SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The inappropriate sale or purchase of social security account numbers is a significant factor in a growing range of illegal activities, including fraud, identity theft, and, in some cases, stalking and other violent crimes.

(2) While financial institutions, health care providers, and other entities have often used social security account numbers to confirm the identity of an individual, the sale or purchase of these numbers often facilitates the commission of criminal activities, and also can result in serious invasions of individual privacy.

(3) The Federal Government requires virtually every individual in the United States to obtain and maintain a social security account number in order to pay taxes, to qualify for Social Security benefits, or to seek employment. An unintended consequence of these requirements is that social security account numbers have become tools that can be used to facilitate crime, fraud, and invasions of the privacy of the individuals to whom the numbers are assigned. Because the Federal Government created and maintains this system, and because the Federal Government does not permit persons to exempt themselves from those requirements, it is appropriate for the Government to take steps to stem the abuse of this system.

(4) A social security account number is simply a sequence of numbers. In no meaningful sense can the number itself impart knowledge or ideas. Persons do not sell or transfer such numbers in order to convey any particularized message, nor to express to the purchaser any ideas, knowledge, or thoughts.

(5) A social security account number does not contain, reflect, or convey any publicly significant information or concern any public issue. The sale of such numbers in no way facilitates uninhibited, robust and wide-open public debate; and restrictions on such sale would not affect public debate.

(6) No one should seek to profit from the sale of social security account numbers in circumstances that create a substantial risk of physical, emotional, or financial harm to the individuals to whom those numbers are assigned.

(7) Consequently, Congress should enact legislation that will offer individuals assigned such numbers necessary protection from the sale and purchase of social security account numbers in circumstances that might facilitate unlawful conduct or that might otherwise likely result in unfair or deceptive practices.

TITLE I—PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBER IN THE PUBLIC SECTOR

SEC. 101. RESTRICTIONS ON THE SALE OF SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBERS BY GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES.

Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, such number (or derivative) may be made available or disclosed in such an exchange in accordance with the following exceptions (and for no other purpose):

“(I) Such number (or derivative) may be disclosed in such an exchange by a State department of motor vehicles as authorized under subsection (b) of section 2721 of title 18, United States Code, if such disclosed number (or derivative) is to be used solely for the purposes permitted under paragraph (1), (6) or (9) of such subsection.

I. INTRODUCTION

A. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Purpose

The purpose of H.R. 4857, as amended (the “Social Security Number Privacy and Identity Theft Prevention Act of 2000”) is to protect the privacy of the Social Security Account Number (SSN), to combat SSN fraud and misuse (including identity theft), and to strengthen protections for beneficiaries whose benefits are managed by representative payees.

Summary

Provisions Relating to the Social Security Account Number in the Public Sector.—The bill would limit the sale and public display of SSNs by Federal, State and local governments. In addition, the bill would prohibit the SSN from appearing on government checks issued for payment, employee identification cards or tags, and State Department of Motor Vehicle identification documents, including drivers’ licenses and motor vehicle registrations.

Provisions Relating to the Social Security Account Number in the Private Sector.—The bill would restrict the sale and purchase of SSNs and would prohibit businesses from denying services to individuals who refuse to disclose their SSNs. In addition, the bill would amend the definition of “consumer report” in the Fair Credit Reporting Act to include the SSN as part of the information protected under the Act.

Enforcement.—The bill would provide new civil and criminal penalties for violations of the law and would provide enhanced law enforcement authority for the Social Security Administration Office of Inspector General (SSA/OIG).

Provisions Relating to Representative Payees.—The bill would impose more stringent requirements on certain individuals and organizations who apply to be representative payees. It would also establish civil and criminal penalties for representative payees who abuse their duties by misusing the funds of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries, and would require the Commissioner of Social Security to reimburse certain beneficiaries whose funds have been misused.

Miscellaneous and Technical Amendments.—The bill includes miscellaneous and technical amendments to the Social Security Act and Internal Revenue Code. The bill would also eliminate deemed military wage credits for certain active duty military service, allowing the funds to be applied to other military compensation packages.

B. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The SSN was created in 1935 for the sole purpose of tracking workers' earnings so that Social Security benefits could be calculated upon retirement or disability. Over 290 million people have SSNs today.

Because a unique SSN is assigned to each individual, the number is commonly used as a personal identifier, although it was never intended for this purpose. Consequently, use of the SSN has increased dramatically since its creation.

Expanded Federal use of the SSN was first mandated by President Roosevelt in 1943 with Executive Order 9397. This Executive Order required that any Federal department establishing a new system of permanent account numbers pertaining to an individual must utilize the SSN exclusively, and that such personal information must be kept confidential. Today the SSN is required by Federal law for the administration of a number of government programs, such as Food Stamps, Medicaid, and Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, among many others.

The SSN is also widely used in the public and private sectors for purposes that are neither required nor prohibited by law. As a result, the SSN is generally regarded as the single-most widely used record identifier by both government and private sectors within the United States.

The prevalence of SSN use and the ease by which individuals can obtain another person's SSN have raised serious concerns over privacy and opportunities for fraud. For instance, in the public sector, SSN cards may be counterfeited for illegal aliens, and false SSN information may be provided to obtain federal benefits illegally. In the private sector, SSN misuse is a central component of identity theft, which is considered the fastest growing financial crime in the country, affecting approximately 500,000 to 700,000 people annually. In fiscal year 1999, SSA/OIG received 62,000 allegations of SSN misuse and the average number of monthly allegations has been increasing.

SSN misuse imposes significant costs for the government, the private sector, and individuals who are victims of identity theft. For example, reported monetary losses associated with identity theft rose from $442 million in 1995 to $745 million in 1997—a 169 percent increase in two years.

Growing concerns over fraud and privacy and the absence of a comprehensive Federal law regulating the use of SSNs have prompted a need to better protect SSNs in the law. Titles I, II and III of H.R. 4857 address this need.

Title IV of H.R. 4857 is needed to protect approximately 6.5 million Social Security and SSI beneficiaries who have representative payees manage their monthly benefits. Qualified organizations, known as "fee-for-service" organizations, may charge a fee for their services, which is collected from the beneficiary's payments. Since Fiscal Year 1998, SSA/OIG has opened over 1,350 representative payee investigations, which have led to over 300 convictions and identified over $7,500,000 in fraud losses. This misuse by representative payees of their clients' benefits has created a need to improve protections for beneficiaries.

C. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

On September 28, 2000, the Committee on Ways and Means ordered favorably reported to the House of Representatives H.R. 4857, the "Social Security Number Privacy and Identity Theft Prevention Act of 2000," as amended, by voice vote, with a quorum present.

On July 20, 2000, the Subcommittee on Social Security ordered favorably reported to the full Committee H.R. 4857, the "Privacy and Identity Protection Act of 2000," as amended, by a voice vote, with a quorum present.

The Subcommittee held hearings on May 9 and 11 and July 17, 2000, and received testimony on the use and misuse of the SSN. The hearings included testimony from the Administration, the U.S. General Accounting Office, identity theft victims, privacy advocates, and representatives from State governments and the private sector.

II. EXPLANATION OF THE BILL

A. SHORT TITLE AND FINDINGS

1. SHORT TITLE (SEC. 1 OF THE BILL)

The short title of the bill is the "Social Security Number Privacy and Identity Theft Prevention Act of 2000".

2. FINDINGS (SEC. 2 OF THE BILL)

Congress finds that SSN misuse gives rise to many illegal activities. The sale and purchase of SSNs often facilitates such activities by making SSNs easily accessible to the general public. Because the Federal government requires individuals to maintain SSNs for a variety of purposes, the Federal government should take steps to stem the abuse of SSNs. Congress finds that legislation should be enacted to restrict the sale and purchase of SSNs in circumstances that might facilitate unlawful conduct or result in unfair or deceptive practices.

B. PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBER IN THE PUBLIC SECTOR

1. RESTRICTIONS ON THE SALE AND DISPLAY OF SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBERS BY GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES (SECS. 101–106 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 205 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Generally Federal, State and local governments that collect SSNs for the administration of government programs and government-funded activities are often permitted to display and/or sell the numbers to third parties and to the general public. Government agencies may also purchase SSNs from third parties.

Explanation of provision

Section 101 of the bill would prohibit Federal, State, and local government agencies (or third-party administrators) from selling SSNs or SSN derivatives. Exceptions are made for disclosures: (1) authorized by certain provisions of the Driver's Privacy Protection Act of 1994, (2) authorized by the Fair Credit Reporting Act, (3) made for law enforcement or national security purposes in accordance with regulations issued by the Attorney General of the United States, and (4) authorized by the Social Security Act.

Section 102 of the bill would prohibit Federal, State, and local government agencies (or third-party administrators) from publicly displaying SSNs or SSN derivatives on Internet sites or on other material which is intended to be accessed by the general public. Exceptions are made for disclosures: (1) authorized by the Fair Credit Reporting Act and (2) made for law enforcement or national security purposes in accordance with regulations issued by the Attorney General of the United States.

Section 103 of the bill would prohibit Federal, State, and local government agencies (or third-party administrators) from displaying SSNs on checks issued for payments or on any documents attached to or accompanying the check. The bill does not prohibit the appearance of SSN derivatives on checks.

Section 104 of the bill would prohibit the display of SSNs or SSN derivatives on drivers' licenses, motor vehicle registrations, or other identification documents issued by State Departments of Motor Vehicles.

Section 105 of the bill would prohibit Federal, State, and local government agencies (or third-party administrators) from displaying SSNs or SSN derivatives on employee identification cards or military tags. The provision applies to identification cards which are continually and openly displayed by the individual.

Section 106 of the bill would prohibit Federal, State, and local government agencies (or third-party administrators) from employing prisoners in any capacity which provides them with access to SSNs.

Reasons for change

SSNs are widely available and easily accessible to the public. For example, SSNs are displayed on many government documents, such as marriage licenses, tax liens, bankruptcy files, and personal property records. All of these documents are available in the public domain, and many are available on the Internet. In addition, the SSN is often displayed on employee identification cards, checks, drivers' licenses and other documents which are not available to the general public, but are easily accessible by other individuals. Moreover, some government agencies sell the SSN to third parties who can subsequently sell or display the information to others.

The wide availability of SSNs has raised serious concerns over privacy. Testimony before the Subcommittee on Social Security highlights the relative ease by which an individual can obtain another person's SSN and use the information to engage in SSN-related crimes, such as identity theft. Restricting the display and sale of SSNs will help to curb fraudulent activity by making it more difficult for criminals to access this personal information.

Exceptions from some provisions of the bill are made for legitimate disclosures which benefit the public. For example, disclosure of the SSN is authorized by the Social Security Act for the administration of several programs, such as SSI, Medicare, Medicaid, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, child support enforcement, unemployment insurance, and tax reporting. These uses help ensure the effective administration of programs under the Social Security Act. The bill would not preclude the Commissioner of Social Security from being reimbursed for the expense of data matches pursuant to such authorized programs. Disclosures in accordance with these uses will continue to be permissible. Limited exceptions are also made for certain commercial disclosures. In such cases, the SSN is used for legitimate purposes that benefit the public, and the information may not be subsequently sold or displayed to the general public.

Effective date

Sections 101 through 105 are effective for sales and displays occurring after 3 years after enactment. Section 106 is effective for prisoners hired after 1 year after enactment.

2. INDEPENDENT VERIFICATION OF BIRTH RECORDS PROVIDED IN SUPPORT OF APPLICATIONS FOR SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBERS (SEC. 107 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 205 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Title II of the Social Security Act requires SSA to establish the age, citizenship, alien status, and true identity of individuals applying for SSNs. Such verification is required only to the extent that the Commissioner of Social Security determines necessary. In addition, SSA must establish whether the applicant was previously assigned a SSN. Verification of documents provided in support of SSN applications is not required under present law.

Explanation of provision

The provision would provide that the Commissioner of Social Security shall require independent verification of birth records provided in support of SSN applications, except for purposes of enumeration at birth.

The provision also would require the Commissioner of Social Security and the Attorney General of the United States to jointly submit a report to Congress detailing the progress of SSA and the Immigration and Naturalization Service in implementing a process for enumeration of aliens at admission who have a need for SSNs.

Reason for change

SSA is not required to verify the birth certificates presented by SSN applicants. Requiring such verification will make it more difficult for individuals to obtain fraudulent SSNs and to use such SSNs to commit crimes.

Effective date

The provision applies to applications filed after 1 year after the date of enactment. The report must be submitted not later than 1 year after the date of enactment.

3. REPORT BY GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE ON USE BY GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES AS PERSONAL IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS (SEC. 108 OF THE BILL)

Present law

The SSN is required, by law, for the administration of several programs and Federally funded activities. For example, Federal law requires or permits the use of the SSN for Federal income tax purposes, the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program, applications for drivers' licenses or motor vehicle registrations, Medicaid eligibility, loan applications, child support enforcement, and boxing licenses. In addition, the SSN is used by government agencies for many other purposes that are neither required nor prohibited by law.

The Privacy Act of 1974 applies to personal information maintained in a system of records by agencies in the executive branch of the Federal Government. It provides safeguards against an invasion of privacy through the misuse of records by agencies and provides that no Federal, State or local government agency may withhold a benefit from a person simply because the individual refuses to furnish his or her SSN (unless the disclosure is required by Federal statute or the disclosure was required by statute or regulation for a system of records, if both were adopted prior to January 1, 1975). It also requires that when Federal, State and local agencies request the individual's SSN, they must inform the individual if disclosure is mandatory or voluntary.

Explanation of provision

The provision would require the Comptroller General of the United States to conduct a comprehensive study regarding the use of SSNs and SSN derivatives as personal identifiers by all levels and branches of Federal, State and local governments. The study shall include recommendations regarding the most effective means of minimizing such use beyond its original purpose.

Reason for change

The use of the SSN has expanded far beyond its original purpose and far beyond purposes authorized by statute. The prevalent use of the SSN as a personal identifier makes the number a key component of many financial crimes, such as identity theft. Limiting the prevalent use of SSNs as a personal identifier would, therefore, reduce the opportunities for such crimes.

The committee intends that this study shall include an assessment of the current uses that may result or have resulted in fraud; identification of effective privacy protection practices; review of the cost factors associated with transitioning to new systems of identification; review of the use of SSNs by third-party administrators providing services for public and private agencies; review of liability issues relative to the misuse of SSNs; a summary as to how SSNs are displayed in public view; and, a comparison of public and private sector utilization of SSNs for identification purposes. The study shall also include recommendations regarding the most effective means of minimizing such use beyond its original purpose.

Effective date

The report is due not later than 1 year after enactment.

C. PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT
NUMBER IN THE PRIVATE SECTOR

1. REGULATION OF THE SALE AND PURCHASE OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY
ACCOUNT NUMBER IN THE PRIVATE SECTOR (SEC. 201 OF THE BILL)¹

Present law

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) (15 U.S.C. §1681 et seq.), administered by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), codifies the rules regarding how credit information is gathered, disclosed, and used. The FCRA is intended to protect the privacy and to promote the accuracy of information contained in credit reports. Under the law, credit reports may be disclosed and used only for certain legitimate purposes, which are outlined in the Act. However, personal identifying information found at the top of the credit report (which includes the SSN) is not considered part of the credit report and, therefore, is exempt from FCRA regulations.

