B. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The Bureau of Labor Statistics projects that the number of health sector jobs will grow three times faster than the economy as a whole over the next decade, and three of the six fastest growing occupations are allied health worker jobs.¹ As our population ages, there is a greater need for allied health workers to care for our seniors. Advances in medicine mean that more people are living longer while managing chronic illnesses, also increasing the demand for allied health workers. It is not only a shortage of doctors—there is also a shortage of nurses, nursing assistants, paramedics, home health aides, phlebotomists, X-ray technicians, and more. This healthcare professional shortage is a problem that will only get worse.

The current Health Profession Opportunity Grant (HPOG) program is a time-limited demonstration grant program testing a career pathways approach to job training for in-demand or worker shortage health professions. The HPOG model is intended to grow the pool of available workers by addressing barriers that may have prevented participants from taking advantage of traditional training programs. HPOG creates a training lattice to meet workers where they are and provide a meaningful and supportive pathway to a career as they work and earn credentials from progressively higher-level trainings. HPOG programs are means tested, and the training includes a mix of support services including child care, transportation, tuition and other financial assistance, career coaching, and job placement.²

The Administration for Children and Families at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has administered the HPOG demonstration since 2010, and has awarded two rounds of five-year grants (HPOG 1.0 and 2.0), each evaluated in randomized controlled trials. The evaluations found strong positive outcomes associated with educational progress, employment outcomes, and earned income.³ HHS is conducting follow-up evaluations of the HPOG 1.0 cohort to determine medium-term employment outcomes.

Current demonstration grantees include institutions of higher education, workforce development boards, state agencies, tribal organizations, or community-based organizations. Second-round grantees (HPOG 2.0) are currently entering the 5th year of a five-year grant award. Under current law, funding for the demonstration grants will expire on November 21, 2019, which is 10 months before the demonstration projects will be completed.⁴

In the demonstration projects, HPOG participants were predominantly low-income, single, working mothers of color, 48 percent of whom have a high school education or less.⁵ Traditional training programs often exclude these groups, or do not support their success, due to the lack of supportive services,⁶ whereas HPOG is expressly designed to support their success. In a June 14 Committee hearing, Congressman Dwight Evans testified:

They (HPOGs) also help diversify the health professions, which can lead to reducing disparities in health outcomes. . . The mentorship and career coaching components of the program are especially critical in helping individuals overcome their barriers. I have always been an outspoken supporter of mentoring. Not all of us grow up in the same communities, come from the same backgrounds, and are taught the same things through our upbringing. Mentoring is key to bridging the gaps we have in and across our communities, strengthening bonds, and ensuring that people can grow to reach their full potential, no matter where they come from.⁷

Early evaluations of HPOG 1.0 suggested that the programs succeeded in supporting participants in meeting their career goals: participation in an HPOG program not only increased training completion rates, but also the likelihood of being employed in a health profession upon graduation.⁸ Furthermore, of those who gained health care employment, over 15 percent received a wage increase right away.⁹ The majority of HPOG 1.0 participants were “nontraditional” postsecondary education students: the average student age was 32 years old, and most were single women raising one or more children. Nearly half of HPOG 1.0 participants were already employed upon enrollment in HPOG training but needed jobs that would move them out of poverty.¹⁰ These findings are illustrative of the ways in which HPOG is providing opportunities for hardworking families not only to meet their career goals but also to support their family economic mobility goals.

