SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Abstract

In the design for the 2000 census, the Census Bureau plans to expand the use of administrative records.

Administrative records may be used to estimate characteristics of non-responding households, supplement missing data for respondents that return incomplete forms, and to help improve estimation of the number of persons missed within households. Collection of Social Security numbers would assist efforts to accurately match administrative records information. The purpose of the 1997 SPARU is to study the public's attitudes regarding the Census Bureau's planned use of administrative records in the 2000 Census and a proposal to collect the Social Security number of each household member in the decennial census. The 1997 SPARU will be a repeat of a survey conducted during the summer of 1996, known as the 1996 SPARU (0607-0822). This research, in conjunction with results from the 1996 SPARU and the first attitudinal survey conducted in 1995, will enable the Census Bureau to assess change in the public's attitudes.

Results of the 1996 SPARU will be released in December 1996. The estimated final response rate is 65 percent with 1,210 completed interviews. Midway through the interviewing period, it was reported that completed interviews averaged less than 15 minutes. The size of the questionnaire is expected to be about the same for the 1997 SPARU. To maintain continuity, the content of the questionnaire will be mostly the same.
Two developments, however, will cause some change to the content. As determined by Census Bureau experts, the contractor, and outside expert consultation, the questions yielding insignificant or meaningless results will be dropped. The Census Bureau also will for the first time gauge the public's understanding of and opinion on "within household privacy." The Census Bureau strictly abides by its confidentiality laws at the household level. However, when the Census Bureau must re-contact a household to get more complete responses, the census taker may provide information to a member of the household other than the initial respondent. The 1997 SPARU will probe the public's attitude regarding this aspect of "privacy principles" and the Census Bureau's past practices.

II. Method of Collection

A contractor will conduct the survey with telephone interviewing using an automated survey instrument and a random digit dialing sampling design.

III. Data

IV. Request for Comments

Comments are invited on: (a) Whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information shall have practical utility; (b) the accuracy of the agency's estimate of the burden (including hours and cost) of the proposed collection of information; ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information to be collected; and (d) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on respondents, including through the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology.

Comments submitted in response to this notice will be summarized and/or included in the request for OMB approval of this information collection; they also will become a matter of public record.
