

The chemical nomination and selection process is integral to the effective long-term operation of the NTP with respect to toxicological studies of chemicals using modern techniques and to the development and validation of new assay methods. Thus, the NTP welcomes nominations of chemicals for study from everyone. At a minimum, the nominator should give the name of the chemical or substance, the rationale for the nomination, and recommend the type study(s) to be considered. In addition, it is desirable, but not essential, to supplement each nomination with the following information, if known:

- chemical and physical properties;
- production, use, occurrence, and analysis data;
- toxicology information, including human data;
- chemical disposition and structure-activity relationships; and
- planned, ongoing, or recently completed toxicological and environmental studies.
