PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Introduced on June 20, 2017, by Representative Emmer, the “Home Mortgage Disclosure Adjustment Act” amends the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act of 1975 to create an exemption from certain records and disclosure requirements for depository institutions that have originated in each of the two preceding calendar years fewer than 500 closed-end mortgage loans, or fewer than 500 open-end lines of credit.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

In 1975, Congress enacted and President Ford signed into law the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA). The Federal Reserve Board’s Regulation C implemented HMDA. On July 21, 2011, pursuant to Title X of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) received the rule-writing authority of Regulation C. Over time HMDA has expanded originally aimed at basic monitoring and redlining prevention, to one widely used by regulators and advocates as a fair lending tool. It requires many depository institutions, including banks, savings associations, credit unions, and other mortgage lending institutions to report information about the home loans that they decision, originate, or purchase.

Section 1094 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Dodd-Frank Act) directed the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) to expand HMDA data reporting requirements to include additional information about the applicants, lenders, and loans. In October 2015, the CFPB released a final rule amending Regulation C, which implements the HMDA and requires most lenders to report certain information about mortgage applications and loans in efforts to create transparency in the mortgage lending process. The final rule reflects the CFPB’s belief “that the HMDA data must be updated to address the informational shortcomings exposed by the financial crisis and to meet the needs of homeowners, potential homeowners, and neighborhoods throughout the nation.”¹

The final rule, among other things, requires covered banks and credit unions to collect 48 unique data fields on each mortgage loan they make beginning January 1, 2018—more than double the number of data fields covered lenders are currently required to collect and beyond the number of fields statutorily required by the Dodd-Frank Act.

The cost of compliance for HMDA is so great that many small banks are considering whether to abandon the mortgage business all-together. This legislation provides much needed regulatory relief for smaller institutions if they have originated in each of the two preceding calendar years fewer than 500 closed-end mortgage loans, and fewer than 500 open-end lines of credit.

H.R. 2954—Home Mortgage Disclosure Adjustment Act

Under current law, depository institutions are required to collect and periodically report to federal financial regulatory agencies information related to the number and dollar value of closed-end loans and open-end lines of credit that those institutions originate or purchase each year.¹ Depository institutions now must itemize and disclose that information in numerous categories. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) currently exempts some institutions from reporting information about closed-end loans or open-end lines of credit if the number of loans or accounts is below a threshold for each type of credit instrument. H.R. 2954 would modify the thresholds to qualify for an exemption from some of the reporting requirements.

Using information from CFPB, CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 2954 would cost the agency $1 million over the 2018–2027 period to complete a rulemaking and update its data collection systems. Those costs are recorded in the budget as direct spending. Because enacting H.R. 2954 would affect direct spending, pay-as-you-go procedures apply. Enacting the bill would not affect revenues.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 2954 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

H.R. 2954 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Stephen Rabent. The estimate was approved by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

FEDERAL MANDATES STATEMENT

This information is provided in accordance with section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995.

The Committee has determined that the bill does not contain Federal mandates on the private sector. The Committee has determined that the bill does not impose a Federal intergovernmental mandate on State, local, or tribal governments.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

No advisory committees within the meaning of section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act were created by this legislation.

APPLICABILITY TO LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

The Committee finds that the legislation does not relate to the terms and conditions of employment or access to public services or accommodations within the meaning of the section 102(b)(3) of the Congressional Accountability Act.

With respect to clause 9 of rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee has carefully reviewed the provisions of the bill and states that the provisions of the bill do not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits within the meaning of the rule.

¹ Closed-end loans, such as mortgages and car loans, are acquired for a particular purpose and for a set period. Open-end lines of credit, such as credit card accounts, are not restricted to a specific use or duration.

DUPLICATION OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS

In compliance with clause 3(c)(5) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that no provision of the bill establishes or reauthorizes: (1) a program of the Federal Government known to be duplicative of another Federal program; (2) a program included in any report from the Government Accountability Office to Congress pursuant to section 21 of Public Law 111-139; or (3) a program related to a program identified in the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, published pursuant to the Federal Program Information Act (Pub. L. No. 95-220, as amended by Pub. L. No. 98-169).

MINORITY VIEWS

H.R. 2954, as amended, would harm efforts to identify and stop discriminatory lending and violations of fair housing laws, as well as the ability to understand lending patterns and trends. The bill exempts covered institutions from certain records and disclosure requirements related to mortgage lending under the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA). Specifically, the bill would exempt from certain HMDA requirements, institutions that originate 500 or fewer closed-end loans, in each of the two preceding calendar years as well as institutions that originate 500 or fewer open-ended loans, in each of the two preceding calendar years. In addition, the bill would lessen requirements for depository institutions to itemize and disclose specified mortgage loan data.

Congress originally enacted HMDA in 1975, after finding that some depository institutions contributed to the decline of certain geographic areas by their failure to meet the housing and credit needs of the neighborhoods and communities that they were responsible for serving. HMDA provides important information to enable public officials to monitor mortgage lending patterns and trends, to identify underserved communities and populations, and to combat discriminatory lending by mortgage creditors. We believe that H.R. 2954 undermines this statutory purpose.

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (Consumer Bureau), which is the entity responsible for implementing HMDA since the enactment of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Dodd-Frank Act), has been mindful to achieve the right balance between the need for more robust mortgage data and the burdens imposed on industry in collecting and reporting the information. The Consumer Bureau issued a final rule in October 2015 but, in response to concerns raised by community banks and credit unions, adjusted the reporting thresholds for open-end mortgage loans in an updated rule, which was issued in August 2017. H.R. 2954 would prevent the Consumer Bureau from having the discretion to adjust the reporting thresholds and data fields going forward. Furthermore, while H.R. 2954 would codify the same reporting threshold for open-ended lines of credit currently contained in the Consumer Bureau's final rule—500 open-end loan originations—the Consumer Bureau's change is only a temporary adjustment for reporting thresholds in 2018 and 2019 designed to give the Bureau additional time to determine whether a permanent adjustment is warranted. The Consumer Bureau is still in the best position to conduct the research necessary to determine what the appropriate thresholds should be for open-end loans, and that it would be premature to codify that level at this time.

The bill could also eliminate important mortgage data about lending patterns and trends in this country, particularly in certain low- and moderate-income communities. H.R. 2954 raises the reporting requirement threshold for closed-ended lines of credit from the 25 originations currently required by the Consumer Bureau's final rule to 500 loans. This would exempt a vast majority of the nation's mortgage lenders from HMDA reporting requirements on closed-end mortgages. The benefits of HMDA data, and other tools to help the enforcement of federal fair lending laws, are too great to permanently exempt classes of institutions or volumes of loans reporting mortgage lending data.

For these reasons, we oppose H.R. 2954.
