Purpose and Summary

H.R. 4002, the “Criminal Code Improvement Act of 2015,” amends chapter 1 of title 18, U.S. Code (the Federal Criminal Code), in three significant ways. First, it reorganizes the general provisions that appear at the beginning of chapter 1, leaving the vast majority of them intact. Second, it provides a default mens rea standard that applies for all crimes prosecuted in Federal courts, unless another mens rea standard has been provided by law, including statutory and well-established case law. Third, it creates uniform definitions for several terms that are used frequently throughout title 18.

Background and Need for the Legislation

In early 2015, Chairman Goodlatte and Ranking Members Conyers created a Criminal Justice Reform Initiative at the Judiciary Committee, to address the significant Congressional interest in criminal justice reform from Members who do and do not serve on the Judiciary Committee. The purpose of the Initiative is to develop bipartisan legislation to address several facets of the Federal criminal justice system, including over-criminalization, sentencing reform, prison and reentry reform, protecting citizens through improved criminal procedures and policing strategies, and civil asset forfeiture reform. In addressing these issues, the Committee will rely on the work of the Over-Criminalization Task Force, which held nine hearings on a variety of criminal justice topics during the 113th Congress, as well as the information provided to the Committee by interested Members during the Committee's public listening session in June 2015.

As part of the Initiative, and following up on the Task Force's work, the Committee has reported several bills dealing with over-criminalization. H.R. 4002, the "Criminal Code Improvement Act of 2015," is a bill that makes several changes to title 18, U.S. Code (the Federal criminal code). The most high-profile change is the establishment of a default mens rea standard, which applies for all crimes prosecuted in Federal courts, unless another mens rea standard has been provided by law, including statutorily or via well-established case law.

During the pendency of the Task Force, a common criticism leveled against the expansion of the Federal criminal code was that along with it has come an erosion of the mens rea requirement. Mens rea ("guilty mind") is the state of mind the government, to secure a conviction, must prove that a defendant had when committing a crime. "Mens rea elements, such as specific intent, willful intent, and the knowledge of specific facts constituting the offense, are a part of nearly all common-law crimes."¹ Common law required the convergence of harmful conduct (the actus reus) with a culpable mental state (mens rea) in order to find an individual guilty of a crime.

Historically, most common law crimes prohibited conduct that was malum in se, meaning an inherently immoral act such as murder, arson, or rape. There were a smaller number of malum prohibitum offenses, where authorities and legislators had decided the conduct, though not inherently immoral, was nevertheless problematic and should be penalized. Today, however, with an ever-increasing labyrinth of Federal regulations, a far greater number of new Federal crimes address conduct that is malum prohibitum—i.e., it is a crime merely because Congress has chosen to prohibit it via statute.

Many Federal statutes also apply criminal penalties to violations of Federal regulations promulgated pursuant to the statute. Criminal penalties may therefore apply to infractions as minor as misfiled or unfiled paperwork, fishing without a permit, shipping items safely but in a manner inconsistent with Federal regulations, or other purely regulatory violations. Aside from the issues raised with exposing an individual to incarceration for a regulatory offense, many such provisions have departed from the traditional notion of mens rea by either requiring no mental state or much lower mental states to be proven.

This erosion of mens rea calls into question the propriety of criminal prosecutions, particularly those that carry felony-level penalties, for conduct that lacks the traditional notions of criminal intent and is not inherently immoral. Charging someone with a crime when he was not aware that his conduct was illegal erodes public support and respect for the rule of law and promotes contempt for the legal system, as well as a lack of respect for authority.

In April 2010, the Heritage Foundation and the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers published a report entitled Without Intent: How Congress is Eroding the Criminal Intent Requirement in Federal Law.² This report presents the results of a study of legislation containing criminal offenses introduced in the 109th Congress.

The study examined whether Congress included meaningful mens rea requirements in the scores of non-violent and non-drug criminal offenses that Congress considered. The authors and their researchers analyzed the non-violent criminal offenses in 203 bills (128 from the House and 75 from the Senate) introduced during the course of the 109th Congress. Because many of the bills included more than one criminal offense meeting the study's criteria, the number of criminal offenses included in the study (446) is greater than the number of bills. Each offense's mens rea requirement was analyzed and graded as Strong, Moderate, Weak, or None.

