such monumental and rapid change they clearly had a read on the national pulse and their reporting of events in real time is critical.

I would also like to thank the many civil society representatives I met, but for security reasons have opted not to mention by name, who gave a candid and courageous assessment of the challenges facing their country.

CONCLUSION

The Egyptian people have endured much over the years. The State Department's annual human rights report released in April found the following:

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

The government limited citizens' right to change their government and extended a state of emergency that has been in place almost continuously since 1967. Security forces used unwarranted lethal force and tortured and abused prisoners and detainees, in most cases with impunity. Prison and detention center conditions were poor. Security forces arbitrarily arrested and detained individuals, in some cases for political purposes, and kept them in prolonged pretrial detention. The executive branch exercised control over and pressured the judiciary. The government partially restricted freedom of expression. The government's respect for freedoms of assembly, association, and religion was poor, and nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) continued to face restrictions.

In the face of decades of human rights and religious freedom abuses under the Mubarak regime, successive U.S. administrations, including the Obama administration, failed to advocate for those whose voices were being silenced. Many pro-democracy activists and religious minorities that I spoke with while in Egypt felt abandoned by the West.

At this historic time of transition, we must not make that mistake again. While there is a palpable sense of anticipation and even hope about what the future might hold for the Egyptian people, the outcome is far from guaranteed.

There are reliable reports of human rights abuses and political repression following Mubarak's resignation. For example, a recently released Congressional Research Service report indicated that:

The SCAF has warned news organizations that it is illegal to criticize the military in the press. A military court sentenced a blogger (Maikel Nabil) to three years in prison for insulting the military. Others have criticized the SCAF over press reports that female detainees in military custody were subject to "virginity tests" by doctors.

Given the nature and extent of U.S. assistance to Egypt over the years, the U.S. military has developed good relations with the Egyptian military and we should leverage those ties as Egypt looks to transition from military to civilian rule. It will be critical for Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, among others, to engage with the SCAF.

Ultimately, I believe that the majority of Egyptians of all faiths want democracy. The question is will it be taken away from them after a single election?

Their yearning for true freedom and democracy must not be underestimated. We have a responsibility to stand with them and help them realize their aspirations.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN GARRARD

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate an outstanding citizen of South Alabama who has dedicated his life to the service of his community and his fellow man. I am proud to inform this House that John Garrard of Atmore, Alabama, was recently honored with the Atmore Chamber of Commerce's Lifetime Achievement Award.

A resident of Atmore for over 60 years, Mr. Garrard has a long and distinguished record of public service. A World War II veteran of the U.S. Navy, Mr. Garrard graduated from Millsaps College with a degree in economics and business administration and a minor in secondary education. He soon put his education to good use back in his community.

He began his career as a teacher at Escambia County High School. Afterwards, he joined the First National Bank of Atmore, where he rose to the position of president and where he continues to serve on the board of directors.

Mr. Garrard has also served on the Atmore Public Library Board for 48 years, was a member of the Atmore Rotary Club for 30 years, and was a part of Fountain Prison Ministry for 15 years. Mr. Garrard was also named Atmore's Citizen of the Year in 1981.

Today, even in retirement, Mr. Garrard continues to serve his community as a member of the Atmore City Council. The extent of Mr. Garrard's commitments is considerable. It is because of the work of people like John Garrard that small towns throughout south Alabama, and around the country, are able to thrive and maintain a vibrant sense of community.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the people of Escambia County and South Alabama, I ask my colleagues to join me in thanking Mr. John Garrard for his service, and applauding the example of civic engagement that he has set. His presence is surely felt throughout his community which has benefitted from his many contributions of time and talent. Through his life of service and dedication, he has definitely earned this award, and I am proud to join his many friends and family in saluting him for this most deserving honor.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 500 on July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

CONGRATULATING PHIL JOHNSON, ATMORE'S CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate a distinguished citizen of South Alabama for his exemplary service to our region and his community. I am pleased to note that Phil Johnson was recently named Atmore, Alabama's 2010 Citizen of the Year.

If a leader is someone who is willing to give of himself in order to benefit society, then Phil Johnson certainly fits the definition of a leader. His stamp on Atmore and surrounding Escambia County is his legacy of developing local arts programs and inspiring a passion for the arts among our young people.

Ten years ago, Mr. Johnson played a leading role in founding the Greater Escambia Council for the Arts (GECA) and has been instrumental in raising awareness for the arts throughout his community.

Mr. Johnson has also performed in, directed, and produced an exceptional number of performances, and helped secure a theater in downtown Atmore.

Thanks to Mr. Johnson's vision and dedication, the residents of Atmore and Escambia County have enormous opportunities in the arts. From actors to playgoers to the young people who have become involved in the arts for the first time, many have benefited from Mr. Johnson's work and achievements.

Mr. Speaker, as you know, the arts serve a vital role in our communities, and they can have an especially large impact in small towns like Atmore.

I ask my colleagues to join me in commending Mr. Johnson for his remarkable service, and to join the people of Atmore in recognizing the great difference he has made in that community.

HONORING GILBERT TREVIÑO

HON. HENRY CUELLAR

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. CUELLAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the late Gilbert Treviño, a soldier and researcher who dedicated nearly 30 years of his life to the United States Marines both on the field and in the lab.

A Laredo native, Mr. Treviño moved to College Station in 1942 to attend Texas A&M University. His scholarly pursuits were placed on hold when the United States plunged into World War II. He joined the United States Marine Corps in 1944 and witnessed the perils of war at the Battle of Iwo Jima, a battle, on which he wrote in his 2006 memoir. After serving our country, Mr. Treviño returned to school in 1947 to complete a professional veterinary degree and later received a Master's at Texas A&M University and Ph.D. from Michigan State University.

Mr. Treviño met Chris, who would eventually become his wife, while he was working in Washington, DC. The couple was together just under a year when he received word he was to be stationed in Japan. The pair planned their wedding in just eight days and moved to Japan, where their two children were born.

Mr. Treviño served in Michigan, Maryland, and Kentucky as an advisor to the Surgeon General for the Department of Agriculture before returning to College Station to teach at his alma mater. He spent his career in classrooms and military research labs, where his scientific investigations contributed to a vaccine for rabies. Mr. Treviño's devotion to education provided a source of inspiration for the younger generations of his family; his children, Elisa and Steven, as well as his nieces and nephews, all took note of his accomplishments and many pursued postsecondary education as a result.

Mr. & Mrs. Treviño moved back to Laredo after he retired from the university in 1981 where he remained active in the Laredo veterans' community. He raised funds and accompanied the city's Gold Star mothers to Washington, DC to visit the Vietnam Memorial after its completion in 1982. When the Laredo Animal Clinic veterinarian was unavailable, Mr. Treviño happily performed examinations and conducted surgeries in his absence. He was a man of integrity and determination, and did whatever he could to help others.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored and privileged to have the opportunity to recognize the late Gilbert Treviño. He is no longer with us, but his contributions to his country, profession, and community will live on. Thank you.

RECOGNIZING SERGEANT FIRST CLASS JOSE WEEKS, RECIPIENT OF THE 2010 GRUBER AWARD

HON. ADAM SMITH

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Sergeant 1st Class Jose Weeks of the 4th Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division for earning the 2010 Gruber Award as the best field artilleryman in the United States Army.

The Gruber Award was established in 2002 to recognize the outstanding individuals who represent excellence among field artillerymen.

Sergeant Jose Weeks dedicates himself to strengthening his unit by training them to be prepared for any situation. On July 14, 2010, when his convoy came under attack, an improvised explosive device struck the lead vehicle in his patrol. One of the soldiers in the patrol was severely injured by shrapnel. By the time the medic arrived, the soldiers inside the damaged vehicle had already begun emergency care and had applied a tourniquet to the wounded soldier's leg—a practice in which Weeks had repeatedly drilled his crew. Their rapid response saved the soldier's life and demonstrated Weeks's effectiveness as a trainer. Saving the life of another soldier through effective emergency training merits Weeks receiving the Gruber award.

Weeks's Battalion Commander, Lieutenant Colonel Terrence Braley, confirmed, "Sergeant First Class Weeks is an adaptable, flexible leader and a master artilleryman. . . . He can move from doing his core competencies to firing battery platoon sergeant . . . to conducting crew drills [to] IED patrol without skipping a beat."

Jose Weeks is an exemplary soldier who is highly deserving of this award. It is an honor to recognize him for his leadership and commitment to serving in the United States Army.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues in the House of Representatives please join me in congratulating Sergeant 1st Class Jose Weeks on receiving the Gruber Award as the best field artilleryman in the United States Army.

IN HONOR OF H.E. FATHER MIGUEL D'ESCOTO BROCKMANN'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF ORDINATION TO THE PRIESTHOOD

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of the 50th anniversary of H.E. Father Miguel d'Escoto Brockmann's ordination to the priesthood. Father d'Escoto has dedicated his life and ministry to peace, social justice, and solidarity.

Father d'Escoto was born in 1933 in Los Angeles, California, but spent a majority of his childhood in Nicaragua. After returning to the United States, he began studying at the Catholic seminary at Maryknoll in 1953. In 1961, Father d'Escoto Brockmann was ordained a priest of the Maryknoll Missionaries. Father d'Escoto earned his Master's of Science from Columbia University's School of Journalism in 1962.

Father d'Escoto has focused his ministry on helping the poor and disadvantaged populations of the world. In 1963, Father d'Escoto founded the National Institute of Research and Population Action in Chile. Through this organization, he sought to empower impoverished populations living in slum neighborhoods through community action in defense of labor rights. In 1970, while serving as Maryknoll's Social Communications Department, Father d'Escoto founded Orbis Books, the publishing arm of Maryknoll Fathers and Brothers. Orbis quickly became a leader in religious publishing, offering works on spirituality, theology, and current affairs, often from a Third World perspective. In the aftermath of a 1972 earthquake that devastated the capital city of Managua, Nicaragua, Father Brockmann mobilized assistance for the victims and established the Nicaraguan Foundation for Integral Community Development.

As a veteran statesman and political leader, Father d'Escoto served as the Republic of Nicaragua's Minister for Foreign Affairs from July 1979 until April 1990. During his tenure, he played a key role in the Contadora and Esquipulas peace processes to end internal armed conflicts in Central America in the 1980s. He was later elected as President of the 63rd Session of the United Nations General Assembly, and served in this role from September 2008 to September 2009. Father d'Escoto is currently a member of the UN Human Rights Council Advisory Committee.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, please join me in honoring the 50th anniversary of H.E. Father Miguel d'Escoto Brockmann's ordination to the priesthood and his significant contributions to the global community.

RECOGNITION OF THE 250TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE TOWN OF GREAT BARRINGTON, MASSACHUSETTS

HON. JOHN W. OLVER

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 250th anniversary of the founding of the town of Great Barrington, Massachusetts, including the village of Housatonic. The town was incorporated by the colonial Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Sir Francis Bernard, on June 30, 1761. Nestled in the Berkshire Hills, Great Barrington features natural resources such as Monument Mountain, Lake Mansfield, and the scenic Housatonic River. It is the town that saw the first open resistance to British rule in 1774, Henry Knox's cannon caravan passing through to Fort Ticonderoga in 1776, and provided a distinguished roster of military personnel to every major conflict in which America has participated.

Great Barrington has also been the home of poet and journalist William Cullen Bryant, inventor William Stanley—who first lit the streets of Great Barrington—and inventor Marcus Rogers. Elizabeth Freeman, who successfully sued for her freedom from slavery in 1781, Laura Ingersoll Secord, the Canadian heroine of the War of 1812, Anson Jones, the last president of the Republic of Texas and James Weldon Johnson, the co-writer of the Negro National Anthem all resided in Great Barrington. W.E.B. Dubois, distinguished writer, editor, sociologist and activist, graduated from Searles High School in Great Barrington as valedictorian before embarking upon a lifetime of achievement that included the founding of the Niagara Movement, the precursor to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Persons. The citizens of Great Barrington stand as an example of what hard work and resolve can accomplish.

The town of Great Barrington is also the center of many historical, commercial and cultural resources, including the Mason Library in Great Barrington and Ramsdell Library in Housatonic, the Mahaiwe Performing Arts Center, the Captain Truman Wheeler House, the Dwight-Henderson House, and the famed Newsboy Statue. With its scenic natural resources, Great Barrington has become the summer vacation destination of thousands and continues to be a vibrant and charming community.

On the occasion of the 250th anniversary of the town of Great Barrington, Massachusetts, I congratulate its citizens and praise their dedication and perseverance throughout the town's history. I look forward with enthusiastic support as we continue to work together for a prosperous future.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 499 on July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

ON THE OCCASION OF THE TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL METRO DETROIT YOUTH DAY

HON. GARY C. PETERS

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. PETERS. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to rise today to recognize the organizers, supporters and participants of the twenty-ninth annual Metro Detroit Youth Day.

While Metro Detroit Youth Day has many leaders, organizers, participants and supporters which make it possible, one man, Mr. Ed Deeb, stands at the foundation of this great youth empowering event. When asked by the Mayor of Detroit to rise to the challenge of overcoming divisions to create a stronger community, Ed answered, rallying the business community to work with Detroit youth to overcome the divide between business and youth. From this work, Youth Day was born as an event which calmed tensions through dialogue between Detroit business owners and the youth. Under Ed's leadership as chairman and coordinator of Youth Day, it has continued to grow and evolve into an event focused on nurturing the great potential of our youth in the City of Detroit.

Part of Youth Days' evolution included expanding its impact on participants, supporters and volunteers. As part of this expansion, Youth Day began to focus on providing youth with guidance, mentoring, substance abuse prevention and motivational activities designed to allow them to channel their creativity and ideas into positive outcomes. As part of this empowerment, Youth Day began awarding participants with scholarships for youth that displayed outstanding citizenship, leadership and service. With over seven hundred scholarships awarded since 1991, Youth Day has undoubtedly provided many Metro Detroit young adults with the opportunity to pursue higher education and more fully realize their potential.

The success of Ed's vision speaks for itself, with Youth Day having become a tradition for the Metro Detroit community. Since its inception so many years ago, Youth Day has grown from twelve hundred participants to over thirty-seven thousand annually, with more than seven hundred thousand youth participants throughout its history. Of equal importance are the more than fifteen hundred annual volunteers who come from over six hundred community organizations and businesses who supervise sports clinics, games, contests and many other activities that are a part of this daylong event. For its impact, Youth Day has been awarded numerous accolades including a Point of Light award from President George H.W. Bush and the Michigan Governor's award for Physical Fitness.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the twenty-ninth annual Metro Detroit Youth Day and recognizing the organizers, supporters, volunteers and participants for working together to build a stronger future for Michigan youth in Metro Detroit.

IN HONOR OF ANNE FEENEY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Anne Feeney on the occasion of her 60th birthday. Anne is an exceptional person and a longtime political activist and musician. She has been called a "union maid and hell raiser" and has actively fought for social justice over the past four decades.

Anne was born in Charleroi, Pennsylvania on July 1, 1951. From an early age Anne's two great passions were politics and music. She was greatly influenced by the Vietnam War, the Civil Rights Movement, and her grandfather, William P. Feeney, a mineworkers' organizer and violinist.

Anne graduated from Fontbonne Academy in 1968. She spent the next year saving money until she had enough to purchase a Martin D-28 guitar in 1969. Anne played this guitar for over forty years at political rallies and festivals around the world until she recently retired it from use.

By 1972 Anne had co-founded the Pittsburgh Action Against Rape, which still provides services to rape victims in the Pittsburgh area. She graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in 1974 and the University of Pittsburgh School of Law in 1978. She worked as a trial attorney for twelve years and served as president of the Pittsburgh Musicians' Union from 1997-1998. To date, Anne is the only woman elected to this prestigious position. Her political activism continues to this day. Currently, Anne is a member of the Industrial Workers of the World and the American Federation of Musicians.

Since 1991, Anne has toured around the world playing her music and participating in labor and political rallies. She has released several albums and her music has been covered by the band Peter, Paul, and Mary. Anne is a proud mother of two, a gifted musician, and a renowned political activist.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in extending warm wishes to Anne Feeney on her 60th birthday.

BIRTHDAY OF IRV PICKLER

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to honor the life of Irv Pickler, and wish him the best in his 90th year of life. Irv has demonstrated an exceptional dedication to public service in the community, and has made a lasting effect on all the people he has touched.

After graduating from California State University, Los Angeles, with a bachelor's degree in Business Administration, Irv joined the United States Army and later transferred to the United States Air Force. In England, he flew 35 missions into France and Germany as a bombardier-navigator. After 4 years of service, he returned to Los Angeles to be with his wife and young children.

Eventually settling in Southern California, Irv opened his own printing company, "Printing Dimensions," in Orange County. Today, nearly 55 years later, Irv works to bring people together to accomplish client objectives with his company, "Pickler and Associates." Irv has demonstrated a firm commitment to community involvement. As a member of the Kiwanis Club of Greater Anaheim, he was twice named "Kiwanian of the Year." In 1993, he was elected as a Distinguished Lieutenant Governor of the club. Irv has also served 25 years on the Cypress College Foundation Board of Directors.

In the 1970s, Irv was appointed to the Cemetery Commission in Anaheim, and to the Orange County Planning Commission, on which he served one term as a chairman. In 1982, Irv was elected to the Anaheim City Council, serving a total of 12 years, including 3 times as Mayor pro-tem. He consolidated half a dozen Orange County transportation agencies into the Orange County Transportation Authority, which produced gains in efficiency, and increased accountability. When California introduced its first cellular solar-powered callbox system, Irv was behind it. He negotiated the agreement with the California Department of Transportation and the California Private Transportation Corporation to construct the nation's first fully-automated, congestion priced toll road, State Route 91. Irv laid the groundwork for the purchase of right-of-way and widening of Interstate 5, which resulted in the largest public works project in Orange County in over a generation. He also helped pass Measure M, the successful sales tax program that invested in voter-approved transportation projects. It's no question that he demonstrated exceptional leadership during his tenure as Vice President of the Orange County Transportation Authority.

Irv currently serves as a member of the Orange County Water District Board of Directors. He has previously served as Water Issues Committee Chairman and on the Administration/Finance Committee, Investment Committee, External Communications Task Team, and Santa Ana Water Project Authority. During his tenure on the Water District Board of Directors, Irv played a key role in the development of the revolutionary Groundwater Replenishment System, a project that has been recognized with numerous national and international awards.

Irv has served as chairman of the Orange County Solid and Hazardous Waste Management Advisory Committee; president of Orange County Division of the League of California Cities, and member the Anaheim Union High School District Board of Trustees, Anaheim's Parks and Recreation Commission, the Anaheim Public Library Board, the Transportation Corridor Agencies, Southern California Regional Rail Authority, and the Southern California Air Quality Management District Inter-Agency Implementation Company.

Other government agencies with which Irv has worked include the Los Angeles/San Diego Rail Corridor Committee, Orange County Cities Airport Authority, Southern California Association of Governments, Foothill/Eastern Transportation Corridor Agency, and Metrolink Joint Committee, and he also supports Acacia Adult Day Care, Alzheimer's Foundation, the Anaheim Family YMCA, the Anaheim Boys and Girls Clubs, and Anaheim Arts Council.

It is clear that Irv Pickler has maintained a firm devotion to public service throughout his life. As he embarks upon his 90th year, I would like to recognize his achievements and thank him for his dedication.

HONORING MR. J.D. LINDSEY

HON. AUSTIN SCOTT

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. AUSTIN SCOTT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask you to join me in honoring Mr. J.D. Lindsey of Tift County, GA. Mr. Lindsey is a U.S. Marine and a decorated World War II Veteran. He received the Purple Heart for wounds suffered while serving our Nation on active duty. Since his discharge from the Marine Corps, he has worked tirelessly for veterans' causes and issues. He was responsible for obtaining the DAV van that is used to transport veterans to their medical appointments at the VAMC facility in Dublin, GA each week. He uses his personal funds to see that the van continues to run each week without interruption. When necessary, he has also used his personal vehicle to ensure that every veteran in need makes it to his or her appointments. He has unselfishly given of his time and money to not only serve our Nation while on active duty, but has remained committed to caring for his fellow veterans and their families all over the Tift area. Any number of citizens of Tifton have benefited greatly from his kindness and benevolence.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you join me today in honoring Mr. J.D. Lindsey for his unwavering commitment and service to our country and our community.

HONORING REVEREND GEORGE
LEE JOHNSON

HON. JEFF DENHAM

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. DENHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with my colleagues, Mr. NUNES and Mr. COSTA, to acknowledge and honor the life of a beloved leader in the Fresno Community, Reverend George Lee Johnson, and to recognize his tireless work as the Senior Pastor of Peoples Church. Ministering to thousands, Reverend Johnson earned the respect of fellow clergy and civic leaders alike.

The son of a Baptist minister, George Lee Johnson, or G.L. as he came to be known, grew up in Houston. He moved to Fresno in 1961 to work as the Associate General Director of the Latin American Orphanage. That same year, Reverend Johnson and his wife, Jackie, joined the then small Peoples Church. In 1963, Reverend Johnson became the Pastor of Peoples Church at the age 37.

Reverend Johnson's commitment to his faith and the congregation of Peoples Church resulted in significant growth of the organization. His uplifting messages of hope and faith appealed to many worshippers. In 1978, Peoples Church moved to a sanctuary with capacity of more than 2,000 people, allowing over 5,000 people to attend numerous different services on Sunday. With an ever-increasing following, Peoples Church attracted a mix of civic leaders. Moreover, Reverend Johnson's hard work and service were influential in the community of Fresno. He organized the Pastor's Prayer Summit in Oakhurst, where over 45 clergy members met to pray for guidance for civic leaders in combating Fresno's crime rate and resolving socioeconomic problems. The success of this event inspired Reverend Johnson to organize a weekly Citywide Pastors Prayer Meeting which began in 1993 and still takes place today. In 2001, the Reverend was instrumental in bringing the Central Valley Billy Graham Crusade to Bulldog Stadium, an event which united more than 200,000 people.

Reverend G.L. Johnson retired from Peoples Church in 2008 after 45 years of service as the Senior Pastor. However, his retirement from the church did not mark the end of his ministry. Reverend Johnson continued to support the church and lend his wisdom and knowledge to the many Fresno residents who looked to him for guidance. He also traveled throughout the world, teaching at various religious conferences. After a brave battle with cancer, Reverend George Lee Johnson passed away surrounded by his loving family at the age of 83.

Mr. Speaker, please join Mr. NUNES, Mr. COSTA, and I in honoring Reverend George Lee Johnson for his unwavering leadership, and recognizing his accomplishments and contributions as Pastor of Peoples Church. The life of Reverend George Lee Johnson serves as an example of excellence to those in our community, and his legacy will not be soon forgotten.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 498 on July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "yes."

INTRODUCING THE AMERICAN
TRAVELER DIGNITY ACT OF 2011

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce legislation to protect Americans from physical and emotional abuse by Federal Transportation Security Administration employees conducting screenings at the nation's airports. Year after year the TSA seems more belligerent toward Americans simply seeking to travel within their own country—a most basic of our fundamental rights—and sadly Americans are just expected to shut up and take it. We should not have to shut up and take it.

Many Americans continue to fool themselves into accepting TSA abuses by saying "I don't mind giving up my freedoms for security." In fact, they are giving up their liberties and not receiving security in return. Time and time again we see the revolting pictures of Federal screeners with their hands down the pants of children while parents watch helplessly in agony. We see elderly or disabled Americans being forced to endure all manner of indignity. At the same time, we repeatedly hear of passengers who seem to check all the boxes marked "suspicious activity" slipping through unencumbered. Just recently we read of a Nigerian immigrant breezing through TSA security checks to board a flight from New York to LA—with a stolen, expired boarding pass and an out-of-date student ID as his sole identification. We should not be surprised to find government ineptitude and indifference at the TSA, however.

What we ultimately need is real privatization of security, but not phony privatization with the same TSA screeners in private security firm uniforms still operating under the "guidance" of the Federal Government. Real security will be achieved when the airlines are once again in charge of protecting their property and their passengers.

To move us in that direction, I am today introducing the American Traveler Dignity Act, which establishes that any Federal employee or agency or any individual or entity that receives Federal funds is not immune from any U.S. law regarding physical contact with another person, making images of another person, or causing physical harm through the use of radiation-emitting machinery on another person. It means they are not above laws the rest of us must obey. As we continue to see more and more outrageous stories of TSA abuses and failures, I hope that my colleagues in the House will listen to their constituents and join with me to support this legislation.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. STEVE KING

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 24, I was delayed in leaving the Medal of Honor Recognition Ceremony for Staff Sergeant Salvatore Guinta and was unable to reach the floor to cast my vote before the vote was closed. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

ANOTHER UNFOLDING TRAGEDY
IN SUDAN

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I submit an article which recently ran in the BBC regarding the unfolding tragedy in Sudan.

On the eve of the birth of a new nation in South Sudan, Khartoum is once again perpetrating acts of violence against its own people—this time in Southern Kordofan.

First-hand accounts emerging from the region are chilling . . . door to door executions, reportedly based on ethnicity and political affiliation; Antonov bombers leaving a trail of devastation in their wake, mass displacement.

The world says, "never again," and yet in the face of mounting atrocities, where is the outrage?

[From BBC News, June 23, 2011]

SUDAN'S SOUTH KORDOFAN: "BOMBINGS, BLOOD AND TERROR"

More than 70,000 people are said to have fled violence in Sudan's South Kordofan state, where the government says it is disarming rebels. The region borders South Sudan, a largely Christian and animist region, which is due to gain independence from the mostly Arabic-speaking, Muslim north on 9 July.

There is concern about the humanitarian crisis and the alleged atrocities being committed. The area has effectively been cut off by the military and not much has been heard from people in the area. One aid worker who has just left the region told the BBC's Will Ross about his experiences:

It is terrifying. The civilians try to hide but generally they run in panic and hence, sadly, there are many casualties who die because of shrapnel. There are bombings and shellings every day in different areas.

There is a plane called an Antonov which circles high in the sky and keeps coming over. Then there is the whistle of the bombs as they fall. You have a few seconds to run but you do not know if it is going to fall on you or not. The sounds of the explosions are huge and sometimes the craters they leave are five or six metres across.

Burning hot pieces of jagged metal, the shrapnel, go flying across the air and if you are not below the surface in a hole or a dug-out you are at huge risk.

BLOOD AND FLIES

Then there are the MiGs [planes] which come in very, very fast and low. These fire rockets and they are terrifying because they are on top of you before you know it. You have no warning.

They are very loud and so the terror that this incites in people, even if you survive these attacks, is enormous.

They can continue for hours on end. You can imagine how awful that is for women and children and men, rural farmers who have no military background whatsoever. And when they sense that this is not an enemy from outside that is attacking, this is their own government, they just do not understand why this is happening.

There are so many poignant, heart-breaking stories.

A local farmer was lying on the floor of a hospital in enormous pain, with a large piece of shrapnel that had gone through his leg, with blood and flies over him. Again and again he was asking the same desperate questions: "Why is our president doing this to us? Why is he bombing us?"

He kept saying: "This is wrong".

Then there was a young man who had fled a village that was attacked and when the SAF [northern] troops withdrew, he found to his horror that his wife and children had been abducted by the army.

With anguish in his voice he said he would rather have been killed than his wife and child taken.

"I don't know what they will do to them, I don't think I will see them again," he said.

No less than 75,000 people have been displaced, and because the bombing and shelling is continuing, that number is probably going up every day.

This is not a war of north versus south—this is about a people within north Sudan who want a peaceful existence in the north just with social and economic opportunities and access to justice.

The Nuba, a large percentage of whom are Muslims, feel their future is with north Sudan.

The people of South Kordofan, both the Nuba and people from the nomadic Arab tribes, feel marginalised by Khartoum. They feel they are not granted basic human rights.

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE EXECUTIONS

The area offers a remarkable alternative vision of how Christian and Muslims and animists can live together. I have witnessed after Eid, the Christians bringing breakfast for their Muslim brothers and sisters, and at Christmas and Easter all the people from the mosque coming to say "congratulations".

But people there feel the government in the last few weeks has revealed it has no interest in allowing a political solution that gives rights to an alternative voice in the north, where there is religious tolerance and Christians and Muslims living together.

There is so much anguish. People say they don't want war but they say until the policies of Khartoum change, they see no alternative.

They are asking for help from all northern Sudanese to come back from this madness and have a look at how to build a peaceful, tolerant society in the north.

We are getting very strong reports that house-to-house executions are going on by internal security forces where summary executions are taking place based on ethnicity, political affiliation and even how black you are. These are civilians, intellectuals, teachers, community leaders, Muslims and Christians, and often they are killed by their throats being slit.

This may be only the beginning and it could well continue for many months and intensify. There is a complete lack of access—we learnt that the only airstrip that was left had been bombed and we have heard the government of Sudan will shoot down UN flights operating in South Kordofan so humanitarian flights are no longer an option.

We know that there is no access from the north by road so we are looking at a population that is now effectively besieged—without access to services or humanitarian aid and who are under fire.

I fear the government has started these military operations to try to ensure that opposition voice is completely squashed before the 9 July, so that no thought of help of any sort could come from the south, knowing that the emerging republic of South Sudan would be very unwilling to get involved as it would endanger their independence.

The great majority of Nuba people that I have spoken to are very worried the Egyptian forces that make up a large percentage of the UN peacekeepers are not seen as sufficiently neutral. Their cultural and religious background and their behaviour and attitude towards black Nuba people are unhelpful.

HONORING THE NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS ACT

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, 76 years ago, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed into law the National Labor Relations Act, which continues to protect the rights of employees and employers, encourages fair bargaining, and blocks harmful practices that hurt our Nation's workers, businesses and the economy.

This important piece of legislation in our Nation's history has allowed working Americans to enjoy their rights to assemble and organize into labor unions. Unions have been instrumental in strengthening the middle class. Leaders like AFL-CIO President Dennis Hughes, DC 37 Executive Director Lillian Roberts, Teamsters Local 237 President Gregory Floyd, SEIU Local 1199 President George Gresham and SEIU 32BJ President Mike Fishman, and AFT and UFT Presidents Randi Weingarten and Michael Mulgrew have all marched in the spirit of A. Philip Randolph and Thomas Van Arsdale to protect the civil rights of all Americans in the workplace and I stand by my fellow soldiers in our continued struggle to preserve the Labor Movement and all the victories fought and won.

With the recent change of rules enacted by the National Labor Relations Board, working Americans will be able to quickly unionize and cut the time businesses have to mount anti-union campaigns. There is still more to do for our workers. That is why I co-sponsored the Employee Non-Discrimination Act which prohibits discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender in the workforce. I will keep on supporting other bills that ensure labor rights and will work hand in hand with union leaders to create an equal partnership in revitalizing our economy."

IN RECOGNITION OF TEMPLE
EMANU-EL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. FRANK PALLONE, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Temple Emanu-El of Edison, New Jersey, as its members gather to celebrate its 50th Anniversary. Under the leadership of Rabbi Emeritus Alfred Landsberg and Rabbi Deborah Bravo, Temple Emanu-El is a respected educational and religious institution for many families whose members remain committed to various community service activities. Their hard work and dedication are worthy of this body's recognition.

Since its founding in 1961, Temple Emanu-El's membership remains open to persons of any race, sex, ethnic background, physical capability, sexual orientation, national origin or marital status. The synagogue is a sanctuary for interfaith families, gay and lesbian groups as well as numerous organizations and religious communities interested in pursuing the Jewish faith. Its rich diversity ensures the organization's ability to provide various religious programs for all ages. The synagogue is proud to be the first religious school within the region to offer special education programs to its members. Pre-school students have the opportunity to celebrate Shabbat through song and craft programs. Teens also get together at Temple Emanu-El to study Judaism with their friends while community members remain engaged in the sacred work of 'tikkun olam', the repair of the world, through various social action programs.

The worshippers of Temple Emanu-El are committed to participating in various community programs and service endeavors. Food and monetary funds are collected by the worshippers and delivered to the members of the community. The members also partake in the weekend meals-on-wheels delivery program as they continue to reach out to members of their community in need.

The synagogue also maintains a commitment to provide various educational opportunities. Temple Emanu-El provides programs for the children to learn Hebrew and various Jewish traditions while adults are given the opportunity to study with Scholars-in-Resident and participate in Bar/Bat Mitzvah programs. Many congregants also join together on a weekly basis to study Torah. In addition to the plethora of activities offered at Temple Emanu-El, the synagogue remains a serene house of worship for its members to congregate and reflect.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in honoring Temple Emanu-El on its 50th Anniversary and thanking the members for their continued contribution to the Jewish community.

AFGHANISTAN DRAWDOWN

HON. ZOE LOFGREN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. ZOE LOFGREN of California. Mr. Speaker, in October, our troops will have been in Afghanistan for ten years. It is the longest war in our country's history. I am concerned that the mission has become more ambitious and our exit strategy has become increasingly vague.

This year is on pace to become the deadliest of this war. Over 1,600 Americans have been killed and 11,000 wounded in Operation Enduring Freedom. A 2008 study by RAND Corp. estimates that over 26 percent of troops may return from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan with mental health issues. In terms of financial costs, California taxpayers alone have spent over $50 billion on the war in Afghanistan. According to the Congressional Budget Office, ending the wars could save $1.4 trillion.

The President's announcement that he will begin removing surge troops does not reflect a significant policy change in Afghanistan. Removing the 30,000 surge troops from Afghanistan over the next year and a half only means that by the end of next year, we will be exactly where we were before the surge in December of 2009. Roughly 100,000 American soldiers will remain in Afghanistan to fight a war that I have serious reservations about.

I urge President Obama to reconsider his Afghanistan policy and commit to a meaningful drawdown of our troops.

HONORING TERRY DRESSLER

HON. LOIS CAPPS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Terry Dressler, recently retired after 33 years of public service devoted to protecting the air quality along the Central Coast of California.

Terry has had a distinguished career in his field, beginning his work with air pollution control in Ventura in 1978. He then worked in San Luis Obispo for almost eight years before coming to serve the Santa Barbara community for more than twenty three years, most recently serving for the last seven years as the Air Pollution Control Officer for the Santa Barbara County Air Pollution Control District (APCD).

As a result of the work of Terry and his team, the County of Santa Barbara has improved its air quality through attainment of federal standards and has made major progress towards meeting state standards. Terry has effectively instituted and enforced programs that reduce stationary, marine shipping, and mobile source emissions while raising community awareness of air quality issues. Additionally, he was instrumental in the creation of the District Community Advisory Council and has worked with its members on state and federal clean air strategy. These initiatives have enhanced the agency's reputation for excellence in local and statewide communities.

My staff and I have worked closely with Terry in his efforts to lead the district towards its clean air mission and I have seen firsthand the great progress and improved air quality standards instituted by Terry and the APCD. His strong leadership and knowledge have directly, and positively, influenced the health of the residents of the County of Santa Barbara.

Terry is recognized as a dedicated public servant who has devoted his career to protecting the health and safety of the citizens of the County of Santa Barbara and the State of California. Terry's accomplishments in the field of air quality and his charismatic presence have left a lasting impact on his colleagues, staff, and community members, and we can all breathe a little easier as a result of his outstanding efforts. I am pleased to commend Terry for his commitment to excellence in the field of air quality, and I wish him a happy retirement surfing the Central Coast.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO LINDA S. MULLER

HON. MAURICE D. HINCHEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and salute Linda S. Muller, who is marking her 20th Anniversary as President and Chief Executive Officer of The Greater Hudson Valley Family Health Center. Under Linda's diligent and tireless leadership, The Greater Hudson Valley Family Health Center has grown from a small facility located in the basement of St. Luke's Hospital serving 4,000 patients each year to a greatly expanded and modern health center providing comprehensive primary and preventive health care to more than 18,000 patients annually in the City of Newburgh and the surrounding towns in eastern Orange County. As a result of Linda's tremendous commitment and passion for universal health care, many thousands of medically underserved families and individuals in our region receive the highest quality of care from the dedicated physicians and staff at The Greater Hudson Valley Family Health Center.

In addition to overseeing the historic expansion of the health center's physical facilities, including the recent construction of a state-of-the-art new facility in the City of Newburgh, Linda has devoted a great deal of energy to increasing the services offered to our local community. The obstetrical health program developed by Linda in 2005 has now assisted more than 3,000 women in delivering healthy babies, many of whom now continue to receive health care at the health center. Linda also has responded to the urgent medical needs of our local community. This included creating programs to improve chronic health care management for diabetics and those with cardiovascular disease and initiating a model treatment program for people in our community living with HIV. Similarly, when it appeared that urgently needed treatment for people with substance abuse and chemical dependency problems might be lost to the City of Newburgh, Linda stepped in and created The Center for Recovery, which has now supported more than 800 patients in making a transition into healthy lifestyles free from drugs and alcohol.

Linda has led The Greater Hudson Valley Family Health Center through her strong dedication to the premise that health care is a right and not a privilege. She has imparted to every one of the more than 200 employees who work at the health center the importance of fulfilling the center's mission to provide high-quality, affordable, and easily accessible health care to everyone in our community, regardless of their status or ability to pay for care. Linda and her husband Charles will also celebrate another anniversary this summer, celebrating 40 years of marriage. They have three wonderful children, Jonathan, Christopher, and Jessica and three beautiful grandchildren, each brought into this world by one of the health center's extraordinary obstetricians.

IN RECOGNITION OF GEORGIA CARAWAY

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor a very special constituent of the 26th District of Texas, Georgia Caraway. After 13 years of service as the Executive Director of the Denton County Museums, Mrs. Caraway will retire later this month.

As Executive Director, Mrs. Caraway's professionalism and dedication has greatly impacted her community; she has spent her career striving to preserve Denton County's history through projects such as the Courthouse-on-the-Square Museum and the establishment of Denton County's Historical Park. Mrs. Caraway believes her greatest accomplishment was the founding of the Denton County African American Museum. Through her astute leadership and cooperative fundraising efforts, she enabled the restoration of the county's museums and saved taxpayers thousands of dollars. In addition to her work with the museums, she has also helped complete a series of historical photography books that commemorate Denton County, and she hopes these achievements will encourage others to remember the county's origins and history.

Mrs. Caraway has left a lasting legacy in Denton County through her work. I thank Mrs. Caraway for her service and am proud to represent her in Congress.

HONORING MS. JEANNE KUCEY

HON. MARIO DIAZ-BALART

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Jeanne Kucey on her recent election to the Board of Directors at the National Association of Federal Credit Unions, NAFCU.

Ms. Kucey has served as President and CEO of JetStream Federal Credit Union since 2009. Responsible for operations in both Miami Dade County and Puerto Rico, her extensive experience in the financial services arena, including her time with credit unions in Atlanta, Georgia and San Diego, California, will be a tremendous asset to the NAFCU board.

Not only does Ms. Kucey bring a wealth of financial management knowledge to the table, she exemplifies the community based nature of credit unions through her work with the "Marlene Ericca Empowering Workshops" which provides life skills and mentoring to local disadvantaged women. Ms. Kucey is also an active member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Ms. Kucey is a welcomed addition to the NAFCU board and will have the opportunity to make an immediate impact in her new role as recent regulatory reforms have created a particularly challenging time in the credit union community.

It is because of the hard work and dedication of Jeanne and others like her that the credit union community has been able to continue to serve its members during the tough economic times our country continues to experience.

I wish Ms. Kucey the best of luck in her new role as a member of the NAFCU Board of Directors. I look forward to working with her in this capacity and ask that my colleagues join me today in congratulating Jeanne on this achievement.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 497 on July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

CONGRATULATING CORPORAL BURT RICHARDS

HON. THEODORE E. DEUTCH

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. DEUTCH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Corporal Burt Richards for being awarded the American Red Cross Community Courage Award for his work in educating the youth of today about the service of veterans.

Corporal Richards and the local chapter of the Jewish War Veterans spearheaded the campaign to close Palm Beach County schools in remembrance of Veteran's Day. While they were not successful in their efforts to close schools, they were successful in creating a new lecture series called "The Veteran Speaks," which has ensured that students in Palm Beach County are educated about our American war veterans.

I would like to congratulate Corporal Richards and the American Red Cross for the Palm Beach-Treasure Coast region for their great work on behalf of veterans and for the award. It is an honor having Corporal Richards as a constituent, and I look forward to a continued partnership in educating south Florida's youth about our veterans.

HONORING EULESS CITY SECRETARY SUSAN CRIM FOR MORE THAN 21 YEARS AS A DEDICATED PUBLIC SERVANT

HON. KENNY MARCHANT

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. MARCHANT. Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct pleasure to rise today to recognize Mrs.

Susan Crim, a dedicated public servant who is retiring after serving more than 21 years as City Secretary for the City of Euless, TX.

Mrs. Crim was born in Woodward, OK, and is a graduate of Northwestern State University in Alva, OK, where she obtained an associates degree in applied science. She is also a graduate of the Texas Municipal Clerks Certification program, where she attained her Texas Registered Municipal Clerks Certification in January 1991. In 1996 and 2001, she served as a trustee for the Texas Municipal Clerks Certification Program. Mrs. Crim is also a member of the North Texas Municipal Clerks Association, where she served as president from 1996-1997.

Mrs. Crim has a distinguished work history within the public and private sectors. In 1979, Susan was part owner and operator of Circle C Drilling Company. Following her time at Circle C, she took a position as executive assistant at Dresser Atlas. Mrs. Crim then served as office manager at Pecan Grove Baptist Church and School from 1983-1987. In June 1987, Mrs. Crim began her career as City Secretary with the city of Rosenberg, TX, where she served from 1987-1990.

In 1990, Mrs. Crim was hired as City Secretary of Euless. As City Secretary, Mrs. Crim recorded and maintained the minutes at city council meetings, managed the official Euless City public records, organized local elections and held the responsibility as keeper of the "Seal of the City." As a fundamental part of the Euless city government, Mrs. Crim has tirelessly served multiple mayors, council members and various city departments in Euless.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to recognize Mrs. Crim for her service to the city of Euless. Her experience and expertise will be sorely missed. I ask all my distinguished colleagues to join me in congratulating Susan Crim on a tremendous career as well as wishing her the best in her future endeavors.

CHICKASAW WARRIOR STATUE DEDICATION

HON. DAN BOREN

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. BOREN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an important milestone for a prestigious institution of higher learning in eastern Oklahoma. Bacone College, the oldest college or university in Oklahoma, recently dedicated the statue "Chickasaw Warrior" at its Founders' Day ceremony. This statue is a gift from its artist, Enoch Kelly Haney, and the Chickasaw Nation. Its dedication is a very special moment for this institution. Standing proudly at the center of campus, this tall, imposing statue depicts a battle-ready Native American man clenching arrows gazing into the distance.

In the six months this statue has been on campus, it has become symbolic of the common spirit found everywhere at Bacone. Founded in 1880 by Professor Almon C. Bacone in Muskogee, Oklahoma, Bacone College has been educating students of all backgrounds for the past 131 years. With more than two dozen Native American tribes represented in Bacone College's diverse student body, Bacone is known for preparing its students for success and preserving their cultural heritage. This statue aptly represents Bacone's long-standing relationship with the Native American community.

This impressive statue was sculpted by Enoch Kelly Haney. A 1962 graduate of Bacone College, Haney has become an internationally renowned artist and sculptor. His work spans four decades and his statue, The Guardian, stands proudly atop the Oklahoma State Capitol. In addition to his contributions to the field of art, Haney served in the Oklahoma legislature and in 2005 was elected Principal Chief of the Seminole Nation of Oklahoma. I would like to honor him for his time and effort in creating this generous gift to Bacone College and for his continuing service to the citizens of the state of Oklahoma.

Finally, I want to commend the Chickasaw Nation for donating this impressive statue to the college. Chickasaw Nation Governor Bill Anoatubby described this occasion perfectly when he said this statue reflects the "unconquerable" nature of the Chickasaw people and their unwavering determination to persevere. Now this statue will stand as a testament to their spirit, and there is no doubt this extraordinary gift will serve as an icon for Bacone College's future.

In these times of limited federal funding for higher education, it is important for the United States Congress to remember the local and regional universities that educate so many of our citizens, thereby empowering them to improve the future of their families and communities. Bacone College is a tremendous asset to eastern Oklahoma, and I recognize the Chickasaw Nation for their contribution to this important institution of higher learning.

H.R. 2112, AGRICULTURE APPROPRIATIONS BILL

HON. KRISTI L. NOEM

OF SOUTH DAKOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mrs. NOEM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 2112, the Agriculture Appropriations bill. While agriculture, along with every other industry must take some reductions to get our spending under control, it should not be in a disproportionate manner. This bill would take a nearly 14 percent cut in discretionary funding compared to last year while other appropriations bills thus far have seen cuts less than 3 percent. I could not vote in favor of this bill because I did not feel that it recognized the importance that agriculture plays in our nation's economy or take into account the impact this would have on farmers. While it is important to reduce the deficit, we should do it in a responsible manner and not disproportionately on the backs of the farmers who are supplying our nation's, and much of the world's, food supply.

There were many provisions in the bill that I supported, but I felt the bill sent the wrong overall message about the importance of agriculture policy. As South Dakota's lone Representative, I could not in good conscience vote for a bill that unfairly singled out South Dakota's number one industry.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF GREG
COOPER

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, on May 26, 2011, Greg Cooper lost his battle with cancer at his home in Tustin, Orange County, California.

Born on June 23, 1945, Greg Cooper proudly served as a United States Marine Corps Sergeant from 1963 to 1967. His commendable service included a tour of duty near the city of DaNang, in the Republic of Vietnam.

Upon his departure with the Marines, Greg worked with the Santa Ana Police Department where he held several high-profile management and tactical unit positions. Among these positions, Greg was the SWAT Commander for 10 years and was active in the original development and transition from traditional to community oriented policing (COP). This COP policing model has been successfully duplicated across the United States for decades.

While serving as a police officer with the Santa Ana Police Department, Greg earned a Police Science Degree from Santa Ana College, a Bachelors degree from California State University-Fullerton and a Masters degree from the University of Southern California.

Leaving the Santa Ana Police Department in 1992, Greg was appointed Chief of Police in Sanger, California. In 1996 he relocated to Washington, DC after accepting a position with the Department of Justice (DOJ) "COPS" Program. At the DOJ, Greg would be the Assistant Director, responsible for monitoring operations for more than 30,000 Federal grants to more than 13,000 State and local law enforcement agencies.

In 2002, Greg joined the newly formed Department of Homeland Security as FEMA's Director of Security/Chief Security Officer. He would later retire from this position in 2008. At FEMA, Greg had oversight for all FEMA facilities, disaster operations, information security, personnel security and all national security clearances.

Since retiring from government service, Greg, a highly regarded and well-known expert in several specialty fields, continued to serve as a consultant to numerous law enforcement agencies across the nation.

A grateful nation mourns the loss of a loyal friend, a respected leader and a dedicated public servant.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote number 496 on July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, it is time to tell the story of all of the American people. Earlier this week we celebrated of our nation's 235th birthday. Here in Washington hundreds of thousands of people visited the National Mall, watched fireworks, took pictures of the monuments, and toured our national museums. The story of our country's founding to our current status as the world's beacon of democracy and freedom, were on display.

But the full story of who we are as a nation and the many, vibrant ethnicities that make up the fabric of the American experience, remains incomplete. The story about the making of the American people—of all of the people—is missing and it needs to be told in the heart of our nation's capital.

That's why I am introducing a bipartisan resolution that calls for a Presidential Commission to study the establishment of the National Museum of the American People. A commission is the first critical step in the path toward the creation of a national museum that will highlight the diversity and richness of the cultures from which our ancestors came and will foster a sense of belonging to the nation by the waves of people who made us the leading economic, military, scientific, and cultural force in the world. The Museum's central theme takes its inspiration from our original national motto: "E Pluribus Unum"—From Many We Are One.

The Museum will be America's only national institution devoted exclusively to telling the full story of how the world's pioneers interwove their diverse races, religions, and ethnicities into the strongest societal fabric ever known to modern mankind. Both Canada and Mexico have major national museums in their capitals telling the story of their peoples and they are the most visited museums in those nations. People from every ethnic and minority group will come to see their own story and learn how they joined together with "the others" in pursuit of a more noble national purpose. Foreign visitors will come to learn how natives of their countries helped create our nation.

I fully understand the current fiscal realities of the day. This proposal will involve no authorization of federal funds and will not require the need for any taxpayer money. It does, however, already enjoy broad support having been endorsed by more than 130 organizations representing virtually every major ethnic and nationality group in the nation.

For the different groups who became Americans, the Museum will tell who, where, when, why and how transformed our nation. Today's technology makes all of this possible.

The Museum of the American People will be like walking through a dramatic documentary delving into these grand movements of peoples. It will follow in the tradition of some of today's most successful story-telling museums such as the Holocaust Memorial Museum. The goal will be to tell our peoples' compelling story with force and clarity.

While there should always be room for other national museums in our nation's capital devoted to all manner of art, cultural and scientific accomplishments, this Museum, covering accurately and adequately each group's story in the context of every group's story should help stem the trend of groups having their own individual, specific museums such as the National Museum of the American Indian, the National Museum of the African American History and Culture, and the National Museum of the American Latino. All of their stories should be told, but the list is nearly infinite while the space, money and political will is not. In telling everyone's story, the National Museum of the American People would recognize the important differences that set us apart while celebrating the common purpose that has brought us together—E Pluribus Unum.

I encourage my colleagues to support this measure.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. CONNIE MACK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. MACK. Mr. Speaker, on Wednesday, July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably delayed and unable to vote on rollcall Nos. 495 through 501. Had I been present, I would have voted "no" on No. 495, "yes" on No. 496, "no" on No. 497, "no" on No. 498, "no" on No. 499, "yes" on No. 500, and "yes" on No. 501.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MARY BONO MACK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mrs. BONO MACK. Mr. Speaker, on July 6, 2011, for rollcall Nos. 495 to 501, I was unavoidably absent and unable to vote due to travel delays. Had I been present, I would have voted, "no" on 495, "aye" on 496, "no" on 497, "no" on 498, "no" on 499, "aye" on 500, and "aye" on 501.

HONORING THE LIFE OF MR. TIMOTHY WARREN

HON. STEVE COHEN

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of Memphis Police Officer Timothy Warren, a courageous and deeply generous man who bettered the Memphis community through his service as a police officer and through his charitable work for the homeless. Lamentably, on Sunday, July 3, Officer Warren laid down his life while responding to a rogue gunman in a Memphis hotel.

Public safety is an inherent power of government and every day across our nation police officers put their lives on the line to protect our citizens. Officer Warren, like his fellow Memphis police officers, responded when the need arose, without hesitation and with great courage. His actions on July 3rd may very well have saved the lives of others.

Born in 1971, Officer Warren grew up in Cleveland, Mississippi and received a bachelor's degree from Delta State University, where he also earned a spot on the Mississippi All State Football Team. Despite his successes during college, he briefly ended up homeless and was forced to sleep in abandoned houses in the dead of winter. The empathy Officer Warren developed for the homeless community would last a lifetime.

After moving to Memphis, Officer Warren served as a Deputy Jailer for the Shelby County Sheriffs office from 2000 until joining the Memphis Police Department in 2003. He served as a Patrolman in the South Main district, choosing to work a night shift in order to see his 8-year-old son, James, off to school in the mornings and to watch his 4-year-old daughter, Jewel, during the day.

Officer Warren and his wife, Betsy Gray, were active in the community helping to feed the homeless. While on patrol, Officer Warren would pass out bottles of cold water to the homeless sweltering in the heat and humidity of Memphis. While off duty with his family, they would take their grill to Overton Park to feed the homeless. At one point, Officer Warren considered leaving law enforcement to start a church. However his good friend and ordained minister, Jeff Gray, remembers him saying "Well, police work is all I know. I enjoy it. It also gives me the chance to minister to people because I'm right there."

Officer Timothy Warren was a man of exceptional courage with a big heart. His was a life too short, but today I honor him as a public servant and a hero. The city of Memphis is better because of his calling to serve and protect and because of his love for Memphis and its citizens. Officer Warren is survived by his wife Betsy, two children, James and Jewel, his father Jimmy Warren and his Sister Dondi Warren.

INTRODUCTION OF A RESOLUTION RECOGNIZING NATIONAL DANCE DAY ON SATURDAY, JULY 30, 2011

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce a resolution designating the last Saturday in July as National Dance Day to combat obesity and overweight through dance of all kinds. This year, each community throughout the country is encouraged to celebrate National Dance Day on Saturday, July 30. In the nation's capital, National Dance Day will be celebrated at the Sylvan Theatre on the National Mall.

Our country has a notorious adult and child overweight and obesity epidemic. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, childhood obesity in the United States has more than tripled in the past 30 years. In the United States, almost one-third of children and teenagers ages 2 to 19 and 68 percent of adults ages 20 and older are obese or overweight. We can promote physical activity among children and adults while having fun dancing, an exercise that most enjoy.

On the National Mall, "So You Think You Can Dance" producer and celebrity judge Nigel Lythgoe, the Dizzy Feet Foundation, and the Larry King Cardiac Foundation will host a variety of dance groups that will perform the dances that keep them fit. A Flash Mob will also have everybody dancing for fun and physical fitness on July 30.

I urge my colleagues to cosponsor the resolution and to encourage dancing for physical exercise on National Dance Day and throughout the year.

A TRIBUTE IN HONOR OF THE LIFE OF RALPH CALCATERRA

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, on June 18, 2011, surrounded by his family, my friend Ralph Calcaterra of Atherton, California, passed away. He leaves his wife Ferne, two children, Melissa Freeman and Richard Calcaterra, and three grandchildren.

For almost forty years, my family was blessed with the friendship of Ralph Calcaterra.

He made us laugh across the decades and generations.

He rode his bike to our house on Saturdays for almost twenty years—smiling and calling out, "anybody home?" and "what's going on?"

We learned more about Iron Mountain, Michigan, and Las Vegas, than anybody else in Atherton.

We saw how much a man can love his wife, his children, and his grandchildren.

We learned the latest prices of real estate in Atherton—including who had bought what, and at what price.

Most of all, we saw close up and personal, what loyal friendship was. Ralph embodied it.

Today, heaven is a better place. Saints and sinners alike are laughing and learning as we did because Ralph is there.

Thank you Ralph, for being our loving, smiling and loyal friend.

You enriched our lives just by being wonderful you, and we are already missing you.

Happy bike riding across heaven, and know we will love you across eternity.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the entire House of Representatives to join me in offering our condolences to the family of Ralph Calcaterra, a proud citizen and a true patriot of our country.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE McINTYREOF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES*Thursday, July 7, 2011*

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 495 on July 6, 2011, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

THE AVIATION HALL OF FAME

HON. MICHAEL R. TURNEROF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES*Thursday, July 7, 2011*

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the Aviation Hall of Fame was established in Dayton, Ohio, on October 5, 1961, with five Daytonians as its founding fathers.

The founders of the Hall of Fame were tasked with preserving the history of aviation heroes, fostering a better appreciation of the origins and growth of aviation and cataloging the role aviation has played in changing the economic, social and scientific trajectory of our nation.

Through the tireless efforts of its founders in establishing the Hall of Fame, aviation pioneers and achievers have been suitably honored for the last half-century.

Located within the NMUSAF with over 200 inductees, the Hall will induct 4 new honorees this month.

From pioneers Wilbur and Orville Wright of Ohio, to astronauts, such as Neil Armstrong, pilots, such as Charles Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart, inventors, such as Alexander Graham Bell, and entrepreneurs, such as William Boeing, among countless others whose contributions to aviation have made the U.S. aerospace industry the most advanced in the world.

Since 1981 the Hall of Fame has annually bestowed its prestigious "Spirit of Flight" Award upon a group or organization in recognition of its achievement in advancing aviation. The 2011 Milton Caniff "Spirit of Flight" Award recipient will be the U.S. Navy Blue Angels Flight Demonstration Team, in recognition of the group's 65-year history of serving as positive role models and goodwill ambassadors for the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps. More than 460 million fans have witnessed the teams' spectacularly choreographed aerial performances since the group was formed in 1946.

The Hall of Fame Learning Center exhibit hall features interactive exhibits and displays serving nearly one million learners of all ages a year. Visitors can experience landing an aircraft on a Navy carrier, controlling the movement of a helicopter, docking in space with the Hubble Space Telescope, and taking the controls of an historic aircraft on one of four flight simulators.

On behalf of all the Americans who have been inspired by the history of flight and the accomplishments of our aviation pioneers, I congratulate the Aviation Hall of Fame, its board of trustees, and dedicated staff on their many accomplishments.

This month marks the Hall of Fame's fiftieth enshrinement ceremony, celebrating an historic milestone in the integral role it has served in honoring pioneers of aviation.

I join Ohioans and fans of aviation everywhere to recognize those founders and the National Aviation Hall of Fame: James W. Jacobs, Gregory C. Karas, John A. Lombard, Larry E. O'Neil, and Gerald E. Weller.

Their vision, leadership, and dedication have helped to preserve the rich history of aviation for all Americans over the past fifty years.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. STEVE KINGOF IOWA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES*Thursday, July 7, 2011*

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 25, I was delayed in leaving the Medal of Honor Recognition Ceremony for Staff Sergeant Salvatore Guinta and was unable to reach the floor to cast my vote before the vote was closed.

Had I been present, I would have voted, "yes".

HONORING THEOLA MARIE STARKS

HON. RAÚL M. GRIJALVAOF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES*Thursday, July 7, 2011*

Mr. GRIJALVA. Mr. Speaker, Theola Marie Starks was born on June 2nd, 1928 in Grant, Oklahoma, the fourth of ten children of Reverend John B. and Marie C. Dawson. She and her husband, Burnes O. (Chief) Starks, Sr., moved to Phoenix in 1949 and started a family with the first of their ten children, Burnes O. (Burney) Starks, Jr. Mr. Starks was a chemist and soil tester for Arizona Testing Laboratories, and both Mr. and Mrs. Starks supplemented their income by picking cotton across the state.

The family moved to Tucson in 1966 and continued to raise their ten children on the south side of town in the Western Hills and Las Vistas neighborhoods. Mrs. Starks was very involved in community service, working as a teacher's aide and volunteering at a number of schools including Utterback, Cavett and Townsend. She always made friends easily and turned them into family. She believed in the Village raising children—she felt strongly that "your kids are mine and mine are yours."

Mrs. Starks also frequently volunteered with respected neighborhood matriarch Mrs. Tommie Thomas. Even though she only had a tenth grade education, she made sure her children understood the value and importance of education, integrity and hard work. All ten children—Burnes O., Gary E., Daryl D., Terry L., Charles G., Donna R., Harry J., Jacqueline B., Larry D., and Timothy B.—finished high school and entered college. Seven of the ten children earned college degrees.

Dr. Kevin Leman, noted psychologist and birth order doctor, has often commented on this woman and the remarkable way she raised ten children. Beyond her immediate family, nearly 100 children knew her as "mom" or "grandma."

Theola Starks' life was defined by miracles, as those who know her can testify, but the greatest miracle was her—the ability to smile, touch, befriend, forgive, mother and love anyone who came into her life. She was the ultimate prayer warrior. Today, we mark her passing and commend her as a role model and a wonderful person.

IN SUPPORT OF HOLDING THE 2016 DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION IN NORTHERN NEW JERSEY

HON. STEVEN R. ROTHMANOF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES*Thursday, July 7, 2011*

Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to propose that the 2016 Democratic Convention be held in Northern New Jersey. With easy access to a wide variety of transportation options, many local tourist attractions, and a proven record of successfully hosting large-scale events, Northern New Jersey is an ideal location and I urge my Democratic colleagues to join me in support of our bid to host the 2016 Convention.

Northern New Jersey has everything that a large-scale, high-profile event requires in order to go off without a hitch. Multiple airports provide access for visitors arriving from all across the country, while those traveling along the Eastern Seaboard have the option of taking Amtrak or one of several bus lines—all of which are particularly convenient to visitors from Washington, DC. Whether hosted in my district at the New Meadowlands Stadium in East Rutherford, at the Prudential Center in Newark, or both: our convention facilities are brand new, state-of-the-art, and well-equipped to host large events. Northern New Jersey boasts many hotels and tourist attractions for visitors, as well as proximity to other exciting locations; convention-goers would be just across the river from New York City and just up the Jersey shore from Atlantic City. Even as our national economy struggles to bounce back, tourism in Northern New Jersey has continued to flourish over the past few years, due in no small part to the infrastructure and facilities that our region has to offer visitors from across the Nation.

Most recently, the city of Newark hosted the 2011 NCAA East Regional Championship at the Prudential Center. Visitors, players, and league administrators alike were impressed and pleased with their newly chosen host city, with top NCAA officials noting that they are definitely on board with a future hosting bid. Looking toward the future, Super Bowl XLVII will be held at the New Meadowlands Stadium in 2014, and over 100,000 visitors from across the country are expected to travel to Northern New Jersey for this historic game. Both of these important events of national importance were brought to Northern New Jersey because of everything we have to offer, and I am confident that delegates and Convention participants alike would be pleased with the choice to hold our party's most important meeting here as well. A highly diverse region, Northern New Jersey is emblematic of the many cultures, ideas, and priorities that make up our great Nation, and I believe this is a fitting backdrop for the selection of our party's nominee for the 2016 Presidential race.

Mr. Speaker, today I ask my colleagues to consider Northern New Jersey as the site for the 2016 Democratic Convention. I know that we would host a memorable and well-executed Convention and I urge the Democratic Party to explore this option for 2016.

INTRODUCTION ON RESOLUTION TO GRANT THE CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL TO THE MONTFORD POINT MARINES

HON. CORRINE BROWN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join with many of my colleagues to introduce a resolution to grant the Montford Point Marines a Congressional Gold Medal, the highest civilian honor that can be bestowed for an outstanding deed or act of service to the security, prosperity, and national interest of the United States.

On June 25, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued Executive Order No. 8802 establishing the Fair Employment Practices Commission and opening the doors for the very first African Americans to enlist in the United States Marine Corps.

These African Americans, from all states, were not sent to the traditional boot camps of Parris Island, South Carolina, and San Diego, California. Instead, African American Marines were segregated—experiencing basic training at Camp Montford Point near the New River in Jacksonville, North Carolina. Approximately 20,000 African American Marines received basic training at Montford Point between 1942 and 1949.

On August 26, 1942, Howard P. Perry of Charlotte, North Carolina, was the first Black private to set foot on Montford Point.

During April 1943 the first African American Marine Drill Instructors took over as the senior Drill Instructors of the eight platoons then in training; the 16th Platoon (Edgar R. Huff), 17th (Thomas Brokaw), 18th (Charles E. Allen), 19th (Gilbert H. Johnson), 20th (Arnold R. Bostic), 21st (Mortimer A. Cox), 22nd (Edgar R. Davis, Jr.), and 23rd (George A. Jackson).

The initial intent was to discharge these African American Marines after the War, returning them to civilian life. Attitudes changed as the war progressed. Once given the chance to prove themselves, it became impossible to deny the fact that African American Marines were just as capable as all other Marines regardless of race, color, creed or National origin.

Black Marines of the 8th Ammunition Company and the 36th Depot Company landed on the island of Iwo Jima on D-day, February 19, 1945. The largest number of Black Marines to serve in combat during World War II took part in the seizure of Okinawa in the Ryuku Islands with some 2,000 Black Marines seeing action during the campaign. Overall 19,168 Blacks served in the Marine Corps in World War II.

On November 10, 1945, Frederick C. Branch was the first African American Marine to be commissioned as a second lieutenant, at the Marine Corps Base in Quantico, Virginia.

In July of 1948 President Harry S. Truman issued Executive Order 9981 ending segregation in the military. In September of 1949, Montford Marine Camp was deactivated—ending seven years of segregation.

I am honored to offer this resolution to recognize their service and sacrifice and acknowledge today's United States Marine Corps as an excellent opportunity for advancement of persons of all races due to the service and example of the original Montford Point Marines.

SUPREME COURT RECUSAL PROCESSES
IN NEED OF TRANSPARENCY AND ACCOUNTABILITY

HON. LOUISE McINTOSH SLAUGHTER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my concern that justices of the Supreme Court are not required to explain their decisions to recuse—or not recuse themselves in a particular case before the Court, and that those decisions are final and unreviewable. Recusal decisions, left to each individual justice to make on his or her own and with no opportunity for review, require that each justice be a judge in their own case.

Questions of impartiality erode the integrity of the Court and threaten to undermine public trust in our judicial system. The recusal process for Supreme Court justices must be reformed to provide an open and reviewable process.

A SUPREME COURT JUSTICE'S RECUSAL DECISIONS
SHOULD BE TRANSPARENT AND REVIEWABLE

(By the Alliance for Justice)

The recusal process for Supreme Court justices needs transparency and accountability. Although there is a statute governing recusal—28 U.S.C. §455—that applies to Supreme Court justices, the statute does not require individual justices to explain their recusal decisions, and those decisions are final and unreviewable. This system violates the basic maxim that no one should be a judge in his own case. It also ignores the fact that the standard to be applied in recusal cases is the appearance of bias, which by necessity depends on the views of others, and not the justice's own views of his or her impartiality. Exacerbating this lack of accountability is a lack of transparency, as justices are not required to issue a written opinion explaining a recusal decision.

That's why over 100 law professors recently sent a letter calling on Congress to hold hearings and implement legislation to increase the transparency and accountability of recusal decisions.

A recent Supreme Court case, Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal, Inc., provides an object lesson in the hazards of a self-policing judiciary, in which individual judges determine whether or not their impartiality can reasonably be questioned. In Caperton, West Virginia Justice Brent D. Benjamin received substantial campaign contributions made directly or indirectly from the president of a company with an outstanding $50 million judgment against it on appeal before the judge. Justice Benjamin denied three motions to recuse himself, and then voted in the 3-2 majority to reverse the judgment against the company. A public opinion poll indicated that 67% of West Virginians doubted Justice Benjamin would be fair and impartial.

The Supreme Court reversed Justice Benjamin's decisions not to recuse himself on the basis that the risk of actual bias was so high that it violated petitioners' constitutional due process rights. It did not matter what Justice Benjamin thought of his own potential for bias, the key was whether the appearance of impartiality was compromised, the Court held. The Court emphasized the need for an objective test to evaluate whether an interest rises to such a degree that the average judge might become biased, rather than relying on a judge's self-evaluation of actual bias. "The difficulties of inquiring into actual bias and the fact that the inquiry is often a private one, simply underscore the need for objective rules," the Court added. The Court held that the need for an independent inquiry is particularly important "where, as here, there is no procedure for judicial factfinding and the sole trier of fact is the one accused of bias."

The opacity and lack of accountability of the recusal process erodes public confidence in the integrity of the Court and the sense that justice is being administered fairly. For example:

In 2003, a prominent legal ethicist argued that Justice Breyer should have recused from Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America v. Walsh, in which an association of drug manufacturers, including three in which Justice Breyer held stock, brought suit challenging the constitutionality of state regulations aimed at keeping drug costs down for consumers. Justice Breyer chose not to recuse himself, despite his potential financial conflict of interest.

In 2004, just weeks after the Supreme Court granted certiorari in a public records case brought by the Sierra Club against then-Vice President Dick Cheney, Justice Scalia went duck hunting with Cheney and accepted a free ride on the Vice President's plane. Despite widespread public criticism questioning his appearance of bias in the case, Justice Scalia refused to recuse himself. In a memorandum opinion denying the Sierra Club's motion to recuse, Justice Scalia wrote that he "would have been pleased to demonstrate [his] integrity" by disqualifying himself from the case, but nonetheless decided there was no basis for recusal. He then cast his vote in support of Vice President Cheney's position.

This year, the advocacy organization Common Cause filed a petition with the Department of Justice, requesting that it file a Rule 60(b) motion seeking the invalidation of last year's Citizens United v. FEC ruling on the basis that Justices Scalia and Thomas should have recused themselves. The petition alleged the impartiality of both justices could reasonably be questioned under 18 U.S.C. §455(a) due to their alleged attendance at a closed-door retreat hosted by Koch Industries, a politically active corporation that supported and has benefited from Citizens United's dismantling of campaign finance laws. Common Cause also alleges that Justice Thomas had an obligation to recuse himself under 18 U.S.C. §455(b), due to a financial conflict of interest created by his wife's employment at a conservative political organization that stood to benefit from unrestricted corporate donations made possible by Citizens United.

Also this year, Representative Anthony Weiner (D-NY) and 73 other members of the House of Representatives have asked Justice Thomas to recuse himself from any upcoming review of the Affordable Care Act due to his wife's ties to organizations lobbying to repeal the Act. Rep. Weiner asserts that IRS records show that between 2003 and 2007, Virginia ("Ginni") Thomas was paid $686,589 by the conservative Heritage Foundation, which at the time opposed health care reform. He adds that in 2009, Ms. Thomas became the CEO of a nonprofit, Liberty Central, which also opposed health care reform, and that earlier this year, Ms. Thomas announced that she had formed a lobbying firm, "Liberty Consulting," to advance various Tea Party legislative initiatives, including the repeal or nullification of the Affordable Care Act. Rep. Weiner alleges that these connections give rise to an appearance of partiality, and a potential financial conflict of interest that require Justice Thomas to recuse himself, if the Affordable Care Act reaches the Court. While a judge's spouse is not prohibited from engaging in political activities, Judicial Conference Advisory Opinions interpreting the Code of Conduct make clear that a spouse's political activities may increase the likelihood that a judge must recuse from a particular case.

These examples highlight the need for transparency and review of recusal issues that arise for Supreme Court justices. The impartiality of specific justices, and thereby the integrity of the Court, has come under question because the recusal statute fails to provide an open and reviewable process. This needs to change, either through Congressional legislation, or by the Court itself adopting new recusal policies.

---

OUR UNCONSCIONABLE NATIONAL DEBT

HON. MIKE COFFMAN

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, today our national debt is $14,343,021,848,987.23.

On January 6th, 2009, the start of the 111th Congress, the national debt was $10,638,425,746,293.80.

This means the national debt has increased by $3,704,596,102,693.43 since then.

This debt and its interest payments we are passing to our children and all future Americans.

---

ST. PETERSBURG, FLORIDA LETTER CARRIERS LEAD NATION IN COLLECTION OF FOOD

HON. C.W. BILL YOUNG

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, for the third time in five years, the men and women of the National Association of Letter Carriers Branch 1477 of St. Petersburg, Florida, led the Nation in food collection as part of the national "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive.

Their chapter alone collected an astounding 1,770,814 pounds of food that has been distributed to Pinellas County food banks, pantries and shelters, many of which are affiliated with Feeding America. St. Petersburg Branch 1477, combined with another local branch, Tampa 599, collected 3,500,196 pounds, more food than in any other geographic area in the Nation. In fact, these two chapters accounted for two of the top five branch totals nationally.

Having spent time with many members of Branch 1477, I know of the great pride they have in serving our community. They acknowledge that the "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive is an outstanding partnership between the National Association of Letter Carriers, the United States Postal Services, the American Postal Workers Union, the National Rural Letter Carrier's Association, Campbell's Soup Company, United Way Worldwide, AFL-CIO, and local businesses including Uncle Bob's Self Storage and Valpak, a major sponsor in my area. Most importantly though, the level of success of this annual drive is due to the compassion and support of the residents of our local communities who place bag after bag of food out at their mail box on this one day of the year to lend a helping hand to their neighbors in need.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in thanking the National Association of Letter Carriers for taking the initiative to sponsor the "Stamp Out Hunger" program for these past 19 years and in congratulating the letter carriers of Branch 1477 who serve from Dunedin through Largo, Pinellas Park, St. Petersburg and south to Punta Gorda, Florida, for once again topping the Nation in the collection of food. This program is in the finest American tradition of neighbor helping neighbor.

---

HONORING LOUIS AND SUSANNA HAGER AS CO-CHAIRS OF THE OTSEGO COUNTY CONSERVATION ASSOCIATION

HON. RICHARD L. HANNA

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 7, 2011

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Louis and Susanna Busch Hager, co-chairs of the Otsego County Conservation Association, serving as long-time stewards of Otsego Lake. The Hagers are dedicated to the preservation of our most precious natural resources, particularly Otsego Lake in Coopers-town, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Hager have played a vital role in supporting community education regarding the challenging present issues surrounding development and maintenance of healthy lakes. They have also generously supported numerous environmental campaigns and programs, most notably the Otsego Lake Challenge Campaign.

It is with great honor that I rise today to commend the Hagers for their tremendously positive impact on our community and its future. They are being honored tonight for working tirelessly and devoting countless volunteer hours to the Otsego County Conservation Association and other community organizations. Through their significant philanthropic contributions, future generations can have hope for a clean and healthy living environment.

Mr. Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Louis and Susanna Busch Hager for their invaluable contribution to this community, our environment and our future. The positive results of their contribution will be noted for generations to come.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Friday, July 8, 2011

The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer: God of the universe, we give You thanks for giving us another day.

As the Members of this people's House deliberate these days, give them the wisdom and magnanimity to lay aside what might divide us as a people to forge a secure future for our country.

We pray for all people who have special needs. May Your presence be known to those who are sick, that they might feel the power of Your healing spirit. Be with those who suffer persecution in so many places of our world, and bless our troops who are engaged in the easing of those sufferings. Give to all who are afraid or anxious or whose minds are clouded by uncertain futures the peace and confidence that come from trust in Your goodness and mercy.

We thank You again for the tremendous opportunity You have given the Members of this House to serve their fellow citizens. Inspire them to be their best selves and may they be, in turn, an inspiration to the Nation and to the world.

May all that is done here this day be for Your greater honor and glory. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. FLEMING) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. FLEMING led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will entertain up to five requests for 1-minute speeches on each side.

FAMILIES NEED JOBS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, this morning's announcement of the unemployment rate proves again the President's economic policies are failing American families.

The unemployment rate has increased to a tragic 9.2 percent. The out-of-control borrowing and spending in Washington continues to kill small business job creation.

It has been 1 year since the President declared an end to the recession and the beginning of the summer of recovery. The only way to describe the country's job numbers during that time is a failure of leadership. Private employment is now 1.8 million below the level from when the wasteful stimulus passed.

Where are the jobs, Mr. President?

This administration's policies are crippling our economy and killing job creation. The President's reelection campaign says the unemployment rate does not matter, but American families know better.

The House Republicans' "Cut and Grow" plan is very simple: First cut spending, then the economy will grow. This is a practical solution to get Americans back to work.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

WAR AND WAR POWERS

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Congress is awakening to its constitutional obligations on matters of war and peace. In the past 2 months, we have sparked a great debate on war and on war powers, the implications of which will continue to be felt in this Nation and around the world.

Soon, the war in Libya and the ongoing wars in Afghanistan and Iraq will go beyond foreign policy issues. They will become domestic issues, financial security issues. As we continue to wage these wars, more and more Americans will become aware that this administration has decided that bombing bridges in other countries is more important than building bridges in America with our present and new foreign adventures.

America, under this administration, chooses war, not jobs and wealth building here in America; bombs, not books; financial instability, not Social Security; austerity, not prosperity.

This isn't about partisan politics. This is about an administration that is demonstrating more of an interest in nation building abroad than a rebuilding of America here at home.

It has time to change, but will it?

THE FOX GUARDING THE OBAMACARE HENHOUSE?

(Mr. FLEMING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, Americans deserve to know the truth when it comes to Supreme Court Justice Elena Kagan's involvement in crafting a defense of ObamaCare during her tenure as Solicitor General for President Obama. This is why I, along with 48 of my House colleagues, am calling for an investigation into the extent of Justice Kagan's involvement in defending ObamaCare and if it warrants her recusal from any and all ObamaCare cases that may come before the High Court.

It is imperative for Americans to have confidence in the impartiality of the Supreme Court. Americans have a legitimate right to know the truth about Elena Kagan's involvement in ObamaCare.

How can any reasonable person believe that she can be impartial when a case involving ObamaCare comes before the High Court? Furthermore, the U.S. Code, section 455, title 28, says she must recuse herself.

CONTINUING BUDGET IMPASSE IN MINNESOTA

(Mr. WALZ of Minnesota asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WALZ of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express the frustration that I feel at the continuing budget impasse in Minnesota. Minnesota faces the biggest budget deficit in its history, and with it comes a responsibility to govern and a cautionary tale for this body.

A government shutdown at any level is not only detrimental to the economy and to the success of small businesses, but it's hazardous to the progress of our society as educational programs and nonprofit organizations are put at risk.

Like many of the citizens of southern Minnesota who have written me about

☐ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., ☐ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

this shutdown, I share a concern for the families harmed by this shutdown, working parents who receive child care assistance, disabled Minnesotans who rely on State services for their better quality of life, roads remaining unrepaired and simple things like campgrounds being closed where families can't spend time together.

A gentleman approached me in Stewartville at a Fourth of July parade. He asked me if I was working this week. I said yes, I was. And he said he wasn't, but he sure wished he was because he was force furloughed.

When it comes to divided government, we all win when no one political party wins. In Minnesota, that means both the Governor and the legislature need to compromise. We need to put politics aside to put Minnesota first. The same applies to this body.

□ 0910

CREATING AN ENVIRONMENT FOR JOB CREATION

(Mr. PAULSEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAULSEN. Mr. Speaker, you can hardly turn on the television or the radio these days without hearing about our Nation's debt crisis. And the reason we find ourselves in this crisis is not because Washington taxes too little. Rather, it is because Washington spends too much. Raising taxes on America's job creators, as some here in Washington suggest, is not the answer. It won't open closed factories. It won't stimulate the economy. And it won't put our friends and neighbors back to work.

What we need, and what the American people are asking us to do, is to see that government lives within its means. Over the past few years, hard-working Americans across this country have tightened their belts and lived within their means and cut back on spending. And there's no reason that their government can't do the same thing. It's often been said that it's not in the Federal Government's nature to shrink. And I think here in Washington our colleagues should work to prove them wrong by ending wasteful Washington spending as a way to address our Nation's budget deficit.

REPUBLIC OF SOUTH SUDAN: WELCOMING A NEW NATION

(Mr. CAPUANO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to draw people's attention to one of the great, nice spots of what's happening in the world today. There aren't many. We're going to hear about every one of them this morning. But there's at least one happening right now in Africa. Tomorrow we will welcome the newest nation to the community of nations, South Sudan. This is a country that most of us probably never heard of. I certainly didn't until a few years ago, and I heard about it because of some of the atrocities that are happening there.

South Sudan is a country that is born out of 20 years of internal civil war—20 years—not from outside forces like this country likes to do in Iraq and Afghanistan. They did it themselves on their own, and I just want to stand up here today and tell them congratulations, to welcome them into the community of nations, and to tell them that I, for one, and I believe this House, will stand with them as they struggle to make sure that their new democracy is successful.

They have a lot of threats on every border. They have a lot of internal issues. They are an incredibly poor country with a lot of challenges. But as the greatest democracy in the history of the world, we have an obligation to stand with them as they build their new democracy.

SOUTH SUDAN: PRAYERS FOR A NEW NATION

(Mr. SMITH of New Jersey asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, the people of South Sudan have endured two decades of wanton violence, rape, torture and hunger systematically imposed upon them by the Bashir dictatorship in Khartoum. More than 2 million people were killed, 4 million people displaced, and countless families decimated.

The Comprehensive Peace Agreement of 2005 ended the war and put South Sudan on the path to nationhood. Tomorrow, when the people of South Sudan emerge as the newest nation on Earth, tomorrow, when that dream is realized, Americans will join the people of South Sudan in celebrating this extraordinary hope-filled event.

Yet recently at least 100,000 Sudanese have been displaced from the Abyei area, and tens of thousands of Southerners living in South Kordofan State have been recently forced from their homes, some of them murdered. So there are serious remaining challenges.

Nevertheless, we hope and we pray that the people of South Sudan will finally live in peace and enjoy respect for their basic human rights and freedom.

ISRAEL

(Mr. POLIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. POLIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to discuss H. Res. 268.

America has not had a more pro-Israel President than President Obama. The President has unwaveringly supported Israel's right to self-defense, fought to ensure Israel's military edge, protected her citizens with the Iron Dome anti-rocket system, and worked to prevent a nuclear-armed Iran. The President also understands, as we all do, that essential to Israel's security, America's security, and Palestinian security is a negotiated resolution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict creating a lasting peace.

The President's call for a negotiated resolution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is a pro-Israel position that's absolutely essential to ensuring our ally's future as the democratic homeland of the Jewish people.

We should also take an opportunity to be honest about what the President did and didn't propose. The President did not say that Israel should be forced to return to her 1967 borders. The President did say that the borders of Israel and a Palestinian state should be based on the 1967 lines with mutually agreed swaps, a concept which has been considered a given in all the serious discussions of a two-state solution in the last decade.

While fostering divisions serves the political interests of some, it's not in the long-term interest of Israel, Palestine, or the United States.

TIME TO GET OUR FISCAL HOUSE IN ORDER

(Mrs. MILLER of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, for the last 2½ years, President Obama and his allies in Congress here have been on a spending spree which has led to annual deficits of $1.4 trillion and a national debt that now exceeds $14 trillion.

The Republicans have drawn a line in the sand and said enough. We've changed the culture here in Washington from how much more are we going to spend to how much are we going to cut. We've passed a responsible budget which focuses on getting economic growth going and on new jobs, a budget that would put us on the path to prosperity and also to fiscal sanity. And today's anemic job report with unemployment rising again now to 9.2 percent shows that we have so much more to do. And the idea of job-killing tax increases is absolutely a nonstarter.

I'm proud that our Republican negotiators that have been in the negotiations with the President and the Democratic leadership are standing strong over increasing the debt limit with a strong focus on jobs. And I hope that the President and the Democrats will finally join us in getting our fiscal house in order. And for the sake of the American people, Mr. Speaker, let's get the job done.

