DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Agency for Health Care Policy and Research

Nominations of Topics for Evidence-based Practice Centers (EPCs)

The Agency for Health Care Policy and Research (AHCPR) invites nominations of topics for evidence reports on the prevention, diagnosis, treatment, and management of common diseases and clinical conditions and, where appropriate, the use of alternative/complementary therapies, and for technology assessments of specific medical procedures or health care technologies.

As part of the effort to reorganize and restructure its programs, AHCPR is no longer facilitating the development of clinical practice guidelines and is expanding its program of health care technology assessments. AHCPR will serve as a science partner with private-sector and other public organizations in their efforts to improve the quality, effectiveness, and appropriateness of health care delivery in the United States. The Agency's goal is to narrow the gap between what is known and what is done in health care. AHCPR will support Evidence-based Practice Centers (EPCs) to undertake scientific analyses and evidence syntheses of high-priority topics. The EPCs will produce science syntheses—evidence reports and technology assessments—that provide the scientific foundation for public and private organizations to use in developing and implementing their own practice guidelines, performance measures, and other tools to improve the quality of health care and in making decisions related to the effectiveness or appropriateness of specific health care technologies.

The process that AHCPR will employ to select priority topics for analyses by the EPCs is described below.

Background

Under Title IX of the Public Health Service Act, AHCPR is charged with enhancing the quality, appropriateness, and effectiveness of health care services and access to such services. AHCPR accomplishes these goals through scientific research and through promotion of improvements in clinical practice (including the prevention of diseases and other health conditions) and improvements in the organization, financing, and delivery of health care services (42 U.S.C. 299-299c-6 and 1320b-12). In carrying out these purposes, AHCPR, among other activities, has in the past arranged for the development of clinical practice guidelines and has conducted assessments of health care technologies.

Through the creation of EPCs, AHCPR will be better able to serve as a science partner with private-sector and other public organizations in addressing a greater number of health care topics and a broader range of clinical conditions and health problems. The EPCs will provide a strong scientific foundation for private and public organizations to use in their own efforts to improve clinical practice. The EPCs will conduct literature reviews and assess and synthesize scientific evidence to produce evidence reports and technology assessments. The reports and assessments will provide systems of care, provider societies, health plans, public and private purchasers, States, and others a scientific foundation for development and implementation of their own practice guidelines, clinical
