

Handling and Storage

The evaluation of at-reactor handling and storage activities will be based on representative site data derived from data collected at existing spent fuel storage locations. Site-specific National Environmental Policy Act documents for commercial reactor sites already have been issued by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Handling and storage activities for naval spent nuclear fuel at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will be addressed in the Naval Spent Nuclear Fuel Appendix to the MPC Environmental Impact Statement. The analysis in the MPC Environmental Impact Statement of potential impacts at a repository will consider the use of the MPC and alternative hardware systems only for surface activities, since ultimate disposition impacts can be meaningfully assessed only in connection with proposed repository acceptance criteria. Such criteria will be analyzed in a separate Environmental Impact Statement that the Department will prepare for the candidate repository at Yucca Mountain, Nevada.

Transportation

The impacts of transportation activities for each alternative will be assessed using existing transportation impact models for shipments. Transportation evaluations would consider shipments between each existing storage location and two hypothetical Monitored Retrievable Storage facility locations, and subsequently to the candidate repository facility at Yucca Mountain, or between each existing storage location directly to the candidate repository facility. Representative routes will be chosen between origination and destination sites for purposes of assessing the potential risks involved in such transportation, including use of a potential rail spur at Yucca Mountain.
