Notice Pursuant to the National Cooperative Research and Production Act of 1993—Cooperative Research and Development Agreement No. SC92/1074 Seismic Source Development

Notice is hereby given that, on May 26, 1995, pursuant to Section 6(a) of the National Cooperative Research and Production Act of 1993, 15 U.S.C. 4301, et seq. ("Act"), the Participants in the Cooperative Research and Development Agreement No. SC92/1074 ("CRADA") titled "Seismic Source Development," have filed written notifications simultaneously with the Attorney General and with the Federal Trade Commission disclosing (1) the identities of the parties to CRADA, and (2) the nature and objectives of the venture. The notification were filed for the purpose of invoking the Act's provisions limiting the recovery of antitrust plaintiffs to actual damages under specified circumstances. Pursuant to Section 6(b) of the Act, the identities of the current parties participating in the CRADA are Amoco Production Company, Tulsa, OK; Chevron Petroleum Technology Company, Houston, TX; Conoco, Inc., Houston, TX; Exxon Production Research Production Company, Houston, TX; E-Systems, Montek Division, Salt Lake City, UT; Gas Research Institute, Chicago, IL; Pelton Company, Inc., Ponca City, OK; and Sandia Corporation, Albuquerque, NM.

The objective of this Project is to investigate the feasibility with respect to the technical definition and establishment of as well as the development of a downhole seismic source. The general objectives of the Project are to develop a seismic source having an advanced hydraulic system with high-temperature electronics along with a high frequency seismic receiver. This technology is useful to image the region between two boreholes, to determine the geologic structure, rock properties, and possibly the fluid saturation between the boreholes. The seismic source developed hereunder is positioned in one borehole and the seismic receiver is positioned in the other, to permit the generation of a topographic image of the earth. The results of the Project will be evaluated to demonstrate the potential for commercial use of the technologies developed thereunder and to identify which limiting factors might restrict this application.

Participation in this venture will remain open to all interested persons and organizations until the Project Completion Date, which is presently anticipated to occur approximately March 1, 1996. The Participants intend to file additional written notifications disclosing all changes in the membership of the group of Participants involved in this Project.

Information regarding participation in the Project may be obtained from Robert F. Heming, Chevron Petroleum