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (P.L. 106–102) prohibits financial institutions' from disclosing nonpublic personal information about consumers to non-affiliated third parties, unless the institution satisfies various disclosure and opt-out requirements.

Explanation of provision

The provision would require the FTC to promulgate regulations restricting the sale or purchase of SSNs in the private sector. The definitions of “sale” and “purchase” would not include submitting the number to apply for government benefits, or transferring the number as part of a computer matching program defined in the law. Exceptions would be made for several purposes, including law enforcement, national security, public health, and in those circumstances where the individual has voluntarily provided written consent. Violations would be enforced criminally by the Department of Justice or civilly under the Federal Trade Commission Act regarding unfair or deceptive acts or practices. In addition, the attorney general of a State may bring a civil action on behalf of its residents under the FTC regulations.

Reason for change

The SSN is used in the private sector to facilitate a wide variety of legitimate business transactions. For example, private-sector SSN use helps improve access to financial and credit services, reduces administrative costs, and improves record-keeping so consumers can be identified and contacted accurately. However, the pervasive sale and purchase of SSNs in the private sector facilitates SSN fraud by making SSNs easily accessible to the general public. In addition, Americans are increasingly concerned that the SSNs, which they disclose for one purpose, are subsequently sold to third parties and used for other purposes without their knowledge or consent. Consequently, the law should restrict the sale and purchase of SSNs in the private sector in order to protect privacy

¹Jurisdiction of the Committee on Commerce and stem abuse. However, such restrictions should focus to the greatest extent possible on ensuring that the SSN will not be used to commit or facilitate fraud, deception, or crime and on preventing undue risk of bodily, emotional, or financial harm to individuals, without interfering with legitimate uses of the SSN.

Effective date

Regulations are due one year after the date of enactment and take effect 30 days after final issuance.

2. REFUSAL TO DO BUSINESS WITHOUT RECEIPT OF SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBER CONSIDERED UNFAIR OR DECEPTIVE ACT OR PRACTICE (SEC. 202 OF THE BILL)²

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

The provision would provide that the denial of service to an individual who refuses to provide his or her SSN will be considered an unfair or deceptive act or practice under the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Reason for change

According to the General Accounting Office (Social Security: Government and Commercial Use of the Social Security Number is Widespread, Report #HEHS-99-28), there is no law prohibiting the denial of services or goods by the private sector if an individual declines to provide his or her SSN, even if there appears to be no rational basis for requiring the SSN. Individuals are warned that they should not carry their SSN cards, yet businesses routinely request the number in order to complete transactions. Because of the considerable potential for SSN misuse and the consequences of such misuse, individuals should not be required to disclose their SSN to conduct routine business transactions. However, it is not the intent of the provision to prohibit businesses from requesting the SSN for purposes specifically required by law.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

3. CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT OF CREDIT HEADER INFORMATION (SEC. 203 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 603 OF THE FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT)³

Present law

In general, consumer reports contain two kinds of information. The “credit header,” which is listed at the top of the consumer report contains identifying information, such as the individual’s, name, address, date of birth, marital status, mother’s maiden name, and SSN among other things. The “credit report” lists the individual’s credit information and the timeliness of payments. Credit reports may also contain public record information, such as tax liens, court judgements and bankruptcies.

² Jurisdiction of the Committee on Commerce

³ Jurisdiction of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

The FCRA regulates the disclosure and use of an individual's credit report. This information may be disclosed only for certain legitimate purposes, which are outlined in the FCRA. According to FTC rulings, the definition of "credit report" contained in the FCRA does not include credit header information. As a result, this identifying information is exempt from FCRA regulations.

Explanation of provision

The provision would amend the definition of "consumer report" under the FCRA to include the SSN, thus subjecting the SSN to FCRA regulations.

Reason for change

Credit header information contains an individual's SSN and other unique identifying information. This information does not receive the same privacy protections as the rest of the credit report. Consequently, organizations who collect this personal information may make it available to the public or sell it without an individual's knowledge or consent. The information may subsequently be used for inappropriate purposes. The SSN should receive the same protections as other information in the credit report which is regulated by the FCRA. The provision is not intended to expand the scope of the FCRA's definition of consumer reporting agency relative to current law.

Effective date

90 days after the date of enactment.

D. ENFORCEMENT

1. CRIMINAL AND CIVIL MONETARY PENALTIES AND ORDERS OF RESTITUTION (SECS. 301–304 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 208, 1129, 1129A, 807, AND 1632 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

The Social Security Act provides criminal penalties for: (1) providing false information to obtain a SSN, (2) providing false information to obtain benefits, (3) using a SSN obtained through false information, (4) falsely represents a SSN to be theirs with intent to deceive, (5) altering a SSN card, (6) counterfeiting a SSN card, (7) buying or selling a SSN card, (8) possessing a SSN card with intent to sell or alter it, and (9) disclosing, using, or compelling the disclosure of the SSN of any person in violation of any Federal law. Present law does not permit trial judges to order restitution if an individual is convicted of a violation.

The Social Security Act also authorizes SSA to impose civil monetary penalties for any person who makes a false statement of a material fact, or omits a material fact while providing a statement, for use in determining eligibility for, or the amount of, Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits.

Explanation of provision

Sections 301 and 302 of the bill would provide for criminal penalties of up to five years in prison and fines of up to $250,000 for the: (1) offer to acquire, for a fee, an additional SSN for an individual, (2) violation of sections 101 through 106 of Title I of this legislation by an officer, employee, or agent of any Federal, State or local government agency, and (3) sale or purchase of SSNs as those terms are defined in sections 208(d)(2) and (3) of the Social Security Act.

Section 303 of the bill would authorize SSA to impose civil monetary penalties, in addition to any other penalties that apply, of up to $5,000 for each of the following violations: (1) omission of a statement that the individual should have made to SSA in connection with determining eligibility for, or the amount of benefits; (2) using a SSN obtained through false information; (3) falsely represents a SSN to be theirs; (4) alters a Social Security card; (5) buying or selling a SSN card; (6) counterfeiting a Social Security card; (7) disclosure, use, sale, or purchase of another person's SSN in violation of any Federal law; (8) offer to acquire, for a fee, an additional SSN for an individual; and (9) violation of sections 101 through 106 of this Act by improper sale of SSNs by an officer, employee, or agent of a Federal, State or local government agency.

Section 304 of the bill would allow trial judges to order restitution for violations of the Social Security Act. Amounts recovered will be credited to special account in the Treasury and will be available to defray expenses associated with carrying out Titles II, VIII, and XVI of the Social Security Act.

Reason for change

SSN misuse can result in considerable costs for the government, the private sector, and individuals who are victims of fraud. In many cases, the costs of SSN misuse extend beyond monetary losses. Because of the gravity of SSN misuse, it is appropriate to provide criminal and civil monetary penalties for violations of the law relating to SSN misuse.

Providing trial judges with the ability to impose restitution will enhance trial judges' ability to further penalize offenders and further provide the opportunity for the Social Security programs to be compensated for losses resulting from SSN misuse.

Effective date

Sections 301 through 304 are effective for violations occurring after enactment, except that penalties for violations in connection with Sections 101 through 106 of Title I of this Act shall apply with respect to violations occurring on or after the applicable effective date of each section.

