SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:Background

The Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora, TIAS 8249, hereinafter referred to as CITES or the Convention, is an international treaty designed to control and regulate international trade in certain animal and plant species that are or may become threatened with extinction, and are listed in Appendices to the Convention. Currently, 134 countries, including the United States, are CITES Parties. CITES calls for biennial meetings of the Conference of the Parties (COP), which review its implementation, make provisions enabling the CITES Secretariat in Switzerland to carry out its functions, consider amendments to the list of species in Appendices I and II, consider reports presented by the Secretariat, and make recommendations for the improved effectiveness of the Convention. The tenth regular meeting of the Conference of the Parties to CITES (COP10) will be held in Harare, Zimbabwe, June 9-20, 1997.

The Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) hereby publishes the list of resolutions and documents submitted to the CITES Secretariat by the United States for consideration at COP10. At this time, the Service has not been provided with all of the resolutions or species listing proposals submitted by the other CITES Parties. Once this information has been received from the CITES Secretariat, the Service will publish it in another notice, and call for public comments on proposed U.S. negotiating positions.

This is part of a series of notices that, together with public meetings, allow the public to participate in the development of the U.S. positions for COP10.
