

Railroad Administration, 400 7th Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590, 202-366-4781.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Building on the regulatory philosophy set forth in Executive Order No. 12866, President Clinton recently asked Executive Branch agencies to report to him by June 1, 1995 on ways to improve the regulatory process. Specifically, the President requested that agencies: [1] Cut obsolete regulations; [2] reward agency and regulator performance by rewarding results instead of red tape; [3] create grassroots partnerships by meeting, outside of Washington, D.C., with those affected by regulations; and [4] use consensual rulemaking, such as regulatory negotiation, more frequently. This notice solicits comments and announces public outreach responsive to the President's directives.

FRA is committed to a railroad regulatory program that achieves safety goals while being cost-effective, user-friendly and customer-focused. Consistent with the President's Initiative, our 1995 Safety Action Plan aspires to cut red-tape, improve communications, foster cooperation and emphasize performance-oriented decision making with:

- Annual safety plans from each major railroad developed consensually with management, labor and FRA;
- Uniform and consistent safety assurance methods;
- Continued efforts to improve the effectiveness of our communications and customer response; and
- Streamlining of our regulatory process with a focus on data-based decision making.

Through roundtables, innovative rulemaking procedures (including negotiated rulemaking), and direct contacts with industry groups, FRA seeks to ensure open lines of communication and active collaboration of all affected persons in the development of its safety programs.

In response to the President's initiative, FRA invites participation from the regulated community in the creation of grassroots partnerships. The meetings in Chicago and Newark will be informal, intended to produce a dialogue between agency regulators and those persons directly affected by the rail safety program and regulations. These public forums are intended to elicit information and views at a grassroots level—from working railroad employees, supervisors and managers in those major railroad terminal areas.

Because FRA believes the President's call for regulatory review provides rich opportunities for eliminating or improving regulations, FRA is seeking comments, either at the public meetings or in writing, discussing methods of improving the regulations to make the rail safety program more performance-oriented, flexible and cost-effective. Any comments should contain a current priority order for those areas in need of improvement. By focusing on matters of greatest concern to those who carry regulatory burdens, FRA can best balance its responsibilities for regulatory reinvention and completion of statutorily mandated rulemaking proceedings.

Donald M. Itzkoff,

Deputy Administrator.
