PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 4549 is to require the Transportation Security Administration to conduct security screening at certain airports, and for other purposes.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

There are currently at least six airports that have had requests denied by the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) to return security screening and personnel airports after temporary gaps in commercial air service:

- Del Rio International Airport in Del Rio, Texas (DRT)
- Sheridan County Airport in Sheridan, Wyoming (SHR)
- Fair Child International Airport in Port Angeles, Washington (CLM)
- Salina Regional Airport in Salina, Kansas (SLN)
- Canyonlands Field Airport in Moab, Utah (CNY)
- Crater Lake Klamath Regional Airport in Klamath Falls, Oregon (LMT)

TSA has stated they have no requirement under law to return this needed service, and instead has directed the airports to allow passengers to fly unscreened to their next destination, and undergo reverse security screening there. This poses serious security issues, and would increase travel time and costs for passengers. According to local officials and the commercial airlines hoping to return service to these small airports, this is not a feasible option due to the security concerns of 30 passengers flying unscreened to a major metropolitan area, the added travel time caused by using a shuttle bus to reach the front of the airport for screening, and other logistical challenges.
