A bill to establish an office within the Federal Trade Commission and an outside advisory group to prevent fraud targeting seniors and to direct the Commission to study and submit a report to Congress on scams targeting seniors and Indian tribes, and for other purposes.

I. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 2610, the “Fraud and Scam Reduction Act”, was introduced by Representatives Lisa Blunt-Rochester (D–DE) and Tim Walberg (R–MI) and referred to the Committee on Energy and Commerce. The bill’s original short title was “Stop Senior Scams Act”. H.R. 2610, as reported, establishes a Senior Scams Prevention Advisory Group at the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to collect and disseminate model educational materials for retailers, financial institutions, and wire-transfer companies to use in preventing scams that affect seniors.

During full Committee markup, the committee adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute incorporating legislative text based on four other bills referred to the Committee on Energy and Commerce: H.R. 2301, the “Seniors Fraud Prevention Act of 2019” (Reps. Deutch (D–FL), Buchanan (R–FL), and Welch (D–VT)); H.R. 7699, the “Protecting Seniors from Emergency Scams Act” (Reps. Kelly (D–IL), Marshall (R–KS), and Caster (D–IL); H.R. 8127, the “Protecting Indian Tribes from Scams Act” (Reps. Lujan (D–NM) and Gianforte (R–MT)); and H.R. 8152, the “FTC Collaboration Act of 2020” (Reps. O’Halleran (D–AZ) and Hudson (R–NC)).

The legislative text of H.R. 2301 directs the FTC to establish an office to advise the FTC on the prevention of fraud targeting seniors and to help monitor marketing materials for fraud targeting seniors. H.R. 7699 requires the FTC to submit a report to Congress on scams targeting seniors, including policy recommendations to prevent senior scams, especially scams related to national emergencies. H.R. 8127 directs the FTC to submit to Congress a report on unfair or deceptive acts or practices targeted at Indian Tribes or members of Indian Tribes. Lastly, H.R. 8152 requires the FTC to conduct a study on facilitating and refining existing efforts with State Attorneys General to prevent, publicize, and penalize frauds and scams perpetrated on individuals in the United States.

II. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Consumers in the United States face a vast and rapidly changing array of fraudulent activities, as well as a variety of other unfair, deceptive, or abusive business practices. In 2019, the FTC received more than 3.2 million consumer complaints through its Consumer Sentinel Network database regarding identity theft and fraud, including imposter scams and telephone and mobile service scams.1
The FTC also reported that more than $1.9 billion was paid to scammers as a result of fraudulent schemes. These numbers may underestimate the true extent of fraud against American consumers. The FTC has made addressing fraud targeting specific populations a consumer protection priority. Consumer fraud affects victims of all ages, but older Americans represent a rapidly growing segment of the total population. In the past decade, the 65-and-older population grew by more than one-third. According to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, scammers may be more likely to target seniors because they are more trusting, usually have some accumulated wealth, and are less likely to report fraud because they do not know how to report or are embarrassed about being scammed. According to the FTC, older adults suffered nearly $400 million in losses from fraud in 2018.

Scammers have also been known to exploit consumer fear and confusion during emergencies, natural disasters, or other crises. For example, scammers have targeted the stimulus checks and unemployment benefits intended to provide critical relief to Americans suffering from the economic repercussions of the coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID–19) pandemic. These scams exploit Americans already struggling financially and divert resources away from where they are needed. The FTC has also issued warnings about many other coronavirus-related scams, including contact tracing and charity scams.

One often-overlooked area in Federal fraud prevention efforts are scams targeting Indian tribes or tribal members. The scope and scale of scams affecting Indian tribes has not been well documented, hindering efforts to prevent them.

H.R. 2610 is needed to help prevent fraud and scams, especially those targeting seniors, Indian tribes, and tribal members. H.R. 2610 will ensure the government and industry continue to work together to implement best practices that stop scams before they can cause harm; streamline efforts to prevent fraud targeting seniors, especially during national emergencies; protect Indian tribes and tribal members from unfair or deceptive acts or practices; and enhance collaborative efforts between the FTC and State Attorneys General to reduce fraud and scams.
