PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 1248 would reauthorize and make key improvements in programs created by the “Violence Against Women Act of 1994” (title IV of the “Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994,” P.L. 103–322). Those programs include: Law Enforcement and Prosecution Grants to Combat Violence Against Women; National Domestic Violence Hotline; Battered Women’s Shelter and Services; Grants for Community Initiatives; Education and Training for Judges and Court Personnel; Grants to Encourage Arrest Polices; Rural Domestic Violence And Child Abuse Enforcement; National Stalker and Domestic Violence Reduction; Federal Victims’ Counselors; Education and Prevention Grants to Reduce Sexual Abuse of Runaway, Homeless, and Street Youth; Victims of Child Abuse; and, Rape Prevention Education. It would also create several new programs, including: Civil Legal Assistance for Victims; Safe Havens for Children Pilot Program; Protections Against Violence and Abuse for Women with Disabilities; Standards, Practice, and Training for Sexual Assault Examinations; and, a requirement that a Domestic Violence Task Force report back to Congress on any overlapping or duplication of Federal agency efforts addressing domestic violence.

It is the view of the committee that, while the general purpose of the grants program is to combat violent crimes against women, the Department of Justice should not preclude the use of funds under this act to address crimes which affect both men and women.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

In response to growing rates of crimes committed against women, Congress passed the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) as Title IV of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994. VAWA created new criminal enforcement authority and enhanced penalties to combat sexual assault and domestic violence in Federal court. It also authorized grant programs to fight violence against women by providing funds to State and local law enforcement agencies, as well as for education, prevention, and outreach programs. To date, Congress has appropriated more than $1.5 billion for the act, and the appropriation authority for VAWA expires at the end of this fiscal year.

VAWA programs have aided the prosecution of domestic violence, sexual assault and child abuse cases across the country, and have increased victim services like domestic violence shelters for women.

Yet, despite the dramatic drop in most categories of crime across the country over the past several years, violent crime committed against women is still a serious problem. For example, nearly one in every three adult women experiences at least one physical assault by a partner during adulthood.

Moreover, women are at increased risk of harm after separation from an abusive partner. Separated women are three times more likely than divorced women and 25 times more likely than married women to be victims of violence at the hands of an intimate partner. According to the National Crime Victimization Survey data from the Justice Department, between 1992 and 1996, women and girls over 12 experienced annually, on average, 960,000 incidents of assault, rape, and murder at the hands of a current or former spouse or intimate partner. During the same period, the same surveys found that men were victims of about 150,000 violent crimes by current or former spouses or intimate partners. Other surveys have found a much higher rate of domestic violence against women.

HEARINGS

The committee's Subcommittee on Crime held one hearing on H.R. 1248 on Wednesday, September 29, 1999. Testimony was received from Bonnie J. Campbell, Director, Violence Against Women Office, Department of Justice; Juley Fulcher, Public Policy Director, National Coalition Against Domestic Violence; Carole Alexander, Executive Director, House of Ruth; and Patrick Fagan, Heritage Foundation.

On Wednesday, June 21, 2000, the committee met in open session on this matter, and then met again on Tuesday, June 27, 2000 and ordered favorably reported the bill H.R. 1248, as amended, by voice vote, a quorum being present.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the committee sets forth, with respect to H.R.1248, the following estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, July 13, 2000.

Hon. HENRY J. HYDE, Chairman,
Committee on the Judiciary,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 1248, the Violence Against Women Act of 2000.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Mark Grabowicz, who can be reached at 226-2860.

Sincerely,

Ranking Democratic Member

H.R. 1248—Violence Against Women Act of 2000.

SUMMARY

H.R. 1248 would authorize the appropriation of about $3.6 billion for fiscal years 2001 through 2005 for programs to combat violence against women. Most of these programs would fund grants to state and local governments and Indian tribes.

Assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1248 would cost about $2.8 billion over the 2001–2005 period. This legislation would not affect direct spending or receipts, so pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply. The bill contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and could benefit state, local, or tribal governments. Any costs incurred by state, local, or tribal governments would be the result of complying with grant conditions and would be voluntary.

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

For this estimate, CBO assumes that the amounts authorized in H.R. 1248 will be appropriated by the start of each fiscal year, and that spending would follow the historical rates for these or similar programs. The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 1248 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget functions 550 (health) and 750 (administration of justice).

By fiscal year, in millions of dollars

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
SPENDING SUBJECT TO APPROPRIATION
Spending Under Current Law for Violence Against Women Programs

Estimated Outlays	431	503	603	670	767	778

PAY-AS-YOU-GO CONSIDERATIONS:

None.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL AND PRIVATE-SECTOR IMPACT

The bill contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA and could benefit state, local, or tribal governments. The bill would authorize the appropriation of about $3.6 billion in grants over the 2001–2005 period to these governments and certain nonprofit entities. Any costs incurred by state, local, or tribal governments would be the result of complying with grant conditions and would be voluntary.

ESTIMATE PREPARED BY:

Federal Costs: Mark Grabowicz (202) 226–2860
 Impact on State, Local, and Tribal Governments: Shelley Finlayson
 (202) 225–3220
 Impact on the Private Sector: John Harris (202) 226–2618

ESTIMATE APPROVED BY:

Robert A. Sunshine
 Assistant Director for Budget Analysis

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 3(d)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the committee finds the authority for this legislation in Article I, section 8, of the Constitution.

AGENCY VIEWS

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS,
Washington, DC, July 13, 2000.

Hon. HENRY J. HYDE, Chairman,
Committee on the Judiciary,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN HYDE: This letter provides the views of the Department of Justice on H.R. 1248, the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA II), introduced by Congresswoman Morella and passed by the House Subcommittee on Crime. This legislation would reauthorize the critically important programs created in 1994 by the original VAWA and by subsequent legislation. The Department of Justice supports this legislation, with the amendments discussed below, and appreciates the time and dedication that you and Congressman Conyers have devoted to fighting violence against women.

During the last six years, the Violence Against Women Act has made a crucial difference in the lives of countless women and children. In implementing the Act, the Department of Justice (DOJ) and the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) have worked together and with communities to expand prevention efforts, enhance the safety of more victims, and hold perpetrators of violence against women accountable for their acts.

Domestic violence occurs in all communities, crossing ethnic, racial, age, national origin, religious, sexual orientation, and socioeconomic lines. While domestic violence crosses gender lines as well, more than 85% of victimizations by intimate partners from 1993–1998 were perpetrated against women, according to the most recent study by the Bureau of Justice Statistics.<sup>1</sup> Domestic violence is also devastating for children, who often suffer physical, emotional, or developmental effects from experiencing or witnessing family violence. Because domestic violence is so pervasive in our families, we must continue to support comprehensive community-based efforts to keep victims safe and hold offenders accountable.

Under the violence against women grant programs, DOJ has awarded more than $800 million in grant funds, making over 900 discretionary grants and 280 STOP (Services, Training, Officers, Prosecutors) formula grants to the states and territories. These grant programs help state, tribal, and local governments and community-based agencies to train personnel, enforce laws, develop policies and procedures, establish specialized domestic violence and sexual assault units, assist victims of violence, and hold perpetrators accountable. More than 6,500 STOP subgrants have supported community partnerships among police, prosecutors, victim advocates, and others to address violence against women. To date, DOJ has prosecuted more than 250 cases in the federal system involving interstate domestic violence, interstate stalking, interstate violation of a protection order, or possession of a firearm while subject to a protection order or after conviction for a misdemeanor crime of domestic violence.

The programs and initiatives that we have established together are only the beginning of our struggle to end violence against women in our nation. Violence still devastates the lives of many women and their children. Nearly one-third of the women murdered each year are killed by their intimate partners, and violence by intimate partners accounts for over 20 percent of all violent crimes against women. Approximately one million women are stalked each year, and women were raped and sexually assaulted 307,000 times in 1998 alone. We therefore urge you to continue your unprecedented bipartisan leadership on this issue.

