PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 1955 is to prevent homegrown terrorism, and for other purposes.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The promotion of ideologically-based violence and homegrown terrorism exists in the United States and poses a threat to homeland security; in particular, the Internet has aided in facilitating ideologically-based violence and the homegrown terrorism process in the United States by providing access to broad and constant streams of terrorist-related propaganda to United States citizens. While the United States must continue its vigilant efforts to combat international terrorism, it must also strengthen efforts to combat the threat posed by homegrown terrorists based and operating within the United States. Understanding the motivational factors that lead to homegrown terrorism is a vital step toward eradicating these threats in the United States. The potential rise of self radicalized, unaffiliated terrorists domestically cannot be easily prevented through traditional Federal intelligence or law enforcement efforts, and requires the incorporation of State and local solutions.

Individuals prone to ideologically-based violence span all races, ethnicities, and religious beliefs, and individuals should not be targeted based solely on race, ethnicity, or religion. In view of this, any measure taken to prevent ideologically-based violence and homegrown terrorism in the United States should not violate the constitutional rights, civil rights and civil liberties of United States citizens and lawful permanent residents. Moreover, certain foreign governments, including the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Canada, and the Commonwealth of Australia have significant experience with homegrown terrorism and the United States can benefit from lessons learned by those nations.

Homegrown terrorism is a multifaceted and significant threat that must be addressed in a robust and thoughtful manner. H.R. 1955 provides necessary and valuable tools to prevent violent radicalization within the United States and enhance security against the threat posed by violent radicalization and homegrown terrorism.

H.R. 1955—Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism Prevention Act of 2007

Summary: H.R. 1955 would direct the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to establish a university-based Center of Excellence for the Study of Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism in the United States. The bill also would establish a commission to investigate the causes of terrorist acts committed by persons raised or living in the United States and would require DHS to prepare reports on certain issues relating to domestic terrorism. CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1955 would cost $22 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts. Enacting H.R. 1955 would not affect direct spending or revenues.

H.R. 1955 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimated Cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 1955 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 750 (administration of justice).

	By fiscal year, in millions of dollars—
	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012
CHANGES IN SPENDING SUBJECT TO APPROPRIATION
Estimated Authorization Level	6	6	4	4	4
Estimated Outlays	4	6	4	4	4

Basis of estimate: H.R. 1955 would direct DHS to establish a university-based Center of Excellence for the Study of Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism in the United States. The center would coordinate research on terrorism with other academic institutions. The bill also would establish 10-member commission to examine the causes of terrorist acts committed by persons raised or living in the United States. The commission would report its findings and recommendations to the Congress over the next two years. Finally, the bill would require DHS to prepare reports on certain issues relating to terrorism in the United States.

Assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts and based on information provided by DHS on the cost of conducting similar activities, CBO estimates that the agency would spend about $22 million over the 2008–2012 period to implement the legislation. Of that amount, $4 million a year would be used to support the new Center of Excellence. The remaining amount would be spent over the next two years for studies and reports required by the bill, primarily those to be carried out by the new commission.

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: H.R. 1955 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRAs and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimate prepared by: Federal Costs: Mark Grabowicz; Impact on State, Local, and Tribal Governments: Melissa Merrell; Impact on the Private Sector: Paige Piper/Bach.

Estimate approved by: Peter H. Fontaine, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

Moreover, this section declares that individuals appointed to the Commission shall be qualified to serve, and that such qualification shall be based on professional qualifications, achievements, public stature, experience, and expertise in relevant fields, and includes a list of some relevant fields.

This section requires the Commission to be appointed no later than 60 days after enactment of this Act and authorizes the Commission to elect a Chair and Vice Chair from among its members. Moreover, it requires the Commission to hold its first meeting no later than 30 days after all of the Commissioners have been appointed or, if there is not mutual agreement, on a date designated by the Speaker of the House of Representatives. This section also enumerates the Commission's powers and authorities.

This section clarifies that the Federal Advisory Committee Act does not apply to the Commission. It also provides for public meetings of the Commission, staff and personnel, travel, security clearances, retirement benefits, vacancies, reporting requirements, publication of reports, dissenting or individual views, availability of funds, and termination of the Commission.

The Committee notes that, given the unique issues surrounding the American approach, it is important to create a national commission that will bring together the "best minds" from relevant fields of expertise and, for the first time, address the homegrown terrorism threat from a collaborative public, private and academic-sector perspective. The Committee observes that this model has been successful with other vexing national problems, such as the Hart-Rudman Commission's examination of national security policies and processes; the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks upon the United States' review of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks; and the National Commission on Terrorism's examination of United States terrorism policy pre-9/11.