The study found that over 57 percent of the offenses considered by the 109th Congress contained mens rea requirements classified as "weak" or "none," putting the innocent at risk of criminal punishment. This study also found consistently poor legislative drafting and broad delegation of Congress's authority to make criminal laws to unelected officials in administrative agencies—that is, criminalization by regulation. Of the 203 bills studied, 13 (6.4 percent) were enacted into law, an enactment rate that is 45 percent higher than the rate for all bills introduced in the 109th Congress.

The study identified three main causes of Congress's failure to include meaningful mens rea requirements in criminal offenses. First, there is the fragmented and disjointed process for creating and modifying criminal offenses. Despite the House and Senate Judiciary Committees' expertise and subject-matter jurisdiction, over half (52 percent) of the offenses noted in the study were not referred to either committee for oversight.

Second is the number of proposed criminal offenses. Crafting offenses that properly channel the Federal Government's power to impose criminal punishment demands substantial debate and deliberation. However, in the 109th Congress, so many bills (203) were proposed containing so many non-violent offenses (446) that it is unreasonable to expect any substantial proportion of these offenses could have received adequate legislative oversight and scrutiny. According to the study, these numbers would rise even higher if they included the enormous number of bills containing criminal offenses that concern firearms, possession or trafficking of drugs or pornography, immigration violations, and intentional violence. In 2014, the Congressional Research Service reported that Congress enacted 403 new criminal offenses from 2008–2013, which brings the total number of statutory criminal offenses to nearly 5,000.³

Third, Congress's choice to delegate its criminal lawmaking authority to executive agencies has grown more common. This study identified at least 63 offenses that, if enacted, would hand over this authority to unelected agency officials. That constitutes 14 percent of the offenses included in the study. The study's totals and percentages do not account for the many additional criminal offenses that Federal agencies would be authorized to create in this manner.

One encouraging finding of the study is that oversight by the House Judiciary Committee does improve the quality of mens rea requirements. "Oversight" refers to the committee marking up a bill or reporting it out of committee for consideration by the full House of Representatives. Based upon this analysis, and upon the specific criminal law jurisdiction and expertise of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees, automatic sequential referral of all bills adding or modifying criminal offenses to these two committees is likely to improve mens rea requirements.

H.R. 4002 was produced by the Judiciary Committee, in part, in response to this important work. It makes a number of important changes to title 18 of the U.S. Code. This includes both substantive changes (such as clarifying the application of a default mens rea standard of "knowingly," which will apply in cases where Federal criminal law, including longstanding statutory law and established case-law, does not provide a state of mind requirement for the particular offense) and "housekeeping" changes (such as the imposition of a single definition of the term "State," and the elimination of additional, repetitive definitions).

H.R. 4002 also provides that, in situations where a reasonable person in the same or similar circumstances would not know, or would not have reason to believe, that his conduct was unlawful, the Government must prove that the defendant knew, or had reason to believe, the conduct was unlawful. This provision will address the problem of inadequate criminal intent requirements in crimes created by agency regulation—or malum prohibitum crimes.

H.R. 4002 is a very carefully crafted bill, which is intended to apply in narrow circumstances. Its intent is not to supersede existing intent requirements in Federal criminal statutes. Its intent is not to require Federal courts to apply a “knowingly” standard in areas where the caselaw is settled. Its intent is not to impose a “knowingly” requirement for every element of every statute. Rather, its intent is to impose a “knowingly” mens rea requirement in Federal statutes that do not currently contain such a provision, to protect American citizens who did not know or have reason to know that they were violating Federal law, and to curb strict liability criminalization.