JUNE JOBS REPORT

(Mr. ELLISON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Speaker, yes, the June jobs report is not encouraging: 18,000 jobs added. But I cannot ever forget that it was January 2009 when we lost 741,000 jobs, the last month of the Bush Presidency.

Under President Obama, we have added jobs, and, of course, we have not added enough; but they have been adding. But the American people should know that we need about 150,000 jobs a month in order to push the unemployment rate down. Because we added jobs but not enough, the unemployment rate has gone up.

But the most important thing for the American people to know is that the Republican promise to make jobs the first agenda during the election has not been fulfilled. They have yet to introduce or pass through this House one single jobs bill, not one. All they have done is cut jobs, mostly by going after public employees. And this is what the American people need to bear in mind as they think about who is on their side.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1309, FLOOD INSURANCE REFORM ACT OF 2011

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 340 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 340

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1309) to extend the authorization of the national flood insurance program, to achieve reforms to improve the financial integrity and stability of the program, and to increase the role of private markets in the management of flood insurance risk, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule.

SEC. 2. (a) It shall be in order to consider as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Financial Services now printed in the bill. The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be considered as read. All points of order against the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute are waived.

(b) No amendment to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution and amendments en bloc described in section 3 of this resolution.

(c) Each amendment printed in the report of the Committee on Rules shall be considered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

(d) All points of order against amendments printed in the report of the Committee on Rules or amendments en bloc described in section 3 of this resolution are waived.

SEC. 3. It shall be in order at any time for the chair of the Committee on Financial Services or his designee to offer amendments en bloc consisting of amendments printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution not earlier disposed of. Amendments en bloc offered pursuant to this section shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services or their designees, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole. The original proponent of an amendment included in such amendments en bloc may insert a statement in the Congressional Record immediately before the disposition of the amendments en bloc.

SEC. 4. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. Any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

□ 0920

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BASS of New Hampshire). The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to my colleague and friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. SESSIONS. House Resolution 340 provides for a structured rule designated by the Rules Committee for consideration of H.R. 1309. This rule allows for 25 amendments submitted to the Rules Committee by Democrats and Republicans to be made in order.

I rise today in support of this rule, Mr. Speaker. This legislation was introduced by the chairwoman of the Subcommittee on Insurance, Housing and Community Opportunity, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT), and this bill has gone through regular order. There were hearings on this issue. H.R. 1309 was marked up in the Financial Services Committee and reported out by a unanimous vote of 54-0, and the chairman of the Rules Committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), provided a structured amendment process with 25 additional amendments to be considered on the House floor.

Said another way, Mr. Speaker, the Rules Committee, under the leadership of DAVID DREIER, is willing to have in our upstairs committee room Members of Congress come and testify with the understanding that, in their confidence in the process of this House of Representatives, that they can bring forth their amendments, be heard by a Rules Committee that can equally give the Republican and Democrat sides the ideas that those Members wish to bring before this body, and that is what is happening with 25 amendments being made in order by the gentleman from California with the Rules Committee.

Today, I will discuss the background of the current National Flood Insurance Program or NFIP, and why a long-term reauthorization is important, what the underlying legislation does to the NFIP, and why reforms are necessary.

The NFIP was created in 1968 to address the Nation's flood exposure and the need to alleviate taxpayers' responsibility for flood losses paid out in the form of post-disaster relief following annual flooding that occurs across this country. In 1973, the Flood Disaster Protection Act established a mandatory flood insurance purchase requirement for structures located in identified special flood hazard areas. By 1984, Congress required lenders to purchase coverage on behalf of—and to bill premiums to—mortgagees who failed to purchase coverage on their own.

The 2005 hurricane season resulted in significant claims which the NFIP annual contributions could not cover, so the NFIP's borrowing authority, which was at $1.5 billion a year, was increased three times from 2005, 2006 and 2007, allowing the NFIP to borrow up to $20.8 billion. Currently, the NFIP owes the national Treasury $17.75 billion. A recent Insurance Journal article from March 8, 2011, discusses this plan and it stated: “The proposal does attempt to put the program on sounder financial footing by insisting that current subsidized prices to most policies be raised so they eventually cover the actual cost of risk determined by the actuaries.” The underlying bill allows for greater accountability so taxpayers, meaning the Federal Government, actually incur less risk than in the current NFIP. Limiting the exposures for the taxpayer is one piece of what this bill does.

The legislation we are discussing today reauthorizes the NFIP for 5 years through September 30, 2016. The current program is scheduled to expire on September 30 of this year. The last time Congress passed a long-term flood insurance program was in 2004. Since its expiration in 2008, the NFIP has been extended 11 times and lapsed three times during that period. These short-term extensions and lapses create needless uncertainty in the marketplace in an already struggling residential and commercial real estate market all across the United States. Charles Symington with the Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of America was quoted in a recent industry Insurance Journal stating: “The 5-year extension of NFIP after several years of short-term lapses and last minute renewals is critical because it gives the marketplace certainty.”

Mr. Speaker, I believe Charles is correct. The Congress of the United States must do its job by looking at those programs, looking at their need to make sure that they work properly and to make sure that the exposure to the taxpayer is not overextended. Charles Symington has this correct.

In addition to providing a much needed long-term authorization, this bill amends the NFIP to ensure the immediate and near-term fiscal and administrative health of the program. The bill also ensures the NFIP's continued viability by encouraging broader participation in this program, increasing financial accountability, eliminating unnecessary rate subsidies, and updating the program to the needs that currently face this great Nation.

Since 2006, the NFIP has been cited by the Government Accountability Office, GAO, as a high-risk government program. This means that embedded within this program, it is not being run to the best benefit of not just its mission statement, but also the best interest of the taxpayer. The GAO has found that the NFIP does not charge sufficiently high rates to cover its claims obligations and projected future losses, resulting in significant Federal expenditures and potentially large future liabilities on top of the $17.75 billion that the program is already in debt.

To protect the American taxpayers from future risk of a Federal program already in debt, the NFIP must be reformed. That's why we are here today. The underlying bill provides for some of the necessary reforms, and certainly we don't have to debate this, but with a $14 trillion deficit and out-of-control wasteful Washington government spending, Congress must provide the necessary oversight and accountability to ensure less taxpayer risk. I encourage my colleagues to vote “yes” on this rule.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is one of those rare occasions when the gentleman from Texas and I actually agree on something. I think the underlying bill is a good bill, and I look forward to supporting it. While this rule is not an open rule, and I don't think that we have had an open rule on an authorizing bill since this Congress began, but the gentleman is such a good guy that I'm not going to make a big deal of that. Twenty-five of the 30 amendments that were offered were made in order, so I think we will have a good debate.

The rule before us today provides for the reauthorization of the National Flood Insurance Program, NFIP, through September 30, 2016. This program was established in 1968 in response to increasing Federal Government spending for disaster relief. The NFIP was intended to alleviate some of the public's financial burden because the government covered losses generated by the floods in the form of disaster relief payments.

With the increase of severe weather in the past few years, the need to reauthorize this program before it expires on September 30 is great. The National Flood Insurance Program, housed within the Federal Emergency Management Agency, has become financially strained following severe hurricanes—including Katrina in 2005, which significantly increased insurance claims.

In addition to extending this bill for an additional 5 years, this bill also includes a 3-year delay of the mandatory flood insurance purchase requirement as a result of the new, updated flood maps. This will allow our constituents to be notified if their home is now at risk of flooding and purchase insurance accordingly, by requiring annual notifications to homeowners living in flood zones about the flood risk in their community, the geographical boundaries of the flood zone, the requirement to purchase flood insurance, and a general estimate of what similar homeowners in similar communities typically pay for flood insurance.

□ 0930

This bill also provides optional coverage for additional living expenses incurred by homeowners when losses from a flood make their homes unfit to live in. For businesses and commercial properties or multifamily properties, this bill provides optional coverage for losses resulting from any partial or total interruption of the insureds' businesses caused by flood.

Mr. Speaker, we saw massive devastation to the southeastern part of our country in 2005, but we also saw the resiliency of the American people. It's no easy task to rebuild your entire life from the ground up. In recognizing the economic reality that having flood coverage could keep families from financial ruin but at the same time add additional and substantial costs to family budgets, this bill allows families to pay flood insurance premiums in installments.

This bill will also help our local communities prepare for the worst by authorizing the use of Community Development Block Grant funds for communities to reach out to homeowners about flood insurance rates, mapping and inclusion in flood zones, and by authorizing localities to use Community Development Block Grant funds to supplement existing State or local funding for building code enforcement. The National Flood Insurance Reform Act gives communities the tools they need to prepare, protect and to rebuild.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that the Rules Committee made in order my amendment to H.R. 1309. I would like to thank the committee for working with me to make this important amendment in order. My amendment is simple. If FEMA makes a mistake in designing a flood map, communities can be reimbursed for the costs of mounting a successful challenge.

Currently, communities that dispute FEMA's flood elevations can hire a private engineering firm to get a “second opinion” flood map. While this may sound like an attractive option, it puts a lot of small communities in very difficult financial positions. Hiring a private engineering firm is expensive and cost prohibitive for many small communities. On the one hand, if the community decides that it's too expensive to get a second opinion, homeowners are forced to pay higher or, in some cases, needless flood insurance premiums. On the other hand, if the community does mount a successful challenge to the original FEMA map, homeowners are spared from having to pay the higher flood insurance premiums, but the town still must pay the costs associated with obtaining that second map.

Now, I've heard of many small communities that are forced into this tough situation, including the town of Holliston, Massachusetts, which is in my district. There is substantial evidence to support the argument that the FEMA map is incorrect, but town officials are struggling to find a way to pay the $30,000 it would cost to conduct a second engineering study.

I feel for these town officials. They want to do the right thing and help their residents, but these small towns are already cash-strapped and are cutting funding left and right for essential services like schools and police and firefighters, not to mention infrastructure. There simply is no money for a legitimate but expensive second opinion map. If FEMA makes a mistake in mapping a flood area, then they should pay for it. So I encourage my colleagues to support my amendment.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is proof that Congress can work in a bipartisan way. Passed out of the House Committee on Financial Services 54-0, this bipartisan bill is timely with hurricane season just around the corner. It is also important to add that the Congressional Budget Office estimates that enacting H.R. 1309 will have no net impact on direct spending over the 2012-2016 or 2012-2021 periods.

I want to commend my colleague from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) for her leadership on this and for working in a bipartisan way and producing what, I think, is a good bill. I look forward to working with her to make sure that this is passed.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have a very valuable part of our Republican team here today, a gentlewoman who has taken hundreds of meetings and who has led the way in what, I believe, is to better the circumstance with the National Flood Insurance Program. She is from the Financial Services Committee and is the chairwoman of the Subcommittee on Insurance, Housing and Community Opportunity.

I yield 5 minutes to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT).

Mrs. BIGGERT. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule for H.R. 1309, the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2011.

I would like to thank Mr. SESSIONS for introducing and managing this rule. I would also like to thank Rules Committee Chairman DREIER and the leadership for scheduling floor time.

On May 13, the Financial Services Committee favorably reported, as has been said, the Flood Insurance Reform Act by a unanimous vote of 54-0. This bill is important and reflects the hard work and bipartisan support of the Financial Services Committee. It would reauthorize for 5 years the National Flood Insurance Program, the NFIP, and enact a series of reforms designed to improve NFIP's financial stability, reduce the burden on taxpayers, and explore ways to increase private market participation.

To improve NFIP's financial stability, the bill phases in actuarially sound rates for policyholders. In doing so, it will help to shore up NFIP and allow it to pay down its $17.75 billion debt to the taxpayer. It also increases the minimum deductibles for properties while at the same time giving homeowners more flexibility on how they can pay for their flood insurance. According to the CBO, the combined effect of these and other changes would be to bring in an additional $4.2 billion of net income to the NFIP over the next 10 years.

Perhaps most importantly, H.R. 1309 eliminates a barrier to the development of a private flood insurance market and puts us on a path toward a long-term plan for flood insurance that eliminates taxpayer risk.

First, it requires lenders to accept non-NFIP-backed flood insurance coverage provided by a private entity if that coverage meets all the same requirements as NFIP-backed flood insurance.

Second, FEMA is required to solicit bids from the private sector and report to Congress on the cost to the private sector, not to the taxpayer, of bearing the risk of flood insurance.

Finally, the bill addresses many of the concerns that Members have raised with us about new maps, especially as they relate to dam and levee decertifications. This bill allows newly mapped communities facing higher rates to annually, and for up to 3 years, request that FEMA suspend the requirement to purchase flood insurance while they work to construct or fix their flood protection systems.

With the NFIP's authorization set to expire on September 30, it is critical that the House act to pass this bill as soon as possible. Doing so will give the House and Senate time to begin a dialogue and to shape a commonsense reform measure. In short, we fully intend to avoid a recurrence of what happened in the last Congress, which was when the program lapsed, causing turmoil in a recovering housing market, and was simply extended without reforms. Congress cannot continue to kick the can down the road.

With that, again, I thank Mr. SESSIONS and the members of the Rules Committee. I would also like to thank all of the Members from both sides of the aisle who helped to craft this bill. I thank my colleagues on the Financial Services Committee for their work on this bill, especially Ms. WATERS, Mrs. CAPITO, Mr. GARRETT, Mr. DOLD, and Mr. STIVERS, who are original cosponsors of this bipartisan bill.

I urge my colleagues to support the rule for H.R. 1309.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield 4 minutes to a great leader on this issue, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MATSUI).

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 1309, the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2011.

A full 5-year reauthorization of the program is critically important for our Nation. I want to thank and commend Chairwoman BIGGERT and Ranking Member WATERS for their leadership on this issue as ushering in a 5-year reauthorization will provide welcomed relief for those who live in our country's floodplains.

I thank Chairwoman BIGGERT for including language from my own H.R. 902, legislation that would modernize FEMA's flood zone designations. Specifically, it would update current law to take local, State and Federal funding into account when determining flood zone designations. H.R. 1309 would extend the National Flood Insurance Program, NFIP, for 5 years and allow property owners in participating communities to purchase protection against flooding.

As we have seen across our country this year and in recent years, the NFIP is critically important to so many Americans. When a flood disaster strikes, the homeowners who have flood insurance can at least see their way through the crisis. The NFIP offers the victims of floods the ability to make their lives whole again. Of course, the best insurance against a flood is a strong flood protection system.

□ 0940

In my hometown of Sacramento, California, residents have taxed themselves hundreds of millions of dollars to pay for stronger flood protection. On one project in the Natomas Basin alone, State and local governments will have spent more than $300 million over the last 5 years on levee improvements. This has all been invested, I must point out, without acknowledgement by FEMA or funding from the Corps of Engineers. I am working tirelessly to change that and ensure that the Federal Government follows through with their commitment to this project.

There is no doubt that the Natomas Basin, like most of Sacramento, is at risk of flooding as it lays at the confluence of two great rivers. We know we must continue to build up our levees as well as carry flood insurance. Fortunately, the Sacramento region is working with the Army Corps of Engineers and the California Department of Water Resources to implement an aggressive levee improvement plan to achieve a 200-year level of flood protection.

While these efforts are ongoing, flood insurance has become mandatory for many homeowners, insurance that can cost more than $1,350 annually. That is nearly four times the PRP rate. The increasing cost of flood insurance, which is on top of the annual flood protection assessments that my constituents are already paying, compounds their financial burden. For these reasons, I believe that it is reasonable to phase in higher rates over a 5-year period.

I have an amendment that I will offer during debate on the underlying bill that will phase in the full cost of flood insurance policies in a more equitable way moving forward. I believe that this is a necessity that will assist homeowners in these trying economic times. I look forward to its being included in the overall reauthorization. This approach would encourage responsible homeowners across the country to continue paying into NFIP without adding risk to either the floodplain or the NFIP.

Again, I thank Chairwoman BIGGERT and Ranking Member WATERS for their leadership on this legislation.

Mr. SESSIONS. You know, Mr. Speaker, the beautiful part about the Republican Party is we have a whole bunch of Members who are just like the gentlewoman that I am going to extend time to in a minute who come to the table as friends of the taxpayer, who come and look at bills and reauthorizations of legislation from a perspective of what is the government's role, what should be the government's role, and how do we engage with the American people to keep these programs not only where they can sustain themselves, but also whether the taxpayer is well taken care of.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Shelby Township, Michigan (Mrs. MILLER).

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. I thank the gentleman for yielding. I actually live in Harrison Township. I appreciate that, though.

I certainly rise to support this rule, Mr. Speaker, but I am strongly, strongly opposed to the underlying bill, the National Flood Insurance Program. And I would start with this basic premise: Why in the world is the Federal Government even involved in the flood insurance business? Is that our core purpose of being the Federal Government? It's ridiculous.

This program was started in 1968, and the government began writing policies in the early seventies. And no great surprise, the Federal Government is doing a lousy job of being in the insurance business. This program is currently over $17 billion in debt, and now we need to raise the debt ceiling on this program to about $25 billion. And recently, the FEMA administrator testified to Congress that the flood insurance program—no great surprise—is likely to stay in debt, massive debt forever. And it's easy to understand why—because this program is not actuarially sound and because the Federal Government can be treated, apparently, as a bottomless pit of money. So we don't need to base the premiums on any normal risk evaluation, which is a matrix that private sector insurance companies have to do. In fact, we actually encourage people to build in flood-prone areas that repeatedly flood.

And just consider this one statistic: Only 1 percent of the properties in this program are considered to be repetitive losses, 1 percent; yet that 1 percent accounts for 40 percent of the claims because they repeatedly flood and the Federal Government subsidizes them to reconstruct.

At a time of extreme financial distress for our Nation, the Federal Government is subsidizing flood insurance. Why? If it's so great, why don't we start a fire insurance program? How about a wildfire insurance program? How about an earthquake protection insurance program? The truth is, Mr. Speaker, if we have a natural disaster in our country, this Congress, Americans, will always stand up and help that part of the country, that area of the country that is suffering. We will always help our fellow Americans.

This program may have been well-intentioned at the beginning, but it has evolved into something that is unrecognizable anymore. And if we ever truly want to downsize, to right-size the Federal Government, we just can't be nibbling around the edges of reforming a program that is ridiculous at its very core. We can't be reforming useless government programs. They need to be eliminated. And I believe that the National Flood Insurance Program is a waste of taxpayers' dollars, it is a boondoggle, and it needs to be eradicated.

So, Mr. Speaker, again, I do support the rule, but I obviously am very, very opposed to the National Flood Insurance Program. That is not the business of the Federal Government. We need to get out of that business.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, it's my understanding that the gentleman has no further speakers at this time.

I would like to yield 4 minutes to the chairman of the Republican leadership team, the gentleman from Hood River, Oregon (Mr. WALDEN).

Mr. WALDEN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I appreciate the work of Mr. SESSIONS and the very powerful Rules Committee in bringing forward this rule, which I support. And I appreciate the work of our colleague from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) for introducing this legislation and working with me on some issues that are critically important to the people of eastern and southern Oregon, and, frankly, all across Oregon, especially in places like Milton-Freewater, Oregon.

In Milton-Freewater, citizens are paying hundreds of dollars more in flood insurance because FEMA came in and did a remap process, and it has put a real burden on the people of this community. The community has already set in motion a plan to fix the levees that FEMA says have fallen out of certification, to bring them back into compliance.

This bill could provide relief from the mandatory insurance purchase requirements—remember, you've got government sort of mandatory insurance hanging over these folks—while the community works to improve the levees. It also will force FEMA to factor in the actual protection afforded by existing levees regardless of their accreditation status.

Part of the problem we have out there in Milton-Freewater is you have a couple of agencies fighting over whether there should be brush allowed to grow on the levees. One agency says, oh, we need that for shade in the river, and the other says, no, that actually degrades the integrity of the levee. So we have Federal agencies fighting, and the people in Milton-Freewater get stuck with the bill.

These commonsense steps and others in the bill will provide the relief Milton-Freewater is in desperate need of. These changes will, according to one county commissioner from the area, benefit more than 2,000 people in the community.

Now down in southern Oregon, citizens in Jackson County have been adversely impacted by the recently redrawn FEMA flood maps that, as FEMA has admitted, used inferior mapping methods for some portions. Now the new maps force many homeowners into 100- and 500-year floodplains for the first time. Now that means they have to buy costly insurance when they may not even need it. It's not cheap either. While it runs about $400 a year for the 2-year discount period, premiums skyrocket after that to as much as $25,000 annually, I'm told. Now, this bill would waive the burdensome mandatory insurance purchase requirements while the new maps are being appealed by homeowners. Homeowners shouldn't get stuck with this bill, this extraordinary cost, when it may, in fact, be a mapping error that even the agency admits they used inferior methods on.

This bill also improves the mapping process by reinstating the Technical Mapping Advisory Council, which will be better suited to take into account local factors during remapping, including natural topography and decertified levees that had not previously been considered.

This bill works to bring the National Flood Insurance Program out of the red while allowing communities more local input on their flood plans and time to adjust should they be designated as a high-risk area.

So I urge my colleagues both to approve the rule and the underlying bill so that we may reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program in a commonsense, fiscally responsible and bipartisan way.

□ 0950

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Hood River, Oregon, coming to speak not only about this bill but also his strong leadership in issues that deal directly with our Nation and keeping us fiscally sound.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Lawrenceville, Georgia, one of my colleagues on the Rules Committee, Mr. WOODALL.

Mr. WOODALL. I thank my friend from Texas for yielding.

We do have the great pleasure of serving on the Rules Committee together, though serving on the Rules Committee can be a benefit and a burden because historically there's been kind of a gentleman's agreement, I would tell you from what I've read about the institution; that if the committee of jurisdiction brings out a clever idea, they only bring out those clever ideas that they really like. And then the leadership of the House, whichever party is in control of the House, then only allows those reported bills that they really like to show up here on the floor of the House for us to debate. So then when the Rules Committee gets around to considering amendments, well, maybe the only amendments that are allowed are things that nibble around the edges but don't really make any substantive changes to the underlying bill.

Five months, six now, I've been here in the U.S. House of Representatives as part of this freshman class, and what we're doing today excites me. And to folks who have been here a little bit longer, maybe it's not as exciting to you as it is to me. But what is happening here today, not only did we get a bill that went through the regular order process—coming out of committee, no special games played, went through the amendment process in committee, everybody got a vote, and in fact was reported unanimously out of committee, as I understand—then it came to the Rules Committee. We had about 30 amendments offered up at the Rules Committee. A couple weren't germane, a couple were duplicative, but everything else we allowed. And one of those amendments was an amendment that said this is just a dumb program, let's scrap it, send it to the States and start over again. Wow.

And now there are a lot of amendments that we allowed that said let's change a "six" to a "five" or let's change this number of members to this number of members, things that would improve a bill, nibble around the edges. But this rule today, for the first time that I can recall, allows an amendment that says the entire underlying legislation is headed in the wrong direction. Let's take a new direction.

Now, Mr. Speaker, there are folks who would be scared about that kind of amendment, folks who would be intimidated to let something come to the floor. We have absolutely no idea what's going to happen.

But this House has made a new commitment, a renewed commitment to expressing the voice of the American people. And guess what? The only amendments that are going to pass on the floor today are ones the American people are behind. The only amendments that are going to pass the floor today are ones that get 218 votes and represent the majority will of this U.S. House of Representatives. It just makes me so proud.

And I hope, Mr. Speaker, for folks who don't follow the process as closely as you and I do, that they will see what a difference that is. And it is a difference from administrations going back 2 years, 4 years, 8 years, 10 years, 12 years. Folks say if it's an idea that has the support of the House, then it deserves to be heard, and we're going to hear all of those amendments here on the floor today.

Mr. Speaker, it's not easy to maintain that level of openness in the House. It takes a lot of cooperation between both sides of the aisle to make openness work. We have had that cooperation. And I don't mean cooperation in the sense that folks agree on absolutely all of the ideas. I mean cooperation in the sense that folks know that when the House works its will, the people's work gets done. When the House works its will, the American people's voice is best heard.

And I thank my colleagues on both sides of the aisle for their commitment to making that work. And I again thank my friend from Texas for yielding me the time this morning.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. I want to advise my colleague, the gentleman, Mr. MCGOVERN, that we do not have any further speakers at this time, and I would defer to his judgment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me, first of all, say that I'm glad the gentleman from Georgia is excited. I'm not quite at that level. I'm okay, but I'm not excited.

This is not an open rule. We had an opportunity to have an open rule. We called for a vote. Unfortunately, my friends on the other side of the aisle voted against it. But having said that, there are a lot of different amendments in here that represent a lot of different viewpoints, and so I'm okay with it. So I will begin by saying that.

Secondly, I want to share with my colleagues that this is a good bill. And it is not a boondoggle, as the gentleman from Michigan referred to it. It is a necessary protection for people.

The question was asked, well, why should the government be involved in flood insurance? Well, one of the reasons why is because the private insurance industry has no interest in providing the kind of coverage at an affordable level to people who need it. If there was money to be made, if they thought they could make money, you could bet the private insurance industry would step up and try to fill in the void. But they haven't, and they won't. And so without this, you will end up dealing with these catastrophes with disaster relief funds that Congress would have to approve. And that's not a very efficient or good way to deal with the issue of floods.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to point out that this is an important bill not only because it is bipartisan in nature, but I think there is also a bipartisan consensus that it is important that we move forward with this.

Again, I want to commend Mrs. BIGGERT and the members of the Financial Services Committee. I want to commend Congresswoman MAXINE WATERS who worked together in a bipartisan way, who produced a bill that passed 54-0. You don't see that very much. And this has been a very contentious Congress, and there have been lots of partisan divides when it has come to voting on bills. But in this one area, there is consensus, which I think is an indication that it will win broad bipartisan support in this Congress.

So, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Texas for bringing this rule to the floor. I want to thank all of those who are responsible for the underlying bill and look forward to supporting it. And I hope my colleagues, at a bipartisan level, will support my amendment, which I think is a good amendment.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. I want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts not only for his service to the Rules Committee but also for the ideas that he represents. And I'm delighted that he had an opportunity today to state with great clarity that the 25 amendments that have been made in order by the Rules Committee are good for this institution, this body, and lives up to the promise not just that our Speaker, the gentleman, JOHN BOEHNER, and our Majority Leader, ERIC CANTOR, subscribe to, but also the chairman of the Rules Committee, the gentleman, DAVID DREIER.

Mr. Speaker, the bill we are discussing today provides a long-term certainty in the flood insurance market. It allows for greater transparency and accountability in the flood insurance program and removes or diminishes greatly the great risk that taxpayers incur from bailing out the current program.

This country is facing a $14 trillion debt with almost $18 billion of that coming from the NFIP. Congress sorely needed to retain its control over this program and to ensure that we relooked at it in its reauthorization. However, we still have a government that spends way too much, taxes too much, listens too little to the needs of the American people. And today, the Republican Party, through the leadership that we're being provided by Mrs. BIGGERT from Illinois, is doing exactly that one at a time, to take on the programs and needs of this great Nation.

Once again, this bill provides us much needed long-term reauthorization and amends the NFIP to ensure the immediate and near-term fiscal administrative health of this program. The bill also ensures the NFIP's continued viability by encouraging broader participation in the program, increasing financial accountability, eliminating unnecessary rate subsidies, and updating the program to meet the current needs of this great Nation.

I applaud my colleagues for introducing the bill, the gentlewoman, Mrs. BIGGERT, for her hard work, the hundreds of meetings that were involved taking feedback from Members of Congress, looking at their needs, and then addressing those.

I encourage a "yes" vote on this rule.

I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

□ 1000

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 2354, ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 337 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 337

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 2354) making appropriations for energy and water development and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. Points of order against provisions in the bill for failure to comply with clause 2 of rule XXI are waived. During consideration If the bill for amendment, the chair of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD designated for that purpose in clause 8 of rule XVIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. When the committee rises and reports the bill back to the House with a recommendation that the bill do pass, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. POLIS), my colleague on the Rules Committee, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support this rule and the underlying bill.

House Resolution 337 provides for an open rule for consideration for H.R. 2354, the Energy and Water Development and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2012. This rule provides for ample debate and opportunities for the Members of the minority and majority to participate in that debate. The rule places no limitations on the number of amendments that may be considered, as long as they comply with the rules of the House.

This continues the Speaker's and the Rules chairman's desire and commitment to have transparency and openness, which was demanded by the American people. It's been a long time since we had this type of process, and it's great to have an open process. I think it helps with the partisanship that we have experienced.

The underlying bill funds the Department of Energy, while also moving forward several ongoing construction and operation and maintenance efforts by the Corps of Engineers. It also provides $1.2 billion in emergency funding for the communities of the Midwest and South ravaged by tornadoes, storms, and floods earlier this year. $477 million is set aside for fossil energy research and development. Nearly three times the amount, $1.3 billion, is appropriated for energy efficiency and renewable energy programs to ensure that we continue to move forward in developing next-generation power sources and fuels. Critical defense environmental cleanup efforts are funded at a total of $4.9 billion.

This bill recognizes the importance of a long term nuclear waste disposal policy for the United States; $3.5 million is provided for nuclear waste disposal for the Yucca Mountain nuclear waste storage site in Nevada. Further, no funds in this bill will be used to shut down Yucca Mountain. Since 1983, taxpayers have spent over $15 billion for the construction of this facility, and this bill reasserts the sense of the body that Yucca Mountain is the future repository for nuclear waste.

Is every program or project funded at the levels that we would like? Probably not. For example, long-awaited Federal funds for the Everglades effort in my home State of Florida are significantly pared back in this bill. I am sure almost every Member of this body could find some program, some project or effort that they would like to see plussed up. This is not a perfect world, however, and at the end of the day the funding levels in this bill represent only a 3.3 percent modest cut from last year.

We have to scale back our spending. Appropriations in the last Congress accrued about $1.65 trillion in deficit spending. That's the largest ever. We borrow about $4.5 billion every day. And we just have to pare back.

Will the cuts made in this bill alone right our Nation's fiscal ship? No, but it's a start. It moves the rudder; maybe a half a degree, but it does move the rudder to turn it around. The bill changes the way Washington has spent taxpayers' money in the past. For example, there are no earmarks in this bill. Also, because this bill is being considered in an open rule, any Member can offer an amendment to increase or decrease funding levels. Again, a 3.3 percent cut to the Department of Energy and Corps of Engineers budget will not solve all of our Nation's fiscal problems, but at least it's a step in the right direction.

Once again, Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this rule and the underlying legislation. Given our current budget situation, the Appropriations Committee has worked diligently to provide us with a fiscally responsible bill that allows Congress to begin living within its means, just like American families and businesses are forced to do every day.

I encourage my colleagues to vote "yes" on the rule and "yes" on the underlying bill.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. POLIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to thank my colleague from Florida for the time, as well as to thank the majority members of the Rules Committee for a fair rule that will enable a wide variety of floor amendments to be brought forward.

I do rise in opposition to the underlying bill unless there are major changes made, which I hope a majority of the House successfully achieves in doing under this fair open rule.

The current political debate in Washington is dominated by the question of Federal spending. And I think it's a question that we need to revisit under each appropriations bill. We need to cut wasteful spending. We should eliminate programs that don't work, eliminate corporate giveaways, look at the cost of tax subsidies that cost billions of dollars to Americans but fail to create jobs, and really serve to enrich special interests.

We also need to make sure that we don't lose sight, in our drive to reduce the deficit, that we impact investments that are creative and help our economy and reduce deficits over time. Just as a successful business making cuts in a recession would make the cuts intelligently and wouldn't cut essential investments on capital resources, Congress shouldn't slash domestic investments that create jobs while also at the same time continuing to give handouts to multibillion dollar corporations.

Given the approach to budgeting this year in this body, it seems like the majority isn't basing their decisions on cold arithmetic that's needed to balance a budget. Rather, there seems to be a different equation in play, an approach driven by ideology and special interest lobbying, not by a real concern for deficit reduction. With this appropriations bill, I think what we are seeing is more of the same.

How else can we explain a budget that ends Medicare while preserving tax subsidies for Big Oil, tax subsidies for corporate jets, and continues wasteful defense programs, in fact actually increases the defense budget when we know that we have more defense than we can afford in this country? Why is wasteful spending prioritized over health care for our seniors, the education of our children, and investments under this bill that keep our air and water supply clean and healthy, reducing health care costs in the long run?

Now, again, when we talk about these appropriations bills it's not a debate over whether we should cut the deficit. I think Republicans and Democrats agree that we need to cut the deficit. It's a debate about how we restore fiscal discipline that has been abandoned over the last decade. Let's have that debate here in the U.S. House. And I am glad that this rule allows us to do it under this bill. And I hope we are able to make some major changes to this bill.

□ 1010

Unfortunately, the Energy and Water bill as presented before the House under this rule exemplifies a reckless and ideological approach to the budget.

This bill actually increases funding levels, increases deficit funding levels for fossil fuel research and development, oil and gas research, increases Federal spending on these programs, while cutting investments in clean energy research. In the past, Republicans have claimed that they were for an "all of the above" approach to energy policy, looking at optimizing exploitation of fossil fuels and also investing in new energy research, but instead of "all of the above," this bill represents an "oil above all" approach to national energy policy. It's simply not a serious response to America's need for cleaner, more affordable domestic energy.

At a time when we all agree we're confronting a fiscal crisis, how can we ask American taxpayers to foot the bill for ExxonMobil's R&D? That's exactly what we do under this bill. It's one of a series of subsidies for Big Oil that the majority has chosen to protect at a time that they're also demanding Americans see funding cut for schools and for seniors. Instead of increasing wasteful spending which benefits only the fossil fuel industry, we should invest in the American clean energy innovation that will benefit our national security, our environment, and our economy.

This legislation cuts total funding for the Energy Department's Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy by 42 percent compared to 2010, at the same time increasing subsidies to oil and gas. These cuts will mean less innovation, dirtier energy and fewer clean energy jobs. In my home State of Colorado alone, over 5,000 jobs have been spun off of research that was conducted at the National Renewable Energy Laboratory, and the lab gives an estimated $714 million annual boost to our State's economy. It's that kind of research that is devastated under this bill. Through this open amendment process, I call upon my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support efforts to restore that funding.

These labs, like the National Renewable Energy Laboratory and the basic Federal research, are incubators for the private sector. The investments don't go to bloated bureaucracies or government bureaucrats in Washington. They go to the actual hiring of experts and innovators that will spin off their ideas to entrepreneurs to bring to the marketplace, a model for private sector job growth that's critical for our Nation's economy and critical for our national security in meeting our own energy needs domestically.

The Department of Energy's investments in clean energy are the first step in a job create domino effect. As of August 2010, as an example, the National Renewable Energy Laboratory had 329 contracts with Colorado companies totaling $414 million, including $75.3 million in the most recent fiscal year. NREL had cooperative research and development agreements with 23 Colorado companies, and NREL supports interactions with companies from across the Nation. That's just one example of the many research initiatives and public-private partnerships that this bill as written would call into jeopardy.

And while again calling into jeopardy much of this fundamental research that has private sector applications, we're again increasing subsidies to the fossil fuel industry's research. There is a $141 million or 81 percent cut to weatherization initiatives that help insulate the homes of low-income, elderly and disabled individuals in this bill, while continuing and increasing subsidies to the fossil fuel industry.

Another dangerous cut in this bill is cutting funding to the Advanced Research Projects Agency, ARPA-E, by 44 percent compared to the current year. ARPA-E has strongly had bipartisan support for years and helps fund innovation in the economy based on a proven successful model we've had in defense for many years called DARPA. It funds path-breaking ideas that are unlikely to get funding anywhere else at an early stage. This creative model is crafted after DARPA, which has led to things ranging from cell phones to the creation of the Internet itself, and it has tremendous implications for America to meet its renewable energy needs.

The bill before us is not smart, and it's not sensible. It's simply not a fiscally responsible bill that meets our Nation's future energy needs and cuts our deficit. I urge my colleagues to improve this bill through amendments during this open amendment process and, if it's in anything close to its current form, to oppose the final bill.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would just like to address a couple of items: number one, the tax policy we've been talking about and how we could raise extra revenues. The tax policy we have today was given to us by the 111th Congress. I assume if they had wanted to change it, they would have when they had the majority. They didn't. They gave us the tax policy. We haven't gotten to that yet, but we will at some point in time.

As far as the money we're using in this budget, it is a small decrease, but we have to do it. We're borrowing 40 cents on the dollar; $4.5 billion a day. We cannot afford it. If we were to increase the allocation in this particular bill, then we would actually be borrowing 100 percent of that allocation increase because we do not have the cash.

So to me, we are here with a good bill. The rule certainly is a good rule. It's an open rule. It's the perfect opportunity for anybody that wants to change this bill to do so. However, the underlying bill is also a good bill. It's done very well.

Just to give you a picture of what the minority said about it in their views that serve on the committee:

"We commend the chairmen, both the sub chair and the full chair, for their efforts to assemble this bill in an inclusive manner. The bill funds critical water resource projects, supports science activities necessary to American competitiveness, and contributes to our national defense through vital weapons, naval reactor research and nonproliferation funding, all priorities that unite rather than divide us."

There was a disagreement and that is over the allocation, but we simply cannot afford any more of an allocation for this than we have. The budget that was done is an excellent one under the circumstances.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. POLIS. It is my honor to yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from California, a former colleague of mine on the Rules Committee, Ms. MATSUI.

Ms. MATSUI. I want to thank my colleague from Colorado for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I have been a tireless advocate on behalf of Sacramento's flood protection priorities. Sacramento is the most at-risk metropolitan area for major flooding, as it lies at the confluence of two great rivers, the Sacramento and the American. The city is home to California's State Capitol, an international airport, the State's water and electric grids and over a half million people. If Sacramento were to flood, the economic damages would range between $28 and $40 billion. The consequences of such a flood would be felt across the Nation.

Even in this austere budget environment, it is critical that Sacramento's basic flood protection needs are met. I want to applaud the Energy and Water appropriations subcommittee for including funding for Sacramento's top flood protection projects. Each one of these projects is a critical component to improving the flood protection for the entire Sacramento region. Taken together, the completed projects will bring us closer to the level of flood protection that families and businesses throughout the region need and deserve.

Moreover, these projects are already in the midst of construction. A lapse of funding would not only postpone the safety that the completed projects will provide but would also increase project costs, something that we cannot afford. In fact, these projects have already been funded at the local and State level and are awaiting a sustained Federal match. For example, Federal funding will help finish the Folsom Dam Joint Federal Project, the JFP, where continued construction on the auxiliary spillway will provide greater efficiency in managing flood storage in the Folsom Reservoir. The hundreds of thousands of residents living below the dam will be better protected once the project is finished.

The JFP and our levee improvements will go a long way toward protecting and preventing flooding in Sacramento, but the funding in this bill does not fully support Sacramento's flood protection needs. The levels in this bill are actually below the Corps of Engineers' full capability.

This winter, we have had record-breaking snowpack in the Sierra Nevada mountain range, which rests just above Sacramento.

□ 1020

We are fortunate that the snowpack did not melt all at once. When this occurs, our dams and levees are put to the test.

Mr. Speaker, luck is not something that the American people should have to rely upon. Hurricane Katrina and this year's flooding in the Midwest taught us that we need to take large leaps forward in shoring up our Nation's flood protection infrastructure.

Let's take the opportunity to fix our Nation's flood protection system while the sun is out and not watch another American community get swept away in high water.

Mr. WEBSTER. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. POLIS. I have no additional speakers and would inquire of the gentleman from Florida if he has any remaining speakers.

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, I am prepared to close.

Mr. POLIS. I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this bill, again, while we appreciate the open amendment process, will need an open amendment process to correct because it's so highly flawed in its current form.

It serves as the majority's vehicle for a whole series of anti-environment, anti-public interest riders. These riders undercut the Clean Water Act, putting at risk public health and increasing economic burdens on local communities.

The bill prevents the Army Corps of Engineers from applying anti-pollution protections to many rivers, streams and wetlands that supply drinking water and prevent flooding. Over 100 million Americans get their drinking water from public supplies provided in whole or in part from waters that are at risk of losing Clean Water Act safeguards under this bill as written.

Furthermore, the committee report language that accompanies the bill contains even more explicit policy directives, including the mandate that what was to be an independent advisory board on the safety of shale gas drilling be dominated by industry representatives, which would be a prime example of the fox guarding the chicken coop.

Unconventional shale gas has been expanding into new areas at a breakneck pace and has been accompanied by growing health and pollution problems experienced by residents and communities when the drilling is taking place in close proximity to where families are living. Its growth is outpacing current safeguards and exemptions already give the industry too much isolation from public safety assurances.

I have grave concerns that the committee felt the need to interfere in a balanced and truly independent technology advisory panel with the aim of silencing public voices in favor of representing the industry above all other legitimate stakeholders. In fact, the advisory panel is already heavily tipped in industry's favor, and the language shows us exactly whose side this legislation is on—entrenched industries and polluters, not the public interest.

The annual Energy and Water appropriations bill is important funding legislation. Historically, it has been broadly bipartisan, and it shouldn't be a playground for special interest handouts. Yet under this majority, that's what this bill has become that we are considering today.

The bill in its current form undermines our energy future, undermines our national security and subsidizes an energy industry that has given us record gas prices, fracking health hazards and dirtier air. It attempts to drive a supertanker-sized loophole through the laws that keep our clean water safe.

This bill should be focused on investing in innovation to strengthen our country and our national security and our energy future, not focused on wasteful spending to special interests supporting entrenched industries and harmful cuts to their clean competitors.

I urge a "no" vote on this bill.

I urge my colleagues to come forth and try to improve this bill under the rule.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. Speaker, as you heard me say earlier, my Republican colleagues and I are committed to providing a more open, accountable, and transparent process. And the underlying bill went through regular order, including eight different subcommittee hearings. Several Democrat amendments were adopted on the committee level. It has provided an open rule to allow Republicans and Democrats alike to offer their ideas in open, honest debate.

This vote is on the rule, which provides for an open, transparent process where the ideas and policies will rise and fall on the basis of their merit, not on their party affiliations. This is what the American people expect of their elected officials. It's an expectation that's being fulfilled by this rule, and I encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting its passage.

I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WEBSTER). Pursuant to House Resolution 320 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2219.

□ 1028

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2219) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, with Mr. BASS of New Hampshire (Acting Chair) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Thursday, July 7, 2011, the bill had been read through page 161, line 12.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KUCINICH

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the bill (before the short title) insert the following new section:

"SEC. ____ None of the funds in this Act may be used for military operations in or against Libya except under a declaration of war against Libya pursuant to clause 11 in section 8 of article I of the Constitution."

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes.

□ 1030

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, before the House completes work on this important bill, I think that it is imperative that the House is provided with one more opportunity to clarify its position with respect to the Constitution and our power under article I, section 8, clause 11 of the Constitution, which reads as follows, that Congress has the power to declare war.

This amendment says none of the funds in this act may be used for military operations in or against Libya except under a declaration of war against Libya pursuant to clause 11 in section 8 of article I of the Constitution.

So what this amendment does is it recognizes Congress' power to appropriate and links it, in this case, to Congress' ability to declare war and enables this House to definitively—definitively—make a statement that it is our prerogative, our Constitutional right, to determine whether or not this Nation goes to war, and we are not going to see any war funded absent a declaration of war by this Congress.

It is imperative that we act, because by September, this administration will have spent $1 billion on the war without Congress having any say in that whatsoever. We will have gone to a war without any ability of Congress to have a voice.

Now, to its credit, this House has taken up numerous proposals relative to the war in Libya that have sought to limit the sphere of conduct of hostilities against Libya—no ground troops and no money to rebels. This amendment, however, gives the House one last opportunity within this bill to speak very clearly about article I, section 8, clause 11 and to do it in the context of an appropriations bill which says that we will not permit any funds to be spent unless this Congress moves forward with a declaration of war.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Kucinich amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. First of all, the President has made a very strong case for our military action in Libya. I think, as Commander in Chief, he has the authority. We had a U.N. resolution, the NATO allies were involved and so was the Arab League.

There is another option. The other option is the War Powers Act. And I hope at some point the President will ask for congressional support of his initiative in Libya.

The idea that we're going to pull out of this unilaterally and undermine the NATO alliance I think is a terrible mistake. Although I have the greatest respect for the gentleman from Ohio, I'm strongly opposed to his amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time. Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I will first admit that this gentleman introducing this amendment, if nothing else, is certainly persistent. The only problem is, after 2 lengthy days, 10 and 11 hours each day, with amendment after amendment being presented, we have just been given this amendment in the last 5 minutes. We would have liked to have had a little more time to really analyze it. But a quick analysis of this amendment tells me that it is very similar to all of the other Libyan amendments that we have defeated in the last 2 days.

For example, I believe that this amendment would preclude any search-and-rescue mission on the part of Americans to save Americans. I'm satisfied it would prevent us from providing any intelligence surveillance, or reconnaissance. I'm satisfied that it would not permit us to do any aerial refueling of our coalition or NATO partners. I'm satisfied that the amendment would prohibit us from even being involved while operational plans are being developed that might have an effect on the support role that the United States plays.

So, here we go again. We've already defeated this issue close to a dozen times in the last 2 days. So I just suggest that we move on and defeat this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

The first amendment by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

The second amendment by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

The third amendment by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 77 by Mr. HUELSKAMP of Kansas.

An amendment by Mr. POLIS of Colorado.

An amendment by Mr. KUCINICH of Ohio.

The Chair will reduce to 2 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the first amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 39, noes 380, not voting 12, as follows:

[Roll No. 525]

AYES—39

Amash	Garrett	McHenry
Bachmann	Gohmert	Mulvaney
Benishek	Goodlatte	Paul
Bishop (UT)	Gowdy	Posey
Boustany	Graves (GA)	Price (GA)
Broun (GA)	Griffith (VA)	Scott (SC)
Burgess	Huizenga (MI)	Sensenbrenner
Cantor	Hurt	Southerland
Chabot	Jordan	Stearns
Chaffetz	Landry	Walberg
Duncan (SC)	Lummis	Walsh (IL)
Duncan (TN)	Mack	Westmoreland
Flake	McClintock	Woodall

NOES—380

Ackerman	Costello	Hartzler
Adams	Courtney	Hastings (FL)
Aderholt	Cravaack	Hastings (WA)
Akin	Crawford	Hayworth
Alexander	Crenshaw	Heck
Altmire	Critz	Heinrich
Andrews	Cuellar	Hensarling
Austria	Cummings	Herger
Baca	Davis (GA)	Herrera Beutler
Bachus	Davis (IL)	Higgins
Baldwin	Davis (KY)	Himes
Barletta	DeFazio	Hinojosa
Barrow	DeGette	Hirono
Bartlett	DeLauro	Hochul
Barton (TX)	Denham	Holden
Bass (CA)	Dent	Holt
Bass (NH)	DesJarlais	Honda
Becerra	Deutch	Hoyer
Berg	Diaz-Balart	Huelskamp
Berkley	Dicks	Hultgren
Berman	Dingell	Hunter
Biggert	Doggett	Inlee
Bilbray	Dold	Israel
Bilirakis	Donnelly (IN)	Issa
Bishop (GA)	Doyle	Jackson (IL)
Bishop (NY)	Dreier	Jenkins
Black	Duffy	Johnson (IL)
Blackburn	Edwards	Johnson (OH)
Blumenauer	Ellison	Johnson, E. B.
Bonner	Ellmers	Johnson, Sam
Bono Mack	Emerson	Jones
Boren	Engel	Kaptur
Boswell	Eshoo	Keating
Brady (PA)	Farenthold	Kelly
Brady (TX)	Farr	Kildee
Braley (IA)	Fattah	Kind
Brooks	Filner	King (IA)
Brown (FL)	Fincher	King (NY)
Buchanan	Fitzpatrick	Kingston
Buchson	Fleischmann	Kinzinger (IL)
Buerkle	Fleming	Kissell
Burton (IN)	Flores	Kline
Butterfield	Forbes	Kucinich
Calvert	Fortenberry	Labrador
Camp	Foxx	Lamborn
Canseco	Frank (MA)	Lance
Capito	Franks (AZ)	Langevin
Capps	Frelinghuysen	Lankford
Capuano	Fudge	Larsen (WA)
Carnahan	Gallely	Larson (CT)
Carney	Garamendi	Latham
Carson (IN)	Gardner	LaTourette
Carter	Gerlach	Latta
Cassidy	Gibbs	Lee (CA)
Castor (FL)	Gibson	Levin
Chandler	Gingrey (GA)	Lewis (CA)
Chu	Gonzalez	Lewis (GA)
Ciçilline	Gosar	Lipinski
Clarke (MI)	Granger	LoBiondo
Clarke (NY)	Green, Al	Loebsack
Clay	Green, Gene	Lofgren, Zoe
Cleaver	Griffin (AR)	Long
Clyburn	Grijalva	Lowe
Coble	Grimm	Lucas
Coffman (CO)	Guinta	Luetkemeyer
Cohen	Guthrie	Luján
Cole	Gutierrez	Lungren, Daniel
Conaway	Hall	E.
Connolly (VA)	Hanabusa	Lynch
Conyers	Hanna	Maloney
Cooper	Harper	Manzullo
Costa	Harris	Marchant

Marino	Poe (TX)	Sherman
Markey	Polis	Shimkus
Matheson	Pompeo	Shuler
Matsui	Price (NC)	Shuster
McCarthy (CA)	Quayle	Simpson
McCarthy (NY)	Quigley	Sires
McCaul	Rahall	Slaughter
McCollum	Rangel	Smith (NE)
McCotter	Reed	Smith (NJ)
McDermott	Rehberg	Smith (TX)
McGovern	Reichert	Smith (WA)
McIntyre	Renacci	Speier
McKeon	Reyes	Stark
McKinley	Ribble	Stivers
McMorris	Richardson	Stutzman
Rodgers	Richmond	Sullivan
McNerney	Rigell	Sutton
Meehan	Rivera	Terry
Meeks	Roby	Thompson (CA)
Mica	Roe (TN)	Thompson (MS)
Michaud	Rogers (AL)	Thompson (PA)
Miller (FL)	Rogers (KY)	Thornberry
Miller (MI)	Rogers (MI)	Tiberi
Miller (NC)	Rohrabacher	Tierney
Miller, Gary	Rooney	Tipton
Miller, George	Ros-Lehtinen	Tonko
Moore	Roskam	Towns
Moran	Ross (AR)	Tsongas
Murphy (CT)	Ross (FL)	Turner
Murphy (PA)	Rothman (NJ)	Upton
Myrick	Roybal-Allard	Van Hollen
Nadler	Royce	Velázquez
Napolitano	Runyan	Viscosky
Neal	Ruppersberger	Walden
Neugebauer	Rush	Walz (MN)
Noem	Ryan (OH)	Wasserman
Nugent	Ryan (WI)	Schultz
Nunes	Sánchez, Linda	Waters
Nunnelee	T.	Watt
Olson	Sanchez, Loretta	Waxman
Olver	Sarbanes	Webster
Owens	Scalise	Welch
Palazzo	Schakowsky	West
Pallone	Schiff	Whitfield
Pascarella	Schilling	Wilson (FL)
Pastor (AZ)	Schmidt	Wilson (SC)
Paulsen	Schock	Wittman
Pearce	Schrader	Wolf
Pence	Schwartz	Womack
Perlmutter	Schweikert	Woolsey
Peters	Scott (VA)	Wu
Peterson	Scott, Austin	Yarmuth
Petri	Scott, David	Yoder
Pingree (ME)	Serrano	Young (AK)
Pitts	Sessions	Young (FL)
Platts	Sewell	Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—12

Campbell	Graves (MO)	Payne
Cardoza	Hinchee	Pelosi
Crowley	Jackson Lee	Rokita
Culberson	(TX)
Giffords	Johnson (GA)

□ 1102

Messrs. MCNERNEY and LUETKE-MEYER, Ms. PINGREE of Maine, and Mr. PASCARELL changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Messrs. HURT, BISHOP of Utah, SCOTT of South Carolina, CHABOT, and SOUTHERLAND changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the second amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amend-

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 118, noes 295, not voting 18, as follows:

[Roll No. 526]

AYES—118

Amash	Green, Gene	Olver
Baldwin	Griffith (VA)	Paul
Barton (TX)	Gutierrez	Perlmutter
Benishek	Herrera Beutler	Peters
Bishop (NY)	Himes	Petri
Blumenauer	Holt	Poe (TX)
Braley (IA)	Honda	Polis
Buerkle	Huizenga (MI)	Price (NC)
Burgess	Hurt	Quigley
Burton (IN)	Jenkins	Reed
Capuano	Johnson (IL)	Royce
Chabot	Johnson (OH)	Sanchez, Loretta
Chaffetz	Jones	Schakowsky
Ciçilline	Jordan	Schradler
Clarke (MI)	Keating	Schweikert
Clay	Kind	Scott (SC)
Coble	Kucinich	Sensenbrenner
Conyers	Labrador	Serrano
Cooper	Lance	Sherman
Courtney	Larson (CT)	Smith (NE)
DeFazio	Levin	Southerland
DeLauro	Loeb sack	Speier
Doggett	Lofgren, Zoe	Stark
Doyle	Lummis	Stearns
Duffy	Mack	Stutzman
Duncan (SC)	Maloney	Sullivan
Duncan (TN)	Markey	Thompson (CA)
Edwards	Matheson	Thompson (PA)
Eshoo	Matsui	Tierney
Farr	McClintock	Tonko
Filner	McGovern	Upton
Flake	Mica	Tsongas
Frank (MA)	Michaud	Upton
Garamendi	Miller (NC)	Velázquez
Garrett	Miller, George	Walberg
Gibson	Moore	Walsh (IL)
Goodlatte	Mulvaney	Welch
Gosar	Murphy (CT)	Woolsey
Gowdy	Napolitano	Yoder
Graves (GA)	Nunnelee

NOES—295

Ackerman	Butterfield	Dicks
Adams	Calvert	Dingell
Aderholt	Camp	Dold
Akin	Canseco	Donnelly (IN)
Alexander	Cantor	Dreier
Altmire	Capito	Ellison
Andrews	Capps	Ellmers
Austria	Carnahan	Emerson
Baca	Carney	Engel
Bachmann	Carson (IN)	Farenthold
Bachus	Cassidy	Fattah
Barletta	Castor (FL)	Fincher
Barrow	Chandler	Fitzpatrick
Bartlett	Chu	Fleischmann
Bass (CA)	Clarke (NY)	Fleming
Bass (NH)	Cleaver	Flores
Becerra	Clyburn	Forbes
Berg	Coffman (CO)	Fortenberry
Berkley	Cohen	Foxx
Berman	Cole	Franks (AZ)
Biggert	Conaway	Frelinghuysen
Bilbray	Connolly (VA)	Fudge
Bilirakis	Costa	Gallely
Bishop (GA)	Costello	Gardner
Bishop (UT)	Cravaack	Gerlach
Black	Crawford	Gibbs
Blackburn	Crenshaw	Gingrey (GA)
Bonner	Critz	Gohmert
Bono Mack	Cuellar	Gonzalez
Boren	Cummings	Green, Al
Boswell	Davis (CA)	Griffin (AR)
Boustany	Davis (IL)	Grijalva
Brady (PA)	Davis (KY)	Grimm
Brady (TX)	DeGette	Guinta
Brooks	Denham	Guthrie
Brown (GA)	Dent	Hall
Brown (FL)	DesJarlais	Hanabusa
Buchanan	Deutch	Hanna
Buchson	Diaz-Balart	Harper

Harris McDermott
 Hartzler McHenry
 Hastings (FL) McIntyre
 Hastings (WA) McKeon
 Hayworth McKinley
 Heck McMorris
 Heinrich Rodgers
 Hensarling Mc Nerney
 Herger Meehan
 Higgins Meeks
 Hinojosa Miller (FL)
 Hochul Miller (MI)
 Holden Miller, Gary
 Hoyer Moran
 Huelskamp Murphy (PA)
 Hultgren Myrick
 Hunter Nadler
 Insole Neal
 Israel Neugebauer
 Issa Noem
 Jackson (IL) Nugent
 Johnson, E. B. Nunes
 Johnson, Sam Olson
 Kaptur Owens
 Kelly Palazzo
 Kildee Pallone
 King (IA) Pascrell
 King (NY) Pastor (AZ)
 Kingston Paulsen
 Kinzinger (IL) Pearce
 Kissell Pelosi
 Kline Pence
 Lamborn Pingree (ME)
 Landry Pitts
 Langevin Platts
 Lankford Pompeo
 Larsen (WA) Posey
 Latham Price (GA)
 LaTourette Quayle
 Latta Rahall
 Lee (CA) Rangel
 Lewis (CA) Rehberg
 Lewis (GA) Reichert
 Lipinski Renacci
 LoBiondo Ribble
 Long Richardson
 Lowey Richmond
 Lucas Rigell
 Luetkemeyer Rivera
 Luján Roby
 Lungren, Daniel Roe (TN)
 E. Rogers (AL)
 Lynch Rogers (KY)
 Manzullo Rohrabacher
 Marchant Rokita
 Marino Rooney
 McCarthy (CA) Ros-Lehtinen
 McCarthy (NY) Roskam
 McCaul Ross (AR)
 McCollum Ross (FL)
 McCotter Rothman (NJ)

Roybal-Allard Runyan
 Ruppertsberger Ruppertsberger
 Rush Ryan (OH)
 Ryan (WI) Ryan (WI)
 Sánchez, Linda T.
 Sarbanes
 Scalise
 Schiff
 Schilling
 Schmidt
 Schock
 Schwartz
 Scott (VA)
 Scott, Austin
 Scott, David
 Sessions
 Sewell
 Shimkus
 Shuler
 Shuster
 Simpson
 Sires
 Slaughter
 Smith (NJ)
 Smith (TX)
 Smith (WA)
 Stivers
 Sutton
 Terry
 Thompson (MS)
 Thornberry
 Tiberi
 Tipton
 Conyers
 Cooper
 Dent
 Dold
 Duffy
 Duncan (SC)
 Duncan (TN)
 Filner
 Fitzpatrick
 Flake
 Frank (MA)
 Garrett
 Gohmert
 Goodlatte
 Gowdy
 Graves (GA)
 Griffith (VA)
 Hensarling
 Herrera Beutler
 Hirono
 Honda
 Huelskamp

FLAKE) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.
 The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.
 The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 100, noes 321, not voting 10, as follows:

[Roll No. 527]

AYES—100

Amash Huizenga (MI)
 Barton (TX) Hurt
 Becerra Inslee
 Benishek Jenkins
 Brady (TX) Johnson (IL)
 Braley (IA) Johnson (OH)
 Broun (GA) Jordan
 Burton (IN) Kind
 Camp Kingston
 Carney Kucinich
 Chabot Labrador
 Chaffetz Landry
 Lummis
 Mack
 Maloney
 Manzullo
 Matheson
 McHenry
 Mica
 Michaud
 Mulvaney
 Myrick
 Neugebauer
 Nunes
 Paul
 Pence
 Peters
 Petri
 Pingree (ME)
 Poe (TX)
 Polis
 Pompeo
 Quayle
 Quigley

Forbes LoBiondo
 Fortenberry Loeb sack
 Foss Lofgren, Zoe
 Franks (AZ) Long
 Frelinghuysen Lowey
 Fudge Lucas
 Gallegly Luetkemeyer
 Garamendi Luján
 Gardner Lungren, Daniel
 Gerlach E.
 Gibbs Lynch
 Gibson Marchant
 Gonzalez Marino
 Gosar Markey
 Granger Matsui
 Green, Al McCarthy (CA)
 Green, Gene McCarthy (NY)
 Griffin (AR) McCaul
 Grijalva McClintock
 Grimm McCollum
 Guinta McCotter
 Guthrie McDermott
 Gutierrez McGovern
 Hall McIntyre
 Hanabusa McKeon
 Hanna McKinley
 Harper McMorris
 Harris Rodgers
 Hartzler Mc Nerney
 Hastings (FL) Meehan
 Hastings (WA) Meeks
 Hayworth Miller (FL)
 Heck Miller (MI)
 Heinrich Miller (NC)
 Herger Miller, Gary
 Higgins Miller, George
 Himes Moore
 Hinojosa Moran
 Hochul Murphy (CT)
 Holden Murphy (PA)
 Holt Nadler
 Hoyer Napolitano
 Hultgren Neal
 Hunter Noem
 Israel Nugent
 Issa Nunnelee
 Jackson (IL) Olson
 Johnson (GA) Olver
 Johnson, E. B. Owens
 Johnson, Sam Palazzo
 Jones Pallone
 Kaptur Pascrell
 Keating Pastor (AZ)
 Kelly Paulsen
 Kildee Pearce
 King (IA) Pelosi
 King (NY) Perlmutter
 Kissell Kinzinger (IL)
 Kline Peterson
 Lamborn Pitts
 Lance Platts
 Langevin Posey
 Lankford Price (GA)
 Larsen (WA) Price (NC)
 Larson (CT) Rahall
 Latham Rangel
 LaTourette Rehberg
 Latta Reichert
 Lee (CA) Reyes
 Levin Richardson
 Lewis (CA) Richmond
 Lewis (GA) Rigell
 Lipinski Roby
 Roe (TN) Young (IN)

NOES—321

Ackerman Brooks
 Adams Brown (FL)
 Aderholt Buchanan
 Akin Bucshon
 Alexander Buerkle
 Altmiere Burgess
 Andrews Butterfield
 Austria Calvert
 Baca Canseco
 Bachmann Cantor
 Bachus Capito
 Baldwin Capps
 Barletta Capuano
 Barrow Carnahan
 Bartlett Carson (IN)
 Bass (CA) Carter
 Bass (NH) Cassidy
 Berg Castor (FL)
 Berkley Chandler
 Berman Chu
 Biggert Cicilline
 Bilbray Clarke (MI)
 Bilirakis Clarke (NY)
 Bishop (GA) Clay
 Bishop (NY) Cleaver
 Bishop (UT) Clyburn
 Black Coble
 Blackburn Coffman (CO)
 Blumenauer Cohen
 Bonner Cole
 Bono Mack Conaway
 Boren Connolly (VA)
 Boswell Costa
 Boustany Costello
 Brady (PA) Courtney

Crawford Cravaack
 Crenshaw Crawford
 Critz Crenshaw
 Cuellar Critz
 Cummings Cuellar
 Davis (CA) Cummings
 Davis (IL) Davis (CA)
 Davis (KY) Davis (IL)
 DeFazio DeGette
 DeGette DeLauro
 DeLauro Denham
 DesJarlais DesJarlais
 Deutch
 Diaz-Balart
 Dicks
 Dingell
 Doggett
 Donnelly (IN)
 Doyle
 Dreier
 Edwards
 Ellison
 Ellmers
 Emerson
 Engel
 Eshoo
 Farenthold
 Farr
 Fattah
 Fincher
 Costa
 Costello
 Fleming
 Flores

NOT VOTING—10

Campbell Giffords
 Cardoza Gingrey (GA)
 Crowley Graves (MO)
 Culberson Hinchey
 Jackson Lee (TX)
 Payne

Campbell Graves (MO)
 Cardoza Hinchey
 Carter Hirono
 Crowley Jackson Lee
 Culberson (TX)
 Giffords Johnson (GA)
 Granger Payne

NOT VOTING—18

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR
 The Acting CHAIR (during the vote).
 There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1106

Mr. POE of Texas changed his vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated against:

Mr. WITTMAN. Mr. Chair, on rollcall No. 526, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted “no.”

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the third amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR
 The Acting CHAIR (during the vote).
 There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1112

Ms. LEE and Ms. WOOLSEY changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Messrs. POE of Texas, WESTMORELAND, and DOLD changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT NO. 77 OFFERED BY MR. HUELSKAMP

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. HUELSKAMP) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 236, noes 184, not voting 11, as follows:

[Roll No. 528]

AYES—236

Adams	Flake	LaTourette
Aderholt	Fleischmann	Latta
Akin	Fleming	Lewis (CA)
Alexander	Flores	LoBiondo
Austria	Forbes	Long
Bachmann	Fortenberry	Lucas
Bachus	Fox	Luetkemeyer
Barletta	Franks (AZ)	Lummis
Barrow	Frelinghuysen	Lungren, Daniel
Bartlett	Galleghy	E.
Barton (TX)	Gardner	Mack
Bass (NH)	Garrett	Manzullo
Benishek	Gerlach	Marchant
Berg	Gibbs	Marino
Bilbray	Gibson	Matheson
Bilirakis	Gingrey (GA)	McCarthy (CA)
Bishop (UT)	Gohmert	McClain
Black	Goodlatte	McClintock
Blackburn	Gosar	McCotter
Bonner	Gowdy	McHenry
Boren	Granger	McIntyre
Boustany	Graves (GA)	McKeon
Brady (TX)	Griffin (AR)	McKinley
Brooks	Griffith (VA)	McMorris
Broun (GA)	Grimm	Rodgers
Buchanan	Guinta	Mica
Bucshon	Guthrie	Miller (FL)
Buerkle	Hall	Miller (MI)
Burgess	Harper	Miller, Gary
Burton (IN)	Harris	Mulvaney
Calvert	Hartzler	Murphy (PA)
Camp	Hastings (WA)	Myrick
Canseco	Heck	Neugebauer
Cantor	Hensarling	Noem
Capito	Herger	Nugent
Carter	Herrera Beutler	Nunes
Cassidy	Holden	Nunnelee
Chabot	Huelskamp	Olson
Chaffetz	Huizenga (MI)	Palazzo
Coble	Hultgren	Paul
Coffman (CO)	Hunter	Paulsen
Cole	Hurt	Pearce
Conaway	Issa	Pence
Cravaack	Jenkins	Peterson
Crawford	Johnson (IL)	Petri
Crenshaw	Johnson (OH)	Pitts
Davis (KY)	Johnson, Sam	Platts
Denham	Jones	Poe (TX)
Dent	Jordan	Pompeo
DesJarlais	Kelly	Posey
Diaz-Balart	King (IA)	Price (GA)
Donnelly (IN)	King (NY)	Quayle
Dreier	Kingston	Reed
Duffy	Kinzinger (IL)	Rehberg
Duncan (SC)	Kissell	Reichert
Duncan (TN)	Kline	Renacci
Ellmers	Labrador	Ribble
Emerson	Lamborn	Rigell
Farenthold	Landry	Rivera
Fincher	Lankford	Roby
Fitzpatrick	Latham	Roe (TN)

Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rokita
Rooney
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Ross (FL)
Royce
Runyan
Ryan (WI)
Scalise
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott, Austin

Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shimkus
Shuster
Simpson
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Southerland
Stearns
Stivers
Stutzman
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tipton
Turner

Upton
Walberg
Walden
Walsh (IL)
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Woodall
Yoder
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

□ 1117

So the amendment was agreed to. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. POLIS

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. POLIS) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 113, noes 307, not voting 11, as follows:

[Roll No. 529]

AYES—113

Amash	Griffith (VA)	Petri
Baca	Grijalva	Pingree (ME)
Baldwin	Gutierrez	Polis
Bass (CA)	Hanabusa	Price (NC)
Becerra	Hinojosa	Quigley
Bilbray	Holt	Reyes
Blumenauer	Honda	Ribble
Boswell	Jackson (IL)	Richardson
Braley (IA)	Keating	Richmond
Capuano	Kind	Rohrabacher
Carney	Kingston	Rokita
Chu	Kucinich	Ross (FL)
Ciulline	Labrador	Royce
Clarke (MI)	Larson (CT)	Rush
Clarke (NY)	Lee (CA)	Ryan (OH)
Clay	Lewis (GA)	Sánchez, Linda
Cohen	Lofgren, Zoe	T.
Conyers	Lujan	Schakowsky
Cooper	Lummis	Schrader
Cummings	Maloney	Sensenbrenner
Davis (IL)	Markey	Serrano
DeFazio	McClintock	Sherman
DeGette	McColum	Slaughter
Deutch	McDermott	Speier
Doggett	McGovern	Stark
Doyle	Miller, George	Stearns
Duncan (TN)	Moore	Stivers
Ellison	Moran	Tierney
Eshoo	Myrick	Tonko
Farr	Nadler	Upton
Filner	Napolitano	Velázquez
Frank (MA)	Neal	Walsh (IL)
Fudge	Oliver	Waters
Garamendi	Pallone	Waxman
Gibson	Paul	Welch
Goodlatte	Perlmutter	Woodall
Gosar	Peters	Woolsey
Green, Gene	Peterson	Yarmuth

NOES—307

Ackerman	Bilirakis	Burton (IN)
Adams	Bishop (GA)	Butterfield
Aderholt	Bishop (NY)	Calvert
Akin	Bishop (UT)	Camp
Alexander	Black	Canseco
Altmire	Blackburn	Cantor
Andrews	Bonner	Capito
Austria	Bono Mack	Capps
Bachmann	Boren	Carson (IN)
Bachus	Boustany	Carter
Barletta	Brady (PA)	Cassidy
Barrow	Brady (TX)	Castor (FL)
Bartlett	Brooks	Chabot
Bass (NH)	Broun (GA)	Chaffetz
Benishek	Brown (FL)	Chandler
Berg	Buchanan	Cleaver
Berkley	Bucshon	Clyburn
Berman	Buerkle	Coble
Biggert	Burgess	Coffman (CO)

NOES—184

Ackerman	Frank (MA)	Neal
Altmire	Fudge	Oliver
Amash	Garamendi	Owens
Andrews	Gonzalez	Pallone
Baca	Green, Al	Pascroll
Baldwin	Green, Gene	Pastor (AZ)
Bass (CA)	Grijalva	Pelosi
Becerra	Gutierrez	Perlmutter
Berkley	Hanabusa	Peters
Berman	Hanna	Pingree (ME)
Biggert	Hastings (FL)	Polis
Bishop (GA)	Hayworth	Price (NC)
Bishop (NY)	Heinrich	Quigley
Blumenauer	Higgins	Rahall
Bono Mack	Himes	Reyes
Boswell	Hinojosa	Richardson
Brady (PA)	Hirono	Richmond
Braley (IA)	Hochul	Ros-Lehtinen
Brown (FL)	Holt	Rothman (NJ)
Butterfield	Honda	Roybal-Allard
Capps	Hoyer	Ruppersberger
Capuano	Inslee	Ryan (OH)
Carnahan	Israel	Sánchez, Linda
Carney	Jackson (IL)	T.
Carson (IN)	Johnson (GA)	Sánchez, Loretta
Castor (FL)	Johnson, E. B.	Sarbanes
Chandler	Kaptur	Schakowsky
Chu	Keating	Schiff
Ciulline	Kildee	Schrader
Clarke (MI)	Kind	Schwartz
Clarke (NY)	Kucinich	Scott (VA)
Clay	Lance	Scott, David
Cleaver	Langevin	Serrano
Clyburn	Larsen (WA)	Sewell
Cohen	Larson (CT)	Sherman
Connelly (VA)	Lee (CA)	Shuler
Cooper	Levin	Sires
Costa	Lewis (GA)	Slaughter
Costello	Lipinski	Smith (WA)
Courtney	Loeb sack	Speier
Critz	Lofgren, Zoe	Stark
Cuellar	Lowe	Sutton
Cummings	Lujan	Thompson (CA)
Davis (CA)	Lynch	Thompson (MS)
Davis (IL)	Maloney	Tierney
DeFazio	Markey	Tonko
DeGette	Matsui	Towns
DeLauro	McCarthy (NY)	Tsongas
Deutch	McColum	Van Hollen
Dicks	McDermott	Velázquez
Dingell	McGovern	Visclosky
Doggett	McNerney	Walz (MN)
Dold	Meehan	Wasserman
Doyle	Meeks	Schultz
Edwards	Michaud	Waters
Ellison	Miller (NC)	Watt
Engel	Miller, George	Waxman
Eshoo	Moore	Welch
Farr	Moran	Wilson (FL)
Fattah	Murphy (CT)	Woolsey
Filner	Nadler	Wu
	Napolitano	Yarmuth

NOT VOTING—11

Campbell	Graves (MO)	Rangel
Cardoza	Hinche	Rush
Crowley	Jackson Lee
Culberson	(TX)
Giffords	Payne

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR (during the vote). One minute remains in this vote.

Cole
Conaway
Connolly (VA)
Costa
Costello
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
Davis (CA)
Davis (KY)
DeLauro
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Dold
Donnelly (IN)
Dreier
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Edwards
Ellmers
Emerson
Engel
Farenthold
Fattah
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Foxy
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gingrey (GA)
Gohmert
Gonzalez
Gowdy
Granger
Graves (GA)
Green, Al
Griffin (AR)
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Heinrich
Hensarling
Herger
Herrera Beutler
Higgins
Himes
Hirono
Hochul
Holden
Hoyer
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Inlee
Israel
Issa

NOT VOTING—11

Barton (TX)
Campbell
Cardoza
Carnahan

Crowley
Culberson
Giffords
Graves (MO)
Hinchey
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Payne

Quayle
Rahall
Rangel
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Rigell
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Ryan (WI)
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schiff
Schilling
Schmidt
Schock
Schwartz
Schweikert
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, Austin
Scott, David
Sessions
Sewell
Shimkus
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Southernland
Stutzman
Sullivan
Sutton
Terry
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thompson (PA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tipton
Towns
Tsongas
Turner
Van Hollen
Visclosky
Walberg
Walden
Walz (MN)
Wasserman
Watt
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Whitfield
Wilson (FL)
Wilson (SC)
Wittman
Wolf
Womack
Wu
Yoder
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

□ 1120

So the amendment was rejected.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KUCINICH

The Acting CHAIR. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Acting CHAIR. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The Acting CHAIR. This will be a 2-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 169, noes 251, not voting 11, as follows:

[Roll No. 530]

AYES—169

Adams
Akin
Amash
Bachmann
Baldwin
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Benishak
Berg
Bilirakis
Bishop (UT)
Bonner
Boustany
Bralley (IA)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Buchanan
Burgess
Burton (IN)
Camp
Capito
Capuano
Cassidy
Chabot
Chaffetz
Cicilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Clever
Coble
Coffman (CO)
Connolly (VA)
Conyers
Costello
Davis (IL)
Davis (KY)
DeFazio
Denham
DesJarlais
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold
Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Flores
Foxy
Gardner
Garrett
Gibbs
Gibson
Gohmert
Gosar

Gowdy
Graves (GA)
Grijalva
Guinta
Gutierrez
Hall
Hanabusa
Hanna
Harris
Heck
Herrera Beutler
Himes
Hinojosa
Hirono
Posey
Price (GA)
Quigley
Reed
Renacci
Ribble
Richardson
Rigell
Roe (TN)
Rokita
Ross (FL)
Rush
Sanchez, Loretta
Schilling
Schmidt
Schrader
Schweikert
Scott, Austin
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sessions
Slaughter
Smith (NJ)
Southernland
Stark
Stearns
Stutzman
Sullivan
Terry
Thompson (MS)
Thompson (PA)
Tierney
Tipton
Upton
Velázquez
Walberg
Walsh (IL)
Waters
Webster
West
Westmoreland
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Woodall
Woolsey
Wu
Yoder
Young (AK)

NOES—251

Ackerman
Aderholt
Alexander
Altmire
Andrews
Austria
Baca
Bachus
Barletta
Barrow
Bartlett
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berkley
Berman
Biggert
Bilbray
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (NY)
Black
Blackburn
Blumenauer
Bono Mack
Boren
Boswell
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brown (FL)
Bucshon
Buerkle
Butterfield
Calvert
Canseco
Cantor
Capps
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Carter
Castor (FL)
Chandler
Chu
Clyburn
Cohen
Cole
Conaway
Cooper
Costa
Courtney
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Critz
Cuellar
Cummings
Davis (CA)
DeGette
DeLauro
Dent
Deutch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dold
Donnelly (IN)
Doyle
Dreier
Edwards
Ellison
Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Fleischmann
Fleming
Forbes
Fortenberry
Frank (MA)
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Fudge
Gallegly
Garamendi

Gerlach
Gingrey (GA)
Gonzalez
Goodlatte
Granger
Green, Al
Green, Gene
Griffin (AR)
Griffith (VA)
Grimm
Guthrie
Harper
Hartzler
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heinrich
Hensarling
Herger
Higgins
Hochul
Holden
Holt
Hoyer
Hunter
Hurt
Inlee
Israel
Johnson (GA)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, E. B.
Kelly
Kildee
Kind
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kinzinger (IL)
Kissell
Kline
Lamborn
Lance
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Loeb sack
Long
Lowe y
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Lynch
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (CA)
McCarthy (NY)
McCaul
McCotter
McHenry
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rogers
McNerney
Meehan
Meeks
Mica
Michaud
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller (NC)
Miller, Gary
Mulvaney
Murphy (CT)
Murphy (PA)
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Owens
Palazzo
Pascrell
Pastor (AZ)
Paulsen
Pearce
Pelosi
Pence
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)

Nunnelee
Olson
Olver
Owens
Palazzo
Pallone
Pascrell
Paulsen
Pelosi
Pence
Perlmutter
Peters
Platts
Polis
Price (NC)
Quayle
Rahall
Rangel
Rehberg
Reichert
Reyes
Richmond
Rivera
Roby
Rogers (AL)
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Rooney
Ros-Lehtinen
Roskam
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Runyan
Ruppersberger
Ryan (OH)
Ryan (WI)
Sanchez, Linda
T.
Sarbanes
Scalise
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schock
Schwartz
Scott (SC)
Scott (VA)
Scott, David
Sewell
Sherman
Shuler
Shuster
Simpson
Sires
Smith (NE)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stivers
Sutton
Thompson (CA)
Thornberry
Tiberi
Tonko
Towns
Tsongas
Turner
Van Hollen
Visclosky
Walden
Walz (MN)
Wasserman
Schultz
Watt
Waxman
Welch
Wilson (FL)
Wittman
Womack
Yarmuth
Young (FL)
Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—11

Graves (MO)
Hinchey
Jackson Lee
(TX)
Lynch
Payne
Whitfield

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR (during the vote).
One minute remains in this vote.

□ 1124

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated for:

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Chair, on rollcall No. 530, had I been present, I would have voted "aye."

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HOYER was allowed to speak out of order.)

CONGRATULATING REPRESENTATIVE JOHN DINGELL ON HIS 85TH BIRTHDAY

Mr. HOYER. Ladies and gentlemen, this is a wonderful day of celebration. Today we celebrate the 85th birthday of an extraordinary American, an American who has served over five-eighths of his life in this House, an American whose father served before him, an American who has been sent to the Congress after Congress after Congress after Congress, a Member who has made an extraordinary contribution to the legislative history of this Congress and to the welfare of this country. JOHN DINGELL today is 85 years of age.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to now yield to somebody who has not served with him for 85 years, but has served with him for a very significant time on the extraordinarily important Energy and Commerce Committee, my friend from Texas (Mr. BARTON).

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Thank you, Congressman HOYER.

It has been my pleasure to serve for 26 years on the Energy and Commerce Committee with the distinguished gentleman who is having his 85th birthday. What some of our newer Members may not know is what a gentleman Chairman DINGELL is. And the uniqueness of his character is he will impart his wisdom to those of us in the opposition party and encourage us to then go out and use it against him, knowing that he is smart enough, tough enough, and effective enough to beat us at our own game. He is truly a paragon of this Congress, and will go down, in my estimation, in history as one of the top 10 Congressmen or -women of all time.

I want to extend him my warmest 85th birthday wishes and get him to guarantee that as long as he is able he will serve in this body, because he is truly a treasure for both sides of the aisle.

Mr. HOYER. Those of you who are new to this body, what Mr. BARTON has just said, if you want an example of a truly great legislator, a legislator who has year after year sat down with both sides of the aisle, with all the different interest groups that are represented in this Congress, and worked together to bring consensus to quality legislation, you could have no better example than JOHN DINGELL.

So I am pleased to rise, Mr. DINGELL, and express great admiration, respect, and deep affection for you, which I know is shared by all of your colleagues.

I yield back the balance of my time. The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2012".

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that the bill, as amended, do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. GINGREY of Georgia) having assumed the chair, Mr. BASS of New Hampshire, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2219) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted in the Committee of the Whole, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that the bill, as amended, do pass.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under House Resolution 320, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

□ 1130

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. BARROW. Mr. Speaker, I have a motion to recommit at the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. BARROW. In its current form.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Barrow moves to recommit the bill H.R. 2219 to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

Page 7, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $20,000,000)".

Page 9, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $20,000,000)".

Page 12, line 17, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $160,000,000)".

Page 135, line 15, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $200,000,000)".

Mr. BARROW (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BARROW. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

We Americans owe no greater debt than we owe the men and women of our armed services who risk their lives to protect our freedoms. We currently have around 350,000 troops deployed overseas. About a third of that number come from our National Guard and Reserve.

While most Americans don't know it, many National Guard members don't get the same support we give career servicemembers. When many National Guardsmen and -women get on the plane to go overseas, their families don't even know about the services that are available to them, and when many of those troops get back home, they don't have the help they need to get back into their daily lives.

To address this disparity, in 2008, Congress established the yellow ribbon reintegration program to provide a support program tailored to meet the needs of National Guard and Reserve combat veterans and their families. The yellow ribbon program helps servicemembers and their families throughout deployment, with programs such as career counseling, suicide prevention, access to health care, veterans benefits, and education benefits. This final amendment would increase funding for that program by $200 million.

There is an excellent program in my district called the Augusta Wounded Warrior Project. They have several projects in Georgia to help wounded veterans. I've had the honor of working with them on some of these priorities and to meet with some of the returning veterans they have helped. What I hear over and over is that veterans can't take advantage of the many different support services available to them if they don't know about them or don't know how to navigate the bureaucracy that runs them. The yellow ribbon program helps our National Guard and Reserve combat veterans make that connection and get the services that they've earned.

According to the 2010 annual report to Congress, the yellow ribbon program held over 2,000 events and had over 300,000 contacts with individual servicemembers and their family members. That's a 50 percent increase in participation over 2009. And as the total number of returning National Guard and Reserve combat veterans goes up, the need goes up. This amendment will help make sure that the yellow ribbon program can help meet that need.