2. LAW ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY FOR THE OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION (SEC. 305 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 702 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Since September 1995, SSA/OIG Special Agents have been designated as Special Deputy United States Marshals pursuant to a Memorandum of Understanding with the Department of Justice (DoJ). Under the Memorandum of Understanding, the designated Special Agents have law enforcement authority.

Explanation of provision

This provision would codify the current Memorandum of Understanding between DoJ and SSA/OIG, subject to guidelines approved by the Attorney General of the United States. The provision also allows the Inspector General to cross-designate State and local law enforcement officers to assist SSA/OIG Special Agents in investigations as needed.

Reason for change

Designation as Special Deputy United States Marshals allows SSA/OIG to properly investigate allegations of criminal violations of the programs and operations of SSA. On July 19, 2000, DoJ testified before the United States Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs that effective January 31, 2001, this renewable deputation would no longer be provided due to a lack of resources for the United States Marshals Service.

In addition, designation of State and local law enforcement officers to assist SSA/OIG Special Agents in investigating criminal allegations of fraud, is particularly important due to the unique Federal/State relationship in administering the Social Security disability program. Such designation would assist SSA/OIG to better coordinate investigative efforts with State law enforcement.

Effective date

Effective upon the approval of the guidelines by the Attorney General, which shall be issued within 1 year after the date of enactment.

E. PROVISIONS RELATING TO REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES

1. AUTHORITY TO REISSUE BENEFITS MISUSED BY ORGANIZATIONAL REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES (SEC. 401 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 205, 807, 1613, AND 1631 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

The Social Security Act requires the re-issuance of benefits in cases of misuse by an individual or organizational representative payee when there has been a finding by the Commissioner of Social Security of negligent failure by the Commissioner to investigate or monitor the payee.

Explanation of provision

The provision would require the Commissioner of Social Security to re-issue benefits under Titles II, VIII, or XVI whenever an individual representative payee serving 15 or more beneficiaries, or an organizational representative payee, is found to have misused a beneficiary's funds.

The provision defines misuse as any case in which a representative payee converts the benefits entrusted to his or her care for purposes other than the "use and benefit" of the beneficiary and requires the Commissioner to define "use and benefit" in regulation. However, the Committee does not intend for the definition of misuse to include a conversion of benefits that is not exclusively for the "use and benefit" of the beneficiary. For instance, the Committee does not envision misuse to include cases in which a rep-representative payee uses the benefits entrusted to his or her care to help pay the rent on an apartment that he or she and the beneficiary share.

Reason for change

Within recent years there have been a number of highly-publicized cases involving organizational representative payees that have misused large sums of monies paid to them on behalf of the Social Security and SSI beneficiaries they represent. In most instances, these organizations operated as criminal enterprises bent not only on stealing funds from beneficiaries, but also on carefully concealing the evidence of their wrongdoing. These illegal activities went undetected until large sums had been stolen. As a result, the affected beneficiaries may never be repaid, or may be repaid only when the representative payee who committed the misuse makes restitution to SSA.

Requiring SSA to reissue benefit payments to the victims of such misuse protects beneficiaries served by organizational representative payees. These beneficiaries are among the most vulnerable because they have no family members or friends who are willing or able to protect their interests by managing their benefits.

With respect to individual representative payees, the provision applies only to representative payees serving 15 or more beneficiaries. Limiting the provision in this manner is justified because the aggregate amount that can be misused in cases involving representative payees serving many beneficiaries is much greater.

Moreover, extending the provision to cases involving individual representative payees serving fewer beneficiaries may lead to fraudulent claims of misuse. These claims, which often turn on information available only from close family members, would be difficult to disprove. Similarly, extension of this provision to these cases could potentially encourage misuse or poor money management by these individual representative payees if they believed that the beneficiary could eventually be paid a second time by SSA.

Effective date

The provision is effective for misuses occurring on or after January 1, 1995, as determined by the Commissioner.

2. OVERSIGHT OF REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES (SEC. 402 OF BILL AND SECS. 205, 807 AND 1631 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Present law requires nongovernmental fee-for-service organizational representative payees to be licensed or bonded. However, there is no provision requiring the yearly submission of proof of licensing or bonding or the submission of independent audits. In addition, there is no provision requiring periodic onsite reviews of organizational representative payees (other than the accountability monitoring done for State institutions that serve as representative payees).

Explanation of provision

The provision would require nongovernmental fee-for-service organizational representative payees to be both licensed and bonded, provided that licensing is available in the State. In addition, representative payees must submit yearly proof of bonding and licensing, as well as any available independent audit.

The Commissioner of Social Security would be required to conduct periodic onsite reviews of certain representative payees: (1) a person who serves as a representative payee to 15 or more beneficiaries, (2) nongovernmental fee-for-service representative payees (as defined in titles II and XVI) or, (3) any other agency that serves as the representative payee to 50 or more beneficiaries.

Reason for change

Strengthening the requirements for representative payees would add further safeguards to protect beneficiaries' funds. State licensing provides for some oversight by the State into the fee-for-service organization's business practices, and bonding provides some assurances that a surety company has investigated the organization and approved it for the level of risk associated with the bond for all community based non-profit social service agencies serving as representative payees.

On-site periodic visits should be conducted regularly, and to the degree possible, appropriate auditing and accounting standards be utilized in conducting such reviews.

Effective date

Effective the first day of the 13th month after enactment, except that the periodic review requirement would be effective upon enactment.

3. DISQUALIFICATION FROM SERVICE AS REPRESENTATIVE PAYEE UPON CONVICTION OF OFFENSES RESULTING IN IMPRISONMENT FOR MORE THAN 1 YEAR (SEC. 403 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 205, 807 AND 1631 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Individuals are disqualified from service as representative payees upon conviction of criminal violations under the Social Security Act.

Explanation of provision

The provision would disqualify an individual from serving as a representative payee if he or she has been convicted of an offense resulting in more than one year of imprisonment, unless the Commissioner of Social Security determines that such certification would be appropriate notwithstanding such conviction.

Reason for change

Present law does not disqualify individuals from serving as representative payees if they have been convicted of criminal offenses outside of the Social Security Act. The Committee believes that allowing convicted persons to serve as representative payees, especially those convicted of criminal fraud offenses, increases the likelihood of mismanagement or abuse of beneficiaries' funds.

Effective date

Effective the first day of the 13th month beginning after the date of enactment.

4. FEE FORFEITURE IN CASE OF BENEFIT MISUSE BY REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES (SEC. 404 OF BILL AND SECS. 205 AND 1631 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Certain organizational representative payees are authorized to collect a fee for their services. This fee is deducted from their clients' benefit payments.

Explanation of provision

The provision would require representative payees to forfeit their fee from the beneficiary's benefits for the months during which the representative payee misused the funds, as determined by the Commissioner of Social Security or a court of competent jurisdiction.

Reason for change

Representative payees who misuse their clients' funds are not required to forfeit the fees they collect. The Committee believes that payees who misuse their clients' funds are not properly performing the service for which the fee was paid. As a result, the payee should be required to forfeit these fees. Permitting the organization to retain the fees is tantamount to rewarding the payee for violating his or her responsibility to use the benefits for an individual's needs.

Effective date

Applies to any month involving benefit misuse by a representative payee where the Commissioner of Social Security makes the determination of misuse after December 31, 1999.

5. LIABILITY OF REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES FOR MISUSED BENEFITS (SEC. 405 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 205, 807 AND 1631 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This provision would provide that misused benefits by a non-governmental representative payee shall be treated as overpayments to the representative payee, subject to current overpayment recovery authorities. Any recovered benefits not reissued to the beneficiary pursuant to section 401 of this legislation would be reissued under this provision to the beneficiary or their alternate representative payee, up to the total amount misused.

