

Administration of Joseph R. Biden, Jr., 2024

Remarks Prior to a Meeting With Prime Minister Fumio Kishida of Japan and an Exchange With Reporters

April 10, 2024

President Biden. Well, Fumio, welcome back to the White House. Welcome back to the Oval Office. It's good to have you here and good to see you again.

When we were here last year, we said the role being played by the United States and Japan is becoming even greater. And we—I couldn't agree more with your assertion back then.

And what we see in our joint support for Ukraine in the face of Russia's vicious assault was—it's just outrageous.

We see it in our historic trilateral relationship with South Korea. We see it in our economic investments, which has helped generate millions of jobs across both our nations.

And I sincerely want to thank you, Mr. Prime Minister, for your bold leadership across all these issues. You, personally, have made all this possible. And I would assert our alliance has never been stronger in our entire history.

So today I look forward to discussing how we can even deepen it more, including increasing defense and in technology and cooperation across the board.

And we can also discuss how we can continue to enhance and ensure Indo-Pacific remains a free, open, and prosperous region of the world with us standing together.

And thank you for being here, Mr. Prime Minister. You've heard me say this before, but I'll say it again: You're a genuine leader, a true partner, and a good friend.

Thank you for being here.

Prime Minister Kishida. Well, Joe, thank you so much for those very kind words of welcome. And I'm very grateful to be invited to the United States for this official visit. My wife Yuko and I are sincerely grateful for the warm hospitality extended by you and Dr. Biden.

Up until now, Joe, you and I, we have had countless dialogues, and we have nurtured a friendship and a trust along the way. Japan and the United States are now at the forefront in maintaining and strengthening a free and open international order, based on the rule of law.

Japan and the United States are also indispensable now to each other in driving sustainable and inclusive economic growth as well.

Through this official visit, I look forward to confirming the robust bond between our two nations and show—demonstrate at home and abroad how Japan and the U.S., firmly bound together, will build a future as global partners.

So, once again, I thank you for your warm hospitality.

President Biden. Thank you.

[At this point, several reporters began speaking at once.]

Q. Why Japan now?

Q. Are we any closer—are we any closer to a Gaza cease-fire, Mr. President?

[Several reporters spoke at once.]

Q. Any movement on a cease-fire, Mr. President?

[Several reporters spoke at once.]

Q. Any movement on a cease-fire, Mr. President?

Israel-Hamas Conflict in Gaza, Palestinian Territories

Q. Any movement on the hostages or a cease-fire?

President Biden. Still negotiating.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:52 a.m. in the Oval Office at the White House. Prime Minister Kishida spoke in Japanese, and his remarks were translated by an interpreter. The transcript was released by the Office of the Press Secretary on April 12.

Categories: Interviews With the News Media : Exchanges with reporters, White House; Meetings With Foreign Leaders and International Officials : Japan, Prime Minister Kishida.

Locations: Washington, DC.

Names: Kishida, Fumio.

Subjects: Gaza, hostages held by Hamas; Indo-Pacific, economic and security cooperation; Israel, military operations in Gaza; Japan, defense relationship with U.S.; Japan, Prime Minister; Japan, relations with U.S.; Japan, trade with U.S.; Russia, conflict with Ukraine; Ukraine, international assistance.

DCPD Number: DCPD202400282.