MEMORANDUM

July 7, 2014

To: Crime, Terrorism, Homeland Security & Investigations Subcommittee (H. Judiciary)

Subject: Updated Criminal Offenses Enacted from 2008 – 2013

This memorandum provides an examination of new offenses added to the United States Code from 2008 to 2013. Four hundred and three (403) offenses were added during this period.¹

This information was compiled by searching the LexisNexis United States Code Service database using the following search strategy: history(2008 or 2009 or 2010 or 2011 or 2012 or 2013) and text(prison! or imprison! or fine! or felony or misdemeanor or (knowing! or willful! w/5 violat!)). Please note, our research was limited in several ways. First, while we have made an effort to make the provided information fully inclusive, there is the possibility that some relevant statutes were not identified using our search terms. For example, our search may not include statutes that might reference another statute that details the penalty for a particular crime or statutes that might not explicitly give a penalty. Second, we did not run searches in other versions of the Code to catch potential database irregularities. Third, we did not search the Code of Federal Regulations to identify regulatory crimes. Finally, we did not attempt to identify crimes that may have been enacted and eliminated during the time frame searched.

The following parameters were used in determining a new offense:

- New class of victims
- New means of committing crime
- New jurisdiction
- New attempts
- New conspiracy with no overt act requirement

Excluded items include:

- Amendments to Federal Rules of Evidence
- Amendments to Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure
- Uniform Code of Military Justice
- Tribal or territorial codes

- Code of Federal Regulations
- New laws that simply increase the penalties for existing crimes

Below, please find a list of the U.S. Code citation; for each statute we identified along with the number of added crimes and a brief description of the crimes.

Please note that the research in this memorandum may be used to respond to future congressional requests; in any case, the confidentiality of your request will be maintained.

Hearings

The Committee on the Judiciary held no hearings on H.R. 4002. However, from June 2013 to August 2014, the Committee's Over-Criminalization Task Force held multiple hearings on criminal justice issues, including a hearing on the need for meaningful intent requirements in Federal criminal law on July 19, 2013.

Committee Consideration

On November 18, 2015, the Committee met in open session and ordered the bill H.R. 4002 favorably reported, without amendment, by voice vote, a quorum being present.

Committee Votes

In compliance with clause 3(b) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee advises that there were no recorded votes during the Committee's consideration of H.R. 4002.

Committee Oversight Findings

In compliance with clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee advises that the findings and recommendations of the Committee, based on oversight activities under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

New Budget Authority and Tax Expenditures

Clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives is inapplicable because this legislation does not provide new budgetary authority or increased tax expenditures.

Congressional Budget Office Cost Estimate

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee sets forth, with respect to the bill, H.R. 4002, the following estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 22, 2016.

Hon. BOB GOODLATTE, CHAIRMAN,
Committee on the Judiciary,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 4002, the "Criminal Code Improvement Act of 2015."

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Mark Grabowicz, who can be reached at 226–2860.

Sincerely,

KEITH HALL,
DIRECTOR.

Enclosure

cc: Honorable John Conyers, Jr.
Ranking Member

H.R. 4002—Criminal Code Improvement Act of 2015.

As ordered reported by the House Committee on the Judiciary on November 18, 2015.

CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 4002 would cost about $1 million in fiscal year 2017 and less than $500,000 annually thereafter; such spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds. Enacting the bill also could affect direct spending and revenues; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures apply. However, CBO estimates that any such effects would be insignificant in each year. CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 4002 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2027.

H.R. 4002 would require the Department of Justice (DOJ) to develop and maintain an inventory of all Federal criminal offenses and to make that information available to the public. Based on information from DOJ and the costs of similar activities, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 4002 would cost about $1 million in fiscal year 2017 and less than $500,000 annually thereafter.

H.R. 4002 also would establish a default requirement regarding state of mind, for Federal criminal offenses that do not already include such a requirement; prosecutors would need to demonstrate that those offenses were committed knowingly. Currently, successful prosecution of some Federal crimes requires proof of the defendant's criminal intent when the crime occurred. Other Federal crimes do not require such proof; the legislation would affect prosecution of those crimes. Additionally, for conduct that a reasonable person would not know or have been expected to know was unlawful, the legislation would require proof that the defendant knew, or had reason to believe, the activity in question was unlawful in order to secure a conviction.