Reason for change

Although SSA has been provided with expanded authority to recover overpayments (such as tax refund offsets, referral to contract collection agencies, notifying credit bureaus, and administrative offsets of future federal benefit/payments), these tools cannot be used to recoup benefits misused by a representative payee. Treating misused benefits as overpayments to the representative payee would provide SSA with additional means for recovering the misused payments. The change would enhance protections for all beneficiaries with payees, not just those with organizational payees.

Effective date

Applies to benefit misuse by a representative payee in any case where the Commissioner of Social Security makes the determination of misuse after December 31, 1999.

6. EXTENSION OF CIVIL MONETARY PENALTY AUTHORITY WITH RESPECT TO REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES (SEC. 406 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 1129 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

The Social Security Act authorizes SSA to impose civil monetary penalties for any person who makes a false statement of a material fact, or omits a material fact while providing a statement to SSA, for use in determining Social Security or SSI benefits, or to affect the amount of such benefits.

Explanation of provision

This provision would authorize SSA to impose a civil monetary penalty for offenses involving misuse of Social Security, Title VIII, or SSI benefits received by a representative payee on behalf of another individual. The penalty equals up to $5,000 for each violation. In addition, the representative payee shall be subject to an assessment in lieu of damages sustained by the United States resulting from the conversion, of not more than twice the amount of the misused payments.

Reason for change

Representative payees who misuse beneficiaries' funds are subject to criminal penalties under current law. Providing civil monetary penalties (in addition to SSA's present authority permitting recovery of misused funds) would provide SSA with an additional means of addressing misuse by representative payees.

Effective date

Applies to violations occurring after the date of enactment.

7. AUTHORITY TO REDIRECT DELIVERY OF BENEFIT PAYMENTS WHEN A REPRESENTATIVE PAYEE FAILS TO PROVIDE REQUIRED ACCOUNTING (SEC. 407 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 205, 807 AND 1631 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

The Social Security Act requires representative payees to submit an accounting report to the Commissioner of Social Security detailing how benefit payments received on a client's behalf were used. The report is required at least annually, but may be requested by the Commissioner at any time if the Commissioner has reason to believe the representative payee is misusing benefits.

Explanation of provision

The provision would provide SSA with the authority to redirect payments of Social Security, Title VIII, and SSI benefits to local Social Security field offices if a representative payee fails to provide an annual accounting of benefits report. The Commissioner would be required to provide proper notice and the opportunity for a hearing prior to redirecting benefits.

Reason for change

Accounting reports are an important means of monitoring the activities of representative payees and establishing accountability. Failure to submit these reports to the Commissioner makes it more difficult for the Commissioner to detect fraud and misuse. As a result, steps should be taken to protect beneficiaries when representative payees fail to submit their reports in a timely manner. Redirecting benefit payments to the field office, and notifying the payee of the possibility, would provide an effective tool for increasing the number of payees who return the annual accounting form.

Effective date

180 days after enactment.

F. MISCELLANEOUS AND TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

1. TECHNICAL CORRECTION RESPECTING RESPONSIBLE AGENCY HEAD
(SEC. 501 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 1143 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Section 1143 of the Social Security Act requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to provide individuals with periodic Social Security statements.

Explanation of provision

The provision would delete all references to the “Secretary of Health and Human Services” found in Section 1143 of the Social Security Act and replaces them with the “Commissioner of Social Security”.

Reason for change

When the Congress enacted the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, it established the Social Security Administration as an independent agency within the Executive Branch of the Federal Government. All duties relating to the administration of Social Security and SSI benefits were transferred from the Secretary of Health and Human Services to the Commissioner of Social Security. This transfer of duties was not incorporated into Section 1143 of the Social Security Act. This provision remedies the oversight.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

2. TECHNICAL CORRECTION RESPECTING DOMESTIC EMPLOYMENT (SEC. 502 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 3121 OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1986 AND SEC. 209 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Present law is ambiguous concerning the tax treatment of domestic service performed on a farm. Domestic employment on a farm appears to be subject to two separate coverage thresholds (one for agricultural labor and another for domestic employees).

Explanation of provision

This provision would remove references to domestic employment from the definition of agricultural employment. The definition of domestic employment will specify that domestic employment includes domestic service performed on a farm.

Reason for change

Prior to 1994, domestic service on a farm was treated as agricultural labor and was subject to the coverage threshold for agricultural labor. In 1994, when Congress amended the law with respect to domestic employment, the intent was that domestic employment on a farm would be subject to the coverage threshold for domestic employees instead of agricultural labor. However, the language is unclear and it appears that farm domestics are subject to both thresholds.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

3. TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS OF OUTDATED REFERENCES (SEC. 503 OF THE BILL AND SECS. 202 AND 211 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT AND 3102 OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1986)

Present law

No provision.

Explanation of provision

This provision would conform references in the law. For example, section 3102(a) of the Internal Revenue Code (pertaining to the deduction of the Social Security taxes from a worker's wages) still refers to a 20-day work test for Social Security coverage of agricultural labor. However, the 20-day work test was deleted from the Social Security Act in 1987.

Reason for change

Over the years, provisions in the Social Security Act, the Internal Revenue Code and other related laws have been deleted, re-designated or amended. However, necessary conforming changes have not always been made. Consequently, Social Security law contains some outdated references.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

4. TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS RELATING TO RETIREMENT BENEFITS OF MINISTERS (SEC. 504 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 211 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Certain retirement benefits received by ministers and members of religious orders (such as the rental value of a parsonage or parsonage allowance) are not subject to Social Security payroll taxes under the Internal Revenue Code. However, they are treated as net earnings from self-employment under the Social Security Act for the purpose of acquiring insured status and calculating Social Security benefits.

Explanation of provision

This provision would amend the Social Security Act to exclude for Social Security benefit purposes certain benefits (including the rental value of a parsonage or parsonage allowance) received by retired ministers or members of religious orders.

Reason for change

Some types of income are not subject to Social Security payroll taxes, but they are used to earn insured status under Social Security and to compute benefits under the Social Security program. Thus, the income is not treated in a uniform manner. The provision is needed to conform the Social Security Act to the Internal Revenue Code with respect to such income.

Effective date

Effective for years beginning before, on, or after December 31, 1994.

5. REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO OFFERS TO PROVIDE FOR A FEE A PRODUCT OR SERVICE AVAILABLE WITHOUT CHARGE FROM THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION (SEC. 505 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 1140 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Section 1140 of the Social Security Act prohibits or restricts various activities involving the use of SSA symbols, emblems, or references. It also provides for the imposition of civil monetary penalties with respect to violations of the Section.

Explanation of provision

The provision would amend Section 1140 by adding a mandatory requirement that persons or companies include in their solicitations a statement that services which they provide for a fee are available directly from SSA free of charge. The statements would be required to comply with standards promulgated by the Commissioner of Social Security with respect to their content, placement, visibility, and legibility.

Reason for change

Several individuals or companies offer Social Security services for a fee even though the same services are available directly from SSA free of charge. Oftentimes, customers are not informed that the service may be obtained for free from SSA. These practices mislead and deceive senior citizens, newlyweds, new parents, and other individuals seeking services from SSA. The provision is needed to protect these consumers.

Effective date

Applies to offers of assistance made after the sixth month ending after the Commissioner of Social Security promulgates regulations prescribing notice standards.

6. FUNDING FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS PROVIDING FOR REDUCTIONS IN DISABILITY INSURANCE BENEFITS BASED ON EARNINGS (SEC. 506 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 302 OF THE TICKET TO WORK AND WORK INCENTIVES IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1999)

Present law

The Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act requires SSA to conduct a demonstration project regarding the effects of gradually reducing Social Security Disability Insurance benefits by $1 for every $2 in earnings over a level determined by the Commissioner. The law is ambiguous regarding appropriations for the demonstration project.