In its current form, H.R. 1248 is an important step toward our mutual goal of re-authorizing and improving VAWA. We are pleased that the legislation would authorize critical VAWA grant programs including some through fiscal year 2005. Based on our experience administering the VAWA grant programs over the past six years, we believe that a predictable federal commitment to continued funding is essential to encourage communities to develop and implement long-term partnerships to combat violence against women. We also strongly support improvements that the bill would make to these programs, including improving the definition of “victim services,” creating five percent set-asides for grants to Indian tribal governments under the VAWA grant programs, and expanding the STOP Grant Program purpose areas to include courts, sexual assault medical examiners, and sexual assault response teams.

While we strongly support the effort to re-authorize the VAWA grant programs, many key improvements to these programs and other VAWA provisions, however, have not been included in this legislative proposal. We urge the House Judiciary Committee to amend the bill to strengthen our efforts to end violence against women. We have provided a detailed description of proposed amendments in the attached section-by-section comments. We would urge you in particular to address the following key issues:

First, the Department recommends that the bill be revised to extend reauthorization of all of the Violence Against Women Act grant programs to 2005. With the exception of four programs (the Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies Program, the National Domestic Violence Hotline, the Battered Women’s Shelters and Services Program, and the Rape Prevention Education Program), the bill currently only reauthorizes the VAWA programs through 2004. We urge you to assure grant recipients that all the VAWA grant programs will be maintained for at least five more years, and to ensure that the authorization is consistent throughout the bill. In addition, we strongly recommend that the bill extend the authorization for the Grants to Combat Violent Crimes Against Women on Campuses Program, currently authorized under the Higher Education Amendments of 1998, through 2005 and make a few technical amendments to the authorizing statute for that program.

Second, we oppose the removal of the language that is in H.R. 1248 as introduced that would have permitted VAWA grantees to target dating violence in all jurisdictions. The need for including dating relationships in the definition of domestic violence under the Department of Justice’s VAWA grant programs is amply supported by Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) data that indicate that domestic violence occurs at alarmingly high rates among young persons aged 16–24 and among non-married partners in general. See Bureau of Justice Statistics, U.S. Department of Justice, Intimate Partner Violence 4, 10 (2000). Federal VAWA funds are intended to assist communities in addressing the specific problems that they confront related to violence against women. Where local community members identify dating violence as a pressing need, critical resources should be available under VAWA to respond. We urge you to include amendments covering dating violence in all jurisdictions to the definitions of “domestic violence” under the STOP Formula Grant Program, the Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies Program, and the Grants to Combat Violent Crimes Against Women on Campuses Program. In particular, we note that such an amendment to the Campus Program authorizing language already has been included in the VAWA II bill under consideration in the Senate.

Similarly, we urge you to make a parallel amendment to the definition of “spouse or intimate partner” in 18 U.S.C. §2266 to cover dating relationships under the federal criminal offenses created by VAWA and subsequent legislation.

Third, we urge that you adopt other proposed Title 18 amendments that would strengthen and clarify the VAWA and VAWA-related criminal provisions. While U.S. Attorney’s offices nationwide have prosecuted and continue to prosecute cases involving these crimes, the proposed amendments are designed to remove obstacles to federal prosecution reported from federal prosecutors and will improve our impact on this nationwide crime problem. While our jurisdiction to prosecute these cases remains settled, limitations now arise from the statutory language that unduly hampers DOJ’s prosecutions. The Title 18 amendments that we propose, most of which are included in the bill currently under consideration in the Senate, not only would improve the effectiveness of our prosecutions but also would better protect Native American victims of violence against women.

Fourth, we strongly recommend including language that would authorize the Domestic Violence Victims’ Civil Legal Assistance Grant Program and would extend the assistance funded by that program to victims of sexual assault and stalking. The authorizing legislation should describe explicitly the types of civil legal assistance that could be supported under the program. We support Representative Lowey’s efforts to address this issue, and we would be happy to work with your staff on modifying H.R. 4663 for inclusion in H.R. 1248.

Fifth, the Department supports adding Section 234(d)(1) of H.R. 357 to the bill. This provision would expand emergency jurisdiction under the federal Parental Kidnaping Prevention Act (PKPA) to include domestic violence, and thereby make the PKPA consistent with the model uniform state law on interstate custody jurisdiction, the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act (UCCJEA). This amendment would enhance the ability of victims fleeing abuse with their children to obtain custody orders without returning to dangerous jurisdictions.

Sixth, we also strongly support amendments to VAWA’s full faith and credit provision that would prohibit requiring registration of foreign protection orders as a prerequisite to enforcement of foreign orders, prohibit notification of a batterer without the victim’s consent when a foreign protection order is registered in a new jurisdiction, reinforce that protection orders issued by tribes are entitled to full faith and credit, and make it clear that Indian tribes have jurisdiction to enforce protection orders against Indian and non-Indian offenders. Similarly, we support language clarifying that custody and support orders within protection orders are entitled to full faith and credit when they comply with interstate custody and support laws.

Seventh, the Department strongly supports amendments that would protect battered immigrants. Although VAWA contains provisions that were designed to free battered immigrants from abusers who misused immigration laws to coerce, intimidate, and control their spouses and children, subsequent legislation has inadvertently eroded the efficacy of those original provisions. We urge you to correct this problem. The Administration’s crime bill includes improved protections for battered immigrants, as does the bill under consideration in the Senate.

Eighth, the Department supports a new grant program to fund supervised visitation centers that would help keep families safe and protect children from violence by creating safe places for visitation and exchange of children. We have provided your staff with language based on the supervised visitation grant program in H.R. 357. We also note that the bill under consideration by the Senate would establish a Safe Havens for Children pilot program to provide for such secure environments.

Thank you again for your hard work to assist victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking and to hold offenders accountable. This Administration is deeply committed to continuing the progress that has been made in confronting violence against women. We look forward to working with the Committee as it considers these and other issues raised by the revised bill. The Office of Management and Budget has advised that there is no objection to the presentation of this report from the standpoint of the Administration's program.

Sincerely,

ROBERT RABEN, Assistant Attorney General.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS
H.R. 1248 AS PASSED SUBCOMMITTEE

Section 2. DEFINITIONS

The Department strongly opposes the removal of the language in H.R. 1248 as introduced that would have permitted VAWA grantees to target dating violence in all jurisdictions. Under section 2(a)(1) and (2), after "by a person who is cohabiting with or has cohabited with the victim," we suggest inserting "by a person who is or has been in a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the victim." We recommend making this modification to the definitions of "domestic violence" and "intimate partner" everywhere they appear in the bill and in the original VAWA, so that the grant programs and the interstate domestic violence and stalking crimes may cover dating violence, regardless of jurisdiction.<sup>2</sup>

In section 2(b) the current definition of "Indian country" excludes Alaskan tribes (with one exception). In Alaska v. Native Village of Venetie, 118 S. Ct. 948 (1998) the Supreme Court interpreted the term "Indian country", and Congress made the definition clear in 18 U.S.C. § 1151. The current language proposes a  $\frac{1}{54}$  allotment for sexual assault coalitions "in Indian country." Therefore, if section 2(b) is not changed, the proposed State Coalition Grant program (Sec. 103) will exclude Alaskan tribes. We would recommend the same language change also be made everywhere "Indian country" is defined in the bill.