My amendment makes these funds available through a transfer from the account for the Afghanistan security forces fund. That account is funded in this bill at $12.8 billion. While I think those funds are an important part of our strategy for long-term success in Afghanistan, I think the highest and best use of a very small part of that money is to help our National Guard and Reserve combat veterans get back on their feet again.

My amendment would use about 1.5 percent of that money for this purpose, which I think is reasonable. In exchange for about 1.5 percent of what we're about to provide to help the Afghans take care of themselves, we can provide a 125 percent increase in support for those American soldiers and their families who make it all possible. I think that's a pretty good deal.

Finally, my amendment will not in any way delay final passage of this important legislation. If adopted, we move straight to a final vote on passage of this legislation.

I want to thank the chairman and the ranking member for their service and for their work on this bill. I think my amendment will have virtually no adverse impact on what we're trying to do for Afghanistan, but it will have a huge positive impact in meeting the needs of our combat veterans and their families. I hope that's something we can all support.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SCHOCK). The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, the motion to recommit, I think, is a strong statement that this is a pretty good Defense appropriations bill, because the minority, using the procedural vote that minorities most always use, does not do any real damage to the bill, but it doesn't really do anything that needs to be done, either, so it's a procedural vote, and I suggest we just vote against it and get on to the bill.

But about the yellow ribbon. The bill already contains $246.5 million for the yellow ribbon program, which we support. It's a good program, especially for reintegration for returning guardsmen and reservists and their families. In addition, we accepted an amendment by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) to add $20 million for further suicide prevention for our returning combat veterans. This comes to a total of $266.5 million. That's not a bad number, when you consider that we had to reduce the President's budget by $9 billion.

So I think we did pretty good, and I think that this motion to recommit is a strong indication that there's nothing really wrong with this bill, we just ought to go ahead and defeat the motion to recommit and pass the bill.

I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I appreciate my chairman yielding.

I must say that the gentleman from Georgia is making a point that we all understand. The Guard and Reserve are very important to our future, clearly, but even more important is for us to get this House back on a pathway to regular order, whereby we bring bills through the committees, bring them to the floor, open rules, have the opportunity to have these debates and the like.

I must say our chairman has done a fabulous job in moving in that direction, but I also would say that the ranking member of the subcommittee, who's also ranking member of the full committee, has been publicly committed to getting us back to regular order. Indeed, as a tribute to both of their work by way of strengthening the future of the House and our work this year, I would hope we not just defeat this motion to recommit but give an overwhelming vote in support of their fine work on final passage.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. BARROW. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 and clause 9 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on the motion to recommit will be followed by 5-minute votes on passage of H.R. 2219 and adoption of House Resolution 340.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 188, noes 234, not voting 9, as follows:

[Roll No. 531]

AYES—188

Ackerman
Altmire
Andrews
Baca
Baldwin
Barrow
Bass (CA)
Becerra
Berkley
Berman
Bishop (GA)
Bishop (NY)
Blumenauer
Boren
Boswell
Brady (PA)
Braley (IA)
Brown (FL)
Butterfield
Capps
Capuano
Carnahan
Carney
Carson (IN)
Castor (FL)
Chandler
Chu
Ciilline
Clarke (MI)
Clarke (NY)
Clay
Cleaver

Clyburn
Cohen
Connolly (VA)
Conyers
Costa
Costello
Courtney
Critz
Cuellar
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
DeLauro
Deutch
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Donnelly (IN)
Doyle
Edwards
Ellison
Engel
Eshoo
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Frank (MA)
Fudge
Garamendi
Gonzalez

Green, Al
Green, Gene
Grijalva
Gutierrez
Hanabusa
Hastings (FL)
Heinrich
Higgins
Himes
Hinojosa
Hirono
Hochul
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hoyer
Inslie
Israel
Jackson (IL)
Johnson (GA)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones
Kaptur
Keating
Kildee
Kind
Kissell
Kucinich
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Lee (CA)

Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Loeb sack
Lofgren, Zoe
Lowey
Luján
Lynch
Maloney
Markey
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McDermott
McGovern
McIntyre
McNerney
Meeks
Michaud
Miller (NC)
Miller, George
Moore
Moran
Murphy (CT)
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Olver
Owens
Pallone
Pascarell

Pastor (AZ)
Paul
Pelosi
Perlmutter
Peters
Peterson
Pingree (ME)
Polis
Price (NC)
Quigley
Rahall
Rangel
Reyes
Richardson
Richmond
Rohrabacher
Ross (AR)
Rothman (NJ)
Roybal-Allard
Ruppersberger
Rush
Ryan (OH)
Sanchez, Linda
T.
Sanchez, Loretta
Sarbanes
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schrader
Schwartz
Scott (VA)
Scott, David

Serrano
Sewell
Sherman
Shuler
Sires
Slaughter
Smith (WA)
Speier
Stark
Stutson
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Tierney
Tonko
Towns
Tsongas
Van Hollen
Velázquez
Visclosky
Walz (MN)
Wasserman
Schultz
Waters
Watt
Waxman
Welch
Wilson (FL)
Woolsey
Wu
Yarmuth

NOES—234

Adams
Aderholt
Akin
Alexander
Amash
Austria
Bachmann
Bachus
Barletta
Bartlett
Barton (TX)
Bass (NH)
Benishek
Berg
Biggart
Billbray
Bilirakis
Bishop (UT)
Black
Blackburn
Bonner
Bono Mack
Boustany
Brady (TX)
Brooks
Broun (GA)
Buchanan
Bucshon
Buerkle
Burgess
Burton (IN)
Calvert
Camp
Canseco
Cantor
Capito
Carter
Cassidy
Chabot
Chaffetz
Coble
Coffman (CO)
Cole
Conaway
Cooper
Cravaack
Crawford
Crenshaw
Davis (KY)
Denham
Dent
DesJarlais
Diaz-Balart
Dold
Dreier
Duffy
Duncan (SC)
Duncan (TN)
Ellmers
Emerson
Farenthold

Fincher
Fitzpatrick
Flake
Fleischmann
Fleming
Flores
Forbes
Fortenberry
Fox
Franks (AZ)
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Gardner
Garrett
Gerlach
Gibbs
Gibson
Gingrey (GA)
Gohmert
Goodlatte
Gosar
Gowdy
Granger
Graves (GA)
Griffin (AR)
Griffith (VA)
Grimm
Guinta
Guthrie
Hall
Hanna
Harper
Harris
Hartzler
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Heck
Hensarling
Herger
Herrera Beutler
Huelskamp
Huizenga (MI)
Hultgren
Hunter
Hurt
Issa
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson (OH)
Johnson, Sam
Jordan
Kelly
King (IA)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kinzinger (IL)
Kline
Labrador
Lamborn
Lance
Landry

Lankford
Latham
LaTourette
Latta
Lewis (CA)
LoBiondo
Long
Lucas
Luetkemeyer
Lummis
Lungren, Daniel
E.
Mack
Manzullo
Marchant
Marino
McCarthy (CA)
McCaul
McClintock
McCotter
McHenry
McKeon
McKinley
McMorris
Rodgers
Meehan
Mica
Miller (FL)
Miller (MI)
Miller, Gary
Mulvaney
Murphy (PA)
Myrick
Neugebauer
Noem
Nugent
Nunes
Nunnelee
Olson
Palazzo
Paulsen
Pearce
Pence
Petri
Pitts
Platts
Poe (TX)
Pompeo
Posey
Price (GA)
Quayle
Reed
Rehberg
Reichert
Renacci
Ribble
Rigell
Rivera
Roby
Roe (TN)
Rogers (AL)

Rogers (KY)	Sessions	Upton	Heck	McHenry	Runyan	Speier	Towns	Woolsey
Rogers (MI)	Shinkus	Walberg	Heinrich	McIntyre	Ruppersberger	Stark	Velázquez	Wu
Rokita	Shuster	Walden	Hensarling	McKeon	Ryan (OH)	Thompson (CA)	Watt	Yarmuth
Rooney	Simpson	Walsh (IL)	Herger	McKinley	Ryan (WI)	Tierney	Waxman
Ros-Lehtinen	Smith (NE)	Webster	Herrera Beutler	McMorris	Sanchez, Loretta	Tonko	Welch
Roskam	Smith (NJ)	West	Higgins	Rodgers	Scalise	NOT VOTING—8
Ross (FL)	Smith (TX)	Westmoreland	Himes	McNerney	Schiff
Royce	Southerland	Whitfield	Hinojosa	Meehan	Schilling	Campbell	Giffords	Jackson Lee
Runyan	Stearns	Wilson (SC)	Hochul	Meeks	Schmidt	Cardoza	Graves (MO)	(TX)
Ryan (WI)	Stivers	Wittman	Holden	Mica	Schock	Culberson	Hinchee	Payne
Scalise	Stutzman	Wolf	Hoyer	Miller (FL)	Schwartz
Schilling	Sullivan	Womack	Huelskamp	Miller (MI)	Schweikert
Schmidt	Terry	Woodall	Huizenga (MI)	Miller (NC)	Scott (SC)
Schock	Thompson (PA)	Yoder	Hultgren	Miller, Gary	Scott (VA)
Schweikert	Thornberry	Young (AK)	Hunter	Moran	Scott, Austin
Scott (SC)	Tiberi	Young (FL)	Hurt	Murphy (PA)	Scott, David
Scott, Austin	Tipton	Young (IN)	Inlee	Myrick	Sensenbrenner
Sensenbrenner	Turner		Israel	Neugebauer	Sessions
			Issa	Noem	Sewell
			Jenkins	Nugent	Sherman
			Johnson (GA)	Nunes	Shimkus
			Johnson (OH)	Nunnelee	Shuler
			Johnson, E. B.	Olson	Shuster
			Johnson, Sam	Owens	Simpson
			Jones	Palazzo	Sires
			Jordan	Pascrell	Slaughter
			Kaptur	Pastor (AZ)	Smith (NE)
			Kelly	Paulsen	Smith (NJ)
			Kildee	Pearce	Smith (TX)
			Kind	Pelosi	Smith (WA)
			King (IA)	Pence	Southerland
			King (NY)	Perlmutter	Stearns
			Kingston	Peters	Stivers
			Kinzinger (IL)	Peterson	Stutzman
			Kissell	Petri	Sullivan
			Kline	Pitts	Sutton
			Labrador	Platts	Terry
			Lamborn	Poe (TX)	Thompson (MS)
			Lance	Pompeo	Thompson (PA)
			Landry	Posey	Thornberry
			Langevin	Price (GA)	Tiberi
			Lankford	Price (NC)	Tipton
			Larsen (WA)	Quayle	Tsongas
			Latta	Rahall	Turner
			Levin	Rangel	Upton
			Lewis (CA)	Reed	Van Hollen
			Lipinski	Rehberg	Visclosky
			LoBiondo	Reichert	Walberg
			Loeb	Renacci	Walden
			Long	Reyes	Walsh (IL)
			Lowe	Ribble	Walz (MN)
			Lucas	Richardson	Wasserman
			Luetkemeyer	Richmond	Schultz
			Lummis	Rigell	Waters
			Lungren, Daniel	Rivera	Webster
			E.	Roby	West
			Mack	Roe (TN)	Westmoreland
			Manzullo	Rogers (AL)	Whitfield
			Marchant	Rogers (KY)	Wilson (FL)
			Marino	Rogers (MI)	Wilson (SC)
			Matheson	Rokita	Wittman
			McCarthy (CA)	Rooney	Wolf
			McCarthy (NY)	Ros-Lehtinen	Womack
			McCaul	Roskam	Woodall
			McClintock	Ross (AR)	Yoder
			McCotter	Ross (FL)	Young (AK)
				Rothman (NJ)	Young (FL)
				Roybal-Allard	Young (IN)

NOT VOTING—9

Campbell	Giffords	Jackson Lee
Cardoza	Graves (MO)	(TX)
Crowley	Hinchee	Payne
Culberson

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). There are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.

□ 1156

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Under clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 336, nays 87, not voting 8, as follows:

[Roll No. 532]

YEAS—336

Ackerman	Camp	Duncan (SC)
Adams	Canseco	Edwards
Aderholt	Cantor	Ellmers
Akin	Capito	Emerson
Alexander	Carnahan	Engel
Altmire	Carney	Farenthold
Andrews	Carson (IN)	Fattah
Austria	Carter	Fincher
Baca	Cassidy	Fitzpatrick
Bachmann	Castor (FL)	Fleischmann
Bachus	Chabot	Fleming
Barletta	Chandler	Flores
Barrow	Clay	Fortenberry
Bartlett	Clyburn	Fox
Barton (TX)	Coble	Franks (AZ)
Bass (CA)	Coffman (CO)	Frelinghuysen
Bass (NH)	Cole	Gallegly
Berg	Conaway	Gardner
Berkley	Connolly (VA)	Garrett
Berman	Conyers	Gerlach
Bigert	Cooper	Gibbs
Bilbray	Costa	Gingrey (GA)
Bilirakis	Courtney	Gohmert
Bishop (GA)	Cravaack	Gonzalez
Bishop (NY)	Crawford	Goodlatte
Bishop (UT)	Crenshaw	Gosar
Black	Critz	Gowdy
Blackburn	Crowley	Granger
Bonner	Cuellar	Graves (GA)
Bono Mack	Cummings	Green, Al
Boren	Davis (CA)	Green, Gene
Boswell	Davis (KY)	Griffin (AR)
Boustany	DeLauro	Griffith (VA)
Brady (PA)	Denham	Grimm
Brady (TX)	Dent	Guinta
Brooks	DesJarlais	Guthrie
Broun (GA)	Deutch	Hall
Brown (FL)	Diaz-Balart	Hanabusa
Buchanan	Dicks	Hanna
Bucshon	Dingell	Harper
Buerkle	Doggett	Harris
Burgess	Dold	Hartzler
Burton (IN)	Donnelly (IN)	Hastings (FL)
Butterfield	Dreier	Hastings (WA)
Calvert	Duffy	Hayworth

NAYS—87

Flake	McDermott
Forbes	McGovern
Frank (MA)	Michaud
Fudge	Miller, George
Garamendi	Moore
Gibson	Mulvaney
Grijalva	Murphy (CT)
Gutierrez	Nadler
Hirono	Napolitano
Holt	Neal
Honda	Olver
Jackson (IL)	Pallone
Johnson (IL)	Paul
Keating	Pingree (ME)
Kucinich	Polis
Larson (CT)	Quigley
Lee (CA)	Rohrabacher
Lewis (GA)	Royce
Lofgren, Zoe	Rush
Lujan	Sánchez, Linda
Lynch	T.
Maloney	Sarbanes
Markey	Schakowsky
Matsui	Schrader
McCollum	Serrano

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). There are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.

□ 1204

Mrs. MALONEY changed her vote from “yea” to “nay.”

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1309, FLOOD INSURANCE REFORM ACT OF 2011

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The unfinished business is the vote on adoption of the resolution (H. Res. 340) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1309) to extend the authorization of the national flood insurance program, to achieve reforms to improve the financial integrity and stability of the program, and to increase the role of private markets in the management of flood insurance risk, and for other purposes, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

This is a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 269, nays 146, not voting 16, as follows:

[Roll No. 533]

YEAS—269

Adams	Bucshon	Denham
Aderholt	Buerkle	Dent
Akin	Burgess	DesJarlais
Alexander	Burton (IN)	Diaz-Balart
Altmire	Butterfield	Dold
Amash	Calvert	Donnelly (IN)
Austria	Camp	Dreier
Bachmann	Canseco	Duffy
Bachus	Cantor	Duncan (SC)
Barletta	Capito	Duncan (TN)
Bartlett	Carney	Ellmers
Barton (TX)	Carson (IN)	Emerson
Bass (NH)	Carter	Farenthold
Benish	Cassidy	Fattah
Berg	Chabot	Fincher
Bigert	Chaffetz	Fitzpatrick
Bilbray	Chandler	Flake
Bilirakis	Coble	Fleischmann
Bishop (GA)	Coffman (CO)	Fleming
Bishop (UT)	Cole	Flores
Black	Conaway	Forbes
Blackburn	Conyers	Fortenberry
Blumenauer	Costa	Fox
Bonner	Cravaack	Frank (MA)
Bono Mack	Crawford	Frelinghuysen
Boren	Crenshaw	Gallegly
Boustany	Crowley	Gardner
Brady (TX)	Cuellar	Garrett
Brooks	Cummings	Gerlach
Broun (GA)	Davis (CA)	Gibbs
Buchanan	Davis (KY)	Gibson

Gingrey (GA)	Lungren, Daniel	Rohrabacher	Pascrell	Ryan (OH)	Thompson (MS)
Gohmert	E.	Rokita	Pastor (AZ)	Sanchez, Loretta	Tierney
Goodlatte	Mack	Rooney	Pelosi	Sarbanes	Tonko
Gosar	Manzullo	Ros-Lehtinen	Peters	Schakowsky	Towns
Gowdy	Marchant	Roskam	Pingree (ME)	Schiff	Tsongas
Granger	Marino	Ross (AR)	Polis	Schrader	Velázquez
Graves (GA)	Matheson	Ross (FL)	Price (NC)	Schwartz	Visclosky
Green, Gene	McCarthy (CA)	Royce	Quigley	Serrano	Walz (MN)
Griffin (AR)	McCarthy (NY)	Runyan	Rahall	Sewell	Wasserman
Griffith (VA)	McCaul	Ryan (WI)	Rangel	Schultz
Grimm	McClintock	Scalise	Reyes	Slaughter	Watt
Guinta	McCotter	Schilling	Richmond	Smith (WA)	Waxman
Guthrie	McHenry	Schmidt	Rothman (NJ)	Speier	Welch
Hall	McIntyre	Schock	Roybal-Allard	Stark	Wilson (FL)
Hanna	McKeon	Schweikert	Ruppersberger	Sutton	Wu
Harper	McKinley	Scott (SC)	Rush	Thompson (CA)	Yarmuth
Harris	McMorris	Scott (VA)
Hartzler	Rodgers	Scott, Austin
Hastings (WA)	Meehan	Scott, David	Campbell	Hinchee	Payne
Hayworth	Mica	Sensenbrenner	Cardoza	Jackson Lee	Rogers (MI)
Heck	Michaud	Sessions	Culberson	(TX)	Sanchez, Linda
Hensarling	Miller (FL)	Sherman	Franks (AZ)	Johnson (IL)	T.
Herger	Miller (MI)	Shimkus	Giffords	Markey	Van Hollen
Herrera Beutler	Miller, Gary	Shuler	Graves (MO)	Murphy (PA)	Whitfield
Himes	Mulvaney	Shuster
Huelskamp	Murphy (CT)	Simpson
Huizenga (MI)	Myrick	Smith (NE)
Hultgren	Neugebauer	Smith (NJ)
Hunter	Noem	Smith (TX)
Hurt	Nugent	Southerland
Issa	Nunes	Stearns
Jenkins	Nunnelee	Stivers
Johnson (OH)	Olson	Stutzman
Johnson, Sam	Palazzo	Sullivan
Jones	Paul	Terry
Jordan	Paulsen	Thompson (PA)
Kaptur	Pearce	Thornberry
Kelly	Pence	Tiberi
King (IA)	Perlmutter	Tipton
King (NY)	Peterson	Turner
Kingston	Petri	Upton
Kinzinger (IL)	Pitts	Walberg
Kissell	Platts	Walden
Kline	Poe (TX)	Walsh (IL)
Kucinich	Pompeo	Waters
Labrador	Posey	Webster
Lamborn	Price (GA)	West
Lance	Quayle	Westmoreland
Landry	Reed	Wilson (SC)
Lankford	Rehberg	Wittman
Latham	Reichert	Wolf
LaTourette	Renacci	Womack
Latta	Ribble	Woodall
Lewis (CA)	Richardson	Woolsey
Lipinski	Rigell	Yoder
LoBiondo	Rivera	Young (AK)
Long	Roby	Young (FL)
Lucas	Roe (TN)	Young (IN)
Luetkemeyer	Rogers (AL)
Lummis	Rogers (KY)

NOT VOTING—16

□ 1211

So the resolution was agreed to.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 533, the rule on H. Res. 340 appears to contain amendments which could be adverse to economic interests in the State of Illinois, subject to further study. The rule is traditionally a procedural, partisan matter. Accordingly, despite my presence on the floor in the center aisle, I chose to abstain. Had I voted, I would have voted, "present."

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 2109

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have my name removed from H.R. 2109.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?
There was no objection.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the majority leader for the purposes of inquiring of the schedule for the week to come.
Mr. CANTOR. I thank the gentleman from Maryland, the Democratic whip, for yielding.
Mr. Speaker, on Monday, the House will meet at noon for morning-hour debate and at 2 p.m. for legislative business. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, the House will meet at 10 a.m. for morning-hour debate and at noon for legislative business. On Friday, the House will meet at 9 a.m. for legislative business. The last votes of the week are expected no later than 3 p.m. on Friday.
On Monday, the House will begin amendment debate on H.R. 2354, the Energy and Water appropriations bill; and consider H.R. 2417, the Better Use of Light Bulbs Act, under suspension of the rules.

For the remainder of the week, the House will consider H.R. 1309, the Flood Insurance Reform Act of 2011; H.R. 2018, the Clean Water Cooperative Federalism Act of 2011; H.R. 2434, the Financial Services appropriations bill; and potentially legislation relating to the expiring authorization of the FAA.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, as a scheduling notice, Members are advised that the House will now be in session during the week of July 18. I expect legislative business for the week to begin on Tuesday, July 19, at 2 p.m., with first votes postponed until 6:30 p.m. The last votes for the week are expected to conclude no later than 3 p.m. on Friday, July 22.

And I thank the gentleman.
Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for his scheduling information.

I want to pursue what I presume is the reason for not having the district work period that was originally scheduled. My presumption is that we are concerned about the impending arrival of the August 2 date on which America would be put in the position of defaulting on its obligations. I presume that's the reason, that we want to make sure that we are here to work on that issue. Am I correct on that?

Mr. CANTOR. The gentleman is correct.

It is my hope that we can have some deliberative processes and open discussions so that we can arrive at an appropriate conclusion of the challenges surrounding the issue of the debt limit expiration. That is correct.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for that observation.

I know the gentleman has said in the past that he believes it would be a very bad situation for our economy and for our country if we did not extend the debt limit.

Am I correct that the gentleman still shares that view?

Mr. CANTOR. I would say to the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, that I have said before that America pays its bills just like the American people are expected to pay their bills at home and in their small and large businesses; but the fact is I think that the American people are expecting us to live up to the promise that we are not going to let spending get out of control again.

So the purpose of the deliberations that are ongoing throughout this Capitol, at the White House, et cetera, are focused—and should be—on making sure we change the system, on making sure that we accomplish the necessary cuts which would exceed the amount that we raise the debt limit, as well as to signal to the American people that we have changed the system; that this kind of unbridled spending ceases and that we begin to live within our means and get the fiscal house in order so

NAYS—146

Ackerman	DeGette	Johnson (GA)
Andrews	DeLauro	Johnson, E. B.
Baca	Deutch	Keating
Baldwin	Dicks	Kildee
Barrow	Dingell	Kind
Bass (CA)	Doggett	Langevin
Becerra	Doyle	Larsen (WA)
Berkley	Edwards	Larson (CT)
Berman	Ellison	Lee (CA)
Bishop (NY)	Engel	Levin
Boswell	Eshoo	Lewis (GA)
Brady (PA)	Farr	Loeb sack
Bralley (IA)	Filner	Lofgren, Zoe
Brown (FL)	Fudge	Lowe y
Capps	Garamendi	Luján
Capuano	Gonzalez	Lynch
Carnahan	Green, Al	Maloney
Castor (FL)	Grijalva	Matsui
Chu	Gutierrez	McCollum
Cicilline	Hanabusa	McDermott
Clarke (MI)	Hastings (FL)	McGovern
Clarke (NY)	Heinrich	McNerney
Clay	Higgins	Meeks
Cleaver	Hinojosa	Miller (NC)
Clyburn	Hirono	Miller, George
Cohen	Hochul	Moore
Connolly (VA)	Holden	Moran
Cooper	Holt	Nadler
Costello	Honda	Napolitano
Courtney	Hoyer	Neal
Critz	Inslee	Oliver
Davis (IL)	Israel	Owens
DeFazio	Jackson (IL)	Pallone

that we can focus on the overriding need for this country right now, which is to create an environment where jobs return.

I know the gentleman has seen today's jobs report. "Disappointing" is an understatement, so I make the point again:

As the gentleman knows, Mr. Speaker, he and I were at a meeting at the White House yesterday with the President in which I said, again, the import of our need to act and act responsibly and not—not—to raise taxes on the American people and the small businesses, and that we need so desperately to begin to create jobs again.

Mr. HOYER. I am pleased, as the gentleman knows, to hear that you want to stop the spiraling deficits that confront our country. I will repeat again because the gentleman keeps mentioning this, and I have enough experience to know what has happened:

In the 30 years that I've been here, of course we've had some few years of the Obama administration, but we had Mr. Reagan's administration, Mr. Bush I's administration, Mr. Bush II's administration, and we ran up—and I know the gentleman knows these figures—over $6 trillion of deficit during that period of time. However, in the 8 years that Mr. Clinton was President of the United States, we had a $62.9 billion surplus.

Now, the gentleman makes the point that spending is out of control. The fact is, as the gentleman clearly knows, when you were in charge of the House and the Presidency and the Senate, you increased spending by more than was increased during the Clinton administration by a percentage on an annual basis. So I'm glad to hear that your side now, without fail, talks about spending being out of control. Very frankly, I have the feeling, if your side were spending 5 cents, you would think that we would need to cut an additional 5 cents in revenues so that we could not pay the bills, because that's why we ran up $6 trillion in deficits: you did not pay for what you bought.

Now, I'm one of those who very strongly believes we ought to pay for what we buy, but I also believe that we ought not to put this country on the brink of financial chaos and bring us down in the eyes of the world because we don't extend our debt.

Very frankly, I think we ought to pay for what we buy. We call that "taxes"—whether it's defending America, paying our FBI, paying people who are researching cancer, heart, lung, diabetes issues. Those are Federal expenditures for which the American people pay through taxes. If we are going to be responsible, we make a very simple judgment: if we want to buy it, we ought to pay for it.

That $6 trillion of deficit was incurred during those Presidencies, and the President is the only person in America who can stop spending—the only one. You can't do it and I can't do it. We need 217 other votes in our House. Over there, they need at least 60 votes to do anything. The President can do it himself. Ronald Reagan never had a veto overridden of a bill that said we spent too much money. George Bush I never had a veto overridden in which he vetoed a bill saying we spent too much money, and George Bush II never once had a veto overridden so that we spent money that he did not sanction.

So I say to my friend, we did meet at the White House, and the President of the United States, the leader of our party, and I and Mr. REID and Mr. DURBIN all said, yes, we need to get a handle on this spending; yes, we need to get a handle on the deficit; and, yes, we need to bring down the debt. We need to come to the table together with everything on the table, and we need to pay for what we think we ought to buy. Frankly, we ought to ensure that the United States of America, for the first time in history, doesn't fail to pay its bills.

□ 1220

I tell my friend that we've had a lot of commentary over the last few days, people on Wall Street, people in business—large, medium and small—and I will tell you that if the United States doesn't, by August 2, agree to pay that which it owes, that which it has incurred—not what we're going to incur, but those debts that we've incurred in the past—everybody in America is going to be hurt.

Every economist that I talk to says that interest rates are going to spike, the stock market is going to be at risk and, very frankly, millions of people who have pension funds and who have interest in their pensions are going to be adversely affected, the housing market, which is struggling, is going to be hurt, the economy that is struggling is going to be hurt. So I would hope that my friend and I will go to the White House on Sunday, we will sit with the President of the United States, and we will be for a large deal that is euphemistically referred to as a "comprehensive solution" so that we can in fact—not in the short term, not temporarily, but in the long term—bring fiscal discipline to the operations of our country. Our country needs that. I think the international community expects that of us. And if we don't do that, I tell my friend, I think we will not have fulfilled our oath of office to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States and serve the general welfare of our country and our people.

Now, some in your party of course have suggested there is no need to raise the debt. Does the gentleman agree with that proposition? I'm not going to go through the quotes, but as you know, one of your candidates for President has indicated there is no need to worry about raising the debt. She serves in this body, as a matter of fact.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I would respond to the gentleman, as he knows—he and I have had plenty of discussions about this; so I assume we are just on for show here—that he wants me to say yes. I believe it would be a grave consequence if we did not reach the point at which we could arrive at a solution and put a bill forward that would permit an increase in the credit limit of this country, with an associated cut in spending, and move to get our fiscal house in order.

And as the gentleman correctly pointed out, the reason why now we will not be in our districts on the week of the 18th is to ensure that we do get it right and that we recognize that the markets, the investors around the world are smarter than expecting us to just go and check the box to meet the date. At the end of the day, what the markets and investors, and, more importantly, the American people, are looking for is that we act responsibly, that we begin to manage down the debt and deficit. That means trillions of dollars of cuts are necessary. Because I think most Americans are looking at Washington in disbelief, that somehow we think there's not enough money coming into the Federal Government.

I mean, just look at the jobs report today. I cannot fathom how anyone thinks right now is a good time to raise taxes. Who thinks that raising taxes on individuals and small businesses can help create jobs? We are in a crisis. People in this country need to get back to work.

And let me just, Mr. Speaker, for the point of explanation because the gentleman insists on going back decades to recount the past—and as the gentleman knows, I'm the first one to say that we came to this majority with some contrition—that, no, we weren't always acting in the best interests of the fiscal health of this country, that's why we have taken the job at hand and acted responsibly and passed a budget that actually puts a plan in place to manage down the debt and deficit, unlike the other body, unlike this President. And that's why we come to the table right now, as we approach this debt ceiling vote, with a well thought out, deliberative plan to get people back to work while we get the fiscal house in order.

But let's just review some of the statistics, Mr. Speaker. There have been 2.5 million jobs lost since this President took office. There are 13.9 million Americans unemployed right now. A gallon of gas is significantly higher—well into the $3.50, $3.60 a gallon in some places in this country, if not higher, up from $1.85 when this President took office. $14.3 trillion in current national debt, up from $10.6 trillion when this President took office. If you work that out, $46,042 debt per person, up from $34,371 when this President took office. So you can go through line by line of how things have gotten worse for the American people.

Now, we can sit here and blame and point fingers all day long, but I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, the American people are tired of the bickering. They want to see some solutions. They want to see us come together. That's exactly why we have altered the schedule so we can begin to actually deliver on the promise.

So I agree with the gentleman from Maryland, the Democratic whip; we've got a serious challenge ahead of us. We on this side of the aisle have been consistent in our efforts to meet that challenge in a responsible way. But I would underscore again that now is not the time to raise taxes. Now is not the time to say that Washington needs more money because that money comes off the hard work and backs of the American people.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman.

Reclaiming my time, very interesting comments he makes. Of course, he leaves out some things. He talks about the jobs that were lost. Those jobs were lost of course as this administration took office. This administration has gained back 2 million of the 8 million jobs that were lost during the economic program that my friend from Virginia voted for, for the most part. Eight million jobs were lost. And the month that this administration took office in January, 780,000 jobs in one month were lost, the last month of the Bush administration. That's not very distant past.

But let me tell you, I heard the same rhetoric—you said you've changed, I heard the same rhetoric in 1993, same rhetoric when we adopted a program that we said would balance the budget, bring the economy back and create jobs. The same rhetoric, oh, no, you won't do it. The program that you're going to adopt—none of which you voted for, you weren't here, I understand that—but the same rhetoric applied. You thought we were going to tank the economy, kill jobs, explode the deficit and have high unemployment. In fact, as my friend well knows—he didn't read those statistics because he thinks they're ancient history because you opposed that policy. But that policy created 22 million jobs. That's a 30 million job difference between the Bush administration that was the follow-on administration and the Clinton administration. Thirty million job difference. I tell my friend, under the policies that you adopted and you supported in the 2000s.

So I would hope that my friend's comments are correct, that you have decided to change. In point of fact, we need change. And in point of fact, the American public—which is divided itself, but would like us to come together, and I'm hopeful that we'll do that. And my friend and I have had the opportunity to talk about this. We do have significant differences. But none of us can put something on the table and say if you don't agree, I'm going to tank the economy, I'm going to have America default for the first time in its 200-plus years of history if you don't agree and do it my way.

I have said, the leader has said on this side, everything is on the table. We understand that you have to pay for what you buy, and we also understand we have to buy less, and we are prepared to do both.

□ 1230

In fact, we have agreed to do both in the Biden talks.

Now, my friend talks about economists. The most successful investor in America, I think most people will agree, is Warren Buffett. Warren Buffett said we raised the debt ceiling seven times during the Bush administration. And now in this Congress, under the Republicans, they're using it as a hostage, and you really don't have any business playing Russian roulette to get your way in some matter. We should, he said, be more grown up on that. To that extent, he echoed the comments of our Speaker, who is trying, in my opinion, to get to a place where we can come together, compromise—as is critical in a democracy—pay our bills, and reduce our obligations and reduce spending. Buffett went on to say we should, as I said, be more grown up on that.

If we don't meet the August 2 deadline, he observed, you're playing with fire when you don't need to play with fire. And we don't need to tell the rest of the world that any time people in Congress start throwing a tantrum, that we're not going to pay our bills. That is not responsible behavior. It's not adult behavior. It's not good for anybody in the United States of America, and it's not good for the international community.

In fact, Senator Alan Simpson was referring to TOM COBURN, who has said, look, you've got to have everything on the table, including, yes, revenues; yes, taxes.

Some bard has said that taxes are the price we pay for democracy. They should not be any higher than they need to be, but we ought to pay for what we buy. And if we don't, if people don't want to pay for it, we ought not to buy it.

Unfortunately, the reason we racked up $6 trillion of deficits during the Reagan and both Bush administrations is because we bought things and didn't pay for them. As you heard me say at the White House, we, both parties—you weren't here—voted for some things and didn't pay for them. We've got to stop that. That's why we put in place statutory PAYGO.

But, very frankly, you say, Well, we've changed. You passed a budget that doesn't balance the budget for the next 27 years. You passed the budget. You voted for that. I didn't vote for that budget. It doesn't balance the budget for 27 years, almost three decades. Very frankly, I don't think that does it.

That's why we went down to the White House yesterday, and almost everybody in the room said we need to do a comprehensive, disciplined, courageous, honest, principled resolution of doing what you say you want to do, that your party wants to do, and what I'm telling you, my friend, we want to do because there is no option. We must bring this deficit down. We must. The debt we have confronting us is not sustainable.

So I would urge my friend, and I want to congratulate Speaker BOEHNER, who at the White House said, Look, we need to do this and we need to have a comprehensive agreement. That's what democracy demands.

I'm not going to agree with some of the things that are in that bill. You're not going to agree with some of the things that are in that bill, if, in fact, we pass a bill. But if we come together, if we act as adults, if we do what every responsible financial economist and adviser has told us we must do, then America will be pleased with us.

But I tell my friend from Virginia, if we don't do that, if we continue to buy things that we don't pay for and we continue to ask the people to get it for free, then frankly your children, and my grandchildren and children and great-grandchildren, will not be happy with us.

So I urge my friend—he and I will be going to the White House on Sunday. I urge him to come to the table, as I will come to the table. I tell him, with the understanding that compromise is essential, that the crisis that confronts us is real and that America expects us to act in their best interest and have the courage—not the politics, not the ego, not the view of the next election—but the view of the long term, as we come together and try to confront this issue for which all of us are responsible. No one party, no one member. All of us are responsible. But then again, if that is the case, we are all responsible for its resolution.

I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. CANTOR. I thank the gentleman.

I would just try to keep my remarks short, and that is to say, listen, it's about jobs right now. The gentleman correctly points out we have a real spending problem here. And the question is, how do we address the first priority to get Americans back to work and address that spending problem we've got?

Now, if the gentleman says we have to pay for what we buy, I certainly agree with that. We ought to just be buying less as a government because the money doesn't belong to the government, it belongs to the people. And if we want more people to get back to work, we should allow them to keep more of their money so that they can create jobs.

And that's really where the fundamental disagreement has been over the last couple of weeks. It certainly was what put the Biden talks into abeyance because there was a lot of good work that was done by both sides of the aisle in those talks. And I still believe that the product of those talks will prove to be the basis upon which we can arrive at an appropriate resolution of the challenge before us around the debt ceiling.

But why these talks ended was that your side insisted that we raise taxes. And I would say to the gentleman, raising taxes is, as he would put it, paying for what we buy. And I'm saying let's stop buying so much and let the people decide what it is they want to do with their money.

Mr. HOYER. Reclaiming my time, if I can—

Mr. CANTOR. If I could finish.

Mr. HOYER. I will continue to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. CANTOR. I would say to the gentleman, I know he likes to engage in a lot of the decades of history before. And I don't like to go finger-pointing and engage in that. But every time the gentleman raises the issue about jobs lost here, jobs lost there, what it does is require me to posit again, there have been 1.4 million jobs lost since the stimulus bill.

But that makes my point. We didn't need to do the stimulus bill. We didn't need to do the stimulus bill because now we are stuck with over $800 billion in additional debt with now unemployment today at 9.2 percent.

So, again, question whether we're on the right policies here and we're spending the dollars we need to be spending. Maybe we shouldn't spend it. Maybe we should let it be invested in the private sector.

I would end by saying, again, the deficit is a real problem. We've got a $1.6 trillion deficit this year, the largest in history and the third consecutive year of trillion dollars of deficits.

I would say to the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, we can't tolerate that. The President shouldn't tolerate that. The American people have no patience any more. That's why we need to get to work, try and lower the hyperbole and get the job done.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for his comment.

The gentleman, I understand, does not like me to look back. But the problem with being around for some time, you hear people say that this isn't going to work or that's going to work, and you know what? Hopefully that ought to be instructive as to whether it did work or didn't work.

And the problem I have, which, apparently, I know you don't appreciate, is that I've heard the rhetoric before that you've just used today, and I heard it in 1993 when a program which had revenues in it, or, as you like to say, taxes—obviously those are revenues—and it was going to destroy the economy. Who said so? Phil Gramm, an economist on your side. He said we would devastate the economy. He was dead, flat wrong, 180 degrees wrong. We had the best economy in your lifetime.

Furthermore, let me instruct the gentleman, I don't know what you're reading from, but your figures are wrong. Over the last 20 months we have gained 2 million jobs.

□ 1240

Now, did we lose a lot of jobs in the first 6 months? We did. Now, there is no doubt in my mind for 1 second that if it were a Republican President and it had been a Democratic administration, there is no administration in history that wouldn't have blamed those first 6 months on their predecessor because they couldn't turn the economy around. So, since the stimulus took effect, we have gained 2 million jobs. Have we gained enough? No. We lost 8 million jobs under the Bush administration. So we have only filled 25 percent of the hole. Again, I don't know what paper you are looking at, but you check the figures.

Now, unfortunately this month, he is absolutely correct. It was disappointing, and the month before was disappointing. In fact, of course, some people are doing pretty well in America. The stock market closed at about 12,700-plus on the Dow yesterday, some $2 trillion on hand.

One of the things I think that people are worried about is making sure that we act as adults, we act responsibly, we pay our bills, and we ensure that America does not default. All I am going to say, and then I will close, is that I hope the gentleman and I can join together on Sunday and on every day thereafter between now and when we can resolve this issue so that we can pay our bills, stabilize our economy, and give what the gentleman talked a lot about in our colloquies when our positions were reversed—I remember those days—talked a lot about, and that was confidence, that was stability.

The failure for us to act, as we acted seven times in the Bush administration to raise the debt limit, and I don't have the specific number, but more than that in the Reagan administration—and by the way, during the last 4 years of the Clinton administration, does the gentleman remember how many times we raised the debt limit? Zero. Zero. Why? Because for every one of those 4 years we had a surplus, not a deficit. A surplus. And Mr. Greenspan was worried at the end of the Clinton administration that we were going to pay off the debt too quickly. And President Bush projected a $5.6 trillion surplus.

So I tell my friend that the reason I look back is to not repeat the mistakes of the past. We didn't pay our bills. We paid our bills in the nineties. We started not paying our bills again. You jettisoned the statutory PAYGO. You jettisoned it again, essentially, not the statutory part, but the rule part.

Again, I don't enjoy going back and forth on this, but I am very concerned for my country. The Speaker said he wanted to solve this problem by June 30. It is now July 7. We haven't resolved it. And the country is waiting for us. So let us hope that all of us will not say, can't do this, can't do that, can't do the other.

Let us go down to the White House on Sunday with the President, with the Senate, with the leaders of this House, and say, yes, we can. We can be responsible. We can be adults. We are going to get this done for the people.

I yield back the balance of my time.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, JULY 11, 2011

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet on Monday next, when it shall convene at noon for morning-hour debate and 2 p.m. for legislative business.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

PERMISSION TO APPOINT MEMBERS TO PERFORM THE DUTIES OF THE CHAIR

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Speaker may appoint Members to perform the duties of the Chair for the duration of the period from August 8, 2011, through September 6, 2011, as though under clause 8(a) of rule I.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 91

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to remove my name as a cosponsor of H.R. 91.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the further consideration of H.R. 2354, and that I may include tabular material on the same.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REED). Pursuant to House Resolution 337 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 2354.

□ 1245

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 2354) making appropriations for energy and water development and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, with Mr. POE of Texas in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered read the first time.

The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN) and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKY) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to bring the fiscal year 2012 Energy and Water appropriations bill before the House this afternoon.

Before I begin my remarks, let me thank the full chairman, Mr. ROGERS, as well as the ranking member, Mr. DICKS, for their support of a very open process and their support of me as well as the ranking member. I would particularly like to thank my ranking member, Congressman PETE VISCLOSKY, for his dedication to our joint mission and our close working relationship. The bill is stronger for his input and knowledge.

I would also like to thank the committee staff, Rob Blair, the clerk; Joe Levin, Loraine Heckenberg, Angie Giancarlo, and Perry Yates. On the minority side, I would like to thank Taunja Berquam. I would also like to thank my personal staff, Nancy Fox and Kathleen Hazlett, and certainly recognize Mr. VISCLOSKY's personal staff in the form of Joe DeVo.

Mr. Chairman, the Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill supports programs critical to our Nation's security, safety, and economic competitiveness. Mr. Chairman, for far too long Federal agencies have been assuming ever-increasing budgets, leading to programs with poor rationale and even less accountability. Those days are behind us now. This bill clearly shows that much greater fiscal discipline and a strong national defense and a strong economy can be achieved together.

The bill for fiscal year 2012 provides $30.6 billion, $1 billion below fiscal year 2011, and $5.9 billion below the President's request, bringing the total spending levels for our bill down to approaching the fiscal year 2006 level. An additional $1.03 billion is emergency offset funding which is provided to help recovery and repair efforts due to the severe floods we have seen in the Mississippi and Missouri River regions. These floods have resulted in immense devastation and loss of life and livelihoods. I commend the good work of the Army Corps, which is in the front lines, along with municipal, county, State, and other Federal first responders when tragedies like this occur.

Mr. Chairman, there are no congressional earmarks in this legislation. The highest national priorities are protected by supporting the Department of Energy's national defense programs and by preserving activities that directly support American competitiveness, such as water infrastructure and basic science research.

The bill also supports critical national security programs by providing $10.6 billion for the National Nuclear Security Administration, including $195.3 million above fiscal year 2011 for weapons activities to support the modernization of our nuclear stockpile.

The bill also supports urgent, ongoing efforts to secure vulnerable nuclear materials worldwide and the full request to design a reactor for the replacement of the Ohio-class ballistic missile submarine.

We've seen how catastrophic flooding can affect many lives locally and the economy nationally, and we know that yesterday's crisis could be anywhere tomorrow. This bill protects public safety and keeps America open for business by providing $4.7 billion for the Army Corps of Engineers, $195 million above the President's request, and $89 million below fiscal year 2011. The bill makes funds available above the President's request for navigation and flood control, the activities most critical to public safety, jobs, and the economy, and gives the Corps 45 days to deliver and justify their spending plans.

□ 1250

This will give each project, whether in the President's budget or not, the opportunity to compete for these funds and ensure we understand how the Corps really develops its request.

Science research at the Department of Energy strengthens American competitiveness and enables true breakthroughs in the energy sector, and the bill preserves strong funding for this program at $4.8 billion, just $43 million below fiscal year 2011.

The committee continues to support nuclear energy, providing $8 million above the request for ongoing research in promising new programs such as small modular reactors, which it funds at the request level. By reducing funding where stimulus funds are still available or where the private sector is able to invest without Federal help, the bill reduces funding for energy efficiency and renewable energy to $1.3 billion, $491 million below fiscal year 2011.

The bill also upholds historic cleanup responsibilities by funding defense environmental cleanup at $4.9 billion, less than 1 percent below last year's programmatic level, and includes language to curb the department's use of bartering to evade congressional oversight.

Finally, this bill includes numerous steps across all accounts to ensure the administration follows the will of Congress. For example, it includes funding and restrictions enforcing that Yucca Mountain is the law of the land and cannot be stopped by executive action alone. Over the years, this House, in a bipartisan fashion, has been fighting this administration's disdain for sound science and the hard-earned tax dollars of our constituents that went into building that disposal site.

Now the Government Accountability Office has issued a report saying that there is no scientific reason for shutting down Yucca, and the administration has been forced to release its own review showing that the science actually supports Yucca. Even the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's own Inspector General has released findings highly critical of the way the NRC chairman has withheld information regarding Yucca Mountain from the public and his fellow commissioners. This bill supports these findings by including $35 million to keep Yucca Mountain going and language to ensure that political appointees at the NRC can no longer inappropriately use their insider positions.

It also includes new reporting requirements so the administration must track, and show, that the investments we make in science and technology are effective uses of taxpayer dollars.

Mr. Chairman, I take seriously our responsibility to rein in Federal spending in fiscal year 2012. The bill is premised upon hard questions, and focused cuts where the answers didn't hold up to scrutiny. This is the sort of analysis that will get our fiscal house in order. This bill deserves our Members' support, and I look forward to an open and full process and discussion.

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS BILL FY 2010 (H.R. 2354)
(Amounts in thousands)

	FY 2011 Enacted	FY 2012 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
-----
TITLE I - DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE - CIVIL DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
Corps of Engineers - Civil /1
Investigations.....	126,746	104,000	104,000	-22,746	---
Construction.....	1,789,822	1,480,000	1,615,941	-173,881	+135,941
Rescission.....	-176,000	---	-50,000	+126,000	-50,000
Subtotal.....	1,613,822	1,480,000	1,565,941	-47,881	+85,941
Mississippi River and tributaries.....	263,906	210,000	210,000	-53,906	---
Rescission.....	-22,000	-23,000	---	+22,000	+23,000
Rescission of emergency funding (Sec. 105).....	---	-35,000	---	---	+35,000
Subtotal.....	241,906	152,000	210,000	-31,906	+58,000
Operations and maintenance.....	2,365,759	2,314,000	2,366,465	+706	+52,465
Regulatory program.....	189,620	196,000	196,000	+6,380	---
FUSRAP.....	129,740	109,000	109,000	-20,740	---
Flood control and coastal emergencies.....	---	27,000	27,000	+27,000	---
Expenses.....	184,630	185,000	185,000	+370	---
Office of Assistant Secretary of the Army (Civil Works).....	4,990	6,000	5,000	+10	-1,000
=====
Total, title I, Department of Defense - Civil... Appropriations.....	4,857,213	4,573,000	4,768,406	-88,807	+195,406
Rescissions.....	(5,055,213)	(4,631,000)	(4,818,406)	(-236,807)	(+187,406)
Rescissions of emergency funding.....	(-198,000)	(-23,000)	(-50,000)	(+148,000)	(-27,000)
	---	(-35,000)	---	---	(+35,000)
=====
1/ Additional funding provided in Title V
TITLE II - DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
Central Utah Project Completion Account
Central Utah project construction.....	---	29,441	25,154	+25,154	-4,287
Fish, wildlife, and recreation mitigation and conservation.....	---	2,000	2,000	+2,000	---
Subtotal.....	---	31,441	27,154	+27,154	-4,287
Program oversight and administration.....	---	1,550	1,550	+1,550	---
Undistributed funding level.....	31,940	---	---	-31,940	---
Total, Central Utah project completion account..	31,940	32,991	28,704	-3,236	-4,287
Bureau of Reclamation
Water and related resources.....	911,673	805,187	822,300	-89,373	+17,113
Central Valley project restoration fund.....	49,914	53,068	53,068	+3,154	---
California Bay-Delta restoration.....	39,920	39,651	35,928	-3,992	-3,723
Policy and administration.....	61,078	60,000	60,000	-1,078	---
Indian water rights settlements.....	---	51,483	---	---	-51,483
San Joaquin restoration fund.....	---	9,000	---	---	-9,000
Rescission.....	---	---	-66,000	-66,000	-66,000
Subtotal.....	---	9,000	-66,000	-66,000	-75,000
Total, Bureau of Reclamation.....	1,062,585	1,018,389	905,296	-157,289	-113,093
=====
Total, title II, Department of the Interior.....	1,094,525	1,051,380	934,000	-160,525	-117,380
=====

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS BILL FY 2010 (H.R. 2354)
(Amounts in thousands)

	FY 2011 Enacted	FY 2012 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
-----
TITLE III - DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY
Energy Programs
Energy efficiency and renewable energy.....	1,825,641	3,200,053	1,304,636	-521,005	-1,895,417
Rescission.....	-30,000	---	---	+30,000	---
Subtotal.....	1,795,641	3,200,053	1,304,636	-491,005	-1,895,417
Electricity delivery and energy reliability.....	144,710	237,717	139,496	-5,214	-98,221
Rescission.....	-3,700	---	---	+3,700	---
Subtotal.....	141,010	237,717	139,496	-1,514	-98,221
Nuclear energy.....	732,124	754,028	733,633	+1,509	-20,395
Rescission.....	-6,300	---	---	+6,300	---
Subtotal.....	725,824	754,028	733,633	+7,809	-20,395
Fossil energy research and development.....	584,529	452,975	476,993	-107,536	+24,018
Rescission.....	-140,000	---	---	+140,000	---
Subtotal.....	444,529	452,975	476,993	+32,464	+24,018
Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves.....	22,954	14,909	14,909	-8,045	---
Rescission.....	-2,100	---	---	+2,100	---
Subtotal.....	20,854	14,909	14,909	-5,945	---
Strategic petroleum reserve.....	209,441	192,704	192,704	-16,737	---
Rescission.....	-86,300	-71,000	---	+86,300	+71,000
Subtotal.....	123,141	121,704	192,704	+69,563	+71,000
SPR petroleum account.....	---	-250,000	-500,000	-500,000	-250,000
Clean coal technology (rescission).....	-16,500	---	---	+16,500	---
Northeast home heating oil reserve.....	10,978	10,119	10,119	-859	---
Rescission.....	---	-100,000	-100,000	-100,000	---
Subtotal.....	10,978	-89,881	-89,881	-100,859	---
Energy Information Administration.....	95,409	123,957	105,000	+9,591	-18,957
Rescission.....	-400	---	---	+400	---
Subtotal.....	95,009	123,957	105,000	+9,991	-18,957
Non-defense environmental clean up.....	224,350	219,121	213,121	-11,229	-6,000
Rescission.....	-900	---	---	+900	---
Subtotal.....	223,450	219,121	213,121	-10,329	-6,000
Uranium enrichment decontamination and decommissioning fund.....	506,984	504,169	449,000	-57,984	-55,169
Rescission.....	-9,900	---	---	+9,900	---
Subtotal.....	497,084	504,169	449,000	-48,084	-55,169
Science.....	4,857,665	5,416,114	4,800,000	-57,665	-616,114
Rescission.....	-15,000	---	---	+15,000	---
Subtotal.....	4,842,665	5,416,114	4,800,000	-42,665	-616,114
Nuclear Waste Disposal.....	---	---	25,000	+25,000	+25,000
Rescission.....	-2,800	---	---	+2,800	---
Subtotal.....	-2,800	---	25,000	+27,800	+25,000
Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy.....	179,640	550,011	100,000	-79,640	-450,011

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS BILL FY 2010 (H.R. 2354)
(Amounts in thousands)

	FY 2011 Enacted	FY 2012 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Innovative Technology Loan Guarantee Program.....	58,000	38,000	38,000	-20,000	---
Offsetting collection.....	-58,000	-38,000	-38,000	+20,000	---
Loan volume rescission.....	-181,830	---	---	+181,830	---
Additional loan volume.....	11,830	360,000	---	-11,830	-360,000
Federal participation in Title 17 loan guarantee projects.....	---	500,000	---	---	-500,000
Additional subsidy cost.....	169,660	200,000	160,000	-9,660	-40,000
Subtotal.....	-340	1,060,000	160,000	+160,340	-900,000
Advanced technology vehicles manufacturing loans program.....	9,978	6,000	6,000	-3,978	---
Better buildings pilot loan guarantee initiative:
Loan guarantees.....	---	100,000	---	---	-100,000
Administrative costs.....	---	5,000	---	---	-5,000
Subtotal.....	---	105,000	---	---	-105,000
Departmental administration.....	250,139	240,623	221,514	-28,625	-19,109
Miscellaneous revenues.....	-119,501	-111,883	-111,883	+7,618	---
Net appropriation.....	130,638	128,740	109,631	-21,007	-19,109
Rescission.....	-81,900	---	---	+81,900	---
Subtotal.....	48,738	128,740	109,631	+60,893	-19,109
Office of the Inspector General.....	42,764	41,774	41,774	-990	---
Total, Energy programs.....	9,181,665	12,596,391	8,282,016	-899,649	-4,314,375
Atomic Energy Defense Activities
National Nuclear Security Administration
Weapons activities.....	6,946,398	7,629,716	7,131,993	+185,595	-497,723
Rescission.....	-50,000	-40,332	-40,332	+9,668	---
Subtotal.....	6,896,398	7,589,384	7,091,661	+195,263	-497,723
Defense nuclear nonproliferation.....	2,318,653	2,549,492	2,086,770	-231,883	-462,722
Rescission.....	-45,000	-30,000	-30,000	+15,000	---
Subtotal.....	2,273,653	2,519,492	2,056,770	-216,883	-462,722
Naval reactors.....	960,176	1,153,662	1,030,600	+70,424	-123,062
Rescission.....	-1,000	---	---	+1,000	---
Subtotal.....	959,176	1,153,662	1,030,600	+71,424	-123,062
Office of the Administrator.....	398,993	450,060	420,000	+21,007	-30,060
Rescission.....	-5,700	---	---	+5,700	---
Subtotal.....	393,293	450,060	420,000	+26,707	-30,060
Total, National Nuclear Security Administration.....	10,522,520	11,712,598	10,599,031	+76,511	-1,113,567
Environmental and Other Defense Activities
Defense environmental cleanup.....	4,991,638	5,406,781	4,937,619	-54,019	-469,162
(Transfer to Uranium enrichment decontamination and decommissioning fund).....	(-33,633)	---	---	(+33,633)	---
Rescission.....	-11,900	---	---	+11,900	---
Subtotal.....	4,979,738	5,406,781	4,937,619	-42,119	-469,162

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS BILL FY 2010 (H.R. 2354)
(Amounts in thousands)

	FY 2011 Enacted	FY 2012 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Other defense activities.....	788,420	859,952	814,000	+25,580	-45,952
Rescission.....	-3,400	---	---	+3,400	---
Subtotal.....	785,020	859,952	814,000	+28,980	-45,952
Total, Environmental and other defense activities.....	5,764,758	6,266,733	5,751,619	-13,139	-515,114
Total, Atomic Energy Defense Activities.....	16,287,278	17,979,331	16,350,650	+63,372	-1,628,681
Power Marketing Administrations /2
Operation and maintenance, Southeastern Power Administration.....	78,444	8,428	8,428	-70,016	---
Offsetting collections.....	-78,444	-8,428	-8,428	+70,016	---
Subtotal.....	---	---	---	---	---
Operation and maintenance, Southwestern Power Administration.....	82,918	45,010	45,010	-37,908	---
Offsetting collection.....	-69,868	-33,118	-33,118	+36,750	---
Subtotal.....	13,050	11,892	11,892	-1,158	---
Construction, rehabilitation, operation and maintenance, Western Area Power Administration.....	610,179	285,900	285,900	-324,279	---
Offsetting collections.....	-497,337	-189,932	-189,932	+307,405	---
Offsetting collection Colorado River Dam Fund...	-3,879	---	---	+3,879	---
Subtotal.....	108,963	95,968	95,968	-12,995	---
Falcon and Amistad operating and maintenance fund.....	2,568	4,169	4,169	+1,601	---
Offsetting collections.....	-2,348	-3,949	-3,949	-1,601	---
Subtotal.....	220	220	220	---	---
Total, Power Marketing Administrations.....	122,233	108,080	108,080	-14,153	---
Federal Energy Regulatory Commission
Salaries and expenses.....	298,000	304,600	304,600	+6,600	---
Revenues applied.....	-298,000	-304,600	-304,600	-6,600	---
Total, title III, Department of Energy.....	25,591,176	30,683,802	24,740,746	-850,430	-5,943,056
Appropriations.....	(26,285,806)	(30,925,134)	(24,911,078)	(-1,374,728)	(-6,014,056)
Rescissions.....	(-694,630)	(-241,332)	(-170,332)	(+524,298)	(+71,000)
TITLE IV - INDEPENDENT AGENCIES
Appalachian Regional Commission.....	68,263	76,000	68,400	+137	-7,600
Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board.....	23,203	29,130	29,130	+5,927	---
Delta Regional Authority.....	11,677	13,000	11,700	+23	-1,300
Denali Commission.....	10,679	11,965	10,700	+21	-1,265
Rescission.....	-15,000	---	---	+15,000	---
Subtotal.....	-4,321	11,965	10,700	+15,021	-1,265
Northern Border Regional Commission.....	1,497	1,500	1,350	-147	-150
Southeast Crescent Regional Commission.....	250	---	250	---	+250
Nuclear Regulatory Commission:
Salaries and expenses.....	1,043,208	1,027,240	1,027,240	-15,968	---
Revenues.....	-906,220	-899,726	-890,713	+15,507	+9,013
Subtotal.....	136,988	127,514	136,527	-461	+9,013

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS BILL FY 2010 (H.R. 2354)
(Amounts in thousands)

	FY 2011 Enacted	FY 2012 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Office of Inspector General.....	10,858	10,860	10,860	+2	---
Revenues.....	-9,774	-9,774	-9,774	---	---
Subtotal.....	1,084	1,086	1,086	+2	---
Total, Nuclear Regulatory Commission.....	138,072	128,600	137,613	-459	+9,013
Nuclear Waste Technical Review Board.....	3,883	3,400	3,400	-483	---
Office of the Federal Coordinator for Alaska natural gas transportation projects.....	4,457	4,032	4,032	-425	---
Total, title IV, Independent agencies.....	246,981	267,627	266,575	+19,594	-1,052
Appropriations.....	(261,981)	(267,627)	(266,575)	(+4,594)	(-1,052)
Rescissions.....	(-15,000)	---	---	(+15,000)	---
TITLE V - EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL FUNDING FOR DISASTER RELIEF
Corps of Engineers - Civil Construction, FY 2011 (emergency).....	---	---	376	+376	+376
Mississippi River and tributaries, FY 2011 (emergency).....	---	---	589,505	+589,505	+589,505
Operation and maintenance, FY 2011 (emergency)....	---	---	204,927	+204,927	+204,927
Flood control and coastal emergencies, FY 2011 (emergency).....	---	---	233,876	+233,876	+233,876
Subtotal, Corp of Engineers - Civil.....	---	---	1,028,684	+1,028,684	+1,028,684
Transfer from title XII, P.L. 111-5 (emergency).....	---	---	-1,028,684	-1,028,684	-1,028,684
Rescission of emergency appropriations (P.L. 111-5)...	---	---	-471,316	-471,316	-471,316
Total, Title V, Emergency supplemental for disaster relief.....	---	---	-471,316	-471,316	-471,316
Emergency appropriations.....	---	---	---	---	---
Rescissions of emergency appropriations.....	---	---	(-471,316)	(-471,316)	(-471,316)
Grand total.....	31,789,895	36,575,809	30,238,411	-1,551,484	-6,337,398
Appropriations.....	(32,697,525)	(36,875,141)	(30,996,059)	(-1,701,466)	(-5,879,082)
Emergency appropriations.....	---	---	---	---	---
Rescissions.....	(-907,630)	(-264,332)	(-286,332)	(+621,298)	(-22,000)
Rescissions of emergency appropriations.....	---	(-35,000)	(-471,316)	(-471,316)	(-436,316)

2/ Totals adjusted to net out alternative financing costs, reimbursable agreement funding, and power purchase and wheeling expenditures. Offsetting collection totals only reflect funds collected for annual expenses, excluding power purchase wheeling.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my appreciation to Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN and his staff for their efforts to be inclusive and transparent in drafting this legislation. The chairman has ensured that the Energy and Water Subcommittee continues its tradition of bipartisanship and, within the constraints of the allocation, he has done wonderful work. While I hope that we can modify some elements of the bill, I would observe that our differences are marginal and our agreement is fundamental. Also, I would like to join the chairman in thanking the other members of the subcommittee and also all of our staff for their exceptionally good and dedicated work.

As the chairman mentioned, the allocation for Energy and Water is more than $1 billion below fiscal year 2011. This allocation has necessitated severe cuts to crucial programs. While I appreciate the chairman's considerable efforts and recognize difficult choices must be made to address the Nation's serious financial situation, this bill starkly illustrates the shortsighted nature of the spending cap set by the House budget. The allocation for Energy and Water is simply insufficient to meet the challenges posed by the economic downturn and to guarantee our national security.

Importantly, the chairman continues efforts to improve program and project management at all of the agencies under the bill's jurisdiction. He has honed provisions carried in the past and instituted others aimed at increased oversight. To point out one example, the bill includes a requirement that the Department of Energy complete independent cost estimates at major milestones for projects with a total cost in excess of $100 million. A recent review of the department's cleanup-related construction projects by the Army Corps of Engineers paints a bleak picture of the management system for such projects and casts doubt on recent reforms intended to remove the department off the Government Accountability Office's list for high risk, a list that the department has been on for the last 21 years running. I am pleased the chairman has included a number of reporting requirements and statutory limitations that will contribute to increased transparency and improved management, and I strongly support his actions.

The science account, critical to the competitiveness of our Nation, is essentially the same as in 2011, not an insignificant achievement in light of the challenge the allocation provided. The bill also provides funds for the continuation of a promising new program called ARPA-E, which can drive innovations to support our scientific competitiveness. While ARPA-E has shown some promise as a new organizational model, I am troubled that the same vigor that led to its creation has been largely absent when it comes to addressing the systemic management and communication problems in other existing applied programs.

I support and appreciate the inclusion of emergency funding to respond to the historic flooding in the Mississippi and Missouri River basins. Communities devastated by natural disasters deserve our full support. I am, however, disappointed that the bill offsets this funding by withdrawing critical investment dollars from economic infrastructure in the United States. I would note that this is the second time this year that the committee has transferred funds between bills, the first time from Energy and Water Development to Homeland Security, and now from Transportation to Energy and Water. We need to reconsider this practice and not strip investments in one area to pay for emergency needs in another.

I disagree with the notion that all funding for domestic emergency response should be offset immediately from domestic investment. In every year except two since 1997, the Congress has recognized the need for emergency funds to respond to the impacts of natural disasters on the Nation's water resource infrastructure. Since 2001, the Congress has provided more than $24 billion to the Corps for this purpose. While I grant that this figure is inflated by the enormous cost of reconstructing New Orleans and the surrounding areas, perhaps New Orleans would not have flooded in 2005 had we invested in critical infrastructure in the prior years.

As we debate the long-term trajectory of taxes and spending, we cannot forgo actions necessary for the security and safety of our citizens. Yes, we must make difficult choices that will impact the future of this Nation, but we cannot allow those decisions to fall on the backs of those who have already suffered. Our country has provided billions in infrastructure funding on an emergency basis for dams, schools and roads in Iraq and Afghanistan. Yet we don't have the fortitude to acknowledge that it costs money to protect our citizens at home. We must stop disinvesting in the United States economy. In its 2009 report card on America's infrastructure, the American Society of Civil Engineers estimated an investment of $2.2 trillion is necessary to bring our Nation's infrastructure up to a good condition. Moving forward, we must have the strength to budget for emergencies on an annual basis. We know they happen every year, and it is time to begin to responsibly budget for them.

I appreciate the chairman increasing Corps funding by $195 million above the President's woefully inadequate request, ensuring that some ongoing projects will not be terminated.

□ 1300

Even with this additional funding, the bill provides $677 million less than it did in 2010.

Our ports, harbors, navigational channels and locks continue to provide the foundation for long-term economic growth. At this funding level, we are not close to addressing the dredging backlog that plagues waterborne commerce in the United States.

Currently, for the top 59 ports in the United States, the Corps is only able to maintain authorized steps within the middle of the channel 33 percent of the time. Every day, this costs companies that rely on these ports money and serves as a major impediment to expanding their workforce. This is merely one of the reasons why in 2009 the American Society of Civil Engineers gave our Nation's dams, levees and inland waterways grades of D or D minus.

Renewable energy programs in this bill are reduced. We can debate whether our dependency on imported oil and other carbon fuels is an environmental problem or an economic problem. Either way, it is clearly a national security problem. We must expand the mix of our energy supply, and we must use the energy supply we have more efficiently, and we must also transport it more effectively. We have to make an investment to do that, and I do not believe that the allocation allows for the support necessary.

I would note that the bill adds two hubs to the Department of Energy while cutting both the Science and Renewable Energy accounts that fund them, giving the Department a total of five. This organizational model has not yet been proven, and I have serious reservations about starting two new hubs in light of the cuts to the underlying accounts.

Nonproliferation accounts are reduced significantly, and while I appreciate the chairman's efforts to preserve some of the most critical activities, the bill reduces our ability to counter the most serious threat confronting our national security and that is the threat of nuclear terrorism.

The bill cuts the defense nuclear nonproliferation account by more than $460 million from the request. This comes on top of more than $360 million cut from the request that was provided in final fiscal year bill 2011. These cuts reduce our ability to secure vulnerable nuclear materials around the world, delaying the removal of bomb-grade uranium, and limiting our capacity to detect illegal and illicit trafficking of nuclear materials.

And, finally, I am troubled that the bill includes a misguided prohibition on funds to develop, adopt, implement, administer or enforce a change or supplement to rules related to the Clean Water Act regulatory guidelines. This provision applies not only to this fiscal year but to any subsequent energy and water act. We should be taking actions that address legitimate concerns while providing some clarity and certainty to the regulatory process, not prolonging the confusion, as this provision ensures.

In closing, I am truly appreciative that we are again doing the work of this committee, and I commend Chairman ROGERS and Ranking Member DICKS for their efforts to this end. And as I said at the beginning of my remarks, Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN has done a superb job. While marginal differences exist, our agreement on the overall bill is fundamental.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS).

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, this is a great bill. It's a model of fiscal restraint. I can attest to the fact that the committee has taken a long, hard look at each and every line in this bill to make sure that we are getting the greatest value from each and every taxpayer dollar spent, cutting back funding for programs that are not operating up to par. This bill is also proof that we can make these commonsense spending reductions without damaging or impairing the programs that help keep our country safe and our citizens at work.

This legislation rightly appropriates taxpayer dollars where they should be, in programs that provide the greatest benefits to the American people and that get the economy moving again. This includes $30.6 billion for the Army Corps of Engineers, the Department of Energy and a host of independent agencies, including the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Now, that is $5.9 billion below the President's request; it's a billion dollars below current spending levels.

The Energy and Water appropriations bill funds important work that affects every community in every single one of our colleagues' districts. These are the quality-of-life programs that preserve our public safety and our economic competitiveness, including energy independence programs and national defense programs within the Department of Energy. This bill supports Army Corps construction projects, projects which are vital to national security and which are of a tangible impact on job creation.

But this year's bill is unlike any Energy and Water appropriations bill in recent memory, or perhaps even in history, in one major way. Some of our colleagues and critics were no doubt wondering how we could write this bill under the earmark moratorium, but I am proud that we have been able to craft a responsible bill that funds projects across the Nation without one single earmark. By doing so, we have made the process much more transparent, requiring that organizations like the Corps provide an outline of how, when, and why they are spending precious Federal dollars while maintaining the constitutionally mandated congressional authority over budget decisions. We have retained the power of the purse and strict oversight of these agencies.

On the subject of oversight, I would like particularly to note that $35 million is included to continue the Yucca Mountain review process. The committee has supported these efforts for years, and I am relieved to see that the rest of Congress is finally beginning to see the light and support this program and to realize the extent to which the administration's position ignores good science and wastes billions of taxpayer dollars.

While providing the vital funding for our Nation's energy and water programs, the bill abides by the committee's promise, and my promise as chairman, that we would cut spending wherever and whenever we can.

I must commend Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN and the subcommittee members and staff and the ranking member who have worked so closely together on this bill. They have found the significant spending reductions in areas that seem excessive and unnecessary increases, and in these accounts with large unspent balances. This is the responsible and serious way to get our budgets back into balance and to help keep us on track toward economic recovery.

Again, I want to thank Mr. VISCLOSKY and Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN for doing a great job in bringing a bill to the floor under difficult circumstances. They work collegially and they work intelligently together, and I want to particularly thank the subcommittee staff on both sides of the aisle for their tireless effort putting together this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, this is a good bill that all of us can support, and I urge that we do just that.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mrs. EMERSON).

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Chairman, I deeply respect my colleagues coming here and raising the subject of increased funds in this bill for the Corps of Engineers. I also want to thank Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN and Mr. VISCLOSKY for understanding this very important need. That money, in construction accounts and the Mississippi River and Tributaries account, will go to address an immediate need to repair and rebuild flood protection so that the victims of the historic flooding all up and down the Mississippi River and the Missouri River can recover from the terrible losses they have suffered.

It's not just the people in the southern Missouri district I represent who need help; it's also people in Louisiana, in Iowa, in North Dakota, in Kentucky, in Mississippi, Illinois and a host of other States.

□ 1310

Throughout the country, people who rely on flood protection to shelter their homes, their schools, their churches, and their workplaces have seen their lives and their livelihoods totally disrupted. In one Missouri county alone, the economic losses from flooding are estimated at over $300 million. In the entire MR&T, the total exceeds 4 billion.

Without the certainty of future repairs to the levee systems that protect them, these Americans will remain at risk. They will be unable to rebuild. They'll find it difficult to get insurance. They'll watch their family businesses slip away with the receding floodwaters. Long after the disaster, there will be many, many personal disasters—even if it never rains another drop.

I know that some of our colleagues have raised concerns that this funding will come at a cost to future years of high-speed rail development. I greatly appreciate the desire to retain the promise of funding for those projects, but I must ask them to weigh the immediate need for flood protection against the future need for high-speed rail.

If these repairs aren't completed by next spring, a flood protection system that barely holds against the record flood of 2011 will be in extreme danger in 2012. The Corps would not have the same tools at its disposal to avert flooding in many parts of the country, including major urban areas along the river, like Memphis, Tennessee, just for example.

The funds in this bill respond to an unanticipated disaster of enormous magnitude. Failure to fund the effort to reset the levee system nationwide is an unnecessary risk with widespread economic and public safety implications.

I urge my colleagues to recognize the certainty this funding provides to distressed families all over the country, and I ask them to support a responsible arrangement to fund the Corps of Engineers during a very difficult budgetary climate for the Congress and the Nation.

In closing, I'm very, very grateful for the support of Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN for this funding increase.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY), the ranking member on the Natural Resources Committee.

Mr. MARKEY. I thank the gentleman from Indiana.

We continually hear from the Republicans that the pain of budget cuts has to be spread all around. Everyone has to deal with some pain. But we saw that was completely untrue in their budget plan. The GOP said, Sorry Grandma, not enough money for Medicare; sorry, low-income kids, we can't afford Medicaid. But billions, billions in tax breaks for Big Oil companies, they all stay on the books. They don't even touch any of the tax breaks for Big Oil, for Big Gas, for Big Coal. Tax loopholes that help keep companies offshoring jobs, those were too important to cut as well.

The Republican plan is about misplaced priorities, and we see it in full display here, once again, today in this bill on the House floor. When it comes to nuclear power, the Republicans want to spend more taxpayer money after Fukushima. When it comes to coal, Republicans want to spend more taxpayer money. This bill even keeps alive the deepwater drilling program, ensuring that millions in tax breaks continue to be wasted on developing oil drilling technologies that rich oil companies already have and can afford to pay for themselves by tipping American consumers upside down at the pumps every time they go to refill their gas tanks. They don't need taxpayer money to do this. The last in line should be oil companies. They're the first in line. They are the first in line under the Republican agenda.

Now, when it comes to clean energy, though, when it comes to the future, what young people think should be the future of our country—solar, wind, geothermal, biomass, clean vehicles, hybrids, plug-in vehicles, all-electric vehicles, more efficient buildings, increases in science spending for research so we make the breakthroughs in energy research and weatherizing homes and buildings—what does this budget do? Down, down, down, down, down. They cut those budgets, every one of them. They cut the future. They cut the future. What do they do for the past, for oil, for coal, for gas, for Yucca Mountain nuclear waste dump? Up, up, up with the past. That's what this whole debate is about. It's a debate about the past versus the future.

And their budget, this budget, cuts the future. It cuts it in a radical way. And it says to the young people in our country, you're going to have to wait for another generation before we see the breakthroughs in wind and solar and all-electric vehicles.

That's the message to young people all across our country in this Republican budget. They cut wind and solar $134 million. They cut clean vehicle technology $46 million, green building technology $61 million, science research $43 million, weatherization $141 million. The list goes on and on and on—more money for technologies of the past, less money for technologies of the future.

I will have an amendment next week that will give us an opportunity to rectify some of these misplaced spending priorities. But I have to hand it to my Republican colleagues for one thing. They are actually being honest.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. VISCLÖSKY. I yield the gentleman 2 additional minutes.

Mr. MARKEY. I thank the gentleman.

I have to hand it to my Republican colleagues. They are being honest with this bill. For the first time, unequivocally, the Republicans are telling Americans that their plan is to retreat from a clean energy future, from a solar, wind, biomass and all-electric future. They are saying it here, We want to cut all of those programs.

There's no hiding behind the numbers. They're screaming out here at the Members of the House on the floor and to the young people of our country. They're screaming, We are going to retreat from the future. They can't talk about their all-of-the-above energy program anymore. No, ladies and gentlemen. Their program is not all of the above. It's oil above all. That's what it's about. That's how they keep the tax breaks. That's how they keep the subsidies for the oil industry. They cut the programs for wind and solar.

Now, which industry in America is the last one, right now, that needs a tax break? It's the oil industry. They're recording the largest profits of any corporations in the history of America. If we're going to begin anywhere, can we begin with them? Do we have to take it out of clean energy to keep all the tax breaks for those wealthiest companies?

Do you know who's the happiest right now, who is really smiling? The corners of their mouths are turned upwards all across Venezuela, all across Saudi Arabia, and all across OPEC. They're looking out here at the Republican budget for the future, and they're saying, Ah, we can sleep at night. We don't have to worry that there will be more efficient vehicles. We don't have to worry that they're moving to an all-electric vehicle future. We don't have to worry that they're going to tell us that they don't need our oil any more than we need their sand. No. Their message is going to be, Bring it on. Let us continue to go on our hands and knees and beg for them to please produce more oil, please sell us more oil at $100 a barrel. Please do that. That's what this Republican budget says.

Vote "no."

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LATHAM).

Mr. LATHAM. I thank Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN for the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill and simply to make a point about the emergency funds and the offset that's provided to the Army Corps of Engineers.

I think everyone is aware, but I want to emphasize the dire situation we have today on the Mississippi River and, certainly, the very dire situation we have on the Missouri River that is costing lives, costing livelihoods, businesses, and the futures for so many families.

We also, Mr. Chairman, have a dire situation with our deficit today, and we've got to address that. In order to fund the immediate repairs for the life-saving levees, the committee proposed an offset from the high-speed rail. And that's really a program that they're talking about that in 10 years still won't be beyond the planning phases.

□ 1320

As the chairman of the Transportation, Housing and Urban Development Subcommittee on Appropriations, I understand that a portion of this money would have gone to very important projects in the Northeast corridor. Some of these projects have great merit, and Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN has been the strongest advocate for funding for these programs that do have merit. He understands it; I understand it. We will do everything that we can to fund those projects because they are needed up there.

But I will also say that today we have an emergency beyond anything that I have ever seen before in my years. It would be a week ago Wednesday that I was standing on a levee by the Missouri River by the town of Percival, Iowa. Farmers were there on the other side of the levee trying to fix boils that were coming through underneath the levee, trying to save their farms, their communities. Some of those farmers, they were fifth- and sixth-generation farms, and they were fighting desperately to save their livelihood and their family's heritage. That was 3 in the afternoon on Wednesday. At 4 the next morning, Thursday morning, that levee blew out. And those livelihoods, those thousands of acres of farmland, the town of Percival itself is now underwater.

That is why these funds are desperately needed today, as soon as possible, to make sure that we can fund the type of emergency that we have going on today.

The Army Corps of Engineers needs that money today so they can repair those levees so we can save lives and livelihoods and the heritage for generations to come.

Mr. Chairman, today is not a question of what we want. We all want to see improvements in the Northeast corridor, and we are going to do everything we can to make that happen. But it is about what is needed today, what is an emergency today, what funds have to go to dire problems that we face and the dire consequences we will face if, in fact, we do not do the work that we need to do today.

I commend the chairman for his great work.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chair and the members of the committee and the exceptional staff that we have for their good work.

I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Chair, the Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill is yet another glaring example of the flawed nature of the Republican budget. To try to meet their unrealistic goal of reducing the deficit solely through domestic non-defense discretionary spending cuts, Republicans are proposing to make crippling cuts to our national investment in improving energy efficiency and the development of renewable energy sources.

These cuts will only serve to make our Nation more dependent on the coal, oil, and gas interests that own the Republican Party and more dependent on importing our energy from insecure foreign sources. Meanwhile, our global competitors recognize that this is an area in which there are many gains to be made and they are investing heavily to develop their own renewable resources and promote domestic economic and job growth.

Investment in clean energy is much more cost effective than continued giveaways to the oil and gas industry—the Commerce Department has found that clean energy generates 17 jobs for every $1 million spent on it, compared to just 5 jobs for every $1 million we throw at an oil and gas industry that doesn't need subsidies but continues to fight for subsidies and tax breaks.

As a representative from Silicon Valley, I hear every day from the companies in and around my district about how renewable energy sources like solar, wind, fuel cells, and hydrokinetic are the wave of the future. To reach their full potential, these sources must be enabled by basic science underlying new energy technologies, by the development of advanced batteries for electricity storage and through improved energy efficiency across the board, through solid state lighting technologies, building technologies, and smarter electronic devices that know when to reduce their energy consumption.

These fields are where the jobs are—WIRED magazine asked the professional networking service LinkedIn to survey its members who have switched industries in the last 5 years, and what it found was that the growth in Renewables and the Environment was 56.8 percent, far more than any other. The Silicon Valley Leadership Group, an organization of influential high-tech CEOs, includes “greater deployment of clean energy and clean technology coupled with investments in energy efficiency” in its federal policy agenda, because they know it “will contribute to this objective [energy independence] while generating hundreds of thousands of new, sustainable jobs here in the United States.”

Sadly, this Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill does not reflect these important priorities. Instead, it provides only $1.3 billion for Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy programs, 27 percent below the current funding level and 59 percent below the President's Budget Request. Funding is slashed for many activities: solar energy, 64 percent below the President's request; fuel efficient vehicle technologies, 57 percent below the President's request; building technologies, 68 percent below the President's request; biomass and bio-refinery research and development, 56 percent below the President's request; home weatherization assistance, nearly 90 percent below the President's request; and the Advanced Research Projects Agency—Energy, 82 percent below the President's request.

The unrealistic Republican budget has left us with an allocation for this bill that is too small for our Nation's needs, and too small to offer meaningful amendments to improve these woefully inadequate funding levels. To make matters worse, Republicans have been so driven by ideology that they required the chairman to include an offset in this bill for emergency spending to deal with recovery from the storms and flooding along the Mississippi River, an offset that would gut our national investment in High Speed Rail. This requirement marks yet another way in which this Energy and Water Development bill would take our Nation backwards, away from achieving a sustainable future.

We need to do better than this bill. We need to aggressively pursue clean energy while we still have control of the game, before it is too late and our climate has changed forever, we are running out of oil, and we are running out of time. Silicon Valley is ready to lead, we just need the rest of the Nation to join us. I oppose this bill because it fails our Nation.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Chair, I would like to express my appreciation to the Chair and Ranking Member of the Energy and Water Development Subcommittee for the work they and the subcommittee staff have done in developing the FY12 Energy and Water Appropriations bill.

It is impossible to make everyone happy when the fiscal reality requires reductions, but at a time when we borrow 40 cents for every dollar we spend we need to be willing to set priorities and make difficult decisions.

The bill before us makes responsible investments in energy research and development and it funds critical waterway infrastructure improvements, but it does it in a responsible and sustainable manner. One of the lessons that we all should have learned over the past several years is that it is in nobody's interest to expand budgets at an unsustainable rate. We are now faced with the unpleasant task of trimming back the budget to remove the excesses of the past several years so that we can get back to a responsible baseline.

The Energy and Water Development Appropriations Subcommittee has always worked in a bipartisan basis to address the energy and infrastructure challenges facing our nation, and I believe that this product is better for the cooperative and problem-solving approach of both the staff and subcommittee members. It is an honor for me to be able to serve on this subcommittee, and I am pleased to be able to support this bill.

