The amendment is as follows:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Standing Against Houthi Aggression Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) It was reported by Reuters on March 21, 2017, that Iran, a designated state sponsor of terror, sent advanced weapons and military advisers to assist and support Yemen’s Ansarallah, commonly referred to as the “Houthis”.

(2) On January 19, 2021, the Trump Administration designated Ansarallah as a foreign terrorist organization and a specially designated global terrorist.

(3) On February 16, 2021, Secretary of State Blinken revoked the designation of Ansarallah as a foreign terrorist organization pursuant to section 219(a)(6)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1189(a)(6)(A)).

(4) Since October 7, 2023, the Houthis have launched over 40 ballistic missile and Unmanned Aerial Vehicle attacks on international shipping in the Red Sea, including direct attacks on United States sailors and taking an international ship and its crew hostage. This follows years of Houthi cross-border attacks against Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates.

(5) Houthi attacks on global shipping have caused many shipping companies to re-route to avoid the area, resulting in a de-facto blockade against Yemen, while also driving up shipping costs, disrupting supply chains, and negatively impacting the global economy.

(6) In addition to providing the Houthis with advanced conventional weapons and component parts, Iran and their Hezbollah proxies have also enabled the Houthis with financial support, training, and technical knowledge to manufacture weapons, including long range drones and ballistic and cruise missiles in Yemen, resulting in increased Houthi weapons stockpiles and illegal weapons proliferation throughout the region.

SEC. 3. DESIGNATION AS FTO; IMPOSITION OF SANCTIONS.

(a) DESIGNATION AS FTO.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall designate Ansarallah as a foreign terrorist organization pursuant to section 219(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1189(a)).

SUMMARY AND PURPOSE

H.R. 6046, the Standing Against Houthi Aggression Act, requires the Secretary of State to designate Ansarallah (also known as the Houthis) as a Foreign Terrorist Organization (FTO). H.R. 6046 also requires the President to impose property blocking and visa sanctions on Ansarallah and any foreign person that is a member, agent, or affiliate of, or owned or controlled by Ansarallah. The purpose of this legislation is to impose sanctions on the Houthis and their support network in order to compel them to stop their terrorist activities, and otherwise limit the resources the Houthis have available to conduct terrorist activities.

In 2014, after years of intermittent guerrilla war, the Houthis, a group of militants, launched a violent takeover of Yemen’s capital, sending Yemen’s internationally recognized government into exile and catapulting the country into civil war. Yemen’s internationally recognized government requested assistance to fight the Houthis, prompting the intervention of a Saudi-led coalition of Arab countries. The war further undermined security in a country long plagued by sectarian and tribal violence.

The civil war has exacerbated Yemen’s humanitarian crisis, with an estimated 377,000 people having died since 2014 according to the UN. About 70% of Yemenis still reside in areas under Houthi de-facto control where they are subject to gross violations of human rights, including restrictions on freedom of movement, arbitrary detention, torture, gender-based violence, and being forced into fighting.

The Houthis responded to the intervention of Arab states by waging an increasingly violent campaign against them, mainly focused on Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. Since 2014, the Houthis have carried out hundreds of cross-border attacks against Saudi Arabia using missiles and drones. In January 2022, shortly after seizing an Emirati ship in the Red Sea, the Houthis claimed responsibility for an attack against an airport and fuel depot in Abu Dhabi that killed three people.

Though Iran's links to the Houthis predate 2014, relations between the two have deepened significantly over the past decade and are "likely to endure," according to a recent Defense Intelligence Agency report. Iran (a U.S.-designated State Sponsor of Terrorism) and Hezbollah (a U.S.-designated FTO) have played a critical role in helping advance Houthi military capabilities, turning the Houthis into a well-armed, relatively sophisticated fighting force. Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) and Hezbollah commanders have embedded themselves in strategic Houthi military institutions and have commanders on the ground advising the Houthis with critical intelligence, planning, and targeting support. Iran provides the Houthis with everything from precision guided missiles to long range drones, while also helping grow the Houthis' own indigenous production capabilities.

Since Hamas' October 7, 2023 attack on Israel, which killed over 1,200 people, the Houthis have launched dozens of attacks on vessels in the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden, threatening both civilian ships and U.S. troops. Iran and Hezbollah are, according to de-classified U.S. intelligence, directly involved in the Houthi campaign against international shipping. State Department official Tim Lenderking said in February 2024, "The sense we have is overwhelmingly that Iran is pushing on an open door here with the Houthis, aiding, abetting, sharing intelligence, helping them target ships, determining which are the more lucrative targets." The disruption caused by the Houthi attacks poses a serious threat to the global economy due to the Red Sea being one of the most important arteries in the global shipping system. As a result of Houthi attacks, ships are re-routing around the Horn of Africa, adding approximately 10 days in additional travel time and up to $1 million in fuel costs. Insurance premiums for ships using the Red Sea have increased tenfold since the attacks began.