Explanation of provision

The provision would clarify that the administrative costs associated with the demonstration projects will be appropriated annually, to the extent or in the amounts provided in advance in appropriation Acts. The cost of paying increased benefits will not be appropriated.

Reason for change

The demonstration projects required under present law will increase administrative costs for SSA and will also increase benefit payments to disabled beneficiaries taking part in the projects. The law is unclear regarding the appropriation of funds to cover these increased costs.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

7. OPTIONAL FEDERAL ADMINISTRATION OF STATE RECOGNITION PAYMENTS (SEC. 507 OF THE BILL AND TITLE VIII OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Title VIII of the Social Security Act provides for Federal payments to certain World War II U.S. veterans, including Filipino veterans, who were eligible for SSI in December 1999 and who now reside outside of the United States.

Explanation of provision

The provision would provide the Commissioner of Social Security with the authority to enter into an agreement with a State to make State Recognition payments to qualified individuals eligible for Title VIII benefits on the State's behalf.

Reason for change

Title XVI of the Social Security Act provides for State supplementary payments to individuals under the SSI program. These payments are funded by the States. However, SSA may enter into an agreement with a State to make these supplementary payments on the State's behalf. Title VIII of the Social Security Act provides for Federal payments to certain qualified veterans and at least one State has established a program to provide State recognition payments to Filipino veterans eligible for Title VIII. The Commissioner does not have the authority to administer these payments on a State's behalf. The provision provides the Commissioner with this authority under Title VIII comparable to the Title XVI authority.

Effective date

Date of enactment.

8. MILITARY WAGE CREDITS (SEC. 508 OF THE BILL AND SEC. 229 OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT)

Present law

Active duty military service members currently receive deemed military wages credits of $100 for every $300 of earnings subject to a maximum credit of $1,200 annually. Credits are not granted if earnings are at or above the maximum taxable wage base ($76,200 in 2000). These credits are used to determine the individual's insured status and benefit payments. The Department of Defense (DoD) is required to reimburse to the Social Security trust funds an amount equal to the combined employer and employee share of the payroll tax contribution on the amount of deemed wage credits that are given.

Explanation of provision

The provision would eliminate deemed military wage credits for active duty military service, except for earnings below the grade of E-6 in the case of service members who die or become disabled before attainment of age 47 if, at the time the wage credits are used in the computation, the service member had fewer than 6 years of military service.

Reason for change

The DoD is currently developing proposals to reconfigure the total benefits package now available to military service personnel. The provision would eliminate military wage credits for certain active duty military service members, allowing DoD to reapply funds to other essential military pay and retirement initiatives with minimal impact on the service member's future Social Security benefit. The provision would protect those service members who still need the benefit protection provided by deemed military wage credits.

Effective date

Effective for deemed military wage credits that would be credited to a worker's earnings record for 2002 or later.

III. VOTES OF THE COMMITTEE

In compliance with clause 3(b) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following statements are made concerning the votes of the Committee on Ways and Means in its consideration of the bill, H.R. 4857.

MOTION TO REPORT THE BILL

The bill, H.R. 4857, as amended, was ordered favorably reported by a voice vote (with a quorum being present).

IV. BUDGET EFFECTS OF THE BILL

A. COMMITTEE ESTIMATES ON BUDGETARY EFFECTS

In compliance with clause 3(d)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following statement is made concerning the effects on the budget of the bill, H.R. 4857, as reported. The Committee agrees with the estimate provided by CBO which is below.

B. STATEMENT REGARDING NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY AND TAX EXPENDITURES

Budget authority

In compliance with clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that the bill involves no new increased budget authority. The bill increases off-budget direct spending from Social Security Trust Funds, however, the Social Security Administration's Office of the Chief Actuary has determined that such spending will have a negligible effect on the long-range Social Security actuarial balance. The bill has no effect on revenues.

C. COST ESTIMATE PREPARED BY THE CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, requiring a cost estimate prepared by the Congressional Budget Office ("CBO"), the following statement by CBO is provided.

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, October 6, 2000.

Hon. BILL ARCHER,
*Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 4857, the Social Security Number Privacy and Identity Theft Prevention Act of 2000.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contacts are Sheila Dacey and Kathy Ruffing.

Sincerely,

BARRY B. ANDERSON
(For Dan L. Crippen, Director).

Enclosure.

H.R. 4857—Social Security Number Privacy and Identity Theft Prevention Act of 2000

Summary: H.R. 4857 would address the increasing use of the Social Security number (SSN) for personal identification by limiting the sale, purchase, display, and uses of the number. It would tighten procedures for obtaining an SSN and impose or stiffen criminal and civil penalties for misuse. H.R. 4857 would also strengthen the supervision of representative payees (people who receive benefit checks belonging to others, such as children or mentally-impaired adults) and make several, mostly technical, amendments to the Social Security Act. In addition, the bill would eliminate the payment of Social Security and Medicare Hospital Insurance (HI) benefits related to non-cash compensation earned by members of the armed forces, and the associated annual payment from the Department of Defense (DoD) to the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4857 would increase direct spending by $2 million in 2001 and by negligible amounts thereafter. It would also lead to slight increases in receipts from penalties. Because H.R. 4857 would affect direct spending and receipts, pay-as-you-go procedures would apply.

H.R. 4857 would also affect discretionary spending. DoD would save up to $400 million annually that it now pays to the Social Security and Hospital Insurance trust funds. In addition, the bill would cause the Social Security Administration (SSA) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to incur a total of about $30 million a year in additional enforcement costs.

H.R. 4857 contains a number of intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA), including limitations on the sale, display, and use of Social Security numbers by state or local governments. CBO estimates that the aggregate costs of those mandates would exceed the threshold established in UMRA ($55 million in 2000), adjusted annually for inflation) in at least one of the next five years.

The bill contains several private-sector mandates on businesses that now use Social Security numbers. CBO estimates that the costs of complying those mandates would significantly exceed the threshold for private-sector mandates specified in UMRA ($109 million in 2000, adjusted annually for inflation).

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 4857 is shown in Table 1. This legislation affects multiple budget functions—chiefly 050 (national defense), 600 (income security), 650 (Social Security), and 950 (undistributed off-setting receipts).

Basis of estimate: CBO assumes that H.R. 4857 will be enacted in October 2000, and that the authorized amounts will be appropriated at the beginning of each fiscal year.

Direct spending and revenues

Titles I, II, and III. The first two titles address the uses of the SSN in the public sector (federal, state, and local governments) and private sectors, respectively; the third deals with enforcement. Several provisions could affect the federal budget. Requiring birth records from all applicants for SSNs—as is already automatic in the hospital-based Enumeration at Birth program—and granting more law enforcement powers to the Inspector General of SSA, for example, might curtail fraudulent payments of benefits. Allowing SSA to impose civil monetary penalties and collect court-ordered restitution in cases of SSN fraud or misuse could boost governmental receipts. Similarly, allowing the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to impose civil monetary penalties when businesses violate the new law would also raise receipts. Based on information from SSA and FTC staffs, CBO estimates that such budgetary effects would be negligible in the 2001–2010 period.