I would also like to speak directly to the Administration and NRC Chairman Gregory Jaczko. I'm deeply concerned that Chairman Jaczko has allowed politics to influence the NRC's decisions, and in my opinion, in order to restore public confidence in the NRC, the Chairman should step aside. Absent that, the President and Chairman Jaczko should take note that the bill we are passing contains funding to continue with the Yucca Mountain repository and the associated licensing activities in the NRC.

Congress is making a statement here: continuing funding of Yucca is the fiscally responsible thing to do to prevent billions of dollars in future liability and to ensure that the $15 billion already invested has not been wasted.

Again, I want to express my appreciation for Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN, Ranking Member VISCLOSKEY, and the subcommittee staff for the fine work they have done this year.

Mr. CARDOZA. Mr. Chair, I rise to strike the last word.

Mr. Chair, I rise today to object to the offset in the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Bill that rescinds all unobligated funds for the High Speed and Intercity Passenger Rail program. This is funding that has been appropriated by Congress and awarded to worthy projects. Pulling it back now would break our commitment to our state partners, and cause costly delays for these job-creating infrastructure projects.

In opposing this bait-and-switch to high speed rail funding for our states, I am in no way discounting the need for emergency disaster relief for our friends in the South and Midwest who have survived catastrophic flooding and tornadoes this spring. Additionally, I've consistently been a champion of deficit reduction, believing firmly that we need to pay for what we spend.

However, I rise today to call attention to the absolute charade the majority is engaged in of requiring cuts to vital infrastructure investments to offset the cost of emergency spending. When this body appropriated funds for the victims of Hurricane Katrina, no other community was made to suffer. When this body appropriated funds for the victims of the California wildfires, no other community was made to suffer. When this body appropriated funds for the victims of the wildfires in Arizona, no other community was made to suffer. Yet, today, on the floor of this House, we are being asked to make a choice between one suffering community and another, for no reason at all.

Mr. Chair, I've come to the floor of this House numerous times explaining the dire economic situation facing my constituents. The foreclosure rate in my district is almost double the national average; three of the top ten cities in the country with the highest foreclosure rates are in my district. My district is home to three of the top ten communities with the highest unemployment in the nation. We have some of the highest poverty rates and lowest per capita income and educational levels in the nation. As if that weren't enough, the San Joaquin Valley also has some of the worst air quality in the nation. In a nutshell, there is no area in the United States that cries out for job-creating infrastructure investments more than my district.

Yet despite this incredible need, this bill proposes to eliminate $386 million dollars of funding for two rail infrastructure projects in my district, resulting in the elimination of over 10,000 direct jobs and an untold number that could be created by private economic development around the train stations. Further, recalling this funding would hobble a project that will ease traffic congestion and help to improve the air quality of my district. And this bill, for the first time, cuts funding for a regional and national priority in order to provide emergency relief. It is simply unconscionable to subjectively and maliciously force one community to suffer due to natural disaster somewhere else. It is simply unconscionable to make disaster relief for one region of the country come at the expense of a region that has been struggling for years due to the economic downturn. It is unconscionable and because of that, I urge my Colleagues to vote no on this bill.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Chair, I submit the following letter in support of funding for the Department of Energy's Office of Science in H.R. 2354, Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act of 2012.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, DC, May 13, 2011.

Hon. RODNEY FRELINGHUYSEN,
Chairman, Energy and Water Development Appropriations Subcommittee, House Appropriations Committee, Washington, DC.

Hon. PETER VISCLOSKEY,
Ranking Member, Energy and Water Development Appropriations Subcommittee, House Appropriations Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN FRELINGHUYSEN AND RANKING MEMBER VISCLOSKEY: As you begin work on the Fiscal Year 2012 Energy and Water Appropriations bill, we write to express our strong support for robust and sustained funding for the Department of Energy (DOE) Office of Science, and the critical research, unique scientific facilities, and expert personnel that it supports.

We recognize the fragile state of the nation's economy, and support efforts to reduce the deficit and create jobs. But to do so, we must set priorities and make smart, strategic decisions about federal funding. We believe that scientific research is the foundation for the innovative solutions that will enable us to overcome many of our greatest challenges—from economic stagnation and dependence on foreign energy to curing diseases and addressing threats to our national security. That is why we believe funding for the DOE Office of Science must be a priority in fiscal year 2012.

As the nation's primary sponsor of research in the physical sciences, the DOE Office of Science has built—and maintains—a unique collection of large-scale, cutting-edge, one-of-a-kind user facilities relied upon by approximately 25,000 researchers annually. Nearly half of these users are university faculty and students. Others come from U.S. industry and many are conducting research for other key federal science agencies, such as the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the National Science Foundation (NSF). Without these critical facilities, thousands of users would be forced to move their job-creating research activities overseas, or terminate their research altogether.

The DOE Office of Science also supports a first-rate workforce of research scientists, engineers, and support personnel who work as teams on long-term solutions to some of the nation's greatest challenges and who are ready to tackle pressing problems at a moment's notice. Moreover, it plays a unique and critical role in the education of the next generation of American scientific talent, including thousands of graduate students and postdoctoral researchers at hundreds of U.S. institutions who depend upon DOE Office of Science support and facilities for their research and training.

This collection of research, facilities and scientific talent has enabled the DOE Office of Science to contribute greatly to our quality of life, our health, and our security. The DOE Office of Science has been integral to the development of several innovative technologies, including MRI machines and PET scans, new composite materials for military hardware and motor vehicles, medical and industrial isotopes, drop-in biofuel technologies, DNA sequencing technologies, more aerodynamic and fuel efficient long-haul trucks, electric vehicle battery technology, an artificial retina, newer and safer nuclear reactor designs, 3-D models of pathogens for vaccine development, tools to manufacture nanomaterials, and better sensors and detectors for biological, chemical, and radioactive materials.

By prioritizing funding for DOE scientific research—thereby supporting both the human and physical capital—Congress will preserve our capacity to innovate, reduce our dependence on foreign sources of energy, enhance our competitive edge in the global economy, improve our quality of life, ensure our national security, and create good American jobs well into the future. For these reasons, we urge you to make strong and sustained funding for the DOE Office of Science one of your highest priorities in fiscal year 2012.

Sincerely,
Judy Biggert, Rush Holt, Randy Hultgren, Anna Eshoo, Daniel Lipinski, John C. Carney, Jr., Barney Frank (MA), Michael Capuano, Russ Carnahan, John Garamendi, Grace Napolitano, Alcee Hastings, Barbara Lee, Ron Kind, Donna Christensen, Lloyd Doggett, Tim Bishop, George Miller, Tammy Baldwin, Steve Israel, Bob Filner, David Wu, Jerry McNerney, Chris Van Hollen, John Dingell, Stephen Lynch, Hansen Clarke, Zoe Lofgren, Jason Altmire, Sander Levin, Laura Richardson, Marcia Fudge, Henry Waxman, Robert Dold, Doc Hastings, Theodore Deutch, David Price, Jared Polis, Louise McIntosh Slaughter, Roscoe Bartlett, Silvestre Reyes, Danny Davis, Paul Tonko, John Yarmuth, Mike Quigley, John J. Duncan, Jr. (TN), Judy Chu.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Mr. Chair, the Republican Energy and Water Appropriations Act would take American energy policy back to the 19th century. It slashes funding for solar, advanced vehicles, building efficiency, biomass, home weatherization, advanced energy research, and loan guarantees for renewable energy. Incredibly, as gas prices remain high the Republicans gut funding for fuel efficient automobiles. These cuts would be devastating for domestic manufacturers of renewable energy and energy efficiency technology, as well as our domestic auto industry. Consider the magnitude of these cuts:

$97 million cut in solar funding, helping Chinese solar manufacturers at the expense of American producers;

$46 million cut in fuel efficient vehicles, hurting consumers at the pump while putting

American auto producers at a competitive disadvantage;

$61 million cut in building efficiency, which will expose consumers to rising electricity prices;

$33 million cut in biomass research, crippling a critical domestic industry which supports the timber industry and diversifies our electric generation portfolio;

$141 million cut in home weatherization funding, an 81 percent cut in a program which saves consumers money by reducing their electric bills;

$80 million cut for Advanced Research Projects Agency—Energy (ARPA-E), a 44 percent cut in critical clean energy research;

$1 billion cut in High Speed Rail money, punishing commuters in congested regions like the Washington-Boston corridor;

$43 million cut in science research, hurting American competitiveness.

In addition to attacking domestic manufacturing, clean energy production, and efficiency programs, the Republicans have inserted policy riders to advance a radical anti-environmental agenda at the expense of Americans' public health. Their rider would block the Army Corps of Engineers and Environmental Protection Agency from implementing the Clean Water Act in accordance with guidance from those agencies. Following a decade of regulatory uncertainty following a Supreme Court decision, the Obama administration issued guidance to help landowners comply with the Clean Water Act. This guidance replaced a confusing patchwork of lower level court decisions and produced the regulatory certainty that Republicans claim to support. This rider demonstrates that the Republicans are not actually interested in regulatory "certainty;" they are simply opposed to any and all environmental and public health regulations. Since they know they can't win a public debate about these public health standards, they are trying to sneak in a rider to an appropriations bill to block the regulations.

American entrepreneurs developed the solar panel and more sophisticated wind turbines, yet China and Germany are far ahead of American wind and solar production. The Obama administration requested funding increases for renewable energy so America can compete and produce clean energy generation domestically, but the Republican budget would actually slash clean energy funding.

Just as the American auto industry is recovering as a result of the Obama Administration's intervention, this Republican appropriations bill would gut advanced vehicle and vehicle efficiency funding. We need to produce more efficient vehicles and advanced hybrid vehicles here in America. The American auto industry declined in the 1970s and 1980s as foreign competitors produced more efficient, technologically advanced vehicles. We cannot afford to give up market share again by surrendering to foreign auto producers.

This Republican appropriations bill is not an isolated attack on American clean energy production and industrial competitiveness. The same Republicans have already passed legislation in the House—thankfully not the Senate—to repeal the Clean Air Act and block vehicle efficiency standards in the future. Never in the history of American politics has one of our great political parties been so blind to opportunities of the future and determined to repeat failures of the past.

We have a real opportunity to boost American manufacturing of clean energy and advanced vehicles. Just as a result of the Recovery Act we went from producing 2 percent to 40 percent of advanced batteries. We cannot allow this Republican appropriations bill to reverse that progress and cripple American industrial competitiveness.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Chair, I am opposed to the Energy and Water Appropriations bill for several reasons. One of these reasons is that while this bill increases funding for the Army Corps of Engineers over the President's request, it is not enough. The Army Corps completes critical flood control projects and also, through dredging at our port, fuels a major economic engine in Harris County, Texas and has been underfunded for years.

The Port of Houston is the largest foreign tonnage port and the largest petrochemical port in the country. In fact, it moves the second largest amount of cargo in the country, as 8.5 percent of our nation's cargo moves through the Port of Houston. The commerce that occurs at our port is critical to our nation's energy and chemical sectors and to our country's ability to trade and move goods throughout our country. It is a port of national significance, but has not received the attention that is necessary to answer the challenges we face in the near future. Despite the national importance of our port, it is facing a dredging crisis.

Currently, the Houston Ship Channel is dredged to a depth of 43 feet, but it should be as deep as 45 feet. The Panama Canal is expanding and when it is completed, the Port of Houston should be able to accept ships that take full advantage of the larger Panama Canal, and for this, they would need a depth of 50 feet.

However, under both the President's plan and the Republicans' plan, dredging at the Port of Houston will be left behind. For instance, under the President's budget, dredging at the Port is funded at about $23 million, that is $60 million lower than the amount necessary to just get the port to a depth of 45 feet, let alone 50 feet, which would be millions more.

As we confront the dual challenges of adopting policies that create jobs and reduce the debt, funding for dredging projects is an item that, while costly, will have more of a positive impact on our economy than a negative impact on our deficit. The Texas Transportation Institute performed a study and determined that a direct economic impact of the loss of 1 foot of draft is $373 million. The majority of this impact is lost business opportunities due to light loading of non-containerized vessels. As the dredging crisis at the port continues to worsen, this opportunity cost will quickly accelerate.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chair, today I rise in opposition to the H.R. 2354, the Fiscal Year 2012 Energy & Water Development Appropriations Bill. In particular, I oppose the provisions of this legislation that would rescind all remaining unobligated high-speed rail American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds. The rescission would eliminate rail funding for the high-speed Chicago to Detroit line, eliminate thousands of jobs, and provide fewer travel options for my constituents.

Well over $492 million is cut from three projects, which are critical components of this high speed rail line. Even worse, these cuts would eliminate more than 13,000 jobs in a community where good paying jobs are few and far between.

High speed rail would give my constituents a viable and green commuting option in the Midwest. Having the ability to travel from Detroit to Chicago with the speed of a plane flight would open the doors to new business investments in the Metro Detroit area and connect major markets in the Midwest. It would be a win-win for consumers and business.

Mr. Chair, it is appalling that this body seems to lack the courage to strive for greatness for America.

Franklin Coolidge had that courage. He worked with Congress to create the Hoover Dam.

Dwight Eisenhower had that courage. He worked with Congress to create the National Highway System.

John Kennedy had that courage. He and Congress sent our country to the moon.

Where is this body's courage? Where is the belief that America can still do and build great things? Do we still have the desire to be the best, or will we let China lead the way on when it comes to manufacturing and high speed rail in the 21st Century?

I for one believe America can, and must, be a leader when it comes to investing in our country's economic future. I urge my colleagues to reject this defeatist bill and embrace a 21st century transit system.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Chair, pursuant to the terms for debate on H.R. 2354, the Energy & Water Development Appropriations bill; I submit the following.

2010 FORTUNE 100

source: http://money.cnn.com/magazines/fortune/fortune500/2010/full\_list/

[Note: Revenue figures for all companies include consolidated subsidiaries and exclude excise taxes.]

Rank	Company	Revenues ($ millions)	Profits ($ millions)	Industry descriptor
2	Exxon Mobil	284,650.00	19,280.00	Energy development and production
3	Chevron	163,527.00	10,483.00	Energy development and production
4	General Electric	156,779.00	11,025.00	High-value durable goods manufacturing
8	Ford Motor	118,308.00	2,717.00	High-value durable goods manufacturing
10	Hewlett-Packard	114,552.00	7,660.00	IT equipment development and production
15	General Motors	104,589.00	N.A.	High-value durable goods manufacturing
20	International Business Machines	95,758.00	13,425.00	IT equipment development and production
22	Procter & Gamble	79,697.00	13,436.00	Household product manufacturing
28	Boeing	68,281.00	1,312.00	Defense/Aerospace
33	Johnson & Johnson	61,897.00	12,266.00	Pharmaceutical development and production
37	United Technologies	52,920.00	3,829.00	Defense/Aerospace
40	Pfizer	50,009.00	8,635.00	Pharmaceutical development and production
44	Lockheed Martin	45,189.00	3,024.00	Defense/Aerospace
46	Dow Chemical	44,945.00	648	Chemical development and production
61	Northrop Grumman	35,291.00	1,686.00	Defense/Aerospace
62	Intel	35,127.00	4,369.00	Semiconductor development and production
66	Caterpillar	32,396.00	895	High-value durable goods manufacturing
74	Honeywell International	30,908.00	2,153.00	Defense/Aerospace
75	Abbott Laboratories	30,764.70	5,745.80	Pharmaceutical development and production
85	Merck	27,428.30	12,901.30	Pharmaceutical development and production
86	DuPont	27,328.00	1,755.00	Chemical development and production
95	Raytheon	24,881.00	1,935.00	Defense/Aerospace

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Chair, I am concerned about the devastating impact that the underlying legislation will have on the clean energy economy. H.R. 2354 is a disappointment to those working to advance the clean energy economy because it slashes investments—by 40 percent from the President's request—in the new clean energy jobs of the future, ranging from solar to biomass to wind, and new technologies for more energy efficient cars and buildings.

Today, more than ever, we need investments in clean energy research, innovation, and manufacturing—investments which can grow new industries, create American jobs, reduce U.S. oil dependence, and increase our national security. H.R. 2354 abandons efforts for a new American energy economy that would lower electricity prices for families, reduce our reliance on foreign energy, and increase energy independence.

While I understand the fiscal situation we are in, H.R. 2354 cuts programs that can be targeted to actually grow our economy. The bill slashes Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy, EERE, by 27 percent, cuts the Advanced Research Projects Agency—Energy, ARPA-E, by 44 percent, cuts Weatherization Assistance Grants and associated training programs by 81 percent, all the while increasing funding for fossil fuel research and development. I believe that this demonstrates that the priorities of H.R. 2354 are aligned with outdated 20th century energy policies that will not recharge our new economy. A 21st century Energy and Water Appropriations Act should include measures to increase funding for renewable energy and clean technology and these increases should be offset by dollars from fossil energy research and development.

To help strengthen our economy and create new jobs, we must rebuild America. In a report released this week by the Brookings Institution entitled "Sizing the Clean Energy Economy: A National and Regional Green Jobs Assessment," it is reported that 2.7 million Americans are now employed in the clean technology economy. The report found that in the State of Washington, there are 83,676 clean energy jobs, with an annual wage of $46,457. The report showed that median wages for clean-economy workers are about 13 percent higher than median U.S. wages. The clean technology economy has created export intensive jobs; on average, twice as much value is exported from clean tech jobs than the national average. The potential for future job creation in the clean energy economy is endless and targeted investments in this new economy make sense.

As the House of Representatives considers amendments to H.R. 2354, I urge my colleagues to consider the opportunities for economic growth and job creation embodied in the clean energy economy and oppose the misguided priorities in this bill.

Mr. WITTMAN. Mr. Chair, I would like to address some concerns from my constituents about the Army Corps of Engineers permitting process.

As I travel around Virginia's First District, I hear from many constituents about their frustration with policies and regulations from Washington, D.C. Unfortunately, large federal government bureaucracies can get out of control and fail to protect the citizens and taxpayers.

The Army Corps of Engineers is an important agency in coastal Virginia. They have many responsibilities to promote navigation, commerce and environmental restoration. However, there are some occasions where I believe the multiple levels of bureaucracy and lack of accountability of decision makers can lead to situations that are unfair to Americans.

I've worked on the behalf of one of my constituents, a small marina owner who believes he was harmed due to a permitting mistake by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. In this case a permitting decision ultimately cost this small business a significant amount of money.

I raise these issues to highlight the impact Agency action can have on main street businesses. I raise these issues to suggest the need for additional accountability to ensure that Army Corps permitting decisions are made appropriately and that the Corps works hand in hand with small businesses to mitigate financial harm.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Chair, I strongly oppose H.R. 2354, which underfunds important clean energy priorities at a cost to the American public's health and welfare. Fiscal discipline is an important goal, and I support efforts to think critically about how to put the nation on a sound fiscal path. However this bill fails to accomplish that. This appropriations bill cuts funding for energy efficiency and renewable energy development programs that help American homeowners save money on their utility bills. At the same time, the bill increases funding for fossil fuel technologies, which have no need of tax incentives or financial support, and which increase the level of harmful air and water pollution.

Energy efficiency and renewable energy programs offer the best chance that our nation has to become more energy independent and reduce climate-change inducing pollutants. Yet this bill cuts total funding for the Department of Energy's Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy by 27 percent and cuts Advanced Research Projects Agency—Energy by 44 percent compared to FY11. These clean energy programs have helped drive strong growth in solar and wind generation over the past decade, while reducing the costs of these technologies significantly. ARPA-E's support for path-breaking advanced technologies could hold the key to our energy future. In the long run, these cuts will mean less innovation, dirtier energy, and fewer clean energy jobs. This is absolutely the wrong way to drive American leadership and energy independence.

Two programs that have been improving our energy security while helping households to keep down their utilities bills are the Weatherization Assistance Program, WAP, and the State Energy Program, SEP. These programs target residential buildings, reducing the burden on low-income families by an average of 35 percent of utility bills and supporting local economies. The State Energy Program encourages innovative technologies and leverages Federal funds; since 2006, the State of Oregon has leveraged approximately $27 in non-federal funds for every $1 of SEP funds spent. These programs have demonstrated success, yet H.R. 2354 severely cuts funding. In Oregon alone, these cuts would mean that an estimated 374 families would no longer be eligible for weatherization assistance. For these reasons, I support the amendment offered by Representatives TONKO and BASS that would increase WAP and SEP funding by $141.3 million and $25 million, respectively.

In addition to handicapping energy innovation, the bill also includes a very damaging policy rider that would undermine the Clean Water Act. This rider would prevent the Army Corps of Engineers from restoring Clean Water Act protections to many rivers, streams and wetlands that supply drinking water and prevent flooding. Over 100 million Americans get their drinking water from public supplies provided in whole or in part from waters that are at risk of losing Clean Water Act safeguards. The recent flood events around the country have demonstrated some of the problems with wetlands losses, and these would be made even worse by blocking the Army Corps' ability to protect these waters.

Amendments passed on the Floor during debate mostly made this bad bill even worse. For example, I voted against an amendment by Rep. BURGESS that would prevent important new efficiency standards for light bulbs from going into effect. These standards, passed as part of the 2007 Energy Independence and Security Act, are supported by industry and consumer groups as well as efficiency advocates. They would mean $100 in savings for the average American family per year. I'm disappointed in the passage of this amendment to prevent DOE from enforcing these standards.

Now is the time to be putting America on track toward a clean energy future, and working to reduce the damage to our water and air quality that harm public health. I support policies to create a green energy economy, to reduce dependence on foreign oil, to support advanced technologies and cost-saving energy-efficient systems for homes and businesses, and to protect the health and well-being of the nation's health and environment. Unfortunately, this appropriations bill is detrimental to all of those goals.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chair, I rise in strident opposition to H.R. 2354, the Energy and Water Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2012. This unfortunate bill is just another in a long line of Republican attempts to sabotage policies put in place to protect the health and safety of Americans, as well as to improve the environment while at the same time fostering economic recovery. I categorically reject the Republicans' cynical and shortsighted approach to governing and urge my colleagues to follow suit by opposing this bill.

I am not without justification in my criticism of H.R. 2354. To be clear, it contains a rider to block the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) ability to clarify the scope of the Clean Water Act, landmark legislation that I helped write and pass into law. The bill also blocks EPA's authority to oversee mountaintop removal coal mining, effectively allowing mountains to be carved away at corporate leisure. Finally, the bill would remove EPA's authority to make storm water programs more effective, which strikes me as curious given my Republicans' bent on making government leaner, meaner, and more effective. On a broader note, H.R. 2354 constitutes an attack on the integrity of the Clean Water Act, which has helped restore the chemical, physical, and biological integrity of the Nation's waters. Just as this bill would allow coal companies to carve away mountains, so too would it carve away EPA's precious and necessary authorities under the Clean Water Act.

H.R. 2354's assault on Americans and their environment extends beyond allowing the desecration of the beautiful waters they so treasure. The bill also curtails programs meant to advance economic recovery in a manner more sustainable for the environment. While I commend my colleagues on the House Appropriations Energy and Water Subcommittee for dedicating funding to repair the damage caused by the recent storms and floods, I do not agree with taking funding from critical infrastructure projects that offer enormous economic impacts in a myriad of communities across this country. If my colleagues recognize the storms and floods as emergency events, then they should have had the fortitude to allocate emergency funding to these repairs outside of the normal appropriations process.

By nature high-speed rail funding are immediate economic generators. Under H.R. 2354, the 15th District is slated to lose more than $495 million in funding awarded to four highspeed rail projects in our district. The projects that would be derailed are the development of new train stations in Ann Arbor and Dearborn, the joint Midwest Regional Rail passenger rail equipment purchase, and the rehabilitation and improvement of track between Kalamazoo and Dearborn. This rescission will result in the loss of as many as 13,008 jobs.

And as if cutting funds for mass transit were not enough, H.R. 2354 also seeks to eviscerate the Advanced Technology Vehicle Manufacturing loan program, which helps automakers and suppliers produce more fuel efficient vehicles and decrease U.S. dependence on foreign oil. This is the height of folly and quite frankly indefensible.

Mr. Chair, for all of these reasons and more, I oppose H.R. 2354 and urge my colleagues to do so as well. Their children and grandchildren will thank them if they do.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Chair, I rise in opposition to H.R. 2354, the Fiscal Year 2011 Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act.

The bill slashes funding for clean energy efficiency and research programs. It also makes steep cuts to flood control and environmental cleanup programs. In short, the legislation fails to protect our communities and it jeopardizes American innovation and job creation.

The last place to cut is in the area of investments in clean energy technologies. In my Silicon Valley District, innovation is the coin of the realm. I've seen dozens of burgeoning companies who are at the cutting edge of clean energy technology. Our nation has the capacity to lead the world in clean energy technology, and there are domestic industries poised for economic explosion if we help, not hurt them.

According to the Brookings Institution, the nation's clean energy economy, defined as goods and services with an environmental benefit, employs about 2.7 million people, more than twice the size of the fossil-fuel industry.

Investments today will lay the foundation for our future.

I oppose H.R. 2354 and urge my colleagues to do the same because hobbling our future is neither smart fiscally or policy-wise.

Ms. HIRONO. Mr. Chair, I rise today in strong opposition to the Fiscal Year 2012 Energy and Water Appropriations bill.

Last week, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that only 18,000 jobs were created in June and more than 14 million people are still looking for work—many for over six months.

As members of Congress, our focus must be on pursuing policies that will rebuild our economy by providing these Americans with opportunities to work hard and succeed—the very idea that underpins the middle class.

This legislation is a missed opportunity to respond to the jobs challenge in a serious way. Instead of investing in our infrastructure and supporting innovative new job-creating industries in the renewable energy sector, this bill under-invests in both these areas.

For example, this bill reduces funding for energy efficiency and renewable energy programs by $491 million—or 27 percent below the already abysmal FY2011 funding levels and 59 percent less than what President Obama requested.

The bill also cuts funding for the Department of Energy's Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy (ARPA-E) by $88 million, which is 44 percent below current levels and 81 percent less than requested. ARPA-E is modeled after the successful Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) which has been a catalyst in technological innovation since its creation in 1958.

Together, these programs fund crucial research and development in a variety of renewable technologies with the goals of ending our national dependence on fossil fuels, more efficiently powering our homes and businesses, and lessening the cost of energy for families.

These types of investments are incredibly important in my home state of Hawaii. We are the most oil dependent state in the nation—we must import 90 percent of the oil products that fuel our cars, homes, and businesses. So when the world markets that set the price of oil gyrates—as it has in recent months—our economic growth and quality of life are significantly impacted.

So renewable energy isn't just a feel-good idea—it's an economic and national security imperative both for Hawaii and our nation's future. Cutting funds that provide incentives for the private sector to continue innovating and growing jobs in this sector may seem penny-wise; but it is most certainly pound-foolish.

I am also disappointed that this bill fails to make a real dent in our nation's water infrastructure needs. The American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) has given our nation's overall infrastructure a grade of "D." ASCE also estimates that Hawaii needs $1.97 billion to meet our water infrastructure needs. While I understand the need to carefully prioritize how we spend precious federal dollars, I believe that infrastructure should be at the top of that priority list. Infrastructure investments create jobs, strengthen our communities, and improve public health.

These are just two areas where this legislation fails to improve our economy, help rebuild the middle class, or lay the groundwork for our future prosperity. As a whole this bill is a disappointment, and I strongly oppose its passage.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Chair, I rise to express my strong disappointment with the FY2012 Energy and Water Appropriations bill. As our Nation struggles to recover from the economic recession that has kept unemployment above 10 percent in my home State of Rhode Island, one message I hear over and over again from constituents and economists is the need to invest in new industries, including manufacturing, while addressing our reliance on foreign and dirty sources of energy. During this time of economic uncertainty, we have an opportunity to create new industry while working to build up and stabilize clean, domestic sources of energy.

Unfortunately, this effort will be slowed because of the draconian cuts in this bill, including a 27 percent cut to energy efficiency and renewable energy research programs, which means cuts to solar energy, fuel efficiency investments, and research to improve energy efficiency in our buildings, which account for 40 percent of all U.S. energy use.

Next week, I am holding a roundtable to hear from one of Rhode Island's leading renewable energy companies, Alteris, as well as students and faculty from the University of Rhode Island's Energy Center, because I want my State and our Nation to be capitalizing on every opportunity to invest in the energy jobs of the future. Our budget savings should come by ending the subsidies for big oil companies that don't need them, not by harming up-and-coming businesses like Alteris that can create sustainable job growth.

I am also particularly concerned with cuts to weatherization programs, which have helped to reduce energy bills by one-third for low-income families in Rhode Island. Further, this bill rescinds critical funding to modernize and build our Nation's high speed rail system, including investment in the Northeast Corridor and Rhode Island. Construction of high speed rail will not only create jobs immediately, but the expansion of our infrastructure will create new opportunities for growth in our communities across the region.

Another disappointing provision in this bill is the $123 million cut to the National Nuclear Security Administration's, NNSA's, contribution to our naval reactors work. This funding decrease jeopardizes what the Navy has called "the nation's only day-to-day assured nuclear response capability," our ballistic missile submarines. Defense strategist Loren Thompson recently noted the vital need for our ballistic submarine force stating, "Today, about half of the warheads in the nuclear arsenal are carried on 14 Ohio-class submarines that are nearly impossible to find much less target. . . . the reason each sub needs to be so fearsome is that deterrence depends on what's left after an enemy attacks, since the threat of retaliation is what deters the attack in the first place."

These subs are already at the end of their lifespan, but due to refueling and modernization efforts, they will stay in the fleet for another decade. This sounds like a long time until you consider that it takes nearly two decades to design, build, and test a successor ship through the SSBN(X) Ohio replacement program. Design work for the SSBN(X) is finishing this October, leading to an incredibly tight schedule which according to CRS could result in a smaller force than is necessary to continue our nuclear deterrent. We need this ship to come in on time and on budget for the sake of global nuclear security, and the cuts to naval reactors in this bill directly threaten our future national security.

Mr. Chair, our Nation is facing too many challenges at home and abroad to afford such cuts to critical investments in our energy future and important nuclear deterrent programs, while at the same time increasing funding for the Fossil Energy Research and Development program. I urge my colleagues to oppose this bill and reinvest in those programs that look to our future, rather than relying on outdated technologies of our past.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Chair, today's FY 2012 Energy and Water Appropriations bill continues the majority's record of missed opportunities and misguided priorities when it comes to our Federal budget.

First and foremost, thoughtful Americans from across the political spectrum agree that we need to end our current dependence on foreign oil and replace it with affordable, reliable, homegrown clean energy. Yet this bill slashes funding for energy efficiency and renewable energy research programs by 40 percent below President Obama's request—and it decimates the game-changing work being done by the Advanced Research Projects Agency—Energy (ARPA-E) with a proposed 80 percent cut below the President's recommended level.

The health of the Chesapeake Bay Watershed and the rest of our Nation's waterways often rely on the Army Corps of Engineers. But today's legislation actually blocks the Corps from clarifying which waterways are covered by Clean Water Act protections.

Finally, this bill shortchanges nuclear non-proliferation and environmental cleanup efforts, reducing our ability to secure nuclear materials around the world and mitigate the impact of more than a half century's worth of national security-related nuclear activity here at home.

I urge a no vote.

Mr. MICHAUD. Mr. Chair, I rise today in opposition of the McClintock amendment to H.R. 2354, the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act of 2012.

This amendment would eliminate regional economic development commissions, and I believe that it comes at exactly the wrong time for thousands of communities throughout the United States.

Regional development commissions have a successful track record of spurring much needed investment into the economic development of distressed communities. They should be preserved and expanded, not eliminated.

One of these commissions directly contributes to the economy in my home State of Maine. The Northern Border Regional Commission, NBRC, is charged with investing in the economic development of the most distressed areas of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and northern New York.

By working directly with each state and existing economic development districts, the NBRC is in a unique position to address our region's shared challenges and obstacles in a coordinated way that cuts across state lines.

Since fiscal year 2010, the NBRC has been funded at $1.5 million. Despite these limited resources, it has already awarded $1.3 million to meaningful projects throughout the region.

For example, last September, the NBRC made its first investments in Maine, including an expansion of the Port of Eastport, which is part of a project that will result in the retention of 18 jobs and the creation of 26 new ones.

The NBRC is now preparing to accept applications for a second round of projects, which will spur additional investment and job creation through our region.

If Congress eliminates funding for the NBRC, it cannot build on the progress that has already been made. The NBRC and other commissions like it would not be able to continue their mission of creating and protecting job opportunities in some of the most economically disadvantaged parts of our country.

Mr. Chair, during tough economic times it is unacceptable to shut down these commissions, which share a common mission of partnering with states and local communities to create jobs and further economic development.

I urge my colleagues to reject the McClintock amendment.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chair, I rise in opposition to the Fiscal Year 2012 Energy and Water Appropriations bill. At a time when our economy is already fragile, the Majority appears intent on reducing Federal funding for the very programs that drive technological innovation, economic growth, and job creation.

Scientific research lies at the very heart of the national innovation system that keeps us competitive, enhances our quality of life, fuels our economy, and improves our national security. Investments in our Federal science agencies and our national innovation infrastructure are not big government spending programs that we cannot afford. They are minimum down-payments on our country's national security, public health, and economic vitality that we cannot afford to postpone.

Yet, this bill contains enormous cuts to several programs at the Department of Energy that are critical for supporting innovation and increasing American economic competitiveness.

This bill slashes nearly $43 million in funding from the Department of Energy's (DOE) Office of Science compared to Fiscal Year 2011. The Office of Science is the Nation's primary sponsor of research in the physical sciences and has been integral to the development of dozens of innovative technologies. Some have become the underpinnings of modern scientific disciplines; some have revolutionized medicine; some have advanced our national energy security; some have made our troops safer. That is the nature and the power of scientific research—the ultimate outcomes cannot necessarily be known in advance, but investments in basic discovery can yield enormous dividends. I offered an amendment to restore funding to the DOE Office of Science so that it could maintain current operations. Unfortunately, my amendment was defeated.

This bill provided $100 million for the Department of Energy's Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy (ARPA-E). ARPA-E supports high-risk, high-reward research on energy technologies. Funding for ARPA-E directly contributes to the creation of new technologies, new industries, and new jobs. Yet, the Majority intended to slash funding for this valuable program by an astonishing 81 percent relative to the President's request.

Fortunately, the House passed an amendment offered by my colleague Mr. SCHIFF that will restore funding for ARPA-E to Fiscal Year 2011 levels. I was pleased to join my colleagues in voting for this important amendment.

This legislation contains $1.3 billion for energy efficiency and renewable energy programs, a remarkable 59 percent less than President Obama's request. This is the worst possible moment to slash funding for sustainable energy technologies. The DOE's Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy supports research and development of sustainable energy technologies that strengthen the economy and protect the environment. Research in sustainable and efficient energy technologies increases our energy security, reduces our dependence on foreign oil, creates jobs, and increases our economic competitiveness. Yet the Majority made devastating cuts to this valuable program.

Remarkably, the Majority was not satisfied with these cuts to energy efficiency programs. The House adopted by voice vote an amendment that would bar the Department of Energy from using funds to enforce energy efficiency standards for light bulbs enacted by the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007. Yet, just days before, the House rejected an identical measure. This efficiency standard, enacted in a bipartisan bill signed into law by President Bush, simply requires that new light bulbs use 25 to 30 percent less energy than traditional incandescent light bulbs. No light bulbs are banned. No consumers will be forced to use one type of light bulb over another type.

Since Congress acted 4 years ago, lighting companies have invested significant capital and resources into research, development, and new technologies—exactly the kind of investments that our economy desperately needs. So again, the Majority has voted to thwart technological progress and cost America jobs and money.

While I do not object to the committee's decision to add disaster relief funding for projects resulting from tornadoes, storms, and floods across the Midwest and Southeast, I oppose strongly the decision to rescind $1 billion in unobligated funding for high-speed rail projects. In May, the U.S. Department of Transportation awarded Amtrak $450 million in funding to upgrade its rail infrastructure to support more frequent and faster high-speed rail service, and to improve reliability of current service between New York and Washington. Now this funding will be unavailable. This will result in a loss of jobs and infrastructure in my Central New Jersey district—one of the busiest segments of the Northeast Corridor and where the densest concentration of Acela Express high-speed rail operations occurs. This provision amounts to a step backward in the development of the nation's intercity rail infrastructure.

In May, the U.S. Department of Transportation awarded Amtrak $450 million in funding to upgrade its rail infrastructure to support more frequent and faster high-speed rail service, and to improve reliability of current service between New York and Washington. Specifically, this award would upgrade electrical power, signal systems, track and overhead catenary wires in my Central New Jersey district—one of the busiest segments of the Northeast Corridor (NEC) and where the densest concentration of Acela Express high-speed rail operations occurs. This work is critical to Amtrak's plan to double high-speed Acela service between New York and Washington by 2022.

Budgets reflect, in dollars and cents, our priorities as a nation. We must provide Federal support for programs that encourage scientific research and support economic development. At a time when our economy is already fragile, abandoning scientific research would cause the U.S. to lose even more high-tech jobs to our foreign competitors. That is not the way to compete in the future, especially when the economy is in a fragile recovery. For all of these reasons, I am voting against this bill.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. All time for general debate has expired.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio) having assumed the chair, Mr. POE of Texas, Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2354) making appropriations for energy and water development and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the very notion of freedom of expression was recently on trial in the Netherlands. The popular Dutch lawmaker Geert Wilders was charged with discrimination and incitement of hatred after he made a movie depicting Islamic clerics who incite violence in the name of religion. He was prosecuted not for his actions, but for his words. That is a scary thought.

There was only one proper resolution here, and, thankfully, the court did the right thing. Wilders was acquitted of all charges. The court ruled that his statements might be offensive to Muslims, but fell within the bounds of political free debate.

Freedom of speech is a God-given right to which every person and every nation is entitled. It is no coincidence that our country's Founding Fathers deemed it so important they listed it first in the Bill of Rights. A country that refuses one's freedom of speech is doomed to grow stagnant. How can it develop as a society when it stifles or tries to punish opinion? As Wilders himself said, "Every public debate holds the prospect of enlightenment." He certainly is correct.

And that's just the way it is.

THE TRUTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 5, 2011, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMERT) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Speaker, it is always an honor and a privilege to be here speaking on the House floor. It is interesting these days being a part of Congress. The media is given unfettered access to so much because we believe that people should be entitled to the truth. In fact, many libraries around the country have the line "the truth shall set you free." Of course, most people don't know where that came from. It was Jesus talking about him being the truth, and he was the truth. A lot of libraries that put that up don't realize that's what it is talking about. And I imagine there are a lot of reporters who have used that same line, and they don't know where that came from.

But what gets troubling is when reporters have access to complete transcripts, video, and they intentionally set out to deceive the public. It seems to happen a great deal. I personally think it is one of the reasons that Fox News has just taken off so strongly, because people can see that the other cable news networks, so many of them at least, have such a slant. They don't give you the whole truth. There is nothing fair or balanced about some of the presentations. I know personally, having been on a CNN show where they cut your mike off for 4½ minutes, trash-mouth you for awhile, turn your microphone on, and then refuse to acknowledge that there is even the possibility that what you're saying is true when you know, indeed, it is true.

But this happened just here in the last week. I was on a Fox Business show, and we were talking about the money being spent by this White House and also comparing that to the Bush White House, and I had the data, absolute factual data that, for example, in the Bush White House, there were 447 total staff, and in the Obama staff there are 454 total White House staff.

□ 1330

You wouldn't think seven additional people would be that big of a deal except that nearly a fourth of the Bush White House staff—102 people, in fact—made under $40,000; whereas, in the Obama White House, there is no paid staff member who gets less than $40,000. So you see dramatically the difference. I was pointing out that perhaps, in the Obama White House, because of all the greatness of this White House as compared to prior White House staffs, that you deserve to be paid more because you're associated with so much more greatness in this White House.

It's interesting to see over the last 6½ years I've been in Congress that there are an awful lot of people in the mainstream media, especially in Washington, who do not understand sarcasm, who do not understand facetiousness. So, at times, it's funny to say things sarcastically, knowing that they won't get it.

But in any event, we also commented on the fact that there were all these—I think 34—czars in the Obama White House, and they're getting paid tremendous amounts of money. So Fox News had published an article, and they pointed these things out. They were talking about the interview, and they got all of the quotes accurate.

As they pointed out, it said: "The White House released its annual salary report to Congress, and like anything in Washington, it depends on who you ask if they went up too much or are an adequate reflection of the tough economic times and have moved down."

This is the writing of Kimberly Schwandt with Fox News.

Ms. Schwandt goes on to say: "The salaries, which can be seen here, show that about a third of the employees make more than $100,000 per year and the lowest earn $41,000, except for three people who are working for no compensation, or zero annual salary; 21 employees made the maximum of $172,000.

"The White House backs the figures, saying that salaries went down an average of $150 per person and that total salary spending decreased, in part, due to the total number of staffers going down as well."

Then a quote from spokesman Eric Schultz from the White House: "President Obama is deeply committed to continuing to reduce costs in government. However, some critics say they are spending too much, like Representative Louie Gohmert, Republican of Texas."

He quoted me accurately as saying: "In the White House, in looking at it, this administration's got over 450 employees. Now, under the Bush administration, there were over 100. About a fourth of the employees made less than $40,000."

"Fox News fact-checked, and the Congressman's statements do pan out, with 102 of the 447 employees on the 2008 list having salaries of less than $40,000."

Another quote from me. I said: "I guess, you know, there's so much greatness when you associate with this White House you deserve to be paid more. I don't know," he said.

"Gohmert added another sarcastic jab, 'Don't forget the 34—the 34 czars that are out there dictating policy, and let's face it. When you're a dictator, you need to be paid more.'"

Then it points out: "As the economy faltered, President Obama enacted a pay freeze earlier in his administration for top wage-earners. Wednesday, at a Twitter town hall, he referenced the freeze."

Of course, as we've learned from this White House and as we know from the House rules, the President never lies or misrepresents, but certainly there are many facts that are just wrong. For example, when the President ordered our troops to bomb Libya and be involved in what he called a "kinetic attack" in Libya, which was clearly military action, he said we would be there for days, not weeks or months. It has turned out it's months and maybe years unless Congress gets the Senate to go along with one of the things we passed here in the House, to cut off the spending in a country where this President is fighting for and with a group that may turn out to be worse than the bloodthirsty, mean-spirited Qadhafi has been.

In any event, there was an article written in The Hill newspaper. Again, this was fact-checked by Fox News, but it's just interesting. You hear about it all the time, the slant of the mainstream media. It's interesting because

The Hill has reporters like Molly Hooper. I've never had her be anything but completely honest and truthful. She has always, that I'm aware of, been fair to me and fair in her reporting that I've seen; but this one is a person named Judy Kurtz, who just, I have to say, was dishonest. This is the story that Judy Kurtz wrote this week, July 6, in The Hill.

She quoted me as saying: "'I guess there's just so much greatness when you're associated with this White House that you deserve to be paid more,' Representative Louie Gohmert said. 'Let's face it. When you're a dictator, you need to be paid more.'"

That gave the impression to people who read the article and who had picked up on it that I was saying President Obama was a dictator. In this setting, that is not what I said. The interesting point is just how clearly deceptive and dishonest Judy Kurtz was. She took two quotes. She had access to the whole video, to the whole transcript, and chose to put them together and give the wrong impression. When you do look at the full quote in context, we were talking about the czars, that there is so much greatness when you're associated with this White House that you deserve to be paid more, but then "don't forget the 34—the 34 czars that are out there dictating policy, and let's face it. When you're a dictator, you need to be paid more."

So it is important to note there are some reporters you can trust even within the same newspaper, and there are some who can be dishonest.

During my days as a trial judge of major civil litigation and felonies, including through death penalty cases, the rule of evidence was always—and is—that credibility is always an issue. It's always an issue. Everyone should understand that, especially reporters, who are so important to this country's being different from any other country in the world.

So it's hoped that more and more reporters will get back to deserving their protected status that they have under the Constitution and have a little more responsibility than Judy Kurtz did. I did appreciate Ms. Kurtz' noting that I was being sarcastic to be sure that people like her didn't miss it. I didn't just leave it to chance. I pointed out verbally that I was being sarcastic, so I'm glad she got that part of the quote anyway.

□ 1340

But nonetheless, I've heard from people that were shocked that I called President Obama a dictator. Now they know the context.

But there are some important things going on; and with the massive overspending we're getting, it's important to understand who is spending money where they shouldn't. We have just voted out the Defense appropriation bill today. There were a number of amendments that were voted on that would defund the action this President has committed us to in Libya. This President has repeatedly said that he doesn't believe he violated the War Powers Act and doesn't believe he needed to comply. But he certainly didn't comply with the War Powers Act. He certainly didn't get approval of Congress before he took such action.

Most Presidents, knowing that Congress constitutionally has the power of the purse, have come to Congress, and the President has made his case to Congress as to why we should be involved in a theater of operation that the President wanted to commit us to. Not this President, of course. This President heard from the Arab League; he heard from apparently some in NATO and the U.N., and decided that they were more important than a consensus from Congress, not even from the Senate. The Senate is Democrat controlled. The President didn't bother to get a vote or even approval tacitly from the Senate and here in the House, where this body, especially as a Republican majority, has steadfastly stood with the President of any party when that President committed troops to harm's way.

In this case, there are still some in the Republican Party who have said I don't think we ought to be in Libya; but I'm afraid if I vote to cut off funding to the action in Libya, then it may be perceived as not being supportive of the troops. Some of us who have been in the military and still talk constantly to people in the military know the common response we get from the military goes something like this: Sir, we take orders. We salute and we follow our orders. That's what we took an oath to do. And if we're ordered to go to Libya or anywhere else, we will salute and go. But we hope, we pray that somebody in Washington will use some good sense so that when we lay down our lives in the call of duty from Washington that it will not be in vain. Please take action to make sure that when we lay down our lives, it's not wasted.

And for this administration and some in Congress, certainly not a majority, to think it's a good idea to go into Libya and to get our services involved in an action which Secretary of Defense Gates said we have no national security interest in that action—it's not a good idea—and when we find out factually that there are al Qaeda, a group with whom we are at war, and when there are Muslim Brotherhood, who believe in violence, involved in the rebel action against an evil Qadhafi, then wisdom would indicate you should find out if the person that is going to be replaced by your bombs and your military or kinetic action—you have an obligation to find out—is going to be worse than the person you're replacing.

And we don't know that. In fact, the indications are whoever replaces Qadhafi in this current rebel group will likely be a tremendous enemy of Israel, a significant enemy of the United States. It may be a situation in which the people that replace an intolerant leader like Qadhafi may be worse than Qadhafi, just as we saw happen in Iran back when Jimmy Carter was President.

As I recall, I believe Jimmy Carter welcomed the Ayatollah Khomeini back as a man of peace. Well, Khomeini's idea of peace was a whole lot different than most of ours and certainly the party's in Congress that's in the majority, because Khomeini's idea of peace was a world in which there is a world-wide caliphate and one great Muslim leader dictates what peace means. He dictates shari'a law for everyone. There is no freedom of worship for Christians, for Buddhists—certainly not for Jewish people of orthodox faith, absolutely not. In fact, they're obviously infidels from the things that were written and the things that can only be written and spoken in the Middle East.

In Egypt, Mubarak was a problem, but Mubarak had seen the handwriting on the wall. And he was moving toward some local elections and could see he needed to move toward the idea of democracy, but didn't want to give up power. Mubarak, for all his flaws, at least was not an active belligerent against Israel. Qadhafi we knew had blood on his hands, but we also saw from Ronald Reagan dropping bombs down his smokestack back, I believe in '86—and then again when the United States moved into Iraq we saw it again—Qadhafi was afraid of us. And perhaps it's better to have a leader who is afraid of you in power than people who are religious fanatics who have sworn that their goal in life is to bring your country down.

One of the important things—and to me, I think it's the most important job, Mr. Speaker, here in Congress—is to provide for the common defense. We heard the President down at the border not along ago say he has committed more Federal troops to our border than any President ever—more people down there to protect our border anyway. Actually, he probably didn't have enough history training to know that in 1916 President Woodrow Wilson—I'm not a big fan of President Wilson's, but nonetheless, after a man named Pancho Villa was responsible for coming across into the United States and killing some Americans, Wilson committed General Pershing to go—my recollection is it was around 14,000 troops that went into Mexico. Because Pancho Villa had come across our sovereign border and killed people, then it was deemed to be appropriate to chase him down wherever he might go because that individual, with his cronies, had declared war on us and taken warlike action.

And there was also a group, a new group basically, the National Guard, that was called up. One account I read said over 100,000 National Guard soldiers were called to our southern border to ensure that no one came across and killed Americans again.

Now, I know that President Bush committed National Guard troops. I was very disappointed that the troops were not put on the border. They were put miles back, and they were given rules of engagement that said, in essence, if you see some armed group coming from across the border, then you are to report it and then flee the area. Well, that's not what should have been done, and I can assure what's being done today is not what should be done, where we take more action to go against the States that are trying to defend themselves than we do to try to defend the States themselves.

□ 1350

But we are at a crucial time in this country's history. Admiral Mullen said the national debt is the biggest threat to our security. But take your pick. Whether it's a nation like Iran that is led by a religious zealot who may be crazy—but he's not stupid—they've got people working toward, around the clock, moving toward having nuclear weaponry. They already have at least one bomb. And even though our friends down in the majority in the Senate, even though in this White House so many say, "Oh, no. We just need to step up sanctions and all will be well. We'll bring them into line." Iran knows that once they've got enough in the way of nuclear weaponry that they'll be able to extort countries into removing any type of sanctions.

People in Israel are well aware, most of them—certainly Prime Minister Netanyahu is—that when Iran has adequate nuclear weaponry, they'll be a threat to Israel. They'll be a threat to freedom. They'll be a threat to liberty around the world because they will be able to take blackmail or extorted action to get countries to either do as they say or a nuclear weapon will be going off in that country.

They're working on the missiles. They'll be able to carry those nuclear weapons to places like the United States. Even now, it wouldn't take a missile to put a nuclear weapon on a boat, a yacht, to bring it into one of our harbors. And let's face it. We saw our vulnerability on 9/11, many of us, even though I was a judge at the time. We said we can never let ourselves be that vulnerable again. And here we are, nearly 10 full years later, and we're allowing a madman, a religious zealot in Iran, to develop nuclear weapons. Sanctions haven't worked. They're not working. The centrifuges are still turning. They're still developing nuclear weaponry.

We've got these type of threats in the world, and instead of standing firm as Ronald Reagan did, which led to bringing down the Iron Curtain, this administration has chosen to placate our enemies and turn against many of our allies.

That was further brought home to me when I traveled with DANA ROHR-ABACHER and a couple of other Members of Congress. There were warlords from the Northern Alliance of Afghanistan that wanted to meet with us because we were told that the administration didn't want to meet with them. And after we met with them, it was clear why the administration wouldn't want to.

Now, I was not aware—and it was during the Bush administration of course, our initial actions in Afghanistan—we sent in intelligence. We sent in special forces. We sent in weaponry. We equipped the Northern Alliance tribes who had a special personal interest in defeating the Taliban. Afghanistan, as a whole, had seen how evil the Taliban was, how much damage they could do to society as they burned paintings and books and films and totally suppressed freedom in Afghanistan. Well, they knew. These people are evil, but they were afraid of them. But with the United States weaponry, with our guidance, intelligence, training, these people defeated the Taliban.

What I was not aware of until we met with these folks—and it turns out I could have been aware. I just was not. But you do the research. You'll find out. The Bush administration convinced the Northern Alliance, Okay. Now that you've whipped the Taliban, you need to totally disarm, because we're the United States, and we're here, and we'll make sure nothing happens to you again.

Well, the Northern Alliance messed up because they trusted us, and they turned in their weapons. I asked one, You turned in all your weapons? Well, apparently, they have some small arms but nothing that would allow them to take on the Taliban again. Naturally, these people were concerned, because they know because they fought for and with the United States against the Taliban that, if the Taliban is allowed to overtly exist in Afghanistan, then these people that fought for us and with us will all be killed as will all their family members.

They were and are our allies. They fought for us. They defeated the Taliban, and now we're on the verge of leaving these people disarmed, vulnerable, and to be killed by the very people we went into Afghanistan after. It doesn't have to be this way. It doesn't have to be this way at all.

I mean, we can learn from the past. Rearm the Northern Alliance. We perceive the arrogance, the condescension not only from Prime Minister Maliki in Iraq but certainly from the leader in Afghanistan, Karzai, certainly from his brother. There's just too much arrogance there. All kinds of stories about corruption. But whether or not you believe that, it's clear that the Taliban is being allowed to do things now in Afghanistan that we were supposed to have eliminated by our coming in.

It may well be, as one Afghan told me, that once we begin, if we would, to rearm the Northern Alliance, Karzai might be a lot more cooperative than he has been.

But nonetheless, a year ago, we were being told, Your administration in Washington, the Obama administration, is indirectly talking, negotiating with the Taliban to just let the United States out without any big incidents, and then they can have whatever they take. And that's when they pointed out, You can't let this happen. You can't do this to your allies.

Well, we've already seen it with Israel. We voted with Israel's enemies in May of last year, I believe it was, to demand that Israel disclose all of their weaponry, their nuclear weaponry. It's the first time the United States had joined forces with Israel's enemies, and it was one of the reasons that shortly after that that we saw the flotilla come from Turkey down to challenge the Israeli blockade. That was a blockade for one thing: weapons. Prevent weapons from going into the Gaza Strip. The rockets were coming every day. Israelis had been killed. There was no reason to allow those weapons to come into the Gaza Strip. It was a legitimate blockade. It came after we showed distance between our great ally Israel and this country.

That also came on the heels of the President snubbing Prime Minister Netanyahu. And of course Prime Minister Netanyahu has not spoken of this that I've ever heard or read, but certainly others noted how badly he was snubbed by the President just blowing him off where normally you would have a meal, saying, Good luck on your own, and when you get ready to accept what I told you to do, then send me a note and I'll come back and see you. But anyway, we have not been allies as we should be to Israel.

But it was after that when I started pushing to try to get Prime Minister Netanyahu, the leader of Israel, to be invited in this room. Speaker PELOSI, when I broached the subject with her, thought it was a good idea, but she didn't feel there was adequate time. And I brought it up in June, between then and the end of the year, to work him in.

□ 1400

Obviously, we did have to name a lot of courthouses and had athletic teams to congratulate, so we weren't able to get to that. But Speaker BOEHNER, to his credit, did extend the invitation. Prime Minister Netanyahu did an incredible job. With the ideas he put forth, he did an incredible job, from the second level here, of addressing this body and addressing the world from here in Congress.

What I had hoped for came to pass. The world got an incredible visual image of the fact that this body, both sides of the aisle, that can't hardly agree on much of anything, over and over—I am told 26 times—stood to applaud the leader of Israel, showing the world that we are united in our support of our friend Israel from Congress, regardless of what the house down Pennsylvania Avenue does the rest of the time. Congress controls the purse strings, and Congress is a friend of Israel and vice versa.

So it is important, in order to provide for the common defense of this country, that we make sure that our allies know, if you're our friend, then we stand by you. If you're our enemy, then we will do as President Kennedy pointed out, as President Bush pointed out: We will seek you wherever you are, and we will eliminate you as an enemy. By doing that, you can have peace in the world.

There is a sign that emerges from time to time. People carry it around. I've seen it up here. I've seen it in New York: "War never brought about peace." It says a great deal about the history teachers that an individual that would carry that kind of sign must have had because the only time you have peace for an extended period is when a big-hearted country does take on evil that has grown too big and becomes a threat to people's liberty and freedom and defeats that evil. Then you have a period of peace.

And the only way it becomes an extended peace is when a country is strong enough, or countries are strong enough, that the world knows if you become a threat to our liberty, our freedom, then we will eliminate you as a threat to freedom.

Now, again, there are those who believe shari'a law talks of freedom and peace, but that's a freedom and peace as dictated by the ultimate leader of the group. That also brings me back to the issue of the Muslim Brotherhood. This administration has given the indication that they think it is a group of peace. You can go on Wikipedia, and the proponents of the Muslim Brotherhood have done an excellent job of cleaning up the history that shows them to be supporters of terrorism and the numerous ties linking them to terrorism in the world.

They've also done a good job of making this administration believe that they're peaceful and loving to the point that, as Denis McDonough, the number two person in our national security agency or administration, thanked President Magid, Imam Magid, the president of the Islamic Society of North America, for the wonderful prayer he gave inside the White House in the celebration of Iftar last year, the end of Ramadan, that President Obama had.

The Islamic Society of North America, ISNA, is a named co-conspirator—was—in the Holy Land Foundation trials in which the first five defendants were found guilty of 108 counts of supporting terrorism. And when some tried to have their names stricken because they were not indicted in that first action, the judge, in essence, ruled there has been a prima facie case here showing that they are linked and supportive of terrorism; we're not eliminating their names.

So it was shocking to some of us when the Holder Justice Department dropped the cases against the named coconspirators and refused to go forward with them. This notebook has some of the materials, and there are plenty of them, as anybody can see. This is a thimbleful compared to what is there. You want checks from the Islamic Centers' co-op funds? You want deposit slips? You want ledgers? The FBI's gathered all this stuff. There are great cases against these groups that the Holder Justice Department decided not to pursue.

And when we had Attorney General Holder in front of our Judiciary Committee and he was asked about dropping it, he acted like and basically stated he had nothing to do with it, that that was somebody down in Texas, an attorney down there, and he could get us a copy of the Dallas Morning News article where the U.S. Attorney—actually, it was acting U.S. Attorney—had made that statement that politics played no role.

Well, certainly politics played a role, and that became very obvious. And the more we find, the more it appears the Attorney General is not honest about perhaps the reason that these were not pursued. But until we find out the actual reasons for these being dropped, we will not know how honest or dishonest the situation with this Attorney General is.

I know that Chairman ISSA is pursuing the Fast and Furious investigation. But on this one, we could put this whole matter to bed very quickly if the Attorney General will just produce the memorandum that Chairman PETE KING and Chairman LAMAR SMITH have requested from the Justice Department. If he will just come forward, produce that memo, not black it out, then we can find for sure the documentation of whether or not what the Attorney General had said in testifying before Congress was true or not.

Now, it was interesting to find that the FBI had a special relationship, a special partnership, with CAIR, another of the named coconspirators in the Holy Land Foundation trial. And it was rather shocking to me that it was not until 2009 that the FBI decided to end their special relationship with this named co-conspirator in the Holy Land Foundation case. Apparently, the FBI had had a special relationship with CAIR for years, even though the FBI began to gather these materials back as early as 1993 and had solid proof for a number of years that they were involved in supporting Hamas with terrorism.

And yet nothing was done until 2009, when a letter was sent, saying, because of the evidence that was introduced some months back regarding CAIR and their relationships with terrorism, we think it's appropriate to suspend our relationship for now.

Now, I realize that there are people in the media, as we saw this one reporter from The Hill that will not give adequate coverage, who will take quotes out of context in order to misrepresent or give people a false impression. But if this is adequately looked at, people will find the truth: that we have people who have been associated with the support of terrorism coming to the White House—one who was president of a group, who certainly from the documentation appears to have supported terrorism, leading the White House in prayer.

□ 1410

And then we find out that when the President was giving a speech at the State Department, in the State Department—security was very, very tight; it was difficult to get in without going through all the checking, the bag checking, the metal detectors and all the different things you had to go through to make sure security was tight—apparently the White House invited Imam Majid, the president of the Islamic Society of North America, a named coconspirator for supporting terrorism. It invited him into the inner sanctum of the State Department to listen to the President's speech and give comments about what he thought about the speech.

At some point, this administration is going to have to get around to the point where providing for the common defense means you get tough with people who associate with groups that support terrorism. You don't do, as Senator Obama said, just go talk to terrorists because you're so, apparently, warm and friendly. Really, the President, having met with him, he is a charming man. He comes across as bright, engaging. You want to like him. Apparently that's worked so well, he must think that he can convince religious extremists that we're good folks, so you can just get along with them. The problem is, when you're dealing with people who want to destroy your way of life, there's only one way to deal with them.

We've seen this from the attacks in the early days of our country's existence from Islamic zealots in North Africa who captured our ships, took prisoners—the men on those ships—held them for ransom, used some as slaves, were willing to kill or enslave others, and I read at one point, and it's hard to believe that this is true—hopefully it's not—but that at one point we may have paid as much as 18 percent of the country's budget back in the late 1790s for getting our sailors back from the Barbary pirates, these Islamic extremists.

Thomas Jefferson, who had been sent at one point as one of the diplomats to negotiate with the Muslim extremists, was taken aback when he asked, Why would you attack American ships? We're no threat to you. We don't have a powerful Navy. We've never attacked you—and reportedly was told that we in our religion believe we go to paradise if we were to die while attacking infidels like you. Jefferson was shocked. He was an extremely well-read person. He found it hard to believe there was a religion anywhere that any believer of that religion perceived that you could go to a paradise by killing innocent people. So he got his own English translation of the Koran, that can still be found in the Library of Congress, so he could read for himself. Some of the passages are subject to interpretation and certainly have been interpreted by some as meaning the only way to proceed is to attempt to take out infidels like those of us who are Christians, those who are Jewish, because we are certainly considered infidels in their eyes. Thank goodness not all Muslims believe that that has to be what occurs, but that is certainly what some believe.

I might read a passage from the judge's decision from July 1, 2009, in response to the effort by the named co-conspirators, some of them to have names stricken who were not actually indicted in the first trial. The judge, having reviewed acting U.S. Attorney Jacks's memos, said this:

"The government has produced ample evidence to establish the associations of CAIR, ISNA and NAIT with the Holy Land Foundation, HLF, the Islamic Association for Palestine and with Hamas. While the court recognizes that the evidence produced by the government largely predates the Holy Land Foundation designation date, the evidence is nonetheless sufficient to show the association of these entities with HLF, IAP, and Hamas."

The judge said:

"Thus maintaining the names of the entities on the list is appropriate in light of the evidence proffered by the government."

It is important to note that CAIR, with whom our Justice Department had a special relationship until on into 2009, and ISNA, that the evidence has certainly been produced by the government shows, as the judge says, ample evidence to establish the associations with these groups with the Holy Land Foundation, the group that was convicted, as well as Hamas, and yet this administration continues, I guess, to think that their winning personalities, charming as they are, will bring people around, and so they trust them to come into the inner sanctum of the White House, the State Department, the Justice Department. All that means is, we're in big trouble.

There are those over the years that have believed that our answers would come from prayer. Virtually every President, I guess every President, has indicated such that this Nation is best protected when it prays. That is why you would have such an amazing minister as Peter Marshall, as Chaplain in the United States Senate back in the 1940s, and this book that I have referenced previously is really profound, and I would, Mr. Speaker, like to finish up reading a couple of prayers that have been prayed in the United States Senate in the 1940s by U.S. Senate Chaplain Peter Marshall.

One prayer says:

"Forgive us, Lord Jesus, for doing the things that make us uncomfortable and guilty when we pray.

"We say that we believe in God, and yet we doubt God's promises.

"We say that in God we trust," which can be found right up above the Speaker's head, "yet we worry and try to manage our own affairs.

"We say that we love Thee, O Lord, and yet do not obey Thee.

"We believe that Thou hast the answers to all our problems, and yet we do not consult Thee.

"Forgive us, Lord, for our lack of faith and the willful pride that ignores the way, the truth, and the life.

"Wilt Thou reach down and change the gears within us that we may go forward with Thee. Amen."

That was one of Peter Marshall's prayers as Chaplain of the Senate in the 1940s.

□ 1420

I conclude with this prayer by Peter Marshall in the 1940s: "O Lord our God, even at this moment as we come blundering into Thy presence in prayer, we are haunted by memories of duties unperformed, promptings disobeyed, and beckonings ignored.

"Opportunities to be kind knocked on the door of our hearts and went weeping away.

"We are ashamed, O Lord, and tired of failure.

"If Thou art drawing close to us now, come nearer still, till selfishness is burned out within us and our wills lose their weakness in union with Thine own.

"Amen."

It is important to note: Prayers for the individuals to adhere to, as George Washington said, have a humble imitation of the designer of our blessed religion. As Washington said, those are for individuals.

We get questions on, Well, how can you be a Christian and not want to give away all the government money to the poor and the needy? How can you be a Christian and not want to give away the government money to do all these other things and to end a Defense Department? have no soldiers? just be people of peace?

And I know that in this great country we have got virtually every religion being practiced that's known to man; but in the Christian religion, for those that believe the New Testament means what it says, Romans 13 is very clear. The government exists as God's minister so that they encourage good. Romans 13:4 says, but if you do evil be afraid. God does not give the government the sword in vain. It does say "sword," and that is the purpose of government.

We took an oath to follow the Constitution. We are supposed to provide for the common defense. We are supposed to have an Army, a military, that protects this Nation so that people can practice the religion of their choice. Whether it's Islam peaceably, Christianity, Judaism, Buddhism, the human secularism that seems to have often overtaken Washington, you have the freedom to do that.

But the government's role is to protect the country, protect the people, keep people from coming in through our borders that want to harm us so that individuals can give from the blessings of their heart to help the needy, to help the poor, to help others.

You cannot find one reference in the New Testament that says government is to go about using and abusing its taxing authority, legalize stealing from people who have earned the money so that we can give it away to Congress' favorite charity or a government's favorite charity. The government is to provide protection, protect against evil, encourage good, and create an environment where good people can do good.

[From Fox News, July 7, 2011]

ONLY IN WASHINGTON: WHITE HOUSE SALARIES HAVE GONE BOTH UP AND DOWN

(By Kimberly Schwandt)

The White House released its annual salary report to Congress and like anything in Washington, it depends on who you ask if they went up too much, or are an adequate reflection of the tough economic times and have moved down.

The salaries, which can be seen here show that about a third of the employees make more than $100,000 per year and the lowest earn $41,000, except for three people who are working for no compensation, or $0 annual salary. Twenty-one employees made the maximum $172,000.

The White House backs the figures, saying that salaries went down an average of $150 per person and that total salary spending decreased in part due to the total number of staffers going down as well.

"President Obama is deeply committed to continuing to reduce costs in government," said White House Spokesman Eric Schultz.

However, some critics say they are spending too much, like Rep. Louie Gohmert, R-Texas.

"[I]n the White House, in looking at it, this administration's got over 450 employees. Now, under the Bush administration, there were over 100, about a fourth of the employees, made less than $40,000," he told Fox Business on Tuesday.

Fox News fact-checked, and the congressman's statements do pan out, with 102 of the 447 employees on the 2008 list having salaries of less than $40,000.

"I guess, you know, there's so much greatness when you associate with this White House you deserve to be paid more, I don't know," he said.

Gohmert added another sarcastic jab, "Don't forget the 34—the 34 czars that are out there dictating policy and let's face it . . . when you're a dictator you need to be paid more."

As the economy faltered, President Obama enacted a pay freeze earlier in his administration for top wage-earners.

Wednesday at a Twitter town hall, he referenced the freeze.

"So they haven't had a raise in two and a half years, and that's appropriate, because a lot of ordinary folks out there haven't, either. In fact, they've seen their pay cut in some cases," Obama said.

An analysis by the gossip website Gawker, that was widely circulated and posted on the Internet, compared the salary increases to those of what staffers got last year. The site found that 75 percent of staffers who stayed on got raises from 2009 to 2010.

And this year, the figure isn't quite as big—but of 270 staffers who have been at the White House for more than a year, more than 50 percent got raises with an average increase of 8 percent.

Fox double-checked Gawker's claim on how many got raises and found 267 staffers on both lists, indicating they had worked for more than one year. Of those staffers, 144 had received a raise in 2011 (54%).

It's worth noting that some of those raises were for promotions, not just for the regular yearly increases.

"To be clear, in the past year, the average salary of a White House employee went down, the total number of White House staffers went down, and the total amount spent on White House salaries went down. If pay increases were issued, they were given for a variety of reasons, ranging from promotions to additional work responsibilities," Schultz said.

Most employee survey data, like these by The Conference Project, projected about 3 percent raises on average for employees nationwide this year.

The White House is of course a different entity than the private sector so it's hard to exactly do an apples to apples comparison.

[From the Hill, July 6, 2011]

REPUBLICAN MOCKS WHITE HOUSE SALARIES

(By Judy Kurtz)

A Republican congressman on Wednesday criticized the White House for paying staffers too much in salary.

"I guess there's just so much greatness when you're associated with this White House that you deserve to be paid more," Rep. Louie Gohmert (R-Texas) said. "Let's face it, when you're a dictator, you need to be paid more."

Gohmert made clear his remark was meant to be sarcastic. However, he criticized the White House for paying 141 aides more than $100,000 per year. A report from the White House released Friday listed the salaries of 454 employees and showed that no staffer is paid less than $40,000.

"It sounds like the only thing that's truly shovel-ready is all the bull that they've been feeding to us over the last two and a half years," Gohmert said on the Fox News Business channel. "That needs to be shoveled out in a hurry."

Gohmert also slammed a White House stimulus report released last Friday that asserted the stimulus created as many as 3.6 million jobs in the first quarter of 2011.

"Who would ever dream that paying people $175,000 in the White House would be a bargain compared to how much they're paying to create private sector jobs," Gohmert said. "[President Obama] has squandered so much money that you've heard the sucking sound coming from the private sector."

Republicans claim the stimulus paid out $278,000 for every job it created. The White House called that a "false analysis."

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. CAMPBELL (at the request of Mr. CANTOR) for today on account of attending, in his role as cochairman of the Congressional United Kingdom Caucus, a working reception in his home State of California, in honor of their Royal Highnesses, The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 25 minutes p.m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until Monday, July 11, 2011, at noon for morning-hour debate.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

2338. A letter from the Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — Irish Potatoes Grown in Washington; Modification of the Rules and Regulations [Doc. No.: AMS-FV-11-0024; FV11-946-31R] received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2339. A letter from the Acting Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — Sorghum Promotion, Research and Information Program; State Referendum Results [AMS-LS-11-0040] received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2340. A letter from the Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — Marketing Order Regulating the Handling of Spearmint Oil Produced in the Far West; Salable Quantities and Allotment Percentages for the 2011-2012 Marketing Year [Doc. No.: AMS-FV-10-0094; FV11-985-1 FR] received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2341. A letter from the Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — United States Standards for Grades of Potatoes [Doc. #: AMS-FV-08-0023] received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2342. A letter from the Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — National Organic Program; Amendment to the National List of Allowed and Prohibited Substances (Livestock) [Document Number: AMS-NOP-10-005; NOP-10-04FR] (RIN: 0581-AD04) received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2343. A letter from the Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — Softwood Lumber Research, Promotion, Consumer Education and Industry Information Order [Document Number: AMS-FV-10-0015; PR-A2] (RIN: 0581-AD03) received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2344. A letter from the Administrator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule — Fresh Prunes Grown in Designated Counties in Washington and in Umatilla County, OR; Termination of Marketing Order 924 [Docket No.: AMS-FV-10-0053; FV10-924-1 FR] received June 13, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

2345. A letter from the Chief Counsel, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Final Flood Elevation Determinations [Docket ID: FEMA-2011-0002] received June 24, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Financial Services.

2346. A letter from the Chief Counsel, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Final Flood Elevation Determinations [Docket ID: FEMA-2011-0002] received June 24, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Financial Services.

2347. A letter from the Deputy to the Chairman, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, transmitting the Corporation's final rule — Securities of Nonmember Insured Banks (RIN: 3064-AD67) received June 24, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Financial Services.

2348. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting the third annual report on the Prevention and Reduction of Underage Drinking; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

2349. A letter from the Secretary, Department of the Treasury, transmitting as required by section 401(c) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C. 1641(c), and section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, 50 U.S.C. 1703(c), a six-month periodic report on the national emergency with respect to the former Liberator regime of Charles Taylor that was declared in Executive Order 13348 of July 22, 2004, pursuant to 50 U.S.C. 1703(c); to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

2350. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary, Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting extension of the waiver of Section 907 of the FREEDOM Support Act, Pub. L. 107-511, with respect to assistance to the Government of Azerbaijan; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

2351. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Education, transmitting the forty-fourth Semiannual Report to Congress on Audit Follow-Up, covering the six month period ending March 31, 2011 in compliance with the Inspector General Act Amendments of 1988; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2352. A letter from the President and Chief Executive Officer, Federal Home Loan Bank Topeka, transmitting the 2010 Statements on System of Internal Controls of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Topeka, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 9106; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

2353. A letter from the Director, Office of Surface Mining, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department's final rule — West Virginia Regulatory Program [WV-117-FOR; OSM-2011-0006] received June 24, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Natural Resources.

2354. A letter from the Assistant Secretary — Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Fiscal Year 2010 Report to Congress on the Contract Support Costs of Self-Determination Awards; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

2355. A letter from the Deputy Assistant Administrator for Regulatory Programs, NMFS, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration's final rule — Fisheries of the Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico, and South Atlantic; Snapper-Grouper Fishery Off the Southern Atlantic States; Red Snapper Management Measures [Docket No.: 101124579-1236-02] (RIN: 0648-BA51) received June 1, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Natural Resources.

2356. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting the Department's determination on a petition on behalf of workers from the Chapman Valve Manufacturing Company (i.e., Building 23 and the Dean Street facility) in Indian Orchard, Massachusetts to be added to the Special Exposure Cohort (SEC), pursuant to the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000 (EEOICPA); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

2357. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting the Department's determination on a petition on behalf of workers from the Bliss & Laughlin Steel Company located at 110 Hopkins Street, Buffalo, New York to be added to the Special Exposure Cohort (SEC), pursuant to the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000 (EEOICPA); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

2358. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting the Department's determination on a petition on behalf of workers from the Wah Chang facility in Albany, Oregon, to be added to the Special Exposure Cohort (SEC), pursuant to the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000 (EEOICPA); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

2359. A letter from the Staff Director, United States Sentencing Commission, transmitting the Commission's report entitled, "2010 Annual Report and Sourcebook of Federal Sentencing Statistics", pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 997; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

2360. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; Conneaut Festival Fireworks, Conneaut Harbor, Conneaut, OH [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0214] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received

June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2361. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; Lorain Independence Day Fireworks, Black River, Lorain, OH [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0215] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2362. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; Put-In-Bay Fireworks, Fox's the Dock Pier; South Bass Island, Put-In-Bay, OH [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0417] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2363. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; Temporary Change to Enforcement Location of Recurring Fireworks Display event, Currituck Sound; Corolla, NC [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0384] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2364. A letter from the Attorney Advisor, Department of Homeland Security, transmitting the Department's final rule — Safety Zone; M/V Del Monte Live-Fire Gun Exercise, James River, Isle of Wight, Virginia [Docket No.: USCG-2011-0427] (RIN: 1625-AA00) received June 15, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

2365. A letter from the Chief, Publications and Regulations, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule — Extension of Interim Guidance on Modification of Section 833 Treatment of Certain Health Organizations [Notice 2011-51] received June 20, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

2366. A letter from the Chief, Publications and Regulations, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule — Guidance Under Section 956 for Determining the Basis of Property Acquired in Certain Non-recognition Transactions [TD 9530] (RIN: 1545-BH56) received June 24, 2011, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. MICA: Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. H.R. 2018. A bill to amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to preserve the authority of each State to make determinations relating to the State's water quality standards, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. 112-139). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. UPTON: Committee on Energy and Commerce. H.R. 1938. A bill to direct the President to expedite the consideration and approval of the construction and operation of the Keystone XL oil pipeline, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. 112-140, Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. SMITH of Texas: Committee on the Judiciary. H.R. 398. A bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to toll, during active-duty service abroad in the Armed Forces, the periods of time to file a petition and appear for an interview to remove the conditional basis for permanent resident status, and for other purposes (Rept. 112-141, Pt. 1). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

DISCHARGE OF COMMITTEE

Pursuant to clause 2 of rule XIII the Committee on the Budget discharged from further consideration. H.R. 398 referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XII, public bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. FLAKE:

H.R. 2458. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act to change the frequency of review of air quality criteria under section 108 of such Act and national primary and secondary ambient air quality standards under section 109 of such Act from 5-year intervals to 10-year intervals, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. CRAWFORD:

H.R. 2459. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to require the Secretary of Transportation to establish and maintain a national clearinghouse for records relating to alcohol and controlled substances testing of commercial motor vehicle operators, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. FARENTHOLD (for himself and Mr. PAUL):

H.R. 2460. A bill to amend title 46, United States Code, to allow operation of foreign-flag cruise ships in the coastwise trade of the United States; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky (for himself and Mr. ROSS of Arkansas):

H.R. 2461. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for the treatment of certain physician pathology services under the Medicare Program; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. FITZPATRICK:

H.R. 2462. A bill to limit the aggregate amount provided by the taxpayers of the United States for the bailout of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. HALL (for himself, Mr. QUAYLE, Mr. WU, Mr. CONAWAY, Mr. SMITH of Texas, Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mr. BENISHKE, Mr. BARTON of Texas, Mr. HULTGREN, Mr. NEUGEBAUER, and Mrs. BIGGERT):

H.R. 2463. A bill to provide for the next generation of border and maritime security technologies; to the Committee on Homeland Security, and in addition to the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. RUSH (for himself, Ms. MOORE, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Mr. STARK, Mr. GRIJALVA, Ms. HIRONO, Mr. ELLISON, Mr. COHEN, and Mr. HASTINGS of Florida):

H.R. 2464. A bill to authorize a program to provide grants to nonprofit organizations that carry out child-parent visitation programs for children with incarcerated parents; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. KLINE (for himself, Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, Mr. WALBERG, and Ms. WOOLSEY):

H.R. 2465. A bill to amend the Federal Employees' Compensation Act; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. BRADY of Texas (for himself, Mr. THOMPSON of California, Mr. HERGER, Mr. TONKO, and Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas):

H.R. 2466. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the employment tax treatment and reporting of wages paid by professional employer organizations; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MCKEON:

H.R. 2467. A bill to take certain Federal lands in Mono County, California, into trust for the benefit of the Bridgeport Indian Colony; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. BOUSTANY (for himself and Mr. LEWIS of Georgia):

H.R. 2468. A bill to ensure that home health agencies can assign the most appropriate skilled professional to conduct the initial assessment visit and complete the comprehensive assessment for home health services for Medicare beneficiaries requiring rehabilitation therapy under a home health plan of care, based upon physician referral; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. COHEN (for himself, Mr. GRAVES of Missouri, Mr. AKIN, Mr. CARTER, Mr. PETRI, and Mr. ELLISON):

H.R. 2469. A bill to protect consumers from discriminatory State taxes on motor vehicle rentals; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DONNELLY of Indiana:

H.R. 2470. A bill to improve the electronic health information systems and capabilities of the Department of Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs; to the Committee on Armed Services, and in addition to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. GOODLATTE (for himself, Mr. COBLE, Mr. SENSENBRENNER, and Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California):

H.R. 2471. A bill to amend section 2710 of title 18, United States Code, to clarify that a video tape service provider may obtain a consumer's informed, written consent on an ongoing basis and that consent may be obtained through the Internet; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HECK (for himself, Mr. BURGESS, Mr. GOSAR, Mr. DESJARLAIS, Mr. BENISHEK, Mr. HARRIS, Mr. FLEMING, Mr. PRICE of Georgia, Mr. ROE of Tennessee, Mr. BOUSTANY, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. BUCSHON, and Mrs. ELLMERS):

H.R. 2472. A bill to amend the Health Care Quality Improvement Act of 1986 to prohibit health care entities from reporting certain professional review actions against health care professionals before adequate notice and hearing procedures are afforded to such professionals, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2473. A bill to modify the project for the improvement of the Shallotte River, North Carolina, to change the authorized depth to 8 feet; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2474. A bill to authorize a project for hurricane and storm damage reduction at West Onslow Beach and New River Inlet (Topsail Beach), North Carolina; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2475. A bill to authorize a project for hurricane and storm damage reduction at Surf City and North Topsail Beach, North Carolina; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2476. A bill to amend section 156 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1976 (42 U.S.C. 1962d-5f) to require the Secretary of the Army to evaluate the feasibility of continuing Federal participation in a beach nourishment project, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2477. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to establish a Department of Veterans Affairs Medal for Distinguished Public Service to honor veterans who make remarkable and distinguished contributions to their communities; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. ROSKAM (for himself, Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky, and Mr. DAVIS of Illinois):

H.R. 2478. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to exclude from gross income amounts received for services by a student at a work-college; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SCHOCK (for himself and Mr. BLUMENAUER):

H.R. 2479. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand the rehabilitation credit, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SMITH of Texas (for himself and Mr. COBLE):

H.R. 2480. A bill to amend title 5, United States Code, to authorize appropriations for the Administrative Conference of the United States for fiscal years 2012, 2013, and 2014, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. YARMUTH (for himself, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, and Ms. BERKLEY):

H.R. 2481. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to increase the exclusion for employer-provided dependent care assistance; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ELLISON (for himself, Mr. HONDA, Ms. WOOLSEY, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Mr. GRJALVA, Mr. CONYERS, Ms. MCCOLLUM, Mr. DEUTCH, Ms. CLARKE of New York, Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mr. CARSON of Indiana, Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia, Ms. MATSUI, Ms. LEE of California, Ms. SEWELL, Ms. SCHAKOWSKY, Ms. RICHARDSON, Mr. CLEAVER, Mr. TONKO, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN, Mr. GARAMENDI, Mr. OLVER, and Mr. RAHALL):

H. Con. Res. 64. Concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress that Social Security benefits should not be reduced; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MARKEY:

H. Res. 343. A resolution expressing disapproval of the decision by the Supreme Court in Sorrell v. IMS Health Inc; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Ms. KAPTUR:

H. Res. 344. A resolution expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the States should enact a temporary moratorium on residential mortgage foreclosures; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California:

H. Res. 345. A resolution condemning al Shabaab for its practice of child conscription in the Horn of Africa; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Ms. NORTON:

H. Res. 346. A resolution expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that a national World War I memorial should be established; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

76. The SPEAKER presented a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Texas, relative to House Resolution No. 784 urging the Congress to fully support the vital operations and joint force structure at Ellington Field Joint Reserve Base; to the Committee on Armed Services.

