[Regulation Z; Docket No. R-0960]

Truth in Lending

AGENCY: Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Board is publishing revisions to Regulation Z. The revisions implement an amendment to the Truth in Lending Act contained in the Economic Growth and Regulatory Paperwork Reduction Act of 1996 affecting the disclosure of a fifteen-year historical example of rates and payments. The amendment applies to variable-rate loans with a term exceeding one year and secured by the consumer's principal dwelling. The amendment allows creditors to provide a statement that the periodic payment may substantially increase or decrease together with a maximum interest rate and payment based on a $10,000 loan amount, in lieu of having to provide a fifteen-year historical example of index values.

DATES: Effective date: This rule is effective November 21, 1997.

Compliance date: Compliance is optional until October 1, 1998.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The purpose of the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) (15 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.) is to promote the informed use of consumer credit by requiring disclosures about its terms and cost. The act requires creditors to disclose the cost of credit as a dollar amount (the finance charge) and as an annual percentage rate (the APR). Uniformity in creditors' disclosures is intended to assist consumers in comparison shopping. The TILA requires additional disclosures for loans secured by a consumer's home and permits consumers to rescind certain transactions that involve their principal dwelling. The act is implemented by the Board's Regulation Z (12 CFR part 226).

The credit transactions covered by TILA and Regulation Z fall into two categories—open- or closed-end credit transactions. Open-end credit is defined as a plan under which the creditor reasonably contemplates repeated transactions, which prescribes the terms of such transactions, and which provides for a finance charge that may be computed from time to time on the outstanding unpaid balance, for example, credit extended by means of a credit card (§ 226.2(a)(20)). Closed-end credit is defined as any credit arrangement that does not fall within the definition of open-end credit (§ 226.2(a)(10)). A mortgage loan with a fixed maturity date is an example of closed-end credit.

II. Regulatory Provisions

Under Regulation Z, the timing and number of disclosures required for variable-rate loans vary depending on the term and security for the loan. For all variable-rate loans, disclosures are generally provided once—prior to consummation. However, if the loan exceeds a term of one year and is secured by the consumer's principal dwelling, creditors are required to provide disclosures at different times—a loan program disclosure when an application is received (or when a nonrefundable fee is paid, whichever occurs earlier), transaction-specific Truth in Lending disclosures prior to consummation, and disclosures subsequent to consummation when certain rate or payment changes occur. (See Regulation Z, 12 CFR 226.17(b), 18(f), 19, and 20(c).)

Disclosures provided at application for a variable-rate mortgage include the Board-prescribed Consumer Handbook on Adjustable Rate Mortgages (or a comparable substitute) and a loan program disclosure for each variable-rate program in which the consumer has expressed interest. The loan program disclosure consists of twelve separate items, including information such as the identification of the index or formula to be used for adjustments and a fifteen-year historical example of how changes in the index values or formula used to compute interest rates would have affected the interest rates and payments on a $10,000 loan.