Title IV. The fourth title would tighten SSA’s oversight of representative payees. About 5 million recipients of Social Security benefits (2 million adults and 3 million children) and 2 million recipients of Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits (1 million adults and 1 million children) collect these payments through representative payees. Typically, a family member serves as a representative payee. But especially for adult recipients, the payee may be a social service agency, an institution, or a similar organization. SSA monitors representative payees by requiring annual accounting reports and by conducting on-site reviews every three years of certain representative payees who serve a large number of beneficiaries. Title IV would direct SSA to certify annually that social service agencies meet licensing and bonding requirements and to conduct periodic on-site inspections of more representative payees. It would enhance SSA’s ability to recover misused funds and to impose civil monetary penalties.

Most provisions of Title IV would have negligible effects on benefit payments or recoveries. Section 401, however, would direct SSA to pay beneficiaries any amounts that had been misused by an organizational representative payee, even if there had been no negligence on SSA's part. (Currently, such claimants must show negligence by SSA.) Representative payees misuse about $3 million in benefits each year. Only about 10 percent of payees are organizations that would be affected by this provision, so CBO assumes that it would cost about $300,000 a year. Because the provision would be retroactive to January 1, 1995, CBO estimates that it would cost $2 million in 2001 and $5 million over the 2001–2010 period.

Title V. The fifth title chiefly contains technical clarifications or minor changes to the Social Security Act. One of those provisions would have a small budgetary effect.

Members of the armed services receive cash pay plus other compensation such as housing, food, and uniform allowances. Under current law, they may get credit for an extra $1,200 of earnings each year toward the calculation of their eventual Social Security benefits to reflect that noncash pay. Each year, DoD pays about $300 million to the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance trust funds and about $75 million to the Hospital Insurance (Medicare Part A) trust fund to pay for those extra credits. H.R. 4857 would eliminate both the DoD payment and the resulting benefits except in very isolated cases of early death or disability. CBO estimates that the savings in benefit payments over the 2002–2010 period would be negligible.

Spending subject to appropriation

Based on information from SSA, CBO judges that H.R. 4857 would cost the agency about $30 million a year in administrative costs. Verifying birth records of roughly 1.7 million people each year who apply for an SSN outside of the Enumeration at Birth program would require an estimated 250 workyears each year and cost $16 million to $19 million annually. More rigorous oversight of representative payees, chiefly from conducting on-site inspections of a broader range of payees, would add about 130 workyears and cost $10 million to $11 million annually.

H.R. 4857 would define any document containing a Social Security number as a consumer report. Consumer reports are regulated by the Federal Trade Commission under the Fair Credit Reporting Act. Based on information from the FTC, CBO expects that the agency would have to hire new personnel in order to regulate the handling of documents containing Social Security numbers. CBO estimates that these new staff would cost about $3 million per year.

DoD pays $350 million to $400 million a year to the Social Security and Hospital Insurance trust funds to reflect the taxes due on the value of noncash allowances. As discussed above, H.R. 4857 would end that practice in most cases. These are intragovernmental payments, however, so their elimination would have no net effect on the budget. If future appropriations were cut commensurately, discretionary spending would be lower by $1.5 billion over the 2002–2005 period. But receipts to the trust funds would decline commensurately, as shown in the memorandum item in Table 1. Because that change in offsetting receipts would depend on future appropriation action, it is not considered a direct spending effect.

Pay-as-you-go considerations: The Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act sets up pay-as-you-go procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or receipts. The net changes in outlays and governmental receipts that are subject to pay-as-you-go procedures, are shown in the following table. (Spending for OASDI is not counted.) For purposes of enforcing pay-as-you-go procedures only the effects in the budget year and the succeeding four years are counted.

	By fiscal year, in millions of dollars—

Estimated impact on state, local, and tribal governments: H.R. 4857 contains a number of intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act. Specifically, the bill would restrict or prohibit governmental agencies from:

- Selling Social Security numbers;
- Otherwise allowing access to SSNs by the public;
- Displaying SSNs on checks or check stubs, and;
- Using SSNs on driver’s licenses or identification cards.

The extent to which state and local governments still use SSNs in their data and bookkeeping systems is unclear. In addition, the cost of altering such systems varies widely. Based on information from state and local governments and various interest groups representing them, however, CBO believes that the aggregate costs of those mandates would probably exceed the threshold established in UMRA ($55 million in 2000, adjusted annually for inflation) in at least one year over the next five years.

Many state and local governments have reduced the use of SSNs in recent years, particularly on driver’s licenses, and the sale of such numbers to non-governmental entities. However, several other uses of SSNs by governments would violate the prohibitions in the bill.

Most costly would be the prohibition against displaying SSNs on checks and check stubs and otherwise restricting public access to those numbers. Some states have already enacted laws protecting access to SSNs, and few alterations would have to be made in those states. Many other state and local governments, however, currently use SSNs to identify individuals for purposes such as property tax liens, court documents, income tax payment and refund data, motor vehicle registrations, and employee benefit records. For example, the state of Illinois includes SSNs on check stubs for income tax refunds, and the state of Pennsylvania includes SSNs on unemployment and state retirement system checks. The state of New York uses SSNs as the default for sales tax identification numbers. In those and similar cases, the SSNs would have to be removed or alternative systems developed. Some governments also have laws allowing general access to public documents. By requiring governments either to implement new record-keeping systems (most likely involving computer reprogramming) or to audit documents made available to the public in order to avoid disclosing SSNs, H.R. 4857 would impose costs that are likely, in the aggregate, to be significant.

The bill would allow a three-year window for affected governments to alter their systems, and this delay would tend to lower costs and spread them over time. However, because of the large number of state and local governments (well over 80,000) in the United States, even inexpensive changes to individual systems would quickly add up to aggregate costs exceeding the threshold in UMRA. For example, even if only half of all governments were required to reprogram or audit documents, and each spent as little as $5,000 on altering their systems or procedures over a three-year period, total costs would exceed $55 million annually at some point over the next few years.

Estimated impact on the private sector: H.R. 4857 would impose new private-sector mandates on persons who buy or sell personally identifiable information (sections 201 and 203), on firms that require customers to provide them with their Social Security number (section 202), and on representative payees that accept Social Security checks on behalf of beneficiaries (section 402). CBO has been unable to obtain sufficient data to estimate the aggregate direct cost of these mandates. However, we have sufficient information to conclude that the cost would significantly exceed the statutory threshold specified in UMRA ($109 million in 2000, adjusted annually for inflation).

The Social Security number is the de facto unique and constant individual identifier that is used in the United States today. Most other identifiers either are not unique, such as a name, or can change, such as names or addresses. For example,

- 42 million people move each year;
- 3 million people change their last name each year;
- 6 million people have second homes and may use either address; and
- Ten of millions of people own businesses or use a business address in connection with their credit.

As a result, the most accurate method of combining information on individuals from different sources is to match the sources on the SSN. Also, the most reliable current method of accessing information about an individual from a database is to use the SSN.

In the long term, if use of the SSN were severely restricted, governments and commercial firms might develop another method of uniquely identifying individuals. However, such an effort would be costly and would take years to complete. Furthermore, current problems with identify theft and loss of privacy would transfer to the replacement identifier. In the short term, if use of the SSN were severely restricted, accessing information from large databases, such as those maintained by credit bureaus, would become more difficult and providers of information would undoubtedly have to increase the price for their services. In the short and medium term, the cost to information providers of maintaining and expanding their databases would rise. Consequently, the quality of these information sources would fall and there would be further pressure for providers to increase the prices for their services. The cost of most mandates in this bill is related to the added difficulty of accessing information in these databases without using an SSN, or to maintaining and expanding these databases without using an SSN.

Section 201 of the bill would make it unlawful for any person to sell or purchase an SSN in a manner that would put the information at risk of being used to commit fraud, deception, or crime, or put the individual at some risk of bodily, emotional, or financial harm. The Federal Trade Commission would be required to develop regulations that would govern these purchases and sales. A few activities, such as law enforcement, would be exempt from the regulations. Firms that disclose SSNs—for example, those that sell personally identifiable information over the Internet—would find some of their activities prohibited by FTC regulations.