77. Also, a memorial of the Senate of the State of Iowa, relative to Senate Resolution 9 supporting the positive impact of the CSBG program; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

78. Also, a memorial of the Senate of the State of Louisiana, relative to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 26 recognizing May 2011 as Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis Awareness Month; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

79. Also, a memorial of the Senate of the State of Louisiana, relative to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 33 declaring June 2011 to be "Save LIHEAP Month"; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

80. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Texas, relative to House Resolution No. 523 honoring the legacy of public service to the community of the Campbellton Post Office; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

81. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Texas, relative to House Resolution No. 306 expressing support for the conservation of Castner Range; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

82. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Texas, relative to House Resolution No. 243 expressing opposition to H.R. 3424; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

83. Also, a memorial of the Senate of the State of Louisiana, relative to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 3 memorializing the Congress to expedite a solution that will provide public alert and warning in situations of war, terrorist attack, natural disaster, or other hazards to public safety; jointly to the Committees on Energy and Commerce and Homeland Security.

84. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Texas, relative to House Resolution No. 1694 congratulating President Obama on his proven and successful policies in the war on terrorism and in homeland security; jointly to the Committees on Intelligence (Permanent Select) and Armed Services.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following statements are submitted regarding the specific powers granted to Congress in the Constitution to enact the accompanying bill or joint resolution.

By Mr. FLAKE:

H.R. 2458.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

The constitutional authority of Congress provided by Article I, section 8 of the United States Constitution, specifically clause 3 (relating to the power to regulate interstate commerce).

By Mr. CRAWFORD:

H.R. 2459.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the enumerated powers listed in Article I, Section 8, which include the power to "regulate commerce . . . among the several States . . .".

By Mr. FARENTHOLD:

H.R. 2460.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:
Article 1, section 8, clause 3.

By Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky:

H.R. 2461.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to Article I, Section 8, Clause 18 of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. FITZPATRICK:

H.R. 2462.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8, clause 1, the power to tax and spend for the general welfare and the implied power of the Necessary and Proper Clause, Article I, Section 8, clause 18

By Mr. HALL:

H.R. 2463.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 & 18 of the United States Constitution.

Clause 3: To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes.

Clause 18: To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by the Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof.

By Mr. RUSH:

H.R. 2464.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8, Clause 18

The Congress shall have Power To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by the Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof.

By Mr. KLINE:

H.R. 2465.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, section 8 of the Constitution of the United States

By Mr. BRADY of Texas:

H.R. 2466.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 1, Section 8 and the 16th Amendment.

By Mr. MCKEON:

H.R. 2467.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8, Clause 3 and Article IV, Section 3, Clause 2.

By Mr. BOUSTANY:

H.R. 2468.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Clause 3 of Section 8 of Article 1 of the Constitution

Clause 18 of Section 8 of Article 1 of the Constitution

By Mr. COHEN:

H.R. 2469.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Clause 3 of Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. DONNELLY of Indiana:

H.R. 2470.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1, 12, 13, and 14 of the U.S. Constitution.

By Mr. GOODLATTE:

H.R. 2471.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8

By Mr. HECK:

H.R. 2472.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8, Clause 18: [The Congress shall have Power] To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States or in any Department or Officer thereof.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2473.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

This bill is enacted pursuant to the power granted to Congress under Article I, Section 8, of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2474.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

This bill is enacted pursuant to the power granted to Congress under Article I, Section 8, of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2475.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

This bill is enacted pursuant to the power granted to Congress under Article I, Section 8, of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2476.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

This bill is enacted pursuant to the power granted to Congress under Article I, Section 8, of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. MCINTYRE:

H.R. 2477.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Military Regulation Clause: Article 1, Section 8, Clause 14

Necessary and Proper Clause: Article 1, Section 8, Clause 18

General Welfare Clause: Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1

By Mr. ROSKAM:

H.R. 2478.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to Article I, Section 8, which states "The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes," and Article I, Section 7, which states "All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives."

By Mr. SCHOCK:

H.R. 2479.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

The constitutional authority on which this bill rests is the power of Congress as stated in Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution.

By Mr. SMITH of Texas:

H.R. 2480.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution, including but not limited to, Clauses 1, 3 and 18.

By Mr. YARMUTH:

H.R. 2481.

Congress has the power to enact this legislation pursuant to the following:

Power granted to Congress under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 10: Mr. BROOKS.
H.R. 58: Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER.
H.R. 98: Mr. BROOKS.
H.R. 100: Mr. BROOKS.
H.R. 157: Mr. YOUNG of Alaska.
H.R. 210: Ms. LEE of California, Ms. HANABUSA, Mr. COSTA, Mr. WAXMAN, Mr. SMITH of Washington, Mr. FARR, and Mr. ROTHMAN of New Jersey.
H.R. 389: Mr. NUNNELEE.
H.R. 452: Mr. SULLIVAN and Mr. HULTGREN.
H.R. 499: Mr. GARY G. MILLER of California.
H.R. 531: Mr. BOSWELL.
H.R. 539: Mr. GARAMENDI.
H.R. 602: Mr. MICHAUD and Mrs. MALONEY.
H.R. 603: Mr. MICHAUD and Mrs. MALONEY.
H.R. 604: Mr. MICHAUD and Mrs. MALONEY.
H.R. 676: Mr. HASTINGS of Florida.
H.R. 711: Ms. HANABUSA.
H.R. 724: Mr. TIERNEY and Mr. GARAMENDI.
H.R. 733: Mr. QUIGLEY.
H.R. 791: Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia, Mr. RYAN of Ohio, Mr. FILNER, Mr. BRALEY of Iowa, and Mr. HONDA.
H.R. 822: Mr. GALLEGLY and Mrs. LUMMIS.
H.R. 864: Mr. ELLISON.
H.R. 885: Ms. RICHARDSON, Ms. BORDALLO, Ms. DELAURO, Mr. CAPUANO, Mr. CLEAVER, Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia, and Mr. WU.
H.R. 891: Mr. MICHAUD.
H.R. 894: Mrs. MALONEY.
H.R. 969: Mrs. BLACKBURN.
H.R. 981: Mr. SCHILLING.
H.R. 1031: Mr. RICHMOND and Mr. LOBIONDO.
H.R. 1057: Mr. MCINTYRE.
H.R. 1058: Mr. SCHOCK.
H.R. 1116: Ms. HOCHUL and Mr. OWENS.
H.R. 1117: Mr. ELLISON.
H.R. 1150: Mr. YOUNG of Florida, Mr. QUIGLEY, Mr. MICHAUD, Ms. BROWN of Florida, and Mr. HEINRICH.

H.R. 1195: Ms. SUTTON.
 H.R. 1208: Mr. WAXMAN and Ms. ZOE LOFGREN of California.
 H.R. 1234: Mr. MORAN.
 H.R. 1236: Mr. BARLETTA, Mr. ROSKAM, Mr. CLEAVER, Mr. KLINE, Mr. FILNER, Mr. BISHOP of Georgia, Mr. HOLT, Mr. ROSS of Arkansas, Mr. MCCOTTER, and Mr. MARKEY.
 H.R. 1240: Mr. SCHIFF.
 H.R. 1244: Mr. WALZ of Minnesota, Mr. SCHOCK, Ms. SCHWARTZ, Mr. MICHAUD, Ms. MOORE, and Mr. HULTGREN.
 H.R. 1259: Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.
 H.R. 1265: Mr. MANZULLO.
 H.R. 1274: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 1327: Mr. BOSWELL and Mr. HOLT.
 H.R. 1341: Mr. DUNCAN of South Carolina.
 H.R. 1364: Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER.
 H.R. 1406: Mr. MORAN.
 H.R. 1418: Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER and Mr. ROSS of Florida.
 H.R. 1439: Mr. CHABOT.
 H.R. 1449: Mr. MARINO and Mr. FILNER.
 H.R. 1465: Ms. BORDALLO.
 H.R. 1533: Mr. LOBIONDO and Mr. KING of New York.
 H.R. 1537: Ms. HANABUSA.
 H.R. 1546: Mr. ROSS of Arkansas, Mr. RYAN of Ohio, Mr. BOSWELL, Mr. PAYNE, Mr. TIERNEY, Mr. PLATTS, Mr. DEFAZIO, and Mr. CUMMINGS.
 H.R. 1571: Mr. CRENSHAW.
 H.R. 1585: Mr. TURNER, Mr. WILSON of South Carolina, and Mr. MILLER of Florida.
 H.R. 1588: Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky.
 H.R. 1676: Mr. MCGOVERN.
 H.R. 1683: Mrs. BIGGERT.
 H.R. 1697: Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois, Mr. MILLER of Florida, Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER, and Mr. CLEAVER.
 H.R. 1700: Mrs. BLACKBURN.
 H.R. 1706: Mr. HULTGREN.
 H.R. 1744: Mr. MCCLINTOCK, Mr. ROGERS of Michigan, Mr. GIBBS, and Mr. HULTGREN.
 H.R. 1776: Mr. WATT and Ms. SCHWARTZ.
 H.R. 1780: Ms. HIRONO, Mr. SIRES, Ms. MCCOLLUM, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, and Mr. LANGEVIN.
 H.R. 1792: Mr. MCINTYRE.
 H.R. 1840: Mr. OWENS, Mr. GARRETT, and Mr. STIVERS.
 H.R. 1852: Mr. PAYNE, Mr. KING of New York, Mr. FATTAH, and Mr. GIBBS.
 H.R. 1872: Mrs. EMERSON.
 H.R. 1873: Mr. SMITH of Washington and Mr. BARROW.
 H.R. 1897: Mr. ROGERS of Michigan.
 H.R. 1916: Mr. WELCH, Ms. MATSUI, Ms. LEE of California, Mr. MCGOVERN, Ms. CHU, Mr. FATTAH, Ms. SCHWARTZ, Mr. KUCINICH, Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD, Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. LARSON of Connecticut, Mr. ISRAEL, Mr. HEINRICH, and Mr. MILLER of North Carolina.
 H.R. 1924: Mr. COSTELLO and Mr. JACKSON of Illinois.
 H.R. 1940: Mr. RUNYAN and Mrs. NAPOLITANO.
 H.R. 1985: Mr. SHERMAN.
 H.R. 1996: Mr. THORNBERRY, Mr. CALVERT, and Mr. GIBBS.
 H.R. 2011: Mr. DENHAM.
 H.R. 2016: Mr. FILNER.
 H.R. 2018: Mrs. EMERSON.
 H.R. 2020: Mr. CARNAHAN, Mrs. MALONEY, Mr. PAYNE, and Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts.
 H.R. 2032: Mr. MILLER of Florida, Mr. PETRI, Mr. HURT, and Mr. KING of Iowa.
 H.R. 2036: Mrs. LUMMIS.
 H.R. 2051: Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio.
 H.R. 2056: Mr. GRIMM, Mrs. MALONEY, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. SCHWEIKERT, and Mr. MANZULLO.
 H.R. 2068: Mr. FRANKS of Arizona.
 H.R. 2082: Mr. LEWIS of Georgia.

H.R. 2086: Mr. SCHOCK.
 H.R. 2092: Mr. KING of Iowa.
 H.R. 2095: Mr. BLUMENAUER, Mr. CARSON of Indiana, and Mrs. CHRISTENSEN.
 H.R. 2124: Mr. BROOKS.
 H.R. 2140: Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. NEAL, and Mr. KEATING.
 H.R. 2182: Mrs. BLACKBURN.
 H.R. 2197: Ms. CHU and Mr. COHEN.
 H.R. 2198: Mr. BOSWELL.
 H.R. 2204: Mrs. LUMMIS, Mr. LANCE, Mr. PLATTS, Mr. CRAWFORD, Mr. CALVERT, Mr. AUSTIN SCOTT of Georgia, Mr. DOLD, and Mr. BARTLETT.
 H.R. 2223: Mr. ALTMIRE.
 H.R. 2250: Mr. HURT, Mrs. EMERSON, and Mrs. ROBY.
 H.R. 2281: Mr. LEWIS of Georgia.
 H.R. 2306: Ms. NORTON.
 H.R. 2310: Mr. FILNER, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, and Mr. ELLISON.
 H.R. 2313: Mr. GARRETT.
 H.R. 2327: Mr. COBLE.
 H.R. 2332: Ms. WOOLSEY.
 H.R. 2333: Mr. STARK.
 H.R. 2337: Mr. RANGEL, Mr. CHABOT, Mr. MORAN, Mr. TURNER, Mr. DEUTCH, and Mr. SIRES.
 H.R. 2355: Mr. FRANKS of Arizona.
 H.R. 2358: Mr. CARSON of Indiana.
 H.R. 2364: Ms. WOOLSEY.
 H.R. 2366: Mr. ANDREWS, Mr. MORAN, and Mr. POLIS.
 H.R. 2369: Mr. MURPHY of Pennsylvania, Mr. GOSAR, Mr. MULVANEY, Mr. BARROW, Mr. PITTS, Mr. SMITH of Washington, Mr. COHEN, Mr. COLE, Mr. LUCAS, Mr. LATTA, Ms. HAYWORTH, Mr. FITZPATRICK, Mr. RUNYAN, Mr. WEST, Mr. HUNTER, Mr. SHUSTER, Mr. CALVERT, Mr. LEWIS of California, Mr. CHABOT, Mr. COBLE, Mr. ROSS of Florida, Mr. LONG, Mr. DREIER, Mr. YARMUTH, Mr. CHANDLER, Ms. SCHWARTZ, Mr. MCINTYRE, Mr. WALBERG, Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California, Mr. TONKO, Ms. HOCHUL, Ms. SPEIER, Mr. WESTMORELAND, Mr. POE of Texas, Mr. LANGEVIN, Mr. MACK, Mrs. BONO MACK, Mr. BUCHANAN, Mr. LANKFORD, Mr. ROSKAM, Mr. JORDAN, Mr. CHAFFETZ, Mr. BURGESS, Mr. REED, Mr. CRENSHAW, Mr. SCHRADER, Mr. ROGERS of Alabama, Mr. BOUSTANY, Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky, Mr. GOHMERT, Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mr. BILIRAKIS, Mrs. McMORRIS RODGERS, Ms. FOXF, Mr. PLATTS, Mr. MILLER of Florida, Mr. WALSH of Illinois, Mr. HUELSKAMP, Mr. ROKITA, Mr. REICHERT, Mr. SOUTHERLAND, Mr. LYNCH, Mr. CARNAHAN, Mr. ISRAEL, Mr. BOSWELL, Ms. CASTOR of Florida, Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas, Mr. ROHR-ABACHER, Mr. AUSTRIA, Mr. MCCAUL, Mr. NEUGEBAUER, Mr. FARENTHOLD, Mr. MARCHANT, Mr. GRIFFIN of Arkansas, Mrs. NOEM, Mr. DESJARLAIS, Mr. NUNNELEE, Mr. LANCE, Mr. HANNA, Mr. MICHAUD, Mr. BOREN, Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California, Mr. WALZ of Minnesota, Mr. ROSS of Arkansas, Mr. MORAN, Mrs. DAVIS of California, Mr. MARINO, Mr. KELLY, Mr. YOUNG of Florida, and Mr. SCALISE.
 H.R. 2372: Mr. FITZPATRICK.
 H.R. 2397: Mr. DOLD, Mr. GOSAR, and Mr. NUGENT.
 H.R. 2402: Mr. WILSON of South Carolina, Mr. ROSS of Florida, Mr. POSEY, Mr. NUGENT, and Mr. TURNER.
 H.R. 2407: Mr. BRALEY of Iowa and Mrs. NAPOLITANO.
 H.R. 2411: Mrs. NOEM.
 H.R. 2412: Mr. HIMES.
 H.R. 2417: Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mr. WALBERG, Mrs. HARTZLER, Mr. DUNCAN of Tennessee, Mr. ROE of Tennessee, Mr. DESJARLAIS, Mr. MILLER of Florida, Mr. FINCHER, Mr. MACK, Mr. STIVERS, Mrs. BLACK, and Mr. FLEISCHMANN.

H.R. 2427: Mr. ISSA.
 H.R. 2433: Mr. FLORES and Mr. BILIRAKIS.
 H. Res. 25: Mrs. BIGGERT and Mr. CHABOT.
 H. Res. 66: Mr. GERLACH.
 H. Res. 159: Mr. LAMBORN.
 H. Res. 179: Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.
 H. Res. 180: Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.
 H. Res. 207: Mr. GERLACH.
 H. Res. 211: Mr. NUNNELEE.
 H. Res. 226: Mr. FRANKS of Arizona.
 H. Res. 296: Mr. PASCRELL.
 H. Res. 317: Mr. FILNER, Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut, and Mr. QUIGLEY.

DELETIONS OF SPONSORS FROM PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were deleted from public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 91: Mr. REED.
 H.R. 2109: Mr. TERRY.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 3 of rule XII,

16. The SPEAKER presented a petition of the City of Miami, Florida, relative to Resolution 09-0101 urging the City Manager to develop a "Complete Streets Program"; which was referred to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

DISCHARGE PETITIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XV, the following discharge petition was filed:

Petition 1, July 6, 2011, by Mr. MARK CRITZ on House Resolution 310, was signed by the following Members: Mark S. Critz, Joe Courtney, Michael H. Michaud, Kurt Schrader, Gene Green, Joe Baca, Hansen Clarke, Lloyd Doggett, Robert E. Andrews, Colleen W. Hanabusa, Bill Pascrell Jr., Brian Higgins, Charles A. Gonzalez, William L. Owens, Louise McIntosh Slaughter, John F. Tierney, Niki Tsongas, Michael F. Doyle, Gary L. Ackerman, Kathleen C. Hochul, Gerald E. Connolly, Danny K. Davis, Daniel Lipinski, David N. Cicilline, Rosa L. DeLauro, Kathy Castor, Dale E. Kildee, Marcy Kaptur, Tammy Baldwin, Russ Carnahan, Doris O. Matsui, James P. McGovern, Carolyn McCarthy, John A. Yarmuth, Peter A. DeFazio, Brad Sherman, Sander M. Levin, Anna G. Eshoo, Chris Van Hollen, Michael E. Capuano, Tim Ryan, Theodore E. Deutch, Sheila Jackson Lee, Nick J. Rahall II, Henry C. "Hank" Johnson Jr., Jason Altmire, Gary C. Peters, Steve Cohen, Paul Tonko, Shelley Berkley, Linda T. Sánchez, John B. Larson, Frederica S. Wilson, John Conyers Jr., Terri A. Sewell, Donald M. Payne, Robert C. "Bobby" Scott, Yvette D. Clarke, Marcia L. Fudge, Carolyn B. Maloney, Chaka Fattah, Leonard L. Boswell, Steven R. Rothman, Bobby L. Rush, Steny H. Hoyer, Charles B. Rangel, James R. Langevin, Rush D. Holt, Jerry McNERNEY, Bruce L. Braley, Tim Holden, Robert A. Brady, Betty Sutton, Timothy J. Walz, Janice D. Schakowsky, Elijah E. Cummings, Timothy H. Bishop, Joe Donnelly, Mike McIntyre, Martin Heinrich, Frank Pallone Jr., Ben Ray Lujan, Keith Ellison, Mike Quigley, George Miller, Wm. Lacy Clay, Mazie Hirono, Lois Capps, Lucille Roybal-Allard, Rubén Hinojosa, Grace F. Napolitano, Sanford D. Bishop Jr., Eddie Bernice Johnson, Barney Frank, Nancy Pelosi, Diana DeGette, Xavier Becerra, Betty McCollum, G. K. Butterfield, Lynn C. Woolsey, Laura Richardson, Howard L. Berman, Henry A. Waxman, Al Green, John P. Sarbanes, John W. Olver, Jackie Speier, Jesse L. Jackson Jr., James E. Clyburn, Adam B. Schiff, Emanuel Cleaver, Silvestre Reyes, Jerry F. Costello, Donna F. Edwards, John D. Dingell, Mike Ross, André Carson, Ben Chandler, David Loebsack, Albio Sires, Nita M. Lowey, Jerrold Nadler, Eliot L. Engel, Gregory W. Meeks, James P. Moran, Steve Israel, C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger, Luis V. Gutierrez, Debbie Wasserman Schultz, and Christopher S. Murphy.

---

AMENDMENTS

Under clause 8 of rule XVIII, proposed amendments were submitted as follows:

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. POMPEO

AMENDMENT NO. 24: Page 62, after line 2, insert the following new section:

SEC. 609. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to carry out the Vehicle Technologies Program of the Department of Energy.

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. MCKINLEY

AMENDMENT NO. 25: Page 24, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert “(increased by $39,000,000)”.

Page 28, line 13, after the dollar amount, insert “(reduced by $39,000,000)”.

H.R. 2354

OFFERED BY: MR. COLE

AMENDMENT NO. 26: At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. _____. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to implement any rule, regulation, or executive order regarding the disclosure of political contributions that takes effect on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

LETTER OF COMMENDATION FOR
MR. WILLARD "SMITTY" SMITH,
USN (RET.)

HON. E. SCOTT RIGELL

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. RIGELL. Mr. Speaker, it is a high honor and privilege to commend Mr. Willard Smith of Virginia Beach, a patriot known to his friends and peers affectionately simply as "Smitty."

Smitty is not only recognized for his notable military service in the United States Navy, but for his commitment to the wellbeing and recovery of more than 500 of our nation's brave but now homeless veterans. After five tours of duty in Vietnam as a Navy Seabee, Smitty serves as Executive Director at Vetshouse, a unique nonprofit organization serving homeless veterans in the Tidewater area in Virginia. Vetshouse is not a shelter, but a 12-month program providing contemporary living quarters in a group environment, assistance in job hunting, transportation, personal skills and development guidance.

For having the courage not only to turn his own life around, but for having the compassion and commitment to help his fellow man do the same; For bringing health, hope, and happiness into the lives of so many around him; And for his discipline, dedication, and devotion to our nation's treasured veterans; I hereby commend Mr. Willard "Smitty" Smith.

TRIBUTE TO MR. DARRYL ANTHONY PANDY, INTERNATIONALLY ACCLAIMED HOUSE MUSIC PIONEER

HON. BOBBY L. RUSH

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor the life and labor of Mr. Darryl Anthony Pandy who made his heavenly transition on Friday, June 10, 2011. Darryl was a gifted vocalist who elevated the House music genre to international status in the mid 1980s.

One of the most sought-after voices in the House music world, the Chicago native with a 6-1/2-octave voice range was the lead vocal on "Love Can't Turn Around," a track by Chicago's Farley (Jackmaster Funk) Keith. The record was a United States club hit, but crossed over into the mainstream in the United Kingdom on London Records in August, 1986 and peaked at number 2 on Billboard's charts five weeks later. The song's surprising European success earned Darryl a coveted British Phonographic Industry (BPI) Award for dance music. In 1997, "Love Can't Turn Around" was re-released in the UK and peaked at number 40.

Other music hits included "Animal Magnetism", "Climax", "I Love Music", "Heaven's In Your Heart", "Love Turns To Pain", and "Work Your Body". In 1999, Darryl teamed up with CZR to record "Bad Enough", and reunited with Farley on the gospel house hit "He's My Best Friend". He released "Joy" with Dutch Johnson in 2003, "Dancing" with Laurent Wolf in 2004 and in 2005, he teamed up with René Süss to release "Clap Your Hands on the Dancefloor" on German imprint Tiefenrausch Records.

Darryl, who grew up in the Cabrini-Green public housing development, was a long-time member of Chicago's Life Center Church of God in Christ under Pastor T. L. Barrett.

Mr. Speaker, I was privileged to know Darryl and I want to encourage his mother, Beverly Garrett, his siblings William Harold Washington III and Krystal Garrett and his many friends and fans to always remember to look to the hills from which comes all of their help. Darryl's talent will be missed but through his music his legacy will live on. I am honored to pay tribute to this gifted music legend.

RECOGNIZING THE LIFE AND ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE LATE COMMAND SERGEANT MAJOR JAKE BREWER

HON. PATRICK J. TIBERI

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. TIBERI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and recognize the life and achievements of the late Command Sergeant Major Jake Brewer.

Throughout the entirety of his life, CSM Brewer epitomized the American spirit and exceptionalism. He committed himself and his career to this nation. His love of country and pursuit of helping others made him a beloved figure around central Ohio.

CSM Brewer, a two-war veteran who earned a bronze star for valor, served this nation valiantly during the Battle of the Bulge in World War II as a combat medic and was wounded fighting in Korea. His role in these historic conflicts represented a foreshadowing of his life's mission. Akin to the way he aided others on the battlefield in Europe and Korea, CSM Brewer went on to become a famed veterans' advocate in central Ohio.

During his stellar career serving veterans, CSM Brewer held many influential positions and acquired many distinct honors and accolades. He was a state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and executive director of the United Service Organization (USO) of Central and Southern Ohio. Quite fittingly, the USO lounge at Port Columbus bears his name. Also, he helped construct the Military Veterans Education Foundation which assists in running Columbus' Veterans Day Parade and Armed Forces Luncheon. In my opinion, Jake was a human being of immeasurable quality, one who possessed a winning character and benevolent nature. I and many other Ohioans were proud to have known him.

After 87 years of life, Jake Brewer recently passed away leaving a legacy of unwavering service to his country and to central Ohio. In light of his contributions and service, I believe he remains worthy of immense respect and admiration. He will be a sorely missed member of our community and his influence will resonate for years to come.

RECOGNIZING LIEUTENANT COMMANDER STEPHEN A. MARTY, UNITED STATES NAVY

HON. KAY GRANGER

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize Lieutenant Commander Stephen A. Marty as he prepares to leave the Navy's Appropriations Matters Office (FMBE) after three years of dedicated service to my distinguished colleagues of the House Appropriations Committee. Lieutenant Commander Marty's high energy approach and solid effort to foster relationships with Members of Congress and Congressional Staff ensured my staff received timely and accurate information on the Department of the Navy's medical programs. This account is especially important to me because it directly impacts our nation's wounded warriors.

I have worked with Lieutenant Commander Marty throughout his tenure in FMBE. His expertise in representing Navy Medical programs worth over $6 billion annually helped the Department of the Navy achieve strategic and budgetary objectives for all medical accounts, including critical supplies and equipment for our nation's war fighters and wounded warriors. Additionally, Lieutenant Commander Marty meticulously planned and executed several challenging international Congressional Delegations for the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee. Throughout each trip he ensured that the Subcommittee achieved its aims.

Lieutenant Commander Marty's outstanding tenure in FMBE exemplified the dedicated leadership, superb professionalism, and unwavering integrity that is the hallmark of a fine Naval officer. Through his duties as a Congressional Appropriations Liaison, he has had a positive influence on the Navy, its Sailors and Officers. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues today in saying thank you to Lieutenant Commander Stephen A. Marty for his

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

dedication and service throughout his distinguished tour in FMBE.

HONORING THE LIFE OF LOUIS
BEECHERL

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor the life of Louis Beecherl, a great Dallas businessman, political activist, philanthropist, and community servant. Mr. Beecherl, who passed away on July 5th, 2011, was a founding member and CEO of Texas Oil & Gas Corp. from 1957–1977, was appointed chairman of the University of Texas Board of Regents in 1987, and was most recently the owner of Beechrel Holdings.

In 2002, Mr. Beecherl was inducted into the Texas Business Hall of Fame and is recognized as being a leader in expanding Texas' economy. He also devoted his time and resources as a GOP benefactor, supporting various political campaigns, and the National Republican Congressional Committee. Furthermore, Mr. Beecherl will be remembered as a community servant and has been involved in countless organizations. He has served as President of the Boy Scouts of America Circle Ten Council, was as an Advisory Board Member of the Salvation Army in Dallas County, and has served as the Chair of the Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA) Capital Campaign Advisory Committee.

Mr. Speaker, it is with great honor that I rise to remember the life of Louis Beecherl; a great Texan, businessman, and above all, a devoted husband and father. It is my privilege to have this opportunity to honor his life and legacy.

IN HONOR OF ROAD RAGE
AWARENESS WEEK

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and recognition of Road Rage Awareness Week—a week created by Reaching Out Against Road Rage, Inc. to encourage safer driving practices and to prevent unnecessary violence on the roads.

Reaching Out Against Road Rage, Inc., or R.O.A.R.R. is a nonprofit organization located in Muskegon County, Michigan. R.O.A.R.R., was established by Kay Foster-Shabazz, two years after the death of her twenty year-old daughter, Diyamond, in a road rage related incident in 2002. Since its establishment, the mission of R.O.A.R.R. has been to prevent road rage, protect and support victims of road rage and to promote the saving of lives.

R.O.A.R.R. has been working to reduce the number of road rage related incidents by promoting awareness and providing educational tools. In addition, R.O.A.R.R. pledges to assist victims and their families throughout the recovery process by providing a multitude of resources.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in recognizing Road Rage Awareness Week, July 10–16, 2011. The hard work of Reaching Out Against Road Rage, Inc. has made the roads safer for everyone.

ON THE OCCASION OF THE INDE-PENDENCE OF THE REPUBLIC OF SOUTH SUDAN

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, we are here today to mark a great day in the history of democracy, a great day for Africa, and a great day for the United States.

On Saturday, July 9th, the Republic of South Sudan becomes Africa's 54th country and the world's newest nation. This is an outcome that would likely have been inconceivable for most Sudanese only a few years ago. South Sudan's declaration of independence is a testament to their resolve and determination to be free.

The United States should also be proud of this momentous achievement, and I would like to congratulate the Obama Administration and the Bush Administration for maintaining the vision and unwavering commitment to stand with the people of this great new country through their struggle. I am thrilled that the White House has sent a high level delegation, led by Ambassador Susan Rice, to the burgeoning new capital of South Sudan, to celebrate with our newest ally.

Former Secretary of State Colin Powell will accompany Ambassador Rice. I'm pleased that our colleague Congressman DONALD PAYNE, a leader of the Sudan Caucus and a forceful advocate for Sudanese self determination, will be with the delegation, as will the senior diplomats Johnnie Carson and Princeton Lyman who have worked to make this day possible, and Gen. Carter Ham, the commander of the U.S. Africa Command. Under-scoring our past and future commitment to human rights and economic opportunity and development in Sudan, Donald Steinberg, Deputy Administrator of USAID and Ken Hackett, of Catholic Relief Services, are also part of the White House delegation.

As in so many struggles for democracy, the final joy of liberation emerged only after many seasons of pain and loss. We join the South Sudanese in honoring those who struggled, suffered and died over decades of conflict in the effort to celebrate this great democratic achievement. Two million of their brothers and sisters died in the struggle, and twice that number were forced from their homes. This loss is felt today, and will take a generation or more to recover from.

Indeed, we must recognize that our new ally faces serious challenges. South Sudan holds oil wealth, but is still extraordinarily poor. The new capital, Juba, is expanding at a fast pace, but the country is bereft of an infrastructure that can support commerce and development. This huge new country of more than 250,000 square miles has less than 50 miles of paved roads.

On average, a family in South Sudan must spend 30 minutes just to secure their water for cooking and bathing, and their water is often not safe to drink. This is no doubt one reason why South Sudan suffers a rate of infant mortality that is among the highest in the world. And Sudan is one of the most dangerous places in the world to be a mother. In fact, a girl in Sudan is more likely to die in childbirth than to receive a primary education. We must recommit ourselves to a new independence for Sudan: independence from poverty.

And we must also recognize today that the people of both the new republic and the state from which it split continue to suffer the cruel and indiscriminate evil of conflict. Even now, so soon after the referendum in which nearly 99 percent of South Sudanese voiced their intention to be free, we have witness to a vicious armored assault on Abyei that displaced some 100,000 people in May, while destroying homes, churches and businesses. And in June, the Khartoum government unleashed a further assault on Sudanese civilians, this time in south Kordofan State. The people of this region largely identify with South Sudan.

And so we also must recommit ourselves to Sudan's independence from war. I know that the Obama Administration intends to stand with our new ally in these other, critical liberation struggles. I ask my colleagues to join me as we remind Juba and Khartoum that we are still watching, and we remain attentive to the cause of peace with justice in both countries, including in Kordofan, Blue Nile, Abyei and, not least, Darfur.

And as we learned with the defeat of the Soviets in Afghanistan, let us not abandon them after we worked so hard to help them secure their freedom.

CONGRATULATING THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA FOR WINNING THE BID FOR THE 2018 OLYMPIC GAMES

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I would like to rise today to express my congratulations to The Republic of Korea for successfully winning the bid to host the 2018 Winter Olympic Games. Yesterday, the International Olympic Committee selected the beautiful site of Pyeongchang, in the Taebaek mountain region, as the host city for the 2018 Games.

These 2018 Winter Games will take place 30 years following the successful 1988 Seoul Summer Olympic Games. That year marked the international recognition of the Republic of Korea's maturation as a leading economic power and the emergence of the country as a liberal democracy. In the 3 decades since, South Korea has grown and matured at a remarkable speed so that it now has the world's 11th largest economy and is one of the top trading partners of the United States.

No doubt many Korean immigrants to the United States and their descendants are celebrating as a result of this announcement, and justifiably so. The Olympic Games provide any country the opportunity to shine, and I expect that Korea will shine brightly in 2018.

As co-chair of the Congressional Caucus on Korea, I wish to add my voice to the many Americans—both friends of Korea and sports enthusiasts—who today are cheering on the excellent choice of Pyeongchang as the site of the 2018 Winter Olympics.

IN HONOR OF MS. DORIS O'DONNELL

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Doris O'Donnell on the occasion of her 90th birthday.

Ms. O'Donnell was born on July 10, 1921 and grew up in the Old Brooklyn neighborhood of Cleveland. Her family was heavily involved in the community; her father was a fireman, her mother was a Democratic ward leader, and her uncle was the county sheriff.

Her career in print journalism began in 1944, starting at the Cleveland News. She would go on to work at numerous newspapers, including the Lake County News-Herald, the Tribune-Review based in Greensburg, Pennsylvania, and the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ms. O'Donnell was a pioneer for female journalism. Her career spanned over five decades, and she covered such topics as police, the court system, organized crime, and local politics. She was the first female reporter to reach "superstar" status in the Cleveland area, and she won more state and local journalism awards than any female journalist in history.

She was known as a big-story reporter, and was able to use her fearless and brass-knuckles reporting style to report on such items as the Kremlin, and the assassinations of John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, and Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr. Ms. O'Donnell's late husband, former Cleveland News city editor, passed away in 1976. Ms. O'Donnell currently lives in suburban Cleveland and serves on the board of a charitable foundation.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, please join me in honoring Ms. Doris O'Donnell, a woman whose relentless pursuit of the truth enabled her to rise to the top of Cleveland journalism, and whose brilliant career was a gift to the Cleveland community.

A TRIBUTE TO MISS SUSIE
MUSHATT JONES

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Miss Susie Mushatt Jones for her love of life and service to her children.

Miss Susie as those close to her call her, was born in Lowndes County, Alabama, as the third of 11 children. Being raised in the segregated south, Miss Susie developed a warm and kind heart from the love her mother and father expressed. Throughout her life she has been led by a basic principle of giving all that she has, while living an upbeat life.

Miss Susie looks favorably and positively on her early life. After graduating from high school, she taught for two months before going to New Jersey in 1922. In New Jersey, Miss Susie worked for a wealthy white family which gave her the opportunity to travel from coast to coast. Using her resources, Miss Susie was able to send two of her nieces to college while sending lavish gifts to other family members. While traveling between coasts Miss Susie looks back fondly on her time spent in Hollywood where she was able to meet movie stars such as Clark Gable, Cary Grant, and George Raft.

Before retiring in 1965, during the height of the civil rights movement, she took a job with a Westchester County family that offered her great resources that would further support her family. Recently Miss Susie lost her vision, but has managed to still be an active member in her community, carrying on with an infectious laugh and upbeat attitude. She remains an active member of The Vandalia Houses tenant patrol, sitting in the lobby asking guests to sign in.

Miss Susie Jones has lived a full and joyful life, and celebrated her 112th birthday this week. She is believed to be the oldest living New Yorker! The Vandalia Senior Center funded by NYC Department for the Aging and sponsored by Millennium Development will be hosting a party later in the month to honor this milestone.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the life of Miss Susie Mushatt Jones.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. WILLIAM R. KEATING

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Speaker, I was unavailable for votes on July 6th and a portion of July 7th, 2011, as I was attending the funeral services for Sgt. Matthew Gallagher, a constituent who was killed while serving this country in Iraq on June 26, 2011. Sgt. Gallagher would have turned 23 years old on July 5th, a mere day before we welcomed his body home to Cape Cod and two days before he was laid to rest.

While each fallen service member is a tragic loss for our country, it is their loved ones who have to live with this heartache every day. I hope that the families of our fallen warriors can find even the slightest measure of comfort in our nation's eternal gratitude for their loved one's service and sacrifice.

A TRIBUTE TO JOSEPH MARC
GALLET DE SAINT AURIN

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate and recognize Joseph Marc Gallet De Saint Aurin's formal induction into the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

Joseph's induction on June 30th begins his 47-month journey at the United States Naval Academy as he strives towards a career as a commissioned officer in the United States Navy. The United States Naval Academy was established in 1845 with a mission to help midshipmen develop morally, mentally and physically. Obtaining an appointment to this academy is a highly competitive process and based on evidence of character, scholarship, leadership ability, physical aptitude, goals and motivation.

Joseph has embodied these traits over the course of his life. In high school Joseph managed to maintain a 4.0 cumulative grade point average while balancing his roles as a student athlete, school council member, part-time employee, and volunteer by serving more than 100 hours at his church, local hospital, and various service programs. Joseph was also a member of the National Honor Society and received numerous awards as both a swimmer and as a student, including being named a three-time All-American, three-time State Champion, in addition to graduating with honors as an AP Scholar. Before his appointment Joseph also attended Iowa State University for a year and continued his path of excellence by maintaining high academics as a member of Phi Gamma Delta and the United States Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps. Joseph has consistently strove to be the best he could be and I am confident that he will continue to demonstrate these qualities at the United States Naval Academy.

Mr. Speaker, Joseph's commitment to a cause greater than himself speaks volumes of this young man and the potential that he holds. I commend his parents, Andre and Lisa, for their outstanding work as parents, and for their shared sacrifice as Joseph leaves their home. It is truly an honor to represent such an exceptional family. I ask my colleagues in the United States House of Representatives to join me in congratulating Joseph and his family, and I wish him the best of luck in his studies and future career.

NAVY'S NORTHWEST TRAINING RANGE COMPLEX

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I submit a copy of an amendment that I had hoped to introduce during the debate of H.R. 2219, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2012. However, I have learned that this important amendment would have been subject to a point of order and not be made in order.

My amendment would bar any funds in H.R. 2219 for the purposes of expanded training activities in the Navy's Northwest Training Range Complex (NWTRC). Once the Navy receives a new letter of authorization from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), taking into account marine mammal "takes," my amendment would then allow the Navy to use funds from this bill to expand their training operations in the NWTRC.

The Northwest Training Range Complex is a region of extraordinary biological diversity. It covers over 120,000 square nautical miles, spanning from Washington's border with Canada to waters off of my district in Northern California.

The Navy has used the NWTRC for training for the past 60 years. However, in October 2010, the Navy was permitted to expand training in the NWTRC that among other things involves increased use of mid-frequency active sonar.

As a military veteran, I strongly believe that sailors must have the training and experience they need to defend our country. However, I also believe that the Federal Government should follow science-based measures that will protect marine ecosystems and wildlife when the military pursues this necessary training.

Unfortunately, the use of mid-frequency active sonar is known to negatively impact marine mammals, especially toothed whales. And, its impact on many other fish species is not known.

NOAA conducted a comprehensive review of measures currently available to prevent harm to marine mammals from the use of sonar. One of the main findings of this review was that the most effective way to minimize impacts on marine mammals would be to protect important habitat, and NOAA is now coordinating a working group specifically to identify these areas within the NWTRC, also known as "marine mammal hot spots."

I have worked aggressively with constituents in my district to raise these issues to the Navy; however our concerns were simply dismissed without being addressed. In fact, the Navy has not been willing to consider avoiding or even limiting their training activities in specific areas that have been known to be heavily populated by marine mammals and other species and habitats, to reduce the impact of sonar training exercises on them.

That is why I wanted to introduce this amendment—to guarantee that these serious and scientifically valid concerns are actually considered and addressed before the Navy moves forward with their plans of expanding training activities in the NWTRC.

It is important to note that this amendment is not about stopping Navy training altogether, that some argue would negatively impact our national security and military readiness. Instead this amendment is about requiring the Navy to be more deliberate when moving forward to expand training range activities that would undoubtedly impact local marine habitat.

I am disappointed that this important amendment was going to be ruled out of order. However, I wanted to once again put on record my concerns about this expanded training and its impact on marine mammals and sensitive marine habitat. I will continue to work with stakeholder to address this important issue.

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 2219, AS REPORTED
OFFERED BY MR. THOMPSON OF CALIFORNIA

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for Navy training activities in the Northwest Training Range Complex beyond the number enumerated in the "No Action Alternative" of the Final Environmental Impact Statement/Overseas Environmental Impact Statement for the Northwest Training Range Complex until a letter of authorization issued pursuant to section 101(a)(5) of the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 1371(a)(5)) and covering the second year of training activity under subpart M of part 218 of title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, expires or is superseded.

HONORING ROBERT "BOB"
GILBERT

HON. JEFF DENHAM

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. DENHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge and honor Robert "Bob" Gilbert on being named the California State Fair "Agriculturist of the Year," and to thank him for his dedication to the agriculture community.

Bob Gilbert was born November 7, 1923, in Oakdale in the home he now lives in. He attended Oakdale Elementary and High Schools. He is the only surviving child of Emma and Amos Lawrence Gilbert. He currently works full time and is Chairman of the Board of Directors of A. L. Gilbert Company which was established November 1st, 1892, 118 years ago, by his father; A. L. Gilbert. It is the oldest still-in-the-family-business in Stanislaus County. A. L. Gilbert Company was inducted into the State of California Agricultural Heritage Club in 2005.

Bob was a freshman at Modesto Junior College on December 7, 1941. Following the attack on Pearl Harbor, he transferred to the University of California, Berkeley, and enrolled in the V-1 and V-12 Naval Programs. He received his commission from the United States Naval Reserve Mid-Shipman School at Northwestern University in Chicago at age 20.

After completing graduate school at the Naval Gun Factory in Washington, DC, he was assigned to duty on a new battle cruiser; the USS Guam, which was being commissioned in Philadelphia. This flag ship served in the 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 9th Pacific Fleets, and accepted the surrender of the Japanese in Korea in August of 1945. He returned to the United States on December 4, 1945, and married Beverly Stone on December 9th. They spent seven months in New Jersey while the battle cruiser was being mothballed.

Bob graduated from U. C. Berkeley under the G.I. Bill, receiving a B. S. in Agricultural Economics. In 1947 as a graduate student, he traveled over 4,000 miles covering the entire state of California. He spent seven days a week for six weeks with Professor Earl Storie, father of the Storie Soils Index, studying soil conditions which enable farmers to grow over 150 crops in California. He returned home in the fall of 1947, four months after his father died and joined the family business.

Bob discovered that agriculture was lacking in price enhancing marketing programs so he became involved in "END PRODUCT MARKETING." He has spent the last 60 years of his life as an advocate for agriculture. Over that time he worked building personal relationships with both industry and government on behalf of farmers and livestock producers, such as: California Department of Food and Agriculture, marketing and stabilization plans along with production cost studies; USDA and several Secretaries of Agriculture including Ezra Taft Benson, Earl Butz, Dick Lyng and Ann Veneman following trade policy, parity pricing and supply management programs; Food and Drug Administration; new drug applications, safety and efficacy; California Milk Advisory Board; allied industry support and awards; California and National Cattlemen's Marketing Committees—conducting extensive research studies; United States Congress, both House and Senate—working on key legislation and testifying in hearings; universities and research centers—throughout the United States; marketing research for Hershey Chocolate, 1962–1966—instrumental in their locating in California and Oakdale.

Some honors received include: 1964 Honorary Farmer Degree from Modesto Junior College; State Fair Grange Agriculture Day for contributions to milk pooling legislation; Grand Marshall, Oakdale Rodeo Parade; Rotary Paul Harris Fellowship, although not a Rotarian; Western United Dairymen Award for Outstanding Support of California Dairy Farmers; 50 years of economic testimony at CDFA hearings; Oakdale Chamber of Commerce and City of Oakdale Lifetime Achievement Award; California Dairy Campaign Award for dedication, strong leadership and unselfish giving; National Ag Science Center—Received 2005 induction into the Agricultural Hall of Fame.

Religious commitment: Served eight years on the Commission of Ministry for the Episcopal Diocese of San Joaquin; supportive and active in a wide cross-section of Christian churches to further ecumenical causes; has received many honors and awards from various religious orders and fraternal bodies.

Bob has served on the Animal Science and Development Boards at the University of California, Davis. Currently, and for the past 18 years, he has also served on the prestigious Advisory Board of the College of Natural Resources and Environmental Science at the University of California, Berkeley.

In 1992 on the 100th Anniversary of Oakdale High School, the "Hall of Fame" was established. Bob was among the first 10 graduates ever honored for Outstanding Achievements and Exceptional Service.

Bob has traveled abroad extensively for the past 40 years, visiting over 90 countries, some many times, studying production and marketing agriculture as globalization has developed. This includes attending the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

Bob's wife, Beverly, has been an integral part of all that he has done over the past 65 years. He continues to be a well-respected and active educator, business leader, patriot, politician, member of the laity, family man, student of and advocate for agriculture, and an exemplary citizen of the United States and the world.

A TRIBUTE TO ADAM GREGORY HAGENSICK

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate and recognize Adam Hagensick's formal induction into the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

Adam's induction on June 30th begins his 47-month journey at the United States Naval Academy as he strives towards a career as a commissioned officer in the United States Navy. The United States Naval Academy was established in 1845 with a mission to help midshipmen develop morally, mentally and physically. Obtaining an appointment to this academy is a highly competitive process and based on evidence of character, scholarship, leadership ability, physical aptitude, goals and motivation.

Adam has embodied these traits over the course of his life. In high school Adam managed to stay in the top 15 percent of his class while balancing his roles as a student athlete, Sunday School teacher, member of St. John's Lutheran Youth Group, and as a volunteer swim coach for the Waukon Swim Club. Adam was also a member of the National Honor Society and received numerous awards as a swimmer including a decade as a state qualifier as well as a national qualifier in 2009. Last year, Adam proudly accepted the Jack McDonald Award for Outstanding Male Swimmer which is awarded for team leadership and dedication to one's team and sport. I am confident that Adam will carry the lessons of his student leadership to his new classmates at the United States Naval Academy.

Mr. Speaker, Adam's commitment to a cause greater than himself speaks volumes of this young man and the potential that he holds. I commend his parents, Gregory and Ann, for their great work as parents and for their shared sacrifice as Adam leaves their home. It is truly an honor to represent such an outstanding family. I ask my colleagues in the United States House of Representatives to join me in congratulating Adam and his family, and I wish him the best of luck in his schooling and future career.

COMMEMORATING THE HEROISM OF THE U.S. ARMY'S 65TH INFANTRY REGIMENT BETTER KNOWN AS "THE BORINQUENEERS"

HON. BILL POSEY

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. POSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to bring to my colleagues' attention the celebration taking place in Osceola County, Florida, later this month. More specifically, on July 24, 2011, the Committee Desfile Puertorriqueno de Osceola, Inc., has chosen to dedicate the First Annual Puerto Rican Day Parade to commemorate the heroism of the U.S. Army's 65th Infantry Regiment, better known as "The Borinqueneers."

I rise today to join them in this recognition as we come together to celebrate the Borinqueneers, their commitment to the liberties of the United States, and their specific military achievements on the front line of the battlefield in advancing the values upon which this nation was founded.

On March 2, 1899, Congress authorized the establishment of the Army unit that became known as the "The Borinqueneers," an all-volunteer Puerto Rican unit. This brave unit was called upon to serve in World War I, World War II, and the Korean War and fought valiantly under the motto "Honor et Fidelitas," meaning Honor and Fidelity.

When "The Borinqueneers" were called to the front lines during the Korean War, General MacArthur said of the unit, "The Puerto Ricans forming the ranks of the gallant 65th Infantry on the battlefields of Korea . . . are writing a brilliant record of achievement in battle and I am proud indeed to have them in this command. I wish that we might have more like them."

The Borinqueneers consistently demonstrated exceptional and unyielding valor on the battlefield despite the hardships they endured. As a unit, they earned a Presidential Unit Citation, a Meritorious Unit Commendation and two Republic of Korea Unit Citations. Individuals within the regiment were also awarded Distinguished Service Crosses, Silver Stars and Bronze Stars.

I am honored to pay tribute to the service that "The Borinqueneers" have provided our nation.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for this opportunity to pay tribute to these fine soldiers.

TRIBUTE TO OPERATIONAL TECHNOLOGIES

HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Operational Technologies (OpTech) on its 25th anniversary of providing business expansion opportunities and incredible employment sources for many San Antonians.

Founded by Max Navarro a quarter-century ago, OpTech has been committed to excellence and strives to provide scientific and technical solutions for global clients across a range of service sectors. OpTech focuses on areas ranging from Supply Chain Management, Biotechnology, and Automotive Industry. OpTech has succeeded in exceeding client expectations and the achievement of outstanding corporate citizenship through its adherence to the highest levels of professional integrity.

From securing the defense contract to develop a nerve gas antidote or constructing an $850 million state-of-the-art manufacturing plant to assemble the Toyota Tundra pick-up truck, OpTech has made great strides towards providing San Antonio a promising economic future.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Operational Technologies on their continued success and contribution to San Antonio as a leading minority owned business.

SUPPORT FOR A TWO-STATE SOLUTION

HON. MICHAEL E. CAPUANO

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my support for a two-state solution to the conflict between Israelis and Palestinians. I believe peace can be achieved only through negotiations between the parties. I believe, further, that these negotiations must be based upon mutual respect and upon the unequivocal commitment of each to the rights of the other, including the right to live in peace and security in a sovereign state. Because I believe this, I supported H. Res. 268. I did not, however, vote "yes" because I felt the resolution was likely to promote those ends. I voted in the affirmative because I could not take exception to its substance.

I oppose and I believe the United States should continue to oppose a unilateral declaration of statehood by the Palestinians, with a veto in the Security Council, if necessary. I believe that Hamas should accept the conditions set forth by the Quartet—the UN, the EU, the Russian Federation, as well as the United States—to renounce violence and acknowledge the right of Israel to exist. That said, I am not sure that it is helpful to the Palestinians, or to Arab governments in transition to democracy, to threaten suspending assistance to the Palestinian Authority as they seek to bring the West Bank and Gaza closer to a position from which negotiations with Israel could take place. If the resolution had called for the outright suspension of aid, rather than the consideration of its suspension, I would have had more difficulty supporting it. I would prefer, too, that the resolution had encouraged Israel to take positive steps, such as limiting settlement expansion, towards reconciliation with its neighbors.

I look forward to constructive U.S. engagement in real bargaining, not just in an interminable "peace process." I hope leaders in Israel and in Palestine will have the courage to present realistic options to their people, and I would like to see the United States foster serious diplomacy.

A TRIBUTE TO AARON D. SPRENGELER

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and congratulate Aaron Daniel Sprengeler for achieving the rank of Eagle Scout.

The Eagle Scout rank is the highest advancement rank in scouting. Only about five percent of Boy Scouts earn the Eagle Scout Award. The award is a performance based achievement whose standards have been rigorously maintained over the years.

To earn the Eagle Scout rank, a Boy Scout is obligated to pass specific tests that are organized by requirements and merit badges, as well as completing an Eagle Project to benefit the community. Aaron's project was to oversee and construct stairs and a bridge at the McHose Park Disc Golf Course in Boone, Iowa. This project allowed Aaron to demonstrate both his organizational and leadership skills as he directed the trail's construction and design. Aaron's efforts not only improved the overall accessibility of the course, but also provided much needed safety improvements that disc golfers can now enjoy for years to come.

Mr. Speaker, the example set by this young man and his supportive family demonstrates the rewards of hard work, dedication and perseverance. Aaron's efforts embody the Iowa spirit and I am honored to represent him and his family in the United States Congress. I know that all of my colleagues will join me in congratulating him on achieving an Eagle Scout ranking and will wish him continued success in his future education and career.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. ALLYSON Y. SCHWARTZ

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Ms. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, during roll-call vote No. 518, the Sherman Amendment on H.R. 2219, I mistakenly recorded my vote as "yes" when I should have voted "no".

H.R. 1249, THE "AMERICA INVENTS ACT"

HON. HENRY C. "HANK" JOHNSON, JR.

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the "America Invents Act." I strongly support this bill, which will foster innovation, economic growth, and help America maintain its global competitive edge.

If we are going to have a healthy economy and be a global leader, we must have a healthy intellectual property system. In order to have a healthy intellectual property system, we must modernize our laws. Patent reform is integral to our economy.

Currently, the United States is the world leader in issuing patents. In order to maintain our position and solidify our position as a global leader, we must enact patent reform as soon as possible.

America is now on its way to the most significant patent reform in more than half a century. Our current patent system is outdated and in need in major reform. Pursuant to Article I, Section 8, Clause 8, "Congress shall have Power . . . [t]o promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries." This bill will strengthen our patent system and encourage innovation and drive economic growth.

The "America Invents Act" includes much needed improvements to the patent system that will help to maintain America's place at the forefront of innovation. America's ability to drive economic growth and job creation through innovation is currently hampered by a massive backlog at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, USPTO. There is currently a backlog of approximately 700,000 patent applications.

While I preferred Section 22 of H.R. 1249, as reported by the Judiciary Committee, that would allow the USPTO to retain all of its user fees, I am supportive of the USPTO funding agreement that was reached in the House. It is intended to end fee diversion and provide the USPTO access to its user fees. Moreover, I believe in the overall goal of the bill to efficiently issue patents to businesses—especially small businesses and startups—to develop new products and create jobs. This compromise will allow the USPTO to process applications more efficiently and produce higher-quality patents which makes them less likely to be subject to a court challenge.

It is imperative that the USPTO have the resources it needs to hire more patent examiners and pay overtime to decrease this backlog. Every state in the United States of America has patent applications pending. In 2010, 2,194 patents were granted to residents in my home state of Georgia. The "America Invents Act" will ensure that residents in Georgia, and each and every State across the Nation, are granted patents in a speedy fashion.

This bill will help inventors like Lonnie Johnson in Atlanta, Georgia. He invented the Super Soaker that generated hundreds of millions of dollars in profits, created jobs and became the number one selling toy in America. Lonnie Johnson currently holds over 80 patents and has over 20 more pending. The sooner this 700,000 patent application backlog is cut down, the sooner Lonnie Johnson, and other inventors, can get their inventions to market, grow the economy, and create jobs.

Further, the "America Invents Act" will transition the United States from a first-to-invent system to a first-inventor-to-file system. This will bring the United States up to par with every other industrialized nation in the world. As business and competition becomes more global, patent applicants are increasingly filing patent applications in other countries for protection of their inventions. The first-to-invent filing system in the United States differs from that in other patent-issuing jurisdictions. This can cause confusion and inefficiencies for American companies and innovators.

In a first-inventor-to-file system, the filing date of the application is most relevant: it is an objective date and is simple to determine because it is listed on the face of the patent. In contrast, in a first-to-invent system, the date the invention claimed in the application was actually invented is the determinative date.

Unlike the objective date of filing, the date someone invents something is often uncertain, and, when disputed, typically requires corroborating evidence.

The first-inventor-to-file system will simplify the patent application system and harmonize it with the rest of the industrialized world, reduce costs, and improve the competitiveness of American inventors seeking protection globally. These changes are necessary for true, comprehensive patent reform.

I am extremely proud that our nation's universities will benefit from this bill. The patent system plays a critical role in enabling institutions like Georgia Institute of Technology and colleges belonging to the Atlanta University Center to transfer the discoveries arising from basic research into the commercial sector for development into products and processes that benefit society.

Patent reform is not a partisan issue, but an issue of the fairest way to encourage inventors and investors to create and develop new products that will benefit universities, create jobs, and spur economic growth.

Today marks a major milestone in moving this country forward. I was a freshman when patent reform last moved through the House in the 110th Congress. I am proud to be a part of this moment in history. The American people have waited long enough; Congress should act now to pass this important piece of legislation.

I strongly support the "America Invents Act" and urge my colleagues to do the same. We are close to the finish line and need to push on and finish the race.

THE REPUBLIC OF SOUTH SUDAN'S DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

HON. MICHAEL T. McCAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. McCAUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in recognition and support of Republic of South Sudan which will tomorrow become Africa's 54th country. As a co-chair of the House Sudan Caucus, I am grateful for the accomplishment of this successful milestone in the Comprehensive Peace Agreement process that has ended Sudan's 22-year civil war. In the past two decades, this civil war and famine took the lives of approximately two million people in Sudan.

The ability for South Sudan to declare for itself its own country is a testament to what can be achieved when a unified international community made of nation states, international organizations, and non-governmental organizations all come together to foster peace and assist in the resolution of difference between peoples.

Yet, the people of South Sudan still face many challenges. There is more infrastructure to be built, governmental processes to be developed, and a new currency to be established. There are also unsettled issues with its neighbor, the Republic of Sudan, such as ending violence and suffering in Darfur, a long-term oil revenue sharing agreement, border demarcation, fair distribution of debts, and establishing the qualifications for citizenship.

Tomorrow, we will celebrate the birth of a new nation. However, with this tremendous event should come a renewed commitment from the world to preserve peace and cultivate a bright and stable future for the South Sudanese people.

RECOGNIZING THE INDEPENDENCE OF SOUTH SUDAN

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the world's newest nation, the Republic of South Sudan. On July 9, 2011, after months of preparation, South Sudan will officially declare its independence from Sudan. In January 2011, South Sudan held a referendum on the issue of secession, where 97.5 percent of Southern Sudanese turned out to vote and an overwhelming 98.8 percent voted for separation. Tomorrow, the independence of South Sudan marks the end of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), which ended 22 years of war between northern and southern Sudan, and the birth of a new country based on the principles of self-determination, freedom, and justice.

However, South Sudan faces numerous challenges that will need to be resolved after its independence. South Sudan and Sudan still have to agree on issues such as revenue sharing, especially oil revenues, border disputes, security agreements, national debt, citizenship, and currency. In addition, South Sudan lacks two critical resources: government infrastructure and personnel, which are crucial to creating a strong and viable government.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate the people of South Sudan on achieving their dream of independence, and extend my deepest sympathies to those who lost loved ones in the fight for freedom. I encourage my colleagues in Congress to join me in commemorating the struggle and sacrifices of millions of Southern Sudanese, and to work with the international community to ensure that South Sudan becomes a politically and economically stable nation.

A TRIBUTE TO MARIE WATERMILLER

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Marie Watermillier of Hampton, Iowa on the recent celebration of her 100th birthday on June 24, 2011.

Marie was brought into this world on June 24, 1911 and more than 100 years later continues to live a vibrant life. Aside from her daily regimen of sewing, crocheting, and reading, Marie also stays busy by entertaining and quilting blankets for her 15 grandchildren, 42 great-grandchildren, and 5 great-great-grandchildren as she expects three more great-great-grandchildren within the year. Marie also spends her time assisting those that are ill by making lap robes to support the Church of the Living Word's most recent project.

There have been many changes that have occurred during the past 100 years. Since Marie's birth we have revolutionized air travel and walked on the moon. We have invented the television and the Internet. We have fought in wars overseas, seen the rise and fall of Soviet communism and the birth of new democracies. Marie has lived through 18 United States Presidents and 22 Governors of Iowa. In her lifetime the population of the United States has more than tripled.

I congratulate Ms. Watermillier for reaching this milestone of a birthday. I am extremely honored to represent Marie and her family in the United States Congress and I wish her happiness and health in her future years.

RECOGNIZING THE REPUBLIC OF SOUTH SUDAN ON THEIR DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

HON. SCOTT GARRETT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. GARRETT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Republic of South Sudan and their declaration of formal independence on July 9, 2011. Six months ago, the people of Southern Sudan spoke clearly when nearly 99 percent of the voters declared independence from the repressive government in Khartoum. While this is a historic moment for southern Sudan and its people, this nation faces great challenges in the infancy of its sovereignty.

For the Republic of South Sudan to prosper, a number of challenges must be overcome. Foremost, the country must determine questions as fundamental as citizenship rights and the location of borders with neighboring nations. Additionally, Southern Sudan must establish peace and security within its borders in order to sustain meaningful growth. North Sudanese governmental support for attacks on Southern Sudan have killed more than 1,000 civilians, and have displaced hundreds of thousands of men, women and children over the past year and a half. Simply put, these attacks must cease.

In terms of the economy, international agreements regarding Southern Sudan's debts must be negotiated, as well as the development of an infrastructure to allow for the efficient export of oil. However, even in these challenging and uncertain times, this young nation has demonstrated a commitment to improve the lives of its citizens. Recently, we have observed marked increases in commerce and trade, both domestically and internationally, thanks to the government's continued development of modern infrastructure. The ruling government has reached out to opposition groups within Southern Sudan in an honest effort to maintain national unity throughout this momentous process. While there are still hurdles to be overcome, today I recognize and congratulate the Sudanese people for their significant accomplishments in having reached this momentous occasion.

THE FINAL FLIGHT OF THE SPACE SHUTTLE PROGRAM ON JULY 8, 2011

HON. ALLEN B. WEST

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. WEST. Mr. Speaker, today we close another chapter in the history book of manned space flight. Today Americans around the Nation watched the final launch of the Space Shuttle Atlantis, a journey that began 30 years ago with the first flight of Space Shuttle Columbia.

For 135 times the Nation has turned their eyes to the State of Florida to watch the solid rocket boosters ignite and lift the Space Shuttle through the bounds of our Earth's atmosphere. Each mission of the Space Shuttles' primary goal was to continue to push the bounds of space exploration. With each mission the United States achieved another milestone of expanding man's frontier in space earning the respect and admiration of the world.

The State of Florida has been the epicenter for manned exploration of space. Over the last 50 years from Gemini, to Apollo, to the Space Shuttles, hundreds of thousands of Floridians have contributed their talents, energy and knowledge to explore space. Some have dedicated their lives to the exploration of space.

Today I would like to recognize the men and women over the last 30 years who worked on the Space Shuttle program. While the names of the astronauts will be recorded in the history books, we must also note the thousands of individuals who worked behind the scenes to make history by challenging the final frontier.

I am concerned about losing the workforce that has dedicated their knowledge to the exploration of our universe. I believe that we could lose a competitive and innovative edge that we maintain at the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Florida.

Soon the Space Shuttle Fleet will be shipped off to museums around the country and will become items that school children will visit to see America's past glories in space. These children will see these space exploration vehicles, then look towards the stars sparking their imagination to ask the question "what lies beyond?" However, when the Space Shuttle Atlantis lands in the next several days for the first time in my entire 50 years on Earth we will not have a vehicle or a plan to send humans from our planet into space.

The space program is essential to the State of Florida. Thousands of the brightest scientific minds reside in the area surrounding the Kennedy Space Center and billions of dollars of economic activity are generated in the States of Texas, California and my home State of Florida. In addition, since the Mercury Program, the Space Program has placed our Nation on the cutting edge of innovation.

President John F. Kennedy challenged our Nation to land a man of the Moon. In the space race with the Soviet Union, Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin placed an American flag on the lunar surface in 1969. Now the former Soviet Union is our taxi cab ride to the International Space Station at a cost of approximately $63 million a seat. Further, China is now building their ability to be the leaders in space exploration. This is unacceptable and the antithesis of American exceptionalism.

While we have had failures in the space program along the way, such as Apollo 1, Challenger and Columbia, when some individuals felt we should stop manned space flight after the Challenger accident, President Ronald Reagan stated: "We'll continue our quest in space. There will be more shuttle flights and more shuttle crews and, yes, more volunteers, more civilians, more teachers in space. Nothing ends here; our hopes and our journeys continue."

I am concerned that the United States has no plans for human exploration capability to go beyond Earth's orbit for an indeterminate time into the future. Space will always be challenging and dangerous, but we are Americans and we have always met our challenges and faced danger. And with regard to space we must continue the journey, focus on the stars, reach for the heavens, and be a leader in space exploration in the 21st century.

Americans, by our nature, do not accept being in second place. I am committed to ensuring that one day we again will be the leaders in manned space exploration.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. FRANK C. GUINTA

OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. GUINTA. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall votes No. 495–501, I am not recorded because I was absent from the U.S House of Representatives. Had I been present, I would have voted in the following manner.

On rollcall No. 495. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

On rollcall No. 496. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

On rollcall No. 497. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

On rollcall No. 498. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

On rollcall No. 499. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

On rollcall No. 500. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

On rollcall No. 501. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

IN TRIBUTE TO THE RONALD REAGAN PRESIDENTIAL FOUNDATION

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in tribute to The Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation and, in particular—Frederick Ryan, Jr., Chairman of the Foundation Board of Directors, and John Heubusch, Foundation Executive Director—and the Ronald Reagan Centennial Commission for their leadership in conducting a series of successful European events last week honoring our 40th President.

I and a number of my colleagues traveled to Europe last week to meet with our allies, particularly those in Eastern Europe, and to reassure them of America's continued friendship and support in light of Russia's continued commitment to one-party rule and suppression of human rights.

While there, we were fortunate to participate in several Foundation events honoring Ronald Reagan's role in bringing freedom to Eastern Europe. The people of Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic and other former communist satellite states know well how President Reagan's commitment to peace through strength led him to abandon the failed policy of détente and to embrace a policy of actively opposing communist regimes around the world.

That opposition led to the fall of the Berlin Wall and the Iron Curtain and to freedom for millions of people choked by the Soviet's stronghold on their nations. In Krakow, we attended a Mass of Thanksgiving in honor of Pope John Paul II and President Reagan, the two leaders the Polish people credit with inspiring their revolution against the Soviet empire. In Budapest, we participated in the unveiling of a statue of President Reagan in Freedom Square. In Prague, we participated in naming the street in front of the U.S. Ambassador's residence for President Reagan.

Those public displays only underline the true love Eastern Europeans have for President Reagan. In meetings with East European officials and chance meetings with local people in East European capitals, everyone was effusive in their praise of Ronald Reagan. Americans recognize the peace and prosperity President Reagan brought to the United States during his presidency. For Eastern Europeans, he helped bring them their very freedom.

As the author of the bill that created the Centennial Commission and as a member of the Commission, I was duly impressed with the events and tributes the Foundation and Commission, under the direction of Mr. Ryan and Mr. Heubusch, masterfully undertook both in Europe and the United States to honor Ronald Reagan this year.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues on both sides of the aisle join me in paying tribute to those who worked so hard to remember and honor a great president who changed the course of history both here and around the world and to thank them for their service to our Nation.

A TRIBUTE TO KACIA CAIN

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Ms. Kacia Cain, who teaches anatomy, physiology and biotechnology and was named outstanding biology teacher of the year for the state of Iowa by the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Ms. Cain previously taught biology at Des Moines East High School for 19 years before transferring this school year to Des Moines Central Campus High School. She is a native of Indianola, Iowa, and will be recognized in October at the National Association of Biology Teachers convention in Anaheim, California.

Having a hands-on teaching style has allowed Ms. Cain to be very successful with her students. Using resources from nearby colleges ensures that students are making as many connections with real world research experiences as possible.

I am honored to represent Kacia Cain in the United States Congress, and I wish her the best of luck in Anaheim, California. I also wish Ms. Cain the very best as she continues to serve as a mentor and role model to the students at Des Moines Central Campus High School. I know my colleagues in the U.S. Congress will join me in congratulating Kacia Cain.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN D. FILAMOR

HON. LAMAR SMITH

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of myself and Ranking Member CONYERS, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize John D. Filamor who is leaving the House to take a position with the Department of Justice. Mr. Filamor served in the Office of the General Counsel for 10 years, first as a law clerk while he was still a student at George Washington University Law School; from 2001–10 as an Assistant Counsel; and more recently as a Senior Assistant Counsel. We will miss him.

Mr. Filamor provided frequent and invaluable legal advice and representation to the House Committee on the Judiciary, as well as to Members, officers and other committees of the House more generally. Our staff came to rely on his expertise and guidance in connection with many of their investigative and oversight activities, as well as in connection with the Committee's interactions with the other branches of the Federal Government. Over the years, Mr. Filamor played a significant role in safeguarding the legal and institutional interests of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Filamor served the House with great distinction, and we know he will serve the Department of Justice with that same level of distinction. On behalf of the House Committee on the Judiciary, we thank him for his many years of devoted service, and extend to him our very best wishes for his continued success.

RECOGNIZING MILITARY SUICIDES: CONDOLENCE LETTERS

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to express my gratitude to President Obama for altering U.S. government policy to end the practice of denying condolence letters to the families of soldiers who commit suicide while serving abroad. I strongly support that change, and I applaud President Obama for taking this important step.

The men and women who commit suicide while serving our country on active duty overseas are casualties of war, and I strongly believe that they should be remembered as such. Those soldiers suffer the unseen wounds of war, which, though often ignored, can be devastating. Their sacrifice for our Nation should be honored and celebrated, and their surviving families and friends should know that we appreciate their loved ones' service.

In his statement announcing the policy change, the President emphasized that these men and women suffered the consequences of war, and they did not receive the services and treatment that they needed. As the President emphasized, that needs to change. We need to do far more to help those who bear the burden of our wars, by ensuring that they have the physical and emotional support they need, access to quality mental health services, and assistance to help them and their families cope with the immense stress of war.

By changing this policy, the President has taken an important step towards reducing the stigma surrounding the invisible injuries of war. We need to continue to work to ensure that soldiers know what services are available to them and feel comfortable seeking out the help that they need.

The act of sending a condolence letter recognizes the tragic loss and enormous sacrifice of our military families. The mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, sons and daughters who lose a loved one to either a visible or unseen wound of war should know that we, as a country, mourn their losses. We should honor the sacrifice of all who give their lives in the service of our country.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO A PUERTO RICAN-AMERICAN SUCCESS STORY—COMPOSER, LYRICIST AND ACTOR LIN-MANUEL MIRANDA

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate Mr. Lin-Manuel Miranda for all of his marvelous accomplishments. It is my pleasure to pay tribute to this prodigious composer, lyricist and actor. I want to give thanks to this exceptional constituent for sharing his vision and talents with the world for all to enjoy.

Mr. Miranda is a native New Yorker who grew up in Manhattan's diverse and vivacious Washington Heights neighborhood and is of Puerto Rican descent. He attended Hunter College High School and later graduated from Wesleyan University in 2002. While pursuing higher education he wrote his earliest draft of In the Heights in 1999. He also wrote, acted and directed several other musicals while attending Wesleyan. While in school he diligently worked to perfect his craft, so it is of no surprise that Mr. Miranda would later take such large strides toward the road of success.

His claim to fame comes from writing and starring as Usnavi in the Broadway musical In the Heights, which opened on Broadway at the Richard Rodgers Theater in 2008. This phenomenal musical composer has won the Tony Award as composer and lyricist. With his creativity and determination he was able to take an idea and catapult it into success. He took a risk and believed in his dream as well as himself. We can all learn from this fine example and believe in ourselves, especially when no one else will. We should all have the courage to live out our dreams, while inspiring others. Les Brown once said "Shoot for the moon. Even if you miss, you'll land among the stars." This is exactly what Mr. Miranda did and now he is taking his dreams and plays to new heights.

With his countless accomplishments, it is impossible to single out Mr. Miranda's greatest achievement, but one could say that In the Heights has won critical acclaim. This extraordinary theater piece has been nominated and has won countless awards, such as the 2009 Grammy for Best Musical Show Album, 2008 Tony Award for Best Musical, 2008 Tony Award for Best Original Score, and was a Finalist for the 2009 Pulitzer Prize for Drama, among many other accolades. As a performer, Mr. Miranda has also showcased his talents on many popular television series, including The Sopranos, House, Electric Company, Modern Family and Sesame Street. Mr. Miranda is also a co-founder of the popular hip-hop-improvisational group, Freestyle Love Supreme that has toured comedy festivals throughout the world and continues to perform at esteemed venues throughout the country.

The White House has taken notice of this rising star. In 2009 he was invited to perform at the White House Evening of Poetry, Music and the Spoken Word. The University of Yeshiva also took notice of his greatness and bestowed him with an honorary degree. He has also been acknowledged by former mayor of New York City Ed Koch. This young fresh talent continues to believe in his dream and make positive strides. He is currently working on a musical theatre version of Bring It On, which will start its National Tour in the fall of 2011.

Mr. Speaker, for this, I ask that you and my distinguished colleagues in Congress join me in applauding this prolific artist, who is truly an inspiration.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO UPDATE THE VPPA

HON. BOB GOODLATTE

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, today I am joined by my colleagues, Representatives COBLE, SENSENBRENNER and SANCHEZ in introducing a bipartisan bill to update the Video Privacy Protection Act of 1988, VPPA. This bill will ensure that a law related to the handling of video tape rental information is updated to reflect the realities of the 21st Century.

The VPPA was passed by Congress in the wake of Judge Robert Bork's 1987 Supreme Court nomination battle, during which a local Washington, DC, newspaper obtained a list of video tapes the Bork family rented from its neighborhood video tape rental store. This disclosure caused bipartisan outrage, which resulted in the enactment of the VPPA.

The commercial video distribution landscape has changed dramatically since 1988. Back then, the primary consumer consumption of commercial video content occurred through the sale or rental of prerecorded video cassette tapes. This required users to travel to their local video rental store to pick a movie. Afterward, consumers had to travel back to the store to return the rented movie. Movies that consumers rented and enjoyed were recommended to friends primarily through face-to-face conversations. With today's technology, consumers can quickly and efficiently access video programming through a variety of platforms, including through Internet Protocol-based video services—all without leaving their homes.

Our proposed amendment updates the VPPA to allow video tape service providers to facilitate the sharing on social media networks of the movies watched or recommended by users. Specifically, it is narrowly crafted to preserve the VPPA's protections for consumers' privacy while modernizing the law to empower consumers to do more with their video consumption preferences, including sharing names of new or favorite TV shows or movies on social media in a simple way. However, it protects the consumer's control over his information by requiring consumer consent before any of this can occur. And, it makes clear that a consumer can opt-in to the ongoing sharing of his or her favorite movies or TV shows without having to provide consent each and every time a movie is rented. It also makes clear that written, affirmative consent can be provided through the Internet and can be withdrawn at any time.

This amendment does not change the privacy standard adopted by Congress when the VPPA was first enacted. Specifically, it preserves the requirement that the users provide affirmative, written consent.

It is time that Congress updates the VPPA to keep up with today's technology and the consumer marketplace. This bill does just that.

I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this important piece of legislation.

CONGRATULATING DR. STEWART B. SIMMS

HON. PAUL C. BROUN

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. BROUN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct pleasure to congratulate Dr. Stewart B. Simms, Jr. for 30 years of excellent service at Beech Haven Baptist Church.

I am confident that Athens is a better place in which to live, work, and study because of the presence of his fine church. Beech Haven's building stands as a stunning landmark and the reputation of its members as a powerful testimony to the beauty of our God. Beech

Haven's success and strength is due, in large part, to Dr. Simms' faithfulness and care.

Many blessings as Dr. Simms continues on his journey of devoted service to the Lord. I not only value his friendship, but I hold him in the highest regard because of his work (1 Thessalonians 5:13).

HONORING MAJORS MANUEL AND JOANN MADRID OF THE ST. CLOUD SALVATION ARMY ON THEIR RETIREMENT AFTER 4 YEARS OF DEDICATED SERVICE IN OUR COMMUNITY AND 40 YEARS OF SERVICE WITH THE SALVATION ARMY

HON. MICHELE BACHMANN

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mrs. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Majors Manuel and JoAnn Madrid of the St. Cloud Salvation Army on their retirement after 4 years of dedicated service in our community and 40 years of service with the Salvation Army.

Since their arrival in St. Cloud 4 years ago, the St. Cloud Salvation Army has grown from 28 to 64 beds for the homeless, opened a transitional apartment housing program and broken ground for a new chapel last May. In the last two years alone, 47,000 people have entered the St. Cloud Salvation Army's doors for a meal, but they were blessed with so much more. From simple prayers for provision to places to rest their head at night, the Madrids have guided countless numbers of people from despair to hope with inspirational sermons, warm meals, and open arms.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that this body join with me in recognizing 40 years of service from Majors Manuel and JoAnn Madrid. Manuel and Joann live every day reflecting the mission of the Salvation Army: "motivated by the love of God . . . to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ and to meet human needs in His name without discrimination". We are grateful for their service and wish them many years of happiness in their retirement beginning this fall.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE INDEPENDENCE OF SOUTH SUDAN

HON. STEPHEN F. LYNCH

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, it is with an immense sense of hope that I rise today to congratulate the people of South Sudan on the eve of their independence.

South Sudan has overcome incredible devastation brought on by decades of violence and famine that killed and displaced millions. After years of brutal fighting, the Government of Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement signed a peace agreement in January 2005 that finally ended the civil war. And in January of this year the people of the south, by an overwhelming margin of 98.8 per cent to 1.17 per cent, peacefully voted for independence. The joy on the voters' faces as they cast their ballots, their hopes for the future, and their unshakeable resolve to determine their own fate was nothing short of inspirational.

South Sudan will face many challenges. There are still major issues to be addressed such as its frayed relations with Khartoum, the dispute over Abyei and the lack of agreement on borders, citizenship rights and other matters. In addition, there is the extremely worrisome violence that has grown in recent weeks in the northern border state of Southern Kordofan which has forced tens of thousands to flee. These tests will be difficult but I have no doubt that the people of South Sudan will continue to demonstrate the courage and strength of spirit that has brought them this far to take on these challenges. As they do so, the people of the United States will continue to support and stand by them as they build their new country.

However, tomorrow will be a day for celebrating a new nation that was able to overcome adversity and rise out of the ashes of genocide and civil war. On behalf of the people of the Ninth District of Massachusetts, I wish to extend my deepest congratulations to the people of South Sudan.

IN HONOR OF BETTY ROBERTS

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, Oregonians are mourning the passing of a pioneering female leader of truly historic dimension. Betty Roberts was a pioneer in every sense of the word.

There have been women in our community who as the first Oregon female Member of Congress or first Portland Mayor over half a century ago were pioneers—but Betty was unique.

Yes, Betty Roberts was the first woman to serve on Oregon's Court of Appeals and State Supreme Court. Her most important contributions began when she was the only woman in the State Senate. In this unique position of leadership she willfully tackled the problems that face women in politics and society. She understood the challenges facing women who were pioneering these efforts. As she broke barrier after barrier she learned lessons the hard way. With grit and legislative leadership she fought to protect women's health and civil liberties and their efforts in the marketplace.

Betty ran amazingly strong statewide campaigns for Governor and U.S. Senate. While she didn't win the elections, she proved her strength, character, and vision. Her many accomplishments in politics, and a career as a successful educator, lawyer, legislator, and jurist stood out, but it was her strong will and sensitivity that made her an inspirational role model.

Betty demonstrated what was possible. Today there are hundreds of people that she inspired who have assumed leadership on the bench, at the bar, in government and through civic and business leadership. In turn, these women are inspiring the next generation which may be Betty's most enduring legacy—a legacy that will benefit our state for generations to come.

IN MEMORY OF CSM (RET) EDDIE ROBERTS

HON. SANFORD D. BISHOP, JR.

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a decorated soldier, community leader, public servant, and my longstanding friend, CSM (Ret) Eddie Roberts. Sadly, CSM Roberts passed away suddenly on July 6, 2011, but he left a legacy and a personality that will never be forgotten.

Eddie was a native of Pensacola, Florida. Spurred by a love of country, he enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1965 and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. Throughout his military career, he had 13 military assignments, which included tours in Korea, Germany, and Panama. He served two decorated tours in Vietnam, during which he displayed remarkable heroism he earned the endearing nickname, "Fast Eddie," during his tour in Panama, where he trained soldiers to throw grenades. When one soldier dropped the grenade after pulling the safety pin, Eddie quickly grabbed the grenade and safely tossed it away from the frightened soldiers.

His military career earned him many honors including: the Legion of Merit, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Ranger Tab, Jumpmaster Wings and the Pathfinder Badge.

After his distinguished military career ended in 1995, he found other ways to give back to the community that he loved so much. He started work at Columbus Bank and Trust as Vice President and Military Sales Coordinator. He never forgot his experience in the military and never forgot his love of soldiers. He used his position to help soldiers become better managers of their finances. Moreover, he advocated for their causes with a fervor and spirit that made you take notice and appreciate his passion for his comrades.

In addition to improving the lives of soldiers, Eddie was involved in many social and civic organizations dedicated to the improvement of his community. He was one of the founding members of the Controllers Civic and Social Club in Columbus, an organization that has given away more than 20,000 pairs of shoes to low-income children. Because of his infectious personality, Eddie never met a stranger he didn't like and always tried to put himself in the "shoes" of others. Consequently, thousands of young people have been able to walk in shoes with pride and dignity.

On a personal note, Eddie was my dear friend for many years. During my first Congressional campaign and subsequent campaigns, he was one of my drivers. He often joked that: "He was never paid for his services." He continued to provide me with treasured friendship and wise counsel over the years.

The phrase, "One of a Kind" is used too much in our everyday discourse. I can truly say that CSM (Ret). Eddie Roberts was one of a kind and will never be forgotten. One of my mentors, Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, once said that, "Every man and woman is born into the world to do something unique and something distinctive and if he or she does not do it, it will never be done."