Because H.R. 4002 would affect the prosecution of offenders subject to criminal fines, the bill could change the amount of fines collected by the government. Criminal fines are recorded as revenues, deposited in the Crime Victims Fund, and later spent without further appropriation action. CBO expects that any changes in revenues and subsequent direct spending would not be significant because the legislation probably would affect only a small number of cases.

H.R. 4002 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would not affect the budgets of State, local, or tribal governments.

The CBO staff contacts for this estimate are Mark Grabowicz and Marin Burnett. The estimate was approved by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

Duplication of Federal Programs

No provision of H.R. 4002 establishes or reauthorizes a program of the Federal Government known to be duplicative of another Federal program, a program that was included in any report from the Government Accountability Office to Congress pursuant to section 21 of Public Law 111–139, or a program related to a program identified in the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

Disclosure of Directed Rule Makings

The Committee estimates that H.R. 4002 specifically directs to be completed no specific rule makings within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. § 551.

Performance Goals and Objectives

The Committee states that pursuant to clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, H.R. 4002, the Criminal Code Improvement Act of 2015, amends chapter 1 of title 18, U.S. Code, by reorganizing the general provisions that appear at the beginning of chapter 1; providing a default mens rea standard that applies for all crimes prosecuted in Federal courts, unless another mens rea standard has been provided by law, including statutory and well-established case law; and creating uniform definitions for several terms that are used frequently throughout title 18.

Advisory on Earmarks

In accordance with clause 9 of rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, H.R. 4002 does not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits as defined in clause 9(e), 9(f), or 9(g) of Rule XXI.

Section-by-Section Analysis

The following discussion describes the bill as reported by the Committee.

Section 1. Short Title. This section cites the short title of the bill as the “Criminal Code Improvement Act of 2015.”

Section 2. Revision of General Provisions for Title 18, United States Code. This section amends chapter 1 of title 18, United States Code, in three significant ways:

- First, it reorganizes the general provisions that appear at the beginning of chapter 1, leaving the vast majority of them intact.
- Second, it creates a default mens rea standard of “knowingly,” which applies for all crimes prosecuted in Federal courts, unless another mens rea standard is articulated.
- Third, it creates uniform definitions for several terms that are used frequently throughout title 18, including “State” and “serious bodily injury.” Those definitions will apply across title 18, unless otherwise provided.

Section 3. Conforming Amendments to Eliminate Repetition in the Definition of “State”. This section eliminates the definition of “State” in no fewer than 91 places in title 18, since section 2 establishes a universal definition for all of title 18.

Section 4. Conforming Amendments to Eliminate Repetitious Definitions of “Serious Bodily Injury”. This section eliminates the definition of “serious bodily injury” in no fewer than 20 places in title 18, since section 2 establishes a universal definition for all of title 18. In certain cases, however, it leaves definitions intact. For example, 18 U.S.C. § 2246 (containing the definitions for the sexual abuse chapter) includes “unconsciousness” in the definition. That definition remains intact.

Section 5. Elimination of Outmoded References to the Canal Zone. This section eliminates three references to the Panama Canal Zone. The Panama Canal Zone was abolished on October 1, 1979, and the canal itself was turned over to the Republic of Panama on December 31, 1999.

Section 6. Inventory and Index of Federal Criminal Offenses. This section requires that the Department of Justice develop, maintain, and keep up to date a current inventory and current subject matter index of all Federal criminal offenses, including violations of agency rules or regulations that by Federal statute constitute or define Federal criminal offenses. This section requires that the Attorney General develop this index within 1 year, and make it available to the public on the Internet and by any other means the Attorney General deems appropriate.

Changes in Existing Law Made by the Bill, as Reported

In compliance with clause 3(e) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, changes in existing law made by the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italics, and existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

(22) satisfy such other conditions as the court may impose or;

(23) if required to register under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, submit his person, and any property, house, residence, vehicle, papers, computer, other electronic communication or data storage devices or media, and effects to search at any time, with or without a warrant, by any law enforcement or probation officer with reasonable suspicion concerning a violation of a condition of probation or unlawful conduct by the person, and by any probation officer in the lawful discharge of the officer's supervision functions.

