PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 1595, the “Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act,” as reported by the Resources Committee, authorizes the United States Foreign Claims Settlement Commission (FCSC) to set up a process to pay claims for death or injury during the World War II Japanese occupation of Guam.¹ Under this legislation, claims will be paid for death, personal injury, rape, forced labor, forced marching, and internment with the payments derived from the Judgement Fund (31 U.S.C. § 1304). A second category of personal injury claims allows survivor claimants, when the original claimant is deceased, to receive $7,000 regardless of the severity of injury.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

On December 8, 1941, Japan seized control of Guam from the United States. On July 21, 1944, the United States liberated Guam. On April 23, 1945, Congress passed the Guam Meritorious Claims Act forming the Land and Claims Commission. As part of its duties, the Commission reviewed and processed war claims by Guam residents for loss and damage to real and personal property and, in particular, for personal injury and death claims. On December 16, 2002, the Guam War Claims Review Commission Act was signed into law establishing the Guam War Claims Review Commission.² This commission concluded that the residents of Guam were inequitably treated under the Guam Meritorious Claims Act of 1945 as well as other Federal programs created to address World War II personal injury claims of American citizens and nationals. The Review Commission’s final report included a recommendation that Congress enact legislation to provide additional compensation to the residents of Guam who were killed or harmed and their survivors.

Under the recommended program, survivors of each resident of Guam who died or was killed as a result of the attack and occupation of Guam by Japan during World War II or incident to the liberation of Guam by the United States and was compensable under the Guam Meritorious Claims Act of 1945 would receive a payment of $25,000. If a victim who was personally injured as a result of the attack and occupation of Guam by Japan during World War II or incident to the liberation of Guam by the U.S. and was compensable under the Guam Meritorious Claims Act of 1945, suffered rape or severe personal injury (such as a loss of limb, dismemberment, or paralysis), they would be eligible to receive $15,000. If the victim suffered forced labor or a personal injury such as disfigurement, scarring or burns, they would be eligible to receive $12,000.

Victims who suffered forced marching, internment, or hiding to evade internment would receive $10,000.

In the case of a survivor of a victim of personal injury, forced labor, forced marching, internment or hiding to evade internment, or a survivor, the payment would be $7,000. In the case of survivors, payments will be made first to the spouse, if there are no children. If there are surviving children and a spouse, then the spouse would receive half of the payment and the children would receive the remaining half of the payment. If there is no living spouse, then the surviving children would receive the payment. If there is no living spouse or child, then any surviving parents would receive the payment. No claim would be paid to any other survivor if there is no surviving spouse, child, or parent. Any payments received under this program would be reduced by any amounts previously paid to the claimant under the Guam Meritorious Claims Act of 1945.

JUNE 9, 2006.

Hon. F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, Jr.,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 1595, the Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act.

Acting Director.

Enclosure.

H.R. 1595—Guam World War II Loyalty Recognition Act

Summary: H.R. 1595 would require the Federal Government to compensate Guam residents for their treatment during the island's occupation by Japanese military forces during World War II. The legislation also would authorize the appropriation of $5 million for a grant program to memorialize the occupation of Guam during World War II.

CBO estimates that enacting this legislation would increase direct spending by about $180 million over the 2007–2009 period to make war-claim compensation payments. In addition, we estimate that implementing the bill would cost $3 million in 2007 and $8 million over the 2007–2011 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

H.R. 1595 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

H.R. 1595 contains a private-sector mandate, as defined in UMRA, on individuals seeking to represent certain claimants who are eligible to receive money from the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. The bill would limit the amount of compensation individuals can receive to represent claimants who file for claims with the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission under this bill. CBO estimates, however, that there would be no cost to comply with the mandate.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 1595 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 800 (general government).

	By fiscal year, in millions of dollars—

Estimated Outlays	1	1	1	1	1
Total Changes:
Estimated Authorization Level	7	1	0	0	0
Estimated Outlays	3	2	1	1	1

Basis of Estimate: For this estimate, CBO assumes that the bill will be enacted at the end of fiscal year 2006, that the necessary amounts will be provided each year, and that spending will follow historical patterns for similar programs.