Mr. Speaker, the world is a better place because CSM (Ret) Eddie Roberts passed this way. He did something unique with his life and the world is better for it. On behalf of my wife, Vivian and myself, I extend my deepest sympathies to all those who knew and loved this special man.

A LOOK AT MEDIA BIAS

HON. LAMAR SMITH

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker. I submit the following.

MEDIA FAIRNESS CAUCUS—A LOOK AT MEDIA BIAS

Rep. Lamar Smith (R-TX), Chairman
Rep. Jack Kingston (R-GA), CoChair
Rep. Michele Bachmann (R-MN), CoChair

MEDIA'S LIBERAL BIAS DISTORTS FAIR COVERAGE

From U.S. News & World Report:

"The liberal bias of the mainstream media tilts so far left that any outlets not in that political lane, like the Drudge Report and Fox News Channel, look far more conservative than they really are, according to a UCLA professor's new book out next month.

"In a crushing body blow to the pushers of the so-called 'Fox Effect,' which claims the conservative media is dragging the left into the center, UCLA political science professor Tim Groseclose in Left Turn claims that 'all' mainstream news outlets have a liberal bias in their reporting that makes even moderate organizations appear out of the mainstream and decidedly right-wing to news consumers who are influenced by the slant."

In the book, Groseclose writes: "Fox News is clearly more conservative than ABC, CBS, CNN, NBC and National Public Radio. Some will conclude that 'therefore, this means that Fox News has a conservative bias.' Instead, maybe it is centrist, and possibly even left-leaning, while all the others are far left. It's like concluding that six-three is short just because it is short compared to professional basketball players."

AMERICANS SEE MEDIA AS BIASED, LIBERAL

Two-thirds of Americans believe that reporters try to help the candidate they want to win an election, according to a recent Rasmussen public opinion poll. Only 2 in 10 think reporters try to offer unbiased coverage.

The survey also found that almost half of Americans think reporters would hide any damaging information about the candidate they wanted to win. And by more than two-to-one, Americans say the average reporter is more liberal than they are, rather than more conservative.

If the national media want to earn Americans' trust, they should give them the facts, not tell them what to think.

FIRST LADY THANKS MEDIA FOR "SUPPORT" AND "KINDNESS"

During a recent interview on CNN, First Lady Michelle Obama thanked the national media for their "support" and "kindness." Below is an excerpt from the interview:

CNN reporter: "How's the family ready for this [the election]? It's going to be quite vicious, isn't it? How do you prepare for that?"

First Lady Michelle Obama: "You know, it's . . . we're ready, you know. Our children, you know, could care less about what we're doing. We work hard to do that. Fortunately, we have help from the media. I have to say this: I'm very grateful for the support and kindness that we've gotten. People have respected their privacy and in that way, I think, you know, no matter what people may feel about my husband's policies or what have you, they care about children and that's been good to see."

A TRIBUTE TO NORMA DUFFIELD "DUFFY" STONG LYON

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the life of Mrs. Norma Duffield "Duffy" Stong Lyon. Most Iowans would know her as Iowa's beloved "Butter Cow Lady."

For nearly a half-century, Mrs. Lyon shared her artistic skills with travelers from all over the world at the Iowa State Fair by creating a life-size sculpture of a dairy cow made from hundreds of pounds of butter. In fact, after crafting her first cow in 1960, she subsequently crafted 46 of the butter cow sculptures the Iowa State Fair has displayed over the past 100 years.

As many other community members know, Mrs. Lyon used her notoriety to raise funds for charitable projects in Toledo, Iowa for the betterment of the community.

Mrs. Lyon's family, including her husband Joe, nine children, twenty-three grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren, along with hundreds of members of the community gathered to pay their respects to the "Butter Cow Lady" on Friday July 1, 2011.

It is an honor to have personally seen and enjoyed the butter cow sculptures at the Iowa State Fair for years, and I know my colleagues will join me in celebrating the life of the Mrs. Norma Duffield "Duffy" Stong Lyon.

A TRIBUTE TO WILMA CARTHAN

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Ms. Wilma Carthan for her service to and excellence throughout her community as a model citizen.

Ms. Wilma Carthan is an individual who understands and fully utilizes the opportunities provided by the Great Society programs. Ms. Carthan is a revered community leader who successfully raised six children as a single mother, and tirelessly worked her way from welfare recipient to social service executive.

Over a period of fifteen years anti-poverty programs assisted Ms. Carthan in obtaining a high school diploma, a Bachelor's Degree and a Masters Degree. A career which started as a neighborhood community action worker steadily changed into social worker positions. She became administrator of youth programs and eventually Director of Community Affairs, Marketing and Patient Advocacy at the Brownsville Multi-Service Family Health Center, one of the nation's oldest community health centers.

Because of her insights, team-work skills and bountiful grass roots wisdom, Wilma Carthan has been called upon to serve in many research studies, group counseling and community planning efforts. At Syracuse University she assisted in the study of violent criminal behavior, was a co-author of a book on criminology entitled Pro-Social Gang: Implementing Aggression Replacement Training. She served on the New York City Board of Education Board of Examiners and also was on teams evaluating Title I reimbursable programs. For two decades she served as chairperson of the Board of the 200 Central Avenue Day Care Center. She is the recipient of numerous honors and awards but the most appropriate and revealing one is the unofficial title conferred upon her once as "The First Lady of Brooklyn Community Action".

As she celebrates this 75th birthday Wilma Carthan is probably most proud of the success of her sons and daughters who, despite the hardships of poverty, have all become productive family builders with more than a dozen grandchildren now climbing the ladder to self-sufficiency as they fulfill their American dream. More than can be communicated with hundreds of slogans and thousands of words Wilma Carthan's life sends a message of revelation and how the highest returns are realized through our government's investment in our neediest citizens. With great admiration and appreciation we salute Wilma Carthan.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the work of Wilma Carthan.

IN RECOGNITION OF DAVID WILLIAMS

HON. JOHN GARAMENDI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. GARAMENDI. Mr. Speaker, Representatives GEORGE MILLER, BARBARA LEE, PETE STARK, JERRY MCNERNEY and I rise today to congratulate Mr. David Williams, Director of Wastewater for the East Bay Municipal Utility District (EBMUD) on his election as the new President of the National Association of Clean Water Agencies, NACWA.

Mr. Williams is an accomplished leader and committed environmental steward. From his military service to this country and throughout his career in clean water, Mr. Williams has exemplified what it means to be a public servant. He is ideally suited for this national leadership position with NACWA and to helping ensure that California's and the Nation's clean water agencies are sustainable, that the environment we live in is consistently improving, and our public health is protected.

At EBMUD, Mr. Williams leads one of the nation's most advanced wastewater treatment facilities, providing services to approximately 650,000 people along 88 square miles of the east shore of San Francisco Bay in Alameda and Contra Costa counties. Mr. Williams oversees a staff of roughly 300 professionals and technicians who are responsible for the operation and maintenance of the district's entire wastewater system.

Under Mr. Williams' leadership the district has led the industry through his innovative work on several notable programs: utilizing existing wastewater infrastructure to create a national model for recycling and energy creation; working with local dentists, universities and public schools to eliminate sources of mercury in the waterways; developing a partnership with Chevron to build the Richmond Advanced Recycled Expansion (RARE) Water Project; and creating dual plumbing ordinances requiring new development to plan for recycled water use.

Since joining others in founding NACWA 41 years ago, EBMUD has benefitted from its active engagement with the organization. A member of NACWA's Board of Directors since 2004, Mr. Williams has previously served as Secretary, Treasurer and Vice President for the organization and has been a member of many NACWA committees and workgroups. He has also been elected to serve on the Central Contra Costa Sanitary District Board, a position he currently holds.

In addition to his work with NACWA, Mr. Williams has actively participated in local, regional, state and national professional organizations including the California Association of Sanitation Agencies, Central Contra Costa Sanitary District, Bay Area Clean Water Agencies, TriTAC, Aquatic Science Center, the California Water Environment Association San Francisco Bay Section, and the Bay Area Dischargers Association.

David Williams has selflessly shared his time, passion, energy and ideas to carry out the objectives of the Clean Water Act and it is my sincere pleasure to ask our colleagues to join us in congratulating him on becoming the new president of the National Association of Clean Water Agencies. Mr. Williams' continued efforts will ensure water quality progress for the San Francisco Bay Area, the State of California, and the Nation.

---

CONGRATULATING THE REPUBLIC
OF KOREA'S HOSTING OF 2018
WINTER OLYMPICS

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 8, 2011

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to congratulate the Republic of Korea for winning the bid to host the 2018 Winter Olympic Games in Pyeongchang. I have no doubt that Korea will be an excellent host, as it was for the 1988 Summer Olympics and for the 2002 World Cup. This honor recognizes how far Korea has emerged from the ashes of war into a giant in Asia and throughout the international community.

When I first went to Korea over 60 years ago, I had no idea where it was. As a Korean War Veteran, I could not be more proud to witness today's "Dynamic Korea." Seoul's skyscrapers, booming businesses and rising apartment buildings are a testament to the resiliency and determination of the Korean people. Just as the 1988 Olympics in Seoul demonstrated the promise of the Korea to the world, the 2018 Winter Games will showcase the economic superpower the great nation is now.

I never would have imagined that the Korea I left behind after the war would now be hosting their third international sporting event. Korea will always have a place in my heart as it does in the hearts of all veterans who have served then and those who serve now and I am proud to congratulate the nation on this well deserved recognition.

SENATE—Monday, July 11, 2011

The Senate met at 2 p.m. and was called to order by the Honorable CHRISTOPHER A. COONS, a Senator from the State of Delaware.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Lord God Almighty, unto whom in all ages people have lifted up their hearts, as we begin this week we are aware that Americans are watching on television the daily business of this Chamber. Grant our Senators wisdom to solve the complex issues of our time. Lord, inspire them to see the wisdom of cooperation, strengthen their minds and bodies to endure long hours of labor and to build alliances across the aisle that will lead us and our Nation to a better tomorrow. Let the struggles they experience help them develop a more robust and meaningful relationship with You and those around them. May Your spirit be above and among them, that in these days of destiny they may make Your ways their ways.

We pray in Your everlasting Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable CHRISTOPHER A. COONS led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. INOUE).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, July 11, 2011.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable CHRISTOPHER A. COONS, a Senator from the State of Delaware, to perform the duties of the Chair.

DANIEL K. INOUE,
President pro tempore.

Mr. COONS thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

SHARED SACRIFICE IN RESOLVING THE BUDGET DEFICIT—MOTION TO PROCEED

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to proceed to S. 1323, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to the consideration of S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 5:30 p.m. will be equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees.

Who yields time?

The Senator from North Dakota.

SCHEDULE

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the Senate has resumed the motion to proceed to S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit. The time until 5:30 will be equally divided between the two leaders or their designees. At 5:30, there will be a rollcall vote on the motion to proceed to S. 1323.

MEASURE PLACED ON THE CALENDAR—S. 1340

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I understand S. 1340 is at the desk and due for a second reading.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will read the bill by title for the second time.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1340) to cut, cap, and balance the Federal budget.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I object to any further proceedings with respect to the bill.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Objection is heard. The bill will be placed on the calendar under the provisions of rule XIV.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, we are in the midst of a defining debate on the budget of the United States. All of us understand we have a debt threat looming over this country that is as significant as anything we have faced in many years. Democratic members of the Senate Budget Committee have worked for weeks to devise a blueprint we think has merit and that deserves to be a part of the debate. Today, I am here to outline the key elements of that budget blueprint.

First of all, I think it is critically important we all understand we are as a Nation borrowing 40 cents of every $1 we spend. That is not a sustainable circumstance. Admiral Mullen, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has indicated that our national debt is our biggest national security threat. This is the top military man in our country saying the debt threat is the most serious national security threat.

Why does he say that? Here are the facts: The debt of the United States—the gross debt—all the debt we owe is now approaching 100 percent of our gross domestic product, which is the highest level it has been since after World War II. This chart shows a threshold of 90 percent and a gross debt of 90 percent. Why did we draw that line on this chart? Because the best evidence we have tells us when we cross the 90-percent threshold on the gross debt of any nation, we are in the danger zone, we are in the red zone.

The distinguished economists Carmen Reinhart and Kenneth Rogoff wrote a book called “Growth in a Time of Debt.” Here is their conclusion:

We examined the experience of 44 countries spanning up to two centuries of data on central government debt, inflation and growth. Our main finding is that across both advanced countries and emerging markets, high debt to GDP levels (90 percent and above) are associated with notably lower growth outcomes.

This is a key fact all our colleagues need to know. When our gross debt goes over 90 percent of our gross domestic product, our future economic prospects are diminished. That means fewer jobs created, less economic opportunity—a nation that is at risk. That is where we are.

Look at what the Congressional Budget Office says is where we are headed. On the current trajectory, we are headed for a debt that will go to 200 percent of the gross domestic product of the country. This is not the gross debt; this is the publicly held debt, which is smaller than the gross debt. So this chart now looks at the publicly held debt and says it is headed for 200 percent of GDP. We cannot stay on this course. It is critically important we change direction.

For every 1 percentage point increase in interest we pay, $1.3 trillion is added to the debt. For those who say don't worry about the debt limit, let's remind them what will occur if the United States refuses to pay the bills it has already incurred, which is the interest rates will go up. Those who have loaned us money, if we renege on our commitments to pay them, will then insist on higher interest rates—all borrowers will insist on higher interest rates—and for every 1-percent increase in the interest rate, we will pay $1.3 trillion more on our debt. So those who think that somehow, by not extending the debt limit, we are going to help on the debt—no. The opposite is true. The debt will increase and increase dramatically.

Here are the hard facts with respect to the relationship between spending and revenue over the last 60 years in this country. The red line is the spending line. The green line is the revenue line. What this shows very clearly is that spending is the highest it has been as a share of GDP in 60 years. Yes, we have a spending problem. But it is not exclusively a spending problem, as some assert on this floor, because revenue as a share of GDP is the lowest it has been in 60 years. To deny that essential fact is to deny the significant elements of a compromise that are required to solve this problem.

Spending is the highest it has been in 60 years as a share of our national income. Revenue is the lowest it has been in 60 years as a share of our national income. Both have to be addressed if we are going to solve this problem.

For those who say: Well, it is not a revenue problem, oh, yes, it is.

This is an article that appeared Sunday, May 1, in the Washington Post: “On the way to a surplus, a $12 trillion U.S. detour.”

Remember, in 2001, we were told we were on the way to paying off the debt of the United States. This article by Lori Montgomery in the Washington Post on May 1 indicated the fundamental reasons that instead of paying off the debt, we have a debt that is mushrooming. This one paragraph says it all:

The biggest culprit, by far, has been an erosion of tax revenue triggered largely by two recessions and multiple rounds of tax cuts. Together, the economy and the tax bills enacted under former President George W. Bush, and to a lesser extent by President Obama, wiped out $6.3 trillion in anticipated revenue. That’s nearly half of the $12.7 trillion swing from projected surpluses to real debt. Federal tax collections now stand at their lowest level as a percentage of the economy in 60 years.

That is the point I just made.

So when Democrats on the Senate Budget Committee approached this problem, we looked at it in historical perspective. How did we get into this problem? Half of it is on the revenue side. So we chose to deal with a solution that deals on both sides of the ledger. Yes, we need to cut spending; absolutely, that must be done. But we also cut so-called tax expenditures that are just spending by another name—loopholes, exclusions, deductions, tax preferences, abusive tax shelters, and tax havens that are hemorrhaging revenue that rightfully belongs in the Treasury—people avoiding what they legitimately owe to the United States by engaging in abusive tax shelters and tax havens that is costing us substantial revenue. We will get into the specifics of that.

The House Republicans chose a different path. They only want to focus on half the problem. They only want to focus on the spending side of the equation. They don’t want to touch the revenue side of the equation. I believe that denies reality. That runs away from the hard reality of how we got into this situation. Again, we got here by, yes, spending that is higher than it has been in 60 years as a share of national income but also revenue that is lower than it has been at any time in 60 years. If we are truthful with ourselves, we are going to have to deal with both sides of this equation.

The plan Senate Democrats on the Budget Committee have agreed on looks at a budget framework that includes roughly the same amount of deficit reduction as the House Republican plan. In fact, we have somewhat more deficit reduction than did they. They have a plan that was $3.9 trillion of deficit reduction. Our plan is $4 trillion. The actual difference is about $50 billion, but because of rounding, it turns out they are at $3.9 trillion, we are at $4 trillion. The actual difference is about $50 billion more in deficit reduction in the plan worked by Senate Democrats on the Budget Committee.

So this is what happens to deficits as a share of GDP under the framework we are offering. As you can see, this year the deficit is 9.3 percent of gross domestic product. We bring it down very steadily until we get down to 1.3 percent in the 10th year—a lower deficit in dollar terms, a lower deficit as a share of GDP than the House Republican plan. Let me repeat that. The Senate Democrats on the Budget Committee—our plan reduces the deficit by the 10th year by more than the Republicans in total, and in the 10th year we have a lower deficit in dollar terms and a lower deficit as a share of GDP.

As shown on this chart, this is what happens to the debt itself. The gross debt, as you can see, peaks out at 100 percent in 2011, and then we bring it down gradually but steadily to about 98 percent by 2021. The key is, instead of having the debt line going up, up, and away, burying this country under a mountain of debt, we stabilize the debt and begin to bring it down—something that every serious economist has said is absolutely essential.

In terms of spending, I indicated that current spending is the highest it has been as a share of GDP in 60 years. Our plan takes that down from 24 percent of GDP to 23 percent and then freezes it at 22 percent of GDP for the rest of this decade.

Now, some will say: There go the Democrats again. They are spending too much money. I would say to them: If we could get the spending down to the levels that were obtained during the Reagan administration, would that be acceptable? Because that is exactly what we do. Under the plan of Senate Budget Committee Democrats, we get spending to the exact same level that pertained during the administration of Ronald Reagan. During Ronald Reagan’s 8 years, spending averaged 22.1 percent of GDP. That is precisely what our spending equals in the budget framework I have outlined here today. We include every part of the Federal budget, including the defense budget. Just as the fiscal commission did, just as every other bipartisan deficit reduction plan has included, we looked to defense spending for savings because no part of the budget can be off the table in terms of a deficit reduction plan.

I would say separately, Social Security we deal with separately because Social Security need not be, should not be part of a deficit reduction plan. Savings on Social Security ought to be for the purpose of extending the solvency of Social Security. But in terms of those parts of spending that are considered on budget, defense has to be included in any savings. Why do I say that? Well, look what has happened since 1997. Spending on defense and war has gone from $254 billion a year to $688 billion a year. It is a key reason spending has exploded.

Before the fiscal commission, some of the best defense analysts in the country came before us and told us that 51 percent of all Federal employees are at the Department of Defense—51 percent of all Federal employees are at the Department of Defense—and that does not count the contractors.

I asked these analysts: Well, how many contractors are there?

Their response was: Senator, we can’t tell you.

I said: Is that a matter of security? Is that a matter of clearances?

They said: No, Senator. We don’t know.

I said: Well, what is the range? About how many contractors are there working at the Department of Defense?

The answer was: Senator, 1 million to 9 million. Between 1 million and 9 million. We can’t tell you which is right.

We have a serious problem of contractors working for the Department of Defense and the Department of Defense cannot even tell you how many contractors they have working for them. We have a problem.

The previous Secretary of Defense, Secretary Gates, said this:

... the budget of the Pentagon almost doubled during the last decade.

And he is right about that. Our chart shows that.

But our capabilities didn’t particularly expand. A lot of that money went into infrastructure and overhead and, frankly, I think a culture that had an open checkbook.

“A lot of that money went into infrastructure and overhead”—overhead—“and, frankly . . . a culture that had an open checkbook.” We cannot afford an open checkbook anywhere. We have to go after waste, fraud, and abuse in every department. We have to go after infrastructure spending that really does not contribute to improving our defense. We have to go after overhead, overhead costs that have really run amok.

Chairman RYAN of the House said this about defense:

There are a lot of savings you can get in defense. There's a lot of waste over there, for sure.

Yet, when they came with their plan, they continued the path of increasing defense spending year over year without any discipline. This is the plan they outlined—from $529 billion a year headed for $667 billion a year, and that does not count the war funding.

In our plan, we have done what the fiscal commission called for. We have achieved the same savings out of security as the fiscal commission did—$886 billion out of the security category. Now, that includes defense. Obviously, defense is most of security, but in the “security” category also falls homeland security, and also included is veteran spending. Veteran spending, by the way, is one place we do not cut a nickel. The veterans deserve to have the promise we have made to them kept, and under our budget, every dollar that has been promised to veterans will go to them. That does not mean we cannot save money out of the security side. The fiscal commission—which, by the way, is the only bipartisan plan that has come from anywhere: five Democrats, five Republicans, one Independent—endorsed a plan with $886 billion of savings over 10 years out of the security category. The budget by Senate Budget Committee Democrats adopts that finding.

The budget that Senate Budget Committee Democrats are advancing also has governmentwide savings. We freeze the pay of Members of Congress for 3 years. We freeze the legislative branch and White House budgets for 3 years. We freeze civilian pay for 2 years. That has already been adopted, but we include that in our budget. We reduce the Federal vehicle fleet by 20 percent because, frankly, in our investigations we find in this area there has been an explosion of vehicles in the Federal fleet, and I think all of us have seen it with our own eyes. This is something that has to be taken on. We reduce travel costs of Federal agencies by 20 percent. We reduce Federal printing costs by $1 billion by 2015. We reduce the number of contractors, which we have previously described.

The House Republican plan on revenue is really almost impossible to believe. In a circumstance in which we have record debt, in a circumstance in which the revenue of this country is the lowest it has been in 60 years, what is part of their answer? Cut taxes some more, and cut them for the very wealthiest among us, cut them another $1 trillion for those who are the most fortunate among us. I am not making this up. This is the House Republican plan: Take a circumstance in which we have record debt, the lowest revenue we have had in 60 years, and cut taxes for the very wealthiest among us by another $1 trillion by extending the top rate cuts, by a $5 million estate tax exemption. They actually cut revenues $4.2 trillion below the CBO baseline. Let me repeat that. They actually cut revenue in their plan $4.2 trillion below the Congressional Budget Office baseline. That is inexplicable.

Maybe we can start to understand it when we look at what a former Reagan economic adviser said about the House Republican plan. Mr. Bartlett said this:

Distributionally, the Ryan plan—

The House Republican plan—

is a monstrosity. The rich would receive huge tax cuts while the social safety net would be shredded to pay for them. Even as an opening bid to begin budget negotiations with the Democrats, the Ryan plan cannot be taken seriously. It is less of a wish list than a fairy tale utterly disconnected from the real world, backed up by make-believe numbers and unreasonable assumptions. Ryan's plan isn't even an act of courage; it's just pandering to the Tea Party. A real act of courage would have been for him to admit, as all serious budget analysts know, that revenues will have to rise well above 19 percent of [gross domestic product] to stabilize the debt.

Revenue today is 14.8 percent of GDP—again, the lowest it has been in 60 years. If we look at the last five times the budget has been balanced in the last 50 years, here is what we see: Revenues had to be close to 20 percent of GDP. They were 19.7 percent in 1969, 19.9 percent in 1998, 19.8 percent in 1999, 20.6 percent in the year 2000, and 19.5 percent in 2001. That is the last five times the budget has been balanced. Each of those times, revenue was close to 20 percent of GDP. Now it is 14.8 percent of GDP. Anyone who seriously argues that you can solve this problem just on the spending side of the equation is not being serious.

The budget framework we offer today has revenues at 19.5 percent of GDP—almost equivalent to what it was during the Clinton years, when we had balanced budgets and, in fact, stopped using Social Security money to pay other bills. During the Clinton years, revenue averaged 19.4 percent of GDP. Under our plan, it averages 19.5 percent. So revenue is clearly not out of line compared to the other times we balanced the budget and, in fact, during the Clinton years when we had the longest economic expansion in this Nation's history.

For our colleagues who say, oh, you can't touch revenue or you will kill the economy, you will kill job creation—really? How about the historic record? The historic record shows very clearly that during the Clinton years, when you had revenue at the same level as we have in this plan, you had the longest economic expansion in this Nation's history—39 quarters; 32 of those quarters during the Clinton years—the longest uninterrupted period of economic growth in this Nation's history, and you had revenue at the same level we are talking about in this plan. Facts are stubborn things. A previous President said that. He was right. The fact is, we had the longest period of uninterrupted growth in our economy during a period in which revenue was at the level we are proposing in this budget. That is a fact.

Mr. President, the proposals in the budget framework also seek to bring us transparency. We have tax reform that simplifies the Tax Code, scales back tax loopholes, protects the middle class, improves progressivity and fairness of the code, promotes economic growth and U.S. competitiveness—because we lower the corporate rate from 35 percent to 29 percent to make America more competitive, and we pay for it by closing corporate loopholes. We also address the tax gap, offshore tax havens, and abusive tax shelters, and ensure that corporations pay their fair share.

The specifics of our revenue proposal are as follows: The tax cuts—the so-called Bush-era tax cuts—are extended for singles earning up to $500,000 a year and for couples earning up to $1 million a year. So 99 percent of the American people will see no rate increase—none; 99 percent of the American people will see no rate increase. One percent will, and it will be those who are sufficiently fortunate to be earning over $1 million a year—the top 1 percent in this country. We ask them to go back to rates of the Clinton era, when the top rate was 39.6 percent, capital gains were 20 percent. Those are the rates that pertain—when we had the longest economic expansion in our Nation's history.

For those who say it is a job killer, they have to explain how that can be since history shows something quite different from their claim.

We also provide for alternative minimum tax relief. That costs $1.5 trillion. That is not a tax increase. We are lowering taxes that would be imposed by the alternative minimum tax, which is increasingly gobbling up middle-class taxpayers. We are preventing that from happening. It costs $1.5 trillion to fix. So we are replacing that revenue with other revenue. I don't consider that a tax increase. That is merely substituting revenue for revenue that we are subtracting to prevent middle-class people from being caught up in the alternative minimum tax.

We also reform the estate tax, going back to the 2009 levels which are $3.5 million a person and $7 million a couple. That means well over 99.5 percent of estates would be completely exempt. That is a fair plan.

We also assume net $2 trillion of additional funds from closing tax loopholes, cutting tax subsidies, promoting tax fairness. That is over 10 years.

We assume tax preferences for individuals are reduced 9 to 17 percent, depending on the amount of offshore tax havens and abusive tax shelters that are closed.

We assume, as I indicated earlier, that the corporate rate is lowered to 29 percent, offset by reducing corporate tax expenditures and closing corporate tax loopholes—specific policies to be determined by the Finance Committee, as they always are.

Mr. President, when I indicate there is a range for reducing tax expenditures from 9 to 17 percent, depending on how much savings we get out of offshore tax havens, here is the math. Over the next 10 years, the tax preferences—or expenditures, as they are sometimes called—will cost the Treasury $14 trillion. Let me repeat that. The loopholes, the exclusions, the preferences in the Tax Code will cost the Treasury $14 trillion over the next 10 years.

On top of that, offshore tax havens and abusive tax shelters will cost the Treasury another $1.4 trillion. That is according to estimates based on data from the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. So if we recover nothing from tax havens, to reach our revenue numbers we would have to reduce tax expenditures 17 percent. On the other hand, if we recover 80 percent of tax haven losses and tax shelter losses, the reduction in tax expenditures would only have to be 9 percent—17 percent reduction in tax expenditures if we get no savings from tax havens and tax shelters, and a 9-percent reduction in tax expenditures if we recover 80 percent of the losses from tax havens and tax shelters.

Probably, the realistic expectation ought to be somewhere in between those extremes.

If the CBO scored the proposal by Senate Budget Committee Democrats, they would not say there is any tax increase here at all. Let me repeat that. If the Congressional Budget Office scored this proposal by Senate Budget Committee Democrats, they would say there is a $765 billion tax cut over 10 years. How can that be? How can I be saying there is $2 trillion of additional revenue over 10 years, and the Congressional Budget Office would say—if they evaluated this plan by Budget Committee Democrats—they would say it is a $765 billion tax cut? The reason is simple.

In our plan we extend all of the middle-class tax cuts. In addition, we actually broaden the middle-class tax cuts so that nobody is affected by a rate increase unless they are a couple earning over $1 million a year. We also provide the alternative minimum tax relief to prevent millions of middle-class people from being affected by that law.

As I indicated earlier, that costs $1.5 trillion over the next 10 years to shield middle-class taxpayers from that.

Third, we provide estate tax reform at the 2009 levels so that well over 99 percent of estates are completely shielded or exempt.

Again, when our Republican colleagues say—and some of them do—you can't have a higher tax rate, even on those earning over $1 million, it will kill the economy—really? How about looking at the facts. How about looking at the historic record. How about being informed by what has actually happened before because when we look at history, we find quite a different answer than our friends on the other side are providing.

What we find is that the last time the top rate for those earning $1 million was 39.6 percent, we experienced the longest period of uninterrupted economic growth in U.S. history. That is a fact. We had 39 quarters of economic growth from 1991 to 2000. For 32 of those quarters, Bill Clinton was President, and we had a top rate of 39.6 percent on those couples earning over $1 million a year.

Our friends on the other side say: You will kill jobs. Do you know what is fascinating? I remember this debate back when we passed deficit reduction under President Clinton. Our friends on the other side said the same thing then. I remember, I was seated here listening to the then-Republican leader claim that if we passed the Clinton plan to get the deficit down and balance the budget, we would crater the economy. Those were the exact words our friends on the other side used at that time—that if we raised rates on the wealthiest among us, it would crater the economy.

What happened? Not only did we not crater the economy, we had the longest period of economic expansion in our Nation's history, and 24 million jobs were created—the best record ever. That is the fact. That is what really happened—not some fairy tale about what happens if we get the country back on track, if we move toward balancing the budget, toward getting the debt down, because that is in fact what happened during the Clinton years.

Yes, we had the highest rate of 39.6 percent on those earning over $1 million. But it didn't crater the economy—no. The economy grew. We had the longest economic expansion in this Nation's history, and 24 million jobs were created during that period, the best record ever.

Let's look again at history. The last five times economic growth was above 4 percent in this country, the top tax rate was 39.6 percent on those earning over $1 million. Facts. Facts are stubborn things. In 1994, the top rate was 39.6 percent and the growth rate was 4.1 percent. In 1997, the top rate was 39.6 percent and economic growth was 4.5 percent. In 1998, we had 4.4 percent economic growth. In 1999, it was 4.8 percent. In 2000, we had 4.1 percent economical growth—the strongest economic growth, going back decades, in every year. The top rate on people earning over $1 million was 39.6 percent, which is precisely what we are proposing in this plan.

Mr. President, I think it is undisputed by serious economists, of whatever philosophical stripe, that these tax expenditures have to be reined in. We are spending $1.1 trillion a year on tax expenditures. Some of the most conservative economists in the country have said that is just spending by a different name. Here is Martin Feldstein, professor of economics at Harvard, Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Reagan. He has written a column called "The Tax Expenditure Solution for Our National Debt." He said this:

Cutting tax expenditures is really the best way to reduce government spending. . . .

It is called revenue, but it is really spending.

Eliminating tax expenditures does not increase marginal tax rates or reduce the reward for saving, investment or risk-taking. It would also increase overall economic efficiency by removing incentives that distort private spending decisions. And eliminating or consolidating the large number of overlapping tax-based subsidies would also greatly simplify tax filing. In short, cutting tax expenditures is not at all like other ways of raising revenue.

This is from the head of the economic advisers under President Reagan, saying we ought to cut tax expenditures. That is exactly what the Senate Democratic budget plan does. We cut tax expenditures 9 to 17 percent, depending on how much we are able to save from closing off these offshore tax havens and the abusive tax shelters.

If we get no savings from tax havens and tax shelters, then we would have to reduce tax expenditures 17 percent. If we are able to reduce tax havens and the other loopholes, offshore loopholes—the abusive tax shelters—by 80 percent, then we would be able to reduce tax expenditures by 9 percent.

Just like Martin Feldstein who said we ought to have after tax expenditures, also Alan Greenspan, former Chairman of the Federal Reserve, said this:

I think that Republicans are out to identify a very significant amount of so-called tax expenditures, which in fact are misclassified. They are expenditures, they are outlays, and many are subsidies, and subsidies are not the type of thing that you want for an efficient market system. There are a lot of them.

Mr. President, that is what we are proposing. Let's go after these subsidies, these preferences, these exclusions. While we are at it, let's go after offshore tax havens, abusive tax shelters. Let's shut them down.

If there is any doubt about where this money is going, here it is: 26.5 percent of tax expenditures go to the top 1 percent in this country; 26.5 percent of all tax expenditures go to the top 1 percent. So when we are saying we may have to reduce tax expenditures 17 percent, we could do it all just with the top 1 percent. That is where the benefit is going.

Let me show you in another way. The top 1 percent, in dollar terms—the value, on average, of tax expenditures for those who are in the top 1 percent in this country, earning an average of $1.1 million a year, they get, on average, a benefit every year from tax expenditures of over $205,000. For those who are in the middle quintile, those earning $39,000 a year, their average benefit is $3,000. You can see that the top 1 percent have a benefit from tax expenditures that is 66 times what people in the middle get. It is not unfair to go to those who have had the greatest benefit from the national economy over the last two decades and say to them: We need you to help a little bit more to get out of this debt rut we are in. And you know what, that is not unfair because they have had the greatest benefit over the last 15 years.

Here is something that I think shows it conclusively. This is the effective tax rate for the 400 wealthiest taxpayers in America. In 1992, it was about 27 percent. In 1995, the tax rate for the wealthiest 400 was 30 percent—29.9, to be exact. Look what has happened since 1995. The effective tax rate for the wealthiest 400 taxpayers in America has gone down to 16.6 percent. They have had their tax rates cut almost in half. Has anybody else had their taxes cut in half? I don't think so. The people who have had their taxes cut in half are the wealthiest among us. So it is not unreasonable to go back to them and say: Hey, wait a minute. We have to go back to what the tax rates were here—not back to an effective rate of 30 percent but a top rate that we had in the Clinton years when we had the largest economic and longest economic expansion in our Nation's history. That seems reasonable.

We also know it is not just on the individual side but on the corporate side as well. This is a little five-story building in the Cayman Islands. Now, 18,857 companies say they are doing business out of this little building. Anybody believe that? Anybody believe 18,857 companies are doing business out of this little 5-story building down in the Cayman Islands? I would say that is the most efficient building in the world. Imagine, a little 5-story building, and 18,857 companies say they are doing business out of there. They have maybe 100 employees in that building. Those are the most efficient people in the entire world. Unbelievable what they are doing.

You know what, they are not doing business; they are doing monkey business because what they are doing is cheating all the rest of us who pay what we owe. Why are they down in the Cayman Islands, those 18,857 companies, calling that little building home? Because there are no taxes down in the Cayman Islands, and they are showing their profits in subsidiaries they say are operating out of that little building so they can avoid paying the taxes the vast majority of us pay right here in the United States. That is outrageous. That is unfair. Our Republican friends say: Oh, you can't touch that; it is a tax increase if you do. Really? That is a tax increase? I don't think so.

Offshore tax haven abuse is proliferating. If anybody doubts it, go Google offshore tax havens and see what happens. See what happens if you Google offshore tax havens. The experts here on the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations have said this:

Experts have estimated that the total loss to the Treasury from offshore tax evasion alone approaches $100 billion per year, including $40 billion to $70 billion from individuals and another $30 billion from corporations engaging in offshore tax evasion. Abusive tax shelters add tens of billions of dollars more.

The Democrats on the Budget Committee said: We have had it. We are going after those people. We are going to insist they pay their fair share just as the vast majority of Americans already do. So we are saying: We are coming after you. If you have a tax haven down in the Cayman Islands, we are coming after you. If you have an abusive tax shelter, we are coming after you because it is not fair to all the rest of us who are paying what we owe.

There are critical priorities that shouldn't be cut. One is education. Education is the foundation for future economic strength.

An educated population is a key source of economic growth. . . . Broad access to education was, by and large, a major factor in the United States' economic dominance in the 20th Century and in the creation of a broad middle class. Indeed, the American Dream of upward mobility both within and across generations has been tied to access to education.

This is a quote from Harvard economists Claudia Goldin and Lawrence Katz in "The Future of Inequality: The Other Reason Education Matters So Much."

When we see what our friends on the other side are doing, they are cutting education 15 percent. We don't believe that is the right priority for the country. Yes, overall spending has to be cut. We do cut spending—almost $2 trillion in the Democratic blueprint, almost $2 trillion—but not education.

Another key priority is energy. We all know what has happened to gas prices. They have soared from $1.81 in December of 2008 to over $3.50 a gallon by July 4. I just paid $3.77. We all know what is happening to gas prices. Many of us believe a key priority is to reduce our dependence on foreign energy. House Republicans have a different idea. They cut the programs to reduce our dependence on foreign energy by 57 percent. We reject that proposal. We don't think it is in the national interest.

Infrastructure—roads, bridges, airports, rail. Here is what the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has said about infrastructure spending:

If we don't change course over the next five years, the economy could forgo as much as $336 billion in lost economic growth as transportation networks continue to deteriorate. I am well aware of the fiscal constraints facing this Congress and the nation. But we must avoid cutting off our nose to spite our face. Without proper investment and attention to our infrastructure, the United States' economic stability, potential for job growth, global competitiveness, and quality of life are all at risk.

That is a quote from Thomas Donohue, the president and CEO of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Republicans in the House weren't listening because they propose cutting transportation funding in their budget by 30 percent. We reject that cut as well. It does not make sense to cut education, to cut infrastructure. It does not make sense. It will only weaken our position.

On health care, the House Republican plan ends Medicare as we know it. It replaces it with a voucher system, block grants Medicaid, and shifts costs on seniors, children, the disabled, and individual States. It ends the countercyclical nature of Medicaid, and it defunds health care reform, increasing the number of uninsured by at least 34 million people in this country. The House Republicans have said their plan saves Medicare. I don't think so. I think it kills Medicare. Why do I say that? Because under traditional Medicare now, the beneficiary pays 25 percent. Someone who is eligible for Medicare pays 25 percent of the bill. Under the House Republican plan, they would pay 68 percent of the bill. That just stands things on their head. Instead of people having Medicare as a social safety net when they get to their senior years, they would have it pulled out from under them.

We have rejected the House GOP approach and would remind our colleagues that we have had large health care savings that were already enacted last year in health care reform. The Congressional Budget Office says that will save in the second 10 years $1.3 trillion. So, yes, everything has to be on the table, but we just took a big run at getting our health care costs back in line—$1.3 trillion in deficit savings, according to CBO.

In conclusion, the overview of the budget framework we are offering our colleagues for their consideration provides $4 trillion in deficit reduction over 10 years. It is actually $5 trillion if measured on the same basis as the fiscal commission. We have adopted what we think is a more plausible baseline in light of things that have happened over this year. It stabilizes the debt by 2014 and cuts the deficit to 2½ percent of GDP by 2015 and 1.3 percent by 2021. We have tax reform that simplifies the code. This closes loopholes and goes after offshore tax havens and abusive tax shelters and restores fairness. We reject the House GOP plan to end Medicare as we know it. We protect education, energy, and infrastructure investments. And we have a balanced deficit and debt reduction plan, cutting spending by about $2 trillion and providing additional revenue by about $2 trillion.

Let me conclude as I began by saying that our revenue plan would be scored by the Congressional Budget Office as being a $765 billion tax cut because we are replacing revenue lost by extending other tax cuts. We are extending all the middle-class tax cuts and expanding middle-class tax cuts up to those earning $1 million a year. And we are fixing the alternative minimum tax. That costs $1.5 trillion over 10 years. I don't consider that a tax increase at all because you are reducing revenue that would otherwise come into the Treasury under the alternative minimum tax—which I think almost all of us think is unfair—and replacing it with revenue by reducing tax expenditures. Even the most conservative economists in the country say that needs to be done.

That is the blueprint the Senate Budget Committee Democrats are laying before our colleagues. We are under no illusions. We know this is a year in which the normal process is not being followed. We understand there are leadership negotiations at the highest level, so we understand this is not going to be dealt with in the normal course of doing business. We understand there is leadership negotiation, but we believe there are some ideas in this package that deserve consideration as those negotiations go forward.

Mr. President, I thank my colleagues for their courtesy and their patience, and I look forward to this continuing debate as we take on the debt threat that looms over our Nation.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Georgia.

PASSAGE OF DODD-FRANK

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I commend the Budget Committee chairman on his contribution to this debate and his contribution to our country. I enjoy listening to his remarks and appreciate many of the ideas he has offered today.

I rise to talk about an anniversary today—no, it is not my anniversary or his but the anniversary of Dodd-Frank, which passed a year ago today.

This morning at a press conference, BARNEY FRANK, then-chairman of the House Banking Committee and the Frank portion of the Dodd-Frank legislation, gave a speech before the National Press Club. In it he made some comments that are very important, and I wanted to share my agreement and support for some of the things Chairman FRANK said.

I did not vote for Dodd-Frank when it passed 1 year ago, but I did, along with Senator HAGAN and Senator LANDRIEU, offer an amendment which was adopted by the Senate and ultimately agreed to by the House in the conference committee. It was an amendment known as QRM, qualifying residential mortgage, an amendment to carve out an exemption from risk retention for a well-underwritten mortgage loan.

The Dodd-Frank bill, as many in this room will remember, originally called for a total 5-percent risk retention on every residential mortgage made, which would have eliminated many people from making any residential mortgages at all. Ranking Member FRANK today in his comments said: Well, we had a 100-risk retention prior to 1994.

He is right. That is when savings and loans made loans, and that is when the Federal Government insured the others, and savings and loans had preferential interest rate treatment so they could make preferential payments to people to save in their institution versus the bank. But the Federal Government took away the one-quarter percent differential that savings and loans had and the banks became competitive with savings and loans for short-term and long-term deposits of savings and all the savings money flowed to the banks that offered other products. So savings and loans went out of business. When they did, there was no residential mortgage money, at least no conventional money, available in America.

So what happened? The securitized market began. Freddie and Fannie began to play a significant role in providing conventional residential mortgage money. Until the collapse, which began in 2006 and culminated in 2009 and we still are suffering from today—until that collapse, securitization was a very reasonable and safe way of raising capital for mortgages.

What happened in the mortgage collapse was not a failure of equity or skin in the game by the borrower; it was the collapse of underwriting. Mortgage lenders got into loosey-goosey underwriting—subprime credit. They made loans to people who were higher risk in order to price it at a higher rate, and they blurred qualifying requirements to where, all of a sudden, if you walked in and fogged up a mirror with your breath, you could probably get a mortgage loan and they could probably securitize it.

Dodd-Frank was designed to see to it that didn't happen again, and I commend them for it. But as government often does, sometimes it goes too far when the pendulum swings back the other way.

Thus is the dilemma we are in today, as the rule being proposed by the FDIC, the Federal Reserve, Comptroller of the Currency on the QRM rule is going to require, in addition to quality underwriting, a minimum 20-percent downpayment.

For years in this country we have had 90 percent and 95 percent conventional financing or, in terms of FHA, 3.5 percent downpayment and VA none at all. There have been various varieties of downpayments that have been allowed based on the loan and its insurance. But with this rule of requiring risk retention on any loan with a downpayment of less than 20 percent, except for an FHA or VA loan, it is going to literally destroy what is left of the residential housing market because it will extract what is probably 40 to 45, maybe 50 percent, of the current market today.

Senator LANDRIEU, Senator HAGAN, and myself in QRM proposed that people have a qualifying ratio of debt to income that is sufficient to amortize the debt, a third-party verification they have a job, a credit score that indicates they are willing to pay their payments, an appraisal that indicates the house is worth what they are paying for, and a downpayment with mortgage insurance required if the downpayment was less than 20 percent.

Today, I wish to quote Ranking Member FRANK. When talking about risk retention, he said: I am troubled because there is an assault now on risk retention—BARNEY FRANK—adding that even though he believes the 20 percent requirement in the QRM rule being circulated is too high. When asked further what would be a good downpayment, he said at least 4 or 5, something above FHA.

I wish to commend the ranking member because he is precisely right. Although he in his original intent with Dodd-Frank did not want to bifurcate residential qualifying mortgages by some having risk retention and some not, he recognized the importance of doing some of that bifurcation and having some exception to risk retention. They would have realized that anyway, if you recognize they exempted Freddie Mac, Fannie Mae, and FHA from the requirements of Dodd-Frank and left them solely on the conventional market.

So I wish to thank Congressman FRANK today for his comments as they related to QRM and his identifying the downpayment requirement currently being circulated is entirely too high. It is entirely too high, and it is very important that we get the final rule, which will be published on August 1, to have a reasonable downpayment of 5 percent or more, rather than 20 percent or more. Five percent or more will ensure there is skin in the game; and with the other qualifying and underwriting provisions in QRM, it will ensure that quality residential mortgages are being made.

I am not one to offer advice often to the President. He is the President. He can do as he wishes. But today in Politico there is an article about the President is now returning to revisit the residential housing market because he understands employment is not coming back until housing comes back; he understands the American dream is, for some people, now the American nightmare; and he understands what has been done so far has not been working.

I wish to suggest to the President that if he thinks what is happening now is a nightmare, you just wait until this QRM rule that is being circulated now actually goes into effect. Without it being changed and a continued requirement of a 20-percent downpayment, you will have a further lack of demand in the housing market, which already is almost at least anemic, if not feeble, because most Americans who want to buy a home can afford 5 percent or maybe 10 percent down, but they can't afford 20, and that is middle America. If you pull them out of what is already an anemic housing market, you would have no housing market at all.

So as this Dodd-Frank rule is being circulated in the next 2½ to 3 weeks before it is finalized, I hope we can all keep up the drumbeat for the regulators to be reasonable in their approach—understand risk retention is important but also understand home ownership is important and understand we had a collapse that was not downpayment related. We had a collapse that was underwriting related.

So if you have strong underwriting and minimal skin in the game of at least 5 percent, you have a qualified residential mortgage that does not have to have risk retention; therefore, you will have enough capital raised in the mortgage markets to fund a housing demand which hopefully is going to continue to grow.

In the absence of securitization, in the absence of an exemption of risk retention for a qualified residential mortgage, there will be no housing market in the United States of America.

FHA is already under so much stress and duress, it is awful and it is frightful. The Veterans' Administration is a privileged loan for those who have served and made the ultimate sacrifice for our country, and they deserve it. Freddie and Fannie are exempted because we have them in conservatorship. But they are not going to be a source of money for long. Something will have to replace them, a new entity, probably something with securitization. But if the QRM rule being circulated now does, in fact, go into place as it is written, with a minimum 20-percent downpayment, it will be the last nail in the coffin of the American housing market. The unintended consequence of reaching too far to react to the terrible crisis which we had will put the death knell of the housing market squarely on the shoulders of this Congress, this administration, and these regulators who are currently carrying out those rules.

I wish to commend Ranking Member FRANK on his comments today, his recognition that the QRM rule being circulated asks too much, recognizing that a 5-percent or greater downpayment is a reasonable approach and recognizing that underwriting is the important key to see to it that we have a housing market.

I commend the gentleman from Massachusetts. I thank him for adding that comment today to the National Press Club. I hope the regulators, the FDIC, the Federal Reserve, the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Treasury heard it too. If they didn't hear it and they remain silent and continue with 20 percent, they will be doing exactly the opposite of what the President of the United States stated he wants to do; that is, bring the housing market back in America.

I yield back.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Alaska is recognized.

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, before I talk about the budget, I wish to commend the Senator from Georgia.

As someone who has been in the real estate business for many years, such as the Senator from Georgia, he is absolutely right. If homeowners are stuck with a 20-percent minimum, the odds are it will crush the housing market. I can tell you this personally because I am helping my mother do the paperwork now for her home. If she was required to put 20 percent down, she would not be buying that home today. We hope to close on the home in the next 45 days. We are fortunate she is able to do that, but 20 percent would take her right out of the market, unable to buy the home she wants to retire in.

So I say to the Senator from Georgia, I hope more people hear it in the administration, because if they don't hear that, as we know with the housing market, it is a critical component of our ability to pull ourselves out of the recession. I thank the Senator for making those comments and noting that.

I know Senator CONRAD was down here earlier, the chair of the Budget Committee, to talk about the budget framework. I first wish to say thanks to Chairman CONRAD. Here is someone who has been on the Budget Committee for 25 years, since 1986, and has been chairman for many of those years, an unbelievable capacity and understanding of the budget and what needs to be done. He understands it. He clearly recognizes we have to have a balanced approach.

For months, yourself, Mr. President, and myself, sitting on the Budget Committee, along with the chairman on the Democratic side, have been working to try to figure out how do we craft a balanced approach. How do we ensure that at the end of the day, we recognize we have to have a budget that continues to help grow our economy, creates fairness in the system, and makes sure we take the responsibility of creating a more accountable and financially responsible budget, not only for this year but for the years out, and dealing with a comprehensive approach to dealing with the deficit?

This is not an easy task, to say the least. I can say, standing here, and I know, Mr. President, as a member of the Budget Committee also, none of those meetings were easy in the discussion, if I could say that—robust debates, robust controversy in some of the issues we talked about but also a lot of ideas. But what is in front of us?

No one can match the chairman's approach of how to address an issue such as this as he lays out slide after slide the impacts, from the macro to the micro, of this budget and what it will mean. But it is clear the budget proposal he has laid out, the framework, as he calls it, by the Democratic majority of the Budget Committee is $4 trillion in cuts for deficit reduction and is achieved in a very fair and balanced way, without putting the burden on the backs of seniors, working families, and small business. This is a balanced approach. The deficit-cutting mechanisms are drawn half from savings and half from revenues. Revenues mean closing loopholes.

His photo there, which as we sit here and present to the President our positions is hard for people in the balconies to see, but it is of an amazing five-story building. It is not a very attractive building, just a small five-story building in a tax haven that grants thousands and thousands of businesses a shelter from their fair share of paying their taxes.

The idea of this revenue component of the proposal we put forth is closing loopholes, closing down tax avoidance schemes that rely on abusive tax shelters, and, yes, cutting tax subsidies, ending the practice of giving the wealthiest of the wealthy tax subsidies they simply do not need. It is about promoting fairness.

As we dealt with this budget, a $4 trillion reduction—a number that the bipartisan commission hit as their target, one we hear out there now in the press a lot but one we felt was a reasonable approach. It is more than the House budget that was proposed. The House budget included savings only on the spending side and actually worsened the outlook on the revenue side that we simply do not believe is good enough.

The budget is about fairness, about ensuring that we have a system that is balanced but also investing in the right areas so we have long-term and continued growth. We do not give more tax breaks to corporations and the rich and then put the burden on the backs of seniors, poor kids, working families, disabled. It is unacceptable to put the burden on our most vulnerable population. The budget is truly a moral document. It defines where we are going to go, what we are going to do, and how we are going to look in the next 10 years or 20 years as a country.

When I was mayor of Anchorage in 2003, when I got elected, I had a budget around $215 million, with about a $33 million hole in it—pretty significant in the sense of proportions. We had to deal with spending and reducing it. We had to create a fairness in the revenue, but we also had to invest. But we also knew the document and the work we were doing in the budget would define where our community went, not just in the year we were doing it but in the next several years down the road.

I was very pleased. When I got elected to the Senate, it was, I think, Business Week and others that rated the city that I was mayor of, Anchorage, as probably the most likely city in the country to recover from the recession the fastest. As a matter of fact, Forbes has listed it, not only last year but this year, I think, No. 3 this year as the city of job growth because there was a foundation laid. We had to make some tough decisions, and I remember as mayor they were no fun. I remember the role of the Presiding Officer in the community he represented. There are tough decisions we have to make, but you have to make them.

I can still remember one headline that as we were trying to figure out what do with our library system that wasn't run as well as it could be, I still remember this headline to this day: "Begich Lays Off 21 Librarians," which is not a very good headline, to say the least.

But what did we do? We reexamined it, reinvested, increased our partnerships with the private sector today, and the library system is more robust than ever before, with new branch libraries serving more kids than ever before, better facilities, new equipment, new technology. It is more robust than it has been in decades because we had to make some tough decisions for the long term.

That is where we are today, especially after the disappointing news we had this last week with regard to the job market, when the economists thought we were going to have 120,000 new jobs and we ended up with just 18,000, unemployment rising to 9.2 percent.

As I said, this plan protects critical investment that will help us build the future of our economy here. It invests, as mentioned by the chairman of the Budget Committee, Chairman CONRAD, in education, energy—which is, of course, for my State critical—and infrastructure, core infrastructure.

I use my experience as a mayor. In my short term as mayor of Anchorage, we built more roads than all the mayors combined in the previous 20 years. We built more vertical construction—fire stations, convention center, museums, and other facilities that helped water, sewer, power, new generation of gas turbines—all that because when you build that infrastructure, the private sector will attach to it, will be attracted to it and will build off of that.

This budget that is being presented by the majority on the Budget Committee keeps our investments in education, energy, infrastructure, which in turn will ensure that we continue to move back into the realm of being more competitive on the worldwide market.

We have all heard the budget proposal lays out some ideas on tax reform—not just a little bit here and a little bit there, but fairly significant. When we talk about our corporate rate in this budget proposal by the majority in the Budget Committee, it brings it down to about 29 percent. It is not where I would like it, but it is better than where it is today. It gets us more competitive on the world market.

A group of us also have introduced legislation in advance of this budget proposal, the Wyden-Coats-Begich Bipartisan Tax Fairness and Simplification Act. The legislation provides real tax reform for our very outdated system. It plays off of exactly what the majority laid out, a budget proposal that talks about tax reform to create certainty for our business community for long-term investments, and we take it one more step. Not only do we look at the corporate component, we look at the individuals.

Can you imagine, as an individual right now we deal with six different rate structures. If we can reduce it to three, which our bill does, and you could do your tax return on one page—can you imagine the amount of time, effort, and money individuals will save? We take the budget proposal that the committee I sit on and the Presiding Officer sits on one step further. Not only do we focus on stability and certainty for the business community, which is critical for long-term investments they need to make to ensure all those trillions they have literally locked up in their cash accounts because they are not sure where we are headed as a country, we create the certainty, but we also ensure the individual has a compressed rate, a more fair system, and simplified, which we think is important.

Tax reform is an integral part of the conversation on deficit reduction. I am pleased Senator CONRAD's proposal also provides some of the same tax reform principles I mentioned. As I mentioned, it not only deals with the rate structure but, as he detailed, very aggressively closing shelters and loopholes, and not just for one industry over another industry, which has been some of the debate, it is for fairness of all. We look at it all because we want everyone to be treated fairly.

Let me talk about a couple of more pieces in the majority's budget from the Budget Committee. Chairman CONRAD went through it in great detail but I want to emphasize this point. The AMT, the middle-class tax cuts—what does this mean? What does this mean for the average person here?

Right now, 4.3 million taxpayers are affected by the AMT, which is a small tax provision that many years ago was set in place to get the richest of the richest. But it was never indexed, never inflation adjusted, so it has grown. There are 4.3 million taxpayers we have affected today. If we do not fix this tax problem, it will increase to 31 million people who will have additional taxes to pay.

What are we doing? We are putting on the AMT patch to fix this problem so 30-plus million people will not have this additional tax burden. We think it is right. We think it is the right approach. It goes to the people who need it the most.

In addition, this framework that was laid out today, for singles earning $500,000 and couples earning $1 million or more, they will not receive the same tax relief as everyone below them will receive. The tax relief will be focused on families who earn $1 million or less. Why is that important? Because not only are they families, but almost 98 percent of all small business earn $1 million or less pretax. So we protect the backbone of my State. I can tell you as a small businessperson, the Presiding Officer knows that as someone who worked in a small business and it grew to a larger business, it is the backbone. It is what makes the difference in hiring people. Every day when people see their revenue stream start to increase, small businesses start hiring people. They need those employees.

But this proposal is not only for the individual, and then also the larger corporation bringing in that corporate rate, but it protects almost all the small businesses in this country—and, of course, being very biased—and in my State.

What does that mean? That means when you calculate it all in real dollars, and you heard the numbers, when you think about the tax reductions, the tax savings for middle-class Americans and small business, it is well over $1 trillion between the AMT and preserving the tax relief for families earning under $1 million. It is significant.

That is money that small businesses will reinvest into their businesses, employing other small businesses to do the work. It is families who will have more disposable income to put into the economy which means more purchases from businesses which means more hiring and this has a constant ripple effect.

When you talk to business owners, and I have—I spent a lot of time with them as a small businessperson and a Senator now, meeting with business folks on a regular basis—over and over again they tell me put the money in the hands of the consumer. Then the consumers will spend that money and improve the economy because, as they spend money, we will hire more employees and buy more product. It goes on and on.

There is a difference between what we are trying to do in the sense of the value, who receives the benefit of a comprehensive budget proposal, a budget proposal that the majority in the Budget Committee has worked on for the last 2 or 3 months, at least, and before that trying to figure out the right approach. It is a balanced approach. It focuses, as I said, on dealing with budget reductions, accountability, ensuring that where there is waste we go after it aggressively. Where people are taking advantage of the system at the cost of the everyday person, we go after that. But we don't forget that we have to invest in the core issues of education, energy, and infrastructure, so we continue to grow this economy.

We must have a balanced approach in this process. I know on the other side they will argue over and over, first let's do spending and then we will deal with other things. You have to do it all together. I am telling you this as a person who ran a city for almost six years, ran businesses for many years: you cannot do it on one piece of the equation. It is a three-pronged attack. Some of the folks I know around here after years of service have gotten a little amnesia as to how it will occur. We can blame individuals, blame certain Presidents, certain majorities, but we are where we are and we have to deal with this.

It is not going to be fun. It will be uncomfortable. It will make us have to dig deep into what is right for the long-term health of this country and what we need to do to ensure America becomes what it used to be—a stronger country economically than it is today where we are in the lead when comes to innovation and we are in the lead when it comes to developing new technologies to lead this world in its economic growth.

We cannot do it in this process of I am only going to do one thing and one thing only. That does not work. It has to be a broad, sweeping approach.

We are not going to forget in this process that we are not going to throw people overboard who have helped build this country. When you think of our seniors, the generation that built our country to where it is, ensuring that people such as myself, the Presiding Officer, and others have an incredible opportunity, thinking about where they need to be, this budget plan keeps Social Security off the table.

We recognize there are issues and we have to deal with it in its sustainability and we recognize that, but it is not a driver. It has not contributed 1 penny to this deficit. We need to treat Social Security in a way that ensures sustainability in the long term and there are simple solutions to that that I know we can get to.

We also ensure that Medicare is taken care of, that benefits are not reduced. Also, as the chairman said so eloquently earlier, we have to ensure that our veterans are protected, those who serve now in Iraq and Afghanistan and all around the world, and served before. We owe a great deal to veterans. In some cases before I got here I know there was a lot of debate in the Veterans' Committee on which I sit. We have been working to be very sure they get the benefits they deserve. We need to make sure we fund them. When we send them to war and they become veterans after their service, we have an obligation, an obligation that should not be sliced and diced because we want to make political statements on the budget cutting process. They need to be protected.

As I said, this budget does good things. It is a fair approach. It may not be perfect in all senses. I can tell you there are things I don't like in it that are going to impact groups that are concerned about how we approach this, but we are all in this together. We need to make the approach the right way. But those who are so hardened now who say it is only going to be about spending cuts—which, let me make it very clear, I think the Budget Committee, the majority on the Budget Committee, is not afraid of dealing with the budget cuts. We have done that—$2 trillion of budget cuts. We have to get used to it when we are here in the Senate, not Bs or Ms, they are Ts, $2 trillion of budget cuts. We also balance it getting rid of loopholes and tax shelters in a fair and balanced way so everyone pays their fair share, but we also make sure we invest in the future.

If we are shortsighted around this place, we will pay for it next year and the year after that and the year after that. This is truly I think the right approach that goes after ensuring the middle class are not the people carrying the burden as they have been doing for the last several years—especially in the last 2 years, clearly—and that everyone participates. But we also make sure investment is done the right way.

The chairman laid out in great detail all that is in the framework. We think it is an important piece to lay down, that Democrats have been working on. We have been working every hour, every day. Even when we are back in our home States, trying to talk to constituents, we are talking about the budget. The Presiding Officer tells me stories. Every night he heads home and he meets with constituents to try to find out what the right approach is here. We bring all that information right here in this body. We did it in the majority in the Budget Committee. I know I put up a Web site request asking Alaskans what it is they want to cut. What do they want to save or have as revenues? Like good Alaskans, they were not bashful. They were very adamant about what they wanted and what they did not want and where we should cut and where we should not cut. I have taken all that in, and I have used that as part of my debate and discussion with the majority of the Budget Committee to figure out what the right approach is. I think this is the right approach. I think some might call it a big deal. In the Senate, this is the big deal. We are in the big place. This is where big deals happen. This is where it all has to happen. It is where we drive the economy in the sense of our certainty and our policies. If we cannot have a strong deficit reduction budget, we are not going to create the certainty the business community needs to invest, which will, in turn, employ more people and create a better economy for us here and obviously will have an impact around the world.

I want to say thank you for an opportunity to say a few words, again, commending the chairman, who was here earlier, for all of his work. It is a tough call. I will end on this comment, the story I told you about the librarians and the headline I had to have. That was in my first 6 months in office when I was mayor. Mr. President, 2½ years later, I won reelection with one of the largest margins in the city's history. So I would say this to anybody who is trying to figure out if they are going to win their primary, win their general election: Put that all aside. That is what I did when I was mayor. I had to make some tough calls. Did I know if I would win reelection? No. I didn't know. I knew I did the right thing because it was the city I lived in. It was the State I grew up in. It was important for us to make the right decision, which at the end of the day is usually the right political decision. That is what this body has to do. It is not fun because people face primaries. They face general elections. Some will win, some will lose. But if we are true public servants, truly it doesn't matter if we are sitting in this room or outside there; we are always public servants. We have to do what is right in this critical time for this country and in the global perspective. If we don't do the right deficit plan, it will ripple through this country and it will ripple through this world in the wrong direction.

Thank you for the opportunity. Thank you for the chance to say a few words, but also I implore my colleagues on the other side to think about today's opportunities for the generations in the future and not about today's elections. And I mean on both sides of the aisle. It is about the moment of what people do for this country.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to speak until I finish my remarks.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, in recent days I have spoken several times on the matter of tax expenditures. I am going to address this subject again today. It is a timely topic. Everyone is talking about our out-of-control deficits and debt. There are divergent opinions on how best to deal with our Nation's increasingly perilous fiscal situation, but there is one thing everyone seems to agree on: Both the deficit and the debt are unsustainable. If we keep going down this fiscal path, the United States will face a crisis similar to that in Greece and sooner rather than later. The numbers could not be clearer. Federal spending as a share of our economy is trending at a pace 15 percent to 20 percent greater than its historical average of 20.6 percent of GDP. If we leave in place this year's level of taxation, including the marginal rate of relief between the 2001 and 2003 tax cuts, and patch the alternative minimum tax, or AMT, the Federal tax take will equal or exceed its historic share of the economy.

Liberals suggest the deficit and debt can only be resolved with a significant tax increase. This is either deliberately misleading or sadly delusional. They are either selling snake oil to the American people or they refuse to come to grips with reality. Sticking their heads in the sand is not an option. As you can see, here are Federal taxes and spending as a percentage of GDP. The red line happens to be the spending line. And as you can see, we are way up here in the Obama 2012 budget. The blue line happens to be the average between 1960 and 2009. As you can see, it is way down here. Our spending is out of control. The markets and the American people understand the nature of our crisis. Nondefense discretionary spending is at historic levels and our entitlement programs are headed for bankruptcy.

When former Speaker of the House NANCY PELOSI responded to the utter failure of President Obama and congressional Democrats to come up with a Medicare reform plan, she responded, "We have a plan. It's called Medicare."

That attitude is the recipe for bankrupting the Nation, a bankruptcy that will take our seniors down with it. The left might prefer to ignore reality, but here is the undeniable truth: Our Nation faces a spending crisis that tax increases cannot fix. I wish the media would get this. They are so enamored with the idea of a grand bargain on deficit reduction, a little spending reduction here, a little tax increase there, that they miss the fundamental point. The problem is spending, as you can easily see by this red line. It is way out of whack, and going back to the dry well of raising taxes on the rich is not going to work.

The fact that Democrats in the Senate have not put forward a budget in over 800 days is neglecting one of the core constitutional responsibilities, and it is all the evidence we need that they are afraid of the bill coming due on all of their spending. They understand their hard left base will not accept structural changes to our biggest spending programs under any circumstances. But they also understand that the American people will not stomach for a minute the tax increases that will be necessary in the absence of such reforms. This is a difficult position to be in, so rather than deal with the facts, they traffic in obfuscation. This morning I heard the ranking Democratic member on the House Budget Committee following the President's lead and suggesting that removing some tax breaks for energy companies would fix our deficit crisis. Getting rid of those tax breaks would raise $21 billion over the next 10 years. Yet this fiscal year alone, in 2011, we will have a projected budget deficit of $1.5 trillion to $1.6 trillion. So where is the rest of our money going to come from?

Last week I came under fire for stating what I thought to be a relatively noncontroversial fact. Here is what I said:

In 2009, 51 percent of Americans had zero or negative income tax liability.

Here is what that means. In 2009 only 49 percent—a minority of all households in this country—49 percent of tax units shouldered 100 percent of the Nation's tax burden. And 51 percent of the tax units—a majority of all tax units in this country—either owed nothing to the IRS or, better yet, got money back from the IRS in excess of their tax liability. Mr. President, 23 million of them got refundable tax credits, much more than they pay in employment taxes, which are Social Security. By the way, as they pay into Social Security, they only pay a third of what they will ultimately draw out according to the actuaries, but they are not paying income taxes. This should be no less controversial than saying the Sun rises in the east. This is not conjecture. It is a demonstrable fact, yet apparently touched a nerve. Because last week after raising this issue on the Senate floor, MSNBC and the liberal blogosphere, presumably armed with the talking points from the Senate Democratic war room, went ballistic, suggesting that I wanted to balance the budget by raising taxes on the poor. I am not surprised, but this completely misses my point, and the point is this: No matter what these Democrats tell you, the wealthy and middle class are already shouldering around 100 percent of the Nation's tax burden and 51 percent pay absolutely nothing in income taxes. Furthermore, because of this perverse distribution of Federal income taxes, there is no way to fix our deficit hole and pay down the debt by increasing taxes on the so-called rich.

Here is the bottom line. All of the "let's talk about taxes on the rich" and closing loopholes and going after corporate tax breaks is meant to divert attention from the sad fact that the President's out-of-control spending puts Democrats in a position of having to raise taxes big time on the middle class since they are going to balance the budget without structural reforms to our largest spending programs. Tax increases on the wealthy will not get our Nation to fiscal balance. Even if we let the Bush tax breaks expire from the top income bracket, the total amount raised over 10 years would be $615 billion. That is over 10 years. Yet our deficit this year alone is $1.5 trillion to $1.6 trillion. This is why the issue of tax expenditures is critical. So everybody knows, I made it clear, I thought, in my last remarks that I don't want to tax the truly poor, those who would help themselves if they could. I do not want to tax them. But you can't tell me that 51 percent of all households are the truly poor. I don't want to tax them either, to be honest with you, but it is apparent we are going to have to find a better way of broadening the base of the tax system. Democrats talk about tax expenditures as though they were the holy grail of deficit reduction. Just close these loopholes and happy days are here again. The public is being misled in this type of debate, but don't take my word for it. Today the Associated Press had a story with the following lines:

SPIN METER: Obama, Dems skirt issue on tax hikes.

This is what the body of the article has to say:

Proposals under consideration include raising taxes on small business owners and potentially low- and middle-income families.

You won't hear about that from President Obama. Instead, the President focuses on the very rich and speaks euphemistically. Here are a few of the phrases the President has used of late of what amounts to raising taxes for some:

What we need to do is to have a balanced approach where everything is on the table.

He goes on to say:

We need to take on spending in the tax code. The tax cuts I am proposing we get rid of are tax breaks for millionaires and billionaires, tax breaks for oil companies, hedge fund managers and corporate jet owners. You can't reduce the deficit to the levels it needs to be reduced without having some revenue in the mix.

All those are quotes by the President. They are doing their best to hide their intentions, but the writing is on the wall. Democrats are angling for historic tax increases on the middle class, and the way they want to accomplish this is by reducing or eliminating tax expenditures. Cutting back tax expenditures is a convenient way for Democrats to tax middle-class tax-paying families without having to say they are raising their tax rates. As I noted last week, this is what we were talking about when Democrats discussed tax expenditures. They are talking about your pension. They are talking about your Medicare. They are talking about your ability to purchase a home or save for retirement or give to your church or put away money for your children's education. This is exactly what we are talking about. That is where the money is. It is not in bonus depreciation for corporate jets, and it is not in tax benefits for energy companies.

When Democrats talk about tax expenditures and tax loopholes as a way to bring down the deficit and debt, they are putting a bull's-eye on the backs of middle-class American families. We heard a lot this morning about Republicans walking away from the President's grand bargain on deficit reduction. Well, I know that the people of Utah applaud Speaker BOEHNER for not signing on to this bogus deal. This morning the President's allies in the media were asking why Republicans walked away from this deal. With the President willing to put entitlement spending on the table, why aren't Republicans willing to put taxes on the table? It is worth noting that the President and his Democratic allies steadfastly refuse any structural changes to entitlement spending.

Second, for Democrats, putting taxes on the table and tax expenditures means tax increases on the middle class, and that is a nonstarter. This issue of tax expenditures is confusing and demands greater clarity. As ranking member of the Finance Committee, it is my responsibility to correct the record on what the curtailment or elimination of tax expenditures would mean for taxpayers and families.

If you listen to my friends on the other side of the aisle, you would think tax expenditures are "spending through the Tax Code." You would think they are mostly loopholes in the tax law designed by and for special interests such as ethanol blenders. Another mantra you will hear too often uncritically reviewed by many in the media is that tax expenditures disproportionately benefit wealthy taxpayers.

A few days ago I talked about what tax expenditures are and what tax expenditures are not. They are not spending. You can find the text of that speech from July 6 on the Finance Committee Web site. They are not, in the main, loopholes for special interests. The other day, I talked about the major features of family financial planning that would be upended if tax expenditures were curtailed. I referred to employee pension plans such as 401(k) accounts. I also mentioned charitable gifts and home ownership. If my friends on the other side are successful in cutting back tax expenditures, American families, workers, and investors can expect the cost of all of these activities to rise. If the cost rises, as a nation, we will be poorer because we will have less retirement savings, fewer charitable contributions and more expensive homeowners. You can find the text of that speech last Thursday on the committee Web site as well.

Today I am going to consider the oft-repeated line that tax expenditures disproportionately benefit the wealthy taxpayers.

For purposes of this discussion only, I will adopt the President's definition of rich; that is, singles with adjusted gross incomes over $200,000 per year and married couples with incomes over $250,000 per year. I wish to be clear that I do not lump all of these folks in with Bill Gates, Jr., LeBron James, Warren Buffett, or Gilligan's Island resident millionaire Thurston Howell, III. Here is good old Thurston who was the millionaire on Gilligan's Island. I am using the President's definition of rich because most of my friends on the other side use it. They also claim tax expenditures reside disproportionately with rich taxpayers.

The Democrats' rhetoric on expenditures does not jibe with the reality of our Tax Code. The data is clear. Tax expenditures tend to skew toward taxpayers below the President's definition of the rich. If my friends on the other side examine the data, they will find their assertion about who benefits from tax expenditures does not square with the facts. They will find their assertion that tax expenditures disproportionately benefit the wealthy falls flat on its face.

In much of the coverage of tax expenditures, it has been taken as an article of faith that they disproportionately benefit wealthy taxpayers. Similar assertions have come from the White House and congressional Democrats. The one exception is my friend, the ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee, SANDER LEVIN. Congressman LEVIN has cautioned against treating tax expenditures as rich persons' tax benefits. His position is well founded. The source for this assertion, that tax expenditures are tax benefits for the rich, is a Tax Notes article dated May 3, 2011.

I ask unanimous consent to have it printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Tax Policy Center, May 5, 2011]

WHO BENEFITS FROM TAX EXPENDITURES?

(By Roberton Williams)

The federal income tax is replete with tax expenditures, provisions that grant special benefits to selected taxpayers or for selected activities. Exclusions and deductions reduce taxable income, preferential rates cut the tax on specific types of income, and tax credits are subtracted directly from tax liability.

The various kinds of tax expenditures reduce taxpayers' individual income tax liability differently throughout the income distribution (see graph). More than 90 percent of the tax savings from preferential tax rates on long-term capital gains and qualified dividends go to taxpayers in the top quintile (or fifth) of the income distribution, and nearly half the benefits go to people in the top one-tenth of 1 percent. The top quintile gets about three-fourths of the savings from itemized deductions and more than 60 percent of the benefits of exclusions of selected sources of income such as employer health insurance contributions. High-income households receive relatively larger benefits from special rates, deductions, and exclusions, because they have relatively more income from certain tax-favored sources (capital gains, dividends, tax-exempt interest) and because under our graduated income tax, exclusions and deductions are worth more to taxpayers in higher rate brackets.

In sharp contrast, most of the value of tax credits goes to households in the bottom four quintiles. Nearly 80 percent of nonrefundable credits and more than 95 percent of refundable credits benefit those households. Many credits phase out for high-income taxpayers, limiting their value, but they are a major reason why nearly half of all tax units pay no federal income tax. Nearly one-third of all refundable credits go to the poorest one-fifth of all households and often result in net payments from the government.

Overall, tax expenditures give more benefits to high-income households relative to income but are roughly proportional to tax liabilities. The top quintile collects 55 percent of all income, pays 67 percent of all taxes, and gets nearly 65 percent of the value of tax expenditures. Middle-income households earn slightly more than 40 percent of all income, pay one-third of taxes, and get one-third of tax benefits. The poorest quintile of households receives slightly less than 4 percent of both income and benefits from tax expenditures but pays only 0.5 percent of federal taxes, largely because refundable credits offset almost all their tax liabilities.

Mr. HATCH. The article is written by Roberton Williams of the Tax Policy Center or TPC. TPC is a tax policy think tank that is the product of two center-left think tanks. The article presents conclusions from a TPC distribution analysis of tax expenditures.

The analysis concludes that about two-thirds of tax expenditures benefit the top quintile of households in the study. Viewers on C-SPAN may wonder what a quintile is. It refers to one-fifth of the given population. The TPC analysis is, therefore, measuring the top one-fifth of the population.

According to that study, where does that top one-fifth of the population begin? It begins at $123,000 of household income. It should be noted that household income is a bit broader than the adjusted gross income which is the basis of the President's definition. According to TPC, that top quintile earns 55 percent of income and shoulders a huge amount of the Federal tax burden. They say it is 67 percent.

Now, perhaps not too surprisingly, TPC finds that tax expenditures for the top quintile approximate that top one-fifth's share of the tax burden. With the exception of the refundable credit tax expenditures, a taxpayer has to pay income tax to benefit from the tax deduction credit or exclusion.

Those asserting that tax expenditures are mainly wealthy taxpayer benefits are principally relying on TPC's distribution analysis. If confronted with the TPC data, it seems to me they have four choices. Their first choice would be to revise downward the income basis of their definition of "rich." They could say we really did not mean families at $250,000 of income; we meant families of $123,000 of income. That would be similar to the adjustment made for ObamaCare. Joint tax distribution tables for ObamaCare showed that for every family below $200,000 who received an exchange credit, four families paid higher taxes. For every middle-class family who receives a premium subsidy, five pay higher taxes. That is just a fact. I guess I said five. It really would be four who would pay higher taxes.

A second choice would be to revise the proportion of tax expenditures so that the tax expenditure dollar amount reflects the benefits attributable to taxpayers defined by the President as rich. The President's rich taxpayer definition is the top 3 to 5 percent of taxpayers. It means the group of taxpayers who are roughly 25 to 33 percent of the size of the group in the TPC analysis.

Put another way, the TPC population of rich taxpayers is three to four times the size of the group the President and my friends on the other side define as rich. If a consistent definition of the rich were used, the dollar amounts of tax expenditures in play would be considerably lower. Since the goal of the group pushing the cutback of tax expenditures is to relieve spending constituencies of the pressure of curtailing spending, my guess is they will not choose to reduce the tax expenditure kitty.

Their third choice would be to simply curtail or eliminate tax expenditures for higher income taxpayers. This, of course, could largely eliminate the preferential rates for capital gains and dividends.

Let's take another look at this chart because it shows a big share of the capital gains tax expenditure goes to the top one-fifth. It looks as though about 95 percent of tax expenditures accrues in the top one-fifth. We see that about 50 percent of it accrues to the top one-tenth of 1 percent. Do we think it would make sense in the current economic climate to double or triple the tax hit on investment?

At one point, at least, the President's answer was no. In August 2009 the President was asked by a resident of Indiana:

[e]xplain how raising taxes on anyone during a deep recession is going to help with the economy.

Here was the President's response:

Normally, you don't raise taxes in a recession, which is why we haven't and why we've instead cut taxes. . . . You don't raise taxes in a recession. We haven't raised taxes in a recession.

So what is their fourth choice? Their fourth choice would be coming clean with the American people. Under this option they would admit that tax expenditures disproportionately go to families who are not rich under the President's own definition. They would acknowledge that cutting back tax expenditures as part of a deficit-reduction exercise would hit the middle class and betray the President's promise not to raise taxes on middle-class families.

As we can see, the proponents of these tax increases are in political quicksand, and there is additional evidence that they are sinking as they struggle against the facts. I would ask my friends on the other side to take a look at the Joint Tax distribution tables on many of the major tax expenditure categories. Joint Tax publishes these tables every year. They are available on the Joint Tax Web site.

I have a chart that summarizes the percentages of tax expenditures that go to taxpayers under $200,000. I will have to bring that with me the next time. That is the break point that Joint Tax uses—the percentage of tax expenditures that go to taxpayers under $200,000. It closely squares with the definition of "rich" used by the President and his liberal allies.

Anybody above $200,000 is rich under my Democratic friends' definition. Anybody under $200,000 is not rich. You can find this data in the tax expenditures pamphlet published annually by the nonpartisan Joint Tax staff.

Now I wish to talk about the tax expenditures that Joint Tax distributes by income. I have listed them in order, from the largest in dollar volume down to the lowest in dollar volume. The first one is well known to tens of millions of our constituents. It is the mortgage interest deduction.

If a taxpayer saves up a downpayment and borrows for a home, they can take the interest paid on the mortgage as an itemized deduction. That means 30 percent of the benefit of the mortgage interest tax expenditure goes to taxpayers over $200,000. Taxpayers with incomes below $200,000 receive 70 percent of the benefit of the mortgage interest deduction.

Now, how do we measure whether the mortgage interest deduction disproportionately benefits taxpayers over $200,000? There is a line in bold letters that reads: "Compare Total Federal Tax Burden." That is the baseline of how much tax is shouldered by the group of taxpayers above and below $200,000. We have a very progressive tax system. Taxpayers earning more than $200,000 shoulder 64 percent of the tax burden. Taxpayers earning less than $200,000 shoulder 36 percent of the tax burden.

Taxpayers earning less than $200,000 receive 70 percent of the mortgage interest deduction while shouldering 36 percent of the tax burden. Who benefits from these tax expenditures? We are going to get into that. That means by a ratio of almost 2 to 1, taxpayers under $200,000 benefit from the mortgage interest deduction; and since $200,000 basically fits the definition of "rich" used by my friends on the other side of the aisle, we can see that other taxpayers who are nonrich, or the middle-income group, disproportionately benefit from the mortgage interest rate deduction.

Now, let me talk about another tax expenditure. I am referring to the earned-income credit, or EIC. It is a refundable credit. That means taxpayers receive it whether they pay income tax or not. That is why the credit is basically scored as spending by the Congressional Budget Office—the CBO—and Joint Tax.

There is a bit of irony about this tax expenditure because it is refundable. It is more popular with my friends on the other side than other tax expenditures. That is because those other tax expenditures go to taxpayers who actually pay income tax. The refundable credit is popular with my friends on the other side because it is a robust income-reducing mechanism.

President Obama, in his famous exchange with Joe the Plumber, captured the economic theory supporting this policy when he said we need to "spread the wealth around."

Here is the irony. My friends on the other side derisively describe all tax expenditures as "spending through the Tax Code." Yet the tax expenditures they most support are the refundable ones, such as the earned-income credit. It should come as little surprise that the left's favorite tax expenditure is the one that is scored as spending by congressional spending scorekeepers.

Because the earned-income credit tax expenditure is refundable, we shouldn't be surprised to find that so-called rich taxpayers do not benefit from it. The chart confirms this point.

The third tax expenditure is right here: the current $1,000-per-child tax credit. It is, by definition, limited to lower and middle-income taxpayers.

We should not be surprised to find that none of it goes to higher income taxpayers, and the chart confirms this point: zero to taxpayers over $200,000; 100 percent to taxpayers under $200,000.

Let's take a look at State and local taxes. It is the fourth one on here. The chart shows that 50 percent of this broad-based deduction goes to middle-income families.

No. 5 on this list is a tax benefit near and dear to many of my fellow Utah families. It is the itemized deduction for charitable contributions or donations. Of all the tax expenditures listed on this chart—this big chart right here—this one, charitable itemized deductions—distributes in the highest proportion to taxpayers above $200,000 in income. The chart says 55 percent, right here; 45 percent for those under $200,000. Keep in mind, overall, taxpayers with income over $200,000 bear 64 percent of the tax burden.

Now, this means proportionately, the charitable deduction benefits taxpayers under the $200,000 level more than taxpayers above the $200,000 level.