HPOG 2.0 is scheduled to run from FY2015–FY2020 and is building upon the lessons from the first HPOG 1.0 demonstration round. In just the first three years of HPOG 2.0, federally funded evaluations found very high training retention rates (88 percent), high rates of acquiring certifications or credentials (67 percent) and high rates of employment and progression in health fields (three fifths started a health care job or were promoted within a health care job, and one fourth made career progress beyond getting a first job, within just the first three years).¹¹ HPOG 2.0 grantees also had high rates of success with participants with very low initial levels of education; of those who needed basic skills training, 92 percent completed or are still enrolled in training, and more than three-fourths moved on to health profession training.¹²

The demonstration projects have shown that HPOG can be part of the solution to workforce shortages. In a letter to the Committee, Steady H. Moono, the President of SUNY Schenectady Community College, an HPOG demonstration grantee, noted:

The HPOG program is critical to connecting our employers with talent that may have been overlooked in the past but is not necessarily any less successful than any other trained individual. As our region's unemployment rate continues to decline, our healthcare providers struggle to find qualified and trained applicants to fill critical positions.¹³

HPOG demonstrations have also been effective in rural areas, which struggle to find qualified workers. As the Central Community College HPOG grantee in rural Nebraska said, "This HPOG program is a win-win for participants and employers. It opens doors to stable healthcare careers while producing well trained applicants who are ready to fill critical job openings."¹⁴

Legislation is needed to avoid terminating the current demonstration projects prematurely, and to allow HHS to continue following the HPOG 1.0 and HPOG 2.0 cohorts, to determine long-term employment outcomes.

Legislation is also needed to make this research-tested approach available to more workers and communities. Because it is structured as a demonstration project, there are currently only 32 HPOG programs serving approximately 15,000 individuals. Communities across the United States, including tribal communities and the U.S. Territories, could benefit from locally-administered grants using this proven and effective model to help workers and address the health worker shortage. We also can further build on our research investment by testing variations of this proven model for other career pathways and beneficiary populations and continuing to follow current and future HPOG beneficiaries and refine the model.

The Committee on Ways and Means marked up H.R. 3398, the Pathways to Health Careers Act on October 22, 2019. The bill, as amended, was ordered favorably reported to the House of Representatives (with a quorum being present) by a vote of 24 yeas and 16 nays.

II. EXPLANATION OF THE BILL

A. THE PATHWAYS TO HEALTH CAREERS ACT

CURRENT LAW

Under section 2008 of the Social Security Act, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, in consultation with the U.S. Department of Education, is authorized to use up to $85 million per year to award demonstration grants to states, federally recognized Indian tribes or tribal organizations, institutions of higher education, local workforce development boards, apprenticeship programs, or community-based organizations, for the purpose of providing low-income individuals, including recipients of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families cash benefits, with the training and support needed to enter and advance in health professions.

The funding authorization expires on November 22, 2019.¹⁵

REASONS FOR CHANGE

The Committee believes that after 10 years of rigorously evaluating Health Profession Opportunity Grant (HPOG) demonstration projects, we have identified an approach that is effective in moving low-income parents, even those with barriers to work, into health professions which are in-demand or experiencing worker shortages. Given the number of Americans in need of better jobs and the growing shortage of qualified health workers in many communities and for many specific types of needed health care, the Committee seeks to ensure that the proven HPOG model can be made available and accessible to Americans seeking opportunities in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, the U.S. Territories, and in tribal communities. The Committee also seeks to continue to refine this effective approach and test it with additional populations that might benefit.

EXPLANATION OF PROVISIONS

Sec. 1. Short title

This section provides the bill title, “Pathways to Health Careers Act”.

Sec. 2. Extension through fiscal year 2020 of funding for demonstration projects to address health professions workforce needs

This section extends existing Health Profession Opportunity Grant (HPOG) policy and funding until September 30, 2020, to finish the current demonstration grant cycle. It also provides an additional $15 million for fiscal year 2020 for technical assistance and administrative costs associated with implementing the HPOG grants outlined in the rest of the bill.

Sec. 3. Career pathways through health profession opportunity grants

This section revises section 2008 of the Social Security Act to provide for HPOG competitive grants, beginning in FY 2021, in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, U.S. territories, and tribal communities, and to authorize specific new demonstration grants.