Direct spending

H.R. 1595 would authorize the Treasury to make payments to the residents of Guam for deaths and injuries suffered during Japanese occupation of the island in World War II. The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission (FCSC), an agency within the Department of Justice, would adjudicate such claims. Under the bill, claimants would have one year to file with the FCSC. H.R. 1595 specifies war-claim compensation payments of $25,000 to survivors of those who died during the war, $15,000 for survivors who were raped or severely injured, $12,000 for those who were forced into labor and suffered personal injury, and $10,000 for survivors of a forced march or internment. Heirs of deceased occupation survivors, including a spouse, child, or parent, would be entitled to a payment of $7,000. In addition, before making such payments, the FCSC would deduct amounts previously paid under the Guam Meritorious Claims Act of 1945 (Guam Act). Using information from the Guam War Claims Review Commission and the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, CBO estimates that about $10 million was previously paid under the Guam Act.

Guam Population During Occupation. Based on census data from 1940, CBO estimates that approximately 22,000 Guamanians were living on the island when it was seized and occupied by Japanese forces on December 10, 1941. The Guam War Claims Review Commission reported that, during the 32-month occupation, virtually the entire population was either interned, in hiding to avoid capture, or subjected to forced march at one time or another while under Japanese occupation during World War II. Thus, for this estimate, we assume all Guamanians enumerated in the 1940 census would be eligible for war-claims compensation payments under H.R. 1595.

Death Benefit Payments. Using information from the Guam War Claims Commission, it is generally accepted that approximately 1,000 Guamanians died during the war before the island was declared secure and liberated by U.S. forces on August 10, 1944. H.R. 1595 would provide a $25,000 war-claim compensation death payment to survivors of those Guamanians who perished during the occupation. The number of possible survivors and claimants is unknown. Using information from the National Center of Health Statistics regarding survival probabilities, however, CBO estimates that there are approximately 700 survivors of the 1,000 Guamanians who died during the Japanese occupation. Under that assumption, war-claim compensation death payments would cost about $18 million. (If all Guamanians who perished during the occupation were to have survivors who claimed the $25,000 payment, the costs could reach $25 million.)

Other Benefit Payments. In addition, CBO estimates that all surviving Guamanians (around 21,000) who were located on the island during the occupation would be eligible for payments of $10,000 to $15,000 (depending upon the level of injury). Heirs of those individuals could receive a payment of $7,000. There is no information to determine the number of surviving Guamanians from the time of the Japanese occupation, their level of injury, or the number of heirs of such individuals. Using information from the National Center for Health Statistics concerning survival probabilities, CBO estimates that there are 7,000 survivors of the occupation and about 12,000 heirs that would be eligible for payment. Using an average payment of $12,500 for survivors and $7,000 for heirs, CBO estimates that payments to those survivors and heirs would cost about $170 million. (If all Guamanian survivors and heirs claimed an average payment of $11,000, the costs could reach $231 million.)

Total Benefit Payments. Using CBO's estimated claim payments amounts under H.R. 1595 and accounting for the nominal value of the previous war-claim payments of about $10 million, CBO estimates that providing additional war-claims compensation under H.R. 1595 would cost about $180 million. We expect that those payments would be made over the 2007–2009 period because of the time required to file, adjudicate, and process claims payments.

Spending subject to appropriation

CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1595 would cost $8 million over the 2007–2011 period, assuming appropriation of the estimated amounts.

Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. Section 4 would require the FCSC to determine claim eligibility and payment amounts. In addition to promulgating rules and regulations, FCSC would be required to publicize the program. Based on information from FCSC, CBO estimates that additional staffing and administrative costs as well as a media campaign in Guam would cost $3 million over the 2007–2008 period.

Grant Program. Section 5 would authorize the appropriation of $5 million for the Department of the Interior to establish a grant program to support activities in memory of Guam's occupation during World War II. Assuming the appropriation of the authorized amount, CBO estimates that implementing this provision would cost $5 million over the 2007–2011 period.