Section 899D. Center of Excellence for the Study of Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism in the United States

This section directs the Secretary of Homeland Security to establish a university-based Center of Excellence, or designate an existing Center of Excellence, as a Center of Excellence for the Study of Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism in the United States tasked with assisting Federal, State, local and tribal homeland security officials through training, education, and research. The Committee believes that the creation of a Center of Excellence for the Prevention of Radicalization and Home Grown Terrorism will help to provide homeland security officials across the government with solutions to these threats.

Section 899E. Preventing violent radicalization and homegrown terrorism through international cooperative efforts

This section directs the Secretary of Homeland Security, in conjunction with the Department of State and other federal government entities, to survey the methodologies used by foreign nations in addressing violent radicalization and homegrown terrorism. This provision also directs the Secretary to consider these methods when formulating United States policies addressing violent radicalization and homegrown terrorism, if the methods used by foreign nations do not conflict with safeguards erected by the United States Constitution. In addition, this section requires the Secretary to submit a report to Congress describing the foreign nations included in the survey, the lessons learned from the results of the survey, and recommendations for implementation.

The Committee observes that other countries, such as the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Federal Republic of Germany, the Kingdom of Spain, and Canada, have confronted and continue to confront homegrown terrorism. Thus H.R. 1955 requires the United States to reach out to these countries in an effort to benefit from the lessons they have learned in the process. However, this legislation also recognizes that the American approach must be unique. The Committee understands that because the civil rights and liberties of American citizens and our lawful permanent residents are embedded in our system of government and our way of life, our approach to homegrown terrorism must be consistent with those rights and liberties.

Section 899F. Protecting civil rights and civil liberties while preventing ideologically based violence and homegrown terrorism

This section declares that, in its efforts to prevent ideologically based violence and homegrown terrorism, the Department of Homeland Security shall not violate the constitutional rights, civil rights, and civil liberties of United States citizens and lawful permanent residents.

Moreover, this section provides that, while carrying out the policies set forth in this Act, the Department shall administer such policies in accordance with its commitment to racial neutrality. This provision also directs the Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Officer of the Department to develop and implement an auditing mechanism to ensure that a particular race, ethnicity, or religion is not disproportionately affected by the policies implemented pursuant to this Act, unless it is deemed lawful and appropriate, based on information received. It also requires the Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Officer to include the results of such audit in its annual report to Congress.

Subtitle J—Prevention of violent radicalization and homegrown terrorism

SEC. 899A. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this subtitle:

(1) COMMISSION.—The term “Commission” means the National Commission on the Prevention of Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism established under section 899C.

(2) VIOLENT RADICALIZATION.—The term “violent radicalization” means the process of adopting or promoting an extremist belief system for the purpose of facilitating ideologically based violence to advance political, religious, or social change.

(3) HOMEGROWN TERRORISM.—The term “homegrown terrorism” means the use, planned use, or threatened use, of force or violence by a group or individual born, raised, or based and operating primarily within the United States or any possession of the United States to intimidate or coerce the United States government, the civilian population of the United States, or any segment thereof, in furtherance of political or social objectives.

(4) IDEOLOGICALLY BASED VIOLENCE.—The term “ideologically based violence” means the use, planned use, or threatened use of force or violence by a group or individual to promote the group or individual’s political, religious, or social beliefs.

SEC. 899B. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The development and implementation of methods and processes that can be utilized to prevent violent radicalization, homegrown terrorism, and ideologically based violence in the United States is critical to combating domestic terrorism.

(2) The promotion of violent radicalization, homegrown terrorism, and ideologically based violence exists in the United States and poses a threat to homeland security.

(3) The Internet has aided in facilitating violent radicalization, ideologically based violence, and the homegrown terrorism process in the United States by providing access to broad and constant streams of terrorist-related propaganda to United States citizens.

(4) While the United States must continue its vigilant efforts to combat international terrorism, it must also strengthen efforts to combat the threat posed by homegrown terrorists based and operating within the United States.

(5) Understanding the motivational factors that lead to violent radicalization, homegrown terrorism, and ideologically based violence is a vital step toward eradicating these threats in the United States.

(6) The potential rise of self radicalized, unaffiliated terrorists domestically cannot be easily prevented through traditional Federal intelligence or law enforcement efforts, and requires the incorporation of State and local solutions.

(7) Individuals prone to violent radicalization, homegrown terrorism, and ideologically based violence span all races, ethnicities, and religious beliefs, and individuals should not be targeted based solely on race, ethnicity, or religion.

(8) Any measure taken to prevent violent radicalization, homegrown terrorism, and ideologically based violence and homegrown terrorism in the United States should not violate the constitutional rights, civil rights and civil liberties of United States citizens and lawful permanent residents.

(9) Certain governments, including the United Kingdom, Canada, and Australia have significant experience with homegrown terrorism and the United States can benefit from lessons learned by those nations.

SEC. 899C. NATIONAL COMMISSION ON THE PREVENTION OF VIOLENT RADICALIZATION AND IDEOLOGICALLY BASED VIOLENCE.