If there are sufficient qualified applicants for competitive grants, the Secretary is required to award at least two grants in each state and the District of Columbia; at least 10 grants to federally recognized Indian tribes, tribal organizations, or tribal colleges or universities; and at least two grants to applicants in U.S. territories. The Secretary has discretion to not award grants, if there are not enough qualified applicants, but must report to Congress on the reason grants were not made. The Committee does not consider grants to federally recognized Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and tribal colleges and universities geographically located within states to fulfill the two per state requirement.

This section also authorizes two new HPOG demonstration projects: a project to test the HPOG approach for individuals with arrest or conviction records, and a project to test the HPOG approach for a pregnancy and birth career pathway.

The following description reflects the new subsections of section 2008 of the Social Security Act as modified by H.R. 3398.

Subsection (a). Application requirements

This subsection describes grant requirements applicable to all grants (competitive and demonstration) and also outlines additional requirements which apply only to specific demonstration projects.

The subsection requires all grant applications to include a career pathways approach, as well as plans to address participant basic skills and work readiness, provide training for in-demand or shortage health professions, case management and career coaching, and job placement and post-employment support.

Applicants for both types of grants must certify that they will provide access to child care and transportation for participants, if needed, have experience working with low-income populations, have considered apprenticeship models, and base their approach on labor market data which shows job shortages or the availability of in-demand jobs. Grantees are required to review their state's workforce development plan and consult with their local workforce development board, but they do not need to receive approval from them to submit the application. Further, if a stipend is a part of the applicant's model, they must also include a plan for calculating and distributing the living expenses stipend.

The applicant is required to provide a certification, all data requested by the Secretary of HHS, and ensure a Director is in place for the project by the end of the planning period.

Subsection (a) also includes the following additional grant requirements which apply only to specific demonstration projects. They include the following:

Arrest or Conviction Record demonstration projects must sufficiently research and understand local laws and restrictions to ensure that state and local laws provide a way for people with arrest or conviction records to receive credentials and licenses needed for the career, including provisions in law that allow people with disqualifying convictions to appeal, obtain waivers or certificates, or produce evidence of rehabilitation that provide relief from statutory barriers. State laws that include discretionary denials of certifications and licensure based solely, or in part, on criminal history for healthcare occupations should not preclude applicants from competition if applicants can provide information regarding the opportunities in state licensure and certification processes to provide mitigating and rehabilitative evidence to document a realistic pathway to the specified career. Applications should include a commitment from stakeholder partners to work toward fair hiring practices that follow Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and should tailor their proposed program to meet the needs of the community. For the purposes of this demonstration, public prisons and juvenile justice systems could be considered appropriate state agency partners. Qualified applicants for this demonstration must also have project staff with experience working with individuals who have arrest or conviction records, or, working with employers with experience working with people with arrest or conviction records, as well as a plan for participant recruitment.

Pregnancy and Birth demonstration projects must have partnerships and a program design that will support a career pathway in pregnancy, birth, or post-partum services and conduct the demonstration in a jurisdiction where state and local laws recognize doulas and midwives. Grantees should train for a variety of credentials and roles within the pregnancy, birth, and post-partum field, which does not require nor presume that such roles require a Registered Nursing degree nor a Bachelor-prepared credential. The definition of "allied health" as included in the definitions subsection of the bill is intended to include nurse midwives in addition to other midwives that are not nurses and that are not bachelor-prepared, as well as other professions that are considered part of the pregnancy and birth and post-partum career pathway, including, but not limited to, lactation support specialists and community health workers. The Committee intends all HPOG program graduates under this new demonstration project to meet the rigorous training requirements for standard industry-recognized credentials, while also recognizing tribal sovereignty and cultural and religious doula and midwife practices in tribal communities. This demonstration is not excluded from Congressional expectation that HPOG program graduates, including those in the doula and midwife field, are employed in states and settings where they may bill their services to public and/or private health insurances.

