AFRICAN ELEPHANT CONSERVATION REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2001

NOVEMBER 30, 2001.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. JEFFORDS, from the Committee on Environment and Public Works, submitted the following

REPORT

[to accompany H.R. 643]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Environment and Public Works, to which was referred a bill (H.R. 643) to reauthorize the African Elephant Conservation Act, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon and recommends that the bill do pass.

General Statement and Background

In the late 1980’s, the population of African elephants declined by almost half. In 1979, the total elephant population in Africa was approximately 1.3 million animals. In 1987, fewer than 600,000 African elephants were alive. While drought, disease, and competition for land use arising from human population growth were threats to elephant populations, the poaching of elephants for their ivory tusks reached epidemic proportions in the 1980’s and far overshadowed the other factors.

The destruction of this flagship species was not confined to just a few countries, but was widespread throughout the African continent. In fact, there were only three southern African nations, Botswana, South Africa and Zimbabwe, that had stable elephant populations and effective conservation programs. The rest of the continent was fighting a battle against poachers who were selling illegally obtained elephant ivory at hugely inflated prices.

As a nation, the United States consumed about 30 percent of the world’s carved ivory production. Since most experts believed that nearly 80 percent of all ivory is poached, consumer purchases in the United States accounted for the deaths of some 27,000 elephants. With the population of African elephants declining by nearly 9 percent a year, unless this slaughter was stopped, the African elephant would have been annihilated as a viable population, throughout much of its range, by the end of the 20th century.

In response to this crisis, the Congress enacted the African Elephant Conservation Act of 1988 (Public Law 100–478). The major provisions of this law required an evaluation of the effectiveness of the elephant conservation programs; prohibited ivory imports from African countries unable to protect their elephants; required countries to stop selling illegal ivory; and established the African Elephant Conservation Fund. The African Elephant Conservation Fund was established to provide financial support for on-the-ground elephant conservation efforts throughout range states in Africa.

In 1992 and 1998, Congress renewed the authority of the Secretary of the Interior to spend money from the African Elephant Conservation Fund until September 30, 2002. The Congress is authorized to appropriate up to $5 million a year to the African Elephant Conservation Fund to provide grant money for various conservation projects to assist this species.

Since its creation, Congress has appropriated more than $11 million to the African Elephant Conservation Fund. This money, which has generated an additional $53.6 million in private matching funds, has been allocated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for 134 conservation projects in 24 range states throughout Africa. These projects have been sponsored by a diverse group of conservation organizations. Money allocated from the African Elephant Conservation Fund has been used to: assess the impact of elephants on plant and habitat biodiversity; purchase anti-poaching equipment for wildlife rangers; control elephant crop damage; create a comprehensive reference library on the African elephant; undertake elephant population surveys; implement elephant conservation plans; and move elephants from certain drought regions.

OBJECTIVES OF THE LEGISLATION

The fundamental purpose of H.R. 643 is to extend the authorization of appropriations for the African Elephant Conservation Fund until September 30, 2007. This will allow Congress to appropriate money to conserve African elephants and to fund additional projects. This fund has been the only continuous source of new money for elephant conservation in the world. In addition, H.R. 643 allows the Secretary of the Interior to convene an advisory group to assist in carrying out the Act.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1. Short Title

This Act may be cited as the “African Elephant Conservation Reauthorization Act of 2001”.

Section 2. Reauthorization of African Elephant Conservation Act

Section 2 amends section 2306 of the African Elephant Conservation Act to extend the authorization of the Act through 2007.
Section 3. Administrative Expenses

Section 3 amends Section 2306 of the African Elephant Conservation Act limiting the amount of money the Secretary may expend on administrative expenses to carry out the Act. Not more than 3 percent or $80,000, whichever is greater, may be expended from the amounts available in each fiscal year.

Section 4. Cooperation

Section 4 amends Part I of the African Elephant Conservation Act by adding Section 2104 authorizing the Secretary to convene an advisory group of individuals representing public and private organizations actively involved in the conservation of African elephants. The Secretary shall provide public notice of each meeting of the advisory group. The meetings shall be open to the public and the minutes of the meetings shall be made available to the public. The Federal Advisory Committee Act shall not apply to the advisory group authorized under this section.

The creation of a new advisory group will help increase public involvement and Federal and private partnerships. Also, it will provide consistency with the Great Ape Conservation Act and Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Act, both of which were enacted during the 106th Congress and are administered under the Multinational Species Conservation Fund, along with the Rhinoceros and Tiger Conservation Act and the Asian Elephant Conservation Act.

Section 5. Project Sustainability

Section 5 amends Section 2101 of the African Elephant Conservation Act to direct the Secretary to give consideration to projects that will enhance sustainable conservation programs to ensure effective long-term conservation of African elephants when determining whether to approve project proposals. This priority will help balance the need for projects that directly benefit the species with projects directed at ensuring the long-term conservation of the species through local capacity building and institutional development.

Section 6. Technical and Conforming Amendments

Subsection (a) of Section 6 conforming and clerical changes to Sections 2101, 2102, 2304, and 2305(4) of the African Elephant Conservation Act.

Subsection (b) makes a technical correction to Title I of section 101(e) of division A of Public Law 105–277.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

The bill was referred to the Committee on Environment and Public Works on June 13, 2001. No hearings were held on the bill. On November 8, 2001, the Committee on Environment and Public Works met to consider H.R. 643, and agreed to report the bill by voice vote.

REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

In compliance with section 11(b) of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the committee finds that H.R. 643 does not create any additional regulatory burdens, nor will it cause any adverse impact on the personal privacy of individuals.

MANDATES ASSESSMENT

In compliance with the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (Public Law 104–4), the committee finds that H.R. 643 would impose no unfunded mandates on State, local, or tribal governments.

COST OF LEGISLATION

Section 403 of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act requires that a statement of the cost of the reported bill, prepared by the Congressional Budget Office, be included in the report. That statement follows:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,

Hon. JAMES JEFFORDS, Chairman,
Committee on Environment and Public Works,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Deborah Reis, who can be reached at 226–2860.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

SUMMARY

H.R. 643 would reauthorize funding for projects carried out under the African Elephant Conservation Act. Specifically, the act would authorize annual appropriations for such projects to the Multinational Species Conservation Fund through 2007 at the existing authorization level of up to $5 million annually. The current authorization expires after fiscal year 2002. The Secretary of the Interior uses this fund primarily to help finance research and conservation programs overseas.

Assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 643 would cost $18 million over the 2003–2006 period. (An additional $7 million would be spent after 2006.) The legislation would not affect direct spending or receipts; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply. H.R. 643 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.
Estimated Cost to the Federal Government

The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 643 is shown in the following table. For purposes of this estimate, CBO assumes that the entire amounts authorized by the act will be appropriated for each fiscal year. Outlay estimates are based on recent spending patterns for this program. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 300 (natural resources and environment).
