SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Section 303(d) of the Clean Water Act (CWA) requires that each state identify those waters for which existing technology-based pollution controls are not stringent enough to attain or maintain state water quality standards. For those waters, states are required to establish TMDLs according to a priority ranking.

On January 11, 1985 EPA published the Water Quality Planning and Management regulations (50 FR 1775). These regulations included requirements related to the implementation of section 303(d) of the CWA (40 FR 130.7). The regulations did not specify dates for state compliance with the section 303(d) requirements, but reiterated the statutory provision calling for submissions from time to time. On July 24, 1992 EPA published a final rule (57 FR 143) that amended 40 CFR 130.7 to establish that, for the purposes of identifying water quality-limited waters still requiring TMDLs, "from time to time" means once every two years. The list of waters still needing TMDLs must also include a priority ranking and must identify the waters targeted for TMDL development during the next two years.

Consistent with EPA's revised regulations, California submitted to EPA for approval its listing decisions under section 303(d)(2). EPA today proposes to fully approve California's list of waters needing TMDLs, priority rankings, and list of waters targeted for TMDL development during the next two years. EPA solicits public comment on California's lists and EPA's proposed approval decision.

EPA notes that it does not normally solicit public comment on its decisions to approve state section 303(d) lists. Pursuant to the public participation requirements of 40 CFR part 25, EPA is providing this opportunity for public review and comment because California provided inadequate opportunity for public comment during development of its lists. In the future, EPA expects that states will provide adequate opportunities for public comment during development of the state lists.