Subsection (b). Preferences in considering applications

This subsection gives preference in awarding competitive grants to applicants who were prior HPOG grantees: applicants who partner with employers, state and local government agencies, labor organizations, and education and training providers (including workforce development boards, apprenticeship programs, and institutions of higher education); applicants that provide career coaching, mentoring, and peer support; applicants that serve rural areas; and applicants that plan to provide a stipend for living expenses, or have a reserve fund to help participants with emergencies that might otherwise force them to drop out of training.

Subsection (c). Grants

This subsection authorizes the Secretary of HHS, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Education (and, in the case of Arrest or Conviction Record demonstrations, the Attorney General) to award HPOG grants, guarantees each demonstration project at least 25 percent of funds provided for HPOG demonstration projects, and specifies a grant cycle of not less than five years, where the first year may be a planning period with a reduced funding amount determined by the HHS Secretary, who also has overall discretion in determining grant size. It is the Committee's expectation that the Secretary will continue to delegate this responsibility to the Office of Family Assistance, which will work with the Office of Planning, Research, and Evaluation within the Administration of Children and Families.

Subsection (d). Use of grant

Subsection (d) describes services and supports that are required under all grants, and also supports that are allowed, but not required to be provided, and how those supports interact with other benefit programs. It also sets beneficiary eligibility criteria.

Support services that are required to be available in all HPOG-grant-funded programs if needed, include basic skills assessment and basic skills education (if necessary); guaranteed access to child care, either via referral, partial subsidy, or direct support; case management plans that include career coaching, with the option to offer appropriate peer support and mentoring opportunities to develop soft skills and social capital; and ensuring access to transportation (including public transit or gas for a personal vehicle).

Transportation subsidies are not limited to a specific mode, as modes of transportation may evolve and change over time. For the demonstration for individuals with arrest or conviction records, grantees are required to facilitate access to legal assistance for participants, for the purpose of addressing arrest or conviction records and associated workforce barriers and increasing the accessibility of specific career pathways, including assisting individuals with certificates, waiver and licensing applications, sealing or expungement of arrest and conviction records, or other relevant legal services. All grantees are also required to provide at least the number of hours of training required for certification in the state in which the project is conducted, or, if there is no requirement, a number of hours set by HHS.

Supports that are allowable but not required uses of grant funding include: a stipend for living expenses that is at least monthly; a reserve fund to provide financial assistance to participants in emergency situations; tuition and training materials such as uniforms, shoes, and hair nets; in-kind resource donations such as interview clothing and conference attendance fees; costs related to basic education or a high school equivalency education; legal assistance or other support necessary to address arrest or conviction record barriers to work and facilitate entrance into career pathways; and other support services as deemed necessary for family wellbeing, success in the project, and progress toward career goals.

This subsection specifies that HPOG services do not count as income for the purposes of other federal benefits which use a means test for eligibility.

Grantees are only allowed to serve individuals who are low-income at the time of enrollment, but the Committee expects that many individuals will increase their income as they progress along a career pathway in the program and will remain eligible for services for the duration of the program. Grantees are also required to ensure that at least 10 percent of individuals served by their grant meet the income eligibility requirements of the state TANF program upon enrollment in the HPOG program, or are non-custodial parents of children who meet the state program eligibility requirements at the time of enrollment in the HPOG program.

This subsection also prohibits the use of grant funds for entertainment, but provides a limited exception for career coaching and case management services that include family-oriented celebrations of specific career milestones attained by participants.

Subsection (e). Technical assistance

This subsection requires the Secretary of HHS to provide technical assistance to grantees and potential grantees to assist in applying for grants, operating grants, and reporting data or evaluating grants. The subsection requires HHS to provide assistance tailored to meet the specific needs of Indian tribes, tribal organizations, tribal colleges and universities, U.S. territories, and demonstration project grantees. It also requires HHS to continue holding an annual technical assistance conference to facilitate exchange of information regarding best practices and promising practices among current and former grantees. The technical assistance services will assist in continuing to refine the effectiveness of the HPOG approach, test variations on the model, and encouraged continued innovation, so will be coordinated with evaluation services, as HHS works with new demonstration projects and continues to study impacts and outcomes of ongoing HPOG programs no longer participating in randomized controlled trials.