On January 10, 2021, then-Secretary of State Mike Pompeo announced that he would designate Ansarallah as an FTO and a Specially Designated Global Terrorist (SDGT), saying, "These designations will provide additional tools to confront terrorist activity and terrorism by Ansarallah, a deadly Iran-backed militia group in the Gulf region. The designations are intended to hold Ansarallah accountable for its terrorist acts, including cross-border attacks threatening civilian populations, infrastructure, and commercial shipping." Pompeo also said, "If Ansarallah did not behave like a terrorist organization, we would not designate it as an FTO and SDGT. It has led a brutal campaign that has killed many people, continues to destabilize the region, and denies Yemenis a peaceful solution to the conflict in their country. Rather than distance itself from the Iranian regime, it has embraced the world's leading state-sponsor of terrorism even more."

On February 16, 2021, Secretary of State Antony Blinken announced that he was revoking the FTO and SDGT designations of Ansarallah, saying, "the revocations are intended to ensure that relevant U.S. policies do not impede assistance to those already suffering what has been called the world's worst humanitarian crisis." Even so, Blinken noted, "The United States remains clear-eyed about Ansarallah's malign actions, and aggression, including taking control of large areas of Yemen by force, attacking U.S. partners in the Gulf, kidnapping and torturing citizens of the United States and many of our allies, diverting humanitarian aid, brutally repressing Yemenis in areas they control, and the deadly attack on December 30, 2020 in Aden against the cabinet of the legitimate government of Yemen."

Notably, the Houthis continued their terrorist behavior even after the designations were lifted. For example, in October 2021, after Blinken removed the FTO and SDGT designations, the Houthis breached the former U.S. Embassy compound in Sana'a and forcibly detained several current and former U.S. Embassy Locally Employed Staff, Yemeni individuals who are or have been employed by the United States.

On January 17, 2024, Blinken announced that he would re-designate the Houthis as an SDGT, though with an unprecedented 30-day implementation window and significant carve-outs built in. Shortly thereafter, White House National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan issued a statement claiming that "if the Houthis cease their attacks in the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden, the United States will immediately reevaluate this designation." The Biden Administration has not reimposed the FTO designation on the Houthis. The FTO designation would make providing material support to the Houthis a criminal penalty with the full force of U.S. law, while the SDGT designation does not, making FTO designation a stronger tool to pressure the Houthis and their supporters to end their terrorist behavior, and to prevent further terrorist financing.

There has been strong bipartisan interest in re-designating the Houthis as an FTO. In November 2023, House Foreign Affairs Committee Member Rep. Michael Waltz led a bipartisan letter, signed by more than 40 Members of Congress, urging Secretary Blinken to re-designate the Houthis as a Foreign Terrorist Organization.

H.R. 6046 would direct the Administration to designate Ansarallah (commonly referred to as the Houthis) as a foreign terrorist organization and to impose sanctions on any foreign persons or entities associated with the group. The bill also would require the Administration to report to the Congress on the regulations it issues to carry out the bill.

The Administration recently listed Ansarallah as a Specially Designated Terrorist Group. Under that designation, the Administration blocks any transactions involving assets associated with Ansarallah or its supporters that are in the United States or that come under the control of people in the United States. Designating Ansarallah as a foreign terrorist organization would expand those sanctions by prohibiting people and entities subject to the jurisdiction of the United States from providing it material support and restricting visas for its members.

People and entities who violate the prohibition on providing material support would be subject to civil or criminal monetary penalties. Those penalties are recorded as revenues, and a portion can be spent without further appropriation.

CBO estimates that, under H.R. 6046, more people would be denied visas by the Department of State, resulting in an insignificant decrease in revenues from fees. Although most visa fees are retained by the Department of State and spent, some collections are deposited into the Treasury as revenues. Denying foreign nationals entry into the United States also would reduce direct spending on federal benefits (emergency Medicaid or federal subsidies for health insurance, for example) for which those people might otherwise be eligible.

