SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Abstract

The Current Retail Sales and Inventory Survey provides estimates of monthly sales and end-of-month merchandise inventories of retail stores in the United States by selected kinds of business. The survey also provides sales estimates for selected states, metropolitan areas and cities. The Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) uses this information to prepare the National Income and Products Accounts, and to benchmark the annual input-output tables. Statistics provided from the Retail Sales and Inventory Survey are used to calculate the gross domestic product (GDP).

The survey currently uses a sample design that includes both fixed and rotating panels. Larger firms are requested to report sales and inventories each month, putting them in the fixed panel category. Smaller firms belong to one of three rotating panels that are contacted every third month and report data from the two most recent months. In this way, we obtain eight months of data through four contacts per year for the smaller firms. Under the current system, we release a preliminary estimate one month, and then revise it with a final estimate one month later.

Revisions can be relatively large due to imbalances in the rotating panels and differential response bias between current and previous month reports.

We plan to implement a totally fixed panel design for the next sample revision starting in early 1997. Under this new design, all reporting units will report each month. By going to a totally fixed panel design, we will greatly minimize preliminary-to-final revisions caused by the rotating panels.

The fixed panel design will allow for better analysis of data since we will be able to more easily pinpoint unusual responses by reviewing each reporting unit's data each month. By using a simplified estimation scheme, the new design will also allow easier computation of an individual firm's effect on the total estimates.

The fixed panel design will also give us better estimates when reconciling differences with other surveys. When we reconcile smaller firms with the Annual Retail Trade Survey, (OMB Approval #0607-0013), we will have twelve months of data rather than eight. Also, firms in the Advance Monthly Retail Sales Survey (OMB Approval #0607-0104)—a subsample of the Current Retail Sales and Inventory Survey—are requested to report one month of data every month. Under the fixed panel design, all firms in the Advance Monthly Retail Sales Survey will now be included in the Current Retail Sales and Inventory Survey each month.

This fixed panel design will allow for better comparisons between these closely related surveys.