Now let's take a look at No. 6 on this chart. It is the tax-free portion of Social Security benefits, right there. Anyone advocating a cutback on tax expenditures is advocating a cutback on the aftertax Social Security benefits for a big chunk of the senior population. Guess what. We are not talking about wealthy seniors. According to this chart, 2 percent of that favorable tax treatment of Social Security goes to seniors with incomes over $200,000. My guess is that few of the seniors benefitting from this policy own yachts or regularly fly corporate jets.

No. 7 is the itemized deduction for real property taxes. Right now, their constituents take the edge off that heavy local tax hit with the itemized deduction. If many of my friends on the other side have their way and hack away or eliminate tax expenditures without also cutting their constituents' Federal tax rate, guess what happens. In the case of local property taxes, the net effect will be to raise the property tax rate by as much as 35 percent.

Some of my friends may suggest that only those with villas are taking the property tax deduction. This chart says otherwise. It says 80 percent of the real property tax benefits go to taxpayers under $200,000.

How about No. 9 on the list? No. 9 on the list is the itemized deduction for medical expenses. ObamaCare cut back on that one. But if my friends on the other side reduce or eliminate side tax expenditures to avoid dealing with out-of-control government spending, this deduction will be cut back even more. The chart shows on these medical itemized deductions that 89 percent of this tax benefit goes to taxpayers earning less than $200,000.

No. 10 is the dependent childcare credit. This is a modest tax credit that working moms and dads can tap. Like the child tax credit, it mainly is used by middle-income families. The chart confirms it. It indicates that 96 percent of the benefits of this credit go to families earning less than $200,000.

The final item on the list is the student loan interest deduction, as shown right here on this chart. This tax benefit is income limited. Not surprisingly, all of the benefit goes to taxpayers earnings learning less than $200,000—100 percent of the benefit. I do not think a lot of the recent college graduates using this deduction are in the market for a yacht. But if you listen to my friends on the other side, you would think because this benefit is labeled a tax expenditure, those who benefit from it have a schooner docked in the local harbor.

I am not saying that only middle-income families benefit from tax expenditures. Wealthy taxpayers benefit from the lower capital gains and dividends rates.

Let me refer to this chart of the 10 largest tax expenditures for the period 2010 to 2014. But the lion's share of tax expenditures goes to that part of the middle class that is already shouldering much of the Nation's tax burden. Most of the tax expenditures are either income limited or of limited value to wealthy taxpayers. Likewise, low-income families do not pay income taxes. They receive tax expenditures that are designed for the nontaxpaying population.

So who is left? The answer is the taxpayers who are not rich by the President's own definition. The answer is middle-class families.

On our side, the reaction to all these choices would be simple. Many on our side, including Ways and Means Committee Chairman CAMP, have put it this way. Keep your hands off tax increases, including cutbacks in tax expenditures, for deficit reduction. Reserve those tax expenditures for tax reform. In that way, taxpayers receive a benefit—lower rates in exchange for a broader base. That broader base would include reform of tax expenditures, if Chairman CAMP and I have our way. Any other approach is just another tax increase. And they on the other side will spend every dime of it.

The President this morning gave another press conference. He asked what the holdup was in arriving at a deficit reduction compromise. The answer seems pretty obvious. Contrary to the President's vague assertions, the left-wing base he is depending on for his reelection refuses any meaningful structural reforms to the spending programs that are currently bankrupting our country. That means the only serious deficit reduction option available to Democrats is massive tax increases on the middle class. Democrats will not acknowledge the inevitable tax increases their agenda assumes, and Republicans will not give the President any cover in his drive to "spread the wealth around." That is what is holding up this process.

So let me offer a suggestion. Instead of berating Republicans for not signing on to historic and economy-crushing tax increases, when unemployment is at 9.2 percent, maybe the President should take his own party to the woodshed. Maybe he should ask the liberals in his party who refuse any meaningful structural reforms to entitlements to get serious. Maybe he could go on television and explain to the American people that we have over $60 trillion in liabilities and that tax increases are not going to bring that into balance.

Instead, the President and his party sit around and spread the myth that simply getting rid of tax expenditures and loopholes—and they certainly are not loopholes, the ones I have been talking about—will fix our deficits and debt. We have two reasons to worry about that wrongheaded approach. One, to the extent deficit reduction energies are diverted to cutting back tax expenditures, pressure is taken off the root cause of the deficit and debt problem. That is, pressure that should be brought to bear on out-of-control spending programs is released. Two, the productive sectors of the economy—workers, small business owners, and investors—are burdened with yet more Federal taxes.

For many reasons, cutbacks in tax expenditures are a deficit reduction dog that will not hunt.

If you look at all individual tax expenditures, you can see these are the 10 highest tax expenditures by percentage.

Let me go back to the preceding chart. If you look at all these tax expenditures, for the mortgage interest itemized deduction, 70 percent are people earning under $200,000; for the earned income tax credit, 100 percent; for the child tax credit, 100 percent; for the State and local taxes, other than real property, 50 percent; for charitable itemized deductions, 45 percent—yes, the rich had 55 percent by their definition—for Social Security benefits, 98 percent; for the real property tax itemized deduction, 80 percent; for the education credit, 100 percent; for medical itemized deductions, 89 percent; for the dependent childcare credit, 96 percent; for student loan interest, 100 percent.

Look, my point is, we have to come up with a better Tax Code. I am dedicated to changing this awful Tax Code we have that is too complicated, too large, too expensive, does not do the job, and is a bunch of muttering around and puttering around by Members of Congress, and simplifying that Code so everybody knows which end is up.

On tax expenditures, I am going to be happy to look at tax expenditures, but they should be reserved until we do real tax reform. If you have to give up some of these expenditures, then there better be appropriate reductions to account for that, and we have to do it by flattening out that tax system that we all know is completely out of control and completely difficult to comply with. As a matter of fact, I do not know of anybody on the Senate Finance Committee who fills out their own tax forms. I do not think most of us could do it because if you had 10 different tax preparers on a semicomplicated tax return, you would probably have 10 different approaches to it. That shows the pathetic system that is wrecking our country.

To make it clear, when the President took over, the bottom 40 percent of all households did not pay income taxes. Yes, they paid payroll taxes, but 23 million of them got refundable tax credits, much more than they paid in payroll taxes. Keep in mind, I do not believe we should tax the truly poor. But now that is up to 51 percent in a little over 2 years under this administration of people who do not pay any income taxes. Are they all truly poor? I do not know. All I know is, it does not sound right that the majority of people, the majority of tax units in this country, do not pay income taxes, and the minority has to carry the whole burden.

If they are truly poor, I understand and I would be the last one to tax them, and I think I have a 35-year record here of being fair to the poor and fair to families and, above all, fair to children. My name is on an awful lot of important bills around here, and I have led the fight on a lot of bills that help people in distress. So you can imagine how aggrieved I felt when one of our great television stations was distorting one sentence—it seemed to me one sentence—out of a 30-minute set of remarks on the floor that made it very clear that I do not want to tax the truly poor. But surely we have to have everybody participate. I actually think everybody ought to participate, even if it is only $1. We ought to all have some skin in the game. We ought to all help save this country, and we cannot do it without the middle class. And the middle class is not just the top 49 percent of all wage earners.

This is an important issue, and it is one we have to resolve, and we have to resolve it fairly, we have to resolve it in a way that is meaningful and in a way that will help save our country too. I think I have more than made the case that you cannot pile it all on the so-called 3 to 5 percent, the so-called rich, which includes 800,000 small businesses, where 70 percent of all jobs are created. And everybody knows that is true. Every time you tax them and take moneys away from them like that, when they are paying pretty hefty taxes as it is, they hire less, they do less, they quit their businesses, some move offshore, some move their businesses to other countries, and some just plain give up.

We cannot let that happen. We have to have a fair tax situation. We have to have Democrats and Republicans work on it together. We have to quit playing this card that basically pits one group of people against another.

All I can say is this. I am concerned. I am pointing out difficulties in our Tax Code. I am pointing out difficulties in some of the arguments the President is making. And I have to say that anybody who reads my remarks fairly will know these points I am making are real points. These charts are important. As you can see, taxpayers earning under $200,000 will be bereft without these benefits unless we can revamp the whole Tax Code in a way that you do not have to have tax expenditures. Tax expenditures are certainly not spending—at least these ones we are talking about right here and now.

So if you compare the total Federal tax burden, those earning over $200,000 pay 64 percent; those earning under $200,000 pay 36 percent. All of that is important for us to understand.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MERKLEY). The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about some missed opportunities. Last week, I talked a little bit about how I thought the President had missed the opportunity with his deficit commission, he had missed the opportunity with his State of the Union speech, and he had missed the opportunity with his budget.

Well, almost 2 weeks ago, President Obama scolded Congress for not making enough progress on debt ceiling and budget negotiations. He said we needed to stay in Washington last week and get things done. I took him at his word. I thought the administration and the majority were serious about staying in Washington to push forward and get some results. We were all in Washington last week, but we did not get anything done. The debt and the deficit and the lack of a budget are not the only issues facing America. When are we going to have real issues processed through committees that provide real solutions?

Despite reports suggesting that Democrats have reached an agreement on a budget deal among themselves, the majority did not present us with that budget. Despite the President's comments that Congress needed to be in session to reach an agreement, he refused to meet with our caucus. We have gone more than 800 days without passing any sort of budget in the Senate. When we stayed in Washington last week to work on a budget deal, Democrats refused to bring up that budget for a vote.

Last week, we had an opportunity to make headway on the debt ceiling issue. I spoke on the floor last Wednesday and implored my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in rolling up our sleeves and figuring out a way to solve the fiscal mess this country is in. I laid down the facts and figures—frightening numbers that should have galvanized us all into action. Instead, we are still pushing for a comprehensive solution to the problem or none at all. This isn't "deal or no deal" time.

Now, here we are, and what was supposed to have been an important work-week has come and gone. What do we have to show for it? We had one vote canceled on the Libya resolution, a substitute vote on whether the Sergeant at Arms should compel attendance, which was a nonbudget-related matter, and we had one legislative vote on Senator RED's resolution about tax increases. This resolution is a sense of the Senate, which is not something that could become law. At this juncture more than ever, we don't need publicity pieces.

What we could have done was moved forward with the balanced budget amendment that all 47 Republicans have cosponsored or we could have voted on my legislation to reduce spending by 1 percent each year until we achieve a balanced budget or we could have voted on legislation other Republicans have offered that would cap spending or we could have voted on legislation offered by Republicans to ensure we pay our creditors in the event we cannot reach an agreement on the debt ceiling. Unfortunately, we didn't do any of that. Instead, we spent a week holding one legislative vote on a sense of the Senate about raising taxes that even if passed would not have the force of law.

Republicans have proposed a variety of ideas that will help us get out of this fiscal mess we are in. Some are baby steps; some are giant steps. Every bill doesn't have to be comprehensive.

Members of the majority have said Republicans were using every tactic to delay. What was last week? A vote on a sense of the Senate? The House passed a budget in April. The Senate Republicans proposed two additional budget measures. The only plan presented by the majority—President Obama's budget for fiscal year 2012—was unanimously opposed, 0 to 97. Not even a single Democrat voted for the President's budget. It sounds like a different course is needed.

I thought we were here to take care of business. Is one legislative vote on an opinion piece considered taking care of business? Not in my mind. I am willing to bet the American people don't think so either. This is exactly the kind of behavior that is frustrating the people in Wyoming and all across the country. They have asked us to come do a job. They have put their faith in us to take care of business and put this country back on solid fiscal footing. The American people want us to thoughtfully and seriously work to address the debt ceiling and reduce spending. Taking one legislative vote in a week doesn't pass the smell test for getting the job done. The work product we gave the American people last week is appalling.

We are staring the most predictable crisis in American history in the face, and, with only one legislative vote last week, we essentially said it is not dire enough for us to get something done; it is not important enough to stop playing political games and stop running the clock. I am hopeful that this week will be different. I am hopeful that we will actually make progress on budget negotiations.

I am encouraged that the President has finally taken it upon himself to engage leaders on the matter. His direct engagement should have been happening for months, and his refusal to get directly involved has put us in the situation we are in today, with 3 weeks until the Treasury Department is left without options for the debt ceiling. We have lost time. We have lost opportunities. We have lost the focus started by the deficit commission. Every day that passes that we don't get anything done is one more option lost and more money spent on borrowed time and borrowed money.

Businesses all across the country can't afford to waste a day, much less a week, without productivity, and if they did, I guarantee they would pay a heavy price. If that unproductive behavior continued, they would have to close their doors. People going to work every day cannot afford to sit around and not do their jobs. If Americans and businesses in this country have to work hard and stay productive to provide for their families and keep their businesses running, so should we. The standards should not be any different in the Senate.

As for a solution that relies on increased taxes, when Congress fails by spending too much, the easy answer is always to raise taxes. There are many Republican proposals for raising revenue without raising taxes. But we cannot get in a situation where, when we fail, we charge the people more. It usually results in less revenue anyway.

The motion we are voting on tonight is a sham. When it passes, we have permission to add amendments to the sense-of-the-Senate resolution—maybe. In other words, we can amend the opinion of the Senate that cannot become law. How long will we amend and debate an opinion?

I am disappointed we didn't get anything done last week. I hope we all learned a lesson from the week we just lost. The issues facing the country today are too important and too dire for us to waste time the way we did. I know right now committees are not having real markups, so there is nothing in the drawer to vote on. Even the few times a bill has been brought up, the majority didn't want to vote on amendments and shut the process down. That isn't getting us anywhere. We need to change course. The time for action is now, and I hope we can use last week's failure to get things done as an incentive to roll up our sleeves and get to work.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 5 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

(The remarks of Mr. KYL pertaining to the introduction of S. 1344 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time during the quorum call be equally divided, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, last week, the House Speaker—Speaker BOEHNER—and President Obama and his administration were both calling for comprehensive tax reform as part of a large budget deal. Obviously, today, that seems to have lost some momentum, and I wanted to start this afternoon by saying tax reform is too important to abandon after 48 hours' worth of discussion.

To his credit, Chairman CONRAD recognizes that, and certainly that is what I heard this weekend when, similar to the distinguished Presiding Officer, I was home and had the chance to travel across eastern Oregon, stopping in small towns. I think there is a keen awareness that it is not possible to cut our way out of this economic challenge; that we also have to grow. We have to grow. We have to make growth-oriented changes in tax law.

That is what the Conrad budget clearly offers a wide berth to do. In fact, I am of the view that progrowth tax reform, for example, is one of the few ways to generate revenue that both Democrats and Republicans will support. When you put people to work—and we have millions and millions of our fellow citizens out of work today—those are folks who can, in the private sector, start paying taxes again. That is what happened after the last major tax reform bill in 1986. In those 2 years—the 2 years after major tax reform—6.3 million new jobs were created in the private sector. We have an opportunity to do that again, and the Conrad budget offers a wide berth in which to do it.

So you generate revenue—revenue that both Democrats and Republicans can support—and create jobs in the private sector the way Democrats and Republicans have said they want to do. Certainly, it is pretty clear, as of today, there isn't anything as promising in the economic toolshed for long-term growth as tax reform. The fact is, a lot of other alternatives have been tried. Certainly, the Federal Reserve has done its share. We have the Recovery Act. There have been a variety of steps that have been taken.

My colleague from Oregon, in my view, has done yeomen's work on the effort to make sure homeowners—which is an enormous economic problem—have additional time to work through the very challenging situations millions are facing in the housing market. So we have thrown a lot of economic tools at this huge challenge, but we obviously have a lot more to do. I don't see any more promising path—no more promising path—than tax reform for the long-term economic growth this country needs. The Conrad budget offers a wide berth in order to tap that opportunity.

The fact is, we understand what needs to be done in terms of tax reform. The fundamental language—the principles of that kind of reform—are laid out in the Conrad budget. We ought to go in there, clean out a score of these special interest tax loopholes, use that money to hold down rates for everybody, and keep progressivity. Those are the three key principles.

A number of my colleagues have spoken. I know my friend from Arizona, with whom I serve on the Finance Committee, Senator KYL, in a very fine op-ed piece he wrote in the Wall Street Journal not too long ago, talked about tax reform built around exactly those principles—cleaning out the loopholes, holding down the rates, and, to his credit, Senator KYL specifically talked about the need to ensure progressivity in the Tax Code.

Senator COATS and I have introduced legislation that picks up on those key principles of the 1986 tax reform legislation. In fact, we modernize the code in line with that kind of thinking—certainly important to do because there have been thousands and thousands of tax changes made since 1986. So it is certainly time to go in there and trim out all those unnecessary special interest tax breaks, and we can do it in a way that will create jobs.

For example, right now, in the Federal Tax Code, there are actually incentives to export jobs out of the United States. Say that to yourself—export jobs out of the United States. What we want to do is export goods out of the United States. In rural Oregon this weekend, the farmers were telling me about how they want to get their agricultural products into Asia and other markets around the world. So we can grow things here, make things here, add value to them here and ship them somewhere. That is what we would like to be exporting. Instead, under the tax law, there is actually an incentive to export jobs.

When you set up shop overseas and you are doing business overseas, you get to defer your American taxes. So what Senator COATS and I seek to do—and this is something I think is even more important today than it was a quarter century ago because of the global economic challenge—is to take that incentive that now goes for exporting jobs out of the United States and we would use those very same dollars to dramatically slash rates for companies that offer what I call red, white, and blue jobs—jobs in this country. The Conrad budget offers a very substantial berth for taking that kind of approach in tax reform, where he specifically calls for lowering tax rates for American businesses. I particularly wish to see that done because of the message I heard this last weekend, where folks specifically, without my even mentioning tax reform, talked about the need to keep jobs here at home.

We are going to, over the next few days, see, of course, the negotiations with the President and the Congressional leadership go forward. Chairman CONRAD and other members of the Budget Committee will be out discussing these issues as well. But I just hope, No. 1, the cause of tax reform is seen as far too important to give up on after only a 48-hour flurry of interest and everybody then saying: Well, I guess we will have to do it another time. The time to make sure it is done is now.

Senator COATS and I said earlier this month that what we ought to do—recognizing that you can't write a complete tax reform bill between now and August 2—is to get a commitment, lock in a strategy, to do comprehensive tax reform in the fall and early next year. That alone would send, in my view, a positive and bipartisan message to the financial markets of this country that there are going to be some changes. So what we need is a roadmap for economic growth.

There are other features of the Conrad budget I think make a lot of sense.

I am particularly pleased about the opportunities for investment in infrastructure—roads and bridges. Certainly, that would provide an opportunity for something that has worked in the past—the Build America Bonds program, which has been so successful in our State. I think Senator KERRY's ideas for an infrastructure bank are excellent ones. I support those as well. The best thing about that approach is we know we have to find a way in our consumer-driven society to start stimulating demand—demand for goods and services.

There are few economic multipliers in our country for the short term, such as transportation. So the Conrad budget that puts a premium on those kinds of approaches in the short term makes a lot of sense for me as we look to the longer term, which I would define as the opportunity to set this country on a progrowth economic strategy, with tax reform in the forefront in a way that helps our economy to be both fairer and more efficient. We will also see a lot of other benefits.

It was brought up to me over the weekend at home, in eastern Oregon, matters we have talked about before, such as the alternative minimum tax. Talk about something that just defies common sense: the idea that the alternative minimum tax would force middle-class people, people making $60,000, $70,000, $80,000 a year, to fill out their taxes twice using two separate systems just defies any semblance of sanity.

So referring, again, to what happened this weekend, are we really going to tell American taxpayers getting clobbered by the alternative minimum tax that after 2 days' worth of discussion about tax reform we are just going to walk away and pursue some other topic? That doesn't make any sense to me. Certainly, Chairman CONRAD's budget, which does, as I have indicated, provide a broad berth for tax reform, makes it clear that he shares our view.

So, finally, if we have in front of us, as we will with progrowth tax reform, the opportunity to create jobs in the private sector, generate revenue in a way that Democrats and Republicans can agree on, make ourselves more competitive in tough global markets, and do it in a way that brings the political parties together, I think it is clear that has the fundamentals of what can take this country's economy in a better and healthier direction.

I want it understood that in spite of what happened this weekend, in spite of the sense that maybe tax reform is going to be put off yet again, I am not going to give up for a minute. We are going to have another hearing that is going to be very important this week—Chairman BAUCUS, Chairman CAMP, the Finance Committee, the Ways and Means Committee getting together to talk about tax reform. So we know what needs to be done. Now it is a question of having the political will to go forward.

I simply want to say to the President, and I think I can say to the Senate today—Senator COATS and I—despite the idea that this is too hard to do, that it can't be done now, let's put it off for another time, we are going to come back to this floor and say again and again: It has been done. We need to do it now when there are so few other tools in the economic toolshed. It would be wrong to walk away after this brief flurry of interest in something that is so fundamental to the economic well-being of millions of our people.

I yield the floor and note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I rise to discuss an amendment to the underlying bill. This amendment is designed to give American employers some relief from the regulatory burdens that continue to hold back our economy and hinder job creation. This amendment is actually identical to the bill I introduced in April, S. 817, which has been endorsed by both the Chamber of Commerce and the National Federation of Independent Businesses. It is the same amendment I also introduced on the small business bill, the Economic Development Administration bills, and also part of the larger regulatory relief bill I introduced in June, which currently has 22 cosponsors.

Last week, as we know, we heard more troubling economic news. This time it was the June jobs report, which unfortunately showed the unemployment rate had actually risen to 9.2 percent and hiring slowed to just 18,000 new jobs.

These are, of course, very disappointing numbers, but much more important are the families who are affected by it, families in my home State of Ohio and across the Nation who are struggling to find a job and to get the paycheck they need to make ends meet. The real discussion in Washington, this month in particular, has been focused on the fiscal reforms we need to get our fiscal house in order, to get the economy back on track. But there are other things we can do as well and one, of course, is to reduce the regulatory burden, particularly on small businesses. I hear from them all the time. I am sure my colleagues do as well.

This burden is increasing. One recent study commissioned by the Small Business Administration put that burden at $1.75 trillion annually. By the way, that is more than the IRS collects in income taxes. I have been encouraged by what the current administration has been saying about improving our regulatory system, but I continue to be deeply concerned about the new regulatory costs this administration is imposing on the private sector as we meet here today.

We have seen a sharp uptick over the past 2 years in what are called major or economically significant rules. These are regulations that have an economic effect of $100 million or more. According to OMB and GAO data, the current administration has been regulating at an average pace of 84 of these major rules per year—which, by the way, is a 50-percent increase over the average regulatory output during the Clinton administration, which had 56 major rules per year. These figures include both the executive branch agencies and the so-called independent agencies. Today, I was pleased to see that President Obama issued a new executive order that specifically addressed independent agencies. These are the regulatory bodies that are not within the executive agencies but are considered independent. They would include the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the newly created Financial Protection Bureau, which has been subject to a lot of debate on the floor. These are all independent agencies which are designed by law to be insulated from Presidential control. This new order the President issued today and the accompanying Presidential memorandum endorsed two goals. First, it asks independent agencies to participate in ongoing regulatory look-backs. That means looking back retrospectively at rules that are already on the books to see if they make sense. Every administration since President Ronald Reagan has done this, undertaken some kind of look-back, and it is important this work continue. Second, and more importantly in my view, it calls on independent agencies to evaluate the costs and the benefits of new regulations, as executive agencies are already required to do under executive orders, including an executive order by President Clinton and an executive order by President Obama in January. I am encouraged by the words of this new executive order and Presidential memorandum on independent agencies. It endorses a very commonsense principle; that independent agencies, no less than executive agencies, should evaluate the costs of new regulations before imposing a new burden on the economy. It is common sense. It is also consistent with these amendments I have been offering on legislation this year and the independent agency part of the regulatory relief bill that was introduced in June.

The problem is the President's order today is entirely nonbinding because independent agencies don't answer to the President, so it has no force of law. The amendment I will offer would effectively write the President's new request into law. The President has now agreed with this principle. We need to expand this cost-benefit analysis to independent agencies, but we need legislation to do it because these independent agencies are not answerable to the President.

Specifically, this amendment would extend the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, which was a bipartisan piece of legislation, where I was the Republican cosponsor in the House. It expands the two independent agencies. Major rules issued by what is sometimes called the headless fourth branch of government are today exempt not only from the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act but also from the cost-benefit review overseen by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, OIARA, at the Office of Management and Budget.

This amendment would change that, effectively making the President's order he issued today binding on these independent agencies. They would be required, under the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act, to evaluate regulatory costs, benefits, and less costly alternatives before issuing any rule that would impose a cost of $100 million or more on the private sector or on State, local, and tribal governments. Based on the GAO data, it appears there are nearly 200 independent agency regulations that have been issued between 1996 and 2011 that would be considered major; in other words, have over a $100 million impact on the economy. They were excluded from review under this cost-benefit analysis we have been talking about. In 2009 and 2010 alone, the last couple years, independent agencies issued 56 economically significant regulations, representing billions of dollars in regulatory costs exempt from the standard cost-benefit analysis rules. But this affects our economy in a big way. It affects jobs and our ability to get this economy back on track.

Closing this independent agency loophole is a reform those of us on both sides of the aisle should join the President in supporting. This is the right vehicle to be able to achieve that. No major regulation, whatever its source, should be imposed on American employers or on State or local governments without a serious consideration of what the costs are, what the benefits are, and whether there is available a less burdensome alternative to achieve the same objective. This amendment moves us closer toward that goal. It is a commonsense amendment, again, taking the President's executive order and memorandum of today and actually putting it into force through the force of law.

I yield the floor, and I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The remarks of Mr. WHITEHOUSE pertaining to the submission of S. Res. 230 are located in today's RECORD under "Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions.")

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, on the pending motion, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the motion.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is necessarily absent.

Mr. KYL. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI), the Senator from Florida (Mr. RUBIO), and the Senator from Louisiana (Mr. VITTER).

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MANCHIN). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 69, nays 27, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 107 Leg.]

YEAS—69

Akaka	Gillibrand	Menendez
Alexander	Graham	Merkley
Baucus	Hagan	Mikulski
Begich	Harkin	Murray
Bennet	Hoeben	Nelson (FL)
Bingaman	Hutchison	Pryor
Blumenthal	Inouye	Reed
Boxer	Johanns	Reid
Brown (MA)	Johnson (SD)	Rockefeller
Burr	Kerry	Sanders
Cantwell	Kirk	Schumer
Cardin	Klobuchar	Sessions
Carper	Kohl	Shaheen
Casey	Kyl	Snowe
Coats	Landrieu	Stabenow
Collins	Lautenberg	Tester
Conrad	Leahy	Thune
Coons	Levin	Udall (CO)
Corker	Lieberman	Udall (NM)
Cornyn	Manchin	Warner
Durbin	McCain	Webb
Feinstein	McCaskey	Whitehouse
Franken	McConnell	Wyden

NAYS—27

Ayotte	Enzi	Moran
Barrasso	Grassley	Nelson (NE)
Blunt	Hatch	Paul
Boozman	Heller	Portman
Chambliss	Inhofe	Risch
Coburn	Isakson	Roberts
Cochran	Johnson (WI)	Shelby
Crapo	Lee	Toomey
DeMint	Lugar	Wicker

NOT VOTING—4

Brown (OH)	Rubio
Murkowski	Vitter

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the Senate has just adopted a motion to proceed to a bill, S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit we have been so concerned about.

It is my understanding the minority has amendments they wish to have considered. I am happy to work with the Republican leader to figure out a way for this to happen. In the meantime, however, we need to push forward. We all need to do that. I am going to fill the tree and file cloture on this bill. I am happy to continue to talk with the Republican leader and anybody else who is interested in having specific amendments to this legislation we are now on.

I will not allow this legislation to be bogged down by an endless list of unrelated amendments. It is too important for the Senate to reaffirm its commitment to ensuring all Americans—including millionaires and billionaires and profitable corporations—contribute to the collective effort to reduce this deficit. This is a common-sense statement that we believe in simple fairness. Middle-class families and seniors have already been asked to sacrifice too much.

Democrats have gone on record saying that the wealthiest of the wealthy should be asked to contribute to this effort and make similar sacrifices. We hope our Republican colleagues will finally join us in this effort.

Over the past several weeks, I have had good conversations with the Republican leader and the chairman and ranking member of the Appropriations Committee about trying to work through appropriations bills under the regular order.

As a result of these conversations, in an effort to move forward, I am going to file cloture on a motion to proceed to the Military Construction—VA Appropriations bill tonight. I hope we can show the country that the Senate can work through an important appropriations bill without getting bogged down.

Remember, there are different rules on these matters. You can't deal with legislative matters on appropriations bills. I hope we can have some amendments on our sense-of-the-Senate resolution dealing with having the wealthiest of the wealthy contribute to the problems we have with the deficit in this country, and following that I hope we can move to Military Construction—VA. Our servicemen and veterans who have served our country so well need this.

AMENDMENT NO. 529

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have an amendment at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 529.

At the end, add the following new section: SEC. 2. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The provisions of this Act shall become effective 3 days after enactment.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, on this amendment I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 530 TO AMENDMENT NO. 529

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have a second-degree amendment at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 530 to amendment No. 529.

In the amendment, strike "3", insert "2".

MOTION TO COMMIT WITH AMENDMENT NO. 531

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have a motion to commit the bill with instructions, which is also at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] moves to commit the bill (S. 1323) to the Committee on Finance, with instructions to report back forthwith with an amendment numbered 531.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 2, line 10, after "deficit" strike all that follows and insert the following:

"(1) should require that those earning $1,000,000 or more per year make a more meaningful contribution to the deficit reduction effort; and

(2) should not end Medicare as we know it."

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 532

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have an amendment to the instructions at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 532 to the instructions of the motion to commit.

After "Medicare", strike all that follows and insert "and Medicaid as we know it."

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 533 TO AMENDMENT NO. 532

Mr. REID. I have a second-degree amendment at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 533 to amendment No. 532.

Strike "we" and insert "all Americans"

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have a cloture motion at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the clerk will report the cloture motion.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on S. 1323, a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit.

Harry Reid, Richard J. Durbin, Patty Murray, Daniel K. Inouye, Christopher A. Coons, Sheldon Whitehouse, Barbara Boxer, Robert P. Casey, Jr., Bernard Sanders, Frank R. Lautenberg, Sherrod Brown, Jack Reed, Dianne Feinstein, Jeff Merkley, Benjamin L. Cardin, Carl Levin, Charles E. Schumer.

MAKING APPROPRIATIONS FOR MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS, AND RELATED AGENCIES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING SEPTEMBER 30, 2012—MOTION TO PROCEED

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I move to proceed to Calendar No. 91, H.R. 2055.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the motion to proceed.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to Calendar No. 91, H.R. 2055, an act making appropriations for military construction, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes.

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. REID. I have a cloture motion at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the clerk will report the cloture motion.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to proceed to Calendar No. 91, H.R. 2055, an act making appropriations for military construction, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes.

Harry Reid, Richard J. Durbin, Patty Murray, Daniel K. Inouye, Christopher A. Coons, Sheldon Whitehouse, Barbara Boxer, Robert P. Casey, Jr., Tim Johnson, Frank R. Lautenberg, Sherrod Brown, Jack Reed, Dianne Feinstein, Jeff Merkley, Benjamin L. Cardin, Mark L. Pryor, Carl Levin, Charles E. Schumer.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the mandatory quorum required under rule XXII be waived with respect to both cloture motions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I now withdraw my motion to proceed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is withdrawn.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REMEMBERING DAVID GETCHES

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I rise today to honor one of Colorado's great educators and community leaders, David Getches, who passed away on Tuesday, July 5, 2011, at the too-young age of 68.

This is more than a poignant moment for me. I had planned to come to the floor to discuss David Getches' career and character because he was stepping down after 8 very productive years as the dean of the University of Colorado Law School.

We all have had this terrible experience in our lives when somebody whom we love and respect suddenly finds they have a cancer that is aggressive—beyond aggressive. Literally a month ago, David was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer. In the 4 weeks since that time, that cancer stole him from us. But he was always upbeat. He was always someone who we looked to for enthusiasm and inspiration. I will be inspired in my remarks today by what he did. I will attempt not to dwell on his loss.

As I said, Dean Getches served as dean of the Colorado Law School for the last 8 years. With him at the helm, CU Law became one of the most forward-looking institutions of legal training in the country. I want to share a few examples of his vision and leadership. I could not cover all of them if I had a full hour. I want to share some of them with the Senate and with his friends and admirers in Colorado.

He steered this school through the construction of the new LEED Certified Wolf Law Building, which put CU and its law school at the cutting edge of environmental sustainability and energy efficiency—two ideas that were connected to the values that Getches was committed to fostering throughout his career. Getches previously served as executive director of the Colorado Department of Natural Resources and as an adviser to the Interior Secretary in the Clinton administration. He had an extensive background in water, environmental, and public lands law. Through his work, Getches impressed upon all Coloradans the importance of good stewardship of our State's precious natural resources.

Mr. President, I am not a lawyer, but I do know Dean Getches' efforts to teach and share the legal framework that protects our resources could not have been more critical to preserving our Western way of life.

David Getches left a lasting impression on the demographic composition of CU Law School. He was committed to a student body composed of people from many different backgrounds and cultures, and that commitment made an indelible impact on the school and on Colorado's legal community. In 2008, the Hispanic Bar Association awarded him their Community Service Award for increasing Hispanic enrollment, and he also assembled one of the most diverse administrative teams of any law school in the country. He didn't stop there, however. He then created a commission to produce a groundbreaking report on diversity in the legal profession and how to increase diversity in law firm recruitment. The highly skilled and diverse alumni of the CU Law School reflects his efforts and successes.

David Getches also built a legacy of legal access to legal education for all. He worked to expand scholarships and financial aid awarded by the law school to worthy students regardless of their financial background, increasing scholarship awards from $600,000 in 2004 to a hefty $2.1 million in 3 short years by 2007.

In 2008, he worked with the Colorado State Legislature to pass a law allowing public universities to offer loan repayment assistance grants to graduates practicing public interest law and more recently founded an endowment to award grants to CU Law School graduates in the public sector.

What Dean Getches did by reducing the cost of law school was make public service a viable alternative to private practice for bright, idealistic graduates of the law school. Without question, those students, CU Law School, the State of Colorado, and I would venture to say the country will reap the benefits in the future from David Getches' foresight and thoughtful investments.

At the heart of why I wanted to come to the floor today was that I think we know we can all learn from Dean David Getches' passion for giving back to whatever community in which he found himself. He led a life of service, and he also compiled an impressive academic record as well as serving as the dean of CU Law School. He was, at his core, committed to the future of his children, our children, our grandchildren, and his grandchildren, and he had a deep love for the Rocky Mountain Western way of life. He was an avid outdoorsman, he was fit, and he faced any and all physical challenges just like he faced intellectual and emotional challenges. As I said in the beginning of my remarks, he was a mentor to all of us, and he always had his eye on the future. I know, as painful as it is for all of us who knew him to lose him so suddenly, he would want us to be focused on the future.

Dean Getches did this and much more for Colorado and our country, and I just want to close with this, Mr. President. We have lost a unique man and a towering Colorado figure.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

BUDGET NEGOTIATIONS

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, the situation involving the need for a budget and the situation involving the need to raise the debt limit for the United States is getting more and more crucial, it seems, by the hour. I have been a firm and consistent critic of this idea that has been developing the last several years in the Congress that a few people meet in closed, secret meetings and somehow reach a decision that I am supposed to assume is good and decent and ought to be confirmed by a vote here in the Senate.

I feel that there are 100 Senators—and some a lot smarter and more capable than I—but I feel a personal sense of obligation and duty to ensure that when I vote on an important piece of legislation my constituents care about, that I know what is in it and that I understand what is in it, and it is hard to know. When you have a bill that comes out that proposes to have changes in the trillions of dollars, involving Federal spending for a decade, in a budget or some other fashion, it requires us to be careful about that.

So I would express again my dissatisfaction and belief that this Senate—not the House—has failed in its duty to participate in an open process concerning our budget. The House of Representatives did. The Republican House promised to have open hearings. They had a bill on the floor—a budget. They passed it within the time required—by April 15. It completely changed the debt trajectory of America and put us on sound footing. It reduced spending by $6 trillion—not $2 trillion but $6 trillion—and it didn't raise taxes on the American people. In fact, it reduced taxes in a way they felt would engender better economic growth, which is the best way to engender more tax revenue—having more people make more money and pay more taxes. So I really believe the House fulfilled their constitutional duty.

In the Senate, we have now gone well over 800 days without a budget. We didn't have a budget when our Democratic colleagues had 60 Senators—the highest number one party has had in probably 70, 80 years, maybe longer. They didn't pass a budget. You can pass a budget with 51 votes—with the Vice President, 50 votes. It is a simple majority. It is an expedited procedure. Budgets have been passed when parties have only had one-vote majorities in the Senate.

So I would say it is odd that we have gone 2 years without a budget, but it is not odd—in part because of having no budget—that we have seen the largest surges of debt the Nation has ever seen. President Bush was criticized for running up debt. He had, in 1 year—his last year—a $450 billion deficit, and he was roundly criticized for that. Some of that was TARP money, which they scored as monies spent, and it was properly and accurately scored. So it came out to $450 billion. The year before, it was a $160 billion deficit. President Obama's first budget deficit was $1.200 billion. His next budget was $1,300 billion. This year's budget, by September 30, is projected to be around $1,500 billion. We haven't had a budget. Is anything connected there?

So I want to say, first of all, one of the ways you act responsibly is when you do it out in front of the people.

I noticed at the press conference today that President Obama, when asked about some of these matters, pushed back and said: Well, we want to have an agreement right now. We don't want to wait any later, close to the election.

He was basically saying—it is pretty clear, really, and I am not exaggerating anything—when you get close to the election, Senators and Congressmen don't like to vote for more debt and they do not like to vote for more taxes. What is wrong with that? The American people don't want debt. They do not want taxes. They want us to bring this government under control. But what is being suggested is, oh, it is politics. There is something corrupt politically if you believe you shouldn't bail out the big spenders in Washington by taking more money from hard-working Americans and taking it out of the private sector to give to the public sector that has mismanaged the money they have.

Some might say: Well, JEFF, we have these big deficits because you all cut taxes.

We haven't cut taxes in years. President Bush cut taxes with revenues much higher today than when those taxes were cut. We have gone into an economic decline, and this recession has reduced our income. That is true. It is not so much the rate of taxes. It is the rate of profit. It is the rate of income. It is the rate of money people are being paid, so they do not have as much money and they are not paying as much in taxes. Now, we can run around and find everybody who is left with money and try to tax them, but at some point that begins to be self-defeating.

So I guess I am trying to raise the point, How did we get here? Well, there is another way we got here with these huge deficits we have. In the Keynesian philosophy of economics, we had a big spending bill called a stimulus bill. I opposed it. I remember reading a piece by the Nobel laureate, Professor Becker, from the University of Chicago, not long before the vote saying it was not going to create jobs; that it was not sufficiently stimulative to be a good stimulus bill, in fact, in his mind, as a Nobel Prize-winning economist. And that is exactly what happened. It didn't create jobs. It went to social programs, it went to State aid, and it went to things other than the infrastructure that we were told it was going for. Only 4 percent of that money went to roads and bridges—4 percent out of $850 billion. Every penny borrowed will be to create or to stimulate jobs, they said. We are going to redo our infrastructure, they said. It was not done that way. It was social spending overwhelmingly, and it didn't create growth in the economy.

Another reason we have the debt is because the baseline spending has surged under the Democratic leadership and President Obama. Defense Department has gone up 3 or so percent the last couple of years in spending. Nondefense discretionary spending—the things we do such as energy programs and road programs and aid and grants and things we like to spend around here—went up 24 percent in 2 years. We were having a drop off in income, a drop off in tax revenue, and we increased spending dramatically.

We never had 10, 12 percent increases in spending per year. But hold your hat. The budget the President submitted to us in February of this year—several months ago—proposed increases for the Education Department of 10.5 percent, proposed increases for the State Department of 10.5 percent, with 9.5 percent for the Energy Department and a 60-percent increase for transportation—the high-speed rail projects. But we don't have the money. All of that would have been borrowed. We couldn't sustain flat spending without borrowing money, we are so far in debt. Forty cents of every dollar we spend today is borrowed.

So I have been a big critic of this scheme to meet behind closed doors and not tell the rest of the Congress or the American people what we are doing and to plop down on the floor of the Senate some proposed deal that we have to sign at the eleventh hour or the government is going to shut down. Why haven't we been talking about this? They talked about it in the House. They voted on it. They reduced spending $6 trillion. In the phantom budget that has been talked about by our Democratic colleagues, one they never produced so it could actually be accounted for, they are claiming it would reduce spending $2 trillion and are patting themselves on the back about how great they are. But when you take out the interest savings that occur, it is only $1.4 trillion in actual reduction of spending and it is a 2.7-percent, we estimate, increase in taxes.

Senator CONRAD, the chairman of the Budget Committee, does a good job. He is a smart man. I think he understands the threat America faces. I thought he did, although this phantom secret budget that they just leak out descriptions of whenever it is convenient has not impressed me. Really, it just hasn't been impressive. Is it a vision? Is it a specter of some kind of a budget that nobody can ever grasp their hands around, and it is only what the people who are holding it close to their vest say it is and all the rest of us have to accept that? I don't think so. I have become very uneasy about what we hear in this city of Washington about plans and policy.

When President Obama announced his budget, it was the most irresponsible budget this country has ever been presented with by a President. I don't think anybody can dispute that. I am prepared to defend that against anybody who says so. It increased spending, it increased taxes. Over a decade, it increased taxes and increased spending and made the deficit worse than if we hadn't done anything, at a time when the Nation should have been working from January until today figuring out how to bring this government under control and contain the growth in spending and contain the debt. This is what he said, and his budget director in our committee said—Mr. Lew—that: Our budget calls on us to live within our means and pay down the debt.

The Congressional Budget Office scored the budget. They analyzed it over 10 years. The lowest single annual deficit that was occurring during that time was $750 billion, the lowest deficit, almost half again higher than President Bush's highest deficit. And it starts going up in the outyears 8, 9, and 10—to over $1 trillion in the 10th year annual deficit. Interest on that debt that would be accrued by such an irresponsible budget would go from around $200 billion last year, $240-some-odd billion this year, to $930 billion in 2021. That would be larger than Medicare, larger than Social Security, larger than the defense budget including the war—much larger than those. So interest is a danger.

Senator CONRAD talked this afternoon about his phantom budget, and he told us a lot of things he wanted us to know about it, and he articulated it in a way that made you think that it is not such a bad idea. But we have real numbers people. Just like President Obama said his budget was going to pay down the debt and cause us to live within our means when it had no deficit lower than $740 billion—he said it is a blueprint. He said it is a framework. But he didn't say it was a budget because it is not a budget. A budget is a document that can be read, ascertained, evaluated, and scored.

So they leak it to the Washington Post—not to Members or colleagues of the Senate here—they leak to the Washington Post some of the good things he wanted to get out, and then they talk about some of the good things here today. Forgive me if I am not impressed. If it is such a good budget, why don't you print it out and propose it to us? That is what the House of Representatives did. They are prepared to defend their budget.

Senator CONRAD said this: that he thought it could play a part in this big deal the President is talking about to change our debt trajectory in a positive way. Well, those words are good words, just like the President's statement that he had a budget that was going to cause us to live within our means and pay down our debt. That is what he said. That is what his budget director said. Well, you can say things, but it doesn't make them true. I can say I don't have a desk in my hand, but I have a desk in my hand, reality being what it is. So that was not a good budget he submitted, and I am worried about this phantom budget we are hearing about today.

The way we calculate this phantom budget and the things that have been released about it, it would raise taxes as much as $2.8 trillion and cut spending about 4 percent over the 10 years—this is a 10-year budget—at a time when we are projected to add, under the President's plan, $13 trillion to our national debt. So we are going to reduce the debt by 4 percent from $13 trillion—an utterly unsustainable figure. The House budget would cut discretionary spending $6 trillion. The Toomey plan would have cut spending $8 trillion.

Senator CONRAD actually said on the Senate floor that his budget—which raises taxes, as I indicated—would reduce taxes by $700 billion. He said it would reduce taxes by $700 billion. Now, how is this accounting—this trick, I will suggest—accomplished? Well, to get to that number, he is obviously comparing it to a CBO baseline which assumes that every single tax rate from the 2001 and 2003 tax cuts that has been in place now almost a decade is going to expire and all those rates go up. So he is saying that if he keeps a few of them from going up, he has cut taxes. Only in Washington can you raise taxes dramatically, change the tax rates that have been in place for a decade, see taxes go up dramatically, and call that a tax cut.

By the way, baseline is very important. We don't know what baseline the chairman of the Budget Committee is using. He understands it very well. He is one of the most knowledgeable, capable Members of our body, and he understands these well. I believe the phrase he used was that it is a plausible baseline—a plausible baseline.

Well, let me tell you the baseline we should use. The baseline, when you talk about whether spending increases or whether spending decreases, should be what you are spending today. If you are spending $100 billion today and if you spend $102 billion, you have spent $2 billion more. If you spend $98 billion, you are spending $2 billion less, right? Well, what they do in Washington and the reason this country is so close to bankruptcy is they assume growth rates, baseline growth rates. Then when you reduce the baseline growth rate, and it is going up $10 billion next year and you reduce that increase to $9 billion, you claim you cut spending by $1 billion and it went up $9 billion. Now, that is the kind of logic that has put us in the difficult position we are in.

So I have decided and told my staff on the Budget Committee that when we get numbers, we are going to compare them to the only thing that is solid, and that is a level baseline—does it go up or does it go down? In fact, the Ryan House budget that cut $6 trillion still increases spending. It is not a real cut.

So you do have to figure out how much you are talking about and what baseline you are using to know what the numbers are. The best way to do that and the most objective way to do that is to use a flatline number and see whether we are up or down, and then we can communicate. But if you get to choose your baseline—and CBO has one, the President has another one, and it looks as though the Senate Democrats have chosen another one they call a plausible baseline. I don't know what that means. The debt commission that had their recommendation for reducing debt chose another baseline. It makes it confusing, and it makes it harder to understand.

So when you talk about a budget that is supposed to really make a difference in our economy and you propose $2 in tax increases for every $1 in spending cuts and suggest this is the kind of thing you are working with the President on in their negotiations, maybe we can begin to understand why the Members of the House and the Members of the Senate who have been in these meetings have been walking out of these meetings and saying: All they want to do is raise taxes.

The President himself said several months ago that he thought $3 of spending cuts and $1 of tax increases would be a good mix. But what we are hearing today is $2 of tax increases to $1 of spending cuts. That is not acceptable and has no chance of passage. And if the American people have time to read that kind of legislation and find out that is what is in it, they are not going to be happy with anybody that supports it, in my view. So perhaps that is the reason they want to wait until the eleventh hour, claim the country is about to shut down, and try to force it through. As the President suggested, you don't want to get it too close to the election when people might remember what you did to them.

Goodness gracious, they talk about a $900 billion cut in the Defense Department. That is part of their plan too. Well, let me just tell you how that gimmick works. You propose a $900 billion cut in the Defense Department and you know that almost 20 percent cut is not going to become law, but you go out and tell the public you saved $900 billion and you plan to cut it from the Defense Department, and you can't cut that much money from the Defense Department. So no wonder our retiring fine Senator JOE LIEBERMAN, after the Democratic discussion of this, was moved to say he was worried about what such a budget would do to our national security. Well, he should be.

I have been on the Armed Services Committee. I don't deny that the military has to tighten its belt. Just like every other department in this government, it may even have to take a real reduction in spending. But we are not going to have an 18-percent, 20-percent reduction. Are we going to have our men and women who place their lives on the line for us have to pay for profligacy in Washington? I don't think so.

Mr. President, I would ask Majority Leader REID, who I believe is the strategist in the Senate who told our chairman, Senator CONRAD, that he should not bring up a budget—I think Senator CONRAD and I were prepared to bring up a budget. He was working on one. His staff was working on one. We were within days of a markup. He was going to produce a budget, and those of us on the Republican side had amendments to offer, and we were preparing for a debate, and they decided all of a sudden not to have a markup. Later, Senator REID said it would be foolish to produce a budget.

I would say it would be foolish for the Congress of the United States to take a paycheck to operate the way we are operating when 40 cents of every dollar we spend is borrowed. That is unthinkable. How did we get in this position where we are spending $3,700 billion and taking in only $2,200 billion and all the difference is borrowed?

Finally—this is important—a lot of us have heard these numbers but it has not resonated with us about how important they are. Professors Rogoff and Reinhart have written a book called "This Time It's Different," studying eight centuries of sovereign governmental default on their debts, the kind of thing Greece is going through today. They have analyzed how it happens and the consequences. They chose the name because they said that every time politicians ran up debt in their country to high levels and caused a crisis, they said: It will not happen to us. This time it is different. We are different from those other countries that went belly up. Then it happens just like that, savagely, immediately, like the financial crisis that hit us in 2007–2008. What they concluded in further study was something else. Not only when you get your debt too high do you run the risk of a financial crisis, but your debt slows your economic growth and the countries that have debts that equal 90 percent of the economy—I see my good friend, Senator REID. He has the toughest job in Washington and I am not making it any easier for him. It will be good for him to hear this. I think he knows it.

But they have concluded when your total American debt reaches 90 percent of our economy, our GDP, and goes above that, it pulls down your economic growth by 1 percent. CBO now is scoring our growth to come in at .9 percent below what it otherwise would be because of our debt.

The first quarter we had 2 percent economic growth. If we had 3 percent economic growth that would be a 50-percent increase in growth. If we had 1 percent greater increase in growth that would amount to, according to the White House economic team some time ago, an increase of 1 million jobs in America.

What I am saying is we erroneously state too often, I think, that the question is about our children and grandchildren. I truly believe the sluggish growth and the very weak job numbers we have been having are the result of carrying too much debt. We have to start reducing that debt even if it is painful for us to do so. I hope our colleagues will produce a budget that will actually change the numbers. I am not confident that will happen.

Falling that I do hope, Mr. Leader, and I say this to my leader, too, that if a bill is brought forth in the Senate we have at least 7 days to consider it before we are asked to vote on it. I believe it will take that long to properly evaluate it.

I see the majority leader here. It is always a pleasure to work with him.

I yield the floor.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I would say before my friend leaves the floor, his leader, my friend, the senior Senator from Kentucky and I are representing the Senate along with Senator KYL and Senator DURBIN at the White House.

We have been there many days now. We understand, all of us there, Democrats and Republicans, the significant adverse effect this huge debt has on our country. Everyone there is trying to arrive at a point where we do something about that. We are not there yet. It is difficult to do. We understand it is going to take, we believe, a mix of spending cuts and some way to generate some more revenue. We are working our best to get this done.

My friend is right, the debt is a drag on the economy. There is no question about that. Once we are able to raise the debt limit, I think we are going to see some energy in this economy we have not seen in some time. But we are not there yet. I wish I could report to my friend from Alabama and the rest of the Senate and the country that we have completed our negotiations, but we have not. We are going to go back again tomorrow. The President said 3:45, and I said a.m. or p.m.? It will be 3:45 p.m. tomorrow that we will be back, trying to move forward.

My friend from Alabama has an important responsibility as the person who is the ranking member now of that most important Budget Committee. I am sure he has learned a lot, having taken this assignment, that he did not know before. That is the way it is with everyone in the Senate. I have learned a great deal working through the CR, different iterations of that, and now on this work we are doing trying to arrive at a debt reduction package along with raising the debt ceiling. I have learned a lot. I have a lot more to learn.

I appreciate the intensity of my friend in that in which he believes, whether it is this or as the person running the Judiciary Committee for the Republicans. He is always very intense. He and I don't always agree but we agree more than people think. But one thing no one can ever take away from the junior Senator from Alabama is the seriousness of his being in the Senate.

LAS VEGAS NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the 20th anniversary of the Las Vegas Natural History Museum. For two decades the Las Vegas Natural History Museum has provided children and families from all across southern Nevada with the opportunity to learn about science and history in an educational setting outside of the classroom. It is my great pleasure to honor this fine institution, its employees, and the museum's board members before the U.S. Senate today.

The museum started in 1989 when a group of dedicated citizens petitioned the Las Vegas City Council to find a permanent home for a collection of wildlife and prehistoric exhibits. In July 1991, the museum opened its doors to the people of Las Vegas with a collection of loaned wildlife and prehistoric exhibits. Today, the museum has acquired a world-class collection of artifacts for their multimillion dollar collection. Even the Smithsonian Institution has taken notice of our museum. In 2002, the Las Vegas Natural History Museum became an affiliate with the Smithsonian Institution, granting them access to the Smithsonian's vast collection of exhibits.

While many museums across the country have struggled with the economic downturn, the Las Vegas Natural History Museum continues to thrive and grow. Last year, the Las Vegas Natural History Museum provided educational tours to 30,000 students in Clark County. All of their programs are designed by grade level to meet State educational requirements. The museum also provides opportunities for at-risk schools to visit the museum free of charge. Their Open Doors Program provided scholarships that allowed nearly 20,000 visitors from at-risk or economically disadvantaged schools to experience the museum.

I am proud to join with my fellow Nevadans in recognizing the Las Vegas Natural History Museum on reaching this important milestone. For 20 years, this institution has provided the children of southern Nevada with an interactive learning experience, and I have no doubt that the museum will continue to be an important part of our community for years to come.

RESPECT FOR MARRIAGE ACT

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, today I have added my name as a co-sponsor of S. 598, the Respect for Marriage Act. This legislation would repeal the Defense of Marriage Act, DOMA, which I voted for in 1996.

I now believe it was a mistake for the Federal Government to legislate in this area in a way that overrides the effect of State laws. Prior to the enactment of DOMA, the Federal Government had deferred to the States to determine what constitutes marriage. I believe we should return to that position.

I also believe it is wrong, and probably unconstitutional, for the Federal Government to treat married couples differently solely on the basis of their sexual orientation.

Enactment of the Respect for Marriage Act will help ensure that the full protections of our Constitution apply to all of our citizens.

COLUMBIA RIVER TREATY

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask the Senate to join me in acknowledging the 15 Columbia River Basin tribes' involvement in the Columbia River Treaty negotiation and review process. As some of you may know, the Columbia River Treaty is an agreement between Canada and the United States on the development and operation of the major hydroelectric dams in the Columbia River Basin. It addresses power and flood control benefits in both countries. The treaty has been in effect since 1964. Under the provisions of the existing treaty, if either country wishes to modify or cancel the treaty, it must notify the other country by the year 2014.

With 2014 approaching, the United States and Canadian treaty "entities" have already begun talks regarding a possible extension and modification of the treaty. The Columbia River Treaty review team has designated representatives from 15 Columbia River tribes, also known as the Sovereign Review Team, SRT. The Columbia Basin tribes have vital cultural and natural resources at stake since their homelands are located in the area affected by the treaty and, as sovereign units of government and members of the Sovereign Review Team, SRT—they have a right to play an important role in those negotiations. It is important to recognize the unique fishing rights for salmon that will have to be taken into account during any negotiations of this treaty with our neighbors to the north. The outcome of these negotiations could have a profound impact on the Northwestern United States.

I really appreciate one of the designated tribal representatives from Oregon, the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission, for their continuous involvement. I also appreciate the other members of the Sovereign Review Team. The tribes and folks from the Pacific Northwest all share a common desire for proactive approaches in salmon restoration and recovery, and it is important to come together with shared strengths, joint efforts and coordinated education strategies.

Unfortunately, the Columbia River Treaty was enacted during a time in our history when consideration was not given to the treaty's effects on the natural and cultural resources of tribes/first nations whose homelands are located within the Columbia River Basin. Lack of previous dialogue and inclusion of tribal perspectives has disrupted regional and tribal interests by leading to the degradation of rivers, the salmon population, traditional food sources, natural resources, and tribal customs and identities.

The Columbia River Treaty Review provides an opportunity for the United States to include Columbia Basin tribes in the treaty review process. I want to emphasize the importance of tribal consultation and incorporation of traditional knowledge in this process—to ensure protection and conservation of the numerous natural resources that tribal people's way of life are dependent on.

The treaty review provides an opportunity to discuss and learn ways to strengthen both the government-to-government relationship that exists between the United States and the individual Indian nations as well as the U.S.'s position relative to Canada. This can lead the U.S. to advance its relationship with 15 additional sovereigns. I have enjoyed working with tribes on a number of important issues; I value our continued friendship and look forward to working together in the future. I am proud to support the 15 Columbia River Basin tribes in their efforts to stand alongside the United States in negotiations of the Columbia River Treaty and stand ready to assist in any way I can.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Pate, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

At 2:03 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mrs. Cole, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bill, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 2219. An act making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bill was read the first and the second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

H.R. 2219. An act making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Appropriations.

MEASURES PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

The following bill was read the second time, and placed on the calendar:

S. 1340. A bill to cut, cap, and balance the Federal budget.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, and were referred as indicated:

EC-2437. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Maneb; Tolerance Actions" (FRL No. 8878-6) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-2438. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "2-Propenoic acid, 2-methyl-, phenylmethyl ester, polymer with 2-propenoic acid and sodium 2-methyl-2-[(1-oxo-2-propen-1-yl)amino]-1-propanesulfonate (1:1), peroxydisulfuric acid (HO)S(O)2]202 sodium salt (1:2)-initiated; Tolerance Exemption" (FRL No. 8878-4) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-2439. A communication from the Secretary, Division of Corporation Finance, Securities and Exchange Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Extension of Temporary Exemptions for Eligible Credit Default Swaps to Facilitate Operation of Central Counterparties to Clear and Settle Credit Default Swaps" (RIN3235-AK26) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-2440. A communication from the Deputy Chief, Wireline Competition Bureau, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "In the Matter of Rural Health Care Support Mechanism" ((RIN3060-AF85)(FCC 11-101)) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2441. A communication from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Export Administration, Bureau of Industry and Security, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Paperwork Reduction Act: Updated List of Approved Information Collections and Removal of a Redundant Reporting Requirement" (RIN0694-AF08) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2442. A communication from the Deputy Secretary, Office of Natural Resources Revenue, Department of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Reorganization of Title 30, Code of Federal Regulations" received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

EC-2443. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Notice of Approval of Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Permit Issued to Cape Wind Associates, LLC" (FRL No. 9431-8) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2444. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Indiana; Modifications to Indiana Prevention of Significant Deterioration and Non-attainment New Source Review Rules" (FRL No. 9430-7) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2445. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Ohio; Control of Gasoline Volatility; Correction" (FRL No. 9430-5) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2446. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plan; New Jersey and New York; Final Disapproval of Interstate Transport State Implementation Plan Revision for the 2006 24-hour PM<sub>2.5</sub> NAAQS" (FRL No. 9436-2) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2447. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plan; Missouri; Final Disapproval of Interstate Transport State Implementation Plan Revision for the 2006 24-hour PM<sub>2.5</sub> NAAQS" (FRL No. 9435-9) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2448. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plan; Kansas; Final Disapproval of Interstate Transport State Implementation Plan Revision for the 2004 24-hour PM<sub>2.5</sub> NAAQS" (FRL No. 9436-1) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2449. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Indiana and Ohio; Disapproval of Interstate Transport State Implementation Plan Revision for the 2006 24-hour PM<sub>2.5</sub> NAAQS" (FRL No. 9435-8) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2450. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Finding Failure to Submit Section 110 State Implementation Plans for Interstate Transport for the 2006 National Ambient Air Quality Standards for Fine Particulate Matter" (FRL No. 9435-7) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2451. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Finding of Substantial Inadequacy of Implementation Plan; Call for Iowa State Implementation Plan Revision" (FRL No. 9434-7) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2452. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; State of Missouri" (FRL No. 9429-1) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2453. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; State of Nebraska" (FRL No. 9434-4) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2454. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; State of Kansas" (FRL No. 9434-3) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2455. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Deferral for CO<sub>2</sub> Emissions from Bioenergy and Other Biogenic Sources Under the Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD) and Title V Programs: Final Rule" (FRL No. 9431-6) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2456. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island; Infrastructure SIPs for the 1997 8-hour Ozone National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9431-2) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2457. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Determination of Attainment, Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Indiana; Correction" (FRL No. 9430-6) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2458. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; Ohio; Volatile Organic Compound Reinforced Plastic Composites Production Operations Rule" (FRL No. 9430-9) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2459. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; South Carolina; 110(a)(1) and (2) Infrastructure Requirements for the 1997 8-hour Ozone National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9436-4) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2460. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Louisiana; Section 110(a)(2) Infrastructure Requirements for 1997 8-hour Ozone and Fine Particulate Matter National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9437-8) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2461. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Illinois; Indiana; Michigan; Minnesota; Ohio; Wisconsin; Infrastructure SIP Requirements for the 1997 8-hour Ozone and PM<sub>2.5</sub> National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9436-7) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2462. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; Mississippi; 110(a)(1) and (2) Infrastructure Requirements for the 1997 8-hour Ozone National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9436-6) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2463. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; Alabama; 110(a)(1) and (2) Infrastructure Requirements for the 1997 8-hour Ozone National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9436-3) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2464. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; Kentucky; 110(a)(1) and (2) Infrastructure Requirements for the 1997 8-hour Ozone National Ambient Air Quality Standards" (FRL No. 9436-5) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2465. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Implementation Plans to Reduce Interstate Transport of Fine Particulate Matter and Ozone in 27 States; Correction of SIP Approvals for 22 States" (FRL No. 9436-8) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 11, 2011; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2466. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Office of Policy, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Modification of Treasury Regulations Pursuant to Section 939A of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act" (RIN1545-BK28) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 7, 2011; to the Committee on Finance.

EC-2467. A communication from the Surgeon General, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting the National Prevention, Health Promotion and Public Health Council's 2011 annual status report; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

EC-2468. A communication from the Senior Procurement Executive, Office of Acquisition Policy, General Services Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Acquisition Regulation; Federal Acquisition Circular 2005-53; Small Entity Compliance Guide" (FAC 2005-53) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2469. A communication from the Senior Procurement Executive, Office of Acquisition Policy, General Services Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Acquisition Regulation; TINA Interest Calculations" (FAC 2005-53) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2470. A communication from the Senior Procurement Executive, Office of Acquisition Policy, General Services Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Acquisition Regulation; Extension of Sunset Date for Protests of Task and Delivery Orders" (FAC 2005-53) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2471. A communication from the Senior Procurement Executive, Office of Acquisition Policy, General Services Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Acquisition Regulation; Encouraging Contractor Policies to Ban Text Messaging While Driving" (FAC 2005-53) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2472. A communication from the Senior Procurement Executive, Office of Acquisition Policy, General Services Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Acquisition Regulation; Uniform Suspension and Debarment Requirement" (FAC 2005-53) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

EC-2473. A communication from the Senior Procurement Executive, Office of Acquisition Policy, General Services Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Federal Acquisition Regulation; Unique Procurement Instrument Identifier" (FAC 2005-53) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on July 6, 2011; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petition or memorial was laid before the Senate and was referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-56. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Louisiana memorializing Congress to review and consider eliminating provisions of federal law, which reduce Social Security benefits for those receiving pension benefits from federal, state, or local government retirement or pension systems, plans, or funds; to the Committee on Finance.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 57

Whereas, the Congress of the United States has enacted both the Government Pension Offset (GPO), reducing the spousal and survivor Social Security benefit, and the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP), reducing the earned Social Security benefit for any person who also receives a public pension benefit; and

Whereas, the intent of Congress in enacting the GPO and the WEP provisions was to address concerns that a public employee who had worked primarily in federal, state, or local government employment might receive a public pension in addition to the same Social Security benefit as a person who had worked only in employment covered by Social Security throughout his career; and

Whereas, the purpose of Congress in enacting these reduction provisions was to provide a disincentive for public employees to receive two pensions; and

Whereas, the GPO negatively affects a spouse or survivor receiving a federal, state, or local government retirement or pension benefit who would also be entitled to a Social Security benefit earned by a spouse; and

Whereas, the GPO formula reduces the spousal or survivor Social Security benefit by two-thirds of the amount of the federal, state, or local government retirement or pension benefit received by the spouse or survivor, in many cases completely eliminating the Social Security benefit; and

Whereas, nine out of ten public employees affected by the GPO lose the entire spousal benefit, even though their spouses paid Social Security taxes for many years; and

Whereas, the GPO often reduces spousal benefits so significantly it can make the difference between self-sufficiency and poverty; and

Whereas, the GPO has a harsh effect on thousands of citizens and undermines the original purpose of Social Security survivors benefits; and

Whereas, the GPO negatively impacts approximately 27,144 Louisianians; and

Whereas, the WEP applies to those persons who have earned federal, state, or local government retirement or pension benefits, in addition to working in employment covered under Social Security and paying into the Social Security system; and

Whereas, the WEP reduces the earned Social Security benefit using an averaged indexed monthly earnings formula and may reduce Social Security benefits for affected persons by as much as one-half of the retirement benefit earned as a public servant in employment not covered under Social Security; and

Whereas, the WEP causes hard-working individuals to lose a significant portion of the Social Security benefits that they earn themselves; and

Whereas, the WEP negatively impacts approximately 25,322 Louisianians; and

Whereas, because of these calculation characteristics, the GPO and the WEP have a disproportionately negative effect on employees working in lower-wage government jobs, like policemen, firefighters, teachers, and state employees; and

Whereas, these provisions also have a greater adverse effect on women than on men because of the gender differences in salary that continue to plague our nation and because of the longer life expectancy of women; and

Whereas, Louisiana is making every effort to improve the quality of life of its citizens and to encourage them to live here lifelong, yet the current GPO and WEP provisions compromise that quality of life; and

Whereas, retired individuals negatively affected by GPO and WEP have significantly less money to support their basic needs and sometimes have to turn to government assistance programs; and

Whereas, the GPO and the WEP penalize individuals who have dedicated their lives to public service by eliminating benefits they have earned; and

Whereas, our nation should respect, not penalize, public servants; and

Whereas, the number of people affected by GPO and WEP is growing every day as more and more people reach retirement age; and

Whereas, the GPO and WEP are established in federal law, and repeal of the GPO and the WEP can be enacted only by the United States Congress. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to review the Government Pension Offset and the Windfall Elimination Provision Social Security benefit reductions and to consider eliminating or reducing them by enacting the Social Security Fairness Act of 2011 (H.R. 1332), the Public Servant Retirement Protection Act of 2011 (S. 113), or a similar instrument. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution shall be transmitted to the secretary of the United States Senate and the clerk of the United States House of Representatives and to each member of the Louisiana delegation to the United States Congress.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. BINGAMAN, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, with amendments:

S. 630. A bill to promote marine and hydrokinetic renewable energy research and development, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 112-31).

S. 699. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Energy to carry out a program to demonstrate the commercial application of integrated systems for long-term geological storage of carbon dioxide, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 112-32).

By Mr. BINGAMAN, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

S. 757. A bill to provide incentives to encourage the development and implementation of technology to capture carbon dioxide from dilute sources on a significant scale using direct air capture technologies (Rept. No. 112-33).

By Mr. BINGAMAN, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, without amendment:

S. 1342. An original bill to amend the Federal Power Act to protect the bulk-power system and electric infrastructure critical to the defense of the United States against cybersecurity and other threats and vulnerabilities (Rept. No. 112-34).

S. 1343. An original bill to provide for the conduct of an analysis of the impact of energy development and production on the water resources of the United States, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 112-35).

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. SESSIONS (for himself, Mr. VITTER, Ms. AYOTTE, and Mr. LEE):

S. 1341. A bill to provide a point of order against consideration of any measure that would increase the statutory limit on the public debt above $14.294 trillion unless that measure has been publicly available for a full 7 calendar days before consideration on the floor of the Senate; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 1342. An original bill to amend the Federal Power Act to protect the bulk-power system and electric infrastructure critical to the defense of the United States against cybersecurity and other threats and vulnerabilities; from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources; placed on the calendar.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 1343. An original bill to provide for the conduct of an analysis of the impact of energy development and production on the water resources of the United States, and for other purposes; from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources; placed on the calendar.

By Mr. KYL (for himself and Mr. MCCAIN):

S. 1344. A bill to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to take immediate action to recover ecologically and economically from a catastrophic wildfire in the State of Arizona, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Ms. CANTWELL (for herself and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 1345. A bill to provide for equitable compensation to the Spokane Tribe of Indians of the Spokane Reservation for the use of tribal land for the production of hydropower by the Grand Coulee Dam, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. WHITEHOUSE (for himself, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Mr. SANDERS, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. MERKLEY, and Mr. FRANKEN):

S. Res. 230. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that any agreement to reduce the budget deficit should not include cuts to Social Security benefits or Medicare benefits; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. BURR (for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr.

BEGICH, Mr. LAUTENBERG, and Mr. ALEXANDER):

S. Res. 231. A resolution designating September 2011 as "National Child Awareness Month" to promote awareness of charities benefitting children and youth-serving organizations throughout the United States and recognizing efforts made by those charities and organizations on behalf of children and youth as critical contributions to the future of the United States; considered and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 17

At the request of Mr. HATCH, the name of the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. HOEVEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 17, a bill to repeal the job-killing tax on medical devices to ensure continued access to life-saving medical devices for patients and maintain the standing of United States as the world leader in medical device innovation.

S. 20

At the request of Mr. HATCH, the name of the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. HOEVEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 20, a bill to protect American job creation by striking the job-killing Federal employer mandate.

S. 185

At the request of Ms. MIKULSKI, her name was added as a cosponsor of S. 185, a bill to provide United States assistance for the purpose of eradicating severe forms of trafficking in children in eligible countries through the implementation of Child Protection Compacts, and for other purposes.

S. 195

At the request of Mr. ROCKEFELLER, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. BOXER) was added as a cosponsor of S. 195, a bill to reinstate Federal matching of State spending of child support incentive payments.

S. 201

At the request of Mr. BROWN of Massachusetts, the names of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. CARPER) and the Senator from Delaware (Mr. COONS) were withdrawn as cosponsors of S. 201, a bill to clarify the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior with respect to the C.C. Cragin Dam and Reservoir, and for other purposes.

S. 227

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from Oregon (Mr. MERKLEY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 227, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to ensure more timely access to home health services for Medicare beneficiaries under the Medicare program.

S. 387

At the request of Mrs. BOXER, the name of the Senator from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) was added as a cosponsor of S. 387, a bill to amend title 37, United States Code, to provide flexible spending arrangements for members of uniformed services, and for other purposes.

S. 543

At the request of Mr. WYDEN, the names of the Senator from Washington (Mrs. MURRAY), the Senator from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) and the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WEBB) were added as cosponsors of S. 543, a bill to restrict any State or local jurisdiction from imposing a new discriminatory tax on cell phone services, providers, or property.

S. 570

At the request of Mr. TESTER, the name of the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 570, a bill to prohibit the Department of Justice from tracking and cataloguing the purchases of multiple rifles and shotguns.

S. 584

At the request of Ms. MIKULSKI, the name of the Senator from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 584, a bill to establish the Social Work Reinvestment Commission to provide independent counsel to Congress and the Secretary of Health and Human Services on policy issues associated with recruitment, retention, research, and reinvestment in the profession of social work, and for other purposes.

S. 598

At the request of Mrs. FEINSTEIN, the names of the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. BINGAMAN) and the Senator from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS) were added as cosponsors of S. 598, a bill to repeal the Defense of Marriage Act and ensure respect for State regulation of marriage.

S. 707

At the request of Mr. DURBIN, the name of the Senator from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 707, a bill to amend the Animal Welfare Act to provide further protection for puppies.

S. 778

At the request of Mr. MORAN, the name of the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. HOEVEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 778, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act with respect to physician supervision of therapeutic hospital outpatient services.

S. 798

At the request of Mr. TESTER, the names of the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. MANCHIN), the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) and the Senator from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) were added as cosponsors of S. 798, a bill to provide an amnesty period during which veterans and their family members can register certain firearms in the National Firearms Registration and Transfer Record, and for other purposes.

S. 807

At the request of Mr. ENZI, the names of the Senator from Indiana (Mr.

LUGAR) and the Senator from Idaho (Mr. RISCH) were added as cosponsors of S. 807, a bill to authorize the Department of Labor's voluntary protection program and to expand the program to include more small businesses.

S. 951

At the request of Mrs. MURRAY, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Ms. KLOBUCHAR) was added as a cosponsor of S. 951, a bill to improve the provision of Federal transition, rehabilitation, vocational, and unemployment benefits to members of the Armed Forces and veterans, and for other purposes.

S. 987

At the request of Mr. FRANKEN, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ) was added as a cosponsor of S. 987, a bill to amend title 9 of the United States Code with respect to arbitration.

S. 1025

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the names of the Senator from Washington (Mrs. MURRAY) and the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. AKAKA) were added as cosponsors of S. 1025, a bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to enhance the national defense through empowerment of the National Guard, enhancement of the functions of the National Guard Bureau, and improvement of Federal-State military coordination in domestic emergency response, and for other purposes.

S. 1048

At the request of Mr. MENENDEZ, the name of the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1048, a bill to expand sanctions imposed with respect to the Islamic Republic of Iran, North Korea, and Syria, and for other purposes.

S. 1058

At the request of Mr. PRYOR, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1058, a bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to ensure transparency and proper operation of pharmacy benefit managers.

S. 1171

At the request of Mr. SCHUMER, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1171, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend the exclusion from gross income for employer-provided health coverage for employees' spouses and dependent children to coverage provided to other eligible dependent beneficiaries of employees.

S. 1223

At the request of Mr. FRANKEN, the name of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. COONS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1223, a bill to address voluntary location tracking of electronic communications devices, and for other purposes.

S. 1280

At the request of Mr. BARRASSO, his name was added as a cosponsor of S. 1280, a bill to amend the Peace Corps Act to require sexual assault risk-reduction and response training, and the development of sexual assault protocol and guidelines, the establishment of victims advocates, the establishment of a Sexual Assault Advisory Council, and for other purposes.

S. 1308

At the request of Mr. HATCH, the name of the Senator from Iowa (Mr. GRASSLEY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1308, a bill to amend title 18, United States Code, with respect to child pornography and child exploitation offenses.

S.J. RES. 17

At the request of Mr. MCCONNELL, the name of the Senator from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) was added as a cosponsor of S.J. Res. 17, a joint resolution approving the renewal of import restrictions contained in the Burmese Freedom and Democracy Act of 2003.

At the request of Mrs. FEINSTEIN, the names of the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. AKAKA) and the Senator from Washington (Mrs. MURRAY) were added as cosponsors of S.J. Res. 17, supra.

S. RES. 175

At the request of Mr. BARRASSO, his name was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 175, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate with respect to ongoing violations of the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Georgia and the importance of a peaceful and just resolution to the conflict within Georgia's internationally recognized borders.

S. RES. 201

At the request of Mr. BROWN of Massachusetts, the names of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. CARPER) and the Senator from Delaware (Mr. COONS) were added as cosponsors of S. Res. 201, a resolution expressing the regret of the Senate for the passage of discriminatory laws against the Chinese in America, including the Chinese Exclusion Act.

S. RES. 226

At the request of Mr. GRAHAM, the names of the Senator from Utah (Mr. LEE) and the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH) were added as cosponsors of S. Res. 226, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the President does not have the authority to ignore the statutory debt limit by ordering the Secretary of the Treasury to continue issuing debt on the full faith and credit of the United States.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. KYL (for himself and Mr. MCCAIN):

S. 1344. A bill to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to take immediate action to recover ecologically and economically from a catastrophic wildfire in the State of Arizona, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, today I am introducing, with Senator JOHN MCCAIN, S. 1344, which is a response to Arizona's largest wildfire, called the Wallow Fire. This act is the Wallow Fire Recovery and Monitoring Act.

The Wallow Fire in Arizona burned, over about 40 days, 538,000 acres of Arizona land, making it the largest fire in the history of our State. Just to put it into perspective, that is nearly 841 square miles or almost four times the size of the city of Chicago. The fire destroyed 32 homes and 4 rental cabins. Nearly 10,000 people were evacuated at one point, and the fire cost the taxpayers over $100 million before it was finally extinguished. Unfortunately, it will likely cost double that amount for the necessary rehabilitation of the forests that needs to occur now. After a fire such as this, there is only a short opportunity to hasten forest rehabilitation, reduce risks of flooding, insect epidemics, and future fires, and capture at least some of the economic benefit from the dead and dying trees to help offset and pay for those restoration costs.

Given the urgent need for action, as I said, I am introducing today the Arizona Wallow Fire Recovery and Monitoring Act, joined by my colleague, JOHN MCCAIN, as an original cosponsor. This legislation would expedite the removal of hazard, dead, and dying trees in community protection management areas within the Wallow Fire area. The removal projects carried out under the act will be completed within 18 months of enactment. The reason for this timeline is that when it comes to timber harvesting of the fire-killed trees, the costs of delay are extreme. Fire-killed trees will lose more than 40 percent of their value in less than 2 years.

Due to the intensity, the size, and the magnitude of the fire, there is a tremendous amount of dead and dying trees within the Wallow Fire area. Portions of the forest that have burned pose a risk to forest users, to communities, and to private property and the remaining resources. These risks include the hazards of falling trees, erosion, flooding, reburns due to excess fuel loads, and insect infestation risk to the remaining live trees. Under these postfire conditions, timber salvage is a management tool to mitigate these risks, generate revenue and jobs, and put the forest on the road to recovery.

We saw the negative consequences of delay firsthand in Arizona after the Rodeo-Chediski Fire in 2002, which at that point had been our State's largest fire. Bureaucratic regulations and lawsuits so severely delayed salvage efforts that by the time the projects were cleared to proceed, the trees had lost most of their economic value. Congress should not stand by and allow this situation to be repeated.

That said, we are not looking to eliminate environmental safeguards or exempt timber harvests from Federal environmental laws. This bill is narrowly tailored, limiting the removal of hazard, dead, and dying trees to those trees located within community protection management areas. One of these areas includes the wildland urban interface and other areas critical to communities. In addition, a comprehensive hazard tree and commercial timber evaluation and an environmental assessment under the National Environmental Policy Act, or NEPA, are required. All appeals and judicial review would follow the processes in the bipartisan Healthy Forest Restoration Act.

The practice of postfire timber salvage may be controversial in part because there is limited scientific information on its ecological effects. Most of the scientific literature that does exist is based on forests in the Pacific Northwest. The forests in that part of the country are very different from the dry ponderosa pine-dominated forests that burned in the Wallow Fire. Thus, the bill would require monitoring for all timber removal projects implemented under the act.

Finally, from a fiscal perspective, there is never going to be enough Federal funding for the forest restoration work that needs to be done to save the forest that remains. Acknowledging this reality, this bill takes the proceeds from the timber removal project sales and keeps them on this forest to help pay for future forest restoration treatments.

This bill strikes a responsible balance between environmental concerns and economics after a catastrophic wildfire. I urge my colleagues to support its swift passage.

The Arizona Wallow Fire Recovery and Monitoring Act requires a comprehensive evaluation of the forest conditions and hazard tree and fire-damaged timber resources across the Wallow Fire Area; limits the areas where dead and dying trees can be removed to Community Protection Management Areas; limits tree removal to hazard trees and trees that are already down, dead, broken or severely root sprung trees where mortality is highly expected; prohibits the construction of new, permanent roads; provides for an expedited, but thorough, environmental review of tree removal projects proposed in the Wallow Fire Area, including full public participation in the development of such projects; uses the processes for appeals and judicial review established in the bipartisan Healthy Forest Restoration Act; requires monitoring of the ecological and economic effects of timber removal projects; and authorizes the use of timber receipts to offset the costs of forest restoration.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 230—EX-PRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT ANY AGREEMENT TO REDUCE THE BUDGET DEFICIT SHOULD NOT INCLUDE CUTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS OR MEDICARE BENEFITS

Mr. WHITEHOUSE (for himself, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Mr. SANDERS, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. MERKLEY, and Mr. FRANKEN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

S. RES. 230

Whereas over 34,000,000 retired workers currently receive Social Security benefits in amounts that average a modest $14,100 a year;

Whereas, in 2008, 23 percent of retired workers receiving Social Security benefits depended on those benefits for all or almost all of their income;

Whereas according to AARP, Social Security benefits kept 36 percent of seniors out of poverty in 2008;

Whereas reducing Social Security benefits would cause many seniors to have to choose between food, drugs, rent, and heat;

Whereas 95 percent of seniors in the United States, who numbered almost 37,000,000 in 2008, got their health care coverage through the Medicare program;

Whereas without Medicare benefits, seniors, many of whom live off of Social Security benefits, would have to turn to the costly and uncertain private market for health care coverage;

Whereas the Social Security program and the Medicare program are extremely successful social insurance programs that permit seniors in America to retire with dignity and security after a lifetime of hard work; and

Whereas the Social Security program and the Medicare program help relieve young American families from worry about their own futures, allowing freedom of opportunity in America: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that any agreement to reduce the budget deficit should not include cuts to Social Security benefits or Medicare benefits.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I rise to discuss the ongoing negotiations on the Federal budget and our rapidly approaching debt ceiling. I think we all agree the situation we face is increasingly grave. I believe every responsible person agrees that a failure to act on the debt limit would have awful repercussions and set back our fragile and tentative economic recovery. Surpassing the debt limit could inflict a triple economic harm on our struggling economy: the economic harm of all at once pulling 40 cents of every Federal dollar out of the economy, the economic harm of shutting down every work project that depends on Federal permits, contracts or regulatory approvals, and the economic harm of driving up interest rates for our constituents and for our country. We must, therefore, act and act quickly to ensure that we avoid that outcome.

I also believe the debt limit presents an opportunity to make some tough decisions on our unsustainable deficits. The longer we wait to make these choices, the harder they will be. It is my strong belief that any agreement we reach to reduce the deficits must be based on real savings and must not be made at the expense of our most vulnerable citizens. That is why I am so concerned about reports that Social Security and Medicare benefits have been raised as possible sources of deficit reduction. Cuts to Social Security and to Medicare benefits are unnecessary, are wrong, and should not be on the table. Social Security is not the cause of the deficit, and beneficiaries of Social Security should not be made to shoulder the burden of deficit reduction.

