

SEC SMALL BUSINESS ADVOCATE ACT OF 2015

FEBRUARY 1, 2016.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. HENSARLING, from the Committee on Financial Services, submitted the following

R E P O R T

[To accompany H.R. 3784]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Financial Services, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 3784) to amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to establish an Office of the Advocate for Small Business Capital Formation and a Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon with an amendment and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Introduced by Representative Carney on October 21, 2015, H.R. 3784, the SEC Small Business Advocate Act of 2015, establishes the Office for Small Business Capital Formation (OSBCF) and the Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee (Advisory Committee) within the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). The OSBCF is led by the Advocate for Small Business Capital Formation (Advocate), who is appointed by and reports to the Commission, with the responsibility to, among other things:

- Help small businesses resolve problems with the SEC;
- Analyze the potential impact of proposed rules and regulations that are likely to have a significant effect on small businesses; and
- Reach out to small businesses to understand issues related to capital formation.

The Advisory Committee provides advice to the Commission on rules and policies related to capital formulation, securities trading, and reporting and governance requirements for emerging and smaller public companies.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Small businesses create more jobs than any other business sector in the United States. In 2010, the Kauffman Foundation found that startups create an average of 3 million jobs annually, noting that “without startups, there would be no net job growth in the U.S. economy.” In the Jumpstart Our Business Startups (JOBS) Act, Congress recognized the importance of these companies in creating jobs and fostering economic growth. To help these companies access the capital markets, the JOBS Act expanded the use of private securities offerings under Regulation A and Regulation D and created a category of issuers known as “Emerging Growth Companies,” or EGCs, which are companies that have annual gross revenue of less than $1 billion. The JOBS Act exempted EGCs from some of the most onerous securities regulations.

Although small companies are at the forefront of technological innovation and job creation, they often face significant obstacles to obtaining funding in the capital markets. These obstacles are often attributable to the proportionately larger burden that securities regulations—written for large public companies—place on small companies when they seek to go public. Although no one disputes that smart regulation is needed to maintain fair, orderly and efficient markets, to protect investors, and to facilitate capital formation, almost everyone agrees that excessive and unnecessary regulation imposes costs on individual businesses and the economy that far outweigh its benefits. But excessive and unnecessary regulation imposes even greater costs on startups. By passing the JOBS Act, Congress took an important step toward easing the regulatory burden on small businesses and startups seeking access to capital markets. H.R. 3784 facilitates the elimination and streamlining of regulations that make it difficult for small businesses to grow their businesses and create jobs.

The SEC has a three-part mission: to protect investors; to maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets; and to facilitate capital formation. The SEC acknowledges that promoting capital formation “is necessary to sustain economic growth.” Although the SEC’s budget is now almost four times the size it was in 2000, the SEC has given short shrift to the capital formation component of its statutory mandate—to the detriment of entrepreneurs and start-up ventures.

Many small companies still cannot access the capital they need to grow their businesses and create jobs. According to one survey, 58% of respondents believe the current business financing environment is restricting growth opportunities while 48% of respondents believe it is restricting their ability to hire new employees. While the JOBS Act has made it easier for these companies to go public, the JOBS Act alone was not enough to entirely overcome the obstacles these companies face in trying to go public. The tightening of credit, which has resulted from both the financial crisis and the effects of implementing the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, has made equity financing all the more important as a means for small companies to obtain the capital they need to grow and create jobs.

Currently, the responsibility to facilitate and promote capital formation resides within the SEC’s Office of Small Business Policy (OSBP), which is housed within the SEC’s Division of Corporation Finance. OSBP answers questions on disclosure and other issues relating to smaller public companies, including those classified as “smaller reporting companies,” and on limited, private, and intrastate offerings of securities. OSBP also processes requests for waivers of disqualification arising under Rule 262 of Regulation A and Rule 505(b)(2)(iii) and Rule 506(d)(2)(ii) of Regulation D. In addition, OSBP reaches out to smaller companies to facilitate capital formation. These efforts include coordinating the annual SEC Government-Business Forum on Small Business Capital Formation, which focuses on the current status of issues and programs related to small business capital formation.