Estimated impact on state, local, and tribal governments: H.R. 1595 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimated impact on the private sector: H.R. 1595 contains a private-sector mandate as defined in UMRA. The bill would limit the fees payable to attorneys or other individuals seeking to represent claimants who are eligible to receive money from the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission under this bill. Specifically, section 4(b)6 would limit fees for representational services to not more than 1 percent of the amount that the claimant is paid. The limitation on representational fees is a private-sector mandate as defined in UMRA. Because the claimants in this program would be a new source of business generated under the bill, representatives would not lose fees that they could have collected in the absence of the bill. CBO therefore estimates that the cost to comply with the mandate would be zero—clearly well below the annual threshold established by UMRA ($128 million in 2006, adjusted annually for inflation).

Previous CBO estimate: On February 3, 2006, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for H.R. 1595, as ordered reported by the House Committee on Resources on November 16, 2005. The two versions of the legislation are identical and the estimated costs over five years are the same. (The previous cost estimate assumed enactment in 2006. We now assume spending would start in 2007.)

Estimate prepared by: Federal Costs: Matthew Pickford and Kathy Ruffing. Impact on State, Local, and Tribal Governments: Marjorie Miller. Impact on the Private Sector: Fatimot Ladipo.

Estimate approved by: Peter H. Fontaine, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

The Committee states that pursuant to clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, H.R. 1595 is intended to authorize the United States Foreign Claims Settlement Commission to set up a claims process to pay Guam claims for death or injury during the World War II Japanese occupation of Guam.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 3(d)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee finds the authority for this legislation in art. I, § 8 of the Constitution.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

The following discussion describes the bill as reported by the Committee.

Section 1. Short title; table of contents

Section 1 provides title of the bill and section headings of legislation.

Section 2. Recognition of the suffering and loyalty of the residents of Guam

Section 2 makes two statements recognizing the suffering and hardships faced by the people of Guam during Japanese occupation while also noting the loyalty of the residents of Guam who endured while facing hardship.

Section 3. Payments for Guam World War II claims

Subsection (a) delineates the amounts that claimants may be awarded, including heirs, at levels of $25,000, $15,000, $12,000, $10,000, and $7,000. Payments of claims are made from the judgment fund at the Department of Treasury.

Subsection (b) describes the order in which survivors of deceased residents from the Japanese occupation are entitled to payments. This approach to delineating the payments to survivors is based in existing war claims law. Successor claims have been allowed under the War Claims Act of 1948, Wake Island Amendment of 1962, War Claims Act of 1954, and the Micronesian Claims Act of 1971. Under these Acts, potential claimants have been limited to parents, a spouse, or children.

Subsection (c) defines the various levels of payments that apply to varying degrees of loss or suffering, which includes rape, forced labor, and internment. The concept of including “internment” as a category for awards is based on both the War Claims Act of 1948 and the Wake Island Amendment of 1962, which authorized compensation for internment of civilians by Japanese military forces during World War II.

Section 4. Adjudication

Subsection (a) specifically sets out the authority of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission at the Department of Justice to handle the war claims. The rules and regulations of the Settlement Commission relating to its work will be available publicly. The work of the Settlement Commission will be crucial to properly notifying potential claimants as well as efficiently adjudicating the claims.

Subsection (b) delineates the modalities for the payment of claims under the legislation. These include: the filing period; the deductions in payment as it relates to Pub. L. No. 79–224; the appeals process; the certification of payment process; and penalties for false claims submitted.

Section 5. Grants program to memorialize the occupation of Guam during World War II

Section 5 establishes a grant program for research, educational and media activities that relate to properly interpreting the causes and circumstances of the Japanese military occupation of Guam. The Secretary of the Interior is provided the authority to award the grants, which are authorized to be appropriated at $5 million over five years.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

In compliance with clause 3(e) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, if enacted, this legislation would make no changes to existing law.