A balanced deficit reduction package is certainly within our grasp. I wish to commend our chairman, Senator CONRAD, chairman of the Budget Committee, for his proposal which would cut the deficit by $4 trillion over the next decade. His plan would cut the deficit by more than the House Republican budget and would do so without cutting Social Security or Medicare benefits. Chairman CONRAD's blueprint would balance $2 trillion in spending cuts with an equal amount of tax loophole closers for wealthy individuals and corporations. His budget would call for shared sacrifice, not just go after the elderly and other vulnerable Americans. We should not, as Americans, balance the budget on the backs of those who can least afford it. That is why I rise to offer a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that any budget agreement should not include cuts to Social Security or Medicare benefits. Social Security is funded through the contributions of our Nation's workers and businesses. It currently has a trust fund balance over $2.5 trillion, and it is projected to be fully solvent for another quarter century. So while I agree with steps to strengthen Social Security, it is a vital program, any changes should be considered independent of this effort to reduce the deficit, and under no circumstances should we cut Social Security benefits. Indeed, the solvency of the program could be extended significantly just by applying payroll taxes to a greater portion of the earnings of millionaires and billionaires. What we should never do is to put elderly Americans' security at risk in the stock market or increase the retirement age or cut benefits through backdoor methods such as lowering the cost-of-living adjustment.

As has the Presiding Officer, I have heard from hundreds of folks from my home State—Rhode Islanders who agree with me—and, particularly, I rely on seniors to whom I have listened at community dinners and senior centers throughout the State who are concerned that they have already gone 2 years without a cost-of-living adjustment when prices are going up all around them.

Audrey from Middletown told me that after her husband died, she had many expenses but “no income except for his Social Security check which enabled me to go on living—simply but adequately—without being a burden on my sons and losing my dignity as well.”

Ronald from Cumberland, RI, has been on Social Security for a number of years. He wrote me to say:

It . . . seems that it's always the people who need the help the most who get cut from the Federal Government. Why is this? No Social Security COLA for two years, yet prices for the basic needs still rise. . . . In a country like the United States of America, this should not happen.

The threat to Medicare is just as real. Earlier this year, House Republicans passed a budget that in 10 years would put an end to the Medicare Program as we know it. Estimates suggest their proposal would end up forcing a typical 65-year-old senior to pay, on average, $12,500 each year in out-of-pocket expenses, starting in 2022—more than double what a senior is estimated to pay under the current system. In Rhode Island, where the average senior only gets about $14,200 per year from Social Security, charging an average $12,500 for seniors would be an exercise in poverty creation.

The Republican budget would also throw seniors right away—in the next year—back into the Medicare prescription drug doughnut hole we have just begun closing through the affordable care act, and it would eliminate the lifesaving preventive services that were added by the health care reform law. Cutting Medicare benefits is the wrong approach to balancing our budget, especially while Republicans continue fighting to protect every single tax break, every single loophole, every single earmark in the Tax Code enjoyed by millionaires and billionaires and by corporations, many of whom pay no taxes at all.

Medicare and Social Security are cornerstones of our Nation's prosperity, and they benefit all of us. These programs allow Americans to live their lives free from worry about their retirement security or the welfare and health treatment of their parents. This American freedom is a value we should fight to protect.

While we should always be open to improving these vital programs, we must not cut the benefits our seniors and disabled Americans have earned and rely upon. I wish to thank Senators BLUMENTHAL and SANDERS; Senator SHERROD BROWN; the Presiding Officer, Senator MERKLEY; and Senator FRANKEN for their support in cosponsoring this resolution. I hope my colleagues will join us in protecting the promise we have made to our Nation's seniors through Social Security and Medicare.

In closing, the challenge before us is a formidable one, but I truly believe we can reach an agreement on the deficit and debt ceiling without compromising the security and well-being of our seniors.

SENATE RESOLUTION 231—DESIGNATING SEPTEMBER 2011 AS “NATIONAL CHILD AWARENESS MONTH” TO PROMOTE AWARENESS OF CHARITIES BENEFITTING CHILDREN AND YOUTH-SERVING ORGANIZATIONS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AND RECOGNIZING EFFORTS MADE BY THOSE CHARITIES AND ORGANIZATIONS ON BEHALF OF CHILDREN AND YOUTH AS CRITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE FUTURE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. BURR (for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. BEGICH, Mr. LAUTENBERG, and Mr. ALEXANDER) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 231

Whereas millions of children and youth in the United States represent the hopes and future of the United States;

Whereas numerous individuals, charities benefitting children, and youth-serving organizations that work with children and youth collaborate to provide invaluable services to enrich and better the lives of children and youth throughout the United States;

Whereas raising awareness of, and increasing support for, organizations that provide access to healthcare, social services, education, the arts, sports, and other services will result in the development of character and the future success of the children and youth of the United States;

Whereas the month of September, as the school year begins, is a time when parents, families, teachers, school administrators, and communities increase their focus on children and youth throughout the United States;

Whereas the month of September is a time for the people of the United States to highlight and be mindful of the needs of children and youth;

Whereas private corporations and businesses have joined with hundreds of national and local charitable organizations throughout the United States in support of a month-long focus on children and youth; and

Whereas designating September 2011 as “National Child Awareness Month” would recognize that a long-term commitment to children and youth is in the public interest, and will encourage widespread support for charities and organizations that seek to provide a better future for the children and youth of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate designates September 2011 as “National Child Awareness Month”—

(1) to promote awareness of charities benefitting children and youth-serving organizations throughout the United States; and

(2) to recognize efforts made by those charities and organizations on behalf of children and youth as critical contributions to the future of the United States.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 527. Mr. HELLER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 528. Mr. PORTMAN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, supra; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 529. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1323, supra.

SA 530. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to amendment SA 529 proposed by Mr. REID to the bill S. 1323, supra.

SA 531. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1323, supra.

SA 532. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to amendment SA 531 proposed by Mr. REID to the bill S. 1323, supra.

SA 533. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to amendment SA 532 proposed by Mr. REID to the amendment SA 531 proposed by Mr. REID to the bill S. 1323, supra.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 527. Mr. HELLER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET RESPONSIBILITY.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the “Congressional Budget Responsibility Act of 2011”.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term “Member of Congress”—

(1) has the meaning given under section 2106 of title 5, United States Code; and

(2) does not include the Vice President.

(c) TIMELY APPROVAL OF CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET.—If both Houses of Congress have not approved a concurrent resolution on the budget as described under section 301 of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (2 U.S.C. 632) for a fiscal year before October 1 of that fiscal year, the pay of each Member of Congress may not be paid for each day following that October 1 until the date on which both Houses of Congress approve a concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year.

(d) NO PAY WITHOUT CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds may be appropriated or otherwise be made available from the United States Treasury for the pay of any Member of Congress during any period determined by the Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate or the Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives under subsection (e).

(2) NO RETROACTIVE PAY.—A Member of Congress may not receive pay for any period determined by the Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate or the Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives under subsection (e), at any time after the end of that period.

(e) DETERMINATIONS.—

(1) SENATE.—

(A) REQUEST FOR CERTIFICATIONS.—On October 1 of each year, the Secretary of the Senate shall submit a request to the Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate for certification of determinations made under subparagraph (B)(i) and (ii).

(B) DETERMINATIONS.—The Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate shall—

(i) on October 1 of each year, make a determination of whether Congress is in compliance with subsection (d) and whether Senators may not be paid under that subsection; and

(ii) determine the period of days following each October 1 that Senators may not be paid under subsection (d); and

(iii) provide timely certification of the determinations under clauses (i) and (ii) upon the request of the Secretary of the Senate.

(2) HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—

(A) REQUEST FOR CERTIFICATIONS.—On October 1 of each year, the Chief Administrative Officer of the House of Representatives shall submit a request to the Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives for certification of determinations made under subparagraph (B)(i) and (ii).

(B) DETERMINATIONS.—The Chairperson of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives shall—

(i) on October 1 of each year, make a determination of whether Congress is in compliance with subsection (d) and whether Senators may not be paid under that subsection; and

(ii) determine the period of days following each October 1 that Senators may not be paid under subsection (d); and

(iii) provide timely certification of the determinations under clauses (i) and (ii) upon the request of the Chief Administrative Officer of the House of Representatives.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall take effect on February 1, 2013.

SA 528. Mr. PORTMAN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. 2. INCLUSION OF APPLICATION TO INDEPENDENT REGULATORY AGENCIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 421(1) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (2 U.S.C. 658(1)) is amended by striking “, but does not include independent regulatory agencies”.

(b) EXEMPTION FOR MONETARY POLICY.—The Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (2 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 5 the following:

“SEC. 6. EXEMPTION FOR MONETARY POLICY.

“Nothing in title II, III, or IV shall apply to rules that concern monetary policy proposed or implemented by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System or the Federal Open Market Committee.”.

SA 529. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; as follows:

At the end, add the following new section:
SEC 2. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The provisions of this Act shall become effective 3 days after enactment.

SA 530. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to amendment SA 529 proposed by Mr. REID to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; as follows:

In the amendment, strike “3”, insert “2”.

SA 531. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; as follows:

On page 2, line 10, after “deficit” strike all that follows and insert the following:

“(1) should require that those earning $1,000,000 or more per year make a more meaningful contribution to the deficit reduction effort; and

(2) should not end Medicare as we know it.”

SA 532. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to amendment SA 531 proposed by Mr. REID to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; as follows:

After “Medicare”, strike all that follows and insert “and Medicaid as we know it.”.

SA 533. Mr. REID proposed an amendment to amendment SA 532 proposed by Mr. REID to the amendment SA 531 proposed by Mr. REID to the bill S. 1323, to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget deficit; as follows:

Strike “we” and insert “all Americans”.

NOTICE OF HEARING

COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I would like to announce that the Committee on Indian Affairs will meet on Thursday, July 14, 2011, at 2:15 p.m. in room 628 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building to conduct a business meeting to consider the nominations of Cynthia Chavez Lamar, Barbara Jean Ells and Debra Downing Goodman to serve as Members, Board of Trustees, Institute of American Indian and Alaska Native Culture and Arts Development; to be followed immediately by an oversight hearing entitled “Native Women: Protecting, Shielding, and Safeguarding Our Sisters, Mothers, and Daughters.”

Those wishing additional information may contact the Indian Affairs Committee at (202) 224-2251.

NATIONAL CHILD AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent we now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 231.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BLUMENTHAL). The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 231) designating September 2011 as “National Child Awareness Month” to promote awareness of charities benefiting children and youth-serving organizations throughout the United States and recognizing efforts made by those charities and organizations on behalf of children and youth as critical contributions to the future of the United States.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 231) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 231

Whereas millions of children and youth in the United States represent the hopes and future of the United States;

Whereas numerous individuals, charities benefitting children, and youth-serving organizations that work with children and youth collaborate to provide invaluable services to enrich and better the lives of children and youth throughout the United States;

Whereas raising awareness of, and increasing support for, organizations that provide access to healthcare, social services, education, the arts, sports, and other services will result in the development of character and the future success of the children and youth of the United States;

Whereas the month of September, as the school year begins, is a time when parents, families, teachers, school administrators, and communities increase their focus on children and youth throughout the United States;

Whereas the month of September is a time for the people of the United States to highlight and be mindful of the needs of children and youth;

Whereas private corporations and businesses have joined with hundreds of national and local charitable organizations throughout the United States in support of a month-long focus on children and youth; and

Whereas designating September 2011 as “National Child Awareness Month” would recognize that a long-term commitment to children and youth is in the public interest, and will encourage widespread support for charities and organizations that seek to provide a better future for the children and youth of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate designates September 2011 as “National Child Awareness Month”—

(1) to promote awareness of charities benefitting children and youth-serving organizations throughout the United States; and

(2) to recognize efforts made by those charities and organizations on behalf of children and youth as critical contributions to the future of the United States.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, JULY 12,
2011

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 10 a.m., Tuesday, July 12; that following the prayer and pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day; that following any leader remarks, the Senate proceed to a period of morning business for 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes, with the time to be equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with the majority controlling the first half and the Republicans controlling the final half; that following morning business, the Senate resume consideration of S. 1323, which is a bill to express the sense of the Senate on shared sacrifice in resolving the budget issue; further, I ask that the filing deadline for all first-degree amendments to S. 1323 be 12 noon; and finally, that the Senate recess from 12:30 p.m. until 2:15 p.m. to allow for the weekly caucus meetings.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I filed cloture on S. 1323, which is on the sense-of-the-Senate bill regarding shared sacrifice, and on the motion to proceed to H.R. 2055, the Military Construction-V.A. bill. It is an appropriations bill. It is an important bill. Unless an agreement is reached, there will be up to two rollcall votes Wednesday morning on these issues.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M.
TOMORROW

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it adjourn under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:54 p.m. adjourned until Tuesday, July 12, 2011, at 10 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate:

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

CHARLES DEWITT MCCONNELL, OF OHIO, TO BE AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF ENERGY (FOSSIL ENERGY), VICE JAMES J. MARKOWSKY, RESIGNED.

THE JUDICIARY

JOHN FRANCIS MCCABE, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE AN ASSOCIATE JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA FOR THE TERM OF FIFTEEN YEARS, VICE JAMES E. BOASBERG, RESIGNED.

PETER ARNO KRAUTHAMER, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE AN ASSOCIATE JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA FOR THE TERM OF FIFTEEN YEARS, VICE JOHN HENRY BAYLY, JR., RETIRED.

DANYA ARIEL DAYSON, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE AN ASSOCIATE JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA FOR THE TERM OF FIFTEEN YEARS, VICE STEPHANIE DUNCAN-PETERS, RETIRED.

UNITED STATES TAX COURT

JOSEPH H. GALE, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE A JUDGE OF THE UNITED STATES TAX COURT FOR A TERM OF FIFTEEN YEARS. (REAPPOINTMENT)

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

MICHAEL A. HAMMER, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, A CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF COUNSELOR, TO BE AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE (PUBLIC AFFAIRS), VICE PHILIP J. CROWLEY, RESIGNED.

FOREIGN SERVICE

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED PERSONS OF THE AGENCIES INDICATED FOR APPOINTMENT AS FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS OF THE CLASSES STATED.

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED MEMBERS OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE TO BE CONSULAR OFFICERS AND SECRETARIES IN THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

TIMOTHY C. CANNON, OF NORTH DAKOTA
SARAH J. COOK, OF FLORIDA

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

NISHA ABRAHAM, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
MARC S. ABRAMSON, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
STARVNEE ADAMS, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
NADIA SHAIRZAY AHMED, OF VIRGINIA
THOMAS W. ALBRECHT, OF VIRGINIA
CHRISTINA N. ATKINS, OF VIRGINIA
ROBERT A. BAL, OF VIRGINIA
NICOLE C. BAYER, OF CALIFORNIA
SHALAJA BISTA, OF GEORGIA
SEAN BODA, OF OHIO
TIMO BRANDSTETTER, OF VIRGINIA
COURTNEY JEAN BRASIER, OF MARYLAND
JANE C. BRITTING, OF VIRGINIA
HECTOR R. BROWN, OF TEXAS
JASON BROWN, OF VIRGINIA
ANDREW D. BURCHFIELD, OF VIRGINIA
KEVIN J. BURGWINKLE, OF VIRGINIA
ANDREW G. BURY III, OF VIRGINIA
BRYAN A. CARTER, OF VIRGINIA
RYAN B. CHAVEZ, OF VIRGINIA
GRACE WOORI CHOI, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
ROGER VINCENT CHUANG, OF CALIFORNIA
D. MARKO CIMBALJEVICH, OF INDIANA
SHOSHAUNA A. CLARK, OF COLORADO
JULIA HARTT KENTNOR CORBY, OF VIRGINIA
ELISE S. CRANE, OF COLORADO
ANDREW A. DAEHNE, OF TEXAS
ANNETTE DELANEY, OF VIRGINIA
PHILLIP S. DEMSKE, OF VIRGINIA
JENNIFER L. DENHARD, OF FLORIDA
KRIKOR DEURDULIAN, OF VIRGINIA
KIRK EDWARD DONAHOE, OF PENNSYLVANIA
RICHARD L. DUBOIS III, OF KANSAS
LAURA S. EDDY, OF VIRGINIA
CHRISTOPHER CHARLES ELLIS, OF OREGON
SHANNON ESKOW, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
JESSICA T. FARMER, OF MAINE
ROXANA W. FELDMAN, OF VIRGINIA
SHARYN C. FITZGERALD, OF VIRGINIA
ROBERT WILLIAM FOLLEY, OF WISCONSIN
AMIRA A. FOUAD, OF VIRGINIA
EVAN M. FRITZ, OF TEXAS
ISAAC N. GIBBONS, OF VIRGINIA
BRIAN A. GILLESPIE, OF TENNESSEE
DARROW S. GODESKI MERTON, OF NEW YORK
BRIAN O. GORMAN, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
MATHEW L. HAGENGROBER, OF MONTANA
AMY K. HANSEN, OF VIRGINIA
MICHAEL J. HARKER, OF NEW YORK
EVAN J. HICKEY, OF VIRGINIA
KATHERINE LAN HO, OF TEXAS
YULIANA VLADIMIROVNA HOLMES, OF VIRGINIA
JOHN MATTHEW HOPPER, OF VIRGINIA
RICHARD DANIEL HUGHES, OF NEW YORK
JOSANDA E. JINNETTE, OF COLORADO
DOUGLAS MAYES JOHNSON, OF HAWAII
NADINE FARID JOHNSON, OF WASHINGTON
NICHOLAS DANIEL JOYCE, OF VIRGINIA
PHILIP R. KERN, OF WYOMING
JEFF KHURGEL, OF CALIFORNIA
MARK R. LAFEIR, OF MARYLAND
ADRIAN J. LANSPEARY, OF NEW JERSEY
YALE HUGHES LAYTON, OF WYOMING
BENJAMIN LAZARUS, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
JUDITH K. LEPUSCHITZ, OF CALIFORNIA
STEVE D. LEU, OF CALIFORNIA
NANNETTE N. LEWIS, OF MARYLAND
OLIVIER F. LINDEMANN, OF VIRGINIA
AMY E. LONG, OF VIRGINIA
BRADFORD R. LOVELACE, OF MARYLAND
JESSICA A. LUNDBERG, OF NEW YORK
SCOTT T. MACIEJEWSKI, OF VIRGINIA
CHRISTOPH ALEXIS MARK, OF CALIFORNIA
DOREEN VAILLANCOURT MARONEY, OF MARYLAND
KEVIN MICHAEL MARTINDALE, OF VIRGINIA
PLESAH L. MAYO, OF VIRGINIA
EDISON S. MCBAYNE, OF MARYLAND
SAUL MERCADO, OF NEW YORK
SHANNON R. MILES, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
ROGER MILLER, OF VIRGINIA
MICHAEL JOHN MITCHELL, OF MINNESOTA

MICHAEL A. MOHR, OF VIRGINIA
TAUVA A. MONTAS COLON, OF VIRGINIA
AMAL MOUSSAOUI HAYNES, OF NEW YORK
JOSEPH J. NARUS, OF OREGON
CHARLES I. OKONKWO, OF VIRGINIA
JOO WEON PARK, OF PENNSYLVANIA
CORNELIUS A. PARKER, OF MARYLAND
TYLER PARTRIDGE, OF ARIZONA
CASSANDRA J. PAYTON, OF KANSAS
GREGORY M. PEARMAN, OF CALIFORNIA
ANNA G. PEARSON, OF VIRGINIA
KIMBERLY A. PEASE, OF WISCONSIN
MIGUEL SHAROD PENIX, OF NORTH CAROLINA
THAI PHAM, OF VIRGINIA
ROBERT MATTHEW PICKETT, OF OREGON
BRANDON N. PIERCE, OF VIRGINIA
LISA N. PODOLNY, OF FLORIDA
JACOB M. PORTNOY, OF MASSACHUSETTS
CAMERON E. POWELL, OF VIRGINIA
RENEE N. POWELL, OF VIRGINIA
CHRISTOPHER A. PULLELLA, OF VIRGINIA
JUDITH A. PUZIO, OF VIRGINIA
AMANJIT RAMESH, OF VIRGINIA
JAMES PATRICK REIDY, OF TEXAS
ELLIOT M. REPKO, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
CLIFFORD K. ROBERTSON, OF MARYLAND
GREGORY L. ROBINSON, OF VIRGINIA
THAD W. ROSS, OF IDAHO
MARK ANTHONY SAAVEDRA, OF CALIFORNIA
SCOTT SANFORD, OF WYOMING
JOHN DAVID SARRAF, OF PENNSYLVANIA
JOANNA SCHENKE, OF TEXAS
EHPREN SCOTT SCHIMMEL, OF RHODE ISLAND
STEPHANIE LAURA SCHMID, OF PENNSYLVANIA
CURTIS L. SCHMUCKER, OF FLORIDA
SAOWANEK K. SHANAHAN, OF VIRGINIA
DIVIYA SHARMA, OF MARYLAND
JENNIFER LYNN SIHRER, OF VIRGINIA
JOAN L. SIMON BARTHOLOMAUS, OF WASHINGTON
CHRISTOPHER FREDERIC SMITH, OF TEXAS
JENNIFER A. SMITH, OF VIRGINIA
RACHEL E. SMITH, OF CALIFORNIA
SEAN ROBERT SMITH, OF CONNECTICUT
NICHOLAS A. STALICK, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
JOIA ASHLEE STARKS, OF DELAWARE
ADAM T. STEVENS, OF CONNECTICUT
JAMES R. STEWART, OF VIRGINIA
LUCIA BAJZER STRALEY, OF MINNESOTA
TRACY M. STRAUCH, OF VIRGINIA
ROBERT S. STREATOR, OF VIRGINIA
MARY MARIE STRETTZEL, OF TENNESSEE
ALEXANDER LANDE SUDEROW, OF MASSACHUSETTS
SARAH H. SWATZBURG, OF NEVADA
CODY WELLES SWYER, OF CALIFORNIA
GEOFFREY BRUCE TERRILL, OF VIRGINIA
JEFFERSON E. THOMPSON, OF VIRGINIA
VICKI SHIHING TING, OF CALIFORNIA
LESLIE M. TOKIWA, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
DANIEL R. TRIPP, OF INDIANA
THOMAS T. TSOUPELIS, OF VIRGINIA
WILLIAM J. TUTTLE, OF VIRGINIA
JACQUELINE A. VA'RA, OF VIRGINIA
REBECCA L. WEIDNER, OF VIRGINIA
CHRISTOPHER A. WELCH, OF VIRGINIA
NELSON H. WEN, OF NEW YORK
ELIZABETH ANNE WEWERKA, OF FLORIDA
EMILY BUTLER WHITE, OF COLORADO
TRAVIS I. WILLIAMS, OF VIRGINIA
T. IAN WILSON, OF NEW YORK
ANDREW G. WINKELMAN, OF NORTH CAROLINA
DENNIS D. WONG, OF VIRGINIA
THOMAS WORTH, OF MARYLAND
NICOLE WYKOFF, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
BRIAN SCOTT ZABIN, OF VIRGINIA
JOERG ZEPPENFELD, OF NORTH CAROLINA
MICHELLE RENE ZIA, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED CAREER MEMBER OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE FOR PROMOTION INTO THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE TO THE CLASS INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF MINISTER-COUNSELOR, EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 12, 2008:

MARK JEFFREY HIPPI, OF VIRGINIA

IN THE AIR FORCE

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. CLYDE D. MOORE II

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C. SECTION 601:

To be lieutenant general

LT. GEN. JANET C. WOLFENBARGER

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE TO THE GRADE INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be major general

BRIG. GEN. LEONARD A. PATRICK

IN THE ARMY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. KEITH C. WALKER

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. CHARLES T. CLEVELAND

THE FOLLOWING ARMY NATIONAL GUARD OF THE UNITED STATES OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE RESERVE OF THE ARMY TO THE GRADE INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 12203 AND 12211:

To be brigadier general

COL. WENDUL G. HAGLER II

IN THE NAVY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be vice admiral

VICE ADM. MICHAEL A. LEFEVER

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY RESERVE TO THE GRADE INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 12203:

To be rear admiral (lower half)

CAPT. LUKE M. MCCOLLUM

IN THE ARMY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY NURSE CORPS UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 624 AND 3064:

To be major

NICHOLAS M. CRUZGARCIA
JOSEPH P. LYNN

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S CORPS UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 531 AND 3064:

To be lieutenant colonel

LUISA G. SANTIAGO

THE FOLLOWING NAMED INDIVIDUALS FOR REGULAR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADES INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY MEDICAL CORPS UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 531 AND 3064:

To be lieutenant colonel

TROY W. ROSS
JONATHAN R. STABILE

To be major

DAVID A. CORTESE
CARLOS E. QUEZADA

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE REGULAR ARMY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 531:

To be major

JAMES L. ADAMS, JR.
JON M. BRYAN
GORDON E. GRANT
CHARLES J. HUDSON
JASON J. MAIN
ROBERT M. THELEN

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY AS CHAPLAINS UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 624 AND 3064:

To be lieutenant colonel

MATTHEW B. AHN
CLAUDE W. BRITTIAN
ADDISON BURGESS
MITCHELL A. BUTTERWORTH
JOEY T. BYRD
BRIAN P. CRANE
LOUIS A. DELTUFO
DAVID J. DEPPMEIER
KEVIN M. DOLL
WIESLAW A. DYNEK
ROBERT B. GILLETTE
DAVID V. GREEN
JAMES R. GRIFFIN
ROBERT H. HART, JR.
THOMAS S. HELMS III
JOSE G. HERRERA
CHUL W. KIM
MICHAEL J. KING
DAVID W. LILE
TIMOTHY S. MEADOR
MARK A. MITERA
ROY M. MYERS

LEE W. NELSON
DARIN A. NIELSEN
GARY G. PAYNE
CLARK E. RABE
PAUL D. RAMSEY
CARL W. ROSENBERG
JULIE M. ROWAN
JAMES E. SCHAEFER
OLEN Z. SELLERS
DAVID L. SHOFFNER
JAMES E. SMITH, JR.
DAVID L. SPEARS
JACK J. STUMME
GREGORY S. THOGMARTIN

IN THE NAVY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

JAMES S. BROWN
ANTONIO C. TING
HEATHER J. WALTON

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

CHRISTOPHER A. ALFONZO
JAY E. ALLARD
NATHANIEL B. ALMOND
MICHELLE G. ARNOLD
SCOTT ASHBY
ALEX L. AUBIN
KATHERINE C. AUSTIN
ERIN K. BALOG
MICHAEL R. BAYDARIAN
GERARD M. BENECKI
ROBERT M. BETTIS
JOHN C. BIERY
MATTHEW T. BRIGGER
JORGE L. BRITO
RICHARD C. CAMPIN
WILLIAM K. CARSON
JOHN B. CASON
MICHAEL R. CATHEY
SUSAN C. CLARK
MICHAEL G. CLARKE
EMILY E. COLE
HUGH M. DAINER
JUAN C. DAPENA
KONRAD L. DAVIS
GRAY N. DAWSON
JOHN J. DEVLIN
CHRISTOPHER B. DEWING
LAURA N. DINNEEN
BRENDON G. DREW
MARK E. EATON
DAVID K. EPSTEIN
JACQUELINE EUBANY
ALEXANDER N. EVANS
NATHANIAL FERNANDEZ
JONATHAN A. FORSBERG
DAVID M. FURLONG
CURTIS W. GABALL
ROBERT J. GAINES, JR.
CATHERINE E. HAGAN
ERIC B. HARRIS
CHADLEY R. HUEBNER
BRIAN S. KING
DAVID J. KRAUSE
ELAINE B. KREJCI
KARL C. KRONMANN
KEVIN M. KUHN
MARK E. LAMBERT
ERIN A. LARKINS
MARGUERITE S. LENGKEEK
VICTOR S. LIN
ROBIN W. LINDSAY
RICHARD O. LYNCH
JAMES J. LYONS
CARTER J. MAURER
MICHAEL P. MCDOWELL
JOEL T. MCFARLAND
PETER C. MCGOWAN
TIMOTHY P. MCGRATH
JOEL R. METZGER
EDMUND A. MILDNER
JOHN R. MINARCIK
ARASH MOHTASHAMIAN
JOHN MOREE
MICHELE P. MORRISON
MARK M. MORTON
DAVID L. MOULTON
JAMES J. MUCCARONE
FRANK E. MULLENS
MATTHEW W. NEWMAN
TODD J. OCHSNER
MARK D. PAYSON
GIRARD L. POIRIER
TIMOTHY M. POWELL
PETER PRESSMAN
ROBERT L. RICCA
JOHN D. RICHARD
ADAM K. SAPERSTEIN
BETTINA M. SAUTER
ROLF K. SCHMIDT
PATRICK J. SCHUETTE
ANDREA N. SNITCHLER
KRISTEN M. A. STEWART

VALERIE S. STRANG
JASON D. SWEET
SEAN A. SWIATKOWSKI
ROBERT K. TAKESUYE
HATTIE M. TAPPS
DANIELLE A. TAYSON
CHRISTOPHER M. TEPERA
VALERIE A. TOKARZ
NATHAN S. UEHELHOER
TRICIA E. VANWAGNER
JOHN W. VINCENT
MATTHEW J. WAUSON
NATALIE Y. WELLS
DOUGLAS A. WINSTANLEY
CHAD T. ZEHMS
SARA B. ZIMMER

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

RAUL L. BARRIENTOS
JEFF A. BLEILE
TONI A. BOWDEN
THOMAS P. CARROLL
CAMERON H. CONKIN
CHRISTOPHER E. CRECELIUS
TUANH C. HALQUIST
CHRISTOPHER M. HARRIS
THOMAS B. HINES, JR.
MOLLY A. JENKINS
DAVID W. JONES
REBECCA O. LEE
NANCY OSBORNE
JORGE H. PARRABETANCOURT
ANTON PETRICH
MICHAEL E. RUDMANN
RODNEY V. SCOTT
STEVE L. STALLINGS
STEPHEN J. STERLITZ
KAREN M. STOKES
PETER A. VELLIS
WILLIAM O. WILSON, JR.
HAROLD S. ZALD

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

DAVID L. AGEY
JEFFREY D. ALTON
MARIA D. ALVAREZ
GARLAND H. ANDREWS
DARRYL P. ARFSTEN
JAMES A. BALCIUS
ERIC H. BARNES
AMBER D. BILES
RANDY K. BILLS, JR.
AMY L. BIRTELSMITH
KATHLEEN M. BLAKEY
BRIAN L. BOHRER
GARY T. BRICE
ROGER L. BUNCH
JAMES P. BURRILL
BONNIE R. CHAVEZ
KAREN S. CORSON
JAMES E. COWAN
PHILIP J. DAUERNHEIM
NICK A. DIMASO
DOUGLAS L. FAISON
MICHAEL E. FEESER
BONNIE S. S. GARBUTT
GLORIA L. GARNER
ELLIS C. GAYLES, JR.
PETER J. GUNTHER
KAREN R. HALL
BRANDON W. HARDIN
JEFFREY A. HAYWORTH
ROBERT P. HIGGINS
ROBERT J. HINES
ANDREW C. HOBURG
KRISTIN R. HODAPP
BRIAN D. IVESON
MICHAEL S. KAVANAUGH
JEFFREY J. KLINGER
BRADLEY C. KLUEGEL
SEAN M. LANDO
CHRISTOPHER G. LYNCH
CHAD E. MCKENZIE
AARON R. MOORE
KEITH B. NEWTON
SCOTT W. NORTON
DAVID D. PETERSON
JOSEPH E. PIANSAY
GUILLERMO PIMENTEL
THOMAS J. PINER
RANDY G. REESE
ROSE E. RICE
CHERYL C. RINGER
JAMES L. RUEFF III
ARLENE R. SAITZYK
PAUL S. SCHIERMEIER
DAVID L. SCHOO
BENJAMIN J. SCHWARTZ
KATHARINE K. SHOBE
KARLA M. SLATER
DONNA M. SPORRER
JEFFREY D. STANCIL
MICHAEL E. STEVENS, JR.
MICHAEL G. STOCKELMAN
MICHAEL L. SUNMAN

GODFREY W. TABB
TODD J. TETREAULT
CAYETANO S. THORNTON
ROMEO T. TIZON, JR.
LAURA L. V. WEGEMANN

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT
TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY
UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

ROBERT P. ANSELM
VANESSA C. HOPGOOD
AMY K. LARSON
MICHAEL D. LAWRENCE
JOHN A. MILLS
DAVID A. NORKIN
DAVID L. ODOWD
MARC S. ROSEN
KENNETH R. SHOOK
VALERIE L. SMALL
JONATHAN T. STEPHENS
PAUL A. WALKER

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT
TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY
UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

RANDY E. ASHMAN
JOHANNES M. BAILEY
ARNEL J. BARBA
HARRIETT S. BATES
JESSICA D. BEARD
MARK J. BROWNFIELD
CHARLES L. CATHER
WILLIAM D. COVILL
CHRISTOPHER R. CRERAR
LAURA D. DEATON
DAVID DESANTOS
VICTOR M. DIAZ
BARBARA F. DITTRICH
BRADLER E. GOECKNER
MARSHA A. HANLY
KENNETH L. HOPKINS
JASON D. LAYTON
JASON M. MCGUIRE
LAURA L. MCMULLEN
MICHAEL P. MURRAY
RYAN L. NATIONS
ERIC H. PALMER
LARA A. RHODES
ANDREW SANDERS
SONDRA M. SANTANA
APRIL SCHEUNEMANN
ANGELA Y. STANLEY

ELIZABETH G. VOGELROGERS
TAMMY L. WEINZATL

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT
TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY
UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

DEANGELO ASHBY
ROGER L. BILLINGS
WILLIAM E. BOUCEK
SYLVESTER BROWN, JR.
TIMOTHY A. BROWN
NOEL J. CABRAL III
STUART M. DAY
SHANE C. DIETRICH
RICHARD J. DIXON, JR.
KRISTIAN M. DORAN
ROY M. GARRISON
JONATHAN GRAY
TIMOTHY R. GRIFFIN
ALBERT L. HORNYAK
BRIAN T. JETER
MICHAEL C. JOHNSON
WESLEY P. JOHNSON
BRUCE KONG
SCOTT D. LOGAN
ALEXANDER S. MAITRE
ROBERT S. MAZZARELLA
MICHAEL C. MCCORMACK
JOSHUA H. MCKAY
DAVID A. MCNUTT
JOAQUIN J. MOLINA
JASON T. MORRIS
TROY C. MORSE
JAMES H. MURPHY
MARK J. PEACE
LYNN J. PRIMEAUX
DAVID L. RODDY
CORY D. SCHEMM
MARK SHEFFIELD
PAIGE A. SHERMAN
KADIATOU F. SIDIBE
TISHA D. SMITH
JAMES C. STATLER
SHANE P. STROHL
SHIKINA M. TELLIS
JOHNETTA C. THOMAS
RONNIE D. TRAHAN, JR.
CHRISTOPHER A. WALDRON
JAMES J. WALLS
JASON C. WARNER
LAGENA K. G. YARBROUGH

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT
TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY
UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

DENNIS K. ANDREWS
MAURICE A. BUFORD
CAREY H. CASH
ROBERT R. CHRISTIAN
JON W. CONROE
STEPHEN S. DUESSENBERRY
WAYNE M. HADDAD
WILLIAM N. HAMILTON
PHILIP D. KING
CHARLES L. LUFF
WILLIAM E. MIDDLETON
TIMOTHY R. MOORE
DANIEL C. OWENS
JEFFREY S. PLUMMER
CHARLES M. PUMPHREY
SAMUEL E. RAVELO
ABUHENNA M. SAIFULISLAM
ROBERT A. SPENCER
ROBERT J. VANCE
BRIAN K. WAITE

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT
TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY
UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be commander

ROBERTO M. ALVARADO
JEFFREY D. BRANCHEAU
JAMES E. BROWN
LENN E. CARON
JAY M. CAVNAR
PAUL C. CHAN
JAMES J. H. CHO
MICHAEL D. CRAFTS
SEAN P. DALTON
LANCE M. FLOOD
MARIO M. FORTE
ALEXANDER K. HUTCHISON
MICHAEL P. LEONARD
CHAD O. LORENZANA
JOSHUA B. MALKIN
THOMAS B. MCLEMORE
RAPHAEL A. MIRANDA
MICHAEL P. O'DONNELL
STEPHEN H. PITMAN
RUSSELL C. RANG
MATTHEW C. RIETHMILLER
LAURIE SCOTT
FRANCIS J. STAVISH
JOEL W. VANESSEN
TIMOTHY A. WALLACE
JOSEPH W. YATES

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Monday, July 11, 2011

The House met at noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. HARRIS).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
July 11, 2011.

I hereby appoint the Honorable ANDY HARRIS to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

JOHN A. BOEHNER,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 5, 2011, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 1 hour and each Member other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip limited to 5 minutes each, but in no event shall debate continue beyond 1:50 p.m.

BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LANKFORD) for 5 minutes.

Mr. LANKFORD. Nineteen years ago, when my wife and I married, I was still in school, I was working as much as I could, and she was also working, but we were barely making it. But we made the decision we were not going to run up credit card debt and live beyond our means. We paid our school loans, we tithed to our church, we ate a lot of peanut butter, and we lived simply. As Dave Ramsey says, "We determined to act our wage."

It is a biblical principle for myself and my family. Proverbs 22:7 states: "The borrower is slave to the lender." Proverbs 22 applies to families, and Proverbs 22 applies to nations. If we were living within our means as a Nation, almost all the debate in the last 6 months in this Chamber would have been different.

We've tried every method in the Fed's bag of tricks to protect our interest rate, because if the rate goes up at all, the house of cards falls. We work to manipulate banks, mortgage lending and manufacturing because we must keep revenue up. We carefully manage every relationship worldwide because we need the borrowing liquidity. We pour billions of dollars into the economy that we borrow from future generations because we're afraid this generation will have to make hard choices if we do not keep up the borrow pace. Our economy struggles, which leads Washington regulators to overmanage every sector, which causes even more economic uncertainty.

Our focus has shifted from families to corporate bailouts because we're living beyond our means, and we're trying everything we can to make it work. It's not sustainable. We have to get back in balance.

Capital investment in business and industry is slower because so much of the money that would go toward starting new businesses is actually financing our national debt obligation. There's only a limited amount of money in the world economy at any one moment to subsidize our debt and the debt of other nations around the world. When we consume that money for our debt payments, we remove it from the market.

America is the world leader. Unfortunately, we have led the world in debt and deficit spending, and now it's time we lead the world in how to solve a debt crisis.

You see, I believe we have a debt crisis, not a debt ceiling vote crisis. If we increase the debt ceiling without beginning to solve the debt problem, we did not avert the economic disaster; we accelerated the disaster. I understand we're painted into a corner, and we cannot balance our budget instantly without completely collapsing this fragile economy. I get it. But I also get that we were sent here to make adult choices.

This is a bipartisan problem. We all point fingers at each other, but we all know both parties made promises with no plan to pay for it. So since we know that, why don't we also agree to a bipartisan solution? I've heard a hundred times since I've been here, we need a balanced approach to solving this problem. Well, let me tell you I agree. We do need a balanced approach—a balanced budget amendment approach. That is the first big step to forcing us to get into balance permanently.

The Constitution is not a Republican or a Democrat document. A balanced budget amendment is not a Republican or a Democrat issue. You see, you can't make changes to the Constitution without both parties engaged. But if both parties actually worked together, we can solve this debt crisis for our children and grandchildren.

The last time this body dealt seriously with a balanced budget amendment was 1996. It passed this House with overwhelming bipartisan support, and it failed in the Senate by a single vote. Can you imagine for a moment what our financial condition would be like right now if we'd started balancing our budget during the good economic times of the 1990s and kept that discipline to this present day?

If you want to know the true consequences of that failed balanced budget amendment vote in 1996, point to the financial collapse of 2008, because I believe the financial collapse of 2008 would not have occurred if we had balanced the budget when we did. Even if we did, we would be in a position to better respond to it. We can either learn from that lesson or repeat it. The balanced budget amendment passed the Senate in the 1980s and failed in the House. Then it passed in the nineties in the House and failed in the Senate. This is the moment we will either doom the next generation of Americans to more financial uncertainty or we will solve the problem.

A balanced budget amendment solves the S&P and Moody's rating question because it settles the issue forever that we will live within our means. While this body should be able to make tough choices, we all know full well this body will make the tough choices only when it has to. It has always been that way; it always will be that way. A balanced budget amendment gives future Congresses the gift of a moment each year when they must make tough choices. Let's bring up the amendment.

Let's send it to the States for a vote. It is the ultimate "allow the people to speak" moment. I think Americans get this more than Washington gets this. Forty-nine of our 50 States have a structure in place right now for a balanced budget every single year. They make it work every year. We can too. The only fear from Washington is the inability to spend more money at will and to control the States with our preferences and money.

At the end of this labor, if we birth a balanced budget amendment, all the pain of this process will have been worth it. Let's show the Nation we can work together. Let's solve the debt problem. Let's take up and pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, and then let's get to work in solving our debt crisis.

□ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., □ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m. today.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 7 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 2 p.m.

---

□ 1400

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. POE of Texas) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer:

We give You thanks, O God, for giving us another day. We ask Your blessing upon this assembly and upon all to whom the authority of government is given. We pray that Your spirit of reconciliation and peace, of goodwill and understanding, will prevail on the hearts and in the lives of us all.

Encourage the Members of this House, O God, to use their abilities and talents in ways that bring righteousness to this Nation and to all people. Ever remind them of the needs of the poor, the homeless or forgotten, and those who live without freedom or liberty. May they be instruments of justice for all citizens. May Your spirit live with them, and with each of us, and may Your grace surround us and those we love that in all things we may be the people You would have us be in service to this great Nation.

May all that is done within the people's House this day be for Your greater honor and glory. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKEY) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

HIGHER TAXES KILL JOBS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, sadly, with the unemployment rate rising on Friday, today's Investor's Business Daily's lead editorial is correct: With unemployment now at 9.2 percent and job growth at a standstill, is there anyone not blinded by ideology or rank partnership who can't see that Obama's spend-and-regulate economic plan has been an utter failure?" Citing that the unemployment rate has dipped below 9 percent in only 5 of the President's 29 months in office, the verdict is clear: "No President since the Great Depression can match that record of failure."

On Friday, The Hill proclaimed the President's campaign responds that people won't vote based on the unemployment rate. I believe the American people know better. Even worse, now liberals are pushing harder for tax increases that will kill jobs. Liberals do not understand, as The Lexington County Chronicle explained, people's income belongs to them and does not belong to the government. Tax increases hurt small businesses and kill jobs.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

SUPPORTING ENERGY AND WATER APPROPRIATIONS BILL

(Mrs. BIGGERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2354. I commend the work of my colleagues, Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN and Ranking Member VISCLOSKEY of Energy and Water Development appropriations, for their efforts to balance important energy and infrastructure funding in nuclear energy, the Army Corps of Engineers, and in particular the Office of Science.

Strong funding at DOE is critical for the development of future reactor technologies and licensing for new nuclear and small modular nuclear power. Similarly, healthy funding for the Army Corps of Engineers is vital to our waterway commerce, protection from invasive species and water quality in the Midwest.

Finally, by maintaining our investment in the Office of Science, Congress will preserve our capacity to innovate, enhance our competitive edge in the global economy, and create good American jobs well into the future. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to support the Office of Science.

ENOUGH OF THE BACKROOM DEALS

(Mr. FLEMING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, enough with the backroom dealing on the debt ceiling. The debate has continued for months behind closed doors in the proverbial "smoke-filled room" with nothing to show for the effort. As a congressman, why should I be forced to peruse cable stations and blog sites for information on the discussions—and then be asked to vote for the deal when I have no input and no time to know even what's in it?

Let's pull back the shades and open the window. Let's put the sunlight and fresh air on this discussion. Should we cut spending? Should we reform entitlements? Should we have a balanced budget amendment?

Mr. Speaker, let Congress do its job and put the debate right here on the floor. Let's do this in the people's House for everyone to see. This will be the way the people and their choice come to fruition.

DON'T TAX JOB CREATORS

(Mr. HARRIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, another week, and another week that our fiscal problems in this country are unsolved. We saw the jobs report—18,000 jobs created when we need 350,000 jobs created in order to get our unemployment rate back down to 5 percent. And who can blame our job creators when all the talk in Washington now appears to be about how we can raise taxes on those job creators?

I don't care whether we call it expenditures in our tax code or revenues, what they are are taxes on our job creators, and our job creators have responded by not creating jobs. Mr. Speaker, what they want is they want to know that Washington understands how to solve this problem. They want to know that we know that we can cut our spending, we can cap our future spending.

Mr. Speaker, it's time for a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Forty-nine of the 50 States have it. We should have it here in Washington so that we never have to face again the question of how high to raise our debt ceiling and how far to put our children in debt.

GAINESVILLE, GEORGIA—BEST CITY

(Mr. GRAVES of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GRAVES of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Gainesville, Georgia, for earning a spot in the Top 100 "Best Cities for Job Growth in 2011."

This award is a testament to the small business owners and the entrepreneurs in Gainesville who work hard every day to innovate and to grow despite the pressures put on them from

Washington and this challenging economic climate. To make the Top 100, the city of Gainesville was measured on recent growth as well as growth over the last 5 years.

Driving the success were the entrepreneurs who created 34 new businesses or grew existing ones. They collectively brought in 1,140 new jobs to Gainesville and nearly $250 million in capital investment. I'm proud to represent Gainesville in Congress and proud of the hard work of my neighbors in Georgia. Today, the city of Gainesville stands a little bit taller because of the hard work of the entrepreneurs in north Georgia.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the further consideration of H.R. 2354, and that I may include tabular material on the same.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2012

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GRAVES of Georgia). Pursuant to House Resolution 337 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2354.

□ 1410

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2354) making appropriations for energy and water development and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, with Mr. POE of Texas in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Friday, July 8, 2011, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule.

During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment who has caused it to be printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 2354

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for energy and water development and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2012, and for other purposes, namely:

TITLE I—CORPS OF ENGINEERS—CIVIL DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS—CIVIL

The following appropriations shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for authorized civil functions of the Department of the Army pertaining to rivers and harbors, flood and storm damage reduction, shore protection, aquatic ecosystem restoration, and related efforts.

INVESTIGATIONS

For expenses necessary when authorized by law for the collection and study of basic information pertaining to river and harbor, flood and storm damage reduction, shore protection, aquatic ecosystem restoration, and related needs; for surveys and detailed studies and plans and specifications of proposed river and harbor, flood and storm damage reduction, shore protection, and aquatic ecosystem restoration projects and related efforts prior to construction; for restudy of authorized projects; and for miscellaneous investigations and, when authorized by law, surveys and detailed studies and plans and specifications of projects prior to construction, $104,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That except as provided in section 101, the amounts made available under this paragraph shall be expended as authorized by law for the programs, projects and activities specified in the text and table under this heading in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives to accompany this Act.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KING OF IOWA

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 3, line 5, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $1,000,000) (increased by $1,000,000)".

The CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, this amendment that decreases a line item by a million dollars and then increases it by a million dollars is the parliamentarily approved method by which we direct some intent into this appropriation legislation that we have.

As a lot of the world knows by now, and as I viewed from this morning as it was getting light as we took off from the Omaha airport, we have water that is a mile to as wide as 11 miles wide, and that's just getting to Missouri, and it may well be wider downstream Missouri. The Missouri River itself, which flooded in 1952, and in that year it was the last flood they hoped for all time. They built the Pick-Sloan program. That is six dams in the Upper Missouri River. The Corps of Engineers' construction of those was designed to prevent a flood of similar magnitude of 1952.

What has happened is that in 1952— for awhile this year they had the largest amount of water to flow down the Missouri River—came down in 1952 in April, and that was 13.2 million acre-feet of water. In May of this year, coming out of the Missouri River, it was 10.5 million acre-feet of water. And one might think we can deal with that. Well, we could not.

We are flooded, and this water is going to stay up now for another month or longer. And we got the records from June of this year, and that became not 13.2 but 13.8 million acre-feet, more water in a single month than to ever come down the Missouri River since we have been keeping records. And, Mr. Chairman, that is just 2 months, and this continues. This year will be the largest volume of water to go down the Missouri River since we have been keeping records.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

We don't have a copy of the gentleman's amendment. If we are going to start out this way without cooperating—

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I might point out I didn't yield, but I would be happy to yield to the gentleman and hopefully get you a copy.

Mr. DICKS. We would like to have it.

Mr. KING of Iowa. I will personally deliver it to you if this version is okay.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Iowa controls the time.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

This year, we will see more water come down the Missouri River than ever before in recorded history. And the result is the Corps of Engineers is releasing 160,000 cubic feet per second from Gavins Point Dam. That is the lowest one of the six dams. What it brings about is massive flooding all of the way down the river for a sustained period of time.

Now I'm not here to take issue with the design, the engineering, or the management of this river; but what this amendment does is it takes a million dollars out and puts a million dollars back in. What I'm asking is to direct the Corps of Engineers to conduct a new study and come back and let us know how they would have had to manage this river in the event that they had been able to see this massive amount of water coming, how they would have been able to protect not only all of the people downstream from each of these reservoirs, but also the additional component of that is although a year ago last May we had record flooding in the tributaries downstream from Gavins Point, the dam that is the lowest. We need to be able to look at two catastrophic events. All of this snow runoff and rain that we got, particularly in Montana in the mountains, coupled with the record rainfall coming down the tributaries from below Gavins Point Dam that we saw a year ago last May, those two laid on top of each other, how do they have to manage the reservoirs for the purposes of protecting all of that valuable real estate and infrastructure.

My constituents have spent millions of dollars to try to protect themselves. They built miles of levee, watching the water come down the river. They have hauled dirt with water coming up on one side of the levee. This amendment urges and actually directs the Corps of Engineers to commence with that study. And we will have more information as it unfolds. I urge its adoption.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, we have not had a chance to really study the implications of the gentleman's amendment.

First of all, we would like to extend our sympathy to the gentleman, his constituents, and to many Members of Congress and those affected by the devastation and, in many cases, loss of life, loss of income and livelihood. But we are not quite sure what $1 million in and $1 million out means, and we need a little more time to further investigate.

Would the gentleman be willing to work with us to accomplish this objective without moving ahead on the amendment? Would you be willing to work with the committee, the ranking member and yours truly?

Mr. KING of Iowa. If the gentleman would yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Yes.

Mr. KING of Iowa. I think the chairman has made a significant point here. Sometimes we are playing catch-up. I would like to have had the lead work done so that this information was out in front of the majority and the minority. I think you've seen the water coming down the river. But I would ask this, that if we are willing to work on this, Democrats and Republicans, to bring about a review of the master manual management, then I would ask unanimous consent to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. We are highly sympathetic to working with the gentleman and look forward to working with him to address this crisis and what he is talking about, future crises and devastation.

Mr. VISLOSKY. Will the gentleman yield for a moment?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. VISLOSKY. I would be happy to work with the chairman, but I would note, we are on page 3 of the bill and would hope that as we proceed today and into the future, that we have advance notice of amendments. So I would direct my comment in this case to the gentleman from Iowa and those who may be thinking about offering additional amendments. But I would be happy to work with the chairman on this issue.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I thank the gentlemen.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the amendment.

The CHAIR. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

CONSTRUCTION

(INCLUDING RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

For expenses necessary for the construction of river and harbor, flood and storm damage reduction, shore protection, aquatic ecosystem restoration, and related projects authorized by law; for conducting detailed studies and plans and specifications of such projects (including those involving participation by States, local governments, or private groups) authorized or made eligible for selection by law (but such detailed studies and plans and specifications shall not constitute a commitment of the Government to construction), $1,615,941,000, to remain available until expended; of which such sums as are necessary to cover the Federal share of construction costs for facilities under the Dredged Material Disposal Facilities program shall be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund as authorized by the Water Resources Development Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-303); and of which such sums as are necessary to cover one-half of the costs of construction, replacement, rehabilitation, and expansion of inland waterways projects (including only Olmsted Lock and Dam, Ohio River, Illinois and Kentucky; Emsworth Locks and Dam, Ohio River, Pennsylvania; Lock and Dams 2, 3, and 4, Monongahela River, Pennsylvania; and Lock and Dam 27, Mississippi River, Illinois) shall be derived from the Inland Waterways Trust Fund: Provided, That of the unobligated balances from prior year appropriations available under this heading, $50,000,000 is rescinded: Provided further, That no amounts may be rescinded from amounts that were designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget or the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended: Provided further, That except as provided in section 101, the amounts made available under this paragraph shall be expended as authorized by law for the programs, projects, and activities specified in the text and table under this heading in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives to accompany this Act.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 3, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $133,822,000)".

Page 6, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $51,759,000)".

Page 24, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $92,790,500)".

Page 24, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $92,790,500)".

□ 1420

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is relatively straightforward. It ensures that two important Army Corps of Engineers accounts—construction and operation maintenance—be funded at last year's levels. I certainly understand that the committee was challenged by the allocation it was allotted, and that was $1 billion below fiscal year 2011 and nearly $6 billion less than the President's request.

Despite that, I appreciate that Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN has added $195 million to the President's budget request for the Army Corps of Engineers. He is to be commended for that. Unfortunately, I think that Congress can and must do better. According to the Army Corps, we have 59 ports and harbors that carry about 90 percent of our economic activity in this country—2.2 billion tons of cargo and $1.4 trillion in commerce.

In testimony before the Senate committee last year, an official from the United States Chamber of Commerce discussed the importance of our ports, inland and coastal waterways to America's businesses. This is what the official said:

The business community, from ports to barge operators to agricultural exporters, depends on a marine transportation system to move goods to domestic and international markets. They are also important parts of the Nation's economic engine and are drivers for job creation in America. Maintaining our Federal channels to their authorized and required dimensions is a critical part of ensuring that this commerce can continue uninterrupted.

Yet we continue to have a significant dredging backlog, and I am concerned that this bill's allocation for the Army Corps is insufficient to appropriately address that backlog. It doesn't just affect commerce; it impacts people's lives very intimately as well. I hear from constituents in my district, particularly those in Newburyport and the Plum Island part of Newbury, who tell me that their homes are quite literally about to fall into the ocean unless the Army Corps can rehabilitate a jetty that hasn't been repaired in 40 years. That's not an uncommon story on our waterways.

The least we can do for these families is to ensure that the important Army Corps programs are funded at last year's levels. The subcommittee allocation makes that incredibly difficult for Members to address, and I understand that. Taking care of perceived deficiencies in a bill are going to need attention. I expect there will be some concerns, which I am perfectly willing to address in my further comments.

In anticipation of what might be brought up, either Congress can fund these important Army Corps functions at last year's levels by making modest reductions to two Department of Energy programs that, when combined, receive more than $1 billion in this bill or Congress can choose to sustain the level of commitment to the Army Corps and slightly reduce the Department of Energy's fossil fuel energy research and development and the nuclear energy programs.

I think it is a relatively easy call. For my constituents, it certainly is. Congress should be on the side of increasing its investments and repairing and modernizing its water infrastructure and putting people back to work, so support for this amendment would ensure that we don't diminish our commitment to those critical Army Corps functions.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I continue to reserve my point of order.

The CHAIR. The gentleman continues to reserve his point of order.

The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I rise in opposition to the amendment.

I share in the gentleman's support for smart investments in our Nation's water resources infrastructure and in the good work of the Army Corps of Engineers. I well understand on the committee the economic benefits of spending money on these needs. At the same time, we cannot ignore the importance of addressing our Nation's deficit problem and the other priorities of the bill, namely national defense and scientific innovation.

The underlying bill balances these important goals, in part, by reducing the construction account from the fiscal year 2011 enacted level but not by nearly as much as that account was reduced in the President's own fiscal year 2012 budget request. With this level of funding, we are working to reduce the deficit, funding our national defense needs, supporting scientific innovation, and at the same time allowing the Corps to continue progress on the most critical water resources investments.

We must preserve the careful balance that this bill strikes. Therefore, I must oppose the amendment and urge my colleagues to vote "no."

I yield back the balance of my time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to assert my point of order.

The CHAIR. The gentleman may state his point of order.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment proposes to amend portions of the bill not yet read.

The amendment may not be considered en bloc under clause 2(f) of rule XXI because the amendment proposes to increase the level of outlays in the bill.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The CHAIR. Does any other Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

The Chair is prepared to rule.

To be considered en bloc pursuant to clause 2(f) of rule XXI, an amendment must not propose to increase the levels of budget authority or outlays in the bill. Because the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts proposes a net increase in the level of outlays in the bill, as argued by the chairman of the Subcommittee on Appropriations, it may not avail itself of clause 2(f) to address portions of the bill not yet read.

The point of order is sustained. The amendment is not in order.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TURNER

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 3, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $118,400,000)".

Page 6, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $123,313,000)".

Page 33, line 20, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $129,353,000)".

Page 34, line 20, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $71,475,000)".

Page 35, line 10, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $40,885,000)".

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Chairman, I intend to offer this amendment and then request unanimous consent for its withdrawal.

This amendment would restore funding to the most critically and historically underfunded portions of this bill: the defense activities of the Department of Energy as carried out by the semiautonomous National Nuclear Security Administration, the NNSA. I thought it was important to offer this amendment so that the record of the discussion of this bill could focus also on the importance of funding shortfalls that are occurring in this bill.

The amendment would restore $241 million to NNSA defense activities, our nuclear weapons activities, with an offset from two water project catch-all funding lines, in the Corps of Engineers' account that were not requested by the President. This restoration is critically important to revitalize and modernize our nuclear security enterprise.

I encourage my colleagues to consider these charts that depict the cuts in this bill to the vitally important national security programs:

The FY12 Defense appropriations bill, as reported by the Appropriations Committee, cut Department of Defense spending by 1 percent below the President's budget request, the smaller amount. The FY12 Energy and Water appropriations bill before us cuts funding for the defense activities of the NNSA by 10 percent, including a 7 percent cut for nuclear weapons activities and nuclear modernization.

Again, there is only a 1 percent cut that is occurring as policy to DOD, but as you can see, NNSA, which is a defense activity, is being cut by 10, our nuclear weapons activities by seven. Meanwhile, the energy and water bill increases spending on water projects through the Corps of Engineers by over 4 percent of the budget requests, and that is leaving aside the $1 billion energy supplemental for water projects to address funding on the Mississippi River.

The problem is that nuclear weapons spending is considered part of the Energy and Water appropriations bill instead of Defense appropriations. The funds cut from NNSA support critically needed nuclear modernization efforts that are strongly supported by people on both sides of the aisle, on both sides of this Capitol, and by the administration.

I would like to yield at this point to the gentleman from Louisiana, Dr. FLEMING.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the amendment being offered by the gentleman from Ohio, which would restore a modest 20 percent of over $1.1 billion in funding this bill cuts from the defense activities of the Department of Energy, which ensures the safety, security and reliability of our Nation's nuclear weapons.

□ 1430

The FY12 Energy and Water appropriations bill sharply reduces overall funding for the National Nuclear Security Administration from the President's budget request by more than 10 percent, or $1.1 billion, while increasing funding for Army Corps of Engineers water projects by 4 percent above the budget request. This is in addition to the $1 billion plus-up in emergency supplemental disaster relief added to the bill for the Mississippi River flooding.

As a Member who represents Louisiana, I can appreciate how critical funding for the Army Corps of Engineers is, but we have to consider those priorities in light of the vital need to maintain our national security which since the end of World War II has rested on the strength of our strategic nuclear deterrent.

The reductions set forth in this measure would significantly impact NNSA's ability to implement the goals and policies established in the April 2010 Nuclear Posture Review and our Nation's nuclear modernization plans. Most concerning is a $498 million cut that this bill makes to the Weapons Activity account which provides the necessary technical support to ensure safety, security and effectiveness of the U.S. nuclear deterrent.

This bill also places at risk the timely replacement of Cold War-era nuclear infrastructure, specifically the construction of the Nation's plutonium capability at Los Alamos—the Chemistry and Metallurgy Replacement Facility, which is cut by $100 million out of the $300 million necessary for the FY12 activities.

Mr. Chairman, at a time when major defense spending cuts are on the horizon, we can ill afford to undercut our Nation's last line of defense, which has always been our nuclear deterrent.

I strongly urge support of this amendment.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Chair, this House has three times previously confirmed our commitment to fully funding the NNSA activities. I would urge that as we go through the process of this bill that this funding be restored.

I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Chair, I rise in support of my colleague's amendment to restore funding to the defense activities of the National Nuclear Security Administration (NNSA). In May, the House overwhelmingly passed—by a vote of 322 to 96—the Fiscal Year 2012 National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA). The NDAA recognized the critical need to shore up our nuclear security enterprise and authorized full funding for NNSA.

Unfortunately, the appropriations bill before us reduces the NNSA budget by $1.1 billion from the level authorized by the NDAA. The funding level authorized by the NDAA was a key component of a deal between the Administration and Congress. This deal would finally, after decades of neglect, reinvigorate and modernize our nuclear security enterprise to ensure the safety, security, and reliability of our nuclear weapons in exchange for the nuclear force reductions contained in the New START treaty. The 10% NNSA budget cut proposed by this bill greatly endangers this modernization, and reneges on this deal.

I recognize that the offset in this amendment is difficult for many of my colleagues. Unfortunately, there are no easy offsets within the energy and water bill.

Through my committee, Armed Services, the House authorizes all defense funding—both for the Department of Defense and the NNSA. We must recognize that NNSA is defense spending, and treat it as such. As Secretary Gates told my committee earlier this year, NNSA's work is "incredibly important" and is, "intimately tied to our national security and should be regarded as part of the security component."

I strongly encourage my colleagues to support national defense, and restore funding for NNSA.

The CHAIR. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 3, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $133,822,000)".

Page 6, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $51,759,000)".

Page 24, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $133,822,000)".

Page 24, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $92,790,500)".

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, this is a revised amendment that deals with the objection raised by the chairman on the previous amendment that was proposed on this matter. It still gets to the fundamental issue here, that we need to restore the Army Corps of Engineer budgets here through the Construction and Operation and Maintenance accounts to the point of at least where it was in fiscal year 2011.

We have serious issues confronting our economy. This is a way to make sure that the Corps has the resources it needs to deal with its numerous issues—our ports, dealing with our economy, moving the cargo, and essentially putting people to work, and also protecting the homes and the welfare of people that live along ways that need dredging or that need jetties repaired that haven't been repaired for decade after decade.

While I understand that the chairman had a difficult role and opportunity was limited due to the amount of money that was allocated for him and this committee, and I respect what he tried to do, simply speaking, I think we have the choices to make here, and those choices are to protect the interests of people, to make sure that we get people back to work, to give the Army Corps the resources that it needs, at the same time reducing other accounts by a rather minimal amount so that we effect our purposes without causing too much destruction to programs that other people may favor.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve my point of order.

The CHAIR. The point of order is reserved.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment basically for the same reasons I did for his earlier amendment. We worked hard to preserve a careful balance that our bill strikes, but I appreciate his effort. We recognize his commitment to this type of work; and when we have a better allocation in the future, maybe we will be able to be of more assistance.

I continue to reserve my point of order.

The CHAIR. The gentleman continues to reserve.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Indiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. VISCLOSKEY. Mr. Chairman, I do not know if a point or order will be insisted upon, I do not know if it will be prevailed upon, but I would want to make a comment relative to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

I agree with everything that Mr. TIERNEY has said—and more—during committee and during the general debate on this floor. I mentioned that in the 2009 report card on America's infrastructure, the American Society of Civil Engineers estimated an investment shortfall of $2.2 trillion that is necessary to bring our Nation's infrastructure up to good condition.

Additionally, the engineering society gave our Nation's dams, levees and inland waterways grades of D or D minus.

I want to use my time because we have had a lot of discussion—and I have joined in that discussion—about the inadequate allocation that the subcommittee has been given.

I would also point out that there is another failure, and that is the budget request itself. And the subcommittee has taken note of that on page 13 of their report by stating that the budget request by the President represents a level of investment, as with previous budget requests, that is not reflective of the Corps' importance to the national economy, jobs, or our international competitiveness. And further, the committee urges the administration to take into account while developing a special request the extraordinary economic benefits of the projects historically funded in the Corps accounts, which, again, jibes with exactly the points that the gentleman from Massachusetts has said.

So I am in agreement with the gentleman. This is woefully inadequate. The administration bears a blame here as well. But I also must add my voice to the chairman's and respectfully oppose the amendment simply because we are in a very tight situation with this bill and we prefer that the amendment not be adopted, despite the relevance of it and the correctness of the gentleman's position from Massachusetts.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my point of order.

The CHAIR. The point of order is withdrawn.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. RIVERA

Mr. RIVERA. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 3, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $32,724,000)".

Page 23, line 4, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $32,724,000)".

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RIVERA. I wish to thank Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN and Ranking Member VISCLOSKY, along with committee staff, for crafting this legislation.

The Florida Everglades is one of our Nation's greatest treasures. The Everglades' combination of abundant moisture, rich soils and subtropical temperatures support a vast array of species. However, flood control and reclamation efforts in the 1940s and 1950s manipulated the Everglades' hydrology, redirecting fresh water destined for the Everglades out to sea. The ecosystem has changed because it now receives less water during the dry season and more during the rainy season. It is also harmed by degraded water quality, pollutants from urban areas, and agricultural runoff, including pesticides and excess nutrients such as phosphorous and nitrogen which have harmed the plant and animal populations.

□ 1440

The program under the Corps of Engineers' South Florida Ecosystem Restoration will capture freshwater destined for the sea, the lifeblood of the Everglades, and direct it back to the ecosystem to revitalize it and protect plant and wildlife.

However, Everglades restoration is not only about the ecosystem restoration. It is also about boosting Florida's economy. According to a study by Atlanta-based Mather Economics, boosting strained water supplies associated with restoration efforts will save local water treatment facilities $13 billion in the long term. It will provide flood control for south Florida and improve local home values by an estimated $16 billion. Furthermore, a healthier water supply, which will contribute to better fishing grounds, will have a huge positive impact on tourism traffic, which is a key aspect of Florida's economy.

Everglades restoration is a huge priority for the Florida congressional delegation, and I respectfully ask the committee and chairman for their continued support in protecting and restoring this great natural resource and economic engine.

At this time, I would yield to the gentleman from New Jersey, the chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I appreciate the gentleman from Florida yielding.

I appreciate Mr. RIVERA's passion for the Everglades restoration, and that of the entire Florida delegation, which continues to move forward in this bill. The committee dedicated 8 percent of the entire Corps construction budget to the Everglades, making it one of the three largest allocations in title I.

So I say to the gentleman that we will continue to work with the Florida delegation on this important issue, knowing how committed they are to it. And when we have additional resources, we hope to be able to consider them.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RIVERA. I yield to the gentleman from Washington, the ranking member on the committee.

Mr. DICKS. The restoration of the Florida Everglades has been one of our five national priorities. And I, too, want to compliment the gentleman for his support. We have moved forward with the Tamiami bridge and other important projects. This is a program of national significance, and I concur with the chairman.

Mr. RIVERA. Reclaiming my time, thank you, Mr. Chairman, for your commitment. I look forward to working with you and the rest of my colleagues in a bipartisan fashion to achieve the goal of restoring water flow in these areas.

I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The CHAIR. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Mr. Chairman, I rise to express deep disappointment and concern about the severe proposed cut in this bill to the Federal Everglades Ecosystem Restoration effort.

The Energy and Water bill before us today slashes $32 million from the administration's request. These times of tight budgets certainly call for belt-tightening, but cutting 20 percent from the requested amount for Everglades restoration is draconian. It is wildly disproportionate to the more modest 3 percent cut in the bill to the overall fiscal year 12 Corps of Engineers construction fund from fiscal year 11 levels.

I thank my colleague Congressman DAVID RIVERA for joining me and other members of the Florida delegation to urge that full funding be restored to this important national priority, as Mr. DICKS just mentioned. I hope we can work together with Chairman FRELINGHUYSEN to make this happen during conference with the Senate.

To be sure, Everglades restoration is a priority the Florida congressional delegation takes very seriously, and we have fought for adequate funding every year. Continued investment in Everglades restoration protects our water supply, benefits key job-creating industries, and enhances our quality of life.

A recent study by Mather Economics, commissioned by the Everglades Foundation, showed that there is a 4:1 return on investment for Everglades restoration projects. The Everglades is the source of water for millions of residents and visitors in south Florida. It is a haven for fishing, hunting, and boating activities and is home to scores of endangered species. There is no other ecosystem in the world like our Everglades, a true national treasure and important resource.

I would ask the chairman of the subcommittee to clarify certain language in the committee's report that we find deeply disturbing. I hope this language does not signal the committee's intent to deemphasize the importance of Everglades restoration in the future. In particular, the language refers to an inability to sustain funding levels and seems to say that the committee views Everglades funding to be inequitable, as if the Everglades has been receiving too much somehow.

I hope I am interpreting the language incorrectly. I hope the committee is not announcing that the Everglades is somehow being deemed as not being a national priority and will not continue to be singled out for cuts in funding from now on. Because, make no mistake about it, the Everglades is a national treasure and has been a national priority, as Ranking Member DICKS pointed out, for the Federal Government since we created the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan in 2000.

Eleven years ago, Members of Congress from both sides of the aisle and from every corner of this great Nation came together with the executive branch and partnered with the State of Florida to embark on the largest ecosystem restoration effort on Earth. We understood then that it would not be easy, or inexpensive, but it had to be done to restore this unique ecosystem. The plan spans three decades, has over 60 component projects, and will take resolve and a sustained commitment to see this project through to its completion.

The Everglades Restoration Plan was spearheaded by esteemed Senators from around the Nation and both political parties—Republican Bob Smith from New Hampshire, Republican Dave Hobson of Ohio, Democrat MAX BAUCUS from Montana, and, of course, Florida's own Senators Connie Mack and Bob Graham.

Congressman E. Clay Shaw said it perfectly right here on this floor during passage of the restoration plan a decade ago when he said:

"Mr. Speaker, it is remarkable to have this broad a cross section of Americans supporting legislation on any single issue. But protection of the Everglades is a national priority because most Americans speak of this national treasure in the same breath as the redwood forests, the Mississippi River, Old Faithful, the Appalachian Trail, or the Grand Canyon.”

I couldn't agree more; and Presidents Clinton, Bush, and now President Obama share this commitment.

In 2001, George W. Bush said:

“This area needs our protection, and I am here to join with your Governor in the cause of preserving and protecting the Florida Everglades. For its part, the Federal Government carries important responsibilities and stewardship. It is not enough to regulate and dictate from afar. To preserve places like this, we must bring to our work a new spirit of respect and cooperation.”

Again, I couldn't agree more.

History is important. So are the words that we use or do not use. That is why I am deeply disappointed that the chairman has refused so far to state publicly that Everglades restoration is a national priority. I would note that the chairman, speaking on the Energy and Water bill for fiscal year 05, stood here on June 24, 2004, and referred to his own local port and harbor dredging and deepening project as a “national priority.”

Well, having several ports in south Florida, I would agree on the economic significance of navigation infrastructure. But surely the Everglades, a unique national treasure, rises to at least the same level. We need to look beyond our own State borders and districts when we shape our priorities, as our predecessors did. I hope the chairman will see fit to stand with us now and recommit to Everglades restoration as a national priority.

I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GRAVES OF MISSOURI

Mr. GRAVES of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 3, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert “(reduced by $1,750,000).”

Page 6, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert “(increased by $1,000,000).”

The CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GRAVES of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, basically what I'm trying to do here is to point out the absurdity and misalignment of priorities which have become clear in this appropriations bill.

I live along the Missouri River in Missouri, and we've had families that have been inundated by the flooding that has taken place this year with no real end in sight, to be quite honest with you. This underlying bill provides $73 million for the Missouri River Recovery Program which is used to fund habitat creation projects. Unfortunately, the underlying bill only provides slightly more than $6 million for the maintenance of the levees all the way from Sioux City, Iowa, to the mouth of the Missouri, where it meets up with the Mississippi. So essentially we are spending nearly 12 times more to buy land for the betterment of fish and birds than we are to protect farmers, businesses, and homes that are being flooded right now.

This year, many levees in Missouri have been breached and overtopped as a result of the amounts of water and the mismanagement of the river, and many people in my district have been evacuated and will remain evacuated for months, in some cases. The President has issued an emergency disaster declaration for parts of Missouri, and yet here we are spending, again, $73 million for fish and wildlife and a mere $6 million for the maintenance of these levees.

While I believe conservation is important, we should not overlook what it is we sometimes sacrifice to achieve conservation. In this case, we are sacrificing the livelihoods of businesses and farmers and are destroying homes.

□ 1450

Again, my amendment just simply transfers money from the construction account to the operations and maintenance account. The intent is just to reduce funding in one and increase that funding in the other. With that, I would urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in reluctant opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I am very sympathetic to those that have been devastated by floods in Missouri and in other States across the Nation. It's a very personal thing for many Members of Congress who look to their congressional districts and see the loss of life, and livelihoods, and jobs, and devastation to family farms and to small towns.

One of the things we did in our bill of course, and I am sure the gentleman would recognize this, we came up with a billion dollars of emergency aid, which hopefully will be of assistance. I know he doesn't speak of that in this amendment. But certainly all Members of Congress, on both sides of the aisle, are committed to help those whose lives have been unalterably changed because of the devastation.

My concern with his amendment is that the Corps has said this construction funding is necessary to avoid jeopardy under the Endangered Species Act. If the river system jeopardizes species, it could have great effect on the operations of the river. So speaking to my earlier point, we want to be helpful, but we also look to the Corps for some direction on this point. As a consequence, I oppose his amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Indiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Chairman, I would join in the chairman's remarks, and emphasize the word “reluctantly,” because I do understand the devastation that has been suffered. I would emphasize for the record that the chairman recognized the tragedies that have occurred, and had an amendment in committee to have a billion dollars set aside.

Earlier in the process, we had essentially about a billion dollars also transferred from the Energy and Water appropriation bill to the Homeland Security bill for various similar purposes. There is no denying the emergency. But as I have said on more than one occasion during the debate of this issue, it is time we as an institution have the intestinal fortitude to understand we have natural disasters. We have people who have lost their lives. We have people who are suffering and have lost property. We need, in a deliberate, thoughtful fashion, to set those moneys aside as opposed to, if you would, moving moneys from accounts to take care of these emergencies.

So I do understand also looking ahead that the ultimate cost of the tragedy the gentleman's constituents and others have suffered is probably going to exceed the moneys that have been set aside in this bill, and do hope, again, institutionally, that we address that problem. So I understand the motive, agree with the principle that is espoused, but again would have to reluctantly join in opposition to the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GRAVES).

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. GRAVES of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri will be postponed.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

MISSISSIPPI RIVER AND TRIBUTARIES

For expenses necessary for flood damage reduction projects and related efforts in the Mississippi River alluvial valley below Cape Girardeau, Missouri, as authorized by law, $210,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which such sums as are necessary to cover the Federal share of eligible operation and maintenance costs for inland harbors shall be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund: Provided, That except as provided in section 101, the amounts made available under this paragraph shall be expended as authorized by law for the programs, projects, and activities specified in the text and table under this heading in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives to accompany this Act.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

For expenses necessary for the operation, maintenance, and care of existing river and harbor, flood and storm damage reduction, aquatic ecosystem restoration, and related projects authorized by law; providing security for infrastructure owned or operated by the Corps of Engineers, including administrative buildings and laboratories; maintaining harbor channels provided by a State, municipality, or other public agency that serve essential navigation needs of general commerce, when authorized by law; surveying and charting northern and northwestern lakes and connecting waters; clearing and straightening channels; and removing obstructions to navigation, $2,366,465,000, to remain available until expended, of which such sums as are necessary to cover the Federal share of eligible operation and maintenance costs for coastal harbors and channels and for inland harbors shall be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund; of which such sums as become available from the special account for the Corps of Engineers established by the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965 (16 U.S.C. 4601-6a(i)) shall be derived from that account for resource protection, research, interpretation, and maintenance activities related to resource protection in the areas at which outdoor recreation is available; and of which such sums as become available from fees collected under section 217 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-303) shall be used to cover the cost of operation and maintenance of the dredged material disposal facilities for which such fees have been collected: Provided, That 1 percent of the total amount of funds provided for each of the programs, projects or activities funded under this heading shall not be allocated to a field operating activity prior to the beginning of the fourth quarter of the fiscal year and shall be available for use by the Chief of Engineers to fund such emergency activities as the Chief of Engineers determines to be necessary and appropriate, and that the Chief of Engineers shall allocate during the fourth quarter any remaining funds which have not been used for emergency activities proportionally in accordance with the amounts provided for the programs, projects or activities: Provided further, That except as provided in section 101, the amounts made available under this paragraph shall be expended as authorized by law for the programs, projects, and activities specified in the text and table under this heading in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives to accompany this Act.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SCALISE

Mr. SCALISE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 6, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert "(increased by $6,360,000)".

Page 8, line 16, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $6,360,000)".

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The CHAIR. A point of order is reserved.

The gentleman from Louisiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCALISE. Mr. Chairman, this is a bipartisan amendment, worked on with Mr. RICHMOND and others, and it deals with dredging. You know, we've seen over the last few months a shift in the Corps of Engineers' policy. In years past, they've always reprogrammed millions of dollars, in many cases tens of millions of dollars, from other areas within their agency because they inadequately had initially funded dredging of our waterways. And of course, this is the lifeblood to moving commerce throughout not only much of our country, but as we export to other countries throughout the world.

For whatever reason, the Corps made an internal decision earlier this year that they would no longer do that reprogramming, which jeopardizes much of the movements that we have along our waterways. This amendment is revenue-neutral. It doesn't add anything to the cost of the bill. But what it does is it takes money out of the general administration account, which actually saw an increase this year, moves it over into the general operations and maintenance section of the bill so that it allows us at least additional revenues to go and properly dredge our waterways.

Why is this important? Number one, it's a critical jobs issue. Because as we just saw a few weeks ago, prior to some of the record levels of flooding, Mr. Chairman, we saw they had to roll back, just in my region of the New Orleans area, they had to roll back some of the depth that they were allowed to transport on the Mississippi River. This cost about $1 million per vessel, added costs to move commerce throughout our country. Not only does that cost jobs, but it also increases the cost of goods for Americans who buy those products. But it also increases the costs of exporting. And it makes our American companies less competitive in the world.

And of course right now this Congress, the President, we're working together to try to reach trade agreements with Colombia, Panama, and South Korea. And I support more trade, free trade, the ability for more American employers to be able to sell their goods throughout the world, to actually create more jobs in America. But if we're going to do that, we've got to have the proper dredging going on to allow for that commerce along our waterways.

So if the Corps is allowed to go through with their policy of no more reprogramming, we know from what they've said, we know from what history's shown us that in years past they didn't have adequate amounts in their operations and maintenance for dredging, and so they have reprogrammed.

Every year for years now that's been going on. And they've said this year they're no longer going to do it. So we would be sitting in a situation where we have to wait until some of our waterways are shut down or until you saw vessels grounded, like we just saw a few weeks ago just in the New Orleans area because of their lack of dredging. And then we would lose more jobs, we would lose our ability to export more.

So what we are saying is, there is additional money in this fund, in the general administration fund. We know this is a looming problem if we don't address it. So let's move it somewhere where it will actually help us create jobs and remain competitive. And hopefully as those trade agreements move through Congress, where we now have more opportunities if those trade agreements move through to trade even more and to create more jobs in America, then our ability to move those goods through our waterways would still be there. Because they won't if we are not properly dredging our waterways. So this amendment addresses that problem. And it's a problem we know is coming because the Corps themselves have said this is looming. So let's address it head on. Let's not wait until it's a crisis before we do something about it. That's why I bring the amendment, again an amendment with bipartisan support.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve my point of order.

The CHAIR. The point of order is reserved.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Unfortunately and reluctantly, I must oppose the gentleman from Louisiana's amendment.

□ 1500

Mr. Chairman, I share the gentleman's concern for sufficiently maintaining our waterways as necessary to realizing the national economic benefits of efficient cargo transportation.

Representing, as I do, part of New Jersey, which is highly dependent on the Port of New York and New Jersey, I am well aware that navigation and money for navigation and dredging is absolutely essential, and I am highly sympathetic to the gentleman from Louisiana for all of the historical things that have impacted Louisiana's economy and so many people down there.

In fact, a major factor in developing the recommendation for the Army Corps of Engineers' budget this year was to focus proportionately more funds on the projects and activities that contribute most to the economy and job creation, including dredging and other navigation improvements.

The underlying bill does not include, as we are aware, any congressional earmarks. Oftentimes these issues were dealt with through the earmark process. Rather, our bill provides the Army Corps of Engineers the flexibility to allocate programmatic funds to those navigation and flood control projects that it deems most critical, and we have the ability as individual Members of Congress to help the Corps focus on what we feel is most critical for their attention.

The Corps is required to report to Congress in our bill, within 45 days of enactment, on which projects were deemed most critical and why. Navigation needs are not the only important issues addressed in our bill, however. Increased funding for this programmatic line even further would upset the careful balance of priorities that I have spoken of earlier, including national defense, which is a major component of why we even have a Department of Energy, and nuclear safety, energy innovation and, of course, the great work of the Army Corps, the water resources needs.

So, therefore, reluctantly I must oppose the gentleman's amendment.

I withdraw my point of order.

The CHAIR. The gentleman withdraws his point of order.

Mr. RICHMOND. I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Louisiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RICHMOND. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment of my colleague from across the aisle, in fact, my colleague from across town and our great State of Louisiana.