Subsection (f). Evaluation of demonstration projects

This subsection requires HHS to conduct rigorous and well-designed evaluations of the demonstration projects, by grant, contract, or interagency agreement, and specifies that the evaluation does not have to be a randomized controlled trial. It also provides for ongoing research on long-term effects of past HPOG demonstrations. These evaluations should include study of the impact of cash stipends, regardless of the size or frequency of the stipend.

Subsection (g). Reports

This subsection requires grantees to report data on participant outcomes related to earnings, employment in health professions, graduate rate, graduation timeliness, credential attainment, participant demographics, and other data specified by the Secretary of HHS.

The subsection also requires HHS to submit a once-per-Congress report to the House Committee on Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committee on characteristics of and outcomes for participants served by the awarded projects, best practices and promising practices, and technical assistance provided to grantees, as well as an assessment of the effectiveness of the projects in addressing health professions workforce shortages or in-demand jobs. The report must include a separate statement summarizing the number of rural applicants and rural awards, and, if the agency was not able to award the required number of grants to states, territories, and tribal communities, the reason why not.

Subsection (h). Definitions

This subsection describes entities eligible for grants and provides other definitions of terms used in the Act. Entities eligible for grants include local workforce development boards; states, county, and local governments or agencies; Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and tribal colleges and universities; hospitals; high-quality skilled nursing facilities; federally-qualified health centers; non-profits, labor organizations, and labor-management partnerships; and addiction treatment providers which the Secretary determined were high quality and provided comprehensive addiction treatment. Inclusion on the eligible entity list does not entitle any applicant to a grant. The Secretary has discretion to determine whether any individual entity is fully equipped to be a primary grantee of this supportive job training program.

Subsection (i). Funding

This subsection provides $425 million for each of fiscal years 2021 through 2025. Of those amounts, 75 percent is for general competitive grants, 4 percent is reserved for grants to tribes, tribal organizations, tribal colleges and universities, 5 percent is reserved for grants to territories, 6 percent is reserved for demonstration projects, 6 percent plus any unspent funds from the other reservations is reserved for technical assistance, and 4 percent is reserved for evaluations and associated staffing.

Subsection (j). Non-applicability of preceding section of this subtitle

This subsection specifies that some uses of funding which are otherwise prohibited for states within Subtitle A of Title XX are allowable in the HPOG program.

H.R. 3398 would reauthorize and amend the Health Profession Opportunity Grants (HPOG) program and would provide $100 million in 2020—$85 million for the grant program and $15 million for administrative costs and technical assistance related to the expansion of the program. Beginning in 2021, the bill would expand the program and would provide $425 million for each year from 2021 through 2025. The expanded program would provide grants to:

- Train low-income individuals for careers in the health professions,
- Create demonstration projects to train individuals for careers in the pregnancy, childbirth, or postpartum fields, and
- Create demonstration projects to provide education and training in the health professions for individuals with arrest or conviction records.

For this estimate, CBO assumes that H.R. 3398 will be enacted around the end of 2019. Section 1501 of the Continuing Appropriations Act, 2020, and Health Extenders Act of 2019 (Public Law 116–59) reauthorized HPOG through November 21, 2019, which CBO estimated would provide $12 million in 2020. Thus, CBO estimates that in 2020, enacting H.R. 3398 would increase budget authority by $73 million for the grant program—$85 million in the bill minus the $12 million already provided—and $15 million for administrative expenses. (The bill specifies that amounts provided for HPOG in any prior act be charged to the appropriation in H.R. 3398.)

Estimated outlays for the program in 2020 are based on historical spending patterns and are net of the outlays CBO estimated for section 1501 of P.L. 116–59. Beginning in 2021, CBO expects that the rate of spending would slow relative to historical spending patterns because of the program expansion. CBO estimates that enacting the bill would cost $2.2 billion over the 2020–2029 period.