Unfortunately, the OSBP is a functional office rather than an advocacy office. The OSBP does not advocate for changes to the securities laws for smaller public companies, small businesses seeking equity capital, or investors in those companies or businesses. The OSBP does not advance initiatives to make equity capital more readily available to smaller issuers. Rather than neglecting the needs of small businesses, a permanent office dedicated to small business capital formation within the SEC is a logical outcome of the JOBS Act since the SEC has taken little to no action to advance the many recommendations the agency has received from its annual Government-Business Forum on Small Business Capital Formation (Forum) to help small businesses and EGCs access the capital markets.

A major purpose of the Forum is to identify unnecessary impediments to small business capital formation and find ways to eliminate or reduce them. Each Forum develops recommendations for government and private action to improve the environment for small business capital formation. But the SEC rarely, if ever, acts on the recommendations made by the Forum's participants, which include small business executives, venture capitalists, government officials, trade association representatives, lawyers, accountants, academics and small business advocates. For example, the crowdfunding and Regulation A+ provisions of the JOBS Act mirrored the Forum's recommendations to the SEC, which the SEC had previously ignored. Additionally, experts at these Forums have expressed concerns about the declining number of IPOs and burdens in complying with Regulation D. Titles I and II of the JOBS Act directly responded to those concerns.

H.R. 3784 promotes capital formation and creates an office within the SEC to advocate for the job creators and entrepreneurs seeking equity capital as well as their investors. The office will then be able to leverage the recommendations the SEC has collected and prompt the SEC to act on those most likely to help small businesses and EGCs access the capital markets. At a December 2, 2015, Subcommittee on Capital Markets and Government Sponsored Enterprises hearing, Chris Mathieu, Chief Financial Officer of Horizon Technology Finance, testifying on behalf of the Small Business Investor Alliance (SBIA), stated that "the SEC Small Business Advocate Act strengthens the voice of small business at the SEC by making significant changes to the way the SEC hears from small business stakeholders; responds to stakeholder requests; and makes recommendations to Congress and the SEC to improve the ability of small business to access capital." Mr. Mathieu further noted that "[s]maller business investors have a much lower threshold for pain and the SEC needs to understand the challenges of scale when creating policy."

At the same hearing, Brian Hahn, the chief financial officer of GlycoMimetics, testifying on behalf of the Biotechnology Industry Organization (BIO), stated that "[t]he Small Business Advocate would serve as a partner to the existing Investor Advocate, giving small businesses an independent voice at the SEC and helping the SEC to understand the impact of regulatory burdens on growing companies as it considers new compliance requirements."

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

Pursuant to clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the findings and recommendations of the committee based on oversight activities under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

Pursuant to clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that H.R. 3784 will ensure that the issues related to small business capital formation are a priority at the SEC. Additionally, H.R. 3784 will provide an independent voice for small business capital formation, on par with the SEC's Investor Advocate, to support the interests of small businesses and provide guidance to the Commission on advancing a post-JOBS Act capital formation agenda.

NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY, ENTITLEMENT AUTHORITY, AND TAX EXPENDITURES

In compliance with clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee adopts as its own the estimate of new budget authority, entitlement authority, or tax expenditures or revenues contained in the cost estimate prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

COMMITTEE COST ESTIMATE

The Committee adopts as its own the cost estimate prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATES

Pursuant to clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following is the cost estimate provided by the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, January 15, 2016.

Hon. JEB HENSARLING,
*Chairman, Committee on Financial Services,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 3784, the SEC Small Business Advocate Act of 2015.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Susan Willie.

Sincerely,

ROBERT A. SUNSHINE,
(For Keith Hall, Director).

Enclosure.

H.R. 3784—SEC Small Business Advocate Act of 2015

H.R. 3784 would establish the Office for Small Business Capital Formation and the Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee within the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

The office would be led by the Advocate for Small Business Capital Formation, who would be appointed by and report to the commission, with the responsibility to, among other things:

- Help small businesses resolve problems with the SEC;
- Analyze the potential impact of proposed rules and regulations that are likely to have a significant effect on small businesses; and
- Reach out to small businesses to understand issues related to capital formation.

The advisory committee would provide advice to the commission on rules and policies related to capital formulation, securities trading, and reporting and governance requirements for emerging and smaller public companies.