We are concerned that the term "stalking" in section 2(c) is defined too narrowly. This definition applies to grant programs that address stalking, and the definition should be written to allow <sup>2</sup>In addition, as noted in our cover letter, we urge Congress to make a number of amendments to Title 18 to enhance the ability of federal law enforcement officials to combat interstate domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking. We are submitting proposed language for these amendments to Title 18, including an amendment to 18 U.S.C. § 2266's definition of "spouse or intimate partner" to cover dating relationships under the federal criminal offenses created by VAWA and subsequent legislation.

grantees to target all forms of stalking, even where the stalking behavior appears innocuous to the outside observer—such as someone continuing to send messages after being told not to do so by the victim, even where the messages do not contain a specific threat. For example, the “reasonable fear of death or serious bodily injury” standard is too high. In some instances the stalker’s intent is to harass and cause psychological distress. This behavior may escalate to more overtly threatening behavior, and law enforcement must be able to intervene at the early stages to protect victims and to terminate the stalking behavior. In addition, some stalkers have used the Internet to post malicious and harassing messages about their victims, but again, this behavior may not rise to the level of “causing fear of death or serious bodily injury.” Therefore, we recommend replacing this definition with the definition that originally appeared in H.R. 1248, with the following modifications:

- a) insert “or that would cause a reasonable person to have a high level of fear” after “that would cause a reasonable person to fear death, sexual assault, or bodily injury to such person or a member of such person’s immediate family,”;
- b) insert “or has knowledge or should have knowledge that the specific person will have a high level of fear” after “knowledge that the specific person will be placed in reasonable fear of death, sexual assault, or bodily injury to such person or a member of such person’s immediate family”; and
- c) insert “or induces a high level of fear in the specific person” after “induces fear in the specific person of death, sexual assault, or bodily injury to such person or a member of such person’s immediate family.”

The Department opposes the deletion of “sexual orientation, religion, and alienage status” from the definition of “underserved populations” that appeared in section 2(d) of H.R. 1248 as introduced. Culturally appropriate services are needed in all parts of the criminal and civil justice systems. By explicitly including these traditionally underserved populations, the bill would help communities nationwide to improve the accessibility and appropriateness of their services.

TITLE I CONTINUING THE COMMITMENT OF THE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT

Subtitle A Law Enforcement and Prosecution Grants to Combat Violence Against Women

The Department strongly supports reauthorization of the STOP Formula Grant Program, but we recommend that the authorization for this program be extended to fiscal year 2005.

Sec. 102. Technical Amendments.

This section would make several important improvements to the STOP Formula Grant Program. In particular, we strongly support the provisions in this section that would increase the set-aside for tribal governments from four percent to five percent, clarify the definition of victim services, and provide that reimbursement of sexual assault survivors for forensic medical exams is not contingent upon the victim's report to law enforcement or cooperation in the prosecution of the perpetrator.

We are concerned, however, that the proposed allocation percentages under the STOP Formula Grant Program will reduce the percentages of STOP funds that currently support law enforcement and prosecution grants. Under VAWA, 25% of STOP funds must support law enforcement and 25% must support prosecutors. This provision would allocate 50% of STOP funds to police, prosecutors, and judges. While we are in favor of establishing an allocation for courts under the program, we do not support reducing the allocation for law enforcement and prosecution in order to create such an allocation. Instead, we recommend allocating 25% each to law enforcement and prosecution, 10% to courts, and 30% to victim services. In section 102(a), we recommend inserting “, tribal,” after “State” to clarify that grants may be awarded to tribal courts as well as to state and local courts.

While we support a reallocation provision under the STOP Program, the reallocation deadline in section 102(b) of nine months into the fiscal year is unreasonable, given the processes that states have in place to award subgrants. The structure of the VAWA encourages the states to engage in a strategic planning process, which requires some time. After receiving their annual STOP award, states initiate their strategic planning process and then issue a subgrant solicitation as part of a competitive process for selecting STOP subgrantees. States would not be able to evaluate the quality of the applications received, make funding decisions, and reallocate unused funds effectively within nine months. We recommend instead allowing reallocation of any funds set aside for police, prosecution, and courts that remain unobligated as of the end of the next year after the fiscal year for which funds are appropriated. We therefore suggest replacing “at the end of the 9th month of” with “at the end of the next fiscal year after” in section 102(b).

Under section 102(b) the purpose of proposed section 2002(e)(3)(B) is unclear to us. If the goal is to prevent an adverse impact on victims due to the new percent allocation formula, the waiver should not be limited to the first two years following enactment of the legislation. This approach postpones, but does not eliminate, the adverse impact. In addition, as discussed above, we recommend inserting “, tribal,” after “State” on page 9, line 2, to clarify that grants may be awarded to tribal courts as well as to state and local courts.

The Department supports the addition of purpose areas to the STOP Formula Grant Program in section 102(c) that would address training for judges and court personnel, training for sexual assault medical examiners on collecting evidence and working with victims, and developing sexual assault response teams. However, we recommend inserting “, tribal,” after “State” on page 9, line 19, and we recommend deleting “forensic” on page 9, line 23.

We believe that section 102(d) is unnecessary because we already have the authority to enforce compliance with grant program requirements. If certifications are not included at the application stage and the applicant receives an award, a special condition is included in the award that requires the submission of the certification, and grant funds are not available until the grantee has complied with the special condition. If a site visit later reveals that a grantee is not in compliance with certification, the grantee is required to comply immediately. Grant funds may be frozen if the grantee does not comply. However, if subsection (d) is not deleted, “document of any collaborative efforts” should be “documentation of any collaborative efforts” in the proposed section 2002(e)(2).

The Department supports section 102(e), but we recommend inserting “sexual assault, domestic violence, and stalking” between “providing advocacy and assistance for” and “victims seeking” and adding the words “and economic services” to the list “legal, social, and abuse-related health care services”. The revised phrase would read “providing advocacy and assistance for sexual assault, domestic violence, and stalking victims seeking legal, social, and economic services, and abuse-related health care services.”

We are concerned that section 102(h) does not accomplish its intended goal. We believe the goal of this section is to amend section 2006(a)(1) of the STOP authorization to extend STOP’s prohibition on protection order filing fees to civil protection orders not connected to a criminal case. However, inserting “civil or criminal” does not accomplish this goal. The STOP regulations currently interpret this section as precluding charging for service of a protection order (civil or criminal) when it arises from an incident that is the subject of a criminal arrest or prosecution. To extend this requirement to all civil protection orders would require making the following changes to Section 2006(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-5(a)(1)):

- a) after the current language “in connection with the prosecution of any misdemeanor or felony domestic violence offense,” add “or in connection with the filing, issuance, registration, or service of a protection order to protect a victim of domestic violence, stalking, or sexual assault.”;
- b) after the current language “or the costs associated with”, add the word “filing,” before the word “issuance”, and add the word “registration,” before “or service.”; and
- c) after the current language “warrant, protection order,” add “petition.”

In addition, at the very end of the current provision, we suggest adding, “whether issued inside or outside of the jurisdiction.” This would require states to serve both in-state and out-of-state documents without charge to the victim. The new paragraph would read:

“(1) certifies that its laws, policies, and practices do not require, in connection with the prosecution of any misdemeanor or felony domestic violence offense, or in connection with the filing, issuance, registration, or service of a protection order, or a petition for a protection order, to protect a victim of domestic violence, stalking or sexual assault, that the victim bear the costs associated with the filing of criminal charges against the offender, or the costs associated with the filing, issuance, registration, or service of a warrant, protection order, petition for a protection order, or witness subpoena, whether issued inside or outside the State, tribal, or local jurisdiction; or”

Sec. 103. State Coalition Grants.

The Department strongly recommends making the authorizing language discretionary by changing “shall” to “may” in proposed section 2001(c)(1), and we recommend changing the set-aside to two percent.

Under section 103, in the proposed section 2001(c)(3)(C), we recommend deleting “nongovernmental” and inserting “or comparable programs” after “coalitions” to ensure that tribes that do not have coalitions but have comparable public or private programs in place will receive the funding.

Subtitle E Education and Training for Judges and Court Personnel

We strongly support this section, which would reauthorize important grants for education and training for judges and court personnel in state and federal courts. However, in proposed section 40412(20), the Department recommends changing “predominant” to “primary.” While we recognize the word “predominant” has been proposed in an attempt to overcome misunderstandings about the concept of primary aggressor, its use will be confusing for state and local judges and law enforcement because most state laws and trainings use the term “primary.”

