

options available in the marketplace, the total intrastate charges for each of these service options, as well as the advantages and disadvantages of alternative service and equipment configurations that offer communications capabilities comparable to those of ISDN. Moreover, certain of the options for applying SLCs under our part 69 access charge rules described above would use a definition of the term "line" that differs from the current separations definition in Part 36.¹ We seek comment on whether we should initiate the process of considering conforming separations changes through a referral to a Joint Board in the event that we adopt such an approach. In light of competitive developments in the interstate access market, interested parties may also wish to take this opportunity to comment more generally on the need for additional changes to the way carriers can recover the interstate assignment of local loop costs and local switching or other costs that the parties view as NTS.