The costs of the legislation fall within budget function 500 (education, training, employment, and social services.)

The Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 establishes budget-reporting and enforcement procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or revenues. The net changes in outlays that are subject to those pay-as-you-go procedures are shown in Table 1.

TABLE 1.—CBO'S ESTIMATE OF THE STATUTORY PAY-AS-YOU-GO EFFECTS OF H.R. 3398

	By fiscal year, millions of dollars—
	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2028	2029	2020– 2024	2020– 2029
Estimated Budget Authority	88	425	425	425	425	425	0	0	0	0	1,788	2,213
Estimated Outlays	2	57	169	298	374	417	412	285	136	51	900	2,201

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 3398 would not increase on-budget deficits by more than $5 billion in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2030.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Jennifer Gray. The estimate was reviewed by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

DISSENTING VIEWS

Committee Republicans oppose Worker and Family Support Chairman Davis' bill, H.R. 3398, the Pathway to Health Careers Act of 2019.

The fact is we do not know if this program works yet because evaluations of the Health Profession Opportunity Grants (HPOG) program's effectiveness have not been completed. The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) study of the first round of HPOG grants evaluated 42 programs and found no significant impact on overall employment and only a small impact on earnings. The results from a 36-month study are expected in late 2019 or early 2020, and the Committee should wait to see what those reveal before extending the program for a long period—and especially before adding more money and growing this program to several times its current size.

In 2019, the Federal government ran 47 different employment and training programs spread across 15 government agencies. Collectively, those programs spend $18.9 billion per year to help Americans get the skills they need to obtain good jobs and move up the economic ladder. The Council of Economic Advisors recently issued a report assessing the evidence and performance of Federal employment and training programs. The report found that, "with the exception of the Registered Apprenticeship program, government job training programs appear to be largely ineffective and fail to produce sufficient benefits for workers to justify the costs." Especially knowing the poor track record of the dozens of other government job training programs, there should be convincing evidence that the HPOG program actually works before expanding spending on it by 500 percent.

Instead, the Committee should focus on reforming the $16.7 billion dollar a year Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Program (TANF), which also helps low-income people go to work. There is bipartisan agreement that TANF needs immediate improvement to better assist low-income families in going to work. Both the TANF and HPOG programs expire on November 22nd. The HPOG program (at $85 million per year) spends just a small fraction of what TANF does (about $16.7 billion just in federal funds, and close to $30 billion counting state spending). Unfortunately, this Committee has not held a hearing or markup this Congress on proposals to reauthorize TANF. That is despite the fact Working on TANF would be a much better use of the Committee's time and resources. The Committee should focus on fixing TANF by advancing the JOBS for Success Act that Republican leader Kevin Brady introduced and this Committee approved in 2018. That approach would refocus the TANF program on helping far more people successfully enter work and move up the economic ladder.

The Committee should continue to work to promote evidence-based policy making to be good stewards of taxpayer funds. But there is no sound justification for significantly expanding spending on this program—and notably before it has proven it is achieving results. H.R. 3398 would spend more in 2021 through 2024 ($1.7 billion) than in the past 10 years of the HPOG program. That's irresponsible. We recently exceeded $22 trillion in debt and our nation faces a serious spending problem. That certainly will not be helped by growing the HPOG program to multiple times its current size—which is just one of the many ways our colleagues want to rapidly increase federal spending.

In the 115th Congress, we heard countless times from our colleagues on the other side of the aisle complain about bills not going through regular order. Yet neither this bill, which adds $2.2 billion to the debt without a spending offset, nor the expansion of the HPOG program therein, have received one hearing before the Committee.

Committee Republicans call on the Democratic leadership to allow this Committee to work in a bipartisan manner to develop a long-term extension to TANF that focuses giving families and individuals the tools they need so they can prepare for, find, and keep a good job.