(c) MODIFICATIONS OF CONDITIONS.—The court may modify, reduce, or enlarge the conditions of a sentence of probation at any time prior to the expiration or termination of the term of probation, pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure relating to the modification of probation and the provisions applicable to the initial setting of the conditions of probation.

(d) WRITTEN STATEMENT OF CONDITIONS.—The court shall direct that the probation officer provide the defendant with a written statement that sets forth all the conditions to which the sentence is subject, and that is sufficiently clear and specific to serve as a guide for the defendant's conduct and for such supervision as is required.

(e) Results of Drug Testing - The results of a drug test administered in accordance with paragraph (a)(5) shall be subject to confirmation only if the results are positive, the defendant is subject to possible imprisonment for such failure, and either the defendant denies the accuracy of such test or there is some other reason to question the results of the test. A defendant who tests positive may be detained pending verification of a positive drug test result. A drug test confirmation shall be a urine drug test confirmed using gas chromatography/mass spectrometry techniques or such test as the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts after consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services may determine to be of equivalent accuracy. The court shall consider whether the availability of appropriate substance abuse treatment programs, or an individual's current or past participation in such programs, warrants an exception in accordance with United States Sentencing Commission guidelines from the rule of section 3565(b), when considering any action against a defendant who fails a drug test administered in accordance with paragraph (a)(5).

care, or proper employment of United States prisoners, or if there are no suitable or sufficient facilities available at reasonable cost, the Attorney General may select a site either within or convenient to the State[, Territory,] or judicial district concerned and cause to be erected thereon a house of detention, workhouse, jail, prison-industries project, or camp, or other place of confinement, which shall be used for the detention of persons held under authority of any Act of Congress, and of such other persons as in the opinion of the Attorney General are proper subjects for confinement in such institutions.

CHAPTER 401—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 5003. Custody of State offenders

(a)(1) The Director of the Bureau of Prisons when proper and adequate facilities and personnel are available may contract with proper officials of a State [or territory], for the custody, care, subsistence, education, treatment, and training of persons convicted of criminal offenses in the courts of such State [or territory].

CHAPTER 403—JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

* * * * *

§ 5032. Delinquency proceedings in district courts; transfer for criminal prosecution

A juvenile alleged to have committed an act of juvenile delinquency, other than a violation of law committed within the special maritime and territorial jurisdiction of the United States for which the maximum authorized term of imprisonment does not exceed six months, shall not be proceeded against in any court of the United States unless the Attorney General, after investigation, certifies to the appropriate district court of the United States that (1) the juvenile court or other appropriate court of a State does not have jurisdiction or refuses to assume jurisdiction over said juvenile with respect to such alleged act of juvenile delinquency, (2) the State does not have available programs and services adequate for the needs of juveniles, or (3) the offense charged is a crime of violence that is a felony or an offense described in section 401 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 841), or section 1002(a), 1003, 1005, 1009, or 1010(b)(1), (2), or (3) of the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act (21 U.S.C. 952(a), 953, 955, 959, 960(b)(1), (2), (3)), section 922(x) or section 924(b), (g), or (h) of this title, and that there is a substantial Federal interest in the case or the offense to warrant the exercise of Federal jurisdiction.

If the Attorney General does not so certify, such juvenile shall be surrendered to the appropriate legal authorities of such State. [For purposes of this section, the term "State" includes a State of the United States, the District of Columbia, and any commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States.]

If an alleged juvenile delinquent is not surrendered to the authorities of a State pursuant to this section, any proceedings against him shall be in an appropriate district court of the United States. For such purposes, the court may be convened at any time and place within the district, in chambers or otherwise. The Attorney General shall proceed by information or as authorized under section 3401(g) of this title, and no criminal prosecution shall be instituted for the alleged act of juvenile delinquency except as provided below.