Section 202 of the bill would make it an unfair trade practice for firms to refuse to do business with an individual if that individual did not provide their SSN. A person may now be asked to provide his or her SSN for such diverse activities as taking out an insurance policy, checking into a hospital, applying for store charge account, joining a club, or taking a college admissions test. This provision could make it much more difficult for a firm to obtain, for example, a credit history on a customer who is applying for credit but who declines to provide an SSN. It would also make it much more difficult to provide information that can be readily matched to other information. For example, college admissions testing organizations normally ask for the SSN so that their score reports to colleges can be easily matched to the other information in a student's admission file.

While CBO does not know how many people would not provide their SSN if the bill were enacted, the number of current transactions that require the SSN as a unique identifier is extremely large. Credit bureaus use the person's SSN as the unique identifier in their databases. In fact, they currently maintain credit files on 180 million adults, issue 900 million credit reports each year, and track roughly two billion transactions per month using the SSN as the identifier. Thus, while we do not have sufficient information to estimate the cost of this mandate, it could be very large.

Section 203 would strengthen the provisions of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) by giving the SSN the same status as credit history information, thereby significantly restricting the permissible uses of SSN. From the perspective of the FCRA, the information about a consumer in the databases credit bureaus maintain can be divided into the credit header and the consumer report, which includes credit history. The credit header contains key identifying information, including the SSN, while the consumer report contains the information bearing on a consumer's credit worthiness, including income and payment histories. It is unlawful to disclose information in the consumer report unless it is for one of the listed permissible purposes specified in the law.

This provision would make it unlawful, for example, for a private detective to supply a person's SSN to an information broker in order to get information on that person's addresses. It would also be unlawful to sell data that include the SSN to information brokers such as those in the IRSG or to direct marketers. If such firms are not able to buy information that can be economically combined using an identifier such as the SSN, then the value of the remaining information they have would fall and the cost of maintaining it at a particular level of quality would rise.

A permissible purpose of a consumer report is one that is in accordance with the written instructions of the consumer, so a college admissions testing organization, for example, would have to obtain the written consent of test-takers to be able to provide the test-taker's SSN to colleges and universities along with their scores. Nevertheless, any attempt to get information about a consumer from an information broker by providing the consumer's SSN would become unlawful because disclosing the SSN would constitute a consumer report and the purpose—getting locating information—would not be a permissible one. The exception would be those cases in which the consumer provides written consent to the requestor.

This provision would have a particularly strong impact on private investigators, law firms, collection agencies, or any user of locating services because the requestor would not have the consumer's written consent to provide the SSN to the information broker. Providing other identifying information to the broker instead of the SSN would lead to higher charges for the services. Furthermore, the information the search returned would be less useful because it would sometimes be diluted with information on other consumers with the same identifying information or would not be based on records with the correct information.

One other mandate in the bill would be created by section 402. This provision would stiffen restrictions on nongovernmental, organizational representative payees. These organizations would be required to both obtain a license from the state they are located in and be bonded. This would impose a mandate on representative payees who under current law need only do one or the other. This provision would have a minimal aggregate cost on these organizations, however.

V. OTHER MATTERS TO BE DISCUSSED UNDER THE RULES OF THE HOUSE

A. COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

In compliance with clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee advises that it was a result of the Subcommittee on Social Security's oversight review of the use and misuse of Social Security numbers and the misuse of Social Security and SSI benefits by organizational representative payees that the Committee concluded that it is appropriate and timely to enact the provisions included in the bill as reported.

B. SUMMARY OF FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM

In compliance with clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee advises that no oversight findings or recommendations have been submitted to this Committee by the Committee on Government Reform with respect to the provisions contained in this bill.

C. CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

With respect to clause 3(d)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, relating to Constitutional Authority, the Committee states that the Committee's action in reporting the bill is derived from Article I of the Constitution, Section 8 ("The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and to provide for * * * the general Welfare of the United States * * *").

D. INFORMATION RELATING TO UNFUNDED MANDATES

This information is provided in accordance with section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) of 1995 (Public Law 104-4).

The Committee has determined that the following provisions of the bill contain Federal mandates on the private sector: (1) restricting the sale and purchase of SSNs in the private sector, (2) making it an unfair or deceptive trade practice for businesses to deny services to an individual who declines to provide his or her SSN, (3) giving the SSN contained in a consumer report the same status as the credit information contained in the report, thereby restricting permissible uses of the SSN, and (4) requiring nongovernmental organizational representative payees to be both bonded and licensed (if the State provides licensing.)

The Committee has been unable to obtain sufficient data to estimate the direct cost of these mandates. However, the Committee has determined that the mandates would exceed the statutory threshold specified in UMRA. The benefits of these provisions include protecting SSN privacy and reducing SSN misuse, including identity theft. Restricting the sale and purchase of SSNs and strengthening protections for SSNs contained in consumer reports (items #1 and #3 above) would protect SSN privacy by restricting unauthorized access to this information and reducing the potential for fraudulent activities. Making it an unfair or deceptive trade practice deny services to individuals who refuse to provide their SSNs (item #2 above) would further protect SSN privacy by discouraging businesses from requesting the SSN unless the information is legitimately needed to carry out the business transaction. Requiring representative payees to be licensed and bonded (item #4 above) strengthens protections for Social Security and SSI beneficiaries who rely on representative payees to manage their benefits and reduces the risk that representative payees will misuse beneficiaries' funds.

Separately, the Committee has determined that the following provisions of the bill contain Federal mandates on the public sector by prohibiting Federal, State and local government agencies from: (1) selling SSNs (with certain exceptions) (2) displaying SSNs to the general public (with certain exceptions), (3) displaying SSNs on checks or check stubs, and (4) displaying SSNs on drivers' licenses or identification cards.

The Committee has not determined the direct costs of these provisions. However, based on information from State and local governments and various interest groups representing them, the aggregate cost of all of these mandates would probably exceed the threshold established under UMRA in at least one year over the next five years. Under present law, SSNs are widely available and easily accessible to the public. These provisions would restrict the sale and public display of SSNs, making it more difficult for criminals to access this personal information and subsequently use it to facilitate fraudulent activities, such as identity theft. Consequently, these provisions would protect privacy, help prevent SSN crimes and reduce the public and private costs associated with such crimes.

The legislation does not authorize federal funding for these direct costs because the extent to which State and local governments still use SSNs in their data and bookkeeping systems is unclear. Moreover, the cost of altering such systems (if needed) varies widely. Thus, the Committee does not have sufficient data to determine the costs associated with these mandates or how federal funding should be allocated among the various government agencies. The legislation allows a three-year window to phase in necessary changes, thereby lowering costs and spreading them over time. Finally, the costs to individual government units is likely to be small. However, because of the large number of State and local governments (well over 800,000) in the United States, inexpensive changes to individual systems add up to aggregate costs which exceed the UMRA threshold.

The provisions of the bill affect activities engaged in by both the private and public sectors. Therefore, they do not affect the competitive balance between state, local or tribal governments and the private sector.

VI. CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

In compliance with clause 3(e) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, changes in existing law made by the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italics, existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

(i) the amounts that would have been appropriated to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund under section 201 if such deemed additional wages had constituted wages (as defined in section 3121(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) for purposes of the taxes imposed by sections 3101 and 3111 of such Code in such calendar year, and

(ii) such additional amounts as are necessary to place such Trust Funds in the position, as of the last day of the calendar