Additionally, the language proposed in section 141(a)(1)(C) seeks to describe ideas that are too complex to be conveyed in a statute and instead should be part of program implementation. For example, the phrase “the legitimate reasons parents may report domestic violence” suggests that there are also illegitimate reasons for parents to report domestic violence, whereas the goal of this phrase is to convey the need for judicial training to dispel the myth that such reports frequently are fabricated in child custody cases. We recommend revising these provisions to read: “(20) the impact of domestic violence issues in custody and visitation cases; (21) sexual assault issues, with a focus on victim safety, in custody and visitation cases;”.

Subtitle F Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies

We strongly support this subtitle, which would reauthorize the Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies Program through fiscal year 2005 and create a five percent set-aside under the program for Indian tribal governments.

Subtitle G Rural Domestic Violence and Child Abuse Enforcement

This subtitle would reauthorize the Rural Domestic Violence and Child Victimization Enforcement Program through fiscal year 2004 and would create a five percent set-aside for grants to Indian tribal governments under the Rural Program. We strongly support these provisions but recommend that the authorization for the program be extended to fiscal year 2005, as section 151 would do for the Arrest Program.

Subtitle H National Stalker and Domestic Violence Reduction

The Department supports this subtitle. These funds have not been reauthorized since FY 1998, but this is a priority funding area for the Bureau of Justice Statistics under the NCHIP program, and there is a great need for these funds for implementation of the full faith and credit provision of VAWA, as well as the VAWA-related gun provisions.

Subtitle I Federal Victims' Counselors.Sec. 181. Reauthorization.

We strongly support the annual appropriation of $1 million to the Executive Office of the U.S. Attorneys for the purpose of funding federal victims' counselors, education, and prevention.

(1) A State may use funds under subsection (a) only so as to supplement and, to the extent practicable, increase the level of funds that would be available from non-Federal sources for the activities described in subsection (a), and in no case may such funds be used to supplant funds from other sources.

(2) A State may not use more than 2 percent of the funds received in each fiscal year under this section for surveillance studies or prevalence studies and funds for such studies shall be available only at such time as appropriations under subsection (c) reach at least $80,000,000.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS

We offer these additional views because in many respects H.R. 1248, as reported by the committee, represents a missed opportunity to further solidify and strengthen Federal legislation to combat domestic violence. Not only did the Majority choose to weaken several important aspects of H.R. 1248 as introduced by Ms. Morella (such as limiting the availability of grants for programs dealing with dating or same sex violence, or for persons harmed on account of their sexual orientation, religion, or alienage status), but the Majority also failed to incorporate other important legislative initiatives that could serve to reduce domestic violence (such as protections for battered immigrants and victims of gender-motivated violence).

We appreciate the fact that the Majority has chosen to move legislation reauthorizing the funding programs provided in the Violence Against Women Act and also accepted several Democratic amendments to improve those programs; however, the end product falls short of bipartisan legislation that has been introduced by Representatives Conyers and Morella in the House (H.R. 357), and by Senators Biden and Hatch in the Senate (S. 2787). We were particularly disappointed that the Majority refused to mark up or even hold hearings on H.R. 357,<sup>1</sup> despite repeated requests by the Minority, and the fact that every single Democratic member of the committee cosponsored an amendment to H.R. 1248 incorporating the major components of H.R. 357.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> In January 1999, Representative Conyers introduced H.R. 357, the Violence Against Women Act of 1999, which was substantially similar to a VAWA bill that Mr. Conyers introduced in the 105th Congress (H.R. 3514). H.R. 357 is widely viewed by all of the major domestic violence and sexual assault coalitions as the major piece of legislation addressing intimate partner violence. H.R. 357 currently has 180 cosponsors, and has generated bi-partisan support. H.R. 357 does several things to combat domestic violence: (1) it reauthorizes funding for the original VAWA I programs in the same way that H.R. 1248 does, (2) it creates additional programs to address domestic violence and sexual assault more comprehensively, and (3) it changes substantive criminal, civil, and immigration law to combat domestic violence and sexual assault.

Among other things, H.R. 357 contains a section on violence against children, which funds school programs to address domestic violence and sexual assault and which trains welfare agencies to recognize the warning signs of abuse. There is also a separate title to deal with violence in underserved communities, including older women, disabled women, and immigrant women. H.R. 357 would also establish a national resource center on sexual assault, prohibit individuals who have been involved in sexual misconduct from becoming prison guards, and give priority in funding to medical schools and training programs that require students to be trained in the identification and treatment of domestic violence and sexual assault. To combat violence in the workplace, H.R. 357 establishes a national workplace clearinghouse on domestic violence and sexual assault, and it prohibits employers from taking adverse job actions against an employee because that employee has been the victim of a crime. It also requires employers to provide leave to employees for the purpose of dealing with domestic violence and its aftermath, and it allows women to use their family and medical leave to deal with domestic abuse. These are just a few of the new programs that H.R. 357 would create to deal with the pervasive problems of domestic violence and sexual assault.

CURRENT LAW AND LEGISLATIVE EFFORTS

In order to address the nationwide problem of domestic violence and sexual assault,<sup>3</sup> Democrats led the fight to pass the Violence Against Women Act in 1994 (“VAWA I”).<sup>4</sup> This landmark legislation had several components. First, it provided funding through fiscal year 2000 for numerous programs to combat domestic violence and sexual assault, including, among other things, battered women’s shelters and rape crisis centers; a domestic violence hotline; training for prosecutors, judges, and court personnel; pro-arrest policies; victims’ counselors; and victims of child abuse programs. In addition, VAWA I included several civil and criminal provisions to combat domestic violence and sexual assault. For example, it increased penalties for Federal rape convictions and criminalized violations of protection orders and interstate domestic violence, including stalking; required States, as a condition of receiving Federal VAWA funds, to meet certain standards with respect to domestic violence procedures;<sup>5</sup> and created a Federal civil remedy for victims of gender-motivated crimes of violence.<sup>6</sup>

H.R. 1248, as approved by the committee, reauthorizes existing VAWA I programs for 5 years beyond 2000. It continues funding for VAWA I programs such as law enforcement and prosecution grants to combat violence against women, the National Domestic Violence Hotline, battered women’s shelters and services, education and training for judges and court personnel, pro-arrest policies, rural domestic violence and child abuse enforcement, stalker reduction, and others. The bill also authorizes funding for new programs such as civil legal assistance, transitional housing, and a pilot program for supervised child visitation centers.<sup>7</sup>

<sup>3</sup>According to National Crime Victimization Survey data from the Department of Justice (a conservative estimate), about 1 million violent crimes in 1998 were committed against people by their current or former spouses, boyfriends, or girlfriends. These crimes were committed primarily against women. About 85% of victimizations by intimate partners in 1998, or 876,340, were against women. Intimate partner violence made up 22% of violent crime against women between 1993 and 1998. By contrast, during this period intimate partners committed 3% of the violence against men. Callie Marie Rennison & Sarah Welchans, Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Statics, Special Report, Intimate Partner Violence, May 2000 [hereinafter “BJS Study”].

<sup>4</sup>In part as a result of VAWA I, intimate partner violence decreased 21% from 1993 to 1998. Nevertheless, domestic violence is still experienced by hundreds of thousands of women each year, and there still are demographic groups that need better access to services and the criminal justice system. For example, between 1993 and 1998, women ages 16 to 24 experienced the highest per capita rates of intimate violence. BJS Study.

<sup>5</sup>E.g., States could not require a victim to bear the cost of a rape exam, and States could not require a victim to pay a filing fee in order to obtain a protection order.