Based on information from the SEC, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 3784 would cost about $2 million per year for personnel and administrative costs of the new office and for administrative support for the advisory committee. Over the 2016–2020 period, CBO estimates that implementing the bill would cost $7 million. Under current law, the SEC is authorized to collect fees sufficient to offset its annual appropriation; therefore, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 3784 would have a negligible effect on net discretionary costs, assuming appropriation actions consistent with that authority.

Enacting H.R. 3784 would not affect direct spending or revenues; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures do not apply. CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 3784 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2026.

H.R. 3784 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

If the SEC increases fees to offset the costs of implementing the bill, H.R. 3784 would increase the cost of an existing mandate on private entities required to pay those fees. Based on information from the SEC, CBO estimates that the aggregate cost of the mandate would amount to about $2 million per year over the 2016–2020 period and would fall below the annual threshold for private-sector mandates established in UMRA ($154 million in 2016, adjusted annually for inflation).

The CBO staff contacts for this estimate are Susan Willie (for federal costs) and Logan Smith (for private-sector mandates). The estimate was approved by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

FEDERAL MANDATES STATEMENT

The Committee adopts as its own the estimate of Federal mandates prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

No advisory committees within the meaning of section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act were created by this legislation.

APPLICABILITY TO LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

The Committee finds that the legislation does not relate to the terms and conditions of employment or access to public services or accommodations within the meaning of the section 102(b)(3) of the Congressional Accountability Act.

EARMARK IDENTIFICATION

H.R. 3784 does not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits as defined in clause 9 of rule XXI.

DUPLICATION OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS

Pursuant to section 3(g) of H. Res. 5, 114th Cong. (2015), the Committee states that no provision of H.R. 3784 establishes or reauthorizes a program of the Federal Government known to be duplicative of another Federal program, a program that was included in any report from the Government Accountability Office to Congress pursuant to section 21 of Public Law 111–139, or a program related to a program identified in the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

DISCLOSURE OF DIRECTED RULEMAKING

Pursuant to section 3(i) of H. Res. 5, 114th Cong. (2015), the Committee states that H.R. 3784 contains no directed rulemaking.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Section 1. Short title

This section cites H.R. 3784 as the “SEC Small Business Advocate Act of 2015.”

Section 2. Establishment of Office of the Advocate for Small Business Capital Formation and Small Business Capital Formation Advisory Committee

This section amends Section 4 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to establish the Office of the Advocate for Small Business Capital Formation. The Small Business Advocate (Advocate) would direct and manage the Office and would report directly to the five Commissioners. Generally, the Advocate will assist small businesses and their investors to resolve significant problems with the SEC or self-regulatory organizations and identify issues and propose changes to statutes, regulations, and rules to benefit small businesses and their investors and facilitate capital formation. The Advocate is tasked with a number of duties, including the requirement to identify problems related to access to capital; to analyze the potential impact on small businesses and small business investors of proposed SEC and SRO rules that will have a significant economic impact on them.

The SEC is required to issue a formal response to all recommendations submitted by the Office. Additionally, the Office must issue an annual report to Committees on Financial Services and Banking and would be responsible for the annual Government-Business Forum on Small Business Capital Formation.

H.R. 3784 also establishes the SEC Small Business Advisory Committee (Committee). The Committee will provide the SEC with advice on capital formation, securities trading, public reporting, and corporate governance for “emerging, privately held businesses” (“emerging companies”) and “smaller public companies” (companies with less than $250 million in market capitalization). Committee members include, but not limited to, the Advocate and between 10–20 members appointed by the SEC including (1) representatives of “emerging companies” and “smaller public companies,” (2) professional advisors to such companies, (3) pre- and post-IPO investors in such companies, (4) representatives of exchanges, Alternative Trading Systems research analysts, and transfer agents; and (5) officers or directors of minority or women-owned small businesses.

The Committee will also have non-voting members to include the SEC Investor Advocate, a North American Securities Administrators Association representative, and a representative of the Small Business Administration. Finally, the SEC is required to review the Committee’s recommendations and promptly issue a public statement assessing them and disclosing the action, if any, the SEC intends to take.