A juvenile who is alleged to have committed an act of juvenile delinquency and who is not surrendered to State authorities shall be proceeded against under this chapter unless he has requested in writing upon advice of counsel to be proceeded against as an adult, except that, with respect to a juvenile fifteen years and older alleged to have committed an act after his fifteenth birthday which if committed by an adult would be a felony that is a crime of violence or an offense described in section 401 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 841), or section 1002(a), 1005, or 1009 of the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act (21 U.S.C. 952(a), 955, 959), or section 922(x) of this title, or in section 924(b), (g), or (h) of this title, criminal prosecution on the basis of the alleged act may be begun by motion to transfer of the Attorney General in the appropriate district court of the United States, if such court finds, after hearing, such transfer would be in the interest of justice. In the application of the preceding sentence, if the crime of violence is an offense under section 113(a), 113(b), 113(c), 1111, 1113, or, if the juvenile possessed a firearm during the offense, section 2111, 2113, 2241(a), or 2241(c), “thirteen” shall be substituted for “fifteen” and “thirteenth” shall be substituted for “fifteenth”. Notwithstanding sections 1152 and 1153, no person subject to the criminal jurisdiction of an Indian tribal government shall be subject to the preceding sentence for any offense the Federal jurisdiction for which is predicated solely on Indian country (as defined in section 1151), and which has occurred within the boundaries of such Indian country, unless the governing body of the tribe has elected that the preceding sentence have effect over land and persons subject to its criminal jurisdiction. However, a juvenile who is alleged to have committed an act after his sixteenth birthday which if committed by an adult would be a felony offense that has as an element thereof the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person of another, or that, by its very nature, involves a substantial risk that physical force against the person of another may be used in committing the offense, or would be an offense described in section 32, 81, 844(d), (e), (f), (h), (i) or 2275 of this title, subsection (b)(1)(A), (B), or (C), (d), or (e) of section 401 of the Controlled Substances Act, or section 1002(a), 1003, 1009, or 1010(b)(1), (2), or (3) of the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act (21 U.S.C. 952(a), 953, 959, 960(b)(1), (2), (3)), and who has previously been found guilty of an act which if committed by an adult would have been one of the offenses set forth in this paragraph or an offense in violation of a State felony statute that would have been such an offense if a circumstance giving rise to Federal jurisdiction had existed, shall be transferred to the appropriate district court of the United States for criminal prosecution.

Evidence of the following factors shall be considered, and findings with regard to each factor shall be made in the record, in assessing whether a transfer would be in the interest of justice: the age and social background of the juvenile; the nature of the alleged offense; the extent and nature of the juvenile's prior delinquency record; the juvenile's present intellectual development and psychological maturity; the nature of past treatment efforts and the juvenile's response to such efforts; the availability of programs designed to treat the juvenile's behavioral problems. In considering the nature of the offense, as required by this paragraph, the court shall consider the extent to which the juvenile played a leadership role in an organization, or otherwise influenced other persons to take part in criminal activities, involving the use or distribution of controlled substances or firearms. Such a factor, if found to exist, shall weigh in favor of a transfer to adult status, but the absence of this factor shall not preclude such a transfer.

Reasonable notice of the transfer hearing shall be given to the juvenile, his parents, guardian, or custodian and to his counsel. The juvenile shall be assisted by counsel during the transfer hearing, and at every other critical stage of the proceedings.

Once a juvenile has entered a plea of guilty or the proceeding has reached the stage that evidence has begun to be taken with respect to a crime or an alleged act of juvenile delinquency subsequent criminal prosecution or juvenile proceedings based upon such alleged act of delinquency shall be barred.

Statements made by a juvenile prior to or during a transfer hearing under this section shall not be admissible at subsequent criminal prosecutions.

Whenever a juvenile transferred to district court under this section is not convicted of the crime upon which the transfer was based or another crime which would have warranted transfer had the juvenile been initially charged with that crime, further proceedings concerning the juvenile shall be conducted pursuant to the provisions of this chapter.

A juvenile shall not be transferred to adult prosecution nor shall a hearing be held under section 5037 (disposition after a finding of juvenile delinquency) until any prior juvenile court records of such juvenile have been received by the court, or the clerk of the juvenile court has certified in writing that the juvenile has no prior record, or that the juvenile's record is unavailable and why it is unavailable.

Whenever a juvenile is adjudged delinquent pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, the specific acts which the juvenile has been found to have committed shall be described as part of the official record of the proceedings and part of the juvenile's official record.