<sup>6</sup>On May 15, 2000, the Supreme Court struck down this civil rights remedy, as violative of the Commerce Clause and the 14th amendment. United States v. Morrison, ___ U.S. ___, 120 S. Ct. 1740 (2000). The Supreme Court’s decision did not invalidate any other portion of VAWA I, and it does not affect the validity of any of the new proposed VAWA legislation.

<sup>7</sup>In addition, several important amendments were offered by Democratic Members and accepted by the Majority. In the area of elder abuse, Rep. Baldwin amended the bill to authorize law school and law enforcement training programs regarding domestic violence against older women, community initiatives to combat domestic violence, and outreach programs targeted to older women who are victims of domestic violence. In addition, Rep. Baldwin amended the bill to ensure the inclusion of women with disabilities in existing domestic violence and sexual assault programs, provide training on issues of violence against women with disabilities, and provide technical assistance to assist shelters and victim services organizations with the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act. The committee also accepted an amendment offered by Rep. Weiner regarding sexual assault examiners, which directs the Attorney General to evaluate existing standards of training, practice, and payment of forensic exams and to recommend a national protocol. Finally, H.R. 1248 includes an amendment offered by Rep. Conyers requiring that domestic violence and sexual assault crimes be included in reports to the National Instant Criminal Background Check system.

The following is a description of the principal areas of concern we have with the committee-passed legislation:

I. The Committee-Passed Bill Weakens Key Aspects of H.R. 1248

The Committee-Passed Bill Changes the Definition of “Domestic Violence” to Eliminate Coverage of Dating Violence and Same-Sex Violence

One of the most serious concerns we have with the committee-passed bill is its failure to expand the scope of VAWA funding to include programs designed to combat dating violence, including violence in same-sex relationships.<sup>8</sup> As introduced, H.R. 1248 would have amended VAWA so that the term “domestic violence” would have included dating violence, and violence between same-sex couples,<sup>9</sup> a position which is strongly supported by all of the major domestic violence and sexual assault groups, the Department of Justice,<sup>10</sup> the National Association of Attorneys General,<sup>11</sup> and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.<sup>12</sup>

Unfortunately, at the Crime Subcommittee markup of H.R. 1248, Rep. McCollum introduced a manager’s amendment that changed the bill’s definition of domestic violence to exclude dating violence and violence in same-sex relationships. At the Full Committee markup, Rep. McCollum offered a manager’s amendment that added a separate definition of “dating violence” to selected VAWA programs.<sup>13</sup> This approach is inadequate, however, because it does not include dating violence in all VAWA programs. For example, the McCollum amendment adds the term dating violence to only two out of ten purpose areas for which STOP Grants (which are law enforcement, victim services, and prosecution grants to combat domestic violence and sexual assault) can be used,<sup>14</sup> and only two <sup>8</sup>The definition of “domestic violence” under VAWA I covers acts of dating violence only in States and jurisdictions whose domestic violence or family violence laws include dating relationships. If a state’s or jurisdiction’s domestic or family violence laws do not include dating violence, VAWA grants cannot be provided to programs in those States and jurisdictions that target dating violence. 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-2(1) (1994).

<sup>9</sup>As introduced, H.R. 1248 defined “domestic violence” to mean: “acts or threats of violence, not including acts of self-defense, committed by a current or former spouse of the victim, by a person with whom the victim shares a child in common, by a person who is cohabiting with or has cohabited with the victim, by a person who is or has been in a continuing social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the victim, by a person similarly situated to a spouse of the victim under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction, or by any other person against a victim who is protected from that person’s acts under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction.” H.R. 1248, Sec. 2(a)(1).

<sup>10</sup>Letter from Bonnie J. Campbell, Director, Violence Against Women Office, U.S. Department of Justice, to Hon. Bill McCollum, chairman, Subcommittee on Crime, Committee on the Judiciary, June 21, 2000.

<sup>11</sup>Letter from National Association of Attorneys General to Hon. Henry Hyde, chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, June 13, 2000 (“We urge you to . . . [s]trengthen VAWA by authorizing coverage of ‘dating relationships’ in its criminal provisions and in its grants.”).

<sup>12</sup>U.S. Conference of Mayors, Resolution No. 61, “Reauthorization of Violence Against Women Grant Programs” (“[T]he new VAWA legislation should contain . . . an amended definition of domestic violence under all VAWA grant programs to permit projects to target services to victims of dating violence in all jurisdictions. . . .”).

<sup>13</sup>“Dating violence” is defined to mean violence committed by a person “who is or has been in a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the victim” and “where the existence of such relationship shall be determined based on a consideration of the following factors: (i) the length of the relationship; (ii) the type of relationship; and (iii) the frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship.” H.R. 1248, Sec. 2(g).

<sup>14</sup>STOP grant purpose areas that are not covered include: developing, training, or expanding units of law enforcement officers and prosecutors specifically targeting dating violence; developing and implementing more effective police and prosecution protocols, orders, and services specifically devoted to preventing, identifying, and responding to dating violence; developing, in-out of six purpose areas for which Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies can be used.<sup>15</sup> In addition, dating violence is omitted from the purpose areas of the civil legal assistance grants.<sup>16</sup>

The Majority's failure adequately to include dating violence within VAWA means that both adult and teen victims of dating violence will have less than adequate services and protections. Teenagers will be particularly negatively impacted by this constraint. Just last month, the U.S. Department of Justice released a study indicating that young women between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest rates of violence by current or former intimate partners.<sup>17</sup> And 40% of teenage girls between the ages of 14 and 17 report knowing someone their age who has been hit or beaten by a boyfriend. These statistics are chilling and indicate how dangerous the bill's failure to fully cover dating violence within the scope of its grants will be.

The Committee-Passed Bill Changes the Definition of "Underserved Populations" To Exclude Populations Underserved Because of Sexual Orientation, Religion, and Alienage Status

Another serious concern we have with H.R. 1248 is its failure to include populations underserved because of sexual orientation, religion and alienage status within the scope of additional funding opportunities available to help combat domestic violence.<sup>18</sup> Under the version of the bill introduced by Rep. Morella, the term "underserved populations" was expanded to include "populations underserved because of race, ethnicity, age, disability, sexual orientation, religion, alienage status, geographic location (including rural isolation), language barriers, and any other populations determined to be under served by the State planning process."<sup>19</sup> Unfortunately, at the Crime Subcommittee markup of H.R. 1248, Rep. McCollum's manager's amendment restricted the definition of "underserved populations" to eliminate the categories of sexual orientation, religion, and alienage status.<sup>20</sup> stalling, or expanding data collection and communication systems, for the purpose of identifying and tracking arrests, protection orders, prosecutions, and convictions for dating violence; developing, enlarging, or strengthening programs addressing the circumstances in Indian tribes in dealing with dating violence; and developing, enlarging, or strengthening State and local court programs, including training for State, local, and tribal judges and court personnel, and addressing violent crimes against women, including dating violence.

<sup>15</sup> Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies purpose areas that are not covered include: centralizing and coordinating police enforcement, prosecution, or judicial responsibility for dating violence cases; and educating judges in criminal and other courts about dating violence, and to improve judicial handling of such cases.

<sup>16</sup> Rep. Conyers and Rep. Rothman offered an amendment that would have ensured that all VAWA programs covered dating violence, by restoring dating violence to the definition of "domestic violence," as H.R. 1248 originally contemplated. The Conyers-Rothman amendment was defeated in a party line vote.

<sup>18</sup> VAWA I states that in distributing grants to help combat domestic violence, States are encouraged to give additional consideration to "underserved populations." States are also required to document how their programs address underserved populations. The definition of "underserved populations" in VAWA I includes "populations underserved because of geographic location (such as rural isolation), underserved racial or ethnic populations, and populations underserved because of special needs, such as language barriers or physical disabilities." 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-2(7) (1994).

<sup>20</sup> Rep. McCollum's amendment permits other populations to be designated as underserved by the State planning process in consultation with the Attorney General.

