

subject to the paramount authority of the Federal Government exercised pursuant to the above cited statute. In fairness to the Villages, however, the MMS is carefully pursuing a factual inquiry into the potential nature and extent of such Native claims. MMS requests that any knowledgeable party submit any information pertinent to the Villages' claims regarding the federal OCS, whether such information supports or disputes the claims.

The MMS has received a report on claimed aboriginal use of the OCS from Kayak Island to the Lower Cook Inlet. That report suggests that even if aboriginal claims could exist on the OCS, the factual predicate for a claim by the Native Villages of Eyak, Tatilek, Chenega, Port Graham, and Nanwalek, is not present. The MMS invites comments on that report which can be obtained by contacting Paul Stag or William Quinn at the addresses shown above.

MMS also invites knowledgeable parties to provide factual responses to any of the following questions and to supply any other relevant information:

1. What is the physical/territorial location of the "ancestral fishing areas" on the federal OCS of each of the five Native Villages? Please cite known anthropological data regarding historical use indicating that the use occurred more than three miles from the coastline on the federal OCS.

2. What is the size of each Village's historical fishing areas on the federal OCS? Do any of them overlap? Have the dimensions and geographic descriptions of such areas remained constant over time? If not, please describe how they have changed.

3. How long has each Village used such areas on the federal OCS? During this period has such historical use been continuous and exclusive of others?

4. For what type of subsistence uses have such areas on the federal OCS been historically used?

a. To what extent, if any, have they been exclusively and continually used in this manner? If so for how long? What distance from the coast have these activities occurred?

b. If such use was ever interrupted, for what reason and for how long?

c. What species of fish, invertebrates, birds, and/or marine mammals were hunted over the federal OCS?

(i) During what time of year was each species hunted?

(ii) At what depth?

(iii) What kinds of equipment were historically used to harvest such resources? Are newer or different methods and equipment used now? If so, when did such changes occur?

5. What was the impact of Russian or American expansion into the region on such uses?

6. Has the possession and use of such areas been exclusive of other Alaska Native entities?

If not, is there any evidence of "joint" or "concurrent" use by other Villages? If so, what is the basis and nature of such joint usage and when did such usage begin?

7. When was the first use of the seabed and its resources and by whom? Its mineral resources (including geological and geophysical work preparatory to such exploitation)?

MMS will consider all such information (along with responses to the other request mentioned above) in making final decisions on Sale 149 and Sale 158.