Using data about similar actions, CBO estimates that any additional sanctions would affect a small number of people; thus, enacting H.R. 6046 would have insignificant effects on revenues and direct spending, and would, on net, reduce deficits by insignificant amounts over the 2024–2034 period.

Based on the cost of regulations and reports similar to those required by the bill, CBO estimates that preparing those reports would cost less than $500,000 over the 2024–2029 period. Such spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

H.R. 6046 would impose a private-sector mandate as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA). Sanctions would prohibit individuals or entities in the United States from engaging in transactions involving assets and property that have been frozen. Those transactions are otherwise permitted under current law. The cost of the mandate would be any income lost because of the prohibition. CBO expects that because a small number of people or entities would be affected, the loss of income from any incremental increase in restrictions imposed by the bill would be small as well. CBO estimates that the cost of the mandate would fall well below the annual threshold established in UMRA for private-sector mandates ($200 million in 2024, adjusted annually for inflation).

H.R. 6046 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA.

The CBO staff contacts for this estimate are Emma Uebelhor (for federal costs) and Brandon Lever (for mandates). The estimate was reviewed by Christina Hawley Anthony, Deputy Director of Budget Analysis.

DISSENTING VIEWS

I have condemned and continue to condemn the violent Houthi militant movement for its provocative and unwarranted attacks against commercial shipping and U.S. Navy personnel in the Red Sea as well as against Israel earlier this year. I support the Biden Administration's recent related sanctions and actions and remain concerned about the continued humanitarian crisis faced by millions of innocent Yemenis. However, I oppose H.R. 6046 because the likelihood of unintended consequences on the Yemeni population are simply too great.

The Houthis seized control of Yemen's capital in 2014 and fought a prolonged war against a Saudi led military campaign that resulted in significant civilian death and destruction of much of Yemen's infrastructure. To this day, after years of bombing, ground combat, and impoverishment as a result of this war, millions of Yemeni civilians suffer near famine conditions, recurring disease including cholera outbreaks, medical goods shortages, and extreme economic hardship. 4.5 million Yemenis are currently internally displaced. Though a tenuous truce between Houthi militants and the Saudi military remains in place, Yemeni civilians have experienced little respite from years of hardship and remain dependent on outside humanitarian aid for even the most basic necessities to survive. Yemen is currently experiencing some of the highest malnutrition rates ever recorded and a staggering 17.6 million people are expected to face acute food insecurity in 2024.

Amidst all of this, Houthi militants have cynically sought to exploit the Israel-Hamas war following Hamas' brutal October 7th attacks on Israeli civilians, and the subsequent acute humanitarian crisis in Gaza. They have launched wave after wave of drone attacks on commercial ships and U.S. Navy vessels and long-range missiles at Israel. In response, the Biden Administration has launched numerous airstrikes against Houthi positions in Yemen as well as announced both individual sanctions designations on Houthi leaders and facilitators as well as the powerful Specially Designated Global Terrorist (SDGT) sanction. This action further sanctions the Houthis themselves and those facilitation and support networks, coordinated by Iran, which keep the Houthi militants armed and equipped. The Administration's SDGT announcement was accompanied by important general licenses for basic humanitarian assistance, including food, medicine, and other emergency aid operations.

H.R. 6046 forces the Administration to designate the Houthis a Foreign Terrorist Organization (FTO), a designation that risks jeopardizing the very lifesaving assistance Yemeni civilians are dependent on for their survival. As a result of the sweeping legal implications of such a designation, many commercial shippers and humanitarian organizations would be unwilling to do any business in Yemen given their vulnerability to severe criminal consequences, triggering a significant drop-off in the imports on which Yemen depends for nearly all its basic goods. While some may point to existing general licenses or provisions, the legal implications of an FTO designation renders such provisions moot without any such new statutory authorizations or exemptions. Finally, the Administration has made clear it opposes this bill given the likely humanitarian impacts and the fact that it already has the authority to implement such a designation per Section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1189).

A broad coalition of NGOs and humanitarian organizations also publicly oppose such an FTO designation without humanitarian provisions, which H.R. 6046 does not have. There is no disagreement about the reprehensible nature of Houthi violence both within Yemen and the Red Sea.

Committee Democrats remain steadfast and committed to opposing the violent statements and actions of Houthi militants against Israel, commercial shipping, and U.S. personnel, but H.R. 6046 inordinately and unnecessarily punishes millions of Yemeni civilians on the brink of perishing and provides no reasonable humanitarian exemptions for legitimate assistance to those most in need.

Sincerely,

GREGORY W. MEEKS,