We strongly oppose this limitation because we believe it is important that immigrants, gays and lesbians, and religious groups be eligible for additional consideration for VAWA grants. Immigrant women are particularly in need of assistance because many times, they rely upon their batterers for their immigration status, and they must overcome language and cultural barriers, as well. The inclusion of “alienage status” as an “underserved population” would help women like “Emma Perez” (name change), a Cuban national living in Miami with her Cuban husband, who is a lawful permanent resident. The husband sexually abuses their 15 year old daughter, has been very violent, and has a criminal history. He was in jail for 8 years for drug trafficking offenses. He has killed people in the past and threatens to kill Emma if she talks to anyone about the sexual abuse of her daughter.<sup>21</sup>

II. The Majority Failed to Add Several Important Provisions to Further Strengthen the Law

H.R. 1248 Fails to Provide Comprehensive Funding for Civil Legal Assistance

At Full Committee, H.R. 1248 was nominally expanded to authorize funds for civil legal assistance for victims of domestic violence pursuant to an amendment offered by Rep. Hutchinson. We have several concerns with this amendment. First, the funding levels provided in the Hutchinson Amendment are inadequate to address the civil legal needs of victims of violence,<sup>22</sup> and they actually reduce from current levels the money available for civil legal assistance to domestic violence victims.<sup>23</sup> Second, the amendment fails explicitly to cover programs to assist victims in enforcing their protection orders—which is often the first line of defense for victims who have escaped abusive relationships.

These omissions will have adverse consequences. Approximately 65 percent of petitioners for orders of protection in Washington D.C. alone lack legal representation. According to a survey of domestic violence shelters in Texas, about 75 percent of shelters reported a great need for more legal services for divorce in domestic violence cases, and 85 percent indicated a great need for legal services with regard to custody. In fiscal year 1998, the first year of civil legal assistance, the Department of Justice received 400 applications, of which they could only fund 57. Between fiscal years 1998 and 1999, the advocacy community estimated that only 450 attorneys and paralegals were funded through the Federal civil legal assistance program. Thus, funding levels under the Hutch-

<sup>21</sup>Both at the subcommittee and at the Full Committee markups, Representatives Conyers, Scott, and Jackson Lee offered an amendment that would have restored the categories of alienage status, age, and religion to the definition of “underserved populations.” This amendment was defeated by Majority in a party line vote. In addition, at the Full Committee markup, an amendment offered by Mr. Frank to the Conyers-Scott-Jackson Lee Amendment was adopted by voice vote that would have added “gender identity characteristics or expression” as an underserved population, as well.

<sup>22</sup>It is estimated that the Hutchinson Amendment will only fund two to four additional service providers in each State.

<sup>23</sup>For fiscal year 2000, $35.2 million was appropriated for civil legal assistance for domestic violence victims. By comparison, the Hutchinson Amendment authorizes $35.25 million for fiscal year 2001, increasing to $55 million for fiscal year 2005. Because the Hutchinson Amendment allocates 25% of these funds for civil legal assistance for victims of sexual assault, however, the Hutchinson Amendment actually reduces from current levels the monies that are available for civil legal assistance for victims of domestic violence.

inson Amendment merely scratch the surface of the overall problem.

We are also troubled by the fact that the Hutchinson Amendment contains an inappropriate restriction on funding for litigation with respect to abortion. In certain cases, abortion-related litigation may be a necessary component of civil legal assistance. For example, a woman may be newly impoverished by having left an abusive relationship and thus in need of assistance in qualifying for Medicaid, which under certain circumstances (such as rape or incest), does cover abortion services. She may be a minor who has been raped by her father in a state requiring parental consent before an abortion, who needs help to navigate the judicial-bypass process. Further, abortion-related litigation may be necessary where States are in non-compliance with the Hyde restrictions that govern Medicaid funding of abortion,<sup>24</sup> or where a woman may need an attorney to ensure compliance with even the minimal protections of the Hyde amendment. Equally problematic is the fact that the Hutchinson Amendment applies these restrictions to a new group of service providers. The restriction on abortion-related litigation currently applies to the Legal Service Corporation. The Hutchinson Amendment extends this limitation to other private, nonprofit entities, Indian tribal governments, and publicly funded organizations such as law schools. We should not be using a VAWA bill to expand the reach of current abortion-related bans to new programs and new types of organizations.<sup>25</sup>

H.R. 1248 Fails to Include Funding for Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Research

We are also very concerned that H.R. 1248 ignores the need to provide funding for research on domestic violence and sexual assault. This belies the requirements of VAWA I and flies in the face of requests for funding from the administration and others.

When Congress passed the Violence Against Women Act in 1994, it included a mandate requiring that the agencies that receive funds from VAWA appropriations devise a violence against women research agenda for the nation.<sup>26</sup> In a joint letter to Chairman Hyde dated May 15, 2000, the Department of Justice and the Department of Health and Human Services requested that the Judici-

<sup>25</sup> Representatives Conyers, Nadler, and Baldwin offered an amendment that would have provided full funding (beginning at $60 million in FY 2001 and increasing to $124 million for FY 2005) for comprehensive civil legal assistance for victims of violence. Furthermore, the amendment contained no abortion-related restrictions on funding. This amendment was based on similar provisions in H.R. 357 as well as in H.R. 4663, the Access to Safety and Advocacy for Victims of Violence Act, which was introduced by Rep. Lowey. The Conyers-Nadler-Baldwin amendment was defeated by the Republicans in a party line vote. Rep. Baldwin also offered an amendment, which was defeated in a party line vote, that would have increased the funding levels of the Hutchinson Amendment to those of the Conyers-Nadler-Baldwin Amendment and expanded the scope of civil legal assistance. In addition, Rep. Conyers offered an amendment that would have limited the abortion restrictions, so they would not apply in cases where the life or health of the expectant mother was at risk, or where the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest. This amendment was also defeated in a party line vote. Finally, Rep. Berman offered an amendment that would have allowed litigation-related abortion counseling where the life of the expectant mother was at risk, or where the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest. This amendment was also defeated by the Republicans, with only one Republican member voting in favor of it.

<sup>26</sup> Specifically, 42 U.S.C. § 13961 states that “the Attorney General shall request the National Academy of Sciences, through its National Research Council, to enter into a contract to develop a research agenda to increase the understanding and control of violence against women. . . . In setting the agenda, the Academy shall focus primarily on preventive, educative, social, and legal strategies, including addressing the needs of underserved populations.”

ary Committee authorize additional funding for research to continue to improve existing and future VAWA-funded programs. DOJ and HHS believe that VAWA reauthorization legislation should “continue to support research and evaluation in order to provide sound data for ongoing improvement of . . . programs for reducing violence against women.”<sup>27</sup>

Conservative commentators also recognize the need for additional research in the area of domestic violence. At the Crime Subcommittee hearing on H.R. 1248, Patrick Fagan of the Heritage Foundation testified that “[i]f Congress is serious about coming to grips with domestic violence, if it is serious about educating itself and then the nation, it first needs to know what is going on. . . . Congress should take what would be a rather small percentage of the VAWA money and construct a National Incidence Survey of Domestic Abuse and Neglect if it is to get to the heart of this issue (and many others related to it).”<sup>28</sup>

Unfortunately, rather than authorize additional funding for research on domestic violence and sexual assault, Rep. McCollum offered an amendment, which was adopted, that only authorized a task force to coordinate existing domestic violence research. It did not authorize any new or additional research on the causes of domestic violence and sexual assault.<sup>29</sup>

H.R. 1248 Fails to Restore a Civil Legal Remedy for Victims of Gender-Motivated Violence

We are also disappointed that the Majority refused to include any provisions seeking to ensure that the civil legal remedy in VAWA complies with the recent Supreme Court decision in United States v. Morrison.<sup>30</sup> In Morrison, the Court struck down on federalism grounds VAWA’s Federal civil legal remedy for gender-motivated crimes of violence.<sup>31</sup> This important provision was passed by Congress in 1994 to provide a guarantee that all victims of gender-motivated crimes had unencumbered access to the courts to seek civil damages against their assailants.

<sup>27</sup> Letter from Janet Reno, Attorney General, and Donna E. Shalala, Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, to Hon. Henry J. Hyde, chairman, House Committee on the Judiciary, May 15, 2000, at 3.

<sup>28</sup> Testimony of Patrick F. Fagan, William H. G. Fitzgerald Fellow in Family and Culture, The Heritage Foundation, Hearing on H.R. 1248, Crime Subcommittee, September 29, 1999.

<sup>29</sup> Representative Meehan offered an amendment that embodied the research agenda that the National Research Council, in collaboration with numerous leading anti-domestic violence groups, developed. It would have authorized grants in several areas: (1) supporting research on the causes of violence against women and the effectiveness of education, prevention and intervention programs, including research to study the developmental trajectory of violent behavior against women and an examination of the risk factors for sexual and intimate partner violence for victims and perpetrators; (2) addressing gaps in research on violence against women, particularly in underserved communities and instances where domestic violence is a factor in a divorce/child custody case, including national and community level survey studies to measure the incidence and prevalence of violence in underserved populations and the ways such women define and describe their experience of violence; (3) mandating a study and report by the U.S. Sentencing Commission on sentences given in crimes of domestic violence; and (4) directing the Attorney General to establish three research centers to develop and coordinate research on violence against women, each of which would be organized around a research area relevant to violence against women. The Meehan Amendment also would have authorized a task force to coordinate domestic violence research efforts across the country. The Majority opposed the Meehan Amendment and defeated it in a party line vote.

Representatives Conyers, Jackson Lee, and Baldwin offered an amendment that restored the Federal civil legal remedy by creating a concrete nexus between the cause of action and interstate commerce. Unfortunately, the Majority raised a point of order against this amendment and foreclosed debate and a vote on this issue. The Majority also defeated an amendment offered by Rep. Conyers that would have required States to permit a person to bring a cause of action in State court for gender-motivated violence, such as rape, in which there is no limitation on punitive or non-economic damages, such as pain and suffering.

The committee's failure to even attempt to address this issue is inexcusable. The Majority has shown no reticence in seeking to respond to court decisions concerning religious liberty and abortion. There is no reason we could not work together to ensure that the civil legal remedy for gender-motivated violence complies with the Morrison decision as well.

H.R. 1248 Fails to Protect Battered Immigrants

Another glaring omission is the Committee's failure to address or even consider the problem of battered immigrants. Prior to VAWA I, immigration laws were rightfully criticized for permitting abusive U.S. citizens and permanent residents to have total control over their family members' immigration status. As a result, battered immigrant women and children were forced to remain in abusive relationships, unable to appeal to law enforcement agencies and courts for protection because they feared being reported to the INS and consequently deported. Immigration provisions contained in VAWA I helped to remedy the situation by allowing battered immigrants who were abused by their U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident spouses or parents to file their own applications for immigration relief without the cooperation of their abusive spouse or parent, enabling them to safely flee the violence.

Despite the successes of VAWA I, immigration law continues to be a barrier that keeps immigrant women and children locked in abusive relationships. Intervening changes in immigration and welfare laws enacted by the Majority have undermined many of VAWA I's protections for battered immigrants.<sup>32</sup> As a result, many battered immigrant women and children are forced to stay with their abusers, risking their lives and the lives of their children.

<sup>32</sup>The Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996, Pub. L. No. 104-208, 110 Stat. 3009 (Sept. 30, 1996) ("IIRAIRA") and the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act, Pub. L. No. 104-193 (Aug. 22, 1996) ("PRWORA") were passed two years after the 1994 Violence Against Women Act offered protection to battered immigrant women. IIRAIRA made it more difficult for battered immigrants to access lawful immigration status. Some changes included a cap on the number of cancellation grants a year, requiring a "substantial connection" between abuse and unlawful entry, and a new definition of "continuous presence." Under PRWORA, battered immigrants were granted access to some public benefits, but across the board, this legislation significantly reduced access to public benefits for all immigrants. PRWORA eliminated eligibility for most immigrants for SSI and federal food stamps and gave States the discretion to determine whether immigrants can qualify for federal, state, and local public benefits programs. PROWORA also replaced AID to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) with Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) programs, which States have the discretion to provide or deny. Considering the unique set of economic, cultural, and social barriers faced by battered immigrant women, lack of access to immigration status and public benefits increases the vulnerability of immigrant women who are victims of domestic violence.

Representative Lofgren offered an amendment that addressed battered immigrant problems in three areas.<sup>33</sup> First, it would have addressed the provisions of VAWA I that were weakened because of subsequent legislative changes. Second, the amendment would have removed VAWA I implementation barriers that battered immigrants currently face. Third, the amendment would have improved access to VAWA immigration relief for needy battered immigrants not initially covered under VAWA I.

To restore some of the VAWA I protections that were weakened by subsequent legislation, Representative Lofgren's amendment would have created a mechanism for battered immigrant women and children to adjust their status to lawful permanent resident while in the United States. With the expiration of section 245(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act,<sup>34</sup> many battered immigrant women and children with approved VAWA self-petitions are forced to leave the United States to obtain their green cards. Traveling outside the United States deprives these battered immigrants of the protection provided by courts, legislation, custody decrees, and law enforcement. Once abroad, the battered immigrant is vulnerable to stalking and retaliatory attacks by the abuser. The Lofgren Amendment would have enabled the battered immigrant to access lawful status while safely remaining in the United States.

Additionally, one of the barriers that has arisen in implementing VAWA I is that the 1996 Immigration Law<sup>35</sup> made domestic violence a deportable crime; however, an unintended effect is that the battered immigrant spouse's pending VAWA self-petition becomes void when her husband is deported. This creates a perverse incentive for the battered immigrant spouse to tolerate the abuse, rather than report it. Representative Lofgren's amendment would have treated abused spouses like spouses in non-abusive relationships, where changes in the spouse's immigration status (denaturalization, loss or renunciation of citizenship, death of the citizen abuser) can only help, not hinder, the battered immigrant if the spouse's immigration status is upgraded. In other words, if the abusive U.S. citizen spouse or parent dies, divorces the battered immigrant, loses immigration status, renounces citizenship, or is deported, the self-petition remains valid.

The Lofgren Amendment also would have made VAWA immigration relief available to abused children and abused spouses living abroad. Under current VAWA provisions, a self-petitioner may include her undocumented children under the age of 21 as derivative beneficiaries of her VAWA self-petition. However, in order to obtain permanent resident status, the child must be under 21 at the time the application for permanent residency to be granted based on the approved self-petition. Consequently, the parent self-petitioner often will be granted permanent residency, while her child will be denied. Such a situation ruptures family unity, as the child remains undocumented and vulnerable to being reported to the INS by the abuser and then placed in removal proceedings.

<sup>33</sup>The Lofgren Amendment was substantially similar to Title VI, Subtitle C. of H.R. 357. These reforms are also included in the Battered Immigrant Women Protection Act, H.R. 3083, which is sponsored by Reps. Schakowsky, Morella, and Jackson Lee.

<sup>34</sup>The 1998 CJS bill contained a provision that eliminated the benefits of Section 245(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act for all immigrants seeking permanent residency status.

Further, presently, only spouses or minor children of citizens or permanent residents are eligible for VAWA immigration relief; therefore, abused children over the age of 21 have no access to VAWA. Consequently, a child who suffered years and years of physical and sexual abuse and who endured endless emotion torment at the hands of the U.S. citizen or permanent resident parent remains unprotected. The Lofgren Amendment would have offered VAWA relief to children over 21 as long as they could demonstrate that one or more incidents of battery or extreme cruelty had occurred before the age of 21.

Finally, current VAWA provisions mandate that the applicant victim resides in the United States to file a self-petition. As a result, if an abused woman is married to a U.S. citizen or permanent resident living abroad, she must rely on him to file a visa petition on her behalf at the American Consulate. Abusive partners may refuse to file on behalf of the battered spouse in an effort to prevent her from reporting the abuse. Therefore, battered immigrant women married to either U.S. citizens or permanent residents living outside the United States remain trapped abroad in abusive relationships, unable to seek help from trained domestic violence advocates and law enforcement officials, and unable to escape the abuse and seek VAWA immigration relief. Consequently, they cannot prosecute their abusers. The Lofgren Amendment would have allowed battered immigrants living abroad to file VAWA self-petitions. This amendment would have been particularly helpful for abused spouses and children of members of the U.S. armed forces and U.S. government employees stationed abroad.<sup>36</sup>

<sup>36</sup>This provision would have helped women such as "Vanna," the wife of a member of the U.S. military. (Names and places have been changed in the interest of victim safety. This account took place in a U.S. military base in Asia.) Vanna fled Cambodia as a small child with her parents in 1975. After spending 8 years in a refugee camp in Thailand, Vanna was repatriated to Belgium with her family, as a political refugee. There she met and married her first husband. Vanna's husband immigrated to the United States to join family members. Encouraged by her husband who had traveled ahead, Vanna came to the United States on a tourist visa with their two children. Her husband promised her that he would get her legal residency in the United States. Vanna's husband never filed her residency paperwork and her tourist visa expired. Vanna's husband gradually became more abusive, eventually breaking her nose and dislocating her shoulder. Vanna feared for her safety and went to a women's shelter. She divorced her husband four years after arriving in the U.S. Vanna was told that she could not return to Belgium as her residency status had expired because she had been out of the country for too long.

After one year on her own, Vanna met John, a U.S. citizen and an active duty service member in the U.S. military. After they married, John promised Vanna that he would submit paperwork for legal residency. John told Vanna that he could not support her and her two children and Vanna was forced to leave her son with his father. As the relationship progressed, John became emotionally abusive. John often called Vanna and her daughter names, restricted the amount of food they were allowed to eat, and where she was allowed to go. John discouraged Vanna's friendships with other women. John was often sexually abusive, forcing Vanna to engage in sexual behaviors that made her feel demeaned and humiliated.

After six months of marriage, John accepted a three-year posting to an overseas U.S. military base. He promised Vanna that her paperwork would come through while they were overseas and that there would be no problem. Vanna, feeling that she didn't have a choice, accompanied John on his military tour. Once overseas the violence in their relationship escalated further. John often threatens Vanna with withdrawing her paperwork, telling her that she would be deported back to Cambodia where she would probably be killed. John sometimes prevents Vanna from leaving the house by restraining her. John has threatened Vanna's life stating that he could make her death look like an accident. Vanna and John now have a 5-month-old son together. During one argument, John choked Vanna until she began to lose consciousness. Vanna feels she can no longer cope with the abuse and she worries about the effect it is having on her daughter. Vanna feels that she has nowhere else to go and worries what will happen to her and her children if she is not able to return to the United States. Vanna would like to self-petition for legal residency so that she can return to the United States and be reunited with her son.

The Lofgren Amendment included other necessary amendments to current VAWA provisions such as allowing discretionary waivers for good moral character determinations and training judges, immigration officials, and law enforcement officers on VAWA immigration provisions.

Regretfully, the Majority raised a point of order against this amendment, thereby preventing debate and a vote on this issue, even though immigration matters are within the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee. Although Rep. McCollum sought to argue that he supported doing “something” about the battered immigrant problem by noting Immigration Subcommittee Chairman Smith’s pledge to hold hearings on this issue, many of us are concerned that this will come too late in the process to do much good. Democrats have expressed concern about the problem of battered immigrants for the last two Congresses, and we believe that with less than six weeks left in the legislative calendar, the time for action is now, as part of H.R. 1248.<sup>37</sup>

H.R. 1248 Fails to Protect Against Custodial Sexual Abuse

H.R. 1248 also totally ignores the issue of custodial sexual abuse. According to estimates by the Department of Justice, nearly half of all female prisoners have experienced some form of sexual and/or physical abuse prior to incarceration. Over 50 percent of the female offenders surveyed indicated that they had been abused in an intimate relationship and 26 percent had been abused by a parent or guardian. In 1996 Human Rights Watch released “All Too Familiar: Sexual Abuse of Women in U.S. State Prisons,” a report documenting pervasive sexual harassment, sexual abuse, and privacy violations by guards and other corrections department employees in state prisons in California, the District of Columbia, Georgia, Illinois, Michigan, and New York. The report also exposed the failure of States to respond to women’s reports of sexual abuse and harassment.<sup>38</sup>

While people are wards of the State, they should not be put at continuing risk of abuse by prison guards. H.R. 1248 does nothing to address the serious problem of custodial sexual assault in our nation’s prisons. By contrast, Rep. Conyers’ bill, H.R. 357, would have directed the Attorney General to establish guidelines regarding the prevention of custodial sexual misconduct in prisons, prohibited individuals who have been convicted of or found civilly liable for sexual misconduct from becoming correctional staff, and criminalized sexual conduct between correctional staff and prisoners. We believe these important legislative proposals should be put on the table as part of any VAWA legislation.

<sup>37</sup>The Majority also raised points of order preventing consideration of several other worthwhile amendments seeking to address domestic violence. These include a hate crimes amendment offered by Rep. Conyers that would have criminalized conduct that injured a person because of his or her race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, or disability; an amendment offered by Reps. Scott and Conyers that would have created grants to support the development of hate crimes prevention programs; an amendment offered by Rep. Jackson Lee that would have prohibited employers from discriminating against battered women, sexual assault survivors, and stalking survivors on account of their status or experience as victims of domestic violence; and another amendment offered by Rep. Jackson Lee that would have clarified that child abuse orders—like domestic relations orders—are properly respected within ERISA so that the young victims of domestic violence are given the financial stability they deserve.

<sup>38</sup>This report was not anecdotal. In 1997, the U.S. Department of Justice sued the Michigan Department of corrections after its investigation found evidence of pervasive sexual abuse in Michigan’s prisons for women. Justice Department investigators interviewed women inmates and found that nearly every woman interviewed reported various sexually aggressive acts of guards. Still worse, the Justice Department investigators found that women at some prisons had been raped, sexually assaulted, subjected to groping and fondling during pat-frisks, and subjected to improper visual surveillance by guards in violation of the legitimate privacy interests of the women.

CONCLUSION

We believe H.R. 1248 is a step in the right direction towards reducing domestic violence, but we can and must do more. The Bureau of Justice Statistics reports that each year, about 1 million violent crimes are committed against people by their current or former spouses, boyfriends, or girlfriends. Approximately 85 percent of these victimizations were against women.<sup>39</sup> According to the Congressional Research Service, over three quarters of the adult women who were raped or physically assaulted say that the perpetrator was a current or former spouse, a co-habiting partner, or a date. As serious as these facts are, they also serve to energize us to continue the fight against domestic violence.

Thus, although we are encouraged that the Majority took action on H.R. 1248, we are disappointed that the Majority chose to weaken H.R. 1248 in important areas, such as dating violence and the definition of “underserved populations,” and opposed numerous Democratic amendments that would have provided more comprehensive and well-funded programs to address domestic violence and sexual assault in the areas of civil legal assistance and research on domestic violence. In addition, the Majority prevented debate on several Democratic amendments that would have expanded the scope of VAWA in the areas of a Federal civil remedy for victims of gender-motivated violence, battered immigrant women, hate crimes, employment, and child abuse accountability. We hope that as the bill moves forward, we will be able to incorporate these provisions into the final VAWA legislation.
